CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Hart, would you please state your full name for the record.

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Your full name for the record.

A. Michael Anthony Hart.

Q. What is your current home address?

A. 178 Fairmount Avenue, Chatham, New Jersey 07928.

Q. Who is your current employer, Mr. Hart?

A. Morgan Stanley.

Q. Are you employed by any particular Morgan Stanley entity?

A. No, Morgan Stanley & Co.

Q. Is that Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc.?

A. Yeah.

Q. What is your position?

A. I'm a managing director.

Q. Where is your office located?

A. 1585 Broadway.

Q. What are your current responsibilities at Morgan Stanley & Company, Mr. Hart?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I'm currently the head of the Loan Products Group.

Q. What is the function of the Loan Products Group?

A. Its primary responsibility is the origination and execution of senior lending and bridge loan opportunities for our clients.

Q. Do you hold any titles, other than managing director?

A. I believe I have a variety of vice president titles at some of our subsidiaries.

Q. Can you tell me what those are?

A. I believe vice president at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, and a vice president of Morgan Stanley Bank.

Q. The name of that entity is Morgan Stanley Bank?

A. To the best of my knowledge, yes. I might be missing an, Inc. or a Co. on that.

Q. To whom do you report?

A. Mitch Petrick.

Q. What is Mr. Petrick's title?

A. Title? Managing director.

Q. What are his responsibilities?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. He is -- he has reporting to him the Loan Products Group, as well as High Yield and Leveraged Finance.

Q. Is Mr. Petrick president of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. Present?

Q. President. Is he president of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Do you know who he is?

A. I don't.

Q. You're vice president of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, but you don't know who the president is?

A. No.

Q. What are your -- do you have any supervisory responsibilities, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. What are those?

A. I oversee the individuals that have primary responsibility of originating and syndicating our loan positions.

Q. How many employees do you supervise in that capacity?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Approximately, 30.

Q. You've been deposed previously, have you not, sir?

A. I have.

Q. On how many occasions?

A. Once.

Q. And that was in connection with matters relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company, correct?

A. In part. I'm aware that it was having to do with a credit committee. I don't know specifically.

Q. It dealt -- your deposition dealt, generally, with Sunbeam; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. In part, yes.

Q. And Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam was in connection with financing that Sunbeam obtained in order to acquire Coleman Company and two other entities; is that correct?

A. It was used in that transaction, yes.

Q. Other than your testimony in those

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

04-7504

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

proceedings, have you ever been interviewed by anyone regarding the Sunbeam-related transactions?

A. No, not to my knowledge.

Q. Are you familiar, sir, with the claims brought by my client, Coleman Parent Holdings, in this lawsuit?

A. Not with any degree of specificity.

Q. What is your understanding of that?

A. That there's a lawsuit filed from Coleman against Morgan Stanley.

Q. Do you understand that my client is accusing Morgan Stanley & Company of fraud?

A. Wasn't aware of that.

Q. What did you do to prepare for today's deposition, sir?

A. Met with Tom Clare and Jim Doyle, our internal counsel.

Q. Were those separate meetings?

A. It was not.

Q. How many times did you meet with Mr. Clare and Mr. Doyle to prepare for today?

A. We had -- I -- I met Tom on two occasions. And Jim on one.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Do I understand it's the case that Mr. Doyle participated in one of your two meetings with Mr. Clare?

A. Correct.

Q. When was your first meeting with Mr. Clare to prepare for today?

A. Probably six weeks ago we spent 15 minutes together.

Q. Where was that?

A. At Morgan Stanley.

Q. The entire meeting lasted 15 minutes?

A. About that. It was an introductory meeting.

Q. Was anyone else present?

A. A colleague of Tom's.

Q. Did Mr. Clare give you any documents at that time?

A. I don't recall seeing any documents at that time.

Q. Other than Mr. Clare's colleague, was anyone else present?

A. No.

Q. When was your next meeting with Mr. Clare to prepare for today?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Yesterday.

Q. Where was that meeting?

A. At the Kirkland & Ellis offices in New York.

Q. And Mr. Doyle was present?

A. He was.

Q. How long did that meeting last?

A. Four hours.

Q. Other than Mr. Doyle and Mr. Clare, was anyone else present?

A. Tom's colleague that was present at the first meeting.

Q. Do you remember the name of that person?

A. First name, I don't.

Q. Your understanding is that person was a Kirkland & Ellis lawyer?

A. That was my understanding.

Q. And did Mr. Clare give you an opportunity to review documents yesterday?

A. He did.

Q. Other than your meetings with Mr. Clare and Mr. Doyle, did you do anything else to prepare for today, sir?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. No.

Q. Did you read the deposition that you gave previously?

A. I did.

Q. Did you do that during these meetings or did you do that separately?

A. I saw part of it in the meeting yesterday and a part outside of that meeting.

Q. All right. So, you do recall doing something other than meeting with Mr. Clare to prepare for today. You spent some time on your own reviewing your prior deposition, correct?

A. Yeah.

Q. Is there anything else that you did --

A. No.

Q. -- other than your meetings with Mr. Clare and the separate review of your deposition?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. You said, sir, you're a vice president at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding; is that correct?

A. Um-hum.

Q. What is the purpose of Morgan Stanley

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL 017505

Senior Funding?
A. It's primarily a booking unit, a subsidiary in which we book our loan business.
Q. What do you mean by "a subsidiary in which we book our loan business"?
A. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding is a subsidiary that's been established for both regulatory and tax purposes to most efficiently book that type of business.
Q. And by book it, you mean what?
A. That is the lender of record, if you will, when we extend the loan, or can be.
Q. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding is the entity that enters into the loan transactions?
A. Correct.
Q. Does Morgan Stanley Senior Funding have any employees of its own?
A. No, not that I'm aware of.
Q. Does it have a board of directors?
A. Yes, I believe it does.
Q. Are you on the board of directors of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. Yes, I believe I am.
Q. Is there a chairman of the board of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. There is.
Q. Do you know who that is?
A. I don't.
Q. Are there any points in the past when you knew who the chairman of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was?
A. Not to my recollection, no.
Q. Do you know who other -- the other directors currently of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding are?
A. I'm aware that Mitch Petrick is. Walid Chammah is a director.
Q. I'm sorry?
A. Walid Chammah and George James. I'm not aware of the others.
Q. Do you think there are others?
A. I think there are.
Q. Did you ever attend a board meeting for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. I have not.
Q. How long have you been a director?
A. My recollection is about a year.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley Senior

Funding has had any board meetings during the period in which you've been a director?
A. I'm not aware that a board meeting has occurred.
Q. How long have you been a vice president of the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. 1996.
Q. Have you been a vice president continuously since 1996 at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. Yes.
Q. There was a period of time in which you were assigned to a European office of Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. London; is that correct?
A. Um-hum.
Q. Did you remain a vice president of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding during that time period?
A. That's my understanding, yes.
Q. Were your functions, while you were assigned to London, related to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's business?

A. Repeat the question, please.
Q. While you were assigned to the Morgan Stanley London office, were your activities there related to the business of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. Yes. In that it was simply the European -- European focus on that side of the business as opposed to U.S.-focused.
Q. You've never been an employee of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, I take it?
A. Not that I'm aware of.
Q. Your employment with Morgan Stanley began in 1996, is that correct, sir?
A. That's correct.
Q. Have your business activities since then always related to the business of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. Primarily, yes.
Q. What other responsibilities have you had?
A. The primary responsibilities have been the origination and execution of loans that would be booked through Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, as well as bridge loans that may be booked through Morgan Stanley & Co. But the functional responsibilities, the functional scope of the work has remained the same.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017506

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Were you involved, sir, in any aspect of the event of the -- of the events relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?

A. Was I -- could you specify that?

Q. Well, you're aware that Sunbeam acquired Coleman Company, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you involved in any aspect of the events relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman?

A. I was involved in the financing aspects -- the senior bank financing of that transaction.

Q. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding provided Sunbeam a loan in connection with its acquisition of Coleman Company, correct?

A. In part, yes.

Q. That's the senior financing you're referring to, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. In general, what were your

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

responsibilities with respect to the senior loan?

A. Primary responsibilities were the structuring and negotiation of the credit agreement and participation in some aspects of diligence -- due diligence around the senior loan.

Q. Were you also involved in efforts to syndicate the loan?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you explain to me what a loan syndication means in this context?

A. Sure. The market convention for large senior loans would be for an underwriter or a group of underwriters to initially commit to underwrite the facility and then distribute it or syndicate it to other participants.

Q. What does it mean to distribute it or syndicate it to other participants?

A. Assign it, pass on the obligation to another party through assignment.

Q. In this case, the loan was funded prior to the loan being syndicated to other participants, correct?

A. That's correct -- no. In part.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

The -- the senior loan was underwritten by Morgan Stanley, First Union and B of A. That was the underwriting group that then took the loan to market.

Q. And it was funded by those three entities before it being syndicated to others, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. In your experience, is that typical, that the loan -- a loan of this size would be funded prior to it being syndicated to other participants?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. You can answer.

A. There is no typical, Bob, to be honest with you. It's done both ways.

Q. Is one way more common than the other?

A. I'm not aware of it being more common than the other.

Q. So, it's your testimony that it is equally common for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to fully fund a loan -- a senior loan prior to syndication as it is for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to underwrite the loan, syndicate it, and then have the syndicated group fund the loan?

A. That's incorrect. What a more accurate representation is, is that it is my testimony that we distribute it or brought in partners in the form of B of A and First Union prior to the subsequent syndication or second round syndication of that loan.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley Senior Funding agree to underwrite the entire senior loan facility to Sunbeam?

A. We did not.

Q. The Morgan Stanley commitment was for 40 percent of the senior loan, correct, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan?

A. That's my recollection, yes.

Q. And Morgan Stanley Senior Funding funded the 40 percent of the senior loan prior to any additional syndication occurring, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And your testimony is that that's a common occurrence?

A. My testimony is that it is not unusual for us to do that.

Q. Is it your testimony that it is

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

equally common for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to fund a portion of the -- the entire portion of the loan that it has agreed to underwrite in advance to syndication activities?

A. I don't know, at this point, exactly how that would break down.

Q. Who is Bram Smith, sir?

A. Bram Smith is -- do you want what he -- what capacity?

Q. Do you know who he is?

A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. What was his -- did he have involvement in the underwriting activities relating to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. And what were his responsibilities?

A. I reported to Bram. And he would be characterized as the lead person in his role as managing director within Leveraged Finance, responsible for the loan.

Q. The events we've been talking occurred back in 1998. Do you recall that, sir, the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I recall that that's, generally, the time period in which this transpired, yes.

Q. Do you know who Mr. Smith reported to at that time in 1998?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Do you know what his position was at the time?

A. Managing director.

Q. Do you recall that he was president of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding at the time?

A. I don't know if that was the case.

Q. Now, Bram Smith has since been fired by Morgan Stanley. Are you aware of that?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I would not characterize -- I don't know how -- firing is not a term that I'm familiar with, his termination.

Q. Are you aware that Bram Smith's employment was involuntarily terminated by Morgan Stanley?

A. I don't know any of the circumstances around Bram's termination, if what you're saying was involuntarily.

Q. Do you know -- Mr. Smith no longer

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

works at Morgan Stanley & Company, correct?

A. I do know that.

Q. Are you aware that his departure from Morgan Stanley was not voluntary?

A. I'm not aware of any of the aspects of Bram's departure from Morgan Stanley.

Q. Were you involved in any discussions relating to whether Mr. Smith should be asked to leave Morgan Stanley?

A. I was involved in no discussions around Bram Smith's termination from Morgan Stanley.

Q. Is there anything about Mr. Smith's performance at Morgan Stanley that you're aware of, sir, that would have been a basis for terminating his employment involuntarily?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.

You can answer.

A. I'm not aware of any factors that would fit that question, request.

Q. Mr. Hart, have you -- are you familiar with the complaint that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding filed against my clients?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I'm not familiar with that.

Q. Have you ever read it?

A. I have not read it.

MR. CLARE: Let's mark, as CPH Exhibit No. 197, a copy of the complaint filed in the Circuit Court of the 15th Judicial District in and for Palm Beach County, Florida, bearing the caption Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc., plaintiff, versus MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc., and Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.

(Plaintiff's Exhibit 197, Complaint, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Mr. Hart, were you involved in any of the discussions relating to whether to file -- for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to file a lawsuit against my clients, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings and Coleman Parent Holdings?

MR. CLARE: Object.

Mike, that's a yes or no question that he's asking you.

A. No.

Q. The lawsuit was filed on May 12, 2003, sir. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding intended to file a lawsuit against MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman Parent Holdings at any time prior to May 12, 2003 when the suit was filed?

A. I was not.

Q. Were you asked to review or comment on any aspect of the complaint before it was filed?

MR. CLARE: Again, that's a yes or no question.

A. No.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you move your hand away from your face, sir. We're being videotaped here.

THE WITNESS: Certainly.

Q. Prior to the filing of CPH Exhibit 197 against my client, sir, did you have any discussions with anyone within any of the Morgan Stanley entities, including Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, concerning whether to file suit against my clients?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding made the decision to file suit against my clients?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I do not.

Q. Have you ever spoken to Mr. Petrick relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's lawsuit against my clients?

A. I have not.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Petrick agreed with the filing of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc.'s lawsuit against my clients?

MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation. Calls for speculation.

You can answer.

A. No.

Q. Do you have any understanding, sir, as you sit here, of the nature of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's claims as set forth in the complaint filed against MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman Parent Holdings?

A. No, I'm not familiar with the complaint.

Q. You have no, even general, understanding of the nature of the allegations made in the complaint?

A. I have not seen the complaint in any regard.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. That's not quite my question.

Did you have any general understanding of the nature of the claims or allegations contained in Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's lawsuit against my clients, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings and Coleman Parent Holdings?

A. No.

Q. Let me direct your attention, sir, to paragraph 21 of Exhibit 197. Do you see it there at the bottom of page 7?

A. I do.

Q. Take a moment and read that to yourself.

(Witness reading document.)

Q. Have you had an opportunity to read paragraph 21?

A. I have.

Q. The reference to defendants here, sir, is a reference to MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. and Coleman Parent Holdings, Inc., as you'll see from the first page of the complaint. Do you understand that?

A. Um-hum.

Q. You have to answer audibly.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I'm sorry. Yes.

Q. Do you see that paragraph 21 states that, "Defendants made a series of false statements to Sunbeam and its financial team (including MS & Co.) regarding the post-closing synergies that Sunbeam would achieve annually if it proceeded with the proposed acquisition of Coleman."

Do you see that statement?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any information, sir, to support that allegation?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. Could you repeat that question.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read it back, please.

(Record read.)

A. The allegation being which sentence?

Q. Let me start over. I want to make sure you understand.

A. Thanks.

Q. Do you see -- the reference that we've established to Defendants in paragraph 21 is to my clients, Coleman Parent Holdings and MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings. Do you understand that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.

Q. Paragraph 21 alleges that Coleman Parent Holdings and MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, "made a series of false statements to Sunbeam and its financial team (including MS & Co.) regarding the post-closing synergies that Sunbeam would achieve annually if it proceeded with the proposed acquisition of Coleman."

Do you see that statement?

A. Um-hum.

Q. My question to you, sir is: Do you have any information, as you sit here today, to support that allegation?

A. I'm not in possession of that information.

Q. Do you have any knowledge, sir, concerning who supposedly or allegedly provided or made the false statements referred to in that statement?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

Q. Let me ask it, hopefully, in a more articulate question.

Do you have any understanding, sir, concerning who allegedly made the series of false statements to Sunbeam and its financial team referred to in the sentence in paragraph 21 that we've been addressing?

A. The -- the synergies were -- the synergy numbers were given to Morgan Stanley from, broadly speaking, Sunbeam management, which included various members of Sunbeam management and the acquisitions which were Coleman -- which included Coleman.

Q. Well, paragraph 21, sir, states that the "Defendants made a series of false statements to Sunbeam and its financial team, (including MS & Co.)"

Do you understand MS & Co. to refer to Morgan Stanley & Company?

A. Um-hum.

Q. You have to answer audibly.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any knowledge, sir, concerning who allegedly made false statements to Morgan Stanley & Company from either MacAndrews &

Forbes or Coleman Parent Holdings regarding potential synergies that could be achieved by Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman?

A. The people that represented, through my involvement in diligence, the synergy numbers including Al Dunlap, Kersh and Jerry Levin.

Q. Mr. Kersh and Mr. Dunlap were executives at Sunbeam, correct?

A. That's my understanding.

Q. And Mr. Levin was the chief executive officer at Coleman Company, correct?

A. That's my understanding.

Q. None of those individuals were employed by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings or Coleman Parent Holdings, were they, sir?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation. No foundation.

A. I'm -- I don't know the answer to that.

Q. You don't have any knowledge that they were, do you?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know Jerry Levin, sir?

A. I have met him on occasion.

Q. Do you know what his position with Coleman Company was in 1998?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you know what his position is today?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Do you understand that he is the chief executive officer of American Household Products?

A. I understood that he was working for American Household. I didn't know in what capacity.

Q. Do you understand he's a senior executive at American Household?

A. I didn't know -- I don't know specifically what role he plays.

Q. Are you familiar with the history of American Household, sir?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

Q. Let me ask a different question, a little bit more direct.

Do you understand American Household to be the successor to Sunbeam?

A. I'm aware of that, yes.

Q. Sunbeam went into bankruptcy at some point; is that correct, sir?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. And when it emerged from bankruptcy, it renamed itself American Household; is that correct?
A. I don't know. I'm not familiar with the sequence of emergence and renaming.
Q. But it's your understanding that American Household is a successor to Sunbeam Company?
A. That's my general understanding, yes.
Q. Do you know who owns American Household Products today?
A. I do not.
Q. Do you know that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding has a significant equity interest in American Household?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I understand that we have a position.
Q. Do you understand who the other owners of American Household are?
A. I do not.
Q. You don't -- it's not -- you're not aware of the fact that the other senior lenders,

Bank of America and First Union, are the other primary equity holders in American Household?
A. I'm not.
Q. Are you aware that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding owns, approximately, 40 percent of American Household?
A. I'm not.
Q. Do you have any general understanding of the percentage ownership interest that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding has currently in American Household?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Hart, do you personally believe that Jerry Levin intentionally lied to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. I do not have an opinion on that.
Q. Do you have any knowledge -- any factual knowledge that would support an allegation that Jerry Levin intentionally lied to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. I personally am not aware of that.
Q. Do you believe that Jerry Levin defrauded Sunbeam in connection with its acquisition of Coleman Company?

A. I don't have an opinion on that.
Q. Do you have any information to support such an allegation?
A. I personally don't have any information, no.
Q. Do you believe that Jerry Levin intentionally lied to Morgan Stanley representatives in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. I have no opinion on that.
Q. Do you have any information to support that allegation?
A. I do not personally.
Q. Do you believe that Jerry Levin lied to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company or in connection with Morgan Stanley's -- Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?
A. I don't have an opinion on that.
Q. Do you have any information to support such an allegation?
A. I do not personally.

Q. Have you ever expressed the view to anyone that you have reason to believe that Jerry Levin lied to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with its loan to Sunbeam?
A. Have I ever -- could you -- Bob, could you help me out. Could you repeat the front end of that question, please.
Q. Yes. Mr. Hart, have you ever expressed the view to anyone that Jerry Levin lied to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with either Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall having discussions of that nature.
Q. You don't recall ever saying that to anyone, do you?
A. I do not recall having that -- that discussion, no.
Q. Has anyone at Morgan Stanley -- excuse me -- has anyone at Morgan Stanley & Company ever expressed the view to you that they believed that Jerry Levin defrauded Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with its loan to Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't recall if anyone ever had that discussion with me or made that statement to me.

Q. Has anyone at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding ever expressed the view to you that they believed that Jerry Levin lied to Sunbeam or to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with its loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall whether that statement was ever made to me or not.

Q. You have no recollection, as you sit here today, of anyone at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding ever saying to you that they believed that Jerry Levin lied in connection with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. As I sit here today, I don't have that recollection.

Q. Has anyone at Bank of America -- Bank of America was one of the three senior lenders, correct, to Sunbeam?

A. That's correct.

Q. Has anyone at Bank of America ever expressed the view to you that they have reason to believe that Jerry Levin lied in connection with any aspect of the events leading up to the senior loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall discussion with B of A to that effect, no.

Q. You don't recall anyone at Bank of America ever indicating to you that they believed that Jerry Levin had lied in connection with the senior fund -- the senior financing?

A. I don't recall that discussion occurring.

Q. First Union Bank was one of the other three senior lenders, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. First Union is now named Wachovia; is that correct?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. Has anyone at First Union or Wachovia ever expressed the view to you that they believed that Jerry Levin lied in connection with any aspect of the discussions leading up to the senior loan facility?

A. I don't recall that discussion, no.

Q. Sir, prior to -- do you recall that the senior financing loan closed at the end of March 1998?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Yes, yes.

Q. Prior to the loan closing, sir, did you have any personal knowledge concerning statements made by Coleman Company, Coleman Parent Holdings or MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings concerning synergies that Sunbeam might achieve if it acquired Coleman Company?

A. What were the parties you were --

MR. CLARE: Read the question back, please.

(Record read.)

A. My only recollection was participation in a diligence call where Jerry Levin was present and there was a discussion of synergies.

Q. When was that call?

A. At some period leading up to the closing of the loan.

Q. This is a single telephone call?

A. My recollection is that was a one -- one of a series of diligence calls, but, yes, his participation was one on that call.

Q. Do you recall who else, if anyone, was on the phone?

A. Al Dunlap was on the phone.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Anyone else?

A. Not to my knowledge, not to my recollection.

Q. It's your recollection there was a call with just you?

A. No. There were other members of the diligence team. I don't recall exactly who that would have been.

Q. You recall -- your recollection is that there were other representatives of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding on the telephone call?

A. The scope of the diligence team would have expanded beyond Morgan Stanley Senior Funding. So, there would have been other members of the firm, be it Corporate Finance, M&A or, potentially, CSG, the Diligence Execution Group.

Q. Do you remember the identity of any of the other individuals who participated in the call with Mr. Levin and Mr. Dunlap to which you've referred?

A. Not specifically.

Q. You say "not specifically" --

A. I couldn't give you, from the team list, who would or wouldn't have been on that particular call.

Q. Do you remember how many people were on the call other than, you, Mr. Levin, Mr. Dunlap?
A. Not a specific number.
Q. Where were you at?
A. I was at Morgan Stanley -- 1585 Broadway.
Q. Do you know where Mr. Dunlap was?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you know if he was in his office in Florida?
A. I do not know the answer to that.
Q. Do you know where Mr. Levin was?
A. I do not know where Mr. Levin was.
Q. How long did the call last?
A. Don't recall.
Q. Did you make any notes of the call?
A. Don't recall.
Q. Would it be your practice in circumstances like this to take notes?
A. It would vary. I may have taken notes, I may not have. It would depend on the circumstances.

Q. Do you know whether notes taken by you of this telephone call with Mr. Levin and Mr. Dunlap exist today?
A. I do not know whether they exist today or not.
Q. Have you ever seen notes by any other person taken of the discussion that took place during this telephone call with Mr. Levin and Mr. Dunlap?
A. I don't recall having seen those notes.
Q. Have you ever seen any summary or memo referring to any aspect of the telephone conversation with Mr. Levin and Mr. Dunlap to which you've referred?
A. I don't recall if I've seen a summary of that nature.
Q. Or any reference to it in any written document?
A. I don't recall if I've seen that reference.
Q. I'm sorry. Did I ask you how long the call lasted?
A. You did.

Q. Did you tell me? I forgot.
A. I'm not sure how long it lasted. I don't recall how long it lasted.
Q. And do you recall whether it lasted more than 30 minutes?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall whether it lasted half a day?
A. No.
Q. It could have possibly been a half day long call?
A. Could possibly have lasted that long.
Q. Tell me everything you can recall about that conference call.
A. My participation in it was a general discussion on the synergy numbers. And they were going through and talking about the achievability of them. That was the -- that was my recollection of my involvement for the period that I was on the call.
Q. Did you stay on the phone for the entire telephone call?
A. I don't know if I was on for the entire duration or not.

Q. Is there anything else you recall about the call?
A. Not really.
Q. Is there anything you recall being discussed during of the course of the telephone call?
A. Not while I was involved, no.
Q. So, your testimony is that the only thing you recall being discussed during that telephone call was a general discussion of the achievability of synergy numbers?
A. Correct.
Q. Is it your testimony that you're the person who raised that topic?
A. It is not my testimony.
Q. Do you have a recollection one way or the other whether you're the person who raised that topic?
A. I don't have a recollection one way or the other.
Q. Who do you recall speaking on this subject?
A. My recollection is that Al Dunlap and Jerry Levin spoke on the topic.

Q. What do you recall Mr. Dunlap saying?
A. My take-away from the call was a support for the synergy number that was put forth.
Q. Do you recall what that synergy number was at that point?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Do you recall what its elements were?
A. No. There were many.
Q. I want to make sure I was clear with respect to that question. By "elements," I meant what actions would be taken that would generate synergies?
A. I understood the question. Yes. And there were many.
Q. Do you remember --
A. I don't recall those.
Q. You don't remember what they were?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember any of the elements?
A. No, not sitting here today.
Q. Do you have any general recollection of what the order of magnitude was for either all of the elements or any of them?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. A general recollection was that we were looking at a variety of ranges of synergies. And I, generally, recall synergies from 100 to $150 million.
Q. Is it your testimony that that's the range that was discussed during this telephone call?
A. My testimony is that's my recollection -- that's my general recollection. I -- my clear recollection is that we were dealing in a variety of ranges with respect to synergies. That's my best guess as to what that range was.
Q. During this particular telephone call?
A. As I sit here today.
Q. Let me make sure I'm clear, sir. You're -- you don't have a recollection, as you sit here today, of what the -- let me start over.
As you sit here today, sir, is it the case that you cannot recall what range of synergy numbers were discussed during this call with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Levin?
A. My testimony would be that my general recollection, as I sit here today, is the range of synergies that we discussed were 100 to 150 million.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. During this call?
A. During that call.
Q. Do you know who -- whether Sunbeam or Coleman or some third party developed the elements that went into the synergy ranges that were being discussed during this conference call with Mr. Levin and Mr. Dunlap?
A. It was my understanding that it was Sunbeam management, broadly defined.
Q. When you say "Sunbeam management, broadly defined," sir, what do you mean by that?
A. I would have included Sunbeam management, as well as the target companies that they were looking to acquire.
Q. So, your reference to Sunbeam management included Coleman management?
A. Yes.
Q. Why do you include Coleman management in your reference to Sunbeam management? Coleman Company had not been acquired by Sunbeam; is that correct?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. That's correct. The very nature of synergies require you to have an understanding of what can be accomplished upon integration.
The -- a working assumption from my vantage point was that they had discussed with the appropriate parties the achievability of those synergies.
Q. That was your assumption during the course of the telephone call?
A. Yes.
Q. Did anyone --
A. Not so much during the telephone call. That would have been my assumption on a management team developing synergies, general practice.
Q. Let me ask a more specific question, sir.
As you sit here today, do you have any recollection of being told who developed the synergy elements that were the basis of the discussion that took place during your conference call with Mr. Levin and Mr. Dunlap?
A. Sitting here today, I do not have a specific recollection.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Do you have a general recollection of that?

A. Sunbeam management, broadly defined.

Q. My question is whether you recall being told, not what your assumption was.

But do you recall someone, during the course of the telephone call or at some other point, advising you who prepared, who developed the elements that were the basis of the discussions concerning synergies that you had with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Levin?

A. I don't recall a specific conversation where they told us that.

Q. Do you recall -- do you recall anything else that Mr. Dunlap said during the course of the telephone call?

A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap make any reference to Coopers & Lybrand's involvement in the development of a synergies analysis or structuring project?

A. I don't recall if he ever made reference to them.

Q. Were you aware that Coopers & Lybrand

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

had been engaged by Sunbeam to develop an estimate of potential synergies relating to the acquisition of Coleman Company?

A. I was aware of that report. I saw the report.

Q. What do you recall Mr. Levin saying?

A. Don't have specific recollection of the details of the call.

Q. As you sit here today, sir, can you remember any words that Mr. Levin used during the telephone call?

A. Not specific words.

Q. As you sit here today, sir, do you have any recollection of Mr. Levin making any statements relating to the achievability of synergies that Sunbeam estimated it would achieve upon the acquisition of Coleman Company?

A. Do I have a specific recollection of what he said?

Q. We'll start there.

A. I do not have a specific recollection, no.

Q. Do you have any recollection of any sort?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. The nature of the call with respect to synergies was general support for the achievability of the synergies.

Q. Do you recall what Mr. -- do you recall that Mr. Levin offered general support for the achievability of synergies in this telephone call?

A. That was my recollection.

Q. That is your recollection, as you sit here today?

A. That is my recollection.

Q. Do you recall how he expressed that?

A. I do not recall how he expressed that.

Q. Prior to the loan closing, sir, did you have an understanding that Mr. Levin would be replaced as the chief executive officer of Coleman Company upon its acquisition by Sunbeam?

A. I did not.

Q. You didn't -- is it your testimony, sir, you didn't know one way or the other whether Mr. Levin would stay involved in the management of Coleman?

A. If I could clarify that last answer. I was not aware -- I don't recall whether I was aware of that fact or not.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. You know that Mr. Levin was relieved of his responsibilities as chief executive officer of Coleman upon its acquisition by Coleman -- by Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall whether I was aware of that or not.

Q. Do you agree, generally, sir, that what synergies can potentially be achieved is entirely dependent upon the plan actually implemented by company management?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

You can answer.

A. I don't have an opinion based on the way you worded it, no.

Q. Let me try to rephrase the question, sir.

Do you agree that management's plans, with respect to the manner in which Coleman Company and Sunbeam were combined, would determine what synergies might potentially be achieved?

A. How I would characterize it is that management's actions would be an element as to the achievability of a synergy number.

Q. Do you remember anything else about this conference call with Mr. Levin and Mr. Dunlap, other than what you've already testified to?

A. No.

Q. Other than the single conversation which Mr. Levin was a participant, do you have any knowledge concerning any statements made by Coleman Parent or MacAndrews & Forbes concerning potential synergies?

A. I don't recall any other statements made by those parties.

Q. Let me ask a slightly different question, sir.

You had this one conversation with Mr. Levin in which the subject of synergies came up, correct, this conversation with Mr. Levin and Mr. Dunlap?

A. That we just referred to, yes.

Q. Did you have any other conversations with Mr. Levin or anyone else from Coleman Company relating to potential synergies?

A. I'm not aware of myself having any

Did you have any conversations of any sort, sir, with anyone you understood to be representing Coleman Parent Holdings relating to potential synergies?

A. I don't recall having those conversations.

Q. Do you remember any conversations, as you sit here today, sir, with anyone who you understood to be representing MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings concerning potential synergies?

A. I don't recall if I had a conversation about that.

Q. You don't recall any, as you sit here today, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. You recommended that Morgan Stanley

A. I wouldn't characterize -- as a vice president, I performed the work on the execution of that loan.

Q. Did you offer any opinion to decision makers at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding concerning whether to participate in the senior loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall providing my opinion to any of them.

Q. Did you have one?

A. As I sit here today, I don't recall that opinion.

Q. I'm not sure what your answer means, sir.

Do you recall, as you sit here today, whether you had an opinion one way or the other concerning whether Morgan Stanley Senior Funding should participate in the senior loan to Sunbeam?

A. My recollection is that I believed we should proceed with the senior loan based upon the work that had been done.

Q. Did you ever offer that opinion, that view to Mr. Smith?

A. I don't recall if I offered that to Bram or not.

Q. Do you recall offering that view to anyone else at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. I don't recall if I offered that opinion or not.

Q. Do you recall offering that view to anyone else at Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc.?

A. I don't recall offering that opinion.

Q. In coming to the opinion that you held, sir, did you rely on any statements made by my clients, Coleman Parent Holdings or MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, concerning potential synergies?

A. I don't recall the specifics as to whether or not that included conversations with those parties.

Q. You don't remember having any conversations with anyone representing Coleman Parent Holdings or MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings concerning potential synergies, as you sit here today, do you?

A. I don't recall whether or not I had conversations with those parties.

Q. And so, as you sit here today, you don't recall relying on any statements made by Coleman Parent Holdings or MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings relating to potential synergies in coming to your view that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding should proceed with the senior loan to Sunbeam?
A. I recall relying on -- as I characterize Sunbeam management, broadly defined, as the providers -- the providers and the primary source of achievability of the synergy numbers.
Q. And you've already testified concerning one conversation with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Levin where that came up, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you've testified to everything you can recall relating to Mr. Levin's participation in that telephone call, correct?
A. I have.
Q. Let me direct your attention to paragraph 32 of the complaint, sir. For the moment read paragraph 32 to yourself.
(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.
Q. Among other things, paragraph 32 alleges that, "Defendants" -- let me start over.
Do you see the allegation in paragraph 32, sir, first sentence that states that "defendants admit that" --
A. Apologies, Bob. When you directed me, I read 33. Could I take a moment to read 32.
Q. Take a moment to paragraph 32. That's what I'm focusing on.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay.
Q. Do you see the paragraph 32 refers to a $2.2 billion purchase price for Coleman Company?
A. I see that, yes.
Q. Do you see that paragraph 32 alleges that the "Defendants have admitted that the $2.2 billion purchase price for Coleman Company was fraudulently inflated"?
A. I see the words there.
Q. Do you have any knowledge, sir, or information to support that allegation, that the defendants, my clients, MacAndrews & Forbes

Holdings, Inc. and Coleman Parent Holdings, Inc. have admitted that the $2.2 billion purchase price referenced in paragraph 32 was, in some manner, fraudulently inflated?
A. I wasn't party to either the creation -- the creation of this document, nor did I have any conversations to that effect. So, I'm in no position to render an opinion.
Q. You don't have any knowledge, sir, information to support that allegation, do you?
A. I do not have -- I don't recall having any knowledge. I don't have any knowledge today.
Q. To support that allegation?
A. Yes.
Q. Just so we've got one clear, stand-alone question and answer, sir: You don't have any knowledge, as you sit here today, that my clients, at any point, have admitted that the purchase price paid by Sunbeam for Coleman Company was, in any way, fraudulently inflated?
A. I'm not aware that your defendant has admitted that.
Q. Do you have any information, sir, to support the allegation that the price paid by Sunbeam for Coleman Company was, in any way, fraudulently inflated?

A. I do not have information.
Q. You don't have any information to support that allegation?
A. To support that allegation.
Q. Let me direct your attention, sir, to paragraph 47. Would you take a moment to read paragraph 47 of the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding complaint to yourself.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay.
Q. The first sentence in paragraph 47 states, "Repeatedly and on several different occasions, Defendants provided Sunbeam and its financial team with false information regarding the synergies that Sunbeam would achieve from its acquisition of Coleman."
Do you see that statement, sir?
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you have any information, as you sit here today, sir, to support the allegation that my clients provided Sunbeam and its financial team with false information regarding the synergies that Sunbeam would achieve from its acquisition of Coleman?

A. The information that I have is that we received synergy numbers from Sunbeam management, as I broadly defined it, in the amount of numbers that were not achieved.

Q. Do you have any information, sir, to support the allegation that my clients provided Sunbeam and its financial team with false information regarding the synergies that Sunbeam would achieve?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

A. What I -- what I know is that we received synergy numbers from Sunbeam management, broadly defined, that were not achieved.

Q. Do you have any information to support the allegation that the information provided was false at the time it was provided?

A. What I know is that the information that was provided turned out to be false.

Q. Well, the synergy numbers weren't achieved according to you; is that correct, sir? That's your understanding?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. That's my understanding.

Q. The event -- let me ask that foundational question.

Do you have any knowledge, as you sit here today, sir, concerning what synergies were achieved as a result of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman?

A. Not specifically.

Q. Are you able to testify concerning what synergies were achieved or not achieved?

A. I am not.

Q. Do you know why the synergies -- is it your understanding that certain synergies were not achieved that had been expected prior to the acquisition of Coleman?

A. I'm not aware as to what synergies were or were not achieved post-acquisition.

Q. Maybe I misunderstood you. I thought you were stating that it's your understanding that the synergies that had been expected upon the acquisition of Coleman were not, in fact, achieved?

A. Right. As a general matter, yes, that was -- they were not achieved at the level that were projected.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. How do you know that?

A. Just based on the performance, as I was involved in the monitoring of the loan for up to, I guess, a year or so after it closed.

Q. Do you know why they weren't achieved?

A. I do not. I don't recall why they were not -- why they were achieved -- why they were not achieved.

Q. Do you have any information, sir, as you sit here today, to support the allegation that my clients knowingly provided Sunbeam and its financial team with false information regarding synergies that Sunbeam would achieve from its acquisition of Coleman?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

A. What I do know is that the synergy numbers that were provided by Sunbeam and its management team, broadly defined, were not achieved.

Q. Do you have any information to support the allegation that my clients knew that at the time they made statements to Sunbeam and its financial team relating to the potential synergies?

A. I don't -- I'm not party to any information that, at that time, they knew it was false.

Q. The second sentence in paragraph 47 states, "Defendants also omitted material facts about Coleman's business required to make the synergy information they provided to Sunbeam and its financial team not misleading."

Do you see that statement, sir?

A. Um-hum.

Q. You have to answer audibly.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any understanding or knowledge concerning -- strike that.

Do you have any knowledge, sir, that -- do you have information that supports that allegation?

A. I don't have that knowledge personally.

Q. Has anyone ever expressed to you the view that my clients, Morgan Stanley -- excuse me -- my clients, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

and Coleman Parent Holdings, omitted material facts about Coleman's business required to make synergy information they provided to Sunbeam and its financial team not misleading?

A. I don't recall having that conversation with anyone.

Q. As you sit here, sir, do you have any understanding of what the omitted material -- material facts refer to in this sentence pertains to?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Lack of foundation.

You can answer.

A. I don't have -- I don't have knowledge of what they're referring to here. As I said, I wasn't party to the development of this document.

Q. Let me direct your attention to paragraph 44.

A. 44?

Q. 44. It's a couple of paragraphs earlier in the document. Starts at the bottom of page 15. I'd like you to read paragraph 44 of the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding complaint to yourself, sir.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the last sentence. It states, "Thus, MSSF has suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages as a result of Defendants' fraudulent scheme."

Do you see that statement, sir?

A. I do.

Q. MSSF is a reference to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. That's correct.

Q. Let me take this in two pieces.

There's a reference to a fraudulent scheme by the defendants, my clients, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings and Coleman Parent Holdings, sir.

Do you have any knowledge to support the allegation that my clients engaged in a fraudulent scheme relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?

A. I'm not party to the -- the -- I'm not aware of the elements that were -- that were contemplated in arriving at this statement.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. My question is different. My question is: Do you have any knowledge, as you sit here today, of anything supporting the allegation that my clients, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings and Coleman Parent Holdings, engaged in a fraudulent scheme relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for a legal conclusion.

A. I have no opinion.

Q. The question is not whether you have an opinion. It's whether you have any information supporting the allegations that my clients engaged in a fraudulent scheme relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman.

A. What do you mean by "information"?

Q. Do you have any knowledge of facts supporting the allegation that my clients engaged in a fraudulent scheme relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?

A. As I sit here today, I'm not aware of -- I do not have information on that with respect to that.

Q. Let me ask you about the other aspect of this allegation.

This sentence alleges that "MSSF has suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages." Do you see that statement?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any information concerning or supporting that allegation?

A. I have a general understanding of the markdowns that occurred in the position.

Q. What's your understanding?

A. That it was, in fact, hundreds of millions of dollars.

Q. What do you mean by "markdowns"?

A. When you book an asset, as you determine it to be some -- worth something less than what you originally planned, you would mark it down and take a loss.

That is the practice that we would have done with that loan.

Q. Do you know when Morgan Stanley Senior Funding first marked down the value of its loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if it occurred in 1998?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know what the total amount of markdown has been with respect to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan to Sunbeam?
A. I do not know the exact number.
Q. Do you know it approximately?
A. Approximately -- no, I don't have an exact -- I don't have an exact number or an approximate number.
Q. Do you know what value Morgan Stanley Senior Funding attributes to its equity interest in Sunbeam's successor, American Household Products?
A. I do not.
Q. Have you been involved in any discussions relating to possible sale of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's interest in American Household Products?
A. I've not been involved in any discussions relating to that.
Q. Are you aware of any consideration that either is or has been given to the possible sale of some or all of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's interest in American Household

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Products?
A. I have no involvement in monitoring the position at this point.
Q. That's not quite my question. My question is: Do you have any knowledge of any consideration being given to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding selling all or some part of its ownership interest in American Household Products?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Mr. Hart, as you sit here today, have you come to the view that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding has been defrauded in connection with its loans to Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Calls for a legal conclusion.
A. What I believe is that we were not dealt with truthfully by management.
Q. When did you come to that conclusion?
A. It's unclear to me as to when I came to that conclusion. I don't recall the exact point in time.
Q. Who do you believe did not deal truthfully with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with its senior loan to Sunbeam?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I would characterize the group as Sunbeam management.
Q. Do you include Coleman management within that definition of Sunbeam management?
A. As a -- as a broad matter, yes, during the diligence process.
Q. What do you believe -- who do you believe at Coleman Company -- strike that.
Who at Coleman Company do you believe did not give truthful information to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. I'm not -- I did not have specific conversations, with the exception of the conversation that we discussed on the conference call with Jerry Levin, with any individuals from Coleman.
Q. I think you previously testified you have no basis for saying that Mr. Levin ever lied to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, correct, sir?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the prior testimony.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Well, let me ask the question just to make sure it doesn't.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Do you have any basis, as you sit here today, sir, to say that Jerry Levin lied to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding with respect to any aspect of the acquisition of -- Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. I'm in no position to make that. I had one conversation with Jerry Levin.
Q. So, you're not in a position, as you sit here today, sir, to say that you have come to the conclusion that Jerry Levin lied to you during that telephone call; is that correct?
A. I don't recall with an -- with sufficient specificity as to the details of that call to know whether Jerry Levin lied.
Q. My question is: As you sit here today, sir, you're not in a position to say that Jerry Levin lied to you in connection with that single telephone call you had with him?
A. And what I'm saying is that I don't recall the facts and circumstances around it as to remember whether or not he lied to me.
Q. Well, let me make sure I'm clear, sir.
As you sit here today, are you saying Jerry Levin lied to you during that telephone call, yes or no?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered several times now.

A. What I said is that I don't remember with enough specificity about the details of the call to remember whether Jerry Levin lied or not.

Q. So, as you sit here today, you cannot say that Jerry Levin lied to you in that telephone call, correct?

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

A. I don't recall the specifics of it to determine whether or not he lied.

Q. And my question to you, sir -- I think I'm entitled to a direct answer to this question: As you sit here today, you're not in a position to say that Jerry Levin lied to you during that telephone call, correct?

MO MR. CLARE: Objection. And I move to strike the preamble to the question. And asked and answered.

A. The answer that I would give is the consistent one. I'm not in a position to remember -- I do not recall the details of the conversation to remember whether Jerry Levin lied or not.

Q. Well, as you sit here today, sir, do you believe that Jerry Levin has lied to you with respect to any aspect of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. And when you ask me if I believe, I tell you that I don't recall whether or not he did or not, so I don't believe one way or the other.

Q. So, you've not come to the conclusion, as you sit here today, sir, that Jerry Levin lied to you in connection with any aspect of your discussions with him relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall whether Jerry Levin ever lied to me or not.

Q. Have you ever told anyone at Morgan Stanley & Company, sir, or anyone else, that you believe that Jerry Levin may have lied to you at some point in connection with your discussions with him relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall ever having that discussion.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Have you ever brought that to the attention of Mr. Petrick?

A. I don't recall whether I've ever had that discussion with Mitch.

Q. You don't have any recollection saying that to Mr. Petrick, correct, sir?

A. I don't recall whether I ever made that -- had that discussion with him.

Q. Have you ever brought it to the attention of any members of the board of directors of American Household Products that you believe that Jerry Levin may have lied to you in connection with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. I have not had any discussion with members of the board of American Household.

Q. Did you ever tell Bram Smith that Jerry Levin lied to you in connection with your discussions with him relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall if I ever had that conversation with Bram.

MR. CLARE: Bob, we've been going for about an hour and a half. If you get to transition point, take a short break. When you get to a stopping point.

MR. MARKOWSKI: We can take a break now.

MR. CLARE: Okay.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Time is 11:14. This completes tape number one.

(Recess taken.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:19. This begins tape number two of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Michael Hart.

Q. Mr. Hart, do you recall that, when you testified previously relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam, that you testified that you had not come to the view that Morgan Stanley had been defrauded in its connection with its loan to Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question. The document speaks for itself.

A. I don't -- I don't recall the content of that, or the, you know, answer.

Q. I'll show you a copy of your testimony.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Okay.

Q. Mr. Smith, let me show you what we'll mark for identification as CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 198. It's a transcript. The caption of the matter is: In the matter of: In re: Sunbeam Corporation. And it reflects that it's the June 12, 2001 deposition of Michael Hart.

MR. CLARE: Bob, I think you misspoke. It's Mr. Hart here with you, not Mr. Smith.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Did I say Smith?

MR. CLARE: Yes.

MR. MARKOWSKI: At the beginning of the question, did I say Mr. Smith?

MR. CLARE: Yes.

Q. I'm sorry, Mr. Hart. I didn't mean to refer to you as Mr. Smith. He and I spent some time in the same room together not too long ago.

(CPH Exhibit 198, Deposition transcript of Michael Hart taken on 6/12/01, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Mr. Hart, do you recognize this as the transcript of your June 12, 2001 deposition?

A. Yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Let me direct your attention to page 109. Page 109 of the transcript.

A. Got it.

Q. And let me direct your attention to the question that begins on line 8.

A. Yes.

Q. Would you read through line 12.

A. Yes.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection that, when you were deposed in June of 2001, you testified that you had not come to the view that Morgan Stanley had been defrauded in connection with its loans to Sunbeam?

A. Yeah, it refreshes my recollection.

Q. And that was your view in June of 2001, correct?

A. I assume it was.

Q. Well, you made an effort to testify truthfully?

A. Of course, that's what I meant.

Q. Has your view changed with respect to that since your testimony in June 2001, sir?

MR. CLARE: Bob, I'm going to object to this line of questioning. I think it's misleading for you to ask Mr. Hart about an isolated Q and A in his prior deposition and suggest that he's changed his testimony when, in fact, there's additional testimony surrounding it that you have not asked him to read or has not been read into the record.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

So, I object on the grounds the question is misleading and I think it's a proper impeachment.

Q. My question, sir, is whether you've changed your view since June of 2001 on that issue?

A. I don't think I've changed my view. I don't -- I mean, I'm not in a position to deem us to have been defrauded, if that's a legal determination.

Q. Well, I'm not -- I know you're not a lawyer, sir. I'm just asking whether you've come to the view that Morgan Stanley was defrauded -- Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was defrauded in connection with its loan to Sunbeam.

A. I haven't come to that -- I haven't come to a determined view.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. As you sit here today?

A. As I sit here today.

Q. Now, I want to keep straight, at least as straight as I can, sir, a distinction between Sunbeam management and Coleman management in the next series of questions that I'm asking you.

A. Okay. Are we done with this?

Q. Yes.

So, when I refer to "Sunbeam management," I'm referring to the management of Sunbeam Company in place prior to the acquisition of Coleman Company.

A. Okay.

Q. Mr. Dunlap was the CEO, Mr. Kersh was the CFO, correct?

A. That's my understanding.

Q. And management of Coleman Company, at that time, were -- I'll represent to you Mr. Levin, if you don't recall it, was the chief executive officer of Coleman Company.

A. Um-hum.

Q. All right?

A. Okay.

Q. Is it your testimony, sir, using --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

are you comfortable with that distinction, do you understand the distinction I'm trying to make?

A. I understand the distinction.

Q. Is it your testimony, sir, that it's your belief, as you sit here today, that Sunbeam management was not truthful with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with its loan to Sunbeam?

A. I think it would be too narrow to say in connection with its loan to -- what -- what proved to be incorrect or where there were, I believe, misstatements were throughout the broader due diligence. But, clearly, that diligence was utilized in conjunction with executing the senior loan.

Q. And it's your -- it's your personal belief, as you sit here today, that Sunbeam management was, in some way, not truthful with either Morgan Stanley & Company in connection with its due diligence or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. I think that's fair.

Q. Is it your testimony, sir, that you have come to the view that Coleman management was not truthful with either Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with the events preceding Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I have not come to that view one way or the other.

Q. So, you have formed an opinion that Sunbeam management was not truthful in connection with its discussions with Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding. But you have not come to that same view with respect to Coleman management; is that fair?

A. I think that's fair.

Q. Mr. Hart, I'm going to show you what we're marking for identification as CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 199. It's a document filed by Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in the lawsuit filed by Morgan Stanley Senior Funding against my clients.

The caption of the document is "Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc.'s Responses and Objections to Defendant Coleman (Parent) Holding's First Set of Interrogatories".

(CPH Exhibit 199, Morgan Stanley

Q. Mr. Hart, could you take a moment -- I'm not going to ask you to read the whole document at this point, but have you seen this before?

A. I don't recall having seen this.

Q. Let me direct your attention to page 15. Do you see page 15?

A. Yes.

Q. May I see what you have, sir.

A. Sure.

Q. Let me --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Let's go off the record a second, please.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Time is 11:30. We're back on the record.

Q. Mr. Hart, let me start over. We've had a little mix-up with the exhibit, and we've provided you with a different copy of what we've now marked as CPH Exhibit No. 199.

Do you recall seeing this document before, sir?

A. Now that I've had another couple of minutes to look at it, I do recall seeing this, yes.

Q. All right. Let me direct your attention to page 15.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see your signature there?

A. Yes.

Q. And the date of your signature is what, sir?

A. October 7, 2003.

Q. And what does it say above your signature, sir?

A. "I hereby declare that the foregoing answers are true and correct upon information and belief and to the best of my knowledge."

Q. And your signature is then notarized; is that correct, sir?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you understand that you were signing this under oath?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall when you first received a copy of CPH Exhibit No. 199 for your review?
A. I do not.
Q. Let me ask you to turn to page 14.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you see Mr. Clare's signature there, sir?
A. I do.
Q. And do you see the date next to his signature?
A. Yes.
Q. And the date of his signature -- next to his signature is October 6, 2003?
A. Yes.
Q. The day before your signature is dated?
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you recall that, when you received this document for your review, whether it had been signed by Mr. Clare at that time?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether you received CPH

Exhibit No. 199 for the first time on the day which you signed your verification?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you recall whether you had it for some period of time before you signed it?
A. I don't.
Q. It's possible that you signed it the day -- excuse me -- is it possible, sir, in your mind, that you signed the verification the day that you first received a copy of CPH Exhibit No. 199 for your review?
A. It's possible.
Q. Do you recall -- when you signed the verification, sir, what did you do before you signed it?
A. I read through the exhibit -- the document.
Q. Do you recall making any changes to the document before you verified it?
A. I don't recall if I made any changes or not.
Q. Who do you recall -- did you discuss it with anyone?
A. I don't recall if I had discussions with anyone on this.

Q. Do you recall who provided it to you?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you recall whether it came to you from someone at Kirkland & Ellis?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall whether it came to you from someone within a Morgan Stanley entity?
A. I do not.
Q. Do you recall any discussions with in-house counsel at Morgan Stanley concerning any aspect of this document, CPH Exhibit No. 199?
MR. CLARE: It's a yes or no question he's asking you.
A. No.
Q. Do you recall any discussions with anyone at Kirkland & Ellis relating to any aspect of CPH Exhibit No. 199?
A. I don't recall those.
Q. Were you involved, in any way, sir, in the preparation of the answers or statements that are contained within Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's responses to Coleman Parent Holdings' first set of interrogatories?

A. I don't recall my involvement, no.
Q. Do you recall -- let me make sure I understand what your answer is intended to mean, sir.
Did you -- let me ask a direct question. Did you have any involvement in the preparation of the answers or any of them that appear within CPH Exhibit No. 199 to Coleman Parent Holdings' first set of interrogatories?
A. I don't recall if I had any involvement or not.
Q. Other than reading the document before you verified it, sir, can you recall any other activity that you engaged in relating to this?
A. I don't recall any other activity or the extent of it.
Q. Do you recall how much time you spent with the document before you verified it?
A. I don't recall how much time I spent with it.
Q. Do you recall reviewing any other materials in connection with your verification of this document?
A. I don't recall whether I reviewed any other materials.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the response to interrogatory No. 1. It appears at the bottom of page 2 and continues over to page 3, sir. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Why don't you read interrogatory No. 1 and the response there to yourself for a moment. Tell me when you're done.

(Witness reading document.)

A. And 2? Or just 1?

Q. Just the response to interrogatory No. 1. It continues over onto page 2.

A. Yes, yes, okay.

Q. Have you finished that?

A. Um-hum.

Q. Interrogatory No. 1 asks for the identification of any individuals who conducted due diligence or who -- or whom are knowledgeable about due diligence conducted by or on behalf of MSSF in connection with its loan to Sunbeam; is that correct, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. That's your understanding of what it

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

is inquiring about?

A. That's my understanding.

Q. And the answer, at least by my count, lists 17 names. Do you see those names on page 3?

A. I do.

Q. My first question about the -- this answer, sir, relates to the statement at the very bottom of the answer. It states, "MS & Co.'s investigation is ongoing."

Do you see that?

A. Um-hum.

Q. MS & Co. is a reference to Morgan Stanley & Company, correct, not Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. I wouldn't -- I don't know. I don't know what they were trying to get at there.

Q. Well, let me direct your attention to the first page of the document, sir. Do you see the statement at the beginning, "Plaintiff, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ('MSSF')."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. So, you understand this document, sir,

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

to define Morgan Stanley Senior Funding as MSSF?

A. That would be my understanding.

Q. Let me turn to interrogatory No. 1 again, response to interrogatory No. 1.

A. Um-hum.

Q. It does not state that MSSF's investigation is ongoing correct, sir? It states that MS & Co.'s investigation is ongoing.

A. That's what that says.

Q. Do you understand -- is that a -- my question is this: Is that a mistake? Was the investigation being conducted by MSSF with respect to providing this information, or was Morgan Stanley & Company involved in the investigation that resulted in providing the information that's contained in Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's response to interrogatory No. 1?

A. I don't know.

MR. CLARE: I object to the form.

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't know whether it's a mistake or whether that's --

A. Correct.

Q. -- said that way purposefully?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Correct.

Q. Sir, what did you do to determine whether the list of 17 names provided in the response to interrogatory No. 1 was correct?

A. I don't recall what I did to arrive -- or to verify that.

Q. Did you do anything?

A. I said I don't recall.

Q. Well, it's possible that you didn't do anything; is that correct, sir?

MR. CLARE: I'm going to object to the form of the question.

A. I don't think I would have done nothing to review, but I don't specifically remember the actual steps that I went through.

Q. Let's take them one at a time. Do you know what Shani Boone -- strike that.

Do you know why Shani Boone's name is listed here?

A. I recall her as being a member of the Sunbeam team.

Q. Do you know whether she conducted due diligence?

A. My belief is that she did, working with John Tyree.

Q. Do you know what due diligence she did perform?
A. Not specifically. I don't recall today what specifically she did.
Q. Let me try to short-circuit this, sir.
A. Okay.
Q. Do you have any personal knowledge concerning the due diligence activities of any of the people listed in the response to interrogatory No. 1?
A. Could you help me out with what you mean by "personal experience."
Q. If I use the -- let me make sure my question is clear.
Do you have any personal knowledge, sir, concerning what due diligence activities any of the individuals listed in the response to interrogatory No. 1 performed in connection with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?
A. The approach that Morgan Stanley takes with respect to diligence would draw on people from all of these various divisions.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
So, my recollection is, I have participated in some diligence sessions with them. So, I would have to say that, yes, with respect to that, I have personal knowledge of knowing that they were involved in diligence.
Beyond that, I just don't recall, six years later, what specifically someone may have been doing with -- with respect to conducting the actual diligence.
Q. So, it's your testimony, sir, that you participated in meetings with each of the people listed here concerning their due diligence activities relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the prior testimony.
A. No.
MR. CLARE: You can answer.
A. No, that is not my testimony.
Q. Well, I'm just trying to understand.
A. Um-hum.
Q. What -- what knowledge do you have, sir -- let me go back to what the interrogatory asks about, sir, just so we have that in focus.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
The inquiry was for the identification of individuals who conducted due diligence or who are knowledgeable about the due diligence conducted by or on behalf of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in connection with the senior loan. Do you understand that?
A. Um-hum, yes.
Q. Is it your testimony, sir, that all the individuals listed in response to interrogatory No. 1 were involved in, or knowledgeable of, the due diligence activities related to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?
A. Given -- given Morgan Stanley's approach to diligence, it would be my belief that these people had involvement in what is broadly described as being knowledgeable about due diligence or conducted due diligence, as they were all active members of the team.
Q. I'd like to distinguish between knowledgeable of and involved in.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you know whether all of the individuals listed in response to interrogatory

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
No. 1 were involved themselves in the due diligence relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?
A. You're splitting the question; is that the intent?
Q. I'm trying to distinguish, at this point, between those who were knowledgeable of the due diligence and those who were actually involved in performing them.
A. I have not made that determination.
Q. So, do you know which of the individuals listed here were actively involved in performing due diligence related to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?
A. I'd be unable to make that determination at this point.
Q. For any of them?
A. No. I could name some.
Q. All right. That's what I'm asking. Can you tell me which, if any, of the individuals listed in response to interrogatory No. 1 are known to you to have been actively involved in performing due diligence relating to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam.

A. I would include myself on that list. I would include Bram Smith. I would include John Tyree. I would include Shani Boone.

I couldn't draw -- I couldn't specifically say the other members one way or the other. May have been, may not have been.

Q. But, as you sit here today, you don't have any recollection of any of the others being actively involved in performing due diligence relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan?

A. I don't recall whether they were specifically involved while I was involved. Understand, in my capacity, I would not have been involved in all aspects of the diligence.

So, it's quite possible that any number of these people participated in various diligence sessions when I wasn't a party to it.

Q. Right. I'm just asking what you know. That's what I'm trying to focus on.

A. And that's what I'm trying to tell you.

Q. You've identified four people that are known to you to have been actively involved in performing due diligence relating to Morgan

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Stanley Senior Funding's loan, correct?

A. Just so I'm clear, that is -- that is -- they're the individuals that I have a clear recollection of being on a call with or having a discussion with. And so I'm not excluding the others as possibilities. They all, in fact, could have been involved.

I'm just trying to be specific to your request, which is identifying those that I, sitting here today, and knowingly know participated in the diligence process.

Q. What did Shani Boone do by way of due diligence concerning Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't know the specifics.

Q. How do you know -- why is she one of the four people you identified?

A. I recall her being on calls that I was on.

Q. Was she participating at your request in those calls?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Other than being a participant in calls that you were a party to, do you recall

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Shani Boone doing anything else with respect to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding due diligence?

A. Do not recall.

Q. What do you recall Mr. Smith doing in connection with performing due diligence related to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. Generally, involved in calls and/or diligence trips. Nothing more specific.

Q. Can you recall specific calls that Mr. Smith participated in -- specific due diligence calls?

A. Not specifically.

Q. Do you believe that Mr. Smith made a due diligence -- one or more due diligence trips in connection with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan?

A. I don't have a clear recollection of it. I believe he made -- I believe he made one.

Q. What trip are you recalling?

A. There was a diligence trip to Florida.

Q. Is that a trip that Mr. Smith attended when you were unable to?

A. I believe that's the case.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Is that why that sticks in your mind?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Smith -- any other due diligence activity that Mr. Smith did?

A. Not specifically.

Q. Or generally?

A. Generally involved.

Q. Other than being on calls or, perhaps, being involved in a due diligence trip, do you have any general recollection of any due diligence activities in which Mr. Smith was engaged relating to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. A -- a general recollection, yes.

Q. What do you recall?

A. That he was involved in the diligence process.

Q. Well, I'm trying to understand what activities.

A. Um-hum.

Q. You've testified that he may have taken a trip to Florida.

A. Um-hum.

Q. You testified that he may have been involved in telephone calls. I'm trying to understand if there's any other activity that you have a general recollection that Mr. Smith performed relating to the due diligence associated with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam.

A. I don't have any more specific recollection.

Q. Do you have any other kind of activity?

A. No, not specifically.

Q. What due diligence activity do you recall John Tyree engaging in relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. Similar to my description of Bram, a participation on calls. I don't specifically recall whether John took trips, but, you know, similar -- similar types of activities.

Q. Is there -- did you specifically direct anyone, Mr. Hart, to perform any activities relating to -- any due diligence activities relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall whether I directed anyone or not.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Do you recall giving any direction to Mr. Tyree to perform some particular tasks or ask him specific questions, particular questions?

A. I don't recall whether I made that request or not.

Q. Or investigate some particular issue?

A. I don't have a recollection of me asking him that.

Q. Do you recall giving any specific direction to Shani Boone to engage in any particular due diligence activity associated with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's due diligence?

A. I don't recall directing Shani in any regard.

Q. Do you recall asking Mr. Smith to engage in any particular due diligence activity relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall making a request of Bram.

Q. Tell me what due diligence activity you engaged in.

A. My general recollection is that I participated in certain diligence calls and reviewed various financial models.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Can you tell me what calls you engaged in?

A. I don't recall specifically, away from the one call that we've talked about earlier.

Q. So, you remember a call with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Levin and others, but you don't recall any other calls?

A. Not with any great degree of specificity, no.

Q. Well, do you recall any -- anything about any other calls that you engaged in relating to the due diligence associated with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam, other than the call that you have testified about earlier concerning conversation with Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Levin and others?

A. Not specific details, no.

Q. I didn't ask for specific details. I asked if you recall anything.

A. No.

Q. You said you reviewed various financial models. What is that a reference to?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. In analyzing an underwriting commitment, you'll put financial models together to evaluate the overall creditworthiness.

Q. Who prepared the models that you reviewed?

A. I don't know who prepared them. I don't recall who prepared them.

Q. Were they prepared by someone at Morgan Stanley & Company?

A. The -- the models themselves, the actual code writing, my belief is that they were put together by Morgan Stanley. An important distinction there is that the actual writing of the Lotus or Excel spreadsheet --

Q. I'm sorry?

A. -- as opposed to the content.

Q. Assembling the model was done by someone at Morgan Stanley & Company, that's your recollection?

A. That's my recollection, yes.

Q. Do you recall reviewing any models that were assembled by anyone other than Morgan Stanley & Company?

A. I don't have a recollection. But just to be clear, because I'm not sure it comes through in your question, the model is a Morgan Stanley-generated product. The content, i.e., the historical information and the projections that appear in it, are not Morgan Stanley's.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 106

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. But you don't have any recollection of reviewing any models that were put together -- let me use that phrase here -- by anyone other than Morgan Stanley & Company, putting aside where the information contained in the model came from?

A. I don't recall whether I looked at different models or not.

Q. Does this conversation refresh your recollection with respect to any other due diligence activities that any other individuals listed in interrogatory No. 1 engaged in relating to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan to Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whether -- as you sit here, sir, is this, to the best of your recollection, a complete list of individuals who were involved in performing due diligence relating to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan or knowledge of that due diligence?

Page 107

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. Did you make any effort to verify with any of the other participants in -- let me strike that.

Did you attempt to verify, sir, with anyone else at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding or Morgan Stanley & Company the accuracy or completeness of the response to interrogatory No. 1?

A. I don't recall the procedures that I went through to get comfortable with that list.

Q. Do you know whether you're the original source of this list?

A. I don't know that I'm the original source of this list.

Q. Can you recall anyone asking you to prepare such a list?

A. I don't recall being asked to prepare this list.

Q. I'm going to ask you a series of questions, sir, about interrogatory No. 2 -- the response to interrogatory No. 2.

Page 108

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Um-hum.

Q. It's lengthy, but I want you to read to yourself the entire response to interrogatory No. 2 before I start my questions so you can have the benefit of that.

A. Okay.

Q. So, read interrogatory No. 2 and the response which continues on through the top of page 8.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. My question, Mr. Hart, is whether you have any personal knowledge concerning any of the statements contained in the response to interrogatory No. 2?

A. Perhaps I should go back. I was -- I do not have personal knowledge, no.

Q. That's your answer?

A. Yeah.

Q. How, then, were you able, sir, to verify under oath that the statements contained in this interrogatory answer were true to the best of your knowledge and belief?

A. To the best of my knowledge and

Page 109

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

belief, they were true.

Q. Do you have any basis for making that statement?

MR. CLARE: I will object to the form of the question. I'll instruct the witness to exclude from your answer any conversations that you would have had with Morgan Stanley's attorneys, either in-house counsel or outside counsel, in responding to the question.

Subject to that limitation, you can answer the question.

A. I did, in reviewing it, to the best of my knowledge, at the time, sign this document.

Q. Right. I understand you signed it. And you said under oath that it was -- the statements contained in the document were true to the best of your knowledge and belief, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And my question, sir, is: With respect -- with respect to the statements contained in response to interrogatory No. 2, you've -- you said you have no personal knowledge of the information contained in that

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

interrogatory response, correct?

A. Reading it quickly, in the interest of time, but I was not in attendance at a Sunbeam/Coleman/MAFCO meeting. So, I think I can say that. I can also say that, to the best of my knowledge, this was correct.

Q. I don't want to hurry you, sir. So, I want you to take whatever time you need.

A. I'm sorry. You don't --

Q. Want to hurry you.

A. Oh.

Q. I want you to take whatever time you need. It's -- this is important. I want to understand whether you're a witness or knowledgeable of the facts relating to any of the statements that are contained in the response to interrogatory No. 2. I don't want to be surprised later. Do you understand that?

A. I got you.

MO MR. CLARE: I object and move to strike the preamble to the question.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm just explaining to Mr. Hart why I want him to be careful.

Q. So, I'd like you to go through it with as much time as you need. I want you to tell me whether you have personal knowledge with respect to the -- any of the statements contained in the response to interrogatory No. 2.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

MR. CLARE: Bob, maybe it would clarify things if you ask Mr. Hart to go through the interrogatory response and identify which, if any, of the events or conversations that he was in attendance.

I don't know if that's a different question than the one you're asking, but I think that may be part of the difficulty.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't want to limit myself in that way.

Q. I just want to know -- I want to know generally whether you have any knowledge, sir, personal knowledge, to support any of the allegations or statements contained in the response to interrogatory No. 2.

A. I will stand by my statement that, as a general matter, no.

Q. Well, when you say "as a general matter," is there anything --

A. Those were your words. I mean,

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

obviously, we talked about the synergy number. I certainly was not a party to the MAFCO/Sunbeam meeting. So, I would stand by my answer.

Q. So, you have no personal knowledge of those things.

What did you do, sir, in order to form a belief that the statements contained in this interrogatory answer are true?

MR. CLARE: Other than consultations with counsel.

MR. MARKOWSKI: No. If that's what it is, I want to hear it.

A. Don't recall.

Q. So, you don't recall anything, as you sit here today, that you did to verify for yourself that the statements contained in the response to interrogatory No. 2 were true; is that your testimony?

A. I don't have a recollection, no.

Q. Including any discussions you may have had with counsel, you don't recall having any discussions with counsel on that subject?

A. I don't today, no.

Q. Can you recall, sir, why you felt it was appropriate to make a statement under oath that you believed the statements contained in interrogatory No. 2 -- response to interrogatory No. 2 to be true?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. As I said, and what I signed was that, when I signed this under oath, I believed that, to the best of my belief -- or to the best of my knowledge, this was true and that was correct.

Q. Did you have information in your possession, sir, that caused you to believe that the statements contained in response -- the response in interrogatory No. 2 were, in fact, true?

A. I don't recall the steps that I took to get myself comfortable with interrogatory 2. But what I did do is sign this with the belief that, to the best of my knowledge, it was true.

Q. I'm trying to understand what information you had in your possession, since you didn't have any personal knowledge, that put you in a position where you could say that.

A. And what I'm trying to tell you is that I don't recall what I did, at that point, to put myself into that position.

Q. Let me ask you this question, sir: What do you understand it to mean -- to say that "The foregoing answers are true and correct upon information and belief and to the best of my knowledge"? What do you understand that phrase to mean?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. Exactly what it says, that I believe it to be true and correct upon information and belief and to the best of my knowledge.

Q. My question to you, sir, is, what information you had and what belief did you have concerning the factual accuracy of the statements contained in interrogatory No. 2?

MR. CLARE: Ask --

Q. Are you simply taking it on faith that, because counsel provided you this, that it was safe for you to assume that the statements contained in response to interrogatory No. 2 were true and correct?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.

A. As I've said to you, Bob, I don't recall what I did to get myself comfortable with that. But I believe, when I signed it, that it was true to the best of my knowledge at that time.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Did someone provide you with information, sir, that caused you to conclude that the statements contained in interrogatory No. 2 were true?

A. I don't recall if anybody provided me with information.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the page 4 of the document you have in front of you, CPH Exhibit 199, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's first set of interrogatory answers.

A. Um-hum.

Q. You have page 4 in front of you?

A. Page 4.

Q. Second paragraph, first sentence it states, "MAFCO and its wholly-owned subsidiary, CPH, provided Sunbeam and its lenders with a series of false information about the 'synergies' that Sunbeam could expect to achieve from an acquisition of Coleman."

Do you see that statement, sir?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Yes.

Q. MAFCO here is a reference, I'll represent to you, to MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, sir. And CPH is a reference to Coleman Parent Holdings.

As you sit here, sir, do you know what the reference to "a series of false information" is a reference to?

A. Not specifically today.

Q. You don't know what that phrase means?

A. I don't recall what exactly was encompassed in a series of false information.

Q. It's an oddly-phrased statement, is it, sir? Are those words you would use, a series of false information?

MO MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question. Move to strike the preamble.

A. I don't have an opinion as to whether it's an odd way of phrasing it. What I -- there was an enormous amount of information -- or there was information flow on more than one account of synergy calculations.

Q. Did you ask anyone what the statement referred to before you signed the verification?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't recall if I asked anyone about the series of false information terminology.

Q. Do you have any knowledge, sir, as you sit here today, concerning who at MAFCO or who at Coleman Parent Holdings supposedly provided Sunbeam and its lenders with a, quote, series of false information with, quote, synergies, close quote?

A. Personally, I don't have that information.

Q. Let me direct your attention to page 5, sir. It's the -- there's a statement that begins on the third line on page 5. "MAFCO and CPH presented these fraudulent synergy representations to Sunbeam and MSSF verbally and in writing during the negotiations leading up to the acquisition."

Do you see that statement, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any knowledge, sir, as you sit here today, concerning who at MAFCO or who at CPH provided fraudulent synergy representations to the Sunbeam and MSSF verbally and in writing?

A. Personally, myself, no.

Q. Do you have any knowledge, as you sit here today, sir, concerning what writings this statement refers to?

A. Not specifically.

Q. Do you have any knowledge, sir, concerning whom at MSSF supposedly received fraudulent synergy representations, either verbal or in writing, from MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman Parent Holdings?

A. If they're referring to the synergy analysis, everyone on the team that performed diligence would have received them.

Q. My question, sir, relates specifically to the statement contained here. Whom at MSSF -- let me strike that.

As you sit here today, sir, do you have any knowledge concerning the identity of the individual or individuals at MSSF that received, either verbally or in writing, from MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman Parent Holdings fraudulent synergy representations during the negotiations leading up to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman?

A. I personally don't know who received that.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Sir, page 5 refers to a December 12, 1997 meeting between Sunbeam and Coleman representatives. Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. Has anyone ever described to you or reported to you anything concerning the December 12 meeting that's referred to on page 5?

A. I don't recall if anybody described that meeting to me or not.

Q. You weren't present for it, correct?

A. I don't believe I was present.

Q. Did you ever receive anything in writing from anyone relating to any aspect of the discussions at that December 12 meeting?

A. I don't recall if I ever received anything in writing.

Q. The participants that this interrogatory identifies as having attended the December 12 meeting are Jerry Levin, Coleman's chairman and chief executive officer; Joseph Page, Coleman's chief financial officer; and Paul Shapiro, Coleman's general counsel. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. And representatives of Sunbeam are identified as Russell A. Kersh, Sunbeam's chief financial officer; David Fannin, Sunbeam's chief legal officer; and Peter Langerman, a director of Sunbean.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever have any discussions with any of those individuals concerning the December 12th meeting between Sunbeam and Coleman?

A. I don't recall whether I had any conversations with any of those individuals.

Q. As you sit here today, you don't have any recollection of that, correct?

A. As I sit here today, I don't remember if I had any discussions with any of those individuals about the December 12th meeting.

Q. The interrogatory answer refers to a list of -- let's see how the interrogatory characterizes it. The interrogatory refers to a detailed -- at the bottom of page 5, a detailed written schedule identifying 15 different areas of synergies. Do you see that phrase?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Yes.

Q. And then there's a chart on page 6, sir. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. I'm going to show you a document -- Mr. Hart, let me show you what we're marking as CPH Exhibit No. 200. It's a two-page document. It bears Bates No. SB 237661 through 7662. The cover page is a fax cover sheet on Sunbeam stationery from David C. Fannin. And the recipients are identified as William Strong, James Stynes and Robert Kitts.

(CPH Exhibit 200, Fax dated 12/15/97, from Fannin to Strong, Stynes and Kitts, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Take a moment to look at the document, sir. My first question is going to be whether you've ever seen it before.

(Witness reading document.)

A. I -- okay.

Q. Have you ever seen it before, sir?

A. I don't recall having seen this document.

Q. Have you ever seen -- let me direct your attention to the second page. Second page has a list of 15 numbered items. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Putting aside the handwriting, have you ever seen this document before, this single page?

A. I don't recall having seen it, no. I just don't recall having seen this.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Strong, Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts are Morgan Stanley employees, correct, Morgan Stanley & Company employees?

A. Mr. Strong is. I don't believe Mr. Stynes or Mr. Kitts are employees.

Q. They were back in 1998; is that correct?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding ever saw this list, sir? By "the list," I mean the list of 15 items attached as the second page of Exhibit CPH Exhibit 200.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation. You can answer.

A. I'm not in a position to know if anyone else ever received it.

Q. Did you engage in any discussion, sir, with Sunbeam relating to the items that are on this list prior to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan being funded?

A. I don't recall the specifics of any conversations that I may have had on the synergy numbers.

Q. Do you recall any communications between yourself and anyone at Coleman Company relating to this list or any items on it?

A. I don't recall any communications to that effect.

Q. Did you have any communications with my clients, Coleman Parent Holdings or MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, relating to this list or any of the items on it?

A. I don't recall having that conversation.

Q. Any communications of any sort?

A. I don't recall any communications of any sort with respect to the items on this list.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. With either Coleman Parent Holdings or MacAndrews & Forbes, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Let me direct your attention to -- back to CPH Exhibit No. 199, sir. Direct you to page 7 of that document. These, again, are Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's first set of interrogatory responses.

A. Page 7?

Q. Page 7, correct. Let me direct your attention to the first sentence on the last paragraph at the bottom of the page. "The synergy figures presented by CPH and MAFCO were false."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. As you sit here today, do you have any knowledge concerning the way in which the synergy figures presented by CPH and MAFCO are -- were allegedly false?

A. It's my belief that they weren't achieved.

Q. Do you believe that the failure to achieve the synergy -- a synergy number is the same as the synergy number being false?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.

Q. Do those two things mean the same to you?

A. Perhaps not in certain circumstances.

Q. So, my question here, sir is: The statement is made that the synergy figures presented by my clients, Coleman Parent Holdings and MAFCO, were false. And my question to you, sir, is whether you have any knowledge concerning the manner in which synergy figures presented by my clients are supposedly false in the view of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. I don't have specific knowledge of the individual items that may have been false.

Q. You, in fact, don't have any knowledge that the synergy figures were false; is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.

A. I don't have knowledge of the specifics. You had used the phraseology in your first question that I answered. Then you reworded it. So, I answered the first one. I'm not sure what the gist of the second is.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. My question is -- my -- let me make sure we're clear. I want to make sure that you're comfortable with your answers.

My first question was whether you had any knowledge concerning any manner or way in which synergy figures provided by my clients are, according to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, purportedly false?

A. I'm not personally aware of the manner in which any of the synergy figures presented by CPH and MAFCO were false.

Q. And, in general, more generally, you're not aware personally, sir, are you, that my clients, in fact, provided any synergy information to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding that was in any manner false, correct?

A. I'm not in a position to make that determination.

Q. Let me direct your attention to interrogatory No. 4, sir, in CPH Exhibit No. 199.

A. Um-hum, yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Take a moment to read the question and response.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Interrogatory No. 4 calls for the identification of each individual involved in developing, preparing, analyzing or reviewing potential synergies that might result from the business combination of Sunbeam, Coleman Company, First Alert and/or Signature Brands.

Is that correct, sir? Is that your understanding what the interrogatory calls for?

A. Yeah.

Q. And there are a series of names listed in the response to interrogatory No. 4, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. My question to you, sir, is, what knowledge you have concerning the activities of any of those individuals that -- in the -- in the development and preparation or analyzing -- analysis of synergies associated with the potential combination of Sunbeam, Coleman Company, First Alert and Signature Brands?

A. I would go back to my comment with respect to people involved in diligence, as -- this was a primary topic of diligence.

And my -- my view is that those individuals that I identified as being involved in the diligence would have been involved in some aspect of reviewing the potential synergies, given it was critical to the overall diligence process.

