A. One of my favorites, "Sunbeam overview of the outdoor cooking devices industry."
Q. What page are you on?
A. I am on page 252.
Q. Okay. What about that?
A. They are talking about the grill business. Gas, charcoal, electric grill.
And they are telling you about all of the growth opportunities. Okay.
Q. Yes, the opportunities.
A. Right. And what they are saying here is, these are the opportunities that this great Sunbeam company has. They did not tell you that Sunbeam had been thrown out of either Home Depot or Walmart, I don't remember now, in the accessories business, in the most profitable part of the grill business.

Q. When did that happen?
A. Before February 23rd. The Morgan community did not bother to tell us that.
Q. Are you telling me that you know that Morgan Stanley knew that?
A. If they did not know, they should have known.
Q. Go ahead.
A. Also, when we got there in June we got an anonymous tip to go down and look in June, sometime after we sent our people down there in June of 1998 to the Tulsa air -- a little airport in Tulsa, we found a million square feet of rented space by Sunbeam filled to the gills with grills.
Q. Had this been reported in Sunbeam's annual report audited by Arthur Andersen?
A. No. And sure wasn't told to us by Morgan Stanley, either.
Q. Do you have any facts to support a statement that Morgan Stanley knew about this warehouse in February, in Tulsa, that you received information on by way of an anonymous tip?

A. No.
Q. Did you ever hear that Morgan Stanley received an anonymous tip to go look at this warehouse in Tulsa?
A. I don't know whether they did or not.
Q. Please continue. Is there anything else on this page, 252?
A. Well, that was enough for the grill business.
Q. Okay. Please continue.
A. Then they go through a whole series of summaries -- analysts; commentary. The reason they are telling you that is that they are vouching for it. They are not telling you this is what all of the analysts are saying but it is false, we have been here for nine months.
Q. So, you were on page 255?
A. I was going through all of those pages, with respect to the analysts' commentaries.

Q. Let me make sure that I get those.
A. 255, 254. 255 is the best one.
Q. 255.
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Please continue. You last stopped on page 255. You should go forward.
A. 259 is just repeating what they had said before. I already commented on that.
263, again, talking about shortening the product development frame from two and a half years to six months. Again, about the, open air, purification and grill business. 30 distinct products a year. Launching.
Again, not attributed to any analysts, but this is what Morgan Stanley said.
Q. These are under the heading, if you will, "new product initiatives"?
A. That's right. And they continued to go.
Q. Please turn to, give me the next page that you find --
A. 266, the water fresh source water purifier. This was a hot new product,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

according to Morgan Stanley. The only problem is that it did not work. It did not work.
Q. Where did Morgan Stanley tell you that the product did or did not work? When did --
A. Well, they certainly represented it to us on February 23rd, that this was a hot new product.
Q. You weren't there on February 23rd; so, are you just talking about what's in this document?
A. Yeah. Of course. Why do you think they put it in the document for? They did not put it in the document because it was a failure.
Q. What else, sir?
A. They go through the international expansion again.
Page 270, "management goal tripled international sales from 185 million to 600 million."
Q. That is stated as a goal; correct?
A. Stated as a goal.
Q. Okay. You may continue.
A. Morgan Stanley -- they knew, or should have known, they were incapable of doing that.

Q. Please continue.
A. If you look at page 274, you see what their opportunities were for growth, particularly in Asia. They go from 3 million in '96 to 150 million in 1999. Morgan Stanley knew, or should have known, that they were not capable of doing that.
Q. Again, these are -- what you are referring to are projections of what are described as global opportunities and market potential; correct?
A. Right.
Q. All right. Please go forward from page 274.
A. This whole series of pages which deal with the channel management opportunities, what they are doing here is saying look, here is how we can manage these channels, improve -- improve our sales and profitability.
We certainly thought that was a worthwhile objective and thought it was possible to have happened. Someone who had been servicing this company for nine months should have known that they were nowhere in trying to get that project completed.

Q. You were referring to pages 79 --
A. Right, up through 82.
Q. -- through 82.
A. Then, page 293, the marketing licensing and merchandising opportunities.
And the point that licensing presents an immediate profit opportunity. Everyone agrees with that.
They should have known, or did know that, at that point, Sunbeam had virtually no licensing projects going forward.
Q. That is under the heading "Make Versus License Decisions."
A. Yes.
Q. Please continue.
A. I think that is it. Thank you.
Q. Thank you, sir, for taking the time to do that for me. Get that assembled.
Two of the products that you pointed out for us, one was the, I want to call it the air cleaner, but I think it is the air filtration system?

Page 157

A. Air purifier.
Q. Air purifier. Did you, at any point during the due diligence, see one of those units?
A. I did not.
Q. Do you know if anyone did on your --
A. Yes, I am sure the Coleman people did.
Q. When you say you are sure, do you know that they did?
A. They told me that they did.
Q. Who told you that?
A. Now, I can't remember which one of them.
Q. Did they tell you that it wouldn't work?
A. No.
Q. The other device that you identified was, I think, a water purification system?
A. Right.
Q. Did you see that device?
A. No.
Q. Did you ask to see it?
A. No.
Q. Are you, did anyone on the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011810

MacAndrews & Forbes team of due diligence see the device?
A. I am sure the Coleman people saw that, probably --
Q. Sorry.
A. Pretty sure.
Q. You are sure that they did. Did someone tell you that they did?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was that?
A. I can't remember.
Q. Did the person who saw it and told you that they saw it tell you that it wouldn't work?
A. No.
Q. Did they tell you it worked?
A. We just presumed that it worked. The question was would it sell.
Q. Okay. Of all of the pages that you identified, and I wrote them down as you went through -- and I will list them out for you, and I don't expect you to follow through if you don't want to -- you listed CPH 1411. 224. And then 226, 227, and 231. 234, 237, 240. 242. 248. 252.

255. 259. 263. 266. 270. 274. 279 through 282, and 293 -- did you ask CSFB to perform any investigation of the matters set forth on those pages?
A. No.
Q. Did anyone on the due diligence team of MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't know.
Q. That would be Mr. Maher, would know that?
A. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt, or the Coleman people.
Q. Okay. Let me set this aside.
A. All right.
Q. In the final contracts which I will hand to you, which are Morgan Stanley 193 and 117, did you review, at least in draft form, those contracts before you approved them?
A. At some point, yes.
Q. Each of those contracts, which I will refer to as the merger agreements, contains representations and warranties; correct?
A. Sure.
Q. Those were negotiated by the parties before the agreements were finally signed; correct?

A. Aha. Yes.
Q. All right. Is there any representation in the warranty, in either Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93 or 117, that anything said at the February 23rd meeting was a representation and warranty about Sunbeam, or any other matter going forward after the signing of the documents on February 28th, 1998?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
Q. You can answer, sir.
(Pause.)
A. Can you repeat the question, please.
Q. Sure.
Is there any representation or warranty in either Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93 or 117 that anything said at the February 23rd meeting was a representation and warranty about Sunbeam going forward after the signing of the documents on February 28th, 1998?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.

A. Well, there is the usual provision that all of the SEC filings which incorporate all of the stuff on the pre-98 financials were correct. They were actually false.
Q. Those are Sunbeam's financial filings that you are referring to?
A. Of course, yes.
Q. Anything else? I think you are referring to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 117 right now, for the record.
A. Section 4.7, which says the absence of certain changes and events.
Since there has been no change -- event change or development with individual in the aggregate has had, that would reasonably be expected to have, a -- material adverse effect.
Q. Sir, these are, these are represetntations in 4.7 of Coleman to Laser.
A. Well, I promise you that in the agreement that you will show me next, there will be the identical representations made by Sunbeam to Coleman.
Q. All right. Maybe we can shortcut this to save you some time, I know your time is valuable. Whatever the parties negotiated in terms of representations and warranties were reviewed by you; correct?

A. I am sure I read them, yes.
Q. When you read them, you read them with the idea that someone from MacAndrews & Forbes was going to sign the document; correct?
A. Sure.
Q. And being a transaction in the billions of dollars of value, it was an important matter for you and for the people signing the document to understand what was in it; correct?
A. Absolutely.
Q. And it was a negotiated document; was it not?
A. Of course.
Q. And at least in the negotiations you both had lawyers who reviewed the documents before they were signed; correct?
A. Sure.
Q. You both had investment bankers before the documents were signed; correct?
A. Absolutely.

Q. And you both had -- that is, both companies had an opportunity to do whatever due diligence they chose to do before signing the documents and, indeed, closing the transaction; correct?
A. Right.
Q. Why don't you hand me those back. We are all done with those.
(Pause.)
Q. Now, earlier you told me that had you known the information that was in the Arthur Andersen comfort letter that was issued to Morgan Stanley in connection with the issuance of the debentures, that had you known that information, you would not have proceeded with the transaction; correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. I take it that means you would have terminated the transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you see the 10-Q that Sunbeam filed in May of 1998, which set forth the actuals of both sales and income or loss numbers for the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't recall now whether I did or did not.

Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 281.
A. All right.
Q. I would like you to look at page -- well, first of all, I will ask you: Do you have Exhibit 281 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Now that I have given it to you, do you recall whether you saw it sometime in 1998?
A. No.
Q. Okay. The figures that I would like you to look at are on the page numbered 2, under the heading part 1, financial information.
And the first item there is net sales. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. The figures for March 30th, 1997, the first quarter, are listed as reported to the SEC by Sunbeam as 253 million -- 450 thousand; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then, the actual sales, or -- excuse me, the sales recorded, reported for the period March 31st, 1998, are $244,296,000; correct?

A. Correct.
Q. Had you known this information on March 30th, '98, would you have closed the transaction?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
Q. Sorry.
A. No.
Q. With regard to the net earnings, which are shown both from continuing operations and before extraordinary charge, basic and diluted, do you see those figures there?
A. I do.
Q. Would you have closed the transaction, had you known of those figures?
A. No.
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
A. No.
Q. Now, Sunbeam, and I will show you next Exhibit 282. You can hand that back to me.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. All right.
Q. This document is in a little different format, since it was printed directly from Edgar, I believe. You have seen documents printed in this format from Edgar; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this document before, which is a 10QA, for the period ending March 31st, 1998, for Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. You know what a 10-QA is; don't you?
A. No.
Q. Do you know what a 10Q is?
A. Yes.
Q. The "A" means amended.
A. All right.
Q. This document, if you will turn to page 11, and I have to make sure that I give you the right 11; so, let me turn to it, because there are two sets of numbers on the pages here. It will be the 11 at the bottom of the page.
Tell me when you are there.

Page 167

A. Yes.
Q. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. It is under the number 8, "restatement," and then there is the condensed consolidated statements of operations.
A. Aha.
Q. Do you see that?
A. Sure.
Q. Now, would you have, I don't want, I want you just to focus on the restated numbers.
A. Aha.
Q. First, looking at net sales, the net sales figures restated are $247,601,000 dollars, which is a difference from what was originally reported of 252,488,000. Do you see that?
A. Sure.
Q. If you had known the restated numbers --
A. That is not -- no, that is what the previous quarter had been the previous year.
Q. Yes, but I am --
A. It had previously been 253 and 244 in '97 and '98. Now it is 252 and 247.

Q. Maybe I misspoke. I will try again.
There are figures for both the, there are is figures for 1998 which are both as previously reported, and I did misspeak, now that I look at this. My eyes are --
A. As bad as mine.
Q. I was going to say that, but I thought I shouldn't say that.
If you look at the column under March 31st, 1998, there are figures of both as previously reported, that is in Exhibit 281 that we looked at, and then the restated numbers; do you see that?
A. Sure.
Q. That includes both net sales and net earnings, whether at profit or loss; right?
A. Yes.
Q. If you had seen the restated figures, had they been provided to you as of March 31st, 1998, would you have, would MacAndrews & Forbes have closed the transaction?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.

A. No. Because the difference is really greater than that. You know, the '98 numbers include -- extra days of sales and about 14-and-a-half million dollars of Coleman sales. If you take those out, that is really the difference between 252 and probably around 230.
Q. You are telling us that you wouldn't have closed the transaction?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. Okay. Hand that back to me, please.
A. All right.
Q. If you had proceeded not to close the transaction as of March 30th, 1998, as I understand your prior testimony, there was no other prior suitor out there that you are aware of?
A. Right.
Q. And would you have expected Sunbeam's stock to -- excuse me, Coleman's stock to have dropped, if there had been an announcement that the merger was not going to go forward?
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.

011313

A. Probably, but that is not important to us.
Q. It may not be important to you, but you would expect the stock to have dropped?
A. Ordinarily, sure.
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
Q. Leading up to the point of the time of the closing -- excuse me, from the point of announcement -- excuse me, I will withdraw the question.
At the time that the transaction was announced, I think it was March 3rd, 1998, Coleman stock did run up; did it not?
A. Sure it would, on the basis of the transaction.
Q. Because Sunbeam was paying approximately a 44 percent premium over market for Sunbeam's, excuse me -- for Coleman's stock?
A. That is correct.
Q. Would you have expected Sunbeam's stocks -- excuse me, Coleman's stock, after an announcement that the merger was not going forward, to drop in the marketplace to a level approximating where it was before?

A. Sure.
Q. The announcement --
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
A. That is exactly what I would have expected.
MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.
Q. Where was Coleman -- withdrawn. I am done with that.
Did you see Sunbeam's annual report on form 10K for the year 1997 before the closing?
A. No.
Q. Did you see the offering memorandum for the debentures that Morgan Stanley underwrote in connection with the transaction?
A. I did.
Q. Did you read it?
A. I paged through it, I really just looked at financials.
Q. You, of course -- well, let me ask you. Do you read the footnotes to the financial statements?

Page 172

A. Usually. Usually.
Q. Some of the most important information is in the footnotes?
A. Right.
Q. Were you involved in any discussions at MacAndrews & Forbes, either internally or with third parties, concerning hedging the Sunbeam stock that Mr. Perelman's companies were to receive at the closing?
A. Yes, I was in part of those meetings.
Q. Did you -- were some of those discussions before the actual closing on March 30th?
A. I don't recall any before the closing. I think they all took place afterwards.
Q. What was your involvement in these discussions?
A. Well, I wanted to find out whether or not you could hedge, which I was told by our lawyers was simply not clear -- it was not a problem for us to hedge, it was a problem for the investment bank. It was very complex SEC stuff.

And one of the conclusion I reached was, if you really couldn't do it, you really couldn't do it because you couldn't ask an investment bank to take a risk, or at least I wasn't ask an investment bank to take a risky position like that; so, we dropped that.
Q. What was the risky position?
A. I don't remember, to be honest with you. It was very complex SEC stuff.
Q. Is it fair to say that you passed those issues off to others to let them think it through?
A. Well, yes, no question about it. They told me it was questionable and they did not think any major investment bank would do it, so forget it.
Q. Who was the person who was the most closely involved with the hedging discussions at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I think Maher, Glen Dickes.
Q. Okay.
A. Dickes was a real SEC expert -- he knew that stuff backwards and forwards.
Q. Now, there was a press release issued by Sunbeam on or about April 3rd, 1998, announcing its first quarter 1998 results; did you see that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I did.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 58.
There you are, sir. I hand you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 58. Please take a moment and let me know when you are finished. I don't have a lot of detailed questions about it. Read it to the extent that you wish.
A. Okay.
Q. Did you see a copy of this press release at or about April 3rd, '97?
A. Shortly afterwards.
Q. Could you tell us the circumstances as to how you came to see it.
A. Somebody brought it to my desk.
Q. What happened then?
A. I was, to say the least, very much annoyed. I felt we had been misled. I felt that they had to know this before April 3rd.
Q. Now, who is the who?
A. Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam.
Q. Okay.
A. That, I had not seen a comfort letter at this point. That, in my view, when they issued the March 19th release, it had to have been false. I called Mike Price and took his head off.

And Mike said to me, look Howard, I don't -- you know, don't worry about it, they are going to make the year.
You know, I don't know what you are complaining about.
I said, what I am complaining about is, it is my choice to make, if I want to run a risk, I am a big boy, I can run a risk, but i want to have the facts.
I don't know who had the facts.
Why are you so sure?
I said, why did they fire Uzzi? Uzzi was the guy running the place.
Q. This is Michael Price at the mutual fund?
A. Yes, he is the largest shareholder besides us -- he is a larger shareholder than we are.
Q. What else did Mr. Price say to you?
A. He said he would look into it.
Q. Did he get back to you?

A. Sometime later. We then started a dialogue, actually in April and May, because notwithstanding what this release said -- you know, that jerk Dunlap had never even been to Wichita, and the only time that Kersh went there, he went there with two armed guards, and, you know, we were starting to, get messages back from our people.
We had owned Coleman for ten years and the people we cared about, and they cared about us, and, you know, everybody was leaving, no direction.
They were -- that spring selling season is everything in that business, the camping business. They were going to miss the business because nobody had the plans and directives and they couldn't make any decisions, all of the help was leaving.
I called Mike. I called Peter Langerman.
Q. Who is Mr. Langerman?
A. He was the chairman of the Sunbeam board and he was a -- an employee of Mutual Funds, of mutual benefit shares.
Q. The same company that employed

Mr. Price?
A. Yes. He was Mr. Price's lead designee on the board.
Q. So, now, you, MacAndrews & Forbes and Mr. Price's Mutual Funds, they are the two largest shareholder of Sunbeam?
A. Right.
Q. You are communicating with each other about these matters?
A. Yes. Came in to see me, look, you know, ah, Al is the greatest, he will pull this together. Uzzi misled him.
I said, it is outrageous, I don't understand how you guys can say that to me.
You knew so little about this business.
Where is Morgan Stanley now? They just sold -- sold the damn, you know, zero coupon A debentures, I would not want to be in their position.
Q. You wouldn't want to be in Morgan Stanley's position, to say anything false --
A. Absolutely not. Let me tell you something, the customers were going to be all over them, just as I am all over them. If their customers knew what I know now about that comfort letter, they would have been sued by them a lot earlier. In any event, those conversations continued well into the early part of June.

Um, and they were still very protective of Dunlap and Kersh.

Q. That is Mr. Price?

A. Price and Langerman.

Q. And Langerman.

A. And then we got that crazy call on the Saturday of mid-June. The call went to Barry Schwartz and then he called me.

Q. That's the call from the board of directors?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that Mr. Dunlap was going to be terminated?

A. They fired, they already fired him. Maybe they had to have another meeting with him. He was fired.

Q. I understand after April 3rd, and leading at least up to that time probably, and probably continuing thereafter, you were mad at Morgan Stanley; right?

A. Sure was.

Q. Did you, at any point after April 3rd and up to the firing of Mr. Dunlap, did you call anyone at Morgan Stanley and say, what happened, why didn't you tell us; anything like that?

A. No.

Q. Did you write any letters to them saying we are upset about this, you misled us, what happened; anything like that?

A. No.

Q. Did anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. No. First, we had to -- first, we had to explore what had happened. We were on the outside. It was not until after we got there in June that we began to learn some of the facts. We get there in June.

We learn some of the facts, and we have three potential defendants, Sunbeam, officers and directors, Arthur Andersen, Morgan Stanley.

At first, the first thing I want to do is, give me back my company, okay.

It is very simple, guys.

I will give you back your stock,

give me back your cash, everything that you paid --

You know what, I love this company.

We will give it all back to you.

Give us back the company -- did --

Q. Who did you have this conversation with?

A. -- not do it.

I had this conversation with the Sunbeam board and the Sunbeam banks, including Morgan Stanley. It was, then, First Union, Wachovia and Bank of America.

Q. Hopefully, the conclusion was reached by the parties concerned that that was not going to be a deal that couldn't be done?

A. That was a deal that they would not contemplate, because they had reached the conclusion that we thought was right, which is that Coleman was the best part of Sunbeam.

Q. At that -- at that point, you are -- withdrawn.

These rescission discussions began when?

A. June.

Q. Of 1998?

Page 181

A. Yes.

Q. You have to answer Yes or No.

A. Yes. Sorry.

Q. That's okay.

During these discussions on rescission, did you make any allegations against Morgan Stanley?

A. No, I did not make any allegations against anyone. I just said I was misled, I was defrauded, give me back my company.

Q. You told Morgan Stanley, during these discussions, that you had been defrauded?

A. Oh, sure.

Q. You told them that Morgan Stanley had defrauded you?

A. I simply said "defrauded." I did not allocate blame between Sunbeam, Andersen and Morgan Stanley.

Q. Who did you speak to at Morgan Stanley?

A. Whoever was the Morgan Stanley representative at the board.

Q. A director.

A. Not board director.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Yeah.
A. There were board meetings conducted where the banks were present, and whoever the Morgan Stanley representative was who was there, he heard me loud and clear.
Q. These were the banks that had loaned money to Sunbeam?
A. Sure, they loaned money hoping to syndicate it out and couldn't get the syndication, because the thing fell apart too fast.
Q. How much money -- do you know how much money Morgan Stanley loaned to Sunbeam, as a banker?
A. Um, did I know how much then? No, I did not know how -- split between the three banks. It did not make any difference, because none of them intended to keep any of it. They had the syndication meeting set up already. They sell it all down. They don't hold -- they don't hold 5 percent of what they make originally.
Q. Do you know how much the banks loaned?
A. A billion 7, at one point.

Q. All right. Do you know how much the banks were holding in June of 1998 when you had these meetings?
A. I sure did. They were holding every penny of it.
Q. 1.7 billion.
A. Because they couldn't syndicate it out, because this whole thing fell apart.
Q. Is it your theory that the banks were attempting to -- excuse me, that the banks loaned 1.7 billion dollars to Sunbeam with knowledge of the fraud, just so that they could syndicate the loans?
A. No, I did not say that. They did have knowledge, they did have knowledge of what was happening to the business in mid-March and March 25th. They had every obligation to tell me that. And if they had told me that, this transaction wouldn't have closed, they wouldn't have lent their money and --
Q. They wouldn't have sold the debentures?
A. They wouldn't have been sold the debentures and we all would have been going home happy.

Q. But it is your position that Morgan Stanley knew about the fraud and went ahead and sold $2.014 billion of face amount debentures and loaned about $680 million to Sunbeam in order for this transaction to go forward. Is that your position, sir?
A. No. It is my position that they were in possession of sufficient facts by the end of March, which I did not know, to stop this transaction, which is exactly what they should have done.
This transaction should have come to an end, at the earliest, on March 19th, and at the latest, on March 25th. With the knowledge of what was in those comfort letters, this transaction never ever should have been permitted to close.
Q. Is it your position that Morgan Stanley had, at the time of the closing, an intent, conscious intent to defraud MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. They had a conscious intent to force this closing through without telling us the facts.

Page 185

Q. What do you base that on?
A. The fact that they had the facts and did not tell us.
Q. Anything else?
A. Well, the general perversity, but I wouldn't do that.
Q. I suppose we could all do that with a lot of things. That was not my question.
A. All right.
Q. Now, you referred to Morgan Stanley and the other banks syndicating a portion of the bank loans. Did Morgan Stanley, to your knowledge, have any intent to, I don't know if the term is syndicate the underwriting of the debentures or whether there is another appropriate term?
A. No. No. The debentures, they underwrite the debentures and sell them to their customers. There is not a syndication of that. They keep all those fees for themselves.
Q. So, when Morgan Stanley, you understood that when Morgan Stanley was selling the -- excuse me, I will withdraw the question. So, you at least understood, based on your knowledge of the debt financing, that Morgan Stanley actually was purchasing all of the debentures and then going to resell them to others; correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. That is a simultaneous transaction. They don't hold them for one second. That is all pre-sold. They take them down and parcel them out.

Now, there may have been other underwriters. I don't think there were at that time. I would have to look at the front cover again. They would be on the front cover, if there are other underwriters.

Q. As I understand your testimony, your belief was that, if Morgan Stanley knew what you think it knew -- think and say that it knew, that it was subjecting itself to lawsuits by the debenture-holders at the time it proceeded with the offering; correct?

A. Absolutely. And that is the continual defense that you hear of investment banks and accounting firms throughout the fraud scandals of the 21st century. That is exactly what they all said, would I have done this, and they all did it. Morgan Stanley did it here.

Q. Did you work on the settlement with Sunbeam that resulted in warrants being received by MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. Yes. I did that settlement.

Q. You did that settlement?

A. I did.

Q. Did you do an evaluation of the warrants at any point in the negotiations, that is what the warrants were worth at the time of the settlement, not some future time, but the time of the settlement?

A. I did not.

Q. Yesterday, in one of the depositions that we took, we were told that MacAndrews & Forbes valued the warrants at something slightly over $41 million.

MR. SOLOVY: Objection to the form of the question.

Q. You can answer. I did not finish; so, now I will have to ask it again.

A. Go ahead.

Q. Yesterday, in one of the depositions -- I was not at Mr. Perelman's deposition yesterday; so, I asked my associate --

Page 188

A. I saw you in the office.

Q. You did.

A. Pardon me.

Q. I did not recognize you. I don't think we met before. Let's get this finished.

Let's get back on and get this finished.

After the settlement -- withdrawn.

Did you value, at any point in 1998, that is MacAndrews & Forbes, the, the warrants received in the settlement, and valuation -- that is terrible. I will try again.

For financial statement purposes did MacAndrews & Forbes value the warrants in 1998?

A. I found out that, subsequently, that they did, yes.

Q. Do you know what the number was?

A. No. No.

Q. Whatever valuation was placed on the warrants, that would have been an item of income; correct?

A. No.

Q. What would it be?

A. It would be an item of just capital that you have. It would not be an income item.

Q. You are right. It would not. It would be characterized somewhere on the income statement to show that it had been received, though; correct?

A. I am not sure of that. Maybe a footnote to the income statement would show you, the capital account -- probably that is where it was.

Q. And on -- whose financial statement were the warrants recorded in 1998, which MacAndrews & Forbes Company?

A. Oh, it would always be the parent. It always goes up to the parent.

Q. Which would be Mafco Holdings, Inc.?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mafco Holdings Inc., in 1998, have to file or make filings, excuse me, with the Securities & Exchange Commission?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Were Mafco Holdings Inc. financial statements for the year, for the year 1998, on a calendar year basis?

A. Yes.

Q. If the settlement was reached in, I believe it was August of 1998, then, however the warrant value was recorded, it would have been reflected in the year-end 1998 financial statements for Mafco Holdings, Inc.; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Those statements were audited by --
A. E&Y.
Q. E&Y. Did they give a clean opinion on the statements?
A. Sure. We always get clean opinions.
MR. BEMIS: Let's take a break here. We are almost finished. I think you said you needed 30 minutes. You can make your phone call and we will have you out here within 30 minutes of the conclusion of the break.
A. That is great. Thank you very much.

p.m., and this begins tape number 3.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. After April 3rd, there came a point in time when you became a member of the board of directors of Sunbeam; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. When was that?
A. June 14th.
Q. 1998?
A. 1998.
Q. Right after the termination of Mr. Dunlap; correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And you served on the board for how long?
A. Um, a couple, three years.
Q. Did you serve until Sunbeam filed for bankruptcy?
A. I filed, I served even after that.
Q. You, as a -- withdrawn.
You attended, either as a director or otherwise, meetings with Sunbeam's lenders; correct?
A. Oh, sure.
Q. Morgan Stanley was one of those lenders; right?

A. Yes.
Q. Bank of America was one of those lenders?
A. Right.
Q. First Union, at that time, now Wachovia; correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Now, I want to show you a document that we previously marked as Morgan Stanley -- please turn off the Black Berries, please. Thank you.
Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 262.
MR. SOLOVY: Thank you.
Q. I apologize for the delay. Do you have exhibit -- do you have Exhibit 262 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Let me also hand you Exhibit 337. This was previously marked, I believe, at Mr. Shapiro's deposition. Do you have both Exhibit 337 and 362 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. The first, I first would like you to look at Exhibit 337. That is a memorandum dated June 22nd from a Thomas Molitor from the leverage finance group, re Sunbeam Corporation.

Do you have that document in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend the meetings that are referred to in this memorandum, that is meetings at MacAndrews & Forbes, on June 18th and 19th, 1998 to discuss Sunbeam corporation?
A. I am sure I did.
Q. It is stated here that the purpose of these meetings at MacAndrews & Forbes was to discuss the status of Sunbeam, given the change in management.
Is that a correct statement of the purpose of those early meetings?
A. You have me looking at 337; right?
Q. Yes. 337. That is the first document that I would like you to look at.
A. What's the question, again?
Q. Was the purpose of the meetings at MacAndrews & Forbes on those two days, June 18th and June 19th, to discuss the status of

0149-19

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, item number 1 lists you in attendance along with Mr. Engelman, an executive vice president of MacAndrews & Forbes. Is that M&F, MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. Holdings. And also Mr. Slotkin, senior vice president of MacAndrews & Forbes. Did they attend these meetings?
A. Yes.
Q. And did Mr. Levin and Mr. Shapiro and Mr. Martin Lipton of Wachtel Lipton attend?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Martin Lipton, he is the main partner in Wachtel Lipton; right?
A. That's right.
Q. Item number 2, which is headed "SEC Inquiry," there is, in the second sentence, a reference to the inquiry of the SEC focusing on the issues raised in the Barron's article; do you see that?
A. Aha.
Q. You have to answer Yes or No.

A. Yes.
Q. Did you see the Barron's article referred to in this paragraph?
A. The June 8th article?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you, as reflected in this memorandum, state to the banks that the questions raised in the Barron's article are without merit?
A. That is what I had been informed by Sunbeam, prior to the change of management. They had a detailed point-by-point rebuttal of the Barron's article.
Q. In any event, you did make this statement to the banks; correct?
A. Where --
Q. Based on what information you had at the time.
A. Where do you find that?
Q. In the, if you look under item 2, the third line, beginning with "article period." Do you see the sentence starting "according"?
A. What document are you looking at?

Q. 337, item 2.
A. Page?
Q. SEC inquiry. Right here.
A. Yes, I have it now.
Q. Did you make that statement to the banks that "the questions raised by the Barron's article are without merit"?
A. I don't recall saying that. I could not have possibly have said that, because I did not know whether they were or not. All I know is what the Sunbeam people were saying.
Q. Well, were the Sunbeam people telling you, at the time, that they were without merit?
A. They had told us that earlier, yes.
Q. Did you repeat anything like that to the banks?
A. I am sure I may have, but I would not have subscribed to whether it was accurate or not accurate, myself.
Q. When you made that statement, you were relying on information that somebody else gave you; correct?
A. I don't think I made the statement.
Q. Did you make -- strike that. Did you tell the banks, including Morgan Stanley, that Arthur Andersen had confirmed to the board of directors of Sunbeam that the 1997 financial statements of Sunbeam were prepared in accordance with GAAP?

A. Yes.
Q. That turned out to be wrong; didn't it?
A. It sure did.
Q. When you made that statements, you were basing it on information that you thought to be true, but later turned out to be wrong; correct?
A. No. What I was basing it on is what Arthur Andersen told the board of directors of Sunbeam.
Q. It turned out to be wrong?
A. It sure did.
Q. You can set this document aside for now. MS 337.
Look at MS 362, which has been previously identified as the minutes of the special meetings of the executive committee and of the audit committee of the board of directors of Sunbeam Corporation, which is

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Exhibit 262, if I misspoke, dated January 29th, 1998. Do you have that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend this meeting, and you are shown in attendance in the second paragraph of the document.
A. I am sure I did.
Q. Were you present during that part of the meeting which is discussed under the heading "Discussion of Relationship with Arthur Andersen"?
A. Yes.
Q. Are the minutes accurate, to the best of your recollection as you sit here today, under that heading, "Discussion of Relationship with Arthur Andersen"?
A. It seems accurate to me.
Q. You can set that aside.
Let me show you now two documents, a document that I will ask the court reporter to mark as Exhibit 435.
(Gittis Exhibit 435, transcript of April 21, 1999, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. I have a simple question on this.

Were you deposed in the matter that is set forth on the cover page of Exhibit 435, in re the Coleman Company shareholder litigation, on or about April 21st, 1999?
A. Yes.
Q. A transcript was made of your deposition; correct?
A. It sure was.
Q. You were represented by counsel in the deposition?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this, sir, a copy which has been produced to us by Coleman Parent Holdings, a copy of your deposition transcript?
A. I don't know. I guess it is.
Q. Do you have any reason to doubt that it is a copy of your transcript?
A. As long as you tell me, I have every reason to believe it.
Q. I will show you what has been marked as 434, the very last one. I will ask the court reporter to mark that before I give it to you.
(Gittis Exhibit 434, July 26, 2000 transcript, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. I will hand you now the exhibit marked Exhibit 434. Do you have that in front of you?
A. I do.
MR. SOLOVY: Excuse me. I don't.
Q. I have given you Exhibit 434, which is a transcript which, of a deposition that I believe you gave on July 26th, 2000. Did you give a deposition on that date in the Albert Dunlap Russell A. Kersh Sunbeam Corporation arbitration proceeding?
A. I gave a deposition in that matter, and I assume that is the correct date.
Q. Is this document which was produced to us by Coleman (Parent) Holdings, is this a copy of your deposition transcript in that case?
A. I am sure it must be, if they gave it to you.
Q. With regard to both depositions, sir, Exhibits 434 and 435, you had counsel in both; correct?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. You were under oath; correct?

A. Yes.
Q. You told the truth in the depositions?
A. Of course.
MR. BEMIS: I have no further questions.
THE WITNESS: Thank you very much and I thank you for your courtesy of getting me out.
MR. BEMIS: I was good to my word, a half hour in getting you out.

ROBERT KITTS, called as a witness, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION BY MR JOHNSON:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Kitts.
A. Good morning.
Q. Would you kindly state your name for the record.
A. Robert Kitts.
Q. Mr. Kitts, have you ever given a deposition before?
A. No.
Q. Let me cover a few background rules that might guide our work today. First, if you don't understand one of my questions, let me know at any time. If you need me to clarify something, let me know. Also if you need to take a break at any time for any reason, just let me know that as well.
A. Okay.
Q. As you can see, the court reporter here is taking down what each of us say. Accordingly, you need to articulate your answers as opposed to nodding your head or shrugging your shoulders because the court reporter can't pick that up in the transcript.

Kitts

A. Yes.
Q. Where do you currently reside?
A. Englewood, New Jersey.
Q. And what is your address in Englewood?
A. 27 North Woodland Street.
Q. And are you currently employed?
A. Yes.
Q. With whom?
A. Thomas Weisel Partners.
Q. How long have you been with Thomas Weisel Partners?
A. About three and a half years.
Q. You started some time in 2000, is that correct?
A. 2001.
Q. And prior to Thomas Weisel, where did you work?
A. Morgan Stanley.

Kitts

Q. Anyone in between Morgan Stanley and Thomas Weisel?

A. No formal employer, no. I consulted with certain companies that I had done business with in the past.

Q. Okay. Now, at Thomas Weisel, what is your current title?

A. Cohead of investment banking.

Q. And has that been your title during your entire tenure at Thomas Weisel?

A. No, I was promoted in the past week.

Q. Congratulations.

A. Thank you.

Q. Can you take me through the titles you have had at Thomas Weisel?

A. Up until this last promotion I've been head of mergers and acquisitions as well as cohead of east coast operations for the firm.

Q. Okay. And what are your current responsibilities then at Thomas Weisel?

A. I jointly with one of my partners on the west coast manage the entire investment banking operation.

Q. And how many employees does Thomas Weisel have in its investment banking operation?

A. Currently approximately 65.

Q. How many in New York?

A. Probably 30.

Q. And you have an MBA, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. From Harvard?

A. Yes.

Q. What year did you receive that?

A. 1987.

Q. And did you graduate from business school with any honors?

A. No.

Q. Tell me about your undergraduate degree.

A. Pace University, 1980.

Q. And what was your major?

A. Business administration.

Q. What did you do from the time you graduated Pace in 1980 until the time you entered business school in 85, 86?

A. 85, yes. I spent two years at Peat Marwick Mitchell & Company, the name at the time, as an accountant for two years and then three years at Morgan Stanley as an analyst, two years in the M&A department, 82 to 84, and then helped found the venture capital group at Morgan Stanley in 1985.

Q. And then went to business school?

A. Yes.

Q. And at Peat Marwick, were you auditing public companies?

A. Yes.

Q. And after business school, did you return to Morgan Stanley?

A. Returned to Morgan Stanley, yes.

Q. And when you returned to Morgan Stanley, what was your title?

A. Associate in investment banking in the M&A department.

Q. All right, could you take me through the other titles that you held at Morgan Stanley from 87 until you left in 99, 2000?

A. Well, actually I left Morgan Stanley in 1990.

Q. Okay.

A. With my boss, Eric Gleacher, who was head of the M&A department, and he and I and two others started Gleacher & Company, which was a small M&A boutique based in New York. So as a founder I was a vice-president at Gleacher and then was promoted to partner and CFO of Gleacher at the end of 1993, and in April of 1994 I rejoined and was recruited back to Morgan Stanley. At Morgan Stanley I rejoined as a principal in the M&A department and then was promoted to managing director either in 1996 or 1997. I don't exactly recall.

Q. Okay. And did you have the title managing director when you left Morgan Stanley the second time?

A. Yes.

Q. And when did you leave the second time?

A. Well, it was actually the third time if I count business school, but I left in July of 1999.

Kitts

Q. All right. Do you have any kind of separation agreement or contractual arrangement with Morgan Stanley governing your post departure relationship?
A. I do.
Q. Okay. And does that agreement speak in any way towards your duties to provide testimony or assistance in litigation?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. Okay. When was the last time you looked at that agreement?
A. Several years ago.
Q. Are you being compensated in any way for your time spent in connection with this deposition?
A. I received with the subpoena a check for some sum of money, 18 or 19 dollars or something. That was the only -- it remains uncashed at this point.
Q. Aside from the witness fee check, you've received no compensation for your work?

Kitts

A. No.
Q. Can you tell me what you did to prepare for this deposition?
A. I met with Tom yesterday.
Q. That's Tom Clare, for the record?
A. Yes. Briefly, you know, several, 15 or 20 minute meetings during the course of the day between my other responsibilities.
Q. Okay. And other than the meetings yesterday, did you have any other substantive meetings or conversations with any attorneys?
A. No.
Q. Were you contacted by any Morgan Stanley -- excuse me, Morgan Stanley employees in connection with this deposition?
A. No.
Q. Did you look at any documents yesterday in connection with your preparation?
A. Yes.
Q. Did any of those documents

Kitts

refresh your memory about any events?
A. Somewhat.
Q. And what documents refreshed your memory?
A. Well, it's been so long since I've thought about the case or the situation, and so I reviewed the board presentation that we used to render our fairness opinion.
Q. Anything else refresh your memory about the events?
A. I reviewed the working group list, the engagement letter or some correspondence between my client and the firm.
Q. Did you look at anyone's testimony in this case so far?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who has given testimony so far?
A. No. Well, let me -- I know of one or two individuals who have been deposed as a result of Tom telling me yesterday.
Q. Okay. Have you had any

Kitts

discussions with anyone other than Tom about this deposition?
A. No.
Q. Maybe your wife knows where you are, you but aside from that?
A. Frankly I only told her about it this morning as I was leaving and she was a bit disappointed that I hadn't told her before this morning, but it didn't dawn on me to explain it.
Q. Okay, I don't want to delve into those conversations. You referred a minute ago to Sunbeam I think as your client. You used the term my client. Did you have a personal connection with anyone at Sunbeam to procure this business, so to speak?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form. You can answer.
A. No.
Q. So when you say my client, are you using that as a proxy for Morgan Stanley's client or did you in fact have some more specific relationship?
A. No, perhaps I misspoke and would prefer to refer to them as our client while I was a member or an employee at Morgan Stanley.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. But were you involved in any way in pitching Morgan Stanley's capabilities to Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did it come about that you were asked to make a presentation to Sunbeam concerning Morgan Stanley's capabilities?

A. From what I recall, Sunbeam had made a public announcement that they were interviewing investment banks, at which point Bill Strong from Morgan Stanley Chicago office contacted members of the M&A department, probably including Bruce Fiedorek, Jim Stynes and myself. At the time I was head of the business development group within Morgan Stanley's M&A department, and so I played an active role in soliciting new business from large corporate entities, either existing clients or potential clients of the firm. Bill I believe had been in contact with Al Dunlap and/or other members of senior management and secured a date for us to come down and present our credentials down in Florida.

Q. Do you recall approximately when you did go to Florida to present the firm's credentials?

A. From yesterday's materials, I seem to recall it may have been April of 1997.

Q. Okay. I'm going to show you a document that may be useful to you throughout the course of the day as far as recalling when certain events occurred. This is a document that's been marked previously as Exhibit -- CPH Exhibit 84.

A. Thanks.

Q. And for the record, CPH Exhibit 84 bears the Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 0033255 through 263.

Mr. Kitts, have you ever seen Exhibit 84 previously?

A. Yesterday.

Q. Had you ever seen it prior to yesterday?

Kitts

A. No.

Q. Do you know who prepared this document?

A. No.

Q. Do you know why this document was prepared?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whether Morgan Stanley prepared this document?

A. It would appear based on the font that it was on the Morgan Stanley system based on my recollection of what documents internally look like.

Q. And this document 84 reflects that you among others attended a presentation in Florida on April 22. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Is that consistent with your recollection?

A. Yes.

Q. What role did Mr. Stynes have in the presentation to Sunbeam in April, 1997?

Kitts

A. Well, Jim, I guess I would describe Jim as the senior partner on the transaction, and so -- and my role was more the junior partner if you will.

Q. So you had more responsibility for nuts and bolts day-to-day issues?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. You can answer.

A. My responsibilities included at least in the context, in preparation for this meeting, really more of the generation of the themes for the presentation and the ideas, specific acquisition ideas, and Jim's role was more to present perhaps more senior level focus.

Q. And Mr. Strong was involved because of an existing relationship with Mr. Dunlap?

A. Yes.

Q. And how about Mr. Fiedorek?

A. Bruce, if not the head of M&A at that point, may have been promoted to vice-chairman, but was even more senior than anyone else there from Morgan Stanley and was the most accomplished M&A practitioner of the group.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0015828

Kitts

Q. And so his credentials would be valuable in soliciting the business?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And how about Mr. McCreery?

A. David was a principal in the business development group within M&A at Morgan.

Q. So he would be the least senior person among the Morgan Stanley personnel at the solicitation session?

A. Yes.

Q. And you would be second least senior?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. McCreery have any additional responsibilities with respect to Sunbeam transactions after his initial involvement in this April meeting?

A. He may have been involved in contacting specific parties that may have been considered potential purchasers in the solicitation, given an existing contact or relationship he may have had.

Kitts

Q. Now, you will see in Exhibit 84, at certain times the participants are noted as MS team. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And if you will turn to the last page of that document, I believe you will see a description of the members of the team.

A. Yes.

Q. Is that consistent with your understanding of the Morgan Stanley personnel primarily responsible for this engagement?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And let's take these in reverse order. L. Rafii, is that Lilly Rafii?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was her role on the transaction?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form.

Q. Yeah, that's a bad question.

Kitts

What was her role in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?

A. From what I recall, very limited. Without this document, I would not have recalled Lilly being an active member of the team. She was a junior analyst in the group.

Q. Had you ever worked with her prior to this Sunbeam engagement?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you work on any other engagements with Ms. Rafii other than the Sunbeam engagement?

A. Probably.

Q. Can you recall any specific --

A. No, because the business development function, there were ideas presented and generated every day in the absence of specific engagements, so we may have worked together, but not on a specific engagement.

Q. Okay. How about T. Chang, that's Tyrone Chang?

A. Yes.

Kitts

Q. And what was his role in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?

A. Tyrone was the analyst and the person closest to and most responsible for the creation of analytical and financial models.

Q. And next is J. Webber, is that Josh Webber?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was Mr. Webber's role in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?

A. Again, from my recollection, very limited, so I would not have identified him as a team member in the absence of this document, similar to Lilly.

Q. And next is G. Yoo, is that Gene Yoo?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was Mr. Yoo's role in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?

A. Gene was an associate on this engagement, and was primarily responsible for dictating some of the analysis and overseeing, closely overseeing and checking a lot of Tyrone's work.

Kitts

Q. Okay. Next is Alex Fuchs. What was Mr. Fuch's role in connection with the transaction? Excuse me, what was Mr. Fuch's role in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?

A. Alex was I believe a vice-president by that time in title, and was really the person day-to-day, I guess I would describe as the team leader, or primarily responsible for preparation of materials that we would present to the client.

Q. Who would have primary responsibility for materials that would be presented to third parties?

A. Alex in terms of preparation and review.

Q. So did Morgan Stanley prepare materials to provide to potential acquirers of Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Fuchs would have primary responsibility for that?

Kitts

A. He would have primary responsibility for preparing materials.

Q. Are you aware of any other Morgan Stanley personnel who worked on any aspect of the Sunbeam engagement other than the individuals listed here as comprising the MS team?

A. Not as it relates to the merger transactions.

Q. How about the debt offering of the financing transactions? What Morgan Stanley worked on those matters?

A. There was a large group of people across all the relevant functional areas of the firm, between equity capital marks, debt capital markets, high yield, senior debt, credit.

Q. And we're going to get into this in more detail later today, I suspect, but do you recall interfacing, for lack of a better word, with any of those Morgan Stanley personnel?

A. There was a brief handoff of responsibility from what I would describe as my role and responsibilities were up to and including the announcement of the transactions, at which point the requirements related to obtaining the financing handed over those responsibilities to other people within Morgan Stanley.

Kitts

Q. And specifically who at Morgan Stanley did you hand off the transaction to?

A. Well, from what I recall, the most -- the next transaction was the zero, the convertible preferred offering, which Ruth Porat, I believe, was responsible for overseeing.

Q. And did you have any dealings with anyone other than Miss Porat in connection with the debt offering?

A. Well, both Bram Smith as it relates to the bank debt, and I believe Brooks Harris as it related to the convert were both other senior people involved in that handoff, if you will.

Q. Did you ever have any dealings with John Tyree relating to Sunbeam?

A. I know John worked on the

Kitts

financing, but very limited interaction with John.

Q. So if you were to identify one Morgan Stanley employee as most knowledgeable about the work that Morgan Stanley did in what we would call phase one of the engagement, who would that be?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.

Q. Let me back up. Do you know what I mean when I say phase one of the transaction?

A. I would assume phase one means the M&A aspect of the transaction.

Q. Right. The work that resulted in Sunbeam's decision to acquire three companies.

A. That would be Alex Fuchs.

Q. Okay. And would, in your view, Mr. Fuchs also be the person most knowledgeable about Sunbeam's operations in the late 1997, early 1998 time frame?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation. You can answer if you

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

are able.

A. I'm sorry, could you repeat the question?

Q. Sure. In your own view, is Mr. Fuchs the Morgan Stanley employee most knowledgeable about Sunbeam's operations in the late 97, early 98 time frame?

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

A. Probably.

Q. Okay. Is there anyone who might be a close second?

A. Tyrone.

Q. Tyrone Chang?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you understand about Mr. Strong's relationship with Mr. Dunlap?

A. I seem to recall that Bill indicated he had a prior relationship, working relationship with Al from some time before the solicitation dating back, something back into the mid-80's.

Q. Did you --

A. And I can't remember if it was related to Jimmy Goldsmith or what the nature of that connection was.

Q. By the way, one other rule that I forgot to tell you about is if I interrupt you at any point, tell me you're not finished with your answer. And likewise if later today you remember something that bears on some of our questioning this morning, feel free to go back and clarify what your earlier answer had been. That's absolutely fair game.

A. Thank you.

Q. Did you do any reading or homework so to speak on Mr. Dunlap prior to meeting with him in April, 1997?

A. The homework, preparation work that I did for the meeting was focused on Sunbeam, based on publicly available information. I through general casual observation in the financial press was somewhat familiar with Mr. Dunlap's reputation and style of management.

Q. And what at that time was his reputation and style of management?

A. From what I remember, he at that time was viewed as a very aggressive manager with a unique ability to extract costs out of businesses, improve operations, reduce overhead, and in a very short period of time, have a relatively dramatic improvement or effect in improving profitability of the companies that he was involved in.

Kitts

Q. And did you at that time have any awareness of any companies that Mr. Dunlap had turned around, so to speak?

A. The one most recent prior to Sunbeam, I believe, was Scott Paper. I don't recall the specific entities he was involved with prior to that, but I know that it was a series of similar -- a pattern of similar significant improvements and profitability.

Q. Had you at that time heard or read anything questioning the authenticity of the turnaround at Scott Paper?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

A. No.

Q. Okay. As you sit here today, are you familiar with any questions about the authenticity of Mr. Dunlap's turnaround of Scott Paper?

Kitts

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. From what I recall after the fraud had been claimed or accused or disclosed at Sunbeam, that it seemed that I remember some articles going back and looking into his accomplishments at Scott and other places, and questioning some of the legitimacy of the achievements he had claimed.

Q. And you understand now that Mr. Dunlap is barred from serving as an officer or director of a public company for life?

MR. CLARE: Objection.

A. Yes.

Q. I think Exhibit 84 indicates that Mr. Kersh was present during the April, 97 meeting. Was that the first time you had ever had any dealings with Mr. Kersh?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any familiarity with Mr. Kersh's experience or reputation prior

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

to meeting him?
A. No, I just seem to recall that he had been with part of Dunlap's management team at one or more of the previous employers.
Q. Okay. Did you ever meet any other senior executives at Sunbeam at any point during your work on the Sunbeam engagement?
A. Yes.
Q. Tell me which ones you can recall.
A. David Fannin, who is the general counsel, I believe, was very actively involved throughout our phase one as you described it. Don Uzzi, I don't recall his title, whether he was president or head of consumer products. In addition we met each of the heads of each of the functional business units, not at this initial meeting, but subsequently in learning more about the operations of the company.
Q. How about Mr. Goudis, do you remember meeting him at any time?

Kitts

A. Rich Goudis, yes.
Q. How about Mr. Gluck, Bob Gluck, does that name ring a bell?
A. It does. Again, he may have been more -- Tyrone and Alex may have had more interaction with Mr. Gluck, but the name does ring a bell.
Q. Okay. Anybody else as you sit here today?
A. No other names come to mind.
Q. By the way, did you use e-mail in your work for Morgan Stanley in the April, 1997 time frame?
A. Possibly, but at that point in time, voice-mail was the more relevant technology that people seemed to use.
Q. Did that change over time? In other words was the use of e-mail increasing through the 97, 98 time frame?
A. I don't recall if that was the period where it became more actively employed.
Q. Did there ever come a period in your work at Morgan Stanley where e-mail became on par with voice-mail for communicating?

Kitts

A. Yes.
Q. And that was the case by the time you left in 99?
A. Yes. In fact where e-mail had become a more efficient form of communication than voice-mail.
Q. Do you happen to remember what your Morgan Stanley e-mail address is?
A. No. I'm sure it was RKitts@ whatever the --
Q. Well, let me see if -- this is not supposed to be a memory challenge. Let me see if I've got something that will help you remember. This will be marked as CPH Exhibit 137.
(CPH Exhibit 137, 0039543, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Mr. Kitts, I have had the court reporter provide you with a document marked CPH Exhibit 137. It's a one-page document that bears among other Bates stamps, CPH -- excuse me, Morgan Stanley confidential

Kitts

0039543.
This, as I review it, Mr. Kitts, indicates an e-mail address that appears to be KittsR@ and then it's got New York investment banking division suffixes.
A. Yes.
Q. You did have that e-mail address at one point at Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know whether you had any other Morgan Stanley e-mail addresses? In other words did your address change over time?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Okay. This appears to be two e-mails, one authored by Tyrone Chang on April 13, 1997, and then a reply that is from, it would appear, someone in France to Mr. Chang, you and Mr. Fiedorek. Does that appear to be Exhibit 137 to you?
A. Yes.
Q. The subject line is Sunbeam bake-off. What does that bake-off refer to?
A. Bake-off is a term used within

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

investment banking circles to describe a new business presentation.

Q. Okay. And does it have connotations of a competition for business?

A. Yes.

Q. And in fact Morgan Stanley was competing with other major investment banking firms for Sunbeam's business, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Chang indicates in his e-mail that those competitors include Goldman Sachs, JP Morgan and Chase. Did you learn of any other competitors for Sunbeam's business in the 1997 time frame?

A. None that stand out prominently in my mind.

Q. What is your view why Morgan Stanley ultimately prevailed over its competitors to get Sunbeam's business?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation, and lack of foundation. You can answer.

A. I would hope that it was based on the quality of our ideas.

Kitts

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap or Mr. Kersh during your initial meeting in April, 1997 indicate who Morgan Stanley's competitors would be for the business?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, Morgan Stanley was not formally engaged by Sunbeam until several months later after the April meeting, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And so any work performed through the late spring and summer of 1997 was not work for which Morgan Stanley had any arrangement to be compensated.

A. That's right. There was no formal arrangement in place.

Q. And do you recall when the engagement letter was ultimately executed? And you can feel free to look at Exhibit 84. That might refresh your memory.

A. Thank you. Based on this document, I would seem to recall September time frame.

Kitts

Q. Okay. September of 97?

A. Yes.

Q. You made several trips to Florida over the summer of 1997 to discuss possible transactions with Sunbeam, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And Exhibit 84 would reflect I believe at least two trips to Florida. Is that consistent with your memory?

A. Yes.

Q. And two trips in the summer of 97?

A. Yes.

Q. The arrangements that Morgan Stanley eventually made with Sunbeam for the engagement with Morgan Stanley was in essence a contingency fee arrangement, is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. The bulk of the compensation was intended to be provided through what we would describe as a success fee.

Q. So if Morgan Stanley failed to identify a transaction that was consummated,

Kitts

Morgan Stanley wouldn't receive a fee, is that fair to say?

A. I don't remember if there was any up-front retainer which was frequently employed in these types of arrangements, but it's fair to say that the majority, if not significant majority of the consideration would have been in the form of a success fee.

Q. And the size of the success fee would turn on the size of the transaction, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The bigger the deal, the bigger Morgan Stanley's compensation?

A. Usually, yes.

Q. Now, did you learn at any time that Mr. Dunlap's initial preference would be to sell Sunbeam to a third party?

A. From what I remember, I don't -- I know that they wanted us to explore a sale of the company, but we frequently discussed both buy side as well as sell side opportunities, and so the lines were somewhat blurred between which direction he preferred, depending on the day and the opportunities that were existing.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. I will give you a document to look at. This is a document, Mr. Kitts, that's been marked previously as CPH Exhibit 69. If you just take a minute and look through that document, I'm going to have a series of questions relating to it.

A. Okay.

Q. Have you ever seen the document that's been marked as CPH Exhibit 69 previously?

A. Not with this handwriting on it, but a similar document.

Q. Okay. The document without the handwriting you've seen?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any idea whose handwriting that is?

A. No.

Q. Can you determine whether the handwriting is that of a Morgan Stanley employee?

Kitts

MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.

A. No.

Q. And putting aside the handwriting, can you identify what the printed matter is that's contained in Exhibit CPH 69?

A. This is a presentation that we used in working with Sunbeam management to guide our discussions on what direction the process and the project would take.

Q. Okay. And Exhibit 69 is really a sell side presentation, is that fair to say?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. Well, it contains information relating to who might buy the company, the process that they might go through, and the beginnings of an outline of how we might prepare the information for -- to present to potential buyers.

Q. Okay. And it does not contain any information on potential acquisitions to be made by Sunbeam, is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Kitts

Q. And these materials are dated for a September 11, 1997 conference call. Do you see that on the cover?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you a participant in that conference call?

A. Yes.

Q. And who else from Morgan Stanley was involved in that conference call?

A. I believe each of the members of the team as listed, as written on this page, Bill Strong, Jim Stynes, myself, Alex Fuchs, Gene Yoo and Tyrone Chang.

Q. And from Sunbeam, Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fannin and Mr. Goudis were on the call?

A. Yes.

Q. And then there were representatives of a company called Llama, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What was Llama's role in the Sunbeam engagement?

A. Llama's role was, I guess I would describe it as a second advisor to the company, and they indicated, given Alice's background and a member I believe of the Walton family of Walmart fame, that they had unique access to executives at a number of consumer product companies.

Kitts

Q. Okay. Did Llama come into the transaction at Sunbeam's initiation or Morgan Stanley's initiation?

A. I believe initially at Sunbeam's introduction or recommendation.

Q. Okay. If you'd look in the upper left of the first page, there is a handwritten note that appears to say Mark Davis, arrow, GS/being told. Do you know what that refers to?

A. Not specifically. Mark Davis was a senior banker at Chase, and so if I had to speculate, it would be that Mark Davis who I believe represented Dunlap when Al was at Scott Paper and that Goldman Sachs were both being told that Sunbeam had decided to work with Morgan Stanley.

Q. Under the next kind of asterisk point, there are a number of subpoints that

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

are at least partially legible, and appear to list DLJ, Oppenheimer and Salomon. Do you have any knowledge as to whether those entities were also competing for Sunbeam's business?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And then in that same quadrant of the page, the last asterisk point appears to state, Coopers & Lybrand to calibrate synergies. What does that refer to?

A. From what I recall, that Coopers & Lybrand was going to be engaged as an additional advisor to review the reasonableness and the ability to achieve synergies through some of the combination transactions we were going to explore.

Q. Okay. And at whose suggestion was Coopers & Lybrand to be retained?

A. Sunbeam's.

Q. Had you in connection with any of your Morgan Stanley work ever used an accounting firm to review synergies?

MR. CLARE: At what point in

Kitts

time?

MR. JOHNSON: At any point in time.

A. We certainly would from time to time work with consultants or other third parties in reviewing certain aspects of transactions, including synergy potential. May have included accounting firms. But I can't point to a specific engagement in which I was involved that employed those services.

Q. Okay. If you would look down in the lower left quadrant, there is a notation that appears to state, David to call Coopers, and then under that a slash that says Alex/Bob. Are the Alex and Bob there you and Mr. Fuchs?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. Probably.

Q. Did you personally contact Coopers and interface with them in their synergies work?

A. I don't recall. They may have been on one or two phone calls where I was a participant, but I didn't have an active interaction with Coopers.

Kitts

Q. Okay. Was there any person at Morgan Stanley who would be the point person so to speak with Coopers?

A. Probably Alex or Gene Yoo in coordinating.

Q. If you would be good enough to flip to page 3 of these discussion materials, which has the Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 0003897. By the way, Morgan Stanley drafted this document, is that correct?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Do you know which team member had primary responsibility for drafting this document?

A. Probably Alex Fuchs.

Q. Now, in the upper left of the third page, there is a handwritten notation stating just get it done. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you have any idea what that note refers to?

Kitts

A. No.

Q. And then about in the middle of the page there is a handwritten note that states, Kimberly/Scott dash won't see anything. Do you know what that refers to?

A. No.

Q. Would it be fair to infer that the Kimberly Scott there is Scott Paper and Kimberly Clark's acquisition of Scott Paper?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and calls for speculation.

A. Probably.

Q. The first printed text under action steps is to, quote, agree on tier one list of potential buyers. How does, in this context, Morgan Stanley go about identifying who potential buyers would be?

A. The process is really multi-faceted. One step would be to query other officers within the firm, and so I believe that Tyrone Chang e-mail that was sent out to officers and the response that was received from Andre Francois Pense is an example of the type of inquiry you would make within the firm to try and obtain knowledge and information of the Morgan Stanley network to determine if there are interested parties out there. In addition, you would -- we would review based upon the size of other companies and try to make an attempt at assessing what the strategic fit might be between the companies to try and determine a credible universe of parties to potentially consider its really, I guess I would describe it as a funnel, and so you start with a very broad universe of names and try to, as you gain a better understanding of the company, try to narrow it down to a more rational group of potentially interested parties.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. The third bullet point, and I think this is consistent with your funneling analogy, provides, and I quote, approach selected potential buyers to initiate discrete one on one conversations with capital I information, capital M memorandum. Do you see that?

Kitts

A. Yes.

Q. The information memorandum referred to there is a packet of information on Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And Morgan Stanley would be involved with preparing that memorandum?

A. Yes.

Q. The next major bullet point on the same page provides, obtain indication of valuation and intent. What does that refer to?

A. What that refers to is based upon the previous bullet point and subdashes regarding contacting potential buyers, to the extent there was interest, what view they had with respect to the value of Sunbeam. And intent with the two question marks would suggest whether or not they wanted to pursue a transaction in which they would take control of the combined entity. I think it really refers to intent meaning desire to acquire the company, and what the potential role of senior management of

Kitts

Sunbeam might be.

Q. Okay. And the valuation term in particular refers to what a buyer might be willing to pay for the company?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And depending on the transaction, that would be some premium over the then stock price?

A. Usually.

Q. Okay. Now, going back to the information memorandum, how did Morgan Stanley go about preparing that information memorandum in this case?

A. In this case, what we would usually do is have a series of meetings with senior management to try and develop a better understanding of the company and the businesses, and then work with management in preparing information that attempted to accurately reflect and describe the business.

Q. And who on the Morgan Stanley team was involved in the series of meetings that you referred to?

Kitts

A. At least myself, Alex, Jean, Tyrone, I don't recall if Bill Strong and Jim Stynes were involved, but Bill in particular tended to be very active on this engagement. And so he very well could have been.

Q. And those would be meetings I think you said with senior management?

A. With senior -- with executive management, but also then I remember, you know, discussions, whether face-to-face meetings and conference calls with a broader group of business unit level managers.

Q. And can you remember any other names?

A. No.

Q. And these calls would have occurred then in the September, 97 time frame?

A. I believe so.

Q. I believe you indicated that the purpose of the information memorandum was to compile accurate information on the company to be sold.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

93-1836

Kitts

A. Yes.
Q. Why is it important for the information to be accurate?
A. Well, in presenting the information to third parties, in this particular example as a public company, we were very concerned as we are in any public company situation about confidentiality. The result of that is that we chose in this case to only use publicly available information in preparing the information memorandum, or input from the management team. So a large -- you will see in the outline that much of the description was either based on publicly filed documents or on public research reports from analysts that were familiar with the company.
Q. All right. And I guess the confidentiality is one side of it, but the accuracy is another. My question is really directed to the accuracy. Why is it important for the information memorandum to be accurate?
A. Well, the purpose of the

Kitts

information memorandum is to present the opportunity to potential buyers in order to try and develop a level of interest. And presumably the desire is to obtain their level of interest based on an informed point of view.
Q. So to give the third parties a realistic assessment of the company to be sold?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, you indicated that because of confidentiality concerns, you utilized publicly available information. Did you take any steps other than what you've already testified to to determine the accuracy of the publicly available information in connection with preparing this information memorandum?
A. Not in determining the accuracy of the publicly available information, no. We relied upon public filings, audited financial statements, research reports published by other investment banks.
Q. Okay. Now, pages 5 through 10 of

Kitts

Exhibit CPH 69 lists some potential buyers that Morgan Stanley had identified, is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And I apologize for the small type which is not reproduced very well. If you'd look at page 8, the last listed company on page 8 is, I'm not sure whether that's SEB or S-E-B. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know whether it's SEB or S-E-B?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Okay. The handwritten comment associated with S-E-B provides, was going to buy, walked away, turned off by lousy management. Do you have any recollection of what those comments refer to?
A. No.
Q. Did you in connection with the September 11 call discuss these potential buyers with the Morgan Stanley team and Mr. Kersh?
A. Yes.

Kitts

Q. As of September 11, Morgan Stanley hadn't reached out to all of these potential buyers, is that correct?
A. That's correct, we had not made contact.
Q. It was something that was just getting under way?
A. Yes. We wanted to review and have the client approve any party before they were contacted.
Q. Now, if you would flip to page 12 for me, in the upper left of this page in large type there is handwritten the word amateurs?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any idea what that refers to?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
A. I don't.
Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley have a view that Sunbeam's management were amateurs in any way?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

for speculation about what other people would have -- the views held by other people. You can answer if you are able.

A. No, and in fact if I had to speculate based on this call, I would believe that the reference may have been made to the Llama team.

Q. Llama was paid out of the compensation to be awarded to Morgan Stanley, is that correct?

A. I believe that's right. Bill Strong really took the active role in negotiating the engagement letter and the subsequent sharing of payments to Llama.

Q. Okay.

A. I believe that to be the case.

Q. There is a printed portion of text on page 12 stating, section Roman 6, future growth opportunities, do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And there is a notation to apparently move that section up. Do you see that?

Kitts

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any recollection of the significance of Sunbeam's future growth opportunities as part of the information memorandum that will be prepared for third parties?

A. Well, I think in any information memorandum, the buyer is as focused, if not more focused on the future as the past, and so an attempt would be made by an advisor to try to make sure that potential buyers understood, you know, the potential upside opportunity and future growth opportunity.

Q. There is a note that seems to be associated with that printed text that states, beefed up sex appeal. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. What does that refer to?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I don't know.

Q. There is yet another handwritten note associated with that printed text that states, that's going to sell. What does that refer to?

Kitts

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. I don't know. If I had to speculate, I believe that as we heard more about the new product introduction cycles that Sunbeam was contemplating and the creative process that they were approaching new product introductions, you know, we as a team certainly became excited about what the future opportunity was for Sunbeam.

Q. And so you were of the view that third parties would be particularly intrigued by Sunbeam's future possibilities?

A. Yes.

Q. There is one other note on this same page towards the middle of the page that states, what happened over last the year? What's the significance of that text?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, was Morgan Stanley in any way touting Sunbeam's improved results under

Kitts

Dunlap's management?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. We considered Dunlap's ability to cut costs to be a strategic asset of Sunbeam, and based on the information available, financial, historical financials as well as the research reports, suggested that his ability to continue to take costs out of the structure were significant. We viewed that management team ability as a selling point and a strategic asset.

Q. And in fact it was not just Dunlap's ability to cut costs, it was also to improve sales results, is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. We viewed his ability to cut costs as a more strategic asset. I think as this page suggests, as we learned more about the future growth opportunities, I'm not sure that that was a Dunlap asset or other people within the organization, Don Uzzi, whoever the others were. But what we felt was that this management team was bringing a new approach to what was considered a relatively mundane set of consumer product categories.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01-4338

Kitts

Q. And the new approach, I believe you indicated, improved the financials in several respects, is that correct?

MR CLARE: I think that misstates his prior testimony. You can answer.

A. What I would say is that the new approach, we believed that the new approach was likely to have a meaningful positive contribution to future sales.

Q. And Sunbeam's turnaround for 96 over 97, that turnaround was a result of more than just cost-cutting measures by Dunlap, is that correct?

MR CLARE: Objection, no foundation.

A. I don't remember.

Q. You personally met with a number of potential buyers of Sunbeam in the fall of 1997, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall any of the

Kitts

potential buyers you met with?

A. I remember meeting with Gillette, I remember meeting with -- that's the meeting that stands out in my mind most prominently.

Q. Did Gillette tell you at that time that they thought Sunbeam was overvalued?

A. I don't remember them saying that.

Q. Okay. Do you remember any potential buyers of Sunbeam expressing the concern that Sunbeam was overvalued in the fall of 1997?

A. I don't remember any specific party indicating that Sunbeam was overvalued. My recollection is that people certainly viewed how the stock had performed, that the stock appeared to be fully valued.

Q. In addition to Gillette, you also met with Gruppo Pulsar, is that correct?

A. That's possible. I don't remember being a member of that -- attending that meeting.

Kitts

Q. Okay, let's -- and again, I recognize this is a few years ago. If you want to look at Exhibit 84, that might, particularly in the September-October date range, that may refresh your memory a little bit.

A. Okay. I see that I'm listed. I don't honestly recall the meeting.

Q. How about meetings with Sarah Lee and Newall, do you recall those meetings?

A. Yes.

Q. And those were in Chicago and Wisconsin apparently?

A. Yes.

Q. And then Colgate Palmolive, you met with them to discuss the sell side as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And Societe Bic?

A. Yes.

Q. And Stanley Works?

A. Yes.

Q. And then flipping over to the next page, I think you will see some additional sell side meetings. Do you recall involved being involved in an AEA Investors discussion on the sell side?

Kitts

A. I don't recall, but it's quite possible.

Q. How about Clorox, do you remember meeting with them on the sell side?

A. Yes.

Q. That was in San Francisco?

A. Yes. May have been Oakland.

Q. Now, Morgan Stanley ultimately was unable to find a buyer for Sunbeam, is that correct?

A. Through the course of these meetings, we were unable to identify a buyer.

Q. Well, ultimately a buyer was never located, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And why, in your view, was Morgan Stanley unable to find someone to buy Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

A. I think there were a variety of reasons, depending on individual purchaser at the end of the day, the -- to a certain extent beauty is in the eye of the beholder. And so in this case there were, you know, multiple concerns expressed across, you know, from different parties. One was the, given the dramatic runup in the stock price, that the stock appeared to be fully valued, and so certain potential purchasers couldn't get their arms around how they could afford to pay a premium to buy the company at what would be acceptable to the shareholders. Others, other parties, there either was a limited or no strategic fit from a corporate perspective with the areas that they competed or they didn't have interest in some of the categories in which Sunbeam participated. Others thought that while the cost-cutting efforts that occurred had been impressive, there were questions raised about the ability to both cut costs and grow sales simultaneously. It seemed to me to be the three -- those were three themes. A fourth theme was frankly, you know, concerns about dealing with Al Dunlap.

Kitts

Q. And what specifically would cause someone to have concern about dealing with Mr. Dunlap?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. Well, some of the concerns related to the fact that he -- it appeared that he and his senior management team were clearly responsible for the dramatic change that had occurred in the results at Sunbeam, and therefore some of the larger companies we were discussing this with would expect to acquire the company and have a management team already in place that could continue to run it, and there were significant questions raised about how long would Al Dunlap ever work for someone else or stay around in running that business.

Q. Did any of the potential buyers voice any concerns about Mr. Dunlap's management style?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

Kitts

A. Frankly I believe that some companies may have been fearful of engaging in conversations with Sunbeam with the fear that if they didn't go well, that the tables may ultimately be turned, if Al became educated on their company and situation.

Q. That Sunbeam could buy them as opposed to them buying Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And at that point in time, Sunbeam's value had grown substantially over say the preceding 18 months?

A. Yes.

Q. So Sunbeam was a fairly large company, it's fair to say, by the fall of 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. And the value of Sunbeam as defined by its stock price was something that Dunlap could trade on to buy another company?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Lack of foundation.

A. Certainly using his stock as currency and as a form of consideration, was certainly a method available to him as a public company.

Kitts

Q. And in fact it's a method that he ultimately used in connection with the Coleman acquisition?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did the idea of using Sunbeam stock as currency come about in connection with Morgan Stanley's work?

A. Well, I think it goes all the way back to the original solicitation meeting. Some of our proposed ideas suggested not selling the company today necessarily, but merging with another company and applying this skill set that we believed management to have of cost-cutting, applying it to someone else's cost structure.

Q. And in connection with a transaction of that sort, Sunbeam would use its stock to effect the transaction?

A. Potentially, depending on the size of the transaction. A smaller transaction, they were more likely to use

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

cash or borrow money. But in the context of some of the larger transactions that we were proposing, I think equity, the use of equity as consideration was considered.

Q. And that was among the ideas that Morgan Stanley presented from the outset of the engagement?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Sunbeam kept apprised of Morgan Stanley's efforts to find a buyer in the fall of 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. And were there periodic conference calls or meetings to keep Sunbeam informed as to the progress in finding a buyer?

A. Yes.

Q. Did anyone at Sunbeam ever voice any displeasure with the inability to locate a buyer?

A. Certainly during the course of the engagement, there were periods where the client was either disappointed or less than pleased with the outcomes.

Kitts

Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Dunlap in the fall of 97 concerning Morgan Stanley's progress in identifying a buyer?

A. Yes.

Q. And did he ever lose his temper to you as a result of learning of the sales progress?

A. He certainly could be aggressive in his communications.

Q. Raised voice?

A. Yes.

Q. Profanity?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you give me any more specific recollection of any of the calls or meetings with Al Dunlap in the fall of 97 where Morgan Stanley was advising him of the progress on locating a buyer?

A. Nothing stands out in my mind, other than going through materials not dissimilar to this and advising him. Sometimes I would communicate the message, sometimes Bill Strong would communicate the message, sometimes Jim Stynes would communicate the messages back.

Q. Taking turns with Dunlap?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, there came a time when Morgan Stanley met with representatives of McAndrews & Forbes Holding Company concerning a potential Sunbeam transaction, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were involved in those initials meetings, is that correct?

A. I don't remember if I was involved in the initial meeting or not. Okay, I'm sorry, I was looking at December 12 where there was a meeting between Sunbeam and MAFCO, where it notes MS not present. I was certainly in some of the meetings. But again, what I can't remember is there were meetings that Jim Stynes might have attended and I didn't and vice versa.

(Recess taken.)

FURTHER EXAMINATION BY MR. JOHNSON:

Kitts

Q. Mr. Kitts, I want to go back for a minute for a little more discussion of what we've been calling the sell side efforts in the fall of 97. And in that connection, I've given you a document marked CPH Exhibit 71. If you would take a minute and look through it and then identify that for the record, I'd appreciate it.

A. Yes.

Q. Can you identify Exhibit 71 for the record?

A. Yes. The first two pages are an internal memo sent to investment banking at Morgan Stanley to -- which was standard practice any time, or the firm was publicly involved in a transaction, or in a -- representing a client to notify all investment banking of the firm's involvement and who the team members were.

Q. And this is a memorandum circulated by e-mail, is that correct?

A. Yes, it appears that way.

Q. And the memorandum itself is dated October 22, 1997?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. There's also an attached file included within Exhibit 71, is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. What is the attachment?
A. The attachment is intended to provide background material on a company, again to, in this case investment banking, so that they at least had some level of familiarity with the company.
Q. Is this in the nature of the information memorandum that we were talking about earlier today?
A. Yes, it appears similar in style and substance to the information, to the subset of what would be contained in an information memorandum.
Q. So this would be information that ultimately could be communicated to third parties or potential buyers of Sunbeam?
A. Yes, potentially, but again, the purpose here was for internal purposes.
Q. Do you know who drafted the attached file?

Kitts

A. I don't. I would believe that it would have been a collaborative effort, but at the end of the day, either Tyrone or Gene Yoo would have been the person or persons typing the draft.
Q. Let's look in particular at the first page of the attachment, which appears to have the Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 00005986.
A. Yes.
Q. The title is investment rationale.
A. Yes.
Q. This page in particular, is that a collaborative effort within Morgan Stanley?
A. Well, the entire document is a collaborative effort both between Morgan Stanley and in this case Sunbeam management.
Q. Did you personally have any input into the contents of the page marked investment rationale?
A. I don't remember.

Kitts

Q. And you think Mr. Chang or Mr. Yoo would have been the person, the secretary or scribe on this page?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, the first bullet point provides, Sunbeam provides an attractive growth story and investment opportunity. What was the basis for that statement as of the third week of October, 1997?
A. Well, I think each bullet point represents a theme that we tried to present factual information underneath it to support that point, and so the attractive growth story in our view was supported by the fact that they were market leader and had a leading share in each of the categories listed, you know, et cetera.
Q. The second major bullet point provides, Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in 1996.
Can you tell me again what the basis for that statement would be?
A. Again, I think the basis is underneath it in that the transformation was from, going from an unprofitable -- they've gotten rid of companies or businesses that were unprofitable, they've reduced costs, they've restructured. The company had come up with this new theme of describing themselves as a branded consumer devices company, which was a relatively unique position that they had identified, and so again, we were trying to articulate on behalf of the company what, you know, what they had described to us as the changes that they had implemented since they had arrived.

Kitts

Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any obligation to confirm the authenticity of the transformation that is being described here?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Calls for a legal conclusion.
A. I don't know.
Q. So -- well, let me put it this way. Did Morgan Stanley undertake any steps to confirm the veracity of this stated profound transformation?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

A. The team conducted due diligence and researched publicly available information that we considered to be reasonable and appropriate in determining and preparing the material that we prepared through a series of, you know, reviewing documentation but also interviews and discussions with management.

Q. We'll get into the due diligence more in a little bit. Going back up to the first bullet point, which states that Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story, same question, what did Morgan Stanley do to confirm that in fact Sunbeam did present a growth story?

A. Again, in terms of reviewing publicly available information, research reports, discussions with management, we came to believe that this new product introduction and idea generation capability that they had created would suggest that there was significant additional growth both domestically and internationally for the company.

Kitts

Q. So putting aside whether Morgan Stanley had an obligation to confirm the veracity of the statements contained on page -- the page marked investment rationale, your view is that Morgan Stanley did in fact take steps to confirm the accuracy of those statements?

A. Yes.

Q. And it did so by reviewing public filings and having discussions with management?

A. Yes.

Q. Anything else?

MR. CLARE: Beyond the other steps that he's testified to?

Q. Well, let's just have a clear record. Beyond looking at public filings and having discussions with management, what did Morgan Stanley do to confirm the accuracy of the information contained on page bearing the Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 5986?

A. You'll see that we also relied in presenting the material reviewed any and all public commentary on the company with respect to research analyst reports, industry reports that might have been available, general industry newspapers, magazines, et cetera, to confirm, and you know, the buzz around Sunbeam at the time was, from what I remember, pretty spectacular. And so you know, for example a number of us attended a new product launch that's on this chronology on October 8, which was the air and water filters business as another example of the new product launch opportunities that they were pursuing.

Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley in the fall of 97 have any discussions with Sunbeam's major customers?

MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did anyone in the fall of 97 from Morgan Stanley have any discussions with Sunbeam's outside auditors?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. I don't remember, but there were certainly conversations and discussions and interaction with Arthur Andersen during the process.

Kitts

Q. Do you remember when in the process those interactions occurred?

A. No, I think it would have been during our diligence phase in terms of some of the information requests and there may have been as part of those discussions conversations with members of Arthur Andersen.

Q. Did you personally have any discussions with anyone from Andersen at any time relating to Sunbeam?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. Can you identify any of the individuals who were on the Sunbeam account for Andersen?

A. No. Sorry, there was a name or two that I can't remember, but I seem to recall that there had been some longstanding relationship between Dunlap and certain partners at Andersen, is my recollection there.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. And did the fact of that relationship have any significance to you?

A. No, I viewed it as similar to, you know, Bill Strong having prior interaction with Dunlap over the years.

Q. Going back to the page entitled investment rationale, which is the first page of the attachment to Mr. Chang's e-mail in Exhibit 71, and again for the record it's page Morgan Stanley confidential 5986, in your view, would third parties be entitled to place any reliance on the information presented on this page?

MR CLARE: Objection. There is no foundation that this document was presented to third parties as an internal document on its face. You can answer.

A. Could you repeat the question?

Q. Sure. The information set forth as the investment rationale for Sunbeam, in your view would it be fair for third parties to place any reliance on the statements contained there?

A. No.

Kitts

Q. And why do you say that?

A. Because I would view this document as the introduction of an idea, and solely that, to introduce an opportunity to someone, and that to rely on a document like this would be inappropriate.

Q. So for a third party to form any opinion as to whether Sunbeam had undergone a profound transformation, for example, on the basis of the statements that Morgan Stanley drafted, that would be unreasonable?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any opinion as to whether Morgan Stanley had any responsibility for accurately presenting Sunbeam's financial condition?

A. Yes, based upon the information we had available to us, yes.

Q. I guess what I'm a little confused about is why is it important for Morgan Stanley to present accurate information if third parties aren't entitled to place any weight on the information Morgan Stanley provides?

Kitts

MR CLARE: Object to the form of the question. Argumentative.

A. The rest of the material that's presented is all factual in nature, based upon publicly available information. And so again, our focus was solely relying on information that either was provided to us by the company or from public filings. This investment rationale page is intended to be an accurate description in a qualitative manner of what we understood to be the opportunity. The rest of the presentation is quantitative in nature for the most part. And the qualitative assessment at the end of the day is again, falls under what I would describe as beauty being in the eye of the beholder in terms of interpreting the factual information.

Q. So it's a subjective consideration?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you personally review any public filings in connection with your collaboration on procuring this investment rationale?

Kitts

A. I certainly reviewed any publicly available information on Sunbeam that I deemed relevant, absolutely.

Q. And so can you tell me any public filings you reviewed?

A. 10-K, annual report, 10-Q's, any research that I deemed relevant that was available to us. Internal budgets, whatever internal plans they may have provided to us.

Q. I guess I'm a little confused now. I thought you had indicated that you, in connection with preparing this document, reviewed public filings, had discussions with management, and reviewed publicly available analyst reports. And now you've mentioned internal budgeting documents. Is that something else that Morgan Stanley reviewed in connection with preparing the information memorandum?

A. What I don't -- usually any situation which we're involved in will get whatever internal documentation is available in terms of the most recent strategic plan.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

I don't remember what that document looked like in this instance, but the information that was used to prepare this document was solely based on either publicly available information or information provided to us by management. Again, the focus on this was concern about confidentiality, given the fact that it was a public company, and so there were no internal forecasts presented in this document as far as I know.

Q. And again, the management that you personally spoke with were all senior officers?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any idea who Mr. Chang spoke with during the fall of 97 at Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. Now, going back to the initial meetings with MAFCO that we started to talk about a little while ago, how is it that Morgan Stanley came to contact MAFCO concerning a potential transaction with Sunbeam?

Kitts

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley have a relationship with anyone at MAFCO?

A. Yes.

Q. Tell me about that.

A. Bill Reid, who was the managing director had, I believe, client responsibility for overseeing the relationship with MAFCO and any of its related entities.

Q. And was the initial contact to MAFCO made as part of the sell side efforts?

A. I don't remember.

Q. When did the idea of a transaction involving Coleman get presented to MAFCO for the first time?

A. I see it here on the chronology as November 6, but I don't remember the meeting.

Q. Okay. Do you remember how many face-to-face meetings you had in the fall of 97 with MAFCO individuals?

A. No.

Q. Who throughout phase one of the transaction as we've been using that term, who from MAFCO did you personally have any communications with?

Kitts

A. Jim Maher and possibly Will Nesbitt.

Q. Anybody else?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. Did you ever have any communications with Ron Perlman?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. How would you characterize the initial meetings with MAFCO relating to a possible transaction?

MR. CLARE: Objection to foundation and form.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you have the view that the parties were making substantial progress in reaching some kind of a deal?

A. Again, I think we'd have to clarify the time frame. Because again, as I think about the fall, I don't, you know, I don't think that's the time frame. It may be, you know, my notion of fall versus winter, but --

Kitts

Q. Well, I think we can even distinguish between 1997 and 98. In 97, did you have the view that the parties, those being MAFCO and Sunbeam, were making substantial progress in reaching some kind of an agreement?

A. Yes. My -- I mean again, late December, January, the dates kind of blur, but my understanding was that there was a meaningful dialogue occurring between Sunbeam management and Coleman management and/or MAFCO.

Q. Did you ever hear about a meeting between Mr. Perlman and Mr. Dunlap in Florida in December, 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you hear about that?

A. I remember -- from what I remember hearing, there were discussions at one of the two individual's homes, I believe, and I guess it was described as the infamous fuck you meeting or something where the two parties ultimately broke off conversations and stormed off.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. Morgan Stanley was not present in any capacity at that meeting?
A. No.
Q. How did it come to be that the parties made up, so to speak?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
A. I don't remember what triggered the re-engagement.
Q. But at some point in 98, early 97, the parties re-engaged in discussions?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And you personally attended meetings with MAFCO representatives in February, 1998 relating to a potential transaction involving the acquisition of Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, who else was at those meetings?
A. Again, different meetings. There may have been different individuals, but from what I remember from Morgan Stanley, it would have been Jim Stynes, myself, possibly

Kitts

Alex Fuchs, Jim Maher and Will Nesbitt; Coleman, you know, possibly Jerry Levin, depending on what meeting, and possibly CSFB, members of CSFB.
Q. When was the first time you had any communication with Mr. Levin relating to a transaction involving Coleman?
A. I believe it was one of the diligence sessions, where we were reviewing kind of the Sunbeam, you know, business.
Q. Are those diligence sessions where Morgan Stanley was reviewing Coleman's business or Sunbeam's business?
A. Those really were meetings where Sunbeam was presenting their businesses to the Coleman representatives.
Q. And Mr. Levin was among those representatives?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. Who else from Coleman did you have any direct face-to-face dealings with in the early part of 1998?
A. No-one that I remember.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Page by any chance?

Kitts

A. No.
(Begin videotape 2)
(CPH Exhibit 138, CPH 1411216-300, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Kitts, I'm going to give you a document that we've marked as CPH Exhibit 138, and ask that you review it.
A. Thank you.
Q. Can you identify the document that's been marked as CPH Exhibit 138?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you do that for me?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell me what it is?
A. Oh, this would be a, again, it would appear to be the information memorandum style presentation that we would have used with potential buyers.
Q. So this is a document that is for distribution to third parties?
A. Yes.
Q. And for the record, CPH Exhibit

Kitts

138 has the Bates stamp CPH 1411216 through CPH 1411300. This draft is dated February, 1998, is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley prepare this draft?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Morgan Stanley's name appears on the bottom right of the page?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Who at Morgan Stanley prepared this?
A. Again, it would have been a team effort.
Q. Who was the scribe, so to speak?
A. Probably Tyrone Chang.
Q. Was this information given to anyone from MAFCO or Coleman?
A. I don't know, but I would assume so.
Q. When you say this is a team effort, the preparation of this document, that's the MS team that we talked about earlier?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011846

Kitts

A. Well, in reality it's really both the management team and the internal Morgan Stanley team.

Q. So the team is Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, if you'd look at -- and I apologize, there are several Bates pages here, but the Bates CPH 1411220.

A. Yes.

Q. Entitled investment rationale. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. I'd like you to compare that to the investment rationale page contained in what's been marked as Exhibit 71. Do those appear to be identical pages?

A. They do, other than, you know, minor. There's no Morgan Stanley in the right, lower right, but in terms of the substance of the page, yes.

Q. And just so we have a clear record, you've noted that Exhibit 71 does not include the formatting of Morgan

Kitts

Stanley, Morgan Stanley's name in the bottom right page, and Exhibit 138 does have that.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. What did Morgan Stanley do to confirm that the statements initially made in October, 1997 remained true in February, 1998?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form. I'm not sure I understand the question.

Q. Do you understand the question or do you want me to rephrase it?

A. Could you rephrase it for me please?

Q. Sure, I will try to. You've already testified I believe that the investment rationale page contained in Exhibit 71 was created in October, 1997. And you've also testified I believe that the document marked as Exhibit 138 is dated February, 1998. And so the question is, what if anything did Morgan Stanley do to confirm that the investment rationale initially stated in October, 1997 remained the same in February, 1998?

Kitts

A. Well, the material in the document would have been updated with respect to financial information, stock price change, et cetera, and anything that was again in the public domain that would have changed would have been updated in this document. The diligence and the dialogue with the client remained ongoing throughout that period. And so, you know, we would have continued to maintain a current understanding of the company during the relevant time frame.

Q. But it's fair to say that the investment rationale that Morgan Stanley has articulated here did not change in the approximately four month period between October, 97 and February, 98?

MR. CLARE: Objection, asked and answered.

A. That's right.

Q. And is it your testimony that the investment rationale contained in CPH Exhibit 138 is not something that a third party would be entitled to rely on?

Kitts

A. Yes.

Q. But is it also your testimony that Morgan Stanley has some obligation to accurately present information and material provided to third parties?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form to the extent it calls for a legal conclusion.

A. My personal view as a professional would be that the document in terms of what information we've used here needs to be accurate. And so the financial information, the filings, et cetera.

Q. And Morgan Stanley has some obligation to confirm that the information is accurate, is that true?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. I don't know what the legal requirement is or standard.

Q. Well, in your practice as an investment banker, do you believe that you have some duty to confirm the accuracy of information that's supplied to third party?

A. I don't know. Could you rephrase that for me?

Kitts

Q. I can try to. We'll see. As a general matter, do investment bankers have a duty when they are supplying information to third parties to verify the accuracy of the information provided?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for a legal conclusion.

A. My personal view as a practitioner is that the factual information presented should be accurate and that we at Morgan Stanley needed to, you know, take reasonable and appropriate action to verify it. And so it's in that context. Again, I view this document investment rationale page as a qualitative description which again is subject to the notion of beauty being in the eye of the beholder.

Q. Well, let's try and put that in a little more context. For example the statement contained on investment rationale page that Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation, okay, is that simply spin or is that a factual statement?

Kitts

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. Again, I think that words like attractive, profound, are subject to individual interpretations.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley have the view that Sunbeam had undergone a profound transformation?

A. I believe the team viewed that to be the case.

Q. Did you personally have that view?

A. Yes.

Q. So putting aside whether it's a qualitative statement or not, you believe that that's an accurate -- you believed at the time that that was an accurate statement?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And what was the basis for your belief that that was an accurate statement?

A. The basis was the review of publicly available information and discussions with management.

Kitts

Q. The senior management that you've already identified?

A. Yes.

Q. The subpoint under the first bullet point on the investment rationale page provides that Sunbeam had market share leadership in all product segments, and then provides a parenthetical. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. The parenthetical is not qualitative information in any way, is it?

A. No, not the parenthetical.

Q. So the statement on this page that Sunbeam is number one in gas grills, electric blankets and clippers is an objective factual statement, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And did Morgan Stanley do anything to confirm the accuracy of that statement other than review public filings and have conversations with senior management?

A. I don't think so.

Kitts

Q. Do you know sitting here today whether that statement in the parenthetical is a factually accurate statement?

A. I don't know.

Q. All right, can you take me through in general terms the development of the communications with MAFCO or Coleman to the point of reaching a handshake agreement?

A. Again, it's so long ago that I don't recall the kind of continual, or the continuum.

Q. And sorry to interrupt. If you'd care to review Exhibit 84, obviously at any time feel free to do that.

A. Okay. Well, on the chronology it indicates that preliminary handshake agreement on the exchange ratio occurred on February 19, and it says that it was at a meeting with Sunbeam. I seem to recall, you know, there were a series of telephone conversations with Jim Stynes and Jim Maher, with myself on the phone, and probably both myself and Alex Fuchs in the room on a speakerphone in Jim's office, and then subsequent conversations going back and forth on negotiating the exchange ratio.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. From the time that the negotiations were rehabilitated after the Perlman Dunlap meeting until the time the handshake agreement was reached, how much time transpired?

A. Based on the chronology it would be somewhere between two and four weeks, I would suppose.

Q. As Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam moved into the 1998 time frame, was there any increasing urgency on the part of Sunbeam to get a deal done?

A. No.

Q. You testified earlier about conversations you had with Mr. Dunlap in the fall of 97 where he voiced displeasure with the progress of proceedings.

A. Yes.

Q. Did Dunlap's perception of Morgan Stanley's work remain the same as you entered the 1998 time frame?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls

Kitts

for speculation about Dunlap's perception. You can answer if you can.

Q. Well, let me address that objection. Mr. Dunlap was not shy in expressing his opinion, is that fair to say?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he at any time change his expression of opinion towards Morgan Stanley's work as you entered the 1998 time frame?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. Did you review any analysis of the potential synergies that would result from a Coleman Sunbeam transaction?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay, who at Morgan Stanley had primary responsibility for preparing synergies analyses?

A. It's difficult to say. I mean, we view synergy analysis as really the responsibility of management, relevant management team, since it really requires a detailed understanding of the businesses. And so from what I recall, the preliminary sources of the synergy analysis were from the prospective management teams. We may have prepared schedules that outlined management's views on what the opportunities might have been, and so in terms of within Morgan Stanley, who prepared that schedule, is probably Tyrone Chang.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any view as to the reasonableness of the range of synergies that had been proposed?

A. In our analysis from what I recall, we reviewed what the management teams had identified on a line item basis, but then also performed sensitivities both larger and smaller amounts than what the management team believed to be, sort of what was described as the base case. In addition, we would typically compare those types of amounts with some relevant metrics as percentages of sales or cost of goods sold, et cetera, and kind of compare to determine reasonableness in that context.

Q. And Coopers & Lybrand was involved in the synergies analysis as well, is that correct?

Kitts

A. Yes, and I believe they physically visited facilities and would comment positively and/or negatively on the ability to achieve the preliminary synergies that have been identified.

Q. Do you recall the range of potential synergies being revised downward over the course of the analysis?

A. Again, I remember looking at ranges. I don't remember the number changing dramatically.

(CPH Exhibit 139, 0026540-544, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Mr. Kitts, I've given you a document marked as CPH Exhibit 139, that bears the Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 0026540 through 544.

A. Yes.

Q. Is this a synergies analysis prepared by Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. And this analysis identified

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

revisions to synergy assumptions such that the most recent revised number is $67 million in synergies, do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And at the time of the revised 198 column, there is handwritten initials, S-O-C. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. That's the stock ticker for Sunbeam at the time?

A. Yes.

Q. You believe Mr. Chang would be responsible for preparing this analysis?

A. Probably.

Q. Do you have any independent recollection as you sit here today of having reviewed this document in early 1998?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Would a downward revision in the synergies be of concern to Morgan Stanley in any way?

MR CLARE: Object to the form.

A. Well, it appears from the analysis at the final page that again, we continued to believe, or based upon our management team's perspective, that the range of a hundred to 200 million was a reasonable range to assume in our analysis.

Kitts

Q. Why would Morgan Stanley have the view that a range of 100 to 200 million dollars in synergies was reasonable when Sunbeam was revising its synergy number to $67 million?

MR. CLARE: Objection, assumes facts not in evidence.

A. I don't know.

Q. You were involved in presenting the proposed Coleman acquisition to the Sunbeam board in February, 1998, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what synergies figures Morgan Stanley provided to Sunbeam's board in connection with that presentation?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know whether Morgan Stanley advised the board of Sunbeam that Sunbeam's own analysis of synergies had been revised to $67 million?

Kitts

MR. CLARE: Objection, assumes facts not in evidence.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Sunbeam would obviously be interested in the highest possible synergy numbers, is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I don't know.

Q. Well, what are synergies in the context of a corporate transaction?

A. Well, synergies can either be cost savings, opportunities or incremental revenue, and profit available to the parties that were not necessarily available on a stand-alone basis.

Q. And so synergies represent cost savings or revenue increases?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So it's fair to believe, isn't it, that Sunbeam's board would be more interested in a transaction presenting $200 million in synergies than the same transaction presenting $100 million in synergies?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation about what Sunbeam's board would have wanted.

A. Yeah, I don't know.

Q. So you have no opinion on whether Sunbeam's board would be interested in more revenue and less cost?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. No.

Q. Was anybody from Coopers & Lybrand at the presentation to Sunbeam's board?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Can you describe for me the next steps that Morgan Stanley took after the handshake agreement was reached on I think it was February 19?

A. Well, in referencing the chronology, there was a meeting on February 23 which was a due diligence meeting between the two sides.

Q. And there were further

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

discussions in the following days about the contours of the legal aspects of the transaction?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you involved in any of those conversations?

A. Yes, in some of them.

Q. And the deal was finalized and ready to announce to the public on approximately March 1, 1998, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The chronology here shows that in the February 28 through March 1 time frame, you and Mr. Fuchs and Mr. Stynes worked with a PR firm and with Sunbeam personnel for the PR aspects of the transaction. Who from Sunbeam was involved in those discussions?

A. My recollection is that both Al Dunlap as well as, I mean, the senior management trio of Dunlap, Kersh, Fannin, all would have been involved in reviewing any public press release. And there was also the PR firm Hill & Knowlton involved, and I can't remember whether there was someone else within the Sunbeam organization that was responsible for IR.

Kitts

Q. IR -- oh, investor relations?

A. Yes.

Q. Had you worked with Hill & Knowlton before?

A. Probably.

Q. Is it customary to get a PR firm involved in announcements of major transactions?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, as of this time frame, February 28 to March 1, had you heard anything from anybody concerning Sunbeam's performance in the first month or two months of 1998?

MR. CLARE: I'm sorry, what time period are we talking about?

MR. JOHNSON: As of February 28, 1998, had he been given any information relating to Sunbeam's performance in the first month or two months of 1998.

A. And I seem to recall some comment from Russ Kersh, that there was some softness in the first couple of months, or the first month and a half, I can't exactly remember the time frame. But there was also kind of a dismissive aspect that, but it's no big deal, it's, you know, rain, snow, whatever the reason was, but no problem for us, in, you know, getting to the quarter.

Kitts

Q. When did Mr. Kersh raise this issue of some softness and sending these financial results?

A. What I can't remember is in looking at the chronology, there were these two days of meetings, one February 23 and 24, in reviewing Sunbeam's, or due diligence being performed on both sides. And so what I can't remember is whether I heard it directly in a meeting or whether, you know, Alex in passing had given me an update, because it appears that I did not -- I don't remember, but it appears from this that I did not attend the February 23 meeting. And so Alex may have reported back to me on, you know, here's everything that happened today, and that would have been one of the items mentioned perhaps.

Kitts

Q. And Kersh indicated softness?

A. Some softness, but I didn't think it would be a big deal and that they'd be able to make it up on the back end.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley do anything to dig down, so to speak, on the softness that Mr. Kersh referred to?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you direct anyone to get additional information on the softness when you learned this information?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. Going back to the Hill & Knowlton meetings, can you take me through how that process works? What do you need to spend two days with the PR people for?

A. Well, typically what you would do prior to the announcement of the transaction is work with the company and their PR firm in drafting a transaction announcement, press release, and then trying to in our view prepare them for, you know, what are the likely questions that investors will ask as a result of the transaction announcement and try to work with them, help them prepare in anticipating what questions might be asked.

NOT CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. So you prepared kind of a script of how to deal with various questions?

A. Usually, I can't remember whether we had a formal script or if it was just here are the questions you should expect.

Q. And you worked on that process with Hill & Knowlton and company representatives?

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Fuchs and Stynes were involved in that process?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember any particularly hard questions that you analyzed as part of this process?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Let me see if I've got some of these.

(CPH Exhibit 140, CPH

Kitts

0483399-3407, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. I've given you a document we've marks as CPH Exhibit 140. And I'd like you to look through it briefly.

A. Yes.

Q. The document which bears the Bates stamp CPH 0483399 through to 3407, is this a draft of the question and answer script that you were involved in preparing in connection with the announcement of Sunbeam's acquisitions of Coleman and other companies?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting on this document?

A. No. Again, I think this does not appear to be on Morgan Stanley's system. The notation in the upper left of privileged and confidential, I don't know if this was prepared by their lawyers or by Hill & Knowlton. So we would have had input, may have been responsible for gathering some information in preparation for the answers, but this isn't -- doesn't appear to be a Morgan Stanley document.

Kitts

Q. At this point in time, this draft bears the date February 28 at 1:07 p.m., had Morgan Stanley engaged outside counsel in connection with these transactions?

MR. CLARE: When you say these transactions, what are you referring to?

MR. JOHNSON: The acquisitions.

MR. CLARE: Objection, lack of foundation.

Q. What I'm getting at, is it possible that this is a document drafted by Morgan Stanley's outside counsel?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. I doubt it. Is there any question or answer relating to the company's first quarter 1998 performance?

Q. I can tell you to the extent it gives you any comfort, I don't see any, but you tell me if you disagree.

MR. CLARE: And the question is specifically with regard to the first quarter of 1998 or 1998 in general?

Kitts

MR. JOHNSON: The first quarter of 1998.

A. I don't see any either.

Q. Let me mark one more document. This will be CPH Exhibit 141.

(CPH Exhibit 141, CPH 0483341-3350, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Mr. Kitts, I've given you a document marked CPH 141 that has the Bates stamp CPH 0483341 through 3350. Does this appear to be another draft of the question and answer script that Morgan Stanley was involved in preparing?

A. Yes.

Q. And this one in contrast to Exhibit 40 bears the subtitle hard questions. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any recollection of why the questions and answers set forth on Exhibit 141 bore that subtitle?

A. No, I just think in general that the press tried -- you know, the PR team

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

tries to anticipate what they would consider, quote, difficult questions.

Q. Okay. If you'd look at question number 13 which is on the third page of Exhibit 141, why would the company's first quarter results present a hard question?

MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation. You can answer if you can.

A. I don't know.

Q. The question and answer here under number 13, the question provides, what's your first quarter going to look like? Are you comfortable with analyst estimates? And the draft answer is, we're happy with our first quarter so far. We are on target. At this point I'm comfortable with the Street estimates.

Was this answer included in this draft after you learned of the softness in sales that Mr. Kersh had communicated?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley at the point in time which this draft was being created take any steps to confirm that Sunbeam was in fact on target for its first quarter projected results?

Kitts

A. Other than asking management the question.

Q. And management involved in this meeting would be whom?

A. Would have been Al with support from Russ and perhaps David Fannin.

Q. Let me look at one more. This will be CPH 142.

(CPH Exhibit 142, CPH 0253547-3555, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Mr. Kitts, I've given you a document marked CPH Exhibit 142, which bears the Bates stamp CPH 0253547 through 3555.

A. Yes.

Q. And this is yet another draft of the question and answer script that Morgan Stanley was involved in preparing in connection with the announcement of the acquisitions?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And this Exhibit 142 also bears the subtitle hard questions, is that correct?

Kitts

A. Yes.

Q. If you'd look at question 13 for me, which is on the third page of the document, do you see the sentence we're on target has been deleted by hand?

A. Yes.

Q. Who made that deletion?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall any discussion during these meetings of deleting that sentence?

A. No.

Q. Did you learn at any time that during these discussions on February 28 or March 1 that Morgan Stanley was not on target?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. I think you misspoke. You said Morgan Stanley.

Q. Thank you. Did you learn at any time during the February 28 or March 1 meetings that Sunbeam was not on target for its first quarter results?

Kitts

A. No.

Q. Do you recognize any of the handwriting on Exhibit CPH 142?

A. No.

Q. You don't know who the keeper of this document is? By this document I mean Exhibit 142?

A. No.

Q. It just doesn't appear to be a document kept by Morgan Stanley?

A. It does not appear to be.

Q. Let me mark one more if I could. This will be CPH Exhibit 143.

(CPH Exhibit 143, CPH 1026942-6953, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Mr. Kitts, I've given you a document we've mark as CPH Exhibit 143. It has the Bates stamp CPH 1026942 through 6953.

A. Yes.

Q. And this is another draft of the question and answer script that Morgan

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Stanley was involved in preparing in connection with the announcement of the acquisitions, is that correct?

A. Well again, I guess I wouldn't characterize it as assisting in preparing, but working with the company in preparing for their, you know, public announcement.

Q. Well, you were involved in two days of meetings directed to, among other things, anticipating the questions and answers that could be expected as part of the announcement of the acquisition?

A. Yes.

Q. And this version of the question and answer reflected in Exhibit 143 also has the hard question subtitle, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Question 15 on page 3 is directed to first quarter results, isn't it?

A. Yes.

Q. By the way, Exhibit 143 has a time stamp later in time than Exhibit 142, isn't that correct?

A. Yes.

Kitts

Q. Why was the answer to the question directed to first quarter results changed in this fashion?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did it have anything to do with the knowledge that first quarter results were in fact disappointing?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and lack of foundation.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any responsibility for the accuracy of the information that would be contained in these proposed answers?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for a legal conclusion.

A. I don't believe so.

Q. So from Morgan Stanley's perspective, the answers are ultimately irrelevant?

MR. CLARE: Objection, that misstates the prior testimony.

A. Yeah, I wouldn't say that. I wouldn't say that it's our responsibility to confirm the accuracy of the information that Sunbeam is ultimately responsible for.

Kitts

Q. What fee, by the way, did Morgan Stanley earn in connection with phase one of the Sunbeam engagement?

A. I don't remember. I would guess five to six million dollars for the Coleman transaction and one or two million for each of the other two transactions, but I'd be guessing.

Q. So for each of the three transactions it would be something on the order of nine million dollars?

A. Something like that.

(Luncheon adjournment: 12:37 p.m.)

AFTERNOON SESSION

(Time noted: 1:18 p.m.)

ROBERT KITTS, resumed and testified as follows:

Q. Mr. Kitts, I want to go back just a minute to the presentation to Sunbeam's board of directors at the end of February, and I believe you testified you were present at that meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you participate in the presentation to the board in any way?

A. I didn't have the responsibility for leading the discussion, but I may have chimed in with an answer here or there.

Q. Who had responsibility for leading that discussion?

A. Jim Stynes.

Q. Was there any suggestion to the Sunbeam board as to the expected closing date for the transaction?

A. I don't remember.

Q. This is a document that's already

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

been marked as Exhibit 89. Mr. Kitts, can you identify for us the document that's been marked as Exhibit 89?

A. Yes. This is the presentation to the board of Sunbeam related to the acquisition of Coleman.

Q. And Morgan Stanley drafted this document?

A. Yes.

Q. If you'd look at page number 3, it's got the Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 0083966.

A. Yes.

Q. In the bottom left it appears to show an expected closing date of 2 Q 98, do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. The transaction in fact closed in the first quarter of 98, is that correct?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you have any recollection of moving the closing date up?

A. No.

Q. Morgan Stanley doesn't earn any of its fee until the closing, is that correct?

Kitts

A. That's -- that may be the case. Sometimes there is an announcement fee as part of a transaction where you get a portion of the success fee upon announcement as opposed to upon closing.

Q. You don't remember which it was in this case?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Were you involved in any discussions concerning the significance of the time of the expected closing?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. This document is an analysis for Sunbeam's board as to the economics of the transaction with Coleman, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. If you would look at, towards the back of this document, there are what appear to be valuation matrices, I guess would be the plural, starting at page 83986. I'm sorry, 83984. It's page 18 of the presentation.

Kitts

A. Yes.

Q. Morgan Stanley presents on page 18 of the presentation and subsequent pages valuations under several different synergy scenarios, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And those scenario are no synergies, 100 million in synergies, 150 million in synergies and 200 million in synergies?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did Morgan Stanley present a valuation analysis with no synergies?

A. Well, I think it was part of our practice would be to show the multiples that were being paid for Coleman both with synergies but also kind of prior to any factoring in of any synergies. So it's just kind of normal practice that we would have.

Q. And the $76 million in synergies that Sunbeam had identified that was revealed in a document that we had looked at earlier today, that's not included in any of the analyses Morgan Stanley provided to

Kitts

Sunbeam's board?

MR. CLARE: Objection, assumes facts not in evidence. You can answer if you're able to.

A. I think the four scenarios we've presented, we didn't present a scenario with a specific 67 or $76 million. I don't remember.

Q. And do you have any recollection as to why that is?

A. Again, my recollection is that at the time of the board meeting, we continued to rely upon management's view that they believed that there was between 100 and $200 million of synergies, and again, this notion of 150 million was kind of the case that seemed to be the one that management had locked on to.

Q. Didn't we look at a document earlier today that showed management revising its estimate from 150 down to 67 million?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence and

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

mischaracterizes the document. You can answer.

A. Yes, we did.

Q. Okay. All right, you've been an investment banker for approximately 20 years, is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And where would you characterize the Sunbeam acquisitions in terms of the magnitude of the deal?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

Q. Let me give you a better question. Was this one of the biggest deals you've ever been involved in?

A. No.

Q. Was it on the smaller side of deals you'd been involved in?

A. The Coleman deal was probably average size. The other two were on the small side.

Q. And together they're average to slightly above average, would that be fair to say?

A. Yes.

Kitts

Q. What about the financing side of this? The debt offering, was that a large offering, to your mind?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And I believe you testified earlier today that you had handed off responsibility for Sunbeam, the Sunbeam engagement to some extent after the announcement of the acquisition, is that right?

A. Well, virtually completely after the announcement of the transaction.

Q. Did you get any credit so to speak for fees associated with the financing of the acquisitions?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

A. I don't know. I think I was viewed as a member of the team, as was Bill and Jim and myself and others.

Q. Now, the acquisitions were announced on March 2, 1998, is that right? Was there a press conference in connection with that announcement?

A. I believe so, yes.

Kitts

Q. Did you attend that?

A. I don't remember if I did. I may have, but I don't remember.

Q. Do you know whether the press conference was in New York or in Florida?

A. I remember that Al was in New York, so I would assume that the press conference would have been in New York.

Q. How many times did you travel to Florida in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?

A. I mean, I would guess four or five times.

Q. And were you on the phone with Sunbeam personnel in Florida on a regular basis?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you travel anyplace other than Florida in connection with your work on the Sunbeam litigation?

A. To visit some of the potential buyers.

Q. So San Francisco, Oakland, Chicago, Boston?

Kitts

A. Yes.

Q. Somewhere in Wisconsin?

A. Yes.

Q. Where in Wisconsin? I was curious.

A. I don't remember the name of the town.

Q. Anyplace else?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. And you had supervisory capacity over Mr. Fuchs during the engagement, is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Fuchs travelled to Florida?

A. Yes.

Q. How about Mr. Chang, you had at least at some level supervisory capacity over Mr. Chang?

A. Yes.

Q. And he was in Florida?

A. Yes.

Q. How about Mr. Yoo?

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. Can you tell me as a general matter what the purpose of due diligence is?

A. In my understanding of due diligence, is to gather information and perform, ask questions, solicit input, et cetera, to try and discharge your duties as an investment banker, within, you know, I guess a reasonable and appropriate standard, or within a context of reasonableness and appropriate.

Q. Have you ever been involved in any transactions involving the offering securities?

A. Yes.

Q. And in that context, is it fair to say that the underwriter is supposed to be devil's advocate of the issuer?

MR CLARE: Objection to form, argumentative.

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't agree or disagree with that statement?

A. I don't really have a view on that.

Kitts

Q. Do you understand that the underwriter is acting as an intermediary between the issuer and the investors?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I believe so.

Q. And do you believe it's fair for investors to expect the underwriter to protect investors' interests?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Foundation.

A. I don't know what the legal standard is within the context of an underwritten or securities offering.

Q. Well, putting aside what the legal requirements are, in your experience as an investment banker, what is your view as to the public's right to rely on underwriters to protect investor interests?

MR. CLARE: Same objection, and lack of foundation as to what the public's view is.

A. I don't have a view.

Q. Would you agree that the participation of an underwriter is critical to an offering of securities?

Kitts

MR CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Is it fair to say that underwriters will assume an adversarial role with the issuer during a due diligence process?

MR CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I'm not sure I would characterize it or consider it as adversarial.

Q. How would you characterize the role?

MR CLARE: Asked and answered.

A. I would again consider it as an intermediary between an issuer and an investor.

Q. Do underwriters have the responsibility to prevent issuers from making unduly enthusiastic statements?

MR CLARE: Objection, calls for a legal conclusion.

A. I don't know.

Q. As an investment banker, what would you do if you determined that an issuer was making an unduly enthusiastic statement about its performance?

Kitts

MR. CLARE: Objection, incomplete hypothetical.

A. I don't know what I would do.

Q. Do you think an underwriter can properly rely only on a company's officers in order to verify information presented to investors?

MR. CLARE: Objection, incomplete hypothetical.

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Can you think of any instance where it would be appropriate to rely solely on the company's officers to verify information presented to investors?

A. It really depends on what information is publicly available outside of the, you know, the officers.

Q. Did you ever in connection with your employment with Morgan Stanley receive any training on how to perform due diligence?

A. I don't remember.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. Did you receive any manuals or guides on the performance of due diligence?
A. I don't remember.
Q. This is a document that's already been marked as Exhibit 29. And for the record, CPH Exhibit 29 has the Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 0080440 through 0081556. Have you ever seen this document before, Mr. Kitts?
A. I don't think so.
Q. You were at Gleacher & Company, is it called?
A. Yes, Gleacher & Company.
Q. In the period what is it, 90 to 93?
A. Through April of 94.
Q. Okay. Have you seen any documents akin to Exhibit 29 as far as manuals for due diligence?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any protocol for documenting the due diligence work that it performed in the 97, 98 time frame?

Kitts

A. Not in the context of an M&A transaction.
Q. How about in the context of an offering?
A. I don't know. Again, it was outside of the scope of my responsibilities.
Q. Let me ask you to turn to page 80765, which is included within Exhibit 29. Have you ever seen that letter or its enclosure?
A. No.
Q. If you'd like at page 80770, that page begins with a subheading, independent verification.
A. Yes.
Q. Number 2 under that section provides, reasonable independent verification usually means referencing information outside the issuer, for example speaking with the issuer's customers, lenders, manufacturers, distributors, licensees, et cetera. Do you agree with that statement?
A. In the context of an equity underwriting, yes.

Kitts

Q. Same answer with respect to a debt offering?
A. Yes.
Q. On the next page there is a paragraph 3 and 3A, which notes that independent verification can be achieved by speaking with lower level employees.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you agree with that statement?
A. Yes.
Q. In connection with the M&A transaction that you worked on for Sunbeam, do you know of any lower level employees that Morgan Stanley spoke with?
A. Well, I guess it depends on how you define lower level. I mean, I consider the trio the most senior level, my impression was Al, Russ and David Fannin, and then below that --
Q. That's the trio that you referred to?
A. Yes. That to me would be senior management. Below that would include Don

Kitts

Uzzi, Rich Goudis, and other people that we met with that were again responsible. I remember the person being responsible for international, they would come over from Asia and other levels of management below the senior management level.
Q. Can you remember any more names than the ones you've already given?
A. No. I just -- I remember a meeting in Florida where different individuals presented their business to us, including international.
Q. Did you or to your knowledge anyone on Morgan Stanley's team speak with Scott Yales?
A. I don't know. The name sounds somewhat familiar, but I'm not sure.
Q. How about Kyle Kaiser, did anybody from Morgan Stanley to your knowledge speak with Kyle Kaiser?
A. Not that I know of. I don't recognize the name.
Q. How about Kyle Sinclair?
A. Don't recognize the name.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Lee Griffith?
A. Don't recognize the name.
Q. Tom Hartshorne?
A. Don't know.
Q. Chuck Meyers?
A. Don't know.
Q. Bill Bloomfield?
A. Don't know.
Q. What about Bob Gluck?
A. Gluck I believe we did.
Q. Do you remember what his title was?
A. No.
Q. And nobody from Morgan Stanley spoke with any -- some customers in connection with phase one of the transaction?
MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you speak with any customers?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. On phase one of the Sunbeam engagement, who at Morgan Stanley had ultimate responsibility for ensuring that the due diligence was accurately and appropriately completed?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I'm not sure.
Q. On the financing side of the Sunbeam engagement, who had ultimate responsibility for due diligence at Morgan Stanley?
MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.
A. I don't know who had ultimate responsibility.
Q. But Ruth Porat would be somebody involved with that process?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Did you form an opinion as to the environment at Sunbeam in late 97 or early 98?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Not really.
Q. Based on your observations, did upper management at Sunbeam create or exercise undue influence over lower level employees?

A. Not that I saw.
Q. Did you see any inordinate pressure for Sunbeam to make its numbers?
A. No.
Q. So that was there anybody out of the ordinary in Sunbeam's business environment from your observation?
A. I mean the senior management team was a demanding management team. I've worked with other demanding management teams. I think I would characterize them as having relatively high performance expectations.
Q. But you wouldn't characterize it as inordinate?
A. I would not characterize it as out of the ordinary.
MR. CLARE: Would not?
THE WITNESS: Would not.
Q. Did you ever get the impression that Sunbeam was micromanaging its results with an eye towards its earnings per share projections?

A. No.
Q. Do you have any idea of the frequency with which Sunbeam internally circulated its earnings per share estimates?
A. No.
Q. So what did you do after these transactions were announced?
A. After the announcement, I handed the transaction off to Ruth and Bram and whomever else was responsible for the other financing parts of it, and you know, asked Alex to kind of be the informational bridge, and instructed, you know, Alex and Tyrone to give the teams whatever models or information they needed that we had gathered or prepared during our process.
Q. So did a subteam so to speak get involved at morning?
A. Yeah, I would describe it not even as a subteam, but a whole new team. I mean, with Bill Strong being the only kind of link to the M&A team.
Q. And Alex's role was to provide information to the financing people?

A. It was really a transitional role, to hand it off.
Q. Did you ever review the offering memorandum for the debt offering?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone as to the appropriate contents of the offering memorandum?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who at Morgan Stanley other than Ruth Porat was involved in preparing the offering memorandum?
A. I think John Tyree was involved. I'm not sure who else was on the team.
Q. Did you at any point learn that Sunbeam had issued a press release concerning its first quarter 98 results?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And you understood that on March 19, they issued what you would call an earnings warning?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And with respect to that press release, when was the first you learned of that press release?

Kitts

A. Either the night before it was released or the morning of the release, I don't remember.
Q. How did you come to learn that there would be a press release?
A. I don't remember. Alex may have told me.
Q. Did you have any reaction to that?
A. No.
Q. Were you surprised in any way that the company was issuing this warning?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. Were you concerned that it might impede the ability to close the transaction?
A. You know, at the time I didn't think it was that significant that it would -- I don't know what the right word is, prevent the transaction from occurring.
Q. Did you participate in any way in the drafting of the press release?
A. No.
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley or

Kitts

Sunbeam seek your input on whether the press release should be issued?
A. No.
Q. Did anyone seek your input on how the release should be phrased?
A. No.
Q. I give you what's been marked as CPH Exhibit 14.
MR. CLARE: Clark, we seem to go through this issue every time. 14 as originally marked is a two-page document. There is a second page to this exhibit. So I guess I would object to showing the witness half of a previously marked exhibit, and I would suggest that if you want to show him this copy, that we remark it so that we're clear about what it is that we're showing.
MR. JOHNSON: I'm happy to remark it. That is a good idea.
(CPH Exhibit 144, 0016944, marked for identification, as of this date.)
MR. CLARE: So I will revise my objection to showing the witness an incomplete document, withdraw my prior objection about showing, this exhibit as 14.

Kitts

Q. Mr. Kitts, I've given you a document that bears the Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 0016944, which we've marked as CPH Exhibit number 144.
Does this appear to be a portion of the March 19 press release?
A. Yes.
Q. And is this consistent with the draft that you saw prior to its issuance?
MR CLARE: Objection, misstates his prior testimony. He never said he saw a draft.
Q. Did you see a draft?
A. No.
Q. Okay, you heard that there was going to be a press release?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you see any drafts prior to the issuance?
A. No.
Q. Did you read the press release

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

when it came out?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any view as to the accuracy of the statement that the shortfall in sales, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management and order patterns?
A. I didn't have a view.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any responsibility for ensuring that the statements in the press release were accurate?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for a legal conclusion, and foundation, since he wasn't involved. You can answer.
A. Could you repeat the question, please?
Q. Sure. Did Morgan Stanley have any responsibility for ensuring that the statements made in this press release were accurate?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I mean, I don't know. I mean, I think that it's difficult to determine how they -- how Morgan Stanley could have determined the accuracy of the language in here, which again, is kind of directional and vague, maybe lower.

Kitts

Q. What about the reason for the shortfall, is that something that Morgan Stanley had any responsibility to verify?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I don't have a view.
Q. Between the time that you heard that there would be a press release and March 2, did you have any conversations with anybody at Morgan Stanley about the Sunbeam engagement?
MR. CLARE: I object. Between the time that he learned there was going to be a press release and March 2?
Q. Yes, going back in time. I can phrase it differently. It's a good objection, let me clarify.
Between March 2 and March 18, did you have any conversations with anybody at Morgan Stanley concerning the Sunbeam engagement?

Kitts

A. Other than asking Alex and the team to transition the information, not that I remember.
Q. Did you participate in any way in the closing of the acquisition transaction?
A. No.
Q. Did you learn that there was an additional press release concerning first quarter results issued on approximately April 2, 1998?
A. Yeah, again, I recall seeing a press release when it was released, which I believe dealt with first quarter performance.
Q. This has been marked as Exhibit 30 previously. The document that's been placed in front of the witness has been marked CPH Exhibit 36 previously, and has the Bates stamp CPH 639323 through 327.
Mr. Kitts, this is a fax cover sheet and draft press release, is it not?
A. I'm not sure if it's a draft or the actual press release, but it is a fax cover sheet.

Kitts

Q. And it's from Mr. Fannin to you, among other people?
A. Yes.
Q. Why was Mr. Fannin sending you this press release?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
A. I can only go based on what is written or typed here, that I wanted to give you a heads-up, so I take this to mean that I received it either shortly before or at the time of public dissemination.
Q. And did you have any conversations upon receiving this fax with any of the other recipients of it?
A. No, I don't remember.
Q. Did you have any reaction when you read the press release?
A. I was surprised.
Q. Why were you surprised?
A. Well, based on what had been in the prior release, you know, I was surprised that sales were now expected to be below last year's first quarter.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

Q. When you say the prior release, you mean the March 19 release?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you talk to Mr. Fuchs about the April press release?
A. I probably did. I probably had, you know, my assistant copy it and make sure to get a copy of it to the rest of the team.
Q. Were you upset in any way?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you feel that Sunbeam had misled you in any way?
A. Probably.
Q. Did you communicate that feeling with anyone?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you have a person in mind at Sunbeam who had misled you?
A. My view would have been that, you know, I would have felt that Alan Russ had misled us.
Q. Did you ever talk to Al or Russ after the March 2 announcement of the transaction?

Kitts

A. I don't remember. I may have called to congratulate them on how the stock had performed, based upon the announcement.
Q. Did you see the comfort letter that Arthur Andersen issued in connection with the debt offering?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever seen that?
A. I saw it yesterday.
Q. Okay, and that's the first time?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley about the comfort letter at any time?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any role in bring-down due diligence for the debt offering?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley in connection with the bring-down due diligence?
A. No.
Q. Did you participate in any way in any of the road shows for the debt offering?

Kitts

A. No.
Q. Do you know who at Morgan Stanley was involved with those road shows?
A. Convertible offering on or the senior debt?
Q. Convertible.
A. I would assume that Ruth and John Tyree may have attended some of the meetings.
Q. Did you have any involvement with making any kind of presentation to the leveraged finance committee at Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. When did that occur?
A. I don't remember the date, but there was a memo that was written to the committee.
Q. Did you look at that yesterday?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you a couple of versions of that.
A. Okay.

Kitts

Q. This one has already been marked as Exhibit 76. Mr. Kitts, is Exhibit 76 the memorandum that you were just referring to?
A. Yes.
Q. And Exhibit 76 is a cover memo, and then a more detailed memo to the leveraged finance committee, is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Who drafted the more detailed memo which begins at page 25830?
A. Since this is to the leveraged finance committee, I would assume that someone within Michael Hart's area would have been -- had primary responsibility for preparing the memo.
Q. And where would a person from that area obtain the information necessary to complete this memorandum?
MR CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
A. I would think it would be a combination of John Tyree on, I think he would go to each of the relevant teams and

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

so Alex on the M&A piece and John Tyree on the convert.

Q. Did you participate in answering any questions of the leveraged finance committee at any time?

A. I attended the meeting. I may have asked the question, but, or answered a question rather, but I'm not sure.

Q. Was the Sunbeam sales shortfall discussed during that meeting?

A. I don't remember, so, I mean, if it's -- if it was in the document, I don't remember specifically.

Q. Were Morgan Stanley's fees discussed during that meeting?

A. I don't remember.

Q. If you'd look at the front page of Exhibit 76, there are some marginalia. Do you recognize any of those?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whose handwriting that is?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what the numbers

Kitts

signify?

A. No

Q. Does the handwritten numbers 112.5 short, is that consistent with the sales shortfall at Sunbeam?

A. I don't know.

Q. Let me show you another version of this, which I think we have to mark as a new document.

(CPH Exhibit 145, 0018885-18942, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Does CPH 145 appear to be another copy of the leveraged finance committee memo with different handwriting on it?

A. Yes.

Q. And your name appears at the top in handwriting of Exhibit 145?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know why that is?

A. No

Q. Do you know whose handwriting this is?

A. No

Kitts

Q. There are a handful of numbered handwritten notes on the first page of Exhibit 145.

A. Yes.

Q. Number 2 states, what is our collateral worth. Do you remember any discussions with members of the leveraged finance committee concerning the value of collateral that Morgan Stanley would have on its loans to Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. Number 5 states, will E-X-P period, and then I can't read it out, it says with all the trouble going on. What is the trouble referred to there?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I have no idea.

Q. Were there any discussions to your recollection during the leveraged finance committee meeting concerning troubles at Sunbeam?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. At the bottom of that page, the first page of Exhibit 145, it seems to state, banks will not advance without collateral. What does that refer to?

Kitts

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I don't know.

Q. Mr. Kitts, did you ever see a list of possible sales for the first quarter of 98 for Sunbeam?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you have any discussions at Morgan Stanley about efforts to confirm the potential sales that Sunbeam had identified?

A. No.

Q. Let me do another document from this time frame, which will be CPH 146.

(CPH Exhibit 146, 80325-333, marked for identification, as of this date.)

CPH Exhibit 146 is comprised of documents bearing the Bates range Morgan Stanley confidential 80325 through 333.

Is Exhibit 146 correspondence and invoices relating to Morgan Stanley's fees

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

relating to the Sunbeam transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. And the bottom of page 1, there is a handwritten notation which appears to say, 3 million 750 thousand dash equity to pass over. Do you know what that refers to?
A. No.
Q. Now, the second page of the exhibit is a letter from Mr. Fuchs to Mr. Dunlap, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And you are cc'd on it?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any concerns relating to your ability to collect your fees in light of Sunbeam's press releases?
A. No.
Q. Now, going over to page 80328, there is a document entitled fee calculation. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And that shows fees to Morgan Stanley exceeding $42 million through the completion of the Sunbeam transactions. Is that correct?

Kitts

A. Yes.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley in fact collect over $42 million for its work on Sunbeam matters?
MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.
A. I don't know.
Q. And going to the next page, which is 80329, there is some sort of ledger for use in the fee calculation. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And the first line item is the value of equity issued to MAFCO, do you see what?
A. Yes.
Q. That's the value of Sunbeam stock provided for the consideration of the sale of Coleman?
A. Yes, it appears that that's based on a ten-day average or some calculation to the left margin there.
Q. Do you know what the value of that equity was two weeks after of closing?

Kitts

MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.
A. No.
Q. Do you know whether Sunbeam's stock price fell after the April 3 press release?
A. I'm sure it did.
Q. Do you know how dramatically?
A. No.
Q. You were involved in a conference call with investors and analysts in May of 1998 for Sunbeam, is that correct?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Well, before we get to that, let's try and go chronologically. After the April 3 press release, what was the next thing you did relating to the Sunbeam engagement?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. Do you remember any conversations with Mr. Strong or anybody else at Morgan Stanley about the conditions at Sunbeam?

Kitts

A. It's possible, but I don't recollect.
Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley voice to you any concerns over litigation relating to Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Objection. I object to the form of the question, and I don't know what your answer is going to be, but to the extent that you had any discussions with in-house attorneys at Morgan Stanley at the time or any lawyers representing Morgan Stanley at the time, I would instruct you to exclude that from your answer.
A. I don't remember.
(CPH Exhibit 147, CPH 0324856-887, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Kitts, I've given you a document we've marked as CPH Exhibit 147, which has the Bates stamp CPH 0324856 through 887.
Does this appear to be a list of participants in a May 11, 1998 Sunbeam conference call?

A. Yes.
Q. And if you look at the last page of the document for me.
A. Yes.
Q. You are listed as an attending analyst not on the attendance list. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Along with several other Morgan Stanley personnel.
A. Yes.
Q. Why were you on this conference call?
A. I probably wanted to just try to remain informed on what was going on at the company at that point.
Q. What was going on at the company at that point?
A. I don't remember. I don't remember what the content of this analyst meeting was. So if it was regularly scheduled, I would have, you know, asked to have it on my calendar and call in to each drop on how business was going.

Kitts

Q. Did you do anything other than listen on this conference call?
A. No.
Q. And this is a fax from a company called Sard Verbinnen?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a PR company?
A. Yes.
Q. Why was somebody using Sard Verbinnen as opposed to Hill & Knowlton?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you remember anything about this conference call?
A. No.
(Begin videotape 3.)
Q. Mr. Kitts, did you at some point learn that Mr. Dunlap had been fired by Sunbeam's board.
A. Yes.
Q. When did you hear that?
A. When it was publicly announced.

Kitts

Q. Did that come as a surprise to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Why is that?
A. Well, it surprised me because I didn't fully understand or appreciate the magnitude of what was going on at the company.
Q. Did you around that same time frame read a Barron's article about Sunbeam?
A. I'm sure I did. I don't recall the content of it specifically now, but I was actively involved in maintaining -- reading anything related to Sunbeam that was in the public domain.
Q. Did you have, after the March 2 announcement of the phase one progress, did you have any additional anticipated roles with M&A work for Sunbeam?
A. I believe there were discussions as to whether or not some of the smaller pieces of Coleman, I can't remember the name of the backpack company that --
Q. Eastpak?

Kitts

A. Eastpak, yes, was, you know, we were discussing whether or not we should pursue a sale of that business.
Q. And were those conversations with Sunbeam officers or were those internal at Morgan Stanley or both?
A. Both.
Q. And which Sunbeam officers were you having those conversations with?
A. Probably would have been Russ and David Fannin primarily.
Q. And is that in the April, May, 98 time frame?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did the issue of Sunbeam stock price come up at all during those conversations?
A. I don't remember.
Q. After Dunlap and Kersh were fired from Sunbeam, did you have any other responsibilities to Sunbeam in connection with your work for Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Did you attend any Morgan Stanley

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

meetings not involving counsel relating to Sunbeam after Dunlap and Kersh were terminated?

A. I don't remember.

Q. When was the first time you heard of litigation relating to Sunbeam?

A. Whenever it was in the public domain as to the question of fraudulent accounting practices and what was going on with the company, whenever that was publicly disclosed.

Q. Did you know there were suits filed immediately in the wake of the April 3 press release?

A. I don't remember.

Q. When is the first time that you were contacted by some lawyer, inside or outside, by Morgan Stanley and directed to retain or send to counsel any materials you had relating to Sunbeam?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did that ever happen?

A. I think so.

Q. Can you place it at all in any time frame?

Kitts

A. No.

Q. How confident are you that that in fact happened?

A. I don't remember, so not that confident. I would assume it happened.

Q. But you have no recollection?

A. I don't remember it happening.

Q. Did anyone from Ruth Porat's team express any dismay to you in connection with the demise of Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. Not that I remember.

Q. Do you know approximately how much money you were paid by Morgan Stanley in 1998?

A. Somehow I recall it not being enough.

Q. It never is.

A. Something on the order of a million two, a million four or five, something like that.

Q. For 98, total compensation package?

Kitts

A. Yes.

Q. How about 97 total package?

A. It was around the same number.

Q. Did you ever have, during your tenure at Morgan Stanley, compensation on the order of $7 million a year total package?

A. No. Not as reported in the Wall Street Journal, no.

Q. Right, that's what I'm getting at. Do you know where they got that idea?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.

A. No, I don't.

Q. Was your compensation tied in any way to your work for Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. What percentage of your compensation in 1998 was bonus?

A. The bulk of it probably, 80, 85 percent of it probably.

Q. And how was your bonus determined?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls

Kitts

for speculation.

A. Don't know.

Q. No idea?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who is involved in setting your bonus?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is that?

A. I would believe that Bill Lewis and Gary Parr, who were coheads of M&A at the time, as well as Terry McGeed, who was the head of investment banking would have probably been the three most active determinants of that.

Q. And you have no idea what criteria they used?

A. No.

Q. Did you at that point in your career receive annual performance reviews?

A. Yes.

Q. And did any aspect of the Sunbeam engagement play a role in your annual review?

A. Well, part of the review is to

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Kitts

review active transactions that the bank has been involved in, so in that context, yes.

Q. Did you receive any criticisms or negative comments as a result of the ultimate result of the Sunbeam transaction?

A. Not directly from management.

Q. From whom did you receive such comments?

A. I'm sure there were, you know, comments, remarks from other bankers, junior, et cetera.

Q. Do you know any people in particular who made those remarks?

A. No.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley ever return or refund any of its fees earned on any of the Sunbeam transactions?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. Not that I am aware of.

Q. Did the ultimate result of the Sunbeam transaction play a part in any way in your departure from Morgan Stanley?

A. No.

Kitts

Q. Do you know that Morgan Stanley now owns a substantial portion of what is now American Household, formerly Sunbeam Corporation?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. That's what I've heard.

Q. Do you know what percentage?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any idea what that ownership interest is worth?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. No.

Q. Did you in the 1997, 98 time frame use any timekeeping system?

A. The firm may have used timesheets as a way to measure over time for more junior people. It may have been used as a mechanism to generate a biweekly paycheck, but I didn't use it in any way to accurately determine how I spent my time, and it wasn't used for billing purposes from a client perspective.

