You agree that the Evaluation Material will not be used by you in any way detrimental to the Company, will be kept confidential by you and your Representatives, and will not, except as hereinafter provided, without the prior written consent of the Company be disclosed by you or your Representatives or used by you other than for the purpose of evaluating the Transaction. Moreover, you agree to transmit Evaluation Material only to those of your Representatives who need to know such information for the purpose of evaluating the Transaction and who will be advised by you of this Agreement and agree to be bound by the provisions hereof. You agree that the Company is free (i) to conduct any process relating to a possible Transaction as it, in its sole discretion, determines (including, without limitation, by negotiating with any prospective buyer and entering into a preliminary or definitive agreement without prior notice to you or any other person) and (ii) in its sole discretion, to change the procedures relating to its consideration of a Transaction at any time without prior notice to you or to any other person, to reject any and all proposals made by you or any of your Representatives with regard to a Transaction, and to terminate discussions and negotiations with you or your Representatives at any time and for any reason.

Notwithstanding the preceding paragraph, the Company hereby agrees that for a period of 30 days from the date hereof, the Company shall negotiate solely and exclusively with you, and during such 30 day period (the "Exclusively Period"), the Company shall not negotiate, discuss or entertain any offers from any party other than you with regard to a Transaction nor shall the Company take any action with a view towards consummating a Transaction with any party other than you.

Promptly upon request from the Company, you will either redeliver to the Company or destroy all (including that maintained in any computer memory, storage media or similar form) Evaluation Material and any other material containing, prepared on the basis of, or reflecting any information in the Evaluation Material (whether prepared by you or your Representatives, the Company or its Representatives or otherwise) and will not retain any copies, extracts or other reproductions in whole or in part of such material. Any such destruction will be confirmed in writing to the Company by you or an authorized Representative supervising the same.

You understand that, except as may otherwise be agreed in writing, neither the Company nor its Representatives make any representation or warranty as to the accuracy or completeness of the Evaluation Material. You agree that neither the Company nor its Representatives will have any liability to you or any of your Representatives resulting from the use of the Evaluation Material by you or your Representatives. You agree that, except as provided in this Agreement or any definitive written agreement, unless and until a definitive written agreement between the Compa-

You agree that you and your Representatives will direct all questions and requests for information, as well as all bids and proposals, to Jerry W. Levin or persons expressly designated by him and will not contact any other Representative or employee of the Company.

This Agreement will inure to the benefit of any successor in interest to the Company as well as any person that may acquire after the date hereof the Business or any subsidiary or division of the Company operating the Business with respect to Evaluation Material concerning the business or affairs of such subsidiary or division.

It is understood and agreed that no failure or delay by the Company in exercising any right, power or privilege hereunder will operate as a waiver thereof, nor will any single or partial exercise thereof preclude any other further exercise thereof or the exercise of any right, power or privilege hereunder.

You acknowledge and agree that the Evaluation Material, as well as the services performed and the information possessed by the Company's employees, are of a character giving them a special, unique and extraordinary value and that the Company would not have entered into this Agreement if you had not agreed to a three-year term (and an indefinite term as respects Know-How). You further acknowledge and agree that such a three-year term is reasonable under the circumstances. It is the desire and intent of the parties that the provisions of this Agreement be enforceable to the fullest extent permissible under the laws and public policies applied in each jurisdiction in which enforcement is sought. Accordingly, you and the Company agree that, should a court or administrative body subsequently determine that the terms of any provision of this Agreement are more extensive than reasonably necessary to protect the Company's interest, to request that such court or administrative body reform this Agreement specifying the greatest time period, the greatest area or other limitation that would not render any such provision unenforceable.

It is expressly agreed by the parties that the mere disclosure of the fact that discussions between you and your Representatives and the Company are taking place is likely to be detrimental to the Company. The term "person" as used in this Agreement will be broadly interpreted to include, without limitation, any corporation, company, partnership, individual or other entity.

You acknowledge that the operation of the Business involves the utilization of highly confidential and proprietary information not protected by patent, copyright or other statutory rights of the Company, including unpatented process and manufacturing technology and know-how (collectively, "Know-How") and information regarding customers' orders and brokers, agents and representatives involved in the Business, disclosure or misappropriation of which by you or your Representatives would irreparably damage the Company. Accordingly, without limitation to any other provision of this Agreement, to protect the Company's interests in such information and all other Evaluation Material, you agree that except as expressly approved by the Company in advance, unless and until the consummation by you of a Transaction, you will not without the prior written consent of the Company (i) communicate regarding the Business or its operations, prospects or finances with any employee of the Company or with any person identified by you in the course of your evaluation as being a customer, supplier, customer's or supplier's representative, or other person involved in the conduct of the Business, or (ii) directly or indirectly solicit for employment any employee, nor solicit, employ, retain or enter into business relations with any senior management or key employee of the Company who became known to you through the Evaluation Material or with whom you have had contact in the process contemplated by this Agreement. Solicitation through advertisements in periodicals of general circulation not specifically directed at employees of the Company shall be deemed not to be solicitation hereunder.

In the event that you, your Representatives or any person to whom you or your Representatives supply the Evaluation Material or disclose the existence of this Agreement or that discussions or negotiations are taking place concerning a possible Transaction, are requested or required (by oral questions, interrogatories, requests for information or documents, subpoena, civil investigative demand, any informal or formal investigation by any government or governmental agency or authority or otherwise) to disclose any Evaluation Material or any information relating to a possible Transaction or such person's opinion, judgment, view or recommendation concerning the Business as developed from the Evaluation Material, you agree (i) to notify the Company immediately of the existence, terms and circumstances surrounding such request, (ii) to consult with the Company on the advisability of taking legally available steps to resist or narrow such request and (iii) if disclosure of such information is required, to furnish only that portion of the Evaluation Material which, in the opinion of your counsel, you are legally compelled to disclose and to cooperate with any action by the Company to obtain an appropriate protective order or other reliable assurance that confidential treatment will be accorded the Evaluation Material. You agree to use your best efforts to limit the disclosure of any Evaluation Material.

You agree that the Company is free (i) to conduct any process relating to a possible Transaction as it, in its sole discretion, determines (including, without limitation, by negotiating with any prospective buyer and entering into a preliminary or definitive agreement without prior notice to you or any other person) and (ii) in its sole discretion, to change the procedures relating to its consideration of a Transaction at any time without prior notice to you or to any other person, to reject any and all proposals made by you or any of your Representatives with regard to a Transaction, and to terminate discussions and negotiations with you or your Representatives at any time and for any reason.

Notwithstanding the preceding paragraph, the Company hereby agrees that for a period of 30 days from the date hereof, the Company shall negotiate solely and exclusively with you regarding an acquisition transaction, and during such 30 day period (the "Exclusively Period"), the Company shall not negotiate, discuss or entertain any offers from any party other than you with regard to an acquisition transaction nor shall the Company take any action with a view towards consummating any acquisition transaction with any party other than you.

Promptly upon request from the Company, you will either redeliver to the Company or destroy all (including that maintained in any computer memory, storage media or similar form) Evaluation Material and any other material containing, prepared on the basis of, or reflecting any information in the Evaluation Material (whether prepared by you or your Representatives, the Company or its Representatives or otherwise) and will not retain any copies, extracts or other reproductions in whole or in part of such material. Any such destruction will be confirmed in writing to the Company by you or an authorized Representative supervising the same.

You understand that, except as may otherwise be agreed in writing, neither the Company nor its Representatives make any representation or warranty as to the accuracy or completeness of the Evaluation Material. You agree that neither the Company nor its Representatives will have any liability to you or any of your Representatives resulting from the use of the Evaluation Material by you or your Representatives. You agree that, except as provided in this Agreement or any definitive written agreement, unless and until a definitive written agreement between the Company and you with respect to a Transaction has been executed and delivered, neither the Company nor you will be under any legal obligation of any kind whatsoever with respect to the Evaluation Material or a possible Transaction.

You agree that you and your Representatives will direct all questions and requests for information, as well as all bids and proposals, to or persons expressly designated by him and will not contact any other Representative or employee of the Company.

This Agreement will inure to the benefit of any successor in interest to the Company as well as any person that may acquire after the date hereof the Business or any subsidiary or division of the Company operating the Business with respect to Evaluation Material concerning the business or affairs of such subsidiary or division.

It is understood and agreed that no failure or delay in exercising any right, power or privilege hereunder will operate as a waiver thereof, nor will any single or partial exercise thereof preclude any other further exercise thereof or the exercise of any right, power or privilege hereunder.

You acknowledge and agree that the Evaluation Material, as well as the services performed and the information possessed by the Company's employees, are of a character giving them a special, unique and extraordinary value and that the Company would not have entered into this Agreement if you had not agreed to a three-year term (and an indefinite term as respects Know-How). You further acknowledge and agree that such a three-year term is reasonable under the circumstances. It is the desire and intent of the parties that the provisions of this Agreement be enforceable to the fullest extent permissible under the laws and public policies applied in each jurisdiction in which enforcement is sought. Accordingly, you and the Company agree that, should a court or administrative body subsequently determine that the terms of any provision of this Agreement are more extensive than reasonably necessary to protect the Company's interest, to request that such court or administrative body reform this Agreement specifying the greatest time period, the greatest area or other limitation that would not render any such provision unenforceable.

You acknowledge that you are (i) aware that the United States securities laws prohibit any person who has material non-public information about a company from purchasing or selling securities of such company, or from communicating such information to any other person under circumstances in which it is reasonably foreseeable that such person is likely to purchase or sell such securities and (ii) familiar with the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "1934 Act") and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder and agree that you will neither use, nor cause any third party to use, any Evaluation Material in contravention of such Act or any such rules and regula-

You acknowledge and agree that in the event of any breach of this Agreement, the Company would be irreparably and immediately harmed and may not be made whole by monetary damages. It is accordingly agreed that the Company, in addition to any other remedy to which it may be entitled in law or equity, will be entitled to an injunction or injunctions to prevent breaches of this Agreement, and to compel specific performance of this Agreement, without the need for proof of actual damages. You agree to waive, and to cause your Representatives to waive, any requirement for securing or posting of any bond in connection with such remedy. You also agree to reimburse the Company for all expenses, including fees and disbursements of counsel, incurred by it in enforcing your or your Representatives' obligations hereunder.

This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between the parties with respect to the subject matter hereof and may not be modified or amended except in writing signed by the parties hereto. Neither party may assign any of its rights or obligations hereunder without the express prior written consent of the other party hereto.

This Agreement will be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York, without regard to the principles of conflicts of laws thereof. The Company and you hereby irrevocably and unconditionally submit to the exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of the State of New York and the United States located in the City of New York for any actions, suits or proceedings arising out of or relating to this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby and agree not to commence any action, suit or proceeding relating thereto except in such courts. Each party further irrevocably and unconditionally waives and agrees not to plead or claim in any such court any objection to venue or that such court is an inconvenient forum.

This Agreement will terminate and be of no further force and effect on the third anniversary of the date of this Agreement except as to the obligations of confidentiality with respect to Know-How, which will continue indefinitely.

Sunbeam

Did Al show his hand too soon?

Buy

- Sunbeam closed out its dramatic 1997 turnaround with EPS of $0.47 in the fourth quarter, finishing with $1.41 in 1997 versus a $0.10 loss in 1996.
- The market rewarded Sunbeam for this turnaround by driving SOC shares up over 65% in 1997.
- With shares down over 12% in 1998, the market is skeptical about whether an encore performance is possible.
- We see solid fundamental momentum through the first half of 1998, but the stock may lag until confidence in 40% EPS growth in 1998 is strengthened. We believe Sunbeam has strategies in place to restore this confidence in the near term. We reiterate our buy (1) rating.

Investment opinion

We continue to closely monitor Sunbeam's aggressive balance sheet management as well as the attainability of the company's international goals. While Sunbeam dismisses its high inventory and receivables levels as necessary "evils" to support its aggressive growth goals, we note that its strategy leaves little margin for error in an industry that oftentimes faces errors outside of its control (weather, economic cycles). On the international front, we have always modeled for slower growth than Sunbeam has internally modeled for, but we no longer believe there is much, if any, upside to our more conservative stance. We are also bothered by the departure of Dixon Thayer, VP of Sunbeam's International business, only one year into the international ramp-up. Thayer's as well as some other departures at the VP level have been attributed to the company's ongoing refinement. We find the timing to be a little suspect. While some "warning signs" persist and some others have cropped up, we believe this has already been reflected in Sunbeam's stock price, down nearly 25% since it reported its third quarter 1997 earnings in late October. At present, Sunbeam needs some new, positive news to stop its steady decline. This could come in the form of an acquisition announcement, as Chairman Al Dunlap has made it clear he intends to close an acquisition in the first half of 1998. At 19.0x our 1998 estimate of $1.95, we believe there is limited downside in Sunbeam shares at this point and the consummation of an accretive transaction could give the shares a much-needed boost.

Fourth quarter EPS hits low end of range

Sunbeam reported fourth quarter EPS results of $0.47, in line with the low end of Street estimates ($0.47-0.55) and $0.01 short of our estimate. The company estimates that a $15 million shortfall in electric blankets cost $0.04 in the quarter and the Neosho grill facility re-alignment another $0.01. We believe that $0.47 represents a strong close to a very strong year, but caution investors that going forward, the low end of the range may be a more relevant number to focus on when assessing Sunbeam's value. As the last couple of quarters have indicated, Sunbeam's goals are very aggressive, even at the low end of the range. Given the slight downside surprise in the latest quarter, we have trimmed our 1998 EPS estimate to $1.95-2.00 from $2.00-2.05, reflecting management's guidance that 40% EPS growth in 1998 is within reason. While we believe estimates beyond 1998 are less relevant as Sunbeam management stated it seeks to "close" a major acquisition in the first half of 1998, for now, we have shaved a dime off our 1999 range, to $2.50-2.60. At 19.0x the low end of our 1998 range, we continue to believe Sunbeam is a good buy in the high-$30s, provided it carries out its Phase III plans . Sticking with our revised "low-end" outlook, our 12- to 18-month price target is $50, representing 20x the low end of our 1999 estimate.

Sales strong, led by grills

Sales in the quarter were up 25.7% on a reported basis, to $338.1 million. This was about $6 million short of our estimate, due to the previously mentioned blanket softness. As expected, the grill sales led the way in the quarter, but this growth was substantially ahead of our expectations. We are not bothered by the "grill blip" in the fourth quarter as long as the company hasn't stolen some first quarter 1998 upside to stretch to meet fourth quarter 1997 expectations. We will not really know this until we are further into the first quarter, but must note that we believe the receivable and inventory position is still a bit "heavy." The stakes are high as Sunbeam enters the peak grill season, as the company has already begun to seed the channel in the fourth quarter, grill inventory is high (according to strategy), and its product line-up is brand new. If it works, Sunbeam will likely gain substantial market share and have a blow-out first half in grills against an easy first half 1997 comparison. We are modeling for first half 1998 grill sales of around $270 million, up 15-20% from the roughly $230 million in last year's first half. We also expect grill margins to be around 5-6 points higher in 1998 than in 1997, but still below the company average. We believe that Sunbeam management understands the importance of the grill turnaround and have no reason to doubt their execution capabilities. Regarding this matter, all the shorts can do is pray for rain.

20% operating margin—almost there

Sequential margin improvement continued, as the company registered a 19.7% operating margin in the quarter. Gross margin declined sequentially in the quarter, to 29.4% from 30.7% due to the higher grill mix (19% of sales in the fourth quarter versus 11% in the third), but the difference was more than made up for in operating margin as SG&A expenditures came in at only 9.7% of sales. We expect SG&A expenses to pick up again to around 13-14% of sales in the first half of 1998 as spending behind the enhanced grill line-up and the air & water products begins.

What about Phase III?

As we have stated previously, we believe Sunbeam will have a difficult time achieving second half 1998 growth targets without an accretive acquisition. We remain comfortable with our $1.95-2.00 EPS estimate in 1998 without an acquisition, but we would certainly breathe a little easier if Sunbeam could actually consummate an accretive transaction. Sunbeam Chairman Al Dunlap expressed his desire to have a transaction closed in the first half. We continue to believe that time is the company's enemy and the sooner it can strike a deal, the better. We are also increasingly of the belief that Sunbeam doesn't need a multi-billion dollar acquisition to drive its stock price higher. Given its cost-cutting prowess, superior margin structure and relatively small sales base ($1.2 billion), we believe a smaller acquisition might be enough to provide upside on the $2.00 estimate in 1998 and return the stock to its old highs in the low $50s. Furthermore, it may be easier to consummate a smaller transaction with cash/debt and save the stock for the "big one," when Sunbeam's multiple improves. Whether we see the "quantum leap" or not in the first half, we think one thing is clear: Al Dunlap is not likely to sit idle and watch his stock under-perform the market as well as the stocks of his perennial laggard competitors. We believe the consummation of some type of M&A deal in the first half is highly likely. The market is simply waiting to see at what cost this transaction will come. While Sunbeam certainly is well positioned to become the leading consolidator in an industry desperately in need of consolidation, we just do not believe Al Dunlap took this job a year and a half ago to pioneer this consolidation.

We repeat our Sunbeam investment thesis (with some modest revisions)

- Solid momentum through the first half fueled by a new grill line-up and enhanced grill facility as well as its "Air & Water" offerings from the "secret room."
- Comparisons to get tougher in the second half, but likely to be clouded by Phase III (or perhaps smaller acquisition).
- Real potential for another round of meteoric stock price appreciation comes if Sunbeam can make a strategic acquisition, using Sunbeam stock as currency, at a modest premium that doesn't already factor in all of the cost-cutting potential. (A smaller cash/debt deal could also drive some less meteoric appreciation.)
- Patient Sunbeam investors may get two (or more) "Chainsaw" turnarounds for the price of one.

Valuation

As Table 3 illustrates, at its current depressed levels, Sunbeam's P/E valuation relative to some other leading consumer non-durable players is beginning to look quite reasonable.

Table 3
Consumer non-durable companies' valuations

Company	2/4 Close	98E*	99E*	98 P/E	99 P/E
Black & Decker	$48 5/8	$2.6 5	$3.26	18.3x	14.9x

			Mean	20.5x	17.1x
Sunbeam	$37		$1.95	$2.50	19.0x	14.8x

*First Call mean estimate, except for Sunbeam which is based on low-end of PaineWebber range.

We believe that over the next 12-18 months, as Sunbeam management takes the appropriate steps to restore confidence in the attainability of aggressive 1998/1999 estimates, the stock can approach 20x our 1999 EPS estimate, or $50, representing 33% upside from current levels. Until such steps are taken, we believe the stock may languish in its current $37-40 trading range.

We should note that investor skepticism is nothing new for Sunbeam. Exactly one year ago, Sunbeam's stock closed at $27 1/8, 19.2x what many viewed as a very aggressive $1.40 estimate for 1997. A year later, the earnings have been delivered and Sunbeam stock is up nearly 40%. If Sunbeam management executes according to plan (40% EPS growth in 1998), January's skepticism may translate into an encore performance for investors in 1998.

Risks

Sunbeam has been and continues to be a very risky story. The company's EPS growth target of 40% in 1998 is very aggressive and comes in the face of a difficult economic climate in Asia and very solid growth in second half 1997. We also believe the company is employing a risky strategy to capture a larger share of the grill market. Execution is key to the company providing an encore to its stellar 1997 performance.

Phase III Update - Did Al Show his hand too soon?

Sunbeam Chairman Al Dunlap stated publicly on April 4, 1997 that Sunbeam was looking to hire an advisor to explore takeovers or a sale of the company. Dunlap claimed that Sunbeam could "easily spend $5 billion on a buyout" and that he would "prefer making a hostile takeover of a poorly managed company to a friendly buyout." Nearly 10 months later, Sunbeam has made no such acquisition, but some potential targets have made some pre-emptive moves.

In many cases the stock prices of Sunbeam's restructuring counterparts have outpaced Sunbeam's stock price since the company's April 4 announcement and its October 23 announcement that Morgan Stanley had been hired to explore strategic alternatives.

4th Quarter Issues:

* Jump in inventories supposedly relates to finished goods that SOC plans to ship in Oct/Nov.
* Also supposedly a result of initiatives to improve "on-time and complete" delivery record.
* Note that restructuring accrual balance at September was $20.1M vs $43.7M at year-end 96.
* Uptick in 3rd quarter receivables supposedly relates to 1/2 of quarter sales being shipped in September.
  - 77% of 3rd quarter sales were on net 60 days or better, 75% of September's sales were on net-30.
* Another concern has been international pipeline filling.

STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL

$2,014,000,000

Sunbeam.

ZERO COUPON CONVERTIBLE SENIOR SUBORDINATED DEBENTURES DUE 2018

The Debentures are convertible at any time after 90 days following the latest date of original issuance thereof and prior to maturity, unless previously redeemed or otherwise purchased, into shares of the Company's common stock, $0.01 par value (the "Common Stock"), at a conversion rate of 6.575 shares per $1,000 principal amount at maturity. The conversion rate will not be adjusted for accrued Original Issue Discount (as defined), but will be subject to adjustment in certain events. See "Description of Debentures—Conversion of Debentures." The Company's Common Stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol "SOC." The reported last sale price of the Company's Common Stock as reported on the New York Stock Exchange Composite Tape on March 19, 1998 was $45 5/16 per share.

The Debentures are being issued at an original price of $372.43 per $1,000 principal amount at maturity (the "Issue Price"), which represents an original issue discount of 62.757% from the principal amount thereof payable at maturity (the "Original Issue Discount"). The Issue Price represents a yield to maturity of 5.0% per annum (computed on a semi-annual bond equivalent basis).

Prior to March 25, 2003, the Debentures are not redeemable at the option of the Company. On or after such date, the Debentures are redeemable on at least 30 days' notice at the option of the Company, in whole or in part at any time, at redemption prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company."

The Debentures may be purchased by the Company, at the option of the holder, as of March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013 for purchase prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to such dates. Subject to certain conditions, the Company may elect to pay any such purchase price in cash or Common Stock, or any combination thereof. See "Description of Debentures—Purchase of Debentures at the Option of the Holder." The Debentures may also be redeemed at the option of the holder if there is a Fundamental Change (as defined) at redemption prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption, subject to adjustment in certain circumstances as described herein. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change." The Debentures will be subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future Senior Indebtedness (as defined) of the Company and effectively subordinated in right of payment to all indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company's subsidiaries. At December 28, 1997, on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Acquisitions (as defined), the Bank Financing (as defined), the offering of the Debentures and the application of the net proceeds therefrom, approximately $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness would have been outstanding and the total indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company's subsidiaries would have been approximately $731 million.

The Debentures are eligible for trading in Private Offerings, Resales and Trading through Automated Linkages ("PORTAL") Market.

SEE "RISK FACTORS" BEGINNING ON PAGE 12 FOR A DISCUSSION OF CERTAIN FACTORS THAT SHOULD BE CONSIDERED BY PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS.

THE DEBENTURES AND THE COMMON STOCK ISSUABLE UPON CONVERSION OF THE DEBENTURES HAVE NOT BEEN REGISTERED UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED (THE "SECURITIES ACT"), AND MAY NOT BE OFFERED OR SOLD EXCEPT PURSUANT TO AN EXEMPTION FROM, OR IN A TRANSACTION NOT SUBJECT TO, THE REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS OF THE SECURITIES ACT. ACCORDINGLY, THE DEBENTURES MAY BE OFFERED AND SOLD ONLY TO (i) "QUALIFIED INSTITUTIONAL BUYERS" (AS DEFINED IN RULE 144A UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT) IN COMPLIANCE WITH RULE 144A AND (ii) A LIMITED NUMBER OF OTHER INSTITUTIONAL "ACCREDITED INVESTORS" (AS DEFINED IN RULE 501(A)(1), (2), (3) OR (7) UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT) THAT, PRIOR TO THEIR PURCHASE OF THE DEBENTURES, DELIVER TO THE INITIAL PURCHASER A LETTER CONTAINING CERTAIN REPRESENTATIONS AND AGREEMENTS. FOR A DESCRIPTION OF CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS ON RESALE OR TRANSFER, SEE "TRANSFER RESTRICTIONS."

PRICE 37.243% AND ACCRUED ORIGINAL ISSUE DISCOUNT, IF ANY

The Company has granted Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated (the "Initial Purchaser") an option to purchase up to an additional $302,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity of Debentures to cover over-allotments, if any. See "Plan of Distribution."

The Debentures are offered, subject to prior sale, when, as and if accepted by the Initial Purchaser and subject to approval of certain legal matters by Davis Polk & Wardwell, counsel for the Initial Purchaser. It is expected that delivery of the Debentures will be made on or about March 25, 1998 at the office of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, New York, N.Y., against payment therefor in immediately available funds.

RISK FACTORS

An investment in the Debentures offered hereby involves a high degree of risk. Prospective investors should carefully consider the following risk factors, in addition to the other information set forth in this Offering Memorandum, in connection with an investment in the Debentures offered hereby.

Substantial Leverage; Ability to Service Indebtedness. Following the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing and the Offering, the Company will be highly leveraged, with indebtedness that is very substantial in relation to its shareholders' equity. After giving pro forma effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing and the Offering, as of December 28, 1997, the Company's aggregate outstanding indebtedness would have been $2,044 million and the Company's shareholders' equity would have been $1,278 million. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will permit the Company to incur or guarantee additional indebtedness, subject to certain limitations. The Indenture does not restrict the ability of the Company to incur additional Indebtedness. See "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Financial Statements," "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations—Liquidity and Capital Resources," "The Acquisitions," "Description of Other Indebtedness" and "Description of Debentures."

The Company's high degree of leverage could have important consequences to holders of the Debentures, including but not limited to the following: (i) the Company's ability to obtain additional financing for working capital, capital expenditures, acquisitions or general corporate purposes may be impaired in the future; (ii) a substantial portion of the Company's cash flow from operations must be dedicated to the payment of principal and interest on its indebtedness, thereby reducing the funds available to the Company for its operations and other purposes; (iii) the Company may be substantially more leveraged than certain of its competitors, which may place the Company at a competitive disadvantage; (iv) the Company may be hindered in its ability to adjust rapidly to changing market conditions; and (v) the Company's substantial degree of leverage could make it more vulnerable in the event of a downturn in general economic conditions or its business.

The Company's ability to repay or to refinance its obligations with respect to its indebtedness will depend on its future financial and operating performance, which, in turn, will be subject to prevailing economic and competitive conditions and to financial, business and other factors, many of which are beyond the Company's control. These factors could include operating difficulties, increased operating costs, product pricing pressures, the response of competitors, and delays in implementing strategic projects. The Company's ability to meet its debt service and other obligations will depend in significant part on the extent to which the Company can implement its business strategy and successfully integrate the Acquisitions. There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to implement its strategy fully, that the anticipated results of its strategy will be realized or that the Acquisitions will be successfully integrated.

If the Company's cash flow and capital resources are insufficient to fund its debt service obligations, the Company may be forced to reduce or delay capital expenditures, sell assets, or seek to obtain additional equity capital, or to refinance or restructure its debt. There can be no assurance that the Company's cash flow and capital resources will be sufficient for payment of principal of, and premium, if any, and interest on, its indebtedness in the future, or that any such alternative measures would be successful or would permit the Company to meet its scheduled debt service obligations. In addition, because the Company's obligations under the New Credit Facility will bear interest at floating rates, an increase in interest rates could adversely affect, among other things, the Company's ability to meet its debt service obligations.

Holding Company Structure; Subordination. The Debentures will be exclusively the obligations of Sunbeam Corporation and not of any of its subsidiaries. The Company is a holding company that conducts substantially all of its operations through its subsidiaries. As a holding company, the Company holds no significant assets other than its investments in and advances to its subsidiaries. The Company is, therefore, dependent upon its receipt of sufficient funds from its subsidiaries to meet its own obligations, including its obligation to pay the accreted value of the Debentures upon maturity or earlier redemption or repurchase. The ability of the Company's subsidiaries to pay dividends or to make other payments or advances to the Company will depend on the operating results of its subsidiaries and any restrictions on paying such dividends or making such payments as may be applicable to such subsidiaries, including those expected to be contained in the New Credit Facility.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION AND SUBSIDIARIES

NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

1. Operations and Significant Accounting Policies

Organization

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam" or the "Company") is a leading manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Sunbeam® and Oster® brands have been household names for generations, and the Company is a market share leader in many of its product categories.

The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogs, television shopping channels, Company-owned outlet stores, hardware stores, home centers, drug and grocery stores, pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and the military. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions.

Approximately 79% of total Company sales are generated in the United States. The remaining sales are generated primarily in Latin America, Mexico, Canada, Europe and Asia.

Principles of Consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and all majority-owned subsidiaries that it controls. All material intercompany balances and transactions have been eliminated.

Presentation of Fiscal Periods

The Company's fiscal year ends on the Sunday nearest December 31. Fiscal years 1997, 1996 and 1995 ended on December 28, 1997, December 29, 1996, and December 31, 1995 respectively, which encompassed 52-week periods.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of the consolidated financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the consolidated financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ from those estimates. Significant accounting estimates include the establishment of the allowance for doubtful accounts, reserves for product warranty, product liability, excess and obsolete inventory, litigation and environmental exposures.

Concentrations of Credit Risk

Substantially all of the Company's trade receivables are due from retailers and distributors located throughout the United States, Latin America and Canada. Approximately 36% of the Company's sales in 1997 were to its five largest customers. The Company establishes its credit policies based on an ongoing evaluation of its customers' creditworthiness and competitive market conditions and establishes its allowance for doubtful accounts based on an assessment of exposures to credit losses at each balance sheet date. The Company believes its allowance for doubtful accounts is sufficient based on the credit exposures outstanding at December 28, 1997. However, certain retailers filed for bankruptcy protection in the last several years and it is possible that additional credit losses could be incurred if the trends of retail consolidation continue.

Inventories

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost or market with cost being determined principally by the first-in, first-out method.

Property, Plant and Equipment

Property, plant and equipment is stated at cost. The Company provides for depreciation using primarily the straight-line method in amounts that allocate the cost of property, plant and equipment over the following useful lives:

Buildings and improvements	20 to 40 years
Machinery, equipment and tooling	3 to 15 years
Furniture and fixtures	3 to 10 years

Leasehold improvements are amortized on a straight-line basis over the shorter of its estimated useful life or the term of the lease.

Long-lived Assets

The Company accounts for long-lived assets pursuant to Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 121, Accounting for the Impairment of Long-lived Assets and for Long-lived Assets to Be Disposed Of. See Notes 8 and 9 for a discussion of asset impairment charges in 1996.

Capitalized Interest

Interest costs for the construction of certain long-term assets are capitalized and amortized over the related assets' estimated useful lives. Total interest costs during 1997 and 1996 amounted to $12.3 million and $14.0 million respectively, of which $.9 million and $.4 million respectively, was capitalized into the construction cost of the long-term assets.

Amortization Periods

Trademarks and trade names are being amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years.

Revenue Recognition

The Company recognizes revenues from product sales principally at the time of shipment to customers. In limited circumstances, at the customers request the Company may sell seasonal product on a bill and hold basis provided that the goods are completed, packaged and ready for shipment, such goods are segregated and the risks of ownership and legal title have passed to the customer. The amount of such bill and hold sales at December 29, 1997 was approximately 3% of consolidated revenues.

Net sales is comprised of gross sales less provisions for expected customer returns, discounts, promotional allowances and cooperative advertising.

Warranty Costs

The Company provides for warranty costs in amounts it estimates will be needed to cover future warranty obligations for products sold during the year. Estimates of warranty costs are periodically reviewed and adjusted, when necessary, to consider actual experience.

1. Operations and Significant Accounting Policies—(Continued)

Advertising Costs

Media advertising costs included in "Selling, General and Administrative Expense," are expensed as incurred. Co-operative advertising costs are expensed ratably over the year in relation to revenues.

Foreign Currency Translation

The assets and liabilities of subsidiaries, other than those operating in highly inflationary environments, are translated into U.S. dollars at year-end exchange rates, with resulting translation gains and losses accumulated in a separate component of shareholders' equity. Income and expense items are converted into U.S. dollars at average rates of exchange prevailing during the year.

For subsidiaries operating in highly inflationary environments, (Venezuela and Mexico) inventories and property, plant and equipment are translated at the rate of exchange on the date the assets were acquired, while other assets and liabilities are translated at year-end exchange rates. Translation adjustments for those operations are included in "Other (income) expense, net" on the Accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations.

Stock-Based Compensation Plans

SFAS No. 123, Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation allows either adoption of a fair value method for accounting for stock-based compensation plans or continuation of accounting under Accounting Principles Board ("APB") Opinion No. 25, Accounting for Stock Issued to Employees, and related interpretations with supplemental disclosures.

The Company has chosen to account for its stock options using the intrinsic value based method prescribed in APB Opinion No. 25 and, accordingly, does not recognize compensation expense for stock option grants made at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant. Pro forma net income and earnings per share amounts as if the fair value method had been adopted are presented in Note 5 herein. SFAS No. 123 does not impact the Company's results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

Earnings Per Share of Common Stock

In 1997, the Company adopted SFAS No. 128, Earnings Per Share. Basic earnings per common share calculations are determined by dividing earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock. Diluted earnings per share are determined by dividing earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock and dilutive common stock equivalents outstanding (all related to outstanding stock options and restricted stock discussed in Note 5). The Company's reported primary earnings per share for 1995 has been restated to comply with the requirements of SFAS No. 128. SFAS No. 128 had no impact on the Company's reported loss per share for 1996 and no impact on the diluted earnings per share reported in 1995. The effect of this accounting change on previously reported earnings per share (EPS) for 1995 was as follows:

Earnings per share from continuing operations
Primary EPS as reported	$0.45
Effect of SFAS No. 128	0.01
Basic EPS as restated	0.46
Earnings per share

Reclassification

Certain prior year amounts have been reclassified to conform with the 1997 presentation.

New Accounting Standards

In June 1997, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued SFAS No. 130, Reporting Comprehensive Income. SFAS No. 130 establishes standards for reporting and display of comprehensive income and its components in the financial statements. SFAS No. 130 is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Reclassification of financial statements for earlier periods provided for comparative purposes is required. The Company is in the process of determining its preferred format. The adoption of SFAS No. 130 will have no impact on the Company's consolidated results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

In June 1997, the FASB issued SFAS No. 131, Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information. SFAS No. 131 establishes standards for the way that public business enterprises report information about operating segments in annual financial statements and requires that those enterprises report selected information about operating segments in interim financial reports issued to shareholders. It also establishes standards for related disclosures about products and services, geographic areas, and major customers. SFAS No. 131 is effective for financial statements for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Financial statement disclosures for prior periods are required to be restated. The Company is in the process of evaluating the disclosure requirements. The adoption of SFAS No. 131 will have no impact on consolidated results of operations, financial position or cash flow.

2. Shareholders' Equity

The Company has 200,000,000 shares of $.01 par value common stock authorized. At December 28, 1997 there were 9,404,068 shares of common stock reserved for issuance upon the exercise of outstanding stock options.

In June 1995, the Company retired 7,376,395 shares of common stock held in treasury, and such shares were returned to the status of authorized but unissued shares. As a result, $103.7 million assigned to treasury stock has been eliminated with a corresponding decrease to common stock, paid-in capital and retained earnings. In 1995, the Company repurchased 905,600 shares of its common stock at a total cost of $13.1 million.

In July 1996, the Company sold 321,786 shares of common stock for total proceeds of approximately $4.4 million, and granted 1,100,000 shares of restricted stock in connection with the employment of a new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and certain other officers of the Company. Compensation expense attributable to the restricted stock awards is being amortized to expense beginning in 1996 over the periods in which the restrictions lapse (which in the case of 333,333 shares, was immediately upon the date of grant, in the case of 666,667 shares, is equally over two years from the date of grant and in the case of the remaining restricted shares, is equally over three years from the dates of grant).

On February 20, 1998 the Company entered into new three-year employment agreements with its Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company. These agreements replaced previous employment agreements entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999. Refer to Note 14 for additional information regarding the new employment contracts, including the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock grants discussed above.

3. Credit Facilities and Long-Term Debt

In 1994, the Mississippi Business Finance Corporation ("MBFC") issued $75 million of 7.85% Industrial Development Revenue Notes (the "Notes") maturing serially in eleven equal annual installments beginning June 1999 to certain institutional investors through a private placement. The MBFC loaned the proceeds of the Notes to a subsidiary of the Company under a non-recourse loan agreement (the "Hattiesburg Loan") restricting the use of such funds to the acquisition, design, construction and equipping of the Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing and distribution center. The Notes are guaranteed by the Company and the Hattiesburg Loan is secured by the Hattiesburg facility.

In September 1996 (as subsequently amended), the Company entered into a $500 million syndicated unsecured five year revolving credit facility (the "Credit Agreement") which replaced a previous credit facility of $500 million. In July 1997, the Company reduced the amount of available borrowings under the facility to $250 million. Under the Credit Agreement, the Company can borrow under a competitive bid option, or at a spread above LIBOR (currently .5%) or at a bank base rate. In addition, the Company pays an annual facility fee (currently .25%). The Credit Agreement contains certain financial covenants.

During 1997, the Company repaid $12.2 million of long-term borrowings related to the divested furniture operations and other assets sold.

The aggregate annual principal payments on long-term debt, excluding amounts outstanding under the Credit Agreement, due in each of the years 1998-2002, are $.7 million, $7.5 million, $7.6 million, $7.6 million and $7.7 million, respectively.

3. Credit Facilities and Long-Term Debt—(Continued)

Long-term debt at the end of each fiscal year consists of the following (in thousands):

	1997	1996
Revolving credit facility, weighted average interest rate of 5.99% and 5.60% for 1997, and for 1996, respectively	$110,000	$105,000
Hattiesburg industrial revenue bond due 2009, fixed interest rate of 7.85%	75,000	75,000
Other long-term borrowings, due through 2012, weighted average interest rate of 3.92% and 4.95%, at December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996, respectively	10,248	22,036
	$195,248	$202,036

In December 1997, the Company entered into a revolving trade accounts receivable securitization program to sell without recourse, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, certain trade accounts receivable. The maximum amount of receivables that can be sold through this program is $70 million. At December 28, 1997, the Company had received approximately $59 million from the sale of trade accounts receivable. The proceeds from the sale were used to reduce borrowings under the Company's revolving credit facility. Costs of the program, which primarily consist of the purchaser's financing cost of issuing commercial paper backed by the receivables, totaled $.2 million during 1997, and have been classified as interest expense in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations. The Company, as agent for the purchaser of the receivables, retains collection and administrative responsibilities for the purchased receivables.

4. Financial Instruments

Fair Value of Financial Instruments

The carrying amounts of the Company's financial instruments as of December 28, 1997 approximate market values based upon the following methods and assumptions:

Cash and Cash Equivalents—The carrying amount of cash and cash equivalents is assumed to approximate fair value as cash equivalents include all highly liquid, short-term investments with original maturities of three months or less.

Short and Long Term Debt—The carrying value of the Company's various debt outstanding as of December 28, 1997 approximates market. The fair value of the Company's fixed rate debt is estimated using discounted cash flow analysis, based upon the market yield of public debt securities of comparable credit quality and maturity. The carrying value of the Company's variable rate debt is assumed to approximate market based upon periodic adjustments of the interest rate to the current market rate in accordance with the terms of the debt agreements.

Letters of Credit—The Company utilizes stand-by letters of credit to back certain financing instruments and insurance policies and commercial letters of credit guaranteeing various international trade activities. The contract amounts of the letters of credit approximate their fair value.

Derivative Financial Instruments

The Company selectively uses derivatives to manage interest rate and foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's results of operations in 1997, 1996 and 1995. No derivatives are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. Foreign exchange option and forward contracts are used to hedge a portion of the Company's underlying exposures denominated in foreign currency. Although the market value of derivative contracts at any single point in time will vary with changes in interest and/or foreign exchange rates, the difference between the carrying value and fair value of such contracts at December 29, 1996 and December 31, 1995 is not considered to be material, either individually or in the aggregate. The Company had no derivative financial instruments outstanding at December 28, 1997. The Company enters into derivative contracts with counterparties that it believes to be creditworthy. The Company does not enter into any leveraged derivative transactions.

4. Financial Instruments—(Continued)

As of December 28, 1996, $10.0 million of the Company's outstanding floating rate debt was subject to interest rate swap agreements.

In order to mitigate the transaction exposures that may arise from changes in foreign exchange rates, the Company purchases foreign currency option contracts to hedge anticipated transactions. The option contracts typically expire within one year. Any realized gains on options are not deferred but are recognized in income in the period when the hedged exposure is recognized. The Company purchased options with a notional value of $16.6 million in 1997, $18.2 million in 1996 and $11.7 million in 1995. Options with notional value of $17.9 million, $25.4 million and $3.2 million expired in 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively. The Company held purchased option contracts with a notional value of $1.4 million at December 29, 1996.

5. Employee Stock Options and Awards

The Company has one stock-based compensation plan, the Amended and Restated Sunbeam Corporation Stock Option Plan (the "Plan"). Under the Plan, all employees are eligible for grants of options to purchase up to an aggregate of 11,300,000 shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock on the date of grant. The term of each option commences on the date of grant and expires on the tenth anniversary of the date of grant. Options generally become exercisable over a three to five year period.

The Plan also provides for the grant of restricted stock awards of up to 200,000 shares, in the aggregate, to employees and non-employee directors. See Note 2 for a discussion of restricted stock awards made outside the Plan.

In July 1996, options to purchase an aggregate of 3,000,000 shares (of which 2,750,000 options were outstanding at December 28, 1997) were granted outside of the Plan at exercise prices equal to the fair market value of the Company's common stock on the dates of grant in connection with the employment of a new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and certain other executive officers of the Company. These outstanding options have terms of ten years and, with respect to options for 2,500,000 shares, are exercisable in three annual installments beginning July 17, 1996. Options for the remaining 250,000 shares still outstanding are exercisable in three annual installments beginning on the first anniversary of the July 22, 1996 grant date. On February 20, 1998 the vesting provisions of the options granted outside the plan were accelerated as further described in Note 14.

The Company applies APB Opinion No. 25 and related interpretations in accounting for its stock options. Accordingly, no compensation cost has been recognized for outstanding stock options. Had compensation cost for the Company's outstanding stock options been determined based on the fair value at the grant dates for those options consistent with SFAS No. 123, the Company's net earnings (loss) and diluted earnings (loss) per share would have been reduced to the pro forma amounts indicated below (in thousands except per share amounts):

6. Employee Benefit Plans

Retirement Plans

The Company sponsors several defined benefit pension plans covering eligible U.S. salaried and hourly employees. Benefit accruals under such plans covering all U.S. salaried employees were frozen, effective December 31, 1990. Therefore no credit in the pension formula is given for service or compensation after that date. However, employees continue to earn service toward vesting in their interest in the frozen plans as of December 31, 1990. Employees of non-U.S. subsidiaries generally receive retirement benefits from Company sponsored plans or from statutory plans administered by governmental agencies in their countries.

The funded status of the Company's U.S. defined benefit pension plans at the end of each fiscal year follows (in thousands):

The assets, liabilities and pension costs of the Company's non-U.S. defined benefit retirement plans are not material to the consolidated financial statements.

Other Postretirement Benefits

The Company provides health care and life insurance benefits to certain former employees who retired from the Company prior to March 31, 1991. The Company has consistently followed a policy of funding the cost of postretirement health care and life insurance benefits on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Effective July 1993, various amendments to the Company's postretirement benefits program were adopted. The amendments included increases in retiree contribution levels for certain retiree groups and the discontinuation of medical and/or life insurance coverage for certain retirees who qualify for Medicare. These amendments resulted in an unrecognized reduction in prior service cost which is being amortized over future years.

The following table presents the funded status reconciled with the amounts recognized in the Company's consolidated balance sheet at the end of each fiscal year (in thousands):

The assumed health care cost trend rate used in measuring the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation is 8.8% for 1998 and is assumed to decrease gradually to 6% by 2003 and remain at that level thereafter. A one percentage point increase in the assumed health care cost trend rate for each year would increase the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation as of December 28, 1997 and the net periodic postretirement benefit cost for 1997 by approximately 8%. The weighted average discount rate used in determining the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation was 7.25% at December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996.

Defined Contribution Plans

The Company sponsors defined contribution profit sharing plans covering eligible employees. Company contributions to these plans include employer matching contributions as well as discretionary profit sharing contributions depending on the performance of the Company, in an amount up to 10% of eligible compensation. The Company provided $1.8 million in 1997, $1.7 million in 1996 and $4.1 million in 1995 for its defined contribution plans.

Non-cash Transactions

In connection with a warehouse expansion related to the electric blanket business, the Company entered into a $5 million capital lease obligation in 1996.

8. Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs

In November 1996, the Company announced the details of its restructuring and growth plan. The cost reduction phase of the plan included the consolidation of administrative functions within the Company, the rationalization of manufacturing and warehouse facilities, the centralization of the Company's procurement function, and reduction of the Company's product offerings and stock keeping units ("SKU's"). The Company also announced plans to divest several lines of business which it determined are not core for Sunbeam (see Note 9).

In connection with the restructuring plan, the Company consolidated six divisional and regional headquarters functions into a single worldwide corporate headquarters in Delray Beach, Florida and outsourced certain back-office activities resulting in a 50% reduction in total back-office/administrative headcount. Overall, the restructuring plan calls for a reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and the elimination of over 6,000 positions from the Company's workforce, including 3,300 from the disposition of non-core business operations and the elimination of approximately 2,800 other positions. The Company completed the major phases of the restructuring plan by January 1997.

In conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan, the Company recorded a pre-tax special charge to earnings of approximately $337.6 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. This amount is allocated as follows in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations: $154.9 million to Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs as further described below; $92.3 million to Cost of Goods Sold related principally to inventory write-downs from the reduction in SKU's and costs of inventory liquidation programs; $42.5 million to Selling, General and Administrative expenses principally for increases in environmental and litigation reserves (see Note 12) and other reserve categories; and the estimated pre-tax loss on the divestiture of the Company's furniture business of approximately $47.9 million. During the first quarter of 1997, upon completion of the sale, the Company provided for additional losses on the disposal of the furniture business of $13.7 million, net of applicable income tax benefits as a result of lower than anticipated sales proceeds.

Amounts included in Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in 1996 in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations include cash items such as severance and other employee costs of $43.0 million, lease obligations and other exit costs associated with facility closures of $12.6 million, $7.5 million of start-up costs on back-office outsourcing initiatives and other costs related to the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan. Non-cash Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in 1996 include $91.8 million related to asset write-downs to net realizable value for disposals of excess facilities and equipment and non-core product lines, write-offs of redundant computer systems from the administrative back-office consolidations and outsourcing initiatives and intangible, packaging and other asset write-downs related to exited product lines and SKU reductions. The following table sets forth the details and the cumulative activity in the restructuring accrual as of December 28, 1997 (in millions):

	Accrual Balance at December 29, 1996	Cash Reductions	Non-Cash Reductions	Accrual Balance at December 28, 1997
Severance and other employee costs	$36.9	$18.6	$9.5	$ 8.8
Closure and consolidation of facilities and related exit costs	26.9	24.8	—	2.1
Total	$63.8	$43.4	$9.5	$10.9

9. Discontinued Operations and Other Assets Held For Sale

As part of the restructuring plan and redefinition of its core businesses, the Company also announced the divestiture of the furniture business, by a sale of assets. In February 1997, the Company entered into an agreement to sell the business to U.S. Industries, Inc. which was completed on March 17, 1997. In connection with the sale of these assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), the Company received $69 million in cash. The Company retained accounts receivable related to the furniture business of approximately $50.0 million as of the closing date.

In connection with the furniture divestiture, the Company recorded a provision for estimated losses to be incurred on the sale of $32.4 million in 1996, net of applicable income tax benefits and an additional loss of $13.7 million, net of applicable income tax benefits in the first quarter of 1997 as a result of lower than anticipated sales proceeds. Earnings from the discontinued furniture business were $.8 million in 1996 and $12.9 million in 1995, net of applicable income taxes of $.5 million and $7.9 million, respectively. Earnings from the discontinued furniture business in 1997 were not material. Revenues for the discontinued furniture business were $51.6 million in 1997, $227.5 million in 1996 and $185.6 million in 1995. These revenues are not included in net sales as reported in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations.

In addition to the furniture business divestiture, the Company also completed the sale of other non-core product lines and assets in 1997 as part of its restructuring plan, including time and temperature products, Counselor® and Borg® scales and a textile facility. Losses incurred on the disposal of these assets, which consist primarily of write-downs of assets to net realizable value, are included in Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in 1996 in the Consolidated Statements of Operations as described in Note 8.

10. Income Taxes—(Continued)

Deferred U.S. income taxes are not provided on the undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries, since such earnings are considered to be permanently reinvested. At December 28, 1997, the cumulative amount of undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries on which U.S. federal income taxes have not been provided was approximately $51.5 million. Determination of the amount of unrecognized deferred U.S. income tax liability is not practical because of the complexities associated with its hypothetical calculation; however, unrecognized foreign tax credit carryovers would be available to reduce some portion of the U.S. liability.

11. Customer and Geographic Data

Classes of products which contributed more than 10% to consolidated sales were outdoor home use durable products and indoor home use durable products. Sales of outdoor home use durable products amounted to $325.8 million in 1997, $256.9 million in 1996 and $269.0 million in 1995. Sales of indoor home use durable products were $769.6 million in 1997, $680.7 million in 1996 and $688.3 million in 1995.

The Company's largest customer accounted for approximately 21% of consolidated net sales in 1997 and 19% in 1996 and 1995.

The Company's operations are conducted in the United States and international markets, principally in Latin America, Canada and Mexico. Information about the Company's domestic and international operations for each fiscal year is as follows (in thousands):

12. Commitments and Contingencies

Environmental Matters

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations. As of December 28, 1997, the Company had been identified as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven sites subject to the federal Superfund law and two sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant. Substantially all of these sites relate to divested operations of the Company.

The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at nine sites, four of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and five of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law. In addition, the Company is engaged in environmental remediation activities at a site in Newburgh Heights, Ohio, where a subsidiary formerly conducted operations. The Company has been actively cooperating with the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission and state regulatory authorities in developing a plan for remediation of this site; which remediation is expected to be substantially completed during 1998.

The Company has established reserves, in accordance with SFAS No. 5, Accounting for Contingencies, to cover the anticipated probable costs of remediation, based upon periodic reviews of all sites for which the Company has, or may have remediation responsibility. As of December 28, 1997, the amount of such reserves was less than 5% of the Company's total liabilities as set forth in the consolidated financial statements. Liability under the Superfund law is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRP's at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRP's established with respect to such sites. The Company continues to pursue the recovery of some environmental remediation costs from certain of its liability insurance carriers; however, such potential recoveries have not been offset against potential liabilities and have not been considered in determining the Company's environmental reserves.

Due to uncertainty over remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in environmental laws and regulations and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, the Company's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved as of December 28, 1997. In connection with the Company's restructuring plan, in the fourth quarter of 1996 a comprehensive review of all environmental exposures was performed, and the Company accelerated its strategy for the resolution and settlement of certain environmental claims. As a result, the Company recorded additional environmental reserves of approximately $9.0 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. The Company believes, based on existing information, that the costs of completing environmental remediation of all sites for which the Company has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved, and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

Leases

The Company rents certain facilities, equipment and retail stores under operating leases. Rental expense for operating leases amounted to $7.4 million in 1997, $8.0 million for 1996 and $8.6 million for 1995. The minimum future rentals due under noncancelable operating leases as of December 28, 1997 aggregated $30.9 million. The amounts payable in each of the years 1998-2002 and thereafter are $4.8 million, $4.6 million, $4.2 million, $3.9 million, $3.4 million and $10.0 million, respectively.

12. Commitments and Contingencies—(Continued)

Certain Debt Obligations

Responsibility for servicing certain debt obligations of the Company's predecessor were assumed by third parties in connection with the acquisition of former businesses, although the Company's predecessor remained the primary obligor in accordance with the respective loan documents. Such obligations, which amounted to approximately $19.0 million at December 28, 1997, and the corresponding receivables from the third parties, are not included in the consolidated balance sheets since these transactions occurred prior to the issuance of SFAS No. 76, Extinguishment of Debt. Management believes that the third parties will continue to meet their obligations pursuant to the assumption agreements.

Letters of credit aggregating $28.6 million were outstanding as of December 28, 1997.

Litigation

The Company is involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time in the ordinary course of business and/or related to divested operations of the Company. The Company has established reserves, in accordance with SFAS No. 5, Accounting for Contingencies, to cover the anticipated probable costs of litigation matters, based upon periodic reviews of all cases.

The Company believes, based on existing information, that anticipated probable costs of litigation matters have been adequately reserved, and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

Product Liability Matters

The Company is party to various personal injury and property damage lawsuits relating to its products and incidental to its business. Annually, the Company sets its product liability insurance program based on the Company's current and historical claims experience and the availability and cost of insurance. The Company's program for 1997 was comprised of a self-insurance retention of $1 million per occurrence.

Cumulative amounts estimated to be payable by the Company with respect to pending and potential claims for all years in which the Company is liable under its self-insurance retention have been accrued as liabilities. Such accrued liabilities are necessarily based on estimates (which include actuarial determinations made by independent actuarial consultants as to liability exposure, taking into account prior experience, numbers of claims and other relevant factors); thus, the Company's ultimate liability may exceed or be less than the amounts accrued. The methods of making such estimates and establishing the resulting liability are reviewed continually and any adjustments resulting therefrom are reflected in current operating results.

Historically, product liability awards have rarely exceeded the Company's individual per occurrence self-insured retention. There can be no assurance, however, that the Company's future product liability experience will be consistent with its past experience. Based on existing information, the Company believes that the ultimate conclusion of the various pending product liability claims and lawsuits of the Company, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a materially adverse effect on the financial position or results of operations of the Company.

The new employment agreement for the Company's Chairman provides for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of 200,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 133,333 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreement as further described in Note 2, a new equity grant of 300,000 shares of unrestricted stock, a new grant of a ten-year option to purchase 3,750,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in three equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 833,333 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreement as further described in Note 5. In addition, the new employment agreement with the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer provides for tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the equity grant and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

The new employment agreements with the two other senior officers provide for, among other items, the grant of a total of 180,000 shares of restricted stock that vest in four equal annual installments beginning the date of grant, the acceleration of vesting of 44,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 29,332 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreements, new grants of ten-year options to purchase a total of 1,875,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 383,334 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreements. Total after-tax compensation expense to be recognized in the first quarter of 1998 related to these items is expected to be approximately $30.0 million.

Pending Acquisitions

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced the signing of three definitive agreements to acquire The Coleman Company, Inc., Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc. Completion of the acquisitions, which is expected in the second quarter of 1998, is contingent on customary conditions, including regulatory approvals, and acquisition financings. Each of the acquisitions will be accounted for under the purchase method, whereby the purchase price will be allocated to the underlying assets acquired and liabilities assumed based upon their estimated fair values.

The acquisition of The Coleman Company, Inc., the global leader in outdoor recreational and hardware products is valued at approximately $2.0 billion, consisting of the Company's common stock valued at approximately $811 million, cash of approximately $260 million and assumed debt. Shareholders of The Coleman Company, Inc. will receive $6.44 in cash and .5677 shares of the Company's stock for each share of Coleman stock.

The acquisition of Signature Brands USA, Inc., the North American leader in coffeemakers marketed under the Mr. Coffee® brand and a leader in consumer health products marketed under the Health o Meter® brand is valued at approximately $250 million, consisting of cash of $8.25 per share of Signature Brand common stock and the assumption of existing debt.

The acquisition of First Alert, Inc., the worldwide leader in residential safety equipment, including smoke detectors and carbon monoxide detectors is valued at approximately $175 million, consisting of cash of $5.25 per share of First Alert common stock and the assumption of existing debt.

The Company plans on refinancing all or substantially all of the assumed debt of the acquired companies concurrent with the transactions closings.

On July 15, 1997, Coleman Holdings was merged into CLN Holdings. Coleman Worldwide is a holding company formed in March 1993 in connection with the offering of Liquid Yield Option™ Notes due 2013 (the "LYONs"™). Coleman Worldwide also holds 44,067,520 shares of the common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman" or the "Company") which represents approximately 82% of the outstanding Coleman common stock as of December 31, 1997. CLN Holdings and Coleman Worldwide are holding companies with no business operations of their own. In connection with an initial public offering ("IPO"), Coleman was formed in December 1991 to succeed to the assets and liabilities of the outdoor products business of New Coleman Holdings Inc. ("Holdings") an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Mafco Holdings Inc. ("Mafco"). Holdings (then named The Coleman Company, Inc.) was acquired in 1989 by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("MacAndrews Holdings", and together with Mafco, "MacAndrews & Forbes"), a corporation wholly owned through Mafco by Ronald O. Perelman. Coleman is a subsidiary of Coleman Worldwide Corporation which is an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Holdings. In March 1992, the Company completed an IPO of its common stock.

Principles of Consolidation:

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of CLN Holdings and its subsidiaries after elimination of all material intercompany accounts and transactions.

Cash and Cash Equivalents:

All highly liquid investments with a maturity of three months or less at the date of purchase are considered to be cash equivalents. The Company's cash equivalents consist primarily of investments in money market funds and commercial paper. The Company's cash equivalents are generally held until maturity and are carried at cost, which approximates fair value.

Inventories:

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost or market. Cost is determined by the first-in, first-out method.

Property, Plant and Equipment:

Property, plant and equipment is recorded at cost and depreciated on a straight-line basis over the estimated useful lives of such assets as follows: land improvements, 5 to 25 years; buildings and building improvements, 7 to 45 years; and machinery and equipment, 3 to 15 years. Leasehold improvements are amortized over their estimated useful lives or the terms of the leases, whichever is shorter. Repairs and maintenance are charged to operations as incurred, and significant expenditures for additions and improvements are capitalized.

Intangible Assets:

Intangible assets primarily represent goodwill which is being amortized on a straight-line basis over periods not in excess of 40 years. The carrying amount of goodwill is reviewed if facts and circumstances suggest it may be impaired. If this review indicates goodwill will not be recoverable over the remaining amortization period, as determined based on the estimated undiscounted cash flows of the entity acquired, the carrying amount of the goodwill is reduced to estimated fair value based on market value or discounted cash flows, as appropriate. Accumulated amortization aggregated $48,148 and $39,520 at December 31, 1997 and 1996, respectively.

Revenue Recognition:

The Company recognizes revenues at the time title passes to the customer. Net revenues comprise gross revenues less provisions for estimated customer returns and allowances.

Research and Development:

Research and development expenditures are expensed as incurred. The amounts charged against operations for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995 were $11,871, $11,082, and $6,548, respectively.

Advertising and Promotion Expense:

Production costs of future media advertising are deferred until the advertising occurs. All other advertising and promotion costs are expensed when incurred. The amounts charged against operations for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995 were $53,408, $58,823, and $37,544, respectively.

Insurance Programs:

The Company obtains insurance coverage for catastrophic exposures as well as those risks required to be insured by law or contract. It is the policy of the Company to retain a significant portion of certain losses related primarily to workers' compensation, employee health benefits, physical loss and property, and product and vehicle liability. Provisions for losses expected under these programs are recorded based upon the Company's estimates of the aggregate liability for claims incurred.

Foreign Currency Translation:

Assets and liabilities of foreign operations are generally translated into United States dollars at the rates of exchange in effect at the balance sheet date. Income and expense items are generally translated at the weighted average exchange rates prevailing during each period presented. Gains and losses resulting from foreign currency transactions are included in the results of operations. Gains and losses resulting from translation of financial statements of foreign subsidiaries and branches operating in non-highly inflationary economies are recorded as a component of stockholder's equity. Foreign subsidiaries and branches operating in highly inflationary economies translate nonmonetary assets and liabilities at historical rates and include translation adjustments in the results of operations.

Derivative Financial Instruments:

The Company uses derivative financial instruments to reduce interest rate and foreign exchange exposures. The Company maintains a control environment which includes policies and procedures for risk assessment and for the approval, reporting and monitoring of derivative financial instrument activities. The Company does not hold or issue derivative financial instruments for trading purposes.

Amounts to be received or paid under interest rate swap and cap contracts designated as hedges are recognized over the life of the contracts as adjustments to interest expense. Gains and losses on terminations of interest rate swap and cap contracts designated as hedges are deferred and amortized as adjustments to interest expense over the remaining life of the terminated contracts. Unrealized gains and losses on outstanding interest rate contracts designated as hedges are not recognized.

Foreign currency forward contracts are marked to market and gains and losses on foreign currency forward contracts to hedge firm foreign currency commitments are deferred and accounted for as part of the related foreign currency transaction. Gains and losses on all other forward contracts to hedge third-party and intercompany transactions are recorded in operations as foreign exchange gains and losses. Gains and losses on purchased foreign currency option contracts are deferred and recognized as adjustments to cost of sales upon the sale of the related inventory to the third-party customers.

Credit Risk:

Financial instruments which potentially subject the Company to concentrations of credit risk consist primarily of trade receivables and derivative financial instruments. Credit risk on trade receivables is minimized as a result of the large and diversified nature of the Company's worldwide customer base. Although the Company has one significant customer (See Note 15), there have been no credit losses related to this customer. With respect to its derivative contracts, the Company is also subject to credit risk of non-performance by counterparties and its maximum potential loss may exceed the amount recognized in the financial statements. The Company controls its exposure to credit risk through credit approvals, credit limits and monitoring procedures. Collateral is generally not required for the Company's financial instruments.

Fair Value of Financial Instruments:

The following methods and assumptions were used by CLN Holdings in estimating its fair value disclosures for financial instruments:

Cash and cash equivalents: The carrying amount reported in the balance sheet for cash and cash equivalents approximates its fair value.

Long- and short-term debt: The carrying amounts of CLN Holdings' borrowings under its foreign bank lines of credit, revolving credit agreement and other variable rate debt approximate their fair value. The fair value of the Company's senior notes issues (see Note 9) are estimated using discounted cash flow analysis based on the Company's estimated current borrowing rate for similar types of borrowing arrangements. The fair value of the publicly traded LYONs debt and Escrow Notes is based on quoted market prices.

Foreign currency exchange contracts: The fair values of CLN Holdings' foreign currency contracts are estimated based on quoted market prices of comparable contracts, adjusted through interpolation where necessary for maturity differences.

The carrying amounts and fair values of CLN Holdings' financial instruments are as follows:

	December 31, 1997		December 31, 1996
	Carrying Amount of Asset/ (Liability)	Fair Value of Asset/ (Liability)	Carrying Amount of Asset/ (Liability)	Fair Value of Asset/ (Liability)

Stock-Based Compensation:

Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 123, "Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation," encourages, but does not require companies to record compensation cost for stock-based employee compensation plans at fair value. The Company has chosen to account for stock-based compensation plans using the intrinsic value method prescribed in Accounting Principles Board ("APB") Opinion No. 25, "Accounting for Stock Issued to Employees," and related Interpretations. Accordingly, compensation cost for stock options is measured as the excess, if any, of the quoted market price of Coleman's stock at the date of the grant over the amount an employee must pay to acquire the stock.

Reclassifications:

Certain prior year amounts in the financial statements have been reclassified to conform to the current year presentation.

Use of Estimates:

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ materially from those estimates.

Recently Issued Accounting Standards:

In June 1997, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (the "FASB") issued SFAS No. 130 "Reporting Comprehensive Income". SFAS No. 130 establishes standards for reporting and display of comprehensive income and its components in the financial statements. SFAS No. 130 is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Reclassification of financial statements for earlier periods provided for comparative purposes is required.

In June 1997, the FASB issued SFAS No. 131, "Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information". SFAS No. 131 establishes standards for the way public business enterprises report information about operating segments in annual financial statements and requires those enterprises report selected information about operating segments in interim financial reports. It also establishes standards for related disclosures about products and services, geographic areas, and major customers. SFAS No. 131 is effective for financial statements for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Financial statement disclosures for prior periods are required to be restated.

In February 1998, the FASB issued SFAS No. 132, "Employers' Disclosures about Pensions and Other Postretirement Benefits". SFAS No. 132 revises employers' disclosures about pension and other postretirement benefits to the extent practicable. It also requires additional information on changes in the benefit obligations and fair value of plan assets and eliminates certain other disclosures. SFAS No. 132 is effective for financial statements for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Financial statement disclosures for prior periods are required to be restated.

CLN Holdings has not yet determined the impact of adoption of these standards; however, the adoption of these standards will have no impact on CLN Holdings' consolidated results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

2. Acquisitions and Divestitures branded daypacks, sports bags and related products. The Company also entered into an agreement with the predecessor owner of Eastpak to make additional payments based upon the achievement of certain annual sales levels of Eastpak products and other products substantially similar to the Eastpak products during the years ended December 31, 1995, 1996, and 1997. A total of $23,000 was earned by the predecessor owner of Eastpak under the terms of this agreement. This amount has been recorded as additional goodwill.

During 1995, the Company purchased all of the outstanding shares of capital stock of Sierra Corporation of Fort Smith, Inc., a manufacturer of portable outdoor and recreational folding furniture and accessories, and substantially all of the assets of Active Technologies, Inc. ("ATI"), a manufacturer of technologically advanced lightweight generators and battery charging equipment. The aggregate purchase price for these acquisitions was $19,516 including fees and expenses. These acquisitions were accounted for using the purchase method of accounting. The purchase price and expenses associated with these acquisitions exceeded the fair value of net assets acquired by $11,186 and the excess has been assigned to goodwill and is being amortized over 20 to 30 years on the straight-line method. In connection with the ATI purchase, the Company may also be required to make payments to the predecessor owner of ATI of up to $18,750 based on the Company's sales of ATI related products and royalties received by the Company for licensing arrangements related to ATI patents. As of December 31, 1997, the amounts recorded, as additional goodwill, under the terms of this agreement have been immaterial. The results of operations of these companies on a pro forma basis as if their acquisitions had occurred at the beginning of 1995 individually and in the aggregate were not significant to CLN Holdings.

On January 2, 1996, the Company purchased substantially all the assets and assumed certain liabilities of Seatt Corporation ("Seatt"), a leading designer, manufacturer and distributor of safety and security related electronic products for residential and commercial applications. The Seatt acquisition, which was accounted for under the purchase method, was completed for approximately $65,300 including fees and expenses. The results of operations of Seatt have been included in the consolidated financial statements from the date of acquisition. In connection with the purchase price allocation of the Seatt acquisition, the Company recorded goodwill of approximately $38,800. The Company is amortizing this amount over 40 years on the straight-line method.

On February 18, 1998, the Company announced an agreement was signed for the sale of Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc., the successor to Seatt, to Ranco Incorporated, a U.S. subsidiary of Siebe plc, a United Kingdom diversified engineering group. The sale price is approximately $105,000 and is subject to adjustment upon closing which is expected to occur by the end of March 1998. Net assets of Coleman Safety & Security at December 31, 1997 were approximately $73,000.

On February 28, 1996, the Company purchased approximately 70% of the outstanding shares of Application des Gaz, S.A. ("ADG" or "Camping Gaz"), a leading manufacturer and distributor of camping appliances in Europe. The Company completed the necessary steps to acquire the remaining 30% of the outstanding shares during the second quarter of 1996. The cost of acquiring all the shares of ADG was approximately $100,000 including fees and expenses.

The acquisition of Camping Gaz was accounted for under the purchase method. In connection with the final allocation of purchase price to the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed, the Company recorded goodwill of approximately $78,900, which is being amortized over 40 years on the straight-line method. At acquisition, the Company recognized liabilities in the amount of $21,898 representing severance and other termination benefits for certain production and administrative employees of Camping Gaz. As of December 31, 1997, the Company had paid termination costs of approximately $13,350 and anticipates all remaining termination costs will be paid during 1998.

The Company has included the results of operations of Camping Gaz in the consolidated financial statements from March 1, 1996, the date on which the Company obtained control of Camping Gaz, and has recognized minority interest related to the remaining shares for the period March 1, 1996 through June 30, 1996.

2. Acquisitions and Divestitures—(Continued)

The following summarized, unaudited pro forma results of operations of CLN Holdings for the years ended December 31, 1996 and 1995 assume the acquisition of Seatt and the acquisition of all the outstanding shares of Camping Gaz occurred as of the beginning of the respective periods. The pro forma results include certain adjustments, primarily reflecting increased amortization and interest expense and a lower income tax provision, and are not necessarily indicative of what the results of operations would have been had the Seatt and Camping Gaz acquisitions occurred at the beginning of the respective periods. Moreover, the pro forma information is not intended to be indicative of future results of operations.

	Year Ended December 31,
	1996	1997
Net revenues	$1,246,370	$1,193,295

Net (loss) earnings	(58,335)	9,209

3. Restructuring and Other Charges

During 1997, the Company recorded restructuring charges of $32,791 and certain other charges of $3,628, collectively, (the "1997 Restructuring Charges") and related tax benefits of $13,918. The Company reflected $19,493 of the 1997 Restructuring Charges in cost of sales and reflected $16,926 in selling, general and administrative ("SG&A") expenses. The 1997 Restructuring charges of $36,419 consisted of (i) $15,735 to exit various low margin products, including pressure washers, (ii) $14,943 to close and relocate certain administrative and sales offices, and (iii) $5,741 to close several manufacturing facilities. Most of these activities were substantially complete as of December 31, 1997, and remaining actions are expected to be completed in 1998.

During 1996, the Company recorded restructuring charges of $66,202 and certain other charges of $7,998 (collectively, the "1996 Restructuring Charges") and related net tax benefits of $21,684. The Company reflected $44,005 of the 1996 Restructuring Charges in cost of sales and $30,195 in SG&A. The pre-tax restructuring charges of $66,202 consisted of (i) $29,067 to integrate Camping Gaz and Coleman operations into a global recreation products business, (ii) $19,000 to exit the low end electric pressure washer business, (iii) $14,135 to exit a portion of the Company's battery powered light business and (iv) $4,000 to settle certain litigation with respect to the battery-powered light business. The charges to integrate the Camping Gaz and Coleman operations reflect primarily the cost to dispose of duplicate manufacturing, distribution and administrative facilities and the related severance costs, which actions were substantially completed in 1997 and are expected to be fully completed in 1998. The low end pressure washer and battery powered light businesses were exited by discontinuing the manufacturing and distribution of these products in 1997. The other pre-tax charges of $7,998 related primarily to certain asset write-offs. These charges were incurred in the Company's normal course of business, although the amounts involved were higher than similar charges the Company had recorded in prior years. The provision for income taxes included $21,684 of tax benefits resulting from these restructuring and other charges, net of an increase in the valuation reserve related to certain foreign deferred tax assets and other foreign tax charges totaling $5,595.

3. Restructuring and Other Charges—(Continued)

The components of the combined 1997 Restructuring Charges and 1996 Restructuring Charges and an analysis of the amounts charged against the reserve are outlined in the following table:

	1996 Original Reserve	Charges During Year Ended 12/31/96	Balance at 12/31/96	1997 Additional Reserves	Charges During Year Ended 12/31/97	Balance at 12/31/97
Impairment of fixed assets	$10,012	$ (1,789)	$ 8,223	$ 6,449	$ (6,530)	$ 8,142
Inventory and other asset impairments	38,257	(25,875)	12,382	10,961	(14,966)	8,377
Termination costs	2,018	(1,633)	385	12,146	(9,729)	2,802
Idle facilities, relocation and other exit costs	23,913	(12,429)	11,484	6,863	(9,656)	8,691
	$74,200	$(41,726)	$32,474	$36,419	$40,881	$28,012

The termination costs recognized in 1996 related to approximately 200 employees and the 1997 termination costs related to approximately 525 employees. As of December 31, 1997, $11,362 of termination costs were paid on behalf of the approximately 700 employees who were terminated as of that date.

During 1995, the Company recognized an asset impairment charge of $12,289 related to its Brazilian operations. The Brazilian operations had not performed to the Company's expectations since acquisition of this business in April of 1994, and in the fourth quarter of 1995, the Company initiated actions to reduce the operating losses in Brazil. These actions included replacing management, increasing prices, downsizing the manufacturing operations and reducing SG&A and other expenses. Because of these actions, the Company performed an impairment review and concluded recognition of an asset impairment charge was appropriate. The basis of the fair values used in the computation of the charge were appraisals for property and equipment and estimated discounted cash flows for goodwill. The charge has been included in the statement of operations under the caption "Asset Impairment Charge".

The 2008 Notes are unsecured and are subject to various restrictive covenants including, without limitation, requirements for the maintenance of specified financial ratios and levels of consolidated net worth and certain other provisions limiting the incurrence of additional debt and sale and leaseback transactions under the terms of the note purchase agreement.

(d) In April 1996, the Company amended its credit agreement to: a) provide a term loan of French Franc 385,125 ($64,894 at December 31, 1997 exchange rates) (the "Term Loan"), b) provide a $275,000 unsecured revolving credit facility line (the "Credit Facility"), c) allow for the Camping Gaz acquisition and d) extend the maturity of the credit agreement (as amended, the "Company Credit Agreement"). In connection with the Company recording the restructuring and other charges as discussed in Note 3 and lower than expected operating results, the Company further amended the Company Credit Agreement in October 1996 and again in March 1997.

The Company Credit Agreement is available to the Company until April 30, 2001. The outstanding loans under the Company Credit Agreement bear interest at either of the following rates, as selected by the Company from time to time: (i) the higher of the agent's base lending rate or the federal funds rate plus .50% or (ii) the London Inter-Bank Offered Rate ("LIBOR") plus a margin ranging from .25% to 2.125% based on the Company's financial performance. If there is a default, the interest rate otherwise in effect will be increased by 2% per annum. The Company Credit Agreement also bears an overall facility fee ranging from .15% to .375% based on the Company's financial performance.

In addition, the Company Credit Agreement provides, subject to certain exceptions, for the net cash proceeds from disposition of assets other than in the ordinary course of business, to be used to prepay any outstanding Term Loan balances with any remaining excess net cash proceeds to be applied to outstanding borrowings under the Credit Facility with a corresponding reduction in the overall amount of the Credit Facility line.

The Company Credit Agreement contains various restrictive covenants including, without limitation, requirements for the maintenance of specified financial ratios, levels of consolidated net worth and profits, and certain other provisions limiting the incurrence of additional debt, purchase or redemption of the Company's common stock, issuance of preferred stock of the Company, and also prohibits the Company from paying any dividends until on or after January 1, 1999 and limits the amount of dividends the Company may pay thereafter. The Company Credit Agreement also contains an event of default upon a change of control of the Company (as defined in the Company Credit Agreement) and other customary events of default. In addition, substantially all of the shares of the Company's common stock owned by Coleman Worldwide are pledged to secure indebtedness of Coleman Worldwide and of its parent, CLN Holdings Inc. The indentures governing this indebtedness contain various covenants including a covenant placing certain limitations on the Company's indebtedness.

(e) On May 20, 1997, CLN Holdings issued approximately $600,475 in principal amount at maturity of Old First Priority Notes and approximately $131,560 in principal amount at maturity of Old Second Priority Notes resulting in aggregate net proceeds of approximately $455,257 in a private placement offering. The Old First Priority Notes and Old Second Priority Notes were issued at a discount from their principal amount at maturity to yield 11 1/8% and 12 7/8%, respectively, per annum calculated from May 20, 1997. Subsequent to the private placement offering, a registration statement on Form S-1 was filed to exchange the Old First Priority Notes for Senior Secured First Priority Discount Exchange Notes due 2001 (the "First Priority Notes") and to exchange the Old Second Priority Notes for Senior Secured Second Priority Discount Exchange Notes due 2001 (the "Second Priority Notes" and together with the First Priority Notes, the "Escrow Notes"). exceptions, that the retirement of the remaining outstanding LYONs be consummated no later than June 10, 1998. The Indenture requires CLN Holdings to hold, directly or indirectly, a majority of the voting power of the Company at all times, unless and until CLN Holdings exercises its right to substitute U.S. Government obligations for all of the pledged collateral. The Indenture, to which Coleman is not a party, also contains certain covenants that, among other things, generally prohibit the incurrence of additional debt by CLN Holdings and the issuance of additional debt and the issuance of preferred stock by Coleman Worldwide, and limit (i) the incurrence of additional debt and the issuance of preferred stock by the Company, (ii) the payment of dividends on the capital stock of CLN Holdings and its subsidiaries and the redemption or repurchase of the capital stock of CLN Holdings, (iii) the sale of assets and subsidiary stock, (iv) transactions with affiliates, (v) the creation of liens on the assets of CLN Holdings and Coleman Worldwide, and (vi) consolidations, mergers and transfers of all or substantially all of CLN Holdings' assets. The foregoing limitations and prohibitions, however, are subject to a number of qualifications. The Escrow Notes also contain customary events of defaults and a put right by the holders at a price specified in the Indenture in the event of a change of control of CLN Holdings (as defined in the Indenture).

Approximately $262,194 of the net proceeds of the Escrow Notes were contributed to Coleman Holdings, then a subsidiary of CLN Holdings, and used by it to redeem, on July 15, 1997, the Discount Notes (as defined below). Coleman Holdings recorded an extraordinary loss of $4,300, net of tax benefits of $2,315, relating to the excess of the redemption price over the accreted value of the Discount Notes and the write-off of deferred charges related to the Discount Notes. Approximately $191,278 of the net proceeds of the Escrow Notes were contributed to Coleman Worldwide and used by it to accept for exchange, $554,053 aggregate principal amount at maturity of LYONs, including redemption fees and expenses. Coleman Worldwide recorded an extraordinary loss of $10,939, net of tax benefits of $7,076, relating to the excess of the exchange offer price over the accreted value of the LYONs, the write-off of deferred charges related to the LYONs exchanged and redemption fees and expenses. The $7,500 principal amount at maturity of LYONs which remain outstanding are secured by a pledge of 7,692,854 shares of Coleman common stock owned by Coleman Worldwide. The Escrow Notes are secured by a pledge of all the shares of common stock of Coleman Worldwide and guaranteed pursuant to a non-recourse guaranty of Coleman Worldwide (the "Guaranty"), which Guaranty is currently secured by a pledge of 36,374,666 shares of Company common stock and will be secured by the shares currently securing the LYONs upon their redemption.

(f) On May 27, 1993, Coleman Worldwide issued and sold $500,000 principal amount at maturity of LYONs in an underwritten public offering. On June 7, 1993, an additional $75,000 principal amount at maturity of LYONs was sold upon exercise of the underwriter's overallotment option. During 1997, Coleman Worldwide redeemed $554,053 principal amount at maturity of LYONs as described above. The $7,500 principal amount at maturity of LYONs which remain outstanding are secured by a pledge of 7,692,854 shares of Coleman common stock owned by Coleman Worldwide. There are no periodic payments of interest on the LYONs. The aggregate principal amount of the LYONs represents a yield to maturity of 7.25% per annum (computed on a semi-annual bond equivalent basis) calculated from May 27, 1993. Coleman Worldwide plans to redeem the remaining $7,500 aggregate principal amount at maturity of LYONs no later than May 27, 1998 with the remaining proceeds from the issuance of the Escrow Notes which are being held in escrow. The LYONs, to which the Company is not a party, provide that it is an Additional Purchase Right Event (as defined below) if, among other things, the amount of debt incurred by the Company exceeds certain limitations. The Indenture governing the LYONs, to which the Company is not a party, provides the holders of LYONs with the option to require Coleman Worldwide to purchase the LYONs at a price specified in the Indenture after the occurrence of certain events ("Additional Purchase Right Events"). Additional Purchase Right Events occur, among other things, upon the Company's Consolidated Debt Ratio (as defined) exceeding 0.75 to 1.0 or the Consolidated Net Worth (as defined) of Coleman Worldwide as of the end of any fiscal quarter being less than a specified amount which is $70,000 at December 31, 1997.

(g) On July 22, 1993, Coleman Holdings issued and sold $281,281 principal amount at maturity of Old Notes in a private placement offering. Subsequent to the private placement offering, a registration statement on Form S-1 was filed to exchange the Old Notes for Series B Senior Secured Discount Notes (the "Discount Notes"). During 1997, Coleman Holdings redeemed the Discount Notes as described above.

The aggregate scheduled amounts of long-term debt maturities in the years 1998 through 2002 are $3,026, $78, $12,207 $632,376, and $12,159, respectively.

10. Derivative Financial Instruments

The Company periodically enters into a variety of foreign currency exchange contracts to reduce its foreign currency exposure resulting primarily from firm commitments, intercompany foreign sales transactions expected to occur within the next twelve months, and intercompany accounts receivable and payable.

At December 31, 1997 and December 31, 1996, the Company did not have any outstanding foreign currency exchange contracts related to firm commitments.

During the fourth quarter of 1995, the Company elected to adopt the provisions of the Emerging Issues Task Force Issue No. 95-2, "Determination of What Constitutes a Firm Commitment for Foreign Currency Transactions Not Involving a Third Party" ("EITF 95-2") which narrowed the scope of intercompany foreign currency commitments eligible to be hedged for financial reporting purposes. As a result of this change, the Company increased net income by $3,796 in the fourth quarter of 1995. Prior to the adoption of EITF 95-2, the gains and losses associated with these contracts were accounted for under the deferral method. At December 31, 1997, the Company did not have any outstanding foreign currency forward contracts related to intercompany foreign sales transactions. At December 31, 1996, the Company had forward exchange contracts to sell $8,500 in Canadian dollars maturing on February 28, 1997, for which the Company has recognized a net gain of $40 as a component of cost of sales.

At December 31, 1997, the Company did not have any outstanding option contracts. At December 31, 1996, the Company had outstanding option contracts for the sale of Japanese yen at fixed exchange rates totaling $20,038 for specified periods of time which expired during 1997. Net unrealized gains deferred at December 31, 1996 were $653.

With respect to intercompany accounts receivable and payable, at December 31, 1997, the Company had foreign currency forward contracts to sell $1,580 in foreign currencies, which contracts matured in February 1998, and had deferred a net gain of $128. At December 31, 1996, the Company had foreign currency forward contracts to sell $26,623 and to buy $3,898 in foreign currencies, which contracts matured at various dates in 1997, and had deferred a net gain of $185.

At December 31, 1997, $25,000 of the Company's outstanding long-term debt was subject to an interest rate swap agreement and $25,000 of the Company's outstanding long-term debt was subject to an interest rate cap. Under the interest rate swap agreement, the Company pays the counterparty interest at a fixed rate of 6.115%, and the counterparty pays the Company interest at a variable rate equal to the three month LIBOR for a seven-year period commencing January 2, 1996. The agreement is with a major financial institution which is expected to fully perform under the terms of the agreement, thereby mitigating the credit risk from the transaction. The interest rate cap agreement entitles the Company to receive from a major financial institution the amount, if any, by which the Company's interest payments on $25,000 of its variable rate debt exceed 7.35%. The $509 premium

11. Taxes

CLN Holdings is included in the consolidated federal and certain consolidated state income tax returns of Mafco and/or its affiliates. CLN Holdings and Mafco and subsidiaries provide taxes as if they were a separate taxpayer. CLN Holdings will pay to Mafco amounts equal to the taxes that CLN Holdings would otherwise have to pay if it were to file separate tax returns for itself. To the extent that CLN Holdings is entitled to a tax benefit from Mafco as a result of its tax losses, such amounts are recorded as a reduction in the provision for income taxes and a distribution to its parent. During 1997 and 1996, respectively, CLN Holdings recorded a benefit of $18,769 and $9,013 for income taxes, and similar amounts were recorded as distributions to its parent. Coleman Worldwide and Mafco are parties to a tax sharing agreement (the "Tax Sharing Agreement"), pursuant to which Coleman Worldwide is required to pay to Mafco amounts equal to the taxes Coleman Worldwide would otherwise have to pay if it were to file separate consolidated federal, state or local income tax returns including only itself and its domestic subsidiaries. Pursuant to the LYONs indenture agreement, at any time the LYONs are outstanding, the amounts Coleman Worldwide would be required to pay to Mafco under the Tax Sharing Agreement, together with any remaining funds paid to Coleman Worldwide by the Company under the tax sharing agreement between Coleman Worldwide and the Company, may not be paid as tax sharing payments, but Coleman Worldwide may advance such funds to Mafco as long as the aggregate amount of such advances at any time does not exceed the issue price plus accrued OID of the LYONs. Such advances are evidenced by noninterest bearing unsecured demand promissory notes (the "Mafco Demand Notes") from Mafco in the amount of $35,395 at December 31, 1997. Following the redemption or retirement in full of the LYONs, expected to occur no later than May 27, 1998, the Mafco Demand Notes shall be canceled automatically without further action of any person, and shall be of no further force or effect whatsoever, and, until the time of such cancellation, no demand or request for payment of any kind shall be made with respect to the Mafco Demand Notes. As a result of the restriction on the payment of the tax sharing amounts, income taxes provided pursuant to the Tax Sharing Agreement are reflected as a non-cash charge. For all periods presented, federal and state income taxes are provided as if Coleman Worldwide filed its own income tax returns. The accompanying consolidated balance sheet includes approximately $13,317 and $18,528 of federal and state income taxes payable to Mafco pursuant to the Tax Sharing Agreement at December 31, 1997 and 1996, respectively.

