A. Okay. For this transaction or, I guess, MNA in general, I don't think there's any person assigned to oversee the completion of due diligence. It's part of our process just, you know, in order to be able to complete all of our work, to have all of the information that we need it's sort of fundamental that we have all of the due diligence completed, and also we have all the information we need.
Q. If no one is responsible how does your department know that all of the due diligence has been conducted?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. Mischaracterization.
A. Like I said, in order for us to be able to complete our work and to be able to do our assignment properly that due diligence sort of gets completed as a matter of course. If we don't complete that we don't have the information we need to do our work and we're not able to provide our service to our clients.

Page 172

EUGENE YOO

Q. Who is responsible for conducting the follow-up due diligence?
A. I'm not sure what you mean by follow-up.
Q. Well, you testified earlier that part of your due diligence function was to keep up with current events of the company, their latest filings, earnings and announcements. Who was responsible for ensuring that all of that was reviewed?
A. It was really the whole deal team, really.
Q. Who was responsible at Morgan Stanley for conducting the accounting due diligence?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. The accounting due diligence -- well, to a certain extent we would do due diligence on the financials, but typically on an MNA transaction we didn't do any detailed accounting due diligence, we were relying on the auditors to do that for us and provide us comfort.
Q. Were you involved in that process?

EUGENE YOO

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. In which process?
Q. In the due diligence process in reviewing the financial information and reviewing the auditor's comfort that it was providing to Morgan Stanley?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Well, we didn't review the auditors, but we were reviewing financials that they had signed off on.
Q. I guess my question is did you review those financials?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. You personally?
A. I looked at some of them.
Q. Okay. And those were publicly available documents?
A. Yes.
Q. Any other documents that weren't publicly available?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.
A. In terms of financials?
Q. Correct.
A. There were the growth plans and budget that they had shown us.

Q. Did you ever review a comfort letter provided by Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley in connection with this transaction?
A. In connection with the MNA transaction?
Q. With -- well, in connection with the acquisition of the Coleman Company in the subsequent financing of that transaction.
A. I don't think I've seen that.
Q. Let's find it. I'm handing you what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 17. Do you recall seeing this document?
A. I don't think I've seen this.
Q. While conducting your due diligence did you discover any information indicating that Sunbeam was employing bill and hold transactions?
A. I'm sorry, what was the question again?
Q. In conducting your due diligence of Sunbeam did you acquire any information indicating that Sunbeam was employing bill and hold practices?
A. There was nothing in anything that we had seen that indicated that there was any kind of fraud or anything else going on that was out of the ordinary, just, you know, regular normal course of business.

Q. At that time were you familiar with the concept of a bill and hold transaction?
A. At the time I was not.
Q. Are you now aware of what a bill and hold transaction is?
A. Vaguely.
Q. Okay. How did you come to that information?
A. I, in reading about what had happened with Sunbeam through the newspapers.
Q. While conducting your due diligence did you acquire any information indicating that Sunbeam was engaging in other aggressive revenue recognition practices?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Again, as far as I could see there was really nothing that I saw that was out of the ordinary course of business.
Q. Okay. How about with respect to restructuring reserves. Did you find anything that indicated that they were improperly reserving?
A. No. Not that I can remember.
Q. You never had any conversations with Mr. Tyree on those issues?

EUGENE YOO

MS. BROWN: Objection. Compound.
A. No. I never really talked to John that much about, you know, the Sunbeam transaction. I actually really didn't see him that much, period.
Q. And your testimony is you have not seen the March 19, 1998 comfort letter before today?
A. I don't think I have. It doesn't look familiar.
Q. Do you recall reviewing any drafts of this letter?
A. I don't think so, no.
Q. Was the information about Sunbeam's existing financial condition, business and financial condition in January and February of 1998 relevant to the due diligence that you were performing?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Are you talking about the due diligence for the MNA transaction?
Q. Any due diligence that you performed on Sunbeam.
A. The financial condition of the company was something that I guess is relevant, but in our case it was something that we were, for the transaction itself something that we were less focused on. We had spent a lot of time with them and had grown comfortable with their numbers and when a transaction became tangible we were more focused on the financials of the target companies.

Q. Did you ever ask to see the comfort letter Arthur Andersen was providing to Sunbeam?
A. I did not personally, no.
Q. Did you know in January or February -- strike that.
Did you know at any point in the first quarter of 1998 that Sunbeam was experiencing a significant decline in sales?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I didn't know that there was any difficulty of the company in the first quarter.
Q. Is that information that you should have known in conducting your due diligence?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. And also to the extent it calls for a legal conclusion.
A. Based on the numbers that we were getting from the company everything seemed to be in order. Whether those numbers were accurate or not it was difficult for us to tell from our vantage point.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015276

EUGENE YOO

Q. What numbers do you recall receiving from Sunbeam the first quarter of 1998 with respect to its first quarter sales?
A. First quarter sales? I don't remember exactly what we got from them.
Q. If you could turn, sir, to CPH Exhibit 17, page MS377. I'm sorry, the bottom of MS378 to the top of 379. Paragraph 6.
A. Okay.
Q. And 6B. I'm sorry, 6C, which runs over onto MS379. "Although the company has not provided us with any financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, management has provided net sales from December 29, 1997 through March 1, 1998 which were 17,018,000 as compared to 143,499,000 for the corresponding period of the preceding year." Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you have that information in your possession in the first quarter of 1998 while you were conducting due diligence for Sunbeam?
A. I don't believe we did.

EUGENE YOO

Q. Is that information that would have been relevant to the tasks you were performing in conducting due diligence?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. If we had that information it probably would have been relevant.
Q. If someone at Morgan Stanley had that information would you expect that person to advise you about a 50 percent decrease in net sales over that period of time?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. Hypothetical.
A. I don't know what they would do. I can't speculate what they would do with that.
Q. But is that something you would have liked to have known?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. As an adviser on the transaction, you mean?
Q. Yes.
A. Yeah, it would have been good to know if we had known that at the time.
Q. What would you have done with that information?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. Hypothetical.
A. Again, I don't know. I haven't really been in that situation.

EUGENE YOO

Q. You have no idea what you would do?
A. If I had been given this?
Q. Uh-huh.
A. I don't know. I guess it just depends on what was going on at the time and how I found out and, you know, what we were doing.
Q. In the context of what you were doing and what information was being communicated to third parties in connection with your efforts to find a buyer or an acquisition target for Sunbeam, is this the kind of information that would be important to -- strike that.
Would this information be relevant to those third parties?
MS. BROWN: Object to form and calls for speculation.
A. I think it might be important.
Q. Why is that?
A. Because the, I don't know why it would be important to them. If I were to see this, if the sales numbers were significantly different from what I thought they were going to be that might be something important to let people know.
Q. Do you recall, sir, what Wall Street's expectations were of Sunbeam with respect to first quarter of 1998 sales?

EUGENE YOO

A. No, I don't.
Q. Does the range of 285 to 295 million refresh your recollection?
A. It might be, I don't know for sure.
Q. You don't recall anyone at Morgan Stanley discussing the contents of this comfort letter or the subject of Sunbeam's sales shortfall prior to the closing of the Coleman transaction?
MS. BROWN: Object to form and foundation.
A. I don't recall anything about that letter.
Q. The contents of the letter?
A. I think there was a public announcement by Sunbeam to that extent or something along those lines around that time. But again, at that point my involvement with Sunbeam was pretty limited.
Q. You were not involved in preparing or reviewing a press release in March of 1998?
A. No, I didn't have anything to do with that.
Q. Let me show you what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 14.
A. All right.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 182

EUGENE YOO

Q. Do you recall reading this press release at anytime?
A. I do recall reading this maybe the day or the day after that it came out.
Q. And again, you were not involved in any discussions concerning the issuance of this press release?
A. No.
Q. You were not involved in any conferences on March 18th, the day before the press release concerning Sunbeam's sales shortfall?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. What was your reaction to reading this press release?
A. Surprise. That's probably about it, just very surprised.
Q. Why were you surprised?
A. From what I remember up until that point I thought things were going very well. I thought they were on track for a good first quarter.
Q. Reading the first paragraph of that press release, what particular language in the press release surprised you?
A. It says its possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of analyst estimates.

Page 183

EUGENE YOO

Q. That came as a surprise to you?
A. Yes.
Q. With respect to the, the language, "the shortfall from analysts estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management in order patterns at certain of the companies major retail customers." Did that statement surprise you?
A. Actually, I didn't really understand that statement as much as part of the operations of the company that we weren't really involved in. That was the area where we started to rely more on the management team and team at Coopers to help us understand. But we weren't really involved at that level.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley about this press release?
A. I think the only person I talked to about it was Tyrone Chang.
Q. What did you and Mr. Chang discuss?
A. Well, he was the one that brought it to my attention, I believe. And we were both just talking about how we were surprised, because we were both very involved in the numbers in the model beforehand.

Page 184

EUGENE YOO

Q. Do you recall what specifically Mr. Chang said?
A. I don't remember specifically what he said.
Q. Did you feel misled when you read this press release?
A. I think at this point I wasn't quite sure what was happening, so I didn't know what to think.
Q. Did you talk to anybody at Sunbeam about this press release?
A. No. I hadn't really had any contact with anybody from Sunbeam since the board meeting.
Q. Other than Mr. Chang did you talk to anyone about the press release; Mr. Fuchs, Mr. Stynes, Mr. Kitts?
A. No, not Mr. Kitts. Not Mr. Stynes. I don't believe I talked to Alex about it.
Q. Did you tell anyone at Morgan Stanley that the information contained in the press release was inconsistent with what you were being told by Sunbeam?
A. I never really -- I'm not sure what you mean. Well.

Page 185

EUGENE YOO

Q. Well, you said you were surprised to learn of this press release.
A. Right.
Q. Did you convey that surprise to anyone besides Mr. Chang?
A. Not that I can remember, no.
Q. And you didn't do anything to follow up on the information contained in the press release?
A. No, I didn't.
Q. Now, CPH Exhibit 14 does not contain the information on the status of Sunbeam's sales in January and February of 1998 as reflected in the comfort letter; is that correct?
A. Can you read that back.
(Prior testimony read back.)
"Now, CPH Exhibit 14 does not contain the information on the status of Sunbeam's sales in January and February of 1998 as reflected in the comfort letter; is that correct?"
A. I believe that's correct.
Q. There's no discussion in CPH 14 about the 50 percent decline in sales in the first two months

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

EUGENE YOO

of 1998; right?
A. Not that I can see here, no.
Q. Again, that's information that was not provided to you either by Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley or Arthur Andersen for the --
A. Where do you get your information?
Q. The 50 percent decline of sales in the first two months of 1998.
A. That's correct. As far as I can remember that's not, that was not provided to us.
Q. And you couldn't, you couldn't tell that sales had declined by 50 percent by reading the press release on CPH Exhibit 14; correct?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I don't know what anybody else could interpret. I couldn't interpret it from that.
Q. In fact, the press release indicates that it was still possible that Sunbeam could reach Wall Street's estimates of 285 to 295 million; right?
A. I don't know. I can't say what other people would interpret it.
Q. Well, how do you interpret the first sentence? "Sunbeam Corporation said today that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts estimates of 285 million to 295 million, but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of 253.4 million. Do you read that to indicate that Sunbeam would not make Wall Street estimates of 285 to 295?

A. The way I read it myself personally, I thought there was a reasonably good chance that they were not going to be able to make sales in the range of 285 to 295.
Q. But it's not out of the question as worded in the press release?
A. It's a possibility it is, based on what the press release says.
Q. Did you talk to Mr. Tyree about this press release?
A. I don't believe I did.
Q. At the time you read the press release were you aware that he had conducted accounting due diligence of Sunbeam?
A. I was not aware of that.
Q. I'm handing you what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 112. Have you seen this document before?

A. No, I don't think so.
Q. This is a March 25, 1998 letter from Arthur Andersen updating the March 19th comfort letter; correct?
A. That appears to be the case.
Q. This document was not provided to you at anytime?
A. I don't believe so, no.
Q. Handing you what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 16. Do you recognize this document?
A. I'm not sure. I don't think I've seen this.
Q. This isn't a document that you obtained from Sunbeam management during your review of their expectations for sales in 1998?
A. I don't think I've ever seen this.
Q. Do you recall seeing any build up of sales, whether it related to the first quarter of 1998 or the entire year of 1998?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. As far as I can remember for 1998 I don't believe we ever saw any build up like this for sales. We had seen some historical numbers that they gave us for 1997.

EUGENE YOO

Q. They didn't show you any documents that showed how they were going to reach their sales expectations for 1998?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. Mischaracterization.
A. For 1998 I don't remember exactly what we saw, but I believe the breakdowns were based on product lines or divisions. But I don't remember exactly what it was we saw. And I don't think at the time, at least up until the point of the transaction they even had very much data available for first quarter.
Q. Except what's contained in the Arthur Andersen comfort letters; right?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. Mischaracterization. Do you want to put a date on what you're asking?
Q. First quarter of 1998 sales.
A. The -- well, my involvement tailed off after the board meeting which I think was early March. Up until that point I don't think we had much information on the first quarter. After the board meeting up until closing I had really had little to do with the transaction until after the closing.

Page 190

EUGENE YOO

Q. What did you do to ensure that others were looking at Sunbeam's first quarter sales after your involvement with the transaction tailed off?
A. I'm not sure if there was anything I did specifically to point people towards first quarter sales.
Q. Who assumed your responsibilities on the matter after the board meeting?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. There was the financing team which basically took over from the point the transaction was approved by the board. And then I think the legal team took over in terms of getting the deal closed.
Q. Who were the members of the finance team?
A. I don't know the whole team. I only really interacted with John Tyree.
Q. Ruth Porat?
A. I do believe she was involved at some point, I don't know how much.
Q. What were the other members of the MNA team doing after the board meeting on February 27th?

Page 191

EUGENE YOO

MS. BROWN: Object to form. Calls for speculation. Foundation.
Q. I'll clarify. What were they doing with respect to following Sunbeam's performance in 1998?
MS. BROWN: Object to foundation.
A. I don't know. I don't know what they were doing specifically. I don't know if there was anything they were doing at all.
Q. Is it typical that the MNA team stops working on the deal after the deal has been approved by the company's board?
A. Once the deal is approved there isn't much for us to do, we hand it off to mostly the legal team to get the closing completed. But most of our advisory work is completed at that point and then the team usually moves on to the next transaction.
Q. Who were the members of the legal team?
A. Skadden Arps, I believe. And I don't know who else.
Q. Is there anyone else in-house at Morgan Stanley that was working on the legal aspects of the deal?
A. Not that I can remember.

Page 192

EUGENE YOO

Q. Do you recall the law firm of the name Davis Polk?
A. I know who they are, yes.
Q. Do you recall they were representing Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I don't recall their involvement.
Q. Skadden represented Sunbeam; right?
A. Yes, I think that's the case.
Q. Other than members of the finance team and the legal team, was there anyone else at Morgan Stanley who was responsible for monitoring Sunbeam's business and financial condition after the board approved the transaction on February 27th?
MS. BROWN: Object to the form and characterization with regard to the legal team and Morgan Stanley.
A. I mean, anybody from the Morgan Stanley MNA team? Or everybody from Morgan Stanley in general, or?
Q. Well, you testified that members of the finance team and the legal team continued to perform due diligence of Sunbeam after the board meeting on February 27th; is that correct?

EUGENE YOO

A. I'm not sure -- I'm not sure what, I'm assuming they were doing due diligence in preparing for the offering, but I wasn't involved with it at all.
Q. Other than those two groups of people, do you know of anyone else that would have been working on the Sunbeam transaction after the board approved the acquisition of Coleman?
A. As far as I know from the MNA side I don't think there was anyone really actively working on Sunbeam.
Q. Were you involved in any bring down due diligence?
A. I was not.
Q. You did not participate in any bring down due diligence conference calls?
A. No, I don't believe so.
Q. I'm showing you what's been previously marked as CPH Exhibit 36. Have you seen this document before?
A. I don't think I saw it in this format. But I think I did review the press release when it was released.

Q. What was your reaction to Sunbeam's April 3rd press release?
A. Actually, at this point on the announcement of the financials, the sales shortfall, I actually really didn't think much of it at that point. I guess based on the prior press release I knew that there was a possibility that they were going to disappoint. So it didn't surprise me too much.
Q. It didn't surprise you that they were now announcing that first quarter sales were expected to be below 1997 levels based on what you read in the March 19th press release?
A. From my perspective I wasn't really paying attention to that portion of the press release. I just knew that the sales were disappointing, that's all I remember from reading the press release at that time. I was more focused on just Rich Goudis leaving, that was the part that I was more focused on.
Q. Why did you have an interest in his departure?
A. Well, he was the person that I had the most contact with from Sunbeam and I had gotten along quite well with him. I thought he was a good guy.

EUGENE YOO

Q. You said Rich Goudis?
A. Yes.
Q. Where in this press release does it discuss Goudis's departure?
A. I think it was -- maybe it wasn't in this one. Don had left. Maybe it wasn't in this one.
Q. Were you surprised that Mr. Oosi was terminated?
A. I guess at the time I don't think I was that surprised. It didn't seem like he had a great relationship with Al. I didn't really know him that well, but, and they seemed to only bring him out in certain situations. He wasn't really present at all of the meetings.
Q. Did you believe that their explanation for the shortfall was accurate?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. You know, again, that's kind of getting to a level of business that we weren't all that involved with. Their inventory management it seems like.
Q. Did you discuss this press release with anyone at Morgan Stanley after it was released?

EUGENE YOO

A. Again, I think the only person I really spoke about it with was Tyrone Chang, along the same lines as the prior ones. And I think he was the one that brought it to my attention.
Q. What did the two of you discuss?
A. I don't really recall what we said at that point. I think for us Sunbeam was pretty far in the rearview mirror at that point.
Q. Do you recall hearing that the March, the contents of the March 19, 1998 press release were included in the debenture offering memo?
A. I didn't know that they were.
Q. Did you hear that Arthur Andersen objected to the inclusion of the press release language into the offering memo?
A. I didn't know anything about that.
Q. No one ever told you about a confrontation between Mr. Bornstein of Anderson and Mr. Tyree on March 18th or 19th --
A. No.
Q. -- regarding the contents of the press release or the offering memo?
A. No, I didn't know anything about that.
Q. Okay. Do you know anything about that now?

EUGENE YOO

A. (Witness shakes head in the negative.) No, this is the first time I'm hearing about it.
Q. Have you ever heard Mr. Tyree use profanity around the office?
A. Not really. I didn't really work with him that much. I probably talked to him three or four times total in my four years there. I think he was a former, he came out of the Navy or the Army.
Q. One of the services?
A. Yeah. That's all I really knew about him. I don't think combined I spent more than 30 minutes with him in four years.
Q. You testified earlier you did not participate on the roadshow; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you recall hearing that Mr. Kirsch or Mr. Dunlap were downplaying the significance of the March 19th press release during the roadshow?
A. I don't think I heard anything about that.
Q. Did you have any communications with Andrew Conway at Morgan Stanley on the issue of synergies?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 198

EUGENE YOO

A. I never talked to Andrew about synergies. Actually, I never even spoke to Andrew.
Q. You know who he is?
A. I believe he's the equity research analyst.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Chang ever spoke to Mr. Conway?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you have any involvement preparing materials for the leverage finance commitment committee at Morgan Stanley; materials in connection with the debenture offering or the financing of the acquisition of Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Compound.
A. Not that I know of.
Q. On either of those issues?
A. No.
Q. And let me show you what has previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 129. This is a fairly long document. I don't have many questions about it. But do you see that your name is listed, it's spelled incorrectly, under Mar?
A. Yes.
Q. And this is a March 10, 1998 equity commitment, a memo to the equity commitment committee?

Page 199

EUGENE YOO

A. Right.
Q. And it's listed -- the authors are listed as many individuals at Morgan Stanley including yourself?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Did you prepare any of the pages of this memo?
A. I think I helped draft the background information. I don't recall who wrote the original version, but I think I helped edit it.
Q. What pages?
A. One and 2.
Q. Were you involved in the preparation of the highly confidential letter with regard to the financing of the acquisitions?
A. No, I don't believe so.
Q. Did you attend any meetings of the equity commitment committee and the leverage finance commitment committee?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Are those two entities the same; are they referred to as the same?
A. I think they're separate entities.
Q. Okay. Would you turn to page 516, page 4 of the memo of Exhibit 129. There's a paragraph called

EUGENE YOO

Restructuring?
A. Okay.
Q. The second sentence, "the restructuring portion of the plan has been substantially completed with only the final, quote, refinement, unquote, stage remaining." Do you see that?
A. Maybe I have the wrong page number.
Q. I'm sorry. Page 4?
A. Page 4.
Q. Right. Restructuring?
A. Second sentence, I'm sorry. Right.
Q. Do you see that? Do you know what that refers to? The final refinement stage.
MS. BROWN: Object. Speculation.
A. I can't say for certain.
Q. You didn't draft this paragraph, to your knowledge?
A. No, not this page, not this paragraph.
Q. If you turn to page 11 of the memo, which is Morgan Stanley 523.
A. Okay.
Q. Under "equity valuation," third bullet point, "the company's current trading levels are warranted given the level of expected synergies,

Page 201

EUGENE YOO

150 million pre tax." Do you know the basis --
MS. BROWN: And it continues from there.
Q. I'm sorry? And it continues from there. Do you recall the basis for that?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Speculation.
A. For the 150 million?
Q. Right.
A. I don't know.
Q. If you turn to page 17 of the memo, page 529, paragraph 5. Take a moment to read that, please.
A. (Witness reviewing.) Okay.
Q. Do you recall the basis for that paragraph?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Speculation.
A. No, I couldn't say for certain where it came from.
Q. Sorry. You didn't draft that?
A. No, I didn't write this.
Q. Okay. The last sentence refers to Sunbeam management informing -- well, let's see. It shouldn't say that. It refers to a "they," I'm not sure if it's referring to Sunbeam management or who, but "they informed Sunbeam board of directors that the synergies are likely to be in the 225 to 275 million pre tax range." Do you have any knowledge of where those numbers came from?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Showing you what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 100. It's another lengthy document entitled The Selling Memorandum, dated March 12, 1998. Have you seen this document before?

A. I don't think I've seen this before. It doesn't look familiar.

Q. You don't recall preparing any of the pages that are contained in this document?

A. Let me see. I may have prepared some of these pages at some point, but not specifically for this document.

Q. Okay.

A. This looks like a collection of other pages.

Q. Do you know what the purpose of -- strike that. Do you know if the selling memorandum was used in connection with the debenture offering?

A. I have no idea.

Q. Okay. If you can turn to page 22 of the memo which is Morgan Stanley 62882.

A. Okay.

EUGENE YOO

Q. The paragraph "ability to attain synergies." The last sentence reads "in addition, while Andrew Conway has modeled 150 million in synergies in 1998 he feels that there could be an upside to this figure." Do you recall any conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley concerning this modeling by Andrew Conway?

A. No, I didn't know anything about this.

Q. And again you never had any conversations with him about that?

A. I never talked to Andrew, no.

Q. Showing you what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 76. Have you ever seen this document?

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. The first page is a memorandum to the leverage finance commitment committee from RB Smith or Braum Smith?

A. Right.

Q. It references a meeting of that committee on March 20th. Did you attend that meeting?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Do you know if during that meeting the commitment committee discussed Sunbeam's sales shortfall?

EUGENE YOO

MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.

A. I don't know what they discussed at the meeting, no.

Q. No one ever talked to you about what was discussed at that meeting?

A. No. As far as I remember I've never heard anything about it.

Q. I'm handing you what's previously been marked CPH Exhibit 135. In connection with your work on potential divestiture of certain aspects of Coleman or the new Sunbeam, did you attend the analyst meeting on May 11, 1998?

A. I don't think I did.

Q. Have you seen this document before?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley prepared any of the slides that are contained in this document?

MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.

A. I don't think we helped them with this. I couldn't tell you.

Q. If you could turn to page, Morgan Stanley 63748, please.

A. Okay.

Q. This indicates an original cost savings and synergies of 150 million dollars and it purports to be an actual cost savings of synergies of 291 million. Do you have any knowledge of this page or the, or the 291 million dollar figure that appears on that page?

EUGENE YOO

A. No. I don't know either one.

Q. Please turn to page 63751. It's entitled Sources of Growth. "Potential 1999 impact of 265 million." Do you have any knowledge of the basis for that synergy estimate?

A. No, I don't know.

MS. BROWN: Object to the characterization.

Q. Would you please turn to Morgan Stanley 63755 entitled Savings Summary. There's a list of savings on this page with total savings of acquired companies 201 million, Sunbeam sourcing strategy of 52 million with a grand total savings of 253 million. Do you have any knowledge of the basis for that calculation?

A. No, I'm not sure where they came up with these numbers.

Q. You don't know if Morgan Stanley was involved in providing any of that type of data to Sunbeam?

MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.

EUGENE YOO

A. I don't know, I don't know if Morgan Stanley was involved at all or not.
Q. Set that aside. Mr. Yoo, were you involved in conducting any due diligence of the Coleman Company prior to the close of the transaction?
A. I had some involvement with that, yes.
Q. And what was your role?
A. At that point it was more of a coordination role, I think, between Skadden and Arthur Andersen and Coopers. There were teams that were going through the various corporate documents or visiting various sites around the country and our job at that point was to make sure that people were going to the right places and all the right information was getting gathered.
Q. Did you actually attend any of these site visits?
A. I did not personally, no.
Q. Did you review any documents provided by Coleman as part of the due diligence process?
A. I don't recall what documents I went through.
Q. But you did in fact go through some documents, or you just can't recall if you looked at any documents?

EUGENE YOO

A. I know we went through some of the financials and some of the projections, but we had already gone through some of that before. I don't recall if there was anything else that we went through or I went through personally.
Q. Did you ever request any information from Coleman that you didn't receive?
A. Not that I can remember.
Q. Did you ever form an opinion on the value of the Coleman Company?
MS. BROWN: Object to the form.
A. Did I personally --
Q. Correct.
A. -- come up with an opinion? I probably came up with some, some opinion of what it was worth. I don't recall what it was.
Q. Do you have any recollection, ballpark range?
A. No. I don't remember anything about it being significantly different from the transaction.
Q. You never formed an opinion that Sunbeam was overpaying for the Coleman Company?
A. (No response.)
Q. I sorry, I didn't hear your answer.

Page 208

EUGENE YOO

MS. BROWN: He didn't yet.
A. I didn't answer. No, I don't think I ever really had that opinion.
Q. Did anyone express that opinion to you at anytime?
A. Not, not during the transaction, no.
Q. After the transaction closed?
A. I think I remember hearing some people talking about the value that was ultimately paid, or I guess the price, the dollar price of the stock that was announced.
Q. What do you recall hearing?
A. I don't remember exactly what they said, but it was something along the lines of, it was a, it was a good price for Pearlman.
Q. What did you take that to mean?
A. I think at the time that I had heard it I was thinking that the, you know, one could argue that the price was maybe high based on traditional valuation techniques, but we thought that it was still a good deal for Sunbeam, you know.
Q. But in your work prior to the close of the transaction in reviewing information about

Page 209

EUGENE YOO

Coleman's business and Sunbeam's business, you never reached that conclusion; right?
A. Which?
Q. The conclusion that -- I'll withdraw it.
During the time that you were reviewing Coleman's financial and business information and Sunbeam's business and financial information prior to the closing of the transaction, you never formed the conclusion that Sunbeam was overpaying for Coleman; correct?
A. No, I never really thought that.
Q. Did you hear what the basis was for these people that were saying that, saying that Pearlman, Mr. Pearlman had received whatever it was that they were saying?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. It was a bad question. Other than hearing that some people were saying that Mr. Pearlman -- I'll withdraw that.
Did the people that spoke to you about the Coleman purchase price, did they provide any basis for the statements that they were making about what Sunbeam paid for Coleman?
A. I don't really remember the conversation. If I anything related to Sunbeam.

Q. In light of what you learned throughout the rest of 1998 and before you wrote this, is there anything you would have done differently?
A. Done differently where?
Q. At any point in the Sunbeam engagement.
A. I don't think there's really anything that I would have done differently. I don't think we -- we went through the entire deal process pretty thoroughly and thought.
Q. I have no further questions at this time.
MS. BROWN: Just a couple of quick questions.

EXAMINATION

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. I think you already told Mr. O'Connor that you do not -- do you know -- strike that.
Do you know what information Sunbeam relied on when it determined to acquire Coleman?
A. Do I know?
Q. What information Sunbeam management or board relied on when it determined to acquire Coleman?
A. I don't know firsthand what information they had or what they were using.

EUGENE YOO

Q. Do you know what information Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relied upon when it provided a bank facility to Sunbeam?
A. No, I can't say with certainty I know.
Q. Were you involved in the team that was providing the underwriting service for the convertible note offering?
A. No, I was not involved.
Q. Are you familiar with the due diligence performed by that team?
A. No, not really.
Q. Are you familiar with any due diligence performed by Morgan Stanley Senior Funding before giving the bank facility to Sunbeam?
A. No, I don't believe so.
Q. No further questions.

EXAMINATION

BY MR. O'CONNOR:
Q. Mr. Yoo, in response to the question of whether you have knowledge of what Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relied on in providing financing for the acquisition, your response was "not with certainty." Are you aware of any, anything that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relied on?

A. I can assume that they were using most of the same information that we had, but I don't know.
Q. So other than that assumption you don't know?
A. No.
Q. Okay. No further questions.
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is four twenty-eight. We're off the record.

The time is 9:30 a.m. on September 1, 2004.

WILLIAM G. NESBITT, called as a witness by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc, having been previously duly sworn, testified further as follows:

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Nesbitt. How are you?

A. Fine, thanks.

Q. Yesterday we were in the month of December discussing some meetings you had and I would like to move forward in the month of December with you.

According to MS 75 which is the chronology we looked at earlier there was a meeting on December 16.

I will hand you a copy of that if you like.

MR. BEMIS: Do you have a copy, Mr. Markowski?

015294

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

THE WITNESS: May I refer to this generally, by the way?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Yes, sure. If you need to see a document, you want to see something, ask for it and we will try to find it real quickly.
Referring to December 16, there is a reference -- withdrawn.
Let me see 224.
Let me ask you to set that aside for a second. We will come back to that in a minute.
I will show you what the court reporter will mark as MS 224 first.
(MS Exhibit 224 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Mr. Nesbitt, I have handed you what the court reporter marked as MS 224.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you write this memorandum to Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis and Mr. Maher?
A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you give it to them?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. What was the reason that you prepared this memorandum to Mr. Perelman and the others?
A. We were contemplating a transaction which involved the sale of a company which we controlled at the time, had a substantial economic interest in, and I think the understanding going forward was that Mr. Dunlap would be running that business, overseeing it as chief executive officer.
As a consequence it was extraordinarily important for us to understand the economic incentives that had been previously negotiated with Mr. Dunlap so that -- to understand his motivations, to understand his compensation, to understand perhaps some of his objectives as chief executive officer, and, I think, as it related to anything that involved a purchase of stock on his part, his commitment, his confidence level in a particular situation.

Q. What is the relationship between his purchase of stock and his commitment and confidence level in your view as an analyst?
A. I think it has to be considered in the context of the overall contract. It has to be considered in the context of his compensation. It has to be considered in the context of his net worth, whether it is meaningful, but I think it is fair to say that the purchase of stock is better than no purchase of stock as an example of some commitment.
Having said that at the chief executive officer level it is quite typical and quite expected from my experience that a chief executive officer would purchase some stock.
There are exceptions but -- so --
Q. In December of 1997 when you reviewed the contract and you did get a copy of the contract, right?
A. Yes, I believe it was an exhibit to one of the 10-Ks.
Q. When you reviewed the contract and you looked at the terms and you analyzed it did you consider this contract a positive in terms of Mr. Dunlap's commitment to Sunbeam?

A. If you give me a chance to review this to refresh my memory I will try to give you an opinion on that.
I guess my reaction today and recollection of my reaction at that time is I would put this on the far side of rich in terms of the stock grants and the options, but having said that it certainly presented Mr. Dunlap with the incentive to increase the stock price and I do want to emphasize increase the stock price.
There doesn't appear to be as much compensation relating to meeting objectives as set out by the board of directors for profit goals, short or long term, whatever measures that they wanted, whatever hurdles that they wanted him to set, but it certainly set the cross bar or rather the upside for Mr. Dunlap at very significant levels if he was able to get the stock price up over the period of time during which this was -- this contract was in effect subject to its terms and conditions.

Q. My question was to you, did you view in your analysis Mr. Dunlap's contract to reflect a commitment to him by Sunbeam?
I used "commitment" the way you used it in one of your previous answers.
A. I understand.
Yes.
Q. Thank you.
You can set that aside.
Did you discuss your analyses with Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis or Mr. Maher after you gave them MS 224?
A. I believe I did.
Q. When did you do that?
A. I do not recall specifically the date.
Q. Was it a meeting with all three gentlemen or just one of them?
A. I do not recall.
Q. What was said in the meeting with the gentlemen, Mr. Maher, Mr. Gittis, or Mr. Perelman or a combination of them the best that you can tell us now?

A. May I take another look at the document just to hopefully refresh my memory?
Q. Sure.
A. To the best of my recollection I believe the discussion was along the lines of what I conveyed to you earlier in terms of our interpretation of it.
Q. Did Mr. -- I interrupted you. Were you finished?
A. Yes.
I cannot recall specific commentary by any one of those individuals. I am giving you the kind of general sense which I left the meeting.
Q. Did anyone?
A. Or discussion. It could have been a series of discussions and for that matter there could have been discussions without me so --
Q. Did anyone at the meetings that you recall on the subject of the contract in which either Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis or Mr. Maher were present, did any of those gentlemen express a view that the employment contract did not reflect a commitment by Mr. Dunlap to Sunbeam, at least as of this time?

A. I do not recall any discussion to that effect either way, affirmatively or negatively.
Q. Did one individual give you the task of obtaining the employment contract? For example, did Mr. Maher ask you to do it as opposed to Mr. Perelman?
A. I don't recall whether it was at my own initiative or whether it was at Mr. Maher's which would be typical but this is for me to review. This is standard and customary.
It is to understand the motivations of the individual with whom, some aspect, one aspect of the motivations of the individual with whom we are negotiating and who may hold and run a business that will run.
Put differently, whenever we buy a business these sorts of -- a contract is extremely important.

Q. When you buy a business you buy the contract as well, right?
A. I am not sure what you are referring to.
Q. If you buy a business and the people in the business have employment contracts, you, as the buyer of the business, become responsible for the contracts?
A. We may also be responsible for -- to the extent there is a change contemplated as part of the purchase in negotiating a contract with a new individual or a series of contracts.
Q. My question was when you buy a business.
A. You buy --
Q. You buy the contract along with the business unless there is an escape out of the contract, right?
A. Assuming it is a stock purchase, you are absolutely right.
If it is an asset purchase it is not the same.
Q. In addition to Mr. Dunlap's

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

contract there were other executives at Sunbeam who entered into long term, and I will use "long term" in the sense they were multiyear, contracts of employment; did you research that as well?

A. I believe I may have, yes.

Q. For example, I believe that Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin both entered into long term contracts at the same time as Mr. Dunlap, do you recall that?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Are you referring to -- at what point in time are you referring?

MR. BEMIS: The same time Mr. Dunlap entered his contract.

MR. MARKOWSKI: His original contract?

MR. BEMIS: Yes, sir. The period he is looking at.

THE WITNESS: I do not recall the fact that they entered into -- the terms of those contracts I believe -- it is consistent with my recollection that they entered into contracts at roughly the same time.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Did you --

A. And of a similar vein, similar theme, if you will, similar kind of tone to those contracts.

Q. And similar --

A. But -- sorry.

Q. That is all right. I am not always sure when you are done and I apologize. We will get our rhythm down this morning.

Go ahead and answer.

A. Having said that I do recall they were at substantially lower levels in terms of the various parameters.

Q. Did they have the same terms as you recall in year length, not in compensation?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you consider the existence of those contracts by Mr. Kersh as an example of a commitment by him as well to Sunbeam?

A. Yes, I did, in the sense that it presented substantial upside and limited downside.

Q. Would the same be true for Mr. Fannin?

A. I believe so.

Q. Now we are finished with that. Thank you.

Let me hand you back -- no, excuse me. You already do have MS 75, the chronology, in front of you.

I would like you to look at the meeting date of December 16, 1997.

Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. There is a reference there to a meeting at which you are listed as an attendee with the various individuals where there was a discussion of the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction.

Did you in fact attend that meeting?

A. The record suggests I did and I -- it was -- this was provided to Wachtell as part of my commentary to them but I have no specific recollection at this point that on December 16, 1997 I attended this meeting nor do I have any recollection of the specific agenda of that meeting and the outcome based on what I see now.

Q. Had you -- strike that.

Did you have, at least about this time, one or more meetings with Credit Suisse First Boston?

A. Again, as our investment banker, we did have a number of meetings, numerous meetings with them on all aspects of the transaction I believe primarily at our offices but, again, I don't -- I do not recall in the absence of perhaps seeing a specific document with a date what the agenda was on the basis of what I see here.

Q. Was -- did you attend any meetings with -- at which Mr. Perelman was present where there was any discussion of the meeting with Mr. Dunlap that is on the chronology shown as occurring on December 18, 1997?

I think that is the meeting in Palm Beach that we discussed yesterday briefly.

A. Right. December 18, you said?

If I can take a moment to review

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015207

this?
I do not recall whether Mr. Perelman was present. I do recall hearing about it. I believe it was Mr. Maher that informed me.
Q. That the meeting was going to take place or --
A. No, that it had taken place.
Q. Let's focus before the meeting taking place and let's go there and then go forward.
Do you recall anyone telling you -- and if you told me this yesterday I apologize -- do you remember anyone telling you that the meeting was going to take place with Mr. Dunlap?
A. No.
Q. Referring to December 16, 1997 on the chronology, Exhibit 75, is it correct to say you don't have any recollection of that meeting as you sit here today?
A. Repeat that again.
Q. Is it fair to say that the meeting that is shown on MS 75 as occurring on December 16 where Mr. Perelman,

Mr. Maher, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Levin, Mr. Shapiro and yourself and Mr. Ginstling are shown as appearing as well as Mr. Drapkin, Gordon Rich, Robin Duffy and Steven Geller are shown as meeting, that you do not remember that meeting as you sit here today?
A. I do not recall the specific content of the meeting on the 16th, or, put differently, I would not be able to distinguish between, for example, the meeting on the 16th and the meeting on the 17th but I do recall that there were a series of meetings during which these individuals -- large group meetings, were held and I was present to discuss this transaction.
Q. Would you characterize the December 16 meeting, if all of the attendance were there that are shown on MS 17 -- excuse me -- 75, were present as one of the large group meetings?
A. Yes.
Q. Recognizing that you may have trouble differentiating one meeting from another this many years that passed do you recall there was at least one initial meeting where you were introduced to CSFB and their role in the transaction as an adviser to Coleman was explained?

A. Yes.
Q. Was Mr. Perelman at that first meeting?
A. I do not recall.
Q. What happened at the first meeting that you attended, one of these large meetings where CSFB was introduced as the adviser to Coleman, the Coleman team in the transaction being contemplated or at least discussed at this time with Sunbeam?
A. Is there a document related to that meeting that was discussed that is a matter of record?
Q. There isn't. I am not hiding from you. I don't have a document for that date.
If there is I don't know what it is. This is the best document I could give you.
A. There is no document that I can refer to? That is all I want to know.

Q. All I can tell you is I can't find one if there is.
A. That is fine. I understand.
My recollection of the initial sort of kickoff meeting, if in fact that is the one on the 16th, but let's forget about the date because I can't attach a meeting to a date, was that it was a general -- a general discussion of the -- I guess involving potential structures, potential strategy and perhaps fit, motivation, and I think some discussion regarding our interest in entertaining a transaction which involved a substantial component of stock at least, in fact, I think at this point it was contemplated to be all stock at least as far as --
Q. When you had this initial meeting where you discussed these items, structure, strategy, fit, motivation, stock as the primary consideration, did you give to CSFB the modeling that you had done that we looked at yesterday and marked as Morgan Stanley 104 and 105?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I have no specific recollection of giving it to them. It would be quite typical given our relationship with CSFB which was long-standing and very close for to us share -- for me to share that information with them, show them whatever we had done, and, for that matter, vice versa.

Q. Did you, at this first meeting, the best you can recall it, share with CSFB the analysis you had done of Mr. Dunlap's employment contract which we marked as your memorandum MS 224?

A. What was the date?

Q. December 15.

A. That -- I have no recollection of any discussion on that front.

Q. Do you recall whether -- strike that.

Did CSFB give the Coleman team any documents at this first large group meeting?

A. I do not recall a specific document but it would be quite typical for there to be some discussion document that CSFB had prepared as a basis for understanding the kind of basic economics and business lines, executives, stock price history, kind of a primer on the potential purchaser and even the rudimentary merger consequences.

Q. Did you discuss at this first large group meeting where Mr. Perelman was present, CSFB was present, that Morgan Stanley was the investment banker adviser to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall that it was clear at that point that Morgan Stanley had been specifically retained -- well, I don't recall specific discussion on that point but my recollection is that Sunbeam, it is -- Sunbeam had, I believe, engaged an investment banker prior to this in the fall, I believe, to solicit bids for the company.

I don't know if that was a matter of kind of public record or an announcement but there may have been -- I thought I had heard there was kind of an informal effort to shop the company.

Q. At some point you did however learn --

A. That would involve an investment bank. Sorry.

Q. At some point you did however learn that Morgan Stanley was the investment adviser for Sunbeam, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you learn that in one of these group meetings regardless of which one it was?

A. Yes, or it could have even been just a conversation between Jim Maher and myself.

Q. I asked you earlier whether you had received any documents from CSFB and I am going to show you a package of documents that has been previously marked as MS 76 and while it looks daunting there is actually only four documents attached which is -- on the second page it gives you a table of contents and I would ask you first to take a look at it and then I will have a couple of questions again.

I hand you MS 76.

Again, just look at the second page. It will give you an index of what is in that larger group of documents, if that helps.

I don't have questions, by the way, about the underlying documents.

A. Fine. Okay.

Q. My first question now that you looked at MS 76 is: Did you receive that package of documents from CSFB?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you receive it from them at the first large group meeting that you attended or was it sometime thereafter?

A. I don't recall specifically when I received this. This is -- having said that, this is the sort of document that may have been sent over by courier just as -- to assist us because as you will note it is just the 10-Q, 10-K proxy, research reports to help us out in any way.

Rather than wait until a specific meeting, you send this over to the client immediately as soon as there is any sort of discussion.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Looking at the documents that were sent over to you, the form 10-Q for Sunbeam, that is for the third quarter, right?
A. I am checking.
Q. By that I mean the third quarter of 1997.
A. Yes, it is.
Q. You had already seen that when you were preparing your December analyses we marked as MS 104 and 105, right?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. The next document which is in the packet which is the form 10-K for 1996, you had already seen that as well?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And you had seen the research reports which are set forth behind tab 5 -- excuse me -- tab 4?
I realize your document isn't tabbed because none of them are. If I flip --
A. I got it.
Q. Okay.
A. We subscribe, I don't recall specifically what, which ones, but to one or more services which provide us with research, online research related to -- that is distributed by the various Wall Street banks.

Having said that, access differs from -- depending on the service you have and so my sense is that I may have seen some of this.
Sorry. Let me put it differently.
I may have retrieved some of this on my own or for that matter it is conceivable that this was the basis for my -- for my work although -- I can clarify that in one second.
There is nothing here from Goldman, so that would at least, since one of my numbers was a Goldman number, it would suggest that I may have retrieved on my own separate, apart and separate from CSFB, from what CSFB received.
This augmented my --
Q. As I recall MS 104 and 105, for Sunbeam you were using Goldman Sachs' analyst's estimates for your electronic spreadsheet, right?

A. I was using Goldman Sachs research, I want to refer to the document, but I believe it was for Sunbeam and I thought one of them was CSFB.
Q. It was for Coleman that was CSFB.
A. Okay.
Q. Now, when you received the package from CSFB which we just marked as Ms. 76 you received additional Sunbeam research reports from, it looks like, Prudential Securities?
A. Right.
Q. And I think the next one in the package is from Oppenheimer & Company, Inc.
A. Yes.
Q. Then there is another research report from -- there is one from PaineWebber that I know is in here and then we have another one, I think, at the very end from Merrill Lynch, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you review all of these research reports after you received them from CSFB?

A. Yes, I would have.
Q. Did you make any changes -- did you make any changes in your analyses that you had done in MS 104 and 105 after reviewing these four additional analyst reports on Sunbeam?
A. At this point I don't recall that my review of these research reports caused me to make any specific changes.
Q. I noticed -- I notice on top of the analyst reports they all bear the header Thomson Financial. Do you know who that is, Thomson Financial?
A. It is a publication firm, media research firm.
Q. Is it one of the firms from which one can gather analyst reports?
A. I believe it is, yes. Again, I don't recall which one we used but --
Q. Based on your receipt of these materials in MS 76, particularly the analyst reports now and your own gathering of analyst reports, to the extent that you did that when you prepared MS 104 and 105 you would have had at least five analyst reports to look at as of the mid December 1997, correct?

A. Yes; these four and the Goldman report.
Q. Did you find in your analysis of these five analyst reports any information that to you was a red flag, if you will, about Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall anything that rose to the level of a red flag show stopper, deal killer, but I am happy to review these again if you would like.
Q. I am not trying to find one for you. I don't know if there is one or not but I don't see anything in your documentation that suggests that you did. That why I asked you the question.
I take it your answer is as you sit here today you don't recall any show stopper, red flags?
A. No.
Q. Would the same be true with regard to the public filings that you reviewed of Sunbeam, that is, at least as of this time in December you didn't see any show stopper red flags with regard to Sunbeam?

A. That is true.
Q. With regard to your review of the audited financial statements of Sunbeam that were audited and certified by Arthur Andersen did you see any show stopper red flags in those audited financial statements that you as an analyst would report to your superiors on the Coleman team?
A. No, I did not.
Q. You may hand it back and I will put it back. If it wasn't for all the paper this job wouldn't be too bad.
As a result of the first meeting -- withdrawn.
As a result of the first large group meeting that you can remember with CSFB when Mr. Perelman was present were there any assignments handed out to CSFB?
A. I don't recall a specific assignment.
Q. Having worked with CSFB before in other transactions did you consider this transaction with Sunbeam to be unusual in terms of the types of assignments that CSFB had had with Mr. Perelman's companies?

A. In terms of the -- no, I don't believe so.
Q. Did you feel based on your relationship with CSFB and of course your reporting to Mr. Maher and Mr. Perelman, to the extent that you did so, that there was sufficient familiarity, if you will, between the parties, that is, CSFB and the Coleman team here, that the parties understood what they were going to do in this negotiation with Sunbeam in terms of their analysis and how they were going to go about their discussions with Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. In any of the large group meetings where you have described discussions -- discussing such things as structure and strategy and fit and the relationship between -- excuse me -- the motivations that enter into the deal did you ever invite Morgan Stanley to sit in on those meetings?

A. No.
Q. After Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap met, again, on November 18, I think that is what the record will show, I know you didn't attend the meeting but at some point you did hear about it, right?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I think you said November.
MR. BEMIS: I meant to say December. Let me ask the question again so it is clear.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. After Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman met at his home in West Palm in or about December 18, you told me you heard about the meeting from some source.
A. Yes.
Q. What did you hear about how the meeting went?
A. I heard that the meeting did not go particularly well on two levels.
One is with respect to price, that the offer was considered low. I believe it was something on the order of 18 to 22 or so per share being offered.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Second, the tenor of the meeting was such that it was my understanding that Mr. Dunlap stormed out at some point.
There was a discussion and again I was not there so I don't know specifically at which point or why but during the -- during that discussion Mr. Dunlap, and I don't recall if anyone else was present, simply left.
Q. You referred to the price that you heard was offered as 18 to $22 as being low.
Had the Coleman team based on these large group meetings or even internal meetings up to this point arrived at, at least, a working number internally that they were looking to receive from Sunbeam if a transaction should go forward recognizing that there could be other negotiations?
A. I don't recall a specific number being discussed as the only number or the number that we should shoot for at this point.

Q. Can you tell the jury, given that 18 to $20 was low --
A. Right.
Q. -- what was considered to be a reasonable number at that time even if it was subject to negotiation and reasonable on the side of the Coleman team of the negotiations?
A. I don't recall a view that we had formed -- I don't recall a discussion that -- in which we reviewed a specific number and formulated an opinion on the basis of analysis and work with CSFB at that point.
Q. Whatever you were talking about, 18 to $22 was lower than what you were talking about; is that fair to say?
A. That is fair to say.
Q. At the time of the meeting with Mr. Dunlap on December 18 had the Coleman team in terms of structure of a transaction, was it looking at an all-stock transaction of some kind?
A. I believe at that point we were talking about an all-stock transaction.

Q. Is there a reason why the Coleman team was, at this time, December of 1997, looking at a stock -- all-stock transaction as opposed to a structure that had either all cash or a component of cash and stock?
A. I believe it was at the suggestion of Sunbeam that we were discussing all cash -- sorry, all stock.
Q. Who is it that you understood at Sunbeam made that suggestion?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you participate in the meeting where a representative of Sunbeam made that statement to you?
A. No.
Q. Was this something that you heard from someone else on the Coleman team?
A. Yes, I believe it was Mr. Maher.
Q. Moving forward now from the December 18, 1997 meeting which ended as I understand or recall your testimony that Mr. Dunlap stormed out, was the word that you used, what was the next involvement that you had with the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction as it eventually materialized in February of 1998?

A. As the document from Wachtell, MS 75, suggests and I recall, I think there was a period where the transaction was essentially dormant after that meeting which extended through the holidays and into -- I don't recall nor does the Wachtell document indicate that sometime in January I do recall hearing, I don't believe I participated on any call, but that Bill Reid who was a representative of Morgan Stanley, also happened to be our relationship banker at Morgan Stanley, had called to try to resurrect discussions, that they were still interested and notwithstanding what had happened, which I think left a bad taste in our mouths, that they were interested in trying to go forward on some basis.
Q. That is very helpful. We can skip almost a month it sounds like between December 18, the meeting at West Palm Beach until sometime in January until something happens again; is that fair?
A. Yes, I believe that is the case.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. From your standpoint you were able to turn your attention if you will to other matters during this dormant period and you had no further involvement with the Sunbeam analyses then after the fallout with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman at Mr. Perelman's residence in Palm Beach?

A. I don't recall. I can refer to my calendar. I should check whether I may have been on vacation but I don't recall continued work on this transaction at that point.

Q. Let me hand you your calendar, MS 195. It is possible something is there but I don't recall anything is there.

Why don't you take a quick look and see for us?

A. Okay.

Q. It looks to me like you were doing a lot of traveling between the east and west coast during this period of time on the Panavision deal?

A. Yes, unrelated to Sunbeam.

Through the month of January that appears to be how I spent my time.

Q. You were traveling frequently to go to Woodland Hills. That is one of the addresses for Panavision?

A. That is the headquarters of Panavision.

Q. Then you were staying in Santa Monica if I look at your calendar?

A. Yes, at one point, yes.

Q. Flying my favorite American Airlines back and forth too by flight number. I say that because I have been on it so many times.

A. There are, in my calendar towards the end of the month there is -- there are various notes or dates, schedule related to a road show. I was not on that road show. It is in my calendar.

Q. What date are you referring to?

A. I am looking really from the 27th -- 27th, I think I was part of that, but the 28th, Philadelphia, Hartford, Baltimore, Boston and through the 29th, 30th, I was not on that road show.

Q. The road show you are referring to is the road show for Panavision?

A. Yes. I am just clarifying, if you are taking this as I was present, I was not.

Q. Your preoccupation, and I don't mean that in any disparaging way, your preoccupation of work, what you were working under at this time, late December, January time frame, you were working on the Panavision transaction which is getting ready to close, right?

A. Yes, as far as I knew and probably more importantly the people for whom I worked, this was the best use of my time during that period.

Q. CSFB was the investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies in the Panavision deal, correct?

A. Yes, that is accurate.

Q. Indeed, they were the underwriter, that is, CSFB, of notes that were issued in connection with the Panavision acquisition, were they not?

A. Yes, that is accurate.

Q. At some point in time in January you do learn that there is a possibility that the Sunbeam transaction is going to be revived, at least discussions revived, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Maher tell you that or was it someone else?

A. I believe it was Mr. Maher.

Q. Looking at your calendar or the chronology, if that is more helpful, MS 75, can you tell me on or about when you believe you learned from Mr. Maher that the transaction with Sunbeam might be revived and discussions would ensue between the Coleman team and the Sunbeam -- and Sunbeam?

A. Looking at both my calendar as well as the MS 75 document, I can't recall any specific date at which I learned, I believe it was through Mr. Maher, that Mr. Reid had called.

There is a suggestion, and it is accurate, that I met with several representatives of Morgan Stanley really to, I think the word to "discuss" is perhaps inaccurate. It was really to listen to their, and to be presented with some analysis regarding a transaction for -- between Sunbeam and Coleman.

Q. Are you referring to the meeting of January 23, 1998 that is shown on MS 75?
A. Yes, I am, and I was the only person at that --
Q. Is it fair to say that after the December 18, 1997 meeting between Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman and others at his home that the next meeting that -- the next meeting that you attended personally where there were any outside parties, whether it be CSFB or a Morgan Stanley representative or Sunbeam, would be January 23 of 1998?
A. I can't say that that is absolutely accurate because representatives of CSFB were in our offices all the time and discussing Panavision, discussing other ideas, discussing, possibly even probably discussing Sunbeam, oh, by the way --
Q. Anything going on?
A. And so -- but I don't recall a specific all-hands meeting to discuss

Page 294

Sunbeam and the status of the Sunbeam discussions prior to this meeting.
Again, from our perspective, it was dead.
Q. According to the chronology, MS 75, in the call that Mr. Reid made to Mr. Perelman as described by your attorneys, Wachtell, Lipton, to the SEC, Mr. Perelman advised Mr. Reid that he, Mr. Perelman, would be willing to discuss supporting a transaction at $30 per share, do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. By the time of your meeting on or about January 23, 1998 when you met with the Morgan Stanley people as you described it a moment ago to listen, I think you put it, had you been told by anyone that Mr. Perelman would on behalf of the Coleman side support a transaction at $30 a share with Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall being told that.
Q. Let's focus now on the January 23 meeting. We will move forward to that meeting.

Page 295

Do you have a recollection as you sit here today of that meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Are the people who are listed as being at the meeting Mr. Stynes, Mr. Yoo, Mr. Chang and Mr. Fuchs, were they all present at the meeting?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. The meeting was at MacAndrews & Forbes' offices here in New York?
A. I don't know that. I don't recall whether it was at Morgan Stanley or at our offices.
Q. I interrupted.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Let me interject. Maybe I am reading the wrong entry. We are talking about the January 23 entry? Did you refer to Mr. Yoo being one of the participants?
MR. BEMIS: I did. I didn't say he was -- if I did I misspoke. I may have misspoke if I did.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me ask you, who do you remember being there.

Page 296

A. The gentlemen that are -- I should stop looking at this and listen to you -- the gentlemen that are listed in the MS 75 for January 23 which is Jim Stynes, Alex Fuchs and Tyrone Chang.
Q. In terms of -- withdrawn.
You do remember -- strike that.
How did you get invited to the meeting? For example, did Mr. Maher tell you?
A. Yes. Mr. Maher was unable to attend the meeting and asked me to meet with them. I do not know how he was informed.
Q. Originally Mr. Maher was going to attend the meeting and he could not and then you got assigned or were you both going to attend and he just couldn't make it?
A. I don't know that at any point Mr. Maher was in a position to attend.
Mr. Maher made the decision knowing his schedule to have me attend the meeting.
Q. How long did this meeting last

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

with the Morgan Stanley people that we have identified?
A. An hour.
Q. Did you do anything to prepare for the meeting?
A. No. I don't believe so.
Q. As an example, even though you said you didn't do anything, did you go back and look at your spreadsheets that you had prepared, MS 104 and 105, about the transaction or Mr. Dunlap's employment contract or your memorandum to Mr. Perelman of December 11 discussing Black & Decker, anything like that?
A. I don't believe I did to any great length for the very reason that I was -- it was crystal clear that I was to listen.
Q. Why was that crystal clear?
A. Because my role was not to negotiate this transaction.
Q. Why was that crystal clear that it was not your role?
A. Because there were other individuals within MacAndrews & Forbes, be it Mr. Maher, Mr. Drapkin, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Perelman who have far more experience in these matters and for whom the economic consequences of a transaction, particularly Mr. Perelman, were significant.

Q. Again, you were the analyst but they were the decision makers, is that fair?
A. Yes. The difference between capital and labor.
Q. That is good. I like that.
Let me -- were there any documents handed out at this meeting on January 23?
A. Yes, I believe there was.
Q. Let me show you a document marked as MS 80 first. I hand you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley 80.
Do you have that document in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is this -- was this document handed out at the meeting of January 23?
A. Yes, I believe it was.

Q. Is this -- is that your handwriting that appears on MS 80?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Did you make those notes during the meeting with the Morgan Stanley people you have identified?
A. I don't know that I did. I could have made them afterwards.
Q. For example, on the -- on the first page under the column heading camper specific, do you see that area?
A. Yes.
Q. There is an arrow and then I believe it says -- let me ask you, please read that into the record.
A. I believe it says, "From discussions with Levin and Page," referring to Jerry Levin and Joseph Page.
Q. What does that note mean to you, your note mean to you now, or let me ask the question differently.
What did your note mean at the time that you wrote it?
A. I don't recall.
Q. If you will turn to the next page of the document which has, under the heading, summary information, there is some handwriting. It looks like you have an arrow drawn to two numbers. One is the 1998E which I assume is estimated?

A. Yes.
Q. EBITDA.
A. Yes.
Q. And under the heading camper, there is 160.4 million, I think, and then you have an arrow up saying, versus 178.4 million in CSFB report.
Did I read that correctly?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that mean there is a difference between the number that Morgan Stanley was using in its document and what you found in the CSFB report that you had used in your spreadsheets MS 104 and 105?
A. I believe I am referring to, yes, a Credit Suisse First Boston analyst report.
Q. Of Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. In this report Camper is Coleman

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

and Laser is Sunbeam, right?
A. Yes, we have now determined that versus yesterday, so -- I am not a big believer in these names, but anyway --
Q. Will you please turn to page 4? Is that your handwriting that appears on the top which I believe reads Morgan's key analysis?
A. Yes.
Q. You have underscored that, correct?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. As I understand it this page is -- uses synergies or cost savings, as you used the term, in the range of, in one scenario, $50 million -- excuse me, $50 million in 1998 and $75 million in 1999; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. There is then -- if you will turn to the three pages from the end, the page ending with CPH, last three digits, 294 and tell me when you are there?
A. I am there. I believe I am there.

Q. Is that your writing, irrelevant?
A. Irrelevant, yes.
Q. Is that because there was a pooling analysis used and you had concluded that a pooling accounting treatment was not going to be applicable to this transaction?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. The information that is set forth in this document is -- was provided -- strike that.
Was the document provided to you at the meeting or after the meeting, do you recall specifically?
A. At the meeting.
Q. Did you understand that the Laser specific information which is now on the very first page was based on projections from I/B/E/S?
A. If you are asking did I know what that meant, yes.
Q. Did you understand --
A. Did I read it, yes.
Q. Did you understand that the projections that were here for Sunbeam were indeed based on the I/B/E/S projections as set forth here?

A. Yes.
Q. I/B/E/S is one of these reporting services that reports analyst projections, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Doesn't I/B/E/S try to come up with blending -- I don't know what the right term is for the various projections that it obtains?
A. Yes, I think that is the -- depending on what you would like to purchase you can probably get the bargain basement average number, you can get the compilation of all the numbers that go into an average. I don't know.
Q. There is all sorts of data out there in the marketplace, right?
A. Yes.
Q. As long as you know what you are looking at you have a point of reference to make judgments as to whether you want to rely on it or not rely on it, fair enough?
A. Yes.
Q. In this case -- so did you consider -- withdrawn.

Like you had used CSFB or Goldman Sachs, Morgan Stanley, whatever they were creating, was using I/B/E/S for their projections, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In terms of the Coleman and the Morgan Stanley projections that we have in MS 80 they told you at least that they were using a modified CSFB report dated November 18, 1997, right?
A. Yes.
Q. That -- is that the same report that you used? I am not saying you modified it but is that the same base report that you used in your projections set forth in MS 104 and 105?
A. That would be difficult.
Q. That would be difficult why?
A. Because I believe the date of MS 104 and 105 preceded the report on the 18th of -- sorry. I stand corrected. Fine.
You had your one November mistake. I now have my November mistake.
Q. Don't worry about it.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. It is likely but I don't remember that specific date.
Q. Just -- let me ask the question one more time.
Between you and I getting the dates backwards I want to make sure we don't have any confusion later.
A. Yes.
Q. Is the First Boston report that Morgan Stanley used under the Camper specific heading, although it said to be modified, is that the same First Boston report that you believe you used in preparing MS 104 and 105 back in December of 1997?
A. I believe it was.
Q. Is there any information that, as you sit here today, that you recall based on what you knew on -- you knew on January 23, 1998, that you consider to be a misrepresentation to you by Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. What is it?
A. I was led to believe that Morgan Stanley was in a position to pay in excess of $25 per share with a cash component and I recall being quite surprised although there was not a specific proposal, of course, but there were ranges between 17 and -- well, it varies depending on which page you look, if you look at page 4, it is 20 to $24, I believe this is an all-stock transaction.

If you look at the matrix on the following page --
Q. Just focus on page 4. You were referring to the one where you state Morgan's key analysis?
A. Yes. If you refer to the row entitled price/premium.
Q. Right.
A. There is a matrix or a line that has a range of prices to be paid to Coleman of between 20 and $24 per share, and that -- absent from that row was a number in excess of $25 a share.
Q. Mathematically one could put a row for $25 per share and do the extensions?
A. You are right but they didn't.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley ever, before this meeting, tell you, someone from Morgan Stanley, whether Mr. Fuchs, Mr. Chang, Mr. Reid, Mr. Reid, Mr. Stynes, did they ever call you up and say, Mr. Nesbitt, we are prepared to offer $25 or more with some cash component?
A. No one called me up and suggested that but I do recall hearing from Mr. Maher that we had been led to believe that Coleman -- sorry -- Sunbeam was in a position to pay in excess of $25 per share in some combination of cash and stock and I believe that was conveyed to Mr. Maher by Mr. Reid.
Q. Let me set aside the issue of what people said what the ultimate price they were willing to pay in the negotiations.
Looking at the underlying data from the sources it is alleged to have come from, which you had back in January of 1998, is there any statement in here that the data to you is a misrepresentation to you of the data, not the mathematical extensions of the data but just the underlying data itself?

A. I understand. I don't believe there was anything in this document as it was labeled or qualified which at the time or now I viewed as a misrepresentation of a fact.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Following your meeting on January 23, your receipt of the MS 80 that we just went through, did you go back and make any adjustments to your spreadsheets, MS 104, 105 or 106 and 107 as well where you just adjusted the Sunbeam stock prices as I recall?
A. I don't recall that based on this analysis apart from perhaps the stock price which would be a logical adjustment to make that I made any adjustments to my analysis.
Q. If you go back and make an adjustment on the stock price would you have gone back and adjusted both Coleman's and Sunbeam's since by this point the market is a month down the line from when you did your work?

0153307

Page 309

A. It would be logical to do so, appropriate to do so.
Q. Following January -- did you make any notes of the January 23 meeting other than the ones we have identified in your handwriting on MS 80?
A. Apart from that, I don't believe so.
Q. Did you share your models, MS 104 and 105, with Morgan Stanley at the meeting on January 23? Did you share them your internal work?
A. No.
Q. Did you share Morgan Stanley's work, MS 80, with CSFB?
A. Yes, and -- sorry, go ahead.
Q. And who?
A. I will let you the ask question.
Q. And who did you share it with besides CSFB?
A. Internally at MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. So at least as of January 23 both CSFB and internally at MacAndrews & Forbes the people who were on the Coleman team had the benefit not only of your internal analyses to the extent that you had progressed with that through the exhibits we have identified, MS 104 through 107, and you also had a Morgan Stanley analysis, MS 80, that we just went through and your notes about that, correct?

A. I don't know that I shared my notes as I forget the number.
Q. MS 80 with your notes?
A. I don't know that I made a xerox of that document. I probably took extra copies and distributed clean copies.
Q. Setting aside your notes though, is it fair to say that internally with -- at MacAndrews & Forbes as well as with your investment bankers on the Coleman team you had shared both your analyses and you had shared Morgan Stanley's analysis, MS 80, on or about the time of January 23, 1998?
A. That is accurate.
MR. BEMIS: Let's take a short break here.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 10:49 a.m. and we are going off the record.

(Discussion off the record)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:04 a.m. We are back on the record.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me show you what the court reporter will mark as Morgan Stanley 354.
(MS Exhibit 354 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have MS 354 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you prepare this document on or about January 23, 1998?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Are these, is this a memorandum purporting to summarize from Mr. -- let me withdraw and rephrase the question.
Is this document, MS 354, a memorandum that you prepared for Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Drapkin and Mr. Maher summarizing your meeting with Morgan Stanley on January 23, 1998?
A. Yes, it is.

Q. As a preliminary matter look at the last bullet point which ends, "Morgan is very."
Then there is a bullet point after that which has no text whatsoever.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what the -- let me ask you the question this way.
Is that a dropped sentence, the "Morgan is very" or did you type it and send it this way?
A. I hope not the latter for obvious reasons. I don't know what it means.
It is not the only problem. There is a spacing issue. It could have been that this was an intermediate -- it was a draft of something that I was going to send and that I completed it.
I was interrupted at "very" would be my assumption here.
Q. Does the memorandum as you sit here today accurately reflect, to the extent you completed the memorandum, accurately reflect your meeting with Morgan

Stanley?
A. Yes, I believe there is nothing here that, as I see it now, that I would believe would have been changed in a subsequent version if in fact there was a subsequent version.
Q. There is a reference in the first bullet to a 100 percent cash transaction. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Had there been as of January 23, 1998 discussions with Sunbeam about a 100 percent cash transaction?
A. My recollection going into the meeting was that there was going to be a substantial cash component.
Here I suggest 100 percent and so this is refreshing my recollection.
My interpretation of the discussions that were going on, or one discussion that had been going, had gone on between Morgan Stanley and MacAndrews & Forbes or its representatives may have been wrong because apparently there was a disconnect but I went into this meeting expecting to see something very different in terms of the structure.

Q. I may be confused. Did you expect going into the January 23 meeting there would be a cash component?
A. Yes.
Q. You did?
A. If I didn't state that correctly, yes, that is exactly what I --
Q. You had gone from, in your original discussions internally, from thinking in terms of a 100 percent stock transaction, and I think you said that was based on something you thought Sunbeam had suggested?
A. Yes.
Q. And now by January 23 there was at least some cash component that was going to be part of the transaction assuming something got negotiated.
We will take a break.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:09 a.m. and we are going off the record.
(Discussion off the record)

Page 315

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:13 a.m. We are back on the record.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. When we broke the question that was pending was as follows: Now by January 23, 1998 there was at least a cash component that was going to be a part of a transaction assuming something got negotiated to a final deal; is that correct?
A. My understanding was that I don't know the genesis of this on the side of Morgan Stanley and whether it resulted from any discussions between Morgan Stanley or MacAndrews & Forbes, and MacAndrews & Forbes, but that they had suggested -- Bill Reid had suggested that there was going to be a cash component, yes, and so that was -- going into this meeting on the 23rd I was expecting to see analysis or some indication of exactly that.
Q. You never spoke to Bill Reid about stock or cash?
A. No.
Q. What information you have is based on a conversation that someone else said they had with Bill Reid?

A. Exactly.
Q. Let's put Exhibit 353 aside right now. I said 353. I meant 354, excuse me.
Did you, by the way, attach the Morgan Stanley presentation that we marked as MS 80 to the memorandum, MS 354?
A. That would be -- that is a reasonable assumption.
Q. As you sit here today because the document doesn't appear to be complete and it appears to be spaced incorrectly you are not even sure if you sent it out; is that fair?
A. No.
Q. You do think you sent it out?
A. I believe I sent out a summary of that meeting. The only thing that would have caused me not to was a phone call from one of those individuals, come down and tell me about the meeting, and I would have brought down the Morgan Stanley analysis and conveyed to them what I said in that memo in general terms, or in specific terms, I mean.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Either you sent them the memo with the attachment or you brought the memo in its current form even with the incomplete sentence and you discussed it to them face-to-face?
A. Yes. I can't explain what happened, why that is the case there.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 106.
Mr. Reporter, would you please date that for me?
(MS Exhibit 106 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley [redacted] -- excuse me -- yes, 106 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you prepare it?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Let me show you another document which is -- we will mark as Morgan Stanley 107.
(MS Exhibit 107 marked for identification)

MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, if you would date that for me please?
THE WITNESS: Yes. I have it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did you prepare Morgan Stanley Exhibit 107?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you prepare both of these exhibits on January 26, 1998?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Are these models that you prepared following -- strike that.
Are Exhibits 106 and 107 models that you prepared of the merger consequences of the Sunbeam-Coleman merger following your meeting with Morgan Stanley on January 23 of 1998?
A. I don't know. I believe that I prepared them at some point between the time that I learned from Mr. Maher that Bill Reid had conveyed an interest in resurrecting these discussions and the time that this document was printed but I can't -- it is probable that I did it immediately after that meeting but I can't say for sure whether I didn't start it before that meeting on the 23rd.

Q. Are there any -- are there any differences in the two exhibits, MS 106 and 107, other than the cost savings which appear to be $100,000 in MS 106 and -- I said 100,000, I meant 100 million, excuse me -- and $150 million in cost savings in MS 107?
A. I am going to have to look pretty carefully.
Q. Please. That is the difference I found but that doesn't mean that I got it right.
A. Okay. I believe that is the only difference.
Q. My next question is, turning to page 2 of -- either you can look at either Exhibit 106 or 107, just tell me which one. You have to turn to page 2.
A. 106 --
Q. 106 is fine.
A. Yes.
Q. You have the two boxes of information for 1997 estimated pro forma which I -- and then you have one for 1998 estimated pro forma. Do you see those two boxes?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. The information in those two boxes was just, with just a few exceptions that I could identify, is identical from the figures that you used in MS 104 and 105; is that correct?
A. I will have to refer to it.
Q. Let me show you one of them. I need you to confirm it for me.
A. That is fine. Then I will have to confirm it.
I can't recall.
Q. I will hand you MS 104. We have already been over 104 and 105 appear to be the same exhibits with the exception of cost savings -- excuse me -- stock price.
We will use 104 as a basis. Start with the 1997 pro forma statement estimated information and all of the figures that I located under both Sunbeam and Coleman appear to be identical with the exception of earnings per share which are slightly different.

16div-021173

A. Okay. I don't recall seeing an earnings -- you are saying the earnings per share for 1997 was different in the model.
I didn't think we had a earnings per share.
Q. I think you took --
A. That was for 1998 though.
Q. You are correct. It was for 1998.
A. Let's look at 1998.
Q. We will look at 1998.
Am I correct that other than the earnings per share information all of the information you used for the 1997 estimated pro forma is identical to what you used in Exhibit 104?
A. I am not there yet. I am not done.
Q. Let's do that question first.
A. Okay. The 1997 data for the columns Sunbeam and Coleman appear to be the same with, of course, the exception that I did not outline the earnings per share numbers for 1997 in this analysis.

Q. If I recall correctly we could have calculated the earnings per share from Exhibit 104 and indeed, for example, for Coleman it was 56 cents per share. That is just a mathematical calculation?
A. But it is not a mathematical calculation necessarily based on shares outstanding exactly.
There is a subtle distinction that the accountants and auditors go through in doing that.
Q. How did you arrive at 56 cents per share for Coleman for --
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you want a calculator? I know how you did it.
A. Why don't you tell me?
Q. You divided revenue by number of outstanding shares and you get 56 cents?
A. Just to qualify what you said, you said revenue. I divided --
Q. Net income. I just did the calculation to see if it was 56 cents and that is what it was.
A. That is fine.

Q. That is what you did?
A. That is fine. That is fine.
Q. You did the same thing?
A. Okay.
Q. With regard to Sunbeam as well, right?
A. Yes.
Q. I understand it is just an arithmetic calculation.
Let's go over to the 1998 estimated column in MS 107 and let's compare it to MS 104 which you were looking at and I will tell you I saw a couple of differences and if you have others you let me know. I am trying to move this along for you.
A. I understand.
Q. You had, for example, for Coleman, under EBITDA, you have $184,000 for the 1990E?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You dropped three zeros.
BY THE VIDEOGRAPHER:
Q. 184 million, excuse me, not thousand, and you used a slightly different

A. Yes. It appears that in the 104 I used 178,500.
Q. Do you know why you picked a different number for Exhibit 107?
A. No, I don't.
Q. You also appear to have used a different figure for pretax income which in Exhibit 107 is 102 million and then I see in Exhibit MS 104 it is 96,500,000; is that correct?
A. That is correct. That would necessarily follow.
Q. Would that flow from the change in the EBITDA?
A. Yes.
Q. Then I see there is a difference in the net income and that is a flow through as well because you changed the EBITDA for 1999E for Coleman, correct?
A. Yes, that's true.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I think you said 1999E.
BY MR. BEMIS:

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 325

Q. If I did I meant 1998. I did.
We are talking about 1998E, fair enough?
A. Yes.
Q. There is also a difference in the -- withdrawn.
You have an earnings per share for Coleman for 1999E at $1.24.
That would be a flow through number as well if there was any difference in the arithmetic calculation between your figures in Exhibit 104, correct?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You again said 1999E.
MR. BEMIS: I stand corrected. 1998.
THE WITNESS: Yes, 1998, yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Other than -- strike that.
Is it fair to say then at least as of the dates these exhibits were printed, MS 106 and 107, you didn't -- did you not make any changes in your underlying data that -- upon which you performed your arithmetic calculations on the merger consequences based on any information that you received from Morgan Stanley on January 23 of 1998?

Do you need the Morgan Stanley exhibit?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me have MS 80 please.
A. Yes, that is accurate.
Q. Indeed, if we were to look at the Morgan Stanley 1998 estimated EBITDA for Coleman, Morgan Stanley was using a figure of 160.4 million while you were using in your figure in MS 106 184 million, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. We can set that aside. Just 84. Hold on to those.
A couple quick questions and we will be done with the larger spreadsheets.
The spreadsheets MS 106 and 107 assume cost savings of 1 -- $100 million in MS 106 and then $150 million in 107, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did you -- strike that.

How did you arrive at those cost saving figures as assumptions you used in the two spreadsheets?
A. It was not based on my own analysis of head count, revenue, opportunities, et cetera, et cetera, on an operating basis, and it would have been based -- it was based on discussions with a group but I cannot specifically recall who suggested to use 100 and 150, and I know that we ran numerous -- numerous cases at all sorts of different prices and all sorts of different synergy assumptions.
We have two in front of us.
Q. Indeed, I think in MS 104 and 105 you ran 40 million and 60 million earlier in the year, correct?
A. Yes. That is all part of the evolving analysis.
Q. Did anyone at the meeting on January 23, 1998 with Morgan Stanley tell you that you should assume 1998 cost savings of $150 million in combining the two entities?
A. No, they did not.

Q. Did they tell you to assume $100 million in cost savings in combining the two entities?
A. No, they did not.
Q. Indeed, if I remember correctly that Morgan Stanley projection, MS 80, had assumed cost savings of only $50 million in 1998 but growing to as much as $75 million in 1999; is that correct?
A. That is accurate.
Q. One last question.
If I look at the first page of both MS 106 and 107, that is a summary page, is it not, of the pages that follow behind it for the various prices and cost saving variables as you have assumed them in the spreadsheet?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. You may give those back to me and we will move along.
MR. BEMIS: Let's change the tape.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:35 a.m. on September 1, 2004. This is tape number two, volume two of the videotaped deposition of Mr. William Nesbitt.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Mr. Nesbitt, following the January 23, 1998 meeting with Morgan Stanley when is the next meeting that you can recall attending where Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam representatives were present, and if it helps you go ahead and look at the chronology, MS 75?
A. I am referring to MS 175 and there was a meeting which I believe I attended on the 29th during which potential synergies were discussed I think in a reasonably detailed fashion between Mr. Levin, Mr. Page, Mr. Shapiro primarily on our side, and Mr. Fannin and Kersh on the other.
I say that because they are the operating, or executives with an understanding of operations and are familiar and had a very clear -- a point of view with respect to potential synergies.

Q. How long did that meeting last?
A. I do not recall.
Q. Are the attendees of the meeting properly identified in MS 175 as far as you can now recall?
A. As far as I can recall --
Q. Excuse me, MS 75.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you take any notes of that meeting, and I don't have them by the way?
A. It would be normal and customary for me to do so and I don't have them.
Q. How long did this meeting last where the synergies were discussed as you have described it?
A. I just said I don't know.
Q. Was it an evening meeting, a day meeting, afternoon meeting?
A. I don't recall. I don't believe it was in our offices. I believe -- when I say "our offices," I mean MacAndrews &

Page 331

Forbes.
I believe it may have been in the Coleman -- New York offices of Coleman.
Q. Do you actually remember there were Coleman products in the room itself, green Coleman products?
A. No.
Q. You don't?
A. No.
Q. Who did most of -- strike that.
How did the meeting progress in terms of who spoke?
For example, did Mr. Levin speak first or did Mr. Kersh speak first?
A. I don't recall who spoke first.
Q. Do you recall anything that was said at the meeting?
A. Not in any detail except that there was a significant amount of discussion again primarily between the operating executives, among the operating executives regarding those cost savings.
Q. As a result of -- strike that.
In the course of these discussions was there any type of consensus reached among the opposing parties at the meeting of what the cost savings would be for a combined entity -- combined entity of Coleman and Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall whether there was an actual consensus or a supposed consensus on the basis of what people said but, yes --
Q. What do you recall about whatever was said, whether it be a real or supposed consensus in terms of a number as opposed to no number?
A. Not very much.
Q. You have used various numbers as we have talked about, 0, 40 million all through $150 million in your spreadsheets as assumptions.
Did anyone use those types of numbers at the meeting?
A. I think the purpose of the meeting was instead to work on a ground up basis and move from item to item to item and really to brainstorm about here is what we think on this item, what do you think, and as you are suggesting I think, can we reach consensus on this or disagreement and perhaps on the basis of that revisit it internally on each side as opposed to how about 100, 150 or how about 75.

Q. Do you recall yesterday when we looked at that schedule, it had $150.5 million.

Was that a document -- let me identify it for the record -- which was MS 78, was that used at the meeting?

A. I believe it was. I think it had previously been discussed with this gentleman -- these gentlemen, the Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam representatives, and so it was I believe a primary document.

I do not recall if they had a document that they presented to us with a different view or modifications to ours.

Q. Did the meeting progress by going down the list on MS 78 and kind of talk through each one of the items as set forth on the list?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Did you talk at all at the meeting other than pleasantries which I am sure you did?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Is that because you are not an operations person and you deferred to the operational people on the Coleman team?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it fair to say it was primarily the Coleman team that directed the operational savings discussion, Mr. Page and Mr. Levin?

A. Well, we should -- if I could, I would like to refer back to that document in question.

Q. 78?

A. Yes.

Q. Sure. I will grab it for you.

I am handing you MS 78. I turned it to the second --

A. Yes, I have it.

MR. BEMIS: Do you need it?

MR. MARKOWSKI: No. That is all right.

Could you read the question back for me?

(Record read)

THE WITNESS: I believe that is accurate.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Looking again at MS 78 does that in any way refresh your recollection if there was either a stated or presumed consensus as to the cost savings of combining the two entities that the parties reached after their discussion on January 29 as you described it?

A. It provides me with a -- a benchmark that -- around which there was general, I think, consensus but I don't recall whether we departed it -- from it in a positive sense or in a negative sense.

Q. Is the benchmark now that you are referring to the $150 million?

A. .5.

Q. $150.5 million?

A. Yes.

Q. You can hand that back to me?

A. My only recollection was that during the few meetings in which -- that I was present at in which these sorts of cost savings were -- were discussed there was -- there was some commentary about their ability to do better on certain items.

Q. Their ability being Sunbeam?

A. Yes. I think, yes, that Sunbeam, the Sunbeam representatives had a high degree of confidence with respect to their ability to cut costs.

They were prepared to do things that most executives were not able to do or perhaps willing to do. They got -- they had a high degree of confidence in themselves.

Q. When you say the Sunbeam executives, can you identify which or if there was more than one of the executives made statements like you have just told us?

A. I believe it was Mr. Kersh.

Q. Did you ever at any time in your work on the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction see any documents prepared by Sunbeam where they listed out proposed cost savings or synergies similar to what we looked at in MS 78 a few minutes ago?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Following the meeting on January

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 337

29 what is the next thing that you recall doing in connection -- not necessarily meeting, but in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman merger discussions?
A. Independent of the Wachtell analysis I do not recall the next specific step or meeting.
Q. Let me show you what we will mark as MS 355.
(MS Exhibit 355 marked for identification)
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, if you would please date that for me?
THE WITNESS: I have it in front of me.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Referring now to MS 355, did you prepare this document on or about January 30, 1998?
A. I believe I did. I believe I did.
Q. Did you do this -- withdrawn.
Look at the title on page -- strike that.
Is that your handwriting on the first page where it says Sunbeam research?

A. Yes, I believe it is.
Q. Did you have a file by the way that was entitled Sunbeam research in your office?
A. I believe so.
Q. Look at the second page where it says Sunbeam EPS estimates revised for fourth quarter earnings. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. The day before January 29 -- withdrawn.
On the day before you prepared this exhibit as it is dated January 30, Sunbeam's fourth quarter 1997 earnings had been reported in the press, correct?
A. I don't know.
Q. Let me show you a Wall Street Journal article which has previously been marked as MS 206 and see if that helps you, your recollection, and then we can hopefully move on.
A. That would suggest, yes.
Q. You were, without even reference to the newspaper article in the Wall Street

Page 339

Journal, you were aware that Sunbeam had reported that it had reported earnings for the fourth quarter of 1997 that were below analysts' expectations for that quarter, correct?
A. Yes, I believe they were slightly.
Q. Is it your recollection that as a result of missing their fourth quarter earnings estimates, Street estimates, that Sunbeam's stock as reported by the Wall Street Journal had fallen 9.5 percent on that news?
A. Yes. MS 206 certainly suggests that.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Following the fourth quarter earnings report by Sunbeam which caused this stock drop, did you go back and revisit analysts' earnings estimates for 1998 for Sunbeam and then record them on the document we have marked as MS 355?
A. Yes.
Q. Am I correct then that the earnings estimates that you are showing here for Goldman Sachs, PaineWebber, Merrill Lynch, Oppenheimer, Buckingham Research, those are estimates that the analysts revised after the fourth quarter results for Sunbeam for the year 1997 were announced, is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you go back after your the fourth quarter results were announced as we looked at in MS 206 and make any changes to your models that we have already looked at, MS 104 all the way through MS 107?
A. I don't know but this would be the first step in doing so. I believe I listened on the conference call too.
Q. You are referring to Mr. Dunlap's conference call?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Dunlap's conference call, did he state $2 per share were his estimates in January of 1998 for the full year 1998?
A. I believe he did.
Q. In that conference call he was actually projecting forward 11 months of results from whatever they were on January

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

20 or 29 or 30 of 1998, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what a forward looking statement is in the securities business?
A. Yes.
Q. Was Mr. Dunlap's statement in your view a forward looking statement?
A. I don't recall the specific context in which I arrived at the conclusion that Mr. Dunlap was comfortable with $2.
It could have been in response -- I believe it might have been in response to an analyst suggesting are you comfortable with a number such as $2, our numbers, and, it is a subtle distinction between the proactive statement pounding the table I can do, make $2, as part of a scripted call, but, nevertheless, I believe in the Q and A this was the conclusion I came to, and that is certainly a forward looking statement as I understand.
You may want to --
Q. Let me show you a document previously marked as MS 137 which is just slightly different from the one that we looked at a few moments ago.

The title is a little bit different but the information appears to be basically the same with the handwritten Prudential appearing with the figure $2.15 under the 1998 column Revised.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your handwriting?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. You can hand that back to me. I am done with that.
A. This too?
Q. Yes. You can hand that back to me as well.
Mr. Reporter, would you please mark as Exhibit MS 108 a multi-page document the cover page of which is dated February 6, 1998 and the author is shown on the header as being Will Nesbitt.
(MS Exhibit 108 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Let me ask you first, sir, for the record, do you have MS 108 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you prepare the first page?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. There are a number of attachments to the document and I tell you now this is the way the document is numbered as being produced and my first question is historically were all of these pages attached together with your cover page?
A. No, I don't believe so. This is a Morgan Stanley document.
Q. There is Morgan Stanley -- Morgan Stanley documents, there is blank pages, there is -- appears to be sections of public filings attached, there is public filings with handwriting on them, there appear to be Project Violet discounted cash flow analyses in the back which was, I think we established yesterday, Project Violet, that at least was used on a CSFB document?
A. Yes.

Q. We have Project Violet acquisition matrix. There is just a large number of documents attached from various sources.
As you sit here today you don't recall assembling all of these this way?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Let's focus then on page 1 of the document which has your name on it. You did prepare this one, correct?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. There is some handwriting on yours which I believe is a public financial, then I don't know what the other word is, do you see it?
A. Yes.
Q. On the right-hand side?
A. I am sorry. I was looking at something else. Okay. Sorry. Go ahead.
Q. Let me try again.
On the upper right-hand corner of the first page of MS 108 there is some handwriting which I read as public financial, and then there is another word. Do you see that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015316

A. Yes.
Q. Is that your handwriting?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Do you know whose it is?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Why did you prepare the first page of MS 108?
A. The analysis would suggest that there was further progress in delineating the terms of the consideration and I believe there began to be discussions regarding -- this was reflecting the discussions which involved Sunbeam potentially assuming the discount notes that -- the holding company notes of Coleman in order to avoid the prepayment penalties, and this -- I believe this analysis is an exercise to try to analyze the consequence, merger consequences from that development in the discussions.
Q. As I understand the figures on Ms. 108, they are as -- they are an attempt to arrive at a merger consequence assuming, first of all, cost savings of $75 million; that is one assumption, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And then there are also factored into the document the net proceeds that would be received from a sale of a Coleman subsidiary, is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. That subsidiary, it is described here as SEATT?
A. Yes.
Q. That is a Coleman security -- what is the name of the company?
A. I think it is called SEATT. I don't -- enlighten me as to --
Q. Honestly I don't recall what it is but I know there was one sold.
Do you remember what the company did?
A. No, not specifically.
Q. In addition to the cost savings variable, the proceeds of the sale, then there is the structural issues of assuming debt from the holding company, those notes, the first and second notes that we discussed yesterday when looking at an exhibit, the Coleman offering memorandum,

MS 241, and then there are certain adjustments for options.
Other than those kinds of variables basically the figures we are dealing with stem from your earlier work in MS 104 through 107; is that fair?
A. Yes, it is, again refining, as you learn more, refining the analysis.
Q. We are here now looking at MS 108 at this page. This is more of a structural approach to the problem with two pricing assumptions. One is savings and the other is acquisition price.
You are then relating those variables to other consequences based on other structural changes that might occur, cash, stock, sale of an asset, assumption of debt, of the like, right?
A. I think the assumption -- no. Your statement is fair, yes.
Q. You can hand that back to me. We are done with it.
I am going to hand you what has been marked previously as Morgan Stanley 81 entitled Project Laser, Proposed Summary

Transaction Terms.
Based on a footer on the document in the lower right-hand corner, I am going to use the date February 6, 1998 from the document.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have the document in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen it before?
A. Yes, I believe I did.
Q. In what context did you see this document?
A. I believe we were presented with this and I am also referring to the Wachtell, Lipton MS 75, as I recall.
Q. Yes.
A. We were presented this as a term sheet for a transaction and I was -- I believe I was present at a meeting which involved certain representatives of CSFB, Morgan Stanley and ourselves and Mr. Maher and myself regarding a potential transaction.
Q. When you say "a term sheet," what do you mean by that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. It would be -- it is a summary of the proposed terms for discussion purposes. It is not a formal proposal and it was a basis for discussion in that meeting delineating the kind of key provisions that might later be outlined in an offer, a letter of intent.
Q. So when -- at the meeting there were -- both sides were present in the negotiations, both the Coleman team and Sunbeam, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this transaction term sheet discussed amongst the parties?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. What do you recall about the discussion on or about February 6, 1998 about MS 81?
A. My recollection is that, one, we discussed in some detail the terms as outlined although a number of the terms are somewhat irrelevant if you can't agree on price so I think we certainly jumped right to price and price involved a share-for-share exchange as well as the issuance of warrants and I don't think we at the time of the meeting tried to value the warrants on our own during the course of the meeting.

I believe they were represented, and I am also referring to MS 175 as being roughly $4 a share, and I believe our view which was conveyed to them was that this was -- was not a workable structure, transaction based on price and other matters but that we would get back to them.
Q. Basically the term sheet, if I understood it, for the common stock, there was an implied price that was approximately $22 that was being suggested based on this analysis and for the warrants which there is no price on here, somebody -- someone came up with the figure of approximately $4 but that was a number that wasn't set forth in the document itself, is that right?
A. Morgan Stanley.
Q. Right?
A. Yes.
Q. And whatever had been the merits of a stock and warrants transaction, that transaction never went anywhere, did it?

There was never a warrant proposal ultimately agreed to by the parties?
A. Yes, that is accurate, yes.
Q. After this meeting where the term sheet was discussed I think you said that you would consider it and someone would get back.
Did someone get back to Sunbeam and say this transaction is not acceptable?
A. I don't know whether that was stated. I don't recall whether it was actually just stated in the meeting or whether Mr. Maher did it privately or in what context.
I was not -- if it occurred afterwards, I don't believe I was on a conference call and that would not be atypical.
Q. Can you identify for me as you sit here today any -- anything in this document that you considered at the time or even now -- starting with at the time, let's do that, a misrepresentation by Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley other than issues about what price they were going to offer, et cetera.

I am looking for underlying data. That is just patently in your view a misrepresentation of what the data was at the time?
A. Laser is committed to realizing the full value of the -- it is just an opinion. As the facts, no.
Q. You can hand that back to me. We are done with it.
By the way, how long did this meeting last that we were discussing where you went over the MS 81?
A. I don't believe it was a particularly long meeting.
Q. Where was it held?
A. I believe -- I don't know. I don't know.
Q. Can I see MS 83 please?
A. I can. If you want I will refer to my calendar.
Q. Go ahead. You can go ahead and

0153198

do that.
A. My calendar indicates a meeting at 4:00 on the 6th with Morgan Stanley and Gordon Rich with no address, therefore, the default would be MacAndrews & Forbes, I believe.
Q. Your best recollection is a meeting did take place at late in the day on February 6?
A. What I am --
Q. Okay.
Let me show you what has been marked as MS83 which we just looked at but there is some handwriting on it and I would like you to look at it and tell me if that is your handwriting.
A. I believe -- let's just look. I believe this is my handwriting, yes, up at the top and on the first page.
I can't tell whether the -- the words "draft" though don't look like my handwriting but the 10/15/97, whatever that means, that may have been an interest payment date on the holding company.
Q. That is what I thought it was.

Page 354

A. And then from Jerry there was an adjustment to the options and the price but I don't believe the words "draft" -- I can't comment on whether those are my circles or not, and "continuation of draft," I don't believe that is my handwriting.
Q. Okay. You can hand that back to me. Thank you very much. We are all done with that.
Let me show you now a document marked as MS 356.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, would you please mark MS 356 with today's date?
(MS Exhibit 356 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I have asked the court reporter to hand to you MS 356 and you have that in front of you, correct?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you receive this document from Credit Suisse First Boston on or about February 12, 1998, which is the date on the fax cover sheet?

A. It would appear so, yes.
Q. On page 2 there is -- the heading is Project Violet Assuming No 338(h)(10) and then Summary Statistics. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are referring to the second page of the document.
MR. BEMIS: Yes, the second page of the document, correct.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. What is this document? You can assume I know what a 338(h)(10) election is but beyond that what is it?
A. It is -- let me look at the rest of it.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are referring just to this page when you asked him what is this?
MR. BEMIS: The whole document because I think it is all related to each other. He will tell me if it isn't.

Page 356

THE WITNESS: There are several cases actually.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I see it starts on page 1. About midway through again I noted a page CPH --
A. There are two cases. It is a little hard to read but one is at -- I just can't read that.
I can probably back into the share price but this is an LBO model, leveraged buyout model.
It is a model that in this case I believe is looking at Coleman on a stand-alone basis as a leveraged buyout so without the benefit of synergies since there are -- there is no strategic acquirer in this case that will bring -- allow the two companies to share synergies, and it is kind -- it is First Boston's standard LBO model, standard in the sense of a template and then all the Coleman data.
Q. It basically just is all Coleman stand-alone data and it doesn't involve any combination of Sunbeam data, correct?
A. That is accurate.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 357

Q. It is all data that either comes from a Coleman public statement or analyst projections that they have done, that is, CSFB, correct?
A. Yes. I believe CSFB in some of their work, a fair amount of their work used I/B/E/S numbers as kind of the one meaningful measure of how either of these, in this case, just Coleman, but also Sunbeam.
Q. Is this, the LBO valuation, a measurement of value that one can use in determining the fairness of a transaction or is it just a totally stand alone valuation that you just put in the total mix of information that you have when you are considering what to do in an acquisition?
A. I think it is. It is one measure of value.
It -- in determining fairness which gets into all sorts of other issues, fairness can be analyzed with respect to other alternatives and a leveraged buyout of a business is simply one -- one measure of what the -- what an entity in a leveraged buyout structure can pay for it.

Q. You may hand that back to me. We are all done with it.
A. It tends to be below what a strategic acquirer --
Q. LBO is not going to include any acquisition premium, for example, in normal circumstances, right?
A. I don't understand that statement.
Q. That is good. It is a terrible question. It doesn't make any sense now that I listen to it. Thank you. It doesn't make any sense.
A. I am awake.
Q. As soon as you said it I realized I was awake. It didn't make any sense. Every once in a while --
A. Would you like this back?
Q. Yes. We will put that away too.
Looking at the chronology, the next meeting that you are, I think, identified as appearing at is, or a call or a meeting -- withdrawn.

Looking at the chronology when is the next meeting that you attended following the February, I think, the February 6, 1998 meeting that we discussed where the proposal that included the warrants was discussed?
What is the next thing that you did by way of the meeting, telephone conference with Morgan Stanley?
A. With Morgan Stanley?
Q. Morgan Stanley, yes.
A. I have no recollection apart from this analysis which is consistent with my recollection on the 23rd that the next meeting was the 23rd.
Q. Let's go from February 6 to February 23 of 1998 and in that -- between those two dates did you have any internal discussions with the MAFCO people and if you feel free, look at your calendar and see if there is anything there that helps refresh your recollection?
A. According to my calendar there were no meetings that were scheduled and recorded as such.

I am sure there was some impromptu discussions but I can't recall when or who attended, and my calendar suggests that on the meeting -- on the day of the 23rd there were actually three meetings that involved various parties to this transaction.
The first two were -- well, let me address the first one.
Morning of the 23rd from 8:00 to 8:30. I do not recall.
Q. Could I ask you, let's hold off on the 23rd and we will take that --
A. Go ahead.
Q. I appreciate your looking. Let's close this out.
Between February 6 and February 23, based on looking at your calendar and your own recollection as you sit here, you don't remember any internal meetings that you were involved with at MacAndrews & Forbes about the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, is that fair?
A. That is accurate.
Q. Let me show you a couple of documents during that time period and quickly see whether you happened to see those.

01320

I am handing you what has previously been marked in another deposition as MS 82 and I would ask you, please to take a look at it and tell me when you are done.

I don't have any real detailed questions about it.

My first question is going to be, had you ever seen it before?

A. I don't specifically recall seeing this document and having --

Q. The second page refers to Camper Stand-Alone Income Statement Without Sale of Safety and Security?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that the same as SEATT?

A. Yes. As I recall it is not a particularly substantial business.

Q. Then on the last page it refers to sale of safety and security. That would be SEATT as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see the handwriting on page 3 where it says Highly Preliminary?

A. Suggests about 80 or 90 million of sales for safety and security.

Sorry. What?

Q. Page 3 of MS 82 there is right next to the stamped draft it says Highly Preliminary. Do you know whose handwriting that is?

A. I think it is mine. No. I don't think it is mine, no. No, I don't. I don't believe it is mine.

Q. Did you -- when you look at the first page where it says Laser Stand-Alone Income Statements, I/B/E/S case, looking at this, would you recognize that as being the same I/B/E/S we have been talking about that collects the analyst information and provides that information to those who subscribe to their service?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. You can hand it back. I did have one last question. One more time.

Is there anything on either -- starting with page 2 and 3 which is the

Camper stand alone income statements either with or without sale of safety and security, is there anything as you look at it and as you sit here today that you can see as being a false -- as you look at it or a misrepresentation of any kind, just looking at the information that is laid out there in the sources and the footnotes?

A. That assumes I can read it, right.

Q. I know. They are getting tough after so many photocopies and faxes. I realize that.

A. Well, management case. I don't happen to know what a management case is for Camper.

I don't know whose management. I don't know what that means so I can't tell you whether it is a misrepresentation nor am I intimately familiar at this point based on my recollection of what the management case -- if it in fact was our management case, what it was, so I can't comment on the first two pages.

Q. How about the first page?

Page 364

A. I have no basis to assume that -- the problem I have with an I/B/E/S case is I/B/E/S doesn't do projections so to refer to this as an I/B/E/S case suggests that I/B/E/S prepared -- that they used I/B/E/S data in preparing this schedule and they may have but I don't believe I/B/E/S looks out more than a year or two. They may have taken that and then used their own thoughts, own expectations to then --

Q. Make arithmetic projections?

A. Yes. I would say this is misleading. It is not an I/B/E/S case. It is a case which utilizes I/B/E/S.

Anyway, I just can't -- there may be a footnote here which explains that but anything after '99 is their own thinking, not I/B/E/S.

Q. But you know that when you look at the document that I/B/E/S -- if you are saying I/B/E/S doesn't make the projections, you know that whatever they are doing with it I/B/E/S is only providing information for a certain number of years and the balance is somebody else's projection?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes, but you are asking me -- I am suggesting to refer -- let's not get into it.
Q. Is that all you can find?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. We will set that aside.
MR. BEMIS: We are going have to take a break at this point.
Do you want to break for lunch here and take 30 minutes, 35, 40 minutes? We have to take a break.
THE WITNESS: Sure.
MR. BEMIS: If people get back early we will start early.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 12:30 p.m. We are going off the record.
(Luncheon recess: 12:30 p.m.)

AFTERNOON SESSION
1:13 p.m.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 1:13 p.m. We are back on the record.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let's turn to February 23 of 1998. I think you earlier told me you thought there were three different meetings on that date that you attended; is that correct?
A. According to my schedule, my calendar, I have three meetings listed during the day that relate to Coleman-Sunbeam.
I don't recall the agenda or what was discussed in the 8:00 a.m. meeting.
Q. Before you move on from the 8:00 a.m. to compare it to the MS 75, the first meeting that is listed under February 23, and ask you if the people that are listed there which is yourself, Mr. Page, Mr. Levin, Mr. Shapiro, Mr. Duffy and Mr. Geller, along with Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs and Goudis in New York to conduct due diligence, is that the 8:00 a.m. meeting?

A. Yes, I believe it would be. Yes, it was.
Q. Was this the first meeting that you had to conduct due diligence on Sunbeam?
A. "You" meaning me?
Q. Yes, sir, that you attended.
A. I believe that I would consider the meeting in which our group -- let me find the meeting.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question back for me please?
(Record read)
THE WITNESS: My definition of due diligence is anything that really helps your understanding, in this case, of Sunbeam, and so to the extent we are reviewing or discussing public documents, analyst reports, I consider -- so maybe it is a definitional question, but if what you are referring to are face-to-face meetings with management of Sunbeam then I would also characterize the previous meeting in which synergies were discussed as general due diligence sessions.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you remember as you sit here today what the gentlemen at this meeting along with yourself discussed as a matter of due diligence at this 8:00 meeting, assuming again that is the time it took place based on your calendar?
A. No, I do not recall the specific content of that due diligence session and whether -- specifically whether it was focused more on Sunbeam or more on Coleman.
Q. Do you have any notes of the meeting?
A. Apart from what I have provided, no.
Q. Did you in the course of any of the meetings that you attended with, whether it be Sunbeam or internally, ever have a checkoff list of due diligence items that you were going -- about Sunbeam that you wanted to investigate?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Mr. Nesbitt personally?

MR. BEMIS: Whether he had it or he saw it and it was prepared by someone else who was managing the list.
THE WITNESS: I don't believe that I created such a list and I have not seen in discovery any list and I don't -- I just have no recollection of such a list existing but, you know, it is entirely possible.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. The second meeting that is identified on MS 75 and also is referenced on your calendar, do you recall that meeting?
A. Only as it was characterized by Mr. Ward's presence but I don't recall the specific agenda and discussion in that meeting.
Q. The second meeting was strictly among the Coleman team, correct?
A. Yes, that's accurate, Mr. Duffy, Mr. Ward of CSFB and Mr. Maher and myself.
Q. What time does your calendar show that meeting taking place?
A. 12:15 to 12:40 but I can't -- again, the 12:40 is not after the fact and may have just been a default of some sort.

Q. Do you recall as you sit here today what the subject matter of this meeting was that you have identified starting based on your calendar at 12:15, February 23, 1998?
A. No, no, I do not.
Q. Do you recall any documents being discussed at the second meeting; as an example, your spreadsheet analysis of any of the ones that we have looked at such as MS 104 through 107?
A. No, no. I think it was a higher level sort of discussion primarily between Mr. Maher and Mr. Ward who -- Chuck Ward was a senior investment banker at that time at CSFB.
Q. Was Mr. Ward senior to Gordon Rich?
A. I believe that is accurate, yes.
Q. I would like to go back to the first meeting. One question I forgot to ask you.
Do you recall any documents being exchanged at the first meeting on February 23, 1998 which I believe your calendar shows starting at approximately 8:00 a.m.?

A. No, I don't.
Q. Let's turn to the third meeting which is the meeting where the document we identified as MS 84 earlier was discussed.
I want to hand that back to you to put you in a point of reference.
Do you have that document in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. You have given us some information about --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could I have a copy?
MR. BEMIS: I am sorry. I think there should be one in there. I think I saw it when I was looking for my chronology. If not I will give you another one.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Who asked you to attend the evening meeting on February 23?

Page 372

A. I believe it was Mr. Maher.
Q. Did he tell you anything about what was going to occur at the meeting?
A. It was going to be a presentation of Sunbeam's long range strategic plan, what they thought, what their expectations were for the business.
Q. In the future?
A. In the future, yes. Well, yes, as well as it was -- let me rephrase and start again.
It was an opportunity to ask questions and to work through a presentation on the part of the Sunbeam management team on their operating performance ultimately that included some discussion of results as they were experiencing them at that point and, yes, very importantly, their expectations for the quarter, their expectations for the future on a product line by product line basis.
Q. Again, it was expectations of future performance even if -- based on what they knew at that moment in time?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 373

A. Yes.
Q. These projections went forward how many years that you were being presented with?
A. I think it was through 2000.
Q. This plan that you looked at really was focusing on the remainder of 1998 which was 10 months plus a few weeks plus and then 1999 and the year 2000, correct?
A. Yes, yes, and, yes, and not only results but strategic initiatives, here is how we think about the business, here is what we as operating executives are doing; very important for Jerry Levin, Paul Shapiro, Joe Page, Ron Perelman to hear that if our company stock that we would then own in Sunbeam is going to be entrusted in the hands of this management team and we are to receive consideration based on their stewardship of the business.
Q. Did they -- did anyone at the meeting on behalf of Sunbeam say that the strategic plan would not under any circumstances be changed over the next three years?

A. No.
Q. Did anyone at the meeting make any promises or representations to anyone at the meeting representing the Coleman side that there would never be any changes in the strategic plan?
A. Repeat the question.
Q. Sure.
Did anyone representing Sunbeam, Mr. Kersh as an example only, did he make any representations in the form of promises or commitments, that is our strategic plan and it will not change over the next three years no matter what events occur?
A. No.
Q. Have you seen strategic plans for other businesses in the past?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen them based on three years and five year models just as examples?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen those plans sometimes not come to fruition?

Page 375

A. Yes, I have.
Q. Have you seen management after they put forward a strategic plan to use those terms that six months later or a year later they decide that they have to make changes in the strategic plan?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you had that happen at MacAndrews & Forbes with companies controlled by Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you before we get into the details a couple of other copies of MS 84 and I just want to see if any of them have your handwriting on them and if we can identify them then we will use that one and no one else's.
A. Fine.
Q. I want to show you first MS 81 which has been previously marked in another -- excuse me, 181, and ask if that is your handwriting on MS 181?
A. No, it is not.
Q. Do you know whose it is?
A. No, I do not.

Page 376

Q. You may hand it back to me.
I will show you now what has previously been marked as MS 182.
A. Don't rip it.
Q. Okay. Fair enough. We are even now, right?
I have handed you Exhibit 182 and there is a date on the first page and I believe there is a couple other handwritten notes on the interior of the document.
Is any of that your handwriting? The other handwriting is on the very, very last page.
A. I don't believe it is.
Q. Do you know whose it is?
A. No.
Q. I am going to hand you now what has been marked as MS 283 -- excuse me -- 183.
There is handwriting both on the cover page which looks like it was sent to someone --
A. This is not my handwriting and I don't recognize it.
Q. Okay. You may hand that back to me.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 377

I am going to hand you now what has been previously marked as MS 184.
A. This is not my handwriting and I don't recognize it.
Q. How long did the meeting on the evening of February 23 last where the presentations were made that we have discussed and the document we have been using as a baseline for the discussion is MS 84?
A. I would have to guess three, four hours. It was a long meeting, certainly longer than any of the other meetings with the representatives.
Q. How did the meeting start?
A. I believe that Mr. Kersh -- actually, I don't recall how it started but --
Q. I mean other than pleasantries, I mean the substantive part of the meeting.
A. I understand.
I think there was a brief introduction, I believe, on the part of I don't know who but on the part of kind of

Morgan Stanley, here is what we are going to do.
Then we moved very quickly to discussion of this document, this being the MS 84, page by page at a presentation with the opportunity to ask questions, a presentation by the Sunbeam management team, and I believe it was primarily -- I would have to -- I don't know if there are logical places where it would have meant that anyone other than Kersh would have been speaking but it was primarily Mr. Kersh.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Fannin saying anything at the meeting?
A. I do, but -- and if you want I will refer -- I just don't recall at this point what he was saying.
Let me -- I don't recall the substance of any comments that he made.
Q. At any time during the course of the meeting did anyone on the Coleman side of the transaction ask anyone representing Sunbeam including Morgan Stanley for copies of any of Sunbeam's financial statements for a period after year end 1997?

A. I don't believe that specific request was made at that meeting.
Q. Do you ever recall any meeting at all where anyone from the Coleman side of the transaction asked for -- anyone -- for a copy of a financial statement of Sunbeam, audited or unaudited, for any period after year end 1997?
A. I don't recall at any meeting I was present that that question -- specific question was asked.
Q. Do you ever recall either at this meeting or any other meeting being told by anyone, whether it be someone on the Coleman side or on the Sunbeam side of the transaction, stating in words or substance that Sunbeam would not provide to the Coleman side of the transaction its financial statements for any period after year end 1997?
A. I don't believe anyone made that affirmative statement.
Q. After Mr. -- when Mr. Kersh spoke did he use a projector putting the slides, if you will, of the document MS 84 up on a screen page by page or did you just work through a hard copy of the document?

A. I don't recall whether there was a slide presentation. We certainly had hard copies from which to work.
Q. Would you just -- would you refer to MS 84 as a DEC, D-E-C?
A. I will if you like.
Q. You have heard the term used before? Other people have used that term. Would you use that term?
A. No. I would use Power Point.
Q. Some people call it Power Point, Power Point Dec.
A. Whatever you want me to call it.
Q. You created these presentations on Power Point, I take it, yourself?
A. Yes.
Q. After Mr. Kersh made his presentation was there any presentation by anyone else?
A. I don't believe there was a presentation by anyone from Morgan Stanley.
I believe Mr. Goudis did speak

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

but I do not recall -- it may have been a short presentation of sorts but I just don't recall the commentary or the substance of it.

Q. You don't recall Mr. Kitts making any presentation, right?

A. That was implicit in my statement regarding Morgan Stanley.

Mr. Kitts is an employee of Morgan Stanley. Was.

Q. Was.

You identified that there were some materials -- there were some materials handed out at the meeting that had been prepared by Morgan Stanley.

I am going to show you a document previously marked as MS 187 and ask you if that is the document you are referring to?

A. Sure.

Q. I said 187. I meant 186, I guess. I misspoke.

I think you may have actually identified this for me the other day when we were going over documents you reviewed in anticipation of your deposition.

Page 382

I hand that to you, MS 186.

For the record this was previously marked in another deposition.

A. Am I supposed to be doing something?

Q. I apologize. Let me ask a question.

A. Sure.

Q. You have MS 186 in front of you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. You have had a chance to look at it at least briefly now?

A. Yes.

Q. Was this the document that you recall being handed out at the meeting on February 23, 1998?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Was the document discussed at the meeting by those in attendance in the manner that Mr. Kersh did his presentation of MS 84?

A. I don't believe that this document was the basis for a presentation. I believe it was handed out at this meeting.

Page 383

Q. When you got -- did you get a copy of the document?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you take it from the meeting with you?

A. Again, I believe I received this at that meeting.

Q. My question was even if you received it did you take it with you when you left the meeting such that you had a copy in your files?

A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. Did you go through the document in detail after the meeting on February 23?

A. Yes, I did. Yes, we did.

Q. When you say "we," you mean the Coleman team?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you find anything in the document when you went through it that you felt was a misrepresentation by -- of Morgan Stanley?

MR. MARKOWSKI: You are asking him if he made a determination back at that time?

Page 384

MR. BEMIS: Yes, at that time when they went back and reviewed it, that is correct.

THE WITNESS: At that time I was not aware of any misrepresentation in this document.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. As you sit here today do you believe there is something in here that Morgan Stanley intended to misrepresent to you at the time this document was presented on February 23?

A. I can't begin to speculate as to their intentions.

Q. Do you think there was anything that Morgan Stanley misrepresented on February 23, 1998 that they knew at that time was a misrepresentation?

A. At this point, February 23, based on information that I am aware of, that I had been shown through discovery with Mr. Markowski, I am not aware at this point that there was an intent to misrepresent.

Q. You can set the document aside. How was the meeting left on

01533926

February 23 after the presentations and the handouts and whatever social discussion there was?

A. Well, the objective of the meeting was for Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam to provide us with a basis for evaluating the merits of accepting Sunbeam's stock since we would be significant shareholders and so we were -- I think it provided, based on what we learned that night and were told, I think it is fair to say that -- and the representations that were made -- that it provided us with a higher degree of confidence in the stock of Sunbeam, in the value of the stock of Sunbeam and in the future of Sunbeam such that we were in a better position to evaluate the merits of cash versus stock and at what price in total, all of the various attributes, so it really, apart from going back and digesting this, which from our side was of course priority one, it provided us with some footing with which to then accelerate or continue negotiations with the Sunbeam -- Sunbeam and its representatives.

Q. Did the Coleman side of the transaction, the Coleman team go back and digest the material that he either heard presented or saw on paper at the February 23, 1998 meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. The documentation of the transaction by contract occurs as of February 27, 1998 although the documents I think were actually signed on the morning of February 28?

A. Okay.

Q. In the period of time between February 23 and February 27 what steps did the Coleman team take to verify the information that was presented at the February 23 meeting, either in writing or orally by Mr. Kersh or by Mr. Goudis if he happened to speak?

A. As you are aware we had engaged CSFB and the combined team of CSFB, our management team and the other principal representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes reviewed this material.

I can't say that I was present in every meeting, particularly those that might involve Mr. Levin and Mr. Page regarding -- and possibly Mr. Perelman -- regarding the strategic plan and its merits and how credible it was but I think it was during that period that there were a lot of work in reviewing this material and discussing it but like with I think lots of different discussions and I think, I assume very importantly you know ultimately Mr. Levin, based on his discussions with the Sunbeam team, kind of acknowledging the strategic plan and its credibility.

Q. Is it your -- strike that.

Were you present at any meeting where Mr. Levin was present where he acknowledged the viability, if you will, of the Sunbeam strategic plan set forth in MS 84?

A. I apologize. Could you repeat the question?

Q. Sure.

Are you all right?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you present at any meeting where Mr. Levin spoke and said words in substance that I have reviewed the Sunbeam strategic plan and I believe it is a viable plan?

A. I don't recall Mr. Levin being in a meeting in which Mr. Levin made that affirmative statement.

Q. Do you recall being at any meetings where Mr. Levin said in words and substance to Mr. Perelman or to other representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes that Mr. Perelman should take cash and not stock from Sunbeam?

A. I believe there was a view internally all else being equal that cash was better than stock but that is a hypothetical comparison in this situation. We were in the midst of a negotiation. Since --

Q. Sorry. I interrupted.

A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Levin at any meeting that you attended or any meeting that you were told that he spoke express to the Coleman side of the transaction that he intended if the deal was consummated to sell his Coleman stock that he had or he would have pursuant to options on the market, take cash and not take Sunbeam stock?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. No. His intent, no.
Q. Do you know in fact if he did that?
A. I am aware that he did.
Q. Mr. Levin, you understand it, he did in fact not take Sunbeam stock but he liquidated his Coleman position and took cash for his Coleman stock, correct?
A. Yes, I am aware of that.
Q. Were you ever told or present -- withdrawn.
Were you ever told that Mr. Levin said to the Coleman side of the negotiation team that there was no way in his view that Sunbeam could maintain the operating margins that it was claiming that it had achieved in 1997, for example?
A. No, I don't believe so.
Q. Were you ever -- were you ever present or did you ever hear that

Page 390

Mr. Perelman told Mr. Levin, why can't you achieve the operating margins at Coleman that Mr. Dunlap is achieving?
A. I don't believe I was -- I was present at any meeting where Mr. Perelman said that.
Q. Did you ever hear from anyone that Mr. Perelman said that to Mr. Levin in words or substance even if you were not present when it was said?
A. No.
Q. Do you know what Coleman's operating margins were in 1997?
A. Percentage terms?
Q. Yes, in percentage.
A. No, I don't recall specifically. There is an important distinction between theirs and Sunbeam's.
Q. That may be the case. I wasn't trying to make a comparison.
A. I understand. No. I don't recall the specific margin.
Q. Those would be set forth in Coleman's 10-K, would they not?
A. Yes.

Page 391

Q. We -- rather than taking you through that I can go back and look at the 10-K and the auditors' financial statements will give us those figures, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 359 which the court reporter will mark for us now.
(MS Exhibit 359 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have MS 359 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you prepare this letter to the Blackstone Group?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Is the list of enclosures that are set forth in the letter correct?
A. Correct in what sense?
Q. That you actually sent them to them. I realize they are not attached to the letter.
A. Right. Okay.
Yes, to the best of my knowledge

Page 392

it was attached.
Q. The Sunbeam long range strategic plan, item 6, the MS 84 that we have been talking about, correct, without the handwriting?
A. Yes.
Q. Item number 7 would be the MS 186 that -- the pack of materials that we went through a minute ago, right?
A. Right.
Q. Who was the Blackstone Group and why were you sending the letter to them?
A. The Blackstone Group is a -- an investment bank and private equity firm, investment concern, and they were asked to -- I don't recall who they were retained by in connection with the potential restructuring of the company.
Q. Was this --
A. And the board but -- sorry.
Q. Did the Blackstone Group perform a valuation of warrants that were eventually issued to Mr. Perelman's entities as a result of a settlement with Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015328

A. I believe they may have.
Q. What was the valuation that the Blackstone Group placed upon the warrants that Mr. Perelman's or his entities received that were valued at approximately $7 per share for 23 million warrants?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me ask it again. I got a little bit tangled up because I was speaking to the floor. The court reporter couldn't hear me. Let me try again.
What valuation did the Blackstone Group place upon the warrants that Mr. Perelman's entities ultimately received as a result of the settlement with Sunbeam in August of 1998 that -- where there was 23 million warrants issued I think at a strike price of $7 if I recall correctly?
A. That is a different question. I don't recall the specific number but I am sure there is analysis to that effect if you want to jump to that.
Q. We will do that a little bit later.

Let me show you one more document and then we will go forward from February 23.
Mr. Reporter, would you please mark as MS 360 a July 10, 1998 document, I believe, authored by Mr. Nesbitt.
(MS Exhibit 360 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have MS 360 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is this a letter that you wrote to the Blackstone Group on or about July 10, 1998?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Did you send the enclosures that are identified in the letter?
A. Yes, to the best of my knowledge, yes.
Q. Was this letter, MS 360, a second transmittal of information to the Blackstone Group the other being MS 359?
A. At their request, yes.

Q. All of this in connection with the valuation of warrants that were being considered to be issued to Mr. Perelman's companies in settlement of a controversy with Sunbeam?
A. I cannot say that all of this information was necessary in their review of the valuation for the benefit of the warrants.
Q. Okay. You can hand it back to me.
Do you know any other work that the Blackstone Group did for Mr. Perelman or in connection with Sunbeam other than the valuation of the warrants that were issued as part of the August 1998 settlement with Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. After February 23 did you do some -- did you do some calculations to try to determine how much stock and how much cash Mr. Perelman's entities could receive in exchange for their interest in Coleman without having to go through a shareholder vote at Coleman or Sunbeam?

A. After which date?
Q. After February 23, 1998?
A. I believe I did.
Q. What was the precise reason that you did that analysis?
A. I believe it shortened the time frame during which we could close the transaction.
Q. Because you could close it without a shareholder vote, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Was the concern in terms of time as you have expressed it a concern over a shareholder vote of Sunbeam or a concern of a shareholder vote of the Coleman Company, Inc. or both if that is the case?
A. I believe the concern was over the Sunbeam shareholders since we are speaking about, I believe, a New York Stock Exchange rule which limits the amount of stock that can be issued, something like 18-1/2 or 20 percent or so, I can't recall at the time.
If you issue below that you don't need a shareholder vote.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. If you issue above that number then you do have to get a shareholder vote?
A. Exactly.
Q. The way the transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman is finally structured Sunbeam did have to issue a certain number of new shares which the concern was would that issuance bump up against the New York Stock Exchange requirements; is that correct?
A. I believe that is accurate.
Q. Was the transaction that ultimately was agreed upon between Sunbeam and Coleman, was it negotiated in such a way that Sunbeam did not cross over the New York Stock Exchange threshold for issuance of new stock that would require a shareholder vote?
A. I wouldn't go that far. I would say that was one consideration but if you are a penny apart you would prefer to not cause yourself to have to incur the expense and disruption and time delay of a shareholder vote at the Sunbeam level because you hadn't done your homework.

Q. You attended the two board of directors meetings of the Coleman Company, Inc. at which time the merger was presented to the board of directors, correct?
A. Yes, that's accurate.
Q. Are you aware of any instructions -- strike that.
Up to the time of the presentation to the board of directors of the -- of the Coleman Company, Inc. the first of which was February 25 as the record has already shown us --
A. Okay.
Q. -- did you provide to Morgan Stanley any of the valuation materials you had done on the merger transaction, as an example only, Morgan Stanley Exhibits 104 through 107?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Are you aware of Credit Suisse First Boston up to the date of February 25, 1998 providing to Morgan Stanley any of the evaluation materials that Credit Suisse First Boston had done in connection with the analysis of the potential merger transaction?

A. No, I am not.
Q. Internally, given that you had code names for this project, whether it be Project Laser or Project Violet that were being used did you keep the information that the Coleman team had developed with its advisers confidential within your negotiating group?
A. Not in its entirety.
Q. What did you share with Morgan Stanley?
A. Cost savings.
Q. The synergies?
A. Yes.
Q. Anything else that you can think of?
A. I think there was discussion on both sides about the projected operating results of the businesses, the key element of due diligence, but as it related to negotiating strategy, structural considerations, preferences, line in the sand issue, what do we really want to do in life, no, that is our side of the negotiation or their side as the case may be.

Q. Let's go to the board of directors meeting on February 25, 1998. Did you attend the entire meeting?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Was --
A. Unless there was some sort of audit or whatever but I think this was a special meeting.
Q. I am not aware of anymore than one meeting. I think you are correct.
We are going to change the tape right here.

Q. I am going to show you what has previously been marked as MS 88 which is a copy of board minutes, some presentation materials that were attached to the minutes in case you need to make reference to them, I hand that to you.
Let me have that back a second. I want to make sure there is no two copies stapled together. There you are one more time.
Do you have MS 88 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. This has previously been identified as minutes of the February 25, 1998 board of directors meeting of the Coleman Company, Inc.
If you need to refer to it feel free to do so.
In the minutes there is a reference to, in the second page, very first paragraph, of Mr. Levin presenting the company's results for the fourth quarter and the full year 1997 as well as an outlook for year term prospects, do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did Mr. Levin's presentation differ in any way from the assumptions you made in the models that you had created for Coleman's 1997 performance in the various analyses that we have looked at?
A. Can I see the presentation?
Q. Sure. Mr. Levin's presentation?
A. Yes.
Q. I don't have Mr. Levin's presentation. I am just referring to the notes.
A. No one has it, the board?
Q. They have it. I don't have it so I can't be more helpful than that.
A. We are talking about 104 -- 104, 105, 106, 107?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. I don't know. There is a substantial period of time that had transpired between the board meeting as well as most importantly the realization of results and continuing valuation of results so I have no reason to believe there were substantial differences but I just don't know.

Q. Did you speak at the board meeting at all?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Had you presented -- withdrawn.
A. I should refer --
Q. I will tell you I don't see there is any reference to you speaking, Mr. Nesbitt.
A. Okay.
Q. In CSFB's presentation at the board meeting of February 25, did CSFB offer any financial modeling or projections that differed with what you had prepared in your models such as MS 104 through 107 that we have been discussing?
A. Well, I believe that MS 104 and 105, 106, 107 did not benefit from -- I lost my numbers on it -- but the February 23 long range strategic plan and so I believe First Boston's analysis which evaluated Sunbeam on the basis of two sets of projections; one based on the long range strategic plan; two, based on analysts' estimates, therefore differed somewhat from 104, 105, 106 and 107.

Q. What projection did Credit Suisse First Boston prepare based on the -- on the long range strategic plan, MS 84?
A. I believe that in the first -- in one of the board meetings, and we can, if we have the documents we can refer to them, that First Boston prepared some pro formas which included projected operating results of Sunbeam and Coleman and probably some historical combination numbers based on recent historicals but certainly my guess is -- my recollection is '98 and '99.
Q. My question was a little bit more precise. Perhaps you answered it.
A. Let's try again.
Q. What is the -- what document did Credit Suisse First Boston prepare that was based on the February 23 long range strategic plan document marked as MS 84?
A. I believe First Boston made a presentation to the board of directors which would be customary which was to --

015331

since -- particularly since we were receiving stock as part of the consideration, as to the pro forma analysis, a pro forma analysis of the combined company.

Q. What information out of MS 84 did Credit Suisse First Boston to your knowledge use in any long range projection that they were making to the board of directors? What did they use?

A. I believe there was some important top line data in the two documents -- and bottom line data in the documents that were presented on the 23rd. I can refer to them again.

Q. What I am referring to is what did Credit Suisse First Boston put into a report that they prepared?

A. Can we look at that document please?

Q. I don't know what document you are referring to. I can give you MS 84 if you want.

A. Your colleague seems to be aware.

Q. If this is the presentation, there was some documents handed out.

Page 406

A. Okay.

Q. I will give you one that was apparently presented by Credit Suisse First Boston.

A. Okay.

Q. This is MS 112 which has previously been marked.

MR. MARKOWSKI: May I have a copy?

MR. BEMIS: Yes. I am sorry.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Do you have that in front of you, MS 112?

A. Yes, I do. Sorry.

Q. Where in MS 112?

A. I am looking.

Q. Let me get the question out so the record will know what I am asking.

Where in MS 112 which is the Credit Suisse presentations of February 25, 1998 is there any reference to the Sunbeam long range strategic plan, MS 84?

A. Well, if you turn to page 14, okay?

Page 407

Q. Yes.

A. Operating assumptions, SOC, ticker symbol for Sunbeam, long term strategic plan, SOC projections for 1998 and 2000 and estimates of 2000 and 2002.

I assume therefore that '01 and '02 from First Boston is an extrapolation, I am not sure, but it references footnote 2, long range strategic plan, the discounted cash flow for SOC.

Q. Anything other than that in the report?

A. Well, I will continue.

Q. You are on page 13. Is there anything else in the report that makes any reference to the strategic plan MS 84?

MR. MARKOWSKI: He was referring to page 14 I believe.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Yes, page 14. Did I say 13? I misspoke. Sorry.

A. I am inferring from your tone of voice that I answered the wrong questions. I thought you asked if there was any relationship between the documents prepared there and the materials presented on the 23rd. I am referring to page 14, yes, there is. There is a question -- go ahead.

Q. Let's slow down.

Is there anywhere else other than page 14?

A. Page 13 also.

Q. Page 13?

A. It references a DCF based on those numbers. It provides an enterprise value range based on both -- the base case which I think is really related to I/B/E/S estimates and then the long range strategic plans so two -- actually four different approaches.

Q. What Credit Suisse First Boston did, start on page 13, they took some numbers from the long term strategic plan and calculated enterprise values, right?

A. Yes, exactly.

Q. Those numbers don't appear in the long range strategic plan, the enterprise value?

A. No.

Q. And then Credit Suisse First

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Boston did its own analysis, did three other analyses and said, look at all the different analyses that are available?
A. Absolutely.
Q. Then on page 14 Credit Suisse First Boston took, as I understand what you believe they did, they took figures for 1998, 1999 and 2000?
A. Yes.
Q. Which were in the MS 84 and then they also did estimates themselves for 2000 and 2002, correct?
A. Both of us are interpreting this footnote but, yes, the absence of the numbers in the strategic plan would suggest that they extrapolated beyond that.
Q. Then they looked at those numbers, whatever the long term strategic plan and estimates were that they put on the electronic spreadsheet. They also compared those numbers to a base case which is footnote 1, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And First Boston said that these are the base case, footnote 1, these are projections developed in conjunction with CLN. That is Coleman, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. Management based on equity analyst research?
A. Yes.
Q. So, again, Credit Suisse First Boston was presenting with various analyses that had been done by different people and then was presenting whatever opinions or judgments it could from its analyses; is that fair?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You can set MS 112 aside or hand that back. I will take it out of your way.
Do you remember any discussions at the February 25 board meeting that specifically identified any work that Morgan Stanley had done in connection with its role as investment banker to Sunbeam?
A. May I refer to the minutes?
Q. Sure. You go ahead, sure.
A. I apologize. Could you repeat the question? I want to answer it accurately.

Q. Sure.
Do you remember any discussion at the February 25 board meeting that specifically identified any work that Morgan Stanley had done in connection with its role as investment banker to Sunbeam?
A. I think -- I believe in recounting the history of the transaction and discussions back and forth, summarized by Mr. Maher, there was probably a reference to Morgan Stanley's involvement as investment banker. That is the extent of it.
Q. At any point during Credit Suisse First Boston's presentation did they say to the board of directors of Coleman we guarantee to you that the projections that we have put in our base case in that February 25, 1998 projection are guaranteed to you board of directors to come true, did they tell you that?
A. No.
Q. Did you believe that to be true that Credit Suisse First Boston's base case was a guarantee by them that those things would indeed happen over the next five years?

A. No.
Q. Indeed the projections that Credit Suisse First Boston gave you in the base case, in the February 25, 1998 board presentation materials that we just went over, I think it was MS 111, 112, they didn't come to pass, did they?
A. No.
Q. Did Credit Suisse First Boston in your view, your investment banker, did they misrepresent to the board of directors those projections that they had calculated based on what analyst information they had available to them?
A. They accurately represented that those numbers were the culmination of due diligence with the Sunbeam management team and Morgan Stanley and analyst estimates and they conveyed them to us.
Q. Did they make misrepresentations to you?
MR. MARKOWSKI: The "they" is First Boston?

Q. Credit Suisse First Boston.
A. I think the way I answered it, I said they accurately represented the work that they had done so, no, they did not make misrepresentation.
Q. Can you tell me, as of the board meetings on February 25, 1998, can you identify for me any misrepresentation that Morgan Stanley made to you where you were present concerning work that they had done, like Credit Suisse First Boston had done, that you just described for me?
A. What is the date again?
Q. As of February 25, 1998.
A. I am not aware of what Morgan Stanley knew at that point on the 28th but of course I have learned later or I learned that later there was information subsequent to that which suggested that the company might not meet its earnings estimates but let's --
Q. Let's focus up to February 25. We will deal with what may have happened later. That is where I want you to concentrate.

Are you aware of any misrepresentation that Morgan Stanley made to you in a meeting, for example, that you attended or that you were told that Morgan Stanley made up to February 25, 1998 about the estimates or analysis they had done in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question back for me please?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I will just ask it again. It will be faster.
As of February 25, 1998 are you aware that Morgan Stanley made any -- withdrawn.
Let me try it one more time.
As of February 25, 1998 as you sit here today are you aware of any misrepresentation that you know that Morgan Stanley made to you as of that date based upon the information and analyses they had gone through as of February 25, 1998 in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam merger?

Page 415

MR. MARKOWSKI: Are you asking whether he knew -- let me ask this.
I am going to object to the form.
Is the question whether he knows that Morgan Stanley knew it was a misrepresentation prior to February 25?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. That is my question; that Morgan Stanley knew it was a misrepresentation.
A. I have no basis to know that Morgan Stanley knew it was a representation.
Q. You mean misrepresentation?
A. A misrepresentation.
I cannot believe based on the facts and their involvement with the company that they were not aware that this was a house of cards.
Q. What facts do you base that upon that Morgan Stanley knew that Sunbeam was a house of cards as you put it as of February 25, 1998?
A. Again, I am -- I cannot say that I know that they knew, but the speed with which the company's operating results deteriorated and the extent to which they missed their first quarter numbers is startling.

Q. What is the extent they missed their first quarter numbers expressed in dollars? What is the extent they missed it?
A. I just remember it was significant.
Q. Do you know how significant? You don't know?
A. No, but I have seen documentation subsequent in discovery suggesting that it was significant.
Q. What is significant to you so we know, the percentages are dollars?
A. Let's refer to the documents.
Q. We can do that.
A. I can't answer the question. I have been sitting here for 16 hours so --
Q. I will show you the document.
Let's go up to February -- withdrawn.
At the time of the February 25, 1998 board meeting had a price been agreed to between the parties for the purchase of the Coleman stock, a price that had been agreed to?

A. No.
Q. The parties were indeed still actively negotiating as of the time this presentation was made to the board of directors on February 25, correct?
A. What I was actually referring to was, maybe it is semantics but an exchange ratio was agreed to ultimately. There was never a price agreed to in this transaction.
Q. That is a fair question. That is what was going to be my next question.
By February 25 had the exchange ratio been agreed to between the parties?
MR. MARKOWSKI: When you say the -- sorry. Did you say had the exchange ratio been agreed to?
MR. BEMIS: Had the or an exchange ratio?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I think there is a difference that is significant.
BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. As of February 25, 1998, the board meeting -- had the parties agreed to an exchange ratio for the transaction?
A. I recall vaguely and I am also referring to the Wachtell sequence of events, there was, I think, agreement as to an exchange ratio and a dollar amount of cash and for reasons that I don't recall the ratio and the amount of cash was modified slightly from .6258 shares and 440 in cash as of the 25th to .5677 and 644, the final number.
Q. Between February 25 and February 27 of 1998 is it fair to say that the parties were trying to still -- were still discussing the final exchange ratio for the stock as well as the cash component of the deal?
A. Yes.
Q. Had the parties as of February 25 arrived at a price that would -- the stock component and the cash component would be equal to such as, for example, $30 per share or $25 per share?
A. I am sorry. I didn't --

Page 419

Q. It is a hard -- a bad question, a hard question to express.
The manner in which the transaction closed has two components, conversion ratio, converting Coleman stock into Sunbeam stock and it has a conversion price?
A. Yes.
Q. And it changes daily?
A. And it will change daily.
Q. It will continue to change just as the Coleman stock changed over the course of the negotiations, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did there come a point in time when the parties picked a date and a time, if you will, to fix the price of each party's stock for purposes of calculating the conversion ratio and the cash portion of the transaction?
A. I don't think so the way I believe you have described it.
I think what they agreed on was an exchange ratio. Part of agreeing to that is knowing what your stock -- what

Sunbeam's stock and what Coleman's stock is and what is the cash component. It is a multivaried equation.
Q. How does the exchange ratio help you get to the cash portion of the deal unless you have agreed on the final price that the two components, cash and stock, they have to equal?
A. But they don't have to equal something, a certain price. That is the reason why it is an exchange ratio.
If the price of the stock -- the price of Sunbeam stock goes down prior to closing you are out of luck.
Q. That is true. If it goes up you are in luck?
A. Exactly. When you say "price," what I am referring to is -- I think the way you have described it and maybe it is just -- I am just not focusing here -- that -- I don't believe that we said the price has to be, or the price as it is structured and described, is $27 a share and whatever the price is as of a specific date but I may be wrong.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015335

I think -- I just don't recall why the exchange ratio and cash component were changed. Maybe you can enlighten me.

Q. I was actually trying to have you enlighten me if there was a point in time in which the parties agreed we will set the consideration as of this point in time and as of that point in time we know the two parties' stock prices based on closing prices on the New York Stock Exchange, for example, and knowing that we can fix, if we have agreed on what the total compensation must be per share for the Coleman stock, we can fix a conversion ratio and we can fix the cash component, am I correct in that?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't think I tracked that.

Could you read it back to me please?

THE WITNESS: I don't think so.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. I don't want to spend too much more time on this. Let me try it one more time.

The way this transaction is eventually closed, if you will, there is a point in time when the parties fix the exchange rate for Sunbeam and Coleman stock?

A. Exactly, yes.

Q. At that point in time which is indeed February 27, is it not?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. At that point in time you have a closing price for the Sunbeam stock and you have a closing price for the Coleman stock, correct?

A. Yes, but --

MR. MARKOWSKI: I think you said the same thing twice.

THE WITNESS: Yes. I think --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Coleman and Coleman.

THE WITNESS: Sunbeam and Coleman, yes.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. At the date that you decided to fix the price you have closing prices for both the Coleman stock and the Sunbeam stock based on I guess New York Stock Exchange prices, right?

A. Yes.

Q. At that point in time did the parties agree on what the total consideration, that is, the value of the Sunbeam stock that they were going to receive in exchange for the Coleman -- whatever conversion ratio plus the cash consideration had to equal as expressed for one share of Coleman stock?

A. I believe that First Boston opined that the value was X. I think it was something on the order of 27 or 27.50 or so at that moment in time.

But I think everyone in the room was aware that the terms of the transaction would almost necessarily probablistically lead to some different consideration in the future at closing.

Q. At closing?

A. Yes, at closing since you can't fix the price of Sunbeam's stock which would be the one variable that if you could fix that you can structure a transaction differently so that you fix the price and the exchange ratio obviously varies.

Q. To close this out, as of February 27 the parties agreed upon the exchange ratio and they agreed upon the cash component of the consideration, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And they left it to the market, if you will, between February 27 and the closing, if you will, on March 30, to determine what the final consideration was because one of the components was Sunbeam stock which was subject to market fluctuations?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there ever any discussion in the course of the negotiation for placing a collar on the price of Sunbeam stock?

A. A collar is a common device, there are reasons why you don't use it and why you do use it, so I believe there may have been discussion regarding it but at the end of the day there was no dollar and so whatever transpired during the negotiations led to no collar.

Q. Do you recall either party

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

suggesting a collar and the other party saying, no, I don't want one?
A. I can't recall a specific proposal regarding the collar that was then rejected.
Q. Do you recall -- withdrawn.
A. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: Let's take a short break so we can use the restrooms.

(Discussion off the record)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 2:54 p.m. We are back on the record.
MR. BEMIS: Why don't you read me the last question?
(Record read)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Following the execution of the merger agreements on -- as of February 27, 1998 did you attend any road shows in connection with the sale of the Sunbeam zero coupon debentures that Morgan Stanley underwrote?
A. I recall being present at a presentation by Al Dunlap and other representatives of Morgan Stanley.

I don't recall where -- which hotel, and I don't recall when it was. I believe it was to -- it was a presentation with respect to the debentures.
Q. Do you recall anything -- strike that.
Did Morgan Stanley speak at the road show?
A. Yes, I believe so, but I don't recall who.
Q. Do you recall anything that Morgan Stanley said?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Dunlap speaking at the road show?
MR. MARKOWSKI: He said he recalls him speaking. Does he remember what he said?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, what Mr. Dunlap said.
THE WITNESS: I recall -- it is my recollection that there were synergy numbers that were discussed, an important component of the analysis, the potential purchasers are going to -- that were in excess, and I do not recall how much, but in excess of the synergies that we felt -- that we had discussed with Sunbeam which I think were something along the lines of around 100 or so.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. When you say 100 or so --
A. Million related to Coleman because there were a couple of other companies which had been purchased.
Q. I am sorry. Is this 100 million that Coleman was using as synergies or that Sunbeam was using as synergies?
I am not sure. I didn't understand your answer.
My recollection of -- let me withdraw the question. I want to get you finished if I can.
A. Yes.
Q. What do you recall Mr. Dunlap saying as best you can? If you can't remember his exact words, what was the substance of what he said at the road show meeting that you attended?

A. I recall a more optimistic view with respect to synergies than what we were assuming and that had been discussed with the Sunbeam people.
Q. I thought you were finished.
A. Go ahead, please.
Q. Do you remember any specific numbers that Mr. Dunlap used?
A. No.
Q. Other than the discussion, presentation, whatever on the road show of synergies, do you recall anything else that Mr. Dunlap said?
A. Well, it was kind of -- I think as is characteristic for Mr. Dunlap, a very kind of go get them, take no prisoners, we are going to do it, trust us, it is going to happen presentation.
There are executives out there and I have seen hundreds of them. Remember, I was -- ran a hedge fund so I meet with these guys who were either more conservative and they are not table pounders, that is not Al Dunlap. He says what he thinks.

He says what he thinks he can do or at least he does not hesitate to convey what he thinks he can do. So I just -- the tone of the presentation certainly was like that.

Q. Did you say anything at the road show?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask any questions?

A. No.

Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes to your knowledge purchase any of the zero coupon debentures underwritten by Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman merger?

A. No, I don't believe so.

Q. Let's go forward from -- withdrawn. Let's change topics.

I don't know if we are going to go forward or backwards but I would like to turn to the subject of the March 19 press release which I think you touched on a little bit earlier when you were talking about missing first quarter estimates.

A. Right.

Q. Did there come a point in time after the closing that you saw -- withdrawn.

Did there come a point in time when you did see the March 19 press release issued by Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me hand you what has been marked as MS 39, so you have a copy in front of you.

Would you like to read it before we go forward?

A. Please.

Q. Let me know when you are finished.

A. Okay.

Q. Would you tell us the circumstances under which you first saw the March 19 press release?

A. I don't believe -- I don't recall the exact method, whether it was electronically, I do have -- I may have had a Bloomberg or whatever in my office and whether I noted a news story but I don't believe I was given any advance warning nor did I receive an advance copy or -- but it may have been distributed to me internally because someone else saw it first.

MR. BEMIS: Off the record.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:04 p.m. and we are going off the record.

(Discussion off the record)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:05 p.m. We are back on the record.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. After you saw the press release in whatever form, whether it be electronic or be a hard copy, were you asked to take any steps by Mr. Maher or Mr. Perelman or anyone else in the Coleman group?

A. I believe -- this is subsequent to the announcement so it was a matter of public record of course that we were doing the deal.

I believe that I was asked to canvass the market, the institutional research community, but I can't recall whether -- because there were various times that I did this, whether I actually spoke to any of the analysts or in fact whether I just went on to first call to interview the analyst, analyst responses to this -- I believe it was the latter.

I don't think at this point that I conducted conversations with any -- particularly because the deal hadn't closed and it is a two-way street to speak to these guys so --

Q. Let me show you what we will mark as MS 167 by the reporter.

A. But I don't know. Maybe.

Q. I apologize. It has already been marked.

A. It looks like I did speak to him.

Q. Let me hand you a copy.

A. I did speak to him.

Q. You spoke to the analyst after the closing, not before the closing, and after the March 19 press release, right?

A. Wait a second. This is dated May 20.

Q. Correct.

015338

Page 433

A. I am sorry. I am confused.
Q. My original question, what did you do after March 19? I think you said you spoke to analysts at some point?
A. Yes, I believe I did. I just couldn't recall if I spoke to them immediately after but my sense was that it was -- that I canvassed the institutional research community electronically.
I gathered whatever was available on the wire for our benefit to see what their response was to this release and then I guess what you have now provided me is what I am referring to which is later on I did actually speak to some of the analysts.
Q. The first thing that you did after March 19 in terms of the analyst was just to do an electronic search if you will of what was available from the analyst in terms of their reaction to the March 19 press release, correct?
A. Yes, yes. It raised a little flag -- not -- this was not Def Con 3 at this point.
Q. When you say the March 19 press release, this was not Def Con 3, you are referring to the press release of March 19, correct?

A. Yes, as we interpreted this press release. It is hard to argue it was good news but it wasn't clear that it was very bad news.
It was an indication that they might not meet their results.
Q. You can hand MS 167 back and we will get it off the table.
Did you eventually do a comparison between what Sunbeam reported for its first quarter sales of 1998 when it filed its 10-Q and what it said in the March 19 press release?
A. I don't recall actually doing that work but it would be logical to assume I did.
Q. Before we get to that point let's talk about the canvassing the market electronically for the analyst reports.
Did you have, for example, access to Mr. Shore's reports from PaineWebber on Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall which reports not only that I had access to but who was diligent enough or not on vacation or whatever to actually put out what is typically referred in the industry as a first call synopsis and so I contrast that with a full blown periodic review of a company and it is instead -- it is more of an institutional -- institutionally directed couple of paragraphs or so on interpretation of here is what happened yesterday, I have spoken with management.
Q. Did you -- do you recall whether you saw Mr. Shore's report?
A. No, specifically, no. I just recall that the -- I believe that the response was this is the blip, possibly a buying opportunity but we should --
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 212 previously marked in another deposition.
This is from PaineWebber, Andrew Shore, March 19, 1998.
Do you have Mr. Shore's report in front of you?

Page 436

A. Yes.
Q. Did you see this report when you did your electronic canvassing of the analyst reports after you saw the March 19 or heard about the March 19 press release?
A. I believe I did. I don't believe it was the only one I did but, yes, I believe I did.
Q. You read it after you saw it, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. This is entitled Sunbeam: Grilled?
MR. MARKOWSKI: He started to say something.
MR. BEMIS: I am sorry.
THE WITNESS: Let me try to clarify. I do not recall specifically reading Andrew Shore's report. I am familiar with Andrew Shore as an analyst at PaineWebber on Sunbeam and read his research in the past but I do not recall that I read a March 19 report by Andrew Shore. I read I think numerous relatively brief reports and whatever I could have gotten my hands on I read but I don't know whether I had access to this and there are access questions depending on who you are and depending on who you are trying to read, which analyst you are trying to read, their research so --

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Let me change directions from the analyst reports for a second.

After March 19 but before the closing of March 30 did you make any request of Sunbeam to see their financial statements for any period in the 1998 fiscal year, for example, January or February of 1998?

A. I did not.

Q. Do you know of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes who made such a request either of Sunbeam or one of its representatives to see Sunbeam's monthly financial statements for either January or February of 1998?

A. No.

Q. Why didn't you ask to see them as an analyst?

A. Well --

Q. Let me back up.

Do you know of any reason why you as a representative of MacAndrews & Forbes could not have asked for and received a copy of Sunbeam's financial statements for January and February of 1998 if you had asked for them?

A. No.

Q. Indeed you are aware that under the merger documents that MacAndrews & Forbes had a right of access to Sunbeam's financial records before the closing, right?

A. Yes, and an obligation to inform us of a material adverse change.

Q. That is a different question.

A. I understand.

Q. The question now is whether you, that is, MacAndrews & Forbes, had a right under the merger agreements to ask Sunbeam for Sunbeam's financial information before the closing as scheduled on March 30, 1998?

A. We did have that right and I believe that one of the -- I believe it might have been Jerry Levin -- had a conversation with one or more executives at Sunbeam on this.

Q. Let's talk about the financial statements and then get to the conversations.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Let's not interrupt his answer.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. I want to get him out of here.

A. I am happy --

Q. If you want to stay longer we can stay longer now that I don't have to go to Florida.

A. I want to get out of here.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I would appreciate --

MR. BEMIS: I appreciate what you said and I apologize for interrupting. I will do it again and follow up with you.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. You were talking -- you understood Mr. Levin had a conversation with someone at some point?

A. I believe that there was a discussion regarding -- by Mr. Levin, regarding the release of this press release. In fact, I know there was. There was concern.

The reason, again, I don't know that, there -- whether there was a request for financial statements but I also know enough having overseen, looked at enough companies that simply seeing the numbers is not the only way to get to the bottom or necessarily the most efficient way to get to the bottom and I believe that -- so a call was made to get to the bottom of this issue.

Q. Let's take it one step at a time and I will get to the call.

The first step though, I want to confirm that as far as you know as you sit here today the MacAndrews & Forbes Coleman team, if you will, for this negotiation, did not request after March 19 any financial statements from Sunbeam before the closing on March 30, 1998, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I believe that is accurate.
Q. Would you agree with me that had you -- had you a right, that is, the MacAndrews & Forbes side, under the merger documents to request financial information from Sunbeam as part of your right to do due diligence prior to the closing?
A. Yes.
Q. My understanding is that you are -- you know that Mr. Levin made a --
A. I believe, yes. Please. Sorry.
Q. I thought you said you were certain that you did.
Let me ask you. Let's do it one piece at a time.
A. Fine.
Q. You testified that Mr. Levin made a phone call or had a phone call with someone where he was asking questions, as I understand your testimony, about the March 19 press release; is that right?
A. Yes, it is my recollection that Mr. Levin had a discussion.
Q. Were you on the phone?
A. No, I was not.

Page 442

Q. Were you in the room when the phone call was made?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Did Mr. Levin tell you about the phone call?
A. No.
Q. Who told you about it then?
A. I believe Mr. Maher told me about it.
Q. Was Mr. Maher on the phone call?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Was Mr. Maher in the room when Mr. Levin made the phone call?
A. I don't know.
Q. Who did Mr. Levin speak to if you know?
A. I don't know.
Q. Mr. Maher didn't tell you who Mr. Levin spoke to?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did Mr. Maher tell you he knew who Mr. Levin spoke to?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did Mr. Maher tell you that he spoke to someone at Sunbeam?

Page 443

A. Yes.
Q. Did he tell that you he spoke to -- Mr. Levin spoke to anyone at Morgan Stanley?
A. I believe it was Sunbeam and my expectation was that it was Mr. Kersh since that was the line of communication.
Q. Did you learn of this conversation with whoever it was at Sunbeam that presumably, as you described it, Mr. Levin had, based on what Mr. Maher told you?
Did you take any steps from that point forward to at least discuss internally at MacAndrews & Forbes requesting copies of Sunbeam's internal financial statements at least for the months of 1998 in the first quarter?
A. Did I? No.
Q. Did that suggestion ever get made at any meeting inside MacAndrews & Forbes before the closing on March 30, that is, let's request from Sunbeam a copy of their financial statements even though we know they are unaudited for January and February of 1998, let's request a copy of them and take a look at them?

A. No.
Q. You knew as part of the MacAndrews & Forbes team that was negotiating with Sunbeam that Sunbeam had certified public accountants that audited Sunbeam's financial statements, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You knew that Sunbeam's certified public accountants were, or was, Arthur Andersen, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. As a matters of securities law for a public company, Arthur Andersen -- excuse me -- the company, that is, Sunbeam, would file in its quarterly statement for the first quarter financial statements for the first three months, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. As a matter of securities practice for public companies those quarterly statements are reviewed by certified public accountants, correct?
A. That is accurate.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Are those statements subject to a full audit on a quarterly basis?
A. No, they are not.
Q. They are subject to what is called a review process?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. At any time between, say, March 19 and the closing on March 30, did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes side of negotiations with Sunbeam make any request either through Sunbeam or directly to the auditors for a copy of the comfort letters that the auditors were providing in connection with the debenture offering?
A. No, not that I was aware of.
Q. Were you aware that such a comfort letter would be issued to the auditors in connection with the debenture offering that Morgan Stanley was underwriting for Sunbeam in connection with the closing?
A. I was not.
Q. You didn't know that Morgan Stanley was underwriting -- withdrawn.
Did you know that Morgan Stanley was --

A. That is not what you said.
Q. Did you understand that Morgan Stanley was the underwriter for the debentures?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you understand that underwriters request comfort letters from the auditors in a public company situation like this before the closing of an underwriting such as was issued in this case?
A. No.
Q. You are not familiar with that?
A. That is a different question.
You asked was I.
Q. Are you familiar with at least what comfort letters are?
A. I am.
Q. Are you familiar that auditors issue them at least in connection with underwriting of securities?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you familiar with the concept that underwriters request these letters as part of establishing their due diligence defense under Section 11 of the 1933 act?

A. Not in as much detail as you just described. You are asking the question in the present tense.
That is not what you asked before, was I.
Q. Did you know in 1998?
A. No.
Q. Let's go back to the March 19 press release.
We have talked now about requesting financial statements from Sunbeam and we have talked about the canvassing of the analysts.
Did you do anything else on the MacAndrews & Forbes side to investigate the substance of the March 19 press release?
A. Apart from discussions between Mr. Levin and his people and the representatives at Sunbeam?
Q. I don't know if there was representatives plural but that is --
A. Sunbeam.
Q. Let me back up. My question was really -- was too broadly phrased to be fair.

After March 19 and before March 30, that is the time period I want to focus on, I want to make sure I understand what the MacAndrews & Forbes side did after the press release was issued.
Are you clear on the time frame?
A. Yes.
Q. You have described for me that you believe based on conversations you had with Mr. Maher that Mr. Levin had a conversation with someone at Sunbeam, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You have told me that no request was made by the MacAndrews & Forbes side for any of Sunbeam's financial statements whether audited or unaudited for the period -- any period in 1998, correct?
A. No. That is not correct. I said I was not aware of any. I did not say that no request was made.
Q. Then I misspoke.
As you sit here today you are not aware of any request being made by the MacAndrews & Forbes side between March 19 and March 30 for copies of any of Sunbeam's financial statements for the 1998 period, for example, January or February?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 449

A. Right, that is accurate.
Q. As far as you know as you sit here today no one at MacAndrews & Forbes had any communications with Arthur Andersen, Sunbeam's certified public accountants, correct?
A. That is accurate.
Q. As you sit here today you are not aware of any specific request whether directly to Arthur Andersen or through another source for Arthur Andersen to provide a copy of any financial information that they had for Sunbeam for the period January 1, 1998, if you will, up until whatever date the request was made?
A. That's accurate.
Q. You are also aware that under, whether it be the Coleman merger documents or the CLN Holdings merger documents, those have been identified as MS 117 and MS 93, that the MacAndrews & Forbes side of the transaction had a right to request Sunbeam financial information before the closing on March 30, 1998?

A. Yes, I am.
Q. As I understand your testimony, while you did an electronic survey of whatever you could find from analysts you did not speak to any analysts like Andrew Shore or anyone at Goldman Sachs or what have you before the closing on March 30, 1998 and after the March 19 press release was issued?
That is a terrible question because I got the dates backwards. Let me try it again. Withdrawn.
Am I correct that did you not speak to any analyst following Sunbeam between March 19 and March 30, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Is -- am I also correct that notwithstanding the press release and whatever was in the analyst reports and whatever Mr. Levin -- withdrawn.
At some point in time you did as

Page 451

I understand it look at Sunbeam's reported results for the first quarter of 1998 as filed with their -- filed in their 10-Q, correct?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. I think you said earlier that there was a substantial miss between what was said in the press release and what they reported in their first quarter results, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you now the 10-Q for the first quarter of 1998 as reported by Sunbeam at the time and ask you if you looked at this document.
I hand you what has been marked as MS 281. Do you have MS 281 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you want to turn to -- you are probably at the page faster than me.
Do you want to turn to the page of the financial statements which should be page 2 of the financial statements which is I believe on page 4 of the document in front of you. Are you there?

A. Yes, I am.
Q. Would you read into the record what Arthur Andersen reported Sunbeam's sales -- net sales were for the first quarter of 1997?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Arthur Andersen?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Didn't I say Arthur Andersen?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You said Arthur Andersen but this isn't Arthur Andersen's report.
MR. BEMIS: You are right. I misspoke.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Would you read into the record what Sunbeam reported in its financial statements as reflected in Exhibit 281 for the first quarter of March 30, 1997?
A. Sales; 253,450,000.
Q. That is the same number that is set forth in MS 39, the press release as being their 1997 first quarter net sales, right?
A. Yes.

IN FACE CERTIFIED COPY

Page 453

Q. Then what is the number that Sunbeam reported in its quarterly report filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in MS 281 for the first quarter of 1998?
A. 244.3 million.
Q. The difference between those figures is less than $10 million, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That is what you consider a substantial difference between what was set forth in the press release and what was reported when the 10-Q was filed?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what -- I know that you don't have your HP in front of you. I have one if you want it but I think we can both do it -- what the percentage miss is between the reported first quarter results for 1998 and what was set forth in the press release?
A. No.
Q. It is about 5 percent.
A. Okay. Well, I think we might want to look a little deeper.

Page 454

Q. You might want to look a little deeper but you told me -- the press release said that, as I read the press release and as you read the press release back in 1998, that Sunbeam expected its first quarter of net sales of 1253.4. That was its 1997 figures, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Sunbeam said that it expected that it would not meet analyst expectations for the first quarter of 1998 which were in the range of 285 million to 295 million, right?
A. Actually they said that it was possible. It didn't say they would not. The wording is somewhat different than what you are suggesting and I think that one of my considerations is, and if you want we can take some time, this is five years old, but looking at the quality of the number that they actually reported because I do recall there were some issues related to the quality of the 244, whatever it was, 244 million that suggested not only did they not meet the number, that 12 days before whatever the end of the month, but they said they were going to meet, but, two -- that there were certain -- that the analyst estimates were not comparable to the number that was actually reported.

Q. Can you explain what you mean by that?
A. My recollection is it included a certain number of days which presumably coincides with the closing of Sunbeam results at the end of the month.
No analyst to my knowledge had factored that into the numbers.
Q. Are you referring to the issue of the -- including some of Coleman's sales in the last three days of the month, something of that nature?
A. Yes. We can go there but as I recall directionally in my analysis at the time that it is one thing to possibly miss a number of 285 to 295 and if they had come in, I mean, my read of this, what was my expected number.
If you ask me now, 275 or so, 270, 280 reading this. That is just my interpretation.

Not only did they not make the number that their financial statements would have suggested at March 19, I mean, they are 90 percent through the month so they ought to have good visibility on their numbers but they missed the number that they said in a report 12 days prior to the conclusion of the month and I believe there were certain items in that number which suggested that the 244 was not really 244 the way I would think about it.
We can look into that if you like but that was my recollection.
Q. Are you done with your answer?
A. Yes, I am sorry.
Q. Did you, after -- did you get a copy of the 10-Q when it was filed?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. That was on -- I think the date of the 10-Q is May 11 or 12?
A. Yes.
Q. It is actually May 15 if you look at the last page.
A. Okay.

Q. As of May 15, 1998 did you take any steps to investigate further the first quarter results reported by Sunbeam as set forth in MS 281?
A. I do not recall the specific steps that we did.
Q. Did you go back -- strike that.
Do you recall any steps that you did, setting aside whether you recall specifics, did you take any steps to investigate further the first quarter results?
A. I do not recall the steps that we took immediately thereafter to investigate this problem.
Q. Do you recall making any inquiry of Sunbeam?
A. I believe that would be implicit in my statement that I just do not recall the specific steps that were taken. There were lines of communication.
Q. You suggest there were steps taken. I am not asking -- if you don't remember a specific I understand that.
Do you recall any steps, and that is why I was suggesting, for example, as you said, you thought that Mr. Levin had made a phone call earlier. That is what was prompting me to ask.

If the answer is no, you tell me no and I will move on.
Do you recall any communications after May 15, 1998 when the first quarter results were publicly filed by Sunbeam, where the MacAndrews & Forbes side made inquiry of Sunbeam about those results as expressed in their 10-Q?
A. I do not recall any specific instances but knowing the people at MacAndrews & Forbes, having worked with them, I am very confident that the necessary steps would have been taken which would have been to look very carefully at this, consult with First Boston, consult with Sunbeam, communications particularly between Jerry Levin and Russell Kersh.
I would certainly have expected those activities in the ensuing days or weeks to have occurred to get to the bottom of the shortfall and, in general, to better understand as a significant shareholder the operating results of the company.

Q. As you sit here today you don't know of any such steps personally being taken, you just assume they would have been taken; is that fair?
A. I do not recall five years later specific instances or phone calls or analyses that were conducted in doing them.
Q. You, at least, did -- you did your phone calls to analysts set forth in MS 167 that we talked about earlier and forwarded to Mr. Perelman on May 20, 1998, correct?
A. Yes, but we established that earlier.
Q. Right.
When you spoke -- withdrawn.
When you provided MS 167 to Mr. Perelman did you discuss it with him?
A. Let me see it.
Q. Let me hand it to you.
A. I believe I discussed this with at least Mr. Maher and Mr. Perelman. I do not recall whether Mr. Drapkin, Gittis and

Page 460

Levin were present.
Q. Did you have a meeting with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Maher at which time you discussed the contents of Morgan Stanley 167?
A. I believe I did. I cannot say for sure.
Q. What do you believe occurred at the meeting that you believe you had with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Maher in relationship to MS 167?
A. If such a meeting occurred, and I believe it did, I would have described frankly exactly what is written here which is the purpose of the memo and to the extent there were questions, and I don't recall specific questions, I would have been available to answer them and for that matter to have followed up on any further analysis or questions that they may have which I do not recall.
Q. If I understand you correctly you don't recall that you were requested by either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Maher to do any further follow up?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. As it related to this analysis.
Q. Do you recall any of the questions asked by Mr. Maher and Mr. Perelman in connection with MS 167?
A. I just stated I do not recall any of the questions that were asked of me.
Q. I take it you don't recall any of the answers that you gave if you were asked any questions?
A. That would follow. I try to anticipate the questions in writing to Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis and Mr. Drapkin and Mr. Levin and Mr. Maher. I try to anticipate the questions that they might ask since that improves the efficiency of the process.
Q. After March -- withdrawn.
After May 20, 1998 did you do any further analysis or inquiry of Sunbeam, however you want to categorize it, before Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh were terminated by Sunbeam's board of directors in June of 1998?
A. I know that we did some work regarding accounting, the financial results and reviewing them.

I recall there was a Barron's article also that was looked at pretty carefully and I don't recall what specifically either Mr. Levin or Page did in connection with these results and the situation at hand.
We also looked at -- I don't recall specifically when, and it -- refresh my -- what were the dates you were referring to?
Q. May 20 and the date that Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh were terminated by the board of directors in June of 1998 which I think is -- it is either June 13 or June 15 of 1998. The date escapes me right at the moment.
A. Yes. I cannot extract in my mind a specific analysis between those two dates.
Q. Did you -- you read the Barron's article that you referred to?
A. Five years ago, yes. I would have to read it again.
Q. Did you ever meet Mr. Dunlap

after the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. I apologize. I am just trying to think. I don't recall.
I might have met him a couple of times. I just don't recall when.
Q. Do you know whether there were any meetings between Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman between the closing on August 30, 1998 and Mr. Dunlap's termination by the Sunbeam board of directors in June 1998?
A. No, I don't.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You used the closing in August?
MR. BEMIS: Did I say August?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me rephrase the question and we will move faster.
Are you aware of any meetings between Mr. Dunlap -- between the closing on March 30, 1998 and Mr. Dunlap's termination by the Sunbeam board of directors in June of 1998.
A. No, I am not, not that I recall.
Q. Did you do any analysis of the --

withdrawn.
Let me show you the Barron's article. I have a couple of quick questions about it.
I will hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 74 which is a copy of the Barron's article.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is this the article, albeit in a different form, that you were referring to when you referred to the Barron's article in your testimony earlier today?
A. I believe it is.
Q. Did you receive any instructions from anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes to do an analysis of the article?
A. Yes, I believe I did.
Q. Who was that?
A. Who asked me?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you prepare such an analysis?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you reduce it to writing?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 465

A. I believe I did but ultimately I forwarded, since this was very much an accounting exercise, given what we knew and given the tenor of the article, I believe I forwarded it to our internal accounting.

We have several people on staff that -- and at the moment I am forgetting to whom but -- and they -- I believe they completed or assisted in the preparation of a -- of an analysis, the specific details of which I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall any of the details of the analysis that you did for the Barron's article?

A. If I could refer to it it would help.

Q. I don't have it in front of me. That is why -- I don't have it in front of me. I don't have it in the boxes so I can't show it to you.

MR. MARKOWSKI: You guys do have that, though.

MR. BEMIS: No.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I know it is --

MR. BEMIS: I know you didn't

Page 466

produce it.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Okay.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. My question is -- we got lost in the colloquy, it happens -- do you recall any of the conclusions that you reached in your --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Wait a minute. That is refreshing my memory. I think we asserted privilege with respect to that analysis which reminds me that, whether you can recall it or not, I am going to have to instruct you not to answer questions relating to the substance of that.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Do you recall who received a copy of the analysis you did other than your accounting department?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall who you sent your analysis to outside of the accounting department after -- did you get something back from the accounting department after you sent it to them?

A. Yes. I asked them to take -- to review this and to analyze the article and its implications and their interpretation of it as it related to Sunbeam's historical performance.

Q. Who in the accounting department by name did you send it to?

A. I said I didn't recall.

Q. Do you remember who was in the accounting department in 1998?

A. I don't remember if it was Norman Ginstling who was our tax accountant. I just don't recall.

Q. Did you receive back from someone --

A. Not that we have that many people, by the way. I just can't recall the guy's name at this point.

Q. You said there were only a couple. I figured if we can get down to two we can pick one of the two.

A. No.

Q. Regardless of who you sent it to in the accounting department did you get something back from the accounting department?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you do with it after you received it back?

A. I believe, as is typical of what I do, I disseminated it to the group.

Q. That is Mr. Perelman, Mr. Maher and Mr. Gittis?

A. And Jerry Levin, probably Mr. Drapkin.

Q. As you sit here today you -- withdrawn.

That is all. You can set -- we will set aside the report now based on your counsel's instructions.

Let me show you what has been marked as Exhibit 337.

Do you have Exhibit 337 in front of you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Just to assist you, and you will obviously want to read this for yourself, these are notes or a memorandum of a meeting that took place in -- as identified by Mr. Shapiro in his deposition on June 18 and 19 at the offices of MacAndrews & Forbes with bankers to discuss the -- discuss Sunbeam.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

When you have had an opportunity to look at the document let me know and I will ask you --

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of this meeting that took place at MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. No.

Q. According to item number 2 of the document, of MS 337, the statement was made by either Mr. Gittis or Mr. Engelman that, "The questions raised by the Barron's article are without merit."

Do you see that sentence?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that consistent with your independent conclusion after you reviewed the Barron's article, MS 74?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I will instruct you not to answer that question on the grounds that it calls for privileged information.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. As of at least June, the 1st of June of 1998, were you aware of any statements by Arthur Andersen, Sunbeam's certified public accountants, that they were of the position that Sunbeam's financial statements for 1997 were not prepared in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could I have the date?

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. As of June 1, 1998.

MR. MARKOWSKI: June 1?

MR. BEMIS: Yes.

THE WITNESS: I have no recollection as of June 1 that Arthur Andersen, that's true.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Did you learn at some point in time that Arthur Andersen took the position that people should not rely upon their audits of Sunbeam's financial statements for the year 1997?

A. Yes, I believe that was accurate, that is accurate.

Q. Is it accurate that that statement by Sunbeam to the public did not occur until late in the month of June of 1998?

A. I can't relate that statement to a specific date.

Q. Let me ask you then to focus as of the date of closing of the transaction, March 30, 1998. We are on the right date.

You are with me?

A. Yes.

Q. As of that date are you aware of any statements by Arthur Andersen that the public, whether it be MacAndrews & Forbes, whether it be Morgan Stanley, Credit Suisse First Boston, Jerry Levin, Ronald Perelman could not rely upon the audits that Arthur Andersen performed of Sunbeam's financial statements?

A. I was not aware of that point.

Q. You can hand that back to me.

Did you send the Barron's article to Joe Page at Coleman?

A. I believe I did.

Page 472

Q. Did you call Mr. Page and then discuss the article with him?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Did you ask Mr. Page for his reaction to the article?

A. I believe I did.

Q. What did Mr. Page say to you when you asked him about his reaction to the Barron's article?

MR. MARKOWSKI: There may be a privilege issue here so I want to clarify something. I can do it privately with him or do it on the record.