Kitts

Q. What became of those timesheets? Did you give them to your assistant and that was the end of it?

A. Yes. I wouldn't even give them -- she would fill them out for me and would make an estimate of where I was spending my time and fill them in.

Q. Was that maintained in a computerized fashion in 1997, 98?

A. No, I seem to remember it being hard copy still and submitted.

Q. I may have asked this already, but I can't recall, I apologize. Did you have any conversations with any Morgan Stanley personnel concerning the road shows?

A. No.

(Recess taken.)

FURTHER EXAMINATION BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Mr. Kitts, after you learned of the termination of Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh, did you have any other conversations with any other Morgan Stanley employees about the condition of Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall exactly, but I'm sure that Alex Fuchs and I and Jim Stynes probably would have gotten together at some moment and shock our heads and said can you believe what's happened here?

Kitts

Q. And other than a conversation of that nature, any additional conversations?

A. Not that I remember.

MR. JOHNSON: No further questions.

EXAMINATION BY MR. CLARE:

Q. Mr. Kitts, I just have a few questions for you before we conclude. You testified today that you participated in certain discussions that were held between Sunbeam and Coleman, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did those discussions take place that you participated in?

A. In New York.

Q. Were there any discussions between Sunbeam and Coleman that you participated in that took place in Florida?

A. Not that I participated in.

Q. Are you aware of any

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16div-021973

Kitts

conversations that occurred between anyone on the Morgan Stanley team and anyone on the Coleman team in Florida?

A. Not that I am aware of.

Q. The individuals who were on the Morgan Stanley team, where were those individuals based?

A. In New York, except for one in Chicago.

Q. Were there any members of the team who were based in Florida?

A. No.

Q. The individuals that you were dealing with from McAndrews & Forbes, where were they based?

A. In New York, except for wherever Jerry Levin was based, or the Coleman people.

Q. Did you understand that the Coleman people were based in Wichita, Kansas?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of any of the individuals from McAndrews & Forbes or

Kitts

Coleman who were headquartered in Florida?

A. No.

Q. And there was a discussion this morning about one of the negotiation sessions in which first quarter 1998 performance was discussed. Do you recall that testimony generally?

A. Generally, yes.

Q. Can you describe for me in as much detail as you are able what you recall about that meeting and what was said during that meeting?

MR. JOHNSON: And just so I'm clear, had is something other than the Q and A sessions?

Q. Well, okay, let me be clear. Mr. Kitts, my questions are going to relate to meetings that were held between representatives of Sunbeam and representatives of McAndrews & Forbes during the negotiation of the Coleman acquisition, okay?

A. Yes.

Q. And this morning you testified that during one of those meetings, the subject of first quarter 1998 performance came up, is that right?

Kitts

MR. JOHNSON: I object to the form and you're leading and mischaracterizing testimony. Subject to those objections, you can answer.

Q. This is just foundational.

A. The two days of meetings, the 23rd and 24th, again, the chronology -- of February, the chronology shows that I wasn't present on February 23, which appears to be the time at which Sunbeam reviewed its strategic plan in 1998 projections to Coleman and CSFB, and I recall probably Alex Fuchs reporting back to me or me checking in as to how the day went. I don't know where I was that day, but that, you know, to report that things went fine, that there may have been a question about the first quarter and Russ was very dismissive of yeah, things may be a little light right now, but we have every expectation of making it up. And it was relatively nonchalant, I guess is the way that it was described to me.

Q. That meeting at which that subject was described, was that before a definitive agreement had been signed?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you receive any inquiries from anyone at McAndrews & Forbes about that topic after the meeting?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you receive any inquiries from anyone from CSFB on that subject after the meeting?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. At the time did you have any reason to doubt Mr. Kersh's statement regarding Sunbeam's expected first quarter 1998 performance?

A. No.

Q. And at the time did you have any information about Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance other than what Mr. Kersh had said during that meeting?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

89510

Kitts

A. I did not, no.

MR. CLARE: Those are all the questions I have.

MR. JOHNSON: Nothing further.

A. No.

Smith

Q. What was the nature of the U.S. Attorney's, what was the nature of the testimony you gave relating to activities of the U.S. Attorney's Office?
MR. CLARE: I'll object. Maybe I can shortcut some of this. And you're free to follow up with him. Mr. Smith gave an interview to the U.S. Attorney's Office. It was not testimony in any formal sense, it was an interview that was granted.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
Q. Was a court reporter present?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember when this occurred?
A. Three or four years ago.
Q. How -- the Sunbeam transactions, to put this in context, closed in the first quarter of 1998?
A. Uhm-hmm.
Q. Do you recall how soon in relationship to first quarter of 1998 you were interviewed by the U.S. Attorney's Office?
A. I assume it would be three or four years ago. It would be around '01 or '00, so it would be two or three years afterwards, but that is a very hazy recollection.

Smith

Q. So that was years after the close of the transactions that you were interviewed by the U.S. Attorney's Office?
A. Uhm-hmm.
Q. Do you know why U.S. Attorney's Office wanted to interview you?
MR CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
A. No.
Q. How much time did you spend in this interview?
A. About a day and a half.
Q. Were you represented by counsel?
A. I was.
Q. Was it an in-house attorney by Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Who represented you?
A. Wachtel, I think.
Q. Were any in-house Morgan Stanley lawyers present for the interview?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. I don't think so.
Q. What subjects were you interviewed about?
A. Different facets of the transaction.
Q. "The transaction" in this case being what?
A. Being the Sunbeam acquisition and financing.
Q. The Sunbeam acquisition you're referring to is what?
A. Of Coleman and the other two properties.
Q. And the financing in this context?
A. Would be the loan.
Q. The senior loan?
A. The senior loan.
Q. When you refer to "senior loan," the senior loan is the loan that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding made to Sunbeam in connection with the acquisition?
A. Along with two other existing lenders, Bank of America and Wachovia, yeah. Or First Union at the time.

Smith

Q. Were there any other matters that you were interviewed about other than those two general topics?
A. Nope.
Q. Do you know how you were chosen for this interview?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know if you were volunteered by Morgan Stanley or --
A. I have no idea.
Q. Excuse me, or someone at the U.S. Attorney's Office specifically requested you?
A. Don't know.
Q. Do you know what the U.S. Attorney's Office was attempting to investigate?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
A. No.
Q. What was your understanding?
A. Didn't have any.
Q. Were you told whether Morgan Stanley's conduct was in question?
MR. CLARE: Object. You can

Smith

answer the question, but I would instruct you to limit your answer to exclude any conversations or any other information that you learned from in-house Morgan Stanley counsel or outside counsel representing Morgan Stanley at the time. Those conversations are privileged, you're not required to disclose them. I'm instructing you not to disclose them.
To the extent you have an understanding outside of any of those privileged communications you are free to answer Mr. Markowski's question.
A. What is your question again?
Q. Did you have any understanding whether Morgan Stanley's conduct was in question?
A. No comment.
Q. Sorry?
A. No comment.
Q. No comment? I'm not sure I know what no comment means.
A. I guess I would be following his advice.

Smith

Q. Is your testimony that other than things you were told by Morgan Stanley's attorneys, you don't have any independent understanding whether Morgan Stanley's conduct was under investigation?
A. That would be right.
Q. Sir, I think it would be useful for the court reporter if you let me finish my questions before you start to answer them. I know it is very natural for you to anticipate where I'm going and provide the answer.
A. You're right, I'm sorry.
Q. But it is easier for the court reporter if we speak one at a time.
THE WITNESS: Do you think we can take a break now?
MR. CLARE: Sure.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 10:21, we're going off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 10:26, we're back on the record.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Mr. Smith, other than this day and

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

a half interview with the U.S. Attorney's Office, have you been interviewed by anybody else relating to the Sunbeam transactions?

A. No.

Q. The U.S. Attorney's Office involved in your interview, was that U.S. Attorney's Office here in Manhattan?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if any representatives of the Securities and Exchange Commission were present for that interview?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you remember with whom at U.S. Attorney's Office you met?

A. No.

Q. Did you take any notes of the discussion that you had with U.S. Attorney's Office?

A. No.

Q. Can you tell me generally what the U.S. Attorney's Office was interested in learning from you?

A. They were interested in issues surrounding the financing of the loan that we, Bank of America and First Union, made.

Smith

Q. Do you know if this inquiry being conducted by the U.S. Attorney's Office was being initiated at the request of Morgan Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

MR CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I do not know.

MR CLARE: Make sure you just give me a chance to give my objection.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.

Q. Do you know if it was initiated at the request of First Union or Bank of America?

MR CLARE: Same objection.

A. Don't know.

Q. During the course of the day and a half that you spent with the U.S. Attorney's Office with this interview, Mr. Smith, did you express the view that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had been the victim of fraud in connection with the loan that it made to Sunbeam?

A. I'm sorry, say that again, please.

Smith

Q. During the course of this day and a half interview at the U.S. Attorney's Office did you express the view that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had been the victim of fraud with respect to the loan it made to Sunbeam?

A. I don't really remember.

Q. As you sit here today, you don't remember whether during the day and a half interview with the U.S. Attorney's Office you indicated that you believe Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had been the victim of a loan, the victim of a fraud with respect to its loan to Sunbeam; is that correct?

A. Well, what, I think a better way to put it was that the three banks were -- I don't know if I ever used the word "fraud" -- were misled by what we were told with the financial condition of the company.

Q. Financial condition of the company in this context is Sunbeam?

A. Sunbeam.

Q. Do you recall that you did indicate that you believe Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had been misled by Sunbeam related to its financial condition?

Smith

A. I think I said that Morgan Stanley and the other lenders were misled.

Q. Did you explain what, in what way you thought Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had been misled?

A. I remember that I said that I felt that the three banks were misled by the financial statements as well as representations made by the company.

Q. The financial statements you are referring to are the audited financial statements of Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. What representations by management did you tell the U.S. Attorney's Office you believe were misleading?

A. I don't remember the specifics.

Q. Do you remember if you offered specifics to the U.S. Attorney's Office with respect to statements made to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding by Sunbeam management that you considered to be misleading?

A. No, I cannot remember.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. Did you indicate to the U.S. Attorney's Office whether any of the information that Morgan Stanley had received from or relating to Coleman company was misleading?

A. I don't recall.

Q. So as you sit here today you don't recall telling the U.S. Attorney's Office that you remember receiving misleading information from Coleman?

A. I don't recall ever telling them that.

Q. Is the only misleading information you advised the U.S. Attorney's Office you believe Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had received had come from Sunbeam and related to Sunbeam; is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection, misstates his testimony.

A. It what?

MR. CLARE: I objected that it misstates your prior testimony. You can answer.

THE WITNESS: What was my prior testimony?

Smith

MR. MARKOWSKI: Can you read the pending question, please.

(Record read.)

A. Well, no, because they also had the financial statements.

Q. Let me break it down.

You told the U.S. Attorney's Office that you believe Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had received misleading information from Sunbeam management, correct?

A. Yeah, the three banks had received misleading information.

Q. And that misleading information related to Sunbeam itself, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you also told the U.S. Attorney's Office that you believe Sunbeam's own financial statements were misleading, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And those financial statements relate to Sunbeam itself, correct?

A. Yes.

Smith

Q. Is there any other misleading information that you recall advising the U.S. Attorney's Office of that related to the loans that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding received?

A. I don't recall anything.

Q. Are you familiar with the lawsuit that my client Coleman (Parent) Holdings has filed against Morgan Stanley, sir?

A. You mean the one we are here for now?

Q. Correct.

A. A little bit.

Q. What's your understanding of that lawsuit?

A. That you're suing Morgan Stanley, that is about it.

Q. Do you have any understanding of what the nature of the claims are that my client's asserting against Morgan Stanley?

A. Not directly.

Q. When you say "not directly," what do you mean?

A. No, not -- no.

Smith

Q. Do you understand that my client is alleging that Morgan Stanley misled Coleman (Parent) Holdings in connection with the sale of its interest in Coleman company to Sunbeam?

A. Yes, I guess I have heard that.

Q. Have you had any discussions with Morgan Stanley personnel relating to Coleman (Parent's) lawsuit?

A. No. Well, I guess we had that lawyer from Morgan Stanley, the guy who contacted me, the people who contacted me about showing up here. That would be it.

Q. Okay. Other than being advised that we wanted to take your deposition, you have not?

A. Nope.

Q. Sir, if you let me finish my questions, --

A. I'm sorry.

Q. -- we'll try and get through this.

Other than the telephone call you received from an in-house lawyer at Morgan Stanley advising you we wanted to take your

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

deposition, you have not had any discussions with any Morgan Stanley personnel relating to my client's claims against Morgan Stanley?

A. Had a face-to-face meeting with a lawyer from Morgan Stanley.

Q. When was that?

A. It was yesterday.

Q. That was to prepare for your testimony today?

A. That was to prepare for the testimony today.

Q. Other than that conversation, have you had any discussions with anyone at Morgan Stanley relating to my client's claims?

A. No.

Q. What did you do to prepare for your testimony today, sir?

A. Sat down with counsel and reviewed documents.

Q. And on what occasions did you meet with counsel to prepare for today?

A. I'm sorry, on what occasion?

Q. Right.

A. You mean like when?

Smith

Q. Yes.

A. Yesterday.

Q. Any other occasions?

A. No.

Q. With whom did you meet yesterday?

A. With this attorney from Morgan Stanley and counsel.

Q. With Mr. Clare?

A. Mr. Clare.

Q. Do you remember the name of the in-house person at Morgan Stanley?

A. Jim Doyle?

MR. CLARE: If you remember.

A. That's all I remember.

Q. Anyone else present at the meetings?

A. No.

Q. Where did it take place?

A. It took place at Bear Stearns.

Q. How long did you meet with him?

A. About several hours.

Q. Can you tell me approximately how many?

A. Three-plus.

Smith

Q. Did they show you some documents?

A. Yes.

Q. Did any of those documents refresh your recollection on matters?

A. In a limited way I guess.

Q. What documents did they show you that refreshed your recollection?

A. There was a variety of documents. It included the offering memorandum on the bank transaction, some press releases, that type of thing.

Q. Did they review any testimony of others with you?

A. No.

Q. Did they review notes of the meeting that had taken place at the U.S. Attorney's Office?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if either Mr. Doyle or Mr. Clare had notes relating to the interview you had given to the U.S. Attorney's office?

A. No idea.

Q. Other than the documents that you were shown during the course of this session yesterday with Mr. Doyle and Mr. Clare, did you spend any other time reviewing documents?

Smith

A. No.

Q. Did you use E-mail to communicate back in 1998, sir, while you were at Morgan Stanley?

A. No, I don't remember doing it.

Q. Did you ever use E-mail while you were at Morgan Stanley?

A. Limitly, in a limited manner.

Q. During what time period?

A. Mostly towards the last two or three years.

Q. When you left Morgan Stanley in 2003 did you have a personal computer at the office?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know whether there were any E-mails or electronic documents on that computer that related in any way to the Sunbeam transactions?

A. I do not.

Q. So it is possible that your personal computer could have had E-mails or

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

electronic documents relating to the Sunbeam transaction?

A. I'm not a computer genius, but the computer I had was, I only had for a couple of years, so I guess it is not.

Q. But you don't know?

A. Don't know for sure, no.

Q. When you left do you know what happened to your personal computer?

A. I do not.

Q. You didn't take it with you?

A. No, it wasn't mine.

Q. Do you know if anyone took any steps to preserve the contents of that computer when you left?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know if that computer was reviewed at any time after my client filed its lawsuit against Morgan Stanley in 2003, to determine whether it had on it any documents relating to Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation, calls for speculation.

A. No idea.

Smith

Q. You don't know one way or the other?

A. No.

Q. You have no knowledge of it being reviewed at least; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Smith, when did you first become aware that a team of Morgan Stanley investment bankers was working with Sunbeam?

A. Tough to say, long time ago. My recollection would be that it would be early '98.

Q. Is there a particular event that you relate your first knowledge of Morgan Stanley investment bankers working with somebody?

A. The event would be a phone call from Bill Strong inquiring whether our interest in arranging a potential financing for Sunbeam in connection with some acquisitions.

Q. Did he identify the potential acquisitions?

A. I don't recall.

Smith

Q. Do you recall if those acquisitions turned out to be the acquisition of Coleman company, First Alert, Signature Brand?

A. Could have been. It is very general and the conversation like this I had all the time about potential acquisitions, so I think in this case it is still a formative stage.

Q. You don't recall as you sit here today whether this call from Mr. Strong related to whether you were interested in potentially structuring financing for Sunbeam's acquisition for some company other than the three companies it ended up acquiring?

A. Maybe I'll put it a different way. I think those companies were mentioned. It was unclear whether it was going to be all three, two of them or one.

Q. But it ended up being, the financing that Mr. Strong was inquiring about ended up being the financing that was in fact put in place by your group, right?

A. For those three properties.

Smith

Q. Did you have any knowledge that Mr. Strong and others were working with Sunbeam earlier with respect to other potential target companies?

A. Not then.

Q. Were you involved in any Sunbeam activities in 1997 that you can recall?

A. 1997, no. I do not recall being involved.

Q. Do you believe that you were not?

A. I believe I was not.

Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley's ability to arrange large amounts of financing was being promoted to Sunbeam by Morgan Stanley investment bankers as a reason for retaining Morgan Stanley to provide investment banking services?

A. I was not.

Q. Were you aware that in August of 1997 you were identified as a member of the Morgan Stanley Sunbeam team?

A. No

Q. Would it surprise you that without your knowledge you have been identified by

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Morgan Stanley investment bankers as being a member of the Sunbeam team?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation. You can answer.

A. I don't know how to answer. Does it surprise me? A little bit I guess.

Q. Mr. Smith, I'm going to show you what we're going to mark as Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 151, it's a document that bears Bates number Morgan Stanley confidential 65651 through 6574.

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 151, document that bears Bates number Morgan Stanley confidential 65651 through 6574, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. I would like you to look at it briefly just to tell me, first of all, whether you recall ever seeing that document before.

A. Is this all one document or is this several put together?

Q. As far as I'm aware it is one document, but I could be mistaken about that.

Smith

It is the way we received it.

A. I don't recollect seeing this.

Q. You see it's labelled in the first page "Project Laser Discussion Material August 8, 1997"?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam was referred to as Project Laser?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the page where it has Bates number 65772, it is towards the end of the document.

A. Towards the end of it?

Q. 772, correct.

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. Do you see that page is entitled "Project Laser, the Morgan Stanley team"?

A. Yes.

Q. You see in the bottom left-hand corner there is a box for debt capital markets banks?

A. Yes.

Q. And your name appears there, correct?

Smith

A. Yes.

Q. Along with Michael Hart's and Michael McLaughlin, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell me who Michael Hart and Michael McLaughlin are?

A. Michael Hart and Michael McLaughlin were vice presidents who worked as loan originators in the loan capital, for me in the loan group.

Q. They were two Morgan Stanley employees who worked for you?

A. Right.

Q. Does this refresh your recollection that you're identified Sunbeam in the summer of 1997, as part of the Morgan Stanley team for Project Laser?

A. I guess I would put it another way since I have never seen this before, so this is my first observation of this and I see my name as well as 15 other people here.

This looks very similar to a lot of the pitches Morgan Stanley put together just listing people in different areas.

Smith

You will also notice here they had people from the credit function and people from Princess Gate on this, so I would view this as a very generic pitch page.

Q. Do you know what the purpose would be of listing your group?

A. No, I would not.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the next page of this document, it bears Bates 65773. It is entitled "Project Laser Global Leveraged Lending Capabilities." It states "Morgan Stanley has the ability to provide below investment grade clients with financing at every level of the capital structure."

Do you understand that?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it your understanding that Sunbeam was a below investment grade company?

MR. CLARE: During what time period?

MR. MARKOWSKI: 1997, 1998.

A. Again I didn't know that this was done. I don't know what Sunbeam's credit ratings were at that time, investment grade,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

noninvestment grade.

Q. Do you see the entry that reads "seasoned leverage lending professionals"?

A. Yes.

Q. I would like you to read that, the description next to that to yourself. It has the words "Groups of 12 dedicated professionals"?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. Does that accurately describe your group at the time?

A. Yes.

Q. Below that there is another heading that reads "Armed With One-Stop Shopping."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you read that to yourself also. Let me read it into the record, so it is clear what we're talking about.

It reads "Seamless execution coordinated among MSSF, Morgan Stanley's bridge and private equity funds and top rank high yield public equity M&A groups."

Do you see that?

Smith

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any understanding what the reference to one-stop shopping means in the context of this statement?

A. The, again this was a standard pitch page that was included in a lot of presentations to companies.

The idea here was that a variety of services could be provided by Morgan Stanley, very similar to what our competitors were also tallying at the time.

Q. And those activities would range from what, sir, to what in this context?

A. In this context where you just read it would include Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Morgan Stanley bridge, private equity, high yield, public equity, and M&A.

Q. The reference to M&A is to what function, sir, do you know?

Do you have any understanding?

A. I guess it would be mergers and acquisitions.

Q. Is that sometimes referred to as the investment banking function?

Smith

A. I think the investment banking function is broader, but I don't know.

Is there investment banking listed here?

Q. Was it common for Morgan Stanley investment bankers to represent to potential clients that Morgan Stanley both could provide investment banking advisory services and then assist the company directly or indirectly in raising the funds necessary to complete the acquisitions that were arranged through the investment banking group?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. Yes, I mean I obviously wasn't on every page so I have no idea how common or uncommon it was.

Q. You were part of the financing activity. Was it something that you understood to be taking place?

A. When you say "taking place," do you mean taking place 1 percent of the time, 2 percent of the time.

Q. Common?

Smith

A. I don't know what common means.

Q. Was it your understanding that Morgan Stanley -- let me take a step back, sir.

Was it your understanding that one of the reasons why Morgan Stanley wanted you to come to Morgan Stanley to establish the ability to fund leveraged loans and to syndicate them, was to assist Morgan Stanley in obtaining investment banking related engagements?

A. My understanding was that they want to have the leverage loan capability to help them garner more high yield business per se.

Q. Did you understand another objective was to obtain more investment banking engagements as a result of the ability to provide that kind of funding?

A. No.

Q. That was never expressed to you as an objective?

A. No, it was not.

Q. Were you aware that --

A. Excuse me, are we finished with

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

this?

Q. Yes.

Q. You were aware that the Morgan Stanley investment banking team was concerned that it might lose the financing assignments relating to any acquisitions Sunbeam obtained to Chase Securities?

A. I don't know if I would have worded it that way. I think they felt that Chase was a competitor that could get the financing business because of their existing relationship with Sunbeam.

Q. You understood that Chase Securities had an existing relationship with Sunbeam?

A. Yes, I did, as did First Union and Bank of America.

Q. What was the nature of Chase Securities' relationship with Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Objection, no foundation. You can answer if you know.

A. The only thing that I know that they had were they were the lead on their bank loan. And by "the lead" I mean their agent or the administrative agent.

Smith

Q. The bank loan is what, sir?

A. They had a, I think a small revolving credit, multi-year. Chase was the admin agent. First Union, Bank America were two large lenders, participants in that, two syndicate members.

Q. Do you know who Mark Davis is?

A. From where?

Q. Chase Securities.

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. You were never told that Mark Davis of Chase Securities had a relationship with Mr. Dunlap as a result of work that Mr. Davis had done for Mr. Dunlap at other companies?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever seen the engagement letter between Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you see that?

A. I think at various times.

Q. What would have been your reason for seeing that engagement letter?

Smith

A. One, getting ready for this, and then when the letter was issued to, as normally as, or I think in this case so it kind of after the fact or right before they signed the final one.

Q. I show you what we marked previously as CPH Exhibit 70, it is a letter dated September 5, 1997 Morgan Stanley stationery from Bill Strong to Albert Dunlap.

A. Okay.

Q. Take a moment to look at this for me, sir.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you recall seeing the Morgan Stanley engagement letter prior to September 5, 1997, sir?

A. I do not recall seeing it prior to September 5, 1997.

Q. So is it your recollection you did not see the engagement letter prior to it being entered into?

A. Yes, that's my recollection.

Q. Do you recall now having looked at it, how soon after September 1997 you first saw the engagement letter?

Smith

A. No.

Q. Do you recall that in fact you did see it prior to the closing of the transactions in the first quarter of 1998?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Were you aware that as part of the Sunbeam engagement letter, Sunbeam had agreed to retain Morgan Stanley on mutually agreeable terms to assist in connection with any necessary financing?

MR. CLARE: Objection to the extent it mischaracterizes the document.

A. That's not what this says.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the second -- the first full paragraph on the third page of the letter.

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. It reads "If in connection with this assignment Sunbeam effects a repurchase of or public sale or private placement of any equity referred or debt securities, or Sunbeam effects real estate financings, asset or property sales and some reasonable portion of investment banking services, in connection with Sunbeam agrees to offer Morgan Stanley on mutually agreeable terms to assist it with such transaction."

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Is it your understanding that that did not encompass --

A. This is boilerplate. Mutually acceptable terms means you have to come with the transaction so both sides have to agree, so there is nothing that ties them, Sunbeam to Morgan Stanley, to do this.

Q. Is it your understanding this didn't create a binding obligation on Sunbeam's part?

A. Not at all. This is boilerplate.

Q. Is it your understanding that this does relate to the financing activities that Sunbeam may need in the event that it engages in an acquisition covered by the terms of this engagement letter?

A. Why don't you say that again.

Q. Is it your understanding that the language that I just read to you from this engagement letter pertains to financing activities related to any acquisition that Sunbeam executes, that is covered by this engagement letter?

Smith

A. Well, again I guess I don't know what you're driving at or mean. One, this is boilerplate. Two, what this states is that if there is some financing by the way we, we might be able to strike a mutually acceptable deal with them to help provide the financing.

Q. Is it typical that Morgan Stanley seeks to involve itself in financing aspects of the investment banking transactions?

A. I'm sorry, do you say is it usual?

Q. Yes.

A. Don't know.

Q. Is the opportunity to provide financing another way that Morgan Stanley realizes fee income?

A. Yes, as do other institutions.

Q. You're aware, sir, that in first quarter of 1998 Sunbeam signed an agreement to acquire my client's interests in Coleman company?

A. Yes.

Smith

Q. And in connection with that transaction Morgan Stanley was in fact retained by Sunbeam to provide financing for it, correct?

A. I don't know about the chronology, but -- well, you know what, I don't know if that is right. I don't know when we were retained by them to do the financing.

Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam retained Morgan Stanley to arrange financing for its acquisition of Coleman company prior to the closing of the acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman?

A. Yes.

Q. Who within Morgan Stanley, sir, was involved in the financing arrangements relating to the acquisition of my client's interests in Coleman company?

A. The financing arrangements? Do you mean specifically the loan?

Q. Any aspect of the financing.

A. Would that include the convertibles as well?

Q. Yes.

Smith

A. Then my list would be limited because I don't know all of the people that were involved.

Conceptually there were people from our group which would be the Morgan Stanley senior loan, there would be people from credit, there would be people from high yield research, there would be people from the convertible desk, there would be people from equity capital market, and I don't even know if that is exhaustive, as well as the execution group. So to summarize, many, many people involved.

Q. Who from the leveraged finance group is involved?

A. There were probably three or four of us, myself, Michael Hart -- Michael Hart, Tom Burchill, and towards the end Simon Rankin.

Q. Do you recall who was involved in the equity capital markets group?

A. I do not.

Q. Did you have any interaction with them in connection with the underwriting of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

the senior loan?

A. No.

Q. So you didn't exchange information -- let me take a step back.

Do you recall if Ruth Porat was involved in convertible debt?

A. I do, yes.

Q. Did you have any communication with her at any point prior to the closing on the senior loan relating to Sunbeam?

A. Did I have any communications prior to the closing of the loan, yes.

Q. What do you recall about those communications?

A. Well, a couple of things. The -- because this was a large financing and many individuals at Morgan Stanley from many groups were involved. There was a sharing of information.

Number two, when, just before we closed the loan there was some issues regarding sales in the first quarter, some press releases and so worked with the firm I guess, and she was one of the members of the group in terms of investigating this.

Q. Do you recall any other communications that you had with anyone else in equity capital markets relating to Sunbeam?

A. I do not.

Q. So the only point of contact you had was with Ruth Porat?

A. To the best of my recollection.

Q. Do you know if other people within leveraged finance had communications with Miss Porat?

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know whether other people within the leveraged finance group had communications with anyone else in equity capital markets relating to this?

A. I do not.

Q. You indicated that there was sharing of information relating to the financings between leveraged finance and equity capital markets.

Did I understand that correctly?

A. Yes.

Smith

Q. What was the nature of the information being shared?

A. Let me be more specific. At Morgan Stanley there was a group, I don't know what they call it now, the execution group. I think they called it CSG then. And once the transaction was one, then they were the people that chaperoned the process, knew all of the transactions. They were the executioners as we called them.

John Tyree was the representative from CSG who was the quarterback of putting together a lot of this. And in this capacity he was the point person and we were able to, we being the loan group as well as equity capital markets, use a lot of the work that he did. And a lot of this we did together, some of it we relied on him, sometimes he relied on us.

Again it was a massive effort on the part of the firm. At any one time 10 to 20 people working on this thing.

Q. We're going to go through that in more detail.

Smith

In the first quarter of 1998 what was the nature of your personal activity relating to the underwriting of the Sunbeam loan?

A. Well, as the manager of the group, the ultimate responsibility was, and decision I guess was at least -- decision is the wrong word. The ultimate responsibility was mine. We had a very strenuous credit approval process with many of the individuals that I had mentioned before as part of the credit committee at the time that got involved with the final yes or no.

It was our group that was responsible, the people that work for me that were responsible for doing a lot of the due diligence and the structuring and then the rest on the loan. So in that way it was in a supervisory capacity.

Q. Do you recall what activities you personally engaged in?

A. Partly I guess. Worked with the, specifically on the loan side, what was the right structure, i.e., how much A loan, how much B loan, what should be the prices, what should be the fees. More generically asking questions about the credit, the combined entity.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

And once when one of the team members was unable to attend I went down for a, one of the due diligence meetings down in Florida.

Q. There are two principal aspects of the Sunbeam financing which was ultimately put in place, correct, sir, the senior loan and the convertible debenture offering?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. You have to answer audibly.

A. I'm sorry, yes.

Q. Who was involved in the decision-making with respect to how much money would be raised through the convertible debenture offering and how much money would be provided through the senior loan?

A. I'm sorry, you say who made that decision?

Q. Yes.

A. It was kind of a group, a group decision. Obviously people at Morgan Stanley had, were involved as well as the company.

Smith

Q. Were you involved in that process?

A. Tangentially.

Q. Did you provide a recommendation concerning how much of the debt should be raised through the senior loan and how much of it should be raised through the convertible debenture?

A. Initially we did, which was the original structure, and then when the convertible increased in size, then had input into terms of how much to take of the, or how much they should use and then how to reduce the loan to take advantage of the extra money they were able to raise in the convertible market.

Q. What you are referring to is the fact that originally it was contemplated that 500 million would be raised through the convertible debenture offering?

A. Yes.

Q. And subsequently that was changed to be something more like 750 million?

Smith

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in any decision-making or involved in making recommendations with respect to that change?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who made that decision?

A. I think the company eventually made that decision. It is only speculation on my part.

Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley had a view on that issue?

A. No.

Q. Did you have a view?

A. Not really.

Q. Did you consider it to be a good development with respect to the senior loan or a negative development with respect to the senior loan, that the company had raised an additional $250 million through the convertible debenture?

A. I thought it was a positive development.

Q. Why is that?

A. Because it was more junior capital in the, in the capital structure so the loans were, were more, were better off.

Smith

Q. Is that sometimes referred to as there being more cushion?

A. I have heard people use that expression.

Q. Is that an expression you've used?

A. I don't recall.

Q. In any event, you consider it to be the fact that the company raised an additional $250 million through the convertible debenture offering to be a positive development with respect to Morgan Stanley's exposure on the senior loan?

A. I viewed it as a positive development in terms of a senior lender to the company, which would be ourselves and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Bank of America and First Union. I thought it also enhanced our ability to distribute it.

Q. You thought in general senior lenders would view that as a positive?

A. As a positive outcome.

Q. What due diligence activity did you

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

personally engage in prior to the closing of the senior loan, sir?

A. It was rather limited. We had other people tasked with the job and in my cart, but I did go on that one trip down to Florida.

Q. Do you recall if that one trip took place in early March?

A. I don't remember. That's probably about right.

Q. Let me see if we can pin this down in time a little bit.

Let me show you, sir, what was previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 74. It is a letter dated March 5, 1998 on Morgan Stanley stationery, signed by you, directed to Russell Kersh at Sunbeam.

Can you tell me what this letter is, sir?

A. Give me a second, please.

Q. Sure.

A. This looks like a highly confident letter.

Q. Do you recall whether you provided this letter to Sunbeam before or after your trip to Florida?

Smith

A. I don't recall.

Q. Let me show you what we marked previously as CPH Number 37. It is a two-page document bearing Bates Morgan Stanley confidential 45317 through 45318. It is an itinerary for Mr. Tyree's travel to Florida on March 4 and March 5, 1998, sir?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. You see that in the third line there is a reference to you, Seth Shaan, Tom Burchill and Michael Hart as part of the team?

A. I do.

Q. Do you believe this is a reference to the trip to Florida that you took?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Tyree was part of the team at the Florida meeting?

A. I do.

Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Hart was there?

A. I believe he was not.

Smith

Q. Do you recall if Seth Shaan, Tom Burchill were there?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Is the reason why you went on this trip that Michael Hart could not?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. Prior to the trip to Florida in early March where you visited Sunbeam, had Morgan Stanley Senior Funding itself done any, do any due diligence relating to the possibility of structuring a senior loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall the exact sequencing of it, but we did have -- we -- so I don't remember when we started getting involved in terms of looking at the, looking at the projections and thinking about loan structures.

Q. Would it be fair to say that by the time you sent your March 5, 1998 highly confident letter to Mr. Kersh, that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had substantially completed its due diligence related to the financing?

Smith

A. Oh, quite the contrary. We had looked at a lot of the available information and accepted it at face.

As you see here in the letter, we said there is a lot more work to do. We said this is our preliminary understanding, that we had lots of work to do to include getting, completing due diligence. That no way this was -- and that's I guess that first full paragraph on the second page where we talk about material address change in conditions and business results and the prospects of the company.

I think we also had in here someplace about the, we have to complete the due diligence. And that no way could this be construed to be a commitment by Morgan Stanley to lend the money or to underwrite the deal.

And I think the operative paragraph here is that we were highly confident that this could be syndicated in the general known market.

Q. Have you finished your answer?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. Yes.

Q. Sir, is it your testimony, sir, that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had not substantially completed its due diligence as of the time it provided Sunbeam with a highly confident letter?

A. It is my testimony that it had not completed its due diligence prior to issuing this letter.

Q. Right.

A. With the caveats that I just mentioned.

Q. My question is whether it was substantially complete by this point in time?

A. I don't know what that might mean, but there was a lot more to do and I think this letter reflected that.

Q. Let me put it this way: Did you think that most of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's due diligence relating to the underwriting of the senior loan was completed by the time you provided the highly confident letter to Mr. Kersh on March 5, 1998?

A. I don't think that most had been done by then, but that is a very vague term.

Q. Was it the policy of Morgan Stanley that highly confident letters relating to financings should not be issued until substantially all necessary due diligence was completed?

A. It -- why don't we say that again. What did you say?

Q. Was it the policy of Morgan Stanley that highly confident letters relating to financings should not be issued by the firm until substantially all necessary due diligence had been completed?

A. There -- I don't follow you.

Q. Was it the policy of Morgan Stanley -- I think it is a fairly simple statement, sir.

A. Why don't you go slow.

Q. I will. Was it the policy of Morgan Stanley that highly confident letters --

A. Like this.

Q. -- relating to financing should not be issued until such time as substantially all necessary due diligence was completed?

Smith

A. Well, I'm having a brain aneurysm, I don't know what you're trying to get to.

Q. You don't know one way or the other as you sit here today whether Morgan Stanley's policy was --

A. I'm not commenting on Morgan Stanley's policy.

Q. I'm asking you --

A. No comment, no idea.

Q. My question is this and I want your knowledge, I'm entitled to your knowledge.

A. As best as I can remember.

Q. Yes. Is it your testimony that you have no knowledge as you sit here today, whether it was the policy of Morgan Stanley in March of 1998 that the firm should not issue highly confident letters relating to potential financing until such time as substantially all necessary due diligence was completed?

A. My understanding was that there would be letters like this issued after it was vetted internally, and the amount of due diligence completed before the issuance of this letter would vary.

Q. You have no knowledge that there was a requirement that substantially all of necessary due diligence be complete?

A. Those are your terms and I'm not aware of any of those, that concept.

Q. Who made the decision to issue the highly confident letter on March 5?

A. This was a group decision that was vetted by many of the senior people at the firm.

Q. You didn't have the authority yourself to issue the March 5 letter?

A. No.

Q. Who needed to provide approval?

A. This would --

Q. Let me ask you a different question. Who did provide approval?

A. I don't recall exactly, but it would be the people on the Credit Committee, I don't even remember who was the head then of the Credit Committee, and then other senior members of the Credit Committee.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Why don't we take a break and change the tape.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:26, this completes tape number 1.

(Pause in the proceedings.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:31, this begins tape number 2.

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Smith, back to the March 5 highly confident letter.

Describe to me the process that was used at Morgan Stanley in reaching a decision to issue this letter.

A. The decision would be a, would be similar to the credit approval process, realizing that we had less than the complete information that we would need to make a credit decision.

And by that I mean that a lot of the due diligence would be ongoing, not yet complete, that our views expressed in these highly confident letters such as this, are dated March 5, would, would relate to taking a lot of the information given to us at face value, i.e., the audited financials, i.e., the projections, and the rest.

And then based on that was our, we would then come up with a decision on the part of the firm, voiced to the Credit Committee, whether we would be authorized to send out a highly confident letter such as the one here.

Q. Was there any sign-off process in place that required that formal written approval be given for letters such as this?

A. It was not a sign-off procedure. It was a meeting that was, that we had a chairman and that approved credits as well as sending out these highly confident letters.

Q. That committee was the Leveraged Finance Committee?

A. It sounds right, but don't hold me a hundred percent for the name. It changed a lot.

Q. Were you on that committee?

A. I was on the committee.

Q. Were you the chairman?

A. I was not the chairman.

Smith

Q. Do you know who was in 1998?

A. I think it had been Mr. Steve Newhouse.

Q. How did that process work, did the committee take a vote with respect to whether a letter -- let me ask you a specific question.

Do you recall that a committee vote was taken with respect to the authorization issued on March 5 had the confident letter disseminated?

A. I don't remember specifically whether there was a vote. I don't remember.

Q. Is that typically the way the process works, the committee takes a vote with respect to whether to approve the issuance of a highly confident letter or a credit, or is it something other than that?

A. That is typically how it would work.

Q. Who initiated the process with respect to review of the question whether to issue a highly confident letter to Sunbeam; did you?

Smith

A. Initiate's a funny word. Probably Mr. Strong and myself were the, would take the lead on this.

Q. Why Mr. Strong?

A. The procedure at Morgan Stanley was that the banker, i.e., the person who was responsible for the client would be actively involved in all, in proposing extensions of credit or underwritings for their client.

Q. So Mr. Strong had to endorse this as part of the internal procedure Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Strong asked you to consider to issue a highly confident letter to Sunbeam?

A. I recall that he wanted a highly confident letter from Morgan Stanley to Sunbeam.

Q. How did you know that Mr. Strong wanted a highly confident letter?

A. I think he -- we talked about it and we thought that was helpful in helping us secure the financing.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. So you and Mr. Strong discussed whether Morgan Stanley should issue a highly confident letter?

A. No, Mr. Strong and I discussed whether we should go seek approval from Morgan Stanley to issue a highly confident letter.

Q. And Mr. Strong wanted Morgan Stanley to issue a highly confident letter because he thought it would be helpful to Morgan Stanley in obtaining the assignment to arrange for the financing, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I can't comment for sure what he was thinking.

Q. Did Mr. Strong say to you in words or substance I would like us to be able to issue a highly confident letter to Sunbeam in connection with the financing for the Coleman acquisition because that will be helpful to us in our efforts to obtain that engagement?

A. I think he said to the committee that form and substance about what you said, that this would be useful in positioning ourselves to seek the financing if that's what we wanted to do.

Smith

Q. Now, was it clear to the committee in connection with the issuance of -- let me ask a foundational question.

Was there an actual meeting of the committee in connection with the decision to issue the March 5 highly confident letter?

A. Don't recall for sure, but I believe so.

Q. Do you recall being present at such a meeting?

A. I do recall, yes. If there was a meeting I was there. And I think there was a meeting.

Q. To discuss the issuance of the March 5 --

A. To discuss the issuance of this highly confident letter.

Q. Do you recall whether the committee at that meeting was advised that a substantial amount of due diligence remained to be done before Morgan Stanley could actually commit to make the loan?

Smith

A. I don't know if I would use the word "substantial." They were certainly aware that there was ongoing work and work to be done.

And also what happened here is that once that work was complete it was understood because this was the policy, is to come back to the Credit Committee for approval of what exactly was being asked for.

Q. How would issuing a highly confident letter be helpful in Morgan Stanley's efforts to obtain the financing engagement?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I don't know what Bill was thinking with the company. I don't know.

Q. Did Mr. Strong explain his thinking to you?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any views of your own, based on your many years of experience in this business that would provide you with a basis for understanding how the issuance of a highly confident letter might assist Mr. Strong in obtaining the financing engagement from Sunbeam?

Smith

A. Not really. It's also situational, so personal, and I had no knowledge of Kersh or Dunlap before that.

Q. Before this March 5 letter was issued did you have any direct communications with Mr. Kersh or Mr. Dunlap personally?

A. I'm hesitating because the -- I'm trying to remember the first time I met him and that might have been at the board meeting, and I don't remember when that day was.

Q. The itinerary for the trip to Florida indicates --

A. They might have even been there. Does it say that? I'm sorry.

Q. We'll get there. Here is my question: The itinerary for the trip to Florida indicates that the meetings were scheduled for March 4 and March 5. The date of your highly confident letter is March 5.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Do you recall bringing the highly confident letter with you and delivering it personally to Mr. Kersh or Mr. Dunlap during your visit to Florida?

A. I don't think so. I think the itinerary is wrong. I think I was only there for a day in and out, I didn't spend the night, and so I don't believe I had this with me to give them when I was down there.

Q. Was there something about your trip to Florida that, on March 4 that bears on the timing of the issuance of the letter on March 5?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall you were holding onto the highly confident letter until your trip to Florida?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall how far in advance of the issuance of a highly confident letter on March 5 that Mr. Strong first approached you about his desire to have Morgan Stanley provide Sunbeam with such a letter?

A. I do not.

Smith

Q. Do you remember if it was more than a week?

A. I do not.

Q. Is it possible that it was less than a week?

A. I can't remember.

Q. Was there any disagreement on the part of any members of the committee responsible for making the decision to issue this letter, concerning whether it should be sent?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did you have any reservations personally about it?

A. No.

Q. I believe you testified earlier that it was your recollection, it is your recollection today that your activity relating to Sunbeam started in the first quarter of 1998?

A. That's the best of my recollection.

Q. Was it your understanding at the outset of your involvement in first quarter of 1998 relating to Sunbeam, that Mr. Dunlap had claimed to have accomplished a significant improvement in Sunbeam's performance and prospects?

A. I'm sorry, did you say prior to my involvement?

Q. I'll ask a new question.

Was it your understanding at the time you became involved in your work relating to Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998, that Mr. Dunlap had been claiming to have accomplished a significant improvement in Sunbeam's performance and prospects in 1997?

A. After I got involved, yes.

Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley's presentation to other companies concerning Sunbeam emphasized the success of Mr. Dunlap's turn-around efforts at Sunbeam?

A. I didn't have any knowledge of that.

Q. Did you ever become familiar, sir, with statements made by Morgan Stanley to my client concerning the success of Mr. Dunlap's turn-around activities of the Sunbeam?

Smith

A. No knowledge at all.

Q. Mr. Smith, I'm going to show you what we previously marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit Number 71. It's a October 22, 1997 interoffice memorandum from the Sunbeam corporation team to Morgan Stanley Worldwide IBD professionals. It bears Bates stamps Morgan Stanley confidential 5984 through 5995.

I would like you to take a look at this, sir, and tell me whether you have ever seen this document before.

A. I, I don't recall.

Q. If in fact this Morgan Stanley interoffice memorandum was sent to all Worldwide IBD professionals, would that have included you?

A. I think it might have.

Q. IBD is a reference to Investment Banking Division?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. You have to answer audibly.

A. I'm sorry, yes.

Q. In the ordinary course a memorandum

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

SCI 0109

Smith

directed to all IBD professionals would have gone on to you as well?

A. That is true, as well as thousands of other things, so, so I don't remember seeing it.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the third page of the document.

A. This one?

Q. The Sunbeam corporation investment rationale.

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. Read for me the four main bullet points on this page. "Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story in investment opportunity. Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in July 1996. Tremendous intrinsic value in the company. And, finally, valuable opportunity to penetrate and become a global market leader of branded consumer devices."

Do you see those four bullet points?

A. I do.

Smith

Q. Was that consistent with your understanding with the claims Sunbeam was making in the first quarter of 1998 concerning the success of its turnaround?

A. Consistent with what Sunbeam was representing? I think, yes. Probably consistent.

Q. Do you know if these statements are consistent with the statements that Morgan Stanley was making to third parties on behalf of Sunbeam?

MR CLARE: Objection.

A. I have no idea.

MR CLARE: No foundation. You can answer.

Q. Do you know if the purpose of this memorandum to all investment banking professionals was to communicate to them selling points that they should make to third parties relating to Sunbeam?

MR CLARE: Same objection, foundation, calls for speculation.

A. Don't know.

Q. Do you have any knowledge as you sit here today, whether statements of this sort were made by Morgan Stanley to my client?

Smith

A. No idea.

Q. Were any statements of this sort, sir, relating to Sunbeam's financial condition and prospects made to you by any members of the Sunbeam investment banking -- excuse me, let me start over.

Were any statements of the sort contained in CPH Exhibit 71 which I just read to you, made to you by any Morgan Stanley personnel?

MR. CLARE: You're asking specifically with regard to the third page of the exhibit?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes, the third page.

A. I think that elements of the third page were, were talked about by members of the team during the process.

Q. So there were members of Morgan Stanley personnel who were involved in the investment banking activities for Sunbeam, who made statements similar to those we see on the third page of this document to you?

Smith

A. Yes, and -- but don't forget, if you look at page 3 a lot of these are factual.

Number one market share in gas grills. So if somebody tells me they're number one in market share in gas grills, I see it in two or three other places so that's kind of a fact.

You can see what they have done in terms of improving profitability and selling some unprofitabilizations. Those are all facts so, yes, a lot of this information was shared by the team with people that weren't as close to the company.

Q. Did the members of the Morgan Stanley investment banking team say to you that Sunbeam had accomplished a successful turnaround during Mr. Dunlap's tenure?

A. I don't remember anybody saying that specifically to me in words of that. I do remember, however, conversations where we look at the financials and see that margins

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

had improved, profits had gone up and the rest.

Q. Did anybody on the Morgan Stanley investment banking team say to you in connection with your underwriting review that Mr. Dunlap had accomplished some, Mr. Dunlap had accomplished a substantial improvement in Sunbeam's performance?

A. I don't know if anybody said it like that, but again any comments would have come up as we looked at the numbers. Again those were pretty black and white in terms of what you had been able, what the numbers represented that the company had done under his stewardship.

Q. Do you recall anybody on the Morgan Stanley investment banking team saying to you that Mr. Dunlap had accomplished great success during his tenure as the CEO of Sunbeam?

A. Never anything like that.

Q. That Sunbeam represented an attractive growth story?

A. No.

Smith

Q. That Sunbeam represented an attractive investment opportunity?

A. Never exactly I guess those words.

Q. In substance?

A. It was more again looking at the numbers, seeing what the, what that looked like and then commenting, and then commenting on the, what the numbers look like over the last couple of years that he had been there.

Q. Had anyone on the investment banking team suggested to you that Mr. Dunlap had successfully transformed Sunbeam?

A. No, I don't remember those words.

Q. That there was tremendous intrinsic value at Sunbeam?

A. I don't remember those words.

Q. Were you aware of Mr. Dunlap's prior history before becoming the CEO of Sunbeam?

A. Just very peripheral.

Q. Did you have any knowledge of his tenure at Scott Paper?

A. No, other than what I read in the newspapers.

Smith

Q. Did you have any -- what was your understanding generally of Mr. Dunlap's reputation in the first quarter of 1998?

A. Generally was that he was a, he was a -- I don't know how to put it. I think his public image was, it was my understanding his public image was he was pretty bottoms line oriented and was focused on cost-cutting and paring out unprofitable ventures in the company.

Q. Was it your understanding that Mr. Dunlap's reputation was as a turn-around specialist?

A. I guess you could use that concept, that word. I think that was his general persona. It is certainly now his general persona.

Q. That is the way he presents himself, correct?

A. Yes, in all of the public stuff.

Q. Did you prior to the close on the acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman company at the end of March 1998, have any reason to question Mr. Dunlap's turn-around accomplishments at either Sunbeam or any of the other companies he had been previously employed at?

Smith

A. No.

Q. Did you make any inquiry concerning Mr. Dunlap's tenure at Scott Paper?

A. I did not personally.

Q. Did you have anyone do that for you?

A. I did not specifically ask anybody to do that for me.

Q. Did you receive any reports regarding Mr. Dunlap's tenure at Scott Paper?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley ever suggest to you that Mr. Dunlap's accomplishments at Scott Paper were phony or exaggerated?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Let me show you, Mr. Smith, what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 68. It is out of a Business Week article entitled "Did CEO Dunlap Save Scott Paper Or Just Pretty It Up."

A. Is this July of '97, is that what this says at the bottom?
Q. I think there are two dates on this document, sir. The upper left-hand corner is a January 15, 1996 date.
A. Okay.
Q. And then in the bottom right-hand corner there is a July 16, 1997 date.
A. Uhm-hmm.
MR. CLARE: Bram, don't mark on the document.
Q. It bears Bates number Morgan Stanley 3995 through 4001. Take a moment to look at this.
A. Okay.
Q. Have you ever seen this before?
A. I don't recall directly. Maybe.
Q. Do you recall seeing this in connection with your review of Sunbeam prior to the close of Sunbeam's acquisition of my client, client's interests in Coleman company?
A. One, I don't remember if I saw it so you can't ask me to speculate when I might have seen it.

Smith

Q. Did you ask, does this refresh your recollection whether you asked any members of the Morgan Stanley due diligence team to investigate reports relating to Mr. Dunlap's tenure at Scott Paper?
A. I did not ask anybody to do that.
Q. Do you recall being aware that there were questions being raised publicly relating to Mr. Dunlap's claimed accomplishments at Scott Paper?
A. I guess tangentially. I knew he was a controversial figure.
Q. At the time the transactions closed at the end of March 1998 did you have any personal reason to question on the turn-around claims that Mr. Dunlap had made at Sunbeam?
A. Did I personally have any, no.
Q. Do you have any reason to question his reputation as a turn-around specialist?
A. No.
Q. I'm sorry if I asked this previously, but did you have any personal contact with Mr. Dunlap in connection with your Sunbeam activities?

Smith

A. I think you asked that before. I'm trying to remember the first time I met him, it might have been at a board meeting in New York.
Q. Was that the board meeting at which the Sunbeam board voted to approve the acquisition of my client's interests in Coleman company?
A. Yes, I believe it was.
Q. Other than at that meeting, did you have any personal involvement with Mr. Dunlap?
A. Did you say prior?
Q. Other than at that meeting, prior to or after.
A. Other than, yes. Probably on the phone and maybe some face to face, certainly in getting, putting together the presentation for the bank investors' meeting.
Q. Prior to March 30 when the acquisition of my client's interests in Coleman company closed, had you had any personal contact with Mr. Dunlap other than the board meeting in February?

Smith

A. I don't recall.
Q. Is it the case that most of your contact with Mr. Dunlap postdated the acquisition of my client's interests in the Coleman company?
A. Yes, I think that is true.
Q. And that would have meant that it also postdated the closing on the senior loan facility, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you speak at the February 1998 Sunbeam board meeting?
A. I did not. To the best of my knowledge, to the best of my memory I don't think I made a presentation. I might have responded to questions at the board meeting.
Q. What was the purpose for your attending the meeting?
A. I think to be there for questions regarding the doability of the financing.
Q. Who asked you to attend?
A. Mr. Strong.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. Do you recall whether you were asked any questions relating to the doability of the financing?

A. I think I was, but I can't remember whether it was before or after the meeting. Probably both.

Q. When you say before, after the meeting, you mean before --

A. I misspoke. During the meeting and then after the meeting.

Q. Are you referring to further discussions that occurred that day?

A. That day, immediately after the meeting when the meeting broke.

Q. Who do you recall asking questions relating to the doability of the financing, whether at the meeting itself or shortly after?

A. The doability I think was maybe from one of the board members or from Al himself, and was a very short response to that which was an affirmative.

And then after the meeting it wasn't so much about the doability, it was more tactical with Kersh.

Smith

Q. So do you recall having a more in-depth conversation with Mr. Kersh the same day as the Sunbeam board meeting relating to financing strategy?

A. Yes, and it was primarily related to financing the syndication of this loan.

Q. Who else was present for that discussion?

A. Might have been, I think it was just Bill, Bill and myself and Kersh.

Q. Bill Strong?

A. Bill Strong.

Q. Where did that discussion take place?

A. I think it happened right there in the boardroom after it broke.

Q. Was that board meeting at Morgan Stanley's office?

A. I believe it was right here in New York.

Q. Did Mr. Kersh initiate the conversation?

A. Mr. Strong and I might have initiated the conversation as I remember.

Smith

Q. And what was the purpose for talking to Mr. Kersh on that subject?

A. The purpose was to outline or briefly outline our thoughts in terms of who would be suitable partners in the underwriting of this, of this loan. And we specifically mentioned Bank of America and First Union.

Q. What was Mr. Kersh's reaction?

A. I guess noncommittal but appreciative of the input, and I don't think he really cared or thought too much about it.

Q. Now, what would -- at that point in time, in February of 1998, what was Morgan Stanley's contemplation with respect to the potential role of Bank of America and First Union concerning the senior loan?

A. As partners.

Q. What do you mean?

A. Co-underwriters.

Q. What would that involve?

A. That would involve the three of us who would commit to lend the company the required amount of bank debt it needed to accomplish these acquisitions. It meant that they would participate alongside us on all of the due diligence, that we could lever all of them because they had been existing more -- not more, but existing lenders and I think long-term relations.

So there was some institutional knowledge that those institutions had about a company that we could lever off of in terms of in our own due diligence as well as the marketing of the transaction.

Q. Was it contemplated that at least initially those three institutions, Morgan Stanley, Bank of America and First Union, would provide the entire senior financing?

A. When you say "was it contemplated," it was certainly our hope, our thought to have both of them there. And the idea was that we would approach both and if one said no, that was still okay.

Q. And the financing would then be provided entirely?

A. By ourselves and one of the others.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. Is it typical that in a loan that is intended to be syndicated to a larger group of banks -- to a large group of banks, that in the first instance the financing will be entirely provided by a smaller number, in this case one or two, possibly three banks, or is the syndication usually in place before the funding occurs?

A. Well, you have asked a few questions. What would normally happen is that you would have a group of two, maybe three banks underwrite or commit to the entire loan facility. It is easier for the company because they don't have to negotiate with so many people.

And then those institutions, the underwriters would then normally syndicate for maybe a year prior to the close of the loan and then a close of the transaction.

Q. Is it more typically the place that the syndication occurs before the close?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Is it fair to say that the situation that you were contemplating with respect to Sunbeam, where Morgan Stanley either by itself or perhaps with one or two other banks would provide all of the financing, was unusual?

Smith

A. I don't know about unusual, but it is not the majority of the cases in the United States.

Q. Why is it more typical that the syndication takes place before the funding?

A. Because normally you have more time and it's just really driven by the time that was agreed to in the -- or the details or the requirements of the deal.

Q. Was it the case here that there wasn't sufficient time to put a syndication in place before the funding was needed?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you suggest to Mr. Strong or to anyone else that it would be preferable for the syndication to be put in place before the funding was required?

A. I don't know if I suggested. We certainly talked about it because it was a certain risk profile to close and then syndicate than the flip, than the reverse.

Smith

But the terms of the mergers required that they needed the money by that certain date, not allowing us to syndicate.

Q. Do you know why the transactions themselves were scheduled, were structured that way?

A. I do not.

Q. Did you ask anyone why the need to rush to close the acquisitions before the funding could be obtained through the syndication?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. I don't recall. I recall talking about it, but I don't remember who or I can't remember what the, you know, the final answer was other than that was the terms of the deal.

Q. Do you remember talking to -- Mr. Strong in this case was the relationship person at Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam, correct?

A. I believe so.

Smith

Q. And you indicated earlier that in terms of Morgan Stanley's internal processes, he was viewed as the responsible person with respect to significant aspects of the financing activity, correct?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question. I think that misstates his prior testimony. You can answer.

A. Help me out, repeat that thing for me.

Q. Let me rephrase it.

Mr. Strong was viewed -- let me ask a more general question.

From your perspective what was Mr. Strong's responsibility for the various aspects of Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam?

A. He was the person responsible at the firm for the, for the Sunbeam relationship and -- full stop. So that included M&A or other products, then he was responsible to show those to the company.

Q. With respect to Morgan Stanley's internal work, what were Mr. Strong's responsibilities relating to Sunbeam?

NOT CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. His internal work, as I think we talked before, is that the banker, the relationship manager in this case, Mr. Strong has to be an advocate internally and endorse a transaction for his client, and in that role he did that on the senior loan.

Q. And he endorsed in this case this plan to have Morgan Stanley loan, if necessary, the entire amount of the senior financing necessary to complete the acquisition of my client, Coleman?

A. I don't know if that is exactly right. I think he advocated Morgan Stanley taking a leadership role, maybe even a majority role. I don't remember him ever suggesting that we do the whole, do the whole thing.

Q. Did you approach Mr. Strong and inquire whether it would be possible to adjust the schedule for the closing of the acquisitions to permit you the time necessary to complete a syndication of the senior financing before funding was required?

A. I remember having conversations with the team to include Mr. Strong about the term, of why the need for the fast close.

I frankly don't remember what was driving it, whether it was a tax or regulatory or something else. But it was deemed by the group, that's the team, that it was not possible to extend, delay the close to allow for the syndication of the loan.

Q. Was it your understanding that Sunbeam wanted the transaction to close as quickly as scheduled?

A. I wasn't that close to it, do not know.

Q. But your understanding was someone wanted these transactions to close very quickly, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.

A. Don't know.

Q. In your conversations with Mr. Dunlap, did you ever learn from Mr. Dunlap that it was Mr. Dunlap who wanted the acquisition of Coleman company to close before the first quarter of 1998 was completed?

Smith

A. No.

Q. Did you ever learn from your conversations with Mr. Kersh, that it was Mr. Kersh and Mr. Dunlap who wanted the transaction involving the acquisition of my client's interests in Coleman to close before the first quarter of 1998?

A. No.

Q. In the period leading up to the closing of the acquisition of my client's interests in Coleman company, Mr. Smith, did you have any communications on any subject with Coleman company management?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you have any communications with my client, Coleman (Parent), or its representatives?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Credit Suisse First Boston was the investment banking firm for my client.

Did you have any communications with CS First Boston?

A. I do not remember any conversations.

Smith

Q. My client is owned by McAndrews & Forbes, are you aware of that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any communications with any representatives of McAndrews & Forbes prior to the close of Sunbeam's acquisition of my client's interests in Coleman company?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you have any conversations with Ronald Perelman?

A. No.

Q. With Howard Gittis?

A. No.

Q. Jim Maher?

A. No.

Q. William Nesbitt?

A. No.

Q. Do you know Jim Maher?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Have you ever spoken directly with Mr. Perelman on any subject?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the nature of that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. Gee, I can't remember all of them for various transactions or various meetings.

Q. Have you ever been involved in providing financing to any McAndrews & Forbes related entities?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever sought the business of McAndrews & Forbes?

A. Yes.

Q. Unsuccessfully I take it?

A. Unsuccessfully.

Q. For whom were you working on those occasions?

A. Morgan Stanley and Bear Stearns.

Q. On what occasions while you were at Morgan Stanley did you seek to obtain business from McAndrews & Forbes?

A. I don't recall them now, but -- I don't remember the specifics.

Q. Were you working with Morgan Stanley investment bankers in connection with that activity?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember who that was?

Smith

A. The one, the name was -- what was his name? I'm sorry, Bill Reid.

Q. Do you remember if that was before the Sunbeam-related one?

A. I think it was.

Q. Since going to work at Bear Stearns you have tried to get business from McAndrews & Forbes?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. What did that relate to?

A. The most recent one was a refinancing for PanaVision, a company that McAndrews & Forbes owns.

Q. When was that?

A. That was last summer and last fall.

Q. Any other occasions?

A. We're currently working on one now, trying to secure the business.

Q. Are you working with Bear Stearns investment bankers in connection with that?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is that?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Who is that person?

Smith

A. Larry Alletto.

Q. How does he spell his last name?

A. A-L-L-E-T-T-O.

Q. Are there any other occasions that you can recall speaking to Mr. Perelman directly?

A. Just to be clear, did not speak to Mr. Perelman regarding the PanaVision and not the current transaction. But no, don't remember speaking to him.

Q. Now, you remained -- we'll get into this in some more detail, but I want to cover this point here.

After the senior loan closed in March of 1998, you had continuing involvement with respect to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any communications with anyone from Coleman (Parent) or McAndrews & Forbes in connection with that activity?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was that?

Smith

A. Who at McAndrews & Forbes, Howard Gittis. Who is the other guy? Irwin somebody or other. I guess those would be the major ones.

Q. I'm sorry, who was the third person?

A. His first name was Irwin. I can't remember his last name.

Q. We'll get into that in more detail.

Were you aware that in late 1997 Mr. Dunlap had had a meeting with Mr. Perelman in Florida to discuss Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, the possibility of that?

A. No.

Q. No one has ever reported to you on that meeting?

A. Oh, I'm sorry, I misunderstood your question. I didn't know that they had met during a, when we were doing the financing, but reviewing for this case for today found that out.

Q. Other than what you learned in preparing for your deposition, do you have any knowledge concerning Mr. Perelman's meeting with Mr. Dunlap?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. No.

Q. Who at Morgan Stanley, sir, was responsible for making sure that all necessary due diligence was performed?

A. I think if you're going to look at it organizationally, it was probably John Tyree. And then in addition to his efforts we basically had a, a person from our group, from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, in this case Mike Hart, assisted by Burchill and Simon to assist in that effort and do the due diligence from our vantage point, from the financing point.

Q. What individuals performed the due diligence in connection with this MSSF?

A. Those are the three I just mentioned, Mike Hart, Tom Burchill and Simon Rankin.

And I also want to add that the process also included a representative from the credit department.

Q. What was the function of the credit department with respect to the senior loan?

Smith

A. They were a, viewing it in a more traditional credit role since our policy stated internally and externally was that we would hold a piece, sometimes a substantial piece of every loan that we made.

And it was the credit department's function, role, not only to pass on the underwriting, I need to okay that, but also the long-term view of being a long-term lender to these opportunities such as Sunbeam.

So it would not be unusual, I can't remember the name, not be unusual to have them on phone calls, show up at meetings, et cetera, to participate in the due diligence.

Q. What portion of the senior loan did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding intend to keep?

A. That's -- I'll have to think about that for a second. We committed to 40 percent of the transaction and I think we thought that it would probably end up being about 50 to $60 million.

Q. So at the end of the day after the loan was fully syndicated, you anticipated that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding would hold about 50 or $60 million?

Smith

A. That is my recollection, at least when the syndication stopped it was completed.

Q. And how quickly was it contemplated that would occur?

A. Normally from the time you start until you are able to syndicate takes about six to eight weeks.

Q. The transactions here closed at the end of March. In terms of the schedule that you envisioned at the time the loan was closed, when did you expect the senior, that the syndication of the senior loan to be completed?

A. By the end of May.

Q. And at that point Morgan Stanley would be holding about 50 or $60 million of the debt?

A. If things went as anticipated. Could be luckier, could be a little less lucky.

Smith

Q. Luckier in this context means what, having less?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any obligation to Sunbeam or anybody else to hold any particular amount of the financing?

A. No, other than our stated practice which we communicated to Sunbeam and communicated to other lenders, as well as Bank of America and First Union, that we would end up holding some.

Q. But there was no commitment as to the amount?

A. No.

Q. In terms of the due diligence that Morgan, was done from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, I don't understand how this worked.

The individuals involved were Mr. Hart and Mr. Burchill and Mr. Simon, correct?

A. Simon Rankin.

Q. Simon Rankin?

A. Assisted by a representative of the credit department.

Q. There were other people at Morgan

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Stanley involved in doing due diligence, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Miss Porat's group, for example?

A. Right.

Q. Mr. Tyree?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. Was it the responsibility of Mr. Hart, Mr. Burchill and Mr. Rankin to independently review all of the due diligence that was being done on all aspects of Morgan Stanley's due diligence, or did it work in a different way?

A. Well, since I wasn't them it's tough to say what exactly they did. They would -- but what would normally happen is they do some of their own and then work with and look at the information that other parts of the firm had gotten.

Q. Was it their responsibility to familiarize themselves with all of the due diligence that was being done by other parts of the firm?

A. It was I guess to familiarize and take advantage of the other due diligence done on other parts of the firm.

Smith

Q. That is what you expected of them?

A. Yes.

Q. To whom did Mr. Hart, Mr. Burchill and Mr. Rankin report relating to their due diligence work?

A. Well, they worked for me. They, however, were, in cases like this they basically report and stand behind their work to the Credit Committee, which is the final grantor, if you will, of credit authority.

Q. Were you giving them direction with respect to the due diligence activity that they were engaged in?

A. I don't know about direction. Mike was a very experienced transactor so we would consult, respond to questions from him. We would talk about specific issues that might come up.

Q. Did you give him any specific direction to investigate any particular aspect of Sunbeam?

A. Not that I recall.

Smith

Q. Did you give any specific direction to any Morgan Stanley personnel to investigate any particular aspect of Sunbeam?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. The transactions were scheduled to close before the end of the first quarter of 1998, correct, sir?

A. I believe so.

Q. Did you believe it was an important part of the financing due diligence to obtain information regarding Sunbeam's performance in the first quarter of 1998?

A. I think that was one element of the overall due diligence.

Q. To find out how Sunbeam was doing so far in the first quarter of '98, correct?

A. Sure, to get an update on their performance.

Q. Did you direct anybody to obtain information concerning Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Do you recall what information you received relating to Sunbeam's first quarter

Smith

1998 performance, if anything?

A. I think we had some phone calls, maybe even some documents regarding how they were doing versus the, versus plan and versus last year.

Q. When you went to Florida for the meeting at the beginning of March in 1998, did you personally receive any information from Sunbeam at that point relating to how they had done so far in the first quarter?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you ask any questions on that subject while you were in Florida?

A. In Florida it was a different type of due diligence. It was more specific on the appliance business. So we were looking at more granular, different product lines and in the groups they had it then versus how they were doing versus the first two months in the year.

Q. So you don't recall asking while you were present in Florida how have you guys done so far in January or February?

A. No.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. You don't recall anybody from Sunbeam offering any information on that?
A. No.
Q. When do you recall first receiving information relating to how Sunbeam was doing in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I think it was the last half of, the last half of March.
Q. When you wrote the highly confident letter to Sunbeam on March 5 did you have any information at all about how Sunbeam had been doing in the first two months of 1998?
A. To the best of my recollection, no.
Q. Did that concern you?
A. I'm sorry, what?
Q. Were you concerned when you issued the highly confident letter on March 5, that you personally didn't have any information on how Sunbeam had done in January or February of 1998?
A. No, because again you go back to that letter, there was still a lot of due diligence to do.
We would have been -- we would have -- that would have come up in the general course on how they were, on how they were doing.

Smith

Q. How high on your list of pieces of information to get would have been obtaining a report from Sunbeam on how they were doing in the first two months of 1998?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
A. I don't know how you would say high. It is just one of the bits of information that go into coming up with the ultimate credit decision, so it's important. Is it more important than something else, less important than something else, it just goes into the mix.
Q. Well, did you think in light of Sunbeam's claims that it had substantially improved its performance in 1997, that it was especially important for you in connection with your review of the senior loan to obtain good information about how Sunbeam was doing in the first months of 1998?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

Smith

A. Again I think it was part of the overall view, the overall information we needed to come up with a credit decision on how the company was performing, whether it was a good credit.
So to isolate something like that in and of itself as being the talisman of something, that is the go or no-go decision, it is kind of tough to do that out of context.
Q. You wouldn't say it was an especially important piece of information to know?
A. I didn't say that. I said it was many bits of information that go into making the ultimate credit decision on whether you're comfortable and willing to go ahead with the underwriting.
Q. Was it an important bit or was it an important piece of information?
A. I'm not a lawyer, so maybe I would put it in between that. So I would say it is important, I would leave it at that.
Q. Would you say that knowing how

Smith

Sunbeam had done in the first weeks of 1998 was an essential thing for Morgan Stanley to know before it closed on the senior loan?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
A. Like I think I said before, it was an important, you know, consideration to, in terms of making the overall judgment.
Q. Would you say you wouldn't agree to close on a loan unless you had that information?
A. I don't know if I would say that.
Q. Do you know that Morgan Stanley had requested a comfort letter from Sunbeam's auditors?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. When did you know that?
A. I think I knew it back then.
Q. What's the purpose for a comfort letter?
A. Well, I didn't ask for it and I'm not on the security side, so...
Q. What's your understanding?
A. I think it's part of the closing process for, involving securities.

Q. Do you know that one of the things that the auditors do in connection with the comfort letter is to report on the company's most recent financial results for periods that are not yet complete?

MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.

A. No.

MR. CLARE: If we're getting to a transition point, maybe we should break for lunch.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 1:18, we're back on the record.

EXAMINATION BY (Cont'd.)

MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Smith, when we broke I had asked you whether you were aware that Morgan Stanley had requested a comfort letter from Sunbeam's outside auditor, Arthur Andersen.

Let me show you a copy of what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 17. It's a letter to Morgan Stanley from Arthur Andersen dated March 19, 1998.

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. Take a moment to look at this letter, and my first question to you is going to be whether you have ever seen it before.

A. Okay.

Q. Have you seen this letter before, sir?

A. Yup.

Smith

Q. When did you first see it?

A. I don't remember when. I do know I saw it yesterday and I don't know whether I saw all of this before or not.

Q. Could you take your hand down?

A. Oh, sorry.

Q. You're not certain as you sit here today, whether you saw this letter back in March of 1998?

A. I don't know if I saw the whole thing in March of 1998, yup.

Q. Is it possible that you saw portions of this or information drawn from it in March of 1998?

A. It might have been.

Q. There has been testimony that Mr. Tyree received the signed copy of this letter from Arthur Andersen.

Did Mr. Tyree report to you on the substance of the information contained in this March 19 letter?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. Do you know if anyone working for you received a copy of Arthur Andersen's

Smith

March 19, 1998 comfort letter?

A. No.

Q. Do you believe it to be the case that the individuals working for you did not receive a copy of the March 19 comfort letter?

A. Don't know.

Q. Do you know if the people working for you, Mr. Hart and others received a briefing from Mr. Tyree concerning the substance of the March 19 comfort letter?

A. Don't know.

Q. Did you receive a report from Mr. Hart or the other individuals conducting due diligence for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding concerning the substance of the March 19 comfort letter?

A. Did not receive a report.

Q. Let me draw your attention to paragraph 6C.

A. 6E?

Q. 6C. It is at the page 5 of the letter. Would you read that to yourself, please.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Have you done it?

A. I'm just finishing up here. Okay.

Q. This portion of the March 19 comfort letter advises that Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1998 are substantially below Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1997, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. Well, they list the two numbers for the two different periods, yes.

Q. Do you agree with me that the substance of this paragraph advises that Sunbeam sales for the first two months of '98 are substantially below Sunbeam sales for the first two months of 1997, or is that something about which you disagree?

A. It shows me the two numbers, 72 versus 143, so...

Q. It advises that the sales for the first two months of 1998 are about $72 million, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the sales for the first two months of 1997 were about 143-1/2 million,

Smith

correct?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. That's about, the sales for the first two months of 1998 are about half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, correct?

A. Yup.

Q. Would you agree with me that is a substantial decline in sales for a two-month period?

A. A substantial difference in sales, yup.

Q. It's a substantial negative variance, correct, substantial decline?

A. Decline, uhm-hmm.

Q. You agree with me that the decline is substantial, or are you disagreeing?

A. I guess I agree.

Q. Were you aware that Wall Street was expecting Sunbeam to accomplish sales in the first quarter of 1998 that were substantially greater than the sales that Sunbeam had accomplished in the first quarter of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

Smith

Q. As of mid-March 1998?

A. No.

Q. Did anyone report to you, sir, the information that we've just read in paragraph 6C of the Andersen comfort letter, that Sunbeam sales for the first two months of 1998 were about half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you first receive that report?

A. Don't remember.

Q. Was it before the close of the transaction by which Sunbeam acquired my client's interest in Coleman company?

A. Yes.

Q. From whom did you receive a report that Sunbeam sales in the first two months of 1998 were about half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997?

A. I don't know if I would use the word "report," but through the process with the team, both the leveraged finance team and others, that this issue came up.

Smith

Q. Well, who told you?

A. It's a big group so it is unclear to me, I can't remember who told me, but talked about it to several people.

Q. Do you recall that you first learned this information at a group meeting?

A. I can't recall how I or when I first learned it.

Q. So you may have learned it at a group meeting or it may have been given to you individually in some way?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall if it was given, this information was given to you in writing?

A. The -- no, I don't.

Q. But you do recall talking about it with others within Morgan Stanley before the closing of Sunbeam's acquisition of my client's interests in Coleman?

A. Yes.

Q. With whom within Morgan Stanley do you recall discussing the fact that Sunbeam sales in the first two months of the quarter were about half of what they had been in the first two months of '97?

Smith

A. Mike Hart for sure and maybe, probably others, but I don't recollect who those were.
Q. Do you recall discussing it with Miss Porat?
A. No.
Q. Do you believe you did not discuss this information with Miss Porat?
A. I believe I did not.
Q. Did you discuss it with Mr. Strong?
A. I believe I might have.
Q. Do you believe that Mr. Strong is the person who first advised you of this information?
A. No recollection.
Q. Do you believe it was Mr. Hart?
A. Don't recall.
Q. What do you recall discussing, what do you recall about your discussions with Mr. Hart concerning the decline in Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1998?
A. What I recall is the discussing what happened and the impact of this on their projections for 1998.

Smith

Q. When did these discussions take place?
A. After we got notice that their sales were $72 million for the first two months.
Q. And that is before the closing of the transactions, correct?
A. Before the closing of the transaction.
Q. Was it your belief you discussed this with Mr. Hart privately, or was it with a larger group?
A. Probably both.
Q. How many times do you recall discussing it with Mr. Hart?
A. Gee, it's tough. I guess more than several.
Q. Do you recall over what period of time you had these conversations, what length of period of time?
A. Probably days, but that's a hazy guess.
Q. You indicated that you probably discussed this with Mr. Hart both privately and with a larger group.

Smith

Who do you believe was involved in larger group discussions on this topic where both you and Mr. Hart participated?
A. Mr. Strong, maybe Mr. Burchill/Rankin, whoever was there at the time, probably somebody from credit, and then a -- I'm sure I kept my bosses involved too.
Q. Your bosses would be who during this time period?
A. Newhouse, Sipprelle and Rankowitz.
Q. I'm sorry, I missed the second name.
A. Mr. Sipprelle.
Q. What is Mr. Sipprelle's first name?
A. Dwight.
Q. And the third person?
A. Michael Rankowitz.
Q. Those are individuals to whom you reported during this time period?
A. Uhm-hmm. Yes.
Q. Tell me everything you can recall about your conversations on the subject of the decline of Sunbeam sales in the first two months of 1998?

Smith

A. I think the focus of the discussion was really what had happened, what was going to happen for the first quarter, and the implications of that for the full year. When I say that, achieving their projections for the, for 1998.
Q. What do you recall being said on each of those topics?
A. A lot of questions and then -- a lot of questions and it was basically with members of the team, that would be the big Morgan Stanley team, focus on trying to find these answers.
Q. You participated in meetings where people raised questions, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And the questions are what's happened so far in the first quarter that caused this, right?
A. Yup.
Q. What's the full quarter going to look like?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. Uhm-hmm.
Q. And what are the implications of this for 1998, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Why were you interested in those things?
A. Just as part of our continuing due diligence to make sure we understood what happened.
Q. Do you recall getting answers to the questions?
A. I recall getting, yes, some answers to the questions from the team.
Q. Who provided answers?
A. I think it was probably Mr. Hart, who was the -- where I got most of my information. And I don't know how, where did he get it. And he didn't get his directly, I think he was relating from the bigger Morgan Stanley team.
Q. Do you recall getting information from anybody other than Mr. Hart concerning answers to these questions?
A. No.

Smith

Q. What do you recall Mr. Hart reporting to you?
A. Let me go back here. I think probably talked to Strong as well, and in terms of what, what had happened here is that, is that the understanding was that they had some anticipated revenues that were going to come in in the third quarter -- excuse me, the third month of the quarter, the third month of the quarter, and that they would make up a lot of this shortfall then.
Q. That's what Mr. Strong reported to you?
A. I think that was a combination. We were doing a lot of this in groups of people. Change in composition. So it is very difficult to recall for you exactly who was at each and every one of these meetings.
Q. But your best recollection as you sit here is that Mr. Strong said the substance of this to you?
A. No. My recollection is that was kind -- that was bits of information that came out of the Morgan Stanley due diligence effort that would involve those two individuals at different times and different degrees of involvement as well as others.

Smith

Q. Did you attempt to speak directly with Sunbeam yourself?
A. I did not.
Q. Did you direct Mr. Hart to do that?
A. I did not.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Hart had any direct communications with Sunbeam?
A. I do not know.
Q. On this topic I'm focusing on?
A. I do not know.
Q. What do you recall Mr. Hart telling you relating to what had happened in the first two months of the quarter, what the expectations were for the rest of the quarter and what the implications were for '98?
A. It's tough for me to remember specifically what his contribution was to that. I think it's more generic, that the Morgan Stanley due diligence team came up with the answers that I described before, that the company was highly confident that they were going to make their -- were going to achieve results that were I guess ahead of last year, and that they felt that the rest of the year would come on pretty close to where the projections that they had provided us were going to be.

Q. Those are the conclusions that had being provided to you, correct?
A. Those were the conclusions provided, yes, by the company to the Morgan Stanley team.
Q. Do you know what factual foundation Morgan Stanley had for any of those propositions?
A. I think we had gotten some additional information from them, the company, showing how the projected sales for the rest of the quarter.
Q. Did you see that information yourself?
A. I think so.
Q. I thought you had indicated previously that you understood that Miss Porat was assigned to conduct an inquiry

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

relating to some of those issues.

Did I misunderstand you?

A. Did I say that? I think that if she was, she would have been part of the overall Morgan Stanley team. Again I can't overemphasize that it's a -- it was a huge commitment of resources by the part of the firm. At any given time there were 10 or 20 people working on it at different levels of seniority.

Certainly Ruth was one of the more senior people involved and so at various times she might be in the lead, and sometimes it's Mr. Strong or others.

Q. With respect to the question what had happened in the first two months of the quarter, were you told by anyone in the Morgan Stanley team that the primary reason for the shortfall in January and February in sales was that Sunbeam had accelerated first quarter revenue into the fourth quarter of 1998?

A. No. What we were told was that they were trying to sell more, more of these grills, and accelerated the sales faster to get the jump on the competition.

Q. I didn't ask about the reason for doing it, but I asked whether you were told that the reason why Sunbeam sales in January and February were so far below 1997 levels was that Sunbeam had accelerated the sale of products into the fourth quarter of 1997.

A. No.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the March 19 letter, CPH Exhibit 17 which you have in front of you.

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. To page 4, paragraph 6B. Let me read the first sentence for you. "For the period from December 29, 1997 through March 16, 1998 consolidated net sales decreased as compared to the corresponding period of the preceding year, primarily due to the company's new early buy program for outdoor grills which accelerated outdoor grill sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997."

Do you see that statement?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Smith

Q. At any time prior to the close of Sunbeam's acquisition of my client's interests in Coleman company, were you advised of the facts contained in that sentence?

A. Yes.

Q. And who advised you of that?

A. Somebody from the team.

Q. What were you told?

A. That the company had accelerated the sales of grills to capture market share.

Q. Accelerated the sale of grills into the four quarter of 1997, correct?

A. 1997, yeah.

Q. And that the effect of that was to diminish the sales the company had realized in the first two months of 1998?

A. Yes.

Q. You don't know who told you that?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if it was part of a group meeting?

A. No, I don't recall.

Q. Do you know if it was Mr. Strong

Smith

who told you that?

A. Don't recall.

Q. Do you know if it was Mr. Tyree?

A. Don't recall.

Q. Miss Porat?

A. Don't recall.

Q. Mr. Hart?

A. Don't recall.

Q. Did the fact that Sunbeam's sales had declined so substantially in the first two months of 1998, sir, as a result of activities that resulted in accelerating the sale of grills in the fourth quarter of 1997, cause you to have any questions relating to the turn-around claims that Mr. Dunlap was making?

A. No.

Q. Why is that?

A. That was because that's one bit of information, and to look at it in the overall context of what the company was doing, their performance, where they -- and what that looked like was going to happen in the rest of '98 is all part of the decision.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. Did learning that Sunbeam had engaged in activities to enhance its 1997 revenues cause you to believe that Morgan Stanley needed to make further inquiry into Sunbeam's turn-around claims?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. Focus of our inquiry was to test the, or to find out more information about the use of these early sales to enhance, you know, market share and total revenues of the grills. That was the emphasis of the inquiry.

Q. Did you think this was potentially good news?

A. Didn't know enough.

Q. You didn't necessarily conclude that the decline in Sunbeam sales in the first two months of 1998 was a negative development?

A. I didn't know enough. And again you want to look at this in the context of all of the information we had.

Q. In what way would a 50 percent decline in sales of the first two months of 1998 be a potentially positive development for Sunbeam?

Smith

A. I don't know about positive. You asked me if it was potentially negative. It could be a host of things that are going on.

Again, I think you have to look at all of the facts you have available to you to come up with any view. Very difficult I think to pick out one item and then make that be the linchpin of everything you are trying to do.

Q. Is it your testimony, sir, that when you were advised that Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1997 were half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, and that the reason for that was that Sunbeam had accelerated -- did I misspeak?

MR CLARE: I think you might have said 1997 in both parts of your question.

Q. Let me start over.

Is it your testimony, sir, that when you learned that Sunbeam's sales in the first two months of 1998 were about half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, and that the reason for that was that Sunbeam had accelerated sales from the first quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of 1997, you thought that was potentially a positive piece of information relating to Sunbeam's --

Smith

MR. CLARE: I object to the form, and also to the extent it misstates his prior testimony.

Q. -- performance and financial condition?

A. Well, your first question before was did I view that negatively. I don't think I said I viewed it positively. Again it is just another bit of information that comes out in this due diligence process, and you put that together with all of the other information that we had. And again emphasize the "we" because we had a big group working on this, coming at it from many angles.

Q. Putting aside the prior testimony, I'm asking a standalone question here.

Smith

Is it your testimony, sir, that when you learned that Sunbeam sales for the first two months of 1997 were about half -- excuse me, for the first two months of 1998 were about half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, that the reason for that was that Sunbeam had accelerated first quarter sales back into the prior fiscal period, that you thought that was potentially a good thing for Sunbeam?

A. I wouldn't characterize it. Didn't even approach it as a potentially good thing, just a potential let's find out what goes on.

Q. Because it was a potential concern, right?

A. No, because I wanted to find out what was going on.

Q. Were you concerned?

A. It could have been good, it could have been bad.

Q. Did you think it was potentially a negative development?

A. As is many things, it could be potentially good, potentially bad, just goes

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

back into the mosaic of what we are trying to find out here and ascertain what is happening with the company.

Q. So you agree with me that when you learned this information, you recognize that it was potentially a bad piece of information, correct?

A. I didn't know enough. It could have been good, it could have been bad.

Q. That is my question.

Were you -- did you know?

A. Didn't know enough at the time.

Q. To know whether it was either potentially good or potentially bad?

A. Not on the basis of this.

Q. So why did you want to make further inquiry?

A. To find out.

Q. Because it might be potentially bad, correct?

A. And it might be potentially good. My job is to find out what is going on.

Q. You wanted to find out what was going on with respect to this particular information because it was something potentially negative with respect to Sunbeam's --

Smith

A. Could have been potentially negative.

Q. -- condition and performance, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection, asked and answered.

A. Could have been potentially negative.

Q. I'm sorry, could have been potentially what?

A. Whatever you said, negative.

Q. Negative. While we're waiting for a document, sir, did you wait for Mr. Hart to obtain further information relating to this so you could understand the potential significance of this disclosure?

A. We talked about it and agreed, yes, and asked him to find out as much as he could. And he wanted to do that as well, anyway.

Q. So you did ask Mr. Hart to find out more information relating to this for you, correct?

Smith

A. Well, when you say for me, for the firm and do what he could, yes.

Q. I'm trying to understand if you spoke to Mr. Hart and said we need to get more information about this, asking him to do that?

A. You have to remember I met with Mr. Hart like 50 times a day for weeks on this thing, so I'm sure this would come up as part of the conversation.

Q. Was the information, was this information consistent with -- let me ask a foundation question.

Had you received any information prior to the time you learned that Sunbeam sales for the first two months were about half that they had been the prior fiscal year, about how Sunbeam was doing in the first quarter of 1998?

A. I don't recall. Don't think so.

Q. Do you think this was the first information you received from Sunbeam relating to its performance in 1998?

Smith

A. I believe so.

Q. When you learned it, did you believe that you had been in some way misled by Sunbeam management concerning how things were going in the first portion of 1998?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you think that Sunbeam management should have advised you of these facts earlier?

A. I had no opinion.

Q. Did anyone express the view that Sunbeam, anyone within Morgan Stanley express the view that Sunbeam management should have advised Morgan Stanley of these facts earlier in the process?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam issued a press release on March 19 relating to the status of its first quarter sales?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you have any involvement in the events relating to the issuance of that press release?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. The only involvement I may have had was, was either on the phone or walking in and out when a phone call was going on to discuss this.

Q. What phone call are you referring to?

A. A internal phone call.

Q. Who was on that phone call?

A. Members of the team. I was not directly on the call, I was walking in and out, I had other stuff going on.

Q. This occurred before the issuance of the March 19 press release?

A. It is all part and parcel of that.

Q. Do you know if anyone other than Morgan Stanley personnel were on this phone call you heard part of?

A. No, I think it was only Morgan Stanley people.

Q. Do you have any recollection of hearing Sunbeam -- let me ask a more general question.

Did you have any communications yourself directly with Sunbeam management relating to what had happened in the first quarter of 1998 prior to the issuance of the March 19 press release?

Smith

A. No.

Q. Can you identify any of the individuals who are on the Morgan Stanley team who were part of this phone call?

A. Not with a hundred percent certainty.

Q. Who did you believe was involved?

A. I would have imagined that it would have been Mike Hart, John Tyree, Bill Strong, probably Tom Burchill/Rankin, maybe somebody from the credit department.

Q. Did you make any statements during the phone call?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. What do you remember hearing discussed?

A. I remember hearing discussed, and again in and out kind of what we were talking about, what happened, what's the impact of this for the year.

Q. Was there discussion about whether the company would issue a press release that you heard?

Smith

A. Yes.

Q. What do you remember hearing?

A. That should the company issue a press release and what would be the impact of that.

Q. So you participated in at least a portion of a conversation where there was internal discussion at Morgan Stanley concerning whether Sunbeam should be asked to issue a press release?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question, misstates his testimony about his participation.

A. Again I'm in and out. I do think that the concept of a press release was mentioned. I don't know if they were responding to some thoughts that Sunbeam had, some thoughts that they had or anything. Again, I'm not a good witness on that phone call.

Q. What do you remember being said by the participants in that phone call concerning the pros and cons of a press release and the potential impact?

A. I know that they discussed the, discussed the press release, but it wasn't there long enough or consistently enough to pick up any of the pros or cons.

Q. What about the potential impact?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. Did you see a copy of --

Let me show you what has previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 14. It's a copy of the March 19 press release that I have been referring to.

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. Take a moment to read it.

Did you see this press release when it was issued, sir?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Did you see it prior to its issuance?

A. I may have seen a draft.

Q. What do you remember about the possibility of seeing a draft of this press release?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014917

Smith

A. Not much. The draft just before it was finalized, it was circulated among the team members.

Q. Did you offer comments to anyone concerning the draft?

A. I don't think so. But again this is from Sunbeam, right? This is a Sunbeam press release?

Q. Yes.

A. I offered no comments to Sunbeam on this.

Q. Do you recall from whom you received the draft?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall any discussions within Morgan Stanley relating to the draft press release?

A. No.

Q. Did you offer comments to anyone relating to press release of any sort of, whether it was a suggestion for a change to it or any other observation about it?

A. No. And again this is a Sunbeam press release, not a Morgan Stanley press release.

Smith

Q. I'm asking not only for comments you may have had concerning the language, but observations you had about it.

A. No.

Q. Did you think the press release adequately disclosed the information that Morgan Stanley was aware of relating to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance when you read it?

MR. CLARE: Objection to foundation. Go ahead, you can answer.

A. That is up to Sunbeam, that is their statement, have no opinion.

Q. My question to you, sir, is do you think this press release adequately disclosed the information, let me start with you, that you were aware of relating to the status of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?

A. Why don't you repeat your question again.

Q. Do you think the Sunbeam March 19, 1998 press release --

A. This thing?

Smith

Q. Correct -- fairly disclosed the information that you, Bram Smith, were aware of on March 19, 1998 concerning the status of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?

A. I think I want to take a break. I'll answer that later.

Q. No, you have to answer the question before you take a break.

A. No comment then.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Keep the camera rolling, we are still on the record.

MR. CLARE: The witness has asked to take a break. We're going to go off the record.

MR. MARKOWSKI: We're not going off the record. It is my record and this camera is going to roll until he comes back.

MR. CLARE: Okay, suit yourself.

(Witness and counsel leave the conference room at this time.)

Q. Are you prepared to answer my question, Mr. Smith?

THE WITNESS: Please repeat it.

(Record read.)

Smith

THE WITNESS: And what did I say before?

(Record read.)

A. So I said I had no opinion.

Q. Is it your testimony, sir, that you have no opinion concerning whether the March 19, 1998 press release fairly disclosed the information concerning Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance that you personally were aware of?

A. Yes.

Q. The press release contains no statement whatsoever that Sunbeam sales in January and February were below to any extent the sales in January and February of 1997, correct?

A. Yup.

Q. Contains no statement that Sunbeam had accelerated revenue from the first quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of 1997, does it?

MR. CLARE: I object. The document speaks for itself. It is a waste of time. You can answer.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. It does not relate to that.
Q. It doesn't disclose that, does it?
A. No.
Q. Those are facts you were aware of, correct, on March 19, 1998?
A. Those are facts that I was aware of.
Q. Those were facts that you were aware might be potentially significant to Morgan Stanley, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection, argumentative and lack of foundation. You can answer.
A. Those were, as we discussed before, things we wanted to find out more about.
Q. Let me show you, sir --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Do you want to change the tape?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Yes. The time is 2:06, this completes tape number 2. Thank you.
(Pause in the proceedings.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 2:07, this begins tape number 3 of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Bram Smith.

Smith

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Mr. Smith, I show you a one-page document that we'll marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit Number 152. It bears Bate numbers LAB 43.
(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 152, document bearing Bates number LAB 43, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. You testified earlier, sir, that you believe you received some information from Sunbeam relating to sales for the balance of the first quarter of 1998; is that correct?
A. I think I said for the balance of the quarter.
Q. If I didn't say that, that is what I meant. I'm sorry.
A. Okay.
Q. Is this the document?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you receive this?
A. From the team.

Smith

Q. Do you know when you received it in relationship to Sunbeam's press release?
A. My guess is before.
Q. Did you participate in any discussions within Morgan Stanley relating to the information contained on CPH Exhibit 152?
A. I believe I did.
Q. With whom did you discuss it?
A. Again members of the greater due diligence team.
Q. Can you identify any particular people who you have a recollection of discussing Exhibit 152 with?
A. Aside from Mike Hart, the people come and go, so no.
Q. What do you recall concerning the discussions that you had with Morgan Stanley personnel relating to the information contained on CPH Exhibit 152?
A. The discussion was seeing how they had performed and where the sales were coming from to get to their -- to exceed last year's numbers.
Q. What conclusions did you personally

Smith

come to after receiving CPH Exhibit 152?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you conclude, based on your review of CPH Exhibit 152, that Sunbeam would realize all of the sales listed on this page?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you understand that $86 million of sales listed on this page as of the date of this document had not even been ordered yet by Sunbeam customers?
A. I'm sorry, did you ask if I was aware of that?
Q. Yes. Were you aware that $86 million of sales listed on this page had not even been ordered yet by Sunbeam customers?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you come to any conclusions after reviewing this page, concerning how probable it was that Sunbeam would exceed its first quarter 1997 sales?
A. No.
Q. Were you able to come to any conclusion after receiving CPH Exhibit 152, concerning how likely it was that Sunbeam

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0194919

Smith

would exceed first quarter 1997 sales?
A. No.
Q. Did you ask for additional information?
A. I don't believe I asked for any additional information.
Q. If you couldn't come to any conclusion after reviewing CPH Exhibit 152, sir, why didn't you ask for additional information?
A. You have got to remember that I'm one of a large group and that there were other people who were taking the lead on investigating this, talking to the company and then comment back to the group, and that wasn't me.
Q. So is the reason why you didn't ask for additional information, the fact that you didn't consider it to be your responsibility to pursue this?
A. No. The reason I didn't pursue it was other people were taking the lead on this, had more day-to-day contact with the client.

Smith

Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley sought additional information from Sunbeam, beyond the information contained on CPH Exhibit 152, concerning the likelihood that Sunbeam would exceed first quarter 1997 sales?
A. I didn't have any firsthand knowledge of that.
Q. You don't know one way or the other whether Sunbeam pursued any additional information on that subject?
MR. CLARE: Or whether Morgan Stanley.
A. Or whether Morgan Stanley.
Q. Sorry, I misspoke.
You don't have any knowledge, sitting here today, whether after receiving CPH Exhibit 152 Morgan Stanley pursued any additional information from Sunbeam in order to allow Morgan Stanley to form an opinion concerning the likelihood of Sunbeam exceeding first quarter 1997 sales in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I know that there were subsequent phone calls with the company. I was not part of it.

Smith

Q. What do you know about those phone calls?
A. That they were had to follow up on this.
Q. Do you know whether those phone calls took place before or after the press release?
A. I think it was before the press release.
Q. Do you know who from Morgan Stanley was involved in those phone calls?
A. Again a subset of the team.
Q. You don't know any of the people?
A. Not directly, not specifically.
Q. Do you know with whom they spoke?
A. No.
Q. Do you know, other than telephone calls with Sunbeam management before the press release was issued concerning CPH Exhibit 152, Morgan Stanley received any other documentary evidence concerning Sunbeam's sales prospects for the balance of the first quarter of 1998?

Smith

A. I am not aware.
Q. Did you ever see any?
A. No.
Q. Is CPH Exhibit Number 152 the sole piece of documentary information you received from Sunbeam relating to its sales prospects for the first quarter of 1998?
A. To the best of my memory.
Q. Did anyone within Morgan Stanley, sir, to your knowledge express doubts concerning whether Sunbeam was likely to exceed first quarter 1997 sales results in the first quarter of 1998?
A. No.
Q. Did anyone express an opinion on that subject one way or the other to you?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. Do you remember anyone saying they had concluded that it was probable or likely that Sunbeam would be able to exceed first quarter 1997 sales results in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't remember any individual

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16div-022025

Smith

saying that.
Q. Did you ask for assurances on that subject from anyone within Morgan Stanley?
A. Well, again the team was coming up with the answers and that was just part of, that was part of the process to talk to the company about their numbers and their -- and what they were, how competent, how comfortable they were in telling us this was going to happen.
Q. My question to you, sir, is whether you asked the team or any particular person on the team whether Morgan Stanley had reached a conclusion that it was probable or likely that Sunbeam would exceed its first quarter 1997 sales results in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't remember asking any specific member of the team.
Q. Do you remember asking the people generally for their view on that?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you ask that question?
A. As part of this process.

Smith

Q. Do you remember a specific occasion where you asked that question?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember a particular meeting where you asked that question?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember whether you asked that question before or after the press release was issued?
A. Prior to the press release.
Q. Do you remember someone responding to your question?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Do you remember receiving a response to your question?
A. I remember people talking about the issue.
Q. Do you remember whether as a group, the Morgan Stanley team reached a consensus that it was probable or likely that Sunbeam would exceed first quarter 1997 sales results?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember that in fact was

Smith

the conclusion reached?
A. I -- that's my recollection.
Q. But you don't remember any particular person expressing that opinion to you, correct?
A. I do not.
Q. Did you personally have enough information that would permit you to form that opinion?
A. No, again I was part of the bigger group and not directly involved with pursuing this avenue of inquiry.
Q. So you personally didn't know one way or the other whether that was a reasonable conclusion, correct?
A. Did not have any firsthand knowledge of that and was relying on greater due diligence effort of the firm.
Q. Did you offer anyone your views concerning the likelihood of Sunbeam exceeding first quarter 1997 sales results?
A. I did not because I was too far removed from the direct contact with the company to go over this particular, you know, area of inquiry.

Smith

Q. Do you recall that there was a meeting of the Leveraged Finance Committee on March 20, 1998 to discuss whether approval would be given to underwrite the senior loan of Sunbeam?
A. Do I remember the meeting then?
Q. Yes.
A. I remember we had a meeting, I don't remember for sure when it was.
Q. I'm going to show you, Mr. Smith, what we have previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 76. The cover page is a memorandum dated March 19, 1998 from R.B. Smith to Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee, subject Sunbeam, and it is a document that bears Bates number Morgan Stanley 25829 through 25886.
I'd like you to look at this document sufficiently, Mr. Smith, to tell me whether you have ever seen it before.
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Can you tell me what it is?
A. It is the Commitment Committee memo that we, that the leveraged finance, the firm had put together in acquiring or requesting credit approval from the Leveraged Finance Committee.

Q. And the credit approval that is the subject of this material is the senior loan of Sunbeam, correct?

A. Is the senior loan, yes.

Q. You're the author of the March 19 cover memo, correct?

A. I am the sender of this, yes.

Q. And your memorandum advises that there will be a Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting regarding Sunbeam on Friday, March 20 at 7:30 a.m., correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did that meeting in fact take place?

A. I believe it did. Let me say it again. It did take place. Can I say it took place on the 20th at 7:30, I don't remember.

Q. Did you attend the meeting?

A. I did.

Q. Now, there are a list of people on the bottom of that memorandum under the heading Distribution.

Smith

Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. Can you tell me who those individuals are?

A. Starting at the top?

Q. Yes.

A. Dwight Sipprelle and Mike Rankowitz were co-head of high yield sales and trading. Bill Kourakos was I think at the time the deputy head of high yield capital markets. Rick Felix was the head of the credit department. You have myself. Steve Newhouse was at the time the head of high yield capital markets. Leslie Bradford was the deputy head of the credit department. Joel Feldmann was a senior member of the high yield capital markets group. S. Brown, I don't remember that. Ralph Pellecchio was a senior lawyer. Steve Munger was one of the senior M&A professionals. Terry Mequid ran IBD. Bill Sanders was his deputy. Ann Short, I don't remember what function she might have had. And then there is Bill Strong.

Smith

Q. Are the members of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee included among that list?

A. Yes.

Q. Who among this group was on the Leveraged Finance Committee?

A. To the best of my recollection it was Sipprelle, Rankowitz, Kourakos, Felix, Smith, Newhouse were the core members.

In addition to that you would have maybe Munger and -- I'm sorry, not Munger. Meguid and maybe Ralph.

Q. Why do you distinguish between those two people and the people you referred to as the core group?

A. Because they would come periodically to larger transactions or harder transactions or something. They wouldn't come all the time. Whereas the first five or six that I mentioned there were there all the time.

Q. Why were the other individuals included on the distribution list here?

Smith

A. Because they were participating. Normally the way -- I don't know specifically why these fellows were, but normally other people would be, receive copies because they were going to participate in this particular, in a particular Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting.

For example, Bill Strong doesn't show up all the time, but he would show up if it was his client.

Q. Mr. Strong is somebody who is on the Sunbeam team, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. There is no one else on this list that was part of the Sunbeam engagement team, is there?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Why then a larger group than the core group for purposes of this particular Leveraged Finance Committee meeting?

A. This was not unusual to have other people there, so I can't comment other than as a matter of fact we'd have additional

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

faces there.

Leslie Bradford, for example, the deputy head of credit, was there most of the time anyway, whether Rick was there or not.

Q. Who made the decision whether to add additional people in this particular Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting?

A. I don't know. This was pretty much boilerplate.

Q. Were you instructed to include additional people?

A. I was not to the best of my recollection.

Q. Did you make the choice?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. Was there something about the size or nature of this loan that made it one where a group larger than the core group would be involved in the decision-making process?

A. I would say that there were -- I don't think it was size per se that got everybody's attention. Just a very, very -- what's the word, kind of a -- it was a deal that had a lot of visibility outside and inside.

Smith

Q. Were all of these people then going to be responsible for voting yes or no with respect to this proposed credit arrangement?

A. Not all the people on the distribution.

Q. Who would have voting rights?

A. Sipprelle, Rankowitz, Kourakos, Felix, Smith and Newhouse. And then if Meguid showed up, he would have a vote too.

Q. Do you remember what the vote was with respect to this particular loan, the Sunbeam loan?

A. The vote here was unanimous to go forward.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting on the first page of this document?

A. I do.

Q. Whose is it?

A. Mine.

Q. Do you recall when you put this handwriting on this document?

A. I think I put it on the document

Smith

during the meeting.

Q. These are notes that you took of things that were said during the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting?

A. Notes might be too strong a word. Doodling.

Q. But these are writings you added to this document --

A. Yes.

Q. -- during the course of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting relating to the review of the Sunbeam senior loan?

A. Yes.

Q. And you believe they reflect things that were being said during the course of the meeting?

A. No.

Q. These are things that you wrote for what reason then?

A. I think it would be the combination, things that I was thinking about, things that might have been said, things to follow up on, reminders to myself.

Smith

Q. Do you recall that -- what, tell me what these notes refer to.

A. I don't know. Don Uzzi I think is somebody from the company. I don't know why that came up.

Q. It says underneath his name "VP sales"?

A. God, you have better eyes than I do. Yup. Then these look like ranges of numbers. So that might have been the street estimates and then in terms of what their first sales were going to be.

I don't know what the addition on the other side, the 21, 15 and 10 is. That could be some things that had to do with these. And then the rest of it I don't know.

Q. The first entry at the top that is circled is the number 112.5, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the word next to that is the word "short"?

A. That is what it looks like.

Q. Do you recall that that entry relates to the, to how short street expectations for sales Sunbeam was as of March 20?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. No, I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall that at the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting on March 20 there was discussion relating to the fact that Sunbeam sales for January and February were substantially below the sales for January and February of 1997?

A. I believe that was discussed.

Q. Who made that point?

A. Oh, I think it was -- I don't know who specifically made it. Somebody from the team would have brought that up.

Q. Do you recall if it was Mr. Strong who made that statement?

A. I do not recall who brought it up.

Q. Do you recall if it was you?

A. I believe it was not me.

Q. Do you recall if it was Mr. Hart?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Is there anyone else on this list that it could have been in your view other than you, Mr. Hart or Mr. Strong?

Smith

A. This list here on the front page may not have been all the people that attended. There may have been other folks from other disciplines that were there, for example, like John Tyree or the credit person who did the work. So I don't remember everybody who was there, so necessarily who brought it up and/or what type of discussion followed and how many people participated in that discussion.

Q. But you do recall that the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee was advised that Sunbeam sales in January and February of '98 were substantially below --

A. Yes.

Q. -- Sunbeam sales for January of '97?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that they were advised that the primary reason for that was that Sunbeam had accelerated the sale of first quarter product into the fourth quarter of 1997?

A. I don't remember exactly how it was described to the committee.

Smith

Q. Do you remember whether any statements were made to the committee to explain the reason why Sunbeam sales in the first two months of 1998 were so far below 1997 sales results?

A. I remember a lot of conversation about it. I think that some of the causes were discussed, one of them being the sale of the grills earlier, as well as expecting sales at the last half of the month here to get them close -- to get them above, excuse me, where they thought they, where they were last year.

Q. Now, there is a list of names at the top of the second page.

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. That's a memorandum to Leveraged Finance Committee meeting?

A. Yes.

Q. Leveraged Finance Committee dated March 20, 1998, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall if any of the individuals listed on the top portion of this memorandum participated in the Leveraged Finance Committee's meeting?

Smith

A. I don't -- I don't remember specifically who's there from this group. As I mentioned before, it was a bigger, a better attended meeting than, than the norm because of the visibility. So I think there were members from other groups there. I'm pretty sure there are members from other groups there, but I couldn't specifically tell you who was and who wasn't.

Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Strong participated?

A. Yes, he did. I do remember him participating.

Q. Do you remember if he was there in person?

A. I thought he was there in person, but I'm not a hundred percent sure.

Q. He might have participated by telephone?

A. He could have participated by conference call.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. Do you remember if Mr. Strong was asked for his recommendation that the company proceed with the senior loan?

A. Mr. Strong, whether he was asked or not, advocated going forward with the senior loan.

Q. Do you have any memory of Mr. Tyree being present?

A. I thought he was also.

Q. Now, if this meeting took place on March 20, it's the day after Sunbeam's March 19 press release, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall if Mr. Tyree made any statement -- let me ask a more general question before we get to this particular meeting.

Did Mr. Tyree or anyone else, sir, ever advise you that Arthur Andersen had taken the position that the statements contained in Sunbeam's March 19 press release were incomplete and misleading?

A. You're question is did Mr. Tyree share that with me?

Smith

MR. MARKOWSKI: Would you read that question back, please.

(Record read.)

A. No.

Q. You have never heard that from anyone?

A. No, this is the first time I'm hearing it.

Q. Do you think it was appropriate that the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee was advised of the performance of Sunbeam in January and February of 1998 in connection with evaluating the proposed loan to Sunbeam?

A. I think it was appropriate in the context of a, the overall due diligence and in this part of the underwriting.

Q. Do you recall whether there was any discussion at the Leveraged Finance Committee's meeting concerning how quickly Morgan Stanley would be able to syndicate its position in the Sunbeam loan?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked to address that?

Smith

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall who asked you to address that?

A. No, but it would have -- not specifically, but it would have been one of the senior members of the committee.

Q. One of the core group members?

A. One of the core group.

Q. Do you recall what you said?

A. My best recollection is that we thought it would take six to eight weeks, which is pretty standard, to syndicate this once we, once we got going.

Q. That is the same target date you gave me earlier, correct, syndicating the position by the first part of May?

A. I think we said the last part of May. Yes.

Q. That was your view at that point in time?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And you expressed that view to the members of the committee?

A. I did.

Smith

Q. Did anyone during the course of the Leveraged Finance Committee's meeting raise the question of deferring or delaying the decision?

A. The credit decision?

Q. Yes.

A. Not that I remember.

Q. Did anyone raise a question concerning whether the timing of the financing could be delayed so that the closing would occur later?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did anyone express any reservations about proceeding with the loan?

A. The vote again was unanimous, so I think the committee was on board to go forward.

Q. Other than the final vote, did anyone express any questions or concerns about proceeding that reflected in your view a reservation about the decision?

A. There were plenty of questions. I wouldn't classify any of them as any reservations.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. Did anyone express any concerns concerning the adequacy of the March 19 press release as a disclosure to Sunbeam shareholders?

A. I don't think that came up.

Q. After, sir, you became aware of the substantial decline in Sunbeam sales in January and February of 1998, did you raise a question concerning the possibility of deferring the financing to a later point?

A. I don't know.

Q. You didn't go back to Mr. Strong, for example, and say perhaps we should consider delaying the timing of the loan to Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. Did anyone else to your knowledge make, raise such a question?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any reservation, sir, about proceeding with the Sunbeam loan?

A. No.

Q. Did you give any thought yourself, whether you expressed it to anyone or not, whether it might be advisable to delay the financing until Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 results were known?

Smith

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because we the firm, big team, had done the due diligence and the firm with all of those resources employed was comfortable that this was the, this was a prudent decision. As part of that, but not the front line, I agreed with the decision.

Q. You would think it was a prudent decision whether or not Sunbeam in fact was able to exceed its first quarter 1997 sales results in the first quarter of 1998?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question. I'm not sure I understand what you're asking.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I want to make sure I'm clear on this because it is an important question.

Q. Did you think, sir, that the loan to Sunbeam was a prudent decision even if it turned out to be the case that Sunbeam failed to exceed its 1997 sales results in the first quarter of 1998?

A. I think whether the net exceeded or was off a little bit was just one of many factors and wouldn't have changed anybody's opinion about whether to go forward.

Q. Well, you knew based on the information we see on CPH Exhibit 152, that Sunbeam had a lot of work to do, right, in order to exceed first quarter 1997 sales results?

Is that a fair statement?

MR CLARE: Objection.

A. Sales?

Q. Yes.

MR CLARE: Object to the form of the question.

Q. A lot of orders to get and a lot of sales to make.

A. They had to make some sales to beat last year's.

Q. And they had about 10 days to get that done, right?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Smith

Q. Did you know it was uncertain at that point whether Sunbeam would have in fact exceeded its first quarter 1997 sales results in the first quarter of 1998?

A. First of all, I wasn't part of the phone call of checking with the company; and, number two, everything's uncertain so who knows.

It was represented to us, it was represented to members of the team that weren't on the phone call, by people who were on the phone call, that the company had every anticipation of achieving the numbers that they had on that piece of paper.

Q. Would you then have prepared to endorse going forward with the Sunbeam loan on March 20, sir, if you knew that Sunbeam would fail to exceed its first quarter 1997 sales results?

MR. CLARE: Objection, incomplete hypothetical and calls for speculation. You can answer if you can.

A. Tough to -- you can't make that call in a vacuum. You have to get more information.

Q. What more information?
A. Why, how far were they off, what's going on, those types of issues.
Q. What if they would have been $20 million short?
A. Again it's just a -- out of context like that it's -- that doesn't mean much.
Q. What if they would have been $20 million short and the primary reason that they were $20 million short was that they had accelerated first quarter 1998 sales into the fourth quarter of 1997, under those circumstances would you have been comfortable endorsing the senior loan to Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Same objections.
A. Hypothetical, it's -- I don't have a view.
Q. You don't have any ability to offer a view on that?
A. No.
Q. Did you consider that possibility that Sunbeam might be $20 million short?
A. Based on what the team had found out from the company, that while always a possibility, didn't think it was anywhere near a probability.

Smith

Q. But if Sunbeam -- your view was even though it was uncertain whether Sunbeam would exceed its first quarter 1997 sales in the first quarter of 1998, you were still comfortable recommending to the management of Morgan Stanley making this loan, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 16.
A. Page 16 is it?
Q. Of the March 20 memo.
A. Yup.
Q. You see a listing at the top of this page with a heading Coleman Synergy, Synergies Rationale 118 million?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you see several bullet points below that heading?
A. I do.
Q. What is your understanding of what those bullet points represent?

Smith

A. Give me a second to refresh my memory.
Q. Sure.
A. These look like -- the 118 looks like it is the synergy number and then the bullet points below that, for at least the Coleman situation, are specific actions or events that were going to happen, that the company was going to take to realize the net.
Q. So these are the synergies that this document reflects Sunbeam will realize upon the acquisition of Coleman company.
Is that what this is intended to describe to the members of the Leveraged Finance Committee?
A. Yes.
Q. And this is the -- below that $118 million total on page 16 is the detail concerning the actions or restructuring events that will generate the $118 million in synergies?
A. I wouldn't say the detail, but bullet points where they think the savings/synergies is going to come from.

Smith

Q. And these were the synergies being presented to the Leveraged Finance Committee as those that would pertain to the Coleman acquisition, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if any of the items that are identified, the bullet point items identified there originated with Coleman company management?
A. I wasn't part to any of that. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know if any of the ideas listed there originated with my client, Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
A. No, no idea.
Q. Do you know if any of the items listed on the top of page 116 concerning potential Coleman synergies originated with McAndrews & Forbes?
A. No idea.
Q. Or Mr. Perelman personally?
A. No idea.
Q. Mr. Gittes?
A. No idea.

Q. Or Jerry Levin?
A. No idea.
Q. I think I mispronounced his name. Jerry Levin.
Do you know who Jerry Levin is?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And in March of 1998, the first part of 1998 he was the chief executive officer of Coleman company, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did you ever have any discussions with Jerry Levin concerning potential synergies?
A. Not until after he was in charge of the Sunbeam.
Q. After he became chief executive officer of Sunbeam you had some discussions with him about synergies?
A. A variety of discussions.
Q. But prior to the funding of the senior loan to Sunbeam, you had no discussions with Mr. Levin --
A. No discussions.
Q. -- concerning potential synergies?

Smith

A. I never met the man.
Q. Did you have discussions with any member from Coleman company regarding potential synergies before the senior loan closed?
A. I did not.
Q. Anybody with Coleman (Parent)?
A. I did not.
Q. Or McAndrews & Forbes?
A. I didn't.
Q. Do you remember anyone at the Leveraged Finance Committee -- excuse me.
Do you remember anyone at the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee's meeting saying that with respect to the potential Coleman synergies, we're relying on Coleman management for those concepts or the values associated with them?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall there being discussion at the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee's March 20 meeting concerning the fact that the funds raised through the convertible debenture offering had been increased from 500 million to $750 million?

Smith

A. I think it came up during the meeting.
Q. You have expressed the view that that was a positive development with respect to the security that the senior lenders had, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that, is that view also expressed at the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee's meeting?
A. I don't know about directly, but if there is less debt and more junior capital, that's always, that's always a positive from the lender's point of view.
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 2 of this memo.
A. Page 2.
Q. It has Bates number MS 25831.
Do you see that?
A. Uhm-hmm, yes.
Q. There is a box at the bottom, it says "Expected economics."

Smith

Do you see that?
A. Uhm-hmm.
Q. Above that there is a statement in typed text that reads "We're asking the committee to approve underwriting 2 billion in senior secured credit facilities"?
A. Yes.
Q. And underneath that there are two boxes, one with the word "April" handwritten in and then an arrow to another box that has the word "mid-May," the words "mid-May" written in it.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your handwriting?
A. Yes.
Q. What is that a reference to?
A. The syndication timetable.
Q. And does April mean?
A. Starting April.
Q. What does mid-May refer to?
A. Mid-May when it finishes up.
Q. And that would be the point by which Morgan Stanley's participation in the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Sunbeam loan would be reduced to the 50 to $60 million range that you referred to previously?

A. Yes, that is when the syndication should be completed.

Q. Now, there is several notes made in or around the box that is labeled "Expected Economics."

Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. Are those your notes again?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Can you interpret them for me?

A. The -- I think this was trying to go ahead and come up with or play with how much in terms of fees that Morgan Stanley would make for the, for entering into this underwriting.

Q. And what does this show?

A. Well, let's see. I think in the memo it shows 5-1/2 to 6. My handwriting is 6 to 9. For whatever reason I had 5 -- 8-1/2 to 9-1/2, just doing, playing around with the numbers in terms of the total compensation for us for taking 40 percent of this loan.

Smith

Q. Does that include, does Morgan Stanley receive additional fees when the loan is syndicated?

A. No, no.

Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what we're marking as CPH Deposition Exhibit Number 153. It's another version, another copy of your March 19 memorandum and another copy of the March 20 memorandum to the Leveraged Finance Committee. It bears Bates number Morgan Stanley 18885 through 19 -- excuse me -- 18942.

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 153, document bearing Bates number Morgan Stanley 18885 through 18942, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. My question, sir, is whether you can identify the handwriting on the first page of this exhibit?

A. I cannot.

Q. It is not your handwriting?

A. Not mine.

Smith

Q. Not any portion of it?

A. I haven't looked through every page, but certainly not the first page.

Q. I'm just talking about the first page.

Did you attend any -- did you understand Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in connection with the marketing of the convertible debentures?

A. Yes.

Q. Morgan Stanley was the sole underwriting with respect to the convertible debentures, correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. And a road show was held to assist Sunbeam in marketing those securities, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you attend any of the road show presentations?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Are you aware of any statements made subsequent to the issuance of the March 19 press release, by either Morgan Stanley or by Sunbeam representatives, that attempted to minimize the significance of the March 19 press release to potential investors and convertible debentures?

Smith

A. No, I wasn't part of.

Q. No one ever reported such statements were being made to you?

A. I didn't know.

Q. After the March 19 press release, sir, did you think it was especially important for Morgan Stanley to track Sunbeam sales activity in the closing days of the quarter?

A. I thought it was important to continue and complete our due diligence before we close the loan.

Q. Did you get any undated information after the March 19 press release concerning Sunbeam's efforts to achieve sales at least as great as the first quarter of 1997; for example, a report on how many sales had been made since the March 19 press release?

A. I don't recall seeing anything like that.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. Did you request daily reports on Sunbeam sales activities?

A. I did not. I don't know if the team requested it.

Q. Did you receive any reports between the March 19 press release and the closing of my client, the sale of my client's interest in Coleman company, concerning the status of Sunbeam's first quarter sales efforts?

A. I don't remember what I got or what the team got.

Q. So between -- let me focus your attention to the time period I'm talking about.

Between March 19, 1998 and March 30, 1998 do you recall receiving any information concerning the status of Sunbeam's sales activities subsequent to March 19?

A. I don't -- I remember -- I don't recall getting anything written, but I think members of the teams who were spending time with the company -- maybe I should have said it before, it wasn't just us.

Smith

We focused a hundred percent on the Morgan Stanley efforts. We have two partners here, First Union, Bank of America, going through the same thing. So they, so everybody I think is talking about this and we're thinking about it.

And I don't remember any pieces of paper or being part of any particular conversations myself with anybody from the company.

Q. Well, let me make sure we're clear on this. Regardless of what the source was, whether it was Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley, Bank of America or First Union or someone else, do you recall whether you received any information subsequent to Sunbeam's March 19 press release, prior to the closing of the acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman company on March 30, relating to Sunbeam's sales efforts between March 19 and March 30?

A. I don't remember anything specific.

Q. Do you remember anything generally?

A. No

Smith

Q. Did you instruct anyone to contact any of the customers that were listed on CPH Exhibit Number 152, sir, to find out what their plans were for making purchases from Sunbeam?

A. I would not, that would not have been my function.

Q. Do you know whether anyone from Morgan Stanley was asked to do that?

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you disagree, sir, that on monitoring Sunbeam's end of the quarter sale effort should have been Morgan Stanley's highest priority at that point in time?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question, argumentative.

A. I guess I do disagree.

Q. Why?

A. Because I think that is one part of the continuing due diligence that we were performing right up until the, right up until the end.

Q. As you sit here you don't have any recollection of getting any information from any source, including the Morgan Stanley due diligence team, relating to Sunbeam's sale efforts between March 19 and March 30, correct?

Smith

A. No.

Q. You don't have any recollection of that?

A. No, I do not. But again the team, the big team is there doing that work and I have a lot of confidence in the team all the way from the leveraged finance people to the John Tyree and people from the credit department, so that I think the firm was ably served by those folks and its efforts to parse through this.

Q. Are you aware, sir, that the agenda prepared by the due diligence team for -- are you familiar with the concept of bring-down due diligence?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. And what does that term mean to you?

A. Just before you close, to get on the phone with the company, maybe sometimes their auditors, to make sure and have the opportunity to ask them kind of the last questions, if there has been any changes from what we all thought had been going on in the last -- since the last time we did it.

Q. Were you advised by anyone that Sunbeam's -- that Morgan Stanley's bring-down due diligence agenda was revised after March 19 to omit the subject of Sunbeam's views concerning its prospects for the second quarter of 1998?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question, lack of foundation. I think it also assumes facts not in evidence. You can answer.

A. No, no knowledge at all.

Q. No one told you that the due diligence team had been told not to make inquiry into Sunbeam's views of its prospects for the first -- second quarter of 1998 after the March 19 press release was issued?

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

A. Nobody told me that.

Q. Do you think that would be an appropriate subject to drop?

Smith

A. I would be flabbergasted if that ever happened to Morgan Stanley.

Q. Do you think that would be an important area to keep inquiring about right up to the time the loan closed?

A. I would think that would be part of the continuing due diligence process until the loan closed.

Q. So you would be shocked if that subject was specifically omitted from the bring-down due diligence agenda?

A. Again I'm not part of the bring-down due diligence agenda process, but I would be shocked that that wasn't part of the continuing due diligence.

And again I have no knowledge of that document that you're referring to or what was in or taken out.

Q. But you didn't participate in any discussion where people discussed dropping that subject?

A. No. No, I had no knowledge of it.

Q. Well, the senior loan closed on

Smith

March 30, 1998, correct?

A. I believe that's right.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley make efforts to move forward with the syndication process at that point?

A. Yes.

Q. Had efforts been undertaken even prior to the closing of the loan, to initiate the syndication process?

A. No.

Q. And why is that?

A. We didn't have enough time. We were too busy scrambling to complete the due diligence, do all the documentation, complete the loan agreement, which was essentially before we could advance the money.

There was a time line, I mean a deadline, so that was the primary focus. Once that was completed, then we shaped our resources to putting together, to put together materials to start the syndication of the loan.

Q. When did that start?

A. Probably the day after we closed

Smith

the loan.

Q. Who was responsible for that effort?

A. It was under my supervision, then assisted by the team of Mr. Hart, I guess Mr. Rankin by then, and then we also had our two other banks that were taking pieces of the underwriting.

Q. First Union and Bank of America?

A. First Union, Bank of America.

Q. Were the efforts to syndicate the loan, the senior loan, disrupted?

A. I'm sorry, were they --

Q. Disrupted? Did something happen to affect the plan for completing the syndication of the loan by mid-May?

A. Yes.

Q. What was that?

A. Well, we had to -- we had to right the book and continue to get information. We were trying to remember what happened, it was a long time ago, six years ago, is that bits of information came out and then we started getting more and more, had more and more

0119931

Smith

questions for the company back and forth.
Q. Do you recall that, do you recall if something happened that affected your objective of completing the syndication by mid-May?
A. I don't remember specifically, but there were, as I remember there were a series of events that precluded us from going right when we wanted to, which in the normal course would have been two to three weeks after we closed the loan.
Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam issued a press release on or about April 3, 1998 in which it announced that it had failed to exceed first quarter 1997 sales results?
A. I'm sure I saw it, but I don't remember what it said.
Q. Did that have, did that announcement have any effect on the timing for the syndication?
A. I think that it was part of the, part of the series of events. It could have been the first series of events. Part of the series is the 3rd is only four days after the fact. So we are in the midst of preparing our offering memorandum and the rest.

Q. I just want to try and understand what effect that announcement had, if any, on the timing.
The objective was to complete the syndication by mid-May, correct, that is what is being told to the Leveraged Finance Committee?
A. Yes.
Q. Sunbeam issues a press release on April 3 announcing that it had failed to exceed first quarter 1997 sales results?
A. Uhm-hmm.
Q. That announcement in and of itself, did that have any effect on your views concerning the achievability of the May 15 date for completing the syndication?
A. Not then.
Q. Do you recall that in the first part of May Sunbeam and the three banks agreed to amend the senior loan agreement to reduce the amount of the financing being provided?

Smith

A. Yes.
Q. What precipitated that change in the loan arrangement?
A. Let's see. I guess they were able to raise more on the convertible so they didn't need quite so much bank debt. We -- and I think they revised the amount of revolving credit they think they needed, so we were able to reduce the bank loan accordingly. I think that's what happened then. Plus --
Q. I'm sorry, did you have something else you wanted to say?
A. No.
Q. Did Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 results have any bearing on the amendment to the credit agreement to reduce the amount of the financing?
A. It was part of the process.
Q. Did the fact that Sunbeam had failed to exceed first quarter 1997 sales cause the banks to request Sunbeam to reduce the amount of the financing from 2 billion to 1,700,000,000?

Smith

A. No, I think that is a simplistic version of it. I think as more and more information came out and more and more work was done that the banks got, and then the company agreed to reduce the amount of the facilities.
Q. What I'm trying to understand, sir, is whether -- Sunbeam, as we discussed, raised an additional $250 million through its convertible debenture?
A. Right.
Q. What I'm trying to understand is whether that was the reason why the senior loan facility was reduced by $300 million, or whether there was something about the Sunbeam's financial performance that caused the banks to reduce the amount of the financing?
A. I'm sorry, I misunderstood your question. The, they only needed so much money to make these acquisitions and the -- if they were able to raise more money in the convertible market, then they needed less bank debt, so as -- and the company made the decision to take more of the convertible, and so consequently we reduced the bank debt.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Q. So the reason why the bank debt, at least as far as you can recall, was reduced from 2 billion to 1,700,000,000 was the fact that Sunbeam had raised additional funds through the convertible debenture offering and didn't need the $2 billion until the financing?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me show you what we are marking as CPH Deposition Exhibit Number 154, sir.

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 154, document bearing Bates number FUNB 188 through 189, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. CPH Exhibit Number 154 is a two-page document that is a memorandum from Thomas L. Molitar and Andrew J. Gamble to distribution, and bears Bates number FUNB 188 through 189.

I assume you have never seen this, sir, but correct me if I'm wrong.

A. I have never seen this, this is not one of ours.

Smith

Q. Do you know who Tom Molitar and Andrew Gamble are?

A. Yes.

Q. Who are they?

A. They worked at First Union. And Tom was on the leveraged finance as corporate side, corporate lending side, and Andrew, Andy was on the syndication side.

Q. Did you work with them in connection with the loan to Sunbeam?

A. I did.

Q. Do you see there are a series of numbered paragraphs in this memorandum?

A. I do.

Q. I want to focus your attention on the second one.

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. It starts with the statement "The parties have agreed to amend the credit agreement that will reduce FUNB exposure from 600 million to 510 million."

Do you see that statement?

A. I do.

Smith

Q. I would like you to explain to me the different items, bullet point items that appear below that with respect to the changes to the Sunbeam senior loan arrangement.

A. Okay.

Q. The total credit line, you see that bullet?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. From 2 billion to 1.7 billion, that reflects the $300 million reduction we are talking about?

A. Yes.

Q. The second item, LIBOR spread, 150 EPS to 225 EPS?

A. Yup.

Q. Can you explain that to me?

A. This is the LIBOR, the spread over LIBOR. So originally LIBOR plus 150 loan to LIBOR plus 225 loan. I'm guessing here because this isn't mine, I haven't seen this before, but that's how I --

Q. That's how you interpret this?

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. And the reference here is to the interest rate being charged?

Smith

A. Yes, to the company.

Q. And this reflects an interest rate increase of about three-quarters of a percent?

A. It does.

Q. Do you recall why that change was made?

A. I think what happened here, I guess this is refreshing my memory a little bit, is they came out with some new numbers and new projections and so the banks were, thought it important to change the rate to enhance their ability to sell this.

Q. What -- could you move your hand down from your face, sir. I'm sorry.

What power did the banks have under the credit agreement to increase the interest rate being charged on the loan?

A. I can't remember whether we had -- I don't know what contractual right we had, but... So the, our ability to get them to agree to this, I don't remember all of the bells and whistles that we did to make this

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16div-022038

Smith

happen.
Q. Do you remember if it was, if there was, whether Sunbeam resisted the bank's desire to increase the interest rate on the senior loan?
A. I think they negotiated, but I don't see resisted here.
Q. You believe it is possible the banks had the right to impose an interest rate increase?
A. No, I don't think so. I don't think it was that easy.
Q. So you think there was a subsequent negotiation with Sunbeam that resulted in an increase in the interest rate?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the reason why the banks wanted to increase the interest rate?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question, calls for speculation with regard to the other banks.
MR MARKOWSKI: Let me rephrase the question.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding support the increase in the interest rate on the senior loan?

Smith

A. Yes, we did.
Q. And why?
A. To assist our ability to sell the loan into the market.
Q. So it would help Morgan Stanley Senior Funding and the others banks sell off their, sell off portions of their loan to Sunbeam to other banks?
A. Yes.
Q. The last statement in this section says "Our up-front fees have been affected by the facility reduction. Those are effective up-front fees, now 132 basis points up from 112.5 basis points."
Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Would it have been typically the case that if a facility was reduced so quickly after the loan is made, that the up-front fees would be adjusted accordingly?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.

Smith

A. Well, I guess I would argue that the up-front fees were adjusted. All that happened was they reduced the amount of the facility from 2 to 1.7 and the lenders kept a piece.
Q. Right. The up-front fees are typically a percentage of the loan amount, correct?
A. Right, the original commitment.
Q. And here the commitment is being reduced?
A. Right.
Q. Shortly after the loan was made?
A. Uhm-hmm.
Q. Would it typically be the case that the up-front fees would be adjusted under those circumstances or not?
A. Well, this is an unusual situation, so I don't know if there is anything customary or normal.
The company in Canada, as you probably know, reduced the amount of these commitments at any time and they, as part of this process they elected to do this and that's what happened.

Smith

Q. Did Sunbeam save any money by reducing the amount of the loan commitment from a billion 7 to -- excuse me, from 2 billion to 1,700,000,000?
MR CLARE: Objection, no foundation.
A. Well, what happened is they reduced their revolving credit I guess and so they didn't have to pay any unfunded on whatever they reduced that to.
Q. Sunbeam didn't draw down the full $2 billion or the full $1.7 billion immediately, correct?
A. No.
Q. Were there fees being charged or interest being charged on the unfunded portion of the facility?
A. Yes.
Q. So by reducing the facility from 2 billion to 1.7 billion would Sunbeam realize a savings on those fees?
A. They would realize a savings on those fees, but the net total financing fees

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011934

Smith

on an annual basis would have gone up because of a change in the interest rates. It would far eclipse that savings.

Q. There is a statement -- let me direct your attention to the second page, Exhibit 154.

After the last numbered paragraph there is a paragraph that starts with the following sentence: "As a result of the amendments to the credit agreement, we believe that this facility will be syndicated as originally expected."

Do you see that statement?

A. I do.

Q. Was that your view also as of May 8, 1998?

A. Oh, gee, I have no idea.

Q. Mr. Smith, I'm going to show you what we're marking as Coleman (Parent) Holdings Deposition Exhibit Number 155. It's a document, it bears the cover page Sunbeam $1.7 Billion Senior Secured Credit Facilities Confidential Information Memorandum, it is dated June 1998, and it bears Bates number

Smith

FUNB 10440 through 10557.

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 155, document bearing Bates number FUNB 10440 through 10557, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. My first question, Mr. Smith, is whether you can identify this document for me.

A. It appears to be the offering memorandum that was put together for the syndication of the $1.7 billion Sunbeam loan.

Q. And the purpose of this would have been what?

A. The purpose of this would have been to provide this information to banks and institutional investors who are interested in buying, in being part of the syndicate of this loan.

Q. Let me direct your attention to page number 8 of the document.

A. I'm sorry.

Q. Page number 8 of the document.

A. Okay.

Q. There is a calendar.

Smith

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. A schedule, correct? Timetable?

A. Yes.

Q. And the timetable reflected here is the timetable for completing the syndication, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it starts with a lender meeting on June 9 and it ends with the closing and funding on July 9, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, this schedule is somewhat different from the one that you were contemplating when the loan was approved by the Leveraged Finance Committee on March 20, correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And what caused this change in schedule to a target of completing the syndication by July 9 instead of mid-May?