11. Taxes—(Continued)

The deferred tax account balance at December 31, 1997 differs from the account balance at December 31, 1996 due primarily to the 1997 deferred tax provision, the tax effects of the foreign exchange gain recorded as a component of stockholder's equity, the tax effects of adjustments related to the finalization of the purchase accounting related to the acquisition of Camping Gaz and the deferred tax asset recorded related to the acquisitions in 1997 of inactive companies which were recorded as a capital contribution (see Note 12).

During 1997, CLN Holdings increased the valuation allowance related to certain foreign deferred tax assets due to uncertainties over realization. At December 31, 1997, CLN Holdings had net operating loss carryforwards ("NOL's") of approximately $107,229 for certain foreign income tax purposes. These NOL's expire beginning in 1998.

CLN Holdings has not provided for taxes on undistributed foreign earnings of approximately $20,860 at December 31, 1997, as CLN Holdings intends to permanently reinvest these earnings in the future growth of the business. Determination of the amount of unrecognized deferred U.S. income tax liability is not practicable because of the complexities associated with its hypothetical calculation.

12. Related Party Transactions

Capital Contributions

As of March 31, 1997, the Company purchased an inactive subsidiary from an affiliate for net cash consideration of $1,031, including transaction costs. The Company expects to realize certain foreign tax benefits from this transaction in future years. Under certain circumstances, a portion of these tax benefits will be payable to the affiliate to the extent such tax benefits are realized by the Company. During the fourth quarter of 1997, the Company purchased an inactive subsidiary from an affiliate in a transaction in which the Company expects to realize certain foreign tax benefits in future years and for which the Company agreed to pay 50% of those realized benefits to the affiliate. The Company has recorded a liability to the affiliate in the amount of $219 which represents 50% of the estimated amount of future tax benefits. The Company has accounted for these transactions in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests due to the Mafco Holdings Inc. common control over each of the parties involved in the transactions. The $2,799 excess value of estimated realizable tax benefits acquired over the total acquisition costs have been accounted for as a capital contribution.

Insurance Programs

The Company participates in certain of Holdings' insurance programs, including health and life insurance, workers compensation, and liability insurance. The Company's expense represents its expected costs for self-insured retentions and premiums for excess coverage insurance. The expense was $13,339, $13,923 and $9,875 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

Services Agreement

From time to time, Coleman purchases, at negotiated rates, specialized accounting and other services provided by an affiliate. Coleman also provides, at negotiated rates, services to an affiliate. The net expense for such services was $394 during 1997 and was immaterial in prior years.

Management Agreement

The Company provided management services to certain affiliates pursuant to a management agreement through June 30, 1995. The consolidated financial statements reflect the management fees as a reduction in selling, general and administration expenses. For the year ended December 31, 1995, management fees earned by the Company were $2,400.

Licensing Agreement

During 1997, the Company engaged an affiliate of MacAndrews & Forbes to provide licensing services. The Company recorded expenses of $650 related to these services in 1997.

Other

In 1996, the Company entered into an agreement with an affiliate in which the Company realized approximately $1,800 of net tax benefits associated with certain foreign tax net operating loss carryforwards that had not previously been recognized.

The Company purchases and sells products from and to certain affiliates. These amounts are not, in the aggregate, material.

The Company subleases six thousand square feet of office space in New York City from an affiliate pursuant to a month-to-month occupancy memorandum (the "Lease") entered into during 1997. The rent paid by the Company during the year ended December 31, 1997 pursuant to the Lease was $158.

During 1997, Coleman used an airplane owned by a corporation of which a director of Coleman is a stockholder, for which Coleman paid approximately $158.

13. Employee Benefit Plans

Pension Plans

Holdings maintains pension and other retirement plans in various forms covering employees of the Company who meet eligibility requirements. The U.S. salaried retirement plan is a non-contributory defined benefit plan and provides benefits based on a formula of each participant's final average pay and years of service. The U.S. hourly pension plan is a non-contributory defined benefit plan and contains a flat benefit formula. The salaried and hourly plans provide reduced benefits for early retirement and the salaried plan takes into account offsets for Social Security benefits. The Company's policy is to contribute annually the minimum amount required pursuant to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, as amended. Under certain circumstances, the Company may make additional contributions to the pension plans up to the maximum deductible amounts for income tax purposes.

Holdings also has an unfunded excess benefit plan covering certain of the Company's U.S. employees whose benefits under the plans described above are limited by provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The following table reconciles the funded status of the pension plans with the amount recognized in CLN Holdings' consolidated balance sheets as of the dates indicated:

	December 31, 1997	December 31, 1996
Actuarial present value of benefit obligation:
Accumulated benefit obligation, including vested benefits of $24,296 and $18,686	$(27,843)	$(21,933)

The weighted-average discount rate used in determining the actuarial present value of the projected benefit obligation was 7.5% as of December 31, 1997 and 1996. The rate of increase in future compensation levels reflected in such determination was 5% as of December 31, 1997 and 1996. The expected long-term rate of return on assets was 9% as of December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995. Plan assets consist primarily of common stock, mutual funds and fixed income securities stated at fair market value, and cash equivalents stated at cost, which approximates fair market value. Unrecognized items are being recognized over the estimated remaining service lives of active employees.

Net pension expense includes the following components:

	Year Ended December 31, 1997	1996	1995
Service cost-benefits attributed to service during the year	$3,081	$3,098	$2,125

Savings Plan:

Holdings maintains an employee savings plan under Section 401(k) of the Internal Revenue Code. This plan covers substantially all of the Company's full-time U.S. employees and allows employees to contribute up to 10% of their salary to the plan. The Company matches, at a 34% rate, employee contributions of up to 6% of their salary. Amounts charged to expense for matching contributions were $1,401, $1,314, and $1,165 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

Retiree Health Care and Life Insurance:

The Company, through Holdings, provides certain unfunded health and life insurance benefits for certain retired employees. Approximately 55% of the Company's U.S. employees may become eligible for these benefits if they reach retirement age while working for the Company.

The following table reconciles the funded status of the Company's allocable portion of Holdings' postretirement benefit plans with the amount recognized in CLN Holdings' consolidated balance sheets as of the dates indicated:

	December 31,
	1997	1996
Accumulated postretirement benefit obligation:
Retirees	$ (6,852)	$ (6,682)
Fully eligible active plan participants	(3,308)	(3,015)
Other active plan participants	(10,322)	(10,664)
Total accumulated postretirement benefit obligation	(20,482)	(20,361)
Unrecognized transition benefit	(3,707)	(3,973)
Unrecognized prior service cost	(404)	(492)
Unrecognized net gain	(2,415)	(976)
Net postretirement benefit liability	$(27,008)	$(25,802)

Net periodic postretirement benefit expense includes the following components:

	Year Ended December 31,
	1997	1996	1995
Service cost-benefits attributed to service during the year	$ 927	$1,044	$ 756
Interest cost on accumulated postretirement benefit obligation	1,453	1,454	1,352
Amortization of transition benefit and other net gains	(358)	(354)	(455)
Net periodic postretirement benefit expense	$2,022	$2,144	$1,653

The discount rate used in determining the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation ("APBO") was 7.5% as of December 31, 1997 and 1996. At December 31, 1997, the assumed health care cost trend rate used in measuring the APBO was 7.5% starting in 1998 then gradually decreasing to 5% by the year 2003 and remaining at that level thereafter. The health care cost trend rate assumption has a significant effect on the pamount of the obligation and periodic benefit expense reported. An increase in the assumed health care cost trend rates by 1% in each year would increase the APBO as of December 31, 1997 by approximately 19% and the service and interest cost components of net periodic postretirement benefit expense by approximately 22%.

13. Employee Benefit Plans—(Continued)

As described in Note 1, the Company follows APB Opinion No. 25 in accounting for stock compensation arrangements. Pro forma financial information regarding net income and earnings per share has been determined as if the Company had accounted for its employee stock options under the fair value method of SFAS No. 123. The fair value of ISOs and NQSOs granted during 1997, 1996 and 1995 were estimated at the date of grant using the Black-Scholes option pricing model with the following weighted-average assumptions: risk-free interest rates of 6.53%, 6.11% and 5.91 % for 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively, dividend yield of 0.0%, volatility of the expected market price of the Company's common stock of 31.3%, 20.2% and 30.8% for 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively, and a weighted-average expected life of the option of 7.7, 5.5 and 5.5 years for 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

SFAS No. 123 requires the use of option valuation models, one of which is the Black-Scholes model, that were not developed for use valuing ISOs or NQSOs. Further, these option valuation models require the input of highly subjective assumptions, including the expected stock price volatility. In management's opinion, based on the above, the existing models do not necessarily provide a reliable single measure of the fair value of its ISOs or NQSOs.

The following summarized, unaudited pro forma results of operations assume the estimated fair value of the ISOs and NQSOs granted during the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995 is amortized to expense over the ISOs' and NQSOs' vesting period. SFAS No. 123 does not require disclosure of the effect of any grants of stock based compensation prior to 1995 and, therefore, the pro forma effect of SFAS No. 123 on net earnings is not representative of the pro forma effect on net earnings in future years.

	Year Ended December 31,
	1997	1996	1995
Pro forma net (loss) earnings	$(55,045)	$(58,918)	$9,742

14. Commitments and Contingencies

Leases:

The Company leases manufacturing, administrative and sales facilities and various types of equipment under operating lease agreements expiring through 2007. Rental expense was $15,620, $14,164, and $11,526 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively. Minimum rental commitments under all noncancellable operating leases with remaining lease terms in excess of one year from December 31, 1997, aggregated $31,506; such commitments for each of the five years subsequent to December 31, 1997 are $7,571, $6,683, $4,622, $2,848, and $3,560, respectively, and $6,222 thereafter.

The Company leases its former corporate office building in Denver, Colorado under agreements which give the Company the right, subject to certain qualifications, to renew or terminate the lease, or purchase the property. Upon termination, the Company has guaranteed the lessor certain residual values.

Environmental Matters:

Gilbert and Mosley Site. As a result of investigations undertaken in 1986, the Kansas Department of Health and Environment ("KDHE") discovered that groundwater in the downtown Wichita area (the "Gilbert and Mosley Site") was contaminated with volatile organic chemicals ("VOCs"). Coleman occupied a facility within the boundaries of the Gilbert and Mosley Site. Subsequent investigations in the area, including investigations in November 1988 by Coleman, indicated the groundwater beneath the Coleman property is contaminated with VOCs. Coleman is in the process of remediating the contamination on its property.

The City of Wichita has entered into a voluntary agreement with KDHE in which the City agreed to investigate and then remediate contamination in the Gilbert and Mosley Site. Coleman has entered into an agreement with KDHE in which Coleman agreed to perform a similar study for the Coleman property and to implement remedial activities at its property. In addition, Coleman entered into an agreement with the City of Wichita in which Coleman agreed to fund its proportionate share of the City's study and remediation of the Gilbert and Mosley site.

Maize Site. Coleman has undertaken a soil and groundwater investigation at its facility in Maize, Kansas (the "Maize Site"). Results indicate that limited VOC contamination is present in the groundwater under and to the southeast of the facility. The data has been reported to the KDHE, and Coleman has entered into an agreement with KDHE to implement appropriate remedial actions. The remediation system has been installed, and Coleman is in the process of remediating the contaminated groundwater.

Northeast Site. In 1990, Coleman undertook a soil and groundwater investigation of its facility in northeast Wichita (the "Northeast Site"). Results indicated the presence of VOCs in the groundwater and soils. Although some of the contamination may be a result of Coleman's operations at the facility, the data also indicated that contamination was migrating onto the Coleman property from up gradient sources. Coleman reported the initial results of its study to KDHE. Coleman has also provided copies of all data to the United States Environmental Protection Agency (the "EPA"), at its request. The EPA has not initiated any actions against the Company with respect to the Northeast Site. An agreement has been entered into with KDHE to undertake additional investigatory activities, and an interim remediation system has been installed.

The Company has not been named as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") by the EPA nor does it have joint and several liability with any other PRP for remediation at any of the above sites.

The Company has adopted an environmental policy designed to ensure the Company operates in full compliance with applicable environmental regulations and, where appropriate, the Company's own internal standards. Coleman has also undertaken an environmental compliance audit program. The Company makes expenditures it believes are necessary to comply with environmental management practices. Environmental expenditures that relate to current operations are expensed or capitalized as appropriate and were not significant in 1997 and are not expected to be significant in the foreseeable future. The Company accrues for losses associated with environmental remediation obligations when such losses are probable and reasonably estimable. Accruals for estimated losses from environmental remediation obligations generally are recognized no later than completion of the remedial feasibility study. Such accruals are adjusted as further information develops or circumstances change. Costs of future expenditures for environmental remediation obligations are not discounted to their present value. Recoveries of environmental remediation costs from other parties are recognized as assets when their receipt is deemed probable.

While it is possible the Company reserves may change in the near term, the Company believes the reserves established for environmental matters are adequate. This belief is based on estimates provided by the state governmental authorities referred to above, results of environmental investigations of the groundwater and soils at the manufacturing facilities operated by Coleman conducted by independent consultants specializing in environmental investigations and remediation and estimates provided by such independent consultants, together with estimates provided by Coleman's environmental engineering staff.

Other:

The Company and Holdings are involved in various claims and legal actions arising in the ordinary course of business. The Company believes the ultimate disposition of these matters is not expected to have a material adverse effect on CLN Holdings' consolidated financial condition or results of operations. The Company has entered into a cross-indemnification agreement with Holdings pursuant to which it will indemnify Holdings against all liabilities related to businesses transferred to the Company, and Holdings will indemnify the Company against all liabilities of Holdings other than liabilities related to the businesses transferred to the Company.

The Company is party to a license agreement which requires payments of minimum guaranteed royalties aggregating to $11,778 at December 31, 1997; such commitments for each of the five years remaining under the agreement subsequent to December 31, 1997 are $1,040, $1,745, $2,434, $3,010 and $3,549, respectively.

19. Impact of Year 2000 (Unaudited)

Some of the Company's older computer programs were written using two digits rather than four to represent the applicable year. As a result, those computer programs recognize a date represented by "00" as the year 1900 rather than the year 2000. This situation, known as the "Year 2000" issue, could cause a system failure or miscalculations causing disruptions of operations, including, among other things, a temporary inability to process transactions, send invoices, or engage in similar normal business activities.

Based on ongoing assessments of the Company's operations, the Company has determined it will be required to modify or replace portions of its computer software so the computer systems will function properly with respect to dates in the year 2000 and thereafter. The Company believes that, in most instances, with minor modifications to existing software, the Year 2000 issue will not pose significant operational problems for its computer systems. The Company has identified one location with significant Year 2000 software issues. Failure to complete a timely conversion of this location to a Year 2000 compliant system could have a material impact on the operations of the Company; however, the Company has begun to replace the software at this location, and such replacement software is expected to be installed prior to December 31, 1999.

The Company has initiated formal communications with some of its significant suppliers and large customers to determine the extent to which the Company's interface systems are vulnerable to those third parties' failure to remediate their own Year 2000 issues. There can be no guarantee that the systems of other companies on which the Company's systems rely will be timely converted and would not have an adverse effect on the Company's systems.

In 1996, the Company began a project to select and install a Company-wide enterprise resource computer software system designed to improve operational efficiency. The selected system is Year 2000 compliant and complete installation of this software system is expected to take three years. The cost of the purchase of the software and installation costs is expected to range from $20,000 to $25,000. The Company will capitalize a significant portion of these costs and does not believe the costs of this project will have a significant impact on the Company's financial condition or results of operations.

The costs of the project and the date on which the Company believes it will be Year 2000 compliant are based on management's best estimates, which were derived utilizing numerous assumptions of future events, including the continued availability of certain resources, third party modification plans and other factors. However, there can be no guarantee that these estimates will be achieved and actual results could differ materially from those anticipated. Specific factors that might cause such material differences include, but are not limited to, the availability and cost of personnel trained in this area, the ability to locate and correct all relevant computer codes, and similar uncertainties.

20. Subsequent Event (Unaudited)

On February 27, 1998, the Company, Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"), and a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Merger Sub"), entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Coleman Merger Agreement") providing that, among other things, Merger Sub will be merged (the "Coleman Merger") with the Company. Pursuant to the Coleman Merger Agreement, each share of the Company's Common Stock, issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time of the Coleman Merger (other than certain shares) will be converted into the right to receive (a) 0.5677 shares of Sunbeam common stock, with cash paid in lieu of fractional shares, and (b) $6.44 in cash, without interest.

Coincident with the execution of the Coleman Merger Agreement, CLN Holdings and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., the parent company of CLN Holdings, entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Holdings merger Agreement" and with the "Coleman Merger Agreement", collectively the "Merger Agreements"), with Sunbeam and a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Laser Merger Sub"). The Holdings Merger Agreement provides that, among other things, Laser Merger Sub will be merged (the "Holdings Merger") with CLN Holdings. Pursuant to the Holdings Merger Agreement, the shares of CLN Holdings' common stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time of the Holdings Merger (other than certain shares) will be converted into the right to receive in the aggregate 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam's common stock and $159,957 in cash, without interest.

Following consummation of the Holdings Merger, CLN Holdings will be a direct wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam. Following consummation of the Coleman Merger, the Company will be an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam.

The Holdings Merger is subject to the expiration of antitrust waiting periods and certain other customary conditions. The Coleman Merger Agreement is subject to consummation of the Holdings Merger. These transactions will constitute a change in control as defined in the Company Credit Agreement, the Lyons and the Escrow Notes. Per the terms of the Merger Agreements, certain arrangements with related parties may be altered or terminated. In addition, outstanding, unvested stock Company options immediately vest upon consummation of the Holdings Merger.

December 10, 1997

In connection with your engagement (the "engagement") to advise and assist us with the matters described in our engagement letter dated December 10, 1997, we agree to indemnify and hold harmless CREDIT SUISSE FIRST BOSTON CORPORATION ("CSFB" or "you") and its affiliates, the respective directors, officers, partners, agents and employees of CSFB and its affiliates, and each other person, if any, controlling CSFB or any of its affiliates (collectively, "Indemnified Persons"), from and against, and we agree that no Indemnified Person shall have any liability to us or our owners, parents, affiliates, security holders or creditors for, any losses, claims, damages or liabilities (including actions or proceedings in respect thereof) (collectively "Losses") (A) related to or arising out of (i) our actions or failures to act (including statements or omissions made, or information provided, by us or our agents) or (ii) actions or failures to act by an Indemnified Person with our consent or in reliance on our actions or failures to act, or (B) otherwise related to or arising out of the engagement or your performance thereof, except that this clause (B) shall not apply to any Losses that are finally judicially determined to have resulted primarily from your bad faith or gross negligence. If such indemnification is for any reason not available or insufficient to hold you harmless, we agree to contribute to the Losses involved in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect the relative benefits received (or anticipated to be received) by us and by you with respect to the engagement or, if such allocation is judicially determined unavailable, in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect other equitable considerations such as the relative fault of us on the one hand and of you on the other hand; provided, however, that, to the extent permitted by applicable law, the Indemnified Persons shall not be responsible for amounts which in the aggregate are in excess of the amount of all fees actually received by you from us in connection with the engagement. Relative benefits to us, on the one hand, and you, on the other hand, with respect to the engagement shall be deemed to be in the same proportion as (i) the total value paid or proposed to be paid or received or proposed to be received by us or our security holders, as the case may be, pursuant to the transaction(s), whether or not consummated, contemplated by the engagement bears to (ii) all fees actually received by you in connection with the engagement.

We will reimburse each Indemnified Person for all expenses (including without limitation reasonable fees and disbursements of counsel and expenses incurred in connection with preparing for and responding to third party subpoenas) as they are incurred by such Indemnified Person in connection with investigating, preparing for or defending any action, claim, investigation, inquiry, arbitration or other proceeding ("Action") referred to above (or enforcing this agreement or any related engagement agreement), whether or not in connection with pending or threatened litigation in which any Indemnified Person is a party, and whether or not such Action is initiated or brought by you . We further agree that we will not settle or compromise or consent to the entry of any judgment in any pending or threatened Action in respect of which indemnification may be sought hereunder (whether or not an Indemnified Person is a party therein) unless we have given you reasonable prior written notice thereof and used all reasonable efforts, after consultation with you, to obtain an unconditional release of each Indemnified Person from all liability arising therefrom. In the event we are considering entering into one or a series of transactions involving a merger or other business combination or a dissolution or liquidation of all or a significant portion of our assets, we shall promptly notify you in writing. If requested by CSFB, we shall then establish alternative means of providing for our obligations set forth herein on terms and conditions reasonably satisfactory to CSFB.

If multiple claims are brought against you in any Action with respect to at least one of which indemnification is permitted under applicable law and provided for under this agreement, we agree that any judgment, arbitration award or other monetary award shall be conclusively deemed to be based on claims as to which indemnification is permitted and provided for. Our obligations hereunder shall be in addition to any rights that any Indemnified Person may have at common law or otherwise. Solely for the purpose of enforcing this agreement, we hereby consent to personal jurisdiction and to service and venue in any court in which any claim which is subject to this agreement is brought by or against any Indemnified Person. We acknowledge that in connection with the engagement you are acting as an independent contractor with duties owing solely to us. YOU HEREBY AGREE, AND WE HEREBY AGREE ON OUR OWN BEHALF AND, TO THE EXTENT PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE LAW, ON BEHALF OF OUR SECURITY HOLDERS, TO WAIVE ANY RIGHT TO TRIAL BY JURY WITH RESPECT TO ANY CLAIM, COUNTER-CLAIM OR ACTION ARISING OUT OF THE ENGAGEMENT, YOUR PERFORMANCE THEREOF OR THIS AGREEMENT.

The provisions of this agreement shall apply to the engagement (including related activities prior to the date hereof) and any modification thereof and shall remain in full force and effect regardless of the completion or termination of the engagement. This agreement and any other agreements relating to the engagement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York, without regard to conflicts of law principles.

Very truly yours,

KEY POINTS

1. Q4 EPS HITS LOW-END OF RANGE: Sunbeam (SOC) reported Q4 EPS results of $0.47, in-line with the low-end of Street estimates ($0.47-$0.55) and $0.01 short of our estimate. The company estimates that a $15 million shortfall in electric blankets cost them $0.04 in the quarter and the Neosho grill facility re-alignment another $0.01. We believe that $0.47 represents a strong close to a very strong year, but caution investors that going forward, the low-end of the range may be a more relevant number to focus on when assessing Sunbeam's value. As the last couple of quarters have indicated, Sunbeam's goals are very aggressive, even at the low end of the range. Given the slight downside surprise in the latest quarter, we are trimming our 1998 estimate to $1.95-$2.00 from $2.00-$2.05, reflecting management's guidance that 40% EPS growth in 1998 is within reason. While we believe estimates beyond 1998 are less relevant as Sunbeam management stated they seek to "close" a major acquisition in the first half of 1998, for now, we are shaving a me off our 1999 range to $2.50-$2.60. At 19.3 times the low-end of ur 1998 range, we continue to believe Sunbeam is a good buy in the high-$30s, provided it carries out its Phase III plans . Sticking with our revised "low-end" outlook, our 12-18 month price target is $50, representing 20x the low-end of our 1999 estimate.

2. SALES STRONG LED BY GRILLS: Sales in the quarter were up 25.7% on a reported basis to $338.1 million. This was about $6 million short of our estimate, due to the above mentioned blanket softness. As expected the grill sales led the way in the quarter, but this growth was substantially ahead of our expectations. We are not bothered by the "grill blip" in the fourth quarter as long as the company hasn't stolen some Q198 upside to stretch to meet Q497 expectations. We will not really know this until we are further into Q1, but must note that we believe the receivable and inventory position is still a bit "heavy." The stakes are high as Sunbeam enters the peak grill season, as the company has already begun to seed the channel in Q4, grill inventory is high (according to strategy) and it's product line-up is brand new. If it works, Sunbeam will likely gain substantial market share and have a blow-out 1H98 in grills against an easy 1H97 comparison. We are modeling for 1H98 grill sales of around $270 million, up 15-20% from the roughly $230 million in 1H97. We also expect grill margins to be around 5-6 points higher in 1998 than in 1997, but still below the company average. We believe that Sunbeam management understands the importance of the grill turnaround and have no reason to doubt their execution capabilities. Regarding this matter, all the shorts can do is pray for rain.

3. 20% OPERATING MARGIN - ALMOST THERE: Sequential margin improvement continued, as the company registered a 19.7% operating margin in the quarter. Gross margin declined sequentially in the quarter, 29.4% from 30.7% due to the higher grill mix (19% of sales in Q4 versus 11% in Q3), but the difference was more than made up for in operating margin as SG&A expenditures came in at only 9.7% of sales. We expect SG&A expenses to pick up again to around 13-14% of sales in the first half of 1998 as spending behind the enhanced grill line-up and the air & water products begins.

4. WHAT ABOUT PHASE III: As we have stated previously, we believe Sunbeam will have a difficult time achieving 2H98 growth targets without an accretive acquisition. We remain comfortable with our $1.95-2.00 estimate in 1998 without an acquisition, but we would certainly breathe a little easier if Sunbeam could actually consummate an accretive transaction. Sunbeam Chairman, Al Dunlap, expressed his desire to have a transaction CLOSED in 1H98. We continue to believe that time is the company's enemy and the sooner it can strike a deal, the better. We are also increasingly of the belief that Sunbeam doesn't need a multi-billion dollar acquisition to drive it's stock price higher. Given it's cost-cutting prowess, superior margin structure and relatively small sales base ($1.2 billion), we believe a smaller acquisition might be enough to provide upside on the $2.00 estimate in 1998 and return the stock to its old highs in the low $50s. Furthermore, it may be easier to consummate a smaller transaction with cash/debt and save the stock for the "big one," when Sunbeam's multiple improves. Whether we see the "quantum leap" or not in 1H98, we think one thing is certain, Al Dunlap is not going to sit idle and watch his stock underperform the market as well as the stocks of his perennial laggard competitors. We believe the consummation of some type of M&A deal in 1H98 is highly likely. The market is simply waiting to see at what cost this transaction will come. While Sunbeam certainly is well positioned to become the leading consolidator in an industry desperately in need of consolidation, we just do not believe Al Dunlap took this job a year and a half ago to pioneer this consolidation.

5. WE REPEAT OUR SUNBEAM INVESTMENT THESIS: (with some modest revisions)

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

-- Solid momentum through 1H98 fueled by a new grill line-up and enhanced grill facility as well as its "Air & Water" offerings from the "secret room."
-- Comparisons to get tougher in 2H98, but likely to be clouded by Base III (or perhaps smaller acquisition).
-- Real potential for another round of meteoric stock price appreciation comes if Sunbeam can make a strategic acquisition, using Sunbeam stock as currency, at a modest premium that doesn't already factor in all of the cost-cutting potential. (a smaller cash/debt deal could also drive some less meteoric appreciation).
-- Patient Sunbeam investors may get two (or more) "Chainsaw" turnarounds for the price of one.

6. VALUATION: As the table below illustrates, at its current depressed levels, Sunbeam's P/E valuation relative to some other leading consumer non-durable players is beginning to look quite reasonable.

Black & Decker	$48 9/16	$2.65	$3.27	18.3x	14.9x
Fortune Brands	$38 11/16	$1.70	$1.98	22.8x	19.5x

Rubbermaid	$25 3/4	$1.18	$1.49	21.8x	17.3x
			Mean	20.6x	17.3x
Sunbeam	$37 5/8	$1.95	$2.50	19.3x	15.1x

* First Call mean estimate, except for Sunbeam which is based on low-end of PaineWebber range.

We believe that over the next 12-18 months, as Sunbeam management takes the appropriate steps to restore confidence in the attainability of aggressive 1998/1999 estimates the stock can approach 20 times our 1999 estimate, or $50, representing 33% upside from current levels. Until such steps are taken, we believe the stock may languish in its current $37-40 trading range.

We should note that investor skepticism is nothing new for Sunbeam. Exactly one year ago, Sunbeam's stock closed at $27 1/8, 19.2x what many viewed as a very aggressive $1.40 estimate for 1997. A year later, the earnings have been delivered and Sunbeam stock is up nearly 40%. If Sunbeam management executes according to plan (40% EPS growth in 1998), January's skepticism may translate into an encore performance for investors in 1998.

RISKS

Sunbeam has been and continues to be a very risky story. The company's EPS growth target of 40% in 1998 is very aggressive and comes in the face of a difficult economic climate in Asia and very solid growth in 2H97. We also believe the company is employing a risky strategy to capture a larger share of the grill market. Execution is key to the company providing an encore to its stellar 1997 performance.

Sunbeam Posts Profit Below Forecasts, A Stumble That Sends Stock Down 9.5%

By Jacqueline Bueno
And Rick Brooks
Staff Reporters of The Wall Street Journal

Sunbeam Corp. reported fourth-quarter earnings that fell slightly short of analysts' expectations. It was the company's first stumble with investors since Albert Dunlap was brought in to turn around the consumer-products and appliance maker, and Sunbeam's shares fell 9.5% on the earnings news.

Under new accounting standards that went into effect late last year, companies must report per-share earnings in two redefined ways, diluted and basic.

The Delray Beach, Fla., company said fourth-quarter earnings were $41.7 million, or 47 cents a share on a diluted basis, or net divided by common shares outstanding plus potential common shares from securities such as options and convertible securities. That compared with a loss of $234.7 million, or $2.83 a diluted share, a year earlier. Basic per-share earnings, or net divided by shares outstanding, amounted to 49 cents a share, compared with a loss of $2.83 a share. Revenue for the quarter increased 26% to 338.1 million from $268.9 million.

Reactions of Analysts

The earnings, however, fell short of analysts' expectations of 50 cents a share for the quarter, according to First Call Corp. Several analysts lowered their 1998 and 1999 earnings estimates, saying the company's earnings won't accelerate as fast as had been expected. In composite trading on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday, the stock closed at $37.625, down $3.9375.

"People bought this stock because of Al Dunlap's proven ability" as a turnaround engineer, said Scott Graham, an analyst for CIBC Oppenheimer in New York. He said Sunbeam's failure to meet analysts' expectations marked the first time that Mr. Dunlap didn't deliver what he promised. "All of a sudden we've got a dent in the armor," Mr. Graham said.

Still, he said, he sees no problems with the company's fundamentals. "They're doing all the right things," he said.

The company, which has been undergoing a restructuring since Mr. Dunlap took over as chairman less than two years ago, blamed the shortfall on sales of its electric blankets. Sales of the blankets were about $15 million less than what the company had expected, Mr. Dunlap said yesterday during a conference call with analysts. Weather in the Northeast wasn't as cold as the company would like, Mr. Dunlap said, and the company didn't have enough inventory of the king- and queen-size blankets to meet demand in some markets.

However, he said, the company has taken steps to correct the problem by increasing inventories.

Sunbeam also blamed the shutdown of a facility in Missouri that manufactures grills. The amortization costs related to that shutdown were greater than expected, a spokesman said.

Separately, Mr. Dunlap yesterday reasserted the company's plans to complete a major merger during the first half of 1998. Sunbeam has been looking for a company to acquire, or to be acquired by, for more than six months.

Mr. Dunlap said the list of possible merger partners has been shortened but a final candidate hasn't been identified.

For the year, the company reported earnings of $109.4 million, or $1.25 a diluted share, compared with a loss in 1996 of $228.3 million, or $2.75 a diluted share. Basic earnings were $1.29 a share. Annual revenue in 1997 increased 19% to $1.17 billion.

EMPLOYEES

The Company currently has approximately 3,300 full-time domestic employees and 4,200 international employees. None of the Company's domestic full-time workforce has union representation. Sunbeam has had no material labor-related work stoppages and, in the opinion of management, relations with its employees are generally good.

SEASONALITY

On a consolidated basis, Sunbeam sales do not exhibit substantial seasonality. However, sales of outdoor cooking products are strongest in the first half of the year, while sales of appliances and personal care and comfort products are strongest in the second half of the year. In addition, sales of a number of the Company's products, including warming blankets, vaporizers, humidifiers and grills may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions. During 1997, the Company initiated early buy programs for highly seasonal products such as grills and warming blankets in order to more levelize production and distribution activities.

RAW MATERIALS

The raw materials used in the manufacture of the Company's products are available from numerous suppliers in quantities sufficient to meet normal requirements. The Company's primary raw materials include aluminum, steel, resin, copper, and corrugated cardboard for cartons.

ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations in addition to laws and regulations regarding labeling and packaging of products and the sale of products containing certain environmentally sensitive materials ("Environmental Laws"). The Company believes it is in substantial compliance with all Environmental Laws which are applicable to its operations. Compliance with Environmental Laws involves certain continuing costs; however, such costs of ongoing compliance have not resulted, and are not anticipated to result, in a material increase in the Company's capital expenditures or to have a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial condition or competitive position.

In addition to ongoing environmental compliance at its operations, the Company also is actively engaged in certain environmental remediation activities relating primarily to divested operations. As of December 31, 1997, the Company had been identified by the United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") or a state environmental agency as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven (7) sites subject to the federal Superfund law and two (2) sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant.

The Superfund Act, and related state environmental remediation laws, generally authorize governmental authorities to remediate a Superfund site and to assess the costs against the PRPs or to order the PRPs to remediate the site at their expense. Liability under the Superfund Law is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRPs at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRPs established with respect to such sites. The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at nine (9) sites, four (4) of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and five (5) of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law.

consumer confidence and retail outlets (including the financial weakness or bankruptcy of retail outlets, especially mass merchants) should be expected to adversely impact the Company's future financial results. In addition, the extended credit terms provided by the Company in connection with its "early buy" program increase the Company's risk of collection of accounts receivable.

/bullet/ The Company operates in a highly competitive environment with numerous competitors which are financially strong and capable of competing effectively with the Company in the marketplace. Such competitors may take actions to meet the Company's new product introductions and other initiatives. Some competitors may be willing to accept lower margins and to reduce prices to compete with the Company. As a result, the Company could fail to achieve anticipated sales increases, to realize anticipated price increases, or otherwise fail to meet its anticipated goals. Any of such circumstances would likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ The Company currently manufactures approximately 70% of its products. One of the Company's goals for 1998 is to source approximately 50% of the Company's parts and/or products from third parties. The Company's ability to realize sales and operating profits at anticipated levels is dependent upon its ability to timely manufacture, source and deliver products which may be sold for a profit. Labor difficulties, delays in delivery or pricing of raw materials and/or sourced products, scheduling and transportation difficulties, management dislocations and delays in development and manufacture of new products can negatively affect operating profits. Although the Company will use its best efforts to select suppliers for sourced product which are reliable and dependable, the Company's planned increase in the percentage of sourced products will decrease the Company's immediate control of product and, if such suppliers fail to deliver products as anticipated, could have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ As a consumer goods distributor, the Company's results of operations can be negatively impacted by product liability lawsuits, product recall actions and/or by higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods.

/bullet/ The Company expects to substantially increase the amount of business conducted by it outside North America. If the Company fails to achieve anticipated market penetration in areas of the world into which the Company currently expects to expand its sales, such event is likely to have an adverse effect on the Company's future financial performance, which effect could be material. Expansion of the Company's sales in foreign markets depends upon many factors, including the states of economies in foreign countries, the strength of consumer demand in those countries for products which the Company sells (or expects to sell in those markets), the strength of competition from other global consumer products companies and other factors which may negatively affect the Company's anticipated performance in those markets. Although the recent financial instability in Asia has not currently had any material impact on the Company, if such conditions continue and/or worsen, they could negatively impact the Company's ability to achieve anticipated sales growth in such countries, the effect of which could be material to the Company's future financial performance.

/bullet/ The Company currently manufactures some products and has sales in such economies as those of Mexico and Venezuela, both of which economies have been unstable or hyperinflationary in recent years. The economies of other foreign countries important to the Company's expansion plans, including other countries in Latin America and Asia, could suffer similar instability in the future. Such factors as currency devaluations, new tariffs, changes in monetary policies, inflation, governmental instability and similar matters could negatively affect the Company's anticipated performance in foreign markets. Although the Company plans to take advantage of recent economic and currency fluctuations in certain Asian countries by increasing the Company's purchases of products from such countries at lower prices, there is no guarantee that such purchasing advantage will be fulfilled or will fully overcome any lost sales opportunities in those same countries. As a result, the economic conditions discussed above or any of these circumstances could have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ A significant portion of the cost of goods manufactured by the Company in North America is the cost of raw materials and/or components. The Company has implemented changes in its purchasing function which have enabled the Company to purchase materials more efficiently and economically than it has in the past. The future success of the Company's purchasing initiatives may be affected by many factors beyond the Company's control, such as commodity pricing generally and higher prices for the specific materials required by the Company. Although there are numerous suppliers available for the materials and components sourced by the Company, any unanticipated change in suppliers could be disruptive and costly to the Company. In addition, the Company's future initiatives to reduce the cost of materials simply may not achieve savings in amounts comparable to those previously obtained by the Company. A significant failure by the Company to maintain material costs as anticipated would likely have an adverse effect on anticipated future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ The Company anticipates realizing price increases from time to time for certain of its products. The Company operates in a highly competitive industry, and its ability to realize price increases may be limited due to competitive pressures. If there is a material failure to realize anticipated price increases, margins likely will be lower than anticipated by the Company, and this will likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ The Company anticipates that it will be able to more rapidly develop and introduce a substantial number of new and innovative products in the future. However, the Company may prove unable to meet its more aggressive schedules for future product development. Failure to develop and manufacture new products in the amounts and with the quality anticipated or a failure to reduce the cycle time for new product introductions would likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ Sales of certain of the Company's products can be negatively impacted by unseasonable weather conditions during different seasons and quarters of the year. For instance, the Company's sales of warming blankets were negatively impacted in the fourth quarter of 1997 by moderate temperatures in the northern states. The Company has attempted to levelize production, marketing and other activities related to seasonal products by implementing an "early buy" program; such a program shifts certain of the weather related risks of negative sales impact for such seasonal products to later months of the season and, as result, could have a negative impact on future financial performance.

/bullet/ The Company has entered into various arrangements with third parties for the provision of back-office administrative services previously provided with internal resources, including provision of all necessary computer systems. Failure of any of these third party service providers to perform in accordance with their respective agreements with the Company could result in disruptions of the Company's normal business operations with a consequent impact on sales, collections, cash flow and/or profitability.

/bullet/ The Company's profitability may be negatively impacted by underabsorption of manufacturing costs resulting from underutilization of manufacturing capacity if the Company's sales growth is less than anticipated.

ITEM 7. MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATION

YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 28, 1997 COMPARED TO THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 29, 1996

In November 1996, the Company initiated a major restructuring and growth plan designed to substantially reduce its cost structure and grow the business in order to restore higher levels of profitability for the Company. By July 1997, the Company completed the major phases of the restructuring plan. The $225.0 million of annualized cost savings anticipated from the restructuring results primarily from the consolidation of administrative functions within the Company, the rationalization of manufacturing and warehouse facilities (including a reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and warehouses from 61 to 18), the elimination of over 6,000 positions (including 3,300 from the divestiture of non-core businesses described below and approximately 2,800 other positions), the centralization of the Company's procurement function and re-negotiation of supply contracts resulting in procurement savings for raw materials, components and sourced finished products and the reduction of the Company's product offerings and stock keeping units ("SKU's"). The restructuring and growth plan also included a redefinition of the Company's core product categories and the elimination of those businesses and product lines that did not fit the core categories. Sunbeam's core product categories are Appliances, Health at Home, Personal Care and Comfort, Outdoor Cooking and Away From Home. Product categories and businesses determined to be non-core were divested in 1997, including the Company's furniture business and its time and temperature, decorative bedding and Counselor/registered trademark/ and Borg/registered trademark/ scale product lines. In addition, the Company sold its textile mill in Biddeford, Maine in 1997.

Net sales from continuing operations for 1997 were $1,168.2 million, an increase of $183.9 million or 18.7% over 1996. Net sales on a normalized basis, after excluding divested product lines which are not classified as discontinued operations (time and temperature products, decorative bedding and Counselor/registered trademark/ and Borg/registered trademark/ branded scales), increased 22.4% during the year.

Global sales, on a normalized basis, increased during 1997 in all five of the Company's product categories primarily from new product introductions, improved distribution (particularly with the Company's top ten customers), international geographic expansion and improved price realization for certain products. Global sales growth on a normalized basis exceeded 25% in the Appliance, Outdoor Cooking and Away From Home categories with sales increases of 26.8%, 27.2% and 28.6%, respectively. Sales in the Health at Home category increased 10.7% on a normalized basis and sales in the Personal Care and Comfort category increased 3.4% during 1997.

The Company's Appliance category sales increases were driven by new products, such as re-designed blenders and mixers, coffeemakers, irons, deep fryers and toasters, and by increased distribution with large national mass retailers. Sales of Outdoor Cooking products increased in 1997 after three straight years of declines as a result of increased merchandising and advertising programs, new distribution and the introduction of an entirely new line of grills and accessories for the 1998 season that began to ship in the fourth quarter of 1997 under a new "early buy" marketing program that included among other things, extended credit terms with due dates in the second quarter of 1998. The Company sold approximately $50.0 million of Outdoor Cooking Products under this program in the fourth quarter of 1997. The early buy program for Outdoor Cooking products is designed to improve customer service levels and production efficiencies with more level seasonal production and distribution activities that have historically peaked in the first half of each year and to drive additional retail sell-through of Outdoor Cooking products by reducing the likelihood of retail stock-outs during the important first and second quarter 1998 selling season.

Sales of Personal Care and Comfort products were up over 30% through September 1997, but suffered during the fourth quarter as a result of lower than expected retail sell through of electric blankets in key northern markets in late 1997 coupled with the inability to service demand for king and queen sized blankets due to shortages of blanket shells. The Company anticipates shifting to a more

Sunbeam Warns 1st-Qtr Sales May Be Below Estimates (Update5)

(Updates stock prices in 3rd and 5th paragraphs, adds comment from marketing consultant in 14th, 15th paragraphs.)

Delray Beach, Florida, March 19 (Bloomberg) -- Sunbeam Corp. warned first-quarter sales may be less than expected because retailers ordered fewer appliances and other products, sending the company's shares down 9.4 percent.

The maker of Sunbeam toasters and Oster blenders said sales may be less than analyst forecasts of $285 million to $295 million, but higher than the year-ago's $253.4 million. The company didn't discuss the effect of lower sales on earnings.

Sunbeam said the shortfall, if any, will be because some major retail customers are keeping inventory low to cut warehouse and distribution costs. The shortfall would mark the second consecutive quarter that Chairman Al Dunlap, known more for cutting costs than boosting sales, was caught by surprise.

''Everyone is suspicious because the company was also short last quarter and that these guys aren't effective managers of a growing concern,'' said Joe Kinnison, an analyst with American Express Financial, who said he's using the opportunity to buy more Sunbeam stock.

The shares of the Delray Beach, Florida-based company fell 4 11/16 to 45 3/8 in trading of 5.5 million. Earlier, the stock hit 45 1/4. It was the 20th most active stock in U.S. markets.

Annual Sales

The company said that sales of its products remain strong and that it is ''highly confident about the overall sales outlook'' for its products this year.

The company didn't provide additional details, and officials weren't immediately available to comment.

Sunbeam is expected to earn 32 cents a share in the first quarter, according to the average estimate of five analysts surveyed by IBES International Inc.

''The overall retail environment has been weak,'' which likely led to retailers cutting orders, said David Leibowitz, an analyst with Burnham Securities Inc., which doesn't disclose its rating on the stock. Customers ''are interested in three things: sale, markdown and closeout.''

Justin Maurer, an analyst with McDonald & Co. who rates the stock as ''aggressive buy,'' said any shortfall may be slight and that the company raised the possibility because of disclosure issues from a planned offering of convertible bonds as it finances three acquisitions.

''They are erring on the side of conservatism,'' he said. ''They would not have made this statement otherwise.''

Money manager Kinnison said he also expects the shortfall to be small and that he's not concerned because Dunlap has senior managers who have shown they are experienced at boosting sales.

Earlier Surprise

It's not the first time the company has been surprised by developments at its major retailers.

In the fourth quarter, Sunbeam sales were less than expected because of weak sales of electric blankets. The company couldn't produce enough of its hottest-selling king-size and queen-size electric blankets, while sales of other blankets fell short of forecasts because of unseasonably warm weather.

Retailers have delayed orders of seasonal items like Sunbeam's blankets and electric and gas grills because sales are so hard to predict, said C. Britt Beemer, an Orlando, Florida-based marketing consultant.

''Sunbeam sells product categories that are extremely seasonal in nature,'' making it especially vulnerable to retailers' efforts to keep inventories low, he said.

Sunbeam didn't identify retailers cutting orders. Its largest customer, Wal-Mart Stores Inc., accounted for 21 percent of sales last year.

Earlier this month, Sunbeam agreed to buy Coleman Co. and the makers of Mr. Coffee machines and First Alert smoke alarms for a total of $2.6 billion, as Dunlap tries to duplicate his strategy of cutting costs at poorly performing companies with well-known brands.

Dunlap cut 6,000 jobs, has shuttered more than three dozen plants and made the home-appliances maker consistently profitable since taking over in July 1996.

Sunbeam Shares Drop on Expected Shortfall in Sales

By Greg Jaffe
Staff Reporter of The Wall Street Journal

Sunbeam Corp. shares dropped 9.4% after the maker of small appliances said sales for the first quarter might fall below analysts' expectations.

News of the expected sales shortfall marks the second recent stumble for the Delray Beach, Fla., company and its chief executive, Albert J. Dunlap, known for his harsh turnaround tactics. Just three months ago, Sunbeam's stock fell after the company reported fourth-quarter earnings that trailed estimates.

Analysts had expected sales of $285 million to $295 million for the current quarter, compared with $253 million in the year-earlier quarter.

The company did say that its sales remain strong and will exceed the year- earlier first-quarter revenue.

While Sunbeam's announcement didn't discuss the company's earnings outlook, analysts said the sales disappointment is bound to affect profit. Sunbeam officials didn't return calls seeking comment.

"The company has made promises that they haven't delivered on, and that is certainly being factored into the stock today," said R. Scott Graham, an analyst for CIBC Oppenheimer in New York.

Shares of Sunbeam fell $4.6875 to $45.375 in composite trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

In a release yesterday, Sunbeam blamed the possible shortfall on retailers that have been reining in inventories in recent weeks.

On Jan. 28, Sunbeam's shares fell 9.5% on news of disappointing quarterly earnings, an announcement that knocked investor confidence in Mr. Dunlap, a turnaround artist known for his slash-and-burn corporate restructurings.

Those doubts quickly faded as Sunbeam's stock rebounded in the following weeks, but with yesterday's warning about sales, analysts are again wondering how significant the announcement is for Sunbeam. "Things are good [at Sunbeam], but not where we thought they would be," Mr. Graham said.

Those analysts who see the shortfall as a mere blip say that company plans to roll out two new products -- an air filter and a water filter -- in the second quarter.

Moreover, Sunbeam's recent proposed acquisitions of Coleman Co. as well as of the makers of First Alert smoke alarms and Mr. Coffee machines for $1.8 billion plus the assumption of $700 million in debt provide Mr. Dunlap with the opportunity to continue to do what he does best: cut the dead wood out of manufacturers with established but underperforming brand names.

"For me the focus is on 1999 and the cost savings to be achieved from the companies Sunbeam has acquired," said Justin Maurer, an analyst with McDonald & Co. Investments in Cleveland.

KEY POINTS

1. Busy Friday: April 3 was a busy day at Sunbeam with our downgrade, earnings warnings, key firings, departures and promotions all culminating in a nearly 25% drop in the stock price.
2. Earnings Warning: Key event of the day. Sales expected to be down 5% versus Q197. No specific earnings guidance given except that the company will report a loss after over $0.40 cents of one-time charges. This doesn't say much since Street consensus for the quarter prior to the announcement was $0.31 (excluding one-time charges). We are lowering our Q198 estimate $0.06 to $0.25, which compares to $0.24 in the year-ago period.
3. Core Business in Trouble: The weakness in Q1 confirms our worst fears about the slowdown in Sunbeam's core business. We still believe the company will derive accretion from its three recent acquisitions, but this accretion will come off a lower base from its core business.
4. Key Departures: The "fall guy" for the Q1 shortfall was Don Uzzi, Sunbeam's #3 executive with the official title of EVP of Worldwide Consumer Products. Uzzi was the guy "minding the ship" while Sunbeam's #1 and #2 Al Dunlap and Russ Kersh were out in search of shareholder value enhancing acquisitions. Also, Rich Goudis, VP of Investor Relations and Corporate Planning, a well respected Sunbeam representative with a good rapport with the Street resigned to become VP of Finance at Rexall Sundown.

5. Reducing Estimates: We are taking our estimates for the growth in Sunbeam's core business down from roughly 20% to 10% in 1998 and 1999 and as a result we are reducing our 1998 EPS estimate to $1.55-1.60 from $1.90 and our 1999 estimate to $2.20-$2.25 from $2.75.

6. Maintain Neutral: Believe Sunbeam is fairly valued at 15-16x our new 1999 EPS estimate as management will now need some time to restore credibility with the core business weakening.

RECAP OF FRIDAY'S EVENTS

Friday, April 3, was a very busy day at Sunbeam. We downgraded the stock to a 3 (neutral) from a 1 (buy) prior to the market's open as we wished to take a more cautious stance after learning of the departure of two key and well-respected Sunbeam representatives, Don Uzzi EVP of Worldwide Consumer Products and Rich Goudis, VP of Investor Relations and Corporate Planning. In addition, we have learned of grill production problems, the closing of the grill plant for a week and an overshipment of grills to Wal-Mart estimated at $30-40 million. This was just the beginning of a very hectic day for Sunbeam investors, which featured six press releases, a conference call and a 11 3/16 point drop in Sunbeam shares to a closing price of $34 3/8. The main event of the day was the company's 11:00am press release warning that first quarter sales and earnings would be below expectations.

EARNINGS WARNING

The timing of Sunbeam's Q198 earnings warning could not have been much worse. Just two weeks earlier (March 19), Sunbeam issued a press release indicating that sales would fall short of Street expectations ($285-295mm) but would still be above Q197 ($253mm). No mention was made of earnings. Sunbeam's "spin" following this release was that they would never have issued the warning if not for the pending completion of its convertible bond deal and such a release was suggested by their lawyers since orders for $285 million had not yet been booked. In the days following the release, some hope still remained that Sunbeam might make up the sales shortfall before the quarter closed as grills are often shipped three days after orders are received and re-orders historically have been back-end loaded in March. Friday's release dispelled those hopes and then some as sales will not only be below plan, but below last year's first quarter sales. Sales are now expected to be 5% below last year's level as a result of suspected "managing down" of inventories by retailers and anticipated grill re-orders in late March that never materialized. Again, no guidance for EPS excluding one-time charges was given. The company did report that the first quarter will include over $0.40 of one-time charges related to compensation expenses, debt retirement charges and acquisition costs. We are reducing our Q1 EPS estimate $0.06 to $0.25, assuming $240 million of sales and a 15% operating margin for the quarter. The company earned $0.24 in Q197 with $253 million of sales and a 13.7% operating margin.

DOWN QUARTER EVEN WITH AN EASY COMPARISON

The first quarter sales weakness is even more disturbing because it compares against a first quarter of 1997 that Sunbeam management a year-ago described as full of glitches. Sunbeam's Q197 was plagued by computer problems, which management estimated cost them $10-15 million in lost sales, and a self-described "weak grill line-up," with an inefficient grill manufacturing facility and less than favorable contracts with retailers, all the work of the pre-Dunlap management team. With the computer problems since resolved, a brand new grill line-up and a restructured grill facility, many believed Sunbeam's Q198 would be a "slam-dunk." In fact, after the company released its Q497 results we believed its Q198 guidance was rather cautious. It now appears that building skepticism that Sunbeam was employing aggressive sales tactics in late 1997, which would rob 1998 of precious sales growth was on the mark. We now believe that with Sunbeam's core business down in the face of easy comparisons, this problem will not quickly resolve itself as comparisons will only get more difficult throughout 1998. Core business weakness will likely be masked on the top-line by the three recently acquired businesses beginning in Q298, but the bottom line will likely suffer as we expect the acquired businesses will be dilutive to the overall margin structure until the restructuring of these businesses is completed in early 1999.

CORE BUSINESS IS IN TROUBLE

We are cutting our sales growth estimates for the core Sunbeam business (excluding the acquisitions) to 10% per year from around 20% due to the announced sales shortfall. While, on the surface, this may appear to be a drastic reduction, we were always a little wary of our previous rate of growth but hoped any shortfall would be made up for on the bottom line by better than expected cost savings from the integration of the acquired businesses. While we still believe Sunbeam may realize more than the $150 million of cost savings they have identified in integrating the acquired businesses, our core sales growth skepticism has been amplified by the magnitude of the first quarter's weakness. In fact, with Sunbeam's easiest quarter from a comparison standpoint (Q198) now expected to be down, we believe 10% sales growth for Sunbeam in 1998 may be generous since going forward they will be going up against 13% sales growth in Q297, 25% growth in Q397 and 26% growth in Q497. We are sticking with the $150 million of cost savings from the acquisitions and believe any upside will provide a cushion if our 10% core Sunbeam sales growth proves to be too generous.

KEY FIRING, RESIGNATION AND PROMOTIONS

Detailed below is a quick summary of executive changes at Sunbeam announced on Friday and a brief comment on the changes.

Executive	Action Taken	Comment
Don Uzzi	Terminated (was EVP Consumer Products)	Part of "decisive action" taken by management in response to the Q1 shortfall. Hired in January 1997, Uzzi had an extensive consumer packaged goods background from Quaker Oats, Pepsi and Procter & Gamble. Uzzi was one of Sunbeam's four executive officers, often referred to as the key "operations" manager, who brought a consumer packaged goods mentality to the consumer durables arena.

Rich Goudis	Resigned position as VP Investor Relations and Corporate Planning.	Well respected by the Street with a role beyond IR. Left to take a VP Finance position at Rexall Sundown. Departure leaves a communication gap between Sunbeam and Street. IR related calls temporarily being directed to Russ Kersh.
Russ Kersch	Current CFO and Vice Chairman assumes additional role of interim Head of Outdoor Leisure.	As if he wasn't already busy enough, Dunlap's long time #2 man will head to Wichita temporarily to run/restructure Coleman while the search for a full time Head if Outdoor Leisure continues.
Lee Griffin	VP if Sales promoted to President of Household Products (replaces Uzzi.)	President & CEO of Scott Paper Limited (Canada) while Dunlap was at Scott. Over 30 years of experience in the consumer products industry.
Franz Schmid	President of Sunbeam Latin America promoted to VP Sunbeam Intl.	Replaced Dixon Thayer, who was with Dunlap at Scott. Thayer's Departure was made public in Dec. Scmid is a 15 year employee of Sunbeam.
Janet Kelly	Associate Gen. Counsel promoted to VP and General Counsel.	Associate General Counsel since 1995. Former Gen. Counsel, David Fannin continues as EVP and Chief Legal Counsel.

Overall, the above chart clearly indicates that there are a lot of changes going on at Sunbeam at a time when credibility with the Street is being called to question. Results will speak louder than words for Sunbeam in the coming quarters and key company executives have their work cut out for them.

REDUCING ESTIMATES

The reduction in our earnings estimates stem primarily from our slowing of Sunbeam's core sales growth to 10% a year from 20% per year in 1998 and 1999. Our rationale for this reduction is detailed in point

4 above. Given the anticipated core slowdown, we have also shaved a point off of our EBITA margin assumption for the combined businesses (Sunbeam, Coleman, Signature, First Alert) in both 1998 and 1999 to 15-15.5% in 1998 and 17-17.5% in 1999. We are using EBITA since we still need further guidance on how much amortization Sunbeam will take on as a result of its acquisitions. Our preliminary 1998 and 1999 EPS estimates are now $1.55-1.60 and $2.20-2.25, respectively. We should note that these are preliminary numbers, as we have received no further guidance from the company and we still need clarification of goodwill treatment resulting from purchase accounting and pro-forma interest expense resulting from the company's new $2 billion credit facility (also announced 4/3/98) and other acquisition related balance sheet changes. While we have slowed Sunbeam's core growth rate, any slowdown will not be glaringly evident after the first quarter as Sunbeam's acquisitions will begin to be reflected in operations in the second quarter. Thus, sales growth well over 100% should be reported in the coming quarters, meaning it will be crucial to separate core growth from reported growth to get a feel for the overall health of the Sunbeam business.

MAINTAIN NEUTRAL

At present, we do not believe Sunbeam's 11+ point drop on Friday signals a major buying opportunity. More important than the adjustments to earnings that are likely to come over the next few days is the valuation adjustment that we expect Sunbeam shares will continue to experience. Friday's announcement dispels previous perceptions (perceptions we once shared) that Al Dunlap is above the weather related problems, retailer inventory adjustments and long replacement cycles that plague the inherently difficult to predict consumer durables industry. We believe it will take a couple of quarters for Sunbeam management to work through inventory levels at retail that may be a little heavy due to aggressive sales tactics employed in the second half of 1997 while they continue to "get their hands around" the acquired businesses. Once the company gets through this transition period perhaps it can head on a more sustainable, less aggressive growth path, which may be bolstered along the way with some new acquisitions. With the sustainability of "Dunlapesque" turnarounds now being questioned more than ever, we believe a lower multiple will be placed on restructuring/acquisition related earnings power. The market multiple we and others were once looking to place on Sunbeam earnings now appears to be too generous. Prior to the recent acquisitions, following the release of the company's fourth quarter results (which underwhelmed many investors), questions regarding Sunbeam's growth potential were building and at $37, Sunbeam traded at around 15 times our then 1999 EPS estimate of $2.50. With questions now back and more skeptics than ever, we believe Sunbeam may settle at around this 15-16x multiple for a while. Even if we have been too harsh in slashing our 1999 numbers, a 15 multiple on $2.50 would still only take the stock to $37, not very compelling upside for "bottom-feeders." Accordingly, we reiterate our neutral 3) rating. For some multiple perspective regarding consumer durables companies, please refer to the table below.

Date: February 25, 1998

Subject: Proposed sale of The Coleman Company, Inc. to Sunbeam Corporation

The purpose of this memorandum is to apprise the Committee of our work in connection with the proposed two-step sale of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Credit Suisse First Boston has been asked to provide a fairness opinion to Coleman's Board of Directors as early as February 25, 1998, in connection with the proposed sale to Sunbeam.

1. Description of the Transaction

Credit Suisse First Boston is acting as financial advisor to Coleman in connection with its proposed sale to Sunbeam (the "Transaction"). Coleman, listed on the New York Stock Exchange, is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the outdoor recreation and hardware markets. Approximately 82% (44,067,520) of the outstanding Coleman common shares are held through an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary ("Holdco") of Mafco Holdings Inc. ("Mafco") which is controlled by Ronald O. Perelman.

Sunbeam and Coleman propose to enter into an agreement whereby, at closing, Sunbeam will (a) in exchange for Sunbeam stock and cash purchase Holdco which has as its primary asset its shares of Coleman and as its primary liability $525 million of zero-coupon debt against which its shares of Coleman are pledged, and (b) offer the public shareholders Sunbeam stock and cash in a second-step merger. The proposed transaction is expected to be taxable to the public shareholders of Coleman and tax-free to Holdco.

Summary of Transaction Consideration

SHAREHOLDER	SHARES EXCHANGED	CONSIDERATION
Mafco	44.1 million	• Assumption of $525 million of zero coupon debt for 19.2 million CLN shares
		• $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 SOC shares for each of 24.8 million CLN shares
Public	9.4 million	• $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 SOC shares for each of 9.4 million CLN shares

2. Question to the Committee

Is the consideration of $6.44 in cash plus 0.5677 Sunbeam common shares fair to Coleman shareholders from a financial point of view?

3. Summary Conclusions and Recommendations to the Committee

Based on the analysis of the value of Coleman common shares and the value of the securities to be issued by Sunbeam pursuant to the transaction, the consideration is fair to Coleman shareholders (other than Holdco) from a financial point of view.

I. At a current Sunbeam trading price of $40.63 (2/24/98), the implied consideration of $29.50 (value of $6.44 cash and 0.5677 Sunbeam shares) is (i) above Coleman's valuation range of $21.31-$28.35 per share; (ii) at a 42.6% premium to Coleman's current trading price and 52-week high of $20.69 (2/24/98); and (iii) at a 136.0% premium to Coleman's 52-week low of $12.50 (1/27/98).

II. The transaction on a pro forma basis is 5.3% accretive to Sunbeam in 1998 and 6.2% in 1999 assuming pre-tax synergies of $100 million in 1998 and $100 million in 1999.

III. The Sunbeam offer is supported by the respective contributions of Sunbeam and Coleman as shown in section 9 of the memorandum.

4. Transaction Summary

The per share consideration being offered by Sunbeam represents the following premiums and multiples.

In arriving at the above values for Coleman, we have considered discounted cash flows, comparable companies and comparable acquisitions analyses.

a. Discounted Cash Flows Analysis

Our discounted cash flows analysis is based on management projections for 1998 to 2001 and estimates developed in conjunction with Coleman management for 2002 and beyond (the "Coleman Base Case"). We have used a discount rate range of 10.0% - 11.0% based on Coleman's WACC and terminal EBITDA multiples of 9.5x-10.5x applied to 2007E EBITDA.

b. Comparable Companies Analysis

We have considered the trading multiples of comparable companies in the consumer products industry. The appropriate universe of comparables for Coleman were determined based on a variety of comparability parameters including product mix, customer base, distribution channels and financial and equity market parameters. Coleman trades at a discount to many of its peers due to its sensitivity to weather conditions. Our reference range of $1,150 million - $1,600 million represents 7.0x - 9.8x 1998E Coleman Base Case EBITDA.

The comparable acquisitions analysis examined acquisition activity in the consumer products industry. Our comparable acquisition reference range of $1,600 million - $2,000 million represents 9.8x - 12.2x 1998E Coleman Base Case EBITDA. We have relied on 1998 EBITDA because it represents a more normalized level of profitability based on the restructuring that the Company undertook in 1997 to eliminate costs. This value range is within the multiple range for comparable acquisitions.

Synergies

Coleman management has estimated that the combination with Sunbeam could create up to $150 million of cost savings and revenue synergies. Revenue synergies (approximately 25% of the total) would be created primarily by using the Coleman distribution network to sell Sunbeam products and through savings on licensing. Cost synergies (approximately 75% of the total) would occur through the elimination of the corporate staff, consolidated sales forces, consolidated headquarters, and consolidated sourcing and logistics.

Sunbeam management expects to estimate $100 million of cost savings in their public announcement of the deal. The pro forma analysis assumes $100 million of annual cost savings including 1998 which is presented on a pro forma basis.

SUNBEAM ACQUIRES THREE PUBLICLY TRADED CONSUMER PRODUCTS COMPANIES: COLEMAN, SIGNATURE BRANDS AND FIRST ALERT

Al Dunlap Signs New Three Year Contract**

Delray Beach, FL, March 2, 1998 – Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE: SOC) initiated an aggressive expansion strategy today with the announcement of the acquisitions of three separate market leading durable consumer product companies. These transactions will enhance shareholder value by nearly tripling the Company's annual revenues, expanding its geographic presence, complementing its existing product lines and leveraging operational synergies. The three transactions will total approximately $2.5 billion and will be meaningfully accretive to Sunbeam's earnings within twelve months. The transactions are subject to regulatory approvals and other customary conditions and are expected to close within the next two months.

The Coleman Company, Inc. (NYSE: CLN), with 1997 revenues of $1.1 billion is the global leader in outdoor recreation and hardware products with powerful brands such as Coleman®, Powermate®, Camping Gaz® and Eastpak®. The Company, based in Wichita, KS, operates 17 manufacturing facilities and employs approximately 6,000 people around the world. The transaction is valued at approximately $2.0 billion, consisting of approximately $815 million in Sunbeam stock and the balance in debt financing. Shareholders of The Coleman Company, Inc. will receive $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 shares of Sunbeam stock for each share of Coleman stock.

Signature Brands USA, Inc. (NASDAQ: SIGB), with 1997 revenues of $279 million, is the North American leader in coffee makers marketed under the Mr. Coffee® brand name and is a leader in consumer health products marketed under the Health o meter® brand. The Company, based in Glenwillow, OH, operates two manufacturing facilities and employs approximately 1,000 people. The transaction is valued at approximately $250 million consisting of a cash tender offer of $8.25 per SIGB share and the assumption of existing debt.

represent the next phase of our plan to create value for Sunbeam's shareholders. We looked at various alternatives to increase shareholder value. Ultimately we decided there is phenomenal value to be created in assuming the leadership role in consolidating the industries in which we compete. These acquisitions enable us to accelerate our growth rate by expanding our geographic presence, entering new product lines and leveraging the strength of dominant brand names such as Coleman®, Camping Gaz®, Eastpak®, First Alert®, Mr. Coffee®, and Health o meter®, along with Sunbeam®, Oster® and Grillmaster®."

Mr. Dunlap added, "Our strategy is to become the global leader in the durable consumer products industry through continued internal growth augmented by further strategic acquisitions of high quality consumer brands. Our proven track record coupled with our financial strength will enable us to successfully execute this strategy."

The Company anticipates initial synergies of approximately $150 million which will result in a substantial EPS accretion in 1999. A one time charge is expected in 1998 in order to restructure and consolidate these three companies into Sunbeam.

Additionally, the Company announced that Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Albert J. Dunlap, along with Executive Vice Presidents Russell A. Kersh and David C. Fannin have all renewed their commitment to the Company by signing new three year employment contracts. Mr. Kersh was named to the new position of vice chairman of Sunbeam. Mr. Dunlap stated, "I am eager to continue to create tremendous value for our shareholders by building the leading durable consumer products company in the world. This new employment agreement will put to rest any rumors that I would leave the Company."

"This is a fantastic situation for all Sunbeam shareholders giving them the opportunity to participate in the wealth that Al Dunlap and his team are building," said Ronald O. Perelman, who will become Sunbeam's second largest shareholder after the transaction. "Coleman will thrive as part of Sunbeam's unbeatable family of brands," added Mr. Perelman.

Michael Price, president and chief executive officer of Franklin Mutual Series Fund, Sunbeam's largest shareholder, praised the transactions and new contracts. "With the simultaneous acquisitions of these three publicly traded companies, Sunbeam is launching into a bold new phase as the consolidator in its industries," Mr. Price said. "Utilizing Al's unique ability to restructure and reposition companies, the opportunities for operating synergies and incremental sales growth is substantial. Al's renewed commitment indicates to me that the best is yet to come for Sunbeam and its shareholders," Mr. Price added.

Following the LYONs Retirement, the Issuer expects to be merged with and into Coleman Worldwide (the "Coleman Worldwide Merger"), and Coleman Worldwide, as successor to the Issuer, will continue to own the 16,394,810 shares (representing approximately 30.7% of shares outstanding) of Coleman Common Stock currently pledged to secure the LYONs, the 26,000,000 shares of Coleman Common Stock currently pledged to secure the Coleman Holdings Notes and the 1,672,710 shares (representing approximately 3.2% of shares outstanding) of Coleman Common Stock not currently pledged, of which 522,710 shares are currently available to be pledged to secure the Notes, less any shares of Coleman Common Stock delivered upon exchange of the LYONs (the "Delivered Shares").

Concurrently with the closing of the Offering, the Issuer will deposit the net proceeds of the Offering (the "Escrowed Funds") with an escrow agent (the "Escrow Agent"), and the Escrowed Funds will be temporarily invested in Treasury Securities and other Permitted Investments (as such terms are defined herein). The Escrowed Funds will be used by the Issuer to make capital contributions from time to time to Coleman Holdings and Coleman Worldwide (the "Capital Contributions"), which Capital Contributions will be used to fund the Coleman Holdings Notes Redemption and the LYONs Retirement.

The Notes will be redeemable at the option of the Issuer, in whole or in part, at any time on and after May 15, 2000 at the redemption prices set forth herein on the date of redemption. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Issuer will have the option to redeem the Notes at any time in whole at a redemption price equal to the Accreted Value (as defined herein) on the date of redemption plus the Applicable Premium (as defined herein). Upon a Change of Control (as defined herein), subject to certain conditions, each holder of the Notes will have the right to require the Issuer to repurchase all or a portion of such holder's Notes at a price equal to the Put Amount (as defined herein) on the date of repurchase.

The Notes will be senior secured obligations of the Issuer and will rank pari passu in right of payment with all future senior indebtedness of the Issuer, if any, and senior to all future subordinated indebtedness of the Issuer, if any. The Notes will be (i) upon consummation of the Offering and prior to the Coleman Holdings Merger, secured by a pledge of all of the shares of capital stock of Coleman Holdings, (ii) upon consummation of the Offering, guaranteed on a non-recourse basis by Coleman Worldwide (the "Coleman Worldwide Non-Recourse Guaranty"), which Coleman Worldwide Non-Recourse Guaranty will initially be secured by a pledge of 522,710 shares of Coleman Common Stock that are currently available to be pledged and, simultaneously with the Coleman Holdings Notes Redemption, also secured by a pledge of the 26,000,000 shares of Coleman Common Stock currently pledged to secure the Coleman Holdings Notes, and (iii) simultaneously with the Coleman Holdings Notes Redemption, secured by a pledge of all of the shares of capital stock of Coleman Worldwide. In addition, simultaneously with any release of Escrowed Funds from time to time in connection with the LYONs Retirement, the Coleman Worldwide Non-Recourse Guaranty will also be secured by the shares of Coleman Common Stock for which such exchanged LYONs are exchangeable that are released from the pledge to secure any exchanged LYONs. Upon consummation of the Coleman Holdings Notes Redemption and the LYONs Retirement, the Notes will be secured by a pledge of 44,067,520 shares of Coleman Common Stock, less any Delivered Shares. The First Priority Notes will rank senior in right of payment to the Second Priority Notes with respect to any collateral securing the Notes and the Coleman Worldwide Non-Recourse Guaranty. See "Risk Factors—Control by Holders of First Priority Notes." On May 15, 1997, the last reported sale price of the Coleman Common Stock on the New York Stock Exchange (the "NYSE") was $16¾ per share.

Upon consummation of the Offering, the only outstanding indebtedness of the Issuer will be the Notes, and all of the Issuer's consolidated liabilities (other than the Notes and certain liabilities incurred in connection with the Offering) will be liabilities of its subsidiaries. The Issuer is a holding company and therefore the Notes will be effectively subordinated to all existing and future indebtedness and other liabilities of the Issuer's subsidiaries. The Indenture will generally prohibit the incurrence of additional debt by the Issuer and will limit the incurrence of additional debt and the issuance of preferred stock by the Issuer's subsidiaries. As of March 31, 1997, after giving pro forma effect to the Offering, the Capital Contributions, the Coleman Holdings Notes Redemption and the LYONs Retirement, the outstanding indebtedness and other liabilities of such subsidiaries would have been approximately $970.9 million. Prior to the Coleman Holdings Notes Redemption and the LYONs Retirement, the Notes will also be effectively subordinated to the Coleman Holdings Notes and the LYONs, respectively. See "Description of the Notes."

For a discussion of certain federal income tax consequences to holders of Notes, see "Certain U.S. Federal Income Tax Considerations." It is expected that the Notes will be eligible for trading in the Private Offerings, Resales and Trading through Automated Linkages (PORTAL) market.

CLN Holdings, Inc.
and
Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated
1585 Broadway
New York, NY 10036

Dear Sirs:

We have audited the consolidated balance sheets of CLN Holdings, Inc. and subsidiaries (the Company) as of December 31, 1997 and 1996, and the consolidated statements of operations, stockholder's deficit, and cash flows for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 1997, included in the Offering Memorandum for $2,014,000,000 of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the Debentures) to be issued by Sunbeam Corporation. Our report with respect thereto is included in the Offering Memorandum dated March 19, 1998 (the Offering Memorandum).

This letter is being furnished in reliance upon your representation to us that:

a. You are knowledgeable with respect to the due diligence review process that would be performed if this placement of securities were being registered pursuant to the Securities Act of 1933 (the Act).

b. In connection with the Offering Memorandum, the review process you have performed is substantially consistent with the due diligence review process that you would have performed if this placement of securities were being registered pursuant to the Act.

In connection with the Offering Memorandum:

1. We are independent auditors with respect to the Company under Rule 101 of the AICPA's Code of Professional Conduct, and its interpretations and rulings.

2. In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements audited by us and included in the Offering Memorandum comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of the Act and the related published rules and regulations thereunder.

3. We have not audited any financial statements of the Company as of any date or for any period subsequent to December 31, 1997. The purpose (and therefore the scope) of our audits was to enable us to express our opinion on the consolidated financial statements as of December 31, 1997 and 1996, and for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 1997, but not on the financial statements for any interim period within these years. Therefore, we are unable to and do not express any opinion on the financial position, results of operations, or cash flows as of any other date or for any period subsequent to December 31, 1997.

4. For purposes of this letter we have obtained a summary of topics discussed during the 1998 meetings of the Board of Directors of the Company, for which minutes have not been approved.

5. The Company's officials have advised us that no financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to December 31, 1997 are available; accordingly, the procedures carried out by us with respect to changes in financial statement items after December 31, 1997 have, of necessity, been even more limited than those with respect to the periods referred to in 3. above. We have inquired of Company officials who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters as to whether: (i) at March 18, 1998 there was any increase in long-term debt or any decrease in net current assets of the Company as compared with the amounts shown on the December 31, 1997, audited balance sheet included in the Offering Memorandum, or (ii) for the period from January 1, 1998, to March 18, 1998, there was any decrease, as compared with the corresponding period in the preceding year, in total operating revenues, income from operations or increase in net loss. On the basis of these inquiries and our summary of the minutes as described in 3. above, nothing came to our attention that caused us to believe that there was any such increase or decrease, except for approximately $60 million additional long term borrowing under the revolving credit facility and in all other instances for increases or decreases which the Offering Memorandum discloses have occurred or may occur.

6. At your request, we have read the items identified by you on the attached copies of certain pages of the Offering Memorandum, and have performed the following procedures, which were applied as indicated with respect to the symbols explained below:

   A Compared the dollar amounts to the amounts in the audited consolidated financial statements described in the introductory paragraph of this letter to the extent such amounts are included in or can be derived from such statements and found them to be in agreement.

   B Compared the dollar and other amounts not derived directly from the audited consolidated financial statements, or that could not be compared directly to the Company's accounting records, to amounts in analyses prepared by the Company from its accounting records and found them to be in agreement. In addition, proved the arithmetic accuracy of analyses prepared by the Company.

C Proved the arithmetic accuracy of the percentages or amounts based on the data in the above-mentioned financial statements, accounting records, and analyses.

7. Our audits of the consolidated financial statements for the periods referred to in the introductory paragraph of this letter were comprised of audit tests and procedures deemed necessary for the purpose of expressing an opinion on such financial statements taken as a whole. For neither the periods referred to therein nor any other period did we perform audit tests for the purpose of expressing an opinion on individual balances of accounts or summaries of selected transactions such as those enumerated above and, accordingly, we do not express an opinion thereon.

8. It should be understood that we make no representations as to questions of legal interpretation or as to the sufficiency for your purposes of the procedures enumerated in the preceding paragraph; also, such procedures would not necessarily reveal any material misstatement of the information identified in 6. above. Further, we have addressed ourselves solely to the foregoing data as set forth in the Offering Memorandum and make no representations as to the adequacy of disclosure or as to whether any material facts have been omitted.

9. This letter is solely for the information of the addressees and to assist the underwriters in conducting and documenting their investigation of the affairs of the Company in connection with the offering of securities covered by the Offering Memorandum, and it is not to be used, circulated, quoted, or otherwise referred to for any purpose, including but not limited to the purchase or sale of securities, nor is it to be filed with or referred to in whole or in part in the Offering Memorandum or any other document, except that reference may be made to it in the purchase agreement or in any list of closing documents pertaining to the offering of securities covered by the Offering Memorandum.

Very truly yours,

ITEM 3 Source and Amount of Funds or Other Consideration.

The response to Item 3 of the Schedule 13G is incorporated by reference.

ITEM 4 Purpose of Transaction.

The Coleman-Sunbeam Merger

On February 27, 1998, Parent Holdings and CLN Holdings Inc. ("CLN Holdings"), a Delaware corporation and direct wholly owned subsidiary of Parent Holdings, entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Merger Agreement") with Sunbeam and Laser Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Merger Sub"), providing for, among other things, upon satisfaction or waiver of the conditions thereto, the merger (the "Merger") of Merger Sub with CLN Holdings. The Merger and related transactions are described in the Amended Current Report on Form 8-K/A filed by CLN Holdings on March 4, 1998. On March 30, 1998 the Merger was consummated. Upon consummation of the Merger, among other things, all shares of common stock of CLN Holdings were converted into 14,099,749 Shares and cash. The Schedule 13G was filed because Mafco Holdings and Parent Holdings may be deemed to beneficially own the aforementioned 14,099,749 Shares by virtue of the consummation of the Merger.

Pursuant to the Merger Agreement, upon consummation of the Merger, options (the "Options") to purchase 500,000 shares of common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"), which Options were granted during 1997 to Mr. Perelman under certain of Coleman's stock option plans, became immediately exercisable. Pursuant to the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998, among Sunbeam, Camper Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Camper"), and Coleman, pursuant to which Coleman will merge (the "Coleman Merger") with Camper and become a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam, each share of the common stock of Coleman acquired pursuant to the exercise of such Options and outstanding as of the consummation of the Coleman Merger will be converted into the right to receive $6.44 in cash and .5677 Shares. Any Options unexercised as of the consummation of the Coleman Merger will be canceled, and, in settlement therefor, the holders of such Options will be paid cash in an amount equal to the product of (i) the total number of shares of common stock of Coleman subject to such Options and (ii) the excess of $27.50 over the exercise price per share of such common stock subject to such Options, less any applicable withholding taxes.

The Schedule 13G reported and this Schedule 13D reflects Mr. Perelman's ownership of the Options to acquire 283,850 Shares that were converted in the Coleman Merger from the Options to acquire 500,000 shares of common stock of Coleman. Pursuant to Rule 13d-4, Mafco Holdings and Parent Holdings expressly disclaim beneficial ownership of such 283,850 Shares and declare that the filing of the Schedule 13G and this Schedule 13D shall not be construed as an admission that either of them is, for purposes of Section 13(d) or 13(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, the beneficial owner of any of such Shares.

Dismissal of Sunbeam's Chief Executive Officer

On June 15, 1998, Sunbeam announced that its Board of Directors had removed Albert J. Dunlap from his position as Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. Item 1. BUSINESS

Overview

The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman" or the "Company") is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for outdoor recreation and home hardware use on a global basis. The Company's products have been sold domestically and internationally under the Coleman brand name since the 1920s. The Company believes its strong market position is attributable primarily to its well-recognized trademarks, particularly the Coleman brand name, broad product line, product quality and innovation, and marketing, distribution and manufacturing expertise.

The Company has two primary classes of products, outdoor recreation and hardware. The Company's principal outdoor recreation products include a comprehensive line of lanterns and stoves, fuel-related products such as disposable fuel cartridges, a broad range of coolers and jugs, sleeping bags, backpacks, daypacks, adventure travel gear, tents, outdoor folding furniture, portable electric lights, spas, camping accessories and other products. The Company's principal hardware products include portable generators, portable and stationary air compressors, and safety and security products such as smoke alarms, carbon monoxide detectors and thermostats. The Company has entered into a Stock Purchase Agreement dated as of February 18, 1998 (the "CSS Sale Agreement") with Ranco Incorporated of Delaware ("Ranco") and Siebe plc, the parent of Ranco, for the sale of Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc. ("CSS"), which manufactures such safety and security products. The Company's products, which are mostly used for outdoor recreation, home improvement projects, and emergency preparedness, are distributed predominantly through mass merchandisers, home centers and other retail outlets.

Background

Coleman is a subsidiary of Coleman Worldwide Corporation ("Coleman Worldwide"). Coleman Worldwide is an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of CLN Holdings Inc. Coleman Worldwide owns 44,067,520 shares of the common stock of Coleman which represented approximately 82% of the outstanding Coleman common stock as of December 31, 1997.

On February 27, 1998, CLN Holdings and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., the parent company of CLN Holdings, entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "CLN Holdings Merger Agreement") with Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") and a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Laser Merger Sub"). In addition, the outstanding $732.0 million principal amount at maturity of Senior Secured Discount Exchange Notes due 2001 (the "Escrow Notes") of CLN Holdings will remain an obligation of CLN Holdings following the CLN Holdings Merger.

Coincident with the execution of the CLN Holdings Merger Agreement, the Company, Sunbeam and a wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Merger Sub"), entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Coleman Merger Agreement" and with the CLN Holdings Merger Agreement, collectively the "Merger Agreements"), providing that, among other things, Merger Sub will be merged (the "Coleman Merger") with the Company. Section 2.4 Registration Procedures.

(a) Procedures. In connection with the registration of the Registrable Securities pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to effect the registration and sale of the Registrable Securities in accordance with Parent Holdings' intended method of disposition thereof and, in connection therewith, Laser shall:

(13) take other actions as Parent Holdings or the underwriters, if any, reasonably request in order to expedite or facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities.

(b) Further Agreements. Without limiting any of the foregoing, in the event that the sale of Registrable Securities is to be made by or through an underwriter, Laser shall enter into an underwriting agreement with a managing underwriter or underwriters selected by Parent Holdings containing representations, warranties, indemnities and agreements customarily included (but not inconsistent with the agreements contained herein) by an issuer of common stock in underwriting agreements with respect to offerings of common stock for the account of, or on behalf of, such issuers; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not utilize the Shelf Registration Statement for more than two (2) underwritten offerings during the term of this Agreement. In connection with the sale of Registrable Securities hereunder, Parent Holdings may, at its option, require that any and all representations and warranties by, and the other agreements of, Laser to or for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be made to or for the benefit of such an underwriter or underwriter if such sale of Registrable Securities were pursuant to a customary underwritten offering) be made to and for the benefit of Parent Holdings and that any or all of the conditions precedent to the obligations of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be so for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters under a customary underwriting agreement) be conditions precedent to the obligations of Parent Holdings in connection with the disposition of Parent Holdings' securities pursuant to the terms hereof. In connection with any offering of Registrable Securities registered pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall, upon receipt of duly endorsed certificates representing the Registrable Securities, (i) furnish to the underwriter, if any (or, if no underwriter, Parent Holdings), unlegended certificates representing ownership of Registrable Securities being sold, in such denominations as requested, and (ii) instruct any transfer agent and registrar of the Registrable Securities to release any stop transfer order with respect thereto.