Q. Let me -- let's try to go through them.

Do you know what, if anything, Shani Boone did with respect to synergies?

A. Not specifically.

Q. Do you know what, if anything, Tyrone Chang did with respect to synergies?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what, if anything, Andrew Conway did with respect to synergies?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what, if anything, Benjamin Derito did with respect to synergies?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what, if anything, Alex Fuchs did with respect to synergies?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. No.

Q. Do you know what, if anything, Johannes Groeller did with respect to synergies?

A. No.

Q. I'm going to skip you for a moment.

Do you know what, if anything, Roberts Kitts did with respect to synergies?

A. Not specifically.

Q. Do you have something general with respect to Mr. Kitts' activities relating to synergies?

A. He's an addressee on that fax that we talked about earlier.

Q. But other than the fact that you've seen -- now seen his name on CPH Exhibit No. 200, you have no knowledge concerning what Mr. Kitts did with respect to synergies?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you know what, if anything, Ruth Porat did with respect to synergies?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what, if anything, Lily Rafii did with respect to synergies?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what, if anything, Andrew Savarie did with respect to synergies?
A. No.
Q. Do you know what, if anything, Bram Smith did with respect to synergies?

Q. Do you know what, if anything, William Strong did with respect to synergies?
A. Same comment for Kitts.
Q. Mr. Strong's name appears on CPH Exhibit No. 200, which you've now seen, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Other than the fact that you've now seen Mr. Strong's name on CPH Exhibit No. 200, do you have any knowledge concerning what Mr. Strong did, if anything, relating to synergies?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any knowledge concerning what Mr. Stynes did with respect to synergies?
A. Same comment as Kitts and Strong.
Q. Mr. Stynes's name also appears on CPH Exhibit No. 200, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Other than the fact you've now seen

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Mr. Stynes's name on CPH Exhibit No. 200, do you have any knowledge concerning anything that Mr. Stynes did with respect to synergies?
A. No.
Q. John Tyree, do you have any knowledge concerning what, if anything, John Tyree did with respect to synergies?
A. You know, I would say this for all of these, because I think it's important to caveat the important role that John played in the overall diligence. I don't recall what the specifics were of his involvement in analyzing synergies.
I think that's a fair representation for, certainly, the individuals that I listed as participating in diligence, having active knowledge of participating in the diligence.
Q. As you sit here, you don't have any knowledge, recollection, today concerning what, if anything, Mr. Tyree did concerning --
A. I don't have any recollection.
Q. Joshua Webber, do you have any knowledge today concerning what Mr. Webber did with respect to synergies?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't have a recollection.
Q. Do you have any knowledge concerning what Mr. William Wright did with respect to synergies?
A. I don't have a recollection.
Q. Do you have any knowledge, as you sit here today, concerning what Gene Yoo did with respect to synergies?
A. Don't have a recollection.
Q. How were you able to sign an interrogatory answer, sir, which you've said under oath that you, based upon information and belief, believe that each of these individuals were involved in developing, preparing, analyzing or reviewing potential synergies?
A. At the time, as I've said to you, of signing this, I don't recall exactly what I did at that point to get myself comfortable.
I did have the benefit of seeing these individuals -- or seeing and participating in the overall general diligence. And I would go back to the fact that what I signed was to the best of my knowledge, and that is correct.
Q. Putting aside yourself -- you're listed as one of the people who participated in this activity, correct, sir?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Correct.
Q. Putting aside you -- you're not a witness today to the activities that any of these individuals did with respect to developing, preparing, analyzing or reviewing potential synergies associated with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company; is that correct?
A. I'm not a witness to?
Q. You don't have any personal knowledge of.
A. I don't recall what specifically they may have done with respect to synergies.
Q. In fact, you're not in a position to say today that, of your own personal knowledge, that any of these people, other than yourself, did anything with respect to developing, preparation, analyzing or reviewing potential synergies associated with Sunbeam's potential acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. Not on a specific basis.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read my question back, please.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
(Record read.)
Q. And the answer was what?
A. Not specifically.
Q. I don't understand what you mean by "not specifically."
A. I couldn't describe to you what -- specifically what any of these individuals may have done in getting themselves comfortable with the overall synergies.
Q. In fact, you can't say under oath that you have any knowledge that any of these people did anything with respect to the activity of developing, preparing, analyzing or reviewing potential synergies that might be associated with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Argumentative and misstates the prior testimony.
A. What I have knowledge of is the participation and diligence of which understanding of the synergies was a primary focus. And I have knowledge that the individuals that I listed were actively involved and I had personal knowledge of that.
And I stand by my sworn testimony

that, to the best of my knowledge, that's what I knew at the time.
Q. My question, sir, is: As you sit here today, you can't say that you have knowledge or recollection that any of the individuals listed in the response to interrogatory No. 4 did anything with respect to developing, preparing, analyzing or reviewing potential synergies associated with Sunbeam's potential acquisition of the Coleman Company?
MR. CLARE: Putting aside Mr. Mart?
Q. Putting aside yourself.
A. Sitting here today, I don't recall the specifics of what any of these individuals may have done with respect to evaluating the synergies.
Q. Well, I'm not asking for the specifics. I'm asking whether, under oath, you are in a position to testify today that any of the individuals listed in the response to interrogatory No. 4, excluding yourself, did anything with respect to developing, preparing, analyzing or reviewing potential synergies associated with Sunbeam's acquisition of the

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
Coleman Company.
A. I don't know that I'm in that position.
Q. I'm not sure what that answer means, sir.
A. I wouldn't draw that conclusion because of the fact that the analysis of the synergies were critical to our due diligence. And I know for a fact that Bram Smith, Shani Boone and John Tyree were intimately involved in diligence.
Q. I thought -- I don't mean to interrupt. Go ahead.
A. I'm done.
Q. But, as you sit here today, you don't know or -- or can't recall what any of the individuals, whether it's those individuals that you've just identified or any of the other individuals whose names appear in response to interrogatory No. 4, did with respect to the evaluation of the synergies that might result from Coleman -- the acquisition of Coleman Company by Sunbeam; is that correct, sir?
A. I did not recall -- I cannot recall

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
the specific steps that these individuals took in their work of reviewing potential synergies.
Q. I don't want to get hung up on the word "specific," sir.
Can you recall, in general, what any of these individuals did with respect to the evaluation of the synergies that Sunbeam might achieve in connection with its acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. Bob, that's where I have an issue with the word "general," because I think general moves into the realm of broader diligence. That's where I guess we're getting hung up.
Q. Well, let's persevere. I want to know, sir, what knowledge, if any, you have concerning any activities that any of the individuals listed in response to interrogatory No. 4 engaged in with respect to developing, preparing, analyzing or reviewing potential synergies associated with Sunbeam's potential acquisition of Coleman Company.
MR. CLARE: Beyond what he's already testified to?
Q. Putting yourself aside for the moment.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Nothing beyond what I've already testified to.

Q. Well, what is that in this context, sir?

THE WITNESS: Do you want to read it back?

Q. No. I want an answer to this question, because I don't want to get hung up on semantics.

I want to understand if you have any knowledge or recollection today, as you sit here, of any activities that any of the individuals identified in response to interrogatory No. 4 did with respect to the evaluation of synergies that Sunbeam might realize if it acquired Coleman Company.

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered now several times.

A. And I would say that -- as I have said, that, with respect to Shani Boone, Bram Smith and John Tyree, I have knowledge that they had conducted work that would have evaluated the potential synergies through their diligence work.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. What potential synergies were they evaluating?

A. The synergies that appeared on the management-provided synergy list.

Q. Do you know if they spent time analyzing the potential synergies identified in CPH Exhibit No. 200?

MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation. Calls for speculation.

Q. I'm asking what he knows.

A. I don't recall whether I knew that or not.

Q. So, as you sit here today, you don't have any knowledge that any of the individuals identified in response to interrogatory No. 4 -- for this purpose, I'm going to include you -- did any work in evaluating the synergies identified in CPH Exhibit No. 200?

A. As it relates to those specific synergies, I would agree with that statement.

Q. I believe you indicated earlier, sir, that you were aware that Sunbeam retained Coopers & Lybrand to, among other things, evaluate the synergies that might be realized upon the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman Company; is that correct?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I, generally, recall a Coopers report. I don't know the specifics of who engaged who.

Q. Did -- were you aware, prior to the closing of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam, that Coopers & Lybrand had been involved in evaluating the synergies that Sunbeam might achieve upon its acquisition of Coleman Company?

A. I was aware of a report.

Q. Prior to closing the loan?

A. Yes, I believe so. I believe so.

Q. I want to make sure we're clear.

Your awareness predates the closing of the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan?

A. And I believe I was aware of that before the closing of the senior loan.

Q. Did you read any reports from Coopers & Lybrand relating to potential synergies prior to the closing of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan?

A. I don't recall my evaluation of that particular report.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. You don't recall the timing of it?

A. I don't recall the timing.

Q. You did read it at some point, correct?

A. I don't recall whether I read it or not.

Q. Did you understand that Coopers & Lybrand -- the Coopers & Lybrand analysis was based on information that Coopers & Lybrand -- strike that.

Did you have any understanding, sir, that Coopers & Lybrand's evaluation of synergies relied upon any of the information contained in CPH Exhibit No. 200?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.

Q. Do you have CPH Exhibit 200, sir? I want to make sure you understand what document I'm referring to.

THE WITNESS: Could you read back that question.

(Record read.)

A. I don't recall whether I knew that or not.

Q. Did anyone from Coopers & Lybrand ever advise you that they had relied on statements made to them from Mr. Levin concerning potential synergies?

A. I don't recall if those representations were made or not.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question back, please.

(Record read.)

Q. I guess I don't understand your response in the context of that question, sir.

My question was whether you were ever advised by Coopers & Lybrand that they had relied on information they had received from Mr. Levin concerning potential synergies?

A. And I don't recall whether we were advised to that matter or not.

Q. Looking at the list of items contained in CPH Exhibit No. 200, sir, do you have any recollection, as you sit here, whether the Coopers & Lybrand evaluation of potential synergies included any or all of these potential actions?

Page 143

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't have a recollection.

Q. Let me direct your attention to interrogatory No. -- response to interrogatory No. 6, sir, in CPH Exhibit No. 199.

A. Okay.

Q. It's at the bottom of page 11. Take a moment to read that question and the response to yourself.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Interrogatory No. 6 calls for the identification of each individual involved in the decision to approve the credit agreement and/or bank facility.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And that's a -- you understood that to be a reference to what we've been referring to as the senior loan?

A. Correct.

Q. Turn to the list of individuals that appears on page 12. From this list of 16 individuals, by my count, can you tell me who -- which of these individuals, in fact, authorized the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan to Sunbeam?

Page 144

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.

A. Authorized? What do you mean by "authorized"?

Q. Okay. That's, I think, a fair question.

What I'm inquiring about -- was it the case that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding had a procedure in place that required authorization from one or more individuals prior to entering into a commitment to loan money to Sunbeam?

A. Yes, there's a procedure in place.

Q. Was that procedure followed in this case, to your knowledge?

A. To my knowledge, it was followed.

Q. And what did that procedure involve?

A. A presentation to the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee.

Q. Was it the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee that had the final decision making authority concerning whether Morgan Stanley Senior Funding would make the senior loan to Sunbeam?

Page 145

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. That's my understanding, yes.

Q. Can you identify for me which of the individuals on this list participated in that decision or made that decision?

A. Made the decision by virtue of being on the committee?

Q. Well, was there a vote taken, is that the way the process works? Are there members of the Leveraged Finance Committee?

A. There are members of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee.

Q. And did those individuals vote with respect to whether or not to approve Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's participation in the senior loan to Sunbeam?

A. There is -- voting, per se, isn't done. It's a consensus. There's a unanimous consensus. And that was reached.

Q. Is it always the case that there has to be a consensus before Morgan Stanley Senior Funding is authorized to make loans of this sort?

A. I'm not aware of -- I -- I guess one thing that I should make clear, I'm not a member -- at this point in time, I was not a member of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee. So, I would not have been privy to the actual -- to use your words, the vote taking or the decision.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

I'm not aware of inconsistencies in terms of whether or not there's a dissent or what have you. My understanding is that it's a unanimous approval. I'm not aware -- I'm -- what follows is, I guess, I'm not aware of a situation where there wasn't unanimous approval.

Q. With respect to any Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan?

A. I'm not aware of that occurring, no.

Q. Do you know which of these individuals participated as a member of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee?

A. Who were present at that meeting? My -- my recollection is that Steve Newhouse was there and Mike Rankowitz was there. Bill Strong was calling in via phone. And I'm not certain as to the other parties. They may or may not have been there.

Q. Was Mr. Strong a voting member of the committee?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't believe he was.

Q. Was Mr. Newhouse a voting member of the committee?

A. My understanding is that he was.

Q. Was Mr. Rankowitz a voting member of the committee?

A. Yes.

Q. Are there any individuals, other than Mr. Newhouse and Mr. Rankowitz, who were on this list because they participated in the approval of the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan to Sunbeam as a voting member of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.

A. I'm -- I apologize. I missed that question. Is there -- were there others present?

Q. No. On this list, is there anyone, other than Mr. Newhouse and Mr. Rankowitz, whose name appears on this list because he or she was a voting member of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I got you. My understanding -- I believe Rick Felix was a voting member. And I'm not sure of the other parties.

Q. Maybe the interrogatory answer tells me something I haven't noticed.

Do you see, sir, beneath the list of name it says, "Each of the above persons was a member of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it your understanding that all of the individuals that appear on this list were, in fact, members of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee in March of 1998?

A. The -- I'm unsure of the others, with the exception of me. And I was not a member, so that is --

Q. So, that's wrong?

A. -- a correction in that respect.

Q. But you didn't note that when you reviewed this and signed that this was true and correct, to the best of your information and belief?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Yes, I -- that was an oversight on my part. My apologies.

Q. Is there anyone, other than yourself, on this list who you know was not a member of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee in March of 1998?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Putting yourself aside, about -- do you know whether Bram Smith was a member of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee in March of 1998?

A. I don't know for certain.

Q. Mr. Smith was working on the Sunbeam loan directly, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And Mr. Strong was the client relations managing director at Sunbeam -- for Morgan Stanley with Sunbeam, correct?

A. I think, yes, that's fairly accurate.

Q. And you were working on the Sunbeam loan, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Are any of the other people that are listed on this list in response to item No. 6 people who were directly working on the Sunbeam transactions?

A. I'm not aware of any of those individuals as being directly involved in the transaction.

Q. Putting aside yourself, Mr. Smith and Mr. Strong, do you know what, if anything, the other individuals whose names appear in response to interrogatory No. 6 did in connection with the evaluation of whether to approve a loan from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to Sunbeam?

A. I was -- I was present in the meeting, the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting, where the transaction would have been presented.

The discussion of the business, discussion of the overall transactions would have occurred. And those individuals would have had the benefit of that in making their decision.

Q. Do you know if all these people were present at the meeting?

A. I don't recall. I -- the individuals that I mentioned to you are the ones that I have a distinct recollection. The others, I don't remember whether or not they were there or not.

Q. Other than attending the meeting, do you have any knowledge concerning what, if anything, any of the individuals whose names appear on -- in response to interrogatory No. 6 did in connection with their decision to approve the loan to Sunbeam? Again, excluding, you, Mr. Smith and Mr. Strong.

A. Beyond the meeting, no, I don't know what they may have done.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 1:35. We're back on the record. This begins tape number three of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Michael Hart.

MICHAEL HART, resumed and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION (Cont'd.)

BY MR. MARKOWSKI:

Q. Mr. Hart, let me show you what we're going to mark as CPH Deposition Exhibit No. 201. It's a document filed by Morgan Stanley Senior Funding in the lawsuit that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding filed against MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman Parent Holdings. It's entitled, "Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's -- Funding Inc.'s Responses and Objections to Defendant Coleman Parent Holdings, Inc.'s Second Set of Interrogatories."

(CPH Exhibit 201, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc.'s Responses and Objections to Defendant Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Second Set of Interrogatories, marked for identification, as of this date.)

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Mr. Hart, can you tell me whether you've seen this document before?

A. I do recall seeing it.

Q. Let me direct your attention to page 11 of the document.

A. Um-hum.

Q. Is that your signature?

A. It is.

Q. And were you verifying under oath in signing this document that the answers to the interrogatories given in this document were, quote, true and correct upon information and belief and to the best of my knowledge, close quote?

A. Yes.

Q. The date of your signature is October 7, 19 -- 2003; is that correct?

A. That's what it says, yes.

Q. Do you recall how long you had this document to review prior to your signing the verification?

A. I don't.

Q. Let me ask this question, Mr. Hart: Did you, in fact, have a copy of the interrogatory answers at the time you signed the verification that appears on page 11, or did you simply sign a verification form and provide it to counsel?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.

A. I'm not aware that I didn't have the -- the interrogatories, if that's what these are.

Q. Interrogatory answers?

A. Interrogatory answers, yeah.

Q. Your recollection is that you had a copy of the interrogatory answers to review prior to signing the verification?

A. That's my recollection, yes.

Q. Are you certain of that?

A. Not certain, no.

Q. So, it's possible, in your mind, that you signed the verification form without reviewing the interrogatory answers?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Argumentative.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't think it's possible. I think I did have the answers at the time of signature.

Q. But you don't recall how long you had them before you verified them?

A. I don't recall how long I had them.

Q. Do you recall what, if anything, you did to -- well, strike that.

Do you recall what, if anything, you did in connection with verifying the interrogatory answers that are contained in CPH Exhibit 201?

A. I don't recall what I did -- what I had done.

Q. Did you read them?

A. It's my recollection that I did read them.

Q. Is it possible that you didn't read them?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form and argumentative.

A. I don't think it's possible that I didn't read them.

Q. Did you read them carefully?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. My recollection is that I did read them carefully.

Q. Do you know whether you supplied -- strike that.

Do you know whether you were the source of any of the information contained in the -- in these interrogatory answers?

A. I'm not aware of whether or not I was. I don't recall if I was.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the response to interrogatory No. 1. Strike that.

Let me -- let's skip to interrogatory No. 2. I have a fairly simple question about that one.

Interrogatory No. 2 appears on page 4 of the exhibit. Read the response to yourself, please.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Interrogatory No. 2 calls for the identification of each instance in which an MSSF employee or representative traveled to Florida in connection with the senior bank loan, correct?

A. The credit agreement and the bank facility.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. And that's what we've been referring to today is the senior bank loan, correct?

A. Credit agreement is specific. Credit agreement is the negotiation of the document. And the bank facility, that's a -- the facility itself.

Q. Do you understand that to mean something other than the -- what we've been referring to today as the senior bank loan?

A. It could be construed to be that, yeah.

Q. Now, the response states that, "No MSSF employee or representative traveled to Florida in connection with the Credit Agreement or The Bank Facility." Correct?

A. That's what it states, yes.

Q. It's not a correct statement, is it?

A. I think we talked a little earlier about Bram Smith traveling to Florida on a diligence trip.

Q. And Mr. Smith made that trip as a representative of MSSF, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.

A. Mr. Smith was an employee of Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc.
Q. Did you understand that -- excuse me. I didn't mean to interrupt you.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I cut off the last part of his answer. Did you get that.
THE WITNESS: Doesn't matter. There's no other answer.
Q. I'm sorry. I didn't hear you.
A. There is none. That was it.
Q. Did you understand that the purpose of Mr. Smith's trip to Florida was in connection with the evaluation whether Morgan Stanley Senior Funding would participate in the senior bank loan to Sunbeam?
A. My understanding, it was -- that it was a diligence trip. And that's the extent of my knowledge. When it was determined that I wasn't going on it, I really don't have any other knowledge as to what went on or what took place with respect to it.
Q. The only responsibilities that Mr. Smith had at Morgan Stanley, Mr. Hart, were as -- or in connection with the business of

Page 159

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, were are they not?
MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation. These questions are more appropriately directed to Mr. Smith.
A. I don't know.
Q. Well, let me just ask you a very direct question, sir.
You knew that Mr. Smith had made a trip to Florida in connection with matters related to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam, correct?
A. I recall that it did.
Q. And I just want to understand what the failure to disclose that in this interrogatory answer reflects.
Is it a mistake, or did you interpret this as not calling for you to disclose to us that Mr. Smith had made a trip to Florida?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question. And, Bob, I really think it's inappropriate for you to be asking these questions.
The interpretation of the interrogatories is not something this

Page 160

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
witness is here qualified to do. Nor is it a proper question of examination.
The interrogatory answers says that, based on the investigation to date, that was the information that was being provided. And I think it's inappropriate for you to suggest otherwise to the witness.
So, I object on the grounds it's argumentative and I think this whole line of questioning is a wasteful of time of the witness's information about his personal involvement.
Subject to that, you can answer.
A. I -- I -- as I've said, I answered these to the best of my knowledge at this point in time. And, if it was an oversight, it was an oversight.
Q. I'm just trying to understand whether it was an oversight or not.
A. Well, I believe, to the best of my recollection, at this point, Bram did make a trip to Florida for diligence.
Q. And re -- go ahead. I didn't mean to cut you off. I'm sorry.

Page 161

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
A. I'm done.
Q. You swore that, to the best of your knowledge and belief, the response provided here in interrogatory No. 2 is true and correct, correct?
A. That's right, with the information available to my recollection at the time. And that was the case.
Q. Is it your testimony that, in verifying that the statement that no MSSF representative traveled to Florida in connection with the bank facility, that you forgot that Mr. Smith had made a trip to Florida in your place in connection with the loan?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I will say that what I -- what I signed here was true, to the best of my understanding at this point in time, based upon the information, my belief.
Q. I'm just trying to understand whether you forgot it or whether you didn't think it was called for or whether you signed it knowing it wasn't correct?

the question. And I object to the suggestion in the question. It's improper.

A. I did not sign it knowing it to be incorrect. I signed it to the best of my abilities based upon the information and belief -- and to the best of my knowledge on October 7.

Q. Do you agree today that it's incorrect?

A. It would appear to be incorrect if, in fact, Bram Smith took that trip.

Q. Now, is there any reason why you were able to remember today, when I asked you about Mr. Smith's activities, that Mr. Smith had made a trip to Florida on your behalf and that you didn't remember that in October of 2003 when you verified this statement, that no one from MSSF and no representatives of MSSF had traveled to Florida?

A. Not in particular, other than it's -- there's more information that we've gone through today that, obviously, makes it -- or responds a response.

Q. Let me direct your attention back to

A. Okay.

Q. It's on page 2 toward the bottom. For the moment, I'm just going to ask to you read the interrogatory itself. You don't need to look at the response for the moment.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Did you do anything, sir, in an effort to determine what information was available that might be responsive to the inquiry in interrogatory No. 1 for the identification of communications between MSSF employees or representatives in Florida concerning the credit agreement or the bank facility?

A. In terms of identifying what exactly the communication was?

Q. In terms of trying to determine what information might be available, whether it would be responsive.

A. I don't recall if I did anything with respect to that or not.

Q. You personally had engaged in communications with individuals in Florida concerning the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan to Sunbeam, had you not?

A. I believe I had, yes.

Q. Did you suggest that your own activities be disclosed in this interrogatory answer when you reviewed it?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I don't recall if I offered that as a suggestion.

Q. Did -- with whom, Mr. Hart, do you recall discussing Exhibit 201 prior to the time you verified it?

A. I don't recall discussions.

Q. You don't recall any discussions with anyone at Kirkland & Ellis?

A. I don't recall them, no.

Q. Do you recall any discussions with any in-house Morgan Stanley attorneys?

A. I don't recall them, no.

Q. Do you recall any discussions with anyone else at Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. No, I don't recall having that discussion or not.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Sorry. Did you ask anyone else to assist you in reviewing the accuracy of the statements contained in Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's second set of interrogatories?

A. Don't recall if I did or not.

Q. I misspoke. Let me rephrase the question.

Do you recall asking anyone else to assist you in determining the accuracy of the responses of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to Coleman Parent's second set of interrogatories?

A. I don't recall if I made that request.

Q. Let me direct your attention to pages 6 and 7 of the document. Do you see the boxed material at the bottom of page 6 and the top of page 7?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see the reference above that box to the 15 areas of purported synergies totaling $150.5 million?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see the box only contains 12 items?

A. Yes.

A. Don't recall if I did note that.

Q. Mr. Smith -- excuse me, I'm sorry. Mr. Hart, let me show you what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 160.

A. Um-hum.

Q. Do you have CPH Exhibit 200 handy, sir? It's the two-page fax.

A. Yes.

Q. Turn to the second page of CPH Exhibit No. 200. Does the typed material on the second page of CPH Exhibit No. 200, the fax from Mr. Fannin to Messrs. Strong, Stynes and Kitts appear to be the same as the typed information on CPH Exhibit No. 160 to you?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Waste of time.

A. It looks the same, but for the

Page 167

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

handwriting.

Q. And my question is going to be about the handwriting.

A. Okay.

Q. I wanted to connect the two documents in your mind. Do you recognize any of the handwriting on CPH Exhibit No. 160, sir?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you see the boxed handwritten item in the upper left-hand corner, "Ready, Fire, Aim"?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what that expression means?

A. No idea.

Q. You've never heard anyone use that expression?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Do you know, sir -- do you see several of the dollar values that appear on the typed portion of CPH Exhibit No. 160 has been stricken with handwritten lines?

A. Yes.

Page 168

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. And, in some cases, they been stricken entirely and some cases another number has been written next to the item. Do you see that?

A. Um-hum.

Q. In some cases, the number that's written is zero. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know, sir, what, if any, credit either Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam management gave to the 15 items that appear on CPH Exhibit No. 160?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Calls for speculation.

A. I don't have a view there.

Q. By "credit" I just want to make sure you understand what I'm driving at. Whether Sunbeam management or Morgan Stanley concluded that the item reflected an appropriate action that might be taken if Morgan Stanley -- if Sunbeam acquired Coleman Company and what value, in terms of synergies, might be realized if that action was taken? Did you understand my question to call for that?

A. No.

Page 169

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Do you know what items on CPH Exhibit No. 160 that Sunbeam management believed would be appropriate actions to take, if Sunbeam acquired Coleman Company?

A. I don't recall the specifics, and I'm not familiar with this -- having not prepared or received it, I'm not familiar with these, no.

Q. Did anyone advise you, sir, that Sunbeam management had concluded that some or all of the synergy ideas that had been suggested by Mr. Levin at the December 12, 1997 meeting had been rejected by Sunbeam management?

A. I was not aware that that had occurred. Or at least I don't recall that I had been made aware of that.

Q. Do you know whether anyone at Morgan Stanley & Company had come to the conclusion that the -- some or all of the items that were identified by Mr. Levin as potential areas for synergies should not be given any dollar value?

A. I don't know if anyone else had come to that conclusion, no.

Q. Mr. Hart, let me show you what we're marking for identification as CPH Exhibit No.

202. It's a one-page document. It bears Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 3931.

(CPH Exhibit 202, Document entitled, "Project Laser Key Synergies Assumptions", marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Take a moment, sir, and look at this document.

(Witness reading document.)

Q. My first question is going to be whether you've seen it before, either with or without the handwriting.

A. I don't recall having seen this.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Does it appear to be -- do you recognize Project Laser as the code name within Morgan Stanley for its work for Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see the title of this document is "Key Synergy Assumptions"?

A. Um-hum.

Q. You have to answer audibly.

A. I'm sorry. Yes.

Q. Do you see the -- there are three columns of numbers in the middle of the page?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Yes.

Q. One -- the first column is entitled "Original," the second column is entitled "Rev (12/97)" and the right-hand column is entitled "Rev (1/98)"?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see that?

Do you see that the first column of numbers totals, according to the document, 150.5 million? There's a grand total line at the bottom.

A. Yes.

Q. And the middle column totals 107.5 million. Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. And the far right-hand column, the Rev 1/98 number total 67 -- looks like 67.8 million. Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. Did anyone at Morgan Stanley advise you, sir, in connection with your evaluation of the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan to Sunbeam, that Morgan Stanley personnel, in working with Sunbeam management, had determined that the $150 million in potential synergy ideas identified by Mr. Levin in December 1997 should be valued at something approximating $67 million?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I don't recall being made aware of that.

Q. Did anyone advise you, generally, sir -- does this refresh your recollection -- let me put it that way -- that you were made aware that Morgan Stanley analysts and investment bankers had determined that most of the synergy ideas suggested by Mr. Levin in December 1997 to Sunbeam management should not be credited?

A. I don't recall being made aware of that, no.

Q. Is that something that would have been of interest to you in connection with the work you were doing?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. It's impossible for me to tell whether that was a relevant data point or not in the absence of context and other information.

Q. So, as you sit here today, it doesn't

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

jump out at you as something you would have wanted to know in connection with your evaluation of whether Morgan Stanley Senior Funding should participate in the senior loan to Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. And asked and answered.

A. I don't have any recollection as to being made aware of that. And I don't know what the source or -- the source of this is. And so, if you're hypothetically asking would I be interested in that, it's not something that I have an opinion on. It would be -- it would take far more analysis for me to determine whether or not that would be a factor in the analysis.

Q. Let me give you a couple of assumptions. You tell me whether they matter to you in terms of whether this is a significant piece of information to you.

Let's assume that Mr. Levin met with Sunbeam management in December of 1997 and provided the list that you see attached -- that you see in Exhibit -- CPH Exhibit 160.

And let's assume that CPH Exhibit No. 202 is an internal Morgan Stanley analysis as of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017345

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

December 1998 that attributes, approximately, $67 million in value to the items that Mr. Levin discussed with Sunbeam management in December 1997 rather than 150.5 million.

With those assumptions, sir, is that analysis something that you would have wanted to know in connection with your evaluation whether Morgan Stanley Senior Funding should participate in the senior loan to Sunbeam?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Incomplete hypothetical.

A. In isolation, I can't draw that conclusion. Synergies alone were not the factor that would have been determined -- that would have been determined.

Q. So, as you sit here, you are not in a position to form an opinion whether that's an analysis that you even would have been interested in knowing about in connection with the work you were doing?

A. Given the number of assumptions that you made, yes, it's impossible.

Q. You can put those documents aside for the moment, sir.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Okay.

Q. When do you recall, Mr. Hart, first becoming involved in anything relating to the work that Morgan Stanley & Company was doing for Sunbeam?

A. General recollection, February -- I believe it was February '87.

MR. CLARE: '97 or --

A. Feeling a little --

Q. Where were you in February of '87?

A. Yes, February of '97.

Q. Your first recollection is being involved in February of 1997.

Let me give you a date and time and see if that affects your answer.

The Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closed at the end of March 1998.

A. I'm sorry. Yes. I'm missing a year. Yes. February of '98. Thank you.

Q. Now, I'll represent something to you, sir. The Morgan Stanley investment bankers began working with Sunbeam in the first part of 1997 concerning potential investment banking transactions. Were you aware of that?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. No, I was not.

Q. Were you aware, sir, that you were identified in connection with work that Morgan Stanley & Company was doing for Sunbeam in 1997 as a member of the Morgan Stanley/Sunbeam team?

A. I'm, generally -- I'm, generally, not aware of it, although I did review a document yesterday that had a deal team sheet on it that included me on it.

So, as a result of that review, I can surmise that, you know, that, in fact, was -- that was, in fact, put together.

Q. Let me show you what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit No. 69.

THE WITNESS: Does this go to you?

MR. MARKOWSKI: No, it's previously marked.

THE WITNESS: Oh, great.

Q. Is this the document that you saw in preparing for your deposition to which you just referred?

A. Yeah, this looks familiar.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the page that bears Bates No. Morgan Stanley 3924.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Do you have that page in front of you?

A. I do, yes.

Q. It's entitled "Project Laser Working Group List." Do you see that?

A. Um-hum.

Q. I'm sorry. Did you answer, sir? Do you see that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. As of September 11, 1997, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Your name appears on this page, correct?

A. It does, yes.

Q. Under "Debt Capital Markets: Bank Loan"?

A. Yeah.

Q. Your name appears along with Bram Smith and Michael McLaughlin, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it has your name, it has your office, telephone number, fax and pager number, your home telephone number and your home address, correct?

A. Correct.

Page 178

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Does this refresh your recollection, in any way, that you were involved, prior to February 1998, in connection with some aspect of the work that Morgan Stanley was doing for Sunbeam?

A. No. It wouldn't be uncommon to have a working group list that would have any number of components pulled together.

For instance, Mike McLaughlin was included, but I don't believe he worked on the transaction. It would be more of a generic collection of people that could potentially work on the deal.

Q. Was Mike McLaughlin somebody who had responsibilities for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. He worked with the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding -- or, again, sorry. I probability should -- nobody works within Morgan Stanley Senior Funding. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding is the booking unit for our loans. Mike McLaughlin was within the bank loan group, if you will.

Q. How would you refer to that group of people?

Page 179

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Technically, at that point in time, they were within -- we were within Leveraged Finance, which was the organizational structure.

Q. Do you know who would have made the decision to include you and Mr. McLaughlin, along with Mr. Smith, in the working group list for September 1997?

A. No, I don't specifically know.

Q. That doesn't affect your thinking with respect to when you started working?

A. It doesn't, no.

Q. How do you recall becoming involved in -- let me ask a better -- hopefully a better question.

You indicated that you first became involved in the Sunbeam project in, approximately, February of 1998.

A. Yeah.

Q. What do you recall your first involvement to be?

A. Becoming generally aware that there was a potential acquisition and a financing opportunity.

Page 180

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Do you recall how you first became aware that Morgan Stanley was performing work for Sunbeam that might potentially involve a senior loan component?

A. No, not specifically.

Q. Did Mr. Smith come to you and ask you to work on the project?

A. I don't recall if Bram contacted me or not.

Q. Would that be the normal way things worked back in the first part of 1998?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. One potential way I could have been involved would have been Bram requesting my involvement.

Q. It's possible that someone else could have done that?

A. Possibly.

Q. Who -- so, Mr. Smith was the person to whom you reported, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. But others could involve you on projects without first going to Mr. Smith and asking for you to be assigned to a matter?

Page 181

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. No. I was answering the question, how did I first become aware of the transaction. And that could be through a different forum.

Q. Okay. I'm sorry. I'm -- we were ships passing in the night.

A. Sure.

Q. You're not certain whether it was Mr. Smith or someone else who first advised you of a potential senior loan to Sunbeam, correct?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Do you recall how you first became assigned to work on the project?

A. No. Other than you properly pointed out, Bram Smith would have assigned me to the transaction.

Q. Can you recall what your first activities were?

A. No, not really.

Q. At that point in 1998, did you keep any record of your activities during the course of the day at Morgan Stanley?

A. Generally, during the course of the day?

Q. Yes. Would you somehow keep a record of what you were spending your time on?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01754

A. Not in the context of a time sheet or something like that, no.
Q. Would you keep some -- a log of some sort that reflected what projects you were working on during the course of a particular day?
A. No, no.
Q. Did you keep a personal calendar or business calendar?
A. I have a calendar. I have -- you know, our system that has the calendar that would have on it some of the meetings that I attend.
Q. Do you know if the record of your activities, your calendar for March and February of 1998 at Morgan Stanley, still exist?
A. I don't know if it exists or not.
Q. Do you have a copy of any form of calendar for that time period?
A. I'm not aware that I have a copy of any of that.
Q. Over what period of time did you continue to work on the Sunbeam-related project?
A. In its entirety?
Q. Yes, your entire involvement.

A. From that period of time through, I believe, my departure to London, which I want to say January -- January 2000.
Q. When you were assigned to London, did you have any continuing involvement of any sort in any aspect of the work that Morgan Stanley had done for Sunbeam?
A. Not to my recollection. I did -- I was deposed during that time, subsequent to that, but that's my recollection of what my involvement was.
Q. When did you return to the United States?
A. 2000 -- beginning of 2002. I spent two years in London.
Q. Since your return, have you had any involvement in any --
A. I have not been, no. I haven't -- haven't been close to the situation. I run the Loan Products Group. And I'm just trying to think if there was any -- no, I haven't had involvement whatsoever.
Q. You kind of jumped the gun on me there, but I was going to ask you if you had any involvement in connection with Sunbeam, the loan to Sunbeam. And that's what you were answering, correct?

A. I was just trying to think if there was any overlap in the general course. And, no, that responsibility had been shifted -- the responsibility for monitoring had been shifted to Mitch Petrick.
Q. How did you find yourself with the assignment of verifying the interrogatory answers in this case, then?
A. Don't know how I was chosen.
Q. When you became involved in work relating to possible loan from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to Sunbeam, sir, were you aware that Morgan Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was potentially going to find itself competing with other financial institutions for the financing-related assignments?
A. I don't recall exactly what the competitive dynamic was on the -- with respect to the financing.
Q. Were you aware that there was some concern that Chase Securities might compete for the financing?

A. I don't specifically recall them as -- as a -- as a competitor for the financing.
Q. Was it certain in your mind, at the time that you first became involved in the project, that Sunbeam would retain Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to provide the senior bank financing if Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was willing to make the loan?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form.
A. Again, I don't recall what the terms of the engagement were that either locked up or had us competing for the financing. So, I am unclear on that at this point.
Q. So, you don't know one way or the other -- did you know that Morgan Stanley had an engagement letter with Sunbeam in connection with the work that was being performed?
A. I understood there to be an M&A engagement letter, yes.
Q. Did you have an understanding whether that obligated Sunbeam to use Morgan Stanley to provide financing services as well?
A. I'm not aware as to what the provisions were around locking up financing. I don't recall that.

Q. Now, I'll give you another date, sir. The agreement between -- the agreements between Sunbeam and Coleman Company for the acquisition -- and my clients as well -- concerning the acquisition by Sunbeam of Coleman Company were entered into on February 27th, 1998.

Do you recall what, if any, active work you did relating to potential financing activities prior to that time?

A. Financing activities around the -- the provisioning of the loan?

Q. Yes.

A. As I said, I participated in some elements of diligence and worked on the negotiation of the credit agreement.

Q. Your recollection is that -- those activities occurred prior to February 27th of '98?

A. February -- oh, I'm sorry. No, those would have -- those would have occurred leading up to the closing of the transaction, which I believe was March 31.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. I'm trying to work this in segments.

A. Sure.

Q. You first became aware, you said, of potential financing involving Sunbeam in early February?

A. Right.

Q. The contracts relating to Coleman -- the acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam were entered into in late February.

I'm trying to understand if you have any recollection of your activities relating to Sunbeam between the time you first became aware of it and when you were advised that agreements had been reached for Sunbeam to acquire Coleman.

A. Don't recall. Don't recall what that involvement may have been.

Q. Mr. Hart, let me show you what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 37.

A. Okay.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. It's a document entitled, "Itinerary John Tyree," and it covers the period from Wednesday, March 4, 1998 through Thursday, March,

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

5, 1998. Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Do you see a reference to the MS team meeting with Mr. Tyree at the company in the second line of the document?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you see a reference to the MS team members on the following line?

A. Yes.

Q. And the names listed are Bram Smith, Seth Ishaan, Thomas Burchill and Michael Hart. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you, in fact, attend a meeting at Sunbeam in early March 1998?

A. It's my recollection that I didn't attend it, did not.

Q. Do you know why?

A. Not specifically.

Q. Do you know what the purpose for the -- your attending the trip would have been?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you know what work you had done relating to the Sunbeam project prior to March 4,

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

1998?

A. I don't recall what I would have done prior to that, no.

Q. Mr. Hart, let me show you what we marked previously as CPH Exhibit No. 74. That's a document on Morgan Stanley stationery dated March 5, 1998. It bears Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 80356 through 358.

And it's a letter addressed to Sunbeam Corporation, attention Russell A. Kersh, vice chairman and chief financial officer. And it's signed on behalf of Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc. by R. Bram Smith.

Take a moment to review the March 5 letter for a moment, from Mr. Smith to Mr. Kersh, if you would, sir.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Can you tell me what this letter is -- strike that. Let me ask a foundational question.

Have you seen this before, sir?

A. I have not. I don't recall having seen it, no.

Q. Are you familiar with this type of letter?

A. It appears to be some sort of a -- I'm looking for the proper term. Bear with me. Yeah, it's form of a highly confident letter.

Q. What's a highly confident letter?

A. It's a letter that's used to express a view as to the doability of a particular financing subject to a number of conditions.

Q. Did Mr. Smith have authority on behalf of Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to issue highly confident letters?

MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation. Calls for speculation.

A. I don't know if he had authority or not.

Q. Are you -- do you know whether there is a process, or was a process in March of 1998, that required Mr. Smith to obtain approval from others before issuing a letter of the sort that you wrote to Mr. Kersh on March 5, 1998?

A. I'm not aware of a process that may have been in place or not.

Q. I'm sorry. You had indicated earlier that Leveraged Finance Committee approval was required to authorize Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to enter into a loan commitment, correct?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Correct.

Q. Are you aware of whether there was a similar process or some alternative process relating to the issuance of highly confident letters in advance of such financings?

A. I'm not aware of the process that would have existed for the issuance of a highly confident letter.

Q. Did Mr. Smith consult with you, in any way, concerning the appropriateness of issuing a highly confident letter to Sunbeam on March 5, 1998?

A. I don't recall having any conversations with Bram regarding the issuance of this letter.

Q. Do you know whether it was at Mr. Strong's -- strike that.

Do you know whether Mr. Strong was the person within Morgan Stanley & Company that requested that a highly confident letter be issued concerning the senior bank facility?

A. I'm not aware that Bill requested that or was involved in that decision to issue it.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Did anyone suggest to you that competitive pressures concerning Sunbeam might turn to another financing source caused Mr. Smith to send this letter?

A. I'm not aware of that -- those factors, no.

Q. Did anyone -- did you ever suggest to Mr. Smith that it would be a good idea to send Sunbeam a highly confident letter to increase the likelihood that Sunbeam would use Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to provide the senior bank facility?

A. I don't recall ever making that comment to Mr. Smith.

Q. Are you aware, sir, of any requirement within Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding that due diligence be substantially complete prior to the issuance of a highly confident letter relating to a senior bank loan?

A. I'm not aware of policies or procedures that speak to that, no.

Q. Is that the case even today?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I'm not aware of the specific procedures around that.

Q. Do you know if there are any written procedures relating to the issuance of highly confident letters relating to senior bank loans?

MR. CLARE: During what time period?

MR. MARKOWSKI: In existence in 1998.

A. I'm not aware as to whether or not they existed or not.

Q. Who would be knowledgeable about that, whether such policies existed, do you know?

A. Not really, no.

Q. Do you know what the purpose of a highly confident letter is?

A. Generally, or in this specific instance?

Q. Generally.

A. It can have a any number of means. It can be used for any number of purposes.

Q. Can you tell me what those are?

A. One could be to express interest in doing a financing and present a preliminary view.

Q. Are there others? I'd like you to tell me all the reasons that you can think of.

01/350

Page 194

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
A. That's the primary one.
Q. Is one of the reasons that a highly confident letter would be issued is to increase the chance that the business would be awarded to Morgan Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. I'm not aware of that as -- my -- my perception, my understanding of the use of highly confident is to express a view on the doability of a financing for the benefit of your client.
Q. Do you have any view concerning whether it would be inappropriate to issue a highly confident letter primarily for competitive reasons?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Incomplete hypothetical.
Q. By "competitive reasons," I mean to increase the chance that the loan business will be awarded to Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding.
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I -- I'm struggling with -- I'm not -- I'm struggling because I don't think of that as a use of a highly confident letter. So, I -- it's difficult for me to assess something being used

Page 195

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
in that manner.
Q. That's why -- when you said that, that's what caused me to ask whether you thought that would be an inappropriate use for a highly confident letter.
A. I really don't have an opinion of that.
Q. Mr. Hart, let me show you what we're marking as CPH Exhibit 203. It's a set of Morgan Stanley employee expense reports bearing Bates No. Morgan Stanley 5614 through 5627.
(CPH Exhibit 203, Morgan Stanley employee expense reports, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Hart, can you tell me what this document is?
A. It looks to be a time and expense report, one of mine, from February to -- February 1st to February 19th, '98.
Q. My questions are going to focus on the first two pages of the document, sir.
A. Okay.
Q. The first page of the document -- actually let me start with the second page.

Page 196

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
A. Okay.
Q. It bears Bates No. 5615. Do you see that? There's an entry date of departure, February 19, 1998; cities visited, San Diego, California; purpose of trip, lodging Marriott Hotel. Then handwritten next to that entry the words "Project Laser, business." I'm not sure what that last word is. Development, perhaps?
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?
A. I don't.
Q. That is your signature on the first page --
A. It is.
Q. -- of the exhibit, is it not, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you engage in activity in San Diego, California related to the work that Morgan Stanley was doing for Sunbeam in February of 1998?
A. Not to my knowledge, no.
Q. Do you think this is a mistake?

Page 197

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
A. It's the only thing I can think of. I'm wracking my brain to figure out what I would have been doing in San Diego. I don't know. Could have been a mistake. I don't know who wrote the "Project Laser business development." Probably a mistake.
Q. Let me show you another set of expense reports that we're marking as CPH Exhibit No. 204. They bear Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 42328 through 42341.
(CPH Exhibit 204, Morgan Stanley employee expense reports, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. My comments, again -- my questions, again, at this point, Mr. Hart, are going to focus on the first couple of pages.
A. Okay.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay.
Q. Is that your signature on the first page of Exhibit 204?
A. Yes, it appears to be.
Q. It's your expense report for the period February 25, 1998 to March 17, 1998, sir?

A. Looks like it, yeah.
Q. There's a reference on the first page to a mileage charge --
A. Um-hum.
Q. -- on March 17, 1998. Do you see that?
A. March 17th? Yes.
Q. It's the last item on the column.
A. Yes.
Q. And the charge for that expense is $135. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And on the first page, it's -- it reflects, as I read this, that is being billed to Project Laser. Do you see that?
A. Um-hum.
Q. You have to answer audibly.
A. Oh, I'm sorry. Yes.
Q. Am I interpreting the document correctly?
A. Yes, you are.
Q. And then the second page has "Expense Report Detail." Do you see that?
A. Yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. March 17, 1998, date of departure, mileage driven, 450. Cities visited, the letters U.S. appear underneath that column. Purpose of trip, the entry is "mileage, New York to Massachusetts." Amount $135. Did you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall driving from New York to Massachusetts in mid-March 1998 in connection with work that was being done by you on Project Laser?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Can you think, as you sit here today, of any reason why you would have driven to Massachusetts in connection with work being done on the senior loan to Sunbeam?
A. No, I cannot.
Q. Is there anything elsewhere in this document, sir, that refreshes your recollection with respect to that?
A. I'll take a look. It could be a mis-code on the project name. I'm trying to think what -- no.
Q. Do you recall, Mr. Smith -- Mr. Hart, excuse me, traveling in connection with the work that you did on behalf of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to visit other banks or institutional investors with respect to discussions with them about potentially participating in the senior bank facility?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't recall traveling for that reason.
Q. Do you recall that, in addition to the senior bank facility, Morgan Stanley & Company was retained by Sunbeam as the underwriter with respect to a convertible debenture offering to obtain financing to be used in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. I'm aware of that, yes.
Q. Did you participate in any of the road -- are you aware of the fact that Morgan Stanley participated with Sunbeam in road show presentations relating to the convertible debenture offering?
A. In a general sense, I knew that was the marketing process.
Q. Did you participate in any of those meetings?
A. Not to my knowledge.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Did you participate -- strike that.
Did you have any involvement, Mr. Hart, in Morgan Stanley & Company's marketing efforts with respect to the convertible debentures?
A. Not to my knowledge. Not to my recollection.
Q. Mr. Hart, let me show you what we've previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 17. It's a March 19 -- excuse me -- a March 19, 1998 letter from Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc. It bears Bates No. MS 375 through MS 381. Take your time in reviewing it, sir.
A. Okay.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay.
Q. Have you ever seen this March 19, 1998 letter from Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley & Company, Inc., sir?
A. I don't recall having seen it, no.
Q. Are you familiar with this type of document?
A. It would appear to be a comfort letter, although it's a document I'm vaguely familiar with in that it doesn't have great applicability to the bank loan market.

Q. Do you recall, sir, whether you reviewed, prior to the closing of the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam, any comfort letters that Arthur Andersen provided to Morgan Stanley & Company relating to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall having reviewed those letters.

Q. Do you recall anyone reporting to you on any information contained in any comfort letters that Arthur Andersen provided to Morgan Stanley & Company prior to the closing of the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan?

A. I don't recall anybody reporting the results from those comfort letters to me prior to the closing.

Q. Did Mr. Tyree, sir, ever advise you that he had received -- he, personally, had received a comfort letter that Morgan Stanley had requested from Arthur Andersen relating to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall John having that conversation with me.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. How close were you in contact with Mr. Tyree during the period in which you were involved in the Sunbeam project up to the time the loan closed at the end of March?

A. I don't have a clear recollection as to how closely we were involved in terms of the day-to-day working relationship.

Q. Do you recall talking to him frequently during that time period relating to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall talking to him frequently, no.

Q. Were you in touch with him daily relating to work that Mr. Tyree was doing or that you were doing relating to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall talking to him daily, no.

Q. Can you estimate for me how many times you believed -- you believe you were in communication with Mr. Tyree between the time you first became involved in the Sunbeam-related work up to the time the loan closed?

A. No, not really.

Q. Was it infrequent?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I just don't have a recollection.

Q. Do you know whether Mr. Tyree was communicating with others at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding concerning his due diligence work?

A. I don't have specific information as to that occurring.

Q. Was somebody within Morgan Stanley -- was a Morgan Stanley Senior Funding representative identified as the contact person for Mr. Tyree in connection with his work?

A. Not an individual person. All members of the team would have had some contact with John throughout the process.

Q. You've had an opportunity to review the March 19 Andersen letter?

A. In a quick fashion, yes.

Q. Well, I don't want to rush you with this document, so take your time to take a look at it.

A. Okay.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Do you agree with me, sir, that Andersen's March 19, 1998 letter to Morgan

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Stanley & Company reports that Sunbeam's performance for the first two months of 1998 had been very poor?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I'm not in a position to draw that conclusion.

Q. Let me direct your attention to paragraph 6(c) of the Andersen letter.

A. Okay.

Q. It's on page 5 of the letter.

A. Yeah.

Q. It states, "Although the Company has not provided us with any financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, management has provided net sales from December 29, 1997 through March 1, 1998, which were $72,018,000 as compared to 143 -- $143,499,000 for the corresponding period -- for the corresponding period of the preceding year."

Do you see that statement?

A. Where are you reading?

Q. 6(c) at the top, page 5.

A. Yes, I see that.

Q. So, this letter was reporting that, for the first two months of 1998, Sunbeam's net sales were about half of what they had been for the first two months of 1997, correct? Let me restate the question so you can hear it.

Do you agree with me, sir, that this letter states that Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1998 are about half of what Sunbeam's net sales had been for the first two months of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form. The document speaks for itself.

You can answer.

A. I would agree that those numbers would be about half of one another.

Q. Do you know what the financial community's expectations were for Sunbeam sales for the first quarter of 1998 as they related to Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1997?

A. I don't recall what those expectations were.

Q. Do you recall that the financial community was expecting Sunbeam to realize sales in the first quarter of 1998 that were substantially higher than Sunbeam's net sales in the first quarter of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Calls for speculation.

A. I don't have a recollection to that degree.

Q. Did you become aware, sir, in mid-March 1998, that Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of the quarter were substantially below Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I don't recall becoming aware of that in that time period.

Q. Do you recall that you had several conversations with Bram Smith relating to that subject?

A. I don't recall the conversations occurring or not occurring.

Q. Now, if Mr. Smith has testified that he had several conversations with you on that subject, do you deny that those conversations took place?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I wouldn't deny. I said I don't recall whether they occurred or not.

Q. Would you agree with me that -- well, let me ask a different question, sir.

Had you had any discussions with Sunbeam management, prior to mid-March 1998, concerning how Sunbeam was doing in the first portion of the quarter?

A. I specifically don't recall having those conversations.

Q. You don't remember anyone from Sunbeam making any statements to you, or any statements that were made in your presence, concerning the status of Sunbeam's first quarter results prior to mid-March 1998?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did you make any inquiry, in connection with the due diligence work that you were doing on behalf of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, concerning how Sunbeam was performing in the first months of the quarter?

A. I don't recall whether I specifically made that inquiry or not.

Q. Did anyone report to you any information, whether it came directly from Sunbeam or from some other source, concerning how Sunbeam was doing in the first months of 1998?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't recall whether or not someone reported that to me or not.

Q. Is that something that you would have wanted to know in connection with the evaluation whether to recommend that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding participate in the senior loan facility?

A. What I would say is the first quarter results would be one of the many elements that we would have evaluated in determining the viability of the loan.

Q. But, as you sit here, you do not recall asking for or receiving any information relating to Sunbeam's first quarter results prior to the middle of March 1998?

A. Sitting here today, I don't recall, myself, receiving that information or inquiring.

Q. Did you become aware, at some point prior to the loan closing, sir, that Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1998 was, in fact, substantially below Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I have a general recollection that that did, in fact, occur, that the first quarter performance was less than the prior quarter -- or the prior year's quarter.
Q. I'm going to make sure we're focusing on the same piece of information.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Was there a point, sir, before the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closed that you became aware that Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1998 was substantially below Sunbeam's performance for the first two months of 1997?
A. Thank you for that clarification.
I don't recall, at this point, as to the specific timing -- as to the specific time when I found out that that performance was going to be along those lines.
Q. Do you recall, sir, any discussion, prior to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closing at the end of March, concerning Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1998?
A. I don't recall the specific discussion

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
around that involving myself or not.
Q. Well, do you have any general recollection, sir, of becoming aware, prior to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closing, that Sunbeam's net sales performance in the first two months of 1998 was below Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1997?
A. I don't have a general recollection, no.
Q. Do you have any recollection, sir, prior -- of there being any concern raised at Morgan Stanley & Company or at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relating to Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1997 -- excuse me -- for the first quarter of 1998 prior to the time the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closed at the end of March?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Could you read that question back to me.
(Record read.)
A. I don't have a recollection of that, no.
Q. Do you remember it being -- do you

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
remember Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1998 being the subject of any discussion at Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding prior to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closing at the end of March 1998?
A. I can only speak to the conversations involving myself. And I don't recall whether they occurred or not.
Q. Well, whether you were in the conversations or not, sir, do you have any knowledge of others raising concerns relating to Sunbeam's sales performance for the first quarter of 19989 prior to the time the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closed?
A. I don't recall whether I knew of other conversations occurring or not.
Q. You don't recall Mr. Smith, for example, alerting you to the fact that this was becoming an issue and he was involved in discussions about it?
A. I don't recall that, Bob, no.
Q. Did you have an understanding, prior to the time that the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closed that Sunbeam was doing poorly

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
in the first quarter of 1998?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall whether I had that understanding or not. I certainly wouldn't have been in a position to deem it poorly.
Q. Let me direct your attention to another portion of --
A. Okay.
Q. -- Arthur Andersen's March 19 letter, sir.
Let me refer you to paragraph 6(b).
A. 6(b).
Q. It appears on page 4 of the letter.
A. Okay.
Q. The first sentence in paragraph 6(b) states, "For the period from December 29, 1997 through March 16, 1998, consolidated net sales decreased as compared to the corresponding period of the preceding year primarily due to the Company's new early-buy program for outdoor grill sales which accelerated outdoor grill sales into the fourth quarter of 1997 -- of fiscal 1997."
Do you see that statement, sir?
A. Yes.

Q. Were you aware, prior to the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closing, that Sunbeam had engaged in business practices that resulted in the movement of sales from the first quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of 1997?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I don't recall being aware of that -- that occurring.

Q. And I assume you weren't aware that those practices, in Arthur Andersen's view, were having a significant adverse effect on Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1998; is that correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Foundation. Also mischaracterizes the document.

A. Yeah, I -- I don't have a -- I don't have a view on what Arthur Andersen was getting at here.

Q. No. Put the document aside for a second, sir.

Were you aware that Arthur Andersen had formed a view that Sunbeam had moved sales from the first quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of 1997 and that that practice was having a significant adverse effect on the net sales that Sunbeam was reporting in the first quarter of 1998?

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

A. I was not aware or don't recall being aware of Arthur Andersen forming that view.

Q. Did anyone within Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding express their own conclusion to you that Sunbeam's first quarter results were being adversely affected because it had moved sales from the first quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of 1997?

A. I don't recall anybody expressing that view to me or not.

Q. Let me show you, sir, what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 14. It's a Sunbeam press release from March 19, 1998.

A. Thank you.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Have you seen this document before, sir?

A. I don't recall seeing this document.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Were you aware, prior to the close of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's loan to Sunbeam, that Sunbeam had issued a press release in mid-March concerning the status of its first quarter sales?

A. I don't recall whether I was aware of that or not at that time.

Q. Do you have any involvement, sir, in discussions within Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relating to or concerning the issuance of this press release?

A. I don't believe I had any role whatsoever in the issuance of this press release.

Q. My question was a little bit different, but I appreciate that answer.

Did you have any involvement, sir, in -- that you can recall in any discussions within Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relating to whether Sunbeam would issue a press release concerning its first quarter sales?

A. I don't recall being involved in those discussions.

Q. Do you see -- let me focus your attention, sir, in the first sentence of the press release. It states, "Sunbeam Corporation said today that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates of 285 million to 295 million but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million."

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Do you see that sentence?

A. I do.

Q. In connection with the work you were doing, were you aware that Wall Street analysts were estimating that Sunbeam would achieve between 285 million and $295 million in net sales for the first quarter of 1998 as of mid-March 1998?

A. I don't recall if I was aware of the Wall Street analysts' estimates in that range.

Q. Did Sunbeam make you aware, sir, of its own estimates, prior to March 19, 1998, of its sales performance for the first quarter of 1998?

A. We had projections for the first year. I don't recall what those were.

Q. Do you recall whether you had any projections for the first quarter of 1998 separately?
A. Not specifically, no. I don't recall if we had them or not.
Q. Now, sir, if you don't recall, we can go back to it. The Andersen March 19 letter reported that Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1998 were $72,018,00. Do you recall that?
A. I recall, yes, from my reading of this letter.
Q. Right.
A. Yes right.
Q. Sunbeam in this press release is stating that its net sales are expected to exceed at least $253.4 million -- do you see that -- for the first quarter --
A. Yes.
Q. -- of 1998?
Do you have any knowledge, sir, concerning any communications between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relating to how Sunbeam would accomplish the sales in March 1998 necessary to exceed at least $253 million in sales for the quarter?

A. I don't recall being a part -- a party to those discussions.
Q. Did you give anyone direction to obtain information for you on that subject?
A. I don't recall giving anyone direction on that matter.
Q. Does seeing the March 19 press release, sir, refresh your recollection that there were concerns being raised within Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding relating to Sunbeam's sales results for the first quarter of 1998?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.
A. It doesn't trigger any better remembrance, no.
Q. Did anyone ask you, sir, whether you had a view concerning whether Sunbeam should disclose to the public that its net sales for the first two months of 1998 were substantially below its sales for the first two months of 1997?
A. I don't recall having been asked to express my view.

Page 220

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
Q. Looking at the March 19, 1998 Andersen letter to Morgan Stanley & Company, sir, do you have any opinion on that, as you sit here today?
A. I don't, no.
Q. Mr. Hart, let me show you what we've previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 76. It bears Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 25829 through 25886. It consists of two memos. One, a one-page memo dated March 19, 1998 from R.B. Smith to Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee. And the second memo dated March 20, 1998, also to the Leveraged Finance Committee.
I'm not going to ask you to read this whole thing at this point, sir, but have you seen these documents before?
A. I have.
Q. Can you tell me what they are?
A. They would be the memorandum that's put together for the committee to evaluate a commitment request.
Q. And it indicates that a Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting regarding the potential loan to Sunbeam had been scheduled for Friday, March 20. Do you see that?

Page 221

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And it also indicates that Michael Hart is the chair.
A. Yes.
Q. What role, sir, did you have in preparing materials for the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting on March 20?
A. I would have, perhaps, although I can't recall exactly, provided some of the input, perhaps on distribution or structure of the loan. It's a bit of a collaborative effort in pulling this together, usually coordinated through corporate finance.
Q. Spend a moment with me, sir. Page through the document and tell me whether there are any portions of that that you were responsible yourself for preparing.
A. Nothing really jumps out as something that I definitively know that I authored.
Q. Do you know who the authors are of any portions of this?
A. Not with certainty.
Q. The purpose of presenting this information to the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee was what, sir?

A. To give them an understanding of the transaction and to provide them a basis to render a decision as to whether or not this is a commitment that should be made.

Q. So, the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee has ultimate responsibility for deciding whether the loan to Sunbeam will be made?

A. I think that's a fair characterization, yes.

Q. Tell me what you can recall about the -- well, let me ask a background question.

Why were you selected to chair the meeting?

A. If I could clarify what that chair means. That's, typically, the guy that makes sure the dial-in numbers work. It's nothing more important than that. I wish it had been.

Steve Newhouse was the chair of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee.

Q. So, you didn't serve as the chairman of this aspect of the committee's meeting?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. No. If you look, the dial-in numbers require a chair -- the call-in system requires a chair. I acted in that capacity when you would dial in.

Q. Did you have any specific responsibilities for this meeting, sir, other than arranging for the call-in?

A. Not specifically. Deal team members that are there are expected to be available to answer questions that may come up in their area.

Q. Did you have a planned speaking responsibility at the meeting, presentation responsibility?

A. I don't recall having a planned speaking responsibility, no.

Q. Was the March 20 meeting one where the sole subject on the agenda was the potential loan from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall if there were any other items on the docket.

Q. Did you attend the March 20 meeting?

A. My recollection is that I did attend.

Q. Does looking at the list of recipients of Mr. Smith's March 19 memorandum refresh your recollection concerning who, in fact, participated in the March 20 meeting?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Not really. I recall Steve Newhouse, as I said. I recall Mike Rankowitz. And I recall Rick Felix. The other members I don't specifically recall them being in attendance.

Q. Do you recollect handwriting on the first page of this document, sir?

A. I don't recognize the handwriting.

Q. Tell me what you can recall concerning the March 20 Leveraged Finance Committee meeting.

A. What I can recall are the people that were in attendance. I recall Bill Strong was the primary presenter of the overall transaction. Beyond that, I don't recall specifics about the elements of the discussion.

Q. Do you recall how long the meeting took place -- how long the meeting took?

A. I don't know. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall if it was more or less than half an hour?

A. I believe it was more than a half an hour.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Do you recall if Mr. Strong was present in person?

A. My recollection is that Bill dialed in.

Q. Why was Mr. Strong the primary presenter?

A. I believe he was the primary presenter because of his primary relationship with the company. He was the primary CFD coverage officer.

Q. CFD is corporate finance division?

A. Corporate finance division, yes.

Q. Do you recall what Mr. Strong's responsibilities, generally, within Morgan Stanley were in early 1998?

A. I don't know what those were specifically in '98.

Q. Did you understand him to be one of the more senior investment bankers in the firm?

A. I understand that to be the case, yes.

Q. What can you recall Mr. Strong saying?

A. I don't have a good recollection, other than him leading the discussion or the presentation.

Q. Mr. Hart, did the subject of Sunbeam's first quarter sales come up during the March 20 Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting?

A. I don't recall if that was discussed.

Q. Did the subject of Sunbeam's March 19 press release come up?

A. I don't recall that being a point of discussion or not.

Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Strong explained any -- strike that.

Do you recall Mr. Strong saying anything to the members of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee concerning his communications with Sunbeam management relating to Sunbeam's first quarter sales?

A. I don't recall that as part of his presentation or not.

Q. Do you recall anyone at the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting on March 20 briefing the members of the committee on any communications that Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding representatives had had with Sunbeam management relating to Sunbeam's first quarter sales?

A. I don't recall if that was discussed.

Q. Do you recall any issues of concern being raised during the course of the meeting of any sort either by the members of the committee or by others relating to Sunbeam?

A. The -- the nature of the discussion would lead people through a discussion through the credit and the potential risks. I don't recall specifically individual items within that, but they followed pretty standard form.

Q. But do you -- my question is this: Do you recall anyone articulating a concern about Sunbeam that related to whether Morgan Stanley

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Senior Funding should enter into the loan commitment?

A. I don't recall that being a specific question of concern.

Q. I'm asking a very general question, so I want to make sure you and I are communicating on this.

A. Um-hum.

Q. Did anyone, whether it was Mr. Strong, a member of the committee itself, someone else from the deal team who was here, someone else on the staff who might have been present for the meeting, raise any issues of concern relating to Sunbeam in connection with the committee's discussion relating to whether to approve the loan?

A. I don't recall that occurring, no.

Q. Do you recall discussion of the plan to syndicate the loan position?

A. I don't recall that as -- I don't recall the specifics of that.

Q. Do you recall that topic came up?

A. That would have been a topic of discussion, yes.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Do you recall Mr. Smith addressing questions put to him concerning how quickly the syndication could be completed so that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding could reduce its exposure to Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall the specifics of the syndication discussion, no.

Q. Do you recall any discussion -- any questions being raised about how quickly the syndication could be completed?

A. I don't recall the specifics of that, no.

Q. Do you recall discussion about Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's fees?

A. No, not as a specific item.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Strong making any presentation relating to the overall fees that Morgan Stanley & Company and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding would realize from the investment banking assignment, the convertible debenture offering and the senior loan facility?

A. I don't recall Bill speaking specifically on that matter.

Q. Whether you recall what he said

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

specifically, do you recall generally that that subject came up?

A. As I said, a -- it's a fairly regimented walk through a number of topics during which compensation to be paid is -- consideration to be paid is part of the transaction would typically be covered.

Q. So, you would expect that issue to come up?

A. I would expect that to come up.

Q. Do you recall Mr. Smith speaking at the meeting?

A. Not specifically.

Q. So, you don't have any recollection of Mr. Smith making comments or answering questions?

A. Not away from the general discussion, no.

Q. Well, I'm not sure what you mean by "not away from the general discussion."

Did Mr. Smith talk at the meeting, is my question.

A. I don't recall if he did or not.

Q. Did you?

A. I don't recall if I did or not.

Q. So, no one from the committee turned to you and said, Michael, what do you think, should we approve this loan?

A. Not that I remember, no.

Q. Were you present when the committee voted?

A. I do not believe I was present then.

Q. Explain to me what the process is. Does the committee take information from people and then exclude nonmembers when there's a discussion?

A. Correct.

Q. How did you learn the results of the meeting?

A. I don't remember specifically. It would be passed along by someone coming out the committee to one of the deal team members under the normal --

Q. How quickly was the decision reached, do you know?

A. I don't remember. I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember whether it was reached that day?

A. No.

Q. So, you're not certain whether the committee took additional time beyond March 20 to decide whether to authorize Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to enter into the loan?

A. I don't recall with certainty, no.

Q. In your experience -- had you made -- had you participated -- excuse me -- in meetings of the Leveraged Finance Commitment meeting -- let me start over.

Had you participated in meetings of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee prior to the March 20 meeting relating to the Sunbeam loan?

A. Yes.

Q. In your experience, had the committee ever taken -- had the committee ever failed to make a decision on the day the presentation was made to the committee?

A. I don't know the results of -- I don't recall the ones that I was involved in. I don't know whether or not there's other instances where they took more time than the day of the committee.

Q. Is there anything else you can recall relating to the events of the committee meeting itself?

A. Not beyond what we discussed already, no.

Q. As far as you know, sir, is this the -- is CPH Exhibit No. 76 the entire package of material that was presented to the committee relating to the Sunbeam loan?

A. I'm not aware of anything else that would have been included. There could have been exhibits, but I have no reason to believe there would be other items.

Q. Once the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee authorizes -- let me ask a more specific question.

The Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee, in fact, authorized Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to enter into the senior loan facility with Sunbeam, correct?

A. Yes, to my understanding.

Q. Once that occurred, was the committee's involvement in this process concluded, or was there some other involvement of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee prior to the time of funding?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't know specifically in this situation. I don't know if they had further involvement here.

Q. Is there a procedure within Morgan Stanley that provides for further involvement of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee between the time of its approval of the loan and the time of funding?

A. Not without changes to that commitment.

Q. So, if the terms of the loan somehow changed, the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee might again become involved in the process?

A. Could, yes.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the handwritten notes on the front of the exhibit again, sir. You've told me that you don't recognize the handwriting.

A. Right.

Q. Do you see the -- in the left-hand corner of the document, there's a handwritten entry that reads "Don Uzzi VP sales"?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Yes, that's what that says, yes.

Q. Do you know that Don Uzzi was the vice president of sales at Sunbeam?

A. I recognize the name of Don Uzzi as a Sunbeam employee.

Q. Did you ever have, yourself, any communications with Mr. Uzzi of any sort?

A. I think Don presented at the bank meeting and I probably met him there. Away from that, I'm not sure.

Q. "The bank meeting" meaning the syndication loan meeting?

A. Correct.

Q. And that would have been sometime in June?

A. I believe that's correct.

Q. So, after the loan was funded?

A. Correct.

Q. Prior to the time the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan was funded, do you recall any communications of any sort between yourself and Mr. Uzzi?

A. I don't recall having a conversation with Don.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Looking at the handwritten -- the other handwritten entries on the page, do you know what any of those other entries pertains to?

A. No.

Q. Let me take you back to the Sunbeam March 19 press release, sir.

A. Okay.

Q. It's CPH Exhibit 14.

A. Yeah.

Q. Do you see that the press release indicates that Wall Street analysts' estimates -- excuse me -- that -- I'm going to start over.

Do you see, sir, that the March 19 press release states that Wall Street analysts' estimates for Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were between 285 million and $295 million?

A. I see that, yes.

Q. And then let me turn your attention back to CPH Exhibit No. 76. Do you see the one set of figures on this page, it's handwritten in on the first page, are the numbers 285 to 295?

A. Yes.

Q. Does that refresh your memory, in any way, sir, that the subject of either Sunbeam's

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

March 19 press release or Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales came up during the course of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee's discussion of the Sunbeam loan?

A. It doesn't refresh my memory, no.

Q. And do you recall there being any reference to Mr. Uzzi at the March 20 meeting?

A. I don't recall that as part of the meeting.

Q. Do you recall, sir, whether, during the course of the March 20 meeting, whether anyone suggested that the decision whether to commit to a loan to Sunbeam be delayed for any reason?

A. I don't recall that being discussed.

Q. Did anyone raise the question whether it would be more prudent under the circumstances to wait until Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 results were known before proceeding with the transactions?

A. I don't recall if that was the subject of discussion or not.

Q. Did you ever make that suggestion to anyone, sir?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't recall whether I made that suggestion or not.

Q. Did anyone ever raise that topic in conversation with you?

A. I don't recall that that topic was ever raised to me or not.

Q. Did anyone at the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting on March 20 raise any concerns, sir, relating to the sufficiency of Sunbeam's public disclosures relating to its first quarter performance?

A. I don't recall that that topic was raised or not -- whether it was discussed.

Q. Do you recall that topic coming up in any other conversations in which you were involved?

A. Not that I was involved in, no, I'm not aware of any.

Q. Did you ever comment to anyone concerning the sufficiency of Sunbeam's disclosures relating to its first quarter sales situation?

A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Let me direct your attention, sir, to page 16 of the March 20 memorandum. Bears Bates No. 25845, Morgan Stanley Confidential. Take a moment, sir, to look at page 16 of the exhibit.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. Okay.

Q. Can you tell me, generally, what the information contained on this page relates to?

A. It would appear to be the detailed breakdown of the synergy numbers.

Q. The top portion of the page has a heading "Coleman synergies rationale - $118 million."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And there's several bullet points underneath that, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall whether there was any discussion at the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting on March 20 on the subject of potential Coleman synergies?

A. I don't recall whether that was specifically discussed.

Q. Do you recall whether there was any discussion of the source of the information contained in this document relating to potential Coleman synergies?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't recall if that was a point of discussion.

Q. Do you recall whether -- well, let me ask this question: Was Mr. Levin identified to the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee as a source of information relating to Morgan Stanley & Company's views relating to potential synergies associated with the Coleman acquisition?

A. I don't recall whether Mr. Levin was specifically mentioned as the source.

Q. Do you know, sir, whether any of the items that appear here under "Coleman synergies rationale" are the same items as Mr. Levin identified to Sunbeam management as potential areas for synergies in his December meeting with Sunbeam management?

A. Sitting here today, I'm not aware of the relationship, no.

Q. As you sit here today, you can't identify any of these items as ones that originated with an idea that Mr. Levin suggested?

A. No.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Let me show you, sir, a document that we will going to mark as CPH Exhibit 205. It's a three-page document that bears Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 4005 through 4007. The first page of which bears the heading, "Coleman Potential Opportunities are $118 million."

(CPH Exhibit 205, Document entitled, "Coleman Potential Opportunities are $118 million", marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. I'm going to note, sir, that the document appears to be out of sequence. You'll see in the bottom right-hand corner the page No. 2 and then page No. 1 and then page No. 3.

A. Um-hum.

Q. But the Bates numbering is in sequence, 4005 through 4007. That's the way it was produced to us.

A. Okay.

Q. Take a moment, sir, to look at the three pages of Exhibit 205, if you would.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Have you seen this document before,

sir?
A. I'm not aware of having seen this before.
Q. I direct your attention to the right-hand margin of the document. There's a fax line.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that? Sent by C&L on 2/27/98, at 12:48: Coopers & Lybrand.
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you see that? Then there's a telephone number.
A. Yes.
Q. You are aware, in February of 1998, that Coopers & Lybrand had been retained to advise Sunbeam with respect to potential synergies on the three acquisitions that Sunbeam was making?
A. I was, generally, aware that Coopers & Lybrand was involved in providing a report. I'm unclear as to the time and the nature of the hiring relationship.
Q. Now, the document bears Morgan Stanley's name. Do you see that, sir?

Page 243

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
A. I see that.
Q. On the bottom corner on each page?
A. Yes, sir, I see that.
Q. Do you know why Coopers & Lybrand would have been faxing this document to Morgan Stanley, if that's what was occurring here?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
A. I don't have an opinion on that.
Q. With respect to the potential opportunities relating to Coleman, the total figure is $118 million. Do you see that?
A. I see that.
Q. That's the same as the synergy figure that appears on page 16 of the presentation that was made to the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee, correct?
A. Yes, they look to be the same.
Q. And the items, the bullet items underneath $118 million, sir, they're the same also, are they not?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. It's a waste of time. Documents are speaking for themselves.

Page 244

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
A. They look to be the same.
Q. Was it your understanding, sir, with respect to the presentation that was being made to the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee that the source of the $118 million synergy figure used in the presentation of the committee was Coopers & Lybrand?
A. I don't have a recollection as to whose specific number this was represented to be. I don't recall what was said there.
Q. And CPH Exhibit No. 205 doesn't refresh your recollection in that regard, sir?
A. It does not.
Q. Do you recall anyone saying to the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee that Coopers & Lybrand is the source of the estimated synergies for Coleman Company?
A. I don't recall that being mentioned specifically or not.
Q. Do you remember the subject of synergies coming up at all, as you sit here?
A. Not specifically.
Q. I'm referring to a Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting.

Page 245

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
A. Correct. I assumed that. Not specifically.
Q. Mr. Hart, has anyone at Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding ever express the view to you that you needed to speak up more frequently or more forcefully if you had reservations about a potential transaction?
A. I guess the only thing that I could -- we have a fairly rigorous performance review process. And I think, as I developed as a professional, people wanted for me to be more vocal. And that could have come up in the context of a performance evaluation.
I don't -- I don't recall it ever coming up in the context of anything else.
Q. Has a colleague ever visited you, or a senior person at Morgan Stanley ever visited you and said, there was a problem with this deal. We've understood subsequently that you had some reservations about it. You should have spoken up sooner or more forcefully?
MR. CLARE: Objection. When you say "this deal," are you referring to Sunbeam or are you referring to any deal?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Just generally.
MR. CLARE: Okay.
A. I don't recall that -- that kind of conversation occurring, no.
Q. Was there ever a situation when someone told you that they thought something had gone wrong because you had failed to speak up?
A. I'm not aware of that situation occurring. I don't recall that situation occurring.
Q. Did anyone ever express the view to you that you should have been more active with respect to expressing concerns relating to the loan to Sunbeam?
A. I'm not aware of that comment being made to me. I don't recall it.
Q. Did anyone ever express the view to you, sir, that there was any shortcoming that they perceived with respect to the work that you had done relating to the Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't recall that comment ever being made to me.
Q. Let me show you sir, what we have previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 153. The typed text is, I think, the same. I'm not going to ask you to verify it.

But is the document we were looking at previously, the CPH Exhibit No. 76, the presentation materials for the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting? My questions aren't going to relate to the text, but instead to the handwriting.
A. Okay.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting on the first page of this document, sir? Looks to me like there may be more than one person's handwriting on it.
A. Yeah, I don't recognize any of it.
Q. I take it that you're certain it's not yours?
A. I'm certain it's not mine.
Q. I'd ask you to page through it. There's handwriting on other pages, Bates No. 18888.
A. Yes.
(Witness reviewing document.)
A. Okay.
Q. Do you recognize any of the

Page 248

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
handwriting?
A. I don't.
Q. Between the time of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting on March 20, sir, and the closing of the Sunbeam loan at the end of March, do you recall any activities in which you engaged relating to Sunbeam?
A. A general recollection of working on the credit agreement.
Q. Anything else?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall with whom you were working?
A. That would have involved our counsel, the company, and B of A, First Union.
Q. When you say your counsel, who would that have been?
A. Davis Polk.
Q. Were there in-house Morgan Stanley or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding lawyers involved in work on the credit agreement?
A. No. That would have been outside counsel.
Q. Who specifically at Davis Polk did you

Page 249

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
work with on the credit agreement?
A. I believe it was Peter Levin, primarily.
Q. L-E-V-I-N?
A. L-E-V-I-N, yes.
Q. Anyone else at Davis Polk who you dealt with directly on the credit agreement issues?
A. Not that I recall. I'm sure he had an associate that was involved.
Q. Who at Bank of America was involved?
A. My recollection was -- the name that comes to mind is Chuck Francavilla.
Q. Anyone else?
A. Not that I can recall. They had a team.
Q. What about First Union?
A. The primary point person would have been Tom Molitor.
Q. And with whom at Sunbeam were you dealing with for the credit agreement issues?
A. The primary point person was a guy by the name of Steve Dalbreth.
Q. Were there others within Morgan

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding who were involved in this activity, too?