A. The biggest change, as I remember, was that the company came up with a new set of projections.

Q. And how did that affect the timing?

Smith

A. Well, we wanted to make sure, this is now the three lenders, the three underwriters, that they understood completely what was going on, that they had a full knowledge of what was transpiring here, and that we felt very comfortable based on the due diligence and continued talks with the company that these projections were in fact achievable, and so we -- because we wanted that to stop moving around, so we had something we could incorporate into the offering memo to get that into the market.

Q. As of the time this document was provided to potential participants in the syndication, was it your view personally that it was still going to be possible -- well, that it would be possible to complete the syndication by July 9?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it your expectation at that point in time also that Morgan Stanley would be able to reduce its participation in the Sunbeam loan to the 50 to $60 million arrangement that you identified as your

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

016935

Smith

objective previously?
A. Yes. And I believe it was also the view of the other two underwriters.
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 25.
A. 25? Okay.
Q. You see the second paragraph on page 25 reads as follows, at least the starting part of it. "On May 11, 1998 Sunbeam announced the integration with expected annual cost savings of $253 million to be achieved by the middle of 1999.
"The company also announced that it expects to achieve incremental revenue of $265 million as a result of revenue opportunities."
Do you see those two statements?
A. I do.
Q. Do you know what the source was of the statement here that the company expected to achieve $253 million in cost savings and $265 million in enhanced revenue through its acquisitions?
A. The source I believe was Sunbeam

Smith

because they are intimately, they, the company, the issuer, intimately involved when they put the offering memorandum together. They provided a lot of the information. In fact, most of the information, especially the nonpublic information, this is a nonpublic document. And they review all of this, oftentimes have their lawyers review it. So this to the best of my recollection came right from there.
Q. Do you know that, are you aware that Sunbeam was working with Coopers & Lybrand in the spring of 1998 to develop a restructuring plan for Sunbeam and the three companies that it had acquired?
A. I, I was aware that they were working on it. I'm not a hundred percent sure when that happened in the March, April, May context.
Q. Are you aware that it was Coopers & Lybrand that estimated that the company could expect to achieve $253 million in cost savings and $265 million in enhanced revenues as a result of its three acquisitions?

Smith

A. I may have known that then, but frankly I had forgotten it now.
Q. The 253 in cost savings and $265 million in revenue opportunities, are those synergies from the three acquisitions?
Is that what this is describing?
A. I can't remember.
Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam in the spring of 1998 announced that it expected to achieve synergies resulting from its acquisitions of Coleman company, Signature Brand, First Alert that substantially exceeded the synergies that were estimated when the acquisitions were first announced?
A. No
Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what we're marking as CPH Deposition Number 156. It's a document that bears the cover page Sunbeam 1.7, 1,700,000,000 Senior Secured Credit Facilities Lender Meeting June 9, 1998, it bears Bates number FUNB 10583 through 10650.
(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 156, document bearing Bates number FUNB 10583 through 10650, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Smith

Q. Have you seen this document before, sir?
A. I have.
Q. Can you tell me what it is?
A. This looks to me to be copies of the slide show that we put on for the loan syndication meeting.
Q. Was a loan syndication meeting in fact held on June 9, 1998?
A. To the best of my knowledge, yes.
Q. Did you participate?
A. I was in attendance.
Q. Who prepared this document, sir?
A. That's an interesting concept. We, the banks would be putting the pages together and then sending them to the company, that would add an awful lot of its comments to check the veracity of the numbers because it was basically their presentation to the banking community, not something for -- it is their document. We assisted.
Q. The document itself is actually

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

assembled by the bankers; is that correct?
A. Assembled I would say in terms of printed, in terms of returns, but the information, the content, the tone and all the rest is really set by the company.
Q. And the third page of the document, sir?
A. The third page?
Q. Has the agenda for the meeting?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. It indicates that Michael Hart at Morgan Stanley make the initial remarks and also make the concluding remarks, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall if that is in fact what took place that day?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did you speak at all at the lenders' meeting?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Do you recall how many banks attended?
A. Not specifically, but it was a lot. Many institutions. My guess was there were

Smith

50 to 75 between institutions both in person and on the phone.
Q. Was it your expectation at the end of the bankers' meeting that day that Morgan Stanley would still be able to successfully complete the syndication of the Sunbeam loan by July 9?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. Did you think the bankers' meeting went well that day?
A. I think the bankers' meeting went fine. We had $500 million worth of commitments from some of the major institutional players, so that was a very nice start to the syndication.
Q. Who had made initial commitments?
A. The testimony I'm remembering now, my recollection might have been people like VKM, Merrill Lynch, Eaton Vance, that type of institution, but I don't remember specifically.
Q. What would be the form of the commitment; how would that have been communicated to you?

Smith

A. That would have been communicated over the phone like you do for a bond.
Q. Mr. Smith, I'm going to show you what we're marking as CPH Exhibit Number 157. It is a two-page document, it bears Morgan Stanley Bates number 18702 to 703, and it appears to be a printout of a Bloomberg press announcement relating to the loan syndication.
(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 157, document bearing Morgan Stanley Bates number 18702 to 703, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Have you seen this document before, sir?
A. I don't remember. Let me familiarize myself here. Okay, I have seen this before.
Q. What is it?
A. It is a -- I guess it is a Bloomberg, right? A Bloomberg article that came out on the 11th of June, was it, regarding the loan and the syndication thereof.

Smith

Q. You are quoted in this, correct?
A. It looks like it.
Q. Do you remember making the statements attributed to you in this article?
A. Yes.
Q. Does the article accurately reflect --
A. Excuse me, can we turn this off?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Sure, we can go off the record.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:34 and this completes tape number 2.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:39, this begins tape number 3 of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Bram Smith.
BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Mr. Smith, we were looking at the June 11 Blumberg article, you have it right there.
Do you have it in front of you, sir?
A. I do.
Q. And I believe you indicated that

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011937

Smith

the statements that are attributed to you in this article accurately reflect the statements that you made at the time?

A. Yes.

Q. The third paragraph contains a quote attributed to you that reads: "It is a very good fundamental story, said R. Bram Smith."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. The very fundamental story that you are referring to there was a reference to the bank syndication?

A. No, I was referring to the company, to the Sunbeam story with its financial strength, cash flow, good market condition in many brands.

Q. It was still your view as of June 11 that Morgan Stanley and the other two banks would be able to successfully complete the syndication by July 9?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, a couple of paragraphs further down there is a statement that the company is being shared by shareholders.

Smith

Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. The fact that there was a shareholder lawsuit didn't affect your thinking with respect to the ability of Morgan Stanley and the other banks that syndicated the senior debt?

A. Well, I thought that we would still be able to achieve our targets. I did mention in that paragraph that you cited before that it will be a challenge for some lenders to get approval, and that's part of the reason I thought that it might be a challenge to get some of the numbers, especially the banks to participate in this.

But we had the flexibility of increasing the terminal in B, which went to the institutional market, and reducing the amount that went into the bank market, so I think all three of us, it would be ourselves, First Union and Bank of America, felt that we would be able to achieve our syndication targets by the time advertised to, whatever you said, July 9.

Q. Right. So the shareholder lawsuit didn't affect that in light of the flexibility you had to sell more of the loan to institutional investors?

A. I think it made it more of a challenge, but it was still achievable in our view.

Q. There is also a statement that Sunbeam stock price had fallen more than 50 percent and Sunbeam shares were trading at 18-1/2.

Do you see that?

A. Oh, yes, I do.

Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam shares had been higher than even $50 a share in March of 1998?

A. I don't recall that, but I'll take your word for it.

Q. The fact that Sunbeam share price had fallen so substantially did not mean that you would be unsuccessful in your efforts to syndicate the bank loan?

A. That was not my opinion at the time. Again we're looking at this from a senior creditor's point of view. We thought that the cash flow story, the market story -- excuse me, the market position story, their balance sheet story and the rest were, made this a very syndicatable loan.

Smith

Q. Clearly Sunbeam's shares had been adversely affected by the news that had been coming out about the company since March of 1998, correct?

A. It looks like that.

Q. But the fact that its share price was being adversely affected did not mean that the senior lending aspect of the March transactions would be adversely affected?

A. It doesn't necessarily move in concert.

Q. And why is that?

A. Well, because banks are senior secured lenders, the leverage was relatively low on a bank basis. The equity is the, are the owners and they take all of the residual risk.

So the impact of a high stock price

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

or a low stock price on the creditworthiness and the cash flow characteristics of the company are sometimes not related, oftentimes not related.

Q. So, for example, Sunbeam's ability to maintain a $50 share price or $40 share price wouldn't be something that was necessarily significant to you in evaluating the creditworthiness of Sunbeam for the purposes of the senior loan?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question. You can answer.

A. When we evaluate the feasibility of doing these loans, we look at the balance sheet and the business position, cash flow and all the rest, not necessarily.

What's going on in the stock market, whether the stock goes up or down is not going to affect the balance sheet of the company.

Q. There is a statement right below that under Loan Division, the heading Loan Division.

Do you see that?

Smith

A. Yes, I do.

Q. The loan is divided in a $750 million portion typically sold to institutional investors and a $950 million piece that is typically sold to banks.

That is something you just alluded to, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The portion from which you had already received an indication of interest that you referred to earlier in your testimony was which piece of this?

A. The 750 million piece.

Q. And your recollection today is that you had commitments for about 500 million of that 750?

A. Yes.

Q. Had you received any commitments for the bank piece?

A. Not to the best of my recollection. Normally the banks move much, much slower.

Q. Now, two days after this, on June 13 Mr. Dunlap was terminated.

Do you recall that happening?

Smith

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did that have an effect on the syndication?

A. Yup.

Q. In what way?

A. Well, that would be a -- having the CEO be fired by the board makes it an extremely challenging situation, a lot of uncertainty.

Q. Do you know why Sunbeam's board determined that it was appropriate to terminate Mr. Dunlap?

MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation, calls for speculation.

A. No.

Q. Let me show you a one-page document, sir, that we are going to mark as CPH Deposition Exhibit Number 158, it bears Bates number CPH 1392612 and it is a June 15, 1998 article from the American Banker. It bears the headline "Morgan Stanley Secures 500 Million Commitment for 1.7 Billion Sunbeam Loan."

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit

Smith

158, document bearing Bates number CPH 1392612, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Have you seen this document before, this article before, sir?

A. Yup.

Q. There are several statements attributable to you in this article.

Do they accurately report the statements that you made to the reporter?

A. Give me a second and I'll look at it. Okay.

Q. This article is dated June 15, 1998. Do you know if you made your statements before or after -- the pending question was does the article accurately reflect the statements you made to the reporter?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if you made those statements before or after Mr. Dunlap was terminated?

A. Don't remember.

Q. As of the time you made these

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0119939

Smith

statements to the American Banker reporter, were you still optimistic that Morgan Stanley would be able to complete the loan syndication successfully?

A. When was he terminated?

Q. On June 13, which was a Saturday I believe.

A. I think when you say confident we would be able to do this, I think increasing, some concern that that's going to be a challenge.

Q. Do you know if this interview took place before the news of Mr. Dunlap's termination --

A. I can't remember.

Q. -- had been disclosed?

A. Can't remember.

Q. How did you learn that Mr. Dunlap had been terminated?

A. I think I might have gotten a phone call from Bill Strong over the weekend.

Q. What did Mr. Strong tell you?

A. That he had been, that Mr. Dunlap had been terminated.

Smith

Q. Did he say anything else?

A. Not that I, not that I recall. The news was stunning and very new and I can't remember whether they picked an interim CEO or what they were going to do.

Q. Did Mr. Strong tell you how he had learned this news?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did Mr. Strong tell you why the Sunbeam board had taken this action?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did he offer his thoughts concerning why it may have happened?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did you and Mr. Strong have any discussion about the effect this would have on the syndication?

A. Not that I recall, but I'm sure we did.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap's termination have an immediate effect on Morgan Stanley's plans to syndicate the senior loan?

A. I'm going to confuse a little bit of the timing here, but pretty shortly or during this period we decided, that would be the three of us, the three underwriters decided to cease the syndication of the loan.

Smith

So did that happen on the 15th or 16th or whenever I don't remember, but it was all in that period of time.

Q. Let me show you what we're going to mark as CPH Exhibit 159, it's a one-page document, it bears Bates number CPH 1392969. It appears to be an American Banker article dated June 17, 1998, and it bears the headline "Morgan Stanley Withdraws Loan To Sunbeam After CEO's Firing."

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 159, document bearing Bates number CPH 1392969, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Have you finished reviewing it, sir?

A. I did, uhm-hmm.

Q. Have you seen this before?

A. I must have. I don't really remember.

Q. Are the statements attributed to you in this article accurate?

Smith

A. I don't think so because I'm confused, I don't know what this one statement attributed to me means.

"But I would say the flow of information is typical of today's lender-borrower relationship." A better word might be disappointed, it doesn't even flow.

I'm quoted to sell down the loan eventually, I think that is kind of probably true. Am I quoted again?

I don't understand what the first one means, I don't remember saying that.

Q. You don't remember saying "But I would say the flow of information is typical of today's lender-borrower relationship"?

A. No, and then certainly not jump the position to the next sentence I'm imputed to have made when a better word might have been disappointed.

Q. What about the statement in the next paragraph that "Morgan Stanley as well as the co-syndicators, Bank of America Corp. and First Union Corp., were not giving up on the deal"?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

A. That is not my statement.
Q. It says "Mr. Smith stressed."
A. But again it is not a quote, that's the writer.
Q. Do you recall saying to the author of this article that Morgan Stanley and other banks were not giving up on syndication?
A. I don't know what not giving up on the deal means. It says here in my copy not giving up on the deal versus not giving up on the syndication, so this is -- the Sunbeam had our money so it is kind of a meaningless concept, that statement.
Q. Well, let me direct your attention to the right-hand column.
A. Uhm-hmm.
Q. One, two, three, four, five, sixth paragraph. It says "Mr. Smith said his team will have to meet with Sunbeam's new management to develop a strategy. Pending that meeting a new run at the market is likely later this year he said."
Do you recall making that

Smith

statement?
A. I remember alluding to the fact that they had to get to the bottom of what was going on and then try to restart the syndication some time, yeah.
Q. So your plan as of June 17, in any event, Mr. Smith, was to attempt to go back to the syndication market at some point in the future?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any idea as of this point in time how quickly you would be able to do that?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any hope concerning how quickly you would be able to do that?
A. Any what?
Q. Hope.
A. I always have hope. Remember what happened here. Dunlap's fired, right, there is nothing about any numbers, so the issue is who is going to be the new CEO and what is going to be the new strategy, so we have to sort that out and see who that's going to be and then, and then get ready and take it to market some time later. Can't do it too much in the summer, so that's what I meant.

Smith

Q. Now, Mr. Levin had been announced as Mr. Dunlap's replacement by this point; is that correct?
A. I don't remember. Is that what it says here? If not, it was pretty darn close.
Q. I'm looking for it, I think it is in here somewhere.
Putting that aside, whether it is in the article or not, do you recall that fairly shortly, within a matter of days after Mr. Dunlap was terminated, Mr. Levin was identified as the new chief executive officer of Sunbeam?
A. Yes, in the fourth paragraph. Yes, I thought it was pretty close, within days if not a week.
Q. Did you have any reaction to the appointment of Mr. Levin as the replacement for Mr. Dunlap?
A. Not really. I didn't know him.
Q. Do you recall anyone at Morgan

Smith

Stanley expressing at this point in time objections to Mr. Levin's appointment as the new chief executive officer of Sunbeam?
A. Not that I'm aware of.
Q. Or any reservations about that?
A. Not that I'm aware of.
Q. What, sir -- move to a different topic.
What did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding do to attempt to assess the potential synergies that Sunbeam could realize by acquiring Coleman company?
A. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding -- let's see -- took advantage of what the firm's effort had been on trying to understand the synergies.
Also at the time we were exploring the synergy of potential with the other two underwriting banks, because again all of the due diligence regarding the loan was done with them as well.
Q. Do you agree that the evaluation of potential synergies when combining two companies, like combining Sunbeam and Coleman

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

company, is highly dependent on the plans of management?

A. The synergy strategy and plans and the execution would rely on the management, yes.

Q. So, for example, was Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in a position where it could independently assess the potential synergies that Sunbeam could achieve by combining itself with Coleman company?

A. Morgan Stanley, the other two banks would probe the management and ask questions on their synergy plans, remember those are their plans, and therefore test, ask questions to them about their ability to execute it, those synergies on the timetable given.

Q. So Sunbeam developed its plan for combining itself with Coleman, correct?

A. That is normally how it works, and to the best of my recollection that is how it worked here.

Q. And they told Morgan Stanley what their expectations were with respect to potential cost savings, correct?

Smith

A. And First Union and Bank of America.

Q. Do you know if any of Sunbeam's plans were estimates of potential cost savings dependent upon ideas or information that Sunbeam obtained from Coleman company?

A. I have --

MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation, call for speculation. You can answer.

A. I have no idea.

THE WITNESS: Sorry.

Q. Did you have any discussions yourself with Sunbeam on the subject of potential synergies prior to the funding of the senior loan?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did, do you know if Mr. Hart did?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did Mr. Hart ever tell you that Sunbeam's plans for potential cost savings had originated with Mr. Levin?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. In connection with the position you took with the Leveraged Finance Committee concerning approval of the senior loan to Sunbeam, did you place any weight at all on any information that Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley had received from Mr. Levin concerning potential synergies?

Smith

MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Do you have any basis today, sir, for saying that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was defrauded as a result of false statements made either to it or Morgan Stanley or to Sunbeam, by Jerry Levin concerning potential synergies?

MR. CLARE: Foundation, calls for a legal conclusion.

A. I missed that, could you read that back to me.

Q. I'll state it again, sir.

As you sit here today, do you have any factual basis for -- let me start over.

As you sit here today, sir, do you believe that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was defrauded as a result of statements made by Jerry Levin to either Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding concerning potential synergies that Sunbeam might realize by acquiring Coleman?

Smith

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

A. I have no idea.

Q. As you sit here today, sir, do you believe that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was misled by any statements made by Jerry Levin to Morgan Stanley, to Sunbeam, or to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding concerning potential synergies?

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

A. No idea.

Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what we're marking as CPH Deposition Exhibit Number 160, it is a one-page document that bears Bates number Morgan Stanley confidential 3143.

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 160, document bearing Bates number Morgan Stanley confidential 3143, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Have you ever seen this document before, sir?

A. I don't know. It doesn't look familiar.

Q. Put aside the handwriting. Have you ever seen the typed portion of this document before?

A. Yes, I guess I did. I guess I have.

Q. When was that?

A. I saw it yesterday. And I can't remember if I saw it when, during the transaction.

Q. As you sit here today, you have no recollection of seeing this during your work in February and March of 1998?

A. No, not really.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?

A. No.

Q. Looking at the, this list of 15 items, sir, --

A. Yes.

Q. -- do you know whether in connection with Morgan Stanley Senior

Smith

Funding's evaluation of potential synergies, that any of the items on this list were taken into account?

A. I really don't know.

Q. You have no knowledge that they were, correct, sir?

A. I have no knowledge they were, I have no knowledge they weren't.

Q. Do you have any information to suggest that the items on this list in any way affected the price that Sunbeam paid for Coleman company?

MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.

A. No, no idea.

Q. Do you have any basis for believing that the items on this list were critical to Sunbeam's assessment of Coleman's fair acquisition value?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. No idea.

Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding ever suggest to you, sir, that information that Sunbeam or

Smith

Morgan Stanley had received from Coleman relating to potential synergies was grossly overstated?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.

A. I have no idea.

Q. Now, you indicated that the syndication was pulled from the market upon Mr. Dunlap's termination, correct?

A. It was shortly thereafter, the Monday or Tuesday after the weekend.

Q. And the reason for pulling the syndication from the market was Mr. Dunlap's termination, correct?

A. That was the, that was the catalyst.

Q. It didn't have anything to do with any information that Coleman company had provided to Sunbeam or to Morgan Stanley relating to potential synergies, did it?

A. No, not that I was aware of.

Q. Your decision to pull the syndication from the market didn't have anything to do with any information that you had, you or anyone else from Morgan Stanley had received from the Coleman company related to the synergies?

Smith

A. No, it did not.

Q. Did you ever express to anyone that Jerry Levin should not continue to serve as the chief executive officer of Sunbeam because he had exaggerated the potential synergies that Sunbeam might achieve by acquiring Coleman company?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any knowledge concerning what synergies Sunbeam in fact did realize as a result of acquiring Coleman company?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Perelman and others at McAndrews & Forbes did not expect Sunbeam to achieve substantial synergies from Coleman company?

A. Did you say did not?

Q. I'll ask the question over.

Do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Perelman or others at McAndrews &

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Forbes or Coleman (Parent) Holdings did not expect Sunbeam to achieve substantial synergies as a result of its acquisition of Coleman company?

MR CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. I really have no idea.

Q. My question is whether you have any reason to believe that today?

A. I have no reason to believe that today.

Q. In your communications with the bankers at Bank of America or First Union, did you ever indicate that the synergy figures that MSSF was relying upon in connection with evaluating the senior loan to Sunbeam had originated with Mr. Levin?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Or the Coleman company?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Or with McAndrews & Forbes?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Or with Coleman (Parent) Holdings?

A. I don't believe so.

Smith

Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what we're going to mark as Coleman (Parent) Exhibit 161, a three-page document, it bears Bates number CPH 1010442 to 444.

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 161, document bearing Bates number CPH 1010442 to 444, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Earlier today, sir, you were attempting to recall the name of someone at McAndrews & Forbes named Irwin.

Was that Mr. Engelman?

A. I believe so. Isn't he the CFO?

Q. The reason I'm trying to assert, is this is a memo from Mr. Engelman to Mr. Levin concerning plans for a bank meeting on June 19.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And there is a list of attendees that are anticipated to have attended that meeting from Morgan Stanley, from Bank of America and from First Union.

Do you see that?

Smith

A. I do.

Q. And you're listed as an attendee, do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. Do you recall attending a bank meeting on June 19 with representatives of McAndrews & Forbes, Mr. Levin?

A. Had a lot of meetings and my guess is I was probably there.

Q. Do you recall attending a meeting shortly after Mr. Dunlap's termination at McAndrews & Forbes offices in Manhattan where Mr. Hart, Mr. Smith, with you, Mr. Rankin and Mr. Kitts were present from Morgan Stanley?

A. I remember going to McAndrews & Forbes that week. I couldn't swear that those were the fellows in attendance.

Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what we're going to mark for identification as CPH Exhibit Number 162. It's a document that bears Morgan Stanley Bates number 268988 through 891 and it's a Bank of America letterhead, memorandum from Deirdre Doyle to John H. Shannahan.

Smith

(Coleman (Parent) Holdings Exhibit 162, document bearing Morgan Stanley Bates number 268988 through 891, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. I'm not going to ask you to read the whole document, sir, but I'm going to refer you to a couple of entries in this document.

The first sentence indicates this is a report on a meeting held by McAndrews & Forbes offices on June 1998. Representatives of Bank of America, First Union and Morgan Stanley attended.

Do you see that statement?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And there is a list of McAndrews & Forbes participants.

Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Does this refresh your recollection concerning your participation in a meeting at McAndrews & Forbes offices on June 1998?

Mr. Gittis, Mr. Levin, Mr. Shapiro, Mr. Engelman, Mr. Slotkin and Mr. Lipton of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

Wachtel Lipton were present?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it your recollection now that you were in fact present at that meeting?
A. Yes. I thought you were referring to a different meeting. I don't remember Kitts, for example, being at this meeting.
Q. Do you recall -- put the document down for a second, sir.
Do you recall at this meeting that Mr. Levin addressed his views of analysis that Coopers & Lybrand had done for Sunbeam relating to potential synergies or cost savings that Sunbeam might realize through the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman company?
A. Do I remember him commenting on it?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember Mr. Levin saying?
A. I think -- it is a long time ago. I think he had doubts about how realistic those were.

Smith

Q. Do you remember what words he used?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember how strongly he expressed his doubts?
A. No.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the bottom third of the first page of Exhibit 162. It starts out, there is a bullet point that starts "In reviewing Dunlap's 1998 EPS expectations for Sunbeam"?
A. Yes.
Q. I would like you to read beginning there through the bottom of the page.
A. Okay.
Q. Does this refresh your recollection at all on statements made by Mr. Levin concerning his views of the Coopers & Lybrand synergy analysis?
A. Not really. I just remembered at the meeting he was pretty derogatory toward the whole thing. I really can't say that it does jog my memory.
Q. Do you recall being advised that Coopers & Lybrand had been fired?

Smith

A. I think I do.
Q. And that the company was going to refuse to pay Coopers & Lybrand's fee?
A. I think I heard that too. I think I heard that too, yes.
Q. And the company was considering an action to recover the fees that Coopers & Lybrand had been paid?
A. I don't know about that.
Q. And did you understand, sir, from anything Mr. Levin had said concerning Coopers & Lybrand's study, that Mr. Levin was expressing the view that information or ideas that he had provided to Sunbeam concerning potential synergies before the acquisition took place were in any way exaggerated or unreasonable?
A. I don't remember him addressing that issue.
Q. When you left the meeting did you think that Mr. Levin had confessed to misleading Morgan Stanley --
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
Q. -- relating to potential synergies?

Smith

A. I had no, no view on that. I wasn't part of the original synergy discussion way back when. He didn't comment here to the best of my recollection.
Q. I'm asking what your take-away was from the meeting.
When you walked out did you think that Jerry Levin just told us that he misled Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam concerning the potential synergies that Sunbeam might achieve by acquiring Coleman company?
A. That was not my impression.
Q. At any point, sir, after Mr. Dunlap's termination were you advised that Coleman (Parent) Holdings wanted to rescind the sale of its interest in Coleman company, get the stock back?
A. I think so.
Q. What do you recall about that?
A. Not much. Basically what you said, that is what they wanted to do.
Q. What was Morgan Stanley's or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's position with respect to whether that was an advisable

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

thing to do for Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding taking the position that Sunbeam should refuse to rescind the acquisition of Coleman company?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall coming to the conclusion that it would adversely affect Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's exposure on the senior loan if Sunbeam agreed to rescind the acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman?
A. No, I don't remember.
Q. When, sir, did Morgan Stanley -- let me ask a foundational question.
The Sunbeam senior loan has never been syndicated; is that correct?
A. True.
Q. When did you finally conclude that it would not be possible to syndicate the senior loan?
A. I don't know if I had posed it that way. I think probably came to the conclusion you couldn't syndicate it in '98, sometime in the fall, and I don't know when we, when I decided that it would be very problematic to syndicate it in its current form.

Smith

Q. Do you recall whether you still thought throughout the course of 1999 that it might be possible yet to complete the syndication of the loan?
A. I didn't think it would be possible to syndicate the loan in the format that we had.
Q. And what do you mean by "the format that we had"?
A. As an all senior bank deal.
Q. What alteration did you think would be necessary?
A. I didn't know what would work, but I knew that you couldn't sell that much bank debt into the bank market, so that the bank debt was reduced by a form of, by form of capital markets, high yield or something.
Q. When did you come to that conclusion?

Smith

A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you think it was sometime in 1999?
A. It might have been.
Q. It might have been later than that?
A. I don't think so. Probably mid-'99.
Q. Did you have any continuing responsibility for monitoring the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan to Sunbeam after the loan closed in March of 1998?
A. The monitoring at Morgan Stanley somebody covered for it.
Q. Did you have any continuing responsibility of any sort after March of 1998 relating to the loan?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. That was to -- you said after March, so of course go through the syndication, restructuring, probably said syndicate it, pull it, talk to the other banks and to the -- to Levin about what might be -- what might be done, series of amendments and waivers, then my involvement lessens as the credit folks and Mitch Petrick get more and more involved.

Smith

Q. Mitch Petrick's involvement was on behalf of the credit department?
A. No, it was on the part of the fixed income/high yield department. He had some, good experience on workouts, so they wanted to take advantage of that because it migrated from a distribution exercise to a recovery phase.
Q. Did you ever communicate in writing after March of 1998 relating to the Sunbeam loan?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you ever communicate by E-mail?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you ever receive E-mails after March of 1998 relating to the Sunbeam loan?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Is it possible that you did?
A. I guess some possibility.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding have any sort of system for rating the loans

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

in its portfolio?

A. That was a credit department function, so I don't recall. I mean if it was, it was a credit department function and I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall whether there was a rating system of any sort?

A. Right.

Q. Do you know if the Sunbeam loan had some initial sort of rating or evaluation from the credit department when you first met?

A. Not specifically, but as part and parcel they would sign off and have to say that they were okay. I don't -- I can't recall what, if any, rating they put on it because I don't remember when the rating system started there.

Q. Before you left Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was there a rating system in place?

A. I believe so.

Q. How large a portfolio of loans does Morgan Stanley Senior Funding maintain?

Smith

MR. CLARE: Objection. What time period?

A. I don't know.

Q. Let's say in 1998. Apart from the Sunbeam loan, do you know how large a loan portfolio Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had at that point?

A. Not really, can't remember.

Q. Was it modest?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

A. I can't recall the numbers. I guess you could ask them.

Q. You just don't have a recollection one way or the other?

A. Yes, it's a long time ago.

Q. Was part of the business strategy of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to maintain a substantial loan portfolio?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form.

A. The strategy of Morgan Stanley was to make loans, distribute them, hold a piece, that was the strategy.

Q. And the piece that you would hold would be the smallest piece you could possibly hold?

Smith

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. No, it would be a meaningful, meaningful piece.

Q. The pieces that were held after the initial syndication, were those sometimes later marketed?

A. Depending on the price, depending on the amounts, sometimes.

Q. You were the president of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, --

A. Uhm-hmm.

Q. -- correct, sir?

But you didn't have any responsibility with respect to monitoring the performance of the loans in the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding portfolio?

A. That was a function that was the responsibility of the credit department.

Q. Who in the credit department would be responsible for evaluating the loans in, that were being carried in the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding portfolio?

A. I don't know the specific person who was tasked with that responsibility, but the person who had the overall responsibility for the credit department to include the loan portfolio was Rick Felix.

Smith

Q. Were your views sought at any point by the credit department relating to the quality of any of the loans in the MSSF portfolio?

A. Yes.

Q. Were your views sought concerning the quality of the Sunbeam loan at any point?

A. I wouldn't say the quality. Views on what to do, sure, all the time.

Q. Was there a point, if there was a point, where Sunbeam -- excuse me, where Morgan Stanley Senior Funding wrote off some portion of the Sunbeam senior loan, took a reserve against it?

A. I think there were several points that they took off.

Q. Do you remember when that took place?

A. No, can't remember.

Q. Was your input sought at that time

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

when the company first took a --
A. Yes.
Q. What was done, was there a write-off, was there a reserve?
A. It was a mark-to-market so we just wrote it down.
Q. Do you recall the amount of the first write-down?
A. I do not.
Q. Do you recall whether it took place in 1999?
A. Do not.
Q. Do you recall whether it took place later than that?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Let me go back to 1998. Do you recall whether Morgan Stanley wrote off any portion of the Sunbeam loan in 1998?
A. Don't know. I can't remember. Just can't remember.
Q. Have you ever seen any reports relating to how much, if any amounts Morgan Stanley Senior Funding has lost on the senior loan of Sunbeam?

Smith

A. No.
Q. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding now owns a substantial portion of Sunbeam's successor, American Household, correct?
A. Yes, to the best of my understanding.
Q. Do you know at what value Morgan Stanley Senior Funding carries its equity ownership in American Household?
MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation, calls for speculation.
A. I have no idea.
Q. At the time you left Morgan Stanley do you know what Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's plans were for its investment in American Household?
A. No idea.
Q. You indicated that Mitch Petrick became involved in aspects of the senior loan, correct?
A. The senior loan of Sunbeam, yes.
Q. And do you know what the nature of his activities has been?
MR. CLARE: Objection.

Smith

A. Regarding the Sunbeam loan?
Q. Correct.
MR. CLARE: Objection on foundation grounds, calls for speculation.
A. Not lately.
Q. What was it prior to the time you left Morgan Stanley?
A. Don't, can't comment about that. Can comment about that summer he started to get involved with the credit people in terms of the meetings with the other banks and then McAndrew, basically Jerry and the company.
Q. That, you refer to "that summer," referring to the summer of 1998?
A. Summer of 1998.
Q. Did Mr. Petrick remain involved with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam through the entire time you were at Morgan Stanley?
A. To varying degrees I believe that's true.
Q. Do you know if he is still involved today?
A. Under supervisory conditions would be my guess, but that is speculation on my part.

Smith

Q. But that's your belief, correct?
MR. CLARE: Well, objection on foundation grounds.
A. That is my speculation.
Q. That was the case when you left Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did Mitch Petrick ever express the view to you that Jerry Levin had misled Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam relating to the potential synergies that Sunbeam could achieve in acquiring Coleman company?
A. No, I do not believe so.
Q. Was there ever a time, sir, where you were asked to preserve any documents or electronic records you had that related to the Sunbeam transactions?
A. I believe there were.
Q. Do you recall when that first occurred?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall who made that, gave

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

you that direction?
A. I think it would be somebody from the legal department, so I don't have a name.
Q. Do you recall if it was shortly after the transactions closed?
A. I, my best recollection is it was late '98, but that's just an educated guess.
Q. Do you recall getting a written direction?
A. I believe so, as well as telephones, calls.
Q. What, if anything, did you do to preserve the documents and electronic records?
A. I gathered them up, gave them to whomever wanted them.
Q. Do you have a recollection as to who you gave them to?
A. Not any specific individual. I think it was somebody in the credit department. Excuse me, somebody in the legal department.
Q. Did you gather the materials personally?

Smith

A. Part of them were personal, part of them I had my assistant get.
Q. Who was your assistant back then?
A. I don't remember. The timing, I don't remember who it was.
Q. Is it someone who worked solely for you or did she work for other people also?
I'm assuming it is a woman, but I may be incorrect.
Was it a woman?
A. It was a woman and she worked for the group.
Q. Did she also work for Mr. Hart?
A. Yes, but more indirectly.
Q. Do you recall if there were other occasions after that initial inquiry, where you were asked to gather materials you had relating to Sunbeam?
A. My memory is faulty, but I would bet that I was asked at least two more times. When I say "I," anybody involved with the Sunbeam transaction.
Q. Why do you say that?
A. Why do I say everybody?

Smith

Q. No, why do you say it happened at least two more times?
A. Just my recollection that periodically something would come up from the legal department, or we get more phone calls saying are you sure you have given us everything, please double-check.
Q. Did you update your search, see if you had any new materials that you didn't have before?
A. We would research the files and the desks and all.
Q. Do you recall whether you received any such inquiry after my client filed this lawsuit against Sunbeam -- against Morgan Stanley -- I'm going to start over.
Do you recall whether you received an inquiry from the legal department after my client filed its lawsuit against Morgan Stanley in 2003, concerning whether you had any additional Sunbeam-related documents or electronic records?
A. When in 2003 was the suit filed?
Q. The spring of 2003.

Smith

A. So I was no longer there.
Q. You left Morgan Stanley?
A. First of February.
Q. February. How many communications or meetings, sir, would you say that you had with Sunbeam management in 1998 after Mr. Dunlap was terminated?
A. Probably 12 to 15.
Q. So 12 to 15 what, meetings?
A. Meetings.
Q. How many telephone conversations would you say you had?
A. Double that number probably. And let me be clear. Many of those meetings and almost all of those phone calls were conference calls, so there would be myself, two or three people from Morgan Stanley, the folks from the other banks.
Q. Were you cautioned at all, sir, by anyone not to maintain a written record of any of your communications with post Dunlap management at Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Did you make an effort to document

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

in any way the substance of your communications with Sunbeam management during that time period?

A. I did not.

Q. Why was that?

A. There were other members of the team that were there to take the notes and write any memos that we wanted or needed.

Q. Who was doing that?

A. Again unclear at any particular time, but it would be folks like Michael Hart, Simon Rankin, or maybe a more junior person assigned to our group.

Q. In 1998, sir, were you expecting litigation to arise out of the loan that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding made to Sunbeam?

A. I personally was not.

Q. What about internal communications within Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, sir, were you cautioned not to memorialize in notes or in memos internal communications relating to the Sunbeam transactions?

Smith

A. No.

Q. Were you instructed to keep any documents and notes or E-mails that you had, that you were generating and receiving in connection with your communications with Sunbeam management, after Mr. Dunlap was terminated?

A. I don't remember.

Q. It's possible that you were receiving things or generating things relating to your communications with Sunbeam management, but not preserving them --

MR. CLARE: Objection.

Q. -- during the time period after Mr. Dunlap was terminated?

MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation. Calls for speculation.

A. I don't think so.

Q. Do you think whatever you had or whatever you generated would still exist today?

A. If some -- if somebody took it or we turned it in, then they should have it.

Is that what you mean?

Smith

Q. Well, I'm asking you whether if you received any written communication of any sort relating to communications with Sunbeam management after Mr. Dunlap was terminated, took any notes relating to any of those communications, whether you believe that those materials should still exist today, or whether in the ordinary course you may have discarded them from time to time?

A. I really don't know. Anything I had when we got these requests were turned in.

Q. But in between requests if you were receiving things or generating things, were you under instruction to preserve it, or did you think if you had no need for it at that point in time for your personal use you could discard it?

A. Don't recall.

Q. Are you familiar with Morgan Stanley's policy with respect to document destruction?

A. Not really.

Q. Are you familiar with Morgan

Smith

Stanley's policy that employees are to discard drafts, notes, notebooks, diaries, telephone logs, message slips and other documents when they are no longer considered useful?

A. Yes, I guess I'm aware of that.

Q. Is that the policy that you personally followed while you were at Morgan Stanley?

A. Got rid of a lot of stuff when you no longer needed it.

Q. Do you recall doing that on any occasion relating to the work you did concerning Sunbeam?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Did you give instructions to the people in your group to maintain any documentation they had relating to any aspect of the work that was being done relating to Sunbeam?

A. No, I did not.

Q. You have indicated, sir, that you took one trip to Florida, correct?

A. I took one trip to Florida in early

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Smith

March, yes.

Q. Any other occasions relating to work that you did for Sunbeam where you traveled to Florida?

A. I think on at least one more occasion.

Q. When was that?

A. I think it was sometime in 1998. It could have been more, but at least one.

Q. What was the occasion for that trip?

A. The occasion was a bank meeting for the three banks and the Sunbeam management.

Q. Do you recall whether that was before or after Mr. Dunlap was fired?

A. It was after he was fired. This is with Mr. Levin and the team.

Q. Do you recall whether there were any other occasions where you visited in Florida concerning work being done for Sunbeam?

A. Like I say, at least once, could have been twice, could have been three times, but the years kind of blend.

Smith

Q. Is it the case that before the loans closed, the only occasion for you to travel to Florida was your meeting in March?

A. That is the best of my recollection.

Q. What about other forms of communication in Florida prior to the closing of the transaction at the end of March 1998?

MR. CLARE: The State of Florida?

MR. MARKOWSKI: With Sunbeam in Florida.

A. I thought we went over that a little bit before, but participate either partly in some of these conversations, conference calls with the company.

Q. So there were occasions where you spoke by telephone with people at Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. Prior to the loan closing?

A. Prior to the closing.

Q. And we have seen your March 5 letter to Mr. Kersh, the highly confident letter you sent to Mr. Kersh in Florida?

A. Yes.

Smith

Q. Were there any other occasions where you corresponded with anyone in Florida prior to the closing of the loans?

A. You mean Sunbeam in Florida?

Q. Yes.

A. Not to the best of my recollection.

Q. What about receiving materials from Sunbeam prior to the closing of the loan transaction?

A. Not to the best of my knowledge, none.

Q. Sir, when you left the room earlier while I had a question pending, did you discuss with Mr. Clare how to respond to the pending question?

MR. CLARE: I instruct the witness not to answer the question.

A. So I won't.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't have anything further.

MR. CLARE: Neither do I.

BUSINESS GOALS & ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Comment on your role in achieving your business goals and objectives. Consider any of the following that are relevant: Important new business; Major new transactions; Key relationships developed/enhanced; New product development; Client upgrades/downgrade 1996 Has been my most productive year since joining the Firm in January of 1993. My personal revenue production by the end of the fiscal year will have increased for the fourth straight year to a total exceeding $70 million of Firm revenue (excludingthe revenue that results from the substantial amount of time that I spend advising other senior professionals for which I neither receive nor seek any credit). Highlights include successful completion of the Chrysler defense assignment ($4.5 million inFirmrevenue), the lead manager role for the IPO of Metromail from RR Donnelley which is the largest two-handed IPO that the Firm has completed ($7.5 million), completion of our first M&A assignment for Allstate; the divestiture of its reinsurance business ($3.5 million) and the lead manager role for the IPO of TeleTech, one of the most successful high-tech deals that we completed in 1996 ($3.3 million). In October and November, we will also complete the pricing of the following lead managed equity deals forwhich I led our efforts to be awarded the business and am participating in their execution to the extent necessary: Everen $80 million IPO, expected to price on Oct. 7 ($2 million in Firm revenue), TeleTech $125 million secondary, expected to price on Oct. 31 ($3+ million), Omniquip $100 million IPO expected to price in mid-Nov. ($3 million), and the Aftermarket Technology Corp. $70 million IPO expected to price in mid-Nov. ($2 million). I led or played a significant role in our efforts to solicit and complete first-time business for several companies including the following: Allstate-M&A, Circus Circus-investment grade debt, Figgie International-M&A, Globe Glass-M&A, Parker-Hannifin-investment grade debt and M&A defense, Primadonna Resorts-M&A, StationCasinos-high yield debt and convertible preferred stock, TeleTech-IPO, Everen-IPO, Omniquip-IPO, Aftermarket Technology Corp.-IPO, Tupperware-investment grade debt, Scotsman Industries-M&A and our first meaningful piece of business from Sam Zell- the saleof Old Orchard shopping center (a $265 million divestiture expected to close before calendar-year end) although Sam Zell also introduced me to TeleTech.While it does not appear to be recognized that I spend a substantial amount of time managing the regional offices, I feel as though many of my best accomplishments occured in this area in 1996. My 1995 Evaluation & Development Summary set out as an objective to `help get Canadian effort back on its feet` in 1996. I led our efforts in recruiting a new senior member of the Canadian effort which led to hiring Brad Crompton in February from Goldman Sachs. I played a key role in hiring Steve Mayer as an Associate fromWertheim Schroder and in facilitating the move by Eugene Siklos to Toronto.I rearranged the coverage of many of the accounts among the professionals. I kept everyone together-that is, no one quit during all of this. The result is that revenue is up over 50% (to over $30 million in Firm revenue) and we remain on track with mycommitment from the Spring of 1995 when I stated that we could get the Canadian revenue to a US$60 million run rate by fiscal 1998. In Chicago, I played the lead role in transferring Frank Oelerich to M&A from CFD (with fantastic support from Bruce Fiedorek, Brad Evans and Frank English) while assisting Frank in transitioning his accounts as well as building his group. This included playing a key role in convincing Sandy Thompsonto join the new M&A group in Chicago from JP Morgan. I also played thelead role in encouraging John Spence to establish a CSG group in Chicago as opposed to quitting and joining Merrill Lynch and doing the same thing. The result from both Frank Oelerich's and John Spence's changes is that their performances have meaningfully improved and the Firm is better for it. I also played an important role in recruiting David Togut to the Firm in equity research. I played the lead role in preventing Gordon Deanfrom leaving Morgan Stanley to join Salomon Brothers at a 60% increase in compensation as a Managing Director and to run their San Francisco office including lobbying with Gordon's wife to encourage him to stay. Lastly, I spent a substantial amount of time in April and May of 1996, in encouraging Chris Pasko to remain at the Firm in spite of `Bad Friday` and Frank Quattrone's onslought. I also managed to keep the lead manager role for both the Metromail and TeleTech IPO's even though Mark Wolfenberger wasthe analyst on both and neither deal had yet begun their roadshows. In summary, I feel an obligation to communicate withall of my `direct reports` at least once every several days (as well as many of their direct reports). This takes a substantial amountof time, but I believe leads to higher revenue (the regional offices will produce record revenue in 1996 approximating $260 million in Firm revenue, assuming we hit our targets as presented in the 90 day business reviews), lower turnover (no one quit fromthe North American regional offices in 1996), tighter budgeting, more accountabilty and better coordination on new business development as well as reporting to senior management of CFD and beyond. My 1995 Evaluation & Development Summary also set out asobjectives to `Focus on priorities-larger accounts` and `Maintain momentum in Chicago office.` In 1996, I received an incoming call from Arthur Martinez, CEO of Sears, Roebuck awarding Morgan Stanley the largest deal assignment ($1+ billion) that he willhave pursued as CEO. The transaction is ongoing. I receivedan incoming call from Allstate awarding Morgan Stanley the divestiture of its reinsurance business ($450 million deal closed on Sept. 16, 1996). We are discussing with Chrysler a significant recapitalization. The Chicago Office in 1996 will have a record year with Firm revenue exceeding $100 million for the first time from the largest number of transactions ever completed by the Office. This continues a trend I initiated in 1993 to broaden thepractice by covering a meaningfully larger number of accounts, to require each professional to cover accounts and to try to lower the percentage represented by the top five revenue-creating deals by growing the client list. This has strengthened the practice and made it less dependent on the `home run` deals. In summary, I was very pleased with my 1996 and the 1996 for my colleagues in the regional offices. Most importantly, I take great pride in being at Morgan Stanley in 1996 and being able to be a part of the tremendous success in 1996 for CFD, IBD and the entire Firm. It doesn't get alot better than this.

CONTRIBUTION TO MS, DIVISION AND EXTERNAL/INDUSTRY-RELATED COMMUNITY

Comment on your contribution to the MS, Division and external/industry-related communities, especially in the areas of training, recruiting, Firm/divisional task forces, committees, events and administration, industry panel representation, etc.

As mentioned in Section 1, I spend a substantial amount of time in the administration of the regional North American CFD offices. Section 1 also comments on my recruiting successes in 1996 (e.g., Brad Crompton, Steve Mayer, David Togut and Sandy Thompson). In addition, I led the Firm's efforts in recruiting at the Kellogg School of Northwestern University. This led to offers and acceptances from several associates including Scott Mulcahy and Cathy Leonhardt. I also addressed the 1996 incoming AssociateClass on how to manage client relationships in the IBD. I kicked off the 1996-97 recruiting season this past week at the Kellogg School by giving the presentation on Morgan Stanley. I participated last year on the Promotion Committee. My volunteer activities include the Board of Trustees of The Bement School in Deerfield, Massachusetts and the Boards of Trustees of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Steppenwolf Theatre. With respect to the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, I chaired its Finance Committee this past year. This included leading the Symphony's successful effort to raise $78 million in a tax-exempt debt issue. The Symphony now has approximately $128 million of weekly-reset, floating, tax-exempt debt which I monitor for interest rate volatilityand whether or not we should hedge our floating-rate risk. I also was inducted into the Economic Club of Chicago a few weeks ago. I have agreed to address the Chicago Bar Association in January of 1997. Further, I am spending an evening at U.S. SenatorDan Coats (R-Indiana) home in November to discuss his political future regarding his re-election in 1998.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

What do you consider to be your three greatest strengths?

Judgement. This allows me to be value-adding to my colleagues as well as our clients. This has also served me well as a manager.–Initiative and work ethic. I work extremely hard and I like to work extremely hard. This allows me to be very responsiveand value-adding to my colleagues and our clients. This also allows me to be an effective salesman for the Firm because I do the detailed homework that is necessary.–Leadership. I lead by example. I love my job (believe it or not, I do). I earn people's trust and therefore can get them to do what they need to do to serve themselves, their clients and the Firm. This includes leadership in technical and other analytical skills. I know or get to know the details and I expect others to do so as well.

What attributes should you develop to enhance your professional effectiveness?

Greater knowledge of other areas of the Firm and what drives their success (e.g., asset management, operations).—

What skills and abilities are currently underutilized which you would put to greater use?

I believe that my management skills are underutilized and go substantially unnoticed.–My prior European experience with Salomon Brothers.–

What are you long-term career goals at Morgan Stanley?

I enjoy what I am doing and I enjoy working with virtually everyone with whom I come in contact at Morgan Stanley. I do have higher career aspirations at the Firm. However, I am not after any particular postion or job. It will happen when it happens.–Ultimately, as I have said in the past, I would like to earn my way onto the Morgan Stanley Board of Directors.–My wife and I very much enjoyed living in London. I was thrilled with my work experience in Europe. At the right time and only if it servesthe Firm's interest, I would like to move to London.

What training, other job experience(s) and/or Divisional management support would help you reach your goals and improve your effectiveness?

I believe it is primarily continued solid performance in my existing job that will help me reach my career goals at the Firm. However, other experiences always grow a person's skill set.—

What training have you participated in this past year?

I read the One Minute Manager. I regularly read (and I encourage others to read) the various memoranda that come in from Skadden, Arps; Wachtell, Simpson Thacher; Cleary, Gottlieb; et. al. No other meaningful training opportunities were made availabletome.—

Commercial Orientation:

		Outside IBD
Perella, Joseph R. (N) (EvDir) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	5	Bill is very strong at managing relationships in that he uses all the resources of the Firm to get business. He needs to be careful about conflicts; that is, he has a tendency to play out a situation that is ripe for potential conflict rather than confronting the situation. It is not going to go away and ignoring it only magnifies the potential explosion. Tireless new business solicitor.
Scott, Robert G (N) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	5	Bill is very aggressive and he pushes clients hard to gain mandates. Bill is very bright and his approach to new opportunity is often creative. Very good record at first time business. Bill has some standing in the Chicago Market but nothing like D. Gray.

		Outside IBD
Perella, Joseph R. (N) (EvDir) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	4	Very good knowledge of Firm products and services. Judgment and reasoning on potential conflicts was flawed, e.g., automotive retailing sector.
Scott, Robert G (N) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	5	Bill has excellent business skills. He is good with equity products as well as with M&A. Bill is committed to MS and he works long hours. While Bill is bright, his judgment is sometimes flawed. He is so focused on his own agenda that he can lose perspective. He has the ability to steamroll colleagues while accomplishing his goals.
		Colleague Comments
		Within IBD
Abdel-Meguid, Tarek F (N)	4	Bill is an astute and highly effective banker, with a very high degree of commitment. Although he is quite easy to deal with, for some reason he is one of the most often complained about MDs (by his partners).
Feldman, Kirsten J (N)	5	Good overall product knowledge across the board; Bill could execute any kind of product. High level of commitment and initiative. Communicates often and well with teams. Judgment is usually very good (unless he is trying promote a specific outcome).
Kauffman, Richard L. (N)	6	Bill is extraordinarily committed to his clients and the Firm. He spends weekends entertaining clients and he works very long hours. He is an excellent project manager, keeping his fingers on appropriate details, asking the right questions, running the process nicely along. He hones in on the key client problems and attacks them.
Kirkland, Derek G. (N)	6	Outstanding professional skills at every level, from CFO communication to understanding of client politics to the mid-period discount rate adjustment of a DCF. Bill eats, sleeps, dreams about banking. The result speaks for itself.
Parr, Gary W. (N)	6	Bill knows our business as well as anyone and applies his knowledge very effectively. Initiative: Bill works very hard, constantly pushing himself to pursue more business opportunities. He communicates via voice mail more often and more effectively than anyone else in the Firm. Bill can at times impose himself into subjects where he should allow others with expertise and work effort to be the lead with the client. This desire to be the lead on some issues actually can reduce other's desires to help, which creates more work for Bill.
		Outside IBD
Alley, Steven J. (N) (Equity)	6	Bill is a great communicator. He is an excellent ambassador for the Firm. He is a tireless worker.
Gantsoudes, James G (N) (GCM - Joint Venture)	6	Bill's product knowledge across a diverse industry base is powerful when combined with his experience and market judgements. Great presentation skills, thinks well on his feet, good problem solver. Both oral and written communication skills at the highest levels.
Pasciucco, Gerard (L) (GCM - Joint Venture)		Excellent at communicating across the team on client matters. Very focused on client objectives. Hard working.

Friedman, Philip W. (N) (Global Investor Group)	5	Bill has always impressed me with his ability to quickly grasp the key issues of any industry. His presentation skills (at pitches and recruiting meetings) are very strong. My only criticism of Bill is that he needs to gain the respect of the research Analysts. He does not give them the warm and fuzzy feeling that he cares about their franchise.

Downward Comments

Outside IBD

Perella, Joseph R. (N) (EvDir) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	4	Strong advocate of regional offices in U.S. Took too long to clarify Canadian unit's responsibilities by individual, i.e., Crompton& Dey. Judgment and reasoning at times peculiar. Example: Told us Gordon Dean had offered to move to another firm after he (Bill) brought under control automotive retailing potential conflicts; he was just using poor judgment and infecting John Adams with it as well. Chicago team developing nicely to his credit.
Scott, Robert G (N) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	5	Bill has good professional skills and he leads by example. He pays attention to what his people are doing and they appreciate it. He is a good communicator, frequent voice mailing. Sometimes he seems overly concerned with getting attention.

Colleague Comments

Within IBD

Abdel-Meguid, Tarek F (N)	3	I believe Bill has stature which is deserving of greater accomplishment in this arena than has been the case.
Feldman, Kirsten J (N)	4	Communicates well across the Firm. Sets a good example in terms of work ethic. Could be more straightforward and upfront with fellow MDs particularly with respect to conflicts and new business, i.e., he did not tell Munger and myself that someone else had been hired on a project we were pitching for until a week later while we were continuing to do work. The client ended up telling us, which was quite embarrassing.
Kauffman, Richard L. (N)	5	While Bill is an effective leader, I get the impression that he is a little too demanding on his direct reports. They are afraid of Bill's reaction if they do not perform. It's great to set high standards, but I hope he's not giving ulcers. The effect of this tendency is multiple asking of the same question by team members, "are you sure;" and blue books that weigh in by the pound.
Kirkland, Derek G. (N)	6	Outstanding. I would follow Bill anywhere (almost). Bill is the kind of colleague that will keep me at MSCo. long after the money is in the bank.
Parr, Gary W. (N)	4	Bill leads by example with his hard work and initiative. Others are led by this effort. See previous question.

Outside IBD

Alley, Steven J. (N) (Equity)	-	N/A
Gantsoudes, James G (N) (GCM - Joint Venture)	5	Bill gets the most out of his people. He is a good mentor; he helps develop younger professionals and is a great motivator. He knows what's going on with each of his staff and has gained their loyalty by his fair treatment.
Pasciucco, Gerard (L) (GCM - Joint Venture)	-	Leads by example; great player/coll. A pleasure to work with.
Friedman, Philip W. (N) (Global Investor Group)	5	Bill does a great job at providing leadership to the bankers in Chicago. The bankers in his region are among the hardest working I have seen. Again, my only concern is that he is not as sensitive as he should be to the research franchise of the Analysts. This is mostly true of the tech Analysts, who are admittedly the most difficult group to deal with.

Firm Contribution:
		Downward Comments
		Outside IBD
Perella, Joseph R. (N) (EvDir) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	4	Makes strong effort at contributing across the Firm. Too quick to accuse others of using unfair practice to lobby for their point of view, e.g., Kirsten on auto retailing, no basis in fact. Strong salesman for regional corporate finance; supports regional offices.
Scott, Robert G (N) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	5	While Bill is helpful to others, some question his motives. He is very ambitious and this ambition is occasionally too close to the surface. Our market share had improved in Chicago; what happened this year?
		Colleague Comments
		Within IBD
Abdel-Meguid, Tarek F (N)	4	His colleagues seem to be wary of his motives generally, I believe, because the manner in which he deals with certain external and clients' matters (i.e, with greater shrewdness) is interpreted as the way in which he deals with his colleagues.
Kauffman, Richard L. (N)	6	Bill is a franchise player. He represents the Firm well in the region. He contributes to committees, recruits and tries to build his team. He works to support other departments and tries to promote a partnership culture. He's probably the only colleague who will ask my opinion or support on a partner-to-partner basis.
Kirkland, Derek G. (N)	6	Outstanding. Bill knows our Firm, and works broadly for the franchise as well as narrowly on a deal by deal basis.
Parr, Gary W. (N)	5	Bill works hard for MS. As noted, he can at times appear to be reaching for personal gain in front of a client or colleagues rather than promoting others on the team who have expertise or have done the work. Bill represents MS well in the community, and is clearly building a reputation in the Midwest for himself and MS which will bring in business.
		Outside IBD
Alley, Steven J. (N) (Equity)	6	Excellent one Firm player.
Gautsoudes, James G (N) (GCM - Joint Venture)	6	Incredibly diligent professional who is willing to do anything to win a mandates. By virtue of this intensity Bill is recognized as someone who enhances the value of the Firm. Broad based contributor as evidenced by Firmwide activities.
Pasciucco, Gerard (L) (GCM - Joint Venture)		Very aggressive in trying to get more business across the Firm; tries to make everyone look good. A pleasure to work with.
Friedman, Philip W. (N) (Global Investor Group)	4	Bill has done a great job at the recruiting functions I have been involved with, Northwestern recruiting. Bill does not appear to be as interested in preserving the franchise of the research Analysts as he should be. He was not as sensitive as he should have been during the Metromail and Teletek transactions. Chuck was going through a difficult crunch period, and Bill was as demanding as ever.
Overall Rating and Summary Comments: Is this individual on track? What does this individual need to do to get to the next performance and/or promotion level?
		Downward Comments
		Outside IBD
Perella, Joseph R. (N) (EvDir) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	5	Last year I recommended Bill not try so hard, to say no once in a while to a request for his involvement. He has improved greatly and seems to be a bit more relaxed. However, there is still a tendency to be accusatory about NY colleagues, perhaps it's the pressure, but he needs to watch this.
Scott, Robert G (N) (Institutional Securities Mgmt)	5	Bill has high potential. He has some problems with senior colleagues which must be dealt with to allow him to move on.

de Montfort, Piers (N)	4	Bill is a great team player regularly communicating updates and ensuring a cross boarder team is kept up to speed. His commitment is restricted by the time of day many of his messages are left. Strong and superlative manager of people and teams.

Gantsoudes, James G (N) (GCM - Joint Venture)	6	Bill is on track to be an outstanding senior banker.
Friedman, Philip W. (N) (Global Investor Group)	5	Bill is clearly on track. The only criticism I would levy is a need to be more sensitive to the Analyst franchise. This is true in general of more regional coverage Officers than the industry coverage Officers.

Leadership

* 6 Bill leads by example. He is as hard working and productive as anyone I've seen in the business; anyone. He uses his time extremely efficiently. From my perspective it is a delight to work with Bill because he gets just as involved as he needs to, not too much or too little. He has made a dramatic (positive) change to the Chicago office in terms of work ethic and strategic direction. He has us focused on the right accounts and it is clearly reflected in the revenue production since 1993.
* 6 Sets great vision. Very clear, calm mostly. Works hard.
* 5 Good team leader. Treats people fairly and with respect. Is open and is a good communicator. Strong work ethic and leads by example.
* 5 Bill provides an excellent example of energy, commitment and motivation in developing business. Both in terms of long-term relationship building and specific transactional focus.
* 5 Bill is an extremely clear and focused leader who articulates the objectives for our business unit and consistently provides whatever assistance is needed to achieve those objectives. He is extremely fair while at the same time being demanding. He sets very high standards for those who work for him, but asks nothing of his subordinates that he is not prepared to do and more.
* 5 The vision articulated could be slightly more customized, i.e., rather than to simply dominate the market place. However Bill's energy, enthusiasm, commitment inspire people around him to dominate. Bill has reacted quickly and effectively whenever we have had an issue that could not be resolved internally, e.g., sorting out coverage (Brad C. wanted the list revised after 6 mos.). Bill's work ethic sets a terrific example and positions Bill to resolve many issues, i.e., great credibility.
* 6 Bill is a very hard working, outstanding banker and manager. He has all of the qualities mentioned in this category in abundance. It is hard to over-estimate the amount of respect for him based on his positive attitude and commitment to the job. He truly leads by example and has been the individual most responsible for the success of the regional offices.
* 3 Bill appears to generate a fierce loyalty among his troops but is quick to point fingers for missed business. Is loyalty based upon respect or fear? Will stretch the truth or omit relevant facts if it improves his position.
* 6 Extremely commercial. Always seeking opportunities to make money for the Firm. Bill leads very much by example; among the strongest (if not the strongest) work ethic of any MD I know. Willing to spend time coaching those who work for him.
* 6 Bill is an excellent leader. Always willing to help. Focused on revenues. Very good coach. Strong problem solver. Committed to leadership role. Leads by example.
* 6 Bill is very dedicated to building the MS regions into a much stronger and more profitable part of the Morgan Stanely I.B. universe: clearly demonstrated to date. Bill is a terrific role model, both a leader as well as a mentor and when needed, a friend. Highly respected by me, as well as the clients I cover with him. For someone so high up, Bill has spent significant time with me, grounding me in the skills I will need to progress and become a great Investment Banker. First class banker, first class person.
* 6 Bill is arguably the best coverage officer I have worked with. The client is always Bill's first objective. He actively seeks the opinions of other team members to come up with the right answer for the client. Bill is outstanding at dealing with difficult clients. He also has an outstanding commercial sense. Bill, despite his schedule, always makes a point of offering feedback and encouraging the team.
* 6 Bill is a strong leader. He communicates effectively and keeps team members informed. He clearly identifies expectations and delegates responsibility. The only deficiency is that Bill does not spend much time teaching or coaching, although that is tempered somewhat by the fact that 1996 has been an incredibly busy year for all of us.

Management

* 6 Bill is a compassionate manager. Despite being incredibly busy with clients and transactions, Bill takes the time to maintain a close personal relationship with everyone in the office and I believe the other regional offices as well. He is an excellent communicator, he has great judgment, he confronts conflict both internally and externally and resolves them logically. He is totally honest and trustworthy. Simply put, Bill is the best manager I've seen in my career.
* 6 Great delegator. Good encouragement. Insightful judgments. Helpful in Firm. Concerned with colleagues.
* 4 A good manager. Provides real time feedback (very unusual in my experience). Is honest and straight forward to deal with. Is a good facilitator in making sure the organization is supporting regional initiatives.
* 5 Bill's greatest strength as a manager is his position of full participation by mid and junior level professionals.
* 6 Bill does an excellent job of delegating clear and full authority and accountability. I believe that each one of his reports understands what is required of them and how they will be judged. He is particularly focused on providing whatever resources we believe the Firm needs to devote to a particular assignment and ensuring that we get them.
* 5 I support Bill's management style in spades. He gives us lots of room so that we can build and be accountable for one franchise while on the other hand he ensures we have the resources and is available as required to assist in resolution of office issues. Bill is a direct communicator and lets us know where we stand at all times. Bill was more involved in '96 than '95 because of recruiting etc. to the benefit of the franchise. We are increasing market share.
* 5 Bill is available to anyone in the office at all times. This direct participation is important to his effectiveness as a manager. He is close to what is going on and gives direction and resolves conflict before it has begun. Even when we disagree he will listen and respond thoughtfully. This is important in creating an environment of fairness.

Ratin	Comments
* 4	Bill is a talented manager in terms of motivating his direct subordinates but has a tendency to overstate his involvement in transactions and unilaterally make decisions about resources that are detrimental to other parts of the division. A savvy and aggressive style which manifests itself in dubious ways at times, especially with regard to trust.
* 6	Provides support internally and with clients when needed; otherwise, delegates where appropriate. Bill does an outstanding job of keeping team members informed via voice mail and cc mail.
* 6	Bill juggles many balls effectively in his management role. Has been very helpful to us in Houston in organizing our office. Has very strong natural management capabilities. Does not let management responsibilities slip due to competing time pressures.
* 5	Bill is terrific trainer and support of junior bankers. He is very demanding and can be critical. I view him as a professor, both in control of the grade as well as developing the student. He is very good at both. I enjoy working with Bill. Should encourage and participate more office functions to build strong bonds between people. I feel free to talk to Bill and he maintains an open door policy. I may have left MS without Bill's assistance and guidance.
* 6	Bill delegates full responsibility but doesn't disappear from projects. Bill always makes sure all team members are part of important decisions. While Bill pushes people hard, he does recognize other time commitments.
* 5	Bill is also an outstanding manger. He identifies the problem and assigns the tasks to be completed. He solicits input from team members and does a good job of including team members in the decision making process. He also works to provide opportunities for junior team members to take an active role in client presentations or board meetings.

Summary Comments

* 6	Bill is a great banker, a hard worker, a driven professional and a tough competitor. He should do more within MS. He should be promoted to more responsibility. He is tough but fair.
* 5	Bill is an effective leader and a good manager which is an unusual combination.
* 5	Bill is very effective in his role.
* 6	Bill is an extremely effective senior banker. His commercial orientation as well as his overall investment banking skills are outstanding. He is extremely focused and organized, and I simply don't know of any Managing Director who works harder or is more committed to his job than Bill.
* 5	Bill is tremendously effective at both a manager/overseer of our business and an advocate for additional resources. His limitation is that he is not really involved in calling on Canadian clients (not his job) and from Chicago it is sometimes difficult to generate a coordinated view amongst departments.
* 6	Bill is absolutely effective in his job. To be even more effective I would like to see him be more supportive on enhancing productivity through better utilization of resources. This is our key to growing revenue in my opinion.
* 6	Extremely.
* 6	Bill is an excellent leader/manager. Does a super job in his role as regional office head.
* 6	Extremely.
* 6	Bill is incredibly effective in his job and serves as a role model (in most respects) for all of us in the Chicago office. The one thing which he should stop doing is exaggerating the truth, particularly with clients. It hurts his credibility, particularly with junior team members who know that he is exaggerating.

Review of 1996 Firmwide Performance E Performance

Accomplishments:

Summarize what the evaluatee accomplished in 1996 relative to objectives/responsibilities. Highlight any significant contributions or business done. Comment on how this individual has improved his/her performance during 1996.

Great revenue year for Bill, for Chicago and for the regional offices. Notables: Chrysler defense, IPO Metromail, Allstate M&A, IPO Teletek, others. Hand on management of regions; always there for troops. Career saving moves: Oelerich, Spence, Dean, Pasko. Recruiting: Crompton, Sandy Thompson, David Togut. Great first-time business results. Crisis management: Wolfenberger leaves, we keep Metromail and Teletek.

Commercial Orientation:

Hungry, aggressive coverage officer; pushes hard to get mandates. Tireless new business pursuit; excellent first-time business results. Focuses on client needs, on bringing all MS resources to bear on opportunity. A tornado causes destruction; needs to be a bit more careful about conflicts. They don't go away, we have to deal with them straight up.

Professional Skills:

Knows our business as well as anyone and applies such knowledge well. Initiative: One of the hardest working MD's, tireless communicator. Presentation skills are very strong. Eats, sleeps and drinks investment banking; entertains clients on weekends. Sometimes imposes himself into subjects where others have more expertise; this can cause him more work in the end if not corrected. Steamroller okay on new business, not internally.

Leadership and Management Skills:

Strong advocate and supporter of MS regional effort. Clearly able to get his people to work hard; leads by example. Be more straight forward and upfront with other MD's. Seen to exaggerate the truth, with clients, thereby hurting his credibility with junior team members. Productivity; resource utilization; demands on direct reports; Are they then in overkill mode because they operate in fear?

Firm Contribution:

Tries hard to contribute Firm wide, e.g. PCS. Franchise player. Very active in pro bono work. Ambition can drive his to act/decide in a manner that causes some of his partners to see him as reaching for personal gain rather than promoting others who have the expertise or have done the work. A hard driving person like Bill have to continue to work hard on this. Be more sensitive to research Analyst's franchise issues.

Overall Rating and Summary Comments:

Great potential to be a Senior Banker. Deal with problems you have with senior colleagues in order to move up.

Review of 1996 Firmwide Performance E Performance

What is the Evaluatee being asked to do in 1997? Be specific about goals and responsibilities. Are there any job experiences/assignments or training activities that you would recommend to improve identified development needs and performance?

Bill should continue to enhance MS's franchise; he is one of the few who have the force of personality as well as the skills to do so. His ambition is so close to the surface, however, that it can dilute his effectiveness and trust, internally at MS. Evaluatee's Comments: I have enjoyed 1996; it has been a great year. I appreciate the candor of the comments. The issues regarding dealing with fellow partners result from one incident: Cormax-Cross Latinal, et. al. I feel I am being penalized by others when I called foul on what they were doing. It is clear to me that the fact pattern and sequence of events have never been understood. Having said that, I will redouble my efforts in 1997 to address and be sensitive to the issues. This issue stung me in the reviews as I generally strive to be a team player and demand the same from others. I look forward to a successful and fun 1997. Again, thanks for the comments.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This is tape number one of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Bruce Fiedorek in the matter of Coleman versus Morgan Stanley.

This deposition is being held at Kirkland & Ellis located at 153 East 53rd Street, Manhattan, New York, on December 6, 2004 at approximately 12:58 p.m.

Will counsel please introduce themselves.

MR. BYMAN: My name is Bob Byman for the plaintiff.

MR. CLARE: Thomas Clare from Kirkland & Ellis, LLP here on behalf of Morgan Stanley and also the witness, Bruce Fiedorek.

I have with me Mr. Jim Doyle from Morgan Stanley's law department.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Will the court reporter please swear in the witness.

BRUCE FIEDOREK, called as a witness, having been duly sworn by a Notary Public, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION BY MR. BYMAN:

Q. Would you state your full name for the record, please.

A. Bruce Fiedorek.

Q. Mr. Fiedorek, before we went on the record, I asked your lawyer to advise you that I have a learning disability about sounds. And if I mispronounce your name, I don't intend to and I don't intend to be rude. I'll do my best.

I'd also like to ask you to do your best to listen to my questions and answers them. And if for some reason you don't understand a question, will you tell me that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Fiedorek, would you tell the ladies and gentlemen of the jury where you reside?

You have already said that before this, but we need to do this on the sworn portion.

A. Yes, I reside in New York City.

Q. How old are you, sir?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. 53.
Q. What is your educational background?
A. Public high school; college, Yale, 1973; Columbia, MBA, 1976.
Q. Would you tell us how you have been employed since 1976?
A. I have been employed by Morgan Stanley since 1976.
Q. Can you take me through the titles you have held at Morgan Stanley?
A. I entered as an associate, became a vice-president approximately five years after entering Morgan Stanley or four years. Two years later became a principal, and two years after that, which was 1984, became a managing director. And I was a managing director through early 1997. And while maintaining that title, I was made a vice chairman of the securities business of Morgan Stanley in early 1997. And in 2003, I believe it is early 2003, I went on a revision of status to become a senior advisor.
That's my current title, senior advisor.

Q. In your current capacity, to whom do you report?
A. I actually report to Vicram Pandit, who is president of the securities business of Morgan Stanley.
Q. When you were vice chairman, to whom did you report?
A. Also to Vic.
Q. So there were no changes in your reporting duties as a result of your change in title, at least to senior advisor?
A. No, same reporting line.
Q. Were there any changes in your responsibilities?
A. My role as senior advisor simply reflects that I'm no longer spending full time on Morgan Stanley business. I'm involved in some other personal activities in addition to my continuing professional role of Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do any of those personal activities have to do with investment banking?
A. No, sir.
Q. At any point in your career at Morgan Stanley, did William Strong report to you?

A. No, sir.
Q. Did he ever report to you through an intermediary?
A. No, sir.
Q. Did you ever have any supervisory relationship to Mr. Strong?
A. No, sir.
Q. Mr. Fiedorek, have you ever given a deposition, before?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. So I take it that you are generally familiar with the process?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. As you know, we are here today because of a lawsuit between Coleman Partners Holdings and Morgan Stanley and it involves a transaction of Sunbeam Corporation.
Are you aware of that?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Have you ever seen any of the pleadings in this case?
A. No, sir.
Q. What, if anything, did you do to prepare yourself for today's deposition?

A. I had a meeting with counsel.
Q. Approximately how long did that take?
A. Approximately two hours.
Q. And by counsel, you mean Mr. Clare and Mr. Doyle?
A. Yes.
Q. Did that occur today?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And was anything shown to you that refreshed your recollection?
A. I was shown some materials, yes, sir.
Q. Did any of those materials help you recall things?
A. Only in a very limited way.
Q. Well, to the extent that they refreshed your recollection at all, do you recall what it was that you saw?
A. Well, I was shown -- you want --
MR. CLARE: What he --
A. I'm not sure I understand the question. You're looking for a description of what I was shown?
MR. CLARE: His question is a

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

little different than that, and appropriately limited to documents that you were shown that refreshed your recollection in some way about the historical events.

So to the extent that documents refreshed your recollection, you can identify the documents that you recall.

A. I would say that the documents that refreshed my recollection were limited to what my involvement with the Sunbeam transaction was, and Sunbeam as a client. It was quite limited.

Q. Do you recall any of the things that you saw that helped refresh your recollection; can you describe them to me?

A. I was shown a package of solicitation materials, which were used at a meeting where Morgan Stanley presented its credentials to give advice to Sunbeam.

MR. BYMAN: Tom, I didn't know the protocol, so I only have two copies of most of the stuff that I have here.

MR. CLARE: That's fine.

Q. Let me show you, Mr. Fiedorek, what has been previously marked as CPH-287.

Is that the package to which you just referred?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What else did you see, if you recall, and I'm talking about this morning, to help refresh your recollection?

A. Well, really very little refreshed my recollection because I wasn't involved in the transactions that came out of this engagement.

Q. Okay. Let's start with that.

What was your involvement with this transaction?

A. I had no involvement with the transaction. My involvement with Sunbeam was simply and only at the initial solicitation meeting where I did participate.

Q. The initial meeting to which you refer was a meeting that occurred in April of 1997; is that right?

A. If that was the initial solicitation where we presented our credentials, yes. I don't really recall the specific date.

Q. Let me show you what's previously been marked CPH-78.

This is a copy of an e-mail that shows you in the chain, and I'm really interested not so much in the e-mail that's addressed to you, but the one to which it was a reply that refers to a team from Morgan Stanley including Bruce Fiedorek and others will be meeting with Al Dunlap of Sunbeam.

Does that help refresh your recollection?

A. Yes, that's the meeting I was referring to. That was a solicitation meeting to present our credentials.

Q. What did you do to prepare for that meeting?

A. I don't recall.

Q. What was your understanding of the purpose of the meeting?

A. To present our credentials to act on Sunbeam's behalf with respect to investment banking advice.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the preparation of the package of materials that's been marked as Exhibit 287?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you review that package of materials?

A. I don't recall.

Q. As you looked at it today, did you have any recollection of having seen it before?

A. Vaguely.

Q. Let's turn to the second page of 287. That seems to be an organization chart or a Morgan Stanley team chart to be more precise.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You are listed at the top of the team; is that accurate?

A. I'm listed at the top of the page, and that would reflect that I was the most senior Morgan Stanley representative at the meeting.

Q. Certainly you were senior to all of the people that are otherwise indicated on this page?

A. Yes, sir.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Were any of these people direct reports to you at the time?
A. Not at that time, no.
Q. Did any of these people report to you indirectly?
A. No.
Q. Who were your direct reports at the time?
A. At that time I had no direct reports.
Q. What were your duties?
A. I was a vice chairman of the securities business of Morgan Stanley with focus on the merger and acquisition business line, and I was responsible for developing merger and acquisition business, and in certain cases, executing merger and acquisition merger business. I had no management responsibilities at that point.
Q. Did the Sunbeam engagement as it was envisioned in April of 1997 fall within your portfolio?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. I was at the meeting for the solicitation part of my function. It was not envisioned that I would execute the business if we obtained the business. After we were successful in getting the business, I was not involved in the execution.

Q. Was there some vision as to who would be in charge of execution?
A. My recollection is that there was, yes.
Q. And who was to be in charge?
A. The people who would be involved in terms of the most senior people would be other people who were at the meeting with merger and acquisition background. Those included Bill Strong, Jim Stynes, Bob Kitts.
Q. Other than yourself, Mr. Stynes, Mr. Kitts and Mr. Strong, did anyone else attend the meeting in Florida?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You do recall that meeting was in Florida at Sunbeam's offices?
A. Yes, but to be honest, my recollection is pretty vague, but yes.
Q. Do you recall if it was a one day meeting or a one day trip as opposed to an overnight trip?

A. I don't.
Q. With respect to Mr. Strong, Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts, they are shown, at least on this chart to the extent that this was an organizational chart, as being on the same level.
In March of 1997, was that correct, were they all of the same title and stature within Morgan Stanley?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. Well, they are all managing directors of Morgan Stanley. They each had different responsibilities.
Q. Well, I guess what I'm driving at, Mr. Fiedorek, is whether or not they all have the same title. Was there any one or two of them that was senior or superior to the others?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. In terms of time in the business, extent of superiors, the most experienced would have been Mr. Strong followed by Mr. Stynes followed by Mr. Kitts.

Q. What was your understanding of Mr. Strong's background as of April of 1997?
A. He, as I recall, had been an M&A professional elsewhere on Wall Street.
Q. Was that Solomon Brothers?
A. Yes, sir.
And had been recruited to Morgan Stanley. His role at Morgan Stanley was to be a senior coverage banker with regional responsibility and I believe at that point, he was already resident in Chicago, was running the Chicago investment banking function.
Q. For Solomon Brothers?
A. No, no, for Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do you know what ROG stands for?
A. I don't. It might have something to do with regional offices, regional office group.
Q. Sounds like a fair guess, but I take it that is a guess?
A. That is a guess.
Q. Under Mr. Kitts' name, it's listed global head BDG.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 18

Do you know what that stands for?
A. Yes, business development group.
Q. What was your understanding of Mr. Stynes' and Mr. Kitts' background as of April of 1997?
A. Mr. Stynes was managing director in the mergers and acquisitions department of Morgan Stanley. He was a generalist responsible for business development and execution across a range of industries, April of 1997. Client distribution.
Mr. Kitts was head of BDG which I described as business development group which was a business development function.
Q. Tell me everything that you recall from the visit down to Florida for the presentation to Sunbeam.
A. I have very little recollection of the meeting.
Q. Do you recall who from Sunbeam participated?
A. I recall meeting Mr. Dunlap.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Kirsch?
A. I recall meeting him, but it's a vague recollection honestly and I can't honestly remember whether he was in the meeting. It would make sense that he was in the meeting but I don't recall specifically.

Q. You understood that he was the chief financial officer?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you meet Mr. Fannin, the general counsel?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall if there was anyone other than Mr. Dunlap there from Sunbeam?
A. It's possible Mr. Kirsch was. It's possible that others were, but I just don't recall.
Q. Do you recall how long the meeting took?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall who spoke at the meeting?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall who from Morgan Stanley took the lead, if there was somebody from Morgan Stanley that took the lead in making the presentation?
A. Well, I certainly recall that I did not take the lead. And I believe that much of the discussion probably would have been conducted by Messrs. Stynes and Kitts, but I really do not have much of a recollection of the meeting.

Q. Do you know how the meeting was set up, who arranged it?
A. I believe the meeting was set up through Bill Strong, who as I remember, had previously had some type of relationship or at least some basis for dialogue with Mr. Dunlap.
Q. What do you recall about Mr. Strong's prior relationship with Mr. Dunlap?
A. I really don't have any specific recollection.
Q. Do you recall if Mr. Strong participated at all?
A. I don't really have much of a recollection of the meeting. I believe he would have, but I really don't recall specifically.
Q. Other than Exhibit 287, which is in front of you, do you recall any pieces of paper being at the meeting or exchanged?

A. No.
Q. Do you recall if a copy of 2887 was left with Sunbeam?
A. I don't.
Q. In making similar pitches to other clients, is it typical to leave a hard copy of a presentation such as this with a client?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. It wouldn't be out of the ordinary.
Q. If you would, on Exhibit 287 turn to a page that has a number 2577 on it. You'll see some handwriting.
A. 2577?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting on the document? And I recognize that it is faint, but if you're able to make it out, can you tell me?
A. Well, I can somewhat make it out.
Q. Do you recognize --
A. Do I recognize it?
Q. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 22

A. I don't recognize it.
Q. I take it it is not yours?
A. It is not mine, no.
Q. And turn back to the previous page, 2576. Again, there is handwriting on the page. Do you recognize that handwriting?
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you recall that at the meeting in Florida in April of 1997 that three potential strategic alternatives were discussed?
A. I really have no real recollection of the discussion at the meeting.
Q. I take it that this page doesn't refresh your recollection that strategic acquisition, recapitalization, share repurchase or sale of the company were suggested as three distinct alternatives?
A. Well, the page certainly reflects those as alternatives and it would have made sense that they would be discussed but I don't recall the discussion.
Q. Do you have any recollection of there being any deviants in substance from the written presentation of what was actually discussed at the meeting in Florida in April of 1997?

A. I have very little recollection of the discussion let alone deviance from the materials, I'm sorry.
Q. So you have no recollection that there was a deviation, I take it?
A. No, I do not have any recollection that there was.
Q. You have no recollection of somebody during the presentation saying, whoops, we didn't mean to show that slide or ripping one or more slides out of the presentation?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you recall whether or not this was presented in hard copy as opposed to somebody having a projector and throwing this up on a screen?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall if this presentation was in a book that was in color?
A. I don't recall.

Page 24

Q. Do you recall if it was a spiral bound book or loose pages?
A. I'm sorry, I don't recall.
Q. You don't have to be sorry. I'm just trying to find out what you do recall.
Prior to going to the meeting, do you recall any discussion about possible alternative potential strategic proposals to make to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall any discussions.
Q. Did you have anything to do with doing the background or research or development of any of these slides that are in the presentation, Exhibit 285?
A. I don't recall that I did, no.
Q. Do you recall if any of the three strategic alternatives shown on page 2576 were favored over the others? In other words, did Morgan Stanley suggest our first choice would be a strategic acquisition, but here are two other alternatives or were these presented as equals?
A. I don't recall.

Page 25

Q. As you sit here today knowing what

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 25

of these have made more sense to Sunbeam than the others?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question. I object to the hypothetical.
A. I really don't recall.
Q. Were you aware that after April of 1997 further meetings were held between Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam representatives in Florida?
A. Well, I was aware subsequent to this meeting that we did take on some type of engagement and had additional dialogue with the client. I don't have specific recollection of specific meetings or location of specific meeting.
Q. Sir, I'm going to show you what's been previously marked as Exhibit 67.
MR. BYMAN: Tom, I apologize. I have one copy of it marked as Exhibit 67. I have what I think is identical but it is not marked.
To the extent that they are not identical, there is no trick intended. I wanted them to be identical.

Page 26

MR. CLARE: That's fine. They have different Bates numbers on them. I wanted to make sure we had the same thing.
Q. Mr. Fiedorek, I have shown you what's marked as CPH Exhibit 67. And this at least purports to be a memorandum to a distribution list from a group of individuals including yourself.
Do you recall ever seeing this before?
A. I saw this earlier today.
Q. Prior to seeing it today, do you have any recollection of having seen it at or about the time it was issued in August of 1997?
A. I really don't have a recollection.
Q. And seeing it earlier today with your attorney, seeing it now doesn't refresh your recollection?
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you have any recollection inconsistent with anything in the document -- and let me stop for a moment.
When you saw it earlier today, did you read it?

Page 27

A. Not really, no.
Q. Just skimmed it?
A. I really skimmed the first page basically.
Q. The record will show that you haven't read it very closely now either.
A. No, I haven't.
Q. Let me ask you to take a look at the second page of the document.
A. Okay.
Q. There is a paragraph under background and about halfway down it refers to WH Strong, W -- it should be RW Kitts, JW Stynes and AJ Fuchs met with Al Dunlap and Russ Kirsch in Florida on July 24, 1997 to discuss in detail four specific acquisition candidates, including Alpha on July 27, 1997.
And then it goes on to describe a group of individuals at another meeting.
Were you aware of those two meetings?
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you have any recollection contrary to what is stated here that these two meetings occurred?

Page 28

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question and lack of foundation.
A. What was your question again? I apologize.
Q. Do you have any recollection inconsistent with the fact that there was a meeting in Florida on July 24, 1997 between Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kirsch on the one hand and Mr. Strong, Mr. Kitts, Mr. Stynes and Mr. Fuchs on the other?
MR. CLARE: I renew my objection.
A. I have no basis for any different recollection.
Q. Do you have any recollection inconsistent with there being another meeting on July 27, 1997 between Morgan Stanley representatives and Sunbeam representatives?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I'm sorry. I think I lost track of your question. I apologize.
Q. I take it you don't recall that any such meetings occurred?
A. I don't, no.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. I'm trying to do what we call in basketball the box out play to make sure you don't have a recollection that they didn't occur.

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question.

A. I'm an old basketball player, but I'm still not sure.

I have no recollection or information about such meetings different than what's here.

Q. That's all I was trying to get.

A. If that's what you're asking.

Q. It is.

Do you have any recollection of there being discussion or consideration of a hostile acquisition by Sunbeam of Black & Decker?

A. I take it that Alpha Corporation is meant to be Black & Decker.

Q. You shouldn't take it from my saying that. Let's say hostile acquisition of anyone.

A. I have a general recollection that there was discussion about a possible hostile acquisition at one point to be conducted on behalf of Sunbeam.

Q. And do you recall who the potential acquisition target was?

A. Actually, I don't.

Q. Could it have been Black & Decker?

A. It's possible. It could have been any one of a long list of companies.

Q. On the first page of Exhibit 67, the last sentence is styled question for the firm, does Morgan Stanley want to advise Laser and arrange the financing in a potentially hostile public offer for Alpha?

Was there some reason why a hostile offer required different conversation than a non-hostile offer?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was that?

A. A hostile offer is a market and public relations event and Morgan Stanley is a firm when it conducts such a transaction or a potential transaction on behalf of a client takes very seriously the relationship and reputational aspects of such an engagement. So it has been our practice to prepare materials which are then reviewed with a senior management group and senior banker group to discuss those and determine whether it was appropriate to proceed or not.

Q. So I take it that Exhibit 67 would be a typical type of memorandum prepared whenever a hostile takeover was considered?

A. Well, I have not looked at it extensively, but it does seem to be that type of memorandum, yes.

Q. And when you say that this would be reviewed by a senior management group, what individuals would comprise such a group, would you be a member of that group?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question, and also during what time period?

MR. BYMAN: I'm talking about this time period in August of 1997.

A. Typically, it would be reviewed with the senior managers of the investment banking division, so people like the individual or individuals who ran the key departments, the merger department, the corporate finance department, other departments, the individual who ran the overall division, and then as appropriate actually senior officer of the firm including potentially the chief executive of the firm.

Q. Would that group have included you as vice chairman for securities?

A. Not formally, but as a practical matter, I would have been involved at this point in time in that type of discussion.

Q. I guess I need to back up a little bit and get a better understanding of the Morgan Stanley organization in mid 1997.

I take it there was only one chairman at the time or maybe I shouldn't take it. Was there only one chairman?

A. I'm trying to remember it myself. Yes, there was only one chairman.

Q. Was there only one president of Morgan Stanley, and I don't mean of its wholly owned subsidiary, but of the Morgan Stanley parent?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. Back at that point in time, my recollection is that there were a chairman and chief executive officer, senior officers who ran the key business units of the firm. And then under that structure would be investment banking and a head of investment banking and then various departments of investment banking such as mergers and corporate finance.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. How many vice chairmen were there?

MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.

A. At that point in time, the position that I had was the vice chairman of the securities business so it was not Morgan Stanley as a public corporation, it was the securities business. And I believe at that point in time, there was only one person who had that title, which was me.

Q. Was there a chairman of the securities business?

A. Not at that time. I don't recall there being at that time.

Q. So there was a president of the securities business and a vice chairman and the two of you were the senior officers of that business?

Page 34

A. Yes, the vice chairman title though in terms of trying to explain this to you, was important as respects a marketing title in that it was meant to give me the best marketing card, business card, if you will for carrying out what I did, which was soliciting major merger and acquisition business and in some cases executing that business.

Q. Did you have any involvement at all with Sunbeam after the April 1997 meeting that you attended in Florida?

A. No, sir, I don't recall any.

Q. Did you transition in any way to pass over any responsibilities that you had had in Sunbeam to some other individual?

A. No, a transition was not really necessary. I was there to present the credentials at the April meeting, the original solicitation meeting, help in presenting the credentials of the firm. And it was presumed going into that meeting that if we were successful in having an engagement that it was going to be carried out by others and so there was no reason to -- no necessity of a transition.

Q. And I guess my question is, what was the presumption as to who those others would be, who was it that was going to be in charge after you were no longer involved?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. Well, it was anticipated that the senior individuals who were at that solicitation meeting other than myself would be conducting the engagement. So in other words, Bill Strong, Jim Stynes and Bob Kitts.

Q. And to the extent that Mr. Strong, Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts could not agree by consensus on how to handle the engagement, did one of them have the power over the others to make decisions?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Incomplete hypothetical and foundation.

A. I really don't have any knowledge of how they worked as a team as a practical matter.

Q. Based upon your experience with Morgan Stanley, when three individuals of equal rank or title within the company are in charge of execution of an engagement, I take it from time to time they don't always agree one hundred percent on a course of action; would that be fair?

A. That is fair.

Q. And when they don't agree, how are those disputes reconciled?

MR. CLARE: I renew my prior objections to form, foundation and incomplete hypothetical.

A. It would typically involve consultation with some of the operating management of the firm such as the individuals running the merger group or the corporate finance group.

Q. In this case, in 1997, who would those individuals have been either by title or by name?

A. My successors in terms of managing the merger group were Gary Parr and Gil Lewis. They were global co-heads of mergers.

Q. And in mid 1997, would Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts have been direct reports to Mr. Parr and Mr. Lewis?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes, sir, I believe so.
Q. To whom would Mr. Strong be a direct report?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Lack of foundation.
A. I believe he would have reported to the head of corporate finance.
Q. And who is that?
A. I'm sorry, I don't recall.
Q. But I take it it was someone other than Mr. Parr or Mr. Lewis?
A. Yes.
Q. I'm going to ask you a hypothetical question which is probably going to draw a series of objections by Mr. Clare and maybe even rightfully so.
Suppose Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts and Mr. Strong could not agree so that it had to be resolved by going upstream in some way and then Mr. Parr and Mr. Lewis could not agree with the head of -- I'm sorry, did you say corporate finance?
A. Corporate finance, yes.
Q. If that scenario occurred, how would that conflict be resolved?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form, foundation and to the incomplete hypothetical.
A. The ultimate review of matters in the investment banking division would be the head of investment banking.
Q. And who was that in 1997?
A. That was Joseph Perella.
Actually, I believe the head of coverage was Terry Maguid now that I think about it.
Q. Now, at some point in time, did you become aware that an actual engagement letter was executed between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley?
A. Well, I knew that we ultimately did some business and it's our policy to do business with engagement letters signed, appropriate engagement letters signed, so I would assume that that was the case. But I had no specific knowledge of it.
MR. BYMAN: Tom, I apologize, I apparently only have one copy of Exhibit CPH70, but I believe this is the engagement letter. I suspect my questions will be brief on this, but.

Q. Mr. Fiedorek, have you ever seen a copy of Exhibit 70 before?
A. I don't believe I have.
Q. In the mid 1997 time frame, was there any such thing as a range of standard fees for transactions involving either the sale of a company of the size of Sunbeam or acquisition of companies in the 500 million plus range?
A. Well, at that time, Morgan Stanley had a merger and acquisition fee schedule, which was frequently the basis of our engagements or frequently the basis of pricing our services.
Q. This letter, if I read it correctly, provides for a fee in the event of a sale of Sunbeam in the amount of 4.25 percent of the aggregate value of the exchange.
Does that fall within the then published fee schedule or is it higher or lower?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question and to foundation.

Q. I'm looking at the last paragraph of the first page for sales transaction fee.
A. I'm sorry, the question again?
Q. The 4.25 percent sales transaction fee that's reflected, does that fall within the then published fee schedule that you referred to in your earlier answer or is it higher or lower?
MR. CLARE: I renew my prior objections.
A. I don't recall the detail specifics of the fee schedule, but my sense is it would be broadly consistent with my general recollection of the schedule.
Q. If I were to represent to you, sir, that Mr. Strong had at least stated to others that he thought that he had brought in a transaction with Sunbeam at a premium to ordinary rates, would that be consistent with your recollection or inconsistent?
A. I have no recollection of that.
Q. I don't mean that he said it. I mean, would the fact of him saying that make you question whether or not this fee was greater or less than ordinary rates?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

014933

A. I'm sorry. I'm not following the question.
Q. I'm asking you to accept as a given what may be incorrect because he didn't say to it me certainly, that Mr. Strong had said to others that he brought in Sunbeam business at a premium to what would otherwise be ordinary rates. Would that suggest to you, sir, that perhaps this fee in fact was a premium or does that not change your testimony?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and to the extent that it assumes facts that are not in evidence.
A. I'm confused by the question.
Q. Then let's just move on because I can't think of another way to say it.
A. I'm sorry.
Q. With respect to the acquisition fees that are listed in the letter and those are on the next page.
A. Yep.
Q. Based upon your recollection in 1997 of what typical fees for such acquisitions might be, do these fees fall within the ordinary range or are they above or below?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. I'm sorry, I just don't recall the specifics of the fee schedule.
MR. BYMAN: Tom, again I apologize and I hope this is the last time. I only have one copy of Exhibit 69 which I would like to show the witness.
Q. Take a look at Exhibit 69, sir, and tell me if you ever recall having seen it before.
A. I saw it earlier today in my review with counsel.
Q. When you saw it earlier today, did you recall that you had seen it before?
A. No, I did not.
Q. And you still don't have any recollection of having seen it before today?
A. I don't.
Q. Take a look at page 12 of the document. There is what appears to be a slide and some handwriting on it most notably because it has the word amateurs above Sunbeam Corporation?

Page 43

A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize that handwriting?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to what amateurs might mean?
A. No.
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
Q. Towards the back of the document, there are a list of -- excuse me, there is a group of contact pages and there should be a page 3922, which is the Morgan Stanley and company contact page.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to why you were listed as a contact person if you had had no further involvement after April?
A. I don't know why they would have done that.

Page 44

Q. Did anyone tell you that they were still using your name at least to pitch the business to Sunbeam?
A. Well, that implies that this is a pitch book. I don't know whether it is or not.
Q. Well, I'm really asking the question not in context with this page but in general.
Did anyone ever tell you after April of 1997 that despite the fact that you weren't being asked to do anything, they were still going to use your name?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. It wouldn't be typical to keep somebody's name on a working group list.
MR. BYMAN: I don't see a previous production number on this so I guess we're going to have to mark an exhibit. I have no idea what numbers I'm allowed to use. Since I only really have one exhibit, I'm not going to mark it, Tom, unless you can tell me with certainly what numbers we're allowed to use.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. I'm going to show you Morgan Stanley Bates production 47951 through 953. And my question really is just to ask you, sir, if you were aware that you were still being shown as one of the people involved in the Sunbeam transaction as of March 1998?
MR. CLARE: I object to the extent that it mischaracterizes what the document says.
A. This is a transaction announcement where an investment banking team announces to the investment banking department Morgan Stanley's involvement with the transaction. Our general approach to these has been to be inclusive, ecumenical, and to make sure that people who have been involved within an account are acknowledged at the point the transaction is actually announced. So even if you had only solicitation involvement as I did at a very early stage, it would be very typical to keep my name on this kind of memo.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to why you were listed not under solicitation involvement but rather as firm management?

Page 46

MR. CLARE: Objection. It calls for speculation.
A. Well, firm management was the area of the firm I was in at that point. This is simply identifying where people resided of the --
Q. By March?
A. -- organizational chart.
Q. Had your title changed by March of 1998?
A. No.
Q. So you were still a vice chairman of the securities business?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there anything on your business card that said firm management?
A. No, this is an organizational chart box. I think it is a cost center for accounting purposes. I was accounted for in something called firm management.
Q. Was that true the entire period from the time you became vice chairman of the securities business through 2003?
A. Yes, sir.
MR. BYMAN: This one I purposely only brought one copy of, Tom, because it's so thick. I presume everyone has this one memorized by now.

Page 47

Q. I'm showing you what's been previously marked as CPH-9, which are a set of discussion materials dated February 1998.
I'm going to presume from your earlier answers, Mr. Fiedorek, that you have never seen it before, but I need to ask you anyway: Have you ever seen it before?
A. I don't recall seeing it.
Q. Despite the fact that you didn't have any active involvement after April of 1997, did you maintain any, just overall awareness of what was going on in the Sunbeam engagement?
A. Only in the most limited fashion. I was aware that we were still involved with the company.
Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley was attempting to either find a buyer for Sunbeam or to find acquisition targets that Sunbeam could use its stock to acquire?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

Page 48

A. I really have no specific recollection of what our engagement was.
Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley was telling potential candidates either for acquisition or for purchase, that Sunbeam was a successful turn around store?
MR. CLARE: Objection to lack of foundation.
A. I have no recollection of Morgan Stanley having conversation or dialogue in the content of dialogue.
Q. Let me show you what's previously been marked as CPH-17. Have you ever seen that document before, sir?
A. No, sir.
Q. Are you familiar with the term comfort letter?
A. Yes.
Q. Does this appear to be a comfort letter?
A. Yes, it does appear to be a comfort letter.
Q. Has anyone ever told you other than your attorneys that in mid 1998 Morgan Stanley received a copy of a comfort letter that disclosed financial results that were less than expectations on the street for Sunbeam performance?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I have no knowledge or recollection.
Q. Do you recall where you were in March of 1998?
A. Physically?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. Where?
A. New York City, well, living in New York.
Q. Do you recall if you were away for business for any extended periods of time during March of 1998?
A. No.
Q. Did anyone from the Sunbeam team contact you for any reason in March of 1998 to get your input?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Let me show you what's been previously marked as CPH Exhibit 14, which is a copy of a press release issued by Sunbeam on March 19, 1998. Do you recall ever seeing that before?

Page 50

A. I saw it earlier today.
Q. Do you recall seeing it at the time in March of 1998?
A. No.
Q. To the best of your recollection, had you ever seen the press release or heard of its contents prior to today?
A. No, sir.
Q. Would it be fair to say then that no one sought your input as to the contents of this press release?
A. No one did.
Q. Just to follow up, I'm going to show you two more documents, CPH-16 and 112, and just ask you if you have ever seen either of those before?
A. No, sir, I haven't.
Q. Not even this morning with Mr. Clare?
A. I don't think so. I don't recall ever seeing these before.
Q. Mr. Fiedorek, I'm going to switch gears a little bit. I'd like to ask you some questions about the Morgan Stanley evaluation process.

A. Yes, sir.
Q. What is your understanding of the evaluation process within Morgan Stanley with respect to evaluating performance and whether people are meeting their goals and expectations?
MR. CLARE: Currently or during a particular time period?
MR. BYMAN: I'm trying to start off with just his general understanding. Obviously, we're going to get to specific evaluations. I don't think this is going to be a surprise to anybody.
MR. CLARE: I object to the preamble to your question.
MR. BYMAN: It was a preamble to satisfy your question.
MR. CLARE: I still object.
A. Can you repeat the question?
Q. What I would like to do is start off with your general knowledge of the Morgan Stanley evaluation process.
A. There is a well organized process for full time investment banking professionals, associates and above up through managing directors. It's what is termed a 360 degree process, by that meaning that individuals of any seniority rank are in a position to provide input on individuals of other seniority ranks either above or below them. The process is carried out annually. It involves extensive written inputs, which are then synthesized into an overall report. The design of the evaluations is to focus on one hand on achievement and strengths of an individual and hopefully be in a position to provide positive feedback on those, but then also to identify areas where there may be developmental needs and to identify those and, hopefully, put the individual in question with management in a position to address those and improve those areas as time marches on. The evaluations are used as a management tool, a development tool, and it is also part of the process for determining compensation.

Q. What role do the evaluations play in terms of determining compensation?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 53

A. Well, they are reflective of performance. They reflect certainly an important aspect of an individual's performance and they go into the mix, so to speak.
Q. Did the evaluations also play a role in determining retention decisions, whether to keep someone?
A. Yes, they do.
Q. Or promotion decisions?
A. Yes, sir, both.
Q. I think we have established that in 1997 no one actually reported to you. Have you ever had direct reports in the course of your Morgan Stanley experience?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. When you have direct reports, do you see a copy of the people to whom -- who report to you, do you see copies of their evaluation reports?
A. Yes.
Q. And I'm not sure I actually got that out as a question so let me try that again to make sure we're all clear.
When you have had direct reports, have you as a regular part of your supervisory capacity over those individuals, do you get copies of their evaluation reports?

A. Yes, sir.
Q. And when you get those copies, when you got those copies, did you review them?
A. Yes, very carefully.
Q. When evaluations were filled out for you as an employee, did you receive copies of the reports in writing?
A. Evaluations on me?
Q. Yes.
A. No, there was a confidentiality framework, so the evaluatee ultimately has a session with what is termed the evaluation director who presents to that person the key points from all of the individual evaluations synthesized, so to speak. But the confidentiality of individual evaluations on that evaluatee is maintained.
Q. Did you ever see summaries of your own evaluations? And I'm trying to draw a distinction. I assume you were given oral reports of what your evaluation was and you were asked for feedback; is that correct?

A. I'm sorry?
Q. I'm trying to do this -- we'll start again. Each time you were evaluated as part of the process, at some point, in part of the process, did you sit down with the evaluator director?
A. Yes.
Q. And they told you what the results of the evaluation were?
A. Yes.
Q. And you communicate the themes or the overall content of the evaluations without disclosing individual comments; is that correct?
A. It would be discussion of general themes, certain specific comments might be also referenced but without identifying from whom the specific comments came.
Q. And in addition to that oral presentation that you had, did you get anything in writing that showed the summary of the comments?
A. Yes.
Q. In what form was that?

Page 56

A. The practice was to give an evaluatee a one or two page summary report. It was felt that that was particularly important to get the individual's focus on development areas and performance objectives for the next year.
Q. Now, in addition to the reports you actually saw of persons who reported directly to you, did you ever have occasion to see a fellow employee's evaluation if they weren't reporting directly to you?
A. Yes.
Q. In what circumstance?
A. There was a period during which I ran the global merger business for Morgan Stanley, and in that capacity, as one of the senior managers of investment banking, I was in a position to basically review evaluation materials on most of the professionals in investment banking.
Q. And that would be whether or not they were direct reports to you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And to the best of your knowledge, would there be someone in a similar capacity for investment banking who would have reviewed all evaluations for all employees whether or not they were direct reports?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 57

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
Q. What I'm trying to get at, sir, and this is awkward, because I don't know what your system is.
A. I understand.
Q. In 1997, for example, I presume that any employee who went through the evaluation process, the evaluation director would certainly know what was in the evaluation and the person to whom that employee directly reported to would know what was in the evaluation. I am trying to find out if as a matter of practice, Morgan Stanley would have other people in addition to those two reviewing employees' evaluations?
A. My recollection is that there was a small senior management group in investment banking, which would include the individual running investment banking.
Q. Mr. Perella?

Page 58

A. Mr. Perella. The individual running corporate finance. The individual or individuals running mergers and then the individuals running the capital markets area. All of those individuals would have access to evaluation materials on effectively all of the professionals in the division.
Q. At any point in your career, did you see an evaluation of William Strong?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Would that have been when you were running MARD?
A. Yes.
Q. So that would have been up through March of 1997?
A. Yeah. I think it was February of 1997. And the way the evaluation cycle goes, that means I would have seen evaluations effectively through I think it is November or December of 1996.
MR. BYMAN: Tom, I'm told that the way we have done this in the past, I think these may be newly marked exhibits that Bob Marcusky intends to use later this week so I'm supposed to pass them out and get them back so he can reuse them. I take it that's what you have done. If not, I'm willing to be flexible. In any event, I want to show you Exhibit 308.

Why don't you give the witness the original?
MR. CLARE: I will. There is a protective order in place that relates to the parameters with which you can show evaluations to individuals based on their having seen access to it before. I assume that.
MR. BYMAN: I thought I had just laid that foundation.
MR. CLARE: I wanted to note my continued adherence to the protective order for purposes of Morgan Stanley maintaining the confidentiality of its 360 degree review process. To the extent you lay the foundation for this particular witness to review materials that he would have had access to during a particular point in time during his career, I think that's appropriate under the protective order but by allowing this witness to review this exhibit or other exhibits, Morgan Stanley is not waiving its adherence to the protective order to the foundation that's been laid.

MR. BYMAN: I assume that Jim is allowed to see this under the protective order.
MR. CLARE: He is.
Q. We put Exhibit 308 in front of you and if I understand correctly from your previous answers, this is a document that you would have seen at the time. Can you confirm that for us?
A. Well, it is certainly a type of document that I would have seen. I can't say I recall specifically seeing this.
Q. So you have no actual recollection of this particular evaluation?
A. There were over a thousand individuals in investment banking, so very difficult to specifically recall any specific individuals' evaluations especially as far back as 1993.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Recognizing that and being sympathetic to it, was there anything about Mr. Strong that stood out in your mind as him being good, bad or indifferent while he was somebody that was within your supervision?
A. I did not supervise him.
Q. I understand he was not a direct report, but he was one of the people within your area of supervision; is that fair?
A. He did not report to me. He, like many people in corporate finance, would have involvement in developing and in some cases executing merger business. To that extent, there would be a so-called dotted line to me because I had responsibility for the merger. And along with my other senior investment banking management colleagues, I would have access to these types of evaluation materials on people throughout the division, a significant majority of whom actually did not report to me.
Q. In addition to having access, did you actually avail yourself of that access?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. So you would as a matter of routine each year look at the evaluation reports for each of the people that had dotted lines or direct responsibility?

A. Yes, sir, I would.
Q. And in addition to the formal evaluation process, I assume you would keep your ears open if someone identified someone who was a problem?
A. Yes.
Q. And my question is, during 1993, was Bill Strong somebody who stood out in any direction as being great, as being terrible or as being something in between?
A. Well, I don't recall 1993 specifically. But Bill Strong is an individual who I knew by reputation before he came to Morgan Stanley and then knew at Morgan Stanley, and the general view was that he was a strong, effective banker.
Q. Did he have a reputation of someone who brought in fee revenues for the firm?
A. That was certainly a part of his job.
Q. Was it a significant part of his goals each year to bring in fee revenue?

MR. CLARE: Objection. It calls for speculation as to what Mr. Strong's goals were.
A. As a general matter, senior bankers on line in corporate finance or mergers or capital markets had as part of their professional objectives to produce quality revenue generating business for the firm.
MR. BYMAN: Tom, I believe the 1995 evaluation would also waive sufficient foundation for us and I'm going to give you three copies of that.
MR. CLARE: Subject to my comments earlier, I will hand the witness 309.
Q. For some reason, we don't have 1994 performance evaluations so we're skipping to the 1995 which we have marked as Exhibit 309.
And in this evaluation, I take it this would have again been in the category of things that you would have reviewed in the matter of course; is that right?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. In addition, you actually included a colleague review of Mr. Strong this year and referring to the third page of the document.
Do you see that?
A. 85422?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. Turn to 85424, if you would.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall reviewing Mr. Perella's comments at the top of the page that Mr. Strong has a tendency which results in others seeing him as trying to grab?
A. I don't recall specifically that comment.
Q. Do you recall reviewing Mr. Scott's notation that Bill should focus more on productivity and client business?
A. 1995 is a long time ago. I don't recall that specifically, no.
Q. Your own comments relate apparently to an incident involving a bank and SC Johnson in which you say that he and she should share the blame. What was that about?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 65

A. I don't remember. Obviously, we tried to get some business which we were not successful in obtaining it, based on what I read here. I don't have a specific recollection.
Q. At the end of your comment, you say, Bill also needs to be consistent in seeking out Morgan Stanley quality business on acceptable Morgan Stanley commercial terms. He has a reputation in MARD administration with MARD officers and assignment officers as being too flexible.
What did you mean by that?
A. I don't recall specifically, but I would say pressure point that one would see from time to time between corporate coverage and the merger business administration was the desire on the part of coverage officers to do business but to price it below what M&A management felt was appropriate pricing for the product. That would be a comment that would apply to quite a few people based on my experience.
Q. So this was reflective of the fact that he was trying to bring in revenue without focusing enough on profitability?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. I can't really take my comment further than I took it to be honest.
Q. In general, you make such comments, is that what it means or does it mean something else?
A. It means what I stated in the previous answer.
Q. That you sometimes price things too low without --
A. Or there is an attempt to price things too low.
Q. Do you have any recollection of what you meant by he has a reputation? Had you heard this from sources other than direct observation?
A. I don't recall.
Q. So you don't recall if you had directly observed whatever it was that led you to this comment or if you had heard it from others?
A. I don't. What's on this page would suggest that I heard it from some of the people in my administrative function.

Q. Were you aware that Mr. Strong had openly expressed a desire to some day be on the board of Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Take a look at page 85434, if you would.
A. 85434?
Q. I think it's the second to last page.
Under career goals, wants to be on board of Morgan Stanley. Do you recall reading that when you reviewed this back in the day?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did Mr. Strong have a reputation of being ambitious?
A. Morgan Stanley was populated then and it is populated now by many people that are ambitious. I would say there were nothing unusual. There are quite a few people that would like to be on the board of Morgan Stanley including me.
Q. I would like to be on the board of Morgan Stanley.

Page 68

My point is, did he make his views open to the point of creating a reputation for himself?
A. Not to my knowledge.
MR. BYMAN: Tom, I confess since I don't know when the 1996 evaluation would have become available, I don't know if I have laid a foundation for this one so I'm going to ask whether you have an objection of my showing this to him to ask whether he recalls seeing it. Let me give you a copy of Exhibit 310 so you can see what I'm talking about.
MR. CLARE: Maybe while I'm reviewing it, you may want to ask him about the timing of when these type of reports may have become available and see if that advances the ball without reviewing the document.
Q. As a general process, when were annual reviews performed; in other words, for 1996, would it have been performed in 1996 or sometime in 1996?
A. Yes, for the financial year 1996

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

the evaluation process would have been carried out from essentially September through November 1996.
Q. When would the written report be put together, in November?
A. I would imagine it would be late October into November.
Q. And at that point, they would be available to you for review?
A. Yes.
MR. BYMAN: And with that foundation, Tom, I'm going so show him Exhibit 310.
MR. CLARE: Subject to my prior comments of these type of exhibits being shown to witnesses, I'm not going to object.
Q. I want to direct your attention to page 85440.
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Perella has a comment about Mr. Strong needs to be careful about conflicts, that is, he has a tendency to play out a situation that is ripe for potential conflict rather than confronting the situation.

Based upon your knowledge of Mr. Strong in 1996, were you aware of any potential problem that Mr. Strong had with respect to conflicts?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you have any understanding of what Mr. Perella might have been referring to?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
A. I don't, and I say that also citing that as the person responsible for the merger business, I was heavily involved in conflict matters. So I was probably more responsible for conflict management than any other individual in the firm.
Q. In that role, did you ever have occasion to question Mr. Strong's abilities when it came to conflicts?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Mr. Perella goes on a little further down in the page stating judgment and reasoning on potential conflicts was flawed, for example, automotive retailing sector.

Does that refresh your recollection about the incident he is talking about?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Where did Mr. Scott fit within the organization in the time period of this evaluation?
A. I think at this time in 1996, Bob Scott was head of investment banking. He was succeeded in that position by Mr. Perella in 1997, I believe.
Q. So at this point, both Mr. Perella and Mr. Scott would have been relatively senior to Mr. Strong and even to yourself?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. Actually my recollection in 1996, my recollection is that Mr. Scott ran investment banking, Mr. Perella ran corporate finance and I ran M&A, so in effect, Joe and I were on the same level reporting to Mr. Scott.
Q. So Mr. Scott would have been senior, Mr. Perella and you would have been at the same level?
A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Scott notes, "While Bill is bright, his judgment is sometimes flawed. He is so focused on his own agenda that he can lose perspective."
Do you have any understanding about what Mr. Scott might have been referring to?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
A. I'm sorry, what was the question?
Q. Do have you any understanding as to what Mr. Scott might have been referring to in that comment?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I don't really have any knowledge of that.
Q. Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Scott or Mr. Perella or any other Morgan Stanley executive about Mr. Strong's strengths or weaknesses?
A. Well, I was involved in review discussions where we talked about effectively everyone's strengths and weaknesses. So I'm sure Bill was in that group. But I really don't have specific recollection of his individual case.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. In 1996, what was Mr. Abdel Maguid's position?
A. This is the individual known as Terry Maguid, and I believe he was associate head of corporate finance. He was basically Mr. Perella's right hand man, so to speak.
Q. Would that have made him senior to Mr. Strong or equal or is that not something you can compare?
A. They would probably each answer that question in a different way.
Q. So at least in Mr. Maguid's mind, he might have been senior to Mr. Strong?
A. Yes.
MR. CLARE: Objection, that calls for speculation about what's in Mr. Maguid's mind.
A. I shouldn't say yes, actually perhaps.
Q. Do you have any understanding about what Mr. Maguid referred to when he said, for some reason, he is one of the most often complained about managing directors by his partners?
A. No, I don't.

Q. Take a look at the next page, 85441.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Mr. Perella expands a bit on his comments talking about judgment and reasoning at times peculiar and gives an example. Told us Gordon Dean had offered to move to another firm after he, Bill, broadened our control of automotive retail potential conflicts. He was just using poor judgment in affecting Gordon with it as well.
Does that help refresh your recollection of any incident involving Mr. Strong that Mr. Perella was talking about?
MR. CLARE: I object to the extent that you're asking him to say what Mr. Perella was talking about. That portion of your question calls for speculation.
A. I really don't know what Mr. Perella is talking about there.
Q. In 1996, what position did Kirsten Feldman have within Morgan Stanley?
A. I believe that she was a managing director or at least a relatively senior person in the corporate coverage group.

Q. Do you have any understanding of what she referred to in her comment. Could be more straightforward and up front with fellow managing directors particularly with respect to conflicts and new business?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation and I also note that the sentence you read goes on.
Q. Well, let's go on because I want to discuss that with you as well.
It goes on to say that he did not tell Munger and myself that someone else had been hired on a project we had been pitching for until a week later while we were continuing to do work. The client ended up telling us, which was quite embarrassing.
Is that a situation that you would have reviewed in your role as reviewing conflicts? Do you recall what this incident was about?
A. I don't. This does not sound like a conflict. It sounds like a communication problem.

Q. I take it you have no recollection of this event that Miss Feldman is talking about?
A. I don't.
Q. Going on to the next page, Mr. Scott notes that Mr. Strong is very ambitious?
A. I'm sorry, where are you?
Q. The next page, Mr. Scott's comment.
A. Right.
Q. He is very ambitious and this ambition is occasionally too close to the surface. Our market share had improved in Chicago, what happened this year?
Do you recall Mr. Scott expressing that Mr. Strong was very ambitious and that it was too close to the surface?
A. I don't.
Q. You have mentioned Mr. Parr's role before. At this point, was he senior to Mr. Strong?
A. No, at this point, Gary Parr would have been a senior banker. My recollection is that he actually at that point in time was in the M&A group reporting to me. It was in the next year, 1997, that he was one of the two people who succeeded me as part of the M&A department.

014992

So in other words, he would have been essentially the same level, a senior banker.

Q. Was Mr. Parr a direct report to you in 1996?

A. I think he was. I can't recall specifically, but I believe he was, yes.

Q. When he succeeded you as one of the people to run the MARD department, was that done with your recommendation?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Parr someone in whom you had confidence?

A. Yes.

Q. Someone whose opinion of other colleagues you would pay special attention to?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. He was someone whose views I took seriously.

Q. Do you recall him expressing --

Page 78

A. That doesn't necessarily translate to always agreeing or whatever.

Q. I always take my wife seriously but I don't always agree with her.

In any event, do you recall in 1996 that Mr. Parr expressed the view that Mr. Strong can at times appear to be reaching for personal gain in front of a client or colleagues rather than promoting others on the team and then it goes on.

Do you recall him voicing that concern?

A. No.

Q. So you don't recall discussing that concern with him?

A. No.

Q. Take a look at page 85444. About midway down the page, there is a number 3, and by the way, this is a group of comments that aren't attributed to any particular individuals. Would this be the sort of thing that would be shown to the evaluatee?

A. No, this particular page is -- you'll notice the title at the top is the word feedback. So these are comments from individuals who were junior to Mr. Strong and their identity is protected in order to have fulsome comments.

Q. And one of those comments opposite the number 3 is Bill appears to generate a fierce loyalty among his troops, but is quick to point fingers on this business. His loyalty based upon respect or fear, will stretch the truth or omit relevant facts if it improves his position.

Do you recall reading that anyone questioned whether Mr. Strong would sometimes stretch the truth?

A. I don't recall specifically. This process, which by the way I had a major role in designing, produces a lot of data and it's meant to produce a lot of data. And my experience with it is that there's a broad range of comments including negative comments about individuals of the absolute highest standing of the firm. So none of this is unusual.

Q. I think you have said that there might have been as many as a thousand of these things that you might review. Is that in any given year?

A. In any given year or at that time, there were approximately a thousand professionals in investment banking as I recall.

Q. And in that universe of a thousand, is it your recollection that you would get at least one comment as to every one of those thousand people that they would stretch the truth?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Lack of foundation. And I object to the form of the question.

A. I'm just saying that there are a broad spectrum of comments. Particularly my experience was with the upwards where there was no identity, sometimes there were comments that were close to the bone on just about everybody.

Q. I understand that, sir. What I'm trying to get a sense of is some comments are more negative than others. If you saw a comment that said the guy is a liar, would you be concerned about that or would you say well, gosh, in every one of these thousand cases at least one person accuses the guy of lying so that doesn't mean anything to me, or is there something in between those two extremes?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question and the incomplete hypothetical.

A. All I'm saying is the type of comments that are in his evaluation are in the fairway, so to speak, of what I saw for just about everybody.

Q. Well, I haven't asked you to review the overall content. Are you saying that you recall the overall mix of comments? I have only directed to you individual comments this afternoon.

A. I'm just talking about my general experience having spent a lot of time or a lot of years dealing with these evaluations.

Q. How many times would you have to hear that somebody stretches the truth before it becomes a concern?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Incomplete hypothetical.

A. Well, for me personally stretching the truth is always a concern.

Page 82

Q. Were you concerned when you read this?

A. Well, I don't recall reading this until just now.

Q. But you know that you read it back in 1996, right?

A. Back in 1996, I would expect that I put it in an overall context of having pretty similar and pointed comments as was the design of the process for many individuals.

Q. Back in 1996 and the other years when you reviewed these evaluations, you weren't doing it because this made great reading, right, you were doing it because you wanted to form judgments about whether or not your people were performing as they should; is that fair?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. As I testified earlier, in the performance process, a number of objectives and performance evaluation, development of performance objectives, feedback on areas for improvement, acknowledgment of strengths, all of those were things that we were trying to identify through this process and did.

Q. And if you identified somebody who had problems, you wanted to know about them before the problems manifested themselves?

A. As I also testified earlier, part of the process were decisions on compensation, decisions on promotion, decisions on retention, decisions on separation.

Q. And so I guess my question is, did you have some rule of thumb by which one terrible negative comment gets tossed out because it may be at the fringes but when the comments get repeated and you get more and more of the same it becomes a problem. At what point does it become a problem?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and the incomplete hypothetical.

A. It's all very speculative. I'm not sure how to answer that.

Q. We are agreed that any time somebody says that somebody has a tendency to stretch the truth or omit relevant facts if it improves his position is a serious comment?

Page 84

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. It might be. But something else is what I would call gamesmanship or gaming in these evaluations, which is one of the inherent problems with evaluation systems, particularly those that have the protection of anonymity. I have seen many comments in the anonymity base of comments which are more difficult and it's very easy to say something very negative about someone when you're not going to be identified. So I think some of that has to be part of the mix as well.

Q. What about when people are identified when their colleagues or downward comments about a lack of being straightforward, would that cause you concern?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Incomplete hypothetical.

A. It would require discussion, and as I said, all of these individuals were discussed in a senior management group.

Q. And yet you have no recollection of Mr. Strong ever being discussed?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 85

A. I don't have specific recollection, but I do recall that Bill was retained at Morgan Stanley and indeed is still retained at Morgan Stanley and was a valued contributor of the firm so I take with that the overall conclusion of management was then and continues to be over time that if he was a quality -- he was meeting sufficient standards of quality.

Q. Take a look at page 85451.

I'm told we only have four minutes left on the tape. I don't have a great deal after this.

MR. CLARE: I'd like to take a short break anyway so good time.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 2:46 p.m. and this is the end of tape number one.

(Recess was taken.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the record. The time is 2:57. This begins tape number two.

Q. Mr. Fiedorek, just before we broke, I had directed you to Exhibit 310, page 85451. Are you there?

Page 86

A. 85451?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. Is this an example of one of the pages that would actually be given to an evaluatee?

A. Yes, it is the type of page that would be given to an evaluatee.

Q. So this page and the following page would under normal circumstances be given to the person being evaluated?

A. That is the procedure. I have no specific knowledge whether that in fact happened, but that is the procedure, yes.

Q. And I take it this represents a summary of the firm's perception of the overall evaluation and that it is then shared with the person being evaluated?

A. Yes, the process is that the evaluation director summarizes the file, so to speak, and then there are some group discussions about individuals and then the summary is then edited or amended to reflect anything that should be reflected from the discussions, and then the final product is the type of thing that is here in these two pages, and then the process is that the evaluation director sits down with the individual and discusses this, gives the person this piece of paper, may well -- probably will elaborate on what's on the summary, may well quote various things from the file. The process though is that none of the evaluations, even those that have been specifically identified to individuals are identified as to the individuals who provided the comments so all comments are anonymous in the discussion with the evaluatee.

Q. Now, I want to follow up on something that you said earlier. I think you said that you had a fairly major role in forming this entire evaluation process.

Would you describe for me what your role was?

A. At some point along the way, and I don't remember exactly when it was, but I believe it was in the early 90s, I was asked by the individual who was then running investment banking to examine the evaluation system which at that point was broadly perceived to be not functioning very well, and to come up with a new system. We established a committee that included various professionals of various seniority levels and various departments, retained some consultants, and developed an evaluation process that is reflected in the types of materials that you have shown me here today.

Q. And as part of that, and I didn't bring extra copies of that, but I have something called an evaluator guide. This happens to be for September 1997. Was something similar prepared, and by the way the Bates numbers are 82161 through 82220 or should be 219.

Is this the sort of materials that would be given to everybody that is doing evaluations so that they know what it is they are doing?

A. I'm sorry, what was the question?

Q. What is the purpose of these types of evaluator guides?

A. I would say the purpose is to put evaluators in a position of knowing what their jobs are, how best to perform them,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

what's expected of them. What the objectives of the process are, what their responsibilities are, et cetera.
Q. And by evaluators, are we talking about the evaluation director or each Morgan Stanley employee that evaluates another Morgan Stanley employee?
A. Both really.
Q. Is it fair to say Morgan Stanley takes these evaluations seriously?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And they are an important part of Morgan Stanley's business?
A. People are the most important asset of professional organization like Morgan Stanley, and evaluation of our people and development of our people are really extremely important.
Q. Now, focusing back to page 85451 from Exhibit 310, the consensus put together under leadership and management skills was that Mr. Strong should be more straightforward and up front with other managing directors, seen to exaggerate the truth with clients thereby hurting his credibility with junior team members. Is that an area that suggests significant concerns with Mr. Strong?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. Well, I didn't write this. So I can't really say what overall context Mr. Perella was dealing with when he wrote this.
Q. This was written in the context of a summary of an overall evaluation, somebody reading it, to evaluate whether you have somebody within your ambit that is good, bad or indifferent. Does this cause you concern?
A. Well, the major purpose in the evaluation process is to identify any areas that need to be brought to the attention of the evaluatee, and that need to be worked on and need to be improved. If there were these tendencies, or some part of his track record reflected this, it would be appropriate to be focused on, so that it could be improved on.
Q. If these comments reflect an actual shortcoming then it is something that needs to be corrected; is that fair?

A. Well, as I say, the process was directed at, among other things, but very importantly, identifying things that each and every individual needed to work on. Morgan Stanley has been blessed with some outstanding performers over the year and I have seen many performance evaluations and there are always things that can be worked on.
Q. Sure. Part of the reason for this was to identify for people things that they should strive to change for themselves, right?
A. Well, for themselves and for the firm.
Q. And part of it was --
A. To be more effective professionals.
Q. Part of this was self evaluation, setting goals for yourself to change for your own betterment and the betterment of the firm and part of it was to identify for people like you, who were supervising people, whether or not you had a problem that you had to look at more closely; is that right?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. And my question is, when you read this, did you identify Mr. Strong as somebody you needed to look at more closely?
A. Well, I don't recall specifically reading this until now, which I guess would make it not a recollection that I was reading it. I'm reading it now.
Q. Are you able to put yourself back in the frame of mind that you would have been in 1996 when you were reading perhaps as many as a thousand of these reports to just get a sense of what people who were within your area were doing as to whether this would have caused you concern?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question, to the hypothetical.
A. No, I would put it more that this is something he needed to improve. Bill was generally viewed as a very high quality professional and a major contributor.
Q. In any event, do you recall taking any action one way or the other after reading Mr. Strong's reviews?
A. I didn't take any action. It wouldn't have been my role to take any action.

Q. Did you direct anybody to take any action?
A. I did not. It would not have been my role.
Q. Did you make any notes to yourself to be sure and read his review next year to see if he had actually improved?
A. I made that note with respect to every individual every year.
Q. If these kinds of comments had persisted from year to year, would that cause you additional concern?
MR. CLARE: I object to the hypothetical.
A. These types of comments would have suggested to me the desirability and necessity which was there in any event to manage the individual so he could get to a more positive place on this type of issue. But the overall view on Mr. Strong was that he was an effective, aggressive coverage officer, a good leader, had done a good job helping develop more effective market and market presence in the Chicago market.

Q. Mr. Fiedorek, with respect to evaluations for 1997 and 1998, it's my understanding that you would not have reviewed those in the ordinary course of your business; is that right?
A. I was in a situation where or I had evolved to a situation in 1997 where I was no longer spending a tremendous amount of time reviewing evaluations and it marked a very happy moment in my life I will add.
Q. Without trying to take you back to a painful moment in your life, do you have any recollection of any occasion to look at performance evaluations for Mr. Strong from 1997 or 1998?
A. To look -- not specifically, no.
Q. Would there have been any circumstances?
A. To make sure I'm answering all of this carefully, there were some review forums that I was involved in for a few years post 1997 where I did get into some detailed reading of certain evaluations for different industry groups. I don't want to give you the impression that I just stopped reading evaluations. That was certainly not involved to nearly the extent and I was not involved in an act of operating management capacity, but I still had occasion to review certain evaluations and indeed to lead some discussions in review forums in certain years post 1997. My recollection though is that none of that included -- I don't recall specifically looking at any evaluations of Bill. There tended to be more things like the technology group in California. That type of thing.

Q. Do you recall any other industry groups other than the technology group in California?
A. Certain coverage officers but below the managing director level.
Q. Okay. So you're reasonably sure you would not have looked at Mr. Strong's evaluations?
A. Pretty sure.
MR. BYMAN: And based upon that time, I take it it is your position that it would be a violation of the protective order to show him the evaluations for 1997 and 1998?

MR. CLARE: It's my position that there has not been a foundation laid to show Mr. Fiedorek the entire unredacted version of the 1997 or 1998 evaluations of Mr. Strong. I don't have any objection, as I mentioned to you during the break, of showing him a redacted version of those evaluations or any portion of it that Mr. Fiedorek would have authored consistent with the protections by the protective order entered by the court on this subject. But in terms of an overall unredacted version, I think that would run afoul of the protective order that we are continuing to insist on compliance with the protective order.
MR. BYMAN: One or more of my partners may know more about this than I do, and I may be able to figure out why I should be able to have done more than this. I'm not going to try and violate a protective order today.
Q. I am going to read to you, because

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

I do not have redacted versions, comments that you made in the 1997 evaluation and I'll simply read them to you because I don't have them in a form to show them to you.

MR. CLARE: I'll say for the record I appreciate your statements and we don't have any objection to that procedure, but I do want to be clear that although we're insisting on adherence to the protective order, you do have an opportunity to ask Mr. Fiedorek about those evaluations and we're not going to bring him back about the 1997 or 1998 in written form since I'm allowing you to read portions of it today and if you have a copy --

Q. I may ask you some general questions to them as well.

MR. BYMAN: I take it you would object if I attribute specific statements to specific individuals?

MR. CLARE: Correct.

Do you have a copy of what you're going to be reading from so I can follow along?

MR. BYMAN: Sure. The 1997 evaluation we have marked as Exhibit 311 and I'll give you a copy now.

MR. CLARE: Thank you.

Q. Let me represent to you, Mr. Fiedorek, that in the 1997 evaluation which we have marked as Exhibit 311, but which I'm not showing you, at page 85459, a comment is attributed to you and I'm going to read it into the record. Observed a very strong relationship with the CEO and CFO of Sunbeam. These relationships were the most important factor in the firm's success in obtaining strategic mandates at Sunbeam and in working around and through a possible conflict that developed in the course of dialogue with Sunbeam. Have seen a similar pattern in a second situation in Chicago. Bill clearly has senior level client impact which helps generate business.

My first question, is it a correct statement that it was Mr. Strong's relationship with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kirsch of Sunbeam that helped get that business?

Page 99

MR. CLARE: Objection. That calls for speculation.

A. Well, as I testified earlier, we had the opportunity to present our credentials because of his past relationship with Mr. Dunlap, and then we were awarded a mandate, so I took from all of that positive things about Bill with respect to helping create the commercial opportunity.

Q. Has anyone ever told you who initiated the contact between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley?

A. I don't recall.

Q. So you don't know whether or not Mr. Dunlap may have picked up the phone and called Mr. Strong or Mr. Strong may have picked up the phone and called Mr. Dunlap or some other scenario?

A. I don't know. I may have known at some point, but I have forgotten if I did.

Q. What was the possible conflict that needed to be worked around in the course of the dialogue with Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall.

Q. You have no recollection at all of any conflict situation with Sunbeam?

Page 100

A. No.

Q. At page 45461, a comment is attributed to you and I'm going to read it into the record.

Continue to be disciplined on the quality of business variable. I did not think he was as soberly reflective on firm franchise issues as he might have been on one specific piece of business that he was pursuing a possible hostile mandate for a perspective client with a controversial image. I should note I supported taking this on, but Bill struck me as giving no weight to possible controversy.

Did that refer to the Sunbeam, Alpha or Black & Decker situation?

A. Well, the suggestion of the context is that it did, but I don't really recall specifically.

Q. Can you recall any other business that you did with Mr. Strong during 1997 other than the Sunbeam engagement?

A. I don't have any specific recollection, but I did have some level of involvement with Bill and did call in a few other companies. The previous comment that you quoted referenced him having a very high quality relationship with a Chicago company and I did call on some important Chicago companies together with him from time to time. And it's possible that some of that took place in 1997 but I don't recall specifically.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Do you recall any of the contact with Chicago companies involving a possible hostile mandate?

A. I don't.

Q. Do you recall what you meant by Bill struck me as giving no weight to possible controversy?

A. I don't recall the specifics of that situation, but the comment that you read to me indicates that despite my observation that I did agree with him on the conclusion we should do the business.

Q. Putting yourself again in the position of somebody who is reviewing the evaluations of people within your area from year to year to get a sense of who these people were and how they were performing, if you had someone who was told as a personal goal that he needed to work on not exaggerating the truth and then in successive years comments came from peers and from downward comments that he was sometimes over the line in similar statements, would that cause you concern about the trustworthiness of that individual?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Incomplete hypothetical.

A. Well, there was a very broad context in the evaluation assessment. There is the total history of the individual as there is a total history of the firm with the individual. There is importantly the assessment of other senior managers including the senior managers who had direct reporting responsibility from the individual. It's a very, very broad context and picking out one evaluation comment in a very broad sense, I don't think huge weight can be given to it.