Parent Holdings agrees that upon receipt of any notice from Laser of the happening of any event of the kind described in paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a), Parent Holdings shall forthwith discontinue its disposition of Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus relating thereto until Parent Holdings' receipt of the copies of the supplemented or amended prospectus contemplated by paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a) and, if so directed by Laser, deliver to Laser all copies, other than permanent file copies, then in Parent Holdings' possession of the prospectus current at the time of receipt of such notice relating to the Registrable Securities.

Section 2.5 Registration Expenses.

All expenses incidental to Laser's performance of, or compliance with, its obligations under this Agreement including, without limitation, all registration and filing fees, all fees and expenses of compliance with securities and "blue sky" laws (including, without limitation, the fees and expenses of counsel for underwriters or placement or sales agents in connection therewith), all printing and copying expenses, all messenger and delivery expenses, all fees and expenses of underwriters and sales and placement agents in connection therewith (excluding underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor), all fees and expenses of Laser's independent certified public accountants and counsel (including, without limitation, with respect to "comfort" letters and opinions) and other Persons retained by Laser in connection therewith (collectively, the "Registration Expenses"), shall be borne by Laser. Laser shall not be responsible for and shall not pay underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor and fees and expenses of legal counsel, accountants, agents or experts retained by Parent Holdings in connection with the sale of the Registrable Securities. Laser will pay its internal expenses (including, without limitation, all salaries and expenses of its officers and employees performing legal or accounting duties, the expense of any annual audit and the expense of any liability insurance) and the expenses and fees for listing the Registrable Securities on the New York Stock Exchange or, if the Laser Common Stock is then not so listed, included in an established over-the-counter market.

Section 2.6 Indemnification.

(a) By Laser. Laser agrees to indemnify Parent Holdings and Parent Holdings' directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person to the fullest extent lawful, against all losses, claims, damages, liabilities, judgments, and reasonable costs (including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses) (collectively, the "Losses") as incurred, caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, except insofar as the same are based upon any information furnished in writing to Laser by Parent Holdings or its underwriter or other agent expressly for use therein or by Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or its underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Laser's other obligations under this Agreement, Laser shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Parent Holdings.

(b) By Parent Holdings. In connection with the Shelf Registration Statement, Parent Holdings shall furnish to Laser in writing information regarding Parent Holdings' ownership of Registrable Securities and Parent Holdings' intended method of distribution thereof and shall indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (i) is caused by, arises out of, results from or relates to, or is alleged to be omitted from, such information so furnished in writing by Parent Holdings or (ii) arises out of or results from Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or Parent Holdings' underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Parent Holdings' other obligations under this Agreement, (i) Parent Holdings shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Laser and (ii) Parent Holdings shall cause each underwriter of an underwritten offering to indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such indemnified Person, on terms and subject to conditions customary for such indemnification by nationally known investment banking firms, against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (x) is caused by, arises out of or results from information furnished in writing by such underwriter specifically for inclusion in the Shelf Registration Statement or (y) arises out of or results from such underwriter's failure to delivery a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished such underwriter with the requested number of copies of the same.

(c) Notice. Any Person entitled to indemnification hereunder shall give prompt written notice to the indemnifying party of any claim with respect to which it seeks indemnification; provided, however, the failure to give such notice shall not release the indemnifying party from its obligation, except to the extent that the indemnifying party has been prejudiced by such failure to provide such notice.

(d) Defense of Actions. In any case in which any such action is brought against any indemnified party, and it notifies an indemnifying party of the commencement thereof, the indemnifying party shall be entitled to participate therein, and, to the extent that it may wish, jointly with any other indemnifying party similarly notified, to assume the defense thereof, with counsel reasonably satisfactory to such indemnified party, and after notice from the indemnifying party to such indemnified party of its election so to assume the defense thereof, the indemnifying party shall not (so long as it shall continue to have the right to defend, contest, litigate and settle the matter in question in accordance with this paragraph) be liable to such indemnified party hereunder for any legal or other expense subsequently incurred by such indemnified party in connection with the defense thereof other than reasonable costs of investigation, supervision and monitoring (unless such indemnified party reasonably objects to such assumption on the grounds that there may be defenses available to it which are different from or in addition to the defenses available to such indemnifying party, in which event the indemnified party shall be reimbursed by the indemnifying party for the reasonable expenses incurred in connection with retaining one separate legal counsel). An indemnifying party shall not be liable for any settlement of an action or claim effected without its consent. The indemnifying party shall lose its right to defend, contest, litigate and settle a matter if it shall fail to diligently contest such matter (except to the extent settled in accordance with the next following sentence). No matter shall be settled by an indemnifying party without the consent of the indemnified party unless such settlement contains a full and unconditional release of the indemnified party.

(e) Survival. The indemnification provided for under this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect regardless of any investigation made by or on behalf of the indemnified Person and will survive the transfer of the Registrable Securities.

(f) Contribution. If recovery is not available under the foregoing indemnification provisions for any reason or reasons other than as specified therein, any Person who otherwise would be entitled to indemnification by the terms thereof shall nevertheless be entitled to contribution with respect to any Losses with respect to which such Person would be entitled to such indemnification but for such reason or reasons. In determining the amount of contribution to which the respective Persons are entitled, there shall be considered the Persons' relative knowledge and access to information concerning the matter with respect to which the claim was asserted, the opportunity to correct and prevent any statement or omission, and other equitable considerations appropriate under the circumstances. It is hereby agreed that it would not necessarily be equitable if the amount of such contribution were determined by pro rata or per capita allocation. No person guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation (within the meaning of Section 11(f) of the Securities Act) shall be entitled to contribution from any Person who was not found guilty of such fraudulent misrepresentation.

THE COLEMAN COMPANY, INC.
NOTICE OF MERGER
AND APPRAISAL RIGHTS AND INFORMATION STATEMENT

SUNBEAM CORPORATION
PROSPECTUS

On or about January 6, 2000, Coleman plans to merge with a subsidiary of Sunbeam Corporation. Under the February 1998 agreement relating to the merger, you will receive $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 of a share of Sunbeam common stock for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed. In addition, under a court-approved litigation settlement, you will receive warrants each entitling you to purchase one Sunbeam share at a cash price of $7 per share until August 24, 2003. You will receive 0.381 of a warrant for each share of Coleman common stock you own when the merger is completed (assuming no further increase in the number of outstanding Coleman shares).

As a result of the merger, Coleman will become a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam. A copy of the merger agreement is attached as Annex I at the back of this document. You are urged to read the merger agreement carefully as it is the legal document that governs the merger.

The merger was approved by Coleman's board of directors and majority stockholder, a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., on February 27, 1998. As a result, no further action by you or any other stockholder of Coleman is required to complete the merger.

At the same time that Coleman's board and majority stockholder approved the merger, Sunbeam agreed to acquire indirectly about 81% of the then outstanding Coleman common stock from the MacAndrews & Forbes subsidiary. That transaction was completed on March 30, 1998, and Sunbeam now owns indirectly about 79% of the outstanding Coleman common stock. As a result of a purchase by Sunbeam of shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock in July 1999, Sunbeam now has the right to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock.

Instead of receiving cash, Sunbeam stock and warrants upon completion of the merger, you have the right to dissent from the merger and have the fair value of your Coleman shares appraised by a court and paid to you in cash. These appraisal rights are granted to you by Delaware law and were not affected by the litigation settlement. In order to pursue your appraisal rights, you must submit a written demand to Coleman on or before December 27, 1999 and satisfy the other requirements outlined in the attached document.

Sunbeam common stock trades on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol "SOC." Coleman common stock trades on the New York Stock Exchange, the Pacific Stock Exchange and the Chicago Stock Exchange under the symbol "CLN."

This document contains important information about the merger, Coleman, Sunbeam, your Delaware law appraisal rights and the litigation settlement, including the terms of the warrants you will receive. This document is the prospectus of Sunbeam for the common stock to be issued in the merger and the common stock to be issued when the warrants are exercised. As required by Delaware law, this document also is Coleman's notice to you of your appraisal rights.

You should read this entire document carefully, including the Annexes which are found at the back of the document and the documents referred to under the caption "WHERE YOU CAN FIND MORE INFORMATION" beginning on page 155 which tells you where you can find additional information about Coleman and Sunbeam.

Coleman to Sunbeam. This note was pledged by Sunbeam to its lenders as security for Sunbeam's obligations under its bank credit facility.

In connection with the April 15, 1999 amendment to Sunbeam's bank credit facility, the Coleman note was revised to, among other things:

- lower the interest rate,
- make the note payable on April 15, 2000 rather than on demand,
- add customary representations, warranties, covenants and events of default, and
- provide that an event of default under Sunbeam's bank credit facility would constitute an event of default under the Coleman note.

As security for the revised Coleman note, Coleman pledged:

- substantially all of its domestic assets, other than real property,
- 66% of its ownership interests in its direct foreign subsidiaries and in its domestic holding companies for its foreign subsidiaries (but not the assets of these subsidiaries), and
- all of its ownership interests in its other direct domestic subsidiaries (but not the assets of these subsidiaries).

The revised Coleman note had an unpaid principal balance of $303.2 million on September 30, 1999. Sunbeam pledged the revised Coleman note as security for Sunbeam's obligations to its lending banks under its bank credit facility and assigned to these lending banks the security pledged by Coleman for the revised Coleman note. Coleman also gave the lending banks a direct pledge of the assets securing the revised Coleman note to secure the obligations under Sunbeam's bank credit facility, subject to a cap equal to the balance due from time to time on the revised Coleman note. The revision of the Coleman note and the pledge of Coleman's assets were approved on behalf of Coleman by A. Whitman Marchand, Coleman's only disinterested director, acting as a duly authorized independent committee of the Coleman board of directors.

Under Sunbeam's bank credit facility, an event of default will occur if this document is not declared effective by the SEC on or before January 10, 2000, if the merger is not completed within 25 business days after the effectiveness of this document or if Sunbeam has to pay more than $87.5 million in cash (excluding expenses) to complete the merger (including any amounts paid with respect to appraisal rights). An event of default of this kind would also constitute an event of default under the Coleman note, and Sunbeam's lenders would be entitled to foreclose on the Coleman note and the Coleman assets pledged as security for the Coleman note. The Coleman note, by its terms, will not be affected by the merger and will remain outstanding. For more information concerning Sunbeam's bank credit facility, including the aggregate amount of borrowings outstanding thereunder, the amount available for future borrowings and the maturity date, see "SOURCE AND AMOUNT OF FUNDS AND OTHER CONSIDERATION" beginning on page 64. See also "MATERIAL CONTACTS BETWEEN COLEMAN AND SUNBEAM AND ITS AFFILIATES—Financial Transactions Between Coleman and Sunbeam" beginning on page 68.

M&F Transaction. In the M&F Transaction, which was completed on March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired indirectly about 81% of the then outstanding Coleman common stock (reduced to about 79% as a result of the exercise of Coleman employee stock options immediately following the M&F Transaction). As a result of a purchase by Sunbeam of shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock in July 1999, Sunbeam now has the right to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock.

In the M&F Transaction, a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes received 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam common stock, which represent about 14% of the currently outstanding Sunbeam common stock, and about $160 million in cash. In addition, in connection with the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam assumed about $1,016 million in debt of Coleman and its parent corporations, including $497 million of indebtedness of Coleman.

Immediately following the M&F Transaction, all the directors of Coleman resigned, the number of directors constituting the Coleman board of directors was fixed at five, and five designees of Sunbeam were

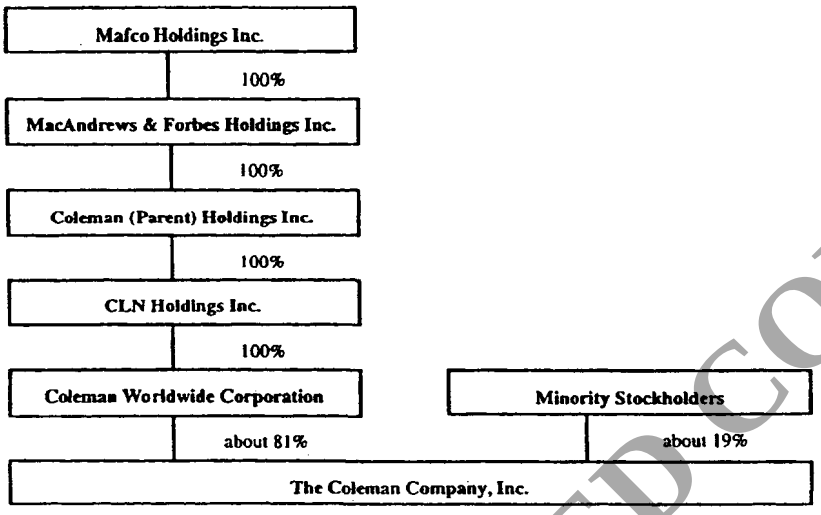
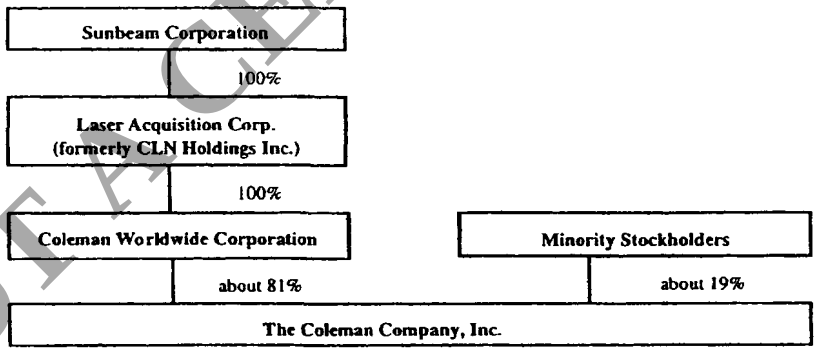
Ownership Structure Before the M&F Transaction



In the M&F Transaction, which was completed on March 30, 1998, CLN Holdings merged with Laser Acquisition Corp., a subsidiary of Sunbeam, and Sunbeam, through its then indirect ownership of Coleman Worldwide, became the owner of MacAndrews & Forbes' shares of Coleman common stock. In exchange for the Coleman shares, Coleman (Parent) Holdings received 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam common stock and $159,956,756 in cash. In addition, in the M&F Transaction, Sunbeam assumed about $1,016 million in debt of Coleman and its parent corporations, including $497 million of indebtedness of Coleman.

Ownership Structure After the M&F Transaction



Sunbeam's ownership interest in Coleman was reduced to about 79% as a result of the exercise of Coleman employee stock options immediately following the M&F Transaction. On July 12, 1999, Sunbeam acquired 3,000,000 shares of a newly created series of Coleman voting preferred stock. These shares, together with the shares of Coleman common stock acquired by Sunbeam in the M&F Transaction, enable Sunbeam to exercise just over 80% of the total voting power of Coleman's outstanding capital stock. Following the completion of the M&F Transaction, Coleman (Parent) Holdings remained a wholly owned subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION AND SUBSIDIARIES
NOTES TO CONDENSED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS (UNAUDITED)

1. OPERATIONS AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION

ORGANIZATION

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam" or the "Company") is a leading manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Sunbeam(R) and Oster(R) brands have been household names for generations, and the Company is a market share leader in many of its product categories.

The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogs, television shopping channels, Company-owned outlet stores, hardware stores, home centers, drug and grocery stores, pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and the military. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions.

As further described in Note 2, on March 30, 1998, the Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the total number of then outstanding shares of common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"). Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Its products have been sold domestically under the Coleman(R) brand name since the 1920's.

PRESENTATION OF FISCAL PERIODS

To standardize the fiscal period ends of the Company and its acquired entities, as further described in Notes 2 and 10, effective with its 1998 fiscal year, the Company has changed its fiscal year end from the Sunday nearest December 31 to a calendar year. Accordingly, quarterly reporting will follow the calendar quarters. Excluding the impact of the Coleman acquisition which occurred on March 30, 1998, the impact of this change in fiscal periods on net sales for the first quarter of 1998 was to increase sales by approximately $4 million and the impact on operating results for the quarter was to increase earnings by approximately $0.2 million.

BASIS OF PRESENTATION

The Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet of the Company as of March 31, 1998 and the Condensed Consolidated Statements of Operations and Cash Flows for the three months ended March 31, 1998 and March 30, 1997 are unaudited. The unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements have been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles for interim financial information and with the instructions of Form 10-Q and Rule 10-01 of Regulation S-X. The December 28, 1997 Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet was derived from the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K/A for the year ended December 28, 1997. The condensed consolidated financial statements contained herein should be read in conjunction with the consolidated financial statements and related notes contained in the Company's 1997 Annual Report on Form 10-K/A. In the opinion of management, the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements furnished herein include all adjustments (consisting of only recurring adjustments) necessary for a fair presentation of the results of operations for the interim periods presented. These interim results of operations are not necessarily indicative of results for the entire year.

RESTATEMENT

On June 30, 1998, the Company announced that the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors was initiating a review into the accuracy of prior financial statements. The Audit Committee's review has since been completed and, as a result of its findings, the Company has restated its previously issued financial statements for 1996, 1997 and the first quarter of 1998. (See Note 8).

1. OPERATIONS AND BASIS OF PRESENTATION - (CONTINUED)

BASIC AND DILUTED LOSS PER COMMON SHARE

In 1997, the Company adopted SFAS No. 128, EARNINGS PER SHARE. Basic earnings per common share calculations are determined by dividing earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock outstanding. Diluted earnings per share are determined by dividing earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock and dilutive common stock equivalents outstanding (all related to outstanding stock options, restricted stock and the Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures).

For the first quarter of 1998, 4,758,565 shares related to stock options, (58,065) shares related to restricted stock and 13,150,000 shares related to the conversion feature of the Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures were not included in the diluted average common shares outstanding, as the effect would have been antidilutive. For the first quarter of 1997, the dilutive effect of 2,174,154 equivalent shares and (225,915) equivalent shares related to restricted stock were used in determining the dilutive average shares outstanding. SFAS No. 128 requires the use of dilutive potential common shares in the determination of diluted earnings per share if an entity reports earnings from continuing operations. Given Sunbeam's Loss from Discontinued Operations in the first quarter of 1997, the use of dilutive potential common shares in the determination of the diluted per share loss from discontinued operations and net loss per share is antidilutive. (See Note 10.)

NEW ACCOUNTING STANDARDS

In June 1997, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 131, DISCLOSURES ABOUT SEGMENTS OF AN ENTERPRISE AND RELATED INFORMATION. SFAS No. 131 establishes standards for the way that public business enterprises report information about operating segments in annual financial statements and requires that those enterprises report selected information about operating segments in interim financial reports issued to shareholders. It also establishes standards for related disclosures about products and services, geographic areas, and major customers. SFAS No. 131 is effective for financial statements for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997 and will be presented in the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ending December 31, 1998. Financial statement disclosures for prior periods are required to be restated. The Company is in the process of evaluating the disclosure requirements. The adoption of SFAS No. 131 will have no impact on consolidated results of operations, financial position or cash flow.

In March 1998, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants ("AICPA") issued Statement of Position 98-1, ACCOUNTING FOR THE COSTS OF COMPUTER SOFTWARE DEVELOPED OR OBTAINED FOR INTERNAL USE ("SOP 98-1"). SOP 98-1 requires computer software costs associated with internal use software to be expensed as incurred until certain capitalization criteria are met. The Company will adopt SOP 98-1 on January 1, 1999. Adoption of this Statement is not expected to have a material impact on the Company's consolidated financial position or results of operations, although actual charges incurred may be material due to Year 2000 issues.

See Note 10 for new accounting standards issued subsequent to March 31, 1998.

2. ACQUISITION

On March 30, 1998, the Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the total number of then outstanding shares of common stock of Coleman from a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("M&F"), in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of the Company's common stock and approximately $160 million in cash as well as the assumption of $1,016 million in debt. The value of the common stock issued at the date of acquisition ($524 million) was derived by using the average ending stock price as reported by the New York Stock Exchange Composite Tape for the day before and day of the public announcement of the acquisition discounted by 15% due to the restrictive nature of the securities. (See Note 10.)

The Coleman acquisition was accounted for under the purchase method of accounting; and accordingly, the results of operations of Coleman for March 30 and March 31, 1998 are included in the accompanying Condensed Consolidated Statement of Operations. The purchase price of Coleman has been allocated to individual assets acquired and liabilities assumed based on preliminary estimates of fair market value at the date of acquisition. The preliminary fair value of tangible assets acquired was approximately $747 million (of which $27 million was cash) and approximately $1,331 million of liabilities were assumed. The excess of purchase price over net tangible assets acquired of $1,270 million has been classified as goodwill and is being amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years. The allocation of purchase price for the acquisition of Coleman will be revised when additional information concerning asset and liability valuations is obtained. Adjustments, which could be significant, will be made during the allocation period based on detailed reviews of the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed and could result in a substantial change in goodwill and other intangible assets.

The Company expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman pursuant to a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority shareholders will receive .5677 shares of the Company's common stock and $6.44 in cash for each share of Coleman common stock outstanding. In addition, unexercised options under Coleman's stock option plans will be cashed out at a price per share equal to the difference between $27.50 and the exercise price of such options. The Company expects to issue approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and expend approximately $87 million in cash to complete the Coleman acquisition. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated the Coleman merger will occur in the first quarter of fiscal 1999. The acquisition of the remaining outstanding shares of Coleman will be accounted for under the purchase method of accounting on the date of consummation. Minority interest in the results from Coleman's operations for March 30 and 31, 1998, is reflected in Other Expense, net in the Condensed Consolidated Statement of Operations for the three months ended March 31, 1998. (See Note 10.)

The following unaudited pro forma financial information for the Company gives effect to the Coleman acquisition as if it had occurred at the beginning of 1998. These pro forma results have been prepared for informational purposes only and do not purport to be indicative of the results of operations which actually would have occurred had the acquisition been consummated on the date indicated, or which may result in the future. The unaudited pro forma results follow (in millions, except per share data):

	THREE MONTHS ENDED MARCH 31, 1998	MARCH 30, 1997
Net sales (a)	$ 477.3	$ 548.0
Loss before extraordinary charge (a), (b), (c)	(64.7)	(4.8)
Basic and diluted loss per share before extraordinary items (d)	(0.65)	(0.05)

(a) Adjusted to remove sales of $14.8 million and loss before extraordinary charge of $0.8 million from Coleman operations for March 30 and 31, 1998 included in Sunbeam's results.

(b) Coleman's loss before extraordinary items has been adjusted to exclude the following one time after tax benefits and charges: (i) a $15.8 million gain from the sale of Coleman Safety and Security Products, Inc., (ii) $7.1 million of costs incurred by Coleman associated with the Company's acquisition of Coleman, (iii) the write off of $2.1 million of capitalized costs associated with the installation of new software which will be abandoned as a result of the acquisition by the Company, (iv) $1.3 million of costs to terminate a license agreement with a former affiliate of Coleman, and (v) the write off of $1.7 million of unrealized deferred tax assets as a result of the change of control of Coleman.

(c) In 1998 and 1997, respectively, after tax interest expense was increased $11.5 million and $9.8 million, and goodwill amortization, after tax, was increased $5.5 million in each year to reflect the pro forma effect of the acquisition occurring at the beginning of the period. In addition, the minority shareholder percentage was adjusted to reflect the change in the portion of Coleman held by minority shareholders following the transaction. The minority interest in Coleman's losses from continuing operations was adjusted by $0.6 million in 1998 and $0.4 million in 1997 to reflect both the change in the proportion of the ownership of Coleman held by minority shareholders and the effects of the pro forma adjustments.

(d) The shares outstanding were adjusted in each period to reflect the pro forma effect of the shares issued in the Coleman acquisition being outstanding from the beginning of the period.

3. CREDIT FACILITIES, LONG-TERM DEBT AND FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

In order to finance the acquisitions described in Notes 2 and 10, and refinance substantially all of the indebtedness of the Company and its acquired entities, the Company consummated: (i) an offering (the "Offering") of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Debentures") at a yield to maturity of 5% (approximately $2,014 million principal amount at maturity) in March 1998, which resulted in approximately $730 million of net proceeds and, (ii) entered into a revolving and term credit facility ("New Credit Facility"). (See Note 10.)

The Debentures are exchangeable for shares of the Company's common stock at an initial conversion rate of 6.575 shares for each $1,000 principal amount at maturity of the Debentures, subject to adjustment upon occurrence of certain events. (See Note 10.)

The New Credit Facility provided for an aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion pursuant to: (i) a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400 million, maturing March 31, 2005; (ii) an $800 million term loan maturing on March 31, 2005, and (iii) a $500 million term loan maturing September 30, 2006. Interest accrues at a rate selected at the Company's option of: (i) the London Interbank Offered Rate ("LIBOR") plus an agreed upon interest margin which varies depending upon the Company's leverage ratio, as defined, and other items or, (ii) the base rate of the administrative agent (generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 1/2 of 1%), plus an agreed upon interest margin which varies depending upon the Company's leverage ratio, as defined, and other items. The New Credit Facility contains certain covenants, including limitations on the ability of the Company and its subsidiaries to engage in certain transactions and the requirement to maintain certain financial covenants and ratios. (See Note 10.)

The Company selectively uses derivatives to manage interest rate and foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. No derivatives are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. Foreign exchange option and forward contracts are used to hedge a portion of the Company's underlying exposures denominated in foreign currency. Although the market value of derivative contracts at any single point in time will vary with changes in interest and/or foreign exchange rates, the differences between the carrying value and fair value of such contracts at March 31, 1998 and March 30, 1997 were not considered to be material, either individually or in the aggregate. The Company enters into derivative contracts with counterparties that it believes to be creditworthy. The Company does not enter into any leveraged derivative transactions. At March 31, 1998, the Company held an interest rate swap agreement with a notional value of $25.0 million to exchange floating rate interest for a fixed rate of 6.115%. (See Note 10.)

In March 1998, the Company prepaid a $75.0 million 7.85% industrial revenue bond related to its Hattiesburg facility originally due in 2009. In connection with the early extinguishment of this debt, the Company recognized an extraordinary charge of $8.6 million ($0.10 per share) in the first quarter of 1998.

In December 1997, the Company entered into a receivables securitization program under which the Company has received approximately $34.8 million from the sale of trade accounts receivable in the first quarter of 1998. Costs of the program, which primarily consist of the purchaser's financing cost of issuing commercial paper backed by the receivables, totaled $0.6 million during the first quarter of 1998. The Company, as agent for the purchaser of the receivables, retains collection and administrative responsibilities for the purchased receivables.

6. RESTRUCTURING AND ASSET IMPAIRMENT

At December 28, 1997, the Company, before consideration of the Coleman acquisition, had $5.2 million in liabilities accrued related to a 1996 restructuring plan. The majority of these liabilities related to facility closures and related exit costs. In the first quarter of 1998, this liability was reduced by $0.5 million as a result of cash expenditures.

The restated restructuring reserve details and activity as of and for the quarter ended March 30, 1997 are as follows (in millions):

	RESERVE BALANCE AT DECEMBER 29, 1996	CASH REDUCTIONS	NON-CASH REDUCTIONS	ACCRUAL BALANCE AT MARCH 30, 1997

7. DISCONTINUED OPERATIONS

The Company's discontinued furniture business, which was sold in March 1997, had revenues of $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997 prior to the sale and nominal earnings. As a result of the sale of the Company's furniture business assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), the Company received $69.0 million in cash, retained approximately $50.0 million in accounts receivable and retained certain liabilities. The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, the Company recorded an additional loss on disposal of $22.5 million pre-tax.

8. RESTATEMENT

Subsequent to the issuance of the Company's condensed consolidated financial statements for the three months ended March 31, 1998, it was determined that for the years ended December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997 and the three months ended March 31, 1998, certain revenue was improperly recognized (principally "bill and hold" and guaranteed sales transactions), certain costs and allowances were not accrued or were improperly recorded (principally allowances for returns, cooperative advertising, and customer charge-backs as well as deductions and reserves for product liability and warranty expense) and certain costs were inappropriately included in, and subsequently charged to, restructuring, asset impairment and other costs within the Consolidated Statements of Operations. As a result, the consolidated financial statements as of December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996 and for the years then ended were restated and a Form 10-K/A was filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on November 12, 1998. The accompanying condensed consolidated financial statements as of March 31, 1998 and March 30, 1997 and for the three months then ended, present restated results.

A summary of the effects of the restatement for the three months ended March 31, 1998 and March 30, 1997 follows (in thousands, except per share data):

9. NEW EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENTS

On February 20, 1998 the Company entered into new three-year employment agreements with its then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company. These agreements replaced previous employment agreements entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999.

The new employment agreement for the Company's then Chairman provided for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of 200,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 133,333 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreement, a new equity grant of 300,000 shares of unrestricted stock, a new grant of a ten-year option to purchase 3,750,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in three equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 833,333 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreement. In addition, the new employment agreement with the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer provided for income tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the equity grant and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

The new employment agreements with the two other then senior officers provided for, among other items, the grant of a total of 180,000 shares of restricted stock that vest in four equal annual installments beginning the date of grant, the acceleration of vesting of 44,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 29,332 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreements, new grants of ten-year options to purchase a total of 1,875,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 383,334 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreements. In addition, the new employment agreements provided for income tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the restricted stock grants and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

Compensation expense attributed to the equity grant, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the related income tax gross-ups was recognized in the first quarter of 1998 and compensation expense related to the new restricted stock grants and related tax gross-ups was amortized to expense beginning in the first quarter of 1998 with amortization to continue over the period in which the restrictions lapse. Total compensation expense recognized in the first quarter of 1998 related to these items was approximately $31 million. (See Note 10.)

10. SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

SENIOR MANAGEMENT CHANGES

On June 15, 1998, the Company's Board of Directors announced the removal of the then Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and subsequently announced the removal or resignation of other senior officers, including the Company's then Chief Financial Officer. In connection with the removal or resignation of the senior officers and the termination of their restricted stock grants, the unamortized portion of the deferred compensation expense attributable to the restricted stock grants will be reversed and compensation expense of approximately $0.9 million recognized in the first quarter of 1998 for unvested restricted stock grants will be reversed into income in the second and third quarters of 1998. Other costs related to the resignations and terminations will be recognized, as appropriate, in 1998. The Company and certain of its former officers are in disagreement as to the Company's obligations to these individuals under prior employment agreements and arising from their terminations. The Board of Directors has installed a new Chief Executive Officer and senior management team.

COLEMAN ACQUISITION

On August 12, 1998, the Company announced that, following investigation and negotiation conducted by a Special Committee of the Board consisting of four outside directors not affiliated with M&F, the Company had entered into a settlement agreement with a subsidiary of M&F pursuant to which the Company was released from certain threatened claims of M&F and its affiliates arising from the Coleman acquisition and M&F agreed to provide certain management personnel and assistance to the Company in exchange for the issuance to the M&F subsidiary of five-year warrants to purchase up to 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price of $7.00 per share, subject to anti-dilution provisions. The financial statement impact of the settlement, which will be material in amount, will be recorded in the third quarter of 1998. (See Litigation, below.)

OTHER ACQUISITIONS

On April 6, 1998, the Company completed the cash acquisitions of First Alert, Inc. ("First Alert"), a leading manufacturer of smoke and carbon monoxide detectors, and Signature Brands USA, Inc. ("Signature Brands"), a leading manufacturer of a comprehensive line of consumer and professional products. The First Alert and the Signature Brands acquisitions were valued at approximately $178 million and $253 million, respectively, including the assumption of debt. These acquisitions will be accounted for by the purchase method of accounting and the results of operations of the acquired entities will be included in the Company's Consolidated Statement of Operations from the respective acquisition dates.

DEBENTURES, NEW CREDIT FACILITY AND FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

The Company was required to file a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission to register the Debentures by June 23, 1998, which registration statement has not been filed. From June 23, 1998 until the day on which the registration statement is filed and declared effective, the Company is required to pay to the Debenture holders cash liquidated damages accruing, for each day during such period, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% during the first 90 days and 0.50% thereafter multiplied by the total of the issue price of the Debentures plus the original issue discount thereon on such day. The Company made its first payment of approximately $525,000 to the Debenture holders on September 25, 1998.

At June 30, 1998, the Company was not in compliance with the financial covenants and ratios required under the New Credit Facility. The Company and its lenders entered into an agreement dated June 30, 1998, which provided that compliance with the covenants would be waived through December 31, 1998. Borrowings under the New Credit Facility are secured by certain of the Company's assets, including its stock interest in Coleman and certain other subsidiaries and certain of the Company's tangible and intangible personal property. Pursuant to an amendment dated October 19, 1998, the Company is not required to comply with the original financial covenants and ratios under the New Credit Facility until April 10, 1999, but will be required to comply with an earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization covenant, the amounts of which are to be determined, beginning February 1999. Concurrent with each of these amendments, interest margin was increased. The margin continues to increase monthly through March 1999 to a maximum of 400 basis points over LIBOR. At September 30, 1998, following the scheduled repayment of a portion of the term loan, the New Credit Facility was reduced to $1,698 million in total, of which approximately $1,453 million was outstanding and approximately $245 million was available. In addition, the Company's cash balance available for debt repayment at September 30, 1998 was approximately $43 million.

The Company is working closely with its bank lenders and hopes to reach agreement with the bank lenders on a further amendment to the New Credit Facility containing revised financial covenants which the bank lenders and the Company find mutually acceptable. There can be no assurance that such an amendment, or a further waiver of the existing financial covenants, will be entered into with the bank lenders by April 10, 1999. The failure to obtain such an amendment or further waiver would result in violation of the existing covenants, which would permit the bank lenders to accelerate the maturity of all outstanding borrowing under the New Credit Facility.

The Company selectively uses derivatives to manage interest rate and foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. In the second quarter of 1998, the Company entered into two swap transactions in a notional amount of $150 million each, in connection with the New Credit Facility. The swap agreements are contracts to exchange floating rate for fixed interest payments periodically over the life of the agreements without the exchange of the underlying notional principal amounts. The swaps expire in June 2001 and 2003 and have strike rates of 5.75% and 5.58%, respectively. The notional amounts of the agreements do not represent the amount of exposure to credit loss.

As a result of repayment of certain indebtedness assumed in the Coleman acquisition, the Company will recognize an extraordinary charge of approximately $104 million in the second quarter of 1998.

SEC INVESTIGATION

By letter dated June 17, 1998, the staff of the Division of Enforcement of the SEC advised the Company that it was conducting an informal inquiry into the Company's accounting policies and procedures and requested that the Company produce certain documents. On July 2, 1998, the SEC issued a Formal Order of Private Investigation, designating officers to take testimony and pursuant to which a subpoena duces tecum was served on the Company requiring the production of certain documents. On November 4, 1998, another SEC subpoena duces tecum requiring the production of further documents was received by the Company. The Company has provided numerous documents to the SEC staff and continues to cooperate fully with the SEC staff. The Company cannot predict the term of such investigation or its potential outcome.

LITIGATION

On April 23, 1998, two class action lawsuits were filed on behalf of purchasers of the Company's common stock in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against the Company and certain of its present and former officers and directors alleging violations of the federal securities laws as discussed below (the "Consolidated Federal Actions"). Since that date, approximately fifteen similar class actions have been filed in the same Court. One of the lawsuits also names as defendant Arthur Andersen LLP, the Company's independent accountants for the period covered by the lawsuit.

The complaints in the Consolidated Federal Actions allege to varying degrees that the defendants (i) failed to disclose that the Company pre-sold approximately $50 million of products pursuant to its "early buy" marketing program in an effort to boost its 1997 sales and net income figures and (ii) made material misrepresentations regarding the Company's business operations, future prospects and anticipated earnings per share, in an effort to artificially inflate the price of the Company stock long enough for the Company to complete a $2 billion debt financing (supported with stock incentives) necessary to complete the acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, and for the individual defendants to enter into lucrative long-term employment agreements with the Company. Each complaint alleges two counts of securities fraud; one count against all defendants and one count against the individual defendants.

On June 16, 1998, the Court entered an Order consolidating all such filed and all such subsequently filed class actions and providing time periods for the filing of a Consolidated Amended Complaint and defendants' response thereto. On June 22, 1998, two groups of plaintiffs made motions to be appointed lead plaintiffs and to have their selection of counsel approved as lead counsel. On July 20, 1998, the Court entered an Order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel (the "Smith Plaintiffs' Group"). This Order also stated that it "shall apply to all subsequently filed actions which are consolidated herewith". On August 28, 1998, plaintiffs in one of the subsequently filed actions filed an objection to having their action consolidated pursuant to the June 16, 1998 Order, arguing that the class period in their action differs from the class periods in the originally filed consolidated actions. On September 29, 1998, the Smith Plaintiffs' Group filed its memorandum in opposition to this objection.

On April 7, 1998, a purported derivative action was filed in the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida against the Company and certain of its present and former officers and directors. The action alleged that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties and wasted corporate assets when the Company granted stock options to three of its officers and directors on or about February 2, 1998 at an exercise price of $36.85. On June 25, 1998, all defendants filed a motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to make a presuit demand on the board of directors of the Company. On October 22, 1998, the plaintiff amended the complaint against all but one of the defendants named in the original complaint. The amended complaint no longer challenges the stock options, but instead alleges that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties by failing to have in place adequate accounting and sales controls, which failure caused the inaccurate reporting of financial information to the public, thereby causing an artificial inflation of the Company's financial statements and stock price.

On June 25, 1998, four purported class actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County by minority shareholders of Coleman against the Company and certain of the Company's present and former officers and directors. An additional class action was filed on August 10, 1998, against the same parties. All of the plaintiffs are represented by the same Delaware counsel and have agreed to consolidate the class actions. These actions allege, in essence, that the existing exchange ratio for the proposed merger between the Company and Coleman is no longer fair to Coleman shareholders as a result of the recent decline in the market value of the Company stock. On October 21, 1998, the Company announced that it had entered into a Memorandum of Understanding to settle, subject to court approval, certain class actions brought by shareholders of Coleman challenging the proposed Coleman Merger. Under the terms of the proposed settlement, the Company will issue to the Coleman public shareholders five-year warrants to purchase 4.98 million shares of the Company's common stock at $7.00 per share. These warrants will generally have the same terms as the warrants previously issued to a subsidiary of M&F and will be issued when the Coleman Merger is consummated, which is now expected to be in the first quarter of 1999. There can be no assurance that the Court will approve the settlement as proposed.

During the months of August and October 1998, purported class and derivative actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County and in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida by shareholders of the Company against the Company, M&F and certain of the Company's present and former directors. These complaints allege that the defendants breached their fiduciary duties when the Company entered into a settlement agreement with M&F whereby M&F released the Company from any claims it may have had arising out of the Company's acquisition of its interest in Coleman and agreed to provide management support to the Company (the "Settlement Agreement"). Pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, M&F was granted five-year warrants to purchase an additional 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price of $7.00 per share. These complaints also allege that the rights of the public shareholders have been compromised, as the settlement would normally require shareholder approval under the rules and regulations of the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE"). The Audit Committee of the Company's board determined that obtaining such shareholder approval would have seriously jeopardized the financial viability of the Company which is an allowable exception to the NYSE shareholder approval requirements.

On September 16, 1998, an action was filed in the 56th Judicial District Court of Galveston County, Texas alleging various claims in violation of the Texas Securities Act and Texas Business and Commercial Code as well as common law fraud as a result of the Company's alleged misstatements and omissions regarding the Company's financial condition and prospects during a period beginning May 1, 1998 and ending June 16, 1998, in which the plaintiffs engaged in transactions in the Company's stock. The Company is the only named defendant in this action. The complaint requests recovery of compensatory damages, punitive damages and expenses in an unspecified amount. This action has been removed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas and the Company has filed a motion to transfer this case to the Southern District of Florida, the forum for the Consolidated Federal Actions. Plaintiffs have moved to remand the case to Texas state court.

On October 30, 1998, a class action lawsuit was filed on behalf of certain purchasers of the Company's Debentures in the U.S. District Court of the Southern District of Florida against the Company and its prior Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, alleging violations of the federal securities laws and common law fraud. The complaint alleges that the Company's offering memorandum used for the marketing of the Debentures contained false and misleading information regarding the Company's financial position and that the defendants engaged in a plan to inflate the Company's earnings for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiffs and others. The Company is seeking to consolidate this lawsuit with the other Consolidated Federal Actions.

The Company intends to vigorously defend each of the foregoing lawsuits, but cannot predict the outcome and is not currently able to evaluate the likelihood of the Company's success in each case or the range of potential loss. However, if the foregoing actions were determined adversely to the Company, such judgments would likely have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flows.

On July 2, 1998, the American Insurance Company ("American") filed suit against the Company in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York requesting a declaratory judgment of the court that the directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for excess coverage issued by American was invalid and/or had been properly cancelled by American. The Company has moved to transfer such action to the federal district court in which the Consolidated Federal Actions are currently pending; American is opposing such motion. On October 20, 1998, an action was filed by Federal Insurance Company in the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American in the previously filed action as to additional coverage levels under the Company's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. The Company intends to pursue recovery from all of its insurers if damages are awarded against the Company or its indemnified officers and/or directors under any of the foregoing actions. The Company's failure to obtain such insurance recoveries following an adverse judgement against the Company in any of the foregoing actions could have a material adverse impact on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flow.

The Company and its subsidiaries are also involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time which the Company considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of the Company, the resolution of these routine matters, and of certain matters relating to prior operations of the Predecessor, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect upon the financial position or results of operations of the Company.

ASSET IMPAIRMENT, INVENTORY RESERVES AND RELATED LIABILITIES

In 1998, as a result of decisions to outsource a substantial number of products previously made by the Company, certain facilities and equipment will either no longer be used or will be used in a significantly different manner. Accordingly, certain assets recorded at March 31, 1998 will be written down in future periods to reflect the fair market value of items held for disposition or to reflect impairment for items where the future utility is altered by the sourcing change. Personnel at the Mexico City manufacturing plant were notified in the second quarter of 1998 that the plant is scheduled for closure at year-end 1998. Accordingly, a liability related to plant closure will be recorded in the second quarter. As certain inventories built in 1997 and the first quarter of 1998 in anticipation of 1998 sales volumes exceed the actual requirements, it will be necessary to dispose of some portions of excess inventories at amounts less than cost. The Company is also in the process of assessing the expected future performance of its business operations and the impact of this assessment on the valuation of assets in the business. This assessment is expected to be completed in the fourth quarter.

NEW ACCOUNTING STANDARDS

In April 1998, the AICPA issued Statement of Position 98-5, REPORTING ON THE COSTS OF START-UP ACTIVITIES ("SOP 98-5"). SOP 98-5 requires all costs associated with pre-opening, pre-operating and organization activities to be expensed as incurred. The Company will adopt SOP 98-5 beginning January 1, 1999. Adoption of the Statement is not expected to have a material impact on the Company's consolidated financial position or results of operations.

In June 1998, the FASB issued SFAS No. 133, ACCOUNTING FOR DERIVATIVE INSTRUMENTS AND HEDGING ACTIVITIES for fiscal years beginning after June 15, 1999. SFAS No. 133 requires the recognition of all derivatives in the Consolidated Balance Sheet as either assets or liabilities measured at fair value. The Company will adopt SFAS No. 133 effective for the 2000 calendar year end. The Company has not yet determined the impact SFAS No. 133 will have on its financial position or results of operations when such statement is adopted.

ITEM 2. MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

On June 30, 1998, the Company announced that the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors was initiating a review into the accuracy of prior financial statements. The Audit Committee's review has since been completed and, as a result of its findings, the Company has restated its previously issued consolidated financial statements for 1996 and 1997 and the first quarters of 1998 and 1997 (see Note 8 to the accompanying condensed consolidated financial statements and the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K/A for the year ended December 28, 1997). The following discussion should be read in conjunction with the accompanying condensed consolidated financial statements as of and for the three months ended March 31, 1998 and March 30, 1997.

OVERVIEW

On March 30, 1998, the Company, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, acquired approximately 81% of the total number of then outstanding shares of common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"), in exchange for 14,099,749 shares of the Company's common stock and approximately $160 million in cash as well as the assumption of $1,016 million in debt. The Company expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman pursuant to a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority shareholders will receive approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and approximately $87 million in cash. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated the Coleman merger will occur in the first quarter of fiscal 1999. (See Note 10 to the condensed consolidated financial statements and Part II, Item 1. "Legal Proceedings"). Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Its products have been sold domestically under the Coleman /registered trademark/ brand name since the 1920's.

The Coleman acquisition was recorded under the purchase method of accounting; and accordingly, the results of operations of Coleman for March 30 and 31, 1998 are included in the accompanying Condensed Consolidated Statement of Operations. The purchase price of Coleman has been allocated to individual assets acquired and liabilities assumed based on preliminary estimates of fair market value at the date of acquisition. The allocation of purchase price for the acquisition of Coleman will be revised when additional information concerning asset and liability valuations is obtained. Adjustments, which could be significant, will be made during the allocation period based on detailed reviews of the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed and could result in a substantial change in goodwill and other intangible assets.

To standardize the fiscal period ends of the Company, Coleman and two companies acquired after March 31, 1998, effective with its 1998 fiscal year, the Company has changed its fiscal year end from the Sunday nearest December 31 to a calendar year. (See Notes 1 and 10 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

THREE MONTHS ENDED MARCH 31, 1998 COMPARED TO THREE MONTHS ENDED MARCH 30, 1997

Net sales is comprised of gross sales less provisions for estimated customer returns, discounts, promotional allowances, cooperative advertising allowances and costs incurred by the Company to ship product to customers. Net sales for the three months ended March 31, 1998 were $247.6 million, a decrease of $4.9 million or 2% versus the three months ended March 30, 1997. After excluding: (i) $14.8 million of Coleman's sales for March 30 and 31, 1998, (ii) approximately $4 million in 1998 sales resulting from the change in year end described above, (iii) $4.2 million from 1997 sales relating to divested product lines which are not classified as discontinued operations (time and temperature products and Counselor /registered trademark/ and Borg /registered trademark/ branded scales), and (iv) $13.7 million from 1997 sales of discontinued inventory which resulted primarily from the reduction of SKU's as part of the 1996 restructuring plan and for which the inventory carrying value was substantially equivalent to the sales value, net sales on an adjusted basis ("Adjusted Sales") reflected a 2% decrease from the first quarter of 1997.

Overall, product sales were adversely impacted by price discounting and approximately $13 million of higher provisions for estimated returns, costs to ship products to customers, rebates and other customer allowances.

Domestic Adjusted Sales declined approximately $10 million from the first quarter of 1997. Outdoor Cooking category sales accounted for the majority of this decline. During 1997, the Company lost a significant portion of its Outdoor Cooking products distribution, including the majority of its grill accessory products distribution. As compared with the first quarter of 1997, the Outdoor Cooking products sales decline was also attributed to a lower than anticipated retail sell-through during the early stages of the 1998 retail selling season. Based on the sales levels achieved in the first quarter of 1998, distribution losses and retail inventory levels for Outdoor Cooking products, and a significant sales decline experienced subsequent to the first quarter as compared with the same period in the prior year, sales for the remainder of 1998 will be significantly lower as compared to the prior year. Adjusted Sales for Appliance category products increased approximately $7 million but were offset by declines in other product categories, primarily Away From Home products.

International sales, which represented 26% of Adjusted Sales in the first quarter of 1998, grew approximately 16% over the first quarter of 1997's Adjusted Sales. This sales growth was attributed to improved distribution, new product sales and increased retail inventory levels in Latin America, including Mexico and Venezuela, offset by declines in sales of Outdoor Cooking products in Europe and Canada.

Excluding $4.1 million of gross margin generated from the inclusion of the Coleman operations for two days in the first quarter of 1998 and approximately $0.6 million in gross margin from the change in the fiscal period, gross margin declined to $29.1 million, or 12.7% of Adjusted Sales in 1998 versus $58.3 million, or 24.8% of Adjusted Sales for the same period a year ago. The margin erosion was due to lower price realization and higher costs of customer allowances, rebates and similar incentives in 1998, coupled with a higher product return reserve and an adverse product sales mix in 1998. The adverse product sales mix was due in part to the loss of a majority of the grill accessory products distribution. Accessories generate significantly better margins than the average margins on sales of grills. During the first quarter of each year, grill and grill accessory sales are traditionally a higher portion of overall sales in the period than during other quarters of the year.

Due to the level of Outdoor Cooking products sales in the first quarter and the levels of retail inventories for these products, the Company began the season-end ramp down of production at the Neosho Outdoor Cooking products facility earlier than previously planned. As a result, operating results for the 1998 grill season will be adversely impacted due to unabsorbed fixed factory overhead during the second and third quarters and higher inventory carrying costs.

Excluding the effect of: (i) $3.7 million of selling, general and administrative ("SG&A") charges from Coleman, (ii) approximately $0.8 million of SG&A expenses in 1998 from the change in the fiscal period, (iii) a $3.0 million benefit in the first quarter of 1998 and a $0.5 million benefit in the first quarter of 1997 from the reversal of reserves no longer required, (iv) $31.2 million of charges recorded in 1998 related to compensation for former executives, and (v) $4.1 million of restructuring related charges recorded in 1997, SG&A expenses were 2% higher in 1998 than 1997. Higher distribution and warehousing costs due to increased levels of inventory were primarily responsible for the increase in costs between years.

Operating results for the first quarters of 1998 and 1997, on a comparable basis as described above, were a loss of $9.4 million in 1998 and a profit of $20.7 million in 1997. On the same basis, operating margins as a percent of Adjusted Sales decreased to a loss of 4.1% from a profit of 8.8% in the prior year. This change resulted from the factors discussed above.

Interest expense increased from $2.0 million in the first quarter of 1997 to $5.1 million in the first quarter of 1998 primarily related to higher borrowing levels in 1998 for the acquisitions and increased working capital. (See Note 3 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

Other expense, net of $3.2 million in 1998 and $0.1 million in 1997 primarily represents foreign exchange losses. Losses in both years arose from Sunbeam's operations in Mexico. In addition, the 1998 losses were impacted by Sunbeam's operations in Venezuela and Coleman's operations in Japan.

The effective income tax rate was 0.3% in the first quarter of 1998, as compared to 39.8% in the first quarter of 1997. The 1998 rate is lower than the statutory federal rate principally as a result of a valuation allowance for deferred tax assets provided in 1998. The 1997 rate was higher than the federal statutory income tax rate primarily due to state and local taxes plus the effect of foreign earnings taxed at other rates.

The Company's loss per share from continuing operations in the first quarter of 1998, excluding: (i) Coleman's results for March 30 and 31, 1998, (ii) the effect of the change in fiscal periods, (iii) the reversals of reserves no longer required in each year's first quarter, (iv) the restructuring related charges in 1997, and (v) the 1998 charge related to management compensation was a loss of $0.20 per share versus earnings per share from continuing operations in the first quarter of 1997 of $0.13 per share. Due to increased inventory positions at certain customers from sales in 1997 and the first quarter of 1998, as well as increased inventory positions at the Company, sales and operating income will be materially affected during the remainder of 1998. In addition, 1998 results will be impacted materially by charges related to, among other items, a change in management, changes in business operations resulting in part from acquisitions in 1998, interest costs associated with higher debt levels, costs associated with litigation and asset impairment costs, as well as costs related to Year 2000 issues. (See "Liquidity and Capital Resources", below, and Note 10 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

In March 1998, the Company prepaid a $75.0 million 7.85% industrial revenue bond related to its Hattiesburg facility originally due in 2009. In connection with the early extinguishment of this debt, the Company recognized an extraordinary charge of $8.6 million ($0.10 per share) in the first quarter of 1998.

The Company's discontinued furniture business, which was sold in March 1997, had revenues of $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997 prior to the sale and nominal earnings. As a result of the sale of the Company's furniture business assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), the Company received $69.0 million in cash, retained approximately $50.0 million in accounts receivable and retained certain liabilities. The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, the Company recorded an additional loss on disposal of $22.5 million pre-tax.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS

Approximately 90% of the Company's business is conducted in U.S. dollars (including both domestic sales, U.S. dollar denominated export sales, primarily to certain Latin American markets, Asian sales and the majority of European sales). The Company's exposure to market risk from changes in foreign currency and interest rates is generally insignificant. The Company's non-U.S. dollar denominated sales are made principally by subsidiaries in Mexico, Venezuela and Canada. Venezuela is considered a hyperinflationary economy for accounting purposes for 1998 and 1997 and Mexico reverted to a hyperinflationary status for accounting purposes in 1997; therefore, translation adjustments related to Venezuelan and Mexican net monetary assets are included as a component of net earnings. Mexico is not expected to be hyperinflationary at some point in 1998.

While Sunbeam's revenues generated in Asia have traditionally not been significant, economic instability in this region is expected to have a negative effect on Coleman's earnings. It is anticipated that sales in and exports to this region will continue to decline so long as the economic environment remains unsettled. It is not anticipated that this impact will be materially adverse to the Company's results of operations taken as a whole.

On a limited basis, the Company selectively uses derivatives (foreign exchange option and forward contracts) to manage foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. No derivative contracts are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's financial results in 1998 and 1997. (See Note 3 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

SEASONALITY

On a consolidated basis, the Company's sales have not traditionally exhibited substantial seasonality; however, sales have been strongest during the fourth quarter of the calendar year. Additionally, sales of Outdoor Cooking products are strongest in the first half of the year, while sales of Appliances and Personal Care and Comfort products are strongest in the second half of the year. Furthermore, sales of a number of the Company's traditional products, including warming blankets, vaporizers, humidifiers and grills may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions. After considering the seasonality of the acquired entities, the Company's consolidated sales are not expected to exhibit substantial seasonality; however, sales are expected to be strongest during the second quarter of the calendar year. Additionally, sales of many products sold by Coleman may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

In order to finance the acquisition of Coleman in the first quarter of 1998 and the anticipated acquisitions of First Alert, Inc. ("First Alert") and Signature Brands USA, Inc. ("Signature Brands") and to refinance substantially all of the indebtedness of the Company and the acquired entities, the Company consummated: (i) an offering (the "Offering") of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Debentures") at a yield to maturity of 5% (approximately $2,014 million principal amount at maturity) in March 1998, which resulted in approximately $730 million of net proceeds and, (ii) entered into a revolving and term credit facility ("New Credit Facility"). (See Note 10.)

The New Credit Facility provided for an aggregate borrowings of up to $1.7 billion pursuant to: (i) a revolving credit facility in an aggregate principal amount of up to $400 million, maturing March 31, 2005; (ii) an $800 million term loan maturing on March 31, 2005, and (iii) a $500 million term loan maturing September 30, 2006. Interest accrues at a rate selected at the Company's option of: (i) the London Interbank Offered Rate ("LIBOR") plus an agreed upon interest margin which varies depending upon the Company's leverage ratio, as defined, and other items or, (ii) the base rate of the administrative agent (generally the higher of the prime commercial lending rate of the administrative agent or the Federal Funds Rate plus 1/2 of 1%), plus an agreed upon interest margin which varies depending upon the Company's leverage ratio, as defined, and other items. (See Notes 3 and 10 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

As of March 31, 1998, the Company had cash and cash equivalents of $193.5 million, working capital excluding cash and cash equivalents of $707.5 million and total debt of $1.7 billion. Cash used in operating activities during the first quarter of 1998 was $134.7 million compared to $22.6 million in the first quarter of 1997. This increase is primarily attributable to lower earnings before non-cash charges and an increased investment in working capital. The majority of the increase in working capital is a result of higher inventory and receivables levels in 1998. Inventories increased $312.2 million from December 28, 1997, of which $246.3 million related to Coleman and $65.9 million related to Sunbeam's household and grill products. Receivables increased $272.2 million from December 28, 1997, with $215.1 million due to the Coleman acquisition and $57.1 million from Sunbeam's historical operating units. Extended dating terms contributed to the increase in Sunbeam's receivables. Cash used in operating activities for the 1998 first quarter reflects proceeds of $34.8 million from the Company's revolving trade accounts receivable securitization program entered into in December 1997. The Company expects to continue to use the securitization program to finance a portion of its accounts receivable. The Company anticipates that cash used in operating activities will increase in the second and third quarters of 1998, principally from losses incurred in operations and increases in inventory. As certain inventories built in 1997 and the first quarter of 1998 in anticipation of 1998 sales volumes exceed the actual requirements, it will be necessary to dispose of some portions of excess inventories at amounts less than cost.

Cash used in investing activities in the first quarter of 1998 reflects $160.6 million for the acquisition of approximately 81% of Coleman. In the first quarter of 1997, cash provided by investing activities reflected $70.4 million in proceeds from the sales of divested operations. Capital spending totaled $19.5 million in 1998 and was primarily for capacity expansion initiatives primarily at the Neosho grill manufacturing facility, and equipment and tooling for new products. Capital spending in 1997 was $10.9 million and was primarily attributable to manufacturing capacity expansion and equipment to manufacture new products. The new product capital spending in 1998 principally related to the Appliance category and included costs related to water and air filtration products, blenders, standmixers and irons. The Company anticipates 1998 capital spending to be approximately 5% of sales, primarily related to new product introductions, capacity additions and certain facility rationalization initiatives.

Cash provided by financing activities totaled $456.1 million in the first quarter of 1998 and reflects net proceeds from the Debentures of $729.6 million, the cancellation and repayment of all outstanding balances under the Company's $250 million September 1996 revolving credit facility, the repayment of certain Coleman debt and the early extinguishment of the $75.0 million Hattiesburg bond. In addition, cash provided by financing activities is net of $25.1 million of financing fees related to the Company's $1.7 billion New Credit Facility and $19.0 million of proceeds from the exercise of stock options. (See Note 3 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

In April 1998, the Company drew from the term loans under the New Credit Facility to fund the acquisitions of Signature Brands and First Alert as further described in Note 10 to the condensed consolidated financial statements and to refinance certain debt of the acquired companies. The Company drew an additional $550 million of term loans and $50 million of revolving loans in May 1998 to finance the prepayment of certain debt assumed in connection with the Coleman acquisition. In connection with these debt refinancings, the Company expects to record an extraordinary charge of approximately $104 million in the second quarter of 1998.

At June 30, 1998, the Company was not in compliance with the covenants and ratios under the New Credit Facility. The Company and its lenders entered into an agreement dated June 30, 1998, which provided that compliance with the covenants would be waived through December 31, 1998. Subsequently, pursuant to an amendment dated October 19, 1998, the Company is not required to comply with the original financial covenants and ratios under the New Credit Facility until April 10, 1999, but will be required to comply with an earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization covenant, the amounts of which are to be determined, beginning February 1999. At September 30, 1998, following the scheduled repayment of a portion of the term loan, the New Credit Facility was reduced to $1,698 million in total, of which approximately $1,453 million was outstanding and approximately $245 million was available. In addition, the Company's cash balance available for debt repayment at September 30, 1998 was approximately $43 million.

The Company is working closely with its bank lenders and hopes to reach agreement with the bank lenders on a further amendment to the New Credit Facility containing revised financial covenants which the bank lenders and the Company find mutually acceptable. There can be no assurance that such an amendment, or a further waiver of the existing financial covenants, will be entered into with the bank lenders by April 10, 1999. The failure to obtain such an amendment or further waiver would result in violation of the existing covenants, which would permit the bank lenders to accelerate the maturity of all outstanding borrowing under the New Credit Facility.

The Company expects to acquire the remaining equity interest in Coleman pursuant to a merger transaction in which the existing Coleman minority shareholders will receive approximately 6.7 million shares of common stock and approximately $87 million in cash. In addition, as a result of litigation related to the merger consideration, the Company has entered into a memorandum of understanding (subject to court approval) pursuant to which the holders of the remaining equity interest in Coleman will also receive five-year warrants to purchase 4.98 million shares of Sunbeam common stock at $7.00 per share. There can be no assurance that the court will approve the settlement as proposed. Although there can be no assurance, it is anticipated the Coleman merger will occur in the first quarter of fiscal 1999. (See Note 10 to the condensed consolidated financial statements.)

The Company believes its borrowing capacity under the New Credit Agreement, cash flow from the combined operations of the Company and its acquired companies, existing cash and cash equivalent balances, and its receivable securitization program will be sufficient to support working capital needs, capital spending, and debt service for the foreseeable future. However, if the Company is unable to satisfactorily amend the financial covenants and ratio requirements of the New Credit Facility or obtain a further waiver of the existing covenants and ratio requirements prior to April 10, 1999, the Company expects it would, at that time, be in default of the requirements under the New Credit Facility and, as noted above, the lenders could then require the repayment of all amounts then outstanding under the New Credit Facility.

NEW ACCOUNTING STANDARDS

See Notes 1 and 10 to the Company's condensed consolidated financial statements for a discussion of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 131, DISCLOSURES ABOUT SEGMENTS OF AN ENTERPRISE AND RELATED INFORMATION, SFAS No. 133, ACCOUNTING FOR DERIVATIVE INSTRUMENTS AND HEDGING ACTIVITIES, Statement of Position ("SOP") 98-1, ACCOUNTING FOR THE COSTS OF COMPUTER SOFTWARE DEVELOPED OR OBTAINED FOR INTERNAL USE and SOP 98-5, REPORTING ON THE COSTS OF START-UP ACTIVITIES, which are required to be adopted for periods beginning after December 15, 1997. The adoption of these standards is not expected to have a material effect on the Company's consolidated results of operations, financial position, or cash flows, although actual charges incurred may be material due to Year 2000 issues, as discussed below.

YEAR 2000

The Company is in the process of assessing the impact of the Year 2000 on its operations, including the Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands companies which were acquired by the Company in the spring of 1998. The Company established a Year 2000 Program Management Office in the third quarter of 1998 to conduct such assessment with assistance from three consulting firms. The Company's assessment encompasses the Company's information technology functions along with the impact of the effects of noncompliance by its vendors, service providers, customers, and financial institutions. Additionally, the Company is assessing the impact of noncompliance of embedded microprocessors in its products as well as equipment, such as security and telephone systems and controls for lighting, heating/ventilation, and facility access.

The Company relies on its information technology functions to perform many tasks that are critical to its operations. Significant transactions that could be impacted by Year 2000 noncompliance include, among others, purchases of materials, production management, order entry and fulfillment, and payroll processing. Systems and applications that have been identified by the Company to date as not currently Year 2000 compliant and which are critical to the Company's operations include its financial software systems, which process the order entry, purchasing, production management, general ledger, accounts receivable, and accounts payable functions, and critical applications in the Company's manufacturing and distribution facilities, such as the warehouse management application. The Company plans to complete corrective work with respect to the Company's systems by the second quarter of 1999 with final testing and implementation of such systems occurring in the third quarter of 1999. Management believes that, although there are significant systems that will need to be modified or replaced, the Company's information systems environment will be made Year 2000 compliant prior to January 1, 2000. The Company's failure to timely complete such corrective work could have a material adverse impact on the Company. The Company is not able to estimate possible lost profits arising from such failure.

The Company is in the process of contacting its vendors and suppliers of products and services to determine their Year 2000 readiness and plans. This review includes third party providers to whom the Company has outsourced the processing of its cash receipt and cash disbursement transactions. The Company plans to complete this review during the fourth quarter of 1998. The failure of certain of these third party suppliers to become Year 2000 compliant could have a material adverse impact on the Company.

The Company's preliminary assessment of the total costs to address and remedy Year 2000 issues, including costs for the acquired companies, is at least $50 million. This estimate includes the costs of software and hardware modifications and replacements and fees to third party consultants, but excludes internal resources. The Company expects these expenditures to be financed through operating cash flows or borrowings, as applicable. Through March 31, 1998, the Company had expended less than $1 million related to new systems and remediation to address Year 2000 issues, of which the majority was for software licenses and was therefore recorded as capital expenditures. Of the remaining estimated expenditures, it is anticipated that approximately 25% will be incurred by year-end 1998, with the remainder in 1999. A significant portion of these expenditures will enhance the Company's operating systems in addition to resolving the Year 2000 issues. As the Company completes its assessment of the Year 2000 issues, the actual expenditures incurred or to be incurred may differ materially from the amounts shown above.

After completing the assessment of the Year 2000 on its operations, the Company plans to establish a contingency plan for addressing any effects of the Year 2000 on its operations, whether due to noncompliance of the Company's systems or those of third parties. The Company expects to complete such contingency plan by September 30, 1999; such contingency plan will address alternative processes, such as manual procedures to replace those processed by noncompliant systems, potential alternative service providers, and plans to address compliance issues as they arise. Subject to the nature of the systems and applications which are not made Year 2000 compliant, the impact of such non-compliance on the Company's operations could be material if appropriate contingency plans cannot be developed prior to January 1, 2000.

SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

See Note 10 of Notes to the condensed consolidated financial statements for information relating to, among other matters, a change in management, litigation and anticipated asset impairment, inventory reserves and related liabilities.

RESTATEMENT OF RESULTS OF OPERATIONS FOR THE THREE MONTHS ENDED MARCH 30, 1997 COMPARED TO THE THREE MONTHS ENDED MARCH 31, 1996

The results of operations previously reported for the three months ended March 30, 1997 as compared with the three months ended March 31, 1996 generally understated the level of expenses incurred in 1997. Gross margin was previously reported to have improved 5.8 percentage points from the level achieved in 1996. After restatement, the gross margin improvement was 2.2 percentage points. Operating income was previously reported to have improved $19.2 million or 123.9% from 1996's first quarter to the first quarter of 1997. After reflecting the results of the restatement, operating earnings were $17.1 million for the first quarter of 1997, an improvement of $1.5 million or 9.9% from the prior year. PART II - OTHER INFORMATION

ITEM 1. LEGAL PROCEEDINGS

On April 23, 1998, two class action lawsuits were filed on behalf of purchasers of the Company's common stock in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida against the Company and certain of its present and former officers and directors alleging violations of the federal securities laws as discussed below (the "Consolidated Federal Actions"). Since that date, approximately fifteen similar class actions have been filed in the same Court. One of the lawsuits also names as defendant Arthur Andersen LLP, the Company's independent accountants.

The complaints in the Consolidated Federal Actions allege to varying degrees that the defendants (i) failed to disclose that the Company pre-sold approximately $50 million of products pursuant to its "early buy" marketing program in an effort to boost its 1997 sales and net income figures and (ii) made material misrepresentations regarding the Company's business operations, future prospects and anticipated earnings per share, in an effort to artificially inflate the price of the Company stock long enough for the Company to complete a $2 billion debt financing (supported with stock incentives) necessary to complete the acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, and for the individual defendants to enter into lucrative long-term employment agreements with the Company. Each complaint alleges two counts of securities fraud; one count against all defendants and one count against the individual defendants.

On June 16, 1998, the Court entered an Order consolidating all such filed and all such subsequently filed class actions and providing time periods for the filing of a Consolidated Amended Complaint and defendants' response thereto. On June 22, 1998, two groups of plaintiffs made motions to be appointed lead plaintiffs and to have their selection of counsel approved as lead counsel. On July 20, 1998, the Court entered an Order appointing lead plaintiffs and lead counsel (the "Smith Plaintiffs' Group"). This Order also stated that it "shall apply to all subsequently filed actions which are consolidated herewith". On August 28, 1998, plaintiffs in one of the subsequently filed actions filed an objection to having their action consolidated pursuant to the June 16, 1998 Order, arguing that the class period in their action differs from the class periods in the originally filed consolidated actions. On September 29, 1998, the Smith Plaintiffs' Group filed its memorandum in opposition to this objection.

On April 7, 1998, a purported derivative action was filed in the Circuit Court for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida against the Company and certain of its present and former officers and directors. The action alleged that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties and wasted corporate assets when the Company granted stock options to three of its officers and directors on or about February 2, 1998 at an exercise price of $36.85. On June 25, 1998, all defendants filed a motion to dismiss the complaint for failure to make a presuit demand on the board of directors of the Company. On October 22, 1998, plaintiff filed an amended complaint against all but one of the defendants named in the original complaint. The amended complaint no longer challenges the stock options, but instead alleges that the individual defendants breached their fiduciary duties by failing to have in place adequate accounting and sales controls, which failure caused the inaccurate reporting of financial information to the public, thereby causing an artificial inflation of the Company's financial statements and stock price.

On June 25, 1998, four purported class actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County by minority shareholders of Coleman against the Company and certain of the Company's present and former officers and directors. An additional class action was filed on August 10, 1998, against the same parties. All of the plaintiffs are represented by the same Delaware counsel and have agreed to consolidate the class actions. These actions allege, in essence, that the existing exchange ratio for the proposed merger between the Company and Coleman is no longer fair to Coleman shareholders as a result of the recent decline in the market value of the Company stock. On or about October 21, 1998, the parties signed a memorandum of understanding to settle these class actions, subject to court approval.

During the months of August and October 1998, purported class and derivative actions were filed in the Court of Chancery of the State of Delaware in New Castle County and in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida by shareholders of the Company against the Company, M&F and certain of the Company's present and former directors. These complaints allege that the defendants breached their fiduciary duties when the Company entered into a settlement agreement whereby M&F released the Company from any claims it may have had arising out of the Company's acquisition of its interest in Coleman and agreed to provide management support to the Company (the "Settlement Agreement"). Pursuant to the Settlement Agreement, a M&F subsidiary was granted five-year warrants to purchase up to an additional 23 million shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price of $7.00 per share. These complaints also allege that the rights of the public shareholders have been compromised, as the settlement would normally require shareholder approval under the rules and regulations of the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE"). The Audit Committee of the Company's board determined that obtaining such shareholder approval would have seriously jeopardized the financial viability of the Company which is an allowable exception to the NYSE shareholder approval requirement. An amended complaint has been filed on this action.

On September 16, 1998, an action was filed in the 56th Judicial District Court of Galveston County, Texas alleging various claims in violation of the Texas Securities Act and Texas Business and Commercial Code as well as common law fraud as a result of the Company's alleged misstatements and omissions regarding the Company's financial condition and prospects during a period beginning May 1, 1998 and ending June 16, 1998, in which the plaintiffs engaged in transactions in the Company's stock. The Company is the only named defendant in this action. The complaint requests recovery of compensatory damages, punitive damages and expenses in an unspecified amount. This action has been removed to the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas and the Company has filed a motion to transfer this case to the Southern District of Florida, the forum for the Consolidated Federal Actions. Plaintiffs have moved to remand the case to Texas state court.

On October 30, 1998, a class action lawsuit was filed on behalf of certain purchasers of the Company's Debentures in the U.S. District Court of the Southern District of Florida against the Company and its prior Chief Executive Officer and Chief Financial Officer, alleging violations of the federal securities laws and common law fraud. The complaint alleges that the Company's offering memorandum used for the marketing of the Debentures contained false and misleading information regarding the Company's financial position and that the defendants engaged in a plan to inflate the Company's earnings for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiffs and others. The Company is seeking to consolidate this lawsuit with the other Consolidated Federal Actions.

The Company intends to vigorously defend each of the foregoing lawsuits, but cannot predict the outcome and is not currently able to evaluate the likelihood of the Company's success in each case or the range of potential loss. However, if the foregoing actions were determined adversely to the Company, such judgments would likely have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flow.

On July 2, 1998, the American Insurance Company ("American") filed suit against the Company in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York requesting a declaratory judgment of the court that the directors' and officers' liability insurance policy for excess coverage issued by American was invalid and/or had been properly cancelled by American. The Company has moved to transfer such action to the federal district court in which the Consolidated Federal Actions are currently pending; American is opposing such motion. On October 20, 1998, an action was filed by Federal Insurance Company in the U.S. District Court for the Middle District of Florida requesting the same relief as that requested by American in the previously filed action as to additional coverage levels under the Company's directors' and officers' liability insurance policy. The Company intends to pursue recovery from all of its insurers if damages are awarded against the Company or its indemnified officers and/or directors under any of the foregoing actions. The Company's failure to obtain such insurance recoveries following an adverse judgement against the Company in any of the lawsuits referred to above could have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position, results of operations and cash flow.

The Company and its subsidiaries are also involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time which the Company considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of the Company, the resolution of these routine matters, and of certain matters relating to prior operations of the Company's predecessor, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect upon the financial position or results of operations of the Company.

Ron Perelman

Ron Perelman is one of the wealthiest men in America. In 15 years, he has taken a modest investment in a jewelry company, Cohen Hatfield Industries, and built a powerful portfolio of companies with combined revenues of about $7.8 billion. Forbes estimates his personal fortune at $4.5 billion.

The story of Perelman's rise to the top of the corporate world parallels the extraordinary economic expansion of the 1980s. He built his fortune by buying and building companies, unlike corporate raiders who merely bought and sold companies during that period.

Perleman's holding company, MacAndrews & Forbes, has a portfolio that includes Revlon (comestics and personal-care products), Marvel Entertainment (youth marketing, including Toy Biz, Fleer trading cards and Marvel comic books), the Coleman Company (outdoor recreation equipment), New World Communications Group (television broadcasting, production and distribution), Mafco Worldwide (flavors), Meridian Sports (water sports, including Boston Whaler boats), First Nationwide Bank (multistate banking), National Health Laboratories (clinical diagnostic-testing laboratories) and Consolidated Cigar Corporation (cigars).

Today, Perelman's efforts are focused on building a television-broadcasting empire. He is mentioned in the same breath as Rupert Murdoch, Ted Turner and Time Warner. Because of Murdoch's $500 million investment in Perelman's television stations, which are now affiliated with Murdoch's Fox Network, Perelman is even seen as a potential competitor against the big three networks: NBC, ABC and CBS. At the same time, he has used his investment in Marvel Entertainment to build a portfolio of marketable "action characters" similar to the Walt Disney Company model of animated characters.

Throughout this extraordinary period of success, Perelman has remained one of the least-known businessmen in the country. He has frequently been photographed at society events (holding an ever present cigar), but has never before given a one-on-one, question-and-answer interview.

In this wide-ranging session with Cigar Aficionado Editor and Publisher Marvin R. Shanken, Perelman discusses his love of cigars and his investment in Consolidated Cigar Corporation, as well as how he has built his business. He shares his own major disappointment, the acquisition that got away--Gillette. Perelman also talks for the first time about his relationship with investment banker Michael Milken and about his firm belief that there's nothing wrong with making money.

Perelman: This is my first interview.

Shanken: Ever?

Perelman: Yes.

Shanken: In New York magazine it said you rarely give interviews.

Perelman: This is the first one. I've given background before, but never a Q&A.

Shanken: All the stories I've read about you have a lot of information, but they're never in first person. I'm flattered and honored.

Perelman: It's a pleasure to be here. I've always been afraid of the press. My point of view is that the press could never do me any good, just a lot of harm. And as a result, I just tried to avoid the press. Then we got to a point where that was impossible. I've finally come out of the closet a bit.

Shanken: Let's get right into the interview. It's very unusual for someone to buy a company, sell the company and then buy the same company back, as is the case with Consolidated Cigar Corporation. It's particularly novel when we're talking about a product like a cigar, which is so personal to you. Could you tell us why you acquired Consolidated, why you then sold it and why you decided to buy it back?

Perelman: It's actually very simple. We first saw the company when Gulf & Western owned it. I had negotiated with Charlie Bludhorn and Martin Davis. We reached all the economic points of agreement, but the deal fell apart on technical issues, such as the representations and warranties that we had wanted from Gulf & Western, and that they were reluctant to give. [Consolidated] then ended up being sold in a management buyout. This management group ran into some real personality issues among themselves and ended up in serious litigation, with [Consolidated] suffering because of the lack of a focused manager. I reached out to one of the management group to see whether they'd be interested in selling.

Of course they said yes, and we very quickly negotiated a transaction.

Shanken: Did you want to buy Consolidated because it was a business that held a lot of potential for growth or was it because it was a cigar company?

Perelman: I have stayed away from buying companies that I don't think I'd enjoy owning. That's from the point of view of having a product that I think makes people happy or a product that does some good or a product that is just fun and interesting to own and operate. And Consolidated Cigar fit all that. It's a company that I thought had an enormous amount of potential but also had a product that I thought brought people a lot of pleasure. It's also a product that I've got some identification with because I'm such a strong smoker. We bought it, and Theo Folz, who is currently the chief executive officer, was wooed away from another company to join us, and he's done a fabulous job. Then it reached the point where I thought that from a financial point of view we were offered a very attractive price for the company, and I agreed to sell it.

Shanken: Was it for sale?

Perelman: No, it wasn't for sale.

Shanken: An investor came to you and said we'd like to buy your cigar company?

Perelman: The LBO funds were very flush with capital, they needed to do transactions, and they were paying up for transactions. And from a financial point of view, the deal was an interesting transaction. But I still really liked the company and really liked the product, so that when I heard that they wanted to sell it again out of the LBO fund, we approached them and said we have serious interest, and in very short order, we negotiated a transaction and bought it back.

Shanken: When you bought it back, you paid a substantially higher price.

Perelman: Yes.

Shanken: You sold Consolidated at what you thought was a very high price in 1984. And then you bought it back at a price well above what you sold it for? According to published reports, you paid $118 millionfor it in 1984 and sold it for $138 million in 1988 and then reacquired it for $188 million in 1993.

Perelman: Theo did a fabulous job in the two years that he ran it for the LBO fund, and it was worth more when we bought it back than it was when we sold it. So it still was a very interesting financial transaction for us to buy it back. I'm glad to be back in the business. I love the business.

Shanken: How do you decide which companies you are interested in buying?

Perelman: There's a financial profile for the companies that we'll buy and won't buy. They've got to be stable cash-flow generators, they've got to be non-capital-intensive cash-flow generators, they've got to be nonfashion and nonfad and non-high-tech. And other than these two categories--fashion and high-tech--we'll look at anything. I look with more interest at companies that excite me with their product line.

Shanken: You say nonfashion and non-high-tech. Isn't Revlon fashion?

Perelman: No. It might be in a given year. In a certain season, certain fashion colors--that this year reds are more popular than the pinks--but we just change the blend a little bit. Cosmetics are a product that has been around for thousands of years and will be around for thousands of years in the future, and you know, besides a slight variation in color, there's really no shape difference or length difference.

Shanken: In terms of Consolidated, it seems as though the repurchase in 1992 was perfectly timed to go with the cigar renaissance. Maybe you didn't know it six months before, but it was very clear six months later that there was something exciting going on in the cigar market. What is your outlook for the future of cigar smoking, given the social climate and the antismoking restrictions and regulations that seem to be spreading across America?

Perelman: We're very optimistic about consumption in the long term. The baby boomers have shown a real interest in smoking cigars. You now have real public cigar smokers--celebrities, sports figures, movie personalities and the like--so that there is sort of an endorsement by the celebrities of cigar smoking and the pleasures associated with it. There are more smokers now than, say, five years ago, but of course consumption is way down from its peak.

Shanken: But are you concerned about owning a business in an industry that has so much negative pressure and restrictions from government? It's not cigarettes, but cigars still suffer from the same smoking restrictions.

Perelman: It's less pressure from government than it is social pressure as to where cigar smoking is permitted and socially acceptable. But I think even that is changing a bit. I think restaurants that previously would not allow cigar smoking are now becoming more lenient. If they allow cigarettes, they'll allow cigars in the same smoking section. And I think that gradually the public is getting more used to and more accepting of cigar smoking in public restaurants and other facilities. We are very optimistic on cigar usage and consumption.

Shanken: Earlier, you said you like companies with stable cash flows that don't need a lot of additional investment on the part of the buyer. But you bought a company that today, due to sharply increased sales,has a very significant back-order situation: it is not able to produce and ship enough cigars to meet retail orders or the demand in the marketplace. Do you have plans to expand your facilities and your manufacturing personnel? What has your directive been to Consolidated to handle this happy problem?

Perelman: We are looking at expanding our facilities both in physical size and capacity vis-à-vis the workforce. But that is a slower process because skilled hand laborers are required, and it is not something that can be taught overnight. But, clearly, we are committed to filling the demand as it continues, we hope, to increase. The managers will do whatever they think is necessary to run the business efficiently. If it means counting a higher level of income to support a higher level of sales, they would just do that routinely.

Shanken: Have you discussed with Consolidated's management new brands, new approaches, new marketing? Consolidated is the largest producer of cigars in America, both in the midprice, as well as...

Perelman: Mass market.

Shanken: Right. And you have a number of different brands . Has there been a reexamination of investment for advertising or for marketing? So far, you've concentrated on only a few of your brands. Are there any plans at this point to become more aggressive given the strong U.S. market for cigars?

Perelman: I don't think so. I think we've got brands that have been established for many years, particularly the old Cuba brands. On the mass-market and premium-mass level, we are coming out with some new products; but on the premium level, we're just going to be consistent supporters of our existing brands, and unless an acquisition of an existing brand comes along, we're just going to support our existing brands.

Shanken: What are the sales of Consolidated?

Perelman: Around $130 million. In 1994, premium cigar units [from the Dominican Republic, Honduras and Mexico] sold were 40 million and mass-market cigar units were 900 million.

Shanken: Do you recall what it was 10 years ago when you originally bought it?

Perelman: It was around, I would guess, $85 million to $100 million, something like that.

012020

Shanken: And now it's $130 million. Is the level of profitability greater?

Perelman: Much greater.

Shanken: Consolidated owns a number of prestigious Cuban brand names--like H. Upmann, Montecristo and Por Larrañaga. How do you plan to take advantage of these trademarks when the trade embargo with Cuba is lifted?

Perelman: I think when that happens--and it's probably more likely than ever to happen in the next five years--we'll have to see what opportunities exist for us to take advantage with regard to Cuba.

Shanken: Well, do you plan to establish operations in Cuba when the embargo's lifted?

Perelman: I think we'll wait and see what the world looks like then. You know, clearly, when Cuba opens up, there's going to be a market for Cuban cigars, and we are going to want to be a player in that market. If you look at the pricing of a Cuban cigar currently sold in Europe and the Far East, it's a $15-plus cigar. The likelihood of it replacing the current $5 to $6 premium product in the United States is not great. But there will be a segment that will pay the price to buy a Cuban cigar. But those cigars will have to be blended in and layered on top of the existing pricing structure and the existing products available. We'll have to see what the opportunities are then. It won't happen overnight.

Shanken: Isn't it every cigar lover's fantasy--like a wine lover's to have a château and a vineyard in Bordeaux--to have a factory, a business in Cuba?

Perelman: If you're asking me whether I'd ultimately like to be there, absolutely. But we'll have to see what the opportunities are at the time.

Shanken: But it almost doesn't even have to be a sound business judgment.

Perelman: Yes, it does.

Shanken: On Route 29 in Napa Valley there are over 200 wineries of which probably 50 wineries were uneconomic from day one. All the wineries were built in the last 15 years without any regard to investment or business reality. Rich people came in, they wanted to have a winery, they wanted to build a château. They'll never make a profit. The standing wine-industry joke is: Do you know how to make a small fortune in wine? Start with a large one.

Perelman: We've been very disciplined in staying away from nonfinancial, ego-gratification-type businesses.

Shanken: Just this one time, Ron?

Perelman: OK. If the right opportunity comes along, it might be interesting. And we'll look at it anyway.

Shanken: What kind of cigars do you smoke?

Perelman: They [Consolidated Cigar] actually do an H. Upmann for me at about a 38 ring gauge, a long, narrow cigar that I love.

Shanken: Is that the only cigar you smoke?

Perelman: I'm smoking one of yours now, which is great. I'm going to come back here once a week and smoke cigars.

Shanken: When you sold Consolidated did you continue to smoke H. Upmann?

Perelman: No. I wasn't getting the product then. I was smoking Davidoff, a little bit of Cohiba. But our cigars coming out of the Dominican now are very close to--if not as good as--the Cuban product that I was getting.