MR. BEMIS: You can do it privately with him.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Let's take a short break.

MR. MARKOWSKI: After consulting with Mr. Nesbitt I am going to have to assert the privilege with respect to the pending question and instruct Mr. Nesbitt not to answer. He has advised me that his conversations with Mr. Page were in connection with his work to complete the memorandum as to which we have asserted the attorney-client privilege.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Let's turn to the settlement agreement with Sunbeam that we touched just briefly upon when we were going over documents sent to the Blackstone Group.

I will turn to a different topic.

Let me show you, first of all, a copy of MS 96 which I believe is the settlement agreement.

I hand you MS 96. Do you have MS 96 in front of you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you have any role in the analysis of the terms of settlement agreement between Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you do any valuation of the warrants that Sunbeam issued as part of the consideration for the settlement agreement, MS 96?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you ever see a valuation of the warrants that were issued by Sunbeam to the MacAndrews & Forbes companies in connection with the settlement agreement, MS 96, regardless of who the analysis was prepared by?

A. I believe I did but it is hazy.

Q. Tell me what you remember, albeit hazy.

A. I recall about that much. I don't recall the specific valuation on our side or any issues or considerations.

I believe there was a Black-Scholes model and the relevance of which sharper minds I suppose can comment on, but given the volatility in the stock, et cetera, it kind of calls in the question of the ability to value such an instrument at this point in any kind of rational basis but that is --

Q. Didn't the Black-Scholes model win some kind of famous prize for the economists that developed it?

A. Yes.

Q. What prize did they win for that?

A. I don't know; probably the Nobel. God knows what. Myron has a few problems these days.

Q. Didn't the economists that developed the Black-Scholes model develop the Nobel Prize for economics?

A. That doesn't mean it was --

Q. I didn't say it was. I didn't win the Nobel Prize.

Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 97. Please take a look at it and when you are ready I will ask you a couple of questions.

A. Do you want me to read the whole thing?

Q. Just to a point. You could always stop and read anything you want but just to the point where I can ask you a couple of questions.

Are you ready?

A. Yes.

Q. First of all, have you seen Exhibit 97 before which is a document that came from Deloitte & Touche?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Internally, that is, inside the document on page 4, turn to the heading marked Valuation of the Warrants.

A. I am looking for page numbers.

Q. There aren't. You will have to count, just to page 4.

A. Okay.

Q. The paragraph begins, "Sunbeam engaged the Blackstone Group to assist them with the valuation of the warrants."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. That is the same Blackstone Group that you sent the documents to that we looked at in MS 359 and 360, right?

015349

Page 477

A. Yes.
Q. Blackstone ultimately issued some valuation according to this document.
Did you see the valuation, you, personally, did you see it at some point?
A. I believe I did.
Q. According to the Deloitte Touche memorandum Blackstone, applying the Black-Scholes model, came up with a valuation of the warrants ranging from 30 to $107 million with a mid point of $70 million; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that consistent with your recollection of the report after you looked at it?
A. No, because I have no recollection of the report.
Q. Fair enough.
A. Yes. I will accept this as consistent with it.
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes, for purposes of its financial statements, place any valuation on the Sunbeam warrants?

Page 478

A. I wouldn't know. I am not the CFO nor was I.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
I am going to hand you what has been marked as MS 98. The only question I have is did you prepare the document?
A. I don't think so. I do not recall this. It wouldn't be my style to refer to it as MAF particularly since there is an ampersand but I don't know what they were trying to do here.
Q. Without a comma.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any idea who did prepare this document inside MacAndrews & Forbes assuming it was prepared there since it was produced by them?
A. No, nor do I recall ever seeing it.
Q. You may hand that back.
In connection with the due diligence that was done by MacAndrews & Forbes, you can use the term however broadly you want in answering the question, up to the time of closing on March 30 was there any one person at MacAndrews & Forbes who was charged with doing the due diligence of Sunbeam, and you can break it out if you want for financial due diligence, legal due diligence, however you are comfortable answering the question.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I object to the form.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I think it is fair to say that Mr. Maher was responsible for coordinating the transaction generally which included due diligence. Operating due diligence would certainly fall under Mr. Levin's responsibility. Financial due diligence, I would -- includes -- when you refer to financial due diligence I think I would break that into two categories which would be -- there is understanding operations from a financial perspective which I would include certainly under Mr. Levin which would also include discussion, evaluation of the merits of Sunbeam's operating strategy, business strategy, but the only way to translate into economic terms is through financials.

Mr. Maher and I were responsible for, as well as CSFB, for analyzing the consequences, the merger consequences of the transaction and Barry Schwartz who was chief counsel would have been -- was responsible for coordinating legal due diligence although there is certainly overlap with Mr. Maher as it relates to negotiating the terms of the transaction.
Q. We have identified operating, financial and legal due diligence and financial had two prongs to it as you identified it?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that the way you would categorize the assignments for due diligence, if you will, in this transaction?
A. Yes, except that again I would emphasize that I think the lines are often very blurred, to some extent, intentionally, within MacAndrews & Forbes.
We have several attorneys who

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

operate in a financial/legal capacity; Don Drapkin, a former Skadden partner, so there is by design multitalented people.
Q. Sometimes you can wear two hats is what it boils down to?
A. Yes.
Q. Sometimes legal, sometimes business?
A. Mr. Maher has run several companies, at the time was chief executive officer I believe of two and had run National Health Labs so he is not just a former investment banker but someone who had run a couple of businesses.
Q. Was any due diligence responsibility assigned to Ernst & Young, an -- the accounting firm for Coleman?
A. To refresh my memory can I see the working group list?
Q. Sure. I will give you one. You probably got one.
For the record I handed you MS 69.
A. The table of contents suggests, and I agree with it, no.

Q. Was anyone outside of MacAndrews & Forbes as part of the due diligence process assigned the task of reviewing Sunbeam's financial statements as audited by Arthur Andersen or if unaudited for a period to review those statements?
A. CSFB.
Q. Did CSFB hire any outside certified public accounting firm to assist them with their work?
A. I don't know.
Q. Sunbeam maintained a room of materials that they had assembled as part of a collection of documents that might be required by the acquirer to review for due diligence. That room was maintained at Skadden, Arps.
Were you familiar with that?
A. I am not familiar with it in the sense that I don't believe I visited it.
Q. Did you know that it existed?
A. I believe so. I just don't know who from our team if any visited that room inclusive of CSFB.
Q. Inclusive of CSFB?

A. Yes. I believe they may have but I just don't recall the specific times nor can I recall specific analysis that may have been conducted.
Q. Do you recall how you learned of the room of materials that was maintained at Skadden by Sunbeam for review by a party to an acquisition with Sunbeam, whether it be on the buy or sell side?
A. No.
Q. You can hand me back the working group list if you would and I will put it away.
If I could have just a minute I think we are probably done.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:23 p.m. We are going off the record.
(Discussion off the record)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:27 p.m. We are back on the record.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. When you went to the road show meeting that you could not recall the exact one or the exact location but the road show in --

A. It was in New York.
Q. It was in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you just recall that? I thought you said you didn't remember where it was. Not that it matters.
A. I wasn't clear. When I said location, I meant the hotel.
Q. I got you, or I understand you.
When you went to the road show meeting in New York in March of, I assume, 1998 did you receive any documents at the road show?
A. Yes. I believe there was a slide presentation.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 194 which is entitled Road Show Presentation, Speaking Points.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you -- have you seen this document before?
A. I don't think I have seen the speaking points. I think I just saw the slides.

015351

Q. Were these slides put up as like a Power Point presentation?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. Were these slides presented by Mr. Dunlap?
A. Yes, I believe so, yes. I don't believe so. Definitely.
Q. Did you take a copy of the -- did you get a copy of the slides at the presentation?
A. Yes. Gees, yes, yes.
Q. As a result -- excuse me. After you left the presentation and you took a copy of the slides did you give them to anyone else?
A. Normal procedure, distributed them internally to the MacAndrews team, possibly First Boston, CSFB.
Q. Did you use any of the information in the slides in any of your analyses and spreadsheets that you did such as MS 104 through 107 that we talked about?
A. You mean modifying them?
Q. Yes, modifying them or even creating a new one that I haven't shown you because I don't have it after all these years?

A. I don't think so. I mean, yes, I don't think so.
Q. Did you ever have any discussions with CSFB about any of the slides which are contained in MS 194 that you can remember as you sit here today?
A. No.
MR. BEMIS: That is all I have.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't have any questions.
MR. BEMIS: Thank you very much.

*Allergysmart Air Cleaner with Allergen Detector

HOW IT WORKS

1. A small fan draws air into the sensor chamber.
2. A laser beam in the detector measures the level of allergen-sized particles (3 microns and larger) every 30 seconds and sends a signal to the air cleaner.
3. Sensitivity setting - allows running the air cleaner based on your own perceived sensitivity level. Choosing a setting (average, extra, super), the sensor automatically activates the air cleaner when the level of particles is too high. The unit shuts off only when the level is reduced.
4. Air quality indicator - when the detector is on, lights on the control panel constantly indicate the level of allergen-sized particles in the room.

FEATURES

A. Charcoal pre-filter
B. HEPA filter
C. Ionizer - added level of filtration
D. Filter check light - for filter replacement
E. Four speed fan control
F. Sensitivity setting control
G. Air quality indicator

Summary of Recent Analyst Commentary

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

New Product Introductions:

- "Sunbeam enters 1998 with a potent combination. (1) two exciting and innovative new products, FreshSource and AllergySmart, which even if they are not absolute home runs will provide completely incremental sales at better than corporate average operating margins and (2) an enhanced grill line-up against a weak grill showing in 1H97" (PaineWebber - 10/23/97)
- "We, like SOC management, believe that both of Sunbeam's new products have "home run" potential. The products are timely, innovative and margin enhancing, a perfect complement to the new Sunbeam portfolio." (PaineWebber - 10/9/97)
- "In our view, its entries in the water and air purification markets lend significant credibility to Sunbeam's new product strategy, offer demonstrable value-added for consumers, and increase our confidence in estimated 20% plus sales growth and management's targeted 20% operating margin through 1999" (Goldman Sachs - 10/9/97)
- "The Allergysmart is a unique launch, introducing proprietary laser technology" (PaineWebber - 10/9/97)
- "This is the most important growth strategy Driving it's fat pipeline is its enhanced new product development capability By consolidating R&D into one location and reducing the number of facilities used to make a given product, Sunbeam has reduced new product to market time from 2.5 years to 6 months It is also open to buying technologies and using outside experts to develop products and processes, and is doing more consumer research than ever before" (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "Finally, we believe several new products from its infamous Secret Room will be retail hits and the Company will begin developing new products in its Health at Home business" (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "After accounting for roughly 20% cannibalization, new products should contribute around $100 million incrementally to 1997 sales with about 80% domestic and 20% international" (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

"Project Full Time":

- "Project Full Time is fully on track We believe that this will be a market share driver in 1998" (CIBC Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- We expect customer service to play an increasingly important role in the company's growth Its 'Project Full Time' focuses on achieving 100% delivery rate among its top 35 customers and top 400 SKUs This encompasses over 50% of its sales The opportunity for Sunbeam here is to improve its own delivery-efficiency and become two-thirds of the retailers order equation and thus gain share" (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- 'The move to higher service levels should generate significant gains in market share. Even though share data in the small electrics industry is not tracked to the same degree as in packaged goods, there is some initial evidence that higher service levels generate higher sales" (Bear Stearns - 8/14/97)
- Management noted that it filled 98% of the orders placed by the top ten accounts in the second quarter of 1997, up substantially from the disappointing 66% order-fill rate to these accounts in the first quarter of 1997" (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

International Opportunities:

- "[Sunbeam] is about to sign to sign an agreement with NuSkin to help them distribute its FreshSource water product in Asia" (CIBC Oppenheimer - 1/28/98)
- "Sunbeam has 20 signed distribution and licensing agreements so far in 1997 By expanding into new SKUs in Latin America (toasters, mixers, etc) the Company can leverage the Oster brand into new revenue streams through these new distributors and licensees. In Asia, the Company has identified an opportunity in the electric blanket market." (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)
- "Key agreements committed to in the second quarter include an arrangement for the sale of grills in Europe and the U K , a clipper agreement in Paraguay and Brazil and a joint marketing agreement in Venezuela The Company remains committed to tripling international sales to $600 million by 1999" (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

New Channels/Distribution:

- "New distribution is being created by opening outlet stores. The Company currently has 11 stores open, and is on track to have 20 in operation by year end It will open 20 per annum Another business with strong new distribution potential is Away from Home." (Oppenheimer - 1/28/98)
- "The Company continues to roll out more Sunbeam Outlet stores, although they are not a crucial part of the Sunbeam growth plan" (PaineWebber - 7/28/97)

Advertising:

- "[Sunbeam] will double its consumer advertising in 1998, enabling it to spend more to generate customer demand for its innovative products that the rest of the housewares industry will spend collectively" (Prudential Securities - 1/29/98)
- "We expect Sunbeam to significantly out-spend its competitors over the next several years In an industry fraught with co-op advertising, we believe advertising is long overdue in this category and will be effective" (Oppenheimer - 8/27/97)

Re: Trading in the Securities of Coleman Co., Inc., Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc. (MD-1200)

Dear Ms. Youn:

We are counsel to The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman" or the "Company"). This letter is in response to your letter of March 3, 1998, requesting that Coleman voluntarily provide to the Commission certain information relating to the March 2, 1998 announcement concerning Sunbeam Corporation and Coleman.

The information herein and provided herewith represents a reconstruction of events and was compiled based upon a reasonable review of the documents in the possession of Coleman and reasonable inquiries made by Coleman of its personnel and certain of its legal and other advisors and representatives. The information is based in substantial part on the recollection of the individuals involved, as many of the events leading up to the March 2 announcement were not documented. In addition, although the Company of course seeks to provide the SEC with accurate information, the information included herein and provided herewith was collected on an expedited basis and it is possible that supplementation, correction and/or modification by the Company may be needed in the future.

A chronology of events leading up to the March 2, 1998 announcement is attached hereto as Exhibit A. A list of individuals known to Coleman who had knowledge of a potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam prior to the March 2 announcement (other than those already identified in the Chronology) is attached hereto as Exhibit B. In response to your request for the identity of persons from whom the Company received inquiries regarding the acquisition prior to the March 2 announcement:

(i) during a February 27, 1998 telephone conversation between Jerry W. Levin, the Chairman of Coleman, and Timothy B. Horne, the Chief Executive Officer of the Charbroil Division of W.C. Bradley Co., Mr. Horne told Mr. Levin he had heard rumors that Coleman was contemplating a transaction with Sunbeam. Mr. Levin did not respond.

(ii) Marc Shiffman, the person principally responsible for investor relations at Coleman, received several calls from buy- and sell-side analysts, equity holders and bondholders in February 1998, particularly following the February 19 release of Coleman's financial results. During the course of some of those discussions, inquiries were made of Mr. Shiffman regarding the possibility of a transaction with Sunbeam. Mr. Shiffman, who at that time was not aware that any discussion had taken place between Coleman and Sunbeam, does not recall which specific individuals made such inquiries. Mr. Schiffman responded to all such inquiries by stating that it is Coleman's policy not to comment on rumors.

The materials attached hereto bear Bates numbers COLEMAN 00001-COLEMAN 00007, and are marked "confidential." We request confidential treatment for this letter and the accompanying materials pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1905, 17 C.F.R. § 200.83, and other applicable laws and regulations and further request that these materials not be made part of any public record and not be disclosed to any person.

The information contained in this letter and the accompanying materials is maintained in confidence and is not available to competitors or other parties. In addition, the information has been provided voluntarily in connection with the above-referenced inquiry. We believe that the disclosure of this information could have adverse affects on our client's competitive position and/or would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Accordingly, such documents are exempt from mandatory disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(3), (b)(4), (b)(6) and (b)(7), and disclosure is prohibited pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1905.

If any person (including any government employee who is not an employee of the Securities and Exchange Commission) should request an opportunity to inspect or copy this

If the Securities and Exchange Commission is not satisfied that the information set forth in this letter and the accompanying materials is exempt (or protected) from disclosure pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act, we stand ready to supply further particulars, and we would request in such event a hearing on this claim of exemption.

The requests set forth in the preceding paragraphs also apply to any memoranda, notes, transcripts or other writings of any such whatsoever which are made by or at the direction of any employee of the Securities and Exchange Commission (or any other governmental agency) which incorporate, include or relate to any of the confidential information contained in this letter or the accompanying materials.

Early Dec. 1997	Albert J. Dunlap (Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Sunbeam), called Ronald O. Perelman (Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Mafco Holdings Inc. ("MacAndrews"), indirectly the largest stockholder of The Coleman Company ("Coleman"), with an interest of in excess of 80%, and a director of Coleman) to talk about a possible transaction involving Sunbeam and Coleman.
Dec. 12, 1997	Jerry Levin (Chairman, Coleman), Paul E. Shapiro (Executive Vice President and General Counsel, Coleman) and Joseph P. Page (Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, Coleman) gave a presentation to David C. Fannin (Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam")), Russell A. Kersch (Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, Sunbeam) and Peter A. Langerman (a director of Sunbeam) on Coleman's business and potential synergies that could result from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. Later that day, Mr. Perelman met with Howard Gittis (Vice Chairman of MacAndrews), James R. Maher (also of MacAndrews), Gordon Rich (of Credit Suisse First Boston ("CSFB")) and Mr. Levin and discussed a potential transaction involving Coleman and Sunbeam. Coleman retained CSFB to act as financial advisor in connection with a potential transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman.
Dec. 16, 1997	Messrs. Perelman, Maher, Gittis, Levin and Shapiro, and William G. Nesbitt and Norman J. Ginstling (both of MacAndrews), Donald G. Drapkin (a director of Coleman and an officer of MacAndrews) and Gordon Rich, Robert Duffy and Stephen Geller (all from CSFB) met and discussed a potential transaction involving Coleman and Sunbeam.
Dec. 17, 1997	Messrs. Perelman, Maher, Gittis, Shapiro, Nesbitt, Drapkin, Rich, Duffy and Geller met and discussed a potential transaction involving Coleman and Sunbeam.

Dec. 18, 1997	Messrs. Perelman, Dunlap and Michael Price (President of Franklin Mutual Advisors, Inc., the largest holder of Sunbeam stock) met in Florida to discuss a potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam. Mr. Dunlap indicated an interest in acquiring Coleman in a transaction valued in the range of $18-22 per Coleman share. Mr. Perelman advised Mr. Dunlap that the price was too low and indicated that he would not be prepared to support a transaction at that price.
Week of Dec. 22, 1997	Mr. Price called Mr. Gittis and indicated that Sunbeam might be willing to consider a transaction valued as high as $25 per Coleman share. Mr. Gittis indicated that a proposal at that level would not be of interest.
Early Jan.1998	William Reid (a Managing Director of Morgan Stanley, Sunbeam's financial advisor) called Mr. Perelman and advised him that Sunbeam still had interest in a potential transaction with Coleman. Mr. Reid further advised Mr. Perelman that Sunbeam would consider a proposal that involved the payment by Sunbeam of both cash and stock, and that Sunbeam might be prepared to make an offer valued in excess of $25 per share. Mr. Perelman advised Mr. Reid that he would be willing to discuss supporting a transaction at $30 per share.
Jan. 23, 1998	Mr. Nesbitt met with James B. Stynes, Alexandre J. Fuchs and Tyrone Chang (each from Morgan Stanley) to discuss a potential transaction involving Sunbeam and Coleman.
Jan. 28, 1998	Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz ("Wachtell Lipton") is retained as special counsel to Coleman.
Jan. 29, 1998	Barry F. Schwartz of MacAndrews telephoned Wachtell Lipton to indicate that a form of confidentiality agreement to be proposed to Sunbeam in connection with the provision of confidential information to Sunbeam will be faxed to Wachtell Lipton for review. Joram C. Salig of MacAndrews faxed the confidentiality agreement to Wachtell Lipton and Paul Shapiro, General Counsel of Coleman, for their respective review. Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs, Chang, Fannin and Kersch met with Messrs. Levin, Page, Shapiro, Maher, Nesbitt and Rich discussed potential synergies that could be created by a combination of Coleman and Sunbeam. They further discussed how the companies might proceed with due diligence and related matters if Sunbeam made an acceptable proposal.

Feb. 4, 1998	Sunbeam entered into a confidentiality agreement with Coleman.
Feb. 6, 1998	Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs, Chang and Robert Kitts of Morgan Stanley met with Messrs. Maher, Nesbitt, Rich and Duffy in New York. The representatives of Morgan Stanley made a presentation reflecting a transaction in which Coleman would be acquired by Sunbeam for consideration of .6017 Sunbeam shares per Coleman share (which was approximately $22 per share), plus warrants that Morgan Stanley valued at $4 per share. Mr. Maher indicated that MacAndrews would not be prepared to support such a proposal and advised Morgan Stanley that only an all-stock transaction that valued Coleman's stock at $30 per share, or an amount slightly lower than $30 per share if the transaction involved a combination of stock and cash, would be of interest.
Feb. 13, 1998	Messrs. Stynes and Kitts called Mr. Maher and said they were making a "best and final" proposal of .65116 shares of Sunbeam stock per share of Coleman (which was approximately $24.50 per share). Mr. Maher again indicated that the proposal was not of interest.
Feb. 18, 1998	During a telephone conversation between Messrs. Maher and Kitts, Mr. Kitts invited a counter-proposal.
Feb. 19, 1998	Following discussion among Messrs. Perelman and Maher, Mr. Maher conveyed to Mr. Kitts by telephone that management and MacAndrews would be willing to recommend a proposal of .789 Sunbeam shares per Coleman share (which was approximately $30 per share). Mr. Kitts called Mr. Maher later that day and proposed .711 Sunbeam shares per share of Coleman stock (which was approximately $26.90 per share). Mr. Maher indicated that he believed that Coleman would be prepared to consider an exchange ratio of .745 shares of Sunbeam stock per share of Coleman stock (which was approximately $28.20 per share).
Feb. 23, 1998	Messrs. Nesbitt, Page, Levin, Shapiro, Duffy and Geller met with Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs and Richard Goudis (Vice President, Finance and Investor Relations of Sunbeam) in New York to conduct due diligence. Later that day, Messrs. Maher, Nesbitt, Duffy and Chuck Ward (of CSFB) met to discuss the potential transaction.

That night, Messrs. Nesbitt, Shapiro, Levin, Page, Maher, Duffy and Steven R. Isko (Vice President - Legal of Coleman) and Messrs. Fannin, Kersch, Kitts, Stynes, Fuchs, Chang and Goudis met at Morgan Stanley's offices. Sunbeam made a presentation regarding its 1998 operating projections.

Feb. 24-27, 1998 — Coleman and Sunbeam, and their respective advisors, negotiated the structure of the transaction, conducted due diligence, and drafted the necessary documentation.

Feb. 24, 1998 — Mr. Levin called the Coleman directors and advised them of the proposed transaction, described the principal terms of the deal, and notified them of a board meeting to be held the following day. Mr. Levin reached all of the directors except Lawrence M. Jones.

Representatives of Coopers & Lybrand visited Coleman's headquarters in Wichita, Kansas on behalf of Sunbeam in order to tour the Wichita plant facility. They were accompanied by Messrs. David Ramone and Joseph Nold, two senior Coleman executives.

Feb. 25, 1998 — By February 25, the negotiations had resulted in a proposed transaction in which each share of Coleman common stock would be converted into the right to receive (A) 0.6258 shares of Sunbeam common stock and (B) $4.40 in cash. The Board of Directors of Coleman met. The meeting was attended by directors Jerry W. Levin, Donald G. Drapkin, Frank Gifford, Ann D. Jordan, John A. Moran (by telephone), Ronald O. Perelman, Bruce Slovin and William H. Spoor (by telephone); representatives of Coleman (Joseph P. Page, Paul E. Shapiro and Steven R. Isko); representatives of MacAndrews (Howard Gittis, Barry F. Schwartz, James R. Maher, William G. Nesbitt); representatives of Wachtell Lipton (Adam O. Emmerich, Paul K. Rowe, Michael S. Katzke); and representatives of CSFB (Gordon Rich, Robert Duffy). Directors Lawrence M. Jones and James D. Robinson III did not attend the meeting. Messrs. Levin and Maher and the outside advisers advised the Board of the history of the negotiations, the structure of the transaction, and various legal and financial issues regarding the proposal. The meeting adjourned with the expectation that the directors would meet again on February 27, 1998 to discuss the transaction further.

Plaintiff,	2003 CA 005045 AI
v.	Judge Elizabeth T. Maass
MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant.

ANSWER OF MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED

Defendant Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("MS & Co.") responds to Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s ("CPH") Complaint by denying generally that MS & Co. engaged in any fraudulent or negligent misrepresentations, any conspiracy to defraud, that MS & Co. assisted Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") or any employee, director or agent of Sunbeam in the commission of a fraudulent scheme, or that MS & Co. otherwise defrauded CPH in any manner. Specifically, MS & Co. responds to CPH's allegations as follows:

Nature of the Action

1. MS & Co. denies the allegations contained in Paragraph 1.

2. MS & Co. admits that, beginning in mid-1997, MS & Co. served as an investment banker for Sunbeam. MS & Co. admits that it attempted to identify a party interested in purchasing Sunbeam, and that those efforts were ultimately unsuccessful. MS & Co. admits that it recommended that Sunbeam's management consider acquiring other companies instead and suggested, as is common in corporate mergers and acquisitions, that Sunbeam consider, among other options, using Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration for such an acquisition. MS & Co. denies that it had any knowledge as to the accuracy of the value of Sunbeam's stock, or that

MS & Co. knew (or even suspected) that the value of Sunbeam's stock had been "fraudulently inflated." MS & Co. admits that it facilitated communications between Sunbeam and Coleman, but denies that it in any way "persuaded" CPH to sell its interest in Coleman. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 2 and consequently denies them.

3. MS & Co. admits that it agreed to serve as underwriter of a $750 million debenture offering for Sunbeam. MS & Co. admits that, as an advisor to Sunbeam, it had access to certain financial documents, and further states that those same documents were made available to CPH during the acquisition negotiations. Further, in that regard, MS & Co. specifically disclaimed any independent evaluation of Sunbeam's financial records, and expressly stated that it relied solely on documentation and information provided by Sunbeam and Sunbeam's audited financial statements. MS & Co. admits that on March 18, 1998, it learned that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were "soft." Sunbeam insisted that its sales would meet expectations, but MS & Co. insisted that Sunbeam issue a press release to warn the market of the softening sales. Additionally, MS & Co. received two "comfort letters" from Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen. MS & Co. performed all of its obligations as an underwriter of Sunbeam securities. MS & Co. denies that it had any role in the accounting judgments described in the complaint, or any obligations to audit or independently examine Sunbeam's accounting records. MS & Co. denies that it owed any duties to CPH. MS & Co. denies that it had any independent knowledge as to the reasons behind Sunbeam's soft sales, that Sunbeam had a "practice of accelerating sales," or that it "materially misrepresent[ed]" information to CPH. Further, MS & Co. specifically denies that it in any manner assisted Sunbeam in concealing its 1998 first quarter sales numbers in order to close the transaction. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 3 and consequently denies them.

4. MS & Co. admits that CPH has brought this action against MS & Co. alleging fraudulent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting, conspiracy, and negligent misrepresentation,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01515-4

16div-021316

but denies that there is any merit to the suit. MS & Co. specifically denies that it made any fraudulent or negligent representations to CPH, that it in any way aided or abetted a fraudulent scheme against CPH, or that it participated in a conspiracy to defraud CPH. MS & Co. denies that any losses that CPH suffered resulted from fraud or any wrongful conduct on the part of MS & Co. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 4.

5. MS & Co. admits that CPH purports to seek compensatory damages against MS & Co., but denies that such claim is valid, for MS & Co. denies that it was engaged in any wrongful conduct. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 5.

Jurisdiction and Venue

6. MS & Co. admits the allegations contained in Paragraph 6. MS & Co. further admits that it is incorporated in Delaware and has its principal place of business in New York.

7. MS & Co. denies that venue is proper in this district.

Parties and Other Key Participants

8. MS & Co. admits that CPH represented, in negotiations with Sunbeam, that it owned, directly or indirectly, approximately 82% of Coleman prior to March 30, 1998. MS & Co. admits that on March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired CPH's interest in Coleman by paying CPH with 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam common stock and other consideration, including a cash payment by Sunbeam to CPH in the amount of $159,956,756.00. William Strong had worked with Dunlap before, during Strong's previous employment with Salomon Brothers. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 29 and consequently denies them.

30. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 30 and consequently denies them.

31. MS & Co. admits that William Strong and other MS & Co. employees met with Sunbeam in the spring of 1997 to discuss Sunbeam's investment banking requirements. MS & Co. admits that it was engaged by Sunbeam to explore a possible sale of Sunbeam's core business and/or the initiation of one or more acquisitions. MS & Co. admits that it initially sought a buyer for Sunbeam. To the extent this Paragraph alleges that MS & Co. was motivated to participate in a fraud in order to retain a single client and receive a customary fee, that allegation is foreclosed, among other reasons, by the fact that MS & Co.'s own affiliate lent hundreds of millions of dollars to Sunbeam two days after the Coleman acquisition closed. (June 1998 Credit Facilities Mem. (Ex. 2).) MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 31.

32. MS & Co. admits that it searched for a buyer for Sunbeam. MS & Co. further admits that it assembled marketing materials based on financial documentation and audited financial statements provided to MS & Co. by Sunbeam and Arthur Andersen, for use in meetings with potential acquirers. MS & Co. admits that, despite contacting many companies, it was unable to find a buyer for Sunbeam. MS & Co. specifically denies CPH's allegation that MS & Co. knew that it would not be compensated if "it failed to deliver a major transaction," or that "Davis and Chase were standing by . . . to reclaim their position as Dunlap's investment banker of choice." MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 32.

34. MS & Co. admits after its unsuccessful attempts to locate a purchaser for Sunbeam, it suggested that Sunbeam acquire one or more other companies instead. MS & Co. admits that it proposed to Sunbeam, among other options, the possibility of paying for any such acquisition in part with Sunbeam's stock. MS & Co. specifically denies any knowledge to the effect that a "failure to find a buyer for Sunbeam could prove fatal to [their] relationship." MS & Co. further denies any involvement in or knowledge of fraudulently inflated Sunbeam stock or concealment of any fraud at Sunbeam. MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 34 and consequently denies them.

35. MS & Co. admits that, beginning in mid-1997, MS & Co. served as an investment banker for Sunbeam. MS & Co. admits that it attempted to identify a party interested in purchasing Sunbeam, and that those efforts were ultimately unsuccessful. MS & Co. admits that it recommended that Sunbeam's management consider, among other options, acquiring other companies instead and suggested, as is common in corporate mergers and acquisitions, that Sunbeam consider using Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration for such an acquisition. MS & Co. denies that it developed "acquisition strategies" for Sunbeam or that the services or potential transactions it discussed with Sunbeam's management were deceptive or in any way designed to facilitate fraud. MS & Co. specifically denies that it in any way knew of or knowingly assisted Dunlap to "camouflage Sunbeam's results" thereby making it "difficult to detect any shortfall in Sunbeam's performance," or that it knew of or assisted Dunlap in taking "new massive restructuring charges," which thereby created increased "cookie jar reserves." MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 35.

36. MS & Co. admits that, in its capacity as advisor to Sunbeam, it identified Coleman as a potential acquisition candidate. MS & Co. admits that it communicated with representatives of Coleman to discuss a potential acquisition, but denies that it "persuade[d] CPH to sell its interest in Coleman to Sunbeam." MS & Co. admits that CPH represented, in

There is, in any event, no factual allegation contained in Paragraph 39 or elsewhere that identifies such alleged information at all, let alone with particularity. MS & Co. further denies that it knowingly "provided" CPH with false financial and business information, or otherwise knowingly relayed false information to CPH which created an appearance that "Sunbeam was prospering and that Sunbeam's stock had great value." Specifically, MS & Co. denies that it knowingly provided CPH with false 1996 and 1997 sales and revenue figures or with false projections. MS & Co. denies that it "falsely assured CPH that Sunbeam's 'early buy' sales program would not hurt Sunbeam's future revenues," that "Sunbeam would meet or exceed" first quarter 1998 estimates, that 1998 earnings estimates were accurate, that a plan to earn $2.20/share was attainable or even low, or that it "specifically advised CPH that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were 'tracking fine' and running ahead of analysts' estimates."

In any event CPH could not have relied on such alleged representations in light of (i) the Merger Agreement's representations and warranties (Merger Agmt. §§ 5.1-5.4), none of which refer to any alleged representation contained in this Paragraph, (ii) the representations and warranties in a separate agreement that was executed by Coleman and Sunbeam (Feb. 27, 1998 Company Merger Agmt. § 5.1-5.12 (Ex. 3)), which are expressly incorporated into the Merger Agreement and none of which refer to any alleged representation contained in this Paragraph, and (iii) the Merger Agreement's broad integration clause which forecloses reliance on any alleged representation contained in this Paragraph (Merger Agmt. § 12.5). MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 39 and consequently denies them.

40. MS & Co. admits that CPH agreed to sell its shares in Coleman to Sunbeam, and that CPH agreed to accept Sunbeam stock as partial payment for the sale, but denies that MS & Co. "persuaded" CPH to make the deal. CPH is a sophisticated party and was represented by its own expert advisors and attorneys. (Id. §§ 1.1; 4.11.) CPH and its advisors also enjoyed full access to Sunbeam's "books, records, properties, plants and personnel." (Id. § 6.7.) CPH also expressly disclaimed reliance on statements allegedly made during negotiations. (Id. § 12.5.) MS & Co. responds that the allegations contained in Paragraph 40 regarding stock value pertain to publicly available information, and refers to such information for the truth or falsity of such allegations. To the extent that further response is required, MS & Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of the allegations contained in Paragraph 40 and consequently denies them.

41. MS & Co. admits that on February 27, 1998, Sunbeam's Board of Directors met at Morgan Stanley's New York offices to discuss Sunbeam's possible purchase of Coleman. MS & Co. denies the remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 41.

Co. lacks sufficient knowledge or information to form a belief as to the truth of any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 42 and consequently denies them.

43. MS & Co. admits that at that February 27, 1998 New York meeting, it provided Sunbeam with a written "fairness opinion" regarding the fair acquisition price of Coleman. This opinion was based on financial information provided to MS & Co. by Sunbeam, Coleman, and Arthur Andersen, and on synergy analyses which MS & Co. received from CPH. The written fairness opinion explicitly stated that MS & Co. "[has] not made any independent valuation or appraisal of the assets or liabilities of [Sunbeam]." (Feb. 27, 1998 Fairness Op. at 3 (Ex. 4).) MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 43.

44. MS & Co. admits that the Sunbeam Board of Directors approved the Coleman acquisition at the February 27, 1998 meeting in New York. 50. MS & Co. admits that the convertible debentures were presented to potential investors at a series of "road show" meetings and conference calls. MS & Co. admits that it reviewed and commented on the offering memorandum and other materials used to present the debentures to potential investors. MS & Co. denies that it "misrepresented Sunbeam's financial performance" or "emphasized Dunlap's purported 'turnaround' accomplishments." To the contrary, the offering memorandum expressly stated that MS & Co. assumed no responsibility for the accuracy or completeness of Sunbeam's audited financial information and warned investors not to rely on any projections of future performance. (March 19, 1998 Note Offering Mem. at 2-3, 12-17, 72 (Ex. 5).) MS & Co. denies any remaining allegations contained in Paragraph 50.

employee was accurately apprised of Sunbeam's financial condition because MS & Co. at all times relied on information provided by Sunbeam management and Arthur Andersen, including Sunbeam's audited financial statements. 55. MS & Co. denies CPH's allegation that it was "telling CPH and the investing public . . . that Sunbeam's turnaround was a success, that Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1998 were ahead of expectations of outside analysts, and that Sunbeam was poised for record sales." Furthermore, any information communicated by MS & Co. was based on financial data and information provided to it by Sunbeam and Arthur Andersen — a fact that MS & Co. regularly publicized through disclaimer statements. Q. Who gives you your daily cards?
A. One of my secretaries.
Q. Does your secretary maintain -- withdrawn.
In 1997, the time period we are talking about, did your secretary maintain a calendar for you from which she extracted your daily cards?
A. Yes. I don't believe that -- I don't believe my calendars are saved.
Q. Apparently your daily cards were saved; is that right? They were produced in the litigation?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you have your daily cards for 1998?
A. No. I throw my daily cards away.
Q. If you throw your daily cards -- withdrawn.
Did your secretary keep copies of your daily cards?
A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever look to see whether you had daily cards for 1998?
A. No.
Q. Do your daily cards -- withdrawn.
Who was the secretary in 1998 who maintained your daily cards?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't know the name of your secretary in 1998?
A. I have five secretaries and I don't know who in 1998 was doing that.
Q. Do you still keep this process today of keeping daily cards generated by your secretaries?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you still have five secretaries who take care of this for you?
A. Yes.
Q. You can set aside Exhibit 171 for the time being. You might keep it in front of you because we will return to it later.
A. Okay.
Q. When you looked at your daily cards was it supposed to have all of your activities slotted out for that day on the card?

A. No.
Q. What was it -- the daily card supposed to be then?
A. It was supposed to be a reminder of certain things that were occurring. It was supposed to be an awareness of things that I might want to be a part of and it had openings for me to make meetings.
Q. My understanding is that one of your five secretaries or perhaps more than one of them would set whatever calendar entries were on your daily card and then simply give it to you once each day; is that right?
A. That is true.
Q. At the end of the day or perhaps the next morning you would dispose of your daily cards, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. If there were any copies of your daily cards for 1998 you don't have them personally, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. The only people who would have them would be your secretaries if they have them?

A. That is correct.
Q. I asked you earlier who you were employed by and my understanding is you don't know whether the company MAFCO Holdings Inc. still exists, is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. You do own, that is, you, personally, own 100 percent of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it all common stock?
A. I believe so.
Q. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., that company owns 100 percent of the plaintiff here, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., right?
A. Yes.
Q. That also was -- that was true in 1997 and 1998, the time period we will be talking about, is that true?
A. Yes.
Q. You are today, so the jury understands exactly who you are, are you a -- the chairman of the board of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?

A. Yes.
Q. Is that company sometimes called MAFCO?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. I will try to use MacAndrews & Forbes.
A. That would be good. Thank you.
Q. Are you also a director of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you the chairman of the board of directors?
A. I think you just asked me that.
Q. If I did difficulty I apologize. I thought I asked if you were a director. Maybe I misspoke.
You are the chairman?
A. I thought you just asked me, yes.
Q. Are you a director of Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
A. I am not sure.
Q. Were you a director in 1997 and 1998?

A. I'm not sure.
Q. In 1997 and 1998 were you a director of a company called CLN Holdings, Inc.?
A. I am not sure.
Q. Do you know what CLN Holdings Inc. is or was?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever heard of it?
A. CLN are the initials of Coleman.
Q. I know that. It is the stock symbol for Coleman?
A. If you are asking me the question then you know the answer. It is sort of silly.
Q. Will you answer the question?
A. I answered it.
Q. Was that the stock symbol at the time for Coleman, CLN?
A. Yes.
Q. As you sit here today your testimony to the jury is you don't know whether you were a director of Coleman Holdings, Inc. in 1997 or 1998?
A. That is true.

Q. You don't know whether you were an officer of that company?
A. That's true.
Q. Do you know whether Coleman Holdings, Inc. was a party to any of the merger agreements that are at issue in this litigation?
A. I don't know whether Coleman Holdings, Inc. was the operating company, the public company, I just don't recall, or our holding company. I just don't recall.
Q. Are you familiar with a company known as Coleman Worldwide Corporation?
A. Again, I am not sure which all the companies are.
Q. Did you know what they were in 1997 and 1998 at the time of the merger transaction?
A. I am sure I did.
Q. Do you know a company called the Coleman Company, Inc.?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you know that you were a director of that company?
A. At various times, yes.

Q. Did you know you were a director of the company at the time of the merger agreement?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you remember who the chairman of the board of the company was?
A. I believe Jerry Levin.
Q. The same Jerry Levin that you bumped into on the street I think you said three months ago?
A. Yes.
Q. The same Jerry Levin who was the CEO of Revlon, Inc., correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You know Mr. Levin pretty well, don't you?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
You can answer.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
You know Mr. Levin fairly well?
A. I know him fairly well, yes.
Q. How many years did you do business with him?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015483

Let me withdraw the question.
That was poor question. Let me try again.
How many years was Mr. Levin employed by one of the companies that MacAndrews & Forbes either held an ownership interest, direct or indirect, in whether in whole or in part?
A. Maybe ten years.
Q. You have had quite a bit of interaction with him over the ten years, right?
A. Some.
Q. He was -- Revlon, Inc. is one of MacAndrews & Forbes largest holdings, isn't it?
A. It is a major holding for us, yes.
Q. You put Mr. Levin in charge of that company, didn't you?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you do that?
A. I believe like in '92, '93, something like that.
Q. You put him in charge of the company at a time that Revlon, Inc. was having some difficulties, didn't you?

A. Yes.
Q. You put him in charge of Revlon Inc. in order to assist in a restructuring of the company, correct?
A. I don't know if it was a restructuring but he was put in charge to bring in a new management team.
Q. He was essentially put in charge to move Revlon into a mass marketing format for its cosmetics as opposed to being sold out of department stores; is that fair?
A. No.
Q. That is not fair. Okay.
Based on your experience with Mr. Levin over ten years -- by the way, with your executives you have breakfast meetings at your townhouse across the street or next door, don't you?
A. Some.
Q. Don't you have almost daily breakfast meetings with your executives when you are in town?
A. Some executives.
Q. Some, like Mr. Schwartz attends on occasion?

A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Levin, he attended on occasion when he was in New York?
A. On occasion.
Q. Mr. Bruce Slovin, he used to attend at times?
A. On occasion.
Q. Mr. Gittis, he used to attend as well?
MR. SOLOVY: It is Gittis.
THE WITNESS: Yes, he did.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I apologize.
Did Mr. Drapkin attend?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Engelman ever attend?
A. Yes.
Q. Going back to Mr. Levin for a minute, based on your ten years -- withdrawn.
After Revlon you made the decision to put Mr. Levin in control -- excuse me, the decision -- withdrawn.
After Mr. Levin left Revlon Inc.

you made the decision to put him into the CEO position at the Coleman Company, Inc., did you not?
A. Yes.
Q. You put him in there because you needed to restructure that company, right?
A. It needed new management.
Q. When did you put him in, Mr. Levin?
A. '95, I think, '96. '96.
Q. I spoke over you. I apologize.
A. I think it was '95, '96.
Q. At that time at least in '96 the Coleman Company had lost a substantial amount of money that year, right, about $41 million if I remember correctly from the financial statements?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall whether it lost any money in 1996 or just the $41 million you don't recall?
A. I don't recall either.
Q. Even though you don't recall whether Coleman made or lost money in 1996 you did put Mr. Levin in charge of Coleman because, as you put it, you needed a change of management?

015484

A. Right.
Q. What was the change that you needed?
A. A change of management.
Q. I understand. What did you mean by that?
A. A different management.
Q. To do what?
A. To manage the company better.
Q. It was being managed not good before that?
A. I thought it could be managed better.
Q. Then after Mr. Levin managed the Coleman Company, which he did up to the time of the closing of the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. He was on the board of directors, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Then he resigned when you resigned at the time of the closing,

correct?
A. I would assume so.
Q. Then in June of 1998 you called upon Mr. Levin to come back and help run Sunbeam when you were asked for assistance by the Sunbeam board of directors, correct?
A. No.
Q. Did you ask Mr. Levin to come back and assist you?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Levin go to Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know how that happened?
A. I believe at the request of the Sunbeam directors.
Q. Were you aware -- did you ever ask Mr. Levin whether he would be willing to go back and do that?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Based on your experience with Mr. Levin -- withdrawn.
Before Mr. Levin came to work for Revlon did he work with any of your other companies?
A. I don't believe so.

Q. The first employment Mr. Levin had with one of MacAndrews & Forbes companies -- can I refer to those companies as MacAndrews & Forbes companies?
A. Yes.
Q. If I misspoke let me know and I will try to correct it.
A. He joined us in some capacity before Revlon I believe but I don't recall what it was.
Q. Do you think he is a good executive, by the way?
A. Yes.
Q. What is his -- in your view, what is his -- your opinion of his reputation for truth and veracity?
A. I don't know what "veracity" means.
Q. Do you know what "truth" means?
A. Yes. I think he is truthful.
Q. Has he ever lied to you, do you know?
A. Not that I know of.
Q. What is his reputation in your view for probity?

A. I don't know what that means.
Q. Can you think of anything that Mr. Levin has ever misrepresented to you in all of the years that he was an executive for companies owned or controlled by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. Intentionally or unintentionally?
Q. Intentionally.
A. I mean, I think that -- I don't think he has ever intentionally lied to me about anything.
I think he has represented positions as he saw them that may have turned out to be accurate or may have turned out to be inaccurate.
Q. That can happen in business, right?
A. Of course.
Q. Did Mr. Levin in the years that you have known him since 1992, did he ever do anything that you would categorize as unethical?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Let's roll back to December 31, 1997.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

You owned through MacAndrews & Forbes indirectly 82 percent of the common stock of the Coleman Company, Inc.; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The Coleman transaction -- as you sit here today, I think you have answered this but we will move on if we are clear.

You don't know the intermediate holding company structure as you sit here today between MacAndrews & Forbes and the Coleman Company, Inc. as of December 31, 1997; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. But there were a series of holding companies between the public company and yourself ultimately?

A. And MacAndrews & Forbes, that is correct.

Q. These holding companies, they didn't engage in any business operations other than acting as a holding company, correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. A holding company, as we are speaking about here, that doesn't make any products, right?

A. They could own companies that make products.

Q. The holding company itself doesn't make any?

A. It is not an operating company.

Q. They don't make any cars or refrigerators or fans?

A. Correct.

Q. MacAndrews & Forbes controlled all of the holding companies above the Coleman Company, Inc., correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You controlled MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. Yes.

Q. You were the guy at the top?

A. I would guess so.

Q. You made all final decisions, didn't you?

A. No.

Q. Who made the final decisions for MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. There are lots of decisions made everyday by lots of different people.

Q. I may have misspoke or misled you.

The question may not have been clear. Let me try again.

If a final decision had to be made at MacAndrews & Forbes on an issue, on a matter such as selling the stock to Sunbeam, did you make that final decision?

A. On whether to sell the stock?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. Sir, would -- you made the ultimate decision to file the complaint against Morgan Stanley that we are taking your testimony on, correct?

A. No.

Q. Who made that ultimate decision?

A. I was part of the decision but that decision was made by counsel.

Q. You elected to have counsel -- excuse me. I withdraw the question.

You delegated to your counsel the decision whether to file a suit against Morgan Stanley; is that right?

A. No. In this case it would be Howard Gittis.

Q. Howard Gittis made the decision to file the suit against Morgan Stanley?

A. As I said we all participated in it but he made the decision to file the litigation.

Q. When I depose Mr. Gittis Mr. Gittis will take responsibility for making the decision to file the lawsuit, correct?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.

MR. BEMIS: Withdrawn.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Mr. Perelman, do you consider yourself a sophisticated businessman?

A. I think so.

Q. You have been -- withdrawn.

Do you consider yourself a sophisticated investor?

A. Not necessarily.

Q. Do you consider -- do you consider that you have over the course of your business career hired sophisticated advisers to help you?

A. Yes.
Q. For example, investment bankers, you have retained them on a regular basis, have you not?
A. Yes.
Q. Tell the jury some of the investment banking firms that you retained to advise MacAndrews & Forbes over the years.
A. Morgan Stanley, Goldman Sachs, Lazard, First Boston, a whole slew of them.
Q. When you said First Boston you would include in that Credit Suisse First Boston after the merger?
A. Yes.
Q. You have as well -- withdrawn. You have other advisers as well such as attorneys, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You have Mr. Schwartz who is sitting in the room here as your general counsel, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. You consider him a sophisticated legal counsel, don't you?

A. I think he is good legal counsel, yes.
Q. He is a good businessman, too, isn't he?
A. He is a good lawyer.
Q. A good business lawyer?
A. Yes.
Q. Good adviser?
A. He is a good legal adviser, yes.
Q. In addition to Mr. Schwartz who is sitting here in this deposition you have Mr. Fasman sitting over here. He is one of your legal advisers, right?
A. Yes.
Q. He works with Mr. Schwartz, doesn't he?
A. Yes.
Q. He is a good legal adviser, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Good business legal adviser?
A. I don't know.
Q. In addition to your in-house legal advisers -- by the way, Mr. Fasman and Mr. Schwartz are here to help in the deposition?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form.
MR. BEMIS: Withdraw the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. In addition to Mr. Fasman and Mr. Schwartz you also have other attorneys that work for Mr. Schwartz at MacAndrews & Forbes, correct?
A. Not many.
Q. You have others. There may not be many in your view but there are others?
A. I think one other.
Q. Did you have an attorney at one time, Joram Salig?
A. Yes.
Q. He worked for Mr. Schwartz, right?
A. I believe so.
Q. Provided legal advice to MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I never worked with him.
Q. Did you ever meet him?
A. Yes.

Page 41

Q. Did you ever authorize him to file documents on your behalf?
A. No.
Q. You are sure of that?
A. Not directly, no.
Q. Do you have, in addition to your, I will refer to it as your in-house counsel, you have used outside law firms in New York City, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You have -- tell the jury some of the law firms in New York City, the larger law firms, that you have used at MacAndrews & Forbes.
A. Skadden, Wachtell, a lot of different law firms.
Q. Good law firms, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Expensive law firms?
A. I guess all law firms are expensive.
Q. In addition to --
A. You must be expensive.
Q. In addition to your in-house counsel and your outside counsel that you have used at times you have analysts in house, don't you?

A. An analyst.
Q. At one time you had a gentleman by the name of William Nesbitt, did you not?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Nesbitt, he was the in-house analyst who was responsible for evaluating the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction, right?
A. Along with others.
Q. Who were the other analysts in house besides Mr. Nesbitt?
Mr. Maher?
A. Maher was in the process, Nesbitt was in the process and then you had all the Coleman people who were in the process who did the analysis for Coleman.
Q. Let's just focus, if we could, right now on the in-house analysts who were analyzing Sunbeam during the time of 1997, 1998.
A. In-house at MacAndrews, not at Coleman?
Q. Yes.

A. That would be William Nesbitt and Jimmy Maher.
Q. Jimmy Maher was a very senior person at Credit Suisse First Boston, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. A very experienced investment banker, wouldn't you agree?
A. Yes.
Q. Very knowledgeable about investment banking, wouldn't you say?
A. Yes.
Q. A brilliant financial analyst, wouldn't you say?
A. I don't know what that means.
Q. Would you say he was a stupid financial analyst?
A. I wouldn't say he was stupid but I don't know if he was brilliant. He is a good financial executive.
Q. How much -- in 1998 how much did MacAndrews & Forbes pay Mr. Maher for his services at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't know.
Q. Was it in the millions of dollars?

A. I don't know.
Q. You don't have any idea?
A. No idea.
Q. How long did Mr. Maher work for you as an analyst?
A. He was more than an analyst. He was a senior executive.
Q. Very senior executive, right?
A. I don't know what very -- he reported --
Q. He reported to you or did he report to Mr. Gittis?
A. We all report to one another. We don't have a very sophisticated or a defined organizational structure.
Q. Correct me if I am wrong. In 1998, at least, Mr. Maher was the president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., is that right?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. What was his position then?
A. What was his title?
Q. Yes, sir. What was his title in 1998?

A. I don't recall.
Q. In 1998 -- in 1997 and 1998 -- we will be talking about the Coleman transaction and the Sunbeam transaction.
Mr. Maher was one of the people who would attend the breakfast meetings at your townhouse, correct?
A. On occasion, yes.
Q. You have -- withdrawn.
Other than Mr. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt, now, in connection with the Coleman transaction and analysis of Sunbeam were there any other in-house analysts that worked on the transaction, and by "in-house," MacAndrews & Forbes in-house.
Let me withdraw the question. It is poorly articulated.
Limiting myself now to MacAndrews & Forbes in-house analysts were there any other analysts other than Mr. Nesbitt and Mr. Maher who worked on the analysis of Sunbeam in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Mr. -- did Mr. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt report the results of their analysis to you?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. Would they do that -- and so -- withdrawn.
Was there any other person that they reported to concerning their analysis of Sunbeam other than you within MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. "Report to" is the wrong way to put it.
I mean, I am sure that all of us were aware of the analysis -- of the review that was going on.
When I say "all of us," myself and Gittis and Barry Schwartz and Maher.
Q. Is that the top tier of the team, yourself, Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Gittis and Mr. Maher on the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. We didn't have a team like that on the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction.
Maher negotiated the transaction. Maher and Nesbitt were part of the review of Sunbeam.
Q. The due diligence of Sunbeam; is that what you mean?

A. Yes.
Q. It is Maher and Nesbitt who did the due diligence of Sunbeam?
A. In part, along with the Coleman guys.
Q. That would be -- I am interrupting you.
Mr. Levin, would he be the person who would be in charge of Coleman for the due diligence?
A. I don't know. I am sure he was part of it.
They would on various occasions report back to us as to what they saw and what they thought of the company.
Q. The "us" that you just referred to is Mr. Maher, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Schwartz, and yourself, the four of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Then ultimately the four of you discussed these issues of whatever analysis was being done and then you, however, had the final say so, go or no go, on the transaction?

A. Yes.
Q. How long have you been -- withdrawn.
Tell the jury how long you have been in business buying and selling companies.
A. I have been in business since I graduated from graduate school.
Q. There came a point in time when you did buy one company and got started in the business you are in now today, correct?
A. I don't know what that means.
Q. Then I will try again.
Let's not worry about a starting point. Let's say over the course -- you are 61 years old now, right?
A. Yes.
Q. In the course of your years since you graduated from Wharton you have bought and sold many companies, right?
A. Several.
Q. More than two, right?
A. More than two.
Q. More than ten?
A. I don't know if that is so.

Q. Have you bought -- strike that.
You own today, today as you sit here you own many companies directly or indirectly through your various holding companies, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition to owning companies you have stock positions in companies that you don't own 100 percent of, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Like Revlon, MacAndrews & Forbes does not own 100 percent of Revlon today, does it?
A. No.
Q. You have also in your many years of business, you have sold -- your companies, MacAndrews, or your subsidiary companies, you have sold billions of dollars of debt securities?
A. Yes.
Q. That is one of the things that you are renowned for doing, selling debt securities?
A. I hope not.
Q. Have you -- tell the jury how many companies through your various holding companies you own or control today through your stock ownerships.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

We talked about Revlon?
A. About eight.
Q. Eight?
A. Yes.
Q. Eight operating companies?
A. Yes.
Q. Tell me today what the operating companies are so the jury has a better idea who you are.
A. Revlon.
Q. Revlon.
A. Panavision, Scientific Games, Allied Security, MFW, AM General. How many is that?
Q. Seven.
A. I think that is it.
Q. That is just today, right?
You have owned other operating companies directly or indirectly through your holding companies like the Coleman Company?
A. Yes.

Q. You have owned, another example, you owned Marvel at one time, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Marvel had the rights of Marvel comics and the Marvel characters?
A. Yes.
Q. Spiderman?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition to that you owned directly or indirectly Consolidated Cigar at one time, didn't you?
A. Yes.
Q. In fact you owned it twice as I recall, didn't you?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection of any other companies that you owned or controlled in your business career, sir?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I am trying to suggest other companies to you. I thought it might help you remember some others. Maybe there aren't any others.

A. New World.
Q. Sold to?
A. News Corp.
Q. News Corp.
Any others you can think of now?
A. Technicolor.
Q. How about Meridian Sports? I can't remember the exact name. I am sure I can look it up. The company that Meridian -- I think it is sports.
A. What is the question?
Q. Did you own it directly or indirectly?
A. We owned it but it was part of Coleman. It was not a company that we -- it was not a core business that we intended to keep.
What we do is identify businesses that we like and hopefully over time help them grow and develop.
Our plan is not to sell them. Our plan is to make them grow.
Q. Would you say that over your business career that you personally through your buying and selling businesses and making them grow as you described that you have made hundreds of millions of dollars?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. We have been successful.
You posed the question as if buying and selling is our business. That is not our business. Buying and operating companies is our business.
Q. Let me rephrase the question.
In your business, as you have described it, would it be fair to say, sir, that you have made hundreds of millions of dollars?
A. We have been successful in our business, that is correct.
Q. In fact, wouldn't you say, sir, that you have been so successful in your business you have not made just hundreds of millions of dollars, you have made billions of dollars?
MR. SOLOVY: This is not a proper subject of inquiry and I advise you you need not answer the question. I think the question is inappropriate and should be withdrawn as per the court's order.

MR. BEMIS: I am not withdrawing the question. If you want to instruct him not to the answer you may do so and I won't argue with you about it.

MR. SOLOVY: You need not answer the question.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Would you agree with me that the Coleman transaction was a transaction between two large sophisticated parties, that is, Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.

THE WITNESS: I mean I don't understand the question.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Okay. If you don't understand the question I will move on to something else if you can't understand it.

A. Okay.

Q. Did you -- at the time of the Coleman transaction Coleman was a publicly traded corporation, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. It filed reports with the Securities and Exchange Commission?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you -- withdrawn.

Sunbeam was a publicly traded corporation, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. It filed reports with the Securities and Exchange Commission?

A. Yes.

Q. In the transaction, the Coleman transaction now that we are talking about, there were investment bankers representing both sides of the transaction, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Morgan Stanley was represented by Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman were represented by Credit Suisse First Boston, correct?

A. I don't know if Credit Suisse

First Boston represented MacAndrews. I believe they represented Coleman.

Q. In the course of Credit Suisse First Boston's work did they provide advice to the executive team that you described for me earlier of MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. I think they provided advice to the board of Coleman.

Q. Did they provide -- I was speaking now of the four gentlemen that you talked to, Mr. Maher, for example, Mr. Gittis.

A. Right.

Q. Mr. Schwartz and yourself, had Credit Suisse First Boston provided advice to those gentlemen?

A. No.

MR. SOLOVY: Objection. The question was asked and answered.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. I didn't hear the witness' response?

A. I believe they were retained by Coleman and provided their advice to Coleman.

Q. My question -- you may not have understood my question or perhaps it was poorly phrased.

My question is: Did Credit Suisse First Boston provide advice, as well as to Coleman, as to yourself, Mr. Maher, Mr. Schwartz and Mr. Gittis?

A. Whoever was on the Coleman board which I don't recall right now would have been a recipient of that advice.

Q. As I understand your testimony, Mr. Maher was the head negotiator, if you will, for MacAndrews & Forbes in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes; is that fair?

A. I believe you could describe it that way, yes.

Q. Was there a person at Coleman that you would describe as a head negotiator for the Coleman Company, Inc.?

A. I would guess it would be Jerry Levin.

Q. Was Mr. Maher on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes, was he the responsible executive at MacAndrews & Forbes to bring the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction to a closing as it ultimately did on March 30, 1998?

A. I don't know the answer to that.
Q. If not Mr. Maher, who would it be?
A. I don't know what you are referring to.
Q. Let me try again. Perhaps the question wasn't well phrased for you.
You are aware that merger agreements were signed with Sunbeam, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You are aware that one of those agreements closed on March 30, 1998, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. On the date of the closing, just as an example, your -- MacAndrews & Forbes through one of its holding companies received within a hair's breath of $160 million in cash, right?
A. Right.
Q. Was Mr. Maher the person responsible for bringing the transaction to closing after the merger agreements were signed by the parties, and this is on behalf of MacAndrews?

A. I don't know what that means.
Q. We will move on if you don't know what it means.
A. Okay.
Q. You attended the February 25 board meeting of the Coleman Company, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You listened to the presentations, did you not?
A. Yes.
Q. You were a director?
A. Yes.
Q. You also attended the February 27, 1998 Coleman board meeting, correct?
A. There were two board meetings. I believe those were the dates.
Q. This -- do you know when the merger agreements were signed?
A. I believe the end of February.
Q. February -- do you know --

February 28, if that is of assistance to you.
I think they are dated as of the 27th but were actually signed on the 28th but we can use that date.
You, as a director of Coleman, actually voted in favor of the merger, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. The following -- following the meeting you resigned -- withdrawn.
I asked you this earlier and you weren't sure if you resigned after the meeting; is that fair?
A. That's fair.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Exhibit Morgan Stanley 430 and see if we can clarify that.
You have to excuse me for one second.
Why don't we go off the record?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is 10:44 a.m.
(Recess)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Returning to the record. The time is 10:46 a.m.

MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, I misspoke. I would like you to mark Exhibit 425 which is a one-page document directed to the board of directors of the Coleman Company, Inc.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 425 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Exhibit Morgan Stanley 425 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your signature, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this your resignation from the board of directors of the Coleman Company, Inc. following the closing of the merger?
A. I don't know.
Q. You see there is a fax date.
You are correct. I said "following."
You will see there is a fax date at the top, March 27, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Did there come a point -- strike

that.
Did you resign from the Coleman Company board of directors more than one time?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. You can set that aside. In fact, you can hand that back to me. Thank you, sir.
At the Coleman board meeting of February 27 -- withdrawn.
At the February 27, 1998 Coleman board meeting that was the meeting where the Coleman merger agreement was approved by the board of directors, correct, the one you voted on?
A. I don't know if the agreement was approved. I believe the transaction was approved.
Q. Fair enough.
The transaction was the one that eventually does close, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did anyone tell you how to vote as a member of the board of directors?
A. What do you mean?

Q. Just what I said.
Did somebody say to you, Mr. Perelman, you need to vote for the merger?
A. No.
Q. Did you tell -- strike that.
Did you have certain designees on the board of directors representing your interests since you held 82 percent of the Coleman stock?
A. Yes.
Q. Who were your designees?
A. I am not sure.
Q. Do you know any of them?
A. No.
Q. Would you know if you saw a list of who attended the board meeting?
A. Absolutely.
Q. You would?
A. Of course.
Q. Then let me show you the minutes of the February 27 meeting in fairness.
If there is any document you want to see during the questioning let me know and if I have it I will try to locate it for you because these things happened six years ago, I understand.

A. Yes.
Q. I hand you or the court reporter will hand you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 118.
You have in front of you the minutes of the board of directors of the Coleman Company, Inc. on Friday, February 27, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. There are directors listed in attendance?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell the jury which of these directors were your designees?
A. Drapkin, Perelman, Slovin.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Drapkin how to vote?
A. No.
Q. He was free to exercise his own independent business judgment; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Mr. Bruce Slovin, did you -- withdrawn.

Did you tell Mr. Bruce Slovin how to vote?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Slovin was free to exercise his own independent business judgment?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Levin how to vote?
A. No.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Frank Gifford how to vote?
A. No.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Jones how to vote?
A. No.
Q. Did you tell Ms. Jordan how to vote?
A. No.
Q. Did you tell James A. Moran who was on by telephone, according to the minutes, how to vote?
A. John A. Moran, no.
Q. Did I misspeak? I am sorry.
Did you tell Mr. James D. Robinson, III, how to vote?

A. No.
Q. Did you tell Mr. William H. Spoor how to vote?
A. No.
Q. Before the meeting on February 27, 1998 of the board of directors of the Coleman Company had any of the board members been advised -- withdrawn.
I want you to go back now to the February 25 board meeting which -- can you go back there in your mind, please?
A. I will try.
Q. You will try. Good.
Before February 25, 1997 had any of the Coleman Company board members been advised of the potential transactions between Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I would assume so but I am not aware specifically.
Q. You know that you knew about it?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Slovin knew about it, right?
A. Those of us who were inside knew about it.
Q. As you sit here today do you know on firsthand knowledge of any of the outside directors, that is, those who were not your designees, who knew of the transaction?

A. No.
Q. As you sit here today the first knowledge the outside directors had of the transaction with Sunbeam would have been February 25 at the board meeting?
A. That is not what I said.
Q. When is your -- strike that.
What is your testimony as to when any of those people would have had knowledge of a potential transaction?
A. I said I didn't know.
Q. You don't know one way or the other whether they knew?
A. That is correct.
Q. If all of these directors said that they first learned of the transaction at or around the February 25 board meeting, would you accept their testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition to the -- withdrawn.
You may hand that back to me, the minutes back, and I will take those out of the way for you. Thank you very much.

A. Thank you.
Q. I will try to keep the paper from piling up.
A. Good.
Q. At the board of directors meetings of the Coleman Company that we have been going over your advisers, that is, on behalf of the Coleman Company did address the board of directors, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. We know that Credit Suisse First Boston advised the board, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember who -- who spoke on behalf of Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. I believe Gordon Rich.
Q. Gordon Rich. You have -- withdrawn.
The adviser -- withdrawn.
The legal adviser to the Coleman Company from Wachtell, Lipton, Adam Emmerich, also advised the board of directors, correct?

A. I believe so.
Q. You had -- in addition to those presentations, you had presentations by Mr. Maher, correct?
A. Possibly.
Q. Mr. Maher, he did not -- so we are clear, Mr. Maher was not a director of the Coleman board, correct?
A. Not from the sheet you just showed me, yes.
Q. Mr. Maher was addressing the board of directors as a representative of MacAndrews & Forbes, right?
A. I don't recall him addressing the board.
Q. I will hand you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88.
A. Do you want me to review this?
Q. If you would like.
My question is: Did Mr. Maher address the board of directors on February 25 while you were there, and I direct your attention, if this helps you, to the second page of the minutes, third paragraph which begins, "Mr. Levin then asked Mr. James Maher to review with the board the history of the proposed transaction with Sunbeam."

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Do you see that sentence?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection, sir, that Mr. Maher did indeed address the board?
A. No.
Q. As you sit here today you have no recollection of Mr. Maher addressing the board of directors?
A. No.
Q. Mr. -- let's set that aside. We will come back to the meeting in a little bit more detail later in your deposition. Thank you for handing that back to me.
A. You are welcome.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the minutes are incorrect, that is, that Mr. Maher did address the board of directors?
A. No.
Q. Were you there for the entire meeting on February 25?

A. I believe so.
Q. Did you -- strike that.
The Coleman companies' outside auditors at the time of the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction was Ernst & Young, is that right?
A. I believe so.
Q. Ernst & Young audited the financial statements of the Coleman Company, Inc. at least up to the year end 1997, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. They issued their opinions on the financial statements of the Coleman Company, Inc., correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. As the 82 percent owner of the Coleman Company, Inc. did you rely upon the certified audits of Ernst & Young as to the financial results of the Coleman Company, Inc.?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't know what that means.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Tell me what it is that is confusing you and I will see if I can help.
A. I mean I believed the financials of Coleman to be accurate.
Q. Was that belief encouraged by the fact that those statements were audited by Ernst & Young?
A. Yes.
Q. Was it also a belief that was fostered by the fact that Ernst & Young, I think it was LLP at that time, was a renowned public accounting firm?
A. Yes.
Q. One of the -- I don't know if it was big five, big six or big seven at that time but one of the big ones?
A. A big one, yes.
Q. You have identified, I think, probably 11 operating companies earlier. If the number is wrong don't hold me to it and I won't hold you to it.
A. Okay.
Q. Those companies, they had outside auditors, as well, right?

A. Yes.
Q. At least the public company?
A. Yes.
Q. With regard to your public companies did MacAndrews & Forbes have one particular auditing firm that it used or did it use a number of them?
A. I believe a number.
Q. Could you tell the jury what auditing firms, and focusing on the period 1997, 1998 if that is helpful for you, the outside auditing firms that MacAndrews & Forbes operating companies retained?
A. Ernst & Young, Peat Marwick; there might be others but I don't recall them.
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes for its part in the Coleman transaction, did it have any outside audit assistance other than Ernst & Young for the Coleman Company?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't understand the question.

Q. Did -- does MacAndrews & Forbes have an auditing company?
A. What do you mean?
Q. Just that. Let me try again. I didn't think that I one was very hard.
MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., your company, does it have financial statements?
A. Yes.
Q. Are they audited?
A. Yes.
Q. Who audits -- who audited them in 1997 and 1998?
A. I don't know.
Q. Was it one of the big accounting firms?

Q. It would have been one of the ones you mentioned for us, Peat Marwick, Ernst & Young?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you know what a clean opinion is in the context of an audit?

A. I believe so.
Q. Would you tell the jury what it is?
A. It is an unqualified opinion.
Q. At the time of the 19 -- at the time of the merger in 1998 that we are talking about, the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction, had Ernst & Young issued unqualified opinions on the Coleman financial statements?
A. I believe so.
Q. At the time of the transaction with Sunbeam and Coleman in 1998 you knew that Sunbeam had outside auditors, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Those outside auditors were Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. And to your knowledge, at least as of the time of the execution of the merger agreements in February 1998, that Arthur Andersen issued unqualified opinions on Sunbeam's financial statements for 199 -- for 1996?
A. I believe so.

Q. At the time of the closing of the transaction, that is, March 30, 1998, had Arthur Andersen issued unqualified or clean opinions, if you will, on Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements?
A. I don't know technically whether the comfort letters sent by Arthur Andersen in March of 1998 would have required a qualification of the 1997 statements after what Arthur Andersen and Morgan Stanley knew as of that date.
Q. As you sit here today as of the closing are you aware of Arthur Andersen withdrawing its audit opinion on Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements as of the date of the closing, March 30, 1998?
A. I don't know whether that comfort letter constitutes a qualified opinion at that point.
Q. Setting aside the comfort letter, and I understand your testimony, and I will not quarrel with you about it, but aside from the comfort letter are you aware of any action by Arthur Andersen to withdraw its opinion on Sunbeam's financial statements for the year ended, I believe it is, December 27, 1997 for Sunbeam?

A. I don't know the answer to that.
Q. You don't know one way or the other?
A. Correct.
Q. Of course, you, before the closing, you had read Sunbeam's 1997 10-K, right?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you read it?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You read it before the closing?
A. Yes.
Q. Who did you -- where did you get it from?
A. I don't recall.
Q. When you read it, the 1997 10-K, you saw Sunbeam's financial statements and Arthur Andersen's opinion, right?
A. I don't know if I focused on Arthur Andersen's opinion but I saw their financial statements, yes.
Q. By the way, when you read financial statements do you read the footnotes?

A. Yes.
Q. At the February 27, 1998 board meeting CSFB presented at least orally a fairness opinion, correct?
A. At which meeting?
Q. At the February 27, 1998.
A. At one of the meetings.
Q. At one of the meetings. Okay.
Morgan Stanley, of course, wasn't at that meeting according to the minutes, right?
A. Correct.
Q. It didn't present a fairness opinion to the board of directors, right?
A. Of Coleman, no.
Q. There were -- strike that.
At either board meeting on February 25 or February 27, 1998 were there any projections presented to the board of directors that were prepared by Morgan Stanley?
A. I am not sure.
Q. You are not sure one way or the other?

A. Correct.
Q. The board of directors of Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. also approved the transaction, correct?
A. Now you are getting into the area that I mentioned earlier I am not -- my recollection is not good.
Is that the holding company that owned the stock?
Q. I tell you what. It is best that I not try to answer questions for you. I appreciate -- you are not being discourteous and I am not trying to be. Let me ask you another question.
A. If you want to get the facts it would be helpful.
Q. I understand that. Trust me, I am not trying to be discourteous. It is just the way the process has to work from my perspective.
A. Okay.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 172. This is a new exhibit.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 172 marked for identification)

THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 172 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your signature that appears above the line, Ronald O. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that Mr. Gittis' signature above your name?
A. Yes.
MR. SOLOVY: Try again. It is Gittis.
MR. BEMIS: I promise you I continue to get it wrong and I am continuing to get it wrong.
MR. SOLOVY: You have two more days to practice. Okay?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I lost my train of thought.
We are looking at Exhibit 172?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you sign this document as of, dated as of February 27, 1998 as it appears?

A. Yes.
Q. According to this document, if you look at it, as I understand it this is a resolution of the board of directors of Coleman (Parent) Holdings approving the merger; is that correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. When you -- were you -- were you therefore a director of Coleman (Parent) -- tell the jury who Coleman (Parent) Holdings was in 1998 when you signed this document as a director?
A. I answered you. I don't know.
Q. I realize you don't know what the company was.
Can you look at the minutes that you signed in February 27, 1998 and turn to -- let's turn to page number 2. It will be the third page of the document.
A. These are not minutes.
Q. I misspoke if I said minutes. These are consents in lieu of a meeting with resolutions attached, correct?
A. That is what it says, yes.

Q. I apologize. Thank you for correcting me.
Turn to page 2. Tell me when you are there.
A. I am here.
Q. There is -- there are two whereas clauses that appear on this document, correct, on that page, the second page?
A. Yes.
Q. I am referring now to the second page and the second whereas clause which reads as follows, "Whereas upon careful consideration of the information presented by the management of the corporation, and the corporation's other advisers, and after full discussion of these matters which the board of directors believes are necessary or appropriate to enable it to evaluate and reach an informed decision regarding the fairness and advisability of the holdings merger and the respective transactions contemplated thereby, including the Coleman merger, the board of directors has determined that it is advisable and in the best interests of the capital C Corporation and its stockholders to approve, initial caps, Holding Merger Agreement in consummation of each of the transactions contemplated by such agreement, including the Coleman capital M Merger."

Do you see that paragraph, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. You read that paragraph before you signed the first page of the document, did you not?
A. Possibly.
Q. You wouldn't have signed this document without reading it, would you?
A. Yes.
Q. You would have signed it without reading it?
A. Yes.
Q. Somebody else wrote this for you and you might have signed it without even reading it?
A. Yes. This was a legal document prepared by the lawyers and I was asked to sign it.
Q. May I ask, sir, when you say "the lawyers," was that Mr. Schwartz who prepared it for you?

A. Possibly.
Q. Can you tell me what the capital C Corporation refers to? Who is that in that whereas clause we were reading?
A. I don't see that.
MR. SOLOVY: Excuse me. For the record, it is a little confusing when you say capital C because it sounds like there is a corporation -- you mean the corporation with a capitalized C?
MR. BEMIS: That is what I was referring to.
MR. SOLOVY: It is confusing.
MR. BEMIS: I will fix it for you.
MR. SOLOVY: Okay.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. That may have been confusing.
In the whereas clause the word "corporation" is capitalized?
A. Right.
Q. My question is what is that capitalized c corporation, what is the name of it?

A. I would assume that is the Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.
Q. That is what I think is true if you look at the first page.
A. I would assume so.
Q. Okay.
So could you tell me who Coleman (Parent) Holdings other advisers are that are referred to in that sentence that we read to the jury?
A. No.
Q. You don't know -- withdrawn.
Then there is -- in the sentence at the very beginning it refers to, "Careful consideration of the information presented by the management of the capital C Corporation, again, Coleman (Parent) Holdings," you see that language?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the information that was presented to the management?
A. I would assume the same manage -- the same information that the Coleman Holdings -- the Coleman operating company got. Both Gittis and I were directors of the Coleman operating company.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. I interrupted you. I will try not to do that.
The management that is referred to in that whereas clause, would you tell the jury who that management consists of?
A. I don't know. I assume Gittis and me.
Q. In any event the management to whomever it refers to and the advisers as you described them?
A. I didn't describe them. I can't describe them.
Q. Okay.
A. I am unable to describe them.
Q. Perhaps I misunderstood what you said. I apologize. We will let it go.
A. Okay.
Q. You can set that aside for the time being. I do need you to hold on to that.
A. Okay.
Q. I would ask you if you would -- you look like you need a break.
A. No. I am fine.

Q. On the first page of the resolutions, at the very bottom of the page there is a whereas clause and it refers to the registration rights agreement.
MR. SOLOVY: We are back, Mr. Bemis, on 172?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, Mr. Solovy. I apologize if I didn't identify it properly. Exhibit 172.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have it back in front of you, Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes, the last whereas.
Q. The last whereas clause on the first page of the resolutions.
A. Yes.
Q. In those resolutions there -- the board approved -- it refers to a condition to the consummation of the holdings merger, that Laser have entered into a registration rights agreement. Then it defines it thereafter.
Do you see that language?
A. Yes.
Q. You know who Laser is, right?

A. No.
Q. Do you know what the registration rights agreement is?
A. No.
Q. You didn't see it before you -- did you see the registration rights agreement before you put your signature on Morgan Stanley Exhibit 172?
A. No.
Q. You may set it aside. Thank you, sir.
A. Okay.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, would you please mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 423 the following document headed CLN Holdings Inc., no comma, unanimous written consent of the board of directors.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 423 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Sir, do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 423 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. You earlier told me you did not know what CLN Holdings Inc. was, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Is that, however, your signature that appears on page 1 dated February 27, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Will you just excuse me for one second?
Is that Mr. Gittis' signature below?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did you sign this document on or about February 27, 1998?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you read it before you signed it?
A. I don't know.
Q. The document -- if you will turn to page 1 of the resolutions?
A. Right.
Q. It would be page 2 of the document and tell me when you are there.
A. I am here.
Q. If you will look at the very last paragraph which begins, "Whereas, upon careful consideration of the information presented by the management of the Corporation," capitalized there.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Right.
Q. "And with the Corporation's," capitalized again, "other advisers and after full discussion of those matters with the board of directors believes are necessary and appropriate to enable it to evaluate and reach an informed decision regarding the fairness and advisability of the Holdings Merger," which is capitalized, "and the respective transactions contemplated thereby including the Coleman Merger," capitalized, "and the Board of Directors," capitalized, "has determined that it is advisable and in the best interests of the Corporation," capitalized, "and its stockholders to approve the holdings merger agreement and the consummation of each of the transactions contemplated by such agreement including the," capitalized "Coleman Merger."
Do you see that sentence?
A. Yes.

Q. Are the advisers and the management that are -- withdrawn.
Are the advisers that are referred to in this paragraph the same advisers that you -- we discussed, excuse me, when we were referring to the Exhibit 172 a few moments ago which is the Coleman (Parent) Holdings resolutions?
A. I believe I said there were no advisers there.
Q. The board of directors-- strike that.
Are you aware of-- strike that.
As I understand it you don't remember whether you were a director of CLN Holdings Inc. because you don't even remember that company?
A. Correct.
Q. Right?
A. Yes.
Q. So I take it you don't remember as you sit here today -- you can't remember any full discussion of the matters set forth in that whereas clause, among them, the board of directors; is that right?

A. It looks like the board of directors is just Gittis and me.
Q. It may well be.
Do you recall any discussion among the board of directors, of you and Mr. Gittis, as described in this whereas clause?
A. Gittis and I clearly talked about this transaction and if Gittis and I, which appears to be the case, are the entire board of directors of CLN Holdings then we did discuss this transaction.
Q. Based on discussing the -- withdrawn.
You were approving in this instance the holdings merger agreement, right, or entering into the agreement?
A. I think we were approving a bunch of things here.
Q. I don't think I was trying to include a bunch at this point.
You were approving the entry into at least the holdings merger agreement?
A. And it says, "The consummation of each transactions contemplated by such agreement."

Q. You, at this point, had you read the holdings merger agreement?
A. No.
Q. Had you read the Coleman merger agreement at the time you approved entering into it?
A. No.
Q. If I asked you this, and I may have, I apologize.
A. Okay.
Q. When you entered -- withdrawn.
When you signed Morgan Stanley Exhibit 172 which is the CPH minutes -- do you want to see it again?
A. Yes.
Q. Fair enough. May I have 172 again?
I have handed you Exhibit 172 and the question I am asking you is: At the time that you signed Exhibit 172 had you read the Holdings Merger Agreement, which is capitalized in that whereas clause?
A. No.
Q. Had you read the Coleman Merger

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Agreement which is again capitalized in that paragraph?
A. No.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
At the time that you signed the two documents we were looking at, 172 -- withdrawn.
At the time that you signed Morgan Stanley Exhibit 172 and 423 had you been present at any presentation of any kind by Morgan Stanley in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction, you, personally?
A. Other than the call from Bill Reid to me, I don't think so.
Q. The call from Bill Reid that you are referring to is a call that takes place in the week of January 18, I believe, of 1998, correct?
A. I am not sure of the date. Sometime --
Q. We will get there in due time. It is a call that Mr. Reid made to you after the meeting that you and Mr. Dunlap had on December 18, 1998 -- 1997, excuse me, at your home in Palm Beach?

A. That is correct.
Q. Again, it was -- that -- again, we will do this in a little more detail but so the jury knows what we are talking about later, this call from Mr. Reid was indeed the first and only time that you ever had any communication with -- you, personally, had any communication directly with Morgan Stanley about the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction; is that fair?
A. Possibly.
Q. You can't think of any as you sit here today?
A. That is correct.
Q. Since there will be some more questions on this if you do think of anything and it is appropriate please let me know and we will deal with it then.
A. Thank you.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, would you mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 424 Coleman Worldwide Corporation consent of directors in lieu of board of directors meeting?

(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 424 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Exhibit 424 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Please correct me if I misheard your testimony earlier.
I think I recall you telling me that you did not know what Coleman Worldwide Corporation was?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. On the first page of Exhibit 424 we have your signature above the printed Ronald O. Perelman; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Gittis, is that his signature?
A. I believe so.
Q. Both of you signed this on or about February 27, 1998, correct?
A. It is dated "as of." I don't know when it was signed.

Q. Fair enough.
Did you read the document before you signed it?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. If you will turn to the second page of Exhibit MS 424, I would like you to please look at the last paragraph beginning with, "Whereas the board of directors of Holdings," initial caps, "has authorized, and approved and adopted the," capital H "Holdings Merger Agreement," in capitals, "in all respects and recommended that the sole stockholder of Holdings approve," initial caps, "Holdings Merger Agreement and the transactions contemplated thereby including the Coleman merger."
Do you see that whereas clause?
A. Yes.
Q. I have asked you with regard to two other documents that have virtually identical language.
Would your answers be the same if I asked you the questions?
A. Why don't you ask me the questions?

Q. I will. I thought I would save you some time.
As of the date of this agreement had you read the holdings agreement?
A. No.
Q. Had you read the Coleman transaction?
A. No.
Q. That is all we need.
Would you like --
THE WITNESS: I am fine.
MR. BEMIS: I saw people looking at their watches.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. With regard to that last written consent, there was no presentation by Morgan Stanley to Coleman Worldwide Corporation before you signed the document, right?
A. This last document?
Q. Yes.
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. I am now going to show you a document that has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 426.

This is a thicker one.
Would you mark that for me, Mr. Reporter?
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 426 marked for identification)
THE WITNESS: Can I make a quick run to the men's room?
MR. BEMIS: Why don't we take five minutes?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is 11:32 a.m.
(Recess)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Returning to the record. The time is 11:42 a.m.
This is the beginning of tape number 2.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You should have in front of you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 426.
A. Yes.
Q. If you will turn to the last page, we will do that first, and actually it is not the last page, it is going to be the next to the last page, and tell me when you are there?
MR. SOLOVY: Page 15, Mr. Bemis, on the bottom?

MR. BEMIS: Yes, Mr. Solovy.
THE WITNESS: What is called page 15?
MR. SOLOVY: Yes, on the bottom.
MR. BEMIS: The penultimate page on the document.
THE WITNESS: Say again.
MR. BEMIS: Next to last page.
THE WITNESS: There are two page 15s.
MR. BEMIS: It may be that we photocopied it poorly. Here is a page 15 too.
You are absolutely correct. That is page 15 of the attachment.
The second to the last page of the document which has -- I will read a Bates number into the record so we don't have confusion later. It is WLRK0019438.
MR. SOLOVY: 39, you mean?
MR. BEMIS: I have 38.
MR. SOLOVY: Mine says 39.
MR. BEMIS: Now I am looking at the wrong page. It is 39. I apologize. I was looking for a second page 15. Now we are all page challenged.

We have it?
MR. SOLOVY: Yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Now I will ask you a question.
If you will look at the signatures that appear there and for Mr. Joram C. Salig, he is listed as a vice president, law, MAFCO Holdings Inc., do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. In March of 1998 Mr. Salig was an attorney who worked for one of your companies, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Although it says MAFCO Holdings Inc. here I think you told me earlier that you didn't recall the name of this company?
A. Correct, yes.
Q. There is no question that he worked -- Mr. Salig worked for one of your companies?
A. That is correct.

Q. This report or this document which is a form of the Federal Trade Commission, you can see that on the lower right-hand corner, left-hand corner of the first page, was submitted on your behalf, correct?
A. I don't know.
Q. You are the name of the person filing an item number 1, are you not, sir, on page 1? If you will turn to that?
A. Yes.
Q. The address there is the address of your business offices; in fact, where we are at today?
A. Yes.
Q. You authorized, I take it, your attorneys to file this document on your behalf; is that correct?
A. No.
Q. May I see Exhibit 430 please? By the way, you wouldn't make any misrepresentations to the federal government, would you, in a form that you filed with them, sir?
A. Not knowingly.

Page 103

Q. That is what I thought.
I withdraw that remark. That is inappropriate. I apologize.
Would you mark that as Exhibit MS 430 please?
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 430 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. First of all, this is a document it is entitled Affidavit Pursuant to Sections 803.2(a) and 803.5(d) of Premerger Notification Rules Relating to the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act.
A. Yes.
Q. If you will turn to the last page we have Mr. Joram Salig's signature again, vice president of law, March of 1998; do you see that?
A. Yes. There is no date here. Yes.
Q. If you will turn to the first paragraph on page 1 of Exhibit 430, Mr. Salig swears to the Federal Trade Commission of the United States of America, "I am vice president-law of MAFCO Holdings Inc.," with MAFCO in quotation marks and parentheses. "I am authorized to submit this affidavit on behalf of Ronald O. Perelman who owns 100 percent of MAFCO pursuant to Sections 803.2(a) and 803.5(b) of the rules and regulations promulgated under Title 2 of the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Acts of 1976."
Do you see that language?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you authorize Mr. Salig to file this affidavit on your behalf in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman merger transaction?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who did?
A. No.
Q. Is it customary for attorneys -- withdrawn.
Is it customary at least in the period 1998 for attorneys at MAFCO Holdings Inc. or MacAndrews & Forbes as the case may be to submit affidavits to the federal government representing they are authorized to file documents on your behalf when you have not given that authorization?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: Yes. I would have given authorization to proceed with the transaction and whatever was required to do so would have been done by the attorneys. You are asking me a specific question which I don't even know pursuant to Section 803.2(a), I would suggest that you probably don't even know what Section 803.2(a) and 803.5(b) of the rules and regulations promulgated under title 2 of the act are.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Are you finished? I don't want to interrupt you.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Is it fair to say regardless, so we are not quarreling about this, that Mr. Salig submitted this on your behalf even if you did not specifically authorize it?
A. I don't know what this is. He would have done what was required to have been done under the rules and regulations that we were set to comply with.

Q. Would you please turn to item 4C?
A. 4C?
Q. Yes. 4C?
A. What is that?
Q. 4C is -- I will get you the exact page.
A. Item 4C or page 4C?
Q. I understand. I am getting a page for you so it will be easier for you to find.
It is page 5, printed page at the bottom, Bates number WLRK0019392.
A. I don't know what 4C is.
MR. SOLOVY: He is referring, Mr. Perelman, to this MS 426.
THE WITNESS: Okay. You want me to go to which page?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Page 5 on the bottom and there is a subitem C.
A. There is no page 2, 3, 4, 5. Okay. Subitem C, yes.
Q. Did you -- this is headed

Studies, Surveys, Analyses and Reports.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you review any of these studies, analyses or reports that Mr. Salig directed the Federal Trade Commission to in this item of this form?
A. What is stated here specifically, I am not sure.
Does it go on to these next five pages? I don't understand what is here.
Q. Let me try again.
A. Okay.
Q. My question is focusing just on the three items that are referred to in subparagraph C of item 4 on page 5, you are there, right. You are on that page?
A. Yes. My question is does it continue on the following pages?
Q. It does not.
Item 4(a) is an attachment on the next page. That is a list of all of your -- that is a list of public filings by companies that are related to MacAndrews & Forbes.

A. Okay.
Q. Let's step back to item 4C. Are you with me?
A. Yes.
Q. I want -- my question was: Did you look at, at any time before the closing on March 30, 1998, any of the documents that are identified in item 4C?
There is only three.
A. Well, item 1 is the Coleman Company agrees to acquisition by Sunbeam, press release dated March 2. I am sure that I saw the press release.
Draft materials prepared for discussion, I don't know what that means.
Q. Okay.
A. And Sunbeam Corporation discussion materials dated February 1998 prepared by Kitts, Morgan Stanley -- I don't know if I -- I don't think I ever saw those.
Q. You can set this document aside. You can hand it up to me. I will take it out of your way and reduce the clutter for you.

A. Will you show me those pieces of paper later to refresh my memory on them?
Q. I think I can show them to you right now. Would you like to see them right now?
A. Good.
Q. As I said, if you want to see a document you ask me and I will try to find it for you. It is already marked. I am handing you what has been marked as MS 85.
I will tell you that I am making the assumption that you will make, I assume, that that is the document that Mr. Salig is referring to. I believe that it is but -- so I handed you MS 85.
Take whatever time you need to look at it and let me know when you are finished and I will ask you a question.
MR. SOLOVY: So the record is clear, Mr. Bemis, you are representing that Morgan Stanley 85 is the item described in MS 426 at page 5 as, "Sunbeam Corporation discussion materials dated February 1998 prepared by Robert W. Kitts, managing director of Morgan Stanley & Company?"

MR. BEMIS: No. I am not making any representations.
I believe that is the document that Mr. Salig, I mispronounced his name, is referring to.
I don't vouch for Mr. Salig's description of the document. I think that is the document he is referring to.
THE WITNESS: How do I know what I am looking at then?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I can't be anymore help than that.
You asked me what I thought the document was that refreshed your recollection. I have done the best that I can do.
A. Can I see the previous thing?
Q. You may. The Federal Trade Commission filing.
A. Thank you. Can you understand the date of this?
Q. Are you asking me what the date of the document is?

A. Yes.
Q. I think if you look -- if your eyes are not real good it will be hard to read. Lower left-hand side of the document.
A. Okay.
Q. There is a footer?
A. February 3. Okay. Okay.
Q. My question was, and I think this is what you were asking me, I had asked you whether you had ever seen it and now I have shown it to you and you gave me your answer. You asked to see the document. I have now shown it to you.
Have you seen the document before?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you see it?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if you saw it before or after the closing of the merger transaction?
A. I would assume before.
Q. You may assume that but do you know one way or the other?

A. Specifically, no.
Q. Then you may -- are you done looking at it?
A. Yes.
Q. Then you can hand it back to me.
A. Everything?
Q. We will take the big ones back and get them out of your way.
A. How about this one?
Q. We will take that as well. Thank you very much.
Did you want to see the other documents, the discussion materials and the press release as well?
A. If you are not sure what is referred to in the thing then --
Q. I can't testify for you but I can show you what I believe is the documents referred to.
A. No. I think I am okay. You will show them to me later, I guess.
Q. You will see them.
A. Good.
Q. Give us one second.
In the Coleman-Sunbeam

transaction that we have been discussing we have reviewed minutes or resolutions of a number of companies on the MacAndrews & Forbes side of the table, if you will.
We looked at Coleman Company minutes. Do you recall that, the two minutes --
A. Right.
Q. Are you aware of any payments by the Coleman Company, Inc. to Morgan Stanley in connection with the transaction?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any payments by the company called Coleman Worldwide Corporation to Morgan Stanley in connection with the transaction, the Coleman transaction?
A. I think Morgan Stanley was involved in the Coleman Company when we bought it.
Q. Back in 1989?
A. I believe so.
Q. Could we set 1989 forward and just -- we will talk about the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction only.

My question was unclear. I apologize. Let me try again.

With regard to Coleman Worldwide Corporation, we looked at the resolutions and the board of directors signatures.

Are you aware of any payments by Coleman Worldwide Corporation to Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any payments by CLN Holdings Inc. to Morgan Stanley in connection with the Coleman transaction?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any payments by Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. to Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any payments by MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. What was the last thing you asked me?

Q. I will repeat the question for you.

Page 115

Are you aware of any payments by Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., the plaintiff in this case, to Morgan Stanley in connection --

A. No, I don't believe.

Q. With the Sunbeam transaction?

A. No.

Q. Last question on this.

Are you aware of any payments by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. to Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?

A. No.

Q. Based on my -- withdrawn.

If -- as I understand your testimony, the only person from Morgan Stanley that you spoke directly with before -- let's say before the closing other than perhaps on a social basis now in connection with the Coleman transaction was Mr. Bill Reid; is that right?

A. No.

Q. Who else did you speak to?

A. I said that was all that I recalled.

Page 116

Q. Do you recall anymore now?

A. No.

Q. At least as you sit here today subject to your memory getting refreshed on something else?

A. At least as I sit here this minute. Okay.

Q. We are clear as you sit here this minute?

A. Correct.

Q. The only -- the conversation you recall with a Morgan Stanley person in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction is a conversation with Bill Reid which I think we agreed was sometime after the meeting with Mr. Dunlap at your house in Palm Beach which the record will show is December 18, 1997?

A. That is correct.

Q. The meeting -- withdrawn.

The conversation that you had with Mr. Reid, was that on the telephone or was that a face-to-face meeting?

A. I believe on the telephone.

Q. Do you recall -- withdrawn.

Page 117

Did you receive up to the time of the signing of the merger documents, February 28, 1998, any documents from Morgan Stanley in connection with the Coleman transaction?

A. I think we saw some presentations.

Q. Did you see them though?

A. I believe so.

Q. You, personally?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Which presentations did you see?

A. Specifically, I don't recall but ones similar to that that I just saw.

Q. You were at the presentation?

A. Possibly, possibly.

Q. Was this a presentation where Mr. Kersh spoke?

A. I don't recall.

Q. When was this presentation?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Where was it?

A. I would assume here.

Q. Can we set aside your assumptions and tell me if you remember one way or the other whether when you say "here," I assume you mean your office?

A. Yes.
Q. You believe that there was a presentation that Morgan Stanley was present at that was at your offices where we are taking your deposition today?
A. Not specifically this room but in this building, yes.
Q. Do you remember -- strike that.
Who from Morgan Stanley was present?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did someone from Morgan Stanley speak as opposed to someone from Sunbeam speaking?
A. I am sure the Morgan Stanley people spoke.
Q. You may be sure but did they?
A. Yes.
Q. You don't know who it was?
A. No.
Q. What did they say?
A. It was a presentation giving us some background on the company.

Q. On Sunbeam?
A. On Sunbeam.
Q. Was this in 1997 or 1998? Withdrawn.
Can you differentiate -- withdrawn.
Was it in 1997 or 1998?
A. I believe 1998.
Q. In 1998?
A. 1998.
Q. Were you personally using electronic mail, you, in 1997?
A. No.
Q. In 1998?
A. No.
Q. Did you personally, now, receive any correspondence from anyone from Morgan Stanley in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. Directed to me?
Q. Yes, sir, directed to you.
A. I don't believe so.
Q. As I understand your testimony at least up to the time of the closing, March 30, 1998, you recall what you believe is a telephone conference with Mr. Reid and Morgan Stanley being present in this office for a presentation about Sunbeam although you don't remember who at Morgan Stanley was there?

A. That is correct.
Q. Is there anybody, anything else by way of letters, correspondence, telephone calls or meetings that you can recall during that time period, again up to March 30, 1998, about the Coleman transaction with Sunbeam?
A. You got to ask me that question again.
Q. Fair enough. That was a longer question.
You have told me again about Mr. Reid's telephone call?
A. Right.
Q. You believe you were present at a meeting of some kind?
A. Right.
Q. Where Morgan Stanley was present?
A. Right.
Q. Although you don't know who?

A. Correct.
Q. And there was a discussion about Sunbeam.
My question now is: Are there any other meetings, conversations that you recall with Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam before March 30, 1998?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. The questions I have been asking you, I have been using the term "Morgan Stanley" and I should have clarified this earlier.
I would like to shorten things by including Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding or any other Morgan Stanley entity.
Would your answers be the same if I asked you the same questions for the company Morgan Stanley Senior Funding about these meetings?
A. Yes.
Q. Going forward, if you could do me the courtesy, if I ask you a question about Morgan Stanley, to shortcut this, I would like to include in that someone who may technically be employed by Morgan Stanley Senior Funding or some other entity.

015507

If you associate the person at all with Morgan Stanley please tell me and you can clarify your answer any way you want, is that fair?
A. I don't understand what you said.
Q. You understand that there are -- there is more than one company with the name Morgan Stanley in its full name?
A. Yes.
Q. I have been using just Morgan Stanley.
A. To encompass --
Q. All of these entities.
A. Okay.
Q. I am asking you if going forward you can answer the questions in the larger context of any Morgan Stanley entity that you may have spoken to, had dealings with in the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction so I don't have to ask the question three different times.
Fair enough?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you -- are you personally aware of anyone from Coleman conducting any type of examination of the financial -- the books and records, if you will, of Sunbeam after the signing of the merger agreements on February 28 and up to the closing, March 30, 1998?
A. Am I personally aware of it?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes, I am including all the holding companies in that, examining the books and records of Sunbeam after February 28, 1998 and up to the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. Am I personally aware of it? No.
Q. Were you ever told by anyone even though you might not have been there and done it yourself, were you ever told by anyone that Coleman had examined Sunbeam's books and records after the signing of the merger agreements but before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. The period from February --

Q. To the closing?
A. Until March 30.
Q. Yes, sir.
A. Specifically, no.
Q. Were you ever told that anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes including its holding companies, the plaintiff here, Coleman (Parent) Holding or CLN Holding had -- I misspoke. I said "parent." It should have been subsidiary. Let me withdraw the question and rephrase it.
Were you ever told by anyone, even though you personally didn't do it, that anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes or its subsidiary companies had examined the books and records of Sunbeam after the signing of the merger agreements and before the closing on March 30?
A. Am I specifically aware of that? No.
Generally I am aware of updates that occurred. There were public announcements that Sunbeam was making as to their performance.
There were meetings that were occurring where Sunbeam was talking about its performance so -- of which Morgan Stanley was a part of so there were ongoing updates all of which were not only positive but glowing as to the ongoing performance of Sunbeam during this period.

Q. You referred to some meetings. Are these the so-called road show meetings you are referring to?
A. Yes.
Q. You didn't attend any of them, did you?
A. No.
Q. Can you identify any person at MacAndrews & Forbes or its subsidiary companies who attended any of those meetings?
A. Specifically, no.
Q. Then you referred to -- then you referred to public announcements, I think is what your testimony was?
A. Right.
Q. You are referring to the March 19, press release?
A. And to statements made by the management prior to that at various times.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Did you see the March 19 press release in your deposition preparation?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you a copy of the March 19 press release. I have a couple quick questions. We will do it in a little more detail later. I want to ask you this while you raised it.
I am going to hand you now an Exhibit MS 39 which is the -- what we referred to as the March 19 press release.
I hand that to you.
MR. BEMIS: Do you have any objection if I take my jacket off now that we have turned the air conditioning up or down whichever most symbolizes it appropriately?
MR. SOLOVY: Not at all.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I think we are on Exhibit Morgan Stanley 39.
You have that in front of you, right, sir?
A. Yes.

Q. Would you tell me, sir, this is the press release that you saw during your deposition preparation even if it might have been in a slightly different form? There are different documents that have the same press release in it?
A. Yes.
Q. You saw this press release at -- withdrawn.
Did you see this press release or -- withdrawn.
Did you see this press release at or about March 19, 1998?
A. I don't know if I saw this release.
Q. I understand it might not be the exact one but did you see the press release in some form?
A. I saw the press report.
Q. Reported in one of the financial newses such as Bloomberg?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you get Bloomberg?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you the Bloomberg one then because I think that is probably the one you saw. We might as well use that.

I will hand you what the court reporter will mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 211.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 211 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 211 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this the version of the March 19 press release as it was reported by Bloomberg that you saw?
A. No.
Q. There is more of them.
Using either one of them you did see the contents of the press release?
A. Yes.
Q. Following the issuance of the press release -- withdrawn.
Did you see the press release at the time it was issued or right about the time it was issued?
A. I believe so.

Q. You saw it before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. When you saw the press release, did you personally contact -- after you saw the press release, whether it be Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39 or another version of it, did you personally make any inquiries, whether by writing or telephone, face-to-face meetings, with Sunbeam about the contents of the press release?
A. I had our people --
Q. Let's start with you personally and then we will get to your people.
Can you give me the answer first to the question.
Did you personally do anything?
A. Did I personally set up a meeting?
Q. Let me ask the question again. I understand the problem and I will see if I can keep it clear for you.
A. Thank you.
Q. After you saw the March 19, 1998 press release did you personally, Ronald O.

Perelman, pick up the telephone, type an e-mail, write a letter to anyone at Sunbeam and make inquiry about the subject matter of the press release?

A. I don't recall whether I personally spoke to Dunlap or asked somebody else to talk to him.

I know that subsequently they came to the office to give us an update in person.

Q. Let me focus now on other people that you might have asked -- withdrawn.

Let me ask you to tell the jury what -- withdrawn.

Tell the jury who the people were or person if it is only one that you asked to make inquiry about the March 19 press release.

A. I would imagine that I would have asked either Maher and/or Jerry Levin.

Q. If Mr. Maher said that he didn't contact anybody, which he did under oath, you would assume then it would be Mr. Levin?

A. Possibly, yes.

Q. If Mr. Levin testifies under oath that he didn't talk to anybody at Sunbeam, would you have any reason to doubt his testimony?

A. No.

Q. Other than -- did you get a report back?

A. It -- maybe I called it myself.

Q. You don't remember?

A. I don't remember, no.

Q. Do you remember hearing -- withdrawn.

I want you to focus on the period before March 30 --

A. Right.

Q. -- only. We will cover after March 30 in another set of questions.

A. Okay.

Q. Before March 30, 1999 did you hear from anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes, or Coleman, for that matter, that they -- whether MacAndrews & Forbes or someone at Coleman had spoken to someone at Sunbeam to make further inquiry about the March 19 press release?

A. Yes.

Q. Who did you hear that from?

A. I am not sure. I thought it was either Maher or Levin. But what -- but somebody came back to me and I believe there was a meeting in our offices here in this building with Dunlap and Kersh present talking about their view of the quarter and the year.

Q. That meeting that you are referring to was a meeting that took place right before the May 11, 1998 announcement of Sunbeam's results for the first quarter, isn't it?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Isn't that -- withdrawn.

At that meeting, the one you were referring to --

A. Right.

Q. -- did you offer assistance to Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh by way of Mr. Levin, for example, providing some additional management assistance?

A. I can't imagine that.

Q. You can't imagine that.

A. No.

Q. Do you have any -- other than you recall meeting with Mr. Dunlap -- by the way, was this meeting with Mr. Dunlap the first meeting face-to-face that you had had with him since the meeting at your home in Palm Beach on December 18?

A. I believe so. I believe so. There might have been one other.

Q. The one other one that you might have had may have been somewhere around Christmastime, Chanukah, at Palm Beach where you both ran into each other, correct?

A. Yes. I am referring to something much later. There may or may not have been.

I know -- look, in reading this press release this is a rather bullish press release and it points up some issues that have to be addressed but it is a rather bullish press release.

I am positive that I made inquiry of somebody and got back a response from somebody saying that -- what the response

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015510 was from Sunbeam.

Q. You didn't talk to Morgan Stanley about it?
A. Me, personally?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Nobody got back to you that you are positive of got back to you from Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't know if my people talked to Morgan Stanley. I would assume -- there is a high likelihood that they did.
Q. There is a high likelihood that the sun will come up tomorrow.
A. Both are high likelihoods.
Q. Did you have any communication with anyone at Morgan Stanley about the press release before the closing?
A. Did I personally?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Are you aware as you sit here today of any communication by anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes or its subsidiary companies with Morgan Stanley about the March 19 press release?

A. Specifically?
Q. Yes.
A. That I could tell you a date certain?
Q. That you could tell --
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any employee of MacAndrews & Forbes or any of its subsidiaries speaking to anyone at Morgan Stanley about the March 19 press release before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Who?
A. The process of which -- by which this transaction got negotiated in and consummated was an ongoing process that was basically done between Maher, the Coleman people and Morgan Stanley. It was an ongoing process. Those people were talking constantly.
The bulk of the representation and the bulk of the specifics as to the company were coming from Morgan Stanley so that this was not a unique thing.

This was a deal that was negotiated between those three parties so that this was an ongoing thing.
This press release, when we got this press release this press release said today it is possible that sales might be, the company stressed that sales of its products remained strong, the shortfall, if any, due to changes in inventory management or to patterns of the company's major retail customers.
This is -- the company further stated, based on the strengths of its new products and powerful brand names it remains highly confident about the overall sales outlooks for its products in the coming year.
This is a very, very bold press release. I look at this press release and I say, look, they might not be a 295 but things are going great and they are going to be way above 253 and wherever they are -- and this is going to be a dynamite year, and, by the way, so does Morgan Stanley.

Q. By the way, Morgan Stanley's name doesn't appear on the press release, does it?
A. No, but Morgan Stanley knew about the press release.
Q. Do you know that of personal knowledge?
A. Yes.
Q. We will cover that a little bit later. Let me go back to the question that I asked you. I heard you out.
A. Good.
Q. I have your position on it.
I would ask you if you could focus on the single question I asked.
It was as follows: Are you aware of any employee of MacAndrews & Forbes or its subsidiaries speaking to anyone at Morgan Stanley about the March 19 press release before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. I am aware of continuing dialogue on the part of people at MacAndrews & Forbes with people at Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley on the continuing performance of

0155

Page 138

Sunbeam during this period, yes.
Now, what this press release relates to is the performance of the company and there were discussions on the performance of the company.
Q. Can you tell me who after March 19 was having these -- strike that.
Do you have any personal knowledge of any of these ongoing discussions after March 19 and up to March 30 concerning Sunbeam's performance?
A. The specific dates?
Q. Yes.
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know who spoke to Morgan Stanley, if anyone?
A. It would have been amongst that group.
Q. I am not asking you who it would have been. I am asking you very specifically now do you know who -- and if you don't know you just tell me you don't know and we will move on.
A. Specifically I do not know.
Q. Okay.

Page 139

So it would be the -- if there were people talking to Morgan Stanley, they would have been the people you have identified for me as part of your group, Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Levin, Mr. Maher, and you have told us about yourself, correct?
A. Or Paul Shapiro.
Q. Or Paul Shapiro?
A. Or Bobby Jenkins, yes, all those people.
Q. J-E-N-K-I-N-S.
Q. After the issuance of the March 19 press release did you, you, personally now, ever speak -- withdrawn.
After the March 19 press release was issued and you saw it and up to the point of closing did you personally ever speak to anyone at Arthur Andersen about the matters in the press release?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any of your team speak to Arthur Andersen?
A. Not that I am aware of. I did not.
Q. Did you have your -- anyone -- strike that.

Page 140

Did you have any of your legal advisers speak to Arthur Andersen?
A. I don't know if we were permitted to speak to Arthur Andersen.
Q. That may be a different question.
Right now, do you know whether they did or did not?
A. If you are not permitted to then the answer is self-evident.
Q. It may well be.
So the answer may be they couldn't and they didn't but tell me whether you are aware of anyone speaking to them, yes or no?
A. No, I am not.
Q. Are you aware of anyone on your side of the team, the people you have identified for us on MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman, speaking to CSFB, your -- Coleman's investment banker about the subject matter of the press release of March 19 up until the point of closing on March 30?
A. Ask me the question again.

Q. That was a terrible question. It was long and convoluted so I will withdraw it and start over again.
Focusing on the period March 19 to March 30 are you aware of anyone from CSFB making any inquiry of Sunbeam about the subject matter of the March 19 press release?
A. Or of Morgan Stanley?
Q. Let's just start with Sunbeam. One at a time.
A. Specifically, no.
Q. I will ask you the same question with regard to CSFB making any inquiry of Morgan Stanley.
A. Specifically, no.
Q. You have mentioned in your answers several times the term "comfort letters" or "comfort letter." Do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. I take it you are familiar with what a comfort letter is?
A. No.
Q. Never heard of it?

Page 142

A. No.
Q. The first time you ever knew anything about -- strike that.
Are you telling the jury that the first instance you ever had any knowledge of a comfort letter was in connection with the transactions in this lawsuit?
A. I am saying that the first time I had any knowledge of a comfort level was about two weeks ago, not even two weeks ago.
Q. What was the circumstances of that?
A. When I first met with my lawyers.
Q. In all of the -- am I correct then that you -- strike that.
Is it your testimony to the jury in all of the billions of dollars of debt financings you have done over the years with your companies that you have never received in connection with a debt financing a copy of the comfort letter issued by auditors, is that your testimony?
A. Absolutely.
Q. Did you know -- withdrawn.

Page 143

Did you ever discuss with Mr. -- withdrawn.
MR. SOLOVY: So the record is clear, there is no question pending, correct.
MR. BEMIS: That is correct, Mr. Solovy. I am a little -- a little, I am taking a moment to try to shortcut a few things and get some documents so we can move it along a little faster.
MR. SOLOVY: Thank you.
MR. BEMIS: Although I think we are moving relatively quickly.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I am going to hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 128 in a previous deposition.
Do you have Exhibit 128 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. My first question: Is that your signature that appears above the date line November 1, 1996?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this a corporate record that you signed on behalf of one of the MacAndrews & Forbes companies?

Page 144

A. I don't see the name of the company.
Q. I think what you are going to find is they are actually attached after the signature pages.
Keep -- keep going through the document and we will have to go all the way, that is what I was looking for, to -- it is not paginated but it is called Schedule I.
If it helps you the Bates number on the page --
A. Schedule I. I see, okay.
Q. I will do this for the record even though you found it, DWP0014391.
We are on the same page?
A. Yes.
Q. This document is dated as of November 1, 1996. I would like -- briefly ask you a couple of questions about some of the corporations that are on the left-hand column.
The first one is Abco Canada

Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a company that was owned or controlled by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't know the company.
Q. You were listed as on either the board of directors or the executive committee?
A. Yes.
Q. With Mr. Gittis?
A. Yes.
Q. Yet -- but you don't recall now what that company did?
A. No.
Q. The next company is AGI Management Corporation and you are listed as on the board or the executive committee.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. What did that company do in 1996?
A. I don't know.

Q. What did that company do?
A. That company primarily owned our entertainment assets.
Q. Such as Panavision?
A. No. I believe it owned Compact Video. I forget what else was in there.
Q. Did it own the television stations, the television stations?
A. I don't believe so. I think it owned Compact Video.
Q. The next entity is Auto Holdings Inc. and you are listed on the board or the executive committee. Do you see that?

Q. What did that company do?
A. I think it owns the cars.
Q. Are those company cars?
A. Yes.

Page 147

Q. Is that similar to -- there has been some testimony about, and I don't know what the name, if I have it right, but Mr. Maher referred to it on his calendar as ROP Airlines. Is that a company that you own?
A. Never heard of it.
Q. Do you have a company that leases aircraft?
A. No.
Q. Provides any type of aircraft service?
A. There is a company called ROP Aviation.
Q. Maybe I misspoke or he wrote it down wrong.
What is ROP Aviation?
A. That is the company that owns one of the airplanes.
Q. One of the company airplanes used by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Used by the executives of MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. When Mr. Maher, for example, took ROP Aviation to go skiing in Aspen and he said he was on one of those aircraft, that would be one of the corporate aircraft you were referring to?
A. I think it only owns one.
Q. It only owns one?
A. I think so.
Q. The next company is BW Sale Corporation. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. You are not identified as on the board or the executive committee but Mr. Slovin is.
Do you know what that company did?
A. No.
Q. Do you know what the next company did, CFB Holdings, this one does have a comma, Inc., which you are on the board or the executive committee. Do you know what it does?

What does that company do?
A. That was one of the holding companies in line with owning the Coleman stock.
Q. The next two, Coleman (Parent) and Coleman Worldwide we have talked about. I won't ask you about those again.
Consolidated Cigar II Holdings Inc., is that different from Consolidated Cigars Inc.?
Maybe I have the name --

A. Yes.
Q. Is that the house in the Hamptons that you bought?
A. Yes.
Q. Then Creeks 2 Corporation, is that a corporation that you formed in connection with the purchase of your home in the Hamptons?
A. The lot next door to my home.
Q. Then there is two entities with the name -- starting with the name First Gibraltar Guarantor Corp.
What is that company?
A. First Gibraltar was our bank in Texas. I don't know what Guarantee Corp. or Holdings was. Holdings may have been the company that owned the operating company.

Page 151

Q. Is First Gibraltar the bank that you bought or your companies bought in Texas from the -- I want to say the FDIC but that is not right. You bought it from the government?

Q. After the S&L crisis?
A. That is correct.

Q. I may have misspoke.
I think I said you told me this morning you worked for MacAndrews & Forbes Group Incorporated. That is not correct. You told me you worked, you thought, for MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.
A. One or the other.

Page 156

Q. I just didn't want to make a mistake on the record if I could avoid it.

In the course of the bankruptcy there was also litigation that ensued, was there not?
A. Yes.
Q. That followed a rejection of a proposal that MacAndrews & Forbes or one of its entities made to inject additional capital into Marvel along with a restructuring of the structure of the company; is that correct?
A. I believe your timing is backwards.
Q. Backwards. It may well be.
Marvel Parent Holdings Inc., is that a holding company related to Marvel?
A. All of these companies were related to Marvel.

The other two companies own the other two buildings. That must be the 62nd Street and the other two buildings are on 63rd Street.
Q. The last item -- withdrawn.
The last corporation listed in this document is ZMAF Corporation and you are listed on the board or the executive committee.
What is that?
A. I don't know.

MR. SOLOVY: Yes. Good time.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Returning to the record. The time is 1:46 p.m.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I have handed you what we previously marked as Exhibit 426. I would like you to turn there to the page -- I will give you the Bates numbered page, Mr. Perelman, because it is not numbered.
A. Okay.
Q. If you look at the bottom right-hand corner.
A. Right.
Q. Look for the page that ends in 414. 414.
A. Yes.
Q. For the record, the full Bates numbered page is WLRK0019414.
MR. SOLOVY: Excuse me, Mr. Bemis. I must have the wrong document. What document?
MR. BEMIS: 426. Maybe we took it back from you. It is possible. I will give you another one. I just ask that you give them back.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MR. SOLOVY: What page are we looking at?
MR. BEMIS: The last four digits are 414. It is item 6A.
MR. SOLOVY: We are all set.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Mr. Perelman, are you on that page that we have identified as page --
A. I think so. Item 6A?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. Yes.
Q. The companies that are listed on the pages that follow, it goes on for -- it lists almost nine, ten pages of companies.
It ends on page -- let me read the Bates number in for you. It will be easier.
The last three digits on this schedule are -- is 434. Tell me when you are there.
A. Yes.
Q. Are these companies that are listed -- you can go back to 414 if you like -- all companies which one or more of your companies, either directly or through a holding company, owns either all or an interest in the companies?

A. A lot of these I never heard of so I can't tell you.
Q. I appreciate that.
There are a -- are there a lot of them on these pages that you do hold an interest in?
On the first page that we are looking at you have Revlon Commissary Sales, Revlon Consumer Products Corporation, Revlon Government Sales, Revlon Holdings Inc., Revlon International Corporation, Revlon Professional Products, Inc., Revlon Professional Inc. and then continuing on with additional Revlon companies on the next page, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Those, for example, are all companies that you through MacAndrews & Forbes own, control, directly or indirectly, in whole or in part; is that correct?

A. I answered you. I don't know.
Q. You don't know about the Revlon companies?
A. Some of these -- Revlon, I know, of course. Revlon Commissary Sales I never heard of. Revlon Consumer Corp. I never heard of. Revlon International Corp. I assume is their international company.
RIROS I never heard of. Amerinail I never heard of. Revlon Shanghai Limited I assume is their Shanghai company.
I mean, you know, Applied Science & Technology I never heard of.
Cosmetiques Holding -- there is a whole bunch of these I never heard of.
Q. I take it that since this form was filed by your attorney, Mr. Joram Salig, that you left it up to him or his superiors in the legal department to properly fill out these forms for the Federal Trade Commission?
A. Yes.
Q. You would stand by whatever your attorneys submitted to the Federal Trade Commission per this form?

A. I don't even know what question this list is answering.
Q. The ones that we were looking at on Schedule 6A are listed as item 6 on the form 6A. It is on page WLRK0019413.
A. Entities within persons filing notification.
Q. You asked me what those were. That is what this is.
A. I don't know what that means.
Q. We will leave it at that, to what your lawyers know, is that fair?
This is filed on your behalf?
A. Yes. I am not -- I am not saying it wasn't. I am saying it was.
Q. We will leave it that it was filed on your behalf.
You can hand that back to me.
A. Thank you.
Do you want this back too, sir?
Q. I can take it back if you like, sure.
Thank you.
One of the companies I don't

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

think that we talked about is Panavision.
Does MacAndrews & Forbes own an interest in Panavision?
A. Yes.
Q. When did it acquire that interest or its first interest is probably fairer?
A. I think it has only got one interest. I think in 1997, '98, right around there.
Q. From one of the forms I looked at it appears that MacAndrews & Forbes or one of its other holding companies owns about 72 percent of Panavision; is that correct?
A. I believe it is in the 90s.
Q. 90s now.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, would you mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 244 a Schedule 13D prepared for Sunbeam Corporation by Barry F. Schwartz, MAFCO Holdings Inc., dated June 14, 1998?
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 244 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have in front of you MS 244?

A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. We are moving forward in time now to June 14, 1998 based on the document that you are looking at right now.
If you look at item number 1 you are identified as the reporting person, Ronald O. Perelman. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. There is also a schedule on page -- it would be the third page which lists the reporting persons as MAFCO Holdings Inc., do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. I asked you earlier about MAFCO Holdings Inc. and whether you remembered it. You said you did not.
Does that refresh your recollection of what MAFCO Holdings is?
A. No.
Q. Then there is, the third page is another reporting entity and that is Coleman (Parent) Holdings. We have talked about that company. That is the plaintiff here, right?

A. Yes.
Q. When we look at item number 2 it lists out a number of companies.
A. Where are you?
Q. It would be the page numbered 5 in the center. The pagination is not always easy to follow.
Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. At least as of June of 1998 were you, as described in this paragraph, were you the chairman of the board of Revlon Inc.?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you the chairman of the board of Meridian Sports Incorporated?
A. Yes.
Q. Meridian Sports Incorporated was the boat building company we talked about?
A. Yes.
Q. As chairman of the board of Revlon Inc., Revlon Inc. had many subsidiaries below it?

A. Yes.
Q. Both in the United States and overseas?
A. Right. I was not executive chairman of the board.
Q. What is executive chairman of the board versus chairman?
A. I was not an executive officer of the company. I was just a member of the board.
Q. MS 244 also lists you as the chairman of the executive committee of the boards of directors of Consolidated Cigar Holdings.; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That is the -- that company -- withdrawn.
That was the company that distributes cigars?
A. Yes.
Q. It doesn't grow -- grow tobacco for cigars? It buys tobacco and manufactures cigars and sells them?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you still own an interest --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015520

Page 174

does MacAndrews & Forbes still own that today?
A. No.
Q. When was it sold?
A. Three, four years ago.
Q. The next company that you are listed as the chairman of the executive committee of the boards of directors is M&F Worldwide Corp. That is the flavoring company?
A. I think it says I am chairman of the executive committee of the board.
Q. If I misspoke I apologize.
The way it reads is chairman of the executive committee of the boards of directors.
What does it mean to be chairman of the executive committee of the boards of directors?
A. It is a committee of the board. It is a non-executive member of the board.
Q. The executive committee of the board, does it act in the absence of the full board of directors?
A. Depending on what the board of directors authorizes us to do.

Page 175

Q. In the case of these companies where you are on the executive committee of the board of directors, in all of those instances do the executive committees act in the absence of the board?
A. Only when specifically told by the board to do so.
Q. Could that be -- is that sometimes on an instance-by-instance basis or -- as opposed to, say, a threshold basis?
A. My recollection is that it is always on an instance-by-instance basis.
Q. Then you are also listed as chairman of the executive committee of the board of directors of Panavision, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Panavision -- strike that.
Is Panavision the company that leases cameras for the making of movies?
A. And television shows, yes.
Q. It has indeed -- it does not sell cameras as I understand it. They lease it based on their own proprietary technology?

Page 176

A. A little bit of sales but it is primarily leasing.
Q. This is the same Panavision that I believe you explained to me MacAndrews & Forbes holds approximately 90 percent of the common stock today?
A. I believe so.
Q. Then all of these companies list their principal address as 35 East 62nd Street, New York, New York 10021 where we are today, is that right?
A. No.
Q. No. What did I -- do I have the address wrong? I thought that is where we were.
A. Yes, but it doesn't say that.
Q. I thought it says the -- I apologize. You are right.
It says the principal business address of Mr. Perelman is 35 East 62nd Street, New York, New York; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Then we have MAFCO Holdings listed below that.

Page 177

My understanding is you don't know what that company is, right?
A. Correct.
Q. It says, however, that --
A. I know it is one of our holding companies. I don't know where it fits into the chain.
Q. Who keeps track of your companies, where the various companies fit into the chain of ownership? Who is in charge of doing that?
A. The lawyers.
Q. That would be Mr. Schwartz?
A. And Mr. Gittis.
Q. And Mr. Gittis.
As I understand it, reading this form, MAFCO Holdings owns 83 percent of Revlon, is that right?
A. As of this time, yes.
Q. That is Revlon Inc., the ultimate Revlon company?
A. The operating company, yes.
Q. So -- even though you don't know where MAFCO Holdings fits in the ownership chain you ultimately are the owner of either MAFCO Holdings or whatever company owns MAFCO Holdings, correct?

015521

Page 178

A. Correct.
Q. Then MAFCO Holdings is said to own 72 percent of Panavision. That is the same Panavision we talked about earlier, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Then there is percentage ownership, 65 percent of Meridian Sports, that is correct as of this time, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And likewise, MAFCO Holdings, therefore, ultimately through yourself owns 64 percent of Consolidated Cigar Holdings Inc., right?
A. Say that again. How did you put it?
Q. Maybe I misspoke.
As I understand it MAFCO Holdings has a 64 percent beneficial ownership interest in Consolidated Cigar Holdings, at least as of the time of this document?
A. That is correct, yes.
Q. MAFCO Holdings at least as of

Page 179

1998 in June had a 39 percent interest in M&F Worldwide.
It says, assuming conversion of certain preferred stock, is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. MAFCO Holdings also is shown as having an 80 percent interest in California Federal Bank.
Is that the same California Federal Bank we discussed earlier in your testimony today? We talked about Gibraltar. I thought we talked about California Federal.
A. We did. We talked about a couple of banks. One of them is the one we talked about before.
Q. Let's make sure we are on the same page.
At least as of 1998, June of the date of this document, MAFCO Holdings owned 80 percent of California Federal Bank?
A. Correct.
Q. And the principal offices of MAFCO Holdings is -- has the same address as your principal place of business, 35

Page 180

East 62nd Street, where we are today?
A. That is correct.
Q. Have you ever been to the principal executive offices of Coleman (Parent) Holdings which is said to be at 5900 North Andrews Avenue in Fort Lauderdale, Florida?
A. If it is the same offices that are shared with Consolidated Cigar, I have been there.
Q. You may return that to me. We are finished with that.
I asked you at one point this morning whether you received news releases, we may have used the term press releases, from the Bloomberg service and I think you said you did, is that right?
A. No, I didn't say that. You asked me if I had Bloomberg.
Q. You are correct. Do you have Bloomberg?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any other financial reporting services?
A. Other than -- nothing other than what comes on Bloomberg, no.

Page 181

Q. Do you have, your companies, have a subscription of some kind to a clipping service that follows news about either companies that you own or companies that you may have an interest in?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. A number of witnesses have said there is a clippings package that was circulated within MacAndrews & Forbes around 1997, 1998 which covered news stories about your companies or companies that you had an interest in. You are not familiar with that?
A. Yes.
Q. What is that called?
A. What do you mean what is that called?
Q. What is the service called?
A. I don't think there is a service.
Q. How are the clippings accumulated?
A. I think one of the secretaries.
Q. One of the secretaries here?
A. Yes.

Q. Does she have -- does she review on a regular basis certain periodicals for clippings?
A. I don't know.
Q. Who is responsible for her work?
A. I don't know who does it.
Q. You don't know who does the clippings?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you get this package?
A. Yes.
Q. How often did you get this -- may I call it a clippings package for ease of use?
A. Sure.
Q. Did you receive the clippings package in 1998?
A. I would assume so.
Q. How often was the clippings package circulated?
A. When we get it -- I don't know when it was started but when we get it we get it everyday.
Q. In 1998 you got it everyday?
A. I don't recall if we had it in

Page 183

1998. If we did have it in 1998 we got it everyday. From the point it was instituted within the company we got it everyday.
Q. Who instituted it within the company?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you still do it -- strike that.
Do you still receive the clippings packages today?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it done on a daily basis?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it something you receive in the morning when you come in or when you go home at night?
A. Sometime during the day.
Q. Some time during the day.
Can you give me a general description of what is in the clippings services by subject?
Withdrawn. Terrible question.
Would you just tell us what is in the clippings package recognizing that the articles will change day by day but what is supposed to be in there?

A. Articles about companies that we have interest in, articles about people we have interest in, articles about charities we have interest in, just -- anything that would touch us on a whole variety of levels, charities, financial, social.
Q. In 1998 did the clippings service -- withdrawn.
In 1997 towards the latter part of the year at least did the clippings service include clippings on Sunbeam?
A. I told you earlier, I don't recall whether it was in place then seven years ago or eight years ago. If it was there would have been clippings on Sunbeam.
Q. Would it have included clippings on Coleman?
A. It would have included clippings on all of our companies.
Q. Would it have included clippings on Al Dunlap, for example?
A. Yes.
Q. Did the --
A. Maybe not in 1997. Sometime in

Page 185

1998 after we did the transaction, but I am -- I can't recall specifically what we got in 1997 and 1998. I know what we get today. I know what we have got for the last several years.
I don't know if it was instituted, this clipping package, back then but if it were it would have included as it does today all of our companies that we have interest in.
Q. Does the clipping service include --
A. Clipping package.
Q. Sorry, clipping package, does it include clippings from financial publications such as the Wall Street Journal?
A. Yes.
Q. Barron's?
A. Yes.
Q. Business Week?
A. Yes.
Q. Fortune?
A. Yes.
Q. Analyst reports that become available on companies that you have an interest?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't believe so.
Q. Would it also include Bloomberg?
A. Possibly.
Q. You have Bloomberg, I take it, online; is that correct?
A. What do you mean?
Q. You can access Bloomberg electronically. Bloomberg has a service you you can access electronically if you have their service.
A. No.
Q. You don't have it?
A. I don't know how to use it.
Q. Those are two different things.
A. You asked if I can access it.
Q. Does your company have it?
A. Yes.
Q. Someone in your company knows how to use it?
A. Yes.
Q. In 1998 did you have people in your company who had access to analysts, I will refer to them as Wall Street analysts, who were following particular companies?

A. I don't know what that means.
Q. What is it you don't understand?
A. Access and analysts.
Q. You don't know what a Wall Street analyst is?
A. Is that what you mean?
Q. A Wall Street analyst. Do you understand that?
A. Yes. I understand Wall Street analyst.
Q. I think we have done a pretty good job communicating.
Did you have people such as Mr. Nesbitt or Mr. Maher who had the ability to pick up the phone and talk to particular analysts who were following a company you were interested in?
A. I don't know the answer to that.
Q. Let me show you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley 167.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 167 in front of you?
A. Yes.

Q. You are shown as the addressee of this document. It is dated May 20, 1998.
Did you receive it?
A. I would assume so, yes.
Q. If you received it would you have read it?
A. Yes. I may not have read every page of it but I would have read it.
Q. By the way -- withdrawn.
Mr. Nesbitt has testified that he prepared this document in May of 1998. He was an analyst for MacAndrews & Forbes, one of your companies, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. He indicates -- withdrawn.
He states in the first paragraph of his memorandum that he spoke with six -- not six -- with the following individuals this morning and he lists then three analysts?
A. Right.
Q. Nick Heyman at Prudential, Jay Gibbons at Merrill Lynch and Scott Graham at Oppenheimer, do you see that?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you ask Mr. Nesbitt to call these analysts for their summary of opinions on Sunbeam?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you ask someone to have either Mr. Nesbitt or someone else call these analysts and obtain their opinions on, or thoughts, if you excuse me, on Sunbeam?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. In 1998 before the closing of the merger agreement and after its public announcement -- withdrawn.
In 1998 before the closing of the merger agreements was there any reason why Mr. Nesbitt could not have called analysts such as Mr. Heyman, Mr. Gibbons or Mr. Graham to get their thoughts on Sunbeam?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I don't know any of these analysts. I don't know what his relationship with any of these analysts are. I don't know how -- what they know, what they don't know.

I mean, that is like asking me how long a piece of string is. I just don't know.

Q. Let me try it a different way to see if I can make the question easier for you.

Did MacAndrews & Forbes have any policies in place in 1998 that prohibited an analyst like Mr. Nesbitt from calling an analyst like Mr. Heyman, Mr. Gibbons or Mr. Graham and asking their thoughts on a company like Sunbeam?

A. There was no policy against it. I don't know what the point would have been but there was no policy against it.

Q. You do not know what the point would have been in early 1998 for Mr. Nesbitt or Mr. Maher to speak to analysts?

A. This is May of 1998 and I can't speak to what he was trying to find out. I didn't tell him to do this.

Page 191

Q. Let me try to back up to my question.

My question is: Before May 30 of 1998 --

A. May 20.

Q. I am not talking about this document now. You can keep it in front of you as a point of reference.

A. Okay.

Q. Before May 30, 1998 in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam -- Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, it is your testimony that you can't see any point in Mr. Nesbitt calling analysts to discuss with the analyst, the Wall Street analysts, their views on Sunbeam?

A. No. That is not my point.

Q. What is your testimony then?

A. I think there was a point in talking to the analysts in getting their input.

I don't know what his point was at this moment in time in talking to these three people. I never heard of these three people. I don't know who they are. I can't speak to their -- to their depth of knowledge on Sunbeam. I never heard of these people before.

Q. Can you tell me of a single analyst that anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes spoke to before March 30, 1998 about their thoughts, that is, the analyst thoughts on Sunbeam?

A. I couldn't tell you.

Q. You can set that -- I will take that back for me. We will talk a little bit more about it later.

A. Okay.

Q. Let's turn now to the actual participants in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction from the MacAndrews side.

You told me earlier that your top tier team, if you will, was Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Maher, Mr. Gittis and yourself, right?

A. No. The team that was most involved was Maher and Nesbitt.

Q. Okay. Then they would have reported to you and Mr. Gittis; is that right?

A. Either me or Gittis, yes.

Page 193

Q. Ultimately if there was a report to Mr. Gittis would he then usually talk to you about it?

A. Yes.

Q. He would seek your counsel as well as any decisions that needed ultimately to be made?

A. If he thought that necessary, yes.

Q. I take it that you have a good working relationship with Mr. Gittis, don't you?

A. Yes.

Q. You are very close friends, are you not?

A. Yes.

Q. You have been business associates and close friends for years?

A. Yes.

Q. Is Mr. Gittis, for lack of a better term, second in command at MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. I don't think we have one second in command.

Q. Is there anyone on equal level

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015525

with him within MacAndrews & Forbes that reports to you?
A. I think we are all like at the same level.
Q. Mr. Maher was at the same level as Mr. Gittis?
A. No. He was a level below.
Q. What was Mr. Gittis' role in the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction as specifically as you can for me please?
A. It would have been an overview role in the due diligence. It would have been an overview role in the documentation.
Q. When you used the term "overview" here you are referring to overview, for example, Mr. Maher, right?
A. Whoever was involved, either Mr. Maher or Mr. Levin or the lawyers or -- it would be an overview role rather than a direct operating or functioning role.
Q. You didn't -- withdrawn.
You used the term "due diligence." Did Mr. Gittis have responsibility for due diligence as you have described it in this overview capacity before the signing of the merger agreements on February 28, 1998?

A. He didn't have responsibility for it but he was in the process.
Q. Did he have the overview responsibility in the process in that period?
A. "Responsibility" is the wrong word. He had some overview awareness of the due diligence process.
Q. Did he have this overview awareness of the due diligence process in the period after February 28 and continuing to March 30, 1998 at the closing?
A. Whatever it was it would have continued, yes.
MR. BEMIS: Could I ask, how are we doing on sound?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The sound is great but you have probably 12 minutes or so.
MR. BEMIS: We are going to change the tape as long as we have stopped for a second.
THE WITNESS: Sure.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This marks the end of tape number two. The time is 2:24 p.m.
(Recess)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Returning to the record. The time is 2:26 p.m.. This marks the beginning of tape number three.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Was it Mr. Gittis who had the first communications with Sunbeam about a possible Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. I had the first communications with Morgan Stanley about a possible Sunbeam-Coleman transaction.
Q. When was that?
A. Sometime in January.
Q. Of 1998?
A. 1998.
Q. There were -- there was -- we know there was a meeting at your home on December 18, 1997 where Mr. Dunlap --
A. That is correct.
Q. Came to your house, correct?
A. Yes.

Q. So somebody had communications with -- before 1998?
A. That was set up. That meeting was set up between Michael Price, I believe, and Howard Gittis.
Q. Is it fair to say that Michael Price actually contacted Mr. Gittis and told Mr. Gittis that Mr. Dunlap had an interest in acquiring Coleman?
A. I am not sure what he exactly said but whatever it was it developed into a meeting that we had at my house.
Q. With that backdrop is it fair to say that Mr. Gittis was indeed the first contact with Sunbeam with regard to the possible Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. First of all, the contact was with Michael Price, not with Sunbeam, if you want to be specific about the first contact.
Secondly --
Q. Fair enough.
Could I ask you, let me try to get the question better phrased for you. I understand what is your confusion.

With regard to MacAndrews & Forbes --
A. Right.
Q. -- and your people, was the first contact with MacAndrews & Forbes about a Sunbeam-Coleman transaction Michael Price contacting Mr. Gittis about an interest that Sunbeam had in Coleman?
A. I don't know.
Q. Is that the first one you are aware of?
A. I don't know what Michael Price said to Gittis when he called him to set up the meeting.
Q. But you do know that Michael Price did contact Mr. Gittis in 1997 before the meeting that took place at your house on December 18, 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. It was that initial contact with -- between Mr. Price and Mr. Gittis that led to the meeting at your house?
A. That is correct.
Q. Before the meeting at your house on December -- in December 1998 had Mr.

Maher been given any assignment with respect to the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction by you?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Going forward, we will come back to this meeting at your house in Palm Beach. I would ask just a couple of questions about Mr. Maher.
When Mr. -- withdrawn.
Mr. Maher had, as you put it, the responsibility for some of the negotiations and due diligence on the transaction.
That responsibility continued on through the closing, did it not, through March 30?
A. To the extent that it was required, yes.
Q. Mr. Maher, given his position in these negotiations once it was assigned to him, the information flow as general would have gone to Mr. Gittis and then ultimately to you, is that fair?
A. Probably, yes.
Q. Mr. Maher left MacAndrews & Forbes to do something else in about the year 2000; is that your recollection?

A. Approximately.
Q. Why did he leave?
A. I think he wanted to just go out on his own.
Q. Did you ask him to leave?
A. No.
Q. Did you suggest that he leave?
A. No.
Q. Did you tell him that you were in any way unhappy with his work on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. No.
Q. Were you happy with his work on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you think he did everything that he should have done as part of his due diligence?
A. Yes.
Q. As you sit here today you have absolutely no complaints about Mr. Maher's work on the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction; is that fair?
A. Not that I am aware of.

Q. Mr. Schwartz sitting here with us today, Mr. Schwartz was your MacAndrews & Forbes executive vice president and general counsel at the time of the negotiations, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Was he effectively your in-house legal adviser in connection with the transaction?
A. We had -- I guess you could say that, yes.
Q. Was Mr. Schwartz responsible for coordinating his work with Wachtell, Lipton, your outside counsel?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: What was the question?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me ask it again.
Was Mr. Schwartz responsible for coordinating his work with Wachtell, Lipton, your outside counsel?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. What is it you don't understand?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015527

I will see if I can fix it.
A. The question --
Q. I understand that. What is it within the question? We understand who Wachtell, Lipton and we understand who Barry Schwartz is. What is it you don't understand?
A. The way you put the question.
Q. Who is responsible for -- strike that.
Was Mr. Schwartz responsible for communicating on legal matters with your outside counsel Wachtell, Lipton?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't understand it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Can you be of any help to me?
A. What is he communicating, the weather? I don't understand what you are asking me.
Q. I would have thought it would have been obvious. I will try it again.
Was Mr. Schwartz responsible for communicating with Wachtell, Lipton with regard to the Coleman transaction during the period the parties were in negotiations?

A. Communicating what from whom to who?
Q. Legal matters.
A. From whom to whom about what?
Q. Either direction in connection with the Coleman transaction.
A. I don't understand what you are saying.
Q. Mr. Schwartz was in charge of legal matters. I will tell you what. I will withdraw -- I will let the matter stay where it is. We will let the jury determine if you understood it.
A. I can tell you whether I understand it.
I don't think anybody listening to that question could understand it. If you want to ask a question that I can understand I will be happy to answer whatever question that you want but to ask me a question that is so convoluted that you refuse to answer what you mean in the question either because you can't or you won't, that is sort of silly.

Q. Are you all done? I don't want to interrupt you.
A. Yes, I am done. Thank you.
Q. Mr. Drapkin, Donald Drapkin, what role did he have, if any, in the negotiations?
A. I don't believe any.
Q. Did he have any responsibility for due diligence aside -- withdrawn.
Did he have any responsibility for due diligence?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Slotkin, what was his position during the negotiation in 1998?
A. I believe he was chief financial officer.
Q. Did he have any responsibility with regard to -- strike that.
Did he have any responsibilities -- withdrawn.
Did he have any responsibilities in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?

A. I don't believe so.
Q. That would include both negotiations and due diligence, correct?
A. He may have been involved in some of the due diligence and he may have been involved in some of the negotiations but he did not have the responsibility.
Q. When you say "he," then what do you mean by "he may have been involved?"
A. I mean he may have sat through some of the meetings, some of the due diligence meetings. He may have participated in some of the negotiations but he did not have the responsibility for such.
Q. I would like to ask you a couple of questions now about Will Nesbitt. I know we have talked about his role reporting to Mr. Maher.
Did you have any direct communications with Mr. Nesbitt about the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction either face-to-face or in writing?
A. I am sure I did.

Q. Can you think of anything?
A. Specific?
Q. Specific, yes, sir.
A. No.
Q. Am I correct that Mr. Nesbitt was the only in-house analyst that worked on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Along with Mr. Maher.
Q. Now I would like to ask you a couple of quick questions on Mr. Levin. It is my understanding that at least in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction, that he would have been the most senior person at Coleman working on the transaction; is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. Then backing him up at Coleman, he had Paul E. Shapiro, the -- I think he was the executive vice president and general counsel?
A. Yes.
Q. If, whatever due diligence was done by Coleman, it would have fallen under Mr. Levin's responsibility being at the top of the Coleman chain?
A. I would assume so, yes.

Q. Did Mr. -- in your -- withdrawn.
In your view did Mr. Ginstling have any role in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. Mr. Ginstling is a tax attorney so I can't answer that.
Q. He is in-house tax attorney for you, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. I take it that he -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Ginstling provide tax advice to MacAndrews & Forbes in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Possibly. I don't know specifically.
Q. Are you aware of any -- of Mr. Ginstling participating in any due diligence of Sunbeam by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Specifically, no.
Q. Mr. Dickes, did he have any role in the negotiations?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Was his position at the time of the negotiations secretary of MacAndrews &

Forbes?
A. I believe so.
Q. He is an attorney as well, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Does he report directly to Mr. Schwartz?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did all of the attorneys in 1998 at MacAndrews & Forbes report to -- who were in-house report to Mr. Schwartz?
A. I believe so.
Q. Then Mr. Schwartz reported to you?
A. No.
Q. Who did he report to, Mr. Gittis?
A. Gittis.
Can I make it a little cooler in here?
Q. You can.
I would like to ask you to focus on the period of, say, January and February of 1998 if you could right after the holidays. Are you there?
A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved, and by "you" I mean MacAndrews & Forbes, involved in any financing transactions, debt financing transactions with regard to Revlon or one of its subsidiaries?
A. Was Revlon involved? I don't recall.
Q. Are you familiar with a debt offering of about $900 million in notes in February by, I believe it is Revlon Escrow Corporation which I think is a subsidiary of REV Holdings Inc.?
A. No.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 410. This has been previously marked in a deposition so I will ask the court reporter if he could just hand it to you.
A. Yes.
Q. Have you -- this document was printed off of the so-called EDGAR system.
You are familiar with that?
A. The internet thing?
Q. The internet thing for the government where you can get securities filings off the internet.

A. Right.
Q. The printing and the pagination can be a little bit difficult. I will try to direct you to the right places.
If you will look at the second page of the document, it is the first page, I think, of the actual filing.
It is the form 10-K for a company called REV Holdings Inc.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. REV Holdings Inc. is a company that is actually the holding company for one or more of the Revlon companies, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And if you will turn to, now, to -- it will say page 4 of 114 in the upper right-hand corner?
A. Right.
Q. And it will be -- I want you to look at the last paragraph which begins on February 2, 1998.

A. Yes.
Q. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. According to this paragraph Revlon Escrow Corp., an affiliate of products corporation, which is defined up above, I believe, as Revlon consumer products corporation, issued and sold in a private placement $650 million aggregate principal amount of 8-5/8 percent senior subordinated notes due 2008 and $250 million aggregate principal amount of 8-1/8 percent senior notes due 2006."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. You were aware of that transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. In February of 1998 -- strike that.
Did this transaction for the issuance of $900 million in notes begin sometime in January or was it in 1997?
A. I am not sure. I don't know.
Q. Did you work on this transaction?

Page 212

A. No.
Q. Were you aware of it going on?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was responsible for this transaction, Mr. Maher?
A. No, the people at Revlon.
Q. Was this transaction by Revlon Escrow Corp. issuing $900 million in notes a, if you will, a refinancing of certain outstanding notes?
A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. If you will continue reading it says the -- I am reading from the same paragraph.
A. Right.
Q. "The proceeds from the sale of the notes were used to finance the redemption of product corporation's 550 million aggregate principal amount of 10-1/2 percent senior subordinated notes due 2003 and will be used to finance the redemption of products corporation's 260 million aggregate principal amount of 9-3/8 senior notes due 2001.
Do you see that?

Page 213

A. Yes.
Q. Having seen that, am I reading that correctly that the notes sale by Revlon Escrow was used to retire certain existing notes and replace them with the new notes?
A. In part, yes.
Q. In addition to that it also raised some new capital, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition to -- you can set that one aside.
In 1998, this same time period, January through, say, March, were you having some discussions with Gucci about a possible acquisition?
A. No.
Q. Were you discussing anything with Gucci?
A. No.
Q. Were you having meetings with Gucci?
A. No.

MR. SOLOVY: I don't know which one we are dealing with.
MR. BEMIS: 171.
MR. SOLOVY: It will be quicker if you give it to me. I won't have to rifle through the whole pile again.

Q. Do you see the entry at 11:00 a.m. for Gordon Rich? Is that Gail Souther? Do I have the name correct?

Page 215

A. I don't know her.
Q. You don't know --
A. No.
Q. Then there is HG; is that Mr. Gittis?
A. Yes.
Q. Then JM, is that Mr. Maher?
A. I would assume so.
Q. It says Re: Gucci?
A. Yes.
Q. What does that refer to?
A. I assume Gucci.
Q. Can you be anymore helpful than that?
A. Not specifically, no. Generally, I don't believe we had any conversations with Gucci at all.
We did have conversations with Morgan Stanley who represented Gucci who came to us and asked whether we would be interested in doing some transaction with Gucci and we indicated that we might be and I believe that that was the extent of it.
I don't believe we ever met with Gucci. I don't believe we ever talked to

Page 216

Gucci and that would be the substance of it.
Our Gucci conversations were with Morgan Stanley.
Q. Mr. Gordon Rich is on the list of people shown at 11:00 a.m., correct?
A. Yes.
Q. This is the same Gordon Rich from Credit Suisse First Boston, the investment banking firm?
A. Yes.
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes retain in any fashion Credit Suisse First Boston to look at a possible Gucci transaction?
A. Retain, no.
Q. Did you ask them to attend at least these initial discussions?
A. No.
Q. Why were they there?
A. I am sure we wanted to ask them a couple questions about Gucci.
Q. Did they represent Gucci?
A. No. Morgan Stanley did.
Q. So how -- did you pay Mr. Rich for his time, that is, MacAndrews & Forbes?

Page 217

A. I certainly hope not. He didn't do anything. Nothing happened.
Q. When you say nothing happened so you don't pay, what do you mean by that?
A. Because investment bankers normally work on a transaction fee and if there is no transaction consummated then they don't get a fee.
Q. That is customary in the business?
A. I would assume so. It is customary with us.
Q. In all your experience with investment bankers, with MacAndrews & Forbes, your fee structure with them is such that no transaction, no fee?
A. Yes.
Q. In your opinion as a sophisticated investor as you described yourself earlier, are you --
A. I said I was not a sophisticated investor.
Q. You said you weren't a sophisticated businessman?
A. No.

Q. I appreciate that.
A. Okay.
Q. I sincerely do.
Is the fee structure -- withdrawn.
Is the fee arrangement that you described that MacAndrews & Forbes does -- that is success, success fees for transactions in your view customary in the mergers and acquisitions business in New York?
A. I don't think anybody does it any way else.
Q. How long did the Gucci discussions -- strike that.
Were there discussions with Gucci after the November 25 discussions shown on your daily cards in Exhibit MS 171?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Thank you. I may have misspoke. Let me try again.
Were there any internal discussions about a transaction with Gucci after the November 25, 1997 entry on your daily cards?
A. I can't recall. If any other discussions came about they were instigated by Morgan Stanley.
Q. You can set your cards aside.
A. Do you want them back?
Q. Hold on to them.
The court reporter will hand you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 86 which is a portion of Mr. Maher's calendar as produced in the litigation for 1997 and 1998.
Do you have that exhibit in front of you?

A. I am here.
Q. Do you see the entry for 11:30 a.m.?
A. Yes.
Q. The reference is to HG/ROP. That is Mr. Gittis and yourself, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And Gordon Rich is from Credit Suisse First Boston, right?
Q. The HG refers to a meeting in Mr. Gittis' office, right?
A. Yes.
Q. It says Re: Gucci and Coleman. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you participate in this meeting?
A. Not that I recall; possibly though.
Q. At least internally as of -- is it fair to say as of Tuesday, January 27 there were still some internal discussions at MacAndrews & Forbes about Gucci?

Page 221

A. Possibly, but they could be -- I don't know what they would be.
Q. Turn to the entry for February 11. Tell me when you are there.
A. I am here.
Q. There is a reference to a meeting at 12:00 noon with Bill Reid. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And then yourself, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And then Mr. Gittis again?
A. Yes.
Q. And WGN I believe is Mr. Nesbitt. It is Re: Gucci. That is in your office here in this building, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend that meeting?
A. Possibly. I don't recall the meeting but Bill Reid as I said represented Gucci from Morgan Stanley and they brought us the idea of doing something with Gucci.
I mean it was not a freestanding idea. It was an idea generated by Morgan Stanley as to whether we wanted to make an investment in Gucci.

Q. Is there something improper about Morgan Stanley contacting you about an investment in Gucci?
A. No. We were very close to Morgan Stanley.
Q. Just curious the way you answered the question.
A. It was routine.
Q. Routine.
What was the outcome of the discussions about Gucci, whether it be with Morgan Stanley or internally within MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Nothing.
Q. Nothing means a transaction never came to pass?
A. Nothing ever happened.
Q. That is what I meant by nothing came to pass. Nothing happened?
A. Nothing happened.
Q. You just talked but nothing happened?
A. Correct.
Q. You may, if you would, hand that back to me and I will put it away.

During the January, February, March period 1998 was MacAndrews & Forbes involved in any transactions regarding Panavision?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. I don't know the specific dates but MacAndrews & Forbes I believe in 1997 purchased Panavision.
Q. Was there -- did Mr. Maher play a role in the negotiations concerning the purchase of Panavision?
A. A bit, yes.
Q. Was there another person who had a bigger part in the negotiations?
A. Joe Page had a role in the negotiations and I believe Bill Bevins had a role in the negotiations.
What was the date of that?
Q. Which date are you asking me?
A. The transaction with Panavision.
Q. Let me get the prospectus. I can tell you. I want to make sure I have the date right.

I think the prospectus was filed on May 6 of 1998. Let me double-check it. MS 355 please. I only have one extra copy of this one.
I will have the court reporter mark it and feel free to look at it. If you need any extra time I have no objection.
Somehow of all these documents we ended up with only two of these.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter would you please mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 335 a multi-page document which is the Panavision, Inc. proxy statement and prospectus for the combined annual meeting to be held on June 4, 1998?
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 335 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I have handed you what the reporter has marked as MS 335.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. You are free, of course, to look at anything you want in the document but as usual the first few pages contain a summary of a lot of the detail in the back.

If you would like to look at that you can or I can ask you a few questions or I can try to answer the question which you originally asked which I have now forgot.
Do you remember what it was?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
My first question is: When did you start negotiating, that is, MacAndrews & Forbes, about a transaction with Panavision?
A. We signed the deal in December of 1997.
Q. It looks like December 18, 1997.
A. It says here December 17. December 18, okay.
Q. It is dated as of the 18th. Okay?
A. I assume it was prior to that.
Q. After -- were you done? I didn't mean to interrupt you.
A. Yes.
Q. After the deal -- withdrawn.

Page 226

After the agreement was signed as of December 18, they call it the recapitalization agreement here, there were some -- there were some renegotiations that took place, were there not, over the price?
A. Possibly.
Q. If you look down -- just excuse me for one second. There is no question pending.
In connection with the Panavision transaction was there an amendment to the original recapitalization agreement that is referred to here such that the price that was being offered in the recapitalization changed?
A. Possibly. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall that during the -- withdrawn.
Do you recall that after the signing of the original recapitalization agreement that MacAndrews & Forbes concluded that the projected performance for Panavision for its most recent quarter, I believe it was the fourth quarter of 1997, was going to be below expectations?

Page 227

A. Do I recall that, no.
Q. In any event, the transaction eventually did close, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you remember when it closed?
A. No.
Q. What was your involvement in the transaction, that is, the Panavision transaction?
A. I am looking here at the summary. It looks like in the background of the merger section that this started in early 1997 -- in early September of 1997 that I had a meeting October 8 of 1997 with the Panavision people and that we submitted -- it looks like we negotiated a transaction November 3 and 4 of 1997.
Q. When did -- the transaction actually closed in 1998, correct?
A. I don't know when it was closed.
Q. Let's set that aside for right now and you can hand that back to me. I may come back to that later. I will give this back to you.

Page 228

Turn to the page, sir --
A. What page?
Q. I am going to give it to you. We will use the top page numbers. It says 37 of 155.
A. Yes.
Q. I think if you were actually looking at the document itself I believe it would be page 29.
Now, according to this description it was Mr. Maher who made the first inquiry concerning a possible transaction involving Panavision stock, right; is that correct?
MR. SOLOVY: Where are you reading from?
THE WITNESS: What page are you on?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I am looking at page 36 of 155 and if I said 37 that is because I was looking at that page at the time.
A. Yes. Okay.
Q. Turn over to page 36.
A. Yes. I see it. It is 36.

Page 229

Q. I am correct that in September of 1997 it was Mr. Maher who was MAFCO's representative who made the first inquiry about MAFCO purchasing Panavision?
A. Yes.
Q. The contact with Warburg is because Warburg owned something like 80 some odd percent of Panavision?
A. A big percentage.
Q. A big percentage.
It was kind of like your ownership of Coleman. You -- in that sense. They were the largest and controlling shareholder of Panavision at this time; is that right?
A. I don't know what it was like but they were the largest shareholder.
Q. Then, at least in the description of the negotiations, it looks -- it continues again on page 36 of 155 that Mr. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt met with representatives of Panavision to discuss the company's operations, financial conditions, strategies and prospects.
Is that consistent with your 015534

Page 230

recollection of events?
A. Not specifically but that would not be unreasonable.
Q. It continues -- we are down now to the last paragraph on page 36 of 155, and that paragraph states that you, Mr. Perelman, met with the -- with various executives of Panavision to discuss MacAndrews & Forbes' interest in Panavision.
Is that --
A. Yes.
Q. Is that accurate; you had that meeting?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Then Mr. Maher requested, according to the summary in the prospectus, Mr. Maher requested due diligence materials be provided to MAFCO.
I assume that is MacAndrews & Forbes or one of its holding companies?
A. Right.
Q. Is that consistent with your recollection of events?
A. No, but it would not be

inconsistent.
Q. The company, that is, Panavision, according to the prospectus, agreed to provide the information providing MacAndrews & Forbes or MAFCO, as the case may be, signed a confidentiality agreement according to this summary?
A. Right.
Q. Is that consistent with your recollection?
A. Yes.
Q. Would that be consistent with custom and practice in these types of discussions?
A. Yes.
Q. Would it be customary, if you were going to have a merger transaction of two companies, for both companies to exchange confidentiality agreements?
A. I don't know if that is customary.
Q. The summary continues, and I am looking at the second full paragraph that begins, "At the conclusion." Do you see that?

Page 232

A. Yes.
Q. It refers to a continuing due diligence review of the company by MacAndrews & Forbes.
Is that consistent with your recollection?
A. I don't know specifically the time frame but that would be not unreasonable but that would not have been conducted by Maher. That would have been done by Joe Page and Bill Bevins.
Q. If you look at the next paragraph it states in so many words that as a result of the information obtained during MAFCO's due diligence investigation and the expectation of the company's earnings for the fourth quarter of 1997 would be below analyst's estimates on November 21, 1997 MAFCO advised Warburg and the company, that is Panavision, that it would be revising its indication of interest to lower the price per share to be received by the shareholders in the company's recapitalization.
Is that consistent with your

recollection of the negotiations?
A. I don't know what that means.
Q. The following sentence means -- "MAFCO stated that although it had not yet determined what price per share it would propose it believed that such price would be as much as 10 percent below the $27.50 per share previously discussed."
Do you see that sentence?
A. Yes, but what I don't -- what I am not sure of is what this means "below analyst's estimates."
I am sure we got estimates from the company. I don't know if they are talking about financial analysts, company analysts, company projections.
I mean, that is the piece of it that I am confused about. I am sure what this is saying is that the current information that we were given by the company is less for the fourth quarter than we were given previously.
Q. So you revised your indication of interest to lower the price you would pay, is that fair?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 234

A. That is what it looks like, yes.
Q. As a result of your due diligence and your review of the financial information indeed a transaction -- withdrawn.
Eventually after you went through this due diligence process and expressed your interest as we have been discussing a definitive agreement was eventually reached, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And closed?
A. Yes.
Q. You may hand that back to me.
A. I need a quick --

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Returning to the record. The time is 3:30 p.m.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. We are back on the record.
Mr. Perelman, I would like to ask you now to focus on the Coleman Company and the time period we will be talking about at least as a starting point is about year end 1997 is where we will work ourselves up to.

I have a couple of questions on background.
When -- I think you told me earlier you purchased -- your companies purchased it in 1989?
A. I think so.
Q. Research I did suggests the purchase price was 455 million in cash?
A. About right.
Q. You made an all cash offer for the company and were actually in a bidding war, a potential leveraged buyout by management?
A. Yes.
Q. The leveraged buyout by management were some of the old time family members of the Coleman Company?
A. I think the young family members.
Q. When you acquired the company and, you, of course, I mean your companies, acquired the company in 1989 you had acquired 100 percent of the common stock?
A. I believe so.

Page 236

Q. The public eventually obtained an interest in the company through a public offering that you did in 1992, is that right?
A. I don't recall the date but sometime after.
Q. Was that public offering the only public offering of Coleman stock that was ever done?
A. I believe so.
Q. I did a little looking at this. What I found is that you sold the stock, that is, offered the stock to the public at about $13 a share and you sold a little over 9.67 million shares. Does that sound about right?
A. It could be, yes.
Q. In addition to the sale to the public, at the end of the day when -- where you are at today -- withdrawn.
In terms of just cash, when you sold Coleman, your interest in Coleman, that is, to Sunbeam in 1998, you received just a hair under $160 million in cash, right?

Page 237

A. When we sold --
Q. To Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition to the --
MR. SOLOVY: Excuse me.
MR. BEMIS: It surprised me.
That is all.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. In addition to the $160 million in cash at the time of the Sunbeam transaction, Sunbeam assumed and agreed to pay certain debt of one of your holding companies, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That debt was in excess of $500 million, was it not?
A. I don't recall the exact amount but something like that.

Q. In addition to the -- in addition to these sums then you collected in litigation that you filed with -- against Arthur Andersen -- I apologize.

In addition to the sums we have been talking about your companies recovered $70 million against, or from, excuse me, Arthur Andersen, right?

MR. SOLOVY: In connection with our settlement agreement with Andersen we will designate this answer confidential, the question and answer. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I believe so, yes.

Page 239

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. You approved the filing of that litigation against Andersen?

A. Yes.

Q. You accused Andersen of fraud, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You accused them of numerous accounting irregularities that they approved in a fraudulent manner of Sunbeam's financial statements, correct?

A. I don't know the specifics but it was a general fraud complaint.

Q. Essentially you said that the financial statements of Sunbeam were fraudulent and that Andersen audited them and participated in the fraud, correct?

A. That Andersen knew of the fraud, yes.

Q. Knew of Sunbeam's fraud?

A. Correct.

Q. And notwithstanding Andersen's knowledge of Sunbeam's fraud Andersen provided Sunbeam with clean opinions on Sunbeam's financial statements in 1996 and

1997?

A. Yes.

Q. Indeed Andersen stood by Sunbeam's financial statements all the way up until sometime in the fall of 1998, correct?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Actually it was June. I misspoke. June of 1998?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. When do you recall that Andersen withdrew its opinions with regard to Sunbeam's financial statements?

A. I think the comfort letter to -- from Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley constituted a revision of their opinion.

Q. Which opinion was being revised with regard to the comfort letters?

A. Certainly whatever continuing opinion they would have had to make relative to 1997.

I believe that their comfort letter saying to Morgan Stanley that this company is in a free fall decline in and of itself was a change in their opinion.

Page 241

Q. Would you --

A. It had to be construed in connection with their opinion at that moment.

Q. Let me move on to something else. We will get to that a little bit later; not probably today but tomorrow.

A. Good.

Q. Then, in addition to the charges that you -- your companies brought against Andersen for fraud, you brought -- you alleged, although you didn't file a complaint, you alleged that Sunbeam engaged in fraud as well, right?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.

MR. BEMIS: Fair enough. Let me withdraw it and rephrase it.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. In the summer of 1998 you told Sunbeam's management, that is, your companies, that you believed that MacAndrews & Forbes had claims against Sunbeam for fraud, right?

A. I am not quite sure what forum

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01553 7

that took.
Q. I am not suggesting you filed a lawsuit but did you say form or forum?
A. Forum. I am not sure how that took place.
Q. Let's set aside exactly how it took place.
It was your position as the owner of -- ultimate owner of MacAndrews & Forbes that Sunbeam had committed a fraud?
A. Yes.
Q. It was Sunbeam's underlying fraud that you contended that Arthur Andersen participated in, right?
A. And Morgan Stanley.
Q. Not in the claims -- you may be doing that today but in the claims you brought against Sunbeam in 1998 you didn't make any claims against Morgan Stanley.
A. We didn't know as much then as we know now.
Q. That may be the case. You didn't do it in 1998?
A. I don't know when we did it.
Q. Ultimately you resolved your dispute with Sunbeam in 1998, correct?

A. I believe so, yes.
Q. It was resolved by Sunbeam issuing to MacAndrews & Forbes or one of its other entities -- I can look at the settlement agreement -- but 23 million warrants for Sunbeam's stock, right?
A. Some number of warrants. I am not quite sure how many.
Q. Going back to Coleman now, going back to Coleman, can you tell me whether Coleman after 1995 ever made a profit?
A. It depends on what you define as "profit."
We look at cash flow and most transactions that are done today are done on the basis of what is called EBITDA which is an updated term for cash flow, and, yes, Coleman had very significant cash flows from 1996 through 1997.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251.
A. Yes.
Q. Would you look at page 13 --
withdrawn.

For the record, have you seen this document before which is the December 31, 1997 form 10-K?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see before it was filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission?
A. I would assume so.
Q. Turn to page 13 under Selected Financial Data.
A. Right.
Q. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Page 13?
A. Yes.
Q. Am I correct that the selected financial data shows that in 1995 the company had a -- had net earnings of $39,280,000?
A. Correct.
Q. Then the following year which would be 1996 it had a loss of $41,893,000; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition, in 1997 --

A. I have to put my thing back on.
Q. Okay.
A. I think I need help here.
MR. SOLOVY: Maybe you want to repeat the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. In 1997 am I correct that Coleman had a net loss of $2,536,000?
A. These numbers that you are giving me are after very significant charges which have to be eliminated in calculating the EBITDA which is on the basis that we sold the company so that, for example, in the year '97, let's take '97, you would take that $2 million and you would add back the interest of $41 million, you would add back the depreciation and amortization of $38 million, you would add back the non-cash restructuring of $17 million, you would add back the minority interest of $1.4 million and that would give you the EBITDA which is roughly -- it is about $100 some million.
You would add back the 11 million 338 of amortization to goodwill so you would add back $38 million, $17 million,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015538

$11 million, $41 million and that would give you the EBITDA.
Q. Not to quarrel with you about what the EBIT is which I don't want to do right now, what you reported to the Securities and Exchange Commission and to the public --
A. This is what we reported. I am reading from the exact same schedule. This is what was reported to the public and to the SEC.
Q. Did you report to the public in 1997 under the line item in your selective financial data that the company had a net loss of 2 million?
A. On that line item, yes. That does not tell the story. You have to look on other line items to see what the performance of the company is.
Q. Let's talk about performance of the company. 1996, what was the highest stock price the company hit?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Let me see. If we look at -- let's look at page 12. Tell the jury what the highest stock price was of Coleman in 1996.

A. $26.
Q. Then in 1997 what was the highest price the company's stock reached?
A. 19-1/8.
Q. It fell about $7 per share in that year, right, from 1996 to 1997?
A. Right.
Q. Just in your holdings alone, what did you have, about 14.1 million shares of Coleman stock?
A. I don't recall how much shares I had but --
Q. I don't want to quarrel with you. I just asked you how many shares of stock.
A. I don't know.
Q. That is fine. You don't know.
You had -- and if we look at 1997 as reported to the Securities and Exchange Commission, the stock of Coleman actually hit a low of 11-1/2 dollars?
A. Right.
Q. Were there, by the way, any rumors of Coleman bankruptcy on the Street in 1996 or 1997?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I didn't hear any.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You brought in Mr. Levin in 1997 as CEO?
A. Correct.
Q. You told us earlier because you needed to make some management changes?
A. Yes.
Q. You were making management changes because Coleman was doing so well?
A. I was making changes because I thought it could do better.
Q. It would do better in 1997 with Mr. Levin than it had done in 1996 under old management is what you hoped?
A. No. I thought it would do better going forward. We don't own a company for one year. We own a company potentially forever so that when I brought in Jerry Levin to replace the then CEO I was bringing him in to help drive this company to the next level of growth, not for one year.

Q. I didn't mean to interrupt you.
A. Not for one year but going forward.
On the point of the stock price, what you have got to keep in mind is that the float in this company is very small so that we owned in excess of 80 percent of the stock.
Q. Let me ask you --
A. Here there were only 700 shareholders as of this date. It is truly not a publicly traded company with 700 shareholders.
Q. In 1993, if you go back to page 13 --
A. Right.
Q. The debt of the Coleman Company was 168.8 million, is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Long term debt?
A. Yes.
Q. Then by 1996 it had increased to 584 million, rounded up, right?
A. Correct.

Page 250

Q. Then you have it down -- Coleman got it down to about 478 million by 1997; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Levin, when he was brought in, was he the only candidate you considered for the CEO position?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you ever consider Al Dunlap?
A. Possibly. Possibly.
Q. Isn't it a fact that you actually talked to Al Dunlap several times before you brought Mr. Levin in and asked him to consider coming over to be the CEO of Coleman?
A. No. I talked to him several times about his management style. I talked to him possibly about coming on the board of Coleman but he was making a compensation package that was just extraordinary. Nobody could compete with that package.
Q. May I ask when you first spoke to -- when -- withdrawn
A. When did I first speak to him?
Q. Let me ask the question.

Page 251

When was the first time that you spoke to Mr. Dunlap about possibly coming on the Coleman board?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was it before Mr. Levin was brought over from Revlon to Coleman?
A. I think it was after. I think it was right around that time.
He was under contract to Sunbeam in a very Rich contract.
Q. Just one second. My recollection of events, they could be faulty on this, but I think Mr. Levin was brought over to Coleman in February of 1997, is that right?
A. I just don't recall.
Q. In any event, you believe that you spoke to Mr. Dunlap about coming onto the Coleman board after Mr. Levin --
A. I believe so.
Q. -- had become --
A. Maybe it was before. I don't recall. Okay.
Q. Let me just ask the question and then go ahead and answer it however is appropriate. The record gets very difficult to follow when we both talk over each other. We have been doing a good job.