A. Yes, there would have -- Bram would have been involved and the two individuals that were listed, Tom Burchill, and to a much lesser extent Ishaan, Seth, the analyst.

Q. What aspect of the credit agreement were you dealing with?

A. Negotiating the -- working on the entirety of it.

Q. Were you involved in any due diligence activities after the management -- the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting on March 20?

A. I don't recall specifically if I was involved in this -- in those meetings, those subsequent meetings.

Q. I take it, you didn't walk out of the Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee meeting with some specific due diligence assignment from the committee?

A. I don't recall whether I was charged with a due diligence assignment, no.

Q. Is there anything else, as you sit here today, that you can recall doing relating to

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Sunbeam between the time of the committee's meeting and the time the loan closed, other than the work that you've described relating to the credit agreement?

A. No. That would encompass my responsibilities, to my recollection.

Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam issued a press release shortly after the close of its first quarter relating to its first quarter sales results?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. I'm going to show you, Mr. Hart, what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 36.

A. Thank you.

Q. The first page of this exhibit is a fax cover page on Sunbeam stationery from David Fannin to William Strong, Jim Stynes, Robert Kitts and John Tyree, with carbon copies to Fin Fogg and Rich Easton.

And the second page of the document begins a four-page April 3, 1997 -- it's dated 1997, I think, by mistake -- press release from Sunbeam Corporation relating to its first quarter sales results. I believe that's a typo. The 1997 date is a typographical error.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

I'd like you to read the press release to yourself. I have some questions on that.

THE WITNESS: Would you mind, prior to me reading this, if I just popped out for a break?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Not a problem.

MR. CLARE: You don't have any objection to that?

MR. MARKOWSKI: No.

THE WITNESS: Great. Thanks so much.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:12. Going off the record.

(Recess taken.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:14. We're back on the record.

(Witness reading document.)

A. Okay.

Q. Did anyone share with you, Mr. Hart, this fax?

A. I don't recall having this fax shared with me.

Q. Do you know who David Fannin was?

A. Generally, that he was somebody

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

working at Sunbeam. I didn't have a relationship with him.

Q. He was the general counsel of Sunbeam. Does that refresh your memory of his role?

A. Yeah, that sounds right.

Q. Whether you saw it by way of receiving a copy of this fax or otherwise, do you recall reading a press release that Sunbeam issued in the first days of April relating to its performance in the first quarter of 1998?

A. I don't recall specifically reading this press release, no.

Q. Do you recall seeing news reports concerning the press release?

A. I don't recall that, no.

Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam announced, just immediately upon the end of the first quarter of 1998, that its sales for the first quarter fell below its net sales for the first quarter of 1997?

A. Not that -- with that level of specificity. I recall, at some point during this period, an adjustment being made to that -- the first quarter forecast.

Q. I'm asking about something that happened after the quarter was completed.

A. Right.

Q. Do you recall that, shortly after Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 was completed, that Sunbeam announced that, contrary to the statements made in its March 19 press release, that Sunbeam had fallen short in that sales for the first quarter of 1998 of the net sales that Sunbeam had achieved in the first quarter of 1997?

A. I, generally, recall that occurring, yes.

Q. How do you -- how do you -- how did you learn that?

A. I can't recall.

Q. Do you recall if a colleague told you that?

A. No, I don't know if it was a colleague.

Q. Did you get a call from someone at Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall getting a call from

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Sunbeam.

Q. Did somebody at Davis Polk call you?

MR. CLARE: Yes or no?

A. No. I don't recall it being Davis Polk.

Q. Was it from a newspaper account, a television report?

A. I don't recall.

Q. What do you remember?

A. Becoming -- at some point around this period, becoming aware that that was actually the -- that was the disclosure, that were -- those were the results that they achieved the first quarter.

Q. You recall, generally, being aware that Sunbeam hadn't accomplished the results that it said it would accomplish in the March 19 press release?

MR. EURBGS: Objection to form.

A. I recall this being -- I recall being aware -- becoming aware of that result.

Q. Do you recall becoming aware of it very shortly after funding of Morgan Stanley's Senior Funding's loan occurred?

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. I don't recall the specific sequence.

Q. What was your reaction?

A. I don't recall what my reaction was.

Q. Were you surprised by the information?

A. I don't recall what sort of emotion I would have felt in receiving a piece of information like that.

Q. Were you upset?

A. I don't recall being upset.

Q. Did you express to anyone disappointment in Sunbeam's failure to achieve the results that it had promised in its March 19 press release?

A. I don't recall expressing disappointment to anybody as a result of that.

Q. Did you have any follow-up conversations with anyone at Sunbeam on this subject when you became aware that they had not achieved the results promised on the March 19 press release?

A. Not specifically. I know as a general matter we did, but I can't remember a specific conversation that we had.

Q. By "we" -- I'm focusing on you.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. That I was involved in.

Q. Did -- when you became aware, sir, that Sunbeam had fallen short in its performance for the first quarter of what it had promised in the March 19 press release, do you know what effect that had on Sunbeam's stock price?

A. I don't recall what effect that had, no.

Q. Did it cause you concern with respect to Morgan Stanley Senior Funding's plans to proceed immediately to syndicate the senior loan facility?

A. I don't recall that being a critical element in the timing in which we were going to go market for the bank facility.

Q. Do you recall thinking this was going to make the syndication more difficult?

A. I don't recall drawing that conclusion, no.

Q. Did Sunbeam's announcement that it had failed to achieve the results promised in the March 19 press release have any effect on the schedule for the syndication?

Mischaracterizes the document.
A. I'm not aware of it having any effect one way or the other, at this point. I don't recall it having an effect one way or the other, I should more properly state.
Q. When you became aware that Sunbeam had failed to achieve the sales results that the March 19 press release had predicted, did you have any -- did you come to the conclusion that you had been, in any way, misled in the communications between Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley?
A. Bob, could you repeat the middle part of that, please.
Q. When you learned that Sunbeam had failed to achieve the first quarter's sales results that the March 19 press release predicted, did you have any sense that Morgan Stanley & Company had been misled, in any way, by Sunbeam with respect to those matters?
A. I don't recall, at that time, drawing that conclusion, given that set of circumstances.
Q. Have you subsequently come to that conclusion with respect to statements that

Page 259

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
Sunbeam made to Morgan Stanley relating to its first quarter sales performance, that Sunbeam mislead Morgan Stanley?
A. I think it's fair to say, perhaps, moving away from first quarter, but, in general, we had been mislead by Sunbeam management.
Q. I'm focusing on the first quarter situation.
A. Today, I would believe that we had been mislead.
Q. And on what do you base that?
A. Overall, the things that have occurred subsequent to that.
Q. You didn't have any communications with Sunbeam yourself relating to Sunbeam's first quarter sales performance; is that -- is that correct?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. Now, the -- I believe I'm correct about this, Mr. Hart, but my understanding is that the last stop on the Sunbeam convertible debenture road show was in Boston.
MR. CLARE: Objection.
Q. And that the Boston road show presentation took place on March 19.

MR. CLARE: Objection. No foundation.
Q. The day that the Sunbeam press release was issued.
We saw your expense reports an entry for 450 miles in mileage charges for a trip to Boston -- to Massachusetts from New York on March 17th.
Is it possible, sir, that the purpose for that trip related to the -- that was charged to Project Laser, is it possible that the purpose of that trip related in some way to the March 19 Boston road show?
A. I have no recollection of being involved any aspect of that road show.
Q. I'm going to show you something to see if it refreshes your memory. Let me show you what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 75.
A. Okay.
Q. It's a document that -- the cover page bears Morgan Stanley's name.
A. Um-hum.
Q. And it bears Bates No. SB 18203 through a number that's so small I can't read it. So, I can't tell you what the last Bates number is.

Page 261

A. Okay.
Q. The second page of the document is entitled, "Sunbeam Roadshow Presentation Speaking Points, March 15, 1998."
A. Um-hum.
Q. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. I'd ask you to page through this, sir, and tell me whether you've ever seen this before. There's some places where handwriting appears. You can exclude --
A. Okay.
Q. -- the handwriting for my question for the moment.

Q. My focus is really on the speaking points at the front end.
A. Okay.

A. Sure.
Q. Do the speaking points portion of this document appear familiar to you? Is that something you've seen before?

A. I don't recall having seen these before.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the page that bears Bates No. SB 18225.
A. 225? Okay.
Q. There's handwriting at the bottom of the page, sir. And I'm going to ask you to read that to yourself, try to parse your way through it.
A. Okay.
Q. And see whether that refreshes your memory that you were present for a presentation where Mr. Kersh addressed the press release that Sunbeam issued on March 19.
A. And this was the Boston road show, this was the Boston stop?
Q. My understanding, sir, is that Boston was the last stop. It's the only stop that occurred after the press release was issued. And these notes address the press release.
And so my question is whether you remember being -- this refreshes your recollection of being present at the Boston road show where Mr. Kersh addressed -- made comments relating to the press release that Sunbeam issued relating to the situation concerning its first quarter sales.

A. No, it doesn't.
Q. Mr. Hart, you attended the February 27 meeting with the Sunbeam board of directors in which the board approved the acquisition of Coleman Company; is that correct?
A. I believe -- yeah, I did.
Q. That is an event that sticks in your mind?
A. To -- to a certain degree.
Q. Why were you there?
A. As a representative from the financing side supporting Bram Smith.
Q. Do you remember where the meeting took place?
A. My recollection is that it was in -- it was at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do you remember what time of day the meeting occurred?
A. I don't.
Q. Do you remember who asked you to attend?

A. I don't.
Q. Were you asked to prepare any of the presentation for the board meeting?
A. I don't recall if I was asked to participate -- asked to prepare any element of it, no.
Q. Who do you recall being present from Morgan Stanley & Company or Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. Myself, Bram Smith, Bill Strong, and I want to say Ruth Porat. I'm not -- I believe there were others. I'm just not sure. I just don't recall at this point.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts being there?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Mr. Fuchs?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Do you recall how long the meeting took?
A. No.
Q. Tell me everything you can recall about the Sunbeam February 27 board meeting.

Page 265

A. The individuals that I listed were present. My recollection was that Bill Strong had a primary speaking role from Morgan Stanley. Bram Smith talked about the financing. And that's about it.
Q. Do you remember anything being said to the Sunbeam board regarding Mr. Levin's views of potential synergies?
A. I don't recall whether that was a subject of discussion or not.
Q. Do you remember the subject of synergies coming up, in any way, at the board meeting?
A. I don't recall that as a specific -- as a specific discussion item.
Q. You don't remember Mr. Strong or Mr. Smith making any comments about synergies?
A. I don't recall them making comments one way or the other with respect to synergies.
Q. Do you remember if Mr. Dunlap spoke?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember Mr. Dunlap saying?
A. Don't remember the content. Just remember him speaking, him being present.

Q. Other than the fact you remember him speaking, do you remember anything else about the way Mr. Dunlap conducted himself at the meeting?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Did you speak?
A. I'm not aware that I spoke during the meeting.
Q. Before the meeting began, were there any discussions in which you were involved either with members of the Sunbeam board or with Sunbeam management?
A. Before the meeting?
Q. Yes.
A. I'm not aware -- I don't recall being a party to those discussions.
Q. The meeting was taking place in Morgan Stanley's offices, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You don't recall participating in any pre-board meeting discussions with Sunbeam management concerning the nature of the presentation, any issues that might arise?
A. I don't recall being a party to those,

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

no.
Q. You don't remember any discussions, I take it, with any members of Sunbeam management before the board meeting started that day, about the status of your review of potential financing?
A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. Let me show you a copy of the minutes of the board meeting. We'll mark them as CPH Deposition Exhibit 206. They bear Bates No. DTCO 4796 through 4808.
(CPH Exhibit 206, Minutes of a Special Meeting of the Board of Directors of Sunbeam Corporation, February 27, 1998, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I'm going to ask you to read the introductory material at the beginning and the description of the presentation made relating to the Coleman acquisition.
A. Okay.
Q. You can stop when you get to the resolution on the second page.
A. Okay.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Okay.

Q. Does any of the material that you've read on the first two pages of this document refresh your recollection concerning the meeting or the individuals from Morgan Stanley who participated in it?
A. Not really, no.
Q. Let me direct you to page 11. There's a heading that reads "Financing"?
A. Um-hum.
Q. I'd like you to read that paragraph. It carries over onto the next page.
(Witness reading document.)
A. Stop at "Resolved"?
Q. Yes.
A. Okay.
Q. This indicates that Mr. Strong made a presentation relating to the proposed financing structure. In fact, it refers that there was an extensive presentation. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Is that your recollection of the events that day, that Mr. Strong made an extensive presentation of financing options?
A. As I said, I -- my recollection was that Bill made a presentation. My recollection is that, as he went through the various options, he would turn to, in this case, Bram to talk about the bank financing. That was my recollection.

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Q. Did -- did Mr. Strong make any statements to the board relating to the interest of Morgan Stanley to participate in providing the necessary financing to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall if that statement was made in that forum.
Q. Did Mr. Strong make any statement, that you can recall, relating to the prospects for arranging the financing necessary to achieve the -- finance the three acquisitions that Sunbeam was -- Sunbeam board was being asked to address?
A. Could you clarify "prospects" for me.
Q. The likelihood of being able to arrange the necessary financing.
A. I don't recall whether he opined on that or offered a view.
Q. Do you recall -- what do you recall Mr. Smith saying to the Sunbeam board relating to the bank financing issues?

A. What I recall is a walk-through, a term sheet. I don't recall a great deal more than that.
Q. Did Mr. -- do you recall Mr. Smith making any statements to the Sunbeam board relating to the achievability of the necessary bank financing for the transaction?
A. I don't recall whether he made those statements or not.
Q. Now, at the time, sir, that you first became involved in the -- let me, before I move on -- do you recall anything else, sir, about the events of the February 27 Sunbeam board meeting?
A. No, not the board meeting, no.
Q. Do you recall that, after the Sunbeam board meeting concluded that afternoon at Morgan Stanley's offices, that there were further discussions with Morgan Stanley management relating to the financing issues?
MR. CLARE: I'm sorry. Do you mean to say Morgan Stanley management?
MR. MARKOWSKI: No.
MR. CLARE: Okay.

Page 271

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
MR. MARKOWSKI: Did I say Morgan Stanley management?
MR. CLARE: You did.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I didn't mean to say that, so let me ask a different question I'm interested in.
Q. Do you recall whether, after the Sunbeam board meeting concluded, whether representatives of Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding engaged in further discussions with Sunbeam management relating to financing issues?
A. The only discussion that I'm aware of was an impromptu discussion post-board meeting that involved, my recollection was, Kersh, Bram and myself, where there was a discussion as to who would be likely partners in the financing.
Q. How did that impromptu discussion come about, did Mr. Kersh approach you, or did Morgan Stanley --
A. I don't recall.
Q. -- participants approach Mr. Kersh?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Had there been discussion among the

Page 272

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
Morgan Stanley -- I'm sorry. You said that a conversation involved you, Mr. Smith?
A. Mr. Smith.
Q. And was Mr. Strong part of this, too?
A. Don't recall.
Q. So, your recollection is that you and Mr. Smith approached Mr. Kersh?
A. I don't recall whether we approached, he approached or whether we just sort of arrived at the spot together.
Q. All right. Your recollection, though, is that it was the three of you discussing that issue, correct?
A. They're the three parties that I remember being involved.
Q. Do you recall any discussions with Mr. Smith, prior to this conversation with Mr. Kersh, where the two of you discussed the possibility of including other participants in the initial funding of the Sunbeam senior bank facility?
A. We would have had those discussions. I don't remember them specifically.
Q. Do you remember what potential

Page 273

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart
candidate banks you considered?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Were there any banks considered, other than Bank of America and First Union?
A. I'm not aware -- I don't recall whether others were considered.
Q. Tell me what you can recall of the conversation with Mr. Kersh that day on that subject?
A. The general conversation was Mr. Kersh offering B of A and First Union as potential partners because of the relationship that either they have -- they had developed through calling on them or an existing relationship, which I understood First Union had with the company.
Q. By "partners," you mean potential participants in the senior bank facility at Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. Potential underwriters of the facility, yes.
Q. And it's your testimony that it was Mr. Kersh that mentioned those two banks as opposed to you and -- you or Mr. Smith mentioning them?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

A. That was my recollection.

Q. Was Morgan Stanley Senior Funding prepared to underwrite the entire senior bank facility without the participation of any other banks in the initial funding?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered. And no foundation.

A. The only way that I can answer -- I don't know, other than that we had received approval for a $2 billion commitment.

Q. So, your understanding is that the Leveraged Finance Committee, at its March 20 meeting, authorized Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to provide the entire $2 billion senior bank facility?

A. I don't have a recollection as to -- if that ever became offered, because the timing of bringing in partners was very quick. So, I don't know whether that ever became an operative underwriting commitment.

Q. I'm not asking whether it became a commitment. But it's your recollection that the Leveraged Finance Committee authorized Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to provide the entire

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

$2 billion in financing?

A. I don't recall -- my recollection -- my testimony is that I don't recall whether or not that ever became an -- an authorized commitment, whether they ever approved that amount.

Q. Okay. Did you and Mr. Smith -- di you or Mr. Smith -- let me put it that way -- have a view concerning whether it would be preferable for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding to provide the entire $2 billion in financing initially, or whether it would be preferable to have other banks participating in the initial funding?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation with regard to Mr. Smith.

A. I had no view.

Q. Did Mr. Smith express one to you?

A. Not that I'm aware of. Not that I recall, I should say.

Q. I take it that Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was financially capable of providing the entire $2 billion in financing?

A. That would be my understanding.

Q. Would it be more profitable to Morgan

CONFIDENTIAL - Hart

Stanley Senior Funding if it provided the entire $2 billion in financing and then syndicated the loan as opposed to including Bank of America and First Union in the initial financing?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Incomplete hypothetical.

A. It's -- it's impossible to tell. A bank distribution can take many different forms -- it's impossible to tell profitability on one versus the other because you have to make a number of assumptions based upon what you will pay underwriters versus what you'll pay the market.

Q. Your testimony is you had no preference concerning whether Morgan Stanley Senior Funding provided the entire $2 billion in financing or whether First Union and Bank of America participated along with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?

A. What my testimony is, is that I don't recall having a view. And it wasn't my -- it wasn't within my scope or responsibility to determine that.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm looking for something we can do in the next 10 minutes.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

Q. Let me ask you a few questions about Mr. Dunlap.

How much contact did you have with Mr. Dunlap before the Sunbeam loan closed at the end of March?

A. Before the Sunbeam loan closed? I had met him at the board meeting and had participated in a call or two in which he was present.

Q. Is it the first -- is it the case that the first time you met Mr. Dunlap was at the -- in any context was at the February 27 board meeting?

A. I believe that's the first time I ever met him.

Q. And you had no other face-to-face meetings with him prior to the time the loan closed?

A. I'm not aware of ever having met him prior to that -- oh, face-to-face?

Q. I may be unclear here. Let me make sure we're clear.

You had one face-to-face meeting with

Mr. Dunlap before the loan closed at the February 27 board meeting?

A. Right.

Q. My question is, prior to the loan closing, did you have any other face-to-face contact with Mr. Dunlap --

A. I don't --

Q. -- before the loan closed at the end of March?

A. I don't recall having a face-to-face with him prior to that point and post the board meeting.

Q. You've already testified this morning about one conversation -- telephone conversation that you had with Mr. Dunlap, the one involving Mr. Levin, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. You've just referred to a call or two when Mr. Dunlap was on the phone.

Do you believe you participated in any other phone conversations with Mr. Dunlap, other than the one where Mr. Levin participated, prior to the loan closing?

A. I don't recall having had another conversation, no.

Q. Did you have any knowledge concerning Mr. Dunlap's reputation as a -- a chief executive officer?

A. I don't recall having a -- having knowledge of his reputation prior to that, no.

Q. Did you develop an understanding of Mr. Dunlap's reputation before the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closed at the end of March?

A. Help me with what you mean by "his reputation."

Q. Well, it's a very general question.

Did you have any information, from whatever source, relating to Mr. Dunlap's capabilities or accomplishments or strategy or style, personality as a chief executive officer?

A. I don't recall learning anything more about Mr. Dunlap during that period.

Q. Did you understand that Mr. Dunlap was considered to be a turnaround specialist?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. I wouldn't throw around that term. I have no opinion on whether or not he was a turnaround artist.

Q. Did you consider him to be a capable chief executive officer?

A. I didn't formulate that opinion one way or the other.

Q. Did you hear reports from other people that bore on that, or read things about Mr. Dunlap that bore on that?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Before the Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loan closed, did you, yourself, make any inquiry into Mr. Dunlap's performance as a corporate executive?

A. I don't recall me personally making that inquiry.

Q. Did you ask anyone to make that inquiry on your behalf?

A. I don't recall asking anyone to make that inquiry on my behalf.

Q. Did anyone make any reports to you of any sort relating to Mr. Dunlap's capabilities or accomplishments or reputation?

A. I don't recall receiving a report like that.

Q. Did you understand that Mr. Strong knew Mr. Dunlap well?

A. I understood Bill Strong to have a relationship with Mr. Dunlap.

Q. Did Mr. Strong ever offer, in your presence, any views relating to Mr. Dunlap?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Were you aware that Mr. Dunlap had come to Sunbeam from Scott Paper?

A. Yes, I believe I was aware of that.

Q. Did you have any knowledge of Mr. Dunlap's tenure or accomplishments at Scott Paper?

A. I don't recall if I had knowledge of his accomplishments at Scott Paper.

Q. Were you aware that Mr. Dunlap was credited with turning around Scott Paper and making it a more valuable business before it was acquired by Kimberly-Clark?

A. I wasn't aware of that. I don't recall being aware of that.

Q. Did anyone ever suggest to you, sir, that Mr. Dunlap's accomplishments at Scott Paper were phony or in some way exaggerated?

A. I don't recall ever hearing that -- that supposition put forth to me.

Q. Let me show you what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 68. It's a Business Week article from January 15, 1996. It bears the Bates No. Morgan Stanley Confidential 3995 through 4001.

My first question, sir, is going to be whether you've seen this document before. Look at it sufficiently to be able to tell me.

A. I don't recall having seen this document.

Q. Did you have -- let me put the question to you this way, sir: Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was going to be loaning a substantial amount of money to Sunbeam, at least for a short while, before the syndication was finalized.

Did you have any concerns in that regard relating to Mr. Dunlap's capability or integrity?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question and the preamble to it.

Q. Prior to the loan closing?

MR. CLARE: Same objections.

A. I don't recall having concerns about his integrity prior to the loan closing.

Q. What about his capability as an executive?

A. I don't recall forming an opinion on that --

Q. I'm sorry. You had no concerns about his integrity?

A. I would -- I don't recall having any concerns about his integrity prior to the loan closing.

Q. Do you have any knowledge, sir, of statements made by representatives of Morgan Stanley to my clients relating to Mr. Dunlap's accomplishments at Sunbeam?

A. I don't -- I don't recall having any sort of knowledge of that, no.

MR. MARKOWSKI: This is a breaking point for me.

MR. CLARE: Okay. Before we conclude, I just want to put on the record, you know, our position is that the deposition of Mr. Hart should have been concluded in one day. And, on a break, I offered to stay around with Mr. Hart for as long as necessary tonight to conclude the deposition.

And I understand, because of scheduling reasons, that Mr. Markowski is not availing himself of that offer. So, we'll take up the continuation of his deposition at another time.

MR. MARKOWSKI: We were prepared to continue tomorrow and we had been initially advised Mr. Hart would be available tomorrow. And we were told now that he is not, so we made our plans accordingly.

MR. CLARE: Okay. Well, we also advised you by letter last week we thought it could be concluded in a single day. We'll deal with it.

Gentlemen:

We refer to our letter of March 19, 1998, relating to the offering memorandum for the sale of $2,014,000,000 of Sunbeam Corporation Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Offering Memorandum"). We reaffirm as of the date hereof (and as though made on the date hereof) all statements made in that letter except that, for the purposes of this letter –

a. The Offering Memorandum to which this letter relates is as amended on March 25, 1998.

b. The reading of minutes described in paragraph 4 of that letter has been carried out through March 23, 1998.

c. The procedures and inquiries covered in paragraph 4 of that letter were carried out to March 23, 1998 (our work did not extend to the period from March 23, 1998, to March 25, 1998, inclusive).

d. The period covered in paragraph 4a of that letter is changed to the period from December 29, 1997 to March 1, 1998, officials of the Company having advised us that no such financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to March 1, 1998, were available.

e. The references to February 1, 1998, in paragraph 5 of that letter are changed to March 1, 1998, and the tables included in that paragraph are modified as follows:

Table in paragraph 5a (in thousands) –

	December 28, 1997	March 1, 1998
Common stock	$ 900	$ 913
Long-term debt	194,580	279,580

Table in paragraph 5b (in thousands) –

	For the Period
	December 30, 1996 through March 2, 1997	December 29, 1997 Through March 1, 1998
Net sales	$ 143,499	$ 72,018
Net income (loss)	9,765	(41,190)

The net loss for the period from December 29, 1997 through March 1, 1998 includes a compensation charge of approximately $30.2 million recorded in February 1998 from restricted stock issued in connection with new employment agreements with key officers.

f. The references to February 1, 1998, and March 16, 1998, in paragraph 6 of that letter are changed to March 1, 1998, and March 23, 1998, respectively. Paragraph 6a has been modified to read as follows:

Between December 29, 1997 and March 23, 1998, (i) capital stock increased primarily due to stock issued in connection with stock option exercises, (ii) long-term debt has increased from $194,580,000 to $ 309,580,000 as a result of drawings on the Company's credit facility and (iii) consolidated shareholders' equity has decreased primarily because of net losses during the period offset, in part, by contributions received for stock option exercises.

g. This letter is solely for the information of the addressees and to assist the underwriters in conducting and documenting their investigation of the affairs of the Company in connection with the offering of securities covered by the Offering Memorandum, and it is not to be used, circulated, quoted, or otherwise referred to within or without the underwriting group for any purpose, including but not limited to the registration, purchase or sale of securities, nor is it to be filed with or referred to in whole or in part in the Offering Memorandum or any other document, except that reference may be made to it in the purchase agreement or in any list of closing documents pertaining to the offering of securities covered by the Offering Memorandum.

Very truly yours,

Sunbeam (SOC-45) - BUY

4 1/2 Point Drop Unwarranted; Buy Reaffirmed; One Year Target Remains $60
1998 EPS Lowered to $1.80 to Include Shares Issued in Transaction
No Change to 1999 Estimate of $3.00

Price Drop Unwarranted: We think that yesterday's price drop of over 4 points was an over reaction and we reiterate our buy rating on the shares. Our one year target remains $60 as Sunbeam integrates the acquisitions it has announced and 1999 earnings approach $3.00. At 15x 1999 estimates, the shares are valued at a 30% discount to the market.

1998 EPS Lowered to $1.80 from $2.05: We are lowering our 1998 Sunbeam estimates to $1.80 from $2.05 on the assumption that the three transactions announced at the beginning of the month (the acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, with total sales of about $1.6 billion) close in the near future. As we wrote in our note of March 2, the acquisitions could dilute EPS by $0.05-$0.07 in 1998. In addition, Sunbeam will issue 19.4 million shares to Coleman shareholders bringing the 1999 share base to 108 million shares (which includes the options tied to Mr. Dunlap's new employment agreement at the current stock price); assuming a mid-year close, the 1998 share base would increase to about 98 million. The combination of the new shares and modest dilution create the estimate reduction; on our new forecast EPS should increase about 30% over the $1.41 recorded in 1997. (Reported EPS will also include the restructuring which is expected to be announced after the transactions close.)

Press Release Spooks the Stock: In conjunction with the pricing of a convertible offering, Sunbeam yesterday issued a press release that said that first quarter sales may be lower than analysts estimates of $285-$295 million. The notice sent the stock price into a tailspin with the suggestion that the tone of business might be weakening. We do not think this is the case. Rather, Sunbeam's order book at this point does not fully cover the growth expectations (12%-15%) that are implied by the estimated sales range. This is not unusual, even at this late stage in the quarter. March is the most important month of the quarter in terms of sales, and orders routinely come in with an expected turnaround time of as little as 72 hours. Sunbeam will continue to get orders and ship through the rest of the quarter and sales should be near the expected range. Nonetheless, we think the timing of the pricing of the convertible deal so close to the end of the quarter, coupled with orders now on the books prompted the company's press release.

Current Tone of Business is Healthy: The press release prompted us to review the current tone of business, and it seems to be in good shape. So far, sales appear to be pretty close to budget. Last year, production did not meet demand in clippers, blenders, blankets and grills. The capacity issues have been solved, and Sunbeam believes that it is able to meet demand with improving levels of service.. Grills are an important component of first quarter sales, and we think they were close to budget until the beginning of March when the weather turned abruptly cooler in many parts of the country. Sunbeam expects healthy grill sales during the last two weeks of March, but it is possible that some sales would slip into April. The cold snap has had a silver lining; electric blankets sold well at retail and there have been no significant returns. The new air and water filters started to ship in volume in March, a bit later than management had expected, and they should pick up steam in the June quarter. To accommodate all the moving pieces, we have lowered our Q1 total sales growth forecast to 12% ($284 million) from 15% ($295 million); our EPS estimate is $0.31, a 29% increase.

William H. Steele (415) 893-9073

We reiterate our Buy rating on Sunbeam, taking advantage of the recent weakness in share price to increase positions. Last week, the company announced that 1Q98 sales MAY fall short of analysts' estimates. We contend that the cautious comment was driven by Sunbeam's legal staff, which worried about potential disclosure problems since Sunbeam's management was talking to investors about a convertible bond issue. It is our opinion that Sunbeam's legal staff decided if there was ANY possibility (no matter how small) that the company could fall short of sales estimates, then it had to be disclosed before the convertible bond issue was priced. We believe these comments were purely cautionary and we continue to project that 1Q98 sales will increase 15%, to $291 million. We are encouraged by the strong orders the company has received over the last five days (which will be shipped in this quarter). However, our 1Q98 EPS estimate has been trimmed $0.01 to $0.30 versus $0.24 last year, due to more conservative margin assumptions. Our operating margin has been reduced 0.5 point, to 15.3%, primarily due to a reduction in projected gross margin. We have re-examined the sales mix in the quarter and given the large percentage that outdoor product sales (which we believe is the company's lowest-margin business) represent, we have reduced our gross margin assumption 1.0 point, to 27.4%. Partially offsetting this decline, we are reducing SG&A as a percent of sales 0.5 point, to 12.1%, recognizing that Sunbeam has gotten significantly leaner in the past year. Despite the $0.01 per share reduction in 1Q98 EPS estimates, our full-year 1998 EPS forecast remains $1.90, our 1999 EPS estimate remains $2.85, and our target price remains $64 per share. Based on our target price, the company has a total return potential of almost 40% -- which is certainly enough to warrant a Buy rating.

* Continue to recommend purchase of SOC. 1998E reduced to $2.00 fm $2.05. 1999E of $3.00 unchanged. Spoke with company. By our model, potential Q1 revenue shortfall could place Q1 EPS in $0.25 to $0.30 range. New est is $0.28ps v. $0.24, down from previous $0.32 est. We continue to believe the long-term consolidation strategy should create significant value not reflected in SOC shares today. Price target on $3.00 estimate in 1999 is unchanged at $60-$65. We believe short-term issues are far outweighed by the longer-term benefits.

* Q1:98 revenue estimates were in a range of $285-$295 million, about a 15% increase from Q1:97. Our new revenue target is 10% growth to $275-$280 million. The company stated that Q1 revenue 'MAY fall below Wall Street estimates of $285 million to $295 million, but should exceed year ago sales of $253.4 million.' Reasons for the shortfall 'IF ANY, would be retail order patterns and inventory management', not point of sale related. March is the most significant contributor to first quarter sales and profits. As such, these last two weeks of the month will be crucial to determining Q1 results.

* Our rating on Sunbeam has been and remains a U.S. Recommended List rating. Within that rating we have, in the last year and a half, taken long and short-term postures at different points in time. Current events place our rating emphasis on the twelve-month view. We expect near-term volatility around these fundamental issues until Sunbeam reports earnings in late April.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

SUNBEAM CORPORATION ANNOUNCES SUCCESSFUL PRIVATE PLACEMENT OF $750 MILLION OF CONVERTIBLE DEBENTURES

. Delray Beach, FL, (March 25, 1998) -- Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE:SOC) announced that it closed today a private placement of $750 Million ($2.014 billion principal amount at maturity) Zero Coupon Convertible Debentures. Net proceeds to Sunbeam will be approximately $727 Million. The Debentures were offered and sold only to qualified institutional buyers and other institutional accredited investors at a price of $372.43 per $1,000 principal amount at maturity, representing an original issue discount of 62.757%. The Debentures have a yield to maturity of 5% per annum and are convertible into Sunbeam common shares at a conversion rate of 6.575 shares per $1,000 principal amount of Debentures at maturity.

Proceeds of the offering will be used to finance a portion of the acquisition costs of the Company's recently announced acquisitions of The Coleman Company, First Alert, Inc. and Signature Brands USA, Inc. and for other corporate purposes, including the repayment of outstanding indebtedness.

Al Dunlap, Sunbeam's Chairman and CEO, stated, "The overwhelming response of the investment community to this offering reflects a high level of confidence in Sunbeam's strategic direction and its prospects for the future. The initial offering of Debentures was substantially over-subscribed, and the Company decided to increase the size of the offering by 50% from $500 Million in gross proceeds to $750 Million. We are in the process of creating a powerful 'house of brands' at Sunbeam with the recently announced acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, and obviously the markets agree with our strategy to become the global leader in durable branded consumer products through acquisitions which are selective, opportunistic and accretive."

The balance of the debt financing for the acquisitions of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands will be in the form of a senior credit facility through a syndicate being led by Morgan Stanley Dean Witter, Bank of America and First Union. The credit facility, which will consist of $1.4 Billion in term loans and a $600 Million revolving credit facility, is expected to close in the next several days. In addition to financing the three acquisitions, proceeds of all components of the Company's financings will be available to invest in the business, as well as for possible future acquisitions.

The Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933 and may not be offered or sold in the United States absent registration or an applicable exemption from registration requirements.

Cautionary Statements - Statements contained in this press release, including statements relating to the Company's expectations regarding anticipated performance in the future, are "forward looking statements," as such term is defined in the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Actual results could differ materially from the Company's statements in this release regarding its expectations, goals, or projected results, due to various factors, including those set forth in the Company's Cautionary Statements contained in its Form 10-K for the year ended December 28, 1997, filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

A. No, I do not remember that.
Q. Do you recall telling Mr. Bornstein that you weren't going to recommend to the company that it modify the recent announcement language in the offering memorandum?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall you became upset with Mr. Bornstein that night?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall using foul language in referring to Mr. Bornstein?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall directing profanity at Mr. Bornstein?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. Is using profanity in a context like this out of character for you?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
A. My answer would be using profanity is out of character for me, period.
Q. You don't use profanity in a business context?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.

Tyree
A. No, I said that I try not to use profanity.
Q. Do you sometimes use profanity in talking to other professionals?
A. I may have used profanity before, but I don't recall it right now specifically.
Q. Do you recall using profanity at any point in the evening of the finalization of the offering memorandum at Global Financial Press to refer to any of the Arthur Andersen people who were present that night?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. Excuse me, whether directly at them or in referring to them in speaking to other people.
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you use profanity when you get angry?
MR. CLARE: Object to the hypothetical, and I just think it's a ridiculous question. But you can answer it.
A. In my lifetime I have used profanity before.
Q. My question was whether you use it

Tyree
when you get angry.
A. You need to be a little more specific.
Q. Well, is it common for you when you get angry, very angry, to use profanity?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I wouldn't characterize it as common for me, no.
Q. Is it rare?
A. I would characterize it as out of character for me to use profanity, whether angry or not.
Q. Okay, out of character to me means that person wouldn't do it at all. Is that how you intend to mean it?
A. No, I don't intend to mean it that way.
Q. There are occasions where you use profanity when you get angry, correct?
A. In my life, I have used profanity.
Q. Well, let's go back to 1998.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a point in your life where you may have used profanity in a business context where you got angry?

Tyree
A. I don't recall using profanity in a business context in 1998.
Q. Do you recall that when you got upset with Mr. Bornstein, that he said to you that he intended to send Andersen auditors out to every Sunbeam shipping dock at the end of the first quarter of 1998 to make sure that Sunbeam properly cut off its recognition of sales for the first quarter?
MR. CLARE: I object to the premise of your question as inconsistent with the witness's prior testimony.
A. I don't recall Mr. Bornstein being present at the printer.
Q. Is the answer to my question no?
A. No, your premise is not in accordance with my previous testimony. I don't remember him being at the printer so I couldn't have used profanity, or at least I don't recall using profanity.
Q. We're on to something else right now.
A. Okay.

Q. The something else we're on to is whether Mr. Bornstein told you on the night of March 19 that he intended to send Andersen audit personnel out to every Sunbeam loading dock at the end of the first quarter to make sure that Sunbeam properly cut off its recognition of sales for the first quarter. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein telling you that?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein telling you that whether it was on March 19 at the printer or on some other occasion that he intended to do that?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you remember anyone from Arthur Andersen on the night of March 19 telling you that Anderson intended to have audit personnel on every Sunbeam loading dock at the end of the first quarter?

A. No, the only explicit recollection I have was the confirmation they were comfortable with the information in the offering memorandum.

Tyree

Q. And you've testified earlier that you don't recall who said that, correct?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you recall discussing with anyone at the printer that night any concerns about including the language on page 8 of the offering memorandum that summarized Sunbeam's March 19 press release?

MR. CLARE: Objection, asked and answered.

A. No.

Q. Do you recall discussing it with anybody by telephone that evening?

A. I don't recall having a discussion on the telephone in regards to Sunbeam press release that evening.

Q. Mr. Tyree, do you recall during the course of the events leading up to the finalization of the offering memorandum any event happening that evening that caused you any concern relating to any aspect of the offering memorandum?

A. No.

(Exhibit CPH 17, MS375-381, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Let me show you what we've marked as CPH Exhibit number 17, a document that bears Bates number MS 375 through 381. I'd just like you to review the document to let me know whether you recall seeing this previously.

Have you had a chance to look at it?

A. I skimmed it.

Q. Do you recall seeing this document before? It's a letter dated March, 19, 1998 from Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley and Company, Inc.

A. I do not.

Q. Do you recall that the evening -- do you recall when during the work on the -- when the work on the offering memorandum was actually concluded on the night of March 19, and what time of the evening?

A. I don't remember exactly when that evening.

Q. Do you recall that it went into the early morning hours of March 20?

Tyree

A. I recall that it went late into the evening, I just don't know if it was morning or --

Q. Do you recall that before you left Global Financial Press that night or early the next morning if it continued to the next morning, you had in your hands a signed copy of the Arthur Andersen comfort letter?

A. I don't recall if I had that with me when I departed Global Financial Press.

Q. Is it possible or do you believe that that was not the case?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall at some point you did receive a copy of the comfort letter, the final version of the comfort letter, you personally?

A. Again, I don't recall receiving this document.

Q. Ever?

A. Ever.

Q. Let me direct your attention to page 3, and I'd ask you to read paragraph 5B to yourself.

A. Okay.
Q. That paragraph compares -- the table in that paragraph compares Sunbeam's performance in the first month of 1998 to the first month in 1997, correct?
A. I don't know.
Q. That's what it purports to do, correct?
A. I believe that's what it purports to do.
Q. And what it reports is that in the first month of 1997, Sunbeam had $72,945,000 in net sales, correct?
A. That's what's on the page.
Q. And it reports that in the first month of 1998, Sunbeam's net sales were $28,984,000, correct?
A. Again, yes, that's on the page.
Q. And Sunbeam's net income in the first month of 1997 was 4,786,000, correct?
A. That's on the page.
Q. And that Sunbeam in the first month of 1998 had suffered a loss of 9,510,000 thousand, correct?

Tyree
A. That's what's written here.
Q. When did you first receive any information reflecting that Sunbeam's results in January of 1998 were substantially below Sunbeam's results in January of 1997?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.
A. I don't remember when I received that information.
Q. Was there a point where you did receive that information?
A. I believe there was a point where we received information in regards to their historical performance in that month, in the month of January.
Q. January of 1997 or January of 1998?
A. January of 1998.
Q. Did you compare that result to Sunbeam's performance in January of 1997?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did someone provide you with that comparison?
A. I don't recall. That's not to say it didn't happen, I just don't recall.

Tyree
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 5 of Exhibit 17. Let me ask you to read paragraph C to yourself at the top of the page.
What does paragraph 6C tell you concerning the comparison of Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1998 to the first two months in 1997?
A. I really don't have anything to add to what's written on the page.
Q. Well, I want to make sure that I understand your ability to interpret this.
A. Shall I read it?
Q. If you can't explain it.
A. I think the page does a good job of explaining it.
Q. All right, what does it say?
A. Although the company has not provided us with any financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1 of 1998, management has provided net sales from December 29, 1997 through March 1, 1998, which were 72,018,000 as compared to 143,499,000 for the corresponding period of the preceding year.

Tyree
Q. The corresponding period of the preceding year would be the first two months of 1997?
A. That's what this says.
Q. So this advised the reader of this document that Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998 were about half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. The document speaks for itself.
A. That's the math on the page.
Q. My interpretation of that is fair, correct?
A. Your interpretation of the math is correct.
Q. Let me direct you to page 4. Paragraph 6B, would you read that to yourself.
This indicates that the primary reason for difference in Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 97 -- excuse me, the first two months of 1998 to its performance in the first two months of 97 was that in 98 Sunbeam had accelerated outdoor grill sales into the fourth quarter of 1997, correct?

MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question and the characterization of the document, which speaks for itself.
A. I think this does a good job of -- I don't have anything to add to this.
Q. Well, this indicates that the primary reason for the shortfall or the difference in Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1998, which involved sales that were about half of the sales that it achieved in 1997 during the first two months was due to the fact that in 1997 in the fourth quarter Sunbeam had accelerated its sales of outdoor grills into the fourth quarter of 1997, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Again, I really do think that this text speaks for itself.
Q. When were you first advised that the reason why Sunbeam was doing so poorly in the first quarter of 1998 was that it had

Page 258

Tyree
accelerated the sale of products into the fourth quarter of 1997 so that the numbers in that quarter would look better?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and no foundation.
A. I don't recall any individual specifically advising me of that fact.
Q. Do you recall learning that fact at some point in time?
A. It was a long time ago. I believe there was something about an early buy program in their publicly available documents.
Q. Well, let's take a look at one publicly available document. Let's take a look at the offering memorandum that you worked on.
A. I wouldn't characterize that as a publicly available document, but --
Q. Okay. Well, let's take a look at that document anyway. Do you have it in front of you, Exhibit number 10.
Well, actually let's use a document that was publicly available, Exhibit number 14, the press release. Do you have that?

Page 259

Tyree
A. Fourteen?
Q. Yeah, it's the two-page press release.
The press release doesn't say that Sunbeam will not achieve Wall Street's expectations of 285 to 295 million in net sales in the first quarter of 1998, does it?
A. This document, I don't see that it makes reference to that.
Q. All right, it doesn't say we are not going to achieve that expected result, correct?
A. I don't see that written on the page here.
Q. All right, it doesn't even say that Sunbeam expects to miss that result, right?
A. Again, I don't see that written here.
Q. It doesn't say that Sunbeam's January sales were of 60 percent below its 1997 January sales, does it?
MR. CLARE: I object to this questioning. The document speaks for itself. It also doesn't say a lot of things.

Page 260

Tyree
A. It's not on this page.
Q. You knew that, didn't you? You knew that Sunbeam's 1997 sales were -- excuse me, Sunbeam's January, 1998 sales were 60 percent lower than Sunbeam's January, 1997 sales, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.
A. I think I have made this comment before. I don't recall having that recollection at all.
Q. If you had the Andersen comfort letter as of March 1, you knew that information, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection, hypothetical.
A. Can you clarify your question, please.
Q. Well, we were just locking at Exhibit number 17 and the information that was contained in it, right?
A. Yes.
Q. It's the March 19, 1998 Andersen comfort letter.

A. Yes.
Q. If you had this document or the information that was contained in this document in your possession on March 19, you knew that Sunbeam's January, 1998 sales were 60 percent lower than Sunbeam's January, 1997 sales, correct?
A. Could I see that document again?
Q. Page 3.
A. What this document says seems to speak for itself again.
Q. Well, you knew looking at what you see, if you had this information in your hands on March 19, you knew that Sunbeam's January, 1998 sales were 60 percent lower than Sunbeam's January, 1997 sales, right?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I would characterize it differently.
Q. Is the answer to my question yes or no? It's a piece of math, it seems to me.
A. Again, I would characterize my response differently.

Tyree
Q. Well, let's answer my question, and then I'll find out what else you have to say.
If you had these numbers in your hands on March 19, 1998, you knew that Sunbeam's January, 1998 sales were 60 percent lower than its January, 1997 sales, correct?
A. I wouldn't necessarily say that.
Q. You couldn't do that computation?
A. That's not what you asked.
Q. Well, what's incorrect about my statement?
A. What's incorrect about your statement, I don't know if there's anything incorrect about your statement, but you are making reference to Sunbeam. I'm just referencing a page that has some numbers on it. That's all I have in front of me.
Q. You can make a couple of assumptions for me here, okay? Let's assume this is Andersen's comfort letter and it's reporting on Sunbeam's 1998 first quarter results, okay?
A. Okay.
Q. And if you had this information in your hands on March 19, 1998, you would have known that Sunbeam's January, 1998 sales were 60 percent lower than Sunbeam's January, 1997 net sales, correct?
A. Because I haven't done the math, what I would have known had I had this in my hands is that it appears that this document says that net sales for January of 98 were twenty-eight nine eight four versus the similar month, January of 97, seventy-two nine four five.
Q. Substantially less than half, right?
A. It appears that way.
(Recess taken.)

(Begin Videotape 4.)
FURTHER EXAMINATION BY MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Mr. Tyree, going back to the statements contained in the press release and the comfort letter, the press release, March 19, 1998 press release, CPH Exhibit 14, does not advise its readers that Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998 are approximately 50 percent of the net sales that Sunbeam had realized in the first two months of 1997, does it?

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Same objection as before. The press release speaks for itself.
A. I don't see that language in this document.
Q. The comfort letter advises of that fact, correct?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
A. You are referring to this document?
Q. CPH Exhibit 17 at the top of page 5.
A. And your question in regards to this?
Q. The comfort letter advises that Sunbeam's net sales for the first two month of 1998 are approximately 50 percent of Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1997, the top of page 5.
A. I think the language speaks for itself. Really nothing to add.

017205

Page 265

Tyree
Q. And that information advised the reader of the comfort letter that Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998 were approximately half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, correct?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. It advises the reader of what's written here.
Q. Well, read it then. Read it into the record again if you don't want to agree with my statement.
A. I didn't draft it. Although the company has not provided us with any financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, management has provided net sales from December 29, 1997 through March 1, 1998 which were 72,018,000 as compared to 143,499,000 for the corresponding period of the preceding year.
Q. And I'm right that that's a dropoff of about 50 percent in those two months in net sales, correct?
A. That's what the approximate math implies.

Page 266

Tyree
Q. And that statement doesn't find its way into the March 19 press release, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection, argumentative.
A. That statement from this document is not in this document, Exhibit 14.
Q. In fact the press release doesn't disclose that there has been any problem with Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1998, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection, that mischaracterizes the document.
A. I think the document CPH 14 speaks for itself.
Q. Is there any statement that you can find in the March 19 press release that indicates that Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of the quarter are below its 1997 results for those two months?
A. In this exhibit I don't see that language.
Q. It doesn't say anything in the March 19 press release about Sunbeam having problems in its performance in the first quarter of 1998 because it had accelerated the sale of products into the fourth quarter of 1997, does it?

Page 267

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Object to form.
A. Again, I have nothing -- I don't see anything about that in this document.
Q. And it doesn't say anything in the March 19, 1998 press release about Sunbeam's earnings for the first two months of 1998 being below its earnings for the comparable period in 1997, does it?
A. I don't see any reference to what you said in this document.
Q. Do you know Sunbeam didn't come close to achieving 285 to 295 million in net sales for the first quarter of 1998?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
A. I'm sorry, is that a question?
Q. Yes.
A. Can you repeat the question?
Q. Do you know that Sunbeam did not come close to achieving 285 to 295 million in net sales for the first quarter of 1998?

Page 268

Tyree
MR. CLARE: I will make the same objection.
A. Beyond knowing that Sunbeam missed their numbers in that period, I don't have any more specifics to add to that.
Q. Well, they didn't even achieve the first quarter 1997 sales results, did they, in the first quarter of 98?
A. I don't recall exactly what their financial performance was for the quarter five years ago.
Q. You don't recall even in general terms that Sunbeam fell short of achieving the minimum results that the press release assured that Sunbeam would achieve?
MR. CLARE: I object to the characterization of the press release, which speaks for itself. You can answer.
A. Again, I don't recall exactly what the financial performance was of Sunbeam five years ago.
Q. Let me just focus on one aspect of the press release. The press release says net sales expected to exceed 1997 first quarter

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017206

Tyree
net sales of 253.4 million. Do you see that phrase?
A. That's on this exhibit.
Q. Do you have a recollection as you sit here today that Sunbeam didn't accomplish that?
A. I don't have a specific recollection as to exactly what they did or did not accomplish in this period.
Q. That's not my question. My question is do you remember that Sunbeam did not achieve net sales in the first quarter of 1998 that exceeded net sales in the first quarter of 1997?
A. I'm sorry, I want to get your question right. Could you repeat that back.
(The record was read.)
THE WITNESS: I have a vague recollection that their quarterly financial performance that we're discussing for 98 was I think below that of the similar period for 1997.
Q. When did you first learn, if we touched on this earlier I apologize, but when did you first learn that Sunbeam's January results in 1998 were so low?

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
A. If you could be more specific about your question.
Q. Well, January -- we've gone through this a number of times now, but January, 1998 net sales at Sunbeam were significantly below January, 1997 net sales. When did you first become aware of that?
MR. CLARE: I object to the preamble to the question and to the form.
A. I don't remember when I first became aware of that.
Q. Do you recall that you became aware of that at some point before the offering memorandum was finalized?
A. Again, I don't recall the time when I became aware of that.
Q. Do you recall if you became aware of it in February?
A. February of what year?
Q. Ninety-eight.

Tyree
A. I don't recall becoming aware of that in February of 1998.
Q. Do you recall when you first learned that Sunbeam's February net sales were so low?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
A. When you say so low, can you clarify?
Q. So far below the performance Sunbeam had achieved in February of 1997.
A. I don't recall when I became aware of that.
Q. Was there some point when someone from Sunbeam reported to you that Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of the quarter were below Sunbeam's business plan?
A. I don't recall a time when someone reported -- from Sunbeam reported to me in regards to their financial performance for January and February of 98.
Q. Let me ask you this. When you did become aware that Sunbeam's performance in January and February of 98 was as poor as it had been, were you surprised by that? Was that inconsistent with things you had been told previously by people at Sunbeam?

Tyree
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and to the compound question.
A. Can you clarify what you mean by poor?
Q. Well, I don't want to pull out the comfort letter again and go through that exercise. You've seen it enough times. I want you to accept for the moment that those were Sunbeam's net sales for January and February of 1998. At some point did someone at Sunbeam advise you that Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of the quarter was disappointing?
A. And again, I don't recall a time when someone from Sunbeam advised me that their quarterly performance was going to be poor.
Q. Had you been led to believe by people at Sunbeam that Sunbeam's performance in the first two months of 1998 was on target?
A. I don't recall exactly what they

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017207

Tyree
led me to believe five years ago.
Q. What I'm trying to understand is whether or not there was a point in time where you had been led to believe one thing by Sunbeam about how things were going in the first quarter and you subsequently learned something that was inconsistent with that. Did that sequence of events occur?
A. Can you just clarify for me when you say that sequence of events.
Q. Where you had been led to believe one thing by Sunbeam about how the first quarter was going and subsequently you learned something that was inconsistent with that.
A. I don't recall a given point in time where that transition occurred.
Q. So you don't recall being told by Sunbeam at some earlier point in time that sales in January and February were fine?
A. I don't recall that, but that doesn't mean it didn't happen.
Q. So it's possible that Sunbeam told you earlier that net sales in January and February of 98 were on target or fine or words to that effect?

Tyree
A. It is possible.
Q. Do you remember reviewing drafts of the Arthur Andersen audit letter? Excuse me, the Arthur Andersen comfort letter?
A. No.
Q. Do you agree that in connection with the debenture offering that Sunbeam was undertaking in March of 1998 that it was important that Sunbeam report good results in the fourth quarter of 1997?
A. Can you just be a little more specific with your question?
Q. Well, do you remember that Sunbeam was touting the success of the turnaround of the company by Al Dunlap in 1997?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
A. I don't have a specific recollection of Al Dunlap touting the turnaround of the company.
Q. Well, that was Sunbeam's story in the first quarter of 1998, wasn't it, that Dunlap had accomplished a major restructuring of the company and that Sunbeam was now positioned for substantial growth on a going forward basis?

Tyree
A. I wouldn't call that the story.
Q. You don't remember that being Sunbeam's theme in connection with the offering memorandum?
A. I would -- again, I wouldn't characterize it as the story.
Q. Well, maybe -- I don't mean to imply something pejorative in using the term story, but that was the message that Sunbeam was telling people about where the company stood and the investment value of buying Sunbeam stock or the Sunbeam convertible debentures, that Dunlap had restructured the company, that the results in 1997 proved that he had turned the company around and that the company was poised for substantial growth on a going forward basis.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Compound.
A. Is that a question?
Q. Yes.
A. My recollection is that there were numerous aspects to communicating information to investors in regards to Sunbeam.

Tyree
Q. Do you remember that being one of the themes?
A. I remember in the offering memorandum discussion in regards to a restructuring.
Q. And that the restructuring had succeeded, correct?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. And that the company had accomplished substantial improvement in its results in 1997, correct, over 1996 results?
A. I have a vague recollection that there was an improvement in their financial performance.
Q. A substantial improvement, right?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall it being substantial.
Q. Do you recall the company characterizing it in that way?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall the company

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

007208

Tyree
indicating that it was poised for substantial growth in 1998 over its 1997 results?
A. I just don't remember that.
Q. Did you know at the time you were doing your work on the convertible debenture offering that in early March, Morgan Stanley had provided a letter to Sunbeam advising that it was highly confident that it could arrange the financing that Sunbeam needed to complete the three acquisitions that it was undertaking in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't recall any discussion in regards to such a letter.
Q. Did you know that Morgan Stanley had advised Sunbeam that it was highly confident that it could arrange the necessary financing?
A. The term highly confident has a relatively unique meaning in investment banking. Can you clarify if that's your meaning?
Q. That's my meaning.
A. Again, I wasn't aware of any discussions, I don't -- correction, I don't recall any discussions between representatives of Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam in regards to a highly confidence opinion. But again, that's just me. I just don't recall.

Tyree
Q. My question was a little bit different. Do you recall knowing at the time you were doing your work on the convertible debenture offering that Morgan Stanley had indicated to Sunbeam that Morgan Stanley was highly confident that it could arrange the necessary financing?
A. No.
MR. MARKOWSKI: We can break here for today. As we've indicated, Tom, we're going to need additional time with Mr. Tyree to conclude his deposition. So we're not concluding today, and we will reopen it at a date to be agreed upon.
MR. CLARE: Okay.

EXAMINATION BY
MR. BRODY:

Q. Good morning, Ms. Stack.
Will you please state your name and spell your last name for the court reporter?

A. Heather Stack, S-T-A-C-K.

Q. Ms. Stack, have you gone by any other names?

A. No.

Q. I understand you are a practicing attorney?

A. Yes.

Q. Does your practice involve the litigation of cases?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever participated in a deposition, like we are doing today, before?

A. No.

Q. Well, I assume your counsel told you about it, but during this session I will be asking questions, and it's your responsibility to answer them to the best of your ability. If at any time you don't understand my questions, let me know and I will try to clarify them. If you need to take a break, also let us know and we will find a convenient time to do that. And for the benefit of the court reporter, (indicating the court reporter), you and I have to try hard not to step on each other's questions and answers. So I will try not to interrupt you and you try not to interrupt me.

Page 8

Stack

Are those all acceptable?

A. Yes.

Q. Thank you. I take it you have never been deposed before?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Have you ever provided any testimony under oath in any context?

A. Actually, when I was 12 years old I did once, (smiling). It's been a long time.

Q. I take it it did not involve Morgan Stanley, Davis Polk, or the practice of law.

Page 9

Stack

A. No.
(Laughter.)

Q. Well, then, I won't ask you about it. I once had a witness who was asked to explain that, and he explained how he found a dead body in the woods, and the deposition got off to a bad start. Okay, we won't go there.
Ms. Stack, have you provided any documents to your attorneys in connection with this case?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. I take it you are no longer with Davis Polk?

A. No.

Q. At the time you left Davis Polk, did you take any or retain any documents relating to your employment there?

A. I may have kept some closing sets from some transactions that I worked on, but....

Q. Do you recall retaining any documents relating to Davis Polk's representation of Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam transactions?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Stack

A. No.
Q. Do you remember retaining any documents relating to how to conduct due diligence or how to conduct -- how a lawyer is to conduct an offering?
A. Um -- I may have kept some training materials like that.
Q. Training materials from Davis Polk?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. So we don't get bogged down in abbreviations, I represent Coleman (Parent) Holdings.
Are you familiar with that company?
A. Sure, yeah.
Q. If I were to refer to them as "CPH", would that be acceptable?
A. That's fine.
Q. I also represent MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. If I refer to them as "MAFCO", would that be an understandable abbreviation?

Stack

A. Sure.
Q. Ms. Stack, you are represented by both these counsel today?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you first retain Mr. Clare as one of your counsel?
A. Yesterday.
Q. Who is paying for Mr. Clare's services on your behalf today?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Oh, okay, yeah.
A. Actually, I assume Morgan Stanley is but I don't know the answer to that.
Q. You are not?
A. No, I am not, sorry, I am not.
Q. And Mr. Wise is here also on your behalf?
A. Yes.
Q. And he is with your former law firm?
A. Yes.

Stack

Q. Are you paying for his services?
A. No, I am not.
Q. When did you retain, to your knowledge, Mr. Wise in connection with this deposition?
A. Um -- a few months ago, I was contacted by Mr. Wise to tell me that this may happen and, so, around that time.
Q. And since that time you have been working with him.
A. Yes.
Q. Have you spoken with any other lawyers in Mr. Clare's firm, Kirkland & Ellis, about this case?
A. I don't think so.
We had a call, a few months ago, where there were -- where Mr. Clare was on, and Mr. Wise was on and I was on, and there may have been other lawyers on the phone, but I don't remember.
Q. What was the subject matter of that call?
A. We discussed what I remembered from this situation.

Stack

Q. Do you remember what Mr. Clare or Mr. Wise asked you?
MR. WISE: I am going to object to that. I think the substance of the conversation goes to a conversation that we would claim is privileged under a joint-interest privilege, since Davis Polk at the time represented Morgan Stanley, I understand Mr. Clare represents Morgan Stanley, so we would object to the substance of the conversation.
MR. CLARE: Morgan Stanley joins in that objection.
MR. BRODY: Is that an instruction?
MR. WISE: Yes.
MR. BRODY: Just so we can make this move along, I don't have to ask her if she's going to follow your instruction in each instance?
MR. WISE: You can ask her, but I think --
A. I am going to follow.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011717

Stack

MR. WISE: -- she's going to follow each instruction.

MR. BRODY: And that dispenses with the need to keep asking that litany?

MR. WISE: That's correct.

Q. The call that you said was a few months ago, about how long did it take?

A. Maybe 25 minutes, 30 minutes.

Q. Before that call, did you review any materials, any documents, to refresh your recollection?

A. No.

Q. After that call, did you review any documents about this case that refreshed your recollection?

A. Not until yesterday, when I saw a few documents.

Q. We will get to that in a moment. Aside from that call with Mr. Clare and others, a few months ago, until yesterday, did you have any other communications with Mr. Clare or attorneys in his office?

Stack

A. No.

Q. You may have answered this, but was it your conversation with Mr. Wise a few months ago that you learned that your deposition was being sought in this case?

A. I think we thought that we might need to -- I might need to give a deposition, so it was sort of the first time I heard of it, and I guess then maybe a month ago I heard that it was -- that you-all were seeking to do the deposition.

Q. Prior to the first conversation a few months ago with Mr. Wise, were you aware of this lawsuit between Coleman (Parent) and Morgan Stanley?

A. I wasn't aware of this specific lawsuit. I knew there had been issues with Sunbeam and had read things in the newspaper about it.

Q. In the prior Sunbeam litigation, were you ever interviewed or asked for information about your work on the matter?

A. No, hmm-mm.

Q. Aside from contacts with

Stack

Mr. Clare and Mr. Wise, have you had any contacts with attorneys for Morgan Stanley who may work in-house for Morgan Stanley?

A. Actually, I think that there was one guy on the call that we had a few months back, and I don't remember his name, Jim something.

Q. Mr. Doyle?

A. Yes, that's the right name.

Q. Aside from that conversation with Mr. Doyle, have you had any other communications with in-house Morgan Stanley lawyers?

A. No.

Q. Ms. Stack, what did you do to prepare for today's deposition?

A. I came here yesterday afternoon and (indicating) met with Mr. Clare and Mr. Wise, and we talked a little bit about what today would be like, and I looked at a few documents relating to the transaction.

Q. The meeting was here at Davis Polk?

Stack

A. Yes.

Q. How long did it take for the meeting to end?

A. About three hours, I think.

Q. Do you know of anyone who participated in person, besides Mr. Clare and Mr. Wise?

A. Billy Frendrich, who is an associate here, was also there.

Q. Is that Mr. or Ms. Frendrich?

A. Mr.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Frendrich had any involvement in the underlying transaction?

A. No, he did not.

Q. During that conversation yesterday, did others participate by telephone?

A. No.

Q. I believe you testified earlier that you reviewed some documents yesterday?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you review any documents

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017218

Stack

that refreshed your recollection about events in this matter?

A. Yeah, a couple of them. A few of them I looked at and probably had looked at in the past, but didn't really remember them.

Q. Which documents, if any, refreshed your recollection?

A. There was one sheet of paper that had a list of sales numbers on it for Sunbeam for I think the first part of the first quarter of I guess 1998, and when I saw that I remembered that it had -- we had looked at that as a part of a series of conference calls to discuss Coleman -- or, I'm sorry, Sunbeam's numbers for that quarter.

Q. Any other documents that you remember that refreshed your recollection?

A. You know, some of the others looked familiar but nothing specific came to mind.

Q. Okay. Aside from the documents that you reviewed in the meeting yesterday, have you reviewed any other documents in preparation for this session?

Stack

A. No.

Q. And have you discussed the upcoming deposition with anyone else, other than Mr. Wise and Mr. Clare?

A. No, other than the fact that I was going to be out of work today.

Q. I understand.

A. Yeah.

Q. In connection with your preparation, did you review any transcripts of prior depositions?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any testimony given by other witnesses that has been described to you?

A. Um -- yeah, a few bits and pieces here and there.

Q. Any that come to mind?

A. Um -- I know there is some dispute as to what took place at the printer one night and that one of the accountants has said that there was an argument at the printer surrounding something that they said.

Q. Anything else that was related to you from prior testimony?

A. Nothing really specific comes to mind.

I think others have been asked about the same thing and heard bits and pieces of their responses.

Q. Are you aware what any of the Morgan Stanley witnesses have testified about that evening at the printer?

A. Actually, nothing specific.

Q. When did you leave Davis Polk?

A. August of 2000.

Q. Since August of 2000, have you spoken with any people at Morgan Stanley about -- aside from Mr. Clare, as counsel, about the Sunbeam transaction?

A. No.

Q. And since August of 2000, have you spoken with anyone at Davis Polk, again, aside from Mr. Wise, about the Sunbeam transaction?

Stack

A. No. I may have mentioned to Alan Dean that I had got a call on Sunbeam, because he was the partner on the transaction, and I work with him from time to time, but other than that no.

Q. You continue to work with Mr. Dean?

A. Yeah, once in a while he represents -- I currently work at Goldman Sachs, and he has served as underwriter's counsel on other transactions that I have worked on there.

Q. In your current position at Goldman Sachs, do you have responsibility for retaining outside counsel?

A. Sometimes I do sort of the task of making the call to outside counsel, and sometimes I give suggestions on who to hire for outside counsel, but I wouldn't say I have responsibility for it.

Q. Have you ever suggested Mr. Dean or others at Davis Polk to assist Goldman Sachs in transactions?

A. Actually, no.

017219

Stack
(Laughter.)
THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.
MR. WISE: You put her on the spot.
Q. Okay. Aside from your communications with Mr. Dean from time to time on transactions, have you remained in contact with other lawyers at Davis Polk that worked on the Sunbeam deal?
A. No. I have actually -- also, Jim Lurie, who was also on the Sunbeam transaction, is at another firm now, and I have been on the opposite side of transactions from him, so I have had to negotiate against him from time to time, but otherwise no.
Q. And you have not discussed the Sunbeam transaction with Mr. Lurie?
A. No.
Q. After yesterday's meeting, did you take with you or retain any documents that you were shown?
A. No. There may have been a copy of a protective order.

Stack
Q. Did you sign that protective order?
A. I did.
Q. Now, before we get into the specifics of your work on the Sunbeam transaction, I would like to address your background a little.
Where did you go to college?
A. Duke University.
Q. And when did you receive a degree from Duke?
A. 1994.
Q. In what area?
A. Political science and German.
Q. After you graduated from Duke, did you go the next year to law school?
A. I did.
Q. And where did you attend law school?
A. Duke.
Q. And when did you graduate?
A. 1997.
Q. At Duke in law school, did you have any particular area of study that you concentrated?

Stack
A. No. I took a variety of courses.
Q. I understand.
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. After you graduated from Duke with your law degree, were you first employed in the practice of law at Davis Polk?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were at Davis Polk from sometime in 1997?
A. Yeah, I think it was the end of September of 1997 I started.
Q. Until August of 2000.
A. Yes. And I also was a summer associate at Davis Polk, after my second year.
Q. So that would be the summer of '96?
A. Yes.
Q. Throughout that three-year tenure at Davis Polk, you were an associate?

Stack
A. Yes.
Q. I am not sure how Davis Polk organizes its practice, were you assigned to a particular area?
MR. WISE: Sometimes we are not sure how we organize our practice.
MR. BRODY: Badly, I think is the answer.
A. At the time, I was in the corporate department, and then I spent one year in the capital markets and securities group, one year in the mergers and acquisitions group, and then the third year I came back to the securities and capital markets group.
Q. So are the capital market and securities group and the M&A group parts of the corporate department?
A. Yeah, they are all under the corporate department.
They are two separate groups within the corporate department, and there is a third group, that's the credit department I think.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017220

Stack

Q. You didn't spend time in that group.

A. No.

Q. Using September '97 as your approximate start date, you started in the capital markets group?

A. Yes.

Q. Approximately how long did you remain in that until you rotated to the M&A group?

A. About a year.

Q. So roughly the fall of '97 to the fall of '98?

A. Right.

Q. And then how long were you in the M&A group?

A. Again, about a year.

Q. That would be approximately the fall of '99?

A. Yeah.

Q. And then back in the capital markets group?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did you make those changes?

Stack

A. There was a rotation system, as a junior associate, so I chose two different groups in the corporate department to rotate through and then decided to permanently assign to the capital markets security group after the second year.

Q. When you were in the M&A group, so beginning in the fall of '98 --

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. -- did you do any work for Morgan Stanley?

A. I don't remember anything specifically.

It's certainly possible, but I don't remember anything specific.

Q. Okay. What is your current position?

A. I am vice president and assistant general counsel at Goldman Sachs & Co.

Q. Within Goldman Sachs, is there a particular area that you are assigned to?

A. I cover the investment banking division and work on securities and capital markets transactions as well as limited involvement with M&A transactions, working on engagement letters and confidentiality agreements with clients.

Stack

Q. Within the securities and capital markets work in the investment banking division, what are your duties and responsibilities at Goldman Sachs?

A. I am sort of a -- the in-house lawyer, someone in my group is staff to each underwriting transaction that comes through the firm, and we serve as sort of supervisor liaison to outside counsel, consulting on certain issues of, you know, significance and reputational issues and policy issues relating to Goldman Sachs as well as reviewing certain documents in each transaction, like the underwriting agreement, the opinions, comfort letters, and any other documents that pertain specifically to our underwriting obligations.

Q. In connection with the work that you do, are you always counsel to Goldman Sachs, as opposed to its clients?

Stack

A. Yes, yes.

Q. In connection with the position you are now in, do you consult on disclosure issues?

A. Yes.

Q. I assume some of that is in conjunction with outside counsel.

A. It's almost always in conjunction with outside counsel.

Q. Goldman Sachs is a competitor of Morgan Stanley's?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you currently have business dealings with Morgan Stanley?

A. We are often co-underwriters on the same transaction and, so, once in a while I will have to talk to an in-house lawyer at Morgan Stanley and often on those transactions outside counsel is representing both of us as part of the underwriting syndicate.

Q. Ms. Stack, I would like to focus

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017221

Stack

on the work you did at Davis Polk. I assume it's primarily the work in that first year you were in the capital markets securities area. In that '97 and '98 time frame, did you work on Morgan Stanley engagements other than the Sunbeam transaction?

A. Yes.

Q. Approximately how many?

A. Maybe three or four.

That's really a guess, it's hard to remember. There have been a lot of transactions.

Q. Aside from the Sunbeam transaction, do any come to mind by name?

A. There is one that I worked on, just prior to the Sunbeam transaction, which was an IPO for a company called Unicapital.

Q. Unit Capital?

A. Unicapital, U-N-I-C-A-P-I-T-A-L, all one word.

Q. And Morgan Stanley was the underwriter?

Stack

A. They were.

I don't --

Q. Any others that you remember?

A. I don't remember any others by name.

Q. In any of the other transactions that you worked on, for Morgan Stanley, did you work with the same Morgan Stanley bankers that worked on the Sunbeam deal?

A. I don't think so. The teams that come to mind on the other transactions are not the same as the folks from Sunbeam.

Q. Now, the transactions that you worked on for Morgan Stanley during this time period, did they all close?

A. The one I mentioned did.

Q. That's Unicapital?

A. Yeah, Unicapital did.

I don't remember if they closed or not.

Q. Do you remember any that did not close, any come to mind?

A. No, none come to mind that did not close, but it wouldn't be unusual to have something not close.

Stack

Q. I understand.

During this time frame, the '97 and '98 time frame, was Morgan Stanley a major client of Davis Polk?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have an understanding as to how much legal work Davis Polk provided for Morgan Stanley during that time frame?

A. Certainly in the securities and capital markets area, we represented Morgan Stanley quite often as -- when they were underwriting transactions. I don't really have a sense as to how that relates to, you know, any other parts of the firm or to Morgan Stanley as business generally.

Q. I understand.

Do you have an understanding that Davis Polk was a counsel of choice for Morgan Stanley?

A. Yeah, I thought that they were.

Q. At the time, in '97 and '98, do you have any understanding as to how much Davis Polk was billing Morgan Stanley?

Stack

A. I have no idea how much they were billing.

Q. Do you know what Davis Polk's fee was on this particular engagement?

A. Actually, I don't.

Q. Okay.

A. I don't remember.

Q. One more billing question. At the time, in the '97/'98 time frame, do you know if Davis Polk typically billed Morgan Stanley on an hourly basis or on a deal charge?

A. I believe it was an hourly basis, although, you know, there may have been arrangements by partners and other staff that I didn't know about.

Q. I understand.

Now, focusing on the work on the Sunbeam transaction, do you remember when your work on Sunbeam started?

A. Just from looking at documents yesterday, it seems like, you know,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017222

Stack
February of I guess '98.
Q. And do you know when it ended?
A. I think the transaction closed the end of March.
Q. Let me ask it a little differently.
Did you personally work on any matters relating to Sunbeam, that is, Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam, after the deal closed?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Okay. Well, focusing on the -- sometime in February to the end of March time period, can you estimate what percentage of your time was spent on the Sunbeam transaction?
A. It was certainly a significant percentage of my time. And it was probably the transaction that I was most involved in at that time. I can't remember what else I was working on, but it would be unusual for me to only have been working on one thing, so there was probably something else, so, but it would be a majority, certainly, of my time.

Q. So more than 50 percent of your time.
A. Yes.
Q. And I know this is going back into the past, but do you recall how many hours you spent on the deal?
A. I don't.
I know there were many and many into the night, but no, I don't, I don't remember.
Q. Okay. All right. At Davis Polk, I take it there were some transactions where the firm charged a certain amount, flat rate, for the deal; is that correct?
A. Yes, there were some repeat issuers that I did work for where there would be a flat rate for each transaction --
Q. Okay.
A. -- because they would happen often.
Q. On those transactions in which

Stack
there was a flat rate, did you, nonetheless, keep track of the time you spent?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you keep track of it any differently than if it were a charge-by-the-hour matter?
A. No.
Q. I mean -- by that I mean, less specificity in what you wrote down, that sort of thing.
A. No, I often didn't -- I guess when I first started doing those transactions that I am thinking of I didn't even know it was a flat rate, so no, exactly the same.
Q. Okay. Now, during that first year of your tenure at the law firm, when you were in the securities group, can you estimate what percentage of your time was spent on Morgan Stanley matters?
A. Um -- I did a significant amount of work for them.
I mean, I could guess around 50

Stack
percent, but it certainly could be more or less.
Q. I understand.
Was there an attorney at Davis Polk that had overall responsibility for the relationship with Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't know. I don't know.
Q. You don't know if there was a particular person that received the fee credit or was the main relationship person for Davis Polk with Morgan Stanley?
A. I actually don't know. As a first-year, those were things I wasn't very focused on.
Q. I understand. Okay.
I am going to focus, primarily, on the February/March time period that you were working on this transaction.
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. And I believe you testified your work on the Sunbeam matter began in February of 1998?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. Do you remember what was the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0117223

Stack
beginning of your involvement, what you were asked to do at the beginning?
A. You know, I don't have a lot of specific recollections.
I know that I did a lot of documentary due diligence. So I read many documents. I think a lot of it was done at the offices of Skadden, Skadden, Arps, but I don't remember specifically, you know, from the first few days exactly what we did.
Q. Okay. And the matter continued through the closing, your involvement continued --
A. Yes.
Q. -- through the closing.
A. Yes.
Q. You have described some of this but what were your job responsibilities on the deal?
A. Well, certainly, the due diligence, and I, you know, remember going through documents -- I don't remember a lot of specifics as to exactly what I did.

Stack
I can say that generally, as a first-year associate, I would review documents for due diligence and participate in drafting sessions for the offering memorandum and handle sort of logistical items, like closing and going to the printer, and that sort of thing, but I don't remember a lot of specifics from this particular transaction.
Q. Did you have any involvement in the road-show?
A. Um -- I certainly didn't attend any road-show meetings, and I don't remember reviewing any road-show presentations.
Q. Did you travel for this matter? Did you go to meetings or sessions outside of New York City?
A. I don't remember leaving New York for this one.
Q. For example, did you ever go to Sunbeam's offices in Florida?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. Fair enough.

Stack
Now, you said you did documentary due diligence.
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. Explain to us what that means.
A. Boxes of documents in a room and, you know, reading through material contracts to make sure that any of the -- you know, that the transaction we were about to undertake wouldn't somehow affect the validity of the contract or call anything into question, reading board minutes of the company, you know, to make sure that we had all the material information we needed in order to disclose it in the offering memorandum, just reviewing any other sort of general -- you know, I think we asked -- we would ask for a list of documents relating to the business.
Q. And, when you refer to "the business", are you referring to Sunbeam?
A. Yes, yes. And I -- you know.
Q. Did you do any due diligence of Coleman?

Stack
A. I think so, because I know they were being acquired and, so, there was information about them in the offering memorandum, so it was part of the overall documentary due diligence that I did, though I don't really remember anything specific about it.
Q. Do you know where you did that document review?
A. I don't, I don't remember where.
Q. Do you remember doing any due diligence of the other acquisition companies, First Alert or Signature Brands?
A. Those names definitely sound familiar. We would have asked to see all those. I don't remember anything specific.
Q. Fair enough.
Aside from the work you have described -- the documentary due diligence, participation in drafting sessions, the logistical work you did -- do you remember anything else you did on

011724

Stack
the transaction?
A. I helped in drafting certain documents, I think the registration rights agreement, probably helped in turning drafts of the underwriting agreement. I don't remember anything specific. I can tell you what I think I probably would have done, but I don't specifically remember.
Q. Okay. Well, I appreciate that.
The work that you did on the transaction, was it limited to the financing of the transaction or did you also get involved in the negotiation of the -- or consummation of the mergers between Morgan Stanley -- excuse me, between Sunbeam and Coleman and the other companies?
A. It was limited to the financing transaction.
Q. Okay. At the time you worked on this deal, you were within your first year of beginning legal practice?
A. Yes.