Shanken: Have you ever visited Cuba?

Perelman: No. I've been scheduled to visit and unfortunately had business conflicts, but I am very anxious to go down. Absolutely.

Shanken: Do you recall how you first got interested in cigars? Did your father smoke cigars? Did your grandfather?

Perelman: I remember specifically. I was about 26 years old, and I was at a meeting with about 12 people, and the meeting was dragging and dragging and dragging. Across the table from me was one of our lawyers, who pulled out a cigar, and I'd never thought about smoking, but it looked like he was enjoying it to such a great extent that I wanted to try one. So I had one that day, and from that day on, I have smoked cigars.

Shanken: Had you smoked cigarettes before then?

Perelman: No.

Shanken: Who was the lawyer? He deserves recognition.

Perelman: Laddie Montague.

Shanken: Your father has never smoked cigars?

Perelman: No.

Shanken: Has he ever commented on your smoking cigars?

Perelman: No.

Shanken: Why do you think people like you and me and all the Cigar Aficionado readers out there have been drawn to cigars? What is the pleasure? What is the factor that makes us so passionate?

Perelman: I think it gives real pleasure. It gives me a sense of relaxation that almost nothing else does--except maybe a glass of wine. It gives me a real sense of being able to have a moment of luxury in the middle of whatever I'm doing.

Shanken: Tell me, because the people reading this magazine have the same frustrations as you do. Do you steer clear of restaurants that don't welcome your cigar? Or do restaurants accommodate you because you're Ron Perelman?

Perelman: No. I think I pretty much gravitate toward restaurants that allow cigar smoking, partly because it's so important to me to smoke, particularly after dinner. But from a purely financial point of view, if somebody is not going to support my business, I'm certainly not going to support their business. I think that today, most of the good restaurants, particularly in New York, do allow smoking.

Shanken: What are some of your favorites where you know you're welcome to smoke?

Perelman: '21' Club, Le Cirque, Coco Pazzo, Harry's. They're mostly restaurants that have an old New York flair, like '21,' or a heavy European clientele who have been and continue to be strong cigar smokers.

Shanken: I assume when you travel outside the United States it's a nonissue.

Perelman: It's a nonissue. The biggest problem is in California because there nobody smokes. No place.

Shanken: So what do you do?

Perelman: I don't smoke.

Shanken: Maybe it's time to buy a restaurant in California.

Perelman: The laws there are stronger for smoking sections and prohibition than anyplace else. There is a real animosity toward smokers amongst the patrons.

Shanken: The crime is that there are more serious and sophisticated and knowledgeable cigar aficionados in L.A. than maybe anywhere else in America. I mean they really love their cigars, and for these people to have so few places to go, has to be frustrating.

Perelman: There are cigar dinners. But it's probably the most health-conscious community in America.

Shanken: Let's move on. You've looked at many different industries, and by owning Revlon, among others, you must be an experienced judge of consumer advertising. Is the cigar industry's advertising of premium cigars up to par?

Perelman: No. I think it's very boring. I think it's much too laid back. I think that it's not of the new generation of smokers yet. I think that will come. Now with the resurgence of interest, I think just by definition you're going to get a better quality marketing program, including advertising. But that has not yet appeared.

Shanken: The big impetus for the cigar industry is young guys in their 20s and early 30s who've entered the market for the first time. They represent a huge opportunity. And on a much smaller scale, women. It doesn't seem like anyone has gone after those markets, each of which may represent a big marketing opportunity. Why is that?

Perelman: I think you're right. I think the younger smokers will start to be viewed much more seriously by the manufacturers. Women are still very rare. It's sometimes used today by a woman as a device to show that she's hip or liberated or a worldly person. The industry has tried for years to induce and entice women to smoke, and it hasn't worked.

Shanken: Let me move to a few other subjects. The recent creation of New World Communications attracted a significant investment from another significant media player, Rupert Murdoch. The deal has catapulted you into being a major player in the media world. How do you envision the television-broadcasting world changing? What do you see for the future? How did you create, almost overnight, this major television business?

Perelman: We were presented with a transaction a little over a year ago to buy the old SCI stations, which was our first station group. It was a very intriguing financial acquisition. There were seven stations, top 20 markets. It was Detroit, Atlanta, San Diego, Boston, Milwaukee, Cleveland and Tampa. Good markets. We were able to buy those at a price of slightly less than six times cash flow. It was a very good financial transaction. We had never put on our screen that one of our top industries to go into was TV broadcasting. But that transaction made such enormous sense that we entered the industry. We then decided once we were in it to be really in it. We contracted to buy two other station groups, the old GACC (Great American Communications Company) and Argyle Communications stations. On a parallel track, we had several years ago purchased a small television producer called New World Entertainment. And putting the two together made enormous financial sense to both companies, in that we had a captive market for the production of our product. Out of the blue comes Rupert, who wants to increase his affiliation base, and we were able to do a transaction that allows us a 10-year affiliation agreement with Fox.

Shanken: Fox had just gotten the NFL?

Perelman: Right. The fact that CBS lost the NFL, and the fact that Fox got the NFL were important to us. We got an investment of somewhere around $500 million and, at the same time and probably more important than either of those two, we got programming clearances--not commitments, clearances--on the Fox-owned-and-operated stations. So that we now have, between our o&o's [owned and operated] and the Fox o&o's, about a 45 percent carry of our product. We have a station base now that allows us to clear 45 percent of the country from day one, which was as important as any of the other two elements in the transaction.

Shanken: Murdoch came to you with this proposal?

Perelman: The proposal came about at a meeting between Bill Bevins, who runs New World, and Murdoch.

Shanken: You were able to get fresh capital so that on a market-value capitalized basis, it put the value of the business at a much higher level.

Perelman: It was a good move for everybody. And that's the best kind of deal: when both players leading the transaction are happy that it's a fair transaction.

Shanken: And how did it come about that you then acquired the production business of Brandon Tartikoff?

Perelman: I thought that he was a known talent--he is a brilliant TV programmer. He had left two corporate positions--one at NBC and one at Paramount--to set up his own entrepreneurial company. We came along at a crucial point for him when he was at a crossroads of whether to continue his own business or affiliate with a larger company. It was a perfect marriage of facilities and talent. And he's a fabulous guy.

Shanken: Of course there's the Marvel Comics situation, too. I can't imagine that when you bought Marvel you had any idea what a score that was going to be.

NOT CERTIFIED COPY

16div-019243

Perelman: That's correct.

Shanken: Having said that, you now have those comic-book characters who are available to you in terms of producing movies and other programming. You almost could be a mini-Disney.

Perelman: Right. It is a mini-Disney in terms of intellectual property. We are a developer of characters just as Disney is. Disney 's got much more highly recognized characters and "softer" characters, whereas our characters are termed as action heroes. But at Marvel we are now in the creation and marketing of characters. The comic-book business--which was 95 percent of the business when we bought Marvel--today represents about 15 percent of the business.

Shanken: There was a significant piece in The Wall Street Journal four years ago where you were labeled a corporate raider. But it has really come down to the fact that you are a business builder, which is far different from a raider. You started in business with your father many years ago. Do you feel that the experiences with your father were in large part your MBA program?

Perelman: My experiences and education in working with and for my father were probably the most valuable that I've done and certainly at least as valuable, if not more so, than an actual MBA that I got in 1966. We had a unique working relationship. He allowed me--even forced me--to take on responsibility and authority at a very young age, far beyond what I thought was my capacity. So that very early on I got a lot of experience in dealing in the operations of businesses. And I grew up operating businesses. I left the family business in 1979 over an issue that I really wanted to start out on my own. It caused some tension initially, which we subsequently removed. But my experiences and education in working at the family business were absolutely critical in the development of my capacity.

Shanken: Your father is alive today?

Perelman: Yes.

Shanken: He must be very proud of you.

Perelman: You'll have to ask him.

Shanken: What and when was your first real break? I am sure that whatever it was, it had high risk.

Perelman: The core was a company called Cohen Hatfield Industries that I purchased control of in 1979. It was a low-risk transaction. It was then in the wholesale and retail jewelry business. And I bought 40 percent of the stock from one seller. It was an American Stock Exchange-listed company, and I bought it at, I think it was 35 percent of stated book value, and stated book value was understated by about 40 percent because gold and diamonds had started a real run-up at that time. The point was to get out of the jewelry business and use those proceeds to invest in a business that I felt more comfortable with. Our first large transaction after Cohen Hatfield was MacAndrews & Forbes.

Shanken: How big was the jewelry company at the time?

Perelman: Sales of under $50 million, $40 million or $50 million. I bought my 40 percent for about $1.5 million.

Shanken: That isn't bad.

Perelman: And that allowed us to take the next step of buying MacAndrews & Forbes, which was a New York Stock Exchange company, and their two businesses, plus cash--they had just gotten out of the textile and fiber business, and they had about $15 million in cash. They were in the chocolate business. They were the largest independent manufacturer, other than Hershey, of chocolate for food manufacturers, and they were in the licorice business, being the largest supplier of licorice extract to the tobacco industry.

Shanken: And how big was that company?

Perelman: They did probably $120 million. We then sold off the chocolate business.

Shanken: You bought all of MacAndrews & Forbes?

Perelman: We bought the whole company. It was a public company. We did a public tender.

Shanken: And what did it cost to buy the company?

Perelman: About $45 million to $50 million. We then sold off the chocolate business for the $45 million that we had paid for the whole thing. We were left with the licorice business. But if you look at 80 percent of the transactions that we've done, except for synergistic transactions within existing companies, they were companies that had several unique operations with a core business that we wanted to keep, and other unique or separate businesses that we wanted to exit from.

Shanken: How did you finance the MacAndrews & Forbes acquisition, since that was your first big purchase?

Perelman: We did it with funding from the banks, primarily Chase and First National Bank of Boston, and then found ourselves in a position to quickly repay that because of the sale of the chocolate business. We effectively ended up owning the flavors business for nothing.

Shanken: So Technicolor came after that?

Perelman: And Technicolor had the same profile. We paid $125 million for Technicolor. It was clear that their theatrical film processing/videocassette business was a business we wanted to consider a core business and build on. It had four or five peripheral businesses that we wanted to immediately exit from. And we got about half our purchase price back with the sale of peripheral businesses, and we were left with a core business that we could grow. We took that business from a $5 million cash-flow generator when we bought it to just under a $100 million cash-flow generator when we sold it.

Shanken: When you bought Revlon, what year was that?

Perelman: '86.

Shanken: From the media coverage at the time, it seemed that the Revlon purchase ended up forcing you to dig in and get involved with the nuts and bolts of the company right down to the local plants and so forth. Did you know going in that this was going to be such a complicated high-risk investment?

Perelman: Well, it was neither complicated nor high risk. It was a highly visible investment. It was a highly thought-out transaction. It was probably the largest entrepreneurially managed hostile takeover to date in 1986. And as such it got an enormous amount of press attention. But the profile of the company was exactly what I had described earlier. Revlon was a company that had several pieces, some of which we clearly wanted to sell immediately, some of which we wanted to hold for a longer period of time, and some we wanted to hold forever. And the piece that we were most attracted to was the cosmetics piece.

Shanken: So there was never a time when you stayed up all night, saying what the hell have I got myself into?

Perelman: No.

Shanken: So a lot of the press reports were false?

Perelman: I'm not saying that everything went as I had planned, but there was never a point where I said to myself, why did I get myself into this?

Shanken: I'm aware of many of your investments. They all seem to be very successful. What was your biggest failure?

Perelman: Hmmm.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012028

16div-019246

Shanken: Have you had any failures?

Perelman: Well, I think Revlon has been the most difficult company for us to manage. I think that we fixed it early on in 1986 when we bought it. Then we did not pay enough attention to it for a while, and it suffered from that.

Shanken: How can you not pay attention to a business doing $2 billion or $3 billion?

Perelman: Because we started paying attention to other things. We were at the same time doing a series of other transactions. We had bought a bank in Texas, which required a lot of our time and attention. Over the last two years, we've gotten Revlon to the point where it's better than ever, and I am very happy with that. I am very proud of that.

Shanken: When you bought Revlon, what was its cash flow? What is its cash flow today?

Perelman: Cash flow was about $15 million in 1984, 1994 cash flow was around $200 million and 1995 significantly higher than that. There's been a very good job done in the business of Revlon.

Shanken: Is there any one company that you get more involved in the day-to-day managing, or at this point are you pretty much an overseer of all the businesses?

Perelman: I divide my time close to equally among them all. Every month we have in-depth management meetings on the operations of each of the units. Depending on the company, I'll either get daily or weekly or, in some cases, monthly numbers. But today the businesses have been in our portfolio long enough that we've got a shorthand with operating management of those companies. They know what to be sensitive to and what surprises they want to alert me to, so that they're not surprises. They understand their businesses very well.

Shanken: It's fair to say, at this point, that each business, is run by a...

Perelman: Each of our businesses is run by an independent decentralized manager.

Shanken: With a strong leader.

Perelman: With a very strong manager.

Shanken: I want to go back to this corporate-raider image. Obviously, the title was in vogue, so that anyone who bought a business was a corporate raider. Is there any particular reason why they threw you into the pot with all the others if you have basically stayed with the businesses that you've acquired?

Perelman: At the time I think that anyone doing a hostile deal--Revlon clearly was a hostile transaction--was termed a "raider." And we got sort of locked into that, into that timing.

Shanken: There were a few deals that you ended up walking away from or that they paid you off or bought your stock back. Were there any deals that you didn't conclude that you regret?

Perelman: There is only one deal that fell into that category of walking away from it. In others we were overbid. But there was only one transaction where we sold the stock back to the company. That was Gillette. And that was probably the deal that was the biggest disappointment.

Shanken: Because it got away or because you really believed that this was a business you could grow?

Perelman: I think it was a transaction that had fabulous potential as evidenced by the fact of what it's done. And a transaction that we desperately wanted to get accomplished and...

Shanken: Who blocked you? What happened?

Perelman: It was a New York Stock Exchange company. What happened was very interesting. We had made this tender for Gillette. The company was very aggressive in fighting to remain independent and there came a point.... The fighting didn't bother me. There came a point when their investment banker, Eric Gleacher from Morgan Stanley, who had been our investment banker in Revlon, came up to me on a Sunday morning and said they will sell a blocking preferred [a block of stock that makes it more difficult to put together a controlling percentage of stock] at 20 percent to another corporate institution. We didn't hear the name at that time. It turned out to be Ralston Purina, and we were faced on that Sunday with the prospect of fighting two corporate establishments and a different kind of capital structure. With Ralston having a 20 percent blocking preferred, that made it appear very difficult for us to get that transaction completed. During the day on Sunday I agreed to sell our stock to Ralston. Gillette came back to us in the middle of the night and said they were unable to finalize their agreement with Ralston, and would we sell the stock to [Gillette] that night? And they'll sell the stock to Ralston the next day. And I agreed to do that. Probably one of the worst decisions I've ever made. And the rest is history. They never did the deal with Ralston and remained independent.

Shanken: How big an investment was it that you sold to them?

Perelman: In dollars, probably $800 million.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012030

16div-019248

Shanken: And did you make a profit on the sale?

Perelman: Yes.

Shanken: A substantial profit?

Perelman: I don't remember what it was. It was in excess of $50 million.

Shanken: What was it? They wanted to remain independent, or they didn't want Ron Perelman?

Perelman: I think they wanted to remain independent. I think that who took them out of their independent status was far less significant than...

Shanken: Who did?

Perelman: Nobody did. They never did the deal with Ralston Purina, and they just started performing up to the levels that we thought all along they could perform at and they ultimately did a deal with Warren Buffett. They did a preferred with Warren Buffett, who gave them the money to pay back the banks for the stock they bought from us, and then they took Buffett out. A brilliant deal for Buffett.

Shanken: At what point did you start doing business with Drexel? Early on?

Perelman: Definitely. Probably 1980.

Shanken: And Drexel was...Michael Milken?

Perelman: It was a whole group of people.

Shanken: You knew Milken intimately. Did the man get a bum rap, or did the man get what he deserved? What do you think about this whole chapter in American business history?

Perelman: I can speak only from my personal knowledge. He's brilliant. He's sensitive. He's caring. He's a unique individual. During the entire time that we did business together. It was for a period of six or seven years, and never was there a suggestion or hint of doing anything that was improper. Not just illegal, improper. I mean, legality never entered into it. So with us, there was never even a hint of any impropriety. I think that Michael's biggest problem was that he created a product that allowed for capital availability to a whole segment of the business community that did not have that kind of capital availability before.

Shanken: Companies were at the mercy of the commercial bank, and all of a sudden with junk bonds they had access to new and more flexible financing?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16div-019249

Perelman: Resources beyond anybody's wildest imagination. And I think that this in and of itself concerned a lot of people. It concerned corporate America; I think it concerned some of the political structure, and I think there was a great fear over the product and, in turn, of Michael. I think that brought about a lot of the concern and the antagonism toward Michael and toward the product.

Shanken: I'm sure from time to time you have thought about Michael Milken, and I would assume that as any friend you feel a certain amount of sadness that he spent the past few years in prison and now he's very sick. Is there a moral to this story?

Perelman: I don't know, you tell me. I think your observation of this is the same as pretty much anybody else's. I think there was a change of times. I think that the '80s were very different than the '90s, and I think looking back at them we wonder how we did some of the things we did in the '80s, how we bought some of the things we bought on a personal consumption level. It was a different time than now. I don't know if there's a moral here. I think there's a shift in attitudes and values.

Shanken: Is it that had he not been as great a success as he was, perhaps no one would have bothered to put him out of business and lock him away?

Perelman: I think there's probably a lot to that. I think there was a lot of fear created about what was going on in the country, and in large part, the fears were focused on Michael and the product that he created. He became sort of the symbol of the '80s.

Shanken: On the flip side, you can ask yourself: Should one man make a billion and a half dollars a year, and his brother a half billion?

Perelman: But America is not about legislating economic success. I mean, you might tax it, but don't legislate against it. This country has been built in large measure by the entrepreneurs who came out with either a concept, or an idea, or a product or a way of doing business.

Shanken: As far as I know, Ron Perelman is untainted. But you're up there, and people want to take shots at a guy who's successful, visible. Do you think sometimes that somebody's going to want to get you?

Perelman: I think that we've been very diligent about making sure that what we do is not only legally correct and morally correct but has the appearance of both. I think that early on I recognized that we would be doing business in arenas that were new to me. And as such, I surrounded myself with a lot of talent--legal talent, financial talent--to make sure that everything we did, was and looked and smelled proper and correct. And I think that's been very important to us in the past and will continue to be important to us in the future.

Shanken: One of the things I read about also is that you have this small group of associates who not only are bright, but you are all great friends. As the story goes, you have breakfast together every day, you have lunch together every day. When you and I had lunch last month, you brought two of them along. Who are these people and what are their roles in this senior management group?

Perelman: Well, the first senior executive that joined the company was Bruce Slovin, who had been the second most senior guy at Hanson Industries--a Harvard-educated lawyer. He started out and continues to be primarily associated with acquisitions. Then, probably my longest and dearest and closest friend in the world, Howard Gittis, who was my lawyer when I was in Philadelphia. He was the managing partner of Wolf, Block, Schorr and Solis-Cohen and was considering a change of career about 10 years ago. And I said if you're going to change your career, there's only one career path that you're going to be on, and he joined us. He's the senior administrative officer. And then Donald Drapkin, who had been our partner at Skadden Arps, likewise reached a point where he was thinking about a change of career, and I made the same speech to him that I made to Gittis and he joined us at that time, and he's basically our in-house strategic thinker. He's our in-house investment banker.

Shanken: Are you like brothers?

Perelman: In a lot of ways, we are. We have been very fortunate to have within the enterprise a unique relationship.

Shanken: You are very lucky then. What do you say to yourself when you think about what you've accomplished in your career? Your career isn't over?

Perelman: I hope not. I try not to think about it in that kind of way. I think I've been enormously fortunate. I am a great believer that you don't do everything on your own, that there's in fact a plan, a grand plan, and I try to minimize the amount of time that any of us spend thinking about the job that's been done in the past, whether it was the best we could have done or not. Just concentrate on what we're doing today and what we'll do in the future. I can appreciate you asking the question, but I don't think about it.

Shanken: But there have to be moments of weakness. There are perhaps a dozen people in the world today who have achieved what you have achieved, pretty much on your own.

Perelman: Yes. With a group of intelligent, well-experienced individuals as part of the team.

Shanken: But you are the team leader. If you were a failure, the failure would not be passed on. I mean if you screwed up, you're the one, not the guys around you.

Perelman: Absolutely right.

Shanken: So, there has to be a moment when you have to take enormous pride and satisfaction.

Perelman: Very rare. I guess I don't think about the scope of it that seriously, and I guess I put it in context with what I'd like to see us doing over the next several years. But what we've done in the past doesn't take on any importance to me. From a distance you might think that it would. I really don't think about it in the context of what we've done in the past or pat ourselves on the back or take great satisfaction. I mean...

Shanken: So what you're saying is that the job is not done yet.

Perelman: It's just beginning.

Subject: Update on Sunbeam

Yesterday the banks met with Sunbeam senior management and MacAndrews & Forbes to discuss the latest developments as well as covenant relief from the banks. In attendance were Jerry Levin, new CEO, Paul Sarvino, Chief Admin Officer, and from M&F-Howard Gittis, Irwin Engelman, and Todd Slotkin. The banks had their counsel Davis Polk and the company had Skadden in attendance. BofA had myself, Steve Sterling-Syndications and Tom Biaggi-SAG, in attendance.

First- Jerry Levin updated everyone on their latest findings in the company now that they have been on the job for 10 days in Florida. Additional disturbing findings are now becoming clear:

- It is a virtual certainty in management's view that the 1997 audited financial statements will have to be re-stated due to accounting irregularities. Recall that Arthur Anderson gave a clean unqualified opinion on the Sunbeam 1997 statements and again supported that decision to the Board last week. Now however both new management and Arthur Anderson are finding things which are material which make the 1997 statements probably erroneous. For example, it appears that at least $165mm in sales accounted for as 1997 sales were in fact either 1996 sales or 1998 sales. Yes it appears the misleading statements started as early as late 1996 when Dunlap took over and some late 1996 sales were shown as 1997 while the associated expenses were left in '96. Again this was done at the end of 97 but in reverse.

- Arthur Anderson has said to M&F that they were " lied to in a fraudulent fashion by management"

- Because now Arthur Anderson will not consent to allow their 1997 opinion to be used in the planned S-3 filing (to register the existing zero coupon convertibles) that filing is being delayed. Note- this does not result in any default on the zeros but does cause a $5,000 per day penalty for late filing of the registration statement.

- Deloitte will do another audit of 1997 and an opinion and likely restated 1997 would come out around October 15th.

- New management will probably have a handle on the situation at the company and be able to forecast future income statements by August 10. At this point the business in 1999 looks more like a $ 2.5 billion sales and $ 325 to $350mm Ebitda business rather than Dunlap's 1998 of $ 2.8 billion sales and $ 460mm Ebitda. However given all the problems and accounting issues, 1998 numbers will be severely down. While Jerry Levin has now hired back most of the Coleman people that were fired or walked out the door in April, Coleman's business was significantly hurt for two months but is now OK according to management and M&F.

The Bank negotiation: we have an oral deal but first here is some background:
The company needs covenant relief and access to the remaining $270mm available under the $ 1.7 b bank facility. The banks have said ok but have insisted on getting now the stock of Coleman which is pledged to us but not in our possession and therefore not perfected. The Board and Howard Gittis have said no to the Coleman stock because they do not want to give us a valuable asset for a 45-day covenant waivar (the original deal on the table) and run the risk that if things don't look good in two months we take the collateral and accelerate. M&F bluntly stated that unless we gave a longer and stronger indication of support that they will have access to credit during this transition, that they would i) pull Jerry Levin back to Revlon and ii) M&F would walk and we can have a legal fight over who gets Coleman. After the banks talked amongst themselves it was clear we all preferred to be fully covered by collateral. Today, we have $ 1.4 b in bank loans and we have partial collateral. We felt we would rather have $ 1.7 b in loans and be fully secured. The banks and the company and its board have verbally agreed to the following:

- company gets full access to the revolver until December 31 (i.e- no conditions to borrowings) plus no financial tests until then.
- in return we get the stock of Coleman and security in all the material hard assets (except Coleman)
- we are still discussing pricing changes

Rationale:
* this support from the banks gives the market and the trade a positive signal. The trade is likely to move against the company somewhat even with this but less so if we only gave a 45 day waiver.
* we and the management think there is value in the company once it fixes the mess left by the Dunlap management. Even with the stock price at $ 10 per share (down from $50), the enterprise value of the company is $ 3.3 billion, compared to senior secured debt of $ 1.5 billion. $ 2.5 b in sales and $ 325 ebitda also confirms about a $ 3 billion valuation. Again we would rather be fully secured with a little more in outstandings and prevent the trade from over reacting

BACRR rating. DCA, SAG and the Credit Manager in Atlanta all view this as a Bacrr- 5 with this information although a cash forecast due to us in the first week of July would confirm this view. The expectation would be to restructure the loan between August and October once we get real numbers to work with. A syndication is not likely until after the restatement of 1997 by Deloitte. We should plan on no syndication until December or January. Our view is with the loan covered by collateral and enterprise value 2:1 the risk rating will probably stay a 5. But if by end of August the future cash flows forecast are materially less than $ 300mm BofA should prepare for the potential of a Substandard rating before the Oct 15 new audit.

Pricing Mechanism Overview

Transaction pricing assumes the following steps:

I. Assumed CAMPER Holding Company debt balance of $500,000,000 is offset by a portion of the existing Holding Company stock position in CAMPER at an assumed $26.00 per CAMPER share valuation. The economic cancellation of the existing CAMPER Holding Company debt reduces the CAMPER Holding Company's CAMPER stock ownership position by 19,230,769 shares ($500,000,000/$26.00=19,230,769 shares)

II. Each remaining CAMPER share owned by CAMPER Holding Company (44,067,520[1]-19,230,769=24,836,751 shares) as well as all CAMPER shares help by public shareholders (10,708,480[1] shares) are valued at 0.7450 LASER Common Shares, at an approximate implied value of $28.68 per CAMPER share as of February 19,1998. MAFCO Affiliates to receive 18,503,379 LASER Common Shares (24,836,751*0.7450=18,503,379). Public shareholders to receive 7,977,818 LASER Common Shares (10,708,480[1]*0.7450=7,977,818)

III. MAFCO Affiliates have the right, 30 days prior to closing, to elect to take $300,000,000 (at a $27.50 per CAMPER share exchange ratio) or 10,909,091 CAMPER Shares ($300,000,000/$27.50=10,909,091 shares) equivalent of the net consideration for CAMPER Holding Company's CAMPER shares in the form of LASER Convertible Preferred Shares. In this case, the remaining 13,927,660 CAMPER shares (24,836,751-10,909,091=13,927,660 shares) held by CAMPER Holding Company will be exchanged for 10,376,107 LASER Common Shares at the .7450 exchange ratio

Coleman's Levin Profits by Selling Stock After Sale to Sunbeam

Washington, April 17 (Bloomberg) -- Jerry Levin, the former head of Coleman Co., had better luck than his boss Ronald Perelman when profiting from the company's proposed sale to Sunbeam Corp.

Coleman shares were flying high right after Sunbeam announced on March 2 that it would buy the company for about $2 billion in cash, stock and assumed debt. Levin exercised options to buy Coleman stock at a discount several days later and sold the shares for a $7.4 million profit.

On March 19, however, Sunbeam warned that its sales may not meet expectations -- news that sent both Sunbeam and Coleman shares into a nose-dive.

``I have always said it is better to be lucky than smart,'' Levin said in an interview.

Perelman, who held an 82.8 percent stake in Coleman, wasn't as fortunate. The 14.1 million Sunbeam shares that Perelman got for his Coleman stake on March 30 are now worth about $410 million -- down 36 percent from the $643 million they were worth when the acquisition was announced.

Coleman shares rose 9/16 in recent trading to 22 11/16. They reached a high of 35 9/16 on March 4. Sunbeam shares rose 1 1/16 to 29 3/16, but still are far below a March 4 high of 53.

Perelman controls businesses such as Consolidated Cigar Holdings Inc. and Revlon Inc. through a series of holding companies. Levin, an executive vice president at the holding companies, helped Perelman run the businesses as chairman at Revlon and at Coleman, a Wichita, Kansas, manufacturer of tents and camping gear.

Levin sought to cut costs at Coleman by closing four plants and trimming the company's workforce. Albert Dunlap, the chairman of Sunbeam, said Coleman and two other simultaneous acquisitions -- Signature Brands USA Inc. and First Alert Inc. -- have strong brand names that haven't been marketed well.

``They still had a lot of work left to be done at Coleman,'' said Beth Burnson, an analyst at ABN Amro Inc. in Chicago. Levin left Coleman but remains chairman of Revlon.

Under the terms of the acquisition, Sunbeam agreed to buy each Coleman share for $6.44 in cash plus 0.5677 of a Sunbeam share. Sunbeam also assumed debt of about $440 million. The stock portion of the acquisition was worth about $25.90 at March 2.

As part of the agreement, Sunbeam said it would pay Perelman and Levin for their Coleman options. As a result, Levin would have received cash even if he didn't exercise the options and sell the Coleman shares. It's questionable, however, whether he would have gotten as much if he'd taken that route.

Sunbeam agreed to pay for Perelman's options at an assumed stock price of $27.50 a share, minus the exercise price, according to a regulatory filing. Though the terms of Levin's agreement weren't disclosed, if he got the same rate his options would each have been worth between $13.50 and $15.25 in cash.

Instead of taking that alternative, Levin exercised the options and bought 350,000 Coleman common shares at $12.25 to $14.00 each, according to documents filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission. He sold the stock in the open market at $33.97 to $34.89 a share between March 6 and March 9 -- making a profit of about $20 or more per share.

When asked why he sold the stock, Levin confirmed that he would have received cash even if he held onto the options. However, Levin also noted that he is no longer working at Coleman.

``I tend to invest only in things I'm involved in,'' Levin said.

Dunlap (dun-lap) v [after Albert J. Dunlap (1937–)]
1. To turn a company around at lightning speed 2. To focus on the best; eliminate what is not the best. 3. To protect and enhance shareholder value.

Mean Business is Al Dunlap's specific battle-tested program for business success. It's all based on his incredible track record of injecting new life into tired companies, best exemplified by the dramatic turnaround he quarterbacked at Scott Paper.

When Dunlap became chairman and CEO in April 1994, Scott was in woeful shape: a $277 million loss in 1993, on credit watch for excessive debt, a stock that had been comatose for seven years. In a mere nineteen months, Scott had record earnings, the stock had increased in value by $6.5 billion (over 200 percent), and Dunlap merged Scott with Kimberly Clark in a stock swap that valued Scott at $9 billion and created the second largest consumer-products company in the United States.

Mean Business provides the inside story behind the strategic thinking that guided Dunlap's quest to once again make Scott a world-class competitor:

- The growth strategy that took it from a money loser to a lean, highly profitable operation
- The vision that reshaped Scott from a commodity paper producer into a consumer-products company
- The complete revamping of Scott's U.S. and global marketing strategy
- The transformation of the board of directors into an entrepreneurial team in which shareholder interests came first
- The unique way the Scott story was communicated to Wall Street, investment banks, and mutual funds

Mean Business provides invaluable lessons for everyone struggling to meet the tough, competitive challenges of today's business world. It combines Al Dunlap's colorful personal history —his working-class background, employment and friendship with people like Sir James Goldsmith,

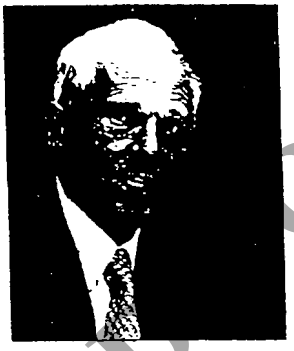
MEAN BUSINESS



"If you think the dead can't come back to life, read Mean Business. Al Dunlap took a sleepy, non-competitive company and turned it into a world-class performer. He not only shook up an entire company but an entire industry as well. Dunlap is corporate America's ultimate change agent."

—ALAN C. GREENBERG, chairman of the board of the Bear Stearns Companies, Inc., and author of Memos from the Chairman

"Al Dunlap has sparked a revolution on the American corporate scene. He is the nation's leading CEO advocate of shareholder rights. And, more importantly, he has turned traditional managerial theory on its head by demonstrating that you can entrepreneurialize the large-scale public corporation."

—CHARLES ELSON, professor of law, Stetson University College of Law

"Lively, funny and provocative. No one feels neutral about Al Dunlap—you either love his ideas about running a business or hate them. Read Mean Business and find out what he's all about."

—RONALD PERELMAN, chairman of Revlon and New World Communications Group

Thereupon,

JERRY LEVIN,

being by the undersigned Notary Public first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

BY MR. ZAKARIN:

Q. State your name for the record, please.
A. Jerry W. Levin, L-E-V-I-N.
Q. Mr. Levin, what is your current address?
A. 17027 Brookwood Drive, Boca Raton, Florida.
Q. And how long have you lived there?
A. Approximately two years.
Q. That is an owned home or a rented home?
A. Owned.
Q. Okay. And where did you live prior to that?
A. 15 East 70th Street, New York, New York.
Q. How long had you lived in New York?
A. Approximately ten years.
Q. Do you maintain that home in New York still?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you also have a home in New Mexico?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever?

A. No.
Q. Do you have a vacation home someplace?
A. Yes.
Q. Where?
A. I have one in Minneapolis, Minnesota and one in Tucson, Arizona.
Q. Have you ever maintained a residence in Golden, Colorado?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever maintained a residence in Wichita, Kansas?
A. I had a rental apartment there.
Q. And for how long did you have a rental apartment there?
A. Approximately two years.
Q. Was that during your first tenure at Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. That would be sometime in the time around 1989 to 1991?
A. Correct.
Q. Why don't you give me your basic employment history, if you would -- let's back up for a second.
Do you have any post-graduate education?
A. Yeah.

I'm including Coleman.
A. Yes, weather is -- certainly in the blanket business that affects it. The weather can be a factor in the outdoor grill business, but it has not really affected Sunbeam up until this point while I have been there. I mean, been tracking.
Q. Weather is a factor in the sense of either cold or rainy weather in delaying the outdoor grilling season?
A. That's right.
Q. Coleman is now in grills also, isn't it, outdoor gas grills?
A. Sunbeam is producing Coleman branded outdoor gas grills and there are licenses between Coleman and Sunbeam.
Q. Sunbeam is also producing its own grills?
A. Yes.
Q. Under its own name?
A. Yes.
Q. And the Sunbeam outlet stores have been consolidated with Coleman's outlet stores?
A. The part of Sunbeam's plan was -- before I got there was to consolidate the Sunbeam and Coleman stores into one kind of store that sold both companies' products. It made absolutely no sense because of the retailing concept. And we separated them back out again and have liquidated essentially all of the Sunbeam stores because they're in terrible locations and the concepts didn't make sense. So all that's left today is the Coleman outlet business.

Q. All the Sunbeam stores were in terrible locations?
A. They were notorious for taking the cheapest space in the outlet mall.
Q. So they may have been at the same outlets as the sort of Camp Coleman stores, but not in as favorable location?
A. In some cases they were and they definitely were not in as good a location. We always went for "A" locations and they literally went for the lowest cost location they could find in the mall.
Q. Does your brother have anything to do with the Camp Coleman outlet stores?
A. He did.
Q. He doesn't any longer?
A. No.
Q. When did he cease having anything to do with it?
A. He was fired by Russ Kersh when he was -- sometime between the merger and when I arrived.

Page 83

Q. Okay. Did you bring him back?
A. No.
Q. After the sale of Coleman to Sunbeam was announced, you exercised your Coleman options. didn't you?
A. That is correct, to the extent I was able to.
Q. Weren't there any provisions for change of control in your contract at Coleman that would have accelerated all your options?
A. I had certain options that had been vested and I sold those -- vested options -- exercised those and sold the stock immediately after the announcement. There were other options that did not become vested until change of control took place, and I sold those immediately after the change of control took place.
Q. Okay. So you exercised -- those that you had, you already exercised, you sold the stock; those that were vested upon the change and control, you exercised immediately and sold all that stock, correct?
A. I actually exercised and sold the stock that was vested at the same time. I did not own that stock. It was all under option.
Q. Okay. At the end of the day you had no

Page 84

Coleman or Sunbeam stock; isn't that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. You had cash?
A. Cash.
Q. Do you recall approximately what that was, your profit on that sale? You don't have to give me an exact number, just a range.
A. I had 500,000 shares.
Q. Stock prices was around 20, wasn't it?
A. My options were lower. My options were probably in the $12 range. I really don't recall.
Q. Okay. Several million dollars, at least?
A. It was profitable; yes.
Q. I don't have a problem with people making a profit.
Do you recall meeting with Al Dunlap and Russ Kersh at MacAndrews and Forbes' offices in or about May of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall Mr. Perelman being there?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall Mr. Nezbeth being there?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall who was there besides you, Mr. Perelman, Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh?

APPENDIX A

AMENDED AND RESTATED

SUNBEAM CORPORATION

STOCK OPTION PLAN

1. Purpose.

The purpose of the Sunbeam Corporation Stock Option Plan is to provide incentives for selected executives, key employees, Outside Directors and Designated Others to promote the financial success and progress of Sunbeam Corporation. Capitalized terms used throughout this Plan shall have the meanings ascribed to them in Section 16 hereof.

2. Stock Subject to the Plan.

(a) Subject to the provisions of this Section and Section 9, the maximum number of shares of Stock that may be issued under the Plan is 16,500,000 shares, to be allocated as follows:

(i) 16,300,000 shares may be issued in connection with the grant of Options pursuant to Section 3; and

(ii) 200,000 shares may be issued in connection with the grant of Restricted Stock Awards pursuant to Section 3.

Such shares may be either authorized but unissued shares or treasury shares.

(b) The number of shares subject to an Option or a Restricted Stock Award that has been granted under the Plan shall no longer be charged against the limitation provided in Section 2(a), and may again be made subject to Options or Restricted Stock Awards, as the case may be, to the extent that Options expire unexercised or are terminated, surrendered or canceled before exercise or Restricted Stock Awards are forfeited, terminated, surrendered or canceled due to a Participant's termination of employment or service as an Outside Director or for any other reason.

3. Grants of Options and Restricted Stock Awards.

(a) Subject to the provisions of the Plan, the Committee may at any time, or from time to time, grant Options to officers, key employees, Outside Directors of the Company (or its subsidiaries) and Designated Others.

(b) Subject to the provisions of the Plan, the Committee may at any time, or from time to time, grant shares of Stock which are subject to the Restrictions set forth in Section 4(b) ("Restricted Stock") to officers, key employees and Outside Directors of the Company (or its subsidiaries) and Designated Others.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

(c) The Committee shall cause shares of Restricted Stock to be issued to each Outside Director immediately and automatically upon his or her election, re-election or appointment as a Director of the Company. If such Outside Director is elected at an Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of the Company (the "Annual Meeting"), the number of shares of Restricted Stock to be issued shall be 1,500. The number of shares of Restricted Stock to be issued to an Outside Director who is elected or appointed at any time other than at an Annual Meeting shall be 1,500 multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be the number of days after the date of such election to and including the date of the next Annual Meeting (which for such purpose shall be assumed to be the next May 15) and the denominator of which shall be 365; provided, however, (i) that in the case of an Outside Director elected to the Board for the first time during the period beginning August 1, 1996 and ending December 31, 1996, the number of such shares shall not be prorated, and each such Outside Director shall receive 1,500 shares for the period of his service between the date of his election and the date of the next Annual Meeting (assumed to be May 15, 1997); and (ii) that each incumbent Outside Director, elected prior to August 1, 1996, shall receive that number of shares of Restricted Stock which results from applying to 1,500 such shares the proration formula provided above, using for such calculation the period from August 6, 1996 until and including the date of the next Annual Meeting (assumed to be May 15, 1997).

(d) Deleted.

(e) Each Option shall be evidenced by a Stock Option Agreement, and each Restricted Stock Award shall be evidenced by a Restricted Stock Award Agreement, each in a form approved by the Committee or by a Company officer designated by the Committee.

(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of the Plan, no person shall be granted Options for more than 250,000 shares of Stock or Restricted Stock Awards for more than 25,000 shares of Stock in any single fiscal year of the Company.

4. Terms and Conditions.

(a) Options.

(i) An Option shall entitle the Participant who holds it to exercise the Option on and subject to the terms, conditions and restrictions of the Plan (as the Plan may be amended from time to time) and such additional terms, conditions and restrictions as may be imposed by the Committee at the time of grant.

(ii) Unless otherwise specified by the Committee, the term of each Option granted prior to May 15, 1996 (herein the "1996 Amendment Date") and which is In-the-Money as of the 1996 Amendment Date shall commence on the date of grant of the Option and shall expire at the close of business on the earlier of (A) the tenth anniversary of the date of grant or (B) the 45th day following the termination of the Participant's employment with, or service as director of, the Company (or a subsidiary). Unless otherwise specified by the Committee, the term of each Option granted on or after the 1996 Amendment Date and the term of each Option granted prior to the 1996 Amendment Date which is Out- of-the-Money as of the 1996 Amendment Date, shall commence on the Grant Date of the Option and shall expire at the close of business on the earliest of (A) the tenth anniversary of the Grant Date; or (B) the third anniversary of the date of termination of the Participant's employment with, or service as a director of, the Company (or a subsidiary), in the case of retirement or termination by the Company without Cause; or (C) 90 days after the date of termination of employment in the case of resignation, voluntary departure or termination by the Company with Cause; or (D) in the case of a Designated Other, the date specified in the Stock Option Agreement. Notwithstanding the foregoing sentence, Participants who are subject to Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act shall have until the earlier of (A) the tenth anniversary of the Grant Date; or (B) the third anniversary of the date of termination of their employment with, or service as a director of the Company, regardless of the cause, within which to exercise Options which are granted on or after the 1996 Amendment Date and Options which are Out-of-the-Money as of the 1996 Amendment Date; provided, however, that no such Option may be exercised by any such person during the period beginning on the date of termination and ending on the six month anniversary of the date of termination.

(iii) All Restrictions shall lapse with respect to the Restricted Stock subject to a Restricted Stock Award made to an Outside Director pursuant to Section 3(c) hereof immediately and automatically upon the Director's acceptance of election or appointment as a Director of the Company, as evidenced in such manner as may be established by the Committee. Unless otherwise specified by the Committee (which is empowered to provide different vesting schedules with respect to any grant of Options or Restricted Stock), all other Options granted under the Plan (from and after July 18, 1996) shall become exercisable with respect to one-third of the shares subject to the Option beginning on the first anniversary of the Grant Date and as to an additional one-third on each of the second and third anniversaries of the Grant Date (each twelve month period ending on an anniversary of a Grant Date being referred to herein as an "Option Year"), provided in each case that the Participant shall have remained an employee or a director of the Company (or a subsidiary), or in the case of a Designated Other, shall have remained in the position set forth in the Stock Option Agreement, continuously since the Grant Date. Notwithstanding the foregoing, during the remaining term of any options (if not already so exercisable) : (A) if a Participant's employment or service as a director, or in the case of a Designated Other, the period of service as defined in the Stock Option Agreement, terminates due to death, all Options held by the Participant at death shall become immediately exercisable in full; (B) upon a Change in Control, all Options held by such Participant who is then an employee or director of the Company (or a subsidiary) shall become immediately exercisable in full; and (C) in the event that the exercisability of an Option accelerates due to a Change in Control, Participants who are subject to Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act may not sell the shares acquired upon such accelerated exercise within six months of the Grant Date of such Option.

(iv) Except to the extent permitted by Rule 16b-3 or its successor, Options shall not be sold, assigned, transferred, pledged, hypothecated, or otherwise disposed of, except by will or the laws of descent and distribution, pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order ("QDRO") as defined in the Code or ERISA (or the rules thereunder) or as otherwise set forth in this Section 4(a)(iv). Each Option shall be exercisable during the lifetime of a Participant only by the Participant to whom it was granted, and after the Participant's death only by the Participant's estate or legal representative. To the extent exercisable, an Option may be exercised in whole at any time, or in part from time to time, during the term of the Option.

(v) Any Option may be converted, modified, forfeited or canceled, prospectively or retroactively, in whole or in part, by the Committee in its sole discretion; provided, however, that no such action shall adversely affect the rights of any Participant under any Option granted prior to such action without his consent. Except as may be otherwise provided in an Agreement, the Committee may, in its sole discretion, in whole or in part, waive any restrictions or conditions applicable to, or accelerate the vesting of, any Option.

(b) Stock Awards.

(i) Upon the grant of a Restricted Stock Award, a stock certificate representing a number of shares of Stock equal to the number of shares of Restricted Stock granted to a Participant shall be registered in the Participant's name but shall be held in custody by the Company for the Participant's account. The Participant shall generally have the rights and privileges of a stockholder as to such Restricted Stock, including the right to vote such Restricted Stock, except that the following restrictions (the "Restrictions") shall apply: (A) the Participant shall not be entitled to delivery of the certificate until the Restricted Period (set forth in paragraph (iii) below) applicable to such Restricted Stock has expired or terminated and until any other conditions prescribed by the Committee are satisfied; (B) none of the Restricted Stock may be sold, transferred, assigned, pledged, or otherwise encumbered or disposed of during the Restricted Period applicable to such Restricted Stock and prior to the satisfaction of any other conditions prescribed by the Committee; and (C) shares of Restricted Stock shall be forfeited and all rights of the Participant to such Restricted Stock shall terminate without further obligation on the part of the Company unless the Participant has (1) remained an employee or a director of the Company (or a subsidiary) until the expiration or termination of the Restricted Period applicable to such Restricted Stock (or in the case of a Designated Other, the duration specified in the Restricted Stock Award Agreement) and (2) satisfied any other conditions prescribed by the Committee applicable to such Restricted Stock. At the discretion of the Committee, cash and stock dividends with respect to the Restricted Stock may be either currently paid or withheld by the Company for the Participant's account. Cash dividends so withheld by the Committee shall not be subject to forfeiture. Upon the forfeiture of any shares of Restricted Stock, such forfeited Restricted Stock shall be transferred to the Company without further action by the Participant. The Participant shall have the same rights and privileges, and be subject to the Restrictions, with respect to any shares or other property received pursuant to Section 9.

(ii) Upon the expiration or termination of the Restricted Period with respect to shares of Restricted Stock and the satisfaction of any other conditions prescribed by the Committee, the Restrictions applicable to such Restricted Stock shall lapse and a stock certificate for the number of shares of Stock with respect to which the Restricted Period has lapsed shall be delivered, free of all restrictions, except any that may be imposed by law, to the Participant or the Participant's beneficiary or estate, as the case may be. The Company shall not be required to deliver any fractional share of Stock but will pay, in lieu thereof, the Fair Market Value (determined as of the date the Restricted Period expires or terminates) of such fractional share to the Participant or the Participant's beneficiary or estate, as the case may be. No payment will be required from the Participant upon the issuance or delivery of any shares of Stock under this paragraph, except that any amount necessary to satisfy applicable federal, state or local tax requirements shall be withheld or paid promptly upon notification of the amount due and prior to or concurrently with the issuance or delivery of a certificate representing such shares.

(iii) Unless otherwise specified by the Committee at the time of the award and included in the Restricted Stock Award Agreement, the Restrictions shall also lapse with respect to one-third of the Restricted Stock subject to all other Restricted Stock Awards on each of the first through the third anniversaries of the Grant Date, provided in each case that the Participant shall have remained an employee or a director of the Company (or a subsidiary) continuously since the date of grant (or in the case of a Designated Other, shall have complied with the terms and conditions of the Restricted Stock Award Agreement). Notwithstanding the foregoing: (A) if a Participant's employment or service as a director, or in the case of a Designated Other, the period defined in the Restricted Stock Award Agreement, terminates due to death, the Restrictions shall lapse with respect to all Restricted Stock Awards held by the Participant at death (if not already so lapsed); (B) upon a Change in Control, the Restrictions shall lapse with respect to all Restricted Stock Awards held by such Participant who is an employee or director of the Company (or a subsidiary) (if not already so lapsed); and (C) in the event of an accelerated lapse of Restrictions due to a Change in Control, Participants who are subject to Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act may not sell the shares of Stock whose Restrictions have so lapsed within six months of the Grant Date of the Restricted Stock Award pursuant to which such Stock was received. The "Restricted Period" as to any shares constituting part of a Restricted Stock Award shall be the period of time commencing with the Grant Date of a Restricted Stock Award and ending with the date on which the Restrictions lapse with respect to any such shares, or any portion thereof.

(c) In the event that the acceleration of (i) the exercisability of an Option or (ii) the lapse of Restrictions relating to Restricted Stock upon a Change in Control and a Change in Status results in excise tax pursuant to Section 4999 of the Code, or any successor or similar provision thereto, or comparable state or local tax laws, the Company shall pay to the Participant such additional compensation as is necessary (after taking into account all Federal, state and local income and excise taxes payable by the Participant as a result of the receipt of such compensation) to place the Participant in the same after-tax position he would have been in had no such excise tax (or any interest or penalties thereon) been paid or incurred. The amount of such payment shall be determined by the independent accounting firm serving as the Company's outside auditor immediately prior to the Change in Control.

5. Exercise of Options.

(a) The Exercise Price of the shares purchasable under an Option shall be the Fair Market Value per share on the Grant Date of such Option, subject to subsequent adjustment pursuant to the provisions of Section 9.

(b) Options shall be considered exercised (herein the "Exercise Date") on the date written notice, in such form as the Committee may prescribe, is received by the Option Plan Administrator of the Company, advising of the exercise of an Option and either transmitting payment of the total Exercise Price for the number of shares of Stock involved or electing one of the alternative payment procedures set forth in Section 5(c) below.

(c) The Exercise Price shall be paid in cash (including cash obtained through a margin loan on the shares as to which the Option is being exercised) or (and provided (x) the use of the following procedure by a Participant would comply with safeguards established by the Committee designed to avoid "short-swing" profits to the Participant under Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act, and (y) does not otherwise violate any applicable laws) through (i) a broker-assisted cashless exercise program established by the Committee, based on the actual proceeds from the sale of share of Stock; or (ii) in shares of Stock, valued on the basis of the closing market price of the Stock on the Exercise Date.

(d) Subject to the provisions of Section 6 and the other provisions of the Plan, the Stock Option Agreement and the Option, the Company shall issue shares of Stock in the Participant's name as soon as practicable (but in no event later than 30 days) after the Exercise Date. The Participant shall not be deemed to be a holder of any shares pursuant to an Option, and shall not have any rights as a stockholder in connection with such shares, until the date of transfer of shares of Stock to the Participant. The Company shall have no liability of any nature whatsoever to any Participant by reason of any change in the market price of the Stock during the period of time between the Exercise Date and the date on which any shares of Stock resulting from the exercise are issued or sold.

6. Restrictions.

(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of the Plan, an Option or Restricted Stock Award to the contrary, no Option shall be exercised, and the Company shall not be obligated to issue or transfer shares of Stock under any Option or Restricted Stock Award, until the Company shall have received such assurances as the Company may reasonably request from its counsel that the exercise of the Option and the issuance and transfer of shares pursuant to the Option or Restricted Stock Award will not violate the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, or any other applicable Federal or state laws. In connection with any such issuance or transfer, the Participant shall, if requested by the Company, give assurances satisfactory to counsel to the Company, in respect of the Participant's investment intent or such other matters as counsel to the Company may deem necessary or desirable to assure compliance with all applicable legal requirements.

(b) No provisions of the Plan or any Option or Restricted Stock Award shall be interpreted or construed to obligate the Company to register any Stock under Federal or state law.

(c) The Company and the Committee reserve the right to investigate at any time the circumstances surrounding any exercise of Options, including any investigation regarding whether a Participant is in compliance with the provisions of Section 13 hereof (or has threatened or is reasonably believed to intend to violate the provisions of Section 13 hereof), and the Company and the Committee shall have no liability or responsibility to any Participant for any alleged damage sustained by the Participant by reason of any delay in the implementation of an Option exercise during the pendency of any such investigation, whether by reason of any change in the market price of the Stock or otherwise.

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision hereof, the Committee shall have the right at any time to deny or delay a Participant's exercise of Options if such Participant is reasonably believed by the Committee (i) to be engaged in material conduct adversely affecting the Company or (ii) to be contemplating such conduct, unless and until the Committee shall have received reasonable assurance that the Participant is not engaged in, and is not contemplating, such material conduct adverse to the interests of the Company.

(e) Participants are and at all times shall remain subject to the trading window policies adopted by the Company from time to time throughout the period of time during which they may exercise Options or sell Restricted Stock granted pursuant to the Plan. Participants may request at any time a copy of any calendar of scheduled open windows by contacting the Option Plan Administrator.

7. Fair Market Value.

(a) During any period that the Company's Stock is Actively Traded, Fair Market Value shall be equal to the average selling price of a share of Stock on the exchange or national market system on which the Stock is traded, on the date of grant of an option to acquire Stock pursuant to the Plan, or pursuant to such other method as the Committee may reasonably specify for determining the Stock's Fair Market Value.

(b) During any period during which the Company's Stock is not Actively Traded, Fair Market Value shall be determined by the Committee.

8. Term.

This Amended and Restated Plan shall be effective as of the date set forth on the first page hereof. No Option or Restricted Stock Award shall be granted under the Plan after February 12, 2006, but the Plan shall continue in effect thereafter with respect to any previously granted Options and Restricted Stock Awards that remain outstanding and the duration of any such grant or award shall not be affected by the expiration of the Plan.

9. Adjustments.

In the event that any recapitalization, or reclassification, split-up or consolidation of shares of Stock shall be effected, or the outstanding shares of Stock shall, in connection with a merger or consolidation of the Company or a transaction or series of related transactions that results in the sale of all or substantially all of the Company's assets, be exchanged for a different number or class of shares of stock or other securities or property of the Company or any other Person, or a record date or dates for determination of holders of Stock entitled to receive a dividend payable in stock or a liquidating dividend (or series of dividends) shall occur, equitable and proportional adjustments aimed at preventing the inequitable enlargement or dilution of any rights hereunder shall be made to (i) the number and class of shares or other securities or property that may be issued or transferred pursuant to the Plan and any outstanding Options and Restricted Stock Awards and (ii) the Exercise Price to be paid per share under any outstanding Options; provided, however, that in the event of a merger or consolidation of the Company, or similar transaction pursuant to which the outstanding Stock is exchanged for cash or other property, the unexercised Options shall thereafter be exercisable for, and the Restricted Stock Awards shall entitle the Participant to receive, the cash or other property which an Option or Restricted Stock Award holder, as the case may be, would have been entitled to receive had the Options been exercised, or the Restrictions relating to the Restricted Stock Award lapsed, immediately prior to the record date for such merger, consolidation or similar transaction except to the extent that provision is made in writing in connection with such transaction for (1) the assumption of the Options by, or the substitution for the Options of new options covering the stock of, a successor acquiring corporation, in each case providing terms no less favorable to the holder of such Options than would an assumption or substitution described in Treasury Regulation ss.1.425- 1(a) that would not constitute a "modification" for purposes of Code ss.424(a), and (2) the substitution for Restricted Stock Awards of stock of a successor or acquiring corporation having terms no less favorable to the holder thereof than the terms of the Restricted Stock Award in effect before such transaction.

10. Administration.

(a) The Plan shall be administered by the Committee. The Committee shall, subject to the provisions of the Plan, have full power and authority to administer the Plan, to select the Participants in the Plan, and, except for grants and awards which are automatically made to Outside Directors as provided pursuant to Section 3 of the Plan, to determine the number of shares to be made subject to each Option and Restricted Stock Award and all terms and conditions of each Option and Restricted Stock Award. The Committee shall have the power to interpret the Plan and to adopt such rules for the administration, interpretation and application of the Plan as are consistent therewith and to interpret, amend or revoke any such rules. All actions taken and all interpretations and determinations made by the Committee shall be final and binding upon all Participants, the Company and all other interested persons, absent a determination by a court of competent jurisdiction that the Committee has acted in bad faith or has engaged in reckless or willful misconduct.

(b) Members of the Committee and the Board and officers administering this Plan shall be fully protected in taking actions under the Plan or in relying upon the advice of counsel and shall incur no liability except for bad faith, recklessness or willful misconduct in the performance of their duties.

(c) Except as required by Rule 16b-3 with respect to grants of Options to individuals who are subject to Section 16 of the Exchange Act, or as otherwise required for compliance with Rule 16b-3 or other applicable law, the Committee may delegate all or any part of its authority under the Plan to an employee, employees or committee of employees.

(d) To the extent the Committee deems it necessary, appropriate or desirable to comply with foreign law or practices and to further the purpose of the Plan, the Committee may, without amending this Plan, establish special rules applicable to Options granted to Participants who are foreign nationals, are employed outside the United States, or both, including rules that differ from those set forth in the Plan, and grant Options to such Participants in accordance with those rules.

(e) Determinations by the Committee under the Plan relating to the form, amount and terms and conditions of grants and awards need not be uniform, and may be made selectively among persons who receive or are eligible to receive grants and awards under the Plan, whether or not such persons are similarly situated.

11. General Provisions.

(a) Nothing in this Plan or in any instrument executed pursuant hereto shall confer upon any Person any right to continue in the employment or other service of the Company (or any subsidiary), or shall affect the right of the Company (or any subsidiary) to terminate the employment or other service of any person at any time with or without Cause.

(b) The Company may make appropriate provisions for the withholding of any taxes which the Company determines it is required to withhold in connection with any Option or Restricted Stock Award including, at the request of a Participant and provided that it does not violate any applicable laws, the payment of such withholding taxes through a broker-assisted sale of a sufficient number of shares underlying the Option or subject to the Restricted Stock Award or by delivery to the Company of shares of Stock previously owned by the Participant, in either case having an actual sale price equal to the amount of such taxes. Notwithstanding the foregoing, a Participant whose transactions in Stock are subject to Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act may make a share withholding election only if it complies with safeguards established by the Committee designed to avoid "short swing" profits to the Participant under Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act. The certificates evidencing a Restricted Stock Award made to an Outside Director pursuant to Section 3(c) hereof shall be automatically reduced by 28% to provide for the estimated Federal income tax payment obligation of the Outside Director, or by such other higher percentage as may be required by law to be withheld, with the Company remitting to the appropriate tax authorities the fair market value of the Restricted Stock Award for which the certificates are not so delivered.

(c) By accepting any benefits under the Plan, each Participant, and each Person claiming under or through the Participant, shall be conclusively deemed to have indicated acceptance and ratification of, and consent to, all provisions of the Plan. Each Participant hereby further agrees that amendments and modifications to the Plan, which may be adopted from time to time by the Committee and/or the Board of the Corporation (as set forth in Section 12 hereof), shall be binding upon such Participant and upon all Options or Restricted Stock which the Participant may hold, including (with retroactive effect) Options or Restricted Stock previously granted to the Participant, except to the extent set forth in Section 12 hereof.

(d) With respect to Participants subject to Section 16 of the Exchange Act, transactions under the Plan are intended to comply with all applicable provisions of Rule 16b-3 or its successor. To the extent any provision the Plan or action by the Plan administrators fails to so comply, it shall be deemed null and void, to the extent permitted by law and deemed advisable by the Committee.

(e) A Participant shall have no rights as a stockholder of the Company with respect to any Shares to be issued upon exercise of an Option until such Participant has exercised such Option and becomes a holder of such Shares.

12. Amendments; Modification and Termination.

This Plan may be amended or modified by the Committee, with ratification by the Board, or terminated by the Board, at any time and in any respect, except that no amendment shall be made without the approval of the shareholders of the Company if shareholder approval would be required by Rule 16b-3 under the Exchange Act or any other law or rule of any governmental authority, stock exchange or other self-regulatory organization to which the Company is subject. No such amendment, modification or termination shall have effect to reduce the number of shares as to which any Option or Restricted Stock Award previously has been granted to a Participant; to extend the vesting schedule with respect to any Option or Restricted Stock Award or to extend the period of non-competition or confidentiality as set forth in Section 13 hereof. In the event of the passage of any law, rule or regulation or a determination by any regulatory agency or court, requiring an adverse change in the Company's accounting or tax treatment relating to the Plan, the Committee shall have the right to modify the terms of outstanding Options and Restricted Stock Awards to the extent necessary to avoid the adverse consequences of such change.

13. Confidentiality and Non-Competition; Conduct Not in the Interest of the Corporation.

By accepting Options or Restricted Stock Awards under the Plan and as a condition to the exercise of Options and the enjoyment of any of the benefits of the Plan, each Participant agrees as follows:

(a) Confidentiality -- During the period of each Participant's employment or service as a director with the Company (or the Participant's engaging in any other activity with or for the Company) and for a two year period thereafter, each Participant shall treat and safeguard as confidential and secret all Confidential Information received by such Participant at any time. Without the prior written consent of the Company, except as required by law, such Participant will not disclose or reveal any Confidential Information to any third party whatsoever or use the same in any manner except in connection with the businesses of the Company and its subsidiaries. In the event that a Participant is requested or required (by oral questions, interrogatories, requests for information or documents, subpoena, civil investigative demand or other process) to disclose (i) any Confidential Information or (ii) any information relating to his opinion, judgment or recommendations concerning the Company or its subsidiaries as developed from the Confidential Information, Participant will provide the Company with prompt written notice of any such request or requirement so that the Company may seek an appropriate protective order or waive compliance with the provisions contained herein. If, failing the entry of a protective order or the receipt of a waiver hereunder, Participant is, in the reasonable opinion of his counsel, compelled to disclose Confidential Information, Participant shall disclose only that portion of the Confidential Information which his counsel advises that he is compelled to disclose and will exercise best efforts to obtain assurances that confidential treatment will be accorded such Confidential Information.

(b) Non-Competition -- During the period of employment with the Company or its subsidiaries of any Participant (other than a director) compensated at a rate (including bonuses) in excess of $75,000 per year in cash compensation from his employment with the Company or any of its subsidiaries (determined as of the most recently completed fiscal year of the Company), and, for a two-year period thereafter (the "Non-Compete Period"), each such Participant shall not, without prior written consent of the Committee, do, directly or indirectly, any of the following:

(1) own, manage, control or participate in the ownership, management, or control of, or be employed or engaged by or otherwise affiliated or associated with, any other corporation, partnership, proprietorship, firm, association or other business entity, or otherwise engage in any business which competes with the business of the Company or any of its subsidiaries (as such business is conducted during the term of such Participant's employment with the Company or its subsidiaries) in the geographical regions in which such business is conducted; provided, however, that the ownership of a maximum of one percent of the outstanding stock of any publicly traded corporation shall not violate this covenant; or

(2) employ, solicit for employment or assist in employing or soliciting for employment any present, former or future employee, officer or agent of the Company or any of its subsidiaries.

In the event any court of competent jurisdiction should determine that the foregoing covenant of non-competition is not enforceable because of the extent of the geographical area or the duration thereof, then the Company and the affected Participant hereby petition such court to modify the foregoing covenant to the extent, but only to the extent, necessary to create a covenant which is enforceable in the opinion of such court, with the intention of the parties that the Company shall be afforded the maximum enforceable covenant of non-competition which may be available under the circumstances and applicable law.

(c) Each Participant acknowledges that remedies at law for any breach by him of this section 13 may be inadequate and that the damages resulting from any such breach are not readily susceptible to being measured in monetary terms. Accordingly, each Participant acknowledges that upon his violation of any provision of this Section 13, the Company will be entitled to immediate injunctive relief and may obtain an order restraining any threatened or future breach. Each Participant further agrees, subject to the proviso at the end of this sentence, that if he violates any provision of this Section 13, he shall immediately forfeit any rights and benefits under this Plan and shall return to the Company any unexercised Options and forfeit the rights under any Restricted Stock Awards and shall return any shares of Stock held by such Participant received upon exercise of any Option or the lapse of the Restrictions relating to Restricted Stock Awards granted hereunder, together with any proceeds from sales of any shares of Stock received upon exercise of such Options or the lapse of Restrictions of such Restricted Stock Awards; provided, however, that upon violation of subsection (b) of this Section, the forfeiture and return provisions contained in this sentence shall apply only to Options which have become exercisable, and Restricted Stock, the Restrictions with respect to which have lapsed, and in any such case the proceeds of sales therefrom, during the two year period immediately prior to termination of the Participant's employment. Nothing in this Section 13 will be deemed to limit, in any way, the remedies at law or in equity of the Company, for a breach by Participant of any of the provisions of this Section 13.

(d) Each Participant agrees to provide written notice of the provisions of this Section 13 to any future employer of Participant, and the Company expressly reserves the right to provide such notice to the Participant's future employer(s).

(e) If any provision or part of any provision of this Section 13 is held for any reason to be unenforceable, (i) the remainder of this Section 13 shall nevertheless remain in full force and effect and (ii) such provision or part shall be deemed to be amended in such manner as to render such provision enforceable.

14. Governing Law.

The validity, construction and effect of the Plan and any rules relating to the Plan shall be determined in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware and applicable Federal law.

15. Arbitration.

The Company and each Participant hereby agree that in the event of any dispute or controversy arising with respect to the Plan, any Stock Option Agreement, the exercise of any Option (or the disallowance of any exercise at any time, for any reason) or any other matter relating to Options or Restricted Stock Awards, then such dispute or controversy shall be submitted by the parties to mandatory and binding arbitration before a panel of arbitrators appointed by the American Arbitration Association ("AAA"), each of whom shall be knowledgeable in matters of securities in general and, if possible, the administration of stock option programs similar to the Plan. The arbitration proceedings shall be conducted in whichever of the following cities is closest to the work location of the affected Participant: Delray Beach, Florida; New York, New York; Kansas City, Missouri; Jackson, Mississippi; or Atlanta, Georgia. The decision of the Company as to which city is closest to the work location of the Participant shall be conclusive and binding, except for manifest error. The decision of the arbitrators shall be rendered in writing, shall be promptly rendered after a hearing on the matter and shall be final, conclusive and binding and may be incorporated in a final judgment rendered by any court of competent jurisdiction.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing contained herein shall preclude the Company from seeking injunctive or other relief from any court of competent jurisdiction to enforce the provisions of Section 13 hereof.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION
PROXY STATEMENT

ANNUAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS
TO BE HELD ON MAY 12, 1998

This Proxy Statement is being furnished in connection with the solicitation by the Board of Directors and management of Sunbeam Corporation, a Delaware corporation (the "Company" or "Sunbeam"), of proxies for use at the Annual Meeting of Stockholders of the Company (the "Annual Meeting") to be held at the Hilton, 100 Fairway Drive, Deerfield Beach, Florida 33441 on Tuesday, May 12, 1998, at 9:00 a.m. (local time), and at any and all postponements or adjournments thereof, for the purposes set forth in the accompanying Notice of Annual Meeting. This Proxy Statement, Notice of Annual Meeting and accompanying proxy card are first being mailed to stockholders on or about April 6, 1998.

VOTING SECURITIES

As of the close of business on March 30, 1998, the date fixed by the Company's Board of Directors (the "Board of Directors") as the record date for determining the stockholders of the Company entitled to receive notice of, and to vote at, the Annual Meeting or any postponements or adjournments thereof, the Company had outstanding 100,811,194 shares of common stock, par value $.01 per share (the "Common Stock"). Each share of Common Stock entitles the holder thereof to one vote on each matter to be considered at the Annual Meeting. The presence at the Annual Meeting, in person or by proxy, of a majority of the issued and outstanding shares of Common Stock entitled to vote will constitute a quorum. All abstentions and broker non-votes will be counted as shares that are present and entitled to vote for purposes of determining the presence of a quorum at the Annual Meeting.

The election of Directors of the Company will require the affirmative vote of a plurality of the votes cast on the proposal. In tabulating the vote, votes which are withheld with respect to a nominee and broker non-votes will be disregarded and will have no effect on the outcome of such vote.

Approval of each of the proposals to approve the grants of stock options to Albert J. Dunlap, Russell A. Kersh and David C. Fannin contained in their respective Employment Agreements with the Company will require the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the votes cast on each such proposal, provided that the total number of votes cast on each such proposal represents over 50% of the number of votes entitled to be cast on such proposal. In determining whether each proposal has received the requisite number of affirmative votes, abstentions and broker non-votes will be disregarded and will have no effect on the outcome of the vote.

Approval of the proposal to amend the Company's Restated Certificate of Incorporation to increase the total number of authorized shares of Common Stock to 500,000,000 from 200,000,000 will require the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of Common Stock. In determining whether the proposal has received the requisite number of affirmative votes, abstentions and broker non-votes will have the same effect as a vote against the proposal.

Approval of the proposal to amend the Amended and Restated Sunbeam Corporation Stock Option Plan (the "Option Plan") to increase the number of shares of Common Stock with respect to which awards may be granted to 16,500,000 shares from 11,500,000 shares will require the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the votes cast on the proposal, provided that the total number of votes cast on such proposal represents over 50% of the number of votes entitled to be cast on such proposal. In determining whether the proposal has received the requisite number of affirmative votes, abstentions and broker non-votes will be disregarded and will have no effect on the outcome of the vote.

If the accompanying proxy card is properly signed and returned to the Company, the shares of Common Stock represented thereby will be voted as specified therein. If no specification is made, the shares will be voted in accordance with the recommendations of the Board of Directors. The proxy may, nevertheless, be revoked prior to its exercise by delivering written notice of revocation to the Secretary of the Company, by executing a later dated proxy or by attending the Annual Meeting and voting in person. Attendance at the Annual Meeting will not in itself constitute a revocation of a proxy.

AS DIRECTORS OF THE COMPANY

DIRECTORS' COMPENSATION

Pursuant to the Option Plan, each Director of the Company who is not an employee of the Company or an affiliate of the Funds Group (as defined herein under the caption "SECURITY OWNERSHIP OF CERTAIN BENEFICIAL OWNERS"), the Company's largest stockholder ("Outside Directors"), is automatically granted 1,500 shares of restricted stock upon his or her initial election or appointment to the Board of Directors and upon each subsequent re-election to the Board of Directors (prorated in case of an election or appointment at any time other than at an annual meeting of stockholders). Compensation issues are the responsibility of the Compensation Committee, consisting of Directors Langerman (Chairman), Elson and Whittlesey. The Compensation Committee is responsible for establishing the general compensation policies of the Company and specific compensation levels for its executive officers and administering the Option Plan and incentive compensation plan. In 1997, the Compensation Committee met three times and acted by unanimous written consent once.

EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS

EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT WITH MR. DUNLAP

As of February 1, 1998, the Company entered into an Employment Agreement with Mr. Dunlap (the "Dunlap Agreement") pursuant to which the Company has agreed to continue to employ Mr. Dunlap as Chairman of the Board of Directors and Chief Executive Officer, and Mr. Dunlap has agreed to serve in such capacities, for a period of three years ending January 31, 2001, and for successive one-year renewal periods unless advance notice of termination is given by either party by no later than August 1 of the immediately preceding year. The Dunlap Agreement is not renewable beyond January 31, 2003. This Dunlap Agreement replaces and supersedes Mr. Dunlap's prior Employment Agreement.

Compensation

Under the Dunlap Agreement, Mr. Dunlap will be paid a base salary at an annual rate of $2,000,000. The Company may increase Mr. Dunlap's base salary, but may not reduce it after any such increase. Mr. Dunlap is eligible to participate in the other benefit plans available generally to employees or other senior executives of the Company. However, he is not eligible to participate in any incentive plan of the Company. The Company also provides Mr. Dunlap with various perquisites on a grossed-up basis.

Prior Equity Grants

Under the Dunlap Agreement, all of Mr. Dunlap's then outstanding options, which were granted under Mr. Dunlap's prior Employment Agreement, vested as of February 20, 1998; 40% of Mr. Dunlap's shares of restricted stock were cancelled as of such date, and all of Mr. Dunlap's remaining shares of restricted stock vested as of such date. The Company will reimburse Mr. Dunlap on a grossed-up basis with respect to any income tax assessed in connection with the vesting of such shares of restricted stock.

Certain Equity Grants

Mr. Dunlap received a grant as of February 1, 1998 of 300,000 shares of Common Stock. Mr. Dunlap also received a grant effective as of February 1, 1998 of options to purchase 3,750,000 shares of Common Stock at a price of $36.85 per share (the "Dunlap Options"), which grant is subject to approval of the Company's stockholders at the Annual Meeting. See "PROPOSAL 2." The term of the Dunlap Options is ten years, and they will vest with respect to one-third of the shares subject thereto on the grant date and an additional one-third on each of the first and second anniversaries of the grant date. Upon the occurrence of a Change in Control of the Company (as defined below), the Dunlap Options will vest in full.

Termination and Change in Control Provisions

The Company may terminate Mr. Dunlap's employment under the Dunlap Agreement at any time, or due to his disability, or for Cause. As defined in the Dunlap Agreement, "Cause" means (i) willful failure substantially to perform Mr. Dunlap's duties under the Dunlap Agreement, except if such failure results from disability, or (ii) his conviction for a felony (or a plea of guilty or nolo contendere thereto). Mr. Dunlap may terminate his employment under the Dunlap Agreement at any time. In addition, he may terminate his employment for Good Reason by notifying the Company within 90 days after any of the following events occurring without his consent, unless remedied by the Company within 30 days after receiving such notice:

(i) any change in Mr. Dunlap's title as Chairman of the Board of Directors and Chief Executive Officer or his removal from, or the failure to re-elect him to, such positions;

(ii) any assignment of duties materially inconsistent with his positions or any material limitation of his powers as contemplated by the Dunlap Agreement;

(iii) any requirement that Mr. Dunlap be based without his consent anywhere other than at the Company's principal executive office in Palm Beach or Broward County, Florida;

(iv) any reduction in Mr. Dunlap's base salary;

(v) any failure to continue in effect any fringe benefit plan in effect at the date of the Dunlap Agreement or to provide Mr. Dunlap equivalent benefits;

(vi) the failure of the Company to maintain Mr. Dunlap's status as a Director of the Company while he serves as Chief Executive Officer;

(vii) the failure of the Company to have three individuals (or their successors) designated by Mr. Dunlap elected and reelected as Directors of the Company;

(viii) a Change in Control of the Company; or

(ix) any other material breach of the agreement by the Company.

As defined in the Dunlap Agreement, a "Change in Control" means the occurrence of any one of the following events:

(i) any "person" as such term is used in Sections 3(a)(9) and 13(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Act"), becomes a "beneficial owner," as such term is used in Rule 13d-3 promulgated under that Act, of 25% or more of the voting stock of the Company;

(ii) the majority of the Board of Directors consists of individuals other than Incumbent Directors (which term means the members of the Board of Directors on the date of the Dunlap Agreement and any individuals designated by Mr. Dunlap; provided that any person becoming a Director of the Company subsequent to such date whose election or nomination for election was supported by two-thirds of the Directors of the Company who then comprised the Incumbent Directors is considered to be an Incumbent Director);

(iii) the Company, without Mr. Dunlap's consent, adopts any plan of liquidation providing for the distribution of all or substantially all of its assets; or

(iv) all or substantially all of the assets or business of the Company are disposed of pursuant to a merger, consolidation or other transaction (unless the persons who were stockholders of the Company immediately prior to such merger, consolidation or other transaction beneficially own, directly or indirectly, in substantially the same proportion as they owned the voting stock of the Company, all of the voting stock or other ownership interests of the entity or entities, if any, that succeed to the business of the Company).

The Dunlap Agreement provides that, if the Company terminates Mr. Dunlap's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if he terminates his employment for Good Reason, (i) he will receive as liquidated damages a lump sum payment in an amount equal to the base salary that would have been payable through the period ending January 31, 2001, or any then applicable renewal period, (ii) the Dunlap Options will become fully vested, and he will be entitled to exercise the Dunlap Options (as well as previously granted options) for the balance of their original ten-year term, and (iii) he will be entitled to continue participating in the employee benefit plans in which he had been entitled to participate before termination, for three years after termination, or to receive substantially equivalent benefits.

The Dunlap Agreement provides that, if the Company terminates Mr. Dunlap's employment for Cause or if he terminates his employment other than for Good Reason, all obligations (other than accrued obligations) of the Company will cease, except that Mr. Dunlap will be able to exercise the Dunlap Options (as well as previously granted options) which are exercisable on the date of termination within 90 days, if the termination is for Cause, and within one year, if it is by Mr. Dunlap without Good Reason.

The Dunlap Agreement provides that, if Mr. Dunlap's employment is terminated due to his death, his estate or legal representative will be entitled to exercise within one year after the date of death the Dunlap Options (as well as previously granted options) which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of death. If his employment is terminated due to disability, Mr. Dunlap will be entitled to exercise within three years all Dunlap Options (as well as previously granted options) which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of termination.

In addition, the Dunlap Agreement provides that Mr. Dunlap will be entitled to receive a gross-up with respect to any excise tax applicable under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), to "excess parachute payments."

EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENTS WITH MESSRS. KERSH AND FANNIN

The Company entered into Employment Agreements with each of Messrs. Kersh and Fannin as of February 1, 1998. Messrs. Kersh and Fannin are referred to herein as the "Executives." The Employment Agreements with Messrs. Kersh and Fannin have a term ending on January 31, 2001. The Employment Agreements with Messrs. Kersh and Fannin replace and supersede their respective prior Employment Agreements with the Company.

Compensation

Under their respective Employment Agreements, Messrs. Kersh and Fannin will each be paid a base salary at annual rates of $875,000 and $595,000, respectively. These base salaries will not be increased during the terms of the Agreements. The Executives will also be eligible to participate in those benefit plans available generally to employees or other senior executives of the Company. However, the Executives will not be eligible to participate in any cash incentive (i.e., bonus) plan of the Company.

Prior Equity Grants

Under their respective Employment Agreements, all of Mr. Kersh's then outstanding options, which were granted under Mr. Kersh's prior Employment Agreement, and all of Mr. Fannin's then outstanding options vested as of February 20, 1998; 40% of each of Mr. Kersh's and Mr. Fannin's shares of restricted stock were cancelled as of such date, and all of Mr. Kersh's and Mr. Fannin's remaining shares of restricted stock vested as of such date. The Company will reimburse Messrs. Kersh and Fannin on a grossed-up basis with respect to any income tax assessed in connection with the vesting of such shares of restricted stock.

Certain Equity Grants

Under their respective Employment Agreements, as of February 1, 1998, Messrs. Kersh and Fannin each received a grant of 150,000 and 30,000 shares of restricted stock (the "Executive Restricted Shares"), respectively. Such Executive Restricted Shares will vest in four equal installments on each of February 20, 1998 and the first, second and third anniversaries of February 1, 1998. Messrs. Kersh and Fannin also received grants, effective as of February 1, 1998, of options to purchase 1,125,000 and 750,000 shares of Common Stock, respectively, at a price of $36.85 per share, subject to approval by the Company's stockholders at the Annual Meeting. These options will vest in four equal installments on the grant date and the first, second and third anniversaries of February 1, 1998. See "PROPOSAL 3" and "PROPOSAL 4."

Termination and Change in Control Provisions

The Company may terminate an Executive's employment under his Employment Agreement at any time, or due to the Executive's disability, or for Cause (as defined above). Each Executive may terminate his employment under his respective Employment Agreement at any time. In addition, he may terminate his employment for Good Reason (as defined above) by notifying the Company within 90 days after any of the following events occurring without his consent, unless remedied by the Company within 30 days after receiving such notice:

(i) any assignment of duties materially inconsistent with his positions or any material limitation of his powers as contemplated by such Executive's Employment Agreement;

(ii) any removal of the Executive from, or any failure to reelect the Executive to, the executive officer position specified in such Executive's Employment Agreement; or

(iii) any other material breach of such Executive's Employment Agreement by the Company.

Each Executive's Employment Agreement provides that, if the Company terminates the Executive's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if the Executive terminates his employment for Good Reason or following a Change in Control (as defined above), (i) such Executive will receive as liquidated damages a lump sum payment in an amount equal to the base salary that would have been payable to him through the end of the employment term, (ii) the options (and Executive Restricted Shares, in the case of Messrs. Kersh and Fannin) granted to such Executive will become fully vested, and the Executive will be entitled to exercise his options (including previously granted options) for the balance of their original ten-year term, and (iii) the Executive will be entitled to continue participating in the employee benefit plans in which he had been entitled to participate before termination, through the end of the employment term, or to receive substantially equivalent benefits.

Each Executive's Employment Agreement provides that if the Company terminates the Executive's employment for Cause or if the Executive terminates his employment other than for Good Reason or following a Change in Control, all obligations (other than accrued obligations) of the Company will cease, except that such Executive will be able to exercise any options (including previously granted options) granted to him which are exercisable on the date of termination or within 90 days thereof, if the termination is for Cause, and within one year thereof, if the termination is by the Executive other than for Good Reason or following a Change in Control.

Each Executive's Employment Agreement provides that, if such Executive's employment is terminated due to his death, his estate or legal representative will be entitled to exercise within one year after the date of death any options granted to such Executive which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of death and, further, the portion of then unvested Executive Restricted Shares, if any, held by such Executive equal to the total number of such unvested Executive Restricted Shares multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is 36 minus the number of months remaining in the three years of the Executive's employment term and the denominator of which is 36, will become vested as of the date of death. If an Executive's employment is terminated due to disability, he will be entitled to exercise within three years all options granted to him (including previously granted options) which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of termination and a portion of the Executive Restricted Shares, if any, held by such Executive, determined in accordance with the procedure described in the immediately preceding sentence, will become vested as of the Executive's date of termination.

In addition, each Executive's Employment Agreement provides that the Executive will be entitled to receive a gross-up with respect to any excise tax applicable under the Code to "excess parachute payments."

REPORT OF THE COMPENSATION COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE COMPENSATION

The Company's executive compensation policy and administration of its various compensation plans are the responsibility of the Compensation Committee of the Board of Directors. The Compensation Committee is responsible for establishing the general compensation policies of the Company and administering the Option Plan. The Compensation Committee reviews and/or approves specific compensation levels for the Company's senior officers and other key operating and corporate management personnel (collectively the "executive officers" or singularly an "executive officer").

EXECUTIVE OFFICER COMPENSATION

Philosophy

It is the philosophy of the Company that executive compensation be directly linked to the interests of the Company's stockholders and therefore to financial objectives that the Company believes are primary determinants of long-term stockholder value. The Compensation Committee's objectives in administering the Company's executive compensation plans are to ensure that pay levels and incentive compensation are: (1) properly linked to stockholder value, (2) are competitive in attracting, retaining and motivating the best personnel and (3) are simple in design and easily understood. The compensation plan for the Company's executive officers emphasizes the importance of stock options as providing a direct correlation between executive compensation and stockholder interests. In addition to an emphasis on stock options, the Company pays competitive base salaries, bonuses linked directly to overall Company performance and periodic additional grants of stock options pursuant to the Option Plan. The stock option element of compensation, together with the Company's stock purchase plan (described below) and its use of Common Stock as matching contributions and profit sharing contributions to the 401(k) Plan are all intended to encourage ownership and retention of Company stock by all employees, and especially executive officers. This provides executive officers and other employees with the opportunity to build, through the achievement of financial goals that benefit all stockholders, a meaningful ownership stake in the Company.

The Company's most senior officers, including the Operating Committee consisting of Messrs. Dunlap, Kersh and Fannin, are excluded from the Company's programs of base compensation increases and bonuses. Their sole incentive beyond base salary is based upon substantial grants of stock options, ownership of stock and increases in stockholder value. These persons are heavily dependent upon an increase in the share price of the Common Stock to realize the potential of their compensation packages.