A. I think we are doing a great job.
Q. A great job.
Did you speak to Mr. Dunlap about coming onto the Coleman board after Mr. Levin was hired to become the chief executive officer of Coleman?
A. I spoke to Mr. Dunlap about it either before or after Mr. Levin. I am not sure which.
Q. What was his response to your discussions about him coming onto the Coleman board?
A. I think he just smiled.
Q. Was this conversation with Mr. Dunlap about coming onto the Coleman board before or after Mr. Dunlap's book Mean Business was published?
A. I never saw that book.
Q. You never saw that book?
A. No.
MR. BEMIS: Mark this -- please mark the following document as Exhibit MS 431 which is a three-page -- four-page document. On the cover are some blurbs from Mr. Dunlap's book, Mean Business.

(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 431 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I have handed you what the court reporter has marked as Exhibit 431.
Unfortunately is that the only copy I have with me.
That is the cover jacket from Mr. Dunlap's book Mean Business.
You are familiar with the book?
A. No, I am not familiar with the book.
Q. Did you provide the quotation that appears on the back of the cover, of the jacket?
A. Yes.
Q. Who did you provide it to?
A. I guess to him, either him or his PR person.
Q. Did you do that without reading the book?
A. Yes.

0151540

Q. You can hand that back to me.
Just read to the jury what you said about Mr. Dunlap.
A. "Lively, funny and provocative. No one feels neutral about Al Dunlap --
Q. I will read it for you. You tell me if I read --
A. I will read it.
Q. Read it slowly so the jury can hear you.
A. "Lively, funny and provocative. Nobody feels neutral about Al Dunlap. You either love his ideas about how to run a business or hate them. Read Mean Business and find out what he is all about."
Q. Did you love Al Dunlap's ideas or hate them? You said either one of the two?
A. I never read the book. I never -- first of all, these things you normally send in long before the book is published.
Secondly, after the book is published I never read it. I don't even think I saw it.
Q. You just did it as a favor for

Mr. Dunlap?
A. I don't know whether he asked me to do it or whether the book publisher asked me to do it. Somebody asked me to do it.
By the way, I didn't write that.
Q. You let somebody else write it and put your name on it?
A. Our PR person, yes. That is not my writing style.
Q. May I have that, Mr. Reporter?
Let's go back to the Coleman Company, if we could for a second.
Did you -- withdrawn.
Going back to Coleman, did Coleman incur restructuring charges in 1996?
I think you will find them on -- I think they are on pages 13 and 14 of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251.
If it helps you I will direct your attention to page 14 under the heading Results of Operation, the next to the last paragraph which reports --
A. There are some --

Q. Can I finish the question?
A. I thought you did already.
Q. I know you did. Let me try again.
On page 14 in the next to last paragraph, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251, it is reported that the company, that is Coleman, recorded restructuring charges of $66.2 million.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. As a director of the company -- strike that.
That is correct that the company incurred those charges?
A. I would assume so.
Q. Then in 1997 the company incurred additional restructuring charges, correct, and that is the paragraph above the 1996 paragraph on page 14?
A. Yes.
Q. Am I correct that the restructuring charges in 1997 were $36.4 million?
A. Yes. That is what it says here.
In 1997 -- see they are in a couple of places so to really -- if you look on page F6 which is the cash flow you can see some of the -- there are some cash charges so I can't see how they fit in but go ahead.

Q. Would you turn to page 46 of MS 251?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you please tell the jury whether you signed the document you have in front of you, MS 251, as of March 18, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. You signed it pursuant to your obligations not only as a director the company but under the federal securities laws, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. As of 1997 -- withdrawn.
I am handing you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93, the agreement and plan of merger among Sunbeam Corporation.
A. Are we finished with this?
Q. You will need to hold on to it for a second.

Sunbeam Corporation, Laser Acquisition Corporation, CLN Holdings Inc. and Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.

A. Yes.

Q. Earlier I asked you how many shares of Coleman stock that you had and I didn't have a document. I realized you may not remember that.

I want to refer you to page 8 of this exhibit -- let me withdraw the question.

Have you ever seen this document before, MS 93?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Turn to page 8 of the document. That is article 3 under Conversion of Shares.

Tell me when you are there.

A. I am here.

Q. If you look at subparagraph 3.1(a)(i), you will see figures, the shares of stock. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Those are the Sunbeam stock that you received in exchange for the Coleman stock at CLN Holdings held at that time?

A. It calls them here Laser.

Q. Sunbeam was called Laser in this document. You are correct.

Now I don't know what the question was so let me withdraw the question and try it again.

There is an easier way to go at this. Let's go back to Exhibit 251. You should have that in front of you.

If you will turn to page 3 and that is numbered 3 at the bottom, Mr. Perelman.

A. Yes.

Q. Under the heading Background.

A. Yes.

Q. There is in the first paragraph a statement made to which you subscribe as we talked about earlier, that Coleman Worldwide owns 44,067,520 shares of Coleman stock, right?

A. Yes.

Q. That is the number of shares that you would have owned in 1996, is that fair?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. I think we established that the stock price for Coleman went from a high of $26 in 1996 to a high of about $19-1/8 in 1997, am I correct?

A. Right.

Q. So you had a decline in value of your holdings, that is, your company's holdings in Coleman in 1996 at the high point in 1997 of 44,067,000 shares times roughly $7 per share; isn't that right?

A. No.

Q. That is not right?

A. No.

Q. Tell me -- tell the jury why that is not right.

A. Because the market price is irrelevant to the value of our holdings.

What is relevant to the value of our holdings is the company. The stock ownership of Coleman was so narrowly traded that it didn't mean anything.

You had 700 shareholders of Coleman so that what we looked at was what is the intrinsic value of the asset.

We did not mark-to-market on a daily basis what the stock was worth. That was irrelevant to us.

Q. The market price of the stock was irrelevant to you; is that right?

A. The market price of the stock is irrelevant to the value of the company, that is correct.

Q. To you it was irrelevant that the decrease in value in market price of the stock as listed on the New York Stock Exchange as your holdings dropped $308 million in one year; is that what you are telling the jury?

A. Nobody likes the perception of a stock drop in market price but what you asked was whether there was a diminution of value of my holdings.

The holdings -- the 82 percent is really the ownership of the company and the value of the company did not change. The value of the company actually improved as you can tell from Morgan Stanley's own valuation of the company.

Q. Let me ask you this, sir. On December 31, 1997 had you pledged, that is, your companies, pledged all of your Coleman stock as a security for other indebtedness?

A. I am not sure.
Q. Let me show you a document, MS -- let's look at MS 239.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 239 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. This document has previously been marked and identified in depositions as what is referred to as an information statement pursuant to Section 14F of the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934 and Rule 14 F-1 thereunder.
Turn to page 17. Tell me when you are there.
A. Right.
Q. According to the Coleman's filing on this date with the Securities and Exchange Commission you owned either beneficially -- withdrawn.
According to this statement which was filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission you owned beneficially 44,067,520 shares, right, of Coleman stock?

A. Yes.
Q. And do you remember how we talked about reading the footnotes to these things earlier today?
A. Right.
Q. Look at footnote 1. Do you want to read that to yourself and tell me when you are done?
A. I read it, yes.
Q. Am I correct, sir, that it says as follows, "Substantially all of the shares owned are pledged to secure obligations of Coleman Worldwide and CLN Holdings and shares of intermediate holding companies are, or from time to time may be, pledged to secure obligations of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. or its affiliates."
Did I read that correctly?
A. Yes.
Q. As of the date of this document which is said to be the close of business March 3, 1998, if you look at the second line on the page we are looking at -- all of the Coleman stock that you owned beneficially had indeed been pledged?

A. No. That is not what it says.
Q. What does it say?
A. It says were or from time to time may be.
Q. It says -- I will not quarrel with you what it says.
A. That is what it says.
Q. It says what it says?
A. That is what it says. It says from time to time may be. That is what it says.
Q. Are you going -- are you telling the jury they weren't pledged?
A. I am saying -- you asked me to read what it says here. I said to you I didn't know.
You asked me to read what was here and I read what was here. Now you don't like what was here. I can't help that, sir.
Q. Let me try again. We will see if we -- then we will move on. We don't want to quarrel with each other.
A. Good.
Q. As of March 3, 1998 were your

Coleman shares that you beneficially owned, were they pledged to security obligations of your other companies?
A. I do not know.
Q. Did you approve this securities filing with the federal government, and that is MS 239?
A. Did I specifically approve it?
Q. Sure.
A. No. Why would I approve a specific filing?
Q. Because you are a member of the board of directors of the Coleman Company, that is why.
A. Whatever had to be filed our attorneys would file in due course.
Our attorneys do what is proper or appropriate. Our lawyers and accountants do what is appropriate and appropriate and our investment bankers do what is proper and appropriate unlike Morgan Stanley.
Q. I move to strike those comments.
Sir, in addition to -- let me show you a document marked as -- that we will mark as Exhibit MS 427.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

I would ask the court reporter to mark as Exhibit 427 a document entitled Outstanding Debt Analysis.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 427 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Exhibit 427 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. No.
Q. Was it prepared by employees of your company?
A. I don't know what it is.
Q. If you don't know, you don't know.
You can hand it back to me.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. As part of the Sunbeam transaction the debt of the Coleman Company, the long term debt that is reflected on the balance sheet we looked at in Exhibit MS 251?

A. Yes.
Q. That debt was assumed by Sunbeam, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. The total amount of debt that was assumed by Sunbeam as part of the transaction was the CLN Holdings that we talked about earlier in excess of 500 million plus the Coleman debt which was I believe we identified that as $477.7 million or .8 million as of December 31, 1997?
A. No. I believe you are mixing apples and oranges.
Q. Then we will just skip that and go on to something else.
Did you carry that -- did your companies carry on your consolidated financial statements the debt of the Coleman Company?
A. I would assume so.
Q. Let me see MS 241 please. Look at page 36 of MS 251, the annual report for Coleman that you signed.
A. This is not the annual report.

Q. Maybe -- I did misspeak.
Please look at MS 251 which is the December 31 form 10-K. We looked at this a little earlier. Page 36.
A. Yes.
Q. With regard to your beneficial ownership that is again shown as 44,067,520 shares.
In footnote one it says, "Substantially all of the shares owned are pledged to secure obligations of Coleman Worldwide and CLN Holdings and shares of intermediate holding companies." Correct?
MR. SOLOVY: You have to finish reading, Mr. Bemis, the rest of the sentence.
MR. BEMIS: I will read it all for him. I don't want to quarrel with him.
Footnote 1 reads, "Substantially all of the shares are pledged to secure obligations of the Coleman Worldwide and CLN Holdings and shares of intermediate holding companies are from time to time --"
MR. SOLOVY: Are, or.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. "Are or from time to time may be pledged to secure obligations of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings or its affiliates."
Do you see that sentence, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that sentence correct at the time you signed this document on March 18, 1998?
A. I am sure it was.
Q. One of the intermediate holding companies that Coleman stock was pledged to secure their obligations was a company called Coleman Escrow Corporation, correct?
A. I don't know.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 241.
A. Right.
Q. The Coleman Escrow Corporation was one of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, holding companies above the Coleman Company, Inc., correct?
A. Yes.
Q. It had no operating business, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015514

A. Correct.
Q. It essentially functioned as a holding company that issued -- issued debt securities?
A. It owned securities. I don't know what it primarily functioned as. I am not familiar with the company. It was a holding company above the operating company.
Q. Pursuant to this offering, MS 241, Coleman Escrow Corporation issued 6,475,000 senior secured first priority discount notes due 2001, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition, your company issued 131,560,000 senior secured second priority discount notes, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. These notes were secured by a pledge of the Coleman securities that you beneficially own, correct?
A. Some of them.
Q. Do you know how many of the -- of your Coleman shares that you beneficially own were pledged to secure this offering of $732,035,000?

A. No.
Q. In addition, Coleman Worldwide had earlier issued -- and I may have misspoke. It is not Coleman Worldwide. Coleman had issued something called LYONs or liquid yield option notes, correct?
A. No.
Q. Who had issued those?
A. This company.
Q. Coleman Escrow Corp.?
A. That is what it says.
Q. I think -- I misspoke. I apologize.
Coleman Escrow Corp. issued the liquid yield option notes which is referred to in the document as all capitals L-Y-O-N-small S, right; am I correct?
A. It is L-Y.
Q. O-N-small S?
A. Yes.
Q. These notes had been secured by a pledge of your Coleman stock as well, correct?
A. Some of it.

Q. Can you tell the jury as of March 3, 1998, that is the date of the section 14F statement that we were looking at which is -- let me start again since I didn't have the number in my head.
Can you tell the jury, sir, how many of your Coleman shares were not pledged as of March 3, 1998, the date of Exhibit MS 239, the section 14F statement, how many of --
A. Please do that again.
Q. Sure.
Probably the easiest way to do it is do you have MS 239 in front of you? That is the 14F.
A. I don't believe so.
MR. SOLOVY: I will give you my copy.
THE WITNESS: Okay, I got it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Can you tell the jury, sir, how many of your beneficially owned Coleman shares which are identified as 44,067,520 were not pledged to secure obligations of your other companies such as Coleman

Worldwide and CLN Holdings?
A. No.
Q. Can you tell us what percentage it was?
A. No.
Q. Can you tell the jury whether you had pledged substantially all of the shares to secure your other holding company's debt?
A. No.
Q. You can hand that back to me. Give us a second and we will clean up some of these documents.
Did the Coleman Company have a profit in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. I would like to turn back to Mr. Dunlap for a few minutes and work our way up to the meeting at your house on December 18 if we could.
A. Sure.
Q. We are back at 1997.
A. Yes.
Q. In 1997 my understanding is that you do have this meeting on December 18 at your house and Mr. Gittis, he makes the arrangements after speaking to Michael Price; is that correct?

A. Correct.
Q. Before that meeting at your house on December 18 you had at least spoken to Mr. Dunlap about the subject of him coming on the Coleman board?
A. Correct.
Q. He had declined?
A. I don't think he declined. He just didn't answer.
Q. Were these conversations you had with Mr. Dunlap, did you have them face-to-face or were they telephone conversations?
A. I think face-to-face.
Q. Were they in New York or in Florida?
A. I am not sure. They were very casual. They were like social conversations. It may have been here, it may have been in Florida when I bumped into him.
These were not in those specific meeting conversations.

Q. Did they take -- for example -- withdrawn.
For example, did they take place at a party someplace?
A. Could, possibly.
Q. When Mr. -- withdrawn.
When you approached Mr. Dunlap on this topic of becoming a director I understand he did not respond.
Did you follow up in any way with him?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. How many of these conversations, as brief as they were as you described them, did you have with Mr. Dunlap about becoming a director of Coleman?
A. Maybe one, maybe two at the most, but they weren't conversations on that.
I only met him maybe three times prior to the -- to that December meeting.
Q. Did you at any point --
A. I have to make one more quick stop.
MR. SOLOVY: Good time.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Returning to the record. The time is 4:43 p.m. This marks the beginning of tape number 4.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Are we all set?
A. Yes.
Q. I think the agreement was we would run until 5:45 today?
MR. SOLOVY: Correct.
MR. BEMIS: We will run to the end unless the witness needs a short break.
MR. SOLOVY: Or his elderly lawyer.
MR. BEMIS: Or his elderly lawyer or his younger lawyers, whatever.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. We were talking about your meetings with Mr. Dunlap --
A. Yes.

Q. -- when we took a short break there to take the tape and other things.
When you -- right before you met with Mr. Dunlap for the first time were you with -- were you with Mr. Levin at a meeting in Florida?
MR. SOLOVY: Could I make a clarification? There is a confusion, Mr. Bemis, between the first time -- I don't know if you are talking about the first time he ever met him or the December meeting at his house.
MR. BEMIS: Fair enough.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Before you met at his house on December 18 you had at least one earlier meeting with Mr. Dunlap and I thought you said you thought you might have had two, fair enough?
A. Yes.
Q. At at least one of those meetings where you ran into Mr. Dunlap and I think you said likely in a social setting, were you in Florida with Mr. Levin to call on Home Depot?

A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you at the meeting with Mr. Dunlap when you talked to him either on the first social occasion or the second social occasion, again, before December 18, did Mr. Dunlap tell you that he was reporting 20 percent margins on some of Sunbeam's product offerings?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you, Mr. Perelman, at any time after the first couple meetings with Mr. Dunlap, did you make a call to his office and ask him or one of his assistants to fax to you Sunbeam's financial statements?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you at any time give Mr. Levin Mr. -- withdrawn.
At any time before the meeting at your home on December 18, 1997 did you give Mr. Levin copies of Sunbeam's internal financial statements and ask Mr. Levin to review them?
A. Internal financial statements?
Q. Yes. Sunbeam financial statements.

A. How would I get internal financial statements?
Q. I am -- I am not trying to be rude. I am not here to answer your questions.
Let me ask a question. You answer it however you feel --
A. No.
Q. Did you ever give Mr. Levin -- withdrawn.
Before the December 18 meeting, did you ever have Mr. Levin review Sunbeam's financial statements as publicly filed?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you tell -- strike that.
Did Mr. Levin ever tell you that he had, and this is again before December 18, 1997, that he had reviewed Sunbeam's financial statements and that he expressed skepticism about them?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Levin that you believed in -- withdrawn.

Before December 18, 1997 did you tell Mr. Levin that you, that is, you personally, believed in Mr. Dunlap's approach to business?
A. What is his approach to business?
Q. Yes, approach to business.
A. What is his approach to business?
Q. That is not my question. My question is, did you make that statement to Mr. Levin?
A. I couldn't have made it because I don't know what his approach to business is.
Q. My question was just whether you made the statement. If the answer is no, you tell me no.
A. Not that I know of, no.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Levin that you believed that Mr. Dunlap's approach to business represented "a new business model" for the consumer product market and Mr. -- he, Mr. Levin, did not know how to make it work, did you tell Mr. Levin that?
A. I don't have a clue what you are talking about.

Q. Is your answer, no?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Levin tell you -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Levin tell you that he, that is, Mr. Levin, found Sunbeam's numbers hard to believe? Did he tell you that?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. Did Mr. Levin tell you, Mr. Perelman -- withdrawn.
Mr. Levin testified under oath in an earlier proceeding in this case involving Sunbeam in a deposition taken on August 2, 2000.
I am referring now to page 112 of his deposition transcript. This is Mr. Levin's testimony under oath?
MR. SOLOVY: What case is this, please, Mr. Bemis?
MR. BEMIS: Sure, Mr. Solovy.
In the matter of the arbitration between Albert J. Dunlap and Sunbeam Corporation.
It is again on page 112 is where I will be referring to to start with.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. With that background let me read what Mr. Levin said under oath.
"And the next morning we were -- we were flying back to New York together," he is referring to you, Mr. Perelman, "and in the car going back to the airport he said he had drinks with Dunlap and he is not terrible and he's got a great plan."
Did you tell Mr. Levin that?
A. I don't know what you are talking about. When was this -- what was this -- what was this plan. I don't have a clue.
Q. Mr. Levin continued under oath that you said, Mr. Perelman, he's, Al Dunlap, doing wonders with this company; he's growing the company at 20 percent; he's got gross -- he's going to make operating income of 20 percent, and, you know, he went, that is Mr. Perelman, went on about all the things that Dunlap was doing and I said I had been doing this for a long time. I find that hard to believe. Are those projections?"
Did Mr. Levin tell you those things about his analysis of Mr. Dunlap's operations?

A. You are talking about a conversation in a car you are saying? I don't know what he said or what I said. I don't know when this occurred or what company you are talking about.
Q. The company is -- the company is Sunbeam and the time we are talking about is the time you had drinks with Mr. Dunlap.
A. In Florida?
Q. Yes.
A. Where did I have drinks in Florida with Mr. Dunlap?
Q. It is your testimony to the jury that did you not say what Mr. Levin said you did say under oath?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Are you denying you said it or you don't remember?
A. What you are saying is we had idle chatter. Could we have had idle chatter about Dunlap? Yes.
I don't recall having -- I don't recall having drinks with Dunlap in Florida and I don't recall specifically this conversation.

Q. As you told us earlier you have never known Mr. Levin to misrepresent anything at least to you?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I didn't say that.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I will withdraw the question.
You said what you said and we will leave it at that.
Mr. Levin goes on to say during this conversation that he had with you in the car on the way back to the airport, "he said," referring to you, "no, no, that is actually what he is doing. I said, referring to Mr. Levin, I don't believe it. Perelman said, oh, I will get you the financials."
A. Right.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Levin that?
A. I don't know. You are talking about a conversation either before or after an airplane ride in a car someplace with at least several other people in the car.

Q. Who else was in the car?
A. A driver, obviously Mr. Levin, obviously me and whoever else was on this trip.
Q. Who else was on the trip?
A. I don't know. I don't know the trip you are talking about. I don't even know the company you are talking about. Maybe we are talking about Scott Paper here.
Q. No. We are talking about Sunbeam.
A. How do you know?
Q. Because it refers to Mr. Dunlap.
A. Mr. Dunlap was the chairman of Scott Paper.
Q. We will leave it at that.
A. You ask the questions and you won't tell me what company you are talking about.
Q. I tried to be courteous and tell you it was Sunbeam.
A. Sir, I am being very courteous.
Q. We both are. Let's move on and not argue.

A. Okay.
Q. Mr. Levin continues under oath at page 112, line 17, "So he placed the -- so he placed the financials to Dunlap's office. By the time I got to New York there was a set of, I don't remember the forms, of financials of Sunbeam. It could have been an analyst report. I am not sure what it was. I read through it that night, walked back into Perelman's office the next morning saying, 'I have been doing this for over 30 years. I don't know how you run a company with this character with no RB." I think it is supposed to be RD, "expense, 1 percent sales expense. The whole thing did not add up to me. You want somebody to do this for one of your companies. You get somebody else. I am not even going to try. I don't want to talk about them."
Did Mr. Levin say that to you in your offices?
A. Are you telling me that he threatened to quit?
Q. Sir, all I am asking is whether

Page 287

Mr. Levin said --
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Mr. Levin continues under oath, "I gave that to Perelman. I was predisposed. I had a mind set I should say as to what this was all about and then started reading the analyst reports and I could read a balance sheet. I saw the build up of inventories change to the cash flow of the company and I told Perelman in the strongest possible terms not to take any stock of this company and he chose to ignore me."
Did Mr. Levin tell you that?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did he tell you that?
A. Not only did he not tell me that. He didn't tell any member of the board. He voted in favor of this.
Q. Are you aware that Mr. Levin sold all of his Coleman stock and did not take Sunbeam stock in the merger?
A. He took Sunbeam stock. Everybody got the same stock and he voted with all the other directors of Coleman to accept this transaction. And he voted with all the other directors of Coleman that this was an appropriate transaction to be taken.

Q. Are you aware that Mr. Levin sold his Coleman stock on the market, New York Stock Exchange, before the closing of the transaction; are you aware of that?
A. He sold his Coleman stock?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. You weren't aware of that?
A. No.
Q. Were you aware that Bruce Slovin sold his Coleman stock on the market the morning after the public announcement was made on, I believe it is, March -- March 2 or March 3 of 1998 of the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. No.
Q. You weren't aware that Mr. Slovin sold over 50,000 shares of Coleman stock?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Slovin did vote for the merger as -- he voted for the merger, right?

Page 289

A. Yes.
Q. Did --
A. But Mr. Slovin was not executive of the company.
Q. Did Mr. Levin ever tell you at any time up to the closing, March 30, 1998, did he ever tell you, Ronald, or Mr. Perelman, and I don't mean to be offensive using your first name?
A. Please do.
Q. That in his view, Mr. Levin's, you, Mr. Perelman, should not take Sunbeam stock but should take cash in the merger?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Maher testified that Mr. Levin was on the side of the transaction that supported taking cash rather than stock.
Were you aware that Mr. Maher was of that mind?
A. So then why didn't he vote for that?
Q. Mr. Maher didn't have a vote.

A. I mean Mr. Levin. He was chairman of the board of the company. Why didn't he say at any directors meeting, listen, I don't think that the directors should approve this transaction. I think that this should be done for all cash, and, by the way, that is going to be my position.

He was chairman -- he was president, CEO, and may have been chairman of the board but he was certainly CEO and had an obligation if that is what he felt to make his position known.

Q. You say -- it is your testimony --

A. If I knew then --

Q. Excuse me. Can I --

A. Yes, please do.

Q. It is your testimony to the jury under oath that Mr. Levin never told you at any time up to March 30, 1998 that you, Mr. Perelman, should take cash rather than Sunbeam stock?

A. Not that I recall and he certainly made no position out of it and he certainly did not make his position clear to any director or to the board as a whole when this deal was being contemplated.

Now, in retrospect, if I knew then what I know now we would not have done the transaction.

Q. You would not have done the transaction at all?

A. At all, absolutely not.

Q. What I understand you just to have said is if you had known what was in the comfort letters today you would not have done the transaction?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Thank you very much, sir.

By the way, at any point in the presentations to the board of directors was there any discussion of any other suitor for the Coleman company?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Let me show you the minutes of February 25, 1998 which is Exhibit MS 88.

Q. I am going to give back to you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88 which we marked -- talked about earlier today, the minutes of the February 25 board of directors meeting of the Coleman Company.

Do you have that exhibit, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you please turn to page 2 and I direct your attention to the third paragraph? Tell me when you are there.

A. I am here.

Q. Mr. Maher is reported to have reviewed with the Board, capital B, the history of the proposed transaction with Sunbeam.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And he also makes reference to --

Page 293

now I am reading from the end of the third line, "On inquiry made by the company," that is referring to Coleman, "to what the company," referring to Coleman, "believed was the most likely potential bidder, which bidder was not interested."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you there for that presentation by Mr. Maher?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Who was the company that was contacted as a most likely potential bidder?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you ever ask Mr. Maher who that was?

A. Possibly.

Q. As you sit here today you are not aware of who this company was?

A. Correct.

Q. But whoever it was, at least based on Mr. Maher's presentation of the board, the board was advised that other bidder wasn't interested, right?

A. That is what it says here, yes.
Q. In 1997 did you have -- withdrawn.
In 1997 did the Coleman Company have any potential, I will use the term, "bidders" as Mr. Maher did for the Coleman Company?
A. It was not for sale.
Q. It may not have been but that would not foreclose, would it, someone asking?
A. It is highly unlikely.
Q. Let me phrase the question differently so maybe we can make some progress with this.
In 1997 did anyone, anyone, come to the Coleman Company that you are aware of as a director and ask whether the company was for sale?
A. I don't know.
Q. In 1998, before Sunbeam contacted, through Mr. Price, Mr. Gittis, were there any inquiries of Coleman whether it would be for sale?
A. That was in 1997.

Page 295

Q. That was in 1997. I will try it again. It was a terribly phrased question. Thank you very much for helping me with that one.
A. You are very welcome.
Q. At any time in 1997 -- withdrawn.
In 1998, are you aware of, other than Sunbeam, any companies making any inquiry of whether the Coleman Company was for sale?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. So at the time of the signing of the merger and acquisition agreements, one of which was MS 93 we looked at earlier, Sunbeam is the only company that had made inquiry of Coleman about Coleman's availability for purchase, if you will?
A. I didn't say that.
Q. What -- withdrawn.
Let me try one more time.
Was Sunbeam the only bidder for the Coleman Company in 1997 or 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Did any other company to your knowledge approach the Coleman Company about a potential purchase in 1997 or 1998?

Page 296

A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Am I correct that -- withdrawn. Please hand me the minutes back. Sometimes you slip. We will put them away for now.
Let's roll forward to the fall of 1997 to the meeting at your house on December 18. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Just to set the background for the jury one more time, Mr. Gittis met with Mr. Price?
A. Gittis.
Q. I have it in my head but I keep doing it incorrectly.
He met with Mr. Price who had a -- whose mutual fund had a substantial investment in Sunbeam, correct?
A. No.
Q. He did not?
A. No.
Q. Who -- I thought Mr. Price was -- I won't quarrel with you about it.
Did Mr. Price have a substantial interest in Sunbeam?

Page 297

A. A fund of his did.
Q. A fund of his did.
I may have misspoke the way I said it.
Mr. Price's fund had a substantial interest in Sunbeam in 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Price approached Mr. Gittis at some function and asked him to come over to his house for drinks, is that what you understand happened?
A. No.
Q. What do you understand happened?
A. I thought it was a phone call.
Q. As of this phone call did Mr. Gittis then come over to Mr. Price's house where Mr. Dunlap was present?
A. I don't know.
Q. At some point, at some point after this initial meeting -- well, at some point Mr. Gittis did meet with Mr. Dunlap; is that correct before -- let me try again.
Before the December 18 meeting Mr. Dunlap did have a conversation with Mr. Price and Mr. Gittis; is that correct?

A. Not that I know of.
Q. Did Mr. Gittis meet Mr. Dunlap before the meeting on December 18?
A. Not that I know of.
Q. We will ask him on Friday what happened.
Let's move up to the meeting at your house.
How did that meeting get scheduled?
A. I believe Michael Price calling Mr. Gittis.
Q. How do we get from the phone call to your house. What happened next?
A. I guess by car.
Q. I guess that would be a way to do it. I think my question was a little different. Probably poorly phrased.
Did Mr. Gittis ask you whether you wanted to have a meeting with Mr. Dunlap?
A. Yes.
Q. Preparatory -- did you know what the subject of the meeting was?

A. I don't believe so.
Q. You had -- when Mr. Dunlap met with you -- withdrawn.
Let's identify right now who was at the meeting at your house on December 18. Who was there?
A. I believe just the four of us, Gittis, myself, Price and Dunlap.
Q. The four of you met. What time of day was it?
A. I don't recall.
Q. For cocktails?
A. We didn't have drinks, I don't think.
Q. Was the -- did you have any idea what the purpose of the meeting was?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. I take it then that you had not done any type of investigation of Sunbeam in advance of the meeting; is that right?
A. I may have.
Q. What may you have done?
A. I may have done some looking at Sunbeam prior to the meeting.
Q. Did you have anyone at MacAndrews

& Forbes do any investigation of a possible combination between Sunbeam and Coleman before the December 18 meeting at your house?
A. Possibly but I don't recall.
Q. Did you ask -- withdrawn.
Mr. -- let me see MS 224.
The court reporter has handed you what has previously been marked as MS 224. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. That is a memorandum dated December 15, 1997 to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Gittis and Mr. Maher, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. From Mr. Nesbitt?
A. Right.
Q. It is about Mr. Dunlap's employment contract?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ask that information, this information in this memorandum MS 224 to be gathered?

A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did this memorandum from Mr. Nesbitt just appear on your desk without any forewarning to you?
A. You will have to ask Mr. Nesbitt.
Q. Not to be flip but was Mr. Nesbitt in the habit of sending you, Mr. Perelman -- let me finish the question -- unsolicited memorandum?
A. It may have been solicited by Maher, by Gittis. It wasn't solicited by me. It is addressed to three of us.
Q. Did you read it?
A. I don't think I ever saw this before.
Q. Is there a reason why you think you did not see it before?
A. Because it doesn't look familiar.
Q. Can you tell me why Mr. Maher or Mr. Gittis would be preparing -- having Mr. Nesbitt prepare a memorandum on Mr. Dunlap's employment contract as of December 15, 1997?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.

THE WITNESS: Maybe Mr. Gittis thought he was looking for a job at the meeting. I don't know.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Mr. Dunlap was looking for a job at the meeting in your house?
A. Maybe. I don't know.
Q. I would like to ask you now to focus on the meeting at your house on December 18.
I might withdraw the pending question.
A. Do you want this back?
Q. For the time being just hold on to it.
The court reporter is going to hand you what has been marked or was marked in Mr. Nesbitt's deposition as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104.
I have handed you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104 which Mr. Nesbitt testified in his deposition he prepared.
Have you ever seen this document before?

Page 303

A. Possibly.
Q. Did you see it on or about the date it bears, January -- excuse me, December 8, 1997?
A. I am not sure.
Q. What were the circumstances under which you think you possibly saw this document?
A. It would be sent to me.
Q. Sorry?
A. It would have been sent to me.
Q. It would have been sent to you?
A. Yes. I don't know if I saw this -- I don't know when this was prepared.
Q. Look up in the upper right-hand corner and you will see the time of the run and the date which Mr. Nesbitt confirmed would have been December 8, 1997.
A. Yes, but I think this was distributed, the back page of this has a handwritten note that says, Sunbeam, I believe this is McKay, something McKitty, the guy from Morgan Stanley, agenda M5 -- something Bank of America, First Union,

Page 304

Bank of America.
This must be very late that I would have seen this.
Q. First of all, Mr. Nesbitt was unable to identify the last page being attached to this document. Setting that aside --
A. You just gave it to me.
Q. Can we focus us right now on the spreadsheet?
A. Yes.
Q. There is a spreadsheet, multiple pages, dated December 8, 1997 with a 2:13 p.m. run date.
A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell me why as of December 8, 1997 MacAndrews & Forbes was looking at a possible Sunbeam-Coleman combination?
MR. SOLOVY: I object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't know what date it was because clearly the last piece of paper attached has the time frame far after December 8, 1997 so I don't know where you attribute the specific time.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. To Mr. Nesbitt' sworn testimony. That is when he said he prepared it.
A. How does he swear to the fact when the last page is --
Q. This is not my document. It is a CPH document.
A. Whose document?
Q. Coleman (Parent) Holdings, your company's document.
A. I don't know either.
Q. Can we --
A. You gave it to me. I am just trying to respond to the document you gave me and I see part of it as referring to bank financing which probably wasn't developed until, what, February of 1998.
Q. Can we try to focus on the question that I have asked? I realize it is getting late in the day.
A. Okay. Ask the question.
Q. On December 8, 1997 was MacAndrews & Forbes looking at a possible combination between Sunbeam and Coleman as set forth in Mr. Nesbitt's spreadsheets of that day that you have in front of you, MS 104?

A. I don't know what that means. I didn't tell Nesbitt to do this.
Q. Can you explain to me why Mr. Nesbitt would be doing these spreadsheets as early as December 8, 1997?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't know if it was December 8. The back page would indicate sometime in February.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I will not quarrel with you. We will let Mr. Nesbitt's testimony take care of that.
That is not your handwriting on the last page; is it?
A. No.
Q. Do you know whose it is?
A. No.
Q. No idea?
A. No idea.

Page 307

Q. Let me show you Exhibit MS 105. This is a spreadsheet that Mr. Nesbitt prepared.
I hand you 105, counsel.
Mr. Reporter, could you please hand that to the witness? It has been previously marked.
A. Right.
Q. You have Exhibit 105 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. This is a spreadsheet that Mr. Nesbitt testified that he prepared on or about December 10, 1997.
Have you seen this document before?
A. I would imagine so, yes.
Q. Did you see it on or about December 10 of 1997?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you see it before your meeting with Mr. Dunlap on December 18, 1997?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Can you tell me why Mr. Nesbitt was preparing an analysis of a Sunbeam-Coleman combination as of December 10, 1997?

Page 308

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: No.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You had not given any such instruction; is that fair?
A. That is correct.
Q. Had you given Mr. Maher instructions to begin an analysis of a possible Sunbeam-Coleman combination?
A. No.
Q. Had you talked to Mr. -- had you told Mr. Maher as of December 10, 1997 that there was going to be a meeting with Mr. -- strike that.
When -- strike that.
How far in advance of December 18, 1997 was the meeting set between you and Mr. Dunlap at your house in Palm Beach?
A. I don't know. I don't know when it was set.
Q. If you will turn to page 3 of

Page 309

Exhibit 105, in the box -- first box that appears below the heading Merger Consequences Assuming Pooling Treatment Not Available, do you see that box?
A. Yes.
Q. There is, there are four lines. The third and fourth are PF, which I believe means pro forma, (dilution with cost savings of 40,000) which I believe is 40 million, based on Mr. Nesbitt's testimony.
Do you see that?
A. No.
Q. Did you say you can't see it?
A. I haven't found it yet.
Q. Okay.
Look in the second box on the -- full box. The heading inside the box is 1998E.
A. You are on page 3?
Q. On the bottom of page 3. This box.
A. Oh, okay.
Q. The question --
A. I see, right.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015554

Q. Let me try to get the question out so the jury will understand what it was.
A. Right.
Q. Inside that box it reads, "PF" and then "dilution, in parentheses, with cost savings of 40,000," which, if those are in thousands that would be $40 million those are so-called synergies, cost savings?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I don't know what they are. I didn't prepare this document.
Q. You don't understand --
A. It says cost savings but you are asking me are they synergies. I don't know what they are.
Q. Are -- withdrawn.
Do you know where Mr. Nesbitt came up with the figure of $40 million?
A. No.
Q. In the next line he has cost savings of $60 million. Do you see that?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you know where he obtained that number?
A. No.
Q. You didn't provide it to him?
A. No.
Q. You are not aware of Mr. Maher providing it to him, right?
A. I don't know.
Q. You can hand that back to me. We are done with that.
It is your understanding that -- it is your testimony that as of December 12, 1997 you had not given Mr. Maher any instructions to prepare any analysis of a combination of Coleman and Sunbeam, is that right?
A. Not that I am aware of, no.
Q. Not that you are aware of.
Let me show you now a document which we will mark -- excuse me -- has been marked as Plaintiff's Exhibit 353.
I have handed you what I referred to as Plaintiff's Exhibit 353 but it is

Morgan Stanley Exhibit 353.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you receive this document from Mr. Nesbitt on December 11, 1997?
A. I would imagine so.
Q. He writes, "To the extent that you are wondering when a combined Sunbeam-Coleman could affect a pooling with Black & Decker the answer is two years following a Sunbeam/Coleman combination."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Had you discussed with Mr. Nesbitt when there could be a Sunbeam-Coleman combination with Black & Decker?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Have you ever heard of the expression "out of the blue?"
A. Yes.
Q. Did you receive this memorandum from Mr. Nesbitt just out of the blue?
A. It could have been thinking out of the blue.

Q. He could have --
A. It could have been thinking out of the blue. Maybe in some passing conversation, you know, but I never heard of Black & Decker having any interest in Coleman or Sunbeam or anything else.
Q. By this time had you talked to Mr. Nesbitt about a Sunbeam-Coleman combination?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Do you know where he would have, that is, Mr. Nesbitt, would have gotten the idea for a "combined Sunbeam/Coleman entity?"
A. No. Look -- if the meeting with Dunlap had been set up around December 11, you know, people, Nesbitt or Maher or Gittis, may have been speculating that he either wanted to talk about getting a job which is why there was a synopsis of his employment contract or doing some kind of transaction, you know, but I don't know -- I don't know where Black & Decker comes from.
I never heard Black & Decker

having any interest in Sunbeam or Coleman.
Q. Or a Sunbeam-Coleman combination?
A. Correct.
Q. By the way, you said you were -- withdrawn.
You said something about Mr. Dunlap may have been coming to your house to ask for a job.
Is that what you said?
A. You gave me this synopsis of his contract.
Q. I sure did. My question is: Did you say that one of the possibilities was that Mr. Dunlap was coming to your house on December 18 to ask for a job?
A. Somebody must have thought that. Why else would they give us a contract, a synopsis of his contract?
Q. What job did you think that Mr. Dunlap was coming to your house for?
A. I never saw this before but you gave me a piece of paper that gives a synopsis of Dunlap's contract on December 15.
Q. The piece of paper is addressed to you.

A. Addressed to three people.
Q. Is it addressed to you?
A. It is addressed to Howard Gittis, James Maher and Ronald Perelman.
I never saw this piece of paper before. Somebody must have come up with the idea that he might be looking for a job.
Why else would they have a synopsis of his contract?
Q. As I understand it your people, your analysts, Mr. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt, they were speculating that Mr. Dunlap was going to meet at your house in Palm Beach and ask you for a job?
A. Maybe. Maybe.
Q. Hand that back to me.
A. Okay.
Q. We will put that one away.
A. Okay.
Q. You can hand back 353 as well. I will get it out of your way.
A. Thank you very much.
Q. The court reporter will hand you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 165.

Page 316

Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Nesbitt testified under oath that he prepared this document on or about December 11, 1997 which is a comparison of Sunbeam's quarterly earnings as well as some additional analyses that appear on the other pages.
Would you like to take a minute and look through it or can I go ahead?
A. Go ahead.
Q. Have you seen before Exhibit Morgan Stanley 165?
A. 165 looks like it encompasses the previous one you showed me.
Q. It does indeed, sir, attach to it some pages from Exhibit 105. I can only tell you that is how the document was provided to Morgan Stanley by your company.
My only question is have you seen the document before?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. You can hand that back to me.

Page 317

Can you tell the jury why as of December 11, 1997 Mr. Nesbitt would have been doing comparisons of Sunbeam's quarterly earnings, analysis of cash versus a stock comparison between all stock and all cash if the two companies were combined, other -- and attaching other pro forma information on Sunbeam-Coleman combination, Mr. Dunlap was coming to your house to ask for a job?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form. Wait a second. Object to the form of the question as complex, compound and not really subject to one answer, in addition to asking him for somebody else's state of mind.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I don't understand that but --
Q. Okay. You don't understand it?
A. I think I should make one thing clear. I would like to make one thing clear.
On December 18 there was a meeting held with Al Dunlap, Ronald

CONFIDENTIAL 015559

Page 318

Perelman, Howard Gittis and Michael Price. Sometime prior to that meeting it was set up. It was not set up by me. It was set up between Michael Price and Howard Gittis.

I do not know when that meeting was set up. Sometime prior to that meeting there was obviously speculation as to what the meeting was going to be about. That would not be unusual.

I did not tell Mr. Maher or Mr. Nesbitt to the best of my knowledge and awareness to prepare any of these documents because I did not know specifically what Mr. Dunlap was coming for.

You have shown me today a whole series of documents. Some talk about Black & Decker, some talk about Mr. Dunlap's employment contracts and some talk about Sunbeam.

I have imagined that all of these were prepared to give some kind of background to the meeting held on December 18.

I mean, he obviously asked for a meeting not to talk to me about how good looking we are, to talk about something, so I imagine that was done in preparation for that meeting, not by me.

Q. Let me show you a document previously marked as MS 78.

The court reporter has handed you a document previously marked as MS 78. Do you have that document in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. This document has an attachment to it.

Setting aside the handwriting which I don't want you to be concerned about, have you ever seen the document before?

A. No.

Q. Were you aware that on December 12, 1997 there was a meeting between Sunbeam and Coleman at which the parties discussed "synergies and cost savings in putting the two companies together."

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Levin in December of 1997, before December 12, in a telephone call that --

Page 320

A. Wait. What is the date of this?

Q. Let me rephrase the question.

Before December 12?

A. Before December 12.

Q. Before December 12, 1997 did you tell Mr. Levin in a phone call that was -- withdrawn.

Let me try it again. It is getting late in the day for both of us.

Before December 12, 1997 did you participate in a telephone call with Mr. Levin and Mr. Gittis about --

A. Mr. Gittis.

Q. Mr. Gittis, once again, Gittis, I will get it down. One more time. Withdraw the question.

Did you participate in a telephone call before December 12 with Mr. Gittis and Mr. Levin at which you told Mr. Levin that Mr. Dunlap had expressed an interest in buying Coleman and that the two of you, that is, yourself and Mr. Gittis, wanted Mr. Levin to prepare materials relating to a meeting that was to take place with Mr. Dunlap's people several days later? Did you tell Mr. Levin that?

A. Who was meeting with Dunlap and his people? This question -- I don't understand the question.

Q. Then I will rephrase it for you. I don't want you to answer a question you don't understand.

Did you tell -- strike that.

Did you have a telephone conference with Mr. Levin sometime before December 12 where Mr. Gittis was also on the line and you asked Mr. Levin to prepare some potential cost savings that might be achieved in a combination between Coleman and Sunbeam?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Levin any time before December 12 that he should prepare materials relating to ideas for potential synergies between Coleman and Sunbeam?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Were you aware that there was a meeting in MacAndrews & Forbes' offices on December 12 between representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman and Sunbeam to discuss the potential cost savings and synergies that are attached to the second page of Exhibit MS 78 that you have in front of you?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. No.

Q. You are totally unaware of that meeting?

A. Totally unaware. This by the way is dated December 15.

Q. It is a fax referring to a meeting that took place the preceding Friday. That is why I was referring to December 12, if you read the cover.

You can hand that back to me unless you want to look at it some more.

A. Morgan Stanley was involved back then with these synergies, these cost savings?

Q. I am not trying to be rude to you. It is not my role to answer questions here.

A. I notice Mr. Kitts' name on the top.

Q. Please don't take my not answering the question as rudeness, please.

MR. SOLOVY: Let me ask you, Mr. Bemis, as points of inquiry. It is two minutes to go. You are tired, he is tired. How much longer do you want to go?

MR. BEMIS: If it is two minutes to go then my watch is a little bit off. I will be happy to stop right here. I thought we had about six or seven.

MR. SOLOVY: I was going by the --

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: I have two more minutes. 5:43.

MR. BEMIS: How much is on the tape?

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time I have is 5:43.

MR. BEMIS: If it is 5:43 on the tape we will adjourn for today and pick up tomorrow. I apologize for being a bad timekeeper.

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S RESPONSES AND OBJECTIONS TO MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INC.'S FIFTH SET OF INTERROGATORIES

Plaintiff Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), by its attorneys and pursuant to Rules 1.280 and 1.340 of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure and the Court's October 14, 2004 Order, responds and objects to Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.'s ("Morgan Stanley's") Fifth Set of Interrogatories ("Interrogatories") as follows:

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

1. CPH objects to the Interrogatories, including all Definitions and Instructions, to the extent they purport to impose upon CPH any requirements that exceed or are inconsistent with the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure or any other applicable rule or court order.

2. CPH objects to the Interrogatories to the extent that they seek information protected from disclosure by the attorney-client privilege, the work product doctrine, or any other privilege, doctrine, immunity, or rule. CPH reserves the right to assert any and all privileges to which CPH is entitled under the law.

3. CPH objects to the definitions of "CPH" and "MAFCO" to the extent they include CPH's counsel in this litigation. CPH interprets these definitions to exclude Jenner & Block, LLP and Searcy Denney Scarola Barnhart & Shipley P.A., and their respective attorneys.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

4. CPH's response to any interrogatory is not intended and should not be construed as an acknowledgment that the requested information is relevant or that any persons identified actually possess knowledge or information relevant to the subject matter of this action.

5. CPH's objections and responses are based on a good-faith investigation. CPH expressly reserves the right to amend and/or modify its objections and responses.

6. CPH responds to Morgan Stanley's Interrogatories without waiving the Initial Objections. CPH incorporates, as though fully set forth therein, these Initial Objections into each of its responses.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

FURTHER OBJECTIONS

INTERROGATORY 1: Identify every instance in which Mafco or CPH engaged or retained Morgan Stanley between January 1, 1993 and March 30, 1998. Your response should identify the nature, subject, and purpose of each such engagement, the transaction or proposed transaction contemplated by each such engagement, and the name(s) of any Morgan Stanley employee or agents retained or consulted by Mafco or CPH.

FURTHER OBJECTION AND RESPONSE: CPH objects to this interrogatory as unduly burdensome because it seeks information already in the possession of Morgan Stanley and details concerning "every instance" in which Morgan Stanley was engaged or retained. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("Mafco"), CPH, and their affiliates worked with Morgan Stanley on numerous occasions and in numerous capacities during this multi-year period, which ended more than six years ago. None of these companies keeps records of the sort that would allow for an easy or comprehensive determination of all of the engagements in which Morgan Stanley may have played some role. Thus, the information set forth below is necessarily incomplete and tentative, but CPH has made a reasonable effort to compile this response. CPH's investigation continues. CPH also notes that Interrogatory No. 1 constitutes multiple separate interrogatories. Subject to and notwithstanding its Initial and Further Objections, CPH states that

Morgan Stanley was involved in the following transactions with Mafco, CPH, or affiliated companies:

- In 1985, Morgan Stanley served as advisor to Pantry Pride, Inc. ("Pantry Pride"), a Mafco affiliate, in its acquisition of Revlon, Inc. ("Old Revlon").
- In 1986, Morgan Stanley served as an advisor to Pantry Pride in the sale of Old Revlon's pharmaceutical business to Rorer Group Inc.
- In 1989, Morgan Stanley served as an advisor to The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Old Coleman") during the acquisition by a Mafco affiliate of Old Coleman.
- In 1989, Morgan Stanley served as Old Coleman's financial advisor when Old Coleman reviewed the $460.5 million buyout proposal by former Old Coleman chairman Sheldon Coleman and other members of the Coleman family.
- In 1991, National Health Laboratories Incorporated ("NHL"), an affiliate of Mafco, completed a secondary public offering of its common stock, for which Morgan Stanley served as a co-manager.
- In 1992, National Health Care Group Inc. (an indirect Mafco subsidiary) sold 14 million shares of NHL in a registered offering through Morgan Stanley and other underwriters.
- In 1992, Morgan Stanley served as an underwriter for Old Coleman's February 1992 offering of $100 million in Guaranteed Pass Through Certificates due 2022.
- In 1992, Morgan Stanley served as a joint underwriting manager for the $83 million initial public offering by The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") of its common stock.
- In 1992, Revlon, Inc. ("Revlon") planned but did not complete a $120 million initial public offering of its common stock, which was to be co-managed by Morgan Stanley.
- In 1992, MacAndrews & Forbes Company ("Flavors"), a Mafco affiliate, retained Morgan Stanley and other underwriters in connection with a contemplated, but later withdrawn, initial public offering of its common stock.
- In 1992, Morgan Stanley co-managed an $85 million 12% senior debt offering for Flavors.
- In 1993, Morgan Stanley served as the financial advisor for NHL in connection with its proposed acquisition of Damon Corp.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

- In 1993-94, Morgan Stanley served as one of the underwriters for a $125 million senior subordinated notes offering by Marvel III Holdings Inc., a Mafco affiliate.

- In 1994, Morgan Stanley served as the financial advisor and dealer manager for NHL's tender offer for the outstanding shares of Allied Clinical Laboratories Inc.

- In 1994, Morgan Stanley served as the financing agent for $200 million of senior notes issued by NHL Intermediate Holdings Corp. II, a unit of National Health Laboratories Holdings Inc., a Mafco affiliate.

- In 1994, New World Communications Group Incorporated, a Mafco affiliate, arranged for $200 million in financing using Morgan Stanley, as agent.

- In 1995, Toy Biz, Inc. ("Toy Biz"), a Mafco affiliate, and one of its shareholders sold Toy Biz common stock in a $62 million initial public offering co-managed by Morgan Stanley.

- In 1995, a Mafco affiliate and Abex Inc. agreed to merge. Morgan Stanley served as a financial advisor to Mafco in this transaction.

- In 1996, Revlon completed a $180 million initial public offering of its common stock, which was co-managed by Morgan Stanley.

- In 1996, Morgan Stanley led an underwriting group in conjunction with the $48 million sale by Toy Biz and one of its shareholders of shares of Toy Biz common stock.

- In 1996, Consolidated Cigar Holdings Inc. ("Cigar"), a Mafco affiliate, completed a $124 million initial public offering of its common stock, which was co-managed by Morgan Stanley.

- In 1997, Cigar completed a $118 million additional offering of its common stock, which was co-managed by Morgan Stanley.

- In 1997, Mafco Holdings Inc., a Mafco affiliate, completed a "going private" transaction with its affiliate, Mafco Consolidated Group Inc. ("Mafco Consolidated"). Mafco Consolidated retained Morgan Stanley as a financial advisor to represent the minority interest in evaluating and negotiating the Mafco Holdings proposal.

In addition to the transactions listed above, in late 1997 and early 1998, Morgan Stanley (including at least William Reid, Robert Kitts, and Matt Grogan) sought to interest Mafco in a transaction involving Gucci. In early 1998, Morgan Stanley (including at least Mark Perret and Edwin Datson) also sought to interest Mafco in possible European acquisition opportunities.

INTERROGATORY 2: Identify all communications between Coleman, CPH, or Mafco (or any of their attorneys or financial advisors) and Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen, Morgan Stanley, or Skadden Arps between March 19, 1998 and March 30, 1998 concerning Sunbeam's sales during the first quarter of 1998, Sunbeam's March 19, 1998 Press Release, or any of the information contained in Sunbeam's March 19, 1998 Press Release.

FURTHER OBJECTION AND RESPONSE: Subject to and without waiving its Initial Objections, CPH states that a CPH representative attended Sunbeam's and Morgan Stanley's "roadshow" presentation for the Senior Subordinated Convertible Debenture offering on March 18, 1998, at which Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley misrepresented and concealed Sunbeam's true condition. Further, after the March 19, 1998 press release was issued, one or more CPH and/or Coleman representatives reached out to and spoke with one or more Sunbeam and/or Morgan Stanley employees concerning the subject matter of the interrogatory. Sunbeam and/or Morgan Stanley assured CPH and/or Coleman that Sunbeam would make the sales numbers it previously had projected for the first quarter of 1998 and the full year. Sunbeam and/or Morgan Stanley also represented that the March 19, 1998 press release had been issued out of an abundance of caution, solely at the behest of legal counsel, due to the debenture offering and not because there was any problem at Sunbeam that imperiled its previous projections. In addition, CPH had a request outstanding throughout this period pursuant to Section 6.8 of the Agreement and Plan of Merger among Sunbeam Corporation, Laser Acquisition Corp., CLN Holdings Inc. and CPH dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Holdings Merger Agreement") for, among other things, advice of any change or event that would be materially adverse. CPH further states that there were numerous communications between CPH and/or Coleman and Sunbeam and/or Morgan Stanley during this time period and Sunbeam and/or Morgan Stanley failed to inform CPH and/or Coleman of Sunbeam's true condition.

INTERROGATORY 3: Identify all inquiries or requests for information that Coleman, CPH, or Mafco (or any of their attorneys or financial advisors) made to Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen, Morgan Stanley, or Skadden Arps regarding Sunbeam's history, operations, financial performance, or projection that Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen, Morgan Stanley, or Skadden Arps failed or refused to answer.

FURTHER OBJECTION AND RESPONSE: Morgan Stanley has exceeded any conceivable calculation of its 30 permissible interrogatories under Rule 1.340 of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure without securing the agreement of plaintiff or a court order. Subject to and without waiving its Initial or Further Objections, CPH states that prior to the March 30, 1998 closing, CPH made the following requests for information from Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley: (i) on or before February 23, 1998, CPH and Coleman representatives requested that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam provide information about Sunbeam, including Sunbeam's history, operations, financial performance, and projections, but Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam did not provide truthful information to CPH and Coleman in response; (ii) on February 27, 1998, CPH and Coleman requested that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam advise CPH and Coleman if Sunbeam's operations and/or financial performance changed in a material adverse manner (see § 6.8 of the Holdings Merger Agreement), but Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam did not provide truthful information to CPH and Coleman in response; (iii) a CPH representative attended Sunbeam's and Morgan Stanley's "roadshow" presentation for the Senior Subordinated Convertible Debenture offering on March 18, 1998, at which Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley misrepresented and concealed Sunbeam's true condition, and (iv) after the March 19, 1998 press release was issued, CPH and Coleman requested that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam provide information concerning Sunbeam, including Sunbeam's operations, financial information, and projections, but Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam failed to provide truthful information to CPH and Coleman in response.

INTERROGATORY 4: For each of Morgan Stanley's Second, Third, and Fourth Set of Requests for Admission that CPH has denied, in whole or in part, state each fact that supports the denial. If CPH's denial is related to its objection to Morgan Stanley's definition of the term "CPH" in the Requests for Admission, state how CPH's response to the Request for Admission would change if CPH applied Morgan Stanley's definition.

FURTHER OBJECTION AND RESPONSE: Morgan Stanley has exceeded any conceivable calculation of its 30 permissible interrogatories under Rule 1.340 of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure without securing the agreement of plaintiff or a court order. CPH further objects to Interrogatory No. 4 as overbroad insofar as it seeks identification of "all facts" that support CPH's denial of the requests for admission. CPH also notes that Interrogatory No. 4 constitutes multiple separate interrogatories. Subject to and without waiving its Initial or Further Objections, CPH states the following:

Morgan Stanley's Second Set of Requests for Admission:

No. 1: CPH did not retain CSFB. Rather, Coleman retained CSFB.

No. 3: Mafco did not retain CSFB. Rather, Coleman retained CSFB.

Nos. 4, 5, 11, 12, 17, 21: CSFB did not have the same responsibilities and relationship with Sunbeam as Morgan Stanley did with Sunbeam.

Nos. 9, 10, 13, 14: Wachtell Lipton, Rosen & Katz did not have the same responsibilities and relationship with Sunbeam as Morgan Stanley did with Sunbeam.

Nos. 16, 18, 20, 22: Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz performed customary legal services in connection with the Coleman Transaction.

No. 23: One or more of the pre-March 19, 1998 drafts of the Arthur Andersen comfort letters were communicated to Morgan Stanley on or about March 18, 1998 and pre-March 19, 1998 drafts of the comfort letter have been produced in this litigation.

015557

Morgan Stanley's Third Set of Requests for Admission:

Nos. 9, 13, 17: Coleman did not close the March 30, 1998 Coleman Transaction. Coleman could not have obtained the "comfort letters" described by Section 7.3(b) of the Public Merger Agreement prior to the March 30, 1998 closing of the CPH transaction.

Nos. 10, 14, 18: CLN could not have obtained the "comfort letters" described by Section 7.3(b) of the Public Merger Agreement prior to the March 30, 1998 closing of the CPH transaction.

Nos. 11, 15, 19: CPH could not have obtained the "comfort letters" described by Section 7.3(b) of the Public Merger Agreement prior to the March 30, 1998 closing of the CPH transaction.

No. 12, 16, 20: Mafco did not close the March 30, 1998 Coleman Transaction. Mafco could not have obtained the "comfort letters" described by Section 7.3(b) of the Public Merger Agreement prior to the March 30, 1998 closing of the CPH transaction.

Morgan Stanley's Fourth Set of Requests for Admission:

No. 1: The February 23, 1998 Letter was not drafted by counsel for CPH and was not signed.

No. 2: There is no evidence that the February 23, 1998 Letter is the agreement referred to in those merger agreement provisions.

Nos. 3, 4, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14: In negotiating the merger agreement, CPH requested and Sunbeam agreed to provide information reflecting any material adverse development in Sunbeam's performance or operations. The information referred to in these Requests plainly would have been within the scope of that provision. Morgan Stanley knew that Sunbeam had an affirmative obligation to notify CPH of any material adverse change and yet Morgan Stanley affirmatively assisted Sunbeam in concealing from and misrepresenting to CPH this information.

No. 5: CPH did not learn that 50% of Sunbeam's sales typically occurred in the last month of the quarter. Rather, CPH reviewed analyst commentary that suggested that in the third quarter of 1997, 50% of Sunbeam's sales occurred in the last month of the quarter.

No. 6: An analyst mentioned possible international sales pipeline filling.

No. 7: Not all Sunbeam Research Analysts decreased their estimates of Sunbeam's 1998 Earnings Per Share.

No. 8: No one told CPH representatives that Sunbeam's February 1998 sales were slow.

No. 15: Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley misrepresented and concealed the true facts concerning Sunbeam during the negotiations with CPH and Coleman.

No. 17: Morgan Stanley participated in the oral presentation of the Long Range Strategic Plan, which also was presented by both Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam in written form.

Nos. 18, 20, 21, 22: The facts known to Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley rendered those statements false.

No. 19: CPH lacks information sufficient to answer this request. CPH further states that Morgan Stanley adopted and vouched for the statements by incorporating them into Morgan Stanley's presentation.

No. 23: CPH wanted and accepted Sunbeam's stock on the basis of Sunbeam's and Morgan Stanley's representations concerning the condition and performance of Sunbeam, but CPH did not affirmatively request it.

No. 25: CPH exercised its rights by obtaining the right in § 6.8 of the Holdings Merger Agreement to receive notice of material adverse changes. Further, among other things, (a) CPH received and reviewed Sunbeam's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 29, 1997; (b) a CPH representative attended one of the "roadshow" presentations made by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley in connection with its offering of Senior Subordinated Convertible Debentures that were used to finance the acquisition; (c) a CPH representative obtained and reviewed the offering memorandum prepared and distributed by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley in connection with the offering of the debentures; (d) CPH received and reviewed the March 19, 1998 press release drafted by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley; (e) following its receipt of the March 19, 1998 press release, one or more CPH and/or Coleman representatives contacted and spoke with one or more Sunbeam and/or Morgan Stanley representatives concerning the release and Sunbeam's expectations for first quarter 1998.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0155569

No. 26: CPH does not have information sufficient to determine whether the handwriting on the identified documents is authentic.

No. 27: CPH does not believe that the documents on Exhibit 2 of the response meet the requirements of Florida Evidence Code ¶ 90.803(b). As to the remaining documents and all handwriting, CPH denies that or does not have information sufficient to determine whether those documents meet the requirements of Florida Evidence Code ¶ 90.803(a).

No. 28: CPH did not author the documents or handwriting in question.

INTERROGATORY 5: State the value that CPH and/or Mafco ascribed to the warrants that they received from Sunbeam pursuant to the August 12, 1998 settlement between CPH and Sunbeam, including but not limited to the value that CPH and Mafco placed upon the warrants for tax or accounting purposes and an identification of all persons from CPH, Mafco, or their outside advisors involved in the valuation.

FURTHER OBJECTION AND RESPONSE: Morgan Stanley has exceeded any conceivable calculation of its 30 permissible interrogatories under Rule 1.340 of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure without securing the agreement of plaintiff or a court order. CPH further objects that the interrogatory is overbroad and not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence to extent that the interrogatory is not limited as to time. CPH further objects that neither the tax treatment nor the accounting treatment of the warrants is a relevant issue in this case. CPH further objects that it has not placed the treatment of the warrants for taxation purposes at issue in this action, and Morgan Stanley has failed to show that it is unable to obtain discovery concerning the value of the warrants from other sources. CPH further objects to this interrogatory to the extent that it calls for information protected by the attorney-client privilege, work product doctrine or the accountant privilege. Moreover, CPH further objects to this interrogatory as vague and ambiguous in its use of the term "value," which is susceptible to different meanings.

Subject to and without waiving its Initial or Further Objections, CPH states that the warrants had no value to CPH when they were received, or at any time thereafter. CPH refers to the November 18, 2004 corporate representative deposition of CPH (Mr. Laurence Winoker), the November 17 and November 18, 2004 deposition of Ronald O. Perelman, and the November 19, 2004 deposition of Howard Gittis for information concerning the economic value ascribed to the warrants by CPH and its management, as well as CPH's treatment of the warrants in CPH's books and records.

INTERROGATORY 6: Identify every potential bidder and/or acquirer for Coleman that discussed a proposed acquisition of Coleman with Mafco, CPH or Coleman between January 1, 1997 and March 30, 1998, including without limitation "the most likely potential bidder" referenced at CPH 0634057 of the 2/25/98 Coleman Board Meeting Minutes. Your response should include the dates, terms and outcome of any such discussions.

FURTHER OBJECTION AND RESPONSE: Morgan Stanley has exceeded any conceivable calculation of its 30 permissible interrogatories under Rule 1.340 of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure without securing the agreement of plaintiff or a court order. CPH further objects that the interrogatory is not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Subject to and without waiving its Initial and Further Objections, CPH states that the "most likely potential bidder" referenced in the February 25, 1998 Coleman Board meeting minutes was Brunswick Corporation. In further response, CPH incorporates by reference the November 19, 2004 deposition testimony of Howard Gittis concerning the contact with Brunswick.

This marks the beginning of tape number one, volume two of the continuing videotaped deposition of Ronald O. Perelman.

RONALD O. PERELMAN, called as a witness by the Defendants, having been previously duly affirmed, testified further as follows:

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Perelman.
A. Good morning.
Q. Yesterday when we adjourned we were discussing events in December of 1997. Are you there with me?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you participate in any of the discussions to retain Credit Suisse First Boston by Coleman?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. I apologize for not putting that on.

Let me show you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75 which is a chronology that has been identified as having been prepared by Wachtell, Lipton which was counsel retained by MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman in the transaction.
I would ask you to look at the Exhibit A attached thereto. You will see it begins with some dates early December 1997.
A. Yes.
Q. Look at the date December 12, 1997 in the second paragraph in particular.
A. Right.
Q. It refers to a meeting that you had with Mr. Gittis and Mr. Maher, Mr. Gordon Rich of Credit Suisse First Boston as well as Mr. Levin, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. That meeting does not appear on your calendar that I can find.
I meant your cards.

Page 333

Did you attend the meeting on December 12 that is referred to there?
A. Possibly.
Q. As you sit here today do you have any specific recollection of being involved in any way in the retention discussions having now looked at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75?
A. No.
Q. Let's move forward then to the meeting with Mr. Dunlap at your home in Palm Beach.
I want to show you a document that we will mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 174.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 174 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 174 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you receive this document which is -- purports to be a letter from Al Dunlap to Ron, which I assume is you, Mr. Perelman?

Page 334

A. I don't recall ever seeing this letter.
Q. In this exhibit, MS 174, there is reference to a phone call earlier in the day on December 16.
It says, talk but I phone call.
Do you recall talking to Mr. Dunlap in advance of your meeting at your house on December 18?
A. No, but I assume it was a phone call.
Q. Let's turn to the meeting on December 18. I think we established earlier that Mr. Price was present, Mr. Dunlap was present, you were present and Mr. Gittis was present, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If I ask you this already I apologize.
How long did the meeting last at your house?
A. Half an hour, 45 minutes, something like that. I don't think it was very long.
Q. Could you tell me what happened at the meeting?

Page 335

A. Generally?
Q. Generally -- why don't we start there and then we will get into some more details.
A. Generally we exchanged some pleasantries. Dunlap then indicated that he wanted to buy Coleman. He offered a price for the purchase of Coleman. I said, no. He then put on a little show and he left.
Q. Did -- what was -- what was the price that Mr. Dunlap offered and to which you said, no?
A. I don't recall.
Q. In the course of the meeting did -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Dunlap storm out of the meeting when it was over?
A. He left in a huff.
Q. H-U-F-F?
A. H-U-F-F.
Q. I have read a couple descriptions of the meeting and I want to ask you if they are accurate.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015578

According to -- let me ask you this.

Did Mr. Dunlap call you a pig at the meeting?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did he tell you that Coleman was a piece of shit?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did you tell him that you, Mr. Perelman, wanted $30 a share for Coleman?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap tell you that it was only worth 20 bucks?

A. I don't recall the price but he said a price.

Q. Did you tell him -- strike that.

Did Mr. Dunlap tell you that the price he was offering was an early Christmas present?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap get agitated during the meeting?

A. I don't know if "agitated" is the right word. He got excited during the meeting.

Q. Did he turn red?

A. I don't know if he turned red.

Q. At a point in the meeting did Mr. Dunlap tell you in so many words, fuck you?

A. Possibly.

Q. Did he in so many words tell you, screw you?

A. Possibly.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap in so many words say to you, to you and Mr. Gittis, you guys don't know what the fuck you are talking about?

A. Possibly.

Q. Did you respond at some point to what Mr. Dunlap said with, fuck you?

A. No.

Q. Never used that word?

A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap tell you at the meeting on December 18 that he was going to save Coleman for you, Mr. Perelman?

A. No.

Q. Nothing like that?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did he tell you I am going to do that because I did it at Scott and Sunbeam, anything like that?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did he make any reference, that is, Mr. Dunlap, to his work at Scott and Sunbeam?

A. He was very animated and excited about what a fabulous manager he was, how good he was and he we should do this transaction with him.

Q. Did Mr. Gittis say -- part of it is my accent, it is not intentional.

A. That is not hard.

Q. It is also my midwest accent that sounds improper to you.

Did you, during the meeting with Mr. Dunlap, hear him say, I give heart attacks?

A. Possibly something like that.

Q. Was that in reference to being told to calm down because Mr. Dunlap was going to have a heart attack?

A. Something like that.

Q. Did Mr. Gittis say at the meeting for Mr. Dunlap to calm down because whether we make this deal or not Ron isn't going to be any more or less rich?

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know --

A. What is that comment, whether we make this deal or not Ron --

Q. Will be any more or less rich?

A. I don't think he would have said that.

Q. At the conclusion of the meeting was -- would you describe Mr. Dunlap as agitated at the end of the meeting?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Withdrawn.

At the end of the meeting would you describe Mr. Dunlap as agitated?

A. I am not sure. I don't know how much of it was a show, how much of it was true agitation. I thought it was hysterical. I was just laughing.

Q. Mr. Dunlap was using words like

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015579

"fuck you" and you were laughing?
A. I don't know. I said to you I don't know if he used "fuck you."
Q. I thought you said possibly.
A. Possibly but I don't know if he did.
Q. Whatever it was you were laughing at him?
A. If he would have said that I would have laughed. If he called me a pig I would have laughed.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap at any point at the meeting on December 18 at your home tell you that you would never make a deal for Coleman?
A. Why would he tell me that?
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap ever say to you, Perelman, you should never listen to your lawyers?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap say to you at the conclusion of the meeting words to the effect, fuck you and fuck your company?
A. Maybe. This was not a serious meeting.

Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 408 in an earlier deposition.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Please turn to paragraph 37 of this document which is the complaint. Tell me when you are there.
Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. My understanding is you told me you did not see the complaint filed by the plaintiff in this case before it was filed, correct?
A. That is true.
Q. In paragraph 37 there is a reference to, in the first sentence, to Morgan Stanley laying the groundwork for a meeting in December 1997 in Palm Beach.
Did -- to your knowledge, did Morgan Stanley have any role in setting up the meeting at your house on December 18?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. In the same paragraph there is a statement in the last sentence that reads as follows: "During the December 1997 Palm Beach meeting when CPH rejected Dunlap's initial all stock offering Dunlap became so angry that he cursed and ranted at the CPH representatives and stormed out."

Do you see that sentence?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that an accurate description of what happened at the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. So you do remember Mr. Dunlap now cursing?
A. I don't know if he said fuck you.
Q. You remember him cursing?
A. Yes, he cursed, but I don't know if he said fuck you, or fuck your company.
You were very specific.
Q. I was.
I also said that he said your company was a piece of shit. That would be cursing, would you agree with me?
A. Yes.
Q. Is the reference to an all-stock offer correct in that sentence?
A. I believe so.

Q. Having looked at this, does this in any way refresh your recollection of any response you gave to Mr. Dunlap, you and Mr. Gittis, with regard to Mr. Dunlap's offer?
A. We said, no, and we thought the meeting was hysterical. We did not take it seriously.
Q. My question -- and then we will move on to something else.
Did you respond in any way to the all cash offer -- excuse me -- all-stock offer such as, no, we are not interested in stock, we would rather have cash, anything like that?
A. The only recollection I have is responding to the price.
Q. You don't recall what -- excuse me.
You don't recall what Mr. Dunlap offered; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. You do recall responding $30 per share?
A. That is what I wanted, yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015580

Q. If you could hand that back to me we are done with that?
Are you aware as of at least December 1997 --
MR. SOLOVY: December 18.
MR. BEMIS: Let me withdraw the question and start over. I think I probably misspoke.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Are you aware of any facts as of December 18, 1997 as you sit here today that Morgan Stanley was engaged in a fraudulent scheme with Mr. Dunlap or Sunbeam to defraud CPH, the plaintiff in this case?
A. Yes.
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. What are those facts as of December 18, 1997?
A. Yesterday you showed me a memo from the company, Sunbeam, to Morgan Stanley indicating the synergies that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam thought could be derived out of this transaction so that clearly as of that moment which was December 15 Morgan Stanley was intimately involved in the details of the Sunbeam business.

Q. Anything other than that document as you sit here today that you believe shows that Morgan Stanley was engaged in a fraudulent scheme with Sunbeam as of December 18, 1997?
A. Not that I can recall right now.
Q. Just so the record -- let me show you that December 12 document one more time so the record is clear of what you were referring to.
I have handed you what the court reporter -- withdrawn.
The court report has handed you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 78 which is page 2 of the document, the listing of synergies that you were just referring to in your testimony.
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: First of all, this is a December 15 document. I don't know, did you want to hand me a December 12 document?

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. If I said December 12 I misspoke. Let me withdraw the question.
Is the document, MS 78, that I -- that the court reporter handed you the document that you were referring to earlier?
A. The two pages, yes.
Q. The second page being a listing of so-called synergies. That is the synergies you were referring to, correct?
A. No. The two pages refer to the synergies.
Q. Do you know who prepared the second page without the handwriting of MS 78?
A. No.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Did you discuss your meeting with Mr. Dunlap on December 18 with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes after the meeting was over?

A. I am sure we did.
Q. Do you have a specific recollection of doing so?
A. Right after the meeting Gittis and I were hysterical.
Q. What do you mean right after the meeting you and Mr. Gittis were hysterical?
A. We stayed together for a couple of minutes.
Q. You stayed together at your house?
A. Yes.
Q. That is where you and Mr. Gittis were hysterical?
A. Yes. We thought --
MR. SOLOVY: Excuse me. He didn't finish.
MR. BEMIS: I apologize. I thought he was done.
THE WITNESS: We thought his -- Dunlap's behavior quite funny.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did you tell anyone else at MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman for that matter about the meeting?

A. Not specifically that I recall but I am sure the other people at MacAndrews were made aware of the meeting.
Q. Can you tell me what happened next with regard to any proposal that -- withdrawn.
What happened after the meeting with -- on December 18 with regard to Mr. Dunlap and Sunbeam's proposal even though it was rejected at the meeting?
What is the next thing that happened that you remember?
A. Say that again.
Q. What is the next thing that you remember happening in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction after the meeting on December 18?
A. That day?
Q. No, after December 18.
A. I got a call from Morgan Stanley.
Q. When was that? Is that the Bill Reid call?
A. Yes.
Q. I take it after December 18 you did not participate in any discussions or negotiations with anyone at Sunbeam about a possible Coleman-Sunbeam transaction until Mr. Reid called; is that fair?

A. I believe that is the case, yes.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Gittis participated in any such discussions with anyone about a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction before Mr. Reid's call?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Just as an example, I am not suggesting you did, did you speak or did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes to your knowledge speak with Michael Price after the December 18 meeting and before Mr. Reid's call?
A. Possibly.
Q. You don't know as you sit here today?
A. That is correct.
Q. Can you tell me, at least as of the December 18 meeting, well -- withdrawn.
As of Mr. Reid's call which I think we placed sometime in January, we will get to that in more specifics in a minute, can you tell me if MacAndrews & Forbes had done any type of due diligence about Sunbeam?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Would it be fair to say as of December 18 -- withdrawn.
Would it be fair to say that up to the time of the phone call with Mr. Reid in January of 1998 that as far as you were concerned a deal with Sunbeam if there was one was dead in the water?
A. As far as I was concerned.
Q. Yes?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you -- let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 418.
MR. BEMIS: Would you mark that, please.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 418 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I have hand -- I have asked the court reporter to hand you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 418.
Do you have that in front of you?

A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
It is dated December 22, 1997.
A. I don't believe so. What is this about?
Q. I think it is about what it says. If you haven't seen it before I don't have anymore questions for you.
A. Can I see that again?
Q. Sure.
Let the record show I am handing the witness back Exhibit Morgan Stanley 418.
A. What is that?
Q. It is an Exhibit 418.
A. Where did it come from?
MR. SOLOVY: He can't answer that, Mr. Perelman. He just has to conduct his examination.
MR. BEMIS: Again, I apologize. I am not trying to be rude. That is the rules we have to go by.

with Mr. Reid.
Am I correct it was a telephone call that you received?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did you know William Reid?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you come to know him?
A. Morgan Stanley had been our investment banker for many years.
Q. What was Mr. Reid's relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes? Was he your -- Morgan Stanley's contact with MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. One of them, yes.
Q. Had you personally done business with Mr. Reid before?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your opinion of him?
A. I thought he was very smart, very nice, very good guy.
Q. At the time that Mr. Reid called had you had any communications, you, personally, any communications with him before the phone call about a possible Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?

Page 353

A. I don't believe so.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman having any communications with Mr. Reid before the telephone call to you?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Up to December -- up to this phone call with Mr. Reid in 1998 are you aware of anyone at either Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes having any communications directly with Morgan Stanley about a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Would you tell the jury what Mr. Reid said to you and what you said to him on this telephone call when you spoke in January of 1998?
A. Generally he said that Dunlap wants to do a transaction with Coleman. I said we were apart on price before. He said we can come together on price, let's get together and sit down, something to that effect.
Q. Did you agree to get together and see if you could come together on price?

Page 354

A. I don't know if I specifically agreed to get together but I said let's get our people together.
Q. Would you consider there anything improper for Mr. Reid to call you to see if you were interested, that is, MacAndrews & Forbes, in continuing discussions?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Reid discuss a price at all during these discussions?
A. Specific price?
Q. A specific price that a transaction might be done.
A. I think it was clear that it would be close to my asking price of $30.
Q. When you say "it was clear," you were clear that it would have to be close to your asking price?
A. I think he was clear that there was movement to get there.
Q. Did the two of you discuss in this telephone call whether the consideration would be paid in cash or stock or a combination of the two?
A. I don't believe so.

Page 355

Q. Did you have any discussion about when a transaction might be completed?
A. I believe he indicated that they want to move quickly.
Q. They being Sunbeam wanted to move quickly?
A. Yes.
Q. That would be consistent with the press release that you asked me about where Sunbeam announced the -- drafted a press release announcing in December a transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam?
MR. SOLOVY: I object to the form of the question. It is strictly conjecture. He never saw the document.
THE WITNESS: The answer would be, no.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did you discuss at all with Mr. Reid whether a transaction could be done quickly if the parties could agree on price and form of consideration?
A. Say that again.
Q. Did you discuss with Mr. Reid whether a deal could be done quickly if the parties agreed on price and the form of consideration for the Coleman stock?

A. I don't know if I -- this was a simple transaction to get done. This was not hard. If both parties wanted to come to an agreement this could get done quickly.
Q. How long did you and Mr. Reid talk in this conversation?
A. A couple of minutes.
Q. After the -- strike that.
How was the conversation left with Mr. Reid?
A. I am not quite sure whether he would have his people call the MacAndrews people or the Coleman people or we would call him. I am not sure how it was followed up or if Maher would call him. It was picked up after that.
Q. At some point after the conversation there were further communications obviously between MacAndrews & Forbes and Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. And Morgan Stanley.

Q. There were -- after the meeting -- after the conversation with Mr. Reid did you have anymore conversations with him about the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction up to the closing on March 30?
A. If I saw him at a meeting I would have walked in and said hello and been a party to those conversations but I don't recall any one-on-one independent conversations.
Q. Is it fair to say that after this conversation with Mr. Reid in January of 1999 -- 1998, that the two of you had no further substantive conversations about the transaction that you can recall today?
A. No. I didn't say that.
Q. What substantive conversations did you have with Mr. Reid after that phone call?
A. I didn't say there were any. I said I do not recall any one-on-one conversations with Mr. Reid but had Mr. Reid been in meeting that I would have attended then he would have been a party to those conversations as I would have.

Page 358

Q. Do you recall any particular meeting that you and Mr. Reid attended after this telephone call?
A. Specifically at this point, no.
Q. Would you look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75 in -- which should be in front of you? That is the chronology again.
A. Right.
Q. There is a reference to the -- what I believe is the call with Mr. Reid under the date early January 19981.
A. Yes.
Q. Would you read the description to yourself that is in that paragraph?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that in your view an accurate description of your conversation with Mr. Reid in early January 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your -- your next involvement in the discussions concerning the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. I just participated from a distance at that point.
If meetings were held in the

office for due diligence or for Morgan Stanley presentations or the like I may or may not have popped in or out of them.
I would have reviewed the results of the due diligence with Maher and possibly Nesbitt and would have been apprised of the negotiations between Maher and Morgan Stanley.
Q. After the phone call with Mr. Reid in January of 1998 did you instruct Mr. Maher to proceed with negotiations?
A. I don't know if I instructed him to proceed with negotiations. I instructed him to, let's see what we can do here.
Q. Fair enough.
Is it fair then for the jury to understand that after the meeting with -- excuse me -- the telephone call with Mr. Reid that you did give Mr. Maher the task of continuing the discussions about the Coleman -- what becomes the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Then from that point forward did you rely upon Mr. Maher to conduct the negotiations on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes in consultation with you?

A. With Morgan Stanley, yes.
Q. So when you say with Morgan Stanley, I am asking -- I was asking on the MacAndrews side. My question may not have been clear. Let me try one more time.
Is it fair to say after the telephone call with Mr. Reid that you tasked Mr. Maher with, on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes, with continuing the discussions concerning what becomes the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. With Morgan Stanley.
Q. With Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam?
A. With Morgan Stanley.
Q. Did you have someone else that -- strike that?
Was there anyone else in MacAndrews & Forbes other than Mr. Maher that you specifically tasked with continuing these discussions with Morgan Stanley, if you want to put it that way?
A. I don't believe so, no.
Q. Then -- withdrawn.

Page 361

Did you also -- you said you would have reviewed with Mr. Maher the results of any of his due diligence, correct?
A. The due diligence that was going on, that is correct.
Q. Did you do that?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you satisfied at all points with Mr. Maher's due diligence?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. As -- let me withdraw the question.
Were you satisfied with the results of Mr. Maher's due diligence as he reported it to you?
A. You are making it seem that Mr. Maher was the only one doing due diligence.
Mr. Maher reported to me as to the due diligence that was being done by many people.
Q. Let me ask it then this way.
Were you satisfied with the

Page 362

results or the reports that Mr. Maher gave you about the due diligence that was being done either by him or by people who were reporting to him?
A. Or people reporting to Jerry Levin, yes.
Q. Did there come a point in time during the discussions where you, Mr. Perelman, on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes, made a decision as to the form of consideration that you would find acceptable in a transaction with Sunbeam assuming the price was agreed to?
A. Ask that again please.
Q. I thought you might ask me to do that.
Did there come a point in time in the discussions that you, Mr. Perelman, agreed upon a form of consideration, that is, combination of either cash and stock or all stock or all cash?
A. With who?
Q. With Sunbeam.
A. I still don't understand the question.

Page 363

Q. Let me see if I can do it a different way.
In the final documentation and at the closing, the form of consideration that MacAndrews & Forbes received was a combination of cash, stock and assumption of debt, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Did there come a point in time when you personally made the decision in the negotiations that that was indeed the form of consideration that you wanted, those three components?
A. That was not the form of consideration I wanted.
Q. What was the form of consideration that you wanted?
A. I wanted all stock.
Q. Why did the transaction -- strike that.
At one point in the transaction -- withdrawn.
When did you decide to accept something rather than all stock from Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015585

A. That was negotiated during the process. Sunbeam wanted more cash in the transaction and less stock and I wanted more stock in the transaction and less cash.
Q. Is it fair to say that at the time the parties signed the merger agreements that the agreement that had been reached was some form of compromise between your desire to receive all stock and Sunbeam's desire to do the transaction as you described it?
A. By definition, yes.
Q. There was a meeting that, that took place, and has testified to --
A. Can I get some more coffee?
Q. You may have all the coffee in your office that you want.

Q. Did you have any involvement in the drafting of the confidentiality agreements that are referenced in the merger agreements?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever see them?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Let me show you just one of them and then if you haven't seen them we will move on to another topic.
Let me show you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 133.
The reporter has handed you what has been marked previously as Morgan Stanley 133.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. This document was signed by Mr. Shapiro and countersigned by Mr. Fannin. Have you ever seen it before?
A. No.
Q. Then you can hand that back to me.
There is a reference in the merger agreements, both the CLN Holdings merger agreement which is Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93 and in the Coleman Merger Agreement, for shorthand, which is Morgan Stanley Exhibit 117 to a second confidentiality agreement which is dated February 23, 1998.

Did you ever see that document?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Let's move forward into February. I want to move forward into February of 1998.
Did you participate in a meeting or meetings that took place on February 23, 1998? If it helps you you can refer to MS 75.
A. I don't believe so but I can't recall.
Q. I would like to show you now a document previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84.
Do you have that exhibit in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Without regard to the handwriting that may appear on the document, have you ever seen this document before?

A. I believe so.
Q. When did you -- did you see it in your deposition preparation?
A. No.
Q. When did you first see this document?
A. I would imagine right around this time.
Q. Can you tell us the circumstances how you came to see the document?
A. I believe this and the Morgan Stanley document you showed me yesterday came out of the due diligence review.
Q. Let me, just so we are -- I want to make sure we are on the same page with what documents we are talking about.
Let me show you Exhibit Morgan Stanley 187. I am going to hand you again Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85 and please take a look at it and tell me if that is the document you were referring to.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see Exhibits -- Exhibit

85 at or about the same time that you believe you saw Exhibit 84?
A. I believe in the same time frame.
Q. So you saw them sometime -- did you see them before or after the signing of the merger agreements which were signed on February 28, on a Saturday?
A. I believe before.
Q. Did you see them in a meeting or did you just have them sent to you and you reviewed them by yourself?
A. I don't know.
Q. How much time did you spend reviewing the documents?
A. Specifically, I can't recall but I read through them.
Q. Did you -- you can set those aside for the time being.
Did you have any discussions with anyone with Morgan Stanley about either Exhibit 84 or 85 that we just looked at?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you discuss Exhibits 84 or 85 with anyone from Credit Suisse First Boston?

Page 369

A. I believe that these two documents came about in presentations being made to our people both by Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam or Sunbeam alone.
If these presentations occurred in our office I would have stopped in for part of them.
If they occurred outside of our office then I would not have. So to the extent that these would have occurred with Morgan Stanley here in our office, then I would have popped in and been a part of them.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Levin that you can recall as you sit here today about Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84 which is the Sunbeam long range strategic plan, specifically, now about this document?
A. We talked about the Sunbeam company in great length amongst ourselves between Levin and Jim Maher and myself and Howard Gittis.
This particular document was Jerry Levin's document because I noticed

Page 370

Jerry Levin's handwriting on here.
Q. Now you are referring to Morgan Stanley 84?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you please continue?
A. Obviously he added handwritten notes that came from the meetings and he would have brought me up to date on these.
Q. If you will turn to page -- turn to page -- I will give you a Bates number for it because I don't think this is paginated in a way that is easy to work with.
Turn to page Bates numbered CPH1324771.
A. Yes.
Q. Where there is the line item, net sales, it reads, "Jan. slow," and then February directly below Jan.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. You discuss -- did you discuss with Mr. Levin his handwritten notes on this page that net sales Jan. was slow?
A. Yes, but you have to continue on.

Page 371

"Jan. slow, operating profit 296" which is what they were told in front of Morgan Stanley that the company was going to do and that January slow was of no concern to anybody.
If they were going to hit the 296 operating profit, their margins were improving from 20 to 25 percent.
It is the whole story here. This is a very, very bullish story that they were being told here on, whenever it was, February, because it does not say slow here. I assumed that they were told that February was going to be very strong.
Q. You don't know what was said about February because you weren't at the meeting, correct, where this was discussed?
A. I see the notes here though. You are asking me about the notes.
Q. Yes, sir, I was.
A. I think the notes should be taken in context for the whole notes that January is slow, February good and 296 to 328 million dollars of operating profit.
Q. I don't see "February good" on

015587

Page 372

here. Where do you see that?
A. By lack of slow I assume February good.
Q. In any event, you know this is Mr. Levin's handwriting, correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Mr. Levin would probably be the person who would best know what he meant when he wrote these notes?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I see the notes all the way down.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. In any event --
A. And I know what we discussed.
Q. Let me return to what you discussed.
You know you discussed with Mr. Levin after this February 23 meeting --
A. I don't know when the meeting was.
Q. If it would help you you can look at the chronology but other witnesses have testified that was on February 23, if that helps.

If you want to look at the chronology do so. I will rephrase the question.
At the meeting where MS 84 was presented, Mr. Levin did tell you at least that whoever spoke on behalf of Sunbeam said that January sales were slow?
A. January sales were slow, February was fine and we are going to hit 296 to 328 of operating profit for the year.
Q. That would be --
A. Those are all here. That is what all was discussed.
That is a pretty bullish group of statements stated by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley.
Q. Did Mr. Levin tell you that Morgan Stanley said these things or that someone at Sunbeam said them?
A. Specifically he did not say.
Q. As you sit here today you don't know that Morgan Stanley ever said anything about what the sales were in January or February at this meeting?

Page 374

A. I know Morgan Stanley was at the meeting and Morgan Stanley was listening to this presentation and it was under the auspices of Morgan Stanley.
We were at these meetings under the auspices of Morgan Stanley.
Q. You had your investment bankers at the meeting, Credit Suisse First Boston, correct?
A. We had them there, yes.
Q. You had your representatives from MacAndrews & Forbes as well as Mr. Levin, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You had Mr. Maher there, correct?
A. Yes, but none of these people knew the statements to be false but Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley.
Q. The statements that you say that Morgan Stanley knew at this time, February 23, that the full year results for 1998 that were projected here were false?
A. Yes.
Q. Based -- what are the facts that you base that statement?

Page 375

A. Because what they knew for the first quarter at that moment were so weak that there was no way that this company could have generated that kind of growth.
Their sales were significantly below last year. They didn't say significantly below last year. They said, slow. There is a big difference.
Secondly, they were supportive of February sales.
Thirdly, they talk about an increase of profitability that is so significant here from 1997 to 1998 which is what Morgan Stanley told us and in reality they knew this business was falling apart.
Q. As of February 23, is my question, what are the facts upon which you base the statements that Morgan Stanley knew the business was falling apart?
MR. SOLOVY: Object; asked and answered.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. As of February 23, 1998?

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can go ahead and answer.
A. Because Morgan Stanley knew what the business was doing.
Q. Can you give me any specific facts other than a statement that Morgan Stanley knew what the business was doing to support the statements that you made that Morgan Stanley knew Sunbeam's business was falling apart as of February 23, 1998?
A. Not right now.
Q. You can set that exhibit aside.
If you would like you can give me the discussion materials. I will put those away for you, out of your way.
If you will look at the chronology which is in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75, the dates February 24-27, 1998, you will see that there is the following reference. "Coleman and Sunbeam, and their respective advisers, negotiated the structure of the transaction, conducted due diligence and drafted the necessary documentation."
Do you see that sentence, sir?

Page 377

A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell -- did Mr. -- withdrawn.
You didn't participate personally in whatever due diligence was done during this time period, is that fair to say?
A. That is fair to say.
Q. Did Mr. Maher report to you what if anything he or people assisting him did by way of due diligence during this time period?
A. Generally, yes.
Q. Tell me generally what you recall Mr. Maher telling you that he did during this time period, either him personally or people helping him?
A. They went through these Morgan Stanley presentations, they reviewed all of the financials. Some people went to, I believe, the factories.
I mean specifically I don't recall exactly what was done but it was -- it was due diligence of a publicly-traded company.
Q. When you referred to the

Page 378

financials you were referring to Sunbeam's financials?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you referring to financial statements audited by Arthur Andersen?
A. Audited financial statements and the materials prepared by Morgan Stanley.
Q. Did Mr. -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Maher tell you when he advised you that -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Maher tell you that he had looked at or had someone else look at any Sunbeam interim financial statements for 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Earlier you told me that your desire was to get all Sunbeam stock in the transaction but you - ultimately something less than that was accepted, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Why did you want all Sunbeam stock?
A. Because from what I knew of the Sunbeam transaction the Sunbeam company would have been a good stock to hold.

Page 379

Q. Did you have any of your -- strike that.
Was there anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes other than Mr. Levin who we talked about yesterday who suggested that you, Mr. Perelman, should not take Sunbeam stock but should take all the cash you could get?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. The final form of consideration as you -- as we have described it, the assumption of debt, the cash and the specific amount of Sunbeam stock, was then specifically negotiated and that was something you ultimately accepted when you agreed to proceed with the signing of the merger agreements; is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there any -- the amount of cash that is set forth in the merger agreements is just slightly below $160 million.
Was there a particular reason why you agreed to that figure as opposed to either some greater or lesser figure?
A. For some reason, and I don't

015589

recall what the reason was, Sunbeam had to change the structure to put more cash in and less stock and that was in response to their requirement for more cash in the transaction and less stock.

I am not sure what motivated that.

Q. At the time of the closing you -- not you, sir, but your companies -- had both a term credit agreement and revolving credit agreements with various banks, correct?

A. I don't know if we had a term credit agreement or -- we had one credit agreement. I don't know if we had two. I don't recall two.

Q. There has been prior testimony that there was both a term credit agreement and a revolving credit agreement with a combined total of $650 million.

Is that consistent with your recollection?

A. I don't have a recollection of that.

Q. As you sit here today do you know the -- whether under your credit agreements whether there was one or two?

Page 381

A. No.

Q. Let me finish the question.

Regardless of whether it was one or two agreements do you know whether MacAndrews & Forbes had reached the limits of their ability to draw down on their credit agreements as of the date of the closing with Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. After the closing of the transaction did MacAndrews & Forbes or one of its affiliated companies pledge the Sunbeam stock to secure any indebtedness of MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. Possibly. I don't know.

Q. Who would know that? Who would be the person who would know that?

A. Todd Slotkin.

Q. Could you spell that for the reporter?

A. S-L-O-T-K-I-N.

Q. Todd Slotkin. I thought you said something else. Thank you. I apologize even for asking. I did not understand.

Indeed, is it -- in your view, is Mr. Todd Slotkin the person who is probably the most knowledgeable in MacAndrews & Forbes about its credit agreements and debt financing during the 1997-1998 time period?

A. I don't know what you mean by "debt financing" but he would be knowledgeable about the credit agreements, yes.

Q. That is -- debt financing was probably a poor term.

Would he be the most knowledgeable about MacAndrews & Forbes borrowings at that time period, 1997, 1998?

A. He would be aware of them. I don't know if he would be the most knowledgeable but he would be aware.

Q. You have told us about some Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam materials that you saw in advance of the execution of the merger agreements.

Did you see materials prepared by Credit Suisse First Boston?

A. I saw at the board meeting the presentation that was given.

Page 383

Q. Did you see any documents prepared by Credit Suisse First Boston?

A. I just said so.

Q. I am sorry. I thought you said you were present at the meeting. I may have misunderstood you.

Let me show you a couple of documents and ask you if you saw these documents prepared by Credit Suisse First Boston.

Could I have 112 please? Then 197.

Mr. Reporter, would you please hand to the witness Morgan Stanley 112?

I have handed you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112. Do you have that in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see this -- did you see this document before the execution of the merger agreements?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you read it in the same manner that you read the documents we talked about earlier, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, the long range strategic plan and Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85 which was the discussion materials?

THE WITNESS: I don't know what that means but I read it, yes.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Did you have any questions about the Credit Suisse First Boston materials, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112?

A. At the time?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you have any afterwards that you recall?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Is it fair to say that as you sit here today you did not discuss Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112 with anyone at Credit Suisse First Boston?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Who did -- did you discuss --

A. This was a presentation by Credit

Suisse made at the board meeting. There was a discussion. Whether I participated or I listened or I added or I took mental note, but I was there and absorbed what was said.

Q. Let me show you another document which is -- you can hand one back to me. We will put it away.

Please hand the witness Morgan Stanley Exhibit 197.

Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 197 in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see these materials at the board of directors meeting of the Coleman Company?

A. I am not sure.

Q. If they had been presented at the board meeting you would have reviewed them as you reviewed Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112?

A. This was a much more in-depth and detailed analysis.

What you showed me earlier was a summary. I mean, this is the back up matrix, valuation matrix, for each of the cases that were given in the previous example so I don't know if they passed this out. I would assume not.

Q. As you sit here today you cannot recall whether you have seen this document before?

A. That is correct. To the extent that the short form is incorporated into the long form, I would have seen that in the short form version that you showed me previously.

Q. All right. If you will hand that back to me? Thank you very much.

During the board of directors meeting on February 25 when CSFB made its presentation we have been talking about, did the directors ask any questions of CSFB?

A. I am sure they did.

Q. Do you remember any of them?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask any questions?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. To the extent that questions were asked of CSFB, were they answered by the representatives of CSFB?

Page 387

A. I would assume so.

Q. You don't recall any incident during the meeting where someone asked the question and CSFB said we can't answer that or we don't know?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Were you, as a sophisticated businessman as you told me yesterday, satisfied with CSFB's presentation?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you satisfied, as a sophisticated businessman, with CSFB's analysis of the transaction as presented in the materials to the board of directors?

A. I was satisfied at the conclusion of CSFB's presentation, yes.

Q. As I understand it, at the second board meeting which is the February 27 board meeting, that was the specific meeting where the so-called fairness opinion was rendered by CSFB, is that right?

A. I believe so.

Q. The February 25 meeting was more of a discussion meeting where the various evaluation methodologies were gone through by CSFB with the board?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 388

A. I believe so.
Q. Then everyone was given some time to consider that and two days later the actual fairness opinion was given in oral form, is that right?
A. I don't recall what form it was given.
Q. Did you ever -- withdrawn.
Did you see -- ever see a written fairness opinion by CSFB?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 120.
A. While you are getting that, I -- I will be back in one.
MR. BEMIS: Why don't -- we have been going an hour-and-a-half. Let's take a break.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Returning to

the record. The time is 10:46 a.m.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I have handed you, Mr. Perelman, a document previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 120.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. This document which is dated February 27, 1998 has previously been identified as having been prepared by Credit Suisse First Boston.
Have you seen this document before?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. You can hand it back to me.
In the course of Credit Suisse First Boston's work as investment banker for the Coleman Company are you aware personally of CSFB ever reviewing any unaudited financial statements of Sunbeam?
A. Other than for Morgan Stanley.
Q. If you say, yes, I will ask you from whom.
My first question is: Are you aware that they did.

Page 390

Let me put the question to you again so it is clear for everyone.
Are you aware of Credit Suisse First Boston reviewing any unaudited financial statements of Sunbeam?
A. The Morgan Stanley presentations that you gave me previously were also given to CSFB.
Q. Those two documents, what you are referring to are MS 84 and 85 we talked about, the strategic long range plan and the discussion materials --
A. Whatever they were.
Q. Aside from those two documents are you aware of Credit Suisse First Boston reviewing any unaudited financial statements such as interim financial statements of Sunbeam?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Are you aware -- strike that.
To your knowledge did Credit Suisse First Boston ever go to the offices of Sunbeam and review any of its financial records?
A. I don't know.

Page 391

Q. Are you -- strike that.
Earlier we spoke briefly about the accounting firm for Coleman which was -- which was at the time Ernst & Young?
A. Right.
Q. Correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Before the signing of the merger agreements which again is February 28, 1998, are you aware of Ernst & Young doing any review of Sunbeam's audited financial statements for any period from 1997 going back historically?
A. To reaudit their statements?
Q. No, just to review them.
A. I don't know.
Q. You are not aware of -- withdrawn.
Are you as you sit here today aware of whether Ernst & Young reviewed any unaudited financial statements of Sunbeam for 1998 such as interim financial statements?
A. I am not aware.
Q. To your knowledge did Ernst &

Page 392

Young review before the execution of the merger agreements the two documents you have identified as, earlier, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, 85 the strategic long range plan and the discussion materials?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did Ernst & Young to your knowledge before February 28, 1998 go to Sunbeam's offices and review any of its financial books and records?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did anyone on any side of the transaction to your knowledge do any review -- withdrawn.
Let me switch gears from the accounting firm and ask a couple of questions about Wachtell, Lipton who you previously told us was your outside legal counsel in the transaction, correct?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
Do you want me to ask the question again?

Page 393

A. Yes.
Q. Wachtell, Lipton was outside legal counsel for MacAndrews & Forbes in the transaction, correct?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I think they represented Coleman.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes have counsel at all?
A. I am not sure.
Q. With regard to Wachtell, Lipton's work for Coleman, if that is the case, was Wachtell, Lipton assigned any due diligence responsibilities?
A. Not by me.
Q. Do you know if Maher, Mr. Maher, assigned Wachtell, Lipton any responsibilities?
A. I do not.
Q. Up to the time of the closing on February -- withdrawn.
Up to February 28, 1998, the date of the execution of the merger agreements, did you review any documents prepared by Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam other than the ones that you have identified as Morgan Stanley Exhibits 84 and 85?

Page 394

A. Were those the two presentations?
Q. Yes, those are the two presentations.
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Again, up to the period of February 28, 1998 -- withdrawn.
If I asked you this I apologize. I want to make sure I covered this.
Did you speak to Mr. Reid again after the February call and up to the point of the closing in March of 1998?
A. I indicated that we did not have a one-on-one meeting.
Q. Except unless he might have been in a meeting?
A. Correct.
Q. Thank you very much. You did say that.
Going back to the one conversation that you had with Mr. Reid, was there anything in that conversation as you sit here today that you considered to be false that he said to you?

A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. He basically presented Sunbeam as this fabulous company that would make a great combination with Coleman without Dunlap as a fabulous manager and this is a deal that should get done.
Q. Anything other than that?
A. No, not that I recall.
Q. After the closing on March 30 did you have any further discussions with Mr. Reid about the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Ask that again please.
Q. Sure.
After the closing which was March 30, 1998 of the Sunbeam-Coleman transactions did you have any further discussions with Mr. Reid about the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Possibly.
Q. Do you remember any as you sit here today?
A. No.

Q. Did you speak directly to anyone else at Morgan Stanley about the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction before March 30, 1998 other than Mr. Reid?
A. I have answered that.
Q. I apologize.
What was your answer? Other than being at a meeting?
A. I think that answers it.
Q. I understand that. Let me try and clarify and then I will move on with you.
A. Okay.
Q. Other than attending meetings did you have any one-on-one meetings or conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley other than Mr. Reid before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. After March 30, 1998 did you have any one-on-one conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley about the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction that --
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Is it fair to say then, at least as your recollection sits today, that the only one-on-one conversation that you had with an employee of Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam-Coleman was the one telephone call with Mr. Reid in 1998?

A. I think you are presenting that wrong. I mean, if I would have popped into a meeting and there were representatives from Morgan Stanley there we would have had discussion so it is not as if I was not a party to discussions with anybody at Morgan Stanley during this process.
There were no private meetings, though, between myself and a member of Morgan Stanley.
Q. Let's go to the closing itself. Did you physically -- did you actually attend the closing of the merger agreements?
A. No. I don't believe so.
Q. Let me show you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley 237.
Do you have that exhibit in front of you?
A. Yes.

Page 398

Q. Have you seen this press release before?
A. I believe so.
Q. On the second page in the penultimate paragraph --
A. In which?
Q. The next to last paragraph.
A. Right.
Q. It begins -- it reads as follows: "'This is a fantastic situation for all Sunbeam shareholders giving them the opportunity to participate in the wealth that Al Dunlap and his team are building,' said Ronald O. Perelman who will become Sunbeam's second largest shareholder after the transaction. 'Coleman will thrive as part of Sunbeam's unbeatable family of brands,' added Mr. Perelman."
Do you see that paragraph?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you make these statements?
A. Yes.
Q. At the time that you made these statements did you believe that Al Dunlap had a team at Sunbeam?

Page 399

A. I believed that Al Dunlap had -- yes.
Q. Did you believe as you said that Al Dunlap had a team that would build wealth at Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that -- strike that.
Because you believed that Al Dunlap and his team were building wealth at Sunbeam that is the reason you wanted as much stock as you could get, right?
A. No.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Let me show you what we will have the court reporter mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 196.

When you reviewed it did you make any changes in it that you can remember today?

Q. Did you approve the press release after you reviewed it?

After the execution of the merger agreements that -- on February 28 and the actual date of closing of the agreements on March 30, 1998 did you attend any meetings where Morgan Stanley was present, for example, where you might have, as you put it, I think you said, popped in?

I think earlier you made reference to Morgan Stanley providing certain financing in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman acquisition.
Do you recall that testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. There has been testimony about -- withdrawn.
You know what a road show is, don't you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you personally attend any road shows that Sunbeam conducted in connection with its zero coupon convertible senior subordinated debenture offering?
A. I didn't but our people did.
Q. Which of your people did?
A. I believe Nesbitt did.
Q. Anyone other than Mr. Nesbitt that you believe attended one of these?
A. This was a Morgan Stanley road show. Not that I recall.

Q. Did Mr. Nesbitt make -- did Mr. Nesbitt tell you which of the road show presentations he attended?
A. What do you mean? I believe it was in New York, I believe.
Q. What is the basis for that belief?
A. Just a recollection that that is what he told me.
Q. Other than Mr. -- other than Mr. Nesbitt, can you recall any other MacAndrews & Forbes employee telling you that they attended a road show presentation?
A. I believe it was Mr. Nesbitt. Somebody attended and I believe it to be Mr. Nesbitt, yes.
Q. Did you -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Nesbitt tell you what happened at the presentation that you believe he attended assuming again it was Mr. Nesbitt?
A. Whoever it was just indicated that the presentation was similar to the other presentations that we had gotten from Morgan Stanley.

Q. I am sorry. I am lost.
A. The presentation was similar to what we had gotten previously from Morgan Stanley.
Q. This presentation from Morgan Stanley that you just referred to, are you referring to the February 23 evening meeting that we discussed earlier and those two documents, MS 84 and MS 85?
A. Whatever constituted what he thought to be Morgan Stanley's presentation, that would be part of it, those documents. I don't know how many meetings he attended with Morgan Stanley.
Q. Did you ever see the -- any of the documents executed in connection with the offering of the zero coupon debentures issued by Sunbeam?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. For example, I will just give you a couple of the documents without even showing them to you and you can tell me if you saw them.
Did you see the purchase agreement, for example, where Morgan Stanley purchased the debentures from Sunbeam?

A. No. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you see the offering memorandum?
A. Possibly.
Q. Let me show it to you then and you can tell me whether you did see it.
A. Yes.
Q. When did you first see it?
A. I believe I saw this right around the time that it was issued.
Q. Could you tell me how you came to receive a copy of the offering memorandum?
A. I don't know. Somebody just would have shown it to me.
Q. Did you -- did you read it at the time that you saw it?
A. I would not have read it all, no.
Q. Would you have read at least the summary provisions of the agreement?
A. The summary provisions of the agreement, no.
Q. I misspoke. The summary

Page 406

provisions of the offering memorandum.
A. I probably would have just looked at the financials.
Q. The financial statements of Sunbeam that are attached?
A. Correct.
Q. The financial statements of Coleman that are attached?
A. Yes.
Q. I believe there is the financial statements of CLN Holdings that are attached.
A. Possibly.
Q. When you reviewed the financial statements -- withdrawn.
You can hand that back to me.
Did MacAndrews & Forbes purchase any of the debentures?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes purchase any of the debentures after the initial offering which is in the secondary purchase?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Did you ever see any of the --

withdrawn.
Did you ever see any documents that purported to be presentations at the road shows for the debentures?
A. I believe there was hard copy.
Q. Did you ever see one?
A. I believe so.
Q. How did you -- strike that.
From whom did you receive the hard copy of the presentation?
A. Whoever would have gone to the road show.
Q. If Mr. Nesbitt did it would have been him?
A. Yes.
Q. I want to move forward now into March and ask a couple more questions that we didn't talk about yesterday concerning the March 19, 1998 press release.
Do you recall yesterday we looked at a couple versions of that including a Bloomberg version?
A. I don't think we looked at a press release from Bloomberg. I think we looked at a press account from Bloomberg.

Let me show you the document and we will work off of that.

A. Yes.
Q. Yesterday we -- when we discussed this just briefly in the morning session, and I think your testimony was that you believe the press release was bullish, do you recall that testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. I also want to give to you a copy of the actual press release so we don't have just the Bloomberg version of it.
A. This is not the press release.
Q. I will give you the actual press release. I will give you Morgan Stanley 39 which is the press release itself.
A. Right.
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Morgan Stanley 39 is the actual press release that you were referring to, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. What you have in the Bloomberg document which is Morgan Stanley 211 is references to the press release and some additional commentary, correct?
A. Yes.

You have those in front of you,

Page 410

am I right?
A. Yes.
Q. Is the Bloomberg commentary which is in MS 211 correct based on your recollection that the Sunbeam stock fell 4-11/16 upon the issuance of the press release on March 19?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. Look at the last paragraph of the first section of the Bloomberg Exhibit MS 211.
It begins, "The shares of the Del Ray Beach, Florida-based company fell 4-11/16 to 45-3/8 in trading of 5.5 million. Earlier, the stock hit 45-1/4. It was the 20th most active stock in the U.S. market."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. It is your recollection that Sunbeam's stock fell upon issuance of the March 19 press release?
A. Yes, and then proceeded to respond.
Q. It is your recollection at least on March 19 that it fell as reported by Bloomberg?

Page 411

A. I don't know what this time is. Is this?
Q. March 19 at the top.
A. No. That is not my question.
Q. Sorry.
A. Is this at 9:00 in the morning or 1:00 in the morning or 11:00 in the morning or 12:00 or 1:00 in the day or 2:00 in the day or 3:00 in the day? You can't tell from that. I can't tell.
You are asking -- it is what it is. The stock did fall on the day of the announcement and then the stock recovered subsequent to the announcement.
Q. At the time -- withdrawn.
At March 19 you through your -- through your holding companies and pursuant to the merger agreements were to receive almost 14.1 shares of Sunbeam stock at the closing on March 30, correct?
A. Right.
MR. SOLOVY: I object to the form of the question. You misspoke inadvertently.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I may have. Let me try again.
Thank you very much for correcting me.
As of March 19 and pursuant to the merger agreements, assuming they closed on March 30, your companies were to receive 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock in exchange for the Coleman stock and other consideration, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Had Sunbeam's stock had -- withdrawn.
In January of 1998 were you aware that Sunbeam reported earnings for the fourth quarter of 1997 that resulted in a market drop of its stock at the time of the announcement?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 406 -- excuse me -- 206.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 206 in front of you?

Page 413

A. Yes.
Q. This is a copy of an article from the Wall Street Journal on January 29, 1998.
Have you seen -- did you see this article from the Wall Street Journal at the time?
A. Possibly.
Q. Is it your recollection based on your knowledge of the markets in 1998 that Sunbeam's stock did indeed go down approximately 9.5 percent when it released its fourth quarter 1997 results in January of 1998?
A. Then it immediately went back up.
Q. In these two instances, both, the release of the fourth quarter -- strike that.
You have looked at two exhibits and we have discussed the background, both the release of the fourth quarter results and the March 19 press release.
In both instances the market reacted negatively to the announcements at least initially?

Page 414

A. In both instances the market then reacted positively.
Q. Would you say then that Sunbeam's stock was a volatile stock?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I wouldn't -- I am not equipped to answer that.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Would you say it was a risky stock?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: No. I would not say it was a risky stock. I think you have to look at, what you showed me in this January 29 story was that the market reacted to a drop in the expected fourth quarter earnings of instead of 50 cents, 47 cents, so that that certainly does not indicate a risky corporation.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I am all done with that.
A. Thank you.

Page 415

Q. Thank you.
Can I have those other two press releases back as well?
In the Bloomberg version that we looked at Bloomberg points out that the company did not discuss the effect of the lower sale -- withdrawn.
In the Bloomberg, Exhibit MS 211 -- did I take that away from you?
MR. SOLOVY: You did.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I shouldn't have taken it away from you. I meant only to take 39.
Do you have MS 211 in front of you again?
A. Yes.
Q. The third paragraph which begins, "The maker of Sunbeam toasters," do you see that paragraph?
A. Yes.
Q. It continues, and the last sentence reads as follows: "The company didn't discuss the effect of lower sales on earnings."
Do you see that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015568

Page 416

A. Yes.
Q. Did you expect that if Sunbeam's sales fell from what was forecast that its earnings would fall from what was forecast?
A. Sunbeam specifically said that was not the case.
Q. When did they say that to you after March 19?
A. In the press release, in their press release.
If you give me the press release back I will be happy to show you.
A. Sure.
MR. SOLOVY: Borrow my copy.
THE WITNESS: "The company further stated that based on the strengths of its new product offering and powerful brand names it remains highly confident about the overall sales prospects of its sales for the entire year." That sales outlook was the analyst expectations of a 20 percent increase in sales. That is what everybody was basing upon and the subsequent earnings come from that.

Page 417

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Not to quarrel with you, that wasn't my object.
Is there any reference in MS 39 to a specific projection of the company's earnings for either the first quarter or the full year, its earnings?
A. There is reference under the law that if the company and its investment banker at the time, Morgan Stanley, knew this not to be truthful that they had an obligation under the law to tell its shareholders that that was the case.
Q. My question was: Was there any reference in there, and then we will move on. If there is you can tell me.
Is there any specific reference in the --
A. I think the press release has to be interpreted relative to the existing law of the state.
Q. Is there -- let me try one more time.
If we can't reach the agreement on the question we will move on.

Page 418

Is there any specific reference in the press release to Sunbeam's earnings projections for either the first quarter of 1998 or the year as a whole, a specific reference?
A. Just by the exclusion and reference to the law.
Q. Did you after you saw the press release make any calls to -- withdrawn. I asked that you question. I did ask you that. I withdraw that question.
At any time up to the closing on March 31 did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes ask Sunbeam for an update on the matters set forth in the March 19 press release?
A. I don't know whether -- I know that on -- at that meeting that Jerry Levin attended there was discussion about January and February and the first quarter and the year.
Q. This is the February 23 meeting we talked about earlier, right?
A. I don't know what date that was.
Q. It is the one where the two documents, the discussion materials and the strategic long term plan, were at issue and you talked about --

Page 419

A. I don't know the two documents came from that meeting. I do know that at a meeting there was one document that Jerry Levin's handwriting was on.
Q. That is the meeting you are referring to?
A. Yes, where there was talk about January, confirmation about the earnings for the first quarter, confirmation about earnings for the year so that we did have some insight at whatever date that was, February 22, February 23, whatever date that meeting occurred and confirmation that the company was on track to hit its stated numbers.
I believe that there was at least one or maybe more other conversations that occurred just to confirm that that continued to be the case. Specifically I cannot recall who they were with.
Q. Did you have these conversations or was it someone else?
A. I believe it was somebody else.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 420

Q. It was somebody else within your organization that spoke to someone at Sunbeam?
A. Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley or both.
Q. You don't know which and you don't know who had the conversation?
A. That is correct, but I do know at that February, whatever date it was, 23rd, 24th meeting, Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley presented to us their confirmation of the results for the quarter and year.
Q. You know that -- strike that.
These one or two conversations that you were just referring to, were these after March? These were after March 19; is that correct?
A. No. I don't know when they were.
Q. Okay. My specific question is --
A. I said right around that time we got confirmation again of the performance of Sunbeam.
Q. As you sit here today, with specific reference to the March 19 press release, you don't have an independent recollection of any communication with Sunbeam about an update of the press release before the closing, is that fair?

A. Specifically?
Q. Yes.
A. Other than the updates that were going on generally, that is correct.
Q. Any of the updates that were generally going on were updates -- you were not a participant in the updates, correct?
A. I was made aware of them.
Q. You were being made aware of them by people but as you sit here today you don't remember who they were?
A. Except Jerry Levin.
Q. You say Jerry Levin indicated to you this --
A. The end of February is when you say that meeting occurred.
As of the end of February we are updated as to what Morgan Stanley says the company is doing and Morgan Stanley says that January sales are slow, February sales are going to be fine and we are on track for the year of 2/96 to 3/95. That is the end of February.

Q. Right.
A. There is nothing different in this press release other than what we know, the end of February. Now Morgan Stanley knows things but we don't know them.
Q. After -- again, we will close this out and move on to something else.
After March 19 you don't have any specific recollection of a communication with either Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley about updating the matters in the press release?
A. I personally don't, that is correct.
Q. Then we will move on to something else. Thank you.
Are you aware after March 19 and before the closing on March 30 of anyone on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes having any communications with anyone at Arthur Andersen about Sunbeam?
A. I am -- not to my knowledge.
Q. Are you -- strike that.
At any time after February 28, 1998 -- withdrawn.

Page 423

After March 19, 1998 and before the closing on March 30 did anyone to your knowledge at MacAndrews & Forbes make any request of Sunbeam for copies of the comfort letters that Sunbeam had its auditors provide to Morgan Stanley?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't know.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes requested that Coleman provide MacAndrews & Forbes with a copy of the comfort letters that its auditors, Ernst & Young, provided to Morgan Stanley?
A. No.

Page 424

Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 278.
A. Yes.
Q. If you look at the last two pages you will see that this document was signed by Mr. Dickes on behalf of Coleman (Parent) Holdings and by Mr. Russell Kersh on behalf of Sunbeam Corporation.
Do you see those signatures?
A. Yes.
Q. You recognize Mr. Dickes' signature?
A. Yes. I don't recognize his signature but I know Mr. Dickes.
Q. At the date of this document, March 29, 1998 which is on the first page if you need to see that, Mr. Dickes was the vice president of Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. and its secretary, I think, is that right?
A. I believe so.
Q. This registration rights -- have you seen the registration rights agreement before in its signed version?
A. No.

Page 425

Q. Were you aware that in discussions with anyone, even though you did not see the agreement, that in the document there is a provision for providing comfort letters from the auditors in connection with the registration of the securities covered by this agreement?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: What is the question?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I will repeat it for you.
Were you aware in discussions with anyone, even though I know you said you did not see the agreement, that in the agreement there is a provision providing for comfort letters from the auditors in connection with the registration of the securities covered by the agreement?
A. No.
Q. Did you understand at the time of the closing of the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction on March 30, 1998 that one of the conditions of the closing was that there be an executed registration rights agreement covering the 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock that were to be issued indirectly to you?

A. I know that is customary. I didn't know specifically that that was it, no.
Q. You left that to your lawyers to cover those matters?
A. Yes.
Q. You can hand that back to me. We are finished with it.
You told me in your -- withdrawn.
A. Are we finished with 211?
Q. Probably. Excuse me one second.
MR. BEMIS: I am going to ask the court reporter to mark as Exhibit 431 a Barron's article dated January 29, 2000 -- 2001 as Exhibit 431.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 431 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. The court reporter has handed you Exhibit 431.
I have highlighted a paragraph off in the right-hand margin. Do you see that paragraph?

A. Yes.
Q. Would you read that into the record please?
A. "The Coleman sale to Sunbeam still rankles. Obviously it would --"
Q. Let me do this. Let me read it for you. I can read it slower than you. We only have one copy.
A. Okay.
Q. I am referring to page 6 of the exhibit. It reads as follows: "The Coleman sale to Sunbeam still rankles. Obviously he," referring to you, Mr. Perelman, "would have taken all cash rather than the 590 million in Sunbeam stock if he had the 1998 deal to do all over again. 'I wasn't the only one fooled by Al Dunlap and the fake he was,' he observed. 'Three banks loaned Sunbeam 3.7 billion at the time and all the sell side analysts were touting the stock.'"
Did you make the statements that Barron's attributes to you in that article?

A. I don't know what they attribute to me.
Q. The part that is in quotation marks.
A. Possibly.
Q. You can hand it back to me.
A. You would have to look at my whole interview as to what exactly was said.
MR. SOLOVY: May I borrow that while you are moving on to something else?
MR. BEMIS: Sure.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. At the time of the closing did Sunbeam pay, based on the package of consideration we went through, a premium for the market price of Coleman stock as it was being traded on the New York Stock Exchange?
A. I don't know what the stock was at the time of closing of Coleman.
Q. Even if you don't know the exact price was a premium made for the stock by Sunbeam?

Page 429

A. At the time of closing?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. The stock price of Coleman should have been exactly what the price was for the transaction so there should not have been a premium.
Q. You are right. That was a poor question. Let me try it a different way.
At the closing did -- on March 30, did Sunbeam pay a premium for the Coleman stock over what it was trading at the close of trading on February 26, 1998 right before the execution of the merger agreements?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that premium?
A. I don't know.
Q. Let me show you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 279.
Would you hand the witness, please, Exhibit 279 previously marked in another deposition?
A. Yes.
Q. The exhibit that I have given to you is double side copied. When you look at it you will have to turn the pages appropriately.
What I have handed you is the -- a document entitled the Coleman Company, Inc. Notice of Merger and Appraisal Rights and Information Statement-Sunbeam Corporation Prospectus which is dated, if you were to refer to the second page of the document, December 6, 1999, and I would like you to turn specifically to page 40 of the document.
Again because yours is double-sided you may have to take the binder clip off to find the page.
A. What page do you want me to go to?
Q. 40.
MR. SOLOVY: On the bottom?
MR. BEMIS: Using the bottom numbers.
THE WITNESS: 40, yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. If you would look at the second full paragraph, sir?

Page 431

A. The structure of the transaction?
Q. It is the second full paragraph under the heading Terms and Structure of the Transaction.
The paragraph begins, "The Coleman board reviewed."
When you have read that paragraph just let me know.
A. Okay. Yes.
Q. This document states that the premium was approximately 44.2 percent based on the market price of the Coleman stock immediately before the transaction and then what is set forth in the merger documents.
Does that square with your recollection?
A. It doesn't say that.
Q. What does it say?
A. It doesn't say anything. The first paragraph just talks about the terms and structure of the transaction.
Q. I was actually asking -- I thought I -- maybe I didn't make myself clear.

The second paragraph under the terms -- it begins, "the Coleman board reviewed."
A. I thought you wanted me to look at the first paragraph.
Q. My error, I am sure.
A. Yes.
Q. Having read that paragraph does that square with your recollection that the market premium was approximately 44.2 percent?
A. No, but I won't dispute it.
I don't have an independent recollection of the stock price.
Q. Even without the independent recollection of the stock prices, the information here, that is set forth here in the prospectus and the information statement is reflecting what was considered at the board meetings that you attended.
Do you recall discussing -- a discussion, even if you did not participate directly, that the premium being paid by Sunbeam for the Coleman stock was in excess of 44 percent?

A. No. What was discussed was the value of the respective companies.
This was a transaction not to sell to Sunbeam ten shares of Coleman common stock that they could buy on the exchange but what the value of this company was both freestanding and to a suitor such as Sunbeam, and that is what the transaction was based upon, and that is what those valuations were based upon and those valuations had nothing to do with the stock price of a company such as Coleman who had 700 shareholders.
Q. Were you finished?
A. Yes.
Q. The last sentence in -- on page 40 of Exhibit 279 provides that the Coleman board also considered that the merger consideration was higher than the value implied by the historical stock market prices of the Coleman common stock and Sunbeam common stock.
Do you see that sentence?
A. No.
Q. The last sentence in that

Page 434

paragraph, sir?
A. I don't understand that sentence.
Q. If you don't understand it then I don't have anymore questions about it.
If you will put the exhibit back to together and we will set that aside right now?
At the time of the closing, March 30, at the time of the closing on March 30, 1998 my recollection of your testimony is that you didn't physically attend the closing, correct?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Was there a physical closing someplace where the parties assembled to sign the documentation?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't know?
A. No.
Q. To your knowledge did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes side of the transaction inquire at closing whether there had been any material adverse changes in Sunbeam's financial condition since the signing of the merger agreements as of

Page 435

February 27, 1998?
A. I don't know who was -- where the closing took place, if it took place.
Q. I understand that.
A. So I couldn't answer that.
Q. Did anyone --
A. You are talking about an event that I can't tell you occurred.
Q. I understand you weren't there but someone could have told you that the question was asked and that was the point of my question.
Let me try again.
To your knowledge even though I understand you didn't attend a physical closing and you are not even sure there was one where people were present did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes side of the transaction tell you that there was an inquiry at a closing concerning whether there had been any material adverse changes in Sunbeam's financial condition since the execution of the merger documents?

THE WITNESS: Our people went through that Morgan Stanley road show presentation and got an update at that point.

Did you ever speak to Mr. Dunlap after the December 18 meeting at your house and up to the time of the closing on March 30?
A. I believe so.
Q. Where was that?
A. I believe here but I am not positive.
Q. This may be the same meeting you -- we talked about -- about briefly yesterday.
Is that the one you are thinking of where Mr. Levin was present?
A. I am not sure if Mr. Levin was present or not. He may have been.
Q. Is that -- you did tell me that you did recall at least one other meeting with Mr. Dunlap although I think you weren't sure precisely when it took place.
A. That is correct.
Q. That is to one you are talking about now?
A. That is correct.
Q. Then I won't ask you anything more. You already answered my questions on

MR. BEMIS: I am also going to have the court reporter mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 199 a version of the article from Barron's that was printed directly from Dow Jones News Retrieval and is readable as opposed to the one we had photocopied earlier.

A. You mean the Barron's article?
Q. The Barron's article, yes, sir.
A. Probably not.
Q. Would you take a moment to take a quick look at it and tell me whether you have seen it?
A. I would say probably not.
Q. If you haven't seen it you can hand it back to me.
Barron's is one of the services, or, excuse me, one of the financial publications that would be included in the package of clippings that you received on a periodic basis as we discussed yesterday, is that right?
A. I don't read Barron's.

A. Not formally, no.
Q. Do you have such a thing informally?
A. I don't know what you are saying.
Q. Let me try again.
Do you have someone in your company that follows analyst's reports on companies that you either own an interest in or perhaps have an interest in possibly doing a transaction?
A. Not necessarily.
Q. What do you mean by "not necessarily?"
A. Not necessarily.
Q. Can you help me out? I don't understand what you mean by that.
A. We don't necessarily have -- get all the research reports of every company that we have got an interest in.

Q. When you do -- did you have someone assigned to get research reports on Sunbeam when you began to have an interest in a possible transaction with Sunbeam?
A. Did I assign someone, no.
Q. Do you know if anyone else in your -- excuse me.
Do you know if anyone else in MacAndrews & Forbes assigned someone to that task, to collect research reports?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Set aside Exhibit 202 since you told me had you not seen it before.
A. I don't know what it is.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Exhibit 204.

A. Excuse me.

Q. I understand.

What I have handed you is Exhibit 204 which is a research report by Mr. Andrew Shore dated January 29, 1998.

Have you ever seen this report?

A. I don't know if that is what it is.

Q. What do you think it is?

A. I don't have a clue.

Q. You don't have a clue?

A. Normally a research report has on the top heading the stationery of the firm who is issuing it, it has got the name of the person who is issuing it. I don't see any of this.

Q. It is on the front page. On the first line, 12 --

A. This is not on PaineWebber stationery.

Q. I will not quarrel with you about that. If you tell -- you have answered the question and I will not quarrel with you.

Is it your testimony that this is not a research report on Sunbeam?

A. I have never seen a research report in this form. That is what I am telling you.

Q. Whether you have seen it in this form or not, we looked at articles from Barron's that weren't in the form that you read Barron's either, that is, printed from a different source, correct?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.

THE WITNESS: You are telling me this is reprinted from a research report?

Q. Well. I am not trying to tell you anything but that is what it is. It is reprinted from a research report.

A. So it is not the research report.

Q. It is the research report.

A. If it was the research report it would be on the stationery of PaineWebber so I don't know what this is.

Q. Okay.

Have you ever seen it before in another format?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you ever hear that, about the time of January 29, 1998, that Mr. Shore was reporting that, and I am referring now to page 3, that Sunbeam has and continues to be a very risky story?

A. Page 3?

Q. Page 3, the paragraph right below the heading Risks.

A. No.

Q. Did you hear in or about January of 1998 that Mr. Shore was reporting that Sunbeam's EPS, that is, earnings per share, in normal parlance --

A. Yes.

Q. Growth Target of 40 percent in

Page 447

1998 is very aggressive and comes in the face of a difficult economic climate in Asia and very solid growth in, it is 2H97.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. 2H97, do you mean second half of 1997?

A. Second half of '97.

Q. Did you hear that?

A. No.

Q. Did you hear that Mr. Shore was reporting that the company, Sunbeam, is employing a risky strategy to capture a larger share of the grill market; did you hear that?

A. No.

Q. Did you hear that Mr. Shore was reporting in January of 1998 that execution is the key to the company providing an encore to its stellar 1997 performance?

A. No.

Q. Hand that back to me.

A. Yes. I do not believe this to be a research report.

Q. Do you believe it wasn't authored

A. Yes.
Q. This document, as you will see, is dated February 6, 1998. It is in the lower left-hand corner.
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Is this what you are referring to as the format of a research report?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you agree with me that this is a research report?
A. Yes.
Q. This research report is also -- withdrawn.
This research report, Exhibit 138, is authored by Mr. Shore as you will see at the bottom.

Page 449

A. I don't know if that is so.
Q. Okay.
Did you -- were you aware that in February of 1998 that PaineWebber in its research report was referring to Sunbeam's aggressive balance sheet management, and that appears in the very first paragraph of the document?
A. No. See here, PaineWebber was issuing a buy.
Q. Were you aware that in the same paragraph on page 1 that Sunbeam had, according to the report, high inventory and receivable levels?
A. No.
Q. Were you aware that PaineWebber was reporting, if you look at the bottom of that same paragraph, at the very bottom, that there were warning signs, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware that PaineWebber was reporting that in its research reports?
A. Yes. With all of that they say to buy, an unqualified buy, by the way.

Page 450

Q. Were you aware that PaineWebber was reporting, again, on the first page, right-hand column that "at present Sunbeam needs some new positive news to stop its steady decline."
A. No.
Q. Turn to page 3 of Exhibit 138.
Were you aware that under the heading -- withdrawn.
Look -- I am looking now at the paragraph under fourth quarter EPS, it's low end of range.
Do you see that, the paragraph below that heading?
A. Yes.
Q. If you will read down a few sentences, the sentence -- there is a sentence that reads as follows: "As the last couple of quarters have indicated, Sunbeam's goals are very aggressive, even at the low end of the range."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.

about Sunbeam?

We will not really know this until we are further into the first quarter but must note that we believe the receivable and inventory position is still a bit heavy."
Were you aware of that statement by PaineWebber?
A. No, but you should continue, "If it works Sunbeam will likely gain substantial market share and have a blowout first half in grills --"
Q. The next sentence --
A. I did not see this report, sir.

A. No.

Q. Let me show you another document which we will mark as Exhibit MS 417.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 417 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Exhibit 417 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. On the left side of this document there appears to be a similar looping mark on the left side as in MS 220.

Do you agree with me?
A. No.
Q. You disagree with me. Okay.
MR. SOLOVY: Can I see it for a second?
MR. BEMIS: Sure.
MR. SOLOVY: Fine.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can hand it back to me.
In any event, sir, did you have any discussions with -- withdrawn.
Did you see the press release that was issued by Sunbeam on or about April 3, 1998 regarding its first quarter results?
A. Can I see it?
Q. Yes.
A. Thank you.
Q. I will hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 58.
Do you have Morgan Stanley 58 in front of you?
A. Yes.

Page 461

Q. Behind the fax cover sheet is a press release.
Have you seen that press release before?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you have any discussion on or around April 3, 1998 with either Mr. Drapkin or Mr. Gittis about Sunbeam's announcement on April 3 concerning its first quarter 1998 sales?
A. I am sure we did.
Q. What was the market's reaction to the announcement on April 3 -- strike that?
Do you recall there was an announcement on or around April 3 even if you didn't see the press release about Sunbeam's first quarter sales?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the market's reaction to that announcement?
A. I believe negative.
Q. Negative meaning that the price of Sunbeam's stock dropped, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember how much it dropped?

Page 462

A. No.
Q. If you look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 220, do you still have that in front of you, sir? 220?
A. Which is 220? Yes.
Q. The one with your initials.
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Drapkin's initials on it.
According to this document, Sunbeam's stock dropped nearly 25 percent on April 3 following the issuance of the press release.
Is that consistent with your recollection of events?
A. I don't have a specific recollection. If you show me the stock price closes I will be able to see that.
I don't quarrel with that.
Q. The impact -- at that time, being April 3, of the transaction with Sunbeam had closed, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So you had, that is your companies, had received the 14.1 million approximate -- million shares of Sunbeam stock, correct?

Page 463

A. I would assume so.
Q. As a result of the drop in the stock on April 3, regardless of what it was, you would consider that to have been a material impact on the value of your holdings of Sunbeam's stock?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. You don't understand the question. I will try it again.
A. Good.
Q. You held either directly or indirectly through your companies about 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock on April 3?
A. Right.
Q. As a result of the press release on April 3 and the announcement of Sunbeam's earnings the price of Sunbeam's stock dropped?
A. Yes.
Q. The market reacted negatively to the announcement?
A. Yes.

Q. Although not necessarily in the same amounts the market reacted negatively on March 19, the day of the announcement?
A. Are you giving me statements or asking me questions?
Q. I am not trying --
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. I will try again.
A. Okay.
Q. On March 19 the market reacted negatively when Sunbeam issued its press release, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. On September 29, I believe it was, when Sunbeam announced its fourth quarter 1997 results the market reacted negatively, correct?
A. When was that, September --
Q. Excuse me. January. I said September.
A. Why don't we start all over again because you are getting me all confused.
September, December, January. I think you are confused.
Q. I wouldn't want to confuse you.

Page 465

A. Good.
Q. In January 1998 when Sunbeam announced its fourth quarter results the market reacted negatively, did it not?
A. Yes.
Q. So to make sure you are not confused, on March 19, 1998 when Sunbeam issued its press release the market reacted negatively, did it not?
A. I don't recall what the market price was during these periods of time but whatever it was it was.
Q. My question was: Did the market react negatively?
A. I believe so but these are definable issues.
Q. On April 3 you have told me the market reacted negatively to Sunbeam's announcement, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. Following the April 3, announcement did you take any steps to communicate directly with Sunbeam to obtain additional information about it's, that is, Sunbeam's results for the first quarter of 1998?

A. Me personally?
Q. We will start with you personally.
A. No.
Q. Did anyone to your knowledge at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I believe the Coleman people did. I believe that Jim Maher did.
Q. Who are the Coleman people that you believe called Sunbeam?
A. I didn't say they called Sunbeam.
Q. Who are the people at Coleman that you believe contacted or communicated directly with Sunbeam to obtain additional information about first quarter results?
A. Directly to Sunbeam or directly to Morgan Stanley? It would have been the same group. It would have been Jerry Levin or Joe Page or Bobby Jenkins.
Q. Do you know for a fact that Mr. Levin did contact Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Do you know for a fact that Joe Page did contact Sunbeam?

Page 467

A. No.
Q. You also identified Mr. Maher as a person who might have contacted Sunbeam.
A. Or Morgan Stanley.
Q. Let's focus on one person at a time.
You said Mr. Maher, did you not?
A. I said Mr. Maher and I said Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley. That is one person.
Q. We will get to Morgan Stanley.
A. Sunbeam is not a person.
Q. Mr. Maher -- withdrawn.
Do you know who --
A. So I was dealing with one person at a time, Mr. Maher.
Q. Let me ask the questions so -- and then we will move on.
Do you know who if anyone Mr. Maher spoke to at Sunbeam?
A. Or Morgan Stanley, no, I don't.
Q. I want -- one at a time. Let's start with Sunbeam.
A. No.
Q. You said you think Mr. Maher may have spoken to someone at Morgan Stanley?

A. Maybe.
Q. Maybe?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any firsthand knowledge of that?
A. No.
Q. Other than Mr. Levin, Mr. Page and Mr. Maher, are you aware of anyone else that you think may have communicated with Sunbeam, let's start with them first, about the April 3 announcement by Sunbeam?
A. Ask me that again.
Q. Are you aware of anyone other than Mr. Levin, Mr. Joe Page, or Mr. Maher who you believe may have contacted Sunbeam about its announcement on April 3?
A. I am not aware who did contact either Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley.
Q. Are you aware --
A. But somebody --
Q. I interrupted you. I apologize.
A. Go ahead.
Q. Are you aware of anyone associated in any way with MacAndrews &

Page 469

Forbes who contacted anyone at Sunbeam about the April 3 press release?
A. Specifically, no.
Q. Are you aware of anyone associated with MacAndrews & Forbes, and I am including Coleman in this because that is the way you answered the question, who contacted Morgan Stanley about the April 3 Sunbeam announcement?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Are you aware of anyone associated with MacAndrews & Forbes who contacted Arthur Andersen about the April 3 press release announcement?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did anyone associated with MacAndrews & Forbes contact anyone at CSFB about the April 3 announcement?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. After April -- excuse me.
Are you aware of anyone associated with MacAndrews & Forbes contacting Coleman's accountants, Ernst & Young, and asking them any questions about the April 3 announcement?

Page 470

A. Look, we got information. I am not quite sure who got it but we got information.
You are asking me specifically who did this and I can't tell you right now who did this.
Q. Is your answer no to my last question?
A. What was your last question?
Q. Are you aware of anyone associated with MacAndrews & Forbes contacting Coleman's accountants, Ernst & Young, and asking them any questions about the April 3 announcement?
A. Specifically, no.
Q. Were you aware after April 3 of any analyst following Sunbeam downgrading Sunbeam?
A. As of when?
Q. As of April 3, following the April 3 announcement?
A. I would imagine that everybody did.
Q. After April 3 did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes make any request from any source to obtain interim financial statements for Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 results?

A. Say that again.
Q. After April 3 did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes make any requests from any source to obtain interim financial statements for Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 results?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. What is it that you don't understand? I will try to fix it.
A. Are you talking about first quarter statements or interim statements?
Q. Interim statements for any period in the first quarter of 1998.
MR. SOLOVY: I object to form.
THE WITNESS: They are two different things. You are asking two different questions.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I am not asking two different questions.
A. You are.
Q. We can disagree upon that without getting into a quarrel.

A. We are not quarreling.
Q. After the April 3 announcement did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes make any request from any source to obtain Sunbeam's financial statements for the first quarter of 1998?
A. Yes, we received first quarter statements.
Q. When was that?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was it after they were publicly filed in the 10-Q for Sunbeam or for the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't recall when we received them.
Q. Did you receive -- did you -- withdrawn.
Did MacAndrews & Forbes receive Sunbeam's first quarter financial statements before they were made a matter of public record in Sunbeam's 10-Q filing?
A. I can't answer that.
Q. What did you do when you saw -- strike that.

Page 473

Did you personally see Sunbeam's first quarter financial statements for 1998 at some point?
A. Yes.
Q. What did -- what were the circumstances under which you saw the statements?
A. I was shown them.
Q. By whom?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was this at a meeting or at which you were discussing your investment in Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. What, if any, action did you take after you reviewed the first quarter financial statements of Sunbeam?
A. There was a gradual process from the beginning of April until I believe mid May where we began learning more and more about what was going on in the company and it was during that period that the board fired, I believe, in mid May, although my dates may be wrong, Al Dunlap, but during that period we became gradually more aware of the financial performance of Sunbeam for that period of time so specifically I do not know when I became aware of certain things.

I do know that I was terribly upset to see the performance of Sunbeam during the first quarter.
I thought that we were lied to by both Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam during the preceding periods of time and I did not know then the extent to which that was true but over this period of time we sought out and received information as to the performance of the company.
Q. If I understand this, sometime in -- between the April 3 announcement and what you believe was mid May you became --
A. Mid May, end of May.
Q. Mid May, end of May you were terribly upset, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And you believed that Morgan Stanley had lied to you, correct?
A. Deceived us.
Q. Deceived you?

Page 475

A. Yes.
Q. You also thought that Sunbeam had deceived you; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. I take it -- withdrawn.
Did you also think that Morgan Stanley had lied to you which is the words you used in your original answer?
A. Yes.
Q. You thought that in April and May of 1998, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you at any point in April or May of 1998 after you became terribly upset, felt that you had deceived and lied to by Morgan Stanley, communicate your feelings to anyone at Morgan Stanley?
A. Me personally?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Did you ask someone to do it for you?
A. No.
Q. How much, in terms of just sheer market --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0156 13

A. I didn't do that to Al Dunlap either.
Q. Just in terms of market value of Sunbeam's securities, just based on New York Stock Exchange prices, how much money, from April -- excuse me -- March 30 to whatever point in May you reached the point you had been lied to, deceived and you were upset, how much market value had the securities lost that you received from Sunbeam in the Coleman transaction?
A. You are asking me to recall what the stock price was day by day in 1998. I can't do that.
Q. I wasn't trying to do day by day. In general.
Tell the jury how much you had lost in millions of dollars when you reached this point of being terribly upset, deceived and lied to.
A. I felt that way the first day.
Q. Of April 3?
A. Yes, and the second day and third day.
As I learned more which I did not know everything until only recently, but as I learned more I became more and more bothered.

Page 477

Now did I confront or tell my people to confront Al Dunlap? No, I did not.
Did I confront or tell my people to confront Mr. Kersh? No, I did not.
Did I confront or tell my people to confront Morgan Stanley or their people? No, I did not.
Q. Did you at any time speak to Bill Reid after April 3 to convey your reactions as you have described them as being terribly upset, deceived and lied to by Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't think I relayed my feelings toward anybody who was on the other side up until that point.
Q. When was the first time that -- strike that.
Other than filing this lawsuit against Morgan Stanley which was filed in May of 2003, when was the first time that you conveyed to anyone at Morgan Stanley your feelings that you had been lied to, deceived and that you were terribly upset almost immediately after April 3, 1998?

A. I never did. But I never conveyed them to anybody either. I don't think that is my place.
Q. Is it fair to say, sir, that -- withdrawn.
After April 3 did you ask Mr. Levin to do any research or perhaps analysis may be a better word about the projections of Sunbeam's performance that you had seen before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. Did you ask Mr. Levin to do -- did you ask Mr. Levin to do anything after April 3, 1998 to investigate what went wrong at Sunbeam?
A. At one point after that period he became the CEO so he investigated it in depth.
Q. After -- setting that aside.
After April 30 and before Mr. Levin went on to become the CEO of

Page 479

Sunbeam did you ask Mr. Levin to do any type of investigation of your analysis of Sunbeam before the acquisition?
A. Of my analysis -- I don't understand the question.
Q. MacAndrews & Forbes' analysis of Sunbeam before the transaction.
A. I still don't understand the question.
Q. Let me show you a document that we will mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168.
Before do I that let me ask you a couple more questions.
Did you ask Mr. Levin at any time after April 3 to review any of the key assumptions that had been used in the analysis of whether to go forward with the transaction with Sunbeam?
A. Possibly.
Q. Did you ask Mr. Levin after April 3 and before he became CEO of Sunbeam to contact various analysts to discuss with them their views of what had happened at Sunbeam?
A. Possibly.

Q. Did you ask Mr. Levin after April 3 but before he became chief executive officer to review certain analyst's models about Sunbeam's expected future performance as they existed at the time of the closing?
A. Unlikely. It is unlikely that I would have asked him your second question either. It is possible but it is unlikely.
Q. Did you ever see a memorandum that Mr. Levin prepared concerning the key differences to Wall Street's analyst's models between MacAndrews & Forbes models?
A. Do you want to show it to me?
Q. I may. Right now I want to know whether you saw one.
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Levin after April 3 any conclusions he may have reached about differences between Wall Street analyst's models and MacAndrews & Forbes' models?
A. I would highly doubt it because we did not base our analysis on Wall Street's models.
Our analysis was based on the

information given to us from Morgan Stanley so that it really was irrelevant to us what some third-party based some model on, that they may have gotten their information off the Encyclopedia Britannica so that would not have been of significance to me.
Now if you said to me, did I ask Mr. Levin to go back and define the differences between what we were told by Morgan Stanley and what in fact occurred, I probably did do that but I find it unlikely that I would have said to him -- because that would not have any relevance to me.
Q. What Morgan Stanley models did you rely upon in the acquisition?
A. The information given to us by Morgan Stanley.
Q. Is there a particular document that you are referring to as the model?
A. Those documents we were talking to before.
Q. Let me show you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85. I want you to look through the document and tell me what model you relied upon in selling your Coleman stock to

Page 482

Sunbeam.
A. Sure.

A. Can I have the other one too?
Q. Can we do one document at a time? Then I will give you the other document.
A. But --
Q. I will give you both. I don't want to quarrel with you.
I am going to hand you Morgan Stanley 84, sir.
A. Yes.
Q. My question was: Could you point out for me the model in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85 that you said was provided to you and upon which you based your analysis?
A. Let me just pick out a few. Sunbeam Corporation's consolidated profitability statistics, they were showing EBITDA --
Q. Could you give me a page number since I can't see where you are reading from?

A. Right.
Q. Does footnote 1 say these projections are from Oppenheimer and the Oppenheimer research report dated --
A. This is in their Morgan Stanley book so --
Q. Do you see the footnote, sir?
A. I see the footnote but it is in the Morgan Stanley book so Morgan Stanley who is making this presentation to me is giving me this information as for me to believe this is their position.
Do you want me to go --
Q. Yes, I want you to go through and identify every page for me in this document that you believe is a -- let me finish my question -- that is a model of Morgan Stanley that you relied upon in your analysis?

Q. Okay.
A. Doubling of 96 sales of about 984 to almost 2 billion by 1999 without acquisitions, tripling of international sales from 185 to 600 by 1999, achieve an operating margin of at least 20 percent, achieve 25 percent return on equity.
These numbers, by the way, which have no footnote match perfectly to the previously defined numbers that I gave you.
Q. I interrupted you.
A. It says, stated growth objectives.
Q. Does it say Sunbeam Corporation's?
A. That is what we are talking about, Sunbeam Corporation, given to me by Morgan Stanley on the right-hand corner.
Q. What else besides those pages?
A. Every page.
Q. Do you want to give me other information that you relied upon?
A. Every page. Oster became the preferred premium brand. Sunbeam expanded value segment by strong appeal to women.
Q. What page are you reading from?
A. The next page. Go to page 1234.
Q. Is there any --
A. Where will it come from.
Q. Can you slow down? We will do one page at a time.
Is there any modeling page on CPH 1411233.
A. This is the narrative from which modeling is based upon.
Q. I have to answer the question.
CPH1411233.
My question was: On that page that we were just discussing, I just gave the number to the court reporter, is there a modeling information that you relied upon?
A. This is narrative to the modeling information.
Q. Sir, could you continue?
A. Sure.

Q. Anything else?
A. The next page is detailed blueprint of one of their -- the Allergy Smart Air Cleaner.
Q. That is page 1237?
A. Yes.
Page 1239 is an international expansion initiative, global agreements, going country by country from Argentina to Korea to United Kingdom to South Africa.

Q. You relied on this -- you called this a model?
A. No. This is -- no. Some of this is back up to the model. Some of this is in support of how -- when they say that the international expansion is going to grow by $400 million, this is the back up to how they get there.
Q. Are you reading, where are you reading from, what page?
A. 1239. International growth strategies, global agreements, distribution, licensing and marketing.
Q. I asked you to focus your answer if you could on specific models as you did in your first answer.
A. You asked me to go through what I based it upon in the modeling. This is all the background.
My point is that on the earlier page I gave you what the model was and now I am giving you detail, specific detail that was given to us by Morgan Stanley to support that model.

Q. Can you please focus on any models as opposed to what you call backup material. Let's get the basic models that you relied on.
A. I started with --
Q. You only gave me one.
A. No. I gave you two. One to support two. One was page 1227.
Q. Actually you gave me --
A. Which modeled to 1999 and the other was 1231 which supported that model, the 1299. Now we will go --
Q. Let me slow down. I need to -- I have to know what page you are on.
Let's make sure we are clear on what models you are relying on. You first pointed out 1126 as one of the models, didn't you?
A. No.
Q. We will set aside 1126.
A. Wait a second. I don't believe I mentioned 1126.
Q. Is that one of the models that you relied on?

Page 491

A. It is here in the report.
Q. I just asked you did you rely on this model?
A. I relied on this whole book. I relied on this whole package from Morgan Stanley.
Q. Sir, I want you to focus on the limited question.
A. I answered you. I relied on this entire package.
Now you are saying to me what specific modeling was done in here and I am trying to tell you.
Now, some of it is the actual financial modeling and some of it is the dialogue supporting that and some of it is the assumption supporting that.
Q. Let's focus on the financial model and see if we can -- take the very first financial model you relied on and tell the jury the page number.
A. Let me start again. I relied on this book in its entirety. Okay. That is what I relied on.

Q. Now will you answer my question? Will you please tell me the page in MS 85 that is the first financial model that you relied on?

I want you to go page by page and stop after you said the page identification. Then we will move on to another topic.

A. Good. On page 1222.

Q. That is one of the pages of financial modeling that you relied upon?

A. No. You cannot take this book out of context by page.

I relied on this entire book that says Morgan Stanley right here, discussion materials from Morgan Stanley. I relied on this entire book. That is what I relied on.

So page number 1, given to me by Morgan Stanley, is estimates for the year 1998 and 1999.

Then we go to the next financial page that you want to talk about.

Q. What number is that, sir?

A. 1226. I am just responding to

Q. 1227. What is the next page you relied on?

A. 1231.

Q. Let me turn to 1231 please. That is the page entitled Sunbeam Corporation Stated Growth Objectives?

A. Yes.

Q. You consider that a financial modeling?

A. That is what it is, financial statistics.

Q. I just asked --

A. It says doubling of sales, tripling of international sales.

Q. What is the next page that you relied upon as financial modeling?

A. No. Let me repeat.

I relied upon this entire book. I would be happy to go through with you and give you and point out to you every financial page, every page that has financial information on it but that is not what I relied on. I relied on this book in its entirety.

A. Correct.

Q. What is the next page?

A. Not question mark. It has the answers.

Q. If you would give me the next page, sir?

A. Page 1235.

Q. That page is entitled Sunbeam Corporation New Product Initiatives?

A. Correct.

Q. What is the next page of financial modeling?

A. I would go to 1240.

A. Yes.

Q. What is the next page, sir?

A. I would go to page 1241.

Q. That one is entitled Channel Management Case Study Revenue Potential; is that what you are referring to?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the next one?

A. I would go to page 1271.

Q. Give me one second to get there, sir. All right. That is the page entitled Sunbeam Corporation, Sunbeam International Growth Strategies, correct?

A. Yes. Growing sales from 984 to 2 billion dollars.

Q. What else?
A. I would go to page 1281.
Q. That is the page entitled Sunbeam Corporation Channel Management Filling Product Voids, Opportunities to Expand, Breadth and Depth of Product Line?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Please continue.
A. I believe those are the only financial pages in the book.
Q. Are there -- did you receive from Morgan Stanley any other financial modeling materials other than what was in Exhibit MS 85?
A. This.
Q. What you are referring to is MS 84, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You can hand those two documents back to me. Thank you.
A. Are we finished with these?
Q. We may be.

Page 497

Did you have -- withdrawn.
Did you write this -- did you circle this on here with your pencil?
A. I just did that just right now.
Q. Would you just initial that for me please so that we know that you put that on there?
A. I put it on right now.
Q. That is what I thought. I didn't remember seeing it. Just put your initials --
A. How about if I just erase it?
Q. I think it would be best if you just initial it.
A. Is that okay?
MR. SOLOVY: Sure.
MR. BEMIS: I thought that was not on the document.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I will hand this back to you one more time.
Turn to page CPH1411225 of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85. Tell me when you are there.
A. Yes.

Page 498

Q. There is a listing of recent analyst estimates that appears on this page, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. The first one is Prudential securities, a Mr. Nicholas Heymann, H-E-Y-M-A-N-N. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you or anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes ever request a copy of this analyst report on Sunbeam?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Are you aware of any allegation that Prudential Securities or Mr. Heymann was a participant in any fraud with Sunbeam as you have alleged in your case against Morgan Stanley?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I never talked to Prudential.
Q. I take it then you are not -- I take it then you are not aware that -- aware of any allegations that Prudential

Page 499

Securities or Mr. Nicholas Heymann was engaged in any fraud with Sunbeam?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer, sir.
A. Ask the question again.
Q. Sure.
I take it then you are not aware of any allegations that Prudential Securities or Mr. Nicholas Heymann was engaged in any fraud with Sunbeam?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I am not, no.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Then there are four other analysts listed on this page; Buckingham Research, PaineWebber and Mr. Andrew Shore; Merrill Lynch, Mr. John Gibbons; and CIBC, Oppenheimer, Mr. Scott Graham.
Do you see those?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware of any allegations by anyone that those four analysts participated in any fraud by Sunbeam?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
MR. BEMIS: You can answer.
THE WITNESS: I am not aware of any activity on their part at Sunbeam.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You were aware when you read this that these analysts were making estimates of Sunbeam's earnings per share, were you not?
A. No.
Q. You didn't read this information?
A. I never got back up to this. I just saw this in the package.
Q. You did see at least the information itself that is set forth on these pages, specifically page 1225, the analyst estimates?
A. Yes, but I would not have relied upon them.
Q. To make sure I understand your testimony, you would not have relied upon these analyst estimates in making any decisions whether to accept Sunbeam's stock in the transaction?

A. That is correct.
Q. Did you follow up -- strike that.
My understanding is that your testimony is that you did not seek to obtain the underlying research from these analysts that is quoted in this page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85; is that correct?
A. I did not, no.
Q. Do you know if anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes did?
A. Not that I am aware of, no.
Q. Do you know if anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes even called any of these analysts listed on page 1225 of Morgan Stanley 85?
A. No, not that I know of. That would not have been significant to us.
Q. There is also two additional sources listed on the same page.
One is I/B/E/S. Do you see that?
MR. SOLOVY: Where is that, Mr. Bemis?
MR. BEMIS: Directly below the solid line.

Page 502

MR. SOLOVY: I see. Thank you.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you see that, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what I/B/E/S is?
A. No.
Q. Do you know what First Call is?
A. I believe it is just an average of the estimates.
Q. By analyst?
A. An average of the estimate -- the analyst's estimates, I believe.
Q. Are you aware of any allegation that First Call was engaged in any fraud with Sunbeam?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. Not that I am aware.
Q. Are you aware of whether I/B/E/S, I/B/E/S which is an acronym which I can't remember right now the name of, are you aware of any allegations that it was involved in a fraud with Sunbeam?

Page 503

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: If you don't know who they are and I don't know who they are --
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I do know who they are. Mr. Nesbitt and Mr. Maher told us. I apologize.
A. Maybe if you tell me who they are I can answer the question.
MR. SOLOVY: I still object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can hand that back to me. I think we are probably done with that one. Thank you very much.
Did I understand you correctly to say that you took information from Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85 and put it in MacAndrews & Forbes financial model?
A. I don't believe I said that.
Q. Then I may have misunderstood you.
Did MacAndrews & Forbes ever develop any internal financial models with regard to a possible combination between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley other than what -- the material that we looked at yesterday which were Mr. Nesbitt's calculations, MS 104 and 105?

A. Would you ask me that question again?
Q. Sure.
Did MacAndrews & Forbes ever develop any internal financial models with regard to a possible combination between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley?
A. Was Sunbeam merging with Morgan Stanley?
Q. I said combination.
A. Of Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley.
Q. Thank you very much. I was distracted by the drilling. Let me try one more time.
Did MacAndrews & Forbes ever develop any internal financial models with respect to a combination between Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I am sure we did, yes.
Q. Was that Mr. -- who had

Page 505

responsibility for those financial models?
A. I would assume CSFB.
Q. Then are these the models that CSFB then presented to the board of directors on February 25 as we looked at earlier?
A. Correct. We may have done some of our own too.
Q. Are you aware of any other than perhaps the ones we looked at yesterday which if it will help you were Morgan Stanley 104 and 105 that Mr. Nesbitt prepared?
I can show you those again.
A. Those would have been the kinds of things we would have done.
Q. Other than the work that -- the kind that Mr. Nesbitt would have done and the CSFB materials that we have gone through are there any other MacAndrews & Forbes financial modeling that was done in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. We did some and CSFB did some and I don't know if Morgan Stanley did some that they shared with us. I am not sure.

Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 115.
A. I will make a quick stop.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is 2:51 p.m.
(Recess)
MR. BEMIS: Mark this as Morgan Stanley 115.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Sir, I have asked the court reporter to give you an exhibit we have just marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 115.
Do you have it?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. Possibly.
Q. Do you recognize this as a press release of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.

Page 507

Q. Press release issued in connection with the release of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 results on its form 10-Q?
A. Yes.
Q. About this time, May 11, 1998, did you have a meeting with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Fannin to go over the subject matter of the release, that is, Sunbeam's results for the first quarter?
A. Possibly.
Q. Do you know Mr. Fannin, David Fannin?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever meet him in the course of the Sunbeam negotiation?
A. I am sure I did. I wouldn't know him if he walked in here.
Q. You did have a meeting, you told me, at some point with Mr. Dunlap, you thought it was at your offices here in New York; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Was he only here once in your offices?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015621

Page 508

A. I believe so.
Q. Was that meeting with Mr. Dunlap -- it was after the closing of the transaction on March 30, 1998?
A. No. I didn't say that.
Q. That is what I am asking you.
A. I think it was before.
Q. You think it was before. Okay. Did you take any -- strike that. After you received either the press release or the information in the press release, Exhibit Morgan Stanley 115, did you take any action with respect to obtaining additional information from Sunbeam about its financial performance for the first quarter of 1998?
A. As I indicated earlier, from the time we knew of their performance we sought to get additional information which I indicated to you at the earlier press release and that would have carried through until this.
Q. Did there -- there came a time when you know Mr. Dunlap was terminated by the board of directors of Sunbeam?

Page 509

A. Yes.
Q. What was the first knowledge that you had that the board either was considering or had terminated Mr. Dunlap?
A. When I was told.
Q. Who told you?
A. I think Mr. Gittis.
Q. Do you know how Mr. Gittis learned of that action?
A. No.
Q. What did Mr. Gittis tell you?
A. That the board was terminating Mr. Dunlap.
Q. Did he say anything else?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Where were you when Mr. Gittis told you this?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you do anything as a result of this information that you received from Mr. Gittis?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Were you -- what was your reaction to the board terminating Mr. Dunlap?

Page 510

A. I don't think I had a particularly strong reaction.
Q. Is it fair to say that as of the time of Mr. Dunlap's termination that you were neutral as to whether he should remain as the chief executive officer of Sunbeam?
A. No. That is not what I said.
Q. I understand. I don't know what you said. That is why I am asking you.
A. What is the question?
Q. Let me try again.
A. Okay.
Q. Is it fair to say at the time of Mr. Dunlap's termination that you were neutral as to whether he should remain as the chief executive officer of Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. What was your position?
A. That he should have been fired.
Q. When did you reach that conclusion?
A. As I knew -- as I began to know more about what was actually occurring within the company.
Q. Can you pinpoint a time in this period from April through, say, June of 1999 -- 1998, excuse me.

A. It was gradual, just as it was gradual after that, but I was not neutral. I was positive.
Q. Positive about terminating him?
A. Correct.
Q. Were you positive about terminating Mr. Kersh?
A. Yes.
Q. Why were you positive about terminating Mr. Kersh?
A. Because he participated in the fraud also.
Q. Why were you positive about terminating Mr. Dunlap?
A. Because he participated in the fraud.
Q. When did this -- did you ever come to a conclusion in your own mind when Mr. Dunlap began this fraud?
A. Specifically, no.
Q. How about non-specifically or in general, if that is a better way to ask it?
A. I think when the restructuring

015622

charges were originally taken I believe in 1996 they were taken in excess of true restructuring charges and really were charges ultimately to just blend in income in later periods.

I think that in 1997 when he was doing this what has been called bill and hold which is a term I never heard of in my life until then, that was a piece of it, and I think that in '98 when he was aggressively trying to purchase Coleman it was all a part of that same plan along with Morgan Stanley to cover up what were the real results of that company, of the Sunbeam company.

Q. You said a moment ago that you had never heard of bill and hold, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you please hand the witness Exhibit 208 please?

MR. SOLOVY: May I have a copy please?

MR. BEMIS: I am sorry.

MR. SOLOVY: Thank you.

MR. BEMIS: You are welcome.

Page 513

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Do you have Exhibit 208 in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. My understanding is that you -- withdrawn.

Did you see Sunbeam's form 10-K for 1997 before the March 30 closing?

A. Yes.

Q. I think you told me you at least read the financial statements, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you turn to the financial statements?

A. What page?

Q. I am going to give you the page number in just one second.

If you -- I will give you the Bates numbered page, the CPH number on the bottom right-hand corner.

A. Right.

Q. CPH1428862.

MR. SOLOVY: What page?

MR. BEMIS: 1428862.

MR. SOLOVY: 62.

Page 514

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Tell me when you are there, sir?

A. I am here.

Q. Would you look at the heading Revenue Recognition?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you there?

A. Yes. I am there.

Q. I will read this into the record. Hopefully I will read it slow enough so the court reporter can do it.

"The company recognizes revenues from product sales principally at the time of shipment to customers. In limited circumstances, at the customer's request, the company may sell seasonal product on a bill and hold basis provided that the goods are completed, packaged and ready for shipment, such goods are segregated and the risk of ownership and legal title have passed to the customer. The amount of such bill and hold sales at December 29, 1997 was approximately 3 percent of consolidated revenues."

Do you see that language?

Page 515

A. Yes.

Q. You read this language about Sunbeam's bill and hold sales before the closing on March 30, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. You had heard of bill and hold by the time of the closing, hadn't you?

A. Two things; number one, I never heard of it before here. This was the first time I ever heard of it, and, secondly, the risk of ownership and title did not pass to the purchaser.

These were just bookkeeping entries that were made by Sunbeam irrespective of whether there was a purchase order, irrespective of whether there was a commitment on the customer to buy them.

This was something I had never heard of in my life, and it was not -- I mean, to have -- receive a purchase order and hold for a customer for later shipment, there is nothing wrong with that but to build and hold when you don't have a purchase order and when the customer is not planning to accept -- is not planning to pay for it, then you have got something I have never heard of before.

0156923

Page 516

Q. These footnotes are in the audited financial statements of Sunbeam, correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. They were audited and given a clean opinion by Arthur Andersen, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you suggesting, sir, that as of March 30, 1998, that Morgan Stanley knew that this footnote that you just read in Arthur Andersen's audited financial statements was false?
A. Yes.
Q. What basis do you have to say that?
A. Because the customers didn't accept shipment.
Q. What basis do you have to know?
A. Because --
Q. Let me finish the question and then you can answer.
What is your factual basis for saying that Morgan Stanley knew that, assuming it is true?

A. Because they knew in March what the actual shipments were. They knew what was being relieved out of this account.
Q. What is the basis for that statement?
A. The comfort letter.
Q. The comfort letter?
A. Sure.
Q. That's it?
A. Sure.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
A. All you have to do is look at the growth of long term debt in that comfort letter and the lack of sales in that comfort letter and you know precisely what is happening.
Q. If you had seen the comfort letter before March 30, 1999 -- excuse me.
If you had seen the comfort letter before March 30, 1998 it is your statement that you would have known what was happening at Sunbeam; is that right?
A. It is my statement I would not have closed.

Page 518

Q. You would not have closed?
A. That is correct. It is my statement that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam together had an obligation to tell me that.
Q. Let me show you a document that is marked as Morgan Stanley 74.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 74 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see this article from Barron's?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. You can hand it back to me.
Did you see any summary or analysis of the Barron's article by anyone -- strike that.
Did you see any summary or analysis of that Barron's article prepared by anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Would you please tell me what -- withdrawn.
After you learned that Mr. Dunlap had been terminated as well as Mr. Kersh, did anyone from the Sunbeam board of directors make any requests of you to provide assistance to Sunbeam?

A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did they make a request of MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. What was -- to whom was the request directed?
A. I think to Mr. Gittis.
Q. What was the request?
A. To make available the Coleman management team to go into Sunbeam.
Q. Did Mr. Gittis pass that request along to you?
A. Mr. Gittis?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. What did he say to you?
A. Just that.
Q. What did you say to him?
A. Fine.
Q. Anything else?
A. No.
Q. What happened -- do you know what happened next?

A. I believe they were retained.
Q. Who is "they?"
A. Jerry Levin and the former Coleman management team.
Q. After they were retained as the former Coleman management team did you stay in communication with them?
A. With who?
Q. With the Coleman management team.
A. Somewhat, yes.
Q. Did you receive reports from the Coleman management team on a fairly regular basis as to Coleman's performance?
A. I received reports. I don't know how regular they were.
Q. Do you know a Robin, I don't know if I am pronouncing her name correctly, Esterson?
A. Yes.
Q. Who is she?
A. It is a he.
Q. Who is he?
A. He was on the management team.
Q. Was he a former Coleman employee who had returned to Coleman after Mr. Dunlap's termination?

Page 521

A. Yes.
Q. What was his position at Coleman when he returned?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question. Just so we don't waste time, you are saying Coleman, Coleman. You really mean Sunbeam, I assume.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I did. I apologize. I misspoke.
A. Okay.
Q. Let me try again.
What was his position at Sunbeam when he returned?
A. I don't know.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 428 by the court reporter.

Q. From Mr. Levin?
A. I would assume so.
Q. You see the marking again on the left-hand side?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know whose that is?
A. No.
Q. You are sure that is not yours?
A. 100 percent.
Q. Did a secretary mark any of your documents when they were received?
A. I don't know.
Q. Have you ever seen documents other than the ones I have shown you with that mark similar to that on the left side?
A. No.
Q. The looping mark.
A. No.
Q. Did you tell us, sir, if the type of financial data that Mr. Esterson was sending to you as referred to in the first paragraph of Mr. Levin's letter?

Page 523

A. Please ask me that again.
Q. Sure.
Could you tell us the type of financial data that Mr. Esterson was sending to you as referred to in the first paragraph of Mr. Levin's letter?
A. No.
Q. You recognize that as Jerry Levin's signature?
A. Yes.
Q. How long did you -- how long did you receive financial information about Sunbeam either from Mr. Esterson or others in Sunbeam?
By that I am excluding publicly filed, any type of publicly filed information.
A. I don't know.
Q. Did there come a time when it stopped?
A. I don't know when it started.
Q. It hadn't started by July 21, 1998 as reflected in Mr. Levin's letter?
A. I don't know if this is not public information. I don't know what it is. It just says it was copies of the financial data. I don't know what that is. I don't recall what that is.

Q. What were you -- what type of financial data were you reviewing of Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall. I don't know why I would be reviewing any of it with the second paragraph saying that it is wrong.
MR. BEMIS: Let's take a short break.