Stack
Q. Did you report to people in the law firm who were more senior than you?
A. Yes.
Q. Who did you report to on this transaction?
A. On this transaction, Jim Lurie and Alan Dean.
Q. At the time, was Mr. Lurie an associate or a partner?
A. He was an associate. He may have been a sort of senior counsel level associate.
Q. And Mr. Dean was a partner?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you report to anyone else, besides those two individuals?
A. Not that I remember, those were the only two.
Q. Did anyone, to your knowledge, report to you?
A. We may have had a paralegal, but I was generally the bottom of the chain of lawyers, (laughing).
Q. Okay. Now, when you were at

Stack
Davis Polk, did you understand that there was a policy on keeping or not keeping documents relating to deals that you worked on?
A. Um -- there was certainly guidance given by various partners, and we certainly kept all the final deal documents. I think, generally, drafts of things were not retained.
Q. When you said there was "guidance given", what do you mean by that?
A. I actually don't remember specifically if we were sort of given that guidance formally or not, but often, at the end of transactions, I would ask the partner involved, you know, which documents we should retain and which we should give back or, you know, destroy.
Q. Do you remember having that conversation about this transaction?
A. I don't specifically remember talking about that here.
Q. Now, at the time of this

Stack
transaction, the spring of 1998, do you know if you used e-mail?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. Do you know if you used it to communicate with people outside of Davis Polk concerning the transaction?
A. I would think that we did, although I think at that time we were still doing sort of hard copies of documents and hand-delivering them every where.
It's hard to remember when that exact transition was, but there came a point when everything was done by e-mail, and I don't think it was yet on this transaction, but I can't say for sure.
Q. Okay. Do you know what happened to e-mails relating to this case? Do you know -- this matter, do you know if they were saved or archived?
A. I don't know.
Q. Okay. Your involvement in the Sunbeam transaction was in connection with the financing; is that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017225

Stack

A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if others at Davis Polk did work on behalf of Morgan Stanley on this transaction relating to the merger agreement?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Do you know if others at Davis Polk did work for Morgan Stanley in this matter relating to anything else for Sunbeam?
A. I think there was a bank loan at the same time that I did not work on, but I think there were others at Morgan Stanley -- I'm sorry, at Davis Polk who were working on that.
Q. Do you know who worked on that?
A. I think the associate was Bill Megevick.
Q. Did Mr. Megevick also report to Mr. Lurie and Mr. Dean?
A. No, I think there was another partner on it. And, actually, just from looking through a few things yesterday, I think Peter Levin was the partner.

Stack

Q. Did you do any work on the bank loan?
A. No.
Q. Were Mr. Megevick and Mr. Levin in the corporate and securities -- excuse me, the capital markets and securities area, as you were?
A. No, I think they were both in sort of that credit department, both still in the corporate department.
Q. I understand.
Do you know if anyone from Davis Polk was involved in Morgan Stanley's efforts to try to find a buyer for Sunbeam?
A. I don't know. I don't know.
Q. Now, in the work that you did on the Sunbeam transaction, did you ever meet Al Dunlap?
A. No.
Q. Who from the client -- excuse me, who from Sunbeam did you meet, if anyone?
A. You know, I don't remember

Stack

meeting anyone specifically in person. I remember talking to Janet Kelley, I guess, a few times, following up on due diligence items, and a few other names ring a bell, but I don't remember specifically who I met or....
Q. Did you ever speak with Mr. Uzzi?
A. Yeah, that name sounds familiar. I believe that he was on at least one conference call that I remember.
Q. Did you speak with Ms. MacDonald, Deborah MacDonald?
A. That name doesn't sound familiar.
Q. Mr. Kersh, Russell Kersh?
A. That name sounds familiar. He may have been on the conference calls I am thinking of, but....
Q. Mr. Goudis, G-O-U-D-I-S?
A. Also, sounds familiar.
I don't have any specific recollection of sort of meeting these people but, you know, the names -- I recognize the names.

Stack

Q. I understand.
Now, when you refer to Mr. Uzzi and perhaps Mr. Kersh or Mr. Goudis being on conference calls, do you remember one conference call or more than one conference call?
A. I am certain there were many conference calls that I was on for this, but the one that I specifically remember relates to their first quarter, I guess, sales numbers, and I remember a series of conference calls and I believe that at least Mr. Uzzi was on that call and probably the others.
Q. You said "a series of calls". Were they all in one day?
A. The ones that I remember, yes.
Q. When you were working on this deal, did you have an understanding of Mr. Dunlap's reputation?
A. A little bit, and mostly just from reading about him in the newspapers, and I think he had -- might have had a book out.

011726

Stack

Q. Did you read Mr. Dunlap's book?
A. I did not.
Q. Were you given a copy?
A. No. I think I saw it in the windows of bookstores, so....
Q. Did you read any of the books about him?
A. No.
Q. Based on what you read or heard, what was your understanding of Mr. Dunlap's reputation?
A. Well, I think he had sort of just turned around another company and was known for sort of cutting the bottom line and firing a lot of people. I think they called him "chain saw Al", from what I remember, and that pretty much sums up his reputation I think.
Q. Did you have an understanding of what he was like to work for?
A. I didn't have any personal understanding, but just from what I read in the newspaper I imagine he would be somewhat difficult.

Stack

Q. Okay, but you never encountered that.
A. No.
Q. You referred to his prior experience. Are you familiar, that was at a company called Scott Paper?
A. Yeah, I think I have heard about that, I don't remember much specifically about it.
Q. Aside from what you have heard since, when you were working on the transaction, did you do any investigation or due diligence into what had happened at Scott Paper?
A. Not that I recall, not that I recall.
Q. Did you ever hear anyone, in connection with this transaction, question whether Mr. Dunlap's turnaround at Scott Paper was real?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. At the time you were working on this deal, did you keep notes or calendars showing the work that you had done?

Stack

A. Yes. I mean, I kept time sheets and certainly took notes from time to time in the due diligence investigation.
Q. Did you retain any of those notes when the deal was over?
A. I don't have them now, and I don't remember if I kept any of them.
Q. Okay, and let me refine that question a little.
I am not asking whether you --
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. -- have them in your possession, but at the time when the deal was over, did you keep in the file notes showing the due diligence work that you had done?
MR. WISE: What do you mean "the file"?
Q. Whatever documents were retained by the law firm?
A. I don't remember, I don't remember.
Q. Was it your practice to keep a due diligence file, a file reflecting the due diligence work that you had done?

Stack

A. I think often I would keep a list of all the documents reviewed. I don't think I generally kept handwritten notes after the transaction was completed, although I don't remember specifically on this one.
Q. And the list of documents that you reviewed, do you know if that was retained by Davis Polk after the deal was over?
A. I don't know.
And I, frankly, don't remember preparing one specifically for this deal, either, so....
Q. I understand.
Now, have you, in connection with your tenure at Davis Polk, through August of 2000, ever been asked to contribute to a calendar or chronology of the events?
A. No.
Q. Have you seen a chronology prepared by Davis Polk of what transpired

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

1727

Stack

on this deal?
A. I did yesterday, I saw a short chronology.
Q. Prior to yesterday, had you seen it before?
A. No.
Q. Prior to yesterday, were you aware that it even existed?
A. No.
Q. So you weren't, to your recollection, consulted in connection with putting it together?
A. No, I don't think so.
Q. When the transaction was concluded, was there a closing dinner?
A. I don't -- I don't remember going to one. I don't remember going to one. I don't know if they had one or not.
Q. Is it customary that there is one?
A. Probably about 50/50 --
Q. Okay.
A. -- on the deals I have worked on.

Stack

Q. You are aware that the financing that you worked on was, among other things, to help finance an acquisition by Sunbeam of certain interests in Coleman.
A. Mm-hmm, yes.
Q. And I believe, from your prior answers, you testified that you were not involved with negotiating or advising concerning that merger.
A. Right.
Q. In connection with the work that you did on this transaction, did you have any contact with anyone from Coleman?
A. I don't remember anything specific.
Q. Do you remember any contact with anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes or its companies?
A. No, I don't remember anything.
Q. Any contact with the lawyers for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Who were the lawyers?
Q. Wachtell.
A. Wachtell -- no, I don't remember anything.

Stack

Q. Do you recall any contact in connection with this transaction with investment bankers from Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. No, no.
Q. I believe you testified earlier that you had done some due diligence of Coleman, you believed you tracked down some information relating to the offering memorandum. Do you know where you did that work?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Was that work limited to the review of documents or did you talk to individuals?
A. I don't remember.
I wouldn't be surprised if we had due diligence meetings or calls with folks from Coleman and Sunbeam, but I don't remember anything specific.
(Deposition Exhibit 24, chronology prepared by Davis Polk, previously marked for identification.)

Stack

Q. Ms. Stack, I am going to give you what's previously been marked in a prior deposition as Exhibit 24.
Do you recognize this as the chronology prepared by Davis Polk?
A. Yes, I saw this yesterday, this one.
Q. And it says at the beginning that it was prepared in response to a June 30 subpoena, and the first line recites that it was prepared in August 2000.
At that time, you were still employed at Davis Polk?
A. Yes, I left in I think the middle of August, if I remember.
Q. You don't remember being consulted about the preparation of this document?
A. I don't remember.
Q. And, likewise, prior to yesterday, you have not seen it before?
A. Right.
Q. Did this document, when you

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017228

Stack
reviewed it yesterday, refresh your recollection as to certain events or things that took place in this matter?
A. It looked about right. There wasn't anything specific in here that sort of jogged any memories, it's sort of a relatively general --
Q. Okay.
A. -- chronology.
Q. The first entry, at the bottom of the first page, refers to a February 25 call and introductory telephone calls. I take it those were received by people other than you?
A. I don't remember specifically, but I am sure that the first call wouldn't have gone to me.
Q. I understand.
A. So....
Q. Now, using the February 25th entry and the ones that are after, does that help refresh your recollection as to when you became involved in this transaction?

Stack
A. Yeah, I don't really remember specific dates, but seems about right.
Q. Okay. The next entry, the item at the top of the second page for March 2, refers to an organizational call with Skadden Arps.
Do you remember that call?
A. I don't remember that call, although it would have been normal for me to have been on it.
Q. Okay. Well, let me show you a document, Ms. Stack, that may refresh your recollection about it.
MR. BRODY: Oh, this has not been marked. Please mark this as Exhibit 207.
(Deposition Exhibit CPH 207, document which looks like something you would see at the beginning of most transactions, the third page of the exhibit, in the bottom right, it has a production number ending with 16, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Stack
Q. Ms. Stack, the court reporter has given you what's been marked as Exhibit 207. Have you ever seen that before, to your recollection?
A. I don't remember seeing it specifically, but it looks like something you would see at the beginning of most transactions.
Q. Okay. Having now seen this document, does it refresh your recollection whether you actually did participate in an organizational call or not?
A. Actually, it doesn't, I don't remember that specific call.
Q. I'm sorry, you said it does not?
A. It does not.
Q. If you turn to the -- actually, the third page of the exhibit, in the bottom right it has a production number ending with 16.
Are you there?
MR. WISE: (Indicating), talking about this.

Stack
THE WITNESS: Am I on the wrong page?
A. Yes, I was on the wrong page. Got it.
Q. The document has two lists of tasks, one for the zero coupon convertible and the other for the senior credit facility.
You worked on the zero coupon convertible?
A. Yes.
Q. And you did not work on the senior credit.
A. No.
Q. The second item is the size of the offering, 500 million net proceeds.
Do you see that?
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. Do you remember any discussions at any time in this transaction about the size of the offering?
A. I don't remember anything about that.
Q. Do you understand that at some

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017229

Stack

point the anticipated size of the offering changed?

A. Yeah. I mean, I saw a copy I think of the final offering memorandum yesterday, and it was much larger, but I don't remember any discussions about it.

Q. Okay, you have no understanding as to how the number increased from 500 to whatever it finished at?

A. I don't.

Q. In the structure of a deal such as this, who decides what the size of the offering is going to be? Is that a decision for the underwriter or a decision for the issuer, a decision for counsel?

A. In a deal like this, it would generally be a decision made between the company and the underwriters and counsel would be consulted, but generally the underwriters and the company would probably make the decision.

Q. And, as you sit here, you don't remember any of those conversations.

A. No.

Stack

Q. If you turn to the next page of the document, the tentative time schedule portion.

Do you see that?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. You participated in items A and B, due diligence and drafting sessions?

A. Yes, I think so, yeah.

Q. Did you participate in any of the meetings of the boards of directors?

A. No.

Q. Did you participate in any events concerning quarterly earnings announcements?

A. No, no.

Q. Are you aware of whether Sunbeam made a quarterly earnings announcement during this offering?

A. I don't remember it.

I would think that they wouldn't have, just because we were so far into the first quarter, but I don't remember specifically.

Q. I don't necessarily mean an announcement about the first quarter but perhaps an announcement about the fourth quarter --

Stack

A. Prior year.

Q. -- of '97.

A. I don't.

Q. Fair enough.

The next item refers to ratings agency -- rating agency presentations. Did you do any work on the rating agencies?

A. Not that I remember, no.

Q. The next item is sales force presentation. Do you remember doing any work in connection with the presentation of this deal to Morgan Stanley's sales force?

A. No, and we typically wouldn't be involved in that.

Q. Item G, it refers to institutional investor conference calls. Did you participate in or were you a witness to any such calls?

A. No.

Stack

Q. Between counsel for Sunbeam and counsel for Morgan Stanley, how was division of responsibility made for the drafting of the documents in this transaction?

A. I don't remember specific conversations about this, but typically, in a transaction like this, issuer's counsel, so Sunbeam's counsel, would take primary responsibility for drafting the offering memorandum, and then we would have drafting sessions where the underwriters and underwriters' counsel and the company all participated in it and talked about what it should say. Underwriter's counsel would typically have responsibility for drafting the underwriting agreement, the registration rights agreement, indenture, those sort of -- actually, indenture -- I think the indenture, too -- yeah, documents, governing the underwriting obligations.

Q. Do you have a recollection in this transaction of whether that division

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017230

Stack

of responsibility was followed?

A. Um -- I think it generally was.

I remember that we worked on the underwriting agreement and the registration rights agreement. I know that we all participated in drafting sessions. I think Skadden, primarily, did the actual pen-to-paper drafting of those -- of the offering memorandum. I am sure there may have been sections -- there is probably an underwriting section in there that Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk, on Morgan Stanley's behalf, may have drafted or provided.

Q. You can put document 207 aside.

A. Okay.

Q. Ms. Stack, I am going to show you some documents that I think we can make quick work of.

(Deposition Exhibit 140, document with handwriting, previously marked for identification.)

Q. The first document I have given you has previously been marked as Exhibit

Stack

140. Have you seen that document before? And exclude -- I mean prior to yesterday, if you had seen it yesterday.

A. Um -- I do not remember seeing it.

Q. Do you recognize the handwriting on the document as being the handwriting of someone you know?

A. No.

Q. In your work at Davis Polk, were you ever involved -- do you know if your firm was ever involved in reviewing proposed questions and answers for a company to use in communication with the press or with investors?

A. Um -- I don't remember on this transaction.

I, frankly, don't ever really remember looking at questions for the press you said?

Q. The press or institutional investors or analysts, people outside the company.

A. I don't remember ever having done this.

Stack

Q. Okay.

A. I wouldn't -- it's probably something more the company's counsel would do, and I was usually on the underwriter's side, so....

Q. You can put that document aside.

A. Okay.

(Deposition Exhibit 141, draft document with handwriting, previously marked for identification.)

Q. I show you another draft of the document, that same document, Ms. Stack.

A. Thanks.

Q. And my question for you is similar. Have you ever seen this document before?

A. I don't think so, no.

Q. And, again, do you recognize the handwriting on the document?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Put that one aside, please.

A. Okay.

Stack

Q. I have two more. -- I'm sorry, I may not have explained, for the record, the document I have just given you. It's previously marked as Exhibit 141.

(Deposition Exhibit 142, document with handwriting, previously marked for identification.)

Q. And now I have given you what's been marked as 142.

Do you recognize this as something you have seen before?

A. Not before today, no.

Q. And do you recognize the handwriting?

A. No.

Q. Okay, put Exhibit 142 aside.

(Deposition Exhibit 143, document which has no handwriting, it appears to be a final or near-final version of previous marked documents, previously marked for identification.)

And the last one in the series is Exhibit 143, marked in prior

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Stack

depositions. The document has no handwriting, it appears to be a final or near-final version of the other ones I have shown you.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Have you ever seen this before?

A. No.

Q. Okay. You can put that aside.

Now, we have -- in some of your prior answers, you have talked about the work that was done in drafting. And I believe you said that Skadden Arps, as the company counsel, was primarily responsible for the offering memorandum?

A. Yes.

Q. And Davis Polk participated in drafting sessions and made suggestions.

A. Yes.

Q. Who on behalf of Davis Polk participated in those drafting sessions?

A. I think generally Alan, Jim, and myself were probably all there. I think Alan and Jim did most of the talking.

Q. Do you remember whether you ever spoke up at any of those meetings?

Stack

A. I don't remember anything specific.

Q. Do you know if employees of Morgan Stanley ever attended any drafting session?

A. Um -- yeah, I remember that John Tyree was generally around at most meetings that we had. He is the person that I remember most from Morgan Stanley.

Q. Aside from Mr. Tyree, do you remember any other Morgan Stanley individuals attending a drafting session?

A. I don't.

I think there may have been a junior person with him, but I don't remember who, who that was. I don't remember anybody else.

Q. Okay. Let me mention some names, and see if you remember them attending drafting sessions.

Do you remember Mr. Webber, Joshua Webber?

A. I don't remember.

Stack

Q. Tyrone Chang?

A. That name sounds familiar. I can't tell you if he was at any drafting sessions, I don't know.

Q. Andrew Savarie, or Savarie?

A. I don't remember that one.

Q. Aside from Mr. Tyree, do you remember meeting any other Morgan Stanley individuals in connection with this deal?

A. Not that I -- there was -- there was a junior person, I think Shawnee?

Q. Shawnee Boone?

A. Yeah, yeah, and I think she was generally around. I wouldn't have remembered her name but for the fact that I saw it yesterday on a list, I think, but otherwise I don't remember anyone specifically.

Q. Okay. And I take it no one from MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman attended these sessions.

A. I don't think so.

Q. Ms. Stack, if you look at the chronology that's been marked as Exhibit

Stack

24, there are a number of entries that reference drafting sessions. And I refer you to -- there is a reference on March 12, I believe there are earlier references, March 5th there is a reference to a draft offering memorandum being communicated.

Do you remember --

MR. WISE: March 5th says that Davis Polk transmitted an underwriter-prepared portion of the draft offering memorandum.

MR. BRODY: Thank you.

Q. Do you remember participating in any drafting sessions on any particular dates?

A. No, I don't.

Q. As your counsel pointed out, on March 5, Davis Polk communicated -- transmitted certain underwriter-prepared portions of the draft offering memorandum. Did you have any role in drafting those portions?

A. I don't remember.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017232

Stack

Q. Do you remember any discussions about them?

A. No, I don't remember anything about that.

(Deposition Exhibit CPH 11, March 9, communication from Mr. Tyree, previously marked for identification.)

Q. Ms. Stack, I have given you what has been marked in a prior deposition as CPH Exhibit 11, which is a March 9, communication from Mr. Tyree.

Have you ever seen this before?

A. (Pause.)

I don't remember it. I wouldn't be surprised to know that I had seen it, but I don't remember this.

Q. Well, it's shown as being sent to Mr. Dean, who was the partner in your firm.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Do you remember receiving any draft riders from Mr. Tyree?

A. Not specifically, but it

Stack

wouldn't be unusual.

Q. Do you know what involvement Mr. Tyree had in proposing language to the offering memorandum? Mr. Tyree or others at Morgan Stanley.

A. Um -- I don't really remember anything specifically.

I mean, typically, we would all sort of participate in drafting together and the bankers often put together certain pieces of disclosure for everyone's consideration.

Q. Do you remember if Mr. Tyree or others at Morgan Stanley were concerned about particular points in the offering memorandum?

A. I don't remember anything specific.

MR. BRODY: Please mark this as 208.

(Deposition Exhibit CPH 208, document, on the second page there is a distribution list, with a lengthy attachment provided, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Stack

MR. BRODY: Sorry, counsel, I only have one extra copy of that, but I don't expect to spend a lot of time.

Q. Ms. Stark, I have given you what's been marked as Exhibit 208. And I am just going to ask you some questions primarily about the beginning although, as you see, there is a lengthy attachment provided.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. If you turn to the second page of the document, there is a distribution list, and you were one of the individuals on the distribution list from Davis Polk; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have previously described Mr. Dean, Mr. Levin, Mr. Lurie, Mr. Megevick. I would like to ask you about a couple of the other individuals.

A. Okay.

Q. Who is Po Sit, P-O S-I-T?

Stack

A. He is a tax partner at Davis Polk.

Q. Do you know what Mr. Sit's responsibility was on this transaction?

A. I don't remember specifically, but I think there are certain tax consequences to this sort of security that we had to consult with him on.

Q. Do you remember if he attended any of the drafting sessions?

A. I don't remember.

Q. The next individual I would like to ask you about is Alexander Kwit, K-W-I-T.

Is Mr. Kwit a Davis Polk person?

A. Yeah, he was an associate, I think maybe a year or two senior to me, although I don't remember him being very involved in this transaction.

Q. Do you know if he is still with Davis Polk?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you remember what involvement he had in the deal, if any?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Stack

A. I don't. I don't -- I don't remember him being involved in this one, actually.

Q. Okay. The two individuals below you, Charles -- how is that pronounced, Si --

A. Yeah, I don't know him, I don't remember who he is.

Q. You don't remember his involvement in the deal?

A. No.

Q. And Gail Flesher?

A. Gail, she is a partner at Davis Polk in the environmental group. I don't remember specifically consulting her, but it would be pretty typical to have an environmental person consulting on due diligence issues or disclosure issues, if that were appropriate.

Q. Okay. Two groups above you, Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley, do you remember the Sunbeam people, either Mr. Gluck or Ms. Kelley or others, attending the drafting sessions?

Stack

A. You know, I don't remember specifically if they were at the sessions. I remember Janet Kelley's name came up quite a lot, so it's possible she was there, I just don't remember.

Q. Do you remember her position at the time?

A. I think she was a lawyer at Sunbeam in-house.

Q. And then the next group is the Morgan Stanley individuals. Looking at those names, has that refreshed your recollection as to who attended the drafting sessions?

A. John Tyree is really the only name on there that I remember as having a lot of involvement.

Q. Okay. Then you go to the bottom of this list, Arthur Andersen is identified, the names Phil Harlow and Larry Bornstein.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Do you remember if individuals from Arthur Andersen actually attended the drafting sessions?

Stack

A. I don't remember specifically if they were there. It would have been pretty common for them to have been there, but --

Q. But you don't know, one way or the other?

A. I don't remember.

I remember that -- I remember they were at the printer, I remember Larry Bornstein.

Q. Do you remember ever meeting Mr. Harlow?

A. Not specifically.

Q. Okay, fair enough.

Turn to the beginning of this document, the first page, sent from the letters at Skadden Arps. It recites that it's a first draft, and then, in the second sentence, it states that: "The various sections of the offering memorandum prepared by Skadden Arps and Davis Polk have not been reviewed or discussed with their respective clients", and so on.

Stack

Is it your understanding that portions of the offering memorandum were drafted by Davis Polk?

A. I don't remember specifically. Again, it would have been pretty common for at least the underwriting section to have come from Davis Polk, and maybe in the form of the cover (indicating) page, that sort of thing.

Q. Did you personally draft them?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember any portion of the offering memorandum that you were initially charged with drafting?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, turning to the drafting sessions that you do remember, do you remember any particular issues being raised by Morgan Stanley as items that needed to be put in the draft or taken out of the draft?

A. I really don't remember anything specific.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017234

Stack
I have been to many many drafting sessions on many deals.
Q. I understand.
A. It's hard to remember specifically.
Q. If you return to the chronology that we have marked, at March 12 there is a reference to a drafting session at Skadden and accounting due diligence calls.
Did you participate in those accounting due diligence calls, to your recollection?
A. I don't remember specifically, but it would have been pretty ordinary course for me, or at least others from Davis Polk, to have participated.
Q. I will have some documents about that in a moment, but do you remember any issues raised by the accountants that found their way into the offering memorandum that were discussed, as insertions or deletions from the offering memorandum?

Stack
A. I don't remember anything specific.
Q. The next item on your chronology -- on the Davis Polk chronology, says: "Offering memorandum" -- "Offering memo reds subject to completion distributed". Do you know what that means?
A. Yes, it's the preliminary offering circular that you send to investors.
Q. And, by "red", do you have an understanding what that means?
A. Yes, the -- well, it's not on here.
There is a -- there is usually a red type along the side that says it's subject to the completion, and that's why they are called "reds".
MR. BRODY: I have to mark that one, too, I'm sorry. I thought everything had been previously marked.
Can we mark that as whatever our

Stack
next number is, 209?
(Deposition Exhibit CPH 209, preliminary version of the prospectus, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Ms. Stack, I have given you what has been marked as Exhibit 209. Do you recognize this as the preliminary version of the prospectus?
A. Yeah, it looks like the red herring, yes.
Q. And the type on the left, which is a little chopped off by copying, that's the indication that it's a preliminary draft?
A. Right, that and the (indicating) "subject to completion" line at the top in the center.
Q. Okay. And you understand this to be the -- what's referred to as the "red herring"?
A. Yes, it looks like it, yeah. They are usually -- it's usually a book taped down, so it's hard to tell, but I assume this is it.

Stack
Q. I understand.
If you look at this document at the top, it indicates that the total amount is $1.3 billion. Do you understand that to be the amount of the securities at maturity?
A. Yes, I think that's what is offered.
Q. And the proceeds to Sunbeam obviously from the offering would be less; is that correct?
A. Yes. It depends on what they sell the prices to the public of those securities.
Q. Well, these bonds were zero coupon bonds?
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. So the amount at issuance would be substantially less than the total value of the bonds?
A. Yeah, I believe that's right.
Q. And if you turn to the page that's page 23 of the document, it's Bates stamped CPH 1348426.

A. Okay.

Q. There is a table setting forth the use of proceeds, the sources and uses of proceeds, and the proceeds from this debenture offering as of the date of the red herring was $500 million; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So between the time you guys first started working on the deal and the date the red herring was distributed, the amount of the offering had not changed, it was still 500 million.

A. Well, I think -- I mean, they are offering $1.3 billion of bonds; right? I think the proceeds --

Q. I asked the question badly.

A. Sorry.

Q. From the beginning of the deal until the date of this red herring, the proceeds were anticipated to be 500 million; is that correct?

A. Gosh, I don't remember, but I think I just saw something that said that.

Stack

Q. Okay.

A. One of the things -- sorry.

Q. Let me ask the question a little less -- with less complexity.

As of the date this offering memorandum was issued in its preliminary form, on March 16, 1998, the parties were still anticipating raising $500 million for Sunbeam through this offering.

A. Yes, about 500 million, that's what it looks like.

MR. WISE: You are basing that on what you are reading?

THE WITNESS: Yes, exactly.

MR. WISE: You can -- obviously, this is your deposition, you can take it any way you want. Ms. Stack worked on this transaction some six years ago, and it should be apparent, from the last hour's worth of questioning, her recollection of this as opposed to the scores of other transactions she has worked on since then is rather vague. I am wondering whether she is the best witness to get this sort of information as to what people attended and what the amounts of the offering were. She was the junior associate at underwriter's counsel. I assume you are taking witnesses who actually know the answers to these questions.

Stack

MR. BRODY: Well, we are taking witnesses who should know the answers to these questions.

MR. WISE: Well, you have got someone here who was in her first year with the firm. Obviously, you are free to ask her her recollections of any events or meetings she attended, maybe she will remember something that somebody else hasn't, but questions going to the structure of the deal and so on, I -- again, if you want to, we are here, but I think it's a little bit of a waste of all of our time, because she is probably one of the least able to answer those questions.

MR. BRODY: I understand your statement. I will be coming back to this point when I show her other documents that were circulated to her, and we will see what she remembers about the changes.

MR. WISE: Okay.

Q. Ms. Stack, do you remember any conversations with individuals from Morgan Stanley about whether this offering was fully subscribed?

A. No, I don't remember.

Q. You can put that document aside for a moment.

You referred to documentary due diligence that you performed in this transaction. What does it mean to you to perform due diligence?

A. Again, just to, you know, read through documents, contracts, to make sure that the transaction we are about to perform doesn't have any impact on it, to make sure that we have all the material information that we need to include in the offering memorandum.

017236

Stack

Q. And do you have an understanding as to what the purpose is for the due diligence that you performed in this transaction?

A. Again, I think it's, you know, to make sure and confirm that everything we have got in the offering document is correct and make sure we have got everything for investors.

Q. I'm sorry, I didn't hear the last part.

A. Make sure that we have got everything that investors needs to know.

Q. Okay.

A. You know, there are obviously many conversations with the company, as well, the documentary due diligence is sort of in addition to that to confirm everything that's said.

Q. Okay, and your involvement was limited to the documentary due diligence; is that correct?

Stack

A. I don't really remember. It wouldn't have been unusual for me to also have participated in the management discussions and meetings, but I don't remember anything specific.

Q. I'm sorry, did you say would or would not have?

A. It would have been pretty normal for me to have participated --

Q. Okay.

A. -- along with the more senior members of the Davis Polk team.

Q. Now, at the time you were working on this transaction, you represented the investment banker.

A. Yes, the bank, Morgan Stanley.

Q. How did the responsibility for performing due diligence -- how was it divided between Morgan Stanley and Davis Polk?

A. We all -- we all performed due diligence.

Q. Were there particular areas of due diligence that were the responsibility of the law firm and others that were the responsibility of the bank?

Stack

A. We generally participated in things together. As far as reviewing documents, certainly the lawyers were involved in that. I don't remember if there may have been a person from Morgan Stanley participating in that or not. Sometimes you would have a junior person from the investment bank come to the -- do the document review as well. I don't remember if that happened here.

Q. Before you began working on this deal, what training had you received in how to perform due diligence?

A. We had a general training session when we first arrived at Davis Polk. They talked about, you know, the things to do and look for, one of those things that's hard to teach you how to do until you have actually done it once, but I had worked on a few transactions before the Sunbeam transaction, so....

Stack

Q. Do you remember issues coming up in performing due diligence that you had to take to someone more senior than you at the law firm?

A. In due diligence generally or due diligence on this transaction?

Q. On this transaction.

A. I don't remember anything specific, but it was often the case that I would see something and hadn't have heard a reference to it before, so I would raise it to the attention of someone more senior or I had to ask for additional documentation to clarify it, so that would have been pretty standard, but I don't remember it specifically on this one.

Q. So you don't remember any issues that came up?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever review or were you made aware of whether Morgan Stanley had manuals or procedures for performing due diligence?

A. I don't know.

MR. BRODY: We have been going for a while. Why don't we take a break now, if that's acceptable.

MR. WISE: Sure.

THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: Okay. The time is now 11:13, and we are off the record.

(Recess taken.)

THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 11:25, and we are back on the record.

Q. Ms. Stack, before we broke, we were talking about due diligence --

A. Yes.

Q. -- and the division of responsibility on due diligence between Morgan Stanley and its counsel.

Who at Morgan Stanley performed due diligence on this deal that you remember?

A. I don't remember specifically. Again, I remember that John Tyree was around at most meetings and calls, so, presumably he was a part of it, but I don't remember anyone else.

Stack

Q. Aside from Mr. Tyree, you don't remember anyone else involved in due diligence?

A. I just don't remember, no.

Q. Do you know what due diligence Morgan Stanley performed?

A. Um -- again, there were definitely sort of meetings, management, due diligence meetings, where we asked questions. I think Morgan Stanley typically sent over a request list of financial items that they reviewed, that we had less of a role in reviewing, just by the nature of our jobs but, otherwise, I don't remember specifically anything else.

Q. You referred to meetings of management. As you sit here, do you remember who from management Morgan Stanley and/or Davis Polk met with in connection with due diligence on this deal?

A. I really don't remember the specifics of it.

Stack

Q. Do you remember the names of any management people you met with?

A. No. Again, you know, I remember -- recognized some of the names you read earlier from the phone calls, but I don't remember who was present at any of the sessions.

Q. I am going to ask you about some specific topics, and my question is going to be do you remember what due diligence was done in these areas.

A. Okay.

Q. What due diligence do you remember being done into Sunbeam's sales?

A. The only thing that I specifically remember is a phone call on the night before pricing, talking about how their sales were going to go in the first quarter.

Otherwise, I don't remember specifically all the meetings or anything leading up to that.

Q. Okay, we will return to that

Stack

call in a moment. But, aside from that, do you remember anything else --

A. No.

Q. -- about sales?

A. No, nothing specific, no.

Q. Do you remember any due diligence into Sunbeam's earnings per share or earnings?

A. I don't remember anything, no.

Q. Do you remember any due diligence into Sunbeam's practices involving revenue-recognition or bill-and-hold transactions?

A. I don't remember anything specific about it.

Q. Do you remember anything in general on that topic?

A. I think I remember it being mentioned but, beyond that, I just don't remember.

Q. Do you remember any due diligence done into whether Sunbeam had accelerated sales from 1998 into prior periods?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017238

Stack

A. You know, I think I looked -- I may have looked at something yesterday that talked about that but, beyond that, I didn't really remember anything from that time.

Q. Do you remember what you looked at that referenced that?

A. Actually, I don't.

I just looked at that yesterday, if that tells you anything, but I think there was an issue if they had sold some things that were recognized in the fourth quarter that may have been accelerated sales, I don't remember exactly.

Q. But, as you sit here, do you remember any work that was done -- due diligence work that was done, at the time of the deal on that topic?

A. No, no.

Q. Do you know if anyone from Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk did any investigation into the extent to which Sunbeam was managing its earnings?

A. I don't know. But, again, as the junior person, I probably wouldn't have been involved in those discussions.

Stack

Q. Okay. And you testified earlier about Mr. Dunlap's reputation with companies. Do you know if anyone did any work, either at Davis Polk or at Morgan Stanley, looking into how Mr. Dunlap and his management team had restructured Sunbeam in his time there?

A. I don't know. I don't know.

Q. Now, if you look at the document that's been marked as Exhibit 24, there are a number of entries that refer to due diligence meetings, and I am just going to ask you what you remember about them, if anything.

March 6 references: "Due diligence conference calls with Sunbeam re: acquisitions and environmental issues". Do you remember anything that was discussed at that meeting?

A. No.

Q. The next entry is March 8. It refers to: "Due diligence review of documents at Skadden". I believe you testified that you reviewed documents at Skadden?

Stack

A. Yes, that was probably me, but --

Q. Was there a document repository there?

A. Um -- I think there was a room set up where they had a lot of documents, yes.

Q. Having seen that document, does that refresh your recollection as to who else might have been involved in that due diligence effort, either for Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam or anyone else?

A. I just don't remember who else was there.

Q. The next item on March 9th: "Due diligence meeting at Skadden". Do you remember a due diligence meeting at Skadden?

A. Um -- yeah, I vaguely remember a meeting there.

I mean, you have a big due

Stack

diligence meeting on every deal that you work on, so it's hard to distinguish.

Q. Focusing on this deal --

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. -- do you remember who was there?

A. I don't remember specifically. I mean, I could speculate but I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember anything that was discussed at that meeting?

A. Again, I could tell you those are types of things that we would typically discuss, but I don't remember anything specific.

Q. I am asking for your recollection, your recollection is what I am asking.

A. No.

Q. Are there any documents, notes or documents, that you are aware of that would refresh your recollection as to what was discussed at the due diligence meetings we have addressed?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017239

Stack

A. Not that I am aware of, no.
Q. The next item on March 10th refers to: "Due diligence conference calls with First Alert, Signature, and Sunbeam".
Do you remember if you participated in those calls?
A. I don't. I don't remember specifically.
It sounds like something I probably would have done, but....
Q. Focusing on the call with Sunbeam, do you remember anything that was discussed with Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. And are there any documents that would refresh your recollection as to what happened in that call, that you are aware of?
A. Not that I am aware of, no.
Q. Okay. March 11, there is a reference to an additional due diligence call with Skadden. Do you remember if you were on that call?

Stack

A. I don't remember.
Q. And, again, anything that might refresh your recollection about that?
A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. The March 12th entry refers to: "Coleman due diligence calls". Do you remember any Coleman due diligence calls?
A. Again, not specifically.
Q. Do you remember anything in general that was discussed with Coleman?
A. No, no.
Q. And then the last sub-entry of March 12th refers to "accounting due diligence calls". Based on your experience in doing transactions, what are "accounting due diligence calls"?
A. Um -- generally, calls that the underwriters and their counsel have with the company's accountants, often outside the presence of the company, so that you can hopefully get a more robust answer to the questions and just ask about the company's accounting practices generally and any issues that the accountants see.

Stack

Q. Do you recall participating in an accounting due diligence call in this matter?
A. I don't remember it, no.
Q. Do you know if it was held?
A. I don't remember it specifically.
I would assume that it was, but it's pretty standard on deals.
(Deposition Exhibit 123, document, the first two pages is a memorandum from Lawrence A. Bornstein, at Arthur Andersen, previously marked for identification.)
Q. Ms. Stack, let me show you another Exhibit. It's previously marked as Exhibit 123.
MR. BRODY: Counsel.
Q. And before you spend a lot of time looking at it, let me just walk you through it.
The first two pages of this exhibit is a memorandum from Larry

Stack

Bornstein, Lawrence A. Bornstein, at Arthur Andersen, and then the third and fourth pages of the exhibit is something else, and I would like you to start there.
A. On the third page?
Q. Third and fourth.
A. Okay.
Q. It appears to be some sort of agenda or list.
A. Correct.
Q. Starting on the third and fourth page, have you ever seen that before?
A. I don't remember this one specifically, but it looks like a lot of accounting due diligence-type questions that we would ask.
Q. Having seen this document, does it refresh your recollection whether, in fact, you participated in an accounting due diligence call on this transaction or not?
A. (Pause.)
No, I am afraid not.
Q. Do you recognize the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

handwriting?
A. No.
Q. Now, if you turn to the first two pages of the document, and I would ask you to read to yourself the first three paragraphs. And then tell me when you have done that.
A. (Pause.)
Okay.
Q. Okay. Now, having read that, does that refresh your recollection whether, in fact, you participated in the accounting due diligence calls?
A. I don't remember participating.
Q. Do you remember being advised by Mr. Lurie, Mr. Tyree, or others about what happened in that call, if indeed it took place?
A. No, I don't remember.
Q. I am going to ask you about a couple of items here, and let me just indicate what I understand to be the testimony of others, but the numbered items here, 1 through 17, appear to correspond to the numbered items in the agenda. And, you know, since I was not on the call I can't represent to you that that, in fact, was the case, but I am going to ask you about item 3 and item 8. And item 3 appears to relate to the question: "Anything peculiar to the company that is not generally the way the industry accounts for: A, revenue recognition; B, capitalizing costs versus expensing deferring costs", and you see the answers on the first page of the exhibit.

Does that refresh your recollection about any discussion in connection with this deal relating to Sunbeam's bill-and-hold practices?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk was charged with doing further investigation into bill-and-hold?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't remember being given that task yourself?

Stack

A. No.
Q. Item 8 appears to relate to the question: "How aggressive is the company in its accounting policies?" To which the answer appears: "On a scale of 1 to 10, around a 5 or 6." Do you remember that type of discussion being held in connection with this deal?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember any follow-up by Davis Polk or Morgan Stanley into Arthur Andersen or the company's accounting policies or practices?
A. No, I don't remember anything about this.
Q. Now, the document I have given you, marked as Exhibit 123, recites that the accounting due diligence call was on March 12, which is the same date in the Davis Polk chronology, that we have marked as Exhibit 24.
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. You previously, in one of your answers, described a "comfort letter". What is a "comfort letter"?

Stack

A. A "comfort letter" is a letter issued by the accountants stating that they audited the company's financials for the prior year and saying that they reviewed the company's interim financials since their audit and have performed certain procedures on them, and then they also go through the document, the offering document, and circle various numbers and tie those back to either the company's accounting policy -- or, accounting records or do some sort of calculation on them to make sure that they tie to the company's numbers.
Q. In your experience at Davis Polk, were comfort letters typically provided in connection with offerings?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if a comfort letter -- if Arthur Andersen provided comfort letters in connection with the zero coupon convertible senior subordinated debentures?

A. Yes, they did. I actually saw it yesterday.
Q. Do you know when Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk received the comfort letter?
A. I don't know when we received it.
It's typically dated the same date as the final offering memorandum, which is the pricing date.
Q. Is it typical that the accountants provide a draft prior to pricing?
A. Generally, yes.
Q. Do you know if, in this case, Arthur Andersen provided a draft of its comfort letter to Morgan Stanley or to Davis Polk?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Aside from any due diligence that was done in connection with this call, (indicating) -- well, let me withdraw that.
We have now had a chance to look at the Davis Polk chronology in Exhibit 123. After having looked at those, does that refresh your recollection about any accounting due diligence done on this deal by you or others?

Stack

A. No, it doesn't.
Q. Aside from what may be recited in the documents I have shown you, do you have any understanding of any follow-up or accounting due diligence done in connection with this deal?
A. No. As I said before, the only thing I remember is that call the night before pricing about the company's sales. I suppose you could classify that as "accounting due diligence".
Q. Okay, we are going to get to that momentarily. We have one more document to show you before we finish up on this topic.
MR. BRODY: 210?
THE COURT REPORTER: Yes.
MR. BRODY: Please mark that as Exhibit 210.

Stack

(Deposition Exhibit CPH 210, fax Ms. Stack sent to Mr. Freed at Skadden Arps, marked for identification, as of this date.)
MR. BRODY: Counsel.
Q. Ms. Stack, I have given you what's been marked as Exhibit 210. Do you recognize this as a document that you sent?
A. It looks like a document I sent. I don't remember it, but yes.
Q. Do you understand it to be a fax you sent to Mr. Freed at Skadden Arps?
A. Yes.
Q. The document recites what you are asking for. Do you have a recollection as to why you requested the information that you requested in Exhibit 210?
A. I don't remember it but, in reading it, it's just probably things that were missing from the due diligence room or items that were mentioned that I didn't get to read while I was there.

Stack

Q. In your first sentence, you say that: These are certain things you would like to obtain today "in order to finish our due diligence review before pricing."
What do you mean by that?
A. We wanted to make sure before we priced the deal that we had all the information that we were requesting.
Q. Do you recall whether you received them or not?
A. I don't remember.
Q. If you look at the top of the document, it appears to have been sent at 2:11 in the afternoon; is that correct?
A. Yes, that's what it says.
Q. And is that the day, March 19th, the day the deal was priced?
A. Uh -- I believe so, yes.
Q. On the day of pricing, were you at the printer?
A. Um -- yes, I was there that night, I think, yes.
Q. Do you know when you went to the printer?

Stack

A. Um -- I don't remember specifically. It was sometime in the evening, after pricing.

Q. I'm sorry, you said "after pricing"?

A. Yeah, I think.

Q. Pricing took place somewhere else?

A. Yeah, generally there is a conference call between the bankers and the company to price the deal that I would not typically have participated in.

Q. I'm sorry, can you repeat what you said?

A. I'm sorry. Generally, where would be a conference call between the bankers and the company to decide on the price for the transaction and I would not typically have participated in that.

Q. Okay, you don't recall participating in that?

A. Yeah, I don't remember.

Q. Fine. Do you know if between 2;11 in the afternoon and whenever the deal was priced you got the materials you request here in Exhibit 210?

Stack

A. I don't remember. I would assume that we did --

Q. Okay.

A. -- but....

Q. You have testified that you were aware of some conference calls or calls in which Sunbeam sales in the first quarter were discussed.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Do you recall the day on which those calls took place?

A. I believe it was the day before pricing.

Q. So if we use the chronology Davis Polk prepared, indicating pricing was on the 19th, the calls were on the 18th?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. Prior to the 18th, did you have any knowledge of how Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were performing?

A. Not that I remember, no.

Stack

Q. Do you remember any work you did to look into that, you or others?

A. No.

Q. Was this call that you referenced the first time you learned of how Sunbeam's sales were proceeding in the first quarter of 1998?

A. I think I learned of it just prior to those calls on that day.

Q. How?

MR. WISE: I caution the witness to be careful not to reveal any material that is subject to the attorney/client privilege.

Can you answer the question without revealing a communication that was had with Morgan Stanley or internally at Davis Polk for purposes of giving Morgan Stanley advice?

THE WITNESS: No.

MR. WISE: So I object to the question, and direct her not to answer.

(DIRECTION NOT TO ANSWER.)

Stack

Q. Well, without disclosing the substance of the conversation, with whom did you have communications about the first quarter sales on the 18th of March?

THE WITNESS: Is it okay for me to answer that?

MR. WISE: Yes, you can answer that question.

A. Alan Dean, I think.

Q. Was there anyone else in the conversation besides Mr. Dean?

A. When I first heard it, I don't think so.

Q. Okay, so it was just the two of you.

A. Possibly Jim Lurie, but I just don't remember specifically.

Q. In that communication or conversation with Mr. Dean and possibly Mr. Lurie, did Mr. Dean or Mr. Lurie advise you the source of his information about first-quarter sales?

A. I don't remember, actually.

Q. Did Mr. Lurie or Mr. Dean advise you that this information had come from Morgan Stanley?

MR. WISE: I am going to object, and direct her not to answer that, it calls for the substance of the conversation.

(DIRECTION NOT TO ANSWER.)

MR. BRODY: Okay. And, just so we are clear here, Tom, are these objections that Morgan Stanley is joining, as well?

MR. CLARE: Yes.

MR. WISE: As a matter of fact, my objections are based upon the privilege which belongs to Morgan Stanley.

MR. BRODY: I understand.

MR. WISE: It's not to Davis Polk.

MR. BRODY: I understand that. Let me just put my cards on the table.

If we have to litigate these instructions, I would rather litigate them with Morgan Stanley, who I am suing, than you.

MR. WISE: That's correct, you are welcome to do that and, as a matter of fact, I encourage you --

MR. BRODY: I am sure you would.

MR. WISE: -- to direct any dispute towards Mr. Clare and Morgan Stanley.

MR. BRODY: Right. But I just want the --

MR. WISE: As counsel for Ms. Stack here and, also, for the firm Davis Polk, given that the subject matter here relates to a representation that Davis Polk had of Morgan Stanley at the time, we are bound to respect the attorney/client privilege on behalf of our client, Morgan Stanley. We have been advised that Morgan Stanley is not waiving that privilege and, therefore, we must respect it.

MR. BRODY: I understand but,

just so that my position is clear, I am asking Mr. Clare that in the event you believe, Mr. Clare, that counsel has overstated Morgan Stanley's privilege and objected to things that you don't believe are privileged, I would ask you to say so, so that we don't find out a month from now that: Oh, gee, Morgan Stanley doesn't believe that conversation was privileged.

MR. CLARE: If you would like, I would be happy to join in each of the objections that Mr. Wise makes. I think, for economy, we can assume going forward, and with -- objections and instructions that Mr. Wise has made, that Morgan Stanley joins in the instructions and concurs in them, but if you would like me to state specifically Morgan Stanley's position with respect to each, we would be happy to do that.

MR. BRODY: Oh, I don't think we need to burden the record, as long as I have your assurance that I've just received that you join in the objections and if for some reason you don't you tell me.

MR. CLARE: I certainly will.

Q. The conversation you indicated that you indicated you learned certain facts from Mr. Dean, was that on the telephone or in person?

A. In person.

Q. Do you know how long -- do you remember how long that conversation took?

A. No. I mean, there were hours of calls that evening.

Q. Do you know if any of the information that Mr. Dean gave you had been provided to him by Arthur Andersen?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if any of the information that Mr. Dean provided to you in that conversation had been provided to him by someone at Sunbeam, directly or indirectly?

01724

Stack
A. Yeah, not that I recall.
Q. How long after the communication with Mr. Dean and perhaps Mr. Lurie did you participate in the first call?
A. I think we quickly got on the phone with our client, and then sometime after that there was a larger call involving the company and Sunbeam and Skadden and us and Morgan Stanley.
Q. I'm sorry, you said --
A. I'm sorry.
Q. -- Sunbeam, Skadden, Davis Polk?
A. Davis Polk, Morgan Stanley.
Q. Thank you.
A. I don't remember if anyone else was on it.
Q. The communication, the larger call, with Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley and Skadden, and so on, was that one call or more than one call?
A. I don't remember specifically.
There were communications going on all evening.
Q. What was the result of all these calls?

Stack
What was done as a result of all these calls?
A. I think the group decided that the best course of action was for Sunbeam to issue a press release, telling the market that their -- I guess their numbers that the street expected were not going to be met, and to put that out prior to pricing so that the market had the information.
Q. Are you aware whether, prior to your conversation with Mr. Dean, Arthur Andersen had provided a draft of its comfort letter?
A. I just don't remember.
Q. If we refer to the chronology that's been marked as Exhibit 24, the March 18 entry, among other things, says: "Review of draft comfort letters from Arthur Andersen and KPMG."
I am not going to ask you about KPMG. Do you remember -- let me withdraw that.

Stack
Does that entry refresh your recollection that, in fact, on or before the 18th, Davis Polk had a copy of the draft comfort letter?
A. I don't have any reason to believe this isn't true, but I just don't remember it.
Q. I understand.
(Deposition Exhibit 110, draft comfort letter, and it bears a fax transmittal of 3-17-98 at what appears to be about 8:30 at night, previously marked for identification.)
Q. Ms. Stack, I have handed you what's previously been marked as Exhibit 110, CPH Exhibit 110, which is a draft comfort letter, and it bears a fax transmittal of 3-17-98 at what appears to be about 8:30 at night.
My first question is, have you ever seen this before? Again, excluding communications with counsel yesterday.
A. I just don't remember it. I wouldn't -- I probably did see it, but I just don't remember it.

Stack
Q. There is some handwriting on the document on the first page --
MR. WISE: Are you representing, by the way, that the fax transmittal time at the top of the page was to anybody in particular? Because I see that the number is an area code, I believe that's 561?
MR. BRODY: That's South Florida. I am not sure if that's the sending fax or the receiving fax, and I am not sure if it was faxed on to others. I am not making any representations about it.
MR. WISE: I also notice that a little bit further to the right there is an abbreviation SBA, Inc. I assume, without knowing, that that's one of the Sunbeam entities?
MR. BRODY: (Gesturing.) I can't speak to that.
MR. WISE: All right.

MR. BRODY: Okay.
Q. The first page of the document, there is some handwriting. Do you recognize it?
A. No.
Q. On the third page of the document, there is some additional handwriting. Do you recognize that?
A. No.
Q. Having flipped through this document, as you have, do you have any recollection of whether you saw this document at any time?
A. Yeah, I just don't remember.
Q. Would you please turn to the third page of the document. There is a paragraph 5, and I am referring in particular to 5 B. And it recites -- it compares Sunbeam's net sales and net income and loss from two periods, basically January of '97 to January of 1998.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.

Stack
Q. Do you know if you had received that information prior to the conference calls on the 18th of March?
A. I don't know. I don't know.
Q. If you turn a couple of pages further -- I'm sorry, one page further, page 4 of the document, paragraph 6, and in particular paragraph 6 B, it describes, and I am paraphrasing, that consolidated net sales decreased as compared to the corresponding prior period due to the early buy program, and then it describes why net income decreased.
A. (Nodding.)
Q. Do you know if you received that information prior to the conference calls on the 18th?
A. I don't know.
MR. BRODY: Do we need to go off the record?
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: Yes.
MR. BRODY: We need to go off the record for a moment to change the tapes.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is now 11:57, we have reached the end of tape number one, and we are off the record.
(Pause in proceedings.)
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: Okay. The time is now 11:59, this is tape number two, and we are back on the record.
Q. We were looking at the draft of the comfort letter.
In your experience on doing transactions, is it customary to receive the comfort letter prior to the day before pricing?
A. It depends.
It's customary to see it prior to the day of pricing, because that's the day it's delivered. It just depends on how the transaction is getting done as to when exactly that is prior to pricing.
Q. Do you know if, in this transaction, if someone at Sunbeam or

Stack

Stack
Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk asked Andersen for the comfort letter or did Andersen just send it?
A. I don't remember specifically, but you almost always have to ask the accountants for letters, so....
Q. But, in this case, you don't remember any conversations in which it was requested.
A. No.
Q. You have testified that you learned of the events of -- let me withdraw that.
You testified that you learned about Sunbeam's sales on the 18th and you have identified a conversation with Mr. Dean and some later calls. Aside from what you learned in that conversation with Mr. Dean and in the later calls, did you ever learn any other information from any other source about how Sunbeam's sales were going in the first quarter?
A. Not that I remember.
That general discussion is really the source of my knowledge on the subject.

Q. Do you remember any other source of information that you had for -- let's me withdraw that.

Okay. Returning to the night of the 18th. I believe you indicated that you called -- excuse me, you had a conversation with Mr. Dean. We have talked about that. There was later a call with the client. That's Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was on the call with Morgan Stanley?

A. I think -- I believe John Tyree was on the call. I also looked at a piece of paper I looked at yesterday, and that caused me to remember that Ruth Porat was on some of the calls. And I don't know if it was the calls just between Davis Polk and Morgan Stanley, or on the later calls, but I remember she -- I remember that she participated.

Q. Do you remember anyone else from Morgan Stanley on the call?

A. There may have been others, but I don't remember specifically.

Q. You said you saw a piece of paper that said Ms. Porat participated. Do you remember what that piece of paper was?

A. It was actually a sheet of paper that listed the sales for Sunbeam, and I think her name might have been handwritten on it and then I saw that name and remembered.

Q. Okay. Aside from Ms. Porat's participation in that conference call, did you have any other conversations with Ms. Porat about this deal?

A. I didn't specifically that I remember, but I was the junior person, so I probably would not have had those conversations.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Strong, William Strong or Bill Strong, participated in the call?

Stack

A. That name sounds very familiar -- yeah, that name sounds familiar, although I can't tell you for sure.

Q. Mr. Stynes, S-T-Y-N-E-S?

A. I don't remember that one.

Q. Mr. Kitts, K-I-T-T-S?

A. I also don't remember that.

Q. Fair enough.

Or Mr. Fuchs, F-U-C-H-S.

A. That name sounds familiar, but I don't remember for sure if he was on.

Q. So, as you sit here, you recall Mr. Tyree and Ms. Porat and you are not certain about Mr. Strong, Mr. Fuchs, and perhaps others.

A. Right, right.

Q. Who participated in the call on behalf of Davis Polk?

A. Alan Dean, Jim Lurie, and myself were on the call, although I am sure I didn't say anything, (smiling).

Q. Did Mr. Dean and Mr. Lurie do the talking?

Stack

A. Yes, yes.

Q. Aside from individuals from Morgan Stanley and individuals from Davis Polk, were there any other individuals on the call?

This is the initial call.

A. Oh, the initial call?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I don't think so.

I think there was one call between us and then there was a larger all-hands call.

Q. Okay, I am referring to the call before the all-hands call.

A. Yeah, I don't think so.

Q. Do you recall, in words or substance, what was discussed in the call, the initial call?

MR. WISE: You can answer that "Yes" or "No".

MR. BRODY: That's my intention.

A. Vaguely, yes.

Q. Did you take any notes of that call?

A. I don't remember, I don't remember.
Q. Do you know if anyone else took notes?
A. I don't remember.
Q. You have no reason to think that it was recorded or transcribed by anyone?
A. No, no.
Q. How long did the call take? This is the initial call.
A. I don't remember. It's hard to divide it up.
Q. Can you estimate? More than an hour? Less than an hour?
A. I just don't remember --
Q. Fair enough.
A. -- the time.
Q. What do you recall -- I believe you said your recollection was vague, but what do you recall about the substance of the call?
MR. WISE: I am going to object, and direct her not to answer. It's a privileged conversation.

(DIRECTION NOT TO ANSWER.)
Q. Do you have an understanding as to what the -- let me withdraw that.
As a result of the call, was it decided between the two of you to take certain action?
A. Uh --
MR. WISE: Why don't you just ask her what happened next.
MR. BRODY: Well, okay.
Q. What happened next?
A. We got on a call with the company and their lawyers.
Q. Okay. Whose idea was it to have that call? Was it Davis Polk's idea or had it been set up by the company or someone else? If you remember.
A. I don't remember.
Q. Now, referring to the second call, I think you earlier called that the "all-hands call"?
A. (Nodding.)
Q. Is that a fair shorthand?

Stack

A. Yeah -- yes.
Q. And this is a call on the 18th?
A. Yes, the night before pricing, yes.
Q. Do you know when it started, what hour?
A. I would have to say sometime in the evening, but I don't know exactly when.
Q. I assume close to printing people working on these deals were putting in pretty long hours?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's customary on a transaction such as this?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall if it was before or after dinner?
A. I don't, I don't remember.
Q. Who was on the call, the "all-hands call"?
A. The people from Davis Polk that I mentioned, Alan and Jim Lurie, and then the Morgan Stanley team, and I think that

Stack

John and Ruth were on, and then, as to others, I can't speak to who else was on, but I wouldn't be surprise but I would guess that there were others, and then there were some folks from Skadden, but I don't really remember names of those people. Then there were some people from Sunbeam.
Q. Let me just mention some --
A. Okay.
Q. -- names from Skadden Arps. Todd Freed, was he on the call?
A. You know, he was probably my counterpart junior associate, from the things I have seen, so he may have been, and he probably didn't say anything, either.
Q. Adrian Dietz?
A. Yeah, that name sounds familiar.
Q. Gregory Fernicola, F-E-R-N-I-C-O-L-A?
A. Yes, that name sounds familiar, too.
Q. You believe Mr. Fernicola was on the call?

A. Yeah. There were a couple of -- I wouldn't say -- there was at least one partner from Skadden and maybe two, and that name sounds like it may have been him, I can't be sure.

Q. Peter Neckles, N-E-C-K-L-E-S?

A. I don't remember that one.

Q. Michele Gartland?

A. I don't remember that name.

Q. Leander Gray?

A. Hmm -- that sounds familiar, but I don't -- I couldn't tell you whether he was on the call or not.

Q. How about Bill Weiss?

A. Bill Weiss -- also, I don't know.

Q. Who from Sunbeam was on the call?

A. Just from yesterday, I remembered that the name Uzzi was familiar to me. I remember him, I think, talking quite a lot. And there were a few other names that I heard yesterday that sounded familiar. Janet Kelley sounds familiar. I don't know whether she was on that call. And there were a couple of other names that now I am not remembering.

Stack

Q. Okay. Mr. Kersh?

A. Yes, that name sounds familiar.

Q. You believe Kersh was on the call?

A. I think so. I believe so.

Q. Mr. Gluck, G-L-U-C-K?

A. Yeah, that name sounds familiar, as well. I can't tell you for sure whether he was on it.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Dunlap was on the call?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Mr. Goudis?

A. Goudis sounds familiar, as well.

Q. Ms. MacDonald, Deborah MacDonald?

A. Yeah, that name just doesn't ring a bell with me.

Q. How long did the call or series of calls last?

Stack

A. I think it went on for a couple of hours.

Q. And do you know when it finished?

A. I don't know, I don't know the exact time.

Q. During the call, did you review any papers or documents that had been sent to you?

A. Yesterday, I saw that sheet of paper that has the list of sales on it, and I didn't remember until then, but that looked like -- I think I remembered seeing that during those series of calls.

Q. Okay. Ms. Stack, I am giving you a slug of documents that have been marked in prior depositions. And let me just recite, for the record, what I have done, and then I will ask you a question about it.

Various versions of a document similar to what I think you described have been marked in other depositions, and I have given you copies of documents that have been previously marked as CPH Exhibit 16, CPH Exhibit 63, CPH Exhibit 64, CPH Exhibit 65, and CPH Exhibit 66. From looking at those documents, can you tell me if any of them were, in fact, the document that you saw that evening.

MR. CLARE: Are you asking exclusive of the handwriting or inclusive?

MR. BRODY: In the form in which I have given it to her or -- well, let me ask that question. Thank you, Tom.
Q. The document that you saw that evening, did it have handwriting on it?
A. Um -- I don't remember, when I saw it, if it did.
Q. Okay. Well, then, looking at these documents, do any of them strike you as the document that you saw that evening?
A. Um -- yeah, I mean, the first one looked familiar to me when I saw it yesterday. It's possible that the last one almost looks like my handwriting, not on the sort of the stuff that's very hard to read.
Q. And the other ones, do you believe those were ones that you saw that evening?
Obviously, there are great similarities between the documents.
A. Yeah, they all look generally the same.

Stack
The first one sort of looks the most familiar to me. I am not sure about that next -- I guess it's 63 --
Q. Yes.
A. That looks like more detail of the same thing.
I don't specifically remember that, but, you know, it could have been there.
Q. Okay. Well, let's focus on the first one and the last one, on CPH Exhibit 16 and CPH Exhibit 66. If I could ask you, we will just talk about the last one first --
A. Okay.
Q. -- the CPH Exhibit 66.
The handwriting at the top that appears to be some phone numbers, that's not your handwriting.
A. No, no.
Q. The other handwriting that is fainter, is that what you believe may be your handwriting?
A. Yeah, that could be mine.

Stack
Q. Can you read into the record what it says, to the best of your knowledge?
A. That looks like over on the sides it says: "25 million on" something "grills", and then I see a number "60" and the word "more", but I can't really read the rest of it.
Q. Does the word before it -- is the word before it "expect", as in "expect 60 more"?
A. Yeah, that could be "expect", "expect 60 more".
Q. And is there a question mark after "60"?
A. Yeah, it looks like there could be.
Q. Having read through that, do you now believe that is your handwriting or you are still not certain?
A. You know, it looks a lot like mine. I wish I could see it. It's just very hard to read.
Q. I understand. I don't know who has the original, but we do not.

Stack
Okay. The writing at the bottom, can you read that?
A. It looks like "plus 30 million", and then there is an arrow, and it says something that I just can't make out.
Q. And the items below that?
A. Yeah, and it's again "plus", I don't know if that's "35" or "15", and then, down below that, it looks like it says "5" I guess "million", maybe "Latin America", so it looks like just trying to come up with numbers and they must have been telling us on the call.
Q. Do you believe those are notes that you took on the evening of the call?
A. Yeah, I think it probably is.
Q. And then looking at the document that's marked as Exhibit 16, the first one, I believe, that appears to be the same document --
A. Right.
Q. -- without the handwriting.
A. Right.

Stack

Q. And then, is that the copy -- the document, rather, you believe that you saw that evening?

A. Sorry, it's -- it looks like it's the same as the document in the back, it's just that there is some additional handwriting on it.

Q. Okay.

A. That is -- I guess has come from someone else.

Q. And by that, you are referring to the reference to "Porat" in the middle?

A. Right, and then that circle of that number with the question mark and the reference at the top to "72".

Q. That's not your handwriting.

A. No.

Q. Okay. One last thing on Exhibit 66, the one that you thought may be your handwriting.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. To the left of the list of names, there is some handwriting, it's difficult to read. Do you recognize that?

Stack

A. No, I can't.

Q. Okay.

A. No, I don't know what that says.

Q. Aside from the documents that we have just looked at -- Exhibit 16 and Exhibit 66 -- do you remember any other documents you looked at that evening during the call, during the all-hands call?

A. No, not that -- I don't remember anything else.

Q. Okay. What do you remember being discussed in the all-hands call?

A. The night I generally remember, and I have to say I don't remember the specifics of the conversation, but I remember that we had learned that Sunbeam wouldn't be -- hit their sales numbers for the first quarter or were going to be lower, I guess, than the expectations on the street and, so, we discussed how we should -- you know, what we should do about that, given that we were supposed to price a deal the next day. And we talked about, you know, where they stood at their numbers at the time. And I think that's where this (indicating) piece of paper comes in, and how they expected to get to whatever number they expected to get to, which I believe was something in excess of the same quarter from the prior year. And, so, we -- I think we walked through a lot of that detail. And then, at the end of the day, all determined that the best way to go was to put out a press release to let the market know that they were not going to hit that first quarter target that was out there and let the market react to that before pricing the transaction.

Q. During the call, did anyone from Morgan Stanley -- let me withdraw that.

During the call, did you learn when this news had reached Morgan Stanley and/or Davis Polk?

MR. WISE: I'm sorry, do you understand that question?

THE WITNESS: I am not exactly

Stack

sure --

Q. Then let me ask it.

A. Yeah.

Q. Was it a surprise to people on the call that Sunbeam was not going to meet the street's expectations?

MR. WISE: She can answer as to her own reaction to it. Obviously, I am not sure how she can react -- or, I am not sure how she can answer as to whether the other people were surprised.

A. Yes, it was a surprise.

Q. Was it a surprise to you?

A. To me, yes.

Q. Did others express in the meeting that this was news to them, that they didn't know this before?

A. Um --

THE WITNESS: I think that might go to some privileged conversations.

MR. WISE: This is --

Q. I am not asking --

MR. WISE: No, no, only during the course of the call --

THE WITNESS: Oh.
MR. WISE: -- did anybody say anything in front of all the other people --
THE WITNESS: I see, surprise.
MR. WISE: -- expressing surprise.
A. Gosh, I don't remember specifically.
I think that was the general tone of the discussions.
Q. Who in the call was answering questions about Sunbeam's sales to date and sales prospects?
Who provided that information?
A. You know, I can't say for certain.
It was definitely a man from Sunbeam and, upon hearing the names yesterday, I guess Uzzi and Goudis and Kersh, I believe it was some combination of the three of them.
Q. Okay. What did the Sunbeam

Stack
man -- either Mr. Uzzi, Goudis, or Kersh -- represent or state about the state of Sunbeam's first quarter sales?
A. Again, I can't tell you specifically but, you know, generally, it was that they were lower than expected and that, you know, these were the (indicating) numbers that they had gotten to, and I think everybody was looking at sort of this sheet of paper, and then there was a general explanation of how they expected to get to that -- I think what they had told us was that they weren't going to hit the numbers that the street had out there currently, but they would still be in excess of the sales from the prior year during that period. And, so, I believe that's what went out in the press release and, so, there was an explanation to how they were going to get from the numbers here, (indicating), which were the actual sales, I guess, as of -- it looks like March 17th on here, to I guess the end of March to get to those -- to get to that number. And there was a lot of discussion around that topic.

Stack
I don't remember a lot of specifics.
Q. Turn to the document marked as Exhibit 66.
The numbers at the top, January consolidated net sales actual, February consolidated net sales actual, and March international net sales through 3-15. Do you remember any discussion about those numbers that appear to be actual numbers?
A. Yeah, again, I mean, I remember general discussions of what they had sold to date so, presumably, those are the actual numbers listed here.
Q. The next item is March international net sales forecast. And I believe it's 3-16-98 through 3-28 or 29, '98.
Do you remember any discussions about that nearly $40 million in sales?
A. Yeah, not specifically on international sales. Presumably, it was part of the discussion of how they were going to get to that number, but I don't remember specifically talking about that one.

Stack
Q. You don't remember anyone asking questions about that number or whether that forecast was going to happen or not?
A. I am sure that those questions were asked, I just don't remember the detail of it.
Q. The next item refers to March domestic net sales through 3-17-98. Do you remember any discussion about that number?
A. Again, I think it was the general discussion of how they would get to the number they were going to tell the market and -- but I don't remember specifically --
Q. I understand.
A. -- conversations.
Q. And the next item is March domestic open orders. Do you have an understanding of what it meant to be an "open order"?

Do you remember what they said?
A. I don't. I don't remember what the explanation was, no.
Q. Do you understand that those items were orders that Sunbeam had already received or were they orders to be expected?
A. Frankly, I just don't remember.
Q. Okay. The next -- excuse me, I skipped over something.
The international net sales item and the domestic net sales and open order items have little notes, "1" and "2", after them, which refer down to the bottom of a "waterfall". Do you recall what a "waterfall" is or means in this context?
A. You know, I could guess, but I don't remember.
Q. I am not asking you to guess.
A. Yeah, I just don't remember what that means.
Q. Do you remember any discussion in the meeting, the all-hands call, about what that "waterfall" meant and whether it would require deduction from those sales that are referenced?

Stack
A. Not specifically, I don't.
Q. Okay. Now, the items below, under Potential orders, list a variety of customers, and they appear to total 86.0.
Do you see that?
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. Do you recall any discussion about what it meant to be a "potential order"?
A. Again, I am sure it was discussed, but I just don't remember it specifically.
Q. Do you have an understanding whether these were orders that Sunbeam had actually received or whether they were orders they hoped to receive, fill, and ship in the next 10 or 11 days?
A. I actually don't remember.
Q. Do you remember if anyone on the call asked questions about that, about whether those were real orders or potential orders?

Stack
A. Again, I am sure they did, this was a source of great concern for everybody, but I don't remember it specifically.
Q. Okay. Now, there is an identification of a variety of customers, starting at Home Depot and going through other. Do you remember any discussion about any of those particular customers?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember anyone raising at the meeting whether some or all of these customers had existing inventory of Sunbeam products or not?
A. No, I don't remember that.
Q. Do you remember any discussion in the meeting -- in the conference call, rather, about whether some of these individual customers would require discounts from Sunbeam in order to make additional purchases?
A. I don't remember anything specific about that, no.

Stack
Q. Do you recall any discussion in the conference call or questions being asked by anyone about whether, in order to make these sales, Sunbeam would have to offer price discounts?
A. I just don't remember.
Q. Do you remember any discussion in the conference call about Sunbeam's expected earnings for the first quarter?
A. You know, we were very focused on these sales numbers. I wouldn't be surprised to hear the earnings was also -- I mean, obviously, that's also an important metric, but I don't remember specific conversations about it.
Q. Do you remember if anyone asked, you know: We have been talking about what the street expects on sales, will you meet what the street expects on earnings?
A. I don't remember.
Q. You have discussed in general terms -- or, rather, your general recollection of what you recall from this conversation. Do you remember anything else that was said, in words or in substance, in the call?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Stack

A. I think I have given you everything that I remember.

Q. You indicate that, as a result of this conversation, it was resolved to send -- to issue a press release?

A. Yes.

Q. Who made that decision?

A. I mean, it was a decision made by I think everyone on the call jointly thought it was the best -- the best action to take.

I can't remember if somebody pushed it more than others, but at the end of the day it was decided by everyone to do that.

Q. And do you recall who was charged with drafting the press release?

A. I think it was probably Skadden, as the company's counsel.

Q. Do you recall --

A. Yeah, I am probably just speculating, I don't remember

Stack

specifically.

Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley or its counsel, Davis Polk, reviewed drafts of the press release?

A. I am sure that we did. I don't remember reviewing it myself. But, again, as the junior person, it probably would have gone to the more senior people.

Q. In the conversation, the "all-hands" conference call, did anyone state what they expected Mr. Dunlap's reaction would be to this?

A. I don't remember specifically anybody saying anything about it.

Q. Do you remember anyone saying: Oh, gee, we are going to have to talk to Dunlap about this, or: I need to talk to Dunlap?

A. It sounds like something that might have been said, but I just don't remember it specifically.

Q. Do you remember anyone saying that Dunlap would be upset or disappointed if this press release were issued?

Stack

A. Again, I just don't remember a specific conversation about it.

Q. Now, the document that we have been looking at, marked as Exhibit 66, reflects some numbers about actual sales to date and some numbers about expected sales, that is, sales between that point and the end of the quarter.

From the point of this all-hands conference call on, do you know if anyone at Davis Polk or Morgan Stanley did anything to see if those sales actually materialized?

A. I don't, no.

Q. Did you?

A. Not that I recall. I mean, there is typically a bringing-down due diligence call where I am sure this was asked about, but I don't remember specifically.

Q. In the conference call, did Mr. Uzzi or Mr. Goudis or Mr. Kersh or any other participant refer to what information Sunbeam kept track of on a daily basis to show how its sales were going?

Stack

A. That was the sort of information I feel like we were discussing, but I don't remember specifics.

Q. But did they report to you, for example, that, in fact, they kept track of sales on a daily basis, they had a daily scorecard?

A. I just don't remember specifically.

Q. Do you remember ever looking at any daily scorecards or daily sales reports for Sunbeam?

A. I don't, no.

Q. Now, aside -- do you remember anything else that took place in this all-hands conference call?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Aside from the conference call, do you remember any other discussions about Sunbeam's first-quarter sales between that point and the closing?

A. Um -- I think there were

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017254

Stack

probably privileged discussions about it -- um -- I guess at the printer that evening, the evening of pricing, so it would be the day after the set of conference calls went on, there was a brief mention of it.

Q. Okay, I will return to that in a moment.

Aside from the conversations at the printer --

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. -- and other conversations with individuals within your law firm, do you remember any other conversations about the first quarter sales?

A. No.

Q. Now, the conversations within your law firm that you identified as "privileged communications", I want to establish some foundation on those, see the nature of the privilege.

Can you identify a specific conversation that you recall?

A. Not specifics.

Stack

You know, they are sort of the wrap-up that you have after a large conference call like that, that sort of thing.

Q. Okay. So after you had the all-hands conference call, you recall that you had a wrap-up with Davis Polk lawyers?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. Aside from that conversation, do you recall any other conversations within the firm about Q 1 sales?

A. Um -- I mean, not specifically.

Obviously, it was sort of a big issue that had come up and everyone was very focused on it, so it was mentioned from time to time, but nothing -- no sort of specific large conversations come to mind.

Q. And do you remember anyone within Davis Polk or within Morgan Stanley being tasked to follow the first quarter sales after that conference call?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, the wrap-up conversation that you remembered, was that just yourself, Mr. Lurie, and Mr. Dean?

Stack

A. Um -- yeah -- Morgan Stanley may have been a part of it, as well, I just don't remember.

Q. Do you remember -- and this can be answered "Yes" or "No" -- do you remember, in words or substance, what was discussed in that call -- in that conversation?

A. Yes, substance.

Q. What is the substance of the call that -- let me ask one more question.

Did that call --

MR. WISE: (Laughing.) You can ask as many questions as you like, you are anticipating that I will have an objection I guess to the one you were going to ask.

MR. BRODY: I saw you shake your head.

Q. In that wrap-up call, did you discuss things that people had said in the all-hands call?

Stack

MR. WISE: I am going to object, and direct her to not answer as to what anybody discussed in the wrap-up call.

(DIRECTION NOT TO ANSWER.)

MR. BRODY: Okay, I think that calls for her to disclose non-privileged communications, so I guess I would ask you to withdraw that objection.

MR. WISE: I think the communication itself was a communication, if I understood her testimony, that occurred after the persons outside the privilege were no longer participating in the conversation, so all of that communication is privileged.

MR. BRODY: I don't know if I agree with that, but I understand --

MR. WISE: That's okay, I don't need you to agree with it, I am just telling you she is not going to answer that question.

Stack
MR. BRODY: Fair enough.
Q. Well, let me the more general question. What do you recall being discussed in substance in that wrap-up call?
MR. WISE: Same direction, same instruction, same objection.
(DIRECTION NOT TO ANSWER.)
Q. Now, after the all-hands call, it was decided to issue a press release; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Aside from the press release, were there any other action items or any other actions taken as a result of the conference call?
A. That's the one that I remember.
Q. In the conference call, the all-hands call, did the parties discuss the Arthur Andersen comfort letter?
A. I don't remember.
Q. In the all-hands call, did the parties discuss the size of the offering?
A. I don't remember that, either.

Stack
Q. At the time this conference call was taking place, Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley were in the middle of the road-show; weren't they?
A. Yes, I think so, just from the way deals work. I don't remember specifically that they were on the road, but....
Q. Do you recall any discussions -- I'm sorry, I didn't mean --
A. No, go ahead.
Q. Do you recall any discussions during the all-hands conference call about the road-show, how it was going?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you recall any discussions within that all-hands conference call about how the press release or the information that gave rise to the press release would affect the road-show going forward?
A. I really don't remember anything about the road-show or talking about it.

Stack
Q. Was there any discussion, in that conference call, about whether companies that had attended prior sessions of the road-show would have to get a call and receive information about this?
A. I don't remember.
It sounds like a reasonable thing to do, but I don't remember if we talked about it.
Q. Okay. Now, aside from the all-hands call, and the pre-meeting and the post-meeting that you have testified about, do you recall discussing -- and the event at the printer that we will come to, do you recall discussing the first quarter sales issue with anyone else?
A. No, nothing specific comes to mind.
MR. BRODY: Why don't we go off the record, we will take a break, maybe a lunch break.

AFTERNOON SESSION
(1:34 p.m.)

HEATHER M. STACK, resumed, having been previously duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

CONTINUED EXAMINATION
BY MR. BRODY:

THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 1:34, and we are back on the record.

Q. Ms. Stack, before we broke for lunch, we were talking about the conference calls on the 18th and some related topics. I would just like to return briefly to the all-hands call.

In that conversation, did Mr. Uzzi or anyone else from Sunbeam indicate why there had been a sale shortfall in the first quarter?

A. I am sure that was something that was discussed, I don't remember specifically.

Stack

Q. And we looked at Exhibit -- a variety of exhibits.

I think you have Exhibit 66 in front of you?

A. Correct.

Q. We talked about the category of "potential orders". Do you remember any conversation in that conference call about how likely it was that those potential orders would become actual fulfilled orders?

A. Again, I don't remember specifically. It was probably discussed.

Q. Do you remember anyone giving assurances in that call that all of those sales would be accomplished?

A. Not specifically.

We certainly discussed how they planned to get from the number they were currently at, at that date, to the number that was in line with the prior period's numbers. So, you know, I am sure there were some assurances given in connection with that, but I don't remember with respect to these potential orders specifically.