Q. I may not have been clear about my comment, but let me try to expand a bit on the hypothetical.

I'm not talking about a single comment but I'm talking about a firm wide overview evaluation that tells an employee that there is enough in the evaluations to suggest that he has a problem with exaggerating the truth and he needs to work on it. And then in follow on years, not single comments but multiple comments that suggest that he may be over the line or that he exaggerates or that he otherwise stretches things. When you have a pattern from year to year, when you have more than single comments in each of those years, would that cause you concern over that employee's performance?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. I was not his evaluation director. I was not his manager. It wasn't really my -- I did not have the closest knowledge. It really was not my position to draw that conclusion. It was people like Mr. Maguid or Mr. Perella.

Q. I'm sorry, but you may have misunderstood what I was asking you to do. I wasn't asking you to sit in judgment of Mr. Strong.

A. It sounded like it.

Q. Then let me try to be more clear. I was asking you to put yourself back in the position you were in for six or seven years when you ran the MARD division and when you evaluated people year in and year out and read all of the evaluations to get a sense of it and I'm not referring to Mr. Strong. I'm asking you this as a hypothetical. Hypothetically, if in year one you see enough comments that a firm wide evaluation is given to say this is an individual who has a problem exaggerating the truth, and in year two you see a number of comments sufficient to get a firm wide evaluation that says this individual still has a problem with exaggerating the truth, and in year three you see enough comments that there is a firm wide evaluation that the individual continues to have that problem, what would you as a manager do, if anything?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Incomplete hypothetical.

A. I can really only respond to a database on a specific individual that would include my knowledge of managing that person. Management is not about generalization. Management is about in depth knowledge of a specific individual and their history. And that's what you draw conclusions on.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And who would that individual have been with respect to Mr. Strong in the period that led up to mid 1997?

A. It would have been the corporate finance managers who were at that point Mr. Perella and Mr. Maguid.

MR. BYMAN: Let me take a look at my notes.

MR. CLARE: Off the record for a minute.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're going off the record. The time is 3:27.

(Discussion held off the record.)

MR. BYMAN: Back on the record.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the record.

MR. BYMAN: Mr. Fiedorek, thanks for your time; I've taken enough of it.

MR. CLARE: I don't have any questions for Mr. Fiedorek.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:27. This completes the videotaped deposition.

R O B E R T J. D U F F Y, called as a witness, having been duly sworn by a Notary Public, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION BY
MR. CLARE:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Duffy.
A. Good morning.
Q. My name is Tom Clare. We met this morning when you came in. Could I get you to state your full name, please, for the record.

A. It's Robert Joseph Duffy.
Q. And what is your home address?
A. 16 St. Nicholas Road, Darien, Connecticut.
Q. Is that your principal residence?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you maintain any other residences?
A. No.
Q. And who is your current employer?
A. The General Electric Company.
Q. And what position do you hold with the General Electric Company?
A. I'm general manager of global business development.
Q. And what is your date of birth?
A. December 9, 1965.
Q. And you're represented by counsel here today?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's Mr. Paradise?
A. Yes.
Q. I understand that you're not represented by Mr. Brody or anyone from his firm; is that correct?
A. That's correct.

Q. Before today, have you met with any attorneys from Jenner & Block, Mr. Brody's firm, regarding this deposition?
A. No.
Q. The deposition today is being videotaped. You heard an introduction by the video specialist this morning. In addition, it's being taken down stenographically, and so when we -- when I ask you a question, I'm going to need to ask you to answer verbally, make sure that it gets taken down on the written record as well. Even though the video can take down if you nod your head yes or no --
A. Um-hum.
Q. -- the court reporter cannot.
So, if I see that you haven't done that, I'll try to remind you to do that.
Have you ever given a deposition before?
A. I think once before.
Q. Okay. Any other sworn testimony in court or other proceedings?
A. I don't think so.
Q. What issue or case did the other deposition involve?

A. It was another banking matter.
Q. Did it involve the -- was it when you were employed at CSFB?
A. Yes, with CSFB.
Q. Did the deposition involve the engagement that CSFB had for the Coleman Company?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did it involve Sunbeam in any way?
A. I don't remember. It could have. I just don't remember.
Q. Approximately, what time period was the deposition? How many years ago, if you can recall?
A. It was, probably, five or six years ago.
Q. You don't recall the subject matter at all?
A. No.
Q. Regardless of whether it related to Coleman, can you recall whether it involved an engagement that CSFB had for any MacAndrews & Forbes Company?
A. I think it did.
Q. You don't recall which one?
A. No. That's -- I think the deposition

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015823

Page 10

was at their headquarters.
Q. Were you represented by counsel in that deposition?
A. I assume so.
Q. Have you seen a transcript of that deposition that was taken?
A. Not unless -- only if it was at the time. I have not since then.
Q. Have you ever provided a sworn written statement regarding the work that you did on behalf of CSFB related to the Coleman Company?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Or related to Sunbeam?
A. I don't remember doing that.
Q. Have you ever been interviewed by a regulatory or law enforcement agency related to the work that you or Credit Suisse First Boston did for the Coleman Company?
A. I don't think so.
Q. At the beginning of your deposition today, you took an oath. And it's the same oath that you would take as if you were testifying in court. Do you understand that?
A. Yes.
Q. And is there any reason you can't testify truthfully today?

Page 11

A. No.
Q. Because it may have been a while since the last deposition, I want to go over a couple of ground rules that we'll follow today, make sure you're comfortable and you understand the procedure that we're going to follow.
My job is going to be to ask questions that you can understand and that are clear. And your job is to answer them truthfully and to the best of your ability.
If for some reason you can't understand my question, doesn't make sense to you, please ask me to rephrase it. But if you give me an answer, I'm going to assume that you heard my question and that you understood it. Is that okay?
A. Fair enough.
Q. I'll be happy to repeat or rephrase it if you don't.
A. Sure.
Q. If you need to correct something that you said earlier in the day, if something comes back to you or you realize that something you said was incorrect or you want to amend, just let me know and I'll give you an opportunity to do that. Okay?

A. Sure.
Q. Because the court reporter is taking down the testimony, we have to try not to talk over each other. If you would wait until I finish my question before you begin your answer, and I'm going to wait until you finish your answer before I begin the next question, that will help us move along and make sure we have a clear record. Okay.
And we've already discussed off the record your desire to take a couple of breaks today to handle calls. We'll certainly try to accommodate that. If you need to take a break for any reason, just let me know. And we'll try to accommodate requests for breaks for any reason.
A. Thank you.
Q. Do you have any questions about the ground rules?
A. No.
Q. How did you prepare for the deposition today?
A. I met with Mr. Paradise on Tuesday.

Page 13

Q. For how long did you meet with him?
A. Probably two hours.
Q. Besides Mr. Paradise, was anyone else present?
A. His associate, Hilary Preston.
Q. Was anyone else besides Ms. Preston and Mr. Paradise present?
A. No.
Q. Anyone from Mr. Brody's firm, Jenner & Block?
A. No.
Q. Anyone plug in by telephone to that preparation session?
A. No.
Q. Is that the only session that you had to prepare?
A. That's the only session to prepare. We spoke about the deposition a couple of times on the phone.
Q. With Mr. Paradise?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever spoken on the phone with anyone from Mr. Brody's firm?
A. No.
Q. What about anyone from MacAndrews &

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015824

Forbes?
A. No.
MR. PARADISE: About his deposition?
Q. About your deposition, of course.
MR. CLARE: Thank you.
A. No.
Q. Today, we're going to be talking principally about work that you did related to the Coleman Company. And it might make some sense to get some definitions up front so that we are using common language when we talk about it.
When I say "Coleman," what I'll be referring to is the Coleman Company, the manufacturer of camping goods equipment that was headquartered in Wichita. Is that okay?
A. Sure.
Q. And then there is another set of companies, one of which is called Coleman (Parent) Holdings Company, and that was a company that owned, along with some other holding companies, an 82 percent or some percentage of the Coleman Company prior to the acquisition from Sunbeam -- by Sunbeam.
I may refer to that as Coleman (Parent) Holdings Company or MacAndrews & Forbes, because it's the same corporate parent. I may use those terms interchangeably. Okay?

A. That's fine.
Q. If I -- if it's unclear which one I'm referring to or if your answer would differ depending on which entity we're talking about, just let me know and we want to make sure it's very clear.
A. Okay.
Q. Did you review any documents to prepare yourself for the deposition today?
A. Yes.
Q. Did any of the documents that you reviewed refresh your recollection about the work that you had done related to Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. What documents refreshed your recollection?
A. The investment banking memo that we prepared at First Boston, sort of had a record of what we had done.
Q. Anything else?
A. No.
Q. Did you have an opportunity to review the complaint that was filed in this case against

Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
MR. PARADISE: When you asked "anything else" before, you meant did anything refresh your recollection, or did you mean did you see any other documents?
MR. CLARE: Did anything else refresh your recollection?
MR. PARADISE: Okay. Is that what you understood the question to be?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
MR. PARADISE: Okay.
Q. Did you review any transcripts of depositions?
A. No.
Q. Did any -- were any testimony described to you?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who else, if anyone, has been deposed in this proceeding?
A. No. I know you're going to depose another CSFB person.
Q. That's Mr. Geller?
A. Yeah.
Q. Have you spoken to Mr. Geller about the deposition?

A. No.
Q. Do you stay in contact with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. When was the last time that you've spoken with someone from MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Maybe, in 2000.
Q. And who is your point of contact at MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. PARADISE: Generally, or for this engagement?
MR. CLARE: Generally.
A. It would have been either Jim Maher, M-A-H-E-R, or Wil Nesbitt, N-E-S-B-I-T-T.
Q. Anyone else?
A. No.
Q. Those are the individuals that were your points of contact for this engagement as well?
A. They were the principal points of contact. I mean, there were other MacAndrews & Forbes people involved.
Q. Who else did you have dealings with during your engagement from MacAndrews & Forbes?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. It would have been Ron Perelman, Howard Gittis, Donald Drapkin. And there was the Coleman folks, you know, Jerry Levin, I guess Joe Page. Those are the names I remember.
Q. Of the names that you've just recited, when was the last time that you had spoken with any of those individuals?
A. Other than Will Nesbitt or Jim Maher, you know, not probably since 1998.
Q. And Mr. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt, you believe you have not spoken to since 2000?
A. That's correct.
Q. You don't have any ongoing business dealings with MacAndrews & Forbes or any of its affiliate companies?
A. No, I don't.
Q. When did you first become aware that there was a lawsuit involving Morgan Stanley and the Coleman engagement?
A. Probably a couple of months ago.
Q. So, I take it, you were not aware of it before it was filed in May of 2003 over a year ago?
A. No.
Q. I take it, then, you were not consulted or interviewed by anyone before that case was filed?

A. No.
Q. I believe I asked you this before. You have not had an opportunity to review the complaint that was filed in that case?
A. I haven't seen it, no.
Q. Okay. Do you understand what allegations are being made in this lawsuit against Morgan Stanley?
MR. PARADISE: Just answer that yes or no for now.
A. I think so. I mean, I think so.
Q. You have a general understanding?
A. General understanding.
Q. I'll represent to you that, in the lawsuit, MacAndrews & Forbes is alleging that Morgan Stanley conspired with Sunbeam to defraud it in connection with its sale of its interest in Coleman to Sunbeam.
Do you have any reason to believe that those allegations are true?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you have any facts that you believe would support that -- those allegations? Are you aware of any facts?

A. I don't know. I mean, I don't know, is the answer.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Morgan Stanley knowingly provided false information to Coleman (Parent) Holdings in connection with the acquisition?
A. I don't -- I don't know.
Q. Or that Morgan Stanley was negligent in performing its duties in connection with its engagement for Sunbeam?
A. I don't know what Morgan Stanley did, so --
Q. We're going to talk in more detail about that, and I want to explore a little bit what you do remember about the engagement.
A. Sure.
Q. But before we do that, I'd like to get a little bit more background about you and your education.
Could you please describe your educational background.
A. Sure. I graduated from Harvard College in '87. Graduated from -- with a bachelor's degree. Graduated from University of Wales in '88 with a master's degree. Graduated from Georgetown Law Center in '94 with a J.D.

Q. What was your major in Harvard College?
A. Economics.
Q. Did you graduate with honors?
A. Yes.
Q. And then your next degree was from Wales?
A. Yes.
Q. And that was an MBA?
A. It was a master's of science in international economics.
Q. Is there any concentration in that master's?
A. No.
Q. Did you graduate with honors with that degree?
A. No.
Q. You have a law degree from the Georgetown Law Center?
A. Yes.
Q. What year was that?
A. '94.
Q. Any honors?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015826

A. Yes.
Q. Any special concentration --
A. No.
Q. -- at Georgetown?
Are you a member of the bar of any state?
A. I think I'm a member of the Massachusetts bar.
Q. Is that an active --
A. Inactive membership.
Q. -- or inactive?
Do you hold any other degrees, other than the ones that you've identified?
A. No.
Q. You don't have an MBA?
A. No.
MR. PARADISE: Isn't that enough?
MR. CLARE: That's plenty.
THE WITNESS: It's expensive.
MR. PARADISE: Man has to work.
Q. Are you admitted to practice law in any state other than Massachusetts?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Do you have any other professional certifications? Are you a CPA, anything like that?

A. I think I have sort of a series -- you know, some of the SEC qualifications, Series 7. There may be one other.
Q. Did you have those certifications in 1998 when you were working on the Coleman engagement, or were they things you have achieved since 1998?
A. I think the Series 7 I had at the time.
Q. Any other certifications that you had at the time in 1998?
A. I'm not sure. I think there's a second certification I have. I don't know if I had it at the time or after that.
MR. PARADISE: 63?
THE WITNESS: 20.
MR. PARADISE: 24?
THE WITNESS: Something like that.
Q. Did you ever practice law?
A. No.
Q. You started working immediately upon your graduation from Georgetown?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you ever serve in the military?

A. No.
Q. Could you describe your employment history starting in 1994 when you graduated from Georgetown up through the present.
A. Okay. In '94, I started as an associate at CSFB. I think I was promoted to vice president in 1997. And promoted to director in 1999. And promoted to managing director in 2001. I worked in New York from '94 to '98.
And then September of '98 moved to London. I worked there till June of 2002. Came back to New York in June of 2002. And worked till March of 2003 at CSFB, when I left to work at General Electric in the position I'm in now.
Q. And what is the position that you hold now?
A. It's general manager of global business development.
Q. Generally, what are those responsibilities?
A. I'm responsible for overseeing large acquisitions that the General Electric Company does, as well as running their divestiture processes, businesses they sell.
Q. And in connection with the work that you do at General Motors -- General Electric -- I'm sorry -- do you have any dealings with Morgan Stanley professionally?

A. Yes.
Q. Who at Morgan Stanley do you deal with?
A. A variety of people, but including Joe Perella, Ruth Porat, Ray McGuire. And those are the three key General Electric folks that we interact with.
Q. Have you spoken with any of those individuals?
MR. PARADISE: You mean Morgan Stanley? You said General Electric. You mean Morgan Stanley?
THE WITNESS: I guess those are the people who cover General Electric from Morgan Stanley.
Q. Have you spoken with any of those individuals at Morgan Stanley about your upcoming deposition or this case in any way?
A. No, I haven't.
Q. Does General Electric -- have they engaged Morgan Stanley to assist it in connection with work they're doing?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015827

A. Yes, they have.
Q. And are you responsible for those -- overseeing those engagements?
A. I can be. I haven't been for the engagements they've been doing most recently.
Q. And what is the nature of the work that Morgan Stanley provides for General Electric in your current responsibilities?
A. They will -- they can do -- they can advise us on acquisitions or divestitures. They're not doing that right now. They advised us on the underwriting of our insurance subsidiary Genworth, G-E-N-W-O-R-T-H. And they were the lead underwriter for that.
Q. Have you been satisfied with the work that they've done?
A. I haven't been directly involved.
Q. Going back to the time period of 1997 and 1998 when the engagement that you worked on for the Coleman Company, you were vice president?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were promoted to director in 1999?
A. Yes.
Q. So, in 1997 and 1998, you were vice president at CSFB working out of the New York office?

A. Yes.
Q. What -- when you were an associate and then a vice president, did you have a particular area or division within CSFB that you worked in?
A. The mergers and acquisition group.
Q. Did you stay in that group the entire time at CSFB?
A. I did a little -- the definition of what the job was changed, so I also served in the telecom and media group as the M&A individual.
Q. So, as I understand it, at some point during your tenure at CSFB, you focused your merger and acquisition work in the telecom industry?
A. Yes.
Q. And, approximately, when did that occur?
A. Starting in 2000.
Q. After the Coleman engagement had concluded?
A. Yes.
Q. How many M&A deals had you worked on, approximately, prior to your engagement for the Coleman Company?

A. Probably 15 to 20.
Q. And, after that engagement, while at CSFB?
A. It's hard to quantify, but probably another 20, 25 on both deals that happened and did not happen.
Q. How many of those engagements are deals that you worked on were for MacAndrews & Forbes or companies related to MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Probably three or four.
Q. Do you recall any of the other engagements that you worked on for MacAndrews & Forbes or MacAndrews & Forbes-related companies?
A. We gave them a fairness opinion on the sales of some television stations. And we advised them when they sold some businesses to NewsCorp. -- well, actually, we did not advise them. We advised them when they tried to buy King World.
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry. Can I have that answer back.
THE WITNESS: We advised them looking at buying a business called King World, I think.

Q. And what was the nature of the work that was done in connection with the television station?
A. We provided a fairness opinion. It was a private sale, so --
Q. And you were advising the company that was purchasing the telephone -- the television station?
A. I think we were advising the seller of the station, which was a MacAndrews & Forbes Company.
Q. And, in connection with that sale, was the MacAndrews & Forbes Company receiving -- was it a cash deal or cash and stock?
A. I think it was cash.
Q. How about in connection with the King World transaction?
A. They were a buyer.
Q. In connection with that transaction, was stock part of the consideration that was given or received?
A. Well, the deal did not happen, so --
Q. The deal that was being contemplated?
A. I don't remember.

Page 30

Q. Putting aside MacAndrews & Forbes-related transactions, have you been involved in other merger and acquisition transactions where a client that you were advising is accepting stock as part of consideration?
A. Yes.
Q. And you've worked on those types of engagements before the Coleman engagement?
A. Yes.
Q. And after as well?
A. Yes.
Q. In those transactions where the client that you were advising was accepting stock, did you perform due diligence on the company that was providing the stock?
A. Yes.
Q. And for -- for which transactions can you identify where that occurred?
A. The company called Roher sold its interest to Rhone-Poulenc in 1991 or 1989. I'm not sure between '94 and '97 if there were any others. I just don't remember.
Q. And for what purpose did you conduct due diligence in connection with those transactions?

Page 31

A. Due diligence on whom?
Q. On the company that was issuing the stock or providing the stock.
A. Just to understand the business and the company.
Q. And, as a general matter, in those types of transactions, do you think it's a good idea to conduct that due diligence?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. I don't know what good idea -- I mean, I think it's appropriate.
Q. Why do you think it's appropriate?
A. I think you want to understand the company that you're doing business with.
Q. What types of due diligence did you perform in that transaction that you've described?
A. I don't remember exactly. You would have reviewed forecasts and public documents that they provided.
Q. Did you ever talk to the company?
A. Management, yes.
Q. What about visiting facilities?
A. It would depend on the transaction.

Page 32

Q. Have you ever worked on a transaction, where, as part of due diligence, you visited a facility?
A. Not on a sell side -- not advising a seller, I don't think I have. Other than, you know, the headquarters of the buyer type of --
Q. What kind of due diligence did you perform in connection with the engagement that you did for Coleman?
A. We reviewed -- due diligence on Sunbeam?
Q. Correct.
A. We met with Sunbeam management to discuss forecasts, I believe, twice. And we reviewed the forecast with them.
We would have also reviewed the public documents that Sunbeam provided, the SEC documents, as well as, you know, research reports that were out in the public domain.
Q. Anything else?
A. I don't think so.
Q. While you were at CSFB, did you work on any deals in which CSFB was serving as the underwriter of securities?
A. I don't -- I don't think so, or at least I was not the underwriter.

Q. Was the Coleman engagement the first engagement that you had worked on for a MacAndrews & Forbes-related company, or had you worked on prior deals with those individuals?
A. I believe I had worked on prior deals with them.
Q. So, the two deals that you described earlier --
A. I think both happened in '96, '97.
Q. Can you recall any other engagements, even those that did not involve stock being transferred, that you had done for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No. I mean, there were potential engagements that we would have worked on, but not any that had happened.
Q. Did -- was MacAndrews & Forbes a long-standing client of CSFB?
A. They had been -- yes, they have been a client for probably 10 years.
Q. 10 years prior to your --
A. Well --
Q. -- engagements that you worked on? And were there other individuals within CSFB that had relationships with individuals at MacAndrews & Forbes?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 34

A. Yes.
Q. And who at CSFB, that you know of, had dealings or engagements with MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Gordon Rich, Tim O'Hara, I assume Chuck Ward.
Q. Do you know what type of work Mr. Rich had done for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. He -- well, he was the primary relationship manager. And so he had done a variety of assignments for them.
Q. Prior to the Coleman engagement?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what the nature of those assignments were?
A. I think we took Coleman public. We would have also done some high yield transactions for them where he would have been the relationship manager for that.
We sold some businesses for Revlon, and he would have been responsible for that as well.
Q. You did not work on any of those engagements?

Page 35

A. I think I did work on the Revlon sale. That was in '91. But I left before it was completed.
Q. This was while you were in school?
A. Yes. Well, it was completed while I was in school. Before law school, I worked at First Boston.
Q. For how long?
A. '88 to '91.
Q. And what position did you hold during that time period?
A. I was an analyst.
Q. And aside from the Revlon transaction that you just described, did you work on any other MacAndrews & Forbes engagements during that time period from '88 to '91?
A. I don't think so.
Q. What was the nature of the Revlon transaction that you worked on?
A. They -- initially it was to sell the company. And then it became to sell a piece of the company to Procter & Gamble.
Q. And was that transaction ultimately consummated?
A. I believe so.

Page 36

Q. But not while you were there?
A. No.
Q. How about Mr. O'Hara, what was the nature of his work for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. He ran the high yield department, so he oversaw high yield finances that he would have done for them.
Q. And did you work on any engagements was Mr. O'Hara for MacAndrews & Forbes or related companies?
A. No.
Q. And the other name that you mentioned was Chuck --
A. Ward.
Q. -- Ward.
A. He ran the investment banking group. And I think he met, from time to time, with the folks at MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. Did you work on any engagements with Mr. Ward for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No. He was involved in this for a little bit.
Q. And what role did he play in the Coleman engagement?
A. I think he just attended some of the meetings.

Q. Other than the transaction that you described earlier with regard to taking Coleman public, had there been other engagements that CSFB had worked on for the Coleman Company?
A. I believe so. I think Marvel went public, and I think we were involved in that. But I don't remember.
Q. Had you had prior deals with the individuals at the Coleman Company prior to the engagement in 1997 and 1998?
A. Joe Page was involved with the television stations which would have been the prior transaction. And Jerry Levin was, probably, someone who had been at some meetings that I attended. But I don't reall -- I think he ran -- I can't remember. At one point, he ran Revlon. I don't know whether he ran it while we were involved in the sales process.
Q. What year was the engagement where Coleman was taken public?
A. I think it's 1992.
Q. From '92 to '98, were there any other engagements that you were aware of, even if you weren't personally involved, where CSFB had done

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

work for Coleman?
A. I'm sure there are. I just don't know the exact ones.
Q. At the time that you got involved in the Coleman engagement, was it your understanding that CSFB had a good working understanding of the Coleman Company and its business?
A. I don't know.
Q. The sale of the television stations that you described earlier, was that related to Panavision?
A. No.
Q. It was not a Panavision transaction?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall which MacAndrews & Forbes entity was involved in that engagement?
A. No. I think it was one station.
Q. Did you ever work on any engagement for which CSFB was a lender or issuer of a credit facility to a MacAndrews & Forbes company?
A. I don't know. I can't recall.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 313, Materials Prepared for Discussion MacAndrews & Forbes, February 1997, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Mr. Duffy, I've handed you a document that we've marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 313. It's a document dated February 1997 entitled, "Materials Prepared for Discussion, MacAndrews & Forbes," and it's a four- or five-page document that bears a CSFB legend on several of the pages.
Just flip through it and let me know when you're ready to talk about it.
A. Okay.
Q. The second page of the -- first of all, have you seen this before?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't recall?
A. I don't recall.
Q. The second page at the top indicates that -- or suggests a summary term sheet for senior secured discount notes to be issued by Revlon Worldwide Parent Corporation.
Do you have any understanding or involvement as to this engagement or this issuance that was being discussed here?
A. No.
Q. Were you involved in any discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes about financing for Revlon?

A. I don't know. I don't know.
Q. You don't recall?
A. Right. It would not have been my expertise.
Q. You don't recall being involved in any discussions related to this?
A. I don't, no.
Q. If you turn over to the next page, there's a summary term sheet for MAFCO Finance to be arranged by CSFB, a term loan and revolving credit facility. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any involvement in a credit facility or term loan engagement for MacAndrews & Forbes in or around this time period?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't recall?
A. I don't recall, no.
Q. You'll see on this page, the -- do you know -- let me strike that.
Do you know whether the credit facilities that are being described here were ultimately --
A. I don't know if they occurred or didn't.

Q. The -- one of the terms that is listed here on page 2 of the document under "Security," it talks about a pledge of stock occurring for all of the operating companies including shares of NewsCorp. and LabCorp.
In connection with the work that you did for Coleman, did you come to understand that the shares of Coleman owned by MacAndrews & Forbes had been pledged as security for any credit facility?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you work with any bankers at CSFB in terms of understanding Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes debt obligations to CSFB in connection with the sale to Sunbeam?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Under "Conditions Precedent" here on the same page dealings with the bank term sheet, item No. 3 describes a plan for the refinancing of Coleman notes.
Do you have any understanding as to what that was referring to?
A. No.
Q. On the final page of this document,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Morgan Stanley Exhibit 313, there's a summary table of collateral for the bank facilities that were being described here on the page. And it indicates a figure for Coleman, Revlon, Marvel and other MacAndrews & Forbes companies.

Did you ever have occasion in the work that you did to evaluate what collateral of operating companies had been pledged to CSFB prior to the sale of Coleman to Sunbeam?

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Did you have -- the dealings that you described earlier with Mr. Perelman, did they all relate to the Coleman engagement?

A. No.

Q. What other dealings have you had with Mr. Perelman?

A. We would show him potential companies to buy. We would -- that is, we discussed potential acquisitions with him. And that would have been it, I think.

Q. Did you view Mr. Perelman as financially sophisticated?

A. I assume so.

Q. Well --

A. He had done well.

Q. But did you view him as financially sophisticated in your dealings with him?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he appear that way to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And was he experienced, in your judgment, in merger and acquisition transactions?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any direct dealings with Mr. Perelman on the Coleman engagement?

A. Yes, he was at meetings.

Q. Internal meetings that you had had --

A. Yes.

Q. -- with MacAndrews & Forbes?

Do you recall what the nature of those meetings were?

A. Not -- not all of them, no.

Q. Any of them?

A. It was -- he was asking us for arguments for higher price, how to justify the higher price for Coleman.

Q. And did you provide him with those arguments?

A. Yes, to the best of our ability.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Perelman saying anything else at these meetings related to the Coleman engagement?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. What about generally?

A. No. I mean, I'm sure there was -- my recollection is really of the price discussions that we had to do.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Perelman about the form of consideration that would be received in the transaction, specifically a mix of cash and stock and assumption of debt?

A. I'm sure we did. I don't recall the specifics of any discussions.

Q. Did you have dealings with Mr. Gittis on the Coleman engagement?

A. I would think so, yes.

Q. And you had dealt with him on other engagements as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you view Mr. Gittis to be financially sophisticated?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you view Mr. Gittis to be experienced in merger and acquisition transactions?

A. Yes.

Q. What, if any, dealings do you remember having with Mr. Gittis relating to the Coleman engagement?

A. The same as with Mr. Perelman, how to justify the price.

Q. Any discussions about the form of compensation -- consideration that MacAndrews & Forbes would receive in connection with the merger?

A. I don't recall, no.

Q. Did you have dealings with Mr. Maher in connection with the work that you did on the --

A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Maher your principal point of contact for the Coleman engagement?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have the most dealings with Mr. Maher out of any of the MacAndrews & Forbes people?

A. I would think so.

Q. Did you view Mr. Maher to be financially sophisticated?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you view him to be experienced in merger and acquisition transactions?
A. Yes.
Q. What, if anything, do you remember dealing with Mr. Maher on as it related to Coleman?
A. The same as Mr. Gittis and Mr. Perelman. You know, what -- he was -- you know, how do you justify higher price. And that was really it.
Q. Any discussions with Mr. Maher about the form of consideration that MacAndrews & Forbes would receive in connection with the acquisition?
A. I don't recall any specifics.
Q. Do you recall that topic being discussed with MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I think we must have talked about the consideration, yes.
Q. Were there any discussions that you can recall regarding whether to structure the deal as an all cash deal versus a mixture of cash and stock?
A. I don't -- I don't remember. I don't remember if all cash was ever an option.

Q. Do you recall viewpoints within MacAndrews & Forbes about whether it would be advisable or a way to achieve a higher price to get Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration?
A. I don't remember that.
Q. Do you recall any discussions with Mr. Nesbitt related to Coleman?
A. The same series of conversations -- the same series of recollections.
Q. Did you view Mr. Nesbitt to be financially sophisticated?
A. Yes.
Q. And experienced in merger and acquisition transactions?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you personally involved in performing due diligence on the transaction that you described earlier with regard to the television station sale?
A. Yes.
Q. And what role did you play in due diligence?
A. I think I interviewed somebody about the financials of the station.

Q. Anything else that you can remember?
A. No.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 314, Amended And Restated Credit Agreement dated as of August 3, 1995, marked for identification, as of this date.)
MR. PARADISE: Is this a good time to break, because we're going to ask for a break in 15. Did you want to go for five and break?
MR. CLARE: I think we can probably deal with this document fairly quickly and we'll take a break.
MR. PARADISE: Good.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I've just handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 314. It's a document entitled, "Amended And Restated Credit Agreement" dated as of August 3, 1995 among The Coleman Company" certain banks.
Have you ever seen this document before?
A. I don't know. I don't recognize it.
Q. The document identifies CSFB as both an agent for a group of banks and also a lender to the Coleman Company.

Did you have an understanding that Coleman had a credit relationship with CSFB at the time you were working on the deal?
A. I don't remember that.
MR. BRODY: Object to foundation.
Q. There's -- on page 96 of the document, there's an individual listed from CSFB, Kristina Catlin, who is an associate.
Did you have any dealings with Ms. Catlin as it related to the work you did for Coleman?
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry. What page, Tom?
MR. CLARE: It's page 96 of the agreement.
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't recall any?
A. I don't recall -- I don't remember her name.
Q. Do you recognize the signature which appears above Ms. Catlin's --
A. No, I don't.
Q. -- which is also under the Credit Suisse signature block?
Do you know what the status of this credit agreement was in 1997, 1998 at the time Coleman was sold to Sunbeam?

A. No, I don't.

MR. PARADISE: Okay. Thank you.

Q. Mr. Duffy, before the break, I had asked you about the individuals at MacAndrews & Forbes that you had worked with on various engagements. You mentioned that you had worked with Mr. Drapkin on the Coleman engagement?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. What dealings did you have with Mr. Drapkin on that engagement?
A. It would have been the same as Mr. Gittis and Mr. Perelman. They sort of worked as a team.
Q. Do you regard Mr. Drapkin as financially sophisticated?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you regard him as experienced in merger and acquisition transactions?

A. Yes.
Q. And you regarded these individuals as financially sophisticated in 1998 at the time?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Levin, what dealings did you have with Mr. Levin on the engagement?
A. I -- I think we talked about the business, you know. That's all -- you know, he would have been the person that provided information about Coleman and about the synergies.
Q. And what specifically do you remember discussing with Mr. Levin about the synergies?
A. Nothing specific. I just think we had conversations about that.
Q. Do you view Mr. Levin as financially sophisticated?
A. That, I couldn't really -- I mean, he was the manager of the company, so I assume so.
Q. Had you had an understanding of whether Mr. Levin had prior experience in merger and acquisition transactions?
A. No.
Q. What about Mr. Page, what dealings did you have with Mr. Page?

A. Probably just discussions around financials.
Q. Did you view Mr. Page as financially sophisticated?
A. Yes.
Q. And experienced in merger and acquisition transactions?
A. I didn't have an opinion on that.
Q. Also, before the break, we were discussing CSFB's relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes.
Do you understand, one way or another, whether CSFB had made loans to other MacAndrews & Forbes companies besides Coleman? We focused on at least one --
A. I don't know. I wouldn't be surprised if they had.
Q. But you don't have any knowledge or understanding of that?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who at CSFB would have been involved in a lending relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes and its companies?
MR. PARADISE: Assuming there was one.

Q. Assuming there was one, who would you go to to --
A. Most likely, Mr. Rich, and Tim O'Hara may have known. He would have known about underwritings.
Q. Did you ever have any discussions with Mr. Rich about the relationship between CSFB and MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I'm sure I did, yes.
Q. Do you remember those discussions?
A. Not any specific ones.
Q. At the time you were working in the engagement, did you understand that CSFB had a long-standing relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. And that MacAndrews & Forbes had used CSFB on prior merger and acquisition transactions?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any understanding whether, apart from MacAndrews & Forbes, the corporate entity, whether CSFB was a lender to any MacAndrews & Forbes executives, whether there was a banking relationship individually with any of those individuals?

A. No, I didn't know that.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 315, Letter dated March 30, 1998, from Credit Suisse First Boston to the Coleman Company, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Duffy, while you're looking at the document, I'll state for the record, I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 315. It's a letter addressed to the Coleman Company dated March 30, 1998 from Credit Suisse First Boston.
Have you ever seen this letter before?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Now, the date on the letter is March 30, 1998, which is within a day or so of the date the acquisition transaction with Sunbeam closed.
Do you recall, at or around the time of the closing of the acquisition, working with others at CSFB on paying off loans that Coleman had outstanding to CSFB?
A. No.
Q. You'll see that the -- in the re: line of the letter it refers to the restated credit agreement dated August 3rd, 1995. That was the document that we had looked at before the break --

A. Okay.
Q. -- Morgan Stanley Exhibit 314.
Do you understand that, as a result of the acquisition transaction, that Sunbeam would be assuming debt that Coleman had on its books at the time?
A. I believe so. I really don't recall exactly. I would have expected that.
Q. You would have expected that to be --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- part of the deal?
A. Yeah.
Q. Did you have any -- did you personally do any work on the mechanics of accomplishing that in the assumption of debt and the repayment of outstanding credit facilities?
A. No, I don't think I did.
Q. Do you know who on the M&A team at CSFB handled that aspect of it, if anyone?
A. I don't think the M&A team handled it.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to how much money at the time that the acquisition closed was owed to CSFB by Coleman?

A. No.
Q. Even aside from the amount, did you have an understanding, at the time, that CSFB was owed money by Coleman?
A. I don't remember if I did.
Q. The names on -- signatory on page 3 of the letter --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- do you recognize the name Julia Kingsbury?
A. No.
Q. And the J. Glodster, I believe, managing director?
A. I think that's Joel Glodowski.
Q. Thank you. Your eyes are better than mine.
And who is Mr. Glodowski?
A. He would have been the -- the banking relationship from MacAndrews.
Q. Did you have any dealings with Mr. Glodowski in the Coleman engagement?
A. I don't know -- I don't recall. I doubt with respect to MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. But not specifically --

A. Not specifically.
Q. -- with regard to Coleman?
A. I don't remember.
Q. What dealings do you have or have you had with Mr. Glodowski related to MacAndrews & Forbes that you do remember?
A. I just remember him being the MacAndrews & Forbes credit individual.
Q. Was he involved in any meetings or discussions related to the Coleman engagement?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Were you part of any discussions, prior to the acquisition -- the engagement, relating to MAFCO's compliance with financial covenants in its credit facilities?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you have -- let me start again.
At the time you got involved on the Coleman engagement, were you -- were you working on other MacAndrews & Forbes-related matters, or was this a new assignment for you as it at least related to MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't think I was working on any -- anything else. What we -- you know, we regularly talked to them about acquisition opportunities.

Q. And in the course of those discussions, did you understand that MacAndrews & Forbes was looking to divest itself of any of its holdings in order to raise money for its operations?
A. No. I was aware they had been trying to sell Coleman for a while.
Q. And had CSFB assisted MacAndrews & Forbes in those efforts?
A. I don't think so.
Q. They were independently pursuing a sale?
A. Yeah. Or they hired someone else. I don't know.
Q. Do you know who they had hired, if anyone?
A. No.
Q. And do you know who they had spoken to about a sale of Coleman?
A. No.
Q. In those discussions that you had with MacAndrews & Forbes about the sale of Coleman, did you have an understanding as to why MacAndrews & Forbes was looking to sell Coleman?
A. No. I mean, I think they just wanted to get out.

Q. Nothing beyond that in terms of reason -- any expression that Coleman was underperforming as part of their portfolio companies?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you have an understanding that MacAndrews & Forbes needed or wanted to sell Coleman in order to raise money for other MacAndrews & Forbes companies?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you have an understanding that the Coleman shares had been pledged to secure credit facilities that were used to fund other MacAndrews & Forbes companies?
A. I was aware that shares were pledged. I'm not sure -- to raise -- you know, for debt financing. I'm not sure where the money went.
Q. Did you have any discussion about those pledges as it relates to the sale of Coleman?
A. I believe we did, because the way we -- the transaction was structured, they bought the holding company, I think, that had pledged the shares.

Page 60

Q. Did you have any discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes about the need to -- or desire to reduce its debt load through a sale of Coleman or other companies?
A. I don't recall.
Q. I'd like to talk now specifically about what role you played on the Coleman engagement. And I'm going to have some specific questions and we're going to look at some documents to eliminate that.
But if you could describe to me as specifically as you can what your responsibilities were and activities that you performed in connection with the Coleman engagement.
A. Sure. I think, as I said before, we provided some rationales for why Coleman should deserve a higher price from Sunbeam. And support for the discussions that were going on.
We would have valued Coleman using, you know, methodologies like cash flow analysis, multiple analysis.
We, I assume, did some diligence on Coleman. To do that, we provided due diligence on Sunbeam, provided value -- fairness opinion to

Page 61

Coleman. And I believe made presentations to the board of directors on the fairness opinion.
And we would have, probably, provided support, if asked, in the discussions that went on.
Q. When you say "discussions," you mean with Sunbeam?
A. Yeah, with Sunbeam.
Q. Did you attend negotiation sessions with Sunbeam?
A. I can't remember. I'm not sure if we did or didn't.
Q. Do you remember having any meetings with Sunbeam management?
A. Yes, we had several meetings. We had diligence meetings and I think there probably was other meetings where a couple of Sunbeam people were involved.
Q. Did you attend meetings where Morgan Stanley was present?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember any of the individuals you dealt with from Morgan Stanley?
A. Not specifically. Bill Reid would have been the person who was usually there. He was the MacAndrews sort of coverage person.

015836

Q. When was the last time you spoke to Mr. Reid?
A. I don't think I -- since then, probably.
Q. Did you know Mr. Reid before this engagement?
A. Not personally. I knew who he was.
Q. At the time that you got involved on the Coleman engagement, had MacAndrews & Forbes already been in discussions with Sunbeam?
A. I believe so. I think that's why we were asked to get the pricing information.
Q. That's the first thing you remember, was being asked for a rationale for a higher price?
A. Yes.
Q. And who asked you for that rationale?
A. It was either Mr. Perelman or Mr. Gittis, I think.
Q. And this was a meeting that you had and Mr. Rich had with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis?
A. I think so.
Q. What was discussed as a rationale for demanding a higher price?

A. Why -- I'm sorry. What was our answer or what was -- why were they asking?
Q. Those are both good questions. Let's start with the second one first.
Did you have an understanding as to why they were asking?
A. They wanted more.
Q. They wanted a higher price for Coleman?
A. Yeah.
Q. In the course of those discussions, did they explain to you a floor at which they wanted to get price-wise?
A. I don't remember.
Q. You don't remember what the price points were?
A. I don't remember if there was a target they had in their -- you know, they were trying to get to.
Q. And what answer did you provide them rationale for higher prices?
A. I remember we did some analysis, but I don't -- I don't recall the exact specifics of it.

Q. Do you recall a discussion of potential synergies between Coleman and Sunbeam as entering into the discussion about a price?
A. It could have. I don't -- it could have. I don't remember.
Q. The second item that you described was doing evaluation of Coleman?
A. Yep.
Q. How did you go about valuing Coleman?
A. I think we would have done a DCF analysis. We would have taken whatever information Coleman gave us and prepared, you know, a DCF model, comparable company model, comparable acquisitions.
Q. It was based on information provided to you by Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. And did that include financial projections going forward?
A. I believe so.
Q. And did you meet with Coleman management relating to that information that they had provided to you?
A. I don't recall it, but we -- I would think we did.

Q. You said that you --
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry. Can I have the answer back.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall the specific meeting, but I would have thought that we did.
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
Q. You indicated that you had performed due diligence on Coleman?
A. That would have been a discussion of their financial projections.
Q. And what diligence on Coleman did you perform?
A. As I said, I don't recall specifically, but I would have thought we discussed the projections with them and the status of their business.
Q. What discussions do you remember on those topics?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Do you remember what Coleman's financial condition was at the time?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember who those conversations were with?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015837

Page 66

A. No.
Q. Other than remembering that -- other than what you've testified, do you remember anything about those conversations?
A. No.
Q. You said you also had performed diligence on Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. You had one or two meetings with Sunbeam --
A. Yes.
Q. -- to accomplish that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever travel to Florida for purposes of doing due diligence on Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Do you understand that Sunbeam's headquarters were in Florida?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever -- did all of the work that you did on this engagement take place in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever travel to Wichita?
A. No. But all the management was in

Page 67

New York.
Q. I'm sorry?
A. All the management teams were in New York.
Q. Meaning the Coleman management team?
A. And the Sunbeam management team.
Q. So, the meetings that you had with Sunbeam management all took place in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you visit any data rooms that had been set up by Sunbeam for purposes of due diligence for the deal?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Sunbeam was represented by Skadden Arps here in New York in connection with the acquisition.
Did you have any dealings or discussions with lawyers from Skadden Arps about diligence on Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You indicated that these diligence meetings that you had with Sunbeam. Was Morgan Stanley present for those meetings?
A. I believe they were. I'm sure they were for one. I'm not sure for the second. The first session.

Q. We'll talk about those meetings, I think, in a little bit more detail.
You indicated earlier that you also reviewed public filings of Sunbeam's?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you -- other than the two meetings that you had with Sunbeam in reviewing public filings, is there anything else that you can recall doing due diligence on Sunbeam?
A. I would think we read research reports and press reports just for background.
Q. Do you recall having done that?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Were you part of any discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes about why Coleman or MacAndrews would be interested in doing a transaction with Sunbeam, the rationale for the transaction?
A. I'm sure I was. I don't recall the specifics other than, you know, the -- I don't recall the specifics.
Q. Did you ever hear anyone say, in words or substance, that Sunbeam was overpaying for Coleman?

Page 69

A. No.
Q. Did you believe that Sunbeam was overpaying for Coleman?
A. No.
Q. What discussions do you recall having related to synergies?
A. I don't recall specifics. I just -- I recall there were synergies and they were discussed.
Q. Were these part of meetings that were internal with MacAndrews & Forbes and CSFB or were these meetings where Sunbeam and its advisors were also present or both?
A. I'm sure there were meetings with Sunbeam. Whether we had separate internal meetings, I don't recall.
Q. What do you recall being said on the subject of synergies in meetings with Sunbeam?
A. Just the discussion. I don't recall the specifics.
Q. Was it -- dollar figures discussed in terms of potential synergies for the combination or line items related to synergies that might be achieved?
A. I don't remember the specifics.

Q. Were you involved in the negotiations between Sunbeam and Coleman regarding the form that the consideration would take?
A. I -- I don't recall.
Q. Did CSFB advise MacAndrews & Forbes on that subject?
A. I don't -- I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall MacAndrews & Forbes expressing a preferred arrangement for the form of compensation?
A. The only -- well, the only preference, I think, was that the holding company get bought as opposed to just the shares that the holding company held.
Q. Why was that?
A. I think that saved taxes.
Q. Saved taxes for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. As it was ultimately struck, the acquisition also involved the assumption of holding company debt.
Do you remember that topic being discussed?
A. Yes. Well, I don't know -- I don't recall it being -- I recall that was -- I don't recall specifically the discussion about the assumption of debt. The holding company had debt. So, buying the holding company required you to take the debt.

Q. Do you remember the sale of the holding company together with the debt being something that was important to MacAndrews & Forbes in your discussions?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. Yeah, I believe so because that was the tax savings.
Q. Other than tax savings, were there any other reasons that were discussed for structuring it as a sale of the holding company?
A. I don't recall.
Q. In your discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes, did anyone ever say, in words or substance, that Coleman should not accept Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration for the acquisition?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall any internal discussion or debate about that topic?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Levin his view on accepting Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration for the transaction?

A. I don't think so.
Q. Did anyone else in your presence ever express doubt about whether to accept Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did anyone express doubts in your presence about accepting stock from a company that was run by Mr. Dunlap?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did you know Mr. Dunlap's reputation at the time?
A. I don't -- I know he had a reputation as a cost cutter. I don't know if there was anything more about his reputation at that point, other than that of being difficult.
Q. Did -- were you aware that he had a reputation of being a turnaround specialist?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you know, at the time, that Mr. Dunlap had previously been at Scott Paper?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any reason to question the authenticity of Mr. Dunlap's performance at Scott Paper?

A. No.
Q. Did you ever have any discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes about Mr. Dunlap's performance at Scott Paper?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes ask CSFB to look into Mr. Dunlap's track record at Scott Paper?
A. I don't think so.
Q. And did you do any work to look into it, regardless of whether you were asked?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Was there any reason, at the time, for -- to question Mr. Dunlap's honesty and integrity?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. I don't think so.
Q. Do you recall anyone raising a question about Mr. Dunlap's honesty or integrity?
A. No.
Q. What about other members of the Sunbeam management team?
A. I don't remember.

Q. As you sit here today, you don't recall anyone having raised a question about the honesty and integrity of Sunbeam's management team?
A. Right, correct.
Q. Was there anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes that you dealt with, or Coleman, that was advocating accepting Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to where that idea originated?
A. No. Stock and cash, right?
Q. Correct.
Did you have any discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes about limitations on its ability to retain cash proceeds from sales of companies?
A. Not --
Q. Financial covenants that it had in place that would have limited the amount of cash that it could accept and keep as -- in connection with an acquisition transaction?
A. I don't recall that, no.
Q. Who first contacted you about working on this engagement?

A. I assume Mr. Rich. I don't remember, though.
Q. You don't recall that?
A. (Witness shook head.)
Q. What's the first thing that you remember doing on the engagement?
A. I think the pricing arguments.
Q. Where did that conversation take place, was it over the phone or was it in person?
A. Could have been both. I don't -- you mean the first conversation? I don't remember.
Q. And what were you told about the status of discussions at that point?
A. I think that there had been some discussions between Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap.
Q. Do you know what time period this was in?
A. I -- I would believe it's late 1997.
Q. We've seen a calendar entry in November of 1997, there's a lunch that took place between Mr. Maher, Mr. Rich and a John Godsman. Is Mr. Godsman -- is that a name that's familiar to you?
A. Yes.

Q. Who is Mr. Godsman?
A. He's a banker at CSFB.
Q. Did Mr. Godsman have any role on the Coleman engagement?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Do you remember whether you attended a lunch meeting in November of 1997 with those individuals?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you have any understanding, from any source, whether that meeting had anything to do with Sunbeam or a potential acquisition of Coleman?
A. I don't know.
Q. What role did Mr. Rich play on the engagement?
A. He was the senior banker on the engagement. He was the lead individual.
Q. And what functions did he perform in that role?
A. Well, he was responsible for the work that CSFB did. He was the main point of contact with MacAndrews & Forbes. He would have been the senior sponsor of the project within the bank.
Q. Had Mr. Rich done other deals for MacAndrews & Forbes or affiliates?

A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Do you know any other deals that he had done?
A. I believe, you know, any of the IPO work or M&A work. He worked on the Revlon transaction. I believe he worked on the IPOs. I believe he would have been involved in any credit work that was done.
Q. Did you have discussions with Mr. Rich about the history of the relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Sure.
Q. And what did he tell you?
A. It's a tough -- well, I don't know. He had a long working relationship with them.
Q. Was Mr. Rich simultaneously working on other engagements with MacAndrews & Forbes, other than Coleman?
A. I don't know.
Q. What role did Mr. Geller play in the engagement?
A. He was the -- either analyst or junior associate, so he did most of the analytical work, the number -- quantitative analysis.

Q. Did he report to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Geller attend the due diligence meetings that you described?
A. I think he did.
Q. Did Mr. Geller, to your knowledge, travel to Florida to meet with Sunbeam, separately from you?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did Mr. Geller work on prior MacAndrews & Forbes-related engagements?
A. I don't remember.
Q. What role did Mr. Ward have on the Coleman engagement?
A. I think he attended some meetings that Mr. Rich couldn't attend. And I think he also knew Mr. Maher very well and the other MacAndrews folks.
Q. Did he -- so, he and Mr. Rich performed similar functions on the engagement?
A. I think he filled in for Mr. Rich for one or two meetings.
Q. Mr. Chakrapani?
A. He was the junior analyst on the transaction.

Page 79

Q. Working with Mr. Geller?
A. Yeah.
Q. Is the name Gail Zauder familiar to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Who is Ms. Zauder?
A. She was a managing director at CSFB.
Q. Did she work, in any way, on the Coleman engagement?
A. I don't think so.
Q. What about Mr. or Ms. Soss, S-O-S-S, is that a name that --
A. I don't remember the name.
Q. What did you understand the engagement to be at the time you were retained?
A. To be an advisor to Coleman and MacAndrews on the sale.
Q. Was that -- what instructions were given to you as to what functions you were to perform in carrying out that engagement?
A. Well, I think we were to be prepared to do -- provide a fairness opinion and to provide support to the deal team, if necessary.
Q. And who was the deal team that you're referring to?

Page 80

A. The Jim -- the Maher, Perelman, the MacAndrews folks who were negotiating the deal.
Q. So, when you refer to the deal team, that would be the in-house MacAndrews people?
A. Yeah.
Q. And you were supporting them in their function as the -- in the negotiation?
A. Yes. They were the -- they were the -- they were the client -- you know, they were Coleman's management.
Q. Was this the first time that CSFB had been asked to work on a possible sale of Coleman?
A. I don't know.
Q. It was the first time --
A. It was the first time I had, yes.
Q. I'm going to hand you what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 169. It's a December 10, 1997 letter addressed to the Coleman Company, Inc. from Credit Suisse First Boston dated December 10, 1997.
Have you seen this document before?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this the engagement letter between CSFB and the Coleman Company for the acquisition transaction?

Page 81

A. I think so.
Q. Were you involved in preparing this retention letter?
A. I think so.
Q. And do you recognize the signature on page 3 of the letter as Mr. Rich on behalf of CSFB?
A. Yeah.
Q. Is this a standard form, CSFB retention letter?
A. Parts of it, yes.
Q. Is there any part of it that is not --
A. Well --
Q. -- or is different?
A. Well, for each engagement, what you put in will be different.
Q. So, when you --
A. And the fee would be different, obviously.
Q. Just so I understand your testimony, this specific role that CSFB is going to perform or being asked to perform will vary depending on the engagement?
A. Yes.

Q. And this specific role that CSFB is being asked to play will be inserted here on page 1 of the engagement?
A. The components of the role will be inserted, yes.
Q. And when you're referring to the components of the role, you're referring on Morgan Stanley Exhibit 169 to the items identified as A through E?
A. Yes.
Q. Was the -- is there anything in your mind that stands out as different or unusual about the scope of the engagement that CSFB had in this engagement for Coleman as compared to other M&A work that you have been involved in at CSFB?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. Not really, no. I mean, sometimes you might have more things to do. I mean, market the company.
Q. And that was not part of the engagement here?
A. Not on here, no.
Q. Are there other things that might be part of a merger and acquisition engagement that were not included here?

A. I don't think so. It's just how you describe it.
Q. The first paragraph on page 1 of the December 10, 1997 engagement letter relates to a proposed transaction with a company code named Laser. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you understand Laser to be Sunbeam?
A. I assume so. I don't remember the name.
Q. I'll represent to you that there are documents --
A. I believe you.
Q. -- and -- where Laser has been used as a code name for the transaction.
Is that consistent with your recollection, that there was a code name assigned to the --
A. Sure.
Q. -- engagement?
I've also seen reference to a Project Violet. Is that a project name that you would associate with the work that you had done for Coleman?

A. I remember -- I don't -- I can't make a direct connection.
Q. The first paragraph of the December 10, 1997 letter confirms the engagement of CSFB to act as the exclusive financial advisor to Coleman for a proposed transaction with Laser.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware of any other financial advisor, other than CSFB, that was engaged by Coleman or MAFCO to evaluate a proposed transaction with Sunbeam?
A. I don't think so.
Q. In your work on the engagement, did you have dealings with other financial advisors who were advising MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman?
A. Just Morgan Stanley.
Q. It was your understanding that Morgan Stanley was advising MacAndrews & Forbes on the transaction?
A. They were not -- they were giving opinions to MacAndrews & Forbes. You know, they were giving their opinion on the deal. Not as an official advisor, but --
Q. What opinion did Morgan Stanley provide to MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. I don't know. I think they were just -- they talked to them about the deal.
Q. Did you understand Morgan Stanley to be advising Sunbeam on the transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you understand Morgan Stanley to have any contractual relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
MR. PARADISE: With respect to this engagement?
MR. CLARE: With respect to this engagement.
A. No.
Q. Did you understand Morgan Stanley to be negotiating opposite of MacAndrews & Forbes in connection with the transaction?
A. No. I think they were brokering the deal. I don't recall them being the negotiating arm of Sunbeam.
Q. What role do you recall them playing in brokering the deal?
A. I think they had brought the parties together prior to -- you know, that had been the origination of the discussions.

Q. And who in -- who had performed that, who at Morgan Stanley had done that?
A. I don't know specifics.
Q. Were you there when that --
A. No.
Q. -- those meetings or conversations took place?
A. No. That was just my impression.
Q. What's the basis for that impression, did somebody tell you that?
A. I can't remember. I assume so.
Q. In the meetings that you attended, was Morgan Stanley providing advice to MacAndrews & Forbes on the transaction?
A. I don't remember. I don't think so.
Q. As you sit here today, can you recall any instance in which you were present where Morgan Stanley was advising MacAndrews & Forbes with respect to the transaction?
A. No.
Q. The answer is no?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any financial advisor, other than CSFB, that made a presentation to the Coleman board regarding the Sunbeam transaction?

A. No.
Q. You attended the board meeting of the Coleman Company?
A. I think so, yeah.
Q. And, at that meeting, Mr. Rich made a presentation?
A. I think so. I don't remember the meeting specifically.
Q. Were you present at any meeting of the Coleman board where Morgan Stanley had made a presentation?
A. I don't know.
Q. Are you aware of any financial advisor, other than CSFB, who rendered a fairness opinion to the Coleman board regarding the Sunbeam transaction?
A. No.
Q. Did you have an understanding as to who was paying Morgan Stanley for its work on this transaction?
A. Sunbeam.
Q. Are you aware of any payments that were made by MacAndrews & Forbes to Morgan

Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?
A. No.
Q. The engagement letter goes on to list five items that CSFB would perform, if appropriate and if requested.
First item says, "If appropriate and if requested, CSFB would assist Coleman in analyzing and evaluating the business operations and financial position of the company."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And was CSFB, in fact, asked to do that by Coleman?
A. We were asked to provide evaluation of the company, so I would view that as falling under A.
Q. And are you aware of any other financial advisor, other than CSFB, that assisted Coleman in performing that valuation?
A. No.
Q. Did you work with Morgan Stanley on that valuation?
A. I don't think so.
Q. I'm sorry?

A. I don't think so. I don't know if we talked to them about our valuation. We might have done that.
Q. Do you recall having talked with Morgan Stanley about the valuation?
A. Not specifically.
Q. And, as you sit here today, can you recall any discussions with Morgan Stanley about the valuation that CSFB performed?
A. No.
Q. Other than the valuation that you've just described, were there any other functions that you performed that would fall under A?
A. I don't think so.
Q. The next item says, "If appropriate and if requested, CSFB would evaluate any proposal which is received from Laser or Sunbeam."
MR. PARADISE: Assist you.
MR. CLARE: Correct.
Q. Would assist Coleman in evaluating aby proposal received from Laser. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And was -- were you asked to do that?
A. I assume so. I don't recall

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

specifically. I mean, I think -- I don't recall any specific evaluation, but I assume we did.
Q. Do you recall there being back-and-forth offers related to the acquisition transaction even in terms of price or deal structure that you were asked to look at or model?
A. I think there was, but I don't recall specifics of what went back and forth.
Q. Are you aware of any financial advisor, other than CSFB, that assisted Coleman in evaluating proposals received from Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Would the activities described in paragraph B include evaluating statements made by Sunbeam's management team about Sunbeam's business?
A. Probably not.
Q. So, the due diligence function that you described earlier would not fit under that heading?
A. I guess I'm -- either -- it would be B or E, you know, the fairness -- as part of the fairness opinion, you would have to do that.
Q. Why would you have to -- have to do that?

A. Well, you're looking at what the offer is at that point in deciding whether it's fair.
Q. And in a transaction that was stock and cash like this one, it would include an examination of the company that was providing the stock?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was for that purpose that you would perform due diligence on Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Item C says, "If appropriate and if requested, CSFB would assist Coleman in structuring and negotiating any proposed transaction with Laser."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall assisting Coleman in structuring and negotiating a proposed transaction with Sunbeam?
MR. BRODY: This witness or the company? What do you mean by "you"?
Q. Do you recall CSFB being asked to perform that function?
A. No. Well, we weren't negotiating for Coleman.

Q. MacAndrews & Forbes were doing that on their own?
A. Yeah, they were Coleman, right. I mean, they were officers of Coleman.
Q. Did you assist the deal team in negotiating strategies to present to Sunbeam?
A. I don't remember. I mean, I don't remember the details of the back and forth.
Q. Putting aside the details, do you recall any financial advisor, other than CSFB, assisting Coleman's deal team on those issues?
A. No.
Q. Item D states that, "If appropriate and requested, CSFB would be available at Coleman's request to meet with its board of directors to discuss the proposed transaction and its financial implication."
Was CSFB asked to perform that function?
A. Yes, but I think only with -- I can't remember if it was other than just the fairness opinion.
Q. Are you aware of any other financial advisor, other than CSFB, who met with the Coleman board to discuss the Sunbeam acquisition?

A. No.
Q. The last item indicates that, "If appropriate and requested, CSFB would render a fairness opinion as to the fairness from a financial point of view to the company's stockholders other than Coleman (Parent) Holdings and its affiliates of CSFB."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Was CSFB asked to provide a fairness opinion?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware of any other financial opinion -- financial advisor, other than CSFB, who rendered a fairness opinion in connection with the acquisition?
A. No.
Q. Now, that paragraph that we just looked at carves out Coleman (Parent) Holdings and its affiliates.
Do you have an understanding as to why that was excluded from the scope of the engagement?
A. I don't -- not specifically. But I think we were being hired by the company and we were speaking to what the public shareholders would get.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Did you understand that Coleman (Parent) Holdings owned 82 percent or -- of Coleman at the time?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was -- your work was primarily done with representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Well, they were also officers of Coleman.
Q. Correct.
What is a fairness opinion in this context?
A. A fairness opinion speaks to the fairness of the consideration that the shareholders of the selling company are going to receive from a financial point of view.
Q. Would that include looking at the value of the consideration that was being received?
A. Yes.
Q. Including the value of the stock portion of the consideration?
A. Yes, but it wouldn't -- we wouldn't guarantee the value of the consideration.

Q. That was not part of the engagement?
A. Right.
Q. Is that part of -- is that normally -- let me withdraw that.
Is that a function that investment bankers providing a fairness opinion normally exclude from their fairness opinion?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
Q. In your experience?
MR. BRODY: Same.
A. They -- they normally do not speak to the valuation on the piece of equity in a fairness opinion.
Q. In your discussions with Morgan Stanley, did Morgan Stanley ever express a view as to the valuation of Sunbeam or the Sunbeam stock that was being provided?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall them doing that?
A. No.
Q. As you sit here today, do you recall Morgan Stanley making any statements that would guarantee a certain level of performance of Sunbeam stock that was being tendered to Coleman as part of the acquisition?

A. No.
Q. Or making any predictions of growth on the part of Sunbeam?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Generally?
A. No.
MR. PARADISE: Tom, whenever it's convenient for a quick bathroom break.
Q. On page 2 of the engagement letter, about midway down the page, "If we are requested to render an opinion, the nature and scope of our analysis as well as the form and substance of our opinion shall be such as we deem appropriate."
I understand that to mean that CSFB determined the nature and scope of the analysis that it performed before it rendered a fairness opinion; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did anyone impose any limit on CSFB on the nature or scope of the work that it could do on its engagement?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall any instance in which CSFB requested to perform an analysis or an evaluation that it was not permitted to perform?

A. No.
Q. Or any limits that were placed on CSFB's access to information either regarding Sunbeam or Coleman?
A. No. We got the information -- well, no. We got the information we were given.
Q. Was there any information that was requested by CSFB that was not provided?
A. I don't remember. We may have wanted projections and there wasn't -- projections had a -- you know, less years than we would have asked for. I don't remember that, though.
Q. When you talk about projections, are you talking about Coleman projections or Sunbeam projections?
A. Both.
Q. And, as you sit here today, do you recall an instance in which projections were requested but not made available to you?
A. No. I just -- no.
Q. So --
A. What I meant is, you know, we may have asked for five years of projections and got two years of projections.

Q. And but, as you sit here today, do you remember that specifically occurring?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
MR. CLARE: Why don't we take a break now.
MR. PARADISE: Sure.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Time is now 12 o'clock and we're off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 12:05 and we're back on the record.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I want to understand a little bit more your perception of Morgan Stanley's role in the transaction.
Did anyone ever tell you, in words or substance, that Morgan Stanley was playing an advisory role to MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I think I was told that they had brought the two parties together.
Q. Okay. Beyond that, were you told that Morgan Stanley was serving as an advisor to MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No. I knew they had a close relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes.

Q. And what was the basis of that knowledge?
A. They had done a lot of work for MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. And how were you aware of that?
A. I'd say just general knowledge. You know, I was aware of financings they had done and that they were from our perspective at CSFB, you know, probably a competitor for business for MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. And so you understood that Morgan Stanley had a client relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes for other transactions?
A. Yeah.
Q. Was it your understanding that Morgan Stanley had a client relationship with MacAndrews & Forbes for the Coleman engagement?
A. No. But I -- my recollection is they had sort of brokered -- brought -- brokered the deal and brought the two parties together.
Q. Did you understand that Morgan Stanley was compensated, in any way, by MacAndrews & Forbes for bringing the parties together?
A. No.
Q. Do you -- were you aware of any client relationship that was established between MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman as it relates to the Coleman engagement?

A. MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman?
Q. No. I'm sorry. Let me start again. Make sure we're clear.
Are you aware of any client relationship that was established between Morgan Stanley and MacAndrews & Forbes on the -- for the Coleman/Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did you observe Morgan Stanley advising MacAndrews & Forbes as a financial advisor in connection with the engagement?
A. No.
Q. That work was performed exclusively by CSFB?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you observe Morgan Stanley advising MacAndrews & Forbes on the value of Sunbeam stock that Coleman ultimately received in the engagement?
A. I don't remember them doing that.
Q. Do you remember Morgan Stanley providing any opinion either formal or informal, to MacAndrews & Forbes in connection with the transaction?

A. No.
Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley participating in meetings with MacAndrews & Forbes and CSFB where Sunbeam was not present also?
A. I don't remember that specifically. Could have happened and I just don't remember that.
Q. Do you remember any instance in which you met with representatives of Morgan Stanley and representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes where Sunbeam was not present?
A. I think when we had the second due diligence meeting we had it at Morgan Stanley's offices. I don't remember if -- when we were waiting for the meeting to start, if Morgan Stanley was there but Sunbeam wasn't.
Q. But at least the substantive portion of the meeting Sunbeam was present?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Was CSFB ever asked to split any portion of its fee with Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't think so.

Q. And your evaluation of the acquisition transaction, did you ever come across any documents that suggested that Morgan Stanley was receiving money from Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes in connection with this engagement?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever told, in words or substance, that the retention letter had been modified or changed to make CSFB a nonexclusive financial advisor to Coleman on this transaction?
A. No.
Q. Was it your understanding, from beginning to end, that CSFB was the exclusive financial advisor to Coleman on this transaction?
A. From the time we started, I -- my recollection is other -- somebody else had been working to sell Coleman during this -- you know, prior to when we got involved.
Q. Some other banker?
A. Yes.
Q. Not CSFB?
A. Not CSFB.
Q. Not Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't remember.
Q. During your involvement during the time that CSFB was involved in the engagement, was CSFB the exclusive financial advisor to Coleman?

A. Yes.
Q. The second page of the December 10th engagement letter describes a compensation that CSFB would receive?
A. Yes.
Q. The first component is a financial advisory fee of $250,000 --
A. Yes.
Q. -- payable upon the execution of the retention agreement.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did CSFB receive the financial advisory fee?
A. I don't know.
Q. And then a transaction fee of $3,750,000 which is described as the transaction fee payable upon the consummation of the transaction.
Did CSFB receive that portion of --
A. I assume so, but I don't know.
Q. You don't recall anyone --

Page 104

A. I don't recall sending them a bill.
Q. Item 3 is a reimbursement of out-of-pocket expenses including fees and expenses of counsel.
A. Right.
Q. Do you recall CSFB working with counsel on this engagement?
A. Yes.
Q. And who was that counsel?
A. Shearman & Sterling.
Q. And, as a general proposition, what role did Shearman & Sterling play?
A. They would review -- they would review, probably, the investment banking memo, fairness opinion letter and ask some questions regarding that.
Q. Was -- do you recall Shearman & Sterling playing any role in the meetings that you had with MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall Shearman & Sterling playing any role in any meetings that you had with Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Or Morgan Stanley?

Page 105

A. No.
Q. CSFB would only earn the transaction fee if an acquisition transaction ultimately closed; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And is that a standard form of compensation in the investment banking industry?
A. Yes.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
Q. To your knowledge, was CSFB ever asked to return any portion of the fees that it earned on the Coleman transaction?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Or to perform -- or to provide a discount on future services to Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Are you aware of any other fees or benefits that CSFB earned or was paid in connection with work that they performed on the Coleman transaction?
A. No.
Q. We talked about a number of people that worked on this engagement at CSFB. Were all of those individuals based in New York?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. Were there CSFB professionals from other offices outside of New York working, in any way, on this engagement?
A. I don't think so.
Q. I'm going to hand you the next document that's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75.
MR. BRODY: Can we go off the record for just a second?
MR. CLARE: Sure.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Time is now 12:15. We're off the record.
(Discussion off the recrod.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 12:16. We're back on the record.
MR. BRODY: While we were off the record, we discussed briefly the implication of protective order. And Mr. Clare and I agreed that the protective order permits us to disclose confidential information to the witness during the course of the deposition and to his counsel during the course of the deposition.
Counsel agreed that he would not retain the documents, which I think satisfies the obligation of the protective order.

We further agree that a summer associate assisting the witness's counsel here today falls within the ambit of the protective order for purposes of today's deposition. Acceptable?
MR. CLARE: That's acceptable for Morgan Stanley.
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75. It's a document -- a cover letter dated March 30, 1998 from the law firm of Wachtell Lipton Rosen & Katz to the SEC.
A. Um-hum.
Q. And you're welcome to review any portion of it that you want. The exhibit to the letter is a chronology that was prepared by Wachtell Lipton in response to an inquiry it received from the SEC about this transaction. And it includes several dates and references to meetings here.
And it might be a useful tool to structure some of our discussions and recollections of meetings, and that's why I've provided it to you.

I recognize that you probably have never seen this before or not -- were not involved in the preparation, but let me ask those questions.
Have you seen this document before?
A. No.
Q. And were you ever -- were you involved in the preparation of this document, to your knowledge?
A. No.
Q. As I mentioned, letter was prepared by the firm of Wachtell Lipton Rosen & Katz.
Did you have dealings with the law firm -- that law firm during your work on the Coleman engagement?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did you understand that Wachtell Lipton had been retained by Coleman as its counsel in connection with the acquisition transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you have meetings with attorneys from Wachtell Lipton in connection with the work that you did on the engagement?

A. I don't recall specific meetings, but I think so.
Q. Do you recall dealing with them on any particular issues?
A. Probably just getting -- the board meeting and the fairness opinion.
Q. Let's start on Exhibit A. The first entry that I'd like to ask you about is the December 12th entry.
A. Um-hum.
Q. So, I'd like you to read that to yourself and let me know when you're ready.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. The first paragraph of the entry refers to a meeting between Mr. Levin, Mr. Shapiro and Mr. Page giving a presentation to Mr. Fannin, Mr. Kersh and Mr. Langerman regarding Coleman's business for potential synergies that could result from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you attend that meeting?
A. I don't remember attending that, no.
Q. Were you involved, in any way, in preparing for a meeting where Coleman executives were going to make a presentation to Sunbeam about synergies?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't remember doing that.
Q. The next paragraph indicates, later in the day, Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Maher, Mr. Rich and Mr. Levin met to discuss a potential transaction involving Coleman and Sunbeam.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you believe you attended that meeting with those individuals?
A. I don't -- I don't know if I did or didn't.
Q. Is this time period, the December 1997 time period, consistent with your recollection of around the time that you had gotten involved?
A. Yes.
Q. Does this document and seeing these references to the meeting refresh your recollection, in any way, about the status of discussions when CSFB was first involved?

A. No.
Q. It indicates there on the next paragraph under December 12th that Coleman retained CSFB to act as its financial advisor.
A. Um-hum.
Q. The engagement letter that we looked at is actually dated two days before December 12th.
A. Right.
Q. Does that suggest to you that CSFB had been asked to perform some work leading up to these meetings?
A. Yes. Well, it suggests, at least -- I don't know if we did work, but we had -- we would have dated the letter when we started discussions about the assignment.
Q. And what were you told -- or do you believe that you were personally asked to get involved in the engagement at around the same time period?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. And were you informed what had been discussed between Sunbeam and Coleman related to a proposed transaction?
A. I don't remember being told, but I would assume that we had been.
Q. Were you informed that the parties had discussed potential synergies from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. I'm sorry. Say that again.
Q. Were you told that the parties, meaning Sunbeam and Coleman, had already discussed potential synergies that could result from an acquisition?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't remember that.
MR. CLARE: We need to switch the videotape.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is now 12:22 and we have reached the end of tape No. 1. And we are off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is now 12:34 and this is tape No. 2. And we are back on the record.
Q. Were you involved in assisting Mr. Levin or Mr. Page in preparing items of potential synergies that could be achieved through a combination?

A. I don't remember.
Q. I'm going to hand you what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 78. It's a two-page document. The first page is a cover -- fax cover dated December 15, 1997 from Mr. Fannin to various individuals at Morgan Stanley. I don't have any reason to believe you've seen the cover page before.
Do you understand Mr. Fannin is a -- part of a management team at Sunbeam? Do you remember him?
A. I don't remember the name.
Q. The cover page makes reference to a "one-page list of issues which C provided to us at our meeting on Friday."
We understand that to be a reference to Coleman having provided it to Sunbeam during a meeting on Friday, which three days earlier was the December 12th meeting.
The second page of the document, have you ever seen that before?
A. I think so.
Q. Do you recall seeing this in the December 1997 time period?
A. I don't remember exactly when, but --

Q. Were you involved, in any way, in preparing or assisting Coleman in the preparation of this document?
A. I don't know if they -- if they prepared it. I mean, I think I saw it. I think we discussed it. But I don't remember -- I don't remember coming up with the numbers, if that's what you're asking.
Q. What discussions do you regard -- do you remember regarding this document?
A. I just remember -- well, I think it's what was the basis of the synergies discussion. I don't recall who authored it or where it came from, but I -- I recognize or think I recognize the page.
Q. Do you remember having discussions with individuals at Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes about the synergies that could be achieved between Coleman and Sunbeam?
A. Yeah, I remember the synergies being discussed.
Q. And, as part of that discussion, do you remember inquiring as to what the basis for their belief was about synergies?
A. I don't remember the specifics of that.

Q. But was that the nature of the discussion? You -- what I'm trying to get at is, a minute ago you told me that you believe you recognize this document from trying to understand what the basis was for the synergies. I'm just trying to understand what prompted -- what discussion prompted that recollection?
A. No. I guess what I'm saying is, the recollection is from seeing the page. The pages look familiar. So, I -- I imagine we had the page and we would have asked whoever gave us the page the -- you know, where the numbers came from, how they -- the logic of coming up with them.
Q. Do you recall getting satisfactory answers to those questions?
A. I don't recall the answers, so I don't recall them being satisfactory.
Q. Do you remember that Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes believed -- or were -- had put forward the notion of $150 million in synergies for an acquisition?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.

Page 116

A. No.
Q. Do you remember that number being used?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember, at any point during the process in which you were involved, Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes revising its estimate of the synergies that could be achieved from a combination?
A. No.
Q. Were you part of any discussions where synergies were discussed between Coleman and Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall specifically. I would have thought I was, but I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember any statements that were made in meetings by Coleman about synergies to Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Were you asked, at any point during the engagement, to perform any work to determine whether the synergy figures listed on Exhibit 78 were reasonable or appropriate?
A. No.
Q. Were others at CSFB asked to perform that, to your knowledge?

Page 117

A. I don't -- I don't recall.
Q. Take a look at the next several items listed on the chronology. There are meetings referenced on December 16th and December 17th which you're shown as attending.
I'd ike you to read those to yourself.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you recall attending meetings in mid-December 1997 with the individuals listed for these two entries involving a potential transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. These are meetings that took place in -- with MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman officials, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And these were not meetings where Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley were present?
A. No.
Q. Does -- are these the meetings that you described earlier to me about price rationale?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. These are the individuals that were

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015850

Page 118

involved in those discussions?
A. Yeah.
Q. And what, if anything, do you remember about what was said during those meetings?
A. I don't recall specifics, except the topic was justifying a higher price.
Q. And did you or Mr. Rich or Mr. Geller provide advice to Coleman on that topic during the meeting, or were you asked to go back and do some work and then report back to the group on arguments that could be made to increase the price?
A. I think we did both. I think we had a discussion and we had to do some work and prepare something to give back.
Q. During the course of those discussions, or the subsequent work that you did, did the subject of synergies enter into the equation as a basis for justifying a higher price?
A. I don't remember.
Q. To the best of your knowledge, it was the valuation work that was done by CSFB as the argument that was put forward for justifying a higher price, or was there anything else that you remember?

Page 119

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't -- no. I don't -- I mean, I don't remember the arguments we put forward, so I don't remember anything else.
Q. I'm going to hand you what's previously been marked as Deposition Exhibit 76. It's a compilation of documents dated December 1997 entitled, "Materials Prepared for Discussion, Sunbeam."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you pull these materials together, or were you involved in pulling them together?
A. I was probably involved. I don't know if I did it.
Q. Do you know for what purpose they were pulled together?
A. Well, no. They look like they're just public documents that we were just providing information.
Q. Did you provide these documents to MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't know if we provided them for ourselves or for MacAndrews & Forbes. We would -- it could just be an internal --

Page 120

Q. Do you recall any discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman about Sunbeam's public filings?
A. No, no -- no discussions specifically about the filings.
Q. Were there any issues that the CSFB team had identified in the public filings of Sunbeam for discussion with MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you recall, later in the engagement, in the spring of 1998, reviewing Sunbeam's 10-K for 1997?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Would that have been a standard part of -- if a 10-K or 10-Q were issued during an engagement where CSFB were being asked to render a fairness opinion, would that be something that you would look at prior to issuing a fairness opinion?
A. If it was published before the fairness opinion, yes.
Q. Do you have a recollection of doing that with regard to Sunbeam's 10-K?

Page 121

A. No.
Q. I'd like to invite your attention to the entry for January 29th, 1998.
A. Yes.
Q. The entries between the ones we just looked at in December and the entry here, January 29, 1998, indicates some discussions between MacAndrews & Forbes and Sunbeam about price and structure of the deal.
Do you recall any involvement in those discussions?
A. No.

Do you recall dealing with Mr. Stynes in connection with the work you had done for Coleman?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Does that name sound familiar to you?
A. No.
Q. Makes reference to a Mr. Fuchs, Alex Fuchs, also of Morgan Stanley.
Did you have any dealings with Mr. Fuchs?
A. I had dealings with the Morgan Stanley folks. I just don't remember the individuals.
Q. Do you remember any of the names of any of the Morgan Stanley people that you dealt with on the Coleman engagement?
A. Just, you know, Mr. Reid.
Q. Other than Mr. Reid -- several entries up from that early January 1998 identifies

Page 123

Mr. Reid as a managing director of Morgan Stanley, Sunbeam's financial advisor, in a conversation that Mr. Reid had with Mr. Perelman.
Is that -- does that entry describe -- or consistent with your recollection of the role that Mr. Reid played in the transaction?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. Yeah, I mean, my recollection is he was sort of there in the background as, you know, general communication.
Q. Between Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you recall a Mr. Reid being present at any of the meetings that you attended?
A. I recall him being present. I don't know which meeting it was.
Q. Did Mr. Reid ever make a presentation to Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes about Sunbeam, in your presence?
A. I don't recall that, no.
Q. The entry for January 29th indicates that potential synergies were discussed. It also indicates there was a discussion about how the companies might proceed with due diligence and related matters if Sunbeam made an acceptable proposal.

Do you have an understanding of what that's referring to?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever gain an understanding as to how due diligence would proceed if Sunbeam were to make an acceptable proposal?
A. I know we had due diligence. I don't -- I don't recall how the plan came about to have --
Q. Did you -- I'm sorry. I didn't mean to interrupt.
A. I don't recall how the plan came about to have due diligence.
Q. Did you work with anyone at Morgan Stanley to facilitate due diligence meetings that you attended?
A. We may have been -- we may have organized times and place. I don't -- I don't remember.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 206, Wall Street Journal article dated January 29, 1998, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Page 125

Q. Mr. Duffy, I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 206. It's a --
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry. Tom, is this being marked new today?
MR. CLARE: It is. I don't think this has previously been marked.
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 206. It's a January 29, 1998 article from the Wall Street Journal entitled, "Sunbeam posts profit below forecast, a stumble that sends stock down 9.5 percent."
Do you see in the first paragraph of the article indicated -- indicates that Sunbeam reported fourth quarter earnings that fell slightly short of analyst expectations.
Do you recall, in the midst of your work on the Coleman engagement, Sunbeam reporting fourth quarter earnings below analyst expectations?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall, during the discussions with Sunbeam over a proposed acquisition, that Sunbeam's stock had dropped 9.5 percent on that type of announcement?

A. No.
Q. Do you recall the stock price drop in January, February time frame, entering into discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman about whether Sunbeam's stock should be accepted as part of the consideration?
A. No.
Q. As part of the work that you were doing on this engagement, were you monitoring public announcements from Sunbeam about its financial performance?
A. I would -- yes.
Q. That's part of your standard practice?
A. Yeah.
Q. The paragraph under "Reactions of Analysts" makes reference to analysts lowering their 1998 and 1999 earnings estimates.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall, in the January 1998 time frame, analysts lowering their earnings estimates for Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall discussing that with

Page 127

MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. Or Coleman?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever speak with analysts about their expectation for earnings for Sunbeam for 1998 and 1999?
A. No. We would have looked at research reports, but --
Q. Do you recall specifically looking at research reports?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall speaking with anyone at CSFB who covered Sunbeam for their views on financial performance?
A. I can't recall if we did cover it or not. I don't recall a conversation with a CSFB analyst.
Q. Do you recall the name Lynn Hyman?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussions with Ms. Hyman about Sunbeam or Coleman as it related to the work that you were doing?
A. I don't remember, no.
Q. Did you have any discussions with

Page 128

MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman about their outlook for Sunbeam stock performance?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you recall them saying, in words or substance, that they thought accepting Sunbeam's stock would be a good investment for them?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall discussing with MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman, in words or substance, that accepting Sunbeam's stock would allow them to pledge it to secure financing that they were looking to perform?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall any discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman about their interest in obtaining Sunbeam stock as part of the transaction?
A. Not specifically. The memo -- your memo talks about it.
Q. What's -- what are you referring to?
A. Well, whether it's stock or cash.
Q. But in terms of the rationale for accepting a stock and cash deal?
A. No.
Q. The -- bear with me one second.

Page 129

Okay. The January 29th entry that we were just looking at makes reference to a confidentiality agreement that was being proposed to Sunbeam.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have a recollection of looking at confidentiality agreements that would facilitate the exchange of information between Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. No.
Q. Is it standard in -- practice in merger and acquisition transactions to have confidentiality agreements that facilitate that exchange of information?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. I'm going to hand you what has been marked previously as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 133. It's a February 4th, 1998 letter addressed to the Sunbeam Corporation on Coleman Company letterhead.
A. Okay.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. I don't know.
Q. Was it your understanding that there was a confidentiality agreement in place between

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 130

Sunbeam and Coleman to facilitate the exchange of information?
A. I don't remember. I would have expected there was, but I don't remember it.
Q. Would -- were you involved in drafting and reviewing this exhibit before it was sent?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you recall any discussions about a confidentiality agreement that would permit Coleman to provide confidential information to Sunbeam for evaluation of the acquisition?
A. No.
Q. The first -- second paragraph of the exhibit refers to evaluation materials being provided by Coleman to Sunbeam.
A. Right.
Q. And it would include materials furnished by bankers in connection with that.
Do you see that?
A. Yeah.
Q. Is that a standard practice in merger and acquisition transactions, to cover information furnished by bankers in confidential agreements?
A. Yes.

Page 131

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
Q. Did you understand that there was a reciprocal agreement in place that would cover information provided by Sunbeam and its bankers to Coleman and the confidentiality of that material?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't remember the confidentiality agreements, so I don't remember the specifics of whether there was reciprocity or not.
Q. Do you remember being provided with information by Sunbeam about its business?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember being advised that that information needed to remain confidential?
A. I don't remember -- no.
Q. Do you remember anything about this engagement for Coleman that would be different from a standard engagement as far as the confidentiality of information received from a counterparty?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
Q. Did you understand that Sunbeam's due diligence of Coleman was being conducted pursuant to a confidentiality understanding or agreement?

A. I don't -- I would have assumed it, but I don't remember -- I just don't remember the specifics of the confidentiality agreement.
Q. If you look at the February 6th entry on the chronology which is on the next page, there's a reference to a meeting that took place in New York, and you're shown as having attended. I ask you to read that to yourself and let me know when you're ready.
A. Okay.
Q. Do you recall attending this meeting on February 6, 1998?
A. Not the specific meeting, but -- I can't remember which meetings were which, but I remember meetings like this, yes.
Q. Meetings where the price and deal structure were discussed?
A. Yes.
Q. Morgan Stanley, according to the February 6th entry, was -- made a presentation during this meeting for a $22 per share transaction.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Plus warrants valued at $4 per share.

Page 133

And, in response, Mr. Maher is described here as having --
A. Said no.
Q. -- said no. And indicating an interest in obtaining an offer for an all stock deal at $30 per share or stock and cash at a lower amount.
Do you recall Mr. Maher expressing a deal structure like -- as described here?
A. No, but -- I have no reason not to believe this. I just don't remember it.
Q. Do you have any understanding what the rationale would be for an all stock deal valued at $30 per share or stock and cash valued at a slightly lower amount?
A. I don't recall the specific rationale here. Normally, you would want -- you take less if you got cash because when you got stock you usually can't sell it right away. So, you want -- your value today is subject to the value of the stock in the future.
Q. But, as you sit here today, you cannot specifically recall what the rationale was for this --
A. Right.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. -- this offer as described here on February 6, 1998?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you recall there ever being discussion of an all cash offer?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember there ever being a discussion of an all stock offer?
A. Only what's written here.
Q. Did CSFB assist MacAndrews & Forbes or Mr. Maher in coming up with this proposal?
A. I don't know. I don't know if he -- I don't know. I don't know if he was just negotiating to say 30.
Q. Do you recall the $30 per share price point as significant for MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman?
A. No.
Q. I'd like you to look at the entries for February 23rd, 1998. It carries over onto the next page.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you recall attending the meetings that are described there on February 23rd?
A. Yes.

Q. Are these the due diligence meetings that you described earlier?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Now, the chronology describes here a series of meetings throughout the day on the 23rd.
Is that consistent with your recollection that there were multiple meetings at which due diligence was performed?
A. Yes.
Q. And is it the case that, during one of those meetings, the focus was due diligence on Coleman and others at the meetings the focus was due diligence on Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall that, no.
Q. Do you recall, during the course of these due diligence meeting described on February 23rd there being any discussion of a confidentiality agreement under which the due diligence meetings were being performed?
A. No.
Q. I'm going to hand you what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 101. It's a letter dated February 23, 1998 addressed to the Coleman Company from Sunbeam Corporation.

A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And the fax line on the top of the document indicates that it was faxed to or from MacAndrews & Forbes on February 23, 1998.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall ever having seen this letter --
A. No.
Q. -- in any form, in draft or final form during the engagement?
A. Don't recall it, no.
Q. Do you recognize this as a form of confidentiality agreement that would govern the provision of information from Sunbeam to Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. You don't recall any discussion of confidentiality agreement like this one at the February 23rd meeting?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall anyone from Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes objecting to signing a confidentiality agreement that would cover information provided by Sunbeam?

A. No.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes did not execute a confidentiality agreement?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I -- I -- no, I don't have any reason to believe they did not.
Q. We were looking at the February 23rd meeting. Was this meeting that you're describing the first due diligence meeting that CSFB had done on Sunbeam?
A. I believe so. I don't -- I don't remember the meetings clearly enough to say it was the first.
Q. As you sit here today, do you recall having done any meetings or due diligence prior to the meetings --
A. No.
Q. -- that you remember?
A. No.
Q. Prior to this meeting, had you or others at CSFB read Sunbeam's public filings?
A. I assume so. I don't -- again, I

015855

Page 138

don't recall the sequence, but I would assume we had.
Q. Tell me what you remember of the meeting -- the due diligence meetings that you remember.
A. I don't remember the substance. I just remember meeting once at MacAndrews & Forbes' offices, I think, or Revlon's office and once at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do you recall that the meeting took place at Revlon's or MacAndrews & Forbes' offices Mr. Levin being present and making a presentation about Coleman's business?
A. No. I mean, I don't recall the presentation. I don't recall the Coleman presentation.
Q. Do you recall the Sunbeam presentation?
A. I -- I think that was -- my recollection, I thought, was that the first meeting was more a discussion with one person at Sunbeam about something. And the second meeting was more a more formal presentation at Morgan Stanley's offices.
Q. Okay.

Page 139

A. I don't know if that's correct, but that's my recollection.
Q. Well, let's start with the first meeting that you remember. You remember a smaller meeting with a single person from Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. And was it a Sunbeam officer or representative?
A. Well, it was a Sunbeam management, senior management.
Q. It wasn't somebody from Morgan Stanley?
A. Right. It wasn't -- they may have been there, but they weren't the presenter.
Q. Do you remember who that person was or what the topic was of the presentation?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever speak with Al Dunlap?
A. I don't know. I can't remember if he -- I don't think I -- I didn't have a conversation with him. I don't know if he was at the second meeting.
Q. You don't recall him being present at the second meeting?

Page 140

A. Not specifically, no.
Q. What about Mr. Kersh, do you remember Mr. Kersh as someone who was involved in these meetings?
A. Was he the CFO?
Q. Mr. Kersh, at the time, was CFO of Sunbeam?
A. I remember the name, I don't remember --
Q. What about, did you ever speak with Mr. Rich Goudis?
A. I think so, but, again, it says here -- I think I did, but I don't -- I don't recollect the specifics.
Q. I want to stay focused on the first meeting you remember.
A. Okay.
Q. To the best of your recollection, it wasn't a formal presentation, it was a discussion --
A. Discussion.
Q. -- that you and others from CSFB were having with this member of Sunbeam's management team?
A. I believe so.

Page 141

Q. And you don't remember what the discussion or topic was?
A. No.
Q. During any of the meetings that you remember on due diligence, do you recall the subject of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance being discussed?
A. Not specifically. I don't -- I guess what I'm saying is I don't remember it -- I don't remember a specific conversation on the first quarter.
Q. Was that the issue that you remembered discussing with the Sunbeam management member in the first session?
A. No. I don't remember the specifics issue. If anything, I would have thought it was synergies, but I don't remember. You know, I'd be guessing it --
Q. Beyond your -- a general sense it was synergies, do you have any other recollection of what was said?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
Q. Do you have -- other than what you've testified to, do you remember anything else about

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01-5356

Page 142

that session?
A. No.
Q. What do you remember at the formal presentation that was made by Sunbeam? Do you recall who made the presentation?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember it being somebody from Sunbeam as opposed to somebody from Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes. I think Sunbeam presented, not Morgan Stanley. Morgan Stanley was there as part of the audience.
Q. Do you recall -- this is during the due diligence meeting that you were?
A. Yes.
Q. During the due diligence meeting that you remember, do you remember Morgan Stanley -- anyone from Morgan Stanley saying anything?
A. I'm sure they did. I just don't remember.
Q. Did you take notes during the meeting?
A. I probably would have, yes.
Q. Were there documents that were handed out as part of the presentation?
A. I don't remember.

Page 143

Q. Were there -- was it, like, a Power Point presentation, was there a video projector, anything?
A. I don't remember. I don't think there was a video or -- I don't think there was something up on the wall.
Q. Were there questions and answers?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall asking questions?
A. Yes. But I don't remember what the questions were.
Q. Do you remember individuals from MacAndrews & Forbes asking questions?
A. Yes.
Q. Individuals from Coleman?
A. I can't distinguish between the two.
Q. Okay. And do you remember who provided those answers, whether it was Morgan Stanley or the Sunbeam presenter?
A. I don't recall specific questions. I'm not sure who answered.
Q. Is there anything else that you remember about this due diligence session that you haven't described already?
A. No.

Q. Any topics that were discussed, any surprises or information that caused you or others to do -- or want to do additional work or due diligence?
A. I don't think so. I don't remember that.
Q. After the due diligence meeting that you remember, did you or others at CSFB perform other due diligence on Sunbeam?
A. I don't think we -- I don't remember. I don't think we had -- we -- I don't know if we had any follow-up questions and answers that we may have had, which would have been normal. Or if we looked at some financial documents or public documents after that. I don't -- I just don't recall what happened after that meeting.
Q. Do you remember doing any of those things specifically?
A. No. I think we may have had -- had a couple of telephone or follow-up questions, but I don't -- I don't recall specifically.
Q. Do you remember to whom those questions were addressed?
A. No.
Q. The reference here on page 20 --

Page 145

February 23rd, rather, refers to Sunbeam making a presentation regarding its 1998 operating projections.
Do you recall that portion of the presentation where the operating projections for 1998 were presented?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Do you remember Sunbeam's management team, during that presentation, identifying potential obstacles or risks to the transaction that was being proposed?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Do you remember a discussion during that presentation about Sunbeam's performance in the first quarter of 1998?
A. Not specifically -- I mean, not specifically.
Q. Is that a topic that you would have expected to be addressed during a due diligence session?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a question that you would have expected to have been asked -- to have asked or to have somebody on MacAndrews & Forbes' side of the table ask in the context of this discussion?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 146

A. Yeah.
Q. Do you recall whether the question was, in fact, asked and what answer was given?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember any discussion about Sunbeam's expected performance for the full year 1998?
A. I don't -- not specifics, no.
Q. In general?
A. No. But I would have expected that to have been discussed.
Q. Do you recall, even generally, what outlook Sunbeam management had presented for its performance for 1998?
A. No.
Q. Whether it was positive or negative?
A. No. No, I don't remember the specifics.
Q. Do you remember anything being said relating to Sunbeam's earnings in 1998 as compared to 1997?
A. No, I don't remember specifically that.
Q. Or the restructuring that was underway at Sunbeam?

Page 147

A. No.
Q. Or Sunbeam's revenues achieved from grill sales?
A. No.
Q. Or an early buy program that Sunbeam had implemented in 1997?
A. No.
Q. Was there any discussion about the value of Sunbeam stock on a going-forward basis?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam providing any statements about Sunbeam's expected stock performance going forward?
A. No.
Q. Or the achievability of Sunbeam's business plan for 1998 and 1999?
A. No.
Q. What about Sunbeam's air and water products, do you recall any discussion about air and water products?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Generally, do you remember those topics being part of the due diligence discussion?
A. No. You just -- no. I guess -- I would say I have some recollection of products being discussed, but I can't remember, you know, the different categories of products.

Page 148

Q. I'm going to hand you what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Ask you to take a look at the attachment. Do you recognize this document?
A. I think so.
Q. What do you recognize it to be?
A. I think it probably was the presentation.
Q. At the meeting that you --
A. Yes.
Q. -- attended?
Does seeing this document refresh your recollection as to who made the presentation?
A. No.
Q. Does it refresh your recollection about any other aspect of the meeting?
A. It's just more detail of what was discussed.
Q. Do you recall anyone from Morgan Stanley presenting any portion of this presentation?
A. No.
Q. Was every page of the presentation gone through, or was it presented verbally in a more overview fashion and this material was just made available?
A. I'm not sure. I don't remember.
Q. Do you recognize any of the handwriting on this document?
A. No.
Q. During the meeting that -- meetings that you remember attending, did you understand Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley to be making any promise or guarantee about Sunbeam's future performance and growth objectives?
A. I don't remember. You know, I think you would have expected the managing team to believe what they're telling you and believe they could do it.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley ever independently express a view that they believed that the management team could achieve the objectives that were being presented?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley ever vouch for the

Page 150

accuracy of Sunbeam's projections?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall them doing that?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley ever vouching for the accuracy of Sunbeam's audited financial statements?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever have any meetings or discussions with Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen --
A. I don't think so.
Q. -- as part of your due diligence?
A. I don't think so.
Q. I'd like you to turn in the exhibit to what is -- bears a Bates number CPH 1324771. It's a page entitled, "Sunbeam long-range strategic objectives earnings from continued operations."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Down on the left-hand side, there's a number of financial metrics, net sales, gross margin, SG&A expenses, et cetera. Do you see that?

Page 151

A. Yes.
Q. And then there are actual figures and long-range strategic plan figures that are presented.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall looking at this information during those meetings?
A. I don't recall specifically, but I'm sure we did.
Q. There's a reference here to net sales. Just to the right of that, there's a handwritten entry, "January, Feb slow."
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall, during any of the meetings that you attended, anyone from Sunbeam indicating that the sales in January and February of 1998 were slow in any way?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall that topic being discussed?
A. I don't recall the topic.
Q. Did you discuss with MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman a belief as to the achievability of Sunbeam's projections as indicated in this presentation?

Page 152

A. I don't remember that, no.
Q. Do you remember utilizing Sunbeam's projections in the modeling work that CSFB did?
A. I mean, I know in our investment banking memo, we had their projections and another forecast, yes.
Q. And the other forecast, we'll look at in a little while. It was referred to as the base case?
A. I don't recall which is which, but --
Q. Do you recall taking Sunbeam's projections and discounting them and presenting a base case as well?
A. That's what we did in the memo, yes.
Q. Do you recall the process by which you did that?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall who assisted you in performing that?
A. I believe the Coleman would have helped us do that -- Coleman team would have helped us.
Q. And when you say "the Coleman team," who are you referring to?
A. Mr. Levin or someone on his staff.

Page 153

Q. Do you recall what role you played in taking the Sunbeam projections and discounting them to the base case?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Was that something Mr. Geller worked on more closely or --
A. He may have, yeah. I'm not sure if we had a set of forecasts from Coleman or if we came up with a set of forecasts, gave them to Coleman, and then they gave them back to us.
Q. At the meeting that you remember, the due diligence meeting, do you recall Morgan Stanley making any presentation, any portion of the presentation?
A. No, I don't -- I don't remember specifically who presented.
Q. Did you or other members of the CSFB team attend any of the road shows that were done in March of 1998 in connection with the convertible debenture offering that Sunbeam did?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did you?
A. I did not. I don't think anyone else did.
Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley was

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 154

assisting Sunbeam in doing a debenture offering in connection with the acquisition?
A. I don't remember if I was or I wasn't.
Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley was assisting Sunbeam, generally, in the financing of the acquisition?
A. I don't remember that. I would -- I guess I would not have been surprised.
MR. CLARE: Let me ask you to mark this one as 317.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 317, Handwritten notes, marked for identification, as of this date.)
A. Um-hum.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. I saw it yesterday, yes.
Q. Is this your handwriting?
A. I believe so.
Q. Are these notes that you took during the meetings that we've been describing?
A. I'm not sure when I took them, but I'm -- I would have thought so. I don't know, though.
Q. These are notes that you made during the course of your work on the Coleman engagement?

A. Right.
Q. The title of the document -- or at the top, I guess, of the document, I believe it says "Major Risks." Do you see that?
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you recall, at some point during your discussions with Sunbeam's management team and Morgan Stanley, there was a discussion of risks associated with the transaction?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall any discussion -- or do you recall who was providing you the information that's reflected here in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 317?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know what it's referring to when it says "Major Risks"?
A. No.
Q. Item No. 1, it says "Ability to outsource as quickly."
Do you know what that's referring to?
A. No.
Q. The references underneath it suggest that there's a -- going to be a reduction in facilities.

Page 156

A. Yes.
Q. Is that consistent with your understanding that Sunbeam was in the course of reducing its facilities?
A. I don't know what the 26 to 8 plants -- I don't know if that's referring to Sunbeam or a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman or what.
Q. There's a reference here to closing Mexico City.
A. Yeah.
Q. Is that a -- did you understand that Coleman had -- or Coleman or Sunbeam had a facility in Mexico City?
A. I think it's on one of the synergy pages, but I don't remember whose plant it was or --
Q. Do you believe that the information on this exhibit, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 317, were risks that were identified by CSFB independently, or risks that were identified through discussions with Sunbeam?
A. I think -- well, I don't know. I would assume that they were notes of a discussion, so it was not something we did on our own -- or I did on my own.

Q. Do you recall discussing these risks that are identified in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 317 with MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't -- no. I mean, I don't know -- for all I know, these were notes of a discussion with MacAndrews & Forbes or discussion with Sunbeam or somebody else.
Q. Item No. 2 refers to new product development.
A. Yes.
Q. That's item No. 2 under "Major Risks."
A. Yeah.
Q. There's a reference here to air and water products.
A. Um-hum.
Q. What do you remember being said about that?
A. Nothing.
Q. Do you remember air and water products being identified as a major risk?
A. No.
Q. There's a reference underneath that

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0159660

Page 158

subheading to management of products launched.
A. Yeah.
Q. And a reference to growth and capacity customer placement.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember that being identified as a risk?
A. No.
Q. Do you understand the items that are listed here as risks to be risks to Sunbeam's going forward financial performance or potential obstacles to achieving management's plans?
A. I don't remember. I don't remember.
Q. Is that the way you would read this document today?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. If air and water referred to Sunbeam products, I don't -- I might read -- I think that's the way I might read it as air and water new products, you know, is a risk because they have new products built into their forecast.
Q. So if, for example, air and water products did not --
A. Produce the new products.
Q. Then Sunbeam may not achieve the level of financial performance that had been discussed?

Page 159

MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. That's correct.
Q. Or if Sunbeam was not able to outsource as quickly as it had hoped, that would be another risk to achieving its financial objectives?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
A. Potentially. If that's what -- if that's what the 26 to 8 means.
Q. Well, putting aside the 26 to 8, I mean, did the topic of outsourcing and ability to outsource as quickly, do you understand that Sunbeam was in the process of outsourcing some of its previously internal functions?
A. I can't remember that specifically. If that was a synergy or that was something they were already doing.
Q. Major risk No. 3 is -- I believe that says "voids."
A. Um-hum.
Q. Is that correct, am I interpreting your handwriting correctly. Adding distribution?
A. I think it's correct. I don't --
Q. It talks about customer voids and product line voids. Do you see that?

Page 160

A. Yeah.
Q. What's -- what is that referring to?
A. I -- I don't know. I don't understand it looking at it today.
Q. Do you recall anyone from Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley identifying customer or product line problems as a potential risk to achieving financial objectives?
A. No.
Q. There's an entry here for J.D. Edwards --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- 1/97 started from scratch.
Do you remember discussions with Sunbeam about its J.D. Edwards system and difficulties that it had had with its J.D. Edwards system as contributing to a distribution problem?
A. No. Is that what that refers to?
Q. I'm asking for -- if you know what that's referring to.
A. I don't know.
Q. The next entry, it says, "Al Dunlap."
A. Um-hum.

Page 161

Q. Can you interpret that entry for me or read it?
A. "Created negative sales impact because believed looking to sell."
Q. Do you know what that's a reference to?
A. Not specifically, no. I mean, I could guess, but I don't --
Q. What is your interpretation of that?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. Either he, himself, because he was looking to sell the company, that that impresion hurt sales. The impression that he was going to sell the company hurt sales or he reduced sales initially for some reason.
Q. Do you remember any discussion about a potential negative sales impact because the M&A process was underway at Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember anything being said about negative sales impact at Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall any follow-up questions being asked by CSFB or MacAndrews & Forbes about the impact of negative -- sorry -- about the negative sales impact described here?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 162

A. No.
Q. Or how to quantify it?
A. No.
Q. Or its impact in the first quarter of 1998 sales?
A. No.
Q. Looking at the second page of the document, there's a reference to deferred income tax.
A. Yes.
Q. And restructuring charges and NOL installments?
A. I think it says internationally.
Q. Internationally.
What was said about those topics?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you remember any discussion about them?
A. No.
Q. The next item is revenue?
A. Yep.
Q. '96 versus '97, and '97 versus '98. Do you remember discussions with Sunbeam about its year-over-year revenues?

Page 163

A. No.
Q. Do you believe those topics were discussed during the due diligence meetings that you attended?
A. Yes, I would expect them to have been discussed.
Q. As you sit here today, do you remember them being discussed?
A. No.
Q. Did Sunbeam, during the due diligence meetings that you attended, provide revenue comparisons for '97 and then the -- as compared to the time to date in 1998?
A. I don't remember.
Q. The next item talks about margin improved.
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you know what that's a reference to?
A. No. I assume it's the margin -- the margins on the business went up.
Q. And there's a reference to 1998 full year of impact. Do you know what that's a reference to?
A. I believe -- I don't know

Page 164

specifically. I imagine it means '98, whatever actions they had done, they'll get a 12-month impact, '98. In 1997, they didn't have all 12 months.
Q. The next couple of entries relate to gas grill prices set finally being able to reprice grills.
Do you remember any discussion about grill pricing for Sunbeam?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Or generally?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember that topic being discussed?
A. No. I mean, I think it's in here somewhere.
Q. Apart from what's in the --
A. No.
Q. -- presentation, you don't remember any discussion about --
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Underneath the text there, there's a line for 1997 -- or, I'm sorry. It says '97 and '98, and there are figures given underneath that. Do you see that?

Page 165

A. Yes.
Q. There's -- 150 is written under '97 and 75 is written under '98. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what that's a reference to?
A. No.
Q. Are those quarter-to-date sales, figures comparing the first quarter '98 sales to the first quarter '97 sales for the same period?
A. No. I think, if anything, they're costs -- I don't know if they're-- I think they're reduction in costs or something. I think the 225, the 150 and the 75 tie back to the 225 on operating income.
Q. And how do you get from that to those being cost savings?
A. Well, because they're going the wrong direction to be earnings. So, I'm -- I'm not sure. I'm -- I'm interpreting here. I just would think that 225 was the base cost and it went down by 150 through '98. And then there's other savings somewhere else to get to the 225.
Q. As you sit here today, do you have a recollection as to what these entries refer to or are you interpreting?

A. I'm interpreting what's written on the page.
Q. You don't remember that calculation being done during any of the meetings that were presented by Sunbeam?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Did anyone ever say, putting aside the document, in words or in substance, that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance was slow in any way, but that the company expected to make up those sales or revenue in the full year of '98; do you remember that being discussed?
A. No.
Q. Generally or specifically?
A. No.
Q. I'm going to hand you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85. Have you ever seen this document before? Feel free to take as much time as you want to flip through it.
A. I don't -- I think I've seen it before.
Q. Do you recall in what setting?
A. It might have been -- it might have been part of the due diligence presentation. I don't -- I don't -- I don't recall, though.

Q. When I handed you the prior exhibit, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, you had a recollection that that was presented during the meetings that you attended.
Do you have a recollection of this document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85, being presented?
A. I think I have a recollection of, at least, the beginning of it. I don't know if it was presented or -- it seemed familiar.
Q. So, you think you may have seen this before, but, as you sit here today, you can't recall in what setting or what portions of it?
A. Right.
Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley ever making a presentation from this slide deck?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley handing out this document or presentation materials during the due diligence meetings that you recall?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley, even generally, having materials available and providing written materials during the meetings?

Page 168

A. No. I can't remember if they did or didn't.
Q. I'm going to hand you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88 are minutes of a meeting of the board of directors of the Coleman Company held on Wednesday, February 25, 1998 --
A. Um-hum.
Q. -- at 335 East 62nd Street, New York. And you're shown as having attended the meeting.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall attending a meeting or more than one meeting of the Coleman Company board?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have a speaking role at the meeting?
A. If -- I don't recall. If it was, I just answered the question.
Q. You did not make a presentation to the board?
A. I personally did not, no.
Q. Did Mr. Rich?

Page 169

A. Yes.
Q. Did you assist him in preparing for his presentation to the board?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall anyone attending the meeting, other than the individuals who are listed here?
A. No, no.
Q. Did anyone, other than -- did anyone else from CSFB attend the meeting, for example?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley attend the meeting, that you remember?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Do you remember anyone, even though it's not present, plugging in by telephone or video conference?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember any discussion of Morgan Stanley during the Coleman board meeting that you attended?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember Morgan Stanley having been identified to the board as Sunbeam's financial advisor?

A. No.
Q. Do you remember any written material from Sunbeam being provided to the board?
A. No.
Q. For example, the strategic plan document that we looked at, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, do you recall this document being provided to the board?
A. I don't remember being provided. But I also don't remember if the -- you know, if the board had materials when they came in that had been provided before the meeting started.
Q. But during -- in terms of what was discussed during the meeting, do you recall that document, a long-range strategic plan for Sunbeam, being discussed?
A. No.
Q. What about the document that we looked at a moment ago, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85?
A. No, I do not.
Q. I'd like you to turn to page 4 of --
A. Sure.
Q. Actually, before you do that, let me ask you to look at page 2, middle of the page.
A. Yes.

Page 171

Q. Feel free to review as much of this as you'd like for context. I'm going to specifically ask you about the third paragraph. Why don't you read that and let me know when you're ready.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay.
Q. There's a reference to statements made by Mr. Maher to the board.
A. Um-hum.
Q. And a reference to inquiries made by the company, meaning Coleman, to another company that was considered to be the most likely potential bidder.
Did CSFB play any role in approaching other potential bidders for Sunbeam?
MR. PARADISE: You mean for Coleman?
MR. CLARE: For Coleman. Thank you.
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Do you recall who the other bidder was that Mr. Maher is referring to?
A. I don't remember, no. I mean, I may have known at the time. But I don't remember now.
Q. The next sentence makes reference to questions raised by the directors and a discussion.

Page 172

Do you remember any of the substance of the discussion at the board meeting about the transaction that was being proposed with Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Any discussion among the board of directors that you remember about the form of consideration?
A. No.
Q. Or the advisability of accepting Sunbeam stock as a portion of the consideration?
A. No, I don't remember that.
Q. I'd like you to turn, then, to page 4, beginning with the second full paragraph. I'd like you to read that summary, please, over to the next page about Mr. Rich's presentation and let me know when you're ready.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay.
Q. Is this an accurate summary of your recollection of the presentation that was made by Mr. Rich?
A. Yeah -- yes.
Q. In the first paragraph that I had asked you to look at, midway through the paragraph, there's a sentence that says, "Mr. Rich then reviewed the value of the proposed transaction as it relates to various financial indicia including historical stock trading prices and earnings, the value to the company stockholders as the price of Sunbeam stock increased or decreased."

Page 173

Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Rich presenting a sensitivity analysis to the Coleman board as it related to the price of Sunbeam stock?
A. I don't recall it, but, you know, seeing it here, I don't find it surprising if that's what he did.
Q. Is that because there would be a standard presentation to make when looking at a stock transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. I'm going to hand you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112. It's a document -- it says, "February 25, 1998 draft materials prepared for the board of directors of Coleman Company."

And I'm going to use this in tandem with the board minutes to hopefully guide some of our questioning for the next little while.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Have you seen this document before, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112?
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you recall that this was the form of the presentation that was made by Mr. Rich to the board of directors?
A. I assume so, yeah.
Q. I'd like you to look at page 3 of the presentation, which is the fourth page of the document. --
A. Yes.
Q. -- Bates No. CP 011056.
And it --
A. I'm sorry. Which --
Q. It's the page bearing the title "CLN Transaction Multiples"?
A. Okay.
Q. And the -- there's a table there with the heading "Valuation Sensitivity of SOC Proposal."
A. Yes.

Page 175

Q. Do you understand SOC to be the stock ticker for Sunbeam?
A. Um-hum.
Q. Does this table show the sensitivity analysis that was described in the board meeting?
A. I believe so.
Q. And is this what was presented to the board?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. Earlier, you said that it would be -- you weren't surprised that this type of analysis was presented to the board.
Why -- why is it standard for such a sensitivity analysis to be presented in a stock transaction?
MR. PARADISE: Objection.
A. Because you -- you're being asked to value -- accept a valuation that will change every day as the stock price moves. So, you want to give people a sense of -- the board members often asks, what happens if the price goes up or down. What does it look like? And a chart like this allows you to -- as the banker, to address that question.
Q. Did -- was there any discussion, either by the board -- was there any discussion by the board about a floor below which it would not make sense to proceed with the transaction, the value of Sunbeam stock?

A. I don't -- I don't recall, no.
Q. Did CSFB express an opinion to Coleman whether Sunbeam stock would rise or fall in the future?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Was the transaction -- was the transaction structured, to your understanding, so that Sunbeam had guaranteed a particular level of performance of its stock on a going forward basis?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Do you recall any discussion or questions from the board regarding Sunbeam stock price?
A. No.
Q. The next paragraph -- two paragraphs --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- discuss a portion of Mr. Rich's presentation related to the valuation methodologies?

Page 177

A. Yes.
Q. And the -- that part of the presentation begins on page 7 --
A. Yes.
Q. -- of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112.
Were you involved in preparing this presentation to the board?
A. Yes.
Q. The information that's contained in here, the historical financials for Sunbeam, where did they come from? Where did --
A. The historical financials?
Q. Yes.
A. Would probably have come from their public -- you know, SEC documents.
Q. That's information that CSFB would have pulled out of the public filings itself?
A. Yes.
Q. Did the projections that are identified in here for Sunbeam and Coleman, those are sourced in the various footnotes to the tables; is that correct?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. We'll look at some of them in more specifics.

I'd like -- for a moment, I want to turn back to page 2 of the presentation. "Key transaction multiples."
A. Yes.
Q. There's a table on the right-hand side that shows the premium that Sunbeam is paying -- was paying for Coleman as compared to various financial indicators.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Footnote 7 to that table suggests that it's the premium to $29.50 per share that's the implied consideration. --
A. Um-hum.
Q. -- is that correct?
And that that represented a 42.6 percent premium to the current stock price --
A. Yes.
Q. -- of Coleman?
A. Yeah. I think -- foot -- I think $29.50 is what the deal price was.
Q. Correct.
A. So, I think the footnote probably reads incorrectly.

Page 179

Q. Okay. You understand that the $29.50 was the deal price?
A. Looking at -- I believe so, yeah, doing the math in my head.
Q. Right. And the table indicates that Sunbeam was trading at about $40 per share?
A. Right.
Q. And that that represents a 42 percent, roughly, premium to the current stock price?
A. The $29.50, yes.
Q. Correct.
Was there any discussion at the board meeting about that premium that Sunbeam was paying for Coleman?
A. I would have expected there to have been, but I don't remember.
Q. What was that -- the premium attributable to?
A. Premium is attributable to changes -- what do you mean?
Q. Why -- what was your understanding of why Sunbeam was paying a premium for Coleman?
A. Well, all I can speak to is why people typically pay a premium.
Q. Okay.

Page 180

A. They pay for change in control, to get control of the company. The company, typically, trades at less than its intrinsic value in the stock market. And, you know, you expect when you sell a company, to get premium to where it trades.
Q. What about synergies as a result of a proposed acquisition, would that also factor into a -- a premium analysis?
A. People -- well, you can -- in theory, yes. You would expect that the reason people pay more than what it trades for is because they can do more with the asset once they control it than the owner can. Because you're rationalizing, businesses putting them together, you run them more efficiently.
Q. Do you recall any discussion with the Coleman board about synergies being any portion of the premium that it was receiving in consideration for Coleman shares?
A. I don't. You don't usually link -- you don't say X percent is -- X percent of the premium is synergies and X percent is something else.
Q. Based on the work that you did on the

Page 181

Coleman transaction and the meetings that you attended, do you have an understanding, one way or the other, why Sunbeam was paying a premium for Coleman?
A. I think they had to, to get the business. I mean, that's -- that's fundamentally what it came down to. I don't understand -- I don't have a recollection -- a knowledge of why they were prepared to pay the premium they were.
Q. Or whether it was synergies or control premium or some combination of both or other factors, did you ever have discussions --
A. No, I did not have any discussions with the Sunbeam folks on why they paid the premium they paid.
Q. Did CSFB have an opinion, one way or the other, or receive any input from Coleman about what a reasonable or fair premium would be, other than the pricing discussions that you alluded to earlier?
A. I don't think so.
Q. In your discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes or the Coleman board, do you remember a figure that was being discussed as the -- an acceptable premium for the company?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 182

A. I don't remember. And I think it probably would have been an absolute share price as opposed to the premium that was the target.
Q. Let's turn over to page 7 of the presentation, which is the valuation methodology section of the presentation.
The presentation indicates that three different methodologies were presented to the board, discounted cash flow, comparable companies and comparable acquisitions.
Do you recall working on all three of those?
A. Yes.
Q. Were all three, in fact, presented to the board?
A. I think so.
Q. Do you recall them being?
A. No. I mean, I barely -- I don't really recall the board meeting, but I think, if we had them in the presentation, we would have gone through all of them.
Q. In its presentation to the board, did CSFB emphasize one of these valuation methods over another?
A. No.

Page 183

Q. Was there any discussion among the board members to suggest that the board viewed one of the valuation methodologies as more important than another?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Is it standard practice in valuing a company in this setting to engage in all three of these methodologies?
A. Yes.
Q. Turn to the next page. It's a summary of the different analyses that CSFB had done. And it describes the applied price per share under each of those analyses.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. I want to go back for a moment to the board minutes and Mr. Rich's discussion of the valuation.
A. Okay.
MR. CLARE: For the record, we're looking at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88.
Q. And I'm looking at the next to last paragraph in paragraph 4.
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry. Page 4?
MR. CLARE: Yes, page 4.

Page 184

MR. BRODY: Okay.
Q. "In reviewing the discounted cash flow analysis, Mr. Rich noted that First Boston used the company's 1998 estimates on earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization, which shows a significant increase over 1997 results and is higher than the company's best results in any year. Mr. Rich stated that although First Boston did not discount the 1989 EBITDA forecasts, another buyer would likely discount such estimates resulting in a lower discounted cash flow range of the values than those presented by First Boston."
Do you recall that topic being discussed with the board?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall the subject that that paragraph addresses? In other words, the source of information for the earnings estimates for 1998?
A. I guess I -- I don't -- my belief is that the source of the estimates came from Coleman management.
Q. I guess what I'm trying to understand is, what forecasts did CSFB not discount?

Page 185

A. The Coleman forecast.
Q. But he's indicating -- it's indicated here that a view was expressed to the board that another buyer would likely discount that?
A. Well, yeah. I think -- if you -- what he shows in the presentation is that the forecast for 1998 has EBITDA going up substantially. And the point that he's -- that's being made here is that, if you accept that, or if you base your valuation on that higher number, which is what we did, you come to a higher value.
But for the board members to realize that that improvement might be discounted by another person. So, the valuation they may come to is actually lower. And that's -- that, I think, is the logic that he's trying to present to the board there.
Q. Is that a -- would that be a standard approach when confronted with forecasts of that type that were higher than had been achieved in the past?
A. I don't think --
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't think there's a standard approach. I think the question is, what drove the higher forecast and does the reviewer believe those reasons are appropriate.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 186

Q. Now, earlier, we talked about Sunbeam's forecasts --
A. Um-hum.
Q. -- and projections that were made. And we talked about the process that CSFB went to discount them and present it.
Is that an example of a way in which Coleman and CSFB discounted the similar information that was being presented by Sunbeam?
A. I guess I -- I don't know about -- I guess what I say is we -- I believe what we did is with Coleman management, we came up with a revised set of forecasts for Sunbeam.
I don't think we thought it was appropriate to do that for Coleman management projections, given that they were presenting to their board and those projections probably had been before the board before.
Q. Why was that done for Sunbeam's forecasts?
A. I don't remember. Given the conversation today, it probably had something to do with the fact that the forecast may have been viewed as potentially aggressive. I don't -- but I don't remember.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Levin about whether Sunbeam's forecasts were aggressive?
A. I don't -- I don't remember.
Q. Or Mr. Page?
A. Don't remember.
Q. Did anyone say to you, in words or substance, that it would be appropriate to discount those forecasts in presenting information to the board?
A. I think we did present them that way, so I -- I'm sure we reviewed the fact that we were going to do that with somebody.
Q. So, that was a conscious decision to discount the Sunbeam projections as opposed to presenting them as they were presented?
A. I think we provided both, but -- I think we made a decision to present both.
Q. The decision to present both was made by CSFB or CSFB in consultation with Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Well, as I said, I think we developed the projections in cooperation with Coleman, so it would have been in cooperation with them.

Q. Okay. Let me get you to turn to page 12 of the presentation. It's entitled, "Overview From Sunbeam."
A. Yes.
Q. Under the business overview section --
A. Um-hum.
Q. -- where did that information come from?
A. I -- I don't recall. I would think it came from the public financials.
Q. From Sunbeam's public financials?
A. Probably from the 10-K.
Q. The same is true for the '97 revenue breakdown box?
A. I would believe so.
Q. And under the financial summary, it provides actual numbers for '96 and '97 and then estimates for '98 and '99.
A. Yes.
Q. And those are -- the estimates for '98 and '99 are sourced to Wall Street estimates?
A. Yes.
Q. Why were they sourced to Wall Street estimates as opposed to the estimates that had been provided by Sunbeam management?

A. I can't remember now, but I would imagine because that was what was in the public domain. And so I think the fact that we had two sets of forecasts, we wanted to show the board what the -- what the public thought the numbers were first and then talk about what Sunbeam management thought the numbers were.
Q. The Wall Street estimates were analyst estimates that were out on the street at the time?
A. I believe so, yes. Or they were, probably, based on analyst estimates, if it wasn't one specific analyst.
Q. If you turn to the next page, there's a summary of the valuation -- the different methods?
A. Yes.
Q. And it summarizes CSFB's valuation of Sunbeam under different valuation methodologies: Discounted cash flow, comparable company and comparable acquisitions.
The discounted cash flow analysis is broken down into two different ones, long-term strategic plan and then the base case.

Page 190

A. Yes.
Q. Both cases were presented to the Coleman board --
A. Yes.
Q. -- as part of the discounted cash flow?
A. Yes.
Q. In its presentation to the board, did CSFB emphasize one of those cases over the other?
A. I don't think so. I don't recall, though.
Q. Was there any discussion from the board to suggest that the board viewed either the base case or the strategic plan case as more important than another?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember any discussions during the Coleman board meetings about Sunbeam's projections?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Any discussion or questions to suggest that Sunbeam's management's projections were being given any special weight by the board?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't know about special -- I don't know of special weight. I don't recall that.

Page 191

Q. You don't recall that being discussed at all? I'm sorry. You don't recall any discussions to suggest there it is given any more weight than any portion that was present; is that fair?
A. It's fair to say I don't recall the specifics of what the board discussed.
Q. Turn to the next page. It provides some detail on the discounted cash flow analysis.
A. Yes.
Q. And more detail about the base case and the long-term strategic plan case --
A. Yes.
Q. -- is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And I'd like to look at what each one of those cases is described as.
The long-term strategic plan has a reference to footnote 2. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And it's described as Sunbeam's management prediction -- projections for 1998 to 2000 and estimates for 2001 and 2002.
A. Yes.

Page 192

Q. Where -- the projections, as I understand it, were only made for the years 1998, 1999 and 2000?
A. Right.
Q. Where did the estimates for 2001 and 2002 come from?
A. Those probably came from -- from CSFB, from us, you know, extrapolating the numbers.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. But I don't recall specifically.
Q. I'm going to hand you --
MR. CLARE: Mark this one here.

Q. I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230. This is a memo from Gordon Rich, Robert Duffy, Steven Geller and Ramesh Chakrapani to the Investment Banking Committee dated February 25, 1998.
Is this the document that you described earlier as having refreshed your recollection about some of the work that was done?

A. Yes.
Q. We'll talk about this document a little bit later this afternoon, but for now, I'd like you to just look at page 7.
A. Yes.
Q. At the top, there's a reference to "discounted cash flow analysis."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And it describes the DCF analysis as based on the set of projections provided by management of Sunbeam for '98 to 2000 and 7.5 percent growth thereafter.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection that CSFB applied a 7.5 percent growth factor for the years after 2000 --
A. Yes.
Q. -- for purposes of coming up with the long-range strategic plan case?
A. Um-hum, yes. I guess, you know, I'm not sure where the 7.5 percent came from.
Q. That was going to be my next question. But let's start with the -- you do remember that there was a component of the strategic plan case that was selected by CSFB; in other words, the growth component for the years beyond 2000?

A. Yes.
Q. And that decision that the 7.5 percent would be applied in those years beyond that were made by CSFB?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley have any input into that 7.5 percent growth rate beyond 2000?
A. I can't remember. I mean, I don't know what discussions -- I don't remember the discussions we had about what happens outside the projection year which would normally happen in diligence, what's the steady run rate for revenue growth.
Q. As you sit here today, do you remember any discussion with Morgan Stanley about the appropriateness of the 7.5 percent beyond the year 2000?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Or generally?
A. No.

Page 195

Q. What about with Sunbeam, do you remember, as you sit here today, discussions with Sunbeam about applying 7.5 percent growth beyond the year 2000 of the projections?
A. No. I mean, I don't know what happened -- as I said, I don't remember what happened in the diligence meeting.
Q. But, as you sit here today, you can't recall any such discussions?
A. I can't recall, no.
Q. Do you recall any discussions internally at CSFB about only presenting the strategic plan case to the board?
A. No.
Q. Was there ever a draft or earlier iteration of the board presentation that only included the strategic plan case?
A. I don't know.
Q. From the -- do you ever recall a time when the discounted cash flow analysis was done based only on the strategic plan and not also on a base case?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. I'm sorry.
Q. Do you recall, at any point during the analysis, where it was only done -- discounted cash flow analysis was only done on the strategic plan?

A. No. But, I mean, what probably happened is we probably did the strategic plan and then did the base case, developed that after. I mean, so I don't know that we ever presented it that way. But, I mean, our own internal workings would have required us to do the strategic plan first.
Q. Did anyone from Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes ever say, in words or substance, that the projections and estimates in the long-term strategic plan were too aggressive or optimistic?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Was that ever expressed by anyone internally at CSFB?
A. I don't remember.
Q. The base case on page 14 of Exhibit 112 is footnoted to footnote No. 1.
A. Yes.
Q. It says, "Projections developed in conjunction with CLN management based on equity analyst research."
A. Right.

Page 197

Q. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And CLN is the --
A. Coleman.
Q. -- stock ticker for Coleman?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. So, the projections that are identified here in the base case were developed jointly between CSFB and Coleman management?
A. Yes.
Q. Who from Coleman management participated in developing those projections?
A. I can't recall, but, you know, I would have expected it was -- I mean, well, what -- I think we probably dealt with Mr. Nesbitt, and he would have dealt with Mr. Levin. Or we would have done it on the call. I don't recall. Or Mr. Page is the other person.
Q. So, it could have been Mr. Nesbitt or Page or Levin who would have been involved in those discussions?
A. Right.
Q. But, as you sit here today, you don't recall specific discussions with any of them about the development of the base case?

Page 198

A. No.
Q. What is the reference to "equity analyst research" there? Do you know what research was used in developing the base case?
A. No. I don't know what specific research. I would have thought we had research reports on Sunbeam and we used those to help frame the base case forecast.
Q. Did you think that the equity analyst research reports that you had were an appropriate source to consult for information about Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a customary source of information of -- for public companies?
A. Yes. I mean, yes.
Q. Now, the base case projections are across-the-board more conservative than the long-term strategic plan; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that was a conscious decision that was made that the base case would be a downward revision of the strategic plan as opposed to an increase?
A. Yes.
Q. So, it was a belief that the base case that needed to be presented to the board would be lower than the strategic plan case?

A. I think it was -- I don't think -- I don't think we needed -- we felt we needed to show a lower case. We just wanted to show a case that we thought more accurately reflected what the public was seeing and, maybe, calling it more less aggressive than the Sunbeam base case -- or the Sunbeam strategic plan.
Q. Was there a view that the Sunbeam strategic plan was aggressive?
A. I can't recall. I mean, I use that to compare the -- describe the comparison of the numbers.
Q. Was the base case done as a top-down analysis from the strategic plan or was it built from the ground up?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. It was -- it was -- it was built from sort of 1997 forward. If that's -- I don't think it was built as a -- I don't remember it being built as, let's say, take 20 percent off the strategic plan, if that's the meaning of your question.
Q. Yeah. When that analysis was completed and you looked at the base case projections going forward through 2002, was a comparison made between the base case and the strategic plan to see what percentage difference there was between them and if that was appropriate?

A. I don't think so.
Q. I've done the math and we can go through it in more detail, but even just eyeballing it, the base case on revenue figures shows it being discounted somewhere between 8 and 13 percent from the strategic plan out through 2002.
Do you remember having discussions with anyone at Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes about whether that range of discount was appropriate for purposes of a base case presentation to the board?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question. Mischaracterizes the testimony.
A. No, I don't.
Q. And earnings figures are similarly 10 to 14 percent lower than the strategic plan case.

Page 201

Do you remember discussion with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes about presenting an earnings case that were 10 to 14 percent below the Sunbeam?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
Q. Were there any discussions internally at CSFB about whether those types of discounts or lowered estimates was an appropriate range?
A. I don't think there were any -- I don't remember discussion about discounts. You know, I'm sure we discussed whether we thought the base case was a good case to show the board.
Q. And you concluded that it was a good case to show the board?
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. I'd like you to turn to the next page, please, which is the detail on the comparable companies analysis.
A. Yes.
Q. And the table at the top of the page, public market valuation, there's a reference to 1998 estimated EBITDA.
A. Yes.
Q. And it's a footdnote based on Wall

Street estimates?
A. Yes.
Q. There's no case that is presented here for the base case versus a strategic plan case, is there?
A. No.
Q. That was only done for the discounted cash flow?
A. Yes.
Q. That was -- the strategic plan case was only presented to the board in connection with the discounted cash flows; isn't that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Why was the strategic plan only presented as part of the discounted cash flow analysis and not incorporated into the comparable companies analysis?
A. Because the comparable companies analysis is addressing the question of whether the stock trades fairly in the public market. And the assumption in the analysis is that the public market doesn't have access to the company's private forecasts.
So, the best information it has is what's in the public domain or in the analyst estimates, which is what the base case was meant to reflect.

So, the 1990 EBITDA and EPS numbers were probably -- were based on, you know, Wall Street estimates.
Q. Was there ever a discussion about presenting to the board a comparable company analysis that was based on Sunbeam's long-term plan case?
A. I can't remember. All it would have shown is that the stock was more undervalued versus what we showed here.
Q. If you look at the next page, the comparable acquisitions analysis, the 1998 revenue and EBITDA numbers are also sourced from Wall Street estimates.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Again, there's no presentation made of a comparable acquisition analysis based on the Sunbeam strategic plan case, is there?
A. That's right.
Q. Look at the next page. There's a contribution analysis.

Page 204

A. Yes.
Q. And it contains a reference to 1998 estimated earnings results for Sunbeam. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's sourced to $1.99 EPS?
A. Yes.
Q. Which came from Wall Street estimates --
A. Okay.
Q. -- is that correct? If you look back at --
A. Yes.
Q. -- one of the earlier slides?
A. That looks right, yeah.
Q. It's page 15.
A. Yep.
Q. So, for purposes of the contribution analysis, that analysis performed by CSFB was also performed based on Wall Street estimates?
A. That's correct.
Q. And for purposes of the contribution analysis, there was no analysis done on the Sunbeam strategic plan case?
A. No. It would have just said that

Page 205

Coleman should have got less, so this was a more conservative approach.
Q. If you go back to the board minute presentation, the page 5 of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88, describes Mr. Rich's overview of Sunbeam.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And it describes the analysis that was performed under discounted cash flow comparable company and comparable acquisition analysis for Sunbeam.
And it says then, quote, based on such analysis, Mr. Rich stated that it was First Boston's conclusion that Sunbeam's stock was fairly valued at today's market price, approximately $41 per share.
Do you recall Mr. Rich making that statement to the Coleman board?
A. Not specifically, but I have no reason to believe he didn't say that.
Q. Do you remember any discussion about First Boston's opinion that Sunbeam's stock was fairly valued at $41 per share?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 206

A. No.
Q. Was there any discussion at the -- from the board or questions from the board about that conclusion?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did CSFB ever retract that opinion or conclusion, to your knowledge?
A. I don't know.
Q. As you sit here today, do you ever --
A. No.
Q. -- remember that opinion or conclusion being retracted to the presentation to the Coleman board?
A. No.
Q. What, if anything, do you remember about the discussion following Mr. Rich's presentation among the board members?
A. Nothing.
Q. Did anybody on the board suggest, in words or substance, that Coleman should not accept Sunbeam's stock as part of the consideration?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did anyone express doubts about Mr. Dunlap or his track record?

Page 207

A. I don't recall that.
Q. Did anyone express doubts or concern about the projected growth that Mr. Dunlap was projecting?
A. I don't recall that.
MR. CLARE: Do you want to take a short break?
MR. PARADISE: Well he's got to --
MR. CLARE: Why don't we go off the record.
MR. PARADISE: That's fine.

ROBERT DUFFY, resumed and testified as follows:
EXAMINATION (Cont'd.)
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Duffy, welcome back from our lunch break.
A. Thank you.
Q. Before the break, we were talking about the February 25th, 1998 board meeting of the Coleman Company.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you recall that, generally, that's what we were discussing?
A. Yes.
Q. During the board meeting that you attended, do you recall there being any discussion of Morgan Stanley's involvement or role in the transaction?

A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall one way or the other or you don't recall --
A. I don't recall one way or the other.
Q. Was Mr. Reid present for that meeting?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Was there any discussion about the level of due diligence that had been performed by Coleman or CSFB with regard to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall it.
Q. Was there any discussion about whether additional diligence of Sunbeam was warranted in light of the earnings announcement that was made in January of 2000 -- of 1998 that we looked at earlier in connection with The Wall Street Journal article?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Do you recall any discussion about the possibility of doing additional inquiry or research into Sunbeam based on the earnings in the fourth quarter falling short of analyst estimates?
A. No.