Page 525

Sunbeam to you after or about the time of the termination of Mr. Dunlap forward going into the future.
First I want to show it to your counsel so they can take a look at it. I do not have another copy of it. I didn't anticipate using it. I have a rubber band placed around the document. If we have to read all the numbers in we will but they are not sequential.
MR. SOLOVY: The purpose will be to authenticate it?
MR. BEMIS: The purpose will be to show it to the witness and ask if he received it from Sunbeam, financial information.
MR. SOLOVY: What we will do, we will look at it, pass on it the witness.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. That is fine. Could I ask when you look at it you keep the documents in the same sequence so when you look at one, turn it over? I think they are in a rough order.

Page 526

A. Sure.
MR. SOLOVY: He would like you to flip it over so they are in an inverse pile.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. All done?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Have had you a chance to review the composite Exhibit 432?
A. Quickly, yes.
Q. Did you receive those documents from Sunbeam?
A. I can't tell.
Q. I didn't hear you. What did you say? You can't tell?
A. Yes.
Q. Why is it that you can't tell? Your name is on them or your initials appear on them or they are addressed to you or you are copied, are you not?
A. You asked if I received them. There is no indication of receipt on them.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe that you did not receive them since they are addressed to you or that your initials appear on them?

A. No reason either way.
Q. Is that the type of information that is in composite Exhibit 432 that you received from Sunbeam?
A. There are two different types of information here. One is their normal budgets and it just says ROP with a date. There is no receipt copy and I believe my office when they receive things has a receipt copy so I see none of that here.
I am not saying I didn't get it but this does not indicate to me that I got it.
Then there is some information here from Frank Feraco who I don't know who he is to Al Dunlap.
Q. However it is attached in a facsimile cover from Jerry Levin to you, is it not?
A. Yes. I don't know that I got that. I don't see a fax receipt.
Q. That is how the documents were produced to us. I can't be anymore helpful than that.

0155926

Page 528

A. I can't either.
Q. You said there were two types of documents. I am not sure that I understood what the two types were.
A. I thought I did.
Q. You probably did and I didn't understand.
A. Regular budget information like this and the other was other than this, like this letter from Frank Feraco to Al Dunlap.
Q. It is sent to you with a fax cover sheet being transmitted to you from Mr. Levin?
A. I don't know if it is transmitted to me.
Q. Let me take a look at the top copy of the document you are referring to. It is on Sunbeam stationery.
It says Jerry Levin, chairman and chief executive officer, addressed to Ronald Perelman, five pages.
Is it your testimony that you didn't receive that document or you just don't know?

Page 529

A. I just don't know.
Q. Okay.
A. There is nothing on any of these documents to indicate receipt by me of these documents.
Q. Do you know of any reason why people would address documents of this type to you and not send them to you?
A. They could have been noted for sending and just not sent.
Q. Did you, in the course of summer and fall of 1998, monitor matters of the type that are in that composite exhibit such as you put it; there is budgets, there is strategic plans and what have you of Sunbeam in there?
A. I was made generally aware, not specifically aware.
Q. Were you made specifically aware at least of some of the strategic plans of the company as set forth in the documents there?
A. You have given me six inches of documents. It would take me a whole day to go through each of the specifics.

Page 530

Q. I am not disputing how long it would take us for you to go through it. My question is --
A. Don't ask me a question of the specifics. I think that is an unfair question.
Q. Were you made aware of the strategic plans of Sunbeam during the summer of 1978?
A. 1978, no.
Q. How about 1998 since I misspoke?
A. Generally, some plans.
Q. Were those strategic plans public knowledge?
A. I didn't say they were strategic plans.
Q. How about the plans that you were made aware of? Were those public documents that were a matter of public record?
A. Possibly. I don't know.
Q. Did you -- how long did you continue to receive information about Sunbeam's business plans and financing directly from Sunbeam?
A. I don't know if I did.

Q. Are you denying, sir, to the jury under oath that all of the documents in front of you including the one that I showed you earlier, MS 428, that you don't know that you received any of those documents?
A. You gave me a pile in total and you said did I receive these and I answered you that there is no indication on any of these documents of receipt by me so I could not swear, or in this case affirm, I am sorry, under oath that I received these. That is the truth.
Q. Is it your testimony to the jury under oath, sir, that you did not receive any of these documents that is in composite Exhibit 432 as well as Exhibit 428?
A. No. I did not say that. I said I could have.
Q. How long did you continue to monitor Sunbeam's finances after Mr. Dunlap was terminated through information you received directly from Sunbeam?
A. I never said I monitored Sunbeam's finances.

Q. Is it your testimony that you were not, after Mr. Dunlap was terminated, monitoring Sunbeam's financial performance through information that you were receiving from insiders at Sunbeam?
A. Monitor, no. I was not monitoring their performance.
Q. Hand those back to me. Thank you, Jerry.
MR. SOLOVY: You are welcome.
MR. BEMIS: We will get you a copy. You will have it tomorrow.
If for some reason I forget we will have it done while you are there.
MR. MARMER: Okay.

A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know of any other communications of whatever date to Sunbeam

Corporation by Coleman (Parent) Holdings or MacAndrews & Forbes or any of your affiliated companies to rescind the transaction?

A. No.
Q. Were you interested whether Sunbeam had responded?

Do you recall yesterday when we talked about that briefly?
A. Briefly.
Q. As consideration of the settlement MacAndrews & Forbes received from Sunbeam certain warrants, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Those warrants were for Sunbeam stock, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. They had a period -- exercise period, I believe, of five years?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember what the exercise price was?
A. No.
Q. How did MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman (Parent) Holdings, whichever entity was a recipient, value the warrants?
A. I don't think we did.
Q. Did you carry them -- did you

Page 539

Q. I am sorry.
A. I didn't value them.
Q. You didn't value them?
A. No.
Q. Did someone at MacAndrews & Forbes, or, as the case may be, Coleman (Parent) Holdings value them for purposes of their financial statement?

Have you seen this settlement agreement?

Q. Did you see a copy of it or a draft of it before it was signed?

Q. I am looking at the printed page.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that Mr. Schwartz's signature?
A. Yes.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Thank you.
During 1998 were you interviewed by the office of the -- office of independent counsel in connection with a Ms. Monica Lewinsky?

MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I was interviewed by somebody.
Q. From the office of independent counsel?
A. Possibly.
Q. Was that -- how many times were you interviewed?
A. I believe once. No. Twice.
Q. Did you also give a sworn statement as well?
A. One of those times, yes. It was an affirmed statement.
Q. It was a what?
A. An affirmed statement.
Q. Affirmed statement.
Was the subject matter of the interviews a certain call that had been placed to you by Vernon Jordan?
A. Yes.

Page 543

Q. Mr. Vernon Jordan was the former husband of Ms. Jordan who served on the board of directors of Coleman; is that correct?
A. No.
Q. They were never married?
A. They are still married.
Q. I actually thought they were separated or divorced.
They are married?
A. Yes.
Q. You had a -- Ms. Jordan was one of your appointees to the Coleman board, correct?
A. Yes. Not one of -- she was a member of the board.
Q. She was a member. She was appointed to the board of directors initially and elected?
A. She was elected. She was an independent board member.
Q. An outside director?
A. Correct.
Q. My understanding is that she was paid a retainer of $25,000 a year as a director; is that right?

A. Whatever the directors were paid. I don't know.
Q. Whatever is reported in the 10-K would be correct, right?
A. Yes.
Q. If the 10-K reports $25,000 that would be the number, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Jordan called you at some point in January of 1998, did he not?
A. I don't remember the date. Is that when it was?
Q. I believe so.
A. Okay.
MR. SOLOVY: Mr. Bemis, I would like a standing objection to this line.
MR. BEMIS: You may have it.
MR. SOLOVY: Thank you.
MR. BEMIS: All your relevancy objections are preserved in Florida.
MR. SOLOVY: Nevertheless, I would like a standing objection.
MR. BEMIS: I would be gracious enough to give you both.

Page 545

MR. SOLOVY: Thank you.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did you -- did your communication with Mr. Jordan and your interview by the office of independent counsel become a matter that was disclosed in the press of the United States?
A. Yes.
Q. For example, were there stories in the Washington Post about your communications with Mr. Jordan?
A. I don't think there were stories about it, no.
Q. Were there stories that Mr. Jordan had called and asked you about helping find Monica Lewinsky a job?
A. I don't recall any stories about that phone call. I recall stories where that phone call was mentioned.
Q. The stories were -- that was mentioned -- these were in late January of 1998, right?
A. You will have to refresh my memory if you would on the date of the phone call.

Page 546

Q. The date of the phone call was January 8, 1998 according to the report of the office of independent counsel?
A. Okay.
Q. Do you accept that date?
A. Yes, sure.
Q. Do you recall when the story, stories first surfaced in the press about the call from Mr. Jordan to you?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Jordan, Vernon Jordan, the wife of Ann Jordan, the Coleman board member, concerned a request by Mr. Jordan that you, Mr. Perelman, do something or help find a job for Monica Lewinsky, correct?
A. No.
Q. What was the call from Mr. Jordan about?
A. First of all, he is not the wife of. He is the husband of.
Secondly --
Q. I stand corrected.
Now tell me what the conversation was between you and Mr. Jordan when he spoke to you on January 8, 1998.

A. He asked if I would arrange an interview for her at Revlon.
Q. Did you do so?
A. No.
Q. What did you do?
A. I spoke to Jamie Durnham who was then my assistant and told him about the call and he indicated to me that he was already aware of -- I did not know the name of this person that he was referring to, Vernon did not tell me, just that a friend, and I then called up Jamie, asked him to come to my office, said that Vernon called and has a friend that he would like to get an interview for at Revlon. He said we have already done that. I said, thank you very much and that was the end of it.
Q. Before the call from Mr. Jordan had you also -- withdrawn.
Before the call from Mr. Jordan had you also through one of your companies entered into a consulting contract with Webster Hubbell?
A. I believe so.

Q. This is the Webster Hubbell who was eventually indicted, correct?
A. Former Attorney General of the United States.
Q. For stealing money from his law partners, correct?
A. I don't know what for.
Q. Do you know that he eventually pled guilty and served time in a federal penitentiary?
A. Yes.
Q. You hired him -- when did you hire him, that is, your companies?
A. I don't know and I don't think we hired him.
Q. You hired him -- excuse me.
You entered into a contract with him as a consultant, did you not?
A. I believe so.
Q. To do public relations work for your companies, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did he do any?
A. I don't know. I had nothing to do with that.

Page 549

Q. Who did?
A. I believe Mr. Gittis.
Q. Mr. Gittis hired Mr. Hubbell?
A. I didn't.
Q. Did Mr. Gittis talk to you about hiring Mr. Hubbell?
A. No.
Q. How did Mr. Hubbell come to call upon Mr. Gittis to get a job with your companies?
A. I don't know. I had nothing to do with it.
Q. It just came out of the blue?
A. I don't know.
Q. In any event, let's go back to Ms. Lewinsky.
You -- at the time that -- withdrawn.
I asked you about when the story first surfaced in the press. Let me show you one of the articles that I think you may be referring to.
I will show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 419.
If you would mark that, Mr. Reporter?

Q. Do you have Exhibit 419 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you read it?
A. I am reading it now.
Q. Okay.
This -- for the record this is a January 26, 1998 report printed from The New York Post.
A. Okay.
Q. Have you seen this story before?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Is -- on the second page it refers to Mr. Barry Schwartz having testified before Starr's grand jury in 1994. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. He was threatened with a possible perjury indictment, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. You were aware of that?

Page 551

A. No, and I --
Q. Did you want to say something else?
A. There are so many inaccuracies that I know of in the story. I don't know where this story came from, the National -- Washingtonian Magazine which I don't know what that is.
Q. Did you -- were there other articles about this time in January of 1998 concerning Ms. Lewinsky and Mr. Jordan and Revlon?
A. Yes. I don't know if there were articles about it. It was included in stories.
Q. Stories in newspapers?
A. Yes, but this is a patently false document, story.
Don't make a face, sir. I can attest to it.
Q. I am sure you can. Don't accuse me of making faces. No one is making faces at you.
A. It sure looked like you were making a face to me.

Q. I apologize to whatever it was you thought you saw.
The story about Ms. Lewinsky and Mr. Vernon Jordan's call broke just about the time that Mr. Reid called you to discuss resuming the negotiations with Sunbeam, correct, mid January of 1998?
A. Yes, probably.
Q. Indeed it was during this same period, January of 1998, that you were first interviewed by the office of independent counsel, isn't it?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. The record reflects that, according to the reports, that you were interviewed on January 30, 1998. Do you know deny that?
A. Is that when it was?
Q. Yes. That is according to public records.
A. It is fact whenever it was. I think Mr. Starr is a partner of yours.
Q. I think Mr. Starr is currently the Dean of the Pepperdine Law School.
A. Isn't he of counsel to the firm?

Page 553

Q. Would you like to take a look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 420?
Please tell me when you have had an opportunity -- withdrawn.
Please tell me when you have finished looking at Exhibit 420.
A. I skimmed it, yes.
Q. This is an article reprinted from the Washington Post, February 6, 1998?
A. That is what it says, yes.
Q. Have you seen this article before?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Do you recall that Mr. Jordan testified before the -- a grand jury in connection with the Lewinsky matter in March 1998?
A. No.
Q. Did you see any reports of that in the newspapers?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. You weren't following it at all?
A. No.
Q. It was after Mr. Jordan's

Page 554

testimony before the grand jury, was it not, that you were interviewed a second time by the office of independent counsel?
A. I don't recall.
Q. The record reflects that you were -- the public record reflects that you were interviewed on April 2, 1998. Is that consistent with your recollection?
A. I don't have a recollection. I wouldn't dispute the prosecutor's record but I don't have a specific recollection of when it was.
Q. The public record reflects that you then testified --
A. What do you mean "the public record?"
Q. The public record that one can -- in the reports of the office of independent counsel.
A. Okay. That is the prosecutor's record.
Q. The office of independent counsel.
A. I would not disagree with that record but I don't have independent recollection of that.

Q. The records also reflect that you then testified before the office of independent counsel on April 23, 1998.
Is that consistent with your recollection?
A. I don't have a specific recollection but that would not be inconsistent.
Q. In addition to the reports that we looked at in The New York Post and the Washington Post were there other newspapers that carried stories about Mr. Jordan's activities in attempting to find Ms. Lewinsky a job at Revlon?
A. As I said before, I don't recall specific stories about it.
I recall it being included in bigger stories about President Clinton and the investigation on President Clinton.
Q. Were these stories generally of -- being published in the press during the period of the first three months of 1998 while the Coleman-Sunbeam acquisition was being negotiated?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0156633

Page 556

A. They are still being published.
Q. Is your answer, yes, and they are still being published?
A. There have been stories since then through today. I mean this phone call took 20 seconds.
My involvement in this phone call was one conversation with Jamie Durnham after that phone call, nothing after that, and then two or three subsequent interviews with a member or members of the special prosecutor's office.
That was my entire involvement in this procedure or activity.
Q. What was your reaction to being drawn into President Clinton's difficulties during this time period in early 1998?
MR. SOLOVY: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I wasn't happy about it.
Q. Was it distracting to you?
A. No.

Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone before the closing on March 30, 1998 of the Coleman transaction about hedging your interest in the Sunbeam stock if the transaction closed?
A. Yes.
Q. With whom?
A. Mr. Maher.
Q. Anyone other than Mr. Maher?
A. Primarily Maher. Gittis might have been aware of it too.
Q. When did you first discuss the subject with Mr. Maher?
A. I don't recall.
Q. How many times did you have discussions with Mr. Maher about hedging the Sunbeam stock? Again we are in the period before the closing.

A. I can't recall. A couple.
Q. What did you say and what did Mr. Maher say in these discussions?
A. Something to the effect that if we could I would like to see us hedge some of these securities but there is a legal issue as to whether or not we can hedge them because of the lock up and ultimately the conclusion was that they could not be hedged.
Q. When you say ultimately the conclusion was they could not be hedged who reached that conclusion?
A. Everybody.
Q. Who is everybody?
A. Nobody would hedge them and we reached the conclusion that those that would supply the hedge concluded they couldn't be hedged.
Our counsel concluded that they couldn't be hedged and our executives concluded they couldn't be hedged.
Q. Did you consider hedging the Sunbeam stock after the closing on August, on April -- withdrawn.

Page 559

Did you consider hedging the stock after the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. I didn't consider hedging the stock.
Q. I don't understand your answer.
You just said you discussed it with Mr. Maher.
A. Yes.
Q. Yes. What do you mean you didn't consider it?
A. It was discussed but I didn't consider it.
Q. All right.
Did you discuss it after March 30, 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you discuss it as late as May of 1998?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall the dates that it -- that this conversation took place.
Q. Did you have more -- strike that.
Who were the companies that you were discussing hedging the stock with?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I didn't discuss it with anybody.
Q. In this case, MacAndrews & Forbes or one of your affiliates?
A. I didn't discuss hedging with any company.
Q. I am talking about your companies.
Who are the companies that you discussed, that is, your companies discussed hedging?
A. I don't know.
Q. You told us that none of the companies would do the hedging?
A. Yes.
Q. You don't know who any of them were?
A. That is correct.
Q. You left that all up to Mr. Maher?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there -- was there -- were there two periods of discussion with these companies about hedging?
A. I didn't have any discussion with these companies.

Q. I don't care whether it was you or whether it was Mr. Schwartz or whether it was Mr. Maher. I am referring to your entities, your companies, whoever was doing it for you.
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't know?
A. No.

A. Yes.

Q. You understand that your videotaped deposition here can be played to the jury at the trial of this matter when it goes forward before the jury?

A. I now do.
Q. You understand that you are under oath today just like you would be if you were testifying in court in front of a jury, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there any reason that you can think of, medication, illness, that you can't testify truthfully today?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever testified by deposition before?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Have you ever testified in court before?
A. No, I have not.
Q. If anything comes up and you don't understand anything about the process you let me know, otherwise, I will assume that your lawyers have had an opportunity to meet with you and explain the process to you.
The residence you gave us, did you live there in 1997 through 2000?

A. Certainly 1998 through 2000. I have been there about seven or eight years.
Q. Have you lived continuously in New York since 1997 up until today at least?
A. Yes. Prior to that I lived on East 62nd Street.
Q. Just a couple of questions on your background and then we will get to hopefully the substance of this pretty quickly.
Where did you do your undergraduate education?
A. Duke University.
Q. When did you graduate?
A. 1984.
Q. What was your degree in?
A. Economics.
Q. After you graduated from Duke University did you go on and get a Master's of Business Administration?
A. Ultimately, but prior to that I was a financial analyst at the First Boston Corporation in the merger and acquisition group.

I then, two years later in 1986, I went to Harvard Business School and received a Master's, an MBA, in 1988.
Q. Did you go full time at Harvard?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did that complete your formal education?
A. In theory, yes.
Q. Has Mr. Markowski represented you before?
A. No.
Q. Is Coleman (Parent) Holdings Companies paying Mr. Markowski's fee for your -- your appearance here today?
A. I am not sure.
Q. Are you paying?
A. No; certainly not.
Q. Have you any form of written retention agreement with Mr. Markowski or his law firm to represent you?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Did you have an opportunity to meet with Mr. Markowski before you came here today in preparation for your deposition?

A. Yes, I have.
Q. Do you feel you had enough time to prepare for your deposition?
A. I do at this moment, yes.
Q. Did you have an opportunity with Mr. Markowski to review documents?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. These transactions that we are going to be talking about, the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction, they occurred in 1998 and sometimes a little bit -- some months even before that, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Your involvement in this transaction began as early as 1997, did it not?
A. Yes, late 1997.
Q. Then your involvement in the transaction continued through 1998 through the closing of the acquisition, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You even did some post acquisition review of things that had happened to Sunbeam, right?
A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015540

Q. For example, one of the things that you did is you actually interviewed analysts of Sunbeam following March 11, 1998 to discuss their views about the future of Sunbeam, didn't you?
A. Not in person, via phone, and if you are referring to analysts as financial analysts, yes.
Q. You actually wrote a memorandum of that and gave it to Mr. Perelman, among others, correct?
A. Yes, I believe I did.
Q. May I see MS 167 please?
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter would you just initial this for me, MS 167?
(MS Exhibit 167 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. The court reporter has just handed you what we have marked and identified as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 167.
Do you have that exhibit in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you write this exhibit to

Mr. Ronald O. Perelman on or about May 20, 1998?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Does this memorandum, MS 167, fairly and accurately summarize the conversations that you had by telephone with the analysts listed below?
A. Yes.
Q. Before the acquisition on -- of the Coleman Company, Inc. by Sunbeam Corporation had you spoken to any analyst such as Nick Heyman from Prudential?
MR. MARKOWSKI: On any occasion about anything?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. About Sunbeam.
A. No.
Q. You hadn't spoken to Mr. Gibbons either, correct?
A. No.
Q. And you didn't speak to Mr. Scott Graham of Oppenheimer, correct?
A. No.
Q. Indeed, prior to May 20, 1998 at least in your capacity working for

Mr. Perelman's companies you didn't speak to any analyst such as these gentlemen in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman acquisition, did you?
A. No.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
After -- withdrawn.
In preparation for your deposition did you look at MS 167 that I just showed to you?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am instructing Mr. Nesbitt not to answer questions about the substance of our conversations.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I am not asking about the substance.
Did you look at that document, MS 167?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I will instruct him not to answer questions about the specific documents we reviewed in connection with preparing for his deposition.
BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Did you look at documents in preparation for your deposition?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You can answer that.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did any of those documents refresh your recollection of facts that occurred over six years ago?
A. Marginally, yes.
Q. What documents did you look at that refreshed your recollection about events six years ago?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You can answer that.
THE WITNESS: There were a series of presentations; I guess one important presentation in particular, regarding -- from Morgan -- that Morgan Stanley I believe had prepared which outlined the companies, that is, Sunbeam's strategic plan, its projected operating performance and there was an associated slide presentation.
There were some -- there were some notes that I had prepared, handwritten, as well as the document that MS 167 -- that I had prepared as well as numerical analyses regarding the merger consequences, whether the transaction was dilutive, accretive, for varying levels of cost savings, assumed cost savings, assumed, projected and actual, historical operating performance for the benefit of the various individuals within MacAndrews & Forbes and the Coleman companies.

Q. Any other categories of documents you can recall now?

A. No.

Q. Let me show you a document that has been previously marked as --

A. I am sorry. One other document is my calendar.

Q. Excuse me one second.

Let me show you what has been marked previously as Morgan Stanley 84.

Please take a look at that, Mr. Nesbitt, and tell me if that is one of the documents that you looked at?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Are you including the handwritten portions of this, Mr. Bemis, or just the typed portion?

Page 19

MR. BEMIS: Right now just the typed portion.

THE WITNESS: When you are saying "looked at," what you are referring to is with Mr. Markowski or prior?

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. I was referring to what you reviewed with Mr. Markowski and you identified as a strategic document or plan of some kind.

A. Yes, I have.

Q. You can hand that back to me.

By the way, do you recognize any of the handwriting on this document?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you know Jerry Levin?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever seen his handwriting before?

A. No.

Q. Did you have a copy of MS 84 at the meeting where this was presented?

A. Is that MS 84?

Page 20

Q. 84, yes.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you make notes on your copy?

A. I would assume so but --

Q. What we have been doing, Mr. Markowski, since you and I were first together, we have already given you the document and then we take them back and give you new ones but I have copies for you during the deposition. Any time you want to see one let me know.

Let me show you a document which I think is your calendar which is MS 195 and ask if this is a copy of the calendar that you reviewed.

This was previously marked in another deposition. I hand you Morgan Stanley 195.

A. This is my calendar.

Q. We will come back to that periodically. Let's get it out of the way. I will give it back to you a little later.

Thank you.

You said that you also reviewed some documents that showed the dilutive and accretive effects of the Sunbeam-Coleman merger transaction assuming certain cost savings, am I correct?

Page 21

A. Yes.

Q. When you say "cost savings," is that synonymous with the terminology "synergies?"

A. Yes. When you combine both revenues -- revenue enhancements and cost savings.

Q. If I use the term "synergies" or you use the term "synergies" we will both understand each other as meaning cost savings as you described them?

A. Yes.

MR. MARKOWSKI: He indicated revenue enhancements and cost savings within his definition.

MR. BEMIS: Understood.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. When you used the term "dilutive," I am understanding you to mean that the combination of the entities in the merger transaction results in a reduction in earnings per share of the combined entities from that of the earnings per share of the acquiring entity, is that fair?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011542

A. Yes, with the caveat that I might look at that on a pre and post goodwill basis.
Q. You might also look at it based on how the accounting was treated at that time; for example, whether you were using purchase accounting in one instance, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And just so the jury knows, there is another form of accounting called pooling accounting, isn't there, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. My understanding is that one of those two forms of accounting is no longer -- can no longer be used as of, I think it is, April of 2001, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Am I correct that that is the pooling accounting?
A. Yes.
Q. In addition to -- withdrawn.

We used the term "dilutive." As we go forward we will probably use the term "accretive" at some point.
Accretive has the opposite definition of dilutive, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. When you use the term "accretive" in the terms of a combination of two companies in a merger acquisition if you say the transaction is accretive to the acquiring company that means a combination of the two companies would result, at least on a pro forma basis when we are looking at it, in an increase in the earnings per share, correct?
A. Yes, either as reported or on a cash basis.
Q. When we talk about earnings per share do you use as a definition for that net income if you will divided by total number of outstanding shares?
A. For the purposes of these discussions, yes.
Q. Now these -- you looked at more than one of these numerical summaries, if you will, of whether the transactions -- the transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam was accretive or dilutive to Sunbeam, did you not?

A. Yes.
Q. You did the first of these transactions, these -- strike that.
Did you do these summaries on an electronic spreadsheet?
A. Yes.
Q. What software program did you use?
A. Excel.
Q. Was this an -- the Excel models that -- withdrawn.
Did you have a model template that you used or did you create a separate template just for the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Created a separate template for this transaction.
Q. You looked at some of the hard copies, if you will, of your electronic spreadsheets for the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, did you not?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. I am going to show you one of these documents and ask if that is one of the transactions that you prepared.
May I have MS 104?
I will ask the court reporter to mark for us as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104 a multi-page document.
(MS Exhibit 104 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Can I ask you if I could hand you this one? It has the official court reporter's signature on it. That is the same copy. I will put the other one away so you have the original.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you prepare this document?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Is this document one of the summaries that you prepared while you were an employee of MAFCO Consolidated Group, Inc. in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman merger transaction?

A. Yes, it is.
Q. Is this document a hard copy from an Excel spreadsheet as you described it for us?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Is the handwriting that appears on the left page yours?
A. No, it is not.
Q. Do you know whose it is?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Did you see this document in your preparation, that is, MS 104?
A. No, because I don't recall seeing --
Q. The last page with the handwriting?
A. Yes.
Q. You prepared a number of documents like MS 104, did you not?
A. Depends what you mean by "like."
Q. What I mean by "like," not to get into a Bill Clinton debate with you about what "it" is, but what I am referring to is a document even with this template but changing variables in the document?

A. Sure.
Q. And, for example, just so the jury understands, when we look at this document if we change any one of a number of variables in a cell of the spreadsheet that will translate in many instances to a change in other numbers which are linked to that cell by virtue of mathematical formulas, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Indeed, most of the information that is on MS 104 is linked arithmetically from one cell to another cell, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. We will -- I will ask you to set that aside for now. We are going to do these in detail later. I want to make sure I understand the documents that you looked at.
One last question on this and I will hand it back to you.
When you printed out a document from your electronic spreadsheets apparently doing these on a laptop or table

Page 28

unit --
A. Yes.
Q. Did you customarily put the date that you created the document in the upper right-hand corner as a header of some kind along with the time that you actually printed the document?
A. Yes, but I believe what happens is when you print it out it is the time you print it out, not when the document was created, so if you created the document five days before and printed it out five days after it is five days after that goes right here, in the upper right-hand corner, the time of printing.
Q. The header date, and I will use the header describing the upper right-hand corner of MS 104, the date that appears is the date that you prepared the document?
A. No. That is what I -- it is an Excel question. I will defer to anyone who knows Excel.
I believe that the date and the time relate to the date and the time that the document is printed, not when it is created.

You could save it five days before, not touch it, print it five days later and this will be the time -- date and time it was printed.
Q. Let me ask you an Excel question. You may or may not know the answer.
A. I will try.
Q. There is a function on Excel called Keep Date Current which does update the date and you can do it a lot of different ways. Are you familiar with that function?
A. No, I am not.
Q. You wouldn't customarily go into the special date menus and say keep current, right?
A. No, I would not.
Q. We will set that one aside for the time being.
You said that you also looked at some handwritten notes that you prepared?
A. Yes. I don't recall the specific content of them but I think there were some limited notes that I had taken.

015644

Q. Were these notes of a meeting that you attended?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Let me ask you if -- withdrawn.
Mr. Reporter, would you please mark as MS 365 a one-page handwritten document on Mr. Nesbitt's stationery?
(MS Exhibit 365 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have in front of you MS 365?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. First of all, is that a document that you created while you were an employee of MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc.?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your handwriting?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this one of the documents that you looked at?
A. No.
Q. Is this document which we are going to touch on in a little bit more detail, this document is dated as of March 30, 1998, right?

A. Yes, it is.
Q. The closing that is written next to the date, that is the closing --
A. Wait a minute. I am sorry.
Repeat the question you asked before that.
Q. There is a date, March 30, 1998, in the top right?
A. Yes.
Q. The closing that is written there, that refers to the closing of the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, correct?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. The first and second priority that appears above those, those are -- those are references to notes that were issued by Coleman Escrow Corporation, correct?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. These notes were both the first and second priority senior secured discount notes, if I remember the title correctly, that were issued by Coleman Escrow in about 1997, correct?

A. I don't recall.
Q. Let me show you a document, MS 241, real quick and see if we can get this background set up.
I have handed you what has previously been marked as MS 241.
Do you have that now in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. The notes -- are the notes that are referred to in MS 365 the notes identified on the front page of MS 241, the offering memorandum for Coleman Escrow Corporation for -- two sets of notes due 2001?
A. Yes.
Q. Having looked at MS 241 is your handwriting where it says first priority and second priority a reference to the notes that were issued pursuant to the offering memorandum MS 241?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Are the figures that appear below first and second priority, are those the, I will use the term, accrued amount due on those notes as of certain dates per thousand dollar face value?

A. Yes, they are.
Q. So, if I read this correctly, where you have the date 11/15/97, which I assume is November 15, 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you have under first priority 684.59, does that refer to $684.59 accrued value on a one thousand dollar face amount discounted note issued pursuant to MS 241?
A. Yes.
Q. When I go down the list I go all the way to March 30, 1998 and I see the figure 712.99. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is the 712.99, $712.99, first of all, is that what that figure represents?
A. Yes, per 1,000.
Q. That is the accrued amount of the per 1,000 of the first priority notes on March 30, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. The second priority notes, we would read those the same way, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. What you did is you calculated based on the number of outstanding instruments that were issued pursuant to the offering memorandum, and the way I read your figures on the line that begins with an X, and then I see 600,475,000, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. That is the face amount of the notes that were issued pursuant to MS 241, right?
A. Yes.
Q. For the second priority the face amount was 131,560,000, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Then you concluded based on the accrued value of the notes as of March 30, 1998 what the total liability was of Coleman Escrow Corporation, did you not?
A. Yes, at that time, yes.
Q. At that moment in time which would be March 30, 1998 the accrued value of the Coleman Escrow notes as described in MS 241 was $517,222,470, right?

A. Yes.
Q. The Coleman Escrow notes in MS 241 were issued to redeem instruments called LYONS, representing liquid yield options notes, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. The liquid yield option notes when -- strike that.
Were you an employee of MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc. when the LYONS were issued?
A. I don't know. I had nothing -- no involvement in the issuance.
Q. You know what they are, though, the LYONS?
A. Yes.
Q. They are a debt instrument that had several features. One was they had -- they paid interest, right?
A. Yes.
Q. They were issued at a discount as well, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And, in addition, they had a conversion feature, did they not?

A. Well, again I have not studied the LYONS specifically issued by Coleman or any of its entities.
Q. Didn't you do some calculations over how many LYONS might be converted into Coleman shares in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam merger transaction?
A. I may have but I would have to --
Q. We will come back to that.
A. Yes.
Q. The handwritten notes that you looked at, about how many pages of notes did you look at?
A. Several, two or three.
Q. One or two?
A. Two or three.
Q. Or 15?
A. No; two or three.
Q. Did you look at any documents that specifically -- strike that.
Did you look at any documents in your deposition preparation that had a Morgan Stanley logo on them?
A. Yes.

Q. What kind of documents were those?
A. I believe there was a reasonably extensive outline of Sunbeam's strategic plan outlining projected strengths, weaknesses, projected operating performance for each of its business units, key strategic initiatives.
Q. Was this a document that you reviewed at the same time that you looked at the MS 84 which was the strategic plan document?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS -- you have to excuse me a second, it escaped my memory.
I am going to hand you what we previously marked in another deposition as Morgan Stanley 186.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is that the document that you were referring to that had the Morgan Stanley logo that you reviewed or saw on the February 23, 1998 meeting?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015646

A. Yes, it is.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting in the upper right-hand corner, I think it is RSE, the April 7, 1998?
A. No.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Other than MS 186 which we just looked at did you look at any other documents in your preparation that bore the Morgan Stanley logo?
A. Yes.
Q. What document?
A. I believe there were some merger consequences or some analysis, something that I guess you would describe as somewhat comparable to what I did.
Q. Were these -- if I interrupt you let me know. I thought you were finished.
A. I am done.
Q. These merger consequence documents, were these documents that attempted, by defining both price, if you will, and I am going to use the term "currency," whether combinations of cash, stock, variances of stock, were these documents that applied those two variables, a price for securities and then a form of currency that would trans -- be translatable from the price?

A. Yes, among many other variables, but, yes.
Q. For example, if you assigned a price to the Coleman stock of, we will use $30 a share right now, that would be one variable that would be in these documents that you looked at, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Was another one of the variables an exchange ratio between the Coleman stock and Sunbeam stock?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that exchange ratio usually expressed or, I am from Chicago, expressed usually as a percentage?
A. A ratio.
Q. Or a ratio?
A. Yes.
Q. And then in terms of the currency, did some of the currency constitute cash in some of the documents?

A. Yes.
Q. And then was -- did some of the currency reflect forms of stock that would be given for -- in exchange for Coleman stock?
A. Yes, but I don't recall the percentages nor the splits between those two that may have been, and I don't actually recall whether any of the analyses as I recall that Morgan Stanley prepared had any component of cash even.
Q. You did analyses just like the ones that Morgan Stanley prepared and that you saw, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Each side was preparing these documents, using electronic spreadsheets, am I correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Electronic spreadsheets were being adjusted based on the various assumptions that the people were using in the negotiations; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it fair to say at the end of the transaction before the closing that the parties agreed on the variables that went into the spreadsheets so they could determine both the price and the form of the consideration that would be exchanged at the closing?

A. Those specific two variables?
Q. No, not just those two, but all of the variables that went into the pricing considerations.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I can't --
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. That was probably a poorly phrased question. I will set that aside. We will come back to it later.
We will talk about some of those documents and it is probably easier if you had them in front of you rather than trying to remember.
Are there any other Morgan Stanley -- withdrawn.
Are there any other documents you can recall, setting aside the type you just described for me, these pricing transaction documents, that you saw that bore the Morgan Stanley logo other than the ones you have now identified for me, one by category and one by specific exhibit number, MS 187?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. If I broadly define Morgan Stanley on a numerical analyses of the transaction as what I saw, yes.
Q. What --
A. I cannot recall how many different versions that I saw from Morgan Stanley but I think that encapsulates everything that I saw that bore a Morgan Stanley logo.
Q. When you say "encapsulates," one is the specific document and the other type you saw or other document you saw is a category of documents?
A. Exactly.
Q. Okay. Before we get on the distraction of what documents you looked at, when did you first meet with your attorneys, not necessarily even Mr. Markowski but anyone representing you for the deposition, when did you guys first get together?

A. I do not recall.
Q. When was the last time you got together?
A. Yesterday.
Q. How long did you meet yesterday?
A. Three hours.
Q. Where did you meet?
A. At the offices of MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. Was anyone else present?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Fasman didn't come in?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Perelman stopped and said hello?
A. No.
Q. Did you see him yesterday?
A. I did not.
Q. Had you met before yesterday with any attorneys representing Mr. Perelman's companies in connection with this litigation and preparing for your deposition?
A. With Mr. Markowski.

Q. When was that?
A. You asked me that before. I said I don't know. It was several months ago.
Q. Several months ago. That is fair enough.
Did you meet just one other time?
MR. MARKOWSKI: To prepare for the deposition you are referring to?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Yes, to prepare for the deposition.
A. We either met once or twice.
Q. How long did you meet with him the other time that you met with him?
A. Two, three hours each.
Q. Have you given anyone including Mr. Markowski any affidavits about this case?
A. No.
Q. You know what an affidavit is?
A. Yes.
Q. Something under oath that you write out?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever given --

MR. MARKOWSKI: I think he was responding to your question about -- let's get it straight.
THE WITNESS: No, I have not given any affidavits.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I understood what you meant. I am sorry.
Have you given any statements to anyone whether they were under oath or not such as being transcribed here by the court reporter?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Have you ever given any statements to anyone even if they weren't under oath where either you or the other person wrote out the facts about this case or something related to this case and you were asked to sign it?
A. No, I have not.
Q. I take it that this is really the first time that you have sat down with anyone and had someone transcribe your recollection of events from 1997 forward on the Coleman transaction?

A. Well, there was -- actually now that I -- my mistake.
I believe I was interviewed by I think attorneys from Wachtell regarding the situation in, it was presumably the summer of 1998.
Q. Wachtell is the law firm Wachtell, Lipton in New York City, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. They were attorneys representing Mr. Perelman's companies in the Coleman acquisition, correct?
A. Yes; a very vague recollection.
Q. Was this in connection with establishing a chronology of events during the negotiations?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 75.
Do you have that in front of you, MS 75?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen MS 75 before today?
A. I don't recall the first three pages but I certainly recall the exhibit.

Q. The exhibit you are referring to is the Exhibit A which is a chronology that begins with early December 1997 and ends with March 2, 1998, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see Exhibit D which is also attached?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. Did you see this -- did this document, when you looked at it -- have you looked at this document recently?
A. I don't know what you mean by "recently."
Q. Let's say in the course of preparing for your deposition in the last couple of months?
A. Yes, I believe I did.
Q. Did it help you remember events and dates?
A. Yes.
Q. Are -- your name is mentioned in here a number of places, right?
A. Yes.
Q. When you looked at this document did the dates that appeared in the meetings that you are noted as attending appear to you to be accurate?

Page 48

A. Yes.
Q. Did you notice any errors in MS 75 with regard to at least the events that you are identified as being a participant in?
A. I will take a look.
Q. Sure, go ahead.
A. There is nothing I see here that would suggest this is inaccurate.
Q. Would you hand that back to me? We will probably refer to it again.
Let me show you what we previously marked as MS 69.
I don't think there are any secrets on those anyway.
I hand what you has been marked as MS 69 in an earlier deposition.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. You will see on page 3 your name William G. Nesbitt under the company name Macandrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. Do you see that?

A. No. I am on page 3. I don't see Macandrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. I just see my name.
Q. It is a continuation from page 2 where the heading appears. My fault.
That is you, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You are listed as in the working group for Project Laser, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Tell the jury what Project Laser is?
A. Project Laser is the name, I believe, that was adopted to describe the potential transaction between Sunbeam and the Coleman companies.
Q. It was --
A. A code.
Q. A code name?
A. Yes.
Q. This transaction in one group went by the code name Project Violet?
A. Yes.
Q. Who used project Violet as a code

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015649

Page 50

name for this transaction?
A. I believe it was Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam.
Q. And Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever hear Credit Suisse First Boston use the term Project Violet?
A. No.
Q. With regard to the project code named Laser what was your responsibility?
A. I think it was -- sorry. I worked for Jim Maher and it was to assist Jim Maher and, if appropriate, any of the other principals from MacAndrews & Forbes in executing numerical analyses related to the transaction.
Q. Were you the primary person that conducted the numerical analyses of the transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You mean in-house at MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. BEMIS: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did you provide then your

Page 51

numerical analyses in-house to Mr. Maher?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you also provide them to an investment banking firm?
A. Any particular one?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you provide any of your numerical analyses to Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you provide any to Sunbeam or their representatives in any meetings?
Let me rephrase the question because that is too broad for you.
Did you provide any of your numerical analyses to Sunbeam or its employees or officers or directors?
A. No.
Q. Did you -- was -- withdrawn.
Did you have any responsibility for -- strike that.
Did you have a person that you communicated with at Coleman in connection with preparing your numerical analyses.

Page 52

MR. MARKOWSKI: I will object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. Restate it please.
Q. Sure. Let me try it this way, make it clearer for all of us.
In your numerical analyses like MS 104 that we looked at earlier, your first spreadsheet, you have figures for Coleman for both 1997 estimates, you have 1998 estimates, you have -- you have them on multiple pages.
Did you have a person at the Coleman company that you could speak to to obtain the information like that for whatever numerical analyses that you did involving Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was that?
A. Joe Page or Jerry Levin.
Q. You also had information in your numerical analyses such as MS 104 that incorporated financial information similar to that for Coleman for Sunbeam Corporation, right?

Page 53

A. Yes.
Q. Did you have a person at Sunbeam that you could call up on the telephone and get information from?
A. No.
Q. Did you obtain your information as you put it in the spreadsheets for Sunbeam from public documents?
A. I would have to refer to -- depends which spreadsheet.
Q. Fair enough. We will do that when we look at each one of the spreadsheets.
In any event, going back to the -- your role in the transaction and your work for Mr. Maher did you have the same role that you described earlier in your testimony from the inception of your work up to the time of closing which was March 30, 1998?
A. Yes, as described broadly, yes.
Q. In addition to working with Mr. Maher you told me you communicated with

015950

Page 54

Credit Suisse First Boston and Coleman, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You also had attorneys you communicated with, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You communicated directly with the Wachtell firm in connection with this transaction, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You had a -- withdrawn.
You communicated directly with Adam Emmerich on a number of occasions, did you not?
A. Yes.
Q. He was for all practical purposes the lead attorney on this transaction for Wachtell, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If you had a legal question on this transaction you could communicate with Mr. Emmerich at Wachtell, correct?
A. Yes, or internally.
Q. Or internally at MacAndrews & Forbes Holding, Inc., right?

Page 55

A. Yes.
Q. Do you use the -- did you use the term "MAFCO" internally or how did you describe the company that you were working for during this period of the Sunbeam-Coleman merger?
A. Technically I was working for MAFCO Consolidated Group, I believe, at that time which is a subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. Your title which I think we will get to in more detail, but you were an executive, a senior vice president, correct?
A. Of MAFCO Consolidated.
Q. MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc.?
A. Yes, but I had a series of different titles at different entities. I would have to refer to -- for timing. It changed over time.
Q. You got a paycheck from one of Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. As long as it cashed --
Q. You probably got direct deposit like everybody else, isn't that true?

Page 56

A. Yes.
Q. When I ask people where their check came from, nobody knows where their check came from. It is all direct deposit. We will set that aside.
In addition to the people at Coleman, Mr. Page and Mr. Levin and the people you had -- Mr. Emmerich at Wachtell, if you had a legal question, if you had an investment banking question could you turn to Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Yes.
Q. And who did you deal with primarily at Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Either Rob Duffy or Gordon Rich; on a limited basis Chuck Ward.
Q. If you had a question about an accounting matter did you have a line of communication to the Coleman companies certified public accountants?
A. No. Well, did I have one? Yes. Did I utilize it? I think I spoke more with Joe Page, the CFO.
Q. During the negotiations -- strike that.

Page 57

Would you consider the transaction between Sunbeam and the Coleman company a negotiated transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. On one side of the negotiations you said you had -- Mr. Perelman's companies had a law firm, Wachtell, Lipton, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was the law firm on the other side of the negotiation, for Sunbeam?
A. I believe it was Skadden, Arps.
Q. You told me on your side of the negotiations you had an investment banking firm Credit Suisse First Boston, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. They were paid exclusively by Mr. Perelman's companies, correct?
A. I believe by the Coleman companies.
Q. The Coleman company was owned at the time of the transaction, just before -- about 82.4 percent by one of the subsidiaries of Mr. Perelman specifically, Coleman Worldwide, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015651

A. Yes.
Q. On the opposite side, on the investment side, there was Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. They were paid for by Sunbeam as far as you understood it, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Then on the -- Sunbeam had accountants, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. The Coleman companies had certified public accountants. It was Ernst & Young, right?
A. I don't recall.
Q. They did have certified public accountants because they filed public filings with the SEC which requires statements signed by certified public accountants or attested to by certified public accountants?
A. Of course.
Q. In addition -- strike that.

In addition now to the financial advisers, the investment bankers, the law firms, the accountants and the numerical analysts that you were the head of at Mr. Perelman's companies were there any other people involved in the negotiations that you can identify on either side of the table?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read that back please?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I will rephrase the question.
In addition to the investment bankers which you identified in the negotiations, you have identified the law firms in the negotiations, you have identified at least one of the accounting firms and you know there was another accounting firm in the negotiations.
Can you identify anyone else on either side of the negotiating table that was involved in the negotiations.
A. I believe early on there was a representative from one of the significant shareholders of Sunbeam who was involved in some preliminary discussions.

Q. Mr. Price?
A. Yes. I don't know that it was Mr. Price or Peter Langerman but that firm had a substantial position and substantial influence.
Q. Are you familiar with the term "arms length negotiations?"
A. Yes.
Q. Would you characterize the Sunbeam transaction as an arms length negotiations?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you consider -- did you consider Mr. Perelman's companies to be sophisticated investors when you worked for Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you consider yourself to be sophisticated in the responsibilities that were assigned to you in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. You understood, as I read your paper, you understood such sophisticated concepts as pooling accounting and purchase accounting, right?

A. Yes, or if I didn't know I would get the answer.
Q. You knew, for example, what it was, like to take a 338(h) election in tax treatment for these transactions, didn't you?
A. Yes, but, again, if there were holes in my understanding I would fill them with advice from the varied people that you named.
Q. The people on your side of the negotiating table?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever call up Morgan Stanley and ask Morgan Stanley for advice as to what you should advise Mr. Perelman's companies to do?
A. Of course not.
Q. Have you ever met Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. How many times?
A. 200, 300.
Q. Do you consider him a smart man?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0152

A. Yes.
Q. Do you consider him a sophisticated investor?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you consider him one of the most sophisticated investors in New York City?
A. Yes.
Q. What was Mr. Barry Schwartz's involvement in Project Laser as described on the working group list MS 69 that you still have in front of you, what was his role?
A. Barry was and is in-house counsel at MacAndrews & Forbes which means from a legal perspective he watches out for MacAndrews & Forbes' interests to the best of his abilities and he might interface with counsel, might sit in on meetings generally to make sure, given his extensive knowledge of all of the activities from a legal perspective of MacAndrews & Forbes, that he is familiar with what is going on and can advise Mr. Perelman and other members of MacAndrews & Forbes as to what is appropriate or not appropriate.

Q. If you had a legal question in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman merger and you wanted to discuss it in-house rather than going over to Wachtell, Lipton would Mr. Schwartz be the ultimate point of contact with Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. Ultimate, yes.
Q. Might he assign you to someone else to speak to on a problem?
Withdrawn.
Let's get real focused.
In connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction did you have matters that you in connection with your responsibilities addressed directly with Mr. Schwartz?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Can I have the question back please?
(Record read)
MR. MARKOWSKI: Are we focusing on the time period up to the closing still?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, sir, up to the closing.

THE WITNESS: I speak to Barry -- spoke to Barry regularly but I can't recall specific instances, questions that I may have asked him, but his door was open on these sorts of issues.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Where was your office -- strike that.
What floor was your office on at Mr. Perelman's headquarters?
A. Fourth floor.
Q. Can you refresh my recollection where Mr. Perelman's office was?
A. Second floor.
Q. That is what I thought.
Mr. Drapkin, you know him, Donald G. Drapkin?
A. Yes.
Q. What was his role in the merger?
A. I think that Mr. Drapkin, given his legal background and, for that matter, extensive background with Mr. Perelman on the transaction side, provided more general advice and direction with respect to the discussions and negotiations and was briefed from time to time appropriately.

Q. Where was Mr. Drapkin's office in the headquarters?
A. Third floor.
Q. Of MacAndrews & Forbes, third floor.
You know Mr. Howard Gittis, right?
A. Yes.
Q. He was on the second floor directly with Mr. Perelman, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. What was Mr. Gittis' role in the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. I would characterize it as a similar role to Mr. Drapkin's but Howard has been with Ronald almost from the start, Mr. Perelman, from the start and so again providing day-to-day strategic advice on negotiation strategy pros and cons.
Q. Did Mr. Ronald O. Perelman have the final say so in terms of the Coleman Sunbeam transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are referring to for MacAndrews & Forbes?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MR. BEMIS: Yes, sir.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me ask the question again. I apologize. If it is a little awkward tell me and I will try to redo it for you.
Did Mr. Ronald O. Perelman have the final say so, the final yes or no, on behalf of his companies whether to proceed with the Sunbeam-Coleman merger transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this the first deal, that is, the Sunbeam-Coleman merger transaction, that Mr. Perelman had done?
You are smiling.
A. Apparently a lot of time here.
No.
MR. BEMIS: Why don't we take a break here? We have gone an hour-and-a-half and then run to lunch.
Off the record.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is 10:59.
(Recess)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is 11:11.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Before we turn to your first involvement in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction which we have touched upon a little bit already I would like to have you tell the jury a little bit about your professional background so they will better understand the role you played in the transaction.
You told us earlier that after you graduated from Duke with your degree in economics in 1984 you went to First Boston Corporation; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If you told me I apologize but how long were you there?
A. I was there two years in the financial analyst program in the merger and acquisition group as a generalist meaning from an industry perspective focusing on mergers and acquisitions, acquisitions, divestitures but no specific industry.
Q. Did you spend the entire two years in that group?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. Can you generally describe what you did as a generalist and an analyst at First Boston?
A. Basically responsible for analyzing from a numerical perspective the consequence, consequences of various mergers and acquisitions on behalf of clients that had retained First Boston as it related to divestiture assignments, the sale of either subsidiaries or entire companies.
I was involved in the preparation of offering memos that would be used to describe the business, its prospects for the benefit of potential purchasers, and then involved pretty extensively in the preparation of pitches, pitch books, marketing materials, to various companies that might be interested in retaining First Boston, the merger group.
Q. First Boston at the time that you were speaking of was an investment banking firm, right?
A. Yes.

Q. And it eventually merges with Credit Suisse and becomes Credit Suisse First Boston, right?
A. Yes.
Q. When you worked for First Boston in this two-year period and you were developing either your numerical analyses or your offering memos or your pitch books these were in connection with matters that First Boston had been retained as an investment banker for a client?
A. Again, if we had been retained it would be subject to an engagement letter.
If it was prospective, hopeful, it would be more involved on a pitch book basis.
Q. When you refer to a "pitch book" are you referring to presentation materials you would prepare for a potential client to persuade them that you had the merits to be hired to assist them in whatever their ultimate goal was?
A. Yes.
Q. As part of the investment banking business as you learned it back with First

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Boston, was making presentations to potential clients a customary thing that you did in your work?

A. Well, I myself did not make the presentations. I was involved but, yes, it is a natural part, it is a necessary part of investment banking if you are to secure business.

Q. Like being interviewed for the job, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Your object in the interview is to persuade your prospective client that you have the expertise and the knowledge in a particular area to add value to the client's interest in selling or buying a business, however you might describe the client's goal?

A. Yes.

Q. Then after -- when you were at First Boston did you make the decision then to go to business school?

A. Yes.

Q. Then I guess from 1986 to 1988 you were at Harvard, right?

A. Yes, with a summer in between at Coniston Partners.

Q. I know what -- what is Coniston Partners?

A. What was Coniston Partners?

Q. Right.

A. Coniston Partners, the general partner of which was a firm by the name of Gollust, Tierney & Oliver, was a fund that had been raised to take strategic blocks in publicly held companies with a view towards redirecting corporate strategy.

It tended to be undermanaged, undervalued public companies, large public companies.

Q. Coniston Partners -- strike that.

In your view is Coniston Partners similar to Mr. Price's and Mr. Langerman, their business in taking positions with their funds?

A. There is some modest overlap. Mr. Price, Mr. Langerman run or ran a mutual fund which as a matter of strategy from time to time would take activist positions in undervalued, undermanaged companies, sometimes on a proactive basis, sometimes on a reactive basis.

If something went wrong they might raise their hand to try to fix things.

Coniston was purely proactive, did not hold a diversified portfolio at all and tended to involve itself only in two or three situations at most in its pool of capital which was somewhere between 800 million and a billion dollars, depending on the time.

Q. What did you do at Coniston that summer?

A. And subsequent, by the way.

Q. And subsequent, right.

A. The summer of 1987 I was involved in -- we decided to take a position in Allegis which was the parent company of United Airlines, Hilton, Hertz and Westin and we acquired a significant block of stock with a view towards splitting the company up on a tax-free basis if possible, basically splitting up to kind of -- to extract the value of its component parts, and I was involved in the analysis of Allegis.

Q. This was during the year when some of the parts was worth more than the whole?

A. Yes, it was a great period of time.

Q. When you -- withdrawn.

During the summer were you an intern with the company, is that what you described your work?

A. Yes.

Q. An intern with a full degree from Duke University and a year under your belt at the Harvard Business School, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Then after you were -- spent the summer at Coniston then did you go to another firm or did you go -- you went there right afterwards?

A. I went to Coniston and during the second year I consulted from time to time with the partners of Coniston Partners on various potential investments.

Q. Did you do that while you were finishing your second year in the business program at Harvard?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. Did you eventually go to work for the, and I will say this slowly, Gollust, Tierney & Oliver investment firm?
A. Yes. That is the general partner of Coniston Partners.
Q. That is what I thought. You did tell me that.
A. Yes.
Q. You left Coniston directly and went to work for the general partner?
A. No. I was never -- I was never employed by the partnership. I was employed by the management company which was Gollust, Tierney & Oliver Management.
Q. I appreciate that. I should have known better when I asked that question.
You were there about four years?
A. I was there, yes, from 1988 through '92 and actually physically until 1996 but I can elaborate on that, why I stayed that --
Q. Before we get there, what did you do at least during the period 1988 through 1992 at Coniston Partners?

A. Chiefly responsible for identifying potential investment opportunities on behalf of the partnership and analyzing the investment merits of making them and, as well, being involved in discussions or analysis that might be required subsequent to making an investment because these were not passive investments.
Q. When you did your identification of potential investments and looked at the merits of making investments you were investing or were looking at investing someone else's money, right, the partners' money?
A. Limited partners' money and the general partners' money.
Q. Would you describe -- without trying to be facetious now, would you describe it as a lot of money you were dealing with in these investments?
A. Absolutely, an enormous amount. We ran an entirely undiversified portfolio. Positions tended to be 150 million to 300 million dollars or so in an individual stock.

Q. Real money even to a man like Everett Dirkson, right?
A. Who?
Q. You are showing your age.
Would you consider $100 million to be a substantial amount of money to invest?
A. I did, I do, I will.
Q. When you did your investigation of this money for other people which involves substantial amounts did you do your own investigations, that is, did you use your own brain power and your own research abilities to try to analyze the data?
A. You have to clarify the question. I am not sure.
Q. That is fair enough. That is not a very good question. Let me try again.
When you did your investigation even going back now to the period of 1988 to 1992 and looking for companies with merit, would you look at publicly filed information of companies if they had it available?

A. Yes.
Q. Would you look at analyst reports about companies if they were being followed by an analyst?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you do research of data bases like Lexis or Nexis or any of the multitude of data bases that were emerging during that time period?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you uncritically accept any number that you happened to see in a document or did you analyze it yourself for its merits?
A. To the best of our abilities we tried to investigate.
Q. When you say you investigate or you critically look at something in the context of your work as IDing investments and investments of hundreds of millions of dollars, would you describe that as due diligence on your part?
A. Yes, but ultimately we were relying on publicly available information, SEC filings as the primary source document to guide our investment research.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. As an investment researcher for an investment banking group, as an example. You are not an auditor, right?
A. No.
Q. By trade you are not an accountant, are you?
A. No.
Q. When you look at a financial statement that is certified by a public accounting firm that files reports with the Securities and Exchange Commission do you customarily go behind those statements in the sense of reauditing the figures in the statements?
A. In the true sense of the word "auditing?"
Q. Yes.
A. No. One doesn't have that ability.
Q. You might analyze the figures in different ways, correct?
A. As best you can, yes, whatever you can do.

Q. In any investment banking transaction that you have been involved in, whether it be on the acquisition side or the sell side, or even just on the investment -- just on the investment side, and you had publicly available financial statements that you looked at and analyzed did you ever, in any instance, go back and commission anyone to reaudit the financial statements that you were relying upon?
A. No.
Q. When you finished your four-year stretch at Coniston about 1992, I think you said, you continued to work for them for a period in another capacity; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. What period of time was that?
A. At the end of early 1992 the partners -- there were three partners and myself was the firm, the extent of the firm as it related to Coniston Partners -- decided to liquidate the fund.
They had a very, very -- the partners had an extraordinarily successful ten years and felt that the environment had changed for the -- perhaps permanently for the type of activity that we were involved in and they decided that they would take their chips off the table so the fund as much as it could have been at that point was liquidated and capital was returned to the partners and I was -- with another individual set up a hedge fund with seed capital from the partners of Gollust, Tierney & Oliver. That is Lakeview Partners.

Q. Lakeview Management?
A. Yes, so Lakeview was again a hedge fund that was involved in the investment both on the long and short side in securities that we believe were mispriced, whether it was the risk arbitrage investments, distressed securities, bankruptcy securities, foreign securities, anyone -- focused on companies that were undergoing a great deal of change or structurings.
Q. As an example of what you are talking about, if you had a major enterprise that was in bankruptcy and had a large amount of bonds outstanding, we will use bonds -- I am talking about secured instruments now in this instance, they were out there in the market and they had a distressed price, that might be something that you would analyze and look at and go to the underlying value of the security and say these bonds are underpriced, if we can wait them out they will eventually be able to be liquidated at a profit to us hopefully at far more than we could make in a bank account?

A. Yes.
Q. For those on the jury and maybe others who don't know what a hedge fund is could you explain to us in a few words --
A. First of all, it is a misnomer because it doesn't imply that we are hedged.
Q. It doesn't imply you are taking both sides, does it?
A. Yes, exactly.
What it typically refers to is a partnership that has been set up on behalf of limited partners to invest their capital with us and it really relates to -- generically to the compensation structure which tends -- which typically, or in our case, provided us with a management fee and then a strong incentive, a percentage of profits that would accrue to us, typically a 1 percent management fee and 20 percent of profits so there is a strong incentive to do well.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Hedge funds are in comparison -- withdrawn.

Are hedge funds generally, as the terminology is used in the financial markets such as New York, considered higher risk investments than, for example, a mutual fund that the average American might invest in?

A. It depends, depends on what the strategy is. The structure does not necessarily have anything to do with the strategy. I think it relates to the strategy, not the structure.

Q. In terms --

A. That is a perception question. I don't know.

Page 83

Q. I think that is a good answer frankly.

Lakeview Management, how would you describe its investment strategy? Was it -- did it go after high risk but very high return investments or did it follow a more conservative growth but with more security and preservation of capital?

A. Well, as you have characterized it, I have two choices I guess. It is more in the former camp.

We were value investors; invested in special situations. We did not typically invest in situations for the long term.

We were trying to exploit pricing aberrations in the marketplace relative to -- that we thought would ultimately be corrected when the dust cleared either because of confusion over strategic direction of the company, a very complicated transaction that the typical shareholder wasn't in a position to analyze.

Page 84

Q. Or understand?

A. Or understand.

Q. When you left -- strike that.

How did your employment come to an end with Lakeview Management?

A. We ran the partnership for three years and I ultimately decided that I wanted to focus on the acquisition of companies as a profession and to be involved more intimately with those companies on a longer term basis to work with management teams and to try to grow as opposed to sitting in front of a Bloomberg and trying to exploit pricing differences so we ended up liquidating the fund and returned the capital to our investors the largest of which was Gollust, Tierney & Oliver that had roughly $20 million with us; the partners -- excuse me -- the principals of Gollust, Tierney & Oliver.

We had returns of 28, 29 percent a year for the three years.

Q. I should have called.

How many deals had you done by the time you liquidated Lakeview?

Page 85

A. Deals or investments?

Q. A fair question.

Let's start with deals, mergers, acquisitions, business combinations some of kind.

I don't mean that you were necessarily an investor but how many had you worked on? It is an awkward question.

From the time when you went to First Boston as an intern in about 1997 I suspect was when you went, until say 1995 when you leave Lakeview, how many merger and acquisition transactions had you participated in advising either a buyer or seller on?

A. Well, engaged because I mean we are getting into nuances here.

In the case of Coniston Partners we were the largest shareholder so we were doing our best to call the shots but we weren't engaged as an adviser.

We were an influential shareholder. There is certainly a legal distinction.

What are you referring to as an

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015958

adviser engaged as an investment banker?
Q. Let's start with engaged as an investment banker and then we will go to the next step.
A. Probably in those two years, 15, 20 situations, in some reasonable capacity again as a analyst so I certainly wasn't advising.
Q. Then when you get to the -- get away from the -- strike that.
Let's step now away from engagements and where you are doing an actual investment for either a partnership or analyzing an investment even if you are an investment banker and someone wants you to analyze whether they should do a transaction, how many of those did you do?
A. From the time I was at Gollust, Tierney & Oliver to the time I left Lakeview I did not act in an advisory capacity as you have described it.
I was making investments as a principal on behalf of partners who invested their capital with us.
Q. How many -- did you have an interest in the investments other than your profits -- other than a profit participation?

A. A de minimus interest while I was at Coniston Partners, I didn't have any money, and then I was a general partner and an investor in Lakeview Partners.
Q. Between Coniston and Lakeview Partners how many deals did you invest in where you were actively involved in making or -- the decision or giving advice on whether the investment had merit and was advisable for the partners, the limited partners?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Go ahead. You can answer.
A. Well, I will make one distinction.
Investments in Coniston Partners, I was not the decision maker, I was not a general partner, so consulted, advised, identified and they were active investments.

We were actually going to precipitate change. There were four or five investments that we made of the sort of scale that I mentioned.
Q. Of Allegis?
A. Yes, Allegis, Gillette, situations like that, substantial investments in large public companies, united Airlines, attempted a leveraged buyout of United Airlines with the three unions and then -- so there were a handful, very concentrated.
In the case of Lakeview I would have to say it was more in the 50 to 100 range. These were smaller passive stakes. The partnership probably had 15 to 30 positions at any one time.
Q. That takes us up to the end of 1995. At that point you liquidated the Lakeview and you went to work for Mr. Perelman's companies, did you not?
A. Yes.
Q. What was -- withdrawn.
Did you start in 1996, about that time?

A. I believe it was March of 1996.
Q. What was your -- what company did you first go to work for if you can remember and what was your position?
A. I was asked to join and did join MAFCO Consolidated Group which was a New York Stock Exchange listed, publicly traded company that was controlled by MacAndrews & Forbes. I believe we owned 81, 82 percent or so. The remaining shares were owned by the public and internally and from my vantage point it was viewed as a publicly traded acquisition vehicle and so I joined for two purposes.
The first was that MAFCO Consolidated Group had several existing businesses and there was a question as to what should we do with those businesses, grow them, sell them, buy more, use the capital, and then the second question or second objective from my perspective was to, if appropriate, to then use whatever proceeds or borrowing that was available to then do additional acquisitions.
Q. MAFCO Consolidated Group -- no comma, by the way -- Inc. was not an operating company, right?

A. Well, MAFCO Consolidated Group was the holding company for two operating companies.
Q. One of which was --
A. M&F Worldwide and the other was Consolidated Cigar.
Q. M&F Worldwide was in what business?
A. The largest manufacturer of licorice extract in the world.
Q. One of Mr. Perelman's first big acquisitions, was it not?
A. Yes. Well, big at the time. It was a relatively small one in comparison to later, but, yes.
Q. MAFCO -- withdrawn.
MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc., the company that you worked for, essentially was in the business of doing deals, acquiring other companies or selling companies that it had acquired for a profit, right?
A. Yes.

Page 91

Q. Just so the --
A. It is a holding company for two operating companies so we were, but, yes.
Q. When you refer to it as an acquisition company, so the jury understands, an acquisition company versus a company that makes things, an acquisition company doesn't make razor blades, for example, like Gillette, does it?
A. What I stated was that there were two primary activities. One was to monitor and continue to evaluate the merits of continuing to operate the existing businesses, again, the Consolidated Cigar which was the largest maker of premium cigars in the world or in the U.S. and then as well M&F Worldwide, and the other was, if appropriate, to then use whatever capital was available to make further acquisitions, but relative to probably most publicly traded companies I think it is fair to say that we had a more open view with respect to doing acquisitions.
Q. What do you mean by that?
A. That it was a, as far as my understanding of the task at hand, it was certainly at the top of the list as far as how I would be spending my time looking for acquisition vehicles -- opportunities, excuse me.

Q. Did MAFCO Consolidated Group, aside from companies it may have held an interest in as a holding company, did it make any products?
A. The holding company, no.
Q. Do you know how many employees when you joined the company that MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc. had?
A. After I joined or when I joined?
Q. When you joined, 1996.
A. The holding company?
Q. Just the holding company now, who either deposited --
A. Two.
Q. You and who else?
A. Mr. Maher.
Q. You and Mr. Maher. I am not trying to be facetious. I want the jury to understand what we are dealing with.
Did you guys own any factories where you made goods?

Page 93

A. The holding company?
Q. MAFCO Consolidated.
A. That legal line.
Q. The one who paid you.
A. No.
MR. BEMIS: Why don't we change the tape?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:44. This completes tape number one.
(Pause)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:45. This begins tape number two.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Right before we changed tapes we were talking about MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc.
Did you hold a position in that company up until the time that you left Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. Personally?
Q. Yes, sir. You?
A. Did I hold -- you mean not an investment position but a professional --
Q. As a person who received a paycheck from the company.

A. Yes.
Yes, I believe so.
There was a point where that entity became private so -- and I just can't recall whether I then became -- ultimately became a senior vice president of MacAndrews & Forbes and I just don't recall what happened to the title, if you will, at MAFCO Consolidated Group.
Q. At some point you did become the senior vice president at Macandrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc., right?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember -- about what time did that occur?
A. I don't recall.
Q. How did -- did your duties change when you assumed this title of senior vice president at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.?
A. Yes, in -- well, my responsibilities changed in that as compared to being directly responsible for identifying investment opportunities on behalf of MAFCO Consolidated Group and overseeing -- evaluating its operating businesses, it became much more general in nature in that it extended to all of the MacAndrews & Forbes entities in theory although in practice we had a number of different entities, Revlon, et cetera, and the bank -- and I didn't really have any day-to-day responsibilities on those entities so it became much more of either a Mr. Fix-It role, we have an issue here, can you look into this, or continuing to look on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes for new acquisition opportunities.

Q. The bank you referred to, could you tell the jury what bank that was?
A. It was originally Cal Fed. It has gone through a series of name changes.
Q. What is the name it goes by today?
A. Now? I am not even sure of its ownership at this point.
Q. Is it California Union?
A. I don't recall. No, it was actually bought by Citicorp ultimately.

Page 96

Q. Was Cal Fed -- that stands for California Federal at one time but primarily located in California, being from California?
A. I mean, again, no involvement but the second or third largest thrift in the country. Was.
Q. Were you -- you weren't employed by any MAFCO entity when Cal Fed was purchased by Mr. Perelman's companies, were you?
A. No. I think it is fair to say that those -- that sequence tended to result in assigned responsibility.
If you were involved in the acquisition you tended to have more responsibility day-to-day.
Q. Did you -- you worked then all the way through the year 2000 -- withdrawn.
When did you leave Mr. Perelman's companies and start with someone else?
A. I left in July, perhaps early August of 2000.
Q. Where did you go?
A. I joined or became one of five founding partners of an entity called Lamphere Capital Partners which had no operations at that point. It was an entity that was established to go out and raise a fund, so this was the going out and -- going out on my own.

Page 97

Q. Is Lamphere L-A-M-P-H-E-R-E?
A. Yes.
Q. Was your title managing director?
A. Yes.
Q. How long did you remain associated with Lamphere Capital Partners?
A. Roughly a year.
Q. What precisely did you do while you were there?
A. I was one of five partners apart from two other clerical people. There were no other employees, and I was responsible equally, I suppose, among all the other partners for developing a strategy and preparing an offering memo with which to raise a private equity fund.
Q. Sometimes called a PEF?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you do that? Did you raise

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

the money for the PEF?
A. No, we did not.
Q. The idea of a PEF or private equity fund is you raise the money from investors and then you as the private equity fund invest in other investments, businesses, startup entities or others with the objective of holding that position for a period of time and then hopefully liquidating at a profit, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there -- you were simply unsuccessful in raising capital for your PEF at this time?
A. Yes.
Q. You started this business right as the economy went into the downward spiral it looks like if you started in June and July of 2000, is that right?
A. Well, we -- yes. I think we started fund raising in late 2000 and early 2001.
Q. After you were unsuccessful with Lamphere raising the funds that you tried to raise did you then go to Park Avenue

Equity where you are working today?
A. Yes.
Q. How many partners do you have at Park Avenue Equity?
A. I have four.
Q. Four?
A. Yes.
Q. What does Park Avenue Equity do?
A. It -- Park Avenue Equity Management has two activities. One is, and its primary activity is -- we have a pool of capital, a private equity fund with which we make middle market medium size private equity investments in medium size companies, typically private companies.
The second activity really on an opportunistic basis, we will advise a very limited number of clients on typically divestiture assignments, more general strategic advice and --
Q. Could you give me an example of -- you don't have to name any names but give me an example of the type of divestiture advice you are talking about.
A. I am and have been, since October of '02, been advising an east coast based privately held company on the sale of its -- all of its operations which include two refineries, 350 gas stations and eight or nine product terminals. It is about a billion-and-a-half dollar revenue company.

Q. As an example, if I or my family owned a business that had been quite successful and I was looking to divest the family of the business, would this be -- and it was substantial, dollar wise, is this the type of client that you might provide divestiture advice for?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that advice include pricing?
A. Pricing, you mean negotiating a price?
Q. Value of the enterprise.
A. Yes.
Q. To a buyer?
A. Yes.
Q. Does it include tax advice to the seller?
A. No.
Q. Do you have people that you are affiliated with in your business that provide that type of advice, tax advice?

A. No. I mean we know people but we tend to believe that is the responsibility of the company, perhaps at our suggestion, to engage experts in that capacity.
Q. Do you look for buyers on these divestiture assignments?
A. If appropriate, yes, or if asked to.
Q. Are the services that you do in this context similar to what an investment banking firm would do?
A. Very much so.
Q. I couldn't tell the difference when you described it.
A. Right. It is just that we do it -- we are a small firm so we do it on a very limited basis and we really don't chase it, I suppose, the same way that investment bankers do.
It tends to be much more relationship based. They know you us, we know them. We don't get involved in bakeoffs.

015662

Page 102

Q. I haven't heard "bakeoffs" used for pitches in a while so in the context --
A. Right.
Q. So the jury knows, "bakeoffs" is the term sometimes used in the industry when five investment banking firms compete for the same business and they each make a pitch and there is a bakeoff to see who wins, right?
A. Yes.
Q. When you worked for Mr. Perelman's companies what was the largest by dollar size transaction that you worked on?
A. I guess that would be, on the buy side, the purchase of Panavision which is a west coast-based, Los Angeles-based renter of motion picture cameras and lighting.
Q. When we see on the screen at the end the word "Panavision," the "Filmed in Panavision" words, would -- that is the company, or at least the cameras, that you are referring to, right?
A. Yes.
Q. On the buy side for Panavision as -- how big was that transaction measured in dollars?

Page 103

A. It was roughly $700 million.
Q. You did that transaction in 1997, right?
A. I believe it closed in 1998, early '98.
Q. It closed before the Sunbeam transaction, though, did it not?
A. Yes, yes. There was a bond deal, I believe, in February or so, around that period, but, yes.
Q. Let's turn now to the sell side.
What was the largest sell side transaction that you worked on while you worked for Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. I was involved peripherally in the sale of Consolidated Cigar, and I say "peripherally." Mr. Maher was leading the negotiations. At that point we owned a meaningful stake in -- it was not then a public company -- in Consolidated Cigar and we ended up selling both our block and the entire company to Seita, the European tobacco company.

Page 104

Q. Can you spell that?
A. S-E-I-T-A.
Q. I thought so. I wasn't positive though.
A. Yes.
Q. How big was that transaction dollar wise?
A. I think it was about 800 million, 7, 800 million.
Q. Then, of course, you worked on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you work on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction at the same time you worked on the Panavision deal?
I know your involvement was a little bit different but did you work on it at the same time?
A. There was some overlap. The Panavision situation was really winding down in terms of its demands on my time.
The deal had been negotiated and due diligence had been largely completed and it was -- it kind of moved into that closing period.

Page 105

I think there was some -- there were some road shows to get the bond deal done but I did not participate on those. Those were more the responsibility of the management team at Panavision.
Q. Was there a management team at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Management team in what sense?
Q. The same way you used management team at Panavision?
A. We didn't -- there were some -- I think some close relationships of the firm, in fact, current employees that Ronald had high regard for but, no, there weren't -- if what you are referring to is did we have executives in residence the way private equity firms do that were just out looking for deals as a general matter for extended periods of time, no.
Q. Who were Mr. Perelman's closest advisers while you were there at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I think, as I stated earlier, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Drapkin, Mr. Maher, Mr. Schwartz and his CFO who was either --

015663

Todd Slotkin, I guess.
Q. Did you ever attend the breakfast meetings at Mr. Perelman's townhouse?
A. No.
Q. You were aware of those meetings though?
A. Of course.
Q. My understanding is that those breakfast meetings took place virtually every day that he was in town and the others were in town, that his senior people met with him for breakfast to discuss the business of his companies?
A. Yes.
Q. Was Mr. Gittis one of the people who would attend these breakfast meetings?
A. To my knowledge, yes.
Q. Mr. Drapkin as well?
A. Drapkin, yes.
Q. Mr. Maher?
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Schwartz?
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Slotkin, right?
A. Yes.

Q. How about Mr. Shapiro, was he a member of this group?
A. I don't think so.
Q. How about Mr. Engleman?
A. Mr. Engelman was CFO prior to Mr. Slotkin so there was a point where presumably one of them went but Mr. Slotkin worked for Mr. Engelman prior to Mr. Engelman's departure.
I think there may have been a couple of the operating executives, to the extent they were in town, were there, either Jerry Ford or --
Q. Jerry Levin?
A. Jerry Levin, yes. I -- again, I wasn't there everyday so -- any days.
Q. You worked on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction. You told us what you did.
Let's turn to that before we go to lunch and see how far we can get.
When was your first -- let me withdraw the question.
Turning to the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction now, I know you told us a little bit about it.

When was the first time you heard there was any transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman that was being discussed no matter how peripherally between Mr. Perelman's companies and Sunbeam?
A. A specific date?
Q. If you could give me the hour and minute that would be great but if you can give me a day or a month or a year, that is what we will --
A. I believe it was sometime in December.
Q. Of 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you describe for us the circumstances that you first heard about a possible transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I believe there was, and I don't recall who made it, but there was an overture from either Sunbeam or a representative of Sunbeam, someone related to Sunbeam, that expressed interest in Coleman, in purchasing Coleman.
Q. How did you learn of this overture by whomever?

A. I believe it was from Mr. Maher.
Q. The first time that you learned of a possible transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam is in a meeting with Mr. Maher as opposed to a meeting with Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley, for example; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me ask you to look at your calendar which is -- you identified as Morgan Stanley 195.
I want you to turn to November 6 of 1997 of your calendar and tell me when you are there.
A. November 6?
Q. November 6.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Very informative.
MR. BEMIS: That is because I gave you -- you have to look also at the preceding page which is also November 6.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Thanks.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Before you accuse me of being uninformative you have to make sure you review the document in whole.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I appreciate the advice.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Are we there on November 6?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Bates number CPH200639.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Are you on that page, Mr. Nesbitt?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. There are a series of entries on your calendar for that date. Do you see the date for Gucci meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Then it says, slash ROP. Is that Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. HG is Mr. Gittis?
A. Yes.
Q. And JRM, that is Mr. Maher?
A. Yes.
Q. Bill Reid, he was with Morgan Stanley at that time?
A. Yes.

Q. And then we have Matt Grogan and Bob Kitts?
A. Yes.
Q. Both from Morgan Stanley, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what the Gucci meeting refers to?
A. Yes.
Q. What does it refer to?
A. It refers to a discussion to possibly acquire Gucci.
Q. Were you at all involved in that?
A. I don't recall whether I attended this meeting but I was certainly -- I was peripherally involved.
It didn't really advance to the stage where it became a serious idea.
Q. Can I ask you when you look at your calendar, I know this is an earlier version of Lotus notes is what this was kept on, this calendar?
A. That is what it says down at the bottom.
Okay. I will take your word for it.

Q. Did you keep your calendar or did your secretary?
A. My secretary did it. I did some of it but she also did it and so the reason why there is a little bit of confusion here is that some of this I was -- was on my calendar so I was aware it was taking place.
Mr. Maher might be in a meeting so I would be aware of what he was doing but it wasn't perfect either way.
Q. There are meetings that you would have attended that are not on your calendar as well, right?
A. Yes, I suppose.
Q. When I see the little bell sign, for example, on the 6 after 9:15 to 10:15 there is a bell. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that mean a meeting?
A. No. It means a reminder, I would guess, I think. That may be a default. You and I talking about this is dangerous.
Q. That is my -- when you have times in here are those times -- could you set these programs, if you enter a reminder or conference, it defaults to a half hour, whatever you set it for.

A. I don't know.
Q. What I am trying to understand is how much reliance we can place on the amount of time you have set for a meeting.
What I am hearing is you don't know if you relied or not?
A. I think what these indicate is to the best of my knowledge how long do I think a meeting will take but since these tended not to be my meetings I would allocate an hour.
It is -- unless I saw an important reason not to indicate an hour, I just simply couldn't predict the duration of a meeting, and, yes, there were a lot of meetings that I found out about 46 seconds before and I scurried down to whatever, or up.
Q. Recognizing that your calendar is not perfect, if we get to a point where you recall a meeting that is not on your calendar let me know and if the meeting didn't take place that is on your calendar let me know and we will try to sort it out.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

There is a reference on November 7 to a conference call with Morgan Stanley in London. What does that refer to?

A. We had -- I had been speaking with Ed Dotson about -- generally initiating this effort to look more extensively at or actively at European acquisition opportunities, the view being that there was -- it was perhaps more fertile territory in which to look for acquisitions, less efficient companies, et cetera.

So this was a call with a couple of investment bankers from Morgan Stanley to talk about European acquisition opportunities, I believe.

Q. Did you initiate these discussions with Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. Had you worked with Morgan Stanley before?

A. Yes. I mean, I knew Bill Reid who was our primary contact quite well. We had relationships with most of the big investment banks that we would call on for this sort of purpose.

Q. Had you worked with -- strike that.

Had you worked personally with Bill Reid before?

A. Yes. I think it was primarily -- well, actually, he had done some work, I believe, on the Consolidated Cigar situation, I believe, and as well he was in fairly frequently pitching us ideas.

That was his -- sort of his role to acquisition ideas.

Q. Did you ever discuss -- did you ever discuss with Bill Reid the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction before you spoke to Mr. Maher as you have described it earlier?

A. I don't think so, no. If what you mean is did Bill and I cook this up on our own, the answer is certainly, no.

Q. Had you ever -- strike that.

To your knowledge before Mr. Maher spoke to you had Mr. Perelman's company or anyone at Mr. Perelman's company looked at Sunbeam as a company either as a potential buyer or even as a potential acquisition candidate?

A. I have no knowledge.

Q. You don't know one way or the other?

A. No.

Q. You had never been assigned that task?

A. No. I don't think so.

Q. Let me show you now -- let's look at what has previously been marked as MS 104 and I will pull that out.

Let me take a couple of these things out of your way so you don't have so much material in front of you.

I will ask you to keep your calendar out. I will take these documents back.

I have handed you what we have earlier identified as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104.

You told me that you prepared this and we know it was printed at least as of December 8, 1997, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. In the context of your conversation with -- withdrawn.

When you spoke to Mr. Maher or he spoke to you about the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction in whatever state it was did he give you any assignments?

A. Let me put it this way. Based on this document it was to take a look at the pro formas for the company, some combination of the two companies.

And in this case this is, at least on the first page, is strictly a valuation, just trading multiples of each business based on presumably analyst estimates.

This is the quick back of the envelope, how are we doing, how are they doing.

Q. This back-of-the-envelope exercise that you have identified as MS 104, how long did it take you to prepare it?

A. I don't know.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015666

Q. Do you have any idea at all from gathering the data to creating the work sheet to entering the data and doing the analysis?
A. No.
Q. None at all?
A. Well, it didn't take a month. It probably -- I just don't know whether this is the first version.
It is an iterative process and the first version may have been the first page and then a couple of conversations, why don't we look at this, go back, come back.
It could have been but my guess is, let's forget about actual hours the way you think of them, billable hours, probably several days, a couple of days to look over this.
But what we are looking at could be something that was ten days, as an example, after Jim had first mentioned it, and this is the product ten days after that, a consequence of a series of back and forths. I was up and wore the carpet out between Maher's office, Jim Maher's office.

Q. Is it fair to tell the jury that you created MS 104 at the directions of Mr. Maher?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it fair to tell the jury that you gave this document to Mr. Maher after you prepared it?
A. Yes.
Q. Focusing --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Let me make sure the record is clear.
There is handwriting on it and there are handwritten notes at the back end of it. You are excluding that from the question?
MR. BEMIS: That is fair. He did not identify the last page. Let's even be fairer on this.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I don't want to be misleading or suggest I am trying to be misleading to you.
There is some handwriting even on the first page. There are numbers circled and then there is a few places where we will see a number written on the margin or we will see a checkmark or a percentage mark.

Do you see all of those on the front page, first page?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize any of that handwriting?
A. No.
Q. Do you recognize any of the handwriting that appears on any of the other pages, and you can go from 1 to 5 and tell me if you recognize any of those circles?
A. No. The circles to my knowledge are not mine.
Q. Did Mr. Maher when he gave you the assignment that results in MS 104 give you any specific directions as to how you were to go about your assignment?
A. Well, I think that the direction that was provided was probably a range in price or Jim and I kicking this back and forth, what do you want to look at this at or I will look at it at 22 to 35, yes, and I don't know that it came from Jim Maher actually but there certainly are some cost savings assumptions and I say that because it could have been a group meeting, small group meeting that included someone else. It could have been Jerry Levin. I just don't know.

But, anyway, the key variables that I believe I would have been given some direction on would be cost savings, price range.
Q. Let's talk a little bit about the more specific items. I think it will be helpful if we do that rather than try to do it as a whole.
A. And pooling.
Q. And the issue whether you could do the pooling accounting?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me get to that as a separate item.
Just so the jury is clear, MS 104 was the first -- is the first written analyses that you can recall doing anyways, as you sit here today, for the acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam, correct, recognizing there might have been another version of this. I don't have it if there is.

A. Again -- well, exactly. It is the first one that we have knowledge, that was printed out.

My guess is there were several earlier versions that may have been a page or two and it expanded accordingly and always happens in these sorts of situations.

Q. Excluding drafts, this is the first version of this that you would have presented to Mr. Maher as a final first stab at the project; is that fair?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the form of the question. I don't know what a "final first stab" is.

THE WITNESS: I don't know what the difference is between a draft and final version.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Or a final first stab.

Page 123

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Let me ask another question. It is faster if I ask you questions rather than argue about what I meant when it is a bad question. I will try again.

Do you recall as you sit here today any earlier versions of MS 104 other than the one you have in front of you, any earlier versions?

A. I cannot recall with any specificity a version that would be substantially different from this.

Q. Do you recall this Sunbeam/Coleman comparison, as MS 104 is entitled, to be your first written assignment, if you will, to Mr. Maher regarding the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?

A. My guess --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Don't guess. If you can't remember you can't remember.

THE WITNESS: I cannot say that this is the first version that I presented to Mr. Maher.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. I am not asking whether it is the first version. I am talking about a totally separate project.

Did you do any projects before this one recognizing you might have run a separate draft of this before you gave it to Mr. Maher, any other projects?

A. As it related to Sunbeam?

Q. As it related to Sunbeam, right.

A. I believe this exercise in various drafts I believe was my first involvement with Sunbeam.

Q. The tables that are prepared on each of the pages, and I will -- is it okay if I use "tables" for the spreadsheet?

A. Sure.

Q. These are tables that you created on the software Excel, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And I think you told me earlier that this was not a template that you took from another transaction but you actually created this analysis that is in MS 104, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Focusing now on the first page of the document which looks to me like a comparison of the entities on a stand-alone basis; is that fair?

Page 125

A. Yes.

Q. Let's start with the Sunbeam entity which appears on the left side.

Where did you get the source information for, let's start with the top of the document, a stock price?

Did it just come from a Bloomberg or a ticker someplace?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you get the number of shares outstanding?

A. From the 10-Q, most recent 10-Q.

Q. So the jury understands, a 10-Q is a quarterly filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, in this case, by Sunbeam, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. There are three 10-Qs filed per year, correct?

A. For these guys --

Q. Assuming there is not an amendment, normally there would be three

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015968

Page 126

because in the fourth quarter you file a 10-K?
A. Yes.
Q. The market value of the company is -- is that an arithmetic exercise by you multiplying stock price by outstanding shares?
A. Yes.
Q. Then you have net debt. You added in the debt of $177,712,000, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you take that information again from the most recent filing by Sunbeam with the SEC?
A. To my knowledge, yes.
Q. Then we come up with a total enterprise value which is the combined market value, stock issued, stock price adding in net debt to arrive at what you call enterprise value, right?
A. Yes.
Q. With regard to the 1996 figures that appear in the left-hand column of MS 104, are you looking at that?
A. Yes.

Page 127

Q. It starts with revenues and continues down until we get to a figure for net income of a negative $8,200,000, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did the figures under the 1996 column come from public documents?
A. Yes.
Q. Then when we did any of the -- withdrawn.
Then if we drop below the net income line where it begins with depreciation and amortization, is that a number you took from the financial statements as well that were part of Sunbeam's most recent filings?
A. Yes, presumably from the cash flow statement.
Q. Then you calculated or -- strike that.
Did you calculate the -- this is a tongue twister -- EBITDA, did you calculate that, just an arithmetic function?
A. The computer did, but, yes.

Page 128

Q. You put a formula in and it tells you what it is?
A. Yes.
Q. That is what I mean by an arithmetic function.
A. Sure.
Q. So the jury knows, that is earnings before income, taxes, depreciation and amortization, correct; that is what EBITDA means?
A. No.
Q. What does it mean?
A. It means, earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization.
Q. What did I say, income?
A. Income, taxes.
Q. I misspoke, sorry.
A. It is not a biggie.
Q. Then you have, less capital expenditures. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you get that figure from the financial statements on public filing or did you calculate that from some source?

Page 129

A. I presume I got it from the financial statements.
Q. Then I understand the balance of the arithmetic function. We get to the Sunbeam multiples.
Those are things that -- are those things that you calculated based on the data set in the various columns, the descriptors like enterprise value divided by revenues?
A. Yes.
Q. There is one here that I wasn't familiar with until I looked it up. Enterprise value divided by EBITDA minus Cap Ex?
A. Cap Ex.
Q. You take out capital expenditures?
A. Yes.
Q. It allows -- withdrawn.
Turning now to the next column -- strike that.
Is any of the information in the 1996 column -- withdrawn.
Before you prepared MS 104 you had never spoken to Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Don't know.
Q. Did Mr. Maher give you any documents that you understood to have been received from Sunbeam that you used in the preparation of MS 104?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. The Sunbeam estimates which appear for 1997, the first item being revenue 1,185,100,000, where did you get those estimates?
A. Specifically, I don't know.
Q. Look at page 3 and you will -- you will see under the Sunbeam data, you do have some notes for Goldman estimate.
A. Yes.
Q. Did the figures that appear under the 1997 estimates come from Goldman Sachs?
A. They appear to, yes.
Q. Goldman -- Goldman Sachs -- did Goldman Sachs at this time have an analyst following Sunbeam Corporation?
A. Yes, but I do not remember his or her name.

Q. When I -- strike that.
What -- I would like you now to turn to the third column which is 1998E which I assume -- is that 1998 estimate?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you get the 1998 estimates from Goldman Sachs as well?
A. Based on page 3 I can say that I got the operating income number. It is entirely possible, for example, that Goldman Sachs did not have, just as an example, a Cap Ex estimate. I don't know, but if Goldman Sachs had an entire income statement, cash flow statement, and as this indicates it would all be from Goldman Sachs. It is easy enough to check.
Q. When you say it is easy enough to check, you mean by going back and looking to Goldman Sachs and taking a look. Okay.
As you sit here today the only analyst input that you can recall for the creation of MS 104 is the Goldman Sachs analyst report?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read that back, please?

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me ask it again. Let me withdraw the question and ask it again.
As you sit here today can you recall using any other analyst reports for at least the Sunbeam data other than Goldman Sachs?
A. I would have used whatever was available in the analyst community and -- but I cannot recall why I decided that Goldman Sachs was appropriate.
Going back to how I typically would do these it might have been a function of Goldman Sachs, the stature of Goldman Sachs' analyst, it may have been because at that time, at the time I prepared this there wasn't anything but Goldman Sachs research available to us at that point so -- but certainly I would canvass the available universe of research and that is an evolving process.
Q. You are constantly doing research when you are doing these analyses, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You would update, if you came upon new research or new hard information, by "hard," for example, I would be referring to a public filing?

A. Yes.
Q. You would update your work, correct?
A. Yes, but this is electronically available research. I can't pick up the phone and call the guy at Goldman Sachs for obvious reasons.
Q. When you say "electronically available" you mean you can go to a source that collects this, like I/B/E/S or whoever it was at that point, First Call, Bloomberg, any one of a number of sources that collects analyst reports, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Then you collect the analyst reports and then you make a judgment of who you think in the analyst community is the most reliable in -- for the company you are looking at, right?
A. Yes.
Q. When we get over to the 1998 estimate column, that at this point would be a projection for the year end 1998 before even you have closing year data for 1997, correct?

015670

A. Yes.
Q. Let's talk about the Coleman data for a second.
The 19 -- did the 1996 Coleman data come from the Coleman 10-K, its annual report?
A. Most likely.
Q. Then when I look at the -- withdrawn.
Coleman's 10-K for 1996 would have been filed by December of 1997, right?
A. Sure.
Q. They are typically filed within the first two months, usually of the end of the fiscal year for the entity, right?
A. Sure, three months.
Q. The 1997 estimates for Coleman, do you see those?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did you get the figures for the 1997 estimates?
A. I don't know specifically but again if I was being asked to do this, or my recollection, my sense is that I would have taken analyst estimates for the very reason that what I am trying to ascertain here is what is the institutional investment communities, institutional investment community research, how did they look at Sunbeam versus Coleman on a valuation basis, so if we had dramatically different numbers that the market was not aware of it wouldn't tend to serve the purpose that I am trying to -- the objective that I am trying to fulfill in this analysis which is, that is, the investment community value each of those two companies on a multiple basis for each one of these parameters.

Q. You are saying if you had dramatically different numbers for, let's say, 1997 earnings, and by "earnings" I am going to use net income, we will use your line item net income, you would not use the numbers you had internally, you would use the analyst estimates even if the analyst estimates were dramatically different?

A. Again, I believe for this exercise on page 1 at this point for the reasons that I stated that is what I did but that certainly does not mean that I wouldn't look at Coleman's valuation relative to our expectations for the very reason that it addresses the question of, relative to Sunbeam, relative to other companies, is the market appropriately valuing Coleman relative to what we think because we have got the best information Coleman is going to do.
Q. So, for example --
A. Go ahead.
Q. For example, referring now to Coleman and the analyst, if you look at page 3 you do have two notes next to Coleman data for 1998EPS and 1998E EBIT, and you see your references to CSFB?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that mean that you had an analyst estimate from Credit Suisse First Boston at the time you prepared this document?
A. Yes.

Page 137

Q. Would that then suggest to you as the creator of MS 104 that you used CSFB investment bank estimates for the 1997E column on page 1?
A. The numbers certainly suggest that.
Q. Now referring to the 1998E column on page 1 for Coleman, is it reasonable to conclude for the jury that you likewise used CSFB estimates for that column as well?
A. Which column?
Q. The 1998E column.
A. Yes.
Q. There is a fourth column that is the -- withdrawn.
There is a fourth column that has a heading, 1998E and then space ADJ which I assume means adjusted; is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you explain to me how you arithmetically arrived at the numbers in the column 1998E adjusted?
You might want to look -- it says "using Sunbeam margins" right above there?

0151671

A. I got that. I am still reasonably alert.
The exercise was to -- was really a margin comparison and it was, instead of using -- to accept at kind of face value revenues for Coleman and to say, go through the exercise of taking the Sunbeam margins that they had been, or rather were projected to be earning or experiencing in the future and to apply them to the Coleman revenue base and that would give you a -- a number, an estimated number for 1998 for cost of goods sold, gross profit, operating expenses and operating income, there is no reason to believe that amortization should change depending on management or Sunbeam methodology, no reason to change that, no reason to change interest expense, taxes fall out just arithmetically, percentage of the calculated number and no reason to change depreciation and amortization and no reason to change capital expenditures, the exercise, again, arithmetically, was then to say, well, at Sunbeam's -- excuse me -- at Coleman's current market valuation and enterprise value if we were earning the sorts of margins that Sunbeam was projected to earn in the future how would our valuation look relative to, say, Sunbeam's valuation.

Q. You in effect took the operating income calculation for Sunbeam and can you tell me which year you were using as the operator?
A. If I had a calculator we could verify it but my guess is I took 1998s.
Q. That was my observation. You simply applied it across. It would make sense that you would use 1998 in both instances to compare year to year, right?
A. It makes sense.
Q. The net result of all of this is -- the net income basis is that Coleman's 1997 estimated net income was $30,100,000 without the Sunbeam margins, right?
A. Yes.
Q. By the way, when we talk about margins, tell the jury how you are defining "margin" in this calculation.

Page 140

A. Well, when I say "margin," I should qualify it by operating margin or cash flow margin, EBITDA margin, but it is the percentage as calculated by dividing either operating income or EBITDA by revenues.
Q. That is what you did here, right?
A. Yes. You don't see it here but --
Q. It is in the formula?
A. Yes.
Q. What you conclude, you end up concluding that the 1997 -- excuse me -- the 1998 estimate which Credit Suisse First Boston apparently provided is approximately $60,600,000 in profit, right?
A. Yes. I mean -- it was what it was. That is what --
Q. That is what they estimated?
A. Yes.
Q. And then based on your adjustment using the Sunbeam margin you were able to raise the net income estimate, if you will, or adjust it to Coleman to $122,927,000, right?

Page 141

A. Yes; that arithmetic exercise, yes.
Q. So we are clear on these arithmetic exercises I want you to concentrate on the figure for the 1997 estimate for Coleman which is a net income of $30,100,000. Do you see that?
A. Sure.
Q. Given that this is December 8, 1997 we are pretty close to Coleman's year end, right?
A. Sure, yes.
Q. At year end Coleman filed a 10-K with the SEC and it included in that 10-K audited financial statements, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what Coleman's net income was for 1997, when it reported that to the public?
A. I don't recall and I think it depends on whether it is an actual reported number or whether there are at back adjustments which would be typical for any company for extraordinary events but I do not recall the number.

015672

Q. Let's take a look at the 10-K and see whether there is, A, any extraordinary event to see if we can figure out what the number is.

Mr. Reporter, would you please mark -- I withdraw that. It has been previously marked.

Let me show you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley 251.

Do you have Morgan Stanley 251 in front of you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. If you will take a look at that and tell me if you recognize this as the Coleman Company, Inc.'s form 10-K for the year ending December 31, 1997 as filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission?

A. Yes.

Q. Attached to this document are the financial statements of the Coleman company as audited by their outside auditors, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you turn to the audited financial statements which are designated by an F on the bottom? That is an F4. It looks like you are already there.

A. Yes.

Q. What was the net income, if you will, in 1997 of the Coleman Company as reported by their auditors?

A. Negative 2.5.

Q. You say negative 2.5?

A. Million.

Q. That means that Coleman lost $2,536,000 for 1997, right?

A. Yes.

Q. There are no extraordinary charges for that year, are there?

A. I can't tell.

Q. Sure, you can. Look up above, loss before extraordinary items. Do you see an entry for --

A. That is not the only place I would look.

Q. Where else would you look?

A. In the MD&A, in the notes.

Q. Do you want to look and tell me if there are any extraordinary --

A. I have all the time in the world.

Q. I am happy to hear that. I was told to the contrary.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Mr. Bemis is taking all the time in the world.

MR. BEMIS: We were getting along so nicely.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Don't provoke me.

THE WITNESS: I think what you have got to do actually which is a shortcut, you have got to find -- I have got to look at the source document for the analyst estimate.

That is the way -- because the guy is going to have -- he may not but that -- he -- there may be some explanation where I have decided to do this but I will read through this, but in that document there may be something that would indicate that his number is 30 because of -- remember at that point he's got three-quarters. So we can look at the fourth quarter.

Q. I am not quarreling with what the analyst said. All I am doing is asking you to tell me the number that you used, even -- and you have attributed it to the analyst, you got it from CSFB, understood, however, when we look at the actual number which admittedly is going -- it is a couple of months later because now the year end data is available for 1997, we see, at least as reported by the auditors, not a profit, a net income, if you will, of $30,100,000 but we are actually showing a loss of 2.5 million.

A. I am sorry. 1997 -- during 1997 the company recorded pretax restructuring and other charges totalling 36.4 million, okay, of which 19.7 was reflected in cost of sales, 16.7 million in SG&A.

That is 36.4 plus negative 2 gets you to about 34 million dollars. Actually that is pretax. Give me an HP -- so I would add back $36 million to this number.

Q. You would add 36 million back to the loss?

A. To the pretax number.

Q. Okay.

A. Let me put it this way, I think, very seriously and look into as an analyst.

015673

Looking at this from a research analyst's perspective, understanding what were those restructuring charges, are they recurring, and my guess is if you went through that exercise that is where you would get this $30.1 million, give or take.

But I have got to go back to the analyst report. I have to take a look at this more carefully but that is opening up page 18 in two minutes and doing it so that is why you can't look at -- for an extraordinary number in the income statement because it is going to be buried in MD&A which is exactly where it is on page 18 -- sorry, page 14. No. Page 14.

Q. I may be reading this wrong but the way I read the statement of operations which is on page F4, it -- there is no footnote to it. It explains that I am looking at the loss before extraordinary items. Am I reading that correctly? It refers to a loss of $2,536,000?

A. Okay.

Q. Am I reading it right?

A. Yes.

Q. The auditor, certified auditors don't -- do not list for 1997 any extraordinary -- any extraordinary items, at least on that line item?

A. Okay, but auditor view of the world, and I am putting my money in your stock view of the world and I am trying to make money are two different things.

They have two very different functions in life so you look at both. You look at everything. You read the document cover to cover so -- and I haven't had the opportunity to do so but I am simply pulling up page 14.

If you were asking me, which I think you were asking me, why does this number not relate to this number, I don't know if you were. I am simply saying the place I would focus my attention is these -- my guess is the analyst said these restructuring charges are non-recurring and therefore on an operating basis, normalized operating performance, that is how I would look at it, and so at a tax rate of give or take 30 odd percent I would probably -- this is -- again, I haven't read any other pages but I would probably take about two-thirds of the 36, let's call it 24, and add it back to the 2 which would give me about a $22 million net income number and that is before going through this with a fine tooth comb. Okay.

Q. If we go through -- withdrawn.

The figures that the analyst, the analyst provided with regard to earnings per share, at least what you used for 19 -- did you have a 1997 number -- withdrawn.

Did you have a 1997 number for earnings per share on your spreadsheet?

A. No.

Q. You could calculate it, can't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you want my HP? Can you tell us what it is? Let me give you my HP.

A. Why bother? You can look at F4 and look at net income and compare the two.

Q. What is it then?

A. It is, as you said, negative 2 but I am saying they are not comparable necessarily.

Analysts don't just regurgitate, that is why they get paid, don't necessarily regurgitate 10-K. A monkey can do that.

We would have to sit down with the research analyst report and go through his footnotes, his MD&A -- not his MD&A, his analysis of the numbers, and then try to compare and contrast with this number.

Q. I think my question was, and maybe it wasn't clear.

A. Yes.

Q. Was there an earnings per share number on your spreadsheet MS 104 for 1997 even if it was estimated, earnings per share?

A. No, but you could divide 30.1 by whatever the numbers were, the share numbers were in F4.

MR. MARKOWSKI: You have the share numbers --

THE WITNESS: Yes, but you wouldn't come up with the exact number because they are going to use stock equivalents and things like that so -- it is buried here somewhere in one of these pages.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I couldn't find it. That is why I wanted you to find it.
A. That is extra.
Q. Let me give you my HP.
A. Call Park Avenue and obtain -- earnings per share. Page F11, I think.
Q. I was actually looking at -- I think I found it on F11. I was looking for it on MS 104, your spreadsheet.
You don't have it on here, do you?
A. No, but, again, in this situation the distinction between this Andersen share equivalents kind of minutia, it is irrelevant.
Q. What did you mean by "Andersen's?"
A. Excuse me. E&Y.
They are going to come up with this somewhat complicated formula which isn't going to matter at all in this situation.

Q. I take it what you do as an analyst when you were valuing either Sunbeam or Coleman, you took whatever public information was available, I think you said even a monkey could repeat that, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you would analyze that in whatever fashion you were trained to do and make whatever adjustments you thought were appropriate in the numbers, right?
A. Yes, depending on the exercise. This exercise, you got to decide which seat am I putting myself in.
Q. Whose seat were you in here at MS 104?
A. The institutional investor seat.
Q. You looked at the institutional investors, in this case you looked at Goldman Sachs and you looked at CSFB as the institutional investor?
A. As a proxy.
Q. As a proxy.
Then, based upon these proxies and whatever massaging you did with the audited financial statements, you came up with MS 104?

A. Yes.
Q. Nothing from MS 104 came from Morgan Stanley, did it?
A. No, I don't think so.
MR. BEMIS: Let's break for lunch.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 1:03 and we are going off the record.
(Luncheon recess: 1:03 p.m.)

Page 153

AFTERNOON SESSION
2:22 p.m.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is 2:22.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Before we broke for lunch we were discussing the source of the data in MS 104.
You still have that exhibit in front of you, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you use any Coleman internal data in MS 104, and by "internal" I mean not public information and not data from an analyst?
A. Well, I don't believe, as I stated before, that the projected numbers were Coleman source numbers. I think they were analyst's numbers. And -- but certainly with respect to, at this point, this very early point, the cost savings estimate that is not available in any public document, wasn't available in any research analyst report so that was a number that Jim Maher and I and others took a very, early on in this process, a stab at.

015675

Q. When you refer to the cost savings numbers you are referring to those on page 3, the two boxes at the bottom, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The 40 million and 60 million?

A. Yes.

Q. I will come back to those in a minute.

A. Right.

Q. Aside from possibly the cost savings numbers, were there any other internal Coleman numbers that you used, that is, numbers you obtained from Coleman that weren't a matter of a public filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you use any numbers that MAFCO, your employer, had developed internally for either Sunbeam or Coleman, setting aside the synergies numbers again? We will talk about that in a minute.

A. No. I think it is a distinction without a difference. That is between Coleman and MAFCO.

Q. No, it is not an issue without a difference. If you had picked up the phone and called Joe Page at Coleman and you used the number he gave you as opposed a number on an SEC filing I would like to know that. I take it that did not happen.

A. Right. I am saying -- that is what I am saying. It is a distinction without a difference. There is no difference.

Anyway, you know what I mean if I didn't state that right.

Q. You didn't call Mr. Page?

A. I do not believe so, no.

Q. Let's turn to page 2 which is entitled Sunbeam-Coleman Comparison. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Am I correct that the percentages that are reflected here unless otherwise indicated are the result of the ratios between gross -- I misspoke -- between revenues on page 1 and then the line item expressed -- on page 2 under the heading margins, the figures that appear there are ratios between, for example, gross profit on page 1 and revenues on page 1, correct?

A. That specific example would be reflected again specifically to say an operating income margin.

These numbers on page 2 are calculated based on page 1.

A. Apart from the other data, of course.

Q. Each one of the -- in each one of the percentage calculations, if these were expressed as a fraction, the denominator -- is the denominator in all cases revenue?

A. Yes.

Q. The same would be true on the Coleman side of the margins, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Just so the jury, one example for the jury, if we get to this point, if we are looking at the Sunbeam margins for revenue for 1996, the fraction that we might look at to arrive at that percentage would be the gross profit from page 1 of 176 million and the revenues would be 984,300,000, right?

A. Yes. I believe is the -- I believe that is accurate, yes.

Q. With regard to the cost savings on page 3 I would like to ask you a couple of questions.

Are you on page 3 of MS 104?

A. Yes.

Q. The two boxes that appear towards the bottom of the page, it has the figures 40 and 60.

Those are 40 and $60 million, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The PF is -- is that pro forma; is that what that stands for?

A. Yes.

Q. Where -- strike that.

How did you arrive at the cost saving of 40 million as an assumption for page 3 of MS 104?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015676

A. Let me clarify that. I believe it was discussion with Mr. Maher.
Q. In your discussion with Mr. Maher was there any factual basis given for the conclusion of $40 million in cost savings of a merger transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman or among Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. To me, no, I don't believe so.
Q. Did the $40 million come from Mr. Maher?
A. I believe so.
Q. The next figure that you use is $60 million. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you arrive at that figure in the same fashion as the 40 million, that is, from Mr. Maher?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever --
A. But the question in my mind is whether that came -- the source of that number.
What I am certain about is that I did not independently calculate it based on an assessment of cost savings in my view.

The question is who suggested to me to use 40 to 60. It is not a number I would have independently based on any sort of ratios or magnitude have said, well, let's just use 40 to 60. Jim, here is what it looks like.
So -- I believe I was instructed to use 40 and $60 million from our team is as much specificity as I can provide.
Q. When you refer to your team you are referring to the people at MAFCO, your employer, correct?
A. I am referring to the team, the business people on our team which could include Jerry Levin, it could include Joe Page or any of the people from MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings or MAFCO.
Q. How about your investment banker, CSFB?
A. I don't believe so, as to the source of this number.
Q. Did you ever see from any analyst source any projection of cost savings resulting from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman?

A. At this point?
Q. At this point, yes.
A. It would be impossible. There was no -- on December 6 it was not a matter of public knowledge.
Q. Somebody didn't think about it?
A. Thinking about it and writing about it are two different things.
Q. Some people think about it and write about it. You didn't see any such thing?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever see, up to the point of closing, any analyst analysis of the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I believe after the announcement some of the analysts, and I don't recall the magnitude again, it is a document that we can refer to presumably, discussed, more importantly wrote about the cost savings to my knowledge. I think that is true.
Q. When you referred to after the announcement are you referring to the March 2, 1998 announcement of the merger transaction?

A. I am referring to the announcement of the merger transaction. I do not recall the specific date. If it was March 6, the first announcement to the public, yes, then that would be what I would be referring to.
Q. If I misspoke, I thought I said March 2, but it was March 2.
A. The 2nd, okay.
Q. If I understand correctly your chart, I will start with the middle box where it says, merger consequences assuming pooling treatment not available. Do you see that information?
A. Yes.
Q. When you say merger consequences assuming pooling treatment not available, are you referring to pooling treatment as an accounting treatment for the merger, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Under the pooling treatment, if it had been available you would not have had to account for the difference between the acquisition price and the market price in general terms?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. In general terms, yes. I will leave it up to the accountants to figure out the goodwill.
Q. It is in effect the goodwill component. It does not have to be accounted for under a pooling?
A. Yes, that is my recollection from those days, yes.
Q. If you account for goodwill, goodwill becomes in the future a charge over time against earnings, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That is where we -- that is -- that charge is included in your amortization charges, right?
A. Yes, on an after-tax basis, yes.
Q. In the first box of information, am I correct that I read this that if you use the 1998 earnings per share estimate, that is for Sunbeam, is it not, where it says current?
A. Yes.
Q. And then what you did, and I am going to go down the left-hand columns, is what you did is you looked at the pro forma dilution or accretion in earnings per share if there were no cost savings achieved in the combination, am I right?

A. Yes, the delta, yes.
Q. What you concluded is that it, as an example, at $22 a share paid for the Coleman stock, it would be dilutive in the amount of 14 cents per share for 1998 based on the earnings per share of $2.05 for Sunbeam; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. If you go all the way across and if you assume that Sunbeam paid $30 per share that the transaction at the same earnings per share of $2.05 would be dilutive at 38 cents per share, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Then if I move down on the left-hand side --
A. By the way, I think the assumption there is, I have to do the math but, but it would be 40 years, 40 year amortization schedule for goodwill but again that is something that -- that is a very rough assumption.

It is subject to refinement based on further analysis on lack of pooling treatment, but, yes, as you described, yes.
Q. If I -- I would ask you now again to direct your attention to the left-hand side of the first box and I want to look at the pro forma dilution with cost savings of $40 million. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do I read this correctly that if we -- if we -- that is, if we assume here today that you had a $40 million cost savings you calculated that the acquisition, again assuming earnings per share on Sunbeam at 2.05, would be accretive at the rate of 8 cents per share?
A. Yes.
Q. That is at a purchase price by Sunbeam of $22 for the Coleman stock?
A. Yes.
Q. That is all of the Coleman stock, not just Mr. Perelman's shares?
A. That is true.
Q. As the price that Sunbeam pays increases to a high of $30 on your chart, the transaction is dilutive now to the extent of 17 cents per share; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. If we increase the cost savings as you seem to do on the last line to $60 million we keep a constant earnings per share of 2.05 but we raise the acquisition price to $30 per share, the transaction becomes dilutive in the amount of only 7 cents per share; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. There is a direct relationship at least in the math that you have used in the box that we have been discussing between the acquisition price, the earnings per share and the cost savings, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If we assume constants of the earnings per share and we assume a constant in the purchase price, whether it be 22 or $30, the more cost savings that are assumed in the mathematical formulas, the more the earnings per share is either accretive, or, stated another way, less dilutive if that happens to be the case?

015678

Page 166

A. Yes, that is accurate.
Q. The final box, when you wrote pro forma EPS excluding goodwill, were you -- backing out, if you will, the charge for the goodwill, that would have to be normally accounted for under purchase accounting?
A. Yes.
Q. At $30 -- at $30 a share under straight pooling -- straight purchase accounting, and if the cost savings were only 60 you told me that your calculations based on the spreadsheet would be a dilutive effect of 7 cents per share assuming an EPS for Sunbeam of $2.05; is that right?
A. Yes. The $60 million in cost savings, accounting and including intellectually however you want to think about it, goodwill, subtracting goodwill, 7 cents at $30.
Q. Then if we do the comparison and exclude the goodwill charge to earnings on your second box there and using again the $30 per share and the cost savings of 60, the transaction goes from a dilutive 7 cents a share to an accretive 30 cents per share, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Did the transaction as it ultimately was structured, did it qualify for pooling treatment?
A. I believe not but the purpose of the last box was not opining on that as you know -- as you may know.
It is really a question of how the analyst community, investment community, would look at this because goodwill is, to many, is not a substantive deduction. It is an accounting so that is why I looked at it both ways.
Q. The transaction that is contemplated on your spreadsheet on page 3 is an all stock transaction, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you turn to page 5 please of MS 104?
A. Yes.

Page 168

Q. Before we get into the substance of the numbers I think there is a line missing on the bottom row after the last row, EPS before goodwill, am I correct?
A. It would appear that the dilution/accretion line didn't print out.
Q. Is page 5 of Exhibit MS 104 a summary, if you will of the -- of basic data that appears on page 1 through 4?
A. Put a little differently I think page 3 is a summary of what is on page 1 and 5.
Q. Okay.
A. This is where the calculation is done, page 3.
Q. That summarizes in the boxes on page 3?
A. Yes.
Q. You are correct. That is a better way to state it.
What this is expressing on this page, this is the -- this is the combined entity calculation on a pro forma basis, correct?
A. Yes.

Page 169

Q. For example, if we look at the very first line on -- of the -- of the page 5 where Sunbeam pretax income, Coleman pretax income, you are adding those two numbers together to get the combined pretax income of the two entities, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. I would ask you to turn to the last page of this document and I know that I asked you if you recognized the handwriting. I think you told me earlier you did not.
Do you have any idea whose it might be based on people you have worked with even if you don't know for sure?
A. No, no idea whatsoever. I can't even read it.
Q. I am sure you can read Sunbeam, right?
A. No. I don't recognize this.
Q. Let me show you one other document while I have it handy which has previously been identified as MS 177.
You said you had looked at some handwriting. This has been previously identified although the copy I have does not have where this was marked. Let's see if we can determine that.

015679

It was marked in Mr. Shapiro's -- it actually is marked. It was marked on June 8, 2004.

That being said, looking at MS 177, do you have that in front of you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Is that your handwriting?

A. No, it is not.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?

A. I do not.

Q. You can hand that back to me.

MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, would you please mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 105 a spreadsheet dated December 10, 1997 at 4:56 p.m.

(MS Exhibit 105 marked for identification)

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 105 in front of you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you prepare this exhibit?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. The date of this document is December 10, 1997 on the print date at the top?

A. Sure.

Q. We looked at one a few minutes ago that -- MS 104 that was dated December 8. Did you discuss -- withdrawn.

Did you discuss MS 104 with Mr. Maher before you prepared MS 105?

A. Don't know.

Q. Looking now at MS 105, did you change any of the assumptions, whether they be based on public filings or analyst reports or your own assumptions, other than the stock price which appears at the top of the document which shows a stock price of $39 for Sunbeam whereas I think in MS 104 you assumed a stock price of --

A. 43.13, three-and-an-eighth.

Q. 43.13.

A. I would have to look through line by line.

Q. Why don't you take a quick look at it? If you look -- I can't detect a difference between the two.

A. The stock price is the only thing that jumped out at me.

The fact that all of the dollar numbers are -- appear to be identical even on a stand-alone and pro forma basis would suggest that the only numbers -- the only number that has changed, in this case, since there was no assumed ratio except the two stock prices just to be the price of the acquiring company's stock.

Q. Had --

A. Actually, 15-1/4, 15-1/4. They happen to be the same.

Q. Had Sunbeam's stock dropped between December 8 and December 10 of 1997?

A. You would know better than I did. I would assume from this analysis that, yes. I can't recall though independent of this analysis that it did.

Q. At any point in time if you wanted to reflect the current price of either Coleman or Sunbeam stock given these are electronic spreadsheets one could simply plug the new numbers into the formulas, that is, the stock prices and regenerate the spreadsheet with whatever consequences it has, correct?

A. That is fabulous.

Q. The wonder of spreadsheets. You can do all kinds of what ifs in areas, can't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you still have the electronic versions of these spreadsheets, MS 104 and 105?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you ever look for them in response to a document request in this case?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you --

A. I don't save independent disks or things like that. They stay on the office so -- so, no, I don't have copies in my possession.

Q. As I understand the math of this spreadsheet, as the Sunbeam price for its stock goes down in the marketplace, that the transaction, assuming all other variables are the same, it becomes less accretive, or, stated another way, more dilutive to Sunbeam; is that correct?

015680

A. Yes, assuming -- yes, assuming that the price that is paid for Sunbeam -- sorry -- for Coleman, stays the same and it is not a fixed ratio.
Q. As long as I keep every variable on this spreadsheet the same except Sunbeam's price, if I drop Sunbeam's stock price the transaction will become less accretive or more dilutive for Sunbeam?
A. Yes, in this scenario, yes.
Q. As an example, as I read page 3 of MS 105, assuming $60 million in synergies under your first box which assumes pooling treatment not available, the transaction is dilutive by 13 cents in MS 105 where it is only dilutive by 7 cents in MS 104?
A. Yes, exactly.
Q. One could compensate for the decline in Sunbeam's stock price by increasing the synergies or cost savings, correct?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't know what you mean by "compensate."
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. That is a fair question.
When you drop the -- we said all other things being equal if Sunbeam's stock price drops the transaction is going to become less accretive or more dilutive for Sunbeam, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. If we drop the stock price but at the same time you increase the cost savings variable that you have assumed in your calculation you can make up some of the dilution, if you will, of the transaction to Sunbeam caused by the stock price decrease?
A. Mathematically what you say is accurate but there has to be some basis in deciding to compensate, as you put it, by increasing cost savings in order to do so but, yes, mathematically you can change a lot of the variables here and compensate, as you say.

Q. Did you discuss -- withdrawn.
Did you discuss MS 105 with Mr. Maher?
A. I have a very general recollection, yes, I am sure I did.
Q. What did you say to Mr. Maher and what did he say to you -- withdrawn.
When did you speak to Mr. Maher about Exhibits 104 and 105?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the form of the question.
MR. BEMIS: I will withdraw it and let me rephrase it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. When did you discuss Exhibit MS 105 with Mr. Maher?
A. I don't know specifically. Around the time that it was produced.
Q. Do you recall hearing about a meeting between Mr. Perelman and Mr. Albert Dunlap in Palm Beach in late December of 1997?
A. After the fact, yes.
Q. Did you discuss -- withdrawn.

Using that as a benchmark, this meeting between Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap which I think other people have identified as, I think, December 17, 1997 --
A. Okay.
Q. Did you -- does that help you identify when you discussed MS 105 with Mr. Maher?
A. No.
Q. Did you discuss -- had you had any discussions about the Sunbeam-Coleman acquisition with Mr. Maher that you can recall as you sit here today before Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap met in Palm Beach on December 17 of 1997?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are saying December 17. I am not sure that is the precise date.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me look at MS 75. I think that is right. Maybe I am wrong.
I misspoke. It is December 18.
The meeting in Palm Beach according to MS 75 which has been identified earlier, you looked at it, by other witnesses, there was a meeting between Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Perelman and others in Palm Beach.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Again, using that as a benchmark does that give you any point of reference for when you can tell us you first spoke to Mr. Maher about your calculations as expressed in MS 104 or 105?

A. As you stated the question, no.

Q. What is your best recollection as you sit here today when you spoke to Mr. Maher about the results of your analysis set forth in MS 104 and 105?

A. Shortly after this document was printed. There is no reason to let grass grow under my feet. He is 30 feet away.

Q. It is fair to say that given he was 30 feet away and there is no need to let the grass grow, as you put it, that you discussed these spreadsheets with Mr. Maher before Mr. Perelman went into the meeting with Mr. Dunlap?

A. On the assumption that Mr. Maher was in the office in town and reachable which, again, I have no specific recollection of discussing this with Mr. Maher, I am basing that much more on my relationship with Mr. Maher and his interest and my interest in actively discussing these sorts of analysis, analyses, so I would assume it happened, give or take, the same day.

Q. Did you discuss either MS 104 or 105 with anyone from Credit Suisse First Boston, Coleman's investment banker?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall discussing either MS 104 or 105 with anyone outside of Mr. Perelman's companies?

A. You mean within the group that we have discussed, law firms, et cetera?

Q. Investment banking firms, accounting firms, Morgan Stanley, Sunbeam.

A. No.

Q. Did you consider, in your analyses of the merger consequences as set forth in these two exhibits, MS 104 and 105 as confidential documents?

A. Repeat the question.

Q. Did you consider your analyses as set forth in MS 104 and 105 as confidential documents?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

THE WITNESS: To whom?

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Confidential to you and to your employer?

A. Confidential, yes, unless there was an interest in sharing it with another party, Sunbeam or Sunbeam's representatives, that it would be constructive in furthering negotiations.

Q. In the course of the negotiations with Sunbeam or its representatives did you ever feel it was constructive to share your analyses in MS 104 or 105 with anyone on the Sunbeam side of the transaction?

A. No.

MR. BEMIS: Let's change tapes.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:04. This completes tape number two.

(Pause)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is 3:04. This begins tape number three.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Based on your analyses as set forth in MS 104 and 105 did you and Mr. Maher ever discuss what price Mr. Perelman's company should ask for their interest in the Coleman Company on a stock for stock transaction?

A. I believe we had, I think, probably discussed kind of the merits of general ranges that were either acceptable or not acceptable.

Q. What were the ranges that were acceptable and not acceptable?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Let me withdraw that and I will ask it in two parts.

What were the prices that were not acceptable?

A. I don't recall.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. What were the prices that were 015982

Page 182

acceptable?
A. I don't recall.
Q. What were the range of prices that were not acceptable?
A. I don't recall.
Q. What were the range of prices that were acceptable?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Before December 18 of 1997, the date that we established a moment ago, the meeting with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap in Palm Beach, did you have any discussions with Mr. Perelman about the analyses that you had as of that date performed about the possible merger consequences of a Sunbeam-Coleman merger?
A. I do not -- I don't recall a specific meeting but -- because there were, you know, numerous meetings internally that involved various members of this -- of our team and this was certainly -- was not something that just Jim and I discussed alone without discussing it with either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis.
Q. Did Mr. --

A. I just don't recall again five or six years later the specific meeting -- the specific topic but it would be very common for us to go over this, go back, rethink things, modify, get together again for 20 minutes or two hours and to review this.
Jim and I were not kind of closeted in this kind of back and forth analysis with a view towards getting together with Ronald in seven days or whatever. It was very much an interactive process.
Q. Did you ever change based on any interaction with your team the analysis that you set forth in MS 104 and 105?
A. Again, undoubtedly, but I cannot recall the specific changes.
This is very much an interactive process where each member of the group often brings something different to the table and some added experience will be adding some value in the generation of this sort of analysis.
Q. When people added value to the transaction through this interactive process as you described it on your team would you take that value back to your spreadsheets and then incorporate that in your analyses?

A. To the extent that there had been constructive value created where someone had opined as such, yes, but it is a function of someone having an intelligent statement or additional information or a change in a stock price for there to be a reason to do it.
Q. Setting aside things like stock price which are going to change on a daily basis given the market at any particular moment in time did Mr. Perelman, for example, tell you to make any changes in the assumptions you used in MS 105?
A. Did he tell me?
Q. Yes.
A. I don't recall any specific suggestions.
Q. Did Mr. Maher?
A. I believe that the number that became, apart from structural considerations, pricing considerations, form of consideration as well as price, the number that -- the numbers that were -- that evolved over time included Sunbeam anticipated performance and cost savings but I don't recall a specific comment by Mr. Maher as it relates to 105 to change any of these variables from what we have here which would have resulted in version, you know, whatever, on the following day, 12/11/97.

Q. So there were some changes in expected Sunbeam performance; is that correct?
A. I am fast forwarding over the next several months.
Q. I understand that.
Was the change in Sunbeam's performance positive or negative in your assumptions?
A. My recollection on that account, and I am fast forwarding to a February 23 meeting, I believe that is the date which is the meeting at Morgan Stanley, and so at that point what we had in our possession was -- were analyst estimates for Sunbeam at that point which are not necessarily the analyst estimates that you have in this document.

015983

Wherever the analyst estimates were at that point, the statement was made by Sunbeam management at that meeting that they were very low relative to anticipated performance in the first quarter of '98 and for the remainder of the year but the analyst had it wrong, that they were low and performance was going to be much better for Sunbeam.

Q. This is something that Sunbeam said at the meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have -- were there any documents that -- handed out that said they were -- performance was going to be better than what the analysts were saying?

A. The only documents that I recall were handed out were the two documents that we discussed before.

We would have to refer to those. It certainly was stated again by some combination, I believe it was Sunbeam management, Morgan Stanley was certainly there, and -- so I would just have to look at the documents.

Q. This meeting on February 23 we will get to.

Morgan Stanley didn't make any of these statements at that meeting, did it?

A. I don't recall. What I recall is that -- I believe that Sunbeam, one of the Sunbeam executives in response to a series of questions that related to how is your performance today, how is it going relative to analyst expectations, the numbers that we have, are you going to meet your first quarter numbers, are you going to meet your numbers for the remainder of the year, and what came back, and I believe it was Sunbeam management, was a very affirmative statement that management was going -- Sunbeam was going to make their numbers.

Q. Do you have any -- have you ever seen any documents that said that?

A. I don't believe so.

I shouldn't say that. We should refer and look for projected numbers, and according to Sunbeam management, and I think what we were referring to was really a comparison between here is what you guys are thinking, here is what the analyst community is thinking, who is right.

I believe -- so I -- I believe there were statements in the form of projected numbers that suggested that Sunbeam felt that it was -- it was going to do better.

Q. These statements were made by one of the executives of Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Exhibit 84 which you looked at earlier.

I am going to turn you to the page CPH1324771. Do you see that page, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see under the heading net sales, January slow, February.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Isn't it a fact that you were told at the meeting by the speaker for Sunbeam who was Mr. Kersh that January sales were slow?

A. No.

Q. You weren't told that? Were you told --

A. Not my knowledge. I didn't hear that. We were told everything was rosy.

Q. If Mr. Levin wrote this document as Mr. Shapiro has identified his handwriting, what he believes it to be, January slow, would you not interpret that being that net sales for January were slow?

A. I can't interpret what Mr. Levin is thinking.

Q. I didn't ask you what you were thinking.

A. That is what you asked.

Q. Then I didn't ask the question very well.

A. Okay.

Q. While you were at the meeting and I will ask you this one -- one more time and then we will leave it, did anyone from Sunbeam tell you that net sales for January

015684

were slow?
A. I do not recall anyone from Sunbeam saying that.
I left the meeting with the impression that business for the first quarter, the narrow question of January and February, we are now February 23, so nearly two-thirds of the way through the quarter, that things were going very well.
Q. Do you see under earnings per share under the heading -- under the column 1998 --
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see the figure 220 at the bottom?
A. Yes.
Q. Then you see the handwriting 199 with an asterisk at the bottom?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Kersh tell you that at that time earnings per share were not at, projected at 2.20 but at $1.99?
A. Not to my knowledge. I don't remember any specific number that was outlined by Mr. Kersh that would be different than these numbers.

Q. You don't know where the author of this document identified in Mr. Levin's handwriting, where he would have gotten $1.99 based on your attending the meeting?
A. No.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Exhibit -- Exhibit 364.
Mr. Reporter, would you mark as MS 364 a document that appears to have been prepared by Credit Suisse First Boston, and hand it to the witness?
(MS Exhibit 364 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have MS 364 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen it before?
A. It has been about five years but I believe so, yes.
Q. Do you see the reference to Project Violet in the upper right-hand corner?
A. Yes.

Q. Is this also a reference to the Laser acquisition as you termed it earlier?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. This document does relate to the Coleman-Sunbeam merger?
A. Sorry.
Q. It does relate to the Coleman-Sunbeam merger?
A. Yes.
Q. It was prepared by your investment bankers?
A. Yes.
Q. Were your investment bankers at the meeting on February 23, 1998 where Sunbeam made a representation?
A. Yes.
Q. You had your advisers at the meeting, right?
A. Yes.
Q. What were the earnings per share that you were assuming on February 23, 1998 at the meeting before Sunbeam spoke to you?
A. I don't know. I have got the document from the 10th of December so there is a lot of water under the bridge at that point, before the February 23rd.

Q. Yes, sir. I think in the December documents, MS 104 and 105, I think you said you used 2.05 per share based upon a Goldman Sachs estimate?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember any change in that number by the analysts before the February 23 meeting?
A. I do not recall there was a change either way.
Q. Turn to page 2 of MS 364 and look at the column marked projected stand alone. Go to the bottom of the page under fully diluted earnings per share.
A. Okay. I think -- I can barely read this. This is '98-'99. Is that what that says?
Q. Yes.
A. Okay.
Q. What is the figure that Credit Suisse First Boston uses for earnings per share for 1998 in this projection which is a projected income statement according to its title; what do they use?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 194

A. 179.7.
Q. What do they use for fully -- what is the -- what are the fully diluted earnings per share, not net income?
A. 1.99.
Q. That is the same figure that appears in handwriting in MS 84?
A. Okay.
Q. Isn't that the same figure?
A. Well, that says 1.99. This says 1.99.
Q. Where did Credit Suisse First Boston get 1.99?
A. I don't know. How I would know?
Q. I don't know. They were your investment adviser, weren't they?
A. Sure.
Q. Did you ask them where they got $1.99 for earnings per share?
A. I am sure we discussed it.
Q. What are you sure they said to you about it when you discussed why they were using $1.99 for earnings per share rather than $2.20 which appeared in the printing in MS 84 as we were looking at it but has handwritten on it $1.99?

Page 195

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Can you answer it?
A. Repeat the question.
Q. Did you discuss -- did you discuss with Credit Suisse First Boston why they were using $1.99 for earnings per share when you said that at the meeting on February 23 you were assured that the earnings per share for the year were at least going to meet expectations?
A. I do not recall the outcome of such a discussion, that sort of interaction between the two of us or the two firms.
Q. The MS 84 which is the document you said you received, I believe, at the February 23 meeting, has an estimate under long range strategic plan of $2.20 for 1998, correct?
A. I am sorry. I was staring at this. I want to look at this for a second. Okay?
Q. Yes.

Page 196

A. I can't quite read the number but somewhere there is -- they believe there is a $120 million revenue difference.
This is, of course, part of the reason why and I don't know why that was the case.
Q. You say they believed?
A. They, these numbers.
Q. These --
A. The Sunbeam numbers indicate 1 billion 6 in revenues. The Credit Suisse First Boston numbers indicate a billion 480 which seems to be more consistent with the analyst estimates for the company, a billion 473.
I recognize that is Goldman. I don't know what First Boston's analyst was saying. I don't even recall whether First Boston covered Sunbeam so I don't know the distinction between these numbers and these numbers except for in this particular case there is $120 million difference in assumed revenue growth.
Q. These numbers -- and these numbers won't translate for us. Let's slow down and -- let's focus on the earnings per share number one more time and then we will leave it for the moment?

A. Sure.
Q. Do you know where Credit Suisse First Boston got the number of earnings per share that they reflect in MS 364 of $1.99 which is the same number that appears in MS 84 in handwriting as we previously discussed based on the February 23, 1998 meeting?
A. I do not know.
Q. As far as you sit here today when you got MS 364 you don't recall ever discussing it with Credit Suisse --
A. Which is MS 364?
Q. The spreadsheet, this one right here.
Let's try it again. You have in front of you MS 364?
A. Yes.
Q. You received it?
A. Yes.
Q. You received it on or about the dates that it bears, February 27, 1998 apparently printed at 5:39 a.m.?

A. Yes.
Q. You got it. You read it, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You got it as the analyst in this transaction for MacAndrews & Forbes, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Credit Suisse First Boston is using a figure of $1.99 projected for Sunbeam as a stand-alone entity, is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. That is the same name that appears on MS 84 that was the handout at the February 23, 1998 meeting, is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. It is still your testimony based on these documents that Mr. Kersh or whoever spoke for Sunbeam was telling you they were going to make $2.20 a share for 1998?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: It is my recollection that the management of Sunbeam said that they were going to beat these numbers.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. They were going to beat the numbers that appear on page CPH1324771; that is your testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. They were going to beat $2.20 a share for earnings per share for 1998?
A. That is the impression I left the meeting with.
Q. Did you write that down on your copy of the document that you had in front of you?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you confirm it in writing with anybody?
A. On their side, no.
Q. How about on your side?
A. No.
Q. Did you meet with Mr. Perelman and tell him that?
A. I don't recall specifically whether I met with Mr. Perelman to review that conclusion. It would certainly be reviewed generally internally.

Q. Do you recall any such review internally?
A. We had numerous meetings regarding this and many other discussions or meetings that we had so I do not -- if you are asking do I remember that -- did we meet at 10:30 a.m. the next day hypothetically, no.
I do believe that we met to discuss the meeting the night before and what our -- what was said, yes, but I do not recall six years later the specific discussion that transpired afterwards nor do I recall the distinction between a billion 6 and a billion 480.
Q. Indeed on the Credit Suisse First Boston projections which were given to you four days after this February 23 meeting you have pointed out that sales on this document are approximately 1 billion 460, correct?
A. I can't read it, whether it is 460 or 480. We could figure it out. A 20 million difference.

Q. I understand what you are saying.
If you look at the next line on the consolidated?
A. It looks like a billion 480 to me.
Q. We will take a billion 480 and in MS 84 the figure is a billion 600 million?
A. Yes.
Q. As you sit here today you can't tell the jury how Credit Suisse First Boston came up with lower numbers in their projections four days after the February 23 meeting, is that right?
A. That is true.
Q. You can set those aside for right now.
Did you have any role in the hiring of Credit Suisse First Boston as the investment banker on your team?
A. No.
Q. Were you simply informed that Credit Suisse First Boston had been retained?
A. Yes.

Q. I think you told me that you worked with Mr. Gordon Rich and Mr. Duffy on that -- on the Credit Suisse First Boston side, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there -- was one of the two men the person that you worked with more closely than the other?
Let me ask it a different way.
Did you work with one of the two men more closely than the other?
A. I think I spent more time with Rob Duffy. He was, I believe, a vice president.
Q. He reported to Mr. Rich, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 77.
Do you have MS 77 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Please read it. I just have a couple of questions for you.
A. Okay. Do you want me to read the whole thing?

Q. Just look through it. If you need to take more time, take any time you want. I don't want to take your time unnecessarily.
A. Okay.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did Chase Securities make a pitch as you have described it to Mr. Perelman's companies in connection with the Coleman-Sunbeam acquisition, act, as Coleman's investment banker?
A. I don't recall them doing so.
Q. Did you ever have any communications with anyone at Chase Securities about the Coleman-Sunbeam acquisition in 1997 or 1998 before the closing of the transaction?
A. I don't recall. It would have been Doug Traver but I don't recall having discussions with him about this.
Q. Could you spell Mr. Traver's last name for the reporter?
A. T-R-A-V-E-R.

I say that because he was our account guy from Chase but I wasn't the point of contact with Chase, certainly.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Why don't we take a break here and then sprint to closing?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:40 p.m. We are going off the record.
(Discussion off the record)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is 3:52.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Other than Exhibit 77, that Chase document that we looked at just a few minutes ago, did you see -- did you see any other document -- withdrawn.
You didn't see it. Let me rephrase the question.
Did you see any documents that you can recall prepared by Chase Securities in the course of the Sunbeam-Coleman acquisition?
MR. MARKOWSKI: May I have that question back please?
MR. BEMIS: I will rephrase it.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. In the course of the acquisition, Coleman-Sunbeam acquisition, 1997 to closing on March 30, 1998, did you see any documents prepared by Chase Securities?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Non-public documents relating to Sunbeam, Coleman, this deal? I think you asked a very broad question.
MR. BEMIS: I will try it for the third time. I must be getting tired.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. In the course of the acquisition, 1997 to 1998, when you worked it up in the closing March 30, 1998?
A. Up to the closing?
Q. Up to the closing, did you see any documents prepared by Chase Securities relating to the acquisition?
A. I did not see and recall that I saw those documents.
Q. To your knowledge did Chase Securities place any advisory role on your team, that is, Mr. Perelman's team, in the acquisition or the sale of Coleman to Sunbeam?

A. If they did I can't recall.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, would you please mark as MS 353 a one-page document to Mr. Ronald O. Perelman from Mr. Nesbitt dated December 11, 1997.
(MS Exhibit 353 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have MS 353 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you write it?
A. Yes, it appears so. Let me read it.
Okay.
Q. Did you write it?
A. Yes.
Q. Now we established you wrote it. Did you give it to Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman ask you to answer the question that you answer in your memorandum concerning Black & Decker pooling?

A. Based on the form of the memo directly to Perelman, no one else CC'd, yes.
Q. What did -- what was Mr. Perelman's question to you that caused you to write your memorandum MS 353?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the lack of foundation given the way he just answered.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I don't recall a specific question, exact nature of the question regarding Black & Decker. I could infer from the memo that I wrote what that question is.
Q. Tell me what you infer the question was from your memorandum.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question. It calls for speculation.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can still answer.
A. The memo would appear to address the question as to whether we could do a pooling with Black & Decker at some point in the future.

Q. Who is "we could do a pooling?"
A. We as the combined Sunbeam-Coleman so if we were to conclude a transaction with Sunbeam could the combined enterprise then effect a pooling with Black & Decker.
Q. When you mean a pooling with Black & Decker you mean a merger with Black & Decker using pooling accounting as it existed in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Based on this memorandum it is -- is it your inference that Mr. Perelman asked you this question?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the lack of foundation and the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. Well, this is speculation but --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Don't speculate.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Answer the question unless you are instructing him not to answer.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am instructing him not to speculate. If there is some basis upon which he can answer without speculating --
THE WITNESS: I do not recall the question that was asked that led me to write this memo specifically.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Would you have written this memorandum, MS 353, if Mr. Perelman had not asked you the question about the pooling accounting with Black & Decker?
A. It is possible. That is why I am wrestling with what question, if any, there was, whether a question --
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Assuming there are many things that are possible in your experience and the man has worked on a lot of deals, as you described, do you think it is probable that you addressed this memorandum to Mr. Perelman without being asked the question from him about the pooling accounting with Black & Decker?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objections.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. I am sorry. Can you repeat the question?
Q. Is it likely that you would have written this memorandum to Mr. Perelman if he had not asked you the question about pooling accounting with Black & Decker?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objections.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. The wording suggests to me -- I can't say.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman respond in any way to your memorandum to him, MS 353?
A. I do not recall.
Q. Before MS 353 was written by you on or about December 11, 1997 had you had any discussions that you can recall with Mr. Perelman about the Sunbeam-Coleman acquisition?
If it helps you your two spreadsheets are dated December 8 and

Page 211

December 10 of 1997.
A. It is likely that I had -- I was involved in some discussions which Mr. Perelman was present in a meeting internally about this but I do not recall a specific discussion with Mr. Perelman regarding Sunbeam-Coleman.
There were numerous discussions between Mr. Maher and myself as I said but there were other -- whether Mr. Perelman was involved, it is likely but --
Q. Were you finished?
A. Go ahead.
Q. By December 11, 1997 had you had numerous discussions with Mr. Maher already about the Coleman-Sunbeam possible transaction?
A. Yes. Give and take, short, brief, walk in and out of his office and kick things around, particularly as it relates to preparing this.
Q. When you refer to "this," you are referring to MS 104?
A. The consequences and refining it and making sure that it answers the questions that Mr. Maher would like it to.

Q. Again, the "this" you are referring to in your answer is MS 104?
A. Yes, MS 104.
Q. You can hand back MS 353. Thank you.
Had there been any discussion within MacAndrews & Forbes about a possible combination with Sunbeam and Black & Decker before December 11, 1997?
A. I have a vague recollection that we discussed Black & Decker as a potential merger partner.
Q. For Sunbeam, right?
A. I am sorry. Did you say for Sunbeam?
Q. Yes, I did say for Sunbeam.
A. Excuse me. I thought you said Coleman. My mistake.
Q. I didn't say either one. I just asked a merger partner.
Before December 11 of 1997 had you had any -- you participated in any discussions or even were you aware of any discussions within MacAndrews & Forbes about a possible Sunbeam merger with Black & Decker?

A. I don't believe so.
Q. You had discussions about a Coleman merger with Black & Decker?
A. I believe so.
Q. Had those discussions reached the point of discussions with Black & Decker as opposed to just being internal?
A. I don't believe so. I think it was more brainstorming.
Q. Is it fair to say that by December of 1997 that MacAndrews & Forbes was looking to sell the Coleman Company, Inc. if it could?
A. I would have to qualify that with if a price -- relatively unemotional, if the price is right we will sell.
Q. What was the right price in December of 1997?
A. Again, I think as you stated about five hours ago that was Mr. Perelman's ultimate decision.
Q. It may will have been Mr. Perelman's ultimate decision but you had hundreds of conversations over, as you put it earlier, with Mr. Perelman, you spoke to Mr. Maher numerous times as you told us?

01590

A. Rephrase it. I didn't have hundreds of discussions with Mr. Perelman about this. I had hundreds of discussions with Mr. Perelman.

I would like to correct that if that is what I said before.

Q. Fair enough.

In those conversations that you had with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Maher, at least up until December 11, 1997, did you have any discussions about a price at which Mr. Perelman would sell his company's interest in the Coleman Company, Inc. to either Black & Decker, if that be the acquirer, or Sunbeam?

A. I do not recall a specific price that was where we drew the line in the sand and said it is either this or not.

Q. Setting aside drawing lines in sands --

A. And based on my experience within

MacAndrews & Forbes it can be an evolving discussion so --

Q. Your spreadsheets start at $22 and go to $30?

A. Exactly.

Q. Who told you to start with those figures? The stock price at that point -- withdrawn. Let me start again.

The stock price in December of 1997 at the time you did your spreadsheets, MS 104 and 105, was slightly over $15 a share?

A. Right.

Q. $15 and a quarter, I think?

A. Yes.

Q. Your spreadsheets assume $22, 24, 26, 28 and $30 per share on -- for the Coleman stock, right?

A. Okay.

Q. That is right?

A. Right.

Q. Where did you get those numbers?

A. From Mr. Maher.

Q. Mr. Maher gave you a range at least by December of 1997 of a sale price of between 22 and $30 per share for the Coleman Company if the company was sold?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. You can answer.

A. The discussions that Mr. Maher and I had regarding this analysis led to an analysis between 22 and $30 a share as related to this exercise.

Q. Did you pick the 22 or did Mr. Maher as a starting point?

A. I don't know.

Q. It was one of the two of you, right?

A. We can make it as wide as possible and --

Q. You could put a dollar in the cell for Excel.

Where did the $22 come from? Did it come from you or did it come from Mr. Maher?

MR. MARKOWSKI: How many times do you want to ask the same question?

MR. BEMIS: As many times as is necessary to answer it.

MR. MARKOWSKI: He already did answer it.

THE WITNESS: I will answer it again. Discussions between Mr. Maher and myself, normal back and forth, somewhat different than you and I are having, led to me, we, us, picking a range between 22 and 30.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. What was the basis for you picking that sale range between 22 and 30 as of December 8, if you will, of 1997, the date of MS 104?

A. I think the important considerations from our perspective would be, one, a premium to the current market price both from our perspective and the other shareholders' perspective; two, a first cut in advance of very serious work as to what we felt the value of Sunbeam was, okay, because -- two; and, three, let's pick a range, and let's look at it because part of figuring out where we should sell is understanding what they can pay and what is reasonable for them to pay and what is reasonable for us to accept.

This is very early on in the process and so I don't know how many days after the initial discussions this analysis was done but we had to start somewhere and it could have been a buck or two, 2 to $4 on either side of that we could have expanded it so that all of the various experts, First Boston, internal people, could look at this analysis and react based on comparative multiples where Sunbeam was trading, other companies were trading, and I think it is a stretch to suggest that that range indicated our view as to the specific valuation range a couple of days into this exercise, if that is what you are implying.

Q. Don't worry about what I am implying. I will try to ask the question, you try to answer and we will keep it at that.

A. I will try to keep answering.

Q. I appreciate that.

Did anyone on your team then take your analysis in 104 and 105 after you did it and come back to you and say change this or change that?

A. I think it is fair to say that of those that saw this, and I cannot recall who saw -- was 104 the first one?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Who saw 104, that there were at that point based on the information and thought process that went on between 104 and 105, no one saw any reason to change it. If they did I would have done it.

Q. In fact, other than changing the form of the consideration did you change in any material way the substantive input of data in MS 104 or 105 in later spreadsheets?

A. Yes. I think there were various sensitivity analyses that -- where price was modified, where structure -- consideration of stock versus cash, cost savings, operating performance, all the normal variables that as you conduct further work become somewhat clearer or where people form opinions as to what they think they should be based upon what they know and the development of negotiations so this is not the last --

Q. Sir, I appreciate it is not the last one and I assume what you are telling me, if you did further analyses you put it into your spreadsheets?

A. Yes.

Q. I assume also as part of the work you did you said you also wanted to assess what Sunbeam could pay, right; that was one of the things you needed to know?

A. Well, the accretion dilution analysis is one measure, one measure of what a company might think they can pay.

Q. You did that analysis, right?

A. Yes. That is what 104 -- part of what 104 and 105 address.

Q. Did you do later analysis of what Sunbeam could afford to pay?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Excuse me. I withdraw that.

You already described MS 104 and 105 as back-of-the-envelope calculations. Do you recall that testimony?

A. I think relatively speaking it is based on what we knew at this point relative to what we learned later on and the specificity of the negotiations and structure and timing and consideration, this was a relatively kind of simplistic analysis based on analyst reports, publicly available information and without the benefit of extensive input from either Sunbeam or ourselves.

Q. If you are telling me -- withdrawn.

Did you prepare the document I am going to show you, MS 165?

MR. BEMIS: I would ask the reporter, sir, if you would initial it and date it and then hand it to the witness?

(MS Exhibit 165 marked for identification)

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Do you have MS 165 in front of you, sir?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you prepare it?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes, I did.
Q. I don't want to mislead you, sir. I want you to note that the pagination on this document and the dates they are printed are not necessarily consistent.
Let me walk you through what I read so you are aware of it so you don't get confused.
The first two pages are pages 7 and 8 and they are dated December 11, 1997, 9:17 a.m. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. When you get to the third page of the document it begins on page 1 again.
A. Yes.
Q. And it attaches what is a copy of MS 105 that you have already looked at and you will see that it starts with page 1.
A. Okay.
Q. I just wanted you to be aware of that. This is the way the document was produced to us. I don't know if it came that way or not.
Looking at it did you at least prepare the first two pages that you have in front of you which have the numbers pages 7 and 8?

A. Yes.
Q. Then did you -- were there six other pages attached to this document when it was originally created?
A. I don't know. I don't know. My guess is it is the first five pages of this and then somewhere it is -- somewhere there is 6 and then there is 7 and 8. I think it is just part of the same document.
Q. I don't want to spend anymore time on this than I have to.
You think the last five pages of the document are supposed to be the first five pages of MS 165?
A. I can't -- well, I don't know how this arrived in your hands. This could have been someone doing this and --
Q. Do me a favor. Don't ever do that again with original exhibits, tear them apart. We will put them back together but don't do that.
A. I don't know why they are like this.

Q. Let's not worry about it for the time being. If there are more pages you don't know where they are at, right?
A. Yes, and I can't recall what they are.
Q. Let's focus on the first two pages of MS 165 then which are entitled Sunbeam quarterly earnings comparison. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. You did this spreadsheet, correct?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. You wrote the footnotes, am I correct?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. If you will look at your heading on your footnotes, fourth quarter issues, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. You were reporting here on Sunbeam's third quarter results and the estimates for the fourth quarter, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You had looked at the 10-Q of Sunbeam for third quarter 1997 and you were now looking at issues related to the fourth quarter, correct?

A. I believe that what this is is fourth quarter issues that relate to my reading of analyst reports and what they may have -- concerns that they had or issues that were raised in analyst reports at that point that are of concern to them or issues to the analyst community but I can't relate it to a specific analyst.
Q. Did you prepare MS 165, the first two pages now? Let's focus on that.
A. Yes.
Q. You prepared it after you prepared your initial spreadsheets, MS 104 and 105?
A. Yes.
Q. You were trying to identify analyst issues, as you put it, for the fourth quarter for Sunbeam's performance which of course had yet to be closed and therefore reported, right?
A. Okay.
Q. Do you need the question read

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015693 back to you?

A. Yes, please.
Q. As I understand what you were doing with the first two pages of MS 165 is you were trying to identify the analyst issues for the fourth quarter as it relates to Sunbeam's performance for the fourth quarter which had not yet closed?
A. This analysis was an effort to look at the business on a quarter-by-quarter basis to try to take a look at some working capital relationships, trend lines on a quarter-to-quarter basis as opposed to an annual basis and as it relates to the heading, fourth quarter issues. At this point I was working with Qs and analyst reports and these were some items that jumped out as a consequence of that work that was done.
Q. Let's look at your fourth quarter issues that jumped out at you as a result of your work. Are you with me on your fourth quarter issues?
A. Or repeated as analyst issues.
Q. Let's look at your fourth bullet point. You see the word "uptick?"

A. Yes.
Q. You say, "Uptick in third quarter receivables supposedly relates to one half of the quarter sales being shipped in September." Right?
A. Yes.
Q. That is September of 1997 which is the third month of the third quarter?
A. Yes.
Q. Of 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So you knew, at least based on what you wrote in your memorandum, that in 1997 the uptick in, at least Sunbeam's receivables, was supposedly the result of one half of its third quarter sales of 1997 being recorded in the last month of the quarter, right?
A. Not necessarily. What I wrote here is -- I kind of underscore, supposedly, was -- again, I would have to go back to the source documents in the analyst community who are much closer to Sunbeam on a relationship basis -- basis than I am.

The wording here, my interpretation of what I wrote at the time would suggest that I am referring to comments in the analyst community that perhaps this was the case.
Q. Then perhaps this was the case. That means it was perhaps the case based on the analysts that you were reviewing that one half of Sunbeam's sales for the third quarter of 1997 were indeed occurring in the third month of the quarter?
A. Right.
Q. As an example, let's say that Sunbeam reported $140 million in sales in the third quarter of 1997, 140 million.
We will take that as an assumption. Are you with me?
A. I am with you.
Q. That would mean that one half of those sales which would be 70 million were recorded in July and August based on the assumptions we have used, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Then another 70 million would be recorded in September bringing us up to 140 million for the third quarter of 1997, right?

A. Yes. I follow you, yes.
Q. That is what you were reading in the analyst reports that you were analyzing as of this time?
A. Not necessarily. It is a combination of what I was reading which included 10-Qs and analyst reports.
I can't relate it to a specific analyst report. I cannot say, which is what you said, that it was exclusively analyst reports.
I flagged this as an issue or as something to -- as an explanation that had been provided and I should say that there are other sources in the public domain, whether it would be quarterly MD&A on quarterly, quarterly reports that were -- it could be transcripts of Q and A after a quarterly -- for a quarterly analyst discussion, those sorts -- there are lots of different sources.
I cannot recall what the source

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015694 of this -- of bullet point 4 is.

Q. Okay. So we all understand when you say MD&A you are referring to management's discussion and analysis?
A. Yes.
Q. You have to let me finish. It is getting late in the day and it is starting to get easy to run over each other. I will try likewise.
When you say MD&A you are referring to management discussion and analysis in, for example, a 10-Q or a 10-K, correct?
A. Yes, and I was also referring generally to any management discussion analysis of results, whether it is in a press release, whether it is in an interview, whether it is on a teleconference that may have been a matter of publicly available, so there is --
Q. Whatever the source -- and I hope I wasn't cutting you off -- whatever the source for your fourth footnote in MS 165 where you say, "uptick in third quarter receivables supposedly relates to one half of quarter sales being shipped in September," you got that from some source, whether it be analysts, a public document, interview, if you will, or discussion by management of its results, correct?

A. Yes, but not a direct discussion with them. I would have picked it up.
Q. You flagged this for -- did you give -- withdrawn.
Did you give MS 165 to Mr. Maher?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You have been focusing on the first two pages?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, sir; just the first two pages.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did you give it to Mr. Perelman?
A. I can't say. I don't know.
Q. Did you discuss MS 165 with Mr. Maher, and again just the first two pages I am talking about now.
A. In all likelihood, yes.
Q. Did Mr. Maher ever question your footnote 4 which begins with the language, "Uptick in third quarter?"

A. I do not know.
Q. You write in the last bullet point, "Another concern has been international pipeline filling."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you mean by "international public line filling?"
A. That would refer to -- international pipeline filling refers to sales in the international markets and sales into those -- filling those sales channels with product, so if you have got whatever the equivalent is in Europe of a Home Depot or a K-Mart, it would be filling those channels with inventory that yet has to be sold and businesses such as Sunbeam or Coleman have to balance that against what can ultimately be sold without -- they don't want to risk having to cause the retailers to have to mark down product.
Q. What did you do, if anything, to investigate your concern that there was international pipeline filling by Sunbeam?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object. It mischaracterizes this as being Mr. Nesbitt's concern.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me rephrase the question for you to see if we can obviate the objection.
You wrote that one of the concerns of somebody, whether it be analysts or the conclusions that you reached based on reading something else or in a public document or hearing a management discussion, analysis of the results, that there was a concern about "international pipeline filling," right?
A. Right.
Q. What did you do, if anything, to investigate the concern that you noted based upon the research that you had done?
A. This sort of document, this document, excuse me, MS 165, would have been forwarded to the team which would include Jerry Levin, the Coleman team, the guys who actually understand on a -- as operators about these sorts of issues and my role, my objective would have been to flag these and to disseminate this within the group for discussion and ultimately in this sort of case I would be reliant on the operating management team to make a judgment as to whether this was an issue or not and to follow up.

015695

I do not recall a specific response as to whether this was -- how serious an issue if at all this was and -- but in the context of the overall transaction it didn't rise to the level that warranted or that -- that warranted a -- an enormous amount of discussion further on.

Q. Would what you just told me be true with the bullet beginning "uptick in third quarter receivables?"

A. Again, yes. Procedurally anything that we can generate from my side, our side, of an operational nature would be conveyed to the operating guys who were much more familiar with the impact or seriousness or veracity of these sorts of issues.

Q. Did the operating guys at Coleman that received MS 165, did they ever report back to you that the concern expressed in this bullet point beginning "uptick in third quarter receivables" was of concern to the operating guys at Coleman?

A. I believe what I just said was, no.

Q. Did you ever have any conversation with the operating guys at Coleman in which they expressed any disbelief that sales, for example, of Sunbeam in a quarter might be as expressed here largely concentrated in the last month of a quarter?

A. I do not recall.

Q. Do you recall in response to any of your bullet points under fourth quarter issues in MS 165 that any of the operating guys at Coleman ever reported back to you that these issues were issues that required further investigation by the MacAndrews & Forbes team?

A. No.

Q. You may set that aside. Wait a minute. I do have another question. Don't set it aside.

Turn to page 2.

A. Yes, sir.

MR. MARKOWSKI: The second page or page numbered 2?

THE WITNESS: Page 8, I assume.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. The second page of the document which is numbered page 8.

This document stumped me for a long time until I realized it was printed on different dates.

Are we on page 8 of -- numbered 8 on MS 165 which, for the confusion of the jury, which is actually the second page of the document. Are you there?

A. Yes.

Q. This is entitled Cash Versus Stock Comparison-No Cost Savings.

Are you there?

A. Yes.

Q. Is this a further attempt by you to look at the possible effects of a Sunbeam-Coleman merger on the -- earnings per share, if you will, of the -- of Sunbeam should it acquire Coleman?

Page 237

A. Yes, with an entirely different structure.

Q. Correct.

Indeed, in the first structure that we looked at which was MS 104 and 105 that was an all-stock transaction, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The analysis that you have in the all-stock column for $26, is that -- that is just an extraction, isn't it, of the analysis in MS 104 and 105 for $26 with no cost savings?

A. For all stock or all cash?

Q. For all stock, yes, sir.

A. Yes.

Q. Then on the all-cash transaction you calculated what the transactions dilution or accretion to earnings per share would be if Sunbeam had to go out and borrow enough money to pay $26 per share for all of the outstanding Coleman stock, both Mr. Perelman's stock or his holding company's stock as well as the public shareholders, right?

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015696

Q. What you concluded as a result of this analysis is that if you did an all cash offer the -- the dilutive effect of the transaction was almost double what it was in a stock transaction, correct?
A. For 1998.
Q. For 1998. I thought these were for 1998. That is what you are assuming, right?
A. Yes, but cash -- pay in all cash is -- has a very different effect on a longer term depending on the operating performance, but, yes for that particular year.
Q. The reason the cash transaction has a, or in this instance, dilutive effect is because you have to -- you have an interest component that you have to add because the company has to borrow the money, for example, to complete the acquisition, correct?
A. Not entirely.
Q. Is the interest component here for borrowed funds?
A. Yes.

Q. Was it for 100 percent of the borrowed funds?
A. Yes.
Q. You assumed that at $26 per share if Sunbeam borrowed all of the necessary funds, the incremental interest expense to Sunbeam -- that means additional interest expense, that is what "incremental" means, right?
A. Yes.
Q. It was going to be $128,485,000 per year?
A. Yes.
Q. The net effect of the -- withdrawn.
The transaction that you have as the all-stock transaction, this is done on a non-pooling basis accounting, right?
A. True.
Q. Now we are done with that. You can set that aside. You can give it back to me and I will put it away for you. You don't even have to look at it for a while.
Why did you pick, by the way, $26 per share for that analysis?

A. Do not recall.
Q. You don't remember whether Mr. Maher told you to use that figure?
A. I do not recall Mr. Maher specifically suggesting $26 a share but --
Q. Sorry. Go ahead. But --
A. It is likely. I, as a consequence of those discussions, said that let's run it at 26.
Q. Which is the mid point between 22 and 30, right?
A. That is an arithmetic coincidence.
Q. That you used 26, 24, 26, 28 and 30 in MS 104 and it is a coincidence that you used 26 a day later in your calculations?
MR. MARKOWSKI: What is to coincidence?
MR. BEMIS: I am asking him --
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am trying to understand your question.
MR. BEMIS: If the witness doesn't understand I am sure he will tell me.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read it back please?
MR. BEMIS: We will try it again. In fact we won't try it again. Let's let that go.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. There was a meeting that has previously been testified to between representatives of Sunbeam and Coleman as well as MacAndrews & Forbes at MacAndrews & Forbes' offices on or about December 12, 1997 to discuss the subject of synergies.
Are you -- did you attend that meeting?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the question. I think it misstates the testimony.
MR. BEMIS: Maybe I got it wrong. Let me see MS 75 again.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have MS 75 still in front of you which is the chronology or did I take your copy? I probably picked it up. We had to reduce your paper flow there. Here is one. You can use this one. This is MS 75. That is a --

A. What a relief.
Q. Do you have MS 75 in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. If you will turn to Exhibit A under the date December 12, 1997 there is a representation to the United States Securities and Exchange Commission by your attorneys that on December 12, 1997 there was a meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. It was at the offices of -- strike where the office was -- but it was between the people identified here, Mr. Levin, and Mr. Shapiro and Mr. Page of Coleman, representatives of Sunbeam and David Fannin, Russell Kersh and Peter Langerman on Coleman's business and potential synergies that could result from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. Do you see that?
A. There you go.
Q. Did you attend that meeting even though you are not listed? I realize you are not listed.

Did you attend the meeting?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Were you aware that the meeting was taking place or going to take place?
A. I don't recall whether I knew about it in advance.
Q. Did you know about it?
A. I don't recall whether I knew about it in advance.
Q. I misunderstood.
A. But I am always last to know so --
Q. Somehow I don't think that is the case but -- did you learn the results of the meeting from anyone?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I guess for the record I will move to strike counsel's comment.
I am sure it was meant in a jocular way.
MR. BEMIS: I withdraw the comment. Even his as well.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have the question in mind?

Page 244

A. Yes. I am wrestling with a specific recollection of that, someone recounting that meeting.
Q. When you say you are wrestling --
A. I am wrestling with, I do not have a specific recollection of one or more of those individuals after that meeting relaying the substance of that meeting to me, but it is --
Q. At some point -- I am interrupting you.
A. It is probable that it was filtered down to me.
Q. Were you asked to prepare any documents for use in the meeting on December 12?
A. I don't believe so, particularly given the agenda. I wouldn't have any basis to do that. That is strictly an operating which is also why I wasn't invited.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 78, previously marked in another deposition.
I hand you MS 78, sir.

Page 245

The first page you can ignore. That is a transmittal that I don't have any questions about. My questions will be directed to the second page.
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Take a look at the whole exhibit so you know the context in which this is being transmitted.
THE WITNESS: Okay. Page 1. Sorry. Let me get to page 2.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. My only questions which should be brief are on page 2.
A. Okay.
Q. Have you ever seen page 2 of MS 78 before?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. When did you first see it?
A. I believe I saw this after a meeting but I don't -- I don't recall how far after.
Q. There is a meeting referenced in MS 75 which is the letter to the Securities and Exchange Commission on December 16 that you are supposed to have attended based on the chronology.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Did you attend that meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Before December -- the December 16, 1997 meeting did you see the second page of MS 78?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I assume you are excluding the handwriting from this?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, I am.
THE WITNESS: I cannot begin to recall whether I saw this after that meeting between the 12th and the 16th. I certainly saw it. I had no part in preparing it but I certainly saw it at some stage in this review.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Could you tell me the context in which you saw the second page of MS 78? For example, was it a meeting with Mr. Maher or was it a meeting with Mr. Levin, whatever the case may be?
A. There was a meeting with -- it involved Jerry Levin. There was an explanation of this that I was part -- took part in. It was part of the agenda but I just --

Q. An agenda?
A. It was part -- I don't mean agenda. It was -- I do not recall whether it was the only reason why that meeting took place but I do remember some discussion on these items in a meeting.
Q. Was this --
A. But I have a recollection that it was after the fact, not before the fact.
Q. When you say "after the fact," you mean?
A. After the 12th. Sorry.
Q. That is okay.
Your best recollection is that you did see the second page of Exhibit 78 sometime after December 12 and at least Mr. Levin was present?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall whether, at this meeting where the second page of MS 78 was discussed, whether anyone from Morgan Stanley was there?
A. I don't believe they would have been.

Q. Was the meeting you are referring to an internal meeting of the Coleman team from this transaction?
A. Yes, I believe so, but I can't recall what fraction of it.
Q. Do you recall anyone at the meeting that you recall seeing the second page of MS 12 expressing any disagreement with the numbers that are set forth in the second page of MS 78 as synergies possible in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. No.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Is there something good on TV over there?
MR. BEMIS: No. I am looking at the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. There is a wrong -- I gave -- I don't know if I gave you the wrong exhibit number or I misspoke or you got it wrong, Mr. Reporter. Let me read you the question again. I will put the right number in and you can repeat your answer.
Do you recall anyone at the meeting that you recall where you saw the second page of MS 78 expressing any disagreement with the numbers that are set forth on the second page of MS 78 as synergies possible in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?

A. No, I don't.
Q. You can set that aside.
We are all done with that and we only have a minute or two to go so we will adjourn for today before we start another document and we will see you tomorrow morning at 9:30, God willing.
A. Sounds great.
Q. As our enemies say.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:58. This videotaped deposition will be adjourned.

Section II. Building the Franchise

How did you enhance the Firm's franchise this year (e.g., cross selling; development of significant new client relationships;difficult execution/structuring of a particularly complex transaction; broaden the firm's reputation in your industry.

1.) SUNBEAM TRIPLE ACQUISITIONS - worked intensely with the rest of the M&A team to bring together simultaneous acquisition of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands. This involved extremely complex analysis of all the various permutations and structures, as well as financing alternatives involving the Bank Loan, High Yield and Convertible groups. As we carried on concurrent negotiations with the sellers, numerous issues and alternatives arose which rippled through each aspect of the deal. Complicating matters were the complex ownership structure of Coleman, the volatile personalities involved (Al Dunlap, Ron Pereleman) and the extremely tight deadline (we had to announce before 1Q98 earnings announcement; had to close before end of second quarter). A great deal of negative publicity has surrounded our client, focused mainly on the operations and accounting of the company. Also, there is still the outstanding issue of the convertibles that were sold and the outstanding bank debt. Nevertheless, the acquisitions are still looked upon favorably and the M&A experience was certainly positive. 2.) FIRSTENERGY MERCHANT PLANT BUYSIDES - FE was bidding on the first round of power generation assets being sold off from the diversified utility companies. Although our client was not successful in winning any of the auctions, this was a very useful exercise for MS for two reasons: first, this was the first time that companies were bidding on assets as merchant (unregulated) plants, thus this was the first opportunity for our GPUG/M&A team to understand and evaluate these plants. Second, this was the first opportunity for our DCMS people to take a look at these merchant plants, consider potential market receptivity, develop financing structures and understand the key drivers and dynamics involved. Both of these experiences will be helpful as these merchant plants continue to come to market. The DCMS team has already used this experience to market financing packages to the winning bidders of these auctions.

Who did you recruit and/or mentor this year? Describe the results of your efforts.

I have been closely involved with the Columbia Business School recruiting team for most of this past year, screening resumes, attending functions, meeting students, conducting interviews and mentoring. For the full-time hiring process, I was particularly involved in helping to recruit Todd Davision, Stephen Conner, David Older, Jennifer Lamprecht and Soly Vahabzadeh. Todd and Stephen were targeted by the team early on as the two top candidates, while David had a non-traditional background but ultimately arose as our third candidate. We were able to bring all three to MS as summer associates and later sign them on as full-time hires. Soly was was the cover bid from the summer recruiting, but we were able to bring him through the process and sign him as a full-time hire as well. Jennifer had made a strong effort to contact CBS alumni at MS and was highly recomended from the people she did meet with. I spoke to Jennifer at length about my experience in DCMS as that was a specific area of interest for her. She also was able to get through our regular full-time recruiting process and received an offer. In all, we gave out eight full-time offers (including one former analyst - Rachel Censor, one from the minority track and one for Hong Kong) and we were able to get seven of them to commit to MS (the eighth person went to Goldman). I was less involved with the summer recruiting this year due to time constraints (I seemed to be out of town for every function). However, I did meet with several students,helped to screen the resumes and conducted several interviews. I also spent a great deal of time talking with Carl Tate and Guy Shanon during their internships this summer. Carl has received a full-time offer and will most likely accept. This past yearI have also done a number of interviews for other recruiting teams. These included analyst, summer associate and sell interviews. I have also worked with a summer associate, Will Hawkins, who has received an offer and accepted.