Stack

Q. What assurances do you remember they gave about getting to last year's numbers?

A. Again, I don't remember specifically.

It was, you know, a general topic of discussion, that I remember.

Q. Do you remember beyond the fact that it was discussed what was discussed in substance?

A. No.

Q. Looking at Exhibit 66 briefly, if you look at the numbers at the top, they appear to total around $169 million?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. And then the potential orders appear to be 86 million or so?

A. Right.

Q. And then you see the numbers below those, and the bottom one appears to refer to Q1 '97, 253.-something, .5, I believe?

Stack

A. Right.

Q. Do you remember any discussion about where in relation to 253.5 Sunbeam expected to land?

A. As I recall, they expected that they were going to at least meet the prior quarter -- or the prior period's numbers. So, if that 253.5 is the first quarter of '97, I think we are now talking about the first quarter of '98, I think they expected to be in line or exceed that number.

Q. Okay. And if you look at the numbers here, the 168.7 at the top, plus the 85, totals 254.7, which is a little over a million dollars more than the prior quarter; correct?

A. Right.

Q. So, in order to -- on these numbers, in order to get to a number in excess of the prior quarter, all of those potential orders would have to come in and all of the open orders at the top would have to be filled; isn't that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011257

Stack

A. Yeah, I guess that's right, if there was nothing else.
Q. Do you remember any discussion about that or how likely that was?
A. Again, I remember the general topic being discussed, but I just don't remember the substance.
Q. Okay. We have spent a fair amount of time talking about that all-hands conference call. Do you remember anything else, as you sit here, that was discussed in that conference call?
A. I think we have covered everything that I can remember.
Q. Okay. Now, we also talked some, before the break, about the comfort letter, and I would like to return to that topic.

Are you aware that, in the course of preparing comfort letters, accountants sometimes receive representation letters or some letter from the management of the company as to what they expect their numbers to be?

Stack

A. Yes.
Q. Did you see any such -- does that type of letter have a name?
A. I think they usually just call them "rep letters from management".
Q. Okay. I have heard a similar name.

Are you aware of any rep letter or management letter being issued in this case?
A. Um --
Q. In connection with the comfort letter.
A. Yeah, I don't think we ever saw one.

I think that the accountants have to get them to issue comfort letters, so they probably did but --
Q. Okay.

(Deposition Exhibit 120, letter signed by Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fannin, and Mr. Gluck, previously marked for identification.)

Stack

Q. Well, let me show you a previously-marked Exhibit, a document marked as Exhibit 120, which is a letter signed by Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fannin, and Mr. Gluck. And my question is, do you know if Morgan Stanley or its counsel received this document prior to closing.
A. I don't know.
Q. You can put that aside.

Before the break, I showed you a draft of the comfort letter that had a fax transmittal of the 17th of March.
A. Right.
Q. I would like to show you one additional draft of the comfort letter to see if that refreshes your recollection any.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 48, draft of the comfort letter, previously marked for identification.)

MR. BRODY: Counsel.

Stack

Q. I have shown you what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 48, which also appears to be a draft.

Do you know if you have ever seen this document before?
A. Again, I don't remember specifically looking at the comfort letter in this case.
Q. Okay. I believe you testified that -- let me withdraw that.

Is the comfort letter typically delivered in final signed form at the printer?
A. Yeah, it often is.
Q. Do you know if the comfort letter in this case was delivered in final form at the printer?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Now, you previously testified that, as a result of the conference calls on the 18th of March, a press release was issued. Do you recall reviewing drafts of the press release personally?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017258

Stack
A. I don't remember personally reviewing drafts.
Q. Do you recall giving any comments on a draft of the press release?
A. I don't.
Probably the more senior people at Davis Polk did.
Q. Well, that was going to be my next question. Who at Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk do you know was actually involved in the process of preparing the press release?
MR. WISE: I don't know that anybody was in the process of preparing it. You mean reviewing it?
Q. Let's start with preparing it, putting pen to paper, writing it.
A. As I recall, I think Skadden prepared it and then I think others commented on it but I, frankly, don't have any specific knowledge of who those persons might have been.
Q. Well, I think you answered my next question. You don't know who at

Stack
Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk reviewed the Skadden Arps draft of the press release?
A. No, I don't know who it was. I could probably guess.
Q. I am not asking you to guess here.
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you know if a draft was, in fact, circulated on the night of the 18th of March?
A. I think it must have been, because I think it went out first thing the next morning, but I don't remember. I don't remember seeing it, so....
(Deposition Exhibit CPH 13, document which appears to transmit to Mr. Tyree a draft press release, previously marked for identification.)
Q. Ms. Stack, I am showing you what's previously been marked as Exhibit 13, CPH Exhibit 13.
MR. BRODY: And I will state,

Stack
for the record, the document was marked this way, although it's somewhat out of order, but the production number appears to be reversed. But, in any event, Exhibit 13 appears to transmit to Mr. Tyree a draft press release.
Q. Have you ever seen this before?
A. I don't remember seeing it.
Q. I'm sorry?
A. I don't remember seeing it.
Q. Do you remember any discussions with Mr. Freed at Skadden Arps about the press release or its content?
A. I don't remember.
Q. If you look at the fax transmittal message from Mr. Freed to Mr. Tyree, it refers to the fact that the press release should not be disseminated prior to its sign-off by Mr. Dunlap and/or Mr. Fannin. Do you remember any conversation about whether that was necessary for the press release?
A. I don't remember any

Stack
conversation.
Q. Okay. And did you have any conversation with Mr. Fannin about the press release?
A. I don't think so. I don't remember any.
Q. Do you recall any discussions, either on the conference call or at a later time, about any wording or content in the press release?
A. I think on the conference call generally the content of it was discussed, but I don't remember specific conversations about it.
Q. When the conference call was over, had the parties drafted a press release or had they just discussed types of things to include in there?
A. I think we had just discussed it. I think a draft was circulated. It must have been later, because I don't remember seeing it.
Q. And I may have touched on this but, do you recall any conversations with anyone at Skadden Arps or at Sunbeam about what should be in the press release or should not be in the press release?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017259

Stack

A. Again, I don't remember the specifics.

I remember it was generally discussed on the conference call.

Q. After the press release was issued, did you participate in any conversations that you recall about the accuracy of the press release?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if anyone involved in the deal raised questions about whether the press release was accurate or not?

A. Not that I remember. And people were very focused on it that night, so....

Q. Okay.

(Deposition Exhibit CPH 14, final version of the press release, previously marked for identification.)

MR. BRODY: Counsel.

Q. Ms. Stack, I have given you

Stack

what's previously been marked as Exhibit 14 in this case, CPH Exhibit 14. Do you recognize this as the final version of the press release?

A. Yeah, it looks like the final version.

Q. And having now seen that and reviewed it, does that refresh your recollection about any substance or matter within the press release that was discussed by the group beyond the fact that -- the fact that the press release was discussed?

A. I am just going to take a second and read it.

Q. Of course.

A. (Pause.)

Okay. I don't think I remember anything more than....

Q. Do you know if anyone from Arthur Andersen was consulted about the press release?

A. I don't remember, and I don't remember if they were on the calls that we had, either.

Stack

Q. Do you remember any discussion about whether they should be consulted or not?

A. Again, I just don't remember.

Q. Okay. Do you remember any discussion in the call or after about whether the press release should disclose the actual sales for January and February of 1998?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember anyone in the conference call or thereafter suggesting the press release should contain additional disclosures, should have disclosed additional stuff?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Do you remember anyone saying it shouldn't contain some of the disclosures that it did?

A. No.

Q. After the press release was issued -- the press release issued on the morning of the 19th?

Stack

A. I think that's right.

Q. And the final offering memorandum was printed that day?

A. Right, that night.

Q. From March 19th until closing, was there anyone at Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk who was responsible for monitoring Sunbeam's sales to see if, in fact, they were hitting their numbers?

A. Yeah, I don't remember anything specifically about that.

Q. I know we have talked some, or you have talked some, about the events at the printer, and I believe you testified that you were at the printer; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you arrived there at some point in the afternoon or evening of the 19th?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember when?

A. Um -- I don't remember when. It was probably in the evening, sometime

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Stack

after pricing.
Q. Who was there?
A. Um -- I think that Jim Lurie was there with me. I think John Tyree was there. I think there was an associate from Skadden there, although I am not sure which one it was or if there were more than one. And I think there were two guys from Arthur Andersen there, and I think one of them was Larry. I remember a Larry, I guess Bornstein is his last name.
Q. Do you remember the name of the other one?
A. You know, after seeing it here a couple of times, Phil, or something, but I wouldn't have --
Q. You think Mr. Harlow was there?
A. Oh, gosh, I wouldn't know.
I know there was a second person with Larry, and it could have been someone different.
Q. Okay.
A. I don't remember.
I have just seen Phil Harlow's

Stack

name, I guess.
Q. Are you familiar with an Arthur Andersen accountant named Mark Brockelman?
A. That sounds familiar, as well. I suppose it could have been.
Q. But you are not sure.
A. No.
Q. How long were you at the printer?
A. Probably well into the late hour, probably early morning the next morning. I don't remember. Usually, we stay there until we sign off on the book completely.
Q. Could it have been six hours or more?
A. Sure.
Q. What was the physical layout of the printer?
Were you all in one room or did you have separate rooms?
A. There was one large conference room where I think most things happened. There is definitely -- I mean, at a printer, there is definitely smaller break-out rooms all over the place, but I think there was one room that people were generally organized in here, as I recall.

Stack

Q. Were you there the whole time that Mr. Lurie was there?
Did you arrive together and leave together.
A. Um -- I think I was probably there till the very end, and he may have left a little before that. I believe we arrived together or somewhere around the same time.
Q. What conversations do you remember taking place at the printer?
A. I guess I remember, you know, general conversations about just the pricing and how the evening was going to go.
Specifically, I do remember one comment made by one of the guys from Arthur Andersen, I believe it was Larry, who was sort of a gregarious gentleman, and sort of made a joke about: Oh, yeah, those guys, those guys aren't going to hit their numbers, or something like that, and made a comment like that, to which we all sort of responded: What are you talking about? Why would you say that? And then he said: Oh, no, I was just joking. And that was sort of the end of it. And we moved on from there. Everybody was obviously very focused on this press release and the contents of it and, so, when he made sort of a comment, an offhanded comment, people paid attention, and then he said he was joking, and that was sort of the end of it. And that was sort of in line with the interaction of the personality that went on there. And then I really don't have a lot of other specific recollections of what was said as of the printer, other than being there and....

Stack

Q. Okay. You believe Mr. -- let me withdraw that.
When Mr. Bornstein made his comment, who was he making it to?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017261

Stack

A. I was definitely in the room, I think -- I think Jim was probably in the room.
Q. Jim Lurie?
A. Yeah, Jim Lurie. I can't say for sure who else was in the room at the time.
Q. Were other representatives of Skadden Arps there?
A. You know, they were there that evening, I don't know if they were in the room at the time.
Q. What about Mr. Tyree?
A. I also don't remember. He was probably in there, but I don't remember for sure.
Q. Okay. And before Mr. Bornstein made his comment, were people talking about the press release?
A. Um -- not that I recall.
Q. So he was the one who initiated the topic of conversation?
A. Yeah, as far as I remember.
For some reason, that exchange

Stack

just stuck out in my head but I, frankly, don't remember a lot of the surrounding discussions on it, of that, really, or anything else.
Q. Do you remember the precise words that Mr. Bornstein used?
A. No, but it was something along the effect of as I described earlier.
Q. That Sunbeam would not hit its numbers?
A. Yeah, something like that.
Q. Did he say that if Sunbeam didn't hit its numbers everybody there would be in trouble?
A. I don't remember those words.
It really was sort of an offhanded -- uh -- as I remember, it was sort of an offhanded remark, like: Oh, come on, you guys, they are not going to hit their numbers. You know: What do you mean by that?
Q. And then, after he made that comment, who asked for clarification?
A. I am not sure if it was me or

Stack

Jim or -- I mean, we all sort of had the same reaction.
Q. And what did he say?
A. And he said: No, no, I am just kidding, don't worry about it, or something along those lines.
Again, the specific words I don't remember, I just remember the general exchange.
Q. Thereafter, did Mr. Bornstein make phone calls to other people at Arthur Andersen, to your knowledge?
A. I don't know, I don't know.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Bornstein said in that conversation that he didn't think the press release was accurate? Do you remember that?
A. No. I mean, really, the only thing I remember is what he said and, really, it was very clear that he wasn't serious, so....
Q. Okay. And why was it that it was clear to you that he wasn't serious?
A. Well, if he had been serious, it would have been a -- a huge issue for all of us, and we would have sort of dropped everything and focused on that, I think. And it was also -- I mean, I just remember that sort of character, tone of the conversation, and the way that it was sort of very consistent with the way he had behaved and how all of our interactions had gone throughout the transaction.

Stack

Q. When had you worked with Mr. Bornstein prior to this?
A. It was just in other conversations in the transaction.
Q. Do you remember any of those?
A. No, not specifically, no.
Q. Had you ever met him personally, seen him?
A. I think I had probably met him at the printer when we printed the reds, because I remember he was familiar when I saw him at the printer again.
Q. So that would be around the 16th of March.
A. Yeah, whatever date the --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Stack

probably the night before that or something, yeah.

Q. Did anyone raise his or her voice in this conversation?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Did anyone use profanity?

A. Not that I remember, no.

Q. Did Mr. Bornstein -- do you recall Mr. Bornstein stating to anyone in attendance at the meeting that he didn't think Sunbeam was going to meet its numbers?

A. I mean, only in the manner that I have already described.

Q. Did he repeat that in the meeting -- do you recall him stating in the meeting, to you or to others, that he was going to send auditors to all of Sunbeam's loading docks to make sure that it was correct? Do you remember that?

A. No, no.

Q. While at the printer, do you know if anyone from Davis Polk or Morgan Stanley had conversations with people from

Stack

Sunbeam who were not present?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall any calls being made by anyone to people who were not present, such as Mr. Harlow or Mr. Gluck or people at Sunbeam?

A. I don't remember anything specifically.

It wouldn't be unusual for that to happen, but....

Q. And do you remember Mr. Bornstein reporting back what others not in the meeting had said about the press release or the deal?

A. No, I don't.

Q. At the meeting at the printer, do you remember Mr. Bornstein delivering the -- Mr. Bornstein or someone else delivering the final version of the comfort letter?

A. I just don't remember if it was delivered that night or not.

Q. Do you remember any changes being made to the comfort letter at that time?

Stack

A. No, I don't.

Q. Do you remember discussions with Mr. Bornstein or others at the printer to the effect that the amount of the offering had changed?

A. No, no.

Q. Ms. Stack you previously looked at a copy of the comfort letter, marked Morgan Stanley Exhibit 48.

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. And if you look at the text of the comfort letter, it recites that it's for a $1.3 billion offering.

Do you see that?

A. Right.

MR. CLARE: Mike, I just want to correct, you described this as "the comfort letter". I think you had previously described it as a "draft" of it, 48. Did you intend to describe this as the final comfort letter?

MR. BRODY: No.

Stack

MR. CLARE: Okay.

(Deposition Exhibit 111, document which appears to have been faxed from Global Financial Press on the night of the printing, previously marked for identification.)

Q. I am going to show you now what's been previously marked as Exhibit 111.

Have you ever seen that document before?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. It appears to have been faxed from Global Financial Press on the night of the printing.

Do you see that at the top?

A. Yes.

Q. And if you look on the first page, the amount of the offering is changed from 1.3 billion to 2.014 billion.

A. Yes, I see that.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection that there was conversation with the Anderson people on the night of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017263

Stack
the visit to Global Financial Press that the amount of the offering had changed?
A. I don't remember discussing that, no.
(Deposition Exhibit CPH 17, document, which appears to be the final version of the comfort letter dated on the 19th of March 1998, previously marked for identification.)
Q. A draft of a letter -- I have given you what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 17. Does that appear to be the final version of the comfort letter dated on the 19th of March 1998 -- excuse me, yes, 1998.
A. Yes, that looks like it.
Q. And that shows the change to the amount of the offering?
A. Yes, it reflects the 2 billion number.
Q. And it contains on the last two pages, handwriting and tick marks to reference the items in the offering memorandum?

Stack
A. Right.
Q. So this is the final.
A. It looks like, it's signed as well.
Q. Do you know if this was, in fact, delivered at the printer?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember any discussions about the form of the comfort letter or its content at the printer?
A. I don't.
Q. Do you remember any other discussions at the printer on the night of the -- I guess it was the 19th.
A. Other than what I have -- we have already discussed, I don't remember anything else specific.
(Deposition Exhibit CPH 114, document, previously marked for identification.)
Q. You can take that, please.
MR. BRODY: Counsel.
Q. I am showing you, Ms. Stack,

Stack
what's previously been marked as CPH Exhibit 114. I think my questions are going to be brief about this.
A. Okay.
Q. Have you ever seen it before?
A. Uh -- no.
Q. I'm sorry?
A. No -- well, I have seen -- I guess the back page I have seen.
Q. I'm sorry, you are correct, that is one we have talked about already. Okay. You can put that document aside.
Beginning with the events on the 18th of March, and following up until closing, do you remember any discussion in which anyone suggested that perhaps the deal should not go forward?
A. Um -- no. I mean, there was discussion that evening on those -- on that series of conference calls on the 18th about what we ought to do, and I am sure the possibility of not going forward was brought up, but I think that because we were going to put the information out and give it to investors, people felt comfortable moving forward.

Q. Do you remember what anyone said with regard to whether the deal should or should not go forward?
A. Nothing specific, no.
Q. Do you remember any conversation beginning on the 18th and continuing until the closing of the deal about whether anyone ought to call up MacAndrews & Forbes and provide information such as the exhibits we have seen that showed the potential orders?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall any discussion, beginning on the 18th and continuing until the closing, about whether any additional disclosure should be made to the public about Sunbeam and its sales and earnings?
A. No, other than those conference calls where we talked about with what the press release ought to say, no.
Q. Okay. Now, we have looked at some earlier documents that showed the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011264

Stack

amount of the offering was for 1.3 billion which would result in proceeds to Sunbeam of 500 million?

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. And you are aware that it was later raised to 2 billion. Do you recall what proceeds would result to Sunbeam from that amount?

A. No, I don't.

(Deposition Exhibit 10, final offering memorandum, previously marked for identification.)

Q. Let me show you what has previously been marked as Exhibit 10. And I apologize for the size of the document, I am not going to ask you to look at much of it, but you recognize this as the final offering memorandum?

A. (Nodding.)

Q. Is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. And you see the amount at the top identifies 2.0 billion?

A. Right.

Stack

Q. And you recognize this as the document that went to the printer on the night of the 19th; is that correct?

A. Yeah, this looks like what it is, yeah.

Q. And if you turn to what appears to be page 23 of the document, the production number in the corner ends with the numbers 191.

A. Right.

Q. You see the total debentures offered is 750 million?

A. Correct.

Q. So when the deal was increased from 1.3 to 2.0 billion, it resulted in an increase in proceeds to Sunbeam from 500 to 750; is that correct?

A. Yes, that's what it is, I guess.

Q. Now, do you remember any discussions within the group working on the deal about increasing the amount by -- that increase, by a 50 percent increase?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember when the

Stack

decision was made to increase the amount of the offering?

A. I don't. It must have been sometime after we printed the reds, because the reds said 1.3 but I don't remember when that was.

Q. Do you remember who, if anyone, was involved in that decision?

A. I don't know.

MR. BRODY: Can we mark this, please, as our next exhibit.

(Deposition Exhibit CPH 111, document which appears to be a fax to Ms. Stack, which was sent to Ms. Stack at about 10:23 p.m. on the night of the 19th at Global Financial Press, and it was sent to Mr. Lurie and Mr. Dietz, marked for identification, as of this date.)

MR. BRODY: And for you two, I have two copies, one appears to be stapled and one does not. I think they are identical. If one has handwriting, let me know, but that was unintentional.

I'm sorry, this is marked as Exhibit 2--

THE COURT REPORTER: 211.

MR. BRODY: Thank you.

Q. Ms. Stark, I have given you what has been marked as Exhibit 211.

A. Yes.

Q. This appears to be a fax to you; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was sent to you at about 10:23 p.m. on the night of the 19th at Global Financial Press.

A. Yes.

Q. And it was sent to Mr. Lurie and Mr. Dietz --

A. Right.

Q. -- as well?

A. Right.

Q. And I think you testified earlier that Mr. Lurie was present. Does this refresh your recollection that Mr. Dietz, in fact, was there?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017265

Stack

A. I am sure he was.
I just don't have a real memory of who he was or having interaction with him.
Q. Fine. If you turn to the second page of the document, it's a memorandum from Nicole Duncan. Who is Nicole Duncan? What was her role?
A. She was another associate at Davis Polk, and I think she helped out on drafting a couple of documents. Maybe -- I sort of remember her drafting the indenture, maybe, and I worked on -- we sort of split up some documents at one point, and she helped out.
Q. And the document that is attached it the Sunbeam Corporation purchase agreement. Can you describe, just briefly, what the purpose of the purchase agreement was?
A. Yeah. This is the document where Morgan Stanley agrees to buy the securities from Sunbeam and then they will go and resell them to the market.

Stack

Q. Yes, and you are shown as having received a cc of this memo as, in fact, you did at Global Financial Press; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, Ms. Duncan's memorandum states that she has attached the purchase agreement, and that the document was marked to show changes from the draft from this morning.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And "this morning" would obviously be the morning of the 19th; correct?
A. Right.
Q. If you turn to the first page of text of the document, it appears to be a black-lined draft showing changes.
A. Correct.
Q. And the change at item 4 and at item -- item 4, the third line of the text, shows the change in the amount --
A. Right.

Stack

Q. -- to $2 billion. Does that refresh your recollection that, in fact, the amount was increased on the morning of the 19th?
A. Um --
MR. WISE: You are asking about her recollection or are you asking her to go through the deductive process which, obviously, you are going through to --
MR. BRODY: I am asking --
MR. WISE: -- to try to deduce whether or not that occurred.
MR. BRODY: I am asking for her recollection.
MR. WISE: I think she's already told you she doesn't remember.
A. I just don't remember.
Q. And this doesn't refresh your recollection?
A. No.
Q. Does this document lead you to the conclusion that the amount was changed the morning of the 19th or between the morning of the 19th and the evening of the 19th?

Stack

MR. WISE: What's the difference whether it does or it doesn't? She's sitting here today, six years after the fact. Presumably, what's important is whether it leads the trier of fact to that conclusion, not whether it leads Ms. Stack one way or another to that conclusion.
MR. BRODY: I will take that as an objection to form.
Q. You can answer the question.
A. Yeah, it looks like that's exactly what happened.
Q. Does it lead you to any other possible conclusion?
A. Um -- I mean, it could have -- the amount could have changed prior to this date. You don't always send around a revised document every day. Um -- and maybe -- in fact, it looks like it says what was deleted back here is all zeros. So, I don't know what was in here before.

Q. Okay. Turn to page 5 of the text. And the production number at the end ends 33019?
A. Okay.
Q. And you see the insertion to paragraph L.
A. Yes.
Q. Just read that to yourself, please, I am going to ask you some questions about it.
A. (Pause.)
Okay.
Q. You understand that provision to state that the information set forth in the press release shall not in and of itself constitute a material adverse change?
A. Yes, that's what it says.
Q. Do you recall any discussion about that term or including that term in this document?
A. I don't recall the discussion but, I mean, this is the material adverse change, it looks like we are all just being clear that the press release which we all knew about and participated in making the decision to release isn't going to be -- wouldn't contravene this representation.

Page 211

Stack

Q. Do you know who asked for or insisted upon that language?
A. I don't know specifically.
I assume it came from the company.
Q. Pardon me?
A. I assume it came from the company or its lawyers.
Q. Do you remember anyone expressing the view that, absent this language, someone could interpret the press release as a material adverse change?
A. I, again, don't remember specific discussions about this.
Q. Okay, you can put that document aside.
You have discussed, in general terms, the pricing of the offering. You

Page 212

Stack

were not involved in pricing?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who was?
A. The company and the bankers, I think.
Q. Do you know which bankers?
A. I don't.
Q. Was it reported to you what happened in the pricing conference call?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. Do you have any understanding or recollection of what was discussed -- what issues were raised in the pricing conference call?
A. I mean, the pricing terms obviously came out of it, the amount at which the public paid for the notes and that sort of thing, but I don't remember anything specific, other than that.
Q. That answered my question, thank you.
Following the events at the printer, what additional work, if any, did you do on this transaction?

Page 213

Stack

A. I coordinated documents for the closing, so there were lots of deliverables that we needed to get from both sides for the closing, their opinions and, you know, copies of certificates and all that sort of thing, and I coordinated that and coordinated the transfer of the funds and the securities and that sort of thing.
Q. Well, when you say you "coordinated" the documents, what does that mean?
A. Basically, collected copies of them after they had been finalized from everyone, collected the actual signature pages, had them all laid out on a big conference table for people to review, really coordinated the closing efforts.
Q. It doesn't mean that you drafted all of those documents.
A. No, no.
MR. WISE: (Laughing.)
Q. You have described already the work you have done on drafting.

017267

Stack

A. Correct.
Q. Where did the closing take place?
A. Gosh -- you know, I don't remember.
It could have been here, and it could have been at Skadden's offices, but I actually don't remember where it took place, I don't know.
Q. And when you refer to "the closing", you are referring to the closing of the financing or the closing of the merger or both?
A. The financing.
Q. Did you participate in the closing of the transaction whereby Sunbeam acquired from MacAndrews & Forbes certain interests in companies that owned interests in Coleman?
A. I was not involved in that part of the transaction.
Q. Okay, thank you.
Between the 19th and the closing, there was bring-down due diligence?

Stack

A. Yeah, I don't remember it specifically, but there -- I am sure that there was.
Q. Do you remember -- you don't remember participating in any bring-down due diligence?
A. I don't.
Q. Are you aware of -- please return to Exhibit 24, the chronology we have spent much time today on.
It references March 24th, 1998 bring-down due diligence conference call pre-closing.
A. (Nodding.)
Q. Do you believe you were on that call or not on that call or do you just not remember?
A. I just -- I just don't remember.
Q. Okay. Well, let me show you a couple of documents, and we will see if they assist your recollection.
A. Okay.
MR. BRODY: We are going to have to mark this as 212.

Stack

(Deposition Exhibit CPH 212, document, which in the corner states DPW 10, marked for identification, as of this date.)
A. (Pause.)
Q. Ms. Stack, I have given you what the court reporter has marked as Exhibit 212, and I see you have had a chance to look at it; is that correct?
A. Yes.
MR. BRODY: And I will state, for the record, for Mr. Clare's benefit, this document, in a slightly different form, has been marked as Exhibit CPH 33, but this document, however, was produced in this case by your former law firm. You see in the corner DPW 10 indicates it came from Davis Polk, so I have remarked it.
Q. Have you ever seen this before?
A. I don't remember it specifically, but it looks relatively similar to a lot of due diligence questions.

Q. Having looked at this, does this refresh your recollection about whether, in fact, you did participate in a bring-down due diligence call?
A. I just don't remember.
Q. In the firm, it's from Mr. Tyree, who you have talked about, and also Mr. Groeller, G-R-O-E-L-L-E-R.
Do you remember doing any work with Mr. Groeller on this transaction?
A. I don't, I don't remember.
Q. You can put that aside.
(Deposition Exhibit CPH 35, document, a little different draft of CPH, 212, previously marked for identification.)
Q. And let me show an additional document, previously marked as CPH Exhibit 35.
Have you ever seen that before, Exhibit 35?
A. I know it looks like a little different draft of the last one. Let me

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017268

Stack

just look at it.
Q. It is.
A. Yeah.
(Pause.)
Q. Do you remember --
A. Oh, I'm sorry.
Q. Do you remember having seen it before?
You may have answered, I just missed it.
A. No, I don't remember.
Q. And having seen this again, does it refresh your recollection as to whether you participated in any bring-down calls?
A. You know, I probably participated, I just don't remember --
Q. Okay.
A. -- being on them.
Q. The first item here asks for there to be an update on build-up of the first quarter revenues and earnings, and there is some items underneath that.
Do you remember having any discussions within Davis Polk or with

Stack

Morgan Stanley or with anyone else about first quarter revenues and earnings after the 19th of March?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Are you aware that, in connection with bring-down calls, there is frequently a bring-down letter from the accountants?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if you saw the bring-down letter in this case?
A. I don't remember seeing one, although I am sure that one was delivered.
Q. Do you remember any discussions with the accountants or with Morgan Stanley or with Sunbeam about the representations contained in the bring-down letter?
A. No, I don't.
(Deposition Exhibit CPH 112, bring-down comfort letter, previously marked for identification.)
Q. Let me show you one additional comfort letter, previously marked as CPH

Stack

Exhibit 112.
Do you recognize this as the bring-down letter?
A. Yeah, it looks like the bring-down comfort letter. I don't remember seeing it.
Q. Okay. I think you may have answered my next question. Having now seen this, does it refresh your recollection whether you saw it at the time?
A. Yeah, I still don't remember.
Q. Okay. Do you remember any conversations or work in tracking down the numbers in the bring-down letter?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Turn to page 2 of the bring-down letter. It refers to some sales numbers and some net income numbers through March of 1998.
A. (Nodding.)
Q. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussion about whether those numbers ought to be disclosed to the public?

Stack

A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember if there ever was any public disclosure in any context about the fact that through the first two months of '98 Sunbeam was running at a pretty substantial loss?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
You can answer.
A. I guess other than all those calls that we had on the night of the 18th, that we have already talked about, I don't remember anymore discussion about this.
Q. Okay. Did you participate in any calls with analysts or calls with anyone else outside of the Morgan Stanley/ Davis Polk group about the offering before it went -- before it closed?
A. Uh -- no, other than, you know, the company and their counsel during those calls on the 18th.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017269

Stack

Q. Okay. And after the closing, did you participate in any -- do any work on this deal or for Sunbeam -- withdraw that.

After closing of the public offering we have been talking about, did you do any work for Davis Polk on behalf of Morgan Stanley in connection with Sunbeam?

A. Not that I recall.

I may have helped put together sort of the documents for the closing sets and that sort of stuff but -- mmm -- nothing else, no.

Q. Are you aware that, shortly after the deal closed, Sunbeam announced that, in fact, it had not made its numbers?

A. Yeah, I am aware of that.

Q. How did you become aware of that?

A. I think I probably -- I remember it happening at the time the press release came out and we were -- I was surprised.

Stack

Q. Were there any discussions that you are aware of about how Sunbeam got to that point, how it happened?

A. I don't think I had any specific discussions about it, no.

Q. Do you remember anyone asking or suggesting that Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk could have done something differently after that information came out?

A. No, not that I remember.

Q. You don't remember anyone questioning or saying: We should have done something differently, or held up on the deal?

A. Yeah -- no, I mean, I remember that I was surprised by it, but no, I don't remember discussions about that.

Q. Okay. Ms. Stack, I have asked you some questions about the road-show and I believe you said you had no involvement in the road-show.

A. No.

Q. This is going to be a slightly different question.

Stack

Did anyone report back to you or did you hear it reported to you what had been discussed at the road-show or any of the road-shows?

A. No, not that I remember, no.

Q. Are you aware that there was a road-show after the press release came out?

MR. WISE: Which press release?

MR. BRODY: I'm sorry.

Q. The March 19th press release.

MR. BRODY: Thank you, counsel.

A. Yeah, I guess, I mean, it was the last day of the road-show before pricing, so it's pretty typical there would be a meeting that day.

Q. Did anyone report to you, or say in your presence, what had happened at that road-show or statements that were made?

A. I don't remember any, no.

Q. Did you ever hear it reported to you that Mr. Dunlap or others at Sunbeam said publicly that the only reason they issued the press release is the lawyers made them do it?

Stack

A. No, actually, I don't remember that.

Q. Okay. In connection with the work that you did on this transaction, did you review any documents reflecting -- let me withdraw that.

In connection with the work you did on this transaction, did you ever look at any proformas or estimates of what a Coleman/Sunbeam combination would look like?

A. I think there are probably some included in the offering memorandum, so I am sure that I saw them. Frankly, as a first-year associate, they would have been a little more complicated than I would have had expertise in, I think, at the time.

Q. Do you remember any discussions within Morgan Stanley, with Morgan Stanley or within Davis Polk, about any synergies or advantages from this combination that

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011270

Stack

would flow to Sunbeam?
A. I don't remember any specific conversations.
Q. And I believe you said there was a different group at Morgan Stanley working on the bank loan. Do you remember any conversations with them about --
A. At Davis Polk --
Q. Thank you.
A. Sorry.
Q. I knew I had made that mistake. I probably made it more than you have caught.
You said there was a different team at Davis Polk working on the bank loan.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any conversations with them about the bank loan or the work they were doing?
A. No, nothing specific.
I think we may have had to coordinate some things, but I don't really remember any specifics of it.

Stack

Q. Did any members of the bank loan team participate in the conference calls on the 18th?
A. You know, I don't remember any of them being there, but....
Q. Do you remember any conversations between members of your group and anyone else about the impact of the events of the 18th and 19th and the press release on the bank loan?
A. I don't remember, no.
MR. BRODY: Why don't we go off the record.
MR. WISE: Sure.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 2:29, and we are off the record.
(Pause in proceedings.)
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 2:31, and we are back on the record.
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
Q. Ms. Stack, we have talked a fair amount today about the events at the printer, at the Global Financial Press, and you have testified about your recollection. Do you recall any other events or conversations that took place at the printer?

Stack

A. Um -- nothing that we haven't already discussed.
Q. Do you recall any notes or documents that you created or saw at the time that would refresh your recollection about what happened at the printer?
A. I don't remember anything else now.
Q. Do you recall any documents, whether you created them there or not, that would refresh your recollection about what happened?
A. No, nothing specific, no.
Q. Okay.
MR. BRODY: I have no further questions. I thank you for your time.
THE WITNESS: Thanks.
MR. CLARE: I have no questions

Stack

at this time.
MR. WISE: That's it.
MR. BRODY: Okay.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: Okay. The time is now 2:32, we have reached the end of the deposition, and we are off the record.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Sunbeam States that First Quarter Revenues
May Be Lower than Street Estimates

Delray Beach, Florida; March 19, 1998 - - Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE: SOC) said today that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates of $285 million to $295 million, but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million. The Company stressed that sales of its products at retail remains very strong. The shortfall from analysts' estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management and order patterns at certain of the Company's major retail customers. The Company further stated that based on the strength of its new product offerings and powerful brand names, it remains highly confident about the overall sales outlook for its products for the entire year.

Sunbeam Corporation is a leading consumer products company that designs, manufactures and markets, nationally and internationally, a diverse portfolio of brand name products. The Company's Sunbeam® and Oster® brands have been household names for generations, both domestically and abroad, and the Company is a market leader in many of its product categories.

THE WITNESS: I do.

EXAMINATION BY
MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Wright. Would you please state your full name for the record.

A. My name is William Henry Wright, II.

Q. Where do you reside?

A. 993 Park Avenue, New York, New York.

Q. Have you ever given a deposition before?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. On how many occasions?

A. Once before.

Q. When was that deposition?

A. Two years ago, 2002.

Q. Did that concern a Morgan Stanley transaction?

A. It was a Morgan Stanley transaction.

Q. Which transaction was that?

A. It was the Ziff Davis initial public offering.

Q. Was that a shareholder lawsuit?

A. It was a shareholder lawsuit against Ziff Davis. Morgan Stanley was not named.

Q. Do you know what the nature of the allegation was against Ziff?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Given that you are a deposition veteran, I won't belabor going over the rules of the process here, but we have a stenographer here who is taking down what each of us says and, as a result, I need to finish my question before you answer; and, likewise, I will let you finish your answer before I ask another question.

If you don't understand one of my questions, let me know and I will try to rephrase it.

If you need to take a break, let me know and we will try to accommodate that.

A. Sure.

Q. Could you tell me about your educational background, beginning with your undergraduate degree to the present.

A. I have a BA degree from Yale University. I graduated in 1982. I was a history major in college. I have a masters in business administration from the University of Virginia's Darden School of Graduate Business Administration. I completed that degree in 1987.

Q. How were you employed between finishing at Yale and starting at UVA?

A. I was an employee of Morgan Stanley in the investment banking division.

Q. Since graduating from Yale, have you worked at any place other than Morgan Stanley?

A. No, save for a summer job at American Express, between my years of business school.

Q. Could you take me through, starting at Morgan Stanley in 1982 to the present, the positions you have held with the company.

A. Sure. From 1982 to 1985, I was an analyst in the mergers and acquisitions department. I spent my first year as a generalist in New York.

I spent my second year in the financial institutions group within the mergers and acquisition department.

I spent my third year, 1984, '85 in London, as a generalist in mergers.

In 1987, when I returned to the firm, I was in the associate pool, which I was in for, I believe, two years. And I was then associate in the general industrial group for approximately a year and a half, and I spent six months working in our telecom group.

And then, in 1990 I joined what is the client services group, now called the client -- I mean, the corporate finance execution group.

I was in that group from 1990 until 2002.

From 1996 to 2002, I ran that group

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

as its group head, and in 2002 I became the global director of corporate relationships for investment banking and the retail business of Morgan Stanley. And that is my current position.

Q. So that I am clear on this, when you started in 1990 with, I think you called it the corporate finance and execution group --

A. At the time it was called the financing services group.

Q. Okay.

A. It has gone through several name changes. From that it became the client services group, and now it is called the corporate finance execution group.

Q. Okay.

A. I joined that group in 1990.

Q. Okay. Why did you leave that group in 2002?

A. I was asked to take on the senior managerial role as liaison between the two divisions.

Q. By "two divisions," you mean retail and --

A. And investment banking.

Q. Who runs the client services group, or whatever it is called now?

A. Bill Salisbury.

Q. Did Mr. Salisbury replace you, or has there been someone else in that --

A. He replaced me in that position.

Q. You mentioned the titles that you have held, analyst and associate. You also held the title of managing director?

A. Yes. I currently hold the title of managing director. I have been a managing director since 1997.

Q. You were an associate, prior to that?

A. I was an associate from 1987 until 1990, became a vice president in 1990 or '91, and a principal in 1993 or '94.

Q. And then, an MD in 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. You are an MD today?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you do to prepare for your deposition today?

A. I met with my counsel.

Q. When did you do that?

A. Yesterday.

Q. How long was your meeting?

A. Two and a half hours.

Q. Did you review any documents?

A. Yes.

Q. What documents did you review?

DI MR. CLARE: Objection to the question, and I instruct the witness not to answer.

Q. Did anything that you looked at refresh your memory about the events from six years ago?

A. No.

Q. Do you have an understanding of who has given testimony in this litigation?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you know if you are the first deposition in the case?

A. I do know that I am not the first deposition in the case.

Q. Do you know how many other depositions have occurred?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you have any idea who from Morgan Stanley has given testimony?

A. No, I do not.

Q. When was the last time that you spoke with Mr. Tyree?

A. It has been more than a year ago.

Q. Have you spoken to Mr. Tyree about this litigation in any way?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Have you spoken to anyone at Morgan Stanley about this litigation?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Mr. Doyle, perhaps?

A. Well, yes. Jim Doyle. Okay. But no one in investment banking.

Q. Mr. Doyle is the only person at Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you spoken to anyone at Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam, as a general matter, in the past, say, two years?

A. No, I have not.

Q. When was the last time you had any

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017325 dealings with Ruth Porat?

A. I last saw Ruth two nights ago.
Q. In connection with a work event?
A. Yes.
Q. That is the transaction that you are working on together now?
A. No. It was a social event.
Q. Do you see her on a regular basis?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. But you have not talked to her about Sunbeam in any way?
A. No, I have not.
Q. You did not mention that you were giving a deposition when you saw her?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Do you know whether she has given a deposition?
A. No, I do not.
Q. I wonder if you could tell me, in general terms, initially, the purpose of the client services group.
A. By "purpose," what do you mean?
Q. What role does client services group perform at Morgan Stanley?

A. Sure. The client services group is an execution group, modeled on our mergers and acquisitions group, which assists and collaborates with the financing area of the firm, be it equity capital markets or debt capital markets and the corporate finance department, to get financing transactions completed.
Q. When you say it is "an execution group," what do you mean by that?
A. By "execution," I mean things ranging from being part of due diligence to being in drafting sessions, to working with management, prior to their going on the road show, and coordinating all of those aspects of transactions for the firm.
Q. The nuts and bolts of getting a deal done?
A. Yes.
Q. You said, I think, that it is modeled on the M&A group?
A. That is correct.
Q. Can you tell me what that means?
A. We seek to provide turnkey execution, if you will, which is to say, assisting the relationship bankers by bringing forth a team that is working on these nuts and bolts aspects of transactions.

Q. It is, essentially, the service clients that M&A has been working with?
A. No. It is for financing transactions; so, be it equity or fixed income capital raising.
Q. I guess I am confused about your use of the phrase "current," a turnkey operation.
A. Aha.
Q. I wonder if you can elaborate on that in any way.
A. Well, you have experts in execution who come in and assist the client team in getting the transaction done.
Q. Okay. And the client team could be from across different groups within Morgan Stanley?
A. Absolutely.
Q. So, how would clients service group differ in its mission than, say, equity capital markets?

A. Equity capital markets specifically is focused on giving advice about the capital markets, about how transactions should be structured, about the market environment, and how to market the offering.
Q. And the client services group executes that advice?
A. Exactly.
Q. The same answer of the relationship between debt capital markets and the client services group?
A. Absolutely
Q. In the late '90s was there any system for coordination of activities between these groups?
A. I don't understand what you mean.
Q. Well, I guess, to put it in kind of colloquial phrase, how does the left hand know what the right hand is doing?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question.
You can answer, if you understand the question.
A. Again, I don't understand what you mean by "left hand" and "right hand."

Q. Let me try to put it in for examples.
When the client services group is working on the execution of a transaction, are there regularly scheduled meetings with members of other groups within Morgan Stanley?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question. Hypothetical.

You can answer.
A. I would say this: Any transaction that is done involves a team, and the team is comprised of people from the client services group, from equity capital markets, or one of the capital markets groups, and from corporate finance. There is complete and implicit collaboration of all that is done. There is that. That becomes the team that does the transaction.
Q. Okay.
A. So, there is no wall if you will.
Q. And the members of the team share information on a constant basis; is that fair to say?

A. Yes, they do.
Q. Both formally and informally?
A. Yes, they do.
Q. E-mail?
MR. CLARE: During what time period?
MR. JOHNSON: The late '90s.
A. Yes.
Q. Going back to the titles that you have held at Morgan Stanley previously, managing director, management director is one of the most senior titles at the company?
A. That is correct.
Q. What's above managing director, if anything?
A. We used the title. It is more of honorific of vice-chairman, but managing director is the senior-most title at the firm on an operative basis.
Q. We are obviously here to talk primarily about the Sunbeam transaction; so, I want to get a little background on that, if I could, and then we will get into some particulars.

How is it that client services group got involved with the Sunbeam transaction?
A. How do you mean, how is it that we got involved?
Q. Well, we know that client services group participated in the convertible offering.
A. Okay.
Q. How did that come to pass?
A. The corporate finance team and the M&A team had worked on transactions that led to the need for financing to pay for those transactions.
And client services group was then called in to deal with the financing execution necessary for Sunbeam.
Q. And did you receive a call saying, hey, Mr. Wright, Bill, we need your team to help us get this deal done?
A. I did receive a call.
Q. From whom?
A. I believe it was from Bill Strong.
Q. Had you worked with Mr. Strong before?

A. Yes, I have.
Q. On how many occasions?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Since the Sunbeam transaction, have you had any dealings with Mr. Strong?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever questioned his business ethics in any way?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Have you ever heard anything to the effect that Mr. Strong is less than forthcoming?
A. No.
Q. Did you get this call, before or after the public announcement of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman and the other companies?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Was it fair to say that it would be close in time to that announcement?
A. I don't remember.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
Q. What did Mr. Strong say?
A. I don't remember.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017327

Q. What did you do in response to his call?
A. Staffed the transaction.
Q. With whom?
A. John Tyree, the analysts who were on the transaction, and what I cannot recall is whether there was associate out of our group or elsewhere who worked on the transaction beyond John Tyree.
Q. Was Johannes Groeller in your group?
A. He was not directly a part of my group. He could have been associate out of the pool rotating through my group.
Q. Did you have any say in the analysts that would be assisting Mr. Tyree in the execution?
A. Well, Mr. Tyree and I would have collaborated on the staffing.
Q. How did you come to select Mr. Tyree to be involved in the execution?
A. At this point in time, I can't remember.
Q. How many other associates at his level did you have available to you at that time?

A. I don't remember.
Q. At that time, did you have any feeling that your group was understaffed?
A. No.
Q. Overworked?
A. I would say we were busy.
Q. A managing director doesn't want to go on record suggesting that anyone has ever overworked?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question. I will move to strike.
MR. JOHNSON: I will join your motion.
MR. CLARE: Thank you.
Q. Did you have any interactions with Bob Kitts on the Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Have you worked with Mr. Kitts on other matters?
A. We worked together as analysts in the early '80s.
Q. Since then?
A. No.

Q. Did you understand that he was involved in the M&A side of the Sunbeam transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever questioned Mr. Kitts' judgment in any way?
A. No.
Q. How about Mr. Stynes, Jim Stynes; did you understand that he was involved in the Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't recall at this point.
Q. Have you worked with Mr. Stynes on other matters?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Do you know, today, who the analysts from client services group were who were assigned to the Sunbeam execution?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Who were they?
A. Shani Boone and Ben Derito.
Q. Did the time frame for the execution seem accelerated to you in any way?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Does two-and-a-half weeks, as you sit here today, seem like a sufficient amount of time to prepare an offering memorandum and price it?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Assumes facts not in evidence.
You can answer.
A. I do believe it is a sufficient amount of time.
Q. Would you characterize it as an accelerated schedule?
A. As compared to?
Q. A typical offering.
A. No.
Q. Have you ever heard the term "fast track due diligence"?
A. No.
Q. You never heard that term at Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. How about "piggybacking due diligence"; do you know what that means?
A. No.
Q. You have not heard that term at Morgan Stanley?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. No.
Q. Did you understand that the M&A group had been working with Sunbeam for some period of time prior to their request that you help execute the financing?
A. I don't remember now.
Q. You think, at the time, you probably were aware of whether M&A had spent a lot of time with the company?
A. I probably was.
Q. What I am trying to get at is whether the client services group relied on information from the M&A group or, instead, went out and did its diligence from scratch.
A. I am not in a position to determine that.
Q. You don't -- you don't know the answer is --
A. Yes.
Q. Would there be anything unusual about relying on the M&A group's work?
A. I don't think you can generalize about that.
Q. In the abstract you don't have an opinion about the propriety of that?

A. No, I do not.
Q. I think one of the responsibilities that you mentioned earlier this morning already was the client services group would be involved in drafting the offering memorandum, the convertible offering?
A. Assisting in the drafting.
Q. Assisting who?
A. The company counsel, their outside counsel, and the company.
Q. What are Morgan Stanley's responsibilities in assisting in the drafting of the offering memorandum?
A. What do you mean by what are our responsibilities?
Q. I will back up.
What's the purpose of the offering memorandum?
A. It is the sole document by which you are going to offer securities.
Q. So, it shows, fairly and accurately describes the issuer and the securities?
A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And does Morgan Stanley have any responsibility to determine that the offering memorandum is fair and accurate?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question, and to the extent that it calls for a legal conclusion.
You can answer.
A. I believe that Morgan Stanley attempt to ensure that the company and its counsel have drafted a document that is accurate and complete.
Q. That is, that it contains all material information?
A. That is correct.
Q. Morgan Stanley performed the due diligence to determine that the offering memorandum and its opinion is reasonably fair and accurate?
A. Morgan Stanley does due diligence, yes. Ah, I don't think Morgan Stanley forms an opinion.
Q. What is the purpose of due diligence?
A. To the best of the ability of the firm, to ensure that the document is accurate and complete, relying on management, their counsel and other outside experts.

Q. Would you agree that it is not appropriate for an investment banker to take the company at its word?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
A. I don't understand your point.
Q. Well, you said that due diligence involves relying on management, counsel of the company and other outside experts, and what I am getting at is whether that, alone, is sufficient.
A. It is difficult for me to make that judgment in the abstract.
Q. So, in the context of some transactions, that would be an appropriate course of proceeding?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you understand the client services group to be performing a role as an intermediary between the issuer and the investors?
A. Restate that question for me.

017329

Q. Okay. This will be a slightly different question, rather than a restated version.
A. Sure.
Q. Should the public take any comfort from the role of Morgan Stanley and the offering of securities?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
A. I cannot put myself in the role of the investor.
Q. Okay. So, you don't have an opinion on whether the underwriter's role serves as a check on the issuer?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question.
A. I think you need to be more specific for me to answer.
Q. Let me go back to my original question, then.
Does the underwriter owe any obligation to anyone other than the company?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for a legal conclusion, and to form.

A. I think that the underwriter attempts to make sure that the document is accurate and complete, which, in turn, is going to be presented to potential investors.
Q. Morgan Stanley performs its duties, cognizant that investors will be relying on the offering memorandum?
A. That is correct.
Q. Does the investment banker have an obligation to play the devil's advocate with the issuer?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Vague.
A. What do you mean by "devil's advocate"?
Q. Does the investment banker need to determine whether the issuer is making unduly optimistic statements?
A. I think the investment banker, in trying to ensure that the document is accurate and complete, will test various things that are being told to them.
Q. Does the extent of the testing depend on the context of the transaction?
A. The specifics of a particular transaction.

Q. And so, the testing would increase if the investment banker comes across information inconsistent as to what senior management is saying?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
A. I don't understand what you are saying.
Q. Does the investment banker have any obligation to dig down when it comes across information that is inconsistent with what senior management is telling them?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Hypothetical.
A. You can't generalize on these things.
Q. The answer may be No?
A. It depends.
Q. But there are circumstances where the investment banker has no obligation to dig down?
MR. CLARE: The same objection. Objection to form and calls for a legal conclusion, to the extent that you are asking about obligation.

You can answer.
A. I don't think you can generalize. And I don't understand the use of the word "obligation."
Q. Would you agree that the investment banker underwriting an offering has unique access to information?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Vague.
A. Unique as compared to?
Q. The investing public.
A. I don't know if I would say that they have unique information.
Q. How about unique access?
A. They have a higher degree of access. I don't know that I would say it is unique.
Q. Is it common, in any respect, to talk to customers of the issuer as part of the due diligence?
A. Yes.
Q. How about talking to lower level employees -- meaning, people other than senior management?
A. What do you mean by "senior management" and "lower level employees"?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Okay. Is it common to talk to employees other than the head of any group within the company?
A. It is hard to generalize.
Q. Sometimes it happens and sometimes it doesn't?
A. It depends on the situation.
Q. The investment banker's obligation continues through the close of the transaction; is that correct??
A. By "obligation," again, what do you mean?
Q. I will try to rephrase the question, although I don't know that we need to, necessarily, have a complete meeting of minds on that term, because I don't know that we could ever get to that point.
Is the underwriter's responsibility finished when the offering is priced?
A. No.
Q. What are the responsibilities after pricing?
A. In essence, the deal is not completed until closing.

Q. What does Morgan Stanley have to do, as a professional matter, between pricing and closing?
A. Well, there are a number of things, operationally, that go on, such as what goes on as far as delineating certificates or whatever, if it is not a certificated deal, delineating accounts.
Additionally, additional due diligence is done between pricing and closing, as part of the continuum of due diligence.
Q. And the purpose of that is to make sure that nothing material has changed since the pricing?
A. That is correct.
Q. How many offerings have you been involved in at Morgan Stanley?
A. Hundreds.
Q. Maybe over 1,000?
A. No. I would say hundreds.
Q. Has there ever been an occasion where, with hindsight, you have determined that Morgan Stanley did not perform appropriate due diligence?

A. No.
Q. That's not to say that you have not learned things from transactions?
A. Yes. One learns from every transaction.
Q. Sure.
What did you learn from the Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't know what you are getting at.
Q. Well, you just said that you learned from every transaction, which makes sense -- as I learn from every lawsuit that I am involved in.
And the question is: What did you learn from the Sunbeam transaction?
A. My involvement was relatively minor; so, I would not say, specifically, that I learned things from the Sunbeam transaction.
Q. With hindsight, do you wish that you had been more involved in the transaction?
A. No.
Q. As you sit here, can you identify anything that you wish that Morgan Stanley had done differently in connection with the execution?

A. No, I can't.
Q. Well, let's get into your involvement a little bit more and -- let's see, maybe we will move through this fairly quickly, from what I understand.
Did you make any trips to Florida in connection with this?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you talk to Mr. Tyree about any trips to Florida?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. Would you expect Mr. Tyree or the analysts to travel to Florida in connection with due diligence?
A. Would I expect them to have done so?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. But you just don't recall how many times or --
A. Exactly.
Q. Or who, for that matter?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017331

A. Exactly.
Q. Did you, personally, ever have any conversation -- telephonic, in person, or otherwise -- with anyone from Sunbeam?
A. No, I did not.
Q. You never talked on the phone with Al Dunlap?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Russ Kersh?
A. I don't know the name.
Q. David Fannin?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Bob Gluck?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Don Uzzi?
A. No, I did not.
Q. This is a Yes or No question: Did you have any conversations with Skadden Arps relating to this transaction?
A. Not that I can recall, specifically.
Q. Do you recall, generally, having conversations with Skadden in connection with the execution?
A. I believe I was involved on one phone call with John Tyree with both Skadden Arps and Davis Polk.

Q. Who from Davis Polk?
A. I can't recall.
Q. And the same answer for Skadden?
A. Yes.
Q. Was anyone from the company on that call?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Was the subject of that call first quarter sales results?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember the time of the day of the call?
A. No.
Q. Was the call in connection with any type of crisis or problem with the transaction?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember anything about the call?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Were you in New York?
A. I was in New York.

Q. Okay. Was Ruth Porat on that call?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. Besides Mr. Tyree, was anyone else from Morgan Stanley?
A. Again, I don't remember.
Q. Were you familiar with Mr. Dunlap's reputation when you were working on the execution?
A. No, I was not.
Q. You had not heard of "Chainsaw Al" at that point?
A. No, I hadn't.
Q. Is it common to look into the background of an issuer's senior management as part of the due diligence?
A. You cannot generalize about that.
Q. As you sit here today, do you understand that Mr. Dunlap had a reputation as being a turnaround specialist?
MR. CLARE: You are asking him today what his understanding was, in 1998, or whether his understanding today is -- what his understanding today is? The time frame is confusing to me.

THE WITNESS: Likewise.
MR. JOHNSON: Good objection.
Q. At the time of the execution, did you understand that Mr. Dunlap was regarded as a turnaround specialist?
A. I did not, personally.
Q. I take it from that answer, though, that you believe that Morgan Stanley was familiar with that perception?
A. Perhaps.
Q. To the extent that the offering memorandum touted Mr. Dunlap's turnaround success in other companies, is that something that Morgan Stanley should investigate?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Objection to form.
A. I don't understand your point.
Q. Well, putting aside that, if you don't understand the question -- that is one thing.
A. Well, the question --
By "point," I mean the direction of the question.
Q. Okay. To the extent that the offering memorandum referred to Mr. Dunlap's successes at other companies, did Morgan Stanley have any obligation to investigate the authenticity of the claimed successes at other companies?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. That sounds very hypothetical to me, and again, I don't think that you can generalize about transactions.

Q. So, it is possible that Morgan Stanley had no duty to determine whether, say, Mr. Dunlap's success at Scott Paper was legitimate?

A. You are asking me whether or not Mr. Dunlap's success at Scott Paper should be investigated?

Q. If it is touted in the offering memorandum.

A. I think, again, that is hypothetical. I can't answer that.

Q. So, you don't know -- well, I guess -- let me see if I can put it more directly.

Did anyone in the client services group do anything to determine that

Mr. Dunlap's turnaround of Scott Paper was authentic?

A. I don't know.

Q. And, at the present time, you don't have an opinion as to whether that investigation would be appropriate?

A. It would be a case for, I guess, offering a specific decision.

Q. Right.

A. Not a generic decision.

Q. In the context of this offering.

A. I don't have a view point on that.

Q. By the way, we have been talking about client services group and the due diligence process a little bit.

Do you have an opinion about whether the investment banker in an M&A context has different duties?

A. With respect to due diligence?

Q. Yes.

A. As compared to --

Q. As compared to what the client services group does.

A. I believe the firm has a due diligence standard.

Q. And so, it is not variable, depending on whether you are in the client services group or M&A or ECM or --

A. No.

Q. Is one of the purposes of due diligence to get a sense of the culture of the issuer?

A. The "culture" meaning?

Q. The business culture. Have you ever heard the term "business culture" before?

A. Yes. But I am trying to -- in the context of due diligence -- to understand what you are saying.

Q. Is that a --

A. How they represent their brand?

Q. Slightly different. Is business culture a specific due diligence concern?

A. I would say, no more so than any other aspect of the business.

Q. I will jump around a little bit. My notes are a little bit disorganized.

Getting back to due diligence and the client services group, when you were the head of that group, was there any kind of training program for analysts, or others, as to how due diligence should be performed?

A. There was training, not merely for the client services group. There was training for all new analysts and new associates about due diligence.

Q. No matter what group they are in?

A. No matter what group they are in. Throughout all of investment banking.

In addition, if not on an annual, on a biannual basis, there are refresher courses, if you will, on due diligence that all professionals at all levels attend.

Q. Do you teach those courses?

A. I have taught some of them. And we also bring in outside experts, also.

Q. Was that training protocol in place in the late '90s?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it in place when you joined the firm in 1982?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any participation in

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017333 any accounting due diligence?

A. No, I did not.
MR. CLARE: I assume that you are referring back to the Sunbeam transaction?
MR. JOHNSON: That was an example of us talking over each other. I don't know whether the reporter got the end of my question or not, but it was coming out.
Q. I was about to say "on Sunbeam," and then you answered.
A. No, I did not.
Q. Now we have a clean record.
Did you have any conversations with Mr. Tyree about the accounting due diligence call?
A. No, I did not.
Q. At any time prior to the closing of a financing transaction, did you hear that Sunbeam engaged in bill and hold transactions?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Have you ever heard that term, "bill and hold"?
A. No, I have not.

Q. Have you heard the term "channel stuffing"?
A. I have.
Q. Do you know what due diligence Morgan Stanley performed to determine whether Sunbeam had engaged in channel stuffing?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Would you expect that to be something that would be investigated?
A. When you say that to be something that was investigated --
Q. Let me start over.
Would you expect Morgan Stanley to investigate whether Sunbeam had engaged in channel stuffing?
A. You are speaking theoretically?
Q. Ah, in a sense.
A. So, in essence, your question is: If the allegation had been made that channel stuffing was done, would Morgan Stanley have investigated that; is that your question?
Q. No. Slightly different.
Without regard to whether there were allegations of channel stuffing, would you expect Morgan Stanley to look into whether any channel stuffing had occurred, as part of its due diligence on Sunbeam?

A. I really don't know. Again, it is hard to answer that in the abstract.
Q. Let's change that. Based on your earlier question, if there were allegations of channel stuffing, would you expect Morgan Stanley to investigate that?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So that we are on the same page, what do you understand "channel stuffing" to mean?
A. In the abstract?
Q. Yes.
A. If a company, either through discounting or other promotional means, fills the retail channels with its products for sale.
Q. So that it creates unusually high inventory in its customers?
A. Typically, yes.
MR. JOHNSON: I will show you what has been marked previously as Exhibit 32.

Q. And I will ask you just to look through that.
A. All right.
Q. Mr. Wright, have you ever seen what has been marked as Exhibit 32 before?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Does this look like a fairly typical accounting due diligence call agenda?
A. It looks like the outline for an accounting due diligence call, yes.
Q. You have seen similar documents, but not this document?
A. Yes.
Q. I wonder if you would look at number 8 on the list for me.
A. Yes.
Q. Which states: "How aggressive is the company in its accounting policies?"
A. Yes.
Q. What's the purpose of that inquiry?
A. Specific to this, or in general?
Q. In general.
A. In general, we do want to understand how the company deals with various accounting policies, as assessed by its auditors.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

17334

MR. JOHNSON: Off the record.
(Discussion off the record.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going off the record.
The time is 10:32.
(Recess.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Back on the record. The time is 10:38 and we are back on the record.
Q. Before the break, Mr. Wright, we were looking at Exhibit 32, the accounting due diligence.
A. Yes.
Q. In particular, we were looking at question 8.
And I believe you told me that Morgan Stanley would be interested in the various accounting practices of the company as part of its due diligence. Is that fair?
MR. CLARE: I think that misstates the testimony.
Q. Why don't you restate it for me.
A. What I said was that Morgan Stanley would be interested in the company's outside auditors' expert assessment of how the company executed on its accounting policies, and their assessment as to whether they were aggressive or not.

Q. Why would Morgan Stanley be interested in whether the company was aggressive in its accounting policies?
MR. CLARE: Your question has now misstated the answer about what Morgan Stanley was interested in. I object, to that extent.
Q. Is Morgan Stanley uninterested in whether the company engages in aggressive accounting policies?
A. I think you can't answer that question in the abstract.
Q. So, in the abstract, the possibility is yes, they are uninterested in that?
A. No. I said you cannot answer that in the abstract.
Q. Why not?
A. I think you have to be very company-specific about what the interest is.

We are interested in the assessment of the external auditor in the company's accounting policies.
Q. Why?
A. Because it is a gauge of the engagement between the auditor and the company, and also gives us some level of comfort in the assessment that we rely upon from the auditors as part of due diligence.
Q. So, your concern for this, if I understand it, is because it eliminates the relationship between the outside auditor and the issuer, and because it gives you some insight into whether you are reasonably relying upon the outside expert?
A. I think we have to reasonably rely on the outside expert.
Q. I think you lost me on that one. You --
A. At all times we must reasonably rely upon the outside expert.
Q. Meaning, that your reliance on them must be reasonable?
A. No. We have nothing beyond being able to look to the outside expert in our practice of due diligence.

Q. Well, let's be specific on auditors, if we can. Couldn't Morgan Stanley talk to the company's internal auditors, as part of due diligence?
A. Internal auditors?
Q. Yes.
A. Meaning, their accounting staff?
Q. Yes.
A. One arguably does in due diligence.
Q. What do you mean by "arguably does"?
A. From company to company different roles have different titles, different functions. It is hard to generalize.
Q. Do you know whether Morgan Stanley spoke with anyone in the internal audit department of Sunbeam?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you have any opinion as to whether that would be an appropriate step in due diligence?
A. It would be an appropriate step in due diligence to talk to the principal accounting group within a company.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01733

Q. The last question on Exhibit 32, it is number 18, "Provides anything not asked that should have been asked." Is that a standard question in accounting due diligence?
A. Yes.
Q. The purpose of that is simply to give the auditor an opportunity to raise any issues that they have?
A. Are you asking me to say what you said is correct or are you asking me to -- what would be my view of the purpose of it?
Q. I guess what I am ultimately trying to do is save time, but it is not working.
Let me ask it differently.
What's the purpose of question number 18?
A. To my mind, the purpose of question 18 is, this is an outline of a conversation or a due diligence session and it is meant to allow for a discussion beyond what is on the outline, to ensure that if things did not appear on the outline, they can be and should be raised.

Q. Do you have any view as to the amount of time that Morgan Stanley should spend with the companies, with Sunbeam's auditors in connection with due diligence?
A. Do I have a view today or --
Q. That's fair. Let's start it that way.
Do you have a view as to the amount of time that would be appropriate for Morgan Stanley to spend with Arthur Andersen in connection with accounting due diligence on Sunbeam?
A. I don't have a view as to time.
Q. Would a half hour seem sufficient to you to do a comprehensive accounting due diligence?
A. I think you have to understand due diligence, which is to say that due diligence goes on throughout an offering.
You might have a phone call or a meeting on due diligence with a specific outline in front of you, but as part of drafting sessions, as part of other meetings, as you come upon things, due diligence takes place. So, it is not a start stop or hard start hard stop aspect of an offering.

Q. I take it from your answer, though, that it is something that cumulatively involves a substantial amount of time?
A. Cumulatively, yes.
Q. Including cumulatively with outside auditors?
A. Yes.
Q. The purpose of the accounting due diligence call is to have a part of the diligence focused specifically on that issue?
A. That is correct.
Q. And do you have a view as to the amount of time that it is appropriate to provide as a focus time on accounting?
A. I think it has to be very specific to the particular company and the particular offering.
Q. With respect to Sunbeam, do you have a view as to what --
A. I don't. I don't.
Q. I take it you are familiar with the comfort letter process?

A. Yes.
Q. You have seen hundreds of comfort letters, if you have been involved in hundreds of offerings?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Is it fair to say that you have seen at least dozens of comfort letters from Arthur Andersen?
A. I can't specifically think of them, but yes.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley about requesting a comfort letter for the Sunbeam execution?
A. No, I did not.
Q. So, Mr. Tyree or someone else requested the letter on his own initiative?
A. To the best of my knowledge, yes.
MR. JOHNSON: I will show you what has been marked previously as CPH Exhibit 12.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
Q. I will ask you a question which will hopefully -- your reading of it -- is there anything out of the ordinary about this comfort letter request?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Out of the ordinary in the sense of -- that a letter was sent?
Q. Let's back up.
It is common, as part of the comfort letter process, for the underwriter to request that a comfort letter be issued?
A. It is common that a letter like this letter be issued by an underwriter requesting a comfort letter in 144A offerings. And so, because this offering was a 144A offering, versus a registered securities offering, yes, this is a standard form letter.
Q. You have read it sufficiently to --
A. I cannot, here, look at this letter and say that it is a standard form.
Q. That's not what I am asking you to do. What I am asking is, given that you have seen numerous 144A comfort letter requests, whether there is anything about this letter that jumps out at you as different.
A. No. No.
Q. The last sentence on the first page -- which, as it turns out, is the last sentence of the letter -- states: "We will contact you to identify the procedures we wish to follow in the form we wish the comfort letter to take."

Did you have any conversations with Mr. Tyree about the form of the comfort letter that should be requested?
A. No.
Q. Did you see any drafts of the comfort letter on this execution?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Is it common for the auditor to provide drafts during the execution process?
A. It is common.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to what Mr. Tyree is referring to when he refers to "the form we wish the comfort letter to take"?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for --
Q. Put slightly differently, do comfort letters, in the rule 144A context, have variable forms?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Did you see the comfort, the final comfort letter that issued in connection with this execution?

A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone about the comfort letter?
A. No, I did not.
Q. You are not aware of anyone being troubled by any information in it?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you recall there being any crisis arising during the execution process?
A. What do you mean by "crisis"?
Q. Serious problems.
A. Well, I cannot recall the time.
I remember there being some concern about earnings or sales, at some point in the deal.
Q. But prior to close?
A. Again, I cannot remember the time.
Q. Do you think that concern would be brought to your attention after close?
A. As compared to?
Q. Before close.
A. It depends. I think it would have been brought to my attention at the time it was an issue.

Q. We can go through all of the who, what, when, why, but I just want to get what you can recall about that concern. You have already told me that you are not sure when you were made aware of it.
A. Sure.
Q. How were you made aware of it?
A. As best I can recall, John Tyree informed me of it.
Q. What did he say?
A. I don't remember.
Q. But it was something about a potential problem with earnings or sales?
A. Yes. That is what I recall.
Q. Could it have been both earnings and sales?
A. It could have been. I don't recall.
Q. Did it concern Sunbeam showing a loss for the quarter?
A. I don't recall.
Q. It could have, you just don't know?
A. I just don't know.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017337

Q. After Mr. Tyree brought this concern to your attention, did you do anything about it?
A. I cannot specifically remember what I did, but I would say we talked about it, certainly.
Q. Did you determine any course of action?
A. Not that I can recall now.
Q. Other than talking to Mr. Tyree, did you, either by yourself or with Mr. Tyree, talk to anybody else?
A. Not that I remember now.
Q. So, other than the occasional -- when this was brought to your attention by Mr. Tyree, you don't have any other recollection of any reaction to it?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Were you involved at all in the issuance of a press release?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Do you understand, as you sit here today, that Sunbeam executed a press release during the execution process relating to first quarter sales?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you know that at the time or is that something that you learned subsequently?
A. I believe I knew it at the time.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone about the press release?
A. Not that I recall now.
Q. So, you don't recall talking to Ruth Porat or Davis Polk about the press release?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you think you were consulted prior to the issuance of the press release?
A. I would suspect I was and, as I said before, I can't recall the time.
MR. JOHNSON: I will show you a few documents that might -- this has been marked previously as CPH Exhibit 16.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
Q. Have you ever seen a copy of this document, either with or without the handwriting?
A. No, I have not.
Q. You did not even see it yesterday?

A. Well, you are saying prior to yesterday.
Q. I said at any time.
A. I saw it yesterday.
Q. You told Mr. Clare that you had never seen it before?
A. That is correct.
MR. CLARE: I instruct the witness not to answer what we discussed.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone concerning Sunbeam's potential orders for the second half of March of 1998?
A. No, I did not.
Q. You see the, some of the handwriting at the top, it says "Ruth," and it has a fax number. And then, midway down, it says "Porat."
Do you know what Ruth Porat was doing on this transaction in the middle of March of 1998?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Did you have any interaction with her in any way on the Sunbeam execution?
A. Not that I can recall.

Q. She was in equity capital markets at that time?
A. Yes, she was.
Q. Is convertible viewed as an equity product?
A. Yes, it is.
MR. JOHNSON: This has been marked previously as Exhibit 17. I will ask this question a little more delicately, to accommodate Mr. Clare.
Q. Prior to yesterday, have you ever seen the document that we marked as CPH 17?
A. No, I have not.
Q. I want to call your attention to paragraph 6(c), which is on initial numbering page 5 of this exhibit, and Bates page MS 00379.
A. All right.
Q. This shows that sales in the first two months of 1998 were running at approximately half of sales for the first two months of 1997; do you see that?
A. Aha.
Q. Do you think that is information

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

that could be material to investors?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation and an incomplete hypothetical.
A. I cannot answer your question out of context.
Q. Okay. How about in the context of a company that is being touted as a growth company? With that context, does it inform the materiality of the information in any way?
MR. CLARE: I will make the same objections.
A. I repeat, I cannot answer your question out of context.
Q. This letter is addressed to Morgan Stanley and Company.
A. Yes.
Q. That is because Morgan Stanley had requested the comfort letter?
A. The way the procedure works on 144A transactions, accounting firms, including Arthur Andersen, require a letter from Morgan Stanley, the form of which we saw as a prior exhibit, before they will issue a comfort letter on a 144A offering. Principally because they do not feel they are required to issue a letter on something that is not a registered offering.

So, we send a letter because they require it to get the comfort letter.
Q. And then, in turn, the letter is addressed to Morgan Stanley?
A. That is correct.
Q. Do you know, one way or the other, whether the information set forth in paragraph 6(c) was known to anyone other than the company Arthur Andersen or Morgan Stanley?
A. I do not know.
MR. JOHNSON: This has been marked previously as Exhibit CPH 14.
Q. Mr. Wright, was it your testimony that you believe that you were aware of this press release at the time that it issued?
A. I was aware of the press release. I don't recall when I was aware of the press release.
Q. Okay. Were you aware that there had been a press release or were you familiar with the substance?

A. I was aware that there had been a press release.
Q. And that related to sales?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone concerning the impact of a press release on your ability to execute the deal?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. Would you view that as a conversation that you expect to happen, even if you don't recall it, as you sit here today?
A. To happen specifically with me, or to happen within the firm?
Q. Let's start with you.
A. Given that I ran my group, I typically would be brought into a situation like this.
Q. Right. And by "situation like this," you mean the issuance of a potentially negative press release?
A. Yes.
Q. As you sit here today, you don't remember, one way or the other?

A. No, I do not.
Q. Were there any discussions, involving you, concerning whether Sunbeam's first quarter earnings situation should be included in the press release marked as Exhibit 14?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. Do you recall the market reaction to the press release?
A. No, I do not. No.
Q. Do you think you would recall it, if it were dramatic?
A. That would be speculative for me to say.
Q. Sure. If it were sufficiently dramatic, it would impact your ability to finish execution; is that fair to say?
A. In a general way, with regard to all transactions, yes.
MR. JOHNSON: Let's go back to the comfort letter, if we could, Exhibit 17.
Q. And, in particular, I want to call your attention to paragraph 6(b). That is on the initial page 4, Bates stamped MS 00378.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017339

A. Yes.
Q. At any time prior to closing, did you have any discussions with anyone concerning Sunbeam's acceleration of sales into the four quarter of 1997?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you have any discussions at a more general level about the quality or sustainability of Sunbeam's sales?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Do you know whether anyone within Morgan Stanley investigated the sustainability of Sunbeam's financial performance?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you have an opinion as to whether that would be something you would expect to be investigated?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Incomplete hypothetical.
A. You are asking me to speculate?
Q. What I am asking is: Would you expect your team in the client services group to investigate whether Sunbeam's performance was sustainable?

A. When you say "sustainable," you mean as compared to --
Q. To its recent historic performance.
A. Looking at the past performance, is it sustainable?
Q. Correct.
A. I think that would be a matter of due diligence that the whole team would focus on.
Q. Would you also expect your team, at the outset of its execution duties, to inquire how the company was doing in the current quarter?
A. I would expect that, and you say my team -- ah, I want to make it clear, as I said quite early on, that the team of a transaction would be the equity capital markets group, in this particular instance, client services group and the banking group. So, that team, I would expect, would focus on these things.
Q. So, is the client services group not the point person on the execution itself?
A. They are point people on the execution.

Q. Co-point people, maybe?
A. Well, it is very much like that. And, really, organize everything, but importantly -- the relationship anchors are the closest relationship with the company, are in a lead position with due diligence.
Q. That, in this context, was Mr. Strong?
A. And his team out of corporate finance.
Q. They would be having conversations, as well, about how the current quarter was?
A. Well, they -- I don't think, to be clear again, you can make a distinction between corporate finance, client services, equity capital markets. The team formed for this transaction out of those three areas would be focused on this.
Q. Morgan Stanley would be?
A. Exactly. That is the way to think of it.
Q. Did you learn about a potential sales or earnings problem early in your involvement in the transaction?

A. No.
Q. Is that a No, or I don't know?
A. Well, first of all, "early," what do you mean?
Q. Okay. How soon after you spoke with Mr. Strong did you hear about a potential sales or earnings problem at Sunbeam?
A. I don't remember. And I said that as much when I talked to you about the press release.
Q. Did the information strike you as inconsistent with what the company had been telling Morgan Stanley otherwise?
A. I had no basis to make that judgment.
Q. Were you aware of any resistance by any party to the issuance of the press release?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Did you tell Mr. Tyree to get to the bottom of the sales and earnings situation?
A. No, I did not.
Q. I think we talked about this as a general matter, but I want to get a better sense of your interaction with Mr. Tyree in the March, '98 time frame.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. In particular, how he interacted with you on this transaction.
A. Yes.
Q. Did he give you frequent status reports on how the execution was going?
A. I don't recall, eight years later or six years later -- about eight.
Q. Was that your practice when you were the head of the group --
A. Right.
Q. You had several people like Mr. Tyree, presumably --
A. That's right.
Q. -- essentially, in charge of the execution?
A. Exactly.
Q. Okay. Did they have, did Mr. Tyree have any system for letting you know what was going on?
A. I don't recall him having a specific system.

As head of the group, I was consulted by many people in the group about various aspects of their transactions.
Q. Do you think you would talk to Mr. Tyree on a daily basis about the execution, or was it more if there was a problem or a question, he would come to you?
A. I think it was more -- and, again, I am recalling this more -- if there were issues that he wanted to raise.
Q. Okay. You were comfortable letting him run with the deal --
A. Absolutely.
Q. -- unless you had a question?
A. Absolutely.
Q. Did you attend any road shows?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Do you know who from Morgan Stanley attended any road shows?
A. No, I do not.
Q. You don't know whether Mr. Tyree attended any?
A. I suspect he did, but no, I don't.
Q. Did you ever hear anything about how the road shows went or anything that happened in any road shows?

A. No, I did not.
Q. Do you recall that the offering was very successful in subscription?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. In fact, it increased in size from 500 million to 750 million?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. But you recall that it was oversubscribed?
A. Yes, I do.
MR. JOHNSON: This has been marked previously as Exhibit 100.
Q. Can you tell us, Mr. Wright, what Exhibit 100 is?
A. This is the selling memorandum for the convertible bond offering, convertible debt offering, which would have been distributed to the institutional sales force.
Q. Was client services group involved in preparing this document?
A. I cannot specifically say, because I don't know, but I would suspect, yes.

Q. And do you know whether you, yourself, saw this document in the March, 1998 time frame?
A. I don't recall now. I suspect that I did.
Q. You say this was designed for the institutional sales force?
A. Yes.
Q. And that is to enable them to help sell the offering?
A. That is correct.
Q. And Morgan Stanley would, as a result, have an obligation to satisfy itself reasonably that the information in this document is fair and accurate?
A. That is correct.
Q. There is a section in this document, beginning on page 15, called "key selling points."
A. Yes.
Q. Is this what is referred to as how to position the company?
A. Yes. It would be part of the positioning of the company.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Okay. And this would be prepared by people in cross-groups at Morgan Stanley?
A. That is correct.
Q. The first bullet point describes successful restructuring, creation of a growth company?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you involved at all in the creation of these selling points?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone about how to position Sunbeam as a growth company?
A. No, I did not.
Q. But it was Morgan Stanley's judgment that that positioning would be the most effective in selling the convertible?
MR. CLARE: Objection.
A. I don't know.
Q. And the simple placement of that bullet point in the key selling point section doesn't inform your view of that?
A. No. I don't think you can take one point, as opposed to any others.