Financial Criteria

For other officers of the Company, the most substantial motivator also is increasing stockholder value, as all officers are heavily dependent upon significant option grants for ultimate realization of their compensation goals. In addition, however, each officer (other than the Company's most senior officers, including the Operating Committee, who are ineligible to participate in the Bonus Plan) also is a participant in the Sunbeam Bonus Plan (the "Bonus Plan"). Under the Bonus Plan, certain employees and officers are eligible to receive bonuses based upon two factors: (1) Company performance as measured by earnings per share ("EPS") and (2) individual performance against quantifiable measurement criteria established with each such officer. Company performance must reach targeted levels or no bonuses will be paid to any officer. If Company performance is achieved, then individual achievement of measurement criteria will determine the amount of any bonus payable to an officer for 1998.

Overall, the Company's compensation philosophy de-emphasizes base salary and increases in base salary, and places a greater emphasis upon incentive compensation in the form of stock appreciation and incentive performance bonus compensation. This places a greater percentage of compensation "at risk" and in line with the Company's stockholders. Base salaries for the Company's executives, many of whom were hired in 1996 after the employment of Mr. Dunlap, were established based in large part upon their salaries at prior positions. The Company does not attempt to match executive compensation to the compensation levels at those companies which are included in the Company's self-constructed stockholder return peer group. See "STOCKHOLDER RETURN PERFORMANCE PRESENTATION" for a description of the Company's stockholder return peer group.

For 1997/98, the Company awarded substantial salary increases only in connection with changes in responsibility; minor salary increases were made in a very small number of cases.

The Compensation Committee adopted the Bonus Plan in 1997 in order to motivate the Company's key employees to increase stockholder wealth by maximizing earnings per share of the Common Stock, which the Compensation Committee believes is the key driver in determining share value. In addition to officers (other than the Company's most senior officers, including the Operating Committee, who are ineligible to participate in the Bonus Plan) all salaried employees of the Company are eligible to participate in the Bonus Plan.

The Bonus Plan's design provides that during each fiscal year, the Operating Committee of the Company will recommend to the Compensation Committee a minimum level of performance (measured by EPS of the Common Stock for such year), below which no Bonus Plan participant shall receive any bonus. At the minimum level of acceptable Company EPS performance, Bonus Plan participants will be eligible to receive up to 75% of their individual bonus target (a percentage of base salary in the case of management and professional employees and a flat dollar amount in the case of administrative employees). At another, higher level of EPS performance, participants will be entitled to receive up to 100% of their individual bonus target. At even higher levels of EPS performance ("stretch targets"), participants may receive up to 200% of their individual bonus target. The Bonus Plan also provides for percentage gradations between these key milestones, so that a bonus recipient may receive varying percentages of his or her bonus targets between 75% and 200%.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

While the Company must achieve the prescribed EPS performance levels before any Bonus Plan participant is eligible to receive any bonus, this does not guarantee that a participant necessarily will receive a bonus. In order to receive a bonus, a participant must achieve at least four individual performance goals established with the concurrence of his or her supervisor. These performance goals are oriented towards quantitative objectives, such as cost savings or earnings enhancement.

The Compensation Committee believes that this combination of requiring a minimum overall Company performance, measured by EPS performance requirements before any bonuses are paid, coupled with individual goals which are quantitative in nature and calculated to increase productivity, reduce costs or otherwise enhance profitability of the Company, assures that the Company's compensation system, especially the performance bonus program, aligns the interests of the Company's officers and other employees with the interests of its stockholders.

For the Company's fiscal year ended December 28, 1997, the Company paid a total of $2,242,615 to employees under the Bonus Plan.

Extension of Options to all Company Employees; Stock Ownership Plan; 401(k) Plan Changes

Since the Company's change in senior management in July 1996, the Company's compensation philosophy for all employees, not just officers, has broadened to include greater participation by Company employees at all levels in the stock option and stock ownership programs of the Company. Effective January 1, 1997, the Company broadened the Option Plan to provide for the grant of options to all levels of Company employees, including factory workers in the Company's U. S. facilities, U.S. clerical personnel and others who had not previously been participants in the Option Plan.

In addition, on January 1, 1997, the Company instituted a stock purchase program for all U.S. employees of the Company. This plan permits employees to designate a portion of each paycheck for deposit into a stock purchase account. Once each month, the administrator of the plan uses funds in the stock purchase account to purchase shares of Common Stock in the open market. Participants in this plan do not pay any commissions to the plan administrator with respect to the purchase of these shares. Participants otherwise receive no discount or other incentive for participation in the plan.

The Company also, as of January 1, 1997, instituted changes in the 401(k) Plan to provide that all Company matching contributions are to be made in shares of Common Stock and that any profit sharing contributions also are to be made in shares of Common Stock. For the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997, the Company made a profit sharing contribution under the 401(k) Plan for hourly employees only in the amount of approximately $600,000.

Discussion of Amendments to the Option Plan

During 1997, the Board of Directors approved amendments to the Option

Plan at meetings held in April and October. In April, the Board approved amendments to delete the requirement that a "Change in Status" occur in connection with a "Change in Control", as respectively defined in the Option Plan, in order to accelerate the vesting of a participant's options and to change the default vesting schedule for all options from five years to three years. In October 1997, the Board of Directors amended the Option Plan to change the name of the Option Plan to the Amended and Restated Sunbeam Corporation Stock Option Plan and to provide that the "Fair Market Value" for all option grants will be the average selling price of a share of Common Stock on the exchange or national market system on which the Common Stock is traded, on the date of grant of an option to acquire Common Stock pursuant to the Option Plan.

In 1998, the Board of Directors approved, subject to approval of the Company's stockholders at the Annual Meeting, a further amendment to the Option Plan to increase the number of shares of Common Stock which may be issued under the Option Plan to 16,500,000 shares from 11,500,000 shares. See "PROPOSAL 6."

Compliance with Certain Tax Laws

Section 162(m) of the Internal Revenue Code limits to $1,000,000 the Company's federal income tax deduction for compensation paid in any year to its CEO and each of its four highest paid executive officers, to the extent that such compensation is not "performance based" compensation within the meaning of Section 162(m). Mr. Dunlap's base compensation has been increased to $2,000,000 per year under the Dunlap Agreement. See "EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND, CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS Employment Agreement with Mr. Dunlap." The Company will not be able to deduct such base compensation paid in excess of $1,000,000. The Company does not anticipate that bonus payments will be made to Mr. Dunlap (the sole executive officer whose compensation is anticipated to exceed $1,000,000). The Company's award of options (both pursuant to the Option Plan and as approved by the stockholders) is expected to qualify as "performance based" compensation pursuant to Section 162(m). The vesting of the respective awards of shares of restricted stock to Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh is expected to exceed the $1,000,000 compensation level (together with their base salaries) and will not be deductible by the Company to the extent in excess of $1,000,000.

COMPENSATION OF CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

As of February 1, 1998, the Company entered into the Dunlap Agreement with Albert J. Dunlap, the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. The terms of the Dunlap Agreement were negotiated with and approved by the Compensation Committee and the Board of Directors. See "EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS - - Employment Agreement with Mr. Dunlap." At Mr. Dunlap's request, Mr. Dunlap's compensation package is heavily oriented towards stock based compensation. Mr. Dunlap will receive a base salary of $2,000,000 per year for each year of the employment agreement but is not eligible for any bonus payment. Mr. Dunlap's potential increases in compensation will result from increases in the value of his stock investment in the Company. Mr. Dunlap holds 1,166,666 shares of Common Stock which were granted to him by the Company and options to acquire up to 6,250,000 shares of Common Stock (of which 3,750,000 are vested, and the remaining 2,500,000 will vest in equal increments on each of the first and second anniversary dates of the effective date of the Dunlap Agreement).

PROPOSAL 2 -- APPROVAL OF STOCK OPTION GRANT TO ALBERT J. DUNLAP, THE COMPANY'S CHAIRMAN AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER, CONTAINED IN HIS EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT WITH THE COMPANY

As of February 1, 1998, the Company entered into the Dunlap Agreement, which provides for, among other things, a new three-year term of employment for Mr. Dunlap, the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. The Board of Directors is requesting stockholder approval of the provisions of the Dunlap Agreement which provide for a grant of stock options to Mr. Dunlap. See "EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS."

The Dunlap Agreement provides that, subject to approval by the Company's stockholders at the Annual Meeting, Mr. Dunlap received a grant effective as of February 1, 1998 of options to purchase 3,750,000 shares of Common Stock at a price of $36.85 per share (the "Dunlap Options"). The term of the Dunlap Options is ten years, and they will vest with respect to one-third of the shares subject thereto on the grant date and with respect to an additional one-third on each of the first and second anniversaries of the grant date.

The Dunlap Agreement further provides that (i) upon the occurrence of a Change in Control, the Dunlap Options will become fully vested and Mr. Dunlap will be entitled to exercise the Dunlap Options for the balance of the original ten-year term, (ii) if the Company terminates Mr. Dunlap's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if he terminates his employment for Good Reason, the Dunlap Options will become fully vested and he will be entitled to exercise the Dunlap Options for the balance of the original ten-year term, (iii) if the Company terminates Mr. Dunlap's employment for Cause, he will be able to exercise the Dunlap Options which are exercisable on the date of termination within 90 days of the date of termination and if he terminates his employment other than for Good Reason, he will be able to exercise the Dunlap Options which are exercisable on the date of termination within one year of the date of termination, (iv) if Mr. Dunlap's employment is terminated due to his death, his estate or legal representative will be entitled to exercise within one year after the date of death the Dunlap Options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of death, and (v) if his employment is terminated due to disability, he will be entitled to exercise within three years all Dunlap Options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of termination. See "EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS" for definitions of all capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein.

If the stockholders of the Company do not approve the grant of the Dunlap Options to Mr. Dunlap, the Company and Mr. Dunlap have agreed to negotiate in good faith mutually acceptable alternative compensation arrangements. The terms and conditions of any such alternative compensation arrangements have not been determined. Failure to approve the grant of the Dunlap Options to Mr. Dunlap will not affect any other provisions of the Dunlap Agreement. However, if the stockholders of the Company do not approve the grant of the Dunlap Options to Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Dunlap may elect to terminate his employment for Good Reason.

Approval of this proposal to approve the grant of the Dunlap Options to Mr. Dunlap contained in his Employment Agreement with the Company will require the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the votes cast on the proposal, provided that the total number of votes cast represents over 50% of the number of votes entitled to be cast on this proposal.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS RECOMMENDS A VOTE "FOR" APPROVAL OF THE STOCK OPTION GRANT TO ALBERT J. DUNLAP

PROPOSAL 3 -- APPROVAL OF STOCK OPTION GRANT TO RUSSELL A. KERSH, THE COMPANY'S VICE CHAIRMAN AND CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER, CONTAINED IN HIS EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT WITH THE COMPANY

The Board of Directors is requesting stockholder approval of the provisions of the Kersh Agreement which provide for a grant of stock options to Mr. Kersh. See "EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS."

The Kersh Agreement provides that, subject to approval by the Company's stockholders at the Annual Meeting, Mr. Kersh received a grant effective as of February 1, 1998 of options to purchase 1,125,000 shares of Common Stock at a price of $36.85 per share (the "Kersh Options"). The term of the Kersh Options is ten years, and they will vest with respect to one-fourth of the shares subject thereto on the grant date and with respect to an additional one-fourth on each of the first, second and third anniversaries of the grant date.

The Kersh Agreement further provides that (i) upon the occurrence of a Change in Control, the Kersh Options will become fully vested and Mr. Kersh will be entitled to exercise the Kersh Options for the balance of the original ten-year term, (ii) if the Company terminates Mr. Kersh's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if he terminates his employment for Good Reason, the Kersh Options will become fully vested and he will be entitled to exercise the Kersh Options for the balance of the original ten-year term, (iii) if the Company terminates Mr. Kersh's employment for Cause, he will be able to exercise the Kersh Options which are exercisable on the date of termination within 90 days of the date of termination and if he terminates his employment other than for Good Reason, he will be able to exercise the Kersh Options which are exercisable on the date of termination within one year of the date of termination, (iv) if Mr. Kersh's employment is terminated due to his death, his estate or legal representative will be entitled to exercise within one year after the date of death the Kersh Options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of death, and (v) if his employment is terminated due to disability, he will be entitled to exercise within three years all Kersh Options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of termination. See "EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS" for definitions of all capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein.

If the stockholders of the Company do not approve the grant of the Kersh Options to Mr. Kersh, the Company and Mr. Kersh have agreed to negotiate in good faith mutually acceptable alternative compensation arrangements. The terms and conditions of any such alternative compensation arrangements have not been determined. Failure to approve the grant of the Kersh Options to Mr. Kersh will not affect any other provisions of the Kersh Agreement. However, if the stockholders of the Company do not approve the grant of the Kersh Options to Mr. Kersh, Mr. Kersh may elect to terminate his employment for Good Reason.

Approval of this proposal to approve the grant of the Kersh Options to Mr. Kersh contained in his Employment Agreement with the Company will require the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the votes cast on the proposal, provided that the total number of votes cast represents over 50% of the number of votes entitled to be cast on this proposal.

PROPOSAL 4 -- APPROVAL OF STOCK OPTION GRANT TO DAVID C. FANNIN, THE COMPANY'S EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT, SECRETARY AND GENERAL COUNSEL, CONTAINED IN HIS EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT WITH THE COMPANY

As of February 1, 1998, the Company entered into a new three-year

Employment Agreement (the "Fannin Agreement") with David C. Fannin. The Board of Directors is requesting stockholder approval of the provisions of the Fannin Agreement which provide for a grant of stock options to Mr. Fannin. See "EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS."

The Fannin Agreement provides that, subject to approval by the Company's stockholders at the Annual Meeting, Mr. Fannin received a grant effective as of Februrary 1, 1998 of options to purchase 750,000 shares of Common Stock at a price of $36.85 per share (the "Fannin Options"). The term of the Fannin Options is ten years, and they will vest with respect to one-fourth of the shares subject thereto on the grant date and an additional one-fourth on each of the first, second and third anniversaries of the grant date.

The Fannin Agreement further provides that (i) upon the occurrence of a Change in Control, the Fannin Options will become fully vested and Mr. Fannin will be entitled to exercise the Fannin Options for the balance of the original ten-year term, (ii) if the Company terminates Mr. Fannin's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if he terminates his employment for Good Reason, the Fannin Options will become fully vested and he will be entitled to exercise the Fannin Options for the balance of the original ten-year term, (iii) if the Company terminates Mr. Fannin's employment for Cause, he will be able to exercise the Fannin Options which are exercisable on the date of termination within 90 days of the date of termination and if he terminates his employment other than for Good Reason, he will be able to exercise the Fannin Options which are exercisable on the date of termination within one year of the date of termination, (iv) if Mr. Fannin's employment is terminated due to his death, his estate or legal representative will be entitled to exercise within one year after the date of death the Fannin Options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of death, and (v) if his employment is terminated due to disability, he will be entitled to exercise within three years all Fannin Options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of termination. See "EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS" for definitions of all capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein.

If the stockholders of the Company do not approve the grant of the Fannin Options to Mr. Fannin, the Company and Mr. Fannin have agreed to negotiate in good faith mutually acceptable alternative compensation arrangements. The terms and conditions of any such alternative compensation arrangements have not been determined. Failure to approve the grant of the Fannin Options to Mr. Fannin will not affect any other provisions of the Fannin Agreement. However, if the stockholders of the Company do not approve the grant of the Fannin Options to Mr. Fannin, Mr. Fannin may elect to terminate his employment for Good Reason.

Approval of this proposal to approve the grant of the Fannin Options to Mr. Fannin contained in his Employment Agreement with the Company will require the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the votes cast on the proposal, provided that the total number of votes cast represents over 50% of the number of votes entitled to be cast on this proposal.

CERTAIN FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSEQUENCES

012147

No income will result to Messrs. Dunlap, Kersh or Fannin upon the grants of stock options discussed above. Upon the exercise of such a stock option, the amount by which the fair market value of the shares on the date of exercise exceeds the option price would be taxed to the individual exercising such stock option as ordinary compensation income.

Section 162(m) of the Code disallows a publicly-held company's deductions for compensation exceeding $1,000,000 per year for certain executives. However, compensation which constitutes "performance based compensation" approved by the Company's stockholders is excluded from the above limitation. The stock option grants have been designed to enable the stock options described above to qualify as performance based compensation if the stock option grants are approved by the Company's stockholders. Accordingly, upon the exercise of a stock option, the Company will be entitled to a deduction in the amount equal to the compensation income to the employee.

The preceding discussion is based upon the Code as presently in effect, which is subject to change, and does not purport to be a complete description of the federal income tax aspects of stock options.

PROPOSAL 5 -- AMENDMENT TO THE COMPANY'S RESTATED CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION INCREASING THE NUMBER OF AUTHORIZED SHARES OF COMMON STOCK TO 500,000,000 FROM 200,000,000

The Company's Board of Directors has approved an amendment to the Company's Restated Certificate of Incorporation to increase the authorized number of shares of Common Stock to 500,000,000 from 200,000,000. As of March 30, 1998, there were 100,811,194 shares of Common Stock outstanding and no shares of Common Stock were held in the Company's treasury. As of March 30, 1998, an aggregate of 14,591,250 shares of Common Stock were issuable upon the exercise of outstanding stock options, and an aggregate of 5,625,000 shares of Common Stock were issuable upon the exercise of stock options granted to Messrs. Dunlap, Kersh and Fannin pursuant to their respective Employment Agreements with the Company. On March 2, 1998, the Company publicly announced that it had agreed to acquire The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"), the world's leading manufacturer and marketer of outdoor recreational products. In connection with such acquisition, the Company has issued 14,099,749 shares of Common Stock (including all of the Company's treasury shares), and will be required to issue up to an additional 7,211,823 shares of Common Stock. In addition, the Company recently completed an offering of $2,014 million principal amount of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 which are currently convertible into an aggregate of 15,228,358 shares of Common Stock. After giving effect to such issuances, as well as to the issuance of shares of Common Stock pursuant to the exercise of (i) currently outstanding options to acquire shares of Common Stock under the Option Plan, (ii) options to acquire shares of Common Stock granted to Messrs. Dunlap, Kersh and Fannin pursuant to their respective Employment Agreements (if approved by the Company's stockholders at the Annual Meeting) and (iii) future options available to be granted as a result of the proposed amendments to the Option Plan (if approved by the Company's stockholders at the Annual Meeting), the Company would have 51,532,375 shares of Common Stock available for future issuances, or less than the total number of shares that would be outstanding after giving effect to all such issuances.

The Board of Directors believes that the number of shares of the Company's authorized Common Stock should be increased in order to maintain shares which are available from time to time as needed for corporate purposes approved by the Board of Directors. Such corporate purposes could include the acquisition by the Company of other companies or assets, the raising of additional capital through public offerings, the declaration of stock splits or stock dividends and the issuance of stock under the Option Plan and other employee benefit plans. Except as set forth above, the Company has not entered into any agreement or plan, and has no present plans, for the issuance of the additional shares of Common Stock, but desires to have such shares available for future issuances as the need may arise without the delay which would be incident to approval of any such issuance in the future for any specific transaction.

If the proposed amendment is approved, the additional shares could be issued by the Board of Directors without further vote or approval of the stockholders. The Company's stockholders do not and will not have pre-emptive rights to acquire any additional shares of Common Stock that may be approved for issuance.

The adoption of this proposal for the increase in the number of authorized shares of Common Stock might have the effect of discouraging an attempt to remove incumbent management or gain control of the Company, even if such activities were perceived by stockholders of the Company to be favorable to them. The additional authorized shares could be used to dilute the stock ownership of persons seeking to obtain control of the Company. The proposed increase in authorized capital is not designed to have an anti-takeover effect, to dilute the stock ownership of any person seeking to obtain control of the Company nor are there any plans to privately place any of the shares to be added to the authorized capital by the proposed amendments.

Approval of this proposal to amend the Company's Restated Certificate of Incorporation to increase the total number of authorized shares of Common Stock to 500,000,000 from 200,000,000 will require the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the outstanding shares of Common Stock, abstentions and broker non-votes will be counted and have the same effect as a vote against the proposal.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS RECOMMENDS A VOTE "FOR" THE PROPOSAL TO AMEND THE CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION

PROPOSAL 6 -- AMENDMENTS TO THE AMENDED AND RESTATED SUNBEAM CORPORATION STOCK OPTION PLAN TO INCREASE THE NUMBER OF SHARES OF COMMON STOCK WITH RESPECT TO WHICH AWARDS MAY BE GRANTED TO 16,500,000 SHARES FROM 11,500,000 SHARES

The Company currently maintains the Option Plan, which originally became effective on January 1, 1991, and which has since been amended by the Board of Directors and by action of the stockholders of the Company. The Board of Directors proposes to further amend the Option Plan to increase the number of shares of Common Stock which may be issued under the Option Plan to 16,500,000 shares from 11,500,000 shares (the "1998 Amendment"). A copy of the Option Plan, as proposed to be amended, is attached hereto as Appendix A and reference is made to the Appendix for a complete statement of the Option Plan.

THE OPTION PLAN

012149

The Option Plan is used by the Company to attract, retain and motivate executive, management and other employees by providing them with an ownership interest in the Company. Under the Option Plan, participants selected by the Committee, are eligible for grants of options to acquire shares of Common Stock and awards of shares of restricted Common Stock which, when granted, are subject to forfeiture and may not be transferred by the participants. No person may be granted options under the Option Plan for more than 250,000 shares of Common Stock, or more than 25,000 shares of restricted stock, in any fiscal year of the Company.

The Option Plan is administered by the Compensation Committee, consisting of Directors Langerman, Elson and Whittlesey. The Compensation Committee has authority, subject to the terms of the Option Plan, to determine: (i) when and to whom to make grants under the Option Plan (but no option or stock award may be granted later than December 31, 2006); (ii) the number of shares of Common Stock to be covered by such grants; (iii) the types and terms of options; and (iv) the exercise price of the shares of Common Stock covered by options. The Compensation Committee also has the authority to prescribe, amend and rescind rules and regulations governing the Option Plan. In determining grants under the Option Plan, the Compensation Committee considers, among other things, the number of shares available for grant and the performance of individual candidates. Directors of the Company, executive officers, members of management, other key employees and all full time employees are eligible to participate. The Option Plan may generally be amended by the Board of Directors, except as described below with respect to certain matters which must be submitted to a vote of the stockholders.

Options granted under the terms of the Option Plan are non-qualified stock options. The term of each option commences on the date of grant and expires at the close of business on the earlier of the (i) the tenth anniversary of the date of grant or (ii) the 45th day following the termination of the optionee's employment with the Company. If an optionee's employment terminates due to death, all options held by the participant at death become immediately exercisable in full, and upon a "Change in Control" of the Company (as defined in the Option Plan), all options held by optionees who are then employed by the Company become immediately exercisable in full. The exercise price of, and the number of shares covered by, each option is subject to adjustment to reflect stock dividends, stock splits, other recapitalizations, reclassifications or other changes affecting the number or kind of outstanding shares.

The exercise price of an option may be paid in cash or, with the consent of the Committee, in shares of stock based on the fair market value on the date of exercise and on terms and conditions to be determined by the Company. This "cashless exercise" may be effectuated in one of two ways. First, the Option Plan permits the Compensation Committee to allow an Option Plan participant to pay the exercise price in shares of stock of the Company. Second, the Option Plan permits a "cashless exercise" of an option and payment of withholding taxes through a broker-assisted transaction. In a broker-assisted exercise, a broker advances the funds necessary for the optionee to exercise the option and then immediately sells a sufficient number of shares acquired upon the exercise to fund the exercise price, broker fees and, if the participant elects, the optionee's income tax withholding liability.

The Option Plan also permits grants of restricted stock to the participants. The Option Plan provides that, subject to the Compensation Committee's discretion to provide otherwise, the forfeiture and restrictive provisions lapse with respect to one-seventh of the shares of restricted stock granted on each of the first through the seventh anniversaries of the date of grant provided that such provisions would also lapse upon a Change in Control, if the participant is an employee or Director of the Company at the time of such a Change in Control.

Options are not transferable. Each option is exercisable during the lifetime of an optionee only by the optionee to whom it was granted, and after the optionee's death only by the optionee's estate or legal representative.

Inasmuch as the Compensation Committee determines, in its discretion (subject to the limitation described above), the employees to whom options and shares of restricted stock will be granted and the number of shares subject to such options and the number of such shares of restricted stock, future grants to be made under the Option Plan are not determinable. The number of stock options granted under the Option Plan in the aggregate during the 1997 fiscal year were as follows: all then current executive officers as a group (consisting of 12 persons), 287,500 shares; all nonemployee Directors as a group, none; and all employees as a group (consisting of 3,738 persons), 3,109,463 shares.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSEQUENCES OF THE OPTION PLAN

The tax consequences of non-qualified options and restricted stock awards are complex. The description of tax consequences set forth below is necessarily general in nature and does not purport to be complete. Moreover, statutory provisions are subject to change, as are their interpretations, and their application may vary in individual circumstances. Finally, the tax consequences under applicable state and local income tax laws may not be the same as under the federal income tax laws.

Non-Qualified Stock Options ("NQSOs")

There will be no federal income tax consequences to the participants or the Company on the grant of a NQSO. On the exercise of a NQSO, the participant will have taxable ordinary income equal to the excess of the fair market value of the shares of Common Stock received on the exercise date over the option price of the shares. Generally, the Company will be entitled to a federal income tax deduction in an amount equal to such excess. Any ordinary income realized by a participant upon exercise of a NQSO will increase his tax basis in the Common Stock acquired by exercise of the NQSO. Upon the sale of Common Stock acquired by exercise of a NQSO, participants realize long-term or short-term capital gain or loss depending upon their holding period for such stock.

A participant who surrenders shares of Common Stock in payment of the exercise price of a NQSO will not recognize gain or loss on his surrender of such shares. The number of shares received equal to the number of shares surrendered will have the same tax basis and capital gains holding period as the shares surrendered. The balance of the shares received will have a tax basis equal to their fair market value on the date of exercise (representing the amount of recognized ordinary income to the recipient), and the capital gains holding period will begin on the date of exercise.

Restricted Stock

Under the Code, a participant normally will not realize taxable income and the Company will not be entitled to a deduction upon the grant of shares of restricted stock. When the shares are no longer subject to a substantial risk of forfeiture (as defined in the Code) or become transferrable, the participant will realize taxable ordinary income generally in an amount equal to the fair market value of such number of shares of Common Stock at that time, and the Company will be entitled to a deduction in the same amount. However, if a participant makes an election under Section 83(b) of the Code, the participant will recognize ordinary income in the year the shares of restricted stock are awarded in an amount equal to the fair market value of the shares of restricted stock at the date of grant, determined without regard to the restrictions. Generally, in that event, the Company will be entitled to a tax deduction in such year in the same amount, and any gain or loss realized by the participant upon the subsequent disposition of Common Stock will be capital gain or loss and will not result in any further deduction to the Company.

Parachute Payments

The exercise of any portion of an option or the lapse of restrictions relating to shares of restricted stock that is accelerated, as a result of a Change in Control or a similar event, may cause payments with respect to such accelerated options or accelerated lapse of restrictions to be treated as "parachute payments" as defined in the Code. Any such parachute payments may be non-deductible to the Company in whole or in part for federal income tax purposes and may subject the employee to a non-deductible 20% federal excise tax on all or a portion of such payment in addition to other taxes ordinarily payable. In the event that the acceleration of the exercisability of options or the lapse of restrictions relating to shares of restricted stock results in an excise tax, the Option Plan currently provides that the Company will pay the participant additional compensation necessary to place the participant in the same after-tax position he would have been in had no such excise tax been paid or incurred. Such additional compensation would be non-deductible to the Company for federal income tax purposes.

REASONS FOR THE 1998 AMENDMENT TO THE OPTION PLAN; RECOMMENDATION OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The Board of Directors has given due consideration to the Option Plan and has determined that adoption of the 1998 Amendment is in the best interest of the Company. The Company in recent years has used the Option Plan as a means of retaining and compensating employees. The Company believes that the ability to use the Option Plan to attract and retain key personnel has been essential to the growth of the Company. The purpose of the 1998 Amendment is to expand the ability of the Company to reward the services of experienced key personnel, including Directors of the Company, by the provision of economic incentives in the form of stock options and restricted stock and to ensure that the federal income tax deduction otherwise available to the Company with respect to the Option Plan will continue.

On March 30, 1998, the Company acquired an 82.4% interest in Coleman. In addition, on April 3, 1998, the Company acquired a controlling interest in each of First Alert, Inc. ("First Alert"), a leading manufacturer of smoke and carbon monoxide detectors, and Signature Brands USA, Inc. ("Signature Brands"), a leading manufacturer of consumer and professional products pursuant to cash tender offers for each company's outstanding shares. The Company plans to complete its acquisitions of the remaining publicly held shares of each of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands pursuant to merger transactions expected to be completed in the second quarter. In light of these transactions, the Company's need to provide appropriate incentives to its employees is even more pronounced. The integration of the operations of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands will be dependent upon the retention of certain key management. The Option Plan, as amended, will allow the Company sufficient flexibility to attract and retain key personnel and will facilitate the smooth and efficient integration of the newly acquired businesses.

Approval of the 1998 Amendment to the Option Plan will require the affirmative vote of the holders of a majority of the votes cast on the proposal, provided that the total number of votes cast on such proposal represents over 50% of the number of votes entitled to be cast on such proposal.

SUNBEAM DELAYS SEC FILING RELATING TO DEBENTURES

Company in Talks With Lenders on Covenant Waivers

Delray Beach, FL, June 25, 1998 – Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE: SOC) announced that it is delaying filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission a registration statement for its previously issued Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 for resale by the holders thereof. The delay is necessary to enable the Company to continue its review of certain issues regarding Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. Arthur Andersen LLP, the Company's auditor, notified the Company yesterday that it will not provide its consent to the inclusion in the registration statement of its opinion on the 1997 financial statements, pending completion of the review.

Sunbeam confirmed news reports that the SEC has informed the Company of an informal inquiry into Sunbeam's accounting policies and practices and has requested various documents. Sunbeam intends to cooperate with the SEC.

Delay in filing the registration statement covering the Debentures will not constitute a default. The Company will be required to pay a small charge to the Debenture holders for each day the filing is delayed past June 23, 1998.

Sunbeam also said that it is continuing talks with bank lenders concerning a waiver of certain financial covenant measurements in its bank credit agreement. The covenants would normally require Sunbeam to meet certain financial tests at the end of each quarter. The Company will not meet these tests as of June 30, 1998 because of its anticipated loss for the second quarter. Sunbeam is seeking the waiver to give its new management time to complete a full review of Sunbeam's businesses and develop a new operating plan.

MACANDREWS & FORBES TO APPOINT TWO DIRECTORS

SUNBEAM NO LONGER EXPECTS TO ACHIEVE MAY 11 FORECASTS

Delray Beach, FL, (June 15, 1998) -- Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE.SOC) announced today that its Board of Directors has removed Albert J Dunlap from his position as Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer.

Peter A. Langerman, a Sunbeam outside director since 1992, has been named Chairman of the Board. Langerman, 43, is Chief Operating Officer of Franklin Mutual Advisers, Inc., investment advisor to Franklin Mutual Series Fund Inc., Sunbeam' largest shareholder with approximately 17% equity ownership.

Jerry W. Levin will be named Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam. Levin, 54, is an Executive Vice President of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings and former Chairman and CEO of Revlon Inc and The Coleman Co Sunbeam's three senior operating executives will continue to run their respective businesses, reporting to Levin. They are Lee Griffith, President of the Household Products Division; Frank Feraco, President of the Outdoor Leisure Division; and Franz Schmid, who runs Sunbeam's international business.

Sunbeam will expand its Board of Directors to include an additional designee of Franklin Mutual Series Fund and two designees of MacAndrews & Forbes, Sunbeam's second largest shareholder with approximately 13% equity ownership. MacAndrews & Forbes designees will be Levin and Howard Gittis, Vice Chairman of MacAndrews & Forbes Langerman said, "The outside directors have unanimously taken this decisive action because we have lost confidence in Mr. Dunlap's leadership. This action did not result from any concern about the Company's 1997 audited financial statements. Arthur Andersen LLP, Sunbeam's auditor, has assured the Board that Sunbeam's audited financial statements are accurate in all material respects. However, Sunbeam has continued to incur operating loses in the second quarter of 1998 and the Board no longer expects the Company to achieve the earnings and other forecasts announced on May 11, 1998. The Board continues to believe Sunbeam's businesses are fundamentally sound and expects the Company will be successful under new leadership."

Levin said, "Sunbeam has world-class brands and strong leadership positions across a broad range of product lines. I believe the Company has the right strategy, and my job is to develop a realistic operating plan that takes full advantage of Sunbeam's potential. I have already begun working with the Board and operating management to reexamine every aspect of the business -- from research and development to manufacturing, distribution, marketing and

Dear Al:

Pursuant to our recent discussions, I am pleased to confirm the arrangements under which Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") is engaged by Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") in connection with the proposed sale or merger of Sunbeam (the "Company") to or with another corporation (a "Sale Transaction"), and/or the possible acquisition of one or more entities (an "Acquisition Transaction").

During the term of our engagement we will provide you with financial advice and assistance in connection with these transactions, including advice and assistance with respect to defining objectives, performing valuation analysis, and structuring, planning and negotiating the transaction. We also will provide, as and when requested by you, an opinion to the Company's Board of Directors as to the fairness from a financial point of view of a Sale Transaction or an Acquisition Transaction to the Company's shareholders.

If a Sale Transaction is consummated, we will charge a "Sale Transaction Fee" of 0.425% of the Sale Transaction's Aggregate Value. The "Aggregate Value" of the Sale Transaction shall be the value of the consideration paid for the Company's common equity (or, in the case of a sale of assets, the consideration paid for such assets), plus the value of any debt, capital lease, and preferred stock obligations of the Company assumed, retired, or defeased in connection with the Sale Transaction. Any amounts to be paid by the buyer contingent upon future events shall be estimated for purposes of the Sale Transaction Fee calculation at an expected value mutually agreeable to you and to us at the time of closing, except that amounts held in escrow shall be deemed paid at closing.

CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT UNDER
F.O.I.A. REQUESTED

SB 237825

The full Sale Transaction Fee in connection with a completed Sale Transaction will become payable and is to be paid by Sunbeam when control of 50% or more of the Company's common stock changes hands. Nevertheless, our advisory efforts pursuant to this letter will continue after control is obtained to assist you with a second step merger or similar transaction.

Any advice or opinions provided by Morgan Stanley may not be disclosed or referred to publicly or to any third party except in accordance with our prior written consent. Notwithstanding the foregoing, advice and opinions given by Morgan Stanley to the Company's Board of Directors may be disclosed in any disclosure document provided to the Company's shareholders that is required by the federal securities laws, provided that any such disclosure shall be reasonably satisfactory to Morgan Stanley and its counsel.

In the event the Company enters into a definitive agreement providing for a Sale Transaction, we will charge an "Exposure Fee" of $3,000,000. The Exposure Fee is intended to compensate us for publicly associating Morgan Stanley's name as a financial advisor with the Sale Transaction, for Morgan Stanley's contribution to the parties' reaching an agreement, or both. The Exposure Fee will be credited against the Sale Transaction Fee.

If an Acquisition Transaction is consummated, we will charge an Acquisition Transaction Fee calculated as a percentage of the Aggregate Value (as previously defined) of the Acquisition Transaction as follows:

Aggregate Value of Acquisition Transaction ($MM)	Acquisition Transaction Fee Percentage
$ 500	0.875%
1,000	0.540
1,500	0.510
2,000	0.480
3,000	0.450
Greater than 3,000	0.425

For an Acquisition Transaction in which the Aggregate Value is between two values shown in the above fee schedule, the Acquisition Transaction Fee Percentage applicable is determined by interpolation between the two nearest Acquisition Transaction Fee Percentages.

In the event the Company enters into a definitive agreement providing for an Acquisition Transaction, we will charge an Acquisition Exposure Fee equal to 25% of the estimated Acquisition Transaction Fee. The Acquisition Exposure Fee paid will be credited against the Acquisition Transaction Fee.

If the Company issues non-cash consideration in an Acquisition Transaction or receives non-cash consideration in a Sale Transaction, for purposes of computing the Acquisition Transaction Fee or the Sale Transaction Fee, non-cash consideration shall be valued as follows: (x) publicly traded securities shall be valued at the average of their closing prices (as reported in The Wall Street Journal) for the ten trading days prior to the closing of a transaction and (y) any other non-cash consideration shall be valued at the fair market value thereof as determined in good faith by mutual agreement of the Company and Morgan Stanley

If, in connection with this assignment, Sunbeam effects a repurchase of or a public sale or private placement of equity, preferred or debt securities or Sunbeam effects real estate financings, asset or property sales, and Sunbeam requires investment banking services in connection therewith, Sunbeam agrees to offer to retain Morgan Stanley on mutually agreeable terms to assist it with such transaction. In addition, if in connection with this assignment, Sunbeam effects any interest rate, equity-related or currency hedges or currency conversions, including but not limited to currency transactions on a spot, forward or option basis, Sunbeam agrees to offer to retain Morgan Stanley on mutually agreeable terms to assist it with such transaction.

In addition to our fee for professional services, we will separately bill our documented out-of-pocket expenses as incurred, not to exceed $250,000 per transaction payable at the conclusion of each transaction. Generally these expenses include travel costs, document production and other expenses of this type. The reasonable fees of outside counsel and other professional advisors, should they be engaged with your consent, will be billed as incurred and are not subject to the $250,000 limit per transaction.

Morgan Stanley will act under this letter agreement as an independent contractor with duties solely to Sunbeam. Because we will be acting on your behalf in this capacity, it is our practice to receive indemnification. A copy of our standard indemnity form is attached to this letter.

Please note that Morgan Stanley is a full service securities firm engaged in securities trading and brokerage activities, as well as providing investment banking, financing, and financial advisory services. In the ordinary course of our trading, brokerage, and financing activities, Morgan Stanley or its affiliates may at any time hold long or short positions, and may trade or otherwise effect transactions, for our own account or the accounts of customers, in debt or equity securities or senior loans of Sunbeam or any other company that may be involved in this transaction.

The term of our engagement under this letter shall commence on the date hereof and continue for 12 months after the date hereof, unless extended by mutual consent. Our services hereunder may be terminated with or without cause by you or by us at any time and without liability or continuing obligation to you or to us (except for any compensation earned and expenses incurred by us to the date of termination or date of expiration and except, in the case of termination by you or expiration of our engagement, for our right to fees pursuant to this letter for any transactions effected within one year of such termination or expiration of our engagement) and provided that the indemnity provisions will remain operative regardless of any such termination.

Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam (on its own behalf and, to the extent permitted by law, on behalf of its shareholders) each waives any right to trial by jury in any action, claim, suit or

Gentlemen:

This letter will confirm that we have engaged Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated to advise and assist us in connection with the matters referred to in our letter agreements dated September 5, 1997 (the "Engagement Letter"). In consideration of your agreement to act on our behalf in connection with such matters, we agree to indemnify and hold harmless you and your affiliates and your and their respective officers, directors, employees and agents and each other person, if any, controlling you or any of your affiliates (you and each such other person being an "Indemnified Person") from and against any losses, claims, damages or liabilities related to, arising out of or in connection with the engagement (the "Engagement") under the Engagement Letter, and will reimburse each Indemnified Person for all expenses (including fees and expenses of counsel) as they are incurred in connection with investigating, preparing, pursuing or defending any action, claim, suit, investigation or proceeding related to, arising out of or in connection with the Engagement, whether or not pending or threatened and whether or not any Indemnified Person is a party. We will not, however, be responsible for any losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or expenses relating thereto) that are finally judicially determined to have resulted from the bad faith or gross negligence of any Indemnified Person. We also agree that no Indemnified Person shall have any liability (whether direct or indirect, in contract or tort or otherwise) to us for or in connection with the Engagement except for any such liability for losses, claims, damages or liabilities incurred by us that are finally judicially determined to have resulted from the bad faith or gross negligence of such Indemnified Person.

RIDER

We will not, without your prior written consent, settle, compromise, consent to the entry of any judgment in or otherwise seek to terminate any action, claims, suit or proceeding in respect of which indemnification may be sought hereunder (whether or not any Indemnified Person is a party thereto) unless such settlement, compromise, consent or termination includes a release of each Indemnified Person from any liabilities arising out of such action, claim, suit or proceeding. No Indemnified Person seeking indemnification, reimbursement or contribution under this agreement will, without our prior written consent, settle, compromise, consent to the entry of any judgment in or otherwise seek to terminate any action, claim, suit, investigation or proceeding referred to in the preceding paragraph.

If the indemnification provided for in the first paragraph of this agreement is judicially determined to be unavailable (other than in accordance with the terms hereof) to an Indemnified Person in respect of any losses, claims, damages or liabilities referred to herein, then, in lieu of indemnifying such Indemnified Person hereunder, we shall contribute to the amount paid or payable by such Indemnified Person as a result of such losses, claims, damages or liabilities (and expenses relating thereto) (i) in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect the relative benefits to you, on the one hand, and us, on the other hand, of the Engagement or (ii) if the allocation provided by clause (i) above is not available, in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect not only the relative benefits referred to in such clause (i) but also the relative fault of each of you and us, as well as any other relevant equitable considerations; provided, however, in no event shall your aggregate contribution to the amount paid or payable exceed the aggregate amount of fees actually received by you under the Engagement Letter. For the purposes of this agreement, the relative benefits to us and you of the Engagement shall be deemed to be in the same proportion as (a) the total value paid or contemplated to be paid or received or contemplated to be received by us or our stockholders, as the case may be, in the transaction or transactions that are the subject of the Engagement, whether or not any such transaction is consummated, bears to (b) the fees paid or to be paid to you under the Engagement Letter.

The provisions of this agreement shall apply to the Engagement and any modification thereof and shall remain in full force and effect regardless of any termination or the completion of your services under the Engagement Letter.

This agreement and the Engagement Letter shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York applicable to contracts executed in and to be performed in that state.

Very truly yours,

We shall be entitled to participate at our own expense in the defense of any Action brought to enforce any claim or liability of any Indemnified Person resulting from any such Action and, if we so elect, we shall be entitled to assume the defense of such Action at our expense, including the employment of counsel (in which case we shall not thereafter be responsible for the fees, costs and expenses of any separate counsel retained by an Indemnified Person); provided, however, that such counsel shall be satisfactory to an Indemnified Person in the exercise of its reasonable judgment. Notwithstanding the foregoing, an Indemnified Person shall have the right to employ separate counsel in the defense of an Action, and we shall bear the reasonable fees, costs and expenses of such separate counsel if (a) the use of counsel chosen by us to represent the Indemnified Person would present such counsel with a conflict of interest; (b) the representation of both parties by the same counsel would be inappropriate due to actual or potential differing interests between them; (c) we shall not have employed counsel satisfactory to the Indemnified Person in the exercise of the Indemnified Person's reasonable judgment to represent the Indemnified Person, within a reasonable time after notice of the institution of such Action; or (d) we authorize the Indemnified Person to employ separate counsel at our expense. SUBJECT: SUNBEAM CORP. – $2.0 BILLION SENIOR SECURED CREDIT FACILITIES

I. BACKGROUND

Sunbeam Corp. ("SOC", NYSE) is a leading worldwide manufacturer of a wide range of household and specialty brand name consumer products. As of March 6, 1998, the Company had an equity market value of $4.4Bn. Morgan Stanley became involved with Sunbeam through the relationship between Bill Strong and Al Dunlap. Bill Strong first met Al Dunlap in 1986 when Al Dunlap worked for Sir James Goldsmith. Bill Strong has been involved with three transactions for Al Dunlap and Sir James Goldsmith. The last transaction was a $275MM Regulation S sale of Newmont Mining common stock in 1993 successfully executed by Morgan Stanley. The Firm began soliciting a strategic relationship with Al Dunlap in April 1997 and was retained as sole strategic advisor to Sunbeam in early September 1997. Since that time, we have been exploring various strategic alternatives for the Company, with the active participation of Sunbeam's management team. Such advisory reviews have included potential acquisitions, a sellside process for the Company and the recently announced buyside transactions. As a consequence of these projects, the Firm has developed strong relationships with both the CEO and senior management at the Company. Furthermore, Andrew Conway expects to initiate equity research.

II. THE TRANSACTION

Morgan Stanley is advising the Company in its pending acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert with a total $2.5Bn in aggregate value, including assumption of $1.6Bn in debt at the three entities. The Sunbeam common stock price has risen by $8.31 per share, from $41.75 to $50.06 (a 20% increase) since the transactions were announced. To finance these acquisitions, Sunbeam has asked Morgan Stanley to underwrite $2.0Bn in Senior Secured Credit adding in $312.5

Facilities and to sole-manage a $500MM Zero Coupon Convertible Subordinated Debenture (plus a $75MM greenshoe) to be issued pursuant to Rule 144A. These financings, combined with the $888MM Sunbeam equity being provided to the seller of Coleman (MAFCO and minority shareholders), complete the financing of the acquisition. Morgan Stanley has signed a "Highly Confident" letter in reference to the financing of these acquisitions.

The proposed Senior Secured Credit Facilities will be structured as follows:

($ in millions)

Tranche	Amount	Tenure	LIBOR Spread at Close
Revolving Credit	$ 500	7 years	1.25%
Term Loan A	1,000	7 years	1.25%
Term Loan B	500	8 ½ years	1.75%
	$ 2,000

While Morgan Stanley seeks the Committee's approval to underwrite the entire $2.0 billion amount of the Facilities, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding (MSSF) has already approached Bank of America and First Union, two of Sunbeam's relationship lenders, and has asked each of them to underwrite 30% of the Facilities. B&A and First Union are still in the process of gaining internal credit approvals. The anticipated senior-most credit rating for the pro forma Sunbeam is expected to be [BB/Ba2]. Due to the accelerated timing of the transaction, it is MSSF's intention to first close the acquisitions at the end of March, and then syndicate its position. On a pro forma basis, Bank Debt to EBITDA is 3.97x, Total Debt to EBITDA is 5.14x and EBITDA to Cash Interest is 3.54x.

The convertible transaction was launched on Thursday, March 12, to be priced on Thursday, March 19 and closed on Tuesday, March 24 in advance of the closing of the Coleman, Signature and First Alert acquisitions. MS believes Sunbeam's rating on this security would be B+/B1, pro forma and as adjusted for the acquisition strategy and financing plan as described above, although we do not believe that the security will be rated until several weeks after pricing.

We are asking the Committee to approve underwriting 2.0Bn in Senior Secured Credit Facilities.

III. ACQUISITION STRUCTURE

On Monday, March 2, the Company announced three acquisitions in the consumer durables sector: Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert. The total aggregate value of these acquisitions is $2.5Bn. With these acquisitions, the Company is endeavoring to take the first step in the consolidation of the consumer durables sector.

Structure

The transaction will be financed with $2.0Bn of Bank Debt, $888MM in Sunbeam common equity (issued to MAFCO (Ron Perelman) as part of Coleman purchase) and $500MM in Zero Coupon Convertible debt. The Bank Debt will consist of $1.5Bn in term debt and a $500MM revolver (only about $100MM drawn down initially). The transactions will be structured as follows:

- Coleman Acquisition: The transaction, valued at $2,114MM aggregate value, will be consummated in two steps (i) acquisition of Coleman Holdings (owner of 82.4% of Coleman Operating Co. stock) from MAFCO affiliates and (ii) minority repurchase of Operating Co. public shareholders
  - The shares issued to MAFCO (14.1MM shares, $589MM) will be "locked-up" in the following manner: 25% can be sold after 3 months, a second 25% can be sold after 6 months, and the remaining 50% can be sold after 9 months. The minority shareholders will also receive the same mix of 21% cash and 79% stock. This acquisition is expected to close on March 30.
- Signature Brands Acquisition: Cash acquisition of all outstanding stock of Signature Brands by Sunbeam resulting in aggregate value of $249MM. The transaction is treated according to purchase accounting and expected to close in the first week of April 1998
- First Alert Acquisition: Cash acquisition of all outstanding stock of First Alert by Sunbeam resulting in aggregate value of $175MM. The transaction is treated according to purchase accounting and expected to close in the first week of April 1998

IV. DUE DILIGENCE

Morgan Stanley's M&A group has been working closely with Sunbeam for almost one year, and was appointed Sunbeam's sole strategic advisor in September 1997. In that regard, the M&A group has gained an extremely sound knowledge of the Company.

The Financing and Execution teams conducted their first due diligence session at Sunbeam's headquarters in Delray Beach, Florida on March 4, 1998. Representatives from MSSF, Client Services Group, Credit and Corporate Finance, met with Sunbeam's Director of Strategic Planning, Treasurer and Legal Counsel (or participated via conference call.) Also in attendance were representatives from Bank of America, First Union, and Davis Polk (Lender's Counsel).

Subsequently, the above mentioned groups have participated in due diligence conference calls with management teams from Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert.

In addition, a due diligence team visited the Coleman facilities in Wichita, Kansas on March 12. Another tentative due diligence trip is planned for Signature Brands and First Alert site visits.

Restructuring

In the fall of 1996, after several years of disappointing results, Sunbeam announced a major restructuring and growth plan under newly appointed chairman Albert Dunlap. The restructuring portion of the plan has been substantially completed with only the final "refinement" stage remaining. It included the redefinition of Sunbeam's core products, divestiture of non-core businesses, hiring a new management team, closing of warehouses and consolidation of headquarters, elimination of production facilities, and a large reduction in unprofitable products. The actions led to a reduction of approximately half the work force (about 6,000 jobs). Cost reductions are expected to result in annual savings of $225MM, most of which were already realized in 1997.

The restructuring resulted in double-digit sequential sales growth throughout 1997 with annual sales growth of 18.7% and an operating margin improvement from 0.2% in 1996 to 17.1% in 1997, and with operating margins reaching 20% by the fourth quarter of 1997. Sunbeam's share price increased from the $15 range before the appointment of Al Dunlap to $41.75 before the announcement of the recent acquisitions.

Pre-Acquisition Strategy/Goals

Prior to the acquisition announcements, Sunbeam management outlined the following goals for growth in 1998:

- 25% top line and 40% EPS growth based on new innovative products, successful roll out of air and water filtration products, higher advertising levels and increased penetration of international markets
- Expansion of global distribution by adding 30 new global products as well as international distribution/licensing agreements
- Project Full Time: Strategic initiative to improve customer service levels and therefore enhance growth (initiated 2Q 1997)
- Merger or acquisitions: Management will continue to examine strategic alternatives to strengthen the business and create shareholder value

Following the acquisition, the Company is going to pursue a strategy focused on the consolidation of the consumer durables sector. With the significant number of underperforming companies in this sector (Black & Decker, Rubbermaid, etc.), the Company believes it will have a significant opportunity to make additional future acquisitions.

VIII. SUMMARY OF PROJECTIONS AND ASSUMPTIONS

- The financial projections that appear below are based on a Morgan Stanley Financing Base Case. The MS Base Case was developed by significantly reducing revenue growth rates and synergy assumptions that were provided in an original Management Case.
- The Sales CAGR 1996-01 was reduced from almost 14% in the Management Case, to 9.4% on the MS Base Case.
- Synergies were also reduced on the MS Base Case, to $60.0MM in Year 1 (a 40% reduction from the Management Case) and to $150.0MM in the years thereafter (approximately 23% reduction from the Management Case).
- An MS Downside Case has also been presented in the Appendix. This case assumes Sales CAGR 1996-01 reduced to 4.4%, and assumes no synergies.

  - 15.2x 1999 median I/B/E/S estimate of $2.75 (versus 19.2x for comparables)
- After the transaction announcement, Sunbeam's share price has experienced an increase of $8.31, rising from $41.75 to $50.06, a 20% increase.
- The Company's current trading levels are warranted given the level of expected synergies ($150MM, pre-tax) and investors' confidence in Sunbeam's management team and proven ability to turn around companies and leverage undervalued brand names.
- Investors also view there to be other, significant acquisition opportunities for Sunbeam to capitalize on in its new role as an industry consolidator
- Investors focus on the 1999 P/E multiple (the first full year of ownership and of full cost savings) and currently price Sunbeam at a discount reflecting execution risk for the integration

XI. POTENTIAL INVESTOR CONCERNS

- Significant Dependence on Management Team, Particularly Al Dunlap

  Sunbeam's recent turnaround performance appears to be due more to the capability of its management team in cost-cutting than to the innate strength of the Company's core business or growing demand for Sunbeam's products. What if the CEO and his team do not stay to fully implement Phase III of the Company's strategic plan?

  Response: Al Dunlap and his senior management team recently signed new, three year employment contracts. These agreements are primarily stock and option based, and incorporate a vesting feature which encourages management tenure. In addition, Al Dunlap has publicly stated (on several occasions) that he is committed to Sunbeam and "this new employment agreement will put to rest any rumors that I [he] would leave the Company." Finally, the Company has already begun to search for other managers from within the industry who would add further depth and operational expertise to this team.

- Fourth Quarter Earnings

  The Company recently reported fourth quarter earnings that were $0.03 below consensus expectations, resulting in a 9% share price decline on the day of the announcement. Is this indicative of a slowdown in the double digit growth that Al Dunlap has declared is his ongoing goal?

  Response: Business has shown significant improvement from the recent restructuring very quickly. Fourth quarter sales jumped 31%, excluding divestitures, from last year's numbers. Sales growth had, in fact, accelerated all year. Fourth quarter results were broad-based with all businesses, except for blankets, showing healthy gains. Operating margins hit an unprecedented 20%. EPS were $0.47 vs. $(0.03) in 4Q97. In short, the Sunbeam management team sets extremely high goals and, even when they fall slightly short, it is still a significant achievement.

- Integration of Recent Acquisitions and Future Acquisitions

  The Company is facing a significant challenge in integrating three separate companies concurrently. In addition, given the Company's new strategy of adopting the role of industry consolidator, it is likely that the Company will make additional acquisitions in the future. How can the Company be sure this integration effort will be successful?

  Response: Sunbeam management plans to integrate these acquisitions with immediate focus on cost synergies and brand development. Their acquisition strategy essentially involves acquiring undervalued, unmarketed brand names, and leveraging this established brand equity while combining administration, marketing, finance and other corporate functions more efficiently. This is a strategy that Al Dunlap and his team have successfully utilized at a number of companies before Sunbeam, including Scott Paper. In addition, revenue synergies derived from increasing geographical breadth, greater penetration of product offerings to major customers (i.e. WalMart) and the potential for dual branding will also generate substantial benefits through the combination.

- Ability to Attain Synergies

  The synergies anticipated from these combinations are sizable (over $150MM in the first full year). How attainable are these synergies? What will be the cost of achieving these synergies?

  Response: Morgan Stanley and Coopers & Lybrand (special acquisition consultants to Sunbeam) have had extensive discussions with the management of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, as well as the Sunbeam management regarding the potential synergies. Following these discussions and the subsequent due diligence performed prior to the announcement of these transactions, the Sunbeam management has expressed a high degree of confidence in their ability to achieve the stated synergies of approximately $150MM by the end of 1999 due to 10 years experience. They, in fact, have stated that it is not unlikely that they could achieve even greater synergies in a shorter period of time. In addition, while Andrew Conway has modeled $150MM in synergies in 1998, he feels that there could be upside to this figure.

- Dependence on One Major Customer, WalMart

  The Company presently attributes over 20% of its total revenues to WalMart. Following the acquisition, this concentration will increase to approximately 25%. Isn't this dependence on one major customer dangerous for the Company?

  Response: WalMart is widely recognized as the industry leader in mass retailing. In addition, WalMart offers all of the types of products manufactured by all five of Sunbeam's primary product lines, and WalMart (like Sunbeam) is aggressively expanding overseas. These characteristics make WalMart an excellent partner for the Company. However, Sunbeam is also aggressively expanding its distribution channels with other key retailers such as KMart, Target, Costco and Home Depot, and the Company now advertises on QVC. Sunbeam also has 22 factory outlet stores which are designed to sell surplus or discontinued merchandise. Moreover, these acquisitions also seem to make Sunbeam an increasingly important supplier to all the major retailers.

The plaintiff in this action, Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), is a holding company within the financial empire of Ronald O. Perelman ("Perelman"), a well advised and sophisticated businessman who buys and sells companies in deals involving billions of dollars. In 1997, Perelman became enamored with Al Dunlap, then one of the darlings of the business world. Perelman was convinced that Dunlap represented "the future."

In 1998, Perelman agreed to sell his stock in The Coleman Company, Inc., which was performing poorly and deeply in debt, to Dunlap's Sunbeam Corporation. As consideration, Perelman received cash (about $160 million), Sunbeam's assumption of Perelman's and Coleman's debt (about $1 billion), and over 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock (valued at some $600 million). The inclusion of stock in the mix of consideration was not an accident; Perelman demanded as much Sunbeam stock as he could get because he believed there was more "upside" in Dunlap than in cash.

Perelman was represented in the Coleman transaction not only by his own internal deal makers, but also by the investment bank of Credit Suisse First Boston ("CSFB"), the law firm of Wachtell Lipton Rosen Katz LLP, and the accounting firm of Ernst & Young LLP. Notwithstanding this brain trust, there is no genuine issue of material fact that, before taking Sunbeam stock as partial consideration for the Coleman sale:

- Perelman's due diligence team never looked at or even asked to see Sunbeam's interim financial statements for the first three months of 1998.
- Perelman's due diligence team did not even read Sunbeam's 1997 Annual Report until after the closing of the merger, nearly 30 days after its public dissemination.
- Perelman's due diligence team's investigation of Sunbeam consisted of a single one-hour meeting, on February 23, 1998, with Sunbeam's senior management.
- Perelman's representative at the February 23 meeting, Jerry W. Levin, was told by Sunbeam that Sunbeam's 1998 sales were slow, and Levin concluded and told Perelman that Sunbeam's three year business plan was "quite a stretch" and probably "not achievable."

012202

- Perelman's due diligence team never made any inquiry of Sunbeam, its financial advisors, or its auditors about Sunbeam's first quarter financial performance after Sunbeam issued its March 19, 1998 press release, warning the market of a possible shortfall in sales.

Perelman, however, is now seeking to eliminate his risk from the Coleman deal by converting Morgan Stanley, Sunbeam's financial advisor on that deal, into his insurer. According to the complaint, Perelman entered into this $2 billion deal in reliance on statements by Morgan Stanley, and thus Morgan Stanley is liable to Perelman's shell holding company, CPH, for (1) negligent misrepresentation, (2) fraudulent misrepresentation, (3) aiding and abetting fraud, and (4) conspiracy.

While it is understandable that Perelman is looking for a "deep pocket" from which to recoup his losses in the wake of Sunbeam's collapse, his efforts to recover from Morgan Stanley are both unprecedented and baseless. As a matter of elementary New York commercial law (which this Court has already ruled govern CPH's negligent and fraudulent misrepresentation claims), a plaintiff cannot establish negligent misrepresentation unless he enjoys a special relationship of trust or confidence with the defendant, and cannot establish fraudulent misrepresentation if he did not justifiably rely on the defendant's alleged misrepresentation. Here, there is no genuine issue of material fact that: (1) Perelman was not in a special relationship of trust or confidence with Morgan Stanley, the financial advisor to his negotiating counterpart; and (2) Perelman, a highly sophisticated businessman advised by his own experts and with just as much access to Sunbeam information as Morgan Stanley, could not have justifiably relied on any alleged misrepresentation by Morgan Stanley. And Perelman's aiding and abetting and conspiracy claims (which are really the same thing) also fail, because Perelman has not come forth with any evidence that Morgan Stanley had actual knowledge of, or substantially furthered, Sunbeam's alleged fraud.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012203

In the final analysis, this is a straightforward case. Perelman's real quarrel is with Sunbeam, not Morgan Stanley, and Sunbeam's bankruptcy does not give him a license to go after Morgan Stanley. Perelman agreed that all the representations and warranties on which he relied in this transaction were contained in the contract, and was so eager to unload Coleman that he did not carry out even minimal due diligence with respect to Sunbeam before accepting hundreds of millions of dollars worth of Sunbeam stock. Under these circumstances, he cannot justifiably have relied on any statements by Morgan Stanley as a matter of law. Indeed, if this plaintiff can dispense with due diligence in a $2 billion deal, and simply assert reliance on alleged misrepresentations or omissions by third parties, then any plaintiff can do so, and the law would reward the reckless. Because well-settled doctrines of New York commercial law firmly and sensibly reject this approach, this Court should enter summary judgment in Morgan Stanley's favor.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. Ronald O. Perelman Sophisticated Investor Who Surrounded Himself With Sophisticated Advisors

Perelman has an M.B.A. from the Wharton School of Economics, and is in the business of buying and selling companies for billions of dollars. (Findings ¶¶ 1, 20-24)[1] He operates through a complex system of holding companies, the most prominent of which is MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings Inc. ("MAFCO"). (Findings ¶¶ 3-9) In the 1990s, MAFCO owned a majority interest in a variety of companies, including Revlon, Inc. (cosmetics), Consolidated Cigars Holdings Inc. (cigars and pipe tobacco), Panavision Inc. (motion picture cameras), Scientific Games (games), Allied Security, M & F Worldwide Corp. (licorice and other flavorings), California Federal Bank (financial services), Marvel Entertainment, Meridian Sports Incorporated (ski boots), and Coleman (camping equipment). (Findings ¶ 21) In this action, no fewer than five holding companies separate Coleman from Perelman. (Findings ¶¶ 3-4, 6-9) But Perelman makes all the final decisions and is in complete control of his corporate empire. (Findings ¶¶ 1, 184)

Perelman surrounds himself with an army of sophisticated advisors who include lawyers, investment bankers, and workout specialists. (Findings ¶¶ 26-33) Indeed, one of Perelman's closest advisors on the Coleman transaction was Jerry W. Levin, who twice ran Coleman (and in between ran Revlon, Inc.). Levin, who has an M.B.A. from the University of Chicago Business School, is a "specialist in consumer branded products" whose "forte" is "execut[ing] turnarounds at consumer branded products companies" like Sunbeam. (Findings ¶ 27) As discussed below, Perelman received Levin's frank judgments about Sunbeam and Dunlap on more than one occasion. (Findings ¶¶ 67-68, 180-184) Thus, Perelman was at least on notice that taking Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration for Coleman was not a risk-free venture. (Findings ¶¶ 180-184) As Howard Gittis, second-in-charge at MAFCO, put it, "Ronald" saw more "upside" in Sunbeam stock than cash, which is why Ronald is "richer than me." (Findings ¶ 99)

B. Perelman And Sunbeam Were Adversaries Across The Negotiating Table

Sunbeam retained Morgan Stanley in September 1997 to act as its investment banker in connection with either the sale of Sunbeam or the acquisition of other companies. (Findings ¶ 17) Sunbeam's independent auditor was Arthur Andersen, a firm that stood by Sunbeam's financial statements and Andersen unqualified opinions on those statements until late June 1998. (Findings ¶ 327) Sunbeam also retained the law firm of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP ("Skadden"), which specializes in corporate mergers and acquisitions. (Findings ¶ 43)

Through the efforts of Michael Price, a substantial stockholder in Sunbeam, Dunlap and Perelman agreed to meet at Perelman's mansion in Palm Beach on December 18, 1997. (Findings ¶¶ 69, 87) This not Perelman's first meeting with Dunlap: well before negotiations started over the sale of Coleman to Sunbeam, Perelman and Dunlap had met, and Perelman had even asked Dunlap to join Coleman's board. (Findings ¶¶ 61-62) Perelman was so impressed by Dunlap that he asked Levin why he could not achieve the same results Dunlap was achieving at Sunbeam. (Findings ¶¶ 63-65) When Levin expressed skepticism about the financial returns Dunlap had reported to Perelman, he immediately telephoned Dunlap from the limousine and personally requested that Dunlap fax Sunbeam's interim financial statements to New York for Levin to review. (Findings ¶¶ 66-67) After Levin reviewed Sunbeam's interim financial statements, Levin told Perelman that he, Levin, "did not know based on my own experiences how to do what [Dunlap] is doing" and that "[i]f … Perelman, want[ed] somebody to try [Dunlap's approach]" he should "find somebody else because this is not in my business skill base." (Findings ¶¶ 67-68)

In preparation for the December 18 meeting, Perelman had his in-house analyst analyze a Coleman-Sunbeam merger, and Dunlap's contracts with Sunbeam. (Findings ¶¶ 73-86) Morgan Stanley did not provide any information used in this analysis or even see it. (Findings ¶¶ 74, 76)

CSFB, Perelman's outside financial advisor on the Coleman deal, also analyzed a combination without any information from Morgan Stanley. (Findings ¶¶ 85-86) CSFB requested and received a fee of $4 million plus expenses to serve as the investment banker for CPH. (Findings ¶ 35) Perelman also had retained his own legal counsel, Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz LLP to represent MAFCO in the course of the negotiations and closing of the Coleman transaction. (Findings ¶¶ 37, 105) Perelman also had his own accounting firm, Ernst

& Young LLP, which also was Coleman's independent auditor. (Findings ¶¶ 39-40) MAFCO had no contractual or other relationship with Morgan Stanley. (Findings ¶ 43)

Prepared by his advisors, Perelman met with Dunlap on December 18, 1997. The meeting ended with epithets and Dunlap storming out of the meeting. (Findings ¶¶ 87, 89-92) Morgan Stanley had no involvement in setting up the meeting or "finding Coleman." (Findings ¶ 88) By all accounts, the negotiations were dead in the water until they restarted about a month later. (Findings ¶ 93)

C. CPH Expressly Disclaims Reliance, And Performs No Due Diligence Before Signing The Merger Agreement

To facilitate the exchange of information between Coleman and Sunbeam, on or about February 4, 1998, Paul E. Shapiro, the General Counsel and an Executive Vice President of Coleman, signed and sent a Confidentiality Agreement to Sunbeam. (Findings ¶¶ 106, 108) David C. Fannin, the Executive Vice President and General Counsel of Sunbeam, executed the Confidentiality Agreement as of February 4, 1998. (Findings ¶ 108) On or about February 23, 1998, Sunbeam and Coleman entered into a second Confidentiality Agreement. (Findings ¶ 111) These Confidentiality Agreements are specifically identified and referenced in both the CLN Merger Agreement and the Coleman Merger Agreement. (Findings ¶¶ 108, 111, 112)

Pursuant to these Confidentiality Agreements, CPH, as an affiliate of Coleman, agreed that Sunbeam and its representatives, including Morgan Stanley, would not have any liability to CPH by virtue of CPH's use of the information — so-called "Evaluation Materials" — supplied to it by Sunbeam and its representatives, including Morgan Stanley, while the parties were negotiating Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman. (Findings ¶ 114) In the Confidentiality Agreements, which are customary in negotiations for mergers and acquisitions, CPH also agreed that Sunbeam and its representatives, including Morgan Stanley, did not make any representations or warranties about the accuracy or completeness of the information that they supplied to CPH. (Findings ¶¶ 107, 109, 113, 115)

D. Sunbeam and MAFCO Reach Agreement on Price and Negotiate Definitive Agreements

The parties resumed negotiations in late January 1998. (Findings ¶ 96) Perelman rejected Sunbeam's January 23 and February 6 offers. (Findings ¶¶ 103, 124, 126) The parties also agreed not to perform any due diligence of the other until the parties had an agreement in principle. (Findings ¶ 123)

On or about February 20, 1998, the parties were close enough to a deal that Perelman summoned his inner circle to New York. (Findings ¶ 133) Then, with the Confidentiality Agreements in place, Sunbeam and CPH engaged in due diligence over a mere four days — from February 23 to February 27, 1998, with each party represented by its own advisors. During this due diligence, Perelman's representatives had direct access to Sunbeam management. (Findings ¶ 135)

E. The February 23, 1998 Meeting at Morgan Stanley to Hear Sunbeam's "Long Range Strategic Business Plan"

On February 23, 1998, representatives of Sunbeam, MAFCO, Coleman, CSFB, and Morgan Stanley met for about an hour at Morgan Stanley's offices in New York. (Findings ¶ 162) Sunbeam's Chief Financial Officer, Russell Kersh—not Morgan Stanley—made a presentation. Levin, who attended the presentation because he was Perelman's expert in consumer branded products, wrote that Sunbeam said that "Jan Feb Slow." (Findings ¶¶ 164, 168-169) He also wrote that Sunbeam's earnings were "$1.99," not the $2.20 asserted the presentation. (Findings ¶ 171)

Leaving the meeting and in the elevator ride to the lobby, Levin told Perelman's chief negotiator (Maher) and his analyst (Nesbitt) the following conclusions: Sunbeam's business plan for the next three years was "quite a stretch," and Levin did not think it was "achievable." (Findings ¶ 180) Levin repeated his opinions the next morning to Perelman and his inner circle at Perelman's townhouse in Manhattan. (Findings ¶ 181)

When Perelman and Sunbeam ultimately reached an agreement in principle concerning Sunbeam's purchase of Perelman's interest in Coleman, Perelman's own financial advisor, CSFB — not Morgan Stanley — expressed the opinion to the Coleman board (on which Perelman sat) that the transaction was fair to Coleman's shareholders from a financial point of view. The board approved the transaction without any advice or counsel from Morgan Stanley. (Findings ¶¶ 191, 196, 197) Levin's opinions, however, were never disclosed the Coleman board. (Findings ¶¶ 189, 194)

F. The Merger Agreements — The Integration Clauses And CPH's Access To Sunbeam

On February 27, 1998, MAFCO and Sunbeam entered into the Agreement and Plan of Merger Among Sunbeam Corporation, Laser Acquisition Corp. ("Laser" was the code word for Sunbeam), CLN Holdings Inc. and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CLN Merger Agreement"). (Findings ¶ 198-200, 201)

On February 27, Coleman and Sunbeam entered into the Agreement and Plan of Merger Among Sunbeam Corporation, Camper Acquisition Corp., and The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Company Merger Agreement"). (Findings ¶ 195)

Both the CLN Merger Agreement and the Coleman Merger Agreement contain extensive representations and warranties among the parties. (Findings ¶ 207) The respective parties each bargained for the representations and warranties that were material to them. (Findings ¶¶ 204, 207, 211-212) Neither the CLN Merger Agreement nor the Coleman Merger Agreement contains any representations or warranties concerning Sunbeam's performance compared to the expectations of "Wall Street analysts" on a quarterly or annual basis, the "turnaround" of Sunbeam since 1996, or any increase in revenues, sales, profits, or earnings. (Findings ¶ 209)

In addition, CLN Merger Agreement contains a clear integration clause that states that the Agreement is the entire agreement and understanding between the parties and "supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral or written." (Findings ¶ 210) The Coleman Merger Agreement also contains an integration clause that states that the Agreement is the entire agreement and understanding and "supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, both written and oral." (Findings ¶¶ 208, 210)

The CLN Merger Agreement gave CPH complete access to Sunbeam's books, records, personnel, and facilities. (Findings ¶ 214) Specifically, the Agreement required Sunbeam to provide CPH and all of its "financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants consultants and other representatives" with "full access … to all of [Sunbeam's] books, records, properties, plants and personnel." (Findings ¶ 214) The Coleman Merger Agreement likewise required Sunbeam to provide Coleman and all of its "financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants, consultants and other representatives" with "full access … to all of [Sunbeam's] books, records, properties, plants and personnel." (Findings ¶ 215)

The Coleman Merger Agreement provided for an exchange of comfort letters from Sunbeam and CPH's respective auditors. (Findings ¶ 282) Similarly, the registration rights agreements for Perelman's Sunbeam shares provides for a comfort letter from Sunbeam's auditor, Arthur Andersen. (Findings ¶ 283) As a sophisticated party, CPH was aware of the general content of comfort letters (Findings ¶ 282), which are simply a means of providing summary financial statement information since the date of the last audited financial statement at issue, here year end 1997. (Findings ¶¶ 281-282)

G. From Signing To Closing: Sunbeam Makes Disclosures, CPH Looks Away

On March 6, 1998, Sunbeam filed and published its Form 10-K Annual Report for 1997. (Findings ¶ 240) Sunbeam disclosed that it engaged in "bill-and-hold" revenue recognition for certain sales amounting to 3 percent of Sunbeam's consolidated revenues. (Findings ¶ 240) Sunbeam's 1997 Annual Report also disclosed that in 1997 Sunbeam had created an "early buy" program for highly seasonal products such as grills, that the early buy program would shift certain sales risks to later periods, and that grills had begun to ship in the fourth quarter of 1997 under the program. (Findings ¶ 241)

On March 18, 1998, Morgan Stanley learned that Sunbeam might not meet Wall Street expectations for the first quarter of 1998. (Findings ¶ 245) After investigating the matter, which included multiple telephone conferences with Sunbeam's management and its counsel, as a well as a review of sales buildup information, Morgan Stanley insisted on March 19, 1998 that Sunbeam issue a press release stating that its sales for the first quarter of 1998 might miss the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates. (Findings ¶¶ 246-248) Morgan Stanley did not draft the press release. (Findings ¶ 250) And Morgan Stanley did not issue the press release. (Findings ¶ 249)

The press release caused Sunbeam's stock to fall precipitiously. (Findings ¶¶ 253-254) And analysts did raise questions about Sunbeam, which Perelman knew of and considered. (Findings ¶¶ 256, 265) Yet inexplicably, Perelman and his advisors never requested copies of Sunbeam's interim financial statements for 1998 nor the Andersen comfort letter that summarized the interim statements for January and February 1998. (Findings ¶¶ 263, 273-275) Perelman and his advisors assert that Levin spoke to Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley. (Findings ¶¶ 257, 260) But Levin himself testified that he never spoke to anyone at Morgan

Stanley or Sunbeam about the March 19 Press Release because it was "not his problem." (Findings ¶ 261)

The evidence is simply undisputed that from the signing of the merger agreements to the closing, Perelman and his representatives failed to exercise their contractual rights under the two merger agreements to examine Sunbeam's books, records, financial statements, facilities, results of operations, and business plans. (Findings ¶¶ 220-225)

H. Morgan Stanley Purchases Sunbeam's Debentures And Lends $680 Million To Sunbeam

Morgan Stanley underwrote $2.014 billion of Sunbeam's debentures. (Findings ¶ 276) Morgan Stanley did this after it learned of and investigated the potential for a first quarter sales shortfall, after Sunbeam issued the March 19 press release, and after Morgan Stanley received the Andersen comfort letter summarizing Sunbeam's interim financial information. (Findings ¶¶ 245-249)

Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. loaned Sunbeam $680 million after it learned of and investigated the potential for a first quarter sales shortfall, after Sunbeam issued the March 19 press release, and after Morgan Stanley received the Andersen comfort letter summarizing Sunbeam's interim financial information for January and February. (Findings ¶¶ 299-300) Two other banks also loaned Sunbeam over a billion dollars at the same time. These loans ended up being the largest claims in Sunbeam's bankruptcy proceeding. (Findings ¶ 332)

On April 3, 1998, Sunbeam announced its first quarter 1998 results, which were slightly below (5 percent) its first quarter of 1997 results. (Findings ¶ 310) Perelman never called Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley about the announcement. (Findings ¶¶ 312-314) Indeed, even as Sunbeam was about to meet with analysts on May 11 to go over its results in detail, Perelman was so supportive of Dunlap and Sunbeam that he gave Dunlap MAFCO proxy to vote 14.1

million shares of Sunbeam stock at Sunbeam's May 12, 1998 annual meeting. (Findings ¶¶ 316-322)

I. Dunlap Is Fired, Levin Takes Control, Arthur Andersen Withdraws Its Opinions, And Sunbeam Files For Bankruptcy

In June 1998, the Sunbeam board fired Dunlap and Kersh. (Findings ¶ 326) Levin, who was back at MAFCO, was hired to run Sunbeam, which he continues to do today under the company's new name American Household, Inc. (Findings ¶ 326) Later in June, Arthur Andersen withdrew its unqualified opinions on Sunbeam's financial statements. (Findings ¶ 327) Sunbeam eventually filed for bankruptcy in 2001. (Findings ¶ 331)

LEGAL STANDARD

Although this Court has determined that New York substantive law governs CPH's claims of negligent and fraudulent misrepresentation, Florida law still governs the procedure this Court must follow in considering this motion for summary judgment. See Aerovias Nacionales de Colombia, S.A. v. Tellez, 596 So. 2d 1193, 1195 (Fla. 3d DCA 1992) ("[T]he law of the forum, i.e., Florida law, governs on procedural matters."); Strauss v. Sillin, 393 So. 2d 1205, 1206 (Fla. 2d DCA 1981) ("In conflict of laws situations, matters of procedure are generally resolved by the law of the state in which the action has been instituted.").

Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.510 requires summary judgment to be rendered when, as here, the pleadings and other matters of record show "there is no genuine issue as to any material fact," thus entitling the moving party to judgment as a matter of law. Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.510(c); see also Poe & Assoc., Inc. v. Estate of Vogler, 559 So. 2d 1235, 1236 (Fla. 3d DCA 1990) (when the material facts are undisputed, summary judgment is appropriate). As discussed below, the material facts in this case are undisputed, and thus the case is ripe for determination by summary judgment. See Palm Beach County v. Trinity Indus., 661 So. 2d 942, 944 (Fla. 4th DCA 1995).

Alternatively, the Court should enter an order pursuant to Rule 1.510(d) finding the facts that exist without substantial controversy.

ARGUMENT

I. MORGAN STANLEY IS ENTITLED TO SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON COUNT IV OF THE COMPLAINT (NEGLIGENT MISREPRESENTATION)

This Court's order that New York substantive law governs CPH's negligent misrepresentation claim effectively disposes of that claim. As the Court held, well-settled New York law "circumscribes a tight[] circle of potential claimants, engrafting a requirement that the information's recipient be in a position of trust or confidence to its publisher" Aug. 11, 2004 Order at 4 (citing cases). There is no record evidence that CPH shared such a relationship with Morgan Stanley in this transaction. Indeed, any suggestion that such a relationship existed is fanciful, given that Morgan Stanley sat across the negotiating table from CPH as Sunbeam's financial advisor in this arm's length transaction. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on count IV of the complaint.

CPH's negligent misrepresentation claim alleges that "Morgan Stanley negotiated directly with CPH" concerning the Coleman sale, and, in the course of those negotiations, "Morgan Stanley failed to use reasonable care in providing CPH with truthful and accurate information concerning Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial performance, Sunbeam's business operations, the value of Sunbeam's stock, and Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance." Compl. ¶ 94 (emphasis added).

The fundamental problem for CPH is that, as a matter of well-settled New York law, a plaintiff can establish a claim for negligent misrepresentation only if he enjoyed a "special relationship of trust or confidence" with the defendant. Dyncorp v. GTE Corp., 215 F. Supp. 2d 308, 329 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) (internal quotations omitted); see also Giannacopoulos v. Credit Suisse, 37 F. Supp. 2d 626, 631 (S.D.N.Y. 1999) ("[B]efore a party may recover in tort for pecuniary loss sustained as a result of another's negligent misrepresentations there must be a showing that there was either actual privity of contract between the parties or a relationship so close as to approach that of privity.") (internal quotations omitted). That requirement reflects the fact that New York law does not impose any general free-floating duty for persons to "impart correct information" to others. United Safety of Am., Inc. v. Consolidated Edison Co., 623 N.Y.S.2d 591, 593 (App. Div. 1995). Accordingly, persons who rely on information provided by others generally do so at their own peril, and — if the information turns out to be wrong — cannot sue on the theory that the defendant breached a duty to exercise "reasonable care" in imparting the information.

Needless to say, the predicate "special relationship of trust and confidence" necessary for CPH to escape New York's common sense rule of self-reliance "generally does not exist between sophisticated business entities entering into arms-length business transactions." Dyncorp, 215 F. Supp. 2d at 329 (emphasis added). Indeed, courts have repeatedly recognized that the relationship of negotiating adversaries in a business transaction is the very "antithesis of a relationship of special trust and confidence." In re AHT Corp., 292 B.R. 734, 747 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) (emphasis added); Struna v. Wolf, 484 N.Y.S.2d 392, 397 (Sup. Ct. 1985) ("[P]laintiff was acting at arm's length in attempting to achieve a sale .... This relationship between the parties thus appears to be the very antithesis of the 'special relationship' ordinarily required which would support holding the defendant to a higher duty of care than is otherwise required.") (emphasis added); see also United Safety, 623 N.Y.S. 2d at 593 ("A simple arm's length business ... relationship is not enough."); American Protein Corp. v. AB Volvo, 844 F.2d 56, 64 (2d Cir. 1988) ("Since [the plaintiff] alleges nothing more than ordinary arm's length negotiations, its negligent misrepresentation claim fails as a matter of law."); St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Health Fielding Ins. Broking Ltd., 976 F. Supp. 198, 203 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) ("Something more than the trust and reliance between an ordinary buyer and seller must be established.").

Here, CPH has not even alleged that it was in a "special relationship of trust or confidence" with Morgan Stanley, and for good reason: such an allegation would not pass the straight-face test. Morgan Stanley was Sunbeam's financial advisor in this arm's length business transaction, and was sitting across the negotiating table from CPH, which had its own team of world-class legal and financial advisors. Under these circumstances, CPH simply cannot establish that Morgan Stanley had a duty to exercise "reasonable care" in making statements to CPH, and the narrow "special relationship of trust and confidence" exception does not apply as a matter of law.[2]

This case is thus similar to WIT Holding Corp. v. Klein, 724 N.Y.S.2d 66 (App. Div. 2001). The dispute there arose out of an agreement by the plaintiff, WIT Holding (WIT), to

[2] Although this exception has been extended to cases "where a person 'wholly without knowledge seeks assurances from one with exclusive knowledge,'" Eternity Global Master Fund Ltd. v. Morgan Guar. Trust Co., 375 F.3d 168, 189 (2nd Cir. 2004) (quoting Heard v. City of New York, 623 N.E.2d 541, 546 (N.Y. 1993)) (emphasis added), that situation is not remotely applicable here, where CPH and its expert team of legal and financial advisors had unfettered access to Sunbeam information, and Morgan Stanley had no "exclusive" knowledge or expertise unavailable to CPH. See supra at section I.A, (CPH hired expert advisors and the Merger Agreements granted CPH's experts full access to Sunbeam's "books, records, properties, plants, and personnel"); see also, e.g., UniCredito Italiano SPA v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, 288 F. Supp. 2d 485, 500-01 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) (plaintiffs could not assert the exclusive knowledge exception because Enron "covenanted in the relevant agreements to provide access to its books and records" and because plaintiffs "were themselves sophisticated financial institutions"); Marine Midland Bank v. Palm Beach Moorings, Inc., 403 N.Y.S.2d 15, 17 (App. Div. 1978) (refusing to apply the exception where "an experienced business man, assuming a controlling purchase a stock interest in First Providence Financial Group (FPFG). WIT alleged that during the course of negotiations, defendant Klein — a longtime social acquaintance of WIT's top corporate officers who had even worked directly with WIT's president on a prior joint project — wrongfully induced WIT to enter into the purchase agreement by negligently misleading the company about FPFG's ownership structure and its financial and regulatory status "in order to benefit himself and … FPFG." Id. at 67-68. The court dismissed WIT's claims that Klein and his co-defendants had both breached a fiduciary duty and made actionably negligent misrepresentations, explaining:

> Under these circumstances, where the parties were involved in an arms-length business transaction involving the transfer of stocks, and where all were sophisticated business people, the plaintiff's cause of action to recover damages for breach of fiduciary duty should have been dismissed. … [Likewise, because a] claim alleging negligent misrepresentation must also be based on some special relationship which implies a close degree of trust between the plaintiff and the defendant … the [trial court] erred in failing to dismiss this cause of action as well.

Id. at 68.

This Court should have no more trouble dispensing with CPH's negligent misrepresentation claim than New York's Appellate Division had dispatching WIT's. When, as here, "no triable issue of fact as to the 'special relationship' element exists, summary judgment on the negligent misrepresentation claim is appropriate." St. Paul, 976 F. Supp. at 204. Under settled New York law, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on count IV of the complaint.[3] interest in a corporation and incurring heavy financial obligations, did so on the basis of verbal assurances given to him by the seller and a bank official.").