Section III. Goals and Objectives

Develop preliminary business and professional development goals for 1999. Associates should focus on improving their professional/execution skills. Officers' goals should include ways to strengthen their client/business development skills.

1.) ACTIVELY PRESENT IDEAS/VIEWS TO TEAM MEMBERS AND TO CLIENTS - as was the case last year, I will need to continue to be more vocal and assertive in my views. Where in the past I have deferred to the opinion of far more experienced colleagues, I have become increasingly more comfortable with being an outspoken member of the team. As I gain more experience and become more familiar with my MARD colleagues, this will become less of an issue. 2.) BUILD SELLING AND CLIENT RELATIONSHIP SKILLS - this is anarea that beretofore I have not focused on at all. However, as I become more senior and have even greater interaction with clients, I believe this will become ever more important. My experience in BDG was an excellent introduction to this aspect of thebusiness, and my continued involvement with the group will certainly help. However, I believe more formal training is in order. 3.) BUILD STRONGER RELATIONSHIPS WITH OTHER MARD PROFESSIONALS - Having spent my first year as a generalist in the AssociatePool and the first half of this past year in BDG, I have not worked with very many people within the department. Further, my first significant deal (Sunbeam) was essentially with BDG. My reticence early on did not help either. I feel that I don't knowvery many people within MARD and they don't know me. This is somewhat of a sore point now that I am entering my third year with the firm. I would like to make a point of getting to know more people within the department, whether it is by working together on a project or otherwise. 4.) CONTINUE TO IMPROVE COMMUNICATION/MANAGEMENT SKILLS - as I mentioned earlier, this is still an area of concern for me. I am still learning to stay in closer contact with my team members, both upward and downward. Managing analysts more closely and utilizing them better are things that become easier with experience. Managing upward is an artform I am only now beginning to understand. 5.) CONTINUE TO GAIN EXPERIENCE AND DEVELOP TECHNICAL SKILLS THROUGH A BROAD RANGE OFPROJECTS - now that I will have a full year to execute transactions, this should not be a problem. I am still somewhat involved with BDG, particulary with situations in Asia, but that is only a small portion of my time. I think this will be an important year in my development.

What skills and abilities would you put to greater use? Describe training or other support that would leverage your effectiveness? What are your long-term career goals at Morgan Stanley?

1.) UNDERSTANDING TAX ISSUES AND TAX-DRIVEN TRANSACTIONS - after having heard so much about them, I was surprised to see how little tax issues are considered beyond Morris Trusts and Spin-Offs and the occasional 338(h)10. This is especially true at the junior level. Often when these types of questions are asked they are deferred until we can consult with our tax group. I think there are many basic questions that could be answered with a little background. More importantly, I think there is an opportunity to develop more creative and more tax efficient solutions. Andy Sperling and the tax group would still be consulted to bounce ideas off of and to work out the many details, but I think we can help them be more helpful to us. 2.) BETTER GRASP OF LEGAL ISSUES AND PROCEDURES INVOLVED WITH VARIOUS TRANSACTIONS - as with everything else and similar to the above issue, this is an area that one generally learns piecemiel on an 'as needed' basis. I think some basic training on legal issues, procedures andsituations that are often encountered would be helpful.

Section I. 1998 Performance Summary

Describe your performance relative to your business goals and to the relevant performance criteria (see the Performance Criteria Matrix for details). Your comments should not exceed the space provided.

1) CONTINUE TO GAIN M&A EXPERIENCE - this has been the key issue for me over the past year. I have tried to use each project as a new learning experience. I am certainly far more comfortable and confident in my skillset than I was last year by several orders of magnitude. Unfortunately, having to experience so much for the first time, the inevitable consequence of working up the learning curve was that I was not always performing as efficiently as I would like to have been. 2) WORK ON A WIDE VARIETY OF TRANSACTIONS - This past year a significant portion of my time was dedicated to the BDG group, the Sunbeam acquisitions and two small sellsides (Einstein/Noah Bagels, Colman Spas). I thus did not gain as much execution experience as I had expected.Working on the sellsides did allow me to take a significant role on each, particularly the Coleman Spas transaction. My involvement with Ken Marks on the FirstEnergy series of buysides was a fantastic experience, by far the best learning experience for me last year. I continue to be involved with certain BDG situations, but I would like to continue to try to build my base of experience. 3) TAKE AN INCREASINGLY LARGER, MORE PROACTIVE ROLE ON DEAL TEAMS - This was my neediest area of development this past year. Much of my first year and a half was spent simply learning who people are and how things get done. With some practical experience under my belt I steadily built the knowlede and the confidence to interact with team members, clients and others within and outside the firm. I was able to take on a larger role within the team, managing the process, providing input and contributing to the effort to reach a conclusion to the project.

How many companies did you call on for the first time in 1998? Which of these companies did you develop business from in 1998? Which companies were first time mandates obtained from a competitor's traditional client? Why did we win the business?

What Development Areas from your 1997 Evaluation and Development (E&D) Summary/Review have you improved?

1.) GAIN MORE EXPOSURE IN CLIENT SETTINGS - this was certainly accomplished during the FirstEnergy and the Coleman Spas transactions. With FirstEnergy, the CFD coverage officer (Tim Schwartz) gave way to the M&A team (Ken Marks, myself, Yehbin Song). Under Ken's guidance, I took the lead role in evaluating the various assets up for auction. I was the main point of contact with the client and their fuel supply partner in gathering and analyzing information. I was also the focal point with our High Yield, Bank Loan and Credit groups in structuring financing packages. On the Coleman Spas sellside, Bob Lee got the process started and stepped in occasionally to provide direction and supervision. However, it was essentially left to me to execute the deal(due diligence, drafting of the OM, identifying and contacting potential buyers, negotiating CA's, management presentations, data room, managing the process etc.). This began as three sellsides, so we had to go through this process three times (the seller ultimately decided not to sell two of its businesses). 2.) ACTIVELY PURSUE OPPORTUNITIES TO PRESENT WORK/VIEWS, BOTH INTERNALLY AND WITH CLIENTS - this is a development need that I have become increasingly conscious of. My initial reticence was primarily due to my lack of experience and confidence. As I continue to gain some of both, this is becoming less of an issue. I feel I have certainly improved in this area over the past year, but I am probably 3.) IMPROVING EXECUTION/TECHNICAL SKILLS - this is an area that I feel most confident about. Although I have much to learn, I feel I am making good progress and I do not see any reason why this will not continue . I now have a base of experience upon which to build further, having now worked on a variety of situations at various stages. I no longer feel that I must learn everything from scratch. This has certainly made me much more efficient in terms of getting work done. Further, I now feel I can be a much larger contributor to a deal team. 4.) IMPROVE COMMUNICATION SKILLS - this is an area that is probably of most concern. I have made a conscious effort to improve my communication, particularly with my deal team members. I believe I have done a much better job than last year, although therehave been some lapses. In particular, I have had the most difficulty with this when I have been out of the office. Still, I have learned to make much better use of my secretary and the call board on these occasions. I think this soon will no longer bean area of concern.

What were the biggest disappointments in developing new business (excluding conflicts, losing bid situations) and what was learned from each? (CFD officers should include missed business in each product area).

It has been somewhat disappointing that we have not been able to generate more transactions out of the turmoil in Asia. I have spent a good deal of time with David McCreery and various people in the regional offices in Asia trying to study the situationfrom an M&A perspective. The lack of transactions stems mostly from the general lack of M&A activity in Asia; there are a lot of people looking at a lot of situations, but few active transactions that will actually close. However, the noticable lack ofstrong relationships with major companies, political figures and prominent families in Asia has also proven to be a stumbling block. It has often seemed that many potential situations were beyond our reach because we did not know the right people or they were much closer to one of our competitors. In particular, Goldman and Salomon seemed to have a much higher profile in the region. MS certainly has a strong presence, especially when compared to other foreign banks, but it will be some time before much comes out of Asia, and there is a lot that is still up for grabs.—

CHRONOLOGY

March-April, 1997	In or about late March or early April, 1997, senior management of Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") initially began to consider a possible sale of Sunbeam or the initiation of one or more major acquisitions.
April 22, 1997	Albert J. Dunlap, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam, and Russell A. Kersh, Sunbeam's Chief Financial Officer, met at Sunbeam's headquarters in Delray Beach, Florida with Bruce Fiedorek, William H. Strong, James B. Stynes and Robert W. Kitts, Managing Directors of Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley"), to discuss the retention of Morgan Stanley as financial advisor to Sunbeam in connection with a possible sale of Sunbeam or a possible acquisition by Sunbeam of one or more other companies. The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") was identified as one of many companies that might be a potential buyer of Sunbeam or a potential acquisition candidate for Sunbeam.
April-September, 1997	During this period, Sunbeam, with the assistance of Morgan Stanley, reviewed and considered a variety of strategies. Various companies were identified as potential buyers of Sunbeam or potential acquisition candidates.

A. Actually I am not employed by anybody today.
Q. What was your -- what do you do for a living?
A. I am in the process of raising a fund with two partners, Kelso & Company and Blackrock & Company.

Q. Is Kelso K-E-L-S-O?
A. That's correct.
Q. Blackrock, like it sounds?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have an office address here in the city?

Q. What does -- what will be the business of Blackrock Kelso, Inc.?
A. It is a business development company. It will invest and lend to middle market companies.
Q. What do you mean by "middle market companies?"
A. Companies with EBITDA of 10 to 100 million.
Q. You said EBITDA. You mean what?

A. Cash flow.
Q. That is an abbreviation for something else, right?
A. Earnings before interest, depreciation and taxes.
Q. Do you have an office telephone number at your -- the address you just gave me?
A. I do.
Q. What is that?
A. 212-751-3939.
Q. Did you live in New York at the 775 Park Avenue address at the time of the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. You understand that you are being videotaped this morning?
A. I do.
Q. Do you understand that your videotape can be played to the jury in the civil trial of this action?
A. I do.
Q. You have had an opportunity to consult with Mr. Markowski before your deposition, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you have an opportunity to review some documents?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you review them with Mr. Markowski?
A. I did.
Q. Did some of those documents refresh your recollection about events years back, 1998, for example?
A. They did.
Q. What documents did you look at?
MR. MARKOWSKI: That refreshed his recollection?
MR. BEMIS: Yes.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall which ones -- I recall some of them refreshing my recollection but I don't remember any specifically.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. When did you look at these documents that refreshed your recollection?
A. I looked at them several times, the last time being last Friday.
Q. Between -- today is Tuesday. So between last Friday and today, Tuesday, you can't recall what you looked at?

Page 10

A. No, I can't recall anything that I looked at on last Friday that refreshed my recollection.
Q. What other times did you -- withdrawn.
What other times did you look at documents with your counsel that refreshed your recollection?
A. We had several meetings over the last year, I guess. I don't recall the dates.
Q. Do you recall any of the documents that you looked at over the past year that refreshed your recollection about events that are at issue in this civil action?
A. Nothing specifically, no.
Q. What do you remember non-specifically?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.

Page 11

A. I remember seeing documents that included --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Hold on.
The only question is whether you can remember anything that refreshed your recollection.
MR. BEMIS: That isn't the question at this time. If you have an objection make an objection, don't instruct.
MR. MARKOWSKI: That is how I interpret the question. That is what I will permit him to answer. If the question is for anything other than that I instruct him not to answer.
MR. BEMIS: You are instructing the witness not to answer?
MR. MARKOWSKI: If the question is anything other than what documents he can recall that refreshed his recollection I am instructing him not to answer, yes. Is that the question or is it something else?
MR. BEMIS: If you were listening to the question he responded he couldn't remember specifically what documents he looked at that did not re -- that did refresh his recollection so I asked him what he recalled non-specifically.

MR. MARKOWSKI: That refreshed his recollection?
MR. BEMIS: Yes. You interrupted without an objection.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I want to make it clear to the witness that the question focuses on documents that refreshed his recollection.
MR. BEMIS: I am sure you had an opportunity to prepare the witness. Let's ask the witness to respond to the question please.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. What documents did you look at that you cannot -- that you do not specifically remember today that refreshed your recollection?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't understand the question.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. What is it you don't understand, sir?
A. What documents did I look at that non-specifically refreshed my recollection?
Q. Let's try again.
You looked at documents over the past year, right?
A. Yes.
Q. I asked you what documents you looked at that refreshed your recollection.
You said you can't remember anything specifically, right?
A. Right.
Q. What do you remember non-specifically that you looked at over the past year?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the form of the question.
Are you asking about documents that refreshed his recollection because you keep omitting that from your question?
MR. BEMIS: Yes.

Q. Please answer the question.
A. I don't know what the question is.
Q. What documents did you look at over the past year that refreshed your recollection?
A. I can remember looking at documents that -- for example, First Boston's presentation to the board of directors. They made several presentations.
Q. Anything else?
A. I also saw -- remember seeing the presentation by Sunbeam who I guess it was to, I think it was in February, a presentation to First Boston and MacAndrews & Forbes.
Those are the two sets of documents that I recall specifically.
Q. The first set are documents that Credit Suisse First Boston prepared for the board of directors of Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. And then there was a presentation by Sunbeam that you remember being presented before the board of directors voted on the transaction?

A. Yes.
Q. Were you present when this presentation was made by Sunbeam to which these documents refer?
A. Yes.
Q. Who from Sunbeam made the presentation?
A. Kersh and I believe general counsel, I think his name is Fannin, something like that.
Q. David Fannin?
A. I don't recall his first name.
Q. Any other documents that you recall looking at over the past year, whether it be months ago or last Friday, that refreshed your recollection in preparation for your deposition?
A. No.
Q. Did you review your calendar for the period 1997 and 1998?
A. I don't recall doing that, no.
Q. By the way, are you taking any type of medication that affects your memory at all?

A. No.
Q. Any mental condition that would affect your memory?
A. Only being 54.
Q. I am older than you and my memory is pretty good.
Any reason to tell the jury why your memory would be faulty here today?
A. No.
Q. Tell the jury a little bit about your background starting with where you went to school, your education.
A. I went to undergraduate school -- is that where you want to start?
Q. Let's start at college.
A. I went to Boston College, graduated in 1971, worked for several years after that, went to Columbia Business School, graduated in 19 -- June of 1976, went to work for First Boston in the investment banking department.
Q. Let me stop you right there before we jump ahead to your employment history.

When you graduated from Boston College what degree did you get?
A. A BS, I think.
Q. Then you went on and got an MBA from Columbia?
A. Yes.
Q. Master's of Business Administration?
A. That's correct.
Q. You later went to work shortly -- let's start with after you got your MBA degree. Where did you first go to work?
A. First Boston.
Q. That is the same First Boston that you were referring to in your earlier testimony about documents that reviewed but at least after the merger with Credit Suisse?
A. That is correct.
Q. Let me ask you a couple of questions before we get into some of the substance of your involvement with the Coleman transaction.
In 1995 you were employed by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., is that right?

A. In 1995?
Q. Right.
A. No.
Q. When did you start?
A. The first time I was employed by MacAndrews & Forbes Inc. was 19 -- sometime in 1998.
Q. What was --
A. I could be wrong about a year here.
Q. You did eventually have the title of president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., didn't you?
A. Yes.
Q. When were you the president?
A. I think 1998, 1999, 2000, somewhere in there. I don't remember the exact dates.
Q. Did you have a position with one of Mr. Perelman's companies before 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. One of his companies. It was a public company called MAFCO Consolidated

Page 19

Group Inc.
Q. When did you go to work for MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc.?
A. I think it was the summer of 1995, I believe.
Q. Was that your -- withdrawn.
Was that your first position with one of Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. What do you mean by "one of Mr. Perelman's companies?"
Q. One of the companies that he owns directly or indirectly?
A. What do you mean by "directly or indirectly?"
Q. Through one of his holding companies.
A. What does that mean?
Q. Answer -- if you can't answer the question tell me you are not going to answer the question.
A. I will answer the question. I want to know what you are asking me.
Q. What is confusing you?
A. Directly or indirectly. Does that mean 1 percent, 20 percent, 50 percent?

Page 20

Q. Any one of those numbers you like.
A. Well, I went to work in 1992 for National Health Labs as CEO. Mr. Perelman owned, I believe, 25 percent, approximately, of that company at that point in time.
Q. Was that the first company that Mr. Perelman owned directly or indirectly that you worked for?
A. Yes.
Q. Then in 1995 as I understand it your next position was with MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc.?
A. That's correct.
Q. What -- then you moved up to being president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. in 1998, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. How long were you --
A. I just don't remember exact dates; a couple of years.
Q. I understand.
When did you leave MAFCO

Page 21

Consolidated Group Inc. as president?
A. 2000.
Q. When you --
A. I believe.
Q. When you were the president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. did you report directly to Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. At that time was MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. a direct subsidiary of MAFCO Holdings Inc.?
A. Gees, I don't know.
Q. When you were at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. did you supervise William Nesbitt?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you, sir, the head negotiator for MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. with regard to the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. I think I probably, I think I spent as much time on that transaction as anybody else did.
I don't think anybody ever designated me head negotiator.

Q. Who else were the other principal negotiators on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Jerry Levin was certainly one as CEO of Coleman.
Q. Anyone else besides you and Mr. Levin?
A. Perelman was certainly involved.
Q. Mr. Ronald Perelman was certainly involved?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman conduct the day-to-day negotiations with Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Who conducted the day-to-day negotiations with Sunbeam with regard to the Coleman-Sunbeam merger transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. Do you want to ask the question again?
Q. Sure.
Who conducted, if you will, the day-to-day negotiations with Sunbeam in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?

MR. MARKOWSKI: By "conducted" you mean communicated?
THE WITNESS: I think conducted the negotiations -- ask me again.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Sure.
Did you, sir -- withdrawn.
Who conducted the day-to-day negotiations on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes with Sunbeam in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman merger transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't think there were any negotiations with Sunbeam directly. There may have been some but they were largely with Morgan Stanley.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Who on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes then conducted those negotiations?
A. Myself and Jerry Levin.
Q. What was Mr. Perelman's role in the negotiations?

A. His role was, I think, as sort of final arbiter of our negotiating position.
Q. Tell the jury what you mean by "final arbiter."
A. He would -- if there were issues he would express his point of view and that would be the point of view that we would take.
Q. He had the final say so?
A. Ultimately the board had the final say so but in negotiations -- we are talking about negotiations at this point in time?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. In negotiations he had the final say, yes.
Q. When you say "the board had the final say so" you are referring to which board?
A. The board of Coleman.
Q. What about the board of CLN Holdings Inc.?
A. I don't know who that is.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter, are you getting volume?

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: I am okay.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Were you responsible for the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction proceeding to the point of execution of the merger agreements?
A. I am not sure I understand what you are asking me.
Q. What is it that you don't understand? I will try to fix the question for you.
A. You are asking me what I was responsible for?
Q. Yes; within the MacAndrews & Forbes organization.
A. You already asked me whether I was involved in the negotiations so what is the difference between the question?
Q. I am not here to answer your questions. I am here to ask you questions.
A. You just asked me --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Hold on. Don't argue with him, Jim. He asked you to clarify and now he is arguing with you because you asked him to clarify it so the problem is Mr. Bemis' failure to articulate a clear question. I object.

MR. BEMIS: I move to strike your sidebar comments. Don't give me instructions.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Don't argue.
MR. BEMIS: If you don't like what is going on you know what you can do.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Ask questions.
MR. BEMIS: I will.
Presumptively we will get an answer.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Ask questions, proper ones, preferably.
MR. BEMIS: I will work on it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Were you the person at MacAndrews & Forbes that was responsible for the Coleman transaction reaching the point of its execution of the merger documents?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: All I can tell you is I was heavily involved in the negotiations leading up to the merger agreement.

Page 27

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Okay. The other people that were heavily involved were Mr. Levin, you said?
A. Yes.
Q. And then Mr. Perelman who gave the final approval to enter into the merger transaction subject to board approval?
A. He didn't give an approval to enter into it. He gave an approval that it could be taken to the board.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman approve the merger agreements that were submitted to the board?
A. I don't know -- I don't recall whether he voted on that or not.
Q. Do you recall that he was present at the board meetings?
A. Yes, he was.
Q. Did you review, that is, personally, the Sunbeam 10-K for the year 1997 before the closing of the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't recall seeing it, no. I don't recall.

Q. Did you assign anyone within MacAndrews & Forbes working with you to review the Sunbeam 10-K for the period ending in 1997 before the closing of the merger agreements?
A. I don't recall assigning anybody, no.
The general responsibility for the financials of Sunbeam was allied with the financial department at Coleman largely which was -- the chief financial officer was Joe Page, I believe, at that time.
Q. Did you assign -- withdrawn.
Did someone to your knowledge assign Joe Page to review the Sunbeam 10-K?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you review the offering memorandum -- withdrawn.
You recall, don't you, sir, that there were debentures issued by Sunbeam in connection with the merger?
A. Yes.
Q. That they were underwritten by Morgan Stanley?

Page 29

A. I do.
Q. You recall there was an offering memorandum?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you read the offering memorandum for the Sunbeam debentures issued in connection with the Coleman transaction?
A. I don't specifically recall reading it, no.
Q. Do you recall ever reading it as you sit here today?
A. No.
Q. Did you assign anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes the responsibility for reading the offering memorandum for the Sunbeam debentures before the closing on March 30, 1998 of the Coleman transaction?
A. No.
Q. To also put this in perspective for the jury you did attend the February 25, 1998 board meeting of the Coleman company, correct?
A. February 25. I don't remember the exact date. Maybe you can help me.

015770

Q. That would be the first of the two meetings when the merger agreement was presented.
A. Yes.
Q. You made a presentation to the board about the history of the negotiations, didn't you?
A. I did.
Q. You made that presentation in your capacity as a representative of MacAndrews & Forbes, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You also -- this was the first time, by the way, February 25, 1998, that the board as a board of directors of Coleman had been advised of the negotiations with Sunbeam; isn't that right?
A. I don't know when the board was advised of the negotiations. I don't know whether they were advised prior to that or not.
Q. As you sit here today you personally are not aware of any specific meetings before February 25, 1998 of the board of Coleman at which the board was advised of the ongoing discussions; is that fair?

A. Yes.
Q. You also attended, just so, again, for the jury's benefit, the February 27 board of directors meeting of Coleman at which the board actually voted to proceed with the merger agreement with Sunbeam, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Again, you attended on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. When you attended the board meetings, and, by the way, it was the board of directors of Coleman that approved the merger agreement, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. The -- did you tell the board of directors how to vote?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman to your knowledge?
A. No.

Q. You mentioned earlier that you saw some presentation materials that were prepared by Credit Suisse First Boston, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Credit Suisse First Boston, so the jury understands, was the financial adviser to the Coleman board?
A. That's correct.
Q. The exclusive financial adviser, correct?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. As the exclusive financial adviser it actually made a presentation to the board of directors at the February 27 meeting, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. It opined, that is, Credit Suisse First Boston, that the transaction was fair, correct?
A. With all the words that go around that, yes.
Q. Morgan Stanley didn't make any presentations to the board of directors of the Coleman company, did it?

A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. In addition to the -- in addition to the presentation by Credit Suisse First Boston at the board of directors, this would be February 27, were there presentations by the legal advisers to the Coleman company?
A. I am sure there were. I am sure the merger agreement was presented, at least outlined.
Q. Did the Coleman company have its own legal advisers in the merger transaction, that is, separate and apart from Sunbeam's legal advisers?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was that?
A. Wachtell, Lipton, I believe.
Q. Did you -- is MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. in your view a sophisticated company in financial transactions?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you agree that Mr. Perelman is a sophisticated individual in financial transactions?
A. Yes.

A. Yes.
Q. Did you consider yourself a sophisticated person in financial transactions on March 30, 1998 when the transaction closed?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you consider -- did you consider Credit Suisse First Boston -- by the way, you worked for Credit Suisse First Boston when it was First Boston, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Going back before --
A. Even before it was Credit Suisse First Boston too.
Q. As well as when it was Credit Suisse First Boston?

Page 35

A. That is a good question. It may have been. There are parts of it that were certainly Credit Suisse First Boston at that time.
Q. We won't worry about when the combination took place yet.
When the Credit Suisse First Boston made its presentation to the Coleman boards in connection with the merger was Credit Suisse First Boston in your view a sophisticated financial adviser to the company.
A. Yes.
Q. It was an investment banking firm?
A. Yes.
Q. High standing in the financial community in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you consider Credit Suisse First Boston in 1998 to be capable of performing due diligence in connection with a merger such as the Coleman-Sunbeam merger?
A. Yes.

Page 36

Q. Did you consider yourself capable of doing due diligence in connection with a transaction like the Coleman-Sunbeam merger in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you consider Mr. Perelman capable of doing due diligence in connection with a transaction like the Coleman-Sunbeam merger in 1998?
A. Capable of doing it, yes.
Q. Yes.
Did you consider the law firm of Wachtell, Lipton to be a law firm that was sophisticated from a corporate side in mergers and acquisition transactions in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you consider them to not only be capable but to have an outstanding reputation in that area in the New York financial markets?
A. I understood them to be capable.
Q. Did you have any -- strike that.
Did you consider the Coleman-Sunbeam merger transaction to be an arms length transaction?

A. Yes.
Q. Would you agree with me that Mr. Perelman's company and -- Mr. Perelman's companies, if you will, and Sunbeam are both -- were both at that time large companies?
A. Yes.
Q. Both companies, Sunbeam and Mr. Perelman's companies, were both sophisticated in terms of their businesses?
A. Yes.
Q. Sunbeam -- Coleman had at that time an audit firm, did it not?
A. I am sure it did.
Q. Ernst & Young?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know who Ernst & Young is?
A. Yes.
Q. You knew who they were in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you consider them to be a sophisticated accounting firm?
A. Yes.
Q. Sophisticated in public accounting?

A. Yes.
Q. You knew that Sunbeam had an accounting firm as well, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that accounting firm was Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. You understood at least in 1998 that Arthur Andersen was a sophisticated accounting firm, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Both Ernst & Young and Arthur Andersen were one of the big five, six or seven, whatever it was at that time, accounting firms, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me ask you little bit about -- I want to talk a little bit about your sophistication in 1998 in financial transactions so the jury understands you a little bit better.
You -- when did you first go to work for First Boston Corporation?
A. 1976.

Q. Would you tell the jury what First Boston Corporation was when you joined the company in 1976?
A. It was an investment banking firm headquartered in New York. Its business at that point in time was largely an underwriting and advisory business.
Q. When you say --
A. And obviously sales and trading.
Q. Would you tell the jury in your own words what an investment banking firm does?
A. Or what it did then?
Q. Let's say in 1976 when you joined; that is fair.
MR. MARKOWSKI: At First Boston generally or generically?
MR. BEMIS: First Boston, his investment banking firm.
THE WITNESS: Its major business was raising capital for companies in either the form of the sale of equities or the sale of debt.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You used the term "underwriting."

Would you tell the jury what "underwriting" is?
A. When a company sells securities in the public markets it sells them first to a securities firm, i.e., an underwriter.
The underwriter owns them for a brief period of time and then distributes them to "the public."
By "underwriting" I mean they actually own the security for a, some people would say a nanosecond, but a brief period of time.
Q. In simple terms, the underwriter actually buys in -- a firm underwriting will buy the underlying securities whether it be debt or equity and then it will resell them, as you put it, to the public over a period of time, whether it be a nanosecond or two nanoseconds?
A. That is correct. That is a fair description.
Q. You told me that you started in 1976 with First Boston as you described it.
What was your first position there?

A. I was an associate.
Q. How long did you work for First Boston?
A. Until 1992.
Q. When you left in 1992 what was your position within First Boston?
A. I was head of investment banking.
Q. Were you with First Boston continuously from 1976 to 1992?
A. Yes.
Q. When you started as an associate is that pretty much the bottom of the investment banking rung?
A. It was then.
Q. I take it when you left as head of the investment banking division that was quite a promotion within the company over the years, is that fair?
A. There is a significant difference between associate and head of investment banking, yes.
Q. When you were head of investment banking in 1992 you had by that time I take it done many mergers and acquisition transactions?

015773

Page 42

A. I had been involved in quite a few, yes.
Q. Had you been involved in quite a few underwritings of debt and equity securities?
A. Well, I was responsible for, during the last four years of my career there, for the investment banking business which included the securities underwriting business.
I don't think I was specifically involved in a single -- well, that is not true -- a single underwriting in the last 15 years that I was there.
I spent most of my time, if not all of it, on the merger and acquisition side of the business but I was responsible for the underwriting business but -- that was not my primary responsibility.
Q. What do you mean when you say you were responsible for the underwriting division?
A. People reported to me as part of the business.
Q. Did you have bottom line

responsibility for that division within First Boston?
A. Well, there are -- without complicating the issue, the people who do the underwriting, who go out and contact the companies, do the due diligence and take the companies on road shows, are the people that -- that I was responsible for.
There are capital markets people and trading people who are in another part of the firm which are responsible for the actual sale of the securities.
I was not responsible for that part of the business which would be typical of any investment banking firm.
Q. I apologize for interrupting you.
Were you one of the people who would approve an underwriting by First Boston?
A. Approve? There are various approval processes within the firm so you have to be more specific.
Q. Let's take an example. In the Sunbeam transaction when the debentures were eventually underwritten by Morgan

Page 44

Stanley someone had to approve Morgan Stanley putting its capital out on the debenture underwriting.
Did you have that type of role as the head of the investment banking division?
A. Typically in an investment banking firm taking on a new client would require approval of an investment banking committee.
That investment banking committee reported to me and at various times during my career I sat on that investment banking committee.
That committee was responsible for approving, doing business with a client, not responsible for the capital commitment.
The capital commitment was the responsibility of the capital markets division of the company.
Q. If you --
A. Now --
Q. I interrupted again.
A. As head of investment banking, if there were issues with any underwriting I would certainly be aware of it.

Q. As the head of the investment banking division and in the role as you have explained it with regard to underwriting, I take it you became familiar with financial statements?
A. Ask that question again.
Q. In your role as head of the investment banking division and on the committee reviewing underwritings you became familiar with reading financial statements of companies, right?
A. I don't think the two are related. I became -- I did during the course of my career at First Boston I became familiar with financial statements.
Q. You -- that would --
A. I mean it had nothing to do with my role as head of investment banking.
Q. As part of your role as head of the investment banking division you did read financial statements of companies that you were involved with as an investment banker, right?

Q. I understand. Let's try to move on.
You know what an audited financial statement is of a public company?
A. I do.
Q. You have seen those over many of the years of your career, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You know how to read them?
A. I do.
Q. You know how to read the footnotes?
A. I do.
Q. You are also familiar as a result of your work in the investment banking community with public filings that companies do like an annual report on a form 10-K?

A. I do.
Q. You are also familiar with the reports that companies file, public companies, on a quarterly basis like a form 10-Q, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You are also familiar with the maintenance of interim financial statements by companies, aren't you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it your experience that most public companies that file quarterly statements maintain interim financial statements?
A. Yes.
Q. At least in 1998, at the time that you were negotiating the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, you knew that Sunbeam filed public -- filed financial statements with its public filings, correct?
A. I did.
Q. It filed audited statements for its annual periods, correct?

Page 48

A. Yes.
Q. It filed quarterly statements with the Securities and Exchange Commission for periods that were not audited, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you also knew by virtue of your negotiations in the transactions that Sunbeam had interim financial statements, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Let's go back to First Boston for a second.
When you worked for First Boston did First Boston do any work in the area of investment banking with Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. We did a secondary offering of shares on behalf of Mr. Perelman in National Health Labs, I remember. That is certainly one thing we did.
We did an advisory assignment on the sale of Max Factor from Revlon. I am sure we did other things.

Those are two things that come to mind.
Q. Were both of these transactions underwritings?
A. No. The stock sale was an underwriting. The advisory assignment was a typical advisory assignment where Revlon sold its Max Factor business to another party.
Q. Would you tell the jury what an advisory assignment is please?
A. An advisory assignment is where you assist a company typically -- an example of an advisory assignment would be a company wants to sell a businesses, it hires an investment banker to assist in the sale of that business.
That is what I mean by "advisory assignment," the typical advisory assignment.
Q. In the case of the -- withdrawn.
When you left First Boston in 1992 am I correct then that you went to National Health Laboratories?

Page 50

A. I eventually went to National Health Laboratories. I left First Boston and was going to do something different and I ended up joining National Health Labs at the end of the year in 1992, late December of 1992 and I had left First Boston in the summer.

I had -- I think the first discussion about joining National Health Labs occurred with Mr. Perelman in either late September or early October of that year.

Q. How did you come to discuss with Mr. Perelman taking this position?

A. He called me and asked me -- asked me to have lunch with him.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Perelman?

A. The first time I met him was somewhere in the mid '80s.

Q. Was this in connection with your investment banking work?

A. I frankly don't recall the initial meeting. I don't.

Q. When you first met Mr. Perelman it was in a business setting though, I take it?

Page 51

A. Yes.

Q. I take it he persuaded you eventually to take the position with National Health Laboratories?

A. He did.

Q. You served there how long; 1992 to -- until when?

A. Well, in 19 -- from 1992 to 1995 I was chief executive officer. During the, I guess it was the early part of 1995, we entered into a merger agreement to effectively acquire Roche's laboratory business for common stock of National Health Labs.

That transaction left -- put -- left Roche with roughly 50.1 percent of the stock of the combined enterprise.

At that point in time I became chairman. I stayed on as chairman for another year, as non-executive chairman.

Q. You were in effect Mr. Perelman's representative?

A. No. I wasn't then. Roche owned

Page 52

50 percent. They controlled the company. I was there because they asked me to be.

Q. You stayed there and -- as chairman did you -- you said you were as -- in a non-executive position?

A. That's correct.

Q. What did you mean by that?

A. I wasn't running the day-to-day operations of the company.

Q. Someone else was the chief operating officer?

A. There was a CEO.

Q. You left then --

A. Effectively left the operating position at the time of the merger which I believe was April, May of 1995, somewhere around there.

Q. You go from president to chairman and then eventually leave and go to MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings?

A. No. Then in July, I believe July of 1995, a new company, not a new company but a company was being created called MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc. which was -- which was created out of a merger of a public company which I think was called Pneumo Abex merging with Mr. Perelman's licorice company and his cigar company so he contributed or effectively contributed those two companies to this public company for stock in the public company.

Q. What was your position?

A. CEO.

Q. In that position you actually were running the company, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. How long?

A. Well, as a holding company. It was a holding company. It had several -- literally had three different businesses at that point in time.

Q. MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc. was a holding company for three operating companies?

A. That's correct.

Q. You were the CEO of MAFCO Consolidated Group, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Then there were operating officers in each one of the operating companies?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes, there were.
Q. As I understand it you had the cigar business, consolidated cigar, whatever name it was going by at that time?
A. Yes.
Q. That was one of them, you had the licorice flavoring business, was it M&W?
A. M&F Worldwide.
Q. Worldwide at that time.
What was the other operating division?
A. The other operating division was the aerospace business that we sold or entered, went out and marketed and sold shortly after we went public.
Q. How long did you --
A. We didn't own 100 percent of that.
Q. Again, I interrupted you.
How long did you stay chief executive officer of MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc.?
A. Well, I think actually I think I maintained that title until I left MacAndrews & Forbes but there was a transaction in 1998 which took that company private.

At the time of the initial transaction I believe Mr. Perelman owned 85 percent of M&F Worldwide and in 1998 he took the company or -- yes, effectively took the company private and I don't think my title actually changed at that point in time.
Q. Did you -- withdrawn.
As far as you can recall as you sit here today at least until you left Mr. Perelman companies you still had the CEO position even when the company went private?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. Okay.
You had an additional title I think as you told us earlier. You also were the president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., right?
A. Yes. That occurred sometime in 1998, I believe.
Q. Focusing now on MacAndrews &

Forbes Holdings Inc., I want to make sure the jury is going to understand at one place the structure of this company and I hope you can remember it.
Mr. Perelman -- if we put -- we are going put him at the top of the organization for right now if you just assume that.
There was another company directly below Mr. -- that Mr. Perelman owned which was his MAFCO Holdings Inc.; is that correct?
I am talking about 1998.
A. I don't remember the exact structure.
Q. Who owned MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. If that was the ultimate holding company Perelman owned 100 percent of it.
Q. An ultimate holding company?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I think we have given you organization charts.
MR. BEMIS: My understanding is that you objected to giving organization charts. I could be wrong and I don't want to quarrel about something like that.

MR. MARKOWSKI: You can do a memory test.
MR. BEMIS: I flunked.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You can do a memory test on Mr. Maher.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. MacAndrews & Forbes, at least as of 1998, it owned Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., right?
A. I don't recall the names of what it owned. All I can tell you -- I can tell you that Perelman owned 100 percent of the holding company and there may have been companies below that that owned -- that had different names but I don't recall the exact structure, the exact name of the companies -- and I think -- but I don't think it effectively changed anything.
Essentially Perelman owned 100 percent of the holding company and whatever percentages of these companies that were below directly or indirectly.

Q. One of the below companies, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., was the Coleman company, correct?
A. Eventually, yes.
Q. I am talking about the beginning of 1998.
A. Yes.
Q. There were intermediate holding companies between MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. and the Coleman Company, Inc. in 1998, correct?
A. Yes, I believe there were. I can't tell you how many or what their names were but I believe there were.
Q. Mr. Perelman, as you described it, was the 100 percent owner of the ultimate holding company in this chain that we have been discussing?
A. That is my understanding.
Q. When you left MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. what did you do next?
A. I joined a small private equity firm called Park Avenue Equity Partners.
Q. What did it do?
A. It had a fund that invested in small companies, in the equity of small companies.

Page 59

Q. Did you raise capital from individuals or other companies and then invest that?
A. It had -- when I joined it had raised -- already raised some capital and I added to that, personally added to that capital and -- but during the period I was there it did not raise any additional capital.
Q. Is it so-called direct investment funds?
A. I don't think it was called a direct investment fund.
Q. The -- the Park Avenue Equity Partners, did all of the partners, did they own all of the capital of the company?
A. No. There were limited partners.
Q. You, that is, the company, Park Avenue, you actually --
A. Was a partnership.
Q. Partnership, excuse me, actually did the investments for both the general partners and the limited partners, correct?

Page 60

A. That's correct.
Q. You were responsible, that is, Park Avenue Equity Partners, for the oversight of the investments, correct?
A. Well, I was a senior partner.
Q. I didn't mean you individually; the organization?
A. Yes.
Q. You would make a decision to invest and divest your positions?
A. That is correct.
Q. You made your money by presumably buying in low and selling at a high price, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. How long did you stay at Park Avenue Equity Partners?
A. Through, I would say, June of this year.
Q. You have been involved in investment banking or running companies or managing other people's money including your own since 1976, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. While you were with

Page 61

Mr. Perelman's -- withdrawn.
While you were with MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. or -- and even the MAFCO Consolidated Holding Group, if you will, when it went private were you involved in merger and acquisition transactions other than Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. About how many others?
A. I can think of one, two, three. There may have been more but I can think of three off the top of my head.
Q. What were the three that you can think of off the top of your head?
A. The sale of the cigar business to Seita which is the French tobacco company.
Q. This is Consolidated Cigar?
A. Yes; the sale of Revlon's Spanish business, for lack of a better description, and the acquisition of Panavision.
Q. The Panavision acquisition took place in 1997, correct, late 1997?
A. I think that's right. That sounds about right.
Q. Were you heavily involved in the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 62

Panavision deal?
A. I was, yes.
Q. The Panavision deal was actually a deal where you renegotiated the acquisition price, didn't you, after the signing of the initial agreements and before the closing?
A. I don't recall -- there was a renegotiation. I just don't recall exactly what the timing was of them.
Q. There was, however, a renegotiation of the purchase price as a result of the financial performance of Panavision during an interim period after the signing of the merger agreements; right?
A. I said specifically I don't remember when it took place. There was a renegotiation. It had to do with the financial performance but I don't recall exactly the timing of it.
Q. Panavision was a purchase transaction, right, as opposed to a sale?
A. I don't know what you mean by that.

Page 63

Q. When you referred to the Consolidated Cigar business, you spoke of that as being a sale?
A. The Perelman entity bought the company, yes.
Q. That is what I meant. The Perelman entity was buying Panavision?
A. I was just wondering if it was an accounting issue.
Q. Not a trick question.
A. Okay.
Q. Were you involved while you were with Mr. Perelman's companies with any debt transactions?
A. The only one I recall was the -- had some involvement in the sale of securities, debt securities, for Panavision.
Q. Were you involved in the sale of debt securities by Coleman Escrow?
A. No.
Q. There were some debt securities sold by Mr. Perelman's company called Liquid Yield Option Notes, abbreviated LYONS, do you recall those?

Page 64

A. Do I recall them or was I involved?
Q. Do you recall them first?
A. I remember there were LYONS somewhere in the empire.
Q. Were you involved in the empire sale of any of the sale of LYONS?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer.
A. Do you want to ask me again?
Q. Were you involved in the sale of the LYONS by what you referred to as the empire?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any position in CLN Holdings Inc.?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. While you were the president of MacAndrews & Forbes did you receive through a clipping service public information about companies that Mr. Perelman was involved with?
A. I received financial clippings.

Page 65

I frankly don't recall what the basis of those -- I don't recall why items were or were not in the clippings.
Q. You did receive some type of clippings package in the regular course of your business?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this something you received -- withdrawn.
How often did you receive it?
A. Daily, I believe.
Q. Did the daily package have a name like the clippings package or something?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Who received that within your organization?
Mr. Shapiro, for example, recalled that he received it. Now you recall that you received it?
A. I don't know who else received it.
Q. Where was your office when you worked for MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. 35 East 62nd Street.

Q. What floor were you on?
A. I was on different floors.
Q. When you were president?
A. Fifth, fourth and third at various times.
Q. Were you ever on Mr. Perelman's floor?
A. No.
Q. Going back to the clippings, what -- could you describe for the jury just generally what these clippings packages contained?
A. It has been a long time. They tended to be about businesses that -- either about the industries that we were involved in or companies that we were specifically involved in.
Q. As an example, if there was an article in some financial press, be it the Wall Street Journal, Barron's, whatever, if there was an article about the Coleman company, would you get a copy of that from the clipping service usually?
A. Usually, yes.
Q. Did this clipping service cover analyst reports as well?

A. I don't think so.
Q. What else did it cover besides, say, clippings from the financial press?
A. That is -- my recollection is that is about it.
Q. Do you know what newspapers it covered?
A. I don't.
Q. What financial press it cover?
A. I don't.
Q. Was there an outside vendor that provided the clippings or was it done in-house?
A. I don't know.
Q. You told us that at least from a holding company position that you were involved with three of Mr. -- three companies that Mr. Perelman owned or controlled, the cigar company, M&F and the aerospace company earlier that were actual manufacturing or companies that produced products, right? There were those three?
A. Right.
Q. Are there others that you were involved with while you were with Mr. Perelman's companies, and I will set aside labs for right now.

A. Well, I told you I was involved in the sale of the business for Revlon.
Q. You were involved with Mr. Perelman's interest in Revlon at least at one point?
A. Yes.
Q. Any other companies?
A. I handled the sale of the common stock that was owned by Perelman in News Corp. that was the result of a merger.
Q. When was that?
A. It was over a long period of time. I don't recall exactly what year it was.
Q. Did you have any role in Panavision after the acquisition of Mr. Perelman's controlling interest?
A. Yes. I was a director and continue to be a director.
Q. Would you tell the jury what Panavision's business is please?
A. Panavision's main business is -- it builds and rents cameras to -- for -- largely for the making of major motion pictures, television shows, commercials.

Q. Have you been a director of Panavision since 1997 or 1998 at the time of the acquisition?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any -- strike that.
Did you have any responsibility for the operations of any of Mr. Perelman's financial service businesses?
A. No.
Q. For example, Cal Fed Bank, you were not involved in the operations of that in any way?
A. No.
Q. Did it report to you in any way through MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. No.
Q. Is that through a different holding company that it was operating?
A. It didn't report to me.
Q. Did you have any involvement with Meridian Sports?
A. No.

Q. Do you know what the company did?
A. I think they were in the water ski business.
Q. Water skis and boats?
A. Boats was part of it.
Q. Did it report to you in any way in your position at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.?
A. No.
Q. In 1998 other than the Coleman company were there any operating companies that reported to you in 1998?
A. Other than the Coleman Company, you mean other than -- are you suggesting the Coleman Company reported to me?
Q. In the sense that it was a company within the ownership chain that ran up to MacAndrews & Forbes.
A. The Coleman Company did not report to me.
Q. Were there any other operating companies other than Coleman, the Coleman Company, Inc., that were directly in your -- in the line of ownership under MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. that you were the president of?

A. That question -- I mean, I can't answer that question. If you want to restate it you can because it doesn't make any sense.
You asked about three different questions in the same question.
Q. Thank you for being so critical but I will try a little harder.
The Coleman Company, Inc. as I think you explained to us was a subsidiary of a chain of holding companies one of which was owned directly by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., is that right?
A. I believe that is correct, yes.
Q. What I am asking, were there any other operating companies, and they don't have to be camping companies but operating companies that reported up through a series of holding companies that eventually reported to you at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. You keep phrasing this question with the assumption I believe in the way you have phrased the question that Coleman reported to me.

Q. I am not -- I am not trying to suggest that Coleman ultimately reported to you but within the ownership chain, MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc., going down were there operating companies other than the Coleman Company?
You mentioned Consolidated Cigar, for example, and I don't recall what the date of the sales were that you were talking about.
A. I don't recall -- Consolidated Cigar and M&F Worldwide I believe were the two companies.
Q. The three operating companies that at some point or another that were in a holding chain that you sat at the top of at MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. were the Coleman Company's Consolidated Cigar and the aerospace company?
A. Not the Coleman Company.
Q. I will not argue with you whether you controlled Coleman or not.
A. I didn't.
Q. I hear you.

Let me have 86.
When was your first discussions with anyone about a possible transaction between Sunbeam and Mr. Perelman's companies that involved the Coleman Company?
A. Sometime late -- I don't recall an initial discussion but it had to have occurred sometime late -- sometime in 1997. I just don't recall a specific date or specific conversation.
Q. Just so the jury will understand where we are at time-wise, your involvement, it began sometime in late 1997 and would have continued at least to what, March of 1998 at the time of the closing, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me ask you to take a look at a document that was previously marked as Morgan Stanley 86 in another deposition.
First of all, sir, do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 86 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a copy of your calendar, at least for the periods reflected on the calendar?

A. It looks like it.
Q. Can you -- did you maintain your calendar or did someone do it for you or was it a combination of the two?
A. I would say it was a combination of the two would be the best description.
Q. Sir, can you tell me, looking at your calendar, were you -- do you have a home in Aspen, Colorado?
A. I have a home in Snow Mass, Colorado.
Q. In Snow Mass. You have to excuse me for my lack of Colorado. I am not real good on -- you fly into Aspen to get to Snow Mass, the Aspen airport?
A. Yes.
Q. When you -- withdrawn.
Please look at your calendar. Can you confirm for me that you were in either Aspen or Snow Mass as the case may be between December 22 and January 3 of 1997 and 1998?
A. That is what it looks like. I have no reason to dispute it.

Q. I note that when it refers to you -- withdrawn.
Then if we move forward from, in January of 1998, were you in -- can I use Aspen?
A. Aspen is fine.
Q. You were in Aspen between January 7 and January 10 of 1998?
A. That is what the calendar says. Again, I have no reason to dispute it.
Q. If you -- continue please going forward in your calendar.
Were you in Aspen February 13 through February 17?
A. Again, it seems to me that is correct.
Q. If you would continue, sir, can you look at February 19 through the 22nd and tell me whether you were in Aspen on those days?
A. It looks like that weekend also.
Q. Were you also in Aspen between March 14 and March 28?
A. I believe that is correct also.

Q. Changing physical locations here, were you in London between March 6 and March 9?
A. It looks like I was in London for a Panavision meeting, yes.
Q. Then you left London on March 9 and flew, it looks like to me, you flew the Concord back arriving then back in New York later that evening?
A. Yes. It looks that way.
Q. Did -- you were -- during this -- the period of your calendar starting with March 11 -- excuse me. I didn't -- let me withdraw that.
Referring to your calendar, MS 86, you have a number of entries for Panavision.
I would like to see if we -- I want to confirm that these entries are for Panavision.
On December 11 there is an entry that appears to be regarding Panavision; is that correct?
A. Yes. It looks like that way, yes.

Q. Does this mean you were working on the Panavision transaction at this time or was it in some other capacity?
A. I don't know.
Q. Then you were -- on the 15th of December there is another reference to Panavision. There is a reference to Chase there. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this the Chase investment banking division that this is referring to?
A. I don't think so.
Q. What is it, do you know?
A. Probably their financing.
Q. Were they assisting in the financing of some portion of the Panavision transaction?
A. I don't know if they were assisting or whether they were trying to assist at this point in time. I don't know if we had decided on who was going to underwrite the securities at that point in time.

Q. All right. Let's look at the 19th of December.
Were you working on the Panavision transaction at that time as well?
A. It certainly looks like I had a PVI notation in there.
Q. PVI stands for?
A. Panavision, Inc.
Q. Then on the 19th -- excuse me, withdrawn.

A. Well, I don't see anything about Panavision on the 8th, 9th.
Q. I am just referring to the 12th, just to the 12th.
A. There is a reference to Panavision on the 12th, yes.
Q. Then if you --
A. It is not a reference to me on the 12th.
Q. What is it a reference to?
A. It is a reference to --
Q. Mr. Nesbitt being there?
A. Yes.
Q. WGN refers to Mr. William G. Nesbitt?
A. I think so.

A. I do.
Q. That is a reference, is it not, to the Panavision road show for the sale of the debt securities, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Being underwritten at this time by First Boston?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you just tell the jury -- we are going to talk more about it later but tell them what a road show is.
A. I think the best way to describe it is a sales pitch by the management of the company to prospective investors.
Q. Did you conduct -- strike that.
Did you do the presentation by management to the investors at this road show?

A. Yes.
Q. In your career, how many road shows have you participated in as an investment banker?
A. Very few.

A. A handful.

Do you see that?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Which date?
MR. BEMIS: February 3.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Is that a reference to Panavision where it refers to PVI?
A. I believe so.
Q. Is the CS First Boston a conference call with investors?
A. I doubt it.
Q. That was a terrible question now that I think about it.
What does the IE refer to or is that Irwin Engelman?
A. I would think so.
Q. First Boston was having -- according to this entry there is going to be a conference call between First Boston which was the underwriter and the Panavision transaction, right?

A. Yes.
Q. You were going to have a conference with Mr. Engelman at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., correct?
A. I don't know where it would have been.
Q. I am not saying where it was but it was with Mr. Engelman who at that time was, correct me if I am wrong, the chief financial officer of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., right?
A. I believe that is correct.
Q. Then if we continue on to March 9 you are, if I read this correctly, you have another meeting with -- regarding Panavision and that is -- looks to be connected with your trip to London that we discussed earlier; is that correct?
A. It looks to me that that was the reason for the trip to London.
Q. To have a meeting with Mr. Scott, Mr. Perelman and Joe Page, right?
A. Yes. It looks like that; I think probably some other people at Panavision.

Q. Was Bill Scott with Panavision?
A. Yes. He was the CEO.
Q. Mr. Page at this time was the chief financial officer of Coleman, correct?
A. I don't -- I don't know what he was at that point in time.
Q. He was at one point the chief financial officer of Coleman, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. He was at the time of the -- indeed it was at the time of the acquisition, correct?
A. I remember he was certainly the chief financial officer at one point in time.
Q. When you flew to -- when you fly into Aspen you would fly in by private jet?
A. Sometimes.
Q. One of these private jets were owned by Mr. Perelman?
A. Sometimes.
Q. Is it referred to as ROP Aviation, coloquially, if you will?

A. No.
Q. I am confused then. Maybe you can help me with this.
On Friday, January 2, 1998 when you were in Aspen it refers to ROP Aviation and then a phone number 201-288-8464, will call you regarding the tail number, et cetera.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. What is ROP Aviation?
A. ROP Aviation is an entity that manages Perelman's planes and other people's private flying so it could be one of his planes. It could be a net jet, a charter.
Q. What does the ROP stand for?
A. I believe it stands for Ronald O. Perelman.
Q. When you travel through bookings on ROP Aviation, was that part of your compensation that -- as president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. Was it part of my compensation? Yes, I guess, because I got a W-2 statement

MR. BEMIS: Why don't we take a break here?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is 11:21. This completes tape number one.
(Recess)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on record. The time is 11:38. This begins tape number two of the videotaped deposition of Mr. James R. Maher.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Sir, would you look at your calendar on December 4, 1997? It would be the first page of MS 86. Tell me when you are there.
A. I am there.
Q. There is an entry at 4:15 p.m. which refers to Day, D-A-Y, International. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. What does Day International refer to?
A. I have no idea.

Page 88

Q. Look at your calendar entry on January 27, 1998. Tell me when you are there.
A. Yes.
Q. There is an entry at 11:30 a.m. which appears to be for Howard Gittis and Mr. Perelman, Gordon Rich and at Mr. Gittis' office. It says Re: Gucci and Coleman.
Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. What is the reference to Gucci?
A. I don't know.
Q. About this time in January of 1998 were there any discussions internally at MacAndrews & Forbes or Mr. Perelman's companies in general about a possible acquisition of Gucci?
A. Gucci came up from time to time. I don't recall there were discussions. It came up from time to time but there were hundreds of companies that came up from time to time.
Q. Did you attend this meeting?
A. I don't remember attending it,

Page 89

no.
Q. Look at February 11, 1998. There is a reference at 12:00 p.m. to a meeting among Bill Reid, ROP which I assume is Mr. Perelman, HG which I assume is Mr. Gittis, and WGN which I assume is Mr. Nesbitt.
It says re: Coleman and Gucci again.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. By looking at that can you be anymore specific as to what, if any, discussions were ongoing about Gucci at this time?
A. I will just reiterate what I said before. There were discussions about Gucci. I don't remember anything specific.
Q. Were you involved in any of these discussions? You attended two, several meetings, it appears?
A. Yes. I attended -- it looks like I attended several meetings. I don't remember the meetings though.
Q. Was there ever -- did you have

Turn to, if you would, back to the December 8 entry on your calendar. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. There is a reference to a 9:30 meeting, Re: it says: Timber REITS, R-E-I-T-S.
What does that refer to?
A. I don't know what the specific meeting was about but we did look at forest products, product, timber investments so it had to be about the general -- it had to be a tax meeting since Barney Phillips is a tax lawyer. I don't remember the meeting specifically.
Q. What does the REITS refer to?
A. Real estate investment trust.
Q. That is what I am guessing. That is what I am asking you.
A. I am guessing on it too.
Q. I didn't know of a company known as Timber REITS. I assumed it was a trust of some kind.
A. Yes.

Page 91

Q. Were you involved in a private placement of notes by, I believe it is, Revlon Escrow Corp. in 1997 and 1998?
A. No.
Q. Who handled that on, let's start with, the investment banking side?
A. I don't know.
Q. Who within Mr. Perelman's organization was involved with that?
A. I can only speculate that Irwin Engelman would be involved. Beyond that, I don't know.
Q. Were the notes issued by an entity called REV, all caps, Holding Inc. to retire Revlon Escrow Corp. notes?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the lack of foundation at this point.
THE WITNESS: I don't know.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You had nothing to do with it at all?
A. No.
Q. You think Mr. Engelman would be the person who would know?

Page 92

A. I would think.
Q. And Mr. Perelman, of course, you would think?
A. I would think.
Q. Was Rev, I am using the initial caps, Holdings Inc., was that owned by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. in 1998?
A. I don't know.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Larry, you are not going to get us all sick here?
MR. BEMIS: No. I swallowed incorrectly; a polite way of putting it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 410 by the court reporter.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 410 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit MS 410 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. The date of this document is, on the filed as of date which is what I am referring to, is March 31, 1998. Do you see that?

Page 93

A. Is that the front page?
Q. The very front page, sir.
These are a little bit awkward to read sometimes because of the government's printing format.
Right at the very top it says conform period of report and then filed as of date, 1998 March 31.
A. I don't see it. Maybe you can point it out to me.
Q. Right over here.
A. Oh, that is 1998. Okay.
Q. Are we all on the same page?
A. I see something filed 1998, 0331 something.
Q. This is for a company called REV Holdings Inc., former company name, Revlon Worldwide Parent Corp.
Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. This is a form you are familiar with, right?

Q. The page numbers will actually appear both at the middle and at the bottom. Go to the --
A. Page 6 on the top.
Q. 114. That is the easier way to do it. Thank you very much.
If you go down to the third full paragraph --
A. Starts with?
Q. Starts with REV Holdings.
A. Okay.
Q. It states as follows: "REV Holdings is an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Holdings --" we can get back to the definition of that -- "that is Revlon Holdings Inc. as defined above and an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc."
Did I read that correctly?
A. Yes.

Page 95

Q. You were the president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. at this time, were you not, that is, the date this report was filed, March 31, 1998?
A. Frankly, I am not -- I don't know the answer.
Q. I had asked you earlier whether MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. was wholly-owned through a company called MAFCO Holdings Inc.
I would like you now to read on in that sentence and tell me when you are done.
A. The corporation wholly-owned through MAFCO Holdings Inc.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection whether MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. was in 1998, the time we are talking about, March, a wholly owned subsidiary of MAFCO Holdings Inc.?
A. That is what it says.
Q. Then Mr. Perelman, Ronald O. Perelman, he is listed as being the owner of MAFCO Holdings Inc., right?
A. Yes.

Page 96

Q. One more question. Bear with me one second. You can set that aside for the time being.
Having looked at Exhibit MS 410, is it your testimony that you don't recall at all being involved in this private placement that is referred to in the document?
A. That's correct.
Q. Were you involved at all at any level with the inquiry by the office of independent counsel involving the offer to Ms. Lewinsky of a job at one of the Revlon companies?
A. No.
Q. Did you participate in any meetings about that?
A. No.
Q. Did you follow it in the newspapers?
A. Follow what?
Q. Reporting.
A. Of?
Q. The Lewinsky matter and Mr. Perelman?

A. One couldn't help but, during that period of time, being exposed to everything. If you turned the television on or read the newspaper you couldn't help but being exposed.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Perelman in a face-to-face matter about the Lewinsky matter from the office of independent counsel?
A. No.
Q. Do you know Vernon Jordan?
A. I do.
Q. How long have you known him?
A. The first time I met Mr. Jordan was in the late '70s.
Q. Did you have any discussions with him about the investigation by the office of independent counsel concerning Ms. Lewinsky's potential employment by Revlon?
A. No.
Q. Were you interviewed by the office of independent counsel?
A. No.

A. I didn't know Mr. Perelman was so the answer is, no. It is no to both.
Q. At the time of the negotiations that took place between Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes involving the sale of the Coleman Company to Sunbeam did you familiarize yourself with Coleman's financial condition?
A. Yes. I am not exactly sure -- during the course, sometime -- ask the question again.
Q. Sure.
During the -- withdrawn.
At some point during the negotiations between Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes concerning the possible sale of Coleman to Sunbeam did you familiarize yourself with the financial condition of the Coleman Company?
A. Yes.
Q. I take it then that you looked at its annual reports filed on form 10-K with the SEC?

A. No.
Q. What -- what did you do to familiarize yourself with the Coleman Company's financial condition?
A. What I recall is having discussions with Jerry Levin and with First Boston who had familiarized themselves with Coleman in terms of its current performance, its future prospects, its valuation.
Q. With regard to -- let's focus on current performance.
Are you familiar with what its current performance were in the two years before the sales transaction?
A. I am sure I was at the time. I don't recall today.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. This is the form 10-K for the year ending December 31, 1997, correct, for the Coleman Company?

A. Yes.
Q. If you would look at page 13 of the 10-K which has the caption Selected Financial Data which is item 6. Are you there?
A. I am.
Q. You have looked at many 10-Ks in your lifetime, correct?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Looking at the selected financial data would you -- and this is audited financial data; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Audited by Coleman's auditors, Ernst & Young, right?
A. Yes.
Q. It has comparative data for the periods running from 1993 all the way through 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In 1996 would you tell the jury whether the company had a net loss or had net earnings that year, 1996?
A. A net loss.

Q. Am I correct, when the jury looks at this we will both be reading the same numbers, that Coleman lost $41,893,000 that year?
A. Yes, after a $50 million charge for something which -- after a $50 million charge for something.
Q. That translates if I read the selected financial data correctly from 1996, Coleman lost 79 cents per share, is that right?
A. That is what it says.
Q. Then if we were to look back from 1996, let's look back at 1995, we see that the company actually had earned a profit the year before of approximately $39,280,000, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Then in the year before that in 1994 Coleman had earned a profit of $32,803,000, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Then if you go back all the way to 1993, it had even a higher profit than the preceding year, $34,934,000, right?

Q. We had a loss beginning in 1996 and that loss continued in 1997 according to the selected financial data, is that right?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can answer, sir.
A. Do you want to ask it again?
Q. Sure.
I want you now to focus on 1997 and we see that Coleman, according to the selected financial data, had a loss of $2,536,000; is that correct?
A. That is what it says.
Q. And that translated into a loss of 5 cents per share, right?
A. That is what it says.
Q. When you say that is what it says, that is what your auditors expressed an opinion on when they signed off on these -- this financial data, correct?

A. Yes. That is what it says.
Q. Just looking at Coleman's stock price, if you will turn to page 12, go back one page, if you would.
Are you at the table on page 12 under item 5?
A. I am.
Q. By the way, the time we are talking about -- strike that.
In 1997 Mr. Perelman through his companies owned approximately 82 percent of the common stock of the Coleman Company, correct?
A. I don't remember the exact amount.
Q. Am I close?
A. I think you are in the ballpark.
Q. Focusing on the -- let me digress.
Turn to page 3 and under the background heading, the first paragraph, it refers to Coleman Worldwide owns 44,067,520 shares of the common stock of Coleman which represented approximately 82 percent of the outstanding Coleman stock as of December 31, 1997.

Do you see that sentence?
A. I do.
Q. Do you see above that that Mr. Perelman is the ultimate owner of the entities in these holding companies that control the Coleman Company common stock?
A. I haven't read it all but that is probably correct.
Q. Can we use 82 percent at least as of December 31, 1997?
A. We can.
Q. Let's turn to the price of Coleman's common stock and that appears on page 12 which is item 5 of the form 10-K. Tell me when you are there.
A. Page 12, item 5. I am there.
Q. As I understand it, reading this chart, in 1997 the highest price Coleman stock reached during that year was 19-1/8, is that right?
A. I think you read it correctly.
Q. That is in the second quarter of 1997, right?

Page 105

A. Yes.
Q. Then it had a low, that is, in 1997, of 11-1/2 dollars and that was in the first quarter of 1997?
A. That's correct.
Q. This was -- this -- in 1996 the stock had actually, that is, the Coleman stock had actually hit a high of $26 per share; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. In the fourth quarter of 1997 which would -- the highest price that it reached, that is, the Coleman stock, appears to be 16-13/16, is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. These are prices that are taken from the closing prices on the New York Stock Exchange composite index, right?
Read the paragraph directly above the chart.
A. It doesn't say closing.
Q. All right.
It says New York Stock Exchange, NYSE Composite Tape, and I will delete closing, but short of that that is where the figures come from, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you believe that the New York Stock Exchange is an efficient market?
A. Have you got a week?
Q. No.
I do if you do but I didn't understand you wanted to sit a week.
A. It is a relatively efficient market.
Q. Coleman's stock during the period 1997 and 1998 was traded on, and in 1998 for a period, was traded on the New York Stock Exchange, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. We talked a little bit about Coleman's earnings. I would like you now to tell me if you can by looking at the financial data of the company what Coleman's debt was, and let's look at long term debt as defined by the accountants which is over a year plus current portion if I understand it and correct me if I am wrong.
Let's look at 1993. Are you

there? It is on page 13.
A. Yes.
Q. Tell the jury what Coleman's debt was in 1993, its long term debt.
A. Approximately $168 million.
Q. The exact figure I am looking at is $168,858,000, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Would you agree with me that that debt goes up every year thereafter up to 1997, its long term debt?
A. No.
Q. Do you know, you are right. I misspoke.
Its debt rose, its debt rose to -- from 1996 to $583,613,000, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Then in 1997 the debt of the company had fallen to $477,799,000, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you remember when Mr. Perelman acquired through his companies his interest in the Coleman Company, Inc.?
A. I don't.
Q. Do you recall what the

Page 108

approximate valuation on a per share basis was used to value Coleman at the time of the execution of the transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall that the execution, so that was --
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Say February 28 of 1998.
A. So the question is?
Q. What was the value assigned to the Coleman stock to establish the exchange ratio under the terms of the merger agreement?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't understand the value ascribed to the Coleman stock.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Right; the per share, per share value.
A. No. I don't recall. I don't know -- I don't know what you are asking me exactly.

Page 109

Q. During --
A. I am not --
Q. It is not a trick question.
A. No.
Q. During the negotiations you on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes negotiated with Coleman representatives, right?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I think you misspoke.
THE WITNESS: Yes, you did.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me try it again.
During the negotiations on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes you negotiated with the Sunbeam representatives, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Your negotiations in large measure were over price, right?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. You had to have a price for the Coleman stock, right?
A. Right; a value of cash and Sunbeam stock. Is that what you are asking?

0015790

Page 110

Q. Yes. You had to have a value?
A. You keep saying Coleman stock.
Q. Let me back up.
During the negotiations there was a value that you put on the Coleman stock on a per share basis for which you were going to receive some consideration from Sunbeam, right?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: We were going to receive cash and Sunbeam stock which totalled to some amount.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You also got a big assumption of debt in the transaction, right?
A. We were going to receive -- what I said was we were going to receive cash and stock of Sunbeam for the shares of Coleman.
Q. As part of the consideration that flowed to Mr. Perelman's companies, if you will, in the transaction there was also an assumption of debt by Sunbeam, right?
A. That's correct.

Page 111

Q. CLN Holdings debt?
A. That is correct.
Q. I am not quarreling about the amounts right now. That is not what I want to get at at this point.
Coleman stock had to have a dollar value assigned to it by your side of the table by the time of the closing, it was worth so much per share.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Isn't that right?
A. At the time of the closing?
Q. At the time of the closing of the merger agreements.
A. What --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Excuse me. I object to the form.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me try it again. I understand your problem.
At the time the merger agreements were executed they were signed -- not the closing of the actual transaction. At the time of the signing of the merger agreements which is February 28, 1998 you, that is, on behalf of your side of the negotiations, had assigned a value on a per share basis for the Coleman stock?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form; lack of foundation.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Right, sir?
A. I don't quite know how to answer the question. I think I answered it before by saying there was an amount of stock, an amount of cash that when combined gave you a value, an amount of -- dollar amount for the Coleman share.
Q. Yes, sir. When you were negotiating, when you were negotiating -- one at a time. I will try not to talk over you as well.
While you were negotiating with the Sunbeam representatives you had a per share price in mind that you had to receive in some form of consideration from Sunbeam, whether it be cash, stock, combination of the above, assumption of debt, what have you; isn't that right?

A. Did I have a number in mind? No.
Q. You had no number in mind?
A. No.
Q. No one on your side of the table had a number in mind?
A. I can't speak for --
Q. For example, we are going to have to get $30 per share or its equivalents?
A. I am sure some people had numbers in their mind.
Q. What was the final number that was agreed upon at the time of the execution of the merger agreements for the value to be assigned on a per share basis for Coleman stock?
A. At the time the merger agreement was executed I believe the value of the stock and cash was something around $28 a share. That is my rough recollection.
Q. That $28 per share in February of 1998 then represented a substantial premium over the highest price that Coleman had traded at in 1997 based on the New York Stock Exchange composite tape as shown in the 10-K, right?

015791

Page 114

A. It is clearly a higher price.
Q. Wouldn't you agree with me that at least based on what you heard CSFB, First Boston, say at the board of directors meeting that the premium was over 40 percent?
A. I don't recall what number they used. It clearly is a premium. I wouldn't characterize it as substantial.
Q. You wouldn't characterize a premium from what is it, a high of $19 a share, assuming that was the price it was trading at -- withdrawn.
I am not going to argue about it. We will get to it later.
At the time of the execution of the merger agreements, February 28, 1998, was the Coleman stock owned by Mr. Perelman's entities -- I think the direct owner was Coleman Worldwide Corporation -- was that stock pledged to cover other -- to cover indebtedness?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't have any idea?

Page 115

A. I don't know.
Q. Are you familiar with any of the -- withdrawn.
Are you familiar with the, I will use the term MAFCO here because I am not sure, there are so many entities involved, we will use MAFCO for the time being, its long term and revolving credit agreements as they existed say on January 1 of 1998?
A. No.
Q. You had no involvement with them whatsoever?
A. None.
Q. Were you aware that MAFCO had a $400 million term credit agreement as of that time, say, January 1, 1998?
MR. MARKOWSKI: What do you mean MAFCO to mean in this context? All the entities? You are using it --
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I can give you -- I will ask the question again and I will use the exact name of the entity because I do have it.
Let me see 301.
Let me show you what has been

Page 116

marked as Exhibit 301 at another deposition.
You will be happy to know I am not going to ask you a bunch of questions about the term of the credit agreement.
Were you aware that MAFCO Finance Corporation had a $400 million term credit agreement here dated as of March 30, 1997?
A. No.
Q. You knew nothing about it whatsoever?
A. No.
Q. Who was the person who was most directly involved with the credit agreements at -- in Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. Engelman.
Q. Mr. Engelman.
Mr. Engelman has already given us some help on this.
I will take that back. I won't ask you about Mr. Engelman's testimony.
Were you aware that in addition to the term credit agreement that MAFCO had a revolving credit agreement with a group of banks in the amount of I believe $450 -- excuse me, $250 million.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
MR. BEMIS: I will rephrase the question.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You put in the 450 million.
MR. BEMIS: I did correct it but it is confusing.
I will withdraw the question and ask it again.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Were you aware that as of the timing of the -- withdrawn.
Were you aware that as of the execution of the merger agreements, February 28, 1998, that MAFCO had a revolving credit facility for $250 million?

on those agreements, that is, $650 million?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever have any discussions within MacAndrews & Forbes, and whether they be the holding company above or someone below, about the amount of cash that MacAndrews & Forbes could receive in the deal with Sunbeam without having to pay the cash to the banks under either the revolving credit facility or the term credit agreement?
A. I don't recall having that discussion.
Q. That would be Mr. -- would be Mr. Engelman who would know about that?
A. He certainly should.
Q. Why do you tell the jury Mr. Engelman certainly should know that?
A. He was the chief financial officer and in my experience he was involved in these matters.
Q. In the course of the negotiations leading up to the execution of the merger agreements on February 28, 1998 did you have internal discussions at MacAndrews &

Page 119

Forbes about the amount -- withdrawn.
Let me rephrase the question.
In the negotiations leading up to the discussions -- that is worse. Withdrawn.
In the negotiations leading up to the execution of the merger agreements of February 28, 1998 did you have discussions at MacAndrews & Forbes about whether Mr. Perelman or his companies would be better advised to take cash as opposed to stock or stock as opposed to cash from Sunbeam as a major portion of the consideration?
A. There were discussions about, as there would always be in any transaction like this, about what might be preferable.
Q. With whom did you have those discussions?
A. I am sure I had them with Mr. Perelman.
Q. Did you have them with Mr. Jerry Levin?
A. I don't recall having any discussions with Levin. I actually don't recall any specific discussions but I know the subject was talked about.

Q. Could you explain to the jury what the discussion was that you recall having been talked about with regard to the amount, whether the -- withdrawn.
Could you tell the jury what the substance of the discussion, even if in general terms, about whether the form of consideration that Mr. Perelman and his companies would receive would be stock or cash?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question back for me please?
(Record read)
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me ask it again since there is an objection.
You had discussions with Mr. Perelman about the form of the consideration?
A. Yes.
Q. At least one of the topics

Page 121

discussed how much cash versus how much stock, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you tell the jury what you recall about those discussions with Mr. Perelman?
A. I think, the discussions that I recall, in general, were about -- were based on the merit of taking some percentage of stock versus a percentage of cash.
Those discussions tended to hinge on the -- on one's view as to the performance of the combined entity after the fact in the stock market.
Q. Do you mean by that if the performance of the combined entity was good there was an upside potential to the taking stock?
A. Absolutely.
Q. If the performance of the combined entity was not as good there was a downside to taking stock as opposed to cash?
A. That is the nature of stock.

Page 122

Q. Is it fair to say that the -- as a result of the negotiations that Mr. Perelman favored taking as much stock as possible?
A. You will have to ask him that question.
Q. I will, but based on your discussions with Mr. Perelman is that a fair statement?
A. I think taking -- ask the question again.
Q. Sure.
Is it fair to say that as a result of your discussions with Mr. Perelman you concluded that he wanted to take as much Sunbeam stock as possible in the transaction?
A. No.
Q. What was Mr. Perelman's opinion on the matter as best you can recall it again based on your discussions with him as a negotiator for his companies?
A. I think he was on the optimistic side of the equation in terms of the performance of the stock of the combined entity after the transaction was announced and completed.

Q. When you say "the optimistic side --"
A. That the stock would perform, would reach levels higher than it was on the day of the transaction.
Q. Therefore Mr. Perelman as the ultimate beneficiary of the Sunbeam stock would yield or receive more money in the transaction?
A. That's correct.
Q. Was there ever a point in the negotiations with Sunbeam that Sunbeam or its representatives offered an all cash transaction for Coleman?
A. All cash?
Q. Yes.
A. I don't believe so. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall one way or the other or it didn't happen?
A. I don't believe it happened.
Q. Did you ever hear Mr. -- strike that.

Page 124

Did you ever hear that Mr. Levin or Levin -- let me rephrase the question.
Did you ever hear that Mr. Levin told Mr. Perelman in the strongest possible terms not to take any Sunbeam stock?
A. No.
Q. Did you hear something to the contrary?
A. No. I will tell you what I heard.
Q. Tell me what you heard.
A. I describe him as being on the other side of optimistic --
Q. The other side of optimistic?
A. The other side of the argument that the stock would necessarily go up, that it might, it might not.
Don't forget, at that point in time Perelman had been, and Gittis had been subject to some fairly erratic behavior by what's his name, Dunlap.
Q. Are you referring to the meeting at Mr. Perelman's home in Palm Beach on --
A. I am.
Q. Let's go back to Jerry Levin.

Page 125

He testified in a proceeding in this case on August 2 of 2000 under oath as follows. I am referring to page 113 of his transcript like we are taking for you today.
A. When was this?
Q. This is August 2 of 2000.
Mr. Levin testified, "I saw the build up of inventory changes to the cash flow of the company," referring to Sunbeam, "and I told Perelman in the strongest possible terms not to take any stock of this company, that is, Sunbeam, and he chose to ignore me."
That is again on page 113 of his deposition transcript.
Did you ever recall Mr. Levin ever saying anything like that to you during the negotiations?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: I think I answered that before.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. There is a difference between answering it --

A. I told you. I don't remember ever saying what you are saying.
The answer is, no.
Q. Let's set aside exactly what Mr. Levin said, that he told Mr. Perelman in the strongest possible terms.
Just focus now on conversations that you either heard or Mr. Levin spoke or you actually just spoke to Mr. Levin.
Did he ever say to you in words or expression, Jim -- you go by Jim, don't you, sir?
A. I do.
Q. And you called him Jerry, I take it?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he ever say to you, Jim, I am telling you, don't take Sunbeam stock, get cash, or something like that?
A. As I told you before, I think Levin was not as optimistic about the performance of the stock in this company and that included his view of the valuation of the stock in the marketplace at that point in time.

Q. That is Sunbeam's stock?
A. Yes.
Q. He felt the market was overvaluing Sunbeam's stock, did he not?
A. I believe that was part of his rationale.
Q. Did you as -- withdrawn.
You reported to Mr. Perelman, you told us, during this time period when the negotiations were ongoing and the agreements were signed, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you as a subalter to Mr. Perelman --
A. What does that mean?
Q. Subordinate.
A. I have a new word.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Perelman as his subalter, did you tell him what Mr. Levin's opinion was about Sunbeam's stock?
A. No.
Q. You kept that -- did you tell Mr. Gittis?
A. No. I think, in whatever manner

Page 128

I was aware that Ronald was aware of what Jerry -- that he was on the cash side of the argument.
Q. You were aware in the negotiations that Mr. Perelman was aware of Mr. Levin's views?
A. I believe he was, yes.
Q. Where were you in this range of views? Were you on the optimistic or pessimistic side of Sunbeam's stock valuation?
A. I would like to think I was on the balanced side which is it was fine to take some amount of stock because there was the prospect of putting these two companies together and having some upside but it is always prudent to take as much cash off the table as possible because I for one believe that Sunbeam's stock was at least fully valued, and Ronald, he may have been right and in perfect hindsight he was right, the stock reacted to the announcement of the merger by going up, the world thought it was a wonderful thing, and that was -- that is what he was basing his decision on.

I had a balanced point of view on it, that some amount of stock, and I frankly can't reconstruct in my own mind what I thought was a good balance, but more cash than stock was a good thing.
That is generally my view anyway.
Q. Was the balance that was struck, that is, I think it was $159 million and some change approximately in cash, 14.1 million, approximately, Sunbeam shares, was that the balance that you thought was best?
A. I don't recall -- like I said, I don't recall where I was in the equation at that point in time.
Q. Where was -- was the final balance that was struck between cash and stock Mr. Perelman's decision?
A. Well, his decision -- these things as you know are negotiations so -- was it his decision to go along -- did he endorse whatever was ultimately negotiated?
The answer is, yes, he endorsed whatever was ultimately negotiated. I don't recall whether that is what he wanted or exactly what he wanted at the time.

Q. Were you aware that certain executives of Mr. Perelman's companies sold their Coleman stock rather than accept Sunbeam's stock in the merger?
A. I was aware that Mr. Levin sold his stock at a price that was appreciably higher than the negotiated transaction price.
I guess it was before the merger had taken place, otherwise, he wouldn't have been able to do it.
Q. Were you aware that Mr. Slovin, Bruce Slovin, sold his Coleman stock, and I believe the figures are something like 51,300 shares, after the announcement of the merger; in fact, immediately after the announcement of the merger on, I believe it was, March 2, 1998?
A. I wasn't but it is -- my recollection was that the stock traded up quite a bit and the price of -- therefore the price of the Coleman stock was substantially higher than the negotiated deal.
Q. You remember that the Coleman stock went over the price of the negotiated deal?

A. Yes.
Q. How long -- withdrawn.

AFTERNOON SESSION
1:51 p.m.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record.
The time is 1:51.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Maher.
A. Good afternoon.
Q. Why did you leave MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Why?
Q. Yes.
A. Because I wanted to do something else.
Q. Any other reason?
A. No.
Q. Was your departure in any way related to the Sunbeam transaction?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any disagreements with Mr. Perelman --
A. No.
Q. -- at the time of your departure?
A. No; only that he wanted me to stay and I wanted to leave.

Page 133

Q. Let's turn to your role in the negotiations of the Coleman transaction.
I know that you attended a meeting in Mr. Perelman's home with Mr. Dunlap present, and we will eventually reach that.
Did you have some earlier meetings with representatives of Sunbeam about a potential transaction before this first meeting?
A. First of all, I didn't attend that meeting that occurred at Perelman's home with Dunlap.
Q. I misunderstood. I thought you said you did attend.
A. No. I didn't.
Q. When was the first time that you had any meeting with anyone about a transaction involving Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I think you asked me that earlier and I think I said sometime in late 1997 but I don't remember specifically.
Q. Who did you meet with?
A. I don't recall. I don't remember. I don't know whether it was a meeting or telephone call.

Q. Let me show you a document that has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley 173.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 173 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. If you will turn to the third page of this document and the date is November 6? Let me know when you are there.
A. Yes.
Q. On November 6, at least according to this document, there is another document generated by MacAndrews & Forbes' counsel that confirms this meeting. You had a meeting, it looks like, in New York with certain representatives of Sunbeam. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Did you attend this meeting on or about November 6?
A. I frankly don't remember it.
Q. You have no recollection of the meeting?

Page 135

A. No.
Q. What do you -- strike that.
Before this meeting did you know Mr. Fuchs, for example?
A. No.
Q. Did you know Mr. Kitts?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your background with Mr. Kitts?
A. I don't remember when I first met him. He worked for Morgan Stanley.
Somewhere in -- along the way I met him. I understood he was a business development fellow at Morgan Stanley. I think he called on us with ideas from time to time with companies that we should acquire.
He actually called on us trying to sell Sunbeam to us at one point in time.
Q. When was this?
A. I think during the summer of '97.
Q. Did you -- strike that.
Since you don't recall the meeting on November 6 can you tell the jury the best you can remember what happened at the first meeting that you had with any representatives of Sunbeam that was in late 1997?

A. I don't remember.
Q. Let's go forward then to your first -- your first meeting with Mr. Dunlap.
You have met him, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. When was the first time you met Mr. Albert Dunlap?
A. A good question.
I have a vague recollection of meeting him at MacAndrews & Forbes sometime -- it may have even been before he was running Sunbeam, may have been after. He had been CEO of a paper company. I have a vague recollection of some meeting but I think it was at MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. Did you meet him at all in connection with the -- either the negotiation of the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction or points in time leading up to its closing in March of 1998?
A. I don't think so. It is possible but I don't think so.

Page 137

Q. Did there come a time when you asked Mr. Nesbitt to do some initial modeling analysis of a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. It's possible.
Q. You don't have any recollection of that as you sit here today?
A. I probably did. Either I did or Ronald did or somebody probably did.
I actually saw a document in the last -- one of the documents I now recall seeing last week was a -- was a model of a combination so somebody had. Whether it was me or Perelman, I don't remember.
Q. Mr. Nesbitt at this time, late 1997, did report directly to you?
A. Yes. That doesn't mean that Howard or Ronald or Jerry couldn't have asked him.
Q. Let me show you what has been -- withdrawn.
You mentioned earlier this meeting that took place with -- excuse me -- not with but at Mr. Perelman's home in Palm Beach. Do you recall that testimony?

A. Yes.
Q. My understanding is you were not there?
A. I was not there.
Q. How did you hear about the meeting?
A. Either from Perelman or Gittis.
Q. The meeting -- let me show you a document that has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75 which is a chronology not unlike the one you may have in front of you but this one was prepared by Wachtell, Lipton.
There you go. If you will take a look at MS 75?
A. Yes.
Q. And, in particular, the December 18 date. Tell me when you are there.
A. I am there.
Q. Is that the meeting that is referred to there? Is this the meeting that you recall having heard about and having taken place in Palm Beach?

Page 139

A. I don't know whether there was that meeting or another meeting. It could well have been that meeting, yes.
Q. Let's focus -- let's use the date for December 18, 1997 for this meeting that is referred to in MS 75.
Are you with me on the date now, December 18, 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. You heard at least about a meeting between Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap from either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis, right?
A. Yes.
Q. What did Mr. Perelman -- first of all, can you -- did you hear from both gentlemen or just one?
A. I may have heard from both. I don't recall. I may have heard from them together; probably, more than likely, together.
Q. Tell me -- withdrawn.
Please tell the jury what you remember Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis telling you about the meeting with

Page 140

Mr. Dunlap on December 18, 1997.
A. Well, I can tell you what I remember about them telling me about a meeting in Florida. Whether it was the 18th or not I can't tell you. It was around that period of time. That they had met and Dunlap had made, I think, an all stock offer to acquire Coleman, Sunbeam.
Perelman told them he wasn't interested in it. At some point thereafter Dunlap got upset and stormed out of the meeting.
Q. Did you hear from Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis that Mr. Dunlap used obscenities at the meeting?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis use the term "stormed out of the meeting" to describe Mr. Dunlap's conduct?
A. That is the impression I am left with. I don't remember the exact words.
Q. Did they explain to you what -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis explain to you how Mr. Dunlap expressed being upset?

Page 141

A. I am sure they did but I don't recall what their description of that was.
Q. Let me read to you from what the plaintiffs in this case, Coleman (Parent) Holdings have said about that meeting.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Reporter if you would mark that as Exhibit 408?
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 408 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. My first question, sir, is do you have MS 408 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. This is the complaint that was filed by Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. against Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated.
If you will turn to page 37 which is on page 12?
A. Okay.
Q. The last sentence of that paragraph which carries over to page 13 describes the meeting as follows: "During the December 1997 Palm Beach meeting when CPH rejected Dunlap's initial all stock offer Dunlap became so angry that he cursed and ranted at the CPH representatives and stormed out."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that description consistent with what Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis told you?

A. Yes.

Q. They did tell you that Mr. Dunlap cursed?

A. Yes. I guess they must have. You said is this consistent --

Q. With your recollection of what they said to you.

A. Consistent, ranted, cursed.

Q. Would you describe this as a friendly meeting between the parties?

A. Well, I think it started out as a friendly meeting and ended up somewhat unfriendly or less than friendly.

I think they were just aghast. They weren't hostile. I don't think their attitude was unfriendly. They were just sort of surprised.

Page 143

Q. Surprised at Mr. Dunlap's conduct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you refer to Mr. Dunlap as being unstable earlier in your testimony?

A. Unstable? I think I used another word but I don't remember exactly what I said. I don't think it was unstable.

I think "erratic" was the word. I think erratic.

Q. Erratic behavior?

A. Yes.

Q. You were referring to Mr. Dunlap?

A. Yes.

Q. You were referring when you used the word "erratic behavior" to his behavior at this meeting that is described in the complaint?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you advised of Mr. Dunlap's behavior shortly after the meeting as opposed to six months later, for example?

A. Oh, yes, sometime shortly thereafter.

Certainly -- I don't recall

Page 144

whether it was the next Monday or -- because I may have been gone.

Q. Let me ask you this, sir.

You had had some discussions about a Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman before the meeting at Mr. Perelman's home in Palm Beach, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. As of -- let's assume the meeting was December 18 for purposes of -- for the record here.

Would you -- could you tell the jury how many meetings you had had with Sunbeam or Sunbeam representatives about a possible transaction?

A. Not many.

Q. Had you done any due diligence by the time of Sunbeam -- by the time of the meeting in Mr. Perelman's home where Mr. Dunlap exhibited this erratic behavior?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Had you reviewed any documents from -- that had been prepared by Morgan Stanley that you can remember?

A. I had -- at some point in time in 1997 Morgan Stanley gave us a presentation that I think they were using as a document to try to sell Sunbeam and I remember looking at that sometime earlier in the year.

Page 145

Q. Earlier in the year 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see that document in your deposition preparation?

A. I don't think so. It doesn't mean I didn't but -- I may have.

Q. Let's focus on documents relating to a possible purchase of Coleman.

A. Okay.

Q. Up to the meeting in Mr. -- let me start again. Withdrawn.

Up to the time of the meeting with Mr. Perelman in Palm Beach had you seen any documents prepared by Morgan Stanley that related to a purchase transaction involving Coleman?

A. Purchase of Coleman by?

Q. Sunbeam.

A. I don't think so.

Q. Had anyone -- my understanding --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. There was this meeting that is listed on my calendar. It may be there was something in that meeting. I just don't know.
Q. I don't believe there is any meeting listed on your calendar for that time period.
A. Or you have it on the chronology.
Q. That is not your calendar. That is not something you said. That is something somebody else said.
A. Okay.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 374.
I state for the record I am not sure whether that one has been previously marked so we will mark it again if we have to.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 374 marked for identification)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I have handed what you has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley 374 or marked in this deposition, if that be the case.

Do you have that in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. This is a document that supplements another document for the record previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75.
If you will look at the second page, Wachtell, Lipton's attorney, Paul K. Rowe, writes, "There should be an entry for November 6, 1997."
Do you see that entry?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you please read it to yourself and tell me when you are done?
A. I have.
Q. Does that entry by -- refresh your recollection in any way when you first met with Sunbeam representatives about a possible acquisition of Coleman?
A. It does. It says we met with Morgan Stanley on a variety of matters. It wasn't just a Sunbeam meeting so that would make it more consistent.
I couldn't remember an event where it was just Sunbeam.

Q. This entry as I see it on November 6 is -- refers to general business opportunities or potential business opportunities but it specifically refers to an acquisition of Sunbeam by MacAndrews.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. You earlier had said that you thought your first communication with Sunbeam was about a possible purchase of Sunbeam by MacAndrews & Forbes; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you believe this -- based on your recollection of events and having now looked at this document, do you believe November 6, 1997 was the first time you had such a meeting with representatives of Sunbeam about a buy or sell transaction?
A. No.
Q. You think there was something before November?
A. I do.
Q. In any event, sometime between November 6, 1997 and the meeting at

Mr. Perelman's house in Palm Beach the transaction discussions, to the extent we can call them that, had shifted to Sunbeam making a purchase of the -- of Coleman; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In between November 6, 1997 and the meeting at Mr. Perelman's home in Palm Beach you gave Mr. Nesbitt certain instructions, did you not, to do some analysis of a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. There was an analysis done. I don't know whether I gave him instructions or Perelman did or Gittis or somebody else. I don't recall.
Q. Mr. Nesbitt would not have done such a modeling analysis on his own, would he?
A. No. I think that sort of covered the waterfront; Perelman, myself or Gittis, probably, or Levin.
Q. You can hand 408 back to me and I will put that away and get that out of your way.

Let me show you what we will mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Is this one of the documents that you saw in your deposition preparation?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. This document, which Mr. Nesbitt testified he prepared, it is a document that is -- the title is Sunbeam/Coleman Comparison; do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Having looked at this document did you instruct Mr. Nesbitt to prepare this?
A. I already told you that I didn't recall specifically instructing him to prepare this. It doesn't mean I didn't.
Q. Looking at the documents, sir, there -- do you know the source of the figures that appear on this document?
A. I don't.
Q. Did you discuss it with

Page 151

Mr. Nesbitt after he prepared it?
A. I don't recall having a specific discussion. I probably did though.
Q. Did Mr. Nesbitt receive an assignment from someone at MacAndrews & Forbes to do modeling analysis in advance of the meeting with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman later in December of 1997?
A. What was the last part of that?
Q. Why don't I repeat the question for you?
Did Mr. Nesbitt receive an assignment from someone at MacAndrews & Forbes to do a modeling analysis in advance of the meeting with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman that occurred later in December 1997?
A. I said already I assume that is what happened.
Q. There are certain cost savings that are assumed in the merger consequences portion of this document which appears on page 3. They are in the -- towards the bottom in the boxed area. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.

Page 152

Q. There are two figures used, 40 million and 60 million. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Did you provide these figures to Mr. Nesbitt?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall one way or the other?
A. Right.
Q. Do I read this correctly that there are certain prices per share that are set out across the top of the document, $22, $24, 26, 28 and $30. That is what those --
A. Yes.
Q. Those are price per share for Coleman stock, right?
A. That is what it appears to be.
Q. Do you know where Mr. Nesbitt got those figures?
A. I do not.
Q. The current Coleman price is listed as $15.25 at the top of this document as of December 8, 1997. Do you see that?

Page 153

A. Yes.
Q. Does that square with your recollection of what Coleman was trading at at this time?
A. More or less.
Q. So, someone was planning, according to -- withdrawn.
As I read the document there are various merger consequences to Sunbeam assuming pooling treatment is not available and that is pooling treatment versus purchase accounting, right?
A. Yes.
Q. That at various price levels you are trying to determine whether the transaction is accretive or dilutive to Sunbeam, right?
A. Yes.
Q. The conclusion you reach is that with no cost savings even at $22 a share the transaction is dilutive, correct?
A. Without -- yes, without pooling treatment.
Q. Pooling treatment wasn't available from an accounting standpoint at this time, was it?

A. Well, you have a calculation just below that excludes goodwill.
Q. You can calculate anything you want but from an accounting standpoint pooling treatment was no longer permitted as of this date, was it?
A. I don't remember.
Q. You don't remember the date it was no longer available?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
Am I correct -- can you tell the jury what the first -- the first point, considering both stock price of Coleman and savings, if you will, the transaction became accretive to Sunbeam?
A. Could you ask me that question again? Sorry.
Q. Using the Coleman share price as one variable and cost savings, if you will, what is the first point in time in which the transaction would become accretive to Sunbeam?
MR. MARKOWSKI: As shown on this document?

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Yes, as shown on the document prepared by Mr. Nesbitt.
A. The first point?
Q. Yes.
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. You don't understand the question.
The way I read it, $22 a share, for example, I look at this and I can say if there is cost savings assumed of $40 million it becomes an accretive transaction at 8 cents per share. Am I reading it right?
A. Yes. That is not what you asked me.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Can I have the question back please? Sorry.
(Record read)
MR. MARKOWSKI: Thank you.
THE WITNESS: At 8 cents per share? Of 8 cents per share; not at, of.
BY MR. BEMIS:

Page 156

Q. It is accretive in that the transaction adds 8 cents per share to the combined value of the companies, correct?
A. Combined earnings of the company.
Q. Combined earnings, excuse me.
A. Yes.
Q. Then I can -- if, however, I assume a price of $28 a share also with cost savings of $40 million the transaction is dilutive to the extent of 11 cents per share; is that right?
A. From an earnings per share standpoint, that is correct.
Q. This document was -- to your knowledge, did Morgan Stanley provide any of the information that went into Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104?
A. I don't know the answer to that.
Q. Turn to the last page. Do you recognize the handwriting there?
A. No.
Q. Having reviewed Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104 do you -- do you have now any recollection of asking Mr. Nesbitt to do a Sunbeam-Coleman comparison such as you are looking at now?

A. No.
Q. Not at any point in time?
A. No, but I said that, I think, three or four times already.
Q. I think it is three or four times. I also hadn't shown you this document before.
A. But I said I saw this document a few days ago.
Q. You didn't say that until I showed it to you. Let's not quarrel about that. Let's move on.
My understanding is you are telling the jury as you sit here today that you have no recollection of telling William Nesbitt, the man who worked for you, he was a subalter to you, in effect, you have no recollection of telling him to do any modeling analysis of the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction; is that right?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I have no recollection of telling him to -- specifically to do a model for the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction.

Page 158

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Did you ever --
A. In late 1997. It may very well be that I told him. It may very well be that Mr. Perelman asked him to do it. It may very well be that Mr. Gittis asked him, that somebody else asked him. All of those are possible.
Q. Let -- hand that one back to me.
Did you ever tell Mr. Nesbitt -- withdrawn.
As you sit here today Morgan Stanley 104 which had certain cost saving figures, so-called synergies, incorporated into the analysis -- you agree those cost savings are called synergies in your business?
A. Generally, yes.
Q. Did you ever tell Mr. Nesbitt for purposes of his modeling what synergies to assume in a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't recall telling him. I don't recall telling him to do the analysis

Page 159

so I don't --
Q. Did you ever tell Mr. Nesbitt at any time up until the signing of the merger agreements to do any type of analysis that assumed a Sunbeam-Coleman comparison or transaction as set forth in MS 104 and to assume certain prices for Coleman stock such as the $22, $24, $26, $28 and $30 in Exhibit 104?
A. Can I have it back?
Q. You may.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read that question please?
MR. BEMIS: I will ask the question again now that he has the exhibit in front of him.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I have given you back Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104.
On page 3 we see certain prices on a per share basis for Coleman ranging from $22 to $30 in $2 increments, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Is it your testimony to the jury that having looked at Morgan Stanley

Page 160

Exhibit 104 that did you not give these figures to Mr. Nesbitt?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: It is my testimony that I don't recall telling Mr. Nesbitt to use specific share prices or specific amounts of synergies or cost savings.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You can hand that back to me.
I hand you what has been marked previously in Mr. Nesbitt's deposition as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 105.
Q. Mr. Nesbitt testified that he prepared Exhibit 104 at your direction.
Can you think of any reason why he would lie about that?
A. Absolutely not. I told you that I thought it was a distinct possibility.
Q. He also testified that he gave you, that is, Mr. Nesbitt, gave you Exhibit 104 after he prepared it.
Can you think of any reason he would lie about it?

Page 161

A. Absolutely not.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Mr. Maher, we were looking at Exhibit 105 and you have that in front of you, right?
A. MS 105.
Q. Did you -- withdrawn.
This document, MS 105, has a date of December 10, 1997 which Mr. Nesbitt told us earlier in a deposition it was a date that it was at least printed.
Do you see the dates in the upper right-hand corner?
A. I do.
Q. Did you receive this document from Mr. Nesbitt?
A. I may have.
Q. Why would you be looking at this document if you got it from Mr. Nesbitt?
A. Why?
Q. Yes. Why would you look at it?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

THE WITNESS: Well, as I think I told you earlier, sometime in late '97 the notion of a Sunbeam-Coleman transaction came up and since Mr. Nesbitt did this work and that was a prospect of a transaction why wouldn't I look at it, I guess, is my question.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Someone, Mr. Nesbitt in this case, was looking at the consequences of a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction, right?
A. Clearly.
Q. The information that is in this document is information that MacAndrews & Forbes collected, correct?
A. That I don't know the answer to.
Q. It is your testimony --
A. It says -- Will Nesbitt collected it from somewhere.
Q. It is your testimony you don't know where the information came from that appears in Exhibit 105 because Mr. Nesbitt collected it?
A. That's correct.

Page 163

Q. If Mr. Nesbitt told us where it came from he would be the person we could rely upon to know where the information came from, right?
A. I would think that to be the case.
Q. You relied on Mr. Nesbitt to gather whatever information he put into these comparisons, correct?
A. I would think that also would be the case.
Q. Hand that back to me.
Before we get on to the next two exhibits, do you recall at any point in the negotiations with Sunbeam providing any of MacAndrews & Forbes internal analyses of the financial effects of a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman to Sunbeam?
A. I don't think so. I think we may have -- there may have been some pieces of paper that said if you do the transaction with X number of shares it would have this impact.
There may have been something -- there were several meetings and we may have produced something. I am not sure or we may have just worked off of the documents. I don't recall.

Q. Is it fair to say during the course of the negotiations that MacAndrews & Forbes was preparing its own internal analyses of the financial consequences of a transaction with Sunbeam?
A. Well, you have an example that you just showed me, sure.
The answer is, yes.
Q. When you said the answer is, yes, you were referring to Morgan Stanleys 104 and 105 that we just looked at, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you two other exhibits.
I will start with Morgan Stanley Exhibit 106 previously marked at Mr. Nesbitt's deposition.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Markowski, could you hand it to the witness?
Thank you.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Would you please look at Exhibit

Page 165

106 and tell me when you are done?
A. What do you want me to look to? Look at the whole thing?
Q. Look at it so you are comfortable and I will ask you á couple of questions.
A. I think it is -- there is quite a bit of information here so -- okay.
Q. If you look at the first page it has a run date, if you will, of January 26, 1998. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Did you -- and Mr. Nesbitt has testified that he did prepare MS 106. I would ask you to accept that for our purposes right now.
A. Yes.
Q. My question is: Did you ask him to prepare it?
A. I don't recall specifically but I may have.
Q. The first page of this document continues in the fashion that -- of MS 104 and 105 with having prices for Coleman stock and certain cost savings resulting in an analysis of whether there is a pro forma accretion or dilution of the company's earnings per share?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you provide Mr. Nesbitt with the merger consequence cost savings of $100 million?
A. No. I don't think I provided it. I think it was a number -- there had -- there had been a discussion by then between Levin and Kersh and Page and Fannin about cost savings.
Somewhere along the way I think there may have been a discussion by that point in time. If there hadn't been, or maybe if there hadn't been there was one shortly thereafter.
Q. To your knowledge was -- withdrawn.
Did you participate in any of these discussions about cost savings?
A. Between Coleman and Sunbeam?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. I don't think so.
Q. Do you remember -- strike that.
Did you receive a copy of MS 106

at some point before the signing of the merger agreements on February 28, 1998?
A. It looks somewhat familiar. I can't tell you whether I did or didn't but it looks familiar.
Q. Did you rely upon this in your negotiations with Sunbeam?
A. Rely upon it?
Q. Sure, the information.
A. The math?
Q. The merger consequences.
A. The math, the number of shares, all of the math added up.
Q. All of the math, all of the assumptions, all of the adjustments, for example, which appear on page 2. There are 1998 --
A. I can't tell you whether I specifically relied on these numbers, Morgan Stanley produced numbers.
There were lots of numbers produced. I can't tell you whether I specifically relied on this set of numbers or not.
Q. As you sit here today you can't tell me what set of numbers you relied upon in going forward with the merger transaction and the execution of the documents thereon on February 28?

A. I can't tell you whether this set of numbers was the numbers I relied upon.
Don't forget, this was an iterative process in terms of we started with some numbers that Will worked on I guess in early December. These are further refined.
I can't tell you at what point in time we sort of buttoned what the analysis was.
Q. At some point you do in your mind button up the analysis; is that right?
A. I assume so.
Q. Let me show you Exhibit 107 -- let's take a break and change the tape.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 2:42.
This completes tape number two.
(Pause)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record.

Page 169

This begins tape number three.
The time is 2:52.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me show you what the court reporter has previously marked as MS 107.
A. This is what we just had.
Q. They lookalike. There is a slight difference in the two documents.
Do you have Exhibit MS 107 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. In this document Mr. Nesbitt uses cost savings of $150 million. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Do you know where he obtained that figure?
A. I don't.
Q. Did you see MS 107 after Mr. Nesbitt prepared it?
A. I probably did.
Q. Did you discuss it with Mr. Nesbitt?
A. I -- if I saw it I probably did discuss it.

Q. As you sit here today can you tell the jury whether you discussed it with Mr. Nesbitt?
A. I cannot tell you definitively that I discussed it with him.
Q. Did you provide a copy of MS 107 to anyone at Morgan Stanley?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you provide a copy of Exhibit MS 107 to anyone at Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Sir, we have looked at four spreadsheets prepared by Mr. Nesbitt and they are Exhibits MS 104 through 107 and you have 107 in front of you, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. With regard to all four of these exhibits --
A. The two early ones and these two later ones in early December, late January?
Q. Correct.
With regard to those four exhibits, MS 104 through 107, do you have any recollection as you sit here today of discussing them with Mr. Nesbitt?

Page 171

A. A recollection of a discussion?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Do you have any recollection as you sit here today of providing any of those exhibits, MS 104 through 107, to Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any recollection of, as you sit here today, of providing any of those exhibits to Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Did you provide them to your investment bankers at this time, Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you rely upon the calculation of Mr. Nesbitt in MS 104 through 107 in, as you were putting it, buttoning up the numbers?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I think I am sure I took into consideration the information here.

Page 172

I don't think there is -- this is a series of assumptions involving different amounts of cash, different stock prices, different values of the transaction, different savings.
I am sure that all of that input had some influence on my decision-making process, yes.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
A. It probably had more influence on what I thought Sunbeam could actually legitimately afford to pay as opposed to anything else.
Q. Did I hear you correctly that you used Exhibits MS 104 through 107 to determine what Sunbeam could actually legitimately afford to pay for Coleman?
A. As one indicia, yes.
Q. There comes a point in time when Credit Suisse First Boston is retained as Coleman's exclusive investment adviser, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you participate in that decision?

Page 173

A. I probably participated to some degree. Either it was kicked around or I think Credit Suisse First Boston had done a lot of work on a lot of Coleman business anyway. I think they were probably the natural investment bank to hire but I don't recall specifically having discussion about hiring them versus hiring somebody else.
Q. Who made the call to Credit Suisse First Boston and said we would like to retain you?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Who would have had the responsibility to do that?
A. It could have been Howard.
Q. Howard Gittis?
A. Yes. It could have been Jerry, it could have been -- it also could have been me. It could have been Ronald.
Q. Ronald, Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever have any discussions -- withdrawn?
A. It might not have been a call. They might have been there.

Page 174

Q. Would they just hang around Mr. Perelman's offices?
A. They could have been there for some other reason.
Q. I am going to hand you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 77 which is a multi-page document with the logo of Chase and Chase Securities, Inc. on it.
Please take a minute and look at it and tell me when you are done. I just have a few questions.
Have you ever seen MS 77 before?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did Chase Securities make a presentation to MacAndrews & Forbes about a possible Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. It looks like they did.
Q. Did you attend the presentation?
A. I don't recall attending it. This doesn't ring a bell.
Q. Do you know who requested that Chase do such a presentation?
A. I don't. I don't know that anybody requested it.

Page 175

Q. Do you know who would have told Chase Securities that there was even a transaction under consideration?
A. I don't. Maybe they thought it was a good idea.
Q. "They" being Chase?
A. Yes.
Q. Thought what was a good idea?
A. That combination of Sunbeam and Coleman.
Q. Are you suggesting that they pitched the deal to you?
A. No. I wasn't suggesting it. I just suggested that that was a possibility.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
Let me hand you what has previously been marked in Mr. Nesbitt's deposition as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 353.
Do you have that exhibit in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Have you seen it before?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any -- go ahead.
A. I don't believe I have seen it before.
Q. Did you have any discussions within MacAndrews & Forbes about this time about a possible transaction with Black & Decker after there was a Sunbeam-Coleman combination of some kind?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You can hand it back to me if you don't remember.
A. Sure.
Q. Let me see 165.
I hand you what has been marked in another deposition Morgan Stanley Exhibit 165. Please take a look at it.
Do you have that exhibit in front of you, sir?
A. I do.
Q. Have you seen it before?
A. It looks similar to some of the other information. I think it was 104, 105.
Q. There are exhibits with those numbers. I leave it to others to say whether they are similar.
This document is entitled Sunbeam

Page 177

Quarterly Earnings Comparison and then there are some obviously additional calculations on the other pages.
My question is: Did you get this?
A. I don't recall seeing this before. It doesn't mean I didn't get it.
Q. Tell me something. When Mr. Nesbitt sent you things did you read them?
A. Generally, yes.
Q. What do you mean by that; generally, yes?
A. Well, I mean what I said. Generally, yes. He might have sent me an article on some company. I might have chosen not to read it.
Q. Let's assume he sent you something on Sunbeam in a Coleman transaction and he said he sent it to you. Would you have read it?
A. Probably.
Q. It is more likely than not that if Mr. Nesbitt sent you something on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction you would have taken the time to read it, right?

A. Probably.
Q. According to Mr. Nesbitt, and I am looking at the bullet points under the heading Fourth Quarter Issues, he writes, as follows: "Uptick in third quarter receivables supposedly relates to one half of quarter sales being shipped in September."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Based on your -- withdrawn.
Did you understand that to mean that one half of Sunbeam's sales at least in the third quarter were in the last month of that quarter?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I didn't -- I don't remember seeing this so I don't know if I saw it. I don't know what I thought at that point.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Is that what it means to you now when you read it? Withdrawn.

Page 179

You can hand it back to me. We will rely on Mr. Nesbitt. Thank you, sir.
Up to -- did you ask Mr. Nesbitt to do the work that we just looked at in Exhibit 165?
A. Was that the exhibit I just handed back?
Q. Yes, sir; the one you just handed back to me.
A. I don't specifically recall asking him to do that work, no.
Q. He has done -- Mr. Nesbitt did spreadsheets we looked at for December 8 and then he did, a couple of days later he did another set of spreadsheets that we looked at as Exhibits 106 through 107.
Now we see on 165 on December 11 another set of analyses by Mr. Nesbitt.
You have now looked at all those documents, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell the jury whether that in any way refreshes your recollection of what MacAndrews & Forbes was doing concerning a financial analysis of a

Page 180

Sunbeam-Coleman transaction at this point in December of 1997?
A. What did you just ask me? Which question do you want me to answer?
Q. There was really only one question there if you were listening.
I have shown you multiple documents Mr. Nesbitt prepared in December of 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Nesbitt reported to you?
A. Yes.
Q. You read what Mr. Nesbitt sends to you if it relates to Coleman-Sunbeam; at least probably you read it, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. My question to you is can you tell the jury, having looked at all those documents, five, in fact, of Mr. Nesbitt's analysis, what MacAndrews & Forbes was doing by way of a financial analysis of a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction in December of 1997?
A. You just showed me the documents. That is the analysis that was being done apparently.

Q. That is the only analysis, right?
A. No, not necessarily.
Q. Do you know of any other? Can you tell the jury any other?
A. In December of 1997, no, I don't know of any other. It doesn't mean it isn't being done.
Q. It doesn't mean it is not going to snow today.
A. It certainly will snow somewhere.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Hold on. We don't need to respond to that. That is an improper comment.
MR. BEMIS: I didn't mean to be improper.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Somehow I doubt that.
MR. BEMIS: I am sure you do.

been more than one meeting where the second page was discussed.
MR. BEMIS: May have been.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Are you referring to the December 12 meeting?
MR. BEMIS: I am referring to the meeting where this document was discussed.
The prior testimony, as I understand it, had discussed one meeting between the parties. If I am wrong then I am wrong.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I think you are wrong. Your own documents I think prove you wrong.
MR. BEMIS: I am not hear to take your deposition.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am trying to clarify if you are asking about a particular meeting or not.
I still don't know so I will object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: Let me answer.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me put the question again to solve Mr. Markowski's concern.

Page 184

There is a reference to a meeting that took place on a Friday which the record will reflect was December 12, 1997.
Did you attend that meeting?
A. I believe there was a meeting that related to cost savings that took place -- it actually did take place on a Friday. I don't remember the exact date. And it was, I believe, at least the first meeting, was I think Levin, Kersh, Page and Fannin, something like that. There was a meeting. I don't know if this was specifically discussed.
This document I had seen before, I have seen at some point in time. There were discussions about it with Levin so there wasn't just one meeting where this document was discussed.
Q. Did you attend the meeting that is on December 12?
A. I don't know.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 75.
A. There were -- I think there were several meetings on the synergies.

Page 185

There was one I referred to several times which was Levin, Kersh, several other people but I was not at that meeting. I believe that was the initial discussion of synergies.
Q. You say you were not at that meeting?
A. I was not at that meeting.
Q. I am not clear.
Did you say you did attend more than one meeting on synergies or you only attended one?
A. I had discussions with Levin, Jerry, about synergies.
Q. Fair enough.
Let's talk about a meeting with Sunbeam representatives and MacAndrews & Forbes representatives.
How many such meetings where synergies were discussed did you attend?
A. The one I remember that I have a clear recollection that it took place was a Friday meeting with Page, Levin, Kersh and I don't know whether Fannin was there or not.

015809

There may have been a later meeting in which a number of other people were at in -- I have a vague recollection of being at some meeting where synergies were discussed where the Sunbeam people may have been. Vague.
Q. Let me hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 75 which is a chronology that was prepared by MacAndrews & Forbes counsel in this case.
Turn to --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Do you have a copy for the witness?
MR. BEMIS: I had already given you a copy earlier. I have another copy.
MR. MARKOWSKI: If I have got it I will weed it out.
THE WITNESS: I have it. 75. I still got 75. Wachtell, Lipton 75. Got it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. All right. We all have a copy of MS 75 in front of us?

Page 187

A. Yes.
Q. Turn to December 12, 1997. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend the first meeting that is referred to in that -- in the chronology?
A. On the 12th?
Q. On the 12th of December.
A. No.
Q. It says later in the day there was a meeting?
A. I think that is what I was referring to before.
Q. That is the meeting you are referring to?
A. Yes.
Q. So the record is clear, going down the chronology in MS 75 under December 12 there is a meeting later in that day where Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, yourself, Mr. Rich of Credit Suisse First Boston and Mr. Levin had a discussion about a potential transaction; is that right?
A. That sounds right.

Q. After the synergies meeting, if you will, on December 12, which you did not attend; is that right; you did not attend that meeting?
A. I don't believe I did.
Q. You then met and you had a discussion as described in MS 75, right?
A. That is my recollection.
Q. What was discussed?
A. I think it was a discussion -- as I recall the meeting had taken place earlier and what the -- what Levin thought, what the people from Sunbeam thought and what -- I think it was a discussion, a summary of a meeting that took place earlier in the day.
Q. What did Mr. Levin say he thought? Do you remember what anyone said about what they thought?
A. No, not specifically.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: I don't remember what anybody said specifically.
BY MR. BEMIS:

Page 189

Q. Do you remember anything that Mr. Perelman said?
A. No.
Q. Did you discuss anything about Morgan Stanley at the meeting?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. To your knowledge -- withdrawn.
The chronology does not show Morgan Stanley attending the meeting on December 12 that preceded your meeting with Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis and Mr. Levin, if I have everyone properly attending; is that right?
A. I think that is right.
Q. As of this point in time, December 12, when you met with Mr. Perelman, et cetera, as we described, had you been provided with any documents by Morgan Stanley?
I should qualify that by saying regarding an acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam, not the other way around.
A. We were provided with documents by Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam prior to the 12th.

Page 190

Q. You are talking about the documents -- let me finish -- that you described earlier where you were being asked about a possible acquisition of Sunbeam by Coleman or by MacAndrews, excuse me?
A. That's correct.
Q. Focusing on just specifically a transaction whereby Sunbeam would acquire Coleman, as of the December 12 meeting had you been, to your knowledge, been provided with any documents by Morgan Stanley?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Had you had any -- had you personally had any meetings with anyone from Morgan Stanley about such a transaction and that is where Sunbeam acquired Coleman?
A. Well, there was that earlier meeting, I forgot what the date was, that we talked about before in which Morgan Stanley mentioned the possibility of us acquiring Sunbeam.
Q. Yes. I was excluding that.
Let me try again.

Page 191

You have told us there was a meeting earlier which we think was about November 6 of 1997 where there were discussions of MacAndrews purchasing Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. That was rejected, was it not, by MacAndrews?
A. Yes. It had been rejected before because it had been brought up before.
Q. Up to December 12 had you received any documents from Morgan Stanley about a potential transaction where Sunbeam would acquire Coleman whether for stock or cash or some combination?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. When you met with Mr. Perelman on December 12 and Credit Suisse First Boston did you discuss any of the work that Mr. Nesbitt had done to -- by that time as reflected in Exhibits Morgan Stanley 104 and 105?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Is the next thing -- withdrawn.
Was the document that is attached to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 78, the synergies list, was that document provided to Credit Suisse First Boston at the meeting on December 12 that you had with Credit Suisse, Mr. Perelman and Mr. Levin?

Page 192

A. This document with writing on it?
Q. No. Exclude the writing, sir.
A. I don't -- I don't remember specifically but I imagine it was.
Q. You can set that aside.
Did you request Mr. Nesbitt to obtain information about Mr. Dunlap's employment contract with Sunbeam?
A. I remember there was some discussion about Dunlap's employment contract but I don't know whether I brought it up or whether somebody else did.
I just -- I don't know what relevance it had. I do recall there was some discussion about his employment contract.
Q. Let me show you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 224.
I have handed you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 224 which Mr. Nesbitt told us that he prepared on or about December 15, 1997.

Did you receive a copy of this document from Mr. Nesbitt?
A. It says it was copied to me. I probably did.
Q. What prompted -- strike that.
Did you request that Mr. Nesbitt research Mr. Dunlap's employment contract with Sunbeam?
A. I don't specifically recall requesting this, no. I don't know whether Will did it on his own or whether I asked for it or Perelman or Gittis.
Q. Did you have -- withdrawn.
Did you have a meeting with any of the people at MacAndrews after you received a copy of this memorandum to discuss the information gathered by Mr. Nesbitt?
A. No. I don't recall it.
There may have been one but I don't recall a meeting specifically to discuss this.

Q. Do you know why Mr. Nesbitt would have been looking for information about Mr. Dunlap's contract with Sunbeam?
A. I don't actually.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
If you look at MS 75 again which is the chronology -- I hope you have it still out there -- there is a reference to a meeting with CSFB on that date, December 16, 1997.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. You are identified as attending that meeting. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Did you attend the meeting?
A. I assume so.
Q. Do you have any recollection as you sit here today of attending a meeting?
A. Well, I can't tell you if it was on that specific date but I do remember having this cast of characters together at some point in time in December.
Q. What was the reason why these characters gathered at this time?

A. To discuss a possible transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam. I think there was -- there was a meeting scheduled between Perelman, Gittis and Dunlap for that weekend.
Q. Was this meeting in anticipation of that meeting?
A. I believe so.
Q. That was a terrible question.
Was the meeting on December 16 in anticipation of the meeting that was upcoming between Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap in Palm Beach?
A. I believe so.
Q. Was there a discussion at this meeting, that is, December 16, concerning a price that Mr. Perelman would seek to obtain for his company's interest in Coleman?
A. There may have been but I don't recall it.
Q. As of the meeting that took place at Mr. Perelman's home which we believe is December 18, 1997, you had not received any documents from Morgan Stanley with regard to Sunbeam buying Coleman; is that correct?

A. I don't believe so.
Q. You don't believe you had received any documents, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You, yourself, at least as of that meeting, had not had any face-to-face meetings with Morgan Stanley concerning specifically Sunbeam buying Coleman?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. By December 18 -- we will move forward hopefully to the meeting in west Palm Beach -- withdrawn.
There is another meeting on December 17, 1997. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Was this in effect a continuation of the discussions that started on December 16?
A. I assume so.
Q. Again, in preparation for the meeting at Mr. Perelman's home?
A. I assume so.
Q. Up to -- withdrawn.
As of December 17 you had already retained Credit Suisse First Boston, correct?

A. That is what it says here.
Q. You had in your possession at that time, whether you looked at them or not, documents Mr. Nesbitt had created, Exhibits MS 104 and 105 that we looked at, right?
A. I think so.
Q. You also had done some or had received some research from Credit Suisse First Boston, had you not, about Sunbeam?
A. I may have.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked -- give me one second here.
These are pretty bulky but I am going to hand you real quickly a document that we previously marked as Morgan Stanley 76.
Do you need a copy, Mr. Markowski?
MR. MARKOWSKI: That is fine.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have MS 76 in front of you, sir?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0151812

Page 198

A. I do.
Q. These documents have a December 1997 date on them.
I think they have been identified as having been provided on -- sometime in December of 1997.
Have you seen these documents before?
A. They look -- I mean, it seems like something that First Boston would have delivered to us around that point in time.
Q. Were these documents provided by Credit Suisse First Boston in anticipation of the meeting with Mr. Dunlap at Mr. Perelman's home?
A. I assume so. I can only assume so.
Q. Did you review this package when you received it from Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Assuming that I did, I can't imagine I wouldn't have reviewed it.
Q. You can hand it back to me. I don't have anymore questions about it. You are free to look at it some more if you want.

A. I was just curious as to what it was.
Q. At the two meetings on December 16 and 17 that we have been talking about in anticipation of the meeting between Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman in Palm Beach was there a discussion by the MacAndrews group about a deal structure such as cash, combination of cash and stock or all cash, or, excuse me, all stock?
A. I don't specifically recall the discussion at that meeting so it is hard for me to sort of say what went on but on the other hand I can't imagine that that wasn't a topic of discussion.
Q. Was there a Coleman price per share that had been decided upon as a starting point for negotiations with Mr. Dunlap that took place at Mr. Perelman's home?
A. No. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you have a bottom figure that you were considering?
A. No.

Page 200

Q. Did you discuss --
A. Trying to ever get a bottom number out of Perelman is impossible.
Q. Did Mr. -- strike that.
Did the parties on December 16 or 17 at these preparatory meetings discuss the amount of cost savings or synergies that would be necessary in order for a transaction to be doable between the two parties at a price Mr. Perelman would accept?
A. No.
Q. Had CSFB done any analysis by the December 18 meeting similar in any way to what Mr. Nesbitt had done in Exhibits MS 104 and 105?
A. They may have. I don't know. They may have.
Q. If they did you don't recall it as you sit here today; is that fair?
A. That's fair.
Q. That takes us to the meeting at Mr. Perelman's home which we have already covered, so how did matters -- how did matters stand after the meeting with

Page 201

Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap which ended up in Mr. Dunlap storming out of the meeting as you put it?
A. I think my recollection is the best way to describe it is, that was interesting, let's move on, that is over.
Any transaction with Sunbeam was dead and gone.
Q. As of December 18, as you put it, things were dead and done?
A. I said dead and gone but dead and done works too.
Q. I note that in the chronology for December 18 the transaction price range that Mr. Dunlap indicated was 18 to $22 per share.
Do you see that on your copy of MS 75?
A. Yes, I did see that, yes.
Q. According to MacAndrews' attorneys, Wachtell, Lipton, they told the Securities and Exchange Commission that Mr. Perelman advised Mr. Dunlap that the price was too low and he would not be prepared to support a transaction at that price. Do you see that?

01583

Page 202

A. I do.
Q. Going into this meeting on December 18 is it your testimony that you had not had any discussions where you participated where Mr. Perelman indicated a price where he would be prepared to support a transaction?
A. That is not my testimony.
I don't know whether he indicated a price at which he was willing to support a transaction, I don't remember, but what I did say is I would guarantee you I would never know what his minimum price was.
Q. Had he indicated any price?
A. I don't recall. I really don't.
Q. When you were doing your negotiations with --
A. It is not -- it would be unlike Ronald Perelman to indicate a price. It is just unlike him.
Q. What do you mean by that, unlike him to do that?
A. Because he -- to indicate a price would indicate a level at which he was willing to do something.

When you got there you got there. You wouldn't know a level at which he was prepared to do it. He wasn't going to say my bottom line is X.
That is not his style.
Q. There did come a point in time where you did tell Sunbeam representatives that there was indeed a price that Mr. Perelman would be prepared to support, did you not?
A. Yes, eventually.
Q. Let's move forward from December 18.
At that point, as I understand your testimony, you are telling the jury the deal was done, it was dead in the water at least as of that time?
A. Yes.
Q. When does the -- when does the deal as it eventually emerges resurface?
A. Sometime in January, in part because I am looking at the chronology here.
It says early January he called and said Sunbeam was still interested in doing a transaction and I guess the net result of that was that they set up a meeting.

Q. There is an entry on the chronology and by McAndrews' counsel that Mr. Price called Mr. Gittis to indicate that Sunbeam might be willing to consider a transaction valued as high as $25 per Coleman share. Mr. Gittis indicated that a proposal at that level would not be of interest.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you know about that call?
A. In advance of the call?
Q. Well, we could ask that but I was actually thinking about after the call took place.
A. At some point in time after the call took place I knew about that, yes.
Q. Did Mr. Gittis tell you about that?
A. I frankly don't know who told me about it, Gittis or Perelman.

Page 205

Q. Somebody told you?
A. Somebody, yes.
Q. What they told you was Sunbeam was willing to go as high as $25 a share; is that right?
A. That is what it says here.
Q. You were on your way to Aspen, as I recall, on December 22, according to your calendar?
A. Is that what my calendar says, the 22nd?
Q. Yes. That is what you told me earlier today.
A. On the 22nd?
Q. On the 22nd. I don't know whether you were in the plane on the 22nd but that is what you told me.
A. Whatever my calendar says is probably right.
Q. Let me get MS 86 out again and make sure we don't have that wrong.
Do you have a copy of your calendar still in front of you or did I pick it up?
A. I think you picked it up.

Page 206

Q. Okay.
MR. BEMIS: Do you have a copy, Mr. Markowski?
MR. MARKOWSKI: No.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Look at your entry for Monday, December 22. It looks like you were leaving for Aspen at 7:30 in the morning from Teterboro which is a small, private airport, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You spoke -- did Mr. -- did you speak to Mr. Gittis while you were skiing in Aspen and learn -- I take it when you go to Aspen you go skiing I take it.
A. I do.
Q. When -- did Mr. Gittis call you and tell you that even after Mr. Dunlap had stormed out he was now prepared to go from 18 to 22 to as high as $25 a share?
A. I frankly can't tell you whether he called me, how I found out or whether it was even that week.
Q. The next thing that you remember happening then is, I take it, after this phone call, is something happens in early January and the parties have some further discussions; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. Up to January of 1998 had MacAndrews & Forbes done any due diligence concerning Sunbeam other than what we have been through; for example, Mr. Nesbitt's spreadsheets, the discussion materials from -- that we saw from Credit Suisse First Boston, I think, in Morgan Stanley 76; anything else?
A. Well, I don't know what Jerry and Joe Page were doing at that point in time. I think once we got to the 18th I am sure there was nothing done after that until we got into January.
Q. We get to January. What is it that you recall happening in January to restart the parties' discussions about a possible business combination?
A. Well, I am reading a chronology again which I have no reason to dispute.
Reid called Perelman and said they would have an interest in doing a transaction in excess of, as it says here, in excess of $25 that would involve both cash and stock.

Q. Setting aside the chronology.
A. I remember that happening sometime in early January.
The next thing that happened is -- I don't know how the transition came from that. I don't remember the transition but there was a meeting where Morgan Stanley came by, to MacAndrews & Forbes, I think it was, I don't know whether Kitts was there, Stynes was there, I think Kitts was there, and they made a presentation about a transaction that -- they gave us some documents and I think if I recall that was a transaction that again was -- I think it was all stock and it was at a price that -- I don't remember the price but it was not acceptable and I think before they left the meeting we told them that it wasn't acceptable.
Q. Let me go back to Mr. Reid's phone call which at least according to the chronology was January 18.

Page 209

You were not on the call?
A. I don't think it says January 18 actually.
Q. The week of January 18, excuse me.
MR. MARKOWSKI: It doesn't say that either.
THE WITNESS: It says early 1998.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Why do I have it in my notes?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Is that the Skadden chron?
MR. BEMIS: It is probably the Skadden chron. It is somebody's chron. I think that is where it is.
MR. MARKOWSKI: It is about 10 minutes to 4:00. We told you we would be finishing at 4:00 today.
MR. BEMIS: Who did you tell that to?
MR. MARKOWSKI: We said 4:00 today and we can go to 5:00 tomorrow.
MR. BEMIS: I didn't know that. Neither did I know that you were going to show up a half hour late today. Can we start at 9:00 tomorrow? I didn't know about that.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. For the record, I think I said the week of the 18th. That is taken from the Coleman Company notice of merger and appraisal rights and information statement which we have, I think, marked in previous depositions as Morgan Stanley 279.
On page 37 it says, "On or about January 22 in an effort to revive a possible transaction a representative of Morgan Stanley contacted a representative of MacAndrews & Forbes and indicated that Sunbeam might consider a possible transaction involving both cash and shares of Sunbeam stock at a higher price than the price range suggested by Mr. Dunlap at the December 18 meetings."
That is what I was referring to.
Be that as it may, you knew there was a phone call to Mr. Perelman; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you know who made the call to

Mr. Perelman?
A. It says here Bill Reid and I have no reason to dispute that.
Q. Do you know Bill Reid?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you know him before the phone call?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your relationship with Mr. Reid?
A. He worked for me for a number of years.
Q. At Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you had any discussions with him about this lawsuit?
A. No.
Q. When was the last time you spoke to him?
A. Two years ago maybe, a year ago, two years ago.
Q. Would you consider -- strike that.
Am I correct that as far as you know there was no activity on the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction between December 18 if that was the date of the meeting at Mr. Perelman's home and this phone call from Mr. Reid, if that is who it was, the week of January 18, 1998, is that fair?

A. As far as I know that seems correct.
MR. BEMIS: Let's break there. It is 4:00.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record.
The videotaped deposition will be adjourned.
(Time noted: 4:00 p.m.)

Q. You testified in court before?

A. None that I'm aware of.
Q. If you have any questions in the course of the deposition, let me know; but, otherwise, let's move onto some -- a little background so the jury understands who you are.

You have an MBA degree; don't you?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did you get your degree?
A. University of Chicago.
Q. When was that?
A. 1968.

Q. In preparation for today's deposition, did you go over any documents to help you refresh your memory about events at Sunbeam Corporation?
A. Yes.
Q. What documents did you look at to refresh your recollection about events?
A. I believe it was the 1998 annual

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

plan for the domestic Coleman operations, a copy of a memo by David Fannin about possible ideas for cost savings.
Q. Synergies in other words?
A. No. They were ideas, it was specifically stated in that document.
And there was, I believe, three internal bank documents that talked about the credit.
Q. Were these documents in June or so of 1998 after you became the chairman of Sunbeam?
A. I'm not sure if someone -- I think at least one was and perhaps one was earlier, I'm not sure.
Q. Any other documents or categories of documents other than those three?
A. None that I could recall.
Q. Did you review the complaint in this action that Coleman (Parent) Holdings filed against Morgan Stanley?
A. Originally when it happened but not since.
Q. When you say you reviewed it originally when it first happened, what do you mean by that?

A. I was informed by Morgan Stanley that MacAndrews & Forbes had filed a complaint against them and, being curious, I read a copy of it at that point.
Q. I take it from your answer that you did not see the Coleman (Parent) Holdings complaint before it was filed against Morgan Stanley; is that fair?
A. That's fair.
Q. Other than these documents that you've identified and your review sometime ago of the complaint, are there any other documents that you reviewed in preparation for your deposition?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. Did you read any of your deposition transcripts from the other Sunbeam cases that you gave testimony?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever looked at them since you gave the testimony?
A. I believe after the testimony I was asked to review them for factual errors, typos, which I did. So I read them shortly after the date of the depositions.

Q. Do you have written calendars or diaries of any kind for your activities in 1997 or 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Where are they today, those calendars?
A. I believe they would be in my tax files.
Q. Could you describe the type of calendar that you kept in 1997 and 1998? If it's different, just tell me so.
A. I can't recall how we did it in 1997 but in 1998 I was asked by the Internal Revenue Department of New York State to produce documentation as to my residency in the course of 1998 and that was created for them.
Q. During the course of -- just take 1997 as a starter, did you keep like a day planner -- some people call them -- or any type of daily calendar whatever it's name?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you keep that yourself or did you have your secretary do it?

A. My secretary did it.
Q. Did you do the same thing in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you still have those in your tax files?
A. I can't speak to 1997. If it was not relevant than it might have been tossed, I don't know. The systems changed and we had to decide what data we wanted to save.
Q. I understand your secretary maintained your day planner; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did she do it electronically or was it in a manual system?
A. It was electronically.
Q. Did she print out for you a daily schedule for example?
A. Yes.
Q. At some point, it is my understanding, you believe a hard copy of your 1998 day planner was at least printed out by your office?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 14

A. I am confident there was a hard copy the second half of 1998 and we somehow re-created the first half. It could have been a hard copy.
Q. Other than the calendar now that you have described for us, did you keep any other form of calendar for either 1997 or 1998?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been asked to produce your calendar in any of the Sunbeam litigation that you can remember?
A. I don't recall.
Q. I want to ask you a couple of background questions about your employment, not where you worked 20 years ago right now, so just the jury understands who you are in case you testify by videotape here. Let me focus first on the Coleman Company.
The Coleman Company was headquartered in Wichita, Kansas; right?
A. Yes.
Q. You were employed there twice as I understand it; is that correct?
A. Prior to Sunbeam, twice.

Page 15

Q. When was the first time that you were employed at the Coleman Company in Wichita?
A. In April of 1989.
Q. How long did you work there before you left?
A. Two years.
Q. So you left about 1991?
A. In April of 1991.
Q. During your first tour at Coleman, what was your position with the company?
A. Chairman of the holding company.
Q. When you refer to chairman of the holding company, what is the name of that holding company?
A. I believe it was Coleman Holding Company.
Q. That held all of the stock of Coleman -- the Coleman Company, Inc.?
A. I believe so.
Q. Then Coleman Holding Company was owned by another holding company; correct?
A. I'm not sure which one of the holding companies was affiliated with

Page 16

MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. Ultimately, these holding companies that were affiliated with MacAndrews & Forbes were owned by Ronald O. Perelman; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman hire you to go to work at the Coleman Company?
A. Yes.
Q. Then you had a second tour of duty at the Coleman Company starting in 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. February?
A. Yes.
Q. How long did you stay with the Coleman Company on this second tour?
A. Until we closed the sale of the Coleman Company to Sunbeam.
Q. That was in March 30, 1998 as the record will show. Did you resign at that point?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you a document we'll mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 445 which I believe is your resignation and we'll just get that date set.

Page 17

(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 445, resignation, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I've handed you, Mr. Levin, what has been marked by the reporter as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 445. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your signature that appears on the document?
A. Yes.
Q. What is this document?
A. My resignation notice from the Coleman Company.
Q. Is your resignation dated March 31, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that in fact the date that you resigned?
A. Apparently, yes.
Q. Focusing on your second tour of duty with the Coleman Company in 1997 and 1998, were you the president of the company?

A. Yes.
Q. Were you on the board of directors?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you on the board of directors the entire time until you resigned?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was the chairman of the board of directors?
A. I was.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman recruit you to come back to the Coleman Company?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he tell you why he wanted you to go back to the Coleman Company in 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. What did he say?
A. I don't recall his language.
Q. Even if you don't recall his language, do you recall the substance of what he said to you?
A. Substantively, they were concerned about the leadership of the

Page 19

Coleman Company and felt given things were going so well at my current position at Revlon, that the best solution would be for me to go back and run the Coleman Company again.
Q. At this time when you came back to the Coleman Company, you went to work directly for the operating company and not a holding company; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. In both instances that you worked for the Coleman Company, did you live in Wichita?
A. The first time I had an apartment in Wichita and lived in both Minneapolis and Wichita and the second time I lived in Minneapolis -- the second time I lived in New York.
Q. I didn't mean to interrupt. I apologize.
Let's move forward. After you resigned from the Coleman Company you eventually go to work for Sunbeam Corporation; right? I know --
A. Eventually, yes.

Page 20

Q. When did you go to work for Sunbeam?
A. I believe it was approximately June 15, 1998.
Q. So you were -- just so the jury can put this in perspective -- you were at the Coleman Company, Inc. at the time of the merger between Coleman and Sunbeam; correct?
A. I was there right up until the day of the sale of the Coleman Company to Sunbeam.
Q. And then you had a short hiatus in your career and then you ended up going to Sunbeam on June 15, 1998; right?
A. That's correct.
Q. When you went to Sunbeam on June 15, 1998 you replaced Mr. Dunlap; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Who had been terminated by the board of directors; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You received your position from Sunbeam Corporation directly from the board of directors on or about June 15; right?

Page 21

A. Yes.
Q. It was Mr. Perelman who contacted you first about a position at Sunbeam; right?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form of the question.
A. No.
Q. Who was it?
A. Mr. Gittis.
Q. Was Mr. Perelman on the line with Mr. Gittis?
A. No.
Q. What did Mr. Gittis say when he called you?
A. That the board of directors of Sunbeam had terminated Mr. Dunlap and that the board wanted to meet with me the next day about the possibility of my becoming an interim CEO until they could find a permanent CEO.
Q. What did you say?
A. That I would meet with them.
Q. Did you do so?
A. Yes.
Q. In New York?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you then meet with the board of directors of Sunbeam the next day, if you will?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you hired on that day?
A. I agreed to become the interim CEO on that day.
Q. Was Mr. Gittis at that time, was he a member of the board of directors of Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. Did he tell you how he came to call you on behalf of Sunbeam's board of directors?
A. That Sunbeam's board of directors had called him and asked specifically to contact me.
Q. Did you ask him why Mr. Dunlap had been fired?
A. Mr. Gittis did not know the details.
Q. Did you ask him, though, why?
A. We talked in the morning before the meeting with the Sunbeam board of directors and he really had no information as to what was going on.

Q. Is it fair to say that the phone call -- the termination of Mr. Dunlap and the phone call to you happened relatively quickly?
A. I believe it all happened on the same day.
Q. When you met with the board of directors, were you hired on that same day or offered the position on that same day?
A. The Sunday following the evening when I was called, I was offered the position of becoming the temporary or interim CEO.
Q. In addition to being the interim or temporary CEO, did you also assume the title of president of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. You were given a position on the board of directors as well; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was chairman of the board of directors after you -- immediately after you became the chief executive officer and president?

Page 24

A. Peter Langerman.
Q. Did you eventually become the chairman of the board of directors of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. When did that occur, sir?
A. I don't recall.
Q. How soon after June 15, 1998?
A. Could have been several months, could have been a year, I don't recall.
Q. Was it before the bankruptcy of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. When did Sunbeam enter bankruptcy proceedings?
A. I believe it was February of 2001.
Q. At that time, did you hold all three positions, president, chief executive officer and chairman of the board of directors of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. When did Sunbeam emerge from bankruptcy proceedings?

Page 25

A. December 18, 2002.
Q. At that time you still held those three positions?
A. Yes.
Q. When did Sunbeam change its name to American Household, Inc.?
A. On December 18, 2002.
Q. When it came out of the bankruptcy?
A. Yes.
Q. You have until today maintained those same three positions, president, CEO and chairman of the board of directors of now American Household, Inc. but formerly Sunbeam Corporation; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. From March 31, 1998 when you submitted your resignation that we marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 445 and June 15, 1998, you worked for one of Mr. Perelman's companies; correct?
A. I was on a retainer for Mr. Perelman during that period of time.
Q. Did you have any specific assignments?

Page 26

A. No.
Q. Were you kind of on holiday in between jobs?
A. I was definitely on holiday.
Q. Spent some time at your house in Tucson?
A. Yes.
Q. Let's spend a little bit of time on the Sunbeam/Coleman merger which we will cover in much more detail later, just to get a background for the jury.
You did participate to some degree in the negotiations for Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. How would you describe for the jury what your role was in the negotiations?
A. I was never involved in the face-to-face negotiations with Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley but I did represent management's perspective to Mr. Perelman, First Boston and the people who were involved in the direct negotiations.
Q. You used the term management's perspective. You are referring to management of MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman?

A. No.
Q. Just Coleman?
A. Coleman.
Q. So if I understand you correctly, from your perspective, your participation in the negotiations was on behalf of the Coleman Company, Inc.; is that right?
A. And its shareholders, yes.
Q. Other people on the MacAndrews side, whether they be outside consultants or inside people, they were representing the interests of the other MacAndrews & Forbes entities that were party to the merger agreement; is that fair?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form of the question.
Q. You can answer.
A. No.
Q. Who represented Coleman (Parent) Holdings' interests in the merger transaction?
A. To the best of my knowledge,

Page 28

MacAndrews & Forbes and whatever attorneys they had representing them.
Q. Who, to your knowledge, conducted the negotiations in the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I wasn't in the room when it happened so it would be very speculative for me to guess who was interfacing.
Q. But you did attend meetings where there were combined negotiations; correct?
A. Not until the transaction was resolved.
Q. Let me use the date of February 27, 1998 as the date that the merger agreements were signed. Does that square pretty much with your recollection?
A. Yes.
Q. Before that time, did MacAndrews & Forbes have someone participating in the negotiations on their behalf inside the company?
A. Could you restate that?
Q. Sure. MacAndrews & Forbes, one or more of its entities was a party to one or more of the merger agreements; correct?

Page 29

A. Yes.
Q. Who on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes within the organization participated in the negotiations?
A. I don't know specifically who, as I said, was in the room when they were having those conversations.
Q. You know Mr. Maher?
A. I know Mr. Maher.
Q. Was he in the room some of the time when you were there?
A. I just said I wasn't in the room.
MR. BIDEAU: He said he wasn't there.
MR. BEMIS: Do you have an objection to form?
MR. BIDEAU: I have an objection to form. He said he wasn't in the room.
MR. BEMIS: Then you have an objection to form and I heard your objection.
MR. BIDEAU: Okay, good.
Q. Can you answer the question? I will put it to you again with all the confusion. Do you want me to ask you again?

UNCERTIFIED COPY

Page 30

A. Yes.
Q. Was Mr. Maher in the room when you were there during the negotiations?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form of the question.
A. I wasn't there during the negotiations other than at the very end, approximately February 20th to the 27th. Through that time period, Mr. Maher was in the room when I was there.
Q. Is it fair to say that your participation in the negotiations from your perspective began in earnest on, say, February 20th, which is the date you just used, 1998?
A. It was approximately February 20th.
Q. Because, as I recall, you were in Puerto Rico and got a phone call and were asked to come back to New York and you got that phone call directly from Mr. Perelman; is that right?

Page 31

A. That's correct.
Q. After February 20th, 1998, the negotiation moved very quickly and concluded on February 27, 1998; correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. That sounds reasonably accurate.
Q. Again, just to put this in place for the jury, you did attend the board of directors meetings of the Coleman Company, Inc. where the merger was considered by the full board; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You did attend the February 25 meeting where the merger was first disclosed to the full board; correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't think it's fair to say that was the first time the board was informed about the merger.
Q. I'm speaking of the full board. So if there was any confusion let me try again.
When was the full board of

Page 32

directors first informed of merger discussions with Sunbeam, the full board of directors of the Coleman Company, Inc.?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You think it was before February 25, 1998?
A. It would have been quite unusual, the way I relate to the board, for me not to keep them informed that there was the possibility of a transaction.
Q. When did you first learn of a possibility of a transaction with Sunbeam such that you would have informed the board of directors of the Coleman company, Inc.?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't know when I first told them about it.
Q. Did you tell them before the phone call from Mr. Perelman on February 20th, 1998?
A. Almost certainly.
Q. Did you do this at a formal board meeting or was it informally, for example, by telephone calls or face-to-face meetings?

A. It could have been either depending on the timing of the board meetings.
Q. In addition to the February 25th, 1998 board meeting, you also attended and made a presentation at the February 27th, 1998 board meeting at which time the merger was approved by the board; correct?
A. I don't recall making a specific presentation but I certainly was there.
Q. There were minutes kept of the board meetings; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In your view, being chairman of the board, were the minutes accurate?
A. Yes.
Q. So if the minutes reflected you made a presentation, would you assume then that you did so based on the accuracy of the minutes?
A. Yes, I would.
Q. The Coleman board of directors had advisors in the transaction; correct?
A. Yes.

Page 34

Q. Who were the attorneys that advised the Coleman Company?
A. I don't recall who we used.
Q. Was it Wachtell Lipton?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know an attorney by the name of Adam O. Emmerich?
A. Yes.
Q. Was he one of the attorneys that advised the company?
A. I'm not sure what role his firm played in the transaction.
Q. Did the Coleman Company itself retain attorneys to represent the company or did someone do it on their behalf?
A. I know we did, I just don't recall the dynamics at the time.
Q. My question may not have been clear. Let me try it one more time.
I understand attorneys were retained to represent the Coleman Company, you've told me that; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. My question is did the Coleman Company retain the attorneys or did someone retain them on their behalf?

Page 35

A. No, the Coleman Company would have made that decision.
Q. Do you have firsthand knowledge of them doing that?
A. I can only say we would always make that decision.
Q. And the Coleman Company retained an investment banking firm to represent the Coleman Company in the merger; right?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was that?
A. That was Credit Suisse First Boston.
Q. Who made the first contact with Credit Suisse First Boston to act as advisor to the Coleman Company?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you do it?
A. I might have.
Q. Who did you talk with at Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Gordon Rich.
Q. Did the Coleman Company have an accounting advisor during the transaction?

Page 36

A. I do not recall hiring a special accounting advisor.
Q. Did the Coleman Company have an outside accounting firm conducting its audits, for example, at that time?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was that?
A. I don't recall.
Q. How about Ernst & Young; does that sound familiar?
A. It could well have been.
Q. At any point in time, did the board of directors of the Coleman Company retain Morgan Stanley or any of its affiliates to perform services in connection with the Sunbeam/Coleman merger?
A. No.
Q. At any point in time, did the Coleman Company make any payments to Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam/Coleman merger?
A. I'm unaware of any.
Q. Did you have any face-to-face meetings with Morgan Stanley employees after the merger agreements were signed and up to the date of closing, March 30, 1998?

A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you have any -- I will use the word conference call or telephone calls, if you like, with Morgan Stanley concerning the Sunbeam/Coleman acquisition after the signing of the merger documents on February 27 and up to the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. I can't speak to the specific date but the only incident that I can recall is when the company asked us to make a presentation to the proposed bank's syndicate. They were trying to syndicate the loan and asked us to lead them through our plans. I believe that call was led by Morgan Stanley.
Q. When you say our plans, you are referring to the Coleman Company's plans?
A. Coleman Company's plans.
Q. Would this be the 1998 strategic plan for Coleman you looked at in preparation for your deposition?
A. Yes and no.
Q. What's the no part?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01582

Page 38

A. We were presenting the corporate strategic plan. The banks had received just the North American strategic plan and it lead to considerable confusion as nothing was matching in the conversation and Morgan Stanley quickly aborted the call and we never reconvened.
Q. I take it then there was one plan, as you put it, that had -- you said North America and then there was a plan for the entire company that included the 100 companies that the Coleman was operating in?
A. As many as there were, yes, it was a big corporate plan.
Q. That call got deferred and, to your knowledge, it did not get resumed; is that fair?
A. It did not get resumed.
Q. Other than this presentation that you've been discussing, do you recall any written documents being exchanged between yourself or the Coleman Company, Inc. and Morgan Stanley after the closing on February 27 of the merger agreements and then the actually closing of the merger on March 30, 1998?

MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Were you using e-mails in 1998 at the time of the merger transaction?
A. No.
Q. I would like you to focus now on a separate time period, that's going to be March 30th up until June 15th when you become the new president of Sunbeam.
Did you have any communications with Morgan Stanley in any fashion whether it be a telephone call, face-to-face meeting or electronic mail, if you happened to use it during that period of time?
A. On this subject, no.
Q. Was there some unrelated subject that you spoke to Morgan Stanley --
A. I have a lot of friends there and we talk, unrelated things.
Q. Is it fair to say that on the subject of the Coleman/Sunbeam transaction, you didn't talk to Morgan Stanley either directly or through electronic means or written means between March 30th, 1998 and June 15th, 1998 when you became the president of Sunbeam?

A. I intentionally avoided discussion because I felt it would be inappropriate.
Q. Did you read the merger agreement involving Coleman before it was signed by the Coleman Company?
A. Yes.
Q. You were aware, then, under the terms of the merger agreement which has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 117 that Coleman had access to Sunbeam's books and records after February 27, 1998 and up to the date of closing? You were aware of that; right?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Let me show you the document. We'll see if that helps your recollection.
MR. BEMIS: Do you have copies of some of these documents in your five to six boxes? Only because throwing them across the table is a little awkward.

Page 41

Do you have the merger agreements?
MR. BIDEAU: Anything in particular you want him to look at?
MR. BEMIS: Yes.
Q. Do you have Exhibit Morgan Stanley 117 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Levin, if you would turn to section 7.2, it's on page 29. It is entitled, "Section 7.2, Access and Information; Confidentiality."
Tell me when you're there.
A. I'm there.
Q. My question is, sir, pursuant to this provision of the merger agreement, Coleman Company had access to the books and records, if you will, of Sunbeam from the date of the signing of the agreement up until the date of the closing; correct?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Could you repeat the question please?

Q. Sure. Between February 27, 1998 and up to the date of closing which is March 30, 1998, Coleman upon request was was to be given access of the books and records of Sunbeam Corporation pursuant to the merger agreement; correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to form.
MR. BIDEAU: Same objection.
A. Could you just repeat that for me?
Q. Sure. After the signing of the merger agreement and up until the time of the closing, the Coleman Company upon request had access pursuant to this provision to the books and records of Sunbeam Corporation?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
A. It appears as long as the times were reasonable that is true.
Q. To your knowledge, between February 27 and March 30, did the Coleman Company make a request to inspect the books and records of Sunbeam Corporation pursuant to this provision, section 7.2?
A. I don't recall.

Page 43

Q. Would it be fair to say, sir -- first of all, you've operated a number of public companies; right?
A. Yes.
Q. Public companies file or prepare or have prepared annual financial statements which are audited by their accountants; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. They also, that is public companies such as you have managed, they have prepared quarterly financial statements that are filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So-called 10-Q filings; right?
A. Yes.
Q. And in the companies that you have managed, do those companies also maintain monthly financial statements, sometimes called interim financial statements, that lead to the issuance of quarterly and then annual statements?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection.

Page 44

A. Yes.
Q. At any time between February 27, 1998 and March 30, 1998, are you aware of anyone at the Coleman Company, Inc. requesting from Sunbeam to review Sunbeam's interim financial statements for the period January 1998?
A. Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh had closed me out of the company on February 27th and asked I not come to the company and since the only potential hazard to closing was Hart Scott Rodino which was extremely remote, I agreed to do that and had extremely limited involvement with the company from February 27 to March -- until the closing date which I guess is March 30. So I really don't know.
Q. As you sit here today, do you have any recollection of requesting a copy of Sunbeam's January 1998 interim financial statement? Even if the request was denied, do you have a recollection of making such a request?
A. I do not personally know of any.
Q. Do you anyone on the MacAndrews &

Page 45

Forbes side of the transaction that made such a request of Sunbeam?
A. I don't know of any.
Q. I would ask you now the same question for February 1998. Are you aware of any request by the Coleman Company to Sunbeam, even if it was declined, to view Sunbeam's February 1998 interim financial statements?
A. The February 1998 interim financial statements would not be available until sometime in this period.
Q. That's correct. During this period, are you aware of any requests to see the February 1998 interim financial statements of Sunbeam?
A. I guess I just testified there were none requested in that period so, yes.
Q. Let's go all the way up to the closing, March 30, 1998, are you aware of any request by the Coleman Company, Inc. to see Sunbeam's interim financial statements for any period in 1998 whether it be January, February or even a partial period in 1998?

A. I don't know.
Q. Are you aware of any such request by MacAndrews & Forbes to see the February 1998 Sunbeam interim financial statements?
A. I'm unaware of any.
Q. Are you aware of MacAndrews & Forbes requesting, even if you didn't participate in this directly, Sunbeam's interim financial statements for any portion of March of 1998?
A. I was out of the company completely by the time those financials were available.
Q. When you managed your public companies such as the Coleman Company, I think you said Revlon as well; correct?

A. Yes.
Q. As the president of the company, did you review on a monthly basis your company's interim financial statements?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know how to read them?
A. I think so.
Q. Do you know Mr. Perelman pretty well?
A. From a business perspective. I've worked for him for a long time.
Q. From a business perspective, do you think Mr. Perelman knows how to read an interim financial statement?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you think he knew how to do that in 1998?
A. I believe so.
Q. Before the closing on March 30, 1998, the Coleman Company filed its annual Form 10-K with the Securities and Exchange Commission for the year 1997; correct?
A. It should have.
Q. You signed that document, did you not, as the president and chief executive officer of the company?

Page 48

A. I don't recall if I signed that document or not but I'm aware of it.
Q. Before the actual closing of the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction, did you obtain a copy of Sunbeam's 1997 annual report on Form 10-K filed with the SEC and the record will show on or about February 26, 1998?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form. I think you misspoke.
MR. BEMIS: I did. Thank you. Let me re-ask the question. Thank you.
Q. Before the actual closing of the Sunbeam transaction on March 30, 1998, did you obtain a copy of Sunbeam's 1997 annual report on Form 10-K that was filed with the SEC on or about March 6, 1998?
A. Before the closing?
Q. The closing on March 30, 1998.
A. I don't recall doing so.
Q. At that time, March of 1998, if I recall your testimony correctly, you were in Tucson, Arizona at your vacation home; is that correct?

Page 49

A. That's correct.
Q. You had effectively left day-to-day operations of the Coleman Company at the request I think you said of Mr. Kersh; is that right?
A. Dunlap and Kersh.
Q. Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh. Thank you.
We touched a little bit on these preliminary matters of your employment with Mr. Perelman's companies. I would like to get just a little more detail on your background for the jury so they can understand what's going to come in the rest of your testimony.
You first went to work, as I understand it, with Texas Instruments after you got your MBA; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. How long were you with them?
A. Approximately four years.
Q. What did you do there?
A. Starting as a financial analyst, my last position was to manage the treasury department.

Q. Tell the jury what the treasury department does.
A. We manage the foreign exchange, the borrowings, the management of the cash of the company, moving it from country to country as required on the operations.
Q. Did you do that the entire four years you were with Texas Instruments?
A. As I recall, about half the time.
Q. After Texas Instruments, did you go to Marsh & McLennan?
A. Yes.
Q. What do they do?
A. It was then called Milennan Corporation (phonetic). They are a large insurance broker and mutual fund manager and employee benefit consultant.
Q. What did you do there?
A. I was originally treasurer.
Q. Similar function to what you did at Texas Instruments?
A. It was quite different given the different characteristics of the insurance brokerage business but there were some similarities.

Q. You were still managing the money; weren't you?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you went to Pillsbury where you stayed for quite a few years; right?
A. I should point out that I finished Marsh & McLennan as the head of their corporate development area which was mergers and acquisitions and then went to the Pillsbury Company.
Q. How long were you in the corporate development area of Marsh & McLennan?
A. Almost all of the time I was there. Approximately two years.
Q. How many mergers and acquisitions did you work on during that time period?
A. I worked on dozens.
Q. Can you give us a sense of size of the transactions on a dollar value basis?
A. The transactions we consummated?
Q. Whether consummated or not

Page 52

consummated.
A. Most of them were in the 10 to 100 million dollar range.
Q. Were these transactions both buying and selling, if you will?
A. No. They were all acquisitions.
Q. Can I use Marsh & McLennan? Because I don't remember the other company's name, that's the one I remember.
A. Okay.
Q. When you were with Marsh & McLennan in corporate development, were these companies that were being acquired by Marsh & McLennan?
A. Yes.
Q. Was I correct that you then go to Pillsbury?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you in Minneapolis first?
A. No. I left Chicago where Marsh & McLennan had been headquartered previously, then at Milennan, and then was recruited to Minneapolis by the Pillsbury Company.
Q. How long did you stay at Pillsbury?

Page 53

A. It was around 15, 16 years.
Q. One of the positions you had was CEO of Burger King?
A. Briefly, yes.
Q. Did you live in Miami then?
A. No.
Q. Did you commute?
A. Yes.
Q. Tell the jury what you did at Pillsbury.
A. I started as director of mergers and acquisitions which was a function that grew significantly through the years as the company was growing principally by merger and acquisition, buying other food and restaurant companies. It evolved later in career there as treasurer. In addition to the corporate development of merger acquisition function, I had the planning, did the strategic planning, and later in my career shifted over to managing the problem businesses of Pillsbury.
Q. In fact, one of the problem businesses at Pillsbury was Burger King at this time; is that --

A. Most people would consider that a problem business.
Q. Was this your first foray into working with problem businesses?
A. No.
Q. When did you start doing that in your career?
A. On a small scale when I was at Pillsbury, whenever they had a business that they wanted to divest because it was a problem, they would give it to me to run until I sold it and then I took -- the first full time business I ran which was not intended to be sold was Häagen-Dazs Ice Cream and then I picked up at various times, I can't remember the sequencing, our commodity merchandising business, the restaurant group which included Burger King and then in the midst of a hostile takeover of the company, became CEO of Burger King.
Q. When you were CEO of Burger King, did you oversee the acquisition of a number of franchise stores in conversion of those into company stores?
A. No.

Page 55

Q. Was it the other way around or that didn't take place during your tenure?
A. We were always buying and selling a few units, that was a constant part of our business, but there were no significant sales or acquisitions by Burger King while I was CEO of Burger King.
Q. What was the period that you were the CEO of Burger King?
A. It must have been from about October of 1988 until January of 1989.
Q. Then at that point did you leave Burger King and go to the Coleman Company?
A. No. The company was sold to Grand Metropolitan, I believe it closed in January of 1989, and then for two or three months I worked for the new buyer and then went to the Coleman Company.
Q. You told us earlier that Mr. Perelman recruited you to go to the Coleman Company in 1998. Did you know Mr. Perelman before he recruited you?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you first come to meet him?

Page 56

A. While I was at Pillsbury we made an acquisition of a restaurant company that took place simultaneous with Mr. Perelman's acquisition of Revlon and we were using the same attorney and I got to meet Mr. Perelman through that attorney.
Q. When Mr. Perelman hired you in 1989, I understand that it was to assist the Coleman Company in resolving some difficulties it was having?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
Q. Is that fair?
A. No.
Q. Tell me why he hired you to run the Coleman Company.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. My understanding why he hired me was to restructure the Coleman Company but it was to sell off a series of businesses that -- to raise cash which he thought allowed him to buy the core pieces he wanted of Coleman for a very attractive price once he executed those sales.

Page 57

Q. At this point, that is 1989 when you were hired to run the Coleman Company, Mr. Perelman's entities had already purchased the Coleman Company; correct?
A. I don't think so.
Q. My understanding is that the initial acquisition of the Coleman Company was a 100 percent acquisition for cash all of the common stock of the Coleman Company; is that correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. Were you contacted by Mr. Perelman with regard to working for the Coleman Company before he had successfully acquired the Coleman Company in 1989 through one of his entities?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you know at the time that you were contacted by Mr. Perelman that his desire was that you work on this restructuring if the acquisition was successful?
A. Yes.
Q. So the plan was to make an all cash offer and then sell some of the assets

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 58

of the Coleman leaving the core company?
A. Yes.
Q. And using the proceeds of the sale then to pay off the debt incurred in order to acquire the Coleman Company; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's what you did?
A. Yes.
Q. Successfully?
A. Yes.
Q. You then leave the Coleman Company and go on to -- is it Revlon Corp., is that where you went first?
A. I don't recall. It was private at the time I went and then he took it public. I can't remember which Revlon it was but it was all of the Revlon operations.
Q. What was your position at Revlon?
A. My first position was president and chief operating officer.
Q. How long were you the president and chief operating officer of Revlon?
A. I don't recall the sequence.

Page 59

Q. Did you eventually become the chief executive officer of Revlon?
A. Yes.
Q. Did that include all of its subsidiary operating companies?
A. Yes.
Q. So you also would have been chief executive officer of Revlon Consumer Products?
A. Yes.
Q. How long were the chief executive officer of the Revlon entities?
A. I don't recall when I became chief executive officer but I believe it was about two years -- maybe it was a year and a half after I joined Revlon I became chief executive officer and I was at Revlon from April of 1991 until I joined Coleman in very early 1997.
Q. During this period of April 1991 until the time that you joined the Coleman Company, did Mr. Perelman or his affiliated entities own an interest in Revlon?
A. Yes.
Q. What interest did they own? All of it, a portion of it?

A. He owned all of it until we went public and then they owned something over 80 percent.
Q. When did Revlon go public?
A. I believe it was in 1993 but I'm not sure.
Q. During the period you were with Revlon, were you tasked with restructuring any portion of its operations?
A. Restructuring in a different sense that I used before, yes.
Q. Can you explain that to us?
A. It wasn't to buy or sell off pieces, it was really to make the operations more efficient and to restore Revlon's market position.
Q. How did you do?
A. We did great.
Q. The year that you went over to the Coleman Company, what were Revlon's revenues?
A. It was something in the 3 billion dollars.
Q. Profitable?

Page 61

A. Approximately 300 million EBITDA.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman tell you why he wanted you to go back to Coleman in 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. What did he tell you?
A. They were concerned about the leadership and they were concerned about the performance of the chief executive officer and his inability to meet the projections given both to the public and to the financing institutions.
Q. Who was the chief executive officer at this time?
A. Michael Hammis.
Q. H-A-M-M-I-S; right?
A. Yes.
Q. So you replaced him and you remained in that position, as you told us, up until the time you resigned, March 31, 1998; right?
A. Yes.
Q. How successful were you in resolving the problems at Coleman?
A. We were very pleased with what we accomplished.

Page 62

Q. Would you call what you did at Coleman during your second tour a restructuring of the company?
A. You could, yes.
Q. Had you completed that task at the time that you resigned on March 31, 1998?
A. No.
Q. During the time that you were with the Coleman Company during your second tour, 1997 to March 31, 1998, did you hold positions in other companies associated or affiliated with Mr. Perelman such as Revlon?
A. I know I was a director of Revlon.
Q. Any others, of his company?
A. There might have been affiliates of Revlon that I might have had some title with but I don't remember.
Q. Did you work in any of the other lines of his company like Consolidated Cigar or Marvel or any --
A. No.
Q. In terms of business lines, were the only two companies in Mr. Perelman's group of companies that you worked with the Coleman operating company and the Revlon operating companies?

A. As broadly defined. There was partially owned subsidiaries here and there but yes.
Q. Do you consider yourself an operations guy?
A. Not particularly.
Q. What do you consider to be your forte as a businessman now that you are 60 years old and you have described your career for us; what is your forte?
A. I have an ability to put teams together that can execute turnarounds of branded consumer product companies.
Q. Would you consider yourself a specialist in consumer branded products?
A. It's one of my strengths.
Q. In 1998 at the time of the merger, did you consider Sunbeam to be a consumer branded products company?
A. Yes.
Q. And Sunbeam had as of 1998, had at least as it announced to the public, been involved in a restructure, for instance, since Mr. Dunlap had been hired in 1996; is that fair?

Page 64

A. Yes.
Q. Had you been following what had been going on at Sunbeam?
A. Slightly.
Q. In the course of developing your business acumen as you've described it to the jury, I understand from reading your other transcripts in the cases that you consider yourself at least generally familiar with methods of valuing businesses; is that fair?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Yes.
Q. Just as an example, I mean, you understand discounted cash flow analysis of a business in trying to value it?
A. Yes.
Q. And you understand the concept of enterprise value?
A. Yes.

Page 65

Q. You understand market multiple analysis in valuing; don't you?
A. Yes.
Q. You learned these things not only as an MBA in getting your degree but within your many years of business experience; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In the course of your business with MacAndrews & Forbes, did you have access to, for lack of a better term, a clipping service that kept track of public information on companies affiliated with Mr. Perelman?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question back for me please?
MR. BEMIS: I will rephrase the question.
Q. In the course of your work with the MacAndrews & Forbes companies, whether it be Revlon or whether it be Coleman, did you have access to a service which I will just call a clipping service that provided you with information available, whether it be magazines or newspapers or analyst reports, on companies that either MacAndrews & Forbes owned or had an interest in?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I received some clippings from him, I don't remember if it was everything.
Q. When you say from him, do you mean from Mr. Perelman or MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. From MacAndrews & Forbes, excuse me.
Q. Was this done on a regular basis, this clipping service?
A. I believe it was.
Q. Could you generally describe it for the jury, what it was that you received?
A. I get a small stack of copies of be it newspaper articles, magazine articles, I actually don't recall getting analysts' reports, which might have talked about some development or mentions of my own company that I was operating, Revlon -- which I intended more to ignore publicity than any of the other companies but I don't recall specifically -- but I'm sure there could have been stuff about whether it be Marvel or Consolidated Cigar, the banks.

Q. When you refer to the banks, you are referring to the banks that Mr. Perelman's companies acquired in the 1980s and 1990s?
A. Controlling interest in them, yes.
Q. Would these clipping services include things like articles in the Wall Street Journal?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Barrons?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you read the Wall Street Journal?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you read Barrons?
A. No.
Q. Never?
A. Occasionally, yes.
Q. If they write about you, do you read it?

Page 68

A. It gets to me somehow. I try to ignore it.
Q. Did you read the stories that were in Barrons starting in 1997?
A. Yes -- excuse me, in 1997?
Q. The first story in 1997.
A. I don't know that I read any stories about Sunbeam in Barrons in 1997. I do recall reading some in 1998.
Q. This was after the acquisition of Coleman; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You did have some clippings information, if you will, on Sunbeam, as I understand it, while you were at Coleman; is that correct?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form.
A. It sounds like a reasonable assumption but I don't recall.
Q. Was this just a personal interest of yours or were you following it because Mr. Perelman wanted it to be followed?
A. At what time period?
Q. Let's say late 1997.

Page 69

A. Late 1997 we found that Sunbeam had an interest in acquiring Coleman so at that point I'm sure I started reading the articles.
Q. Did you at this time, late 1997, start reading Sunbeam's filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission such as their 10-Qs, 8Ks if there were any at that time, and annual reports on form 10-K?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me ask you a couple questions about Mr. Perelman.
You said you knew him as a business associate; right?
A. Yes.
Q. And you worked with him from 1989 up until at least June 15, 1998, right, when you went to Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Even while you were at Sunbeam, for a period of time after June 15, 1998 you were in communication with Mr. Perelman about the operations of Sunbeam; were you not?
A. Yes.

Page 70

Q. At least up to a point in time going forward from June 15, 1998 you attempted to keep Mr. Perelman advised of Sunbeam's financial progress; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You indeed sent him pretty regular reports on Sunbeam's operations and business plans; did you not?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall what I sent him.
Q. As an example only, did you send him business plans of the company?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
Q. Sunbeam.
A. Mr. Gittis was on our board and I don't know who was sending who what.
Q. Was it fair to say you had an open line of communication to Mr. Perelman while you were at Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Did there come a point in time when that open line of communication stopped?

Page 71

A. Yes.
Q. When was that?
A. I think it -- when my contract with MacAndrews & Forbes ran out, there was one point when it changed to considerably less at that point because I then resigned from the Revlon directors position and I had spent sometime attempting to advise on the Revlon situation even though I was not there and once we went into Chapter 11 and it was clear that he no longer was going to be a shareholder, there was nothing much to talk about other than through Mr. Gittis. Mr. Gittis was totally involved in everything we were doing. He knew everything that was going on.
Q. Because he was a board member of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. There's been prior testimony about breakfast meetings that Mr. Perelman would hold at his townhouse in New York City. Did you attend those meetings?
A. Not all of them but, yes, I did.
Q. If you were in New York you would attend?
A. Yes.
Q. When you were with the Coleman Company during your second tour, you did have an office both in New York and Wichita; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Where was your office in New York City? Was it at the Revlon headquarters?
A. It was in the same building, separate space.
Q. How much time did you spend on a weekly basis at each location, if you can assess it that way?
A. At the beginning in early 1997 I was almost entirely in Wichita and as things stabilized and we put the management team in place, things started getting better, I evolved away from that to towards the end it might have been half and half.
Q. At these breakfast meetings that you were able to attend at Mr. Perelman's townhouse, was there a somewhat regular group of executives that would be in attendance if they were in the city?