Q. Okay. The third bullet point, the last major bullet point on page 16, states: "conservatively estimated synergies of $150 million combination." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you involved in any way in estimating or analyzing the synergies that might be obtained from the combinations?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Did you know, one way or the other, what Morgan Stanley expected the synergies to be from Sunbeam's combination with Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands?
A. No, I did not.
Q. You did not have any conversations with anyone about synergies on this deal?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Section 4 of Exhibit 100, which begins on page 20, is entitled "potential investor concerns." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a standard section in a selling memo?
A. Yes, it is.

Q. And what's the purpose of this section?
A. The purpose of this section, generally, is to provide those questions we think investors might ask of the institutional sales force, along with answers to those questions.
Q. To prepare them to be helpful to the investors?
A. Exactly.
Q. And, again, this section, section 4, would be compiled across groups within Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes. That is correct.
Q. The second bullet point, fourth quarter earnings, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussion within Morgan Stanley, at any time, concerning the four quarter '97 earnings?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Notwithstanding this document, you don't have an opinion today about whether fourth quarter earnings were a potential investor concern?

A. I don't understand your question.
Q. What I am trying to get at is, a moment ago when we were looking at the first bullet point under key selling points, you, I believe, testified that you did not know whether that was a key selling point or not.
A. No. I said -- you asked if I understood you correctly whether it stood out as more of a selling point than the others, and I said, one cannot take it or any other selling point out of context, it is the totality of the selling points that positions the company.
Q. I think we are two ships passing in the night a little bit on that one.
Just so we are clear on that one, on the key selling points, your testimony is that not one of these points is more significant than another, but that they are all the key selling points?
A. That is correct.
Q. Now I have got you.
Going back to the potential investor concerns, the fourth quarter earnings point, is it your testimony that that is a potential investor concern, but not one any more significant than the others listed in the document?

A. That is correct.

Q. On the second page of section 4, page 22, there is a bullet "dependence on one major customer, Walmart."

A. Yes.

Q. I may have asked this already.

Did Morgan Stanley have any communications with Walmart in connection with this transaction?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.

A. I don't know.

Q. You, personally, did not?

A. I did not.

Q. Do you know of any customers that Morgan Stanley contacted in connection with this?

A. I don't know of any customers.

Q. Do you know whether any customers

Wright - Confidential

were contacted?

A. I don't specifically know, no.

Q. As Mr. Clare would tell you, whenever you answer specifically, that makes me think that maybe there is something else.

A. It would be my judgment that they would have been contacted, but I don't know that for a fact is my point.

Q. Why do you say it would be your judgment that they would be?

A. That tends to be a part of our due diligence practice.

Q. Do you think that the potential sales issue would be added reason to talk to a customer?

A. The potential sales issue meaning?

Q. The sales shortfall.

MR. CLARE: Objection.

Q. Let me see if I can clean that up a little bit.

We were speaking a few moments ago about a potential sales shortfall at Sunbeam, and the press release?

A. This being the press release.

Wright - Confidential

Q. The press release and the comfort letter.

A. Aha.

Q. The question for you is whether that information would be added reason to contact customers.

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form and foundation, given his prior testimony about his involvement in this.

You can answer, if you are able to.

A. I would say, I cannot answer specifically to Sunbeam.

But, procedurally, yes.

MR. JOHNSON: This has been marked already as Exhibit 76.

MR. CLARE: Thank you.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Five minutes.

Q. I recognize, Mr. Wright, that this is a fairly lengthy document and you can feel free to take as much time as you like to look through it, but I will tell you that my questions are going to be fairly limited and if at any time during the questions if you want to further consult it, that is fine.

Wright - Confidential

The first question is a preliminary one. On the cover page it says "department: GHYCMS." What is that?

A. Global high yield capital market services.

Q. The cover memo here -- I will back up.

Have you ever seen this document before?

A. No, I have not.

Q. The covering memo refers to a leveraged finance meeting.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you participate in that meeting?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever learn about anything that happened at that meeting?

A. Not that I recall. No.

Q. You don't know what was discussed at the meeting?

A. Not beyond what I could divine from this document.

Q. You assumed Sunbeam was discussed?

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017343

Q. Beyond that, you don't really know?
A. No.
Q. You don't know whether Sunbeam's first quarter sales situation was discussed in this?
A. No, I do not.
Q. The second page of Exhibit 76 appears to be a memo listing you among the 20 or so authors; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And, again, this would be a document like the selling memo prepared across groups within Morgan Stanley?
A. That is correct.
Q. So, as you sit here today, you couldn't tell me which section of this document was prepared by which group?
A. No. No.
Q. And, in particular, you don't know whether CSG was responsible for one part of this, as opposed to the other?
A. That is correct.
Q. Under page 4 of the memo, which is -- the Bates stamp 25833, there is a section Roman 4, (IV) due diligence.

A. Yes.
Q. The first paragraph, it is noted that the M&A group has gained an extremely sound knowledge of the company.
A. Aha.
Q. We touched on this a little earlier today, but I guess the question is: How did the M&A group's knowledge get conveyed to the rest of Morgan Stanley?
A. I can't answer that question specifically to this transaction.
Q. That is because M&A was still involved?
A. Exactly.
Q. So, they would be commenting constantly?
A. Absolutely.
Q. M&A would know the first quarter sales situation, for example, as well or better than anyone else in the company?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation. And lack of foundation.
A. I would be speculating.

Q. Would you look at 13, page 13, which is the Bates stamp 25842.
A. Yes.
Q. There are a series of projections and assumptions stated there, under section 8?
A. Yes.
Q. The third bullet point states: "Synergies were also reduced on the MS base case to 60,000,000 in year 1, and to 150 million in years thereafter." Do you know what the "MS base case" refers to?
A. Beyond what's in this document, no.
Q. Have you prepared memoranda to the leveraged finance committee on other occasions?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. In those memoranda have there been included synergies assumptions?
A. Depending on the nature of the transaction, if a combination of mergers were a part of it, perhaps. If it were leveraged finance for an extant company, the chances are not.
Q. Sure.

As you sit here today, going back to the third bullet point, you don't really have an understanding or sense of a reduction to the base case?
A. No, I do not.
MR. JOHNSON: The time is 11:34 and this completes tape number 1.
(Recess.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Back on the record.
The time is 11:44 and this begins tape number 2 of the videotaped deposition of Mr. William Wright, II.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Mr. Wright, did you attend any of the drafting sessions at the printer in connection with the Sunbeam offering memorandum?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you ever have any conversations with Mr. Tyree concerning events at the printer?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. I will give you what has been marked

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

previously as Exhibit 112.
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Wright, prior to yesterday, had you ever seen what has been marked as CPH Exhibit 112?
A. Not prior to yesterday.
Q. Is this what is known as a bring-down comfort letter?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Tyree concerning the substance of the bring-down comfort letter?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone within Morgan Stanley about the content of the bring-down comfort letter?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you know, during the last week of March of 1998, that Sunbeam was showing a loss of $40,000,000 through the first two months of the quarter?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Is that information surprising or alarming in any way?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Incomplete hypothetical.
A. It is out of context.
Q. Within the context of the documents you have looked at just this morning, does the fact of a $40,000,000 loss to the first two quarters trouble you in any way?
MR. CLARE: Same objections.
A. I would want to do more investigation.
Q. Do you know what, if any, investigation Morgan Stanley did during the last week of March of 1998?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you understand that Sunbeam, in fact, did show a loss for the full quarter?
A. I did not know that until you said it.
Q. So, you don't recall hearing that at the time?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Did you participate in any bring-down due diligence conference calls?
A. No, I did not.

Q. I will state this as broadly as possible, now, I think. Did you, personally, perform any due diligence of any sort on Sunbeam?
A. Not directly with management.
Q. Or outside experts.
A. Or outside experts.
Q. Indirectly in conversations with Morgan Stanley personnel?
A. I would consider some of the conversations that I had with a John Tyree to be a part of --
Q. Did you, personally, review any of Sunbeam's public filings?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Would you expect "a John Tyree," to use your phrase, to be familiar with, say, the company's most recent 10K filing?
A. As part of due diligence, the team would.
Q. And that is a slightly different answer than I think I asked.
A. I use "a John Tyree" to say, someone as part of the team at his level or greater seniority, absolutely.

Q. Do you recall any discussions within Morgan Stanley about any aspects of Sunbeam's most recent 10K?
A. No, I do not.
Q. You don't recall anyone raising concerns about any feature in the 10K?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you have an opinion as to whether Sunbeam was candid with Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't have a view.
Q. You couldn't tell me that Sunbeam lied to Morgan Stanley?
A. I am not in a position to do that.
Q. And that is because you, yourself, did not have any conversations with Sunbeam?
A. I would say, yes.
Q. Did anyone within Morgan Stanley ever tell you that Sunbeam had lied to it?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you do any kind of a post mortem on the execution?
A. I was not involved in a post mortem on the execution.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0173145

Q. But there was a post mortem?
A. I don't know, because I was not involved.
Q. Do you have an opinion as to whether the offering memorandum fairly and accurately apprised investors of the risks of investing in Sunbeam?
A. I, at this point --
MR. CLARE: Would you repeat the question for me. I missed the last part of it.
(Record read.)
MR. CLARE: Objection. Lack of foundation.
You can answer.
A. I would say -- I don't know that I am in a position to make that judgment.
Q. Did you ever read the offering memorandum?
A. I reviewed some draft of it, along the way.
I cannot recall, now, whether I looked at the final offering memorandum.
Q. You say that you are not in a position to answer my prior question. Why do you say that?

A. I was not involved in due diligence, as I told you before.
Q. You don't know whether Morgan Stanley, in fact, performed appropriate due diligence on Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question.
A. I don't feel that I can answer that question.
Q. You cannot answer because you don't have an opinion, one way or the other, or why can't you answer the question?
A. I don't know what my basis would be for forming an opinion.
Q. Because you don't know what was done or because you don't know what is appropriate?
A. I would say, I know what our standard of due diligence is, and I believe our standard was met.
Q. What is the standard?
A. As I said before, relying on the issuer, in this context the company, and its expert outside advisers -- be it legal, the auditors or other advisers doing our investigation with all of the -- in the context of the offering.

Q. Do you know what conversations Mr. Tyree had, if any, relating to the substance of either the comfort letter or the bring-down comfort letter?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you have a view as to whether Morgan Stanley had any responsibility for ensuring that the press release on March 19th was fair and accurate?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form, and also to the extent, that it calls for a legal conclusion.
A. I don't think I am in the position to answer that.
Q. And that is because you think it, indeed, calls for a legal conclusion?
A. I do think it calls for a legal conclusion.
Q. You don't know what the legal requirements are in connection with the issuance of a press release during the execution process?

A. What type of press release?
Q. Let's talk specifically about the March 19th press release.
Do you have any understanding of Morgan Stanley's obligations, be it legal or otherwise, to ensure that the press release is fair and accurate?
A. I think, as part of due diligence, we would look to the company, to their counsel and to the auditors to assist us in assessing the accuracy and completeness of the press release.
Q. So, you would expect Morgan Stanley to talk to the auditors in connection with the issuance of the press release?
A. Yes.
MR. CLARE: Objection. Incomplete hypothetical.
Q. This has been marked already as Exhibit 36.
Prior to yesterday, Mr. Wright, have you ever seen what we marked as Exhibit 36?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I have never seen this.
Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Tyree or anyone at Morgan Stanley concerning the announcement of Sunbeam's first quarter results?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. The cover page of this exhibit, 36, is directed to Mr. Strong, Mr. Stynes, Mr. Kitts and Mr. Tyree. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any idea why that is?
A. Um, because they were members of the transaction team.
Q. So, they were involved at that point?
A. That is what I would expect, yes.
Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone at Morgan Stanley about the company's exposure in connection with the offering?
A. What do you mean by "exposure"?
Q. Liability.
A. Ah, no, I did not.
Q. How about exposure in terms of reputational damage?

A. No, I did not.
Q. Was the execution viewed as a disappointment in any way?
A. What do you mean by "a disappointment"?
Q. Well, that is why I added the "in any way" qualifier.
In the months following the closing, did anyone express unhappiness with Morgan Stanley's involvement?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Morgan Stanley earned its fees, to your knowledge?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley lose any money in connection with Sunbeam?
A. I believe so.
Q. What's the basis for that belief?
A. The fact that, ultimately, the company was in bankruptcy.
Q. Do you know which Morgan Stanley entity, if any, lost money?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Why did Sunbeam's bankruptcy cause you to believe that Morgan Stanley lost money?

A. Because, at some level, we were a lender to Sunbeam.
Q. Let's talk about that side of the financing for a minute.
Did you have responsibility for executing that side of it?
A. No, I did not.
Q. That is the leveraged finance side?
A. Exactly.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to the value of Morgan Stanley's security in connection with that financing?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Then you would not be able to say, for a fact, that Morgan Stanley lost money?
A. That is correct.
Q. I will ask this as broadly as possible, hopefully in an effort to save time:
Have you ever had any business dealings of any sort with anyone from MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Specifically in the context of the Sunbeam transaction, you don't recall any interaction with anyone from MacAndrews and Forbes?

A. No.
Q. Did you have any interaction with anyone from the Wachtel Lipton law firm in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?
A. No.
Q. How about CSFB? Did you have any dealings with CSFB?
A. No, I did not.
Q. That saves us a lot of time.
Anderson I think we already talked about.
Did you ever, yourself, talk to any of Sunbeam's outside auditors?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you ever talk to Coopers & Lybrand in connection with this Sunbeam --
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you, or anyone from client services group, have any role in connection with the public announcement of the acquisitions?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011347

A. Ah, no.
Q. Do you know who within Morgan Stanley was involved in that?
A. No, I do not.
Q. As a general matter, putting aside this transaction --
A. Aha.
Q. -- is there part of the team that would be responsible for the public announcement?
A. A merger transaction?
Q. Correct.
A. It would be the M&A team, the mergers team, typically.
Q. You have served as a director during the evaluation process of your colleagues and lower level employees at Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Can you tell me how the evaluation process works when you are the director?
A. In what sense?
Q. Well, let's see how I can shorten this. I have a sense, I think, but I am not sure; so, let me just test my sense, and you can tell me whether I have got it wrong.

A. Sure. Sure.
Q. When a person is subject to a valuation, individuals throughout the firm who have worked with that individual can submit comments about the individual. That is correct?
A. Yes. And, specifically, there is both the opportunity for an individual to request evaluations, and people can also submit evaluations.
Q. Unsolicited.
A. Exactly.
Q. The director's role is to compile all of those comments --
A. Well, the comments come to the valuation director in a package that is consolidated by the human resources group.
Q. When you say "consolidated," you mean, put into a single document?
A. Yes.
Q. The director's role is to summarize that information?
A. Correct.

Q. And to convey the summary to the evaluated employee?
A. That is correct.
Q. Very good. And when an evaluator is a lower level employee, the evaluator's identity does not appear in the compiled information?
A. That is correct. It is anonymous.
Q. Although, when the information is from a higher level employee, at least you get to see who made the comment?
A. That is correct.
Q. You were Mr. Tyree's evaluation director for his 1998 evaluation?
A. That is correct.
MR. JOHNSON: Would you mark this as Exhibit CPH 232.
(CPH Exhibit 232, evaluations, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Wright, does Exhibit 232 appear to be the compiled evaluations of Mr. Tyree for 1998?
A. Yes, it does appear to be that.

Q. One of the parts of the evaluation process that I guess we did not cover was, I guess, the self-evaluation.
A. Yes.
Q. Tell me what that is?
A. Each individual is asked to prepare a self-evaluation. There are questions that are asked of the individual and it is meant to be your assessment of your performance for the year.
Q. If you look at Mr. Tyree's self-evaluation, which appears to be part 2, page 1, and continuing on to part 2, page 3, the last section of this self-evaluation calls for the candidate to identify the biggest disappointments -- in particular, in developing new business.
If you would be kind enough to read Mr. Tyree's response to that, I will have a few questions.
A. Beginning on 2-2?
Q. Correct. And, for the record, that is the Bates stamp page 0085592, continuing on to '593.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. All right.
(Pause.)
Q. Focusing particularly on the Sunbeam component of his disappointments for 1998, did you discuss that part of the self-evaluation with Mr. Tyree?
A. I don't recall particularly, but I am sure that I did as part of his evaluation.
Q. It would be customary to talk about those aspects of his self-evaluation?
A. Sure.
Q. As you sit here, you don't remember the substance of the conversation?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any sense of why the transaction was a disappointment to him in any way?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
A. I would have to get into his psyche.
Q. He did not tell you why he was disappointed?
A. Ah, I would say not beyond what is here.

Q. Was there any discussion with Mr. Tyree, at any point, as to whether, in fact, appropriate levels of due diligence were undertaken in connection with the transaction?
A. In the context of his evaluation?
Q. Or otherwise.
A. Ah, not to my knowledge, no.
Q. Mr. Tyree writes here that there were "serious issues" -- or, I will be more complete -- he refers to a variety of events that "can cause serious issues with transactions."
What were the "serious issues" with respect to Sunbeam?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation about what Mr. Tyree was referring to.
A. I would be speculating about what he would be referring to, to answer that. Again, these are his words. I would be getting into his psyche.
Q. I guess I am trying to be both narrow and broad at the same time, which is probably our problem.

In the context of conveying Mr. Tyree's evaluation to him, did Mr. Tyree say anything that would inform you as to what he viewed to be the serious issues?
A. Ah, not that I can recall now. As I said before, I am almost certain we talked about this as part of his evaluation, but that was six years ago.
Q. Was the possibility that Morgan Stanley made any mistakes in connection with Sunbeam ever discussed?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. As you sit here today, would you acknowledge that possibility?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question. And lack of foundation.
A. I don't think I am in a position to make that assessment.
Q. I will see if I can accommodate his objection and your answer at the same time. This will be a fool's errand, I am sure.
You would acknowledge that Morgan Stanley, like any entity, could make a mistake?

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question. Incomplete hypothetical. No context.
A. I don't understand your line of questioning.
Q. Here is what I am trying to get at.
I will back up further -- and this is a Yes or No question.
Do you have any sense of the nature of the claims by Coleman Parent Holdings against Morgan Stanley?
A. No, I don't.
Q. You have no idea what this lawsuit is about?
A. Only in the most generic sense.
Q. Again, to the extent that your understanding is also based upon what you heard from your counsel, I don't want to hear about that, okay.
But informed by that, I guess, is the only way I can put it.
Do you recognize that Morgan Stanley is accused of committing a fraud in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?

MR. CLARE: Let's be clear about what the question was and the instruction was.

He asked you a specific question, which you can have the court reporter read back. If your only understanding of what the nature of the allegations is through your conversations with attorneys from Morgan Stanley, either in-house lawyers or outside counsel, then I am instructing you not to answer the question.

If you have an understanding from another source, generally, about what the nature of the allegations is, then you are free to answer Mr. Johnson's question.

I also want to interpose an objection to the form of the question.

A. I have no other basis for information than what I received from Morgan Stanley counsel.

Q. Let's go back to the original question, which got us into the nature of the claims.

A. Sure.

Q. And, in particular, you know, your comment, which was, essentially, I am not sure what you are trying to get at --

A. Aha.

Q. Trying to tell you --

A. Aha.

Q. What I am trying to get at is whether Morgan Stanley, at any point, considered that it made a mistake in connection with the Sunbeam transaction.

MR. CLARE: Objection to form, to the extent that you are -- and to foundation, to the extent that you are asking him what other folks may have done or considered.

A. I have no basis for making that assessment.

Q. You, personally, never were involved in any discussions that were directed in any way whether Morgan Stanley made a mistake in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?

A. No, I was not.

Q. You are not aware of any such discussion happening at Morgan Stanley?

A. No, I am not.

Q. To your knowledge, did anyone within Morgan Stanley consider delaying closing of the offering?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Based on your conversations with Mr. Tyree, do you have any basis to understand his reference to "other internal issues"?

A. No, I do not.

Q. So, as you sit here, you have no idea what he is referring to there?

A. Beyond the words on the page? No.

Q. Did you have a general understanding of the demise of Sunbeam in the months after the closing of the offering?

A. What do you mean by "the demise of Sunbeam"?

Q. Well, you mentioned earlier that Sunbeam ended up in bankruptcy.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you also understand that Mr. Dunlap was terminated by the board?

A. Yes.

Q. And that Arthur Andersen withheld its consent?

A. I was not aware of that, or I don't recall it now. I was probably aware at the time.

Q. Okay. You read the Wall Street Journal every day?

A. Pardon?

Q. Do you read the Wall Street Journal every day?

A. I do not read the Wall Street Journal every day.

Q. You are under oath, sir.

A. I am being honest. I don't read it every day.

Q. But you keep up, as a general matter, with business publications?

A. Absolutely. And it is through those means that I knew a lot of this information.

Q. Did you discuss any of that information within Morgan Stanley?

A. Not that I can recall now, but I would imagine that I did.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. But you don't recall any specific discussions with anyone at Morgan Stanley about, say, the termination of Mr. Dunlap?
A. No, I do not.
Q. If you flip over to the section 3, page 2, which has the Bates stamp 85595.
A. Yes.
Q. There is a set of comments by you that I would ask you to review.
A. All right.
(Pause.)
Q. You refer there to the "madness" of the CEO of Sunbeam. What are you referring to there?
A. Six years later, I can't specifically say, but I would imagine that it was about things that I was hearing around the deal and what Mr. Dunlap was doing around the deal.
Q. Your speculation is that you were referring to things that you were hearing during the execution process concerning his behavior?
A. Absolutely. Yes.

Q. Do you have any more specific recollection about his behavior?
A. No, I really don't. And while madness might be used as a psychological or psychiatric term, that is not what I meant, I am certain.
Q. I appreciate that. You referred to Sunbeam as one of the most challenging clients of the year. What was challenging about Sunbeam?
A. I think, getting the deal done, and the challenges, as exhibited by all you put before me around the deal.
Q. When you say "getting the deal done" and the exhibits we have looked at -- are you referring to the sales shortfall issue that we have been talking about?
A. I would say so, yes.
Q. What was challenging about that issue?
A. Well, the fact of it becoming a fact, if you will.
Q. Now I have to ask you for a clarification.

You mean, the fact of it becoming a fact?
A. In the context of doing an offering, to have a press release like that that you have to deal with.
Q. And the facts underlying the press release, itself, to deal with?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
A. I would say, the press release as part of the deal. I can't speak to underlying facts, as I told you before.
Q. Right. I guess what I am really trying get at is your language here about this being a challenging client.
A. Well, I list more than one client in this paragraph.
Q. Absolutely.
A. Tropicana is listed here -- on that, and also Omnicon.
Q. Although you do also say "most notably Sunbeam."
A. That's right. Yes.
Q. What I am trying to get at is precisely the challenge presented by Sunbeam.

A. Again, I think it was, as I said before, dealing with the press release as an issue as part of the transaction.
Q. Why is it challenging to issue a press release as part of a transaction?
A. It depends on the content, the nature of the press release. If you are announcing something that the market doesn't expect, that does pose a challenge in a transaction.
Q. It did not, though, impose an impediment to the transaction in this context?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question.
A. I don't think I am in a position to say that.
Q. I think we covered this already. You don't know how the market reacted to the March 19th press release?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know how the market reacted to the April 3rd press release?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Based on your experience, do you have an expectation as to the reaction to each of the press releases?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017351

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.

A. I would only be speculating.

Q. Would you agree that the market reaction would be a fair gauge of the materiality of the information?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. Calls for speculation.

A. I would be speculating to say that.

Q. If you would flip over to III, page 4.

A. Yes.

Q. For the record, that is Bates 0085597. Mr. Strong has submitted some comments, which I will ask you to review.

A. Yes.

Q. We touched on this a little bit already today, but, in particular, I mentioned Mr. Strong's comment concerning the design of the comfort letter.

Do you have any idea what Mr. Strong is referring to there?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.

A. No, I do not.

Q. Having looked at the comfort letter briefly today, do you have any opinion as to whether the design of the comfort letter is noteworthy?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

A. In the summary review, having to do with the comfort letter, I see nothing to make it unique, if you will.

Q. Or worthy of particular comment?

A. I would still say nothing that makes it unique.

Q. Mr. Strong also states that: "Mr. Tyree made the proper judgment, under high pressure conditions, with respect to customer due diligence."

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any idea what Mr. Strong is referring to?

MR. CLARE: Same objection.

A. I would only be speculating.

Q. So, the answer is, you don't know what Mr. Strong is referring to?

A. I don't. You could draw inferences from the words on the page, but I don't specifically know.

Q. What do you infer from the words on the page?

A. That due diligence was done and John did a good job of organizing it.

Q. Your comment on this same page is a little longer. If you would look at that for me, I would appreciate it.

A. All right.

(Pause.)

Q. You refer to John putting the past behind him.

A. Yes.

Q. What is that referring to?

A. Prior, prior to being in my group, he was in what was called the general industrial group, which was a business development group. And John, the assessment was made that John was better at doing execution than business development. So, in essence, putting his business development past behind him where he was not deemed to be as effective as he was in doing transaction execution.

Q. You say most people would be bitter about the past?

A. Aha.

Q. Did John not leave the general industrial group on good terms?

A. I would not say that it was good terms.

Again, I would say he was assessed as being not a business development person, and much more of an execution person.

So, in CSG, that was the better home, if you will.

Q. He had a better future in CSG?

A. Yes.

Q. Is he in CSG now?

A. I don't know. He is in London now and I don't know specifically what his duties are.

Q. In '98 how many people were within the CSG group?

A. I don't remember exactly. Probably

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017352

15 or 20-some people.
Q. Those are people all under you?
A. Yes. Aha.
Q. Did John Tyree leave CSG at any time that you were the head of CSG?
A. He did leave CSG while I was head of CSG.
Q. Why was that?
A. He wanted an international experience and an opportunity became available for him to go to London, and he did so.
Q. Were you disappointed by his departure?
A. I was, because I viewed him as a great resource.
Q. If you would flip over to III, page 6. For the record, 0085599. And, again, there are comments by Mr. Strong and by you that I will ask you about. I will ask you to read them.
A. Okay.
(Pause.)
Q. Mr. Strong refers to Mr. Tyree jumping to incorrect conclusions because of the high pressure on him.

A. Aha.
Q. Do you know what that refers to?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Are you aware of Mr. Tyree jumping to any incorrect conclusion on the Sunbeam execution?
A. I am not.
Q. Do you believe that you spoke with Mr. Strong in connection with finalizing Mr. Tyree's evaluation?
A. I don't recall doing so.
Q. As a general matter, would you expect that to happen?
A. Um, typically the package is considered to be complete.
Q. But you may pick up the phone, maybe not?
A. Maybe, maybe not.
Q. Your comment on Mr. Tyree in this section, again, refers to issues with Sunbeam. What is that?
A. Again, I think it refers to what I said earlier about the challenging client.

And the point I make here really ties back to what you see in this self-evaluation, which is to say there was a team, very senior level team, a very big team working on this deal, and he was not alone.
Q. Was he beating himself up over the Sunbeam execution?
A. I would say, again, my comment as to what he says is that, you know, it was a great disappointment for him. That is something he expressed to me.
Q. Right. But you don't have a sense of why it was a disappointment?
A. Not anything more specific than that.
Q. Did he ever convey to you, in words or substance, that somebody had put one over on him in connection with the Sunbeam execution?
A. No.
Q. You mentioned at a couple of points in Exhibit 232 that Mr. Tyree became an OPS officer?
A. Yes.

Q. What is that?
A. The operations officer is a position, in groups within the investment banking division for someone, where someone is responsible for administrative duties, including the staffing of transactions.
Q. He is the CSG traffic cop?
A. I would say, more like CSG chief of staff.
Q. I am sure that he would appreciate that.
If you flip over to Roman 4, page 2 which has the Bates stamp 85602, these are what are called upward comments.
A. That is correct.
Q. That means it is someone who reports to John?
A. Yes.
Q. As valuation director, do you know who has made any of these comments?
A. No, I do not. And I should go so far as to say that the way the system works, if you do not have more than three upward evaluators, none of the comments print out, as to keep it anonymous.

017353

Q. Not the case here with Mr. Tyree.
A. He had many -- yes.
Q. Around the middle of the page there, under the title "managing performance" --
A. Yes.
Q. The second bullet point, that is a fairly lengthy set of comments. If you read that for me, I will ask you a few questions.
A. All right.
Q. The comment states, among other things: "On the Sunbeam deal, when that turned sour, I had tons of questions for John -- i.e., what does this mean for the firm, the research analyst, how will we be affected, et cetera."
Did you ever get the sense that the Sunbeam deal turned sour?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. What do you mean -- beyond the words here -- are you saying in the context of the words here or --
Q. Well, what I am getting at is, obviously, the page says that the deal turned sour. I am getting at whether that is consistent with your view of the transaction.

A. As I have said previously, I think the deal had challenges.
Um, and ultimately, after the closing of the deal, you know, the company went bankrupt.
Turn sour, not my words, but ah, one could use those words to describe that type of situation.
Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Tyree about what the Sunbeam transaction meant for the firm?
A. Not that I can recall, but I believe I would have.
Q. Do you have any understanding about what the demise of Sunbeam meant for the research analyst at Morgan Stanley?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know who the research analyst was?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Who was it?

A. Andy Conway.
Q. Do you know whether he actually initiated any coverage on Sunbeam?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Conway at all about Sunbeam?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Was there any concern among the members of client services group about negative repercussions for them in connection with the execution?
A. When you say "negative repercussions," what are you asking?
Q. Whether their stature or compensation within the company would be adversely affected.
A. No. No.
Q. So, when the comment here on page 85602 refers to "how will we be affected," you weren't involved in any of those conversations?
A. I don't know what that "we" refers to.
Q. It could be Morgan Stanley. It could be client services group.

A. Absolutely.
Q. So, it could be duplicative of: What does this mean for the firm?
A. Exactly.
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation. He did not write this.
A. I would be speculating, yes. But it could be.
Q. Was there any sentiment of worry among your charges in the months following the closing?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
A. "Sentiment of worry" meaning?
Q. I will state it more directly.
Did anyone ever express any worry or concern to you about the demise of Sunbeam?
A. Worry or concern, in what sense?
Q. The implication for Morgan Stanley.
A. Not that I recall now, no.
Q. By the way, if you look at the cover of Exhibit 232, the title "notes" under Mr. Tyree's name, "Europe IBD/industrials group," what does that refer to?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Europe -- well, first of all, this has been printed out subsequent to the 1998 review process, and the date at the top suggests it was printed out on March 4th of this year.
The way the system works, when you pull it out of the system, retrospectively, it shows your current location, and John is currently in Europe and, as informed by this, he must be in the investment banking industries group, which would be the general industrial group in Europe. And he is now an executive director.
Q. It is not that he had that position at the end of 1998?
A. That is correct.
MR. JOHNSON: Would you mark this as Exhibit 233, for identification.
(CPH Exhibit 233, four-page evaluation document, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Wright, I am giving you a redacted copy of what appears to be the 1998 compiled evaluation of Ruth Porat, and I will show it to your counsel first, so that he can review the redactions and make sure that they are acceptable to him.

MR. JOHNSON: I will state, for the record, while he is reviewing it, that what was marked as Exhibit 233 is comprised of four pages, page 85274, 85279, at 5284, and 5283.
MR. CLARE: All right.
MR. JOHNSON: I will state, further, for the record, that what we have done with the compiled evaluation is eliminate all comments from other personnel besides you.
A. Okay.
Q. So that only your comments appear.
MR. CLARE: Do you want him to read all of the passages now, or particular ones?
MR. JOHNSON: I will ask about the first one, which is on the second page of the exhibit.
MR. CLARE: All right.

MR. JOHNSON: But he is free to read the others.
MR. CLARE: Of course.
Q. You are making downward comments here?
A. No. That is really, it should be colleague comments, because we are both managing directors, in the same tenure.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to whether this appears in downward comments?
A. I would imagine, again, it is, again -- this is a 1998 evaluation that is being pulled out of the system, as dated here -- February 27th of this year. So, I am sure it is a computer --
Q. So that the order and placement of comments changes over time?
A. Well, it could, is my speculation, but -- my comments would be colleague comments.
Q. Okay. In 1998, you viewed her as on an equal plane?
A. Yes. We were both managing directors. We both started out of business school at the firm at the same time, and we were both elected managing directors at the same time.

Q. And you have already testified that you were close with Mr. Porat?
A. I know her well.
Q. You see her frequently?
A. Yes. Aha.
Q. Your comment on page 85279, the second sentence --
A. Yes.
Q. This states: "While she is always striving to push the edge of the envelope in getting the deal done, it is always with the firm's franchise and interest in mind."
A. Yes.
Q. What are you referring to there when you say, "pushing the edge of the envelope"?
A. I think you are looking at something six years later. I am speaking to the fact of being creative, whether it is deal structure or how to get the deal done. And in putting it in the context of always with the firm's franchise and interest in mind. When we refer to the firm's "franchise," we speak of our reputation.

011355

Q. Your best interest?
A. No. Our reputation, which is really about our perception by the outside.
Q. Would you let me see that answer on the screen.
(Pause.)
Q. So, your phrase there "pushing the edge of the envelope" is directed to her creativity?
A. I would say her creativity, yes.
Q. Is it directed, at all, to aggressiveness?
A. No.
Q. Can you give me an example in 1998 of Ms. Porat pushing the edge of the envelope?
A. Not with the passage of six years.
Q. Did she push the edge of the energy in connection with the Sunbeam execution?
A. I would not say that I was in a position to say.
Q. So, you don't know?
A. I don't know.

(CPH Exhibit 234, evaluation, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Wright, you were also the director of Shani Boone's evaluation?
A. Yes.
Q. And that involved the same process that we talked about with Mr. Tyree?
A. That is correct.
Q. I will give you a copy of Exhibit 234.
As Tom knows, I have a bad habit of giving my personal, marked-up copy to witnesses.
MR. CLARE: Are there portions of this that you want him to focus on?
MR. JOHNSON: Let's start, as an initial matter:
Q. Can you identify, for the record, what has been marked as CPH Exhibit 234?
A. Would you like me to describe it; is that what you are saying?
Q. What does it appear to be?
A. It is an analyst's year-end evaluation for the period '97, '98 for Shani Boone.

Again, given that it was pulled in this year, March 3rd, it looks like, from the date, it shows her as being in M&A within IBD as a third-year analyst.
She worked there as a third-year analyst, having spent two years working in CSG.
Q. Do you know that she is no longer with Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know where she is now?
A. I believe she is in business school, but I am not 100 percent certain of that.
Q. What I am getting at is, essentially, how the system operates when you pull this up. This would be her last title at Morgan Stanley?
A. This is her last title at Morgan Stanley, prior to leaving firm.
Q. You are listed on Exhibit 234 as primary evaluation director?
A. That is correct.

Q. If you would look at page 84776 and Mr. Savarie's and Mr. Strong's comments for me, please.
A. All right.
(Pause.)
Q. Mr. Savarie and Mr. Strong use words like "extraordinary" and "difficult" in connection with the Sunbeam transaction; do you see that?
MR. CLARE: Sorry, you referred to Mr. Strong's comments?
Q. Mr. Savarie and Mr. Strong.
MR. CLARE: Where's Mr. Strong's comment?
MR. JOHNSON: The bottom of page 84776.
MR. CLARE: I only heard the part where you asked him to read Mr. Savarie's comment.
MR. JOHNSON: I intended him or asked him to read both.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
Q. Do you understand those references to mean anything other than what we have already talked about, and that is the problems associated with issuing the press release?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017356

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question. The prior testimony will speak for itself.

MR. JOHNSON: Let me honor that objection and rephrase the question.

Q. Do you have any understanding of what is being referred to as "extraordinary and high pressure circumstances and difficult situations"?

A. Beyond what I read on the page -- reading these people's comments, no. However, it is interesting to note that both of them speak about the CEO, Mr. Savarie, saying quite surly and difficult at times.

Q. When you say "it is interesting to note" --

A. You asked me what was difficult, or -- I fail to remember the other word you picked out of Mr. Savarie's comment, but they both make reference to the CEO.

Q. If you flip over into the next page, you will see Mr. Tyree's comment.

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Tyree refers to a notoriously difficult client and seemingly impossible time demands.

A. Yes. All right.

Q. Together with Mr. Savarie's and Mr. Strong's comments, we see Mr. Tyree noting a difficult client.

A. Aha.

Q. As you, yourself, pointed out.

A. Aha.

Q. How does that inform what Morgan Stanley's due diligence program would be?

A. I don't know that I can answer that question out of context, because "difficult client" can mean many different things.

Q. Do you have any understanding as to what these gentlemen were referring to when they called Sunbeam a difficult or surly, I think, is another word that is used?

MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.

A. What I read here refers specifically to the chairman as being surly and difficult, and beyond what's on the page, no.

Q. Backing up a second, to Mr. Savarie, did you have any interaction with him on this execution?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Have you dealt with him in other contexts?

A. I have worked on other transactions with him.

Q. Do any come to mind?

A. Ah, I think I can think of two. Metro Mail which was an IPO. And, I believe, Right Choice, which was an IPO.

Q. Metro Mail was a year or two prior to Sunbeam?

A. I can't tell you the exact times.

Q. Do you have any recollection of earnings problems with Metro Mail?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Or a delay in the offering?

A. No.

MR. JOHNSON: Would you mark this as CPH Exhibit 235.

(CPH Exhibit 235, evaluation, marked for identification as of this date.)

MR. JOHNSON: As we did with one of the other exhibits, what we are marking as Exhibit 235, I will show your counsel, too. It is intended to be, I will tell you, your self-evaluation for 1998.

THE WITNESS: Mine?

MR. JOHNSON: Yes. But, as a result, it comes from compiled material which you are not allowed to review, as I understand it.

I will note, for the record, that the document that we marked as Exhibit 235 is compiled of two pages, bearing the Bates stamp 85726 and 27.

MR. CLARE: Okay.

Q. All right, if you would look at that for me.

A. All right.

(Pause.)

Q. As with the other documents that we have looked at, feel free to read the entire document. I am going to ask you only about the last section, which is the biggest disappointment section.

Wright - Confidential

A. Aha. Okay.

Q. A few preliminaries first, and then I will get to that section.

Does what we marked as Exhibit CPH 235 appear to be your self-evaluation for 1998?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. I will have to retract what I said earlier. I have a question about the first section on page 58727.

A. Yes.

Q. If you would give that a close read.

A. All right.

Q. You refer in that section to your "incredibly overworked group and inhuman work levels."

Did you have a perception at that time that CSG worked harder than other groups in Morgan Stanley?

A. I would not say we worked harder than other groups, but we were working extremely hard. It was a very busy time throughout the firm.

Wright - Confidential

Q. It was the late '90s?

A. Yes.

Q. We talked, in general terms, about the number of offerings that you have been involved in in your career.

A. Aha.

Q. Do you have any sense of the number of offerings that CSG was executing, say, in 1998?

A. I say here, that -- are you asking what of the 126 that had been executed, year to date, were ongoing? Or what are you asking?

Q. It is a good comment.

You told me earlier that you had 15 or 20 people on staff?

A. That's right.

Q. So, those 15 or 20 people withheld from other groups -- had, in the first eight months of 1998, executed 126 transactions?

A. That is correct.

Q. That is inhuman?

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form

Wright - Confidential

and move to strike counsel's characterization.

Q. Back at the biggest disappointment section that I raised initially. You referred there to your best people being the target of poaching.

And having to stave off dumping poor performers into your group.

Did you have the sense that CSG was getting inferior treatment among the groups within Morgan Stanley at that time?

MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.

A. No. I would say this about my comment. As I said previously, the whole firm was very busy at that time. All of Wall Street was very busy at that time.

I was trying to build a group, and the ability to get resources, be it internally or externally, was a challenge. And then, other groups were also trying to get resources.

I was viewed as a person who trained people very well; so, people wanted to poach my people. And, on the other side of it, people wanted to put people with me to get them trained. So, that is all wrapped up in that comment.

Wright - Confidential

Q. You did not feel as if you were getting less than the cream of the crop for your group?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form, and asked and answered.

A. I would agree that I have answered that.

Q. Unfortunately, that is not one that he instructed on.

MR. CLARE: You get to answer it again.

A. As I said, I think, I was not in any way marginalized as against other groups, getting quality resources. And, indeed, in one of these comments I speak to the fact that I had the assistance of a search firm to find additional resources. So, the firm was supportive of my group and what we were doing.

MR. JOHNSON: If you want to take a five-minute break, I may be finished.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

EXAMINATION BY
MR. CLARE:

Q. Mr. Wright, earlier Mr. Johnson asked you some questions about the issuance of press releases generally. Do you recall that testimony?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And in the course of the questioning you discussed an expectation that auditors would be consulted generally in connection with the issuance of a press release by a company.
A. That is correct.
Q. In your experience, is that consultation with the auditors a job that would necessarily fall to a Morgan Stanley, as an underwriter, as opposed to other parties?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection. Leading.
A. My view is that it would be the company that would engage, you know, their auditors, in working on a press release.
MR. CLARE: Those are all of the questions that I have.
One housekeeping item that I want to note, for the record, that a number of the exhibits that were marked and used during today's deposition and a number of the, or a portion of the testimony referring to those exhibits are subject to confidential treatment, both by a court order, specifically dealing with personnel evaluations, and also pursuant to the stipulated protective order in the case.
Morgan Stanley intends to designate those exhibits which are already deemed confidential, but also the portions of the testimony that deal with those exhibits, as confidential under the protective order, at a minimum, and will comply with the protective order in other respects if there are additional portions of the transcript that we wish to designate as confidential.

MR. JOHNSON: Obviously, the protective order speaks to the procedure for designating depositions after the fact; so, I expect both parties to comply with that.
MR. CLARE: Sure.
I just wanted to make clear that, even failing additional designations by Morgan Stanley, that those portions addressing the personnel evaluation exhibits will be designated as confidential by Morgan Stanley, starting today.
We are done.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 1:21, and this completes the videotaped deposition.
MR. JOHNSON: Thank you for your time.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Good morning. We are now on the video record. This is Videotape No. 1. Today is Monday January 4th, 2004. The time is 9:03 a.m. We are here at 44 West Flagler Street, Miami, Florida for the purpose of taking the videotape deposition of Dennis Pastrana in the matter of Case No. 03 CA 00504 A1, Coleman (Parent) Holding versus Morgan Stanley.

The court reporter is Ana Reid. The videographer is Alejandro Montalvo, both of Esquire Deposition Service.

Will counsel please introduce yourselves after which the court reporter will swear the witness.

MR. JOHNSON: Clark Johnson, Jenner & Block Chicago, for the plaintiff, Coleman (Parent) Holding.

MR. BAKER: Stephen Baker, also of Jenner & Block in Chicago, also on behalf of Coleman (Parent).

MS. BROWN: Zhonette Brown of Kirkland & Ellis, Washington D.C., on behalf of Morgan Stanley, Incorporated.

MR. MOSCATO: Michael Moscato from the firm of Curtis Mallet representing Dennis Pastrana.

DENNIS PASTRANA

was called as a witness by the plaintiff, having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Pastrana.

A. Good morning.

Q. Will you please state your name for the record.

A. Dennis Pastrana.

Q. And where do you reside?

A. 3948 Southwest 60th Court, Miami, Florida, 33135.

Q. How long have been at that address?

A. Five years.

Q. Where are you currently employed?

A. Ernst & Young, LLP.

Q. How long have you been with Ernst & Young, LLP?

A. Since May of 2001.

Q. And prior to May 2001, where were you employed?

A. With Arthur Andersen, LLP.

Q. And are you a CPA in the State of Florida?

A. Yes.

Q. How long have you held a CPA license?

A. About 11 years.

Q. And do you have a Bachelor's Degree?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. When did you receive your Bachelor's Degree?

A. 1991.

Q. And did you go to work for Andersen after receiving a Bachelor's Degree?

A. I worked for about a year at a local firm and then I went to Andersen in 1993.

Q. So you were at Andersen about eight years?

A. Correct.

Q. What are your current responsibilities at Ernst & Young LLP?

A. I'm a senior manager in the firm's audit practice where I work -- basically manage audits of various clients.

Q. Including public companies?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you sketch for us the titles that you've held during your approximately eight years at Arthur Andersen?

A. Staff, senior, manager and experienced manager.

Q. During what time frame approximately were you a senior?

A. Up until 1998 beginning at about 1995.

Q. And then you became a manager at some point around 1998; is that correct?

A. Correct. I believe it was middle of 1998, July, something like that, August.

Q. And when did you gain the title experienced manager?

A. In 2000, about the same time, middle of the year, 2000.

Q. Were you a resident in the Miami office for Arthur Andersen during your entire employment with Arthur Andersen?

A. Yes. Excuse me.

Q. And performed services for Sunbeam during your work at Arthur Andersen?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you begin doing any work for Sunbeam?

A. In approximately October of 1997.

Q. And what was the nature of that work?

A. My first involvement was in preparing -- or performing the SAS 71 review for the third quarter of 1997.

Q. And did you continue to perform services for Sunbeam after completing that review?

A. Yes.

Q. You worked on the 1997 audit; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you devote a substantial part of your work to that audit?

A. Yes.

Q. What work did you perform for Sunbeam after the 1997 audit?

A. I participated or performed the SAS 71 review for the first quarter of 1998. I participated in the performance of post report review procedures and the preparation of a comfort letter in connection with the issuance of some bonds or debt, and subsequent to that also participated in the Andersen's restatement audit work, if you will.

Q. And that was in the time frame of summer 1998 and the fall of 1998?

A. Correct.

Q. How is it that you came to work on Sunbeam matters? Was there a colleague that asked you to work out on those matters?

A. Really just in the normal course. The engagement senior who was on the job previously on the engagement left the firm and I was assigned just by the normal practice of identifying people and assigning people to engagements.

Q. And to whom did you report at Andersen concerning your work for Sunbeam?

A. Directly to Larry Bornstein.

Q. Indirectly did you report to anyone?

A. Pardon me?

Q. Indirectly did you report to anyone?

A. Indirectly I was kind of accountable to the partners as well which would have been Phil Harlow but most of my day-to-day interaction was with Mr. Bornstein.

Q. Did you have any primary contacts with Sunbeam that you dealt with on a regular basis?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01736 3

A. Primarily dealt with a man by the name of Don -- I can't remember -- Don Jackson who was accounting manager at the time and also dealt quite a bit with John Gluck who was also in control.

Q. In connection with today's deposition, did you review any prior testimony that you've given relating to Sunbeam?

A. I did. I read some testimony and reviewed some documents.

Q. And you gave testimony to the Securities and Exchange Commission; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you also gave a deposition -- or several days of deposition in various civil litigations; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you give any other testimony relating to Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. And other than any conversations you may have had with Mr. Moscato or family members, have you spoken to anyone about this deposition?

A. No.

Q. When was the last time you had any conversation with Mr. Bornstein?

A. It's been more than two years.

Q. How about Mr. Pruitt, have you had any conversations with him over the past two years?

A. Not related to Sunbeam. I do -- Mr. Pruitt is currently working out of the same office that I work at and we do know each other so we do talk occasionally.

Q. But you haven't talked about Sunbeam in any way?

A. No, no.

Q. Have you had any conversations with Mr. Denkhaus within the last few years?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me narrow it down. Did any of those conversations relate to Sunbeam in any way?

A. No, not that I can recall.

Q. How about Mr. Harlow, have you spoken to him about Sunbeam at any point in the past two years?

A. Not that I can recall. I've spoken to him, I would say, infrequently over the past few years and not about Sunbeam that I can remember at all.

Q. Now, I believe you indicated that you worked on the additional procedures that led to the restatement of Sunbeam's financial statement, is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you first get involved in working on those additional procedures?

A. I think it just happened naturally. I mean, I was the senior on the account in 1997 and when the restatement procedures came up in the summer of 1998 and they were looking for people to work on that engagement, I was a logical choice to participate.

Q. When you say "they were looking for people" --

A. "They" meaning the firm.

Q. Any particular person within the firm contact you to ask you to work on those procedures?

A. No, I was assigned to the account as it was so my time was, you know, in large part already assigned to Sunbeam.

Q. Was Sunbeam your most significant client in terms of your work in the 97/98 time frame?

A. In terms of me personally, yes.

Q. How did you go about performing the additional procedures? Strike that. What additional procedures did you perform in connection with the restatement?

MR. MOSCATO: When you say "you," you mean him personally?

MR. JOHNSON: Yes.

MR. MOSCATO: That's kind of a broad question.

MR. JOHNSON: Let's see if he can answer it.

THE WITNESS: I mean, I probably have to go back to the restatement report to refresh my recollection. I know I worked on areas related to international sales that we were looking at at the time.

I did some work in certain areas of the inventory, going back and looking at the historical accounting for capitalized variances.

A fairly meticulous part of the additional procedure was tracking numerous adjustments that had been identified over a period of time and kind of tracking those on a quarter-by-quarter basis so I was responsible for that part of the work. Offhand, I don't remember what other areas I worked on.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Did you have any responsibility for interviewing Sunbeam personnel?

A. Yes, I did conduct interviews of some people, that's right.

Q. Do you know who else from Andersen was responsible for conducting interviews?

A. I know Mr. Harlow did some interviews, Mr. Bornstein did some and there was generally, as far as I remember, two of us present at each of the interviews, Mr. Denkhaus did some interviews. I don't know who else. Those are the three I can remember.

Q. What was the purpose of having these interviews?

A. I think just to try to get some information about people's roles, what they might have known about different events that transpired. It's really information gathering.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Why is it that Andersen determined to conduct the additional procedures in the first place?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't know. I didn't make that decision.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Had you heard anything concerning potential frauds at Andersen prior to the commencement of the additional procedures?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, wait. You said -- I think the syntax was a little weird. You said, "Did you hear anything about potential frauds at Andersen." You don't mean Andersen committing fraud?
MR. JOHNSON: Thank you. That's correct.
Q. Have you heard in the media or otherwise any reports of potential fraud occurring at Sunbeam?
A. I mean, I had heard general discussion about, you know, the term "fraud" being used in the context of Sunbeam, but in terms of any specific area or any specific instance where something fraudulent was done, I had no knowledge or had not heard anything.
Q. Did you ever read an article in Barron's in approximately June of 1998 relating to Sunbeam's accounting?

A. I did actually.
Q. Did you read that at approximately the time it was published?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any discussions about that article with anyone at Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. With whom did you have any of those discussions?
A. I can remember having a discussion about that with Mr. Harlow and Mr. Bornstein and, in fact, Mr. Denkhaus as well.
Q. Was that in June of '98?
A. Thereabouts, yes.
Q. And was this a single conversation?
A. It was probably one or two conversations.
Q. And what did each of those individuals say about the article?
A. I don't remember what the specifics were of what was said at this point. You know, we did go through for each of the areas that were identified, see what was in our audit work papers.
Q. Was that article one of the reasons that Arthur Andersen decided to conduct additional procedures?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't know the basis for the decision.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do you recall any of the Sunbeam employees that you interviewed as part of the additional procedures?
A. I do only because I reviewed some of the documents.
Q. Did you review -- I'm sorry, did you finish your answer?
A. Over the weekend I looked at a few of the notes that I had written so I recall some.
Q. Did you review any of the interview memorandum that you prepared?
A. Yes.
Q. And was Scott Yales one of the persons that you interviewed?
A. Yes.
MR. JOHNSON: Let's mark the interview memorandum. This will be CPH 101. Instead of bringing the entire set down I brought the handful that I'm going to use.
Q. Mr. Pastrana, if you will take a minute to look at that document. I'm going to ask you a handful of questions about it.
A. Okay.
Q. Is this a memorandum that you prepared to the files dated September 1, 1998?

A. Yes.
Q. And it concerns an interview with Scott Yales?
A. Yes.
Q. And, for the record, Exhibit 101 has the Bates stamp CPH 0062693 through 697. Mr. Pastrana, who is Scott Yales?
A. He, as best I can remember, worked in Sunbeam's planning and financial analysis function.
Q. And was he employed in the Delray Beach office of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Why did you determine to interview Mr. Yales as part of the additional procedures?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I didn't determine. I mean, he was just one of people I was assigned to interview.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Someone told you to interview Mr. Yales?
A. Somebody put together a list of who was going to be interviewed and who was going to conduct what interview.
Q. Did you have a role in preparing the list of people to interview?
A. No.
Q. Who prepared that list?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't know. At this point I don't remember. I might have been asked questions about who did what function or whatever. I just can't remember the specifics.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. About halfway down the first page of this exhibit there's a sentence fragment that states, "Needed to make numbers." The line starting with --
A. Uh-huh.
Q. What does the "Needed to make numbers" phrase refer to?
A. I think it's this interviewee's sense of the fact that it was very important at this organization that they achieve their financial targets for revenues and income.
Q. Is that the same import of the bullet point under Q4 97, the bullet provides, "In Q4 1997 there was a big push" and "push" is underlined.
A. Yes.
Q. That also signifies a push to make numbers?
A. Yes.
Q. And "numbers" means financial targets?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall how long after the interview with Mr. Yales you prepared this memorandum?

A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know who else was present at that interview, if anyone?
A. I believe Mr. Bornstein was present, and there was always an attorney that was present, too, usually one of the attorneys from Skadden Arms was also there as well.
Q. If you turn to the second page, the first line of text provides "Profit Assurance Plan"?
A. Yes. And incidentally where you are reading, "Profit Assurances," says, "LAB showed the schedule to Skadden." That means Mr. Bornstein.
Q. That's what I was going to ask you. Thank you. The second bullet point under the heading provides, "This is common at all companies but not to the extent that Sunbeam does it."
A. Uh-huh.
Q. What are you referring to there?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. You mean, what was the witness referring to? What was Yales referring to?
MR. JOHNSON: That's exactly right.
MR. MOSCATO: If you remember.
MS. BROWN: I still object.
THE WITNESS: My recollection of this was that the company had a schedule that said, you know, "These are kind of the goals in a number of areas that we need to achieve in order to make our earnings goals for the year," and Sunbeam had one of those that upper management used to manage the business as well, and I think he was saying, the way I read it now, was that this was common at most companies but, you know, that Sunbeam was fairly aggressive in applying these goals.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. The next bullet point, "Everyone had their," quote, "go gets." Do you know what Mr. Yales is referring to with "go gets"?
A. Everybody had targets that they were responsible for achieving.
Q. And why did you determine that that information from Mr. Yales was something that ought to be noted in the interview memorandum?
A. You know, as the interview progressed, I pretty much noted everything he said so I don't think I weeded stuff out. I think this was everything that was discussed.
Q. So it was Mr. Yales who determined who said that Sunbeam did it -- had profit sharing plans to a greater extent than other companies?
A. Yes, that was his statement, yes, sir.
MS. BROWN: Objection for the record.
MR. MOSCATO: Was there confusion about that in any of the prior things? My understanding is all of this is Yales.

MR. JOHNSON: I agree. I don't think there was confusion.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you attribute any significance to Mr. Yales' remark about the extent to which Sunbeam has profit sharing plans?
A. I don't recall if I did or I didn't. I just made a note of it.
Q. On that same page, there's a sentence that says, "Certain schedules were not to be shown to anybody." What schedules is Mr. Yales referring to there?
A. I mean, I really don't know. I know that Mr. Bornstein, as I summarized here, showed him some schedules. I don't know if he was referring specifically to those schedules or if there were other internal management reports that they had been instructed not to share with people outside the company.
Q. And did Mr. Yales indicate who was instructing him not to share those schedules with people outside the company?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall at this point. I didn't include it in the memo.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. The bullet that provides, "Scott was not the keeper of such schedules," do you have any idea who the keeper was at that time?
A. I don't know. I know that Scott reported to a couple of women at the company, Deb McDonald, and I don't remember their title exactly. And Deb's predecessor was this woman, Lisa Dalberth. I don't know if they were the keeper but that's who he reported to.
Q. If you look at the next bullet point, it provides, "Lisa was the keeper at that time"?
A. Oh, okay.
Q. That's Lisa Dalberth?
A. I stopped at the first.
Q. I asked -- focused you on one bit of --
A. Sorry about that. Yes, that refers to Lisa Dalberth.
Q. And at that time is that in the first quarter or is that as of September of 1998?
A. This would have been prior to September of 1998. I never really knew who Lisa was. I don't remember ever meeting her. I do remember her successor Deb, but this Lisa Dalberth, I never met her. She left the company sometime prior. I don't know if it was in 1997 or in 1998. But by September of 1998, I don't think Ms. Dalberth was there.

Q. The third bullet point refers to a schedule that Mr. Bornstein showed to Mr. Yales during this interview; do you see that?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Do you know where Mr. Bornstein received that schedule?
A. I don't know. I mean, Mr. Bornstein spent, I don't know, several days or longer going through a series of documents that had been gathered from the company and I know he found a number of schedules in that process of going through those documents.
Q. So you don't know when Mr. Bornstein first received a copy of that schedule?
A. I don't.
Q. The last bullet point under that heading provides, "Bob was aware of all this push." Is that Bob Gluck?
A. Yes.
Q. And the "push" again is a push to make numbers?
A. Right.
Q. Under the heading "Troublesome Items," there's a bullet that provides, "Sales waterfall items," what does that refer to?
A. Those are deductions from gross revenue to arrive at the net revenue and those would have been -- I'd need to look at a paper to tell you exactly but, for example, cooperative advertising, discounts that are being paid to the client or an allowance for returns or something. Items that are deducted from the gross amount of revenues.
Q. You also provide under that section that "Lower returns is a troublesome item." Why is that troubling?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I think properly -- probably better stated would have been "returns," so achieving a lower returns is what they are trying to do.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Now, did Mr. Yales identify these items as troubling or are these items that you determined to be troubling?
A. No, all this came from Mr. Yales.
Q. So Mr. Yales indicated that lower returns were a troubling item?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I think Mr. Yales indicated that these were some of the areas of this plan that we were talking about that seemed to make it challenging to achieve the plan or these were some of the more challenging components of that plan.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. If you flip over to Page 3 of that exhibit which has the Bates stamp CPH 62695, under the heading "Gross Sales," if you would read Number 3 for me.

A. "Sales were being pulled forward" --
MR. MOSCATO: Wait, wait. You want him to read it out loud?
MR. JOHNSON: Either way.
THE WITNESS: I beg your pardon. I'm sorry.
MR. MOSCATO: Read it to yourself.
THE WITNESS: Yes, thanks. Okay.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Mr. Yales indicated to you that Sunbeam was pulling forward sales. Is that what this sentence indicates?
A. Correct.
Q. Mr. Yales stated that "The VPs and GMs were uncomfortable with the sales targets"?
MS. BROWN: Object.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you know how many VPs and GMs Mr. Yales was referring to there?
A. No, I don't.
Q. In that same numbered paragraph there's a reference to -- and it's italicized, "the untenability" of that. What is the untenability referring to?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

11367

A. Honestly, I don't know right now.
Q. Was that a phrase or a word that Mr. Yales used?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. The same numbered paragraph, "As an example, pulling Q1, Q2 '98 sales into Q4," is that Q4 of 1997?
A. Yes.
MS. BROWN: Just for the record, I object to this entire line of questioning as Mr. Yales has already been deposed himself.
MR. MOSCATO: He has been deposed in this case?
MS. BROWN: Yes.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Number 6 under that heading provides, "Everyone knew that in practice the no-returns policy was," quote, "total BS" and "total BS," that's Mr. Yales' phrase for the no-returns policy?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you have an understanding of why Mr. Yales stated that the no-returns policy was total BS?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I don't know what his frame of mind was.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Number 5 provides, "Scott was aware of a," underlined, "stated no-returns policy." Why did you underline "stated" in this memo?

MR. MOSCATO: If you remember.
THE WITNESS: I don't remember. I think what I'm saying in the memo or what Mr. Yales is saying that there was a no-return policy that was communicated within the organization. In other interviews that came out, someone had said that similar policies had been tried in the past without success so it seems like he doubted whether it would stick.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. In other words, that Sunbeam was not following the stated policy?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
THE WITNESS: I don't think that's what this means. I think what this means is that the policy was being followed. I think there was question as to how long it would continue to be followed for.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. So the reference to the no-returns policy as being total BS was a matter of how long the policy could remain in force?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I mean, I understood it to mean that they didn't think that could apply permanently.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. In the middle of this page there's a text box that provides in quotes, "It was known among planning group that restructuring reserves were being used to benefit our earnings." Who's the planning group that Mr. Yales referred to there?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Yes. I mean, I think this is just a group that he was a part of. He worked for Deb McDonald and Lisa Dalberth and whoever else was in that department that they oversaw.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. The last line on this page provides, "By early February, it was apparent that Sunbeam would not make Q1 numbers." That's the Q1 '98 numbers?
A. Correct.
Q. And then on the next page of this memorandum, CPH 62696, Number 6 on that page refers -- states, "The schedule was 'absolutely' a reach." Do you know what schedule Mr. Yales was referring to there?
MR. MOSCATO: You're looking at Number 6?
MR. JOHNSON: Yes.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall Number 5 refers to a schedule for the first quarter forecast. I would imagine it's that schedule that's being referred to.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do you know approximately how many people worked in Scott Yales' department at Sunbeam?
A. I don't remember.
Q. And then the last numbered paragraph on this page under the heading "First and Second Quarter 1998," if you would just read that to yourself.
A. (Reading)
Q. The text J/E; is that journal entries?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what journal entries were made for profit protection?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't know.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do you know what this is referring to, this paragraph?
A. I mean, it sounds like he's saying that some entries were recorded to improve the profits of the company, but it's just a summary of what he said. I don't know specifically why entries are being referred to.
Q. Do you know the magnitude of the entries?
A. I don't, no.
Q. Do you know who determined to reverse those

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

entries in March of 1998?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: No.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do you know when in March of 1998 Sunbeam determined that it would not make the numbers for Q1?
A. I don't know that either.
Q. You interviewed Mr. Kaiser as well; is that correct?
A. Yes.
MR. JOHNSON: Let's mark this as CPH 102.
Q. Mr. Pastrana, could you identify Exhibit 102 for the record?
A. This is a memorandum I prepared of a July 21st interview with Kyle Kaiser.
Q. And Kyle Kaiser was a Sunbeam employee?
A. Yes, he was the director of customer services.
Q. Was he in Delray Beach?
A. No, he worked in Hattisburg, Mississippi.
Q. If you flip to the third page of this Bates stamp, CPH 62690, there's a section called bill and hold. Can you tell us what bill and hold refers to?
A. Bill and hold in an accounting transaction refers to a revenue transaction where the seller records a sale and bills the customer but the goods haven't been physically shipped to the customers -- directly to the customer's location.

Q. They're shipped to a warehouse or third party?
A. Could be to a warehouse, third party. Could be segregated within the seller's own warehouse for that customer.
Q. There's a sentence under the section that states, "Gluck was being forced. Was not a proponent of it." Did Mr. Kaiser indicate who was forcing Gluck to presumably do bill and hold sales?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall if it's not here. I don't remember.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. And just above that it states, "Decision to do bill and hold was executed abruptly at the end of fourth quarter, 1997." Did you know that Sunbeam was engaging in bill and hold sales at the end of the fourth quarter, 1997?
A. We did.
Q. There's a reference to "Lack of procedures here." Do you know what that refers to?
A. Yes, I believe that prior to the fourth quarter of 1997 the company had not done bill and hold sale transactions before and did not have formal procedures in place for how to handle that type of transaction.

Q. Did you ever gain an understanding as to why the company determined to begin engaging in bill and hold sales at that time?
A. I did get an understanding or at least I thought I understood what the reason for it was.
Q. And what were those reasons?
A. The way I understood it --
MR. MOSCATO: Go ahead. I'm just making myself comfortable because it's probably going to be a long explanation but go ahead.
THE WITNESS: Want me to keep it short?
MR. JOHNSON: Answer the question.
THE WITNESS: My understanding of it was that in the 1997 season for selling grills, the company missed an opportunity to fill more customer orders because there were certain limitations in terms of the capacity of grills that its plant could produce, so the idea for the 1998 selling season was to start producing the grills earlier, start selling the grills earlier, and hopefully that way have time to produce ultimately a higher number -- larger number of grills and sell more grills.
And then what happened was at the time that the company was ready to start selling its grills, that it produced enough grills that the customers didn't have available space at that time for the grills, so the decision was made that the customers would take the inventory -- would go ahead and purchase the inventory but that it would be placed in a warehouse until the customers were ready to take delivery.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Is the early-buy program at Sunbeam the same as bill and hold?
A. I understood the two to be related but not necessarily the same thing.
Q. So early buy, a customer could, in fact, take possession of the product?
A. Yes.
Q. And bill and hold was not limited to grills, was it?
A. As far as I knew at that time, it was limited to grills. As far as I knew at that time. I think I learned subsequently, maybe when we were doing the restatement work, that it might have been applied on a limited basis to other types of goods.
Q. Let's flip to the next page of Exhibit 102 for me. That's got the Bates stamp CPH 62691. There's a heading, "Pressure to Make Sales Numbers at End of Q1 98"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. One of the provisions of that heading states,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01379

"They (top management) were planning to close the company. Anyone hired after October of 1996 were told this is an 18-month deal and when we sell, you will be fully vested." What is Mr. Kaiser referring to there?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: I think he's referring to a knowledge that he had, that the intention of senior management was to eventually sell the company.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. "This is an 18-month deal," does that refer to how long the business model needed to be sustained?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I understood it to mean that, you know, after kind of Dunlap and the people he brought in got involved that the goal was to restructure the company and sell it within 18 months.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. When did you first hear that Sunbeam might be sold?

A. I don't recall.

Q. I think you indicated you began working in earnest around October of '97?

A. Yes.

Q. Was the information that Sunbeam might be sold known to you at that time?

A. Not that I can remember.

Q. The next provision under that heading states, "Kyle: 'Nobody would put up with his bull if not for the options.'" Do you have any idea what Mr. Kaiser was referring to there?

A. I think he meant that he was under a lot of pressure to do whatever his role was.

Q. And what are the options referred to there?

A. Employee stock options.

Q. If you would flip over to -- I'm sorry. That's all I have on this exhibit.

And Mr. Bloomfield is also one of the employees that you interviewed at Sunbeam during the initial proceedings?

A. Yes.

MR. JOHNSON: Let's mark this Exhibit 103.

Q. Mr. Pastrana, can you identify Exhibit 103 for the record?

A. This is a memorandum I prepared of an interview with Bill Bloomfield.

Q. And you interviewed Mr. Bloomfield the same day you interviewed Mr. Kaiser?

A. Yes.

Q. I take it, then, Mr. Bloomfield is in Mississippi as well?

A. I think we interviewed Mr. Bloomfield in Mississippi. I'm not sure he was actually based in Mississippi but I don't recall.

Q. Were all of your interviews for the additional procedures conducted in person?

A. No, one or two of them might have been telephonic.

Q. Do you remember which ones might have been telephonic?

A. I know that the interview was an interview of Lisa Dalberth that was telephonic. I don't remember which other ones were.

MR. MOSCATO: If it was telephonic, would you have said it was telephonic in the interview memo?

THE WITNESS: You know, I think I did in the Lisa Dalberth memo. I can't say I necessarily would have done that. I should have but I don't know that I did.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Turn to the second page of this exhibit, CPH 103, the fourth line down, fourth text section down states, "Don Uzzi's philosophy - load the pipeline and we'll deal with the customers later." What is Mr. Bloomfield referring to there?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: Just in the context in reading it now, I mean, I understand it to mean that they were taking sales that -- orders that might have been first quarter sales and pulling them forward and perhaps shipping them to customers in advance of the customers' desired date for the merchandise. And I think what this statement is referring to is the fact that these employees were given instructions to just go ahead and ship that merchandise and then they will deal with the customer complaints on -- you know, when the merchandise comes back or when the customers complain.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. So the pipeline is the shipping --

A. The distribution channel, distribution of goods.

Q. So is load the pipeline, is that the same thing as stuffing the channel?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: I think --

MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, I'm a little confused. Are you asking him whether it's the same in his mind, whether it's the same in Mr. Bloomfield's mind? I'm not trying to be a pain. It's getting a little fuzzy as to what you're asking.

MR. JOHNSON: That's a fair statement.

Q. Did you understand Mr. Bloomfield to be indicating that Sunbeam was stuffing the channel?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

017370

THE WITNESS: I'm not sure that I necessarily correlated this with stuffing the channel. I mean, I think -- I suppose you could interpret those to mean similar things. I really don't know.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. But you did understand Mr. Bloomfield to be indicating that Sunbeam was shipping product in the fourth quarter despite the customers hadn't ordered the product?
A. Correct. Or at least if customers had ordered the product in advance of the targeted delivery date, that the customer had specified.
Q. About two thirds of the way down the page there's a provision that provides, quote, "Each quarter it went deeper. Everyone was telling our operating committee this has to stop. Lee Griffith said this can't go on." What was Mr. Bloomfield referring to there?
A. I believe this was just the pressure to increase sales at the end of each quarter and in particular to -- you know, to make deliveries in advance of the dates that customers requested. That's what I understood it to mean. So they did some on the fourth quarter and then they had to go a little bit more into the first quarter of '98 and, you know, kind of progressed.
Q. And you understood Mr. Bloomfield to be indicating that the purpose of shipping prior to a customer's desire ship date was to recognize revenue earlier than what Sunbeam otherwise would be able to do?

MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: It was to recognize revenue on product that otherwise would have been revenue on the subsequent quarter, would have been delivered in a subsequent quarter.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. So it's accelerating recognition of revenue?
A. Yes.
Q. And the last line on this page indicates, "Every quarter there was a significant push to pull forward sales." That's a reference to accelerating the recognition of income?
A. That's right.
Q. If you would be good enough to flip to the second to the last page of Exhibit 103, CPH 62676, under the heading "The Neosha bill and hold"; do you see that?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. About two thirds of the way down that section there's a sentence that provides, "Gluck said AA Partners had a problem with B&H and the SEC wasn't going to like it"; do you see that sentence?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that consistent with your understanding of Andersen's reaction to bill and hold?

MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: You know, I don't recall. I can remember, when we first learned of the bill and hold, there was concern about it because it's an unusual type of revenue arrangement. I don't recall ever necessarily hearing we had a problem with it provided they had the appropriate documentation to support the transaction.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you ever hear from anyone whether the SEC wasn't going to like Sunbeam's bill and hold practices?
MR. MOSCATO: You mean, this is back when they first found out about it? Is this what you are talking about?
MR. JOHNSON: Right.
MR. MOSCATO: So back in -- you know, when you are doing the year-end audit, use that as the time frame for his question, if that helps.
THE WITNESS: I don't remember anybody -- could you repeat the question just to make sure?
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. And let me put a time frame just so we are all clear as to when you heard this. When Andersen first learned that Sunbeam was engaging in bill and hold sales, did you have any conversations with anyone to the effect that the SEC would be disappointed or troubled in any way about those sales?

A. No, not at that time.
Q. Flip to the next page which is the last page of that memo. At the top it provides, "As early as September 1997 the sales org knew that the stores were stuffed with product, e.g., Wal-Mart had 42 weeks of product. Talked to Chuck Myers." To your knowledge, did anyone at Andersen talk to Chuck Myers about this issue?
A. I didn't. I don't know if anyone did.
Q. Do you know why Mr. Bloomfield is conveying this information to you?
A. I think just in response to our questions, he was giving us his impressions of what he knew.
Q. Do you know how many people were in the sales org that Mr. Bloomfield is referring to there?
A. I don't know.
Q. By the way, did Mr. Bloomfield ever indicate to you that anyone from Morgan Stanley had ever attempted to contact him?
A. No.
Q. How about Mr. Kaiser, did Mr. Kaiser ever tell you that Morgan Stanley attempted to contact him at any point?
A. No.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Same question for Mr. Yales, did Mr. Yales ever tell that you Morgan Stanley had attempted to contact him at any point?
A. No.
Q. Did you interview Jim Job?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that Jim Job or Job?
A. Job.
Q. A difficult name, I'm sure.
MR. JOHNSON: Let's mark the Job interview as CPH 104.
Q. Mr. Pastrana, will you identify CPH 104 for the record?
A. This is a memorandum I prepared summarizing an interview with Jim Job on July 20 of 1998.
Q. And the interview -- the memo is dated August 30, 1998?
A. That's right.
Q. Did you keep your notes from any of these interviews, by the way?
A. No, I did not.
Q. The last bit of text on this memo, which is the second page, is in quotes and it states, "I guess they didn't want to receive the goods because they wanted to make the first quarter look as good as possible." What is

Mr. Job referring to there?
A. I think he's talking about the fact that they were turning away -- his impressions about the company turning away customer merchandise returns at the return locations.
Q. So customer sent goods back on the first quarter of 1998 but the company wouldn't accept them; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you have any understanding as to why the company wanted to make the first quarter look as good as possible?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
THE WITNESS: Other than trying to achieve guidance that they had given, the market, I didn't know.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do I understand that when unauthorized returns were delivered to Mississippi, they sat in trucks until some point and time?
A. That was my understanding.
Q. And Sunbeam paid the charges associated with having the trailers stored?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: That was my understanding obtained as part of these interviews that I did.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do you know what volume of returns Mr. Job was talking about?
A. I don't know.
Q. Toward the bottom of the first page he refers to 75 to 100 trucks. Do you have any idea what volume of sales would be contained within 75 to 100 trucks?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I have no idea.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Would it be several million dollars?
MR. MOSCATO: I object. Doesn't it kind of depend what's in the trucks?
MR. JOHNSON: Within reason, sure.
THE WITNESS: Without knowing how full the trucks are, what the nature of the merchandise that's in there, and even at this point I wouldn't know what the value of the truck is of any kind of merchandise.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you find this information concerning returns significant?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I mean, the information gleamed in this particular interview, I don't remember this being a very helpful interview, but in general the information that there were -- you know, learned subsequently that there were trucks filled with merchandise that customers were attempting to return, that the company was not accepting, yes, I mean, that was certainly noteworthy from our standpoint.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did Mr. Job ever indicate in any way that Morgan Stanley had attempted to contact him?
A. No.
Q. You interviewed Mr. Jeffcoat as well?
A. Yes.
MR. JOHNSON: Exhibit 105.
Q. Exhibit 105, Mr. Pastrana, appears to consist of two memoranda.
A. Yes.
Q. One you authored and one Mr. Harlow authored?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Why is it that there are two memoranda?
A. I don't know. I was not aware of the one authored by Mr. Harlow or, if I was aware of it, I don't remember being aware of it.
Q. Can you tell where these memoranda concern the same interview?
A. Yes, I think it's the same interview.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01737

Q. Did Mr. Jeffcoat ever tell you that Morgan Stanley had attempted to contact him?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Jeffcoat refers, according to this memorandum, to the pulling forward of sales?
A. Where is that?
Q. For example, on Page 1 at 9/97?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. "Was aware that orders were pulled forward"?
A. Yes.
Q. What is the "pull forward of sales" referred to there?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: This is again accelerating delivery dates on orders that had been placed by customers. Instead of delivering them in the fourth quarter of '97, deliver the order in the third quarter of '97.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Now, I believe you told me already but I don't have a good note on this, what particular aspects of Sunbeam's finances were you focused on in connection with the 1997 audit?
A. Say that again.
MR. MOSCATO: He didn't answer that.
///

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Were there any particular aspects of Sunbeam's financial statements that you focused on in connection with the 1997 audit?
MR. MOSCATO: The original audit.
THE WITNESS: Yeah. You know, without going back, it's hard to give you a complete list. I did work in a number of different areas. I may not have done all the work in a given area that I would name but, for example, accounts receivable, I did some of the work related to accounts receivable. I did some work related to inventory. I can't remember doing too much related to inventory. Some of the accrued liabilities like the accrual for returns and warranty, cooperative advertising, credits due to customers, the overall analytical review.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Now, you say accounts receivable, did that include examination of bill and hold practices?
A. Examination of some of the documents related to the bill and hold transactions, yes.
Q. And are you familiar with the EPI transaction?
A. I am. It's been a while since I've looked at information, but I do recall the EPI transaction.
Q. And you looked at that in connection with the 1997 audit?

A. I think so. I'd have to look at some documents.
Q. Let me give you one that might help you.
MR. JOHNSON: This will be CPH 106.
Q. Mr. Pastrana, could you identify Exhibit CPH 106 for us?
A. This is a memo I authored entitled "Review of significant sales transactions near year end."
Q. And this is one of the documents that you reviewed this past weekend?
A. No.
Q. Take a minute to review it, if you would please.
A. (Reading) Okay.
Q. The subject line of this memorandum states, "Review of significant sales transactions near year end." Why were you looking at transactions near year end?
A. I mean, it's a standard audit procedure that you perform to look for any kind of unusual large transactions that might take place near the end of a period to search for cutoff issues, issues of sales occurring in one period that maybe should have been sales of subsequent period.
Q. And there are three categories of transactions listed in this memorandum; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. To whom was this memorandum circulated, Exhibit 106?