[3] For reasons discussed at greater length below, see infra at section II. A, CPH could not prevail on this claim even if it did enjoy a special relationship with Morgan Stanley, because it has failed to prove the remaining elements of a negligent misrepresentation claim, in particular justifiable reliance.

II. MORGAN STANLEY IS ENTITLED TO SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON COUNT I OF THE COMPLAINT (FRAUDULENT MISREPRESENTATION)

CPH's fraudulent misrepresentation claim fares no better than its negligent misrepresentation claim. In New York, "it is well-settled that in order to demonstrate fraud, plaintiffs must establish: [1] the misrepresentation of a material fact; [2] knowledge by the party making the misrepresentation that it was false when made; [3] justifiable reliance upon the statement; and [4] damages." Abrahami v. UPC Constr. Co., 638 N.Y.S.2d 11, 13 (App. Div. 1996); see also Simon v. Celebration Co., 883 So. 2d 826, 832 (Fla. 5th DCA 2004); Restatement (Second) of Torts § 525 ("One who fraudulently makes a misrepresentation of fact, opinion, intention or law for the purpose of inducing another to act or refrain from action in reliance upon it, is subject to liability to the other in deceit for pecuniary loss caused to him by his justifiable reliance upon the misrepresentation."). What makes New York law special is that a sophisticated plaintiff like CPH thus cannot establish justifiable reliance on an allegedly fraudulent statement as a matter of law if it failed to avail itself of access to information that would have disproved that statement. See Aug. 11, 2004 Order at 5 (noting that "there is a fundamental distinction between New York and Florida which could be outcome determinative" on this specific point).

There is no question that CPH, a sophisticated entity represented by a team of the Nation's most sophisticated legal and financial advisors, had unfettered access to all of Sunbeam's books and records, including Sunbeam's interim financial statements. But for reasons known only to Perelman and his advisors, Perelman's due diligence team never looked at Sunbeam's books and records. CPH thus cannot establish justifiable reliance on any statements by Morgan Stanley as a matter of law, and Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on the fraudulent misrepresentation claim. Moreover, CPH also cannot establish that Morgan

Stanley, Sunbeam's largest creditor following the Coleman transaction, acted with scienter; i.e., with an intent to deceive Perelman.

A. CPH Has Not Presented Any Evidence Of Justifiable Reliance As A Matter Of Law

CPH's fraud claim fails, first and foremost, because CPH cannot remotely establish justifiable reliance on any allegedly fraudulent statements by Morgan Stanley regarding Sunbeam, when CPH had full access to Sunbeam's financial records, but failed to avail itself of such access. As this Court explained in its choice of law order, "[u]nder New York law, reliance on a fraudulent misrepresentation is not reasonable if the recipient 'has the means available to him of knowing, by the exercise of ordinary intelligence, the truth ....'" Aug. 11, 2004 Order at 5 (quoting Schumaker v. Mather, 133 N.Y. 590, 30 N.E. 755, 757 (1892)).

When, as here, the plaintiff is a sophisticated business, it cannot claim justifiable reliance on the statements of its negotiating counterpart when it failed to conduct its own investigation into the matter. "[A] sophisticated investor may not claim it was fraudulently induced to enter into a transaction if it failed to use the means available to test the representations." Id. (citing UST Private Equity Investors Fund, Inc. v. Salomon Smith Barney, 733 N.Y.S.2d 385, 386 (App. Div. 2001)) ("As a matter of law, a sophisticated plaintiff cannot establish that it entered into an arm's length transaction in justifiable reliance on an alleged misrepresentation if that plaintiff failed to make use of the means of verification that were available to it, such as reviewing the files of other parties."); see also Rotterdam Ventures, Inc. v. Ernst & Young LLP, 752 N.Y.S.2d 746, 749 (App. Div. 2002) (holding that a sophisticated party who "plainly had both access to the relevant ... financial statements and the wherewithal through [its] own financial advisors" to ascertain the financial condition of that company, is presumed as a matter of law to have had the "means to ascertain the truth of the alleged representations"); Schlaifer Nance & Co. v. Estate of

Andy Warhol, 119 F.3d 91, 98 (2d Cir. 1997) ("[I]f the plaintiff has the means of knowing, by the exercise of ordinary intelligence, the truth, or the real quality of the subject of the representation, he must make use of those means, or he will not be heard to complain that he was induced to enter into the transaction by misrepresentations. The parties involved in this litigation are not widows or orphans.") (internal quotations omitted); Giannacopoulos, 37 F. Supp. 2d at 632 ("A party claiming fraudulent inducement to invest in a business must show that he or she made an independent inquiry into the available information, especially where the party is a sophisticated businessman like [the plaintiff]."). Whatever Morgan Stanley said or did not say about Sunbeam, in other words, is legally irrelevant if CPH itself failed to conduct due diligence regarding Sunbeam.

That straightforward point, as this Court anticipated in its choice-of-law ruling, is indeed "outcome determinative" here. Aug. 11, 2004 Order at 5. Perelman is a sophisticated businessman. He had the right, the motive, and the time to conduct due diligence of Sunbeam before accepting 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock worth approximately $600 million.

First, the Merger Agreements specifically gave CPH and Coleman their "financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants consultants and other representatives ... full access ... to all of [Sunbeam's] books, records, properties, plants and personnel." (Findings ¶ 214-215) CPH was represented at all times by expert financial advisors from the CSFB, and by expert attorneys from the firm of Wachtell Lipton. CPH therefore had the same access to Sunbeam, if not more, than Morgan Stanley, to discover any accounting irregularities or other issues that might affect the value of Sunbeam's stock.

Second, Perelman had the motive to look. On January 29, 1998 Sunbeam reported that its fourth quarter 1997 earnings missed Wall Street expectations, causing Sunbeam's stock to fall over 9% in one day. (Findings ¶ 116) On February 23, Levin and the other MAFCO advisors, including CSFB, were told Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were "slow." Moreover, Levin concluded that Sunbeam's three-year business plan (1998-2000) was quite a stretch and probably not achievable. Levin told Perelman and his closest advisors his opinions on February 23 (Findings ¶ 180) and again on February 24 (Findings ¶ 181). Finally, on March 19, Sunbeam issued the press release, which said to the world there could be a problem with the first quarter. Sunbeam's stock dropped again. This time almost 10 percent. (Findings ¶ 253)

Third, Perelman had the time and the resources to look. Between February 23 and March 30, 1998, Perelman and his team of advisors had five weeks to ask for and look at Sunbeam's interim financial statements. The deal was negotiated and inked in four days; surely Perelman could have found four days to look at Sunbeam's financial statements.

In sum, CPH never exercised its right to inspect or sought to independently verify the financial representations it now claims were fraudulent. (Findings ¶¶ 220-235, 261-270, 273-275) That was because Perelman was so eager to do the deal with Dunlap, which relieved CPH of a debt-ridden company, that Perelman threw ordinary caution and prudence to the winds. Perelman cannot now try to blame Morgan Stanley for his failure to conduct due diligence of Sunbeam.

Abrahami v. UPC Construction Co., 638 N.Y.S.2d 11 (App. Div. 1996) is closely on point. The plaintiffs there asserted that the defendant company repeatedly misrepresented its present financial status and "excellent business prospects" in a series of face-to-face meetings organized for purposes of securing capital investment from the plaintiffs. Id. at 12. In particular, plaintiffs alleged that balance sheets and financial statements prepared by defendant's accountants and furnished to plaintiffs during these meetings overstated defendant's receivables, understated its liabilities, and misrepresented its fixed assets, thereby leading plaintiffs to invest a substantial sum of money in reliance on a fraudulently optimistic picture of defendant's present and future financial status. Id. at 12-13. The Abrahami court, however, flatly rejected this attempt to rely on financial representations made by the plaintiff's counterparty in an arms-length transaction:

> Plaintiffs, who are all sophisticated businessmen, had a duty to exercise ordinary diligence and conduct an independent appraisal of the risk they were assuming. Where a party has means available to him for discovering, by the exercise of ordinary intelligence, the true nature of a transaction he is about to enter into, he must make use of those means, or he will not be heard to complain that he was induced to enter into the transaction by misrepresentations.

Id. at 14 (internal quotations & citation omitted).

This point is particularly compelling here for two distinct but interrelated reasons. First, the parties executed the confidentiality agreements that provided that neither party could rely on the others Evaluation Materials. (Findings ¶¶ 108, 110-111, 114). Moreover, neither party made any representations or warranties in the Evaluation Materials. (Findings ¶ 115) Each side was obligated to do its own due diligence. Billion dollar deals in New York are not left to the vagaries of who said what to who. The deal is put in writing.

Second, the Merger Agreements contained extensive representations and warranties between CPH and Coleman, on the one hand, and Sunbeam, on the other. (Findings ¶ 207) And the parties (through the Merger Agreements' Integration Clause) specifically disclaimed reliance on any representations and warranties other than those in the Agreements. (Findings ¶ 208-209) This express contractual disclaimer of reliance underscores that any alleged reliance by CPH on Morgan Stanley's statements is unjustifiable as a matter of New York law. "Sophisticated parties to major transactions cannot avoid their disclaimers by complaining that they received less than all information, for they could have negotiated for fuller information or more complete warranties." Dyncorp, 215 F. Supp. 2d at 322; see also Emergent Capital Inv. Mgmt., LLC v. Stonepath Group, Inc., 195 F. Supp. 2d 551 (S.D.N.Y. 2002) ("Under New York law, where a party specifically disclaims reliance upon a particular representation in a contract, that party cannot, in a subsequent action for common law fraud, claim it was fraudulently induced to enter into the contract by the very representation it has disclaimed reliance upon.") (internal quotations omitted).

Accordingly, CPH cannot establish justifiable reliance, and therefore cannot establish fraudulent misrepresentation under New York law. Morgan Stanley is thus entitled to summary judgment on that claim.

B. CPH Has Not Presented Any Evidence Of Scienter Or Intent To Defraud As A Matter Of Law.

Finally, CPH's fraudulent misrepresentation also fails for the separate and independent reason that CPH has failed to establish any evidence of scienter, or intent to defraud Perelman. Because fraud is an intentional tort, a fraud plaintiff must establish that the defendant knew that the challenged statements were false, and made them with intent to deceive. See, e.g., Dyncorp, 215 F. Supp. 2d at 318. Here, CPH has failed to present any evidence that Morgan Stanley made the challenged statements with scienter.

CPH tries to satisfy the scienter requirement by drawing the inference that Morgan Stanley had the intent to commit fraud because it had the motive to (i) retain Sunbeam as a client and (ii) collect roughly $30 million in investment banking and underwriting fees for this deal. Compl. ¶¶ 31, 66, 73. But if retention of a client and collection of normal fees were enough to satisfy the scienter requirement of a fraudulent misrepresentation claim as a matter of law, then that requirement would be rendered a nullity — and the floodgates would be opened to a wave of frivolous fraud claims based on ordinary economic motive. That, however, is not the law of New York.

Under settled New York law generic allegations of motive are not enough to establish scienter. Recognizing the seriousness of fraud-based allegations, New York courts have been careful to require more than simply an ordinary economic interest: "In looking for a sufficient allegation of motive, [courts] assume that the defendant is acting in his or her informed economic self-interest." Shields v. Citytrust Bancorp, Inc., 25 F.3d 1124, 1130 (2d Cir. 1994).

Here the only allegations of scienter are the ordinary economic motives of any financial services firm. See Compl. ¶ 31 ("Morgan Stanley knew that if it failed to deliver a major transaction, Morgan Stanley would not be compensated for the extensive work it had performed for Sunbeam"); Id. ¶ 66 (alleging that "[e]verything … depended on closing the Coleman acquisition" because "if the transaction did not close, Morgan Stanley would not be paid its $10.28 million fee for the Coleman acquisition or its $22.5 million fee for underwriting the [Note Offering]"). These allegations do not constitute scienter under New York law. See, e.g., THC Holdings Corp. v. Chinn, No. 95 Civ. 4422, 1998 WL 50202, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 6, 1998) ("A mere allegation that defendant was in a position to receive normal compensation for professional services rendered is not sufficient to support a showing of motive in the fraud scienter analysis.") (citing inter alia, Friedman v. Arizona World Nurseries Ltd. P'ship, 730 F. Supp. 521, 532 (S.D.N.Y. 1990) (dismissing fraud-based claim on ground that incentive of receiving fee for professional services is insufficient to allege scienter), aff'd, 927 F.2d 595 (2d Cir. 1991)); In re Philip Servs. Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 98 Civ. 0835, 2004 WL 1152501, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. May 24, 2004) ("[A] generalized economic interest in professional fees is insufficient to establish an accounting firm's motive to commit fraud.").

CPH's allegations of scienter are not merely legally deficient, however. For even if the Court were to accept all of the complaint's allegations as well-pleaded, it would defy economic reason for Morgan Stanley to have knowingly participated in Sunbeam's fraud. First, if Morgan Stanley was participating in the alleged fraud, why did Morgan Stanley insist that Sunbeam issue a press release on March 30? There is no issue of fact that but for Morgan Stanley, Sunbeam would not have issued any press release before the closing on March 30, 1998.

Second, the Court would have to abandon all economic reason to believe that Morgan Stanley risked its own professional reputation, knowingly permitted its affiliate to loan and lose hundreds of millions of dollars, knowingly ripped off its most valued clients and institutional investors, and exposed itself to massive civil liability, all for the supposed purpose of retaining a single client and collecting investment banking and underwriting fees for a single transaction.

The economic irrationality of CPH's scienter allegations provide an additional, independent ground for dismissing its fraud claim. See, e.g., Kalnit v. Eichler, 99 F. Supp. 2d 327, 343 (S.D.N.Y. 2000) ("[W]here plaintiff's view of the facts defies economic reason … it does not yield a reasonable inference of fraudulent intent.") (internal quotations & citation omitted), aff'd, 264 F.3d 131 (2d Cir. 2001); see also Duncan v. Pencer, No. 94 Civ. 0321, 1996 WL 19043, at *10 (S.D.N.Y. Jan 18, 1996) (dismissing fraud-based claim on grounds that it is "economically irrational" to assume that accounting firm "would knowingly condone a client's fraud in order to preserve a fee that, at best, is an infinitesimal percentage of its annual revenues") (citing Shields, 25 F.3d at 1130); In re Philip, 2004 WL 1152501, at *5 ("Notwithstanding the financial importance of the [relevant] account to [a particular] office, it strains reason that [the defendant] would jeopardize its reputation, subject itself to civil and/or criminal liability, and risk substantial financial penalties simply because it wanted to keep [the entity that paid the fees] as a client.").

Indeed, CPH's far-fetched theory of scienter rings especially hollow given CPH's allegations that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam knew the fraud would be revealed shortly after "the Coleman transaction closed at the end of March 1998." Compl. ¶ 58; see id. ¶ 65. Again the Court would have to abandon economic reason and common sense to believe that Morgan Stanley knowingly persuaded its clients to invest hundreds of millions of dollars in Sunbeam and allowed its affiliate to invest $680 million in Sunbeam the day after the Coleman acquisition closed, all the while purportedly knowing that the fraud would be revealed within days of the closing. See, e.g., Shields, 25 F.3d at 1130 (affirming dismissal of fraud-based claim for lack of scienter and noting that "[i]t is hard to see what benefits accrue from a short term respite from an inevitable day of reckoning"). In sum, while the Court can reasonably conclude that Morgan Stanley made a bad business decision loaning money to Sunbeam, a bad business decision is not fraud.

III. MORGAN STANLEY IS ENTITLED TO SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON COUNT II OF THE COMPLAINT (AIDING AND ABETTING FRAUD).

CPH alleges that Morgan Stanley is liable for "aiding and abetting" Sunbeam's fraud, but this claim fails too. To prevail on its aiding and abetting claim, CPH must demonstrate not only the existence of a primary fraud, but also (1) Morgan Stanley's actual knowledge of that underlying fraud; and (2) Morgan Stanley's substantial assistance in the commission of that fraud. See, e.g., Stolow v. Greg Manning Auctions Inc., 258 F. Supp. 2d 236, 250 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) (citing Armstrong v. McAlpin, 699 F.2d 79, 91 (2d Cir. 1983)); *IIT v. aff'd mem., 2003 WL 22717684 (2d Cir. Nov. 17, 2003).[4] Yet beyond the purely conclusory allegations contained in the complaint, there is no evidence that Morgan Stanley had actual knowledge of Sunbeam's fraudulent conduct or that Morgan Stanley provided substantial assistance to Sunbeam in effectuating it. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on this claim as well.

A. CPH Has Not Presented Any Evidence That Morgan Stanley Had Actual Knowledge That Sunbeam Engaged In Fraud.

Actual knowledge of fraud — not likely knowledge, imputable knowledge, or constructive knowledge — is a necessary element of a claim for aiding and abetting fraud. See, e.g., Filler v. Hanvit Bank, 339 F. Supp. 2d 553, 557 (S.D.N.Y. 2004) ("[T]o state an aiding and abetting claim, the complaint must allege facts which show that the defendant had actual knowledge of the underlying fraud. ... Constructive knowledge of the primary fraud — the possession of information that would cause a person exercising reasonable care and diligence to become aware of the fraud — is not sufficient to support an aiding and abetting claim.") (emphasis added); Steed Fin. LDC v. Laser Advisers, Inc., 258 F. Supp. 2d 272, 282 (S.D.N.Y. 2003) ("[A]ctual knowledge is required to impose liability on an aider and abettor under New York law.") [4] In the Court's choice-of-law order, the Court declined to determine whether Florida or New York law applied to this count of CPH's complaint. See Aug. 11, 2004 Order at 11. Morgan Stanley continues to maintain that New York law applies across the board to all of CPH's claims. See, e.g., Trumpet Vine Investments, N.V. v. Union Capital Partners I, Inc., 92 F.3d 1110 (11th Cir. 1996). There is virtually no case law in Florida on aiding and abetting fraud, which suggests no such claim exists under Florida law.

constructive knowledge standard for imposing aiding and abetting liability. Rather, New York courts and federal courts in this district, have required actual knowledge.").[5]

Despite ample opportunity to develop a factual basis for its claim that Morgan Stanley aided and abetted Sunbeam's allegedly fraudulent conduct, CPH's cause remains moored in unsupported conjecture about what Morgan Stanley (in CPH's various formulations such as the "three step plan") did not want to know, could have known, should have known, or assertedly must have known from (1) its due diligence work with Sunbeam and (2) the interim financial information Morgan Stanley received from Sunbeam's auditors about Sunbeam's sales for January and February 1998. See, e.g., Sept. 21, 2004 Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.'s Motion to Amend its Complaint to Seek Punitive Damages at 9-13 ["Motion to Amend"].[6] This kind of conclusorily, inferential (and, as explained below, entirely equivocal) reasoning has soundly been rejected by courts considering the "actual knowledge" requirement in evaluating similar aiding and abetting claims.

Corp. v. J.W. McWilliams Co.*, 122 So. 264 (Fla. 1929) (requiring "knowledge," "concurrence," and "participation" to prove a cause for aiding and abetting fraudulent promoters of corporations). Given the dearth of Florida authority and the fact that New York's aiding and abetting law is so well-developed, Morgan Stanley herein focuses on the pertinent New York authorities.

Consider Filler v. Hanvit Bank, supra, which arose from the November 2000 collapse of Lernout & Hauspie Speech Products N.V. (L&H Belgium) shortly after a merger in which Dragon's shareholders received L&H Belgium stock in exchange for Dragon's consolidation into an L&H subsidiary (L&H Korea). The plaintiffs there alleged that, through a series of sham transactions carried out in concert with L&H Korea and their subsequent assurances to accountant KPMG that those transactions were legitimate, the defendant banks aided and abetted L&H Belgium by enabling the parent company to fraudulently misrepresent its revenues and earnings, and thus to defraud its investors — whom the banks allegedly knew would rely on L&H Belgium's financial statements and the corresponding assurances from KPMG in bringing the Dragon merger to fruition. 339 F. Supp. 2d at 555-56.

Seeking to establish proof of the defendants' actual knowledge of L&H Belgium's fraudulent conduct, plaintiffs alleged that the banks knew:

- that L&H Korea's financial statements were consolidated with L&H Belgium's financial statements, and that L&H Belgium was a publicly held company which issued public releases of its financial statements upon which prospective investors would rely;
- that as L&H Korea's bankers, defendants would have received L&H Belgium's financial statements and press releases, and therefore would have been aware of the effects of their activities on the parent company's public disclosures; and
- that defendants knew that the purpose of the KPMG audit was to prepare L&H Belgium's financial statements and public disclosures.

Id. at 558.

Notwithstanding these allegations and additional documentary evidence proffered in support of the plaintiffs' allegations, see id. at 558-59, the court rejected the plaintiffs' aiding and abetting claim as a matter of law:

> These allegations demonstrate, at best, that defendants should have known the impact of the factoring agreements and the false confirmations on L&H Belgium's financial statements. They do > not support an inference that defendants actually knew that L&H Belgium was attempting to defraud its investors. From defendants' perspective, L&H Belgium could have been the victim or unwitting conduit of L&H Korea's fraud as easily as it could have been the perpetrator of a fraud upon others.

Id. at 558 (emphasis added). Of course, that is precisely the case here. For all of CPH's assertions regarding what Morgan Stanley could or should have known, CPH has adduced no evidence concerning what Morgan Stanley actually knew. In fact, the precious little evidence CPH has presented to prop up its own inferential chain of wrongdoing actually supports the conclusion that Morgan Stanley was "the victim or unwitting conduit of [Sunbeam's] fraud." Id. Indeed, there is no record evidence that Morgan Stanley did or said anything "improper" before February 23, 1998. (Findings ¶¶ 98, 125, 182) All of the testimony is to the contrary.

At bottom, and as a matter of well-settled law, CPH's naked assertions and equivocal inferences fail to establish a genuine issue of material fact regarding whether Morgan Stanley actually knew of Sunbeam's allegedly fraudulent conduct. See Peoples Gas Sys., Inc. v. Acme Gas Corp., 689 So. 2d 292, 299 (Fla. 3d DCA 1997) ("[B]are self-serving assertions ... are insufficient to defeat a summary judgment."); Bryant v. Shands Teaching Hosp. & Clinics, Inc., 479 So. 2d 165, 168 (Fla. 1st DCA 1985) ("[A] summary judgment motion supported by appropriate proof may not rely on bare, conclusory assertions found in the pleadings to create an issue and thus avoid summary judgment.").[7] Morgan Stanley is thus entitled to summary judgment on this claim too.

[7] In addition, courts have reached this same conclusion in assessing the actual knowledge component of the holder in due course doctrine. See, e.g., Chemical Bank of Rochester v. Haskell, 432 N.Y.S.2d 478, 481-82 (N.Y. 1980).

B. CPH Has Not Presented Any Evidence That Morgan Stanley Provided Substantial Assistance To Sunbeam In Effectuating Its Alleged Fraud.

Even if CPH could demonstrate that Morgan Stanley had actual knowledge of Sunbeam's fraudulent conduct — which it cannot — Morgan Stanley would still be entitled to summary judgment on this count because CPH has filed to adduce any evidence that that Morgan Stanley provided substantial assistance to Sunbeam in carrying out its alleged fraud.

Under well-established law, substantial assistance exists only "where a defendant affirmatively assists, helps conceal, or by virtue of failing to act when required to do so enables the fraud to proceed." Cromer Fin. Ltd. v. Berger, 137 F. Supp. 2d 452, 470 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) (internal quotations omitted). Of crucial importance, such "[s]ubstantial assistance requires the plaintiff to [demonstrate] that the actions of the aider/abettor proximately caused the harm on which the primary liability is predicated. ... 'But-for' causation is insufficient; aider and abettor liability requires the injury to be a direct or reasonably foreseeable result of the conduct." Id. Finally, "[i]naction is actionable participation only when the defendant owes a fiduciary duty directly to the plaintiff." Id. (internal quotations omitted); see also Ryan v. Hunton & Williams, No. 99-CV-5938, 2000 WL 1375265, at *10 (E.D.N.Y. Sept. 20, 2000) ("[A] defendant may provide substantial assistance by failing to act only when it was required to act. ... Absent a confidential or fiduciary relationship between the plaintiff and the aider and abettor, the inaction of the latter does not constitute substantial assistance warranting aider and abettor liability."); King v. George Schonberg & Co., 650 N.Y.S.2d 107, 108 (App. Div. 1996) ("[I]n the absence of a confidential or fiduciary relationship between plaintiff and [defendant] giving rise to a duty of disclosure, the silence of the [defendant] did not amount to the substantial assistance that is a required element of aider or abettor liability.").

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012231

There is no record evidence that Morgan Stanley's conduct constituted "substantial assistance" under the stringent standards outlined above. As an initial matter, the overwhelming majority of Morgan Stanley's alleged efforts to further Sunbeam's fraud involved "sins" of omission rather than commission — such as its "st[an]d[ing] by in affirmation" and mere "presence" at the February 23 meeting and March 1998 road shows (Motion to Amend at 8 & 16), supposed failure to disclose to CPH the questions raised by Sunbeam's auditors regarding Sunbeam's revenue recognition procedures id. at 10, and potential first quarter 1998 earnings expectations shortfall, (id. at 11-13), and the alleged decision not to conduct further research prior to the deal closing, (id. at 19). But these omissions cannot possibly constitute "substantial assistance" because Morgan Stanley and CPH did not share anything resembling the kind of confidential or fiduciary relationship that would have given rise to a duty of disclosure. See supra at section I; see also, e.g., King, 650 N.Y.S.2d at 108.

Morgan Stanley's putative affirmative acts in furtherance of Sunbeam's fraudulent conduct are similarly insufficient to constitute substantial assistance under well-settled law. Simply put, there is no record evidence to establish the requisite causal connection between Morgan Stanley's supposed provision of false information to CPH during the course of negotiations and the injuries CPH asserts because Perelman had exactly the same access as Morgan Stanley, to Sunbeam's "books, records, properties, plants, and personnel." (Findings ¶¶ 214-215) Likewise, Perelman had at his disposal his own army of legal and financial experts to comb through those records to independently assess Sunbeam's financial status. (Findings ¶¶ 26-41) Perelman is responsible for his own losses because he believed in Dunlap, thought there was more upside in Sunbeam stock than cash, refused to listen to his own advisors, and decided he did not need to "view the property" before he bought it.

IV. MORGAN STANLEY IS ENTITLED TO SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON COUNT III OF THE COMPLAINT (CONSPIRACY).

Finally, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on CPH's conspiracy claim. The acts alleged with respect to that claim are identical to the acts alleged with respect to the aiding and abetting claim, compare Compl. ¶ 91 with Compl. ¶ 87, which is presumably why this Court noted in its choice-of-law order that "[i]t is unclear … how, if at all, the two claims differ." Aug. 11, 2004 Order at 12. In substance, they do not differ: CPH's conspiracy claim is just another way of phrasing the aiding and abetting claim, and fails for similar reasons.

To prevail on its conspiracy claim under New York law, CPH would have to prove, among other things, that Morgan Stanley entered into an agreement with Sunbeam to defraud CPH. See, e.g., Gabriel Capital, L.P. v. NatWest Fin., Inc., 94 F. Supp. 2d 491, 511 (S.D.N.Y. 2000) (noting that "a claim of civil conspiracy requires," inter alia, "an agreement between the conspirator and the wrongdoer") (internal quotations omitted); see also Raimi v. Furlong, 702 So. 2d 1273, 1284 (Fla. 3d DCA 1997) (same requirement under Florida law).

Once again, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment, because CPH has no record evidence of an actual agreement between Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam to defraud CPH. Indeed, if anything, the actual agreement requirement of conspiracy law is even stricter than the actual knowledge requirement of aiding and abetting law. For although the plaintiff in both claims must prove that the defendant actually knew of an intended offense, a party can knowingly act to further an offense (and thus be liable for aiding and abetting it) without actually having agreed to commit that offense. See, e.g., Nye & Nissen v. United States, 336 U.S. 613, 619 (1949). Accordingly, as one commentator has noted, conspiracy "is used less commonly than aiding and abetting as a basis for liability" in securities-related cases. William H. Kuehnle, Secondary Liability Under The Federal Securities Laws — Aiding and Abetting, Conspiracy, Controlling Person, and Agency: Common-Law Principles and The Statutory Scheme, 14 J. Corp. L. 313, 343 (1988) ("The less frequent use of conspiracy liability probably is caused by the fact that conspiracy liability, unlike aiding and abetting liability, requires a showing of agreement among the participants jointly to pursue a line of conduct or to pursue a particular result.").

Given that CPH has plainly failed to create a genuine dispute whether Morgan Stanley actually knew that Sunbeam had engaged in fraud, it cannot possibly have created a such a dispute over whether Morgan Stanley agreed to further that fraud. In light of CPH's failure to offer adequate evidence of an actual agreement between Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on this claim too.

CONCLUSION

CPH is nothing but a two director shell company, the directors of which are Perelman and Gittis. They both knew Levin's opinions about Sunbeam. Sunbeam's sales were "slow" in January and February. Sunbeam's three-year business plan was "quite a stretch"; and the plan was probably "not achievable." Perelman gambled because he thought there was more upside on Sunbeam stock than cash. If Perelman wanted to know how Sunbeam was doing in the first quarter of 1998, all he had to do was ask for Sunbeam's interim financial statements. He knew how to ask Dunlap in 1997 when calling from his limousine to impress Levin with Dunlap's new business model. If Perelman could call from his limousine, he could have called from his townhouse in Manhattan after February 23. He did not and that should be the end of this case.

COMPLAINT

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") alleges the following against Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("Morgan Stanley"):

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. This action arises from Morgan Stanley's participation in a massive fraud centered on Florida-based Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). As a direct result of that fraud, CPH was induced to accept 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock when CPH sold its 82% interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") to Sunbeam on March 30, 1998. Morgan Stanley misrepresented Sunbeam's financial condition and assisted Sunbeam's CEO, Albert Dunlap, in concealing Sunbeam's true financial condition so that Sunbeam could complete the purchase of Coleman on March 30, 1998.

2. In April 1997, Morgan Stanley began serving as Sunbeam's investment banker. Morgan Stanley originally attempted to find someone to buy Sunbeam. When Morgan Stanley was unable to find a buyer, Morgan Stanley developed a strategy for Sunbeam to use its problems with Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales in order to close transactions that should have been stopped before CPH and others were swindled.

4. CPH brings this action to recover for the losses it has suffered as a result of Morgan Stanley's active participation in successfully defrauding CPH. CPH's Complaint consists of four counts: Fraudulent Misrepresentation (Count I); Aiding and Abetting (Count II); Conspiracy (Count III); and Negligent Misrepresentation (Count IV).

5. CPH seeks compensatory damages for Morgan Stanley's wrongful conduct. Using Morgan Stanley's own valuation of Coleman, CPH has lost at least $485 million. In addition, CPH reserves the right to seek leave to amend its complaint pursuant to Fla. Stat. §768.72 to assert claims for an additional recovery of punitive damages in excess of $1.5 billion.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

6. This Court has jurisdiction over the subject matter of this action pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 26.012(2)(a). This Court has jurisdiction over Morgan Stanley pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 48.193.

7. Venue is proper in this district pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 47.051.

PARTIES AND OTHER KEY PARTICIPANTS

8. Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH") directly or indirectly owned 44,067,520 shares — or approximately 82% — of Coleman prior to the transactions at issue. On March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired CPH's interest in Coleman. Sunbeam paid for the Coleman shares with 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam common stock and other consideration.

9. Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("Morgan Stanley") is a highly sophisticated investment banking firm that provides a wide range of financial and securities services.

Among other things, Morgan Stanley provides advice on mergers and acquisitions and raises capital in the equity and debt markets. Morgan Stanley served as Sunbeam's investment banker and as the underwriter of securities issued by Sunbeam in connection with the events at issue herein.

10. Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") was a publicly-traded company headquartered in Delray Beach, Florida. Sunbeam designed and manufactured small household appliances and outdoor consumer products, which it marketed under the Sunbeam and Oster brand names. Sunbeam filed a bankruptcy petition under Chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in February 2001.

11. Albert Dunlap ("Dunlap") was the Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam from July 1996 until June 1998 when he was terminated by Sunbeam's Board of Directors. In May 2001, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") filed a civil injunctive suit in Miami, Florida against Dunlap based on Dunlap's fraudulent and illegal conduct at Sunbeam. In September 2002, Dunlap consented to the entry of a judgment against him in that action. The judgment, among other things, imposed a civil fine and permanently barred Dunlap from serving as an officer or director of a public company. Dunlap still resides in Boca Raton, Florida.

12. Russell Kersh ("Kersh") was the Executive Vice President of Sunbeam from July 1996 until June 1998 when he was terminated by Sunbeam's Board of Directors. In May 2001, the SEC filed a civil injunctive suit in Miami, Florida against Kersh based on Kersh's fraudulent and illegal conduct at Sunbeam. In September 2002, Kersh consented to the entry of a judgment against him in that action. The judgment, among other things, imposed a civil fine and permanently barred Kersh from serving as an officer or director of a public company. Upon information and belief, Kersh still resides in Boca Raton, Florida.

A. Compensatory damages to be determined at trial in an amount in excess of $485 million;

B. An award of costs and expenses incurred in this action, including reasonable attorneys' and experts' fees and expenses; and

C. Any further relief as the Court may deem just and proper in light of all the circumstances of the case.

D. CPH expressly reserves the right to seek leave to amend its complaint pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 768.72 to assert claims for punitive damages in excess of $1.5 billion as allowed by law.

Plaintiff demands a trial by jury on all claims.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S RESPONSE TO MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S FIRST SET OF INTERROGATORIES

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys, and pursuant to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.280 and 1.340, hereby responds and objects to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated's ("Morgan Stanley") First Set of Interrogatories as follows:

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

1. CPH objects to Defendant's First Set of Interrogatories, including all Definitions and Instructions, to the extent they purport to impose upon CPH any requirements that exceed or are inconsistent with the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure or any other applicable rule or court order. For example, CPH will not comply with Instructions Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8 to the extent that they purport to impose upon CPH obligations that are not required under Florida law. CPH will comply with the applicable rules and law.

2. CPH objects to defendant's interrogatories to the extent that they seek information protected from disclosure by the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine, or any other privilege, doctrine, immunity, or rule.

RESPONSE: CPH objects to the definition of "Coleman Transaction" because Morgan Stanley's definition mischaracterizes the transaction that closed on March 30, 1998. CPH will construe the term "Coleman Transaction" to mean the transaction by which CPH transferred its interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Subject to and without waiving the foregoing Initial Objections and consistent with its interpretation of the term "Coleman Transaction," CPH responds that the following third parties provided advice and/or assistance to CPH in connection with the transaction by which CPH transferred its interest in Coleman to Sunbeam:

Credit Suisse First Boston	Financial Advisor
Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz	Legal Advisor

CPH'S RESPONSE TO MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED'S FIRST SET OF REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys and pursuant to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure 1.370, hereby responds and objects to Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated's ("Morgan Stanley") First Set of Request for Admission ("Requests for Admission") dated August 18, 2003:

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

1. CPH objects to the definition of "Transaction" because Morgan Stanley's definition mischaracterizes the transaction that closed on March 30, 1998 and because the definition is vague and ambiguous to the extent it includes "all related communications, agreements, and transactions." CPH will construe the term "Transaction" to mean the transaction by which CPH transferred its interest in The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam").

2. CPH objects to the definition of "Coleman" to the extent that it includes CPH. CPH will construe the term "Coleman" to mean The Coleman Company, Inc.

SEP-24-2003 16:55 JENNER AND BLOCK 312 527 0484 P.02

3. CPH objects to the Requests for Admission on the basis that many of them are duplicative and constitute an unnecessary waste of time.

4. CPH objects to the Requests for Admission on the basis that they are abusive and vexatious. Many of the Requests for Admission concern factual allegations peculiarly within the possession of Morgan Stanley or third parties, which could be confirmed with less expense and burden on the parties through more traditional techniques of discovery.

5. CPH responds to Morgan Stanley's Requests for Admission without waiving the Initial Objections. CPH incorporates, as though fully set forth therein, these Initial Objections into each of the Responses and Objections set forth below.

RESPONSES AND FURTHER OBJECTIONS

SEP-24-2003 16:55 JENNER AND BLOCK 312 527 0484 P.03

RESPONSE: Denied.

250. The press conference following the March 19, 1998 press release was held in New York.

RESPONSE: CPH objects to this request as vague and ambiguous because it does not identify a specific date or subject matter for the press conference. Several press conferences have taken place since March 19, 1998. Subject to and without waiving this objection, CPH states that it has made a reasonable inquiry into the document in its possession. That inquiry did not indicate a press conference held on or about March 19, 1998. CPH lacks knowledge or information sufficient to answer this request and therefore denies this request.

251. On March 30, 1998, the Transaction closed in New York.

RESPONSE: Consistent with CPH's interpretation of the term "Transaction," admitted.

252. On March 31, 1998, the Bank Facility closed in New York.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

253. At the time of the Transaction, Sunbeam was listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

RESPONSE: Consistent with CPH's interpretation of the term "Transaction," admitted.

254. At the time of the Transaction, Coleman was listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

RESPONSE: Consistent with CPH's interpretation of the term "Transaction," admitted.

270. On July 28, 1998, the Special Committee of the Board of Directors of Sunbeam met at the offices of Reboul, MacMurray, Hewitt, Maynard & Kristol at 45 Rockefeller Plaza in New York to discuss the status of the ongoing fact investigation at Sunbeam.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

271. On February 6, 2001, Sunbeam filed for bankruptcy in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York.

RESPONSE: Admitted.

272. The adversary proceedings against Sunbeam were instituted in New York.

RESPONSE: CPH has made a reasonable inquiry into the documents in its possession and has reviewed the docket sheet for the Bankruptcy Petition filed by Sunbeam on February 6, 2001 in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York. Neither of these inquiries indicated that adversary proceedings have been instituted against Sunbeam. CPH lacks information or knowledge sufficient to answer this request and therefore denies this request. Answering further, CPH states that more than 20 lawsuits concerning Sunbeam's fraudulent accounting practices have been filed in or transferred to Florida state and federal courts, including:

a. Bird v. Sunbeam Corporation, et al., No. 98-8258 (S.D. Fla.)

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

1. CPH objects to Defendant's Interrogatories and Request for Production, including all Definitions and Instructions, to the extent they purport to impose upon CPH any requirements that exceed or are inconsistent with the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure or any other applicable rule or court order. For example, CPH will not comply with Instructions Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 11 to the extent that they purport to impose upon CPH obligations that are not required under Florida law. CPH denied this request because, as CPH admitted, MSSF did some work on the Bank Facility in New York, but also did some work in Florida.

245. MSSF prepared and disseminated the preliminary and final offering memorandum for the Bank Facility in New York.

CPH denied this request because MSSF did not prepare and disseminate a preliminary and final offering memorandum for the Bank Facility.

ORDER ON MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED AND MORGAN STANLEY SENIOR FUNDING, INC.'S MOTION FOR APPLICATION OF NEW YORK LAW

THIS CAUSE came before the Court June 28, 2004 on Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc.'s Motion for Application of New York Law, with all parties well represented by counsel.

I. Introduction

This case arises out of an acquisition transaction that was negotiated and consummated in late 1997 and early 1998, in which Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH"), sold its 82% interest in the Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"), to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("MS & Co."), served as financial advisor to Sunbeam for parts of the acquisition transaction and served as the lead underwriter for a $750,000,000 debenture offering that Sunbeam used to finance the acquisition.

012278

In 1998, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF"), and other lenders entered into a credit agreement with Sunbeam under which MSSF agreed to provide senior secured financing to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman and two smaller companies.

CPH's Complaint alleges claims against MS & Co. arising from this transaction for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, and conspiracy, and seeks damages of at least $485 million.

MSSF's Complaint alleges that, in the course of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, Defendants MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("MAFCO"), CPH's parent company, and CPH provided false information to MSSF about the "synergies" that Sunbeam would achieve from the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. MSSF alleges that MAFCO and CPH's inflated synergy projections caused Sunbeam to pay a higher price to acquire Coleman and consequently caused Sunbeam's lenders, including MSSF, to make larger loans to finance the acquisition. MSSF's Complaint asserts claims for fraud and negligent misrepresentation and alleges that MSSF suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages when Sunbeam declared bankruptcy in February 2001 and defaulted on acquisition-related loans.

II. Analysis

A. An overview

MS & Co. and MSSF (together "Morgan Stanley"), filed their Motion for Application of New York Law ("Motion"). The Motion seeks a determination that New York substantive law controls all claims in these consolidated cases.

Florida's choice of law rules govern the conflict of laws analysis. Hoffman v. Ouellette, 798 So. 2d 42 (Fla. 4th DCA 2001). A conflict of laws analysis involves a three step process. First, the court must consider whether there are potentially outcome determinative differences between the substantive laws alleged to apply. See Tune v. Philip Morris, Inc., 766 So. 2d 350 (Fla. 2d DCA 2000), rev. den. 786 So. 2d 1188 (Fla. 2001). If there are, the Court must next determine the choice of law rule to be applied for the type of claim alleged. Finally, the court must apply the appropriate choice of law rule. Hoffman.

The parties agree that Florida applies the "significant relationship" test in tort cases. The parties disagree on whether there are potentially outcome determinative differences in New York and Florida substantive law and, if there are, which state's law prevails on application of the conflicts principles. Choice of law is made on an issue by issue basis. Crowell v. Clay Hayden Trucking Lines, Inc., 700 So. 2d 120 (Fla. 2d DCA 1997), rev. den. 705 So. 2d 569 (Fla. 1998). To resolve the dispute, then, the Court must determine whether there are material differences between New York and Florida law on each issue and, if there are, apply the appropriate conflicts principles to determine the controlling substantive law on each contested issue.

B. Step One - New York v. Florida Law

(i) Negligent Misrepresentation

Morgan Stanley contends that New York law requires Coleman to prove that it had a "special relationship" with Coleman before it can bring a claim for negligent misrepresentation. Coleman contends that the "special relationship" requirement in the New York case law is merely a term of art that designates the same group of potential recipients of misrepresentations who have a cause of action as in Florida.

Florida has adopted §552 of the Restatement (Second) of Torts as a statement of the elements for a negligent misrepresentation claim:

> Information Negligently Supplied for the Guidance of Others.
> (1) One who, in the course of his business, profession or employment, or in any other transaction is which he has a pecuniary interest, supplies false information for the guidance of others in their business transactions, is subject to liability for pecuniary loss caused to them by their justifiable reliance upon the information, if he fails to exercise reasonable care or competence in obtaining or communicating the information.
> (2) Except as stated in Subsection (3), the liability stated in Subsection (1) is limited to loss suffered

012280

(a) by the person or one of a limited group of persons for whose benefit and guidance he intends to supply the information or knows that the recipient intends to supply it; and

(b) through reliance upon it in a transaction that he intends the information to influence or knows that the recipient so intends or in a substantially similar transaction.

(3) The liability of one who is under a public duty to give the information extends to loss suffered by any of the class of persons for whose benefit the duty is created, in any of the transactions in which it is intended to protect them.

See Gilchrist Timber Co. v. ITT Rayonier, Inc., 696 So. 2d 334, 337 (Fla. 1997). Thus, in Florida, one who has a pecuniary interest in a transaction is liable if he negligently supplies incorrect information for the benefit or guidance of another who justifiably relies on it.

New York, however, circumscribes a tighter circle of potential claimants, engrafting a requirement that the information's recipient be in a position of trust or confidence to its publisher. See American Protein Corp. v. AB Volvo, 844 F. 2d 56 (2d Cir. 1988), cert. den. 488 U.S. 852 (1988); DynCorp v. GTE Corporation, 215 F. Supp. 2d 308 (S.D.N.Y. 2002); Citibank, N.A. v. Itochu International, Inc., 2003 WL 1797847 (S.D.N.Y. 2003); Fleet Bank v. Pine Knoll Corp., 736 N.Y.S. 2d 737 (A.D. 3 Dept. 2002); St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co. v. Health Fielding Insurance Brokerage, Ltd., 976 F. Supp. 198 (S.D.N.Y. 1996). The difference between Florida and New York law is material, and may be outcome determinative: the parties dispute whether MS & Co. held or acquired a position of trust or confidence over CPH, and whether MAFCO and CPH held or acquired a position of trust or confidence over MSSF.

(ii) Fraudulent Misrepresentation

Morgan Stanley contends that New York law prevents a recipient of a fraudulent misrepresentation from bringing a claim if it is a "sophisticated party" with access to information which, if checked, would have allowed it to determine the representation was inaccurate. CPH maintains that New York law is merely a specific application of the general rule that a misrepresentation is not actionable unless reliance on it was reasonable, and that it is unreasonable for a sophisticated party in an arms' length commercial transaction to rely on information provided by its opponent that could have been verified.

Under New York law, reliance on a fraudulent misrepresentation is not reasonable if the recipient "has the means available to him of knowing, by the exercise of ordinary intelligence, the truth . . ." See Schumaker v. Mather, 133 N.Y. 590; 30 N.E. 755, 757 (1892). Thus, a sophisticated investor may not claim it was fraudulently induced to enter into a transaction if it failed to use the means available to test the representations. UST Private Equity Investors Fund v. Salomon Smith Barney, 733 N.Y.S. 2d 385, 288 A.D. 2d 87 (N.Y. App. Div. 2001).

In contrast, in Florida a recipient of a fraudulent misrepresentation may rely on it unless he knows it is false or its falsity is obvious, even if it had the means to verify the representation's accuracy. See Besett v. Basnett, 389 So. 2d 995 (Fla. 1980); M/I Schottenstein Homes, Inc. v. Azam, 813 So. 2d 91 (Fla. 2002); Sheer v. Jenkins, 629 So. 2d 1033 (Fla. 4th DCA 1993).

Clearly, there is a fundamental distinction on this point between New York and Florida which could be outcome determinative. MS & Co. claims CPH had access to information which would have allowed it to test the allegedly false representations but CPH failed to do its due diligence. MAFCO and CPH claim that MSSF had access to information that would have allowed MSSF to test the synergy representations, but MSSF failed to do its due diligence. If true, a jury could find reliance that is reasonable under Florida law to be unreasonable under New York law.

C. Step Two - Choice of Law Rule

(i) Applicable Rule

Florida has adopted the Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws' significant relationships test. See Bishop v. Florida Specialty Paint Company, 389 So. 2d 999 (Fla. 1980). Section 145 states the general principles with respect to tort. Section 148 states the choice of law principles for fraud and misrepresentation. Counsel agree section 148 applies.

See Trumpet Vine Investments, N.V. v. Union Capital Partners I, Inc., 92 F. 3d 1110 (11th Cir. 1996).

(ii) Procedure

The Court was unable to find any cases specifically delineating the procedure to be used for a judicial choice of law determination prior to trial. However, because application of the significant relationships test is fact-dependent, the Court concludes that a pre-trial determination is controlled by the summary judgment rule, Rule 1.510, Fla. R. Civ. P. First, the Court is unaware of any other procedural vehicle that would permit a pre-trial determination of facts. Second, it appears that when summary judgment has been used by the trial courts, the appellate courts have reviewed the orders without comment on the procedure employed. See, e.g., Rush v. Joyner, 540 So. 2d 266 (Fla. 4th DCA 1989); Bishop.

(iii) The Undisputed Facts

The following facts are undisputed:

1. CPH is a wholly owned subsidiary of MAFCO. Before the transaction with Sunbeam in March 1998, CPH was a holding company with an 82% interest in Coleman. CPH is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in New York City, New York.

D. Step Three - Application of the Law to the Facts

(i) Negligent Misrepresentation - CPH v. MS & Co.

Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws §148 (1971) provides:

> §148. Fraud and Misrepresentation
> (1) When the plaintiff has suffered pecuniary harm on account of his reliance on the defendant's false representations and when the plaintiff's action in reliance took place in the state where the false representations were made and received, the local law of this state determines the rights and liabilities of the parties unless, with respect to the particular issue, some other state has a more significant relationship under the principles stated in §6 to the occurrence and the parties, in which event the local law of the other state will be applied.
> (2) When the plaintiff's action in reliance took place in whole or in part in a state other than that where the false representations were made, the forum will consider such of the following contacts, among others, as may be present in the particular case in determining the state which, with respect to the particular issue, has the most significant relationship to the occurrence and the parties:
> (a) the place, or places, where the plaintiff acted in reliance upon the defendant's representations,
> (b) the place where the plaintiff received the representation,
> (c) the place where the defendant made the representations,
> (d) the domicil, residence, nationality, place of incorporation and place of business of the parties,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012286

(e) the place where a tangible thing which is the subject of the transaction between the parties was situated at the time, and

(f) the place where the plaintiff is to render performance under a contract which he has been induced to enter by the false representations of the defendant.

MS & Co. argues that subsection (1) applies; CPH argues that subsection (2) applies. The correct answer is unclear, since subsection (1) applies only if the false statements were both made and received in the same state, and subsection (2) applies if reliance occurs in whole or in part in a different state that where the representation was made. §148 does not state a rule where the place of reliance and representation are the same, but different from the place where the representation was received.

The representations were received in New York. The actionable part of CPH's reliance occurred in New York, where the contract was entered into and closed. Finally, it is undisputed that the representations relied on in Count I of CPH's Complaint were made in New York. Consequently, New York law controls unless Florida has a more significant relationship under the principles stated in section 6 of the Restatement. It does not. While Florida's public policy provides broader protection for the recipients of false information in commercial transactions, which creates greater incentives for parties to take reasonable care that their representations are correct, that interest is not paramount to New York's, under the principles outlined in section 6. Instead, certainty and predictability in commercial transactions require that New York law apply.

Even if the choice of laws was not dictated by subsection (1), application of subsection (2) would lead to the same result: CPH relied on the statements in New York; it received the representations in New York; the representations were made in New York; the parties are domiciled in New York; and CPH was required to perform in New York.

(ii) Negligent Misrepresentation: MSSF v. MAFCO and CPH

MSSF's claims against MAFCO and CPH are centered on two meetings where MSSF alleges MAFCO and CPH gave inflated synergy projections, on December 12, 1997, and

012287

January 29, 1998. Both were face to face meetings in New York. Consequently, the allegedly false synergy projections were made, received, and relied on in New York. Florida does not have a more significant relationship to the particular issue--the group of people to which MSSF owed a duty--under the principles listed in section 6. Consequently, New York law governs whether MSSF owed a duty to MAFCO and CPH.

(iii) Fraudulent Misrepresentation: CPH v. MS & Co.

As outlined above, section 148 (1) of the Restatement dictates the application of New York law to determine whether reliance on a fraudulent misstatement is justified. Florida does not have a more significant relationship to this issue than New York, based on application of the principles outlined in section 6 of the Restatement. Though Florida has a strong public policy dictating that "(a) person guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation should not be permitted to hide behind the doctrine of caveat emptor," that interest does not override New York's. Besset at 997. Certainty and predictability require that the standards of due diligence governing sophisticated New York domiciled corporations entering into a commercial transaction in New York be governed by New York law.

(iv) Fraudulent Misrepresentation: MSSF v. MAFCO and CPH

Section 148 (1) of the Restatement dictates the application of New York law to determine the due diligence required to find reliance on a false statement reasonable. Application of section 6's principles does not dictate a different result.

(v) Conspiracy and Aiding and Abetting-CPH v. MS & Co.

The Court is unable to apply section 148's principles or conclude whether Florida or New York has the more significant relationship to CPH's aiding and abetting fraud and conspiracy claims, found at Counts II and III of its Complaint.

Both counts claim that MS & Co. actively worked with Sunbeam personnel to manipulate Sunbeam's finances to make it appear that Sunbeam had successfully rebounded from poor performance; to conceal and misrepresent Sunbeam's true financial condition to entice a potential purchaser or investor; and to provide CPH, both through MS & Co. and by materials it scripted for Sunbeam, false and inaccurate financial information to persuade

012288

CPH to agree to, then consummate, a merger with Sunbeam.

It is unclear to the Court how, if at all, the two claims differ. However, if MS & Co. were found liable based on allegations of its participation with Sunbeam personnel in an elaborate fraud, then it would be liable for the entire fraud. See Hoch v. Rissman, Weisberg, Barrett, 742 So. 2d 451 (Fla. 5th DCA 1999), rev. den. 760 So. 2d 948 (Fla. 2000); Ford v. Rowland, 562 So. 2d 731 (Fla. 5th DCA 1990), rev. den. 574 So. 2d 141 (1990); Nicholson v. Kellin, 481 So. 2d 931 (Fla. 5th DCA 1985). Further, MS & Co. could be liable for Sunbeam's actions prior to its retention if it joined with Sunbeam to perpetuate a fraud with knowledge of its general purpose and scope. See James v. Nationsbank Trust Co. (Florida), N.A., 639 So. 2d 1031 (Fla. 5th DCA 1994). The fraud alleged is largely Florida based, and the location of its ultimate victim incidental. Florida has a strong public policy in favor of protecting the recipients of fraudulent misrepresentations. Besset. That policy is more clearly implicated if CPH is able to prove that MS & Co. was an actor in a Florida-based fraud. The allegations of conspiracy are disputed, precluding summary judgment at this juncture on the choice of law issue.

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc.'s Motion for Application of New York Law is Granted, in part. As to Counts I and IV of CPH's Complaint and MSSF's claims against MAFCO and CPH, the Court determines that New York substantive law applies (i) to engraft a requirement that the recipient of a negligent misrepresentation be in a special relationship to its publisher for the misrepresentation to be actionable, and (ii) to engraft a requirement that a party perform reasonable due diligence as to available information in order to prove that its reliance on a misrepresentation was reasonable.

Gentlemen:

We have audited the consolidated balance sheets of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries (the "Company") as of December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996 and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity and cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 28, 1997 included in the offering memorandum for the $2,014,000,000 Sunbeam Corporation Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018; our report with respect thereto is also included in the offering memorandum. The offering memorandum dated March 19, 1998 is herein referred to as the Offering Memorandum.

This letter is being furnished in reliance upon your representation to us that –

a. You are knowledgeable with respect to the due diligence review process that would be performed if this placement of securities were being registered pursuant to the Securities Act of 1933 (the Act).

b. In connection with the Offering Memorandum, the review process you have performed is substantially consistent with the due diligence review process that you would have performed if this placement of securities were being registered pursuant to the Act.

In connection with the Offering Memorandum—

1. We are independent certified public accountants with respect to the Company under rule 101 of the AICPA's Code of Professional Conduct, and its interpretations and rulings.

2. In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements audited by us and included in the Offering Memorandum comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of the Act and the related published rules and regulations.

3. We have not audited any financial statements of the Company as of any date or for any period subsequent to December 28, 1997; although we have conducted an audit for the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997, the purpose (and therefore the scope) of the audit was to enable us to express our opinion on the consolidated financial statements as of December 28, 1997, and for the fiscal year then ended, but not on the financial statements for any interim period within that year. Therefore, we are unable to and do not express any opinion on the financial position, results of operations or cash flows as of any date or for any period subsequent to December 28, 1997.

4. For purposes of this letter, we have read the minutes of meetings of the Board of Directors of the Company and its subsidiaries as set forth in the minute books at March 16, 1998, except for the meetings of the Board of Directors which took place on February 3, 1998 and February 28, 1998, for which we have read the agendas. Officials of the Company have advised us that these constitute a complete record of minutes of all such meetings through March 16, 1998. We have carried out other procedures to March 16, 1998, as follows (our work did not extend to the period from March 17, 1998, to March 19, 1998, inclusive):

   a. With respect to the period from December 29, 1997 to February 1, 1998, we have

      (i) Read the unaudited consolidated financial statements of the Company and its subsidiaries for the period from December 29, 1997 to February 1, 1998 furnished us by the Company, officials of the Company having advised us that no such financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, were available. The financial information for the period from December 29, 1997 to February 1, 1998 is incomplete in that it omits the statements of cash flows and other disclosures.

      (ii) Inquired of certain officials of the Company who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters whether the unaudited consolidated financial statements referred to in a(i) are stated on a basis substantially consistent with that of the audited consolidated financial statements included in the Offering Memorandum.

The foregoing procedures do not constitute an audit conducted in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Also, they would not necessarily reveal matters of significance with respect to the comments in the following paragraph. Accordingly, we make no representations regarding the sufficiency of the foregoing procedures for your purposes.

5. Nothing came to our attention as a result of the foregoing procedures, however, that caused us to believe that –

   a. At February 1, 1998, there was any change in the capital stock, increase in long-term debt or any decrease in consolidated net current assets or consolidated shareholders' equity of the Company as compared with amounts shown in the December 28, 1997, audited consolidated balance sheet included in the Offering Memorandum, except as follows (in thousands):

	December 28, 1997	February 1, 1998
Long-term debt	$ 194,580	$ 219,449
Shareholders' Equity	531,937	525,913

   b. For the period from December 29, 1997, to February 1, 1998, there were any decreases, as compared with the corresponding period in the preceding year, in consolidated net sales or in net income (loss), except in all instances for changes, increases, or decreases that the Offering Memorandum discloses have occurred or may occur, and except as follows (in thousands):

	The Period
	December 30, 1996 Through February 2, 1997	December 29, 1997 through February 1, 1998
Net sales	$ 72,945	$ 28,984
Net income (loss)	4,786	(9,510)

6. As mentioned in 4(a), Company officials have advised us that no consolidated financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, are available; accordingly, the procedures carried out by us with respect to changes in financial statement items after February 1, 1998 have been, of necessity, even more limited than those with respect to the periods referred to in 4. We have inquired of certain officials of the Company who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters whether (a) at March 16, 1998, there was any change in the capital stock, increase in long-term debt or any decreases in consolidated net current assets or shareholders' equity of the consolidated companies as compared with amounts shown on the December 28, 1997, audited consolidated balance sheet included in the Offering Memorandum; or (b) for the period from December 29, 1997, to March 16, 1998, there were any decreases, as compared with the corresponding period in the preceding year, in consolidated net sales or in the amount of net income. On the basis of these inquiries and our reading of the minutes and meeting agendas described in 4, nothing came to our attention that caused us to believe that there was any such change, increase, or decrease, except in all instances for changes, increases, or decreases that the Offering Memorandum discloses have occurred or may occur, and except as follows:

   a. Between December 29, 1997 and March 16, 1998, (i) capital stock increased primarily due to stock issued in connection with stock option exercises, (ii) long-term debt has increased from $194,580,000 to $299,580,000 as a result of drawings on the Company's credit facility and (iii) consolidated shareholders' equity has decreased primarily because of net losses during the period offset, in part, by contributions received for stock option exercises.

   b. For the period from December 29, 1997 through March 16, 1998, consolidated net sales decreased as compared to the corresponding period of the preceding year primarily due to the Company's new early-buy program for outdoor grills which accelerated outdoor grill sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997. Additionally, the decrease in consolidated net sales during the period as compared to the corresponding period of the preceding year results, in part, from a non-recurring sale in January 1997 of discontinued stock keeping units and excess and obsolete inventory in connection with the Company's November 1996 restructuring. Net income decreased primarily due to the aforementioned sales decrease and a first quarter compensation charge from restricted stock issued in connection with new employment agreements for key officers.

c. Although the Company has not provided us with any financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, management has provided net sales from December 29, 1997 through March 1, 1998, which were $72,018,000 as compared to $143,499,000 for the corresponding period of the preceding year.

7. At your request, we have –

a. Read the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated balance sheet as of December 28, 1997, and the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997 included in the Offering Memorandum.

b. Inquired of certain officials of the Company who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters about –

(i) The basis for their determination of the pro forma adjustments, and

(ii) Whether the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements referred to in 7a comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of rule 11-02 of Regulation S-X.

c. Proved the arithmetic accuracy of the application of the pro forma adjustments to the historical amounts in the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements.

The foregoing procedures are substantially less in scope than an examination, the objective of which is the expression of an opinion on management's assumptions, the pro forma adjustments, and the application of those adjustments to historical financial information. Accordingly, we do not express such an opinion. The foregoing procedures would not necessarily reveal matters of significance with respect to the comments in the following paragraph. Accordingly, we make no representation about the sufficiency of such procedures for your purposes.

8. Nothing came to our attention as a result of the procedures specified in paragraph 7, however, that caused us to believe that the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements referred to in 7a included in the Offering Memorandum do not comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of rule 11-02 of Regulation S-X and that the pro forma adjustments have not been properly applied to the historical amounts in the compilation of those statements. Had we performed additional procedures or had we made an examination of the pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements, other matters might have come to our attention that would have been reported to you.

9. Our audit of the consolidated financial statements for periods referred to in the introductory paragraph of this letter was comprised of audit tests and procedures deemed necessary for the purpose of expressing an opinion on such financial statements taken as a whole. For none of the periods referred to therein, or any other period, did we perform audit tests for the purpose of expressing an opinion on individual balances of accounts or summaries of selected transactions such as those enumerated above, and, accordingly, we express no opinion thereon.

10. We compared the information included under the heading "Selected Historical Financial Data" with the requirements of item 301 of Regulation S-K. We also inquired of certain officials of the Company who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters whether this information conforms in all material respects with the disclosure requirements of item 301 of Regulation S-K. Nothing came to our attention as a result of the foregoing procedures that caused us to believe that this information does not conform in all material respects with the disclosure requirements of item 301 of Regulation S-K.

11. For purposes of this letter, we have also read the items identified by you on the attached copy of the Offering Memorandum, and have performed the following procedures, which were applied as indicated with respect to the symbols explained below:

✓ Compared to corresponding amounts appearing in the Company's audited consolidated financial statements and notes thereto for the period indicated contained in the Offering Memorandum and found them to be in agreement.

(SUNBEAM)(SOC) Sunbeam States First Quarter Revenues May Be Lower than Street Estimates

DELRAY BEACH Fla.--March 19, 1998--Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE:SOC) said today that is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates for $285 million to $295 million, but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million. The Company stressed that sales of its products at retail remains very strong. The shortfall from analysts' estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management and order patterns at certain of the Company's major retail customers. The Company further stated that based on the strength of its new product offerings and powerful brand names, it remains highly confident about the overall sales outlook for its products for the entire year.

Sunbeam Corporation is a leading consumer products company that designs, manufactures and markets, nationally and internationally, a diverse portfolio of brand name products. The Company's Sunbeam(R) and Oster(R) brands have been household names for generations, both domestically and abroad, and the Company is a market leader in many of its product categories.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

SUNBEAM CORPORATION LOWERS FIRST QUARTER SALES AND EARNINGS EXPECTATIONS; NAMES LEE GRIFFITH PRESIDENT OF HOUSEHOLD PRODUCTS BUSINESS

Delray Beach, FL, (April 3, 1997) -- Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE:SOC) previously disclosed on March 19 that first quarter results could be below analysts' estimates. The Company stated today that it now expects first quarter sales to be somewhat below 1997 levels. Sales are expected to be approximately 5% below last year's first quarter. Due to the reduced level of sales, significant one time charges and costs associated with the Company's acquisitions of The Coleman Company, Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc., the Company expects to show a loss for the quarter.

Al Dunlap, Sunbeam's Chairman and CEO, stated, "Our first quarter started slowly this year after an excellent Holiday Season; however, we fully expected our grill sales, especially reorder business late in the quarter, to meet a level which was not realized. Grill reorder business can be difficult to forecast, as the demand may come late in the first quarter or in the second quarter. In addition, we believe retailers are continuing to manage down their inventories, although retail sales reports are encouraging. We were offered opportunities to sell additional product at margins which we felt were unacceptable, and we rejected that business. We felt it was more important to preserve the integrity of our brands and not to sacrifice the future of our business for short term results. We had an excellent March and had expected until the very end of the quarter that we could exceed last year's results."

Mr. Dunlap added, "While there are reasons for our sales shortfall in the quarter, we clearly are not satisfied with this performance and have taken decisive action to deal with the situation."

"First, Don Uzzi, who was EVP Consumer Products, has been terminated. We determined that we needed new leadership in the management of our business units. We are pleased to announce that Lee Griffith, who has most recently served as Vice President of Sales for Sunbeam Corporation, has been named President of our Household Products Division. Lee formerly served as Chairman, President & CEO of Scott Paper Limited (Canada) and has over 30 years of experience in the consumer products industry. Lee is a very high quality executive who has run all aspects of a business, and he obviously is extremely familiar with Sunbeam's household products, distribution and customers. Lee is eager to assume these new responsibilities and is hard at work on refining the organization of our Household Products business."

"In addition, we have accelerated a search process which we had initiated when we first determined to pursue a strategy of growth through acquisitions and consolidation of our industry. We are recruiting a very senior executive with broad based experience in running all aspects of the business, with full profit and loss responsibility, to serve as President of our Outdoor Leisure business, which will include both the Coleman core business and Sunbeam's outdoor cooking business. We are building a strong organization below these two senior positions and already have identified good executives at the companies we are acquiring who will contribute to the future success of the combined companies. Our search is nearing its final stages, and we look forward to announcing the results in the near future."

"Over the past three months, Russ Kersh and I have been working virtually full time on the process of acquiring three new businesses and making plans for the consolidation of those businesses into Sunbeam. We have focused on this activity because we believe it is extremely important to the long term success of our business. Russ and I will be much more actively involved in the day to day operations of the businesses, especially the newly acquired Coleman business, while we are intensively engaged in consolidating the businesses. In particular, Russ will serve as interim head of the outdoor leisure business and will spend a considerable amount of time in Wichita until we name a President of that division."

Mr. Dunlap added, "The real importance of 1998 is as a year of consolidation and restructuring of the businesses we recently acquired in order to position Sunbeam to emerge in 1999 as a powerful house of global brands, including Sunbeam(R), Oster(R), Coleman(R), Mr. Coffee(R), First Alert(R), East Pak(R), Powermate(R) and many others. We believe in the fundamentals of our business and our consolidation strategy, although it is not unusual to have growing pains from time to time. We will get the cost structure right at the recently acquired companies, and, with our recently announced strategy of moving from 70/30 to 50/50 outsourcing, we see even more opportunities for cost improvement."

Mr. Dunlap concluded, "I want to stress that getting the right cost structure is only the first step in the process of building a powerful global business. The key assets being acquired by Sunbeam are powerful brands, which with our already highly recognized Sunbeam and Oster brands, will afford us the opportunity for tremendous growth around the globe."

Re: Trading in the Securities of Coleman Co., Inc., Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc. (MD-1200)

Dear Ms. Youn:

We are counsel to The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman" or the "Company"). This letter is in response to your letter of March 3, 1998, requesting that Coleman voluntarily provide to the Commission certain information relating to the March 2, 1998 announcement concerning Sunbeam Corporation and Coleman.

The information herein and provided herewith represents a reconstruction of events and was compiled based upon a reasonable review of the documents in the possession of Coleman and reasonable inquiries made by Coleman of its personnel and certain of its legal and other advisors and representatives. The information is based in substantial part on the recollection of the individuals involved, as many of the events leading up to the March 2 announcement were not documented. In addition, although the Company of course seeks to provide the SEC with accurate information, the information included herein and provided herewith was collected on an expedited basis and it is possible that supplementation, correction and/or modification by the Company may be needed in the future.

A chronology of events leading up to the March 2, 1998 announcement is attached hereto as Exhibit A. A list of individuals known to Coleman who had knowledge of a potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam prior to the March 2 announcement (other than those already identified in the Chronology) is attached hereto as Exhibit B. In response to your request for the identity of persons from whom the Company received inquiries regarding the acquisition prior to the March 2 announcement:

(i) during a February 27, 1998 telephone conversation between Jerry W. Levin, the Chairman of Coleman, and Timothy B. Horne, the Chief Executive Officer of the Charbroil Division of W.C. Bradley Co., Mr. Horne told Mr. Levin he had heard rumors that Coleman was contemplating a transaction with Sunbeam. Mr. Levin did not respond.

(ii) Marc Shiffman, the person principally responsible for investor relations at Coleman, received several calls from buy- and sell-side analysts, equity holders and bondholders in February 1998, particularly following the February 19 release of Coleman's financial results. During the course of some of those discussions, inquiries were made of Mr. Shiffman regarding the possibility of a transaction with Sunbeam. Mr. Shiffman, who at that time was not aware that any discussion had taken place between Coleman and Sunbeam, does not recall which specific individuals made such inquiries. Mr. Schiffman responded to all such inquiries by stating that it is Coleman's policy not to comment on rumors.

The materials attached hereto bear Bates numbers COLEMAN 00001-COLEMAN 00007, and are marked "confidential." We request confidential treatment for this letter and the accompanying materials pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1905, 17 C.F.R. § 200.83, and other applicable laws and regulations and further request that these materials not be made part of any public record and not be disclosed to any person.

The information contained in this letter and the accompanying materials is maintained in confidence and is not available to competitors or other parties. In addition, the information has been provided voluntarily in connection with the above-referenced inquiry. We believe that the disclosure of this information could have adverse affects on our client's competitive position and/or would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Accordingly, such documents are exempt from mandatory disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(3), (b)(4), (b)(6) and (b)(7), and disclosure is prohibited pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1905.

If any person (including any government employee who is not an employee of the Securities and Exchange Commission) should request an opportunity to inspect or copy this letter or the accompanying materials, we request that we be immediately notified of any such request, be furnished with a copy of all documents pertaining to such requests (including, but not limited to, the request itself or any agency determinations with respect to such request) and be given advance notice of any intended release so that we may, if deemed necessary or appropriate, pursue any remedies available. If the Securities and Exchange Commission is not satisfied that the information set forth in this letter and the accompanying materials is exempt (or protected) from disclosure pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act, we stand ready to supply further particulars, and we would request in such event a hearing on this claim of exemption.

The requests set forth in the preceding paragraphs also apply to any memoranda, notes, transcripts or other writings of any such whatsoever which are made by or at the direction of any employee of the Securities and Exchange Commission (or any other governmental agency) which incorporate, include or relate to any of the confidential information contained in this letter or the accompanying materials.

Early Dec. 1997	Albert J. Dunlap (Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Sunbeam), called Ronald O. Perelman (Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Mafco Holdings Inc. ("MacAndrews"), indirectly the largest stockholder of The Coleman Company ("Coleman"), with an interest of in excess of 80%, and a director of Coleman) to talk about a possible transaction involving Sunbeam and Coleman.
Dec. 12, 1997	Jerry Levin (Chairman, Coleman), Paul E. Shapiro (Executive Vice President and General Counsel, Coleman) and Joseph P. Page (Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, Coleman) gave a presentation to David C. Fannin (Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam")), Russell A. Kersch (Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, Sunbeam) and Peter A. Langerman (a director of Sunbeam) on Coleman's business and potential synergies that could result from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. Later that day, Mr. Perelman met with Howard Gittis (Vice Chairman of MacAndrews), James R. Maher (also of MacAndrews), Gordon Rich (of Credit Suisse First Boston ("CSFB")) and Mr. Levin and discussed a potential transaction involving Coleman and Sunbeam. Coleman retained CSFB to act as financial advisor in connection with a potential transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman.
Dec. 16, 1997	Messrs. Perelman, Maher, Gittis, Levin and Shapiro, and William G. Nesbitt and Norman J. Ginstling (both of MacAndrews), Donald G. Drapkin (a director of Coleman and an officer of MacAndrews) and Gordon Rich, Robert Duffy and Stephen Geller (all from CSFB) met and discussed a potential transaction involving Coleman and Sunbeam.
Dec. 17, 1997	Messrs. Perelman, Maher, Gittis, Shapiro, Nesbitt, Drapkin, Rich, Duffy and Geller met and discussed a potential transaction involving Coleman and Sunbeam.

Dec. 18, 1997	Messrs. Perelman, Dunlap and Michael Price (President of Franklin Mutual Advisors, Inc., the largest holder of Sunbeam stock) met in Florida to discuss a potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam. Mr. Dunlap indicated an interest in acquiring Coleman in a transaction valued in the range of $18-22 per Coleman share. Mr. Perelman advised Mr. Dunlap that the price was too low and indicated that he would not be prepared to support a transaction at that price.
Week of Dec. 22, 1997	Mr. Price called Mr. Gittis and indicated that Sunbeam might be willing to consider a transaction valued as high as $25 per Coleman share. Mr. Gittis indicated that a proposal at that level would not be of interest.
Early Jan.1998	William Reid (a Managing Director of Morgan Stanley, Sunbeam's financial advisor) called Mr. Perelman and advised him that Sunbeam still had interest in a potential transaction with Coleman. Mr. Reid further advised Mr. Perelman that Sunbeam would consider a proposal that involved the payment by Sunbeam of both cash and stock, and that Sunbeam might be prepared to make an offer valued in excess of $25 per share. Mr. Perelman advised Mr. Reid that he would be willing to discuss supporting a transaction at $30 per share.
Jan. 23, 1998	Mr. Nesbitt met with James B. Stynes, Alexandre J. Fuchs and Tyrone Chang (each from Morgan Stanley) to discuss a potential transaction involving Sunbeam and Coleman.
Jan. 28, 1998	Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz ("Wachtell Lipton") is retained as special counsel to Coleman.
Jan. 29, 1998	Barry F. Schwartz of MacAndrews telephoned Wachtell Lipton to indicate that a form of confidentiality agreement to be proposed to Sunbeam in connection with the provision of confidential information to Sunbeam will be faxed to Wachtell Lipton for review. Joram C. Salig of MacAndrews faxed the confidentiality agreement to Wachtell Lipton and Paul Shapiro, General Counsel of Coleman, for their respective review. Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs, Chang, Fannin and Kersch met with Messrs. Levin, Page, Shapiro, Maher, Nesbitt and Rich discussed potential synergies that could be created by a combination of Coleman and Sunbeam. They further discussed how the companies might proceed with due diligence and related matters if Sunbeam made an acceptable proposal.

Feb. 4, 1998	Sunbeam entered into a confidentiality agreement with Coleman.
Feb. 6, 1998	Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs, Chang and Robert Kitts of Morgan Stanley met with Messrs. Maher, Nesbitt, Rich and Duffy in New York. The representatives of Morgan Stanley made a presentation reflecting a transaction in which Coleman would be acquired by Sunbeam for consideration of .6017 Sunbeam shares per Coleman share (which was approximately $22 per share), plus warrants that Morgan Stanley valued at $4 per share. Mr. Maher indicated that MacAndrews would not be prepared to support such a proposal and advised Morgan Stanley that only an all-stock transaction that valued Coleman's stock at $30 per share, or an amount slightly lower than $30 per share if the transaction involved a combination of stock and cash, would be of interest.
Feb. 13, 1998	Messrs. Stynes and Kitts called Mr. Maher and said they were making a "best and final" proposal of .65116 shares of Sunbeam stock per share of Coleman (which was approximately $24.50 per share). Mr. Maher again indicated that the proposal was not of interest.
Feb. 18, 1998	During a telephone conversation between Messrs. Maher and Kitts, Mr. Kitts invited a counter-proposal.
Feb. 19, 1998	Following discussion among Messrs. Perelman and Maher, Mr. Maher conveyed to Mr. Kitts by telephone that management and MacAndrews would be willing to recommend a proposal of .789 Sunbeam shares per Coleman share (which was approximately $30 per share). Mr. Kitts called Mr. Maher later that day and proposed .711 Sunbeam shares per share of Coleman stock (which was approximately $26.90 per share). Mr. Maher indicated that he believed that Coleman would be prepared to consider an exchange ratio of .745 shares of Sunbeam stock per share of Coleman stock (which was approximately $28.20 per share).
Feb. 23, 1998	Messrs. Nesbitt, Page, Levin, Shapiro, Duffy and Geller met with Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs and Richard Goudis (Vice President, Finance and Investor Relations of Sunbeam) in New York to conduct due diligence. Later that day, Messrs. Maher, Nesbitt, Duffy and Chuck Ward (of CSFB) met to discuss the potential transaction.

That night, Messrs. Nesbitt, Shapiro, Levin, Page, Maher, Duffy and Steven R. Isko (Vice President - Legal of Coleman) and Messrs. Fannin, Kersch, Kitts, Stynes, Fuchs, Chang and Goudis met at Morgan Stanley's offices. Sunbeam made a presentation regarding its 1998 operating projections.

Feb. 24-27, 1998

Coleman and Sunbeam, and their respective advisors, negotiated the structure of the transaction, conducted due diligence, and drafted the necessary documentation.

Feb. 24, 1998

Mr. Levin called the Coleman directors and advised them of the proposed transaction, described the principal terms of the deal, and notified them of a board meeting to be held the following day. Mr. Levin reached all of the directors except Lawrence M. Jones.

Representatives of Coopers & Lybrand visited Coleman's headquarters in Wichita, Kansas on behalf of Sunbeam in order to tour the Wichita plant facility. They were accompanied by Messrs. David Ramone and Joseph Nold, two senior Coleman executives.

Feb. 25, 1998

By February 25, the negotiations had resulted in a proposed transaction in which each share of Coleman common stock would be converted into the right to receive (A) 0.6258 shares of Sunbeam common stock and (B) $4.40 in cash. The Board of Directors of Coleman met. The meeting was attended by directors Jerry W. Levin, Donald G. Drapkin, Frank Gifford, Ann D. Jordan, John A. Moran (by telephone), Ronald O. MESSAGE

As discussed with Jim Stynes, here is a one page list of "issues" which C provided to us at our meeting on Friday. These are identified synergies and cost savings in putting the two companies together. There is nothing in here for factory consolidation, whereas we see great opportunity there. My notes reflect that the corporate and international staff are provided on a "fee" basis by the holding company (obviously there is not a totally pure "savings" there as the functions have to exist, and we are not that long on management talent). Items 6 and 7 reflect using the existing C network to sell S products in Japan and Europe. Item 10 assumes closing headquarters functions in Boston, Omaha and Wichita. C has major systems problems and have budgeted $20 million to fix it. We can almost certainly do it for less. Time is more of a factor here than money. We will talk at 1:10 p.m. today. Russ and I will call Jim's number.

PROJECT LASER

Pricing Mechanism Overview

Transaction pricing assumes the following steps:

I. Assumed CAMPER Holding Company debt balance of $500,000,000 is offset by a portion of the existing Holding Company stock position in CAMPER at an assumed $26.00 per CAMPER share valuation. The economic cancellation of the existing CAMPER Holding Company debt reduces the CAMPER Holding Company's CAMPER stock ownership position by 19,230,769 shares ($500,000,000/$26.00=19,230,769 shares)

II. Each remaining CAMPER share owned by CAMPER Holding Company (44,067,520[1]-19,230,769=24,836,751 shares) as well as all CAMPER shares help by public shareholders (10,708,480[1] shares) are valued at 0.7450 LASER Common Shares, at an approximate implied value of $28.68 per CAMPER share as of February 19,1998. MAFCO Affiliates to receive 18,503,379 LASER Common Shares (24,836,751*0.7450=18,503,379). Public shareholders to receive 7,977,818 LASER Common Shares (10,708,480[1]*0.7450=7,977,818)

III. MAFCO Affiliates have the right, 30 days prior to closing, to elect to take $300,000,000 (at a $27.50 per CAMPER share exchange ratio) or 10,909,091 CAMPER Shares ($300,000,000/$27.50=10,909,091 shares) equivalent of the net consideration for CAMPER Holding Company's CAMPER shares in the form of LASER Convertible Preferred Shares. In this case, the remaining 13,927,660 CAMPER shares (24,836,751-10,909,091=13,927,660 shares) held by CAMPER Holding Company will be exchanged for 10,376,107 LASER Common Shares at the .7450 exchange ratio

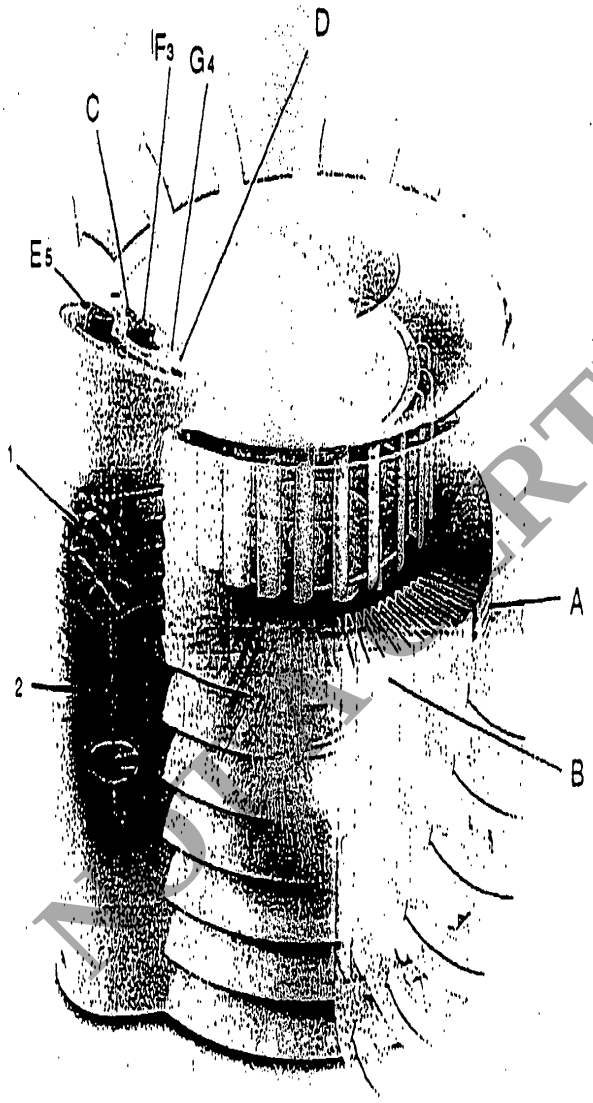
*Allergy*smart Air Cleaner with Allergen Detector



HOW IT WORKS

1. A small fan draws air into the sensor chamber.
2. A laser beam in the detector measures the level of allergen-sized particles (3 microns and larger) every 30 seconds and sends a signal to the air cleaner.
3. Sensitivity setting - allows running the air cleaner based on your own perceived sensitivity level. Choosing a setting (average, extra, super), the sensor automatically activates the air cleaner when the level of particles is too high. The unit shuts off only when the level is reduced.
4. Air quality indicator - when the detector is on, lights on the control panel constantly indicate the level of allergen-sized particles in the room.

FEATURES

A. Charcoal pre-filter
B. HEPA filter
C. Ionizer - added level of filtration
D. Filter check light - for filter replacement
E. Four speed fan control
F. Sensitivity setting control
G. Air quality indicator

Summary of Recent Analyst Commentary

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

International Opportunities:

- "[Sunbeam] is about to sign to sign an agreement with NuSkin to help them distribute its FreshSource water product in Asia" (CIBC Oppenheimer - 1/28/98)
- "Sunbeam has 20 signed distribution and licensing agreements so far in 1997. By expanding into new SKUs in Latin America (toasters, mixers, etc.) the Company can leverage the Oster brand into new revenue streams through these new distributors and licensees. In Asia, the Company has identified an opportunity in the electric blanket market." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "Key agreements committed to in the second quarter include an arrangement for the sale of grills in Europe and the U.K., a clipper agreement in Paraguay and Brazil and a joint marketing agreement in Venezuela. The Company remains committed to tripling international sales to $600 million by 1999." (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

New Channels/Distribution:

- "New distribution is being created by opening outlet stores. The Company currently has 11 stores open, and is on track to have 20 in operation by year end. It will open 20 per annum. Another business with strong new distribution potential is Away from Home." (Oppenheimer - 1/28/98)
- "The Company continues to roll out more Sunbeam Outlet stores, although they are not a crucial part of the Sunbeam growth plan." (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

Advertising:

- "[Sunbeam] will double its consumer advertising in 1998, enabling it to spend more to generate customer demand for its innovative products that the rest of the housewares industry will spend collectively." (Prudential Securities - 1/29/98)
- "We expect Sunbeam to significantly out-spend its competitors over the next several years. In an industry fraught with co-op advertising, we believe advertising is long overdue in this category and will be effective." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)

Laser shall use all reasonable best efforts to have the Registration Statement declared effective under the Securities Act and the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice cleared by the SEC and mailed as promptly as practicable after such filing. The Company will use all reasonable best efforts to cause the Information Statement and the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice to be mailed to the Company's stockholders as promptly as practicable after it has been cleared by the SEC. Each of Laser and the Company shall also take any action (other than qualifying to do business in any jurisdiction in which it is not now so qualified or to file a general consent to service of process) required to be taken under any applicable state securities Laws in connection with the issuance of Laser Common Stock in connection with the Company Merger and the Holdings Merger. The Company shall furnish all information concerning the Company, its subsidiaries and the holders of the Company Common Stock and Laser shall furnish all information concerning Laser and its subsidiaries, in each case, as may be reasonably requested in connection with any such action.