Page 73

A. Yes.
Q. Who were those people? You can focus on 1997, 1998 if you are comfortable with that.
A. Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Drapkin, I believe Scott Sassa attended, Mr. Maher. I can't recall any other regular participants.
Q. Were these breakfast meetings designed to keep this group of people that you've identified for the jury informed of the operations of Mr. Perelman's companies?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. It is what happened there. I'm not sure what the actual purpose was but operations were discussed in that forum.
Q. What was discussed at these meetings? I realize many things but just in general.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. It ranged from watches, cars, social activities, to transactions that they are considering making.

Q. Was the Sunbeam transaction with Coleman discussed at these breakfast meetings?
A. I think when it was highly -- when it was in the decision making process, it probably had some attention; but post that, I really wasn't there very much. From that point forward if at all.
Q. Would you put the decision making process date at sometime on or around February 20, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any business arrangements with Mr. Perelman or his companies today?
A. When I turn 62 I will get a pension from the Revlon Company.
Q. Congratulations. Other than a pension, anything else?
A. No.
Q. You don't sit, for example, as the director on any companies he owns or controls?
A. No.
Q. You don't have an office any more in any of his buildings?

A. No.
Q. Or any of his company's buildings?
A. No.
Q. Was your resignation from Revlon your last position with Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. Yes.
Q. How many years have you known Mr. Perelman? Given I think you first met him in the context of an acquisition that you were involved with, how many years have you known him?
A. It would have been somewhere in the mid '80s so something less than 20 years.
Q. Do you feel at least as a businessman you know him pretty well?
A. I don't know the answer to that question.
Q. Would you call him secretive in terms of his operations?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection.
A. Not with anything I have dealt with him on.

Q. Would you call him sophisticated as a businessman?
A. Not in all instances but in many.
Q. Which instance would you call him not sophisticated?
A. He does not spend much time on the actual operations of things, he likes to hire a good CEO and let that CEO run the business. That's his most effective formula.
Q. Would you consider him a sophisticated investor in businesses?
A. I have seen him make wonderful decisions and I've seen him make very bad decisions.
Q. Would you consider Sunbeam to be a very bad decision?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I think he, as I, was completely surprised in the negative way of the outcome.
Q. You weren't totally completely surprised; were you?

A. I was not surprised that the business was not well run. I did not understand the strategy. I was completely shocked by fraud. I had never encountered it in my career and had no idea.
Q. The fraud now you are referring to is the fraud at Sunbeam as you are talking about; correct?
A. As described by the SEC, the massive financial fraud, yes.
Q. The massive financial fraud at Sunbeam involved the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen; correct?
A. Among others, yes.
Q. And you were -- who were the others that were involved in the massive financial fraud? Mr. Dunlap?
A. A great number of employees including Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh.
Q. The SEC didn't name Morgan Stanley as being involved in any massive financial fraud; did it?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall one way or the other?
A. One way or the other.
Q. In terms of your dealings with Mr. Perelman over the years, were you involved in mergers and acquisitions for or on behalf of his companies?
A. Yes.
Q. How many?
A. They were relatively few. We bought some small cosmetic operations. I would say less than five.
Q. With Coleman you were involved with some; right? You sold some?
A. I sold some. The acquisitions were made in between my first and second term with Coleman.
Q. You sold a company called Coleman Safety and Security, didn't you, right before the merger?
A. Yes.
Q. It was about a 105 million dollar transaction if I remember the document.
A. I don't recall. I'm sure it's a matter of record.

Q. It is.
Let me ask you to focus now specifically on the Coleman transaction and I want to ask you some questions about some of the people who were involved and get your understanding of what their role was in the transaction. I will start with yourself. Always start at the person here.
You at that point told the jury you were the president, chief executive officer of Coleman; right?
A. I told the jury?
Q. You mean -- you're telling the jury now on the videotape.
A. Okay. I thought I was chairman and president and CEO.
Q. Would you consider yourself the lead negotiator on the business side for Coleman?
A. I don't know what that means.
Q. Who was the lead negotiator for Coleman?
A. It was someone in MacAndrews & Forbes organization.
Q. So MacAndrews & Forbes was negotiating on behalf of Coleman?

A. On behalf of the 80 percent shareholding interest I assume.
Q. Who was representing the public shareholders then in the negotiations?
A. I was representing, in the transaction, the company and the rest of the shareholders, I viewed that as my responsibility.
Q. Who at MacAndrews & Forbes was leading the negotiations for Coleman?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I think I've answered that. I don't know who was actually doing the interfacing with Morgan Stanley.
MR. BIDEAU: Larry, would this be a good time to take a break? We've been going about an hour and a half.
MR. BEMIS: Sure.
MR. BIDEAU: What's your plan in terms of breaking for lunch?
MR. BEMIS: One o'clock. Want to try to one o'clock?
THE WITNESS: That's fine me with me.

(Discussion off the record.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now going off the record. The time is 11:49 a.m.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now going on the record. The time is 12:07 p.m.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. In your role as you've described it in the negotiations on behalf of Coleman, did you report directly to Mr. Perelman?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I reported to the board of directors for which Mr. Perelman was not a member.
Q. Did you have any responsibility on behalf of Coleman for due diligence of Sunbeam before the signing of the merger agreements?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your responsibility?
A. They asked me to review Sunbeam's business plan and long term strategy.

Q. Who is they? You said, "They asked me."
A. I don't recall. I just wound up going to the meeting as part of the due diligence. I don't know specifically who asked me.
Q. Is this meeting you referred to a meeting that took place after you returned from Puerto Rico?
A. Yes.
Q. Where Mr. Kersh made a presentation using overhead slides?
A. I know their investor relations, Rich Goudis, being at the presentation, it was probably Mr. Kersh that made the rest of it, I don't remember.
Q. Let me show you a document that's been marked as MS 84. I don't want to cover it right now but I want to see if that's the strategic plan or business plan that you were looking at.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your handwriting that appears on the document?

Page 83

A. Yes, it is.
Q. Keep it in front of you right now because we'll get back to it later.
MR. BEMIS: And when I do, I will give you a copy.
Q. Did you have any responsibility for due diligence of Sunbeam after the signing of the merger agreements? I think you said you went to Tucson.
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did anyone at the Coleman Company have due diligence responsibilities after February 28 or was it a matter that was handled by MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't know of any that Coleman did.
Q. During the negotiations on behalf -- to the extent they were being conducted on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes, was it your understanding that Mr. Perelman was taking the final responsibility on the terms of the transaction for MacAndrews & Forbes' side?

Page 84

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. BIDEAU: Same objection.
A. No.
Q. Who in your understanding was making the decisions on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
A. I don't know who made the final decision on all the terms from MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. In the course of your participation in the negotiations, did you deal with Mr. Gittis at all?
A. Mr. Gittis?
Q. Gittis at all, yes.
A. Probably.
Q. Anything in particular that you can recall as you sit here today?
A. That Mr. Gittis and I specifically discussed?
Q. Yes, that you two interfaced on.
A. He was a member of the board of directors and probably had the same dialogues that I had with the rest of the directors.

Q. Did you work at all with James Maher during the negotiations?
A. Slightly.
Q. How would you describe the slightly?
A. There were a few issues that were important to the company that I wanted to make sure were attended to.
Q. What were those issues?
A. I felt it was very important that if we were going to do this, we did it with great certainty and very fast.
Q. What do you mean by great certainty?
A. I thought it would be destructive to the value of the company to have announced a transaction with Mr. Dunlap and Sunbeam and then not consummated. I felt it would have done damage to the company from a shareholders' perspective.
Q. What did you mean by quickly?
A. As fast as they could possibly do it.
Q. Why did you want to do the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011594

transaction with Sunbeam as fast as they could possibly do it?
A. Mr. Dunlap had a unique reputation and quite a different management style than I had, different philosophies, and once the Coleman Company employees realized that we were willing to sell the company to Dunlap, it would have been hard to restore the morale, the trade relations, many implications which bothered me and since it was a public company and public data available to us, I didn't see any reason not to do a very fast, public kind of transaction.
Q. Was your view that the transaction should be done quickly a view that was also held by MacAndrews & Forbes at least to the extent that you were aware of their views?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to lack of foundation.
A. I don't know. All I know is all parties agreed that it was in everybody's interest to do this very fast.
Q. That includes the people at

Page 87

MacAndrews & Forbes that you dealt with?
A. I believe so.
Q. And the people at Sunbeam that you dealt with?
A. I didn't deal with them much but I assume they agreed.
Q. Did you deal directly with anyone at Morgan Stanley?
A. I believe there were Morgan Stanley representatives in any meeting I attended.
Q. Other than them being in a meeting, did you have any face-to-face conversations or dealings with them concerning the transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you deal with Mr. Barry Schwartz during the period that you were involved in the negotiations?
A. I don't recall specifically anything we talked about as it relates to this subject during the negotiations.
Q. Did you have any role in the drafting of the merger agreements on behalf the Coleman Company?

Page 88

A. Personally, no.
Q. What do you mean by personally no?
A. I read them before they were released to the other side. They were drafted by the attorneys. It was a fairly straightforward document. I don't remember if I had any edits or not.
Q. During the course of the negotiations, were there any particular points of interest that you focused on during the negotiations?
A. There were two points. One was the speed, which I mentioned, and the other is that management not be put in a position of having to hold Sunbeam stock or options unless they voluntarily chose to do so.
Q. What do you mean by that?
A. Well, most of the transaction value to me and to the Coleman team, and the options ran very deep, was in the form of stock options and I didn't want to wind up in a situation where I would not have control of the business, Mr. Dunlap would, and most of my personal net worth would be tied up in Sunbeam stock options. It was just something I did not want to do.

Q. Did you want Sunbeam stock as opposed to cash in the transaction, you personally?
A. Well, Sunbeam stock I could have sold right away. There wouldn't be a particular problem. In fact --
Q. You could have if it was registered but it wasn't registered stock --
A. Anything that was not saleable I did not want. I did not want Sunbeam stock.
Q. Were you one of the negotiators on the Coleman side that crafted the agreements and allowed the Coleman option holders to cash out, if you would, at a price of $27.50 per share of their Coleman stock?
A. I didn't draft it.
Q. I understand you didn't do the drafting.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 90

A. But I looked to make sure it worked to my satisfaction.
Q. Were you an advocate of that on behalf of the Coleman option holders?
A. Yes.
Q. Explain that provision to the jury, please.
A. As I recall, it gave the ability for a Coleman option holder to exercise the options immediately to be fully vested and receive no less than 27.50 in price.
Q. That was cash price?
A. In cash price, yes.
Q. Did the public shareholders have that option?
A. None of the public shareholders had options. It wasn't an issue.
Q. That was a very bad question.
Was there any provision in the merger agreements with respect to the public shareholders that gave them, even though they didn't have an option, options, stock options, the right to receive in lieu of Sunbeam stock a cash payment of 27.50 per share?

Page 91

A. They didn't need it. They could just sell their stock. It simply wasn't relevant.
Q. The Sunbeam shareholders, the public -- the Coleman public shareholders who got Sunbeam stock could immediately sell their Sunbeam stock?
A. Could immediately sell their Coleman stock.
Q. Let me try the question differently.
If they didn't sell their Coleman stock immediately before the transaction, was there any provision in the merger agreement that allowed the public shareholders of Coleman to take cash as opposed to a combination of cash and Sunbeam stock?
A. As it wasn't relevant, no.
Q. Did you deal at all in the negotiation with Mr. William Nesbitt?
A. I did not negotiate with William Nesbitt.
Q. I understand you didn't negotiate with him. Let me put it this way:

Page 92

Mr. Nesbitt was an employee of MacAndrews & Forbes or one of its affiliates; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any dealings with him in the course of the negotiations on the MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman side of the transaction?
A. I think on occasion he came to me with questions. Relating to the Coleman Company.
Q. What questions did he come to you with?
A. They could be business questions, I don't recall what they were. Generally about how we're doing, how our business works.
Q. Did you assist him at all in any analysis of a combination of Coleman and Sunbeam?
A. Other than answering direct questions, no.
Q. As you sit here today, do you remember any of the questions that he asked you?

Page 93

A. No.
Q. Did you review during the period of time that you were involved in the transaction, did you review any of the modeling that MacAndrews & Forbes did on the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction?
A. I don't recall ever seeing it.
Q. Say after the closing, did you review some of the modeling?
A. I don't recall seeing it to this day.
Q. To your knowledge, did Mr. Nesbitt have any responsibilities for due diligence of Sunbeam before the execution of the merger agreements as of February 27, 1998?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to lack of foundation.
A. I do not know what responsibilities he had.
Q. Are you aware of any responsibility that he had after February 27, 1998 up to the date of closing for due diligence of Sunbeam?
A. No.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
Q. Do you know Paul E. Shapiro?
A. Yes.
Q. At the time of the transaction, was he the general counsel of Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he have any role in the negotiations of the merger transaction?
A. I know he was supplying data.
Q. To whom?
A. The attorney work group. I don't know exactly who was in that.
Q. Do you know whether Mr. Shapiro had any responsibility for due diligence of Sunbeam after the execution of the merger agreements as of February 27, 1998?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. When did you first meet Albert Dunlap?
A. I met Al Dunlap at the time he was relatively new to Sunbeam at a Merrill Lynch CEO conference dinner.
Q. Where was this?
A. In New York.
Q. Did the two of you just casually meet each other or did you talk to each other about business matters? What happened?

Page 95

A. You don't talk to Al Dunlap; you listen to Al Dunlap.
Q. Did you listen to him?
A. I was in a small conversational group during the cocktail hour and listened to him briefly.
Q. Would this have been in 1996 or early 1997?
A. I don't know.
Q. What do you remember about the conversation that Mr. Dunlap held?
A. He declared himself the only CEO who knows anything and disparaged everybody else who was in the room and eventually several of us left.
Q. What was your impression of Mr. Dunlap after this first meeting?
A. It wasn't very good.
Q. At this time -- when you met Mr. Dunlap at this Merrill Lynch conference, were you employed by the Coleman Company?

Page 96

A. I don't remember if I was at Revlon or Coleman at that time.
Q. At this time was it your understanding that Mr. Dunlap was then with Sunbeam?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did you pass along any of your feelings about Mr. Dunlap to anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. To whom?
A. Mr. Perelman.
Q. When did you tell Mr. Perelman about your observations about Mr. Dunlap?
A. It would have been in 1997.
Q. Why do you pinpoint that year?
A. Mr. Perelman and I made a trip to Boca Raton to meet with Bernie Marcus of Home Depot and that evening he went to have cocktails with Al Dunlap.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Excuse me, 10 minutes now, counselors.
MR. BEMIS: Let's switch the tape.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You were explaining to us that you were at a meeting in Florida with Mr. Perelman, Boca Raton in particular, I think visiting Home Depot, and as I understood your testimony, Mr. Perelman had cocktails with Mr. Dunlap; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you present during that cocktail session with Mr. Dunlap?
A. No.
Q. How did the conversation come about between you and Mr. Perelman about Mr. Dunlap?
A. The next morning as we headed to the airport to go back to New York, I asked him how cocktails went.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 98

Q. What did Mr. Perelman say?
A. Great.
Q. Anything else?
A. That the guy is doing a tremendous job and has extraordinary financial returns and he couldn't understand why I couldn't produce profitability like Dunlap was doing at Sunbeam.
Q. What did you say to Mr. Perelman, if anything?
A. I said, "I assume you're talking about profits he's projecting, not profits he's actually made." Perelman said, "No, he's actually doing it. "I said I find that incredible. Mr. Perelman called Mr. Dunlap and asked him to fax to his New York office a set of the financials.
Q. The conversation that you are relating between you and Mr. Perelman was in the car on the way to the airport?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Perelman about your experience with Mr. Dunlap at the

Page 99

Merrill Lynch conference?
A. No.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Perelman your impressions of Mr. Dunlap based on your one meeting with him at the Merrill Lynch conference?
A. I don't recall doing so. This was several months later, if my memory serves me right.
Q. Can you recall anything else about the conversation that you and Mr. Perelman had in the car on the way to the airport following the cocktail session between Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman in Boca Raton?
A. I think I generally described what I recall.
Q. My understanding is that when you and Mr. Perelman return -- you and Mr. Perelman were obviously on your way back to New York; is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. At some point your understanding is that Mr. Perelman asked Mr. Dunlap for some financial statements; is that right?

Page 100

A. While we were in the car.
Q. Mr. Perelman made a phone call from the car?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he speak directly to Mr. Dunlap, to your knowledge?
A. He did.
Q. Were you able to hear the conversation?
A. No.
Q. Just one side of it, Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you recall Mr. Perelman asking of Mr. Dunlap?
A. He essentially said I'm here with Jerry Levin, I would like for him to see more of what you are doing, could you send us a copy of your financials so he could look at it.
Q. When you got back to New York were the financials there in New York in Mr. Perelman's office?
A. Yes.
Q. They were Sunbeam's financials I take it?

Page 101

A. Yes.
Q. Were these public financial statements or interim financial statements? What were they?
A. I believe it was a combination thereof.
Q. Both their interim statements as well as what was publicly on file?
A. I don't recall specifically but I believe it was a very current look at his business.
Q. At the time you looked at the public materials, were these audited financial statements?
A. I had not looked at that point at any public materials outside of what Mr. Dunlap might have provided me, whatever he sent.
Q. The financial statements that you looked at, did they include financial statements that had been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission?
A. I don't think so. This was probably towards the end of the first quarter of 1997, I suspect what I was given was a combination of actuals for early 1997 and projections for the rest of the year.

011598

Q. When you use the term actuals, you mean interim financial statements as of a particular date?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman personally give you these financial statements from Sunbeam?
A. Either he or his secretary handed them to me.
Q. Did you look at them?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you analyze them to the best of your ability?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you reach any opinions about the financial statements when you reviewed them?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. That it was a business model that I was unfamiliar with, that I did not understand how that business model would be effective over the long term.

Q. Could you please tell us what the business model was that you observed in reviewing the financial statements?
A. There did not appear to be enough investment in sales or research and development or consumer communication to sustain a business in mature industries at a remarkably high growth rate and still be very profitable at the same time.
Q. When you say remarkably high growth rate, what do you mean by that?
A. I believe the company was growing double digits, perhaps 20 percent per annum at that point.
Q. When you expressed this growth at 20 percent, is this net sales or --
A. Sales.
Q. Did you speak to Mr. Perelman about your review and analysis of the Sunbeam financial statements sent to Mr. Perelman by Mr. Dunlap?
A. Yes.
Q. How soon after you did your review did you speak to Mr. Perelman?

Page 104

A. The next morning.
Q. In New York in Mafco's offices?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you say to Mr. Perelman and what did he say to you?
A. That recognizing that Al Dunlap is currently the most admired and respected CEO in America, he's Wall Street's absolute darling, I did not know based on my own experiences how to do what he is doing. If you, Mr. Perelman, want somebody to try, find somebody else because this is not in my business skill base. I'm just a relic of the past if this is what is working out there today.
Q. What do you mean that Mr. Dunlap was the darling of Wall Street?
A. He was one of the lead commentators on CNBC, he was written up the best CEO of America by himself and the others, the analysts that run his stock price up very favorable reports. He was considered a true great celebrity CEO at that point.
Q. What did Mr. Perelman say in response to your statements to him?

A. Essentially okay.
Q. Just okay?
A. Well, he -- there was nothing to say. I wasn't going to do it and he wasn't going to fire me so it was the end of the conversation and we never discussed it again.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman ever tell you that he had offered Mr. Dunlap a position on the board of directors of the Coleman Company?
A. No. I don't recall him saying that.
Q. Had you ever heard that before today when I just said it?
A. It sounds vaguely familiar but I really don't recall specifically.
Q. Did you ever hear that Mr. Perelman had offered Mr. Dunlap the position of chief executive officer of Coleman?
A. No.
Q. The conversation that you've just related to us occurred, I take it, sometime in the summer of 1997, would that be fair?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 106

A. I think it would have been earlier because it would be unlikely that Bernie Marcus would be in the Boca house in the summer.
Q. Too hot?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever meet Mr. Dunlap after the Merrill Lynch conference?
A. Once.
Q. Was this in Mr. Perelman's offices?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you meet him?
A. It was the Friday before his analyst conference when he was going to straighten out Wall Street on the issues that were beginning to surround Sunbeam. I believe that was towards the end of April, early May of '98 but I'm sure you would have a record of it.
Q. If the analyst conference was on or about May 11, 1998, where would that put the conversation with Mr. Perelman?
A. If it was May 11, then I think I would have met in his office at May 7 or 8 or something like that.

Q. How is it you came to be at this meeting in Mr. Perelman's office where Mr. Dunlap was present right before the analyst meeting in May 1998?
A. Either Mr. Perelman or one of the other MacAndrews officers had called me about a week to two weeks before that and said they were getting concerned about what was going on at Sunbeam and they were trying to get this meeting together with Mr. Dunlap, would I do some independent research as to what was going on in the company.
Q. You said it was Mr. Perelman or someone else in the MacAndrews office who called you. Do you know who the other person is?
A. It was almost certainly either Mr. Gittis or Mr. Perelman, I don't recall which one.
Q. By the time that you met with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman, had you done the investigation that you had been asked to do by Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis?

Page 108

A. I had done some work.
Q. Had you reduced it to writing?
A. I don't recall doing that. I might have.
Q. Let me show you a document marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, would you please initial this document for me. It's not been previously marked.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168, two-page document, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Levin, I have handed you a two-page document marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. At the bottom -- did you prepare this document?
A. I believe I did.
Q. If you look on the lower right-hand side of the document, there is what I will use -- I will describe as a footer, for lack of a better term, that is 0414 and then the initials lower case jwl. Is that you?

Page 109

A. I'm jwl. I don't know who typed this because we normally don't use that kind of system but it looks like my style and I'm reasonably sure I did this.
Q. Is Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168 a document that you created as a response to the request that you received from either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis to look into Sunbeam?
A. I think it's more complicated than that. I don't think I was the sole producer of this information. Some of it I'm familiar with but I -- for instance, I don't remember ever seeing an analyst unpublished model which is referred to here and I don't know if this is a consolidation of some work I did with somebody else or not.
Q. We'll get to this in more detail later in your deposition, but does this document appear to you now as you sit here today to be part of the analysis you did at the request of Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017600

Page 110

if he was the one who asked you, to look into Sunbeam?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. BIDEAU: I think you have that backwards.
MR. BEMIS: I will withdraw the question. I know what I wanted to ask you.
Q. As you sit here today, is at least part of this document a result of an analysis you did that was requested by either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
A. I know this sounds strange but as I look at this in detail, I did not prepare this.
Q. Why do you say that?
A. Because there are many things in here that I just would never have done, would never have known and would not have access to. I might have provided some information in terms of who prepared this report. This was done with data that I just have absolutely no access to.

Page 111

Q. Looking at the document and seeing at least the initials jwl on the footer, can you tell us who you think might have been the author of the document, if not you?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form. Lack of foundation.
MR. BIDEAU: Tell if you know but don't guess --
MR. BEMIS: I can ask him for purposes so I can proceed with further discovery. I understand he will qualify his answer however he wants to qualify.
MR. BIDEAU: I will give you the same admonition: You are not required to guess. If you have a reasonable assumption as to who it is, by all means tell him; but if you don't know, you don't know.
A. I know there was a separate analysis done by Will Nesbitt independent of what I was doing.
Q. Was this an analysis of analysts who he interviewed about Mr. Dunlap?

Page 112

A. I don't know who he interviewed. I know who I interviewed but I don't know who he interviewed.
Q. Who did you interview?
A. I know I talked to Andrew Shore. I'm pretty sure I talked to Lisa Fontenelli and Connie Maneaty. I'm not sure I saw all of these, I probably saw some.
Q. As you sit here today, and now having looked at Morgan Stanley 168, did you prepare something in writing that summarized the results of whatever review and analysis that you did do after being requested?
A. I don't recall doing that. And I didn't have a secretary at the time so it would be fairly unlikely that I would have done anything.
Q. I'm not trying to be facetious but do you type?
A. Yes. Yes, I do type. Not as neatly as in this document. I could assure you I did not type this document.
Q. You can hand that back to me for now.

Page 113

Do you know anyone else in the MacAndrews & Forbes company as of, say, 1998 who had the initials jwl?
A. No.
Q. Anyone at Coleman who had those initials?
A. No.
Q. At least as of April 14, 1998, I think you told us earlier you --
(Witness and counsel confer.)
A. Pardon?
Q. I think you told us earlier that in April of 1998 you were still working for MacAndrews & Forbes without any specific responsibilities; is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. Going back now to the meeting that you had in Mr. Perelman's with Mr. Dunlap in May of 1998, I think you said, according to my notes here, that Mr. Perelman was concerned about his investment in Sunbeam at this time?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this the first time that Mr. Perelman had expressed that concern to

Cont 967

you?
A. As I said, I don't remember whether Mr. Gittis or Mr. Perelman called me but it was the first time that I became aware that they were concerned.
Q. Whether it be Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis, do you recall what they said about their concern over Sunbeam at this time?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall the specifics, I just remember they were concerned.
Q. Did you have any role in inviting Mr. Dunlap to come to MacAndrews & Forbes' offices?
A. No.
Q. Who invited you to attend?
A. Either Mr. Gittis or Mr. Perelman.
Q. Who was present at the meeting at MacAndrews & Forbes' offices when Mr. Dunlap was there; and I know you were there, who else was there?
A. I believe David Fannin who was general counsel of Sunbeam at the time was with Mr. Dunlap and I know that Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Schwartz and I were there. If somebody else attended from MacAndrews & Forbes, I don't recall.

Page 115

Q. How long did the meeting last?
A. Approximately an hour.
Q. Was it in the conference room on the first floor or --
A. No, it was in Mr. Perelman's office.
Q. Were there some social pleasantries before you got down to the merits of the meeting?
A. I'm sure there was some but they were minimal.
Q. How did the meeting start?
A. "Have you signed our proxy statement yet?"
Q. This is Mr. Dunlap asking Mr. Perelman whether they -- Mr. Perelman's companies had signed the proxy statement; correct?
A. Right.
Q. At that time Mr. Perelman's companies owned approximately 13 percent of Sunbeam?

Page 116

A. I don't recall.
Q. But it was a substantial amount?
A. It was an important vote.
Q. What happened after Mr. Dunlap started the meeting with that question?
A. They said, "Oh, we'll get to that." And then Mr. Dunlap proceeded to take us through a draft copy of his presentation to the analysts.
Q. What happened next?
A. Well, he finished the presentation and then he asked if there were any questions.
Q. And?
A. I asked him a question.
Q. Did you ask him a question about Wal-Mart?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the question?
A. "I understand that you've been discontinued from a large part of your grill sales and grill accessories at Wal-Mart."

Page 117

Q. What did he say?
A. He didn't say anything for a long pause and then proceeded to scream at the top of his voice as to what an incompetent I was.
Q. Can you be any more specific about the terms in which he expressed your incompetence?
A. Worst manager he's ever encountered, Coleman was not what we represented to him, they were off 30 million dollars in sales versus the forecast, several other unflattering comments none of which, in my opinion, were true. The ones that could easily be determined by -- anything there was data for in terms of his that we were off on sales was definitely not true other than it disturbed the marketplace some and I did not -- I still do not feel I am as incompetent as Al Dunlap.
Q. Did he tell you, "Go fuck yourself," in so many words?
A. That would be an extremely polite way of putting what he said.

014502

Page 118

Q. He did use that word; didn't he?
A. Quite a bit.
Q. And he said words to the effect, "You don't know what the fuck you were doing"; didn't he?
A. Yes.
Q. He used words to say, in effect, he was sold a dog by Mr. Perelman; didn't he?
A. Could be. I don't remember all the language. It was six years ago.
Q. Was that the import of what he said in not his exact words?
A. That all the problems were Coleman.
Q. Based on your earlier meeting with Mr. Dunlap with Merrill Lynch, did your impression of him change for the better or the worse after meeting with him in May at this meeting?
A. I don't recall whether -- his reputation was well-known. By then the meeting where he'd also been screaming and yelling at Perelman and Gittis had been in the Wall Street Journal. It was a classic

Page 119

Dunlap performance from my perspective. I wasn't particularly surprised by what happened.
Q. The meeting with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis, that was at Mr. Perelman's home in Palm Beach right before the holidays in December; correct?
A. I don't remember if it was Gittis' home or Perelman's home but it was in Palm Beach and it was at the time you mentioned.
Q. Have you read Mr. Byrne's book "Chainsaw"?
A. Yes.
Q. He describes the meeting that you just described in Mr. Perelman's office; doesn't he?
A. He might. I don't recall. It's been a long time.
Q. Were you interviewed by Mr. Byrne?
A. I was not interviewed but he did talk to me before he published it to check facts.
Q. Is one of the facts he checked what happened at the May 11 meeting, the meeting in anticipation of the analysts' conference?

Page 120

A. I think he really -- I don't recall if that was covered, I just don't remember.
Q. What if anything did you say or do as Mr. Dunlap was expressing his views on your management style and capabilities?
A. I said, "Okay, if that's the way you feel about it, fine, but did you or did you not lose distribution at Wal-Mart?"
Q. Did he answer eventually?
A. Then he got really mad and we actually were concerned about his physical well-being because he was so out of control but he didn't answer the question and finally David Fannin said, "Yes, we did lose three distribution centers," which was a small fraction of what had actually happened.
Q. Did you find out when this happened, this loss of the distribution centers at Wal-Mart? At some point in time did you find out when did it happen?

Page 121

A. Oh, I knew before I went into the meeting.
Q. When did it happen?
A. It happened, must have been sometime in February, March and it was obviously shocking to me to learn about this because one of the feature presentations of Sunbeam and why it was such a great company was the grill business and this had never been disclosed.
Q. How did you learn about this at whatever point in time you did learn about it?
A. Wal-Mart told me.
Q. Who was it at Wal-Mart that told you this?
A. I don't recall. I talked to a number of people but they made it quite clear as to what happened and how angry they were.
Q. They were angry at Sunbeam?
A. This was a punishment. This was done as a punishment.
Q. What happened next after Mr. Fannin made his statements about the situation at Wal-Mart?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014603

Page 122

A. I dropped the subject as it was ludicrous to continue that course of action and then there was one additional question asked as to whether Mr. Dunlap felt Andrew Shore would attend the analyst meeting.
Q. What was the response?
A. He got about as angry as in the second phase and proceeded to make many unflattering comments about Andrew Shore.
Q. Andrew Shore was at this time an analyst for PaineWebber; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You knew Mr. Shore I think you said; right?
A. Yes.
Q. Had you spoken to Andrew Shore by the time of this meeting about Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you speak to Mr. Shore?
A. It would have been within the two-week period before the meeting.
Q. The two-week period before the analyst meeting, May 1998?
A. Yes.

Page 123

Q. Where did you and Mr. Shore speak to each other?
A. In his office.
Q. Here in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. How long did the two of you talk?
A. I don't recall.
Q. What did you say and what did he say?
A. At that point, if my memory serves me correctly, he had issued the first negative report on Sunbeam of the analyst group that had been following Al Dunlap. He had been really the first one to get on the Dunlap bandwagon so this -- when he jumped off the bandwagon, it caused considerable concern and I believe some of the stock had started to retreat and I just wanted to hear from him his views as to what was happening at Sunbeam.
Q. What did he say about what was happening at Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall the specifics of it.
Q. You spoke to Mr. Shore because of the request given to you by Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis; right?

Page 124

A. Yes.
Q. At any point before the closing on March 30, 1998, did you speak to Mr. Shore about Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman or any of their advisors speaking to Andrew Shore about Sunbeam before the closing?
A. I'm not aware of any.
Q. What happened next at the meeting following Mr. Dunlap's remarks about Andrew Shore?
A. He stopped and said, "Well, got to go. Can I have my proxy statement?" And somebody signed it and he left.
Q. So at the end of the meeting MacAndrews & Forbes did execute a proxy statement in favor of Sunbeam's management; correct?
A. I guess it's not a proxy statement, they signed their proxy.
Q. Just so the record is clear since

Page 125

I asked a poor question: At end of the meeting, it's your recollection that MacAndrews & Forbes did sign their proxy in favor of Sunbeam's management?
A. Yes.
Q. And then the meeting was adjourned?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever meet Mr. Dunlap again?
A. No.
MR. BEMIS: Why don't we break for lunch.

(Time noted: 2:09 p.m.)

JERRY W. LEVIN, resumed and testified as follows:
EXAMINATION (Cont'd.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now going on the record. The time is 2:09 p.m.
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Levin. When we adjourned we had been talking about the meeting at Mr. Perelman's office with Mr. Dunlap in May of 1998. I want to ask a couple more quick questions on that and then we'll move on to something else.
Did Mr. Perelman say anything at the meeting beyond what you've already told me?
A. While Dunlap was there?
Q. While Dunlap was there, correct.
A. I don't recall anything.
Q. How about Mr. Gittis, did he say anything?
A. Nothing stands out.

Page 127

Q. After Mr. Dunlap left, did the three of you, Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis and yourself have a further meeting?
A. We talked for a few minutes.
Q. What was said?
A. When Dunlap was in his third tirade about Andrew Shore, he cut himself off in the middle of a sentence and stopped talking and said, "It's time to go," and we speculated as to what exactly happened there and why Dunlap cut himself off.
Q. What was Mr. Dunlap saying at the point he cut himself off?
A. He was using some very derogatory language about Andrew Shore and he just stopped in the middle of a sentence.
Q. Anything else that you can remember discussing after Mr. Dunlap left the meeting?
A. I think we generally concurred that he wasn't particularly ready for the analyst meeting, a very disorganized presentation.
Q. At any point in the meeting did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes side express to Mr. Dunlap a willingness to have you help out at Coleman or Sunbeam?

A. I don't remember them doing that.
Q. You mentioned that you found out that there had been a loss of certain distribution centers involving Wal-Mart and Sunbeam and I think you said that the dates were sometime in February or March that this occurred. Am I correct, that's when you found out or is that when it happened at Wal-Mart?
A. I found out --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Excuse me, I object to the form of the question.
MR. BEMIS: I will withdraw the question. I will ask it again. It was a pretty poorly phrased question.
Q. You were testifying that at some point you learned that Sunbeam was having difficulties with Wal-Mart, they were losing some business to certain distribution centers. Do you recall that testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you find out that that had happened?

Page 129

A. In the two-week period before the meeting.
Q. You found this out by speaking to someone at Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. At Wal-Mart. I'd misspoken.
A. Yes.
Q. So the time that you spoke to the person at Wal-Mart was approximately two weeks before the May 1998 analyst meeting?
A. A week or two would be fine.
Q. The person that you spoke to at Wal-Mart, did that person tell you the date at which Sunbeam had lost whatever business it had at these distribution centers?
A. No.
Q. Did you find that out later?
A. I'm sure I did sometime much later but it has just to do with the timing of when grills are shipped. Grills are really shipped very early in the year. That losing distribution of fresh product in April wouldn't be as impactful as losing in December, January, February because they're starting to fill their warehouses with the product and I just assumed it was sometime in that period.

014505

Page 130

Q. But as you sit here today, you don't know the time that Sunbeam lost these distribution center accounts with Wal-Mart?
A. I probably knew sometime later in 1998 but I don't recall exactly what I found out.
Q. You testified that you were present where Mr. Dunlap was present at a Merrill Lynch conference and he spoke as you described it and you were also present at Mr. Perelman's office in May of 1998. Between the first conversation you had with Mr. Perelman at the Merrill Lynch conference and the one in May of 1998, did you ever speak to Mr. Perelman about your views on whether Mr. Perelman should take cash or stock if he did a transaction with Sunbeam?
MR. BIDEAU: I think you misspoke that you had meetings with Mr. Perelman and conversations with Mr. Perelman.
MR. BEMIS: One more time.

Page 131

Q. Between the conversation you had with Mr. Dunlap at the Merrill Lynch meeting and the May 1998 meeting at Mr. Perelman's office where Mr. Dunlap was present, did you ever express to Mr. Perelman your views on whether he should take cash or stock if he did a transaction with Sunbeam?
A. Yes. The part of the time period you are referring to, transaction had already occurred.
Q. When did you tell him that?
A. I told him that -- it would have been probably late December of '97 through February 20th of '98.
Q. Did you have more than one conversation with Mr. Perelman on the subject of whether he should take cash or stock in the transaction with Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. When was the first such conversation that you had with Mr. Perelman?
A. I don't recall. It is just what I told you. That would have been the time frame in which we discussed it because it's when I first knew something was a factor which was December and then February 20 it was all over so there was no point in having the conversation.

Q. What did you say to Mr. Perelman when you discussed with him whether he should take cash or stock in Sunbeam?
A. I still didn't understand the business model and I really thought he should take as much cash as he could.
Q. What did Mr. Perelman say?
A. He didn't really respond. He listened. Never told me what was on his mind.
Q. I take it that you had more than one of these conversations in this period between December 1997 and February 1998; is that fair?
A. A few. The transaction was off and on from my knowledge. I knew they were thinking about December then it was off, then I might have heard about it a month later that they were still talking and then it was off. February 19, approximately, I got a phone call saying they had agreed in principal.

Q. February 19, that's when you were in Puerto Rico and came back to New York; right?
A. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, would you mark as Morgan Stanley 442 a transcript of a deposition of Mr. Levin in the Russell Kersh and Sunbeam Corporation arbitration proceeding and that transcript is dated August 2, 2000.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 442, deposition transcript of Mr. Levin dated August 2, 2000, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Do you have Exhibit Morgan Stanley 442 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you give a deposition in this arbitration proceeding on or about August 2, 2000?
A. Apparently, yes.
Q. As I recall, you said at one

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011606

Page 134

point you read your transcript after the proceedings that you gave testimony in and you made corrections or changes as appropriate; am I right in that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is Exhibit Morgan Stanley 442 a copy of your deposition transcript in the arbitration proceeding?
A. I would have to go through the entire document to be completely positive but it appears to be.
Q. If it turns out it is not, your counsel can let us know.
Sir, did you tell Mr. Perelman at one of the instances in which you talked about cash or stock, did you tell him in the strongest possible terms not to take any stock of Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall exactly how I phrased it but I did feel strongly about it.
Q. Sir, if you will turn to page 112 of your deposition transcript we've marked as Exhibit MS 442. Tell me when you're there.

A. This is page 112?
Q. Yes, sir. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. In response to the question on line 1 of page 112, I'd ask you to turn now to page 113, line 5. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you give the following answer in response at least to that question in part:
"Answer: I gave that to Perelman, I was predisposed. I had a mind set, I should say, as to what this was all about and then started reading the analysts' reports. And I could read a balance sheet. I saw the build of inventories, changes to the cash flow of the company and I told Perelman in the strongest possible terms not to take any stock of this company and he chose to ignore me."
Did you give that answer in response to the question on page 112?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. BEMIS: What's your basis?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. BEMIS: I can cure it --
MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't think you've laid a foundation for impeaching him, if that's what you are doing, and he hasn't indicated his recollection is exhausted and the question is not properly in context here.
Q. You can go ahead and answer.
A. I believe so.
Q. You can set that aside for now.
Did Mr. Perelman ever express to you why he chose to ignore you when you recommended cash rather than taking Sunbeam stock in the strongest possible terms?
A. No.
Q. Not in any way?
A. He listened to me but then he took his own counsel and given I was a lone voice in the wilderness with all of Wall Street and the stock is high and Dunlap's book being a best seller, all those things,

I was one voice and he chose to ignore me and go with the conventional wisdom.
Q. Which was?
A. That Dunlap was the future of CEOs, that that was the right way of running a company and that I was a dinosaur.
Q. When was the very first point in time in which you learned there was some interest in Sunbeam acquiring an interest in Coleman?
A. A few days before the December meeting, I believe Mr. Gittis called me and said that Sunbeam has expressed an interest in Coleman and they would like me to prepare for a meeting to present to them what our annual plan is and how we might fit these companies together.
Q. Let me show you a document that has been previously marked as --
You mentioned a December meeting, you are now in December of 1997; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. This is the meeting I think you earlier referred to as presenting certain

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011607

Page 138

ideas about a combination of the two companies?
A. We did present this as part of a meeting.
Q. I just want to put the meeting in context. I will hand you an exhibit previously marked as Morgan Stanley 78. I will slide that over to you.
The first page of the document is not something I have any specific questions about. It's the second page I just want to ask you a couple of quick questions on.
Are you on the second page of MS 78?
A. Yes.
Q. I want you to ignore the handwriting on the document for the time being. Is this the document that -- or one of the documents that you discussed at this meeting in December of 1997?
A. I believe it was.
Q. Did you prepare this document yourself or was it prepared by someone else or did you assist in preparing it?
A. It was the consolidation of ideas of three of us.

Q. Who were those three?
A. Paul Shapiro and Joe Page.
Q. Was this the first document that you were involved in preparing following your being informed that Sunbeam had an interest in acquiring Coleman?
A. I think the first document we prepared was to summarize our 1998 annual plan and where we stood in 1997, it was a 1997 forecast and 1998 annual plan if memory serves me right.
Q. Did you prepare a summary document that you used at the meeting where the second page of MS 78 was used?
A. I think so.
Q. Let's step back now. I want you to focus on the first conversation you had with the people at MacAndrews & Forbes about the possible interest of Sunbeam. Who do you recall made the first communication with you on that topic?
A. I think it was Howard Gittis.
Q. How close in time was it to the meeting in which you discussed the second page of Morgan Stanley, Exhibit 78?

A. Measured in days, not weeks.
Q. What did Mr. Gittis say to you and what did you say to him in this first telephone call about Sunbeam's interest in Coleman?
A. Their interest in making an offer, he wanted us to show where the '97, '98 outlook and could I put together a list of the synergies of the two companies.
Q. I take it you told him you would do that?
A. I told him, yes, we would do the first part and the second part was impossible.
Q. The second part being the synergies?
A. Synergies. Because we didn't know anything about the other company at that point nor did we have any idea how they were going to operate the companies together because I was aware that Dunlap had a significantly different operating philosophy than I had.
Q. Did you then discuss Mr. Gittis' call with Mr. Page and Mr. Shapiro?

Page 141

A. Eventually, yes.
Q. The three of you put your heads together and came up with whatever materials you used at the meeting with Sunbeam; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was present at this meeting on behalf of Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall. I've been asked on a number of occasions, I just don't remember who the people were in the room.
Q. How long did the meeting last?
A. An hour or two.
Q. How did it go?
A. Fine. I don't think they asked us a lot of questions.
Q. They seemed to pay attention?
A. Yes. Everyone was polite.
Q. Mr. Dunlap, he wasn't there; was he?
A. He was definitely not there.
Q. Who attended on behalf of the MacAndrews & Forbes side of the transaction besides yourself?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014608

Page 142

A. Well, the three Coleman employees which were myself, Paul Shapiro and Joe Page. I do not recollect whether somebody from MacAndrews & Forbes attended that or not.
Q. The fax cover sheet which appears on MS 78, I think we've established in the record pretty clearly this meeting most likely occurred on December 12, 1997. Would that square with your recollection of the timing of the meeting?
A. It was approximately in that time frame.
Q. Did you know at the time that you had the meeting on or about December 12, 1997 that there was a meeting that was going to take place at Mr. Perelman's or Mr. Gittis' home in Palm Beach with Mr. Dunlap?
A. No.
Q. Did you find out about that meeting after the fact, the meeting at the home?
A. Yes.
Q. You spent about an hour and half, as I think you said, they seemed to listen, you talked. How did the parties leave the meeting?

A. They thanked us. There was really no conversation with us other than we offered if you have additional questions, please call us. They had our business cards and they took copies of the material and that was the end of it from our perspective. We did what we were asked to do as best we could.
Q. Was there any follow-up by the Sunbeam attendees at the December 12 meeting with you?
A. I don't recollect it; but from previous depositions it's been pointed out to me there was another conversation, I don't know if it was by phone or in person, but they did ask me additional questions about this but to this day I don't remember.
Q. Somebody from Sunbeam asked you additional questions?
A. Yes.
Q. As of December 12, 1997, had

Page 144

MacAndrews & Forbes or any of its affiliated companies done a valuation of Coleman?
A. None that I had access to.
Q. Did you hear that there had been such a valuation done?
A. No.
Q. Had you, during the year 1997, in some fashion studied Coleman and concluded what price it could be sold for if it was purchased by another company?
A. I was not interested in selling the company and did not participate in that process.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, would you mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 443 Mr. Levin's deposition transcript taken June 20, 2001 in the case In the Matter of In Re: Sunbeam Corporation.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 443, deposition transcript of Mr. Levin taken June 20, 2001, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. First of all, sir, did you give a deposition in the matter set forth in

Page 145

Morgan Stanley Exhibit 443, that is In Re: Sunbeam Corporation?
A. Apparently so.
Q. Was this one of the deposition transcripts that you said after you gave the deposition you read it and you made corrections if you found any errors?
A. Probably.
MR. BIDEAU: Just for the record, the one you gave us doesn't have a signed errata sheet. That's the same for the last transcript. You asked the question but I want to make clear on the record we don't know if the one you have here is the one done after the errata sheet was signed or not.
MR. BEMIS: I don't know if he did an errata sheet.
MR. BIDEAU: I'm not saying he did or didn't. I think -- since you set the precedent, I wanted to be clear. I think these were in the bankruptcy proceedings.
Q. If you will turn to page 25. Tell me when you are there. Are you there, sir?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 146

A. Yes.
Q. Were you asked the following questions and give the following answers beginning on page 25, line 9 of your deposition of June 20, 2001:
"Question: Do you recall any discussions about whether or not a purchase price of two times sales was better than what other comparable companies were worth on a trading basis?
"Answer: Yes.
"Question: What do you recall about that?
"Answer: We had studied the question earlier and reached a conclusion that if we sold Coleman somewhere in the mid teens per share, we would be very happy with the transaction.
"Question: When was that?
"Answer: During 1997.
"Question: Did anything change between the point when you had that recognition and the time when Mr. Perelman agreed to the purchase price that would have cost Coleman to have increased significantly in value?

"Answer: As valued as an independent company, no.
"Question: Just so the record is clear, when you say mid teens, that is 15, 16 dollars a share; is that a fair statement?
"Answer: Yes."
Were you asked those questions and did you give those answers in 2001, sir?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Yes.
Q. How had you studied the valuation of Coleman in 1997? What had been done?
A. I'm sure it was quite informal. We were a public company. We would look at the competitive multiples, we looked at sales that took place. It's kind of like trying to figure out what your house is worth when you're not really selling it and we had estimates that if the company was put up for sale, it would be somewhere in that range. These are done by myself. I don't know that we had a written study.

Q. My understanding is when you reached this price of 15 to 16 dollars a share, that that did include the assumption of whatever Coleman debt had by the buyer; is that correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Yes.
Q. Am I also correct that the 15 to 16 dollar per share price we've been referring to did not include the assumption of debt of the Coleman holding companies, CON holdings of over $500 million in 1997; is that correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I'm not sure -- I get a little confused with how all that debt was held for a long time as I thought about it but for the equity that was trading on the New York Stock Exchange, that was my conclusion.
Q. You can set that transcript aside for the time being.

Page 149

Did you ever see an analysis done by Chase involving a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I don't recall seeing anything like that.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 77. I've handed you what has been marked as Ms. Exhibit 77. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. This bears CPH Bates numbers 1425610 and then continuing to CPH 1425629. Have you seen this document before?
A. I don't recall seeing it.
Q. Did you ever hear that Chase had done an analysis of a Coleman/Sunbeam Corporation combination?
A. I don't recall ever hearing about that.
Q. You can hand it back to me if you haven't seen it.
Did you report the results of your December 12 meeting with the Sunbeam personnel to anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I'm sure I did.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 150

Q. Do you have a recollection as you sit here today of doing that?
A. No.
Q. Let me show you a document previously marked as MS 104. I will hand you two copies. If you would be so kind as to pass them over to other counsel, I would appreciate it.
I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 104 which was, according to Mr. William Nesbitt, prepared by him sometime in December of 1997. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. I do not recall seeing this.
Q. Even if you have not seen this specific document, did you see any documents similar in format to this concerning a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I do not recall seeing any.
Q. At any point up to the execution of the merger agreements as of February 27, 1998, did you see any analyses of a Sunbeam/Coleman combination that was prepared by Mr. William Nesbitt?

Page 151

A. I don't recall seeing any.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
What's the next thing that you remember happening in connection with the transaction following your meeting on December 12, 1997 with the Sunbeam personnel in which the synergies ideas were discussed, along with other matters as you've told us?
A. Well, I had reported back to me that meeting with Dunlap to try to work out a transaction was a disaster, that Mr. Perelman wanted $30 a share, that was his price, and Dunlap was somewhere in the low 20s, I can't recall exactly what it was, and that it was dead.
Q. The meeting that was a disaster, this is the meeting at Mr. Perelman's home or Mr. Gittis' home in Palm Beach; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. There comes a point in time when the Coleman Company retains Credit Suisse First Boston as its investment banker; correct?

Page 152

A. Yes.
Q. When was that?
A. It would have been sometime after February 20.
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 169. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 169 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. This document has previously been identified as the Coleman Company's retention letter with Credit Suisse First Boston signed by Mr. Shapiro whose signature you will see appears on the third page. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. This document is dated December 10, 1997. Can you explain to me why, if Credit Suisse First Boston was retained in February, there's a retention letter dated December 10, 1997?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Other than that my memory was incorrect, no.

Page 153

Q. That happens sometimes.
Did you have any role, you personally have any role in hiring Credit Suisse First Boston on behalf of the Coleman Company?
A. I'm sure that it was my first choice to use in this situation and was probably involved in the major terms.
Q. Did you make the call to Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Quite probably. I don't know. A number of us were very friendly with the team at Credit Suisse First Boston and I'm not sure who made the first call to Gordon Rich.
Q. Setting aside who made the first call to Gordon Rich, what was the assignment given to Credit Suisse First Boston when they were retained?
A. Other than reading you the assignment, I'm not sure what I can add to that. This looks accurate.
Q. When you say reading the assignment, you are referring to the engagement letter, Exhibit MS 169, on page

1 items A through E?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Credit Suisse First Boston assist you or Mr. Page or Mr. Shapiro in any way in preparing for the December 12 meeting with Sunbeam?
A. I do not believe so.
Q. Could you tell me what your -- did Credit Suisse First Boston do any due diligence of Sunbeam after December 10, 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. They did due diligence with respect to providing a fairness opinion.
Q. Anything other than the fairness opinion?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I think most of their activities, as I recall, were directly related to providing us a fairness opinion.
Q. Let me show you a document that has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley 230. I've handed you an exhibit marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230. Do you have that in front of you?

A. Yes.
Q. Item number 12 which appears on the last page is entitled, "Due Diligence." Tell me when you're there.
A. Okay.
Q. The second paragraph under, "Due Diligence" states as follows: "Credit Suisse First Boston also met with Sunbeam senior management on February 23, 1998 and February 24, 1998 to discuss Sunbeam's strategic plan in 1997 results. Credit Suisse First Boston attendees were Robert Duffy and Steven Geller."
Do you see those two sentences?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any due diligence other than these two items that are identified by Credit Suisse First Boston?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the lack of foundation.
A. Do I recall any other than the technical legal work on contracts and issues surrounding the legal side? No.

Page 156

Q. The February 23 meeting of 1998, that is the same meeting I think you had testified you attended and we identified your handwriting on the notes in Exhibit MS 84; is that correct, sir?
A. If you say it was February 23, I will take your word for it.
Q. Let me show you a document that's been identified as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 165 at another deposition. Sir, I handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 165 in the deposition of Mr. Nesbitt. Have you seen this document before?
A. Not to the best of my recollection.
Q. You can hand it back to me if you don't recall seeing it.
Going into the meeting on December 12, 1997 between Sunbeam and the Coleman Company personnel including yourself, had there been any discussion that you participated in as to the price that Mr. Perelman wanted for his interest in the Coleman Company?

Page 157

A. I knew he wanted $30 per share but I don't know when I obtained that knowledge, whether it was before or after that meeting.
Q. Is it fair to say that the next thing you can recall happening after the December 12 meeting is finding out that the meeting at Mr. Perelman's house, which is where it turns out it was, was a disaster?
A. I can't recall anything.
Q. Did you ever discuss with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes what actually transpired at the meeting, who said what to who?
A. Oh, I'm sure we did because the entertainment value was substantive.
Q. The entertainment value of what happened at the meeting?
A. Things like Howard Gittis saying he thought he was going to have a heart attack.
Q. That is Mr. Dunlap --
A. Mr. Dunlap was going to have a heart attack. Things like that. Not the substance.

Q. Did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes tell you that the meeting with Mr. Dunlap was funny?
A. No. I found it entertaining.
Q. Did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes tell you that they laughed at Mr. Dunlap while he was there?
A. No.
Q. Let me show you a document that has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 418. I've handed you a document that has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 418. It's entitled, "Draft for Immediate Release, Sunbeam Corporation Announces Combination With Coleman; Chairman Al Dunlap Commits to Multiyear Contract Extension," and it's headlined Delray Beach, Florida, December 22, 1997. Please take a look at it.
A. Okay.
Q. Have you ever seen this draft press release before dated December 22, 1997?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever become aware when you became the president and chief executive officer of Sunbeam that Sunbeam had actually drafted a press release on the date of December 22, 1997 announcing the acquisition of Coleman?

Page 159

A. No.
Q. Is this the first time you have ever seen this?
A. Yes.
Q. I want to take you up to the end of the year 1997, let's go to New Year's Eve December 31, 1997. Are you there with me, that time period?
A. Okay.
Q. Would you tell me as best you can summarize it, to your knowledge, what due diligence of Sunbeam had been done by MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman up to that date?
A. I could only tell you what was done by Coleman. I do not know what in addition was done by MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. Fair enough. Tell me what Coleman did.
A. When Mr. Gittis asked us to prepare for this meeting which has not been identified by date --

Page 160

MR. BIDEAU: December 12.
A. December 12.
Q. Yes, sir.
A. We got ahold of all the public filings of the company and Joe Page, Paul Shapiro and I, all three of us went to the public filings to get as much of a sense of what was going on in the company and what they were trying to accomplish, particularly so that we could take a guess as to what -- how they would manage the Coleman Company as part of Sunbeam in response to Mr. Gittis's request that we do that.
Q. What public filings would have been available and that you would have looked at as of December 31, 1997?
A. I believe we looked at all the recent 10-Qs, 10-K from the year prior, proxy statements, press releases. I don't recall getting ahold of analysts' reports and going through those but one of the three of us might have.

Page 161

Q. To the best of your knowledge, had Credit Suisse First Boston done anything for the Coleman Company pursuant to its engagement letter dated December 10, 1997?
A. I don't recall what they did.
Q. Or whether they did anything?
A. I'm sorry, could you repeat that?
Q. Your answer was I don't recall what they did and my question was and you don't recall if they did anything; do you?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. BIDEAU: Why don't you back up a little bit because even I lost the question now.
Q. Let me try it one more time.
As of December 31, 1997, can you tell us any work that Credit Suisse First Boston did by way of due diligence of Sunbeam up to the end of the year of 1997?
A. Well, I thought, as did the Coleman management team, some relief that the transaction was dead so we did not ask CSFB to do anything at that point.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. So is it fair to say that by year end 1997, as far as you know as you sit here today, Credit Suisse First Boston didn't do any due diligence of Sunbeam because, as you put it, the transaction was dead?
A. There was nothing they did at our request that I'm aware of.
Q. The transaction is dead and we're now going into the new year 1998. What is the next thing that you remember happening; the phone call on February 19 while you were in Puerto Rico?
A. No. I think there were at least one maybe two flare-ups where Morgan Stanley was pushing to find a way of doing the transaction. I know I was talking to MacAndrews & Forbes on occasion. They seemed fairly far apart. Perelman was adamant he was not going to sell the company for less than $30 and, to the best of my knowledge, it was really going nowhere.
Q. Let me show you two additional analyses that Mr. Nesbitt prepared in early

Page 163

1998 and ask if you have ever seen those. I will show you Morgan Stanley Exhibits 106 and 107. We'll start with 106 first.
Do you have Exhibit Morgan Stanley 106 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Nesbitt testified in his deposition that he prepared this document. Have you ever seen this before?
A. No. As I stated earlier, I had never, to the best of my recollection, seen this or any permutations of it as you asked me earlier.
Q. Then I will not show the next exhibit because it looks just like this one but with a couple permutations. You can hand that back to me.
Did you have at any point up to the execution of the merger agreements as of February 27, 1998 any discussions with Mr. Nesbitt that you can remember now concerning modeling or analyses, if you will, of a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman on a pro forma basis?
A. As I stated earlier, I think on occasion he would pick up the phone and call me and ask me a question about something relating to the business but I really didn't know what he was doing with it. I didn't follow through.

Q. I take it, then, you had no responsibility for doing any type of financial modeling of a combination of Coleman and Sunbeam on a pro forma basis assuming a combination; is that fair?
A. That's correct.
Q. That was somebody else's responsibility; right?
A. Apparently, yes.
Q. And you weren't asked to approve or sign off on any of these pro forma combination analyses; were you?
A. No.
Q. That was somebody at MacAndrews & Forbes; if they wanted to do it, that was their task; right?
A. Yes.
Q. You didn't have any involvement in whatever these possible communications were between Morgan Stanley and MacAndrews

Page 165

& Forbes leading up to the call to you on February 19, 1998; right?
A. As I mentioned, there might have been little flare-ups where I would hear that they are talking again. No.
Q. Setting aside hearing about something happening, you didn't participate directly at all; right?
A. No.
Q. So you are effectively out of the picture, if you will, from the December 1997 time period, as you described, up until this phone call on February 19; right?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form of the question. I think it's misleading.
MR. BEMIS: I will rephrase the question. I was trying to move it along a little faster.
Q. Between December of 1997, towards the end the year and the February 19, 1998 call, did you have any substantive communications with anyone at Sunbeam about the transaction?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 166

A. I did not talk to anyone at Sunbeam at all during that time period.
Q. Same question with regard to MacAndrews & Forbes.
A. I'm not sure how to define substantive because the sale of the company would be quite substantive even in a casual mention, but there was really no discussion about the transaction itself, the chances of it happening. I was busy running the business under the assumption that this was not going to happen.
Q. So is it fair to say that during this December 1997 period to February 19, whatever discussions were ongoing between Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes, you weren't participating in them except indirectly hearing about them?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I object. I don't know if you are being -- whether it's inadvertent or not, but there are documents that you have in your possession, Mr. Bemis, that bear directly upon this that you are choosing not to show the witness and I think that question is misleading on that basis.

MR. BEMIS: Is your objection misleading?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes, misleading. You've got documents, you choose not to show them and you are asking misleading questions.
A. As best as I recall, I had very limited involvement in the time period that you are asking about.
Q. There was a meeting with Sunbeam personnel that took place in New York in a room where Coleman, if you will, products were on display and there was a discussion of the Coleman business. Did you attend that meeting?
A. I mentioned earlier that the data I've been shown since has indicated that I did or by telephone, but I don't remember attending that meeting.
Q. Is that the only other meeting that has been brought to your attention during this time period that you don't remember?

Page 168

A. Yes.
Q. By February 19, had you seen the announcement that Sunbeam had missed its estimates or street estimates for the fourth quarter of 1997?
A. By when?
Q. By February 19.
A. I believe so.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Exhibit 206. You have Exhibit 206 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. If you will turn to the second page, you are shown as being on the distribution list for this exhibit. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall getting this exhibit?
A. I recall reading it. Whether I read it in the Wall Street Journal before I got this or through this communication, I don't recall.
Q. Did you have any discussions internally at MacAndrews & Forbes, or at

Page 169

Coleman for that matter if you wish to make that distinction, about the Sunbeam announcement reflected in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 206?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form of the question.
MR. BEMIS: Let me rephrase it.
Q. Did you have any discussions at MacAndrews & Forbes about Morgan Stanley Exhibit 206 or the subject matter reflected in it?
A. I'm sure we discussed it at the Coleman level. I don't recall specifically discussing it at MacAndrews though I certainly might have.
Q. What discussions do you recall at the Coleman level?
A. There seemed to be some flaws in the Sunbeam situation.
Q. Who did you have these discussions with at the Coleman Company?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you take any steps to investigate these flaws at the Sunbeam company as a result of receiving Morgan

Stanley 206?
A. No.
Q. I'm going to show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75. This is a document used in many of the other depositions. It's a chronology made by one of the law firms. I will hand it to you. Do you have Exhibit 75 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Please turn to the entry, it's page 2 but it's not actually page 2 if you were to count the pages from the beginning, but turn to the entry for January 29, 1998 and tell me when you are there.
MR. BIDEAU: Are we looking at the exhibit to the letter or the exhibit itself?
MR. BEMIS: I'm directing his attention to the January 28, 1998 entry.
Q. Tell me when you're there.
A. Okay.
Q. I want you to focus on January 29, 1998 beginning Barry F. Schwartz. Do you see that?

Page 171

A. Yes.
Q. In the third paragraph down from that entry there's a reference to a meeting between Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs, Chang, Fannin and Kersh along with Messrs. Levin, Page, Shapiro, Maher, Nesbitt and Rich. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Does this in any way refresh your recollection of a meeting that you had in New York concerning the proposed or suggested synergies that might be achieved between a combination of the two companies?
A. It looks like more people than can fit in the conference room that we had this in. I don't remember the meeting being nearly that large.
Q. But do you remember a meeting where some of those people attended and you discussed possible synergies that might be achieved in a combination?
A. This is January -- I'm sorry. This is the meeting I don't remember participating in.

Page 172

Q. Does this help you remember the meeting at all because if it doesn't, I will just move on.
A. I simply don't remember this meeting.
Q. Set that exhibit aside. We are done with January 29 for right now.
Did you see at any time before February 19 of 1998 when you got this phone call, did you see the confidentiality agreement that was executed between Sunbeam and the Coleman Company?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall.
Q. I will show you the document. Maybe that will help. I only have one clean copy of that one. This is MS 133.
I've handed you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 133. Do you have it in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. I can't recall. I might or might not have.

Q. In all of the merger transactions or acquisition transactions that you've been involved with, which I think you said was at one point in excess of 300, have you seen confidentiality agreements exchanged among the parties?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it customary in your view, in mergers and acquisitions transactions, for the parties to exchange a form of confidentiality agreement?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form. Lack of foundation.
A. Can you repeat the question?
Q. In your experience in mergers and acquisitions as you described your experience, is it customary for the parties to exchange confidentiality agreements?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form. Lack of foundation.
A. Yes.
Q. Is it customary, in your experience, for the parties to exchange cross or mutual confidentiality agreements?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 174

MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objections.
A. It depends on the transaction but with two public companies, I would say yes.
Q. You can set aside Morgan Stanley Exhibit 133.
Let's move forward to February 19. You've told us you were in Puerto Rico. What were you doing there?
A. I was scheduled to attend an Ecolabs board of directors meeting.
Q. Ecolabs?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you spell that just so we make sure we get it right?
A. E-C-O-L-A-B-S.
Q. Is that one of Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. No.
Q. Are you on the board of directors of this company or were you at that time?
A. I was and still am.
Q. You were reached by either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis; right?
A. There was a message when I arrived and was attempting to check in at the hotel which said please call Mr. Perelman.

Page 175

Q. Did you do so?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you reach him?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you talk?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you say and what did he say?
A. I said, "Hello, what's up?" He said he cut a deal with Dunlap to sell Coleman to Sunbeam. I said how much. He said 27.50 a share. I asked him if it was all cash and he said no.
Q. And?
A. I said, "I will see you tomorrow."
Q. That's all?
A. He was at a cocktail party or something, there was a tremendous amount of noise, it was very hard to talk.
Q. I take it that you flew back to New York from Puerto Rico on the following day, on the 20th?

Page 176

A. I took the first flight out in the morning.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Excuse me. 10 minutes, counselor.
MR. BEMIS: Why don't we take a break here and change the tape. We've been going almost an hour and a half already. Time flies.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now going off the record. The time is 3:23 p.m. This is the end of tape labeled 2 of this videotaped deposition. We will continue on tape labeled 3.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This is tape labeled 3 of the videotaped deposition of Jerry Levin. We're now going on the record. The time is 3:36 p.m.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You took the first flight out from Puerto Rico to New York on February 20th; right?
A. I don't absolutely recall the dates, but, yes.
Q. What's the first thing that you did after you arrived back in New York in connection with the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction?

Page 177

A. I went to MacAndrews & Forbes headquarters. By the time I got there, most folks were assembled. There was a broad array of lawyers and investment bankers. And they started the meeting.
Q. Was this a meeting that was attended by anyone other than people on the MacAndrews & Forbes side of the transaction?
A. Yes, I believe both sides of the transaction were there. If my memory serves me.
Q. On this same day was there a meeting later in the evening at Morgan Stanley's offices in New York?
A. I only went to one meeting in Morgan Stanley's office and that was when the plan was presented to us. I don't recall being in Morgan Stanley's office for any other meeting.
Q. My question was the meetings that you were referring to that you went into

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 178

when you arrived on the 20th, did the meeting at Morgan Stanley's office occur the same day?
A. The meeting that I attended?
Q. Yes.
A. I don't think so.
Q. That helps. Thank you.
The reason I was pausing is because you're suggesting that you went into a meeting when you arrived. I don't have a reference to a meeting on that date. If you arrived on the 20th, if that's helpful to you, that's a Friday. Is it your recollection that you went into meetings on February 20th when you arrived upon coming back from Puerto Rico?
A. Well, as I said earlier, we surmised that these meetings took place February 19, 20th. That he called me on the 19th. I don't remember the exact date, I just know it was the evening when I went down for an Ecolabs board meeting and I do recall getting up in the morning very early, catching the early flight and going right to MacAndrews & Forbes' board room.

There were a lot of people as I recall.
Q. As you sit here today, do you remember who was present at this meeting assuming it was on February 20th?
A. I believe both sets of attorneys were there, representatives of both sides. I suspect Morgan Stanley was there, I don't know. If Credit Suisse First Boston was there, I don't recollect that. There were some MacAndrews & Forbes people.
Q. Was this a drafting session for agreements?
A. I think it was sort of the first step of the process to start the drafting and getting the information together as the two principals had agreed to a price and a structure sometime the day before, I got the meeting but I don't remember --
Q. Do you have a specific recollection as you sit here today of anyone from Morgan Stanley being at this first meeting when you returned?
A. No.
Q. How long did this meeting last? Assuming it was on February 20, how long did it last?

Page 180

A. For me, not very long. I just had a couple points I wanted to make and then they went back to work.
Q. The next business day, if you will, is February 23 if that's helpful to you. Can you tell us what's the next thing you remember doing after the meeting you attended in the board room assuming it was February 20th?
A. I don't recall but I'm sure I was busy informing key Coleman managers as to what was going on.
Q. Let me move forward to the evening of February 23rd. I showed you a document earlier, MS 84, which has been testified to as having been available at that meeting. Would you please put that in front of you.
A. Okay. So this would have been the Monday evening according to the timetable --
Q. According to the timetable we're working off, yes. Before we get into the details of this, if you look at MS 75 which is the chronology we were working with earlier --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Mr. Bemis, before you get into questions about 84, I didn't get any copy of that when you went through it the first time.
MR. BEMIS: Let me give you a copy. We have an extra copy.
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. If you turn to page 3 of the chronology and focus on the date February 23, 1998.
A. Yes.
Q. There is reference on that date to a meeting between Messrs. Nesbitt, Page, Levin, Shapiro, Duffy and Geller meeting with Messrs. Stynes, Fuchs and Richard Goudis vice president finance and investor relations of Sunbeam in New York to conduct due diligence. Do you see that entry?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall that meeting?
A. No.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

016618

Page 182

Q. Then you don't know how long it lasted I take it?
A. Correct.
Q. There is then, if you turn the page, a second meeting identified between Messrs. or among Messrs. Nesbitt, Shapiro, Levin, Page, Maher, Duffy, Steven Isko, Messrs. Fannin, Kersh, Kitts, Stynes, Fuchs, Chang and Goudis at Morgan Stanley office. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall this meeting?
A. Yes. I also recall that I was introduced to Mr. Goudis for the first time at this meeting so there's a fair chance that I was not at that earlier meeting.
Q. Is that the earlier meeting on the date of the 23rd?
A. Yes.
Q. That may explain why you don't remember it then.
Look at MS 84 which you should now have in front of you. Let's start at the beginning. How long did this meeting last at Morgan Stanley's offices that evening of February 23?

A. I don't recall but it was at least an hour.
Q. How is it that you came to attend the meeting?
A. I was probably in the best position to evaluate their business plans from our group.
Q. When you say their business plan, you mean Sunbeam's business plan?
A. Yes. That's Sunbeam's long range strategic plan.
Q. The handwriting in MS 84 is entirely your handwriting; correct?
A. As far as I had a chance to look through this document, yes.
MR. BIDEAU: Why don't you go through and see if there's anything that doesn't look like yours.
A. All of the markings on this exhibit are mine.
Q. Did Mr. Goudis speak at this meeting on February 23?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Kersh speak?

Page 184

A. I can't recall how they split the presentation up but I think they both spoke.
Q. Did anyone else speak at the meeting other than questions from the audience, if you will?
A. Nothing comes to mind.
Q. Would you describe this as a presentation by Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Had you met Mr. Kersh before this meeting other than I think it was the December 12th meeting in New York when you discussed the cost savings synergies that we talked about earlier?
A. We discussed the possible cost savings ideas at that December meeting but, as I said earlier, I don't recall who was representing the other side, was representing Sunbeam there unless somewhere in these documents we established that and I forgot.
Q. Mr. Kersh was not a person you had met with on frequent occasion then?
A. No -- I don't remember if this was the first time I met him or if he was participating in some other way.

Q. Was there any presentation by Morgan Stanley at the February 23 evening meeting?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Did you know the Morgan Stanley representatives who were at the meeting; Mr. Fuchs, for example, did you know him?
A. No.
Q. Had you ever met him before?
A. I'm not very good at remembering names or faces. Nobody comes to mind as somebody I knew.
Q. So we can put this all down at one time: Did you know Mr. Stynes?
A. No.
Q. To your knowledge, you had never met him before either?
A. Correct.
Q. Did you know Mr. Kitts?
A. No.
Q. So as you sit here today, to the best of your recollection, those three gentlemen did not make any presentation at the meeting; correct?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall if they did or didn't.
Q. Did you speak to them at the meeting?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was MS 84 available to you at the beginning of the presentation by either Mr. Kersh or Mr. Goudis?
A. Yes.
Q. Was the presentation something that was projected up on a screen and you were able to follow along in a hard copy?
A. Yes.
Q. Is the hard copy of the presentation MS 84, is that a duplicate of what was being projected on a screen?
A. I don't recall any exceptions.
Q. Were there breaks in the presentation of MS 84 or did it go from page 1 to page end?

Page 187

A. I don't remember.
Q. Were there questions interposed during the presentation?
A. I believe I asked some questions.
Q. Do you recall anyone else asking any questions?
A. I don't recall what others did.
Q. Do you recall CSFB asking any questions?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Now CSFB was at the meeting; correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. They were there as the Coleman Company's representatives, investment bankers?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any legal advisors at the meeting?
A. My general counsel.
Q. Mr. Shapiro?
A. Shapiro.
Q. Mr. Isko was also present at the meeting; correct?
A. I forgot that but I will accept that, yes.

Page 188

Q. Let's look at MS 84. Turn to the first page of the document headlined, "Long Range Strategic Objectives," and tell me when you're there.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You mean the second page?
A. The one that starts, "Dominate"?
Q. My understanding as I read this, the five headings under, "Long Range Strategic Objectives," are followed by separate pages explaining in more detail each of the five points on page 2 as counsel corrected me.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you understand that these were the long range strategic objectives of Sunbeam that were being discussed?
A. These were the long range strategic objectives they wished to share with us, yes.
Q. How long was long range as you understood the presentation?
A. 1998, 1999 and 2000.
Q. So roughly this was a three-year forward projection; correct?

Page 189

A. Yes.
Q. Was that true for all of the long range strategic objectives as you understood the presentation was covering this three-year period?
A. It was true for all the financials that were presented. I can't speak to each individual business activity.
Q. But you understood that the financial matters that were presented were projections three years into the future?
A. Yes.
Q. You've done projections into the future for your business plans; have you not?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever missed your targets on your business plans?
A. Both ways.
Q. Up and down?
A. Yes.
Q. You don't have a crystal ball; do you?
A. No.

Q. Let's look at the third page which is entitled number 1, "Dominate Core Business Globally, e.g. Blenders, Blankets, Clippers, Outdoor Cooking, Et Cetera." Are you there, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any particular discussion about this topic at the meeting?
A. No.
Q. Turn to the next page which is page 4 of the document and for the record there is a Bates number we can use, MF 0004. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. This is entitled, "Sunbeam Long Range Strategic Objectives. Number 2, Strengthen Sunbeam and Oster Brands Globally." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you read your handwriting under the fourth -- next to the fourth bullet point on the right side?
A. Need head of licensing.
Q. What did you mean by that?
A. As I recall, they told us they were searching for head of licensing department.

Page 191

Q. Was there a discussion on item number 2 of where Sunbeam stood at the time of the meeting, February 23, 1998, as opposed to where they wanted to be three years forward?
A. I don't recall a specific discussion.
Q. Turn now to page MF 5 entitled, "Sunbeam Long Range Strategic Objectives. Number 3, Continually Introduce Innovative and Highly Differentiated Products Globally." Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussion on this strategic objective of Sunbeam?
A. I believe by my notes I had asked some questions.
Q. Looking at your notes, do you recall what questions that you asked?
A. I must have asked something about the air and water projects they have and I must have asked something about the electric blanket business.

Page 192

Q. Focusing on the bullet number 2 which begins with, "Focus," you have some handwriting that appears -- looks to me under the words in quotation marks, "home runs." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you read your handwriting into the record please?
A. "5 to 10 million dollars revenue cut off."
Q. What did you mean by that?
A. I think I asked them what they considered a home run and they said something that adds at least 5 to 10 million dollars of sales.
Q. Was there a discussion of the air and water products that are identified in that bullet point?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Did you look at this meeting at any new products that Sunbeam supposedly had on the drawing boards or in the offing?
A. I don't remember any new products being displayed.
Q. Do you recall at any point after this meeting viewing any Sunbeam products that were in the offing?

Page 193

A. Not until after the transaction closed. I remember seeing some on the shelves, I remember some were presented at the analyst meeting in May.
Q. When you say after it closed, you mean after March 30?
A. Yes, after March 30.
Q. Did Sunbeam's definition of home runs, 5 to 10 million revenue cut off surprise you in any way?
A. I don't recall being surprised.
Q. One way or the other?
A. Right.
Q. Do you remember whether at this point in the presentation Mr. Kersh or Mr. Goudis was speaking or --
A. No.
Q. Was there any discussion even, if products were not on display, of what new products were being developed by Sunbeam?
A. I think they talked about how wonderful the air and water products were going to be.

Page 194

Q. They were not yet on the market, were they, at this time?
A. I don't remember.
Q. To the left of the bullet beginning, "Explore Alternatives," there is handwriting. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you read that into the record?
A. "Dumped $10 million blankets Japan and China fourth quarter."
Q. What did you mean by that?
A. They described their entry into the Japanese and Chinese markets for electric blankets and based on some questions I asked them, my knowledge of how things worked, it was clear that they had loaded their distributors with the $10 million and booked the sales but it had not sold through in either market.
Q. So you were using "dumped" in a pejorative sense here; weren't you?
A. Yes.
Q. This was your conclusion and analysis that you reached based on the presentation that either Mr. Kersh or Mr. Goudis was giving?

Page 195

A. That's correct.
Q. Sunbeam did not at this meeting acknowledge they had dumped anything in China; did they?
A. No.
Q. So it was your conclusion, I take it, at the end of this portion of the discussion that Sunbeam had -- loaded the channel, is that the term you used with these blankets in Asia?
A. Well, that -- could be several things. That they actually dumped $10 million of blankets to distributors.
Q. They hadn't sold them, they had put them with distributors?
A. Right.
Q. As you analyzed the situation, the blankets were still with the distributors?
A. Yes.
Q. Turn to the next page which is MF 6.
A. Okay.

Page 196

Q. It is entitled, "4, Optimize Worldwide Supply Chain." Do you recall any discussion about this topic, optimizing the worldwide supply chain?
A. When they presented, they went beyond the exact language here and provided us some supplement information which I noted as they spoke.
Q. Could you tell us what you noted as they spoke?
A. When they talked about shifting make versus buy mix, they said they were going to outsource their -- this would be small electric motors, 6 million units per year, stop production of them and start buying them on the outside.
Q. Would you read your writing that appears to the right of the first bullet on this page.
A. "Outsource motors 6 million units per year."
Q. So that's 6 million small motors?
A. Yes.
Q. And that means rather than manufacturing those 6 million small motors,

Page 197

Sunbeam would outsource or have someone else manufacture them; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. That's what you were being told?
A. Yes.
Q. That's what their plan was in the future?
A. Yes.
Q. Did they discuss when Sunbeam intended to implement this plan to shift their mix of 70/30 manufacture/buy to 50/50 manufacture/buy?
A. Unfortunately, I can only assume it was during this three-year planning period.
Q. Was there an advantage discussed over outsourcing versus manufacturing of these small motors by Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the discussion?
A. Well, clearly labor rates in less developed countries, specifically China, sell below wherever they were making these motors at that time. I don't remember exactly where they were making them.

Q. The next item on this page was bullet 2 and it begins, "Balance proximity of supplier plant and customer locations to minimize logistical requirements and associated cost and accelerate delivery." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussion on this bullet point?
A. My note says, "Closing Mexico City facility, 2000 employees and the property was worth $20 million." They stated they were closing the Mexico facility to reallocate the production either to outsourcing or other factories, eliminate 2000 employees and they would sell the Mexico City property for $20 million.
Q. Had this been done at the time of the meeting or was this something that was planned to be done?
A. I learned later that it was in process.
Q. Bullet number 3 which explains, "Exploit cost savings opportunities associated with Asia Pacific economies by a joint venture and acquisitions." Do you see that?

A. Yes.
Q. You have a question mark there. What did that mean?
A. I really don't know what the intent.
Q. Is that what the question mark meant, you didn't know that they meant?
A. Yes.
Q. Did anyone ask that you remember?
A. It seemed like a small point to me so I let it go.
Q. Again, this was something they had hoped to do over the next three years?
A. Apparently.
Q. The last bullet point is as follows, "simplify and standardize process and practices." Do you see that one?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussion about that point?
A. No.
Q. If you turn to the next page which is MF 7, this long range strategic objective is entitled, "5, Achieve Industry Leadership in Customer Service." Do you recall any discussion about this topic?

Page 200

A. I don't recall what was discussed on this page.
Q. At the time, did Sunbeam claim that it had achieved -- to your knowledge, had they claimed that they had achieved industry leadership in customer service?
A. I don't believe they made that claim.
Q. Turn to the next page which is MF 8. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. This page is entitled, "Strategic Headlines." It's for Sunbeam appliances. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you just give me a description of what these strategic headlines are referring to as you understood it based on the presentation?
A. Point one, to strengthen their two core brands around the world in the minds of, I assume, consumers as well as retailers.

Q. Was appliances -- I'm interrupting. If I am, stop me.
Appliances as a line of business, is that how would you describe this, for Sunbeam?
A. Generally. It's small electrics.
Q. Because I note that as we continue the next item, for example, is health at home. Are the categories in this document starting with appliances, were those described as lines of business or some other descriptor?
A. I'm not sure. When Sunbeam referred to appliances they were talking about some electrics for the kitchen as well as irons.
Q. Were these all corded products, is that another way they were described?
A. Yes.
Q. Let's go back to Sunbeam appliances on page 8. The second bullet has some handwriting after the introduction, "Continually introduce a constant stream of consumer driven new products concentrated in three focus areas." And then it lists blending and mixing, smart cooking and then everyday best. Do you see that?

A. Yes.
Q. Could you read your handwriting to us please on the right side of that entry?
A. It says number 1 or number 2 in each category and there's a separate reference to B&D.
Q. What does that mean?
A. I assume that's Black & Decker, their principal competitor.
Q. At the time of this presentation, was Sunbeam number 1 or 2 in these three areas, blending and mixing, smart cooking and everyday best?
A. I learned subsequently through the years they were number 1 in blending, number 2 or -- number 2 in mixing. I don't think we ever used the term smart cooking as a category, nor everyday best as a category so I couldn't speak to it.

Page 203

Q. What did smart cooking refer to as you understood it in the presentation?
A. I don't remember.
Q. How about everyday best, do you know what that referred to?
A. I really don't know what they were trying to do.
Q. So as I understand this bullet point number 2 on page 8, whoever was speaking, Kersh or Mr. Goudis, was saying their objective over the next three years was to become number 1 or 2 within each of the categories; is that right?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Actually, I don't know in this case whether they said they were there number 1 and number 2 in the category or trying to get there, I don't recall.
Q. Let's move to bullet point 3 which reads, "Broaden Distribution With Existing Customers." And then you have some writing to the right. Could you read that into the record?
A. To the right is, "30 percent GM," which was my abbreviation for 30 percent gross margin. And then to the left is MS which is my abbreviation for market share.

Q. Would you define gross margin as you use the term for the jury?
A. It's simply net sales minus cost of goods standard, standard cost of goods and it's not an accurate number usually because of variances but it gives a sense as to the inherent profitability of a category.
Q. And then your writing above the box, that is -- U.S. sales figures which -- those are in millions of dollars; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Were these for 1998, 1999 and 2000, were these projected sales?
A. Yes.
Q. I guess they'd have to be if you were in 1998; right?
A. Yes.
Q. And then the percentage increase, that's an arithmetic calculation as I read it from one year over to the other years; is that fair?

Page 205

A. Yes.
Q. Did anyone question at the meeting where Sunbeam obtained the projections that appeared in this box?
A. I might have asked them what the market share would go to and where it was at the current time to get some sense of realism but it apparently either I was thinking the question and didn't ask it or they didn't have the answer. But I'm sure when I wrote down market share I was questioning what it was.
Q. These are supposed to be Sunbeam sales; correct?
A. Sunbeam and Oster.
Q. What you were trying to translate their sales into, what does this mean in terms of market share; right?
A. Right.
Q. And you are not sure whether you got the question out or not?
A. Correct.
Q. Let's turn to page 9 entitled, "Health at Home Strategic Headlines." Are you there?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014624

Page 206

A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember about the discussion of this strategic headline, health at home?
A. Nothing other than my notes indicate that we had some discussion of the air and water strategy again.
Q. Does air and water strategy refer to these new products, an air cleaner and water purifier?
A. Yes. It was an air purifier and a water cleaner, yes.
Q. I got it backwards then. One of us --
A. It was a water purifying system and air cleaner.
Q. I think you have it right and I got it wrong. Thank you.
These products, to your knowledge, had not yet been launched; that is, they were not on Wal-Mart's shelves or Sears' shelves?
A. I just don't remember.
Q. The figures that appear below the fourth bullet under, "Health at Home," you have, it looks to me, 30 percent GM. Is that gross margin again?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you ask the question of whoever was speaking, "What is your gross margin on the products?"
A. I must have to come up with the number.
Q. When I looked to the box below, I see above the 1998 figure some writing. Would you read that into the record for the jury?
A. 100 million of 1998.
Q. What does that mean?
A. Of the 189 million they were projecting for 1998, 100 million of that was coming from the new products and 89 was coming from existing products.
Q. Then going forward, was Sunbeam projecting a continued growth in its air and water products in 1999 and 2000?
A. Substantial increase, yes.
Q. Did anyone ask any questions at this meeting about the reasonableness, if you will, of these projections of the success of the air and water products as set forth in this document?

A. I don't remember whether we had an open discussion of that or not.
Q. Do you remember at any time after the meeting, February 23, viewing these air and water products, you personally?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you do that?
A. I think I first saw them physically at the analyst meeting.
Q. That would be in May of 1998?
A. I might have seen them in the super market, I don't recall, but I know they were at the analyst meeting.
Q. Let me focus on a shorter time period. Before the signing of the merger agreements which is only four days after this evening meeting, did you see the new air and water products that they were promoting at this meeting?
A. I do not believe so.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes asking to see the new air and water products that Sunbeam was promoting at this strategic long term planning presentation?

A. I don't remember. I don't know if they had models there, pictures, I just don't recall what was happening at that point.
Q. But you don't remember seeing them?
A. I do not remember seeing them.
Q. Did you ask anyone at Coleman, your company you were running, to go to Sunbeam and look at the new products that they were claiming they were going to introduce and were going to have this increase in net sales figures?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. BEMIS: Withdrawn. I will ask the question again.
Q. Mr. Levin, did you ask anyone at Coleman after the meeting on February 23 and before the execution of the merger agreements to go to Sunbeam or any other location and look at these new air and water products that were being explained to you at this meeting on the 23rd?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. There were only four of us at Coleman who knew they were considering this transaction and two of them were lawyers and one was my chief financial officer. So if I didn't do it myself, it's unlikely anyone would have done it and, of course, I simply don't remember whether it was in the market at all, whether it was possible to do that.
Q. Did anyone ask at the meeting with Sunbeam, "Are these air and water products in a research and development facility or in some location we can look at?"
A. They had talked about this publicly at this point and it was well discussed and I'm sure they described in some format what they were doing here, I just don't recall.
Q. Have you ever heard the expression, "kick the tires"?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Yes.

Page 211

Q. That's my question. Did anyone at Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes go kick the tires on these new and air and water products that were being explained to you?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
A. In terms of physically kicking them?
Q. Yes.
A. Not to the best of my knowledge.
Q. Was that done at any time before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You didn't do it because you were in Tucson, Arizona; right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Let's turn to the next page which is entitled, "Sunbeam Personal Care and Comfort-Bedding Strategic Headlines." There's four bullet points there. What do you recall about the discussion of bedding at this meeting?
A. Nothing other than what's expressed in my notes.
Q. What is the first note that you wrote above the paragraph numbered 1?

Page 212

A. Implemented no return policy.
Q. Tell us what you understood that to be?
A. The company either had announced or is about to announce that they would no longer take customer returns other than warranty.
Q. Did you have an opinion as to the wisdom of that as a business practice?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have it February 23?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your opinion?
A. That it ranged from unwise to impossible.
Q. What do you recall Mr. Goudis or Mr. Kersh saying at the meeting about the no return policy other than they had implemented it?
A. I don't recall. The company had made a public disclosure that they would implement this policy, I don't remember if that was before or after this meeting.
Q. You became the president of Sunbeam as of June 15 you told me earlier.

Page 213

Did you have a chance to evaluate the no return policy at Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. How did it work?
A. It was part of the fraud.
Q. The next item you appear to have handwriting is item number 4, "Increased household penetration by introducing new packaging and by promoting the 'blanket with a brain' concept." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the discussion about that product, the Blanket With a Brain?
A. I apparently asked a question about the blankets they were trying to sell in Japan because my note says, "Sell blankets in Japan for ten times local price."
Q. What was the Blanket With a Brain concept?
A. Through using Sunbeam's proprietary technology, the wire that is woven within the electric blanket will automatically adjust to heat like a thermostat will. So you set a certain temperature and it won't just keep heating, it will heat to that temperature and it will continually re-adjust itself automatically.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. So if the room temperature goes up, the blanket temperature might go up as well?
A. It's usually from body temperature.
Q. Was this a product, Blanket With a Brain, that Sunbeam had on the shelves or was developing?
A. They had it on the shelf and still have it.
Q. Did it work?
A. It works wonderfully.
Q. You have an entry that looks like 40 percent GM before item number 4. Does that mean 40 percent gross margin with Blanket With a Brain?
A. Yes.
Q. Then the box "Global" at number 4 has some additional handwriting after the reference to Japan. Can you read the second block of handwriting? I think it begins with cost.

A. Lost. "Lost $20 million of sales due to product unavailability and then Asia."
Q. What does that mean?
A. I am reasonably confident that I noted the very large increase from '97 to '98 in the sales of what is a very mature business and I asked them why and they said, well, 1997 would have been higher by $20 million, they lost sales because they couldn't produce enough product and in addition they were going into Asia in 1998 as we actually discussed previously with Japan and China.
Q. Going back to the entry of, "Sell blankets in Japan for ten times local price," what did you mean by that?
A. Electric blankets do exist in Japan, they do not have the technology or the comfort that the Sunbeam blankets have, but the price value was such that it was hard for me to imagine how you would sell the product for ten times what it was even though it had certain product advantages.

Page 216

The cost value equation was wrong.
Q. So this was a question you were asking about how they could achieve, that is Sunbeam could achieve what it was projecting to achieve given this cost price differential?
A. Yes.
Q. Again, this was your own internal questioning, not something that Sunbeam said; right?
A. That's correct. I would ask them, "What are you selling it to relative to the competition," they would explain it to me and I would form my judgement.
Q. Is it fair to say that based upon the cost differential between the blankets -- local blankets produced in Japan and what Sunbeam was selling that you were at least skeptical of Sunbeam's projections for sales in that market?
A. Yes.
Q. Turn now to the next page, if you will, which is MF 11 entitled, "Sunbeam Personal Care and Comfort Clippers and Other Personal Care Strategic Headlines."

Page 217

Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. What, in general, was the discussion on this slide?
A. Again, other than what I have notes on, I don't recall; but we established that the gross margin on these products was quite high at 45 percent making it a very attractive business financially and that of the 169 million in 1997 sales, 120 million was the blanket business, blankets and mattress pads, and 49 were the retail clippers.
Q. What does retail clippers mean?
A. They are hair clippers that are used -- used doesn't sound right -- they sell them to two channels of distribution: one is barber shops and the other is pet supply, sheep clippers and dog clippers and horse clippers. Things like that.
Q. Retail clippers together, that was both channels you mentioned, that is the barbers and the animals for lack of a better term?
A. Yes. That had an exceptional

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

016627

margin because bedding, which was most of the sales, was at 40 percent and they averaged 45 percent so that meant that the clippers was a very, very profitable business.

Q. In terms of the first bullet, "Grow household penetration," was this a projection of what Sunbeam wanted to do; it wanted to get more of these products in the household going forward the next three years?

A. I assume so.

Q. Was it your understanding that Sunbeam in the next three years was going to target large and low income families, teens and African-Americans?

A. I don't recall the specific conversations. The priorities of these things. I do know that they have low penetration in African -- had low penetration in African-Americans at the that point.

Q. Their strategic plan, if you will, was in the next three years to increase their penetration in these low penetration markets; right?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there any questions that you can recall being asked other than what you've talked to me about already on this page?

A. I don't recall any.

Q. Let's look at the next page which is entitled, "Sunbeam Outdoor Cooking Strategic Headlines." Do you recall any discussion on this topic?

A. Well, essentially we concluded it doesn't make any money with 10 to 15 percent gross margins. So they have plans to move that up to 25 percent. That's why I wrote target 25 percent.

Q. At least as of the time of the meeting, it was your conclusion that they didn't make any money in this area?

A. Right.

Q. Did they express, that is Sunbeam's representatives express how they hoped to reach their target of 25 percent?

A. Other than the language that is on this page, I don't recall what was said.

Page 220

Q. Let's turn to the next page which is MF 13 and it is entitled, "Sunbeam Other Channels Strategic Headlines." Are you there?

A. Yes.

Q. The first entry is, "Away from home." Could you tell us what your writing is directly below that entry?

A. I was trying to determine how important this was and they talked about bundling existing products to effectively grow lodging, it became clear they were just talking about adding irons into this channel of distribution and if they were successful, it was small, less than a million dollars.

Q. Is away from home products products that would, for example, be in a hotel room?

A. Typically.

Q. So when I check in and I see an iron or an ironing board in the closet, Sunbeam was hoping to be able to sell to people who owned or leased hotels, something like that?

Page 221

A. Irons, coffee makers.

Q. Clocks?

A. Clocks. Several other products. But not ironing boards actually.

Q. The next item is outlet stores. Is that a reference to Sunbeam owned outlet stores?

A. Owned or leased, yes.

Q. I mean Coleman had some outlet stores; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Could you tell the jury what outlet stores are for a consumer products business like Coleman and Sunbeam?

A. Well, outlet stores are traditionally small retail outlets in outlet malls, designed for manufacturers, to sell their surplus and discontinued products.

Q. And Coleman did that; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. At the time of this meeting, Sunbeam, did it have outlet stores?

A. According to my notes, they had 21; 16 in the U.S. and five in Canada.

011526

Page 222

Q. There is a reference to, "Continue to expand in 'A' locations." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you personally at any time before March 30, 1998 visit any of the Sunbeam outlet stores that are referred to in your notes?
A. Actually, because of Revlon's participation in a very large outlet operation of 300 stores and Coleman also being in the outlet stores, I have virtually been in every outlet store that exists including the Sunbeam outlet stores. I had seen them. That was a coincidence.
Q. So you actually saw them before the closing?
A. Right.
Q. What was your opinion of the outlet stores of Sunbeam that you saw before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. Not well merchandised.
Q. Did you think they were in "A" locations?
A. They were in pretty good malls,

yes. It's hard to say what an "A" location is in an outlet mall because the outlet situation is changing so quickly today, but the geography wasn't a problem.
Q. Could you read your handwriting that appears above the box of figures at the bottom of page 13?
A. This is, "15 million professional clippers," which would indicate I misled you on page 011. That business must have been the retail portion of the clipper business. I thought it was the other way around. I apologize for that. The clippers that are described on page 011 are sales of lower end clippers to the Wal-Marts and Costcos of the world. On page 013, this is the other side of the business that sells to the barbers and the pet supply.
Q. Would you turn to the next page which is 014 entitled, "Sunbeam International Strategic Headlines." Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you recall about the discussion of this slide?

A. I remember that they added a bunch of distributors. This is a continuation of the conversation on the blanket business where they brought in a lot of distributors towards the end of the year, sold them in total $50 million worth of stuff which couldn't possibly, because of the timing, have passed through the system.
Q. What did you write then in your handwriting notes?
A. "25 new ones last year." This is an opinion -- they probably told the $50 million in sales were in international and my opinion was that that loaded the tray.
Q. Again, loaded you are using here the same way you used it earlier in your testimony; correct?
A. When you introduce a new product, you load the tray, that's just what it is. You have to get it out there in their inventories, in their warehouses and in retail but it's not really a continued business. Until it sells through, you really don't know where you are. That meant they had an unusual surge of sales in the fourth quarter.

Q. Of 1997?
A. 1997.
Q. A quarter that Sunbeam even fell short, as you knew, having loaded these sales in 1997; correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form.
A. Can you repeat the question?
Q. You knew by February 23rd that Sunbeam had fallen short on its projected sales in the fourth quarter of 1997; right?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form. It's misleading.
Q. You saw it in the Wall Street Journal?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form. Misleading.
MR. BIDEAU: Same objection.
A. I don't know what they were comparing to.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014629

Page 226

Q. I will withdraw the question.
I had asked you did you use the term loaded in the same way you had used loaded earlier in your testimony. I don't think you answered that --
A. No, it's different.
Q. It's different in this case?
A. In my opinion, dumped means really had no chance of selling -- it was there and it was probably going to stay there and in the case of loaded, it's an ordinary business practice, it's just historic the -- it could distort your look at operating performance if you don't know how they've changed their distribution.
Q. And in this case with item number 3, licensing and distributor agreements, these were new ones; right? As they told you?
A. I was referring to the distributors here. Licensing would have no relevance to this, to my comments.
Q. With regard to the distributors at least then, focusing on that point, you were told there were 25 new ones; right?

Page 227

A. I hope that's what I wrote. I think that's right.
Q. And that you understood that those 25 new distributors had been, as you put it, loaded and as you described with approximately $50 million of sales in the fourth quarter of 1997; right?
A. Right.
Q. Of course at this point you would not know in the first quarter of 1998 whether those distributors were going to be successful or unsuccessful in selling their $50 million of product; would you?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection.
A. It would have been Wal-Mart, it could have been Costco.
Q. But you didn't know at this time?
A. No.
Q. The next page which is page 15 is entitled, "Sunbeam Changing Competitive Dynamics." Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you recall about this topic?
A. Nothing in particular.

Page 228

Q. Let's turn to the next page. This is page MF 00016 entitled, "Sunbeam Long Range Strategic Objectives Earnings From Continuing Operations." Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Focusing on the line net sells, could you tell the jury what the net sells for 1997 was supposed to represent or did represent?
A. I believe it was 1 billion 168 million. Is that your question?
Q. Yes. Thank you. A poor question but a good answer.
Reading across, then, the long range strategic plan for 1998, that was a projection of 1 billion 600 million in net sales; right?
A. Yes.
Q. That would continue through the year 2000, Sunbeam was projecting 2 billion 400 million in sales; right?
A. Yes.
Q. You wrote to the left of 1996, I think you wrote 984. Is that right?

Page 229

A. Yes.
Q. What does that number represent?
A. I must have asked what their net sales were in 1996.
Q. And then you have -- right above net sales you have Jan slow Feb; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you mean by that?
A. Well, I must have asked them or they volunteered that January was a slow month in sales, not unusual for a company in these businesses, January should be -- December or January should be their smallest month. So it doesn't mean that much when you're off somewhat in January. I wrote something about February, I really don't recall what the comment was.
Q. Did someone ask a question about January or February sales or did Mr. Kersh or Mr. Goudis volunteer the information?
A. I don't remember.
Q. When the information from either Mr. Goudis or Mr. Kersh, as the case may be, was given about Jan, Feb slow, did anyone ask for further information after the meeting from Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011630

Page 230

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form. You misstated the --
MR. BIDEAU: Right.
MR. BEMIS: I will withdraw the question.
Q. At the meeting itself, when there was either a statement or a question asked about sales in January and it was reported as you wrote, slow, did anyone at the meeting ask for additional information from Sunbeam?
A. I might have asked them about February right at that point and my reference might mean January and February were both slow and I didn't write it down, I just don't recall.
Q. Let's leave the meeting on the 23rd. Between the evening of February 23 and the signing of the merger agreements as of February 27, to your knowledge, did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes request any information from Sunbeam on what its actual January and February sales were to date?

Page 231

A. In the four-day period?
Q. Yes, sir, in the four-day period.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Up to the time of the closing of the transaction, March 30, 1998, did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes, to your knowledge, ask Sunbeam for detailed information on what it's sales were, net sales were for the first quarter of 1998 or any period --
A. They didn't have to, they made a disclosure as to their sales at that point.
Q. Focus on my question. We'll get to what you are talking about later.
Did anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes, to your knowledge, specifically ask Sunbeam after the February 23 meeting and before the closing on March 30, 1998 for detailed information on Sunbeam's net sales for any period in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't know of any.
Q. Did anyone from Coleman ask Sunbeam for the same information at any time before the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. I'm unaware of anybody doing

that.
Q. Let's move down the page to operating profit. You have some writing that appears to the right. It looks like you did some division and then -- I think I know where it comes from but could you explain it to us please?
A. I'm glad you know where it comes from because I was having trouble deciphering with my own computations.
Q. I think the 1168 comes from actual sales in 1997. You divide it by 4 to arrive at a per sales by quarter. That's your testimony, not mine.
A. I don't know why I would have been looking at the quarters because they would have to have seasonal variation. I just don't know what I was trying to accomplish.
Q. Could you now move to the right of your first block of handwriting and read that into the record? It looks like --
A. It says 328 divided by a billion 6 and then there's a note 20 percent from 25 percent.

Page 233

Q. What does that mean?
A. I don't know. I don't recognize the 328 number. I see they went to 20 percent operating profit in '98 but I -- I don't know what I was doing. I don't know what conclusions I reached.
Q. If you look at the long range plan, look at the next page, 17, look at receivables net, you will see the figure 328. Does that help you reconstruct what you were doing?
A. Yes. I was trying to figure out what was happening to cash.
Q. What was happening to cash?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your opinion as to what was happening to cash?
A. They were going from a ratio of 25 percent receivables and inventories -- I think it was just receivables -- it was receivables to sales, 328 divided by a billion 6 is something over 20 percent slightly and I was trying to compare that to the actual of the 296 -- I was focusing on receivables. I took 296, divided it --

UNCERTIFIED COPY

014631

Page 234

I want to know how many times they turned their receivables and my conclusion was they were making very significant improvements in their plan and receivable collections despite an increase in international sales.
Q. Did you conclude that was a good thing or bad thing?
A. It would be great if they could do it. My question was was that reasonable.
Q. Did you ask anyone whether it was reasonable at the meeting?
A. I think this was something I was just doing off to the side.
Q. So I take it you weren't actually listening, you were actually doing some calculations while the presentation was ongoing; weren't you?
A. Apparently.
Q. In the line that appears above earnings per share, EPS, it reads, "Net earnings from continuing operations." Do you see that?
A. Yes.

Page 235

Q. You have some figures written there. What are those figures and what do they represent?
A. I seem to be saying something about the earnings growth rate is 35 percent but -- something like that. I was probably trying to evaluate how fast the earnings per share were growing.
Q. Below the earnings per share line it looks like you have written 1.99 and then there's something in writing after that. Can you read that into the record for us?
A. Yes. It's 1.99 street.
Q. Was that the street estimate for earnings?
A. Yes. That was really what I was trying to focus on because long range plans are long range plans and I did, as you noted, have some skepticism. I was trying to see if the street estimates are reasonable and I thought that was much more reasonable than the long range plan.
Q. The street estimates were much more reasonable?

Page 236

A. Yes.
Q. Tell the jury what a street estimate is.
A. It's either the average or the median of the analysts who cover the company's estimates for earnings per share. In this case, for 1998.
Q. Is this something in your business, consumer products as you've described it, that you follow and pay attention to?
A. Not since we're private.
Q. When you were public?
A. Yes.
Q. When you were at Sunbeam and public, running the company before the bankruptcy, did you pay attention to this, street estimates?
A. Yes. Not with the intensity one would normally because of the circumstances.
Q. One more -- you've got about 7 minutes before five. You want to leave now or you --
A. We'll do one more page.

Page 237

Q. Because we're almost done and then we'll let you out of here.
Turn to the next page which is Morgan Stanley 00017 and entitled, "Long Range Strategic Objectives, Condensed Consolidated Balance Sheet." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. I think you've explained the first handwriting at the top but would you read it into the record for us again? It says, "Going from."
A. 'going from 25 percent to 20 percent despite increased international sales."
Q. That's what you told us you thought was a good thing if it was true; right?
A. Yes.
Q. That was a projection for 1998; right?
A. Yes.
Q. It wasn't what they had done, it was Sunbeam was projecting they could do in 1998?

Page 238

A. I can't speak to whether they really viewed it as projection or a target to achieve. Everyone has a different view of one long range plan. Some like to make the big reach, some like to make the numbers. Every management is a different style.
Q. What, by the way, was your style at Coleman when you did projections for the year?
A. We never wanted to put a number on a piece of paper we couldn't make.
Q. So you were not a reacher as you put it?
A. No. We were bottoms up. Get the commitment of all the individuals as you work your way up through the system and then be more conservative.
Q. In 1997, at Coleman, you didn't make your projections that year; did you?
A. In 1997?
Q. Year end 1997.
A. I don't know whose projections those were. Those were the projections I was handed by the 1996 management group.

Q. In 1997, you came in February of 1997?
A. Right.
Q. And you did have a substantial short fall from projections by the year end 1997 as a result of good weather conditions in 1997; right?
A. Are you referring to the plan or projections we made subsequent?
Q. Let's start with plan.
A. It wasn't my plan.
Q. I understand it wasn't --
MR. BIDEAU: Let's not argue. Let him finish.
A. We knew the plan was unachievable.
Q. It may have been unachievable but it was made by your predecessor?
A. Yes.
Q. You didn't make plan; right?
A. I didn't make his plan, correct.
Q. And you didn't make the plan because, as I remember, you had some pretty good weather that impacted your generator sales; isn't that right?

Page 240

A. That would be one of many factors and good weather could offset itself with a good camping season. So I don't recall specifically the weather conditions, rain fall and a whole bunch --
Q. How about hurricanes?
A. If there are no hurricanes, the generator business will be weak.
Q. In 1998 when you did your projections after you came in, you did look at the plan and you made independent projections; right?
A. In --
Q. '97.
A. In 1997 we made the projections for 1998.
Q. Did you make any revisions to the plan for 1997 when you came in?
MR. BIDEAU: I think you guys are talking about two different things. He's saying '98 --
Q. I know what I'm asking -- let me try again so it's a clear question.
In 1997 when you joined Coleman again, did you make your own projections, or plan if you will, for 1997, your own?

Page 241

A. Yes.
Q. Did you make that plan that year?
A. To the best of my knowledge, we were pretty much on target for the plans we put together -- for the projections which was a replanning effort for 1997. I don't remember any significant defaults.
Q. In your business career over the years, have you had instances where you did not make your plan?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you had instances where you exceeded your plan?
A. Yes.
Q. Does the fact that you didn't make a plan in one year or that you exceeded it in another year mean that you are a bad businessman?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form of the question.
A. It's better to make your plan.
Q. Does it mean you're a good businessman?
MR. BIDEAU: Same objection.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

U146333

A. Too many other variables to answer your question.
Q. Turn to the last page and then we will let you go. Turn to the writing on the same page to the right of, "Current liabilities." Can you read that into the record?
A. "225 million write-off in 1996, 10 million left."
Q. What were you referring to?
A. As I recall, Sunbeam shortly after Dunlap's arrival took a very large write-off for restructuring the company.
Q. Were you here calculating how much of the -- is that called sometimes a restructuring reserve?
A. I assume that's what it was at that time.
Q. Were you writing here what you calculated to be left on the restructuring reserve?
A. Right. How much had not been paid out.
Q. Was this a question you asked or a figure you calculated?

A. I don't remember.
Q. Why were you interested?
A. Cash.
Q. Explain.
A. If they had the big reserve left on their books and had not spent it, there would be huge cash drain going forward which would devalue the company. In this case, they had spent it which was quite good news.
MR. BEMIS: Let's stop here. I told you we would stop at 5. We'll see you tomorrow at 10 o'clock again; correct?

THE WITNESS: Yes. Are you aware I have a lunch problem? It might be a little longer.
MR. BEMIS: I wasn't aware of that but now I am.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're now going off the record at 4:59 p.m. This is the end of tape labeled number 3 of the videotaped deposition. We'll continue tomorrow, December 2, 2004, on the tape labeled number 1, volume 2.

EXAMINATION BY
MR. BEMIS:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Levin. I am going to hand back to you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84 that we were talking about yesterday, at the time of the break. I hand that to you.

MR. BEMIS: And, Mr. Reporter, could you hand both copies to the witness.

A. I can reach it.

Q. Thank you. Do you have Exhibit 84 in front of you?

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 252

Q. Would you please turn to page 00018. It would be, I think it is the second to the last page in the exhibit.
A. Okay.
Q. Was there any discussion that you remember at the February 23rd evening meeting about this page?
A. During the meeting?
Q. Yes. That you remember.
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Could you explain this page, as you understood it, when it would be presented to you?
A. This is for the original Sunbeam, and this is their three-year strategic plan in terms of the sales base.
Q. Am I correct that the base net sales that appear on the first line are Sunbeam's projections for 1998, 1999 and 2000, before certain increases that they are projecting to occur?
MR. BIDEAU: You mean 2000; right?
MR. BEMIS: I misspoke, 2000.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.

Page 253

Q. Do you see the figure, base sale $1,168,000,000?
A. Yes.
Q. That figure comes from another page in the report, and I believe that is from page 16, if you would like to look at that.
A. Yes.
Q. The base figure for 1998, as I read it, is the 1997 net sales; is that correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that what you, is that what you understood it to be when --
A. I understand this to be a bridging analysis, year by year, starting with what it was the prior year and adding to it the changes within that year and ending at the total sales for the new year.
Q. Do you understand that to be the pattern all the way through the year 2000?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What is a bridging analysis?
A. Well, in 1997 they -- according to page 16, they had $1,168,000,000 in sales, projecting for 1998, 1.6 billion, and the bridging explains how they got from point A to point B.

Q. And did you understand that the bridging information under both domestic and international captions was accumulation of data that appeared earlier in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84?
A. I don't think it was presented to us that way. I would have to -- I would be happy to go back through this analysis, but I don't remember price, existing channels broken down in an earlier presentation. You can look, if you would -- I can look, if you would like me to.
Q. Feel free to do so. If you remember how they explained it to you, please tell us.
A. I am sure this is how they explained it to us.
Q. Were there any questions that were asked by those in the audience when either Mr. Goudis or Mr. Kersh made this presentation?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Please turn to the last page, which is not -- which is Morgan Stanley 00 -- excuse me, it is MF 00019.

Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. And this page is entitled "long-range strategic objectives condensed consolidated statement of cash flow." Do you recall the discussion of this page?
A. I don't recall any discussion of this page.
Q. At the conclusion of the presentation by either Mr. Kersh or Mr. Goudis, as you described it, what happened next in the meeting?
A. I think we left immediately after they finished the presentation.
Q. Did you go -- withdrawn.
When you say "we left," are you referring now to the Coleman and the MacAndrews & Forbes people?
A. CSFB, Coleman, MacAndrews & Forbes, we all left at that point.
Q. Did you go to, did all of you go to another location to continue discussion further, or did you call it a night?
A. I don't recall.

Q. Okay.
Was there any further discussion that evening, outside of the presence of Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley, about the materials in Exhibit 84?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Yes.
Q. There was? Did you say Yes?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did that discussion take place?
A. Between the conference room we were in and reaching the lobby of the Morgan Stanley building.
Q. Do you recall the discussion?
A. I recall some of it.
Q. What do you recall?
A. I voiced an opinion.
Q. What was your opinion? Who did you voice the opinion to from -- while you were traveling from the Morgan Stanley conference room to the lobby of the building?
A. The MacAndrews & Forbes people.
Q. What did you tell them?

Page 257

A. That I thought the sales in that, and net income expectations of the long-range plan were quite a stretch and I did not think they were achievable.
Q. What did -- withdrawn. Was there any -- withdrawn.
Who were you speaking to when you expressed this opinion?
A. I recall Jim Maher, in particular, and Will Nesbitt.
Q. Anyone else in the, either from MacAndrews & Forbes or CSFB?
A. I don't know if anyone from CSFB was present when I made that comment.
Q. Did Mr. Maher respond to your opinion?
A. Yes.
Q. What did he say?
A. He asked what I thought was realistic.
Q. What did you say?
A. Things more along the line of the Wall Street expectations.
Q. Did he respond to that?
A. No.

Page 258

Q. Did Mr. William Nesbitt respond to your opinion that the Sunbeam projections were quite stretched, quite a stretch?
A. No. They both asked me what I thought was reasonable, and I did not think they were going to make these numbers, but that something lesser was certainly achievable.
Q. Did Mr. Nesbitt say anything in response to your opinion?
A. I don't recall any response from anybody. I think that was the end of the conversation.
Q. When you left the Morgan Stanley building, did you leave with Mr. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt?
A. I don't remember where we all went.
Q. Did you all both --
A. Probably.
Q. Excuse me. I interrupted. Did you all go someplace -- that is, Mr. Nesbitt, yourself and Mr. Maher or anyone else, and have a further discussion that evening about the presentation?
A. I don't think so.

Page 259

Q. Everybody went home, as you recall it?
A. I did.
Q. Okay. Now, at the meeting, were there other materials available for discussion or review by those who were there?
A. I don't recall. It was too long ago.
Q. Let me show you a document that was, that has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85.
A. Thank you.
(Witness and counsel confer.)
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, have you seen this document before?
A. I don't recall seeing this.
Q. Please take as much time as you would like to look at it, and if you tell me you don't recall seeing it, I will not ask you any questions about it.
A. You can stop right there. I don't recall seeing this.

Q. Would you hand Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85 back to me, please.
Thank you.
The meeting that we have been discussing with Morgan Stanley, Exhibit 84, it is on the evening of February 23rd, 1998. By all accounts from other witnesses, it was -- between that evening -- withdrawn.
Between the evening of February 23rd, 1998 and the conclusion of the meeting that we have been going over, discussing Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84 and the actual execution of the merger agreements, as of February 27th, 1998, did you have any discussions with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman about Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84?
MR. BIDEAU: Other than the elevator --
Q. Other than the elevator conversation, yes.
A. Probably.
Q. Did you have any specific recollection of those conversations, as you sit here today?
A. Not specific, no.

Page 261

Q. Do you have any general recollection of discussions of the, of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, of --
A. That was the presentation?
Q. Yes, sir. From the conclusion of the presentation up to the signing of the merger agreements on February 27th.
A. Yes.
Q. What is your general recollection?
A. That I felt the strategic plan, as presented, was a stretch, unlikely to be achieved, but that I thought it was reasonable that they would achieve growth and earnings in line with whatever, where Wall Street was, which was considerably below the strategic plan at that point.
And I did not have any particular thoughts, one way or the other, as to whether the stock was valued high or low, as a result.
Q. Who did you have these discussions with?
A. I am sure I had them with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis and associates.
Q. Would Mr. Maher be within that group?

Page 262

A. Yes, sir.
Q. Would Mr. Nesbitt be in that group?
A. He may or may not have been in attendance.
Q. Where did these discussions take place, if you remember?
A. They -- almost certainly took place the next morning. Assuming that was not the Friday night -- I don't -- February 23rd?
Q. It was a Monday, I believe.
A. I am almost certain they took place the next morning, either at breakfast at the townhouse or after breakfast at the townhouse -- the MacAndrews & Forbes headquarters, I should say.
Q. And the townhouse, and the headquarters are virtually within 100 yards of each other; correct?
A. It is a lot closer.
Q. A lot closer than that, actually.
Do you remember, as you sit here today, the reaction of Mr. Perelman, for example, to your opinion about the strategic projections of Sunbeam in MS 84?
A. No. I don't recall anything specific.

Page 263

Q. Do you recall any reaction to your opinion by Mr. Gittis?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Maher?
A. No.
Q. And if Mr. Nesbitt was there, anything from Mr. Nesbitt?
A. No.
Q. Between February 23rd and the execution of the merger agreements on or -- as of, excuse me, February 27th, 1998, did your opinion change about Morgan Stanley's strategic plan, MS 84?
A. Give me the dates again.
Q. I will do it one more time.
MR. BIDEAU: All right.
Q. Between February 23rd, 1998, and the execution of the merger agreements as of February 27th, 1998, did your opinion of the Sunbeam long-range strategic plan MS 84 change?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Between February 23rd, 1998 and the execution of the merger agreements as of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 264

February 27th, 1998, did you discuss your opinions about MS 84 with anyone at CSFB?
A. I don't recall whether I did or did not.
Q. If you had such discussions, would you have expressed the same opinion that you did to Mr. Maher, Mr. Nesbitt, Mr. Perelman?
A. If they asked me, that is what I would have said.
Q. Did you express -- withdrawn.
At any point -- withdrawn.
Between February 23rd, 1998 and the execution of the merger agreements, as of February 27th, 1998, did you have any discussions with Morgan Stanley about MS 84, the presentation by Mr. Goudis or Mr. Kersh?
A. No.
Q. When you expressed your opinions to -- to Mr. Perelman -- withdrawn.
Other than what you told me concerning your conversations with Messrs. Perlman, Gittis, Mr. Nesbitt, if it happened to be the case, and Mr. Maher, did you discuss with anyone else, that you can recall as you sit here today, the meeting on February 23rd, 1998, and your opinions that you reached up until -- up until the point of the signing of the merger agreements in that four-day period?

Page 265

A. There would have been other people in the room. 0if we had this conversation at breakfast, there may have been one or two other attendees.
Q. Do you recall or -- strike that.
Between February 23rd, 1998 and the signing of the merger agreements, as of February 27th, do you recall anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman requesting any additional information from Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Do you recall, between those same dates, anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman requesting any additional information from Morgan Stanley concerning the presentation on February 23rd?
A. I only understand, based on what you told me yesterday, that CSFB had a meeting in between, and I don't know what information they requested.
Q. For the record, you are referring to the meeting identified in Morgan Stanley

Exhibit 230, the last page, paragraph 12.
I will ask you another question.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I will move to strike that.
MR. BEMIS: I will ask another question.
MR. MARKOWSKI: No. For the record, your statement concerning what he was referring to.
MR. BEMIS: Okay.
That "okay" doesn't mean that I agree with you. That is, however, the right exhibit, and it is the right page, and it is the right paragraph.
Would you like me to show it to him?
MR. MARKOWSKI: If you want to testify --
MR. BEMIS: We will look at 230.
We will take the gentleman's time and see if that is what we need to do. It was gratuitous -- we will take his time and your time.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are wasting time.
MR. BEMIS: I will show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230 that we looked at yesterday. Turn to the last page, paragraph 12. Tell me when you are there.

Page 267

A. Yes.
Q. Was the meeting that you referred to in your answer to the question a few moments ago the February 24th, 1998 meeting that is referred to in that paragraph?
A. Yes.
Q. You did not attend that meeting or you don't know what happened or whether the meeting occurred?
A. That is correct.
Q. Would you hand that back to me.
MR. BEMIS: Anything else?
Q. I would like to move forward now to the board meeting of February 25th, 1998. I am going to provide you with a copy of the minutes of the meeting. The minutes have been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88. I hand those to you. Thank you.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88 in front of you?
A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 268

Q. Have you seen these minutes before?
A. I don't recall doing so, but I am sure I did review them. I always review the minutes of our board meetings.
Q. According to the minutes, you were present at the meeting; is that correct?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I have a question about the exhibit that was handed to me -- there appears to be another document stapled to the back.
THE WITNESS: You are seeing --
MR. BEMIS: It is possible. It is possible, Mr. Markowski, that we have one with an additional attachment that shouldn't be there. I have run out of copies. Let me take a look and see. Mine doesn't have the attachment on it.
MR. BIDEAU: I can tell you what we have and the witness has.
MR. MARKOWSKI: What Bates numbers are on the exhibit?
MR. BEMIS: I will give you the CPH Bates numbers: CPH 0634056, and it goes through 4064 on my copy.

Page 269

MR. MARKOWSKI: It looks like it is inadvertently attached.
MR. BIDEAU: The witness has the numbers that you just read. I think we just had one that was misassembled. Sorry about that.
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. You did attend the meeting and made a presentation; right?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you tell us what the general outline of your presentation was to the board of directors at that meeting on February 25th, 1998?
A. Well, according to the minutes, I talked about how the company was doing --
Q. That is Coleman; correct?
A. Coleman & Company.
And how we did in the fourth quarter and how 1997 had finished and gave a perspective on how we, in 1998, how 1998 was shaping up, as we were then starting the camping season, the heaviest part of our year.

Page 270

And I went down to discuss the transaction whereby Coleman would be merged with Sunbeam and described the terms of the transaction, stated that it was structured, the transaction was structured to put Sunbeam in control as quickly as possible through -- to reduce disruption to the company's business. And talked about Sunbeam's current plans, what businesses they keep and what they would sell, and then talked about some employee protection provisions which we wanted our board to implement.
Q. Did you -- withdrawn.
What did you tell the board about how Coleman finished in 1997?
A. I don't recall.
Q. At this point in time, February 25th, 1998, the record will show you had, the company had not filed -- that is, Coleman had not yet filed its 10K, which, I believe, was filed on March 18th, if my memory serves me correctly.
Did you give the board full year-end results at the February 25th meeting?
A. It would have been as best we could estimate, without the audit being complete.

Page 271

Q. It would not be unusual by that point in time, the end of February, to have at least year-end estimates available to management?
A. That is correct.
Q. As of February 25th, 1998, was the audit of Coleman's operations for the calendar year 1997 still ongoing by Ernst & Young?
A. I assume so.
Q. What -- did you tell the board that, what the plan was or projections were, if you prefer that term, for 1998?
A. I would have done that at the end of 1997.
Q. What was discussed about 1998 at the February 25th board meeting?
A. Relative to what I had told them in December, how we were doing.
Q. How we are to this date against what I told you earlier?
A. Yes. We would have known in February the customer commitments for the camping season, what our distribution would be with what accounts, what SKUs they were taking, would not have known the sell-through to the consumers, but maybe a -- a function of -- a function -- weather and a bunch of things that hadn't happened yet.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

But we would give them a pretty good sense as to whether we were on track in terms of getting the distribution with the customers that we anticipated and planned.

Q. You used the term SKU. That means stock-keeping units?

A. Yes.

Q. Just tell the jury what a stock-keeping unit is.

A. It is an item -- it could be a lantern with a specific shape, size, color. There are two colors, there would be two SKUs.

Q. It is amazing, I was going to ask you whether a lantern was a stock-keeping unit. Coleman's must be the most famous for its lanterns, is that true, their marquee?

A. Lanterns are the icon product with Coleman.

Q. When you presented the company's progress or results so far in 1998, were you basing it on, at least in part, upon interim financial statements of the company?

A. I would have known by that date the sales, the final sales for January, and by February 25th, I would have an extremely good estimate of the sales for February.

Q. Did you get -- withdrawn.

At Coleman, when you were the president of the company, did you receive a daily sales report, daily sales reports?

A. Yes.

Q. So, at any point in a month, you were able to prepare cumulative information to a point in time in the month for your sales; right?

A. Yes.

Q. Of course, these are unaudited figures at the time that you look at them; right?

A. They are several flaws to the system. There are -- there is quite a bit of estimating that is done, because these are gross sales and not net sales, and the international results come in later than the domestic results.

But I spent a lot of time talking to our managers to get a feel for what's happening behind the numbers. I had a reasonable idea of what was happening to the company.

Q. Notwithstanding the system is not perfect, as a businessman, it is at least a reasonable method that you can gather information about how you are doing sales-wise up to a point in time in a quarter?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you -- strike that.

How were you doing in 1998, as of February 25th?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you remember whether you were ahead or behind plan, as given to the board of directors in 1997, for the year 1998?

A. No.

Q. Did you discuss with the board of -- withdrawn.

You did discuss the proposed transaction with Sunbeam, you told us; right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell the board of directors about the presentation on February 23rd?

Page 275

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you tell the board your opinion that you had reached about Sunbeam's strategic plan set forth in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, that it was -- I think you used the term "a stretch" -- did you tell them that?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you tell the board why the transaction was being structured to put Sunbeam in control as quickly as possible?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you tell them?

A. To repeat what I said yesterday, because of Mr. Dunlap's reputation as taking out many, many employees, I felt, as soon as it was known that Sunbeam was taking over Coleman, there would be considerable employee moral issues for the company, and it was a predicate that could extend into our trade relations.

Q. Did anyone from the board of directors express a disagreement with your view that the transaction should be consummated as quickly as possible?

A. I don't recall anyone disagreeing.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 276

Q. Was your opinion that the transaction should be closed as quickly as possible also -- withdrawn. Did anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes express any disagreement with your belief that the transaction with Sunbeam should be closed as quickly as possible?
A. I don't recall anyone disagreeing.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman speak at the board of directors meeting on February 25th?
A. I don't --
Q. He is shown in attendance on the page.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did Mr. Maher speak -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Maher express any disagreement at the board of directors meeting with your presentation?
A. As the minutes show, Mr. Maher did present to the board following my presentation, and I don't recall any disagreements or differences between our presentations.
Q. Did Mr. Nesbitt, who is shown in attendance at the meeting, express any disagreement with your presentations?

A. I don't recall any.
Q. Did Mr. Barry F. Schwartz, who is also shown in attendance, express any disagreement with your presentation?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Did either Mr. Rich or Mr. Duffy from Credit Suisse First Boston express any disagreement with your presentation on February 23rd?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Did the board of directors ask you any questions during your presentation?
A. It is likely.
Q. Do you remember any of the questions?
A. No.
Q. If you had been asked any questions, would you have responded to them with the -- withdrawn.
If you had been asked any questions by the board of directors, would you have responded in the same manner you have testified today as to your opinions on the transaction?

Page 278

A. I would have responded openly, candidly and truthfully.
Q. As you are doing here today; right?
A. Yes.
Q. You remember -- do you remember how long you spoke in the meeting which -- it shows the meeting lasting about an hour and a half -- withdrawn.
A. No.
Q. I will ask the question again. The meeting is shown in the minutes as lasting about an hour and a half. Do you know how long you spoke?
A. No.
Q. The meeting minutes reflect that Mr. Maher spoke next. Is that consistent with your recollection of the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Maher's presentation, independent of what is in the minutes?
A. No.
Q. The minutes reflect that "Following Mr. Maher's review, the directors asked numerous questions regarding the proposed transactions and a discussion ensued among the directors." Do you see that language, sir?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember any of the numerous questions asked by the directors?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember any of Mr. Maher's responses?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Maher's presentation, to your recollection, touch upon Sunbeam's operations or its projections, as were discussed at the February 23rd, 1998 meeting at Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't recall.
Q. One of the items that you spoke to the directors about is the employee protection provisions.
Do you see that reference in the minutes?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a reference to the ability of the employees who had options to exercise their options and -- at a price that would allow them to receive, I believe it was $27.50

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

cash for their Coleman stock?
A. I don't recall if that was part of my presentation or something that came up later in the description of the transaction.
Q. There is -- Mr. Maher's presentation made a reference to the company -- that is, the Coleman Company made an inquiry to another company, or I think it is referred to here as a potential bidder, about that company's interest in Coleman. Do you see that reference in Mr. Maher's presentation?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember Mr. Maher saying about that bidder and the inquiry made by Coleman to that bidder?
A. If my memory serves me correctly, there was one company that had contacted MacAndrews & Forbes on a number of occasions, expressing their interest in acquiring Coleman, if it became available.
Q. Who was that?
A. I believe it was Brunswick.
Q. Did you have, are you aware of any contact by Coleman, at or about the time of the Sunbeam discussions, whether it be from

Page 281

December or all the way up until February, any further contact with Brunswick about an interest in acquiring Coleman?
A. I was not involved in this. I don't know what took place.
Q. Do you know of anyone at Coleman who was involved in such discussions, if they took place?
A. No one involved in the operating company, which is all I can speak to, was involved in talking to Brunswick, if it was Brunswick, or in discussions -- if there were discussions. We just weren't part of that.
Q. Did you ever have any discussions with Brunswick, and by "you," I mean you, personally?
A. No.
Q. It was all done at the holding company level?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there anything that you, anything you recall -- withdrawn.
After Mr. Maher's presentation, did Mr. Emmerich of the Wachtel Lipton firm then address the board about certain legal matters?

Page 282

A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any part of that discussion, independent of what is set forth in the minutes?
A. No.
Q. After Mr. Emmerich's presentation, the minutes reflect that you then introduced Credit Suisse First Boston and Mr. Gordon Rich, in particular, and then he spoke to the board. Is that consistent with your recollection of the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. The minutes of the meeting reflect that Mr. Rich's presentation included a statement that there was a premium of approximately 44.2 percent being offered by Sunbeam for the company's stock based on the stock price the previous day; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that consistent with your recollection?
A. I don't recall what it was.
Q. Do you recall it was -- a premium in that neighborhood?
A. I recall there was a significant premium.

Q. What do you recall about Mr. Rich's presentation?
A. Nothing.
Q. Was it simply an oral presentation or was he assisted by overheads, such as Mr. Kersh or Mr. Goudis used on the evening of February 23rd?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you attend the entire hour and a half that the meeting lasted? Withdrawn.
Were you there for the entire board meeting on February 25th?
A. According to the minutes, I was there for the entire meeting.
Q. Mr. Rich is quoted as referring to Coleman's 1998 estimates on earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization, which he says, or the minutes say show a significant increase over 1997 results.
Do you see that reference there?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it accurate that Coleman's plan for 1998, its projections for the full year,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014645

Page 284

did show significant increases over 1997 results?
A. Yes.
Q. And is it true that the 1998 plan that Coleman had, as of the date of this meeting, February 25th, had higher EBITDA than the company's best results in any other year before that time?
A. I don't know that that is true.
Q. Did Mr. Rich say at the meeting, as reflected in the minutes, that another buyer would likely discount Coleman's 1998 EBITDA forecast?
A. According to the minutes, yes.
Q. Do you have any reason to doubt that he did not say that?
A. Sounds like a reasonable thing to say.
Q. Mr. Rich is then described as presenting on the next page of the minutes a brief overview of Sunbeam, including Wall Street estimates for Sunbeam's stock price. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Wall Street's estimates for Sunbeam were different, as you have described it, from what you heard from Sunbeam on February 23rd; correct?

Page 285

A. Yes. They are different than those presented in their strategic plan.
Q. Did Mr. Rich make any reference at the board meeting on February 25th, 1998 to Sunbeam's strategic plan figures as they were presented at that meeting on February 23rd?
A. I don't recall which set of numbers he used.
Q. Is there any reference that you see in the minutes to Sunbeam's long-range strategic plan in this presentation that Mr. Rich made to the board on February 25th?
A. It is somewhat ambiguous in that it talks about a summary of the discounted cash flow analysis, which could have been a Wall Street set of numbers; it could have been an internally generated set of numbers; or it could have been Sunbeam's strategic plan. I don't know which.
Q. Or it could have even been a combination of one or more of those; right?
A. Well -- (indicating).

Page 286

Q. The question I asked you is: Based on your reading of the paragraph, can you see any specific reference to the Sunbeam's long-range strategic plan?
A. No.
Q. There follows Mr. Rich's presentation summary in the minutes a paragraph that reads: "Following Mr. Rich's presentation, the directors asked questions and a discussion ensued." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any of the questions asked or the discussions that ensued by the board of directors?
A. No.
Q. Is there anything that stands out in your mind about the February 25th board of directors meetings, whether the matter is or is not reflected in the minutes?
A. No.
Q. Would you describe the meeting as businesslike?
A. Our directors meetings always were.
Q. Was there any discussion, at the meeting, about Mr. Dunlap, in particular, and his reputation, as you have described it already in your deposition?

A. I don't recall any.
Q. You can hand that exhibit back to me. Thank you, sir.
Do you recall any discussion at all at the board meeting about whether it was in the best interest of Coleman's shareholders to take Sunbeam's stock, as opposed to cash, as the merger consideration?
A. I don't recall any discussion that that was an option.
Q. Did management of the company -- that is, Coleman -- express to the board of directors on February 25th, that it was in favor of the merger?
A. Yes.
Q. Were there any dissenters in management?
A. I am sure had I surveyed them, there would have been a large number of dissenters. I am only referring to the management who was aware that this was happening, which was a very small percent.
Q. That would have been yourself,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011646

Page 288

Mr. Shapiro and Mr. Isko -- and Mr. Paige?
A. And Mr. Paige.
Q. As of the time of the February 25th meet, beyond those board members of the management of Coleman, the other members of senior management had not yet been informed of the potential transaction; is that right?
A. They were not formally informed or informed by me. Whether there was leakage or not, I don't know.
Q. It is your opinion, as the chief executive officer of Coleman, that as of February 25th, had there been a survey of senior management, as a whole, there would have been opposition to the merger?
A. Some -- the individuals, yes.
Q. At the meeting were any materials prepared by CSFB handed out or made available to the board of directors?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Let me show you two documents, and we will start with Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112.
Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112 in front of you?
A. Yes.

Page 289

Q. Have you seen this document before? Please take a moment to look at it, as long as you would like.
(Pause.)
A. I don't know if I have or haven't.
Q. It just, as you sit here today, you just can't remember, one way or the other, whether you have seen it?
A. Yes. This was a draft and I don't know if it was presented to me or not.
Q. Do you recall any documents being either handed out or otherwise made available to the Coleman board of directors at the February 25th meeting?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Okay. Had you, personally, provided any information to Credit Suisse First Boston concerning Coleman's 1998 plan, as you had developed that plan and presented it to the board sometime in 1997?
A. I am sure we gave them a plan.
Q. There are references to a, at various points in this document, on Coleman management estimates. Would those types of estimates have been provided at your direction through your chief financial officer or would you have done it yourself?

A. It could have been either way.
Q. Either way.
Why don't you hand that document back to me.
One last question.
I realize you can't remember whether you saw it -- that document -- as you sit here today, did it have any impact on your decision, one way or the other, to vote for the merger?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form. If he doesn't remember if he saw it, how would he know if it would affect the opinion?
MR. BEMIS: I heard the objection to the form. I heard the objection.
MR. BIDEAU: Okay.
A. No.
MR. BEMIS: One more document on that, and then we will be finished with this topic.

Page 291

Q. I am handing you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 197. Please take a minute and look at it.
Do you have Exhibit 197 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. When you are done looking at it, please let me know.
(Pause.)
Q. I don't have detailed questioning on it.
My first question is going to be whether you saw it.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Just so I can get -- withdrawn.
As you sit here today, sir, you do not recall seeing exhibit, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 197 at any time; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You may hand it back to me. Thank you, sir.
Sir, I am going to hand you now Morgan Stanley Exhibit 118, which has previously been identified as the minutes of the Coleman board of directors on February

27th, 1998.
Please take a moment and look at the exhibit and tell me when you are done, and then I will ask you a couple of questions about it.
(Pause.)
A. Okay.
Q. First of all, have you seen these minutes before?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did the minutes, when you saw them, have all of the attachments that appear at the back?
A. I don't recall the details, but I assume so.
Q. Did you have any further role in the negotiations of the Sunbeam Coleman merger from any perspective between February 25th and this meeting on February 27th?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. The minutes seem to reflect that you made a brief introduction and then the meeting was started in earnest with Mr. Emmerich reviewing the transaction from a legal standpoint. Is that your recollection of the meeting?

A. My recollection is that my role, as presented, was very limited in this meeting and I was there as a director.
Q. You are shown on page 2 as introducing Mr. Rich at the meeting. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Rich speaking at the meeting?
A. I don't recall the meeting, but the minutes reflect that that happened.
Q. If you will turn to the last -- excuse me, the next to the last page of this, of the minutes, there is a document which is entitled "CLN transaction multiples."
A. Did you give me the page number?
Q. Sure. It is --
MR. BIDEAU: The last page, second to the last page of the exhibit.
Q. I will start over, because I even gave you the wrong page.
Would you turn to the page, the third from the last, which bears the Bates numbers ending in the two digits 82.

Page 294

MR. BIDEAU: The preliminary financial terms of the transaction is the caption.
MR. BEMIS: That is it, Mr. Bideau.
Q. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Then, if you continue on, you will see in the upper right-hand corner there are page numbers and it continues through what I think is page 4, although page 4 appears to have been lost in the photocopying. But anyway, there are three page numbers and the Bates numbers go through ending numbers 82 through 85.
Do you see those four pages?
A. Yes.
Q. Were those, was this document, the four pages of it -- withdrawn. Were these four pages presented to the board of directors and discussed?
A. According to the minutes, they were.
Q. Would you turn to the page -- let's look at the page first -- ending in two digits, 82. That is the preliminary financial terms.

Page 295

Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Under the MacAndrews consideration terms, there are two -- there are two bullet points.
First, there is -- it reads: "Assumption of first and second priority notes 496,000,000 of accreted value, 11/15/97," and then "525,000,000 accreted value, as of 5/15/98." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you understand what that is, or do you know what that is?
A. I know some notes of MacAndrews & Forbes were assumed as part of this transaction in exchange for shares, controlled by MacAndrews, but I really never spent much time thinking about that portion of it.
Q. In addition to this assumption of notes, the second bullet point refers to MacAndrews' consideration being 14.1 million SOC shares. That is Sunbeam shares; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And "160,000,000 in cash (tax-free)." Do you see that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 296

A. Yes.
Q. Is that your recollection of the MacAndrews consideration of stock and cash from Sunbeam?
A. I don't have a recollection of it, but I assume this is accurate.
Q. Turn to the -- to the next page of this same document, MS 118, ending in the CPH Bates number 83. Tell me when you are there. It has key transaction multiples on the top.
A. Yes.
Q. Under the heading "relevant statistics," on the right side, there is a column marked "premium." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. It says "42.6 percent based on" as I read the chart, "CLN last 12 months high." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you explain to the jury what you understood that to mean when you saw this document?
A. That the highest price for Coleman in the last 12 months was $20 and 11/16ths and that the purchase price Coleman shareholders would be receiving would be at a premium 42.6 percent to that price.

Q. Now, if we go down one line, based on Coleman's 12 months' low, it has a premium figure of 136 percent; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you tell the jury what you understood that to mean, at the time of the February 27th, 1998 board meeting?
A. Looking at the lowest price Coleman traded at, in the previous 12 months, of 12 and a half dollars a share, the new -- the Coleman shareholders would be receiving a premium of 136 percent, 12 1/2.
Q. Please turn to the next page, which is CLN transaction multiples. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. There is references to, in footnote 1, to "CLN management estimate of 1997 year-end debt less 90,000,000 of estimated after tax proceeds from the sale of safety and security products units." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. The sale of -- the safety and security products unit was an operating division that, at least was a contract pending for sale at the time of the approval of the merger; is that correct?

A. I don't remember if the contract was signed or about to be signed, but --
Q. You told me that yesterday. I apologize, you did tell me that.
With regard to footnote number 3, which addresses earnings per share estimates, these are, are these estimates, at least for 1998, that were provided by Coleman's management to Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. I assume so.
Q. You can at least go back to the beginning of the front of the document.
You are shown on page 2, at the very bottom paragraph, of having addressed the board on the topic of employee severance and benefits.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And an additional topic appears to be the acceleration of the stock options; do you see that?
A. Yes.

Page 299

Q. The discussion on the stock options is what we have talked about earlier; that is the ability of certain officers and directors who had options to exercise their options for the cash price of 27.50 in merger consideration?
A. No.
Q. I think I misspoke when I asked the question.
Is the stock options the ability of the officers and directors to exercise their existing Coleman options and then exchange their Coleman stock for 27.50 in cash if they elected to do so as part of the merger consideration?
A. I don't know that this was dealing with anything beyond the acceleration of vesting. And it was a much broader group than just officers and directors, there were several hundred employees involved.
Q. Were the options of all of the employees of Coleman who had options accelerated under the terms of the merger agreements?
A. I believe that is correct.

Page 300

Q. Do you recall any specific discussion by the board of directors, at the February 27th meeting, about whether the transaction with Sunbeam was in the best interest of Coleman's shareholders?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you recall about that discussion?
A. It ultimately concluded that it was.
Q. Was there any discussion at the February 27th, 1998 meeting about your opinions that you formed following the February 23rd, 1998 meeting about Sunbeam's long-range strategic plan -- that it was "a stretch," as you put it?
A. I believe my comments were reflected per the documents that you showed me in the CSFB analysis where they actually took more Street estimates and a more conservative view, and that apparently was presented to the board. So, they accepted, at least in part, my reasoning.
Q. CSFB's presentation to the board, as you recall it, and as reflected in the minutes, was based on Street estimates, not on the figures that were in and presented to you on February 23rd in the strategic plan; correct?

A. I am not sure of the origin of it -- they seemed to have taken a conservative view of the strategic plan, per my advice.
Q. You did give that advice to CSFB that they should take a conservative view?
A. I gave it to MacAndrews & Forbes. I know -- I don't recall any conversations with CSFB.
Q. Do you recall anything unusual -- strike that.
Was the board of directors meeting on February 27th as businesslike as the February 25th meeting was?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there anything, as you sit here today, that stands out as being out of the ordinary for a meeting of this type?
A. No.
MR. BEMIS: It is 11:30 and you said that you wanted to break at 11:30.
THE WITNESS: I could take 5 or 10 more minutes now, if you would like, but

Page 302

I have to then run out of the door. If you would like to break now.
MR. BEMIS: It is a perfect breaking time right now, and I don't want you to have to run, and I said that at 11:30 I would get you out.
MR. SOLOVY: What time are you going to resume?
THE WITNESS: I will try to get back here at 1:15. I will be on the dais, and sneaking out is a little more complicated than usual.

EXAMINATION (cont'd)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Levin.
When we left for lunch we were discussing the February 27th, 1998 board meeting, and I would like to move forward from there.
My first question is: Did you attend the actual signing or execution of the merger agreements?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall, one way or the other?
A. Correct.

Page 304

Q. After the closing of the merger agreements, which are dated as of February 27th, 1998, did you take a vacation of sorts?
MR. MARKOWSKI: After the closing of the agreements or the signing of the agreements?
MR. BEMIS: The signing of the agreements on February 27th.
Q. I will ask the question again, so that it is a clear question for you.
After the signing of the merger agreements, which are dated as of February 27th, 1998, did you take a vacation?
A. Of sorts, would probably be the best way of putting it, per an understanding reached between Sunbeam and Coleman. The Sunbeam management immediately stepped in and started taking care of the business.
Q. Where did you go for this vacation "of sorts"?
A. I believe most of it was spent in Tucson, Arizona.
Q. When was your last day that you were actually at the Coleman facilities in Wichita working?

Page 305

A. I don't recall. It would be -- I seem to recollect that I went to Wichita immediately, after the announcement, to meet with the employees, and probably went down from Wichita to do something.
Q. Does your wife live pretty much in the Tucson, Arizona home that you have there?
A. No.
Q. Where does she live?
A. She spends more of her time in either our New York homes or Florida.
Q. How long did you stay on vacation in Tucson, Arizona, following the signing of the merger agreements?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was your wife with you when you were on vacation in Tucson?
A. My wife was with me when I was on vacation in Tucson, yes.
Q. Did you have -- withdrawn.
Did you ever see the offering memorandum for the Sunbeam zero coupon convertible senior subordinated debentures that were issued in connection with the merger transaction?

Page 306

A. I don't recall seeing them.
Q. Let me show you, just real quickly, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 166, which is the offering memorandum, and after you are done looking at it, and I don't expect you to read it thoroughly, it is pretty long -- I will ask you just a couple quick questions.
MR. BEMIS: Do you need a copy of this?
MR. MARKOWSKI: No.
(Pause.)
Q. I just want you to take a quick look at it and let me know when you are done, and if you need to look at it again, you can tell me.
A. I have seen offering memorandums before; so, I have a general sense of what they should be doing.
Q. My only question is: Now, after having looked at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 166, do you recall seeing it in connection with the merger transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I don't recall having done so.
Q. Then you can hand it back to me and we have no questions on it. Thank you.

Page 307

I recognize that you were in Tucson sometime shortly after the execution of the merger agreements, but did you attend any of the road shows for the debentures?
A. No.
Q. Let me now show you a document I should have, that I should have shown you yesterday. I want to see if you recognize the handwriting on it? I hand to you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 177.
(Pause.)
A. Okay.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?
A. No.
Q. Okay. You may hand it back to me. We are done. Thank you.
Were you aware that Morgan Stanley was, with other banks, going to loan Sunbeam money to finance the purchase of the Coleman Company?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I knew that there was a bank syndication effort going forward, and I knew that Morgan Stanley and Wachovia had some roles in it, but I did not know whether they were taking any of the participation, and what their debt role was.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Did you know, by the time of the bankruptcy, that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had loaned money to Sunbeam in connection with the transaction?
A. I became quite familiar with that fact, yes.
Q. In fact, when Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was the largest creditor in the bankruptcy proceeding; was it not?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember what the size of Morgan Stanley's claim was in the bankruptcy proceeding?
A. It would be approximately 40 percent of 1 billion-650, or something like that.
Q. The date of the bankruptcy filing was what?
A. February, '01.
Q. One second.
Using your figures, because I can't lay my hand right on the Morgan Stanley claim at the moment -- you said it was approximately 40 percent of $1.6 billion?

A. It was slightly over 1.6, but I believe the 40 percent is correct.
Q. Okay. So that, if my math is correct, that is about $480,000,000, if your figures are correct; right? Actually it is more than that.
A. I don't think it is correct.
Q. My math is wrong. It is actually closer to 664 --
A. That sounds letter.
Q. I was multiplying it by 3 and not 4. So, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding filed a claim for approximately $664,000,000 in the bankruptcy, as you recall it; correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
Q. You can answer.
A. On the secured debt.
Q. Unsecured --
On the secured debt --
THE REPORTER: Unsecured?
THE WITNESS: No.
A. On the secured debt.

Page 310

Q. Was the Morgan Stanley claim on the secured debt allowed in the bankruptcy proceeding?
A. I am not sure what "allowed" means.
Q. Recognized as being a valid claim.
A. I believe so.
Q. Based on your participation in negotiations of the acquisition, as you described it, and as limited as you described it, and your stewardship of Sunbeam Corporation after you became president, can you think of any reason why Morgan Stanley would have loaned in excess of $664,000,000 to Sunbeam to participate in this massive fraud that you described earlier?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form. Lack of foundation.
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form.
A. Yes.
Q. What is that reason?
A. The loan syndication failed.
Q. Is that the only reason?
A. I do not believe Morgan Stanley had any intent of taking but a small fraction of that and anticipated taking substantial fees out; so, I assume there was very small investment and -- risk by Morgan Stanley on that.

Q. Do you know how much that was?
A. No.
Q. And, of course, you know the syndication did not go forward?
A. Yes.
Q. Correct.
Let me ask you to move forward from the end of February, 1998 to March, 19 -- excuse me. Withdrawn.
Let me move from the closing of the merger agreements -- withdrawn.
Let me move forward from the execution of the merger agreements on February 28th, now, up to about March 19th, 1998.
Do you recall seeing a press release that was issued by Sunbeam at about that time?
A. I recall seeing a press release about that time, about their first quarter.
Q. Let me show you a copy of that press release, which has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39.
I handed you what has been marked as

Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39.
Do you see that? Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this the press release that was issued by Sunbeam that you recall seeing on or about March 19th?
A. Yes.
Q. Where were you when you saw the press release?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Were you still on vacation in Tucson?
A. I don't remember if I had come back to New York at that time or not.
Q. While you were on vacation in Tucson, did you, on occasion, fly back to New York on business and then return to Tucson to continue your vacation?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Would -- withdrawn.
When you saw the press release -- withdrawn.
What were the circumstances that, under which you saw the press release? For example, was it sent to you? Did you see it on a financial wire?

A. I don't recall. I don't recall how it got to me.
Q. Did you read it when you saw it, the --
A. Yes.
Q. Did you discuss it with anyone?
A. I believe I did, yes.
Q. Who did you discuss it with?
A. It could have been members of senior management at Coleman, members of MacAndrews & Forbes, or both.
Q. As you sit here today, do you have a specific recollection of speaking to anyone at Coleman?
A. I don't know who I talked to about it, but I do remember it generated some discussion.
Q. As you sit here today, do you have a specific recollection of who you talked to at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. Did you have more than one discussion about the press release?

Page 314

A. I don't recall.
Q. What do you recall about the discussion that you had with either senior management at Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes, or both, if that be the case?
A. That it was not terribly surprising that they were below on sales and we had already somewhat discounted their financial strategic plan, including 1997. But it was unusual in that it only talked about revenues, which would be the secondary important item, and did not speak to any impact on company profits, and implying that despite the shortfall, that the analysts' estimates of profits were unchanged.
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes ask you to do anything as a result of the press release, such as make a phone call, talk to somebody?
A. Not at that time, no.
Q. Did anyone at Coleman ask you to take any actions following your discussions about the press release, such as talk to someone at Sunbeam?
A. No. It would not -- Coleman would not have asked me to do that.

Page 315

Q. Am I correct, sir, that you did not do --
Withdrawn.
Am I correct, sir, that following the issuance of the press release and your learning of the release, that you really did not take any action as a result of the press release because you did not view it as your problem?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form.
A. Well, if you took it at its face, there was no problem. I just thought it was odd.
Q. My question was, sir: As a result of -- I will withdraw the question.
My question to you was, sir: Following your receipt of the press release, am I correct that you took no action with regard to the press release, either individually or on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes, because you did not view it as your problem?
MR. BIDEAU: Objection. He just answered that exact question.
MR. BEMIS: The objection is asked and answered.

MR. BIDEAU: That was the objection, you are right. It was asked and answered.
MR. BEMIS: He may answer again.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I continued to consider anything that could happen that could affect Coleman Company and its shareholders to be my problem; so, the answer to your question is No.
Q. Sir, let me ask you if you were asked the following questions and gave the following answers in your deposition, I believe in 2001. For the record, we previously marked that as Exhibit 443.
MR. BIDEAU: You may want to put your microphone back on.
MR. BEMIS: I will. Thank you.
MR. BIDEAU: I just noticed the videographer going -- (indicating).
Q. Turn to page 33. Tell me when you are there.
A. Okay.
Q. Sir, were you asked the following questions and did you give the following answers, under oath, in your deposition on June 20th, 2001, beginning at line 19, page 33:

"Question: Mr. Levin, I have handed you a printout of a press release that was issued by Sunbeam on March 19th, 1998, and I invite you to read it -- but, in particular, the first two sentences relate to sales, the possibility that sales would fall below Wall Street estimates. And it says, 'But net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of 253.4 million.'
"Answer: Yes.
"Question: Do you see that language?
"Answer: Yes.
"Question: Now, do you recall that the Coleman acquisition occurred at, I think it was March 30th or 31st of 1998?
"Answer: I believe it was March 30th.
"Question: Does this help refresh your recollection about whether or not you saw this press release before the acquisition was closed?

"Answer: Yes. I did see this before the acquisition closed.
"Question: After you saw this press release, did you undertake any actions in response to the press release?
"Answer: No, I -- I viewed this as not my problem at the time."
Were you asked those questions and did you give those answers under oath in 2001?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
(Witness and counsel confer.)
Q. Following the issuance of the press release, my understanding is that you did not take any steps at anybody's direction to contact Sunbeam; correct?
A. Not -- not to the best of my recollection.
Q. You did not take any steps, following the issuance of the March 19th press release, to contact Arthur Andersen, Sunbeam's auditors; correct?
A. Correct.

Page 319

Q. Did you take any steps to contact Ernst & Young, the auditors of Coleman, to ask them about the contents of the press release?
A. No. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you take any steps to contact anyone at Morgan Stanley after the issuance of the press release?
A. No.
Q. Did you take any steps to contact anyone at Credit Suisse First Boston after the issuance of the March 19th press release?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes that, following the issuance of the March 19th press release, and up to and including the date of the closing of the merger agreement, March 30th, 1998, made any contact with Sunbeam to discuss the March 19th press release?
A. I am not aware of what discussions took place, if any.
Q. Are you -- as you sit here today, are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes, after the issuance of the March 19th press release, and up to and including the closing of the transaction on March 30th, contacting anyone at Morgan Stanley about the contents of the March 19th press release?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't recall anybody doing it. They might have.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes, after the issuance of the March 19th press release and up to and including the closing of the merger transaction on March 30th, 1998, contacting anyone at the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen to inquire about the contents of the press release?
A. I am unaware of anyone doing that.
Q. Following the issuance of the March 19th press release and up to and including the closing of the merger transaction on March 30th, are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes contacting Credit Suisse First Boston to make inquiry of them about the contents of the March 19th press release?
A. I am not aware of it.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes contacting anyone, outside of the company, and asking any questions about the contents of the March 19th press release?

A. I am only aware of what they asked me about it, and I told them, if you read it, it is odd, but on its face there is no problem.
And, therefore, it was not my problem, it was not their problem, there was really no action necessary.
Q. Is it my understanding, then, that you took -- you, personally, took absolutely no steps to contact Sunbeam after the issuance of the March 19th press release to make inquiry of Sunbeam about the contents of the press release; is that correct??
MR. BIDEAU: Asked and answered for the third time.
Q. I won't ask it a fourth time.
MR. BIDEAU: That would be good, and we will move this along.
A. Sorry. I hate to do this to you both, but would you repeat the question.
Q. It is my understanding that you took, that is you, personally, took absolutely no steps to contact Sunbeam after the issuance of the March 19th press release to make inquiry of Sunbeam about the contents of the press release; is that correct?

A. To the best of my knowledge, I assumed that, since this was a public press release, it was what it was, and it was absolutely factual, there was no fraud. It never occurred to me that there would be fraud in this situation, and I took it on its face, and felt there was no problem and no need to pursue it further.
Whether MacAndrews, Credit Suisse First Boston, listened to me, accepted it, I have no knowledge.
Q. You, personally, did not take any action; correct?
A. I, personally, took no action, other than expressed my opinions to MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman or both. I just don't remember.
Q. You can hand the press release back to me. We are all done with it. You can hand the transcript back to me. Thank you.
You told us earlier that in 1998 you had contacts at Walmart that you, I think described as "good friends"; am I correct?

Page 323

A. Yes.
Q. Following the issuance of the March 19th press release, did you contact anyone, any of your friends at Walmart to see how Sunbeam was doing at Walmart?
A. As I said before, yes.
Q. When was that?
A. That was towards the end of April.
Q. So, in the period from March 19th through and including the closing on March 30th, 1998, you did not make any contact with your friends at Walmart; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Who is -- and if I asked you this, I apologize, but I can't remember -- who was the person at Walmart that you considered your friend that you could contact? And there may be more than one. I am not suggesting that there is just one.
A. It could have been a series of people, and I don't remember exactly who I talked to.
Q. Do you remember the names of the people that you could have contacted, now, again in 1998?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 324

A. Do you want the whole list?
Q. How long is the list?
A. Five or six likely candidates, or possible candidates.
Q. Could you give us their names, as best you can remember?
A. I don't remember when the CEO transition took place. It could have been David Glass or Lee Scott.
Q. You have to go slow enough for the court reporter to take them down. David Glass?
A. Or Lee Scott, depending on when the CEO transition took place there. It could have been Tom Kaufman.
Q. Kaufman?
A. C-O-U-G-H-L-I-N. I am sorry, short-term memory loss on the hard goods senior merchandising manager. It could have been the grill buyer.
Q. Anyone else?
A. The president at that time, and I can't remember his name right now. I just don't remember the organizational structure, seven years ago.

Page 325

Q. Okay. Your recollection is that it is sometime in April that you spoke to one or more of these individuals?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you present at the actual closing of the merger transactions on March 30th, 1998?
A. I would -- I don't remember being there. Typically, not.
Q. Did you hear, at any point after the closing, what, if anything, transpired at the closing, other than the signing of the documents?
A. I don't recall anything special.
Q. So, as far as you know, it was a fairly routine closing?
A. I don't remember a routine closing ever, any time. They always seem to drag out for something or other. I don't remember what the issues were in this case.

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Sir, you remember at the board of directors meetings of February 25th and 27th, 1998, Mr. Adam Emmerich from the Wachtel firm spoke to the board; do you recall that?
A. The minutes say that he did.
Q. Are you aware of any due diligence of any kind that was undertaken by the Wachtel Lipton firm on behalf of Coleman in connection with the merger transaction?
A. I believe they were doing routine due diligence, appropriate to the merger to public companies.

Page 327

Q. And do you have any firsthand knowledge of what they did?
A. I don't remember anything distressing being reported to me.
Q. Do you remember anything being reported to you at all as to what, if anything, that they did?
A. I don't recall what our conversations were back then.
Q. The Coleman companies' auditors, you told us earlier, were Ernst & Young at the time of the merger transaction; correct?
A. They were or weren't?
Q. They were.
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. Do you recall any due diligence that was of Sunbeam that was undertaken by Ernst & Young at any point up to the closing of the merger agreements on March 30th, 1998?
A. I seem to recall that they went to the audit work papers of Sunbeam, but I don't recall anything else.
Q. Okay. Who, do you recall at Ernst &

Young -- strike that. What is the basis -- withdrawn.

Do you know who at Ernst & Young did that?

A. I am not completely sure that they did, but we tend to do that on transactions like this, and I think they did, and I am not sure who was involved.

Q. So, Ernst & Young, if they did review the audit work papers, they would have been reviewing Sunbeam's audit work papers -- that is, Sunbeam's auditors --

I will rephrase the question. That is terrible.

If Ernst & Young did a review of the work papers, would that have been a review of Arthur Andersen's work papers involving Sunbeam's audits?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Ernst & Young make any report to you or to the board of directors or to Mafco, if that be the case, as to the results of any review of Arthur Andersen's work papers of Sunbeam's financial statements?

A. No. We were ultimately completely blindsided by the problems.

Q. So, your auditors, as far as you know, based on their review, did not detect any of what you call, I think you referred to as the massive fraud at Sunbeam; is that correct??

A. I am quoting the Securities and Exchange Commission and the financial -- that was uncovered by my own financial people.

Q. But during, in the course of the Ernst & Young review of the Andersen work papers, if that, indeed, occurred, as you described it, Ernst & Young did not report to you that they had uncovered any massive fraud?

A. I don't -- yes.

Q. Did Ernst & Young report to you that they had uncovered any irregularities in Andersen's work papers, regardless of whether they are massive fraud or not massive fraud?

A. I don't remember anything that would be considered a material item.

Q. Did the Coleman Company authorize Ernst & Young to send a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley in connection with the debenture offering?

Page 330

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you know what a comfort letter is?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it customary in a debenture offering such as you had in this case, for there to be comfort letters from the auditors of the two companies involved in the merger that is being financed by the debentures?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.

A. I don't know the answer to that question.

Q. What is a comfort letter?

A. Generally, I believe that it would be a letter from our existing auditors that things are still, whatever they were in the last audit report are still okay.

Q. Is it, it is a bring-forward from the last audited financial statements to the date of the comfort letter?

A. I think so.

Q. Let me show you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 243.

Page 331

(Pause.)

Q. Do you have Exhibit 243 in front of you, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you seen this document before?

A. I don't recall seeing its.

Q. At any point in the -- withdrawn. You may hand that back to me if you have not seen it. Thank you.

A. Sorry.

Q. At any point in either the negotiations or up to the actual closing on March 30th, 1998 of the merger, did you ask to see a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen involving Sunbeam's financial statements?

A. I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall asking or you don't recall, one way or the other?

A. I don't recall, one way or the other.

Q. Did you understand that Arthur Andersen would issue a comfort letter in connection with Sunbeam's financial statements prior to the closing on March 30th?

A. It would be standard.

Q. Was there someone at MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman who was tasked with obtaining or reviewing a copy of the Arthur Andersen comfort letter?
A. If it was a condition of closing, I am sure that there was.
Q. In your employment lifetime, whether it be with MacAndrews & Forbes, or Pillsbury or the other companies that you have worked for, have you been involved in debt offerings by the companies that you worked with?
A. Yes.
Q. These debt offerings included instruments such as debentures?
A. Yes.
Q. Bonds?
A. Yes.
Q. In connection with those offerings, were there underwritings by securities houses such as Morgan Stanley?
A. They were underwritten by securities houses, yes.
Q. In connection with those securities underwritings, was it your understanding that the auditors of the companies issuing the securities would provide comfort letters to the underwriters?

A. I don't recall specifically how that worked.
Q. You recall that they are customary?
A. I believe they are customary, yes.
Q. Following the execution of the merger agreements and up to and including the closing of the transaction, merger transaction on March 30th, 1998, did CSFB, to your knowledge, perform any due diligence of Sunbeam?
A. Give me the dates again -- when did you start, I am not sure when you started.
Q. I will try again. Following the execution of the merger agreements, which was as of February 27th, 1998, and up to and including the actual closing of the transaction on March 30th, 1998, did CSFB, to your knowledge, perform any due diligence of Sunbeam?
A. I am unaware of anything that they did in that four-day period. Three- or four-day period.
Q. Actually, it is a month period.

Page 334

MR. BIDEAU: He is talking about February 27th to the end of March.
MR. BEMIS: I will try the question one more time, so that we have a clear question and answer for you.
Q. Following the execution of the merger agreements, which was as of February 27th, 1998, and up to and including March 30th, 1998, the actual closing of the merger transaction, did CSFB perform any due diligence of Sunbeam?
A. I do not know.
Q. Did you participate in any discussions at MacAndrews & Forbes about hedging MacAndrews & Forbes' position in Sunbeam following the merger transaction?
A. "Participate" would be a strong term. I was aware that they were considering it. It was not that they asked me -- you know, they just -- I knew that that was one of the things that they were looking at.
Q. How is it that you came to know this?
A. Somebody mentioned it. I heard it.
Q. So that, is that the extent of your knowledge of what was being considered with regard to hedging the securities?

A. Yes. I don't know if they did it or did not do it. I just heard that they were thinking about it.
Q. Did you, at any time, participate in any meetings or communications with anyone who was advising MacAndrews & Forbes on the possibility of hedging their Sunbeam securities?
A. Well, somebody told me. I don't remember who and when or where. But I was not participating in the process, in any way.
Q. Let me show you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 58. This is a press release dated April 3rd, 1998.
A. Thank you.
Q. Please take a moment and look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 58 and tell me when you are done.
(Pause.)
A. Okay, I read it once, but I can't say that I memorized it. Please proceed.
Q. Have you seen a copy of this press release before?

MR. MARKOWSKI: You are excluding the fax cover page?
MR. BEMIS: Yes.
A. I don't know that I have seen the press release, but I saw this in the press.
Q. When you say you saw it in the press, you mean, like an article in the Wall Street Journal?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you discuss either the press release or what you saw in the Wall Street Journal with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I remember having discussions about this, and again, it could have been people at MacAndrews, people at Goldman, or both.
Q. Were these discussions with either people at Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes at about the time of the issuance of the press release or the reporting in the press, as you identified it?
A. I would like to correct what I said before, having thought about it. Certainly with MacAndrews & Forbes, but not Coleman. Because the Coleman people have gone.

Page 337

Q. Let me rephrase my question.
A. Okay.
Q. Were the discussions that you had with the people at MacAndrews & Forbes close in time to the issuance of the press release or the reporting in the press, as you described it?
A. Yes.
Q. Who did you speak to at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. That I am less sure of. It would be the usual cast of characters -- Perelman, Gittis, Schwartz, Maher, Nesbitt. It would be people within that group.
Q. Did you have more than one conversation or was there just one?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Whatever conversations that you had, do they -- do they held together as one for you now, as you sit here six years later?
A. Well, as I sit here six and a half years later, I do remember, in general, my reaction to this, and -- and discussions of this, which could have been done in one meeting or two or three. I just don't know.

Q. Please tell me what you remember about your discussions in reaction to the April 3rd press release, Morgan Stanley 58.
A. Wow, that is a surprise. There are a lot of things in here that were really new, that we had no idea was in the works. In addition, missing the sales, given the previous press release by 5 percent below last year's first quarter, was quite extraordinary.
There are comments on grill sales which did not really make a lot of sense. For instance, we expected our grill sales, especially reorder business late in the quarter, a level that was not realized -- there is no first quarter reorder business. It simply doesn't happen seasonally. You are still loading the trade for the season. Though I admit it is difficult to forecast, but it is not a first quarter problem.
If the retailers were managing down their inventories, ah, you would have known about it.
And -- May 19th, whatever the date was of the press release, this would not come as a huge surprise, unless you were completely out of touch with your own business.

MR. BIDEAU: March 19th.
THE WITNESS: Excuse me. March 19th.
A. Then, of course, the management changes were complete news, that Uzzi, who had been highly touted, was just gone. That was a sign that there was something wrong, something had happened that we were unaware of.
Q. As a result of these discussions, and you said wow, what a surprise, were you asked by MacAndrews & Forbes to take any action?
A. Not at that time. Yes, not at that time.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes, other than yourself, taking any action at that time, as a result of the April 3rd press release?
A. I am unaware of what they did.
Q. By April 3rd of 1998, were you back in your offices in New York from Tucson?
A. I don't recall when I was in New York and when I was in Tucson. I am sure it is a matter of record.

Page 340

Q. Would that record be your diary that is with your tax records?
A. I think I have been asked these questions before, but -- it would be. Yes.
Q. Is there any other place that it would be of record where you were other than in the tax records and your planner, I think that you described for us on the first day of your deposition?
A. I would have to ask my administrative assistant what we have for that time period, if anything, left.
Q. Following the April -- the April 3rd press release and these discussions, did you have any discussions directly with Mr. Perelman about the press release, that you can remember?
A. I don't remember, as -- as talking to Mr. Gittis was essentially the same as talking to Mr. Perelman, they were very, very close.
Q. Did Mr. Gittis give you any instructions at all following the issuance of the April 3rd press release to do any follow-up about the results that Sunbeam announced on April 3rd?

A. I don't recall any.
Q. Do you recall being told by anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes that anyone else had been asked to do a follow-up on the April 3rd press release with Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. All right.

Q. You respected him; right?
A. Yes.

(Pause.)
Q. Do you have Exhibit 220 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Please take a look at it and let me know when you are finished. I have a few questions about that.
(Pause.)
A. Okay. I have read it, though I did not study it, in the interest of time.
Q. Fair enough. If there is anything that you need to look at, let me know. My questions are not very detailed on this.
First, did you receive a copy of this, from -- at some time?
A. I don't think so.
Q. There is a loop on the right-hand -- excuse me, the left-hand side of the first page of the document; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know whose marking that is?
A. No.
Q. Did you know that Andrew Shore downgraded Sunbeam to neutral from buy on

Page 343

April 3rd, 1998?
A. Yes. This is very widely publicized in the media.
Q. In the financial media?
A. Yes.
Q. As you sit here today, even if you did not see this copy of the Andrew Shore downgrade, did you see another version of it at some time?
A. I am sure I read the media and it covered a great deal of what was in Andrew's actual analyst report.
Q. Did you seen documents of this type before, in this format that you are looking at?
A. Similar, referring to analysts' reports?
Q. Yes. Analysts' reports. Would you call this an analyst report?
A. I would.
Q. As a result of -- withdrawn.
When you learned of the downgrade by Andrew Shore of Sunbeam, did you, on your own or at the request of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes, talk to Mr. Shore?

A. Yes.
Q. And that tasking came from either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Was Mr. Shore the first analyst that you spoke to later in April?
A. I don't remember which analysts I spoke to of the group that covered the company. I know it was more than one. And what order I spoke to them and -- it would strictly be a question of scheduling meetings. I just, you know, probably called two or three or four whatever it was, and tried to arrange times to come in and see them.
Q. I am going to hand you back an exhibit that we looked at yesterday, which is Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168. Do you have Exhibit 168 in front of you?