Q. I'd like you to pull back out Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230, which is the investment banking memo. I handed that to you earlier.
A. Yeah.
Q. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230, which we identified for the record earlier, is also dated February 25th, 1998. It's the same date as the board meeting that we were just looking at.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Was this document created -- "this document" meaning Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230 -- created before or after the board meeting?
A. I believe it was done before, but I'm -- I would have thought it was done before.
Q. Did you have a role in putting this document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230, together?
A. Yes.
Q. And what role did you play and what role did the other authors play in putting this together?
A. I would think -- well, I can't recall specifics, but I would think that myself and Mr. Geller were the primary authors. Mr. Rich would have reviewed it. And Ramesh would have been helpful in putting the analysis and preparing some of the analyses that go in here.

Q. There's a notation next to Mr. Geller's name. It says "document retention."
A. Yes.
Q. What does that refer to?
A. That means, on any transaction, for -- or any matter before the investment banking committee, somebody is responsible for keeping the documents as a record. And that would have been Mr. Geller's responsibility.
Q. And is that because, within CSFB and its internal procedures as it existed in February of 1998, this type of a memorandum to the investment banking committee was an important document leading to the issuance of a fairness opinion?
A. Yes. I think that he kept the documents. You wanted to keep -- you wanted to keep the records appropriately.
Q. What -- is this standard practice to create a memo for the inter -- to the investment banking committee --
A. Yes.
Q. -- when CSFB is asked to render a fairness opinion?

Page 212

A. Yes, it is.
Q. Is it -- approval required of the investment banking committee before a fairness opinion can be rendered during this time period, February 1998?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Is it -- do you understand that the investment banking committee would be relying on the information contained in this memo in making a decision regarding whether to issue a fairness opinion or not?
A. Yes, it would.
Q. And you understood it was important to be accurate in putting a document like this together?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you try to be accurate when you put this together in connection with the Coleman acquisition?
A. Yes.
Q. If CSFB had relied on work performed by another investment bank in presenting this information, would you expect that information to be disclosed to the investment banking committee?
A. Yes.

Page 213

Q. Was there a meeting of the investment banking committee that -- where this memorandum was discussed?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did you attend that meeting?
A. I would have, yes.
Q. Do you recall anything about it?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall any questions that were asked by the committee about this transaction?
A. No.
Q. Were you a member of the investment banking committee at the time?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever a member of the committee?
A. I was a member of the committee in Europe when I was in London.
Q. During that later time period?
A. Yes.
Q. Were -- was Mr. Rich a member of the investment banking committee at the time in February of 1998?
A. Yes, he was. But he would not have been -- he would have been a presenter, not on the committee. The committee's sort of 20-ish people. And, usually, there's three of them that meet as the committee. So, he would have presented, but not been one of the members of the committee at that time.

Q. Do you recall whether this document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230, and the request for a fairness opinion in connection with the Coleman transaction was considered by the three-person panel?

A. I don't recall who was on it at the time.

Q. The second page of the document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230, at the top sets forth the, quote, question to the committee --

A. Yes.

Q. -- close quote.

It says, "Is the consideration of $6.44 in cash plus 0.5677 Sunbeam common shares fair to Coleman shareholders from a financial point of view?"

Was that the question that the investment banking committee was asked?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you and Mr. Rich receive a response from the committee to that question?

Page 215

A. Yes.

Q. And what was the response?

A. I believe yes.

Q. And it was on the basis that CSFB, through Mr. Rich, rendered a fairness opinion to Coleman, Coleman's board of directors?

A. That's correct.

Q. The analysis that's set forth here in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230 tracks the presentation that was made to the Coleman board --

A. Um-hum.

Q. -- is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. I'd like you to turn, please, to page -- what I believe is page 10 of the memorandum. At the bottom it has Bates No. CPH 1121269.

A. Yes.

Q. There's a section at the bottom half of the page entitled "Synergies."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And the first sentence reads, "Coleman management has estimated that the combination with Sunbeam could create up to 150 million of cost savings and revenue synergies."

Page 216

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that consistent with your recollection of Coleman management's estimation of the synergies?

A. I believe so.

Q. Do you know what the basis for this statement is?

A. No.

Q. Where that information came from?

A. No.

Q. We looked earlier today at a one-page document that showed $150 million of synergies from the two companies.

Is this statement in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230 based, in part, on that document, that one-page synergy list that we looked at?

MR. BRODY: Object to form.

A. It's probably -- they're probably the same number, yeah.

Q. Do you recall any discussion with the investment banking committee about synergies as it related to this transaction?

Page 217

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Did you or anyone from CSFB, to your knowledge, provide a copy of -- or draft of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230 to Morgan Stanley for review prior to showing it to the investment banking committee?

A. No.

Q. That would not be something that would be typically done?

A. No.

Q. Is that because Morgan Stanley was advising Sunbeam?

A. It's because it's an internal document. We wouldn't share it with the client. We wouldn't share it with anyone.

Q. So, this document would not be shared with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. No.

Q. Turn to the next page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230. And section 10 lists the advisors --

A. Yes.

Q. -- related to the transaction.

I'd like you to read that to yourself.

A. Yeah.
Q. Let me know when you're ready.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Was there any discussion with the investment banking committee about the identity of the advisors who were involved in the transaction?
A. I don't recall. We probably would have told them that Shearman & Sterling had reviewed the memo as our advisor.
Q. Was there any discussion at the investment banking committee -- with the investment banking committee about what role Morgan Stanley had played in the transaction?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Or Mr. -- or Morgan Stanley's role in advising Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did the CSFB team conduct any different due diligence or different type of due diligence on this engagement because Morgan Stanley was involved in the transaction?
A. No. I don't -- what do you mean by "different"? I mean --

Page 219

Q. Well, for example, did CSFB conduct any less searching inquiry of Sunbeam because of Morgan Stanley's involvement in the transaction?
A. No.
Q. Did CSFB conduct or not pursue normal due diligence procedures because Morgan Stanley was involved in the transaction?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did you?
A. No.
Q. Item 11 on Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230 on the same page --
A. Um-hum.
Q. -- describes CSFB's relationship with Mr. Perelman and MacAndrews & Forbes.
Were you involved in any of the transactions that are described there, other than the ones that we may have talked about already this morning?
A. I was involved in the advisory -- in 1997 where we made a bid for a property.
Q. Is that the only one that's listed here?
A. Yes.
Q. Does this refresh your recollection, in any way, about other deals or transactions that CSFB had worked on for MacAndrews & Forbes?

Page 220

A. No.
Q. If you look at the next page, item 12 describes the due diligence that was done on the transaction.
A. Yes.
Q. It lists meetings with Sunbeam senior management on February 23rd and February 24th to discuss Sunbeam's strategic plan and 1997 results.
Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. What, if anything, do you recall discussing with Sunbeam senior management about its 1997 results?
A. Nothing specifically. I don't recall the discussions.
Q. Did anyone on the investment banking committee suggest, in words or substance, that Coleman should not accept Sunbeam stock as part of the consideration?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I'm handing you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 113.

Page 221

A. Okay.
MR. CLARE: For the record, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 113 are minutes of a board meeting for the Coleman Company dated February 27th, 1998.
Q. You and Mr. Rich are shown as having attended the meeting from CSFB.
Do you recall attending the February 27th board meeting of Coleman?
A. I believe so.
Q. I'm sorry. You said you do believe so?
A. Yeah. I -- I can't remember two separate board meetings.
Q. You do not remember attending two different board meetings?
A. Yeah. I'm not -- I don't -- I guess that's fair. I don't -- I didn't -- I did not realize there were two separate meetings.
Q. If you turn to the second page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 113 --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- there's a paragraph dealing with Mr. Rich -- statements by Mr. Rich during the board meeting. I would like you to review those and let me know when you're ready.

(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay.
Q. The minutes describe a change to the mix of consideration --
A. Um-hum.
Q. -- from the board meeting that had taken place on February 25th.
Do you recall any discussions in the days before the acquisition agreement was signed about changing the cash component of the consideration that would be paid to Coleman?
A. I guess I recall that it changed. I don't recall the discussions around why it changed.
Q. That was going to be my next question.
Do you remember any discussions with Sunbeam or MacAndrews & Forbes about the reason for the change?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember any questions from the board relating to the reasons for the change or discussions about it?
A. No.

Page 223

Q. This document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 113, indicates that Mr. Rich reviewed revised pages to the presentation.
A. Yes.
Q. I'd like you to take out for me, if you would, please, the exhibit we were looking at earlier, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112. And I'd like you to compare the document that -- the first page of the presentation, the financial terms page --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- to the terms of the revised presentation -- the revised deal structure in 113.
A. Yeah.
Q. Specifically, the board minutes from the February 27th meeting discuss a ratio of .5677 Sunbeam shares.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that same number appears on page 1 of the presentation?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that suggest to you that this document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112, contains the updated pages for the presentation that was made to the board?

A. Yes, I think -- I would think it does. There's no date on the pages.
Q. Right. And the date on the first page is dated February 25th. It looks like the original presentation. And these figures appear to have been changed.
A. Updated.
Q. Did you play any role in updating the board presentation slides for the second board meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you remember doing that?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember Morgan Stanley -- anyone from Morgan Stanley attending or speaking at the February 27th board meeting?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember any discussion of Morgan Stanley during that board meeting?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember any of the directors inquiring about Morgan Stanley during the February 27th board meeting?
A. No, I do not.

Page 225

Q. The next paragraph in the minutes indicate that Mr. Rich provided a fairness opinion verbally during the meeting.
Do you recall him doing that?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you recall preparing a written fairness opinion for the Coleman transaction?
A. I know there is one. You know, I'm sure I prepared it. I just don't remember the specifics of preparing it.
Q. Other than the procedures that we've just described related to the investment banking committee, are there other internal procedures at CSFB that have to be followed before a fairness opinion can be rendered?
A. No. I mean, I think it's up to the committee to make sure that the proper procedures were followed.
Q. What other procedures were there?
A. They -- there's -- there aren't any specific procedures, but they would review the work that was done to reach the opinion. And had -- you know, had a legal advisor review the opinion, have someone review the memo, have you done the appropriate analyses to come to your conclusions.

Q. In the course of preparing the presentation to the board of directors, did you work together with anyone from Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. We probably -- most likely did. We most likely let somebody at Coleman look at the slides to review them before they went to the board.
Q. Did you let anyone from Morgan Stanley review a copy of the presentation before it went to the board?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Do you recall receiving any synergy assumptions from Mr. Gittis related to the acquisition, have any discussions with him about synergies?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. What about Mr. Levin?
A. I think we discussed synergies with him. I don't know if other people were in the room at the time.
Q. I'm going to hand you what we're going to mark as -- previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 120.

Page 227

Do you recognize Morgan Stanley Exhibit 120 as the written fairness opinion provided by CSFB to the Coleman board of directors?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And do you recognize Mr. Rich's signature on the third page?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. The first paragraph of the letter tracks -- well, let me not characterize it that way.
The first paragraph of the letter indicates that CSFB had been asked to advise the board of the Coleman -- of the Coleman Company regarding the fairness from a financial point of view to the stockholders of the Coleman Company, other than Coleman Worldwide Corporation and its affiliates.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, the engagement letter that we looked at earlier had excluded Coleman (Parent) Holdings, a different entity, from the consideration.
Do you remember any discussion about the scope of the fairness opinion and the entities to whom it would apply?

A. I think -- well, the fairness opinion was meant to apply to the public shareholders.
Q. Were there any discussions about including the MacAndrews & Forbes shareholders in the class of people that would be considered from a fairness standpoint?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you know why that was done in this case?
A. I don't remember. You know, I can speculate, but I don't recall exactly why.
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes, to your knowledge, retain any other financial advisor to provide it a fairness opinion?
A. No.
Q. Through your discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes, in this time period, had MacAndrews & Forbes made a determination that the consideration it was receiving as part of the merger was fair to it?
A. I don't know -- I don't know what decision they had come to. They were supporting the transaction. So, that's all I can, you know, say.

Page 229

Q. Turn to page 2, please.
A. Yeah.
Q. Third paragraph states that, "CSFB had considered financial and stock market data for the company and the acquirer and compared that data with similar data for other publicly-held companies."
A. Yes.
Q. What is that referring to?
A. That refers to the comparable company analyses in the board presentation.
Q. The next paragraph refers to financial forecasts and it states, "With respect to the financial forecasts, we have assumed that they have been reasonably prepared on basis reflecting the best currently available estimates and judgments of the managements of the company and the acquirer as to future financial performance of their respective companies and the synergies and operating cost savings to -- expected to be achieved through the combination of the operations of the company and the acquirer."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.

Page 230

Q. Is that standard language in a fairness opinion?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. In the course of the diligence that you had performed, did you have any reason to believe that the financial forecasts presented by Sunbeam were not reasonably prepared as in accordance with this paragraph?
A. No.
Q. Was there anything about the material presented by Sunbeam that was inconsistent with other information that CSFB had obtained through its due diligence?
A. I don't believe so. Well, the only exception is, you know, this -- their long-term forecast was higher than the research estimates.
Q. The Sunbeam projections were higher than the research estimates that were out on the street?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was for that reason that, among others, that CSFB worked with Coleman management to develop a more conservative set of projections?

Page 231

A. Yes.
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
Q. Did you review the merger documents as they were being prepared?
A. I don't recall specifically. We probably did see them. I don't think we were involved in negotiating them.
Q. Did you have an understanding that -- following the transaction, that Sunbeam's stock would continue to trade publicly?
A. Yes.
Q. Did CSFB, in reaching its fairness opinion, attempt to estimate a range of stock trading -- Sunbeam stock trading below which it would no longer be fair to the public shareholders?
A. No.
Q. In reaching its fairness opinion and rendering it to the Coleman board, did CSFB present any information that it had obtained from Morgan Stanley as opposed to Sunbeam?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. I don't know, is the answer.
Q. As you sit here today, can you identify any piece of information that was presented to you by Morgan Stanley, apart from Sunbeam, that was part of the basis for the fairness opinion that was rendered by CSFB?

A. No.
Q. Prior to the signing of the merger agreement -- let me back up and ask a foundational question.
Do you recall that, at the end of the board meeting that you attended, the board of directors of Coleman approved the merger agreement?
A. I don't remember that, but it says it here and I have no -- I believe it.
Q. I'll represent to you --
A. I believe it.
Q. -- on February 27th, the board of directors approved the merger agreement and a merger agreement-- written merger agreements were signed that same day or the day after, February 27th or 28th, 1998.
Prior to that time, the signing of the definitive merger agreement, did you or anyone else at CSFB, to your knowledge, talk with Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen?
A. I don't believe so.

Page 233

Q. Talk with anyone at Sunbeam's in-house accounting function?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Talk with any of Sunbeam's customers?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Visit Sunbeam's headquarters?
A. No.
Q. Visit any of Sunbeam's manufacturing facilities?
A. No.
Q. I spoke -- I identified earlier several Sunbeam executives. And I want to go back and add to the list and see if you recall having spoken with any of them in the time period before the merger agreement was signed.
Al Dunlap, I believe you said may have been present at one of these meetings, you just don't recall?
A. That's right.
Q. As you sit here today, you don't recall having a discussion or being in a meeting with Al Dunlap?
A. No.
Q. What about Mr. Russ Kersh?
A. You know, I recognize the names, but I don't -- I assume he was in the meetings at Morgan Stanley.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015879

Q. But, as you sit here today, you don't recall specific discussions with Mr. Kersh?
A. No.
Q. Rich Goudis, G-O-U-D-I-S?
A. Sort of the same. I think I did, but I can't recall a specific meeting.
Q. David Fannin?
A. Don't -- I don't recognize the name.
Q. Don Uzzi?
A. I don't know.
Q. Does that name sound familiar to you?
A. It sounds familiar, yes.
Q. Mr. Uzzi was in the Sunbeam sales department.
Did you have any discussions with anyone in the Sunbeam's sales department leading up to the signing of the merger agreement?
A. I don't know who was at the presentations, so he may have presented at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Let me put it this way. If Mr. Uzzi or these other individuals were not at those meetings, did you have any conversations, apart from those meetings, with them?

A. The only conversations I could have had, I think, would have been between the meeting with Morgan Stanley and the board meeting, if there was any follow-up questions on the presentation.
Q. Do you recall any of those conversations or discussions?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall the subject of any of those follow-up questions?
A. No. I just think there may have been a couple of, you know, phone calls.
Q. Did any of those phone calls that occurred between the meetings at Morgan Stanley's offices and the signing of the merger agreement relate to Sunbeam's first quarter performance?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you recognize the name Scott Yales --
A. No.
Q. -- as somebody you would have spoken to at Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Kyle Kaiser?

A. I don't recognize the name.
Q. Kyle Sinclair?
A. Don't recognize the name.
Q. Deirdre DenDanto?
A. Don't recognize that name.
Q. Lee Griffith?
A. Don't recognize that name.
Q. Tom Hartshorn?
A. Don't recognize that name.
Q. Chuck Meyers?
A. Don't recognize that name.
Q. Bill Bloomfeld?
A. No.
Q. In the course of those follow-up questions that were posed to Sunbeam, were any posed -- follow-up questions posed to Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't know.
Q. As you sit here today, can you -- can you identify any questions that were posed specifically to Morgan Stanley?
A. No. We might have -- we may have put the questions to Morgan Stanley to get the -- and the answers may come back through Morgan Stanley. I don't recall the specifics.

Q. But, as you sit here today, you don't know whether that occurred or whether you dealt directly with Sunbeam management?
A. That's correct.
Q. Were any of the follow-up questions that were asked refused to be answered?
A. I don't remember that.
Q. If that had occurred, do you think you would have remembered that, or it would have been subject for further discussion?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. Depending on the question.
Q. You don't remember, as you sit here today, anyone from Sunbeam refusing to answer any of your questions?
A. That's right.
Q. And, as you sit here today, do you remember anyone from Morgan Stanley ever refusing to answer any of your questions?
A. No.
Q. What, if anything, did you do related to this engagement after the merger agreements were signed?
A. I think, after they were signed, there came a time where there -- the share prices of

Page 238

Sunbeam dropped. And I think we reviewed our opinion at that time.
Q. Was this before the deal closed?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you recall the circumstances that led to the drop of Sunbeam's share price?
A. Not the specifics, no.
Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam's share price declined in connection with the issuance of a press release relating to first quarter sales performance?
A. I don't remember what -- I don't remember what it was, but I'm sure there was a press release.
Q. Did you have a discussion with MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman about your reexamination of the opinion?
A. I'm not sure if we did or we didn't.
Q. Do you know what -- whether Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes asked CSFB to reexamine its opinion?
A. I don't think they did, but I don't -- I don't remember them asking that.
Q. As you sit here today, your best recollection is that the decision to reexamine your opinion was something that you and the other CSFB team members did on your own?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussion with MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman after the date of the merger agreement was signed?
A. Not -- I mean, I know I had conversation with folks at MacAndrews & Forbes on other topics.
Q. Okay. Fair enough.
A. But I don't -- I don't remember specific discussions around Coleman after the merger agreement was signed. I'm not saying there weren't. I just don't remember any specific discussions.
Q. So, between the time of the definitive merger agreement and the closing --
A. Right.
Q. -- you don't recall any discussions with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes relating to the Coleman/Sunbeam acquisition?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any discussions during that time period with individuals from Morgan Stanley?

Page 240

A. I don't know.
Q. As part of the examination of your opinion, did you make any inquiries of Morgan Stanley?
A. I'm sorry. Say that again.
Q. We were discussing a moment ago reexamination of the fairness opinion that was conducted internally at CSFB.
As part of that internal examination, did you or others at CSFB make any inquiries of Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't think so.
Q. As part of that examination, did you make any inquiries of Sunbeam?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did you know that, after the merger agreement was signed, that Coleman and CSFB had full access to Sunbeam's books and records through the date of the closing?
MR. PARADISE: Objection.
A. Yeah. Well, I don't think CSFB ever had full access, or would have had full access to anything.
Q. Did you ever make any requests to Sunbeam under the terms of the merger agreements?

Page 241

A. I don't know.
Q. As you sit here today, do you recall having made any requests of Sunbeam pursuant to the rights accorded to Coleman in the merger agreement?
A. No.
Q. And as you sit here today, do you recall making any inquiries of Morgan Stanley pursuant to the rights accorded to Coleman under the merger agreements?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I'm going to hand you two documents. One is Morgan Stanley Exhibit 117 and the other is Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93, two merger agreements dated February 27, 1998.
A. Okay.
Q. Do you recall having reviewed these documents in that time period as part of the work that you had done on the Coleman engagement?
A. Not specifically, but --
Q. Would that have been a standard part of what you would have done in connection with the issuance of a fairness opinion?
A. Yes.
Q. I'd like you to turn, please, to -- in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 117, to section 7.2 of the agreement which is on page 29, Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 0008043. I'd like you to read section 7.2, please, to yourself.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with these types of provisions in merger and acquisition agreements?

A. Yes.

Q. In your experience, is this a common or standard provision?

MR. BRODY: Object to form.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you or CSFB, to your knowledge, make any requests of Sunbeam pursuant to section 7.2 of the merger agreement, section -- Morgan Stanley Exhibit 117?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And does this refresh your recollection, in any way, that Coleman and its financial advisors had full access to Sunbeam's books and records during the time leading to the closing?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.

A. Well, no. I mean, I think it -- it speaks for itself.

Page 243

Q. Did anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman inform you or others at CSFB that it had the rights accorded here in section 7.2?

A. No. I mean, I guess I would have read this to mean that the company had -- Coleman has the right to allow its advisors to do something. But the advisors don't have any independent right.

Q. Okay. Fair enough.

Did the Coleman Company or MacAndrews & Forbes ever advise you that it wished to exercise its rights under section 7.2?

A. No.

Q. Or that the Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes wanted CSFB to examine Sunbeam's books or records during the time period between the merger agreements' signing and its closing?

A. No. That's not the role that CSFB would usually or, I think, ever have.

Q. Well, I guess my question is: Did they ever advise you that they wanted you to do that during that time period?

A. No.

Q. As part of the examination that CSFB did internally of its fairness opinion, did CSFB ask Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes for any additional information?

Page 244

A. I don't believe so.

Q. What do you recall about that internal examination?

MR. BRODY: I'm sorry. Object to the form. What internal investigation?

MR. CLARE: The internal examination.

MR. BRODY: Point in time? I don't understand the question.

MR. CLARE: Let me rephrase it and try to avoid the objection.

MR. BRODY: Thank you.

Q. What do you recall was done in connection with CSFB's reexamination of its fairness opinion between the merger agreements' signing and the date of closing?

A. What I recall is -- and I don't recall the specifics -- was a discussion on, given what had happened to the share price, did we need to -- was our opinion -- what do we need to do about the opinion that we had given in February, whether we had to update it, whether we had to pull it. What did it mean, because it was going to be in a proxy statement that was going to come out, I think, in May.

And that was the topic of the discussion.

Q. And was that topic raised with the investment banking committee again?

A. I don't recall the specifics of how we dealt with it.

Q. And what conclusion was reached?

A. I think we left things as they were. We did not change the opinion.

Q. Did you or anyone else from CSFB inform Coleman that it had -- that you had reexamined your fairness opinion in this way?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Section 7.2 which we just looked at makes reference to confidentiality agreements in place between --

A. Yeah.

Q. -- Laser and Coleman, two agreements dated February 4, 1998 and February 23, 1998.

Does that refresh your recollection in any way that the discussions between the companies up to that time were governed by confidentiality agreements?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015682

MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question. Mischaracterizes. Go ahead.
A. No. I mean, as I said, I don't really have a recollection of the confidentiality agreements.
Q. One way or the other?
A. Right.
Q. The next section of the agreement, section 7.3, refers to comfort letters.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what a comfort letter is?
A. Yes.
Q. What's your -- what is a comfort letter?
MR. BRODY: In general or in reference to this section of the agreement?
Q. Just your understanding of what a comfort letter is.
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
A. My -- my understanding is that it's something the accountant will give the audit client that the account -- the audit is still appropriate, you know.
Q. Are you familiar with comfort letters from your involvement in other transactions that you had done at CSFB?

A. I'm not sure where it all came from.
Q. At the time in 1998, did you have an understanding of what a comfort letter was?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you understand that -- generally, that comfort letters include information updating the financial information about a company from the date of the last audit?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
MR. PARADISE: Objection.
A. Well, I don't know.
Q. Do you have an understanding that comfort letters, generally, provide negative assurances from auditors regarding -- the unaudited financials of the company?
MR. BRODY: Objection.
A. I think I -- I'm not sure exactly, but I think I agree with you.
Q. Okay. Do you recall any discussion about comfort letters in connection with the work you did on the Coleman transaction?
A. No.
Q. Did you make any requests of Sunbeam for comfort letters that Sunbeam had obtained from its auditors Arthur Andersen?

A. No. That's not normally something the investment bank would get.
Q. Do -- I guess my question is more --
A. Did we, no.
Q. -- did -- did you have any role in obtaining from Coleman's auditors, Ernst & Young, comfort letters to provide to Sunbeam?
A. I don't -- no.
Q. And same answer, is that something that you would not, as an investment banker, generally be involved in?
A. That's correct.
Q. As part of the examination of the CSFB fairness opinion, did you or anyone else review the merger agreement to determine what, if any, rights to additional information Coleman had?
A. No. That's -- that -- that's not something that would go to the fairness of the transaction.
Q. Did anyone from Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes contact you or anyone from CSFB, to your knowledge, during the time period between the date of the merger agreement and the date of the closing?

A. Just in general.
Q. On -- specifically, to do additional work on the Coleman transaction?
A. I don't think so. I don't recall.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I'm handing you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 11.
(Brief interruption.)
Q. Mr. Duffy, I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 11. It's a press release issued by Sunbeam on March 19, 1998.
Do you recall having seen or heard about this press release during the March 1998 time period?
A. Not specifically. I don't remember. I remember there was bad news, but I don't remember what it was regarding, so --
Q. You remember it was bad news in the time period between the execution of the merger agreement and the closing?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was that bad news that had caused the stock to drop?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And it was the decline in the stock

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 250

price that had caused CSFB to reexamine its fairness opinion?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any recollection, having now seen the March 19th press release, about any additional inquiry that was done internally at CSFB about the reason for the sales -- the stock price decline?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes about the March 19, 1998 press release?
A. I don't remember. Very well could have, but I don't remember.
Q. As you sit here today, do you remember a discussion -- any discussion with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes about the March 19, 1998 press release?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes contacting you or others at CSFB about the press release?
A. No.
Q. Did Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes ask CSFB to conduct any inquiry of Sunbeam about the sales figures identified here in the March 19 press release?

A. I don't think so.
Q. Did Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes ask CSFB to make any inquiry of Morgan Stanley after the March 19, '98 press release?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Having seen the March 19, '98 press release, did you or others at CSFB contact -- make any effort to contact Sunbeam to obtain additional information about the reasons for the sales shortfall identified here?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question. Mischaracterizes.
A. Yeah, I don't think so, is the answer.
Q. Did CSFB, as part of its examination of its fairness opinion, go back and look at how these sales numbers reflected in the March 19, '98 press release compared to the strategic plan presented by Sunbeam during the negotiations?
A. We could have. I just don't remember specifically doing that.
Q. Or how these sales numbers would compare to the --
A. Base case.

Page 252

Q. -- base case?
A. I don't remember if we did that.
Q. Did you or others at CSFB share the results or the conclusion of leaving the fairness opinion alone with Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Well, I don't know that we ever told them that there was a question around the opinion. So, I mean, we gave them the opinion and we let it go be published, so -- the conclusion was shared. I don't know they realized there was a question before the conclusion.
Q. They certainly didn't raise the question with you about whether CSFB would stand behind its fairness opinion in light of the March 19th press release?
A. I don't think so. I mean, I don't remember them asking the question.
Q. And quite apart from whether they were aware of your inquiry or not --
A. Right.
Q. -- you didn't affirmatively go to Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes and say, in words or substance, we've taken a look at this again and we're still fine with our fairness opinion; you don't recall having done that?

A. I don't recall that.
Q. Did you make any effort to speak with Sunbeam's auditors as part of the -- your inquiry after the March 19, '98 press release?
A. No.
Q. Or anyone at Sunbeam's in-house accounting team?
A. No.
Q. Or Sunbeam's in-house audit team?
A. No.
Q. Did you talk with any research analysts as part of that inquiry?
A. I don't know if we did.
Q. Did you make any inquiry of any of Sunbeam's customers?
A. No.
Q. Did you make a visit to Sunbeam's headquarters?
A. No.
Q. Or visit any of Sunbeam's manufacturing facilities?
A. No.
Q. Did you or anyone else from CSFB attend the closing of the merger transaction?

A. I did not. I doubt anyone else did.
Q. Did you have any discussions after the date of the merger agreement with Morgan Stanley relating to Coleman or Sunbeam?
A. Say that again.
Q. After the date of the merger agreement, February 27, 1998, did you have any discussions with anyone at Morgan Stanley about Coleman or Sunbeam?
A. I don't remember having any.
Q. Did you or others at CSFB perform any work in valuing the consideration that MacAndrews & Forbes received?
A. I think we did the exercise of applying the exchange ratio to the share price to see what the deal was worth, if that's what you mean by valuation.
Q. Did you or others at CSFB do any analysis or work to value the Sunbeam shares that MacAndrews & Forbes received as part of the consideration?
A. Again, I think it depends what you mean by valuation. We took the price of the Sunbeam shares and multiplied it by the exchange ratio and said, that's how much value you're getting, I believe.

Q. In terms of calculating the value of the shares as modified by the -- any lock-up that was in the merger agreement or blockage that might be associated with holding a large portion as MAFCO did, did you model any of those --
A. I don't remember that. You mean a liquidity discount or something? I don't remember doing had.
Q. That's a much better word, liquidity discount.
Do you recall doing any work on calculating a liquidity discount for MacAndrews & Forbes' shares of Sunbeam that they received?
A. I don't remember that, no.
MR. CLARE: Let's mark this as the next exhibit.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 277, Merger consequences model dated February 27, 1998 regarding Project Violet, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 277. And you'll see in the upper left-hand corner legend that has Credit

Suisse First Boston.
A. Yes.
Q. And on the right-hand legend it refers to Project Violet.
A. Yes.
Q. And it's dated February 27, 1998 at 5:39 a.m. --
A. Yes.
Q. -- which is the same date as the Coleman board meeting that we looked at earlier and the same date as the merger agreements.
A. Yes.
Q. Does this document look familiar to you as something you either worked on or have seen before today?
A. Yes.
Q. And can you explain to me what information is being modeled or conveyed here?
A. I believe what this is, is a merger consequences model, which ultimately shows what the earnings impact to the buyer is of an acquisition.
Q. And for what purpose would this document be created?
A. For EPS -- calculate EPS accretion and dilution earnings per share -- accretion and dilution.

Page 257

Q. For the combined entity?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this information presented to the Coleman board?
A. I believe the EPS accretion and dilution was.
Q. As part of the presentation that we looked at earlier?
A. Yes.
Q. But this document in this form, was this presented to the Coleman board, to your knowledge?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Is this something Mr. Geller would have been responsible for primarily?
A. He would have been -- he probably was responsible for preparing it. I mean, I would have reviewed it.
Q. The -- if you turn to page 2 of this --
A. Yes.

A. Yes.
Q. -- figures, those figures come from the base case?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall, for purposes of doing the merger consequences analysis, using the base case numbers for sales and revenue?
A. I don't recall it, but we very well could have.
Q. Do you recall ever doing a merger consequences analysis using the Sunbeam strategic plan case?
A. No.
Q. Did CSFB ever advise or discuss with MacAndrews & Forbes the limit -- any limitations on its sale of shares received as consideration in the transaction?
A. I don't -- I don't recall.
Q. In evaluating different lock-up scenarios?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall performing or being asked to perform any work related to the Coleman engagement after the examination of the fairness opinion in March of 1998?

A. No. I think -- I think -- I -- thought the examination may have gone into April. I mean, it may have been more. I'm not sure when it started and when it finished.
Q. Do you recall that the examination was the -- is that the last work that you remember performing related to the work you did on the Coleman engagement?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you ever asked to play a role or did you play any role in settlement of any litigation relating to the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Or evaluating any warrants that Coleman (Parent) Holdings received from Sunbeam in settlement of litigation?
A. I don't know. I don't know if I did or I didn't.
Q. It would have been in the August 1998 time period.
A. I don't know.
Q. As you sit here today, you don't recall having played any role in that?

Page 260

A. No. I was getting ready to go to London then.
Q. As you sit here today, is the examination of the fairness opinion that you did the last work that you can recall having done --
A. Yes.
Q. -- on the Coleman engagement?
A. Yes.
MR. CLARE: Why don't we take a five-minute break. I might be done.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Time is 4:44 and we are off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:46 and we are back on the record.
Q. Since 1998, did you work on any other MAFCO-related engagements, for example, while you were in London?
A. No.
Q. And then when you returned from London, did you work on any other MAFCO-related engagements?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Do you have any ongoing business or financial relationships with MacAndrews & Forbes or any of its executives?

Page 261

A. No.
Q. Or any of its operating companies?
A. No.
MR. CLARE: Those are all the questions that I have.
THE WITNESS: Thanks very much.
MR. BRODY: Can I have the microphone, Tom.
EXAMINATION BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Duffy. As I said at the beginning, my name is Mike Brody, and I represent Coleman (Parent) Holdings and MAFCO in this case. And I believe Mr. Clare established we've not met before today; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. You are here pursuant to a subpoena served by counsel for Morgan Stanley?
A. I believe so.
Q. How many subpoenas did you receive, do you remember?
A. From Morgan Stanley?
Q. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015986

A. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know if you got more than one?
A. I think I got two.
Q. Okay.
MR. PARADISE: Just for the record, we had agreed -- Vinson & Elkins had agreed on behalf of the witness to accept service of the subpoenas.
So, I'm not sure that he, technically speaking, received any directly. But I believe the Credit -- Vinson Elkins received one actual subpoena.
MR. BRODY: Okay.
MR. PARADISE: I think I can verify that.
Q. Do you know if one was served on you, Mr. Duffy, perhaps at home or at work?
A. No, none was.
Q. Okay. This deposition is focused on the work you did for the Coleman Company and MacAndrews & Forbes.
Your last contact with the Coleman Company in connection with the Sunbeam engagement was in 1998; is that correct?
A. That's correct.

Q. And since then, you haven't done any further work for the Coleman Company or for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. That's correct.
Q. And your last contact on a social or other matter with the people who worked on this matter for MacAndrews & Forbes was in 2000; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. I know you spent some time yesterday preparing with your counsel for this deposition and you looked at some documents.
But is it correct to say that most of the documents you saw today were things you hadn't looked at since 1998?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you may have heard counsel talking about this. Are you aware that there's a protective order in this case that restricts the ability of lawyers to give things that are subject to the protective order to witnesses?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Okay. That may explain why you didn't get certain of these documents. We're restricted on what we can do beforehand.

I believe you testified that, in your current position at GE, you do work with Morgan Stanley; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And I believe you identified three individuals there, Mr. Perella. What's his full name?
A. I think it's Joseph Perella.
Q. Do you know what work Joseph Perella does for GE?
A. He's a senior M&A -- primarily senior M&A advisory, but senior advisor to GE.
Q. And do you know if Mr. Perella has advised General Electric in the last six months?
A. He's met with us in the last six months. And he's, I believe, participated in discussions around the IPO of Genworth, but I'm not sure of that.
Q. Okay. I believe you also identified Ms. Porat?
A. Yes.
Q. Has Ms. Porat worked with GE in the last six months?
A. She has worked with respect to the IPO of Genworth.

Q. Now, you refer to the IPO of Genworth. And I think I'm familiar with that, but what's the time frame of that IPO?
A. That happened -- it went public in May of 2004 and the work for it started, probably, August, September of 2003.
Q. And was Ms. Porat and Mr. Perella involved in that engagement from August or so of 2003 through the IPO in May of 2004?
A. I would believe so. I personally was not directly involved in that IPO.
Q. Did you see them around the office?
A. Yes.
Q. You also identified Mr. McGuire. Is it Mr. McGuire?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the nature of Mr. McGuire's engagement for GE?
A. He's the senior M&A advisor, so he would have discussed M&A transactions with us.
Q. Okay. Your involvement in the Coleman engagement back in 1998 was under the direction of Gordon Rich; is that correct?
A. That's right.
Q. And Mr. Rich was the primary contact?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 266

A. Yes, he was.
Q. I notice Mr. Rich was the gentleman who signed the fairness opinion and who appeared to speak at the board meetings; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So, he was the, for lack of a better term, the lead person on this?
A. Yes.
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
Q. I understand that Mr. Rich was killed in an auto accident; is that correct --
A. Yes.
Q. -- several years ago?
A. In 2000.
Q. Thank you.
During Mr. Clare's examination, you testified that you had heard or you had thought that MAFCO was interested in selling Coleman before you were engaged in this matter?
A. Yes.
Q. But I believe you said you didn't remember how you learned that; is that correct?
A. Well, I guess I heard that from Mr. Rich.
Q. Okay. But aside from what you heard from Mr. Rich, do you have any basis for that -- saying that?

A. No.
Q. And you personally never did any work on any effort to sell Coleman or any part of Coleman, other than whatever happened in the Sunbeam transaction; is that correct?
A. Yes, although we did do some work in the -- previously on selling some of the boat companies, which may or may not have been part of Coleman.
Q. Okay. But, I mean, in selling MacAndrews & Forbes' investment in the Coleman stock, your only involvement in that was the transaction that eventually closed with Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. There's a big pile of documents in front of you, sir, and I'm going to ask you to pull some of them out. I'm going to ask you to start out with the handwritten document, Exhibit 317.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have it?
A. Yes.
Q. Great. Mr. Rich, I believe you testified that, as you sit here, you believe these are your notes?

A. Yes.
Q. But don't remember what they're notes of or what they mean?
MR. CLARE: Let's be clear. I think you referred to Mr. Rich.
MR. BRODY: I did. Let me rephrase that. I'm sorry.
Q. Mr. Duffy, you testified that these are your notes, correct?
A. That's right.
Q. But I believe you testified you don't remember what they're notes of?
A. That's right.
Q. And other than trying to interpret them, as you sit here, you don't know what they mean; is that correct?
A. That's right.
Q. If you turn to the -- look, rather, at the bottom of the first page, you had written "Al Dunlap created negative sales impact because believe looking to sell."
Do you understand that to mean that you were advised that Sunbeam sales, in prior periods, were lower than they could have been because of this effort to sell the company?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. That could be --
Q. Okay.
A. -- what it means.
Q. If you turn to the next page -- let me withdraw that.
Do you understand these notes to be things that someone told you as opposed to things that you wrote down that you had thought up?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes. I believe these were notes -- I was -- notes from a meeting, so I was recording what was being said.
Q. By someone else?
A. Yeah.
Q. Turn to the second page, the reference to margin improvement. And can you read into the record, please, the next two lines underneath, what your handwriting says?
A. "Improved operating income by 225 million, '98 full year of impact."
Q. Do you understand that to mean that someone reported to you that the operating income -- that Sunbeam was going up in '98 was going to show a full year's impact of that improvement?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes.
Q. Now, down below there's some numbers. There's the 225 number, the 150 number, the 75 number; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were asked some questions about what those numbers meant? I think Mr. Clare asked if, maybe, that was sales, and you said, no, maybe, it's cost savings?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see the word "cost savings" there in your hand to the right?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that suggest to you that someone was reporting to you that there were, in fact, cost savings at Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes.
Q. And this may be elementary, but, if there were cost savings at Sunbeam, that would result in increased profits at Sunbeam?

Page 271

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. You can put that document aside, Mr. Duffy.
And I ask you -- I'm going to refer to the February 23rd, 1998 letter to Coleman from Sunbeam marked as Exhibit, I believe, 101. You can pull it out, although I'm not going to ask you about the specifics of it.
You were asked if you had any reason to believe the document was not executed.
As you sit here, do you have any reason to believe that it was ever executed; that is, that it was signed?
A. I have no knowledge.
Q. One way or the other?
A. Right.
Q. Okay. Put that document aside, please.
Okay. I believe your testimony earlier in the day was that Credit Suisse First Boston was retained in December of 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. And you started working on it shortly thereafter?
A. Yes.
Q. I believe you testified that one of the things you did was to analyze or to come up with arrangements as to justify a price --
A. Yes.
Q. -- is that correct?
And I believe you said that there was some meetings and then Credit Suisse prepared some work product; is that correct?
A. Yes.
MR. BRODY: I'm going to ask the court reporter to mark an exhibit. And this will be marked as CPH Exhibit 326 -- I'm sorry -- 236. Exhibit 236.
(CPH Exhibit 236, Credit Suisse First Boston document relating to Project Violet, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Duffy, do you have Exhibit 236 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize this document?
A. It's a First Boston document.
Q. And it refers to Project Violet.
Do you understand that to be a reference to work that CSFB did for Coleman; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And if you turn to the first page of text, it has the production number in the lower right corner of CPH 1121207. It's entitled "Valuation Points."
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize that to be a summary of CPH's work on valuation?
A. I'm sorry. Summary of whose work?
Q. I said CPH. I was wrong.
Do you recognize this to be a summary of a Credit Suisse First Boston's work on the valuation of Coleman?
A. On the -- on the valuation arguments, yes.
Q. Right. And the conclusion stated in the first bullet point is that the inherent value of Coleman is in the $24.78 to $38.94 range per share; is that correct?
A. Yeah.
Q. And the reasons and methodologies and so on is contained in this document?
A. I believe so, yeah.

Page 273

015886

Q. Did you play any role in the creation of this document?
A. I'm sure I did.
Q. Is this something that you and Mr. Geller worked on?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you believe -- do you know if this document was presented to management of Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I believe it was.
Q. Does Exhibit 236 appear to be a true and correct copy of the project book of materials that you presented?
A. Yes.
Q. At the time CSFB was doing the work it did in this matter, MAFCO owned 82 percent, or thereabouts, of the common stock through subsidiaries of Coleman Company, correct; is that correct?
A. Yeah.
Q. And, as an 82 percent owner, it had control of the company?
A. Yes, it did.
Q. Were MAFCO to sell its interest, would it ordinarily, in your experience, receive a control premium?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes.
Q. And can you explain what a control premium is?
A. It's a premium over the trading price of the stock. And it's typical in an M&A transaction for somebody to get a premium. And if you have the controlling block, there are times where you can sell your shares for more than what the public receives.
Q. Okay. Did you hear discussion, at the time, or are you aware of the concept of MAFCO being a financial owner of Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. What does that mean to you?
A. Well, MAFCO was not an operating company. It was -- in my experience, it was a -- it was a holding company for a series of investments by Ronald Perelman.
And so, as a financial company, it owned each of its companies, sort of as a stand-alone company. It didn't try to integrate Coleman and Revlon with Marvel and others.
Q. What does it mean to make a strategic sale or to sell to a strategic buyer?

A. To sell to a strategic buyer means you sell one -- one operating business to another operating business, and the belief is that that buyer will have synergies by being able to run the business better, sell the products better or save costs in how they operate the business.
Q. Was it understood, at the time, that the sale to Sunbeam was the sale to a financial buyer or a strategic buyer?
A. Strategic buyer.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Strategic buyer.
Q. Why is that?
A. Because Sunbeam was in the similar business as Coleman. And the belief was that they would be able to run the business more efficiently.
Q. Is another way of saying that to say that Coleman, owned by Sunbeam, could be worth more than Coleman owned by MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes.
Q. Now, we've had some discussion about the February 23rd meeting. I believe that was the date that was identified in the chronology Mr. Clare showed you.

A. Okay.
Q. The meeting at Morgan Stanley.
A. Yes.
Q. I would like to return to that.
Do you recall attending a meeting at Morgan Stanley on or about February 23rd, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And I say it's at Morgan Stanley. Do you recall where that was?
A. Within Morgan Stanley?
Q. No. What office?
A. Times Square.
Q. Times Square?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the purpose of the meeting?
A. I believe it was a due diligence meeting. And I believe it was primarily for Sunbeam to present their business to MacAndrews & Forbes -- well, to Coleman and to us as the advisor.
Q. So, was it for you to learn the plans and prospects of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.

015890

Page 278

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes.
Q. Who attended the meeting?
A. I can't say specifically, but, you know, it was myself and Mr. Geller from CSFB. And I would think it was Mr. Levin, Mr. Maher and Mr. Nesbitt from MacAndrews. And there may have been other folks from Coleman that I just don't remember.
Q. Who was there from Morgan Stanley?
A. Again, I don't really remember.
Q. But there was someone there from Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes, there were several people there.
Q. It was held in their offices?
A. Yes.
Q. And did anyone from Morgan Stanley say anything in the meeting, to your recollection?
A. I'm sure they did. But what they said specifically, I don't recall.
Q. Okay. Do you remember them, at any point in the meeting, correcting something that Sunbeam had said or saying, oh, that's not quite right?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

Page 279

A. I don't remember the specifics.
Q. Okay. Now, when you went in that meeting, were you expecting -- let me withdraw that.
Now, during that meeting, I believe you said some presentation slides were either put up on the wall or exhibited in some manner?
A. Actually, I said I didn't remember them being on the wall, so -- I don't know if they just gave handouts or there was something on the wall.
Q. But you believe you were given some handouts?
A. I believe so.
MR. BRODY: Can the court reporter, please, mark this Exhibit 237.
(CPH Exhibit 237, Document Bates stamped CSFBC 0001623, marked for identification, as of this date.)
(CPH Exhibit 238, Document Bates stamped CPH 1412552, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Duffy, can you put those two documents in front of you, 237 and 238.
A. Yes.

Page 280

Q. And just so we're clear on the record, 237 has a Bates number that reads CSFBC 0001623 and following pages; is that correct?
A. I'm sorry. Say that again. 237.
Q. Is CSFBC 1623?
A. Yes.
Q. And 238 has a number that reads in the -- in the -- as you look at it in the landscape version to the left, CPH 1412552; is that correct?
A. 2552, yeah.
Q. Okay. Both of these documents have some handwriting on them; is that correct?
A. That's right.
Q. Can you recognize whose handwriting either of them are -- either of them contains?
A. I think 238 is my handwriting.
MR. PARADISE: 237?
THE WITNESS: No. 238.
A. And then I think the other one could be Mr. Geller's, but it's been a long time since I saw his handwriting.
MR. PARADISE: Just for the record --
MR. BRODY: I'll make that clear.
MR. PARADISE: I don't think he's been through every page of the document.

Page 281

Did you ever go through every page of the document? Because I think there's handwriting on more than one page.
A. I guess I'm just -- the handwriting looks like mine.
MR. PARADISE: All throughout the document?
Q. Before we put it aside, can you just get 237 in front of you briefly.
A. Yes.
Q. And just tell me if, looking at that, you believe it contains any of your handwriting. I'm not going to ask you to say whether it's Mr. Geller's. I'm just looking for yours.
A. No.
Q. Okay. Put 237 aside. And we'll focus on 238.
Since you recognize this as your handwriting, do you believe that you walked away from that meeting with a copy of the slides or presentation materials?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you believe that the handwriting on here is stuff you wrote on the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015961

Page 282

document during the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. I'm not going to focus on every page. I'm just going to focus on some of them. I'm going start with the page bearing the production number in the lower left that reads CPH 14125556. It --
A. Yes.
Q. -- appears to be page 3, continually introduce innovative, and so on. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Thank you. The handwriting under the focused development resources on home runs, can you read that it into the record?
A. "5 to 10 million minimum, air/water, 100 million."
Q. Do you understand that -- do you understand this note to reflect that, during the meeting, someone from Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley indicated that the air and water products would bring in $100 million of revenue?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I don't remember that. It implies that to me.

Page 283

Q. Okay. If you turn to the next page, item 4, optimize worldwide supply chain.
A. Yes.
Q. And there's some handwriting under the first bullet point. Can you please read that?
A. The handwritten part?
Q. The handwriting.
A. Okay. "Land worth 20 million. Close Mexico City facility, 25 million savings. Move to two facilities. Move production out from facility to third party. 2,00 employees makes everything."
Q. Okay. Does that reflect, to your knowledge, information that was communicated during the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. If you turn to the next page -- no, I'm sorry. Not that page. Page bearing Bates number CPH 1412560.
A. Yes.
Q. This is a page about Sunbeam's health at home business.
A. Yes.
Q. And there's some handwriting there in your hand about its water products and its air cleaner.

Page 284

A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember in that meeting Sunbeam and/or Morgan Stanley being very positive about Sunbeam's new air and water products?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall that specifically, no.
Q. Okay. Well, if you look at the financial numbers down at the bottom, do you understand that number to project an increase from 93 million of U.S. sales to 189 million in U.S. sales between 1997 and '98?
A. Yes.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And written next to that is "98 air and water." Do you understand that to be 1998 or 98 million or something else?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I believe it to be 98 million of air and water products.
Q. Do you have a recollection that, at the meeting, that's something you were told by Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley people?
A. Not -- no.

Page 285

Q. Do you believe that these notes record the things that were told to you at the time?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Okay. Turn a few pages ahead. More than a few, to page CPH 1412567. Are you there?
A. Let me -- yes, I am.
Q. I believe this is the page that Mr. Clare showed you earlier in which someone had written "Jan, Feb slow."
A. Yes.
Q. You didn't write anything to convey that point, did you?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I don't think so, no.
Q. Okay. Down at the bottom line in the EPS item, you've circled the $2.20 item.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that -- can you read the handwriting underneath that?
A. I think it says "7 million of bonus if hit. Bonus tied to that."
Q. Do you have a recollection of what this meant?
A. I believe it means that the bonus -- the management bonus was tied to getting 220 of earnings.

015892

Q. So, if management succeeded in getting 220 in earnings, there would be $7 million of bonus money available to them?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember that being discussed in the meeting?
A. I don't remember. But, if it's written here, I would imagine it was.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Kersh or someone else from Sunbeam or someone from Morgan Stanley talking about this 220 number that you circled?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I don't remember specifically someone talking to that.
Q. Now, do you remember anyone stating in this meeting that Sunbeam sales were down?
A. No.
Q. Or that its sales in the first part of the year were flat or below expectations?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. No.
Q. Do you remember anyone in the meeting saying that Sunbeam's earnings or expected earnings through the first part of the year, the part of the year that had been experienced to date, were disappointing?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. No.
Q. Turn to the last page of this document. Can you read the handwriting in the upper left?
A. "97 new products, good orders but placement less strong."
Q. And then the items down below under "Domestic", what is that handwritten -- what does that handwriting mean?
A. It says, number of new products 89. And then 30. Then there's a -- then there's a line, new products, 190. Then 227. New and existing channels Home Depot, Costco, price 97, 3 percent worldwide.
Q. Did you understand this slide to indicate that Sunbeam's new products were contributing as shown here, 227 million of sales to the '98 sales numbers?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes.
Q. How long did this meeting at Morgan Stanley take?

Page 288

A. I don't know. Probably a couple of hours.
Q. In those couple of hours, there were questions asked and answers given; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And, as you sit here, do you remember any negative information that was communicated about sales or earnings or projections of Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. No. I mean, if we read through the notes, there may be qualifiers that are in the notes here.
Q. But do you --
A. I don't recall anything.
Q. Okay. Thank you.
Now, Mr. Clare asked you some questions about the inclusion of certain long-range strategic plan numbers in the Credit Suisse documents. I'll get to that in a moment.
But are the numbers found in Exhibit 238 the source of those numbers? Let me ask another question.
Is Exhibit 238 the long-range

strategic plan?
A. I believe so, yeah.
Q. And that's the source of the long-range strategic plan in the Credit Suisse documents?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. If you, please, retrieve a document Mr. Clare gave you. That's the big thick one, Exhibit 85.
MR. CLARE: Morgan Stanley Exhibit 85?
MR. BRODY: Yes. Thank you, Tom.
Q. Do you have it?
A. Yes.
Q. I believe you said that you had seen this during -- in connection with the work you did for Credit Suisse on behalf of Coleman?
A. I think I said it looked familiar, yes.
Q. And you recognize from the legend on the bottom right this is a document prepared by Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. I believe your testimony was that you recalled seeing the early parts of the document?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015893

Page 290

MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the testimony.
Q. Is that correct or not?
A. I said -- I think I said the early pages looked the most -- looked familiar.
Q. Okay. Then let's turn to the first page after executive summary. And by that I mean -- bears Bates numbers CP 020988.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you believe that's a page that you saw in connection with the work that you did?
A. I think so.
Q. The first bullet point refers to Sunbeam's attractive growth story and investment opportunity.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember any discussions with Morgan Stanley about those words?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. No.
Q. And the next item refers to the profound transformation of the company since the arrival of new management in 1996.
Do you remember any further discussions about that?

Page 291

A. No, I do not.
Q. The third item refers to tremendous intrinsic value.
Do you remember discussions with Morgan Stanley about that beyond what's in this document?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Okay. If you'll put that document aside. I may return to it later.
Okay. Mr. Clare asked you some questions about due diligence and the investigation done by you and others at CSFB.
My recollection of the chronology that Mr. Clare put in front of you was that the understanding of the exchange ratio, the agreement was struck on about February 19, 1997.
Do you remember that?
A. Not exactly.
Q. Okay. Well, that's not a fair question, then. If you could, please, retrieve Morgan Stanley Exhibit 75, which is the Wachtell document.
MR. PARADISE: This one.
A. Yeah.
Q. And if you look at the chronology,

Page 292

February 19th appears to be when the parties are at or close to an agreement?
A. Yes.
Q. And February 27th is the date the parties -- Coleman has its board meeting --
A. Yes.
Q. -- and the deal is signed up.
A. Um-hum.
Q. So, the due diligence that was done on this deal was done between the 19th and the 27th; is that correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Misstates the testimony.
A. Yes.
Q. What was CSFB's reason for doing the investigation, the diligence investigation it was doing?
MR. PARADISE: Diligence on Sunbeam or diligence generally?
MR. BRODY: We'll start with on Sunbeam.
A. To understand the business and to understand, you know, whether there's an issue with respect to the share price from a, you know, financial point of view.

Page 293

Q. Okay. And, in doing that diligence -- let me withdraw that.
Was CSFB doing an investigation in order to advise either Sunbeam or Coleman as to how these companies could best be combined?
A. That was not the purpose at that time.
Q. Okay.
A. I mean, in other transactions you might give that advice, but they had already chosen the structure they were going to proceed with.
Q. And I believe you referred to the work you were doing as work done on the sell side?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you explain to us what that means?
A. Well, we were advising the selling shareholder or selling company. And I think what I said -- I don't recall whether I said it, but one thing I did say is we were not asked to market the company.
Q. If you were advising the buyer or if you were being asked to market the company, would you have done different things?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Incomplete hypothetical.

0158914

Page 294

A. Possibly. We probably would have done more -- well, if we were marketing the company, we probably would have gone and contacted potential buyers for Coleman.

And we may have spent more time preparing a valuation of Coleman to share with the prospective buyers to show them why we think the business is a -- you know, worth what it is.

Q. Okay. So, your task would have been different?

A. We would have had additional tasks.

Q. I understand.

In your prior testimony, I believe you said that one of the things that CSFB did was look at public documents?

A. Yes.

Q. By that, you mean financial statements and other documents that are publicly available such as filed with the SEC?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you also looked at analyst reports about the company?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. And you looked at the projections such as the ones you saw on February 23rd in the meeting at Morgan Stanley?

Page 295

A. Yes.

Q. And you met with Morgan Stanley --

A. Those weren't public, though.

Q. I understand.

A. Yes.

Q. And you met with Morgan Stanley's management -- excuse me -- Sunbeam's management?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, in doing the due diligence, did you operate on the assumption that Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam was trying to hide the truth from you?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. No.

Q. Did you think that your purpose in doing this due diligence investigation was to determine if the parties on the other side of the transaction were involved in a fraud?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. No.

Q. I'd like to talk about the fairness opinions and the board meeting.

You testified that Credit Suisse prepared a fairness opinion and that spoke about whether the transaction was fair to the public shareholders?

A. Yes.

Q. It did not look at whether the transaction was fair to the MAFCO shareholders?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you know why the board hired you to do an investigation of the fairness for the public shareholders?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.

A. Yes. Well, I can -- I believe so.

Q. What's your understanding?

A. Well, the board is -- the board is there to protect the shareholder interest. And the public shareholders aren't sophisticated and, therefore, they look to the board to give them guidance.

And, therefore, the board wanted an investment bank to give them a fairness opinion.

Q. Do you understand that the consideration in this transaction paid to Mr. Perelman's company for its shares and the consideration paid to public shareholders was the same?

A. Yes. Was it the same?

Page 297

Q. Do you understand whether it was the same?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form. Go ahead.

A. I'm not sure if it was the same.

Q. Okay. Well, let me ask you to refer to the Credit Suisse investment banking memorandum that has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 230. Do you have that, Mr. Duffy?

A. Yes.

Q. Looking at the bottom of the page, the summary of the transaction --

A. Yes.

Q. -- do you understand the transaction being paid to the public and the transaction being paid to the MAFCO shareholder is the same?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. I don't think it's the same.

Q. How is it different?

A. I think Sunbeam assumed debt at the deal value, so the valuation was intended to be equivalent, but part of the consideration that MAFCO got was the assumption of debt.

Q. Okay. If you -- have you done the math on whether the exchange price at the closing price is the same for the debt as it is for the shareholders?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015895

Page 298

A. Not recently.
Q. Okay. Do you have a recollection of how that comes out?
A. It should be the same.
Q. Thank you.
Now, in connection with the work that was done in this case, I think Mr. Clare showed you a document that he marked as Exhibit 112. It was the materials prepared for the board of directors. Ask you to retrieve that, please.
A. Yes.
MR. BRODY: And if you put that in front of you, I'm going to ask the court reporter to mark one more exhibit. Is this 239?
MR. PARADISE: Yes.
(CPH Exhibit 239, Materials prepared for the board of directors of Coleman Company, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Duffy, if you would do what we did before and put these two documents next to each other, Exhibit 112 and Exhibit 239.

A. Yeah.
Q. And turn to the second page of the document, that page that reads "Preliminary Financial Terms of the Transaction."
A. Yes.
Q. I think Mr. Clare established that the document marked as Exhibit 112 reflects the final transaction terms for February 27th?
A. Yes.
Q. And the other document, Exhibit 239, reflects the transaction terms before they were changed; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Does Exhibit 239, the one we just marked, appear to be a complete copy of the draft materials prepared for the board of directors reflecting those terms?
A. I believe so.
Q. Okay. Then you can put that aside. I don't need to ask you any more about that.
And we'll focus on the other document Mr. Clare showed you, Exhibit 112. And you recognize those to be the final terms -- excuse me -- the final package used for the board meeting on the 27th?

A. Yes.
MR. BRODY: Ask the court reporter to mark one additional exhibit as Exhibit 240.
(CPH Exhibit 240, Backup material used to prepare investment banking memorandum, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I'm not going to ask you to go through this page by page, Mr. Duffy, but do you recognize Exhibit 240 as a document prepared by Credit Suisse?
A. Yes.
Q. And what it is?
A. I believe it's the backup for the investment banking memo which would be the summary of the analyses that we used to prepare the memorandum.
Q. Was this information kept in the files or was it circulated to anyone, or what happened to it?
A. It -- I don't know specifically. It should have gone with the memo to the members of the investment banking committee.
Q. And is this something that you and other individuals at Credit Suisse prepared?

Page 301

A. Yes.
Q. Does Exhibit 240 appear to be an accurate copy -- true and accurate copy of the back-up materials that went with the investment banking committee memo?
A. Yes.
Q. Thank you.
Why don't you put that document aside.
MR. BRODY: Can we go off the record. The videographer needs to change the tape.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is now 5:30. And we have reached the end of tape No. 3. And we're off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 5:35. This is tape No. 4 and we are back on the record.
Q. Mr. Duffy, when we broke we were looking at the materials presented to the board of directors and talking about the fairness opinion. I'd like to return there.
In preparing the fairness opinion, Credit Suisse looked at the fairness of the transaction to the Coleman shareholders; is that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015896

Page 302

A. Yes.
Q. Does that require an estimation of the value of Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. And that calculation of value was contained in the document that's been marked as Morgan Stanley 112; is that correct?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. In looking at the value of Coleman, did Credit Suisse look at Coleman by itself, absent any synergies resulting from the transaction?
A. Yes, it did.
Q. And, based on that analysis, what was Credit Suisse's conclusion about the fairness of this transaction to the Coleman shareholders?
A. That it was fair.
Q. Credit Suisse also performed an analysis of the consequences of the merger; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And to do that, did Credit Suisse look at the impact of this merger on the combined company, Sunbeam, after it acquired Coleman?
A. Yes, it did.

Page 303

Q. Is that, in effect, an estimation of the value of the future stock, the stock of the combined company?
A. It is not a valuation. It's an analysis that gives you some sense of what could happen to the share price.
Q. I understand.
Now, if you look at page 12 of the document, it reads "Overview of Sunbeam."
Mr. Clare asked you some questions starting here.
A. Yes.
Q. And there's a business overview on the left. And I believe you said that you thought some of that information may have been contained in public documents; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if that information was contained in the Morgan Stanley discussion materials that you were shown earlier today marked as Exhibit 85?
A. It could have been. I don't know.
Q. If I could ask you just to pull out Exhibit 85.
A. Okay.

Page 304

Q. And if you look at the page we concentrated on earlier, the investment rationale page, which is, I think, the first page with text on it.
A. Yes.
Q. And then the following page, the business overview.
A. Yes.
Q. Doesn't that page describe Sunbeam as a leading consumer products company, describe its major brands and describe its number one or two position in a variety of products?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes, it does.
Q. And if you turn, please, sir, much later in the document bearing production No. CP 021064, there's a stock chart.
A. Yes.
Q. And there's a little bullet entry for July 18. It refers to Mr. Dunlap coming in.
A. Yes.
Q. And if you look at Exhibit 112, the CSFB materials, the July 18th date is contained in that last bullet item?
A. Yes.

Page 305

Q. I'd also ask you to turn in the CSFB document to page 5.
A. Back to page 5?
Q. Back to page 5. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, these pages look different because the little boxes are in different places. But do you recognize the text to be the same?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
Q. I mean the text of the boxes.
MR. CLARE: Each and every one of them?
MR. BRODY: Well, I guess that's my question, yes.
MR. PARADISE: What page is that -- of the --
MR. BRODY: We're comparing page 5 of Exhibit 112 of the CSFB document, to page CP 021064 of the Morgan Stanley document.
MR. PARADISE: Okay.
A. They look -- they look the same.
Q. Okay. You can put aside the Morgan Stanley document, Exhibit 85.
Now, Mr. Clare asked you some

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01597

questions about the difference between the base case and the long-range strategic plan case. And I'd like you to turn to page 13 of the document. I think Mr. Clare asked you some questions there.

A. Yes.

Q. The long-range strategic plan case is the case based on the information communicated on the 23rd of February?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And the base case is based on a compilation of Wall Street estimates?

A. Yes. I think, but I think it had the input of Coleman management.

Q. Do you know if the information that was available on Wall Street had as one of its sources Sunbeam management?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Calls for speculation.

A. I would -- I don't know specifically. Are you -- typically, that's the way the analyst community works.

Q. Okay. Now, if you turn to the second to last page, page 18 of the Credit Suisse document, it's entitled "pro forma analysis."

Page 307

A. Yes.

Q. And that's an analysis of the combined Sunbeam and Coleman; is that correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And it's based on a number of assumptions, including 100 million in pretax synergies and tax cost savings?

A. Yes.

Q. We'll come back to that. Well, why don't we do it right now. I was going to ask you to come back to that, but if you could, please, pull out the investment banking committee memo Mr. Clare showed you, Exhibit 230. I'm sorry for all the bouncing around. When you go second, you have to kind of pick up the pieces. Okay?

A. Yes.

Q. If you turn, please, to page 10 of the document, the synergies paragraph.

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Clare asked you about the $150 million number.

A. Right.

Q. The next paragraph says, "Sunbeam management expects to estimate 100 million of cost savings in their public announcement of the deal. The pro forma analysis assumes 100 million of annual cost savings including 1998 which is presented on a pro forma basis."

A. Yes.

Q. So, the Credit Suisse pro forma analysis used the Sunbeam number; is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know where that number came from?

A. I don't know specifically. I think it comes from what they felt comfortable telling the street -- telling the public at the time of the transaction.

Q. Okay. And "they" meaning Sunbeam?

A. Meaning, yes.

Q. Mr. Clare asked you some questions about the way the fairness opinion worked through the investment banking committee.

A. Yes.

Q. That's a formalized process within Credit Suisse First Boston?

A. Yes, sir it, is.

Q. And, in this case, the approvals were given as are necessary?

Page 309

A. Yes.

Q. I believe you also testified to Mr. Clare that, after some news came out, Credit Suisse reexamined the fairness opinion.

Do you remember that testimony?

A. Yes.

Q. And I believe you said that that reexamination happened before the document was to be published in a public securities filing; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, there's -- there was a variety of bad news about Sunbeam. And I'll state for the record there was a press release Mr. Clare showed you on March 19th. There was another press release on April 3rd, which I can show you, if you'd like. And there was the 10-K, the earnings -- 10-Q, rather, the earnings announcement that came out in March -- excuse me -- May 1998.

Using those three dates, do you know when the fairness opinion was looked at again?

A. No.

Q. Could it have been the March 19th

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015698

date?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. My recollection was -- I thought it was more likely in April than it was in March. But I don't know that for a fact.
Q. Okay. And you testified that, whatever triggered the reexamination was some bad news about the company?
A. Yes.
Q. I've kind of lost track of the documents, but Mr. Clare may have already showed you this. If so, I'm showing you another copy. I'm giving you what's been marked as Exhibit 36, CPH Exhibit 36.
And I'm going to ask you to look at the press release attached to the document.
A. Yeah.
Q. Have you seen that document before?
A. I don't remember seeing it, but I very well could have.
Q. And it's a press release dated April 3, 1998 issued by Sunbeam --
A. Yes.
Q. -- disclosing that Sunbeam had missed its first quarter -- its first quarter sales for 1998 were actually below its 1997 levels.

A. Yes.
Q. Do you believe this was the bad news that caused the reexamination of the fairness opinion?
A. It could be. I just don't remember specifically.
Q. Okay. I'm going to show you some documents in a moment that may help you refresh your recollection on that a little bit, but we'll come back to that.
The last topic I'd like to address is the issue of comfort letter.
A. Okay.
Q. And Mr. Clare asked you some questions about the comfort letter -- about comfort letters in general.
While you were doing the work you did on this deal, did you ever see a comfort letter issued by Arthur Andersen?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I've given you what's previously been marked as Exhibit 17. And I'll state for the record that it is a letter dated March 19, 1998 from Arthur Andersen to Morgan

Stanley & Company.
Have you seen this document before?
A. I don't think so, no.
Q. I'm going to ask you to read it, but I'm going to focus on particular paragraphs beginning on paragraph 5. So, tell me when you're comfortable to talk about paragraph 5.
A. I'm sorry?
Q. Paragraph 5.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay. Yeah.
Q. Okay. In paragraph 5(b), Arthur Andersen reports that the sales in the first month of 1998 are just under $29 million, whereas the sales in the first month of 1997 were just under $73 million."
Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is that information that you were aware of at the time you were doing your work?
A. No, I don't believe so, no.
Q. That information was not communicated to you at the meeting at Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. The next item indicates that, in the first month of 1998, Sunbeam has lost about $9-1/2 million, whereas in the comparable period in 1997, Sunbeam had earned approximately $5 million."

A. Yes.
Q. Had that been communicated to you?
A. No.
Q. And that wasn't discussed at the meeting at Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Turn to the next page, paragraph 6. I'm going to ask you about 6(a) and (b) and (c).
(Witness reading document.)
A. I'm sorry. 6 --
Q. 6(a), (b) and (c).
A. Okay. Okay.
Q. In 6(a), Arthur Andersen reports that the long-term debt of Sunbeam had increased by 50 percent, by $105 million.
A. Yeah.
Q. Is that information that you were aware of when you met with Morgan Stanley?
A. I -- I don't know. I don't -- I just don't know.
Q. Do you have a recollection of being

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0158099

Page 314

told that?
A. No.
Q. In the next paragraph, 6(b), Arthur Andersen reports that "sales had decreased as compared to the corresponding period of the preceding year primarily due to the company's new early buy program for outdoor grills which accelerated outdoor grill sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997."
Do you remember any discussion about how Sunbeam had changed its sales practices and accelerated 1998 sales into 1997.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. No.
Q. Was that discussed at the meeting at Morgan Stanley on February 23rd?
A. I don't know. I don't think so.
Q. Do you remember it being discussed?
A. No.
Q. If you turn to the next page, item 6 (c) reports "a preliminary number a sales through March 1, '98 of approximately 72 million compared to approximately 143-1/2 million in the comparable period the year before."
A. Right.

Page 315

Q. Is that information you knew?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: Pass that around, please.
Q. Mr. Duffy, I'm showing you an additional comfort letter. This one is dated -- excuse me. This one bears the label CPH 112, and it's dated March 25th. It's also a letter from Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley.
Have you ever seen that document before?
A. No.
Q. In -- you understand this letter to update the comfort letter that I just showed you, the one dated March 19th?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Foundation.
Q. Let me rephrase that.
Do you understand -- just look at the first line of the letter.
A. It refers to that letter, yes.
Q. Okay, thank you.
And referring to item (e), it contains some financial information. And if you turn to the second page, it shows that sales for 1998 are, approximately, one-half what they were in 1997 for two months?

Page 316

A. Yes.
Q. And it shows a net loss of $41 million compared to a net gain of 9.7 million?
A. Yes.
Q. Recognizing that there's a $30 million charge for employment contracts?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that information that was brought to your attention --
A. No.
Q. -- at any time?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. And if you look at item (f), it refers to long-term debt and it's increased from 194.5 million to almost 310 million.
A. Right.
Q. Do you know if you were aware of that?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Now, Mr. Clare showed you a press release that was issued on March 19th, 1998. And it's been marked as Exhibit -- Morgan Stanley Exhibit 11.
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you have that? If you don't, I can give you another copy of it.

Page 317

MR. PARADISE: Here it is.
A. Yes.
Q. Sorry about that.
A. That's all right.
Q. Was Credit Suisse consulted before this press release was issued?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Credit Suisse was advised about this press release before it went out or given an opportunity to comment on it?
A. I don't know.
Q. In the press release, it recites, among other things, that net sales are expected to exceed 1997 net sales. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And the next sentence says that sales at retail remain strong. Do you see that?
A. Yeah.
Q. And then the final sentence of that paragraph recites that the company is highly confident about the overall sales outlook for its products or for the entire year.
Do you see that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0159000

A. Yes.
Q. Do you see anything in the press release that recites that sales are one-half what they were in the comparable period the year before?
A. No.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. No.
Q. Or that there's a problem because of sales being accelerated for '98 into '97?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I do not.
Q. Now, after this press release marked as Exhibit 11 came out, there was some analyst reports that commented on it.
Do you remember seeing those?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Credit Suisse was looking at the analyst reports that came out?
A. I don't know. I assume so, but I don't know.
Q. As you sit here, do you remember any of them?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Duffy, do you know if the information about Sunbeam's declining sales and declining profitability were ever disclosed?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
MR. PARADISE: To whom?
MR. BRODY: To the public.
MR. CLARE: During what time period?
MR. BRODY: Ever.
A. Well, I think, at some point, it all came out, right?
Q. I've shown you Exhibit 36, the April 3rd press release that discloses that sales were not going to meet --
A. Right.
Q. -- the first quarter the year before.
Do you know what happened to the stock price when that information came out?
A. I think it went down significantly.
Q. Do you remember how much it went down or order of magnitude what it went down?
A. No. Just a lot.
MR. BRODY: 241. Please mark this as Exhibit 241. And I think I'm a copy short.
(CPH Exhibit 241, Daily stock price record on the New York Stock Exchange, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Mr. Duffy, let me just explain what I put in front of you. I've given you what's been marked as Exhibit 241 which is a compilation I create from documents I got out of our library.
And it's a daily stock price record on the New York Stock Exchange on three separate pages, January through March of '98, April through June of '98 and July through September of '98.
And it -- I've copied the pages that contain the stock prices for Sunbeam. And I'm not asking you to attest to the accuracy of these numbers. I believe them to be publicly reported and accurate. But I'm not going to ask about that.
But I'd like to just walk through a few of them. If you could tell us based on this information the price of Sunbeam's stock on the day the merger agreement was approved, the closing price.
A. The 27th?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. It was 41-6/8.
Q. But it was between 41 and 42?
A. Yes.

Q. And then on -- I'm sorry. I'm reading this wrong. I think you are, too. No, you're not. I'm sorry. You're reading it correctly. I was reading it wrong.
And then on March 19th, when Sunbeam released the press release that Mr. Clare showed you, marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 11, what was the price of Sunbeam stock?
A. 45-3/8.
Q. So, even after the issuance of the press release Mr. Clare gave you, the stock price was higher than the merger price?
A. Yes.
Q. If you turn to the price on April 3rd --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- what did it drop to?
A. It dropped to 34-3/8 from 45-9/8 the day before.
Q. So, it lost --
A. $15, a third of its price.
Q. Okay. And by the end of that week, by April 9th, it was down to 30; is that correct?
A. Yeah.
Q. And if we go to the middle of May when

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015901

Page 322

Sunbeam released its financial results for the first quarter of 1998, it was trading in the 23 to $25 range; is that correct?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. You can put that document aside.
The information that was in the comfort letters, is that the type of information that, had you had it, you would have considered it in connection with your fairness opinions?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Yes.
Q. And the stock price of, say $23 in mid-May, do you understand that to reflect any real premium over the Coleman stock price before the deal was announced?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
A. I'm not sure.
Q. All right. We can find that some other way.
MR. BRODY: I have no further questions.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
MR. CLARE: Mr. Duffy -- let me take the microphone back from you.
MR. BRODY: Oh, certainly.

Page 323

EXAMINATION BY
MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Duffy, Mr. Brody has shown you in his examination several documents from the March 1998 time period.
A. Yes.
Q. Did reviewing any of those documents refresh your recollection about any request that you or others at CSFB made to Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley for sales information in March of 1998?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any such request being made by CSFB?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any such request being made by Coleman?
A. No.
Q. Or MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Brody asked you some questions about the extent of due diligence that CSFB performed in connection with rendering its fairness opinion. Do you recall that testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. In March and February of 1998, did

Page 324

CSFB have the capability in-house to conduct a more in-depth examination of Sunbeam and its business, had it been asked to do so?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. Depends -- I mean, what form of examination? We're not accountants, so we wouldn't have been able to check their accounting policies.
Q. Okay. In any way more in-depth than the examination that was done as part of the due diligence, did CSFB have the capability to do a more in-depth examination of Sunbeam and its business, if it had been asked?
A. If it had been asked and if it had been given better information, we could have done more work.
Q. For example, did CSFB have the capability to conduct interviews with Sunbeam's customers in analyzing information provided to them about Sunbeam?
A. That's not something we normally do.
Q. If you had been asked to do that, is that a service that CSFB could have performed? Did you have the capability to perform it?
A. I don't think so. Well, let me say it this way. I don't think we're skilled in interviewing customers.

MR. PARADISE: Just for the record, when you ask about CSFB, obviously, it's a large organization. Are you focusing on the investment banking group with which Mr. Duffy was affiliated or --
MR. CLARE: I think that's an appropriate question.
Q. Do you understand CSFB, in any group or division of the bank, to have that type of capability?
A. The only people who might do that are the equity analysts sometimes interview customers of companies to get a sense of how the business is doing.
Q. Did CSFB, again, broadly defined, have the capability to conduct additional conversations with Sunbeam personnel --
A. Well --
MR. BRODY: Object to form. Go ahead.
MR. PARADISE: I'm not sure Mr. Clare finished his question.
THE WITNESS: Sorry.
MR. PARADISE: Let him finish.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

015902

Q. -- to understand more fully Sunbeam's business --
A. Well --
Q. -- if you had been asked to do so?
A. Yeah, but I don't think you can -- well, I guess -- let me answer -- let me add something or answer something first.
When you said CSFB broadly, but CSFB broadly wasn't hired here. It was CSFB, the investment bank. So, we weren't in a position to ask our equity analysts to go do customer surveys or whatever, corporate banking or credit group we had, restructuring group we had. That wasn't a service that was available to us.
Q. Did CSFB, the investment bank that was hired for this engagement, have the financial sophistication to conduct a more in-depth examination of Sunbeam's business than it did, if it had been asked to do so?
A. If it had been asked to do a better credit analysis and had been given access to adequate information, we could have done more analysis.
Q. Mr. Brody asked you some questions about Morgan Stanley Exhibit 112, the presentation to the board.

A. Yes.
Q. And, in particular, he asked you some questions about the stock chart.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. And the text boxes?
A. Yes.
Q. There's a source identified on page 5 of that stock chart.
A. Yes.
Q. Could you read that, please, into the record?
A. FactSet.
Q. What is that?
A. That is the source of the information for the line there, which is the share price. It's not the source of the information for the words.
Q. Did you or others at CSFB copy the information from Morgan Stanley's presentation into your own presentation?
A. It looks that way.
Q. Do you recall having done that?

A. I don't recall, but we very well could have.
Q. Did you recall having examined public records in connection with events that were underway at Sunbeam in connection with your due diligence?
A. Yes.
Q. And the events that are listed here in the Fact boxes are events that were also described in public filings; isn't that correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. Some of them are. Maybe they all would be. I can't say specifically, but they look like they would be.
Q. Available in public documents?
A. Yeah.
MR. CLARE: Okay. I don't have any other questions.
THE WITNESS: Terrific.
MR. BRODY: Nor do I. Thank you very much.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Okay. The time now is 6:06, and this concludes the deposition. And we are off the record.

(Discussion off the record.)
MR. PARADISE: Just, the witness would like to read and sign his transcript, please.

Non-Cash Transaction:

In connection with a warehouse expansion, the Company entered into a $5.8 million capital lease obligation in 1996.

3. RESTRUCTURING

During the fourth quarter of 1996, the Company initiated a restructuring and growth plan. As a result, the Company recorded a pre-tax special charge to earnings of approximately $337.6 million in the fourth quarter of 1996 of which approximately 28% was for cash items.

During the nine months ended September 28, 1997, the restructuring accrual was reduced by $43.7 million as a result of cash and non-cash charges. The following table sets forth the details and the cumulative activity in the restructuring accrual as of September 28, 1997 (in millions):

	ACCRUAL BALANCE AT DECEMBER 29, 1996	CASH REDUCTIONS	NON-CASH REDUCTIONS	ACCRUAL BALANCE AT SEPTEMBER 28, 1997
Severance and other employee costs	$ 36.9	$ (15.9)	$ (5.5)	$ 15.5
Closure and consolidation of facilities and related exit costs	26.9	(20.6)	(1.7)	4.6
Total	$ 63.8	$ (36.5)	$ (7.2)	$ 20.1

4. DISCONTINUED OPERATIONS AND OTHER ASSETS HELD FOR SALE

In March 1997, the Company completed the sale of its furniture business (by a sale of assets) to a subsidiary of U.S. Industries, Inc. The Company initially recorded a provision for estimated losses to be incurred on the sale of the furniture business of $32.4 million, net of applicable income tax benefits, for the fiscal year ended December 29, 1996. During the first quarter of 1997, upon the completion of the sale, the Company provided for additional losses on disposal of the furniture business in the amount of $13.7 million, net of applicable income tax benefits as a result of lower than anticipated sales proceeds.

In March 1997, the Company completed the sale of its time and temperature product line and in May 1997, the Company completed the sale of its Biddeford, Maine textile facility to an employee led investment group.

5. CREDIT FACILITIES AND LONG-TERM DEBT

In July 1997, the Company reduced the amount of available borrowings under its September 1996 unsecured five year revolving credit facility from $588 million to $250 million. At September 28, 1997, the Company had $115 million of borrowings outstanding under the revolving credit facility. During 1997, the Company also repaid $11.9 million of other long-term borrowings related to the divested furniture operations and other assets sold.

6. EARNINGS PER SHARE

During the first quarter of 1997, the Financial Accounting Standards Board issued Statement of Financial Accounting Standard ("SFAS") No. 128, "Earnings Per Share", which supersedes Accounting Principles Board Opinion No. 15, "Earnings Per Share". SFAS No. 128 is effective for financial statements for both interim and annual periods after December 15, 1997. ITEM 2. MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

The following discussion should be read in conjunction with the accompanying condensed consolidated financial statements for the three and nine months ended September 29, 1996 and September 28, 1997 and the 1996 Form 10-K.

RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

The table below sets forth selected operating data of the Company for the three and nine months ended September 29, 1996 and September 28, 1997:

	THREE MONTHS ENDED		NINE MONTHS ENDED
	SEPTEMBER 29, 1996	SEPTEMBER 28, 1997	SEPTEMBER 29, 1996	SEPTEMBER 28, 1997
Net sales	100.0%	100.0%	100.0%	100.0%
Cost of goods sold	87.6	69.3	82.7	72.2
Gross margin	12.4	30.7	17.3	27.8
Selling, general and administrative expense	21.3	11.7	15.8	11.8
Operating earnings (loss)	(8.9)%	19.0%	8.5%	15.8%

Net sales from continuing operations for the three and nine months ended September 28, 1997, were $289.8 million and $838.1 million, respectively, an increase of $57.3 million (24.7%) and an increase of $114.7 million (15.8%) over the comparable periods in the prior year. Net sales on a normalized basis, after excluding divested product lines which are not classified as discontinued operations (time and temperature products, decorative bedding and Counselor/registered trademark/ & Borg/registered trademark/ branded scales), increased 28.3% and 19.4% for the three and nine months ended September 28, 1997, respectively.

Global sales, on a normalized basis, increased during the third quarter and nine months ended September 28, 1997 in all five of the Company's product categories (Appliances, Health Care, Personal Care and Comfort, Outdoor Cooking, and Away From Home) primarily from new product introductions, improved distribution (particularly with the Company's top ten customers), international geographic expansion and improved price realization for certain products. Global sales growth on a normalized basis exceeded 30% during the third quarter of 1997 in the Appliance and Personal Care and Comfort categories and sales grew over 20% in the Outdoor Cooking category. Sales for the third quarter of 1997 in the Health at Home and Away From Home categories increased 13% and 2%, respectively. For the nine months ended September 28, 1997, sales growth in excess of 20% on a normalized basis was experienced in the Appliances (24%), Personal Care and Comfort (31%) and Away From Home (22%) product categories while sales for Outdoor Cooking and Health at Home products increased 18% and 6%, respectively. Also contributing to the Company's sales growth in 1997 were its new retail outlet stores, of which 18 were open by September 1997. International sales on a normalized basis grew over 51% during the third quarter and 31% for the nine months ended September 28, 1997, driven primarily by 58 new 220 volt product introductions and the execution of 28 new international distribution and license agreements during the past nine months. Domestic sales on a normalized basis increased 24% during the third quarter and 17% for the nine months ended September 28, 1997, primarily from new product introductions and the improved distribution with the Company's top customers discussed above.

The gross margin percentage for the third quarter of 1997 increased 18.3 percentage points, to 30.7%, while the gross margin percentage for the first nine months of 1997 increased 10.5 percentage points to 27.8%. These increases reflect the results of many cost savings and margin enhancement initiatives undertaken as part of the Company's restructuring plan announced in November 1996 coupled with the incremental margin attributable to new products and higher revenues associated with the Company's growth plan. The Company's cost reduction initiatives included reducing the number of manufacturing facilities from 26 to 9 currently (with one additional manufacturing facility scheduled to be closed later in 1997).

In addition, the Company has taken other actions to enhance margins, including the elimination of low margin and/or unprofitable products/stock keeping units (SKU'S) and the consolidation of the Company's purchasing activities and re-negotiation of supply contracts resulting in procurement savings for raw materials and products. The third quarter 1997 gross margin was also positively impacted by improved product mix, including fewer sales of lower margin Outdoor Cooking Products compared to the first half of 1997.

The Company has essentially completed its restructuring plan and initiated a refinement program in the second quarter of 1997 targeted at aggressively improving factory productivity at all of its remaining operations, including the Neosho, Missouri Outdoor Cooking Products facility which suffered from poor productivity and operating inefficiencies during the 1997 grill season. The benefits of the refinement program began to favorably impact productivity in several factories during the third quarter of 1997. The refinement of the Neosho facility, which will be completed prior to the initiation of production for the 1998 grill season, includes a re-layout to improve material flow, increased usage of common parts in the manufacturing process and modifications to the paint system to increase capacity and throughput. These initiatives coupled with the re-negotiation of customer contracts for the 1998 grill season are expected to improve Outdoor Cooking gross margins in 1998.

Operating earnings for the quarter ended September 28, 1997 increased $75.6 million over the prior year to $54.9 million. For the nine months ended September 28, 1997, operating earnings were $132.6 million, an increase of $128.6 million over the comparable prior year period. As a percentage of sales, the operating margin of 19.0% increased 27.9 percentage points above last year's third quarter. For the nine month period of 1997, the operating margin was 16.0%, an increase of 15.5 percentage points over the comparable prior year period. The operating margin improvements for 1997 were the result of the improved gross margin discussed above and lower selling, general and administrative ("SG&A") costs in 1997 associated with the consolidation of six divisional and regional headquarters into one, reduced staffing levels, the outsourcing of certain back-office functions and a reduction in the number of warehouses. In addition, SG&A during the third quarter of 1998 included compensation costs of $7.4 million associated with restricted stock awards and other costs related to the employment of a new senior management team and bad debt expense of $3.2 million associated with the bankruptcy filings of certain of the Company's retail customers and the third quarter and nine months of 1997 included higher media advertising spending. The cost reduction initiatives and one time items in 1998 coupled with increased sales in 1997 resulted in SG&A decreasing as a percentage of sales from 21.3% and 16.8% for the three month and nine month periods ended September 28, 1998 to 11.7% and 11.9% for the comparable periods of 1997, respectively.

Interest expense and other, net decreased for the three and nine months ended September 28, 1997 by $2.9 million and $7.0 million, respectively, primarily as a result of lower borrowing levels in 1997 and higher foreign exchange losses in 1998 associated with a Venezuelan currency devaluation.

The overall effective income tax rate (related to both earnings from continuing and discontinued operations) for the nine months ended September 28, 1997 was 35.7%, a 1.3 percentage point decrease from the overall prior year effective tax rate. This decrease reflects lower foreign taxes from the utilization of foreign tax credits and loss carryforwards and lower state income taxes.

For the three months ended September 28, 1997, the Company's earnings from continuing operations were $34.6 million, an increase of $50.4 million over a loss from continuing operations of $15.8 million in 1998. For the nine months ended September 28, 1997 earnings from continuing operations increased $87.8 million to $81.4 million. Earnings per share from continuing operations for the third quarter of 1997 of $.39 per share was $.58 per share better than the loss of $.19 per share reported during the third quarter of 1998. On a year to date basis, earnings per share from continuing operations of $.93 per share was $1.01 greater than the $.08 loss per share reported in the first nine months of 1996. The Company's share base utilized in the earnings per share calculation increased approximately 5% for both the three and nine month periods ended September 28, 1997 as a result of an increase in the number of shares of common stock and common stock equivalents outstanding due to exercises and grants of stock options and a higher market value of the Company's common stock in 1997.

The Company's discontinued furniture operations, which were sold in March 1997, reflect a net loss of $13.7 million in 1997 on revenues of $51.6 million. In 1996, the discontinued furniture operations experienced a net loss of $2.3 million for the third quarter and net income of $12.8 million for the nine months ended September 29, 1996, on revenues of $13.1 million and $215.3 million for the three and nine months periods, respectively. During the first quarter of 1997, upon completion of the sale of the furniture business, the Company provided for additional losses on the disposal in the amount of $13.7 million, net of applicable tax benefits, as a result of lower than anticipated sales proceeds. Including the operating results of the discontinued furniture business and the additional loss provision on the disposal recorded in the first quarter of 1997, the Company's net earnings for the nine months ended September 28, 1997 were $67.7 million, an increase of $61.2 million from the net earnings of $6.5 million in the first nine months of 1996.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

At September 28, 1997, the Company had cash and cash equivalents of $22.8 million and total debt of $200.5 million. Cash used in operating activities for the nine months ended September 28, 1997 was $60.6 million compared to $18.8 million for the comparable period of 1996. This decrease is primarily attributable to an increase in earnings before non-cash charges in 1997, offset by higher accounts receivable due to increased sales in 1997, increased 1997 inventory levels necessary to support anticipated fourth quarter sales growth and cash expenditures in 1997 under the Company's restructuring plan. In addition, cash used in operating activities in 1997 was favorably impacted by higher income tax refunds due to the carryback of 1996 operating losses to obtain refunds of prior year tax payments.

Capital spending totaled $40.1 million for the first nine months of 1997 and was primarily for new products, cost reduction and capacity expansion initiatives. Cash provided by investing activities reflects $90.9 million in proceeds from sales of businesses, assets, and product categories determined to be non-core to the Company's ongoing operations in conjunction with the 1996 restructuring plan. Cash provided by financing activities totaled $21.3 million in 1997 and reflects $10.0 million of borrowings under the Company's revolving credit facility, $11.9 million of debt repayments related to the divested furniture operations and other assets sold, and $25.5 million in cash proceeds from the exercise of stock options in 1997, substantially all by former employees of the Company. In 1996, cash provided by financing activities of $70.1 million was primarily from increased borrowings to support working capital and capital spending requirements. In July 1997, the Company reduced the amount of available borrowings under its September 1996 unsecured five year revolving credit facility from $500 million to $250 million.

The Company believes that its cash flow from operations, existing cash and cash equivalent balances as well as its revolving credit facility will be sufficient to finance its requirements to support working capital needs, capital expenditures, restructuring expenditures and debt service in the foreseeable future.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELASE:

SUNBEAM WILL EXCEED NEW PRODUCTS
GOAL FOR 1997

DELRAY BEACH, FLORIDA OCTOBER 13, 1997 - Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE: SOC) announced today that it will exceed its original goal for new product introductions in 1997. "We originally set out to introduce 42 new international products and 30 new U.S. products as a means to rapidly expand our international breadth of product lines and to provide product differentiation within the U.S. product lines", said Al Dunlap, Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. Mr. Dunlap continued, "As a result of our accelerated product development cycle and our ability to rapidly commercialize U.S. products for international use, we now expect to introduce 54 new international products and 35 new U.S. products in 1997."

Mr. Dunlap said, "Our new product development process focuses on fixing chronic consumer complaints and incorporates a tremendous amount of design concurrency to aid in accelerating products to market. Additionally, all of our U.S. new products are now designed for the global market and for ease of manufacturing." The Company expects new products will contribute over $100 million in additional revenue in 1997.

Last week in New York City, the Company unveiled two new highly differentiated products, the Allergysmart/tm/ air purification and the Freshsource/tm/ water purification products. Mr. Dunlap said, "These two new products represent the very best of the "new" Sunbeam. We were able to bring these products to market in eight months, from ideation to production, and they both solve the most significant consumer complaints associated with current products in the marketplace." Additionally, Mr. Dunlap discussed an arepa maker which was introduced in Venezuela during the third quarter, "Arepa's are a food staple in many parts of South and Central America, and we redesigned and modified our current sandwich maker to dramatically reduce the amount of time needed to prepare an arepa. Due to its success, we plan on introducing the arepa maker in North America in 1998 to take advantage of ethnic food trends throughout the United States."

Sunbeam Corporation is a leading consumer products company that designs, manufactures and markets, nationally and internationally, a diverse portfolio of brand name products. The Company's Sunbeam/r/ and Oster/r/ brands have been household names for generations, both domestically and abroad, and the Company is a market leader in many of its product categories.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

SUNBEAM ANNOUNCES SALES UP NEARLY 30%,
EPS OF $0.39 EXCEEDS CONSENSUS EXPECTATIONS

DELRAY BEACH, FLORIDA OCTOBER 22, 1997 - Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE:SOC) announced today its third quarter 1997 results. Sales for the quarter were $289.0 million, reflecting a 28.3% increase over the prior year period on a comparable basis (excluding discontinued businesses and divested product lines). Earnings per share from continuing operations of $0.39 were $0.58 ahead of the loss of $0.19 reported in the third quarter of 1996. On a year to date basis, revenue of $830.1 million was 19.4% above 1996, on a comparable basis, and earnings per share from continuing operations of $0.93 was $1.01 above the loss of $0.08 reported in 1996.

In making the announcement, Al Dunlap, Sunbeam's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, said, "I am very pleased that the rate of revenue growth has continued to accelerate, concurrent with a dramatic expansion of operating margins. Our commitment to reposition the Sunbeam(R) and Oster(R) brands, introduce new innovative products, expand our international presence, improve customer service levels and dramatically refine all operations has enabled the Company to significantly expand operating margins to 19% during the third quarter." Mr. Dunlap added, "In the past 15 months we have been able to turn around a great old company that had lost its way, reposition it for tremendous profitable growth and build a great management team that is focused on increasing shareholder value."

Mr. Dunlap attributed the impressive third quarter sales results to strong increases in all five of the Company's global business categories. International sales were up 50.8% for the quarter, driven primarily by 50 new product introductions and the signing of 20 new international distribution and license agreements during the past twelve months. Domestic sales growth of 23.7% was attributable to improved distribution and new product introductions. "Sales to our top ten domestic customers were up over 30% in the third quarter, reflecting our strategic initiative to significantly improve shipping performance and fill out of stocks at retail," Mr. Dunlap said.

"The Company successfully began shipping 10 new U.S. products in the third quarter led by our highly differentiated softserve ice-cream maker, the redesigned Oster(R) blender and our entry into the deep fryer product line. We now believe we will introduce 35 new U.S. products and 54 new international products in 1997, well surpassing our original goal," said Mr. Dunlap. Included in the 35 new U.S. products are the Freshsource(TM) water filter and Allergysmart(TM) air cleaner products which the Company unveiled on October 8, 1997 and which will begin shipping during the fourth quarter.

On a reported basis, Sunbeam's sales for the third quarter and first nine months of 1997 were up 24.7% and 16.0%, respectively because of accounting rules which require that certain divested businesses (time & temperature products, decorative bedding and Counselor(R) & Borg(R) branded scales) not be classified as discontinued operations.

Mr. Dunlap added, "This is the first time in the Company's history that it has consistently achieved double digit sales growth, each quarter, without an acquisition."

Sunbeam Corporation is a leading consumer products company that designs, manufactures and markets, nationally and internationally, a diverse portfolio of brand name products. The Company's Sunbeam(R) and Oster(R) brands have been household names for generations, both domestically and abroad, and the Company is a market leader in many of its product categories.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

SUNBEAM CORPORATION RETAINS MORGAN STANLEY TO EXPLORE ALTERNATIVES

Delray Beach, FL, (October 23, 1997) -- Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE:SOC) announced today that it has retained the firm of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated to serve as its financial advisor in exploring strategic alternatives for the Company.

Albert J. Dunlap, Sunbeam's Chairman, stated: "I have always been a strong proponent of maximizing shareholder value at Sunbeam, as well as at the other companies which I have headed. Yesterday we released third quarter earnings which reflect solid achievement in the fifteen months since our new management team began the task of turning around the Company. Having successfully completed the turnaround of Sunbeam and being well on our way to dramatically growing the business, we feel that the timing now is right to look towards achieving the next level of value for our shareholders. As I have said on numerous occasions, we will pursue whatever course serves best to enhance shareholder value, including acquisitions, mergers or possibly a sale of the Company. We have been approached by a number of investment bankers with suggestions as to various courses of action which we should consider pursuing. Our Board felt that it was time to really focus our efforts by formally engaging a single investment banking advisor. We have worked over the years with all the major investment bankers, and we felt that for this particular assignment, Morgan Stanley would do the best job for Sunbeam and its shareholders. We are also pleased to be working with the Llama Company and its President, Alice Walton, as an advisor to Morgan Stanley, in exploring all opportunities available to Sunbeam."

Mr. Dunlap added: "We are doing what any similarly situated company should do, which is to explore all alternatives for the benefit of our shareholders. I wish to stress that we are actively pursuing all alternatives and are open to any and all types of transactions. There is, of course, no assurance as to the particular type of transaction that could occur or that any transaction will occur at all."

PART I

ITEM 1. BUSINESS

GENERAL

Sunbeam Corporation (collectively with its subsidiaries, the "Company" or "Sunbeam") is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Company's primary business is the manufacture, marketing and distribution of durable household consumer goods through mass market and other distributors in the United States and internationally. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions (the "Away From Home" category of the business).

The Company's product categories are: (1) Appliances (mixers, blenders, food steamers, bread makers, rice cookers, coffee makers, toasters, irons and garment steamers) (2) Health Care (vaporizers, humidifiers, air cleaners, massagers, hot and cold packs, blood pressure monitors and scales) (3) Personal Care and Comfort (shower massagers, hair clipper and trimmers, electric warming blankets and throws) (4) Outdoor Cooking (electric, gas and charcoal grills and grill accessories) and (5) Away From Home (clippers and related products for the professional and veterinarian trade and sales of products to commercial and institutional channels). The International Group is responsible for sales (primarily of small appliances, personal care and comfort products, professional clippers and related products and grills) in all countries other than the United States.

Sunbeam products enjoy a long-standing reputation for quality, and a majority of the Company's sales are from products which hold the number one or two market share in their respective product categories.

The Company was organized in 1989 (as Sunbeam-Oster Company, Inc.) and in September 1990, Sunbeam acquired the assets and assumed certain liabilities, through a reorganization, of Allegheny International, Inc. (the "Predecessor"), an entity operating as a debtor-in-possession under Chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code since 1988. In August 1992, the Company completed a public offering of 20,000,000 shares of its common stock. In May 1995, the Company changed its name from Sunbeam-Oster Company, Inc. to Sunbeam Corporation.

RESTRUCTURING AND GROWTH PLAN

In the Fall of 1996, under newly elected Chairman, Albert J. Dunlap, the Company announced a major restructuring and growth plan. The restructuring portion of the plan has been substantially completed, resulting in a significant reduction in employees, facilities and costs, all of which is anticipated to generate approximately $225 million in annual savings for the Company. As a part of the restructuring plan, the Company also announced that it would divest certain lines of business. The Company has completed the sales of its furniture, time and temperature and decorative bedding businesses and anticipates the completion of the divestiture of its textile mill in Biddeford, Maine and its Counselor/Registered trademark/ and Borg/Registered trademark/ scale business in the first half of 1997.

The Company's restructuring plan includes the closure of 18 factories and 6 office facilities, resulting in the consolidation of all corporate offices into a single headquarters office located in Delray Beach, Florida and an administrative facility at its Hattiesburg manufacturing and distribution facility. The number of manufacturing facilities will be reduced from twenty-six to eight (four in the US and four international). See "Properties" below.

The Company has also consolidated all purchasing functions, substantially reduced the number of stock keeping units maintained by the Company and outsourced certain back-office administrative activities.

The Company has also developed a comprehensive three year growth plan for its core businesses. Sunbeam's goal is for revenues to double, reaching $2 billion, by 1999, with operating margins improving to 20% of sales. This revenue growth is anticipated to be derived, in large part, by the development of new innovative products and the globalization of the Company. Domestically, the goal is to introduce at least 30 new products each year. On the international side, the Company has a goal to triple international sales to $600 million by 1999. The Company expects to sign fifteen new international distributor and licensing agreements by April 1997 and many more throughout the remainder of the year. The Company has already launched 42 new 220 volt products for international markets. The Company has also identified new channels of distribution as sales growth opportunities, including commercial organizations and "direct to the consumer" channels such as catalogs, the Internet and Sunbeam/Registered trademark/ factory outlet stores.

Both international expansion and new product introductions will be supported by a significant investment in a major new advertising program that is geared to rebuilding SUNBEAM/Registered trademark/ and OSTER/Registered trademark/ brand awareness in the marketplace. The Company is well on its way to accomplishing its brand repositioning strategy, in large part due to a $12.0 million advertising campaign in the fourth quarter of 1996 which has already increased Sunbeam's brand relevance with consumers by 25%, as tabulated by a leading independent market research organization.

PRODUCTS

In connection with the Company's 1996 restructuring, the Company redefined its core product categories as specified below:

APPLIANCES

Small kitchen appliances including Mixmaster/Registered trademark/ stand mixers, hand mixers, Osterizer/Registered trademark/ blenders, food processors, toasters, can openers, coffee makers, breadmakers, waffle makers, and culinary accessories, are sold primarily under the Sunbeam/Registered trademark/, Oster/Registered trademark/ and Oster Designer/Registered trademark/ brand names. The Company holds the number one or two market positions in blenders, mixers, and breadmakers. This product category also encompasses garment care appliances consisting of irons and steamers. Sales of appliances accounted for approximately 29% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1996.

HEALTH CARE

The Company markets its home health products under the trademark Health at Home/Registered trademark/. These products include heating pads, bath scales, blood pressure and other health-monitoring instruments, massagers, vaporizers, humidifiers and dental care products. Sales of health care products accounted for approximately 11% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1996.

PERSONAL CARE AND COMFORT

The Company's personal care products include shower massagers, consumer hair clippers and trimmers and a broad line of electric blankets, comforters and Cuddle-Up/Registered trademark/ heated throws. The Company holds the number one market position in electric blankets and heated throws. Sales of personal care and comfort products accounted for approximately 21% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1996.

OUTDOOR COOKING

Sunbeam is a leading supplier of outdoor barbecue grills. Sunbeam has the leading market share position in the gas grill industry. Barbecue grills consist of propane, natural gas, electric and charcoal models sold primarily under the Sunbeam/Registered trademark/ and Grillmaster/Registered trademark/ brand names. Sales of outdoor cooking products accounted for approximately 29% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1996.

AWAY FROM HOME

The Company markets a line of professional barber and beauty equipment, including electric and battery clippers, replacement blades and other grooming accessories sold to both conventional retailers and through professional distributors. In addition, the Company is expanding the marketing of its appliances and personal care and comfort products to institutional and commercial channels. Sales of away from home products described above accounted for approximately 5% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1996.

INTERNATIONAL

The Company markets a variety of products (primarily small kitchen appliances, personal care and comfort products, professional clippers and related products and grills) outside the U.S. While the Company sells many of the same products domestically and internationally, it also sells products designed specifically to appeal to foreign markets. The Company, through its foreign subsidiaries, has a manufacturing facility in Venezuela, and sales offices in the United Kingdom and Hong Kong. The Company's international products are sourced from the Company's United States, Mexican or Venezuelan manufacturing operations or from vendors primarily located in Asia. International sales accounted for approximately 19% of the Company's total net sales in 1996.

To date, the Company's activities outside the United States have been primarily focused in Mexico, South and Central America and Canada. The Company enjoys a strong market position in a number of product categories in Latin America. The Oster- brand has the leading market share in small appliances in a number of Latin American countries.The Company intends to focus on expanding its business in South and Central America by introducing broader product offerings, achieving increased market penetration and expanding geographically into South American countries where the Company has historically not been represented by introducing new 220 volt products. The Company has introduced 42 such products in the last year and continues to develop such products at an increasing rate. The Company also intends to expand its product offerings in the Far East and Europe. The Company may choose to approach these markets directly through its own operations, by acquisition, or through international joint ventures or other types of strategic alliances. The Company has recently entered into new distribution or licensing arrangements providing for the distribution of Sunbeam and/or Oster goods into additional countries in South America, Africa and the Far East.

COMPETITIVE STRENGTHS

Worldwide, Sunbeam competes in markets with a number of well-established United States and foreign companies on the basis of various strengths, depending on the country, product category and distribution channels. The Company believes that it is well-positioned to pursue continued growth as a result of several competitive strengths, which include the following.

DISTRIBUTION NETWORK. The Company has one of the premier mass merchant distribution networks serving large national retailers in the United States. The Company also has a strong network of well-established distributors and service organizations in Latin America. The Company supports its customers needs with strong warehousing and distribution capabilities, a broad, high-quality product portfolio and electronic data interchange ("EDI") and just in time product delivery capabilities. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogues, Company-owned outlet stores, television shopping channels, hardware stores, home centers, drug and grocery stores, and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and military post exchange outlets.

STRONG POSITION IN CONSOLIDATING RETAIL ENVIRONMENT. The consolidation trend in the retail industry has resulted in the emergence and global expansion of large mass merchandisers that demand financially strong, efficient suppliers which offer a broad range of innovative, quality products with the ability to make timely shipments in large volumes and provide strong promotional and merchandising support. The Company has benefited from this trend and believes it has the opportunity to further expand distribution with a number of retailers and increase its penetration of existing accounts. In 1996, the Company sold products to virtually all of the top 100 U.S. retailers, including Wal-Mart, Target Stores, Kmart, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Service Merchandise, Home Depot, Lowes, Costco, Sam's Club, Walgreens, Eckerd and Bed Bath & Beyond.

BRAND NAME RECOGNITION. The Sunbeam/Registered trademark/ and Oster/Registered trademark/ brands have been household names for generations. The Company believes that these brands, along with its other well-known secondary names such as Mixmaster/Registered trademark/ and Osterizer/Registered trademark/ draw customers into retail stores specifically to purchase products bearing these brand names. During the past year, the Company has spent over $75 million for advertising and sales promotion to support brand recognition.

MARKET LEADERSHIP. The majority of Sunbeam sales are from products in which the Company holds the number one or two market share position. The Company believes that this combination of leading brand-name products and breadth of product offerings makes Sunbeam an attractive vendor to retailers who are consolidating their suppliers.

CUSTOMERS

The rapid growth of large mass merchandisers and warehouse clubs and changes in consumer shopping patterns have contributed to a significant consolidation of the U.S. retail industry and the formation of dominant multi-category retailers. Sunbeam has positioned itself to respond to the challenges of this changing retail environment by pursuing strategic relationships with large, high-volume merchandisers. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, hardware stores, catalogues, television shopping channels, home centers, drug and grocery stores, and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and the military post exchange services. The Company's largest customer, Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., accounted for approximately 13% of sales in 1996.

Retailers are pursuing a number of strategies in their competition to deliver the highest-quality, lowest-cost brand name products. A growing trend among retailers is to purchase on a "just-in-time" basis in order to reduce inventory costs and increase returns on investment. This trend has required increased working capital investments for manufacturers and requires manufacturers to more closely monitor consumer buying patterns as retailers shorten their lead times for orders. Currently, most Sunbeam products sold to U.S. retailers are manufactured at the Company's own facilities in North America. This enables the Company to provide rapid, reliable delivery in order to maximize customers' inventory turns. The Company intends to support its retail partners' "just-in-time" inventory strategies through investments in, among other things, improved forecasting systems, more responsive manufacturing and distribution capabilities and electronic communications. Currently, Sunbeam has approximately 75% of its U.S. customer sales on electronic data interchange (EDI) systems.

The amount of backlog orders at any point in time is not a significant factor in the Company's business.

PATENTS AND TRADEMARKS

Sunbeam believes that an integral part of its strength is its ability to capitalize on the Sunbeam/Registered trademark/ and Oster/Registered trademark/ trademarks which are registered in the United States and in numerous foreign countries. Widely recognized throughout North America, South and Central America and Europe, these registered trademarks, along with Osterizer/Registered trademark/, Mixmaster/Registered trademark/, Toast Logic/ Trademark/, Steammaster/Registered trademark/, Oskar/Registered trademark/, Grillmaster/Registered trademark/ and "Blanket with a Brain/ Trademark/" brands are important to the success of the Company's products. Other important trademarks within Sunbeam include Oster Designer /Registered trademark/ line and Cuddle-Up/Registered trademark/.

Sunbeam holds several patents covering a wide variety of products, the loss of any one of which would not have a material adverse effect on the Company's business taken as a whole.

EMPLOYEES

The Company currently has approximately 6,000 employees; as of December 29, 1996, the Company had approximately 9,000 employees. As a result of the Company's restructuring plan, employment was reduced from approximately 13,000 people to approximately 6,000 people. Other than at two facilities (both of which are expected to be sold or closed by fall of 1997), none of the Company's full-time workforce has domestic union representation. Sunbeam has had no labor-related work stoppages and, in the opinion of management, relations with its employees are generally good.

SEASONALITY

On a consolidated basis, Sunbeam sales do not exhibit substantial seasonality. However, sales of outdoor cooking products are strongest in the first half of the year, while sales of appliances and personal care and comfort products are strongest in the second half of the year. In addition, sales of a number of the Company's products, including warming blankets, vaporizers, humidifiers and grills may be impacted by weather conditions.

RAW MATERIALS

The raw materials used in the manufacture of the Company's products are available from numerous suppliers in quantities sufficient to meet normal requirements. The Company's primary raw materials include aluminum, steel, resin, copper, and corrugated cardboard for cartons.

ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations in addition to laws and regulations regarding labeling and packaging of products and the sale of products containing certain environmentally sensitive materials ("Environmental Laws"). The Company believes it is in substantial compliance with all

Environmental Laws which are applicable to its operations. Compliance with Environmental Laws involves certain continuing costs; however, such costs of ongoing compliance have not resulted, and are not anticipated to result, in a material increase in the Company's capital expenditures or to have a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial condition or competitive position.

In addition to ongoing environmental compliance at its operations, the Company also is actively engaged in certain environmental remediation activities relating primarily to divested operations. As of December 31, 1996, the Company had been identified by the United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven (7) sites subject to the federal Superfund law and two (2) sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant .

The Superfund Act, and related state environmental remediation laws, generally authorize governmental authorities to remediate a Superfund site and to assess the costs against the PRPs or to order the PRPs to remediate the site at their expense. Liability under the Superfund Law is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRPs at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRPs established with respect to such sites. The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at seven (7) sites, four (4) of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and three (3) of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law.

In addition, the Company is engaged in environmental remediation activities at 2 sites in Newburgh Heights, Ohio, where a subsidiary formerly conducted operations. The Company has been actively cooperating with the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission and state regulatory authorities in developing a plan for remediation of those sites. Remediation of one of the sites, the Harvard Avenue Site, is nearly complete. Active remediation is underway at the other site-the Bert Avenue Site and is anticipated to be completed in 1997.

The Company's costs for environmental remediation activities have not had a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial condition or competitive position. The Company has established reserves to cover the anticipated probable costs of remediation, based upon periodic reviews of all sites for which the Company has, or may have, remediation responsibility. As of December 29, 1996, the amount of such reserves was approximately five percent of the Company's total liabilities as set forth in the consolidated financial statements. Such environmental reserves do not consider offsets for potential insurance recoveries from certain of the Company's liability insurance carriers which the Company continues to pursue.

Due to uncertainty over the remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in the Environmental Laws, and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, the Company's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved as of December 31, 1996. However, the Company believes, based on existing information, that the costs of completing the environmental remediation of all sites for which the Company has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

In December 1996, the Company reached a negotiated settlement with the EPA with regard to a notice of violation concerning the construction and operation of two paint lines at the Company's Neosho, MO facility prior to obtaining the necessary permits for construction and operation. The original penalty proposed by the EPA was in the amount of approximately $2 million, but the Company and the EPA have negotiated a settlement of the EPA's lawsuit against the Company for a lesser amount. The settlement amount of $329,825 recognizes the benefits of a "supplemental environmental project" which consisted of the Company's installation of nominal emission powder coating lines to replace solvent paint lines. The Company is awaiting proposed settlement documentation from the EPA and anticipates formal resolution of this matter by the second quarter of 1997.

In December 1996, the Company paid a negotiated penalty to the EPA in the amount of $119,138 to settle violations arising from the Company's failure to file certain mandatory Form R reports for 1990 through 1994. The originally proposed penalties had been in the amount of $946,596, and the Company was able to negotiate a reduced penalty amount due to the fact that the EPA agreed to apply its self-policing/self-disclosure policy. The Company voluntarily notified the EPA of its deficiencies in filing the Form R reports promptly upon learning of the reporting deficiencies.

The Company is not a party to any other administrative or judicial proceeding to which a governmental authority is a party and which involves potential monetary sanctions, exclusive of interest and costs, of $100,000 or more.

CAUTIONARY STATEMENTS

Certain of the information contained herein (including Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations) contains "forward-looking" information, as that term is defined in the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, as the same may be amended (herein the "Act") and in releases made by the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") from time to time.

These Cautionary Statements are being made pursuant to the Act, with the intention of obtaining the benefits of the "Safe Harbor" provisions of the Act. The Company cautions investors that any forward-looking statements made by the Company are not guarantees of future performance and that actual results may differ materially from those in the forward-looking statements as a result of various factors.

/bullet/ The Company's performance should be expected to be affected by the strength of the retail economy, primarily in the United States, but also in Canada and Latin America. Weakness in consumer confidence and retail outlets (including the financial weakness or bankruptcy of retail outlets, especially mass merchants) should be expected to adversely impact the Company's future financial results.

/bullet/ The Company operates in a highly competitive environment with numerous competitors which are financially strong and capable of competing effectively with the Company in the marketplace. Such competitors may take actions to meet the Company's new product introductions and other initiatives. Some competitors may be willing to accept lower margins and to reduce prices to compete with the Company. As a result, the Company could fail to achieve anticipated sales increases, to realize anticipated price increases, or otherwise fail to meet its anticipated results. Any of such circumstances would likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ The Company manufactures most of its products, although it also sources some products from third parties. The Company's ability to realize operating profits is dependent upon its ability to timely manufacture, source and deliver products which may be sold for a profit. Labor difficulties, delays in delivery or pricing of raw materials and/or sourced products, scheduling and transportation difficulties, management dislocations and delays in development and manufacture of new products can negatively affect operating profits.

/bullet/ As a consumer goods distributor, the Company's results of operations can be negatively impacted by product liability lawsuits and/or by higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods.

/bullet/ The Company expects to substantially increase the amount of business conducted by it outside North America. If the Company fails to achieve anticipated market penetration in areas of the world into which the Company currently expects to expand its sales, such event is likely to have an adverse effect on the Company's future financial performance, which effect could be material. Expansion of the Company's sales in foreign markets depends upon many factors, including the states of economies in foreign countries, the strength of consumer demand in those countries for products which the Company sells (or expects to sell in those markets), the strength of competition from other global consumer products companies and other factors which may negatively affect the Company's anticipated performance in those markets.

/bullet/ The Company currently manufactures some products and has sales in such economies as those of Mexico and Venezuela, both of which economies have been unstable or hyperinflationary in recent years. The economies of other foreign countries important to the Company's expansion plans, including other countries in Latin America and developing countries throughout the world, could suffer similar instability in the future. Such factors as currency devaluations, new tariffs, changes in monetary policies, inflation, governmental instability and similar matters could negatively affect the Company's anticipated performance in foreign markets. The occurrence of any of these circumstances could have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ A significant portion of the cost of goods manufactured by the Company in North America is raw material cost. The Company has implemented changes in its purchasing function which the Company anticipates will enable it to purchase raw materials more efficiently and economically than it has in the past. The success of the Company's purchasing initiatives may be affected by many factors beyond the Company's control, such as commodity pricing generally and higher prices for the specific raw materials required by the Company. In addition, the Company's initiatives to reduce the cost of raw materials simply may not achieve savings in amounts which the Company anticipates. A material failure by the Company to achieve the anticipated reductions in raw material costs would likely have an adverse effect on anticipated future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ The Company anticipates realizing price increases for certain of its products. The Company operates in a highly competitive industry, and its ability to realize price increases may be limited due to competitive pressures. If there is a material failure to realize anticipated price increases, margins likely will be lower than anticipated by the Company, and this will likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ The Company anticipates that it will be able to more rapidly develop and introduce a substantial number of new and innovative products in the future. However, the Company may prove unable to meet its more aggressive schedules for future product development. Failure to develop and manufacture new products in the amounts and with the quality anticipated or a failure to reduce the cycle time for new product introductions would likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

/bullet/ Sales of certain of the Company's products can be negatively impacted by abnormal weather conditions during different seasons and quarters of the year.

/bullet/ The Company has entered into various arrangements with third parties for the provision of back-office administrative services previously provided with internal resources, including provision of all necessary computer systems. Failure of any of these third party service providers to perform in accordance with their respective agreements with the Company could result in disruptions of the Company's normal business operations with a consequent impact on sales, collections, cash flow and/or profitability.

/bullet/ The Company's profitability may be negatively impacted by underabsorption of manufacturing costs resulting from underutilization of manufacturing capacity if the Company's sales growth is less than anticipated.

/bullet/ The Company's ability to realize the cost savings anticipated from the restructuring plan will be affected by, among other items, the Company's ability to complete facility rationalization initiatives in a timely manner without negatively impacting production during such transition.

ITEM 7. MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATION

YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 29, 1996 COMPARED TO THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1995

On November 12, 1996 the Company announced a major restructuring and growth plan designed to massively reduce its cost structure and grow the business in order to restore higher levels of profitability for the Company. The cost reduction portion of the restructuring and growth plan is expected to result in anticipated annual savings estimated to be $225.0 million with 75% realization of these savings in 1997 and the remaining 25% in 1998. These cost savings will result primarily from the consolidation of administrative functions within the Company, the rationalization of manufacturing and warehouse facilities (including the reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and warehouses utilized from 61 to 19), the elimination of over 6,000 positions (including 3,300 from the divestiture of non-core businesses described below and the elimination of approximately 2,800 other positions), the centralization of the Company's procurement function and the reduction of the Company's product offerings and stock keeping units ("SKU's"). The restructuring and growth plan also included a redefinition of the Company's core product categories and the elimination of those businesses and product lines that do not fit the core categories. Sunbeam's new core product categories are Appliances, Health Care, Personal Care and Comfort, Outdoor Cooking and Away From Home. Product categories and businesses which were determined to be non-core and have already been divested include the Company's furniture business and time and the temperature product line, both of which were sold in March 1997, and its decorative bedding product line, sold in December 1996. The remaining non-core product categories, which are planned for divestiture in the first half of 1997, are Counselor/Registered trademark/ and Borg/Registered trademark/ scales and the Company's textile mill in Biddeford, Maine.

The Company's operating results for 1996 include the effects of a pre-tax special charge of $337.6 million recorded in conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan. Approximately 20% of the charge is for cash items of which $63.8 million is accrued at December 29, 1996, primarily for severance costs and lease and other facility exit costs that will be substantially expended during 1997. The special charge to earnings is included in the following categories on the consolidated statement of operations (in millions):

	PRE-TAX DOLLAR AMOUNT	AFTER-TAX PER SHARE AMOUNT
Restructuring, impairment and other costs	$154.9	$ (1.21)
Cost of sales	92.3	(0.72)
Selling, general and administrative	42.5	(0.33)
Estimated loss from discontinued operations	47.9	(0.39)
Total	$337.6	$ (2.65)

As further described in Note 3, the sale of the Company's furniture business assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment) was completed on March 17, 1997. The Company received $62.1 million in cash at closing and expects to receive approximately $10.0 million by June 30, 1997. The Company retained accounts receivable related to the furniture business of approximately $50.0 million as of the closing date. The final purchase price for the furniture business is subject to post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement. The Company will finalize its accounting for the loss on disposal of the furniture business in the first quarter of 1997 and could record an additional after-tax loss from discontinued operations. See discussion of Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in Note 2 and Discontinued Operations and Assets Held For Sale in Note 3 to the Company's consolidated financial statements for further information regarding the individual components of the special charge.

Net sales from continuing operations of $984.2 million for 1996 represents a decrease of $32.7 million, or 3.2%, from 1995. The Company experienced a loss from continuing operations of $196.7 million or $2.37 per share for 1996 versus earnings from continuing operations of $37.6 million or $.45 per share in 1995 primarily as a result of the restructuring activities discussed above. The net loss for 1996 was $228.3 million, or $2.75 per share, compared to net earnings of $50.5 million, or $0.61 per share, for 1995. Excluding the impact of special charge items for 1996, earnings from continuing operations before income taxes decreased from $60.6 million in 1995 to a loss of $12.9 million in 1996.

Domestic sales represented approximately 80% of total sales of the Company in 1996 and decreased $28.5 million or 3.4% from 1995. This sales decline was driven by lower sales of outdoor cooking products, which declined 7.3% and lower sales of bedding products which declined 9.0% from 1995, primarily as result of lower decorative bedding sales (divested in December 1996). Domestic sales of appliance products were flat with sales increases from new products such as vegetable steamers and toaster ovens being offset by reduced pricing on breadmakers. Sales of other product categories such as health and personal care products and time and temperature products (divested in March 1997) were either flat or declined slightly from 1995 levels.

International sales decreased $4.2 million or 2.2% from 1995 primarily as a result of lower sales in Latin America due to political and/or economic instability in several countries such as Ecuador, Peru, Columbia and Venezuela (which suffered a bolivar devaluation in April 1996), a sales decline of 11.2% in Canada as a result of the bankruptcy filing of the Company's then largest Canadian customer offset by a 55.0% increase in sales in Mexico as a result of a more stable economic environment in 1996.

The Company's gross margin percentage, excluding the impact of special charges, was 17.9% of sales in 1996, down from 20.4% in 1995, primarily from the underabsorption of higher manufacturing costs and excess manufacturing capacity that has now been realigned for 1997 and beyond by the Company's restructuring and growth plan cost reduction initiatives.

Selling, general and administrative ("SG&A") expenses, excluding the impact of special charges described above, were 17.6% of sales in 1996 primarily as a result of an inflated cost structure that has now been realigned for 1997 and beyond. In addition, a $12.0 million fourth quarter 1997 media advertising campaign and one-time expenditures for market research, new packaging, and other growth plan initiatives resulted in higher than normal SG&A spending in 1996. Also included in 1995 SG&A costs were $7.7 million of compensation expense resulting from restricted stock awards made in connection with the employment of a new senior management team.

Interest expense for 1996 increased from $9.4 million in 1995 to $13.6 million as a result of increased indebtedness of the Company for working capital requirements and non-recurring capitalized interest in 1995 related to the construction of the Hattiesburg manufacturing and distribution center.

The effective income tax rate for 1996 decreased 3 percentage points from 1995 to 35.0% as a result of certain foreign and state operating losses for which no tax benefits were recorded and the non-deductibility of compensation expense related to restricted stock awards.

The Company's discontinued furniture operations had revenues of $227.5 million in 1996, up 22.6% from $185.6 million in 1995. This revenue growth was the result of the acquisition of the Samsonite/Registered trademark/ furniture business in November 1995. Excluding the impact of this acquisition, furniture business sales declined 2.1%. Earnings from the discontinued furniture operations, net of taxes, declined from $12.9 million in 1995 to $.9 million in 1996 primarily as a result of lower gross margins from reduced pricing, underabsorption of higher manufacturing costs and higher raw material costs. In addition, SG&A costs increased due to the inclusion of the Samsonite- furniture business, higher distribution and warehousing costs, particularly with resin furniture products, and higher bad debt expenses.

Net sales from continuing operations of $1,016.9 million for 1995 decreased $27.4 million, or 2.6%, from 1994. Earnings from continuing operations were $37.6 million or $.45 per share in 1995 compared to $85.3 million in 1994 or $1.03 per share.

Domestic sales represented approximately 82% of total Company sales for 1995 and decreased $23.4 million or 2.7% below 1994 levels due to an 8.6% decline in sales of outdoor cooking products offset by a 5.4% increase in appliance sales from new product introductions in late 1994 and 1995 and an 11.5% increase in sales of warming blankets and heated throws. Sales of other product categories, including health and personal care products, and time and temperature products (divested in March 1997), declined 6.1% in 1995.

International sales decreased by $4.0 million or 2.1% below 1994 levels primarily as a result of a 53.8% decrease in sales in Mexico as a result of the peso devaluation in late 1994 and the 1995 recession offset by increased sales from expanded distribution in South and Central America, higher sales in Venezuela resulting from consumer anticipation of the devaluation of the bolivar and higher gas grill sales in Europe.

For 1995, the gross margin percentage decreased from 26.8% to 20.4%. The decline in margin was due primarily to (1) manufacturing inefficiencies arising from lower than planned production rates, (2) increased promotional expenses, (3) certain inventory writedowns, primarily related to outdoor products unsold from the 1995 season, (4) increased appliance warranty expenses, (5) increases in raw material prices not fully recovered by selling price increases and (6) a higher level of close-out sales of household products in connection with the transition to the Hattiesburg facility and in anticipation of new product launches planned for 1996.

Operating earnings for 1995 were $70.2 million, a decrease of $80.8 million from 1994. As a percentage of sales, operating earnings decreased 7.6 percentage points to 6.9% which is primarily attributable to the gross margin percentage decline. SG&A increased from 12.3% to 13.5% of net sales in 1995. SG&A in dollar terms increased $8.7 million in 1995 to $137.5 million primarily from (1) increased provisions for bad debts and customer deductions associated with the bankruptcy filings of certain of the Company's retail customers, (2) non-recurring costs associated with the start-up of the Hattiesburg distribution center (which caused the Company to incur additional costs for temporary distribution labor, overtime costs and costs of outside distribution services as well as delaying closure of a former warehouse), (3) costs associated with International expansion activities in the Far East and Europe, (4) increased depreciation expense related to investments in information systems and the Hattiesburg distribution center and (5) increased investments in product design engineering resources.

Interest expense for the year ended December 31, 1995 increased $2.5 million, or 35.3%, over 1994 due primarily to increased indebtedness of the Company in support of working capital and capital spending requirements.

The effective income tax rate decreased from 41.1% to 38.0%, or 3.1 percentage points, from 1994. The reduced effective tax rate was a result of (1) increased earnings of certain foreign operations and dividend payments from the Company's Venezuelan subsidiary, which allowed for the utilization of net operating loss carryforwards and foreign tax credits for which no tax benefits were recorded, and (2) state income tax benefits associated with the Hattiesburg facility.

The Company's discontinued furniture operations had revenues of $186.5 million in 1995, up 20.9% from $154.2 million in 1994. This revenue growth was the result of the acquisition of the Rubbermaid- resin furniture business in September 1994. Excluding the impact of this acquisition, furniture business sales increased 3.9% primarily from additional sales of wrought iron furniture. Earnings from the discontinued furniture operations, net of taxes, declined from $21.7 million in 1994 to $12.9 million in 1995 primarily as a result of lower gross margins from higher raw material costs, particularly resin. In addition, SG&A costs increased due to the inclusion of the resin furniture business and from higher distribution and warehousing costs associated with the resin facility. In addition, the bankruptcy filing of one large customer adversely impacted the discontinued furniture business operating results in 1995.

FOREIGN OPERATIONS

During 1996 almost 90% of the Company's business was conducted in U.S. dollars (including both domestic sales and U.S. dollar denominated export sales primarily to certain Latin American markets).

The Company's non-U.S. dollar denominated sales are made principally by subsidiaries in Mexico, Venezuela, Canada and Europe. Venezuela is considered a hyperinflationary economy for accounting purposes; therefore, translation adjustments related to Venezuelan net monetary assets are included as a component of net earnings. Such translation adjustments were not material to 1995 and 1996 operating results. As a result of continued inflation, Mexico will be considered a hyperinflationary economy for accounting purposes beginning in 1997.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

As of December 29, 1996, the Company had cash and cash equivalents of $11.5 million and total debt of $202.0 million. Cash provided by operating activities during 1996 was $14.2 million compared to $81.5 million in 1995. This decrease is primarily attributable to the reduction in earnings (loss) before non-cash charges (depreciation, restructuring and other non-cash special charges, loss on discontinued operations and deferred taxes).

Capital spending, inclusive of a $5.0 million warehouse expansion financed with a capital lease, totaled $75.3 million in 1996 (including $14.5 million related to the discontinued furniture operations) and was primarily attributable to new product development, cost reduction initiatives and warehouse expansions. Capital spending in 1995 reflected approximately $53.4 million associated with the Hattiesburg facility, $27.4 million related to new product development and $10.8 million attributable to the discontinued furniture business. The remaining 1995 spending was primarily attributable to cost reduction projects, productivity initiatives and environmental compliance including $14.4 million for a powder coat paint system for outdoor cooking products. The Company anticipates 1997 capital spending to be approximately 75% of 1996 levels and primarily related to new product introductions and certain facility rationalization initiatives.

Cash used in investing activities for 1995 and 1994 also includes the purchase of certain furniture businesses, both of which were included in the divestiture of the Company's furniture business completed in March 1997. Cash used in investing activities in 1994 is net of $23.5 million received from the surrender of certain life insurance policies on former employees of the Company.

Cash provided by financing activities in 1996 includes $30.0 million in net borrowings under the Company's $500.0 million revolving credit facility, $11.5 million in new issuances of long-term debt and $4.6 million in proceeds from the sale of treasury shares to certain executives of the Company. Cash used in financing activities in 1995 reflects $13.1 million used for the purchase of treasury stock in connection with a stock repurchase program the Company had authorized in 1995 and which it discontinued in late 1996.

The Company is a party to various environmental matters, substantially all related to previously divested operations. In connection with the Company's restructuring plan a comprehensive review of environmental exposures was undertaken and the Company accelerated its strategy for the resolution and settlement of certain environmental claims. This review and change in strategy resulted in additional environmental reserves being recorded in 1996 as more fully described in Note 12 to the consolidated financial statements. In management's opinion, the ultimate resolution of these environmental matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

On a limited basis, the Company selectively uses derivatives (interest rate swaps and foreign exchange option and forward contracts) to manage interest rate and foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. No derivative contracts are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's financial results in 1996 and 1995. See Note 6 to the Company's consolidated financial statements.

The Company believes its cash flow from operations, existing cash and cash equivalent balances as well as its revolving credit facility will be sufficient to finance its requirements to support working capital needs, remaining cash expenditures required to implement its restructuring and growth plan.

NEW ACCOUNTING STANDARDS

In December 1995, Statement of Financial Accounting Standard ("SFAS") No. 123, ACCOUNTING FOR STOCK-BASED COMPENSATION, was issued. SFAS No. 123 allows either adoption of a fair value method for accounting for stock-based compensation plans or continuation of accounting under APB No. 25, ACCOUNTING FOR STOCK ISSUED TO EMPLOYEES, and related interpretations with supplemental disclosures.

The Company has chosen to account for its stock options and employee stock purchase plans using the intrinsic value based method prescribed in APB Opinion No. 25 and, accordingly, does not recognize compensation expense for stock option grants made at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant. Pro forma net income and earnings per share amounts as if the fair value method had been adopted are presented in Note 7 to the consolidated financial statements. The adoption of SFAS No. 123 will not impact the Company's results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS

To the Board of Directors and Shareholders of Sunbeam Corporation:

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Sunbeam Corporation (a Delaware corporation) and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996 and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity and cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 29, 1996. These consolidated financial statements and the schedule referred to below are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these consolidated financial statements and schedule based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 29, 1996 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

Our audits were made for the purpose of forming an opinion on the basic financial statements taken as a whole. The schedule listed in the accompanying index to the financial statements and financial statement schedule is presented for purposes of complying with the Securities and Exchange Commission's rules and is not a required part of the basic financial statements. This schedule has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in our audits of the basic financial statements and, in our opinion, is fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the basic financial statements taken as a whole.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION AND SUBSIDIARIES

NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

1. OPERATIONS AND SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

ORGANIZATION

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam" or the "Company") is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Sunbeam/Registered trademark/ and Oster/Registered trademark/ brands have been household names for generations, and the Company is a market share leader in many of its product categories.

The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogues, Company-owned outlet stores, television shopping channels, hardware stores, home centers, drug and grocery stores, pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and the military. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions.

Approximately 80% of total Company sales are generated in the United States. The remaining sales are generated primarily in Latin America, Mexico, Canada and Europe.

PRINCIPLES OF CONSOLIDATION

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and all majority-owned subsidiaries that it controls. All material intercompany balances and transactions have been eliminated.

PRESENTATION OF FISCAL PERIODS

The Company's fiscal year ends on the Sunday nearest December 31. Fiscal years 1994, 1995 and 1996 ended on January 1, 1995, December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996, respectively, which encompassed a 52-week period.

USE OF ESTIMATES

The preparation of the consolidated financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the consolidated financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ from those estimates. Significant accounting estimates include the establishment of the allowance for doubtful accounts, reserves for product warranty, product liability, excess and obsolete inventory, litigation and environmental exposures and the estimated loss on the sale of discontinued operations.