A. This memorandum was placed in the audit files, the work papers that would have been review by Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Harlow. Let me say, at minimum it would have been reviewed by Mr. Bornstein. It's possible Mr. Harlow might have reviewed it.
Q. The memorandum indicates that Andersen proposed an adjustment with respect to the EPI transactions; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Sunbeam accept that adjustment?
A. I think the way I recall it, they decided not to record the adjustment. They waived the adjustment.
Q. And the adjustment was for three million dollars; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And with respect to the Encore, Andersen proposed an adjustment on that transaction as well?
A. Correct.
Q. And Sunbeam waived that proposed adjustment?
A. Correct.
Q. To your knowledge, did anyone from Morgan Stanley ever ask anyone at Andersen about any waived or past adjustments?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Does Sunbeam have access to your work papers

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

during the normal course of an audit?
A. No.
Q. In the first section of this memorandum concerning bill and hold sales, you distinguish, it appears, between early buy sales and bill and hold sales?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Can you tell us again what the distinction between those two type of sales may be?
A. Well, early buy is a program -- you know, could be different at different companies. I mean, at Sunbeam, the way I understand it, was a program to encourage customers to purchase their grills early in the season where Sunbeam would offer the company perhaps an incentive in the form of a discount and also allow them to have extended credit terms, so instead of paying in 30 days, maybe pay in 90 days. Something like that.
The bill on hold was a different arrangement although the two may have happened often in the same transaction, but bill and hold was different where the customer wanted to take advantage of the early-buy program but perhaps didn't have the warehousing space, and then the parties reached agreement to go ahead and sell/purchase the goods on a bill and hold basis.
Q. The first paragraph under the bill and hold states, "Pursuant to SEC regulations, said sales are permissible only under a handful of criteria." The last of those listed in the memorandum is that the buyer has a business reason placing the order well in advance of his needs. Would to obtain a price discount be a legitimate business reason for placing --

A. I believe that was the research and the conclusion we reached at the time. I think that's right.
Q. Were you involved in the confirmation process with respect to the bill and hold sales?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any in-person or telephonic conversations with any customers relating to the bill and hold sales?
A. I did not.
Q. Do you know whether anyone at Andersen did have those calls?
A. I am aware that Mr. Harlow had some discussions with some of the customers.
Q. Your involvement consisted of mailing confirmation requests?
A. Correct.
MR. MOSCATO: Was the question that his only involvement was mailing or was that among his activities?
MR. JOHNSON: The question wasn't specific. Thank you.

Q. Did you have any other duties with respect to confirming the bill and hold sales?
A. Well, I mean, we mailed out the letters, followed up pretty much on a daily basis to see if we had gotten the letters back. I reconciled the responses that came back in those letters to the company's accounting records. I think I prepared a summary of the results of the confirmation requests. And I might have also done some research to determine exactly what conditions needed to be satisfied and needed to be confirmed with the third parties in order to have a valid bill and hold sale.
Q. I believe you stated earlier that bill and hold sales were unusual in your experience?
A. Well, I had never had experience with them before and I knew it wasn't a common sales practice.
Q. Did that, the fact that Sunbeam was engaging in bill and hold sales, cause Andersen to bring a heightened skepticism to its auto work?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. How about the EPI transaction, did that raise any eyebrows, so to speak, at Andersen?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection. You don't have to adopt his terminology, Dennis, to answer that question.
THE WITNESS: I mean, I think it certainly prompted a response. I mean, The EPI arrangement was a little bit, again, unusual, involved entering into a contract with this company, EPI. We reviewed the contract and then I know that Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Harlow had specific discussions with members of senior management about that transaction and the existence of any other transactions that might have similar characteristics. That's what I know about it.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. With respect to these proposed adjustments, are you aware of any conversations between Andersen personnel and Sunbeam personnel with respect to whether these adjustments should be made?
A. I didn't participate in any of those discussions. I know that those discussions were had because we summarized our adjustments on a list and then proposed them to senior management.
Q. Do you know who was involved in those discussions?
A. I don't know. It would be either Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow or both.
Q. How about on the Sunbeam side?
A. You know, again I don't know. I mean, at minimum it may have been communicated to Mr. Kersh and I would think Al Dunlap as well.
Q. Was there anything about the management style or culture at Sunbeam that caused Andersen to bring a heightened skepticism to the audit?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: You know, in the role that I was in and what I was doing, my role at the job at the time, I don't remember anything out of the ordinary in the conduct of the 1997 audit.

You know, I knew that the company had undertaken a fairly aggressive restructuring plan and just by "aggressive," I mean involving a substantial amount of change in terms of closing locations, selling of furniture division, reducing employees and things of that sort that I knew certainly impacted the way we designed our audit but to say that it resulted in heightened skepticism or anything of that sort, I think it impacted the way we designed our audit plan.

MR. MOSCATO: Dennis, if there comes a time you want a break, just say so.

MR. JOHNSON: The same goes for you, Mike.

MR. MOSCATO: I know that. I can speak for myself. I'm comfortable. I just want to make sure Dennis is comfortable.

MR. JOHNSON: Actually a few more minutes on this topic and I will propose one myself.

Q. During the course of any of your audits -- excuse me. During the course of the your 1997 audit, did you ever receive any information from Sunbeam employees as to Chainsaw Al's management tactics?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: No.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Did you hear during the 1997 audit that it was a very high pressure environment?

A. There were certainly indications that there was considerable amount of pressure but, you know, honestly, my experience with other companies, there was also pressure to meet earnings, to achieve goals every year and things of this sort so probably at my level of experience, I wouldn't have thought that was necessarily unusual or strange.

Q. Did you ever get the sense that anyone at Sunbeam was uncomfortable speaking with you during the 1997 audit?

A. No.

Q. So, as far as you knew, during that audit employees were available to speak with you and were candid in giving you information?

MR. MOSCATO: I object. I mean, you're asking him what he was thinking at the time of the audit, right?

MR. JOHNSON: Correct.

Q. As far as you knew --

MR. MOSCATO: You have to put yourself back to the time frame that you were conducting the audit and answer accordingly.

THE WITNESS: At the time I was conducting the audit, I don't remember ever having a problem meeting with someone I wanted to meet with. I wouldn't go knock on Al Dunlap's door to ask him a question about something, but the people were available.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Were you aware during the 1997 audit of the company's financial forecast?

A. You know, in our audit and our work papers we probably have a forecast or a budget for the following year which we would typically look at. I don't recall being aware, at the time that I was actually conducting the audit, of what that budgeted forecast was.

Q. So you didn't have a sense of whether it was a very aggressive forecast or not?

A. For the following year, no. I just didn't have that sense.

Q. Auditors look retrospectively; is that correct?

A. Yes, we are kind of stuck in the past.

Q. In connection with the '97 audit, did you become aware at any point during that audit that there was a possibility of Sunbeam being sold to another company?

A. What was the time frame again?

Q. At any point during the 1997 audit.

A. You've actually asked me that question before and I said no. I think there was some discussion late in the year. Maybe in December I heard some employees saying something to the effect that management was trying to sell the company, but I can't really state what the timing was of when I learned that idea.

Q. Would that cause you to bring any type of heightened skepticism to the audit?

A. I don't think so. I mean, I think that our plan was based on our understanding of the company and what had transpired in 1997. I'm not sure that -- and I think it was responsive to what we identified as being the audit risk irrespective of what the plan was to sell the company or not. I don't think so.

Q. One more question on this Exhibit 106. What is the scope of the adjustment that was proposed on the Encore transaction?

A. When you say what is the scope --

Q. I guess the accountant's way of putting it I think is what would be the net effect of that adjustment?

A. It seems it would be $500,000.

MR. JOHNSON: Do you want to take a short break or do you want to keep going?

MR. MOSCATO: Sure.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

THE WITNESS: Whatever you guys want.
MR. MOSCATO: Let's take a break.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going off the video record. The time is 10:37.
(Recess noted: 10:37 a.m. to 10:49 a.m.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the record. The time is 10:49.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Mr. Pastrana, during the first quarter of 1998 did you review any of Sunbeam's interim sale results for the first quarter of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. How is it that you came to do that?
A. Sometime in the first quarter of 1998 the company decided to purchase several companies of which I think Coleman was the most significant, and in order to finance that purchase they were going to be issuing some debt that was going to -- and the document to sell the debt was going to include the financial statements, that Arthur Andersen had authored it. So, as a matter of policy or practice, we performed what's called a post-audit review where we reviewed the results of the company subsequent to the date of the audited financial statements and it was in connection with that process.
Q. Did anyone in particular at Arthur Andersen direct you to begin those post audit procedures?

A. Sure, it would have been Larry Bornstein.
Q. Do you recall approximately when he asked you to start that work?
A. I really don't remember what the time frame was. It would have been February, March, something like that.
Q. How did you go about getting the financial information that you needed to conduct those post-audit procedures?
A. We put together a list usually of the things we need and give it to someone at the company.
Q. And who was your contact person at Sunbeam in connection with those procedures?
A. It would have been either Bob Gluck or Don Jackson.
Q. And one of the things you asked for is sales, current sales figures?
A. Right.
MS. BROWN: Object.
THE WITNESS: Yes, revenue. One of the things we would have asked for, if I can back up, would have been the income statement for January and February which would have contained sales and we have may have requested more information with regard to sales.
///

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did Sunbeam provide that information to you?
A. Yes.
MR. JOHNSON: Let's mark this as Exhibit 107, I guess it is.
Q. Mr. Pastrana, giving you a document which has been marked as CPH 107, Bates stamp 0013023 through 027, can you identify that document for the record?
A. This is the schedule which shows comparative income statements for Sunbeam comparing the period 1998 to the period 1997 and contains some notation of explanation of reasons for changes from one period to the other in certain amounts, certain line items.
Q. And on the first page of the exhibit on the upper right corner there's a notation "DP 3/98." Does that refer to you, Dennis Pastrana?
A. Yes.
Q. Are those your handwritten notes on the second page of the exhibit?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you recall more specifically whether it was Mr. Jackson or Mr. Gluck who provided you this detailed income statement?
A. I can't tell from here. I can't remember.
Q. And can you tell from this document when it was provided to you?

A. It looks like I got it on or about March 5th of '98. I think it says '97 but it should say '98.
Q. You are looking at the first page of the exhibit?
A. I'm looking at the first page. I'm just guessing that that's -- it says R35. Should be '98 again so I assume that's approximately the date it was done.
Q. R means received?
A. R typically stands for review. This wasn't really a review but the post-report review that we were doing in early March.
Q. And this detailed income statement provides that for January of '97 as compared for January of '98, sales were down 43 -- approximately $44 million, am I reading this correctly?
A. Yes.
Q. And for the period January 1998, Sunbeam was showing an operating loss of over $11 million; is that right?
A. Correct. Well, at the operating profit line, I think is where you are looking.
Q. Right.
A. Correct.
Q. And the net loss for the period January 1998 was nine and half million dollars approximately?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Correct.
Q. Did you share this income statement with anyone at Andersen?
A. Well, I placed it in the work papers and it was reviewed.
Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone at Andersen about these figures?
A. I may have. I don't remember right now the specifics of any discussions.
Q. Your handwritten notes, Note A -- I think I can read your writing, but if you could read it for the record, that would be great.
A. "Decrease mainly due to impact of fourth quarter early buy grill sales of approximately 50 million. In prior year, these sales occurred in the first quarter."
Q. And Note A on the Income Statement appears on the gross trade sales line; is that correct?
A. Right.
Q. And so that's an explanation as to why gross sales were less than half in January of '98 than what they were in 1997?
A. Right.
Q. Who provided that explanation to you?
A. Again, I don't know. I think it would have been Mr. Gluck. I'm not certain.

Q. Did he have any reaction to that sales information provided?
A. No, I think it made sense.
Q. The numbers made sense or the explanation made sense?
A. The explanation made sense.
Q. So but for the early-buy program, these sales -- these $50 million in sales would have been first quarter sales?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Is that your understanding?
MR. MOSCATO: Your testimony is that's what was told to you by someone at Sunbeam, right?
THE WITNESS: Correct.
MR. MOSCATO: I don't think this witness has an understanding one way or the other as to what would have happened in that situation.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. So someone at Sunbeam indicated to you that the sales decline was as a result of the early-buy program?
A. Correct. I guess I would say it differently.
Q. How would you say it?
A. The way the early-buy program was done in 1990 -- say 1997/1998 period -- I mean, early buy I think existed in the previous year. Customers, say, the first quarter of '97 purchased grills and had extended terms and had whatever. I mean, it's still early in the grill season. Not too many people buy grills in January, but I think it started a little bit earlier for the 97/98 year, and so that first wave of sales that took place in the first quarter of '97, the customers were not ready to replace that yet. That's the way I understood it.

Q. And you understood it that 50 million in sales occurred in the fourth quarter of '97 that otherwise would have occurred in the first quarter of '98?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Yes. I mean, my understanding was that those orders, correct, that were shipped in the fourth quarter of '97, had the program not been structured that way, I assume that that's right, they would have been 1998 sales.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Your Note C provides -- maybe you ought to read it again. I think I can read it but I'm not sure.
A. Do you want me to read it?
Q. Yes.
A. Oh, I'm sorry. "Decrease due to lower January grill margins. Standard grill margins are approximately 21 percent."

Q. Do I read this income statement correctly that January '98, margins on all goods were 5.7 percent?
A. Correct.
Q. Did you get any updated sales information from Sunbeam for the first quarter of 1998 interim periods?
A. Yes, I think we carried this forward at some point and actually got sales information through February.
MR. JOHNSON: This will be Exhibit CPH 108.
Q. Mr. Pastrana, I've given a document we marked CPH 108, Bates stamp CPH 1056006 through 6010. Could you identify that for us?
A. This is similar to the last exhibit we looked at except this is a comparative income statement comparing the year-to-date period ending February of 1998 to the same year-to-date period of the prior year.
Q. So this is the first two thirds of the first quarter of 1998?
A. Right.
Q. And this shows that sales for 1998 year-to-date were almost 71 million less than sales for the same period in 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. And that as of March 1, Sunbeam was showing a net loss of approximately $15 million; is that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. That's correct.
Q. And that compared with a profit for the comparable period of 1997 of almost $10 million; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Who provided this Profit and Loss Statement contained in Exhibit 108 to you?
A. Again, somebody at the company. Most likely Mr. Gluck or Mr. Jackson.
Q. Did you have any conversations with them concerning the information contained in the Profit and Loss Statement?
A. I probably would have directed some questions at them concerning some of the changes.
Q. And that would --
A. At them as well as others.
Q. And that would have been the basis of your notes that's contained in this exhibit?
A. Yes.
Q. We'll look at those in one second. Did you have any reaction to Sunbeam's results for this period?
A. Well, it seem that they weren't doing as well as they had hoped to or anticipated in terms of revenues and profits.
Q. Do you know what Sunbeam had forecast for its first quarter 1998 as a result?

A. I don't know right now.
Q. Do you know whether they forecast to do --
A. I'm sorry, for what period, did you say?
Q. For the first quarter of 1998, were you aware of what Sunbeam's forecasted goals were?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Let me say I'm aware right now from some of the documents I reviewed over the weekend. I don't remember at that time exactly if I was aware of what they were projecting for the first quarter.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you at least have a general sense that they anticipated doing at least as well as the prior year?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I did following reading a press release which I can't remember if and when I read at that time, so I may have looked at the press release yesterday. I'm aware of it now.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at Arthur Andersen concerning the information contained in the Profit and Loss Statement contained in Exhibit 108?
A. I don't recall any specific conversations. Mr. Bornstein and I worked pretty close on the accounts so we probably nad discussions about it.

Q. And this would have been placed in the work papers as well?
A. Yes, this was placed in the work papers and he reviewed it.
Q. The first page, upper right again, bears your initials BP?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Just above that the initials PBC, it appears to be. What does that refer to?
A. "Prepared by client" so this is a schedule that was given to us by the company.
Q. And again can you give me your best estimate of when this schedule was given to you by the company?
A. Just by looking at these documents, I think it was about March 13th. It looks like that's when I set it up and the document actually has a little footer in it that has the same date.
Q. You are looking at Bates CPH 1056009?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell from any of the information who at Sunbeam prepared the statement?
A. No, I can't tell.
Q. Did you have any conversations during the first quarter of 1998 with anyone at Sunbeam relating to whether Sunbeam would be able to improve its financial performance during that quarter?

A. I don't remember having any discussion with anyone at Sunbeam about that.
Q. Let's look at the notes to the statements which are at the second page of the exhibit, 1056007. Did you type these notes up, Mr. Pastrana?
A. Yes.
Q. Note A here indicates that the decrease in first quarter sales is as a result of early buy and poor weather. How did you learn that poor weather was one of the reasons for the sales decrease?
A. I don't remember. I refer in the same note to a discussion that I had with Lee Griffith and Al Lefevre about their expectation for their sales to recover. I don't remember if it came on the same conversation or if that was a separate conversation with somebody.
Q. Mr. Griffith and Mr. Lefebvre, according to your notes, indicated that the sales were recovered in the second quarter; is that correct?
A. Right, uh-huh.
Q. Did anyone indicate to you that sales would recover in the first quarter?
A. No, not that I can remember.
Q. Your Note B indicates that Bob Gluck stated that the higher freight charges existed despite lower sales because the company was paying more freight as an incentive?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any reaction to that explanation?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't remember. I don't remember any reaction necessarily.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Your Note J refers to increase in warehouse and distribution cost, do you see that note?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Do you understand whether the increase in those costs was associated with bill and hold sales?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I understood it to be due to the production of grill inventory, whether it was inventory that had been segregated for customers or the company's own inventory. I didn't know what portion of that related to which piece.
Q. To your knowledge, did anyone from Morgan Stanley ask for either of the interim income statements or Profit and Loss Statements that are contained in Exhibit 107 and 108?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: When you say "asked for," nobody asked me directly for them. There is certain information that's derived from there that's delivered to them in a comfort letter as part of preparation of offering document or at least our role in that.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Short of the comfort letter?
A. No, nobody ever asked me.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: I'm going to change the tape.
MR. JOHNSON: Go ahead.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This is the end of Videotape No. 1. We are going off the record. The time is 11:14.
(Tape change)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. This is the beginning of the Videotape No. 2. The time is 11:15.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Mr. Pastrana, are you familiar with a form AP-187?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you prepare such a form in connection with your work for Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. I'd like to have you identify that for me, if you would.
MR. JOHNSON: This will be Exhibit 109.

Q. Mr. Pastrana, is CPH Exhibit 109 the form AP-187 that you prepared?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is the purpose of the form AP-187?
A. This is used to document our post report review procedures.
Q. This indicates that the date of the report is January 28, 1998 except for certain matters in Note 14. Do you see that listed on Page 1?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there any reason why the P&L that's contained in Exhibit 108 which goes through February was not used in connection with this form?
MR. MOSCATO: Huh?
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Let me put it more simply. Why does this report stop in the middle of January when it appears you may have had a Profit and Loss Statement going through the end of February?
MR. MOSCATO: I think you are misreading the report.
MR. JOHNSON: Let's let the witness explain.
MR. MOSCATO: Why don't you explain what the date of order is, Dennis.
THE WITNESS: This is the date on the audit opinion that's contained in the 10-K, so the purpose of this post report review form is to document review procedures that we performed subsequent to the date of that opinion or that report. So I mean this would indicate that the 10-K probably was completed, filed, sometime on or about March 2nd.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. If you flip to the third page of the exhibit which is Page 2 of the form, as I understand Paragraph 2 indicates that the financial statements -- the interim financial statements are as of February 1, 1998; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And I guess that brings me back to the original question of doesn't the Profit and Loss Statement contained in Exhibit 108 go through the end of February?
A. It does.
Q. And do you recall any reason why that statement was not used in connection with this form?
A. Just a second. You know, there are a couple of -- let me, and without having all the documents I'm not going to be able to explain it to you accurately. There are a couple of post report review procedures that got performed and they probably were done on a couple of these forms. I mean, this performance review was completed through March 16th -- hold on a second. These financials are dated, what, March 13? I'm going to stop talking until I figure this out.

Q. Let me point one thing out to you that might help you answer. If you look at Page 4 of your report.

A. Okay.

Q. Under Paragraph 4-A you refer through -- you refer to results through the second period of the first quarter, I believe, and so you appear to be using the later P&L although you don't refer to it in the preamble of the report.

A. That was my guess. I was just trying to go to the documents and figure it out. We did a couple of these which is why you saw two P&L's, one through January, one through February. It's possible we used this preliminary using the January report. When they finished closing the month of February, we got the February report and this is updated based on that, and we just did not correct the dates on that box which I think is what happened.

Q. So this report does include at least some information concerning results through the end of February?

A. Correct.

Q. If you look back again at Page 2 of the report, under Paragraph 2-A it's indicated that work was done by DP. Again that's you?

A. Yes.

Q. You indicate there that there's a decline in sales trends due to, one, early-buy program for outdoor grills which accelerated sales into the fourth quarter. Again that's the end of the fourth quarter 1987?

A. Correct.

MR. MOSCATO: Again it continues.

MR. JOHNSON: Sure.

MR. MOSCATO: But that's neither here nor there. It is what it is but it does give a second reason.

MR. JOHNSON: Thanks.

MR. MOSCATO: You're welcome.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. If you go to Page 4 of the report, Mr. Pastrana, and read Paragraph 4-A to yourself.

A. (Reading) Okay.

Q. Do you know who provided you with the budgeted Sunbeam net sales and net income for the first quarter of 1998?

A. I don't remember.

Q. And do you know the basis for the statement here, quote, "such targets may be unattainable"?

A. I believe it's just comparing the 309 million revenue target or net sales target for the first quarter to the 72 million which, as you said, they had achieved two thirds of that quarter. You know, based on that we thought it may be that they're not going to achieve those targets.

Q. I guess another way to put the question is the unattainability of those targets Andersen's conclusion or information that somebody provided to Andersen?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: That, to the best of my knowledge, is Andersen's conclusion or my conclusion written here and, you know, I don't know that it's a conclusion. It's just a statement of circumstances.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. And the column heading for the column where that statement is made provides "Comments and Disposition of Items Requiring Consideration." Why did you determine that the unattainability of those sales and income targets were an item needing consideration?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

MR. MOSCATO: I object. I characterize it as possible unattainability. He does say "may be unattainable."

MR. JOHNSON: Sure.

MR. MOSCATO: Go ahead, Dennis.

THE WITNESS: You know, I kind of have to put myself back to what role I played in that process. I mean, the role that I play as a senior would be to look at the financial statements and look for anything that's unusual, what changed, big firm, the previous year, what might be an item worth noting, and then summarize it on this form which I did, and then really -- you know, probably the form should be better titled "Items Potentially Requiring Consideration," but then Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow would review this and determine what action was necessary to take.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone at Andersen about this form?

A. I may have but I don't recall the specifics of any at this point.

Q. Did anyone suggest any revisions to the form after you circulated it to them?

A. It's quite possible. That would have been normal in the process of preparing this.

Q. I take it from your answer you don't recall any specific revisions that were made?

A. I don't recall anything specific. It's six years ago now? Five years?

MR. MOSCATO: Five.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. The first page of the report, there's some handwriting at the bottom. Can you read that writing?

A. "N17, no consent required in section 144

017380 offering. However, post audit review work and AP 187 work done in its entirety with" -- "as the firm's name appears in the" -- in the something "included in this document" -- "financial statements included in this document. Work done herein sufficient as if we were to issue our consent."

Q. Do you know who's handwriting that is?

A. Larry Bornstein. I believe he signed it.

Q. And that's Mr. Harlow's signature below Mr. Bornstein?

A. Yes.

Q. Although it appears you did all the work that went into the report, if I look at the initials columns.

A. All the documentation. I didn't review all that work.

Q. I believe you testified earlier that this was prepared in connection with issuing a comfort letter; is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. Do you know whose initials are on the front of this document, KK in the upper right, Exhibit 109?

A. KK is a work paper reference number. It's our initials contained in the KK section of the work papers.

Q. Now, did you draft the comfort letter to Morgan Stanley in this case?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you come to do that?

A. You know, my job, as I can remember it, was to complete these post review procedures and to draft the form of the comfort letter. And then the form is guided, as you probably know, by a specific statement on auditing standards that governs the form of comfort letters. So I drafted it, probably took an initial pass of customizing any sections that would have had to be customized for the situation, and then I would have just passed it on to Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Harlow to review. That was kind of my role.

Q. And were you the keeper of the documents, so to speak, until it was finalized?

A. I did keep the draft and made revisions as the drafting process took place, yes.

Q. Aside from Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Harlow, did anyone else at Andersen provide comments directly to you?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whether -- one way or the other, whether anyone in the firm -- in the Andersen firm provided comments to Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow?

A. I don't know whether or not, in fact, that happened. I do know that as a matter of practice another partner would also have reviewed the comfort letter.

Q. And that's a concurring partner?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that's Mr. Pruitt on this engagement?

A. Right.

Q. Do you know when you prepared the first draft of the comfort letter?

A. Based on some of the documents I reviewed over the weekend, the first one was done -- I believe dated March 13th, something like that, so it would have been probably the week leading up to March 19th that it would have been drafted.

Q. When you say the first one, you mean the first -- you mean the final comfort letter?

A. The main body of the comfort letter was subsequently updated by a short term or bring down comfort letter.

Q. Did you include the first quarter '98 sales information that you had in your initial draft of the comfort letter?

A. The first quarter sales, yes, through February, I think it was.

Q. So you put that in the draft that you prepared before you circulated it to Bornstein and Harlow?

A. Yes. In the draft I would have put whatever was available. I assume when I started, February was available but if it would have been January, it would have been January.

Q. Was there ever any discussion with Mr. Bornstein or Harlow about whether that was information that should or should not be contained in the comfort letter?

A. It's required to be contained.

Q. But why do you say that?

A. In terms of the net sales? I guess you could say required. The AICPA, statement on auditing standards that govern comfort letters, in this case requires disclosure if there has been decrease in sales during that period following the last audited set of financials, so it's kind of governed by the professional standards more so than firm policy.

(CPH 110 was marked for identification.)

Q. Let me show you draft the comfort letter, if I could. Mr. Pastrana, could you identify Exhibit 110 for the record please?

A. This is a draft of the comfort letter dated March 19th.

Q. If you look at the fax header at the top of the document for me, that reflects a date of March 17, 1998?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Do you know what the SBA, Inc. reference is?

A. SBA, Inc. was another of the Andersen clients, SBA Communications, which is also a client of Mr. Bornstein. It could be that, you know, in the review process we just faxed these back and forth to wherever he was.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Can you tell in any way whether this is a markup of the first draft that you prepared or a later draft?
A. Yes, I can't tell which draft this was. This a draft. I mean, this is kind of the draft. We just kind of were updating it as we went along.
Q. If you look at Page 3 of the letter, and, for the record, this exhibit has Bates stamp CPH 0038670 through 676. We're looking at 38672. If you look at the bottom of that page, there's some handwriting. It seems to indicate, "We had fire sale of inventory."
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Do you know who's handwriting that is?
A. I don't know. I mean, from the context, it looks like it's Gluck, Bob Gluck, because this draft, for example, doesn't disclose in '97 the company had sold some obsolete inventory. We would have provided a draft of this to Mr. Gluck and he might have made a comment that he wanted to make some clarifying explanation as to the reasons why this was happening which I think was included in the final.
Q. Why don't you look at the next page under 6-B. 6-B provides an explanation as to the decline in net sales in the '98 time frame as compared with the '97 time frame?
A. Uh-huh.

Q. Was that information that was contained in the draft comfort letter from its initial draft?
A. Again, I don't know if this is the initial draft. I don't know at what point that information got into the comfort letter.
Q. But your recollection is that the sales information did go in the first draft?
A. Yes, yes. In the prior 5-B, yes, that would have been there from the beginning with whatever sales information was available at that time.
Q. And you just don't recall whether 6-B was in the first draft or was added along the way?
A. That's correct. Well, 6-B was there, you know. But whether the substance of what the statement says, you know, was there, I don't know. In other words, the standard comfort letter would have a standard 6-B. What it says is guided by the circumstances.
Q. Again you noted that sales decreased primarily due to the early-buy program which accelerated sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997?
A. Right.
Q. Could you look at Page 6 of this letter. I don't know whether you can read. Next to one of the tick marks there's a handwriting in the margin area. Can you read that?

A. It looks like "were used."
Q. And that's a reference to limited use of unaudited financials for the period indicated, as I understand it; is that correct?
A. For a limited use?
Q. I guess the question is what does the "where used" signify?
A. This is kind of a standard listing of procedures that we would perform and some may not apply in all cases so in the draft I may have listed out all the standard procedures and maybe someone in review pointed out that this one is not being used in the comfort letter, so I don't know if that stayed in or we did use it or ultimately we may have taken it out. It looks like just a reviewer's question.
Q. Do you know how many days you spent working on the draft that culminated in the March 19 comfort letter?
A. I mean, I really don't. You know, I know that this letter here contains sales prior to February so I think this has the January sales -- right? -- basically through February 2nd. And I know that the February sales information was available on March 13th so I must have started this -- must have been working on this before March 13th, I would imagine.
Q. Let's look at another draft if we could.

Before we get to this next exhibit, one more on 110. Do you know whether this comfort letter was provided in draft form to Morgan Stanley at any point?
A. I don't know.
Q. Could you look at what we've marked as Exhibit CPH 111 and identify that for us?
A. This looks like another draft of the same comfort letter.
Q. And, for the record, this has Bates stamp CPH 0038700 through 706. The top of this document, Mr. Pastrana, indicates that it's from Global Financial Press, New York. Do you know what that is?
A. I think that's the printer that they were using, Morgan Stanley, whoever, to prepare the Offering Memorandum and Larry was at the printer so we may have been faxing this back and forth. This looks like his handwriting with comments on it. I can't be sure of that.
Q. And this shows a fax date time stamp of March 19th at about a quarter to midnight; is that correct?
A. Right.
Q. Were you in the office at Andersen that night to receive his edits?
A. I don't remember. I don't remember.
Q. And Mr. Bornstein notes the offering has increased in size from 1.3 billion to $2 billion; is that right?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0117382

A. Right.
Q. He also adds or I should say notes that there's a Paragraph 2 that is new. You see that on Paragraph 2 of the letter?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Do you know how that paragraph was added to the letter or at whose suggestion it was added?
A. I don't know if he's asking or -- I think he's just asking and what changed between the two drafts is one letter assumes that the earlier draft that we looked at, CPH 110 assumes that this is a comfort letter related to an SEC filing.

The second one that we're looking at assumes that this is a non-SEC or -- I think it's Section 144, basically a private placement, and so the wording of the first two paragraphs is a little bit different. And if you look, the first paragraph changed, the second paragraph changed a little bit in the wording, but I think he was just asking about why did it change, but I think the second one is correct in terms of the professional guidance.
Q. And your understanding as to the change is that the updated version reflected that this would be a private placement?
A. Correct or that this was -- I don't know if private placement. This was a type of offering that would not require the language that was in the prior letter so this is the type of language that was required, but I think it's referred to as a private placement.

Q. And this draft continues to include sales information for January as well as an explanation for the decline in sales; is that correct?
A. Right, right.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein concerning what happened at Global Financial Press?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: No.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do you recall -- I think you indicated that he was at Global Financial Press?
A. Correct.
Q. How do you know that?
A. I mean, we communicated a couple of times. I know that he had to travel there. I think he went with someone else from our firm. That's it.
Q. Do you know who he went with?
A. I think he went with Mark Brockelman.
Q. And do you recall Mr. Bornstein calling you from Global Financial Press?
A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Brockelman ever convey to you anything that happened at Global Financial Press?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. And you don't recall whether you were in the office in the evening to receive these changes?
A. I'm not sure that this -- received from. Yes, I don't recall whether I received them when they got there or not.
Q. This is a document that was previously marked as CPH 17. Could you identify that document for the record, Mr. Pastrana?
A. This looks like the comfort letter that we issued on March 19th from Morgan Stanley.
Q. So this is the culmination of the two drafts we just looked at, Exhibit 110, Exhibit 111?
A. Correct.
Q. And do you know who signed on behalf of Arthur Andersen?
A. No, I would imagine Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Harlow. Normally it would be Mr. Harlow who would sign it.
Q. Do you know, as between the two of them, who signed it?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know when this letter was, in fact, provided to Morgan Stanley?

A. It's usually delivered on the day it's dated. I would imagine March 19th.
Q. Do you know how it was transmitted to Morgan Stanley?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't know. I can tell you typically a copy is sent via facsimile and the originals are mailed or next day.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Do you recall any discussions with anybody at Arthur Andersen concerning the sales information contained in CPH Exhibit 17?
A. No.
MR. JOHNSON: 112.
Q. Mr. Pastrana, could you identify CPH Exhibit 112 for us?
A. It's a copy of the March 25th bring down letter that we prepared.
Q. And did you draft this letter as well?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And on the front page of the exhibit, it appears your initials DP3 98; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, this comfort letter provide sales

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01733 information through March 1 -- strike that. This bring down letter provides sales information through March 1, 1998; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So it updates the information provided in the March 19 letter?

A. Correct.

Q. And it shows that Sunbeam's loss had, in fact, widened between February 1 and March 1?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any conversation with anyone at Arthur Andersen about the further deterioration of Sunbeam's financial results as reflected in this letter?

A. I can't recall any specific conversations. I certainly would have discussed it.

Q. Were you troubled by those results?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

MR. MOSCATO: Objection.

THE WITNESS: I mean, to say trouble, I don't know -- I mean, when you look at the widening loss, a significant portion of that widening is this $30.2 million compensation charge that they took related to some restricted stock orders that they gave to the officers, you know. The balance of it or at least a portion of it was due to continue to -- that second or next wave of grill sales seemed to be pushed out. I don't know that I was troubled by it but it certainly heightened our awareness that it was going to be difficult to make this the first quarter sales numbers.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. Did Arthur Andersen take any steps to guarantee that Sunbeam had a proper close of its first quarter?

A. We performed an SAS 71 review in terms of making sure that they had a proper close. We performed a standard SAS 71 review but what we did do in addition to the normal -- which we normally see in this type of review was that we observed the shipping cutoff and we went to several warehouse locations to observe bill and hold inventory that had been segregated for customers. Now, this isn't our first quarter review so now you are talking about the end of March which is a different time period than the letters, right?

Q. Well --

A. Did I miss the question?

Q. No, I think you got the question right but then you added something at the end of it that confused me and let me see if I can clear it up. Let's back up even further. On the bring down letter, were there multiple drafts of that letter?

A. There may have been. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall any comments that Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow provided to you relating to the bring down letter?

A. No.

Q. Did anyone besides Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Harlow provide comments on their bring down letter?

A. Not that I can remember.

Q. Did you ever speak with anyone outside of Andersen about the need to get either -- any comfort letter or bring down letter finished?

A. Anyone outside of Andersen about the need to get a comfort letter. I can't remember any discussions that I had to that effect.

Q. So no lawyers from an outside firm ever called you to find out where a copy of a bring down letter was?

A. No, not that I can recall specifically.

Q. Do you know -- well, that begs the question about general recollection. Do you recall dealing with outside law firms in connection with the work on the debt offer?

A. I don't and normally, I mean -- and I think maybe it was because Larry was at the printers and maybe he was dealing directly with them. Normally in this process, if you go back to the original letter that was issued, there are these little procedures that you perform that have these little marks and normally I would have fairly involved discussions with attorneys about what number gets what mark and why didn't you put a mark on this number or that number, whatever, and discussions about, well, what's the status? When are we going to get the comfort letter? I never had those discussions myself and I think it was probably that Mr. Bornstein was having them directly with the people at Sunbeam.

Q. Did you ever -- you're assuming Mr. Bornstein had those conversation; is that correct?

A. Correct. I don't know that factually.

Q. Did you ever have any conversations with Mr. Bornstein about his dealings with outside lawyers in connection with the work on the debt offer?

A. No, not that I can remember.

Q. You referenced earlier in the testimony today a press release that you saw and you looked at that press release over the weekend?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any occasion to review that press release before it went out?

A. Did I review it before it went out?

Q. That's correct.

A. I don't remember if I did.

Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Bornstein about the press release either before or after it went out?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I had discussions with Mr. Bornstein about the contents of the press release. I can't remember if it was -- certainly it was not before it went out. I never saw it before it went out. And I can't remember, you know, what the substance of those discussions was but I became aware of the press release from Mr. Bornstein.
Q. Do you recall anything he said about the press release?
A. I remember him being concerned about the language in the press release. You know, the press release said something to the effect that they were not going to meet their sales targets. They would still exceed the sales of the previous year for the same period and, you know, based on what they had sold in the quarter up to that point, he had some concern about whether they were going to be able to achieve those sales.
Q. Did you share that concern?
A. With who?
Q. With Mr. Bornstein?
A. No, he shared the concern with me.
Q. Did you agree with his concerns?
A. Yes, I thought it was a legitimate concern, sure.
Q. Now, you mentioned that Andersen undertook additional procedures relating to the first quarter with you, that's the dock watching?

A. Right.
Q. That was not a usual procedure to conduct in connection with the quarterly review; is that correct?
A. Right.
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Yes. I mean, in my experience I haven't done that before in a quarterly review. I would characterize it as unusual.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Whose idea was it to conduct this additional step?
A. I believe it was Mr. Bornstein. You know, the instruction was given to me by him. Whether it was his idea or somebody else's, I don't know.
Q. And what did Mr. Bornstein tell you to do?
A. He told me to have people standing on the shipping docks at midnight to observe the sales cutoff.
Q. And the shipping docks were located in Mississippi, Missouri and Oklahoma; is that correct?
A. Shipping docks were in Mississippi and Missouri. Oklahoma I think they had some warehouses that they were using. I don't think -- let me take that back. Maybe they had a shipping facility in Oklahoma. I don't remember if it was a shipping facility.
Q. Did you personally attend one of those observations?

A. Yes.
Q. Which one?
A. The one in Neosha, Missouri.
Q. And who observed -- let me back that up. Did any other Andersen personnel participate in the Neosha observation with you?
A. There was another person that was present in Missouri. I think he was at a different warehouse location. He was counting Sunbeam inventory that existed at another warehouse so he was not on the shipping dock at midnight.
Q. What is that individual's name?
A. It was a staff person in the office.
Q. Does Bob Holman ring a bell, Ben?
A. Ben, yes.
Q. How about Mississippi? Who from Andersen was responsible for watching the docks in Mississippi?
A. I don't remember the name of the person. There I think we sent someone from our St. Louis office.
Q. I'm going to give you what was previously marked as Exhibit 18 in this case. Mr. Pastrana, could you identify Exhibit CPH 18 for the record?
A. Yes, these are some instructions that I prepared to other Arthur Andersen personnel that were going to observe the shipping cutoff or inventory in certain locations.

Q. And do you know when you prepared the instructions?
A. I don't know exactly.
Q. It was after the bringing down letter?
A. I would -- that would be my guess. I don't remember factually.
Q. It was after the press release anyway, right?
A. Right.
Q. To whom was -- let me back up. Did you send a draft of this instruction sheet to anyone at Andersen?
A. I think I would have given it to somebody to review, probably Mr. Bornstein.
Q. Do you recall anyone having any comments on the draft?
A. No.
Q. Who is the memo sent to?
A. The people that were assigned to help on these observations, so the Ben Holman that you mentioned would have been one.
Q. And those were assignments that were made by someone else; is that right?
A. Correct, we would normally call another office looking for a person of a certain level and experience and they would assign the person.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And if you look at the last page of the document which is CPH 15113, you request a documentation of the observation to be sent to you.
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Did you, in fact, receive documentation of the observation from anyone?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. Let's look quickly at those if we could.
Q. Mr. Pastrana, could you identify Exhibit 113 for us?
A. This is a memo prepared by the Andersen staff person who observed shipping cutoff at one of the company's warehouses and then counted some of the bill and hold inventory that had been segregated from the warehouse for the customers.
Q. Mr. Holman's memo, Exhibit 113, refers to observation on the evening of March 31st. Your instruction memo called for observation on March 29. Do you know why there's that discrepancy?
A. I think that I do recall why there is this discrepancy.
Q. Why is that?
A. I think that they changed their quarter end in March, if I recall correctly.

Q. They added two days to the quarter in 1998?
A. That's correct.
Q. And do you know when the decision to do that was made?
A. I thought that was after the Coleman acquisition.
Q. Did you find any of the information that Mr. Holman is sending to you in Exhibit 13 to be problematic in any way?
A. Let me take a minute to read this document.
Q. Sure.
A. (Reading) What was your question?
Q. The question is whether anything in Mr. Holman's letter struck you as problematic in any way.
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: In terms of my thoughts at that time, I can't really remember. I mean, right now I think we would have done something to address the fact that they apparently had not done a very good job of identifying and segregating the quantities by customers, you know.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. In other words, that the procedures relating to bill and holds weren't completed as of the cutoff?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
MR. MOSCATO: I'll object to that.
THE WITNESS: I think that the inventory was identified systemically. I think that inventory that needed to be moved was moved. What they hadn't done was completed the process of the physical segregation that I think happened within a couple of days later on. I mean, if I recall, I think we actually went through a process where we looked in detail at all their locations and how they reconciled all that.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. One more document for you which was previously marked as Exhibit 20. Mr. Pastrana, is Exhibit 20 dated April 1, 1998?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Did you receive this memo on or about April 1, 1998?
A. I'm not sure. I was probably still in Neosha but shortly thereafter.
Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Kistler before, during or after his cutoff testing relating to the testing procedure or rationales?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Have you ever spoken to Mr. Kistler?
A. Have I ever spoken to him in my life?
Q. That's the question.
A. Yes.
Q. You just don't recall whether you spoke to him in connection with these procedures?

A. Right. Let me read through this.
Q. Sure, absolutely.
A. Make sure it doesn't answer the question.
(Reading)
Q. And I don't want to interrupt your reading, Mr. Pastrana, but I'm going to ask you the similar question I asked on the last memo which is is there anything in this memorandum that struck you as troubling at the time you received it?
MS. BROWN: I'll object.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. You can read the memo and let me know when you're finished.
A. (Reading) Okay, and the question is what?
Q. The question is did anything in Mr. Kistler's memo strike you as troubling when you received this memo?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't know. Did I see anything troubling? You know, there seems to be --
MR. MOSCATO: Dennis, the question was -- he's asking you to remember at the time you received this memo, is there anything that you recall being troubling to you, not now, but do you have a recollection of receiving this and being troubled by anything?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01738

THE WITNESS: I wouldn't say troubled by anything. I think there's some things in here that indicates some sloppiness by the company but, I mean, at the end of the day it looks like -- if you quantify everything, it looks pretty small.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. If you look at Page 2 of this memo, there's some handwriting underneath the paragraph that begins "Overall Inventory Quantities." Is that your handwriting?
A. Yes, I think so.
Q. Can you read that for me?
A. "Considered shipped when sealed and moved off the dock. Ready for carrier to move away."
Q. And that's referring to 65 trailers in the yard?
A. Right.
Q. And those 65 trailers are quantified as just under four million dollars worth of inventory; is that correct?
A. Right. Of which, though, of the 65, 40 of them related to this one transaction discussed in the preceding paragraph.
Q. That's the Menards transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever -- it indicates here that the bills of lading on the Menards transaction were generated manually. Did you ever learn why that was?

A. No, I don't know why but it's common that bills of lading can be generated manually.
Q. You indicated that prior to the evening of March 31, 1998 you had never previously engaged in any cutoff testing of this sort for a quarterly review?
A. That's correct.
Q. Have you in your accounting career since then engaged in a similar type of operation for a quarterly review?
A. No. I mean, you know, as a firm I know we do quarterly inventory accounts for Intel which is a client of the firm. I mean, we don't do it out of here but I know that the other office uses our people every quarter to check inventory so I know it's done. I haven't done it.
Q. But would you characterize it as a usual procedure to look at shipping docks in the middle of the night at the end of the quarter?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I wouldn't.
MR. MOSCATO: Is the question "usual" or "unusual"?
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Would you characterize it as a usual procedure and I think you said, "I would not" --

A. Correct.
Q. -- is that correct?
A. Right, I would not characterize it as usual or typical.
Q. Now, did you learn at any time after this cutoff testing at the end of the first quarter of 1998 that, in fact, Sunbeam did not reach sales or income figures exceeding the 1997 first quarter results?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you come to learn that?
A. I was in Neosha the morning of the first and one of the people there that I was dealing with asked me if I had heard the news and I said, "What news?" and he said, "Oh, we didn't make the sales number and Don Uzzi has been fired."
Q. Do you know who in Neosha you had that conversation with?
A. No.
Q. And what was your reaction to that news?
A. I think my reaction was, "Wow, Don Uzzi got fired" but that they didn't make sales was not surprising.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone from Arthur Andersen about Sunbeam's failure to make its numbers the first quarter of 1998?
A. No, not -- I mean, I can't recall a specific conversation. I'm sure we talked about it.

Q. When you say "we," who are you referring to?
A. Just the engagement team, Larry and myself and whoever else was involved at the time.
Q. Can you recall any general substance of those conversations?
A. No.
Q. Was anyone at Andersen upset with the company for failing to make its numbers?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Not that I have any knowledge of.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Mr. Bornstein never gave you any reaction to the earnings announcement?
A. If he did, I don't remember.
Q. Have you ever spoken to anyone from Morgan Stanley relating to Sunbeam?
A. Never.
Q. Do you know anyone from Morgan Stanley who worked on the debt offering?
A. No.
Q. Do you believe that anyone at Sunbeam provided you with false information at any time during the 1997 audit or post audit procedures?
A. Ask the question again.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Sure. Let's have the court reporter read it back.

(The record was read.)

A. I certainly didn't believe that to be the case at any time during the time I performed those procedures, you know.

Q. Now, with hindsight have you concluded that certain individuals at Sunbeam provided you with false information?

A. With hindsight, I think we were given false information.

Q. Let's focus on you, meaning Dennis Pastrana first, and then we will go on the broader scope. Who provided you individually with false information?

A. Well, just focusing on me, the one specific thing that I can remember is in connection with the 1997 audit. One of the things that as a matter of practice we request is a listing of returns -- product returns after the end of the period and I was involved in making that request.

I don't remember -- I think I asked Bob Gluck and, you know, he told me that there were no returns. And I said, "What do you mean there are no returns?" He said, "Well, there's a no-return policy" and, you know, I said, "Well, okay. Fine, you have this no-return policy. Can you give me just a list of the return authorizations in the system?" He said, "There are no return authorizations in the system." That was the extent of my discussion.

I think Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Harlow followed up further on that and there were no return authorizations, and then after the fact we learned that there was this list of return authorization. It was not a systemic list. It was some kind of manual list but I think it was probably not -- I think it was probably untrue what they told us.

Q. So that would be Mr. Gluck relating to return authorizations?

A. Correct.

Q. Any other specifics instances you can give me where a Sunbeam employee gave you personally false information?

A. No.

MR. MOSCATO: I just object and would like to say it's a little unfair to ask him to categorize every instance of that. I don't think he has reviewed the restatement work papers, for example, for a number of years and, you know, I just don't want there to be a statement on the record that there were no other instances. Maybe he can't remember any now, and I think the only fair thing would be if he had the opportunity to spend a couple of days looking at the restatement work papers which was not the purpose of this.

MR. JOHNSON: I know we would all hate to come back to Florida after having a chance to do that.

MR. MOSCATO: We won't all.

MR. JOHNSON: And that's a fair clarification, Mike.

Q. I'm asking for your recollection as you sit here, and I understand some years have gone by but to the extent you can recall anything else right now that would constitute a Sunbeam employee giving you false information, I'd like to know about it.

A. In hindsight and, you know, without going back and rereading everything, that was the only instance that I can recall that I was involved in that I was given misleading information. And Mr. Bornstein may have had other conversations with sales guys about the existence of right to return and things like where I know from conversations that he or others may have had a sense that we were given misleading information. I was not a part of those conversations.

Q. So we will ask Mr. Bornstein about this?

A. I think so.

Q. But to the extent you can recall Mr. Bornstein identifying specific Sunbeam personnel than provided false information, I'd like to know that. Do you recall

Mr. Bornstein identifying specific Sunbeam employees who provided false information?

A. I think he identified Al Lefebvre and Lee Griffith in discussions he had about the existence of sales transactions. Whether there were other things that might have been considered improper, fraudulent, I can't remember any. I just remember the returns and the sales with rights of return or guaranteed sales.

Q. Did Mr. Harlow ever indicate to you that he believes specific Sunbeam employees have given false information?

A. Not that I can recall any specific conversation.

MR. JOHNSON: I think that's all I've got. Just a second. Yes, that's all I've got.

MR. MOSCATO: Don't get excited because she's going to ask you questions probably after lunch or do you want to go forward now?

MS. BROWN: It makes sense to take a lunch break and it will go faster that way.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Going off the record. The time is 12:31.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Good afternoon. We are back on the record. The time is 1:19 p.m.

EXAMINATION

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Pastrana. Again I'm Zhonette Brown on behalf of Morgan Stanley.

Can you tell me generally what the purpose of an audit is?

A. The purpose of the audit is to -- for the auditor to issue a report basically stating that the financials are fairly stated in accordance with GAAP. So an audit is performed in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, certain procedures that are defined by the professional standards in order to be able to attest that the financial statements are fairly presented in accordance with GAAP.

Q. And following the 1997 audit that Arthur Andersen performed for Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen issued opinions to the effect that Sunbeam's financial statements presented fairly in all material respects the financial position of the company and the results of its operations and cash flow in conformity with GAAP, correct?

A. Right.

Q. I think you mentioned before but auditors, as you said, sort of live in the past. They look at past results rather than future projections, correct?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: Generally speaking we focus on historical transactions.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. What incentives are there for an auditor such as Arthur Andersen in 1997 to perform the audit well?

MR. JOHNSON: I'm going to object to the form.

MR. MOSCATO: I don't understand at all. If you can answer it, Dennis, go ahead if you can.

THE WITNESS: I mean, incentives. I think professional standards simply require that we conduct the audit in a particular manner.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. So there are professional standards that govern how you conduct an audit require a certain amount of work, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. If an audit is not performed to those standards, there's a risk of, for example, liability, correct?

A. There certainly is.

Q. And there are --

A. But, I mean, even when you do perform the audit in according with the standards, there's a substantial risk of liability.

Q. But that's motivation to perform your job well, correct?

A. GAAP standards are better.

Q. And there's regulations, SEC regulations and whatnot, that motivate you to perform your job well, correct?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: Correct.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. And your interest in your professional reputation motivates you to perform your job well, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And those motivations existed for you and for Arthur Andersen in 1997 and 1998, correct?

A. Sure.

Q. And then or now you wouldn't knowingly take any risk or action that would expose your employer to liability or a loss of reputation, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you wouldn't knowingly allow anyone else that would take an action that would expose your employer to risk of liability or loss of reputation, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. When you're preparing to perform an audit, you prepare a work program, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And one of the objectives in planning the work for the audit is to identify areas of risk; is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you've identified areas of risk, then you plan steps to account for that risk so that you can satisfy yourself that the financial statements are fairly stated, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you did that in preparation for the 1997 audit of Sunbeam, correct?

MR. MOSCATO: Objection. When you say "you," do you mean him personally or Arthur Andersen?

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. Initially I mean Arthur Andersen.

A. Yes.

Q. And you yourself worked on the work program for the 1997 audit for Sunbeam, correct?

A. Right.

Q. And in that process you also identified risks and identified steps to satisfy yourselves that the financial statements were fairly stating the financial position of Sunbeam, correct?

A. Right.

Q. And as an auditor, it's your job, is it not, to apply professional skepticism to the representations and the statements of your client, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. That's right.
Q. Indeed, you're trained to have such professional skepticism when you're performing an audit?
A. Right.
Q. And you applied that professional skepticism to the work that you performed for Sunbeam in 1997 and 1998, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You also apply your independent judgment during audit procedures, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you apply that independent judgment to the work that you were performing on Sunbeam matters in 1997 and 1998?
A. Yes, I mean, to some degree. I mean, independent judgment with the consultation of others that are also responsible for the engagement.
Q. But independent of your client?
A. As a firm we apply judgment in what we do and how we do it.
Q. And so when an auditor states that they're skeptical of statements made by their client, that's essentially their job, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. You stated previously that you began working on Sunbeam matters in approximately October of 1997; is that correct?
A. Right.
Q. And Sunbeam was your principal engagement from that time through some period after the restatement; is that correct?
A. Yes, I think that's exactly right.
Q. And you were on site at Sunbeam the majority of time from at least October of '97 through late January of 1998, correct?
A. Right.
Q. Were you also --
A. Late January -- yes, yes, that's fair.
Q. Were you also on site at Sunbeam in February and March of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Approximately what percentage or portion of time were you on site at Sunbeam during those two months?
A. I couldn't say. It's still a substantial amount of my time. I had one or two other clients that I worked on during that time frame but the majority of the time was spent on Sunbeam.
Q. And was it spent at Sunbeam locations?

A. I would say so, yes.
Q. So the majority of your time from October '97 through March of '98 was spent on site at Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. And you yourself personally spent approximately 942 hours on matters related to Sunbeam's 1997 financials; is that correct?
A. I mean, I don't remember the number. If you want to show me a time detail or if you have a time detail, I'm sure that's right.
MS. BROWN: We'll mark Morgan Stanley 19.
Q. You've been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 19. And I believe this was shown to you, as indicated there, in a prior deposition. Does this refresh your recollection that you spent approximately 942 hours on issues related to Sunbeam's 1997 financials?
A. Yes.
Q. And, indeed, this shows the time for the engagement team for Arthur Andersen for 1997 financials, and I won't ask you to calculate it but it's more than 3,000 hours; is that right?
MR. MOSCATO: Can't he just take your word for it, that the document says what it says, rather than have him add up all the numbers?
MS. BROWN: He can take my word for it that it's more than 3,400 hours, yes.

THE WITNESS: Okay.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Does that seem approximately correct to you?
A. Approximately, yes.
Q. Now, you mentioned that in preparation for an audit, you perform or you create a work program, correct?
A. Right.
MS. BROWN: Let's mark Morgan Stanley 20.
Q. You've been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 20. Do you recognize this document?
A. Yes, this is the work program from the 1997 audit.
Q. This program is essentially an outline, is it not, of the work to be performed during the 1997 outline -- 1997 audit?
A. Yes.
Q. And the steps that are listed in this document -- which for the record is CPH 0011408 to 468. The steps that are listed here are not a complete listing of all the steps that were taken during the 1997 audit? The steps actually performed are greater than those in the outline, correct?
A. Let me say this is a detailed list of the steps to be performed. There may be tests performed that are not on this listing, so in addition to what's in here, there may be tests on this listing that in the content of the audit are not necessary to perform and, therefore, may not be performed but this is to guide the conduct of the audit, correct.

Q. And I think you just sort of mentioned, let me clarify, if you identify additional steps that need to be taken in order for you to give your opinion on the financials, you perform those steps during the audit, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And, indeed, in 1997 you did identify and perform additional procedures in December of '97 or January of '98 in addition to those that are identified in the work program, correct?

A. Yes, I think that's right.

Q. But just for my own knowledge, there are other documents that are labeled work program that have steps written out and then they list who performed the steps, and those titles in those work programs don't always conform to the work program that is MS 20. Does that indicate that those are additional steps that are not identified here?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection.

MR. MOSCATO: Objection.

THE WITNESS: If I could take a look at the papers again.

MS. BROWN: Let's mark this Morgan Stanley 21.

Q. You've been handed what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 21 and the title of that document is "Sunbeam Corporation Work Program," and then it says "Consolidation and Financial Reporting." And, for the records, the Bates is CPH 0011752 to 54.

Now, in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 20 there is subtitles to the work program but there is no subtitle matching the consolidation and financial reporting. So my question for you is whether this is additional steps -- additional to those identified in Morgan Stanley 20 that were taken during the 1997 audit of Sunbeam?

A. I wouldn't characterize them as additional. I would say that -- I mean, for some reason the steps in MS 21 should be in the document that you have at MS 20, and if for one reason or another they weren't included in that document, then I don't know why but -- hold on just a second. I mean, these steps that are on MS 21 would be standard steps that we would performed in any audit.

Q. And the fact that there are initials in the right-hand column and a line drawn through the center column indicates that this is work that was actually performed --

A. Right.

Q. -- along with the signatures on the final page?

A. Right, right. And there would be copies of these steps as well with the appropriate signatures and the work paper.

Q. "These steps" referring to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 20?

A. Yes.

MS. BROWN: Mark this Morgan Stanley 22.

Q. You've been handed what has been marked Morgan Stanley Exhibit 22. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 22 for the record is a document that begins at Bates CPH 0011144 to 52. For the record, could you identify this document?

A. What's the last Bates stamp which you referred to?

Q. I believe the last one is 52.

A. The first document is a memorandum that I prepared summarizing by risk that we identified in planning our audit, kind of the steps that we performed to address those risks. And then the second piece of which you gave me which starts on the Bates stamp CPH 11151 is a summary of our certain reserves that were set up in the '96 restructuring charge were utilized during the year. Okay.

Q. This document is a document that you -- the first document, the memo-to-file, the document that you created in January of 1998, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you turn to Bates Page 49 -- ends in 49, it identifies additional steps that you took -- you, Arthur Andersen, took with regard to bill and hold sales under the early buy program, correct?

A. Right.

Q. So this document, at least in part, identifies additional steps that you took in addition to the original plan steps that are memorialized in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 20, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And during the audit there was no limitation placed on who you could speak with at Sunbeam, correct?

A. I mean, as a firm, yes, we could speak to anybody we wanted to.

Q. And there was no limitation -- there was no audit step that you wanted to take that you were not permitted to take; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. When you're performing an audit, you identify, at least initially, a materiality threshhold, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And for the 1997 audit of Sunbeam, as a preliminary matter you had identified a materiality threshhold of 11 -- just over $11 million, correct?

A. I'd have to see. I don't recall but I'm sure it's probably accurate.

MR. MOSCATO: Well, don't take anyone's word for it. Just look at the document.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You've been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 23. For the record, that begins on Bates CPH 0010963 through 971. Mr. Pastrana, could you identify this document?
A. This is a form that Andersen used to document the calculation of materiality for its audits which I filled out for Sunbeam, for the Sunbeam engagement.
Q. And the form starts at Bates Page 966, correct?
A. That's right.
Q. And Page 964 is the subsequent calculation that you performed, correct?
MR. MOSCATO: 960?
MS. BROWN: Four. Two pages in advance.
THE WITNESS: Let me take a look at it. It's not really a subsequent calculation. It's just a summary of what results from the information in the form.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Do you recall that you performed or Arthur Andersen had performed a preliminary materiality assessment and then in January of 1988 a memo was circulated from Mr. Denkhaus clarifying the use of certain tools to calculate materiality and listing scopes?

A. I have some recollection of that but I'd have to look at the documents again.
Q. Do you generally recall that when the document was circulated by Denkhaus, it indicated that during the 1997 audit you had actually tested to a scope of a finer detail than what was required by the Denkhaus clarification?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you recall that you initially -- you, Arthur Andersen, initially tested to identify errors of $6 million -- of $1.5 million and subsequently the clarification indicated that you could have tested to a greater detail or a coarser scope of $6 million?
A. I don't recall. If you have the initial materiality calculation and the Denkhaus memo and this one, maybe I can just put it all together. I can certainly recall at the time the firm changing its guidance and there being some difficulty understanding exactly what that guidance meant and some interpretive guidance that came out. I don't remember specifically how it impacted the findings that we had on Sunbeam.
Q. Do you recall that as a result of the clarification from Mr. Denkhaus you were not required to perform any additional audit procedures?
A. I just don't remember at this point.
MR. MOSCATO: Do you have the Denkhaus memo?

MS. BROWN: I don't have the Denkhaus memo.
MR. JOHNSON: What transcript are you looking at?
MS. BROWN: I'm looking at the November 15, 2000 transcript in the in re: Sunbeam securities case. I'm not going to mark it as an exhibit but I'm looking at that deposition.
Q. I'll hand it to you. I'll refer you to Page 129 of the deposition which is CPH Page 1031672. If you will look at deposition Page 129 and 130, it may refresh your recollection.
MR. MOSCATO: So you don't have CUB 16 because that's what this -- this note says "Reconciliation of materiality in accordance with revised firm guidance as follows," and it says, "CUB 16."
MS. BROWN: I don't.
THE WITNESS: I remember this now.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. So does this refresh your recollection that initially when you performed the preliminary materiality assessments you had designed a work program to test -- to detect error in excess of 1.5 million?
A. That's right.
Q. And subsequently you determined that Arthur Andersen procedures as clarified by Denkhaus would have allowed you to design procedures intended to detect an error of $6 million?

A. That's correct.
Q. So the work program that you designed for the 1997 audit of Sunbeam tested to a finer detail than what was actually required at the time of Arthur Andersen policy, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And at the conclusion of the 1997 audit after you had spent several months on site at Sunbeam and the engagement team had spent a few thousand hours on the 1997 financials for Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen had satisfied itself that Sunbeam's financials were -- fairly represented the results of the company, correct?
A. Right.
Q. And at that time you did not believe that there were any material misstatements to the financials?
A. Correct.
Q. And at that time you had no reason to question the integrity of management, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. One of the risks that you had recognized in performing the work for the 1997 audit for Sunbeam in designing the work was the pressure to meet sales and revenue numbers, correct?
A. Right.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And you designed work procedures to address the risk that you identified, correct?
A. Correct, I would think -- but without seeing some documents, I just need to make sure.
Q. You don't recall identifying any risk that you had not addressed, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And at the end of the first quarter of 1998, you also didn't have any reason to question the integrity of management, correct?
A. Right.
Q. Even though you had spent an additional three months at Sunbeam and working with Sunbeam personnel, right?
A. Right.
Q. And at the end of 1997 you had no reason to believe that Sunbeam was stuffing the channel personally, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That's also true at the end of -- first quarter of 1998, you had no reason to believe that Sunbeam was stuffing the channel, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you also performed work for the closing of Sunbeam's first quarter '98 for filing of the 10-Q?
A. Yes.

Q. And at that time you had no reason to question the materiality or whether there were any material misstatements to Sunbeam's financials, correct?
MR. MOSCATO: I need to hear that again.
MS. BROWN: I'll strike that.
Q. When you were working on the close of Sunbeam's financials for the first quarter of 1998 and the 10-Q, at that time you had no reason to question the integrity of Sunbeam's management, correct?
A. I didn't, no. Not that I can think of.
Q. You've already testified, I think, that you didn't have any contact with Morgan Stanley in the first quarter of 1998, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Did you have any contact with Morgan Stanley prior to 1997 concerning Sunbeam?
A. Not that I can remember, no.
Q. And you didn't have any contact with Morgan Stanley senior funding in 1997 or 1998 concerning Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. You did not have any contact with Davis Polk in 1997 or 1998 concerning Sunbeam?
A. The name rings a bell, law firm, but I don't remember any specific contact.
Q. Davis Polk was underwriter's counsel to Morgan

Stanley in 1998. Did you have --
A. I don't think I had any direct contact with them.
Q. Do you recall having any contact with Skadden Arps, counsel for Sunbeam, in 1997 or '98 concerning Sunbeam prior to the restatement effort?
A. No, not prior to the restatement effort.
Q. After the bill and hold transactions had been identified at Sunbeam in 1997, those transactions were disclosed in Sunbeam's 10-K that they filed for 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And I think you testified earlier that 10-K was filed with the SEC in early March of 1998; is that correct?
A. Right.
Q. And Arthur Andersen was satisfied with the disclosure that Sunbeam had made of the bill and hold?
A. That's my understanding.
Q. You personally were satisfied with the bill and hold disclosure in the 10-K, correct?
A. I read it. Yeah, I thought it was okay.
Q. The 10-K for Sunbeam for 1997 also disclosed the early buy program, correct?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And do you recall having any reservation or problems with the way that that was disclosed in Sunbeam's

10-K for 1997?
A. I don't recall having any.
Q. Do you recall Arthur Andersen ever recommending to Sunbeam prior to the restatement that they discontinue bill and hold sales?
A. I'm sorry, say that again.
Q. Do you recall Arthur Andersen ever recommending to Sunbeam prior to the restatement that Sunbeam discontinue bill and hold sales?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you ever remember Arthur Andersen recommending to Sunbeam prior to June of 1998 that Sunbeam discouraged customers from asking for bill and hold?
A. I don't recall anything like that.
Q. What are blueback clearance forms?
A. Blueback is a term that was used at Andersen to refer to the management letter and those forms are just -- if you had a management letter comment, you would write it down on the form. Just gave you something later on to discuss with management and they were suppose to sign off on it. It wasn't a required procedure but it was just a format for communicating management letter comments.
Q. I'm handing you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 24. For the record, the Bates is CPH 0244904 to 915. Can you identify this document?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. This appears to be a listing of our management letter comments that I faxed to Bob Gluck on May 21 of '98 I guess to solicit his responses.
Q. Had these, to your knowledge, blueback clearance forms been submitted to Sunbeam prior to this date?
A. Not that I'm aware of. I don't know if they were or not.
Q. You're not aware of these forms being transmitted to Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. I am not.
Q. Ask you to look at what is Page 2 of the memo, three of the document, Bates ending in 906.
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And there in the last sentence states, "We recommend that management take steps to discourage customers from placing bill and hold orders," and I encourage you to read the paragraph or the paragraphs before that and my question would be whether that recommendation related to the manual labor involved rather than to concerns about the legitimacy of bill and hold sales?
A. (Reading) Yes, I don't remember exactly -- could you ask the question again please?
Q. Yes. My question was the recommendation that they discouraged bill and hold sales, what the basis for that recommendation was?

MR. MOSCATO: Objection. Did you make the recommendations? Did you write this?
THE WITNESS: I played some role in drafting it. I don't know if I actually conceived the whole thing.
MR. MOSCATO: Answer to the best you can, if you can recall.
THE WITNESS: As I read this, I mean, the tone of what's here -- and it's been a long time -- is more that it requires a lot of effort, causes a lot of system problems, there's a lot movement and stuff back and forth. Logistically it's difficult, it's time consuming, it's resource consuming, it doesn't seem to make a whole lot of sense, the tone of this comment, but it also points out that from a kind of a GAAP or SEC compliance standpoint that these transactions are looked at very, how should I say, skeptically by the SEC.
Q. But at the end of 1997 Arthur Andersen had satisfied itself that the bill and hold sales met SEC requirements?
A. That's correct.
Q. And in the end of Q1 98 when you observed the cutoff testing in the bill and hold segregation, Arthur Anderson also was satisfied that those bill and hold sales were legitimate sales according to SEC guidelines, correct?
A. Correct.

Q. And, indeed, even after the restatements you personally thought that the bill and hold sales met the SEC guidelines, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And no one at Sunbeam during 1997 or the first quarter of 1998 expressed concern to you concerning about the legitimacy of the bill and hold sales?
A. Correct.
Q. You testified earlier about the comfort letters that Arthur Andersen provided to Morgan Stanley in March of 1998; do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. What is the purpose of the comfort letter?
MR. MOSCATO: From whose perspective?
MS. BROWN: From the witness' perspective.
MR. MOSCATO: You mean, why does an auditor send the comfort letter? Is that the question?
MS. BROWN: My question is --
MR. MOSCATO: I mean, it could have different purposes. The receiver could have a purpose for receiving it. The sender could have a purpose for sending it. I'm just unclear what you mean by "the purpose."
MS. BROWN: Strike that.
Q. What do you understand -- or what did you understand Morgan Stanley's purpose to be in requesting the comfort letter?

A. My understanding was that -- whatever role Morgan Stanley played in this deal as the banker, that it's apparent in this offering memorandum that they have responsibility for performing some level of due diligence which would include something to satisfy itself that financial numbers included in the document are accurate. And as part of that responsibility, usually the underwriters will request us as the auditors to perform certain procedures to ensure that the numbers contained in the offering memorandum are accurate and are derived from the financial statements of the company either that we've audited or reviewed in the past and that's what we document in the comfort letter and deliver to the underwriters or to the bankers.
Q. And you identified in previous testimony certain steps that Arthur Andersen takes before issuing a comfort letter. What is the purpose of the steps that Arthur Andersen takes before issuing a comfort letter?
A. It kind of depends on the situation but the— purpose generally of post report review procedures is to gain information about events that have happened after the date of the auditor's report that might indicate that something either in the auditor's report as it was completed or in the current document -- the current offering memorandum may be inaccurate or misleading, and, if so, that normally the auditor would not consent -- although I'm not sure that we issued a consent in this case, but if it were misleading, then we would not consent to the inclusion of our report in their document or we would refuse to deliver the comfort letter.

Q. So you understood that those -- for example, refusing to deliver a comfort letter was an option available to Arthur Andersen?

A. Yes, stepping back, actually I didn't understand that to be an option. I don't know. As far as I know, we could have not delivered the comfort letter.

Q. And you mentioned a consent. Even though a consent wasn't required in March of 1998, did you understand that eventually, when there was a registration with the SEC, that Arthur Andersen would have to give its consent to allow its opinion to be used in that registration?

A. At that time I didn't understand how that was going to happen so it wasn't my understanding that eventually we would issue a consent, no.

Q. You understand, though, that in June of 1998 Arthur Andersen actually did withhold its consent from the use of financial statements when Sunbeam was seeking to register file registration with the SEC?

A. You refreshed my memory now. Yes, I'm aware of that.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Excuse me. I need to change the tape.

MS. BROWN: We can go off the record.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This is the end of Videotape No. 2. We are going off the record. The time is 2:04.

(Tape change)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. This is the beginning of the Videotape No. 3. The time is 2:05.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. So now that you've been refreshed about Arthur Andersen withholding its consent, did you have an understanding in March of 1998 that Arthur Andersen would eventually need to consent to the use of its financial statements in the registration of the notes associated with the offering memorandum?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: I do not recall understanding that at the time of March '98. I'm sure that others I worked with understood how this process would work. At that time, I don't think I understood that.

BY MS. BROWN:

Q. But you did understand that Arthur Andersen's financials and opinions were going to be included in the offering memorandum, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you understood that the offering memorandum would be distributed to investors?

A. Yes.

Q. And you reviewed at least portions of the offering memorandum, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And according to the post-audit review form, others reviewed the offering memorandum at Arthur Andersen as well, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. From your recollection, was there anything in the offering memorandum that you recall being misleading or false?

A. No.

Q. When you were performing the post audit reviews, you were communicating your findings with Mr. Bornstein on a near daily basis, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You've been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 25. I think it's probably the same as one of the other exhibits you've looked at today. For the record, it's CPH 01300341 to 50. And can you identify this document for the record?

A. This is a checklist we filled out for one of our post audit reviews in the first quarter of 1998 sometime, similar to the one we spoke about earlier.

Q. And if you look at the SEC filing on the second line of the first page of this document, states "10-K"; do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. It's Arthur Andersen's policy, correct, to perform a post-audit review prior the filing of 10-K?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you look at the second page, Number 2 and 2-A, there's no notation there regarding declining sales, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And those initials in the first column "Work Done By," those are your initials?

A. Correct.

Q. And all the handwriting after the first page, is that your handwriting?

A. Yes.

Q. Except for the signature at the end.

I'm going to hand you what will be marked Morgan Stanley Exhibit 26. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 26 is the P&L that you looked at earlier today and I think you identified the second two pages of that document or the last two pages -- I'm sorry, 26 to 27 were provided to you by Sunbeam; is that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Right.
Q. And, for the record, this document is CPH 0013023 to 27. But you do have a note on the second page of this document concerning decrease in sales?
A. Uh-huh, okay.
Q. So you were aware as of March 5, 1997 of the decrease in sales at Sunbeam for January '98 as compared to January of '97, correct?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
THE WITNESS: Can you repeat the question again?
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Sure. Let me strike it and I'll ask a different question.
As of March 5, 1998 you were aware of the decrease in sales of approximately a little over $43 million comparing January of '97 and January of '98, correct?
A. Right.
Q. And you provided this information to Mr. Bornstein?
A. Right.
Q. Did you provide this information to Morgan Stanley as of this date?
A. As of March 5th. I mean, I didn't provide it to them as of this date. I mean, I would imagine the first draft of the comfort letter that went that had the January numbers, the information was provided to them. We reviewed a draft of a comfort letter earlier that had sales information in it, and the first draft that was circulated had January sales information.

Q. Did you personally circulate that draft to Morgan Stanley?
A. I did not.
Q. Are you personally aware of anyone providing that draft to Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Now, the March 5th, post-audit review that you performed was for the filing of the 10-K of Sunbeam, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you performed subsequent post audit review forms after that for purposes of the comfort letter?
A. Correct.
Q. Again this is similar to a document that you were shown earlier today. For the record, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 27 is CPH 0012963 to 67. And you testified about this document previously. I'd just like you to look at the second page, Note A. You make reference there to a discussion with Lee Griffith and Al Lefebvre, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. Notes that "the company expects sales to recovery in the second quarter." Do you recall that discussion?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Also notes here that "The company has undertaken an aggressive marketing campaign, radio plus large ads in USA Today." Do you recall being informed by the company that they had taken steps such as this to address flagging sales?
A. Other than recalling it by reading what I'm reading here, I don't recall the specific discussion where that information was told to me.
Q. But you believe --
A. I believe this is accurate, yes.
Q. This P&L that's dated March 13, 1998, did you personally provide this document to Morgan Stanley?
A. I did not, no.
Q. Are you personally aware of anyone else from Arthur Andersen providing this document to Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
MS. BROWN: I'll mark two exhibits, 28 and 29.
Q. You've been handed Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28 and 29. For the record Morgan Stanley 28 is CPH 0129926 through 936 and Morgan Stanley Exhibit 29 is CPH 0129992 through 013. And you testified earlier about an exhibit similar to Morgan Stanley 28. This is a post audit review that you performed in approximately March 16th of 1998 for Sunbeam, related to Sunbeam, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And Morgan Stanley Exhibit 29, can you identify what that document is?
A. Appears to be the company's 1998 budget.
Q. This is a document that was provided to you by Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. Right.
Q. Do you recall who provided you with this document?
A. No.
Q. Looking at the second page of this document under Q1, do you see the company's budget for Q1 of 1998 for net sales was 308.5 million?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, referring back to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28, you testified earlier about the entry that you made on Page 4 of the memo which is at Bates Page 930 of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28.
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And the entries there on that last column in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28, are those entries that you typed in?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. You typed in "Such targets may be unattainable." When you were referring to "such targets" in terms of sales, you were referring to the 309 million, correct?
A. Right.
Q. You were not referring to the Wall Street analysts' projections for first quarter of 1998 for Sunbeam, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you were not referring to the net sales that Sunbeam had achieved in the first quarter of 1997, correct, when you said that such targets may be unattainable?
A. Correct.
Q. These post-audit review forms that you've looked at, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 28 and Morgan Stanley Exhibit 25, those are not documents that you provided to Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you're not personally aware of anybody else providing it to Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Indeed you would not have expected anybody to have provided those documents to Morgan Stanley, would you?
A. No.
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, which document are you referring to? Are they Andersen work papers?

MS. BROWN: The Anderson post-audit review forms that are Morgan Stanley Exhibits 25 and 28.
MR. MOSCATO: Okay.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. You also drafted the representation letter that Sunbeam management would supply to Arthur Andersen before Arthur Andersen issued its comfort letter, correct?
A. I probably did that, that's correct.
Q. Who else would have been involved in drafting those letters?
A. Mr. Bornstein might have been involved, Mr. Harlow might have reviewed them and provided some comments, but generally I would have drafted the majority of them.
Q. Did you yourself provide that draft to Sunbeam for them to then execute of the representation letter from Sunbeam management to Arthur Andersen?
A. I can't recall if I provided it to them or if Larry did, Mr. Bornstein, excuse me.
Q Do you recall any discussion letters with Sunbeam -- anyone at Sunbeam concerning the representation letter that they provided to Arthur Andersen in connection with the work that Arthur Andersen is doing for the comfort letters in March of 1998?

MR. JOHNSON: Can I hear that one back?
(The record was read.)
THE WITNESS: Was there a question for me?
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Let me simplify.
A. I don't remember any discussions with anybody about the management letter that we presented them to sign. I think that was the question, right, more or less the gist?
Q. You've been handed what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 30. For the record, this is CPH 0129687 to 89. Can you identify this document?
A. This is a copy of the management representation letter that we received in connection with issuing the March 19th comfort letter.
Q. And one of your previous statements may have been broad but I don't know if you covered this. Do you recall receiving -- did you personally receive this letter from Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall if I did or someone else did.
Q. Do you recall any discussions internally at Arthur Andersen concerning the representation letter that you received from Sunbeam management dated March 16, 1998?
A. No.
MS. BROWN: This exhibit will be two documents together.

Q. You've been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 31, which for the record is CPH 0041641 through 48. Can you identify this document?
A. This is a draft comfort letter, draft of the March 19th comfort letter.
Q. And this is a draft that you were e-mailing to Mr. Harlow, Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Brockelman?
A. Right.
Q. On the second page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 31 there's some text at the top beginning with "This draft is furnished," etcetera; do you see that?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And I believe it's the second sentence states, "Based on our discussions with Morgan, it's our understanding that the procedures outlined in this draft are those they wish us to follow." Based on your prior testimony, I take it those are not your discussions with Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And is this text at the top of the second page of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 31 a standard text that goes on a draft?
A. Yes.
Q. You don't know, for instance, that this reference to discussions with Morgan Stanley refers to actual discussions that occurred, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. It does refer to discussions. I mean, Morgan Stanley takes a copy of the offering document and circles all the numbers that they want us to comfort and what they want us to do, and then there's a dialogue that takes place about what the auditors can and can't do. So somewhere in the process that discussion was had. I didn't have it but there would have been a discussion. I personally did not have it, right.
Q. Did anyone relate to you the contents of such discussion?
A. No, other than handing me a copy of the document with the numbers circled to provide comfort on.
Q. And when you refer to someone handing you a copy of the document, you are referring to someone handing you a copy of the draft offering memorandum?
A. Correct.
Q. I think you've already testified but you personally did not provide a draft of the comfort memo to anyone outside of -- comfort letter to anyone outside of Arthur Andersen, correct?
A. That I can recall. I mean, somebody would have provided a draft to Morgan Stanley in advance of issuing the March 19th letter. That's normal practice, to give the underwriter a draft that would include this language.