A. Yes.
Q. There are analysts listed on the first page as sources of information. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Of course Andrew Shore is one of the analysts listed there; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, from that list can you identify any other analysts that you spoke to in April, as you, as a result of your -- let me ask the question again, so that it is clear on the record.
From the list on Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168, can you identify for us any of the other analysts that you either spoke to in April or attempted to speak to in April as a result of your assignments from Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I can't, but in the interest of trying to be helpful, I can tell you that I did not meet with Merrill Lynch and I did not meet with CIBC Oppenheimer and I did not meet with what should have been Goldman, Sachs, because I don't know these analysts.

Q. That leaves us with the Bear, Stearns analyst, Connie M-A-N-E-A-T-Y -- did I pronounce it correctly?
A. It is actually Connie Maneaty.
Q. Is that a woman or a man?
A. A woman.
Q. Did you meet with her?
A. I don't know. I might or might not have.
Q. The other individual that you did not identify was Justin Maurer. Did you meet with him?
A. Again, I might or might not have.
Q. Yesterday, when I showed you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168, you said that there was information on the two pages of this document that you did not have access to; do you recall that testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. What information on these two pages did you not have access to?
A. Well, as I said, I did not meet with all of these analysts. That is first.

Page 347

And second, I did not have access to any unpublished models by analysts.
And I did not have the unpublished S4.
I did have miscellaneous Coleman knowledge.
I had seen Sunbeam's internal strategic plan.
And I might have seen some of the published analysts reports; I just don't recall which, if any, I saw.
Q. Well, proceeding down to the next bullet, that I believe you were reading from, on the first page of Morgan Stanley 168, there is a bullet, "additional future sources of information," and the first one listed is "K-Mart 4/16 - all Sunbeam buyers"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, I recall you testified that sometime in April you believed you spoke to someone at Walmart?
A. Right.
Q. Is it about this time, April 16th?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 348

A. Yes. Somewhere in there.
Q. Did you speak to any other Sunbeam buyers other than Walmart? There are two others listed here, K-Mart and Target.
A. I think I did both of those.
Q. Who did you speak to at K-Mart?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Who did you speak to at Target?
A. I also don't recall.
Q. All right. The Target reference refers to being tentatively 4/22, which I would read as April 22nd. Would you read it that way?
A. Yes.
Q. Would that be about the date that you believed that you spoke to someone at Target?
A. If I did, it would be in this time frame.
Q. What, specifically, were you asked to do by either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis with regard to Sunbeam that led you to make the phone calls that you have identified and speak to Mr. Shore, as you have told us?
A. They wanted another perspective as to what was going on.

Q. When you say "what was going on," what do you mean by that?
A. In general, what was happening with the company.
Q. Are you aware -- withdrawn.
When you say "the company," you mean Sunbeam; correct?
A. There is only one left at this point, yes. Sunbeam.
Q. Before your assignment in April, as you have described it for us, are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes contacting any of Sunbeam's customers, such as K-Mart, Target or Walmart?
A. I would have found that odd, had they done it.
Q. You would have found that odd in the due diligence process, for MacAndrews & Forbes to have made contact with those customers?
A. They would have asked me to do it.
Q. You did not do it, because you weren't asked?
A. I was not asked until sometime mid-April.

Page 350

Q. Just so we are clear, before the closing of the merger transaction on March 30th, 1998, no one at MacAndrews & Forbes asked you to contact any of Sunbeam's customers, such as Walmart, Target or K-Mart to see what the status of their relationship was with Sunbeam?
A. That would have been disastrous and probably illegal.
Q. We will deal with the illegality to someone else and we will leave the disaster to someone else. My question is: You did not do it because you weren't asked; is that fair?
A. I wouldn't have done it if I was asked, and it would have been totally inappropriate.
Q. You weren't asked and you did not do it?
A. No, they would not ask me to do something inappropriate like that.
Q. Before the closing on March 30th, 1998, of the merger transaction, you also never spoke to any analysts that were following Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. Yes.

Page 351

Q. And you did not do that because, indeed, you weren't asked to do it by MacAndrews & Forbes; were you?
A. That would also be illegal.
Q. It would be illegal to speak to an analyst about Sunbeam?
A. About merging our company with Sunbeam?
Q. I did not say about merging the company. Just speaking to an analyst about Sunbeam.
A. And what on earth would the analyst think I was doing?
MR. BIDEAU: Let's not have an argument here. Just ask the question and he will answer it.
MR. BEMIS: Fair enough. Fair enough.
Q. Mr. Levin, at any time before March 30th, 1998, were you asked by MacAndrews & Forbes to speak to any analysts about their opinions of Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Now, when you spoke to Mr. Shore, did you do this in a face-to-face meeting?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 352

A. Yes.
Q. Did you go to his office or did he go to your office?
A. I went to his office.
Q. How long did the two of you talk?
A. I would say, about an hour.
Q. Is this the only meeting that you had with Mr. Shore about Sunbeam?
A. I might have talked to him briefly after the analyst meeting took place.
Q. The analyst meeting that you are referring to is the one, I believe, was May 11th, 1998, that followed the second meeting that you had with Mr. Dunlap at Mr. Perelman's office; right?
A. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: Just one second.
Q. At this meeting with Mr. Shore, that lasted about an hour, what did you say to him and what did he say to you about Sunbeam?
A. I wanted to hear, firsthand, how he had reached his conclusions, and I remember having some specific questions because, from a business perspective, both his report and the statements of Sunbeam were a little muddled, and I wanted to get everything clear in my mind as to what he thought.

And I wanted to know if he had any additional information on the terminations and the departures of executives that took place, as he seemed to know before anybody else did what had happened.
I found that one of the executives had called Andrew and tipped him off that they were leaving, for some reason.
Q. Was this an executive at Sunbeam who had tipped Mr. Shore off?
A. Yes. I know "tipped" is a pejorative term. He just said I am leaving the company and it has been nice working with you. Whether it was Rich Goudis or Izzi, I do not remember -- he did know, Andrew knew before anybody else did about that fact.
Then there was an extended conversation about his personal life.
Q. Mr. Shore's personal life?
A. Yes.
Q. Did it have anything to do with Sunbeam?
A. Nothing.

Page 354

Q. Did you talk about Mr. Dunlap?
A. I am sure we did.
Q. Do you remember any of the specific questions that you had for Mr. Shore at this meeting?
A. Other than as I generally described, no.
Q. At the time of the meeting with Mr. Shore, Mr. Shore changed his rating from neutral to something -- something below that or was he still at a neutral rating on Sunbeam?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Was this meeting with Mr. Shore held with some condition of anonymity with regard to what was said at the meeting?
That is a poorly phrased question. Let me try again.
Was the meeting with Mr. Shore a meeting that you had agreed to hold as confidential and not disclose that the two of you had met, at least at that time?
A. No.
Q. Did you prepare any reports to anyone as a result of the meeting with

Page 355

Mr. Shore?
A. I don't recall preparing any written reports.
Q. Did you prepare -- well, that would be -- I will rephrase that.
Did you give someone an oral report of your meeting with Mr. Shore in April of 1998?
A. Yes. I gave MacAndrews & Forbes my report on what transpired.
Q. Who at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't recall, but it was -- it was the group I identified previously. Among the group I identified previously.
Q. And just because there have been a couple of groups, and I don't want to get confused later, it would be Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, Maher, Nesbitt, that would be the group; right?
A. And possibly Barry Schwartz.
Q. And possibly Barry Schwartz.
What did you tell them about your meeting with Mr. Shore in April of 1998?
A. That I thought Andrew had figured it out and I agreed with his positions.

01463

Q. What had Andrew figured out?
A. That there were deep problems in the Sunbeam business. And I had supplemental data. I did not report to them only about the meeting with Mr. Shore. I reported to them about all I had done, more comprehensibly, in terms of my reading, my meeting with folks, and the knowledge I gained on what was going on in the grill business, that all transpired as one oral report.
Q. What other reading had you done as part of your investigation?
A. Whatever I needed to catch up, going back over the press clippings. I don't remember if there were any new filings at that point.
Q. Would these be, for example, historical press clippings about Sunbeam?
A. It would be things that happened over the past few weeks. I don't remember if the Barron's article had come out at that point or not.
There is --
Q. The Barron's article is in June, if that helps you?

Page 357

A. Then it hadn't. The press was starting to accumulate the situation at Sunbeam at that point.
Q. Did you go back and review any of Sunbeam's public filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission?
A. I don't think there are any new ones.
Q. Did you go back and look at any of the old ones?
A. I doubt it.
Q. Did your report include your communications with the customers, as you have already told us about?
A. Yes.
Q. And if you spoke to other analysts, did your report include their comments, as well?
A. Yes.
Q. You have told us, as part of your investigations, as you described it, you spoke to analysts, including Mr. Shore; you looked at some press clippings and other reading as you described it, and you had spoken to some customers of Sunbeam. Did you do any other, anything else, as part of your investigation?

Page 358

A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. I talked to former Coleman employees, people who had left the company.
Q. What did they tell you?
A. That Coleman, which was the only part that they had access to, had become a disaster.
Q. Did they tell you why Coleman had become a disaster?
A. Um, yes. A number of issues.
Q. What?
A. One, they had put Russell Kersh in as the CEO of Coleman. He had showed up with two armed bodyguards for the meetings, and proceeded to state that virtually everything I did was terrible and I was a complete incompetent to my own people who had worked for me for many years.
They had made a number of operational changes, ranging from cutting off coffee to killing the pensions to starting to move the entire organization -- excuse me, that was not correct -- to start to move -- to start the remainder of the Coleman organization to Boca Raton from Wichita.

And there were massive terminations. They had announced they were going to sell East Pack at a price that was far beyond its market value. They were attempting to do so.
That the plant operations had come to a complete halt because -- her name is Judith-something, that was head of operations and visited all of the plants and said you are no longer authorized to spend 10 cents without my permission, and then would not answer phone calls, e-mails or faxes.
And the equipment was stopping to work because they couldn't get approval to do anything.
It was a long list of truly irrational acts that had happened in an unbelievably short period of time.
They had eliminated the management of the outlet stores; so, there was literally no management, and they were running with a part-time supervisor out of her home.
If I sat here long enough I could think of dozens of incidents, but the report was that they had made a complete mess of Coleman and, of course, it was dead in the middle of the season.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 360

Q. Of its highest sales season?
A. Of its highest sales season.
And nobody was paying any attention. They were consolidating the sales force.
They were trying to teach appliance buyers to sell canoes and canoe buyers to sell toasters, and it was absolutely bizarre, and the whole thing was falling apart.
Q. So, I take it that the employees that you talked to were unhappy?
A. They were not employees; they were all former employees. And I refused to talk to any existing employees of the company.
Q. Did you do anything else, not beyond what you told me, which now includes talking to former Coleman employees, before you completed --
A. I can't recall anything else.
Q. Let's go back to the meeting that you had where you delivered your report orally to MacAndrews & Forbes.
The first thing you told me, of course, was that Mr. Shore had figured it out and that Sunbeam had deep problems. What were the deep problems that he identified, Mr. Shore?

A. Well, the biggest ones were in this report that you gave me, that they had heavy sales activity at the end of 1997, which was moving sales forward from the first quarter of 1998.
So, it diminished the 1998 sales activity. He picked up something that no one else had -- including myself, because I was not aware of the incident.
But in 1997, the first quarter, they had a very bad shipping quarter, because they had attempted to implement the system without redundancy, turned it on, and it did not work and they couldn't ship for weeks.
So, the comparison to, between 1998 and 1997 should have been a very positive one, but he realized that the comparison was even worse, when he took into account that 1997 was a bad year.
The --
Q. Anything else? I am sorry.

Page 362

A. I don't remember all of it. But the key items that he talked about were he had -- he had put them forward in his analyst's report on April 3rd. He did not hold anything back.
Q. What else did you tell the MacAndrews & Forbes group, other than what Mr. Shore told you?
A. I don't -- well, other than what Mr. Shore told me, you mean, about --
Q. Yes.
A. About what Mr. Shore said?
Q. Let me try again. It was a poor question.
Have you told me everything that you told MacAndrews & Forbes, the MacAndrews & Forbes group about Mr. Shore's views of Sunbeam?
A. I can say, with 100 percent certainty, I have left something out because of the time, you know, the years that have passed, but I think I got the important points.
Q. What else did you tell MacAndrews & Forbes about your investigation, which included the other items that you told us about the press clippings, interviews with employees, what have you?

A. Well, the net of it was that Sunbeam had serious problems that had never been disclosed to us, and those problems were now being spread to the Coleman Company. And they were putting Coleman in terrible condition, in a remarkably short period of time.
Q. Did you -- withdrawn.
In the period between February 20th, 1998, which is when you said you got actively, the negotiations were back on and you got actively involved in the signing of the merger agreements, on February 27th, are you aware of anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes visiting any of Sunbeam's operations?
A. Are you saying in the -- between the time of February 20th and signing or -- or between then and closing?
Q. Signing.
I will rephrase the question.
Between then and signing. I understand.
A. Too many dates.
Q. Too many days and too many dates.

Between February 20h, 1998, which is the day that you believe you returned from Puerto Rico, and the execution of the merger documents, which is February, as of February 27th, 1998, are you aware of anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes visiting any of the Sunbeam operations?
A. No, I am not.
Q. Are you aware of anyone from CSFB, the investment banker advising Coleman, visiting any of Sunbeam's operations?
A. I don't recall.
Q. How about Coleman's attorneys, did they go visit any of Sunbeam's operations?
A. I am unaware of anyone doing that.
Q. Are you aware of anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes going over and visiting the data room that had been set up at the Skadden Arps law firm about Sunbeam's operations?
A. I don't know what they did to obtain the data that they had.
Q. Do you know if they even went over and looked at the data that was at Skadden Arps and that had been set up by Sunbeam for review in connection with a possible acquisition?

A. I don't know.
Q. In the period after the execution of the merger agreements, February, as of February 27th, 1998, let's go all the way up now to April 30th, 1998, the closing, are you --
MR. BIDEAU: You mean, March 30th? You said April 30th.
MR. BEMIS: I did. I apologize, I will try again.
Q. In the period after the execution of the merger agreements, which are dated as of February 27th, 1998, and going forward to March 30th, 1998, the date of the actual closing, are you aware of anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes going to any Sunbeam plant, facility or office, to do any due diligence of their method of operation?
A. I am unaware of any.
Q. In fact, didn't you tell me that you were told that you were not even to go to work at Coleman following the February, the February 28th execution of the merger agreements; isn't that right?

A. That is correct.
Q. And you did what you were told, you did not even go to work; right?
A. I attempted to help them, but they rejected every offer.
Q. Well, so, you knew at least that as of February, as of the time that they rejected every offer, that Sunbeam was going to reject any help that you were prepared to offer them, to integrate the two companies; you knew that, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And are you aware of any investigation by CSFB between February 28th, 1998 and March 30th, 1998, of Sunbeam's offices, manufacturing facilities, warehouses, retail outlets, anything like that?
A. I am unaware of any.
Q. Are you aware of MacAndrews & Forbes' or Coleman's, if that be the case, attorneys, after February 28th, and up through March 30th, doing any investigation of Sunbeam's facilities, its plants, its warehouses, its retail outlets, anything like that, doing any type of investigation?

A. I am unaware of any.
Q. From the beginning of the first discussions with Mr. Dunlap and Sunbeam, about the acquisition of Coleman, all the way up to the date of the closing on March 30th, 1998, are you aware of any MacAndrews & Forbes employee or person representing them, whether it be an investment banker or an accountant, or an attorney, going and visiting any of Sunbeam's manufacturing facilities?
A. I am unaware of any.
Q. Are you aware of anyone in that group investigating or going to visit, if you will, any of Sunbeam's retail outlet facilities, as you have described them?
A. Other than myself, I am unaware of any.
Q. Are you aware of any MacAndrews & Forbes person going to visit either -- the home office of Sunbeam in Boca Raton?
A. It was in Delray, Florida.
Q. Sorry. Delray, Florida.
A. I am unaware of any.
Q. What did MacAndrews & Forbes do as

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 368

due diligence up to March 30th, 1998, other than attend the February 23rd, 1998 meeting that you have described, that you have described to us and that we went over looking at MS 84? What else did they do?
A. They assumed that the public filings were accurate.
Q. Anything else?
A. I know they went through contracts. I know they looked at, I believe they went through the accountants' work papers. I believe they acted responsibly and in a way that is very appropriate for public companies that are trying to put together a transaction under the veil of secrecy and confidentiality. I find no fault with what they did.
Q. Without asking you to opine on fault, as I understand it, all you can tell me that MacAndrews & Forbes did by way of due diligence is look at public filings, perhaps look at the work papers of Arthur Andersen, but you don't know that, one way or the other, for sure; correct?
A. Correct.

Q. And attending a meeting on February 23rd, 1998, that's all; isn't that right?
A. From my perspective, and my recollection, and I don't remember specifically what was done, that is correct.
Q. After your report to the MacAndrews & Forbes team, as you have described it, did they give you any further assignment to do any -- I will withdraw the question.
After your report to the MacAndrews & Forbes people following your April investigation, did you get any further assignment from MacAndrews & Forbes to do anything further with regard to Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. I don't know how it came about. But they -- it was either the board or Michael Price or Al Dunlap, but they had all agreed that Al Dunlap needed a successor, and they asked if I would help or if I had any ideas on the search, as I knew the industry reasonably well and the kind of people that they would be looking at.
Q. Was this at the time of the board meetings in June of 1998, when Mr. Dunlap was discharged?

A. Well, it was before that, obviously.
Q. How soon before that?
MR. BIDEAU: Did you say his successor?
THE WITNESS: A potential future successor, somebody who could run the day-to-day of the business, they were looking for either a president of the company, president and chief operating officer type.
Q. When did this happen, that you were asked by Mr. Price or Mr. Langerman, as I recall your testimony?
A. I don't think Mr. Langerman was there, in this particular meeting.
Q. Maybe I misheard you. I will ask another question.
You were asked by, I believe you said Mr. Price --
A. I was asked by Mr. Perelman and Gittis to assist, trying to find some ideas for our potential successor.
Q. When did Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis make that request of you?

A. It was while all this turmoil was going on.
Q. Was it before the analyst meeting of May 11th, 1998?
A. I don't recall it. It was in that range, it was -- it was probably towards the latter part of May.
Q. After Mr. Perelman had given Mr. Dunlap the proxy for the shareholders' meeting that year; correct?
A. I think so.
Q. Between the date of your oral report to the MacAndrews & Forbes team about your April investigation and this request, as you have described it, sometime in May, to think about a possible president for Sunbeam, were you given any other assignments by MacAndrews & Forbes related to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Now, you did attend the meeting with, as you have described it yesterday, with Mr. Dunlap, in anticipation of the analyst call in May of 1998; right?
A. Yes. That was the culmination of the assignment that they gave me.

016657

Page 372

Q. So, after the analyst call -- strike that.
Am I correct that it was after then, the analysts' call, that Mr. Price and you began to think about a, coming up with the name of a possible president of the company, that is Sunbeam?
A. It was not just maybe. They had a headhunter who was already engaged to be doing this.
Q. Sunbeam did?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was the headhunter?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember the company?
A. It could have been Russell Reynolds, but -- Russell Reynolds or Spencer Stuart, one or the other.
Q. Spencer Stuart, right?
A. It was one or the other. It was not Heidrick.
There are only three firms likely.
And they were very unhappy about anything that had turned up in that search and

Page 373

I do remember being asked to attend the meeting with Price and Perlman to talk about who -- giving my ideas of who the possible successors could be.
Q. There was this meeting between yourself --
A. I am using the term "successors" probably, perhaps, unwisely. That is about the possible president and chief operating officer at that point.
Q. But there was a meeting between yourself, Mr. Price and Mr. Perelman where you did discuss this possible president, as you described it, of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. When did that meeting take place in relation to the board of directors meetings when Mr. Dunlap was terminated?
A. I can't be precise about that, but it was some time after -- I am almost sure it was after the analyst meeting, which was May 10th, we decided earlier.
Q. I think it is May 11th, but we are close.
A. May 11th. And obviously before June

Page 374

15th; so, somewhere in there.
Q. Where was this meeting held with Mr. Price, Mr. Perelman and yourself?
A. In Mr. Gittis's office, and I assume Mr. Gittis was attending, also.
Q. How long did the four of you talk?
A. Let's say, a half hour to an hour.
Q. What was said?
A. I had a few ideas.
Q. Yes, but what was said?
A. Oh, that they were serious about strengthening the management team. They realized that Mr. Dunlap had some deficiencies in terms of managing the day-to-day business. They were completely committed to him, as, as Mr. Price was completely committed to him, as remaining the chairman and the CEO. Mr. Perelman probably would have liked a complete change.
Q. Did you express an opinion?
A. That it would be difficult to fill that job with Mr. Dunlap as the CEO.
Q. What was the outcome of the meeting, between the four of you?
A. I came up with one candidate who they did interview, who ultimately -- it did not work out. I don't know if he turned the job down or they turned him down.

Q. Who was that?
A. It is Charles, and I have been trying to remember his last name -- he came from the Duracell organization. It was Nacho Perini. It was his number 2, who is, after they sold Duracell to KKR, most of their team had left, and he had been very successful there and seemed to be an appropriate kind of individual to come in.
But I can't speak as to what was on their minds when that did not work out, but I do know that there were conversations.
Q. After you had this meeting with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Price and Mr. Gittis, did you ever get any further assignments until you got the phone call while you were in New York, as I think you said you were going to the movies and asked to come to the board meeting?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. So, the next thing of substance that happens in regard to Sunbeam and you, anyway, is the cell phone call as you were going to the movies, where you were told that Mr. Dunlap has been terminated?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Right.
Q. Do you still have 168 in front of you?
MR. BIDEAU: Yes.
Q. Could you just turn to the second page and tell me if there is any information on this page that you believe that you did not have access to. I should have asked you this earlier, but we got sidetracked. I am now on the second page.
A. Well, I don't know that I had all of the analysts' reports, or any for that matter. Point one.
I did not have the analysts' models.
The point 3 is the same problem, and the analysts' reports -- again, I did not have the analysts' models.
Point 5.
Point 6 refers to the analysts models. I did not have access to the M&F model. And, I guess -- all right.
The industry growth rates, realistic and -- high, single digits, I certainly knew that industry growth rates were not 20 percent, that was common knowledge. And again, it refers to the analysts' models. I did not have the M&F model. I did not have the analysts' model. Under SOC, analysts include 100,000,000 of Sunbeam loaded -- in 1990 sales -- in 1998 growth rate, that subsequently became clear to me that they had really pushed hard at the end of 1997 to make the numbers, stealing sales from 1998.

Q. Let me ask you, right there, when you are on that bullet under SOC, and it, as I read it, "Analysts include 100,000,000 of Sunbeam 'loaded' - 1997 sales in 1998, and 1998 growth base."
Did I read that correctly?
A. Yes.
Q. As I understood what you were saying, there were $100,000,000 of sales in 1997 that were included in the 1998 growth base, but in someone's view it should have been accounted for in 1998; is that fair?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection tots form.
MR. BIDEAU: I think you had it backwards.

Page 378

Q. Maybe I did.
I will try again. As I read, as I understood what you just told me, the analysts included $100,000,000 of loaded in 1997 sales, in the 1998 growth base; is that fair?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Let me try to answer in my own words -- what I understand this to be, because --
Q. Answer --
A. -- around here a while longer.
When they built their model, they used, as a base, the 1997 base.
Q. This is the analysts?
A. The analysts.
Q. Right.
A. So, that is the first year. And then they took growth assumptions off of that base to build their projections, and forward.
What this says is 1997 was overstated by $100,000,000.
Q. Doesn't it also say, on the next line, that the M&F, that MacAndrews & Forbes' model reduced the '98 base by $100,000,000?

Page 379

A. It says that they took it out, when they did their model.
Q. When MacAndrews & Forbes did their modeling, they took out the $100,000,000 of loaded sales from their base figures; didn't they?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to form.
Q. According to this, lack of foundation?
A. I don't know that.
Q. Isn't that what it says?
MR. BIDEAU: Same objection.
A. I don't know which model. I know they did a more conservative model for 1998. We saw that in the earlier data. And that might be what they are referring to.
Q. Just -- just so we don't -- the transcript is a little bit clearer. I am referring now to the first bullet point under SOC, and the line that reads: " -- M&F model reduces base '98, base $100,000,000." Do you see that line?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you understand that to mean that the MacAndrews & Forbes model had, indeed, reduced the growth, the 1998 growth base by $100,000,000 in one or more of its internal models?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

016469

Page 380

MR. BIDEAU: Objection to the form and lack of foundation.
A. You threw in something, the '98 growth base. I think what really happened is they reduced the '97 base from which they are building their growth model by $100,000,000.
Q. Is that what you understand the MacAndrews & Forbes model to be?
A. I think that is what they did. There are other elements in that bridge -- remember we talked about that.
Q. Now, continuing on, the second page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 168.
Are there any other of the, of these bullet points, and there are only four left, that you did not have access to?
A. I was having trouble understanding this point.
Q. Which point?
A. The fourth one, the second SOC point.
Q. Bullet.

Page 381

A. What they seem to be saying here is Sunbeam had put in their growth model, for example, the introduction of coffee-makers, which was a logical thing to do under the Sunbeam brand. But what they did not count was they made the acquisition of Mr. Coffee, which is coffee-makers. So, there seemed to be a double-count, and that is true. That is also true with smoke --
Q. Again, these are the analysts, the analysts and the Sunbeam plants that are being referred to in this paragraph, as you read it?
A. Yes, these are the plans that Sunbeam must have communicated to the analysts, the concepts that the analysts used.
And, as the same thing, introduced a Sunbeam-branded smoke and CO-detector, while they bought First Alert. They were going to introduce s Sunbeam brand scale, and they bought Healt-O-Meter. So, it is double-count.
Q. With regard to the next group, which is Coleman, there are references to Coleman margins being at certain levels.
And, apparently in the models, and then analysts' estimates, which were different -- I will withdraw the question.

Do you see the first bullet?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that information that you had access to?
A. I don't know where these numbers came from.
Q. Okay. The last two items under the heading of "Coleman," is this information that you had access to or you don't know where the numbers came from?
A. I don't know what the effect of Japan they are referring to is.
In the second, the last point, I believe what they are referring to is that they continued to use the roughly $100,000,000 of Coleman safety and securities sales in their model, even though we divested it at the end, at the end of the plan. Divested it very early -- yes, very early in the year of 1998.
Q. Now, I recognize that you told us that you did not think that you prepared this, notwithstanding the JWL that appears in the footers on both pages.
Knowing the personnel at MacAndrews

Page 383

& Forbes, who would be the most logical person to have created a document like this, with the information that you have reviewed?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't know. The only analyst that I knew that was working on this was Will Nesbitt, and apparently he did not do it; so, I don't know.
Q. When you say "apparently he did not do it" --
A. I thought I was told that somewhere along the line.
Q. Not by me you weren't.
A. Okay.
Q. Is this something that you would expect Mr. Perelman to create, that is MS 168?
A. There is zero probability of that.
Q. How about Mr. Schwartz?
A. A lower probability than zero.
Q. Than zero?
A. Yes.
Q. How about Mr. Gittis, how about him?
A. No. He is right there --
Q. With the zeros.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 384

A. This is not what he would do.
Q. How about Mr. Maher?
A. It could be. It is possible that he was of the skill base to do this, though I don't think he has actually done analyst work directly for a few decades.
Q. So, that leaves us with the team with Mr. Nesbitt?
A. That is my conclusion.
Q. Okay. That's all we have for that. You can set that aside.
I will hand you now what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 167.
A. Thank you.
Q. I have handed you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 167. You are shown as being copied on this document. Did you receive it?
A. I don't recall, but I assume I did.
Q. Looking at the document, there is a, there is a summary below each of the analyst's names, and it refers to there having been a conversation with the analysts. Do you see that?

Page 385

A. Yes.
Q. Now, did you speak to any of the three analysts at any point before you became president of Sunbeam, about Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Did you discuss this document or the contents of it with Mr. Perelman?
A. I don't recall doing so.
Q. Do you recall discussing it with any of the other individuals who are copied on it, which include Mr. Drapkin, Mr. Maher and Mr. Gittis?
A. I don't recall any conversation about this.
Q. Okay, you can hand it back to me.
Did you see the June 6th, 1998 Barron's article when it was published, and that is the article about Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. And what were the circumstances that you came to see it?
A. That somebody said that I should read that article.
Q. I take it you did read it?
A. Yes.

Q. And what was your reaction to the article, when you read it?
A. Well, at that point we suspected that, clear indications, I should say, that there were serious signs of problems within the new Sunbeam company. This made some allegations that were brand new, I recall, as to the way they were accounting for things. And I found it troubling.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 74.
This is a copy of the Barron's article. It is not a photocopy of the actual article, although I do have one, but you can't read the photocopy; so, we printed out one separately. I will hand that to you, sir. I have handed you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 74.
Can you just identify this for me as the Barron's article that you read in June of 1998 about Sunbeam?
(Pause.)
A. Okay.
Q. My only question, at this point, is: Is this the article that you read in June of

Page 387

1998 about Sunbeam?
A. It has been so long, I really did not remember much of this text, but I believe it is.
Q. Following this article, you, shortly thereafter, got the phone call on your way to the movies and became the new president of Sunbeam; right?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you some -- a document previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 337, concerning certain meetings with Sunbeam bankers on June 18th and 19th of 1998. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 337 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. I do not recall.
Q. You are shown as -- sorry. I did not mean to interrupt you. You are shown as being in attendance at a meeting on June 18th and 19th, at the offices of MacAndrews & Forbes with certain banks to discuss Sunbeam Corporation. Did that meeting take place?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 388

A. We had a number of meetings back then, but -- I am sure that this took place, and Mr. Maliker was quite accurate in his note-taking.
Q. Mr. Maliker is, Molitor, I think, is --
A. Molitor.
Q. -- is the author of this document; is that correct?
A. That is what it says.
Q. Under item number 2, headed "SEC inquiry"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. The third sentence reads: "According to Gittis and Engelman, the questions raised by the Barron's article are without merit." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you present -- or, first of all, did they say that, those two gentlemen?
A. I believe so.
Q. And you were present when they said it?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you believe it to be true, that the Barron's article was without merit?

Page 389

A. The most serious aspects about it we had discussed during that week with Arthur Andersen, and to say the questions are without merit -- the blanket, with all due respect -- I doubt that it is actually exactly what they said and what they meant.
But the, you know, the real critical issues about the accounting Arthur Andersen had testified constantly in the course of the week that there were no problems, that everything was okay, and I think they were relying on Arthur Andersen to make that comment. There were business issues in this article that, the Barron's article, that clearly were true.
Q. Am I correct that in the week or so before this, these meetings on June 18th and 19th, that there had been discussions that you were aware of with Arthur Andersen about the accounting issues raised in the Barron's article? Is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. And is it fair to say that you were a participant in some of those discussions?

Page 390

A. Yes.
Q. And is it fair to say, further, that Arthur Andersen affirmed to you in those meetings that there were no accounting problems, as written about in the Barron's article?
A. That is correct.
Q. And you relied upon what Arthur Andersen, certified public accountants, told you at this time; is that correct?
A. During that week, yes.
Q. You relied on it, at least to the extent that that is what you told or Mr. Gittis and Mr. Engelman told Morgan Stanley, and I believe it is Bank of America at this meeting; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And these banks had loaned hundreds of millions of dollars to Sunbeam at the time of this meeting; hadn't they?
A. Yes.
Q. When was it that Arthur Andersen -- strike that.
Did there come a time when Arthur Andersen announced -- or, perhaps better, articulated, said to Sunbeam that Sunbeam could no longer include Arthur Andersen's opinion with regard to Sunbeam's financial statements?

A. Yes.
Q. When was that?
A. Some weeks later, as I recall.
Q. Can we refer to that as Arthur Andersen withdrawing its opinion from Sunbeam's financial statements?
A. They refused to stand behind the financial statements at that point.
Q. This was several weeks after June 18th or June 19th, when these meetings with the banks, with these meetings with the banks; correct?
A. It was some weeks, it may not have been several. It may have been just a few.
Q. Whether it was one or two weeks after June 18th, am I correct that that announcement by Andersen in June was the first time, to your knowledge, that Andersen had ever said that the public could not rely upon Arthur Andersen's certification of Sunbeam's financial statements?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't know that they made an announcement. I think it was just that they were unwilling to stand behind, for some filing that we had to make, and I can't remember what the filing was.
Q. It was a filing by Sunbeam; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. It was a filing in connection with the registration of certain shares that were to be issued in connection with the Coleman Sunbeam merger; right?
A. It sounds reasonable. I don't recall what it was, but I know it all revolved around the filing that we were trying to make.
Q. Whether it was an announcement or Andersen just told Sunbeam, this statement by Sunbeam that they were, in effect, withdrawing their opinion, was the first statement that you were aware of, was it not, that Sunbeam was no longer going to stand behind its previous audits?
A. That the auditor was -- Arthur Andersen was no longer going to stand behind it.
MR. BIDEAU: I think you misspoke.

Page 393

You said Sunbeam --
MR. BEMIS: I will rephrase the question.
MR. BIDEAU: Sunbeam a couple times.
Q. Whether the statement by Andersen is characterized as an announcements or something else, whenever Andersen told you that they were no longer going to allow their opinion to be used in connection with Sunbeam's financial statements, this was the first such statement by Sunbeam -- excuse me, by Andersen that you are aware of; is that fair?
A. It was the first time that they acknowledged it, yes.
Q. At the time that you learned that Andersen was withdrawing its opinions on Sunbeam's financial statements, did Andersen tell you why?
A. I think it was more that we told Andersen why.
Q. What did you tell Andersen why?
A. Doing our own investigation, by the time we hit the second week, we had stumbled over so many questionable entries and policies and practices, that we doubted Andersen was going to stand behind their financial statement. They insisted that they were for a period of time, and we kept proceeding, and we had at least three meetings with Andersen where they absolutely confirmed that they were going forward, despite all of the things that we had found, and then one night, overnight, there was, it was reversed, probably, out of their Chicago headquarters, they made the decision not to.

Q. Was there a person at Arthur Andersen who communicated Andersen's decision to withdraw their opinions?
A. Well, the local partner was doing most of the communications, Fort Lauderdale partner. I am not sure that he was the one that actually communicated the reversal, and I can't remember how that happened.
Q. Was the partner that you were referring to Mr. Harlow?
A. Yes.
Q. Now going forward from June 18th or 19th --
MR. BIDEAU: He is done with this.
Q. Let me show you a document marked as

Page 395

Morgan Stanley Exhibit 262. Do you have Exhibit 262 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. These are minutes of the -- of the special -- excuse me, these are minutes of the special meeting of the executive committee and of the audit committee of the board of directors of Sunbeam Corporation, dated June 29th, 1998. You were a member of the audit committee, correct, of Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. You were not. Were you a member of the executive committee?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Shapiro, at this time, was he a member of the audit committee?
A. I don't believe he was a member of the board.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could I get a copy of the exhibit? Could you pass a copy over?
MR. BEMIS: I will pass a copy over. I am sorry about that.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Thank you.
Q. Were you in attendance at this meeting on June 29th, 1998, referred to in the minutes of the committee?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 396

A. Yes.
Q. Was it at this meeting that Andersen -- strike that.
Had Andersen, by the time of this meeting, and I direct your attention to page -- I think it is page 3 of the minutes, under the heading Discussion of Relationship with Arthur Andersen; are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. By the time that this meeting, January 29th, 1998, had Andersen informed Sunbeam that it would not, that is Andersen would not issue a consent to the use of the 1997 audit letter in connection with Sunbeam's registration statement for the zero coupon bonds that Morgan Stanley had underwritten?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Would you read the first part of the question back to me, please.
(Record read.)
MR. BEMIS: I will rephrase the question, now that I look at it.
Q. By the time of this meeting, which is June 29th, 1998, had Andersen advised Sunbeam's management that Andersen would not consent to the use of its 1997 audit letter in connection with the registration statement for Sunbeam's zero coupon bonds that had been underwritten by Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.
Q. And now, is this -- this announcement by Andersen, the one that you believe was made by the Chicago office, as you described a few questions ago --
A. That was an assumption that headquarters made that decision.
Q. Did you participate, after this meeting on June 29th, 1998, with any meetings with Arthur Andersen concerning the use of Arthur Andersen's consent with regard to Sunbeam's 1997 audited financial statements?
A. No. I think that was a dead issue at that point.
Q. What do you mean by "a dead issue"?
A. They had refused to give their consent, and we -- and we moved on, as to what to do next.
Q. Did you ever receive any formal communications from Andersen by way of a letter -- for example, that Andersen would no longer consent to the use of its opinion in connection with Sunbeam's 1997 audited financial statements?

A. I don't recall.
Q. Eventually, there came a point in time when there was a restatement of certain, of a certain portion of Sunbeam's audited -- withdrawn.
There came a point in time when Sunbeam reissued certain of its financial statements that had been audited by Arthur Andersen; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And those -- am I correct that the restatement, if you will, included all of the 1997 audited financial statement?
A. I believe we did have to restate 1997, and 1998, yes.
Q. A portion.
A. A portion of '98.
Q. And a portion of '96.
A. That could be. I don't recall.
Q. And each of those financial statements that were restated had -- strike that. Of those --

Page 399

Of the financial statements that had been restated, Arthur Andersen had been the accounting firm for Sunbeam during that entire period; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And as far as you can remember -- withdrawn.
Now, in addition to the restatement process that we have just touched upon, there was also an investigation by the board of directors, was there not, as to possible wrongdoing at Sunbeam?
A. Could you repeat that.
Q. Sure. In addition to the restatement process that resulted in the restatement of the financial statements, there was also a separate investigation, was there not, of possible wrongdoing at Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. And there was a report prepared of the investigation; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. There was a law firm involved in that, Skadden Arps; correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 400

A. I am not sure. I seem to recall that we had special counsel and a forensic audit firm, but, yes, it was done.
Q. The forensic audit firm --
A. I can't remember Skadden Arps' role in that, though.
Q. Was the forensic firm Chicago Partners?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you read the report?
A. Yes.
Q. Was Morgan Stanley identified in the report as having participated in any wrongdoing by Sunbeam?
DI MR. BIDEAU: Jerry, don't answer the question. The report contains privileged information, and it was prepared by counsel and delivered to you, and there has already been a determination by the court that the report is privileged.
MR. BEMIS: I did not ask him about the report.
MR. BIDEAU: You asked him about information that came within the report, which is requiring him to dispose of privileged information.

My instruction is: Don't answer.
MR. BEMIS: And I am not, obviously, not going to reverse your instruction.
MR. BIDEAU: Right.
MR. BEMIS: I will make one more statement and we will move on.
Q. I am not asking you the contents of the report, but I am asking what's not in the report.
MR. BEMIS: SO certify the question, so that I can find it later, because I will ask the judge to review it.
MR. BIDEAU: Okay.
MR. BEMIS: So, we are done.
MR. BIDEAU: We will move on.
MR. BEMIS: We will.
Q. In the course of the restatement there were a number of accounting items that required some adjustment in the financial statements of Sunbeam in the period that we have talked about, 1996 to the first quarter of 1998; correct?
A. Yes.

Q. In the course of the restatement, was Morgan Stanley identified as having participated in any of the accounting judgments that had to be restated?
A. I am unaware of any.
Q. During the course of the restatement investigation, did Sunbeam obtain any information from any source that led you to believe that Morgan Stanley knew about any accounting irregularities at Sunbeam in 1996?
MR. BIDEAU: Again, to the extent that you have information that comes out of the Skadden Arps report that is privileged, don't disclose it. Obviously, you got information from other sources. If you got information from other sources, you can disclose that.
A. You are testing me in terms of what was in that -- do I remember what was in that report or not.
Could you ask it again.
Q. First of all, there are two reports that are at issue. One is this report of the special investigation committee that your counsel is instructing you not to answer questions on.

Now I am referring to the restatement investigation of the financial statements. That is what my questions are addressed to.
Are you with me so far?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Focusing only on the restatement investigation -- during the course of the restatement investigation, did you obtain any information from any source that led you to believe that Morgan Stanley knew about any accounting irregularities in 19 -- for the period 1996?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. The financial people working on this reached the conclusion that everybody who touched this thing had to know about it.
Q. Everybody that touched what?
A. That touched Sunbeam.
It was so blatant that the statements, the representations and everything, was so false, we uncovered most of the stuff without having any professional accountants within ten days. That how anybody who was involved in this did not know what was going on was a mystery to them.

Q. Did you identify in any announcement by Sunbeam that you had uncovered some involvement by Morgan Stanley in these 1996 irregularities?
A. I don't know what was -- when you say what was -- ask it again.
Q. Did you identify in any announcement made by Sunbeam that you had uncovered involvement by Morgan Stanley in these 1996 accounting irregularities?
A. No.
Q. There were also accounting irregularities in 1997 that were restated; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In your announcement of these accounting irregularities, did you identify Sunbeam had uncovered any involvement by Morgan Stanley in Sunbeam's 1997 accounting irregularities?
A. No.
Q. There was also a restatement of the first quarter of 1998; correct?

Page 405

A. I believe so.
Q. Your announcement of the restatement for the first quarter of 1998, did Sunbeam identify that Morgan Stanley had been identified as having involvement in the 1998 first quarter irregularities?
A. No.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Excuse me. Ten minutes.
Q. Did you uncover any information that Morgan Stanley had had any participation in either the preparation or the auditing of Sunbeam's 1996 financial statements?
A. No.
Q. Did you uncover in your investigation that, any information that Morgan Stanley had participated in either the preparation or the auditing of Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements?
A. No.
Q. Did you uncover any information in your investigation that Morgan Stanley had participated in either the preparation or auditing of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 financial statements?

A. No.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Excuse me, ten minutes, counsel.
Q. After the accounting restatement that resulted from this investigation, did Sunbeam make any claims against Morgan Stanley?
A. Sunbeam the company?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Did you have any involvement in the settlement of MacAndrews & Forbes' claims against Sunbeam in August of 1998?
A. I stayed out of that negotiation.
Q. Did you vote on the settlement agreement as a member of the board of directors?
A. I believe I avoided doing that as a conflict.
Q. Sunbeam did issue warrants to MacAndrews & Forbes, or one of its entities, as a consequence of the settlement that was reached in August of 1998; correct?
A. Yes.

Page 407

Q. Were those warrants valued on Sunbeam's financial statements for 1998?
A. Were the warrants issued by Sunbeam valued on their financial statements?
Q. On Sunbeam's financial statements. They would actually be expensed, but they have to be assigned a value before they can be expensed; correct?
A. I don't know the answer to that.
Q. You don't know the answer to that.
If it was expensed, would it have been an item that would have been included in Sunbeam's form 10K for 1998?
A. I can only assume so.
Q. And you, did you sign Sunbeam's 1998 form 10K as an officer of the company?
A. If I was required to, as an officer of the company, I would have, yes.
Q. You would have investigate the truth and veracity of the financial statements before you signed the, signed, not the financial statements but the annual report; correct?
A. Yes, there is a process to do that.
MR. BEMIS: Let's stop the tape,

This is the tape labeled number 3 of volume 2 of the videotaped deposition of Jerry Levin, and we are now going on the record, and the time is 4:30 p.m.
Q. I have handed you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 99. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this Sunbeam's annual report for 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And page 50, is that your

Page 409

signature -- although it is typed -- on the filed report MS 99, dated as of May 11th, 1999?
A. That is my typed signature, yes, I think. What is -- it is not my real signature, if that is your question.
Q. I understand that it is not. It says name and signature above there; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. It has a little S slash there, yes?
A. Yes.
Q. That represents that you, for purposes of filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, signed this report; correct?
A. I am sure that that is correct.
Q. All right. Now, would you please look at page F15, which is, I believe, the financial statements.
Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. In the first full paragraph there is a specific reference to Sunbeam taking a $70,000,000 non-cash charge as an expense for the issuance of five-year warrants to an M&F affiliate. Do you see that?

A. Yes.
Q. Now, the M&F affiliate is MacAndrews & Forbes; right?
A. Yes.
Q. Sir, isn't it a fact that Sunbeam took a $70,000,000 non-cash charge on its financial statements for the warrants issued to MacAndrews & Forbes or its affiliates, as a result of the August, 1998 settlement of the dispute between Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I got lost.
Q. You got lost.
A. What's your question?
Q. Let me try again.
A. Was it a question or are you just reading it?
Q. No. I was not reading it. I was trying to paraphrase.
A. I apologize.
Q. You were probably trying to read while I was trying to talk. One more time.

Page 411

Isn't it a fact, sir, that Sunbeam took s $70,000,000 non-cash expense in its 1998 financial statements for the issuance of the warrants to MacAndrews & Forbes or its affiliate, as a result of the settlement agreement that was reached in August of 1998?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: You can set that side. We are done with that.
Q. I will hand you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 408, which is the complaint of Coleman (Parent) Holdings filed against Morgan Stanley Company, Incorporated. I would like you to turn first -- well, withdrawn.
I believe you told me yesterday that you had seen the complaint filed against Morgan Stanley that you are here today giving a deposition about; correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. All right. I would like you to look at paragraph 39, first, of the complaint.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 412

Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. About halfway down the paragraph there is a sentence that begins "For example"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. It reads, as follows: "For example, Morgan Stanley provided CPH with false 1996 and 1997 sales figures," or, excuse me, "sales and revenue figures, as well as false projections that Sunbeam could not expect to achieve."
And then it goes on in the next sentence: "Together in face-to-face discussions, Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam assured CPH that Sunbeam would meet or exceed first quarter 1998 earnings estimates." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you present at any time when Morgan Stanley made a statement like that?
A. As to the second sentence, "Together in face-to-face discussions, the first quarter" -- the answer is No.
Q. All right.

Page 413

A. As to the first part of the sentence, "the false 1996 and 1997 sales revenue and false projections," it is possible that they are referring to the long-term strategic plan, but I do not know that.
Q. It is also possible that they were referring to the audited financial statements for 1997; correct?
A. I agree. I don't know what this refers to; so, I can't answer the question.
Q. Let me go to the next question.
Were you ever present when Morgan Stanley told CPH that analysts' 1998 earnings estimates for Sunbeam were correct?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever present when -- when Morgan Stanley said to CPH, the Plaintiff in this case, that Sunbeam's plan to earn $2.20 per share in 1998 were easily achievable and probably low?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever present when Morgan Stanley is alleged to have said, and falsely assured CPH, that Sunbeam's early buy sales program would not hurt Sunbeam's future revenues?
A. No.
Q. Turn to paragraph 30 -- 49.
49. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware of -- well, strike that.
Earlier you told me that it was your desire that the transaction with Coleman and Sunbeam be closed as quickly as possible; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware of any efforts by Morgan Stanley to move up the closing date of the debenture offering in order to accelerate the closing of the Sunbeam Coleman merger?
A. I was only concerned that the debenture offer be consummated by closing. And, in fact, now that I think about that, I am not sure that there was any financing division. I may not have been concerned at all about that.
MR. BEMIS: Sir, I don't have any further questions for you.
MR. BIDEAU: How about that.

in November of 1979 as an associate in the merger and acquisition practice. I was promoted to vice president in October of 1980 in the merger and acquisition practice, and I was promoted to managing director effective January 1, 1987, in the merger and acquisition practice. I was then asked subsequent to that to run worldwide the merger and acquisition practice.

Subsequent to that, I moved to London to run European investment banking. I was then asked to run international investment banking which was the investment banking of practice -- the investment banking practice of Solomon Brothers everywhere around the world other than the United States.

Q. I am sorry, during what period of time were you head of Solomon Brothers' merger and acquisitions practice?

A. I don't recall the exact dates but; it would have been probably 1989 to probably 1991, something like that. I could be off a little bit.

Q. How significant a business was that during that period of time at Solomon Brothers?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. It was significant.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Can you tell me what its revenues were?

A. I don't recall.

Q. How many employees were working at that firm at that point?

A. It would be under 100.

Q. And, approximately, how many of those would be -- have been managing directors?

Q. And it was in 1991 that you moved to London?

A. Yes.

Q. And there you initially were responsible for European investment banking for Solomon?

A. Yes.

Q. Is investment banking a broader classification of services than mergers and acquisitions?

A. Yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. In what way?

A. Investment banking also includes, among other things, the raising of capital for clients.

Q. How significant was the European investment banking of Solomon Brothers when you joined it in 1991?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. It was a small business.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you recall its revenues at that point?

A. Between 30 and $40 million, U.S.

Q. And how long did you have that responsibility, sir?

A. Until January of 1993.

Q. Did the size of the business change in any material way between 1991 when you first joined it and 1993?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. The business grew.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. What were its revenues at the end of that time period?

A. I don't recall, but they were materially higher.

Q. Can you give me an order of magnitude? Was it double?

A. It wasn't double, but materially higher.

Q. Something less than double?

A. Something less than double.

Q. And then at that point you became the person at Solomon Brothers responsible for investment banking business everywhere except for the United States; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. In what way have I misdescribed it?

A. In January of 1993, I joined Morgan Stanley.

Q. I'm sorry. There was a time between -- let me rephrase the question.

There was a point where you became responsible for investment banking activities for Solomon Brothers outside of Europe; is that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. And that included investment banking activities of Solomon Brothers for all locations other than within the United States?
A. Yes.
Q. And how large a business operation would that have been?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did that add significantly to the scope of the business you were responsible for?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Can you recall, approximately, how many employees you were responsible for supervising during that period?
A. No.
Q. In terms of revenue, can you approximate for me the revenue that that business generated for Solomon Brothers?
A. I don't recall at this time.
Q. Were the investment banking operations outside of Europe larger in scale than the European operations in total?

A. I don't recall.
Q. You joined Morgan Stanley in January of 1993, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. What caused you to leave Solomon Brothers?
A. I wanted to work for a firm where investment banking drove the culture.

A. My title is managing director and vice chairman, investment banking, the full title.
Q. Who is the chairman of investment banking. Is there such a person?
A. Yes. I believe it's Joe Porella.
Q. Is there more than one vice chairman?
A. Yes.
Q. How many?
A. As I recall, less than ten.
Q. What are your responsibilities as vice chairman?
A. I have senior coverage responsibility for a variety of clients.
Q. What does it mean to have coverage responsibility?
A. Responsibility for our relationship with specific clients.
Q. And what clients are you responsible for at this point?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Relevance.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. A variety of large and small clients.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Is it a particular business grouping or a particular geographical division of responsibility at this point?
How is the responsibility allocated?
A. No.
Q. What -- can you give me examples of the clients that you are currently responsible for covering for Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. What are they?
A. I will give you a comprehensive list, obviously, because I won't be able to recall that; but a couple of examples would be the Chicago Mercantile Exchange Holdings, Inc., R.R. Donnelley.
Q. Are those the most significant?
MR. CLARE: I'm going to object to form and also object on the grounds of client confidentiality concerns may constrain our ability to respond to these questions. We'll be designating the transcript as confidential under the protective order.
I'll object generally to these questions as improperly intruding on client confidentiality. It's irrelevant to the lawsuit.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Every client is important.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. I appreciate that.

In terms of the size of the clients, are those the two largest businesses that you have responsibility for covering for Morgan Stanley.

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't understand the question.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. In terms of the size of the business operation of the client, are the two that you have identified, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and R.R. Donnelley, the largest businesses that you have responsibility for covering for Morgan Stanley?

A. Based upon what?

Q. The clients' revenues?

A. No.

Q. Which would be the largest clients in terms of revenues?

A. I'm not certain, but they would not be the largest.

Q. Can you think of some that are larger?

A. Yes.

Q. And what would those be?

A. One that occurs to me now would be the Boeing Company.

Q. In terms of the business activities with Morgan Stanley over the last two years, which are the most significant clients that you have responsibility for covering?

MR. CLARE: Objection to relevance and form.

I also object to this entire line of questioning as irrelevant to the time period that we're talking about. If you want to ask him generally what his responsibilities are; but now we're moving into an intrusion of the company's interactions with Morgan Stanley, and it's improper.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Can you answer the question?

A. No, I will decline to answer.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. You decline to answer?

A. Yes.

MR. CLARE: I'll instruct him not to answer the question.

MR. MARKOWSKI: You have instructed him not to answer?

MR. CLARE: Yes.

MR. MARKOWSKI: And the ground for that is what?

MR. CLARE: It's an improper intrusion into Morgan Stanley's relationship with clients. It is irrelevant to the time period and the issues in the litigation.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I disagree.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Sir, do you plan to continue working for Morgan Stanley for the foreseeable future?

A. Yes.

Q. You have been deposed many times, have you not, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever been deposed in a matter where Morgan Stanley was a party?

A. Yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. More than one matter?

A. No.

Q. What matter was that?

A. Litigation surrounding Sunbeam Corporation.

Q. You have been deposed in other matters, though, as well, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with the claims that have been asserted in the lawsuit filed by my client, Coleman Parent, against Morgan Stanley?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Have you read the complaint?

A. No.

Q. What did you do to prepare yourself for your testimony today?

MR. CLARE: I'll instruct the witness. You can answer Mr. Markowski's question to describe generally preparation steps but not to disclose any communications that you had with attorneys representing Morgan Stanley, either inside or outside counsel.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I re-read my deposition from, I

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. The deposition that you gave in the Sunbeam case?
A. It was related in some way to Sunbeam litigation, yes.
Q. Did you do anything else to prepare for today?
MR. CLARE: You can describe generally meeting with counsel, time, place, duration; but do not discuss the substance of anything that was discussed during those sessions.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I met with counsel to Morgan Stanley and internal counsel with respect to this matter.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. With whom did you meet?
A. Counsel who's present in the room today.

A. Yes.
Q. Did you meet with them on more than

A. It took place at the offices of Morgan Stanley.
Q. And how long did the meeting last?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was it longer than an hour?
A. It may have been, but I don't recall.
Q. Was it as long as half a day?
A. No.
Q. And how long did the meeting last yesterday?
A. I don't recall the exact time.
Q. Approximately?

A. Plus or minus an hour.
Q. During those meetings did you review any documents?
MR. CLARE: That's a yes or no question.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Did you -- were you shown any other person's testimony?

Q. Has the testimony of any other person been described to you at any point?
A. No.
Q. Have you read the deposition testimony given by Morgan Stanley witnesses relating to Sunbeam that was given in any other proceeding?
A. No.
Q. Other than your meetings to prepare for the deposition today, sir, with whom have you discussed any aspect of Coleman Parent's lawsuit against Morgan Stanley?

MR. CLARE: You're asking him to exclude the deposition meetings?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes.
MR. CLARE: Okay. And do you have a time frame for these discussions?
MR. MARKOWSKI: No.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. No one.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. You've had no discussions with any Morgan Stanley employee concerning the fact that Coleman Parent's lawsuit against Morgan Stanley?
A. Correct.
Q. How did you learn that Morgan Stanley had filed a lawsuit against Morgan Stanley?
A. As I can recall – and I could be wrong here -- but I was informed, I believe, by Mr. Doyle.

A. Can you repeat the question, please.
Q. Coleman Parent's lawsuit was filed against Morgan Stanley in the spring of this year. I'm asking whether since that time you have been asked to review your personal materials for any documents that might be potentially relevant to that lawsuit?
A. As I recall, I may have been; but I have no documents in my possession.
Q. You're not certain that you received such a request, though?
A. Not that I recall but I had previously produced all documents I had in connection with

A. No.
Q. Did you use email to communicate with Morgan Stanley personnel in 1998, sir?
A. Possibly. I can't remember when we adopted email.
Q. If Morgan Stanley had an operational email system, were you using it generally to communicate with people within Morgan Stanley from that time forward?
A. I was a late adopter, but I may have been.
Q. Do you recall whether you used email to communicate in connection with Morgan Stanley's engagement for Sunbeam Company in 1997 or 1998?
A. Not today, no.

A. I would not agree with that characterization, no.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. What role did you play?
A. I was one of the people who played a role in obtaining that assignment.
Q. What role did you play?
A. I was one of the professionals on the assignment.
Q. What role did you play in assisting Morgan Stanley in obtaining the engagement?
A. I participated in a meeting with management of Sunbeam.
Q. Do you recall that you were the person who received a call from Sunbeam inviting Morgan Stanley to make a presentation for the engagement?
A. Yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Tell me what you recall about that contact.
A. I recall receiving -- I recall receiving a telephone call, I believe from Mr. Kersh, indicating that Sunbeam would like Morgan Stanley and other forums to make a presentation to them about a range of strategic alternatives or something to that effect.
Q. Did you know Mr. Kersh previously?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you know him?
A. I had met him in connection with a prior assignment or two that I had had.
Q. And what companies were those assignments for?
A. In each case, they were assignments on behalf of Sir James Goldsmith.
Q. And how did you come to know Mr. Kersh in connection with that work?
A. As I recall, Mr. Kersh was an aide to Mr. Dunlap.
Q. And Mr. Dunlap was involved in those transactions?
A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that this call came in the spring of 1997?
A. That sounds about right.
Q. Do you know why they called you? Did Mr. Kersh explain?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. No.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Did Mr. Kersh tell you whether he was also contacting other investment banking firms to request that they make presentations concerning the services they might provide Sunbeam?
A. I believe that he did, although I'm not certain I learned it in that call.
Q. Do you recall anything else about your initial telephone call with Mr. Kersh?
A. Only in that they would want us to make a presentation.
Q. Did he describe generally the nature of the presentation he wanted?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Not beyond what I have already testified, no.
Q. Did you understand it to be a presentation relating to Morgan Stanley's capacity to find a buyer for Sunbeam Company?
A. I just recall kind of reviewing all of the strategic alternatives.
Q. What did you do after that initial telephone call before the initial meeting with Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall specifically, but I'm sure I would have contacted other of my colleagues.
Q. Do you recall with whom you spoke?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall what was done to prepare for the initial meeting with Sunbeam?
A. As I recall today, in general, we reviewed public information and began to give consideration to what would be possible alternatives for Sunbeam to pursue to maximize shareholder value.
Q. Can you recall who was involved in that initial effort?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I can recall certain of the names. I may not be able to recall all of the names today.
Q. Who do you recall?
A. I recall Bruce Fiedorek; Bob Kitts; Jim Stynes; I believe Alex Fuchs. There may have been others.
Q. Do you recall David McQuery?

Q. Do you recall whether he was responsible for managing Morgan Stanley's M & A

Q. Was there some particular reason for including him in this project?
A. There may have been. I don't recall today.
Q. Was it your decision to include him in this project?
A. I believe so, but I could be wrong.
Q. Where is Mr. Fiedorek today, do you know?
A. No.
Q. He's no longer at Morgan Stanley, is he?

A. As I recall, he was also a managing director in the merger and acquisition practice.
Q. Mr. Stynes, what was his position at the time?
A. As I recall, he was also a managing director in the merger and acquisition practice.
Q. Did Mr. Kitts have different experience or capabilities from Mr. Fiedorek or Mr. Stynes?
A. Yes.
Q. In what way?
A. Just different experiences.
Q. Is there something about his experiences that caused you to want to include him specifically in the preparation for the initial meeting with Sunbeam?
A. There may have been, but I don't recall today.
Q. Why was Mr. Stynes included in the initial team?
A. He was also an experienced merger and acquisition professional.
Q. Was your objective in connection with the initial preparations for the first meeting with Sunbeam Company to impress Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh with Morgan Stanley's capabilities and commitment to the project?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. That would be one of the objectives, yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. What others?
A. The other objective, as I would recall today would be to describe alternatives that we felt would be conceivably realistic for Sunbeam as well as secondly to learn of their interests in pursuing one or more of these alternatives.
There may have been others as well.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. How well did you know Mr. Dunlap at this point in time, Mr. Strong?
A. He was a business acquaintance.
Q. How much time had you spent with him personally in connection with the work he did for Sir James Goldsmith's companies?
A. I don't recall the exact amount of times or amounts.

Q. Approximately.
A. I don't know.
Q. Had you interacted with him frequently in connection with those engagements?
A. I would say periodically, yes.
Q. Was Mr. Dunlap the person primarily responsible for on behalf of Sir James Goldsmith's companies for dealing with Morgan Stanley in connection with those projects?
A. No.
Q. Who would have been the person primarily responsible?
A. There was not anyone other than Sir James Goldsmith who was primarily responsible. There would be a number of his colleagues that would work on the transactions.
Q. And, so far as you could tell, was Mr. Dunlap playing a particular role in that regard?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was Mr. Dunlap's role?
A. He was playing an important role.
Q. Was there some particular aspect of the projects that Mr. Dunlap had responsibility for that you can recall?

A. No.
Q. What was your impression of Mr. Dunlap in connection -- as a result of that activity?
A. That he was an experienced executive.
Q. Did you come to have any views relating to his management style?
A. No.
Q. Did you find Mr. Dunlap to be particularly aggressive?
A. He liked to achieve things. He worked hard.
Q. Was he difficult to work with?
MR. CLARE: I want to be clear about the time frame of the questions that you're asking here. You're asking about views that Mr. Strong had at a time period when Mr. Dunlap was at Sir James Goldsmith and Mr. Strong was not at Morgan Stanley. Is that the time period that you're asking about?
MR. MARKOWSKI: The time before this initial of Sunbeam for the presentation leading to the Sunbeam engagement.
MR. CLARE: And, as I understand the testimony, that was at a time before Mr. Strong was at Morgan Stanley and while Mr. Dunlap was at Sir James Goldsmith. That's the time frame that you're asking about; is that correct?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm asking about Mr. Strong's impression of Mr. Dunlap prior to the time that Morgan Stanley met with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh to make a presentation leading to the Sunbeam engagement.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did you understand me to be focusing on that time period, sir?

A. Not specifically; but I was assuming it was when I was at Solomon Brothers, yes.

Q. The pending question was have you found Mr. Dunlap particularly difficult to work with?

A. No.

Q. Did you observe Mr. Dunlap's interaction with the individuals reporting to him in connection with the work he did for Sir James Goldsmith?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you find this Mr. Dunlap was a demanding taskmaster in terms of dealing with people who reported to him?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. No.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Would you say that Mr. Dunlap was easygoing?

A. No.

Q. What were the nature of the transactions that you handled where Mr. Dunlap was involved before you joined Morgan Stanley?

A. The transaction that I first met Mr. Dunlap, as I recall, was in representing Sir James Goldsmith in the exchange of an interest that he had in Timberlands with Lord Hanson and Hanson PLC's interest in Newmont Mining.

Q. Do you recall approximately when that transaction took place?

A. Late '80s, maybe 1990.

Q. What was the next transaction?

A. The next transaction, as I recall, was in the first half of 1993, which would have been after I joined Morgan Stanley.

Q. That's what I was just going to ask. What transaction was that?

A. That was a regulation S sale by Sir James Goldsmith of a portion of his stake in Newmont Mining.

Q. And that work was done by Morgan Stanley?

A. Correct.

Q. How did Morgan Stanley get that assignment?

A. I had been suggesting the technique of using regulation S in a possible sale of Sir James's estate to him directly.

Q. Was that prior to the time that you joined Morgan Stanley or subsequent to it?

A. It would have been subsequent to.

Q. And it was a result of that that Morgan Stanley was engaged by Newmont Mining; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. Who was Morgan Stanley engaged by in connection with that transaction?

A. We were not formally engaged. We were selected to serve as the underwriter for a secondary sale via regulations on behalf of Sir James Goldsmith of his interest -- a portion of his interest in Newmont Mining.

Q. And that came about as a result of your suggestion of that approach to Sir James Goldsmith, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You have identified two transactions. Was there another?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. A number of Morgan Stanley documents indicate that you are involved in three transactions with Mr. Dunlap and Sir James Goldsmith.

A. I don't recall a third. I may have forgotten one.

Yes, I do remember, actually. Thank you. We were -- this is when I was at Solomon Brothers. We were engaged to look at the possible sale of a timber mill, I believe, in the Pacific Northwest. I could be wrong on that, but that's what I recall.

Q. Did a transaction in fact occur?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Where did the initial meeting with Sunbeam take place?
A. At their headquarters.
Q. Who was present for Sunbeam?
A. As I recall -- I may not be able to recall a complete list but Mr. Dunlap, I believe Mr. Kersh, I believe Mr. Fannin, although I could be wrong.
Q. Do you recall that you, Mr. Fiedorek, Mr. Kitts, Mr. Stynes and Mr. McQuery attended for Morgan Stanley?
A. That may be true. I don't recall Mr. McQuery, but that may have been true.
Q. Do you know David McQuery?
A. Yes.
Q. What was his responsibility at Morgan Stanley in the spring of 1997?
A. I'm not certain.
Q. Do you recall that he was a managing director in mergers and acquisitions?
A. He was not a managing director in mergers and acquisitions.
Q. Was he working within the mergers and acquisitions group at that time?

A. He may have been, but I don't recall.
Q. What you recall is that he was not a managing director at that time?
A. Correct.
Q. Tell me everything that you can recall with the initial meeting with Sunbeam in the spring of 1997.
A. I recall that we met at their headquarters. I recall that we made a written presentation to them based upon public information of alternatives that we felt might be reasonable for them to pursue.
Q. Do you recall anything else?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you recall anything else, generally?
A. We met in one of their conference rooms.
Q. How long did the meeting take place. How long did it take?
A. I don't recall specifically, but I would estimate a couple of hours.
Q. Do you recall the various types of alternatives that you described as potentially viable for Sunbeam?

A. I recall certain of them.
Q. What do you recall?
A. I recall that we looked at the possibility of Sunbeam making one or more acquisitions. I recall that we also looked at the possibility of Sunbeam selling itself for merging with another third party and there may have been other alternatives as well.
Q. Do you recall that -- do you recall what Morgan Stanley's conclusion was at that point in time regarding the viability of Sunbeam selling itself or merging with another company?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't recall if it was at that meeting or not; but I do recall having the view that successfully consummating a sale might be relatively more difficult in this particular case.

Q. Do you recall if that's a view you expressed or anyone from Morgan Stanley expressed during the initial presentation of Sunbeam?

A. We may have.
Q. Based on the discussions at this initial meeting, did you have a conclusion -- did you reach a conclusion concerning Mr. Dunlap's goals?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap tell you that he -- his primary goal was to try and find a company to buy Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Was there a point in time where it became clear to you that Mr. Dunlap's primary goal was to find a company to buy Sunbeam?
A. I am sorry. I thought I just asked and answered that. Then I am confused.
Q. I think I asked a somewhat different question.
Did there come a point in time where it became clear to you that Mr. Dunlap's preference among the various alternatives that might be possible was to find a company to purchase Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: I'm going to object to the form of that question and your question now relates to a time period after the initial meeting; is that correct?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Can you read the question back, please.

(Whereupon, the record was read by the reporter.)

MR. CLARE: Bill, are you clear on the time frame that he's asking about?

BY THE WITNESS:

A. No.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. My question now, Mr. Strong, isn't related to the conclusions you reached at the initial meeting with Sunbeam.

My question is, at any point in time did it become apparent to you that Mr. Dunlap's preference was to find a company to purchase Sunbeam?

A. I think there was a time, as I recall probably in 1997, I believe, where a period of time where that would have been his preference.

Q. How was that communicated to you?

A. I don't recall specifically.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Dunlap personally advising you in some manner that his preference was for Morgan Stanley to find a company willing and able to purchase Sunbeam?

A. Not a specific as you're putting it, no; but I generally became aware of that -- although we may have, I just don't recall.

Q. So Mr. Dunlap may have told you that his primary objective was for Morgan Stanley to find a company capable of purchasing Sunbeam, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. That misstates the testimony.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. No.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Your testimony is that at no point in time did Mr. Dunlap say to you that his preference was for you to find a company --

A. Excuse me. I find this inappropriate. You're changing the question every time. You're going from preference to primary. That's inappropriate. Ask a question, I'll answer it.

Q. I'm asking a question.

A. But you're changing it when you repeat it, so tell me which one you want me to answer.

Q. Each of my questions stands alone, sir, so you should listen to each one carefully.

A. I have been, but you're changing it. Which one do you want me to answer?

MR. CLARE: Bob, we're not going to engage in a debate about the questioning style. Ask a question.

MR. MARKOWSKI: And I'm trying to.

MR. CLARE: Well, I invite you to ask your next question.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm trying to.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. My question is, is it your testimony that at no point in time did Mr. Dunlap say to you that his preference was for Morgan Stanley to find a company willing and able to purchase Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. So it is possible in your mind that Mr. Dunlap made such a statement to you, correct?

A. That it was his preference, correct.

Q. Yes.

Do you have a recollection, as you sit here today, that at some point in time Mr. Dunlap said to you that his preference was for Morgan Stanley to find a company willing and able to buy Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. He may have. As I recall -- I don't recall as specifically as you're putting it, but he may have.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did Mr. Kersh advise you of that, that at some point in time that Mr. Dunlap's preference was for Morgan Stanley to find a company willing and able to purchase Sunbeam?

A. He may have, but I don't recall.

Q. You don't rule it out?

A. He may have, but I don't recall.

Q. Sunbeam did not engage Morgan Stanley immediately after the initial presentation that Morgan Stanley made to Sunbeam in the spring of 1997; is that correct, sir?

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. In fact, Sunbeam didn't formally engage Morgan Stanley until September of 1997; do you recall that?
A. I know it was later, and I believe the fall was when we signed an engagement letter.
Q. Between the initial meeting in April with Sunbeam management and the time Morgan Stanley was formally engaged by Sunbeam in the fall of 1997, Morgan Stanley did extensive work on behalf of Sunbeam; is that correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I'm not sure I agree with the characterization "extensive," but we did perform work on behalf of Sunbeam, yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Who was involved in performing services relating to Sunbeam in this connection between the initial meeting with Sunbeam in the spring and the formal engagement of Morgan Stanley in the fall?
A. For Morgan Stanley?
Q. Yes.
A. It would have been all or a portion of the same team members who were present at the meeting as well as others.

Q. Do you recall who the others were?
A. No. I do recall that at some point Andy Savarie became involved. I don't recall when and there may have been others involved, but I don't recall any other names.
Q. Do you recall what work was being performed between this initial meeting in the spring and Morgan Stanley's formal engagement in the fall by Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. How extensive was your involvement during that time period relating to Sunbeam?
A. I would speak periodically to Morgan Stanley team members and to members of Sunbeam management.
Q. Were you personally doing any work other than speaking with team members and talking to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall specifically; but I'm confident I would have been reviewing documents -- reviewing public documents and any other materials that we might be producing. It's likely, although I'm not certain, that I would have reviewed them.

Q. Why was Morgan Stanley continuing to do work?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. If I understand the question, because we were asked to.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Well, you weren't formally engaged, correct?
A. So you're asking prior to September?
Q. Right.
The time period between the initial meeting in April and September, Morgan Stanley had not been engaged by Sunbeam, correct?
A. We would have been engaged in substance. The engagement letter would not have been signed until the fall of 1997. And it's the practice in the industry that once you have been retained in substance, the investment bank would begin to provide services on the understanding that the engagement letter would eventually be signed.

Q. Did you understand that Morgan Stanley had the right to compensation for the work that was being performed during this interim period in -- between the initial meeting in April and the signing of an engagement letter in September?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form to the extent it asks for a legal conclusion.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Not that I recall.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. So it is your understanding that Sunbeam had no obligation to pay Morgan Stanley for the work that was being performed; is that correct?
A. They would have no legal obligation until and if an engagement letter was executed.
Q. Do you recall generally what the focus of Morgan Stanley's efforts were during that interim time period?
A. I don't recall specifically; but I, in general, would recall that we were beginning to more fully investigate various alternatives.
Q. The alternatives included what kinds of transactions, sir?

A. A couple times a week, possibly, maybe more, maybe less.

Q. Do you recall that the frequency of your communications with Mr. Kersh was relatively the same?

A. Probably.

Q. Do you know if anyone else from Morgan Stanley other than yourself was communicating with Sunbeam during this interim period?

Q. When do you recall seeing the first evidence of Mr. Dunlap's temper then?
A. I don't recall a specific time.

Do you have any knowledge concerning

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

how this document found its way into Morgan Stanley's files?

A. No.

Q. Did you think, sir, that Mr. Dunlap might obtain some additional credibility with investors in connection with potential transactions with Sunbeam if he engaged Morgan Stanley to act as his investment banking company?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation and entirely hypothetical.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't know.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Is it your thought, sir, that Morgan Stanley in 1997 had a favorable reputation as an investment banking firm?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you think one reason why Mr. Dunlap wanted to engage Morgan Stanley was because of Morgan Stanley's reputation in the investment banking community?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation. There is no way that Mr. Strong can know what was in Mr. Dunlap's mind.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't know.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did that thought occur to you?

A. It may have. I don't recall.

Q. At the time Mr. Dunlap had first approached Morgan Stanley in the spring of 1997, sir, how long had Mr. Dunlap been the Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam, do you recall?

A. First, I don't agree with the premise of the question. I'm not confident that it was Mr. Dunlap who approached Morgan Stanley. I'm not sure specifically who approached us.

Q. At the time Sunbeam first approached Morgan Stanley in the spring of 1997 concerning a potential engagement, do you recall how long Mr. Dunlap had been the Chief Executive with Sunbeam?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Do you recall that he had become the Chief Executive of Sunbeam in 1996?

A. Not that I recall today.

Q. Do you recall that he had been the Chief Executive of Sunbeam for a relatively short period of time?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Dunlap was also the Chief Executive Officer of Scott Paper for a relatively short period of time, correct?

A. I don't know if I would agree with the characterization "a short period of time," but I do agree that he had been the CEO of Scott Paper.

Q. Do you recall it was approximately 18 months?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall that he became the Chief Executive at Scott Paper in April of 1994 and that the sale to Kimberly Clarke of the Scott Paper business occurred in December of 1995?

A. No, I specifically don't.

Q. Do those time frames sound approximately right to you?

A. Don't know.

Q. Mr. Strong, we're going to mark as deposition Exhibit No. 69 a document that bearing Bates No. Morgan Stanley confidential 3894 through 3930. The cover page is entitled, ProjectProject Laser Discussion Material,

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

September 11, 1997 Conference Call.

(WHEREUPON, a certain document was marked CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 69, for identification, as of 12/04/03.)

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Have you seen this document before, sir?

A. I don't know if I have seen this specific copy of this document before, and I don't recall seeing this document in general either.

Q. Putting aside the handwriting that appears on it, do you recall seeing this document previously?

A. No.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the page that bears Bates label 3916.

Let me ask you before I get specifically to this page, sir, does this document appear to be a document generated by Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: And, again, you're asking him to exclude the handwriting?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Are you at page 3916, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see there is a brief biographical description of Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh on this page?

A. Yes.

Q. And with respect to Mr. Dunlap, do you see that it indicates that he became the Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam on July 18, 1996?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was less than a year before Morgan Stanley was approached by Sunbeam with respect to potential engagement in the spring of 1997, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you see that it also indicates the term of Mr. Dunlap's service as the Chief Executive Officer of Scott Paper?

A. Yes.

Q. And those time periods are from April

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

of 1994 through December of 1995, correct?

A. That's what's typed on this page, yes.

Q. Do you have any reason to question the accuracy of this information, sir?

A. No.

Q. So Mr. Dunlap had been, according to this document, the Chief Executive Officer of Scott Paper for slightly more than 18 months before Scott Paper was sold by Mr. Dunlap to Kimberly Clarke, correct?

MR. CLARE: The question is according to this document?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes.

MR. CLARE: Then I object. The document speaks for itself. This is a waste of time to have the witness read the document into the record.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. This is what the document reads. It says April '94 to December of '95 -- is what's typed here.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And you recall that Mr. Dunlap had remained the Chairman and Chief Executive of

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Scott Paper until its sale to Kimberly Clarke, sir?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I believe so, yes, as I recall today.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And Mr. Dunlap had been employed according to this document as the Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam for less than a year before he approached Morgan Stanley about the possibility of arranging the sale of Sunbeam to a third party, correct?

MR. CLARE: Same objection. The document speaks for itself. The dates are what they are. Waste of time.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I previously testified that I don't know if he approached Morgan Stanley or someone else did, but I do recall that we were approached in the spring of '97.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And according to this document it was less than a year after Mr. Dunlap became the Chief Executive Officer of Sunbeam, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. If this document is accurate, yes.
Q. Did you know that Mr. Dunlap personally made a great deal of money when he sold Scott Paper to Kimberly Clarke? Were you aware of that?
MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I know that he was -- I know that he was a stockholder and therefore was compensated consistent with that.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Do you know that he made approximately $100 million on his sale of Scott Paper stock to Kimberly Clarke?
A. Not that I recall today.
Q. You do have some understanding that Mr. Dunlap made a great deal of money when Scott Paper was sold to Kimberly Clarke?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I recall that he made money consistent with his ownership in Scott Paper.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Do you recall if that was a significant amount of money?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. It is what it is. I don't recall the exact amounts.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. I'm not asking whether you can today tell me what the exact amounts are, sir. I am asking whether if it was your understanding in the spring of 1997 when Mr. Dunlap approached Morgan Stanley or when Sunbeam approached Morgan Stanley that in connection with the sale of Scott Paper to Kimberly Clarke in late 1995 that Mr. Dunlap had made a significant amount of money personally?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Again, I think I have answered that. He was a stockholder. He sold the stock and was compensated for that.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. You don't have any notion whether the amount of money that Mr. Dunlap made on the stock was modest or significant?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Argumentative.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I would let him characterize that.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Well, do you consider $100 million to be significant?
A. It sure is. To me it is.
Q. Did you have an understanding that Mr. Dunlap made a significant amount of money upon the sale of his Sunbeam stock from your perspective -- excuse me. Let me start over.
Do you have an understanding in the spring of 1997 that Mr. Dunlap made from your perspective a significant amount of money on the sale of his Scott Paper stock to Kimberly Clarke in late 1995?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered now several times.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Again, I don't recall exactly what he made. I know that he had been a stockholder and he was compensated for that.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. I am not asking if you can recall it exactly, sir. I'm asking whether you recall knowing that Mr. Dunlap made a significant amount of money from your standards upon the sale of his Scott Paper stock to Kimberly Clarke in late 1995?

A. I don't recall. Probably, but I don't recall.
Q. You think you probably were aware of that; is that correct, sir?
A. But I don't recall.
Q. And Mr. Dunlap wanted you to help him repeat that success and to find someone to buy Sunbeam, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation about what Mr. Dunlap wanted.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't agree with the characterization of the question. We were asked to examine a number of alternatives.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. And if Morgan Stanley had been able to find a company to purchase Sunbeam at a premium above its market price, Mr. Dunlap, again, would have personally made a significant amount of money upon the consummation of that transaction, correct, sir?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. He would -- again, as with Scott Paper would have been compensated consistent with his ownership in the company.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Did you understand that Mr. Dunlap held a significant amount of stock in Sunbeam in 1997?
A. I believe it being meaningful, yes.
Q. If Sunbeam had been sold at premium as a result of Morgan Stanley's efforts, Mr. Dunlap you knew would stand personally to make a significant amount of money, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Maybe.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Why do you say maybe?
A. When you say "premium," premium to what? Premium to zero is not a very big number.
Q. Premium to its then market price?

A. Possibly. He had some options, I believe some stock. I don't recall where the strike prices where. He may have.
Q. You knew, sir, that Mr. Dunlap upon the sale of Sunbeam Company to a third party stood personally to make a significant amount of money, correct?
A. It would have been consistent with his ownership.
Q. Which you understood to be significant, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I think I said meaningful. I don't recall the exact numbers.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. What is meaningful in your mind?
A. Meaningful.
Q. Meaningful in terms of the number of shares, sir?
A. Number of shares or absolute dollars I think would be meaningful in my mind.
Q. And it was your understanding that Mr. Dunlap held a meaningful equity interest in Sunbeam Company in 1997, correct?

A. I think from an individual's point of view, probably that's yes.
Q. And you understood at least at some point that Mr. Dunlap's preference in terms of possible transactions was for Morgan Stanley to arrange the sale of Sunbeam to a third party, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. That misstates the testimony.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. For a period of time, I recall that that was his preference.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dunlap -- Morgan Stanley was not able to arrange for the sale of Sunbeam Company, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you recall that at some point Mr. Dunlap expressed his unhappiness with you over Morgan Stanley's inability to find a company to purchase Sunbeam?
A. There was a period of time where that was his preference and when it was not forthcoming, he was disappointed with that.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dunlap expressed unhappiness with Morgan Stanley's failure to find a buyer for Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Again, I don't know how to answer it any differently.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. How did he express his disappointment, sir?
A. I just remember generally that he was disappointed.
Q. Did he say that Morgan Stanley wasn't working hard enough to find a buyer?
A. He may have, but I don't recall.
Q. Did he say that you personally weren't doing everything that you should be doing to find a buyer for Sunbeam?
A. He may have, but I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dunlap encouraged Morgan Stanley to do more to find a buyer for Sunbeam than it was doing in his view?
A. He continued to encourage us to work hard with respect to that during the time frame where it was his preference. That's what I recall.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Do you recall him raising his voice in communicating that view to you?

A. He may have.

Q. Do you recall him showing anger in communicating his views to you on that subject?

A. He may have but I don't recall.

Q. Who was present during those discussions with Mr. Dunlap on that subject, just you and he personally individually or were there others present?

A. There would have likely been others at those points in time where it would have been discussed.

Q. Do you recall discussing that topic with Mr. Dunlap in person, Mr. Dunlap's unhappiness with Morgan Stanley's ability to find a buyer for Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form and you're mischaracterizing the witness' prior testimony characterizing Mr. Dunlap's views.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, I recall in general that he was disappointed. I don't recall any specific conversations.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. You don't recall a face-to-face session with Mr. Dunlap where he expressed that view to you very directly?

A. Not specifically. It may have taken place, but I don't recall.

Q. Do you remember speaking with Mr. Dunlap on the telephone where he expressed that view to you?

A. He may have, but I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dunlap expressed that view to you either in person or by telephone on more than one occasion expressing his unhappiness with Morgan Stanley's failure to find a buyer for Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Object. It mischaracterizes the witness' prior testimony.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. He may have expressed disappointment. I just don't recall.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. My question is whether it happened on more than one occasion?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall over what period of time it was clear to you that Mr. Dunlap's preference was to find a buyer for Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall the specific time, but I recall that during the latter part of 1997, once we had been formally engaged, there was a period of time during that time where that was his preference.

Q. So that would have been sometime after September -- let me give you the engagement letter, sir. Let's pin this down.

Mr. Strong, let me show you what we will mark as CPH No. 70, a letter dated September 5, 1997, from you to Albert J. Dunlap on Morgan Stanley stationery and it bears Bates No. SB 237825 through 830.

Can you identify Exhibit No. 70 for me, Mr. Strong.

(WHEREUPON, a certain document was marked CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 70, for identification, as of 12/4/03.)

MR. CLARE: Take a moment to read through it.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. It looks to be a photocopy of an engagement letter dated September 5, 1997.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Does it bear your signature, sir, on page 828?

A. This copy does, yes.

Q. Do you see it's signed by Sunbeam Company as accepted on September 11, 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall that that is approximately the date on which Sunbeam formally retained Morgan Stanley to act as its advisor with respect to potential transactions?

A. I recall it was the fall of '97.

Q. So is it your testimony, sir, that subsequent to the execution by Sunbeam of Exhibit No. 70, the September 5 engagement letter, that it became apparent to you that Mr. Dunlap's preference was for Morgan Stanley to find a company to purchase Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MR. CLARE: That's a misstatement of the testimony. I object.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. As I previously testified, as I recall subsequent to the date, as I say, the fall of '97, there was a period of time where I recall Mr. Dunlap had a preference for the sale of the company.
Q. And you relate that time period, sir, to a period after Sunbeam executed the Morgan Stanley engagement letter, correct?
A. It wasn't that sort of brightlined as you've described it. I just recall it was in late '97.
Q. And do you recall how long Mr. Dunlap -- strike that.
Do you recall how long a period of time Mr. Dunlap continued to articulate a preference for Morgan Stanley finding a company to purchase Sunbeam?
A. As I recall, he had a preference for it during at least a portion of the time where we were examining that alternative.

Q. Well, do you recall whether Mr. Dunlap continued to express the view that he preferred for Morgan Stanley to find a company to purchase Sunbeam through the end of 1997?
A. I don't recall the specific time where he would have ceased having that be his preference.
Q. Do you have an understanding why Mr. Dunlap changed his views with respect to his preferences?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Let me ask a background question. Strike that.
Did you understand at some point in time Mr. Dunlap decided that he preferred to enter into acquisitions rather than the sale of Sunbeam?
A. As I recall, we were pursuing a couple of alternatives in parallel; but I don't recall specifically when it would have become his preference to pursue an acquisition.
Q. Well, did Mr. Dunlap change his views with respect to his preferences or did it become apparent that it would not be possible to arrange for the sale of Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Or some other option.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't know.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Well, was there a point in time where it became apparent to you, sir, that it would not be possible to arrange for the sale of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you come to that conclusion?
A. It would have been sometime late 1997 or in the first or early of 1998 is my recollection.
Q. Did you advise Mr. Dunlap of that?
A. Not that I recall specifically, but I probably did.
Q. Do you recall whether up until the time that you advised Mr. Dunlap that you had concluded that it would not be possible to arrange for the sale of Sunbeam, Mr. Dunlap continued to prefer that Morgan Stanley find a buyer?
MR. CLARE: I don't understand that question.

BY THE WITNESS:
A. Would you repeat the question, please.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Let me rephrase it.
Do you recall, sir, that up until the time that you informed Mr. Dunlap that it would not be possible in your view for Morgan Stanley to find a company to purchase Sunbeam, that it appeared to you that Mr. Dunlap's preference remained that Sunbeam be sold?
MR. CLARE: Object to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. That's probably fair, although he knew that we were pursuing alternatives in parallel.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. But until such time as it became apparent that it would not be possible to arrange for a sale of Sunbeam, it was your view that that had been and continued to be Mr. Dunlap's preference, sir?
A. I don't know that it continued to be. I believe there was a period of time where it was

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

his preference.

Q. And from that point forward until such time as it became apparent that it would not be possible for Morgan Stanley to arrange for the sale of Sunbeam, it was your view that Mr. Dunlap continued to prefer that Sunbeam be sold?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. That's not what I have testified.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm trying to understand it.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. There was a point in time where Mr. Dunlap, in your view, had a preference that Sunbeam be sold, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that point in time, in your recollection, was a point in the fall of 1997, correct?

A. Yes, whatever I testified before, maybe up to early '98. I don't remember the exact time frame.

Q. And there was a point in time subsequent to that where you concluded that it would not be possible for Morgan Stanley to find a company to purchase Sunbeam, correct?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Yes.

Q. Between the time that you became aware that Mr. Dunlap had a preference to sell Sunbeam until the time when it became apparent to you that it would not be possible for Morgan Stanley to arrange for a sale, was it your belief that Mr. Dunlap's preference during that time period was the sale of Sunbeam?

A. This is prior to the time where I communicated to him, if I did, that a sale might not be possible; is that your question?

Q. Let me try to make it clear.

Between the time when it became apparent to you that Mr. Dunlap's preference was the sale of the business and the point in time where it became apparent to you that that would not be possible, was it your belief that Mr. Dunlap's preference during that entire time period was for Morgan Stanley to find a buyer for Sunbeam?

A. It may have been.

Q. And do you recall, sir, that when

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Morgan Stanley advised Sunbeam that Morgan Stanley could not arrange for the sale of the business, that Mr. Dunlap expressed personally and directly to you his unhappiness with Morgan Stanley's failure to find a buyer for the company?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered and misstates the prior testimony.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, as I think I previously testified, I do recall him expressing disappointment in general and I know that I was present in some form in hearing that. I don't recall the circumstances, though.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. You've referred a couple of times now, at least, sir, to looking at the fact that Morgan Stanley was also engaged in looking at alternatives other than selling Sunbeam, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And what were those alternatives?

A. As I previously testified, I recall that we were looking at possible acquisition candidates for Sunbeam Corporation and we may have also been examining other alternatives.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Whose idea was it to look at potential acquisitions?

A. Well, it's always the client's idea to pursue it or not pursue it.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley suggest to Sunbeam in the first instance that something Sunbeam might consider was the possibility of making acquisitions?

A. When we made our presentation in the spring of '97, as I recall, it was one of the alternatives we thought might be conceivably available to Sunbeam; but it's probably fair to say that they had thought about it as well.

Q. Do you recall that Morgan Stanley suggested to Sunbeam at some point that in connection with acquisitions, Sunbeam's stock could be used as either all or a portion of the consideration paid for the purchase of a company?

A. Yes.

Q. Who at Morgan Stanley first made that suggestion?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall whether someone

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

internally at Morgan Stanley made that suggestion to you at some point?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall whether the idea first occurred to you before someone else suggested it?

A. One, I haven't testified that someone else did suggest it to me; and, two, I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall a point in time where you had conversations with -- you personally had conversations with Sunbeam concerning the potential use of Sunbeam's stock to make an acquisition?

A. I don't recall specifically, but I know we did have conversations.

Q. Do you recall what Sunbeam's reaction was when Morgan Stanley made that suggestion?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Let me direct your attention back to Exhibit No. 67, sir. That's the August 7, 1997 memorandum from Mr. Fiedorek, you, Mr. Kitts, Mr. Stynes and Mr. Fuchs for distribution.

The subject line reads, "Potential hostile acquisition of alpha corporation by

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Laser." Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Laser was Morgan Stanley's code name for Sunbeam?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Do you recall that Alpha Corporation was Black & Decker?

A. Yes.

Q. Tell me what you recall about the possible hostile acquisition of Alpha Corporation by Sunbeam?

A. I recall, in general, that it was one of the alternatives that Sunbeam management was looking at.

Q. Do you recall who first raised the possible hostile acquisition of the Black & Decker business, whether it was first raised by Sunbeam or whether it was first raised by Morgan Stanley?

A. No.

Q. Is it possible in your mind, sir, that Morgan Stanley would have suggested a hostile bid by Sunbeam for Black & Decker?

A. I don't recall.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. There's nothing about the concept of a hostile bid in this context from Sunbeam by Black & Decker that would cause you to say that that's not a proposal that Morgan Stanley would have brought to Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't recall specifically, no.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Now, do you see at the bottom of this page, sir, there is a bold heading that reads, "Question for the firm"?

A. Yes.

Q. "Does Morgan Stanley want to advise Laser and arrange the financing in a potentially hostile public offer for Alpha?"

Did I read that correctly?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that being an issue for Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. Why was that an issue for Morgan Stanley?

A. With respect to any merger acquisition or divestiture assignment, we would always want to think carefully about whether or not we would want to be retained and what role we would play. And it would be especially important in a situation where it might be an unsolicited transaction.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Why is that?

A. At all times Morgan Stanley wants to be sure that we conduct ourselves in a first-class way and that any transaction that's public, our name is associated with it, we'd want to be comfortable with the transaction.

Q. Is there something about a hostile merger that changes the evaluation of whether a transaction is an appropriate one for Morgan Stanley to become associated with?

A. I think it is a higher standard.

Q. And for what reason?

A. Because at times the target companies can be disappointed if they are the subject of an offer.

Q. That's the definition of a hostile takeover, isn't it, sir?

A. I would characterize this as

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

unsolicited. I'm not quite sure what hostile means.

Q. Well, this document itself uses that term, right, sir, "hostile"?

A. Yes.

Q. How is that question resolved by Morgan Stanley?

A. We did not proceed with the transaction, so I don't recall if we concluded not to go forward or the client did.

Q. Who within Morgan Stanley would this question have been submitted to for a decision?

A. It would be a wide group of people within the firm.

Q. Can you recall anyone that would have been involved in that decision-making process?

A. Certainly team members would be involved with that, and beyond that I don't recall specifically.

Q. Team members being the individuals working on the Sunbeam transaction?

A. The Sunbeam assignment, yes.

Q. Any one would anyone in firm management been involved in evaluating whether an engagement to pursue a hostile takeover of Black & Decker would be an appropriate assignment for Morgan Stanley to undertake?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Probably, yes.

Q. Who in management would have been involved in that discussion?

A. I don't recall specifically.

Q. Do you recall generally?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall whether this issue did get raised to the level of Morgan Stanley management?

A. I don't recall, but it probably did though.

Q. Do you recall, yourself, having any personal discussions with members of Morgan Stanley management concerning the possible reputation of Sunbeam in a hostile bid for Black & Decker?

A. No.

Q. In the list of five individuals that this memorandum is coming from, Mr. Fiedorek, Mr. Kitts, Mr. Stynes and Mr. Fuchs, is there one of them that would have been the person responsible for dealing with Morgan Stanley firm management on this issue?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No.

Q. So none of them would have been more likely than you to be the individual responsible for dealing with firm management concerning the answer to the question on the bottom of this first page?

MR. CLARE: Objection. That misstates the testimony.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Other than the fact that my other colleagues were based in New York, they may have; but we typically do things as a team.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Now Sunbeam did not make a hostile bid for Black & Decker, correct?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Do you know why?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Had Morgan Stanley successfully represented Sunbeam in a hostile bid for Black & Decker, the engagement offered the prospect of very significant fees to Morgan

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Stanley, did it not?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and hypothetical. Incomplete.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Had it concluded, we would have been compensated in an appropriate and reasonable manner consistent with the transaction.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Let me direct your attention to the page that has Bates No. 63831 on it.

Do you see the heading Potential Morgan Stanley Revenues?

A. Yes.

Q. The first sentence reads, "Morgan Stanley stands to generate significant revenues from the different aspects of this potential assignment."

Do you see that, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any reason to dispute that statement?

A. No.

Q. Do you see at the bottom of the page there is a chart that breaks out the various fees that would be generated -- professional fees that would be generated by this potential transaction?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that the total is $258 million?
A. This is total fees for the transaction, yes.
Q. Do you consider $258 million to be a substantial fee?
A. To me it is, yes.
Q. Morgan Stanley does not bill for investment banking services on an hourly basis, does it, sir?
A. Sometimes we do.
Q. Generally the billing is done on a contingency fee basis, correct?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. With respect to merger and acquisition transactions, yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. The bigger the deal, the higher the fee Morgan Stanley gets paid in those terms, correct?

Page 106

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Sometimes, yes.
Q. Do you have any idea of how many hours Morgan Stanley spent in total on its work for Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Any aspect of the project -- do you have any idea how much time Morgan Stanley spent on any aspect of a Sunbeam engagement?
A. No. We don't keep track of our time.
Q. Morgan Stanley doesn't track in any way the time spent by its personnel on a project?
A. No, not at that time.
Q. Has that changed at some point?
A. We have instituted a system in the last few weeks where you will keep track of the percentage of time you spend on various clients and other matters.
Q. Do you have any way of knowing how the individuals that you supervise -- let me go back to 1998. Let's talk about that time period, 1998 and 1997.
Did you have any way of determining how much work any individual whom you were supervising was spending on a particular project?

Page 107

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Yes.
Q. How is that?
A. I would stay in regular contact with certain of the professionals on the projects for which I was involved.
Q. Were people reporting to you the amount of time being spent by the Sunbeam team?
A. No.
Q. Why was that?
A. As I previously testified, we don't keep track of no report amounts of time.
Q. But I thought I understood your testimony to be that in connection with your supervision of projects, you would have sufficient contact with the individuals involved in the project to understand in general terms how much time is being spent on them. Did I misunderstand you?
A. I would differ on the time. I wouldn't know what they were doing, what activities they were undertaking, how they were in general spending their time.
Q. Was that the case in connection with your involvement in Sunbeam?

Page 108

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I would say less so here because I was not directly responsible for the execution, but I had an overall understanding.
Q. Who was directly involved for the execution, as you put it, if you were not?
A. Well, I was involved but less -- as noted here and other documents, there were a number of other people involved.
Q. When you refer to responsibility for the execution, execution of what?
A. I was referring to the merger and acquisition side of this.
Q. Who at Morgan Stanley was responsible if you were not, for the execution of the mergers and acquisition side of this?
A. I had some responsibilities. I had previously testified it was a team approach and a shared responsibility. There were other eminent partners as I previously testified who were actively involved.
Q. Is there someone who had more direct responsibility in the execution than you?
A. On the M & A side, day-to-day was Mr. Stein and Mr. Kitts, as I recall, and there were others involved as well.

Q. Would you expect them to be more knowledgeable about the amount of time that team members were spending on that aspect of the project than you had?
A. Yes.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Counsel, I have about a minute left on this tape.
MR. MARKOWSKI: We can stop.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're going off the video record at the end of tape No. 1 at 10:03 a.m.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Mr. Strong, let me direct your attention back to the Sunbeam engagement letter, Exhibit No. 70. It's dated September 5, 1997.
The Sunbeam engagement letter provided for a contingent fee for Morgan Stanley's work; is that correct?
A. That was a portion of the letter, yes.
Q. If Morgan Stanley succeeded in an arranging for either a sale of Sunbeam or the acquisition of another company, Morgan Stanley would be paid a fee, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And if Morgan Stanley failed to successfully arrange for the sale of Sunbeam or an acquisition, Morgan Stanley would not receive a fee, correct?
MR. CLARE: Object to that characterization of the document.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. No.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. How is that incorrect?
A. If we announced -- if a definitive agreement was signed providing for the sale of Sunbeam but the transaction did not close, which was your question, Morgan Stanley would still receive some fees.
Q. So there were circumstances in which Morgan Stanley would arrange the transaction, a definitive agreement could be executed and the transaction would fail to close when Morgan Stanley would still be paid a fee, correct?

A. A fee, yes, a smaller fee.
Q. If Morgan Stanley failed in its efforts to arrange for a definitive agreement to either sell Sunbeam or to purchase another company, Morgan Stanley received no fee, correct?
A. Well, if I could just -- I wouldn't use the word "use." We don't arrange for a definitive agreement to be signed. As a role as a financial advisor if no definitive agreement was signed, it would be covered by this engagement letter. We would not receive a fee.
Q. So the fees that Morgan Stanley got would potentially be paid were for successes, correct, under this agreement?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I believe that we would -- other than what I had previously testified, that we would only be compensated on the consummation of a transaction.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. And under the terms of this agreement the larger the value of the transaction, the higher the fee Morgan Stanley stood to earn,

correct?
A. It would be a lower fee percentage, but it may be a higher absolute fee.
Q. Well, it would in fact be a larger absolute fee, correct, sir?
A. I can get my calculator and check if you would like, but I don't know.
Q. It was your understanding under the terms of this agreement, sir, that the bigger the transaction Morgan Stanley was able to successfully arrange for Sunbeam, the higher the fee Morgan Stanley would receive from Sunbeam, correct?
A. Again, as I've testified, possibly.
Q. And it was also your hope, Mr. Strong, that if Morgan Stanley successfully arranged for a transaction for Sunbeam, that Sunbeam would also employ Morgan Stanley to arrange for any necessary financing; is that correct?
A. I don't recall if they were obligated to do that.
Q. Do you recall if that was your hope?
A. I would speculate that it certainly was my hope, yes.

Q. Morgan Stanley would stand to make additional fees in addition to the fees provided for under the September 5 engagement letter if Sunbeam also employed Morgan Stanley to arrange for financing of the transaction, correct?

A. That's likely correct.

Q. Let me direct your --

A. If the financings were successful.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the third page of the engagement letter, sir. It is the first full paragraph. Take a moment to read that.

Have you had an opportunity to read that?

A. Yes.

Q. Does this refresh your recollection that the engagement letter did deal with the possibility that Morgan Stanley would be retained to assist Sunbeam in obtaining financing that was necessary to consummate any transactions that Morgan Stanley successfully arranged for Sunbeam?

A. It would be if it was in connection with the assignment that was covered by this engagement letter, yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. And under the terms of this, Sunbeam was obligated to offer to Morgan Stanley on mutually agreeable terms the opportunity to assist in arranging such financing, correct?

A. If in connection with that assignment, yes.

Q. And that was another way for Morgan Stanley to make money, correct?

A. Possibly. You don't necessarily make money on every financing transaction.

Q. But that's the hope and expectation of Morgan Stanley, I assume, correct?

A. That's certainly the hope.

Q. Do you recall, sir, that subsequent to the initial engagement letter with Morgan Stanley, that the engagement letter was amended to provide for the sharing of the fees with a company called Llama?

A. Yes.

Q. What were the circumstances that led to that?

A. As I recall today, Mr. Dunlap had indicated that he and Sunbeam management wanted to have the benefit of advice from Llama.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Did he explain to you why?

A. As I recall, the senior principal of Llama knew the retail business well and I recall him feeling he would benefit from having that counsel.

Q. Llama is owned primarily by Alice Walton; is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and calls for speculation regarding the ownership.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't recall specifically but I recall her being the chief executive of Llama.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And Alice Walton is a member of the Wal-Mart Waltons; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it your understanding that Wal-Mart was a significant customer of Sunbeam's?

A. It was a meaningful customer, yes, that's my recollection.

Q. Did you have any belief that Wal-Mart's role as a meaningful customer of Sunbeam's had an effect on Mr. Dunlap's desire to include Llama in the investment banking aspects of this project?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't know.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. I'm asking for your belief.

MR. CLARE: Your belief about what Mr. Dunlap thought?

BY THE WITNESS:

A. That's what the question was. I don't know what he was thinking.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Let me be clear. I'm only asking for what you believed at the time.

At the time did you have a belief that Mr. Dunlap sought to include Llama in the mergers and acquisitions activity that Morgan Stanley had previously been engaged to perform because Wal-Mart was a significant customer of Sunbeam and Ms. Walton was the Chief Executive Officer of Llama?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't recall.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Did anyone ever suggest that to you that you recall?
A. Not that I recall today, no.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Dunlap ever saying that to you?
A. No.
Q. How were you compensated in 1997, sir?
MR. CLARE: I don't understand the question. What do you mean how?
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't understand the question.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Were you paid a fixed salary in 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. And were you paid a bonus as well?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you receive any other form of compensation from Morgan Stanley?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Not that I recall.
Q. What portion of your income in 1997 did your fixed salary represent?
A. I don't recall the specific percentage, but it would be less than 10 percent or about 10 percent probably.
Q. And your bonus would have made a vast majority of your compensation in 1997; is that correct, sir?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Would that have been true in 1998 also?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall what your total compensation was in 1997?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall approximately?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall what your total compensation was approximately in 1998?
A. No.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. How was your bonus determined, the size of it?
A. It would be all bonuses in the investment bank at Morgan Stanley are the result of 360-degree evaluations. Those evaluations are then reviewed and then differing groups of partners will make decisions about what is fair compensation; and I presume, although I don't know for sure, that the same process worked for me.
Q. Does the amount of business that you generate have an effect on your bonus?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. It has some effect, but a less and less effect as you get more and more senior.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Did your -- did Morgan Stanley's engagement with Sunbeam in 1997 and the work that was performed in 1998 have any effect on your bonus either in 1997 or 1998?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you get credit in some way,

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Mr. Strong, for bringing the Sunbeam engagement into Morgan Stanley?
A. No, not to my knowledge.
Q. Does Morgan Stanley have a system of fee credits?
A. No.
Q. Was the -- Morgan Stanley ultimately was paid fees as a result of the September 5, 1997 engagement letter subsequently amended; is that correct, sir?
A. That's my recollection, yes.
Q. Did you receive in any way credit in terms of your bonus determination in 1998 for the fees generated as a result of the work that Morgan Stanley performed pursuant to the terms of the Sunbeam engagement letter?
A. One, I don't know; and, two, in determining compensation -- I know when I am involved in setting compensation we don't take any single transaction into consideration.
Q. Would it have had any effect?
A. I don't know.
Q. Who would have been the individuals responsible for determining your compensation in

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

1997 and 1998?

A. It would have been several. Again, I don't know for sure. I have never known. I would speculate that Joe Porella, maybe Terry McGeed, maybe others.

Q. Would they all have been -- Mr. Porella is the person you identified earlier as the current chairman of the mergers and acquisitions group at Morgan Stanley; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. I am sorry. I misunderstood then.

What was Mr. Porella's responsibility back in 1997 and 1998?

A. I believe -- and I could be wrong on this -- but I believe at the time he was responsible for the investment banking division within Morgan Stanley.

Q. In connection with the setting of your bonus, did you prepare in 1997 or 1998 a description of your accomplishments for consideration of the individual or individuals involved in the bonus setting process for you?

A. What I recall is that each year we were responsible for preparing a so-called self-evaluation. I believe I have done that every year.

Q. Do you recall whether in connection with your self-evaluation in 1997 or 1998, you made reference to the Sunbeam engagement?

A. Not that I can recall.

Q. Would it have been your practice to talk about in your self-evaluations the specific transactions that you were involved in working on?

A. Sometimes.

Q. But you don't recall doing that in connection with Sunbeam; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a reason for that? Let me ask you a different question.

Do you believe you did not make reference to Sunbeam in either of your self-evaluations in '97 or '98?

A. I just don't recall.

Q. You don't recall one way or the other?

A. Correct.

Q. Is the compensation process at Morgan

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Stanley the same today as it was in 1997 or 1998?

A. In major respects, yes.

Q. Does it remain the case that the vast majority of your personal income is generated by your bonus?

A. Yes. When you say "personal income," income from Morgan Stanley for that specific year, yes.

Q. Yes, that's what I'm referring to.

In 1997 or 1998, were bonuses dependent upon, in some respect, the overall performance of either Morgan Stanley as a whole or the investment banking group or the M & A group?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Compound.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. When I've been involved in compensation and I've been informed periodically that those were factors that are taken into consideration overall, the overall success of the firm, that the firm may have had in that particular year or investment banking or other aspects of the firm, those are factors.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. So it's possible that the success of the M & A group has an effect on your personal bonus, correct?

A. Not directly, no.

Q. Is it your understanding that it plays a role?

A. Well, overall success of the investment banking division as a senior member of investment banking, that would be a factor that's taken into consideration for setting bonus levels overall for senior people within the division.

Q. I want to go back to 1997 and 1998 for a moment.

Back during that time period, would the performance overall of the mergers and acquisitions group have had an effect on the setting and size of your bonus?

A. No, I would answer it the same way.

Q. What about the overall performance of the investment banking division back in 1997 or 1998, would that have had an effect in some on the size of your bonus during that time period?

A. Again, I don't know how my compensation has been set; but I know when I have been involved in setting compensation and the discussions I've had, it is a factor in the overall setting of bonus pools and that kind of thing.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16div-021820

Q. What personal responsibilities, sir, did you have for Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam?

A. I -- as I testified earlier, I was a member of a team and would interface with the senior management of Sunbeam periodically.

Q. Is that it?

A. I think that's a fair description.

Q. So your responsibility involved interfacing with Sunbeam management, correct?

A. Periodically, yes.

Q. And interfacing from time to time with the team performing the work?

A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean by inferface with the team?

A. Speak with or otherwise communicate with.

Q. Was that for purposes of your obtaining information or was it for the purposes of your providing direction?

A. It could be both.

Q. So part of your responsibility included providing direction to members of the Sunbeam M & A team?

A. No, not really. I would provide input to the team periodically.

Q. What do you mean by "input"?

A. Views on actions to be taken or not taken.

Q. Did you consider yourself to have any responsibility providing -- for providing direction to any members of the M & A team working on the Sunbeam transaction?

A. I would provide views but not day-to-day direction. It was really the responsibility of others.

Q. There are times, I take it, Mr. Strong, in connection with the work you do as a managing director of Sunbeam -- at Morgan Stanley where you do provide direction to Morgan Stanley professionals in connection with performing investment banking or mergers and acquisitions activities; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. But in connection with Sunbeam that was not the case?

A. It varies assignment by assignment. In the case of Sunbeam, we had several partners involved so it was less important for me to provide that kind of direction; although, I may have provided some periodically.

Q. Would it have been your role as a member of the M & A team working on the Sunbeam project to provide direction or supervision to any other managing director working on the project?

A. I would most often communicate with other managing directors and share with them my views, but I also spoke with other team members.

Q. I'm just trying to understand the hierarchy of Morgan Stanley, whether it is at least at that point in time within the scope of your responsibilities at Morgan Stanley to give direction to another -- let me start over.

In connection with the Sunbeam assignment you have indicated that there were a number of other managing directors working on the project -- the M & A aspect of the project, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you more senior than any of them in any respect in connection with the performance of the services to Sunbeam?

A. The firm would have viewed me as more senior to them in general; but as very experienced M & A professionals, they would have had responsibility for the day-to-day execution of the M & A portion of the assignment.

Q. From the firm's perspective, did you have any management responsibility for supervising the activities of the other managing directors working in the M & A aspects of the project?

A. No, I would not characterize it that way.

Q. Did you -- from your personal perspective, did you feel as though it was your responsibility to monitor the work being performed by the other managing directors of the project and to give supervision where you thought it was necessary?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I would want to be a contributing member of the team and contribute what I could to hopefully add to the execution of the transaction.

And, as I previously testified, I would interface periodically with the client. And so I would also want to make sure that I was informed as to various aspects.

Q. Did you feel as though you were fully informed with respect to all significant aspects of the M & A work that the Sunbeam team was performing?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Well, I only know what I knew and to my knowledge I believe that I was.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. It was your objective to stay informed about any of the significant activities of the members of the Morgan Stanley M & A team working on the Sunbeam engagement; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you do that? How did you go back keeping yourself adequately informed for that purpose?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Well, as I previously testified, I would communicate periodically with members of the team.

Q. Were there particular members of the team you relied on to supply you with the information that you needed?

A. I would speak with all members of the team; but I would say possibly more frequently as I previously testified, with the other managing directors.

Q. And in terms of the non-managing directors, were there any individuals that you had more contact with than others?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Andy Savarie -- is that how his name is pronounced, Savarie?

A. Savarie.

Q. Andy Savarie was located in the Chicago office of Morgan Stanley at that time, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have more contact with him in connection with the performance of his work?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I don't recall. I may have.

Q. What was Andy Savarie's responsibility on the engagement?

A. Andy Savarie was a -- as I recall, was an associate and would therefore assist with various aspects of the assignment.

Q. Did you cause Mr. Savarie to be assigned to the Sunbeam engagement?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. And what was your reason for doing that?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Was it because you wanted someone from the Chicago office to be involved in the activities?

A. I don't recall.

Q. John Tyree was a non-managing director person involved in the M & A activities for the Sunbeam project; is that correct?

A. I'm not certain.

Q. Do you remember communicating with Mr. Tyree relating to his work for Sunbeam?

A. I recall in general having communicated with Mr. Tyree periodically.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Relating to Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you the person primarily responsible for supervising Mr. Tyree's activities?

A. No.

Q. Who was?

A. I'm not certain, but I would speculate Ruth Porat and others; but, once again, it's a team approach so we try to work in a collegial team-like environment. I don't recall her being his specific direct supervisor in the group in which he was then in.

Q. Were there any occasions where you did provide direction or guidance to Mr. Tyree that you can recall?

A. Not that I recall today.

A. No, not that I recall.
Q. Was it unusual to have several managing directors working on the M & A aspect of the Sunbeam engagement, sir?
A. No.
Q. It's common for four or five managing directors to be involved in working on the M & A aspects of an assignment?
A. Depending on the client and the circumstances, it happens.
Q. Is it unusual?

A. Not to my knowledge, no.
Q. Well, there was yourself, correct?
A. I'm not in the merger and acquisition group.

A. Well, if Mr. Fiedorek was, then he would have added up to three, yes.
Q. Do you recall if there were others?
A. Other professionals?
Q. Other managing director professionals from the M & A group?
A. Not specifically; but there could have been others involved as we had conversations with other prospective acquirers of Sunbeam, others might have been involved.

Q. Do you see the handwritten note in the left-hand -- upper left-hand corner of the document next to "Overview of Proposed Selling Process"?
A. Yes.
Q. It appears to read, "Just get it done," do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall that being the message from Sunbeam?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No. And I'm not even sure that's the first word. It's hard to read.
Q. You don't recall the message from Sunbeam management being -- to Morgan Stanley being "just get the sale of the business done"?
A. No.
Q. Do you see the handwritten note to the right of "enter into confidentiality agreements, if necessary." There is an asterisk and the words, "Kimberly/Scott - won't say anything." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any understanding of what that handwritten note relates to?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley receiving direction from Sunbeam management not to include Kimberly Clarke on the list of potential companies to contact with respect to the possible sale of Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall today, no.
Q. Do you recall at any point that Mr. Dunlap indicated that he did not want you communicating with Kimberly Clarke?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Not that I recall today, no.
Q. Do you recall hearing that Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Kersh instructed anyone from Morgan Stanley working on the Sunbeam engagement not to communicate with Kimberly Clarke?
A. Not that I recall today, no.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the page that bears Bates No. 3905.
Do you see that it bears a heading entitled, Draft and Memo Memorandum.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. What's your understanding of what a draft memorandum information is?
A. A draft information memorandum in the context of a merger and acquisition assignment would be a document that would be provided to in the case of a sale, prospective acquirers so that those acquirers can begin to possess their preliminary interest in pursuing a transaction.
Q. This would be part of the information package that a potential acquirer would receive relating to Sunbeam?
A. Yes, in many cases.

Q. And Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in connection with the preparation of that material, correct, the draft information memorandum?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I recall that we -- there may have been a memorandum created and they would obviously be responsible for its contents, but we would typically assist in the drafting of it.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And this version of the draft information memorandum that we see in Exhibit No. 69 was material put together at least by Morgan Stanley, correct?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form, and I object to the characterization of this document as you've just described it.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, the content would be the responsibility of Sunbeam, and I don't recall specifically if a memorandum was put together in connection with the Sunbeam assignment.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. I'm asking specifically about this piece of paper that we have in front of us.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

This piece of paper, the draft memorandum information that we're looking at on page 3905 and the pages that follow were generated by Morgan Stanley, correct.

MR. CLARE: I object to that characterization. This is not the draft information memorandum. There's been no testimony that that's the case and it is also contradicted by the face of the document.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I'll tell you what, objections that are speaking objections of that sort are totally inappropriate. Okay?

If you want to testify, you can testify. If you want to object to the form of my question, you can go ahead and do that; but attempting to guide Mr. Strong's testimony is totally objectionable.

MR. CLARE: And it is equally improper for you to mischaracterize documents and then ask the witness to accept your characterization of the document that is flatly contradicted by the face of it and also Mr. Strong's prior testimony.

I invite you to ask your next question and I'll object as I deem appropriate.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. MARKOWSKI: Your objection was inappropriate.

MR. CLARE: As was your question.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Strong, I'm asking about the specific piece of paper that we have in front of us in Exhibit No. 69 starting with the heading Draft Information Memorandum.

The material that starts on page 3950 and that follows was information that Morgan Stanley generated, correct? These pages were generated by Morgan Stanley.

A. Again, I'm not quite sure how to answer your question; but -- and I'm not sure I agree with the characterization. In all that I see is that Bates No. 3906 is labeled a table of contents and then the pages after that are other -- it's page 12 and then page 14, just other information that looks to be from public or other sources.

Q. This is the kind of information that would potentially be included in an information memorandum of the sort you've described, correct?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No.

Q. So it's your testimony that, for example, the information contained on page 3907 is not the kind of information that Morgan Stanley would include in an information memorandum to provide to potential acquisition candidates?

A. No.

Q. Let me focus on --

MR. CLARE: Were you done with your answer, Bill?

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I was going to say there might be portions of it that might be included in it. I just don't know if this was part of an information memorandum or not.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Let me focus your attention on page 3906, Sunbeam corporation table of contents. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Does this table of contents appear to be the outline of the contents of an information memorandum?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. If one was created -- and I'm just reacting to the fact that the prior page said "draft memorandum information" -- it may be.

Q. And this page was generated by Morgan Stanley, correct?

A. This page was typed by Morgan Stanley because it looks like our type-face, but it may have actually been drafted by the client. I don't know.

Q. But it's your belief that this page was prepared -- typed by someone at Morgan Stanley, correct?

A. It's our typeface, so it appears it's been typed by someone at Morgan Stanley.

Q. Do you see the note in the upper left-hand corner, the word "amateurs" appears in relatively large handwriting.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there any point in time, sir, that anyone at Morgan Stanley, to your knowledge, referred to Sunbeam management as amateurs?

A. Not to my knowledge, no.

Q. Is there any point in time where someone at Morgan Stanley -- excuse me, someone at Sunbeam communicated to Morgan Stanley its view that Morgan Stanley's activity in some way was amateurish?

A. Not to my knowledge, no.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the portion of the table of contents that begins section Roman Numeral XI, Future Growth Opportunities.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Future growth opportunities on this page is circled, is it not, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. And in the box above it, the handwriting -- can you read that handwriting?

A. It looks like "Beefed up sex appeal."

Q. And there's further handwriting connected to the circle around the box for future growth opportunities, is there not, to the right?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you read that handwriting?

A. Portions of it, yes.

Q. What can you read?

A. It looks like that's going to sell quantitative -- and the last word there is geographical.

Q. The other words appear to be "brands," "licensing" an abbreviation for marketing, "penetration," "new" and an abbreviation for products?

A. It may be. Your eyesight is superb.

Q. Do you recall at some point, sir, that the future growth opportunities for Sunbeam -- excuse me -- where Morgan Stanley advised Sunbeam that it was important for Sunbeam to emphasize its future growth opportunities in communicating with potential investors?

A. I don't recall that specifically, no.

Q. That Morgan Stanley advised Sunbeam that that's where the "sex appeal" would be in the transaction?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I have no recollection of that whatsoever.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And that Sunbeam needed to "beef up" the information it was providing to Morgan Stanley about potential growth opportunities.

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I have no recollection of that whatsoever.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And that Morgan Stanley told Sunbeam that that's the kind of information that would help Morgan Stanley sell some?

A. I have no recollection of that.

Q. Do you recall believing that in order to sell Sunbeam it would be very important to convince potential acquirers that Sunbeam had the potential for significant future growth?

A. No, but I recall that Sunbeam had had an excellent track record prior to us getting involved and that was certainly a positive aspect.

Q. Do you recall believing that no one would pay a premium for Sunbeam which would be necessary to sell it without believing and being convinced that Sunbeam had the potential for continued future growth?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I have no knowledge of that.

Q. Mr. Strong, I'm going to show you in a moment what we're marking as CPH Exhibit No. 71. It's a document bearing Morgan Stanley Bates No. 5984 through 5995. The first page includes includes an email dated October 23, 1997, from, I believe, Tyrone Chang to the ibdwprof@ms.com. The subject is Sunbeam Corporation Strategic Advisory Assignment.

(WHEREUPON, a certain document was marked CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 71, for identification, as of 12/04/03.)

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Take a moment, Mr. Strong, to at least thumb through Exhibit No. 71 and familiarize yourself with its contents.

Mr. Strong, do you recall that it was several weeks between the time that Sunbeam formally engaged Morgan Stanley and the public announcement of that engagement?

A. I don't specifically recall that, but I see the dates here on the document.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. And this shows that there was a public announcement of Sunbeam's engagement of Morgan Stanley on October 23; is that correct?

A. That's what it appears, correct.

Q. Do you know why there would have been a delay of several weeks of Sunbeam's engagement of Morgan Stanley and the public announcement?

A. Well, first, I wouldn't characterize it as a delay. Sometimes clients disclose this when an investment bank has been retained. Sometimes they do not. It's for them to decide.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley offer any advice to Sunbeam on that subject?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall any discussion with Sunbeam management that you personally were involved in relating to that issue?

A. I recall being aware of the fact that they had an intention of doing this prior to the release of the press statement.

Q. Do you recall who advised you of that?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Was it somebody at Sunbeam or someone internally at Morgan Stanley?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I recall that I had been informed by someone at Sunbeam, but I don't recall who.

Q. Do you recall your reaction to that news?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall whether you advised Morgan Stanley to withhold a public announcement?

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form. Whether he advised Morgan Stanley?

MR. MARKOWSKI: If that's what I said, I misspoke.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you recall advising Sunbeam when you were first told that it intended to make a public announcement that it was your view that it would be preferable if Sunbeam delayed the announcement?

A. No. It's for the clients to decide what they disclose and don't disclose.

Q. Do you recall that the Sunbeam team circulated an interoffice memorandum to all of the worldwide IBD professionals relating to the Sunbeam engagement?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. It appears that there was one based upon this document in front of me. I don't recall specifically.

Q. IBD is a reference to what, Mr. Strong?

A. Investment banking division.

Q. And the text of this memo requests that the recipients advised the Sunbeam team if they're aware of any potential acquisition candidate or any company that might be interested in acquiring Sunbeam to notify the Sunbeam team of that?

A. That's what the document says, yes.

Q. Is that typical?

A. Yes. Where there's a release of this type, it's put out.

Q. I direct your attention to the third page of the document.

Let me take a step back before we get there.

The email indicates that in addition to the press announcement that an attached file is also being sent along with the email with further information relating to Sunbeam.

Do you see that in the second paragraph of the October 22 memorandum to all worldwide IBD professionals?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the third page of the document. It bears Bates No. 6986.

A. 5986.

Q. 5985. I stand corrected. It reads "Sunbeam Corporation Investment Rationale." Do you see that?

MR. CLARE: Hold on.

MR. MARKOWSKI: 5986.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you see the heading is Sunbeam Corporation Investment Rationale?

A. Yes.

Q. This was a document that was generated by Morgan Stanley, correct?

A. This is a document that appears to be on Morgan Stanley typeface, but the content would have come from public sources or from the company.

Q. Do you see that it states Sunbeam

Page 158

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

represents an attractive growth story and investment opportunity?

A. Yes.

Q. The second major bullet point, "Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in July 1996."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see below that it indicates that "growth and profitability that outpace the nearest competitors?" Do you see that statement?

A. Yes.

Q. Further down in that section it further indicates "strong management team that is opportunistic but disciplined." Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. These are the messages that Morgan Stanley thought prospective buyers would be interested in hearing, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Argumentative. Calls for speculation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. If this is the file that was attached here, counsel -- and I don't know that it is -- but if it is, these are just statements that were actively in the press and actively in public documents.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. These are statements that Morgan Stanley wanted to communicate to other companies to interest them in a potential acquisition of Sunbeam, correct?

A. If it was the document that's attached -- again, I don't know that it is -- these are aspects of Sunbeam that are positive aspects that underscore the success that they had had.

Q. So the message Morgan Stanley wanted to communicate to the companies it was contacting on behalf of Sunbeam was that Sunbeam had undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in July 1996, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I would just repeat my same answer.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Well, I need an answer to that question.

Page 160

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Can we read back what my response was, I'll just repeat it.

(Whereupon, the record was read by the reporter.)

MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. My question is, sir, those are the messages that Morgan Stanley wanted to communicate to companies that it might interest in potentially acquiring Sunbeam?

A. Again, I'm not quite sure what to say. It's the responsibility of Sunbeam to really execute a transaction.

Q. The contacts here that are contemplated pursuant to this document are contacts Morgan Stanley is going to make with other companies on behalf of Sunbeam, correct?

A. Possibly.

Q. And these are the messages that Morgan Stanley thought best communicated to potential acquirers of Sunbeam to communicate messages that Morgan Stanley wanted those companies to hear about Sunbeam, correct?

A. Again, I don't know. I mean, company information would come from the company or public sources. There may have been other messages in addition to these. These, as I recall, were, again, from public documents at the time and are positive aspects of Sunbeam's performance.

Q. And the intent of this is that the individuals in the investment banking division at Morgan Stanley will be communicating these messages to companies on behalf of Sunbeam, correct?

A. No, they're not supposed to.

Q. Why is that, sir?

A. The individual engagement team would be responsible for contacts with prospective aquirers of a situation like this.

Q. And these are the messages that that team would be communicating on behalf of Sunbeam to those companies that it contacted, correct?

A. What we would typically do is have, as I have testified earlier, an investment memorandum. There may be other materials that we provide. It appears that this was simply a document to solicit ideas from our colleagues.

Q. The page I'm focusing on, sir, the Sunbeam Corporation Investment Rationale was information you were providing other people in the investment banking division, correct?

A. Yes, if that is the memorandum that was attached, if this was the file.

Q. And this is the message that the Sunbeam team at Morgan Stanley has generated, correct?

A. Again, I don't know why you keep asking this over and over again. This would have been some of the aspects that we would have felt if this was the file that we would like our colleagues to know so that they could provide to us as the email suggests, you know, other possible ideas.

Q. And these are the very same messages that were communicated by Morgan Stanley on Sunbeam's behalf to my client, Coleman Parent, correct?

A. I don't know.

Q. Let me show you a document that we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 9, Mr. Strong. It's entitled Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials, February 1998, on Morgan Stanley stationery.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

You can take a moment if you'd like, sir, to familiarize yourself with the contents of the document and I'll refer you to a particular page to review.

Have you seen this document, Mr. Strong?

A. Not that I can recall today, no.

Q. Were you involved in reviewing the materials that Morgan Stanley provided to my client, Coleman Parent, relating to Sunbeam Company?

A. I don't know. I may have. I just don't recall.

Q. I represent to you, sir, that this is the package of materials that Morgan Stanley provided to Coleman Parent relating to Sunbeam Company.

Is it your testimony that you were not knowledgeable about the contents of the presentation package that was presented on Morgan Stanley's behalf to my client Coleman Parent.

MR. CLARE: Objection. That misstates Mr. Strong's testimony.

BY THE WITNESS:

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did you make it a point to review the materials that were provided to Coleman Parent before they were delivered to Coleman Parent by Morgan Stanley?

A. As I've asked and answered once before, I may have reviewed this document. I just don't recall.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the page that bears the Bates No. CP 26290. It's like the document we're looking at previously captioned Sunbeam Corporation Investment Rationale.

Do you see that?

A. I see what you have read, yes.

Q. And, again, reading from page 26290 in Exhibit CPH 9, this document states that Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story and investment opportunity, correct?

A. That's what you've read in the document, yes.

Q. And it states that Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in July of 1996, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. A waste of time.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. That's what the document reads, yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. And that there's tremendous intrinsic value in the company, correct?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. That's what the document reads, yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. And a reference to the company there is a reference to Sunbeam, correct?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. And it states that the growth and profitability of Sunbeam outpaced the nearest competitors, correct?
A. That's what the document reads, yes.
Q. And it describes Sunbeam's management team as strong, opportunistic but disciplined, correct?
A. That's what the document reads, yes.
Q. And those are the messages that Morgan

Stanley wanted to communicate to my client, Coleman Parent, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. No. This goes back to the previous document as well. I don't know if this was a document that was presented to Coleman; but, again, it would be the responsibility obviously of Sunbeam.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. But this is a document that was prepared by Morgan Stanley, correct, sir, CPH Exhibit No. 9?
MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. When you say "prepared," again it looks like it was typed by us; but it would be the responsibility of Sunbeam and the content. It's really their document.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Does Morgan Stanley, sir, have any responsibility for the contents of this document other than acting as typist for Sunbeam?
A. We would comment on it to help communicate it in an effective way, but beyond that, it's their document.

Q. So Morgan Stanley, in your view, sir, had no responsibility at all for determining the reasonableness or accuracy of the statements contained in CPH Exhibit No. 9?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Argumentative.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. It would be their responsibility, of course; but if we were aware of anything that was wrong, I would not want a document to go out nor would my partners if we knew it to be incorrect.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. In your view did Morgan Stanley have a duty to make a reasonable inquiry into the accuracy of the statements contained in the information that was provided by Morgan Stanley to my client, Coleman Parent, relating to Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: I object to the extent you're asking for a legal conclusion.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. We would rely upon the comments and data provided to us by management. If we were aware of something that was inaccurate, we would want that to be corrected.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. So it is your view, sir, that Morgan Stanley had no responsibility for itself inquiring into the accuracy or the reasonableness of the statements contained and the information that Morgan Stanley provided to my client?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Argumentative.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. As a reputation of matters, I previously testified with respect to any investment memorandum, if we were aware of something that we thought was inaccurate, we would certainly want that to be corrected; but the ultimate content is the responsibility of the client.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. My question, sir, is whether, in your view, your personal view, Morgan Stanley had a responsibility to make a reasonable inquiry into the accuracy and the reasonableness of the statements being made in documents prepared by Morgan Stanley and provided to my client?

Q. And Morgan Stanley, in your view, had no duty to make an inquiry into the accuracy of the statements contained in the document?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Argumentative.

I object to the question on the grounds that it's been asked and answered several times now.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I've answered the question.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. So you refuse to answer my question whether Morgan Stanley in your personal view had an obligation to make an inquiry into the accuracy of the statements being made and documents prepared by Morgan Stanley and presented by Morgan Stanley to my client?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Bob, he's answered this question now several times. He's given you a complete answer.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Can you answer the question, sir?

A. Sure. I'm not refusing to answer your question. I have answered it several times. That is my answer. I don't know how to answer it any better.

Q. My question is, did Morgan Stanley have a duty to make an inquiry into the accuracy of the statements contained in documents that Morgan Stanley gave to my client? It's a very simple question.

A. I understand it and I have answered it. I'll repeat the answer again, I guess.

If we were aware -- at least a portion of the answer -- if we were aware of something in the document that was incorrect, we would want that to be corrected; but the ultimate responsibility for the document is that of the client. We would rely upon the client and its information that would have been provided to us because it looks like we did type this and rely upon them.

Q. Beyond taking action if Morgan Stanley in fact knew that statements contained in this document were false, do you believe that Morgan

Stanley had no responsibility to verify the accuracy of the statements contained in the document?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

MR. MARKOWSKI: You have to answer the question, sir.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I have.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. What's your answer to the pending question?

A. The same I have given four or five times before. I answered the question. That is the answer.

Q. Who suggested to Sunbeam that Coleman Parent might make a good acquisition -- excuse me. Strike that.

Who suggested to Sunbeam that Coleman Company might be a good acquisition candidate for Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall. I don't know. I don't recall today.

Q. Do you know whether it was Morgan Stanley that first identified Coleman Company as

A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether you personally were the individual who first raised the possibility of Sunbeam acquiring Coleman Company?
A. I know that I was not.
Q. Did you know in 1997 that McAndrews and Forbes controlled a majority of Coleman Company stock?
A. Yes -- or MAFCO. I don't know the exact legal owner; but I recall that somewhere in that family of companies they controlled Coleman, yes.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley have a relationship with MAFCO, McAndrews and Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall what that was?
A. We had an investment banking relationship with them. I don't know how active it was or was not.
Q. Had you previously been involved in any work that Morgan Stanley did for any of the McAndrews and Forbes enterprises?
A. Not that I recall.

Q. Do you recall whether -- let me ask the broadest possible question.
At any time in your professional career have you ever had any communications with any McAndrews and Forbes personnel, officers, directors, employees?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Have you ever met Ronald Perlman?
A. No.
Q. Did you personally have any communications with Ronald Perlman in connection with your work for Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. In connection with your work for Sunbeam, did you have any communications with any McAndrews and Forbes personnel?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any communications in connection with work you did for Sunbeam with any McAndrews and Forbes representatives? By that I include attorneys, investment bankers.
A. Not that I recall.
Q. In connection with the work you did for Sunbeam, did you have any communications with any Coleman Company personnel?

A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you ever meet -- did you meet -- do you know that Jerry Levine was the Chief Executive Officer of Coleman Company at this time?
A. I don't recall that, no.
Q. Do you recall meeting the Chief Executive Officer of Coleman Company at any time you were doing work for Sunbeam?
A. You mean Mr. Levine.
Q. Well, if you don't recall that Mr. Levine was the CEO, I'm asking a somewhat broader question.
A. I know I've never met Mr. Levine before if that's the question.
Q. Let me ask a more clear question or try to.
Do you recall in connection with the work that you were performing for Sunbeam that you met or communicated with the Chief Executive Officer of Coleman Company?
A. I don't believe I ever did, no.
Q. Do you know Howard Giddis?

A. I recognize the name, but I don't recall ever having met him.
Q. Do you recall whether you had any communications with him in connection with any work that Morgan Stanley did for Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Were you aware that in late 1997 Mr. Dunlap had a meeting with Mr. Perlman to discuss Sunbeam's interest in acquiring Coleman Company?
A. I don't recall the exact time, but I was aware that he had had a meeting. It may be more than one, but I don't recall. I know at least one.
Q. Were you at all involved in the preparation for Mr. Dunlap's initial meeting with Mr. Perlman relating to the potential interest of Sunbeam in acquiring Coleman?

Do you know how it was decided that Mr. Dunlap would meet personally with Mr. Perlman

A. No.
Q. Do you recall whether you made a suggestion that Mr. Dunlap do that?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you receive any information relating to the initial meeting that Mr. Dunlap had with Mr. Perlman?
A. I recall receiving information about a meeting that was held. Again, I don't know if there was one or two; but I recall receiving information about a meeting.
Q. From whom did you receive that information?
A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. Was it someone at Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall. My recollection is that it was someone at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do you recall the context in which you received a report on that meeting between Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perlman?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall where you were?

A. No.
Q. Do you recall whether it was a face-to-face discussion?
A. No.
Q. What do you recall being told to you?
A. I recall of this one meeting that it was -- it concluded in a very acrimonious manner and the discussions were terminated.
Q. Were you told anything about Mr. Dunlap's conduct during the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. What were you told?
A. I was told that he was very upset.
Q. Is that all you were told about his conduct?
A. I recall that -- of his conduct? I also recall that there was, you know, very loud speaking or maybe even shouting between Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perlman.
Q. Do you recall being told that Mr. Dunlap swore at Mr. Perlman?
A. I don't recall that, no.
Q. Do you recall being told anything else about that meeting?

A. Not today, no.
Q. You said, if I recall correctly, that the meeting ended in an acrimonious fashion; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did you understand the discussions to stand at the conclusion of Mr. Dunlap's meeting with Mr. Perlman relating to possible acquisition of Coleman Company by Sunbeam?
A. As I testified, my recollection is that they were effectively terminated.
Q. I'm sorry if you said that previously. I forgot.
Did Morgan Stanley take any steps to reach out to McAndrews and Forbes to reinitiate discussions about the possibility of Sunbeam acquiring Coleman Company?
A. I recall that Morgan Stanley took steps to restart the discussions. I don't recall if they were with McAndrews and Forbes or whether they were with one of their representatives.
Q. One of McAndrews and Forbes's representatives?

A. Correct. And it may be they approached us first. I just don't recall.
Q. Do you recall that -- do you know Bill Reid?
A. Yes.
Q. Bill Reid in 1997 and 1998 was a managing director in Morgan Stanley's New York offices, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Reid work in the M & A group?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. Do you recall that Mr. Reid had a relationship with McAndrews and Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall discussing with Mr. Reid Sunbeam's interest in acquiring Coleman?
A. Not specifically, no. I may have, but I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall suggesting to Mr. Reid that Mr. Reid subsequent to the meeting that Mr. Perlman and Mr. Dunlap had attempted to restart discussions with McAndrews and Forbes?
A. No.
Q. Do you believe you did not do that?

Q. Mr. Strong, I'm going to show you what we're going to mark as CPH Exhibit No. 72. It is a two-page document bearing Bates label Morgan Stanley 64865 through 866 and it's entitled, Project Laser.

(WHEREUPON, certain documents were marked CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 72 and 73, for identification, as of 12/4/03.)

A. No.

Q. Do you recognize it as a document generated by Morgan Stanley?

A. I see the Bates stamp that says that it is.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. And the typeface also appears to be Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. The first page is entitled,Summary of Potential Acquirers.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And the second page is entitled, "Summary of Potential Acquisition Candidates," correct?

A. Yes.

Q. There is a handwritten note on the first page that reads, "Call 1/20 Tuesday afternoon, 2:30 p.m."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Does this document appear to be a list of potential acquirers and potential acquisition candidates that Morgan Stanley had in mind as of mid January 1998?

A. There's no way for me to know that.

Q. Do you see on the potential list of acquisition candidates, sir -- correct me if I'm wrong, but I don't see any reference to Coleman

A. Potential acquirers?

Q. No, the second page. Potential acquisition candidates. Sorry.

A. I don't see it either.

Q. Is it your recollection that as of mid January Coleman Company was not on Morgan Stanley's radar screen any longer as a potential acquisition candidate?

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. First, I don't know what the date of this document is.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Sorry.

A. That's the issue. Then, secondly, I do recall -- and I could be off a little bit on dates but I think it was January of '98 -- where there were discussions between -- at least reinitiating discussions between Sunbeam and Coleman.

Q. I am sorry to have interrupted. You're finished with your answer.

Independently of the document, sir, so set that aside for a moment, do you recall that in mid January Coleman Company was no longer being considered by Morgan Stanley as a potential viable acquisition candidate for Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Strong, let me show you what we're marking as CPH Exhibit No. 73. It is a two-page document bearing Bates No. CPH 586913 through 14. The second page of the document, sir, is entitled, "AJD itinerary, Wednesday, January 21 through Sunday, January 25, 1998." Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recognize AJD as Albert Dunlap's initials?

A. I believe those are his initials, yes.

Q. Direct your attention to the entry that appears under the heading Wednesday, January 21.

Do you see the initial entry, 12:30 p.m., Pick up at Palace?

A. That's one of them, yes.
Q. And under that entry the names Bob Kitts and Bill Strong appear. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall a meeting in Morgan Stanley's offices at 1285 Broadway with Mr. Dunlap in late January 1998?
MR. CLARE: I think you misread the document, 1585 Broadway.
MR. MARKOWSKI: 1585, sorry
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I recall that we had a meeting or meetings with Mr. Dunlap at 1585 Broadway. I don't recall the specific times.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Do you remember the purpose for meeting with Mr. Dunlap in mid-to late January of 1998 at those offices?

A. Again, first, I don't know if a meeting took place; and then, second, I don't recall anything about a meeting of a specific time in January.
Q. Do you recall that in a meeting at Morgan Stanley's offices in Manhattan a decision was made that Morgan Stanley would make an overture to sunbeam -- excuse me. Let me start over.
Do you recall that a meeting with Mr. Dunlap at Morgan Stanley's offices in Manhattan in mid-to late January 1998, a decision was made that Morgan Stanley would make an overture on Sunbeam's behalf to McAndrews and Forbes to attempt to reinitiate conversations about Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. No.
Q. You do recall, sir, that in late February 1998 Sunbeam signed an agreement to acquire Coleman Company?
A. Without getting hung up on the specific corporate names, I think it was late

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

February, yes.
Q. In connection with that transaction -- Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in arranging that transaction, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And under the terms of Sunbeam's engagement letter of Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley was paid a success fee for arranging that transaction, correct?
A. Again, as I have testified, I would disagree with your characterization we arranged it. We acted as financial advisor for Sunbeam in connection with that transaction, and I do recall that we were compensated subsequent to the consummation of that transaction.
Q. Morgan Stanley did whatever it needed to do to earn a fee under the terms of the September 1997 engagement letter as a result of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company, correct?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form and argumentative.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I would just say that, again, we acted as financial advisor to Sunbeam in connection with the transaction.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. And as a result of that you earned a fee under the terms of the September 1997 engagement letter as a result of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company, Sunbeam in fact did retain Morgan Stanley to assist it in retaining the necessary financing, correct?
A. No. You're never retained typically in connection with financing because you need to have underwriting agreements and similar documents signed. They did indicate that they did want us to lead that financing.
Q. And that's what you hoped would happen when Sunbeam first engaged Morgan Stanley pursuant to the terms of the September engagement letter, correct?
A. Well, if there were to be transactions that were to be compensated as the engagement letter provided if there was to be financing, we would help to provide that financing.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. That was another opportunity, as we've discussed, for Morgan Stanley to earn significant fees eventually, correct?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
Bill, were you done with your prior answer?
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Yes.
MR. CLARE: I apologize. I'll object to the form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I would only disagree with the fact that sometimes financings are money-makers for an investment bank like Morgan Stanley. Sometimes they are not.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. But your hope was that this would be another opportunity for Morgan Stanley to earn significant fees, correct?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. As I testified earlier, my hope was that if they were to pursue the financing, that we would do it and, of course, that it would be profitable for us.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Did you consider the fees that Morgan Stanley stood potentially to earn as a result of assisting Sunbeam in obtaining the necessary financing associated with the Coleman transaction to be significant?
A. I would say that every client is significant, but it was not material to the overall responsibilities that I had.
Q. So you did not consider the fees that Morgan Stanley would be paid -- potentially paid as a result of its financing activities for Sunbeam to be significant to Morgan Stanley or to you personally?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Well, as I think I have testified earlier today and just now, every client, every fee is important.
As a percent of the business I was responsible for, it was small but this was also a large transaction. So I'm not quite sure how that answers your question.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. I guess I don't understand the reference to it being small but a significant transaction. What do you mean?
A. Well, it's a big transaction, but in relation to the overall business, I was responsible for the small portion of that.
Q. And the fees that Morgan Stanley stood potentially to make with respect to assisting Sunbeam and obtaining the financing associated with the Coleman acquisition, in your mind, were an insignificant part of the overall business that you were responsible for?
A. I would say that they were -- insignificant is too strong. They were a small part.
Q. What percentage of the business that you were responsible for at that point in time did the financing fees potentially represent?
A. Well, when you say "financing fees," you mean the growth spread that we realized. I don't know exactly. But the total revenue I would have been responsible for at the time would have been -- and I'm guessing here -- I'm guessing here but 6 or $700,000 or something like that.

Q. In fees?
A. In the sum of fees, plus gross spreads received in connection with financings and related matters across all of the offices that I was responsible for.
Q. That would include the revenue being generated by all of the offices that you had responsibility for managing on behalf of Morgan Stanley back in 1997 and 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. In terms of your own personal business activity, what percentage of -- let me start over.
In terms of your own personal business activity, did the potential fees that Morgan Stanley stood to earn as a result of assisting Sunbeam in its financings activities related to the Coleman acquisition constitute a significant portion of the fee generation.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Let me start over.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did you consider yourself to in any way be responsible for the activities that Morgan Stanley engaged in to assist Sunbeam in obtaining financing for its acquisition of Coleman Company?

A. I was a member of the team; therefore, to that extent, yes.

Q. In terms of the projects that you were personally involved in working on, did the potential fees that Morgan Stanley stood to generate on the financing activity for Sunbeam represent a significant portion of the total fees being generated on those projects?

A. If I understand your question, it would certainly be material.

Q. Do you recall that Morgan Stanley provided Sunbeam with a highly confidential letter with respect to the financing?

A. My recollection is that we did provide some letter, yes. I could be wrong; but, yes,

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

that's what I recall.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Mr. Strong, I'll be showing you what we will be marking as CPH Exhibit No. 74. It's a three-page document bearing Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 80356 through 58 and it's a letter dated March 5, 1998, on Morgan Stanley stationery from R. Bram Smith to Sunbeam Corporation.

(WHEREUPON, a certain document was marked CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 73, for identification, as of 12/4/03.)

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Have you seen this document before, sir?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall that you did see a letter from Morgan Stanley to Sunbeam indicating that Morgan Stanley was highly confident in its ability to arrange the financing necessary to complete the Coleman acquisition?

A. As I previously testified, I believe there was a letter that could be characterized the way you did it as a highly confident letter. I don't recall seeing it. I don't recall seeing this specific letter that is Exhibit 74.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. The first paragraph of this letter indicates that it relates to the financing required in connection with the acquisition by Sunbeam of CLN Holdings, Inc., the Coleman Company, Signature Brands and First Alert; is that what it reads, sir?

A. That's what it reads, yes.

Q. And if you turn to the second page of the letter, the second full paragraph, reads, "Based upon a subject to the foregoing, we are pleased to confirm that we are highly confident that the proposed credit facilities could be syndicated in a general allowance indication to lenders." Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you recall, sir, that Morgan Stanley provided Sunbeam with a letter indicating that it was highly confident that it could arrange the necessary financing to complete the Coleman acquisition prior to completing due diligence?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. If I understand the question, I recall, as I previously testified, that we did provide a letter that somewhat characterized the highly confident letter. I don't recall seeing this letter or any other letter. And with respect to your question about prior due diligence, we have been doing due diligence throughout the process.

So I don't know what kind of win and through and including the transactions, so I'm not quite sure how to answer it beyond that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Does Morgan Stanley have an internal policy that highly confident letters relating to financings should not be provided until due diligence is substantially completed?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. What's the purpose of a highly confident letter in this context, sir?

A. In this context, from time to time, clients will want to have an informal non-binding opinion from a nationally recognized investment bank like Morgan Stanley that in our opinion the financing can be obtained so that they can be assured or at least provide some assurance that they're not wasting their time.

NOT CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Is it typical that that letter is sought after a definitive acquisition agreement is executed?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Is it typical that it's sought after? I would say because it's informal, there are examples on both sides because at times clients can change their mind about how they wish to finance a transaction. So I would say both ways.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did you have any involvement in the internal discussions at Morgan Stanley relating to the issuance of a highly confident letter to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall.

Q. In light of your position in connection with the Sunbeam M & A engagement, is that something you would have expected to have been involved in based on your experience?

A. Well, again, it is a hypothetical; but I would say it varies. Mr. Smith at the time was a senior member and I believe ran our loan process so he might not have discussed with me. On the other hand, he may have. I just don't recall.

Q. You don't have any recollection as you sit here of discussing Sunbeam with Mr. Smith before Mr. Smith signed a highly confident letter on behalf of Morgan Stanley?

A. That's not what I just testified to. I may have had conversations with Mr. Smith on other matters with respect to Sunbeam, but I just don't recall.

Q. Let me ask a stand-alone question at this point.

Do you recall as you sit here today any conversations that you had with Bram Smith relating to Sunbeam on any subject concerning Sunbeam before Mr. Smith signed a highly confident financing letter on behalf of Morgan Stanley?

A. I don't know.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Well, my question is can you recall it and your answer is I don't know?

A. I know that I had a conversation with Mr. Smith regarding Sunbeam. I don't know if they were before the line you drew or after or during. I just don't know.

Q. What conversations with Mr. Smith can you recall?

A. Nothing specifically but just in general with him being the senior person responsible for this. I just recall speaking with him about it but nothing specifically.

Q. Are you aware, sir, that in connection with its financing activities, Morgan Stanley conducted due diligence relating to Sunbeam Company?

A. Yes.

Q. And you're aware, sir, that as part of that due diligence activity, Morgan Stanley suggested that Arthur Andersen provide Morgan Stanley with a comfort letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Arthur Andersen in 1997 and 1998 acted as the outside auditing firm for Sunbeam Company, correct?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Yes, and I believe also previous to that. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that you read the comfort letter that Arthur Andersen provided to Morgan Stanley in connection with Morgan Stanley's financing due diligence?

A. I recall reading a comfort letter, yes.

Q. Do you know that, in fact, you read the Andersen comfort letter prior to the time a decision was made by Morgan Stanley to proceed with the Sunbeam financing?

A. I don't know.

Q. Let me show you, sir, what we've previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 17. CPH Exhibit No. 17 bears MS 375 through 381, and it's a letter dated March 19, 1998, on Arthur Andersen letterhead and is directed to Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc. This is the Arthur Andersen comfort letter that you read, correct?

A. I recall reading a comfort letter. I don't know if this is the one that I read.

Q. Do you recall that Morgan Stanley requested two comfort letters from Arthur Andersen, an initial comfort letter and a bring down comfort letter?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall that it was, in fact, the initial letter that you read?
A. I don't know whether it was the initial one or the bring down letter.
Q. You're uncertain whether you read the comfort letter before the financings closed?
A. Yes.
Q. Why would you read the comfort letter after the financings closed?
A. In general -- I would say in general to simply read the document.
Q. The comfort letter is an important part of due diligence, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Why is that?
A. It is providing comfort, as the phrase is, from the independent accounting experts with respect to certain facts. So it's an important part of due diligence.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. One of the things the comfort letter does is to provide information concerning the company's most current financial performance, correct?
A. Typically, yes.
Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company was scheduled to close before the end of Sunbeam's first quarter?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall that the financings were scheduled to close before the end of Sunbeam's first financial quarter of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. If the financings were scheduled to close before the end of the first quarter, does that indicate to you that the acquisition of Coleman Company would have closed prior to that as well?
A. Not necessarily, no.
Q. Who was responsible, sir, for reading the comfort letter provided to Morgan Stanley by Arthur Andersen in connection with Morgan Stanley's investment banking activities for

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Sunbeam?
A. There could be a variety of people who would have read it. There could be a Mr. Tyree. It could have been outside counsel. It could have been Ruth Porat and others.
Q. I take it that you didn't have that responsibility; is that correct?
A. It is not directly my responsibility, no.
Q. Would it surprise you if I told you that Ms. Porat has testified that she did not think it was her responsibility?
A. No. Ruth is a member of equity capital markets. I remember Mr. Tyree being a part of corporate finance execution. So Mr. Tyree would be the person primarily responsible if not singly responsible for reviewing this.
Q. So Mr. Tyree may have been the sole person within Morgan Stanley responsible for reading and evaluating the contents of Arthur Andersen's comfort letter?
A. I don't know that to be true, but it may be true.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Morgan Stanley doesn't have a policy that requires that in connection with transactions of this sort that comfort letters be examined by individuals at the managing director level?
A. No, not that I'm aware of.
Q. Do you recall that when you did read the Andersen comfort letter, that it disclosed to you that Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1998 was very poor?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I have no recollection of that at all.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you recall this specific piece of information?

A. I don't recall the individual paragraphs.

Q. My question isn't that.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. This is a paragraph.

Q. You don't recall any specific information contained in the letter, is that what you mean?

A. All I recall about the comfort letter -- and I'm not sure this is responsive to your question -- is that they had been received by us consistent with our policies of seeking comfort letters as you had suggested at the beginning.

Q. Is the comfort letter to be received and filed away or is it something to be carefully examined by Morgan Stanley upon its receipt?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. No.

Q. How many were there at this point in time?

A. You mean on the financing, on the M & A or other aspects? I am confused.

Q. On the overall project?

A. On the overall project, as I've testified earlier, there were somewhere between four and ten, I would guess.

Q. Managing directors?

A. Yes.

Q. And you don't recall any discussion among the managing directors of the information that you have just read in paragraph 6(C) in the Andersen March 19 comfort letter that Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998 were approximately 50 percent of Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1997?

Q. Do you have any opinion, as you sit here today, relating to the significance of the information contained in paragraph 6(C) relating to Sunbeam's net sales being half of its 1997 net sales in the first two months of the year?
A. I'm sorry. I'm not quite sure what you're trying to get at.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. As you sit here today -- I am focusing specifically on this piece of information, sir -- do you have any view relating to the significance of the fact that Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998 as reported by Arthur Andersen in this letter were approximately half of Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1997?
A. I think the entire letter is an important part of our due diligence. I would look at all of the paragraphs. I say "I" -- our team would look at all of the paragraphs and consider that to be a part of our due diligence.
Q. And this piece of information in your view is no more or no less important than anything else that's said in the letter?
A. Well, at the time of the letter we would consider all of this and take that into consideration as part of our due diligence.
Q. Now, do you recall when you read the March 19 -- strike that.
Do you recall that when you read Andersen's comfort letter relating to Sunbeam transactions that you were disturbed by any

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. As I previously testified, I believe I have read one of the comfort letters, and I don't recall today what my reactions were to any particular aspect.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. You don't have any general recollection that something in the Andersen comfort letter that you read troubled you?
A. No, not that I recall today. It may have, but not that I recall today.
Q. If it had troubled you, is that something that you think you would have remembered today?
A. If it had troubled me, would I remember it? I might.
Q. If in fact Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1998 in net sales was half of Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1997, sir, wouldn't that have called into serious question Mr. Dunlap's claims that he had turned Sunbeam around?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No, not at all.
Q. You think it is immaterial to that issue?
A. I wouldn't characterize it that way, but sales of companies of this type are volatile. Oftentimes sales are back-end loaded in any particular quarter. So it is just a fact.
Q. Do you know that Wall Street was expecting Sunbeam to accomplish substantially higher sales in the first quarter of 1998 than it had accomplished in the first quarter of 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you know that Wall Street was expecting Sunbeam to accomplish substantially higher profits in the first quarter of 1998 compared to its performance in the first quarter of 1997?
A. I think so, yes.

Q. Well, did it?
A. Again, I don't recall.
Q. Well, there was a point where you did learn that Sunbeam's sales in the first two months of 1998 were far below Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1997, whether it came from the comfort letter or some other source, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:
A. Yes.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. That is something you did know, correct?
A. At some point in time I became aware of that, yes.
Q. And you knew that prior to the time that the Coleman acquisition closed, correct?
A. Probably.
Q. Well, you knew it before the financing transactions closed, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And the Coleman transaction isn't going to close until the financing transaction is closed, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So, in fact, you knew before the Coleman Company transaction closed that Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998 were about half of what Sunbeam's net sales had been in the first two months of 1997, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the prior testimony.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I obviously recall having discussions with my colleagues the day prior to the closing of the financing about sales. I may have become aware of it at that point. May have.

Q. If Mr. Tyree received this letter, do you think this is something Mr. Tyree kept to himself?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I don't know.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I just want to put on the record that Mr. Clare during the break informed me that he is terminating the deposition today at 3:30 and taking a position that at that point the deposition is closed.

I have told him that that's unacceptable, that I cannot reasonably conclude my examination within that period of time; but that we will proceed as quickly and expeditiously as we can to cover as much as possible between now and that point in the day.

MR. CLARE: I'll briefly respond. During the break I informed counsel that we had previously been informed that Mr. Strong's testimony would not last a full day. We have had not imposed any limitations on the length of questioning; but we're told that Mr. Strong has a business commitment this afternoon, which was scheduled late in the afternoon.

And it was our intention in starting at 8:00 a.m. this morning to allow us to get as much testimony in as possible that would give you a full day of testimony or as close to a full day as possible beginning at 8:00 concluding at 3:30, especially given Mr. Strong's two days of prior testimony on Sunbeam related engagements. It's more than adequate for your purposes.

We informed you by letter prior to today's deposition that it was our intention to begin the deposition at 8:00 o'clock in order to complete it as early in the day as possible. There was no response received to that.

And it is our intention to go forward this afternoon until 3:30 at which point we will need to leave so that Mr. Strong can make his business commitment.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't want to belabor the record with a debate between you and I on this, Tom, because time is short at this point but I'm not aware of any commitment on our part to complete Mr. Strong's deposition today.

I will conduct the examination as expeditiously as I can. I have no objection to adjourning at 3:30 to complete Mr. Strong's deposition at a time that we can agree upon, but I'm not agreeing that Mr. Strong's deposition is concluded at 3:30 today.

MR. CLARE: Well, I would encourage you to conduct the examination, the remainder of it, in the manner that you described, expeditiously, and focusing on issues that have not previously been covered this morning or in Mr. Strong's prior testimony; and, with that, there should be no difficulty in completing the deposition not only today, but certainly by 3:30, the time that Mr. Strong needs to leave.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

So, with that, I suggest we move back to the questioning.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Strong, before we broke, I asked you whether as a sophisticated investment banker it would have caused you to at least question whether Sunbeam had managed its business in 1997 to maximize its results in that fiscal year at the expense of its results in 1998 if you were advised that Sunbeam's sales in the first two months of 1998 were approximately 50 percent of its sales in the first two months of 1997.

Do you recall that question?

A. Yes.

Q. And your answer to that question is what, sir?

A. The same as before, which was not necessarily.

Q. In fact, Mr. Strong, you were informed that Sunbeam had managed its affairs in order to maximize its performance in 1997 at the expense of its performance in the first quarter of 1998 and that was the reason for the significant decline in Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of that quarter, were you not?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Form. Argumentative.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't agree with the premise in your question at all and I disagree with the answer you provided.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Let me direct your attention to the Andersen comfort letter, again, CPH Exhibit 17, the page bearing Bates No. 378. I would like you to read to yourself paragraph 6(B).

Have you had a chance to read paragraph 6(B)?

A. Yes.

Q. Arthur Andersen in paragraph 6(B) specifically advised Morgan Stanley that the primary reason for the decline in Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998 was because Sunbeam had accelerated the sale of outdoor grills in the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1997; is that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. If you're trying to paraphrase the sentence, I can just read it here. It says, "Sales decreased as compared to the corresponding period of the preceding year primarily due to the company's new early buy program for outdoor grills which accelerated outdoor grill sales into the fourth quarter fiscal 1997." And it goes on a couple of other sentences.

Q. So Morgan Stanley knew that prior to the closing of the Coleman Company transaction, correct?

A. Morgan Stanley did, yes.

Q. And you were put on notice of it as well when you reviewed the Andersen comfort letter, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, I don't know specifically when

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

I read which of the letters. I know that we, as I've testified, had received this and factored this into our due diligence along with the unqualified opinion of Arthur Andersen on the financial statements.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you recall whether the comfort letter, the Andersen comfort letter, was the first information you had that Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1998 was far below its performance in 1997?

A. "Performance," you mean -- you're referring to net sales?

Q. Yes.

MR. CLARE: And I object to the form of the question.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I'm not certain. I don't recall.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. What other information did you have in the first quarter of 1998 that put you on notice that Sunbeam's performance in net sales was far below its performance in the comparable period in 1997?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Well, I don't know which corresponding period you are referring to; but --

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. If that's unclear, let me be clear.

A. Please.

Q. What was the information that you had prior to the close of the Coleman Company transaction that Sunbeam's net sales in the first quarter of 1998 were far below Sunbeam's net sales for the comparable period in the first quarter of 1997?

A. None. We had just the opposite. We had information to suggest that it would be materially above the first calendar quarter of 1997.

Q. Was there a point prior to the closing of the Coleman Company transaction where you learned that Sunbeam's actual net sales results in the first quarter of 1998 were below substantially its net sales results in the comparable time period in the first quarter of 1997?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. You're changing the question. You said comparable period. I don't know if you're talking about the quarter or the first two months or the first month. I don't understand what your question is.

Q. Whenever you learned the information in 1998 that indicated that Sunbeam's net sales were below its net sales for the comparable period in 1997, whatever that period was, whether it was the first month, whether it was the first two months, whether it was the first ten weeks, I want to know what information you had putting you on notice of that prior to the time the Coleman Company transaction closed?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Well, all I recall is that we were informed -- assured by management that their sales would meet -- for the first calendar quarter would meet street estimates. And those street estimates, if I understand your question, were above actual sales for the first calendar quarter of 1997 and I didn't receive information that they were not going to be at that level until they issued their press release saying that they were not, which I don't recall exactly. I think it was in April sometime.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. That wasn't my question.

My question was, was there a point in time before the Coleman Company transaction closed where you learned that Sunbeam's actual net sales results in the first quarter of 1998 were substantially below Sunbeam's actual net sales results for the comparable time period in the first quarter of 1997?

A. If I understand your question, I don't know.

Q. You may have been advised of this, but, as you sit here, your testimony is you can't recall it?

A. Correct.

Q. You were in regular contact with Mr. Dunlap, were you not, sir, during the first two months of 1998?

A. As I previously testified, I was in periodic contact with Mr. Dunlap throughout the project.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. And I believe you defined periodic to mean two or three times per week?

A. Yes, something in that range.

Q. And you were in contact with Mr. Kersh during the first two months of 1998 as well, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. At approximately the same frequency?

A. As I recall, yes.

Q. Did you inquire of them in connection with the conversations that you had with either of them how Sunbeam's actual sales results in the first weeks of 1998 were progressing?

A. All that I recall today is a conversation I had with Mr. Dunlap and others about whether or not they would make Wall Street estimates for net sales in the first quarter and they assured me that they would. And those numbers, as I recall, were above -- as I said earlier, the first calendar quarter of 1997.

Q. My question, sir, is whether you made any inquiry of Mr. Dunlap or of Mr. Kersh in which you asked them for information relating to Sunbeam's actual sales results in the first weeks of 1998?

A. I don't know.

Q. You may have asked that question, you just don't recall?

A. I may have asked that question. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall whether you personally received any information from Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh or anyone else at Sunbeam during the first weeks of 1998 relating to Sunbeam's actual net sales results?

A. Not that I recall today, no.

Q. Do you agree that Sunbeam's actual results in the first quarter of 1998 would be significant to the investment community in evaluating whether or not Mr. Dunlap's claims that he had turned Sunbeam around were true or whether they were false?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Calls for speculation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I mean, there would be a number of factors investors would consider. Certainly quarterly results would be one of them.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And if Sunbeam's results in the first quarter of 1998 were below Sunbeam's results in the first quarter of 1997, do you believe that that would have caused the financial community to question whether or not Mr. Dunlap had in fact turned Sunbeam around as he had claimed?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Hypothetical.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't know. It would just depend on a whole series of factors.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. But it might have that consequence, correct?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you think it's possible -- wouldn't it have even raised questions about the credibility of Mr. Dunlap's turnaround claims?

A. The reason I said I don't know is that it would depend upon the reasons that led to that on your hypothetical question. It just depends.

Q. What if one of the reasons that led to it was that Sunbeam had accelerated the sale of products into the last quarter of 1997 that otherwise would normally have occurred in the first quarter of 1998? What if that's the reason?

NOT CERTIFIED COPY

MR. CLARE: Same objection. Hypothetical.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, I don't know. I don't know how they would react. It would depend on a lot of factors.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. It wouldn't be a favorable piece of information in evaluating the truthfulness of Mr. Dunlap's claims that he had turned Sunbeam around in the manner in which he had claimed, correct?

A. I don't know that I can say that. Again, you're picking one factor out. Investors would look at a whole series of factors, progress with the company, profitability, things they might do in the future, other events in the marketplace. And those are just a handful. There's many others. I really don't know.

Q. Do you think one of those factors would be whether Mr. Dunlap had accomplished the 1997 results by tactics that resulted in Sunbeam stealing sales revenue from 1998?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and hypothetical.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I wouldn't agree obviously with your characterization. The financial statements for 1997 had been audited by Arthur Andersen and had issued an unqualified opinion on those, and I recall even specifically refer to some of the information you talk about in their 10K.

So the investors, I think, had knowledge of that. I think. I may be wrong.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. How -- you've now, sir, had a chance to look at the contents of Arthur Andersen's March 19 comfort letter, at least in a couple of respects.

How do the things that I have brought to your attention this afternoon relating to the comparison of Sunbeam's results in the first two months of 1998 and Andersen's conclusion that the reason for the shortfall is that Sunbeam had accelerated sales in the first quarter of 1997 at the expense of 1998 compare to what you were told by Sunbeam management during your conversations with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh in January and February about the company's performance in the first quarter of '98?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. How do they compare? I don't recall any differences at this point in time.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Dunlap kept you advised that Sunbeam had accelerated sales revenue into the fourth quarter of 1998 by taking sales that would have otherwise occurred in the first quarter of 1998 and recognizing those sales in the first quarter of 1997?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap tell you during his conversations in January and February with you that his net sales were far below the net sales Sunbeam had accomplished in the first two months of 1998? Let me rephrase that.

Is it your testimony that Mr. Dunlap told you during your conversations with him in January and February of 1998 that Sunbeam's net sales were running far below Sunbeam's net sales for January and February of 1997?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Not that I recall.

Q. You don't recall Mr. Dunlap telling you that?

A. No.

MR. MARKOWSKI: We will take our break now.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the video record at 12:40 p.m.

(Whereupon a short break was taken.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're going back on the video record at 1:17 p.m.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Strong, Sunbeam issued a press release in late March relating to its first quarter sales. Do you recall that?

A. Yes. I recall around March 19, I think.

Q. Your memory is good on that.

Let me show you what we have previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 14. This bears Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 16944. And the title of the document is "Sunbeam

Take a moment to look at Exhibit 14, if you would, sir.

MR. CLARE: My copy only has one page. The prior Exhibit 14 had two pages.

MR. O'CONNOR: They didn't copy the second page. I've got to run and make four copies of it.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Let's go off the record a minute.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're going back on the video record at 1:20 p.m.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Mr. Strong, I think we corrected the glitch with the exhibit. CPH Exhibit 14 is a two-page document bearing Bates stamp No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 16944 through 45.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Have you seen this document before,

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

sir?

A. I have seen a copy of this before, yes.

Q. This is the press release that Sunbeam issued on March 19 concerning its first quarter sales?

A. It appears to be, yes.

Q. Did you see this press release prior to it being publicly released?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Is it your best recollection that in fact you did not see it before it was publicly released?

A. I don't recall. I may have, but I don't recall.

Q. Are you aware that Morgan Stanley did see this document in draft form before there was a public press release by Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall that either.

Q. You're unaware that Ms. Porat commented on the draft press release?

A. I recall that we were -- that the draft in general was discussed with us or informed or informed us of its contents, but I don't recall specifically who it would have been with.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. So you do have an understanding that Morgan Stanley was involved in the preparation of the ultimate press release; is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the prior testimony.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. No. That's not what I said.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Your understanding is that Morgan Stanley was involved in discussions with Sunbeam concerning the content of the press release before the press release was publicly disseminated; is that correct?

A. No. I would simply say that we were -- I don't know if it was via counsel or how it happened, but I know that we had some discussions with someone about the content or they would have been informing us of the content.

Q. Do you know Ms. Porat made suggestions relating to the content of the press release?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you know that Mr. Tyree was also involved in reviewing the draft press release?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I don't recall today.

Q. Did you make a request of anyone working on the Morgan Stanley/Sunbeam team that they review the press release in advance of it being released by Sunbeam?

A. I recall certainly having a conversation. Of course, we had suggested a release be put out and I recall discussing with, I believe, Ruth Porat in general what we felt ought to be said to investors.

Q. And did you request that Ms. Porat confirm that the press release was in a form satisfactory to Morgan Stanley before it was publicly released?

A. No, I don't recall that.

Q. Did you request that Ms. Porat inform herself of the contents of the press release before it was publicly disclosed?

A. I may have. Since we had suggested the release be put out, I may have. I just don't recall today.

Q. Can you recall requesting that anyone else on behalf of Morgan Stanley review Sunbeam's proposed press release before it was publicly released?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Not that I recall today.

Q. Did you request Morgan Stanley's outside counsel to review the press release before Sunbeam publicly disseminated it?

MR. CLARE: I object and instruct the witness not to answer the question to the extent any discussions with Morgan Stanley's counsel were in discussions where third parties were not present.