CONCENTRATIONS OF CREDIT RISK

Substantially all of the Company's trade receivables are due from retailers and distributors located throughout the United States, Latin America and Canada. Approximately 35% of the Company's sales in 1996 were to its five largest customers. The Company establishes its credit policies based on an ongoing evaluation of its customers creditworthiness and competitive market conditions and establishes its allowance for doubtful accounts based on an assessment of exposures to credit losses at each balance sheet date. The Company believes its allowance for doubtful accounts is sufficient based on the credit exposures outstanding at December 29, 1996. However, several retailers filed for bankruptcy protection and/or reported lower sales and earnings in 1996 and if retail softness occurs in 1997, it is possible that additional credit losses could be incurred.

1. OPERATIONS AND SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES-(CONTINUED)

INVENTORIES

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost or market with cost being determined principally by the first-in, first-out method.

PROPERTY, PLANT AND EQUIPMENT

Property, plant and equipment is stated at cost. The Company provides for depreciation using primarily the straight-line method in amounts that allocate the cost of property, plant and equipment over the following useful lives:

Buildings and improvements	20 to 40 years
Machinery, equipment and tooling	3 to 15 years
Furniture and fixtures	3 to 10 years

Leasehold improvements are amortized on a straight-line basis over the shorter of the useful life of the improvement or the term of the lease.

LONG-LIVED ASSETS

During 1996, the Company adopted Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 121, ACCOUNTING FOR THE IMPAIRMENT OF LONG-LIVED ASSETS AND FOR LONG-LIVED ASSETS TO BE DISPOSED OF. See Notes 2 and 3 for a discussion of asset impairment charges as a result of the implementation of the Company's restructuring and growth plan.

CAPITALIZED INTEREST

Interest costs for the construction of certain long-term assets are capitalized and amortized over the related assets' estimated useful lives. Total interest costs during 1995 and 1996 amounted to $12.7 million and $14.0 million, respectively, of which $3.3 million and $.4 million, respectively, was capitalized into the construction cost of the long-term assets.

AMORTIZATION PERIODS

Trademarks and trade names are being amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years.

REVENUE RECOGNITION

The Company recognizes revenue from product sales at the time of shipment. Net sales is comprised of gross sales less provisions for expected customer returns, discounts, promotional allowances and co-operative advertising.

WARRANTY COSTS

The Company provides for warranty costs in amounts it estimates will be needed to cover future warranty obligations for products sold during the year. Estimates of warranty costs are periodically reviewed and adjusted, when necessary, to consider actual experience.

1. OPERATIONS AND SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES-(CONTINUED)

ADVERTISING COSTS

Advertising costs, included in "Selling, General and Administrative Expense," are expensed as incurred. Co-operative advertising costs are expensed ratably over the year in relation to revenues.

FOREIGN CURRENCY TRANSLATION

The assets and liabilities of subsidiaries, other than those operating in highly inflationary environments, are translated into U.S. dollars at year-end exchange rates, with resulting translation gains and losses accumulated in a separate component of shareholders' equity. Income and expense items are converted into U.S. dollars at average rates of exchange prevailing during the year.

For subsidiaries operating in highly inflationary environments, specifically Venezuela, inventories and property, plant and equipment are translated at the rate of exchange on the date the assets were acquired, while other assets and liabilities are translated at year-end exchange rates. Translation adjustments for those operations are included in results of operations.

STOCK-BASED COMPENSATION PLANS

In 1995, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued SFAS No. 123, ACCOUNTING FOR STOCK-BASED COMPENSATION. SFAS No. 123 allows either adoption of a fair value method for accounting for stock-based compensation plans or continuation of accounting under Accounting Principles Board ("APB") Opinion No. 25, ACCOUNTING FOR STOCK ISSUED TO EMPLOYEES, and related interpretations with supplemental disclosures.

The Company has chosen to account for its stock options using the intrinsic value based method prescribed in APB Opinion No. 25 and, accordingly, does not recognize compensation expense for stock option grants made at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant. Pro-forma net income and earnings per share amounts as if the fair value method had been adopted are presented in Note 7 herein. The adoption of SFAS No. 123 will not impact the Company's results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

EARNINGS PER SHARE OF COMMON STOCK

Earnings per common share calculations are determined by dividing earnings (loss) available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock and dilutive common stock equivalents outstanding. Primary and fully diluted earnings per share are equivalent for each of the fiscal years presented.

RECLASSIFICATIONS

Certain prior year amounts have been reclassified to reflect discontinued operations as described in Note 3.

3. RESTRUCTURING, IMPAIRMENT AND OTHER COSTS

On November 12, 1996, the Company announced the details of its restructuring and growth plan for the future. The cost reduction phase of the plan includes the consolidation of administrative functions within the Company, the rationalization of manufacturing and warehouse facilities, the centralization of the Company's procurement function, and reduction of the Company's product offerings and stock keeping units ("SKU's"). The Company also announced plans to divest several lines of business which it determined are not core for Sunbeam (see Note 3).

Since the restructuring plan was announced, the Company has consolidated six divisional and regional headquarters functions into a single worldwide corporate headquarters in Delray Beach, Florida and outsourced certain back office activities resulting in a 50% reduction in total back-office/ administrative headcount. Overall, the restructuring plan calls for a reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and warehouses from 61 to 13. The restructuring plan will result in the elimination of over 6,000 positions from the Company's workforce, including 1,300 from the disposition of non-core business operations and the elimination of approximately 2,800 other positions. The Company completed the major phases of the restructuring plan by January 1997.

In conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan, the Company recorded a pre-tax special charge to earnings of approximately $337.6 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. This amount is allocated as follows in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations: $154.9 million to Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs as further described below; $92.3 million to Cost of Goods Sold related principally to inventory write-downs from the reduction in SKU's and costs of inventory liquidation programs; $42.5 million to Selling, General and Administrative expenses principally for increases in environmental and litigation reserves (see Notes 12 and 13) and other reserve categories; and the estimated pre-tax loss on the divestiture of the Company's furniture business of approximately $47.9 million.

Amounts included in Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations include cash items such as severance and other employee costs of $43.0 million, lease obligations and other exit costs associated with facility closures of $12.6 million, $7.5 million of start-up costs on back office outsourcing initiatives and other costs related to the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan. Expenditures for the cash restructuring items will be substantially completed in 1997. Non-cash Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs include $91.8 million related to asset write-downs to net realizable value for disposals of excess facilities and equipment and non-core product lines, write-offs of redundant computer systems from the administrative back-office consolidations and outsourcing initiatives and intangible, packaging and other asset write-downs related to exited product lines and SKU reductions.

3. DISCONTINUED OPERATIONS AND OTHER ASSETS HELD FOR SALE

As part of the restructuring plan and redefinition of its core businesses, the Company also announced the divestiture of the furniture business, by a sale of assets. On February 10, 1997, the Company entered into an agreement to sell the business to U.S. Industries, Inc. which was completed on March 17, 1997. In connection with the sale of these assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), the Company received approximately $621.1 million in cash at closing and, in addition, expects to receive approximately $10.0 million by June 30, 1997. The Company retained accounts receivable related to the furniture business of approximately $50.0 million as of the closing date. The final purchase price is subject to post-closing adjustments based on the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement.

In connection with the furniture divestiture, the Company recorded a provision for estimated losses to be incurred on the sale of $32.4 million, net of applicable income tax benefits. The Company will finalize its accounting for the loss on disposal of the furniture business in the first quarter of 1997 and could record an additional after-tax loss from discontinued operations. Earnings from the discontinued furniture business were $21.7 million in 1994, $12.9 million in 1995 and $.8 million in 1996, net of applicable income taxes of $15.2 million, $7.9 million and $.5 million, respectively. Revenues for the discontinued furniture business were $154.2 million in 1994, $185.6 million in 1995 and $227.5 million in 1996. These revenues are not included in sales as reported in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations.

In addition to the furniture business divestiture, the Company also announced its intent to sell other non-core product lines and assets as part of its restructuring plan, including time and temperature products, Counselor/Registered trademark/ and Borg/Registered trademark/ scales, decorative bedding products and a textile facility. Anticipated losses to be incurred on the disposal of these assets, which consist primarily of write-downs of assets to net realizable value, are included in Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in the Consolidated Statement of Operations as described in Note 2. The Company completed the sale of its decorative bedding product line in December 1996 and its time and temperature product line in March 1997. The remaining asset divestitures are expected to be completed in the first half of 1997.

4. SHAREHOLDERS' EQUITY

The Company has 200,000,000 shares of $.01 par value common stock authorized. At December 29, 1996 there were 9,021,837 shares of common stock reserved for issuance upon the exercise of outstanding stock options.

In June 1995, the Company retired 7,376,335 shares of common stock held in treasury, and such shares were returned to the status of authorized but unissued shares. As a result, $103.7 million assigned to treasury stock has been eliminated with a corresponding decrease to common stock, paid-in capital and retained earnings. In 1995, the Company repurchased 905,600 shares of its common stock at a total cost of $13.1 million.

In July 1996, the Company sold 321,795 shares of common stock for total proceeds of approximately $4.4 million, and granted 1,100,000 shares of restricted stock in connection with the employment of a new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and certain other officers of the Company. Compensation expense attributable to the restricted stock awards is being amortized to expense beginning in 1996 over the periods in which the restrictions lapse (which in the case of 333,333 shares, was immediately upon the date of grant, in the case of 666,667 shares, is equally over two years from the date of grant and in the case of the remaining restricted shares, is equally over three years from the dates of grant). Total compensation expense recognized for restricted stock grants in 1996 was $7.7 million.

5. CREDIT FACILITIES AND LONG-TERM DEBT

In June 1994, the Mississippi Business Finance Corporation ("MBFC") issued $75 million of 7.85% Industrial Development Revenue Notes (the "Notes") maturing serially in eleven equal annual installments beginning June 1999 to certain institutional investors through a private placement. The MBFC loaned the proceeds of the Notes to a subsidiary of the Company under a non-recourse loan agreement (the "Hattiesburg Loan") restricting the use of such funds to the acquisition, design, construction and equipping of the Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing and distribution center. The Notes are guaranteed by the Company and the Hattiesburg Loan is secured by the Hattiesburg facility.

In September 1996, the Company entered into a $500 million syndicated unsecured five year revolving credit facility (the "Credit Agreement") which replaced a previous credit facility of $500 million. The Credit Agreement was amended in November 1996 and January 1997. Under the Credit Agreement, the Company can borrow under a competitive bid option, or at a spread above LIBOR (currently .50%) or at a bank base rate. In addition, the Company pays an annual facility fee (currently .25%). The Credit Agreement contains certain financial covenants.

The aggregate annual principal payments on long-term debt, excluding amounts outstanding under the Credit Agreement, due in each of the years 1997-2001, are $.9 million, $.7 million, $7.7 million, $7.9 million and $7.9 million, respectively.

6. FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

FAIR VALUE OF FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

The carrying amounts of the Company's financial instruments as of December 29, 1996 approximate market based upon the following methods and assumptions:

CASH AND CASH EQUIVALENTS-The carrying amount of cash and cash equivalents is assumed to approximate fair value as cash equivalents include all highly liquid, short-term investments with original maturities of three months or less.

SHORT AND LONG-TERM DEBT-The carrying value of the Company's various debt outstanding as of December 29, 1996 approximates market. The fair value of the Company's fixed rate debt is estimated using discounted cash flow analysis, based upon the market yield of public debt securities of comparable credit quality and maturity. The carrying value of the Company's variable rate debt is assumed to approximate market based upon periodic adjustments of the interest rate to the current market rate in accordance with the terms of the debt agreements.

LETTERS OF CREDIT-The Company utilizes stand-by letters of credit to back certain financing instruments and insurance policies and commercial letters of credit guaranteeing various international trade activities. The contract amounts of the letters of credit approximate their fair value.

DERIVATIVE FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

The Company selectively uses derivatives to manage interest rate and foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's results of operations in either 1995 and 1996. No derivatives are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. Interest rate swaps are used to achieve or maintain a desired mix of fixed and floating rate debt in the Company's debt portfolio. Foreign exchange option and forward contracts are used to hedge a portion of the Company's underlying exposures denominated in foreign currency. Although the market value of derivative contracts at any single point in time will vary with changes in interest and/or foreign exchange rates, the difference between the carrying value and fair value of such contracts at December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996 is not considered to be material, either individually or in the aggregate. The Company enters into derivative contracts with counterparties that it believes to be creditworthy. The Company does not enter into any leveraged derivative transactions.

6. FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS-(CONTINUED)

As of December 29, 1996, $10.0 million of the Company's outstanding floating rate debt was subject to interest rate swap agreements. Under the terms of the contract, the Company receives a floating interest rate and pays a fixed interest rate. The differential to be paid or received is accrued as interest rates change and recognized as an adjustment to interest expense.

In order to mitigate the transaction exposures that may arise from changes in foreign exchange rates, the Company purchases foreign currency option contracts to hedge anticipated transactions. The option contracts typically expire within one year. Any realized gains on options are not deferred but are recognized in income in the period when the hedged exposure is recognized. The Company purchased options with a notional value of $11.7 million in 1995 and $19.2 million in 1996. Options with notional value of $3.2 million and $25.4 million expired in 1995 and 1996, respectively. The Company held purchased option contracts with a notional value of $8.6 million and $1.4 million at December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996, respectively.

The Company has intercompany balances that are denominated in foreign currency. A portion of these balances are hedged using forward exchange contracts, and gains and losses on these contracts are included in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations. The Company had forward exchange contracts with a notional value of $2.2 million December 31, 1995 and none outstanding at December 29, 1996.

7. EMPLOYEE STOCK OPTIONS AND AWARDS

At December 29, 1995, the Company had one stock-based compensation plan, the Amended and Restated Sunbeam Corporation Equity Team Plan (the "Plan"). Under the Plan, all domestic employees are eligible for grants of options to purchase up to an aggregate of 11,300,000 shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock on the date of grant. The term of each option generally commences on the date of grant and expires on the tenth anniversary of the date of grant. Options generally become exercisable over a three to five year period.

The Plan also provides for the grant of restricted stock awards of up to 200,000 shares, in the aggregate, to selected executives, employees and non-employee directors. Restrictions lapse ratably over a three to seven year period from the date of grant. In 1994, 5,000 shares of restricted stock were granted under the Plan and in 1995, 25,574 shares were granted under the Plan.

In July 1996, options to purchase an aggregate of 3,000,000 shares were granted outside of the Plan (of which 2,750,000 options are outstanding at December 29, 1996) at exercise prices equal to the fair market value of the Company's common stock on the dates of grant in connection with the employment of a new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and certain other executive officers of the Company. These outstanding options have terms of ten years and, with respect to options for 2,500,000 shares, are excercisable in three annual installments beginning July 17, 1996. Options for the remaining 250,000 shares still outstanding are exercisable in three annual installments beginning on the first anniversary of the July 22, 1996 grant date. See Note 4 for a discussion of restricted stock awards made outside of the Plan.

The Company applies APB Opinion No. 25 and related Interpretations in accounting for its stock options. Accordingly, no compensation cost has been recognized for outstanding stock options. Had

8. EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLANS

RETIREMENT PLANS

The Company sponsors several defined benefit pension plans covering eligible U.S. salaried and hourly employees. Benefit accruals under such plans covering all U.S. salaried employees were frozen, effective December 31, 1990. Therefore no credit in the pension formula is given for service or compensation after that date. However, employees continue to earn service toward vesting in their interest in the frozen plans as of December 31, 1990. Employees of non-U.S. subsidiaries generally receive retirement benefits from Company sponsored plans or from statutory plans administered by governmental agencies in their countries.

The funded status of the Company's U.S. defined benefit pension plans at the end of each fiscal year follows (in thousands):

predecessor remained the primary obligor in accordance with the respective loan documents. Such obligations, which amounted to approximately $20.6 million at December 29, 1996, and the corresponding receivables from the third parties, are not included in the consolidated balance sheets since these transactions occurred prior to the issuance of SFAS No. 76, EXTINGUISHMENT OF DEBT. Management believes that the third parties will continue to meet their obligations pursuant to the assumption agreements.

Letters of credit aggregating $29.2 million were outstanding as of December 29, 1996.

LITIGATION

The Company is involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time in the ordinary course of business and related to divested operations of the Company. The Company has established reserves, in accordance with SFAS No. 5, ACCOUNTING FOR CONTINGENCIES, to cover the anticipated probable costs of litigation matters, based upon periodic reviews of all cases. In the fourth quarter of 1996, the Company increased litigation reserves by approximately $17.7 million based on adverse developments in the status of certain claims, primarily related to divested operations of the Company. The Company believes, based on existing information, that anticipated probable costs of litigation matters have been adequately reserved, and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

PRODUCT LIABILITY MATTERS

The Company is party to various personal injury and property damage lawsuits relating to its products and incidental to its business. Annually, the Company sets its product liability insurance program based on the Company's current and historical claims experience and the availability and cost of insurance. The Company's program for 1996 was comprised of a self-insurance retention of $1 million per occurrence.

Cumulative amounts estimated to be payable by the Company with respect to pending and potential claims for all years in which the Company is liable under its self-insurance retention have been accrued as liabilities. Such accrued liabilities are necessarily based on estimates (which include actuarial determinations made by independent actuarial consultants as to liability exposure, taking into account prior experience, numbers of claims and other relavant factors); thus, the Company's ultimate liability may exceed or be less than the amounts accrued. The methods of making such estimates and establishing the resulting liability are reviewed continually and any adjustments resulting therefrom are reflected in current operating results.

Historically, product liability awards have rarely exceeded the Company's individual per occurrence self-insured retention. There can be no assurance, however, that the Company's future product liability experience will be consistent with its past experience. Based on existing information, the Company believes that the ultimate conclusion of the various pending product liability claims and lawsuits of the Company, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a materially adverse effect on the financial position or results of operations of the Company.

12. ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS-(CONTINUED)

Remediation at one of the two sites is essentially complete and remediation of the other site is expected to be substantially complete during 1997.

The Company has established reserves, in accordance with SFAS No. 5, ACCOUNTING FOR CONTINGENCIES, to cover the anticipated probable costs of remediation, based upon periodic reviews of all sites for which the Company has, or may have remediation responsibility. As of December 29, 1996, the amount of such reserves was approximately 5% of the Company's total liabilities as set forth in the consolidated financial statements. Liability under the Superfund law is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRP's at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRP's established with respect to such sites. The Company continues to pursue the recovery of some environmental remediation costs from certain of its liability insurance carriers; however, such potential recoveries have not been offset against potential liabilities and have not been considered in determining the Company's environmental reserves.

Due to uncertainty over remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in environmental laws and regulations and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, the Company's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved as of December 29, 1996. In connection with the Company's restructuring plan, in the fourth quarter of 1996 a comprehensive review of all environmental exposures was performed and the Company accelerated its strategy for the resolution and settlement of certain environmental claims. As a result, the Company recorded additional environmental reserves of approximately $9.0 million. The Company believes, based on existing information, that the costs of completing environmental remediation of all sites for which the Company has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved, and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

13. OTHER COMMITMENTS AND CONTINGENCIES

LEASES

The Company rents certain facilities and equipment under operating leases. Rental expense for operating leases amounted to $8.8 million for 1994, $8.6 million for 1995 and $8.0 million for 1996. The minimum future rentals due under noncancelable operating leases as of December 29, 1996 aggregated $11.9 million. The amounts payable in each of the years 1997-2001 and thereafter are $1.4 million, $1.4 million, $1.3 million, $1.3 million, $1.3 million and $5.2 million, respectively.

CERTAIN DEBT OBLIGATIONS

Responsibility for servicing certain debt obligations of the Company's predecessor were assumed by third parties in connection with the acquisition of former businesses, although the Company's Unallocated expenses and eliminations include corporate administrative expenses, intangible amortization, certain pension and postretirement benefit costs or credits, and eliminations of intercompany income and expense. Identifiable assets are those used directly in the operations, and exclude non-operating, corporate and deferred tax assets. Sales between geographic areas are not material and are made primarily at cost plus a markup.

12. ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations. As of December 29, 1996, the Company had been identified as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven sites subject to the federal Superfund law and two sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a DE MINIMIS (less than 1%) participant. Substantially all of these sites relate to divested operations of the Company.

The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at seven sites, four of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and three of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law. In addition, the Company is engaged in environmental remediation activities at two sites in Newburgh Heights, Ohio, where a subsidiary formerly conducted operations. The Company has been actively cooperating with the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission and state regulatory authorities in developing a plan for remediation of those sites.

10. INCOME TAXES-(CONTINUED)

The major components of the Company's net current deferred tax asset and net long-term deferred tax liability at the end of each fiscal year are as follows (in thousands):

	1995		1996
	CURRENT DEFERRED TAX ASSET	LONG-TERM DEFERRED TAX LIABILITY	CURRENT DEFERRED TAX ASSET	LONG-TERM DEFERRED TAX LIABILITY
Operating reserves and accruals	$16,389	$ 23,562	$60,307	$ 28,447

Book/tax basis difference in other assets	2,036	(27,957)	19,276	(13,406)

	$26,333	$(76,932)	$93,689	$(52,308)

As of December 29, 1996, the Company is in a net deferred tax asset position of approximately $41.4 million. Management believes that it is more likely than not that the net deferred tax asset will be realized based on a combination of refund of taxes paid in prior years and available in the carryback period, reversals of existing taxable temporary differences and the generation of future taxable income. Deferred U.S. income taxes are not provided on the undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries, since such earnings are considered to be permanently reinvested. At December 29, 1996, the cumulative amount of undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries on which U.S. federal income taxes have not been provided was approximately $25.7 million. It is not practicable to calculate the amount of unrecognized deferred U.S. income tax liability on such undistributed foreign earnings because of the complexities associated with its hypothetical calculation.

11. CUSTOMER AND GEOGRAPHIC DATA

Classes of products which contributed more than 10% to consolidated sales were outdoor home use durable products and indoor home use durable products. Sales of outdoor home use durable products amounted to $294.2 million in 1994, $269.0 million in 1995 and $256.9 million in 1996. Sales of indoor home use durable products were $598.8 million in 1994, $688.3 million in 1995 and $680.7 million in 1996.

The Company's largest customer accounted for approximately 17% of consolidated sales in 1994, 13% in 1995 and 13% in 1996.

8. EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLANS-(CONTINUED)

Net periodic postretirement benefit cost for each fiscal year includes the following components (in thousands):

	1995	1996
Interest cost	$ 1,353	$ 1,042
Amortization of reduction in prior service cost	(2,943)	(2,943)

The weighted average discount rate used in determining the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation was 7.25% at December 31, 1995 and December 29, 1996.

OTHER POSTRETIREMENT BENEFITS

The Company provides health care and life insurance benefits to certain former employees who retired from the Company prior to March 31, 1991. The Company has consistently followed a policy of funding the cost of postretirement health care and life insurance benefits on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Effective July 1, 1993, various amendments to the Company's postretirement benefits program were adopted. The amendments included increases in retiree contribution levels for certain retiree groups and the discontinuation of medical and/or life insurance coverage for certain retirees who qualify for Medicare. These amendments resulted in an unrecognized reduction in prior service cost which is being amortized over future years.

The following table presents the funded status reconciled with the amounts recognized in the Company's Consolidated Balance Sheet at the end of each fiscal year (in thousands):

	1995	1996

agreements set forth below, the parties hereby agree as follows:

1. EMPLOYMENT. The Company hereby agrees to employ the Executive, and the Executive hereby accepts such employment, on the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

2. EMPLOYMENT PERIOD. The period of employment of the Executive by the Company hereunder (the "Employment Period") shall commence on the Effective Date and shall end on December 31, 1999 (or the Date of Termination (as defined in Section 6 below), if earlier).

3. POSITION AND DUTIES. The Executive shall serve as Executive Vice President, Worldwide Consumer Products, and shall have such responsibilities, duties and authority as are consistent with such position and such other duties as may from time to time be assigned to him by the Chief Executive Officer. The Executive agrees to devote substantially all his working time, attention and energies to the performance of his duties for the Company.

4. PLACE OF PERFORMANCE. The principal place of employment of the Executive shall be at the Company's principal executive offices in Palm Beach County, Florida, or such other location as may be agreed to by the Board. In the event that the Company's principal executive offices are moved from Palm Beach County, Florida, the Company shall promptly pay, or reimburse the Executive for, all reasonable expenses incurred by the Executive relating to any change of the Executive's residence from Palm Beach County, Florida, in connection with his employment hereunder, including, without limitation, reasonable expenses for himself and his family of travel, moving, storage and suitable lodging and maintenance, and the Company shall reimburse the Executive on a grossed up basis in the event that any tax is assessed upon him in relation to any such expenses. The Company shall pay or reimburse the Executive for all reasonable costs and expenses of residential relocation incurred by him in connection with each and every additional change, if any, in the location of the principal executive offices of the Company, and the Executive shall be reimbursed by the Company on a grossed up basis in the event that any tax is assessed upon him in relation to any such costs or expenses.

5. COMPENSATION AND RELATED MATTERS.

(a) BASE SALARY. As compensation for the performance by the Executive of his duties hereunder, during the Employment Period the Company shall pay the Executive a base salary at an annual rate of $400,000 (the "Base Salary"), which Base Salary shall be payable in substantially equal semi-monthly installments. It is agreed that there shall be no increase or decrease in the Base Salary during the Employment Period. The parties agree that the Executive shall not be entitled to participate in any other bonus or incentive compensation programs of the Company.

(b) STOCK OPTION GRANTS. Effective as of the Effective Date, by action of the Executive Development and Compensation Committee of the Board of Directors, the Executive has been granted (in addition to options previously granted to him) a stock option (the "Option Award") to purchase 100,000 shares of Common Stock pursuant to the Company's Equity Team Plan ("Option Plan"), which options are granted upon the terms and conditions as set forth in the Option Plan (at an exercise price of $25.73 per share). Such Option Award shall vest in equal increments on the first, second and third anniversaries of the grant date and shall be subject to and modified by all other terms and provisions of this Agreement, as expressly set forth herein. In the event of any conflict between any terms of the Option Plan and the terms and provisions of this Agreement, the terms and provisions of this Agreement shall take precedence and shall be controlling as between such documents.

(c) EXPENSES. During the Employment Period, the Company shall reimburse the Executive for all reasonable business expenses in accordance with applicable policies and procedures then in force.

(d) VACATION AND OTHER ABSENCES. The Executive shall be entitled to paid vacation and other paid absences, whether for holidays, illness, personal time or any similar purposes, during the Employment Period in accordance with policies applicable generally to other Executive Vice Presidents of the Company; provided, however, that the Executive shall always be entitled to at least six weeks of paid vacation in each calendar year and pro rata for part of a year. Up to four weeks per year of unused vacation may be maintained by the Executive on a cumulative basis and may be subsequently used in any year or if not so used, the Executive shall be compensated for any unused vacation days upon the termination of this Agreement for any reason.

(e) TAX PLANNING SERVICES. During the Employment Period, the Company shall provide the Executive with tax-related advice and services without cost or expense to him and shall reimburse the Executive on a grossed up basis in the event that any tax is assessed upon him in relation to such services.

(f) OTHER BENEFITS. During the Employment Period, the Executive shall be eligible to participate at no cost or expense to him in welfare plans and programs (including any tax-deferred savings plan, group life insurance plan, medical and dental insurance plan, and accident and disability insurance plan) ("Benefit Plans") applicable generally to employees and/or senior executives of the Company. The Company will waive, or obtain the waiver of, any waiting periods for eligibility under the Benefit Plans or will provide comparable benefits to the Executive without cost to him during the waiting period.

6. TERMINATION. The Executive's employment hereunder may be terminated as follows:

(a) DEATH. The Executive's employment shall terminate upon his death, and the date of his death shall be the Date of Termination.

(b) DISABILITY. If, as a result of the Executive's incapacity due to physical or mental illness, the Executive shall have been absent from his duties hereunder on a full-time basis for one hundred and twenty (120) consecutive days and, within thirty (30) days after written Notice of Termination (as defined in Section 6(g) hereof), shall not have returned to the performance of his duties hereunder on a full-time basis ("Disability"), the Company may terminate the Executive's employment hereunder. In this event, the Date of Termination shall be thirty (30) days after Notice of Termination is given (provided that the Executive shall not have returned to the performance of his duties on a full-time basis during such thirty (30) day period).

(c) CAUSE. The Company may terminate the Executive's employment hereunder for Cause. For purposes of this Agreement, the Company shall have "Cause" to terminate the Executive's employment hereunder:

(i) upon the Executive's conviction for the commission of a felony (or a plea of nolo contendere thereto);

(ii) willful failure by the Executive substantially to perform his duties hereunder (other than any such failure resulting from the Executive's incapacity due to Disability). For purposes hereof, no act or failure to act by the Executive shall be considered "willful" unless done or omitted to be done by him not in good faith or without reasonable belief that his action or omission was in the best interests of the Company or contrary to written instructions of the Chief Executive Officer or the Board of Directors; or

(iii) failure of the Executive to meet the performance objectives prescribed for him by the Company's Chief Executive Officer, in good faith, from time to time. In event termination for Cause is premised on this subsection (c)(iii), the Executive shall be given written notice of his performance deficiencies and a thirty (30) day period within which to correct or overcome those deficiencies. If the Executive shall be unable or unwilling to correct such deficiencies in performance during such thirty (30) day period, then his Date of Termination shall be the date following such thirty (30) period on which the Company's Chief Executive Officer advises the Executive in writing (in a Notice of Termination) that he has failed to correct the deficiencies in performance, providing in reasonable detail the reasons for such determination by the Chief Executive Officer.

The Date of Termination shall be the date specified in the Notice of Termination; provided, however, that, in the case of a termination for Cause under clause (ii) above, the Date of Termination shall not be earlier than 30 days after delivery of the Notice of Termination. Anything herein to the contrary notwithstanding, if, following a termination of the Executive's employment by the Company for Cause based upon the conviction of the Executive for a felony, such conviction is overturned in a final determination on appeal, the Executive shall be entitled to the payments and the economic equivalent of the benefits the Executive would have received if his employment had been terminated by the Company without Cause.

(d) TERMINATION BY THE EXECUTIVE FOR GOOD REASON. The Executive may terminate his employment hereunder for Good Reason, provided that the Executive shall have delivered a Notice of Termination (as defined in Section 5(g) hereof) within ninety (90) days after the occurrence of the event of Good Reason giving rise to such termination. For purposes of this Agreement. "Good Reason" shall mean the occurrence of one or more of the following circumstances, without the Executive's express written consent, which are not remedied by the Company within thirty (30) days of receipt of the Executive's Notice of Termination:

(i) an assignment to the Executive of any duties materially inconsistent with his positions, duties, responsibilities and status with the Company or any material limitation of the powers of the Executive not consistent with the powers of the Executive contemplated by Section 3 hereof; or

(ii) any removal of the Executive from, or any failure to re-elect the Executive to, the executive officer position specified in Section 3 of this Agreement (or to another senior executive position with the Company at no decrease in compensation); or

(iii) any other material breach by the Company of this Agreement.

In the event of a termination for Good Reason, the Date of Termination shall be the date specified in the Notice of Termination, which shall be no more than thirty (30) days after the Notice of Termination.

(e) OTHER TERMINATIONS. The Company may terminate the Executive's employment hereunder at any time, subject to the provisions of Section 7(e) hereof. The Executive may terminate his employment at any time subject to the provisions of Section 7(d) hereof. If the Executive's employment is terminated hereunder for any reason other than as set forth in Sections 6(a) through 6(d) hereof, the date on which a Notice of Termination is given or any later date (within 30 days) set forth in such Notice of Termination shall be the Date of Termination.

(f) TERMINATION BY THE EXECUTIVE UPON CHANGE IN CONTROL. Upon a Change in Control (as defined below), the Executive shall have the right, upon delivery to the Company of a Notice of Termination (which shall specify a Date of Termination not less than 30 days after such Notice of Termination), to terminate his employment under this Agreement and to receive the payments provided pursuant to Section 7(f) below. If the Executive shall elect to terminate his employment with the Company other than upon a Change in Control, he shall receive only the compensation referred to in Section 7(d) below. For purposes of this Agreement, a Change in Control shall mean the occurrence of any one of the following events:

(i) any "person" as such term is used in Sections 3(a)(9) and 13(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, becomes a "beneficial owner," as such term is used in Rule 3d-3 promulgated under that Act, of 25% or more of the voting stock of the Company (other than a person that is currently the beneficial owner of such percentage of the Company's voting stock);

(ii) the majority of the Board consists of individuals other than Incumbent Directors, which term means the members of the Board on the date of this Agreement and the individuals designated as directors by the Chief Executive Officer of the Company; provided that any person becoming a director subsequent to such date whose election or nomination for election was supported by two-thirds of the directors who then comprised the Incumbent Directors shall be considered to be an Incumbent Director;

(iii) the Company, without the Executive's consent, adopts any plan of liquidation providing for the distribution of all or substantially all of its assets; or

(iv) all or substantially all of the assets or business of the Company are disposed of pursuant to a merger, consolidation or other transaction (unless the shareholders of the Company immediately prior to such merger, consolidation or other transaction beneficially own, directly or indirectly, in substantially the same proportion as they owned the voting stock of the Company, all of the voting stock or other ownership interests of the entity or entities, if any, that succeed to the business of the Company).

(g) NOTICE OF TERMINATION. Any termination of the Executive's employment hereunder by the Company or by the Executive (other than termination pursuant to Section 6(a) hereof) shall be communicated by written Notice of Termination to the other party hereto in accordance with Section 13 hereof. For purposes of this Agreement, a "Notice of Termination" shall mean a notice which shall indicate the specific termination provision in this Agreement relied upon and shall set forth in reasonable detail the facts and circumstances claimed to provide a basis for termination of the Executive's employment under the provision so indicated. If any dispute concerning a Notice of Termination of the Executive's employment under Section 6(b), 6(c) or 6(d) hereof results in a determination that a proper basis for such termination did not exist under such section, the Executive's employment under this Agreement shall be treated, with respect to a Notice of Termination pursuant to Section 6(b) or 6(c) hereof, as having been terminated pursuant to Section 6(e) hereof or, with respect to a Notice of Termination pursuant to Section 6(d) hereof, as having not been terminated.

7. COMPENSATION UPON TERMINATION OR DURING DISABILITY.

(a) DISABILITY PERIOD. During any period during the Employment Period that the Executive fails to perform his duties hereunder as a result of incapacity due to physical or mental illness ("Disability Period"), the Executive shall continue to (i) receive his full Base Salary and (ii) participate in the Benefit Plans. Such payments made to the Executive during the Disability Period shall be reduced by the sum of the amounts, if any, payable to the Executive at or prior to the time of any such payment under disability benefit plans of the Company or under the Social Security disability insurance program, and which amounts were not previously applied to reduce any such payment.

(b) DEATH. If the Executive's employment hereunder is terminated as a result of death, then:

(i) the Company shall pay the Executive's estate or designated beneficiary, as soon as practicable after the Date of Termination, any Base Salary installments due in the month of death and any reimbursable expenses, accrued or owing the Executive hereunder as of the Date of Termination; and

(ii) the Options granted to the Executive pursuant to the Option Award shall become vested and exercisable, as of the Date of Termination, to the extent such Option Award would have otherwise become vested on or before the first anniversary of the Date of Termination, and all vested Options shall remain exercisable for a period of one year following such Date of Termination and shall thereafter be completely forfeited and canceled; any Options that would not have become vested and exercisable on or before the first anniversary of the Date of Termination shall terminate and be forfeited as of the Date of Termination.

(c) DISABILITY. If the Executive's employment hereunder is terminated as a result of Disability, then:

(i) the Company shall pay the Executive, as soon as practicable after the Date of Termination, any Base Salary and any reimbursable expenses, accrued or owing the Executive hereunder for services as of the Date of Termination; and

(ii) the Options granted to the Executive pursuant to the Option Award shall become vested and exercisable, as of the Date of Termination, to the extent such Option Award would have otherwise become vested on or before the first anniversary of the Date of Termination, and all vested Options shall remain exercisable for a period of three years following such Date of Termination and shall thereafter be completely forfeited and canceled; any Options that would not have become vested and exercisable on or before the first anniversary of the Date of Termination shall terminate and be forfeited as of the Date of Termination.

(d) CAUSE OR BY EXECUTIVE OTHER THAN FOR GOOD REASON. If the Executive's employment hereunder is terminated by the Company for Cause or by the Executive other than for Good Reason, then:

(i) the Company shall pay the Executive, as soon as practicable after the Date of Termination, any Base Salary and any reimbursable expenses accrued or owing the Executive hereunder for services as of the Date of Termination; and

(ii) the Executive shall immediately forfeit any unvested portion of the Option Award. In the event of termination by the Company for Cause, the Executive shall have the right to exercise the vested unexercised portion of the Option Award for a period of ninety (90) days after the Date of Termination, and the unexercised portion of such Option Award shall be forfeited thereafter. In the event of termination by the Executive other than for Good Reason the Executive shall have the right to exercise the vested unexercised portion of the Option Award for a period of one year following the Date of Termination and the unexercised portion of such Option Award shall be forfeited thereafter.

(e) TERMINATION BY COMPANY WITHOUT CAUSE OR BY THE EXECUTIVE WITH GOOD REASON. If the Executive's employment hereunder is terminated by the Company (other than for Cause or Disability) or by the Executive for Good Reason, then:

(i) the Company shall pay the Executive, as soon as practicable after the Date of Termination, any Base Salary and any reimbursable expenses, accrued or owing the Executive hereunder for services as of the Date of Termination;

(ii) the Company shall immediately pay to the Executive as liquidated damages and not as a penalty a lump sum amount equal to the total Base Salary that would have otherwise been payable to the Executive with respect to the period commencing immediately following the Date of Termination and ending on July 29, 1999, at the annualized rate in effect at the time Notice of Termination is given;

(iii) the Options granted to the Executive pursuant to the Option Award shall become fully vested and exercisable, as of the Date of Termination, and the Option Award shall remain exercisable for the balance of its original 10-year term; and

(iv) the Executive shall continue to participate in all employee benefit plans and programs in which the Executive was entitled to participate immediately prior to the Date of Termination, in accordance with the terms of such plans and programs as in effect from time to time, through December 31, 1999; provided that the Executive's continued participation is permitted under the general terms and provisions of such plans and programs. In the event that the Executive's participation in any such plan or program is barred, the Company shall arrange to provide the Executive and his dependents with benefits substantially the same as those which the Executive and his dependents would otherwise have been entitled to receive under such plans and programs from which their continued participation is barred or provide their economic equivalent.

(f) TERMINATION UPON CHANGE IN CONTROL. If the Executive shall elect to terminate his employment under this Agreement upon a Change in Control, the Company shall pay to the Executive the payments described in Sections 7(e)(i), (ii), (iii) and (iv) above.

8. GROSS-UP FOR EXCISE TAX. In the event that the Executive receives any payment or benefit (including but not limited to the payments or benefits pursuant to Section 7 of this Agreement) (a "Payment") that is subject to the excise tax (the "Excise Tax") under Section 4999 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), the Company shall pay to the Executive, as soon thereafter as practicable, an additional amount (a "Gross-Up Payment") such that the net amount retained by the Executive, after deduction of any Excise Tax imposed upon the Payment and any federal, state and local income tax and Excise Tax imposed upon the Gross-Up Payment shall be equal to the Payment. The determination of whether an Excise Tax is due in respect of any payment or benefit, the amount of the Excise Tax and the amount of the Gross-Up Payment shall be made by an independent auditor (the "Auditor") jointly selected by the Company and the Executive and paid by the Company. If the Executive and the Company cannot agree on the firm to serve as the Auditor, then the Executive and the Company shall each select one nationally recognized accounting firm and those two firms shall jointly select the nationally recognized accounting firm to serve as the Auditor. Notwithstanding the foregoing, for purposes of determining the Gross-Up Payment in respect of any Payment, (i) any other payments or benefits received or to be received by the Executive in connection with a Change in Control or the Executive's termination of employment (whether pursuant to the terms of this Agreement or any other plan, arrangement or agreement with the Company, any person whose actions result in a Change in Control or any person affiliated with the Company or such person) shall be treated as "parachute payments" within the meaning of Section 280G(b)(2) of the Code, and all "excess parachute payments" within the meaning of Section 280G of the Code shall be treated as subject to the Excise Tax, unless in the opinion of tax counsel selected by the Auditor, such other payments or benefits (in whole or in part) do not constitute parachute payments, or are otherwise not subject to the Excise Tax, and (ii) the Executive shall be deemed to pay federal income tax at the highest marginal rate applicable in the calendar year in which the Gross-Up Payment is made, and state and local income taxes at the highest marginal rate of taxation in the state and locality of the Executive's residence on the Date of Termination, net of the maximum reduction in federal income taxes which could be obtained from deduction of such state and local taxes. In the event the actual Excise Tax or such income tax is more or less than the amount used to calculate the Gross-Up Payment, the Executive or the Company, as the case may be, shall pay to the other an amount reflecting the actual Excise Tax or such income tax0 , plus interest on the amount of such repayment at the rate provided in Section 1274(b)(2)(B) of the Code.

9. MITIGATION. The Executive shall not be required to mitigate amounts payable pursuant to Section 7 hereof by seeking other employment or otherwise, nor shall there be any offset against such payments on account of (a) any remuneration attributable to any subsequent employment that he may obtain or (b) any claims the Company may have against the Executive.

10. CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION, REMOVAL OF DOCUMENTS, NON-COMPETITION.

(a) CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION. The Executive shall hold in a fiduciary capacity for the benefit of the Company and its subsidiaries (the "Sunbeam Entities") all trade secrets, confidential information, and knowledge or data relating to the Sunbeam Entities and the businesses and investments of the Sunbeam Entities, which shall have been obtained by the Executive during the Executive's employment by the Company, including such information with respect to any products, improvements, formulas, designs or styles, processes, services, customers, suppliers, marketing techniques, methods, future plans or operating practices ("Confidential Information"); PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that Confidential Information shall not include any information known generally to the public (other than as a result of unauthorized disclosure by the Executive) or any specific information or type of information generally not considered confidential by persons engaged in the same business as the Company, or information disclosed by the Company or any officer thereof to a third party without restrictions on the disclosure of such information. Except as may be required or appropriate in connection with his carrying out his duties under this Agreement, the Executive shall not, without the prior written consent of the Company or as may otherwise be required by law or legal process, communicate or divulge any such Confidential Information to anyone other than the Company and those designated by the Company.

(b) REMOVAL OF DOCUMENTS. All records, files, drawings, documents, models, and the like relating to the business of the Sunbeam Entities, which the Executive prepares, uses or comes into contact with and which contain Confidential Information shall not be removed by the Executive from the premises of any Sunbeam Entity (without the written consent of the Company) during or after the Employment Period unless such removal shall be required or appropriate in connection with his carrying out his duties under this Agreement, and, if so removed by the Executive, shall be returned to such Sunbeam Entity immediately upon termination of the Executive's employment hereunder.

(c) NON-COMPETITION. Following the Date of Termination, ownership by the Executive of not more than five percent (5%) of any publicly traded corporation shall not constitute a violation hereof. If, at any time, the provisions of this Section 10(c) shall be determined to be invalid or unenforceable, by reason of being vague or unreasonable as to area, duration or scope of activity, this Section 10(c) shall be considered divisible and shall become and be immediately amended to only such area, duration and scope of activity as shall be determined to be reasonable and enforceable by the court or other body having jurisdiction over the matter; and the Executive agrees that this Section 10(c) as so amended shall be valid and binding as though any invalid or unenforceable provision had not been included herein. (Amended as of December 5, 1996)

1. PURPOSE.

The purpose of the Sunbeam Corporation Equity Team Plan is to provide incentives for selected executives, key employees, Outside Directors and Designated Others to promote the financial success and progress of Sunbeam Corporation. Capitalized terms used throughout this Plan shall have the meanings ascribed to them in Section 16 hereof.

2. STOCK SUBJECT TO THE PLAN.

(a) Subject to the provisions of this Section and Section 9, the maximum number of shares of Stock that may be issued under the Plan is 11,500,000 shares, to be allocated as follows:

(i) 11,300,000 shares may be issued in connection with the grant of Options pursuant to Section 3; and

(ii) 200,000 shares may be issued in connection with the grant of Restricted Stock Awards pursuant to Section 3.

Such shares may be either authorized but unissued shares or treasury shares.

(b) The number of shares subject to an Option or a Restricted Stock Award that has been granted under the Plan shall no longer be charged against the limitation provided in Section 2(a), and may again be made subject to Options or Restricted Stock Awards, as the case may be, to the extent that Options expire unexercised or are terminated, surrendered or canceled before exercise or Restricted Stock Awards are forfeited, terminated, surrendered or canceled due to a Participant's termination of employment or service as an Outside Director or for any other reason.

3. GRANTS OF OPTIONS AND RESTRICTED STOCK AWARDS.

(b) Subject to the provisions of the Plan, the Committee may at any time, or from time to time, grant shares of Stock which are subject to the Restrictions set forth in Section 4(b) ("Restricted Stock") to officers, key employees and Outside Directors of the Company (or its subsidiaries) and Designated Others.

(c) The Committee shall cause shares of Restricted Stock to be issued to each Outside Director immediately and automatically upon his or her election, re-election or appointment as a Director of the Company. be 1,500. The number of shares of Restricted Stock to be issued to an Outside Director who is elected or appointed at any time other than at an Annual Meeting shall be 1,500 multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be the number of days after the date of such election to and including the date of the next Annual Meeting (which for such purpose shall be assumed to be the next May 15) and the denominator of which shall be 365; provided, however, (i) that in the case of an Outside Director elected to the Board for the first time during the period beginning August 1, 1996 and ending December 31, 1996, the number of such shares shall not be prorated, and each such Outside Director shall receive 1,500 shares for the period of his service between the date of his election and the date of the next Annual Meeting (assumed to be May 15, 1997); and (ii) that each incumbent Outside Director, elected prior to August 1, 1996, shall receive that number of shares of Restricted Stock which results from applying to 1,500 such shares the proration formula provided above, using for such calculation the period from August 6, 1996 until and including the date of the next Annual Meeting (assumed to be May 15, 1997).

(d) Deleted.

(e) Each Option shall be evidenced by a Stock Option Agreement, and each Restricted Stock Award shall be evidenced by a Restricted Stock Award Agreement, each in a form approved by the Committee or by a Company officer designated by the Committee.

(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of the Plan, no person shall be granted Options for more than 250,000 shares of Stock or Restricted Stock Awards for more than 25,000 shares of Stock in any single fiscal year of the Company.

4. TERMS AND CONDITIONS.

(a) OPTIONS.

(i) An Option shall entitle the Participant who holds it to exercise the Option on and subject to the terms, conditions and restrictions of the Plan (as the Plan may be amended from time to time) and such additional terms, conditions and restrictions as may be imposed by the Committee at the time of grant.

(ii) Unless otherwise specified by the Committee, the term of each Option granted prior to May 15, 1996 (herein the "1996 Amendment Date") and which is In-the-Money as of the 1996 Amendment Date shall commence on the date of grant of the Option and shall expire at the close of business on the earlier of (A) the tenth anniversary of the date of grant or (B) the 45th day following the termination of the Participant's employment with, or service as director of, the Company (or a subsidiary). Unless otherwise specified by the Committee, the term of each Option granted on or after the 1996 Amendment Date and the term of each Option granted prior to the 1996 Amendment Date which is Out-of-the- Money as of the 1996 Amendment Date, shall commence on the Grant Date of the Option and shall expire at the close of business on the earliest of (A) the tenth anniversary of the Grant Date; or (B) the third anniversary of the date of termination of the Participant's employment with, or service as a director of, the Company (or a subsidiary), in the case of retirement or termination by the Company without Cause; or (C) 90 days after the date of termination of employment in the case of resignation, voluntary departure or termination by the Company with Cause; or (D) in the case of a Designated Other, the date specified in the Stock Option Agreement. Notwithstanding the foregoing sentence, Participants who are subject to Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act shall have until the earlier of (A) the tenth anniversary of the Grant Date; or (B) the third anniversary of the date of termination of their employment with, or service as a director of the Company, regardless of the cause, within which to exercise Options which are granted on or after the 1996 Amendment Date and Options which are Out-of-the-Money as of the 1996 Amendment Date; provided, however, that no such Option may be exercised by any such person during the period beginning on the date of termination and ending on the six month anniversary of the date of termination.

(iii) All Restrictions shall lapse with respect to the Restricted Stock subject to a Restricted Stock Award made to an Outside Director pursuant to Section 3(c) hereof immediately and automatically upon the Director's acceptance of election or appointment as a Director of the Company, as evidenced in such manner as may be established by the Committee. Unless otherwise specified by the Committee (which is empowered to provide different vesting schedules with respect to any grant of Options or Restricted Stock), all other Options granted under the Plan shall become exercisable with respect to 20% of the shares subject to the Option beginning on the first anniversary of the Grant Date and as to an additional 20% on each of the second, third, fourth and fifth anniversaries of the Grant Date (each twelve month period ending on an anniversary of a Grant Date being referred to herein as an "Option Year"), provided in each case that the Participant shall have remained an employee or a director of the Company (or a subsidiary), or in the case of a Designated Other, shall have remained in the position set forth in the Stock Option Agreement, continuously since the Grant Date. Notwithstanding the foregoing, during the remaining term of any Options (if not already so exercisable) : (A) if a Participant's employment or service as a director, or in the case of a Designated Other, the period of service as defined in the Stock Option Agreement, terminates due to death, all Options held by the Participant at death shall become immediately exercisable in full; (B) upon a Change in Control, coupled with a Change in Status of a Participant, all Options held by such Participant who is then an employee or director of the Company (or a subsidiary) shall become immediately exercisable in full; and (C) in the event that the exercisability of an Option accelerates due to a Change in Control and a Change in Status, Participants who are subject to Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act may not sell the shares acquired upon such accelerated exercise within six months of the Grant Date of such Option.

(iv) Except to the extent permitted by Rule 16b-3 or its successor, Options shall not be sold, assigned, transferred, pledged, hypothecated, or otherwise disposed of, except by will or the laws of descent and distribution, pursuant to a qualified domestic relations order ("QDRO") as defined in the Code or ERISA (or the rules thereunder) or as otherwise set forth in this Section 6(a)(iv). Each Option shall be exercisable during the lifetime of a Participant only by the Participant to whom it was granted, and after the Participant's death only by the Participant's estate or legal representative. To the extent exercisable, an Option may be exercised in whole at any time, or in part from time to time, during the term of the Option.

(v) Any Option may be converted, modified, forfeited or canceled, prospectively or retroactively, in whole or in part, by the Committee in its sole discretion; provided, however, that no such action shall adversely affect the rights of any Participant under any Option granted prior to such action without his consent. Except as may be otherwise provided in an Agreement, the Committee may, in its sole discretion, in whole or in part, waive any restrictions or conditions applicable to, or accelerate the vesting of, any Option.

(b) STOCK AWARDS.

(i) Upon the grant of a Restricted Stock Award, a stock certificate representing a number of shares of Stock equal to the number of shares of Restricted Stock granted to a Participant shall be registered in the Participant's name but shall be held in custody by the Company for the Participant's account. The Participant shall generally have the rights and privileges of a stockholder as to such Restricted Stock, including the right to vote such Restricted Stock, except that the following restrictions (the "Restrictions") shall apply: (A) the Participant shall not be entitled to delivery of the certificate until the Restricted Period (set forth in paragraph (iii) below) applicable to such Restricted Stock has expired or terminated and until any other conditions prescribed by the Committee are satisfied; (B) none of the Restricted Stock may be sold, transferred, assigned, pledged, or otherwise encumbered or disposed of during the Restricted Period applicable to such Restricted Stock and prior to the satisfaction of any other conditions prescribed by the Committee; and (C) shares of Restricted Stock shall be forfeited and all rights of the Participant to such Restricted Stock shall terminate without further obligation on the part of the Company unless the Participant has (1) remained an employee or a director of the Company (or a subsidiary) until the expiration or termination of the Restricted Period applicable to such Restricted Stock (or in the case of a Designated Other, the duration specified in the Restricted Stock Award Agreement) and (2) satisfied any other conditions prescribed by the Committee applicable to such Restricted Stock. At the discretion of the Committee, cash and stock dividends with respect to the Restricted Stock may be either currently paid or withheld by the Company for the Participant's account. Cash dividends so withheld by the Committee shall not be subject to forfeiture. Upon the forfeiture of any shares of Restricted Stock, such forfeited Restricted Stock shall be transferred to the Company without further action by the Participant. The Participant shall have the same rights and privileges, and be subject to the Restrictions, with respect to any shares or other property received pursuant to Section 9.

(ii) Upon the expiration or termination of the Restricted Period with respect to shares of Restricted Stock and the satisfaction of any other conditions prescribed by the Committee, the Restrictions applicable to such Restricted Stock shall lapse and a stock certificate for the number of shares of Stock with respect to which the Restricted Period has lapsed shall be delivered, free of all restrictions, except any that may be imposed by law, to the Participant or the Participant's beneficiary or estate, as the case may be. The Company shall not be required to deliver any fractional share of Stock but will pay, in lieu thereof, the Fair Market Value (determined as of the date the Restricted Period expires or terminates) of such fractional share to the Participant or the Participant's beneficiary or estate, as the case may be. No payment will be required from the Participant upon the issuance or delivery of any shares of Stock under this paragraph, except that any amount necessary to satisfy applicable federal, state or local tax requirements shall be withheld or paid promptly upon notification of the amount due and prior to or concurrently with the issuance or delivery of a certificate representing such shares.

(iii) Unless otherwise specified by the Committee at the time of the award and included in the Restricted Stock Award Agreement, the Restrictions shall also lapse with respect to one-fifth of the Restricted Stock subject to all other Restricted Stock Awards on each of the first through the fifth anniversaries of the Grant Date, provided in each case that the Participant shall have remained an employee or a director of the Company (or a subsidiary) continuously since the date of grant (or in the case of a Designated Other, shall have complied with the terms and conditions of the Restricted Stock Award Agreement). Notwithstanding the foregoing: (A) if a Participant's employment or service as a director, or in the case of a Designated Other, the period defined in the Restricted Stock Award Agreement, terminates due to death, the Restrictions shall lapse with respect to all Restricted Stock Awards held by the Participant at death (if not already so lapsed); (B) upon a Change in Control, coupled with a Change in Status of a Participant, the Restrictions shall lapse with respect to all Restricted Stock Awards held by such Participant who is an employee or director of the Company (or a subsidiary) (if not already so lapsed); and (C) in the event of an accelerated lapse of Restrictions due to a Change in Control and a Change in Status, Participants who are subject to Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act may not sell the shares of Stock whose Restrictions have so lapsed within six months of the Grant Date of the Restricted Stock Award pursuant to which such Stock was received. The "Restricted Period" as to any shares constituting part of a Restricted Stock Award shall be the period of time commencing with the Grant Date of a Restricted Stock Award and ending with the date on which the Restrictions lapse with respect to any such shares, or any portion thereof.

(c) In the event that the acceleration of (i) the exercisability of an Option or (ii) the lapse of Restrictions relating to Restricted Stock upon a Change in Control and a Change in Status results in excise tax pursuant to Section 4999 of the Code, or any successor or similar provision thereto, or comparable state or local tax laws, the Company shall pay to the Participant such additional compensation as is necessary (after taking into account all Federal, state and local income and excise taxes payable by the Participant as a result of the receipt of such compensation) to place the Participant in the same after-tax position he would have been in had no such excise tax (or any interest or penalties thereon) been paid or incurred. The amount of such payment shall be determined by the independent accounting firm serving as the Company's outside auditor immediately prior to the Change in Control.

5. EXERCISE OF OPTIONS.

(a) The Exercise Price of the shares purchasable under an Option shall be the Fair Market Value per share on the Grant Date of such Option, subject to subsequent adjustment pursuant to the provisions of Section 9.

(b) Options shall be considered exercised (herein the "Exercise Date") on the date written notice, in such form as the Committee may prescribe, is received by the Option Plan Administrator of the Company, advising of the exercise of an Option and either transmitting payment of the total Exercise Price for the number of shares of Stock involved or electing one of the alternative payment procedures set forth in Section 5(c) below.

(c) The Exercise Price shall be paid in cash (including cash obtained through a margin loan on the shares as to which the Option is being exercised) or (and provided (x) the use of the following procedure by a Participant would comply with safeguards established by the Committee designed to avoid "short-swing" profits to the Participant under Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act, and (y) does not otherwise violate any applicable laws) through (i) a broker-assisted cashless exercise program established by the Committee, based on the actual proceeds from the sale of share of Stock; or (ii) in shares of Stock, valued on the basis of the closing market price of the Stock on the Exercise Date.

(d) Subject to the provisions of Section 6 and the other provisions of the Plan, the Stock Option Agreement and the Option, the Company shall issue shares of Stock in the Participant's name as soon as practicable (but in no event later than 30 days) after the Exercise Date. The Participant shall not be deemed to be a holder of any shares pursuant to an Option, and shall not have any rights as a stockholder in connection with such shares, until the date of transfer of shares of Stock to the Participant. The Company shall have no liability of any nature whatsoever to any Participant by reason of any change in the market price of the Stock during the period of time between the Exercise Date and the date on which any shares of Stock resulting from the exercise are issued or sold.

6. RESTRICTIONS.

(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of the Plan, an Option or Restricted Stock Award to the contrary, no Option shall be exercised, and the Company shall not be obligated to issue or transfer shares of Stock under any Option or Restricted Stock Award, until the Company shall have received such assurances as the Company may reasonably request from its counsel that the exercise of the Option and the issuance and transfer of shares pursuant to the Option or Restricted Stock Award will not violate the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, or any other applicable Federal or state laws. In connection with any such issuance or transfer, the Participant shall, if requested by the Company, give assurances satisfactory to counsel to the Company, in respect of the Participant's investment intent or such other matters as counsel to the Company may deem necessary or desirable to assure compliance with all applicable legal requirements.

(b) No provisions of the Plan or any Option or Restricted Stock Award shall be interpreted or construed to obligate the Company to register any Stock under Federal or state law.

(c) The Company and the Committee reserve the right to investigate at any time the circumstances surrounding any exercise of Options, including any investigation regarding whether a Participant is in compliance with the provisions of Section 13 hereof (or has threatened or is reasonably believed to intend to violate the provisions of Section 13 hereof), and the Company and the Committee shall have no liability or responsibility to any Participant for any alleged damage sustained by the Participant by reason of any delay in the implementation of an Option exercise during the pendency of any such investigation, whether by reason of any change in the market price of the Stock or otherwise.

(d) Notwithstanding any other provision hereof, the Committee shall have the right at any time to deny or delay a Participant's exercise Options if such Participant is reasonably believed by the Committee (i) to be engaged in material conduct adversely affecting the Company or (ii) to be contemplating such conduct, unless and until the Committee shall have received reasonable assurance that the Participant is not engaged in, and is not contemplating, such material conduct adverse to the interests of the Company.

(e) Participants are and at all times shall remain subject to the trading window policies adopted by the Company from time to time throughout the period of time during which they may exercise Options or sell Restricted Stock granted pursuant to the Plan. Participants may request at any time a copy of any calendar of scheduled open windows by contacting the Option Plan Administrator.

7. FAIR MARKET VALUE.

(a) During any period that the Company's Stock is Actively Traded, Fair Market Value shall equal the arithmetic average of the closing prices of a share of Stock on the exchange or national market system on which the Stock is traded, for the last twenty market trading days prior to the date of determination of Fair Market Value, or pursuant to such other method as the Committee may reasonably specify for determining the Stock's Fair Market Value.

(b) During any period during which the Company's Stock is not Actively Traded, Fair Market Value shall be determined by the Committee.

8. TERM.

This Amended and Restated Plan shall be effective as of the date set forth on the first page hereof. No Option or Restricted Stock Award shall be granted under the Plan after February 12, 2006, but the Plan shall continue in effect thereafter with respect to any previously granted Options and Restricted Stock Awards that remain outstanding and the duration of any such grant or award shall not be affected by the expiration of the Plan.

9. ADJUSTMENTS.

In the event that any recapitalization, or reclassification, split-up or consolidation of shares of Stock shall be effected, or the outstanding shares of Stock shall, in connection with a merger or consolidation of the Company or a transaction or series of related transactions that results in the sale of all or substantially all of the Company's assets, be exchanged for a different number or class of shares of stock or other securities or property of the Company or any other Person, or a record date or dates for determination of holders of Stock entitled to receive a dividend payable in stock or a liquidating dividend (or series of dividends) shall occur, equitable and proportional adjustments aimed at preventing the inequitable enlargement or dilution of any rights hereunder shall be made to (i) the number and class of shares or other securities or property that may be issued or transferred pursuant to the Plan and any outstanding Options and Restricted Stock Awards and (ii) the Exercise Price to be paid per share under any outstanding Options; PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that in the event of a merger or consolidation of the Company, or similar transaction pursuant to which the outstanding Stock is exchanged for cash or other property, the unexercised Options shall thereafter be exercisable for, and the Restricted Stock Awards shall entitle the Participant to receive, the cash or other property which an Option or Restricted Stock Award holder, as the case may be, would have been entitled to receive had the Options been exercised, or the Restrictions relating to the Restricted Stock Award lapsed, immediately prior to the record date for such merger, consolidation or similar transaction except to the extent that provision is made in writing in connection with such transaction for (1) the assumption of the Options by, or the substitution for the Options of new options covering the stock of, a successor acquiring corporation, in each case providing terms no less favorable to the holder of such Options than would an assumption or substitution described in Treasury Regulation ss.1.425-1(a) that would not constitute a "modification" for purposes of Code ss.424(a), and (2) the substitution for Restricted Stock Awards of stock of a successor or acquiring corporation having terms no less favorable to the holder thereof than the terms of the Restricted Stock Award in effect before such transaction.

10. ADMINISTRATION.

(a) The Plan shall be administered by the Committee. The Committee shall, subject to the provisions of the Plan, have full power and authority to administer the Plan, to select the Participants in the Plan, and, except for grants and awards which are automatically made to Outside Directors as provided pursuant to Section 3 of the Plan, to determine the number of shares to be made subject to each Option and Restricted Stock Award and all terms and conditions of each Option and Restricted Stock Award. The Committee shall have the power to interpret the Plan and to adopt such rules for the administration, interpretation and application of the Plan as are consistent therewith and to interpret, amend or revoke any such rules. All actions taken and all interpretations and determinations made by the Committee shall be final and binding upon all Participants, the Company and all other interested persons, absent a determination by a court of competent jurisdiction that the Committee has acted in bad faith or has engaged in reckless or willful misconduct.

(b) Members of the Committee and the Board and officers administering this Plan shall be fully protected in taking actions under the Plan or in relying upon the advice of counsel and shall incur no liability except for bad faith, recklessness or willful misconduct in the performance of their duties.

(c) Except as required by Rule 16b-3 with respect to grants of Options to individuals who are subject to Section 16 of the Exchange Act, or as otherwise required for compliance with Rule 16b-3 or other applicable law, the Committee may delegate all or any part of its authority under the Plan to an employee, employees or committee of employees.

(d) To the extent the Committee deems it necessary, appropriate or desirable to comply with foreign law or practices and to further the purpose of the Plan, the Committee may, without amending this Plan, establish special rules applicable to Options granted to Participants who are foreign nationals, are employed outside the United States, or both, including rules that differ from those set forth in the Plan, and grant Options to such Participants in accordance with those rules.

(e) Determinations by the Committee under the Plan relating to the form, amount and terms and conditions of grants and awards need not be uniform, and may be made selectively among persons who receive or are eligible to receive grants and awards under the Plan, whether or not such persons are similarly situated.

11. GENERAL PROVISIONS.

(a) Nothing in this Plan or in any instrument executed pursuant hereto shall confer upon any Person any right to continue in the employment or other service of the Company (or any subsidiary), or shall affect the right of the Company (or any subsidiary) to terminate the employment or other service of any person at any time with or without Cause.

(b) The Company may make appropriate provisions for the withholding of any taxes which the Company determines it is required to withhold in connection with any Option or Restricted Stock Award including, at the request of a Participant and provided that it does not violate any applicable laws, the payment of such withholding taxes through a broker-assisted sale of a sufficient number of shares underlying the Option or subject to the Restricted Stock Award or by delivery to the Company of shares of Stock previously owned by the Participant, in either case having an actual sale price equal to the amount of such taxes. Notwithstanding the foregoing, a Participant whose transactions in Stock are subject to Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act may make a share withholding election only if it complies with safeguards established by the Committee designed to avoid "short swing" profits to the Participant under Section 16(b) of the Exchange Act. The certificates evidencing a Restricted Stock Award made to an Outside Director pursuant to Section 3(c) hereof shall be automatically reduced by 28% to provide for the estimated Federal income tax payment obligation of the Outside Director, or by such other higher percentage as may be required by law to be withheld, with the Company remitting to the appropriate tax authorities the fair market value of the Restricted Stock Award for which the certificates are not so delivered.

(c) By accepting any benefits under the Plan, each Participant, and each Person claiming under or through the Participant, shall be conclusively deemed to have indicated acceptance and ratification of, and consent to, all provisions of the Plan. Each Participant hereby further agrees that amendments and modifications to the Plan, which may be adopted from time to time by the Committee and/or the Board of the Corporation (as set forth in Section 12 hereof), shall be binding upon such Participant and upon all Options or Restricted Stock which the Participant may hold, including (with retroactive effect) Options or Restricted Stock previously granted to the Participant, except to the extent set forth in Section 12 hereof.

(d) With respect to Participants subject to Section 16 of the Exchange Act, transactions under the Plan are intended to comply with all applicable provisions of Rule 16b-3 or its successor. To the extent any provision the Plan or action by the Plan administrators fails to so comply, it shall be deemed null and void, to the extent permitted by law and deemed advisable by the Committee.

(e) A Participant shall have no rights as a stockholder of the Company with respect to any Shares to be issued upon exercise of an Option until such Participant has exercised such Option and becomes a holder of such Shares.

12. AMENDMENTS; MODIFICATION AND TERMINATION.

This Plan may be amended or modified by the Committee, with ratification by the Board, or terminated by the Board, at any time and in any respect, except that no amendment shall be made without the approval of the shareholders of the Company if shareholder approval would be required by Rule 16b-3 under the Exchange Act or any other law or rule of any governmental authority, stock exchange or other self-regulatory organization to which the Company is subject. No such amendment, modification or termination shall have effect to reduce the number of shares as to which any Option or Restricted Stock Award previously has been granted to a Participant; to extend the vesting schedule with respect to any Option or Restricted Stock Award or to extend the period of non-competition or confidentiality as set forth in Section 13 hereof. In the event of the passage of any law, rule or regulation or a determination by any regulatory agency or court, requiring an adverse change in the Company's accounting or tax treatment relating to the Plan, the Committee shall have the right to modify the terms of outstanding Options and Restricted Stock Awards to the extent necessary to avoid the adverse consequences of such change.

13. CONFIDENTIALITY AND NON-COMPETITION; CONDUCT NOT IN THE INTEREST OF THE CORPORATION.

By accepting Options or Restricted Stock Awards under the Plan and as a condition to the exercise of Options and the enjoyment of any of the benefits of the Plan, each Participant agrees as follows:

(a) CONFIDENTIALITY -- During the period of each Participant's employment or service as a director with the Company (or the Participant's engaging in any other activity with or for the Company) and for a two year period thereafter, each Participant shall treat and safeguard as confidential and secret all Confidential Information received by such Participant at any time. Without the prior written consent of the Company, except as required by law, such Participant will not disclose or reveal any Confidential Information to any third party whatsoever or use the same in any manner except in connection with the businesses of the Company and its subsidiaries. In the event that a Participant is requested or required (by oral questions, interrogatories, requests for information or documents, subpoena, civil investigative demand or other process) to disclose (i) any Confidential Information or (ii) any information relating to his opinion, judgment or recommendations concerning the Company or its subsidiaries as developed from the Confidential Information, Participant will provide the Company with prompt written notice of any such request or requirement so that the Company may seek an appropriate protective order or waive compliance with the provisions contained herein. If, failing the entry of a protective order or the receipt of a waiver hereunder, Participant is, in the reasonable opinion of his counsel, compelled to disclose Confidential Information, Participant shall disclose only that portion of the Confidential Information which his counsel advises that he is compelled to disclose and will exercise best efforts to obtain assurances that confidential treatment will be accorded such Confidential Information.

(b) NON-COMPETITION -- During the period of employment with the Company or its subsidiaries of any Participant (other than a director) compensated at a rate (including bonuses) in excess of $75,000 per year in cash compensation from his employment with the Company or any of its subsidiaries (determined as of the most recently completed fiscal year of the Company), and, for a two-year period thereafter (the "Non-Compete Period"), each such Participant shall not, without prior written consent of the Committee, do, directly or indirectly, any of the following:

(1) own, manage, control or participate in the ownership, management, or control of, or be employed or engaged by or otherwise affiliated or associated with, any other corporation, partnership, proprietorship, firm, association or other business entity, or otherwise engage in any business which competes with the business of the Company or any of its subsidiaries (as such business is conducted during the term of such Participant's employment with the Company or its subsidiaries) in the geographical regions in which such business is conducted; PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that the ownership of a maximum of one percent of the outstanding stock of any publicly traded corporation shall not violate this covenant; or

(2) employ, solicit for employment or assist in employing or soliciting for employment any present, former or future employee, officer or agent of the Company or any of its subsidiaries.

In the event any court of competent jurisdiction should determine that the foregoing covenant of non-competition is not enforceable because of the extent of the geographical area or the duration thereof, then the Company and the affected Participant hereby petition such court to modify the foregoing covenant to the extent, but only to the extent, necessary to create a covenant which is enforceable in the opinion of such court, with the intention of the parties that the Company shall be afforded the maximum enforceable covenant of non-competition which may be available under the circumstances and applicable law.

(c) Each Participant acknowledges that remedies at law for any breach by him of this section 13 may be inadequate and that the damages resulting from any such breach are not readily susceptible to being measured in monetary terms. Accordingly, each Participant acknowledges that upon his violation of any provision of this Section 13, the Company will be entitled to immediate injunctive relief and may obtain an order restraining any threatened or future breach. Each Participant further agrees, subject to the proviso at the end of this sentence, that if he violates any provision of this Section 13, he shall immediately forfeit any rights and benefits under this Plan and shall return to the Company any unexercised Options and forfeit the rights under any Restricted Stock Awards and shall return any shares of Stock held by such Participant received upon exercise of any Option or the lapse of the Restrictions relating to Restricted Stock Awards granted hereunder, together with any proceeds from sales of any shares of Stock received upon exercise of such Options or the lapse of Restrictions of such Restricted Stock Awards: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that upon violation of subsection (b) of this Section, the forfeiture and return provisions contained in this sentence shall apply only to Options which have become exercisable, and Restricted Stock, the Restrictions with respect to which have lapsed, and in any such case the proceeds of sales therefrom, during the two year period immediately prior to termination of the Participant's employment. Nothing in this Section 13 will be deemed to limit, in any way, the remedies at law or in equity of the Company, for a breach by Participant of any of the provisions of this Section 13.

(d) Each Participant agrees to provide written notice of the provisions of this Section 13 to any future employer of Participant, and the Company expressly reserves the right to provide such notice to the Participant's future employer(s).

(e) If any provision or part of any provision of this Section 13 is held for any reason to be unenforceable, (i) the remainder of this Section 13 shall nevertheless remain in full force and effect and (ii) such provision or part shall be deemed to be amended in such manner as to render such provision enforceable.

14. GOVERNING LAW.

The validity, construction and effect of the Plan and any rules relating to the Plan shall be determined in accordance with the laws of the State of Delaware and applicable Federal law.

15. ARBITRATION.

The Company and each Participant hereby agree that in the event of any dispute or controversy arising with respect to the Plan, any Stock Option Agreement, the exercise of any Option (or the disallowance of any exercise at any time, for any reason) or any other matter relating to Options or Restricted Stock Awards, then such dispute or controversy shall be submitted by the parties to mandatory and binding arbitration

The arbitration proceedings shall be conducted in whichever of the following cities is closest to the work location of the affected Participant: Fort Lauderdale, Florida; Chicago, Illinois; New York, New York; Kansas City, Missouri; Jackson, Mississippi; Nashville, Tennessee or Atlanta, Georgia. The decision of the Company as to which city is closest to the work location of the Participant shall be conclusive and binding, except for manifest error. The decision of the arbitrators shall be rendered in writing, shall be promptly rendered after a hearing on the matter and shall be final, conclusive and binding and may be incorporated in a final judgment rendered by any court of competent jurisdiction.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing contained herein shall preclude the Company from seeking injunctive or other relief from any court of competent jurisdiction to enforce the provisions of Section 13 hereof.

1997 SUNBEAM BONUS PLAN
Self Funding Structure

EPS*	Available % of Target Bonus
$1.39 or less	0%
$1.40 - $1.49	75%
$1.50 - $1.59	85%
$1.60 - $1.69	100%
$1.70 - $1.79	120%
$1.80 - $1.89	140%
$1.90 - $1.99	160%
$2.00 - $2.09	180%
$2.10 or more	200%

* Earnings per share (EPS): Basically, net sales minus total cost of doing business (overhead, materials, direct labor) equals operating profit. operating profit minus taxes and debt expense equals net earnings. Net earnings divided by outstanding shares of stock equals EPS.

What does this mean to me? If our sales go up and/or if our expenses and debt are reduced, then earnings per share (and the value of Sunbeam stock) goes up.

EXAMPLES:

At the end of 1997, the EPS is $1.65. 100% of the target bonus is available for payout.

If the EPS is $1.37, then our minimum threshold was not reached and therefore, there will be no bonuses.

If the EPS is $2.58, then the maximum 200% of target bonus will be available for payout.

Remember, once the Company performance has established the available bonus amount (e.g., 100% of target in our first example and 200% of target in our third example), your INDIVIDUAL bonus will be determined by your performance on your four (4) objectives.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION

PROXY STATEMENT

ANNUAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS
TO BE HELD ON JUNE 11, 1997

This Proxy Statement is furnished in connection with the solicitation by the Board of Directors and management of Sunbeam Corporation, a Delaware corporation (the "Company" or "Sunbeam"), of proxies for use at the Annual Meeting of Shareholders of the Company (the "Annual Meeting") to be held at the Boca Raton Marriott, 5150 Town Center Circle, Boca Raton, Florida 33486 on June 11, 1997, at 9:00 a.m. (local time), and at any and all postponements or adjournments thereof, for the purposes set forth in the accompanying Notice of Annual Meeting. This Proxy Statement, Notice of Annual Meeting and accompanying proxy card are first being mailed to shareholders on or about April 17, 1997.

VOTING SECURITIES

As of the close of business on April 14, 1997, the date fixed by the Board of Directors as the record date for determining the shareholders to receive notice of, and to vote at, the Annual Meeting or any postponements or adjournments thereof, the Company had outstanding 84,544,104 shares of common stock, par value $.01 per share (the "Common Stock"). Each share of Common Stock entitles the holder thereof to one vote on each matter to be considered at the Annual Meeting. The presence at the Annual Meeting, in person or by proxy, of a majority of the issued and outstanding shares of Common Stock entitled to vote will constitute a quorum.

If the accompanying proxy card is properly signed and returned to the Company, the shares of Common Stock represented thereby will be voted as specified therein, and if no specification is made, the shares will be voted in accordance with the recommendations of the Board of Directors. The proxy may, nevertheless, be revoked prior to its exercise by delivering written notice of revocation to the Secretary of the Company, by executing a later dated proxy or by attending the Annual Meeting and voting in person. Attendance at the Annual Meeting will not in itself constitute a revocation of a proxy.

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS
(PROPOSAL NO. 1)

The Company's By-Laws provide that the Board of Directors will consist of not less than three nor more than twelve persons as fixed from time to time by a vote of a majority of the entire Board of Directors. At its meeting held on February 7, 1997, the Board of Directors established the number of Directors at seven. At the Annual Meeting, Directors will be elected to serve one year terms expiring at the 1998 Annual Meeting or until their successors are elected and have been qualified. The Board of Directors has no reason to believe that any of the nominees will not serve if elected, but if any of them should become unavailable to serve as a Director, and if the Board of Directors designates a substitute nominee, the persons named as proxies will vote for the substitute nominee designated by the Board of Directors.

Directors will be elected by the vote of a majority of the shares of Common Stock present in person or represented by proxy at the Annual Meeting and entitled to vote on the election of Directors. Votes which are withheld with respect to a nominee and broker non-votes will be excluded from the vote and have no effect on the outcome of the election of Directors. The Funds Group (as described

DIRECTORS' COMPENSATION

Pursuant to the Sunbeam Corporation Amended and Restated Equity Team Plan (the "Option Plan") Directors who are not employees of the Company or an affiliate of the Funds Group, the Company's largest shareholder ("Outside Directors") are automatically granted 1,500 shares of restricted stock upon their initial election or appointment to the Board and upon each subsequent re-election to the Board (prorated in case of an election or appointment at any time other than at an annual meeting of shareholders, except that each Outside Director elected or appointed between August 1, 1996 and December 31, 1996 received 1,500 shares of restricted stock on the date of the Director's election or appointment to the Board). Such restricted stock vests immediately upon the Director's acceptance of his or her election or appointment. In addition, effective as of August 15, 1996 each Outside Director elected or appointed prior to August 1, 1996 received an initial grant of 1,500 restricted shares pursuant to the Company's Option Plan, prorated as though each such Outside Director was first elected or appointed as of August 6, 1996. Prior to August 15, 1996, the Option Plan provided for the automatic grant to each Outside Director of 5,000 restricted shares of Common Stock upon initial election to the Board and of options to acquire 1,000 shares of Common Stock upon each election and subsequent re-election to the Board.

Outside Directors do not receive any compensation for Board service (other than the 1,500 share restricted stock award), but are reimbursed for all ordinary and necessary out-of-pocket expenses incurred by them in attending meetings of the Board or its Committees. Prior to August 15, 1996, each Outside Director received an annual director's fee of $20,000 plus $1,000 for each meeting of the Board or any Committee of the Board (of which the Director is a member) attended in person and $500 for each such meeting participated in by telephone.

On August 6, 1996, the Board of Directors adopted a resolution pursuant to which, effective as of August 6, 1996, each Outside Director is expected to acquire (and may purchase from the Company at fair market value on the date of purchase), and thereafter to maintain ownership of, a minimum of 2,000 shares of Common Stock. Such purchase is expected to be made as soon as practicable following each Outside Director's first election or appointment and, with respect to persons who were Outside Directors on August 6, 1996, within thirty days from such date. In compliance with that resolution, each of the Company's Outside Directors, Messrs. Elson, Kristol and Rutter and Mrs. Whittlesey has purchased 6,000, 6,000, 2,000 and 2,000 shares of Common Stock respectively.

All other option grants were made pursuant to the Company's Option Plan. No option grants were made during 1996 to any of Messrs. Schipke, Wilson, Clegg or O'Hara.

Albert J. Dunlap	2,500,000(1)	35.48	$12.25	7/18/2006	$13,372,750

	100,000(2)	1.42	25.34	11/19/2006	1,272,050

(1) These options have a term of ten years and become exercisable in equal annual increments, commencing on the grant date and thereafter on each of the first and second anniversaries of the grant date.

(2) These options have a term of ten years and become exercisable over three years in equal annual increments commencing on the first anniversary of the grant date.

(3) Grant date values were calculated using the Black-Scholes options pricing model which has been adjusted to take dividends into account. USE OF THIS MODEL SHOULD NOT BE VIEWED IN ANY WAY AS A FORECAST OF THE FUTURE PERFORMANCE OF THE COMPANY'S COMMON STOCK. The estimated present value of each stock option as set forth above is based on the following inputs:

GRANT DATE	7/18/96	7/22/96	7/29/96	9/15/96	11/19/96
Stock Price at date of Grant	$ 12.50	$18.125	$19.125	$22.750	$ 28.00
Exercise Price	$ 12.25	$ 14.26	$ 15.32	$ 21.74	$ 25.34
Risk Free Interest Rate	6.5000%	6.9050%	6.7800%	6.4818%	5.9318%
Stock Price Volatility	36.78%	37.80%	37.84%	37.46%	37.87%
Dividend Yield	.32%	.22%	.21%	.18%	.14%

The exercise price is the amount set forth in Mr. Dunlap's employment agreement or, in all other cases, the fair market value of the Common Stock computed in accordance with the Option Plan. The model assumes: (a) an Expected Option Term of 5 years which reflects the actual 10 year life of the option discounted for factors such as the expected time until exercise; (b) a Risk-Free Interest Rate that represents the interest rate on a U. S. Treasury Bill with a maturity date corresponding to that of the Expected Option Term; and (c) no forfeitures. Stock Price Volatility is calculated using stock prices for a period selected by the Company and believed to reflect volatility in the absence of unusual corporate transactions. Dividend Yield is calculated using the annual dividend rate in effect at date of grant ($.04 per share). EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS AND TERMINATION OF

EMPLOYMENT AND CHANGE IN CONTROL ARRANGEMENTS

EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT WITH MR. DUNLAP

On July 18, 1996, the Company entered into an Employment Agreement with Mr. Dunlap (the "Dunlap Agreement") pursuant to which the Company agreed to employ Mr. Dunlap as Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer, and Mr. Dunlap agreed to serve in such capacities, for an initial period of three years ending July 17, 1999, and for successive one-year renewal periods unless advance notice of termination is given by either party by no later than April 1 of the immediately preceding year. The Dunlap Agreement may not be renewed beyond July 17, 2001.

COMPENSATION

Under the Dunlap Agreement, Mr. Dunlap will be paid a base salary at an annual rate of $1,000,000. The Company may increase Mr. Dunlap's base salary, but may not reduce it after any such increase. Mr. Dunlap is eligible to participate immediately in the other benefit plans available generally to employees or other senior executives of the Company. However, he is not eligible to participate in any incentive (i.e. bonus) plan of the Company. The Company also provides Mr. Dunlap with various perquisites on a grossed up basis.

CERTAIN EQUITY PURCHASES AND EQUITY GRANTS

Mr. Dunlap invested $3,000,000 in the Company on July 18, 1996, by purchasing 244,898 shares of Common Stock from the Company at a price of $12.25 per share (the closing price of the Company's Common Stock on the NYSE on July 17, 1996). Mr. Dunlap received a one-time grant on July 18, 1996, of 1,000,000 restricted shares (the "Restricted Shares"). One-third of such Restricted Shares vested on July 18, 1996 and the remainder will vest in two equal installments on each of the first and second anniversaries of the grant date. Mr. Dunlap also received a one-time grant effective as of July 18, 1996 of options to purchase 2,500,000 shares of Common Stock at a price of $12.25 per share (the "Dunlap Options") which grant was approved by the shareholders at the Special Meeting. The term of the Dunlap Options is ten years, and they vest with respect to one-third of the shares subject thereto on the grant date and an additional one-third on each of the first and second anniversaries of the grant date. Upon the occurrence of a Change in Control of the Company (as defined below), the Dunlap Options and Restricted Shares will vest in full. On February 13, 1997, Mr. Dunlap purchased an additional $2 million of Common Stock in an open market purchase.

TERMINATION AND CHANGE IN CONTROL PROVISIONS

The Company may terminate Mr. Dunlap's employment under the Dunlap Agreement at any time, or due to his disability, or for Cause. As defined in the Dunlap Agreement, "Cause" means (i) willful failure substantially to perform Mr. Dunlap's duties under the Dunlap Agreement, except if such failure results from disability, or (ii) his conviction for a felony (or a plea of guilty or nolo contendere thereto). Mr. Dunlap may terminate his employment under the Dunlap Agreement at any time. In addition, he may terminate his employment for Good Reason by notifying the Company within 90 days after any of the following events occurring without his consent, unless remedied by the Company within 30 days after receiving such notice:

(i) any change in Mr. Dunlap's title as Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer or his removal from, or the failure to re-elect him to, such positions;

(ii) any assignment of duties materially inconsistent with his positions or any material limitation of his powers as contemplated by the Dunlap

Agreement;

(iii) any requirement that Mr. Dunlap be based without his consent anywhere other than at the Company's principal executive office in Palm Beach or Broward County, Florida;

(iv) any reduction in Mr. Dunlap's base salary;

(v) any failure to continue in effect any fringe benefit plan in effect at the date of the Dunlap Agreement or to provide Mr. Dunlap equivalent benefits;

(vi) the failure of the Company, within 60 days after the date of the Dunlap Agreement, to have Mr. Dunlap duly elected as a Director and thereafter to maintain his status as a Director while he serves as Chief Executive Officer;

(vii) the failure of the Company to have three individuals (or their successors) designated by Mr. Dunlap elected and reelected as Directors;

(viii) a Change in Control of the Company; or

(ix) any other material breach of the agreement by the Company.

As defined in the Dunlap Agreement, a "Change in Control" means the occurrence of any one of the following events:

(i) any "person" as such term is used in Sections 3(a)(9) and 13(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Act"), becomes a "beneficial owner," as such term is used in Rule 13d-3 promulgated under that Act, of 25% or more of the voting stock of the Company;

(ii) the majority of the Board of Directors consists of individuals other than Incumbent Directors, which term means the members of the Board on the date of the Dunlap Agreement and any individuals designated by Mr. Dunlap; provided that any person becoming a Director subsequent to such date whose election or nomination for election was supported by two-thirds of the Directors who then comprised the Incumbent Directors is considered to be an Incumbent Director;

(iii) the Company, without Mr. Dunlap's consent, adopts any plan of liquidation providing for the distribution of all or substantially all of its assets; or

(iv) all or substantially all of the assets or business of the Company are disposed of pursuant to a merger, consolidation or other transaction (unless the persons who were shareholders of the Company immediately prior to such merger, consolidation or other transaction beneficially own, directly or indirectly, in substantially the same proportion as they owned the voting stock of the Company, all of the voting stock or other ownership interests of the entity or entities, if any, that succeed to the business of the Company).

The Dunlap Agreement provides that, if the Company terminates Mr. Dunlap's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if he terminates his employment for Good Reason, (i) he will receive as liquidated damages a lump sum payment in an amount equal to the base salary that would have been payable through the period ending June 17, 1999, or any then applicable renewal period, (ii) the Dunlap Options and Restricted Shares will become fully vested, and he will be entitled to exercise the Dunlap Options for the balance of the original ten-year term, and (iii) he will be entitled to continue participating in the employee benefit plans in which he had been entitled to participate before termination, for three years after termination, or to receive substantially equivalent benefits.

The Dunlap Agreement provides that, if the Company terminates Mr. Dunlap's employment for Cause or if he terminates his employment other than for Good Reason, all obligations (other than accrued obligations) of the Company will cease, except that Mr. Dunlap will be able to exercise the Dunlap Options which are exercisable on the date of termination within 90 days, if the termination is for Cause, and within one year, if it is by Mr. Dunlap without Good Reason. The Dunlap Agreement provides that, if Mr. Dunlap's employment is terminated due to his death, his estate or legal representative will be entitled to exercise within one year after the date of death the Dunlap Options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of death and, further, the portion of then unvested Restricted Shares equal to the number of such unvested Restricted Shares multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is 24 minus the number of months remaining in the first two years of the employment term and denominator of which is 24, will become vested as of the date of death. If his employment is terminated due to disability, he will be entitled to exercise within three years all Dunlap Options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of termination and the portion of Restricted Shares determined in accordance with the procedure described in the immediately preceding sentence will become vested as of the date of termination.

In addition, the Dunlap Agreement provides that Mr. Dunlap will be entitled to receive a gross-up with respect to any excise tax applicable under the Code to "excess parachute payments."

EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENTS WITH MESSRS. KERSH, FANNIN AND UZZI

The Company entered into employment agreements with Messrs. Kersh and Fannin in July 1996 and with Mr. Uzzi in January 1997. Messrs. Kersh, Fannin and Uzzi are referred to as the "Executives". The agreements with Messrs. Kersh and Fannin are for an initial period of three years ending on the third anniversary of the date the applicable agreement was executed; the agreement with Mr. Uzzi also has a term of three years ending on December 31, 1999.

COMPENSATION

Under the agreements, Messrs. Kersh, Fannin and Uzzi will be paid a base salary at annual rates of $425,000, $300,000 and $400,000, respectively. The base salaries will not be increased during the term of the agreements. In addition, Mr. Kersh received an initial signing bonus of $125,000 and Mr. Uzzi was paid $100,000 in lieu of reimbursement for relocation expenses. The Executives will also be eligible to participate in the other benefit plans available generally to employees or other senior executives of the Company. However, they will not be eligible to participate in any cash incentive (i.e. bonus) plan of the Company.

CERTAIN EQUITY PURCHASES AND EQUITY GRANTS

Messrs. Kersh and Fannin have invested approximately $500,000, and $100,000, respectively, in shares of Common Stock of the Company. Messrs. Kersh and Fannin each received a one-time grant of 100,000 and 10,000 Restricted Shares, respectively. Such Restricted Shares will vest in three equal installments on each of the first, second and third anniversaries of the grant date. Messrs. Kersh and Fannin received grants, effective as of July 22 and July 29, 1996, respectively, of options to purchase 250,000 and 75,000 shares, respectively, of Common Stock at a price of $14.26 and $15.32 per share, respectively, under the Option Plan. In addition upon approval by the Company's shareholders at the Special Meeting, Mr. Kersh received, effective as of July 22, 1996, a one-time grant of options to purchase 250,000 shares, at a price of $14.26 per share. Mr. Uzzi has received grants effective as of September 15 and November 19, 1996 and January 1, 1997, of options to purchase 150,000, 100,000 and 100,000 shares of Common Stock at prices of $21.74, $25.24 and $25.73 respectively. The term of such options is ten years, and they will vest with respect to one-third of the shares subject thereto on each of the first, second and third anniversaries of the grant date.

TERMINATION AND CHANGE IN CONTROL PROVISIONS

The Company may terminate an Executive's employment under the agreements at any time, or due to the Executive's disability, or for Cause (as defined above). Each Executive may terminate his employment under the agreement at any Reason by notifying the Company within 90 days after any of the following events occurring without his consent, unless remedied by the Company within 30 days after receiving such notice:

(i) any assignment of duties materially inconsistent with his positions or any material limitation of his powers as contemplated by the agreement;

(ii) any removal of the Executive from, or any failure to reelect the Executive to the executive officer position specified in the agreement; or

(iii) any other material breach of the agreement by the Company.

The agreements provide that, if the Company terminates an Executive's employment other than for Cause and not due to his disability, or if he terminates his employment for Good Reason or following a Change in Control (as defined above), (i) he will receive as liquidated damages a lump sum payment in an amount equal to the base salary that would have been payable through the end of the employment term, (ii) the options and Restricted Shares will become fully vested, and he will be entitled to exercise the options for the balance of the original ten-year term, and (iii) he will be entitled to continue participating in the employee benefit plans in which he had been entitled to participate before termination, through the end of the employment term, or to receive substantially equivalent benefits.

The agreements provide that, if the Company terminates an Executive's employment for Cause or if he terminates his employment other than for Good Reason or following a Change in Control, all obligations (other than accrued obligations) of the Company will cease, except that he will be able to exercise the options which are exercisable on the date of termination within 90 days, if the termination is for Cause, and within one year, if it is by the Executive other than for Good Reason or following a Change in Control.

The agreements provide that, if an Executive's employment is terminated due to his death, his estate or legal representative will be entitled to exercise within one year after the date of death the options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of death and, further, the portion of then unvested Restricted Shares equal to the number of such unvested Restricted Shares multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is 36 minus the number of months remaining in the first three years of the employment term and denominator of which is 36, will become vested as of the date of death. If his employment is terminated due to disability, he will be entitled to exercise within three years all options which are then exercisable or which would have become exercisable within one year after the date of termination and the portion of Restricted Shares determined in accordance with the procedure described in the immediately preceding sentence will become vested as of the date of termination.

In addition, the agreements provide that each Executive will be entitled to receive a gross-up with respect to any excise tax applicable under the Code to "excess parachute payments."

ARRANGEMENTS WITH NAMED EXECUTIVES CONCERNING TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT

In connection with Mr. Schipke's resignation and the terminations of employment with the Company of Messrs. Clegg and O'Hara, the Company entered into certain arrangements with each of them, providing that, pursuant to the terms of their respective employment agreements and in consideration of the execution of the agreements and of a release and covenant not to sue contained therein, they would receive payments equal to, in the case of Mr. Schipke, the base salary remaining under his employment agreement (until December 31, 1996), and, in the case of each of Messrs. Clegg and O'Hara one year's base salary at their then current rate of compensation, less applicable withholding taxes. In addition, Mr. Schipke also received continuation of health, dental and life insurance coverage, on the same basis as prior to termination of employment.

until December 31, 1997. The agreement with Mr. Schipke also provided for immediate repayment by him of the balance then outstanding on the August Loan and the December Loan. See "Certain Relationships and Related Transactions-Indebtedness of Management." The termination agreement with Mr. Schipke also provided for immediate vesting of all of his then outstanding Restricted Shares.

Mr. Wilson was a party to an Employment Agreement with the Company, the term of which expired as of December 31, 1996. Upon his termination in March 1997, he was paid one year's salary and provided with continuation of medical benefits for one year in exchange for a complete release of the Company.

REPORT OF THE COMPENSATION COMMITTEE ON EXECUTIVE COMPENSATION

The Company's executive compensation policy and administration of its various compensation plans are the responsibility of the Compensation Committee of the Board of Directors (the "Committee"). Prior to August 6, 1996, the Committee was known as the Executive Development and Compensation Committee.

The Committee is responsible for establishing the general compensation policies of the Company and administering the Company's Option Plan. The Committee reviews and/or approves specific compensation levels for the Company's senior officers and other key operating and corporate management personnel (collectively the "executive officers" or singularly an "executive officer").

EXECUTIVE OFFICER COMPENSATION

PHILOSOPHY

It is the philosophy of the Company that executive compensation be directly linked to the interests of the Company's shareholders and therefore to financial objectives that the Company believes are primary determinants of long-term shareholder value. The Committee's objectives in administering the Company's executive compensation plans are to ensure that pay levels and incentive compensation are: (1) properly linked to shareholder value, (2) are competitive in attracting, retaining and motivating the best personnel and (3) are simple in design and easily understood. The compensation plan for the Company's executive officers emphasizes the importance of stock options as providing a direct correlation between executive compensation and shareholder interests. In addition to an emphasis on stock options, the Company pays competitive base salaries, bonuses linked directly to overall Company performance and periodic additional grants of stock options pursuant to the Option Plan. The stock option element of compensation, together with the Company's stock purchase plan (described below) and its use of Company stock as matching contributions and profit sharing contributions to the Company's 401(k) Plan are all intended to encourage ownership and retention of Company stock by all employees, and especially executive officers. This provides executive officers and other employees with the opportunity to build, through the achievement of financial goals that benefit all shareholders, a meaningful ownership stake in the Company.

The Company's four most senior officers are excluded from the Company's programs of base compensation increases and bonuses. Their sole incentive beyond base salary is based upon substantial grants of stock options, ownership of stock and increases in shareholder value. These persons are heavily dependent upon an increase in the price of the Company's shares to realize the potential of their compensation packages.

FINANCIAL CRITERIA

For other executive officers, the most substantial motivator also is increasing shareholder value, as all of them are heavily dependent upon significant option grants for ultimate realization of their compensation goals. In addition, however, each of them also is a participant in the Sunbeam Bonus Plan which was established by the Committee at its meeting on January 30, 1997 (the "Bonus Plan"). Under

016172

CP 017084
CONFIDENTIAL

the Bonus Plan, executive officers (other than the Company's CEO and three Executive Vice Presidents, who constitute the Operating Committee of the Company and are ineligible to participate in the Bonus Plan) are eligible to receive bonuses based upon two factors: (1) Company performance as measured by earnings per share ("EPS") and (2) individual performance against quantifiable measurement criteria established with each such officer. Company performance must reach targeted levels or NO BONUSES WILL BE PAID TO ANY EXECUTIVE OFFICER. If Company performance is achieved, then individual achievement of measurement criteria will determine the amount of any bonus payable to an executive officer for 1997.

Overall, the Company's compensation philosophy de-emphasizes base salary and increases in base salary, and places a greater emphasis upon incentive compensation in the form of stock appreciation and incentive performance bonus compensation. This places a greater percentage of compensation "at risk" and in line with the Company's shareholders. Base salaries for the Company's executives, many of whom were hired in 1996 after the employment of Mr. Dunlap, were established based in large part upon their salaries at prior positions. The Company does not attempt to match executive compensation to the compensation levels at those companies which are included in the Company's self-constructed shareholder return peer group (the "Shareholder Return Peer Group"). See "SHAREHOLDER RETURN PERFORMANCE PRESENTATION" for a description of the Company's Shareholder Return Peer Group.

For 1996, only nominal salary increases were awarded to the Company's executive officers as a group who were employed throughout the year. In addition, as a result of the Company's restructuring activity in the third and fourth quarters of 1996, many of the Company's executive officers were terminated. Most key management positions were filled from outside the Company with persons who have a demonstrated track record of performance in their prior positions.

For 1996, executive officers had a cash bonus potential based upon specific goals previously established by the Compensation Committee. Due to the Company's lack of positive earnings in 1996, no management incentive bonuses were paid to any executive officers for 1996.

For 1997, the Committee has adopted the Bonus Plan which is intended to motivate the Company's key employees to increase shareholder wealth by maximizing earnings per share of the Company's common stock, which the Committee believes is the key driver in determining share value. In addition to executive officers (other than members of the Company's Operating Committee, who are not eligible to participate in the Bonus Plan) all salaried employees of the Company are eligible to participate in the Bonus Plan.

The Bonus Plan's design provides that during each fiscal year, the Operating Committee of the Company will recommend to the Compensation Committee a minimum level of performance (measured by EPS of the Company's Common Stock for such year), below which no Bonus Plan participant shall receive any bonus. At the minimum level of acceptable Company EPS performance, Bonus Plan participants will be eligible to receive up to 75% of their individual bonus target (a percentage of base salary in the case of management and professional employees and a flat dollar amount in the case of administrative employees). At another, higher level of EPS performance, participants will be entitled to receive up to 100% of their individual bonus target. At even higher levels of EPS performance ("stretch targets"), participants may receive up to 200% of their individual bonus target. The plan also provides for percentage gradations between these key milestones, so that a bonus recipient may receive varying percentages of his or her bonus targets between 75% and 200%.

While the Company must achieve the prescribed EPS performance levels before any Bonus Plan participant is eligible to receive any bonus, this does not guarantee that a participant necessarily will receive a bonus. In order to receive a bonus, a participant must achieve at least four (4) individual performance goals established with the concurrence of his or her supervisor. These performance goals are oriented towards quantitative objectives, such as cost savings or earnings enhancement.

The Committee believes that this combination of requiring a minimum overall Company performance, measured by EPS performance requirements before any bonuses are paid, coupled with individual goals which are quantitative in nature and calculated to increase productivity, reduce costs or otherwise enhance profitability of the Company, assures that the Company's compensation system, especially the performance bonus program, aligns the interests of the Company's executive officers and other employees with the interests of its shareholders.

EXTENSION OF OPTIONS TO ALL COMPANY EMPLOYEES; STOCK OWNERSHIP PLAN; 401(K) PLAN CHANGES

Since the Company's change in senior management in July 1996, the Company's compensation philosophy for all employees, not just executive officers, has broadened to include greater participation by Company employees at all levels in the stock option and stock ownership programs of the Company. Effective January 1, 1997, the Company broadened the Option Plan to provide for the grant of options to all levels of Company employees, including factory workers in the Company's United States facilities, U.S. clerical personnel and others who had not previously been participants in the Option Plan.

In addition, on January 1, 1997, the Company instituted a stock purchase program for all U.S. Company employees. This plan permits employees to designate a portion of each paycheck for deposit into a stock purchase account. Once each month, the administrator of the plan (currently Smith Barney, Inc.) uses funds in the stock purchase account to purchase shares of Company stock in the open market. Participants in this plan do not pay any commissions to Smith Barney with respect to the purchase of these shares. Participants otherwise receive no discount or other incentive for participation in the plan.

The Company also, as of January 1, 1997, has instituted changes in the its 401(k) savings plan to provide that all Company matching contributions are to be made in shares of Company stock and that any profit sharing contributions also are to be made in shares of Company stock. Due to the fact that the Company did not generate a profit in the year ending December 29, 1996, the Company has determined that it will not make any profit sharing contribution under the 401(k) Plan in 1997, attributable to 1996 results.

DISCUSSION OF AMENDMENTS IN THE COMPANY'S OPTION PLAN

The Compensation Committee, acting pursuant to its authority under the terms of the Company's Option Plan, has acted to amend the Plan in two respects, and the Committee's actions have been ratified by the Company's Board of Directors. First, provisions of the Option Plan which provided for monthly vesting of options held by executive officers elected by the Board in the event of termination of employment of any such officer have been deleted. The Committee determined that there was no justification for a provision which favored executive officer participants over other Plan participants in terms of option vesting in the year of termination of employment.

Secondly, the Option Plan has been amended to change the normal vesting schedule for option grants and awards of restricted shares under the Option Plan to three years, rather than the five years that formerly applied. All options and awards of restricted shares granted to participants since July 18, 1996 have, and all future grants of options and restricted shares will have, a vesting schedule which provides that one-third of the shares will fully vest on each one year anniversary of the grant date. This vesting schedule remains subject to the rights of the Committee under the Plan to designate a different vesting schedule for any particular grant, in its discretion.

COMPLIANCE WITH CERTAIN TAX LAWS

Section 162(m) of the Internal Revenue Code limits to $1 million the Company's federal income tax deduction for compensation paid in any year to its CEO and each of its four highest paid executive officers, to the extent that such compensation is not "performance based" compensation within the meaning of Section 162(m). The Company does not anticipate that bonus payments will be made to Mr. Dunlap (the sole executive officer whose compensation is anticipated to exceed $1 million). The Company's award of options (both pursuant to the Option Plan and as approved by the shareholders) is expected to qualify as "performance based" compensation pursuant to Section 162(m). The vesting of one-third of the respective awards of restricted stock to Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh are expected to exceed the $1 million compensation level (together with their base salaries) and will not be deductible by the Company to the extent in excess of $1 million.

COMPENSATION OF CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

COMPENSATION OF ALBERT J. DUNLAP

As of July 18, 1996, the Company employed Albert J. Dunlap as its Chairman and Chief Executive Officer pursuant to an employment agreement and compensation package which were negotiated at the time of such employment. See "Employment Agreement with Mr. Dunlap." At Mr. Dunlap's request and with full agreement of the Company's Board of Directors, Mr. Dunlap's compensation package is heavily oriented towards stock based compensation. Mr. Dunlap receives a base salary of $1 million per year for each year of the employment agreement but is not eligible for any bonus payment. Mr. Dunlap's potential increases in compensation will result from increases in the value of his stock investment in the Company. Mr. Dunlap holds 1 million restricted shares (one third of such shares vested immediately upon issuance, and the remaining two thirds shall vest in equal increments on each of the first and second anniversary dates of the effective date of the employment agreement) and an option to acquire up to 2.5 million shares of the Company's Common Stock (one third of such options vested immediately upon issuance, and the remaining two thirds shall vest in equal increments on each of the first and second anniversary dates of the effective date of the employment agreement).

COMPENSATION OF ROGER W. SCHIPKE

The Company's previous CEO, Roger W. Schipke, was employed until May 1996. His compensation during 1996 was based upon his August 1993 Employment Agreement. No bonus payments were made to Mr. Schipke for 1995 or 1996 in light of the Company's poor performance. In connection with his resignation from the Company, and in consideration of the execution of a termination agreement including a release and covenant not to sue, Mr. Schipke was paid the base salary remaining under his Employment Agreement, was immediately vested in all of his then outstanding restricted stock, and received continuation of health, dental and life insurance coverage until December 31, 1997.

Reiterate Buy Rating; Expect Actions To Further Enhance Shareholder Value Over Next 6-9 Months

We are reiterating our Buy rating on Sunbeam shares with a 12-month price target of $55 based on our current 1999 EPS estimate of $2.50 and a P/E multiple of 22X, at the upper end of the stock's historical P/E multiple range and a modest premium to projected long-term earnings growth of 20%. Sunbeam's solid 3Q97 EPS of $0.39 was a penny ahead of consensus as well as our estimate of $0.38. More importantly, sales growth, at 24.7% (28.3% excluding divested and discontinued businesses and product lines), accelerated versus 2Q97 and 1Q97 sales growth, clearly demonstrating the success of the company's growth strategies. The company remains very well positioned to continue to accelerate sales growth in 4Q97 driven by innovative new products, increased penetration of existing customers, improved customer service levels, international expansion (SOC signed 20 new international distribution and license agreements during the past 12 months) and new domestic distribution (SOC has opened 14 outlet stores in U.S. and 4 outlet stores in Canada year-to-date). We are maintaining our 1997 and 1998 EPS estimates of $1.40 and $2.10, respectively, however, we believe our 4Q97 forecast could ultimately prove too conservative. In addition, beyond restructuring and currently announced growth strategies, by 1H98 we believe the company will move to further enhance shareholder value and seek to make a major acquisition significantly enhancing long term earnings power. We believe the stock will consolidate at current levels in the near term and believe the catalysts to drive the stock higher near term will be the delivery of strong fundamental sales and earnings growth and longer term a major acquisition.

3Q97 Slightly Ahead Of Expectations; Success of Growth Strategies Strongly Evident. Sunbeam reported that 3Q97 EPS rose to $0.39 from a loss of $0.19 in the prior year period (excluding a loss of $0.03 from discontinued operations), just ahead of our $0.38 estimate and Street consensus of $0.38. Demonstrating the success of Sunbeam's growth initiatives, sales rose a strong 24.7% versus the prior year (up 28.3% excluding divested product lines and discontinued businesses) and operating income was $54.9 million up from a loss of $20.7 million as operating margins rose to 19.0% reflecting the benefits of the company's restructuring efforts. Interest expense declined 66% due to lower debt levels and the effective tax rate fell to 35.4% from 37.1% as a result of the mix shift in production to Hattiesburg where the company enjoys a favorable tax rate and the use of foreign NOLs. Net income therefore rose to $53.4 million from a loss of $25.1 million. Key highlights of the quarter included:

- Sales - As clear evidence that Sunbeam's growth initiatives (new products, improved customer service levels, new distribution and international expansion) are beginning to bear fruit reported sales rose 24.7% (up 28.3%, excluding divested businesses and discontinued operations) ahead of 2Q97's sales growth of 13.3% (16.6% adjusted for divested businesses and discontinued operations) with domestic sales up 24% and international sales up 51%. All product categories reported higher sales. Importantly, appliance sales rose strongly as a result of new product introductions and strong sales of core product categories, also indicating share gains. Sales at Sunbeam's top ten largest retailers rose over 30% due to the success of new products and the company's focus on improving service levels ("ship on time, all the time"). Sunbeam plan's to continue to improve sales to these top ten largest customers.

- Operating Margin - Benefiting from the restructuring, gross margins rose to 30.7% from 12.4% in 3Q96 and SG&A as a percent of sales declined to 11.8% from 21.3%, operating margins therefore rose to 19.0% in 3Q97 vs. (8.9%) in 3Q96. In addition, operating margins rose sequentially to 19.0% in 3Q97 from 14.9% in 2Q97 and 13.7% in 1Q97.

- Balance Sheet - Total debt was $201 million at the end of the quarter, flat versus $202 million at the end of the year, and up from $176 million at the end of 2Q97. Total debt/capital declined to 28.7% from 33.8% at year end 1996. Cash use (from operations less capital expenditures) for the first nine months totaled $101 million versus cash use of $74 million as a result of increased working capital related to inventory build due to the significant number of new products scheduled for launch in 4Q97, as well as the preparation for the holiday season, the company's focus on improving service levels and in anticipation of strong sales in 4Q97 and 1998. Management remains confident that SOC will be net debt free by year end.

Maintaining 1997 and 1998 EPS Estimates of $1.40 and $2.10, respectively, However, Our 4Q97 EPS Could Prove Conservative. We are maintaining our 1997 and 1998 EPS estimates of $1.40 and $2.10, respectively, but believe that our 4Q97 estimates could ultimately prove too conservative as a result of the following: 1) better-than-expected sales growth - Our upper 20% sales growth projection could be exceeded depending on the success of new products and ability of Sunbeam to continue to increase penetration of existing customers. During the quarter, Sunbeam unveiled 10 new U.S. products, including a soft serve ice cream/frozen yogurt machine, Oster blenders with a thermal carafe and milk shake blade (which can be sold separately), high end stainless steel grill, and deep fryer. In the fourth quarter, Sunbeam will begin shipping Freshsource water filter and Allergysmart air cleaner. These two products should combine for $100 million in sales in 1998. Sunbeam also hopes to sell a bundled package (e.g., hair dryer, iron, shower massagers, coffee makers) into the hotel market. The fourth quarter is traditionally a strong quarter for Sunbeam, with October and November being the strongest months. Therefore, by mid-November, we should have a better sense of the strength of sales growth. In addition, about 70% of Sunbeam sales force has been replaced with new aggressive sales people who are effectively increasing penetration of existing retailers by offering the full line of Sunbeam and Oster branded products and the company's focus on improving service levels should further enable gains in shelf space. 2) better-than-expected operating margins - As a result of the restructuring we expect operating margins to continue to sharply increase versus 4Q96 (and sequentially versus 3Q97) reaching an estimated 20% in 4Q97. However, the company is in the midst of a process of refinement, identifying further areas for cost reduction or manufacturing optimization. Sunbeam has already improved the efficiency of its Waynesboro, MISS clipper facility and Hattiesburg, MISS appliance facility, reconfiguring some manufacturing lines, relocating low value added content to lower cost facilities, reducing headcount, and is in the process of optimizing manufacturing efficiency at it's Mexican plants. These actions could further enhance profitability and allow margins to rise beyond our estimated 20% in 4Q97.

Additional Steps to Shareholder Value Creation Likely Early 1998. Our 1998 and 1999 EPS estimates of $2.10 and $2.50, respectively, are based on the expected success of the company's restructuring and growth strategies (however, we have conservatively estimated that Sunbeam reaches $1.6 billion in sales in 1999, while the company's target is $2 billion) and do not include any benefit from potential share repurchase or acquisition. We continue to strongly believe that the company will move to make an acquisition sometime early 1998 further enhancing earnings power. Management has not been shy in stating that by early 1998 the company will be well positioned to consider making an acquisition. We believe that the company is now positioned to complete the third leg of its three prong strategy to create shareholder value. The restructuring is complete, sales growth strategies are beginning to pay dividends with sequential sales growth and margin growth and we now believe that the company will move to pursue an acquisition in 1H98. However, in the absence of an acquisition, with a net debt free balance sheet (projected by year end 1997) and estimated $600 million of free cash flow over the next three years, Sunbeam could also consider a meaningful share repurchase as a means to further enhance shareholder value.

Risks to our forecasts include a severe consumer downturn in the United States affecting the near-term fundamental outlook for Sunbeam.

If SOC is successful in meeting targets of $2 billion in sales and 20% operating margin in 1999 - and assuming no share repurchase EPS would be close to $2.95. Assuming 11 million share repurchase - EPS would be $3.25+.

3Q97 EPS Better than Expected; Raising Estimates; Target Now $58–$60

Investment Conclusion

Sunbeam Corp. reported 3Q97 EPS of $0.39 vs. a ($0.19) loss a year ago; this was $0.02 better than we expected. The company's 25% sales increase and margin growth were both slightly better than we had forecast. Continuing operations sales increased 28% vs. last year's third quarter and included three key components:

- A year-over-year domestic sales increase of 24%;
- An over-30% increase in sales to its top 10 domestic customers;
- An international sales increase of 51%.

These increases are all better than last quarter's respective increases and reflect that sales growth is accelerating. More to the point, new product sell-in is strong and we now believe the company has begun to gain market share. The international sales increase indicates that execution under its 20 distribution/licensing agreements is going well and that the Sunbeam and Oster brands have equity in markets outside the U.S. That the company's operating margin ran above its 20% goal in September is another positive, which also drove explosive margin growth.

We are raising our 1997 EPS estimate $0.05 to $1.45, our 1998 estimate by $0.07 to $2.22, and are establishing a 1999 estimate of $2.70. We are also raising our one-year target price by $6–$8 to $58–$60 per share and reiterating our BUY rating. This new target does not include additional shareholder enrichment that we expect to come from Phase III of this story—a merger, acquisition, or sale of the company.

Quarter Better Than Expected

The following analyzes the company's reported results vs. our projections:

- Sales increased 25% year-over-year. This was better than our 23% growth expectation. Sales were up in all categories and regions, and new product sell-in was strong.
- The 30.7% gross margin was 80 bps better than we expected. The strong U.S. sales growth drove more manufacturing efficiencies than we had expected. The gross margin was, as expected, well above the year-ago's 12.4% rate due to manufacturing efficiencies from better volumes, mix, and—of course—the massive restructuring of this company.
- The SG&A rate of 11.7% was 20 bps higher than we expected, but this is an immaterial variance.
- The company's $55 million operating income result was $3 million higher than we expected. This drove the $0.02 positive EPS variance from our forecast. Non-operating items, interest, taxes, and shares washed vs. our estimates.

Underlying Numbers Point to an Acceleration in Story

We believe several underlying numbers were noteworthy.

Domestic sales increased 24% and sales to top 10 customers increased over 30%. These increases were better than last quarter's 14% and 20+%, respectively. Since its top-10 customers dominate the small appliance category, we firmly believe the company has begun to gain share. We attribute this share gain to its new product flow, higher advertising, and its customer service improvements. This category has long been starved for each of these components.

International sales increased 51%. This growth eclipsed last quarter's 26 % growth and is reflective of Sunbeam's—and its distributors'—strong execution under newly signed agreements. It also indicates the equity the Sunbeam and Oster brands have in the new markets the company is targeting.

Balance Sheet Being Managed

Receivables increased 23% from the second-quarter despite a nominal sequential sales increase. However, one-half of the quarter's sales were made in September. Moreover, when we consider the sales increase to its top ten customers as well (they are extremely creditworthy), this does not concern us today. And the following evidence further mitigates any receivables concerns that we may have had: 77% of total balance is on 60 days or less terms; 75% of September's receivables are 30 days or less; 67% of the total balance is 30 days or less.

Inventories increased 40% vs. 2Q97 but we expected a big increase. Our 4Q97 sales expectations of over $350 million and the company's need to build inventory this year to better support its customers both offer good reasons for the increase.

Pricing was +3%. The company's primary price realization was in its electric blankets business in which it has a dominant share position. Some of its clippers, distinctive appliances, some grills and international products also had positive price realizations.

The Neosho facility (grills) began to operate again on October 1. The company expects its $8m–$10m investment to revamp the facility to double its operating margin. The Outdoor Cooking business was 26% of 1996's sales.

The AMA agreement is being litigated. We continue to expect that a settlement will occur in Sunbeam's favor but that the AMA will weasel out of this. Our estimates do not include any AMA-related volumes.

Raw Materials costs are largely benign, though Sunbeam is keeping an eye on aluminum prices.

Valuation:
New Target:
$58–$60

We have raised our EPS estimates by $0.05 in 1997 to $1.45 and $0.07 in 1998 to $2.22.

In establishing a 1999 estimate of $2.70, we have raised our one-year target price to $58–$60. To get to this valuation, we apply a 20X P/E, which conservatively values this high-octane story at the 1998 market multiple, to our 1999 estimate, and add the $5 per share in EOY 1999 cash we are estimating.

Sunbeam

Beaming in on Phase III; upgrade to buy

Buy

- We upgraded Sunbeam to buy (1) from attractive (2) on October 28, as the stock dipped temporarily into the high $30s. We believe the recent sluggishness in Sunbeam's stock price is due to profit-taking (which we believe is premature) in the wake of the market sell-off, not deteriorating fundamentals at Sunbeam.
- One day prior to the start of the stock market's wild ride, Sunbeam reported a blowout third quarter: sales up 25%, operating margin of 19%, EPS of $0.39 versus $0.19 loss per share in year-ago period.
- Despite the strong quarter, Sunbeam's stock is down nearly 7% since the day of the announcement, as it now appears investors are taking good quarters for granted. Shareholders want to know what's next.
- Sunbeam gave a clue regarding what's next by announcing on the day after its earnings release the hiring of Morgan Stanley to explore strategic alternatives.
- With an advisor now officially hired, Sunbeam, as well as every other consumer durable goods company, may now be "in play." Patient Sunbeam investors may get two chainsaw turnarounds for the price of one.

Price target

We have raised our 12-month price target for the shares of Sunbeam to $56 from $52, representing the same 20-21x multiple on our new 1999 EPS estimate of $2.60-2.65 (up from $2.50). Our new 12-month price target represents 20-25% upside from current trading levels. However, with Sunbeam's October 23 announcement that an investment banker has been hired to explore "Phase III" (merge or acquire), we believe that both our 1999 estimate and price target may be understated if "Dunlap & Co." find a partner willing to enter an accretive combination, which we believe is sure to result in another round of slashing as well as another round of upward revisions to earnings estimates.

Third quarter highlights

Best consensus by a penny (not a dime, like some were whispering)

Sunbeam reported third quarter EPS of $0.39, a penny better than our as well as Street estimates and a remarkable $0.58 better than the $0.19 loss per share reported in third quarter 1996. Initial Street reaction to this news was not as warm as we expected, as there was one Street estimate in the low $0.40s, and some talk of a "whisper number" in the mid-$0.40s. The stock closed down 5/8 on the day of the announcement, giving back some of the prior day's $2 ¼ gain in anticipation of earnings. We believe the quarter and the $0.39 reported were very solid.

Raised estimates; we're now in line with the Street

With results a penny better this quarter, our 1997 EPS estimate moves to $1.41 from $1.40. We have taken our 1998 estimate up $0.10-0.15, to a range of $2.00-2.05. The only material change we have made to arrive at our new estimates is to sales growth, which we have raised to 25% from 20% for 1998. We believe that our previous 20% estimate did not fully account for the incremental sales potential from the re-vamped grill line-up, the "Air & Water" pipeline sales, and anticipated better order fulfillment at the company's major accounts. In rough terms, we expect sales growth to be more explosive in the first half of the year (around 30%), given easier comparisons and the peak grill season, and then to tail off to around 20% in the second half of the year. (However, we would be surprised if second half 1998 comparisons do not become clouded by Phase III, "merge or acquire." See "What about Phase III" section of this report.) Our new 1998 estimate only brings us more in line with Street consensus of $2.06. There are currently Street estimates as high as $2.30.

25% sales growth—"they said it couldn't be done"

Most important, sales growth (the one thing people doubted Dunlap could do) was 25% in the quarter (28% excluding divested product lines and businesses). Overall, reported sales for the quarter rose to $289 million from $232 million in the year-ago period. International sales rose 51%, with domestic sales up 24%. The 28% normalized sales growth was driven by New Products (+13%), International/Geographic expansion (+7%), Pricing (+3%) and Core Units (+5%).

Evenly distributed 25% growth—blankets, blenders and barbecues

The quarter's two biggest contributor's to sales, Appliances (42% of third quarter sales) and Personal Care & Comfort (30% of third quarter sales), also led the way in sales growth. Detailed below is a breakdown of Sunbeam's sales growth by segment.

Segment	Percent Growth	Description/Growth Drivers
Appliances	27%	Led by soft-serve ice cream maker, new deep fryer, re-designed Oster blender. Almost all Sunbeam appliances were up year-over-year.
Outdoor Cooking	26%	Extended traditional selling season with more ads and promos.
Health & Home	7%	Led by air cleaners, vaporizers, humidifiers and health monitoring products. "Air & Water" start in fourth quarter.
Personal Care/Comfort	27%	Led by electric blankets, clippers and shower massagers.
Away from Home	2%	Professional clippers strong, but temporary dislocation caused by shift of production to Mexico City.

Quality of sales growth

Sales to the company's top-ten accounts increased over 30% (this surpasses the 20% gain registered in the second quarter). Management has noted that these are channels that cannot be stuffed as products to these customers are shipped to order and these customers pick up products from their own warehouses with their own trucks.

A glimpse of that 20% operating margin the company has talked about

The 20% operating margin that sounded like "the impossible dream" a few quarters ago is fast becoming a reality, with operating margins coming in at 19% for the quarter. This compares to an operating loss in the year-ago period and a 15% operating margin in second quarter 1997. Operating margin improvement was driven by the continuing benefits of the restructuring including headquarter and warehouse consolidation and headcount reduction as well as extensive manufacturing facility refinements, which resulted in all-time-high capacity utilization rates during the quarter. Gross margin improved to 30.7% from 25.9% last quarter and a dismal 12.4% in the year-ago quarter, due to the above-mentioned items as well as better product mix in the quarter.

Balance sheet raises a couple of questions

In the quarter, $11.1 million of the restructuring accrual was used up. The restructuring accrual balance at quarter-end stood at $20.1 million, down $43.7 million from year-end 1996. Also of note in the quarter (not a particularly positive note) was a $57.1 million jump in receivables versus last quarter and a $82.5 million jump in inventories versus last quarter. We raised this issue to Sunbeam management and, not surprisingly, they had an answer. Detailed here is a quick analysis of these issues.

- Receivables: Given that the holiday sell-in period does not really begin until September, roughly half, or about $140-145 million, of Sunbeam's third quarter sales were not shipped until September. This is the primary reason for the uptick in receivables. The company stated that 77% of third quarter sales were on terms of net 60-days or better and 75% of September's sales were on terms of net 30-days or better, indicating that the company believes that the large majority of receivables outstanding at the end of the third quarter will be collected in the fourth quarter. We essentially can only go on Sunbeam's "word" on this issue for now and watch this trend in the fourth quarter. On a positive note, we have found that Sunbeam's "word" has been gold since Al Dunlap took the reigns in July 1996.
- Inventory: Inventory build-up relates to an expectation of a continued very strong holiday selling season, with fourth quarter sales expected to accelerate ahead of the third quarter's 25% (we are modeling for 26% growth). Management also commented that all of the $82.5 million sequential jump in inventory relates to finished goods inventories as these are the products that it plans to ship in October and November for the Christmas season. Raw material and work in progress inventory actually declined versus the second quarter. Sunbeam's somewhat bloated inventory is also a function of its initiatives to improve its "on-time and complete" delivery record, as this is a top priority to "win over" top accounts and gain a greater share of retail shelves. At quarter-end, Sunbeam estimated its "on-time and complete" deliveries to be in the mid-70% range. The industry averages 60-70% and Sunbeam's long-term goal is to be above 90% (as per "Project Full Time"). Management commented that, barring grills, inventory levels across all of its divisions should be down in the fourth quarter.

Investment opinion

Proof is in the numbers

A little over one year into the Sunbeam turnaround, Al Dunlap and his Sunbeam team are putting up numbers (25% sales growth, 20% operating margins) that many naysayers (ourselves included) once believed to be laughable.

Story (excluding Phase III) still has momentum

While the sustainability of these types of numbers may be questionable absent restructuring accounting and international pipeline filling, we believe what has been accomplished to date is remarkable and that there is room for further improvement over the next couple of quarters (even without Phase III, merge or acquire).

Strong first half 1998 "one-two" punch

Sunbeam enters 1998 with a potent combination: 1) two exciting and innovative new products, Freshsource and Allergenat, which, even if they are not absolute home runs, should provide completely incremental sales at better than corporate average operating margins; and 2) an enhanced grill line-up against a weak grill showing in first half 1997. Management commented that with a substantially improved mix of grill offerings and a completely redesigned Neosho grill manufacturing facility, grill margins could be as much as 8 points higher in 1998 than they were in 1997.

Momentum (as we see it now) slows in second half 1998

In the first half of 1998, Sunbeam's much-improved cost structure should be leveraged to the max. After first half 1998, comparisons should get somewhat tougher, which is why we fully expect Phase III, merge or acquire, to be consummated by second half 1998.

Even without Phase III, our 12-month price target is $56

Given Sunbeam's continued momentum, coupled with the recent pull-back in the stock, we upgraded our rating to buy (1) from attractive (2) on October 28, with a 12-month price target of $56 based on a 20-21x multiple on our $2.60-2.65 1999 EPS estimate. Upside potential exists, if Sunbeam management identifies a solid Phase III partner that delivers substantial accretion potential above our current estimates. With tough comparisons currently being created for second half 1998, we are not at all surprised that Sunbeam is currently actively evaluating what partners might fit the above description.

What about Phase III?

Little projection visibility beyond 1997

With the October 23 announcement that Sunbeam has already signed on Morgan Stanley, Dean Witter to explore strategic alternatives/Phase III, it is very likely that the "quantum leap" we and the Street have been writing about may well come in the next three to six months, indicating that projections and subsequent price targets beyond 1997 may well be irrelevant.

Some say Sunbeam is overvalued at current levels

It is no secret that Sunbeam's nearly 80% year-to-date rise is due more in anticipation of the consummation of Phase III than due to Sunbeam's solid financial performance over the last several quarters. At its current price of $45 11/16, Sunbeam trades at roughly 32x our 1997 EPS estimate of $1.41 and 23x our $2.02 1998 estimate. These are very reasonable multiples for the consumer non-durable companies we track, such as Gillette, Colgate, Procter & Gamble and Clorox. But, last we checked, the replacement cycle and subsequent predictability of razors, toothpaste, soap and bleach was a little bit better than it is for blenders and grills. The group of somewhat less predictable, somewhat more cyclical consumer durable goods companies that we track tend to trade at roughly a 20-25% discount to the non-durable types. This is why many of the more bearish voices out there often refer to Sunbeam as overvalued.

We would disagree

We disagree with the above-mentioned bear argument, for one reason: while the consumer durables may be somewhat unpredictable, Al Dunlap has been very predictable. From the day Dunlap has taken the reigns at Sunbeam, he has delivered on every promise and then some. No talk about inventory adjustments at the retail level, no talk about sluggish demand in Europe or Japan, no talk about currency losses, and certainly no talk about the weather; just solid results, quarter after quarter. We understand that Sunbeam has had the benefit of a restructuring reserve, international pipeline filling and asset sales. But Sunbeam management was also well aware of this when it laid out its aggressive plan roughly 12 months ago. A year ago the plan sounded crazy. Today it is a reality. But today is already the past, and Sunbeam, like any other security, is valued based on future expectations. As we have stated previously, unless Sunbeam has Thomas Edison stashed away in the "secret room," momentum should slow for Sunbeam in the second half of 1998. We believe Sunbeam management is well aware of this potential slowdown and we also believe this is why Morgan Stanley has been retained. As we would expect, Sunbeam management is not going to watch the clock run down and try to score Phase III at the buzzer. Instead, Sunbeam is well into the process, as we would suspect Morgan Stanley didn't land the Sunbeam assignment at 8:10 on the morning of October 23 as Dunlap let the cat out of the bag on CNBC's "Squawk Box." We believe that Sunbeam is well into the process and a Phase III partner may be announced some time between now and first quarter 1998, but definitely before comparisons get tougher in second half 1998. While we do not wish to speculate here about who that partner may be, we believe one thing is certain: any deal consummated should deliver meaningful shareholder value (upside potential) if Sunbeam shareholders hold their shares from the announcement to the closing of the transaction. History indicates that Al Dunlap does not enter into agreements unless he is fairly certain that this is the case.

So is Sunbeam a seller or a buyer?

We believe that Sunbeam would love to be a seller, but due to the above-mentioned overvalued argument, it is going to be difficult to find a strategic suitor that could absorb the potential dilution that would come from such a transaction. Embedded in the Sunbeam share price is an intangible asset, Al Dunlap, and again, as history would indicate, it is unlikely that this intangible asset would be around long enough post-deal to make the economics of such a transaction work. This is why we believe that the most likely route for Sunbeam will be an acquisition, probably a blockbuster acquisition of the "minnow swallowing the whale" proportion, using Sunbeam stock as the currency. We envision a scenario as follows:

- Sunbeam approaches Target with an offer it (or at least its board) can't refuse.
- Target haggles over the exchange ratio based on the belief that Sunbeam stock is overvalued.
- Sunbeam convinces Target the deal is fair because the value is in what the potential of the combined company (with Dunlap's direction) can be, not what Sunbeam is offering for Target now.
- Target agrees to terms and merges with Sunbeam. Dunlap stays on as chairman, although probably not CEO, to complete another of his patented one-year restructurings. Sunbeam stock price rises, again.

Of course this is just one of the countless possible outcomes, but we believe this type of scenario would make the most sense for all parties involved. Several factors would determine how much value this type of transaction could deliver to Sunbeam shareholders, such as 1) price/premium Sunbeam pays for Target, 2) willingness on the part of Target management to enter agreement, 3) synergies between Sunbeam and Target, 4) cost-cutting opportunities at Target, 5) how long Al Dunlap sticks around post-deal, and 6) who is slated to succeed Dunlap post-deal. As of now, it is Morgan Stanley's job to figure out most of these details, not ours. But again we should reiterate, we are reasonably certain that significant shareholder value will be created.

CP 017114
CONFIDENTIAL
CPH 1407310

Just how "expensive" is Sunbeam at these levels?

For some perspective, we believe it would be helpful to list the trading multiples of some other solid consumer durable goods companies. This helps to illustrate why we do not believe Sunbeam will be on the sell side of the transaction. If any of the companies mentioned below were to make an offer for Sunbeam, even at its current price, without any premium, most would need to rent Dunlap's chainsaw for a year just to offset all of the dilution in the transaction. The following list is just to offer some trading multiple perspective. Yes, many of the names below have been mentioned as potential Sunbeam targets and/or suitors. We are not calling them either, although anything is possible. The names are listed alphabetically, so nothing should be read too much into this list.

Source: Company reports. Earnings estimates from First Call.

The above table illustrates that in rough terms, Sunbeam trades at 3.0 times the mean sales multiple, 1.7 times the mean 1997 P/E and 1.4 times the mean 1998 P/E for the consumer durable goods companies we have selected. While this may make Sunbeam an unlikely takeover candidate, on the flip-side it conveys the potential for a very accretive transaction if Sunbeam can strike a stock deal as an acquirer at a reasonable premium to the potential target. This immediate accretion, coupled with Dunlap's cost-cutting prowess, could lead to substantial upward revision in Sunbeam earnings estimates.

A bit of history

With the pursuit of Phase III in full gear, we believe it would be helpful to provide a brief chronology of Dunlap's last "quantum leap," the merger of Scott Paper with Kimberly Clark. So far the Sunbeam story has played out roughly along the same lines as the Scott paper turnaround. We are not implying that the "quantum leap" will occur in the same fashion as Scott. In fact, we already have indicated that we believe the Sunbeam leap will have Dunlap on the buy-side this time, not the sell-side. But overall, the stories seem very similar at this point, 12-15 months into the story: Dunlap at the head of what people are starting to view as an expensive company, exploring the next course of action.

As a bit of background, recall Dunlap took over at Scott Paper in April 1994, with the Scott stock price at $18 ¾ (split-adjusted). He proceeded to slash 11,000 jobs, sell off over $2 billion worth of assets and direct the company along a new course of growth. As would be expected, Scott Paper's stock price and resulting valuation took off like a rocket. We start our chronology roughly 11 months into the Scott turnaround (recall, we are 15 months into the Sunbeam turnaround).

March 8, 1995

- Dorfman Comments: CNBC correspondent, Dan Dorfman, reports that sources have told him Scott is a target of a buyout by either Kimberly-Clark or KKR. Scott shares hit a 52-week high of $41 11/16 during the day and close at $40 11/16. S.G. Warburg paper industry analyst comments, "The idea of Kimberly-Clark buying Scott Paper borders on the ludicrous," citing anti-trust concerns among other reasons. The analyst further comments that Scott shares may also be priced too high to make the company an attractive takeover candidate.

April 5, 1995

- PaineWebber downgrades Scott on valuation: PaineWebber paper industry analyst downgrades Scott to neutral from buy following Scott's Analysts Presentation in New York. Analyst states, "Clearly Scott Paper has made a remarkable turn in the last year, moving from a paper company to more of a consumer products company. However, the valuation seems to reflect that." At the time, Scott's valuation of 25.5 times trailing earnings surpassed some other blue-chip consumer non-durable companies, such as Clorox (17.7 times), Colgate (17.1 times) and Kimberly-Clark (15.7 times).