Section 7.2 Access and Information; Confidentiality. The Company and Laser shall each afford to the other and to the other's financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants, consultants and other representatives full access at all reasonable times throughout the period prior to the Company Effective Time to all of its books, records, properties, plants and personnel (provided that all such access shall be on reasonable advance notice and shall not disrupt normal business operations) and, during such period, each shall furnish promptly to the other (a) a copy of each report, schedule and other document filed or received by it pursuant to the requirements of federal or state securities Laws, and (b) all other information as such other party may reasonably request, provided that no investigation pursuant to this Section 7.2 shall affect any representations or warranties made herein or the conditions to the obligations of the respective parties to consummate the Company Merger. (b) Laser shall use its reasonable best efforts to cause to be delivered to the Company "comfort" letters of Arthur Andersen, LLP, Laser's independent public accountants, dated the date on which the Registration Statement shall become effective and as of the date on which the Information Statement is mailed to the Company's stockholders, and addressed to the Company and Laser, in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to the Company and as is reasonably customary in scope and substance for letters delivered by independent public accountants in connection with transactions such as those contemplated by this Agreement.

Section 7.4 Listing Application. Laser shall prepare and submit to the NYSE a listing application covering the Laser Shares to be issued in connection with the Company Merger, and shall use its reasonable best efforts to obtain, prior to the Company Effective Time, approval for the listing of such Laser Shares, subject to official notice of issuance.

Section 7.5 Affiliates. Prior to the Company Effective Time, the Company shall cause to be prepared and delivered to Laser a list (reasonably satisfactory to counsel for Laser) identifying each person who, at the time the Information Statement is mailed to the Company's stockholders, may be deemed to be an "affiliate" of the Company, as such term is used in paragraphs (c) and (d) of Rule 145 under the Securities Act (the "Company Rule 145 Affiliates"). The Company shall use its reasonable best efforts to cause such person who is identified as a Company Rule 145 Affiliate in such list to deliver to Laser on or prior to the Company Effective Time a written agreement, in customary form, that such Company Rule 145 Affiliate will not (i) sell, pledge, transfer or otherwise dispose of, or in any other way reduce such Company Rule 145 Affiliate's risk relative to, any Laser Shares issued to such Company Rule 145 Affiliate in connection with the Company Merger, except pursuant to an effective registration statement or in compliance with such Rule 145 or another exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act or (ii) sell or in any other way reduce such Rule 145 Affiliate's risk relative to any Laser Shares received in the Company Merger (within the meaning of Section 201.01 of the SEC's Financial Reporting Release No. 1) during the period commencing thirty (30) days prior to the Company Effective Time and ending at such time as the financial results (including combined sales and net income) covering at least thirty (30) days of post-Merger operations have been published, except as permitted by Staff Accounting Bulletin No. 76 issued by the SEC.

all correspondence, filings or communications (or memoranda setting forth the substance thereof) between such party or any of its representatives, on the one hand, and any governmental agency or authority or members of their respective staffs, on the other hand, with respect to this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby. The Company and Laser shall consult with one another with respect to any such correspondence, filings or communications and shall engage in discussions with any Governmental Entity on a joint basis.

Section 7.7 Employee Matters.

(a) From and after the Holdings Effective Time, Laser shall honor, and shall cause the Company to honor, all employment, severance, termination, consulting and retirement agreements to which the Company is a party as of the Holdings Effective Time; provided, however, that (i) neither Laser nor the Company shall have any responsibility for the Company's obligations under that certain employment agreement entered into as of October 1, 1997, between the Company and Jerry W. Levin (except for the incentive payment provided for in section 3.2(b) thereof (relating to the divestiture of Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc.), which shall be the responsibility of the Company and paid in accordance with the terms of section 3.2(b) thereof), and (ii) neither Laser nor the Company shall have any responsibility for the Company's obligations under that certain employment agreement entered into as of July 1, 1997, between the Company and Paul E. Shapiro. Except as provided in the first sentence of Section 7.7(b) or the proviso to this sentence, from and after the Holdings Effective Time, Laser will cause the Company to allow Company employees to participate in Laser employee benefit plans on substantially the same basis as similarly situated Laser employees; provided, however, that Laser will cause the Company to continue the Company Plans for at least six (6) months following the Holdings Effective Time. Laser will or will cause the Company to give Company employees full credit for purposes of eligibility and vesting of benefits and benefit accrual for service with the Company and its affiliates prior to the Holdings Effective Time under each Laser employee benefit plan; provided, however, that no such crediting of service results in duplication of benefits. With respect to any welfare benefit plans maintained for the benefit of Company employees from and after the Holdings Effective Time, Laser shall (i) cause there to be waived any pre-existing condition limitations and (ii) give effect, in determining any deductible and maximum out-of-pocket limitations, to claims incurred and amounts paid by, and amounts reimbursed to, such employees with respect to similar plans maintained by the Company for such employee's benefit immediately prior to the Holdings Effective Time. Laser acknowledges that, for the purposes of certain of such Company Plans and certain of such other employment, severance, termination, consulting and retirement agreements to which the Company is currently a party, the consummation of the Holdings Merger will constitute a "change in control" of the Company (as such term is defined in such plans and agreements). Laser agrees to cause the Company, after the Holdings Effective Time, to pay all amounts provided under such Company Plans and agreements as a result of a change in control of the Company in accordance with their respective terms and to honor, and to cause the Company to honor, all rights, privileges and modifications to or with respect to any such Company Plans or agreements which become effective as a result of such change in control.

(b) Laser shall cause the Company to continue the Company's Executive Annual Incentive Policy for the remainder of 1998, and participants therein shall not be eligible for participation in an analogous Laser incentive plan in respect of 1998. Laser shall honor, and shall cause the Company to honor, the Company's Executive Severance Policy without any amendment adverse to participants. Laser shall provide severance benefits for employees of the Company, who are not participants in Company's Executive Severance Policy and who do not have employment agreements with the Company, under the Laser severance policy on the same basis as similarly situated Laser employees provided that severance benefits shall be no less than those set forth on Schedule 7.7(b).

(c) Effective as of the ninety-first (91st) day following the Holdings Effective Time, the participants in the Executive Severance Policy set forth on Schedule 7.7(c) may voluntarily terminate their employment, which termination will be deemed to be for "Good Reason" under the Executive Severance Policy as a result of the consummation of the Holdings Merger.

(d) Laser and the Company agree to take all necessary action to provide that, effective as of the Holdings Effective Time, all outstanding Employee Stock Options shall be vested and exercisable as of the Holdings Effective Time, and between the Holdings Effective Time and the Company Effective Time, Laser shall cause the Company to maintain a broker-dealer cashless exercise procedure for the exercise of Employee Stock Options. Laser and the Company agree to take all other actions necessary to provide for the cancellation, effective at the Company Effective Time, of each outstanding Employee Stock Option and, in settlement therefor, a payment to the holder of the Employee Stock Option in cash by Laser or the Company at the Company Effective Time equal to the product of (i) the total number of shares of Company Common Stock subject to such Employee Stock Option, and (ii) the excess of $27.50 over the exercise price per share of Company Common Stock subject to such Employee Stock Option, less any applicable withholding taxes.

(e) Laser agrees that, at or prior to the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings may cause the Company to (i) assume sponsorship of the pension, retirement, savings, retiree health care and life insurance and other plans maintained by New Coleman Holdings, Inc. that are reflected in footnotes 7 and 12 to the 1996 financial statements included in the Company's 1996 Annual Report on SEC Form 10-K (as such plans may have been changed in the ordinary course of business since December 31, 1996) (the "Plans"), and (ii) assume the liabilities and obligations of New Coleman Holdings, Inc. under the Plans to the extent reflected in such footnotes (as such liabilities and obligations may have changed in the ordinary course of business since December 31, 1996). The documents used to effect such assumption shall be in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to Parent Holdings and Laser.

Section 7.8 Continuance of Existing Indemnification Rights.

(a) For six (6) years after the Company Effective Time (and during the period following the Holdings Effective Time but prior to the Company Effective Time), Laser shall, or shall cause the Surviving Corporation to, indemnify, defend and hold harmless any person who is now, or has been at any time prior to the date hereof, or who becomes prior to the Company Effective Time, a director or officer of the Company (an "Indemnified Person") against all losses, claims, damages, liabilities, costs and expenses (including attorneys' fees and expenses), judgments, fines, losses and amounts paid in settlement in connection with any actual or threatened action, suit, claim, proceeding or investigation (each, a "Claim") to the extent that any such Claim is based on, or arises out of: (i) the fact that such Indemnified Person is or was a director or officer of the Company or is or was serving at the request of the Company as a director, officer, employee or agent of another corporation, partnership, joint venture, trust or other enterprise; or (ii) this Agreement or the Holdings Merger Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated hereby or thereby, in each case to the extent that any such Claim pertains to any matter or fact arising, existing or occurring prior to or at the Company Effective Time, regardless of whether such Claim is asserted or claimed prior to, at or after the Company Effective Time, to the full extent permitted under the DGCL, the Company's certificate of incorporation or by-laws or any indemnification agreement in effect at the date hereof, including provisions relating to advancement of expenses incurred in the defense of any such Claim; provided, however, that neither Laser nor the Surviving Corporation shall be required to indemnify any Indemnified Person in connection with any proceeding (or portion thereof) involving any Claim initiated by such Indemnified Person against the Company unless the initiation of such proceeding (or portion thereof) was authorized by the Board of Directors of the Company or unless such proceeding is brought by an Indemnified Person to enforce rights under this Section 7.8; and provided further that in the event any Claim is asserted or made within such period, all such rights, liabilities and limitations in respect of any such Claim shall continue until disposition thereof. Without limiting the generality of the preceding sentence, in the event any Indemnified Person becomes involved in any Claim after the Company Effective Time, Laser shall, or shall cause the Surviving Corporation to, periodically advance to such Indemnified Person its legal and other expenses (including the cost of any investigation and preparation incurred in connection therewith), subject to the providing by such Indemnified Person of an undertaking to reimburse all amounts so advanced in the event of a final non-appealable determination by a court of competent jurisdiction that such Indemnified Person is not entitled thereto.

(b) Laser and the Company agree that all rights to indemnification, and all limitations with respect thereto, existing in favor of any Indemnified Person, as provided in the Company's certificate of incorporation or by-laws and any indemnification agreement in effect at the date hereof, shall survive the Holdings Merger and the Company Merger and shall continue in full force and effect, without any amendment thereto, for a period of six (6) years from the Company Effective Time (and during the period following the Holdings Effective Time but prior to the Company Effective Time) to the extent such rights and limitations are consistent with the DGCL; provided, however, that in the event any Claim is asserted or made within such period, all such rights, liabilities and limitations in respect of any such Claim shall continue until disposition thereof; provided further that any determination required to be made with respect to whether an Indemnified Person's conduct complies with the standards set forth under the DGCL, the Company's certificate of incorporation or by-laws or any such agreement, as the case may be, shall be made by independent legal counsel selected by such Indemnified Person and reasonably acceptable to Laser; and provided further that nothing in this Section 7.8 shall impair any rights or obligations of any current or former director or officer of the Company.

(c) Laser or the Surviving Corporation shall use reasonable best efforts to obtain a liability insurance policy ("D&O Insurance") for the benefit of the Company's existing and former directors and officers commencing at the Holdings Effective Time and for a period of not less than six (6) years after the Company Effective Time providing substantially similar coverage in amounts and on terms no less advantageous than that currently provided to such existing and former directors and officers; provided further that neither Laser nor the Surviving Corporation shall be required to pay an annual premium for D&O Insurance in excess of 200% of the last annual premium paid prior to the date hereof, but in such case shall purchase as much coverage as possible for such amount.

(d) The provisions of this Section 7.8 are intended to be for the benefit of, and shall be enforceable by, each Indemnified Person, his or her heirs and his or her personal representatives.

Section 7.9 Expenses. Whether or not the Company Merger is consummated, all costs and expenses incurred in connection with this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby shall be paid by the party incurring such expenses.

Section 7.10 Public Announcements. Laser and the Company shall consult with each other before issuing their respective initial press releases to be issued with respect to the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the Holdings Merger.

Section 7.11 Reasonable Best Efforts. Upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in this Agreement, each of the parties hereto agrees to use its reasonable best efforts to take, or cause to be taken, all actions, and to do, or cause to be done, and to assist and cooperate with the other parties in doing, all things necessary, proper or advisable, to consummate and make effective, in the most expeditious manner practicable, the Company Merger and the other transactions contemplated by this Agreement, including, but not limited to: (i) the obtaining of all necessary actions or nonactions, waivers, consents and approvals from all Governmental Entities and the making of all necessary registrations and filings with, and the taking of all other reasonable steps as may be necessary to obtain an approval or waiver from, or to avoid an action or proceeding by, any Governmental Entity (including those in connection with the HSR Act, if applicable); (ii) the obtaining of all necessary consents, approvals or waivers from persons other than Governmental Entities; (iii) the defending of any lawsuits or other legal proceedings, whether judicial or administrative, challenging this Agreement or the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby, including seeking to have any stay or temporary restraining order entered by any court or other Governmental Entity vacated or reversed; and (iv) the execution and delivery of any additional instruments necessary to consummate the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to require any party hereto to enter into any agreement with any Governmental Entity or to consent to any order, decree or judgment requiring such party to hold, separate or divest, or to restrict the dominion or control of such Chairman Levin called the meeting to order at 9:30 a.m. and asked Mr. Isko to act as Secretary of the meeting. Mr. Levin thanked everyone for attending and reviewed with the Board the status of the negotiations, noting that in the course of the negotiations the cash component of the consideration has been increased to $6.44 per Company share, and that the exchange ratio for the Sunbeam stock to be received has been decreased to .5677, the effect of which was subsequently described by Mr. Rich. Mr. Levin then asked Adam Emmerich of Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen and Katz ("Wachtell") to review the proposed transaction structure and the consideration to be received.

Mr. Emmerich reviewed with the Board the transaction structure, utilizing a chart which was distributed to the Board (a copy of which is attached to these minutes), and the consideration to be received by the public stockholders of the Company and by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("M&F") for the sale of CLN Holdings Inc. ("CLN Holdings"), a parent company of the Company and by the Company's public stockholders.

Mr. Emmerich then reviewed the terms of the principal documents for the transaction, utilizing a summary of such documents delivered to the Board (a copy of which is attached to these minutes). Mr. Emmerich reviewed with the Board the conditions to the first step, the merger of CLN Holdings, and the conditions to the second step, the merger of the Company and the exchange of its common stock held by the public. Mr. Emmerich reviewed again with the Board their duties under Delaware law. Mr. Emmerich then responded to questions from the directors.

Mr. Levin then introduced Mr. Gordon Rich of Credit Suisse First Boston ("First Boston"). Mr. Rich reviewed the financial terms of the proposed transaction, noting the differences from the terms that existed on Wednesday, in particular the increase in the cash component of the consideration to $6.44 per Company share and the decrease in the exchange ratio of Sunbeam shares per Company share to .5677. Mr. Rich reviewed with the Board revised pages to the First Boston presentation delivered on Wednesday (a copy of such pages are attached to these minutes). Mr. Rich stated that the revised financial terms, based on Wednesday's closing price per Sunbeam share, has $0.31 less value per Company share than the previous financial terms, but that based on yesterday's closing price for Sunbeam's common stock the value to the stockholders of the cash and stock to be received in the merger was approximately the same as on Wednesday. Mr. Rich then responded to question from the directors.

Mr. Rich then stated that it was First Boston's opinion that the consideration to be received by the public stockholders of the Company is fair from a financial point of view.

A discussion then ensued about Sunbeam's pending acquisitions, and Mr. Maher reviewed for the Board Sunbeam's contemplated acquisitions of Signature Brands (which owns the Mr. Coffee brand of coffee makers) and First Alert.

Mr. Levin reviewed with the Board the terms of the proposed transaction that relate to employee severance and benefits. Mr. Levin described for the Board the principal terms of the Executive Severance Policy to be adopted by the Board, the severance policy to be offered to employees that are not participants in the Executive Severance Policy, and the acceleration of stock options upon the closing of the acquisition of CLN Holdings.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
IN AND FOR PALM BEACH COUNTY, FLORIDA

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC., Plaintiff, v. ARTHUR ANDERSEN LLP and PHILLIP E. HARLOW, Defendants.	Case No.: CA 01-06062AN Judge Stephen A. Rapp

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS' RESPONSE TO ANDERSEN'S MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF DOCUMENTS RELATED TO THE COLEMAN COMPANY

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("Coleman Parent") hereby opposes defendant Arthur Andersen's Motion to Compel Production of Documents Related to The Coleman Company. In support of its opposition, Coleman Parent states as follows:

1. Coleman Parent is the former owner of over 80% of the shares of The Coleman Company. In early 1998, Sunbeam Corporation negotiated with Coleman Parent and The Coleman Company for the purchase of The Coleman Company. In connection with this acquisition, Sunbeam conducted due diligence regarding The Coleman Company's business and financial condition. Arthur Andersen provided assistance to Sunbeam in this due diligence process, along with Sunbeam's investment bankers (Morgan Stanley) and outside counsel (Skadden Arps). The negotiations culminated in February 1998 with Sunbeam agreeing to purchase The Coleman Company in an acquisition valued by Sunbeam and Andersen at approximately $2.0 billion, consisting of $260 million in cash, Sunbeam stock valued at $811 million, and the assumption of debt for the remainder.

2. On March 30, 1998, in the first phase of the acquisition, Sunbeam purchased Coleman Parent's 80% share block in exchange for cash, assumed debt, and Sunbeam stock with a fair market value of over $600 million, based on the publicly traded market price on that date. In going forward with the transaction, Coleman Parent relied on defendants' issuance of audit opinions certifying Sunbeam's 1996 and 1997 financial statements. Not long after the deal closed, however, it became clear that Sunbeam's financial statements were false and misleading, and Arthur Andersen announced that those opinions could not be relied upon and would have to be restated. The market value of Coleman Parent's Sunbeam stock received as part of the purchase price plummeted and has never recovered.

3. In this action, Coleman Parent has sued Andersen and its audit partner Philip Harlow for issuing the false and misleading Sunbeam financial statements. Thus, this action solely concerns the financial statements of Sunbeam, and has nothing to do with the operations or financial statements of The Coleman Company. Indeed, it should be noted that Coleman Parent settled its claims against Sunbeam in 1998, and in connection with that settlement, Sunbeam never raised (and fully released) any claim that The Coleman Company's financial statements were inaccurate or misleading in any manner.

4. In this motion, however, Andersen seeks an order from this Court compelling the production of documents in response to 22 of the 95 separate document requests included in its first document request. Andersen's blunderbuss motion asserts that these 22 requests seek documents that supposedly relate to The Coleman Company's "value and operations." (AA Mtn. ¶ 2.) Andersen claims it needs discovery on The Coleman Company's "value" as of March 30, 1998 (when Sunbeam acquired it) because this "value" purportedly is relevant to an "out-of-pocket" calculation of Coleman Parent's damages, which is "one of the measures of damages" available for Coleman Parent's fraud and negligent misrepresentation claims. (AA Mtn. ¶¶ 3, 4.) The other measure of damages available to Coleman Parent here, of course, is the "benefit of the bargain" rule. See, e.g., Nordyne, Inc. v. Florida Mobile Home Supply, Inc., 624 So. 2d 1283, 1286-87 (Fla. 1st DCA 1993); Colandrea v. Johansen v. 632 So. 2d 284-85 (Fla. 2nd DCA 1994); Duffy v. Spreroni, 580 So. 2d 862, 863-64 (Fla. 3rd DCA 1991).

5. Under the benefit-of-the-bargain rule, The Coleman Company's purported "value" is plainly irrelevant, and Andersen does not and cannot contend otherwise. But at this point there is no need for the Court to decide which rule applies, because in this particular case the same result will be reached under either rule. On the one hand, under the out-of-pocket loss rule, Coleman Parent is entitled to recover the difference between the purchase price it paid for the Sunbeam shares and the actual value of the property acquired. That calculation is easy here because the purchase price was set by Sunbeam in the negotiations, and was independently valued by the financial markets -- a valuation in excess of $600 million which Andersen itself incorporated in footnote 14 to its 1997 Sunbeam audit report. On the other hand, under the benefit-of-the-bargain rule, Coleman Parent is entitled to recover the difference between the actual value of the Sunbeam shares and the value of the shares as represented by Sunbeam. That calculation also is simplified by the valuation set by the transaction and the public markets.

6. Coleman Parent is not claiming that Sunbeam represented that its shares would be worth more than the publicly traded market price on the date the contract was signed. Rather, Coleman Parent claims it was defrauded because the publicly traded market price for Sunbeam shares had been artificially inflated by Andersen's fraud and plummeted once the fraud was disclosed. Thus, the "actual value" of the Sunbeam shares received by Coleman Parent is the

012652

same regardless of which damages rule applies: the market value after the fraud was revealed. Likewise, the number used for comparison -- either the "purchase price" paid by Coleman Parent or the value of the shares as represented by Sunbeam -- also remains the same: the public market value of the Sunbeam stock at the time of the transaction. Under either rule, Coleman Parent's damages are easily measured by the drop in Sunbeam's stock price when the financial markets became aware of the truth about Sunbeam's financial performance, which had been hidden by Andersen's certification of Sunbeam's false financial statements.

7. Andersen essentially contends that the out-of-pocket loss rule requires the parties to perform an entire valuation or appraisal of The Coleman Company as of the date of the transaction, with the jury apparently to decide what that value was. That would make no sense. This case involves a transaction negotiated at arms' length by two large, sophisticated, and publicly traded corporations. Each side was represented by prominent, highly paid advisors: Morgan Stanley, Skadden Arps, and Andersen for Sunbeam, and CS First Boston and Wachtell Lipton for The Coleman Company. Sunbeam conducted due diligence of The Coleman Company just like any third-party buyer would do. In the end, Sunbeam agreed to pay a total of $2.0 billion for The Coleman Company, including Sunbeam stock valued by Sunbeam and Andersen at $811 million. This was an arms' length, fair market "valuation" of The Coleman Company. The "purchase price" for the Sunbeam shares acquired by Coleman Parent as partial payment for its 80% share block was fixed by Sunbeam and confirmed by Andersen to be in excess of $600 million.

8. There is no plausible basis to permit Andersen to attack the purchase price negotiated by the parties to the transaction in February 1998. But that is precisely what Andersen seeks to do here. Andersen essentially contends that it should be free to ignore the purchase price and valuation of The Coleman Company which all the parties agreed upon (including Andersen, which stated that same valuation in the 1997 audit report at issue in this case). Andersen seeks to conduct the equivalent of another due diligence investigation of The Coleman Company, as if it was a buyer other than Sunbeam, in order to try to establish a different value than the one fixed by the purchase agreements and the public market for Sunbeam shares. What this all boils down to is that Andersen contends that Sunbeam simply agreed to pay too much for The Coleman Company, and that Coleman Parent got more than it deserved even if the $600+ million in Sunbeam shares it acquired were rendered worthless as a result of Andersen's fraud. But there is no basis in law or fact for defendants -- who were not even parties to the transaction -- to contest the price that was actually negotiated. This Court should reject out of hand this blatant diversionary tactic by Andersen, which would greatly expand and prolong both discovery and trial.

9. Andersen, which has already paid $110 million to settle the claims asserted against it by certain of the other Sunbeam shareholders, and Harlow, who is the subject of an SEC enforcement action for his conduct as Sunbeam's auditor, understandably and desperately want to turn this suit into a case about The Coleman Company rather than Sunbeam. Andersen and Harlow would have this Court believe that this is a fraud action by defendants on behalf of Sunbeam against Coleman Parent. It is not. Andersen's motion is nothing more than a transparent effort to delay the course of this case and to dramatically increase its complexity. By doing so, Andersen and Harlow hope to make this case much more expensive for Coleman Parent and also to delay their day of reckoning.

10. Moreover, even if The Coleman Company's value were at issue, the discovery sought by Andersen goes well beyond any reasonable bounds. Pursuant to this motion to compel, Andersen seeks this Court's approval for discovery concerning virtually all aspects of The Coleman Company's business (as well as Coleman Parent's) going back to 1989, for the purported purpose of determining the "value" of The Coleman Company in 1998. Even if that issue were relevant, Andersen's discovery requests are not tailored in any way to meet that objective. No investor interested in the value of The Coleman Company in 1998 would have any interest in the documents defendants seek to discover. Andersen's purpose, however, is not to discover evidence of The Coleman Company's value. Its main objective is to bog discovery down into an expensive frolic and detour concerning events that happened more than 10 years ago at The Coleman Company -- not at Sunbeam.

012654

CONFIDENTIAL - SUBJECT TO PROTECTIVE ORDER

11. Furthermore, while Andersen attempts to disguise its true purpose by couching its motion as an effort to obtain necessary damages discovery, it has not even attempted to demonstrate how the 22 document requests that are the subject of its motion to compel are relevant to the issue of The Coleman Company's value.[1] Indeed, review of the 22 document requests that are the subject of Andersen's motion reveals Andersen's overbroad requests are not reasonably calculated to obtain discovery concerning the valuation issue, even if that issue were a proper subject for discovery. If for no other reason, Andersen's motion should be denied because the document requests at issue here are so overbroad (both as to subject matter and time) that they necessarily encompass matters having nothing to do with The Coleman Company's value. Examples of Andersen's everything-but-the-kitchen-sink approach include:

[1]Indeed, Andersen has not even clearly identified the document requests at issue in this motion. Instead, Andersen has stated that it is moving to compel production of documents related to the "value and/or operations of The Coleman Company (including Nos. 9, 10, 13, 15, 16, 18, 20, 22, 23, 25, 27, 29, 32(a)-(c), 40, 41, 44, 50, 53, 62, 80, 82, and 93)." (AA Mtn. ¶ 2; emphasis added.) If Andersen believes that there are other requests related to Coleman's value, it has not identified them, and those requests thus cannot be the subject of this motion to compel.

- Request No. 13, which seeks documents relating to all Board of Director's meetings dating back to January 1, 1989, not only for plaintiff Coleman Parent but also for various affiliates, including Mafco Holdings, Inc., Coleman Worldwide Corporation, CLN Holdings Inc., New Coleman Holdings Inc., MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., and without any limitation as to subject matter. Documents responsive to that broad request encompass the numerous other companies besides The Coleman Company, Inc. that have operated under the MacAndrews & Forbes umbrella, none of which is at issue here.

- Request No. 16, which seeks documents discussing whether any public disclosure should be made regarding any aspect of The Coleman Company's financial or business results, prospects, forecasts, or projections.

- Request Nos. 18, 20, and 25, which seek all documents concerning any financial analysts' or news media reports, press releases, or news articles concerning The Coleman Company dating back to 1989.

- Request No. 53, which seeks documents regarding analyses of how Sunbeam would pay for the debt it took on in acquiring The Coleman Company. That request concerns Sunbeam, not The Coleman Company.

- Request No. 62, which seeks all documents relating to the consolidation of Sunbeam and The Coleman Company, First Alert, and/or Signature Brands. Andersen has made no effort to show how those documents might relate to The Coleman Company's value prior to the acquisition in March 1998.

- Request No. 82, which seeks all files maintained by 11 individuals concerning The Coleman Company dating back to 1989. That request is not limited to documents relating to valuation.

- Twenty-one of the 22 document requests Andersen identified seek documents dating back to January 1, 1989 and up to the present -- even though Andersen takes the position that the relevant date for The Coleman Company's value is March 1998. (AA Mtn. ¶ 11.) Andersen neither cites authority nor explains why it is necessary to obtain documents from 1989 through 2001 to conduct an appropriate valuation of The Coleman Company as of March 30, 1998.

In contrast to its insistence on these irrelevant categories, Andersen fails to mention that Coleman Parent already agreed to produce (and has produced) its documents relating to all the matters raised in the Complaint.

12. It is not the responsibility of this Court (or the plaintiff) to rewrite Andersen's overbroad requests. Andersen's failure to show how each of the documents it seeks to compel relates to The Coleman Company's value is, by itself, sufficient grounds to deny its motion. See, e.g., National Convenience Stores, Inc. v. Embrey, 375 So. 2d 358, 359 (Fla. 4th DCA 1979) (quashing an order compelling discovery where there was no showing that all the information sought would be relevant to the pending lawsuit); McMillan v. McGill, 584 So. 2d 185 (Fla. 2nd DCA 1991) (quashing an order compelling discovery where the party seeking discovery had not shown that "the requested discovery was either relevant or likely to lead to the relevant discovery").

13. Where a movant cannot show that "all of the information sought by the challenged" discovery request "is or would be relevant," the motion to compel should be denied. National Convenience Stores, 375 So. 2d at 359. See also FDIC v. Balkany, 564 So. 2d 580, 581 (Fla. 3d DCA 1990) (quashing order compelling discovery of files unrelated to the transaction at issue even though they might contain relevant documents). Indeed, considering the burden that would be involved in hearing argument on and considering each of Andersen's document requests -- a burden exacerbated by Andersen's failure to provide support for its requests -- the Court need not wade through each document request before denying Andersen's motion. Slatnick v. Leadership Housing Sys. of Florida, Inc., 368 So. 2d 78, 80 (Fla. 4th DCA 1979) (trial court need not consider the merits of each discovery request separately when it would be burdensome to do so).

14. Andersen and Harlow also contend that documents relating to The Coleman Company's value are relevant to their in pari delicto defense. The case law, including cases cited by defendants, makes clear that the doctrine is rarely applied and applies only to bar recovery by a "co-perpetrator" in the same fraudulent scheme. See Kulla v. E.F. Hutton & Co., 426 So. 2d 1055, 1057 (Fla. 3rd DCA 1983) (cited AA Mtn. ¶ 9). Coleman Parent, of course, was by no means a "co-perpetrator" in the fraud that Andersen and Harlow perpetrated on it and The Coleman Company. Here, the meritless allegations defendants make against Coleman Parent in paragraph 8 of its motion describe a wholly-separate (and groundless) scheme that is irrelevant to Andersen's and Harlow's roles in auditing and certifying financial statements that falsely depicted to Coleman Parent and the market that Sunbeam was in the midst of an impressive financial turnaround. Thus an in pari delicto defense cannot be the basis for Andersen's broad requests for documents relating to The Coleman Company's operations or value.

WHEREFORE, for all the reasons stated herein, Coleman Parent respectfully requests that this Court deny Andersen's Motion to Compel Production of Documents Related to The Coleman Company.

Summary of Recent Analyst Commentary

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

New Product Introductions:

- "Sunbeam enters 1998 with a potent combination: (1) two exciting and innovative new products, FreshSource and AllergySmart, which even if they are not absolute home runs will provide completely incremental sales at better than corporate average operating margins and (2) an enhanced grill line-up against a weak grill showing in 1H97." (PaineWebber - 10/23/97)
- "We, like SOC management, believe that both of Sunbeam's new products have "home run" potential. The products are timely, innovative and margin enhancing, a perfect complement to the new Sunbeam portfolio." (PaineWebber - 10/9/97)
- "In our view, its entries in the water and air purification markets lend significant credibility to Sunbeam's new product strategy, offer demonstrable value-added for consumers, and increase our confidence in estimated 20% plus sales growth and management's targeted 20% operating margin through 1999." (Goldman Sachs - 10/9/97)
- "The Allergysmart is a unique launch, introducing proprietary laser technology." (PaineWebber - 10/9/97)
- "This is the most important growth strategy. Driving it's fat pipeline is its enhanced new product development capability. By consolidating R&D into one location and reducing the number of facilities used to make a given product, Sunbeam has reduced new product to market time from 2.5 years to 6 months. It is also open to buying technologies and using outside experts to develop products and processes, and is doing more consumer research than ever before." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "Finally, we believe several new products from its infamous Secret Room will be retail hits and the Company will begin developing new products in its Health at Home business." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "After accounting for roughly 20% cannibalization, new products should contribute around $100 million incrementally to 1997 sales with about 80% domestic and 20% international." (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

"Project Full Time":

- "Project Full Time...is fully on track. We believe that this will be a market share driver in 1998." (CIBC Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "We expect customer service to play an increasingly important role in the company's growth ... Its 'Project Full Time' focuses on achieving 100% delivery rate among its top 35 customers and top 400 SKUs. This encompasses over 50% of its sales ... The opportunity for Sunbeam here is to improve its own delivery-efficiency and become two-thirds of the retailers order equation and thus gain share." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "The move to higher service levels should generate significant gains in market share. Even though share data in the small electrics industry is not tracked to the same degree as in packaged goods, there is some initial evidence that higher service levels generate higher sales." (Bear Stearns - 8/14/97)
- "Management noted that it filled 98% of the orders placed by the top ten accounts in the second quarter of 1997, up substantially from the disappointing 66% order-fill rate to these accounts in the first quarter of 1997." (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

The first order of business was a brief overview by Mr. Levin of the Company's results for the fourth quarter and full year 1997, and an outlook for near term prospects.

The next item of business was an overview by Mr. Levin of a proposed transaction whereby the Company would be merged with Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Mr. Levin stated that the Company had been in discussions with Sunbeam with respect to a potential transaction whereby the Company would be merged with Sunbeam and holders of the Company's common stock would receive Sunbeam common stock and cash with a total value of $27.50 per Company share. Mr. Levin stated that the proposed transaction is structured to put Sunbeam in control as quickly as possible in order to reduce disruption to the Company's business. Mr. Levin then provided an overview of the information provided by Sunbeam as to their current intentions with regard to divestiture of certain business units of the Company and potential restructurings of remaining facilities. Mr. Levin also reviewed certain employee-protection provisions which the Company is requesting as part of the proposed transaction, including the severance policies, acceleration of options and formalizing pre-existing agreements with certain officers.

Mr. Levin then asked Mr. James Maher to review with the Board the history of the proposed transaction with Sunbeam. Mr. Maher reviewed the history of the proposed transaction, including both the course of discussion between the Company and Sunbeam and an inquiry made by the Company to what the Company believed was the most likely potential bidder, which bidder was not interested. Following Mr. Maher's review, the directors asked numerous questions regarding the proposed transaction and a discussion ensued among the directors.

Following the directors' questions and discussion, Mr. Levin then introduced Mr. Adam Emmerich of Wachtell. Mr. Emmerich described the overall structure of the proposed transaction, the timing for the consummation of the proposed acquisition of the Company by Sunbeam, and the principal filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC") that would be required in connection with the proposed transaction and the timing of those filings. Utilizing a chart he handed out at the meeting (a copy of which is attached to these minutes), Mr. Emmerich then described in detail the structure of the proposed transaction, including the merger of CLN Holdings Inc., a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("M&F") which owns approximately 82.4% of the Company's common stock in the first step of the transaction, and the merger of the Company and the exchange of its common stock held by the public in the second step of the transaction. Mr. Emmerich described the consideration payable in each step of the transaction, noting that, after a reduction to account for the debt at CLN Holdings, the aggregate consideration payable to M&F for shares of CLN Holdings in the first step of the transaction was based on the same proportions of consideration in cash and Sunbeam common stock payable to the public in the second step of the transaction. Mr. Emmerich also described the tax treatment of the two steps of the transaction, indicating that the receipt of consideration by the Company's public stockholders would generally be taxable while the receipt of consideration by M&F for shares of CLN Holdings in the first step would not be taxable.

Mr. Emmerich then reviewed the contemplated conditions to closing, including that there would be very few conditions, which is typical of acquisitions of public companies. Mr. Emmerich stated that once the acquisition of CLN Holdings was consummated, there would be virtually no conditions to the obligations of Sunbeam to close the second step of the transaction.

The directors then asked numerous questions regarding the consideration being paid, the structure of the transaction, and the other terms of the transaction, and a discussion ensued.

Following the discussion, Mr. Emmerich stated that the Board needed to consider two distinct matters in connection with the acquisition of the Company: (i) approving the merger agreement between Sunbeam and the Company and (ii) approving the first step of the transaction (the acquisition of CLN Holdings) under Section 203 of the Delaware General Corporation law. Mr. Emmerich stated that both decisions by the Board should be governed by the "business judgment rule" under Delaware law.

Mr. Emmerich reviewed with the Board the requirements of the "duty of care" and "duty of loyalty," identifying certain facts the Board should consider, including that both M&F and the Company's public stockholders will receive consideration for the Company's common stock in the same mix of cash and stock and based upon the same valuation, management's activities to maximize the consideration to all of the Company's shareholders and that there is a tremendous risk of damage to the Company's business in conducting a more extended or extensive sale process without any indication that another bidder would emerge. Mr. Emmerich noted for the Board as part of its consideration that both Wachtell and First Boston have in the past been engaged by affiliates of the Company, including M&F and its subsidiaries.

Mr. Emmerich stated that in light of the fact that the preponderance of the economic investment of the Company's stockholders in Coleman will become an equity stake in Sunbeam following the consummation of the transaction, and that, at such time, there will exist no controlling stockholder of Sunbeam, the proposed transaction is not a "sale" within the meaning of Revlon v MacAndrews & Forbes, which doctrine Mr. Emmerich described for the Board. Mr. Emmerich stated that the Company's stockholders, as stockholders of Sunbeam, may be able to obtain another control premium with respect to their Sunbeam common stock, and that this is an unusually favorable transaction in that the public stockholders of the Company would not only receive a premium for their Coleman shares but would also obtain the benefits of becoming stockholders in Sunbeam, a public company which has no controlling stockholder, thereby offering the possibility of sharing in another control premium in the future.

Following Mr. Emmerich's presentation the Board asked questions and a discussion ensued.

Mr. Levin thanked Mr. Emmerich for his presentation and then introduced Mr. Gordon Rich of First Boston. Mr. Rich reviewed with the Board each page of the presentation prepared by First Boston, a copy of which was distributed to the directors and is attached to these minutes. Mr. Rich began with an overview of the financial terms of the proposed transactions, including the proposed exchange ratio in the second step of .6258 Sunbeam shares for each share of the Company's common stock, cash consideration in the second step of $14.40 per share (together representing a premium of 44.2% to the Company's stock price on the previous day), and aggregate consideration in the first step of the transaction of approximately 15.6 million shares of Sunbeam common stock and approximately $106 million in cash. Mr. Rich then reviewed the value of the proposed transaction as it relates to various financial indicia, including historical stock trading prices and earnings, the value to the Company's stockholders as the price of Sunbeam stock increased or decreased, and the two-year trading history of Sunbeam stock. Mr. Rich stated that since Mr. Dunlap became Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam, Sunbeam's stock price has approximately doubled.

Mr. Rich then reviewed the implied exchange ratio of the proposed transaction and stated that it was higher than the exchange ratio implied by the two companies' historical stock market price.

Mr. Rich then reviewed with the Board the section of the First Boston presentation on Valuation Methodologies, and reviewed with the Board the three methods prepared by First Boston: Discounted Cash Flow Analysis, Comparable Company Analysis and Comparable Acquisition Analysis. In reviewing the Discounted Cash Flow Analysis, Mr. Rich noted that First Boston used the Company's 1998 estimates on earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization ("EBITDA"), which shows a significant increase over 1997 results, and is higher than the Company's best results in any year. Mr. Rich stated that although First Boston did not discount the 1998 EBITDA forecasts, another buyer would likely discount such estimates, resulting in a lower discounted cash flow range of values than those presented by First Boston.

Mr. Rich stated that the price being paid for the Company's common stock would be within or exceed the range of values for the Company's common stock implied by the three valuation methodologies.

Mr. Rich then provided a brief overview of Sunbeam, including Wall Street estimates for Sunbeam's stock price and then reviewed a summary of the Discounted Cash Flow Analysis. Comparable Company Analysis and Comparable Acquisition Analysis for Sunbeam. Based on such analysis, Mr. Rich stated that it was First Boston's conclusion that Sunbeam's stock was fairly valued at today's market price (approximately $41 per share). Mr. Rich then reviewed a Contribution Analysis demonstrating that, based on contribution to earnings, the Company's stockholders should receive 16% of the outstanding Sunbeam shares after the acquisition of Coleman, whereas the terms of the transaction provide that they will receive approximately 30%.

Following Mr. Rich's presentation, the directors asked questions and a discussion ensued.

Mr. Levin explained that a decision from the directors with respect to the transaction was not required at today's meeting, and that significant issues remained to be negotiated. Mr. Levin indicated that the Board would meet again to consider the final terms of the transaction.

Mr. Levin thanked Mr. Rich for his presentation and stated that the next item was the approval of the 1997 bonus payments. Mr. Levin stated that the bonuses under the Management Incentive Plan were conditioned on the Company achieving a certain minimum earnings per share. The earnings per share condition was the only condition that had not been satisfied and if the condition were absent, bonuses would have been earned under the Management Incentive Plan. Therefore, in light of the progress made by the Company during 1997 to restructure its operations and in consideration of the Company's financial performance during 1997, management recommends that a bonus be paid based on the amounts that would have been earned absent the condition of a minimum earnings per share.

Upon a motion made and duly seconded, the Board adopted management's recommendation with respect to the 1997 bonuses and adopted the following resolutions:

1997 Bonus Payments

WHEREAS, one condition to the payment of amounts under the Company's Management Incentive Plan has not been satisfied for 1997; and

WHEREAS, but for such condition, certain payments would have been earned under the Company's Management Incentive Plan;

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that in light of the progress made by the Company during 1997 to restructure its operations, and in consideration of the financial performance of the Company during 1997, the payments to employees of the Company of discretionary bonus as described to this Board are hereby approved and adopted in all respects.

General

RESOLVED, that any officer of the Company be, and each of them individually hereby is, authorized and empowered in the name and on behalf of the Company, to (i) take or cause to be taken any and all such further actions and to prepare, execute and deliver or cause to be prepared, executed and delivered, and where necessary or appropriate, file or cause to be filed with the appropriate governmental authorities, all such other instruments and documents, including but not limited to all certificates, contracts, bonds, agreements, documents, instruments, receipts or other papers, (ii) incur and pay or cause to paid all fees and expenses and (iii) engage such persons as such officer shall in his judgment determine to be necessary or appropriate to carry out fully the intent and purposes of the foregoing resolutions and each of the transactions contemplated thereby; and further

RESOLVED, that all actions previously taken by any director, officer, employee or agent of the Company in connection with or related to the matters set forth in or reasonably contemplated or implied by the foregoing resolutions be, and each of them hereby is, adopted, ratified, confirmed and approved in all respects as the acts and deeds of the Company.

Mr. Levin then stated that the next Board meeting would be held on Friday, February 27, 1998 at 9:30 a.m. (EST). Mr. Levin stated that Messrs. Rich and Emmerich and members of management would be available to answer any questions any of the directors may have and provide any additional materials a director may want.

At 5:30 p.m., the meeting was adjourned.

(b) If there are any conflicts between the provisions of this Section 10.1 and Section 9.3 with respect to Tax Claims, the provisions of Section 9.3 shall control.

(c) Any payment by Parent Holdings under Article IX or this Section 10.1 will be an adjustment to the Merger Consideration.

(d) Anything in this Agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, the liability of Parent Holdings to indemnify the Laser Group pursuant to this Section 10.1 against any Damages sustained by reason of any Laser Claim shall be limited to Laser Claims as to which the Laser Group has given Parent Holdings written notice, setting forth in reasonable detail the basis for such Laser Claim, on or prior to the fourth (4th) anniversary of the Closing Date.

Section 10.2. Conditions of Indemnification With Respect to Third-Party Claims. The obligations and liabilities of Parent Holdings with respect to Laser Claims for Damages which arise or result from claims made by third parties ("Third-Party Claims") shall be subject to the following conditions:

(a) The Laser Group shall give Parent Holdings prompt notice of any such Third-Party Claim, and Parent Holdings shall have the right to undertake the defense thereof by representatives chosen by it; provided, however, that failure to provide prompt notice shall not affect Parent Holdings' obligations hereunder except to the extent that Parent Holdings is actually prejudiced by such failure;

(b) If Parent Holdings undertakes the defense of any such Third-Party Claim, the Laser Group shall, to the best of its ability, assist Parent Holdings, at the expense of Parent Holdings, in the defense of such Third-Party Claim, and shall promptly send to Parent Holdings, at the expense of Parent Holdings, copies of any documents received by the Laser Group which relate to such Third-Party Claim;

(c) If Parent Holdings, within a reasonable time after notice of any such Third-Party Claim, fails to defend the member(s) of the Laser Group against which such Third-Party Claim has been asserted, the Laser Group shall (upon further notice to Seller) have the right to undertake the defense, compromise or settlement of such Third-Party Claim on behalf of and for the account and risk of Parent Holdings, subject to the right of Parent Holdings to assume the defense of such Third-Party Claim at any time prior to settlement, compromise or final determination thereof; and

(d) Anything in this Article X to the contrary notwithstanding, (i) if there is a reasonable probability that a Third-Party Claim may materially and adversely affect the Laser Group other than as a result of money damages or other money payments, the Laser Group shall have the right, at its own cost and expense, to defend, compromise or settle such Third-Party Claim, and shall by doing so release Parent Holdings from any liability to provide indemnification with respect to such Third-Party Claim; and (ii) Parent Holdings shall not, without the written consent of the Laser Group, settle or compromise any Third-Party Claim or consent to the entry of any judgment which does not include as an unconditional term thereof the giving by the claimant or the plaintiff to the Laser Group a release from all liability with respect to such Third-Party Claim.

Section 10.3. Survival of Representations; Covenants. The representations and warranties in this Agreement shall terminate upon and not survive the Closing Date. (d) by either Laser or Holdings in the event of a breach by the other party or any of its subsidiaries (including, in the case of Holdings, the Company and its subsidiaries) of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained in this Agreement or the Company Merger Agreement, as applicable, which would give rise to the failure of a condition set forth in Section 8.2(a) or Section 8.3(a) hereof or Section 8.1 thereof, as applicable, and is not capable of being cured (provided that the terminating party is not then in material breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained in this Agreement).

(5) furnish to Parent Holdings, the underwriters or the sales or placement agent, if any, and one (1) counsel for each of the foregoing, a conformed copy of the Shelf Registration Statement and each amendment and supplement thereto (in each case, including all exhibits thereto) and such additional number of copies of such Shelf Registration Statement, each amendment and supplement thereto (in such case, without such exhibits), the prospectus (including each preliminary prospectus) included in such Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus supplements and all exhibits thereto and such other documents as Parent Holdings, its underwriters, agent or such counsel may reasonably request in order to facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities by Parent Holdings; do any and all other acts and things which may be reasonably necessary or advisable to enable Parent Holdings to consummate the disposition in such jurisdictions in which the Registrable Securities are to be sold and keep such registration or qualification in effect for as long as the Shelf Registration Statement remains effective under the Securities Act (provided that Laser shall not be required to (i) qualify generally to do business in any jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be required to qualify but for this paragraph, (ii) subject itself to taxation in any such jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be subject to taxation but for this paragraph or (iii) consent to the general service of process in any jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be subject to general service of process but for this paragraph);

(8) notify Parent Holdings, at any time when a prospectus relating to the Shelf Registration Statement is required to be delivered under the Securities Act, upon the discovery that, or of the happening of any event as a result of which, the Shelf Registration Statement, as then in effect, contains an untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state any material fact required to be stated therein or any fact necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, and promptly prepare and furnish to Parent Holdings a supplement or amendment to the prospectus contained in the Shelf Registration Statement so that the Shelf Registration Statement shall not, and such prospectus as thereafter delivered to the purchasers of such Registrable Securities shall not, contain an untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading;

(9) cause all of the Registrable Securities to be listed on each national securities exchange and included in each established over-the-counter market on which or through which the Laser Common Stock is then listed or traded;

(10) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, make available for inspection by Parent Holdings, any underwriter participating in any disposition pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement, and any attorney, accountant or other agent retained by Parent Holdings or its underwriter, all financial and other records, pertinent corporate documents and properties of Laser as shall be reasonably necessary to enable either of them to exercise their due diligence responsibility, and cause Laser's officers, directors, employees, attorneys and independent accountants to supply all information reasonably requested by Parent Holdings, its underwriters, attorneys, accountants or agents in connection with the Shelf Registration Statement; information which Laser determines, in good faith, to be confidential shall not be disclosed by such persons unless (i) the disclosure of such information is required by applicable federal securities laws or is necessary to avoid or correct a misstatement or omission in such Shelf Registration Statement or (ii) the release of such information is ordered pursuant to a subpoena or other order from a court of competent jurisdiction; Parent Holdings agrees, on its own behalf and on behalf of all of its underwriters, accountants, attorneys and agents, that the information obtained by any of them as a result of such inspections shall be deemed confidential unless and until such is made generally available to the public; Parent Holdings further agrees, on its own behalf and on behalf of all of its underwriters, accountants, attorneys and agents, that Parent Holdings will, upon learning that disclosure of such information is sought in a court of competent jurisdiction, give notice to Laser and allow Laser, at Parent Holdings' expense, to undertake appropriate action to prevent disclosure of the information deemed confidential; nothing contained herein shall require Laser to waive any attorney-client privilege or disclose attorney work product;

(11) use reasonable best efforts to comply with all applicable laws related to the Shelf Registration Statement and offering and sale of securities and all applicable rules and regulations of governmental authorities in connection therewith (including, without limitation, the Securities Act and the Exchange Act, and the rules and regulations promulgated by the SEC) and make generally available to its security holders as soon as practicable (but in any event not later than fifteen (15) months after the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement) an earnings statement of Laser and its subsidiaries complying with Section 11(a) of the Securities Act;

(12) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, use reasonable best efforts to furnish to Parent Holdings a signed counterpart of (x) an opinion of counsel for Laser (including a "Rule 10b-5" opinion) and (y) a "comfort" letter signed by the independent public accountants who have certified Laser's financial statements included or incorporated by reference in such registration statement, covering such matters with respect to such registration statement and, in the case of the accountants' comfort letter, with respect to events subsequent to the date of such financial statements as are customarily covered in opinions of issuer's counsel and in accountants' comfort letters delivered to the underwriters in underwritten public offerings of securities for the account of, or on behalf of, an issuer of common stock, such opinion and comfort letters to be dated the date that such opinion and comfort letters are customarily dated in such transactions; and

(13) take other actions as Parent Holdings or the underwriters, if any, reasonably request in order to expedite or facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities.

(b) Further Agreements. Without limiting any of the foregoing, in the event that the sale of Registrable Securities is to be made by or through an underwriter, Laser shall enter into an underwriting agreement with a managing underwriter or underwriters selected by Parent Holdings containing representations, warranties, indemnities and agreements customarily included (but not inconsistent with the agreements contained herein) by an issuer of common stock in underwriting agreements with respect to offerings of common stock for the account of, or on behalf of, such issuers; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not utilize the Shelf Registration Statement for more than two (2) underwritten offerings during the term of this Agreement. In connection with the sale of Registrable Securities hereunder, Parent Holdings may, at its option, require that any and all representations and warranties by, and the other agreements of, Laser to or for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be made to or for the benefit of such an underwriter or underwriter if such sale of Registrable Securities were pursuant to a customary underwritten offering) be made to and for the benefit of Parent Holdings and that any or all of the conditions precedent to the obligations of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be so for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters under a customary underwriting agreement) be conditions precedent to the obligations of Parent Holdings in connection with the disposition of Parent Holdings' securities pursuant to the terms hereof. In connection with any offering of Registrable Securities registered pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall, upon receipt of duly endorsed certificates representing the Registrable Securities, (i) furnish to the underwriter, if any (or, if no underwriter, Parent Holdings), unlegended certificates representing ownership of Registrable Securities being sold, in such denominations as requested, and (ii) instruct any transfer agent and registrar of the Registrable Securities to release any stop transfer order with respect thereto.

Parent Holdings agrees that upon receipt of any notice from Laser of the happening of any event of the kind described in paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a), Parent Holdings shall forthwith discontinue its disposition of Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus relating thereto until Parent Holdings' receipt of the copies of the supplemented or amended prospectus contemplated by paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a) and, if so directed by Laser, deliver to Laser all copies, other than permanent file copies, then in Parent Holdings' possession of the prospectus current at the time of receipt of such notice relating to the Registrable Securities.

Section 2.5 Registration Expenses.

All expenses incidental to Laser's performance of, or compliance with, its obligations under this Agreement including, without limitation, all registration and filing fees, all fees and expenses of compliance with securities and "blue sky" laws (including, without limitation, the fees and expenses of counsel for underwriters or placement or sales agents in connection therewith), all printing and copying expenses, all messenger and delivery expenses, all fees and expenses of underwriters and sales and placement agents in connection therewith (excluding underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor), all fees and expenses of Laser's independent certified public accountants and counsel (including, without limitation, with respect to "comfort" letters and opinions) and other Persons retained by Laser in connection therewith (collectively, the "Registration Expenses"), shall be borne by Laser. Laser shall not be responsible for and shall not pay underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor and fees and expenses of legal counsel, accountants, agents or experts retained by Parent Holdings in connection with the sale of the Registrable Securities. Laser will pay its internal expenses (including, without limitation, all salaries and expenses of its officers and employees performing legal or accounting duties, the expense of any annual audit and the expense of any liability insurance) and the expenses and fees for listing the Registrable Securities on the New York Stock Exchange or, if the Laser Common Stock is then not so listed, included in an established over-the-counter market.

Section 2.6 Indemnification.

(a) By Laser. Laser agrees to indemnify Parent Holdings and Parent Holdings' directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person to the fullest extent lawful, against all losses, claims, damages, liabilities, judgments, and reasonable costs (including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses) (collectively, the "Losses") as incurred, caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, except insofar as the same are based upon any information furnished in writing to Laser by Parent Holdings or its underwriter or other agent expressly for use therein or by Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or its underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Laser's other obligations under this Agreement, Laser shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Parent Holdings.

(b) By Parent Holdings. In connection with the Shelf Registration Statement, Parent Holdings shall furnish to Laser in writing information regarding Parent Holdings' ownership of Registrable Securities and Parent Holdings' intended method of distribution thereof and shall indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (i) is caused by, arises out of, results from or relates to, or is alleged to be omitted from, such information so furnished in writing by Parent Holdings or (ii) arises out of or results from Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or Parent Holdings' underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Parent Holdings' other obligations under this Agreement, (i) Parent Holdings shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Laser and (ii) Parent Holdings shall cause each underwriter of an underwritten offering to indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such indemnified Person, on terms and subject to conditions customary for such indemnification by nationally known investment banking firms, against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (x) is caused by, arises out of or results from information furnished in writing by such underwriter specifically for inclusion in the Shelf Registration Statement or (y) arises out of or results from such underwriter's failure to delivery a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished such underwriter with the requested number of copies of the same.

(c) Notice. Any Person entitled to indemnification hereunder shall give prompt written notice to the indemnifying party of any claim with respect to which it seeks indemnification; provided, however, the failure to give such notice shall not release the indemnifying party from its obligation, except to the extent that the indemnifying party has been prejudiced by such failure to provide such notice.

(d) Defense of Actions. In any case in which any such action is brought against any indemnified party, and it notifies an indemnifying party of the commencement thereof, the indemnifying party shall be entitled to participate therein, and, to the extent that it may wish, jointly with any other indemnifying party similarly notified, to assume the defense thereof, with counsel reasonably satisfactory to such indemnified party, and after notice from the indemnifying party to such indemnified party of its election so to assume the defense thereof, the indemnifying party shall not (so long as it shall continue to have the right to defend, contest, litigate and settle the matter in question in accordance with this paragraph) be liable to such indemnified party hereunder for any legal or other expense subsequently incurred by such indemnified party in connection with the defense thereof other than reasonable costs of investigation, supervision and monitoring (unless such indemnified party reasonably objects to such assumption on the grounds that there may be defenses available to it which are different from or in addition to the defenses available to such indemnifying party, in which event the indemnified party shall be reimbursed by the indemnifying party for the reasonable expenses incurred in connection with retaining one separate legal counsel). An indemnifying party shall not be liable for any settlement of an action or claim effected without its consent. The indemnifying party shall lose its right to defend, contest, litigate and settle a matter if it shall fail to diligently contest such matter (except to the extent settled in accordance with the next following sentence). No matter shall be settled by an indemnifying party without the consent of the indemnified party unless such settlement contains a full and unconditional release of the indemnified party.

(e) Survival. The indemnification provided for under this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect regardless of any investigation made by or on behalf of the indemnified Person and will survive the transfer of the Registrable Securities.

(f) Contribution. If recovery is not available under the foregoing indemnification provisions for any reason or reasons other than as specified therein, any Person who otherwise would be entitled to indemnification by the terms thereof shall nevertheless be entitled to contribution with respect to any Losses with respect to which such Person would be entitled to such indemnification but for such reason or reasons. In determining the amount of contribution to which the respective Persons are entitled, there shall be considered the Persons' relative knowledge and access to information concerning the matter with respect to which the claim was asserted, the opportunity to correct and prevent any statement or omission, and other equitable considerations appropriate under the circumstances. It is hereby agreed that it would not necessarily be equitable if the amount of such contribution were determined by pro rata or per capita allocation. No person guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation (within the meaning of Section 11(f) of the Securities Act) shall be entitled to contribution from any Person who was not found guilty of such fraudulent misrepresentation.

Upon any permitted assignment (other than in connection with any such bona fide pledge), this Agreement shall be amended to substitute the assignee as a party hereto in a writing reasonably acceptable to the other party.

Section 4.6 Amendment, Modification and Waiver.

This Agreement may be amended, modified or supplemented at any time by written agreement of the parties hereto. Any failure by Parent Holdings, on the one hand, or Laser, on the other hand, to comply with any term or provision of this Agreement may be waived by Laser or Parent Holdings, respectively, at any time by an instrument in writing signed by or on behalf of Laser and Parent Holdings, but such waiver or failure to insist upon strict compliance with such term or provision shall not operate as a waiver of, or estoppel with respect to, any subsequent or other failure to comply.

---

DELRAY BEACH, FL, May 11, 1998 – Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE: SOC) today reported results for the first quarter ended March 31, 1998, and announced a comprehensive growth plan designed to take full advantage of Sunbeam's strategic opportunities.

First Quarter Results

Revenues for the first quarter of 1998 were $244.3 million, compared with $253.5 million in the first quarter of 1997. Before one-time charges of $36.8 million for early retirement of debt and compensation expense relating to new three-year employment agreements with Sunbeam's top three executives, there was a net loss from continuing operations of $7.8 million in the 1998 quarter versus net income from continuing operations of $20.6 million in the year-ago quarter. After the one-time charges of $.43 per share, the loss per share was $0.52 in the 1998 quarter compared with earnings per share of $0.08 in the 1997 period.

Domestic sales, representing 74% of total revenues (excluding Coleman) in the 1998 quarter, declined 15.4% from the 1997 quarter due to lower price realization and unit volume declines. Most of the domestic sales decline was in outdoor cooking products due to lower than anticipated retail sell-through of these products. International sales, representing 26% of total revenues during the first quarter, grew 14.0% over the first quarter of 1997. This sales growth was driven primarily by improved distribution and new product sales in Latin America, partially offset by lower sales of outdoor cooking products in Europe and Canada. The gross margin for the first quarter of 1998 decreased 13.3 percentage points to 13.4%, primarily due to margin erosion in the appliance, health at home and outdoor cooking categories.

Earnings Expectations

Based on the growth and restructuring initiatives being announced today, including the anticipated synergies and associated cost savings, Sunbeam currently expects full-year 1998 earnings in the range of approximately $1.00 per share, excluding one-time costs to integrate Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands into Sunbeam and to close two of Sunbeam's Mexican facilities. These one-time costs are expected to total approximately $280 million pre-tax, including cash costs of approximately $150 million pre-tax. Sunbeam also expects to take an extraordinary cash charge of approximately $100 million pre-tax in the second quarter of 1998 for early retirement of existing Coleman debt. Based on the growth and restructuring initiatives, including the anticipated synergies and associated cost savings, Sunbeam currently expects 1999 earnings in the range of approximately $2.00 per share. From this 1999 base, Sunbeam's goal for earnings per share growth in future years is now in the range of 15-20%.

Growth Plans

Based on the growth and restructuring initiatives, Sunbeam has set new long-term goals for annual revenue growth of 10-12% and operating margins of 15-18%. Top-line growth is expected to be driven by global expansion of six power brands -- Sunbeam®, Oster®, Coleman®, Mr. Coffee®, First Alert®, and Grillmaster®, all of which are already #1 in market share in their respective primary product categories. Sunbeam expects the integration of its three recent acquisitions and planned new products to generate at least $265 million in incremental annual revenues. These new revenues are expected to come from leveraging complementary international distribution strengths, domestic sales synergies and accelerated new product development.

For example, Coleman has a strong existing distribution system in Europe and Asia which can increase sales of Sunbeam®, Mr. Coffee®, and First Alert® products, while Sunbeam has a strong existing distribution system in Latin America which can increase sales of Coleman®, Mr. Coffee®, and First Alert® products. Sunbeam is also establishing dedicated, multifunctional teams to serve each of its six largest customers, which together currently represent a total of approximately $1 billion in annual revenues to Sunbeam. Sunbeam also plans to use a single global advertising agency for all of its products to maximize the effectiveness of its $160 million in current annual marketing support spending in driving the growth of its power brands on a worldwide basis, and will immediately solicit proposals from qualified agencies.

Cost Savings

Sunbeam also expects incremental annual cost savings of approximately $250 million from integrating the three acquisitions, closing two Sunbeam factories in Mexico (which have 2,800 employees), and outsourcing production of certain components and finished goods. These cost savings, which are expected to be fully realized by mid-1999, will come from combining four companies into a single streamlined organization and adoption of Sunbeam's outsourcing strategy.

Specific actions include reducing headcount by approximately 2,300 in addition to the Mexican factory closings; combining 10 existing headquarters in the four companies into one new headquarters in Boca Raton, Florida; consolidating 23 multi-purpose factories into 15 plants focused on related products; and consolidating from 47 to 14 warehouses and from 35 to 15 sales offices. Sunbeam also plans to divest three Coleman businesses with a total of 1,300 employees that do not fit its strategic focus: the East Pak(R) backpack division and the compressor and hot tub businesses. Morgan Stanley Dean Witter & Co. has been retained for the divestitures, which are expected to generate aggregate pre-tax proceeds of $250-350 million based on preliminary estimates. Upon completion of these divestitures, integration of the three recent acquisitions, and planned hiring, Sunbeam expects to have a total work force of approximately 9,500 people.

The eight factories expected to be closed, either through consolidation into other factories or outsourcing, are:

Location	Company	Products Made
Acuna, Mexico	Sunbeam	Appliances
Mexico City, Mexico	Sunbeam	Appliances
Costa Rica	Coleman	Components
Maize, Kansas	Coleman	Machine shop
Pocola, Oklahoma	Coleman	Furniture
Cedar City, Utah	Coleman	Sleeping bags
Aurora, Illinois	First Alert	Fire extinguishers
Cleveland, Ohio	Signature Brands	Coffee makers

Chairman's Outlook

"Sunbeam has taken aggressive steps to address the issues that led to unacceptable financial performance in the first quarter of 1998 after strong growth in 1997. The Sunbeam turnaround is real, and we now have the right organizational structure in place to take full advantage of our power brands and unique strategic position in durable household and outdoor leisure products," said Al Dunlap, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. "Sunbeam's new organization is largely complete. So far in 1998, we have made 47 senior hires from the outside, added 8 executives from the three acquired companies to our management team as Vice Presidents or Directors and many more in other key positions. We plan two dozen more senior recruits this year as we complete the infrastructure to support long-term growth and industry consolidation. Our commitment to create shareholder value is undiminished, but 1998 will be a transitional year as we complete the simultaneous integration of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands into Sunbeam while strengthening our marketing, customer service and new product development capabilities. We see enormous opportunities for sustained growth in the U.S. and overseas and a return to strong financial performance in 1999 and beyond that will reward our shareholders."

Sunbeam Corporation is a leading consumer products company that designs, manufactures and markets, nationally and internationally, a diverse portfolio of brand-name consumer products through its Sunbeam, Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands subsidiaries under the following world-class brands: Sunbeam(R), Oster(R), Grillmaster(R), Coleman(R), Mr. Coffee(R) First Alert(R), Powermate(R), Health o meter(R), and Camping Gaz(R).

Except as set forth in Section 4.5 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by the Company, nor the consummation by the Company of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by the Company with any of the provisions hereof, will (a) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of the Company or the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of any of the Company's subsidiaries; (b) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any material (as defined for purposes of Form 10-K) Contract to which the Company or any of the Company's subsidiaries is a party or by which any of them or any of their properties or assets may be bound; or (c) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to the Company, any of the Company's subsidiaries or any of their properties or assets, except in the case of clauses (b) and (c) for violations, breaches or defaults which would not individually or in the aggregate have a Company Material Adverse Effect.

Section 4.9 Information in Disclosure Documents and Registration Statement. None of the information to be supplied by the Company for inclusion or incorporation by reference in the information statement to be distributed in connection with the Company Merger (as amended or supplemented, the "Information Statement") or the related filing on Schedule 13E-3 (as amended or supplemented, the "Schedule 13E-3") or the notice to be provided to the Company's stockholders pursuant to Section 14(f) of the Exchange Act (as amended or supplemented, the "Section 14(f) Notice") or the registration statement on Form S-4 under the Securities Act for the purpose of registering the shares of Laser Common Stock to be issued in the Company Merger (as amended or supplemented, the "Registration Statement") will, in the case of the Registration Statement, at the time it becomes effective and at the Company Effective Time, contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, or, in the case of the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3, the Section 14(f) Notice, at the time of the mailing thereof and, in the case of the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3 at the Company Effective Time, contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary in order to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading. Section 4.11 Compliance with Applicable Law. Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, the Company and its subsidiaries have received such certificates, permits, licenses, franchises, consents, approvals, orders, authorizations and clearances from appropriate Governmental Entities (the "Company Licenses") as are necessary to own or lease and operate their respective properties and to conduct their respective businesses substantially in the manner described in the Company SEC Reports and as currently owned or leased and conducted, and all such Company Licenses are valid and in full force and effect, except for any such certificates, permits, licenses, franchises, consents, approvals, orders, authorizations and clearances which the failure to have or to be in full force and effect would not reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a Company Material Adverse Effect. Except as disclosed in Filed Company SEC Reports, the Company and the Company's subsidiaries are in compliance with their respective obligations under the Company Licenses, with only such exceptions as, individually or in the aggregate, would not reasonably be expected to have a Company Material Adverse Effect. Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, the Company and its subsidiaries are in compliance with all judgments, orders, decrees, statutes, Laws, ordinances, rules and regulations of any Governmental Entity applicable to them, except for such noncompliance which individually or in the aggregate would not have a Company Material Adverse Effect.

Section 4.12 Labor Matters. Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, neither the Company nor any of the Company's subsidiaries has any labor contracts, collective bargaining agreements or material employment or consulting agreements with any persons employed by or otherwise performing services primarily for the Company or any of the Company's subsidiaries (the "Company Business Personnel") or any representative of any Company Business Personnel. Except as set forth in the Filed Company SEC Reports, neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries has engaged in any unfair labor practice with respect to Company Business Personnel, and there is no unfair labor practice complaint pending against the Company or any of its subsidiaries with respect to Company Business Personnel which, in either such case, would reasonably be expected to have, individually or in the aggregate, a Company Material Adverse Effect. employee fringe benefit plan or arrangement maintained, contributed to or required to be maintained or contributed to by the Company or any of its subsidiaries or any other person or entity that, together with the Company, is or was treated as a single employer under Section 414(b), (c), (m) or (o) of the Code (each, a "Commonly Controlled Entity") which is currently in effect for the benefit of any current or former directors, officers, employees or independent contractors of the Company or any of its subsidiaries (collectively, the "Company Plans"). The Company has delivered to Laser or will deliver to Laser prior to the Company Effective Time true, complete and correct copies of (x) the two most recent annual reports on Form 5500 filed with the Internal Revenue Service with respect to each Company Plan (if any such report was required), (y) the most recent summary plan description for each Company Plan for which such summary plan description is required and (z) each currently effective trust agreement, insurance or group annuity contract and each other material funding or financing arrangement relating to any Company Plan.

(b) No Commonly Controlled Entity has incurred any liability under Title IV of ERISA, other than for contributions not yet due to a defined benefit pension plan subject to Title IV of ERISA and other than for the payment of premiums to the PBGC not yet due, and no condition exists that presents a material risk of incurring any such liability; which liability, to the extent currently due, has not been fully paid as of the date hereof and would individually or in the aggregate be reasonably likely to result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(c) Except as set forth in Company SEC reports or in Section 4.13 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, neither the Company nor any of its subsidiaries has any obligation to provide any welfare benefits to employees or former employees following termination of employment except (i) for benefits the cost of which is borne entirely by the employee or former employee, (ii) as required under Section 4980 of the Code or other applicable law or (iii) obligations to provide such benefits to Company employees employed in non-U.S. jurisdictions.

(d) No Commonly Controlled Entity has engaged in a transaction described in Section 4069 of ERISA that could subject the Company or any of its subsidiaries or Laser to liability at any time after the date hereof, which liability would be reasonably likely to result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(e) No Commonly Controlled Entity has withdrawn from any multiemployer plan where such withdrawal has resulted in any actual or potential "withdrawal liability" (as defined in Section 4201 of ERISA) that has not been fully paid, which liability would be reasonably likely to result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(f) Except as set forth in Section 4.13 of the Company Disclosure Schedule or as specifically provided in this Agreement, the transactions contemplated by this Agreement will not, either alone or in connection with another event, cause there to be paid or become payable any additional benefits or any acceleration of the time of payment or vesting of any benefits under any Company Plan or under any employment, severance, termination or compensation agreement to which the Company is a party as of the Company Effective Time.

(a) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, the Company and its subsidiaries are in compliance with all applicable Environmental Laws, which compliance includes the possession of permits and governmental authorizations required under applicable Environmental Laws ("Environmental Permits") and compliance with the terms and conditions thereof, except where such non-compliance would not result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(b) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, there are no Environmental Claims pending or, to the knowledge of the Company, threatened against the Company or any of its subsidiaries that would reasonably be expected to result in a Company Material Adverse Effect.

(c) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, the properties presently or to the knowledge of the Company formerly owned, leased or operated by the Company or its subsidiaries (including groundwater under the properties) (the "Properties") do not contain any Hazardous Substance other than as permitted under applicable Environmental Law; provided, however, that with respect to Properties formerly owned, leased or operated by the Company or its subsidiaries, such representation is limited to the period prior to the disposition of such Properties by the Company or its subsidiaries.

(d) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, to the knowledge of the Company, no Hazardous Substance has been disposed of or transported from any of the Properties during the time any such Property was owned, leased or operated by the Company or any of its subsidiaries, other than as permitted under applicable Environmental Law and in effect at the time of such disposal or transportation.

(e) Except as disclosed in the Filed Company SEC Reports, to the knowledge of the Company, the Company and its subsidiaries have not become obligated, whether by operation of Law or through contractual agreement, to indemnify any other person or otherwise to assume liability for any claim brought pursuant to any Environmental Law which could reasonably be expected to have a Company Material Adverse Effect.

Section 4.15 Intellectual Property. The Company has previously delivered to Laser a list, which, to the knowledge of the Company, is true and correct as of the date hereof in all material respects, of all material issued patents and registered trademarks of the Company. Except as set forth in Section 4.15 of the Company Disclosure Schedule, the Company and its subsidiaries own or have sufficient rights to use all material Intellectual Property used in connection with the business of the Company and its subsidiaries as currently conducted. As used in this Section 4.15, the term "material," when applied to Intellectual Property, means that such Intellectual Property is used in a significant manner to conduct the business of the Company and its subsidiaries as it is currently conducted.

Section 4.17 Opinion of Financial Advisor. The Board of Directors of the Company has received the opinion of Credit Suisse First Boston, dated the date hereof to the effect that the Per Share Merger Consideration is fair to the holders of shares of Company Common Stock (other than Worldwide) from a financial point of view.

Section 4.18 Takeover Statute. The Board of Directors of the Company has approved the Holdings Merger solely for the purpose of rendering inapplicable, and such approval is sufficient to render inapplicable, to the Company Merger and the other transactions contemplated by this Agreement the provisions of Section 203 of the DGCL. To the best of the Company's knowledge, no other state takeover statute or similar statute or regulation applies or purports to apply to the Company Merger, this Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated hereby, and no provision of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of the Company or certificates of incorporation or by-laws (or comparable organizational documents) of any subsidiary of the Company would, directly or indirectly, restrict or impair the ability of Laser to vote, or otherwise to exercise the rights of a stockholder with respect to, shares of capital stock of the Company or any of its subsidiaries that may be acquired or controlled by Laser.

Section 4.19 Brokers. No broker, investment banker or other person, other than Credit Suisse First Boston, the fees and expenses of which will be paid by the Company (as reflected in an agreement between Credit Suisse First Boston and the Company, a copy of which has been furnished to Laser), is entitled to any broker's, finder's or other similar fee or commission in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement based upon arrangements made by or on behalf of the Company.

Section 5.2 Capitalization. The authorized capital stock of Laser consists of 200,000,000 shares of Laser Common Stock, and 2,000,000 shares of Laser Preferred Stock. As of such date, 4,568,959 shares of Laser Common Stock were held as treasury shares. All of the issued and outstanding shares of Laser Common Stock are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. All of the shares of Laser Common Stock issuable as consideration in the Company Merger at the Company Effective Time in accordance with this Agreement will be, when so issued, duly authorized, validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. As of such date, except as set forth above, there are no shares of capital stock of Laser issued or outstanding or, as of such date or as of the date hereof, except as set forth above, any options, warrants, subscriptions, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Laser to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities, or the capital stock or securities of Laser. There are no notes, bonds, debentures or other indebtedness of Laser having the right to vote (or convertible into or exchangeable for securities having the right to vote) on any matters upon which stockholders of Laser may vote.

Section 5.3 Merger Sub. Merger Sub is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the Laws of the State of Delaware. Merger Sub is a newly incorporated company formed solely for purposes of consummating the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and has engaged in no activity other than as provided in, or contemplated by, this Agreement. The authorized capital stock of Merger Sub consists of 1,000 shares of Merger Sub Common Stock, all of which are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and are owned by Laser. Except as set forth above there are no shares of capital stock of Merger Sub issued or outstanding or any options, warrants, subscription, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Merger Sub to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities.

Section 5.4 Authority Relative to this Agreement. Each of Laser and Merger Sub has the corporate power and authority to enter into this Agreement and to perform its obligations hereunder and to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby. The execution and delivery of this Agreement by Laser and Merger Sub and the consummation by Laser and Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated hereby have been duly authorized by the Boards of Directors of Laser and Merger Sub, and no other corporate action or proceedings on the part of Laser or Merger Sub (including any action on the part of its stockholders) is necessary to authorize this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby. This Agreement has been duly executed and delivered by Laser and Merger Sub and, assuming it is a valid and binding obligation of the Company, constitutes a valid and binding agreement of Laser and Merger Sub, enforceable against Laser and Merger Sub in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or similar Laws now or hereafter in effect relating to creditors' rights generally and other forms of Section 5.5 Consents and Approvals; No Violations. Except for applicable requirements of the HSR Act, the Securities Act, the Exchange Act, Competition Laws, and state securities or blue sky Laws, and the filing of the Certificate of Merger in such form as required by, and executed in accordance with the relevant provisions of, the DGCL, no filing with, and no permit, authorization, consent or approval of, any governmental or regulatory authority is necessary for the consummation by Laser or Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, except for such filings, permits, authorizations, consents or approvals the failure of which to be made or obtained would not (i) individually or in the aggregate have a Laser Material Adverse Effect or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. Neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by Laser or Merger Sub nor the consummation by Laser or Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by Laser with any of the provisions hereof, will (a) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of Laser or Merger Sub; (b) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any material (as defined for purposes of Form 10-K) Contract to which Laser, Merger Sub or any of their subsidiaries is a party or by which any of them or any of their properties or assets may be bound; or (c) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to Laser, Merger Sub, any of their subsidiaries or any of their properties or assets, except, in the case of clauses (b) and (c), for violations, breaches or defaults which would not individually or in the aggregate have a Laser Material Adverse Effect.

Section 5.6 Reports and Financial Statements.

As of their respective dates, the Laser SEC Reports complied in all material respects with the requirements of the Securities Act or the Exchange Act, as the case may be, and the applicable rules and regulations promulgated thereunder. Section 5.7 Absence of Certain Changes or Events. Except as set forth in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, since the Laser Balance Sheet Date, the business of Laser and its subsidiaries has been conducted only in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice, and there has not been any event, change or development which individually or in the aggregate has had or would reasonably be expected to have a Laser Material Adverse Effect or would impair or delay the ability of Laser to consummate the transactions contemplated by, or to satisfy its obligations under, this Agreement.

Section 5.8 Litigation. Except as disclosed in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, there is no suit, action, proceeding or investigation pending or, to the knowledge of Laser, threatened against or affecting Laser or any of its subsidiaries that individually or in the aggregate would reasonably be expected to (i) have a Laser Material Adverse Effect (taking into account any reserve therefor as of the most recent balance sheet included in the Filed Laser SEC Reports) or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, nor is there any judgment, order, decree, statute, Law, ordinance, rule or regulation of any Governmental Entity or arbitrator outstanding against Laser or any of its subsidiaries having, or which would reasonably be expected to have, any effect referred to in clause (i) or (ii) above.

Section 5.9 Information in Disclosure Documents and Registration Statement. None of the information to be supplied by Laser for inclusion or incorporation by reference in (a) the Registration Statement or (b) the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3 or the Section 14(f) Notice will, in the case of the Registration Statement, at the time it becomes effective and at the Company Effective Time contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, or, in the case of the Information Statement, the Schedule 13E-3 and the Section 14(f) Notice, at the time of the mailing thereof and, in the case of the Information Statement and the Schedule 13E-3, at the Company Effective Time, contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary in order to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading.

[2] Representatives from MAFCO apparently met with Morgan Stanley on November 6, 1997 to discuss, among other things, a potential sale of Sunbeam to MAFCO. Maher Dep. at 147:3-149:6; MS 374 at 2 (May 7, 1998 Wachtell letter).

B. Perelman Prepares to Meet Dunlap and MAFCO Does Its Own Analysis of a Sunbeam-Coleman Transaction

73. On or about December 8 and 10, 1997, MAFCO prepared its own internal analyses of the financial consequences of a merger transaction with Sunbeam. Nesbitt, an analyst by trade, was the "primary person" at MAFCO who "conducted the numerical analyses of the [Sunbeam] transaction."

c. See MS 104, 105 (Dec. 8 & 10, 1997 Sunbeam/Coleman Comparisons)

d. See Nesbitt Dep. at 25:6-26:6, 170:22-171:5

74. Nesbitt based his numerical assumptions for Coleman on information he received internally from Coleman. In addition, he turned to public sources for information about Sunbeam, like Sunbeam's Securities Exchange Commission filings and estimates created by financial analysts at Goldman Sachs, not Morgan Stanley.

a. Nesbitt Dep. at 52:9-22, 124:25-125:20, 130:9-131:16; 132:22-133:10

75. Under Nesbitt's models, the potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam would consist of an all stock deal because Perelman wanted as much Sunbeam stock as he could get. Perelman did not want cash.

76. Nesbitt, upon consultation with Maher, placed the value of Coleman somewhere along a range of $22 to $30 per share. Nesbitt did not share any of his numerical analyses of the potential transaction with Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam.

a. Nesbitt Dep. at 51:10-12, 51:17-20, 215:24-216:10

b. See MS 104, 105 (Dec. 8 & 10, 1997 Sunbeam/Coleman Comparisons)

77. On December 11, 1997, Nesbitt prepared a spreadsheet reflecting Sunbeam's third quarter 1997 performance against the prior year's third quarter and estimating Sunbeam's fourth quarter 1997 performance against the prior year's fourth quarter. Nesbitt identified several "items that jumped out" about Sunbeam's quarter and noted these concerns in a footnote. Nesbitt identified that one "concern has been international pipeline filling."

b. See MS 165 (Dec. 11, 1997 Sunbeam Quarterly Earnings Comparison)

78. Nesbitt also concluded that the "[u]ptick in [Sunbeam's] third quarter receivables supposedly relates to one half of the quarter sales being shipped in September." He testified that the impetus for his footnote about the "uptick" in receivables was his awareness that financial analysts covering Sunbeam had reported that one half of Sunbeam's sales for the entire third quarter of 1997 arose in the final month of the quarter.

a. Nesbitt Dep. at 227:3-7; 228:7-13

b. See MS 165 (Dec. 11, 1997 Sunbeam Quarterly Earnings Comparison)

79. Nesbitt circulated his December 11, 1997 analysis of Sunbeam to the "operating management team" of Coleman — including Levin — for their "judgment as to whether this was an issue or not and to follow up." The "operating guys at Coleman" never expressed that the footnotes to his December 11, 1997 analysis were of any concern to them, and he did not recall a need for further investigation by MAFCO.

a. Nesbitt Dep. at 233:15-234:5, 234:24-235:22

80. On December 12, 1997, Perelman, Maher, and Gittis met with Gordon Rich of CSFB and Levin to discuss a potential transaction with Sunbeam. There were no Morgan Stanley representatives at the meeting.

a. Maher Dep. at 187:18-25, 189:8-14

81. That same day, Coleman executives (Levin, Shapiro, and Page) gave Sunbeam representatives (Russell Kersh, David Fannin, and Peter A. Langerman) a presentation on Coleman's business and the potential "synergies that could result from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman." Morgan Stanley did not attend the meeting.

C. Perelman Does an Analysis of Dunlap's Employment Contract with Sunbeam

84. Nesbitt prepared the December 15, 1997 memorandum to gauge Dunlap's "economic incentives" and concluded that Dunlap's employment contract created "the incentive to increase the stock price" of Sunbeam. Perelman did not recall why the memo was prepared. Perelman, Gittis, and Maher agreed with Nesbitt's conclusion.

85. Gittis requested that CSFB prepare an analysis of analyst reports on Sunbeam in advance of the December 18, 1997 meeting between Perelman, Price, Gittis, and Dunlap.

a. Gittis Dep. at 89:8-15

b. Gittis Dep. at 76:9-12

89. At the December 18, 1997 meeting, Dunlap expressed to Perelman and Gittis that he wanted Sunbeam to acquire Coleman and believed that the "deal cri[ed] out to be done."

a. Gittis Dep. at 76:14-18, 79:6-10

90. Gittis informed Dunlap that MAFCO had "asked CSFB to calculate out one thing for [him], which is what price can Sunbeam pay depending upon the amount of synergies that we would agree might be available. Without us being dilutive to Sunbeam. And that is 30 bucks a share. And I have zero interest in selling for less than that."

a. Gittis Dep. at 78:4-16

91. Dunlap was visibly upset by Gittis' proposal and proceeded to shout and use scatological terms about the offer, Coleman, and Gittis. During the meeting, Dunlap told Gittis and Perelman that they didn't know what they were doing, and that he was a fabulous manager who would save Coleman. At one point, Gittis had to calm Dunlap down, warning him that he looked as if he would have a heart attack. Dunlap responded that he was fine and that it was he who would give them a heart attack. Perelman responded by laughing at Dunlap.