Mr. Strong, if you understand my limitation on your ability to answer, I'm instructing you -- you can answer Mr. Markowski's question, if you're able -- to limit yourself to any setting if such a conversation took place where there were individuals present that were not from either Morgan Stanley or its counsel.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. No, I don't recall who would have been present on the couple of calls I had.

I do know that I had some conversations with counsel. I don't recall if those were or were not on the telephone at the time.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Can you recall giving instruction to anyone that the press release be reviewed by Morgan Stanley's lawyers before it was publicly disseminated?

MR. CLARE: I'm giving the same objection and same limitation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Not that I recall today.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. What did you tell Ms. Porat the press release should include?

A. Well, I would respond to that narrow question, when we became aware -- and I believe it was Ms. Porat became aware of the possibility that the first quarter estimate for net sales might not be reached, we further investigated that; and even though the client felt assured very strongly that it would meet the estimates, we felt that a press release should go out stating that they might not -- what's here might not make first quarter street estimates for sales.

But more specific than that, I really can't be.

Q. Do you recall telling Ms. Porat that you wanted to be assured that Sunbeam's press release stated that Sunbeam might not achieve street estimates for first quarter sales?

A. Something like that. It was something that we felt an appropriate thing to do.

Q. Do you recall telling her that the press release should say anything other than that?

A. No, because it's obviously Sunbeam's press release. They'll decide whether it should be issued and, if so, what it will include.

But as I've previously testified, we felt it was appropriate that something be said.

Q. But as far as you can recall the only thing you told Ms. Porat you wanted to make sure the press release said was that Sunbeam might not achieve street estimates for first quarter sales?

A. As it says here, that for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street estimates in 285 to 295.

Q. That's the only thing you recall telling Ms. Porat you wanted to be sure that the press release said, correct?

A. Well, you say "sure the press release said."

Just, in general, that was the area that we were concerned about and felt something should be said. The exact content and wording of the press release is really the responsibility of Sunbeam and whether or not it should be issued at all.

Q. I'm just trying to understand what you said to Ms. Porat.

Did you tell Ms. Porat that the press release should say anything other than, in substance, Sunbeam might not achieve Wall Street expectations for first quarter net sales?

A. Not that I recall. I may have, but not that I recall today.

Q. Did you tell Ms. Porat that the press release should include a statement of Sunbeam's actual sales in the first quarter to date?

A. As I testified, I can't recall anything else.

Q. Did you tell Ms. Porat that the press release should contain a statement of the reasons Arthur Andersen had given for the reasons why first quarter sales were so far below 1997 results?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Not that I recall.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did you tell Ms. Porat that the press release should address Sunbeam's earning expectations for the first quarter?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Mr. Strong, is there anything in the press release, CPH Exhibit 14, that would put a reader of the press release on notice that Sunbeam's sales for January and February of 1998 were approximately half of Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and calls for speculation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Yeah, I would say it's hard for me to answer the question. I don't know how investors would interpret this, how they would think sales earlier in the quarter would be or what they would not be. I just don't know how to answer that.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Well, you're a sophisticated investment banker, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Looking at this document, does this document, in your view, put you on notice that Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1998 were approximately 50 percent of Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. It might.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. What words in this press release tell you that Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998 are half of the results that Sunbeam had accomplished in the first two months of 1997?

A. You're changing the question a bit. I am going to say that the statement in here that says that sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than a range of Wall Street estimates of 285 to 295 could lead investors to conclude a variety of things about sales thus far in that quarter; but it would be hard for me -- it would be speculation as to what they think or not think.

Q. You agree with me that the words are not actually in the press release, correct, that Sunbeam's net sales in January and February had fallen 50 percent below Sunbeam's net sales in January and February of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Waste of time.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. The press release speaks for itself.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. That's a good objection. That's not a good answer.

Do you agree with me those words aren't there?

MR. CLARE: Objection and move to strike counsel's characterization of the answer.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't see them in here.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. You agree that the press release indicates that it is still possible that Sunbeam might achieve sales of 285 to $295 million on a net basis in the first quarter?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Yes, because it says may be lower.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Strong, the press release doesn't address Sunbeam's earnings expectations for the first quarter, does it?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. No.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Why is that?

A. You have to ask Sunbeam.

Q. Well, Arthur Andersen had provided information to Morgan Stanley relating to Sunbeam's earnings in the first weeks of 1997 that showed that Sunbeam's earnings had fallen well below its earnings for the comparable year of 1997.

Did you address that fact with Sunbeam management at any point?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Also assumes facts not in evidence.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't know.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. I am sorry. Your answer is...?
A. I don't know.
Q. You mean you don't recall?
A. I also don't recall.
Q. Did the subject of whether Sunbeam would meet earnings expectations for the first quarter of 1998 come up at any point during your discussions with Sunbeam management?
A. Not that I recall today.
Q. Isn't that a significant piece of information?
A. Earnings of a company are important, yes.
Q. Did you ever inquire of Sunbeam at any point prior to the closing of the Coleman Company transaction whether Sunbeam expected to meet street expectations for earnings per share in the first quarter?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I may have.
Q. Do you recall what you were told?
A. I don't recall if I did. Therefore, I don't recall what the response was. The only thing the company basically said was that they would meet the street estimates for sales for the first quarter. I do recall that.
Q. But you don't recall being assured that the company would meet street expectations for earnings?
A. No. They could have been exceeded. They could have been met. They could have been less. I don't specifically recall.
Q. Do you agree that Morgan Stanley had an obligation to inquire into Sunbeam's earnings expectations for the first quarter?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the extent you're asking for a legal conclusion. I object to the form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. It is the responsibility of the management of a client, in this case, Sunbeam, to disclose what they feel should be disclosed, their responsibility for this press release, financial statements, other documents. We simply conduct due diligence and that's it.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Did Morgan Stanley conduct due diligence into whether Sunbeam would achieve Wall Street expectations for first quarter 1998 earnings?
A. We may have. What I recall is that we conducted all of the due diligence that we felt was appropriate in the circumstances.
Q. Do you believe, Mr. Strong, that Morgan Stanley had a responsibility to evaluate the reasonableness of the statements contained in the March 19 press release?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. We have no responsibility for that. It is the company's press release. If we thought something was wrong, we would certainly bring that to someone's attention; but it's their responsibility, their press release.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. As far as you're concerned, Morgan Stanley had no affirmative duty to make an inquiry into whether the statements contained in CPH Exhibit 14 were reasonable?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered. Calls for legal conclusion.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Again, they have the responsibility for the press release whether or not it's even issued, their responsibility and their responsibility alone for its accuracy.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. And Morgan Stanley has no responsibility in that regard?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. Again, as I've previously testified, if we felt something was wrong, we would certainly bring it to their attention.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Did you agree with me, sir, that Morgan Stanley had a responsibility to evaluate whether the March 19 press release omitted material facts that made the press release misleading?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.

BY THE WITNESS:
A. Again, as I have said several times, the press release is the responsibility in this case of Sunbeam. And whether or not it's to be issued at all and what its content is, they have sole responsibility for its content. Every company does, obviously.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Do you agree with me, sir, that if Morgan Stanley was aware of facts that were known to Morgan Stanley that showed the statements made in the press release were misleading, that Morgan Stanley had a responsibility to address that with Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. The knowledge we had was that they were going to make -- the client was absolutely insisting upon the fact that they would make street estimates for sales for the first quarter as they had stated. That's the information that we had.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Other than speaking with Sunbeam

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG
management on that subject, do you know what else, if anything, Morgan Stanley did to evaluate the truthfulness of Sunbeam's claim that it expected to meet street estimates of $285 to $295 million of net sales in the first quarter of 1998?
A. We obviously had the benefit of all of the due diligence we had done, the 10K that had been filed, the unqualified opinion on the financials. When you say "management," I'm not sure exactly who you're referring to; but we discussed with additional people down the chain of command at Sunbeam sales estimates for the first quarter.
Q. But what I'm trying to focus on is this, sir: Other than a conversation with Sunbeam personnel, do you know what, if anything, Morgan Stanley did to determine whether or not the March 19 press release was a reasonable statement of Sunbeam's expectations for the first quarter of 1998?
A. Again, we don't have an obligation to do that. It is their press release. They are responsible for the content.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG
Q. I am just trying to understand factually, sir, what Morgan Stanley did. I don't want to get into a debate with you about who was responsible for doing what. I just want to understand what you know on this subject.
And my question is, other than having conversation with Sunbeam personnel, do you know what, if anything, Morgan Stanley did to evaluate the reasonableness of the statements contained in CPH Exhibit No. 14?
A. I guess I'll try to answer it this way. We had no information when taken in totality to suggest this wasn't appropriate.
As I said earlier, if we felt something was inaccurate, we would have brought it to someone's attention.
Q. Do you know whether Morgan Stanley did anything other than have a conversation with Sunbeam personnel to inform itself of the facts relevant to the reasonableness and accuracy of the statements contained in CPH Exhibit No. 14?
A. Well, as I think I've previously testified, we obviously relied upon and reviewed and took into consideration the other publicly available information from Sunbeam as well as all of the other information they had provided to us.

So it wasn't just conversations. They would provide us with additional documents and information.
Q. What documents did Morgan Stanley receive from Sunbeam bearing upon Sunbeam's sales expectations for the first quarter of 1998?
A. I recall -- I don't recall when I saw this; but I know that there was a page that built up sales for the quarter which was discussed and attested to by managers at Sunbeam. I don't recall when I saw that, though.
Q. Mr. Strong, let me show you what we have marked previously as CPH Exhibit No. 16. It's a one-page document bearing Bates No. Morgan Stanley confidential 28858.
This is -- is this the document that you were just referring to?
A. I don't recognize any of the handwriting on this page. So I don't think it is the same document, no.
Q. Do you recall a different document being received from Morgan Stanley from Sunbeam relating to Sunbeam's first quarter sales?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't recall. Again, I don't recall when I saw this; but I recall seeing a page that had just like this sales built up for the quarter that corroborated there what management had indicated sales would be for the first quarter. I just don't recall any of this handwriting or any of that.

So I don't know if this was the page or not the page.

Q. Let's set aside the handwriting. I don't want to confuse things with the handwriting.

Putting aside the handwriting, do you believe that this is the document that you were referring to earlier that Morgan Stanley received from Sunbeam management concerning first quarter sales?

A. It may be. I don't know for sure.

Q. Ms. Porat has testified in other proceedings that this is the document that she received from Sunbeam the day before the press release was issued.

Is the document that you have in mind the document that Ms. Porat received from Sunbeam management the day before the press release was issued?

A. Yes.

Q. So if Ms. Porat has identified this as being that document, is this the document that you believe you saw?

A. Again, I don't know. It may be.

Q. I'm just trying to figure out whether there is something other than the document that Ms. Porat received from Sunbeam management that you have in mind?

A. You have to ask her. I don't know.

Q. No, I'm asking you.

A. I don't know.

Q. Is there something other than the document that Ms. Porat received from Sunbeam management, whether it is this document or something else, that you recall receiving from Sunbeam management relating to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales?

A. I don't recall receiving any document other than a document I believe Ruth Porat received.

Q. Other than this piece of paper or the piece of paper that Ms. Porat received on March 18, do you know if Morgan Stanley requested any other documentation from Sunbeam relating to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales results or its sales expectations?

A. We may have. I just don't know.

Q. Did you direct any of Morgan Stanley personnel on the Sunbeam team to obtain additional documentation relating to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales results or expectations?

A. If this is responsive, what I did upon hearing, I believe from Ms. Porat, that there was some concern about this was to investigate it fully, to drill down to it, get the information we needed to as part of our due diligence to provide us with support that the street estimates would be met for the first quarter or not.

I don't recall giving any specific direction about what to look at or who to talk to, but just find out.

Q. Did you tell Ms. Porat you wanted to see documentation from Sunbeam?

A. I may have. I don't recall.

Q. Did you tell anyone in the Morgan Stanley team that it would be appropriate or necessary for Morgan Stanley to contact any Sunbeam customers to verify Sunbeam's statements relating to its first quarter 1998 sales expectations?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. What would have happened if on March 19, Mr. Strong, Sunbeam had issued a release saying that it had no reasonable expectation of meeting 1998 first quarter sales expectations?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Hypothetical. Calls for speculation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. What would have happened? I don't know what you mean. To who? What? Where? I don't know how to answer that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you think it would have had an effect on Sunbeam's stock price?

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And the effect would have been negative, correct?

A. Yes. Assuming there is no other information to the contrary and the markets otherwise are the same and all of those other thousands of variables constant, yes.

Q. It's a piece of bad news for the stock price, correct?

A. Well, again, if that's the only fact that's put out there, if you're not meeting estimates, that's not good news.

Q. If Sunbeam had reported that it expected to incur a loss in the first quarter of 1998, what would the effect have been on Sunbeam's stock price?

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, it's hard to kind of speculate on that because I would have to know what all of the other facts are, why it happened and it's hard to say.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. It's not a good piece of information,

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

is it?

A. Well, again, it depends on why it happened. If there were a fire and we had a plant burn down but we're going to have a huge insurance settlement, maybe it's good news. It's hard to say. It's hard to say.

The point is that they assured us that the sales were going to be met for the quarter and that's the information we had.

Q. Sunbeam -- strike that.

You spoke to Mr. Dunlap concerning the issuance of the March 19 press release, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You spoke to him at some point during the evening of March 18?

A. Yes.

Q. Where were you at?

A. I was in San Francisco.

Q. Where in San Francisco were you when you spoke to Mr. Dunlap that evening?

A. I was in the San Francisco Airport.

Q. Had you made special arrangements to be able to have a private conversation with Mr. Dunlap while at the airport?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No.

Q. Where were you physically at the airport when you had your conversation with him?

A. I was just at a telephone.

Q. A public telephone?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it in a private room?

A. I don't think so, although I don't recall.

Q. How long did the conversation last?

A. First, just so the record is clear, you talked about a private conversation. It was not a private conversation in the sense that there were other participants on the call.

How long did the call last? I don't know exactly. I would say it was probably less than an hour.

Q. Do you think it was something approximating an hour?

A. I don't know. Probably less than an hour.

Q. In estimating the length of the call, can you give me a minimum range?

A. No. I mean, it's hard to say.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Was it at least 15 minutes?

A. Probably. Probably more than 15 minutes. We had a number of people on the call.

Q. Do you recall who was on it?

A. I don't recall everyone, of course, but Mr. Dunlap, of course, was on. I believe Ms. Porat was on. I recall that outside counsel to Sunbeam was on. Skadden Arps. Beyond that, I'm not sure.

Q. Do you recall who specifically from Skadden was on the call?

A. I believe it was Blaine Fogg.

Q. Do you recall if Mr. Kersh was on the call?

A. Not specifically, no, but he probably was.

Q. Tell me everything you can recall about that telephone call.

A. Well, just in general, I informed Mr. Dunlap that based upon the fact that someone had approached us at the New York road show event raising concern about whether or not street estimates for the first quarter net sales would be met; that we had done additional work; and while that work continued to corroborate that they would meet street estimates, we, nonetheless, felt that it was the appropriate thing to do that the company issue a press release talking about first quarter sales.

011746

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Mr. Dunlap strongly disagreed, felt that the press release was unnecessary.

Q. Do you recall anything else being said by anyone?

A. Mr. Dunlap also made the comment that, you know, it is impossible to predict what sales will be exactly; and, therefore, why are we putting out a press release when I can't predict what the sales will be; but I have no reason to believe they are not going to be consistent with what we already told you or words to that effect.

Q. Do you remember anything else?

A. Other than he was very upset that we were insisting upon this.

Q. How do you know he was upset?

A. Raising his voice. He was very disappointed, angry.

Q. Did he use any profane language?

A. I don't recall specifically.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Did he say he was unhappy with you, personally?

A. I don't recall. He may have.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap at any point in the conversation say that he guaranteed that Sunbeam would achieve Wall Street expectations for first quarter sales?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall anyone of Sunbeam saying they can guarantee that Sunbeam would meet street expectations for first quarter sales?

A. No, no one would say that.

Q. Did you ask Mr. Dunlap what the company's expectations were with regard to first quarter earnings?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Why were you only addressing sales and not earnings?

A. It really came from the approach we received at the New York road show of someone I believe from the company suggesting that there was a concern about first quarter sales and that led us to investigate that.

So it was then -- so hopefully being alert during the due diligence process that led us to, in a sense, cynically look at additional information during the day of which I guess was the 18th.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Sales and earnings can be related, correct?

A. Sales and earnings can be related? Yes.

Q. If the company misses its sales number, it creates a greater possibility the company will also miss street expectations for earnings, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Hypothetical.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. It's possible.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. It increases the likelihood of it, doesn't it?

A. It's possible.

Q. But in the course of your discussions leading up to the press release, you don't recall making an inquiry about where the company stood with respect to its earnings expectations?

A. Not that I recall, no.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. If you didn't make that inquiry of Sunbeam, did you make that inquiry of any Morgan Stanley personnel?

A. I don't know. I may have. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall anything else about the telephone call with Mr. Dunlap relating to the press release?

A. Other than in substance the conclusion was that Mr. Dunlap agreed as a CEO of Sunbeam to have the company issue a press release.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap tell you why he was unhappy about the prospect of issuing a press release?

A. Yes, I believe so, because I think I previously testified he felt that street estimates would be met; but he also said that he can't predict sales and why was he being forced to put out a press release like this.

Q. But why would he be unhappy about it?

A. Well, as I testified, I think because he just felt it was inappropriate. And I think further by putting out a press release -- and I'm speculating now -- but I would speculate that by putting out a press release, it would cause the stock price to go down.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Do you think Mr. Dunlap was unhappy with the possibility of a press release because the stock market would view this as a negative development?

MR. CLARE: Objection.

Calls for speculation. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't know, other than to say a CEO's job is to maximize shareholder value. So I'm sure it's something he would be concerned about; but he didn't specifically say, that I recall today.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. He didn't say what the harmful consequences would be to Sunbeam if the press release was issued?

A. No, sir, not that I recall.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Dunlap during the course of the call when he made it clear that he opposed the issuance of a press release that another option to Sunbeam would be to delay the pending transactions until the first quarter results were in?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Did that occur to you as an option?

A. It may have, but not that I recall today.

Q. Do you recall any discussion with Sunbeam at any point prior to the closing of the Coleman Company transaction about the possibility of delaying the closing because of the uncertainty with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?

A. Not that I recall, again, because Sunbeam management felt very strongly, including sales management, that the sales numbers would be met, that is the estimates -- the street estimates that were out there for the first quarter of 1998. So I don't believe so.

Q. Do you agree with me that another option available to Sunbeam at this time if Mr. Dunlap didn't want to make a public announcement would be -- that would have been satisfactory to Morgan Stanley would have been to delay the closing of the financing transactions until the first quarter results were known?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, satisfactory. It's really their decision to proceed or not to proceed with the financing, to issue the press release or not issue it.

So if they had chosen to delay it, that's their decision.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. I understand you would have taken the position with Mr. Dunlap, sir, that it was Morgan Stanley's view that the appropriate action to take was to issue the March 19 press release; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. My question is --

A. Except I would say the press release to comment on this issue about sales. The actual content and wording of the press release was really their responsibility.

Q. But you are recommending as the advisor to Sunbeam that on behalf of Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam issue a press release on

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

March 19, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And my question to you is whether or not in lieu of a press release once it became clear to you that Mr. Dunlap had a strong objection to the issuance of a press release, would it have been satisfactory if Sunbeam had delayed the closing of the pending transactions until the first quarter results were known?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Satisfactory to whom?

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. In lieu of the press release -- well, you had an opinion about the issuance of the press release, correct, sir?

A. Yes, as I've testified.

Q. And I'm asking whether your opinion about the need for issuing the press release or the desirability of issuing the press release would have changed if Sunbeam had delayed the closing of the pending first quarter transactions until the first quarter results were known?

A. I think because as underwriter in the middle of a transaction, even though it was Rule 144(A) as you have stated, we felt a press release on this topic should be put out.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

If there was no financing at all to do and there was no transaction taking place, companies rarely in the middle of a quarter for no particular reason announce whether or not they are going to make sales or not.

So I don't know if that answers your question or not.

Q. Well, if the financings had been deferred until the end of the first quarter, the press release in your view would not have been necessary; is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the prior testimony.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, if there was no transaction to do, we would not have been insisting upon a press release. Again, it's their decision whether they put it out or don't put it out or whether they delay the financing or not.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did you raise with anyone at any point, Mr. Strong, the question whether additional information should be provided to Coleman Parent related to Sunbeam's first quarter performance before that transaction closed?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No. It's really responsive to Coleman to seek whatever information they want. So it is unlikely I would have said anything like at that.

Q. Do you recall that topic ever coming up in discussion that you were a party to?

A. No.

Q. You were in the airport in San Francisco that evening because you were traveling to Boston; is that correct?

A. Well, I was in San Francisco not to travel to Boston -- I'm from Chicago -- I was in San Francisco for another business reason.

Q. You were in the airport that evening because you were going to be traveling that night to Boston, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Why were you in San Francisco? Did it relate to Sunbeam?

A. No, as I just testified, it was another business matter.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. So that evening you were in the airport preparing to travel to Boston where you were going to be involved in activities relating to Sunbeam, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What was scheduled the next day in Boston?

A. It was what we typically would refer to as the road show where you visit prospective investors who would purchase securities and I tried to attend at least one day of each of my clients' road shows.

Q. And this was the last day of the Sunbeam convertible debenture road show?

A. Yes. I believe it's only two or three days, yes. Boston was scheduled to be the last day.

Q. When did you first see the Sunbeam management team after you arrived in Boston?

A. I can't recall if they picked me up at my hotel or I met them at the first investor. I just don't recall.

Q. You didn't see them the evening of the 18th, I take it?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No.

Q. The earliest you would have seen them is sometime the morning of the 19th?

A. Yes, it was an overnight flight. It didn't land until about 6:00 a.m. or 5:00 a.m.

Q. At what point do you recall first seeing them?

A. As I said, I don't recall specifically if they picked me up at the hotel or whether I met them at the first investor.

Q. Had the press release been issued at that point, do you know?

A. Yes.

Q. So there had been a news announcement of the substance of CPH Exhibit 14 by the time you saw the Sunbeam people that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall before the first meeting with investors that day speaking with either Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Kersh or Mr. Fannin about including within the presentation that was being made that day some discussion of the press release?

A. No.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Is it your testimony that you did not do that?

A. I don't recall doing it, plus it was a public document so...

Q. So your testimony, sir, is that you think you did not advise Mr. Kersh to include within his presentation some discussion of the March 19 press release?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. No, that is not my testimony. I just don't recall.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Strong, I'm going to show you what we're marking as CPH Exhibit No. 75. It's a document that bears Morgan Stanley's name on the first page and Bates No. SB 18203 through 288.

(WHEREUPON, a certain document was marked CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 75, for identification, as of 12/4/03.)

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Putting aside, Mr. Strong, some of the handwritten notation on this document, do you recall seeing this previously?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. I'm going to direct your attention to the page that's Bates No. 18225.

I would like you to read the handwritten portion at the bottom of the page that starts with "Our sales at retail value are strong."

Have you had a chance to examine that?

A. As best I can, yes.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Kersh during the course of his presentations to investors during the course of the road show in Boston on March 18 making a statement in substance of the sort set forth in these handwritten notes at the bottom of page 18?

A. Not that I recall today.

Q. You recall, in fact, that Mr. Kersh did address the investors?

A. Not that I recall today.

Q. Is it your recollection that that topic did not come up?

A. I just don't know if it did or didn't.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Were you present with the Sunbeam team during each of the presentations that day to investors?

A. I believe so, yes, at least for a portion of each one.

Q. If Mr. Kersh made a statement relating to the press release, you would have heard it, correct?

A. If he made it and made it while I was in the room, then, yes, I would have heard it.

Q. I guess that was my foundational question. I was trying to understand whether you were present that day for the entirety of the presentations that were made to potential investors by the Sunbeam management team.

A. I was present, as I recall, substantially for all. I may have been present for all. I just don't recall if I stepped out to make a phone call or something like that.

Q. Do you agree with me that the handwritten notes at the bottom of page 18225 attempt to minimize the significance of the press release?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Argumentative.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I mean, I barely can read them. I don't know.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam management attempted during the course of the day on March 19 to minimize the significance of the press release?

A. Not that I recall today, no.

Q. Did you get any inquiries from potential investors relating to the Sunbeam press release?

A. No, not that I recall.

Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley did?

A. I don't have have knowledge of it now if I did. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall Sunbeam management advising potential investors during the course of the day on March 19 that a reason why Sunbeam might fail to meet street expectations for net sales in the first quarter was that Sunbeam had accelerated sales from the first quarter into the fourth quarter of 1997?

A. I don't recall that, no.
Q. At the end of the day on March 19, you participated in a conference call relating to the pricing of the zero coupon convertible debentures that were being underwritten by Morgan Stanley to assist in the financing of the Coleman Company acquisition; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Where were you when that call took place?
A. I was in our Boston office.
Q. Do you recall at what time of the day that occurred?
A. It was at the end of the afternoon. I don't recall the specific time.
Q. But it was still afternoon?
A. Your definition of afternoon is...?
Q. Prior to 6:00, I would say?
A. Probably.
Q. Were you alone or was someone else present with you in the Boston office on the telephone call?
A. I recall that the Sunbeam management team was present and there were others, obviously, on the phone from Morgan Stanley in New York.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. So Mr. Dunlap joined you in Morgan Stanley's offices?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Kersh?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Do you remember anyone else from Sunbeam management being with you in the Boston office for purposes of the pricing call?
A. I recall Mr. Fannin, I believe. I'm not certain about that. There may have been other Morgan Stanley professionals in the room as well.
Q. Do you remember someone being there?
A. No, sir.
Q. It was a telephone call; is that correct?
A. Well, there were people on the phone from New York and then we were there in person in Boston.
Q. Who was on the phone in New York?
A. I don't recall specifically.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Do you recall if Ms. Porat was on the phone?
A. Not specifically, no. She probably was, but I don't recall.
Q. Was anyone on the phone other than the Sunbeam management personnel present with you other than additional Morgan Stanley personnel in New York?
A. I can't think of anyone today.
Q. Tell me what you can recall about that telephone call.
A. Just in general, what I recall is my colleagues in New York informing Sunbeam management that even with the press release having been issued that morning that the transaction was substantially oversubscribed and that if they wished, they could increase the size of the transaction.
Q. Was that a new piece of information for you?
A. I think it was at the time.
Q. What else do you recall?
A. I recall that we could have done a transaction even larger than what Mr. Dunlap ultimately concluded to do. I recall that we had a demand, if memory serves me correctly, that could have satisfied a transaction of proceeds raised of, approximately, $1 billion if they wanted to at essentially the same pricing. That's what I recall.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. What else do you recall?
A. I recall in general that Mr. Dunlap continued to be quite upset about the issuance of the press release because at that point the stock had traded down during the day and therefore effectively the cost at which the financing would be issued would be higher and more favorable for investors, less favorable for Sunbeam.
Q. Was that qualified for him in any way?
A. Well, only qualified in the sense that he would know and knew where his stock had closed the day before, that is on the 18th, and where it closed on the 19th. So he certainly was aware of that.
Q. But in terms of the increase in the cost of the financing to Sunbeam, was that difference in the transaction quantified for him?
A. It may have been. It probably was.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Do you remember what the difference was?

A. It would only be in the sense that the conversion ratio would be more favorable to investors because by definition the Sunbeam stock had fallen. So I'm sure there was some discussion of that, as I recall today.

Q. What else do you recall being said in that phone call?

A. Well, in the meeting ultimately he concluded, if memory serves, that he would seek to increase the size of the transaction for what originally had been planned to be around $500 million, not to go all the way to the billion as he could have.

But I recall he did something around $750 million.

Q. That's the amount of money that would be raised; is that correct?

A. Approximately, correct.

Q. What else do you recall?

A. I believe that's it.

Q. Did you make any recommendation to Mr. Dunlap with respect to the advisability of increasing the amount of financing rates through the convertible debenture offering?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Not that I recall; that I recall, no.

Q. Did he ask your views?

A. I don't recall him asking me anything during the meeting.

Q. Did you have a view?

A. I may have had a view.

Q. Do you remember what it was?

A. No.

Q. Was this the first occasion in which you had participated in a discussion about increasing the size of the debenture offering to an amount above $500 million?

A. Probably, but I'm not certain.

Q. But Morgan Stanley made no recommendation, as far as you can recall, whether Sunbeam should or should not do that; is that correct?

A. That's what I recall. Typically, we provide the client with the range of options and then they decide.

Q. They don't look to -- strike that.

Sunbeam didn't look to Morgan Stanley

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

for its recommendation on that subject?

A. We will provide advice about overall financing structure; but in a situation like this, it's more the client's call.

Q. Do you recall also, sir, that in addition to changing the size of the debenture offering, that the schedule for the debenture offering had been changed as well?

A. I do not recall that.

Q. Do you recall that originally the debenture offering wasn't scheduled to close until later in March and that the closing date was moved forward?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Do you recall that the closing date for the debenture offering was accelerated so Sunbeam could close the Coleman Company transaction before the end of Sunbeam's first quarter?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't recall that at all.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you recall a discussion that if

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Sunbeam closed -- could close the Coleman transaction before the end of its quarter, it could count Coleman Company sales towards its net sales results for the first quarter in an effort to meet street expectations?

A. That statement is false.

Q. You don't remember that being said?

A. Because it would never be true because Generally Accepted Accounting Principles would not permit that.

Q. Do you know, sir, that in fact Sunbeam claimed as part of its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 Coleman Company sales that took place on March 29 and March 30?

A. Oh, yes.

MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Well, whatever it closed, the point I was making is that Generally Accepted Accounting Principles pursuant to APB 16 you'd only allow -- you could only include the financial results from the date of the consummation of the acquisition.

I thought you were referring to the beginning of the quarter. This was accounted for as a purchase, not a pooling.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Does that refresh your recollection or that clarification that there was discussion that if Sunbeam could accelerate the closing of the debenture offering and thereby accelerate the closing of the Coleman Company transaction, that Sunbeam would be able to realize some additional first quarter sales that Coleman Company generated in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I have no recollection of that at all.
Q. You are aware that that's what happened?
A. I don't specifically recall the date that the Coleman transaction closed, no.
Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam extended its first quarter from a March 28 end to a March 31 end?
MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't have any knowledge of that. I don't recall.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. You didn't participate in any discussion with Sunbeam about Sunbeam changing the end of its first quarter so it could realize additional first quarter sales?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No.
Q. Mr. Strong, what was your first involvement in the events leading up to the press release on March 19?
A. I recall receiving a call, I believe, from Ruth Porat sometime on the 18th where she informed me -- I believe it was her -- that we had learned at the New York road show luncheon that someone had approached us and suggested there might be an issue or concern about sales for the first calendar quarter.
Q. Where were you?
A. I was in San Francisco.
Q. Do you recall specifically where you were at at that moment?
A. No.
Q. Ms. Porat called you?
A. Yes. That is to say she probably tried to reach me. I was out of the office. I probably found out she called and I probably called her back.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Is that your recollection of how it happened?
A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. Why did Ms. Porat call you with that news?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't know other than we were working together as a team on this assignment. She probably wanted me to be aware of it. And should there be -- needed to be any communication, particularly where we were insisting on something like a press release, I would be the one to have that conversation.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Why was that?
A. Because I would do what we felt was correct and Mr. Dunlap would accept it as our -- you know, he would take it at face value. That's my speculation.
Q. As opposed to Mr. Kitts having that conversation with Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Stynes?
A. Yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Why was that the case? Was it because you had a more senior position within Morgan Stanley?
A. That's probably part of it. I also had had, as I previously testified, some contact with Mr. Dunlap in the past. That would be another reason why.
Q. Did Ms. Porat contact you because in terms of decision-making at Morgan Stanley with respect to what was necessary, you would be the person responsible for making that ultimate decision?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't know specifically why she did as I testified; but it would certainly be -- I would have the expectation something like this, that she would contact me so that we could all discuss it as a team.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. In your view, would you have been the person on the Morgan Stanley/Sunbeam team responsible ultimately for making the decision with respect to matters such as the issuance of the March 19 press release?

A. Not necessarily, but I would say that if I felt it needed to be put out, then I would stand very firmly behind that.

Q. Were you in a position to overrule Mr. Kitts or Mr. Stynes with respect to matters of that sort?

A. Well, overrule is probably not the right word. Again, we would do it collegially and discuss it as a team but it would be speculation -- but I would speculate that they would defer to me. And I felt strongly that a press release on this topic should go out.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Kitts or Mr. Stynes with respect to that?

A. Not that I recall. I believe Mr. Stynes was at the New York road show luncheon, but I don't recall if I spoke with him on this topic or not or on any topic that day. I just don't recall.

Q. How long did your initial conversation with Ms. Porat take?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall if she told you specifically who she spoke with at the New York road show that day?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall if she told you whether they had provided her with any information relating to Sunbeam's results in January and February, any specific numbers?

A. Not that I recall in that first call, no.

Q. Was there anyone on that initial call other than you and Ms. Porat?

A. Not that I recall, but there may have been.

Q. Do you recall what time of day it was when you got that call?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall if it was morning?

A. New York time?

Q. Well, you're in San Francisco. Let's work with your time out there.

A. The information came from a lunch in New York. So if we assume that the lunch was around noon, then it can be anywhere from 9:00 o'clock San Francisco time to maybe noon San Francisco time.

Q. Is it your recollection that Ms. Porat called you quickly after the luncheon meeting adjourned?

A. That's my recollection, yes.

Q. Is it your recollection that you spoke with Ms. Porat shortly after the New York luncheon ended?

A. I don't recall specifically, but it was fairly quickly.

Q. Did Ms. Porat indicate that she was concerned about the information she had received?

A. My recollection is that, yes, this information had been received and she felt it was something we should promptly investigate and I concurred with her.

Q. Did she say that this troubled her? Did she use those words or words in substance to that effect?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did she say, this is inconsistent with what Sunbeam had led us to believe?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did you think it was inconsistent with what you had been led to believe by Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh?

A. Well, to that point in time, we had no evidence to the contrary. Quite the contrary. But having received this, we felt we had a professional obligation to really investigate it fully and that's what we did.

Q. I'm just trying to understand.

Once you heard this information from Ms. Porat, it caused you to conclude that Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Kersh had not been candid with you in the numerous conversations you had had with them in January and February?

A. No.

Q. So there was nothing about what Ms. Porat told you in this conversation that caused you to call into question the candor of Mr. Dunlap?

A. No.

Q. Or the candor of Mr. Kersh?

A. No.

Q. If, in fact, as the Arthur Andersen comfort letter indicates, Mr. Strong, Sunbeam's sales in January and February of 1998 were so far below Sunbeam's sales in the first two months of 1997, would you have expected Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Kersh to communicate that information to you at some point so you could take it into account in connection with the activities you were engaged in?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Possibly, but I just don't recall. What they did continually do, including in the call we previously discussed, is continue to -- in a very forceful way continue to provide assurance that they have every expectation that street estimates for the quarter would be met, but that they can't predict future events.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. But if the sales in January were -- excuse me for just a minute.

Do you have CPH Exhibit No. 17, Mr. Strong? It's the March 19 letter.

A. Yes.

Q. Let me direct your attention to page MS 377, paragraph 5(B). Take a moment to review the contents of paragraph 5(B).

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Have you done that?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the table. There is a table that has the heading "The Period."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. In the left-hand column in the table describes Sunbeam's results in the first month of 1997, correct?

A. In the first month, yes, that's approximately right.

Q. And the right-hand column is intended to describe Sunbeam's results in the comparable period of 1998, correct?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. And it indicates that Sunbeam's net sales in the first month of 1997 were $72,945,000, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And Sunbeam's net sales in the first month of 1998 are reported here to be $28,984,000, correct?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Yes.

Q. Substantially less than 50 percent of the net sales that Sunbeam had accomplished in the first month of 1997, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I would say that the 29 million is less than half of the 72.9 million.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And it indicates that Sunbeam had a profit of $4,786,000 in the first month of 1997, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. It's a waste of time reading the document line by line.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Yes.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. And a loss of $9,510,000 in the first month of 1998, correct?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Yes.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. If something like this was happening

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

at Sunbeam in the first month of 1998, given your relationship with Mr. Dunlap, would you have expected either Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Kersh to reach out to you and inform you of those facts?

MR CLARE: Asked and answered.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Not necessarily.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Why is that?

A. The only thing I would say is that my recollection is they continued to believe that sales would be met for the first fiscal quarter as compared to street estimates. And there was no evidence when taking everything in totality -- they insisted they would make that and so we accepted what management had said to us.

Q. Is this information that you would have liked to have received from Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh prior to March 18 or March 19?

MR CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Well, we would rely upon management's statements to us and the information that they provided to us, you know, in total. And they had responsibility for the financing statements, the press releases, et cetera.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

So I'm not quite sure how to answer it beyond that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. My question simply is whether this is information that you as the senior person at Morgan Stanley working on the Sunbeam engagement would have wanted to have received in an earlier point in time than Morgan Stanley received it?

A. I think we relied upon, you know, all information we received. Would I want to receive this particular piece versus other pieces? You know, all information is useful.

Q. I'm simply asking whether you would have wanted to have had it sooner?

A. Sooner? Again, I don't know if we did or didn't have it. I don't know that we didn't have it sooner. I just don't recall.

Q. Do you remember anything else about this initial telephone call with Ms. Porat?

A. No. I may have already testified earlier that the call I know concluded with her undertaking to conduct the necessary work throughout the day and then we would reach a conclusion about what to do next.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Did you tell Ms. Porat what you expected her to do?

A. No. As I have testified, I just wanted to get -- we felt we had to investigate this fully and in detail and that's what she committed to do.

Q. Did you communicate the substance of your conversation with Ms. Porat to anyone else at that point?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. You don't recall informing any of the other members of the Sunbeam -- Morgan Stanley/Sunbeam team about what his Porat had told you?

A. Can we go off the record a second.

MR. CLARE: Yes.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the video record at 2:31 p.m.

(WHEREUPON, discussion was had off the record.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going back on the video record at 2:36 p.m.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: During the break Mr. Strong raised the possibility of getting into an area of attorney-client privilege.

Mr. Strong, in answering Mr. Markowski's questions, I instruct you not to reveal the substance of any conversations that you may have had, if you had any, with attorneys representing Morgan Stanley unless there were others that were part of those communications that were not either at the law film or were not lawyers representing Morgan Stanley that were third parties present.

So answer Mr. Markowski's questions as best you're able subject to that instruction.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I recall having a conversation with counsel to Morgan Stanley at some point during the day. And I may have had -- and I recall that I did; but I can't be certain that I had had a conversation, too, with counsel to Sunbeam, outside counsel, Finn Fogg, Blaine Fogg.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. The conversation that you recall having with counsel of Morgan Stanley, was that

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

with in-house counsel or outside counsel?

A. That, as I recall, was with outside counsel.

Q. Davis Polk?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Do you recall who at David Polk you spoke with?

A. I believe it would have been Allen Dean, probably.

Q. Now, the question I put to you, sir, that got us to this conversation was whether after you spoke with Ms. Porat you called anyone else to talk with them about the information that you had received from Ms. Porat.

Is it your testimony that upon the conclusion of your conversation with Ms. Porat you called Allen Dean at David Polk or someone else at David Polk?

A. My testimony is that I recall having a conversation with outside counsel and, as I believe, although I'm not certain, also outside counsel with Sunbeam; but I don't know if it was immediately following my call with Ruth, but it was at some point during the day.

Q. The conversation with David Polk, was that a conversation that you initiated?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember if anyone other than you and attorneys from Davis Polk were participating in that telephone call?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Your recollection is that it was only you and Davis Polk attorneys on the phone?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And you were seeking legal advice from them concerning the conversation you had had with Ms. Porat?
MR. CLARE: That's a yes or no answer.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. No.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Were you seeking legal advice from them on some other topic?
A. No.
Q. Tell me about your conversation with the lawyers at Davis Polk then?
MR. CLARE: Object, and I will instruct the witness not to answer the question.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't think Mr. Strong has laid a foundation for the assertion of the privilege. He's indicated that he was not engaged in seeking legal advice from Davis Polk in connection with the telephone call that he recalls.
MR. CLARE: I understand your position and my instruction remains. I'm instructing the witness not to answer the question.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. What was the purpose of your conversation with the Davis Polk attorneys, Mr. Strong?
MR. CLARE: You can answer that, but I will instruct you not to reveal the substance of any of the conversation. What was your purpose was the question.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. To provide Mr. Dean with information.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. How long did that conversation take?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall that that conversation took place before you again spoke with Ms. Porat that day?

A. I don't know. I don't recall.
Q. Can you place it in sequence in relationship to any other activities you had that day?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall where you were when you had the conversation with Mr. Dean?
A. I recall being at the San Francisco airport.
Q. If you have already told me this, I apologize; but where were you physically when Ms. Porat and you initially spoke that day?
A. I don't recall if I was at the airport or earlier in the day. I don't recall. I probably was not at the airport, but I don't remember.
Q. Were you in San Francisco for a client meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall whether your initial conversation with Ms. Porat took place while you were -- were you meeting at the client's offices?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Let me ask that question.
A. I don't recall. I don't know if it was their offices or ours.
Q. And you don't recall whether your initial conversation with Ms. Porat took place while you were still engaged in those client meetings that day?
MR. CLARE: Asked and answered.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I don't specifically recall.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Do you recall what time your flight was that day from San Francisco to Boston?
A. I don't recall the exact time, but it would have been around probably 9:00 or 10:00 o'clock San Francisco time.
Q. Does that suggest to you, sir, that your conversation with Mr. Dean occurred prior to the time you went to the airport that day?
A. Not necessarily.
Q. Do you recall -- your conversation with Mr. Dunlap took place while you were at the airport; is that correct?
A. Yes.

Q. Did that conversation with Mr. Dean take place before or after your conversation with Mr. Dunlap?
A. I'm not certain.
Q. It's possible that you spoke with Mr. Dean again after you concluded your conversation with Mr. Dunlap?
A. It's possible. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall how much time there was between the conclusion of your conversation with Mr. Dunlap and your flight?
A. No.
Q. Let me go back to my original question.

After you spoke with Ms. Porat and putting aside the conversation with Mr. Dean, do you recall before you again spoke with Ms. Porat that day that you communicated with anyone concerning the information that Ms. Porat had provided to you?
A. Not that I recall today, no.
Q. When is the next event that you can recall on March 18 leading into -- in the sequence of events leading to the March 19 press release that you were involved in?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Starting when?
Q. Well, you had your initial call with Ms. Porat that day that starts the chain of events, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. What is the next event in the sequence of events that you can recall in the chain of events leading to the March 19 press release?
A. I recall having another conversation, and it may have been conversations, plural, with Ms. Porat prior to the call with Mr. Dunlap.

I don't know exactly when they took place or whether it was a single conversation or more than one.
Q. Other than communication -- additional communication with Ms. Porat that day, do you recall any other activities you were engaged in relating to this subject prior to your conversation with Mr. Dunlap?
A. Not other than what I previously testified to, no.
Q. And the other thing you previously testified to is the conversation with Mr. Dean and the conversation with outside counsel for Sunbeam?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. If I had it with outside counsel of Sunbeam, yes.
Q. Tell me what you can recall about your further conversations with Ms. Porat.
A. I recall almost the conclusions, not so much the substance, of the call where she informed me of the work that had been done during the day, importantly the fact that management of Sunbeam -- sales management of Sunbeam had strongly reaffirmed their belief that sales estimates for the first calendar quarter consistent with street estimates would be met.

But I also recall that she and I felt that because we had been approached with this information that we concluded and that I concluded that we would need to inform the client that we would want them to issue a press release indicating, you know, our concern about this topic or, you know, something like that.
Q. Did Ms. Porat provide you any detail relating to the information that she received from Sunbeam management?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. She may have. I just recall sort of the conclusions of the work she had done and her describing what had been done in general basically of a buildup of the sales and that she had had other conversations with Sunbeam management where they reaffirmed their expectation of making the sales estimates.
Q. Did you ask Ms. Porat to send it to you so you could personally review it, the buildup of sales that she had received from Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you recall whether there was anyone else from Morgan Stanley involved in the telephone conversations between you and Ms. Porat?
A. There may have been, but I don't recall.
Q. Ms. Porat is the only person whose name stands out for you in connection with those conversations?
A. From Morgan Stanley, yes.
Q. When do you recall first having a conversation with someone other than Morgan

Stanley personnel?
A. Again, I don't recall specifically when I spoke with Mr. Dean or if I spoke with Mr. Fogg. So the next conversation could have been with Mr. Dunlap, but I just don't know.
Q. Do you recall personally participating in the conference call with Mr. Uzi where Mr. Uzi made a presentation to Morgan Stanley relating to Sunbeam's first quarter results and expectations?
A. Not that I recall today, no.
Q. Do you know who Mr. Uzi is?
A. Yes.
Q. What's your recollection of who he is -- was?
A. My recollection is that he was a senior sales executive.
Q. If Ms. Porat has testified that you were a party to the conference call where Mr. Uzi made his presentation, would you dispute her on that?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I just don't recall.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Do you think she's wrong?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. I just don't recall.

Q. So I take it, Mr. Strong, that you don't deny that you may have personally heard Mr. Uzi's presentation?
A. I may have. I just don't remember. She may be right. She may be wrong. I just don't recall.
Q. Did you consult with anyone other than Ms. Porat with respect to the question whether a press release should be issued?
A. Not that I recall today beyond what I have already testified.
Q. Did you and Ms. Porat discuss any options other than the issuance of a press release?
A. Option? Not that I recall.
Q. Do you remember participating in a conference call that day, sir, where representatives from Sunbeam, Skadden Aarps,

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Davis Polk and Morgan Stanley received a presentation from Sunbeam management relating to Sunbeam's sales expectations for the balance of the first quarter on a customer-by-customer basis?
A. Not today I don't recall, no.
Q. At any point during the course of your conversations on March 18, Mr. Strong, was there any discussion concerning whether any of the statements that Morgan Stanley had made to Coleman Company or McAndrews and Forbes relating to Sunbeam might be inaccurate?
A. I don't recall any conversation like that.
Q. Did Ms. Porat personally have due diligence responsibilities in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?
MR. CLARE: Asked and answered.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. I would say, again, as a firm we conduct due diligence and, you know, various team members contribute to that.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Do you recall that in your previous testimony you indicated that Ms. Porat had lead responsibility with respect to the debenture offering due diligence?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. She was a managing director in the equity capital markets group, so it played a very important role.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Is it fair to say that she had lead responsibility with respect to debenture offering due diligence?
A. From the equity capital markets perspective, yes.
Q. Who else -- what other groups -- let's start with other groups within Morgan Stanley -- had responsibility for due diligence in connection with the debenture offering?
A. Well, we had people from corporate finance. I would suspect we had people from some of our fixed income areas. We obviously had Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts who had spent time.
We had the corporate finance execution department. We had had representatives of our lending department do due diligence as well and I'm sure many others, too, who in one form or another would have added to the due diligence record.

Q. Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts were involved in due diligence with respect to the debenture offering?

A. Yes.

Q. What responsibility did they have?

A. Well, they would have gathered information because they had been responsible for the -- primarily responsible for execution on the M & A side and it would have been information that they gathered from that process which was used in our various commitment memoranda and other documents.

And, again, every team member -- and I think Mr. Stynes was at the road show in New York if I recall correctly, so that's another place where he could have participated and learned more. So various places.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley make an effort to record and memorialize the information that it received in connection with due diligence on the debenture offering or any other aspect of the Sunbeam engagement?

MR. CLARE: Objection, form, foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. We would, you know, follow whatever policies we were supposed to follow.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you remember whether Morgan Stanley created a formal record of its due diligence activities and results that it had received?

A. I'm not sure what you mean by "a formal record."

Q. Let me ask a different question.

Was an effort made at Morgan Stanley to preserve the substance of the information that Morgan Stanley received in connection with its due diligence activities concerning Sunbeam?

A. Well, I have no reason to believe we did not follow our usual and customary document retention policies in connection with an assignment of this type. That's how I would answer. I don't know if that's a formal record or not.

Q. I didn't ask about a formal record this time. Bear with me.

Do you know whether an effort was made to preserve the results of information that Morgan Stanley received in connection with its due diligence activities concerning Sunbeam?

A. Well, I do know just from looking at the documents that you have shown me that we have produced documents that we obtained during our due diligence function, the comfort letters you referred to and others. So I think the answer must be, yes.

Q. Did you generate any documents in connection with -- let me ask a foundational question.

Did you consider any of the activities you engaged in in connection with the Sunbeam assignment to be due diligence activities?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you record the information that you received in connection with that activity in some way?

A. Not specifically, no, that I recall.

Q. Did you make an effort in some way to preserve the information that you received for future reference?

A. No. What I would typically do and what I recall doing here is that as we learned things throughout an assignment like this, to the extent that I thought information was useful or important, I would share it with my colleagues orally.

Q. You made no effort to document the information that you received in connection with your personal due diligence activities so as to preserve it?

A. I may have, but I don't recall today.

Q. Would it be your practice, sir, generally if you're personally involved in due diligence activities to make an effort to record the information that you received so that it's preserved for future reference?

A. Well, typically I'll just receive a document or something from a client, and I would review that. Occasionally, I have written memoranda on particular points. I don't recall if I did here or not.

Q. Did you take any notes of your conversations with Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Kersh?

Q. What happened to the -- did you have at various points in time documents in your possession relating to work Morgan Stanley was doing for Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you do with those documents at the end of Morgan Stanley's work on the transactions that were pending in March of 1998?
A. End of our work for transactions pending. So you're saying sometime during March?
Q. Well, let me make sure I'm clear.
Morgan Stanley acted as Sunbeam's investment banker in connection with three acquisitions that closed in March of 1998, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. The acquisition of Coleman Company, the acquisition of Signature Brands and the acquisition of First Alert, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And Sunbeam was also engaged in financing activities associated with those three acquisitions, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. Those transactions were consummated in March of 1998, correct?
A. I don't recall the specific date.
Q. Upon the consummation of those activities, what did you do with the documents that you had in your possession relating to the Sunbeam projects?
A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. Do you recall discarding any documents?
A. I don't know. I may have threw out the assignment.
Q. Do you recall there was a point where your activities in the projects had concluded or the transactions had closed or you gathered together documents that you had in your possession and discarded some or all of them?
A. Probably, but I don't recall. I know that you can check in the file. Whatever I had, I produced.
Q. In connection with the press release that Sunbeam issued on March 19, Mr. Strong, did you instruct Ms. Porat to confirm with Arthur Andersen, Arthur Andersen's belief that the press release was accurate?

A. No, not that I recall.
Q. Did you instruct Ms. Porat in connection with following up on the information that she had received at the New York road show that precipitated the events leading to the press release to discuss the information she had received with Arthur Andersen?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did that occur to you as something that should have been done?
A. Not that I recall today.
Q. As you sit here today, do you think given the nature of the information that Sunbeam had provided to Ms. Porat, that Morgan Stanley as part of its due diligence activities should have contacted Arthur Andersen to discuss the issue with Arthur Andersen?

Q. At any point, sir, did you inquire of Arthur Andersen's views concerning whether it was realistic to expect that Sunbeam could achieve Wall Street expectations for first quarter sales?
A. I don't recall that and that would be unlikely.
Q. Why would that have been unlikely, sir?
A. My speculation would be unlikely because it's not their job. They're just accountants. They just report on facts. It's not their job to make projections or speculations about what clients might or might not do. That's really the obligation of the client itself.
But I don't specifically recall to answer your question.
Q. It's your view that Arthur Andersen would not have had any meaningful information to offer concerning whether it was realistic to expect Sunbeam to accomplish sufficient sales in the remaining days of the first quarter of 1998 to reach street expectations?

A. We would rely upon what management reports to us. They -- it's their responsibility. They're operating the business. Arthur Andersen are just accountants. They're not operators. It would be speculative for them to sort of suggest what might or might not have happened. As with comfort letters, they report on historical facts. They don't provide projections.

So it would have been, frankly, unprofessional of them to even try to do it.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. So the answer to my question is, yes, you don't think they would have had any meaningful information to offer on that subject?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Not if it's projections and they would have declined to provide it anyway, probably. Again, that's speculation on my part.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. In fact, Arthur Andersen did advise Morgan Stanley that it thought the statements contained in the March 19 press release were unrealistic, isn't that the case?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: Objection. Foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I have no knowledge of that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Tyree did not inform you that Larry Bornstein at Arthur Andersen advised him on the evening of March 19 while they were both together at Global Financial Press that the Sunbeam press release was completely unrealistic?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Not that I recall, no.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you recall, sir, how far short of street expectations Sunbeam's net sales were as of March 18?

A. I'm not quite sure how to answer that. It's a complicated question because sales don't come in readily every day. They tend to be very much back-end loaded in industries of this type, so I don't know how I could make that comparison.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. I'm just asking numerically.

Do you know how far short of street expectations and net sales Sunbeam was as of March 18, 1998?

A. I have answered the question. It depends on when the sales were expected by the street and there's no way to know that.

Do they expect them to come in at the last week of the quarter, a big chunk in the last week, a big section in the last week? There's no way to be able to compare what you said short of intra-quarter to date. There's no way to know.

Q. Let me ask the question this way.

You recall that Sunbeam's -- the expectation that Wall Street had was that Sunbeam would achieve 285 to $295 million in net sales in the first quarter of 1998?

A. I think that's my recollection, yes.

Q. And do you recall what Sunbeam's net sales were -- actual net sales were as of March 18, 1998?

A. Not as I sit here today, no.

Q. You don't recall how many millions of dollars short of 285 to $295 million Sunbeam was as of the time of your conversations with Ms. Porat and Mr. Dunlap on March 18?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. Not as I sit here today, no, I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall that it was something in excess of $100 million?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Not even on an order of magnitude?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall doing an analysis yourself of the volume of daily sales activities Sunbeam would have to accomplish in the remaining days of March 1998 in order to achieve Wall Street expectations for net sales for the quarter?

A. Counsel, this would have been when?

Q. March 18 when you're having these conversations leading to the press release, did you personally attempt to do any evaluation of the amount of sales activity that Sunbeam would have to have on an average basis in the remaining days of the month in order to achieve Wall Street expectations of $285 to $295 million?

A. As I recall, I relied upon the work

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011762

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

that Ms. Porat and others had done, which as I have testified, they shared with me in summary fashion.

Q. Did Ms. Porat tell you on a daily average basis what sales Sunbeam would have to accomplish in order to reach street expectations?

A. She may have, but I don't recall.

Q. Did she tell you what sales Sunbeam would have to achieve in the first quarter of 1998 to exceed its net sales results for the first quarter of 1997?

A. She may have, but I don't recall.

Q. Do you remember asking her to make that inquiry and do that analysis?

A. I may have, but I don't recall today.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We have about one minute on this tape.

MR. MARKOWSKI: We can stop now.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the video record at the end of tape 3 at 3:06 p.m.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you deny, Mr. Strong, that you were informed that Arthur Andersen strongly objected to the statements contained in Sunbeam's March 19 press release?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Form. Foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I have no knowledge of that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. I'm asking if you deny whether that occurred?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't recall being told that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. So is it your testimony, sir, that you can't recall one way or the other whether you were informed that Arthur Andersen strongly objected to the statements contained in Sunbeam's March 19 press release?

A. I don't recall if they did.

Q. Do you deny that you were informed that Arthur Andersen objected strongly to including the substance of the March 19 press release in the offering memorandum for the convertible debentures?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't recall being told that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. My question is whether you deny that that's what you were told?

MR. CLARE: Same objection. Asked and answered as well.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't recall being told that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. So you don't deny it?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Argumentative.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't recall being told that and I'll say I do not recall at all speaking with Arthur Andersen at any time on this project.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you know who suggested that the substance of the March 19 press release be included in the offering memorandum for the convertible debentures?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. No.

Q. Did you make that suggestion to anyone?

A. Not that I recall. I may have, but I don't recall.

Q. Mr. Strong, I'm going to show you what we're marking as CPH Exhibit No. 76. It is a document on Morgan Stanley stationery bearing Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 25829 through 25886.

Putting aside for a moment, Mr. Strong, the handwriting on the document, do you recall seeing this document previously?

A. Not specifically but I probably did.

Q. The first page of the document is a March 19 memorandum from R.B. Smith to the leverage finance commitment committee, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The second page is a memorandum dated March 20, 1998, to the leverage finance committee as well, correct?

A. You say "as well." One was the leverage finance commitment committee. The other is leverage finance committee.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Thank you for that clarification.
Are those two different committees?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Do you know what the proper name is?
A. Either one.
Q. And the March 20 memorandum shows that it's from a number of different people to the leverage to finance committee, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Including you; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. In fact, your name is the first name listed, correct?
A. Well, I'm in the left hand column if that's what you mean. I don't know what you mean by "first."
Q. Does your position on this document, the position of your name on this document have any significance, sir?
A. No.
Q. Were you involved in the preparation or review of this document before it was presented to the leverage finance committee?

A. I don't recall being involved in its preparation. I may have reviewed a draft, but I don't recall today.
Q. Did you participate -- turn your attention back to the first page.
The first page of the document indicates that there will be a leverage finance commitment committee meeting regarding Sunbeam on March 20 at 7:30 a.m., correct?
A. Yes.
Q. In Conference Room 20, which I assume would be in Morgan Stanley's New York offices; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you participate in that meeting?
A. I don't recall participating in this meeting.
Q. Do you recall participating by telephone in the leverage finance committee meeting on March 20?
A. No. I may have, but I don't recall.
Q. Is there some reason that you can recall that would make it unlikely that you participated in the meeting?

A. Other than just in general, I sometimes will attend these. Sometimes I will not. There is a large team involved here. I just don't recall.
Q. You don't recall being otherwise involved in some activity that prevented your participation?
A. No, I don't recall one way or the other.
Q. You will see that there is some handwriting on the first page?
A. Yes.
Q. There is a -- do you recognize the handwriting?
A. No.
Q. Have you been asked before today whether or not you could identify the handwriting on this page, sir?
A. I don't recall.
Q. There's some additional handwriting on the second page of the document.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you recognize that handwriting?

A. No.
Q. What about the handwriting on the third page?
A. No.
Q. Can you identify that handwriting?
A. No.
Q. Does it refresh your recollection, Mr. Strong, that you participated in the management -- the leverage finance commitment meeting on March 20 by reviewing the handwritten notes on the first page of the document?
Do you see the reference to Don Uzi, VP Sales. Do you see that?
A. Yes. The answer to your question is, no, it does not refresh my recollection.
Q. Do you see the references to 285 to $295 million?
A. Yeah. I'm not sure those are dollars, but it says 285 - 295. I see that, but it does not refresh my recollection.
Q. You're right. I'm putting my own gloss on it. It does say 285 to 295, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you recall that 285 to $295 million was the expectation that Sunbeam had for first quarter sales?

A. Yes.

Q. Does this suggest to you that those numbers relate to that subject?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know whether the leverage finance commitment meeting received a briefing in connection with its evaluation of the financing commitment being requested of it on the presentation that Mr. Uzi made on March 18 concerning Sunbeam's first quarter sales situation?

A. Again, I don't recall if I was on it, so I can't answer if I have first-hand knowledge of that or not. But I would say that we were sharing information among the entire team, as you see here, from the entire engagement team.

So the answer is possibly but I don't know. I'm not sure if I was on this call or not.

Q. It wouldn't surprise you, sir, that the leverage finance committee meeting received a briefing on the substance of Mr. Uzi's presentation on March 18 before it made a decision on the financing commitment?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I mean, to speculate, would it surprise me? It would not surprise me, no

MR. CLARE: Bob, I just want to point out it's now 3:15. We're going to need to get Mr. Strong out of here, as I previously indicated, in 15 minutes so for your planning purposes.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Well, my position is that the deposition can be adjourned at 3:30; but it will not be concluded at 3:30.

MR. CLARE: Well, we put our positions on record. I don't want to waste any more of your time by debating it; but I just want to make you aware that Mr. Strong will need to leave promptly at 3:30.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Do you recall, Mr. Strong, that in connection with an evaluation of the financing commitment that was before the finance committee at the March 20 meeting the possibility of deferring the financing until Sunbeam's first quarter closed was raised?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I don't recall that, no.

Q. Do you recall whether there were reservations expressed by anyone at Morgan Stanley concerning proceeding with the transactions that were then pending on the scheduled dates as a result of the information that Morgan Stanley had received concerning Sunbeam's first quarter sales situation?

A. No, quite the contrary. All of the indications that we had received, particularly the call you asked me about on March 18, the company was continuing to strongly assert that they would make their sales estimates for the quarter. So we had no information to the contrary.

Q. So no one at Morgan Stanley had, to your knowledge, expressed any reservations about proceeding with the closing of the pending acquisitions and the financings?

A. No, not to my knowledge.

Q. Now, after March 19th, sir, did you instruct the individuals at Morgan Stanley involved in Morgan Stanley's continuing due diligence to focus special attention on Sunbeam's sales performance in the final days of the quarter?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. As I recall, the time of the 19 we priced the transaction until the financing closes, you know, we continue our due diligence and have so-called bring down due diligence. And I recall that we did focus on that during that time frame.

Yes, if that's your question. I'm not sure if it is or not.

Q. The debenture offering closed on March 25, sir.

Do you recall giving instruction to the individuals involved in performing due diligence between March 19 and March 25 to pay special attention to Sunbeam's sales during that period of time?

A. I know that we did. I can't recall if I specifically asked anyone to do that.

Q. What do you know about any inquiry that Morgan Stanley made concerning Sunbeam's sales activities between March 18 and March 25 when the offering closed?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017965

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I just recall in some of the bring down due diligence work with the client the questions along those lines were asked again and the company again reasserted its confidence in making those numbers. That's what I recall.

Q. Did you give instruction to the individuals involved in conducting additional due diligence to obtain documentation relating to Sunbeam's daily sales after March 18?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you know if Sunbeam provided Morgan Stanley with daily sales reports?

A. Not that I would recall. They may have. I just don't recall.

Q. I was focusing on the period subsequent to March 18.

A. Understood.

Q. Did you receive any information relating to Sunbeam's daily sales activities after March 18?

A. I may have, but I don't recall.

Q. Is it something that worried you?

A. Well, as I previously testified, I know that we did direct additional questions through and until the time frame that the debenture offering closed, and I was broadly aware of that.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

So I would know about those questions being asked. It's likely I would have known.

Q. Did you assume that Sunbeam was monitoring its sales activity very closely during that period?

A. I wouldn't say very closely. I wouldn't have any reason to believe they were doing anything out of the ordinary, just monitoring it the way they always would.

Q. Do you know how Sunbeam monitored its sales activities?

A. No. I'm sure Mr. Uzi can answer that.

Q. Did you ask Sunbeam whether they had available for your review daily sales reports?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Shouldn't monitoring Sunbeam's daily sales activities after the March 19 press release have been Morgan Stanley's highest priority?

A. No, not necessarily.

Q. Were you advised, sir, that after March 19 -- after the March 19 press release was issued, Morgan Stanley dropped from its due diligence agenda questions relating to Sunbeam's second quarter expectations?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

MR. CLARE: Objection. Form and foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't have knowledge of that.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Did you instruct that Morgan Stanley individuals involved in doing bring down due diligence not to inquire into Sunbeam's second quarter expectations after the March 19 press release was issued?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Can you think of any reason why Morgan Stanley would drop from its bring down due diligence agenda questions relating to Sunbeam's second quarter expectations?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't know that we did or we didn't. The focus at the time was on sales for the first quarter and results for the entire year as well.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Well, can you think of any reason if questions relating to Sunbeam's second quarter expectations were originally part of Morgan Stanley's intended checklist, why those questions would be dropped after the March 19 press release was issued?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Again, I don't know that they were dropped

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:.

Q. I am asking if you can think of any reason why they would have been.

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Why they would have been? If there was comfort -- again, I'm speculating; but if there was comfort with respect to the full year numbers as part of the due diligence, specifically the second quarter would be of less importance.

Q. Did you in connection with your conversations with Sunbeam management about Sunbeam's efforts to meet first quarter 1997 street expectations, did you inquire at all whether the activities that they were engaging in to meet or at least come as close as they possibly could, that the expectations for the first quarter would affect Sunbeam's second quarter performance?

A. You said 1997. You mean 1998.

Q. Let me ask a stand-alone question.

Sir, did you inquire during the course of the conversations you had with Sunbeam management whether the activities that Sunbeam intended to engage in to meet Wall Street expectations for net sales for the first quarter of 1998 would have effects that adversely affected Sunbeam's financial performance in the second quarter of 1998? Did you make that inquiry?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. Not that I recall.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Don't you think that would have been an appropriate aspect of Morgan Stanley's due diligence?

A. Not necessarily. Again, we were relying upon the unqualified opinion from Arthur Andersen, the fact that their financial statements were prepared consistent with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles. Not necessarily, no.

Q. Now, Sunbeam, in fact, did not accomplish the results that the financial community had expected for first quarter sales, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. It made a press release on April 3 to that effect?

A. Sometime early April, yes.

Q. When did you first learn that Sunbeam was going to fail to meet Wall Street's net sales expectations for the first quarter?

A. As I recall, almost simultaneous with that press release going out.

Q. What was your reaction?

A. My reaction? My reaction was disappointment, anger, shock.

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

Q. Who did you have that initial communication with?

A. I simply recall receiving a fax -- I believe a fax. I believe it was from Mr. Fannin.

Q. What did you do after receiving notice that Sunbeam had failed to meet Wall Street's expectations for net sales for the first quarter?

A. My recollection was I spoke with team members. I don't recall who. I probably spoke with Ms. Porat and I may have spoke with Mr. Fannin as well, but I don't recall specifically.

Q. Was anybody at Morgan Stanley criticized in any way for their performance in connection with work done for Sunbeam in connection with any of the three acquisitions or the financings?

A. Not to my knowledge, no.

Q. One of the things you did after Sunbeam announced that it had failed to meet Wall Street's expectations for first quarter sales was assist Sunbeam in obtaining a new public relations firm, correct?

CONFIDENTIAL - STRONG

A. I recall at some point -- I don't recall the time frame, counsel -- yes, I did make a recommendation that they retain a firm. I don't know if it was a different firm. I can't remember if they had someone before; but retain a firm, yes.

Q. Who did you recommend?

A. My recollection is it was Sard Verbinnen.

Q. Why did you make that recommendation to Sunbeam?

A. The firm was called Sard Verbinnen at the time. Its predecessor is a first-class firm in public relations and investor relations.

Q. One of the things they specialize in is crisis management communications, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Foundation.

BY THE WITNESS:

A. I don't know.

A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. In connection with the work that Morgan Stanley did for Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley provided Sunbeam with a written opinion that the price Sunbeam was paying for Coleman Company was fair to Sunbeam shareholders, correct?
A. That's my recollection, yes.
Q. What process did the Sunbeam team have to engage in in order to obtain authority to provide Sunbeam with that opinion?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
BY THE WITNESS:
A. They would perform financial analysis and due diligence on Coleman, its financial statements, as well as on the similar type of information from Sunbeam, look at a whole series of things, synergies, other things like that.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Were you involved in that process?
A. Not in a direct way, no.
Q. Did the Sunbeam -- the members of the Sunbeam team have the authority to provide Sunbeam with a fairness opinion with respect to the Coleman transaction or did it need to obtain approval from some other part of the firm?

A. I would typically discuss it with a group of other partners.
MR. CLARE: Bob, my watch shows that we're now at 3:30.
THE WITNESS: I'd better go here.
MR. CLARE: Mr. Strong has previously testified or informed us that he has a commitment, so I think we made our positions on the record clear. We're done for the day.
And it is our position that the deposition has concluded. You have had adequate time with Mr. Strong and chosen to conduct your examination with this information, so our positions are clear.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Well, my position is that the deposition is not concluded, that I have additional questions I wish to put to Mr. Strong and we do not agree that the deposition is adjourned.

Q. In fact, you have been deposed before in several cases involving the Sunbeam Coleman transaction; correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. How many times in that transaction were you deposed? I would include, within that, transactions involving Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh?
A. Either 1, 2, 3, some number like that. I don't really recall.
Q. Did you, before you came to your deposition here today, review your transcripts and -- the deposition transcripts in the other cases?

A. No.
Q. When was the last time that you saw those transcripts?
A. I don't think I have ever seen them after they were transcribed.
Q. Did you make any changes to those transcripts after they were transcribed?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Since you have been deposed before, the only, I am only going to give you a few admonitions, so we are clear for the jury.
One, you understand that you are being videotaped; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You understand that you are under oath and the oath that you took here has the same force and effect here as if you were testifying in court?
A. I do.
Q. Is there any reason that you can't testify truthfully here today?
A. No.
Q. With that, let's get to the merits of what you are here for.
A. Sure.

Q. My understanding is that you are a lawyer, but you don't practice; is that correct?
A. That is correct. I practiced law actively for about 25 years. I left the active practice of law in 1985.
Q. May I ask: Are you still licensed to practice?
A. I am licensed to practice in Pennsylvania and in Florida, although I believe that I have inactive status in both locations.
Q. You have never practiced law, I take it, then, when you worked for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No. That was the condition upon which I joined Mr. Perelman.
Q. Your position is as a businessman within the company?
A. That is correct.
Q. I take it you did some preparation for your deposition; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you do that?
A. Um, I spent about an hour last night

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 10

talking to my lawyers, and other than that, maybe another hour, or some time during the course of the past week.
Q. Did you review any documents related to the Sunbeam Coleman transaction?
A. Um, yes, I did.
Q. Did you review the complaint, for example?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever seen the complaint that was filed in this action against Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes, I saw the complaint when it was filed.
Q. Did any of the documents that you reviewed in preparation for your deposition help you recall events that occurred a number of years in the past?
A. Oh, sure.
Q. What documents were those that you looked at that helped you remember things?
A. Um, the presentation of the Morgan Stanley, that Morgan Stanley made to us in February of 1990.
Um, some of the corporate niceties surrounding the transaction. By that, I mean resolutions and things of that nature.

Um, I would say that is primarily the ones that refresh my recollection.
Q. Did you look at any material prepared by Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. I think I saw the, a portion of the document which they presented to the Coleman board, in connection with our fairness opinion.
Q. Was this document the, called backup materials or something like that?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Would you recognize it, if you saw it?
A. I might.
Q. Again? Okay, maybe we will show it to you when we get to that point.
A. Okay.
Q. Were there any other documents that you looked at that helped you remember events from 6 years ago?
A. I think that is about it.
Q. You referred to a presentation by Morgan Stanley in February of 1990. Did you misspeak when you said 1990?

Page 12

A. Yes. 1998.
Q. Was that a presentation where Mr. Russell Kersh spoke?
A. I was not physically present at the meeting. I simply received the materials thereafter.
Q. So, when you said a presentation Morgan Stanley made, you don't know whether Morgan Stanley actually made a presentation, because you weren't there; right?
A. But I was told that they did.
Q. But as to your own personal knowledge?
A. I was not in the room.
Q. You weren't in the room.
In fact, my understanding is that, and you can correct me now -- if I am wrong, we will shortcut some of the questioning -- is that your involvement in this transaction began sometime in November or December of 1997, with some meetings with Michael Price and Mr. Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman; is that correct, in general?
A. That is correct.

Q. And that, following those initial meetings in 1997, and perhaps extending into some calls in early 1998, you had no further involvement in the Coleman Sunbeam transaction until after the closing, which was March 30th, 1998?
A. No. I had no further involvement with the negotiation of the transaction between Coleman (Parent) Holdings or MacAndrews, however you want to characterize it, and Sunbeam. Internally, I had various processes which report to me, which require me to review certain things.
Q. And you also attended the board meetings of the Coleman Corporation; correct?
A. I did.
Q. As a director of various holding companies related to Coleman, you -- you voted, as a director, in favor of the transaction; correct?
A. I certainly signed the resolutions authorizing it.
Q. So, your involvement, you had no involvement in any negotiations, if you will, between Sunbeam and Coleman concerning the terms of the transaction; is that fair?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014774

A. That is fair.
Q. Your involvement, if any, was with internal discussions within MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. That's right. Before that contract got signed, I would have to sign off on it.
Q. How long have you known Mr. Perelman?
A. Um, probably 35 years.
Q. How did you come to meet him?
A. Um, socially. And after meeting him socially, I would say in the mid-70s he asked if I would do some legal work for he and his then wife, um -- I had previously done work in opposition to his father -- a rather hotly contested matter, and I suggested to him that he might want to consult his father before he did that. He said no, this is just for me personally. He was then working for his father.
And I said, fine.
Q. And at some point in time you decided to cease practicing law and go to work for Mr. Perelman?

A. That was '85. Ten years later.
Q. You have been working for Mr. Perelman almost 20 years now?
A. That is correct.
Q. And you are, as I understand it, by your title you are the number 2 man at MacAndrews & Forbes; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Are you still active in the business?
A. Oh, very active.
Q. You go to work every day?
A. I go to work every day.
Q. Love every minute of it?
A. Love it.
Q. In your -- 20-some years of working for Mr. Perelman, do you think he is a sophisticated businessman?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you think he is a sophisticated investor in companies?
A. Yes.
Q. Sophisticated in analyzing mergers and acquisitions transactions?
A. I think so.

Q. Sophisticated in issuing debt securities?
A. Yes.
Q. In the twenty-some-odd years that you have been working -- - withdrawn.
Would you characterize yourself as Mr. Perelman's right-hand man? Not to offend left-handers here.
A. I am left-handed.
Q. I wasn't sure.
A. No. It is a fair characterization. Our offices are right next to each other. They have been since I have gotten here.
Q. You have been involved in, I take it, many of the major transactions by Mr. Perelman?
A. I think I have been involved in all of them.
Q. Revlon, for example?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Marvel?
A. Yes.
Q. Panavision?
A. Yes.
Q. Coleman?

A. Yes.
Q. When you have done these transactions -- would you consider those major transactions, the ones we have just --
A. Sure.
Q. -- listed? What are some of the others which you consider big transactions that you have been involved with Mr. Perelman in the last 20 years?
A. Oh, all of our banking transactions, the acquisition of, you know, five bankrupt thrifts which became first -- Reporter Bank, the subsequent sale of those assets to Bank of America.
The purchase of First Nationwide Bank from Ford Motor Company.
Seven divestitures, and six acquisitions later it became the second largest thrift in the United States.
Q. Is that CalFed?
A. No. It is, actually, Golden State Bank. CalFed was a subsidiary, and the subsequent sale of Golden State to Citi Group. Then we had, we bought and sold the cigar business twice, took it public.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014775

And I think we have done, since I have been here, something like 36 or 38 transactions.
Q. I was going to add, Consolidated Cigar?
A. Right.
Q. You bought and sold that company?
A. Bought it once, sold it, bought it back and then sold it. In the intervening time, the second time we also took it public.
Q. Would it be fair to say that, on the debt side, in terms of debt that has been issued by companies owned or controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Perelman, that they have issued billions of dollars of debt over the years?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Would it be fair to say that in materials of companies that Mr. Perelman has purchased, either through stock acquisitions or otherwise, that those transactions have involved billions of dollars?
A. Absolutely.
Q. In these -- well, would you call these sophisticated transactions, like the Consolidated Cigar and Revlon and Gibraltar, First Nationwide, these are sophisticated transactions?

MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
Q. You can answer.
A. Some are more sophisticated than others, but they are -- you know, some of the financings are sophisticated, you know, and you know, we learned as we went along, you know. We started out as two little guys in Philadelphia, and then we learned a little bit as we went through the transactions.
Q. In the transactions that you have told the jury about, over the past 20 or so years, have you, on occasion, used investment bankers to advise you?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a frequent occurrence?
A. In almost every transaction.
Q. Who are some of the investment bankers that you have worked with on your side of the table?
A. Morgan Stanley. Goldman, Sachs. Credit Suisse First Boston.

Lehman Brothers.
Bear, Stearns.
Citi Group.
Including the Solomon Smith Barney part of the Citi Group.
J.P. Morgan Chase, including the J.P. Morgan part of that company.
Q. You pretty much ran the table of the large names; didn't you?
A. Pretty much so.
Q. Have you used outside attorneys in your transactions?
A. Oh, sure.
Q. In the 20 or so years that you have been doing deals, is there one law firm in New York City, for example, that you have used more often than others?
A. I would think we have used Skadden more often than anybody else, Skadden Arps.
Q. You have not used Skadden Arps in the Sunbeam transaction?
A. No. They had a conflict.
Q. They were representing Sunbeam?
A. Exactly.
Q. Would you have used Skadden Arps if they had not had a conflict?

A. I don't know. We make the decisions from matter to matter.
Q. Were you involved in the decision, or -- withdrawn.
What other law firms in New York City, for example, have you used in your merger and acquisition transactions?
A. Wachtel Lipton.
Paul Weiss.
Latham & Watkins.
I think that is about it.
Oh, no, Kramer Levin.
I don't think we used Wilkie Farr.
I don't think we have used Weil Gotshal, but we may have.
Q. At least in the public firms --
A. I am sorry. Also another California firm -- Gibson Dunn.
Q. Gibson Dunn & Crutcher?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you consider all of those firms to be sophisticated law firms in financial transactions?
A. Certain people in there are.

011776

Page 22

Q. I mean, the people that you worked with.
A. Yes.
Q. You did not hire unsophisticated people?
A. I would hope not, no.
Q. In addition to investment bankers and law firms, as you have described it, in these deals that you have done over the past 20 years with Mr. Perelman, have you had occasion to use accounting firms to assist you in your work?
A. Um, we don't use accounting firms very much in connection with doing a transaction.
But each of the companies, either before or after, are represented by one of the, I guess it is a Big Four now. It used to be the Big Six or Big Seven.
Q. It was Eight once.
A. It was Eight once.
Q. Okay. Does MacAndrews & Forbes have, today, does it have an outside accounting firm that it uses to audit its books?

Page 23

A. Yes.
Q. Who is that?
A. Ernst & Young.
Q. And Ernst & Young was the Coleman Company's auditors at the time of the Sunbeam transaction, Coleman transaction; correct?
A. Yes, but that was -- that was not as a result of anything that we had done. I think they were there before.
Q. And Ernst & Young today would be -- strike that. Would Ernst & Young today, in your view, be one of the Big Four or Five, however they are described?
A. Certainly one of the Big Four, I would say.
Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes do filings with the Securities & Exchange Commission?
A. Sure.
When you say MacAndrews & Forbes, there are various levels of MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. I want to make sure that I get the right one. Was it MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. that does the filing?
A. No. No. No. It depends on where public debt is issued. We have no public securities coming out of MacAndrews, except for a company called MacAndrews & Forbes Worldwide, which is a separate public company that does securities act filings on its own.

It has public shareholders, and -- I don't know whether it still has public debt. I should know, since I am its chairman.
Then there is Mafco Holdings, which is the top company, and I don't think that does filings, because I don't think there is any public debt left there. But as you come down the chain from Mafco to MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings to MacAndrews & Forbes Group, wherever, at any time during the 20 years there is public debt issued at that level they become a filer.
Q. Do you know the holding company structure, as you sit here today?
A. I know it as well as anybody can. There are hundreds of companies.
Q. I don't want to go through all of the 100. Now that I have the person who -- I think knows it probably as well as I think I may know it, as best I can piece it together,

Page 25

I would like to ask you a few questions.
A. Sure, right.
Q. See if I get it right.
Mr. Perelman sits at the top; correct?
A. Yes, he owns 100 percent of the securities of the ultimate holding company.
Q. The ultimate holding company, is it Mafco Holdings Inc.?
A. It is either Mafco Holdings Inc., or Mafco Finance. I am not quite sure what the name is now. One or the other.
Q. There is no comma between Holdings and Inc.; right?
A. Right.
Q. And then after Mafco Holdings Inc., or Mafco Finance, whichever it is, directly below that is MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.; correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And now, for our purposes, given the Coleman side of the transaction, directly below MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. was Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.; is that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 26

A. No. There should be -- there should be a company called MacAndrews & Forbes Group in there before that.
Q. All right. That's one I did not know where it was. MacAndrews & Forbes Group Inc.; is that what it is?
A. I don't really know.
Q. Okay. But it is below MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. Below Holdings and before the chains that hold the operating businesses.
Q. The MacAndrews & Forbes Group Company, that is a holding company; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And the legal name, as best you can remember, is MacAndrews & Forbes Group, Inc.?
A. I think that is right.
Q. Now, working now down, going, if we had Coleman in the transaction, we would go to Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
A. Once you go down below MacAndrews & Forbes Group, each of the operating businesses go off into a series of companies, so that you don't mix the candy money with the beer money.
That is, Coleman stays in its own line, no cross collateral, no obligation for any debt of, say, Revlon, which has its own line.

Page 27

And then the banks, which had their own line.
And then the cigar company, when that was there, had its own line.
So, there are a variety of companies that come down, and all of the operating, and this is the strategy that we had from the beginning, which is all of the operating businesses are kept pure. They may have their own holding companies up and down the line, but they are not touched by any of the other operating businesses.
They always remain by themselves.
Q. So, absent credit agreements or finance agreements of some kind that provide some type of cross-collateralization upstream, there are no obligations amongst the different operating companies?
A. That is a fair comment.
Q. With regard to -- let's focus on the operating group on the Coleman side, real quickly, and go down the list, and I think we are done with this.

A. No problem.
Q. Directly below MacAndrews & Forbes Group, the ultimate holding company for the Coleman group was Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
A. I think that is right.
Q. Inc.? Correct?
A. I am pretty sure that is right.
Q. Directly below that was a company called CLN Holdings Inc.; correct?
A. I don't know.
Q. Now, below that I have seen reference to a company called Coleman Worldwide Corp. and also, I think, in a former life known as Coleman Escrow Corporation; does that sound right to you?
A. That is well beyond my canon at this point.
Q. But at the very bottom of the chain was the Coleman Company, Inc., the operating company?
A. Right, that was a publicly owned company, which we owned approximately 82 percent of up through that chain, and which had its own debt issuance capacity.

Page 29

Q. And now, with regard to decisions to whether to buy or sell, let's focus on the Coleman transaction.
As I understand your testimony, you would have given final approval to the merger agreement before it reached Mr. Perelman; is that fair?
A. That is fair.
Q. And then Mr. Perelman would ultimately be advised of your opinions and would make a decision up or down?
A. No. I would -- I would write on a paper, okay, to sign, HG, and he would sign it.
Q. He would sign it. When you review documents, do you have any symbol that you put on the documents to show that you have read them?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Have you ever seen Mr. Perelman use some type of marking on a document to show that he has read them?
A. Never.
Q. Never?
A. Never. That's not his strong suit.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011778

Q. Markings or documents?
A. Either one.
Q. Either one. Okay.
Now, at the time of the -- well, let me ask you. If you were to step back to 1998, during the Coleman Sunbeam transaction, would you agree with the following: that the transaction involved, was negotiated arm's-length by two large sophisticated and publicly traded corporations?
A. Um, it was negotiated arm's-length. With one of them committing a fraud.
Q. And which one was that?
A. Sunbeam.
Q. Would you say that each side in the case, each side of the transaction was represented by advisers?
A. Oh, sure.
Q. That, in your case, your side of the transaction was represented by Skadden Arps?
A. No.
Q. Excuse me, Wachtel Lipton?
A. Wachtel Lipton.
Q. On the Sunbeam side they had retained your counsel in other cases, Skadden

Arps?
A. That is correct.
Q. And you, on your side of the table you had an investment banking firm, Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Coleman did.
Q. Coleman did.
Now, I know Coleman, Coleman signed the retention agreement, by documents that I have seen, but Credit Swiss First Boston also made presentations that you listened to; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You did not have any position on the Coleman board of directors?
A. No. But I was director of one of the holding companies as it went up. The Coleman board of directors couldn't sell my stock.
Q. In fact, the Coleman board of -- you were a director of all of the companies going up the chain directly up to Mr. Perelman; correct?
A. Except for the Coleman Company Inc., the publicly traded company.

Q. And at the time of the transaction on the other side of the table, from the attorneys from Skadden, I think if I haven't said this, we had Wachtel Lipton representing your side; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in terms of investment bankers, in addition to CSFB on your side, Morgan Stanley was representing Sunbeam in the transaction; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. You knew, at the time of the transaction, that Arthur Andersen was the accounting firm that was doing audit work for Sunbeam; correct?
A. Sure.
Q. Up to the time that the transaction closed, did you have any indication that Arthur Andersen had committed any fraud with regard to its audits of Sunbeam, as later alleged by Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
A. No.
Q. Was there any indication in the public filings of the financial statements of Sunbeam Corporation that it had committed any fraud that you were aware of?

A. No.
Q. Did you have any information, at the time of the closing of the Sunbeam Coleman transaction, that Arthur Andersen was going to, only months later, announce that the public could no longer rely on its opinions in regard to Sunbeam's financial statements?
A. Of course not.
Q. Now, turning to the Coleman Sunbeam transaction, the negotiations, externally -- was Mr. Maher, in your view, the head negotiator?
A. Mr. Maher and Mr. Levin.
Q. Mr. Levin on behalf of Coleman?
A. Mr. Levin on behalf of the Coleman Company Inc. Mr. Maher on behalf of the various Coleman holding companies and the MacAndrews companies.
Q. How long have you known Mr. Maher?
A. Oh, probably 25 years.
Q. Did you work with Mr. Maher when he was an investment banker at First Boston?
A. I met him when I was there, but I don't recall working with him on a transaction.

Q. Did you -- excuse me. Did MacAndrews & Forbes, and I will use holding company now, if that is all right with you.
Did they ever retain Mr. Maher as its investment banker in a transaction while he was employed by Credit Suisse First Boston or First Boston?
A. No. When he was at First Boston our real contact there was Mr. Wasserstein and Mr. Perella.
Q. Okay.
When did Mr. Maher, in your recollection, come to work for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Sometime prior to 1997. My best guess is 1993, '94.
Q. He did not directly work for MacAndrews & Forbes at that time, he worked for one of the operating companies; correct?
A. No. No. He came, I believe he came right to work for MacAndrews & Forbes. What was happening is that Bruce Slovin, who had been the long-time president of MacAndrews, was getting, slowing down and wanted to retire. He made enough money. So, we were looking around for someone to take that position, and Maher became available. We hired Maher for that.

Q. He became the president of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.; is that correct?
A. That is correct
Q. He stay until about year 2000; is that your recollection?
A. I know he left us sometime after this transaction.
Um, I don't know if it was 2000, 2001, sometime like that.
Q. When Mr. Maher left, was, did he leave for any reasons related to the Sunbeam Coleman transaction?
A. No. No. He wanted to do something else.
Q. Did you like working with Mr. Maher?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you think he was a sophisticated investment banker?
A. Yes.
Q. Sophisticated businessman?

Page 36

A. Yes.
Q. You attended the February 25th -- withdrawn.
There are two board meetings of the Coleman Company, and they were held by record dates that we now know of February 25th and February 27th of 1998.
Did you attend those two meetings?
A. Yes.
Q. You attended as an observer, I take it?
A. Well, I guess you could call me an observer of the public company, but also I was attending because I was going to sign resolutions authorizing the transactions; so, I thought it was one of the easiest ways to listen.
Q. I would like to show you the minutes of the February 25th, 1998 board meeting and just ask you a couple questions about that.
A. All right.
Q. I will hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88.
What I would like you to do is look at this document to whatever extent you would like to do so. I only have a couple of questions and they are really directed to the second page in Mr. Maher's presentation; so, look. When you think you are ready to proceed, let me know and I will ask you a question.

A. Okay.
(Pause.)
A. Okay. Yes, thank you.
Q. If you would look at the second page of the minutes, and I will be directing your attention to the third paragraph that begins "Mr. Levin"; do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. It is reported in the minutes, as follows:
"Mr. Maher reviewed the history of the proposed transaction, including both the course of discussion between the company and Sunbeam and an inquiry made by the company," which refers to Coleman, "to what the company believed was the most likely potential bidder, which bidder was not interested."
Did you see that sentence, sir?
A. I do.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011780

Q. Do you know the company to which this inquiry was made?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was it?
A. The Brunswick Corp.
Q. Who made that inquiry?
A. I don't recall whether it was Mr. Maher or me, but I think it was him.
Q. When did that occur?
A. Prior to the execution, prior to this meeting.
Q. Can you tell me how close to the time of this meeting the inquiry to Brunswick was made?
A. No. We had received various inquiries from Brunswick over the years about acquiring Coleman -- and I can't remember when the last conversation took place, but as a matter of prudence, we thought it was necessary to call and make sure that they weren't in the game anymore, I think, since they had acquired a small company in the camping business.
Q. What did, do you know what Brunswick --

A. No. That is the whole basis of my recollection.
Q. My understanding is that you did not make the inquiry.
A. I don't think I did.
Q. Did Mr. Maher make the inquiry?
A. Yes.
Q. I take it that whatever the, whatever was said in the enquiry, the answer was that Brunswick was not interested?
A. At that time, yes.
Q. Were there any other companies that, say in the period 1997, expressed any interest in acquiring Coleman, other than Sunbeam?
A. Not that I know of.
Q. Did Brunswick actually express an interest in buying Coleman, or did Coleman ask Brunswick if Brunswick had an interest?
A. No. The impetus came from Brunswick.
Q. You don't know if this was in 1997 or even sometime earlier?
A. I think that it would have been in 1997. It may have been earlier, as well, but certainly in '97 there was an agreement.

Q. Did you participate in any of the discussions with Brunswick -- well, let me withdraw that.
Were there actual discussions with Brunswick?
A. I had a conversation with the then chairman, and I can't tell you exactly when it was, but my best guess is that it was in 1997, when he expressed an interest in acquiring Sunbeam for Brunswick.
And I told him that Sunbeam was in the early phases of a turnaround.
Q. Do you mean Coleman, as opposed to Brunswick? You said Sunbeam.
A. I apologize.
Q. That's right.
A. Coleman was in the early phases of a turnaround and the market value would not reflect what we considered to be the company's intrinsic value and, therefore, we had no interest in selling it at that time.
Q. Did that pretty much put an end to the matter?
A. Tried to put an end to it.
Q. Was there ever a point in time in your discussion with the chairman of Brunswick that you discussed price?

A. No.
Q. Were any investment bankers involved in the discussions?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Just -- one man to one man discussion?
A. Pretty much so.
Q. Not to belabor this, but was this like a lunch or dinner meeting?
A. No. No. They came in the office to see me. I knew the chairman.
Q. In the call that was made to Brunswick, as a matter, I think you put it, of prudence, before the February 25th board meeting, do you know, either directly or from being told by someone else, whether Brunswick was told of the pending Sunbeam transaction?
A. I would be surprised if they had been, but I really don't know.
Q. Again, the person we would have to ask this question is Mr. Maher?
A. That is correct.
Q. Other than Brunswick, going back

01473

Page 42

perhaps even to -- let's go back to, say, 1995, forward, were there any companies that you remember expressing any interest in acquiring Coleman?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Now, you mentioned that you remembered seeing some materials prepared by CSFB, at about the time of the board meetings, which were related to the fairness opinion. Do you recall your testimony on that?
A. Yes.
Q. I would like to show you several documents and see if you can tell me whether those are the documents that you remember seeing.
A. Sure.
Q. I am handing the witness what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 120, and I am handing a copy to Mr. Solovy.
Do you have Exhibit 120 in front of you, sir?
A. I do.
Q. I will represent to you that my understanding is that this is the fairness opinion itself.

Page 43

A. Aha.
Q. There are also some backup materials which I will show you in a second.
My first question is: Have you seen before Morgan Stanley Exhibit 120?
A. I have no recollection.
Q. Okay. You can hand that back to me and we will put it back in the files.
Now I am going to provide to you what I understand are the so-called backup materials.
112.
Why don't you hand me back that document, and we will try to keep it a little less cluttered over there.
A. All right.
Q. I will hand you, sir, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112.
I will hand a copy to counsel.
Do you have Exhibit 112 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Is this the materials prepared by CSFB that you were speaking about earlier in your testimony?

Page 44

A. If this was what was presented to the board at Coleman, at the meeting at which I was present, this is the material.
Q. There was actually -- strike that.
At the board meeting of the Coleman Company, when Credit Suisse First Boston prepared their --
At the board meeting of February 24th, 1998 that you attended, do you remember that Credit Suisse First Boston had discussion materials that they presented to the board?
A. Sure.
Q. Were they handed out for everyone to follow through?
A. Yes.
Q. And did these materials appear to you to be the materials that were handed out or a similar to --
A. Something like this.
Q. I recognize it has been six years ago.
A. Yes.
Q. Are these the type of materials, then, that the board reviewed in making its decision whether to vote for the merger?

Page 45

A. Well, I wasn't on the board, I was just present at the meeting, but these are the kinds of journals that you would always, almost always get at a board meeting.
Q. But although you weren't a member of the Coleman board, you were a member of the boards of directors that actually owned 82 percent of the Coleman stock?
A. Right.
Q. Correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Are these the types of materials that -- Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112 -- that you relied upon in exercising your business judgment whether to vote for the mergers?
A. No.
Q. What did you rely upon?
A. I relied upon primarily the Morgan Stanley presentation that was made to us on the 23rd of February.
Q. And in that presentation, was that a set of documents that you --
A. Yes.
Q. Because you did not appear at the presentation?

Page 46

A. Those documents were on my desk as soon as that meeting was over.
Q. Was the Morgan Stanley presentation that you are referring to, was that presented to the Coleman board of directors at the meeting?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. Would that be true for both the meeting of February 25th and 27th?
A. I think that is correct.
Q. And did anyone from Morgan Stanley make any presentation directly to you?
A. To me, personally?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. So, when you say you relied upon a Morgan Stanley presentation, again, you are simply talking about a document or documents that you saw given to you by someone else?
A. And before I permitted this matter to go to the boards, I insisted that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley come in and make a presentation to our people, which they did. That was the, that was delivered to me promptly upon the conclusion of the meeting.

Page 47

I then met with our people to get them completely debriefed upon that, and there was -- then I said go ahead, take this matter to the boards.
Q. Other than the -- the presentation -- I want to show you what I think is the documents that you are referring to that you said you received.
You can hand that back to me. The documents that you received and you have been describing as this presentation by Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam.
First, I am going to hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84.
A. Thank you.
Q. Excuse me. Exhibit 85. I misspoke.
Do you have that exhibit in front of you?
A. I have in front of me an exhibit that has been marked as 85.
Q. My question, next, would be: Is this the Morgan Stanley document that you said you received after the Morgan Stanley Sunbeam presentation, that you did not --
A. I have to look at it.

Page 48

Q. Yes, sir.
A. Because the copy I saw had a beautiful blue Morgan Stanley cover on it.
(Pause.)
A. I believe this is the document that I saw, or there may have been an earlier related version of this, but this contained essentially this information.
Q. Let me ask you to set that aside for now. We will come back to it.
A. Sure.
Q. And we will just collect that up for now and, at a later point, we will talk about it in a little bit more detail.
A. No problem.
Q. There was also a document I think you said you saw from Sunbeam, and I want to show you a document now and ask you if that is the Sunbeam document that you were referring to. MS 84, please.
By the way, was it Mr. Levin that gave you Morgan Stanley 85?
A. No. I think it was either Mr. Nesbitt or Mr. Maher.
Q. Maher.

Page 49

A. Mr. Levin was present. He is a New York or Chicago Levin. He is Levin.
Q. Did I say Levin?
A. Sorry.
Q. I started, because I am from Chicago. I know it is Levin.
A. He is, too.
Q. Let me hand you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84.
If you will, please, look through Morgan Stanley 84, and various handwriting on it, I am not suggesting to you that the handwriting was on it originally, but -- just, please, look at the document and tell me when you are done.
A. Sure.
(Pause.)
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Perelman, yesterday, identified the handwriting on this document as Mr. Levin's.
Do you recognize the handwriting?
A. I think it is his, as well. Yes.
Q. You may hand that back to me.
A. Aha.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Levin the presentation by Sunbeam that was, that is set forth in, on hard copy, if you will, in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84?
A. I am sure I did.
Q. We will come back to these a little bit later.
Now, at the -- at or about the time of the second board meeting, had you already, had you reviewed the final contracts that were being drafted by the attorneys?
A. I don't recall whether I had seen the final drafts or not yet, but others who were working with me did.
Q. Did you review the final drafts of the contracts before they were signed?
A. Um, before I signed -- before I signed the document, I reviewed it. Did I see the final drafts that, of -- I am not sure if I did or not.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 421. That is a February 27th, 1998 CLN Holdings Inc. resolution.
If I misspoke, the Exhibit Number is 423, not 421.

(Pause.)
Q. Mr. Gittis, have you read the document, Exhibit 423?
A. I am looking through it. Yes.
(Pause.)
MR. SOLOVY: Just so the record is clear, there is no question pending; correct?
MR. BEMIS: He asked to read the document.
THE WITNESS: I was waiting for you. Okay.
Q. Now we are communicating better.
A. Right.
Q. Is that your signature on page 1 of the document?
A. It is.
Q. And did you sign this document on or about the date it bears, February 27th, 1998?
A. Probably sometime thereafter -- probably just as they were getting everything ready for a closing or signing, you know, I was signing, just before that. Dated as of February 27th; so, that is my best guess.
Q. Okay. I apologize for interrupting

you.
A. That is okay.
Q. From your past testimony my understanding is that you read documents before you sign them; correct?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
A. All right.
Q. I will hand you what was marked as Exhibit 172 in a previous deposition. I have handed you Exhibit 172, sir, and when you are finished looking at it, I will ask you a couple questions.
A. Go ahead.
Q. Is that your signature that appears on page 1?
A. Yes.
Q. As was like in the case that I just showed you, Morgan Stanley 123, did you sign it as of February 27th, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you read it before you signed it?
A. Sure.
Q. You can hand it back to me. That is all done.

Let me show you what has been marked as Exhibit 280.
A. Thank you.
Q. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 280 is captioned "registration rights agreement." The signatures appear at the end.
(Pause.)
A. Do you want me to read the whole thing?
Q. No.
Okay. Have you seen, did you see this document before it was signed?
A. Not to the best of my recollection.
Q. You can hand that back to me then.
A. Aha.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 278, which is also captioned "registration rights agreement."
Have you seen that document before?
A. I don't think so.
Q. The registration agreement, rights agreement is signed, if you look at the back of the document, by Mr. Glen P. D-I-C-K-E-S; do you see that?

A. Yes.
Q. This document, this unsigned form is attached as an exhibit to the CLN Sunbeam Laser, if you will, merger agreement as an exhibit.
Did you review the entire acquisition agreement, which is -- it is a longer question -- Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93, before it was signed --
A. I don't think so. I reviewed certain sections of it, but I would not have read a registration rights agreement.
Q. Do you know what it is?
A. Of course.
Q. And just, if you look at, if you look at page 8, if you would please turn to that, CPH Bates No. 109425.
A. Page 8, right.
Q. Look at paragraph 12.
It makes reference to a comfort letter signed by independent public accountants. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what a comfort letter is?

Page 55

A. Yes.
Q. What is it?
A. It is a letter given by an accounting firm to the issuer of securities, giving them comfort that as of the time of the issuance of the securities, certain, what events have transpired since the filing of the last certified financials.
Q. To state it another way, it covers a time period from the last, the date of the last certified financials up to a date stated on the letter; correct?
A. Yes. The date while, the date when you are going to issue securities.
Q. The issuance of this registration rights agreement was a condition precedent to the closing of the CLN merger agreement; correct?
A. I am sure it was, yes.
Q. Indeed, if you will go back, and I will ask you to take a look at Exhibit 172 --
A. Yes.
Q. Which exhibit is the consent of the directors in lieu of a meeting of Coleman (Parent) Holdings. And on the first page the execution of the registration rights agreement, Exhibit 278, is the condition precedent to the closing of the merger; correct?

A. Sure. Taking unregistered securities --
THE REPORTER: I did not hear.
A. We were getting unregistered securities. You want to get the securities registered within a certain time period. That is the purpose of a registration rights agreement.
Q. In the case of the registration rights agreement and obtaining a comfort letter, Sunbeam is the issuer of the securities; correct?
A. Sunbeam is the issuer of the securities.
Q. And the comfort letter that was referred to in the registration rights agreement would come from Sunbeam's auditor; correct?
A. From Sunbeam's auditor -- yes.
Q. Arthur Andersen.
A. Arthur Andersen.

MR. BEMIS: Let's take a recess and get some papers organized and refiled and we will move on to the next topic.

(Recess.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Stand by. The time is 11:04 a.m., and we are back on the video record.
Q. Let me hand you, sir, what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 424.
This is entitled "Coleman Worldwide Corporation consent of directors in lieu of board of directors meeting."
Do you have that in front of you, sir?
A. Aha. I do.
Q. Please take a minute and look at it and I just have a couple of quick questions about it.
(Pause.)
A. Yes.
Q. The first question, sir, is: Is that your signature that appears on the first page?

A. It is.
Q. Did you sign it on, as of, excuse me, February 27th, 1998?
A. Sure.
Q. Did you read it before you signed it?
A. Yes.
Q. Was it signed in connection with the Coleman Sunbeam transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. You can hand it back to me. Thank you very much.
Let me show you now what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93.
A. All right.
Q. Do you have that exhibit in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. For the record, that is the agreement and plan of merger among Sunbeam Corporation, Laser Acquisition Corporation, CLN Holdings Inc. and Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.

Page 59

I don't expect you to read the document, obviously -- I will direct you to a paragraph if -- would you just take a minute and feel comfortable with what the document is, and let me know, and then I will ask you a question.
A. Okay.
Q. Would you confirm for me, sir, that the copy you have attached to it, has, as Exhibit A, the registration rights agreement -- as an exhibit?
A. Exhibit A is what purports to be a registration rights agreement.
Q. And at the -- did you review before -- excuse me.
Withdrawn.
Before Exhibit 93 was signed, and the signature pages are attached to this copy -- and I believe Mr. Schwartz may have signed this on behalf of CPH -- I will look to make sure that that is right.
MR. SOLOVY: That is correct.
MR. BEMIS: It is correct. Thank you, Mr. Solovy.
Q. Did you review Exhibit 93 before it was signed?

A. I have no recollection of whether I did or not.
Q. Would it be your practice to do so?
A. Sometimes, and sometimes not.
Q. Did you review the confidentiality agreements that are referred to in paragraph, if you want to look at this -- it is paragraph 6.7 of the document? On page 18.
A. What's the question?
Q. Did you review the confidentiality agreements between the parties that are identified in section 6.7 of the exhibit? MS '93.
A. I have no recollection of seeing the confidentiality agreements in this matter.
Q. In a transaction of this nature would it be customary, in your view, based on the many deals that you have participated in, to have confidentiality agreements between the parties?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
A. Sometimes -- mainly yes, but not always.

Page 61

Q. Who would be the person at Coleman (Parent) Holdings or CLN Holdings, as the case may be, who would be responsible for verifying the existence of the confidentiality agreements that are identified in that paragraph 6.7?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
A. Either Mr. Schwartz or Mr. Dickes.
Q. Let me ask you to turn to 1997 -- in your -- the man by name of L. Dunlap. You know who he is; right?
A. Yes.
Q. You wish you had never met him?
A. That is an apt description.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap -- excuse me, when did you first meet Mr. Dunlap?
A. Sometime in the middle of the spring of 1997 I attended a luncheon hosted by an investment banker in New York named Mark Davis, whom I have known for years, in which Mr. Davis, Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Perelman, myself and I believe Mr. Drapkin were at the first luncheon -- um -- and then there was a second lunch which, I think, I was not present at.

011786

Page 62

But I characterized it as, those lunches as Mr. Dunlap looking for his next job.
Q. Was he employed by Sunbeam at the time of this luncheon, 19 --
A. Certainly not the first time, but the second time he may have been.
Q. So, you were introduced to Mr. Dunlap by Mr. Davis; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And who did Mr. Davis work for at that time?
A. I think it was Solomon Smith Barney or maybe Solomon Bros. I just don't know when those mergers took place.
Q. And did you have lunch with Mr. Dunlap and the other gentlemen, Mr. Perelman and Mr. Drapkin?
A. Yes.
Q. What was -- do you remember the discussion over lunch?
A. Yes. Um -- Davis had handled the sale of Scott Paper Kimberly Clark, which was apparently a very successful transaction, and he was extolling Dunlap's virtues as a manager, and saying they were looking for another deal for Dunlap to run, and there was somebody that might be willing to finance such a deal.

And would we have any interest.
And I said, or Mr. Perelman said, or Mr. Drapkin said -- it was one or the other of us, or all of us -- look, if you have a deal that is interesting, you want to bring it to us and we have to look at it. And that was really the whole purpose of the luncheon.
Q. Then you met him again, I believe you said, at another luncheon later?
A. I don't think I was at the second luncheon.
Q. What is it, what can you tell us about the second luncheon, even though you were not there?
A. I think by then he had done the Sunbeam deal, and said what a great deal it was.
Q. Who was present at this second luncheon, as you understand it?
A. Davis, Dunlap, Perelman and Drapkin, I think.
Q. Did you hear from someone about what happened at the luncheon?

A. It was a non-event, the luncheon, just telling him he had done a deal.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman -- Mr. Perelman testified yesterday or the day before, I can't remember -- at this point I don't remember which of the two days it was -- at some point he discussed with Mr. Dunlap whether he would have an interest in being on the board of directors of the Coleman Company. Did he ever discuss that subject with you?
A. No. That would not have been a fruitful subject with me.
Q. Why not?
A. I thought that Dunlap was very aggressive, um -- and not someone that I thought was, would have been a great board member.
Q. There does come a time, again in the fall of 1997, when you meet Mr. Dunlap again; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And did you meet him in connection with an introduction by Michael Price?
A. Yes.

Page 65

Q. Would you tell the jury who Michael Price is.
A. Mike Price is a fund manager, highly successful investor, then running a series of funds called the Mutual Benefit Shares.
Q. Would you spell that for us.
A. Mutual benefit shares.
Q. I thought you said L-E -- I thought it was mutual?
A. Mutual benefit shares. Sorry.
Q. That's all right.
A. I know Mike for years.
Q. He was with Chase Securities at one time; was he not?
A. I don't think so. He was, he started with a guy in, down in Canton named Max Heine. That is how I knew him. I had done some legal work for Max Heine, and Max Heine was a legendary investor. That's how Mike got started, at least to the best of my knowledge.
Q. How did you and Mr. Price come to speak to each other about Mr. Dunlap?
A. Well, I am home in Palm Beach, I had a home, a different home that I presently live in. I had a home in Palm Beach, which won a lot of awards for historical renovation that I had done there -- an old house, fallen into terrible disrepair, and it took me over a year to restore it. You know, with meticulous attention to the details of that house.

014787

Mike then bought -- Mike Price bought a house within five minutes of that house, and he was in the process of restoring his house. So, we chatted about that.

So, I was down there for a weekend, and I think it was -- pretty sure it was in November of 1997 -- and Mike called and said, asked if I would come over and have a drink and he wanted to show me some of the work that he had been doing. I said, fine.

Q. I take it that, at this time, no one from Morgan Stanley had contacted you in connection with the Sunbeam, what becomes the Sunbeam Coleman transaction?

A. Uhm, I don't think so.

I don't think anybody from Morgan had contacts, yes.

Q. Mr. Price calls you to stop by, see the renovation.

Page 67

A. Right.

Q. And have a libation before the evening?

A. Before the evening. So, my wife and I, then, went over.

We rang the bell. I hear a lot of voices. Oh, Mike must be having a party.

In any event, somebody came to the door and we came in, and there was Dunlap, who I said I met before, and the person who was introduced as Russell Kersh, who I had not met before, a woman, who I think was Mike's cousin or something, and Mike, and we had a drink.

Q. What happened? Was there any discussion while you --

A. No discussion about business at all. They went off to dinner and I went off to dinner, separately.

And I remember -- sort of -- kidding Ronald about it when I came back, after that weekend, saying, this is the craziest thing, why did Mike have me over there when Dunlap and Kersh was there; there is something in his mind. That was it.

Q. What did Mr. Perelman say?

Page 68

A. He laughed.

Q. Did you have any further talks with Mr. Price that involved Mr. Dunlap?

A. I did.

Q. What happened next?

A. Price called me shortly thereafter, and said that Dunlap had a significant interest in seeing Sunbeam acquire Coleman, and I said look Mike, you know, Coleman is in the early stages of its turnaround, its stock market price is not going to reflect what we consider to be its real intrinsic value.

So, it is sort of silly to have that kind of a meeting now, wait six or nine months or a year when you will see that the market price will have begun to reflect what the real value is and, you know, you can talk to us then.

He said, no, no, Al is hell-bent on doing it very quickly, he wants to do this right way.

Q. He said that Al Dunlap was bent on doing it?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he mention in this conversation at all Morgan Stanley?

Page 69

A. No. He did not mention Morgan Stanley. This was all Al.

Q. So, at this time when Michael Price called, are we in, sometime in late November of 1997?

A. No. It is late November. It could have been the first week of December, but sometime in that time frame.

Q. And at this time was Mr. Price still the fund manager for the mutual fund that you described?

A. Yes. And they owned a ton of Sunbeam shares.

Q. When you refer to "a ton," does that translate into more than 1 percent?

A. Yes.

Q. So, Mr. Price, obviously, had some financial interest in the performance of Sunbeam stock?

A. Oh, sure.

Q. And he was interested, I would take it, in having it go up, rather than go down?

A. He certainly was.

Q. So, how was this conversation with

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014788

Mr. Price left about Mr. Dunlap's interest in Coleman?
A. I think Mike said -- look, I will have Morgan Stanley, who was representing the company -- call you. I said no, don't have them call me, have them call Jim Maher.
And, some time subsequent to that call, the call went in to Maher from, I think, Bob Kitts or maybe Bill Reid, I am not quite sure -- I think Bill Kitts or Bob Kitts, of Morgan Stanley. And then a subsequent call from Bill Reid to Ronald.
Q. That call takes place after the meeting at Mr. Perelman's house in Palm Beach?
A. I think there was an earlier call, too.
Q. Let me ask you to move forward from the phone call with Mr. Price, now, to -- well, withdrawn. In the call with Mr. Price, the second telephone call -- did he and you discuss a possible meeting with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap?
A. No.
Q. How did the meeting come about, then, on March, on December, what the record will show is December 18th, 1997?

A. Well, Maher started these conversations with Morgan. Morgan expressed the view that the companies should be together, that Al had accomplished a lot with Sunbeam already, more to do, but he could do the same thing with Sunbeam that he had done, the same thing with Coleman that he had done with Sunbeam.
Maher said great -- um -- so, somehow or other, a meeting got set up for sometime in mid-December, where the Coleman guys met with the Sunbeam people.
Q. You did not participate in that meeting; did you?
A. No.
Q. Was that meeting in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Levin attend that meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Page?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that a meeting, did you hear about the topics discussed at the meeting?
A. Yes, they were all talking about, the discussion focused on if a transaction could be done, you know, how would the company be run, would there be synergies or not -- you know, what were their businesses like, where were we in our turnaround.

Where were they. You know, they now had pretty much '97 under their belt; so, they had a pretty good fix of where their numbers were going to be.
Just general conversation like that.
Q. To your knowledge, was anyone from Morgan Stanley at that meeting?
A. I don't know.
Q. Were you ever told that anyone from Morgan Stanley was there?
A. I don't know. I don't remember.
Q. There must come a point in time when a meeting is set up at Mr. Perelman's house. I assume one does not come unannounced?
A. What happens is, after that meeting Mike Price calls me, and I said I have known Mike for a lot of years.
He said look Howard, we want to get this deal done right now. I said Mike, you know, I have told you before, we are in the early stages of a turnaround.

Maybe coming close to the middle of the turnaround.
The market price of the stock does not reflect the company's real value.
I have no interest in selling this company at this time.
Wait six to nine months and you will see the turnaround. The market price will reflect it. Then we can talk about whether it is a transaction.
Q. What did he say?
A. He said, no, no, no. No. Al is insisting, insisting that we press ahead with this. He has Morgan Stanley lined up.
Don't worry, this is a deal that you can get done. I said, I am sure that it is a deal that you can get done but, you know, but it is just silly stuff, it is the Christmas holidays, Ronald is going to be away for two weeks, I am away for two weeks. What are you talking about.
No, no. We got to meet, we got to meet.
Q. This is Mr. Price talking?

011789

A. This is Mr. Price. I said Mike, what's going to happen, we are going to have a meeting, nothing is going to happen for two weeks anyway, we will all 2be away, you are going to be away, too.

He said, no. No. We have to have a meeting. So, Ronald was going to fly down to Palm Beach en route to St. Bart's on the Thursday of that weekend. I was not scheduled to leave with some kids and grand kids until Friday.

I finally said, all right, I will talk to Ronald. Look, Ronald, I will fly down with you and then the plane will take my kids and grandkids down the next day. He said okay, so, we will meet with them.

Q. You flew down to Palm Beach?

A. I flew down with Ronald that afternoon on his plane. My plane stayed back and took my grandkids down the next day. We met at Ronald's house about 5:30. That's what I told --

Q. Now we are at the December 18th meeting at Mr. Perelman's house; correct?

A. That is correct; about 5:30 in the evening. Exactly.

Q. Was there any communication between you and Mr. Dunlap before the meeting on December 18th at Mr. Perelman's house about the meeting, or was it all conducted through Mr. Price?

A. All through Mr. Price.

Q. Mr. Price is acting kind of like an intermediary between the two parties to set up the meeting?

A. The principal shareholder of Sunbeam, yes. That is the role in which he was acting.

Q. Okay. The principal shareholder through his mutual funds?

A. Right.

Q. So, all right, we are at 5:30, December 18th, the doorbell rings.

A. And in comes Mr. Price and Mr. Dunlap.

Q. What happens next?

A. We had some Coca-Cola or -- a glass of iced tea or coffee. If they wanted anything stronger, if they wanted coffee, they could have had it. We went into Mr. Coleman's library and Mr. Dunlap began to extol the virtues of everything that he had done at Sunbeam -- the company is doing great, making money hand over fist. He had taken 26 factories down to eight, some such number. He cut, fired 7,000 people.

I never heard of such stuff, but he was really flying.

Q. Nobody from Morgan Stanley was at this meeting?

A. No. It is just the four of us. And so.

Q. Go ahead.

A. Listen -- so.

I want to buy Coleman, I want to have Sunbeam buy Coleman.

Q. This is Mr. Dunlap talking?

A. Dunlap.

Ronald said to him what I had said to Mike Price, look Al, it is all very interesting, but I have zero interest in selling Coleman at this stage.

The stock market price is not reflective of the true value of the company. I have great confidence in the management team that I put in there to accomplish this turnaround.

They all worked for us before. It is not as if we put new untested, untried people in there.

They tell me that they are going to pull this off, and I believe them. There is no rush. I am not selling it to anybody else. Let me finish the turnaround and let the marketplace reflect it.

And talk to me in six or nine months or a year.

Q. How did Mr. Dunlap respond?

A. Oh, he went crazy, he went crazy. He started pacing up and down. It is a very funny scene. He was wearing a white silk turtleneck. I had never quite seen that before in Palm Beach, and his face got very red. I don't know if he had sunburn, or his face just got red, and he has bleach blond hair.

I was sitting there, just having a little difficult time, not laughing, but -- he is a serious businessman and making a serious proposal; so, I had to take him seriously.

Page 78

So --

Q. I am sorry, go ahead.
A. So, I said to him -- look, Al, this is not a conversation I want to have with you, but I am going to tell you, I have taken a look at your company, the analyst reports, I have looked at mine, I asked CSFB to calculate out one thing for me, which is what price can Sunbeam pay depending upon the amount of synergies that we would agree might be available.
Without us being dilutive to Sunbeam. And that is 30 bucks a share.
And I have zero interest in selling for less than that. And I either thought that -- you know -- an attack on, you know, Dunlap's manhood or something, he went, you know, yelling and screaming, and his face was red, we want to do a share-for-share exchange.
All of a sudden I said Al, what's the sense of having this meeting, we told Mike five times now that we have no interest in selling this business at this stage.
So, why would you even come in and talk to us about that. That is another transaction. You know, I hope you enjoy your Christmas holiday, and we will see you in a year or so.

Page 79

Q. What did Mr. Dunlap say?
A. Oh, no, Mr. Dunlap started screaming, no, this is a deal that cries out to be done, Morgan has looked all over, Morgan determined who should be our next acquisition. You are our favorite candidate.
You are the only one we want to do this merger with.
Morgan is prepared to finance it, and on and on and on. And his face was getting redder and redder.
I said, Al, please, this is only a business transaction. It is not going to change your style of living and certainly not going to change ours. You know, there is no rush.
I mean, you are going to have a heart attack, calm down. I was really worried.
He started pointing his finger at me, I don't get heart attacks, I give heart attacks, and I am going to give you a heart attack.

And I did not like that too much.
So, either Ron -- this is a silly conversation, you know.
This is a conversation that is going nowhere and you ought to go ahead and have a nice Christmas.
Mike Price called me a day or two later to apologize for him. I mean, he was just way too emotional. This was a business transaction, nothing to get emotional about.
Q. I want to ask you a couple of specific questions about some reports that I have read of the meeting and ask you whether they are accurate with your recollection.
A. Sure.
Q. Were you ever interviewed by John Byrne for his book Chain Saw?
A. I may have been, but I don't remember that.
Q. Some of the things that you described are almost verbatim out of his transcript of the meeting.
A. It could be.

Page 81

Q. Mr. Byrne describes --
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Your microphone.
Q. Mr. Byrne describes some portion of the meeting and, and he attributes to Mr. Dunlap the statement, Ron you are a pig. You know your company is a piece of shit, you will never see it worth $30 a share in your lifetime, it is only worth 20 bucks, and that is an early Christmas present. Was something like that said?
A. No, he would never have called Ronald a pig. He did not lose that much control. Actually, Ronald and I always thought that he hadn't really lost control, this was just part of his act. This is, you know, the Rambo act.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap say words to the effect, during the discussions on price, well fuck you, screw you, you guys don't know what you are talking about?
A. He did use certain scatologic terms.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman reply "fuck you"?
A. No.
Q. He would never use a term like that?
A. Ronald doesn't talk like that.

Page 82

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap shout at the meeting?
A. Oh, yes. He was very exercised.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap say words to the effect, quote, I am going to save this company for you, I am going to do for -- ah, do what I did at Scott and Sunbeam, I am going to cut all of the costs out? Did he say words like that?
A. Oh, yes. He said words like that.
Q. Then, you are attributed as saying look Al, don't get yourself so excited, you are going to have a heart attack here?
A. That is absolutely accurate.
Q. And then Mr. Dunlap is reported to have said, which I think is consistent with what you said, "I don't get heart attacks, I give heart attacks and I am going to give you a heart attack"?
A. Right. That happened. You don't forget that.
Q. And then you are attributed as saying to Mr. Dunlap, calm down, this is only business, whether we make this deal or not, Ron is not going to be any more or less rich and I am not going to be any more or less rich, I am not going to change -- it is not going to change any of our lives, I don't think it is going to change yours. I know it is not going to change Mike's.

Was something like that said?
A. Something like that I would have said, yes.
Q. Then Dunlap screamed, according to Mr. Byrne, fuck you guys, you will never make a deal, I told you Perelman, you should never listen to lawyers.
A. That means me.
Q. I think it means you.
A. Yes. He said something like that.
Q. Then Dunlap is reported to have stormed out of the house. Did he do that?
A. Well, stormed out. He left.
Q. In a hurry?
A. He did not finish his coke, I will put it that way.
Q. And as he was walking out, did he shout, words to the effect, fuck you and fuck your company?
A. No. I don't remember that.
Q. Did you come to the conclusion -- well, have you ever been in a meeting like that with another businessman of Mr. Dunlap's stature where he behaved like that?

A. Well, I have been in business where people lose their temper, you know, but this was pretty extreme. Donald and I both talked about it actually afterwards. 85 percent -- we thought it was 85 percent act. You know, he was one of those macho, U.S. Army Ranger type guys and he likes to talk tough, you know. It was not very effective with us, but that is how we read it, at least.
Q. What happens -- well, withdrawn.
Did you finish your cokes after Mr. Dunlap left?
A. Ronald and I did, yes.
Q. And after that, did you take off for your two-week vacation as you had planned?
A. Actually Ronald took off the next morning to go to St. Bart's and I just went around the corner to my home, which is three minutes away, and I spent the next two weeks at, the next 12 days, I think, in Palm Beach with my children and grandchildren, and then I went over to St. Bart's for Ronald's birthday.

Ronald's birthday is, it is January 1st. He was the first child born on January 1st.
And historically, for 20-some years, we spent his birthday together. So, I flew over from Palm Beach to St. Bart's for his birthday party, which we celebrated, no discussion of Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Price.
Q. So, what is the next thing that you remember happening in connection with the Coleman Sunbeam transaction after this meeting with Mr. Dunlap in Palm Beach?
A. Morgan Stanley called Maher, and again, I don't remember whether it was Kitts or Reid -- and Bill Reid called Ronald, that I do know, saying look, this is really silly, these two companies should be together, we worked on this for months. You know, Al gets carried away, let's leave Al out of this. Let's see if we can't get this back on track.
Q. Did you consider there being anything improper about Morgan Stanley speaking to -- to MacAndrews & Forbes again about whether negotiations could be restarted?
A. Not at all.
Q. Or discussions?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014792

Page 86

A. Morgan Stanley has been a bank of ours for years. You know, we have had very good relations with them. There was no problem at all in their calling us like that.

Bill Reid was the guy in charge of our account at Morgan Stanley at that time -- he succeeded Eric Gleacher and Joe Perella. There were a series of guys at Morgan.

He was trying to get us to buy Gucci, it was a company that we looked at.

And so, it was perfectly appropriate for them to call Ronald or to call me, or to have some of the younger guys call Maher. There was no problem at all with that.

And they were trying to get a deal done. It is their job.

Q. Mr. Perelman said, in his deposition, that he did speak to Mr. Reid sometime in January, approximately, January. Were you on that call?

A. No.

Q. Did you hear about the call?

A. Yes. He told me right away.

Q. To the best you can recall -- it is years later, I understand -- what did

Page 87

Mr. Perelman tell you about the call with Mr. Reid?

A. Well, Bill said, look, you know, Al gets carried away, you know, it doesn't detract from whether or not these two companies will do well together.

Ronald said to him, look, Bill, this is a simple deal, you know, Jerry -- he knew Jerry Levin very well -- you know, we are in the middle of a turnaround. You know us, you know that we will pull it off, we will get it accomplished, what the hell is the rush. You want to buy it, you can buy it a year from now, you don't have to buy it now.

Bill just repeated, look, Al wants to get this deal done and he wants to get it done right away. And he reiterated, also, that Morgan was prepared to finance the deal.

So, after I heard that --

Q. This is what Mr. Perelman is telling you Mr. Reid said?

A. Yes. Then after I hear that, so let me look into this a little more.

And I call Mark Davis, because that's how we met Dunlap, and he did the Scott deal.

So, I said to Mark Davis, Mark I am going to ask you a question, you don't have to answer if you don't want to.

But, you know, Al Dunlap has been around in connection with a potential transaction -- I did not describe the transaction to him -- and he is represented by Morgan Stanley, what happened to you. Because he is the guy that brought him to us, originally.

He said, look, Al was trying to sell Sunbeam, and he pumped that stock so high because it was, talking that he drove the price of the stock so high that nobody was willing to buy it.

He said, I, Mark Davis, told him I couldn't get him more than maybe mid-30 or $35 a share, I forget the exact number, some number in the 30s.

And he said well, you are no good, you know, you are a white shoe banker, get out of here, I am going to hire the best. I am going to hire Morgan Stanley.

And that's when Morgan Stanley came in, sometime in the mid-1997, as best I can tell. And he said they pumped him up now, not that they can sell the company, but that he ought to be buying. And they are willing to use their balance sheet to finance.

And that's why Morgan Stanley is doing this and not me.

Q. Did you say that in advance of the meeting on December 18th, that there had been at least some analysis of analysts reports on Sunbeam by CSFB?

A. Sure.

Q. Who had requested that work be done by CSFB?

A. Me.

Q. You?

A. Aha.

Q. In 1997, let's take the month of December, were there analysts that were following Sunbeam?

A. Oh, sure.

Q. About how many?

A. I don't remember now, but at least half a dozen.

Q. Were they analysts at houses,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014793

Page 90

investment houses that you respected?
A. Some were and some weren't.
Q. Was Sunbeam, in your view, a widely followed stock in the analysts community?
A. I am surprised. I thought it was more widely followed than I thought it would have been.
Q. Was one of the analysts Andrew Shore?
A. Yes.
Q. What is your opinion of Andrew Shore?
A. I think Andrew is excellent. I have known Andrew for a long time.
Q. And was, there is a couple other analysts that I would like to ask you about.
Do you know Mr. Hayman?
A. Yes, I do know Mr. Hayman.
Q. What was your opinion of Mr. Hayman? I think his first name is Nicholas.
A. Not very high.
Q. Not very high. Do you know Mr. William Steele at Buckingham Research, or was at that time?

Page 91

A. No. I never heard of him.
Q. How about John Gibbons at Merrill Lynch?
A. No.
Q. Scott Graham at CIBC Oppenheimer?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember the, what analyst that CSFB looked at when it was preparing this analysis for Mr. Perelman in advance of the December 18th meeting?
A. No. All I said was, look at the -- tell me what they think they are going to make for '97 and what the projections were. By then the projections were out for '98 or maybe longer. I don't know what Al was doing.
In order to do the calculation I wanted to get done, I wanted to have some baseline to start with, the baseline, what were they making in '97, and projecting for '98. I know what Coleman thinks it is going to make and I can pick any number I want as to what potential synergies are, because I don't know the answer to that.
But I know how to size it, and then I can determine where you get the dilution.

Page 92

That is the only exercise that I was interested in.
Q. CSFB, at the time of the December 18th meeting, had an analyst following Coleman; didn't it?
A. I think so, but I am not sure. If they did, I don't know who it was. I did not deal with them.
Q. Are you familiar with a company called First Call?
A. Yes, I know First Call.
Q. What is it?
A. It is a compendium of analysts' reports that they will say, you know, The Street estimate is, and then they will take a number of estimates and divide them by the number and they get sort of an average of The Street estimates.
Q. Is that, is first call something that you look at in your business when you are analyzing estimates on a company's growth over a period, or the next period of time that you are measuring?
A. No.
Q. You never look at them?

Page 93

A. Never look at them.
Q. You never look at -- do you look at a service, IBES?
A. No.
Q. Do you know what that is?
A. No.
Q. I will get the name of it at the break from the computer. I can't remember. I can never remember what the name is, what the acronym stands for.
Did you show your, your analysis, if you will, to Mr. Dunlap at the December 18th meeting?
A. I don't recall whether I did or not. I know I had one sheet, a one-sheeter with me that showed that, that showed the synergies, potential synergies of 100, 125, 150. Mr. Dunlap looked at me -- and he said, that is why you don't know what you are doing, it is 250 million in synergies here. You know. I started to scratch my head. I said what's this guy telling me, that it is 250 in synergies and he is complaining about a price. It was sort of counterproductive, but that was the conversation.

Q. What was the result of your analysis that you had done by CSFB?
A. That he could pay us 30 bucks a share and not suffer dilution.
Q. When you said "dilution," dilution in his earnings per share; correct?
A. Exactly. That's not the full analysis, you know. That was the top of the head analysis.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Five minutes.
MR. BEMIS: Let's change the tape. We are going to run out of tape in five minutes.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:49 a.m., and this is the end of tape number 1.
(Recess.)
MR. BEMIS: Back on the record.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Stand by.
Q. After the December 18th meeting and following the phone call from Mr. --
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Excuse me. The time is 11:53 a.m., and this begins tape number 2.
MR. BEMIS: Now we are on the record.
Q. Following the December 18th meeting and moving up all the way to the call that Mr. Perelman received, as he testified from Mr. Reid, I take it you had really no involvement in any discussions in that kind of gap period; is that correct?
A. No. There were no discussions during that gap period.
Q. I think the description I used yesterday with Mr. Perelman was, as of December 18th, the matter was dead in the water, as far as he was concerned; is that fair?
A. I think it never started, it was pretty close to being dead in the water.
Q. If it ever got started, it got turned off?
A. Yes.
Q. Moving now into January, as a result of Mr. Reid's call, or if it was someone else who called Mr. Maher, it is not clear -- did discussions resume?
A. Yes. Mr. Maher then resumed discussions with Morgan. And from that standpoint, from that time on, the bulk of the discussions were between Mr. Maher and Mr. Levin and his team, on our side -- and Morgan Stanley, on the other side.
Q. I take it you did not arrange for any additional meetings with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman?
A. Ah, no. There were no further meetings.
Q. Did you ever meet Mr. Dunlap again?
A. I don't think so.
Q. All right.
A. That is not true. That is not true. I apologize. I think I saw him once in what had come to be called the Sunbeam building in Boca Raton, after his termination, ah -- somewhere, either he was in the building one time to get some papers or something, and I think I passed him, but we spoke no words.
Q. Did someone -- strike that.
Who was in charge of due diligence on the MacAndrews & Forbes side as the discussions went forward?
A. Well, we had the Maher team, which is Maher and Nesbitt, and we had the Coleman team, which was Jerry Levin, Joe Paige, Bobby Jenkins and Paul Shapiro. He is a Philadelphia Shapiro.
Q. Shapiro.
All right.
All right. So, on the MacAndrews & Forbes team we have Mr. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt and then --
A. And Glen Dickes overseeing the legal aspect.
Q. Then we have Mr. Dickes and Mr. Levin and Mr. Paige down the Coleman side of the transaction?
A. Levin, Paige, Jenkins, Shapiro.
Q. Do you know what due diligence was done by Mr. Nesbitt and Mr. Maher with regard to Sunbeam?
A. I couldn't tell you now. Whatever they thought was necessary.
Q. Were you following the due diligence -- well, I will put it this way. Was the Sunbeam Coleman deal your deal or Mr. Maher's deal?
A. It was not my deal, it was Mr. Maher's deal, but Mr. Maher did not have the power to sign anything and I did. So, I would not get back, I did not get back into this until probably February, right after I got back from vacation.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 98

Q. When did you get back from vacation?
A. I don't remember now, but around the 20th, probably.
Q. Then the deal closes, like, within a week.
A. Right.
Q. Did you consider it --
Well, withdrawn.
Was that a fast, was it a fast deal?
A. Very fast. And that was driven by Morgan. They wanted to do this very quickly.
Q. Did someone tell you that Morgan wanted to do the deal fast or Sunbeam wanted to do the deal fast?
A. I know Sunbeam did, but I was told that Morgan wanted to do it fast, too.
Q. Did someone from Morgan Stanley tell you that?
A. No. It was one of our guys repeating what Morgan Stanley told them.
Q. Who was that who told you that?

Page 99

A. I think it was either Nesbitt or Maher.
Q. What did Mr. Nesbitt or Mr. Maher tell you?
A. That Sunbeam was driving Morgan to get it done then and Morgan liked the financing markets then.
Q. So, Sunbeam was driving Morgan Stanley and Morgan Stanley thought the financing markets were time for this transaction?
A. Yes. We do that all the time. It was not unusual. You know, when you catch good financing markets, particularly in a transaction this size, you don't want to lose your market. February is historically a good time to finance this kind of paper.
Q. When -- the paper here we are talking about are the almost two point, I think it is -- 014 billion dollars worth of the debentures that were eventually issued?
A. Well, there was, the zero convert, which was the face of about two billion dollars, and then there was the bank loans, which were about a billion 7.

Page 100

Q. Thank you, you are right. There was a second component. That is what we are talking about, the financing?
A. Yes.
Q. All of that financing is interest rate-sensitive; right?
A. Sure.
Q. Did you -- well, withdrawn.
What is the first thing that you did when you got back from vacation, I think you said about February 20th, 1998, that relates to the Coleman Sunbeam transaction?
A. I got Maher and Nesbitt in my office, and I said, asked them where we were.
You know, tell me what is being done, where are the documents, where are Jerry and his team in connection with their due diligence. How is our business doing.
I think I talked to Jerry, probably to Paul about that.
Paul was my better contact inside Coleman than was Jerry. I talked to Paul a lot about it. Gave it to a partner of -- worked for me a long time.
Q. This is Mr. Shapiro?

Page 101

A. Yes. So, then, I said well, look, you better get Morgan and Sunbeam in to take you through one last time, take us, Dickes is telling me that the contract is going to be signed by the end of February.
I want to get one final run-through, where you guys tell me that you are satisfied.
And that led to the meeting which took place sometime after the 20th of February and before the 27th.
The result of that meeting was delivery to me of these Morgan Stanley books.
My question then was, did anything come up at the meeting that would lead you to conclude that the Morgan Stanley book was inaccurate.
He said, no, to the contrary, everybody is extolling the virtues of this company and what is going to happen and how great it is going to be. And I said Okay.
Q. Mr. Perelman testified yesterday that Mr. Levin told Mr. Perelman, that at least for the month of January Sunbeam's sales were soft.
Were you told that by Mr. Nesbitt or

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014796

Mr. Maher?
A. Yes.
Q. So, both Mr. Nesbitt and Mr. Maher told you that fact?
A. Well, one or the other, and it could have been Mr. Levin said that January sales were slow.
But that February was okay.
And they were going to make the quarter. The estimate for the quarter was very high.
Q. So, did you --
A. Not unusual in the consumer products company, a slow January, by the way.
Q. So, having, looking at -- I will show you now MS 84, which, I think, is, is one of the documents that we talked about earlier. I said that we will come back to it, and we will.
A. All right.
Q. I have handed you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, and you have that in front of you; correct?
A. Aha.
Q. If you will turn to the page, and I am going to use the Bates numbered pages, and I will just use the last two digits for you, that are with CPH. Because there are no page numbers on these charts. Turn to 71.

A. All right.
Q. Now, in Mr. Levin' handwriting it says "Jan slow," and my understanding is that either Mr. Maher or Nesbitt repeated that to you when you spoke to one of the two of them?
A. It could have been Jerry himself.
Q. There is nothing written below February that I see -- but your recollection is that there was discussion about February was okay?
A. Right. At least that's what they told us.
Q. That's what they told you. You were not at that meeting?
A. I was not. That's what Sunbeam told our guys.
Q. They told them "Jan slow"?
A. January slow, February okay. We are going to make the quarter.
Q. We are going to make the quarter. Now, the quarter being what was going to happen in the future, what was going to be the result by the end of March?

A. March 31st. But by -- February 23rd, most businesses, you know, what's going to happen by March 31st.
Q. At any point in time before the closing, did anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes' due diligence team, whether it be Mr. Levin's group or Mr. Nesbitt, Maher, ask for interim financial statements of Sunbeam for the month of January to see how slow they were?
A. I don't think so. I don't know if they did.
Q. You did not do that?
A. No.
Q. If anyone should have done it, it should have been Mr. Maher; right?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
A. It was not particularly relevant. If they are going to make the quarter, they are going to make the quarter.
Q. I asked you about January. At any point, up to the closing, did anyone from the MacAndrews & Forbes due diligence team ask Sunbeam for its February interim financial statements?

A. No, I did not even know if they had them.
Q. Up to the point of closing, which the record will show is March 30th, 1998, did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes due diligence team ask Sunbeam for its interim financial statements for any month in 1998?
A. Not that I know of.
Q. Did they ask for an update foreclosing on where Sunbeam was for its sales for the first quarter of 1998?
A. Sure.
Q. Who asked?
A. I am sure Mr. Nesbitt did, because I asked him. Because, on March 18th they put this statement out, saying they are not going to make what The Street was projecting they are going to make for the first quarter. They were going to make more than last year.
Q. So, you --
A. That is not in terms of earnings, but it is in terms of sales. I see this press release, said -- well, Nesbitt, what's going on. Nesbitt, that day, March 18th, had been on the road, at the road show presentation. There was a road show presentation on the zero converts in New York, on the 18th.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014797

I said, was there any indication of this that they are not going to make their quarter.

He said No, they are going to make their quarter and they are going to make their year.

I said, are you sure of that?

He said Yes, the release, I don't know what this is.

I had him call -- I don't know who he talked to at Morgan, but he talked to somebody.

And he said oh, the lawyers made us do this, this is silly, we are going to be fine.

Q. Mr. Nesbitt told you that he said the lawyers told him to do this?

A. Yes.

Q. You weren't on that call?

A. No. I was not on any of these calls.

Page 107

Q. So, Mr. Nesbitt would be the one who would know who he spoke to and what was said?

A. Yes, right. And I am not sure whether it was somebody at Morgan, but I think it was, or somebody at Sunbeam.

But the only person that you could talk to at Sunbeam was Kersh, and Kersh was in Boston making the same speech.

Q. You never attended any of the road shows?

A. No.

Q. Anything that you think you heard about the road shows came from someone else telling you what they heard?

A. Yes. I sent people -- it just doesn't happen by accident.

Q. Did you, did -- other than this conversation with Mr. Nesbitt, up to the point of closing, was there any other action taken by MacAndrews & Forbes' due diligence team, that you are aware of, to confirm what Sunbeam's sales were as of the date of the closing, March 30th, 1998?

A. No. Because we had a provision in our agreement which said that they are going to bring whatever, you know, adverse changes occurred to our attention, and nothing was ever brought to our attention.

Q. So, the answer is No?

A. No.

Q. When you spoke to Mr. Nesbitt, this was after the March 19th press release; right?

A. Yeah. The 18th, they were road showing in New York, the 19th in Boston. I spoke to him right, as soon as that thing came out.

Q. Did you ever, after you spoke to Mr. Nesbitt -- withdrawn.

Other than this conversation with Mr. Nesbitt, where you believe he spoke to someone at either Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley, did you have any other communications with him, with the MacAndrews & Forbes due diligence team about Sunbeam's results for the first quarter of 1998, before the closing?

A. No. I mean -- you got them on the road show, they are road showing it, two billion dollars worth of securities, you know, and telling the world that they are going to make their quarter, they are going to make their year.

What they are telling me. I have a provision and agreement that says that they are going to bring any material, adverse changes to my notice, and nobody is telling me anything, and they are telling the world, Morgan Stanley is sitting in the room, this is not Joe Jones, some two-bit street broker, this is Morgan Stanley.

Sitting in a room, letting this happen.

Q. You weren't in the room, just so the jury understands?

A. The jury can understand, I was not in that room.

Q. You don't know what was said, other than what you have been told?

A. I do know that had -- I have done a lot of road shows, okay. If they had told them that they are going to miss their quarter and miss their year, they would not have sold these securities, okay. These securities not only got sold, they were oversold.

Q. They were -- after the press release was issued.

Page 110

A. After the press release was issued. The press release did not raise a lot of hackles in anybody's mind.
Q. Do you know what the market did after the press release was issued on March 19th?
A. Yes, the market went off a few points.
Q. It went off almost 10 percent; didn't it?
A. Yeah, but it had been up so high, that is all right. That value of Sunbeam, when it went off the 10 percent, that was okay with me.
Q. It was okay when the market dropped 10 percent?
A. That was okay with me. I would have taken the Sunbeam stock at that price. That did not bother me.
You know, the stock was worth 43, 44, that is a good price of Sunbeam.
If you take a look at the transaction and you calculate out, you know what that would have meant to us, take it 14-million-0 shares, that was a nice price.

Page 111

It is above the 30 bucks a share that we wanted.
Q. Let's take this up to the -- withdrawn.
Did you speak to anyone -- strike that.
To your knowledge, did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes due diligence team, as you have described it, have CSFB make any inquiry of Sunbeam about its first quarter results following the March 19th press release?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes team due diligence team, as you have described it, and to your knowledge, make any inquiry of Arthur Andersen, Sunbeam's accountants, about how Sunbeam was doing for the first quarter?
A. I don't think we had any direct contact with Arthur Andersen, at least not that I know of.
Q. Are you aware of, you told me that you were familiar with debt offerings and road shows; is that correct?
A. Yes.

Page 112

Q. In connection with issuing debt, after, you are familiar with the underwriter receiving comfort letters from the auditors; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. At any point after the March 19th press release, did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes due diligence team request from Morgan Stanley a copy of the comfort letters that it would have received in connection with the underwriting?
A. No. Because I wouldn't believe that they had received the comfort letters which we discovered later in the Arthur Andersen litigation that anybody would have closed that -- or would have permitted us to close that transaction.
Q. I take it your answer is that you made no such request?
A. No such request.
Q. Comfort letters, the comfort letters that were received by Morgan Stanley just weren't from Arthur Andersen, they were also a comfort letter from the Coleman Company; correct?

Page 113

A. Right. The Coleman companies were fine, but the Arthur Andersen letters were not fine.
Q. The Coleman Company, in order for its auditors to issue a comfort letter that would have been requested of Ernst & Young by Coleman; correct?
A. Sure. The standard.
Q. Standard procedure.
A. Standard.
Q. Likewise, the standard procedure would be for Sunbeam to tell Arthur Andersen -- or request that Arthur Andersen, is probably a better term -- issue a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley covering the period since the last audited financial statements; correct?
A. Absolutely, one would expect, having received that comfort letter, that that transaction would have stopped then, right in its tracks.
Q. But, as I understand it, you were perfectly happy after March 19th to close the transaction, even at the lower stock price, even with the drop in the price of the Sunbeam stock after March 19th?

014799

A. Still over the 30 bucks a share, but I wouldn't have closed it if they told me what was going on. This was one of these gigantic frauds, the beginning of the gigantic frauds of the 20th Century.
Q. Did you know, at the time, that Arthur Andersen was engaged in a massive fraud at Sunbeam?
A. I don't think Arthur Andersen was engaged in a massive fraud. I think Sunbeam was engaged in a massive fraud that they did not find.
Q. Arthur Andersen did not find it.
A. Okay.
(The following portion has been deemed confidential and bound under separate cover.)

Q. Isn't it a fact that MacAndrews & Forbes, one of its entities, sued Arthur Andersen for fraud in connection with its audits?
A. Sure. And they paid us.
Q. And they paid you $70,000,000?
A. Yes.
MR. SOLOVY: Wait a minute. Pursuant to our contractual agreement with Andersen, I ask that you make that question and answer a separate document, mark it highly confidential.
(Continued in non-confidential portion of transcript.)

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Other than the meeting in February, the meeting that you, that Mr. Nesbitt and Mr. Maher apparently attended and collected the Exhibit MS 84 that you had in front of you and the other document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85 we looked at earlier, can you describe for the jury any other due diligence that the MacAndrews & Forbes team did after February 23rd -- which is, by the way, the date of that meeting, February 23rd --
A. Right.
Q. -- up to closing.
A. Not that I know of.
Q. Where were you on the date of the closing, which was, again, March 30th, 1998?
A. I have not the slightest idea.
Q. You remembered where you were on vacation. I thought you might remember --
A. No.
Q. Sometimes we remember those things.
A. No.
Q. Did you ever review any of the financial modeling that Mr. Nesbitt did in connection with the Sunbeam Coleman transaction?

A. Sure.
Q. Let me show you one of the exhibits and I will ask you if this is the type of thing that you reviewed.
I will show you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 105.
Do you have Exhibit 105 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. I don't remember seeing this before.
Q. Is this, though, the type of document that you saw that Mr. Nesbitt prepared as the analyst for the MacAndrews & Forbes due diligence team?
A. Yes, I probably would have seen iterations. This is too early, December 10th, 1997. I wouldn't have been looking at this document.
Q. Have you seen any documents like this that are dated after December 10th, 1997?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Okay.
That would have been Mr. Maher's

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014800

Page 118

responsibility to review those?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you working, by the way, during the January, February time frame, on the Panavision deal?
A. Um, I don't think I was particularly working on that. They all -- come to my desk, but -- I was not engaged in the discussions with Warburg Pincus, who were the -- or the seller there.
Q. What were you involved with in the January, February time frame on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Ah, I was spending an enormous amount of on the bank deal.
Q. The financing?
A. The bank deals.
Q. Oh, the bank deals.
A. Yeah. They were huge transactions for us, complex, and I spent a lot of my time on that.
Q. Were you working with Todd Slotkin on those?
A. Todd is the chief financial officer. He reports to me.

Page 119

Q. Which bank deals are you referring to?
A. Well, there was a continuum of bank transactions starting in 1992 or '93, when we acquired First Nationwide, which were a series of divestitures and a series of acquisitions, and a series of financings in connection with really good size, much larger transactions than these. And --
Q. Much larger than Sunbeam?
A. Yes. And we had a -- I spent a lot of time there. The bank was headquartered in San Francisco and I was going back and forth to San Francisco.
And I don't recall where this came in the continuum of the cigar business -- what you will find is that, as we were geared up, all of the operating companies report to Ronald. That is what his real interest is in, is in the operations of the companies.
But there are just too many of them, many times; and so, we will assign out various of the operating units to me and to Donnie Drapkin. So, like, Coleman was his, that's why he was on the Coleman board and I was not.

The bank, cigar, um, they were my babies to watch.
So, as Ronald watched their operations, he needed some help, and that is what we are doing then. So, I did not get in the Panavision until two or three years later.
Q. Was that when Panavision ran into difficulties?
A. Yes. That is when I got into it.
Q. Do you get into, you get into difficulties when they get into difficulties --
A. Yes. A transaction that is going to happen or a financing that they are going to do or there is some difficulty, or the company is doing great, you don't see much of me.
Q. When you refer to the bank deals, you weren't referring to financing for MacAndrews & Forbes, you were actually referring to our own, into buying and selling of banks?
A. And the financing of that.
Q. I, at one point, thought you were referring to your term and revolving credit agreements.

Page 121

A. No. Revolving credit agreements with us are, you know, pretty standard. Todd does those. He will talk to me about that, but they don't take a lot of our time.
Q. Okay, you can hand back Morgan Stanley 105 to me.
A. All right.
Q. Let me show you two other exhibits, Exhibit 106, we will start with that, and I will ask you if you have seen that.
I have handed you what has been marked as Exhibit 106. Have you seen that before?
A. I don't know whether I have seen documents like this.
Q. This one is dated on January 26th, 1998, which, I believe, Mr. Nesbitt did confirm when he was deposed.
A. Sure.
Q. By the way, what is your opinion of Mr. Nesbitt as an analyst, having worked with him?
A. I think he is quiet good.
Q. What is his -- in your view, what is his reputation for honesty?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011601

Court 9 67

Page 122

A. He is completely honest.
Q. And probity?
A. Quite high.
Q. Truth and veracity?
A. I think he tells the truth.
Q. We are done with that.
What is your opinion of Mr. Maher -- reputation for truth and veracity?
A. Very high.
Q. His reputation for probity?
A. The same.
Q. I will show you one more document, similar to what we have been looking at, and then we will be done with these.
A. Aha.
Q. I have handed you Exhibit 107. Have you seen that one before?
A. I am sure I have seen a document like this. Whether it is this one or some other iteration, I can't tell you.
Q. Is this the type of internal analysis that you would expect to see from a Mr. Nesbitt in connection with the, a merger like the Sunbeam Coleman merger transaction?
A. Sure.

Page 123

Q. Okay.
A. You notice the one you showed me previously, assumed -- ah -- synergies of 100,000,000. This one assumes synergies of 150. As I told you, Mr. Dunlap told me it was going to be 250, but we were not as bullish as he was.
Q. Okay. You can hand that back to me, and we are all done with that.
A. Aha.
Q. Thank you.
Are you aware of any interviews of Sunbeam's customers such as a Walmart or a K Mart, during the due diligence that was conducted by the MacAndrews & Forbes team before the closing?
A. No. That would have been done by the Coleman team themselves. Jerry Levin is the one that would have the contact with those customers.
Q. Are you aware of Mr. Levin making any contacts with Sunbeam's customers as part of the due diligence?
A. I know he made contact with the customers. Whether it was before or after closing, I don't know.

Page 124

Q. In advance of the -- before the closing on March 30th, are you aware of any meetings by the MacAndrews & Forbes due diligence teams with analysts that were following Sunbeam?
A. I don't think so.
Q. I said meetings. I would ask you the same question with regard to just conversations on whether they be face-to-face or on the telephone.
A. I don't know the answer to that, because I know Jerry, for instance, had a very good relationship with Andy Shore.
Q. That is Jerry Levin?
A. Yes. And whether he talked to Andy or not, I don't know.
Q. Did you --
A. Jerry also had a good relationship with Conney Maneatty, who, I think, was covering them, as well. I don't know the answer to that.
Q. Was there a procedure by which Mr. Perelman was kept advised of the status of the negotiations between Sunbeam and Coleman prior to the closing?

A. Well, if he doesn't sign off on price, no one else can. So, he is, has to be aware of price, and he would be aware of the terms -- that is, how much cash, how much stock. He has the final say on that, not me.
And he would be advised -- that you have to understand, we are a very small organization, and he walks the halls, you know; so, it is my office or Maher's office or Jerry had an office up on the 5th floor. It is only a five-story building.
Ronald was there and out of everybody's office, but nobody had authority to negotiate that price if he did not give them.
Q. What about the structure of the transaction? Did anyone have authority to negotiate the structure, other than Mr. Perelman?
A. He wouldn't negotiate it himself. He would instruct his negotiators as to what he was willing do, and it was their job to negotiate then with Morgan.
Q. Did you receive from Mr. Perelman

011802

any instructions, that you can remember, about the structure of the consideration that he wanted in the transaction?
A. He wanted stock.
Q. All stock, if he could get it?
A. Yes. Aha.
Q. Did he tell you why he wanted all stock?
A. He believed Morgan.
Q. He believed Morgan.
Did he believe in Sunbeam?
A. Well --
Q. Did he tell you that he believed in Sunbeam?
A. He believed in what Morgan told him about Sunbeam.
Q. Did he believe in Mr. Dunlap?
A. Look, Dunlap had a great record up to that point. It is hard to argue with the record. He did not implode until far after that, until this deal.
Q. Why did the transaction then eventually result in not all stock -- that is, some cash and some assumption of debt?
A. Because Morgan wanted to close the deal right away. They couldn't give us more than 19.8 percent of the stock without going and, without getting New York Stock Exchange approval, which requires time, and they did not want to take the time. That's what set the cap on the stock that we could get.

Q. You say Morgan wanted to close. Did Sunbeam, in your understanding, want to close to the client --
A. Sure. I said that before, absolutely. They both wanted to close right away. They did not want to go to the Stock Exchange, which would have taken time. So, that put the cap on the amount of stock that we could get.
Q. It was that issue that caused Mr. Perelman to take less than 100 percent stock?
A. Yes.
Q. If he could have taken 100 percent stock, he would have?
A. He would have.
Q. Did you ever encourage -- strike that.
Did you ever suggest to him that he should not do that, that he should take cash?

Page 128

A. That is irrelevant. That is why he is richer than me. I would always take cash, but he is far more bullish than I am.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Levin, were you ever present when Mr. Levin said words to the effect that he, Mr. Perelman, should take as cash and not stock?
A. I don't recall that. At least, it was not in my presence.
Q. I take it, given the 1998 markets being what they were, there was more upside in stock than in cash?
A. Ronald certainly believed so.
MR. BEMIS: Let's break for lunch.
MR. SOLOVY: Sure.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.

EXAMINATION (cont'd)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I am handing you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75, which has been marked in previous depositions. It is A chronology that was prepared by Wachtel -- the Wachtel Lipton firm and submitted to the SEC.
I have just a couple of questions about meetings that you are shown to have attended, and the first one is on December 16TH, 1997, and if you could turn to that, and let me know when you are there.

014803

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 130

A. All right. I have no recollection of either the 16th or the 17th meetings. I am sure it was just to get me prepared for the meeting of the 18th.
Q. I will ask your indulgence. I will ask a question and if you want, you can give the same answer.
A. Go ahead.
Q. There is a reference to you attending on December 16th, 1997, a meeting with Mr. Perelman, Mr. Maher and Mr. Levin and others. Do you have any recollection of that meeting?
A. No.
Q. There is also a meeting on December 17th, which includes Mr. Perelman, Mr. Maher, Mr. Shapiro, and representatives of CSFB were also at the December 16th meeting, according to this document.
Do you recall the December 17th meeting?
A. No.
Q. Was it at one of these two meetings that you would have received the brief analysis, as I think you described it, of the analysts' views of Sunbeam?

Page 131

A. Yes.
Q. That would, then, be consistent with what you recall. You had this analysis when you met with Mr. Dunlap on December 18th; correct?
A. It was not an analysis of what the analysts said. What it was is using numbers for '97, '98, contained in the various analysts' reports. Know -- knowing what we did about the Coleman earnings for '97, '98, at what price could Sunbeam do a transaction and not dilute their common stock.
Q. And it is -- did you have any -- withdrawn.
Did you have any role in retaining CSFB?
A. Um, I don't recall now whether it was Maher or myself. I am sure we talked about it.
Q. Why did you select CSFB for this transaction?
A. Well, if it was me, it was because I had a lot of confidence in Gordon Rich. Gordon Rich was just a wonderful, wonderful banker.

Q. Were you present at any time CSFB was given any instructions with regard to what they were to do after being retained by Coleman?
A. Um, I don't know whether I was present or they simply conveyed my wish to look at the dilution analysis, prior to my meeting of the 18th.
Q. Do you know what CSFB was tasked to do after the resumption of discussions among the parties sometime in January, 1998?
A. No. They were being driven by Maher at that point.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see a draft press release that Sunbeam prepared in December announcing the merger of Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. December '97?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. I will show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 418.
A. Thank you. Can I give you this back?

Page 133

Q. Yes, you may.
A. All right.
Q. I have handed you what we marked, I think it was yesterday, at Mr. Perelman's deposition, Exhibit 418, which is a draft press release dated December 22nd, 1997, entitled "Sunbeam Corporation announces combination with Coleman Chairman Al Dunlap, commits to multi-year contract extension."
Have you ever seen this before?
A. No.
Q. At any point at the December 18th meeting at Mr. Perelman's house, did Mr. Dunlap ever suggest to you that he had gone so far as to consider issuing a press release of the announcement of the merger?
A. No.
Q. This is the first time you have ever seen this document?
A. The first time I have ever seen it.
Q. I am going to hand you what we looked at a little bit earlier, which was Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85. I told you we would come back to that.
A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011804

Q. Now -- this is the time -- you have a copy over there.
I will put this one back.
What I would like you to do -- my understanding is that, from your prior testimony today, is that you did receive a copy of this document from either Mr. Maher or Mr. Nesbitt, following the meeting that we have been talking about, which the record will establish was February 23rd. Am I correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And that you reviewed this document sometime thereafter; is that correct?
A. That same day.
Q. Okay. Or did you get it -- did you get it on -- in the evening or during a normal business day?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. Whatever day it was, you received it is when you reviewed it?
A. Yes.
Q. I would like you to just walk through the document with me, and you will have to use page numbers.
A. Sure. Okay.

Q. One at a time.
And tell me, if you would, any page number that you read, relied upon and believed Morgan Stanley, assuming Morgan Stanley presented this information -- that it was false, at the time that you read it, on or around February 23rd?
A. Aha.
MR. SOLOVY: I object to the form of the question. I think it is a little ambiguous, if you read it back, Mr. Bemis. It seems to imply that when he read it, he knew it was false. That's my problem with the question.
MR. BEMIS: I will stand on the question.
MR. SOLOVY: Okay.
A. Could you repeat the question.
Q. Sure, I will read it back. Would you please, going page by page, in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85 -- tell me which page, which pages you read that you relied upon and believed at that time, that is February, 1993, were -- now I have to rephrase the question. Withdrawn. I will ask it one more time.

Is there something funny? If you would look, again, at MS 85, there is going to be page numbers in the lower-right-hand corner. CPH page numbers.
A. Yes.
Q. Those are the numbers that we will be referring to.
Looking at each page of the document, one page at a time, would you tell me which of those pages you read and relied upon and that you believed Morgan Stanley knew, in February of 1993, were false?
A. Okay, let's start with page 224, that is the CPH number.
Q. If you give me a chance, I will get there.
A. Okay.
Q. I am there.
MR. SOLOVY: Let's see what page that is. Where are you reading the numbers from?
THE WITNESS: The side here. Right on the side here.
MR. SOLOVY: I see. 224. Sorry.
A. The majority of the restructuring plan was completed in the first quarter of 1997.

And I expected the resultant cost savings to be 225 million, of which 75 percent are -- expected to be realized in 1997 and the balance in 1998.
I relied upon that. I expected it to be true.
I found out later that it was not true.
Q. May I ask you: Do you have any facts to support a statement that Morgan Stanley believed that statement to be false in February of 1998?
A. Well, if they did not, they should have known. They had been working on this company for nine months at this point.
Q. Other than what -- sorry?
A. If they did not know that, they did not know anything. When they present this to me, I expect them to believe that it is true.
They had to know this was not true. They had to know that.
Q. Do you have any facts, other than what you think they should have known, that would tell you that they knew it was false?

014805

Page 138

A. No.
Q. Please continue.
A. Page 226.
Q. Yes, sir.
A. The consolidated net sales number for 1997.
Projections for '98 and '99.
I relied upon. Morgan Stanley certainly by the time of um, the comfort letters knew that was inaccurate, and couldn't be met.
Q. Before you move on, the figures for 1997 -- may I ask you -- that you referred to, those figures are footnoted as being taken from Sunbeam's annual report; correct?
A. Right.
Q. Do you have any facts that you can tell the jury that would support a conclusion that Morgan Stanley knew in February of 1998 that the sales figures in Sunbeam's audited 1997 financial statements were incorrect?
A. Well, they did not have the audited statements yet. Because this was, the earliest, February, they did not have the audited statement yet, I don't think. For 1997. Then they had to know they were false.

Q. How is it that, what facts do you base that upon?
A. Because once we got into the numbers, as they had, spending months doing, and they had to reset all these, all these numbers were changed.
Q. When were they changed?
A. They were changed by the year 2000. It took us that long to get a financial statement here.
Q. Wasn't it in late 1998 when Arthur Anderson -- when the restatement was done?
A. The restatement was done in '98, but they wouldn't issue a certified financial statement then.
Q. Wasn't it, was it not until -- excuse me. When did Arthur Andersen withdraw its opinion on the 1997 financial statements?
A. Sometime mid June.
Q. Of 1998?
A. Of 1998.
Q. When did Arthur Andersen withdraw its opinion on anything related to the 1996 financial statements of Sunbeam?

Page 140

A. Sometime subsequent.
Q. In June of 1998, right?
A. Sometime subsequent.
Q. Sometime subsequent to February 23rd, 1998?
A. Absolutely.
Q. With regard to the projections going forward that you mentioned, those are also footnoted as being projections from Oppenheimer, an Oppenheimer research report; correct?
A. Yeah, that doesn't excuse them. They were -- are being presented to me by Morgan Stanley as being accurate.
Q. Did you ask anyone from Morgan Stanley or the MacAndrews & Forbes' team to see the Oppenheimer research report?
A. No. I am sure we had that.
Q. You are sure you had it?
A. I am sure we had it.
Q. Would you continue for me, please.
A. The consolidated profitability statistics, as shown on page 227, which shows net income in '97 of 123 million, in '98 of 199 million -- and in '99 of 253 million.

Page 141

Q. Notes to those figures say they are based on projections from Oppenheimer Research, which you said you had; correct?
A. Right, and they excluded any one time for extraordinary charges.
Q. Would you please continue.
A. Page 231. Stated growth objectives of Sunbeam.
To double without acquisition, '96 sales of 984 million, to two billion by 1999, implying compound average growth at about 27 percent.
Q. Which is what it says?
A. That's what it says; right. But Morgan Stanley should have known that was impossible to obtain.
Q. And did you understand objectives to be something to be achieved in the future when you read this?
A. Sure.
Q. Did you ask Morgan Stanley any questions about the figures that appear on this page, 231?
A. I know Mr. Levin did.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011806

Page 142

Q. Mr. Levin did.
A. Tripling international sales from 185 million to about 600 million in '99, compound annual growth rate of about 48 percent.
Q. Again, that was an objective through the year 1999?
A. That is an objective through the year 1999, but when Morgan Stanley presented it to you, they are adopting that thing. This is what we are going to get done.
Q. You read this stated growth objectives as a representation by Morgan Stanley that in 1999 Sunbeam would be able to achieve these results?
A. If Morgan Stanley thought that they were false, they would not have presented these, or they shouldn't have presented them.
Q. Go ahead, please continue to the next page, sir, that you -- that, as you worked through document.
A. Page 234, the future growth opportunities.
Again, dealing with very significant international growth -- the same number, 185 million to 600 million.

Then they said they were going to introduce 30 new products a year -- shortening the product development time to six months, from two-and-a-half years, generating an additional $300,000,000.
Morgan Stanley had to have known that they weren't, did not have that many products on the board, you can't generate those products that fast enough.
Q. Do you know that Morgan Stanley knew that or are you just assuming that they had to know that?
A. I am assuming that they had to know that.
Q. Okay. Please continue.
(Pause.)
A. Then there is a whole page on the allergy smart air cleaner, page 237, which we thought -- we thought it was going to be a great product.
Q. Who was that telling you that?
A. Morgan and Sunbeam.
And certainly by June they knew this product was a failure. I don't know if they knew it in February. I can't say that they did.

Page 144

Q. We are talking the year 1998 when you said February and June; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Please continue.
A. Then --
Q. Before we move on, if I can interrupt you one second. Have you, in your many years of business experience, ever known to have a company develop a product that they felt was going to be a big success and turned out to be a failure?
A. Oh, sure. But they were so sure about this one, of all of the 30 new products, this one and one other were the ones that they were relying on.
Q. Do you think that Ford was sure about the Edsel when it marketed it?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
A. Probably was.
Q. You can answer.
You did.
And you may continue.

Page 145

MR. SOLOVY: Did you buy any Edsel stock?
MR. BEMIS: I was too young, Mr. Solovy.
MR. SOLOVY: Me, too.
A. Then the operational improvement which we thought had been accomplished because they told us it had been.
Q. What page are you on, sir?
A. Page 240.
Q. Let me get there. Give we one second. I am there. Page 240.
A. Yes.
Essentially, what they are saying to you on this page is that we have now cleaned up our service operation so that we are gaining market share and we will do that because we are, you know, fulfilling our orders, you know, efficiently and on timely.
Q. Do you have any basis to know that any of these service improvements in the potentials here, that Morgan Stanley knew that they were false on February 23rd?
A. By April, by April we knew that they were false, because they were screwing up the

01480

Page 146

Coleman part of it.
We did not find out there was, that they were screwing up the Sunbeam part of it until June, when we got there.
Q. So, as of February, at least, 1998, you don't have any basis to say that Morgan Stanley knew that these statements were false?
A. When you say that -- what I am saying to you is, if Morgan Stanley, after being there for nine months, did not know this, they weren't doing their job right.
Q. Would you please continue.
A. Then the channel management case, I did not really pay a lot of attention to that.
Q. That was on page 241; right?
A. Yes. The worldwide organization post chart, post merger, looked okay to us. We did not know very many of these people.
Then, when we got there, you know, half of these people were gone.
Q. When you say when you got there, you mean in June of -- excuse me.
A. By April, Uzzi, who is the chief operating officer, he was gone by April. Fannin, you know, he is ratting out, you know, senior management, Dunlap and Kersh, by June.

Page 147

Q. Mr. Fannin never left the company?
A. He left.
Q. Not during this time period?
A. No. He left the company subsequently.
Q. After June?
A. After June. By June he is already telling them that there is a gigantic fraud going on.
Q. Let's focus on the period February. Was this chart, as you knew it, accurate in February of 1998?
A. I don't know. I am not sure that Debbie McDonald was still there. She left right around then.
Q. Do you have any facts to support, just as an example, the conclusion that Morgan Stanley knew Mr. Uzzi would be terminated on or about April 3rd, 1998?
A. Yes. I think so, because, you know, when they got the comfort letter, the person they talked with, Morgan Stanley talked with was Uzzi. And then, thereafter, when they talked with Dunlap and Kersh, they blamed all this on Uzzi and they were going to fire him.

Q. Could I ask you to, please, refer back to February, that is the question.
A. February 23rd, no.
Q. As of February 23rd, 1998, you don't have any basis to say that Morgan Stanley knew Mr. Uzzi was going to be fired in April; correct?
A. No. It was not until March.
Q. Okay. You can continue.
A. Summary of recent analysts commentary.
Q. What page is that, sir?
A. Page 248.
Q. I am --
A. Something about the sign-in agreement with Nuskin to help distribute its fresh source water product in Asia. The source being CIBC Oppenheimer, CSFB Oppenheimer may have said that. I can't believe that Morgan Stanley did not know that that had happened and wasn't.
Q. It is quoted as being a source from CSFB?
A. Slightly right. You can't excuse what you are presenting to us by saying it is a source of somebody else and I don't know, and I don't know anything about it. That is not what I expect from Morgan Stanley or any other investment bank.

Q. Did you ask CSFB, your investment bank, to check this representation?
A. I did not have to, because Morgan Stanley is presenting it to us. Do you think that they are going to lie to us?
Q. You did not ask CSFB, then, to investigate this statement?
A. I did not.
Q. Okay.
A. "Sunbeam has 20 signed distribution and license agreements so far in 1997. By expanding into new SKUs in Latin America, the company can leverage the Oster brand into new revenue streams."
This is nonsense, nonsense. It was not true.
It is true -- that was right.
Q. This statement that you read is in quotation marks, and the source is given; correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 150

A. Exactly. Again, it is Oppenheimer, but what does that have to do with it; it is Morgan Stanley giving it to us. If it was not true, they shouldn't have given it to us.
Q. Again, you did not ask your investment banker, CSFB, to investigate this statement?
A. I did not.
Q. Neither did anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes team, to your knowledge?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Please continue.