April 18, 1995

- Scott reports blowout first quarter 1995 earnings: Scott reports a tripling in EPS to $1.28 in the quarter, $0.08 ahead of Street expectations of $1.20. Revenues rose 21%. Stock actually closes down for the day. Investors point to inventory build-up at Scott just as the paper cycle may be turning downward. The S&P Paper & Forest Products Index fell 4.6% in the three days leading up to the Scott Paper earnings, as most paper stocks plummeted despite strong earnings. Scott stock closes at $42 9/16 for the day. Dunlap stands by his mantra, "The best is yet to come."

June 23, 1995

- Wall Street Journal reports Scott in talks with Kimberly: While the deal is still not official, The Journal reports that a deal is in the works and provides what turns out to be very accurate specifics. Kimberly to offer 0.78 Kimberly-Clark share for each Scott share. Offer is at no premium to Scott share price at the time. Kimberly shares close up $2 ¼, at $62 ½. Scott shares close up $1 1/8, at $48.

July 17, 1995

- Kimberly/Scott merger officially announced: Terms of the deal are officially disclosed; Kimberly to exchange 0.765 Kimberly-Clark share for each Scott share. Transaction valued at $6.8 billion. Ratio moves to 0.78 if Kimberly's tobacco assets are spun-off prior to the closing of the Scott transaction (this does happen; final ratio is 0.78). Some disappointment on the part of Scott shareholders on the news. Scott shares fall $2 7/8, to $46 ¼. Kimberly shares jump $5 1/8, to $63 ¾. Brown Brothers paper industry analyst says, "Some people may feel the price is too low." Scott shareholder from PNC Bank states, "I thought Scott would have gotten a better price." Following the announcement, Kimberly-Clark CFO, Wayne Sanders, states that he sees $400 million of annual savings by 1998 as a result of the deal.

December 12, 1995

- Kimberly/Scott merger closes: Nearly five months later, as the market has had time to assess the business combination and get a feel for cost cutting and synergy potential, the merger closes with Kimberly-Clark shares at $78 ½ and Scott shares at 78% of that amount, or $61 1/8, up 226% from the day Dunlap took control 20 months earlier (up 32% from date merger was announced). Final transaction size, $9.4 billion. Kimberly CEO, Wayne Sanders, was to announce a sweeping restructuring the next day at a much-anticipated investor presentation, with Al Dunlap to continue as a consultant to Kimberly-Clark. Dunlap was signed as an advisor to the Kimberly board for five years and was to receive 5,000 Kimberly shares per year for each year of the agreement. As a result of the merger, Dunlap already owned over a million shares of Kimberly-Clark.

In sum, regarding Phase III

We agree with much of what already has been said in the press regarding Phase III. We agree that Sunbeam may be too rich to be taken over, but we do not believe that this means Sunbeam is overvalued. Sunbeam possesses an intangible asset, the Dunlap factor, that none of its potential targets possesses...yet. We believe this is where the real kicker in the Sunbeam story exists. Certainly a move to $56 from $45 would be nice without Phase III, but we do not believe this is why investors are still buying Sunbeam shares at these levels. The real potential for another round of meteoric stock price appreciation comes if Sunbeam can makes a strategic acquisition, using Sunbeam stock as the currency, at a modest premium that doesn't already factor in all of the cost-cutting potential. If Sunbeam can pull this off, Sunbeam shareholders may be getting two Dunlap turnarounds for the price of one. Now that's a bright idea.

Risks

The Sunbeam story certainly is not without risks. While it appears the second half of 1997 is coming along according to plan, the company has in no way "lowered the bar" in 1998. Timing and consumer acceptance (at higher-than-average price points) are crucial to the company delivering both accelerated top-line growth and margin expansion. Longer term (6 to 12 months), management must come up with the next "quantum leap" (Phase III, merge or acquire) that the investment community has come to expect from Al Dunlap in order for SOC's price to trade above our price target. Any prolonged delay or failure to execute this "leap" could result in a pull-back in the stock from its current levels.

Investment Highlights:

- Sunbeam reported solid third quarter EPS of $0.39 vs. $(0.19), which beat our estimate by a penny.
- Earnings were driven by stronger than expected sales growth. New products, distribution gains, and geographical expansion drove sales up 25% to $289 million.
- The operating margin of 19% was just shy of management's 20% long-term objective. We would expect Sunbeam to hit this goal in Q4.
- Although inventory and receivables were both up significantly at quarter end, management attributes these increases to timing and the seasonal build for the fourth quarter. Management still expects working capital to be a source of cash in 1997.
- Looking for the next "Quantum Leap". On a fundamental basis, Sunbeam shares are not cheap. However, we continue to recommend the stock, believing Al Dunlap is strongly bent on creating additional shareholder value.

Quantum Leap Coming Soon?

Part of Al Dunlap's blueprint for fixing companies entails taking companies through quantum leaps. What this means is that after turning a business around, he typically sells it for a significant premium above current market value.

Sunbeam shares have had quite a run under Mr. Dunlap's tenure, increasing over 4-fold since he took over in August 1996. Currently, Sunbeam is trading at 27x the mid-point of our 1998 estimate, which puts it at the upper end of valuations in the consumer products universe. However, we continue to recommend the stock, believing Mr. Dunlap will do everything in his power to create additional shareholder value (i.e. take the company through the next quantum leap).

We continue to think that this process is more likely to entail buying and restructuring another company using Sunbeam as his currency than selling Sunbeam outright. We are unsure what companies Mr. Dunlap has in his sights, but we would not be surprised if he aims for a large target.

In any event, we get the sense that Mr. Dunlap is pleased with the turnaround he has engineered at Sunbeam, and that he is itching to do something more. Although we have no proof, he could be getting close to taking the company to the next level. Stay tuned.

Strong Q3 Results

Sunbeam reported third quarter EPS of $0.39 vs. $(0.19), which beat our estimate by $0.01.

Sales advanced 24.7% to $289 million. Excluding all divested business from last year's results, sales rose 28%. U.S. sales increased 24%, while international was up 51%. Sales to Sunbeam's top-10 customers advanced 30%.

Appliances (42% of total) rose 33% on the introduction of a number of new products, including a softserve ice cream maker, a redesigned Oster blender, and a deep fryer.

Sales of outdoor products (11% of total) increased 26% as Sunbeam was successful in extending the selling season in grills.

Health at home products (9% of total) rose 13% on sales of air cleaners, vaporizers, and humidifiers. Management is clearly excited about this category's potential in the fourth quarter given the recent unveiling of Sunbeam's new air filter and water purifier products.

Personal care and comfort (30% of total) rose 30% behind strong electric blanket sales. Away from home (6% of total) increased 2%.

Margins continued to expand strongly, reflecting the benefits from last year's restructuring. In addition, capacity utilization rates are much higher. The gross margin expanded to 30.7% from 12.4%. Operating profit was $55 million up from a loss last year of $21 million. The operating margin hit 19.0% in the quarter, coming close to matching management's long-term goal of 20%.

Inventories and receivables increased significantly in the fourth quarter. From the end of the second quarter, inventories jumped 40% or $82.5 million to $291 million, while receivables were up 23% or $57.1 million to $309 million. While alarming, management attributes the receivable increase mostly to timing differences, as a significant portion of the quarter's sales were shipped in September. The inventory build reflects management's anticipation of strong fourth quarter sales. Management is confident both of these levels will drop significantly in the fourth quarter and that working capital will still be a source of cash in 1997. Given the strong sales momentum, we are given to believe management's conviction.

Q4 Outlook

We estimate fourth quarter EPS of $0.48 vs. $(0.03). We forecast a sales increase of 20% to $323 million driven by new products and international expansion. However, Sunbeam has consistently beaten our sales expectations all year, so we would not be surprised if we are low. If sales are higher than expected, Sunbeam's earnings could hit the high-end of our $1.30-$1.50 EPS range for 1997. We look for continued margin expansion. Thus, the operating margin could hit 20%-21% in the quarter. For 1998, we continue to estimate EPS of $1.70-$1.90.

Valuation Points

- The inherent value of C is approximately $24.78 to $38.94 per share based on a discounted cash flows analysis of a moderate base case (7.5% CAGR of revenue and EBITDA).
- The synergies created by the transaction are estimated by both management teams to be $100 to $150 million pre-tax or $60 to $90 million after-tax:
  - $60 to $90 million at S's 1998E P/E of 20.3x translates into $1,200 million to $1,800 million of value or $21.00 to $32.00 per share
  - At 18.0x (the average of S&C's 1998 P/E), this implies a value of $1,100 to $1,600 million or $19.00 to $28.00 per share.
- The equity analysts that cover C expect it to trade to $22.00 to $23.00 per share over the next twelve months, which implies a public trading market value of $20.26 today, which at a 40-50% takeover premium implies $28.00 to $30.00 per share prices.
- At current stock prices, an acquisition of C at $30.00 per share would be breakeven with only $92 million of pre-tax synergies in an all-stock deal or $88 million of pre-tax synergies in an all-cash deal.

Recent Comments on S

S's share price has been supported by the market's expectation that management would deliver on its promises of $2,000 million in sales and operating margins of 20.0% by 1999.

Recent Analyst Comments

- "... market watchers said S must step up to the plate and deliver the goods, which includes sales growth of 20% or more, one of the targets the Company has set. That goal may be tough to achieve next year now that the outlook has dimmed with the currency turmoil in Asia and slow growth in Brazil."

- "S management must come up with the next 'quantum leap' (Phase III, merge or acquire) that the investment community has come to expect from Al Dunlap in order for S's price to trade above our price target. Any prolonged delay or failure to execute this "leap" could result in a pull-back in the stock from its current levels."

8/25/97 Cardinal Health Inc. Acquires Bergen Brunswig (Premium 58.0%): Cardinal is a U.S. healthcare service provider and Bergen is a U.S. distributor of pharmaceuticals and medical-surgical supplies. Transaction value is $2.8 billion. Synergies in excess of $100 million were expected, through consolidation of distribution centers and reduction in capital expenditures. Value of synergies does not include cross-selling ancillary services to a larger customer base.

6/11/97 Lennar Corp. Acquires Pacific Greystone Corp. (Premium 83.3%): Both companies are involved in the home building industry. Lennar's shares rose 16% after announcement. Combined company is the fifth-largest home builder, based on revenues and homes sold. Market consensus indicated good strategic fit, due to Pacific Greystone's operating depth in California and Lennar's significant lot inventory in the area.

6/10/97 Halliburton Co. Acquires Numar Corp. (Premium 99.3%): Halliburton is an oil field services company and Numar is a manufacturer of devices used to evaluate rock formations that contain oil and natural gas. JOHN D. TYREE, called as a witness, having been duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION BY MR MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Tyree, would you please state your fall name?

A. John D'Arcy Tyree.

Q. And would you spell that, please.

A. Do you want me to spell the whole name?

Q. Yes.

A. J-O-H-N, D-'-A-R-C-Y, T-Y-R-E-E.

Q. And where do you currently reside, Mr. Tyree?

A. In London.

Q. What's your address there?

A. 27 Neville Street, SW73AS, London, United Kingdom.

Q. Mr. Tyree, as I just indicated, I represent Coleman Parent Holdings in a lawsuit against Morgan Stanley and Company.

Let me show you a copy of the complaint we filed against Morgan Stanley.

Tyree

Have you seen that before?
A. No, I have not.
Q. You have not had an opportunity to review the complaint?
A. I haven't had an opportunity to review this document as it stands, no.
Q. Are you aware of the nature of the lawsuit that Coleman Parent filed against Morgan Stanley?
A. Can you be a little more clear about the nature of the lawsuit.
Q. Are you aware of the claims that Coleman Parent has asserted against Morgan Stanley?
A. I am aware that certain claims have been made against Morgan Stanley in regards to Sunbeam's issuance of convertible notes.
Q. What's your understanding?
MR. CLARE: I will object to the question and I will instruct you, Mr. Tyree, in answering the question, if you have an understanding apart from your conversations with counsel, people representing Morgan Stanley, that you can answer the question, but I would instruct you to limit your answer and exclude any conversations that you would have had with counsel for Morgan Stanley, inside or outside counsel.

Tyree

A. The only understanding that I have in regards to this case arose from dialogue that I have had with either Morgan Stanley counsel other external third party counsel.
Q. All right. You have had an opportunity to meet with counsel to prepare for your deposition today, is that correct?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. When were you born, Mr. Tyree?
A. I was born August 23, 1965.
Q. You graduated from West Point in 1987?
A. That's correct.
Q. What was your degree?
A. Well, I actually had a double degree, or dual degree as it were, a Bachelor of Science. Everyone at West Point gets that degree. And then also Bachelor of Arts in English literature.
Q. Did your science degree have a particular specialty?

Tyree

A. General engineering.
Q. Did you enter the army after graduating from West Point?
A. No.
Q. What happened?
A. Well, actually you are in the army when you're at West Point, so you're sworn in your first day as a freshman.
Q. All right. Did you continue your military service after you graduated from West Point?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And what was your starting rank?
A. Second lieutenant.
Q. And how long did you serve?
A. You need to be a little bit more specific. Do you mean in what capacity?
Q. Well, are you currently in the army?
A. I am not in the army now, no.
Q. How long did you continue after your graduation from West Point to serve in the army?

Tyree

A. I was an active duty army officer for approximately five and a half to six years.
Q. And did your army service continue after that?
A. Yes.
Q. In what status?
A. The individual ready reserve.
Q. And how long did that continue?
A. I don't remember exactly the length of time.
Q. Do you know approximately?
A. Approximately five years.
Q. So you were in active service until approximately 1993, is that right?
A. I believe it was closer to 1992. And the other point I would make is active service is defined from the date when I started the Academy, which is active service.
Q. The five and a half years you're counting from the time you started at West Point?
A. Active duty, yes.
Q. So your active duty service after 01714

Page 9

Tyree
you left West Point was approximately a year and a half to two years?
A. No. To be more clear, I consider the time when I started the Academy going forward as active duty service.
Q. All right, I'm focussing on the time after you left West Point. You stayed in active service with the army until approximately 1992?
A. That's correct.
Q. And what was your rank when you left the army in 1992, left active service in 1992?
A. I was a captain.
Q. What assignments did you have between the time you left West Point in 1987 and the time you left active service in approximately 1992?
A. Just to be clear, when you say assignments, do you mean geographic or what branch of the service I was in?
Q. However you want to characterize it.
A. I was an armored tank platoon

Page 10

Tyree
leader for several years, company executive officer, and following that head of an army program which trained allied military personnel.
Q. How long were you a tank platoon leader?
A. I was a tank platoon leader for approximately two years.
Q. Where were you stationed when you had that assignment?
A. Initially I was stationed in Fort Knox Kentucky for my training as a tank platoon leader, and then joined my unit in Schweinford, Germany.
Q. Did you see any combat duty during that time period?
A. Not during that period, no.
Q. And then you became a company executive officer?
A. That's correct.
Q. And where was that assignment?
A. The same location, Schweinford, Germany.
Q. And what were your responsibilities

Page 11

Tyree
there?
A. They were extensive.
Q. Can you give me an overview?
A. I was responsible for, among other things, maintenance of the vehicle. I was second in command of the company. I was responsible for numerous personnel issues, pay and allowances, et cetera.
Q. How many personnel are assigned to the company?
A. It's dependent. I was an executive officer for two different types of companies.
Q. And how large were each of them?
A. The first company I was an executive officer for was a line tank company with approximately 80 people assigned to it. The second was a headquarters company with approximately 350 people assigned to it.
Q. How long were you the company commander for the tank line company?
A. I don't remember exactly.
Q. Was it a matter of months or longer?
A. It was a matter of months.

Page 12

Tyree
Q. Was it a promotion to be assigned the responsibility as the company commander for the headquarters unit?
A. If you can define promotion a little more clearly.
Q. I'm sorry, I guess your title was company executive officer, is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Was it a change in rank for you?
A. No, it was not a change in rank.
Q. Was it a more significant set of responsibilities?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. And how long did you remain the company executive officer for the headquarters company?
A. Again, I don't remember the exact amount of time.
Q. Can you approximate it for me?
A. Approximately a year.
Q. And where was that assignment at?
A. Schweinford, Germany.
Q. Did you see any combat service during the period of time when you were the

Q. Approximately.

A. Approximately late 1990 to 1992.

Q. Was that your final active duty assignment?

A. Yes.

Q. And tell me in general terms what your responsibilities were.

A. Again, there were numerous responsibilities. I hesitate, it could be a lengthy conversation.

Tyree

Q. Okay, just start and I'll tell you when you've given me enough detail.

A. My duties involved managing training and overseeing the well-being of allied army officers over the period described.

Q. How large was the training program itself?

A. It varied in size during the period I was managing it.

Q. Approximately.

A. It varied from less than 15 to less than a hundred officers.

Q. Is there a particular focus to this training program?

A. There were many purposes.

Q. Give me some of them.

A. To train our allies in American military tactics and strategy, among other things.

Tyree

Q. What different allied countries were involved in this training program?

A. There were many.

Q. How many approximately?

A. I really can't recall.

Q. Can you give me some examples?

A. Yes. We had students from Saudi Arabia, students from France, among others.

Q. Were the allied personnel all officer personnel?

A. I can't recall exactly if everyone was at the officer rank.

Q. Was it all classroom training?

A. No.

Q. Were you actually involved in providing instruction as part of the program?

A. I would characterize it differently.

Q. How would you characterize it?

A. I served in oversight function to ensure they received instruction.

Q. And who were you supervising?

Tyree

A. I thought I answered that earlier. I was supervising these students.

Q. Well, were you supervising instructors as well?

A. I wouldn't characterize my role as supervising instructors.

Q. Did you have any US personnel that reported to you in connection with this assignment?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What were the responsibilities of those people?

A. I can't remember exactly.

A. Yes, I did.
Q. And what were they?
A. I received a number of awards when I was in the service.

Tyree

A. I remember the army achievement medal.
Q. Any others?
A. There were others.
Q. Do you recall any others?
A. I received the army commendation medal.
Q. Anything else that you recall?
A. I received the airborne badge.
Q. Any others?
A. Those are really all that I recall.
Q. What was the army achievement medal awarded for?
A. I can't exactly remember.
Q. Do you have a general recollection?
A. Yes.
Q. And what's your general recollection of why you received that medal?
A. My general recollection, it was a long time ago, was for excellence in gunnery skills for myself and my platoon.
Q. And the second one that you recall was the army commendation medal, is that correct?

Tyree

A. That is correct.
Q. And what was this awarded for?

A. Yes.
Q. Which summer was it?
A. My recollection was it was the summer of 1993.
Q. Other than your internship, did you have any other employment while were you at Tuck?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. I was hired by the admissions office to interview incoming candidates.
Q. Any other employment during that time period?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. How did you get the internship at Morgan Stanley?
A. Can you be more clear in terms of how did I get the internship?
Q. How did it come to be that you got an internship at Morgan Stanley?
A. I applied for the internship and I

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Tyree

received it.
Q. Did anyone recommend you for the position?
A. Can you clarify what you mean by recommend?
Q. Did anyone recommend to Morgan Stanley that Morgan Stanley hire you for this summer internship?
A. Yes.
Q. Who?
A. My recollection is a gentleman by the name of John Paul.
Q. Anyone else?
A. There may have been others, but I don't recall.
Q. Who is John Paul?
A. At the time John was an employee of the firm.
Q. An employee of Morgan Stanley?
A. That's correct.
Q. How did you happen to know him?
A. I had met him socially.
Q. What was Mr. Paul's job back in 1993 at Morgan Stanley?

Tyree

A. I don't remember exactly what his position was.
Q. Do you know what department he worked in?
A. Again, it was a long time ago. I believe he was in the real estate area of the firm.
Q. Did you receive any academic honors at the Tuck Graduate School of Business?
A. No, other than the diploma.
Q. And you got a Master's in business administration, right?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the nature of the internship at Morgan Stanley?
A. Again, could you just --
Q. What kinds of things did you do?
A. I worked on investment banking transactions.
Q. Anything else?
A. No, I think that's what I did.
Q. What kinds of responsibilities did you have?
A. A myriad of different

Tyree

responsibilities.
Q. Give me some examples.
A. I would assist in the preparation of client presentations.
Q. What kinds of assistance did you provide?
A. It varied significantly.
Q. Give me some examples.
A. I would help to process changes to the document.
Q. What does that mean?
A. It varied significantly, depending on who might be asking to have changes made to the document.
Q. What's the range of things that that would involve?
A. It's a very broad range.
Q. Tell me what it was.
A. Well, this won't be all-inclusive, but a senior person at the firm might look at a presentation and want to either amend it in terms of substance and would annotate by hand those amendments. I would then take that up to processing and have it turned from handwritten comments to typed neat comments.

Tyree

Q. That sounds pretty basic, right?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. How much more extensive would your responsibilities with be respect to processing other than seeing that the handwriting got changed into typing?
A. I might update the financial numbers in a presentation.
Q. Other than working on client presentations, can you recall anything else you did while working as a client intern?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. We would participate in briefings, receive briefings from representatives of various parts of the firm.
Q. What was the nature of those briefings?
A. It varied significantly.
Q. From what to what?
A. We could receive a briefing on approaches to company valuation.
Q. What else?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011746

Tyree

A. Again, it was a long time ago, so -- I recall a presentation on administrative matters at Morgan Stanley.

Q. What do you mean by administrative matters?

A. It varied extensively, how to go to word processing and process changes would be one, how to learn how to use different client billing numbers and cost centers might be another.

Q. Would you characterize any of the activity as instructional in terms of how to perform investment banking services for clients?

A. I'm sorry, are you referring to the comments I made there or the broad base of instruction that I received?

Q. You referred generally to receiving briefings from different departments of Morgan Stanley.

A. That's correct.

Q. Would you characterize any of that as instructional in terms of how to perform investment banking services for Morgan Stanley clients?

Tyree

A. I would characterize it as an introduction, among other things, to investment banking services provided by Morgan Stanley.

Q. Let me put it this way. I'm envisioning two kind of presentations. One is a presentation where someone comes in and says here's what we do in our department, the kinds of services we perform, to give you an overview of what kinds of activities that group engages in. Another kind of instruction would be for someone in that group to come in and try to teach people how to do some aspect of the services that that department performs. Would you characterize any of the presentations you received as more like the latter in terms of substantive instruction on how to perform a service?

A. I believe there were elements of both in the training we received.

Q. So you did receive training on how to perform certain kinds of functions for clients during your summer internship?

Tyree

A. Again, I would characterize it as an introductory training as it were, to investment banking services that Morgan Stanley provides to clients.

Q. And when did you start full-time employment at Morgan Stanley?

A. Are you defining full-time employment as after my summer internship?

Q. Correct. I wouldn't consider a summer internship to be full-time employment.

A. I started full-time employment in 1994 at Morgan Stanley.

Q. Do you remember the month?

A. I don't remember the exact month.

Q. Do you remember the time of year?

A. I believe it was either in the summer or the fall.

Q. And you completed your studies at Dartmouth in the fall of -- in 1994, excuse me, let me rephrase that.

You finished your MBA program at Dartmouth in 1994, is that correct?

A. I believe that's correct.

Q. How long between the time you completed your class studies and the time you started work at Morgan Stanley was it?

Tyree

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you take some time off?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you do?

A. Among other things, I travelled with friends.

Q. When were you offered your job at Morgan Stanley?

A. I don't remember the exact date when I received the offer.

Q. Was it some time shortly after the summer internship completed itself?

A. I just don't remember if it was shortly after the summer internship was completed.

Q. Did you have to reapply for employment at Morgan Stanley after the summer internship concluded?

A. I did not have to reapply, as you put it, per se.

Q. Was it the case that Morgan Stanley made job offers to people based on their

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017147

Tyree
performance in the summer internship program?
A. Among other variables, yes.
Q. And that's how you got your job at Morgan Stanley?
A. I just don't understand the question.
Q. Well, you were in the summer internship program at Morgan Stanley.
A. Yes.
Q. Was it in connection with that program's activities that Morgan Stanley offered you a full time position at the firm?
A. You'd have to talk to the people who hired me, you know, to dictate why I received the offer.
Q. Well, did you go through another round of interviews after the summer internship concluded?
A. I don't recall going through another round of interviews.
Q. All right, so up finished the internship, you went back to school and at some point Morgan Stanley made you a job offer?

Tyree
A. That's right, that's correct.
Q. Was the job offer to work in a particular department at Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. What department was it?
A. It was in the investment banking division.
Q. Was it to work with a particular group in the investment banking division?
A. No.
Q. Had you sought employment in the investment banking division?
A. Yes.
Q. That was the department you wanted to go to work for?
A. That is correct.
Q. When you started at Morgan Stanley in the investment banking division in 1994, was there an initial training program that you were put through?
A. As I recall there was a training program.
Q. How long did that last?
A. I don't remember exactly.

Tyree
Q. Approximately.
A. I believe it lasted more than a month.
Q. Where was that at?
A. It took place at a training center just outside of New York, New York City.
Q. Is this a training center owned by Morgan Stanley?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation. You can answer if you know.
A. I don't know if it's owned by Morgan Stanley today.
Q. I'm talking about at the time.
A. At the time I believe it was owned by IBM.
Q. Who provided the training?
A. Again, I don't remember. There were numerous classes so I don't remember who provided the training.
Q. Was the training provided by Morgan Stanley employees?
A. There were some Morgan Stanley employees who provided training during this period of time.

Tyree
Q. Some of the training is by Morgan Stanley staff?
A. I believe that there were some third parties who participated in the training.
Q. What subjects were covered?
A. A myriad of subjects.
Q. Which do you remember?
A. I actually remember many of the topics I've already mentioned to you in regards to the summer associate training.
Q. I'm sorry, I don't understand your answer.
A. You asked me earlier when presentations were given to the summer associates, what the content of some of those presentations were. This in part included some of those same topics that were covered with us as summer associates.
Q. So there was some repetition of the topics?
A. That's correct.
Q. All right, what topics do you remember though?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017148

Tyree

A. Administrative issues at Morgan Stanley, approaches to valuation, and a broad array of other topics and I just can't recall the specifics.

Q. You can't remember any of the other things that were covered?

A. No, I said I can't recall the specifics. A number of other investment banking related topics.

Q. Is this training program all directed to people who are starting work in the investment banking division of Morgan Stanley?

A. As I recall, this training that I participated in was designed for associates who were going to be joining the firm in the investment banking division.

Q. All right, other than administrative issues and valuation issues, what other specific investment banking related subjects do you remember being covered during this training program?

A. I recall discussing case studies of different transactions that Morgan Stanley had participated in.

Tyree

Q. Anything else?

A. I recall discussions regarding the functioning of the debt capital markets and the equity capital markets.

Q. Anything else?

A. That's really all I can remember specifically.

Q. Do you remember any discussion about the due diligence process that would be involved in public offerings that Morgan Stanley underwrote?

A. I don't regard any specific instruction on due diligence during this training session, no.

Q. You said you don't regard it. Do you mean you don't recall it?

A. My mistake. I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall any training with respect to how to conduct due diligence during this initial training session?

A. That is correct. It's not to say it didn't happen, I just didn't recall it.

Q. When this training session was completed, this month or so long training program was completed, what happened next in terms of your Morgan Stanley employment?

Tyree

A. We began work at the firm.

Q. What was your first assignment?

A. I don't remember my first assignment.

Q. Where was it at?

A. Morgan Stanley's headquarters in New York.

Q. But you don't remember what your first job was?

A. No, I don't remember my first assignment.

Q. Well, by assignment I mean your first position at the firm. I don't mean your first piece of work that day, I mean were you assigned to a particular position in the firm?

A. Other than being assigned as associate in the investment banking division, no.

Q. Who did you report to?

A. I reported to a number of different people within the investment banking division and obviously at the senior levels of the firm.

Tyree

Q. Was there someone who directly supervised your day-to-day work?

A. Yes, there was.

Q. Who was that?

A. I don't recall his name.

Q. How did you get your work assignments?

A. This individual would assign you.

Q. What was the nature of your early work at Morgan Stanley as an associate in investment banking?

A. It was effectively the same as my work when I was a summer associate that we discussed earlier.

Q. Is there a particular group within investment banking that you were assigned to at that initial point?

A. If you can clarify what you mean by group.

Q. Was the investment banking division at Morgan Stanley divided into different functions?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017149

Page 41

Tyree
A. It is divided into different groups, part of the it is, yes.
Q. And what are those different groupings?
A. There are a number of different groups.
Q. Can you tell me what they are?
A. Not all of them, no.
Q. Can you tell me what some of them are?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you, please.
A. At the point when I started work at Morgan Stanley as an associate, there was a real estate group, general industrial group, mergers and acquisitions group and a number of other specific industry coverage groups.
Q. Now, initially you were not assigned to any of those specialty groups?
A. That is correct.
Q. Was there a point in time when did you get assigned to a particular specialty or function?
A. Yes.

Page 42

Tyree
Q. And what was that first assignment?
A. Not to be cute, but first assignment or first group?
Q. First group.
A. The first group that I was assigned to was the general industrial group.
Q. And how long after you started did you get assigned to the general industrial group?
A. I don't remember exactly.
Q. Was it weeks or months or years?
A. Years.
Q. All right let's spend a little more time on the period before that. What kind of things were you doing during the period before you were assigned to the industrial group?
A. Again those tasks we discussed when I was a summer associate, basically the same sorts of tasks.
Q. So were you working on client presentations?
A. Among other things, yes.
Q. Did your responsibilities grow over the period of time that you were in the

Page 43

Tyree
general investment group.
A. Yes, they did.
Q. And what did they begin to include that they didn't earlier?
A. That's a difficult question the way you phrased it, because I was often part of many aspects of investment banking work, but you asked if my responsibilities grew, and they did, but I still worked within those same general parameters and the same sorts of projects.
Q. Well, give me a sense of how your responsibilities changed then.
A. Again we're talking many years ago, but in lieu of just, as we discussed earlier, making changes to presentations that were given to me by other people, I would be more actively making those changes myself, as I increased my levels of responsibility.
Q. Anything else?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. I would work more in a senior role relative to the analysts who work at Morgan

Page 44

Tyree
Stanley as opposed to being more of an equal, as my responsibilities grew within the firm.
Q. Okay, anything else?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. I would with greater frequency interact with clients.
Q. Anything else you can recall in terms of increased responsibilities during this initial phase before you were assigned to the general industrial group?
A. I think that gives you a good overview.
Q. So you began to supervise analysts, is that a fair statement, in connection with some activities?
A. I wouldn't characterize it that way. I approach my work at Morgan Stanley in a team function, so the way I would characterize it is they increasingly looked to me for guidance in some issues.
Q. What's the function of an analyst?
A. They have many functions.
Q. Give me examples of that.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011150

Tyree

A. Among other things, they will conduct financial modelling.
Q. Anything else?
A. They will on occasion assist in logistical matters.
Q. What do you mean by logistics in that context?
A. If a Morgan Stanley team is travelling to a certain location, the analyst in many cases will ensure that the logistical issues involved in that travelling are taken care of and run smoothly.
Q. Airplane and hotel arrangements, things of that nature?
A. On occasion.
Q. You indicated that your responsibilities more and more included interaction with clients, is that correct?
A. As my responsibilities increased within the firm, I would more frequently interact with clients.
Q. And during this initial phase, we're still focussing on this initial phase before you went to work for the general industrial group, what kinds of client interaction would you have?

Tyree

A. Again, a wide array of interactions. Can you be a little more specific?
Q. Well, I need to hear from you I guess what, in general terms, the kinds of client responsibility you had.
A. I hesitate somewhat because it very much depends upon what the purpose of the work is that I'm doing at the time.
Q. Did you make presentations to prospective clients?
A. I would very rarely, if ever, make presentations to clients on my own at this stage of my career.
Q. Did you make presentations to clients in connection with equity offerings?
A. Again, at this point in my career I would very rarely make presentations to clients about anything on my own.
Q. Did you interact with clients in connection with due diligence activities during that time period?

Tyree

A. I can't remember if I did or didn't.
Q. What kinds of client interaction can you recall?
A. I can recall attending client presentations with senior members of the firm - and being in a support role during those presentations.
Q. Do you remember when it was that you moved into the general industrial group?
A. Not exactly.
Q. How did that come about?
A. Can you be an a little more specific when you ask how did it come about?
Q. Well, you got assigned to the general industrial group at some point, correct?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And how did that assignment come to occur?
A. I received a call saying that -- asking me if I'd like to join the general industrial group, and I said yes and started business with them, started work the next day.

Tyree

Q. Was that a different location from where you had been working?
A. Yes.
Q. Where was this location?
A. It was on a different floor from where I was. I don't recall the exact floor it was on.
Q. But you're still working at Morgan Stanley's New York headquarters?
A. That is correct, at this time.
Q. Do you remember who called you?
A. No.
Q. Had you sought a position in the general industrial group?
A. I had sought a position in a number of different groups and the general industrial group was one of them.
Q. How long were you in that group?
A. I don't know exactly.
Q. Can you approximate it for me?
A. I believe I was in the general industrial group for between one and two and a half years.
Q. For between one and two and a half

017151

Page 49

Tyree
years?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your title while you were in that group, did you have one?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. What was it?
A. I was an associate.
Q. That was the same title you had as a starting employee, is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did your title ever change while you were in that group?
A. I do not believe my title changed during my time in the general industrial group, no.
Q. To whom did you report in the general industrial group?
A. Again, I reported to a number of different people.
Q. Was there a particular person who supervised your daily activities, gave you assignments?
A. In the general industrial group?
Q. Correct.

Page 50

Tyree
A. There were people who fulfilled both of those roles, separate people.
Q. Who supervised your daily activity?
A. As I recall, the individual who was quoted as head of the group I believe was Richard Swift at the time that I was in that group.
Q. And who gave you your assignments?
A. I can't remember the name of the assignments officer at the time that I was in the group.
Q. Did your responsibilities differ in the general industrial group than they had previously been?
A. I don't characterize it that way.
Q. Was the nature of your work the same?
A. The basic nature of the investment banking services that I was providing and the work that I was doing did not change dramatically.
Q. What was different then about being in the general industrial group?
A. The clients that we focused on,

Page 51

Tyree
among other things.
Q. Did your responsibilities increase in the general industrial group over time?
A. Yes.
Q. And what did your new responsibilities begin to include then?
A. They included again more direct interaction with clients, more frequent interaction with clients, among other things.
Q. Anything else?
A. I increasingly worked with more senior people within the firm.
Q. Did there come a point where you left the general industrial group to go to work for another group or division, department within Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was the next group that you worked for?
A. At the time it was known as the client services group.
Q. Do you recall approximately when you started to work for the client services group?

Page 52

Tyree
A. I believe that I started working for the client services group in approximately 199 -- I'm sorry, either between 1996 or 1997.
Q. How did your move to that position take place?
A. Can you be a little more specific?
Q. Well, one day you're working in the industrial services group, right? Did I get that name wrong? The general industrial group.
A. That's correct.
Q. And you started working for the client services group?
A. That's right.
Q. How did that occur?
A. I asked to move to the client services group.
Q. Why did you make that request?
A. A number of reasons.
Q. What were they?
A. I was -- I sought to broaden my professional exposure.
Q. What else?
A. I found that I had a good rapport

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017152

Tyree

with the professionals within the client services group.

Q. Any other reasons why you made that request?

A. I found the work that they did stimulating.

Q. Any other reasons?

A. I think those were the main reasons.

Q. What is the function of the client services group or what was it back in 1996 or 1997?

A. It has many -- or correction, it had many functions.

Q. What were they back at that time?

A. The broad function of the group is to assist in the management and execution of Morgan Stanley financing transactions.

Q. I'm sorry, what kinds of transactions?

A. Financing transactions.

Q. What's a Morgan Stanley financing transaction?

A. It can be one of many things.

Tyree

Q. What are those things?

A. Again, I will give you an example. An equity issuance by a client is a financing transaction.

Q. What else besides issuing equity?

A. A debt issuance by a client is a financing transaction.

Q. Does it essentially include any transactions by which Morgan Stanley assists clients in raising money?

A. I'm sorry, could you repeat?

Q. Does a Morgan Stanley financing transaction basically include any transaction by which Morgan Stanley assists a client in raising money by means of debt or equity?

A. I would not characterize it that way, no.

Q. In what way did I misdescribe the nature of the transactions?

A. I wouldn't want to characterize how you misconstrue them. I think one major component that I would include is assisting major shareholders of companies in selling portions of their stakes in companies, which is not unto itself a capital raising event for the company.

Q. But that would still be something that the client services group would be involved in?

A. At this point in time we did work on those sorts of transactions.

Q. Now, when you indicated that the responsibility of the group would be to assist in managing and executing those kinds of transactions, what does that involve?

A. Again, it involves a number of different tasks and subtasks.

Q. Tell me what they are.

A. It involves advising clients on issues regarding documentation of transactions, among other things.

Q. Anything other than documentation?

A. Yes.

Q. What?

A. It involves managing the assets of Morgan Stanley, the resources of Morgan Stanley to bring them to bear at the correct times and places during the course of the transaction.

Tyree

Q. What does that mean?

A. It means what I said. Are you looking for --

Q. Well, --

A. You want an example?

Q. I want some sense of the specifics underlying managing the assets and resources of Morgan Stanley to bring them to bear at the right time and place.

A. Pricing the transaction is an important part of it, advising a client on what they can sell their given securities for in the marketplace is an important part of the transaction. The client services group would interact with our debt or equity capital market area to, among other things, advise a client on the proper pricing for a transaction potentially.

Q. How long were you in the client services group?

A. I don't know the exact amount of time that I was in the group for.

Q. Can you tell me approximately how

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017153

Tyree
long you were in that group?
A. Between three and four years.
Q. And what was your next assignment?
A. My next assignment was working in the Morgan Stanley telecommunications group.
Q. When you were in the client services group, were you still located at Morgan Stanley's headquarters in Manhattan?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. How long were you in the telecommunications group?
A. I was in the telecommunications group for approximately two years.
Q. And why did you go to work for that group, was it at your request?
A. It was at my request.
Q. And why did you request to go into the telecommunications group?
A. Very similar reasons to those I described for my move to the client services group. I had a good rapport with the people in the group and wanted to broaden my professional experience.
Q. Was that assignment still in

Tyree
Manhattan?
A. No.
Q. Where was that located?
A. In London.
Q. Had you moved to London immediately upon joining that group?
A. No. I actually moved to London and joined the group at the same time basically.
Q. That's what I was trying to understand. Was there a period of time while you were working in a group but still working out of Morgan Stanley's offices in New York?
A. No, there was not.
Q. So when you moved to London, that was contemporaneous with your joining the telecommunications group?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. Do you remember when you moved to London?
A. In 2000.
Q. Is there a time in this process that your title did change from associate to something else?
A. Yes.

Tyree
Q. And what titles have you held?
A. I've held the title since I've been at Morgan Stanley of associate, vice-president and executive director.
Q. When did you receive the vice-president title?
A. I don't remember the exact date.
Q. Was it while you were in client services?
A. I believe it was while I was in the client services group.
Q. And when did you become an executive director?
A. I became an executive director while I was in London in the telecommunications group.
Q. And that's the title you hold today?
A. That is correct.
Q. Is your employer still Morgan Stanley & Company?
A. I still regard myself as an employee of Morgan Stanley, the parent company. I am unsure what is on the books

Tyree
today in terms of whether or not I am an employee of Morgan Stanley and Co. or Morgan Stanley International.
Q. So you are not sure if you are a Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc. -- well, a Morgan Stanley & Company employee?
A. I know I regard myself as a broader Morgan Stanley employee. What I am not sure of is whether administratively I am counted against the books of Morgan Stanley International or Morgan Stanley and Co., which are two different subsidiaries.
Q. What does it say on your paycheck?
A. I don't receive a paycheck.
Q. Your income is directly deposited into a bank account for you?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley & Company pays your salary?
A. Again, I don't know exactly what pool of funds provide my salary, but I know that it comes from a Morgan Stanley entity.
Q. Do you know if the service that you are performing now, the time that you are

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0117154

Tyree
spending in London counts against your years of service as a Morgan Stanley employee for any purpose?
A. I believe it does.
Q. Do you receive any compensation from Morgan Stanley & Company to compensate you for the expense of residing in London?
A. I receive various subsidies and allowances from Morgan Stanley the parent as do all of my ex-patriot colleagues to varying degrees.
Q. And those are paid to you because of your service in this group in London, is that correct?
A. That's not how I would characterize it.
Q. How would you characterize it?
A. I would characterize those pay and allowances being paid to me to account for the differential that exists associated with living in London versus living in New York.
Q. That's what I was trying to say.
A. Sorry.
Q. That's fine. Your e-mail address

Tyree
in London is JohnTyree@Morgan Stanley.com?
A. No.
Q. What is it?
A. It's John.Tyree at Morgan Stanley.com.
Q. You are represented today at this deposition by Morgan Stanley & Company's counsel. How did that come about?
A. Can you be a little more specific?
Q. Well, Mr. Clare represents Morgan Stanley & Company, the defendant in the lawsuit that we filed. Is he representing you here today at the deposition?
A. Yes, he is.
Q. And how did that come about?
MR. CLARE: I'm going to object and ask the witness to, in providing an answer if you are able, to exclude conversations with counsel revealing the substance of conversations again with in-house Morgan Stanley attorneys or outside counsel. If you are able to answer Mr. Markowski's question without revealing the substance of those conversations, you can do so. If you're not, then I would instruct you not to answer.

A. I don't know the process through which Mr. Clare came to represent me specifically with regards to his role within Morgan Stanley and Co.
Q. Well, did Mr. Clare call you?
MR. CLARE: That's a yes or no question.
A. No.
Q. Did somebody in the in-house legal department at Morgan Stanley tell you that Mr. Clare would represent you at this deposition?
MR. CLARE: Objection. That would require him to reveal the substance of an attorney-client conversation and I instruct you not to answer.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Well, it's really a yes or no answer.
MR. CLARE: As phrased, your question was not. If you are asking a yes or no question of did an in-house Morgan Stanley lawyer call you, if that's the question, you can answer that question. If the question is beyond that and did an in-house Morgan Stanley call you and say X, Y or Z, I would instruct you not to answer the part of the question that would require you to divulge what you discussed, if anything, with Morgan Stanley counsel. So subject to that limitation you can answer the question.

Tyree
A. I received a call from an internal lawyer at Morgan Stanley in regards to this situation.
Q. And who was that? Was it a man or a woman?
A. It's a man, Jim Doyle.
Q. When did you first speak to anyone from Kirkland & Ellis about the matters that bring us here today?
A. I don't remember the exact date we had our first discussion.
Q. Do you remember approximately?
A. I have a vague recollection of a telephone call more than a month ago, but I wouldn't represent that as the only dialogue.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Tyree
That's what I remember.
Q. Can you tell me how you are compensated now, what the basis for your compensation is?
A. There are numerous variables that go into the calculation of the compensation of someone in my position.
Q. Is there a certain amount of it that's a base salary.
A. Yes, there is.
Q. And you indicated that you get some cost of living allowances, is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. What else?
A. I receive an annual bonus and certain other benefits.
Q. What types of other benefits do you get besides cash compensation? Let me strike that.
The cash compensation that you get, is that made up of the base salary and the cost of living allowance and the annual bonus or is there something else?
A. I would characterize my base salary and the cost of living allowances as you put it as to my knowledge all cash.

Tyree
Q. And the bonus, is that cash?
A. The bonus is a mix of cash, stock and options typically, which varies.
Q. Stock and options is stock in Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. You're not given stock or options in other businesses as part of your compensation package, I take it?
A. No, I am not.
Q. Is there any other cash compensation you receive other than what we've just specified?
A. No, not that I know of.
Q. The other benefits include what kinds of things?
A. 401K, charitable donation matching plan, and a number of other rather classic company benefits.
Q. What percentage of your base salary can your annual bonus be? Is there a specified range?

Tyree
A. To my knowledge there is no specified range of bonus relative to base salary.
Q. So is the potential bonus limited in some respect? At the beginning of the year, for example, are you told that you are eligible for a bonus within a certain range, either as a percentage of your salary or in total dollars?
A. I don't recall having been told that my -- at the beginning of the fiscal year that my bonus could be within any certain range relative to my pay.
Q. Were you told that at any point during the year?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. So at this point you have no idea what your possible bonus would be for this year?
A. No, I didn't say that.
Q. Okay, give me some sense of how you have a sense of that.
A. There are many variables that go into bonuses. One of those is the firm's performance. If the firm is doing well, typically bonuses may be good. If the firm is not doing well, bonuses may not be that high. So one can use that to a varying degree along with a number of other variables to determine what their expectations should be.

Tyree
Q. Let's go back to the time that you were in -- well, let's focus on the time period while you've been in London. What has been the annual bonus you've received each year that you've been in London as a percentage of your base salary?
A. It has varied dramatically.
Q. Can you tell me what the range is?
A. I can't tell you exactly what the range is.
Q. Well, in 2000 you were working in London, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your bonus at the end of that year as a percentage of your salary?
A. Again, I don't know exactly what my bonus was at the end of that year.
Q. Can you tell me approximately?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017156

Tyree

A. It was approximately as a percentage of my base pay, between 500 and 800 percent, that bonus as defined by cash, stock and options received for that year.

Q. And what was your total compensation in 2000?

A. My total compensation in 2000 was between -- correction, my total compensation as based upon base pay and bonus alone was between 800 thousand and 950 thousand dollars, approximately.

Q. And can you give me the same figures for 2001?

A. For 2001, I believe that my bonus was approximately 300 to 400 percent of my base salary, and the total compensation was approximately 500 to 600 thousand dollars.

Q. And what about last year?

A. Last year as a percentage it was between 250 and 350 percent, and the total all in was approximately 350 thousand, I believe.

Q. You indicated the bonus varies in part depending upon the performance of the firm, correct?

Tyree

A. That is correct, I did say that.

Q. I also assume the bonus depends on your personal performance in some respect, is that correct?

A. It does.

Q. Who determines -- who makes the determination of what bonus to award based on your personal performance?

A. A number of people make that determination.

Q. While you were in the client services group you received a bonus and base salary in connection with your performance as an employee of Morgan Stanley as well?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Let's focus on that time period. Who determined your bonus then?

A. Again, it was a number of people.

Q. Who would they be?

A. I actually don't know.

Q. Would those people all be within the client services group or did they include people who were outside the client services group?

Tyree

A. They would include people both inside and outside of the client services group.

Q. In connection with the bonus you receive now as an employee within the telecommunications group, are the people who determine your bonus all within the telecommunications group or are some of them outside of that?

A. I'm not in the telecommunications group now.

Q. I'm sorry, you went to London and were initially employed in the telecommunications group, is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. And now you're in a different group now?

A. That's right.

Q. What's your group now?

A. My group now is called the general industrial group.

Q. When did you transition into that group?

A. I transitioned into that group approximately a year ago.

Tyree

Q. Now, is that the same general industrial group that you were assigned to earlier on in your career at Morgan Stanley?

A. No, this is the European general industrial group.

Q. Is that a part of the general industrial group you were employed in earlier or is it a completely separate group?

A. I don't quite understand what you mean.

Q. Well, earlier in your career you indicated that you were employed in the general industrial group while you were at Morgan Stanley's headquarters in New York, correct?

A. That is right.

Q. Was a component of that group the general industrial group in Europe or is that considered a distinct organization?

A. I think it depends on your perspective.

Q. Well, for example, is there a person who, in the general industrial group in

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Tyree
New York, has responsibility for the general industrial group in Europe?
A. That's not how I would characterize it.
Q. Let me go back to my initial question. I was trying to ascertain whether or not the people who determine your bonus currently are part of the group that you currently work for or whether some of them are outside your group. Your current employment is in the general industrial group in Europe. Who determines your bonus, people within that group exclusively or are there people from outside of that group as well who are involved in that process?
A. There are people both within this group and outside of this group who determine my bonus at the end of the year.
Q. Are all those people in Europe?
A. No.
Q. Are some of them in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Who in New York would be involved in determining your personal bonus for this year?

Tyree
A. Again, I don't know.
Q. Well, how do you know that there are people in New York who are involved in that process then?
A. I know it because the decisions in regards to compensation at Morgan Stanley are typically made by committees which consist of representatives from both Europe and the United States.
Q. Do you remember working on Morgan Stanley's engagement with Sunbeam Corporation in 1998?
A. I remember working on a convertible notes issuance with Sunbeam as the client, yes.
MR. CLARE: Bob, I'm not sure if you're transitioning to a different area of questioning, but we've been going for a couple of hours. If we get to a point where we could take a short break.
MR. MARKOWSKI: If you want to take a break now that would be fine.
(Recess taken.)

Tyree
(Begin Videotape 2.)
FURTHER EXAMINATION BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Mr. Tyree, do you have any plans to leave employment with Morgan Stanley?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you have any plans to return to the United States?
A. No, not as of now, no. For work, no.
Q. I don't mean on a trip, I mean for an assignment, to work permanently?
A. No.
Q. You spent some time preparing for your testimony today?
A. I did.
Q. Tell me what you did to prepare yourself for today.
MR. CLARE: Again, you can provide general contours, but do not disclose substance or communications. You can answer.
A. I tried to remember events that occurred during the course of the convertible bond offering, had general discussions with counsel. That was pretty much it.

Tyree
Q. So you spent some time reflecting on the events back in 1998, correct, by yourself?
A. That is correct.
Q. And you spent some time in meetings with counsel for Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. With which attorneys did you meet? Let me include phone calls within that as well.
MR. CLARE: And the answer calls for the names of the individuals only.
Q. Let me ask you a clear question first. With which Morgan Stanley attorneys did you communicate in connection with your preparation pour today's deposition?
A. The only one I recall is Jim, who I mentioned before, in terms of Morgan Stanley.
Q. Kirkland & Ellis, I include outside counsel within the definition.
A. Oh, I'm sorry, then Tom, Tom Clare.
Q. Anyone else?
A. Those are the only names that I

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011158

Tyree
recall, lawyers who I met with.
Q. Are there any other people who you met or spoke with in connection with your preparation today whose names you can't recall?
A. There was one other person.
Q. Is that a Kirkland & Ellis employee?
A. I believe so. I just actually recalled, there were two other people who I met or met with briefly.
Q. In addition to Mr. Clare?
A. Yes.
Q. And you believe both of them were Kirkland & Ellis?
A. One was a Kirkland & Ellis employee and one was an employee of a local law firm whose name I can't recall.
Q. When you say a local law firm, a local New York law firm?
A. No.
Q. A local what law firm?
A. A local Florida firm.
Q. Describe for me the sessions that you had with Mr. Doyle in connection with your preparation for today.

Tyree
MR. CLARE: I would make the same objection and the same instruction with regard to the substance of your conversations with Mr. Doyle. You can describe at a very general level times, dates, places and the like, but do not disclose the substance of what you discussed with Mr. Doyle.
A. I met several times with Mr. Doyle and we discussed --
MR. CLARE: No, do not disclose what you discussed with Mr. Doyle.
Q. Where were the meetings at?
A. The locations varied.
Q. What were the locations?
A. I recall the locations being in Manhattan and being in West Palm Beach.
Q. Did you have any conference calls, telephone calls with Mr. Doyle in connection with your preparation for today or were all your preparations with him face-to-face?
A. I believe we had either one or two conference calls.

Tyree
Q. Was Mr. Doyle the only participant?
A. No.
Q. Who else was on the phone?
A. I don't remember who the other attendees were.
Q. Were they attorneys?
A. I believe there were other attorneys on the calls.
Q. Were there some non-attorneys on the calls?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Were any of your former colleagues at Morgan Stanley on the phone? Anyone in the client services group or the investment banking group?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. How many meetings have you had with Mr. Doyle in preparing for today that occurred in Manhattan?
A. Two or three.
Q. How many total hours would you say you spent with Mr. Doyle at those meetings?
A. For the meetings in Manhattan, we spent maybe four hours.

Tyree
Q. Total?
A. Total in Manhattan. That could be off, that's a best guess.
Q. How many meetings did you have with him at West Palm Beach?
A. I recall two meetings with him in West Palm Beach.
Q. And how many hours did you spend with him there?
A. Between ten and 15 hours.
Q. Other than you and Mr. Doyle, did anyone else participate in the Manhattan meetings?
A. Yes.
Q. Who?
A. There were in addition to Tom Clare, I believe there was either one or two other lawyers. I don't recall their names.
Q. Do you believe they were Kirkland & Ellis employees?
A. I believe they were.
Q. How about the meetings in West Palm Beach, other than Mr. Doyle, did anyone else

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017159

Tyree

participate in those meetings?
A. Yes, someone else did participate in those meetings.
Q. Who was that?
A. Mr. Clare participated in those meetings and the two other individuals I referred to earlier whose names I cannot recall.
Q. Are those the same people that participated in the New York meetings?
A. I don't believe they were.
Q. So there are one or two people who participated in the Manhattan meetings whose names you can't recall and one or two others that participated in the West Palm Beach meetings whose names you can't recall?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you review documents at any of those meetings?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you review testimony that other people had given?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you asked to review materials

Tyree

outside of these meetings?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. No-one gave you any homework, here's something I want to you read?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. You weren't given any transcripts to take home and read.
A. I don't recall being given any transcripts to take home and read, no.
Q. Whose testimony did you read in connection with these sessions?
MR. CLARE: I'm going to instruct you not to answer the question on the basis of work product.
Q. Were any other Morgan Stanley employees involved in these meetings other than Mr. Doyle?
A. I don't recall any other Morgan Stanley employees participating in these meetings.
Q. How did it come to be that some of these sessions occurred in West Palm Beach?
A. When you say how did it come to be --

Tyree

Q. Right. Why are you meeting in West Palm Beach?
A. That's just where we agreed to meet.
Q. You didn't have other business that brought you to West Palm Beach?
A. I did not have other business that brought me to West Palm Beach, no.
Q. Can you give me the dates for these meetings?
A. I can't give you the exact dates for the meetings.
Q. Approximately. Maybe you can first give me the sequence. Did you have the New York meetings first, the West Palm Beach meetings afterward?
A. I had the West Palm Beach meetings just prior to the last Manhattan meeting. That's probably not as clear as it should be. I had either one or two meetings in Manhattan that I recall, meetings in Palm Beach and then one brief meeting in Manhattan that I remember.
Q. When was the most recent Manhattan meeting?

Tyree

A. This morning.
Q. And when were the two Palm Beach meetings?
A. The two Palm Beach meetings were Thursday and Friday of last week.
Q. And then where were the initial one or two sessions in New York?
A. They were in Manhattan. I cannot recall where specifically in Manhattan they were held.
Q. I'm sorry, if I asked where, I didn't intend to. When was my question.
A. They were held, I believe one was held a couple of weeks ago and the other one a couple of weeks before that. But again, my recollection isn't perfect on this.
Q. How frequently do you come to New York on business?
A. It varies.
Q. How many times in the last 12 months would you say?
A. I would say that in the last 12 months, I have visited New York between five

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017160

Tyree
and ten times.
Q. Did you have any copies of documents in your personal possession relating to the work that Morgan Stanley did for Sunbeam?
A. I'm sorry, you said did I?
Q. Yes.
A. As of what?
Q. Well, in connection with the preparations for your deposition, were you asked to determine whether or not you had documents relating to the work that Morgan Stanley had done for Sunbeam in your personal possession?
MR. CLARE: I think those are two different questions.
A. Do you want to repeat the question just for the sake of clarity?
Q. Let me ask a couple of different questions.
Our lawsuit against Morgan Stanley was filed on May 8, 2003. Since that time, has anyone asked you whether you have in your personal possession copies of any documents relating to the work that Morgan Stanley did for Sunbeam back in 1998?

Tyree
A. Since that time I have been asked if I had personal possession as you put it of documents that relate to the Sunbeam convertible bond transaction.
Q. And what was the answer to that?
A. I can't remember exactly what the words were that I used to answer.
Q. Did you have any?
A. I believe at that time I did not have any documents in regards to that -- to this transaction.
Q. You focused on the convertible bond offering.
A. That's correct.
Q. Morgan Stanley did a variety of things for Sunbeam back in 1997 and 1998. Are you aware of that generally?
A. I am generally aware of that, yes.
Q. Were you asked whether you had any documents relating to any of the work that Morgan Stanley did for Sunbeam during that time period?

Tyree
A. What I was asked as I recall was do you have any documents that relate to the Sunbeam transactions or the Sunbeam situation. I don't recall what the language was. I interpreted that to mean the broad array of transactions that you -- I believe that you are speaking of.
Q. And you did not have any documents in your possession at that point relating to those services?
A. I do not recall having any documents relating to the Sunbeam transactions at that point in time.
Q. Did you subsequently discover or obtain possession of such documents?
A. I did not subsequently discover in my possession any additional documents that relate to the Sunbeam transactions that we're discussing.
Q. All right, did you subsequently gain possession of some?
A. For a brief period of time I reviewed documents associated with the Sunbeam transaction, transactions, excuse me.

Tyree
Q. What were those circumstances?
A. Provided this is not privileged, during the course of the review of documents we discussed earlier.
Q. So you were shown some documents in connection with your meetings with lawyers to prepare for today, correct?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Other than that, have you received any documents relating to the work that Sunbeam did -- excuse me, other than your review of documents in connection with the preparation sessions that you have had with your lawyers, have any documents come into your possession since May of 2003 relating to the services that Morgan Stanley did for Sunbeam in 1997, 1998?
A. Other than the documents that we reviewed during the sessions that we discussed, I don't recall coming into contact with any additional Sunbeam or Sunbeam transaction related documents since the date that you gave in 2003.
Q. In connection with the balance of

011961

Page 89

Tyree
the deposition, there are a couple of terms I may use and I want to make sure you and I are on the same wavelength with respect to what I mean by these terms. If I refer to a document, I'm not ascribing any particular degree of formality to the material that I am referring to or inquiring about. In my mind, and my intention when I use the phrase document is to include anything that memorializes information in any form whatsoever, whether it's a formally published document, handwritten notes, an e-mail communication, an electronic file. So I include within my use of the term document all of those kinds of materials and any other that I haven't thought of at the moment in which information is memorialized, okay?
A. I understand.
Q. And when I refer to a communication, I may from time to time ask if you have had communications with anybody. I intend to include within that absolutely any kind of exchange of information between you and someone else or communication between you and the file, for example, on whatever subject I am inquiring about.

Page 90

Tyree
A. I'm sorry, when you say communication --
Q. If you sent a memo to a file, if there is a process at Morgan Stanley, I don't know if there is or not, where you may record information and send a memo that just goes to a file so that it's recorded for purposes of having a record of it, I include that within what I mean by a communication with anyone.
A. I understand.
Q. So if it's a telephone call, if it's a face-to-face meeting, if it's an e-mail, a Post-It note left on somebody's chair, I include that within what I mean by the term communication.
I don't think it's disputed that Morgan Stanley was engaged by Sunbeam in 1997 to perform a variety of services. When is it that you first began to perform services of any sort, or to become involved in any way in connection with Morgan Stanley's engagement with Sunbeam?

Page 91

Tyree
A. My recollection, a long time ago, is that my first exposure that Sunbeam as a client came in early 1998.
Q. What was the exposure?
A. It took numerous forms.
Q. What's the initial involvement that you had that you can recall in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?
A. The initial communication I received in regards to Sunbeam was from an individual, it may have been my group head, I can't recall, effectively assigning me to work on the convertible notes transaction for Sunbeam.
Q. Would the assignment have come from within the client services group? You said you can't recall who made the call. It might have been your group head, but would it have definitely come from a person within the client services group?
A. I believe it came from someone within the client services group. I just don't want to say what would or would not have happened, but I believe it did.

Page 92

Tyree
Q. Was the assignment specifically to work only on the convertible note transaction?
A. I don't recall how the assignment was communicated to me at the time exactly.
Q. Well, I may have misunderstood. I thought the phone call that you described was a phone call where you were told that you were to work on the convertible note transaction.
A. That's what I recall.
Q. Is it possible that the assignment was broader than that?
A. It's possible.
Q. Let me take a step back. Do you have a specific memory of what was said to you on this initial phone call, the scope of your assignment?
A. I do not have a specific memory of what was said to me when I was assigned to this transaction, no.
Q. All right, is it your testimony that your best recollection is that the initial assignment that you received was to work on the convertible note aspect of the Sunbeam transactions?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01762

Tyree

A. The way I would put it is my testimony is that I have a vague recollection of receiving a phone call in which I was asked to work on the convertible notes transaction for Sunbeam.

Q. Now, you said it was in early 1998. Can you be more precise?

A. It was after Christmas -- correction, obviously it was after Christmas. Between either February or March, I believe, right around that time. Again, I can't be exactly sure, but right around there.

Q. The convertible note transaction closed on March 25, 1998. Do you recall that?

A. Do I recall it closing on that day? I don't recall that exact day, the closing date.

Q. Does that sound about right to you?

A. My recollection was that that transaction closed in the March, April time frame.

Q. How long before the closing of the transaction do you believe you got this initial telephone call assigning you to assist in that project?

Tyree

A. Between a month and two months before it closed, somewhere around there.

Q. Did the scope of the assignment include ultimately work on aspects of the Sunbeam engagement beyond the convertible note debenture transaction?

A. I don't recall exactly what the subsidiary elements of the assignment did or did not include. But I will make the point that we work in a team environment, so I had dialogue with a host of people who were working on various parts of the transaction.

Q. In terms of your personal responsibility, did it include performing services on aspects of the Sunbeam engagement other than the convertible note transaction?

A. My recollection is that the great majority of the work that I did in regards to the Sunbeam client revolved around the convertible notes transaction.

Q. From the time you got this initial telephone call to the time the transaction closed, what percentage of your time was dedicated to this assignment?

Tyree

A. I can't remember exactly.

Q. Was it a high percentage?

A. I just don't remember exactly. Well, two points. Number one, I don't remember how much, and number two, transactions like this ebb and flow, so it's difficult to characterize what the workload is, which is what I think you're asking, during the course of the entire transaction.

Q. Well, do you have a memory of being very busy with the Sunbeam convertible note transaction?

A. I remember being busy with the Sunbeam convertible notes transaction as I remember being busy with most transactions that I worked on at Morgan Stanley.

Q. I'm just trying to get a sense of during that month or two month period of time, whether this was the primary thing that you were employed in doing or whether it was a small portion of the work that you were doing during that period.

A. I would characterize it as an important project that I was working on at the time, and one that demanded a good amount of my time.

Q. Do you think it was 50 percent of your time during that period?

A. Again, I just want to be precise, and I can't characterize if it was 50 percent of my time, 1.90 at another and 10 at the other. It's important to be clear that transactions, depending on typically the stage that you are at, the activity level will ebb and flow. So I can't really say it took 50 percent of my time or 70 percent of my time because it varied over the course of the transaction.

Q. But do you think in total over that month or two month period of time that the percentage of your working time devoted to that assignment was 25 percent of it, 50 percent of it, 75 percent of?

A. I would characterize this as being an important transaction that took, again, a good percentage of my time. I just don't want to put an exact number on it because I don't

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011763

Tyree
know that exact number.
Q. Well, would you say it's in excess of 25 percent?
A. It's in excess of 25 percent.
Q. Would you say it's in excess of 50 percent?
A. That's where I get uncomfortable. I don't know within that time frame exactly how much time I was devoting to Sunbeam verses my other duties.
Q. All right, so in your mind you're comfortable saying it was at least 25 percent?
A. I think that's fair.
Q. And it may have been more than 50 percent but you're not sure?
A. I just stick with more than 25 percent.
Q. So it was certainly more than 25 percent?
A. It was more than 25 percent.
Q. Did you record your time during that time period in some way, you worked eight hours today on Sunbeam, something of that sort?

Tyree
A. I honestly don't recall if we had the equivalent of timesheets as you're asking at that point in time.
Q. Is there any way in which you keep a record for administrative purposes or department management purposes of the time you're spending each day on various projects?
A. You're speaking about today?
Q. No, back in 1998.
A. Again, I don't recall if at that point we had some kind of time management system. I know that over the last couple of years, we have not. I just can't remember if back then we had one.
Q. Have there been points in your career where you did in some way keep track of the hours that you were spending on a particular project during the course of a day?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any memory of whether that was true at least during some period of time when you were at client services?
A. I do not.
Q. Did you have a calendar that you used to keep track of appointments, activities, back then?

Tyree
A. I recall my assistant helping me maintain my calendar. I can't -- I honestly don't remember if it was computerized or not at the time.
Q. Have you looked to see whether you have a paper calendar record from 1998?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Do you have a 1998 calendar?
A. Not to my recollection, no.
Q. Well, when you say not to your recollection, did you look for a 1998 calendar?
A. I looked for all materials associated, as we said before, with the Sunbeam transactions.
Q. And you couldn't find a 1998 calendar?
A. I don't recall what I found at the time.
Q. Well, you indicated you didn't find any documents that related to the work that Morgan Stanley did for Sunbeam, correct?

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Objection. That misstates the witness' testimony. You can answer.
A. No, what I stated was in the time period that you gave, I said that I didn't discover.
Q. All right, thanks for that. I had focused on the time period after May of 2003. Were there earlier time periods when you were asked to gather documents that you had relating to Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam?
A. There may have been. I don't recall exactly.
Q. Do you recall ever being asked to provide before our lawsuit was filed in May of 2003 any documents that you had relating to Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam to someone?
A. I recall being asked to provide any and all documents I had relating to Sunbeam at some point in time. And the I can't remember the exact date when that request -- when I received that request.
Q. Who made that request to you?
A. I can't remember the exact

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Tyree

individual.
Q. Was it somebody in the in-house law department at Morgan Stanley?
A. It may have been, I just don't remember exactly who it was.
Q. Did you find anything back then?
A. I have a vague recollection of providing whatever was in my file at the time in regards to the Sunbeam transaction.
Q. So you do have a memory that you had some materials that were responsive to that request?
A. I have a memory that I had some materials that I submitted that related to the Sunbeam transactions.
Q. Did you keep a copy?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you get a copy back?
A. Again, not that I recall.
Q. Do you remember the kinds of material you have that were responsive?
A. I don't remember exactly what was in the materials that I turned in.
Q. Do you remember anything about those materials?

Tyree

A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember?
A. Is --
Q. I asked you if you remembered anything about the materials that you discovered in response to the request for all documents relating to any of the work done for Sunbeam by Morgan Stanley.
A. And I do, I just want to know, what are you looking for in regards to what I remember?
Q. Any recollection you have about what you found.
A. I remember submitting a working group loan.
Q. Anything else?
A. I believe that I submitted what we call an equity commitment committee memorandum. Beyond that, I just don't recall what was in those materials.
Q. Do you recall the volume of them in any way? Was it a box or an inch of paper? Can you give me any approximation of the volume of materials?

Tyree

A. I don't recall it being a box.
Q. Do you recall anything about the volume?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Is it more than these two documents?
A. Yes, I believe it was.
Q. Do you recall whether it included any of your personal notes relating to the Sunbeam engagements?
A. I don't recall if it did or not. Remember it was five years ago. Oh, correction --
Q. Well, the request for documents wasn't five years ago, right? Or was it?
A. You are correct. I was referring to the transaction.
Q. Do you recall how far back this request for documents was, how close in time to the transaction?
A. No.
Q. Was it soon after the transaction in 1998?

Tyree

A. Not that I recall.
Q. Were you in London or were you still in New York when you got the request?
A. I was in New York.
Q. Did you get any souvenirs or mementos, anything like that, relating to the Sunbeam work?
A. Oh, sorry, when you say souvenirs?
Q. Anything by way of a memento with respect to the transaction.
A. I don't recall any memento for the Sunbeam convertible notes offering. That's not to say we didn't receive it, I just don't recall.
Q. From time to time when a deal you are involved in closes, do you get mementos?
A. It varies, depending on the transaction.
Q. And do you keep those?
A. Again, it varies.
Q. Do you have them on a bookshelf in your office or something like that?
A. I have some, what we call lucites in my office in London.

Q. Is the one for Sunbeam sitting there?
A. I don't recall it being there.
Q. You attended the February 27, 1998 Sunbeam board of directors meeting. Do you recall that?
A. Again, I don't remember the exact date. I recall attending a Sunbeam board of directors meeting at Morgan Stanley.
Q. It's the meeting where the Sunbeam board approved the acquisition of Coleman Company, correct?
A. A number of things were decided at that meeting.
Q. That's one of them, right?
A. That was one of them as I recall, yes.
Q. And Morgan Stanley made a presentation to the Sunbeam board with respect to the fairness of the transaction, correct?
A. I don't recall if the presentation revolved around fairness or not.
Q. Tell me what remember about that meeting.

Tyree

A. Can you be a little more specific.
Q. I'd like to know everything you can remember about that February 27 board of directors meeting.
A. I remember attending a board meeting at Morgan Stanley with members of Sunbeam's management team, board members, and Morgan Stanley representatives. I remember that at that board meeting a number of topics were discussed, including several acquisitions, and the financing that was to go along with those transactions, and I recall votes being taken and made and concluded at that meeting.
Q. Do you remember any of the discussion?
A. I don't remember the exact verbiage.
Q. Or the substance.
A. Beyond what I just described, which is discussions, broad based discussions about the acquisitions and the financing, I don't recall a lot of specifics.
Q. Well, you've identified some topics. Do you remember the substance of any of the discussion, whether you can remember it specifically or verbatim or not, do you have any recollection of the substance of the discussion, for example, of the acquisitions?

Tyree

A. I really don't. I don't have recollections of points that were made in regards to the acquisitions, concerns that were raised, anything of that nature, I really don't have a strong recollection of.
Q. Do you remember what the acquisitions were of?
A. I do.
Q. What companies?
A. Coleman was one, First Alert was the second, and the third has escaped me now.
Q. Signature Brands?
A. Signature Brands, that's correct.
Q. Do you remember anything about the acquisition of the Coleman Company?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember if the Coleman acquisition was an all cash acquisition?
A. I don't remember what the

Tyree

consideration was that was discussed at that meeting.
Q. What was your purpose for being there?
A. As part of the team.
Q. Was there a reason for having you attend?
A. Yes.
Q. What was it?
A. As I recall, I had helped to prepare one of the presentations that was being discussed in that meeting so I would characterize the role as I remember it as being a supporting role.
Q. What was the nature of that presentation?
A. The nature of that presentation was, as I recall, the financing associated with the acquisitions we've discussed.
Q. Do you remember what the presentation entailed?
A. I'm sorry, when you say entailed, you mean --
Q. What was the substance or gist of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017166

Tyree

the presentation? What was presented?
A. I remember there was a presentation. I remember there were discussions in regards to market conditions at the time. There may have been discussions, I can't recall exactly, I think there might have been discussions in regards to pricing expectations, and I believe there were discussions in regards to timing.
Q. Who made the presentation to the board that you assisted in preparing?
A. I can't recall exactly who gave it.
Q. Do you remember who the principal speakers for Morgan Stanley were at the board meeting?
A. I don't remember who -- I don't remember exactly who -- let me rephrase that. There were a number of speakers from Morgan Stanley and I don't recall exactly who spoke to what issue.
Q. Do you recall who the principal speakers were for Morgan Stanley?
A. The way I would characterize it is I remember some people who spoke.

Tyree

Q. Who?
A. I believe that Ruth Poratt spoke.
Q. Do you remember anyone else speaking?
A. I believe Bob Kitz spoke. Those are the only two that I remember speaking.
Q. Do you remember Bill Strong?
A. I remember Bill.
Q. Do you remember him speaking at that meeting?
A. I don't remember him speaking, but that's not to say he didn't, I just don't recall.
Q. Do you remember him being there?
A. I have a vague recollection of Bill being there as well. That could go wrong, I'm just not sure.
Q. Do you remember if it was Ms. Poratt or Mr. Kitz who addressed the financing issues that were the subject of the preparation had you done?
A. I believe that Ruth Poratt spoke about some of the financing issues. I can't recall if she captained the presentation or not.

Tyree

Q. Do you recall Morgan Stanley advising the Sunbeam board at that meeting that Morgan Stanley was confident of its ability to arrange the financing that Sunbeam needed in order to complete these three transactions?
A. I don't recall that comment being made.
Q. Do you recall any discussion with respect to the question whether Sunbeam would be able to obtain the necessary financing?
A. Can you be a little more specific?
Q. Well, at the board meeting the board is approving the acquisition of three corporations, correct? Coleman Company, First Alert and Signature Brands, correct?
A. At I recall that was one of the topics discussed.
Q. And at that board meeting they're voting on whether to approve the acquisition of those three businesses, correct?
A. I believe that's one of the topics they voted on.

Tyree

Q. And Sunbeam needed substantial financing assistance in order to consummate those transactions, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. What exactly is your question?
Q. Sunbeam needed substantial financing assistance in order to consummate those transactions?
MR. CLARE: Same objection, vague.
A. I don't recall how much financing they needed exactly.
Q. I'm not asking if you remember it exactly. I'm asking you if sitting there at that board meeting you knew that Sunbeam needed to raise a substantial amount of money in order to consummate the three acquisitions.
A. How I would characterize it is we discussed a financing transaction, or actually a series of transactions that would help Sunbeam acquire the entities you mentioned. That's what I remember.
Q. Do you have any recollection of the order of magnitude of the financing that was

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

001167

Tyree
being discussed?
A. I have a recollection that it was -- the answer is yes, I do have a recollection.
Q. It's well in excess of a billion dollars, correct?
A. I recall it being in excess of a billion dollars.
Q. Closer to two billion dollars, correct?
A. I recall it being in excess of a billion dollars.
Q. You don't remember it being two billion?
A. I don't remember it being exactly two billion, no.
Q. Approximately. I'm asking order of magnitude.
A. Again, I recall it being in excess of a billion dollars.
Q. I consider that to be substantial. Do you?
A. I do.
Q. Now, with respect to your work relating to Sunbeam, can you explain to me the reporting relationship or supervision relationship you had with the various people that were involved? Was there somebody -- let me ask you a better question hopefully.

Tyree
Is there somebody who was supervising the performance of the work you were doing?
A. I would not say there was one person who was supervising me as my key contact as it were in the context of this transaction.
Q. Did you have anyone supervising you?
A. Yes, I had a number of people supervising me.
Q. And who were they?
A. Can you be a little more specific? I at that point in time was supervised by a variety of people within the firm.
Q. I'm talking about in connection with your Sunbeam work. Who was supervising the work that you did in connection with Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam?

Tyree
A. I will name a few of the people. I was working with Bill Strong, who had a varying oversight, Ruth Poratt, Andy Savari, the head of equity capital markets whose name I can't recall, was obviously in a supervisory role, my group head, William Wright. Then you would go up the whole chain of Morgan Stanley, but those were some of the people who were in a degree of an oversight role.
Q. In connection with the specific work you were doing for Sunbeam?
A. Well, in connection with the specific work I'm doing with Sunbeam and in some cases my broader work as well.
Q. I'm focusing on one thing. You were involved in performing work on the Sunbeam transaction, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And what I want to understand is who did you consider to be the person or persons responsible for supervising that activity? Did you consider Mr. Strong responsible for supervising your work in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?

Tyree
A. He was one of the people, yes.
Q. And Ms. Poratt?
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Savari?
A. Yes.
Q. You considered him to be a supervisor?
A. Yes, at that time.
Q. The head of equity capital markets, you can't remember who that was?
A. No.
Q. Is that Bram Smith?
A. I do not believe Bram was head of equity capital markets then, no.
Q. Do you consider that person to be supervising your specific assignment on Sunbeam?
A. To a certain degree, yes.
Q. And William Wright?
A. Yes.
Q. William Wright was the person managing -- he was the managing director of the client services group, is that correct?
A. That is correct.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017158

Page 117

Tyree
Q. To what extent was Mr. Wright involved in connection with supervising the work that you were doing on Sunbeam?
A. As the head of our group at that point in time, Bill would ask us periodically how things are going. He would talk on an ongoing basis with many other senior people in the firm, some of the other people on that list that we just went through to see if there were any issues with what I was doing, any concerns. You'd really have to ask Bill though exactly what dialogue he was having, who he was speaking with or what not. I gave you his name as a general --
Q. Well, do you remember Mr. Wright giving you some instruction with respect to your Sunbeam work?
A. I don't remember Mr. Wright specifically commenting to me on the Sunbeam transaction with regards to my performance or my responsibilities, no.
Q. What about the head of equity capital markets, do you remember that person giving you any guidance or instruction with respect to the work you were performing on Sunbeam?

Page 118

Tyree
A. I remember having some discussions with him at the time. I just can't remember who it was. And I'm not sure if in the context of those discussions he was giving me a directive or if we were just discussing the transaction.
Q. What about Mr. Savari? Can you remember Mr. Savari giving you some specific supervision with respect to the work?
A. We could go through the whole list. The way it works at Morgan Stanley is more of a co-operative team approach. So when you ask if Andy Savari gave me any specific directives, oversight was not typically exercised that way. It was exercised in a more co-operative fashion, saying John, you're going to do that, how are things going, that sort of thing. It wasn't Andy saying, do this today, and I have no recollection of him telling me to do that today.
Q. All right. Was Mr. Savari responsible for monitoring your work?

Page 119

Tyree
A. To a certain extent, yes.
Q. You were reporting to him what you were doing?
A. Among other people, yes.
Q. What about Ms. Poratt? Did Ms. Poratt give you instruction with respect to the projects that you were doing on sunbeam?
A. Very similar to my comment on Mr. Savari, which is she did give me some instruction, but we worked in a co-operative fashion, so typically we would sit down and discuss things that related to her area of expertise, and to the extent there were certain things she suggested I do, she'd suggest them and I'd go and do them.
Q. Can you remember any specifically?
A. I have a recollection of Ruth mentioning to me that I should attend the board meeting in question, or the board meeting we discussed earlier. That's one thing I remember.
Q. Anything else?
A. I don't remember her giving me any

Page 120

Tyree
other specific directives during the course of the transaction.
Q. What about Mr. Strong?
A. I remember Bill Strong mentioning to me that I should participate in a conference call, which I think was one of the initial dialogues we had, or I had, on the sunbeam transaction. I don't really remember him giving me other specific directives than that.
Q. The conference call you are referring to is early on in your assignment?
A. I can't recall exactly when that conference call happened.
Q. And what was the subject matter?
A. It was a long time ag. I don't remember exactly what the subject matter was of the call.
Q. The person in equity capital markets that you couldn't recall, is it Brooks Harris?
A. Brooks at that point in time worked in equity capital markets, but to my recollection he was not the head of equity capital markets.

Q. You are thinking of somebody else?
A. Yes.
Q. How much of your activity, Mr. Tyree, on this engagement was in Florida?
A. Not very much.
Q. How many times did you travel to Florida in connection with the Sunbeam engagement?
A. I can't recall exactly how many times I went to Florida in regard to this transaction.
Q. Can you remember going to Florida at all?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you remember going to Florida on more than one occasion?
A. I only remember going to Florida once in regard to this transaction.
Q. Do you remember how much time you spent there?
A. Not exactly.
Q. Do you remember approximately?
A. I remember spending approximately a

Page 122

Tyree
day. It could be a little more, I just don't recall.
Q. Did you have communications with people in Florida in connection with this work?
A. I don't personally recall myself having communications with people in preparation for that meeting. But again, that's not to say it didn't happen, I just don't recall.
Q. I'm not limiting myself to the Sunbeam board meeting, if that's what you thought I was referring to.
A. No.
Q. In connection with the work that you did in 1998 relating to the Sunbeam engagement, did you have communications with people in Florida other than the one trip to Florida that you can recall?
A. I believe I had communications with people in Florida who worked for Sunbeam in addition to the one day meeting that we discussed during the period of time that I worked on the convertible notes offering.

Page 123

Tyree
Q. Can you remember with whom you spoke?
A. No, I cannot. What's your question?
Q. Can you remember the names of any of the people in Florida with whom you spoke while were you performing services relating to Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam?
A. I'm sorry, just to be clear, when you say people in Florida, are you referring to the whole of the Sunbeam management team or --
Q. I'm referring to anybody in Florida relating to this project. It could be Morgan Stanley, it could be Sunbeam, it could be one of Sunbeam's outside professional firms, anybody. The only stipulation is that they're in Florida and you're talking to them or communicating with them in some way.
A. Other than our visit that we discussed for one day for due diligence, it may have been more than one day, I don't have a recollection of discussions with other people in Florida, specific discussions with other people in Florida.

Page 124

Tyree
Q. Well, do you have a memory of speaking to anybody in Sunbeam management in Florida in connection with the work you were doing?
A. Well, yes, I do.
Q. Other than this one trip?
A. Other than this one trip, I don't recall having discussions with members of Sunbeam management that were in Florida at the time. Again, what's not to say it didn't happen, I just don't recall.
Q. As you sit here, you don't remember any telephone calls to someone in sunbeam management?
A. No, I do remember telephone calls to people in Sunbeam management.
Q. While they're in Florida and you're somewhere else?
A. The issue is I just don't recall if they were in Florida at the time.
Q. Whether the Sunbeam managers were in Florida, is that what you're not recalling?
A. Yes.

Q. So you remember phone calls with people in Sunbeam management, correct?
A. I do remember calls with people in Sunbeam management, yes.
Q. And at the moment you are not certain whether they were present in Florida at the time of your phone call.
A. Exactly.
Q. Who do you remember speaking to?
A. I remember speaking to Russ Kirsch on occasion on the phone. I believe I spoke to other representatives of Sunbeam, but I just can't recall their names.
Q. Were there other Morgan Stanley people who went down to Florida in connection with the work on this deal?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
A. If you could rephrase it, or what exactly are you referring to, when --
Q. In connection with Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam, do you know whether any Morgan Stanley personnel travelled to Florida.
A. They may have, but I don't -- I can't represent that I know what other Morgan Stanley people did. I can only represent who I was with when I went, and when I went, yes, a member of -- at least one person from Morgan Stanley went with me.

Page 126

Tyree

Q. Do you remember others from Morgan Stanley being there on that trip?
A. If you want to show me some documents that might refresh my memory, but I specifically remember -- I believe I remember one person.
Q. And who is that?
A. I believe it was Michael Hart. It was a long time ago, so -- but I think it was Michael Hart.
Q. And you don't have any personal knowledge of other people from Morgan Stanley traveling to Florida in connection with this engagement?
A. I don't remember it to the extent that I'd be comfortable saying for sure that certain individuals came with me on that trip to visit Sunbeam.
Q. That wasn't my question. My question was, other than yourself, and perhaps Mr. Hart, you don't have any personal knowledge of any Morgan Stanley personnel travelling to Florida in connection with the Sunbeam engagement, is that your testimony?

Page 127

Tyree

A. I don't recall people travelling other than people I've mentioned down with me to that trip. That's my testimony.
Q. Did you do any work on the materials that Morgan Stanley prepared for purposes of making presentations to my client, Coleman Parent Holdings in connection with the sale of its interest in Coleman Company?
A. I'm sorry, just to be clear, could you repeat the question?
Q. Yes. Coleman Parent Holdings owned something in excess of 80 percent of the Coleman Company, do you recall that?
A. I recall in general the relationship you described.
Q. Did you have any involvement in the preparation of any materials that were used in connection with any presentations to representatives of Coleman Parent Holdings relating to the proposed transaction with Sunbeam?

Page 128

Tyree

A. When you define the proposed transaction, which transaction are you referring to?
Q. The sale of Coleman Parent Holdings' interest in Coleman to Sunbeam.
A. I don't believe that I participated in the drafting or development of any presentations that specifically related to the Coleman transaction as it were.
Q. Let me show you a document.
(Exhibit CPH-9, CP026286-026370, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Mr. Tyree, I'm going to show you a copy of what's been marked as 9, Sunbeam Corporation discussion materials, February, 1998. I will give you a moment to just peruse the document for a second.
Do you see that Morgan Stanley's name is on the bottom right hand corner of the first page?
A. I do see that.
Q. And on the bottom right hand corner of most pages of this document, correct?

A. Yes, it appears to be so.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. I don't recall ever seeing this document.
Q. Looking at the contents of the document, do you recall being involved in the development of any of the materials that are contained in this?
A. First of all, I've never seen this document before. I don't know where it comes from. But no, I don't recall having been involved in the drafting of any of this.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the page that is Bates numbered CP26289. Do you see the numbers in the bottom right hand corner?
A. Yes.
Q. It's entitled executive summary, correct?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. I direct your attention to the next page, investment rationale, do you see that?
A. Yes.

Tyree
Q. Would you read the first bullet point for me.
A. Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story and investment opportunity.
Q. And the words attractive growth story are in bold, correct?
A. On this page, yes, they are.
Q. Do you have any knowledge that Morgan Stanley representatives were involved in communicating to Coleman Parent Holdings that Sunbeam represented an attractive growth story?
MR. CLARE: Objection, form and foundation.
Q. Let me put the question this way. During the course of your work on the Sunbeam transaction, did you come to learn that Morgan Stanley had represented to the Coleman Parent Holdings company that Sunbeam represented an attractive growth story?
A. I don't recall anyone saying to me specifically, and I can only count on what was said to me, that Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story and investment opportunity. I don't remember anyone telling me that.

Q. Your testimony is that you are unaware that Morgan Stanley was involved in communicating to Coleman Parent Holdings that Sunbeam represented an attractive growth story, is that correct?
A. No, that's not my -- my testimony is I have no idea, nor could I have an idea, what Morgan Stanley as an entity was communicating to Sunbeam or to Coleman. I can only comment on what I know.
Q. That's my question. My question is to your knowledge -- my question is did you learn, you personally, you John Tyree, learn at any time during your work in connection with the Sunbeam engagement that Morgan Stanley had communicated to Coleman Parent Holdings that Sunbeam represented an attractive growth story?
A. And I don't recall anyone telling me that Morgan Stanley was communicating to Coleman that Sunbeam was an attractive growth story.

Tyree
Q. You've inserted something in here. I'm not sure whether it makes a difference. My question is did you learn from any source, whether it's somebody telling you it or in some other way, during the course of the work you did for Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam engagement, that Morgan Stanley had communicated to Coleman Parent Holdings that Sunbeam was an attractive growth story.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I want to answer your question. I don't recall anyone, hearing that anyone was communicating anything from Morgan Stanley to Coleman or that anyone communicated to me that quote unquote Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story.
Q. Were you involved in preparing materials at any point that contain that same message, that described Sunbeam in connection with the work you were doing as an attractive growth sorry?
A. I don't recall drafting material personally that had that phraseology in it.
Q. Do you recall reading material that

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 133

Tyree
had that representation in it?
A. I don't recall reading material that had that representation in it until you handed this to me.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the second major bullet point. Can you read that for me, please?
A. Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in July of 1996.
Q. Were you aware during the time period that you were working on the Sunbeam engagement, that Morgan Stanley was representing to Coleman Parent Holdings that Sunbeam had undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in July of 96?
A. I was not aware, I don't recall being aware, that anyone at Morgan Stanley was communicating to Coleman that quote Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in 1996.
Q. Were you involved in preparing materials to communicate that same message to

Page 134

Tyree
anyone?
A. I don't recall being involved in the preparation of materials that had this specific phraseology in it.
Q. Or the substance of that representation.
A. I don't recall participating in the preparation of materials that had the substance of this as you put it in it, but I don't really know how you define substance. It would help if I saw the document.
Q. I'm just asking what you can remember at this point. We'll get to some materials as we go forward.
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember being involved in the preparation of materials that represented to potential investors that Sunbeam had undergone a profound transformation since Al Dunlap had become the chief executive officer in July of 1996?
A. I don't recall that specific phraseology being in the documents that I worked on, but again I don't recall the specifics of those documents, what's exactly in there.

Page 135

Tyree
Q. I'm not asking about specific phraseology. I'm not asking if these words were in -- if you can remember today that these words verbatim appeared in some document that you read or helped prepare. My question is whether sitting here today, you can recall that you were involved in preparing documents that communicated to potential investors the proposition that Sunbeam had undergone a profound transformation since Al Dunlap had become the chief executive officer in July of 96.
A. I don't recall being involved in documents that make reference to a profound transformation or words to that effect since Al Dunlap and team, you know, joined Sunbeam.
Q. Can you read the third bullet point for me.
A. Tremendous intrinsic value in the company.
Q. And then it goes on to say growth and profitability that outpace the nearest competitors. Do you see that language?

Page 136

Tyree
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And the last bullet point in that group is strong management team that is opportunistic but disciplined. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you have any recollection of learning at any time during the work you did for Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam engagement that Morgan Stanley was making representations to Coleman Parent Holdings to the effect of the statements that we've just read, that there was tremendous intrinsic value in Sunbeam, that its growth and profitability outpaced its nearest competitors and that its management team was strong, opportunistic but disciplined?
MR. CLARE: Objection, compound.
You can answer.
A. Because I wasn't involved in the strategic part of this transaction, I have no recollection of anything similar to what you just described being communicated directly

011713

Page 137

Tyree
from Morgan Stanley to Coleman.
Q. Do you have any recollection of being involved in communicating this same message in substance to other potential investors?
A. I believe that the offering memorandum, Sunbeam's offering memorandum makes reference to the strength of its management team. That has obviously been communicated to a wide array of investors. I do recall that there was reference in that document to the strength of Sunbeam's management team.
Q. At any time prior -- let me rephrase that. At any time during the work that you were doing for Sunbeam in 1998, did you come to have reason to question the accuracy of any of the statements that are contained on page CP26290 that we've been talking about?
A. Well, as I said before, I haven't seen this before.
Q. My question is different. Let me be clear.

Page 138

Tyree
MR. CLARE: I think you need to finish your answer first, unless you want to withdraw the question.
Q. Go ahead and finish.
A. It's important to be clear. This relates to, I believe relates to the mergers and acquisitions side of the Sunbeam transactions. I focused on the financing side. So when you ask me about what was and was not communicated to Coleman and words to that effect, I can't comment on that one way or another because I have no basis. I have no basis of knowledge.
Q. Are you finished?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me clarify what I was trying to get at. I'll try to ask you a different question, okay?
A. Okay.
Q. We've just reviewed five different factual statements, right? Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story, Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation, there is tremendous intrinsic value in the company,

Page 139

Tyree
Sunbeam has growth and profitability that outpace the nearest competitors, and Sunbeam has a strong management team that is opportunistic, but disciplined, right?
A. Yes.
Q. At any time during the period you were working on the Sunbeam transaction, did you come to question the accuracy of any of the statements that I've just read? Did you come to believe that one or more of these statements was not true?
A. If we're defining the time I worked on the Sunbeam transaction as being from the point at which we've already discussed I became involved to the closing of the transaction, then during that period of time I cannot recall ever coming into the possession of any information that would cause me to doubt any of the comments here.
Q. Was there a point after that that you did come to doubt the accuracy of these statements?
A. Yes.
Q. When? When was the first time?

Page 140

Tyree
A. I don't remember an exact date.
Q. What was it that caused you to question the accuracy of one or more of these statements?
A. There were a number of factors.
Q. What was the first that came to your attention?
A. I don't remember exactly the first.
Q. Tell me as best you can when it was that you first came to question the accuracy of one of these statements.
A. I don't remember the exact date. Vaguely it was when I came to find out that it appeared that the Sunbeam management team had engaged in fraud.
Q. When was that?
A. I don't remember exactly.
Q. How close was it to the closing of the debenture offering?
A. I believe it was well after the closing of the debenture offering.
Q. Was it within days, weeks, years?
A. Again, it wasn't within years. But beyond that, I don't recall exactly.

Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dunlap was terminated by the Sunbeam board in June of 1998?
A. I recall him being terminated. I don't recall the date at which he was terminated.
Q. All right, can you place the time when you first began personally to have concerns about the accuracy of these statements in relationship to Mr. Dunlap's termination?
A. Well, first, I never had any concern about the accuracy of these statements because I have just seen them. So are you asking a different question?
Q. Well, I'm asking you, you see these statements?
A. Yes.
Q. I'm asking you if there came a time when information came into your possession that would have caused you to doubt the accuracy of the statements here, and you've indicated that the answer to that is yes because at some time information came to your attention that caused you to believe that the Sunbeam management team may have committed fraud, is that correct?

Page 142

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the prior testimony. Incomplete and out of context. You can answer the question if you understand it.
A. That is not how I would characterize it, so I'll try and characterize it. Over a period of time, I became aware that it appeared that the Sunbeam management team had engaged in fraud. That period of time was sometime well after the closing of the Sunbeam convertible notes offering. I can't define for you one point in time when I came to that conclusion. It came over a period of time.
Q. Did that process begin before Mr. Dunlap was terminated?
A. I don't remember when it began.
Q. So you can't relate your first concerns about the truthfulness or the accuracy of these statements to the time when Mr. Dunlap was terminated?

Page 143

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I stick with what I just said, which is there was a period of time over which I became concerned in regards to potential fraud by the Sunbeam management team. I can't define for you the exact time when that occurred.
Q. Was it in 1998?
A. It may have been.
Q. Let me direct your attention to page CP26296. That page is entitled Sunbeam Corporation consolidated net sales 1994-1998E. Do you see that?
A. It has that heading, yes.
Q. Did you have any involvement in preparing this, that you can recall?
A. Again, I don't have any recollection of preparing any of this presentation at all.
Q. I want to ask you if you can tell me what your understanding is of the column that appears over the heading 1997.
A. My understanding of it?
Q. Yeah, how would you interpret that?

Page 144

Tyree
A. I don't know if I have a lot to add to what's on the page. There is a bar above 1996 that has --
Q. 1997 is the year I'm asking about.
A. Correction, there is a bar above 1997 that has a number above it that appears to be a net sales figure for that year.
Q. And that net sales figure is what?
A. I'm looking for the units here. The number itself on the page is 1,168.2. I can't really tell -- it looks like the units are in millions, so 1,168,200 -- correction, 1,168,200,000.
Q. So this summary reports that Sunbeam's net sales in 1997 were 1 billion 168 million, correct?
A. If that's what you say. This is the first time I've seen this document.
Q. That's how you would interpret this though, right?
A. The way I would interpret it is that that bar appears to lay out a potential net sales figure, I can't tell whether it's historical or not, for consolidated net sales for, potentially for Sunbeam.

Q. And the column next to it, can you interpret that to reflect the estimate for net sales for 1998 for Sunbeam?
A. It could be.
Q. And the percentage growth from 1997 to 1998 that this chart reflects is 33.8 percent, correct?
A. That's what this chart reflects. That's the number.
Q. Do you have any recollection of being aware that Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley on behalf of Sunbeam communicated to Coleman Parent the expectation that Sunbeam's net sales in 1998 would increase by almost 34 percent over Sunbeam's net sales in 1997?
MR. CLARE: Objection, lack of foundation.
A. I have no recollection of that.
Q. Do you have any recollection that Sunbeam in 1998 when you were working on the convertible debenture offering was forecasting a substantial increase in its net sales in 1998 over its 1997 net sales?

Page 146

Tyree
A. I don't recall what the sales estimates were for Sunbeam in that period of time.
Q. That's not my question. My question is do you recall that Sunbeam was communicating that it expected to accomplish a substantial increase in its net sales in 1998 over 1997?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Can you just be a little more specific in terms of what you are asking? You're asking do I recall that Sunbeam was communicating to the market a degree of growth?
(The record was read.)
MR. CLARE: Objection, vague.
THE WITNESS: What I recall is that Sunbeam was expecting at the time of this transaction, Sunbeam management team was expecting that their sales were going to grow. That is what I recall.
Q. Do you recall being told that the expectation was sales would grow substantially over 1997?

Page 147

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Objection vague.
A. I don't recall being told that.
Q. Do you recall being told that Sunbeam was communicating to potential investors that it expected to accomplish a substantial increase in its net sales in 1998 over 1997 net sales?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Vague. Substantial is too broad a term.
Q. Well, something in excess of 30 percent.
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you recall something in excess of 20 percent?
A. Again, it was five years ago. I can't recall if it was 20, 25 percent, 30 percent. I don't know exactly what the figures were that Sunbeam was projecting for that time.
Q. Well, do you recall that Sunbeam was communicating to potential investors or to the market generally that it expected to increase its 1998 net sales by something between 20 and 30 percent?

Page 148

Tyree
A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the next page, CP26297.
A. Yes.
Q. Let me ask you a question about just one piece of this, the next income box on the lower right hand corner.
A. Yes.
Q. The net income for 1997 according to this chart that Sunbeam had realized was 123.1 million, is that correct?
A. That's what this chart says.
Q. And this chart also reflects an estimated net income result for 1998 of 199.4 million for Sunbeam, correct?
A. That's what this chart shows.
Q. An increase of about 75 million?
A. Roughly.
Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley was communicating to Coleman Parent figures like these?
MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.
A. I have no recollection of that.

AFTERNOON SESSION

JOHN D. TYREE, resumed and testified as follows:
EXAMINATION BY (Cont'd.)
MR. MARKOWSKI:
(Exhibit CPH-10, CP 033169-240, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Tyree, let me show you what we've marked as deposition Exhibit CPH 10. It bears Bates number 33169 through 33240. Do you recognize that document?
MR. CLARE: Take a chance to look at it first.
A. It looks like an offering memorandum for issuance by Sunbeam of zero coupon convertible notes, the debentures.
Q. This is a debenture offering that you referred to earlier as your principal Sunbeam related offering, correct?
A. I don't remember the entire thing, but it is not dissimilar to that document.
Q. Well, your principal document was Sunbeam zero coupon senior subordinated

Tyree
debenture offering, correct?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
You can answer.
A. The area that I worked on, that I focused on during the Sunbeam transactions was in fact an issuance of zero coupon convertible subordinated debentures.
Q. Does this appear to be the offering memorandum that was used in connection with that offering?
A. As I said, it's not dissimilar to the offering memorandum that I recall, but it's a very big document so I haven't checked every page.
Q. My question is whether it appears to be that document.
A. It appears to be that document.
Q. You don't know of any other zero coupon debenture offering that Morgan Stanley was doing for Sunbeam in March of 1998 other than the one you were working on, do you?
A. I don't know of any, but again, I don't know if this is complete or not.
Q. Subject to that caveat, this looks like the offering memorandum for the debenture offering on which you worked, correct?

Tyree
A. It's not dissimilar to it.
Q. Well, when you say it's not dissimilar to it, I'm not sure what that means. Does that mean to you that this appears to be the document?
A. It means to me that I hesitate to give you any degree of certainty because I haven't read through the entire document and I don't remember exactly what the text was in the offering memorandum that I worked on for the Sunbeam transaction. But as I look at this today, it does not look dissimilar to the document that I worked on five years ago.
Q. And it appears to be the document that was used in connection with that offering, correct?
A. I prefer the phraseology that I used.
Q. Does it appear to you to be something else?
A. That is a pretty broad based question. I don't know how to answer that,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011177

Page 153

Tyree
does it appear to be something else. It doesn't appear -- I don't know how you want me to answer that.
Q. Well, I'm trying to get to something, I think it's a fairly basic question, but we're having a little trouble with it.
Does this look like the document that was used by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley in connection with Sunbeam's zero coupon debenture offering in March of 1998? I realize you haven't read it word for word, but given the opportunity you have had to look at it just now, does this appear to be that offering memorandum?
A. I will rephrase. It appears to be similar in appearance to that document.
Q. Is there any reason that you have to believe that this is something other than the offering memorandum that Sunbeam used in connection with the debenture offering on which you worked?
A. I have no reason to believe that it is not that document.

Page 154

Tyree
Q. Okay. And the debenture offering was the sale ultimately of about $2 billion in face value of subordinated debentures, correct?
A. As I recall the time, it was more than a billion dollars in size. This document says whatever 2 billion, 14 million.
Q. Does this refresh your memory?
A. Does this refresh my memory as to the exact amount?
Q. To the approximate amount, that it was approximately $2 billion.
A. I have no reason to believe that it wasn't approaching $2 billion.
Q. And do you recall that the offering was used by Sunbeam to raise approximately $750 million in cash?
A. I don't remember exactly the amount of cash that they raised in the offering.
Q. That's not my question. I asked you if it was your recollection that Sunbeam raised approximately $750 million in cash through this offering.
A. I don't have a recollection of

Page 155

Tyree
exactly what the amount was that Sunbeam raised in cash through this offering.
Q. But that again wasn't my question.
A. Sorry.
Q. My question was whether it's your recollection that Sunbeam raised approximately $750 million through this offering.
A. It's not my recollection that Sunbeam raised approximately $750 thousand.
Q. 750 million, was my question.
A. Correction, $750 million in this transaction.
Q. How much do you recall Sunbeam raising?
A. I don't recall how much of it was cash, or how much was raised in cash.
Q. What is your recollection concerning the amount of money that Sunbeam raised through the debenture offering on which you worked?
A. I don't have an exact recollection.
Q. Do you have a recollection of approximately? We're going to have trouble if every time I say approximately, you say you don't remember exactly. It's going to really prolong this.

Page 156

Tyree
A. Okay, let me put it this way. I'm not comfortable giving you a number with any degree of exactitude in regard to what they raised without having those exact -- those documents in front of me. I don't think that's unreasonable. It was five years ago.
Q. You have the document right in front of you.
A. No, I don't know what the basis is for this document. If you want me to read off the page what this says, I'm happy to do that. But I need to be specific. I want to be specific with you and reasonably detailed with the information I know and that I remember.
Q. So as you sit here today after 20 hours of preparation for this deposition or more and having been involved in this transaction as a significant part of your work for a period of time, you don't remember approximately how much in cash Sunbeam raised through the debenture offering on which you worked?

MR. CLARE: Objection, argumentative, and objection to form. You can answer.
A. I don't remember within a reasonable range how much was raised in the course of this Sunbeam convertible notes transaction.
Q. And none of the preparation that you engaged in to get ready for today refreshed your memory about that?
A. No, actually it did not.
Q. What is your recollection of the range?
A. Broadly more than 500 million, less than a billion or a billion and a half.
Q. Morgan Stanley was the sole underwriter on the offering?
A. Morgan Stanley was the sole underwriter on the Sunbeam convertible debentures offering, yes.
Q. You were involved in the preparation of the offering memorandum itself, correct?
A. I advised Sunbeam on the

Page 158

Tyree
preparation of the offering memorandum.
Q. You were involved in the drafting process, correct, for the offering memorandum?
A. I advised Sunbeam during the drafting process of the offering memorandum.
Q. You were involved in the drafting process of preparing the offering memorandum, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection, asked and answered.
A. Let me just be very clear. This is a Sunbeam document. I advised them on the drafting of this. I did not myself draft this document. I just want to be clear on what my participation was this that process.
Q. You reviewed the document in draft form as it was being finalized, correct?
A. I did review this document.
Q. In draft form?
A. Correct. I did review the Sunbeam offering memorandum in draft form.
Q. And made comments on it, correct?
A. I believe I did make comments on it, yes.

Page 159

Q. You suggested specific language changes, correct?
A. I don't recall the extent to which I suggested language changes. I may have.
(Exhibit CPH 11, SASMF10699-10705 marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Let me show you a document we'll mark as CPH Exhibit number 11.
What we've marked as CPH 11 is SASMF 10699 through 10705. Take a moment ot look at that.
Have you had a chance to go through it?
A. I haven't read it in detail, but I've looked through it.
Q. CPH Exhibit 11 is a March 9, 1998 fax from you to Janet Kelly, Bob Gluck, Alan Dean and Gregory Fernicola, is that correct?
A. I don't know. I don't recall this document.
Q. That's what it says on its face, correct?
A. That's what the paper says, yes.
Q. And the subject is riders to

Page 160

Tyree
offering memorandum?
A. The subject of this, yes, is riders to offering memorandum.
Q. And is it your testimony that you don't remember this fax?
A. Yes, it is my testimony.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe this document isn't what it appears to be, a fax of riders for the offering memorandum from you to people at Sunbeam?
A. Well, I guess I point out two points. First of all, it's not just to people at Sunbeam, it's also to Alan Dean, I recognize as having been I believe Davis Polk counsel during this transaction. I have no reason to believe or not to believe that this is in fact a fax that was sent to the people in the address line.
Q. Alan Dean was a lawyer for Morgan Stanley, correct, in this transaction?
A. Alan Dean does not work at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Alan Dean was Morgan Stanley's lawyer in connection with this transaction.

A. Alan Dean was a Davis Polk representative who worked on Morgan Stanley's behalf on the Sunbeam transaction.

Q. I call that being Morgan Stanley's lawyer. Do you call it something else?

A. Yes.

Q. What do you call it? Alan Dean didn't represent Morgan Stanley?

A. He represented Morgan Stanley on this transaction, yes.

Q. Well, I call that being Morgan Stanley's lawyer.

MR. CLARE: Objection, move to strike.

Q. I guess I'm not quite clear on what your answer was. I asked you whether you had any reason to believe that this document isn't a fax from you to the people that are indicated on this document, Ms. Kelly, Mr. Gluck, Mr. Dean and Mr. Fernicola. And you said you had no reason to believe it was.

A. No, I have no reason to believe it was or was not because I don't recognize it.

Q. So you have no reason to believe this document is in fact a fax from you on March 9, 1998 to the four people that are listed here?

Tyree

A. Again, I have no reason to believe it is or is not because I do not recognize the document.

Q. Well, do you have reason to believe that somebody created a phoney document, put your name on it and put it in Skadden Arps files?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and argumentative.

A. I only want to represent to you what I know to you true. And when you ask if I can represent if I have any reason to believe this is what it looks to be, I hesitate because I don't recognize the document.

Q. My question was different. My question was do you have any reason to believe it's not an authentic document?

A. And my answer is to say no, I also have to reason to believe that it is an authentic document.

Tyree

Q. And your reason for saying you have no reason to believe it is authentic is what?

A. Because I've never seen it before, or I don't -- correction, I don't recall seeing it before.

Q. Well, let's move forward on it. The memorandum on its face indicates it's transmitting three proposed riders for the offering memorandum, correct?

A. That's what it appears to indicate, yes.

Q. And a rider in this context is what?

A. You would have to talk to the author.

Q. I think I am, but go ahead.

A. Again, you would have to talk to the author. What is your question?

Q. Well, have you used the term rider in referring to providing proposed language for a document such as CPH Exhibit 10 before?

A. I have uses that term before, yes.

Q. And how have you used it?

A. I've used it in the context of annotating comments that could be provided to a document.

Tyree

Q. Providing insertions for a document?

A. It depends on the context.

Q. But that's one way in which you've used it, right?

A. I don't think I would ever characterize it as insertions coming to me into a document.

Q. Well, maybe I'm not using language that's understandable to you, but would you use the term rider to refer to language that you proposed including in an offering memorandum that you were involved in working in?

A. Let me see if I can characterize this right. I don't propose language to go directly into an offering document. What I do on occasion is provide alternative language which management can then use to put in their document and that's how I'd like to characterize it.

Q. Let me have you read the first line

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Tyree
of the text of this memo. It begins with the word attached.
A. Yes.
Q. Read it.
A. Attached please find three riders that Morgan Stanley would propose incorporating into the Sunbeam offering memorandum.
Q. You used the words would propose, is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me have you read the description of rider number one.
A. We would propose inserting this rider into the summary section directly following the company's strength section and before the acquisition section to communicate to the investor the recent restructuring success of the management team.
Q. He uses the words we propose, right?
A. Would propose.
Q. We would propose, right?
A. Yes.

Tyree
Q. The description of rider number 2 uses the phrase we would propose, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the language in connection with rider number 3 says we would propose to insert this rider, correct?
A. That's right.
Q. But that's not language you use, right?
A. I don't --
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
Q. You said you don't use that language. You don't say here's what we propose.
MR. CLARE: Objection, that misstates the testimony.
A. I don't believe that's what I said.
Q. Well, I thought you said you don't propose language to be included in an offering memorandum.
A. Perhaps you can read back my response. But if you want me to repeat it, I'm happy to do that.
Q. Well, do you propose language for a

Tyree
Morgan Stanley client to include in an offering memorandum or not?
A. What I do on occasion is I will propose language to a management team and to the rest of the operational group for them to look at and determine whether that is the appropriate language or language that should be changed that can then be included in an offering memorandum. What I do not do is simply launch language directly into an offering memorandum without them having looked at it, agreed with it, commented on it, added to it, taken away.
Q. So you do propose language to be included in offering memorandas, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the prior testimony.
A. I think you have to be more specific. When you say propose, who do you -- who are you intending to propose it to?
Q. What do you understand the word propose to mean? Maybe that's our stumbling block.
A. It has a number of different meanings, but broadly give to someone for consideration.

Tyree
Q. All right, I will accept that. Do you propose language to be included in offering memoranda being prepared on behalf of Morgan Stanley's investment banking clients?
A. I understand your question, and I want to be specific in my answer. And my answer is that on the occasions when I do provide language, I provide it to a management team, their designated representatives to look at it and determine whether or not it is appropriate to go into an offering memorandum prospectus or whatever the document is that you are referring to. I insist on that degree of specificity in my comment because when you say propose, you are not dictating who or what I propose it to.
Q. Does CPH Exhibit 11 appear to be such a proposal?
A. Can you define such a proposal? You mean a proposal to management?
Q. A proposal to Sunbeam management to include additional language that Morgan

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017181

Tyree
Stanley has prepared into the debenture offering memorandum.
A. What this document appears to be is a memorandum with some potential language, riders as you call it, that are sent to a number of representatives. Alan Dean is one whose name I recognize, Greg Fernicola, I recognize the name, I'm not sure exactly who it is. And I've heard the name Janet Kelly. I believe she's associated with Sunbeam. So it went to a bunch of people, potentially went to a bunch of people who I believe were participating in the Sunbeam convertible.
Q. All right. The memorandum on its face states that the purpose of the first rider is to communicate to the investor the recent restructuring success of the management team. Do you see that?
A. I see that language.
Q. In connection with the description for the purpose for proposing rider number 1.
A. I'm sorry, I lost your question. Can you just repeat it one more time?
Q. In the description associated with

Tyree
rider number 1, the March 9 memorandum states that the reason for suggesting rider number 1 is to communicate to the investor the recent restructuring success of the management team, correct?
A. That's what the language says.
(Begin Videotape 2.)
Q. Mr. Tyree, you've got CPH Exhibit number 11 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me ask you to turn to page 10700, which has the text for rider number 1. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me direct your attention to Exhibit number 10 also, if you can put that side by side. Exhibit number 10 is the offering memorandum.
A. Yes.
Q. And I'm going to ask you to turn to page number 6 of the offering memorandum, Bates numbered CP 33174. Have you got that page in front of you?
A. I do.

Tyree
Q. I'm going to ask you to compare the text of the offering memorandum under the heading restructuring and growth plan to the text of rider number 1, and my question is whether it's correct that rider number 1 appears verbatim in -- on page 6 of the offering memorandum.
MR. CLARE: Object to the question. The documents Exhibit 11 and 10 will speak for themselves, and this is a waste of time, to have the witness go through and do the comparison you've requested.
A. I'm sorry, can you repeat your question.
Q. Is the text of rider number 1 included verbatim in the offering memorandum?
A. No, it doesn't appear to be.
Q. What are the differences?
A. There are several language differences as can you see on the two page s.
Q. Can you identify them for me?
MR. CLARE: I'm going to make the same objection as before. The differences between the two documents will speak for themselves.

Tyree
A. Okay, difference number 1 is restructuring growth plan versus restructuring plan. Difference number 2 is the title of Albert Dunlap, chairman and chief executive officer, Albert Dunlap versus chairman Albert Dunlap. Difference number 3 is the restructuring which was recently completed, included the redefinition, et cetera, in comparison to the restructuring plan has been substantially completed with only, et cetera. We go on to the redefinition of Sunbeam's core products in the document, Exhibit 10, versus a new sentence that says the restructuring included the redefinition of Sunbeam's core products. Exhibit 10 says and the closing of 18 factories. This just says closing of 18 factories. Exhibit 10 says 43 warehouses and five headquarters offices. This says 43 warehouses and five headquarters. When I refer to this, I refer to Exhibit CPH 11. There is a new sentence in CPH 10 that says the company also consolidated all purchasing functions, reduced the number of stock-keeping units, et cetera. In this version, CPH 11 says and a large reduction in the number of SKU's offered. And there is a difference in the location where SKU's is defined. Exhibit 10 doesn't have, I believe it doesn't have units maintained by the company, which is in Exhibit 11, I believe. Exhibit 10 says and outsource certain of the administrative manufacturing distribution activities. Exhibit 11 says and outsourced much of the administrative manufacturing and distribution activities. Exhibit 10 concludes a sentence, approximately 6,000 jobs, then continues with the restructuring -- correction, it concludes a section after -- a sentence after approximately 6,000 jobs continues in 1997, net sales grew, et cetera. Exhibit 11 concludes that same sentence, 6,000 jobs and then states, this restructuring is expected to result in, it looks like an effort was made to combine the two paragraphs in Exhibit 11 into one, which is to a varying extent incorporated in the last sentence of Exhibit number 10.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011782

Tyree

Tyree

I've gone through this kind of quickly. I may have missed something, but those were the major differences that I identified.

Q. You agree with me that the substance of rider number 1 was included in the text at the top of page 6 of the offering memorandum under the heading restructuring and growth plan?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. You immediate to be more specific on substance.

Q. You believe that the principal message of rider number 1 and almost all of its text was included in the text on page 6 of the offering memorandum?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

Q. And that the changes that you have identified are immaterial.

MR. CLARE: Same objection and vague as to immaterial or material. Calls for a legal conclusion.

A. I view in documents such as this in particular in the executive summary, because it is a summarized version of the rest of the document, some of the changes I have talked about as being material. That is not a legal conclusion, that is my view as someone who would advise a management team on the text that would be put in their offering memorandum, which this may or may not be.

Tyree

Q. Why do you say that?

A. Why do I say the entire --

Q. Why do you say what you just said?

A. Because I believe that language is very important in terms of communicating messages to potential investors.

Q. It's very important to be accurate in documents of this sort, correct?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.

A. What I said was that I believe language, in particular language in the executive summary of an offering memorandum is very important to communicate a message to investors.

Q. Do you disagree with what I just said?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

Tyree

A. Could you repeat what you just said?

Q. It's very important to be accurate in documents such as Exhibit number 10, the offering memorandum.

A. I believe it is important to be as accurate as one can be, given what one knows at the time in a document such as this one.

Q. Because people are going to be relying on it in making investment decisions, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.

A. What is your question?

Q. Because people are going to be relying on the language included in documents such as this in making investment decisions?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. I would put it differently. I think that if, and again, I do not want to speculate, but there are a number of variables that people consider when they make an investment decision. An offering memorandum is certainly not the only one.

Q. I'm not saying it's the only one.

Do you agree with me that a reason why it is important to be accurate in documents such as CPH Exhibit number 10 is that investors will be relying on the statements contained in this document in determining whether to make an investment?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I would characterize as it is important when a management team puts together their offering memorandum that they are as accurate as they can be in that disclosure.
Q. Because people will be reviewing that document in connection with making investment decisions, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
A. That's one potential reason. There are others.
Q. That's why the document is being prepared, right? It's to provide information to people in connection with making an investment decision.
A. The document is being prepared for a number of reasons, but one of them is to assist investors in making an investment decision, an offering memorandum.

Page 178

Tyree
Q. The purpose of the offering memorandum is to provide them with information relating to the company offering the security, correct?
A. That's one purpose of the document.
Q. That was the purpose of the offering memorandum that Sunbeam used in connection with the zero coupon debenture offering on which you worked, correct?
A. That was one purpose for that document.
Q. And you said it was important for the company to be accurate. Is it important that the document be accurate based on the knowledge that the investment banker underwriting the offering has?
A. If you could clarify your question a little bit.
Q. Is it important that the underwriter make certain to the best of its ability that the information contained in the offering memorandum is accurate to the best of

Page 179

Tyree
its knowledge?
A. I would characterize it differently.
Q. How would you characterize it?
A. I would say that it is important that the investment banker or the investment banking representative make sure to the extent possible that the management team understands how critical it is that the information in their offering memorandum is accurate.
Q. So it's not important for the investment banker to make certain that the offering memorandum is consistent with the underwriter's knowledge?
A. I did not say that.
MR. CLARE: Objection, it misstates the prior testimony.
THE WITNESS: I didn't say that. This is or this appears to be similar to a document that Sunbeam management, an offering memorandum that Sunbeam management put in front of investors. Investment bankers in the case of the Sunbeam transaction advise that management team on this document. What they don't -- what they can't advise on with any degree of certainty is the absolute truth because -- of the document because they in large part rely on the management team as well as their other third party advisors.

Page 180

Tyree
Q. I just want to make sure you're done.
A. I'm done.
Q. Here's my question. Is it important that the offering memorandum be accurate based on the information that the investment banker actually possesses relating to the matters that are addressed in the memorandum?
MR. CLARE: Objection, asked and answered. You can answer again.
A. I stick with what I said before, which is that it is important that in their advisory capacity the investment banker advises the client, third parties involved, of the importance that what they put in their document is accurate. That's a major part of their job.
Q. Well, there is a name at the bottom of this document. Read it for me. The name of a firm.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 181

A. Which exhibit is this?
Q. CPH Exhibit number 10.
A. The name is Morgan Stanley Dean Witter.
Q. Right. Morgan Stanley Dean Witter is the entity that employed you in connection with this transaction, right?
A. That's not how I would characterize it.
Q. Who employed you in connection with this? Whose interests were you representing?
A. It's different. Morgan Stanley employed a number of people in the context of this transaction. I was one.
Q. And Morgan Stanley's name is on this document, correct?
A. This exhibit CPH 10, Morgan Stanley's name is on the bottom, yes.
Q. Did you have any responsibility in connection with your work on this document to make certain based on the information in your possession that the statements contained in this document were true?

Page 182

Tyree
A. If I knew of a statement at that time to be false, I personally, John Tyree, that was put into this prospectus, I would have done several things, among them bring it to the attention of the client, bring it to the attention of my colleagues who I work with and resolve it one way or another, at that time.
Q. So you had responsibility in connection with your work on this, if you identified some statement in this document as being inconsistent with what you believe to be true, to make certain that that concern was properly addressed, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.
A. I would say again, a number of people had that -- had a responsibility in the context of this document. But again, that's what I would have done, or I believe I would have done at the time. But again, you're asking me to comment on this document. I don't know if it is in fact our document, or the document in the offering memorandum that I worked with on Sunbeam. I've told you how I would approach it, how I believe I would approach it, and I hesitate to give you hypotheticals because I don't know exactly what this situation is that you are outlining.

Page 183

Tyree
Q. Well, I want to be fair with you about this, and I'm not asking about other people's responsibility, I'm only asking about you, so I'm going to make it simple for you. If there was some statement that you saw in this document that you believe to be false, did you believe it was your responsibility to make sure that your concerns were properly addressed before this document was finalized?
A. I think I've already answered that.
Q. The answer is yes?
A. No, the answer is what I gave earlier.
Q. Well, I'm entitled to an answer to this question, because I don't know what you said before. I'm asking about your personal responsibility. If there was a statement contained in the Sunbeam debenture offering memorandum that you John Tyree believed to be false, did you John Tyree believe you had responsibility to make sure that your concerns about the truthfulness of the matters contained in here was properly addressed before this offering document was finalized?

Page 184

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question, asked and answered, and I move to strike counsel's comments at the beginning.
A. Well, I'm going to try and go through what I said before, which is you are giving me a hypothetical. I don't know what the quote unquote misstatement might have been. I don't know the degree to which it was important. So I will tell you what I would do right now today, which is if I had an offering memorandum and I was working in the same capacity I was working with then when we worked on the Sunbeam transaction, and I found there to be a significant misstatement or a misstatement as it were in the offering memorandum, I would bring it to the attention of management, I would bring it to the

017185

Page 185

Tyree
attention of my senior colleagues and we would resolve it. That is what I believe I would do today.
Q. I'm not asking about what you would do in 2003, I'm asking whether back in 1998 when you were working on this debenture offering, you understood that if there was a statement contained in the offering memorandum that Sunbeam was preparing and in which you were involved in providing advice, that you personally believe to be false, that you had responsibility personally to make certain that any concerns you had with respect to that were properly addressed before the memorandum was published to investors.
MR. CLARE: I'm going to object again, asked and answered several times now.
A. I would, I believe, and again, this is a hypothetical where you haven't really laid out exactly going on in this quote unquote process. But I believe I would have handled it back then in the same way I've described to you that I would handle it today.
Q. So would you have acted on it,

Page 186

Tyree
correct?
A. I've already said what I would do.
Q. One of your responsibilities, Mr. Tyree, in connection with the offering memorandum was to go to the printer in connection with finalizing the document the day it was published, correct?
A. It was going to the printer the day the Sunbeam offering memorandum was published, to my recollection was something that I did.
Q. All right. Do you have a memory as you sit here today of going to the printer the night the Sunbeam debenture offering memorandum was finalized?
A. I have a vague recollection of doing that, yes.
Q. And it was your responsibility that night to do the various things that needed to be done for the memorandum to be finalized and for the document to be published for investors, is that correct?
A. No.
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.

Page 187

Tyree
Q. How have I misdescribed your responsibilities?
A. You have described what is more the company's responsibilities. My responsibilities were to be there in an advisory role to assist the company in accomplishing most of the tasks you've just laid out.
Q. Who else was present at the printer that night?
A. Myself from Morgan Stanley for a period of time. I don't recall exact names, but there were representatives there from Davis Polk. I believe there were representatives there at differing times. We were there for a fairly lengthy period of time. Representatives there from Sunbeam counsel, as I recall.
Q. Do you remember who that was?
A. I don't, unfortunately. And people were in and out during that period of time. There were representatives there from Sunbeam's management team; there were representatives there from the auditors,

Page 188

Tyree
Sunbeam's auditing firm.
Q. Do you remember what firm that was?
A. Arthur Andersen. There were obviously representatives of the printer there. Those are the key groups that were represented, as I recall.
Q. Was there anyone from Morgan Stanley other than you present that day, at the printer?
A. I don't recall that there was anyone there from Morgan Stanley. I just don't remember if there was anyone there in addition to myself.
Q. Do you remember that Global Financial Press was the printer on this offering memorandum?
A. I believe that was the printer.
Q. Do you recall where you were at, what Global Financial facility you were at that evening?
A. I'm sorry, are you asking me for the geographic location?
Q. Yes.
A. It was in Manhattan, and I could be

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 189

Tyree
wrong, I believe it was on the west side of Manhattan.
Q. Had you had responsibilities like this before, to go to the printer the night an offering document is being finalized?
A. I had gone to -- I'd been to the printer before.
Q. The night it's been finalized?
A. I don't remember in advance of that date having been at a printer on the night it was being finalized, but that's not to mean I hadn't been there, I just don't recall it.
Q. Well, let me ask the question this way. Do you have some memory that this was the first experience you had in being at the printer the night an offering memorandum was being finalized?
A. No, I don't have that.
Q. And as far as you can recall, you are the only Morgan Stanley representative present, correct?
A. As far as I can recall.
Q. And you don't have any recollection of the names of the people from Davis Polk who were there that night?

Page 190

Tyree
A. I recall the name, I hesitate because I'm not sure, but I recall the name Lurie, and I believe there was another female from Davis Polk there, but I just don't remember her name.
Q. When you say you recall the name Lurie, do you believe Mr. Lurie was present at the printer that night?
A. He may have been. I don't remember specifically.
Q. Do you remember a man and a woman from Davis Polk being present that evening?
A. I remember a woman being present. And the rest of my memory is a group of people who were there. Frankly I say Lurie because his name sticks out in my mind. I don't remember him in particular.
Q. Do you know Mr. Lurie? Do you know who he is?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Have you dealt with him on other transactions besides the Sunbeam debenture offering?

Page 191

Tyree
A. I don't recall having dealt with him on other transactions other than the Sunbeam convertible transaction.
Q. Sunbeam's counsel, you said you can't remember what law firm that was?
A. It may have been Skadden.
Q. That's your best recollection, it was Skadden Arps?
A. That's my best recollection.
Q. Do you remember the names of the people who were there representing Sunbeam? Sunbeam's counsel, excuse me?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Is the name Todd Fried a familiar name?
A. I've heard the name before, but it doesn't bring to mind a face.
Q. You don't remember Mr. Fried being present at the printer that night?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Adrian Dietz?
A. Again, I have heard the name before, but I don't remember Mr. Dietz being there physically at the firm, or at the

Page 192

Tyree
printer firm.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Dietz and Mr. Fried being involved in the Sunbeam debenture offering?
A. I recall their names associated with the transaction, but beyond that, I don't have a strong recollection of either of them.
Q. And you indicated that there were people there from Arthur Andersen, correct?
A. I believe there were, yes.
Q. Do you remember the names of those people?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Does the name Lawrence Bornstein refresh your memory?
A. I've heard the name before.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein being at the printer that night?
A. I don't have a specific recollection of him being at the printer.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein generally?
A. I recall that -- I believe he was on the transaction working for Arthur

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Andersen, but that's about the extent of my recollection.
Q. You don't have any memory of Mr. Bornstein being at the printer on the evening of March 19?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Is the name Todd Brockelman familiar to you?
A. I don't have a strong recollection of that name.
Q. Actually I think I might have misspoken. It's I believe Mark Brockelman. Is that a familiar name to you?
A. You know, it's really not.
Q. You don't remember Mr. Brockelman working on the debenture offering for Arthur Andersen?
A. I don't.
Q. Who from Sunbeam management was there. Did you indicate to me that there were people from Sunbeam management present at the printer that night?
A. I did, but I think I said I don't remember what their names were.

Tyree
Q. But you have a definite memory that there were people from Sunbeam itself present?
A. I believe there were representatives of Sunbeam there.
Q. But you're not certain?
A. I'm not absolutely positive.
Q. Was this the only time you went to the printer in connection with the Sunbeam debenture offering, the night it was being finalized, or were you there on some prior occasion?
A. Well, I don't have a specific recollection of being at Global Financial Press on a different occasion. You know, I don't have that specific a recollection of another period when I was there at the printer.
Q. Now, were you aware that in the days prior to March 19, Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley had been engaged in a road show to attract interest in the debenture offering on the part of investors?
A. I was aware that the Sunbeam management team was conducting a meeting with investors in regards to the convertible notes offering, yes.

Tyree
Q. Were you aware that there was a series of meetings across the country for that purpose?
A. Yes.
Q. And were you aware that Morgan Stanley representatives were attending along with Sunbeam those meetings?
A. I believe that there were Morgan Stanley representatives along.
Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley had assisted Sunbeam in preparing materials for use at the road show presentations to potential investors?
A. I recall that -- what I recall is that Morgan Stanley provided logistical assistance in the context of the road show. I can't remember if that was printing books, I can't remember if it was just travel arrangements or what have you.
Q. Did you assist in any way with respect to the preparation of road show materials?

Tyree
A. I don't recall having done specific work on the convertible -- Sunbeam convertible notes transaction road show presentation.
Q. Well, when you say you don't recall having done specific work, is it your belief that you were involved in some aspect of the preparations associated with the road show presentations?
A. It is my belief -- correction, it's my recollection that I reviewed some travel arrangements associated with the road show presentation and that I attended a road show presentation I believe in New York, in New York City. Beyond that, I don't have a recollection of having worked on the roadshow presentation materials.
Q. You don't have any recollection as you sit here of being involved in assisting in the process of drafting the presentation materials that were used at the road show?
A. I don't have a recollection of that, no.
Q. You said you have a memory of attending at least one of the group road show presentations, correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. And you think that was in Manhattan?
A. I believe it was in Manhattan.
Q. Do you remember where that presentation took place?
A. It took place at a hotel in Manhattan. I'm not exactly sure of the name of that hotel.
Q. Was that a lunch presentation?
A. As I recall it was a lunch presentation.
Q. Do you recall who else from Morgan Stanley was there?
A. I don't recall all the attendees from Morgan Stanley.
Q. Who do you remember being there from Morgan Stanley?
A. I believe that Ruth Poratt was there. That's the only representative I can recall specifically.
Q. Do you remember a Jim Steins being there?

Tyree
A. I don't have that recollection.
Q. Why were you there?
A. I was there because I was curious to see the road show presentation, among other reasons.
Q. What other reasons were there?
A. I'm sure there were other reasons. I just can't remember what they were.
Q. Why were you curious to see it?
A. Because I had been, among other things, advising the company on their offering memorandum, participated in the logistics of the road show presentation. That's my recollection as to why I wanted to be there to see it.
Q. Did someone invite you to attend?
A. I don't remember anyone specifically inviting me.
Q. Do you recall that was the day before the offering memorandum was finalized?
A. I don't recall exactly what day it was. I think it was near that date.
Q. Do you recall the roadshow ended on March 19?

Tyree
A. Again, I don't recall the exact date when the roadshow ended.
Q. Do you recall that the final pricing of the debentures took place on the evening of March 19?
A. Similar to the roadshow, I don't recall the exact date when the pricing occurred. That may be right, I'm just not absolutely sure of the exact date.
Q. Would it be typical for the final pricing to take place the same day that the offering memorandum is itself finalized?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I wouldn't characterize it that way.
Q. How have I misstated it?
A. Perhaps the perception, typically what happens is the pricing occurs, and then, and I hesitate to use typically, in many of the situations I've worked on, the pricing occurs, and then the offering memorandum, the company finalizes their offering memorandum.
Q. That's what I was trying to say.
A. I'm sorry.

Tyree
Q. And that that would happen the same day.
A. Not always.
Q. But typically.
A. It depends. It depends on the timing of pricing.
Q. Well, is it typically the case that once final pricing is completed, that the effort is made to immediately finalize the offering memorandum?
MR. CLARE: Same objection to form.
A. I would characterize it differently. I'd say once the pricing is completed, in many of the situations I've been part of, a final offering memorandum can be published soon, as soon as practicable thereafter.
Q. Do you know why Arthur Andersen would have been present at the printer on the evening the debenture offering was being finalized?
A. I'm sure there are a number of reasons they might be present.

Q. Well, I want to talk specifically about Sunbeam because that's what brings us here. You recall Arthur Andersen being present the night the offering memorandum was finalized?
A. I do.
Q. Do you recall what specific purposes Arthur Andersen was there for?
MR. CLARE: I'm going to object to the extent the question asks the witness to speculate.
A. You would have to ask Arthur Andersen why they were there.
Q. What was your understanding?
A. My understanding as to what?
Q. Why Arthur Andersen was present the night the offering memorandum is being finalized.
A. Again, I don't see that I am in the place to tell you why Arthur Andersen was there at the printer.
Q. You're the only person that can tell me why John Tyree thinks they were there and what's what my question is.

Page 202

Tyree
A. Well, I think they were there for a number of different reasons. Do you want me to give you --
Q. Yes. That's what I'm asking.
A. Okay, I think they were there because their name is in this document, and prior to the printing of the document, they likely would want to make sure that they were comfortable with its content. That's one reason. They were there because I -- because we had to speak in regards to what's called bring down due diligence during that time at the printer as I recall. And I'm sure there were other reasons. Those are two.
Q. Those are the ones you can recall?
A. Those are the -- you asked what John Tyree thinks.
Q. That's all I'm asking.
A. Those are two that John Tyree thinks. You'd have to talk to them if they had others.
Q. Do you recall any others?
A. No, those are the two that I recall.

Page 203

Tyree
Q. Do you recall that Morgan Stanley had asked Arthur Andersen for a comfort letter in connection with this offering?
A. I do not recall personally asking Arthur Andersen for a comfort letter in regards to this Sunbeam convertible notes debentures transaction.
Q. All right, that's a little bit different than my question. My question was do you recall that Morgan Stanley asked Arthur Andersen for a comfort letter in connection with this offering?
A. I don't recall that Morgan Stanley asked for a comfort letter in regards to the Sunbeam convertible debentures transaction.
(Exhibit CPH 12, CPH12526-27, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Tyree, let me show you what we've marked as CPH Exhibit number 12, a document that bears Bates number CPH12526 through 27. Exhibit number 12, Mr. Tyree, is a letter on Morgan Stanley stationery dated March 11, 1998 from John D. Tyree to Arthur Andersen. Take a moment to look at it, please. Have you had a chance to look at it?

Page 204

Tyree
A. I have.
Q. Does this refresh your recollection that you personally on behalf of Morgan Stanley had written to Arthur Andersen to request that they provide a comfort letter in connection with the subordinated debenture offering?
A. No, it does not.
Q. So you have no memory of this document?
A. I have no memory of this letter in particular, no.
Q. Does that appear to your signature on the second page?
A. It does.
Q. Do you have any reason to think this is not what it appears to be, a letter from you to Arthur Andersen on March 11, 1998 requesting a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen?
A. Again, I have no reason to believe it is or it isn't. It's just the document that you just put in front of me.