VII. PERELMAN AND SUNBEAM RESTART DISCUSSIONS ABOUT COLEMAN

A. Perelman Rejects Sunbeam's January 23, 1998 Offer

95. In late December, and after the meeting in Palm Beach at Perelman's mansion, Price contacted Gittis to apologize for Dunlap's behavior at Perelman's home. Price also told Gittis that Sunbeam would be willing to consider a transaction valued as high as $25 per Coleman share, but Gittis indicated that such a proposal would not be of interest to MAFCO.

a. Maher Dep. at 204:5-205:6

96. In mid to late January 1998, William Reid of Morgan Stanley called Perelman and told him that Sunbeam was still interested in a transaction with Coleman.

b. Maher Dep. at 207:18-208:6, 234:19-235:6

c. Gittis Dep. at 85:8-19

97. Perelman could not recall "anyone at either Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes having any communications with Morgan Stanley about a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction" prior to Reid's telephone call. The telephone call from Reid is the only direct conversation Perelman can recall ever having with any Morgan Stanley representative in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction before the closing of the transaction on March 30, 1998.

a. Perelman Dep. at 353:7-12; see Perelman Dep. at 94:8-95:15, 116:11-19

98. Gittis testified that Reid's call was not improper: "[I]t was perfectly appropriate for [Morgan Stanley] to call Ronald or to call me, or to have some of the younger guys call Maher. There was no problem at all with that. And they were trying to get a deal done. It is their job."

a. Gittis Dep. at 85:20-86:16

99. Perelman believed that there was more "upside" in taking Sunbeam stock rather than cash.

> Q. Did you [Gittis] ever suggest to him [Perelman] that he should not do that, that he should take cash?
> A. That is irrelevant. That is why he is richer than me. I would always take cash, but he is far more bullish than I am.
> Q. Do you remember Mr. Levin, were you ever present when Mr. Levin said words to the effect that he, Mr. Perelman, should take as cash and not stock?
> A. I don't recall that. At least, it was not in my presence.
> Q. I take it, given the 1998 markets being what they were, there was more upside in stock than in cash?
> A. Ronald certainly believed so.

a. Gittis Dep. at 127:25-128:14

100. Perelman therefore instructed his negotiators to negotiate a transaction structure with Sunbeam that provided consideration in the form of Sunbeam stock, and to seek a deal where Sunbeam stock was 100 percent of the consideration that MAFCO would receive. Indeed,

012701

Perelman would have taken 100 percent stock if he could have done so without delaying the deal.

a. Gittis Dep. at 125:25-126:6, 127:20-22, 128:11-14

b. Perelman Dep. at 363:16-18

101. On January 23, 1998, following Reid's telephone call, representatives from Morgan Stanley met with Nesbitt to discuss a potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam. At the meeting, Morgan Stanley gave Nesbitt a document (MS 80) entitled "Laser Corporation Key Assumptions." Nesbitt testified that he did not view anything in the document provided by Morgan Stanley on January 23, 1998 to be a "misrepresentation of a fact." Morgan Stanley conveyed Sunbeam's offer to purchase Coleman in exchange for Sunbeam stock. Nesbitt listened to the offer, but he had no authority to negotiate a transaction. Nobody within MAFCO had authority to negotiate a particular price for the transaction unless Perelman had approved that price.

IX. MAFCO PERFORMS VIRTUALLY NO DUE DILIGENCE OF SUNBEAM BEFORE THE EXECUTION OF THE MERGER AGREEMENT

135. With the Confidentiality Agreements in place, Sunbeam and MAFCO engaged in due diligence between February 23 to February 27, 1998, with each party represented by its own advisors. During this due diligence MAFCO had direct access to Sunbeam's management.

A. The MAFCO Due Diligence Team Is Leaderless

136. It was unclear who at MAFCO was responsible for conducting due diligence of Sunbeam. Even the most basic tasks, such as reviewing Sunbeam's financial statement for the year ending December 27, 1997, were neglected. More importantly, no one even asked for, let alone reviewed, Sunbeam's interim financial statements for January 1998, February 1998, and March 1998 prior to the Closing on March 30, 1998.

137. Engelman said MAFCO's due diligence leaders were Maher and Schwartz: "Q: [D]id you ever learn who on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes has been responsible for due diligence of Sunbeam corporation in connection with the acquisition? A: It would have been Jim Maher and to some extent Barry Schwartz."

a. Engelman Dep. at 60:4-11

138. Schwartz, however, denied that he had any responsibility for due diligence: "Q: Did you going forward from the date of January 28th have any responsibility for the due diligence on the seller's side? A: I did not participate in any of the due diligence on our side of the transaction, no." Schwartz testified that "Maher was sort of leading the change."

a. Schwartz Dep. at 141:5-10, 141:16-17

139. Gittis said Maher and Levin were responsible for due diligence: "Now, turning to the Coleman Sunbeam transaction, the negotiations, externally --was Mr. Maher, in your view, the head negotiator? A. Mr. Maher and Mr. Levin. Q. Mr. Levin on behalf of Coleman? A. Mr. Levin on behalf of the Coleman Company Inc. Mr. Maher on behalf of the various Coleman holding companies and the MacAndrews companies."

a. Gittis Dep. at 33:10-19

140. Nesbitt said it was Maher: "I think it is fair to say that Mr. Maher was responsible for coordinating the transaction generally which included due diligence."

a. Nesbitt Dep. at 479:11-14

141. But Maher denied he had responsibility for due diligence: "Q: Did you [James Maher] have overall responsibility for monitoring the due diligence? A: No."

a. Maher Dep. at 324:19-22

142. Maher, in turn, pointed the finger at Levin, Joe Page (Coleman's Chief Financial Officer), and Coleman's accountants (Ernst & Young LLP): "Q: [L]et me ask you whether there was a person on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes that had overall responsibility for this due diligence that was conducted between February 24 and February 27, 1998? A: I would say the laboring oar was, from a business standpoint, was Jerry Levin and Joe Page and their accountants [Ernst & Young]. Obviously from a legal standpoint it was Wachtell, Lipton and First Boston was involved with both the legal and financial, business due diligence."

a. Maher Dep. at 324:5-18

143. Page's testimony, however, reveals that he considered his due diligence responsibilities to be somewhat more limited:

> Q. Were you involved with or responsible for conducting any due diligence on Sunbeam prior to the acquisition?
> A. No.
> Q. Did you work with any of Coleman's outside advisors who were tasked with doing due diligence on Sunbeam?
>
> A. No.
> Q. Did you perform an evaluation of the deal for Coleman?
>
> A. No.
> Q. Do you know who, if anyone, did perform such evaluation?
> A. I don't have a direct recollection of anybody performing that that I would have known. If it would have been done, it would have been done by MacAndrews & Forbes staff.

a. Page Dep. at 100:8-24

144. Levin, the individual Maher identified as taking the "laboring oar" on due diligence, testified that his due diligence responsibilities consisted of "review[ing] Sunbeam's business plan and long term strategy" and "going to the [February 23, 1998] meeting."

a. Maher Dep. at 27:21-28:1

> 12. Due Diligence

> CSFB has had a long relationship with Coleman. It participated in the initial public offering of the Company in 1992 and several financings since then. In connection with this transaction, the CSFB team has met several times with Coleman senior management (primarily Jerry Levin, the CEO, and Joe Page, the CFO) to discuss the Company's historical and financial results.

A. Yes.

Q. Where did that discussion take place?

A. Between the conference room we were in and reaching the lobby of the Morgan Stanley building.

Q. Do you recall the discussion?

A. I recall some of it.

Q. What do you recall?

A. I voiced an opinion.

Q. What was your opinion? Who did you voice the opinion to from -- while you were traveling from the Morgan Stanley conference room to the lobby of the building?

A. The MacAndrews & Forbes people.

Q. What did you tell them?

A. That I thought the sales in that, and net income expectations of the long-range plan were quite a stretch and I did not think they were achievable.

a. Levin Dep. at 256:2-257:4

181. Levin reiterated his opinion the next morning to Perelman, Gittis, and Maher:

Q. Between the evening of February 23rd, 1998 and the conclusion of the meeting that we have been going over, discussing Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84 and the actual execution of the merger agreements, as of February 27th, 1998, did you have any discussions with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman about Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84?

MR. BIDEAU: Other than the elevator --

Q. Other than the elevator conversation, yes.

A. Probably.

Q. Did you have any specific recollection of those conversations, as you sit here today?

A. Not specific, no.

Q. Do you have any general recollection of discussions of the, of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, of --

A. That was the presentation?

Q. Yes, sir. From the conclusion of the presentation up to the signing of the merger agreements on February 27th.

A. Yes.

Q. What is your general recollection?

A. That I felt the strategic plan, as presented, was a stretch, unlikely to be achieved, but that I thought it was reasonable that they would achieve growth and earnings in line with whatever, where Wall Street was, which was considerably below the strategic plan at that point.

And I did not have any particular thoughts, one way or the other, as to whether the stock was valued high or low, as a result.

Q. Who did you have these discussions with?

A. I am sure I had them with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis and associates.

Q. Would Mr. Maher be within that group?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would Mr. Nesbitt be in that group?

A. He may or may not have been in attendance.

Q. Where did these discussions take place, if you remember?

A. They -- almost certainly took place the next morning. Assuming that was not the Friday night -- I don't -- February 23rd?

Q. It was a Monday, I believe.

A: Again I can't refer specifically to this meeting, but I do not recall anybody making those statements about Morgan Stanley.")

330. As a result of Andersen's withdrawal of its audit opinion, Sunbeam ultimately was forced to restate its financial results.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. As this Court has already determined, CPH's negligent misrepresentation claim is governed by New York law. See Aug. 11, 2004 Order, at 11.

2. Under New York law, a plaintiff cannot establish liability for negligent misrepresentation without establishing, among other things, that the challenged information was imparted in the context of a "special relationship of confidence or trust" with the defendant. See, e.g., American Protein Corp. v. AB Volvo, 844 F.2d 56, 64 (2d Cir. 1988); Dyncorp v. GTE Corp., 215 F. Supp. 2d 308, 329 (S.D.N.Y. 2002); WIT Holding Corp. v. Klein, 724 N.Y.S.2d 66, 68 (App. Div. 2001).

3. Here, CPH has not produced any evidence that the challenged information was imparted in the context of a "special relationship of confidence or trust" with Morgan Stanley, which sat across the negotiating table from CPH as the financial advisor to CPH's counterpart Sunbeam.

4. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on CPH's negligent misrepresentation claim.

5. As this Court has already determined, CPH's fraudulent misrepresentation claim is governed by New York law. See Aug. 11, 2004 Order, at 11.

6. Under settled New York law, a sophisticated plaintiff cannot establish liability for fraudulent misrepresentation with respect to the purchase of securities without establishing, among other things, that it conducted its own due diligence into the company whose securities were being purchased. See, e.g., Schlaifer Nance & Co. v. Estate of Andy Warhol, 119 F.3d 91, 98 (2d Cir. 1997); Rotterdam Ventures, Inc. v. Ernst & Young LLP, 752 N.Y.S.2d 746, 749 (App. Div. 2002); UST Private Equity Investors Fund, Inc. v. Salomon Smith Barney, 733 N.Y.S.2d 385, 386 (App. Div. 2001); Abrahami v. UPC Constr. Co., Inc., 638 N.Y.S.2d 11, 14 (App. Div. 1996).

7. Here, it is undisputed that CPH is a sophisticated plaintiff, and CPH has produced no evidence that it conducted its own due diligence into Sunbeam, despite express warnings from its own team regarding Sunbeam's financial health and the credibility of Sunbeam's financial statements.

8. In addition, under settled New York law, fraudulent misrepresentation is an intentional tort, so a party seeking to establish such a claim must establish scienter, i.e., intent to deceive. As a matter of law, a plaintiff cannot establish scienter by alleging that the defendant was motivated by ordinary economic motives, such as the desire to receive reasonable and ordinary compensation for its services. See, e.g., THC Holdings Corp. v. Chinn, No. 95 Civ. 4422, 1998 WL 50202, *9 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 6, 1998); Friedman v. Arizona World Nurseries Ltd. P'ship, 730 F. Supp. 521, 532-33 (S.D.N.Y. 1990), aff'd, 927 F.2d 595 (2d Cir. 1991); In re

Philip Servs. Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 98 Civ. 0835 2004 WL 1152501, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. May 24, 2004).

9. Here, CPH has produced no evidence that Morgan Stanley acted with scienter beyond simply alleging that Morgan Stanley was motivated by ordinary economic motives, such as the desire to receive reasonable and ordinary compensation for its services.

10. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on CPH's fraudulent misrepresentation claim.

11. Under settled New York law, a plaintiff cannot establish liability for aiding and abetting fraud without establishing, among other things, that the defendant (1) had actual knowledge of the underlying fraud, and (2) provided substantial assistance in the commission of that fraud. See, e.g., Stolow v. Greg Manning Auctions Inc., 258 F. Supp. 2d 236, 250 (S.D.N.Y. 2003); Cromer Fin. Ltd. v. Berger, 137 F. Supp. 2d 452, 470 (S.D.N.Y. 2001), aff'd mem., 2003 WL 22717684 (2d Cir. Nov. 17, 2003); Filler v. Hanvit Bank, 339 F. Supp. 2d 553, 557 (S.D.N.Y. 2004); see also Wassall v. Payne, 682 So. 2d 678, 681 (Fla. 1st DCA 1996); Allerton v. State Dep't of Ins., 635 So. 2d 36, 38 (Fla. 1st DCA 1994).

12. Here, CPH has not produced any evidence that Morgan Stanley had actual knowledge of the underlying Sunbeam fraud (which involving Sunbeam's accounting), or provided substantial assistance in the commission of that fraud. To the contrary, Morgan Stanley itself was a victim of that fraud, and lost hundreds of millions of dollars in connection with Sunbeam.

13. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on CPH's aiding and abetting claim.

012762

14. Under New York law, however, a plaintiff cannot establish liability for conspiracy to defraud without establishing, among other things, that the defendant actually entered into an agreement with another to commit fraud. See, e.g., Gabriel Capital, L.P. v. NatWest Fin., Inc., 94 F. Supp. 2d 491, 511 (S.D.N.Y. 2000); see also Raimi v. Furlong, 702 So. 2d 1273, 1284 (Fla. 3d DCA 1997).

15. Here, CPH has not produced any evidence that Morgan Stanley entered into an actual agreement with Sunbeam to commit fraud.

16. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on CPH's conspiracy claim.

accomplishments at Sunbeam?

A. I thought there was a possibility that he was, yes.

Q. And that was your belief in the first quarter of 1998, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Bornstein, let me show you what we've previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 17. It's a document on Arthur Andersen stationery bearing Bates numbers MS375 through 381.

If you could take a moment, my first question is going to be whether you can identify that document for me.

A. Yeah, this is a copy of a, a copy of the comfort letter.

Q. And it's a letter dated March 19, 1998, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it's from Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc.?

A. Yes.

Q. And it's signed Arthur Andersen LLP, correct?

A. Yes. I believe it's my handwriting.

Q. You believe you signed the name Arthur Andersen LLP to the letter?

A. This was signed about five o'clock in the morning on the 19th, I believe, the night of the pricing of the bonds, the following subsequent a.m.

Q. So that process I think from prior testimony started on the 19th, if it was 5:00 a.m., it would have been 5:00 a.m. on the 20th?

A. 20th, I believe.

Q. Even though the letter is dated the 19th, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you authorized to sign this letter on behalf of Morgan Stanley -- excuse me, I misspoke.

Were you authorized to sign this letter on behalf of Arthur Andersen?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And who provided you with that authorization?

A. Phil Harlow.

Q. And Mr. Harlow was the engagement partner, as you've previously testified, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the letter is addressed to Morgan Stanley.

Do you know if the letter was delivered to Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes, it was.

A. No.

Q. Did anybody ever instruct you to channel all information for Coleman (Parent) Holdings through Morgan Stanley?

A. No.

Q. Do you have a recollection of any inquiry that you received that you understood to be made on behalf of Coleman (Parent) Holdings?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any due diligence that was performed by Coleman (Parent) Holdings or its representatives as part of the acquisition transaction?

A. No.

Q. You were not part of any in-person meetings with Coleman (Parent) Holdings or any of its representatives for that purpose?

A. No.

Q. Any telephone conferences?

A. No.

Q. Were you ever asked to participate in an accounting due diligence call with Coleman (Parent) Holdings like the one that Morgan Stanley had conducted that you participated in?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any dealings with CSFB during the first quarter of 1998?

A. No.

Q. Did you receive any inquiries from CSFB during the first quarter of 1998 about Sunbeam or its financial performance?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any inquiries that Andersen received, even if you were not personally involved, from anybody representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Are you aware of any inquiries from Coleman (Parent) Holdings on the subject of Sunbeam's bill and hold sales?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any inquiries from anyone representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings about the bill and hold disclosures that were in Sunbeam's 1997 10K?

A. No.

A. No.

Q. Or Sunbeam's Early Buy program?

A. No.

Q. Or Sunbeam's quarter-to-date sales in the first quarter of 1998?

A. No.

Q. At any point in time?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any inquiries from anyone representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings after the March 19, 1998, press release about Sunbeam's first quarter performance?

A. Can you repeat the question?

(Thereupon, a portion of the record was read by the reporter.)

THE WITNESS: No, not until after Mr. Dunlap was terminated.

BY MR. CLARE:

Q. When you say not until after Mr. Dunlap was terminated, it was at that point that a new management team was installed?

A. Yes.

Q. And then inquiries were made by the new management team?

A. Yes.

Q. But limiting ourselves to the first quarter of 1998 and inquiries that may have been received from Coleman (Parent) Holdings during the first quarter of 1998, are you aware from any source of any inquiries that were made by Coleman (Parent) Holdings or any of its representatives after the March 19, '98 press release?

A. No.

Q. So no inquiries between March 19, 1998, and the end of the first quarter?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

THE WITNESS: Not that I'm aware of, no.

BY MR. CLARE:

Q. Are you aware that on April 3rd, 1998, Sunbeam announced that its first quarter 1998 sales were, had fallen short of the first quarter 1997? Were you generally aware of that?

A. I believe it was the second press release. I don't remember specifically what it said.

Q. But you're aware that shortly after the first quarter, Sunbeam issued a press release like the one I just described?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you aware of any inquiries from Coleman (Parent) Holdings or anyone representing Coleman(Parent)Holdings after that April 3rd, 1998 press release?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I want to make sure we're clear here. You've been focusing on inquiries of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Andersen. Are you broadening the question now?

MR. CLARE: No. Any inquiries that Mr. Bornstein is aware of, made to anyone, but specifically within his knowledge.

MR. MARKOWSKI: So an inquiry to anyone, not specifically to Arthur Andersen?

MR. CLARE: Correct.

THE WITNESS: I'm not aware of anything.

BY MR. CLARE:

Q. In 1998, the first quarter, as you prepared to assist Sunbeam with these acquisition transactions, did you have an expectation that Coleman or its corporate parent might want it ask questions of Arthur Andersen?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

THE WITNESS: I thought it was possible, yes.

BY MR. CLARE:

Q. So that thought did occur to you back in the first quarter of 1998?

A. Yes.

Q. And you testified that you're not aware of any inquiries that were made to Andersen and certainly not to you from Coleman (Parent) Holdings or its corporate parent?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012780

A. Yes.

Q. In the first quarter of 1998, did you, were you surprised by the lack of inquiry from Coleman (Parent) Holdings or its corporate parent?

A. I'd say yes.

Q. And did you form an opinion about the quality of due diligence done by Coleman (Parent) Holdings on Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection, lack of foundation.

THE WITNESS: I wasn't aware of any that they did, so if you want to repeat the question, I don't know if I answered it.

BY MR. CLARE:

Q. Sure. You were surprised that they didn't do any due diligence, to your knowledge?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question. Mischaracterizes his answer.

MS. PAULE-CARRES: Let me rephrase the question.

BY MS. PAULE-CARRES:

Q. Are you familiar with the role of an independent auditor?

A. I am.

Q. Can you please explain what that is.

A. The role of an independent auditor is as an audit -- as an auditing firm to fact check the financial statements and results of a company.

Q. Was Morgan Stanley an independent auditor?

A. No, it was not.

Q. Is due diligence the same as performing an audit of the financial numbers?

A. It is not.

Q. Do you know whether publicly traded companies -- do you know whether Sunbeam had an independent auditor reviewing its financials?

A. I wasn't aware with respect to the Sunbeam transaction whether or not an independent auditor had been hired. It was my assumption that Sunbeam had an auditor, as all public companies do -- I believe are required to have.

Q. And do you recall providing testimony regarding the syndication of the loan -- of the loan to Sunbeam?

A. Only that I didn't recall the syndication, yes.

Q. In general, in your experience at Morgan Stanley, does Morgan Stanley syndicate 100 percent of a loan?

A. In my experience, Morgan Stanley never syndicated 100 percent of a syndicated loan, primarily for the reason that no lending institution would partake in a loan that was fully syndicated out. As a general matter, participating lenders want to know that the lead underwriter has a holding portion of the loan and --

MS. PAULE-CARRES: Thank you. I have no further questions.

A. -- that was our practice.

auditors to comment on the attainability of projections?

A. To the extent that synergies, "synergies" as an original term, would be part of projections, we would ask them their view on that as a general matter.

Q. Do you understand auditors to have different expertise than investment bankers?

A. Yes.

Q. And how would you contrast those areas of expertise?

A. Auditors check facts and investment bankers in general assess markets.

Q. When you say "assess markets," what do you mean by that?

A. The appetite of certain investors to invest in certain securities.

Q. And so that involves a read of the current situation and an assessment of the future likely situation.

Is that fair to say?

A. Repeat the question.

Q. Sure. It was a bad question. Let me strike it and give you another one.

What I'm trying to understand is your

A Again, I don't remember specifics, but my gut reaction is that it was somewhere in like the high 20's or low 30's; is that right? You have the facts.

Q It is lower. It is much higher than that.

11:14 Did you share your surprise at both the acquisition and the price of the acquisition with anyone at the Coleman Company?

A Yes.

Q With whom?

11:14 A Joe Page.

Q And what did you say to Mr. Page on this subject matter?

A I don't recall the specifics of the conversation, but the context of it was that it was 11:15 surprising it was selling so quickly and surprising it was selling for what appeared to be such a high premium.

Q What did, if anything, did Mr. Page say in response to your surprise?

A I believe he concurred.

11:15 Q He was surprised?

A Yes.

Q On both points?

A Yes.

Q That is, both the timing and the price?

11:15 A Yes.

Q Now, this document reflects combined data for 1996 and 1997; right, as well as other periods?

A Correct.

Q So let's turn to the highlights of Coleman's financial data on page 13 of the Form 10-K for 1997. Tell me when you are there again.

A I am there.

Q All right. Just want to ask you a couple questions about what the situation was when you arrived on June of 1997.

According to the document that you signed and filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, M.S. 251, Coleman had a net loss in 1996 of $4,893,000; is that right?

A Yes.

Q And that was in contrast to a profit of $39,280,000 in 1995; right?

A Correct.

Q Now, if I understood you correctly, you were one of the people who were brought in along with Mr. Levin to assist in a turnaround of the company, that is, the Coleman Company; right?

A Correct.

Q And now, as part of your job to turn around Coleman, what specific tasks were assigned to you as

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

EXHIBIT 12789

Q I hope so.
A It is a feature.
Q Now, did you have any specific role in creating the turnaround or restructuring plan for the Coleman Company?
A Just supporting the business units, it was a business plan.
Q Who was in charge of the Coleman -- at the Coleman Company when you arrived in June of 1997 for the 11:25 business restructuring plan for the Coleman Company?
A Jerry Levin.
Q And Mr. Levin, was it his charge, as you understood it, that he was to turn around the company and reverse the type of results that the company had in 11:25 1996 losing almost $42 million?
A It was his objective to make it a profitable and sustainable, solid business.
Q Now, as I read page 13, the selected financial data, which is in Morgan Stanley 251, for 1997, the 11:26 company, that is, the Coleman Company, lost $2,536,000; correct?
A Correct.
Q And if I -- looking down further to balance sheet data, do you see the heading Long Term Debt?
11:26 A Yes.

12790

Q Now, if I look at -- am I reading this correctly, in 1993, Coleman's long term debt was only $168,858,000; is that correct?

A Correct.

11:26 Q By 1997, Coleman's long term debt had swollen -- strike swollen. Increased to $477,799,000; is that correct?

A The debt had increased, as had other numbers in the business at that point.

11:27 Q Well, let me look at -- what is stockholders equity under balance sheet data, what does that mean?

A It is the source of the assets that came from stockholders or the interest of stockholders.

Q Well, am I correct that the total interest of 11:27 stockholders, that had increased from $228,104,000 in 1993 to $240,469,000 in 1997?

A Correct.

Q Now, when you went through this restructuring of the Coleman Company while you were there in 1997 and 11:28 up -- well, withdrawn.

Did the restructuring, was it ongoing at the time of the acquisition by Sunbeam in March of 1998?

A Yes.

Q So it was a work in progress at the Coleman

11:28 Company; right?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

underlying fundamentals, such as enhancing a product offering, building better relationships with the channel, building more success with the channel, reducing costs, improving systems, front to back building a better business.

11:43

Q You know, from front to back, how much longer did you expect the restructuring to take, assuming there had not been a merger between Coleman and Sunbeam?

A When I was hired, I was told the expectation was approximately five years, really, no less than three, and potentially longer, but I had set my expectations around a horizon of approximately five years.

11:43

Q And the acquisition was announced approximately eight months after you joined the company, if you joined on June 30, 1997; right?

A That's right.

MR. BEMIS: If you could set aside Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251.

11:43

THE WITNESS: Is this a good time for a break?

MR. BEMIS: It sure is, ma'am. You are very gracious to go as long as you did. Ten minutes, is that enough for you?

When were you first admitted to practice in New York?

A. I believe it was 1971.

Q. And have you been continuously licensed to practice in New York since 1971?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I've done a little bit of background checking on you just to speed things along. And I want to ask you a couple of questions about your background before we get to some more substantive matters.

When you graduated from law school and passed the bar exam, did you go to work for a law firm?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes, sir.
Q. Which one?
A. Cravath, Swaine & Moore.
Q. And how long were you with Cravath?
A. Until January 1, 1977.
Q. Then did you go to Skadden, Arps?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. How long -- what years were you there?
A. Until January 1, 1987.
Q. Did you have an area of practice that you specialized in as an associate at Cravath?
A. Cravath has a rotation system. So as an associate, I worked in, as I recall, three different areas.
Q. What were the areas that you worked in at Cravath?
A. My first rotation was what I would call general corporate work, representing public companies mostly and doing underwritings.
My second rotation was for another corporate partner who did mostly company work rather than -- and deals rather than public offerings.
And my third rotation was for a

A. That's correct.

Q. When you left there, were you a partner?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you say you buy and sell companies, would this be in the nature of doing merger and acquisition transactions as you described in your legal practice?

A. In some sense.

Q. And has that been the business, as you've just described it for us, of MacAndrews & Forbes Holding since you went to work there in 1987?

If it was only about having enough money to live, he would have stopped a long time ago. But this is what we do. We do deals, big deals, little deals, deals."

Q. You have to answer yes or no?

A. Okay.

Q. Now, there were at least two meetings of the board of directors in February of '98 of Coleman Company Inc. Do you recall that?

A. Yes.

A. Do you mean the entire board sitting en masse?

Q. Yes, the board of directors.

A. Then I would have to say that was probably this meeting.

Q. Did you know about it before this meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you first learn of a potential transaction whereby the Coleman company would be merged with Sunbeam?

At the February 25th meeting of the board of directors of the Coleman Company, Inc., were there any presentations at that meeting by investment bankers?

A. I recall that Credit Suisse First Boston had a book, a handout which would have been typical.

Q. Typical of what?

A. Any deal.

Q. That the investment bankers would prepare some type of handout for the board?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did -- was anything handed out at the board of directors meeting on February 25th that had been prepared by Morgan Stanley?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Was there any representative of

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Was the February 25th board meeting the first time that the independent members of the board of directors were told of a potential transaction between Sunbeam and the Coleman Company?

A. The same answer that I gave you before.

Q. You don't know?

A. That there was a chronology floating around that was -- prepared more contemporaneously, that would have more accurate information than my recollection.

Q. And, again, you did see this chronology during your deposition preparation?

A. Again, I saw a chronology. The one that you handed me did not look familiar to me.

A. No.

Q. Okay. You can hand that back to me.

Do you recall what this chronology looked like at all; how many pages for example? Did it have a heading on it or anything at all?

A. I don't recall a heading. It had smaller type. And it was in a different -- it didn't have a letter. Maybe it's the same one as you showed me, but without the letter.

Q. Without the letter.

Let me go forward now to the second board meeting at which we, I think, placed it February 27, 1998. Do you recall that meeting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley attend the meeting?

Q. Were there any documents handed out to the directors from Morgan Stanley?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did the board of directors vote unanimously for the transaction?

A. That's correct.

Q. As of at least December 31, 1997, the amount of that outstanding debt, according to the certified financial statements, is 980,000,447 -- excuse me, $980,000,447; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. In addition to the assumed debt, whatever the final figure was as of the date of the closing on March 30th of 1998 -- you would agree with me that was the date of the closing, March 30, 1998?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any, to your knowledge, material adjustment upward or downward in the amount of CLN Holdings Inc.'s consolidated debt as reflected on the financial statements?

Q. So in connection --
A. My only hesitation by the way is whether it was called E&Y in those days or some other name.
Q. Fair enough.
In connection with the merger transaction, the Coleman Company and CLN Holdings investment banking advice from Credit Suisse First Boston; is that right?
A. Yeah.
Q. And it had legal advice from the Wachtell, Lipton firm, correct?
A. Correct, yeah.
Q. And it had access from an accounting standpoint to its auditors Ernst & Young, correct?
A. Certainly.
Q. And Ernst & Young had been the auditors for the Coleman Company for a number of years preceding the closing of the merger agreement on March 30, 1998, correct?
A. I don't think we changed auditors. I think that's correct.
Q. After the merger -- after the merger agreements were signed, and up to the -- which is -- we'll use February 28, 1998 and up through the closing on March 30th, did you ever have any communications with anyone about -- let me withdraw the question and start over again.

Between the date of the signing of the merger agreements, which are in the record as MS 93 and MS 117, and the date of the closing, which the first agreement is March 30, 1998, did you have any face-to-face meetings with anyone at Morgan Stanley?

A. I don't think so.

Q. How about after the closing on March 30, 1998 and say up to July 31, 1998, did you have any meetings with anyone from Morgan Stanley?

A. With regards to the Coleman transaction?

Q. Yes, sir. Not just a casual meeting some place. I realize you may have run into them on the street in your business or --

A. Or they may have pitched us on something.

Q. Let's focus on the Coleman transaction.

A. I don't believe so.

that's an assumption. And I did see that prosecutes release.

Q. Can we refer to that as the March 19th press release going forward just for simplicity?

A. We can refer to it anything you like.

Q. I'd like to do it that way, so that's what we'll do.

Other than the March 19th press release, did you see anything -- strike that. Did you receive indirectly from any other source documents that you associated with Morgan Stanley?

A. Not that I can recall.

Q. Let me ask you the same questions about the correspondence from Morgan Stanley.

After the signing of the merger agreements dated as of February 28, 1998 and the closing on March 30th, did you receive any correspondence from anyone from Morgan Stanley concerning the Sunbeam transaction?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. After the closing on March 30, 1998, and through, say, July 1st of 1998, did you receive any correspondence from anyone from

At any time between the approval of the merger agreements, which were dated as of February 28, 1998, and the closing on March 30th, did you have any face-to-face meetings or conference calls for example with anyone from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding about the Coleman acquisition?

A. I didn't have any contact with respect to the Coleman deal with anybody from Morgan Stanley or any related entity about this deal that I can recall any of this time.

Q. And "any of this time frame," that would be, say, February 27th through the date I asked you earlier, which would be July 8th?

A. Correct.

Q. Before the signing of the document, as of February 20, 1998 do you remember having any conversations with anyone from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding? And in that I will include telephone conferences, electronic conferences, anything of that nature.

A. I'd answer that by saying I don't recall having any contact with anyone from Morgan Stanley. I have no idea what Morgan Stanley Senior Funding is. With respect to Coleman.

MS 36m which is what I started to do when we got distracted.

MR. BEMIS: Miss Reporter, that was previously marked. And I think that was Mr. Slovin's deposition.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Do you have MS 36 in front of you?

A. Sure.

Q. Tell me when you're done looking at it, and I'll just have a couple of questions for you.

A. Yeah. I'm reading it.

Q. Okay.

Did you see a copy of this article from The New York Times dated March 20, 1998?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall, even if you didn't see this article, that the price of the Sunbeam common stock did fall in trading 9.4 percent following the March 19th press release?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And, now, going back to MS 93, which is the merger agreement, I think we previously established that part of the consideration that the MacAndrews group was going to receive was talking about -- concerning going back to Sunbeam and asking for an adjustment in the price based on the drop of the price of the stock?

A. I don't think I was at the firm during those two weeks.

Q. So you answer is you're not aware of any such conversation?

A. Correct.

Q. In the Coleman/Sunbeam merger, did you know that Sunbeam was raising some of the money that it needed to complete the acquisition through a zero coupon debenture offering that was being underwritten by Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. And I showed you earlier the offering memorandum which is -- and I'll show it to you one more time, MS 166. Did you tell me that you had not seen the offering memorandum?

A. That's correct.

Q. In connection with an underwriting of this size, which is at least on its face $2,014,000,00, that's face value not issue price because these were issued discount, would it be in your experience as both an attorney and as the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies, for the underwriter to obtain from the auditors of Sunbeam a comfort letter?

A. Yes.

Q. And would it be customary in your experience as both an attorney and as the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies, for Sunbeam to direct its auditors to provide such a comfort letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Would it be in your experience as a lawyer and as the investment banker in-house for Mr. Perelman's companies for Morgan Stanley to request a comfort letter at the time not only of purchasing, in this case the debentures, but the actual effective date if you will of the offering memoranda, a bring down letter?

A. Yes.

Q. And in your experience both as a lawyer and as the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies, would it be your judgment that the reason that one would obtain such a comfort letter would be for the auditors to establish at least in part their due diligence defense under Section 11 of the 1933 Securities Act?

MR. MARMER: Just a moment. May I have the question read back.

(Record read.)

MR. BEMIS: Thank you for having it reread because I misspoke. Let me do it again.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Would it be your experience, sir, both as an attorney and as the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's company that the reason the underwriter, here Morgan Stanley, would obtain a comfort letter from Sunbeam's auditors, here Arthur Andersen, would be for Morgan Stanley to establish a due diligence defense under Section 11 of the 1933 Federal Securities Act?

A. No.

Q. What would it be for?

A. They call it a cold comfort letter because it does not act as a defense in its entirety from liability for failure to find things you should have otherwise known.

Q. Without quarreling with you --

A. I mean, there are all kinds of public policy arguments I used to hear when I was a young lawyer, but you probably know this better than I do.

Q. Without quarreling with you whether it's an absolute or nonabsolute defense because I wasn't trying to suggest one way or the other, would it be your judgment that an underwriter in a case such as this Morgan Stanley, underwriting zero coupon debentures issued by Sunbeam, that the underwriter would seek to obtain a comfort letter from, in this case Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen, to attempt to establish to whatever degree is legally permissible a due diligence defense under Section 11 of the 1933 Securities Act?

A. You're tying it to Section 11. I think that underwriters ask for a due diligence letter, for a cold comfort letter from the accountants in a prudent exercise of their due diligence, without giving you a legal conclusion as to the legal reasons they ask for.

Q. Do you know why comfort letters refer to the underwriter's obligations and duties under the 1933 Act when they write such comfort letters?

A. Because the underwriters have such

012824 duties.

Q. Under the '33 Act?

A. Under the '33 Act and case law, yes.

Q. And Section 11 of the '33 Act?

A. Section 11, Section 10 (b) (5), Section 7, Section 5. Do you want me to continue? Section 3.

Q. Let me show you -- did you -- strike that.

To your knowledge, did anyone at the MacAndrews group in connection with the Sunbeam/ Coleman transaction request a copy of the -- let me withdraw the question.

To your knowledge, did anyone in the MacAndrews group make inquiry of Sunbeam whether or not Arthur Anderson had provided Morgan Stanley with a comfort letter in connection with the underwriting of the zero coupon debentures?

A. I personally have no knowledge.

Q. Do you know whether anyone from the MacAndrews group in connection with the Sunbeam/ Coleman transaction asked Morgan Stanley as opposed to Sunbeam whether Morgan Stanley had received a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen in connection with the underwriting of the two billion 14 million face amount of zero coupon debentures that we've been discussing?

A. I was not personally working on it, so I have no idea.

Q. Even if you weren't personally working on it, did you ever hear of such a thing?

A. In connection with the Sunbeam deal, no.

Q. Did you ever hear, and again in chitchat or when you were discussing things on the telephone, if you happened to be skiing or what have you during this period of March 19th, whether anyone in the MacAndrews group such as Mr. Maher, Mr. Perelman or Nesbitt or Gittis, whomever was involved in the transaction, asked Arthur Andersen whether they had provided a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley in connection with the underwriting of the two billion 14 million zero coupon subordinated debentures issued in connection with the Sunbeam/ Coleman merger?

A. No.

Q. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 9.

Do you have MS 9 in front of you,

012826

A. That's what it purports to be.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe it's not?

A. No.

Q. Is this letter in any way -- strike that.

In your view as a person who's done many deals and been involved in underwriting and is the in-house investment banker, if you will, for Mr. Perelman, is this letter in the customary form of comfort letters?

A. Seems to be.

Q. And in your experience, sir, are you familiar at least if not as an expert, but just in your practice with the form of comfort letters as articulated by the accounting profession?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And are they generally set forth in a statement of auditing standards?

A. Uh-huh. Yes, yes.

Q. And codified in sometimes what we refer to as the statement of auditing standards with an AU number followed there behind?

A. Correct.

Q. Have you read those standards at any time in your career?

A. Certainly.

Q. Would you agree with me, sir, that one of the matters that a comfort letter in the circumstance of this case, where there is an underwriting that is approximately 90 days after the date of the last certified financial statements would cover a negative assurance on sales from the period of the last audited financial statement to the date of the request?

A. It would be quite common. But please let me add, I am not an accountant. I never went to business school. I took accounting for lawyers and that was the extent of it. I have practiced in the area for many years, but I do not hold myself out as an expert in the matters and intricacies of accounting.

Q. If you'll look at paragraph 5 (b), please. It's on page 3.

A. I see it.

Q. That paragraph, 5 (b), would that be in your view -- I recognize you're not claiming to be an expert, but a customary paragraph of negative assurance with regard to sales for the period following the last audited period?

they had an affirmative obligation not only to the Laser people, but to the public to correct the March 19th press release, and indeed to tell the bond buyers there was something amiss. I don't know if that answers your question, but.

Remember, this is substantially worse than it was just a few days before.

Q. We'll get to the question of how substantially worse in a minute, but the focus in my next question is the notice provision, which you've been referring to under section 6.8.

My understanding is from your testimony that the MacAndrews side of the transaction, referenced by MS 93, did not receive from Laser a notice of a "laser material adverse effect"; is that correct?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And it's my understanding that to your knowledge, that no one, not withstanding from -- excuse me. Withdrawn.

Let me show you what's been marked as MS 166, which is a letter from Ernst & Young, L.L.P. to Morgan Stanley, 243.

A. That is my recollection.
Q. In your understanding, what does that mean as a board of director of the Coleman Company?
A. That what I as a Coleman shareholder was receiving for my stock was fair.
Q. Did you have any Coleman stock?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. How many shares did you have at the time of the board meeting?
A. My recollection is I had about 20,000 shares, and my kids had about 10.
Q. Following the announcement of the merger transaction, which I think the record will show is March 2nd -- I think that's right, it's March 2nd or 3rd -- did you sell your Coleman stock?
A. I sold it sometime in there, yes.

Q. -- on March 30th?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you also sell your children's shares?

A. I actually don't know that. I didn't go back to look to see -- when I was looking at the proxy that you gave me, it showed that my kids had 10,000 shares. I only remembered my 20. I would have filed a form 4, so the record would show whether or not I sold the kids shares. I just don't have any recollection whatsoever. But I would have if I knew they were there.

Q. You sold your shares before the March 19th press release?

A. Yes, sir.

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Slovin has testified that he sold 53,300 shares of his stock immediately after the announcement of the Coleman merger. Are you aware of any other inside directors selling their Coleman stock immediately after the announcement?

A. I think so.

Q. Were you involved in preparing this retention letter?

A. I think so.

Q. And do you recognize the signature on page 3 of the letter as Mr. Rich on behalf of CSFB?

A. Yeah.

Q. Is this a standard form, CSFB retention letter?

A. Parts of it, yes.

Q. Is there any part of it that is not --

13:25:26 that's what he did.
13:25:26 Q. Is that because there would be a 13:42:30 Q. Okay. Let me get you to turn to page 13:42:34 12 of the presentation. It's entitled, "Overview 13:42:40 From Sunbeam."

13:42:40 A. Yes.
13:42:44 Q. Under the business overview section --
13:42:44 A. Um-hum.
13:42:46 Q. -- where did that information come 13:42:50 from?
13:42:52 A. I -- I don't recall. I would think it
13:42:54 came from the public financials.
13:42:56 Q. From Sunbeam's public financials?
13:43:00 A. Probably from the 10-K.
13:43:02 Q. The same is true for the '97 revenue
13:43:04 breakdown box?
13:43:06 A. I would believe so.
13:43:10 Q. And under the financial summary, it
13:43:12 provides actual numbers for '96 and '97 and then 13:43:14 estimates for '98 and '99.
13:43:14 A. Yes.
13:43:16 Q. And those are -- the estimates for '98
13:43:20 and '99 are sourced to Wall Street estimates?
13:43:24 A. Yes.
13:43:26 Q. Why were they sourced to Wall Street
13:43:30 estimates as opposed to the estimates that had

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

13:43:34 1 been provided by Sunbeam management?
13:43:36 2 A. I can't remember now, but I would 13:43:38 3 imagine because that was what was in the public
13:43:42 4 domain. And so I think the fact that we had two 13:43:46 5 sets of forecasts, we wanted to show the board
13:43:48 6 what the -- what the public thought the numbers
13:43:50 7 were first and then talk about what Sunbeam
13:43:54 8 management thought the numbers were.
13:44:00 9 Q. The Wall Street estimates were analyst 13:44:04 10 estimates that were out on the street at the 13:44:04 11 time?
13:44:06 12 A. I believe so, yes. Or they were,
13:44:08 13 probably, based on analyst estimates, if it
13:44:14 14 wasn't one specific analyst.
13:44:18 15 Q. If you turn to the next page, there's 13:44:20 16 a summary of the valuation -- the different 13:44:20 17 methods?
13:44:20 18 A. Yes.
13:44:26 19 Q. And it summarizes CSFB's valuation of 13:44:30 20 Sunbeam under different valuation methodologies:
13:44:32 21 Discounted cash flow, comparable company and 13:44:34 22 comparable acquisitions.

analysis, where it was only done -- discounted cash flow analysis was only done on the strategic plan?

A. No. But, I mean, what probably happened is we probably did the strategic plan and then did the base case, developed that after. I mean, so I don't know that we ever presented it that way. But, I mean, our own internal workings would have required us to do the strategic plan first.

Q. Did anyone from Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes ever say, in words or substance, that the projections and estimates in the long-term strategic plan were too aggressive or optimistic?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Was that ever expressed by anyone internally at CSFB?

A. I don't remember.

Q. The base case on page 14 of Exhibit 112 is footnoted to footnote No. 1.

A. Yes.

Q. It says, "Projections developed in conjunction with CLN management based on equity analyst research."

A. Right.

13:52:20 Q. Do you see that?

13:52:26 Q. -- stock ticker for Coleman?
13:52:26 A. Yes, it is.
13:52:26 Q. So, the projections that are identified here in the base case were developed jointly between CSFB and Coleman management?
13:52:34 A. Yes.
13:52:34 Q. Who from Coleman management participated in developing those projections?
13:52:44 A. I can't recall, but, you know, I would have expected it was -- I mean, well, what -- I think we probably dealt with Mr. Nesbitt, and he would have dealt with Mr. Levin. Or we would have done it on the call. I don't recall. Or Mr. Page is the other person.
13:53:04 Q. So, it could have been Mr. Nesbitt or Page or Levin who would have been involved in those discussions?
13:53:10 A. Right.
13:53:12 Q. But, as you sit here today, you don't recall specific discussions with any of them about the development of the base case?

13:53:16 A. No.
13:53:20 Q. What is the reference to "equity
13:53:22 analyst research" there? Do you know what 13:53:26 research was used in developing the base case?
13:53:28 A. No. I don't know what specific 13:53:30 research. I would have thought we had research
13:53:34 reports on Sunbeam and we used those to help
13:53:38 frame the base case forecast.
13:53:40 Q. Did you think that the equity analyst
13:53:44 research reports that you had were an appropriate
13:53:48 source to consult for information about Sunbeam?
13:53:50 A. Yes.
13:53:52 Q. Is that a customary source of 13:53:56 information of -- for public companies?
13:53:58 A. Yes. I mean, yes.
13:54:02 Q. Now, the base case projections are 13:54:06 across-the-board more conservative than the 13:54:10 long-term strategic plan; is that correct?
13:54:10 A. Yes.
13:54:18 Q. And that was a conscious decision that 13:54:20 was made that the base case would be a downward 13:54:22 revision of the strategic plan as opposed to an 13:54:22 increase?
13:54:24 A. Yes.
13:54:26 Q. So, it was a belief that the base case that needed to be presented to the board would be lower than the strategic plan case?

A. I think it was -- I don't think -- I don't think we needed -- we felt we needed to show a lower case. We just wanted to show a case that we thought more accurately reflected what the public was seeing and, maybe, calling it more less aggressive than the Sunbeam base case -- or the Sunbeam strategic plan.

Q. Was there a view that the Sunbeam strategic plan was aggressive?

A. I can't recall. I mean, I use that to compare the -- describe the comparison of the numbers.

Q. Was the base case done as a top-down analysis from the strategic plan or was it built from the ground up?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.

A. It was -- it was -- it was built from sort of 1997 forward. If that's -- I don't think it was built as a -- I don't remember it being built as, let's say, take 20 percent off the strategic plan, if that's the meaning of your question.

Q. Yeah. When that analysis was 15:28:22 Stanley Exhibit 230, which is the investment

15:28:26 banking memo. I handed that to you earlier.
15:28:30 A. Yeah.
15:28:32 Q. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230, which we 15:28:34 identified for the record earlier, is also dated 15:28:38 February 25th, 1998. It's the same date as the 15:28:40 board meeting that we were just looking at.
15:28:42 A. Um-hum.
15:28:46 Q. Was this document created -- "this 15:28:48 document" meaning Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230 --
15:28:52 created before or after the board meeting?
15:28:56 A. I believe it was done before, but 15:29:00 I'm -- I would have thought it was done before.
15:29:02 Q. Did you have a role in putting this 15:29:04 document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230, together?
15:29:06 A. Yes.
15:29:08 Q. And what role did you play and what 15:29:10 role did the other authors play in putting this 15:29:12 together?
15:29:14 A. I would think -- well, I can't recall 15:29:18 specifics, but I would think that myself and 15:29:22 Mr. Geller were the primary authors. Mr. Rich
15:29:26 would have reviewed it. And Ramesh would have 15:29:28 been helpful in putting the analysis and 15:39:10 in any way, about other deals or transactions

15:39:16 that CSFB had worked on for MacAndrews & Forbes?
15:39:20 A. No.
15:39:30 Q. If you look at the next page, item 12
15:39:32 describes the due diligence that was done on the 15:39:32 transaction.
15:39:34 A. Yes.
15:39:38 Q. It lists meetings with Sunbeam senior 15:39:40 management on February 23rd and February 24th to 15:39:44 discuss Sunbeam's strategic plan and 1997
15:39:44 results.
15:39:46 Do you see that?
15:39:48 A. Yes, I do.
15:39:50 Q. What, if anything, do you recall 15:39:52 discussing with Sunbeam senior management about 15:39:54 its 1997 results?
15:39:58 A. Nothing specifically. I don't recall 15:40:10 the discussions.
15:40:12 Q. Did anyone on the investment banking 15:40:16 committee suggest, in words or substance, that 15:40:20 Coleman should not accept Sunbeam stock as part
15:40:22 of the consideration?
15:40:40 A. I don't believe so.

you had done at CSFB?

A. I'm not sure where it all came from.

Q. At the time in 1998, did you have an understanding of what a comfort letter was?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you understand that -- generally, that comfort letters include information updating the financial information about a company from the date of the last audit?

MR. BRODY: Object to form.

MR. PARADISE: Objection.

A. Well, I don't know.

Q. Do you have an understanding that comfort letters, generally, provide negative assurances from auditors regarding -- the unaudited financials of the company?

MR. BRODY: Objection.

A. I think I -- I'm not sure exactly, but I think I agree with you.

Q. Okay. Do you recall any discussion about comfort letters in connection with the work you did on the Coleman transaction?

A. No.

Q. Did you make any requests of Sunbeam for comfort letters that Sunbeam had obtained

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16:14:30 1 from its auditors Arthur Andersen?
16:14:32 2 A. No. That's not normally something the 16:14:36 3 investment bank would get.
16:14:40 4 Q. Do -- I guess my question is more --
16:14:42 5 A. Did we, no.
16:14:46 6 Q. -- did -- did you have any role in 16:14:50 7 obtaining from Coleman's auditors, Ernst & Young, 16:14:52 8 comfort letters to provide to Sunbeam?
16:14:54 9 A. I don't -- no.
16:14:56 10 Q. And same answer, is that something
16:14:58 11 that you would not, as an investment banker, 16:14:58 12 generally be involved in?
16:15:04 13 A. That's correct.
16:15:08 14 Q. As part of the examination of the CSFB
16:15:14 15 fairness opinion, did you or anyone else review
16:15:20 16 the merger agreement to determine what, if any,
16:15:24 17 rights to additional information Coleman had?
16:15:28 18 A. No. That's -- that -- that's not 16:15:32 19 something that would go to the fairness of the 16:15:36 20 transaction.
16:15:40 21 Q. Did anyone from Coleman or MacAndrews
16:15:44 22 & Forbes contact you or anyone from CSFB, to your 16:15:48 23 knowledge, during the time period between the 16:15:50 24 date of the merger agreement and the date of the 16:15:50 25 closing?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16:15:58 A. Just in general.
16:16:00 Q. On -- specifically, to do additional 16:16:02 work on the Coleman transaction?
16:16:24 A. I don't think so. I don't recall.
16:16:28 Q. Mr. Duffy, I'm handing you what's been 16:16:56 marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 11.
(Brief interruption.)
16:16:58 Q. Mr. Duffy, I've handed you what's been 16:17:02 marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 11. It's a 16:17:06 press release issued by Sunbeam on March 19, 16:17:06 1998.
16:17:10 Do you recall having seen or heard
16:17:12 about this press release during the March 1998
16:17:16 time period?
16:17:20 A. Not specifically. I don't remember.
16:17:22 I remember there was bad news, but I don't 16:17:24 remember what it was regarding, so -- 16:17:26 Q. You remember it was bad news in the 16:17:30 time period between the execution of the merger
16:17:30 agreement and the closing?
16:17:30 A. Yes.
16:17:32 Q. And it was that bad news that had 16:17:36 caused the stock to drop?
16:17:36 A. I believe so, yes.
16:17:38 Q. And it was the decline in the stock price that had caused CSFB to reexamine its fairness opinion?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any recollection, having now seen the March 19th press release, about any additional inquiry that was done internally at CSFB about the reason for the sales -- the stock price decline?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes about the March 19, 1998 press release?

A. I don't remember. Very well could have, but I don't remember.

Q. As you sit here today, do you remember a discussion -- any discussion with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes about the March 19, 1998 press release?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes contacting you or others at CSFB about the press release?

A. No.

Q. Did Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes ask CSFB to conduct any inquiry of Sunbeam about the sales figures identified here in the March 19 press release?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Did Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes ask CSFB to make any inquiry of Morgan Stanley after the March 19, '98 press release?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Having seen the March 19, '98 press release, did you or others at CSFB contact -- make any effort to contact Sunbeam to obtain additional information about the reasons for the sales shortfall identified here?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question. Mischaracterizes.

A. Yeah, I don't think so, is the answer.

Q. Did CSFB, as part of its examination of its fairness opinion, go back and look at how these sales numbers reflected in the March 19, '98 press release compared to the strategic plan presented by Sunbeam during the negotiations?

A. We could have. I just don't remember specifically doing that.

Q. Or how these sales numbers would compare to the --

A. Base case.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16:21:02 Q. -- base case?
16:21:08 A. I don't remember if we did that.
16:21:10 Q. Did you or others at CSFB share the 16:21:18 results or the conclusion of leaving the fairness
16:21:20 opinion alone with Coleman or MacAndrews &
16:21:22 Forbes?
16:21:22 A. Well, I don't know that we ever told 16:21:26 them that there was a question around the 16:21:28 opinion. So, I mean, we gave them the opinion
16:21:32 and we let it go be published, so -- the 16:21:32 conclusion was shared. I don't know they 16:21:34 realized there was a question before the 16:21:36 conclusion.
16:21:38 Q. They certainly didn't raise the 16:21:42 question with you about whether CSFB would stand 16:21:46 behind its fairness opinion in light of the 16:21:48 March 19th press release?
16:21:50 A. I don't think so. I mean, I don't 16:21:54 remember them asking the question.
16:21:56 Q. And quite apart from whether they were 16:21:58 aware of your inquiry or not --
16:21:58 A. Right.
16:22:00 Q. -- you didn't affirmatively go to 16:22:04 Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes and say, in words
16:22:06 or substance, we've taken a look at this again

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16:22:10 and we're still fine with our fairness opinion;
16:22:12 you don't recall having done that?
16:22:16 A. I don't recall that.
16:22:22 Q. Did you make any effort to speak with 16:22:28 Sunbeam's auditors as part of the -- your inquiry
16:22:30 after the March 19, '98 press release?
16:22:32 A. No.
16:22:34 Q. Or anyone at Sunbeam's in-house
16:22:36 accounting team?
16:22:36 A. No.
16:22:38 Q. Or Sunbeam's in-house audit team?
16:22:40 A. No.
16:22:40 Q. Did you talk with any research
16:22:44 analysts as part of that inquiry?
16:22:46 A. I don't know if we did.
16:22:48 Q. Did you make any inquiry of any of 16:22:50 Sunbeam's customers?
16:22:50 A. No.
16:22:52 Q. Did you make a visit to Sunbeam's
16:22:54 headquarters?
16:22:56 A. No.
16:22:58 Q. Or visit any of Sunbeam's
16:22:58 manufacturing facilities?
16:23:04 A. No.
16:23:08 Q. Did you or anyone else from CSFB

16:23:12 attend the closing of the merger transaction?
16:23:16 A. I did not. I doubt anyone else did.
16:23:22 Q. Did you have any discussions after the 16:23:28 date of the merger agreement with Morgan Stanley
16:23:30 relating to Coleman or Sunbeam?
16:23:32 A. Say that again.
16:23:32 Q. After the date of the merger
16:23:36 agreement, February 27, 1998, did you have any 16:23:38 discussions with anyone at Morgan Stanley about 16:23:42 Coleman or Sunbeam?
16:23:50 A. I don't remember having any.
16:24:00 Q. Did you or others at CSFB perform any 16:24:04 work in valuing the consideration that MacAndrews
16:24:10 & Forbes received?
16:24:12 A. I think we did the exercise of 16:24:22 applying the exchange ratio to the share price to 16:24:26 see what the deal was worth, if that's what you
16:24:28 mean by valuation.
16:24:32 Q. Did you or others at CSFB do any 16:24:38 analysis or work to value the Sunbeam shares that 16:24:42 MacAndrews & Forbes received as part of the 16:24:44 consideration?
16:24:48 A. Again, I think it depends what you

Q. Fair enough but to the entities that he was controller for that would be his responsibility?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did the Coleman company have its own controller?
A. Yes.
Q. And who was the controller for the Coleman company in 1997 and 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. But whoever it was he would have reported to Mr. Page; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you know Bruce Slovin?
A. Yes.
Q. Bruce -- excuse me. Mr. Slovin. I apologize. Mr. Slovin was deposed earlier in the case and described in general terms one of the businesses of the MacAndrews as deals, doing deals. Would you agree with that?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
Q. You can answer.
A. I think so.
Q. As chief financial officer and again during the period you were there 1992

A. I think basically I did nothing.
Q. One of the witnesses Mr. Shapiro, Paul Shapiro, you know Paul, Mr. Shapiro?
A. Yes.
Q. Was he one of your peers?
A. No.
Q. He was below you in the --
A. He was in the operating companies.
Q. In the operating companies. Mr. Shapiro said in the last session of his deposition that there was a clipping service of some kind that he couldn't remember the name that reported and the freak see of which I don't think he testified to but it reported on press if you will or analysts reports on companies that Mr. Perelman had an interest in either directly or through public ownership. Are you familiar with that service?
A. Yes. I recall receiving clippings on a regular basis.
Q. These clippings that you received on a regular basis, were they of companies that Mr. Perelman or his affiliated companies had an interest in?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Not necessarily.

Q. Were they be companies that you were following?

A. It could be something broader. It might be relevant news rather than just company news. So there were things that we were interested in which would have included companies that we were interested in, either our own or others.

Q. How frequently were the clippings distributed within the organization?

A. I think daily.

Q. Did you --

A. I'm not sure of that, but I think so.

Q. And I didn't mean to interrupt you. Did you receive the clippings while you were the executive vice president and chief financial officer, that is during the whole time you were there?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the name of the company?

A. No.

Q. Did you participate in any of the negotiations in?

Q. Were you aware of a meeting that took place in Palm Beach at Mr. Perelman's home at which Mr. Perelman and Mr. Albert Dunlap had exchanged pleasantries concerning a possible transaction?

A. It's a nice way to phrase it. I became aware after the meeting had occurred. I think Michael Price was also there.

Q. I think that's correct. Did you hear about this at the breakfast meeting?

A. I'm not sure I can't identify exactly what I where I heard is it.

Q. What did you hear about that meeting?

A. I heard that there was discussions I believed of MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman acquiring Sunbeam, that there was a price difference in terms of what we would be willing to pay versus what Al Dunlap wanted as a price and that the meeting was disrupted by Dunlap becoming very emotional and raising his voice and stalking out of the room and that those discussions ended as a result of his display of temper. And it was decided not to pursue the matter any longer.

Q. And in matter being as you understood it Coleman's acquisition of Sunbeam?

A. That's the way I understood it.

Q. Let me ask you to focus now on 1998 after the holidays. Did you become aware that there were new discussions or follow-up discussions about some possible business combination between Coleman and Sunbeam?

A. Yes, I became aware of that.

Q. And how did that happen?

MR. BRODY: How did he become aware.

Q. Yes how did you become aware?

A. Again I'm not sure how that was communicated to me.

Q. Did you participate in any of the discussions at all?

A. No.

Q. Business discussions?

A. With?

Q. With either your people that is MacAndrews & Forbes or representatives of

A. I don't believe so.

Q. In the course of your work with the banks or the restatement investigation in 1998, did you ever learn who on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes had been responsible for due diligence of Sunbeam corporation in connection with the acquisition?

A. It would have been Jim Maher and to some extent Barry Schwartz.

Q. Did Mr. Maher have any involvement with the restatement investigation?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did Mr. Shorts Barry shorts?

A. Yes.

Q. What was his involvement with the restatement investigation?

A. He would he was responsible for providing legal advice with regard to SEC matters. He had a functional responsibility for Paul Shapiro, who became the general counsel for Sunbeam.

Q. Was your first involvement in terms of face to face meetings outside of Barron's article, because it's readable. It's not in those long columns. Take a look at it and I'll ask you if you've seen this article before. For the record it's dated June 61998.

A. I don't recall this article.

Q. Put you recall you did read some article about in Barron's about Sunbeam before the bank meetings correct?

A. I read a lot about this subject, but saying it's Barron's and on what date is something I can't be specific about.

Q. All right. You can hand that back. Thank you, sir. Directing your attention now back to MS 336 and the bullet point beginning with the SEC, then there is an indented bullet point beginning Arthur Andersen. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. The bullet reads quote Arthur Andersen continues to assure the board that Sunbeam's audited financial statements are accurate in all material respects. This assurance has now been made three times over the past ten days, close quote. Do you see that bullet point?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that said at the meeting, one of the meetings?

A. Yes. At some meetings I attended Arthur Andersen's position was stated.

Q. And was it as stated in the bullet point that the financial statements of Sunbeam as audited are accurate in all material respects?

A. I recall that's what they were saying.

Q. The document continues, if we go down to the bullet points after the paragraph beginning "Levin then reported his findings," the second bullet point refers to the management team meeting with Coopers & Lybrand for three to five hours. Do you see that sentence?

A. Yes.

Q. And there is a reference to a study which is said to be fictional. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did someone at the meeting with the question.

Q. No, I mean as a result of all of the meetings --

A. Right.

Q. -- we've been talking about during this time period starting in June.

A. Right.

Q. And Arthur Andersen was tasked with this responsibility only after it withdrew its repeated assurances to you and Mr. Gittis and others that the Arthur Andersen statements could be relied upon in all material respects correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And then Arthur Andersen was going forward now from the June meetings eventually terminated as auditor for the financial statements of Sunbeam that were for the period ending in the calendar year 1999 correct?

A. Would you repeat that question.

Q. Yes. Going forward, Arthur Andersen was fired and they were replaced by Deloitte & Touche to do the 1999 Sunbeam financial statement audits; isn't that

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Sir, directing your attention to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 3 three eight, there is a reference to a meeting that took place the day before June 26th 1998, which would be June 25th my math. Do you recall attending that meeting based on the list of attendees in the first paragraph of this exhibit?

A. I do not recall this meeting specifically.

Q. Again, is do you recall the general substance of this meeting as running together with the other meetings during these couple of weeks in June?

A. Yes.

Q. There is one person in the attendee list, Paul Sarvino, S-a-r-v-i-n-o, chief admin officer. Do you recognize that man as being Mr. Shapiro in all likelihood?

A. I hadn't thought of that but that could be the case should be the case.

Q. Now, according to the second bullet in this memorandum Arthur Andersen said at the meeting that they were lied quote lied to in a fraudulent fashion by management close quote. Do you see that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012880

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall Arthur Andersen saying that they had been lied to by Sunbeam's management?

A. I think I heard that from them at some point during this period.

Q. Did Arthur Andersen ever say in any of the meetings that you were called to that Morgan Stanley lied to Arthur Andersen about anything?

A. I do not recall their saying that.

Q. By the time of this meeting, that is June 26th, had Arthur Andersen told Sunbeam that they, "they," that is, Arthur Andersen, would not consent to the use of their audits in either the filing necessary for the registration statement for the zero coupon debentures or the Sunbeam stock issued in connection with the second step of the Coleman Sunbeam merger?

A. I do not recall the dates specifically, put around this time Arthur Andersen withdrew their consent for the use of the statement financial statements for those purposes.

period close quote. Do you recall Mr. Levin making statements to that effect?

A. During this period I think he would have been making statements to that effect.

Q. Those statements are also attributed -- or findings, excuse me, are also attributed to Arthur Andersen. Did Arthur Andersen make statements were written or oral, to that effect during this same period.

A. I don't recall this.

Q. Do you recall anyone making any statements that Morgan Stanley was responsible for Sunbeam booking statements in 1997 that should have been booked in 1996?

A. I don't understand your question. They don't book statements.

Q. That is, Morgan Stanley doesn't book statements. Or excuse me. I said statements. Thank you very much. Let me try again.

Did anyone in the course of this meeting say that Morgan Stanley was responsible for Sunbeam booking sales in 1997 that should have been booked in 1996?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012882

A. Again I can't refer specifically to this meeting, but I do not recall anybody making those statements about Morgan Stanley.

Q. Did anyone in the course of these meetings, recognizing, again, the meetings tend to run together now, did anyone say that Morgan Stanley was responsible for Sunbeam booking sales in 1998 that should have been booked in 1997?

A. I think you want to ask that question in reverse.

Q. So do I.

A. In 1997.

Q. So do I. Let me try it again. Withdrawn. As soon as it came out, I knew it was wrong. Did anyone in the course of these meetings you've been describing with the banks say that Morgan Stanley was responsible for Sunbeam booking sales in 1997 that should have been booked in 1998?

A. Again, the answer, I don't recall anyone saying that Morgan Stanley caused that.

Q. We've looked now at three exhibits Morgan Stanley's 336 through 338. Which by withdrawn?

Q. The statements that are being restated here 1996 that was a statement that was audited by a public accounting firm, that is Arthur Andersen correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And Arthur Andersen in 1996 prior to the restatement, gave Sunbeam an unqualified opinion; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Otherwise known as a clean opinion in the trade?

A. Right.

Q. In 1997 Sunbeam being a public company, its financial statements were also audited by Arthur Andersen; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And as I understand it, Arthur Andersen gave an unqualified opinion in 1997 to Sunbeam's financial statements; right?

A. Initially.

Q. Initially. Again, initially, as we say, a clean statement; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. One that you as a businessman --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

you would rely on an audited financial statement, would you not, sir, a company like Arthur Andersen?

A. Yes. And, as a matter of fact, I think that MacAndrews & Forbes did rely upon that.

Q. And would the the same would be true for the 1997 audited financial statements of Sunbeam by Arthur Andersen; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And with regard to the 1998 financial statements of Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen performed certain examination of those statements for the first quarter of 1998; correct?

A. Limited.

Q. But they're not an audited during the quarter, are they?

A. That's correct.

Q. They do what is known as the profession as limited procedures; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And those limited procedures do not amount to an audit, do they?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with a company by the name of Coleman Safety & Security?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. Then you won't recall whether it was sold?

A. No. Coleman had a company that was competitive with first alert. That may have been the name of that.

Q. Did that company get sold at some point?

A. I don't recall.

Q. ?

Q. At any point up to March 30th 1998, March 30th 1998, are you aware of any notices formal or informal by the banks of defaults pursuant to the terms of either MS 300 or 301 the two credit agreements?

A. No.

think the actual own certificate Coleman Worldwide Corporation but if I'm mistaken it was owned by one of the subsidiaries of affiliated companies do you know if that stock was pledge today cure any indid he tellness of any of Mr. Perelman's companies?

A. I can't be certain about this, but my offhand reaction is that I think it was the holding companies' stock that was pledged rather than the operating company.

Q. And by that you mean the holding company whichever holding company held the stock of the Coleman Company, Inc?

A. That's right.

Q. Is it your recollection that all of the holding company stock was pledge today secure indebtedness of one or more of Mr. Perelman's companies?

A. As I recall, there was a pledge of the holding company stock in support of some of their indebtedness, and the pal of the secondary pledge in support the bank agreements.

Q. What is called the net residual value of the pledge; is that correct?

A. Yes, it does.

A. To my knowledge, he was working on the M&A aspects of the transaction.

All three transactions were described and defined in some manner of engagement letter or fee letter or commission arrangements between Morgan Stanley and the company pursuant to the description of all three different transactions, and I would agree with you that a calculation which is made here describes the compensation to Morgan Stanley as per all three of the different engagements and all three of these different fee or commission structures to be that number. I didn't produce those, so I can't tell you. That would be what I read here.

Q. Do you know how much money Morgan Stanley collected in connection with any of its work relating to Project Laser?

A. I have no idea, but if I were to volunteer something, I would say that the firm lost many times that over on the debt agreement.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Because I believe that the committed amount of capital that the firm put into financing at that portion of this

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know what the collateral was for Morgan Stanley's loan?

A. No, I wasn't privy to the specifics, but I think that's part of the public record, it's been pretty well documented, that whatever the residual value of what was distributed to the creditors compares palely to the amount committed.

Q. Do you have any idea what the difference between Morgan Stanley's current ownership of Sunbeam is worth as compared to the amount of its loan to Sunbeam?

Q. Where do you live today?

A. I live in New York, 760 Park Avenue.

Q. How long have you lived there?

A. Since about 1987.

Q. So, you lived at that address during the Coleman Sunbeam transaction?

A. I did.

Q. Are you working today?

A. I am.

Q. Where do you work?

A. I work at MacAndrews & Forbes.

Q. What is your current position there today?

A. I am the vice-chairman and chief administrative officer.

Q. Do you report directly to Mr. Ronald

Q. May I ask: Are you still licensed to practice?

A. I am licensed to practice in Pennsylvania and in Florida, although I believe that I have inactive status in both locations.

Q. You have never practiced law, I take it, then, when you worked for MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. No. That was the condition upon which I joined Mr. Perelman.

Q. Your position is as a businessman within the company?

A. That is correct.

Q. I take it you did some preparation for your deposition; is that correct?

A. Yes.

A. Yes. 1998.

Q. Was that a presentation where Mr. Russell Kersh spoke?

A. I was not physically present at the meeting. I simply received the materials thereafter.

Q. So, when you said a presentation Morgan Stanley made, you don't know whether Morgan Stanley actually made a presentation, because you weren't there; right?

A. But I was told that they did.

Q. But as to your own personal knowledge?

A. I was not in the room.

Q. You weren't in the room.

In fact, my understanding is that, and you can correct me now -- if I am wrong, we will shortcut some of the questioning -- is that your involvement in this transaction began sometime in November or December of 1997, with some meetings with Michael Price and Mr. Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman; is that correct, in general?

A. That is correct.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. That was '85. Ten years later.

A. That is correct.
Q. And you are, as I understand it, by your title you are the number 2 man at MacAndrews & Forbes; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Are you still active in the business?
A. Oh, very active.
Q. You go to work every day?
A. I go to work every day.
Q. Love every minute of it?
A. Love it.
Q. In your -- 20-some years of working for Mr. Perelman, do you think he is a sophisticated businessman?

A. Yes.
Q. Sophisticated in analyzing mergers and acquisitions transactions?
A. I think so.

A. Yes.

Would you characterize yourself as Mr. Perelman's right-hand man? Not to offend left-handers here.

A. I am left-handed.

Q. I wasn't sure.

A. No. It is a fair characterization. Our offices are right next to each other. They have been since I have gotten here.

Q. You have been involved in, I take it, many of the major transactions by Mr. Perelman?

A. I think I have been involved in all of them.

Q. Revlon, for example?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Marvel?

A. Yes.

Q. Panavision?

A. Yes.

Q. Coleman?

A. Bought it once, sold it, bought it back and then sold it. In the intervening time, the second time we also took it public.

Q. Would it be fair to say that, on the debt side, in terms of debt that has been issued by companies owned or controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Perelman, that they have issued billions of dollars of debt over the years?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Would it be fair to say that in materials of companies that Mr. Perelman has purchased, either through stock acquisitions or otherwise, that those transactions have involved billions of dollars?

A. Absolutely.

Q. In these -- well, would you call these sophisticated transactions, like the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Consolidated Cigar and Revlon and Gibraltar, First Nationwide, these are sophisticated transactions?

MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.

Q. You can answer.

A. Some are more sophisticated than others, but they are -- you know, some of the financings are sophisticated, you know, and you know, we learned as we went along, you know. We started out as two little guys in Philadelphia, and then we learned a little bit as we went through the transactions.

Q. In the transactions that you have told the jury about, over the past 20 or so years, have you, on occasion, used investment bankers to advise you?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that a frequent occurrence?

A. In almost every transaction.

Q. Who are some of the investment bankers that you have worked with on your side of the table?

A. Morgan Stanley. Goldman, Sachs. Credit Suisse First Boston.

012905

Q. I mean, the people that you worked with.

A. Yes.

Q. You did not hire unsophisticated people?

A. I would hope not, no.

Q. In addition to investment bankers and law firms, as you have described it, in these deals that you have done over the past 20 years with Mr. Perelman, have you had occasion to use accounting firms to assist you in your work?

A. Um, we don't use accounting firms very much in connection with doing a transaction.

But each of the companies, either before or after, are represented by one of the, I guess it is a Big Four now. It used to be the Big Six or Big Seven.

Q. It was Eight once.

A. It was Eight once.

Q. Okay. Does MacAndrews & Forbes have, today, does it have an outside accounting firm that it uses to audit its books?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

012906

A. Yes.
Q. Who is that?
A. Ernst & Young.
Q. And Ernst & Young was the Coleman Company's auditors at the time of the Sunbeam transaction, Coleman transaction; correct?
A. Yes, but that was -- that was not as a result of anything that we had done. I think they were there before.
Q. And Ernst & Young today would be -- strike that. Would Ernst & Young today, in your view, be one of the Big Four or Five, however they are described?
A. Certainly one of the Big Four, I would say.
Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes do filings with the Securities & Exchange Commission?
A. Sure.
When you say MacAndrews & Forbes, there are various levels of MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. I want to make sure that I get the right one. Was it MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. that does the filing?
A. No. No. No. It depends on where public debt is issued. We have no public securities coming out of MacAndrews, except for a company called MacAndrews & Forbes Worldwide, which is a separate public company that does securities act filings on its own.

It has public shareholders, and -- I don't know whether it still has public debt. I should know, since I am its chairman.

Then there is Mafco Holdings, which is the top company, and I don't think that does filings, because I don't think there is any public debt left there. But as you come down the chain from Mafco to MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings to MacAndrews & Forbes Group, wherever, at any time during the 20 years there is public debt issued at that level they become a filer.

Q. Do you know the holding company structure, as you sit here today?

A. I know it as well as anybody can. There are hundreds of companies.

Q. I don't want to go through all of the 100. Now that I have the person who -- I think knows it probably as well as I think I may know it, as best I can piece it together,

I would like to ask you a few questions.

Q. See if I get it right.

Mr. Perelman sits at the top; correct?

A. Yes, he owns 100 percent of the securities of the ultimate holding company.

Q. The ultimate holding company, is it Mafco Holdings Inc.?

A. It is either Mafco Holdings Inc., or Mafco Finance. I am not quite sure what the name is now. One or the other.

Q. There is no comma between Holdings and Inc.; right?

A. Right.

Q. And then after Mafco Holdings Inc., or Mafco Finance, whichever it is, directly below that is MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.; correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And now, for our purposes, given the Coleman side of the transaction, directly below MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. was Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.; is that correct?

A. No. There should be -- there should be a company called MacAndrews & Forbes Group in there before that.

Q. All right. That's one I did not know where it was. MacAndrews & Forbes Group Inc.; is that what it is?

A. I don't really know.

Q. Okay. But it is below MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?

A. Below Holdings and before the chains that hold the operating businesses.

Q. The MacAndrews & Forbes Group Company, that is a holding company; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the legal name, as best you can remember, is MacAndrews & Forbes Group, Inc.?

A. I think that is right.

Q. Now, working now down, going, if we had Coleman in the transaction, we would go to Coleman (Parent) Holdings?

A. Once you go down below MacAndrews & Forbes Group, each of the operating businesses go off into a series of companies, so that you don't mix the candy money with the beer money.

That is, Coleman stays in its own line, no cross collateral, no obligation for any debt of, say, Revlon, which has its own line.

And then the banks, which had their own line.

And then the cigar company, when that was there, had its own line.

So, there are a variety of companies that come down, and all of the operating, and this is the strategy that we had from the beginning, which is all of the operating businesses are kept pure. They may have their own holding companies up and down the line, but they are not touched by any of the other operating businesses.

They always remain by themselves.

Q. So, absent credit agreements or finance agreements of some kind that provide some type of cross-collateralization upstream, there are no obligations amongst the different operating companies?

A. That is a fair comment.

Q. With regard to -- let's focus on the operating group on the Coleman side, real quickly, and go down the list, and I think we are done with this.

A. No problem.

Q. Directly below MacAndrews & Forbes Group, the ultimate holding company for the Coleman group was Coleman (Parent) Holdings?

A. I think that is right.

Q. Inc.? Correct?

A. I am pretty sure that is right.

Q. Directly below that was a company called CLN Holdings Inc.; correct?

A. I don't know.

Q. Now, below that I have seen reference to a company called Coleman Worldwide Corp. and also, I think, in a former life known as Coleman Escrow Corporation; does that sound right to you?

A. That is well beyond my canon at this point.

Q. But at the very bottom of the chain was the Coleman Company, Inc., the operating company?

A. Right, that was a publicly owned company, which we owned approximately 82 percent of up through that chain, and which had its own debt issuance capacity.

fraud that you were aware of?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any information, at the time of the closing of the Sunbeam Coleman transaction, that Arthur Andersen was going to, only months later, announce that the public could no longer rely on its opinions in regard to Sunbeam's financial statements?
A. Of course not.
Q. Now, turning to the Coleman Sunbeam transaction, the negotiations, externally -- was Mr. Maher, in your view, the head negotiator?
A. Mr. Maher and Mr. Levin.
Q. Mr. Levin on behalf of Coleman?
A. Mr. Levin on behalf of the Coleman Company Inc. Mr. Maher on behalf of the various Coleman holding companies and the MacAndrews companies.
Q. How long have you known Mr. Maher?
A. Oh, probably 25 years.
Q. Did you work with Mr. Maher when he was an investment banker at First Boston?
A. I met him when I was there, but I don't recall working with him on a retire. He made enough money. So, we were looking around for someone to take that position, and Maher became available. We hired Maher for that.

Q. He became the president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.; is that correct?

A. That is correct

Q. He stay until about year 2000; is that your recollection?

A. I know he left us sometime after this transaction.

Um, I don't know if it was 2000, 2001, sometime like that.

Q. When Mr. Maher left, was, did he leave for any reasons related to the Sunbeam Coleman transaction?

A. No. No. He wanted to do something else.

Q. Did you like working with Mr. Maher?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you think he was a sophisticated investment banker?

A. Yes.

Q. Sophisticated businessman?

A. Yes.
Q. You attended the February 25th -- withdrawn.
There are two board meetings of the Coleman Company, and they were held by record dates that we now know of February 25th and February 27th of 1998.
Did you attend those two meetings?
A. Yes.
Q. You attended as an observer, I take it?
A. Well, I guess you could call me an observer of the public company, but also I was attending because I was going to sign resolutions authorizing the transactions; so, I thought it was one of the easiest ways to listen.
Q. I would like to show you the minutes of the February 25th, 1998 board meeting and just ask you a couple questions about that.
A. All right.
Q. I will hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88.
What I would like you to do is look at this document to whatever extent you would

I then met with our people to get them completely debriefed upon that, and there was -- then I said go ahead, take this matter to the boards.

Q. Other than the -- the presentation -- I want to show you what I think is the documents that you are referring to that you said you received.

You can hand that back to me. The documents that you received and you have been describing as this presentation by Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam.

First, I am going to hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84.

A. Thank you.

Q. Excuse me. Exhibit 85. I misspoke.

Do you have that exhibit in front of you?

A. I have in front of me an exhibit that has been marked as 85.

Q. My question, next, would be: Is this the Morgan Stanley document that you said you received after the Morgan Stanley Sunbeam presentation, that you did not --

A. I have to look at it.

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Because the copy I saw had a beautiful blue Morgan Stanley cover on it.

(Pause.)

A. I believe this is the document that I saw, or there may have been an earlier related version of this, but this contained essentially this information.

Q. Let me ask you to set that aside for now. We will come back to it.

A. Sure.

Q. And we will just collect that up for now and, at a later point, we will talk about it in a little bit more detail.

A. No problem.

Q. There was also a document I think you said you saw from Sunbeam, and I want to show you a document now and ask you if that is the Sunbeam document that you were referring to. MS 84, please.

By the way, was it Mr. Levin that gave you Morgan Stanley 85?

A. No. I think it was either Mr. Nesbitt or Mr. Maher.

Q. Maher.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Levin the presentation by Sunbeam that was, that is set forth in, on hard copy, if you will, in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84?

A. I am sure I did.

Q. We will come back to these a little bit later.

Now, at the -- at or about the time of the second board meeting, had you already, had you reviewed the final contracts that were being drafted by the attorneys?

A. I don't recall whether I had seen the final drafts or not yet, but others who were working with me did.

Q. Did you review the final drafts of the contracts before they were signed?

A. Um, before I signed -- before I signed the document, I reviewed it. Did I see the final drafts that, of -- I am not sure if I did or not.

Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 421. That is a February 27th, 1998 CLN Holdings Inc. resolution.

If I misspoke, the Exhibit Number is 423, not 421.

Q. Mr. Gittis, have you read the document, Exhibit 423?

A. I am looking through it. Yes.

(Pause.)

MR. SOLOVY: Just so the record is clear, there is no question pending; correct?

MR. BEMIS: He asked to read the document.

THE WITNESS: I was waiting for you. Okay.

Q. Now we are communicating better.

A. Right.

Q. Is that your signature on page 1 of the document?

A. It is.

Q. And did you sign this document on or about the date it bears, February 27th, 1998?

A. Probably sometime thereafter -- probably just as they were getting everything ready for a closing or signing, you know, I was signing, just before that. Dated as of February 27th; so, that is my best guess.

Q. Okay. I apologize for interrupting you.

A. That is okay.

Q. From your past testimony my understanding is that you read documents before you sign them; correct?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. You can hand that back to me.

A. All right.

Q. I will hand you what was marked as Exhibit 172 in a previous deposition. I have handed you Exhibit 172, sir, and when you are finished looking at it, I will ask you a couple questions.

A. Go ahead.

Q. Is that your signature that appears on page 1?

A. Yes.

Q. As was like in the case that I just showed you, Morgan Stanley 123, did you sign it as of February 27th, 1998?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you read it before you signed it?

A. Sure.

Q. You can hand it back to me. That is

A. Yes.
Q. What is it?
A. It is a letter given by an accounting firm to the issuer of securities, giving them comfort that as of the time of the issuance of the securities, certain, what events have transpired since the filing of the last certified financials.
Q. To state it another way, it covers a time period from the last, the date of the last certified financials up to a date stated on the letter; correct?
A. Yes. The date while, the date when you are going to issue securities.
Q. The issuance of this registration rights agreement was a condition precedent to the closing of the CLN merger agreement; correct?
A. I am sure it was, yes.
Q. Indeed, if you will go back, and I will ask you to take a look at Exhibit 172 --
A. Yes.
Q. Which exhibit is the consent of the directors in lieu of a meeting of Coleman (Parent) Holdings. And on the first page the execution of the registration rights agreement, Exhibit 278, is the condition precedent to the closing of the merger; correct?

A. Sure. Taking unregistered securities --

THE REPORTER: I did not hear.

A. We were getting unregistered securities. You want to get the securities registered within a certain time period. That is the purpose of a registration rights agreement.

Q. In the case of the registration rights agreement and obtaining a comfort letter, Sunbeam is the issuer of the securities; correct?

A. Sunbeam is the issuer of the securities.

Q. And the comfort letter that was referred to in the registration rights agreement would come from Sunbeam's auditor; correct?

A. From Sunbeam's auditor -- yes.

Q. Arthur Andersen.

A. Arthur Andersen.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Stand by. The time is 11:04 a.m., and we are back on the video record.

Q. Let me hand you, sir, what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 424.

This is entitled "Coleman Worldwide Corporation consent of directors in lieu of board of directors meeting."

Do you have that in front of you, sir?

A. Aha. I do.

Q. Please take a minute and look at it and I just have a couple of quick questions about it.

(Pause.)

A. Yes.

Q. The first question, sir, is: Is that your signature that appears on the first page?

A. It is.

Q. Did you sign it on, as of, excuse me, February 27th, 1998?

Q. Did you read it before you signed it?

A. Yes.