Q. You don't have any reason to think that somebody is fabricating documents that have your name on them, do you?
A. I don't know. I don't know if they would have reason to or not. You'd have to ask them.
Q. Well, that's my question, Mr. Tyree. If you have some reason to think that somebody is fabricating documents with your name on it, which is what you are implying, I think, I'd really like to know what the basis for that is. If you don't, that's a simple thing to say as well. So my question is, do you as you sit here have reason to believe that someone has fabricated documents and put your name on it?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and I move to strike the preamble to the question.
A. The reason that I phrase my answer in the way that I do is because I don't know this document. I didn't know the one you laid out in front of me before, I don't remember it, is the right term. So when you ask me if

Page 206

Tyree
I have reason to believe if someone at Sunbeam has created fraudulent files or what have you, I don't know, I don't work at Sunbeam. I don't see how I can make an informed judgment on that. I don't know the situation at Sunbeam today.
Q. You seem to be struggling with some of my questions. I'm asking you what you know. That's what we're here for today. And my question is whether John Tyree has some reason to believe that someone has fabricated documents and put his name on it. So that's my question. Did you have some reason to believe that somebody has falsified and created Exhibit number 12?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and move to strike the preamble.
A. It is a very broad question. There has obviously been a lot going on at Sunbeam, which is why I hesitate. I don't know all the details. So when you ask if I have any reason to believe, I don't think it would be appropriate for me to make a direct claim to you one way or the other because I don't know

Page 207

Tyree
all the facts.
Q. Well, what you know is what you know. And I'm asking you whether you have some reason to believe somebody has falsified documents and put your name on it. If the answer to that is no, great, we can move on. If you think there is some reason to believe this is a fraudulent document, I need to pursue that.
MR. CLARE: I'm going to make the same objection.
A. No individual, no person has told me that there is any reason I should be concerned with fraudulent documentation. Beyond that, I hesitate to make a judgment one way or another as to whether or not there is a reason for someone at Sunbeam or another entity to draft fraudulent documents such as this one because do I not know what the situation is at Sunbeam.
Q. So you have no reason to believe that somebody has done that, right?
A. And I have no reason to believe that they have not. I don't see what's wrong with having -- to say both. I have said to you, I don't have any reason to believe that they have and I don't have any reason to believe that they have not.

Page 208

Tyree
Q. Let's move on. But that appears to you to be your signature on this page, right?
A. It does.
Q. And would it have been within the scope of the responsibilities you had on this transaction to prepare a letter such as Exhibit 12 to the auditor requesting a comfort letter?
A. I have prepared letters like this in the past for other transactions.
Q. All right, so this doesn't surprise you as something we'd find in the file for this transaction, correct?
A. No, I'm not surprised.
Q. Does this refresh your memory that one of the reasons Arthur Andersen was at the printer on the night of the finalization of the Sunbeam offering memorandum was so that it could also finalize its comfort letter to Morgan Stanley?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017191

Tyree

A. I don't necessarily view physically being at the printer as a necessity to finalizing your comfort letter. There are a number of other reasons why they might have been there or might be there.

Q. Do you have a memory that night of getting the final version from Arthur Andersen of the comfort letter?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Now, during the course of the evening of March 19, you got into a heated discussion with the Arthur Andersen representatives who were present that night, is that correct?

A. No. Not to my recollection.

Q. Do you recall that the Arthur Andersen representatives who were present that night objected to some of the statements that were contained in the offering memorandum?

A. No. I don't recall that.

Q. You have no recollection as you sit here that Larry Bornstein from Arthur Andersen objected to statements contained in the offering memorandum that was being finalized that night?

Tyree

A. I have no recollection of that.

Q. Let me direct your attention to Exhibit number 10. Do you have that in front of you, the offering memorandum?

A. I do.

Q. Let me direct your attention to page number 8 of that document, the recent announcement section at the bottom.

A. Yes.

Q. I want you to read those two paragraphs to yourself.

Have you had an opportunity to read those two paragraphs?

A. Yes.

Q. Those two paragraphs describe an announcement that Sunbeam made on March 19, correct, in a press release?

A. I don't remember exactly what their press release was on that date.

Q. That wasn't what I asked. I asked whether the paragraphs that I've asked you to read in the offering memorandum on page 8 describe a Sunbeam press release that was issued on March 19.

Tyree

A. I wasn't clear. Because I don't have a direct recollection of that press release, I can't opine as to whether this text reflects it.

Q. Let me ask the question a little bit differently and maybe we can move along. The paragraphs on page 8 of the offering memorandum purport to describe a press release that Sunbeam issued on March 19, correct?

A. That's what they purport to describe, yes.

Q. Do you recall reading the Sunbeam March 19 press release before the offering memorandum was finalized?

A. I don't recall reading the press release. I recall there being a press release but I don't recall sitting down and reading through and having a strong recollection of the press release itself.

Q. Well in fact you had the press release before it was issued, isn't that correct?

A. I believe that I did, yes.

Tyree

Q. Are you testifying that you had it but you didn't read it?

A. No, what I said was that I don't have a specific recollection of reading it. So I can't quote to you line and verse what the content of it was.

Q. So as you sit here today you couldn't recite from memory the contents of Sunbeam's March 19 press release, correct?

A. Exactly.

Q. But on March 19 you had as of that point in time read the press release, correct?

A. I don't have a specific recollection of reading the press release, but yes, I did have the press release.

Q. You had possession of it. You got it the night before, right?

A. I don't remember exactly when the final version of the press release was delivered to me.

(Exhibit CPH 13, SASMF10808-807, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Mr. Tyree, let me show you what we're marking as CPH Exhibit number 13. It's a two-page document, it bears Bates numbers SASMF10808 and 10807.

FURTHER EXAMINATION BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Mr. Tyree, let me put CPH Exhibit number 13 in front of you again. Do you have that?
A. I do.
Q. It's a two-page document, a fax cover sheet and a confirmation sheet on Skadden Arps letterhead, correct?
A. That's what it appears to be.
Q. And on its face anyway it purports to be a fax from Todd E. Fried to John D. Tyree, correct?
A. Again, that's what it appears to be.
Q. Would you read the message that appears in the message portion of the fax cover page?
A. Please see the attached press release. Under no circumstances should this press release be disseminated prior to its sign off by Albert J. Dunlap and/or David C. Fannon.

Tyree
Q. Does this refresh your recollection that you personally received a copy of the March 19 press release that Sunbeam issued before that press release was publicly announced?
A. I don't think it needed refreshing. I knew I had the press release in advance.
Q. Okay, I was unclear about that. You have a memory of having a copy of the Sunbeam press release in your personal possession before it was released to the public?
A. No, my memory is of having the press release in advance of the drafting session that we've been discussing.
Q. And I'm asking a slightly different question. This fax is dated March 18, correct?
A. The date, March 18, yes.
Q. And the confirmation sheet attached to it is dated March 18 as well, correct?
A. It is.

Tyree
Q. And the time associated with the message on the confirmation sheet is 2341, correct?
A. It is.
Q. And I'm sure you're better than I am with those kinds of numbers, but that's 11:41 in the evening, correct, 2341?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have a memory of receiving a copy of the Sunbeam press release late in the evening of March 18 before it was publicly released?
A. No.
Q. So this message doesn't refresh your recollection that Skadden Arps had faxed a copy of the press release to you personally on the evening of March 18?
A. It doesn't refresh my memory as to when I received the press release for Sunbeam (Exhibit CPH 14, Morgan Stanley Confidential 16944-945, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. All right, let me show you a copy of what we've marked as CPH Exhibit 14. Again a two-page document. It bears Bates number Morgan Stanley confidential 16944-945. Take a moment to look at that.

Tyree
Does this appear to be the press release that is referred to on page 8 of the offering memorandum?
A. It appears to be a Sunbeam press release. It appears that a portion of this has been copied into this document.
Q. By this you are referring to --
A. Exhibit 14.
Q. It appears that a portion of Exhibit 14 has been copied and repeated as the text on page 8 of the offering memorandum, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you know how physically that came about?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall personally being involved in taking the text from the Sunbeam press release and preparing language based on that press release that was inserted into the offering memorandum?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

D 1793

Tyree

A. I do not recall doing that.
Q. Do you recall receiving that in some form from Sunbeam so that it could be inserted into the offering memorandum?
A. Could be repeat your question, receive what exactly?
Q. Let me take a step back. I'm talking logistics at the moment with respect to the preparation of the final language, in particular the final language that appears into the recent announcement section on page 8. The Sunbeam press release on its face indicates it was released on March 19, correct? The offering memorandum, am I correct about that?
A. You are correct that this document has a March 19 date on it.
Q. And do you recall that the press release was issued the same day the offering memorandum was finalized? Is that something that sticks in your mind?
A. I believe that was correct. That is correct.
Q. So the recent announcement section of this offering memorandum would not have had this language in it prior to at some point in the day on March 19 presumably, correct?

Tyree

A. Again, that's a hypothetical. Can you be more clear with a specific question?
Q. Well, do you think this language in the offering memorandum appeared in prior drafts before the final version?
A. I do not recall there being a present announcement section in the preliminary offering circular.
Q. Since this describes an event that took place on March 19, isn't it the case that this language would have had to be added to the offering memorandum at some point during the day on March 19?
A. The dates here would imply that.
Q. And do you have any memory as you sit here how that occurred during the course of events at the printer that evening?
A. Again, I don't recall how the text from the Sunbeam press release was logistically, as you put it, put into the executive summary of the Sunbeam offering circular.

Q. Is it possible that you were involved in that process or do you rule that out?
A. It's possible.
Q. So it's possible you were the person involved in taking this language and adapting it for use in the offering memorandum?
A. I would say it is highly unlikely that I was the only one involved in putting this language into this prospectus.
Q. I'm not asking if you were the only one involved, but somebody had to be the person who took language, put it together, and had someone type it into the offering memorandum. I'm asking if that person might have been you.
A. No, I would not have typed this information into the offering memorandum.
Q. Given it to someone to be typed into the offering memorandum.
A. There were a number of people at the printer who could have potentially given the Sunbeam press release and given them a directive to incorporate into the offering circular.

Tyree

Q. And one of those possibilities is you, correct?
A. Anything is possible.
Q. I'm not asking if anything is possible. Do you -- based on the manner in which the memorandum was being finalized, is it possible in your mind that you were the person who caused this language to be included in the typed portion of the offering memorandum on page 8?
A. I believe it is highly unlikely. I don't like to say impossible, it's highly unlikely that I was the person who insisted that this language be put in this document.
Q. I'm not talking about insisting and I'm not at this moment talking about the decision-making. I'm talking about the physical act of including it in the document.
A. Yes.
Q. Is it possible that you were the person who handled that aspect of that task?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 221

Tyree
A. And as I said, it's highly unlikely I was the one who typed this in. If you can be more specific about the process that you are referring to.
Q. Well, I assume it's somebody at the printer that actually is preparing the text that we see on page 8, physically preparing that, is that correct?
A. That's likely.
Q. Do you recall taking a copy of the press release, marking it up in some way, handing it to someone at the printer and saying this is the language we want to include in this section of the document?
A. I do not recall doing that.
Q. Do you recall somebody else doing that?
A. I do not recall anyone else doing that.
Q. You knew it was happening that night, correct?
A. Can you repeat the question.
Q. You knew that the substance of the March 19 press release was being included in the recent announcement section of the offering memorandum, correct?

Page 222

Tyree
A. My memory of that night is vague, but I do recall the management team putting the, or approving as it were putting the contents of a press release, the Sunbeam press release in the offering memorandum.
Q. Who do you recall discussing that with?
A. I don't have a specific recollection of an individual.
Q. Do you recall discussions about that decision with anyone at Morgan Stanley before the offering memorandum was finalized?
A. I don't recall having a discussion with anyone at Morgan Stanley in regards to incorporating the Sunbeam press release into the Sunbeam offering memorandum.
Q. Did somebody from Morgan Stanley before you went to the printer that day say to you, John, here's what we want to include. Here's what the company wants to include in the recent announcement section. It's going to be the text of the press release that went out this morning.

Tyree
A. I don't recall that.
Q. When you got to the printer, did you have discussions with anyone about the fact that the press release information was going to be included in the recent announcement section of the offering memorandum?
A. I don't recall having a specific conversation with any individual about the press release going into the Sunbeam offering memorandum.
Q. You said you don't have a recollection of a specific discussion. Do you recall in general that that issue was discussed at some point during the course of the evening on March 19?
A. I have a vague recollection that during that evening at the Global Financial Press, that the decision was made to put the Sunbeam press release or a derivation of it into the recent development section, or correction, recent announcement section of the Sunbeam offering memorandum. That's the extent of my recollection.

Tyree
Q. Do you remember someone objecting to that?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein objecting to including the language from the press release in the offering document?
A. I do not remember that.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein in particular objecting to including any statement in the offering memorandum that indicated that the company expected in the first quarter of 1998 to have net sales that exceeded its first quarter 1997 net sales?
A. Not only do I not remember that, I do remember a representative of Arthur Andersen confirming, I can't remember who it is, confirming they were comfortable with the contents of the offering memorandum, of the Sunbeam offering memorandum. That I do remember.
Q. Who was that?
A. As I said, I can't remember who the individual was.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Tyree
Q. When was that?
A. It was during that evening that we're discussing, the evening in question.
Q. Is your testimony that you specifically -- let me put it this way.
Do you deny that someone from Arthur Andersen objected to including the statement in the offering memorandum that is contained in the first sentence of the press release, that Sunbeam corporation said today that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analyst estimates of 285 to 295 million, but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of 253.4 million?
A. I do not deny that.
(The record was read.)
Q. So it's your testimony that you do not deny that Arthur Andersen objected to including that language in the offering memorandum?
MR. CLARE: Objection. I think it misstates the testimony in context of his

Tyree
prior answers. You can answer.
A. I cannot deny it because I don't recall.
Q. Well, if that had happened that night, if Arthur Andersen, Mr. Bornstein had come up to you and said John, I object strongly to including the substance of the first sentence of the press release in the offering memorandum because it's not reasonable for Sunbeam to say such a thing, what would you have done?
MR. CLARE: Objection, incomplete hypothetical.
A. I don't know what I would have done. There are a number of other factors that would have played into that decision.
Q. Would you have called somebody? If you were the only Morgan Stanley person present there, would you have called someone more senior at Morgan Stanley?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. Again, I do not know what I would have done. It would depend on a number of different factors.

Tyree
Q. By March 19, Sunbeam's first quarter of 1998 is almost completed, correct?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
A. Can you be a little bit more specific about what you mean by almost completed?
Q. Well, Sunbeam's first quarter started December 30, I believe, of 1997. Do you recall that? Sunbeam wasn't a calendar year reporter?
A. I don't recall the exact reporting dates for Sunbeam.
Q. We'll pin it down a little bit more precisely later. But by March 19 of 1998, about 80 days of Sunbeam's first quarter had been concluded, correct?
A. If I don't know the reporting dates, how can I -- sorry, without knowing the reporting dates, I can't answer that question.
Q. Well, did you know at the time you were working on the offering memorandum what the starting and ending dates were for Sunbeam's physical periods?
A. I believe that I did.

Tyree
(Exhibit CPH 15, Sunbeam 1997 10-K, marked for identification, as of this date.).
Q. It's a big document for a simple point. You don't have to open it up. I'm just going to ask you to look at the first page of CPH Exhibit 15. And I will represent to you that this is a copy of Sunbeam's 1997 10-K. Do you see at the bottom of the page, it indicates the fiscal reporting period that's covered by this document?
A. Yes.
Q. What does it say?
A. It says for the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997.
Q. Does that refresh your memory that Sunbeam's 1997 fiscal year ended on December 28?
A. It indicates that their fiscal year ended on December 28, 1997.
Q. Right. But does it bring back a memory on your part?
A. Yes, I think I recall that this dictates the appropriate reporting period for Sunbeam.

Q. Sunbeam was unusual, wasn't it, in that it didn't have a calendar fiscal year, correct?

A. Somewhat. Some companies don't.

Q. It's not typical though, right?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

Q. Most companies don't?

MR. CLARE: Same objection, calls for speculation.

A. As I said, it's not standard.

Q. And it's something you remember?

A. No, it's something this document says.

Q. But I asked you whether it brought back a memory that that was case and you I thought indicated it did.

A. It brought back the memory as to what the fiscal reporting period was at Sunbeam to me.

Q. And this indicate that Sunbeam's 1997 year ended on December 28, right?

A. That's what this document indicates.

Tyree

Q. So the first quarter of 98 would start on December 29 of 1997, correct?

A. That would follow logically.

Q. And by March 19 of 1998, approximately 80 days of Sunbeam's first quarter would have been completed, correct?

A. That's what that math implies.

Q. You agree with my calculation?

A. Give or take a few days.

Q. And that would leave approximately 10 days left this Sunbeam's first quarter as of March 19, correct?

A. Making all the assumptions you laid out, give or take a few days, yes.

Q. And do you recall that Mr. Bornstein said to you based on the information he had, it was unreasonable for Sunbeam to say that it expected in the first quarter of 1998 to have sales that exceeded $253.4 million dollars?

A. And again, no. I don't recall anything like that.

Q. You knew that on March 19, Sunbeam -- let me focus on the press release for just a moment, okay? Do you have it in front of you.

Tyree

A. I do.

Q. Sunbeam in the first sentence says that it is possible its net sales for the first quarter may be lower than Wall Street's estimates of 285 to 295 million, correct?

A. That's what this document says.

Q. You knew as of March 19 that Sunbeam was approximately $190 million short of those totals, correct?

A. No, that's not that's correct

(Exhibit CPH-16, SB 18286, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. CPH Exhibit number 16 is a one-page document that bears Bates number SB 18286. Take a moment to look at it.

You had this document in your possession prior to March 19, did you not?

A. I don't recall having this document in my possession prior to that date.

Q. Is it your testimony that you've never seen this document before?

MR. CLARE: Objection, that

Tyree

misstates his testimony.

A. I don't know where this document came from.

Q. You've never seen it?

A. I've never seen this document, no.

Q. Let me walk you through some of the numbers on this document.

A. Okay.

Q. I don't know how good you are at math, but I'm going to ask you to add two or three numbers in your head, or if you want a piece of paper, let me know, okay?

Do you see the statement in the first line for January consolidated net sales, actual?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Okay. It's 29, correct?

A. That's what it says on the page, yes.

Q. And February consolidated net sales actual, 43?

A. That's what it says, yes.

Q. What's the total of those two numbers?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0117197

Tyree
A. Seventy-two.
Q. So if you add those two numbers, the total for consolidated net sales for January and February actual are $72 million, correct?
A. The way I'd look at it is the two numbers that you just added up on this page equal 72.
Q. Well, let me direct your attention to the third line, March international net sales through March 15. Do you see that?
A. Through March 15, 1998, yes.
Q. 6.9?
A. That's correct.
Q. And so the total of those three numbers is what?
A. 78.9.
Q. And let me direct your attention to the fourth line, March domestic net sales through March 17. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And the total for that is 22.7?
A. Yes.
Q. And 79 plus 22.7 is what?

Tyree
A. So are we adding 78.9 or 79?
Q. 78.9, I'm sorry.
A. May I use this pencil?
Q. Sure.
A. So your question was 78.9.
Q. Yeah, what I'm really asking you to do is add up the four figures for total net sales that are on this document.
MR. CLARE: And I want to just object to this whole line of questioning as wasteful and inefficient. The document obviously speaks for itself and the numbers obviously can be added without requiring the witness to go through this exercise.
Q. Do you have the total?
A. I'm sorry, so 78.9, and you wanted me to add to that, was it 22.7?
Q. Here's what I want you to do. I want you to add the totals for January net sales, February net sales, March international net sales through March 15 and March domestic net sales through March 17. Those four figures.
A. Okay, 29 plus 43 plus 6.9 plus

Tyree
22.7, I get 101.6.
Q. And that's about 185 to $195 million less than the 285 million to $295 million numbers referred to in the March 19 press release, correct?
MR. CLARE: Object to form.
A. Can you just repeat your findings again.
Q. Well let's make sure you have the press release in front of you.
A. I have the press release right here.
Q. It says there that Sunbeam announces that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall street analyst estimates of 285 million to 295 million. And what I'm asking you is how far away from 285 to 295 million is 101.6?
MR. CLARE: Same objection as before regarding the wastfulness of this questioning.
A. The math I come up with is, if you use the upper edge of the range, two ninty-five, and you subtract 101.6, I come up with 193.4.

Tyree
Q. You knew on March 19 that Sunbeam was approximately $195 million short of the upper range of Wall Street analyst estimates for net sales for the first quarter?
A. I think I answered that already, but I don't recall knowing anything like that as of March 19.
Q. And it's your testimony that Sunbeam did not provide you with a copy of CPH Exhibit 16 on March 18?
MR. CLARE: Objection, that misstates the prior testimony.
A. My testimony was I have not seen, I believe I said I had not seen this document before. That remains my testimony.
Q. Let me make sure we're on the same page with respect to CPH Exhibit 16. There is some handwriting on there, right? And there is some fax lines on there. Do you see those things?
A. I do.
Q. I'm excluding those things. Have

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 237

Tyree
you seen the typed portion of CPH Exhibit 16 before today?
A. Again, I don't recall receiving a document, receiving this document because I don't remember all these numbers, I can't confirm that.
Q. Do you remember that on March 18, Sunbeam management provided you with a one-page summary of Sunbeam's total net sales through mid-March of 1998?
A. On what date did you ask?
Q. March 18.
A. I recall on March 18 seeing a document that was faxed to representatives of Morgan Stanley, that Sunbeam management claimed at the time walked through their historical and projected financial performance for this quarter in question. That's what I recall.
Q. And do you recall understanding based on your review of that document that Sunbeam's net sales through mid-March of 1998 totalled approximately $100 million?
A. Again, I don't remember exactly

Page 238

Tyree
what the numbers were that came out of that document.
Q. That wasn't my question. My question was do you recall concluding based on your review of that document that Sunbeam's net sales through mid-March of 1998 were approximately $100 million?
A. I do not recall that.
Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam was substantially short of the 285 million to $295 million in net sales that Wall Street had been led to expect from the company?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I wouldn't characterize my recollection that way.
Q. I'm sorry, you wouldn't?
A. I would not.
Q. What do you recall Sunbeam's net sales were through mid-March of 1998?
A. I don't recall what Sunbeam's net sales were through that period.
Q. Is it your testimony that you recall being provided a sheet of paper that had that information on it the day before the offering memo was finalized?

Page 239

Tyree
A. I think I mentioned this before, but I recall Sunbeam management sending a document to representatives of Morgan Stanley that walked through their historical and forecasted financial performance for the quarter in question.
Q. And do you recall that it had net sales numbers through mid-March on it?
A. I believe that it did.
Q. So whatever those net sales were, they were, but you recall that you were advised of them, correct, as of March 18?
A. I recall that the management team walked through in detail what their historical and forward looking financial performance would be purported to be within a range for the quarter in question.
Q. All right. So it's true that as of March 18, you knew what Sunbeam's net sales had been through mid-March of that quarter.
A. The way I would characterize is we had been told by management what they recorded as the historical financial performance for that quarter to date at that time.

Page 240

Tyree
Q. And that time is March 18 approximately, correct?
A. I believe it was on or about that date.
Q. Do you recall at the printer Mr. Bornstein, when he saw the language in the recent announcement section of the offering memorandum said, just do the math. There is no reasonably way that they're going to get to those totals?
A. No, I do not recall that.
Q. Do you recall him saying the company has done a million to a million and a half dollars a day in sales so far for the first 80 days of the quarter and that they're going to have to do 10 to $15 million a day in sales for the rest of the month to hit those figures?
A. No, I do not recall that.
Q. Let's assume my number is correct for a moment, the $101.6 million that you added up from Exhibit number 16. Let's assume for present purposes that that really was

017199

Page 241

Tyree
Sunbeam's net sales through mid-March, okay?
A. Yes.
Q. Now let's assume that Sunbeam's quarter was ending on March 29. What would Sunbeam have to average in net sales over the remaining period of the quarter to reach 254 million?
MR. CLARE: Object to the premise of the question and I object to the improper and incomplete hypothetical.
A. Are you asking me to walk through the math?
Q. Yeah, I'm asking you to tell me what you think the total would have to be.
A. May I just go through your assumptions one more time?
Q. Sure.
A. Net sales through mid-March for, you had 101.6, correct?
Q. Correct.
A. And you want to know what average sales need to be to have a final quarter financial performance for the entity on this page to equal --

Page 242

Tyree
Q. Two fifty-four.
A. Two fifty-four. And when you say the average, do you mean daily, weekly, what do you mean?
Q. Daily average.
A. So the daily average, so okay. And sorry, this was through mid-March, March 17?
Q. Well, let's pick March 17.
A. Okay, and how many days do we have in March?
Q. Well, the quarter ends on the 29th.
A. On the 29th, so we have 12 days remaining. I just want check my work. During those 12 days, to reach the 254 number that you laid out you would have to sell between, or make between 12 and 13, whatever the units is, of revenue per day.
Q. Net sales?
A. If that's what this document says, then so be it.
Q. That's what we're focusing on, net sales. To roach 285 to 295 million, I won't make you go through the computation, but it's going to be even higher, right? It's another

Page 243

Tyree
30 to 40 million dollars in sales over that 12-day period.
A. Not necessarily, and just to clarify a little bit, when we talk about net sales one of the questions you need to ask is what do you mean by make. Do you mean book sales or do you mean actually operationally achieve sales? Because I don't know what net sales reflect in this document.
Q. I'm talking about booking the net sales. Do you have an accounting background? Have you had any accounting?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Do you know what companies need to do in order to be able to book a sale for financial accounting purposes?
MR. CLARE: Object, lack of foundation.
A. I know that it varies depending on the industry that the company is in.
Q. Do you know what Sunbeam's revenue recognition policy was with respect to booking net sales?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.

Page 244

Tyree
A. Off the top of my head, no, I don't know what it is.
Q. Did you know it back then?
A. I don't recall what I knew back then exactly.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein telling you that this is math you needed to do before you made a final decision about including the statement that's contained in the offering memorandum in the recent announcement section?
A. I don't recall anything like that.
Q. Do you recall doing that computation that night?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you recall doing that computation at any point before the offering memorandum was finalized?
A. I don't recall doing that computation.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein telling you that you had better pray that Sunbeam at least achieves 254 million in net sales or everybody in the room was going to get themselves sued?

not going to meet our earnings, our targets that we had said or what we had communicated to Emerald" and just leave it at that. I mean, why say --

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. Did you ever communicate with anyone your opinion concerning --

A. I think we had conversations about it internally at Andersen. I never communicated outside of, you know, the people that I was directly responsible to or I reported to, those feelings.

Q. Were you aware that Sunbeam provided to Morgan Stanley and then to Arthur Andersen a buildup of sales it expected to achieve at the end of March, 1998?

A. I was aware that Larry had gotten something, Bomstein, while he was at the printers to corroborate what management thought they were going to achieve from the sales standpoint, whether it was existing orders or something, some kind of form or something like that.

Q. Did you see that document?

A. I did not. I did not.

Q. Who would be in a better position to know the outstanding orders that Sunbeam had on hand at the end of or toward the end of 1998, Sunbeam or Arthur Andersen?

A. I would think Sunbeam.

Q. Who would be in a better position to project the sales that Sunbeam was going to make at the end of 1990 -- the first quarter of 1998, Sunbeam or Arthur Andersen?

A. Sunbeam.

Q. And you in this period in March of 1998 had no reason for concern that the 1998 plans with respect to the grill season in particular would not materialize, correct?

A. Correct, with regard to the grill season I had no reason to not believe what they were saying.

Q. And you understood that Sunbeam still believed that they were going to meet their sales goals for the 1998 season, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. I'll hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 9. This is the comfort letter that Arthur Andersen issued to Morgan Stanley on or around March 19, 1998, correct?

A. Right.

Q. But Arthur Andersen had the sales numbers for February of 1998 prior to issuing this comfort letter, correct?

A. I think that's correct. I'm not certain.

Q. Do you know -- did you have any discussions with anyone at Arthur Andersen why those numbers were not included in the March 19th, 1998 comfort letter?

A. I did not. You know, the February numbers have a date on them. We looked at them a little earlier, and I don't know right now why the February numbers aren't in here unless we weren't given those numbers until after that date at some point and time. There should be a representation letter from management. Do you have that that goes with this? It should be dated -- it should be dated actually March 16th. It may actually be here.

MR. JOHNSON: MS 30, I think.

THE WITNESS: Actually those February statements that we looked at earlier were not given to us until some time after March 16, the date of our cutoff. I mean, here's a letter signed by management dated March 16th that says, "No consolidated financial statements are available as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1st, 1998."

So on March 16th management was still saying that the February numbers were not available. They had not completed their January close yet. So I think that's what we were aware of. Am I wrong about that?

MR. MOSCATO: It's very confusing.

THE WITNESS: Actually the comfort letter does disclose the sales figure through February which is in Note 6-C, so apparently we had some sales information. I don't know if we had full income statements.

BY MR. BROWN:

Q. I'm sorry, where were you referring to? Six what?

A. 6-C on Page 5 of the March 19th comfort letter.

Q. So you think the distinction between Paragraph 5-B and 6-C is what? Why the numbers were not placed in Paragraph 5-B?

A. Paragraph 5-B relates to the latest available financial statements of the company, so in this particular case it's March 16th and the company is telling us the latest financial they have available are as of February 1st. However, even though we don't have financial statements at the end of February, we will still make inquiries or perform other procedures for the period subsequent to February 1st, so one of the steps is to make an inquiry of management and get some information regarding sales and 6-C is what they informed us about sales during that period.

Q. So the March 13th and March 16 PARs that we looked at, those were not closed numbers essentially?

A. The PARs look at numbers that --

MR. JOHNSON: I object to the form of the question but you may answer.

THE WITNESS: The PARs were performed on numbers that were closed as of the date of those PARs, so either the January or the February. Whatever closed numbers were available at that time. Does that make sense?

So, anyway, even though on March 16th, February -- complete February closing was not available, sales for the period were available, and management provided that information and we included it.
BY MR. BROWN:
Q. There were -- as you mentioned, there was a bring down comfort letter?
A. Yes.
Q. And for that bring down comfort letter there was also a bring down management representation letter; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you drafted both of those?
A. Yes.
Q. You've been handed what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 32, and for the record it's CPH 0041650 to 61. Can you identify these documents for the record?
A. This is appears to be an early draft of the March 19th comfort letter and then a later draft of the same letter.
Q. Referring to the document that begins on Bates -- ending in 51, that's a draft of the representation letter from management, correct?

A. I beg your pardon, you're right. You're right.
Q. And then the document that begins on Page 55 is a draft of a comfort letter, correct?
A. Right.
Q. And these documents are attached to an e-mail that you sent to Mr. Bornstein; is that correct?
A. Right.
Q. Dated March 21, 1998?
A. Right.
Q. Turn, if you would, please to the last page of the draft of the representation -- second to the last page of the draft of the representation letter which ends in Bates 53. I refer you there to Paragraph 10 in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 32. This draft representation letter from management states, "Despite the decrease in net sales described in the preceding paragraph, management believes that net sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1998 will exceed the net sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1997"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you place that text in this draft letter?
A. It's quite possible.
Q. Do you recall anyone directing you to place that text in the draft management representation letter?
A. No, I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall any of the circumstances surrounding how that was placed in the draft representation letter?
A. No, I don't.
Q. That paragraph is not something that was in the March 16th management representation letter, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So it appears as though that was something that was added subsequently; is that correct?
A. It appears it was something that was deleted subsequently.
Q. Deleted?
A. Did I misspeak? It appears that it's not in the final copy of the letter.
MR. MOSCATO: It was added then deleted?
THE WITNESS: It was added and then it was not included in the final letter.
BY MR. BROWN:
Q. The document you are looking at which is Morgan Stanley Exhibit 32 is attached to an e-mail dated March 21st, 1998, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Which is after management had issued their first representation letter to Morgan Stanley -- to Arthur Andersen in association with the comfort letter dated March 19th, correct?

A. Correct.
MR. MOSCATO: I object to the last comfort letter.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Correct, it was after the March 19th, 1998 comfort letter?
A. Added after -- are you sure these e-mails goes with these? I guess so, zero update -- go ahead.
Q. There was a subsequent management letter, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. I hand you what's been marked as -- what we will mark as Exhibit 33.
You have been handed what's marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 33 which, for the record, is Bates CPH 0038712 to 15 and this is a document bearing a fax header of March 23rd, 1998, "Arthur Andersen, Fort Lauderdale"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. What does that fax header in terms of -- was that sent from Fort Lauderdale or received from Fort Lauderdale?
A. Frankly, I don't know.
Q. Is it Mr. Harlow that was based in Fort Lauderdale?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017402

A. Yes.
Q. Now, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 33, which has the fax date of March 23rd, 1998, also has Paragraph 10 which we referred to in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 32; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 33 there's a handwritten edit to the Paragraph 10?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?
A. Yes, I think it's Mr. Bornstein but I'm not certain of that.
Q. Do you recall any discussions concerning this edit?
A. No. Is the cover not available?
Q. I don't believe it is. I don't know. Do you recall any discussions about that paragraph at any point?
A. I don't.
Q. You've been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 34, and, for the record, it's CPH 0129642 to 44. Mr. Pastrana, do you recognize this document?
A. This is the March 23rd management representation letter.
Q. This letter bears the same date as the fax header in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 33, correct?
A. That's right.

Q. And if you turn to Bates ending in 44, the last page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 34, what had previously been Paragraph 10 in the draft management representation letter has been deleted or is no longer in the document; do you see that?
A. Uh-huh. Let me take a look at this just for a second, okay? (Reading) Okay, correct.
Q. And do you have any understanding as to who it was that deleted or removed what in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 33 was Paragraph 10 from the final representation letter, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 34?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you recall any discussion whatsoever about the removal of that paragraph from the management representation letter?
A. No.
Q. So you don't recall there being any concern that that had been removed?
A. I don't recall any concern or any discussion about it. I don't know who did it or what the circumstances were.
Q. In the previous drafts of the management representation letter, for example, Morgan Stanley 33, those, to your knowledge, were not provided to Morgan Stanley, correct?

A. Correct. Nor the final one dated March 23rd. None of these were provided to Morgan Stanley. These are internal Arthur Andersen work papers.
Q. Do you know whether anyone from Morgan Stanley told -- strike that.
Do you know whether anyone from Arthur Andersen told Morgan Stanley that that paragraph had been deleted from the management representation letter?
A. No, I would have no reason to expect anyone to tell Morgan Stanley that.
Q. Between the post-audit review work that you did for the first comfort letter -- strike that.
After Arthur Andersen provided to Morgan Stanley the bring down comfort letter dated March 25th 1998, did you between that period and the end of -- first quarter of 1998 have any further conversations with Sunbeam concerning their expected sales for the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Now, you said with regard to the March 19th press release that Sunbeam issued, you did not see that press release before it was issued, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you did not discuss that press release with Morgan Stanley, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. You were aware in March of 1998 that the company had adopted an aggressive marketing strategy?
A. At what period I was aware of that?
Q. March of 1998?
A. What marketing strategy was that?
Q. For instance, it's referred to in the Note A to one of your post-audit reviews -- to one of your P&L programs?
A. To early buy program?
MR. MOSCATO: No. Are you referring to the business about the radio?
THE WITNESS: Oh, the advertising in the USA Today ads and stuff like that? Correct, I was informed that the company was undertaking those efforts to improve sales.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. In March of 1998?
A. Yes, whatever the time frame was on that note; that's right.
Q. And when the press release was issued, there was nothing in there that you thought was untrue, correct?
A. We're back to the March 19th press release again?
Q. Correct.
A. You know, untrue? No, I mean, as far as I knew it was true. I mean, I guess management thought they would achieve the sales of the previous year.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And you didn't know one way or the other whether Sunbeam was going to make its 1998 budget, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And from working at Sunbeam, were you aware that their sales tended to increase at the end of the first quarter or at the end of the quarter?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, Sunbeam held inventory in third party warehouses, correct?
A. Right.
Q. And they held not only their own inventory but then the bill of hold inventory at third party warehouses?
A. Right.
Q. When Sunbeam made a bill and hold sale of inventory that it had in a third party warehouse, in order to recognize that revenue as Sunbeam had been for bill and hold, they simply had to segregate that inventory in their records and then they would physically segregate it, correct?
A. Correct. Physically and in the accounting records.
Q. So, for instance, in order to make their sales at the end of the first quarter of 1998 -- you were aware that Sunbeam was engaging in bill and hold sales in the first quarter of 1998, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. And in making sales under bill and hold in the first quarter of 1998, Sunbeam didn't actually have to ship that product if the product was already at a third-party warehouse, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So whatever volume Sunbeam needed to sell in order to make their first quarter 1998 projection, that was not inventory that they actually had to ship out of their own docks if they already existed at third party warehouses?
A. That's correct, provided, of course, they did these other things. They physically segregated from their own inventory, couldn't be used to fill out their orders, blah, blah, blah. There were a number of other things they had to do, so to speak, but, yes.
Q. Now, you were aware that the company felt at least -- the company felt in the first quarter 1998 that they were going to achieve their sales goals?
A. Yes.
Q And you stated when we were talking earlier that Mr. Bornstein had some concern or skepticism as to whether Sunbeam would be able to make that sort of shipment in order to make their first quarter 1998 sales?

A. Yes.
Q. But at the end -- at that time, it still did not call into question for Mr. Bornstein, to your knowledge, the integrity of Sunbeam's manage?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection. How can he answer that question?
BY MR. BROWN:
Q. Mr. Bornstein did not communicate to you that he had any question about Sunbeam's management?
A. Correct.
Q. And Mr. Bornstein didn't communicate to you in the first quarter of 1998 that he had any concern about fraud at Sunbeam?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. You had performed cutoff testing for Sunbeam at the end of 1997, correct, Arthur Andersen?
A. Arthur Andersen, correct.
Q. Did you personally have any communications with Morgan Stanley about the fact that you were going to perform first quarter of 1998 cutoff testing at Sunbeam?
A. No.
MR. MOSCATO: Is that a you, Dennis Pastrana, or --
MS. BROWN: You, Dennis Pastrana.
A. That's correct. Me personally, no.

Q. And once you received the memos concerning the cut off testing that had been observed at the end of first quarter 1998, there is nothing there that caused you concern about Sunbeam's cutoff for the end of the quarter, correct?
A. No.
Q. Now, you testified earlier that you're familiar with the Barron's article that came out in June of 1998?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. In fact, you put together a memo addressing the points in the Barron's article, correct?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And you said that there were discussions concerning the Barron's article?
A. Yes.
Q. At the time that you put together the memo addressing the points in the Barron's article, did you personally at that point question the integrity of the management at Sunbeam?
A. I'd have to go back and look at the memo.
Q. The memo that you wrote?
A. Yes, memo, schedule, whatever it was. I remember that some kind of document was compiled that went through item by item the items identified in the Barron's article but I don't remember exactly the results of that.
Q. Do you remember having an impression of being concerned about --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Oh, yeah, I mean by that point I think we were concerned.
Q. By June of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. But prior to June of 1998, do you recall having any concerns about the accuracy of Sunbeam's financial statements or the integrity of Sunbeam management?
A. No.
Q. Now, in June of 1998 you were actually -- and I think you personally, but you were actually working toward the registration of the notes that had been issued in March, correct?
A. That's probably correct.
MR. MOSCATO: You just said "you," and I think you personally. I'm assuming and I'm not object. I'm assuming when you say "you," you mean Dennis Pastrana, and if you mean Arthur Andersen, you will say Arthur Andersen.
MS. BROWN: Yes.
MR. MOSCATO: We're clear on that.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You personally were not involved in the decision of Arthur Andersen to withhold its consent in June of 1998?
A. No.
Q. Did anyone have discussions with you as to whether Arthur Andersen should withhold its consent in June of 1998?

A. No.
Q. In June of 1998, Arthur Andersen learned that return authorizations had been deleted from the Sunbeam system during the 1997 audit, correct?
A. Correct. I mean, actually I don't know -- we learned the return authorizations had been deleted. I don't know the timing of it but, sure, yes.
Q. And in June of 1998 Arthur Andersen also learned about additional guaranteed or right of return sales?
A. Correct.
Q. But that's information that was new to Arthur Andersen and that Arthur Andersen did not have available to it any time prior to the close of the first quarter of 1998, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And that's true even though you had spent the majority of your time on-site at Sunbeam throughout that period, correct?
A. Right.
Q. Now, the restatement that took place of Sunbeam's financials, you were involved in that work, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And were you aware that Arthur Andersen spent over 10,000 hours on that work?

A. I don't recall being aware of that. I might have been.
Q. If that is in a report to the Sunbeam board, would you have any reason to disagree with that?
A. No, no.
MR. MOSCATO: Is the 10,000 hour figure Andersen or Andersen and Sunbeam combined?
MS. BROWN: I think it's Andersen and Sunbeam combined.
MR. MOSCATO: I thought you had said you would apply to Andersen 10,000 hours. It doesn't matter. I should stop interrupting probably.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. The procedures that you performed during the restatement were much more expansive than anything that you had performed during the regular audit, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you had never seen anything like the level of detail work that was performed during the restatement, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And restatement took place over a period of four to five months without regard to materiality, cost or the level of resources that were going to be required, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And as a result of those unlimited -- well, strike that. In addition, in June or July of 1998, the SEC also began an investigation of Sunbeam, correct?
A. Correct. I don't know exactly the timing of when they started, but, yes.
Q. You were aware that that investigation was ongoing at the time you were performing the restatement?
A. Correct.
Q. And as a result of your work -- Arthur Andersen's work during the restatement, Arthur Andersen learned information that had not been available to you during the 1997 audit and through the first quarter of 1998, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection, form.
THE WITNESS: I think that's true, yes.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. As a result of the work that you did -- and I'll refer to you personally now -- during the restatement, are you aware of any information that was withheld from Arthur Andersen but that was provided to Morgan Stanley?
MR. JOHNSON: Object to the form of that as well.
THE WITNESS: I'm not aware of any information withheld from Andersen that was provided to Morgan Stanley. I'm not aware of what was provided to Morgan Stanley, if anything.

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. That wasn't something is that you were interested in when you were performing the restatement procedures, correct?
A. No. That's correct.
Q. And despite the hundreds of hours that you performed on the 1997 audit and the work on the Q1 1998 financial for Sunbeam, you personally have no fraudulent knowledge of any fraudulent conduct by Sunbeam, correct?
A. State that again. As a result of what work?
Q. In spite of the hundreds of hours that you had spent at Sunbeam in 1997 and 1998 and the audit work that you performed, you had no personal knowledge of any fraudulent conduct by Sunbeam?
A. That includes the restatement work as well.
Q. Let's go up to June of 1998 first.
A. Correct, I had no knowledge of any fraud.
Q. Today do you have personal knowledge of fraud by Sunbeam?
A. I don't have personal knowledge but, you know, I have concerns.
Q. I'm just asking about your personal knowledge.
A. Sure.
Q. The restatement work that you performed and that Arthur Andersen performed was conducted after Mr. Dunlap had been fired, correct?

A. Yes, that's probably true.
Q. After Mr. Kersh had also been fired?
A. When were they fired, do you remember?
Q. I can provide you documents.
MR. MOSCATO: June 25th.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. No later than.
A. Hypothetically?
MR. MOSCATO: Hypothetically June 25th.
THE WITNESS: The restatement work was done after that, correct.
BY MR. BROWN:
Q. And the restatement work was done after Mr. Uzzi had been fired, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So all the interviews that you conducted were after there had been a change in management at Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you aware of or familiar with what was referred to as an amnesty program that the new Sunbeam management put into place?
A. No, I was not aware of that.
Q. Were you aware that the new Sunbeam management encouraged its employees to assist in the restatement work?

A. I was not aware of that.
Q. Did you have a sense --
A. I mean, encourage meaning giving them an incentive for assistance. I mean, people were generally cooperative. It was very difficult but they had somehow been coaxed or incentivised or something to be extra helpful or something like that. I was not aware of anything like that.
Q. You weren't aware that they were discouraged in any way from assisting in the restatement, correct?
A. Correct, and I was aware that they had absolutely nothing to protect in restating or making adjustments to prior year end financial statements. I mean, it didn't matter to them either way.
Q. From your own personal observations from the hundreds of hours that you spent on site at Sunbeam in '97 and the first quarter of '98 and then the however many hours you spent to the restatement, did you observe a difference in the corporate culture at Sunbeam between the two managements?
A. I mean, there was clearly a change in culture, in the environment and the attitude, but, you know, I was there for such a short period of time after new management came in that I don't know how much of it was just -- I don't know what to attribute the change to necessarily.

Q. Did you have a sense when you were performing the interviews during the restatement that the employees were relieved by the change in management?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you have a sense that when you were performing the interviews that the employees felt they could provide you with information that they were concerned about providing earlier?
A. Yes.
Q. When you perform an audit, you assume that the company is being operated properly and that the management has integrity and there is not a conscience effort to misstate or manage their earnings, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you believe that those assumptions were correct while you were performing the 1997 audit for Sunbeam?
A. Yes, I believed that at the time of the audit.
Q. At the time that you were performing the procedures related to Q1 98 for Sunbeam, you still believed that to be correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, when you're performing audit procedures, in some instances you do rely upon the information provided to you by management, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01-1796

A. Yes.
Q. So, for instance, when management told you that there was a no-return policy, you did not go out and verify that information with Sunbeam's customers, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you recall performing in first quarter of 1998 some due diligence work on behalf of Sunbeam for an entity that they were considering acquiring?
A. Yes, I don't remember exactly the time frame. What quarter did you say?
Q. It was in the first quarter of 1998.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember it was related to a Black & Decker unit?
A. Yes.
Q. The purpose of due diligence is different than the purpose of an audit, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. When you perform due diligence, you don't design all of the tests and whatnot to test the representations or the financials, correct?
A. Correct.
MR. MOSCATO: Dennis, give her a second and let me object if I need to. Give me a second before you answer. It's getting late in the day and I'm not as quick as I once was.

THE WITNESS: Okay.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Do you understand the purpose of due diligence to be different than the purpose of an audit?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you -- other than the due diligence work that you performed for Sunbeam on the Black & Decker unit, have you performed due diligence in other context as well?
A. I have not.
Q. That was the only due diligence work that you performed?
A. Yes.
Q. When you performed the due diligence work, you also assumed that the management was forthright and had integrity?
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, what management are you talking about?
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. The management of the company that you are performing the due diligence on.
MR. MOSCATO: I'll let this go for another question or two but you are not going to try to put him as an expert on due diligence I hope since he's only done it once in his life.

Answer that question and then I'm going to ask her to move on to another question.
THE WITNESS: What was the question? I'm sorry.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. When you were performing due diligence on an entity that was considering -- Sunbeam was considering purchasing, you also expect or anticipate, assume that management of the company you were performing the due diligence on is honest and has integrity, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: I'm going to object to the form of that putting aside Mike's substantive objection.
THE WITNESS: In that process we did not really presume anything. We showed up in a data room and there was information that Black & Decker management had prepared in a room and we reviewed the information, "we" being Phil Harlow and I, over the course of -- I don't remember if it was a day or two days, something of that sort, and we prepared a factual summary of what we observed and observations that we had.
You know, we are not really saying that it's right or wrong or anything like that, so, you know, I suppose if Sunbeam were to use that information to make an acquisition, they would be relying on the accuracy of the information that we reviewed but not us. We're not issuing an opinion on it so the purpose is different.

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And the extent of the work in the due diligence you performed was less than the extent of the work that you would do if you were auditing those same financials, correct?
A. Sure.
Q. And ultimately when you were working on the restatement or at the end of the restatement you did reach the conclusion, you yourself, that there had been facts that were misrepresented to you during the audit, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Sunbeam, while they misrepresented facts to Arthur Andersen, was forthright or accurately represented those same facts to Morgan Stanley?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection, form.
THE WITNESS: I have no knowledge of the communications between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Do you have any reason to think that Sunbeam lied to Arthur Andersen but they were truthful with Morgan Stanley?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
MR. MOSCATO: Don't even answer that question. I'm instructing you not to answer that question.

Q. When you were performing your restatement work, did you learn of anything that Arthur Andersen had told Morgan Stanley that it had not told -- strike that.
When you were performing your restatement work, did you learn of anything that Sunbeam had told Morgan Stanley that it had not told Arthur Andersen?
A. As I said, I have no knowledge of the communications between Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam.
Q. So --
A. The answer is no.
Q. During all the time that you were at Sunbeam from October of '97 through the end of first quarter of '98, did you have any contact with anyone from Coleman or Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any contact during that time with anyone from Mathco?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any contact during that --
A. What's the period of time again? I beg your pardon.
Q. Any time in '97 through the first quarter of '98?
A. No.
Q. Have you subsequently had any conversations with anyone from Coleman (Parent) concerning Sunbeam?

A. No. I mean, during the restatement procedure -- after Dunlap and Kersh were terminated, there were some former members of Coleman or Mathco Management that got involved with Sunbeam and I met them in that process and interacted with them occasionally but that was it.
Q. So up to the end of the first quarter of 1998, you had no communications --
A. Correct, none.
Q. And you had no communications with CSFB, Credit Swiss First Boston concerning Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. You had no communications up to the end of the first quarter of 1998 with Wachtell Lipton concerning Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. You said you personally did not communicates with Morgan Stanley. Were you aware of anyone else from Arthur Andersen that communicated with Morgan Stanley other than the comfort letters concerning the due diligence that Morgan Stanley did in 1998?
MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: I'm not aware of any conversations.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. So you're not aware one way or the other whether they happened?

A. Correct.
Q. Are you aware of any due diligence effort undertaken by Coleman up to the end of the first quarter of 1998 concerning Sunbeam?
A. I'm not aware of any.
Q. Are you aware of any due diligence effort undertaken by Coleman (Parent) Holdings or Mathco up to the end of the first quarter of 1998 concerning Sunbeam?
A. I'm not aware of any.
Q. Are you aware of any due diligence effort by Credit Swiss First Boston or Wachtell up to the end of the first quarter of 1998 concerning Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Have you spoken with anyone representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings concerning your testimony here prior to your testimony today?
A. No.
Q. I'd like to refer you to the exhibits that were marked previously, in particular CPH Exhibits 101 through 105.
MR. MOSCATO: These are the interview memos?
MS. BROWN: Correct.
THE WITNESS: It's in my stack.
///

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. They should be the first exhibits marked today.
A. Here they are. Okay.
Q. When you performed the interviews of Sunbeam personnel during the restatement work, did you tell the personnel that you were interviewing that you were only interested in their personal knowledge?
A. No, I don't recall whether we did or didn't, let me say that.
Q. During the interviews some of the people that you interviewed and some of what you recorded was conversations or things that they had overheard, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. For instance, with regard to Mr. Yales and CPH Exhibit 101, when you interviewed him, you suspected that he was just speculating about things that he had heard from others, correct?
A. Like what, for example?
Q. When you interviewed Mr. Yales, you felt that he didn't have in-depth understanding of the Sunbeam operations because he was new to the company, correct?
A. I mean, it seemed he had a pretty good knowledge. I didn't assume that, no.
Q. I'm handing you your testimony from November 21, of 2000 and if you would look at Page 876.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Referring to your testimony on November 21 2000, 876 and going on to 877, and with regard to Mr. Yales you state there that he didn't have, in your view, an in-depth understanding of the operations of the company?
A. Yes, I did testify to that before.
Q. And that he really just performed very -- kind of clerical role in budgeting and planning process?
A. I think clerical understates his role. I mean, he was a financial analyst.
Q. And you stated in your prior testimony that to a certain extent you thought that he was just speculating about things that he may have heard from other people or whatever, that he had not been with the company very long. Do you see that?
A. Uh-huh, yes, I see that in my prior testimony. I did testify that way before. I mean, reading the memo, and having read it over the weekend, I guess that's not the impression I got from it, but I did testify that way previously. It's been a while.
Q. You don't recall --
A. My recollection now is different than my recollection was then so.
Q. And your recollection of Mr. Yales -- have you spoken to Mr. Yales since 2000?
A. No.

MR. MOSCATO: Since 2000?
MS. BROWN: Since 2000.
Q. Since your testimony in the last case.
A. I haven't spoken to Mr. Yales since this interview was conducted that I can remember.
Q. And so your recollection of Mr. Yales was probably more fresh in 2000 than it is in 2004, correct?
A. Probably was, yes.
Q. Now, when you conducted these interviews, you didn't take them down verbatim as testimony is being taken today, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you took down handwritten notes of what was being said during the interview, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then your secretary typed those notes?
A. Yes.
Q. And you discarded the handwritten notes?
A. Correct.
Q. And so what's written here is not verbatim reports, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Correct.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And that's true with regard to CPH Exhibit 101,

102, 103, 104 and 105, none of those are verbatim accounts --
A. Right, those are just summaries.
Q. And the phraseology that's used is not necessarily the exact phraseology used by the Sunbeam employee, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. The information -- some of the information at least that was provided to you during these interviews is information that was not available to you during your audit work in 1997, correct?
A. At least some, sure.
Q. With regard to, for instance, CPH Exhibit 101 where there's notes about "need to make numbers and a big push," it's common, is it not, that public companies want to make their public numbers?
A. Yes.
Q. These headings, for instance, on the second page of Exhibit 101 where you have troublesome items, that's also not a verbatim bullet provided by the employee that you interviewed, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And when all the testimony that you've provided concerning these interviews the Sunbeam employees gave, do you, as you sit here today, actually remember those interviews or was your testimony based on what's documented in these exhibits?

A. I think the testimony is based largely on what's documented. That's what I think.
Q. Do you have any specific recollection of the interview with Mr. Yales as you sit here today?
A. I mean, I do, I can generally picture him. I can generally remember where we had it in the building.
Q. Do you have any memory specifically of what was said?
A. No. In terms of the conversation that was exchanged, no.
Q. And you have no specific memory of what was said during the interview of Mr. Kaiser other than what's documented in CPH Exhibit 102?
A. Correct.
Q You have no specific memory of what was said by Mr. Bloomfield other than what's documented in Exhibit 103?
A. Correct.
Q. No specific memory of Mr. Jim Job other than what's documented in 104?
A. Correct.
Q. No specific memory of exactly what was said by Mr. Jeffcoat who's interview notes are in CPH 105?
A. Correct.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And with regard to each of these, you were asked previously whether the interviewees told you that Morgan Stanley had spoken with them, did you ask any of these people whether Morgan Stanley had spoken with them?
A. No, I did not ask that.
Q. Did anyone that you're aware of ask that in the interview?
A. Not that I'm aware of, no.
Q. Was that something -- was that an objective of the restatement, to determine what Morgan Stanley knew?
A. No.
Q. And none of these people that you interviewed, Mr. Yales, Kaiser, Bloomfield, Job or Jeffcoat indicated that they had spoken with Coleman (Parent) Holdings during the '97 or the first quarter of '98, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Some of what the employees told you were impressions that they had rather than direct factual experiences that they had, correct? For instance, I refer you to CPH Exhibit 104, the final sentence.
MR. MOSCATO: Which one is that?
MS. BROWN: Jim Job.
Q. Where it states, "I guess they didn't want to receive the goods."
A. Yes.

Q. You don't understand that he had personal knowledge of the decision-making process that went into whether Sunbeam would accept returns, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. With regard to -- strike that.
Did anyone from Coleman (Parent) Holdings, to your knowledge, ask anyone from Arthur Andersen in 1998, first quarter, for Arthur Andersen's work papers from their work audit?
A. Say the question again. I'm sorry.
Q. Are you aware of anyone from Coleman (Parent) Holdings requesting Arthur Andersen work papers prior to the end of the first quarter of 1998?
A. No.
Q. With regard to others exhibits, for example, CPH Exhibit 108 which is the March 13th, 1998 P&L, you were asked previously whether Morgan Stanley had asked for this. Do you know one way or another whether Morgan Stanley requested that directly from the company?
A. I don't know. I have no knowledge.
MS. BROWN: If we can take a five-minute break, I'm probably done.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is 3:47.
(Time noted: 3:47 p.m. to 3:53 p.m.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is 3:53.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Mr. Pastrana, I have a couple of more questions. With regard to the March 19, 1998 comfort letter that Arthur Andersen provided to Morgan Stanley, did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein or anyone else at Arthur Andersen concerning the manner in which that letter would be transmitted to Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Bornstein or anyone else at Arthur Andersen concerning whether the letter would be discussed with Morgan Stanley rather than provided to Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. And your prior testimony about whether or when that letter was provided to Morgan Stanley, you don't have any personal knowledge yourself of when that letter was actually provided to Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Correct.
MS. BROWN: No further questions at this time.
MR. JOHNSON: No questions.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This is the end of this deposition. We are going off the record. The time is 3:54.
(Evening recess: 3:54 p.m.)

EXAMINATION
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Mr. Pruitt, can I ask you to state your name again for the record?
A. William D. Pruitt.
Q. And where do you reside?
A. 274 Valeros Court, Coral Gables, Florida, 33143.
Q. Are you employed today?
A. I'm self employed.
Q. Do you work as an accountant?
A. No, I'm a consultant.
Q. And are you affiliated with any consulting firm?
A. No, just my own.
Q. How long have you been self employed?
A. I retired from Arthur Andersen on August 31, 1999 so I've been basically self employed since that time.
Q. Do you consult on a full-time basis?
A. No, part time, although substantially full time now.
Q. And how long did you work for Arthur Andersen?
A. 33 years.
Q. Could you just take me through the various titles you held with Arthur Andersen?
A. I started in June of 1966 with Arthur Andersen. I became a partner with Andersen in 1975. I became managing partner for Arthur Andersen in South Florida in 1980, and before I retired I was the managing partner for Florida, the Caribbean and Venezuela.

Q. Are you a CPA today?
A. I'm an inactive CPA.
Q. When did you become inactive?
A. The year 2000.
Q. Were you an active CPA the entire time you were at Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. And were you resident in the Miami office of Arthur Andersen during your entire career with Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were the concurring partner on the Sunbeam engagement for Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you assume that role?
A. Probably around 1995 to 1998 -- actually I'll take that back. Until I retired in 1999.
Q. So about four years?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you come to be the concurring partner on that engagement?
A. Sunbeam, of course, was a high profile company and the audit division had assigned me to be the concurring partner after another senior partner left the firm and went with another company.

Q. And is the audit division head Mr. Denkhaus?
A. Yes.
Q. So he assigned you to be the concurring partner?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was the engagement partner?
A. Phil Harlow.
Q. Had you worked with Mr. Harlow before?
A. Yes.
Q. He was in the Miami office as well?
A. He was in the Fort Lauderdale office but he was under my direction.
Q. And can you tell me as a general matter what the role of the concurring partner is?
A. Well, basically you take a cold look at a job. You have to be independent of a job to be the concurring partner. In other words, you can't do the audit work and also be the concurring partner. There are a number of steps you take. You look at the planning for the job. You look at the materiality. When you finish the job, you look at a draft of the financial statements. You look at legal letters on occasion. If you have material issues, they're brought to you and then you either -- well, you concur with the engagement team's decisions on those issues.

Q. When you say material issues brought to you, can you tell me what you mean by that?
A. Well, if the engagement team believes there's issues that are sensitive that could materially effect the financial statements or even doing the audit, they bring the issues to the concurring partner.
Q. And do you recall any of the material issues that were brought to you during the time you served as concurring partner at Sunbeam?
A. I'll give you a couple of large ones. There was a restructuring reserve that was set up in 1996 which was a material issue. In 1997 we had bill and hold sales which was a material issue. Those are the two large ones that I recall.
Q. Were you involved in the client intake process for Sunbeam?
A. Well, since I was managing partner of the firm in South Florida, I did get involved with retaining, firing clients. We went through that once a year.
Q. And do you know what the smart form is at Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. What is that?
A. Basically that's a form that you fill out to get information together to decide whether you want to retain a client or resign from a client. We set fees at the same time, rank them as high risk.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And you do that on an annual basis?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember the last smart form that you completed for Sunbeam? Let me back up. That's a hard question given the time frame.

Did you complete a smart form for the 1997 audit work?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there a smart form after that that you're aware of?

A. I don't recall, although I think in '98 we were doing the restructuring and so forth and we didn't do the audit in 1998.

MR. MOSCATO: You said restructuring. Did you mean restatement?

THE WITNESS: Restatement, yes. I'm sorry. Restatement not restructuring.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Mr. Pruitt, I'm going to give you a document that's been marked in this case already as CPH Exhibit 23 and I'd like you to flip through that and see if that looks familiar.

A. (Reading)

Q. Mr. Pruitt, can you tell us what Exhibit 23 is?

A. Well, it looks like a couple of things, two or three things. One looks like you have a work program copy. It looks like the front of a -- probably the front of a work paper file. I would guess it's number one. And you have a work program of some kind. Probably for file one, it looks like, and then you have a smart form.

Q. And the smart form is for the 1997 audit work; is that correct?

A. Yes, it looks like '97.

Q. And you're listed as the concurring partner on the smart form?

A. I don't know -- yes, yes, I am.

Q. And were you involved in getting the smart form completed and approved?

A. I didn't complete it. I signed it when it was finished approving -- we made it a high risk job and I signed it as other approver which means I was the managing partner which is the reason why I signed it.

Q. I wonder if you could look at Page 2 of the smart form which has the Bates stamp on the bottom right, CPH 1184893.

A. I can't find that but I see Page 2.

Q. That will be fine. In the middle of that page there's a box of text that has a title "Accounting and Financial Reporting Risk." The last section of that box states in italicized text, "Management has set aggressive earnings expectations and may be inclined to recognize revenue for transactions and events when the earning process is not complete." Do you know what the basis for Arthur Andersen's statement there is?

A. I think that's just the facts as we saw it. Dunlap had made a bunch of press releases saying that earnings were going to go up significantly and he did a restructuring and there was a lot of expectations that Sunbeam was going to do very well in the future.

Q. And so from your perspective that increased the risk of misstatement?

A. Yes.

Q. I wonder if you could flip over to Page 9 of the report for us. Paragraph No. 23 provides for an assessment of management's attitude and behavior toward subordinates and Andersen has ranked that fair?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell me why that ranking was applied there?

A. Well, Dunlap was domineering toward not only his own people but most of the world so we felt that it made this answer fair.

Q. And that would increase the overall risk of misstatement?

A. Yes, possibly, possibly.

Q. Flip over to Page 10 of the smart form for me, Mr. Pruitt. This page is directed to "Financial Statement, Misstatement Risk"; do you see that?

A. Are you on Page 10?

Q. I believe so.

A. And again "Overall Assessment," is that where you are?

Q. I was just confirming that the title of this page is "Financial Statement, Misstatement Risk."

A. Yes.

Q. Under 2-B there's an assessment category entitled "Form Over Substance Transactions."

A. Right.

Q. And the rank is significant. Can you tell me what the basis of that ranking is?

MR. MOSCATO: If you remember.

THE WITNESS: I don't recall exactly why they said that.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Can you tell me just as a general matter what the term "Form Over Substance Transactions" refers to?

A. Sure, maybe they would try to make sales that -- near the end of the year to pump up revenues.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And by that you mean sales that didn't actually occur?
A. Well, maybe they occurred but, you know, they go out of their way to make sure that they got the sales this year as opposed to next year.
Q. The transactions significantly directed to timing?
A. Possible.
Q. Now, this form indicates that Andersen would charge $500,000 for its auto work; is that correct?
A. What page are you on?
Q. Look at Page 13.
A. Yes.
Q. Now, I believe you mentioned earlier this morning that one of your duties as a concurring partner was to weigh in all the materials issues that the audit team brought to you?
A. Right.
Q. And you mentioined that one of the material issues brought to you was the issue of bill and hold sales?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you remember approximately when that issue was first brought to you?
A. When we were doing the counting inventory year end, someone in our audit team discovered that there was inventory in a warehouse somewhere else besides the Sunbeam locations, and when we asked why, we found out that it was bill and hold sales and the inventory had been sent to this warehouse rather than to the client.

Q. This is late '97, early '98?
A. They were doing it year end probably around, December 28, December 15th. Somewhere near year end.
Q. Do you know which member of the audit team brought the bill and hold issue to your attention?
A. I know who -- it was either Larry Bornstein or Phil Harlow called me with the issue.
Q. And what was your initial reaction to the issue?
A. Well, you know, bill and hold sales are very unusual and so we were skeptical that you could recognize a revenue in 1997 so we started doing work on it to see if it was a good sale.
Q. Did you have any opinion about bill and hold sales in terms of business practices?
A. Well, usually there's more chance of fraudulent sales when they're bill and hold sales.
Q. And getting to the form over substance issue we were just talking about, is there a concern that a sale is designed simply to accelerated the recognition of revenue?
A. Yes.
MS. BROWN: Objection.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. And did bill and hold sales raise issues with you with respect to the possibility of channel stuffing?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall if that was the issue. It was more at first trying to determine if it was a correct sale in 1997.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. And did Andersen make itself comfortable that the sales were, in fact, legitimate sales?
A. We did a lot of work on it and at the end we felt like the revenues should have gone into 1997.
Q. Were you involved in the restatement work?
A. I was the concurring partner but again I did not do the audit work or the restatement work.
Q. Can you give me an estimate of how much time in hours you worked on addressing the bill and hold issue?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did Andersen continue to scrutinize bill and hold transactions into the first quarter of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, as concurring partner did you work at all on the comfort letter that was prepared in connection with the Sunbeam debt offer in the first quarter of 1998?

A. I reviewed it.
Q. And when was the last time you looked at that letter?
A. Probably when I was doing the deposition somewhere. I don't recall. A couple of years ago.
Q. Did you look at any documents within the past few days to prepare for this deposition?
A. I looked at some things like my deposition, the SEC part of it.
Q. But the comfort letter was not among the things you looked at?
A. Well, there was a bunch of them so I don't think so.
Q. How did you first get involved in reviewing the comfort letter for the March 1998 debt offer?
A. Someone, either Bornstein or Harlow, someone sent me a draft of it to look at it.
Q. Do you recall how far in advance of the March 19 date of the letter you saw drafts?
A. No, I can't recall exactly but it was before it was issued, I know that.
Q. It was at least several days before it was issued?
A. I don't know how many days but it was before it was issued, yes.
Q. Do you know how many different drafts you saw of the comfort letter?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I can't recall. They did have updates so I looked at probably two or three probably.
Q. And was Sunbeam's first quarter interim sales information included from the first draft that you saw?
A. Probably the first, maybe the second draft. I don't recall.
Q. I'm going to show you what's already been marked as CPH Exhibit 17 which is the final version of the March 19 comfort letter, and, Mr. Pruitt, I'm going to direct your attention to --
A. Let me just see if this was signed. Yes. So this isn't a draft but the signed letter.
Q. I believe this is the final version. Directing your attention to Paragraphs 5-B, 6-B and 6-C, if you just read those for me and I'll have some questions about those.
A. (Reading) Okay.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow concerning whether it would be appropriate to include the sales information in the comfort letter?
A. No, when I saw the draft, it was in the draft.
Q. And at any time did you learn whether Morgan Stanley had been provided with the sales information that's represented in Paragraphs 5-B and 6-C?
MS. BROWN: Objection.

MR. MOSCATO: You can answer.
THE WITNESS: I know when I received a draft of the comfort letter that had this information in it, I called either Harlow or Bornstein and told them that they needed to talk to the underwriters, let them know that this would be in the comfort letter so it wouldn't be a surprise.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. And that was during the drafting process?
A. When I got the draft of the comfort letter.
Q. Did you feel adamant that that information needed to be provided to Morgan Stanley right away?
A. Well, I mean, I just told them to do it and they did it. I didn't have to argue with our people to talk to the underwriters because you always -- you know, if there's something unusual about the comfort letter you always talk to the underwriters and let them know that they were going to get a comfort letter that will have some kind of issue in it or something that's unusual.
Q. What's unusual about paragraphs 5-B and 6-C?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Almost always sales increase and earnings increase when you're doing some kind of an offering, but once in a while you get one that goes the other way and that's unusual.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do you know whether drafts of this comfort letter were provided to Morgan Stanley prior to the final version going to Morgan Stanley?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: No, I don't know.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Is that something, in your experience, that's typical to occur during the process of providing a comfort letter?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Probably if there's no unusual items. You probably don't give them a draft note. If there's unusual items in there, you either discuss it or give them a copy of the draft either way.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow concerning Morgan Stanley's reaction to this sales information that's represented in Paragraphs 5-B and 6-C before the letter was finalized?
A. Not that I recall. I may have, though. I just don't recall.
Q. Did you personally have any reaction to the fact that Sunbeam's sales were less than half of what they were for the prior year's quarter through March 1 of 1998?

MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. This letter doesn't deal with the whole quarter. I'd ask you to rephrase the question, if you don't mind.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Let me give you a specific question. Paragraph 6-C indicates that for the first two months of 1998 sales were about half of what they were as compared to the first two months of 1997, and the question is whether you had any reaction when you read that information?
A. Well, I thought that we had an offering memorandum that we were working on also. When I looked at the draft of the offering memorandum, there was no disclosure regarding the reduction in sales and I thought there should be some disclosure.
Q. Did you tie in your own mind these reduced sales figures to bill and hold in any way?
A. Well, they had disclosed that because of the early-buyer program, I think they called it, which included bill and hold, it could affect first quarter sales. That was in the 10-K, I believe, or maybe the annual report, and so it looked like it had happened to some extent.
Q. During the entire process of getting this offering memorandum finalized, did you have any conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley?
A. Directly, no.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone from the law firm of Davis Polk & Wardwell?
A. Directly, no.
Q. Through whom would you have had any indirect conversations with either Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Well, all of my conversations were with Phil Harlow or Larry Bornstein.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you at any time see a press release that someone issued on March 19, 1998?
A. Not the -- let me see what you have to make sure it's what I'm thinking.
Q. This has been marked as CPH Exhibit 14 previously. Let me get you a copy for you.
A. No, I didn't see this press release before it went out.
Q. Do you know whether anyone at Andersen approved this press release before it was issued?
A. I'm almost certain we did not.
Q. Did you see the press release shortly after it issued?
A. Probably not the press release but they printed something like this in the offering memorandum.
Q. And did you see drafts of the offering memorandum that included disclosure of that sort?

A. Not until after it was issued.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow about this press release within several days after it issued?
A. Yes, we had discussions about it.
Q. And you had discussions with both Mr. Harlow and Mr. Bornstein?
A. I don't know which one.
Q. And what was the substance of those discussions?
A. My thoughts were that this is a forward looking statement and I felt like they probably shouldn't have forward looking statements in the offering memorandum, that they should just -- my thoughts were just put the facts in there.
Q. So your perspective was the company should not be saying that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 would be expected -- would be expected to exceed the 1997 first quarter net sales?
MS. BROWN: I'm going to object as vague.
THE WITNESS: Well, if I was giving them advice, I would tell them don't give that kind of a statement in the offering memorandum. Just stick to what has happened so far.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow about the company's ability to, in fact, make sales for the first quarter of 1998 that would exceed sales for the first quarter of 1997?

A. Well, before all of this happened and we were talking about disclosure in the offering memorandum, if you look at sales up through the end -- actually to, let's see, it would be first day or two of March, they were having sales of about a million dollars a day, and to exceed or meet expectations, they would probably -- Anderson's expectations they would have to sell probably 10 to 15 million a day for the rest of the quarter.
Q. So Andersen had serious concerns about its ability to make those sales?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: About Sunbeam's ability?
MR. JOHNSON: Yes.
THE WITNESS: We were skeptical they would be able to do it.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at Sunbeam concerning this press release?
A. Me personally?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. As concurring partner, did you as a general matter not communicate directly with the client?

A. That's correct, concurring partners usually work through the engagement manager.
Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Bornstein while Mr. Bornstein was in New York to finalized the offering memorandum?
A. Yes, I'm pretty sure I did.
Q. And what can you tell me about those conversations?
A. Nothing. I think he was up there at the printers, you know, looking at changes and trying to get the offering memorandum completed and we had discussions back and forth about disclosure --
Q. And that particular disclosure --
A. -- following the sales.
Q. Concerning first quarter sales?
A. No, up through at least March 1st there was a shortfall compared to the prior year, the same timeline.
Q. Did you and Mr. Bornstein have any disagreement about what the nature of the disclosure should be?
A. I don't recall any disagreements.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein indicate that there was any resistance to including information as to first quarter sales?
MS. BROWN: Objection, vague.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

THE WITNESS: You know, there was a number of conversations so I don't know, you know, whether I was talking to him when he was in New York or if I was talking to Phil Harlow or who, but I know at first the company felt like they didn't need any disclosure and they felt strongly that they could make the quarter.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Do you know whether anyone from Andersen voiced Andersen's view that there should not be any statement with respect to the company's ability to meet or exceed 1997 results?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: I can't recall that. I think my discussions were more along the line of what we knew at that time. The first couple of months were short compared to the first two months of the last year.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Did Mr. Bornstein indicate to you in any way that he had asked anyone at the printer to limit the disclosure to the historical information, as you put it?

A. I don't recall that. We were bringing the issue to the company's...

Q. If you would look at Paragraph 6-B of Exhibit CPH 17 for me.

A. (Reading.)

Q. The letter there indicates that "Sales decreased primarily due to the early-buy program which accelerated outdoor grill sales into the fourth quarter of 1997"; do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you think that was information that should be disclosed to persons receiving the offering memorandum?

MR. MOSCATO: Objection.

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: Well, they had disclosed that in the 10-Q.

MR. MOSCATO: You mean the 10-K.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, the 10-K.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. They disclosed what in the 10-K?

A. That the early-buyer program could affect the first quarter of 1998.

Q. So do you think that's information that should be included in the offering memorandum to the debt offering?

MR. MOSCATO: I object. He's not an expert witness. The offering memorandum was not an Andersen document. There's no basis for asking him his opinion on that question. He's not sitting here as an expert witness. He's sitting here as a fact witness.

MR. JOHNSON: That's a fair objection. Let me strike that.

Q. Why did Andersen include the text contained in 6-B in the comfort letter?

A. This was information that was given to us by the management of Sunbeam as to why the sales were lower in '98 as compared to '97 so we were putting that information into this comfort letter for the use of the investment bankers.

Q. Did Mr. Bornstein ever have any discussions with you after the offering memorandum was completed concerning what happened during his time in New York?

A. I think he wrote a memorandum about it.

Q. And did you at any point review that memorandum?

A. Yes, I did. I can't recall exactly what it said but I know he wrote one.

Q. Let me see if I got it here.

MR. JOHNSON: We'll mark this as CPH Exhibit 114.

Q. If you would take a minute to read through that memorandum, Mr. Pruitt.

A. (Reading) Okay.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein as to why he prepared the document that's been marked as CPH Exhibit 114?

A. I can't recall.

Q. Do you recall when you first saw this memorandum?

A. No, I don't recall.

MR. JOHNSON: For the record, this is a three-page document dated March 31, 1998, a memorandum from Lawrence Bornstein to the files, West Palm Beach, with Bates stamp Morgan Stanley 002048 through 2050.

Q. Look at the last page -- I'm sorry 27048 through 27050. Look at the last page of this exhibit, Mr. Pruitt. Have you ever seen that schedule before?

A. I believe I have.

Q. Do you recall when you first saw it?

A. No, I don't recall.

Q. Mr. Bornstein states in this memo at several points that it was Arthur Andersen's recommendation to eliminate the statement in the offering memorandum concerning the company's ability to exceed the prior year first quarter sales. Is that consistent with your recollection of the events during the middle of March, 1998?

MS. BROWN: Objection, vague.

THE WITNESS: I just can't recall exact details of our discussions.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Is there anything in Exhibit 114 that is inconsistent with your recollection?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: The only thing that I don't believe is correct is it mentions that I talked with him with Mr. Gluck and I didn't. I think just Harlow and Bornstein would have talked to Mr. Gluck. I don't recall talking to Mr. Gluck directly.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. So the first paragraph where Mr. Bornstein states that Mr. Harlow, Mr. Pruitt and Mr. Bornstein talked to Mr. Gluck on March 16th, you don't believe you were on that conversation?
A. I wasn't on that conversation. Obviously I was talking to Bornstein and Harlow and we agreed that's what we were going to do but I don't think I talked to Gluck directly.
Q. Anything else in this memorandum that seems inconsistent or incorrect with your recollection?
A. No, I don't think so. I think that's basically what happened.
Q. Are you familiar with the term "bring down letter"?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you look at any drafts for the bring down letter on the March debt offering that we've been talking about?
A. I can't swear that I saw it but I'm sure I did but I can't swear that I saw it. I should have.

Q. Let's look at that and see if that helps your recollection in any way. Bear with me one minute here. If you go through the stack there, Mr. Pruitt, you'll see a document marked CPH Exhibit 112. If you'll take and minute to look through Exhibit CPH 112 for me.
A. Okay.
Q. Does that refresh your memory in any way that you saw a draft of this bringing down letter before it was finalized?
A. I can't recall. I should have but I can't swear to it.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow concerning the updated net sales and net income information that's contained on Page 2 of Exhibit 114?
A. Well, it's all mixed together with what we've been talking about. We knew that for the first two months sales were short and they had been selling like a million a day for the first two months, and they'd have to sell 15 million or 10 million in the last months to meet expectations.
Q. Were there any discussions to the specific issue that for the first two months of 1998 the company was showing a loss of $41 million?
A. Well, as this letter says, a lot of it was because they had given options to Dunlap and Kersh I guess and had expensed the items because they must have been below market so that was part of it.

Q. And another part of the loss would be the decline in sales?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Let's see what they say here. They give an explanation to some extent.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Let me start the question. Putting aside the $30 million charge for compensation, the company was still showing a loss of over $10 million for the period; is that correct?
A. Yes, roughly.
Q. As compared with a profit of almost $10 million for the comparable period 1997?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow concerning that fact?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Did the company, meaning Andersen, continue to monitor Sunbeam's sales progress through the end of March?
A. I know sometime the first part of the April obviously the company knew what the sales were and they put out a press release at some point saying they had a shortfall compared to the prior year.

Q. So that their results were less than the 1997 results?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's despite the press release on March 19 indicating that they expected to exceed 1997 results?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you have any reaction to that announcement?
MR. MOSCATO: The April 3 announcement?
MR. JOHNSON: Correct.
THE WITNESS: No, we continued to do significant work on Sunbeam looking at bill and hold and all of those kind of issues because they were working on a registration statement also so we continued to be involved in monitoring Sunbeam.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone at Andersen concerning the March 3 announcement?
MR. MOSCATO: April 3.
MR. JOHNSON: I'm sorry. Thank you.
Q. April 3 announcement.
A. No, I don't recall. I probably did but I don't recall what we said.
Q. Do you remember whether the price of Sunbeam's stock fell as a result of that announcement?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone at Andersen concerning whether the actual first quarter 1998 results would result in litigation?
MS. BROWN: Objection, vague.
THE WITNESS: No, I don't recall talking about that.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Have you ever talked to anyone at Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam?
A. Directly, no.
Q. And have you ever talked to anybody at Davis Polk & Wardwell about Sunbeam?
A. Directly, no.
Q. Did you ever speak directly with any Sunbeam employees or officers during your time as concurring partner?
A. You mean, period or --
Q. Period.
A. Yes.
Q. Let's focus on the 1997/98 time frame. Can you identify any Sunbeam officers who you spoke to directly?
A. Not before, say, June of 1998.
Q. So prior to June of '98 you didn't have --

A. May or June of '98. Prior, no.
Q. So May or June of '98 was the first time in the 97/98 time frame that you had any direct contact with Sunbeam officers or employees?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Except at a football game. I saw them at a football game and talked to them, nothing about Sunbeam's financial statement.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Dolphins?
A. Yes. They lost that day I think.
Q. And in the May, June 1998 time frame, which Sunbeam officers did you speak with?
A. I don't recall but I went up there when -- let's see. There was an article that came out in Barron's alleging a number of things and I know that one of our consultants in Chicago called us and they were doing some work for Sunbeam and they indicated that they had discovered that there was a lot of inventory coming back and then, of course, it progressed to where Dunlap was fired and when that happened I went up to talk to some audit committee members and officers there at Sunbeam about what should be done.
Q. At that point and time, did you believe that -- strike that. Did you believe those audit committee members were forthright with you during that meeting?

A. I don't know. It was more to find out -- it was to do a review, an investigation and what we came up with was Don Denkhaus could do this work and they approved it and thought it was a good idea.
Q. Is it fair to say that no Sunbeam employee or officer ever gave to you directly any false or misleading information?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Person to person you mean?
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Correct.
A. Yes. I didn't talk to anyone directly.
Q. Did you form the conclusion at any point that some members of Sunbeam's management has provided false and misleading information to Andersen?
A. Well, when we did the investigation, we did a lot of interviews and some of the employees at Sunbeam started alleging that they did give false information initially.
Q. And can you identify which Sunbeam employees provided false information to Andersen?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I can't really recall. There are memos about the interviews and a lady, McDonald -- I think I remember McDonald and some others but I'd have to go back and look at the work papers.

MR. MOSCATO: And you're not offering to do that.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did Mr. Harlow ever give you his own assessment of whether Sunbeam had given Andersen false and misleading information?
A. Well, you know, he believed the people in their interviews. He felt like they were telling us the facts and so.
Q. So you believed that --
A. Yes, that they told us things that weren't true or hid things from us.
Q. So the information that's contained in the restatement memoranda is accurate information?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Well, I don't know that.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Let me put it this way --
A. It's believable, I guess.
Q. Did Mr. Harlow believe that the information obtained during the restatement interviews was accurate?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
THE WITNESS: He never said.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you have any reason to disbelief the accuracy of any information obtained during the restatement interviews?
A. I couldn't tell you. So many people were interviewed and some of them are probably still covering themselves.
MR. MOSCATO: And you did not participate in the process?
THE WITNESS: No, I did not.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. You just read --
A. I just read.
Q. You read the restatement interviews?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. When was the last time you spoke to Mr. Bornstein?
A. Probably, maybe two months ago.
Q. And how did you happen to speak to him two months ago?
A. Well, we're still friendly with each other and he actually left his job. He was trying to figure out what he wanted to do next and he called me and we talked.
Q. Did you talk about Sunbeam in any way?
A. I don't think so. I don't recall it. Maybe we did but I don't recall it.

Q. When was the last time you recall talking to Mr. Bornstein about Sunbeam in any way?
A. I went up to see him when he was working with American Media and there were a few people in the room. He made a comment about if he hadn't done such a great job at Sunbeam and I hadn't supported him that it probably never would have been uncovered or something like that. That's about the last thing I remember talking to Mr. Bornstein about in connection with Sunbeam.
Q. Other than the March 1998 discussions with Mr. Bornstein that we've already talked about, when is the last time you talked to Mr. Bornstein relating to the debt offering?
A. The debt offer? I can't recall, you know. When we went through all of this investigation, I'm sure Bornstein and I talked a lot but I don't recall all the details.
Q. But that would have been 1998?
A. Probably.
Q. And --
A. June. Of course, these conversations were in '98 also. It was in March of '98.
Q. Right. Have you had any conversations since 1998 with Mr. Bornstein concerning Morgan Stanley?

A. Not that I can recall.
Q. Other than Mr. Harlow and Mr. Bornstein, did you have direct contact with any other members of the Sunbeam audit team?
A. I may have. I just don't recall.
Q. You had contact with Mr. Denkhaus during the restatement process?
A. Yes, and others on the team. I just don't recall. It was a big team. Pastrana, I'm sure, others.
Q. Have you spoken to Mr. Pastrana about Sunbeam since 1998?
A. I'm doing a consulting job at Ernst & Young and he works for Ernst & Young so I see him all the time, but I don't recall us talking to any great extent about Sunbeam.
Q. Did you have a conversation about giving a deposition today?
A. I knew he was going to because we were switching dates and so forth to help me out.
Q. Did you talk to him at all about what this lawsuit would be about?
A. No, I didn't talk to him about it.
Q. Did you talk to him about any of the work you did for Sunbeam in 1998 within the past --
A. Not that I recall.
MR. JOHNSON: Want to switch places?

MS. BROWN: Want to take a break?
THE WITNESS: Sure.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is 10:10.
(Time noted: 10:10 a.m. to 10:17 a.m.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is 10:17.

EXAMINATION

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Good morning, Mr. Pruitt. My name is Zhonette Brown. I'm with Morgan Stanley, representing Morgan Stanley.
A. Okay.
Q. You talked earlier today about the smart form and the smart form that Arthur Andersen uses when looking at an engagement addresses certain risks associated with the engagement, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And once Arthur Andersen decides to accept the engagement, Arthur Andersen then addresses those risks when it performance the audit?
A. Yes.
Q. And the objective of an audit is to be able to issue an opinion that the company's financials, in this case Sunbeam, fairly state the company's financial position and its results of operations and cash flows in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. Now, at the time that you were the concurring partner for the 1997 audit for Sunbeam, you had been with Arthur Andersen for over 30 years, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you would not knowingly take any steps that would expose Arthur Andersen to liability, correct?
A. Yes, at least knowingly.
Q. And as concurring partner you would not allow anyone to take steps that would expose Arthur Andersen to liability?
A. That's correct.
Q. Nor would you allow anyone else to take steps that would expose Arthur Andersen to damage to its reputation?
A. That's correct.
Q. As an auditor, its Arthur Andersen's job and the people on the engagement, its their job to have a skepticism when approaching their examination of the company's financial statements?
A. Healthy skepticism is correct.
Q. Auditors are trained to have healthy skepticism, correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. It's part of their job?
A. That's correct.
Q. With regard to the 1997 audit -- and Sunbeam did more than simply audit the year end -- excuse me, Arthur Andersen did more than simply audit the year end financials for Sunbeam in 1997, correct?
A. Well, yeah, we were doing a number of things. We had three acquisitions going on right after year end and, of course, the stuff we talked about, the offering memorandums --
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, the question was '97, though, right?
MS. BROWN: Right.
THE WITNESS: Just the year 1997?
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. 1997.
A. I mean, the timeline is '97 or the financials are '97? What are we talking about?
MR. MOSCATO: Can you restate your question please?
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. In 1997, in addition to doing the audit work for the year-end financial, Arthur Andersen did quarterly examinations for Sunbeam, correct?

A. Yes, the fiscal year end '97, yes. We did quarterly reviews.
Q. And Arthur Andersen had been engaged by Sunbeam for a number of years preceding 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. The engagement team spent several hundred or a few thousand hours on the work that they did for Sunbeam in 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And as concurring partner you examined planning documents. Did that include, for instance, the work program?
A. Probably not the detail work programs but planning. Discussed what should be in the work program to mitigate risk.
Q. And you were satisfied as a result of that that Arthur Andersen was adequately addressing all the risk that they had identified with regard to the Sunbeam financials?
A. The known risk, yes.
Q. And at the end of the 1997 audit, Arthur Andersen had satisfied themselves that they had met their objective and that they would be able to give the opinion that Sunbeam's financials were fairly stated, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And they didn't have any reason -- did you personally have any reason in that time frame, that is January of 1998 when they signed off on the financials, to question the integrity of management at Sunbeam?

A. No, we talked about this morning. We knew Dunlap was domineering and those kind of things but we felt like we were aware of those risks so when we were ready to sign off, we felt comfortable signing off.
Q. Dunlap was well known in the business community, correct?
A. Yes, he was a big name.
Q. At the time of the 1997 audit he was seen to have been successful in the -- as a successful businessman, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. He was -- I think you referred to him in prior testimony as a hero in the business community, correct?
A. Yes, he was looked upon as -- yeah, as far as in the business community.
Q. And when the question of bill and hold sales came up during the 1997 audit, ultimately Arthur Andersen satisfied itself that those were legitimate sales and the revenue could be recognized in 1997, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And up until June of 1998, are you -- Arthur Andersen had no reason that you're aware of to question the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

1997 financial statements?
A. That's correct. Things started being uncovered subsequent to the audit.
Q. Subsequent to the audit being in June of 1998, correct?
A. Yes, around June.
Q. Arthur Andersen, as you mentioned, continued to do work for Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And during that time period you're not aware of any reason that Arthur Andersen had to question the integrity of the management?
A. Not that I can recall. We were obviously -- because of bill and hold and other things, we were doing additional work. We were monitoring the situation but we didn't find anything until June that made us believe that they were dishonest or the financials were a problem.
Q. And that includes the first quarter of 1998, correct?
A. As best I recall, yes.
Q. Let's go ahead and look at the CPH Exhibit 23 that you looked at a bit earlier this morning. It was the document that included the smart form. That's it right there.
A. This one?

Q. Yes. And turning to the smart form itself, on Page 2 where you discussed with my colleague earlier that the text in the box that management had set aggressive earnings expectations, "might be inclined to recognize revenue for transaction and events where the earning process is not complete. Also reserves can be expected to be thin." You were satisfied that Arthur Andersen had addressed that issue when it signed off on Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Yes, the auditing team was satisfied. Ultimately its their responsibility, not mine. A concurring partner can give advice and talk about the issues, but ultimately the engaging partner has the responsibility to decide to sign the opinion.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You didn't have any difficulties or reservations about Arthur Andersen signing that opinion?
A. Not at that time.
Q. On the next page, Page 3, under "Risk Classification" where it says, "Final risk classification high," again the risk classification and each one of the risks identified in this document had been addressed by Arthur Andersen of their audit of the 1997 financials, correct?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection, form.
THE WITNESS: Yes, that was the idea, to find the risk and try to address the risk as part of the audit. When the team completed their work, they felt comfortable signing the opinion.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And as concurring partner did you concur or sign off before they signed their opinion?
A. Yes, I have to concur on certain things like major issues that they bring to my attention, a few things like that, yes.
Q. And with the 30 years of experience that you had at that time, you were comfortable signing off with the 1997 financial statements for Sunbeam, correct?
A. Well, as concurring partner. Again I didn't sign the opinion. It's not my responsibility. But the issues that they brought to me, which was basically bill and hold, by the time we finished with that work I felt the revenues should be in 1997, and I still feel that way probably.
MR. MOSCATO: Feel free to respond to questions that aren't asked.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I thought I'd throw that in. He was about to fall asleep. That's off the record.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You testified that you had not had any previous discussions with Morgan Stanley during the 1997, 1998 time frame concerning Sunbeam. Did you have any conversations with anyone representing Morgan Stanley senior funding during that period concerning Sunbeam?

A. No, not directly.
Q. Did you have any conversations prior to June of 1998 with anyone from Skadden Arps concerning Sunbeam?
A. As part of the investigation, I think they were involved, I believe. I believe, that's the firm. Were they involved in the investigation?
MR. MOSCATO: When you say "investigation," you mean the restatement.
THE WITNESS: The restatement. I think they were involved. Maybe I said hi to somebody but again I didn't do the work.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And prior to the restatement or the investigation, did you have contact with anyone from Skadden Arps?
A. About Sunbeam?
Q. About Sunbeam.
A. Not that I recall.
Q. You were actually on vacation in June of 1998 when Arthur Andersen determined that it would withhold its consent from the SEC registration for the notes, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0 7424

A. That's correct.
Q. So you personally were not involved in that decision or were you?
A. No, I was out of the country and they were working with a practice director.
Q. Mr. Costello?
A. Yes. You know, I found out about it. I've forgotten whether they left me a message. Somehow they got in touch with me. I was aware of it.
Q. But you weren't involved in making the decision?
A. Not directly.
Q. And as concurring partner, any of the work -- any of the information that you have about the work that was done during the audit is secondhand that you got from Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow, correct?
A. Well, I could look at the work that was done, but again I didn't interact with the client directly.
Q. And you also didn't interact with the client directly on the restatement procedures, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And any information you have about what anyone from Arthur Andersen may have said to anyone from Morgan Stanley also would be secondhand?
A. Secondhand.
Q. Prior to June of 1998, did anyone from Arthur

Andersen tell you that any representative of Sunbeam had expressed hesitation about the legitimacy of the bill and hold sale?
MR. JOHNSON: Could I have that read back?
(The record was read.)
MR. JOHNSON: I'm going to object to the form of that.
THE WITNESS: I believe it was in June that Griffith or someone came to us and told us -- or they said that there could be problems with some of the sales but I'm not even sure it was bill and hold sales any more. We had picked up some sales that were not legitimate sales when we did our investigation of the bill and hold at the audit time at year end and we had proposed adjustments to reverse the sale.
MR. MOSCATO: What was your question again? Was your question prior to June?
MS. BROWN: My question was prior to June of 1998.
MR. MOSCATO: Why don't you restate the question? I don't think it was responsive.
THE WITNESS: It would be May or June. I don't know. I think it probably had to be in June but I'm not certain. Again I was out of the country. I don't know exactly what was going on.

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. So prior to May of 1998, you're not aware of anyone from Sunbeam expressing to Arthur Andersen any concerns about the legitimacy of the bill and hold sales?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. And the bill and hold sales, you mentioned earlier, were disclosed in Sunbeam's 10-K for 1997; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And, to your knowledge -- let me just ask you personally. Were you satisfied with that disclosure of the bill and hold sales in Sunbeam's 10-K?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form, foundation.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I think it disclosed they had bill and hold sales and they had an early-buy program and we had -- I had felt that it had to be disclosed if they were going to put bill and hold sales in their financials in 1997 and they did.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. So whatever connotations you may feel go with bill and hold sales, those were disclosed in the 10-K, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You discussed earlier the comfort letters that Arthur Andersen provided to Morgan Stanley in March of 1998?

A. Yes.
Q. And Arthur Andersen performs post audit reviews prior to providing comfort letters, correct?
A. As part of it, yes. Actually the comfort letters are requested by the investment banker as part of their due diligence.
Q. Right, but before Arthur Andersen will provide that comfort letter, Arthur Andersen itself does post-audit review procedures, correct?
A. Normally. They can ask for anything. I guess an investment banker -- I've seen them just ask if we're independent, you know, so we don't have to do anything if you don't want to, I guess, given the comfort letter, but normally they ask for things that you need to do some work on.
Q. So what Morgan Stanley asked for this time required you to do more than simply state you were independent?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, with regard to the debt offering and the comfort letters that went with that, eventually you were aware that Sunbeam would want to register with the SEC concerning the debt, correct?
A. I knew at some point that, yes, they were working on an S4 registration.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And in order to file an S4 registration with the SEC, Sunbeam has to get consent from Arthur Andersen to use Arthur Andersen's opinion concerning Sunbeam's financials?
A. That's correct. You can ask for it but you don't need it on an offering memorandum.
Q. Would Arthur Andersen provide its consent for the S4 registration if it felt that the offering memorandum was false and misleading?
A. Well, I know if we felt like the S4 was misleading, we wouldn't give a consent.
MR. MOSCATO: Is the question if they thought it was false and misleading when issued? It's a little confusing. You could have a situation where the offering memorandum says something that everyone believes is accurate at the time that it turns out that it's not accurate, say a forward looking statement.
THE WITNESS: If you fix it in the S4, I guess, then, if you were satisfied, you could go ahead and give a consent on the S4 if the S4 was correct.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. My question is in March Sunbeam was working on the offering memorandum. Arthur Andersen was aware that eventually they would want to file an S4 with the SEC If Arthur Andersen knew in March that the offering memorandum as of March was false and misleading and that Arthur Andersen would withhold -- therefore would withhold its consent, would Arthur Andersen tell Sunbeam that as a matter of courtesy?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
MR. MOSCATO: It's so hypothetical. I don't know how he can answer that.
If you feel comfortable answering it, answer it. If it's too hypothetical to answer --
THE WITNESS: The issue would be known in April anyhow. I mean, you would know what the sales would be in the first quarter. The S4 is not going to be completed before April anyhow, April 1st, so we're going to know the answer by the time the S4 comes around. Either they're right and there's no problem or they're wrong and you know it.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. When you read the offering memorandum prior to -- you read drafts of the offering memorandum prior to it being published correct?
A. Yes.
Q. As a courtesy or service to Arthur Andersen -- to Sunbeam, if you noticed anything that you felt was false and misleading you would bring that to the attention of Sunbeam, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection.

THE WITNESS: If it was false and misleading, we would bring it to their attention. It's hypothetical.
MR. MOSCATO: It was all hypothetical.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You have in front of you or you and your counsel have in front of you a stack of documents that have previously been marked and I'd like to refer you to what was marked yesterday as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 25. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 25 is a post-audit review form that Arthur Andersen uses, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And turn, if you would, to the last few pages of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 25 and on the last two pages at the end, is that your initials and then your signature?
A. Yes.
Q. And it appears as though -- even though this post-audit review is dated March 5th of '98 that your signature is May of '98. Do you know what the circumstance was that you signed it a couple of months later?
A. I do remember. They didn't get it to me right at the end of the audit to sign and we were going to get a work paper review and they were going to get jigged for that so I put the right date so they would get jigged.
Q. In the text --
A. The work was done timely. I guess they didn't give me this form in time, so I signed it when they got me the form as opposed to when the work was done.

Q. So under "Procedure," for instance, where it says "Read the report to be issued and the related financial statements" and then it has "Done by" and your initials, what's the indication of when that was done? Was that done in March or was that done in May?
A. It was done before they filed the 10-K.
Q. So you reviewed this document contemporaneously with it being created?
MR. MOSCATO: This document or 10-K?
THE WITNESS: The 10-K itself was filed March 5th and I did the review and so forth before they filed it.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. So you reviewed this document in early March of 1998?
MR. MOSCATO: You keep saying this document. He thinks you're talking about the 10-K.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I'm talking about the 10-K. No, they did not send me this form until March -- I'm sorry, May 29th to review. I did the work but I did not fill out this form until May 29th.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. So you reviewed the 10-K in early March of 1998?
A. Before it was filed.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. But you did not review this form itself until May of 1998?
A. That's correct.
Q. You stated before that you did the work. What does that mean?
A. When you say "this form," to be honest with you --
MR. JOHNSON: For the record, it's not the form 10-K. It's --
MR. MOSCATO: It's ARQ, they call it. I may have looked at the front part of this thing but I did not fill this out until May 29th. My part of it I didn't fill in.
MR. MOSCATO: When you say you did the work, you mean you read the 10-K?
THE WITNESS: The 10-K and did all the other things. I obviously talked to the audit team about bill and hold and all those kind of things. I did all those things before we filed the 10-K. They didn't give me this form on May 29th and I signed it May 29th rather than when I did the work.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You've been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley 35. For the record, it's CPH 0129979 through 988. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 35 is another Arthur Andersen post-audit review form, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And at the last couple of pages of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 35 there are also your initials and your signature?
A. Yes.
Q. You also stated this document, May 29th of 1998?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now, under procedure number one on the second to the last page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 35 where it states, "Read the report to be issued and related financial statements," what does that refer to?
MR. MOSCATO: It says read the report to be reissued.
THE WITNESS: To be reissued. Let me look and see. What this is talking about is reissuing our order on -- I think it's December 28th, 1997 opinion in the financial statements and the registration statements.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And the registration statement?
A. I don't know what registration they are talking about, to be honest with you. I'm trying to remember what it was for.
Q. On Item 2 --
A. It may be an S8. I don't know. I don't recall it.
Q. On Item 2 --

A. It should say it. I can't find it. It's so close after the 10-K was filed, it must be an S8 or something. I don't think it's the S4.
MR. MOSCATO: Do you have a question, counsel?
MS. BROWN: Yes.
Q. When you look at Page 9, again the second to the last page of Exhibit 35, under "Reviewed the results of the post-audit review" which is Number 2, what does that refer to?
A. Basically this form -- the work is done in this form. There could be work papers that they're preparing in doing the work, but it's basically this work on this form.
Q. And so when you initialed there, what does that indicate?
A. Well, I read the reissue report and reviewed the results of this post-audit review, and I discussed any significant accounting and auditing issues with the engagement team and I'm satisfied.
Q. And you did that work in March of 1998 rather than in May of 1998?
A. Yes. This looks like it's some kind of -- it may be an S8 which is like pension plans and stuff like that. It's called -- it could be. I just don't know which registration statement this was, but since it is so soon after we filed the 10-K.

Q. Look if you would at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28 which was marked yesterday. And Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28 is a post-audit review form that Arthur Andersen uses, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And under SEC filing form Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28 --
A. Zero coupon, okay.
Q. -- it states sale of 2.014 billion zero coupon senior subordinated debentures due 2018.
A. Right.
Q. And now when you look at the last two pages of Morgan Stanley 28, again are those your initials and your signature?
A. Yes.
Q. Looking at this post audit report when it states that you reviewed -- read the report to be reissued and related financial statements, what does that refer to?
A. In this case it's zero coupon -- it's actually the offering memorandum, is what they're talking about, I'm pretty sure.
MR. MOSCATO: Just for your edification, read that. See if you can make out the handwriting.
THE WITNESS: I can't read it worth a flip but I think they're saying what I just said, that they're talking about the work they did on the offering memorandum and they did this work although this is not an offering.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MR. MOSCATO: I just asked you to read it to yourself. You don't have to discuss it unless she wants to ask you about it.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Number 2 on the second to the last page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28, states "Principal Considerations. Whether that review has revealed any subsequent events or transactions that might affect our report and/or the financial statements being reissued"; do you see that?
A. Give me the page.
Q. It's Page 9 of the PAR, Number 2, "Principal Considerations"?
A. Okay. Right.
Q. And my question is what does that mean?
A. We didn't find anything that would change the December 28th, 1997 financial statements.
Q. So as of this date, which is March 16th 1998, Arthur Andersen was satisfied that the financial statements were still not materially misstated?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Fairly presented, yes.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And this was after the additional work that

Arthur Andersen had done up to March 13th -- March 16th of 1998, correct?
A. Right. And again this is me talking. As concurring partner, I didn't see anything that I felt would change the December 28, 1997 financial statement.
Q. You stated earlier that you directed either Mr. Bornsten or Mr. Harlow to speak to Morgan Stanley about what they expected to put in the comfort letter; do you recall that testimony?
MR. MOSCATO: I'm not sure that's accurate
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Do you recall testifying this morning that you directed Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow to tell Morgan Stanley in advance of getting the comfort letter --
A. What would be in the comfort letter, yes.
Q. Do you have any personal knowledge of that communication taking place? You didn't participate in such communication, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: No, I did not directly talk to the investment bankers. I know it was done because Bornstein, you know, did it, told me he had talked to the investment bankers.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Did he tell you that before or after March 19, 1998?

A. I don't know what date it was.
Q. Did he tell you that before or after he was in New York at the press?
A. I don't recall but I think he did talk to the investment bankers when he was in New York.
Q. Do you recall ever saying to anyone from Arthur Andersen that if Sunbeam did not make a disclosure of the decline in sales, Arthur Andersen would withhold the consent from registration for the notes?
A. Well, again we were talking about this offering memorandum when this was all going on and you don't need a consent so they could tell us to shove it, put out the offering memorandum. They don't need our consent on offering memorandum.
Q. But I'm not sure that answers my question. They would eventually need a consent for the S4 registration, correct.
A. Yes.
MR. MOSCATO: Let's not argue. She asked the specific question, did you say a particular thing, and you want an answer to that question.
THE WITNESS: Give me the question again.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. My question was do you recall saying to anyone in March of 1998 that if Sunbeam did not disclosure its decline in sales, Arthur Andersen would withhold its consent?

MR. MOSCATO: And the answer is yes or no.
THE WITNESS: On the S4 registration? In the registration statement?
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Yes.
A. Not the offering memorandum? No, I don't recall saying that.
Q. Do you recall ever conveying that sentiment to anyone at any time prior to June of 1998?
A. I don't recall tying the S4 to this time period when we were working on the offering memorandum. Again, before the S4 would be filed we would know one way or the other because the quarter would be over. I mean, it was only a few days left. We'd know one way or the other.
Q. So the answer is no, you don't recall discussing that with anyone prior to June of 1998?
A. I don't recall. Not June. Did you say June?
Q. Prior to June.
A. Prior to June? I thought we were talking about March.
MR. MOSCATO: It's all very confusing.
THE WITNESS: This was all going on in March, the first quarter in the shortfall, and we would know by the first part of the April whether they made it or not.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. But in June --
A. It wouldn't be an issue one way or the other by the time April gets here because we'll know what the sales are for the first quarter at that point, so it won't be an issue any more.
Q. In June of 1998, Arthur Andersen withheld its consent for the registration, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember discussing that as a possibility with anyone from Arthur Andersen prior to June of 1998?
A. Withholding the consent?
Q. Yes.
A. No, not that I can recall.
Q. When you talked with Mr. Harlow and Mr. Bornstein about wanting Sunbeam to make a disclosure about the decrease in net sales in March of 1998, do you recall them telling you that Sunbeam was resisting making that disclosure because they believed they'd make a their quarter numbers?
A. Yes. Yes, they resisted the disclosure.
Q. When you told Mr. Harlow or Bornstein to tell Morgan Stanley what was going to be in the comfort letter, do you know whether they told Sunbeam first that they were going to convey that information to Morgan Stanley?

A. I don't know who they told first or second.
Q. As a courtesy, would you expect them to have told the client before they told the underwriter?
MR. MOSCATO: I object.
THE WITNESS: I don't think it would have come to my mind because everybody is working on the thing. They're all in the same room probably.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. As part of the procedure for providing a comfort letter, Arthur Andersen gets a representation letter from management before they provide the comfort letter, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you recall discussing the representation letters -- management representation letters in March of 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. I'd like you to take a look at what's been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 30, and if you would just turn to the last page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 30 there are signatures there that purport to be from Mr. Dunlap, Kersh, Fanin and Gluck, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this the type of management representation letter that Arthur Andersen would receive prior to issuing a comfort letter?

A. Yes.
Q. We might as well get what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibits 32, 33 and 34. You testified that you recall that there was a bring down comfort letter, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And prior to providing a bring down comfort letter, there would be a subsequent representation letter from management, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. On Morgan Stanley Exhibit 30, the date of the first management representation letter is March 16th, 1998 and then you're aware that the Arthur Andersen comfort letter -- initial comfort letter is dated March 19, 1998; do you recall that?
A. I don't recall.
MR. MOSCATO: We'll stipulate.
THE WITNESS: It may have been it's dated the 19th. It goes through the 16th, probably.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Now, if you look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 32, the first page is an e-mail dated March 21, 1998. And attached to that right after is a draft representation letter from management. I'd like you to turn, if you would,

to the Bates page and the Bates is the little number at the bottom that ends in 1653.
A. Okay.
Q. And on Morgan Stanley Exhibit 32 there's a Paragraph 10 there. I'll ask you just to review Paragraph 10.
A. Okay.
Q. What do you understand Paragraph 10 to accomplish?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Since I wasn't involved in, you know, preparing these comfort letters and letters and all that kind of stuff and the timeline and what they were talking about, I can't answer that, except what it says is that management believes that the sales in '98 will exceed the same time period in '97.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Do you recall discussing putting that paragraph in the management letter?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Me asking for this or --
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Do you recall having any discussions about it being put into the management letter with anyone at --
A. I don't recall, no.

Q. If you look at the next exhibit which is Morgan Stanley 33, there's a fax cover -- or fax line at the top that's dated March 23rd, 1998 and I'd ask you to look at that same paragraph, Paragraph 10 or Morgan Stanley Exhibit 33, and now someone has made some handwritten edits to that paragraph. Do you know whose handwriting that is?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Did you discuss this edit with anyone?

A. I don't recall. I may have.

Q. And I'd like you to please look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 34. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 34 is dated March 23rd, 1998 and if you will turn to the final page, bears the signatures of Mr. Dunlap, Kersh, Fanin and Gluck. And if you would observe by comparing this final management representation letter to the previous two drafts represented in Morgan Stanley Exhibits 32 and 33, you will notice that the paragraph we have been discussing has been removed. Do you see that?

A. Yes. It's covered somewhere else. When did they put out that press release? What was the date of that?

MR. MOSCATO: March 19. She just asked the question did you notice -- it's pretty self explanatory. She's asking you if you look at this document, if you noticed that this paragraph which was in here is not in here.

THE WITNESS: That's correct.

MR. MOSCATO: Next question please.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. Did you discuss with anyone the fact that the Paragraph 10 which previously stated, "Despite the decrease in net sales described in the preceding paragraph, management believes that net sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1998 will exceed net sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1997." Did anyone discuss with you the fact that that paragraph had been -- was not in the final management representation letter?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did anyone bring that to you as a concern?

A. They may have but I don't recall.

Q. Now, you stated that from your point of view management was telling you in March of 1998 that they still expected to make their numbers for the first quarter of 1998, correct, indirectly?

MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. Can you restate the question?

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. The information that you had in the first quarter of 1998 was that the company still expected -- company Sunbeam still expected to make their numbers for the first quarter of 1998, correct?

A. Yes, based on the first two months, the information that they had at that point, yes.

Q. And did you personally have any reason -- did you have any sense that Sunbeam was not sincere when they were representing that they believed that they would make their numbers for the first quarter of 1998?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: I have no way of knowing. Personally, as I said, I was skeptical.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. But did you have any sense that the company itself had reservations or did not believe it would make its numbers.

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: Again I didn't deal directly with them so I can't answer the question.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. Did anyone from Arthur Andersen tell you that they felt that Sunbeam would not -- they felt that Sunbeam itself believed that Sunbeam would not make its numbers for the first quarter of 1998?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: Not that I recall.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This is the end of Videotape No. 1. We are going off the record. The time is 11:08.

(Brief recess)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. This is the beginning of the Videotape No. 2. The time is 11:12.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. Mr. Pruitt, you said that you had reviewed or seen the substance of the press release that Sunbeam issued in March 1998 indicating that they may not meet analysts' expectations but they still expected to beat first quarter 1997?

A. They had included it in the offering memorandum and I saw a draft of the offering memorandum but I don't know whether they put the forward thinking information in there and all that stuff.

Q. So you don't recall -- okay.

A. Whatever was in the memorandum is what I saw.

Q. At the time you saw that, you could not say, based on your own knowledge, that that information was inaccurate, correct?

A. No.

Q. Let me hand you what we will mark as Morgan Stanley 36. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 36 for the record is Bates CPH 0021819. At the top it indicates "Clippings," Arthur Andersen to Phil Harlow, yourself and Mr. Pastrana from Mr. Bornstein date, March 20, 1998. Do you recall receiving this from Mr. Bornstein?

1-30

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I can't recall.
Q. Do you recall any discussions about the fall of Sunbeam stock after the issuance of the press release in 1998?
A. No, I don't recall discussing it. We may have. I don't recall.
Q. At the time you that reviewed the offering memorandum -- draft offering memorandum that included the substance of the press release, do you recall from your own review anything that you thought was inaccurate or misleading in the offering memorandum?
A. I don't recall anything I could say was wrong. Again, as I testified, I was against forward looking statements.
Q. Is that something you're just generally would be against, forward looking statements in an offering memorandum?
A. In this situation.
Q. What do you mean in this situation?
A. In this situation I was against it. Maybe in another situation it would be fine. I don't know. It's hypothetical.
Q. But there was nothing that you thought, based on your own knowledge at the time, was inaccurate, correct?

MR. MOSCATO: You've asked this question probably 15 different ways in the last half hour. I'm going to start objecting and I'm going to start instructing him not to answer. He's made his position as crystal clear as a human being can possibly make that position.
Answer the question one more time and that's it.
MS. BROWN: Well, strike it. That's fine.
Q. There was no way for you to know on March 19, 1998 what was going to happen at Sunbeam by the close of the quarter, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you were previously provided with Mr. Bornstein's memo, CPH Exhibit 114?
A. Yes.
Q. And you just look again at the last page of CPH Exhibit 114. It was your understanding that this is information that Sunbeam provided to indirectly someone from Arthur Andersen; is that correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form. Lack of foundation.
THE WITNESS: I'm not sure what this is. I know that at the time someone put together kind of a schedule of sales to certain clients but I don't know if that's it or not.

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And by someone, you mean someone from Sunbeam?
A. Yes. Uzzi, I believe.
Q. And who would be in a better position to know what sales Sunbeam had but had not recorded it at the end of February 1998, Sunbeam or Arthur Andersen?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Well, I think Sunbeam.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Mr. Bornstein never told you that he was concerned about Sunbeam's ability to physically ship the amount of inventory that they said they were going to be able to ship, correct?
A. I don't recall that conversation at all.
Q. The restatement was much more detailed in scope than the initial audit; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
MS. BROWN: Let's mark Morgan Stanley Exhibit 37.
MR. JOHNSON: Is this the same one you marked yesterday?
MS. BROWN: No.
Q. You have been handed Morgan Stanley Exhibit 37, which for the record is CPH 0083764 and 65. At the top of the document, Sunbeam Corporation, Arthur Andersen fees and expenses, restatement and other accounting services from July 1, 1998 through December 15 1998. What services did Arthur Andersen provide to Sunbeam after the restatement work had been completed?

A. I know they were trying to file the S4 registration statement and I believe we worked on that after the restatement to get it filed.
Q. Was there anything else?
A. I can't recall. May have been.
Q. But Arthur Andersen, you said, did not do the audit for Sunbeam's 1998 financials?
A. I'm sure we did not. Again I retired in August of '99 and this was still going on after I retired. What they did afterwards, I don't know.
Q. When you look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 37, the total hours for July 1, 1998 to December 15, 1998 is 16,324. Do you see that on the second page?
A. Yes.
Q. The vast majority of those hours would have been spent on the restatement work, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. Indeed Arthur Andersen and Sunbeam at a minimum spent 10,000 hours working on the restatement, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. During the restatement -- there had been a change

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

in management; I believe you testified to that previously?
A. Yes, they fired Dunlap.
Q. And not today but you've testified previously that during the restatement there was also an informal SEC investigation proceeding, correct?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q And, in fact, it was your understanding that when Mr. Bornstein interviewed some of the Sunbeam personnel -- salespersonnel, he informed it was in their best interest to be truthful because of the SEC investigation, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. That's a fact that did not exist during the 1997 audit, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: That's correct.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And as a result of the restatement and the thousands of hours and whatever other factors may have existed, Arthur Andersen learned things during the restatement that Arthur Andersen had not been aware of during June of 1998, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: That's correct.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You were aware that in the first quarter of 1998

Morgan Stanley was conducting due diligence at Sunbeam?
A. I believe I knew it was Morgan. I mean, maybe there was more than one investment banker doing due diligence. I don't recall.
Q. Do you have any knowledge personally of anyone from Coleman (Parent) Holdings doing due diligence at Sunbeam prior to June of 1998?
A. Personally?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Do you have any knowledge personally of anyone from Mathco doing due diligence at Sunbeam prior to June 1998?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any knowledge of anyone from Credit Swiss First Boston doing due diligence at Sunbeam prior to June of 1998?
A. Again, I knew that investment bankers were probably doing due diligence but I didn't know who it was.
Q. Do you have any information concerning anyone from Wachtell Lipton doing due diligence at Sunbeam in 1998?
A. Again, I knew law firms were working on the offering memorandum and the registration but I didn't know who it was. I can't recall who it was.

Q. Did you personally have any conversations with anyone from Coleman, Coleman (Parent) or Mathco prior to June of 1998 concerning Sunbeam?
A. Directly, no.
Q. Did you personally have any conversations with anyone from Credit Swiss First Boston or Wachtell prior to June 1998 concerning Sunbeam?
A. Directly, no.
Q. Indirectly were you aware of any conversations that anyone from Arthur Andersen had with any of those entities, Coleman, Coleman (Parent), Mathco, Credit Swiss First Boston or Wachtell?
A. I don't recall. Again Bornstein and Harlow were having conversations but I don't know who they were talking to.
Q. You weren't present at Global Financial Press in March 1998, correct?
A. No.
Q. And you weren't involved in any discussions directly with the company in March 1998?
A. No.
Q. Now, Sunbeam moved to Florida and became a client of the Metro Florida area in approximately 1993, correct?
A. It must have been around 1993, yes.
Q. And Sunbeam at the time was one of Arthur

Andersen's largest clients in Metro Florida?
A. One of them. In the top 10.
Q. In 1995 the South Florida Arthur Andersen practice had lost a number of big clients to merger, correct?
A. I think we lost Blockbuster. Yes, we lost some.
Q. And do you recall that in 1996 and seven the Metro Florida practice was behind the Arthur Andersen average for units per share earnings?
A. I don't recall whether we were or not. We could have been because of the loss of Blockbuster and a couple of other things. It's possible.
Q. Do you recall in one of your last evaluations that you received a reduction in units because of the difference in income for the South Florida office as oppose to the average Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes, I don't know if that was South Florida or Florida, the Caribbean or all of them. I can't recall. Probably because I was -- most partners retire from Andersen at 56 and I didn't so they start reducing your units after 56 if you don't retire. I couldn't retire until I was 59 because the guy that was going to take over for me went with our biggest client.
MR. MOSCATO: It's a tough business.

can't complain.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You've been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley 38 which is Bates CPH 2004703 to 722. Do you just generally recognize this document?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you for the record identify what it is?
A. Looks like an annual review of me by Bob Grafton who was by boss.
Q. I just want you to look at the second paragraph on Page 3, states, "Bill understands need for the Metro Florida practice to get its earnings up to the US average. If the office meets its plan for 1997, there will still be approximately $100 per unit behind the US average for audit and approximately $150 per unit behind for tax. And while I do not believe we can get to the US average in 1997, it should be our goal to get there in 1998."
A. Okay.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection that the Metro Florida practice was behind the Arthur Andersen US average for earnings?
A. Yes. Actually the big problem was Tampa and not South Florida. This is Metro Florida which is all of Florida, but, yes, I remember now.
Q. And you were responsible for Metro Florida?

A. Yes, Florida, the Caribbean and Venezuela.
Q. Do you recall that in 1997 Sunbeam cut the fees that it was providing to Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes. I believe. I believe I recall that they did.
Q. Do you recall the fees were cut almost in half?
A. I don't recall that. I know that they had big restructuring, got rid of a lot of their businesses. They brought everything to South Florida, consolidated everything so it was a smaller job anyhow, but I don't recall the fees. In fact, in 1996 most of the work was done in Pittsburgh and Mississippi rather than South Florida. We did very little of the work in South Florida in 1996. We just consolidated everything. In 1997 when he got rid of the lot of the businesses and consolidated everything, we did more of the work so it's a different entity really.
Q. During the restatement Arthur Andersen had no objective to determine what due diligence had been performed by any of the investment bankers in 1998, correct?
A. I can't think of a reason why.
Q. Do you personally have any information that would cause you to believe that Sunbeam had provided information to Morgan Stanley that it had not provided to Arthur Andersen?
A. No, not that I'm aware of.

Q. Do you personally have any reason to believe yourself that Morgan Stanley was involved in any way in the accounting improprieties at Sunbeam in 1997 and 1998?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Not that I know of.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Do you have any reason personally to believe that Morgan Stanley was aware of those accounting improprieties in June of 1998?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
MR. JOHNSON: I'll join.
THE WITNESS: Do I answer?
MR. MOSCATO: You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Not that I know of.
MS. BROWN: No further questions at this time.
MR. JOHNSON: Nothing.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This is the end of this deposition. We are going off the record. The time is 11:34.

SUBJECT: SUNBEAM CORP. – $2.0 BILLION SENIOR SECURED CREDIT FACILITIES

I. BACKGROUND

Sunbeam Corp. ("SOC", NYSE) is a leading worldwide manufacturer of a wide range of household and specialty brand name consumer products. As of March 6, 1998, the Company had an equity market value of $4.4Bn. Morgan Stanley became involved with Sunbeam through the relationship between Bill Strong and Al Dunlap. Bill Strong first met Al Dunlap in 1986 when Al Dunlap worked for Sir James Goldsmith. Bill Strong has been involved with three transactions for Al Dunlap and Sir James Goldsmith. The last transaction was a $275MM Regulation S sale of Newmont Mining common stock in 1993 successfully executed by Morgan Stanley. The Firm began soliciting a strategic relationship with Al Dunlap in April 1997 and was retained as sole strategic advisor to Sunbeam in early September 1997. Since that time, we have been exploring various strategic alternatives for the Company, with the active participation of Sunbeam's management team. Such advisory reviews have included potential acquisitions, a sellside process for the Company and the recently announced buyside transactions. As a consequence of these projects, the Firm has developed strong relationships with both the CEO and senior management at the Company. Furthermore, Andrew Conway expects to initiate equity research.

II. THE TRANSACTION

Morgan Stanley is advising the Company in its pending acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert with a total $2.5Bn in aggregate value, including assumption of $1.6Bn in debt at the three entities. The Sunbeam common stock price has risen by $8.31 per share, from $41.75 to $50.06 (a 20% increase) since the transactions were announced. To finance these acquisitions, Sunbeam has asked Morgan Stanley to underwrite $2.0Bn in Senior Secured Credit Facilities and to sole-manage a $500MM Zero Coupon Convertible Subordinated Debenture (plus a $75MM greenshoe) to be issued pursuant to Rule 144A. These financings, combined with the $888MM Sunbeam equity being provided to the seller of Coleman (MAFCO and minority shareholders), complete the financing of the acquisition. Morgan Stanley has signed a "Highly Confidear" letter in reference to the financing of these acquisitions.

The proposed Senior Secured Credit Facilities will be structured as follows:

($ in millions)

Tranche	Amount	Tenure	LIBOR Spread at Close
Revolving Credit	$ 500	7 years	1.25%
Term Loan A	1,000	7 years	1.25%
Term Loan B	500	8 ½ years	1.75%
	$ 2,000

While Morgan Stanley seeks the Committee's approval to underwrite the entire $2.0 billion amount of the Facilities, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding (MSSF) has already approached Bank of America and First Union, two of Sunbeam's relationship lenders, and has asked each of them to underwrite 30% of the Facilities. B&A and First Union are still in the process of gaining internal credit approvals. The anticipated senior-most credit rating for the pro forma Sunbeam is expected to be [BB/Ba2]. Due to the accelerated timing of the transaction, it is MSSF's intention to first close the acquisitions at the end of March, and then syndicate its position. On a pro forma basis, Bank Debt to EBITDA is 3.97x, Total Debt to EBITDA is 5.14x and EBITDA to Cash Interest is 3.54x.

The convertible transaction was launched on Thursday, March 12, to be priced on Thursday, March 19 and closed on Tuesday, March 24 in advance of the closing of the Coleman, Signature and First Alert acquisitions. MS believes Sunbeam's rating on this security would be B+/B1, pro forma and as adjusted for the acquisition strategy and financing plan as described above, although we do not believe that the security will be rated until several weeks after pricing.

We are asking the Committee to approve underwriting 2.0Bn in Senior Secured Credit Facilities.

III. ACQUISITION STRUCTURE

On Monday, March 2, the Company announced three acquisitions in the consumer durables sector: Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert. The total aggregate value of these acquisitions is $2.5Bn. With these acquisitions, the Company is endeavoring to take the first step in the consolidation of the consumer durables sector.

Structure

The transaction will be financed with $2.0Bn of Bank Debt, $888MM in Sunbeam common equity (issued to MAFCO (Ron Perelman) as part of Coleman purchase) and $500MM in Zero Coupon Convertible debt. The Bank Debt will consist of $1.5Bn in term debt and a $500MM revolver (only about $100MM drawn down initially). The transactions will be structured as follows:

- Coleman Acquisition: The transaction, valued at $2,114MM aggregate value, will be consummated in two steps (i) acquisition of Coleman Holdings (owner of 82.4% of Coleman Operating Co. stock) from MAFCO affiliates and (ii) minority repurchase of Operating Co. public shareholders
  - The shares issued to MAFCO (14.1MM shares, $589MM) will be "locked-up" in the following manner: 25% can be sold after 3 months, a second 25% can be sold after 6 months, and the remaining 50% can be sold after 9 months. The minority shareholders will also receive the same mix of 21% cash and 79% stock. This acquisition is expected to close on March 30.
- Signature Brands Acquisition: Cash acquisition of all outstanding stock of Signature Brands by Sunbeam resulting in aggregate value of $249MM. The transaction is treated according to purchase accounting and expected to close in the first week of April 1998
- First Alert Acquisition: Cash acquisition of all outstanding stock of First Alert by Sunbeam resulting in aggregate value of $175MM. The transaction is treated according to purchase accounting and expected to close in the first week of April 1998

IV. DUE DILIGENCE

Morgan Stanley's M&A group has been working closely with Sunbeam for almost one year, and was appointed Sunbeam's sole strategic advisor in September 1997. In that regard, the M&A group has gained an extremely sound knowledge of the Company.

The Financing and Execution teams conducted their first due diligence session at Sunbeam's headquarters in Delray Beach, Florida on March 4, 1998. Representatives from MSSF, Client Services Group, Credit and Corporate Finance, met with Sunbeam's Director of Strategic Planning, Treasurer and Legal Counsel (or participated via conference call.) Also in attendance were representatives from Bank of America, First Union, and Davis Polk (Lender's Counsel).

Subsequently, the above mentioned groups have participated in due diligence conference calls with management teams from Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert.

In addition, a due diligence team visited the Coleman facilities in Wichita, Kansas on March 12. Another tentative due diligence trip is planned for Signature Brands and First Alert site visits.

Restructuring

In the fall of 1996, after several years of disappointing results, Sunbeam announced a major restructuring and growth plan under newly appointed chairman Albert Dunlap. The restructuring portion of the plan has been substantially completed with only the final "refinement" stage remaining. It included the redefinition of Sunbeam's core products, divestiture of non-core businesses, hiring a new management team, closing of warehouses and consolidation of headquarters, elimination of production facilities, and a large reduction in unprofitable products. The actions led to a reduction of approximately half the work force (about 6,000 jobs). Cost reductions are expected to result in annual savings of $225MM, most of which were already realized in 1997.

The restructuring resulted in double-digit sequential sales growth throughout 1997 with annual sales growth of 18.7% and an operating margin improvement from 0.2% in 1996 to 17.1% in 1997, and with operating margins reaching 20% by the fourth quarter of 1997. Sunbeam's share price increased from the $15 range before the appointment of Al Dunlap to $41.75 before the announcement of the recent acquisitions.

Pre-Acquisition Strategy/Goals

Prior to the acquisition announcements, Sunbeam management outlined the following goals for growth in 1998:

- 25% top line and 40% EPS growth based on new innovative products, successful roll out of air and water filtration products, higher advertising levels and increased penetration of international markets
- Expansion of global distribution by adding 30 new global products as well as international distribution/licensing agreements
- Project Full Time: Strategic initiative to improve customer service levels and therefore enhance growth (initiated 2Q 1997)
- Merger or acquisitions: Management will continue to examine strategic alternatives to strengthen the business and create shareholder value

Following the acquisition, the Company is going to pursue a strategy focused on the consolidation of the consumer durables sector. With the significant number of underperforming companies in this sector (Black & Decker, Rubbermaid, etc.), the Company believes it will have a significant opportunity to make additional future acquisitions.

VIII. SUMMARY OF PROJECTIONS AND ASSUMPTIONS

- The financial projections that appear below are based on a Morgan Stanley Financing Base Case. The MS Base Case was developed by significantly reducing revenue growth rates and synergy assumptions that were provided in an original Management Case.
- The Sales CAGR 1996-01 was reduced from almost 14% in the Management Case, to 9.4% on the MS Base Case.
- Synergies were also reduced on the MS Base Case, to $60.0MM in Year 1 (a 40% reduction from the Management Case) and to $150.0MM in the years thereafter (approximately 23% reduction from the Management Case).
- An MS Downside Case has also been presented in the Appendix. This case assumes Sales CAGR 1996-01 reduced to 4.4%, and assumes no synergies.

  - 20.9x 1998 median I/B/E/S estimate of $2.00 (versus 22.4x for comparables)
  - 15.2x 1999 median I/B/E/S estimate of $2.75 (versus 19.2x for comparables)

- The Company's current trading levels are warranted given the level of expected synergies ($150MM, pre-tax) and investors' confidence in Sunbeam's management team and proven ability to turn around companies and leverage undervalued brand names.
- Investors also view there to be other, significant acquisition opportunities for Sunbeam to capitalize on in its new role as an industry consolidator
- Investors focus on the 1999 P/E multiple (the first full year of ownership and of full cost savings) and currently price Sunbeam at a discount reflecting execution risk for the integration

XI. POTENTIAL INVESTOR CONCERNS

- Significant Dependence on Management Team, Particularly Al Dunlap

  Sunbeam's recent turnaround performance appears to be due more to the capability of its management team in cost-cutting than to the innate strength of the Company's core business or growing demand for Sunbeam's products. What if the CEO and his team do not stay to fully implement Phase III of the Company's strategic plan?

  Response: Al Dunlap and his senior management team recently signed new, three year employment contracts. These agreements are primarily stock and option based, and incorporate a vesting feature which encourages management tenure. In addition, Al Dunlap has publicly stated (on several occasions) that he is committed to Sunbeam and "this new employment agreement will put to rest any rumors that I [he] would leave the Company." Finally, the Company has already begun to search for other managers from within the industry who would add further depth and operational expertise to this team.

- Fourth Quarter Earnings

  The Company recently reported fourth quarter earnings that were $0.03 below consensus expectations, resulting in a 9% share price decline on the day of the announcement. Is this indicative of a slowdown in the double digit growth that Al Dunlap has declared is his ongoing goal?

  Response: Business has shown significant improvement from the recent restructuring very quickly. Fourth quarter sales jumped 31%, excluding divestitures, from last year's numbers. Sales growth had, in fact, accelerated all year. Fourth quarter results were broad-based with all businesses, except for blankets, showing healthy gains. Operating margins hit an unprecedented 20%. EPS were $0.47 vs. $(0.03) in 4Q97. In short, the Sunbeam management team sets extremely high goals and, even when they fall slightly short, it is still a significant achievement.

- Integration of Recent Acquisitions and Future Acquisitions

  The Company is facing a significant challenge in integrating three separate companies concurrently. In addition, given the Company's new strategy of adopting the role of industry consolidator, it is likely that the Company will make additional acquisitions in the future. How can the Company be sure this integration effort will be successful?

  Response: Sunbeam management plans to integrate these acquisitions with immediate focus on cost synergies and brand development. Their acquisition strategy essentially involves acquiring undervalued, unmarketed brand names, and leveraging this established brand equity while combining administration, marketing, finance and other corporate functions more efficiently. This is a strategy that Al Dunlap and his team have successfully utilized at a number of companies before Sunbeam, including Scott Paper. In addition, revenue synergies derived from increasing geographical breadth, greater penetration of product offerings to major customers (i.e. WalMart) and the potential for dual branding will also generate substantial benefits through the combination.

- Ability to Attain Synergies

The synergies anticipated from these combinations are sizable (over $150MM in the first full year). How attainable are these synergies? What will be the cost of achieving these synergies?

Response: Morgan Stanley and Coopers & Lybrand (special acquisition consultants to Sunbeam) have had extensive discussions with the management of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, as well as the Sunbeam management regarding the potential synergies. Following these discussions and the subsequent due diligence performed prior to the announcement of these transactions, the Sunbeam management has expressed a high degree of confidence in their ability to achieve the stated synergies of approximately $150MM by the end of 1999 due to 10 years experience. They, in fact, have stated that it is not unlikely that they could achieve even greater synergies in a shorter period of time. In addition, while Andrew Conway has modeled $150MM in synergies in 1998, he feels that there could be upside to this figure.

- Dependence on One Major Customer, WalMart

The Company presently attributes over 20% of its total revenues to WalMart. Following the acquisition, this concentration will increase to approximately 25%. Isn't this dependence on one major customer dangerous for the Company?

Response: WalMart is widely recognized as the industry leader in mass retailing. In addition, WalMart offers all of the types of products manufactured by all five of Sunbeam's primary product lines, and WalMart (like Sunbeam) is aggressively expanding overseas. These characteristics make WalMart an excellent partner for the Company. However, Sunbeam is also aggressively expanding its distribution channels with other key retailers such as KMart, Target, Costco and Home Depot, and the Company now advertises on QVC. Sunbeam also has 22 factory outlet stores which are designed to sell surplus or discontinued merchandise. Moreover, these acquisitions also seem to make Sunbeam an increasingly important supplier to all the major retailers.