Whether I delivered it via fax or Larry did or Mr. Brockelman did, or whoever did, you know, I don't know who it was. I don't recall doing it myself but one would have been delivered in advance.
Q. You're assuming that, correct? You don't have personal knowledge that that happened?
A. I don't have personal knowledge that that happened. I have knowledge that its suppose to happen in the process. It's normal that it does happen. I don't know that it actually did happen.
Q. Now, it was your understanding that the work that you had done in the post audit reviews in identifying the decline in sales prompted Arthur Andersen to say that it wouldn't be willing to issue a consent for the note offering if Sunbeam didn't add a recent development section to the offering memorandum, correct?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. I thought he was testifying before that the consent -- that he didn't have an understanding that there was a consent necessary for this part of the offer. That's why I'm objecting to the question. Maybe I heard it wrong. If you want to read it back.
(The record was read.)
THE WITNESS: Issue a consent to the offering memorandum? What are we talking about now? The offering memorandum was completed without a consent having been issued, right? We agreed the consent didn't have to be issued?

MR. MOSCATO: That's why I was objecting.
THE WITNESS: Are we in June now of '98?
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. No, we are talking in March of '98.
A. Okay.
MR. JOHNSON: What date do you have there?
MS. BROWN: April 29, 1999.
MR. MOSCATO: Are you going to ask him to -- are you going to refresh his recollection with something in the transcript that's demonstratively wrong because -- based on what we have talked about today? I don't understand where this is going. I mean, we've established that there wasn't a consent necessary. Everyone agrees to that. Now, if he said something erroneously in a prior transcript, I just don't see the point of this.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. There wasn't a consent necessary in March of '98, but you do understand that Arthur Andersen withheld the consent in June of 1998, correct?
A. Right.
Q. And if Arthur Andersen was going to withhold its consent based on what was in the text of the offering memorandum, it would have to inform Sunbeam of that prior to the offering memorandum being published, correct?

MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. If it knew in March of '98?
A. I mean, if it knew, Andersen should inform them in March that its going to withhold its consent, but it doesn't have to. I mean, Arthur Andersen can issue its comfort letter and express its opinion and people can go against that opinion. It's up to Arthur Andersen later on whether or not they want to issue a consent, right?
Q. But if Arthur Andersen expected, based on what it saw in the offering memorandum in March of 1998, that it could not based on that text issue a consent when the notes were eventually registered, then as a service or courtesy Arthur Andersen would tell Sunbeam that before the offering memorandum was published?
A. And maybe they did. Maybe they did and someone decided, well, let's just publish any way and maybe it will never get registered. I don't know. I just don't know about that. If they knew --
MR. MOSCATO: You've answered the question.
THE WITNESS: I'm done?
MR. MOSCATO: Yes. Wait for another question to be posed.

THE WITNESS: How about a coffee break?
MS. BROWN: Okay. Let's go off the record.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going off the record. The time is 2:32.
(Time noted: 2:32 p.m. to 2:34 p.m.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are back on the record. The time is 2:43.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Mr. Pastrana, do you recall a conversation with Mr. Bornstein where he told you that after reviewing the comfort letter -- draft comfort letter and the draft offering memorandum Arthur Andersen said that there was no way they would issue a consent unless Sunbeam added a recent events -- recent development section to the offering memorandum?
A. I do remember a conversation, something to that effect.
Q. And that conversation took place prior to the issuance of the press release by Sunbeam on March 19, 1998, correct?
A. I don't recall the timing. I believe it was prior to the issuance of the press release.
Q. Do you recall having any discussion after the issuance of the press release to the effect that Arthur Andersen still intended to withhold its consent from -- ultimately for the registration statement because it felt the offering memorandum was inaccurate?

A. I never heard anything one way or the other, whether Andersen intended to issue a consent or not issue a consent.
Q. Do you recall any follow-up conversation whatsoever to the conversation that you had with Mr. Bornstein where he initially indicated that unless Sunbeam added a recent development section to the offering memorandum, Arthur Andersen would withhold its consent?
A. I remember no conversation. Could you repeat the question again? I don't understand how that differs from the prior question.
Q. The prior question was you did recall a conversation with -- an initial conversation with Mr. Bornstein, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And my question --
MR. MOSCATO: I don't think that was the prior question he was talking about but go ahead.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. And my question was after that conversation with Mr. Bornstein where he initially said that Arthur Andersen would hold their consent, was there any subsequent conversation regarding that topic that you recall?

A. Subsequent to the press release, I don't recall any conversation.
Q. And you recall that Sunbeam put the substance of the press release into the offering memorandum?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: I recall something was put in the offering memorandum very similar to the wording in the press release, yes.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. I think you already said but let me clarify. There was nothing in the offering memorandum that you reviewed that you thought was false or misleading, correct?
A. I don't recall anything that was false or misleading.
Q. And you didn't make any comments on the offering memorandum other than verifying the numbers, correct?
A. That's right.
MR. MOSCATO: Well, I object to that. I think there needs to be some clarification. The thing where he verified numbers, I'm not sure was the final offering memorandum, was it?
MS. BROWN: I was referring to a draft.
MR. MOSCATO: To a draft, okay, that's fine. But for the record, I don't think that draft had the recent developments section but you guys can work that out.

BY MS. BROWN:
Q. After the inclusion of the recent development section with substance or language similar to what was in the press release, you still had the opinion that there was nothing false or misleading about the offering memorandum, correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: In regard to -- like the historical financial numbers that were in there? I mean, I think it was all accurate.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. Do you recall anything that you read with regard to the final offering memorandum that you thought was false or misleading?
A. Yeah, I mean, management's statement to the effect that they thought they were going to exceed sales for what they had achieved in the previous year. I mean, whether it's false or misleading, I really didn't know enough to judge but I certainly thought it was fairly bold to make that kind of a statement given what the results were at that point of the month but that was their choice.
Q. But you didn't think it was false or misleading?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: I thought they could have worded it differently. I thought they could have just said, "We're

CASE NO: CA 03-5045 AI

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant.
_____/

MORGAN STANLEY'S WRITTEN RESPONSES TO RULE 1.310 TOPICS

Pursuant to the agreement of the parties, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") provides the following written response to the following corporate deposition topic set forth in the Notice of Deposition issued by Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. The written response is based on current knowledge and a good faith search for information.

Corporate Deposition Topic

All fees, expenses, other compensation, or assets billed by or otherwise due to Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("MS&Co."), Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF"), or any of the their affiliates concerning or on behalf of Sunbeam Corp. (including American Household, Inc.) and all fees, expenses, other compensation, or assets paid or provided by or on behalf of Sunbeam Corp. (including American Household) to MS&Co., MSSF, or any of their affiliates.

Response

Morgan Stanley earned revenue from Sunbeam in three principal areas: (1) revenues earned through the provision of financial advisory services rendered in connection with Sunbeam's acquisitions of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands ("M&A Revenues"); (2) revenues earned through the underwriting of Sunbeam's offering of Zero-Coupon Convertible Debentures ("Underwriting Revenues"); and (3) revenues earned through Morgan Stanley's loan to Sunbeam ("Loan Revenues"). In some instances, Morgan Stanley also billed Sunbeam for expenses incurred in connection with these engagements. Each of these three revenue categories are addressed below.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

M&A Revenue – Morgan Stanley's records reflect that it earned a total of $13,540,047 from the provision of financial advisory services to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, First Alert, and Signature Brands. Morgan Stanley recorded $9,369,000 of this M&A Revenue in March 1998, and the remaining $4,171,000 in April 1998. In addition, Morgan Stanley invoiced Sunbeam for $264,863.60 in out-of-pocket expenses incurred in connection with the provision of these M&A services.

Morgan Stanley's records reflect the following M&A Revenues:

Coleman Acquisition	$9,369,429	Invoiced 3/31/98
Signature Brands Acquisition	$3,308,110	Invoiced 5/5/98
First Alert Acquisition	$2,866,958	Invoiced 5/5/98
Subtotal from all acquisitions	$15,544,497
Volume credit (3 transactions)	($500,000)	Invoiced 5/5/98
Subtotal	$15,044,497
10% paid to Llama Company	($1,504,450)	Paid 4/98 and 12/98
Total MS M&A Revenues	$13,540,047[1]

Morgan Stanley's records do not reflect any payments from Sunbeam in connection with the sale of Coleman Spas or the second stage of the Coleman acquisition. Morgan Stanley's records reflect that it did issue an invoice in the amount of $603,000 for fees and expenses related to the sale of Coleman Spas, but that invoice was never paid, and Morgan Stanley subsequently wrote off that amount.

[1] The M&A fees reflect an internal credit in the amount of $3,750,370 which was internally deducted from the underwriting fees for the convertible offering. This amount reflects an internal re-allocation of revenue between Equity Capital Markets and M&A. (See MSC0107432.)

The foregoing information was compiled by Morgan Stanley's controllers from the Company's books and records. Other documents reflecting fee information (including Morgan Stanley Confidential 0080421) appear to reflect a calculation of fees payable to Morgan Stanley under certain assumptions or scenarios. Those documents do not reflect the revenues actually invoiced or received by Morgan Stanley.

Underwriting Revenues – Morgan Stanley's records reflect that it earned a total of $18,178,185 in connection with the services it performed as the underwriter of Sunbeam's Zero-Coupon Convertible Debenture Offering. The Underwriting Revenues earned by Morgan Stanley are summarized in the following table:

Management Fees	$4,501,290
Underwriting Fees	$751,290[2]
Gross Selling Concessions	$15,549,030
Less Losses On Cover of Oversell	($2,049,188)
Less Expenses	($598,449)
Total	$18,153,973

As set forth in the table, the gross selling concessions from the offering were $15,549,030. However, the Sunbeam debenture offering was oversubscribed. To cover the oversubscription, Morgan Stanley purchased debentures in the secondary market, realizing losses of $2,049,188 in connection with these efforts. This resulted in net selling concessions of $13,499,842.

Loan Revenues – Morgan Stanley's records reflect that it earned the following revenues in connection with its loan to Sunbeam:

1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	9/30/2004

[2] The M&A fees reflect an internal credit in the amount of $3,750,370 which was internally deducted from the underwriting fees for the convertible offering. This amount reflects an internal re-allocation of revenue between Equity Capital Markets and M&A. (See MSC0107432.)

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. BRODY:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Brockelman. As I explained, my name is Mike Brody. I represent Coleman (Parent) Holdings in this case. I'm going to ask you some questions this morning.

Would you please state your name and spell your last name for the court reporter.

A. Mark Brockelman, B-r-o-c-k-e-l-m-a-n.

Q. And, Mr. Brockelman, I understand you have been deposed before?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. So you're aware that you're under oath just as if you were at trial?

A. Yes.

Q. I will be asking you some questions today on behalf of my client. I represent Coleman (Parent) Holdings, which is an affiliate of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.

Are you familiar with MacAndrews & Forbes and Coleman (Parent)?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. And Mr. Clare is here on behalf of Morgan Stanley.

You're aware that Morgan Stanley operated as

Page 6

Sunbeam's investment bank in some transactions that closed in 1998?

A. Yes, I am aware.

Q. Are you aware that there is a lawsuit between Coleman (Parent) Holdings and Morgan Stanley arising out of that transaction?

A. Yes.

Q. Your testimony is being taken in connection with that case, sir.

The sale of Coleman (Parent) Holdings' interest in Coleman to Sunbeam took place in the first quarter of 1998. Do you recall that?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And at that time, early 1998, Sunbeam was based here in Florida; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Do you remember where their office was?

A. In Delray Beach.

Q. And at that time, in 1998, did Arthur Andersen provide accounting services to Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

Q. And, sir, did you work on that engagement?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Before we focus on the work you did on that engagement for Sunbeam, I'd like to ask you some questions about your background and what you did before March of 1998.

Mr. Brockelman, where did you attend high school? Where did you grow up?

A. Luther North, which is in Chicago, Illinois.

Q. Did you then attend college?

A. Yes, I did. I went to Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Q. Did you receive a degree from Marquette?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What degree did you receive?

A. Bachelor of arts in accounting.

Q. When did you receive that degree?

A. 1992.

Q. You're laughing. I recall in a prior deposition there was some confusion about that date.

A. That's correct.

MR. MOSCATO: That's putting it mildly.

BY MR. BRODY:

Q. Mr. Brockelman, when you were in school at Marquette, did you work in the field of accountancy?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you do?

A. I had an internship at Johnson Controls.

Q. In Milwaukee?

Page 8

A. In Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Q. When you graduated from college, did you take a job in the accounting field?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And where did you take that job?

A. Arthur Andersen.

Q. In what city?

A. In Chicago, Illinois.

Q. Since then, since you graduated from school, have you become certified as a certified public accountant?

A. In Illinois.

Q. What does one need to do to become a certified public accountant?

A. Sit for the examination and have two years' experience.

Q. And you passed that examination and had the required experience?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. You were certified as a CPA in Illinois?

A. In Illinois, that's correct.

Q. Is that where you were when you sat for the exam?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now did there come a time after you started at Arthur Andersen that you moved to a different office within the company?

A. Yes.
Q. What office did you move to?
A. West Palm Beach, Florida.
Q. And when did you move to West Palm Beach, approximately?
A. Approximately -- let me back up my time frame here real quickly. I believe that was 1996.
Q. And did you remain -- let me state that differently.
Did you stay in the West Palm Beach office of Arthur Andersen for the remainder of your tenure at Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. You didn't move to any other offices?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now what was your initial position when you joined Arthur Andersen? What was your job title?
A. Staff.
Q. And how long approximately were you a staff accountant at Arthur Andersen?
A. For two years.
Q. So that would be '92 to '94, about?
A. That's correct.

Page 10

Q. Were you then promoted?
A. Yes, I was promoted.
Q. What was the next position you held?
A. Senior.
Q. What's the difference in responsibility between a staff accountant and a senior accountant?
A. A senior will supervise the staff on an audit engagement.
Q. And how long were you a senior?
A. For three years.
Q. Were you then promoted again?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. To what position?
A. Audit manager.
Q. And what are the differences of responsibilities for an audit manager as opposed to a senior?
A. Audit manager will supervise the entire engagement from the planning to the actual audit procedures to the actual wrap-up of the audit and will report directly to the partner of engagement.
Q. Did you remain an audit manager for the remainder of your tenure at Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. At the time you did work on the Sunbeam matter in the first half of 1998, were you an audit manager?

A. I was a senior at the very beginning of my Sunbeam work.
Q. And then you became a manager?
A. That is correct.
Q. When did you leave Arthur Andersen?
A. It was June of 2000.
Q. After you left Arthur Andersen, what position did you take?
A. Vice-president of finance with American Media Operations.
Q. Where is American Media Operations based?
A. Our headquarters is in Boca Raton, but I work out of our Delray Beach office.
Q. Are you still with American Media?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. And what is your current position?
A. Vice-president of finance.
Q. Can you just briefly describe for us what the responsibilities of the vice-president of finance are at American Media?
A. Run the day-to-day finance, budgeting and the cash flows of the company, supervise the accounting closes and so forth.

Page 12

Q. Okay. To whom do you report? What position do you report?
A. The CFO of the company.
Q. That's the chief financial officer?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. Returning to the work that Arthur Andersen did for Sunbeam back in the 1998 time frame, are you aware that Arthur Andersen performed audit services for Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you participate in the audit of -- the audit that Arthur Andersen performed of Sunbeam in 1996?
A. No.
Q. Did you participate in Arthur Andersen's audit of Sunbeam in 1997?
A. No.
Q. Focusing on the work that Arthur Andersen did for Sunbeam, when did you become involved in that work?
A. I'm sorry, can you repeat the question one more time?
Q. Sure. When did you become involved in the work that Arthur Andersen performed for Sunbeam?
A. It was during the bond offering for the Coleman deal.

Page 13

Q. If I were to tell you that the bond offering closed at the end of March, 1998, would that be consistent with your recollection of when you worked?
A. That's my recollection.
Q. Do you remember how soon before the bond offering you started working on the Sunbeam matter?
A. Approximately two months before.
Q. And how long did you work on the project?
A. Until the close of the bond offering.
Q. Okay. With whom did you work? What other accountants at Arthur Andersen?
A. Worked primarily with Larry Bornstein. I also worked with Dennis Pastrana, but I reported directly to Larry Bornstein.
Q. What projects do you recall working on in connection with the bond offering?
A. I helped draft the pro forma financial results which went into the bond offering.
I also verified the historical data within the bond offering.
Q. Any other projects you remember working on?
A. We're just talking about the bond offering at this point?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. Yes, that's it.

Page 14

Q. In connection with the work you did on the bond offering, did you do any due diligence?
A. No, I did not.
Q. That was done by others; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. You mentioned the pro formas and said you helped draft the pro formas.
Can you explain what a pro forma is?
A. Pro forma basically means as if. You take the historical information and adjust them for the transaction at hand.
Q. And what is it that you did in working on the pro formas?
A. With the help of the Sunbeam company, Bob Gluck actually created a spreadsheet for the various periods, the balance sheets and income statements, and adjusted them for the transactions based on the accounting rules and guidelines.
Q. Did those pro forma documents that you worked on find their way into the offering memorandum?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. All right. You also indicated that you did some work in verifying historical data?
A. That's correct.
Q. What do you mean by that?

Page 15

A. Any information that was in the bond offering that related to historical data, it was verified by me. And also I maintain a file that supported the historical data within the bond offering.
MR. MOSCATO: Mark, I just want to clarify, when you say historical information in the bond offering, do you mean in the offering memorandum?
THE WITNESS: In the offering memorandum, excuse me, let me rephrase that. Within the offering memorandum.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. And just so we're clear, by offering memorandum, you mean the document that was used to sell the securities to the people who bought them?
A. That is correct, yes.
Q. Now in connection with the work that you did with the bond offering, did you do any work on Arthur Andersen's comfort letter?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. What is a comfort letter?
A. Comfort letter is a letter provided by the auditors in connection with a registration statement.
Q. And who do they provide it to?
A. It's provided, I believe, if I recall correctly, to the company. And also to the underwriters.

Q. Okay. Do you recall what your involvement was in connection with the comfort letter?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. Primarily related to the tick marks that are within the comfort letter. By the tick marks, they are defined work that is performed by the auditors on the actual offering memorandum such as tracing to company-provided documentation.
Q. Who else was involved with the comfort letter?
A. To my knowledge, Larry Bornstein and Dennis Pastrana.
Q. Do you recall when the drafting of the comfort letter began?
Do you remember the date on which it began?
A. Not exactly.
Q. I may show you some documents, sir, that will refresh your recollection. We'll come back to that.
Did you provide any of, to your recollection, did you provide any of the information that was put into the comfort letter?
A. What do you mean by information?
Q. Well, the comfort letter contained data and information about the company, didn't it? Do you recall?

MR. MOSCATO: Would it be helpful if you saw the comfort letter, Mark, to answer this question?
THE WITNESS: Yeah, potentially that may help.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. I think that's a good way to go. Let me provide that.
Mr. Brockelman, I'm giving you what previously has been marked as CPH Exhibit 17. That's a letter on the letterhead of Arthur Andersen dated March 19.
I'm going to ask you just to look at that and tell me if that's a comfort letter.
A. Yes, this is a comfort letter.
Q. And is this the comfort letter that was sent to Morgan Stanley in connection with the bond offering, to your recollection?
A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. Sir, is this the final version, the final version of the letter?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
MR. BRODY: Let me withdraw that.

Page 18

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Do you know if any comfort letters were sent after this one?
A. Yes, I do know.
Q. Was a comfort letter sent in connection with this transaction after the draft that you see as -- excuse me, the version marked as Exhibit 17?
A. Yes.
Q. When was that sent?
A. It's called a bring-down letter when it finalizes. I don't know the exact date of that.
Q. Okay. We'll come back to that. Thank you.
This document is signed by someone on behalf of Arthur Andersen.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who put pen to paper and signed the document, do you recall?
A. To my recollection, it was Larry Bornstein who had the authorization from the partner, Phil Harlow, to sign on his behalf.
Q. Do you know, were you present when Mr. Bornstein signed the comfort letter?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. And when was that, to your recollection?
A. I don't know the exact date. It was the night at the printer's.

Q. And after Mr. Bornstein signed the document at the printer's, do you know what he did with it? Did he give it to somebody?
A. Yes, he did. I don't recall who received copies.
Q. Do you know if at that time a copy was given to someone for or on behalf of Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. The question that caused me to show you this document related to the date, or information rather, contained in the information.
I'd ask you please to turn to page three of the document we have marked as Exhibit 17.
For example, paragraph 5A and 5B contains information about the operations of Sunbeam.
Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is that information that you collected?
A. No.
Q. Is it information that you were responsible for putting into the document?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who provided that information?
A. Dennis Pastrana.

Page 20

Q. Prior to this comfort letter being signed and given to Morgan Stanley at the printer, do you know if a draft was sent to Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. And was a draft sent to Morgan Stanley?
A. To my knowledge.
Q. Do you know when that was sent?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know how long in advance of the meeting at the printer's it was sent?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Could you estimate in terms of days or weeks?
MR. CLARE: Objection.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Anything?
A. No, I really can't.
Q. Prior to Mr. Bornstein delivering the signed copy of the letter to Morgan Stanley at the printer's, do you know if Morgan Stanley had a copy of the comfort letter?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
THE WITNESS: I do not know.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Did you ever see someone from Morgan Stanley or their lawyers with a copy?

A. No.
Q. Returning to the letter, sir, paragraph 6C, paragraph six begins on page four, but paragraph 6C is on page five, contains additional information about the status of the company.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you collect the information that is found in paragraph 6C?
A. No.
Q. Did you do anything to analyze or prepare that portion of the letter?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who prepared the information or collected the information that's found in paragraph 6C?
A. Dennis Pastrana.
MR. MOSCATO: Let me just have a word. There is no question pending.
MR. BRODY: Correct. That's fine.
(witness confers with counsel).
MR. BRODY: Are you all set?
MR. MOSCATO: Yes.
If it comes up --
THE WITNESS: Okay.
MR. BRODY: Please mark this as our next exhibit, which I believe is Exhibit 115.

(CPH Exhibit No. 115 was marked for identification.)
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I've asked the court reporter to mark and have given to you a document marked as CPH Exhibit 115. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you recognize that this is a draft of the comfort letter?
A. Yes, it has the stamp on top.
Q. By that, you mean the Preliminary, Intended For Discussions Only stamp?
A. That's correct.
Q. Aside from discussions with your counsel, have you ever seen this document before?
A. I've seen several draft versions of the offering memorandum. I couldn't tell you if I actually saw this specific version.
MR. MOSCATO: You said of the offering memorandum again.
THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, the comfort letter.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. The comfort letter that was done in connection with the offering memorandum?

Page 23

A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. You indicated that you've seen several drafts. Did you make revisions to drafts?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Do you remember anything that you changed or added?
A. Several things. I couldn't name one specific item, but certainly several items changed throughout the drafting of the comfort letter.
Q. Do you remember anything that you changed as opposed to things that might have just been changed in the process?
A. Nothing specifically.
Q. Okay. Focusing on the draft we've marked as Exhibit 115, there is some handwriting on it. Do you recognize any of that handwriting?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is any of it yours?
A. No.
Q. Do you know whose handwriting it is?
A. Yes.
Q. And whose is it?
A. Larry Bornstein's.
Q. The document on its first page contains a fax tag line indicating it was faxed from Global Financial

Page 24

Press on the 19th of March in 1998.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you believe that's the night or the evening that you were at the printer?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And it was sent at almost midnight, 12 minutes to midnight.
Were you at the printer at that time?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Do you remember any discussions, sir, at the printer about a draft of the comfort letter or making any changes to the comfort letter?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. With whom were those discussions? Who participated in those discussions?
A. Larry Bornstein.
Q. Anyone else?
A. I don't recall anybody else. I know there were discussions. I couldn't tell you names of anybody else.
Q. And focusing on discussions about the comfort letter as opposed to other discussions at the printer that evening, what do you remember being discussed?

A. With regard to changes to the comfort letter?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. My specific part was to ensure that all the numbers were correct. My job was to place all the tick marks throughout the actual exhibit part of the comfort letter.
I wanted to point out this wasn't the entire comfort letter, so specifically that was my job to change the comfort letter in that fashion, to dropping the tick marks on the exhibits.
Q. Just so we're clear, the document we've marked as Exhibit 115 doesn't have the tick marks on it, does it?
A. It has the, the narrative on it, but it does not have the actual comfort letter pages that had the tick marks on it.
Q. And if we return to the document that had been marked as Exhibit 17, the signed copy of the comfort letter.
A. Yes.
Q. And turn to page six and seven of the document.
A. Yes.
Q. Does that have the key for the tick marks?

Page 26

A. That is correct.
Q. And was it your job to place those appropriate marks on the exhibits in the areas to which they correspond?
A. That's correct.
Q. And is that something you did the evening you were at the printer?
A. That is correct.
Q. Do you remember any discussions, aside from that topic, do you remember any discussions about the language of the comfort letter or the statements made in the comfort letter at the printer?
A. I do.
Q. What do you recall being discussed?
A. I do want to preface that my knowledge is a little bit hazy at this point, but I do remember discussions regarding disclosure.
Q. Disclosure of what?
A. Are we talking about the comfort letter or the offering memorandum in general?
Q. Let's just try to narrow it first to the comfort letter.
A. To the comfort letter itself.
As far as the comfort letter, no, no significant discussions related to the comfort letter.

Page 27

Q. Okay, thank you.
Okay. Now let's talk a little more generally about the discussions that took place that evening at the printer's. You've already testified that you were present at the printer's?
A. Yes.
Q. And the printer's name was Global Financial Press?
A. Yes.
Q. Where, what city is Global Financial Press located in?
A. New York City.
Q. And who did you attend that meeting with? Who went with you to that meeting?
A. Larry Bornstein.
Q. Now for those not familiar with an evening at the printer's, what is it like? Do you go to a print shop or do you go to offices?
What type of facility did you visit?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: It was a print facility, and we were in a conference room.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Were there more rooms than just the one conference room?

Page 28

A. Yes, correct.
Q. How long were you there, from the time you arrived to the time you left?
A. I don't recall precisely, but I estimate about ten hours.
Q. And what was your purpose in going to the printer's that evening?
A. To update the comfort letter.
Q. Anything else?
A. No.
Q. Did you look at draft documents that the printer had prepared and decide whether they were appropriate or not?
A. Yes, as part of the comfort letter.
Q. Can you explain how it is you did that, what you were doing?
A. A final update to the pro forma information. As pages turned, you would compare what you submitted to the final version.
Q. Okay.
MR. BRODY: Can we go off the record for just a second.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video record. The time on the monitor is 9:38 a.m.

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, before we went off the record, we were talking about the evening at the printer's. I'd like to return to that topic.
What document was being printed?
A. The offering memorandum.
Q. And that was the offering memorandum by which Sunbeam raised money to finance its acquisitions?
A. That's correct.
Q. And was the pro forma that you worked on being included in that offering memorandum?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. Now you indicated in a response to a prior question that as certain pages were turned, you checked them.
What was it that you meant by that? What did you do?
A. The historical and pro forma financial information that was in the document, if there was any changes or adjustments to those numbers, I would check and ensure that they were properly changed.
Q. So as the printer prepared draft pages, you checked them to make sure they were still accurate?

Page 30

A. That's correct.
Q. Now at the time of this meeting at the printer in New York, you were officed in Florida; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you traveled to New York to go to the printer's?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you travel with Mr. Bornstein?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware that the day you visited the printer, Sunbeam issued a press release about its sales results?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. And did you have any involvement in drafting or revising the press release?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Were you aware of the press release before it was issued?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Do you remember where you were when you learned that Sunbeam had issued the press release?
A. Yes.
Q. And where was that?
A. At the hotel. I do not recall what hotel I was staying at with Larry Bornstein, but we were in his room in the hotel.

Q. Then how did you learn about the press release?
A. We saw on a news channel the disclosure on the press release.
Q. What do you remember the news channel or the news story reported about Sunbeam's press release?
A. It gave a forecasted number. That's all I recall.
Q. Do you remember after you and Mr. Bornstein saw the mention of the press release whether you had a discussion about it at that time in the hotel?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember discussing?
A. Larry made a comment that he didn't believe the number that was disclosed would be obtainable.
Q. And that was after Mr. Bornstein saw the press release?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. It's inconsistent with his testimony.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. When was that discussion with Mr. Bornstein?
A. After we saw the news report.

Page 32

Q. Okay.
MR. MOSCATO: Did you see the press release at all?
THE WITNESS: No, I just want to make sure we're talking about a news release, not a press release.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. I understand. You didn't see the actual press release?
A. That's correct.
Q. Released at that time.
I'd now like to focus on -- let me withdraw that.
Did you go from the hotel to the printer?
A. Yes.
Q. I'd now like to focus on the events that took place at the printer.
Sir, was the, were these events at the printer the same day as the press release came out?
A. Again, I don't recall a press release. The same day of that news release, yes.
Q. Okay. And who participated in these meetings at the printer? Who was there?
A. I was there certainly, Larry Bornstein. We were the team from Arthur Andersen.

Q. Sure. Do you know who was there from Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't recall any names, no.
Q. If I mentioned name John Tyree, does that refresh your recollection?
A. Yes, John Tyree was there.
Q. Do you remember if there was anyone else there from Morgan Stanley?
A. There was. Again, I don't recall any names.
Q. Were there lawyers there on behalf of Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. Were there lawyers there on behalf of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if there was any business person there on behalf of Sunbeam?
A. No, there was not.
Q. As you sit here, do you remember the names of the lawyers there on behalf of either Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley?
A. No, I do not.

Page 34

Q. And do you remember the names of their law firms?
A. No, I do not.
Q. If I were to suggest that attorneys from Scadden Arps represented Sunbeam, would that refresh your recollection?
A. Yes, that does.
Q. Were there lawyers from Scadden there?
A. There was.
Q. Do you remember the names?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Are you familiar with the firm of Davis Polk?
A. Yes, they were the attorneys for the underwriters, I believe.
Q. Again, do you remember the names of the individuals lawyers?
A. No, I do not.
Q. At the printer's that evening, do you recall discussion about what disclosure should be put in the offering memorandum?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I remember a discussion, yes.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Who participated in this discussion?

Page 35

A. Larry Bornstein to myself.
Q. So Mr. Bornstein discussed with you?
A. That's correct.
Q. What do you remember Mr. Bornstein saying?
A. I don't recall the exact substance of the conversation. Just it related to disclosures in the offering memorandum.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein participating in a discussion with the Morgan Stanley representatives about disclosures in the offering memorandum?
A. Yes.
Q. Would this be between Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Tyree?
A. Yes. There were also other people involved in the conversation. He's the only one I remember.
Q. What do you remember being discussed?
A. I don't recall specifically. It just again related to disclosures within the offering memorandum.
Q. Do you remember what position Mr. Bornstein was taking?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you remember what position Mr. Tyree was taking?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Mr. Brockelman, this conversation at the printer's took place in 1998; is that correct?

Page 36

A. Yes.
Q. And we're now sitting here in 2004. Between then and now, did you give other testimony in which you described what happened that evening at the printer's?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. All right. And it's correct, sir, isn't it, that you were deposed in connection with other litigation arising out of this transaction in which you testified about a number of topics, including the events at the printer's?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Do you remember when that deposition took place?
A. It was a couple of years ago.
MR. BRODY: Do you need a copy?
MR. MOSCATO: I wouldn't mind if you have an extra one.
BY MR. BRODY:

A. Yes, correct.
Q. And at the time you gave that testimony, the events of March 1998 were closer in time; is that correct?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. I'd ask you, please, to review your prior testimony and then I'm going to ask if it refreshes your recollection of the events of that evening. So if you would please turn to page 190. Let me give you a more specific page and line, and see if you recall.

Q. Have you had a chance to look at those pages, sir?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Does reviewing your testimony from 2001 refresh your recollection about the events of the evening of March 19, 1998?
A. To a certain extent.
Q. Do you recall, having refreshed your recollection to that extent, do you recall what discussion Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Tyree had on the evening of March 19 about what should be disclosed in the offering memorandum concerning Sunbeam sales?
MR. MOSCATO: Mark, why don't you close the thing and then tell him.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. I think that's a good idea.
A. Yeah. Honestly, I still do not recall the exact conversations held there.
Q. Do you remember in substance the conversations held there?

A. It generally related to the projections for the first quarter, but as far as the actual figures and amounts, I don't recall.
Q. Putting aside the figures and amounts, did Mr. Bornstein express a view about whether the projections of sales for the first quarter should be included or not?
A. He felt that they should not be included and that they were not going to make analyst expectations for the first quarter.
Q. Do you remember anything else Mr. Bornstein said in words or in substance about that subject?
A. No. That's the extent of my knowledge.
Q. Do you remember what Mr. Tyree from Morgan Stanley said in response to what Mr. Bornstein said?
A. No.
Q. Did there come a time that evening in which Mr. Tyree discussed Mr. Bornstein out of the presence of Mr. Bornstein; that is, in your presence, but while Mr. Bornstein was not there?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember happening in that conversation?
A. I wasn't involved in the conversation, but I was in the same conference room when he was making the comments.

Basically John Tyree was very upset and used certain profanity directed at Larry Bornstein.
Q. Do you remember what he was upset about?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
MR. BRODY: Let me rephrase it.

Q. Was he upset with Mr. Bornstein?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
THE WITNESS: It appeared he was upset at Larry Bornstein, yes.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Do you remember in words or substance what he said in that conversation?
A. No, I do not.
Q. As you sit here, I know it's been a number of years, do you remember any of the precise things that he said?

A. All I could remember is, you know, him saying Larry Bornstein is a fucking asshole. That's the extent of my recollection of the words he used.
Q. So those words stuck with you?
A. Yeah, exactly.
Q. Do you remember other participants in this conversation? Let me withdraw that.
Do you remember other participants at the printer's aside from Mr. Tyree, for example, the Scadden lawyers, the Davis Polk lawyers, saying anything about the disclosure issue?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Was Mr. Tyree upset about the things that Mr., the position Mr. Bornstein was taking?
MR. CLARE: Objection, calls for speculation.
THE WITNESS: He appeared upset.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. On what do you base that? Why do you believe he appeared upset?
A. Profanity he used.
Q. Did he raise his voice?
A. Yes.
Q. When Mr. Tyree made these comments, you were in the conference room; is that correct?

Page 42

A. Yes.
Q. Were the comments directed to you or were they directed to others?
A. Directed to others.
Q. Do you know to whom they were directed?
A. No, I do not.
Q. One or another of the lawyers?
A. The other attorneys, that's correct.
Q. At the time Mr. Tyree made these statements, was Mr. Bornstein present?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein later return to the room?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. And did you relate what Mr. Tyree had said to Mr. Bornstein?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know how the disclosure issue was resolved?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
MR. BRODY: Let me withdraw that.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Do you know how the issue that Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Tyree discussed that evening was resolved in the offering memorandum?
A. I don't recall.

Page 43

Q. Aside from the discussions you've recounted so far, do you recall any other discussions that evening at the printer?
A. Not specifically.
Q. Do you remember when in the evening or in the morning hours you and Mr. Bornstein left the printer? Was it the following morning or was it --
A. It was in the morning time. I'm not quite sure what exact time.
Q. Now, Mr. Brockelman, a moment ago you had a chance to review the testimony you gave in 2001 about this subject; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And having done that, that refreshed your recollection to an extent and you've testified about that; is that correct?
A. To a certain extent, yes.
Q. And it's my understanding you don't recall anything else concerning those events?
A. That's correct.
Q. At the time you gave the testimony that you gave in 2001, did you testify based on your recollection of the events at that time?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And does the transcript I showed you, the transcript from 2001 contain your testimony, record your past recollection about those events?

Page 44

A. Yes, it does.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
MR. BRODY: And what's that objection?
MR. CLARE: You only asked him to read a few pages of his deposition transcript, and I think it's improper to ask him whether the entire transcript is consistent with his current recollection.
MR. BRODY: Okay, well, I don't think that was my question.
MR. CLARE: Or whether it was based on his recollection at that point in time, when he's only had a chance to review a few pages of it.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Have you reviewed the transcript of your 2001 deposition at any time within the last six months?
A. No.
Q. Sir, to deal with Mr. Clare's objection, I'd ask you to go back, and I hate to do this to you but just to read a few additional pages of the transcript.
I'd ask you to read your transcript beginning at page 187. I believe you started reading at 190. So just read from 187 to 190, and I'm going to ask you a couple of questions?

MR. MOSCATO: I don't want to be an obstructionist, but what's the purpose of his reading?
MR. BRODY: Just to establish past recollection recorded.
MR. MOSCATO: I object. I don't think that's the proper way to do it, but it's your deposition, so do what you think is best.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Okay, you've had a chance to read that?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And Mr. Bornstein -- excuse me, Mr. Brockelman, at the time you gave the testimony you gave in 2001, you testified based on your recollection of those events?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And as I believe you testified today, you no longer have recollection of those specific events beyond what you've testified about in your prior testimony?
A. That's correct.
Q. You've had a chance to review pages 187 through 202 of your transcript from 2001; is that correct?

Page 46

A. Yes.
Q. And aside from the extent to which it has refreshed your recollection, you do not have recollection of those events; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. At the time you testified in 2001, the events were sufficiently fresh in your memory that your testimony was, to your knowledge, true and correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And does those pages from Exhibit 116 correctly reflect the testimony you gave in 2001 concerning the events at the printer?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Sir, after the, after you gave your testimony in 2001, do you know if you had an opportunity to review the transcript?
A. It was provided to me, but I did not review it.
Q. As you sit here, do you recall ever making any changes or corrections in the transcript to change things that were not correct?
A. I did not.
Q. After the events at the printer, did you return to Florida?

Page 47

A. Yes.
Q. Did you continue to work on the Sunbeam transaction?
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, continue to work on what?
MR. BRODY: On the Sunbeam -- I said transaction. I should have said Sunbeam engagement.
THE WITNESS: Only from an administrative standpoint, making sure the proper documents were filed and so forth.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. After the events of March 19, did you ever review a memorandum prepared by Mr. Bornstein describing what happened that evening?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. I'm going to show you what's previously been marked as Exhibit 114, and I'd ask you just to look at that.
MR. BRODY: And, counsel, I'm going to give you copies of the identical document, but it bears a different exhibit stamp on it. We've not had a chance to recopy the one --
MR. MOSCATO: That's fine. Appreciate it.

Page 48

MR. CLARE: That was marked as CPH 114?
MR. BRODY: Yes, I'm going to describe that. I'm sorry, sir, could I have Exhibit 114 back just so I can make my statement on the record.
Just for the record, Exhibit 114 which was previously marked is another version of the document I've given counsel a copy of, the one that was marked for purposes of the deposition exhibit, bears a Bates stamp Morgan Stanley confidential 0027048 through 50.
The one I've handed to counsel is slightly different dates, but it appears to be the same document. You can check.
MR. CLARE: I'll note for the record CPH Exhibit 114 bears some fax transmittal pages from the 2001 time period that I believe were there in connection with the prior litigation. It's not on the copy that was provided to counsel, but I don't think it's material.
MR. BRODY: I don't think so either, and I don't intend to ask about that, but thank you, Tom.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I've given you what's been marked as Exhibit 114. Did you see this at or about

Page 49

March 31, 1998?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And it's a memorandum drafted by Mr. Bornstein?
A. That is correct.
Q. Concerning the events at the printer?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you read the document back in March of 1998 or thereabouts?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And at the time did you form an opinion as to whether it correctly stated what happened at the printer or not?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And what view did you form?
A. That this was the proper events that unfolded that evening.
Q. And we've already asked you to testify about your recollection of that event.
Does this document refresh your recollection further about what happened that evening?
A. It does not refresh my recollection, but at the time I confirmed to Larry Bornstein that I agree with this memo.
Q. And at the time, you mean back in March of 1998?

A. That's correct.
Q. And at that time the events were fresh in your mind?
A. That is correct.
Q. And to your recollection, does Exhibit 114 accurately describe the events that took place that evening?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
MR. MOSCATO: To the extent you had involvement in those events.
MR. BRODY: Thank you for that. I'll accept that friendly amendment.
THE WITNESS: Yes, to the extent I had involvement, I confirmed at that time this was the proper discussion.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. And by the, to the extent you have involvement, there are certain conversations in here that Mr. Bornstein relates that took place out of your presence?
A. That is correct.
Q. And as to those, you can neither confirm nor deny them?
A. That's correct.

Page 51

Q. Okay. Thank you. You can put that document aside, sir.
Earlier in your testimony today, Mr. Brockelman, you described the bring-down letter which you I believe said was part of the work you did in this matter.
A. Yes.
Q. Am I referring to it by a name you understand, the bring-down letter?
A. Yes, you are.
Q. Were you involved in the preparation of the bring-down letter?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. What was the nature of your involvement?
A. To check it with accuracy to our professional standards.
Q. What was involved in checking the letter, to make sure it was accurate in keeping with your professional standards?
A. There is certain prescribed standards for the letter. It was drafted by Dennis Pastrana, and I checked the narrative to ensure it matched our accounting guidance for that.
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I'm going to show you what was marked previously as Exhibit 112.

Page 52

Are the second and third pages of this exhibit the bring-down letter?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. And the first and the fourth pages of those just part of the work papers of Arthur Andersen?
A. It appears to be.
Q. Focusing on the letter portion, the second and third pages, do you believe that was sent to Morgan Stanley on or about March 25th, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Looking at item E, which begins on the bottom of the first page and continues to the top of the second page, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And that item E was intended to amend prior statements contained in the March 19th letter; is that correct?
A. Yes, that is correct.
Q. And turning to the second page of the document, sir -- excuse me, the third page of the document, page two of the letter, it recites the net sales and net income through March 1997 for one period and through March 1998 in the other period for Sunbeam; is that correct?
MR. CLARE: I object. Mischaracterizes the document.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

MR. BRODY: Let me just ask it differently.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. What are those numbers at the top of the second page of your letter intended to show? By your letter, I meant the Arthur Andersen letter.
MR. MOSCATO: He's objecting because you gave the wrong dates. If you try again with the right dates --
MR. BRODY: Okay.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, does this letter show the net sales and net income figures for the period December 30, 1996 through March 2, 1997, and December 29, 1997, through March 1, 1998, for Sunbeam?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. Do you know where that information came from?
A. Came from the company, from Sunbeam.
Q. Did you have anything to do with collecting those numbers?
A. No.
Q. In the text after the numbers I just recited, it refers to a one-time charge for, of $30 million for compensation.
Do you see that?

Page 54

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is that information that you had anything to do with collecting?
A. No.
Q. Net of that $30 million charge, this letter shows Sunbeam suffering a loss of nearly $11 million through the first two months of 1998; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any discussions with anyone at Morgan Stanley about this letter or the subject matter, the contents of the letter?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley ever call you and ask you a question about this letter or the prior comfort letter that you looked at?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley ever called anyone at Arthur Andersen to discuss the sales and net income figures for these months that are contained in Exhibit 112?
MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.
THE WITNESS: Not to my knowledge.

Page 55

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Do you know if a draft of this bring-down due diligence letter was provided to Morgan Stanley prior to March 25th?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know if you personally worked on or made changes to prior drafts?
A. Yes.
Q. What changes do you -- excuse me, let me withdraw that.
What work do you remember doing on those prior letters?
A. I don't recall specifically, but it related to making changes to the narrative in the letter.
Q. And when you refer to the narrative, any particular --
A. The nonnumerical tables.
Q. I understand. As you sit here and with this letter in front of you, do you remember any changes that you personally made?
A. No, I do not.
MR. BRODY: Please mark that as Exhibit 117.
(CPH Exhibit No. 117 was marked for identification.)

Page 56

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I've given you what's been marked as Exhibit 117. Do you recognize the handwriting on this document?
A. No, I do not.
Q. I take it none of it is yours?
A. It is not.
Q. Does any of this reflect the changes that you personally made on the document?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Okay. You can put that document aside.
After the bring-down due diligence letter that we've marked as Exhibit 112 was sent to Morgan Stanley, do you remember anything else that you did in connection with the bond offering or the transaction by which Sunbeam acquired its interest in Coleman?
MR. MOSCATO: Sunbeam acquired its interest?
MR. BRODY: Yes.
MR. MOSCATO: Sorry.
MR. BRODY: That's okay.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall.
MR. BRODY: Can we go off the record for a second.

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, during this deposition I've asked you a number of questions about the events at the printer. You testified based on your recollection and your recollection as refreshed by your prior testimony and by Mr. Bornstein's memorandum.
Are you aware of anything else out there, piece of paper, notes, anything, that might refresh your recollection of what happened at the printer aside from the things that I've already shown you?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: Thank you, Mr. Brockelman. I have no further questions.
CROSS (MARK BROCKELMAN)
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Hi, Mr. Brockelman. We met this morning. My name is Tom Clare. I'm here representing Morgan Stanley, and I have some questions for you this morning.
I'd like to proceed in two parts. I'm going to ask you some follow-up questions to the questions Mr. Brody asked you this morning, and then I have some additional questions. We might get into a couple of different areas that Mr. Brody didn't touch on.

You mentioned to Mr. Brody this morning that you worked on the pro forma financials in connection with the bond offering; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley provide any information to you in connection with the pro forma financial work that you did?
A. No.
Q. All of the information that you received for your work on the pro forma financials came from Sunbeam?
A. That's correct.
Q. In the course of your work on the bond offering, did you discuss with anybody at Morgan Stanley the pro forma financials that you were preparing?
A. No.
Q. You also indicated that you verified the historical financial information that would be included in the offering memorandum; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley provide any of the historical financial information to you in connection with your work on the bond offering memo?

Page 59

A. No.
Q. All of that information was provided by Sunbeam to you, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. How many days were you in New York, the events surrounding the evening at the printer that you discussed with Mr. Brody this morning?
A. Approximately 24 hours.
Q. So it was just the one day?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the work that you did in connection with the March 19th comfort letter, was all of that work done in New York or was a portion of it done in Florida?
A. Most was done in Florida.
Q. And then a draft of it was brought to New York with you and Mr. Bornstein, and you continued to work on it in New York?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. Was there any work that was done on the comfort letter in New York before you arrived at the printer?
A. No.
Q. The pro forma review that you had done, did any of that work take place in New York?

Page 60

A. Yes.
Q. Again, that evening at the printer, that was part of the duties that you were there to perform?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley provide you with any information to be included in the comfort letter that was delivered to it that night?
A. No.
Q. All of that information came from Sunbeam, correct?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. Other than the discussion at the printer, did you have any other face-to-face meetings with anyone from Morgan Stanley?
A. No, I did not.
Q. So in connection with all of your work on Sunbeam-related engagements, the only time you were ever in the same room as anybody from Morgan Stanley was that night at Global Financial Press in New York; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you attend any drafting session related to the offering memo other than the one that occurred at the printer that evening in New York?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

016961

Page 61

A. I believe that's the only drafting session I attended.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Bornstein had attended other drafting sessions related to the offering memo?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. Was Mr. Bornstein in New York already and did you fly up from Florida to join him, or did you travel from Florida together?
A. I believe we traveled together.
Q. Do you know if these additional drafting sessions that you think Mr. Bornstein attended, can you place them in time to the evening at the print shop that we've been discussing?
A. It preceded.
Q. For some number of days?
A. Certainly.
Q. And Mr. Bornstein had then returned to Florida to your recollection and then you traveled up together?
MR. BRODY: Objection to foundation, form.
THE WITNESS: Yes, that's correct.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. If you have the exhibits that Mr. Brody marked this morning in front of you, I'd like you to look at CPH Exhibit 115.

Page 62

Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. You've already testified about the handwriting on the document. There is a fax line on CPH Exhibit 115 which indicates that it was faxed from Global Financial Press in New York.
Do you recall that evening a draft of the comfort letter being faxed to somebody else that wasn't there that night?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who CPH Exhibit 115 was faxed to that night?
A. It was either Phil Harlow or Bill Pruitt. I don't recall which one, but it was a two-way partner with Arthur Andersen.
Q. To your recollection, were there multiple copies of the comfort letter that were faxed to partners at Arthur Andersen that evening or was it one draft as reflected here in CPH 115?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't remember there being a series of them, but you do remember the fact that a draft was at one point faxed to a partner at Arthur Andersen?
A. That's correct, yes.
Q. What was the purpose, to the best of your recollection, in faxing a draft of the comfort letter to either Mr. Harlow or to Mr. Pruitt?

A. For their review of the changes that we made that night.
Q. Mr. Bornstein was the person in charge on site, correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And you were junior to him at that point?
A. Yes.
Q. You testified that Mr. Bornstein had authorization to sign the comfort letter on behalf of Arthur Andersen; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were present when he signed it?
A. Yes.
Q. And you signed it there in the offices of Global Financial Press in New York, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You indicated that Mr. Bornstein had authorization from a partner or the partners to sign the comfort letter; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it, is partner authorization required under the rules of Arthur Andersen internal procedures before a comfort letter like the one that was delivered to Morgan Stanley can be signed and delivered?

Page 64

A. Yes, it is.
Q. Do you have an understanding as to why partner authorization is required?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell me why?
A. Certainly. Partners are the only people allowed to sign opinions or reports, and having authorization basically is as if the partner is signing, you're signing in their place.
Q. So the comfort letter that was delivered to Morgan Stanley on March 19th, 1998, was considered to be an opinion or report that required partner approval at Arthur Andersen within the internal procedures?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. And without that authorization or approval, Mr. Bornstein could not have signed it on behalf of Arthur Andersen?
A. Well, I don't know if he could not, but it would be against our internal control procedures if he had signed on behalf.
Q. And that's because a comfort letter like the one that was delivered to Morgan Stanley is deemed to be an opinion or report of Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes, that's correct.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017962

Page 65

Q. That's why it requires partner approval?
A. Yes.
Q. That evening at the printer you indicated that you reviewed the financial information contained in the offering memo.
Did you review any of the narrative portions of the offering memo as well?
A. No. Only the numerical information.
Q. We'll look at some documents in a few minutes and I'll get you to go through and maybe you can identify for us the sections that you looked at. That will probably be a more efficient way to proceed.
I'd like you to look at CPH Exhibit 114 that Mr. Brody showed you this morning, a copy of Mr. Bornstein's March 31st, 1998, memo.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And you testified that to the best of your knowledge, this is an accurate account of the events of that evening; is that correct?
A. At that time, best of my knowledge, yes, correct.
Q. But if I understand your testimony correctly, CPH Exhibit 114 makes reference to a number of conversations and telephone conversations that you were not a party to; is that right?

A. That's correct.
Q. And do you have any basis one way or the other to say or comment on the accuracy of CPH Exhibit 114 with regard to those conversations that you were not a part of?
A. No.
Q. So to the extent that CPH 114 reflects those conversations, you can't comment one way or the other as to whether or not it's accurate?
A. That's correct.
Q. And we would have to ask Mr. Bornstein about those conversations to the extent that he was a party to them?
A. Yes.
Q. I'd like to look at CPH Exhibit 114 in a little bit of detail and understand which of the conversations that you were present for and which ones you weren't.
There is a reference to some post audit review work in the first paragraph where conversations with Mr. Gluck, Mr. Harlow, and Mr. Pruitt preceding the events of March 19th.
Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.

Page 67

Q. Were you part of any of those discussions?
A. No, I was not.
Q. The second paragraph talks about Sunbeam having issued a press release. And I believe you testified this morning, previously testified that you had no involvement or discussion in any of the meetings or telephone conferences that led to the issuance of the press release; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Third paragraph talks about the evening of March 19th and the drafting session at Global Financial Press in New York. And that we've talked about some this morning and we'll talk about a little bit more, that you were present for at least portions of the discussions that took place there?
A. Yes, that is correct.
Q. And the fourth paragraph makes reference to a telephone conversation between Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Harlow. And it appears that that conversation took place on the evening of March 19th while Mr. Bornstein and you were at the print shop.
Were you part of that conversation that Mr. Bornstein is recording here with Mr. Harlow?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Am I correct that Mr. Bornstein called

Page 68

Mr. Harlow or spoke with Mr. Harlow from the print shop that evening?
A. That's what Mr. Bornstein told me.
Q. Did you see Mr. Bornstein on the phone that evening?
A. He left the room and told me he was going to call, but I did not see him on the phone.
Q. Okay. And you don't know who he was talking to or have any knowledge about what was said on that telephone call?
A. That's correct.
Q. You were not only not on the line for the phone call, but you were not even in the same room with Mr. Bornstein when he was on the phone?
A. That's correct.
Q. So you couldn't even hear what Mr. Bornstein was saying on his half of the conversation?
A. That's correct.
Q. There is a reference in that same paragraph to a conversation, a telephone conversation between Mr. Harlow, Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Gluck that evening.
Were you a part of that telephone conversation?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Was that part of the telephone conversation

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017963

Page 69

that Mr. Bornstein told you he was placing that evening?
A. That's what Mr. Bornstein told me, yes.
Q. Did he tell you this the night of March 19th? In other words, did he come back into the room and said, "I just spoke with Mr. Harlow and Mr. Gluck," or was it at some point after?
A. He told me that night.
Q. There is references here to conversations that took place between Mr. Harlow, Mr. Fanin, Mr. Kersh, and Janet Kelly, and it's unclear from the memo whether Mr. Bornstein was even a part of those conversations.
On the night of March 19th, were you part of any conversation or telephone conversation with Mr. Harlow, Mr. Fanin, Mr. Kersh or Miss Kelly?
A. No.
Q. So you can't testify one way or the other whether or not the conversation that's reflected here in CPH 114 that relate to those individuals is accurate or correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And there is a reference here about Mr. Harlow being advised something about Mr. Izzi. I think that's a typo error. I think it's Mr. Uzzi.

Page 70

But you have no recollection of any discussion with Mr. Uzzi that night?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now Mr. Brody showed you a copy of your deposition transcript from 2001, and you indicated that the pages he referred you to refreshed your recollection to an extent.
And I just want to understand as you sit here today in 2004, are there any other -- have we exhausted the extent of your recollection of that evening at the print shop, even as refreshed by your deposition testimony that Mr. Brody showed you and also the memorandum that we just looked at, CPH 114?
A. Yes.
Q. So even as refreshed, you are unable to testify today or presumably at any point in the future from your current recollection about any additional detail or events from that evening; is that correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
MR. MOSCATO: Wait a minute, I object, because I don't understand the question.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Okay, let me withdraw and make, ask a better question. I don't intend to confuse.
What I'm trying to understand is you have in your mind as you sit here today some recollection of the events of March 19th, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And that recollection was refreshed to some extent by some of the materials that Mr. Brody showed you; is that correct?
A. I agree.
Q. Okay. Is there anything else that you remember currently about the events of that evening that we haven't discussed this evening?
A. No.
Q. Now, Mr. Brody showed you a deposition transcript from -- (Thereupon, a cellphone rang.)
MR. CLARE: Let's go off the record.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video record. The time on the monitor is 10:50 a.m.
(Discussion held off the record.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video record. The time on the monitor, 10:52 a.m.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Thank you, Mr. Brockelman. Before the break, I was about to ask you about your prior deposition.
Mr. Brody showed you a transcript from January 2001, and you recall giving that deposition?

Page 72

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you recall that it was multiple days? It was a two-day deposition?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Other than those two days of deposition testimony, were you ever deposed in any other proceeding relating to Sunbeam-related work?
A. No, I was not.
Q. And other than that deposition testimony, have you brought in any other sworn testimony in any other setting about your Sunbeam-related work?
A. No.
Q. Or submitted any sworn written declarations or affidavits?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been asked to provide a sworn written declaration relating to your Sunbeam-related work?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever interviewed by the SEC or any other law enforcement authority related to your Sunbeam-related work?
A. No.
Q. What did you do to prepare for your deposition today?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017964

Page 73

A. Nothing. I was provided a package by Mike Moscato, but I reviewed it maybe in about two minutes and didn't take much time, quite honestly.
Q. Did you review any of your prior deposition testimony, either the portion that Mr. Brody showed you this morning or any other portion?
A. No, I did not.
Q. In preparing for your deposition, did you speak with anybody from Mr. Brody's firm, Jenner & Block, in Chicago?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Have you spoken with anyone from Mr. Brody's firm at any time this year or last year in 2003?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Does Mr. Bornstein also work at American Media?
A. No.
Q. At one point did he?
A. Yes.
Q. And you worked with him?
A. Yes, that is correct.
Q. We'll have a chance to talk with Mr. Bornstein separately.
When did Mr. Bornstein leave American Media?
A. Approximately four and a half months ago.

Page 74

Q. And while he was at American Media, what position did you have?
A. He was the vice-president, general manager of American Media.
Q. Did you report to him?
A. No.
Q. Were you equal within the company?
A. Yes.
Q. When was the last time you spoke with Mr. Bornstein?
A. Last night at about 10:30.
Q. About your deposition today?
A. No. We maintain friendly relationships.
Q. When was the last time you spoke to Mr. Bornstein about the work that the two of you did on Sunbeam-related matters?
A. I don't recall. We did talk that we both were being deposed, but we didn't talk about the actual events on Sunbeam.
Q. So other than the fact that you both were, had been asked to be deposed in this lawsuit, there was no discussion with you and Mr. Bornstein about the events that took place in 1998 that you were a part of?
A. I'm sure there were. I don't recall any discussions, but I'm sure we had some discussion since then, but nothing specifically that I recall.

Q. As you sit here today, you don't remember any discussion with Mr. Bornstein about the night at the printer's specifically, since 1998?
A. That's correct.
Q. And in the discussion that had you with Mr. Bornstein last evening, any discussion of events of 1998 in any way?
A. No.
Q. You're a certified public accountant in Illinois?
A. I believe my -- it's lapsed. I haven't had the proper CPE credit, so I need to have that renewed.
Q. So it's on basically an inactive status?
A. Exactly, yes.
Q. But you are licensed as a certified public accountant?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. And you went to Andersen directly after college?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. And you worked at Andersen for eight years, approximately?
A. Approximately, yes.
Q. Started off as a staff accountant and then were promoted through the ranks as you described for Mr. Brody?

Page 76

A. Yes, correct, to manager.
Q. And while you were at Andersen, did you think it was a good company?
A. Absolutely.
Q. Did you think it was an ethical company?
A. Absolutely.
Q. You thought the people you worked with were competent?
A. Very.
Q. And you thought the company did good work in serving its clients?
A. Yes.
Q. While you were at Andersen, did you have an opinion about Andersen's reputation for competence?
A. Yes, I felt we had the best reputation.
Q. Did you form an opinion about Andersen's reputation for integrity?
A. Yes, extremely high.
Q. So you felt that Andersen had a strong reputation for integrity and competence?
A. Yes, certainly.
Q. And in 1998 while you were working on the Sunbeam-related engagements that we discussed, you had the title of manager, correct, for a portion of it at least?

A. I'm sorry, for the restatement work or for the --
Q. Well --
A. During the restatement work I was promoted to manager, but during the offering memorandum, I was senior.
Q. Senior --
A. I was a senior accountant.
Q. Okay, thank you for that clarification.
At the time that you were at Sunbeam, did you -- I'm sorry, withdraw, strike that.
At the time that you were at Andersen working on Sunbeam-related engagements, were you, did you have aspirations to become a partner at Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's what you were working towards?
A. At the time, yes.
Q. And when you were promoted to manager in 1998, you had managerial tasks, internal firm administrative tasks in addition to client-related work; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have similar internal management-related tasks when you were a senior? In other words, did you supervise other Andersen personnel on client-related engagements?

Page 78

Did you do reviews for other people?
A. Yes.
Q. That type of work?
And in 1997 and in 1998 your responsibilities included -- would you agree that your responsibilities included carrying out client-related work in a professionally competent manner?
A. Yes.
Q. And following Andersen's internal policies and procedures?
A. Yes.
Q. Protecting Andersen's reputation that you described?
A. Yes.
Q. And protecting Andersen's integrity?
A. Yes.
Q. While at Anderson, did you ever knowingly take any action that violated Andersen's internal policies or procedures?
A. No.
Q. Or take any action that, where you would knowingly damage Andersen's reputation?

Page 79

A. No.
Q. Or knowingly damage Andersen's integrity?
A. No.
Q. What does it mean for, at the time that you were working at Andersen, what did it mean for Andersen to consent? Is that a term that's familiar to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you explain to me what that means in your own words?
A. Consent in context with an opinion or a letter means that we give the authorization to release that opinion or letter in a filing.
Q. And the comfort letter that we've been describing, the March 19th, is that a form of consent?
A. Yes.
Q. And there are procedures that have to be followed before a consent can be issued by Andersen?
A. Yes, there are.
Q. And partner approval is required for the reasons we talked about earlier?
A. Yes.
Q. In the circumstances of the comfort letter, is a concurring partner approval required for that type of a consent?
A. For consents, yes.

Page 80

Q. Do you recall who the concurring partner was for the comfort letters that we've been discussing?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was that?
A. Bill Pruitt.
Q. Mr. Harlow was the partner and Mr. Pruitt was the concurring partner?
A. That is correct.
Q. And the reason that a concurring partner approval is also required is because it's important when Andersen issues a consent?
A. A consent or opinion, any kind of report to have a concurring partner for internal control purposes.
Q. The reason is because it's a statement that's being made on behalf of Arthur Andersen?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Is that fair?
A. Yes, that's fair.
Q. And in issuing a consent, is it fair to say that Anderson would want to know how its financial statements or how the opinion -- let me withdraw that.
In issuing a consent, is it fair to say that Andersen wants to be informed as to how its opinion is going to be used?

A. Yes.
Q. The decision internally at Andersen to issue a consent, it's not a decision that's delegated to the client; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. It's a decision that retains solely at Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. It's not delegated to the client's attorneys?
A. No.
Q. Not delegated to the management of the company?
A. No.
Q. Or not delegated to the company's investment bank?
A. Only to Arthur Andersen.
Q. But not to the investment banks of the company?
A. That's correct.
Q. We looked earlier at what's been marked as CPH Exhibit 114, which is Mr. Bornstein's memo dated March 31st. We've already been through that document. I'm not going to ask you much more about it.
Did you prepare any documentation of your own, a similar memo to the one that Mr. Bornstein prepared describing the events of that evening at the print shop?

A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you take any notes or make any record of it in any way in March or thereafter?
A. No.
Q. In '98?
A. No.
Q. Have you seen in your time at Andersen either on your work on the restatement or on any other work any other documentation of the events of that evening other than Mr. Bornstein's March 31st, '98 memo?
A. No.
Q. I want to go back and talk in a little bit more detail about the events of that afternoon and into the evening, and I'm going to try to take it one step at a time, just to make sure that we've exhausted your knowledge and recollection of those events.
You testified that the first mention that you heard of a Sunbeam press release was on a news show in Mr. Bornstein's hotel room?
A. Yes.
Q. And this was, do you remember what time of day this was?

Page 83

A. Approximately 11, 12:00.
Q. And you and Mr. Bornstein were waiting to go to the printer that evening?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. Was there a designated time that everybody was going to convene at the printer?
A. Afternoon is all I recall.
Q. And what do you recall was reported -- and there was a telephone news report, correct?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. So earlier when you referred to a news release, it wasn't a written document?
A. That's correct.
Q. It was a verbal, a report that you saw on some financial television show that you were watching?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall what exactly was reported on the news show?
A. No, I don't.
Q. You just remember there was a figure given?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. Do you recall whether the news show reported that Sunbeam was announcing that it would not meet analyst expectations for the first quarter of 1998?
Do you remember that in substance?

Page 84

A. Generally, yes.
Q. Do you remember whether the news account that you heard in the hotel room also included any information about how first quarter 1998 sales might relate to first quarter 1997 sales?
Do you remember whether that was a part of the news report that you heard?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't know one way or the other?
A. No.
Q. Was there any mention of Morgan Stanley in the news report?
A. I don't recall any mention.
Q. Was there any mention of the bond offering?
A. I don't recall any mention.
Q. Any mention of the pending acquisitions that related to the bond offering?
A. No.
Q. Did the news report include a report on how the market was reacting to the news?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you remember independently how the market was reacting to the news?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware generally that the stock of

Page 85

Sunbeam was trading down on this announcement?
A. I didn't have knowledge on that day.
Subsequent to the bond offering, I have knowledge that the stock decreased.
Q. Based on your experience in the business world, was the kind of announcement that you heard that day good news or bad news for the financial market?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form, foundation.
MR. MOSCATO: For the financial market, you said?
MR. CLARE: Correct.
THE WITNESS: For the financial market as a broad or is as it related to Sunbeam?
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Let me ask a better question.
Based on your experience in the business, was the type of announcement that you heard good news or bad news?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Certainly bad news for the company.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Is this the kind of announcement that's known as an early warning?
A. Yes, correct.

Page 86

Q. Is there anything else that you remember about the press report that you heard in Mr. Bornstein's hotel room?
A. No.
Q. What was your reaction to hearing the report? Again, we're still in Mr. Bornstein's hotel room.
A. I didn't have a basis for reaction.
Q. One way or the other?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now at that point did you already know that Sunbeam sales for the first quarter of 1998 were soft?
A. I didn't have a basis.
Q. So in connection with the work that you had done getting ready for this printer meeting, you didn't have any knowledge one way or the other as to whether or not Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were -- what they were?
A. No.
Q. Did you know, as a result of the work that you had done on the comfort letter, that Sunbeam sales for the first two months of the first quarter of 1998 were lower than they were in the previous period?
A. I believe that was in the comfort letter, yes.
Q. That information was ultimately contained in the comfort letter that was issued. In connection with your work on preparing drafts, was that information in the drafts that you had been working on?

Page 87

A. Yes.
Q. Prior to the 19th?
A. Yes.
Q. So you did have some information about first quarter sales prior to that day?
A. That's correct, as it was in the comfort letter.
Q. Had you focused on that issue at all in internal discussions with Andersen?
Had you been part of any discussions where that concept or that subject was discussed?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware one way or the other whether Andersen had previously told Sunbeam that that information about first quarter sales needed to be disclosed to Morgan Stanley?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: Previous to the --
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. The events of the 19th.
A. Not that I recall.
Q. You weren't part of any of those discussions?

Page 88

A. No, I was not.
Q. If they took place.
So you don't know one way or the other what Andersen might have said to Sunbeam about disclosures that needed to be made to Morgan Stanley about first quarter 1998 sales?
A. No.
Q. Did you have an understanding that day about who had drafted the press release?
A. Sunbeam. I don't know who at Sunbeam.
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry, I'm going to object to foundation and form on that.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Were you ever told that anybody from Morgan Stanley had a role in drafting the press release?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever told or informed by any source what role, if any, Morgan Stanley had in the decision to issue the press release or its content?
A. No.
Q. Other than what you described for Mr. Brody this morning, was there any discussions about the press release that took place in Mr. Bornstein's hotel room that you can recall?
A. Not that I recall.

Q. There has been some testimony that from his hotel room, Mr. Bornstein placed a telephone call to others at Andersen after hearing the news report.

Do you have any recollection of Mr. Bornstein placing a telephone call in your presence from the hotel room to discuss a news report that you had heard?

A. I remember Larry making a telephone call. I don't recall who he called, but he was on the phone afterwards.

Q. Do you recall anything that was said at least on Mr. Bornstein's side?

A. No, I do not.

Q. And you don't have any understanding or knowledge as to who he spoke to?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Do you recall that his telephone conversation was about the press release?

A. I don't recall.

Q. So it might have been, might not have been?

A. I assume it was right after the press, after we saw the news release.

Q. Did he say anything to you before he placed the phone call like "We have to talk to Harlow about this," or anything that might indicate who he talked to or what his purpose was in having that conversation?

Page 90

A. I don't recall.

Q. And how about after he got off the phone, did he relate to you the substance of any discussion that he had with the person he was talking to?

A. Again, I don't recall.

Q. At this point, you're still in Mr. Bornstein's hotel room.

Did you have an actual hard copy, a paper document of the press release?

A. I did not.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Bornstein did?

A. I don't know.

Q. When Mr. Bornstein finished with his telephone conversation, did he indicate to you that he had more information about what the press release said or what the contents of it was other than what was on the news report?

A. I don't recall.

Q. When was the first time you did see a hard copy of the press release, if you ever did?

A. I don't recall seeing any press release. I might have. I don't recall seeing one.

Q. Okay. In all the time that you were at the print shop, spilling over now into the next morning, you don't recall ever having been provided with a hard copy, a paper copy of the press release?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay.

MR. CLARE: Let's mark this as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39.

(MS Exhibit No. 39 was marked for identification.)

BY MR. CLARE:

Q. Mr. Brockelman, I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 39 and ask you to take a look at it. It's a press release on Sunbeam paper dated March 19, 1998.

Now you've had a chance to look at a hard copy of the press release. Does this refresh your recollection in any way about ever having seen a hard copy of the press release?

A. No, it does not.

Q. Okay. Do you recall whether there were copies of it at the printer that evening?

In other words, as part of any of the discussions that took place that evening, do you remember ever seeing copies, whether or not you ever actually looked at it?

A. No, I don't remember seeing a copy of this.

Q. And do you know if Mr. Bornstein had a hard copy of it during the course of events that you've described this morning?

Page 92

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. You just don't know one way or the other?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Does Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39, the press release, is this in substance the press release that you recall was summarized in the news report that you heard in Mr. Bornstein's hotel room?

In other words, this was the announcement that was being reported on?

A. Yes.

Q. Does seeing Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39 refresh your recollection in any way about what was being reported that day; in other words, what portion of the announcement was summarized in the news report?

A. No. My recollection is the same.

Q. There is a contact person at the bottom, Richard Goudis. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you know Mr. Goudis to be a Sunbeam employee?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Do you know who he was?

A. No, I do not.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 93

Q. So as far as you are aware, Mr. Brockelman, that during the events at the printer at the print shop that evening, nobody from Andersen had a hard copy of the entire press release; is that correct, to your knowledge?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: To my knowledge, yes.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Was there additional discussion at the print shop about what was being said in the presence release?
MR. BRODY: What had been said or what was --
MR. CLARE: What had been said in the press release. In other words -- let me withdraw that and ask a better question.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. As part of the discussions, did Mr. Bornstein or you ask anyone else present or discuss with those present what had been disclosed in the press release other than what you had heard on the news show?
A. Mr. Bornstein discussed the press release. I don't recall the exact discussion held, but he did discuss it.
Q. Okay. Do you remember anything about those discussions?

Page 94

A. No, I do not.
Q. Did -- on March 19th at Global Financial Press, did you think that Sunbeam had issued a false press release? Did that thought ever occur to you that evening?
A. I had no basis.
Q. No basis one way or the other to know whether it was false or not?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you have any basis to form an opinion as to whether or not Sunbeam had issued a misleading press release?
A. I had no basis except for talking to Larry Bornstein.
Q. Did you have a discussion with Mr. Bornstein about that topic, about whether the press release was misleading?
A. Larry Bornstein told me he felt it was misleading.
Q. What did he tell you?
A. That he felt it was misleading.
Q. Was there any discussion that had you with Mr. Bornstein or anybody else at Andersen about asking Sunbeam to retract or withdraw the press release that it had issued?

Page 95

A. No, I did not.
Q. You were not part of any of those discussions?
A. I was not part of the discussion.
Q. Are you aware from any source whether any discussion like that took place?
A. Only through Larry Bornstein.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein tell you that he had asked the company to withdraw or retract its press release?
A. That I don't recall. I know he had a discussion with Mr. Harlow relating to that context that I heard secondhand from Larry Bornstein.
Q. And he told you, again, secondhand, that one of the topics was discussed as to whether or not Sunbeam should withdraw or retract the press release?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you have an opinion in that regard?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any basis to --
A. No basis for an opinion.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein tell you that he felt the press release ought to be withdrawn or retracted?
A. That I don't recall.
Q. Did he tell you whether Mr. Harlow had a view as to whether or not Sunbeam ought to withdraw or retract the press release?

Page 96

A. That I don't recall either.
MR. CLARE: Mark this as the next exhibit, Morgan Stanley 40.
(MS Exhibit No. 40 was marked for identification.)
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, we've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 40, and it's a fairly thick document. Feel free to take as much time as you want to review it. I'm only going to ask you questions about a certain number of pages of it and I'll identify them for you and give you an opportunity to look at it, but if you want to take the time to read any portion of it, let me know and we'll make sure you have that opportunity.
Do you recognize Morgan Stanley Exhibit 40 as the offering memo for the bond offering that Sunbeam was making in March of 1998?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And is this the document that you were there at the print shop that evening to work on?
A. Yes.
Q. I'd like you to turn if you would, please, to the table of contents, which is page three of Morgan

Stanley Exhibit 40.
And I'd like you to identify for me to the best that you can which sections of the offering memo that you read or worked on in any way at the printer's that evening.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: I couldn't tell you which sections. Again, any historical financial information within here, I verified that night. Throughout each one of these sections there is historical information contained.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Okay. That's fair, and I appreciate that.
So if I understand you correctly, that through the course of that day and into the next morning, that part of your task was to essentially read through the entire offering memorandum and verify any historical information that was contained in the offering memo; is that correct?
A. That's correct, and also the pro forma information, which of course is not historical.
Q. Thank you. Thank you for that clarification.
And that includes the entire content of the offering memo, because historical information, financial information is contained in various sections?

A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. So it's not limited to an appendix to the report or what I believe are the F1 pages that are pages that come after?
A. That's correct. Throughout the document is historical information.
Q. This was, was this the first time that evening at the print shop that you had seen a copy of the offering memo?
A. No.
Q. You had seen copies of it prior to arriving in New York that day?
A. Yes.
Q. And you had been performing that same function that you've described?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. Do you have any information as you sit here today about the content of the offering memo; in other words, who supplied the content of it, the narrative, other than the financial information that you worked on?
MR. BRODY: The entire document?
MR. CLARE: Any portion of it.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.

BY MR. CLARE:
Q. In other words, were you part of discussions where the contents of it, particular paragraphs were discussed or edited back and forth? Was that, were those conversations or meetings that you were a part of?
A. Certainly that night there were discussions on the narrative.
Q. But prior to that evening, were there any discussions about the narrative that you were involved in?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. And do you recall as you sit here today any discussions about the narrative other than the one at the print shop that evening?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Throughout your work on the offering memo, do you remember any discussion of errors or inconsistencies in the offering memo?
MR. BRODY: Prior drafts or in the final product?
MR. CLARE: In prior drafts.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Do you remember any specific errors or inconsistencies?

A. Nothing specifically, but there is numerous numbers throughout here. And as I would find something, I would make a correction to a number.
Q. And it needed to be corrected?
A. That's correct.
Q. To your knowledge, were all the errors and inconsistencies that you identified actually corrected in the final version of the offering memo?
A. Yes.
Q. Were there any unresolved errors or inconsistencies in the offering memo that were not resolved when you left the print shop that evening?
A. No.
MR. CLARE: We have to take a short break to change the videotape and we'll reconvene.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off the video record on tape number one. We'll be back on tape number two. The time on the monitor, 11:25 a.m.
(Discussion held off the record.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video record. This is tape number two. The time on the monitor, 11:26 a.m.
MR. MOSCATO: I'm going to run get a cup of coffee. Do you want some coffee?

THE WITNESS: No, thanks.
MR. MOSCATO: Sorry about that, go ahead.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, before the short break, we were talking about errors and inconsistencies in the offering memo. And you testified that to your knowledge, that evening when the offering memo was finalized and you left the print shop, that all errors and inconsistencies that you were aware of had been resolved to your satisfaction.
A. That's correct.
Q. Now there was this issue with regard to disclosures that would be made in the offering memo related to first quarter sales. Do you recall that?
A. Roughly.
Q. Mr. Brody asked you some questions about that this morning.
A. Yes.
Q. Was that issue resolved before the print shop, before you and Mr. Bornstein left the print shop that morning?
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, I missed something. Can you be specific as to when you say that issue?
MR. CLARE: Sure.

Page 102

BY MR. CLARE:
Q. There was a discussion that you've testified about regarding what disclosure would be made in the offering memo as it related to the events that were reported in the press release; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Had that discussion been resolved and a decision made at the time that you and Mr. Bornstein left the print shop the next morning?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.
THE WITNESS: It wasn't a part of the resolution, but I can only assume it was resolved as we gave our consent that night.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Okay. So if that issue had not been resolved and there was still a disagreement between Andersen and the company about the disclosures to be made, the consent would not have been issued?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question, foundation.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. That's correct?
A. Yes, it's correct.

Page 103

MR. MOSCATO: I'd like to make a clarification. I'm not trying to be an obstructionist. When you use the word consent, is that synonymous in your mind with the conform letter.
THE WITNESS: Releasing the opinion report, allowing the use of the financial statements that were referred to in the registration statement.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. So again, I'm trying to make sure I understand your testimony, that it's your understanding that the disclosure issue that you've testified about was resolved to Andersen's satisfaction because the comfort letter was issued that night?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. And it's been your experience that the comfort letter, a comfort letter is not issued until all outstanding issues are resolved to Andersen's satisfaction?
A. Any material or significant issues certainly.
Q. Okay. Now this discussion about disclosures came up in the context of what would be put in the Recent Developments section of the offering memo; is that correct?

A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. Now can you place in time for me when that issue came up in the course of the evening?
In other words, was this the first topic of discussion when you and Mr. Bornstein arrived at the printer's, or did it come up in the ordinary course of working on the offering memo that evening?
A. I don't recall when.
Q. You don't recall one way or the other?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you, Mr. Brockelman, as opposed to Mr. Bornstein, have a view one way or the other on what ought to be included in the Recent Development section of the offering memo?
A. I had no basis for an opinion one way or another.
Q. Did you express a view that evening?
A. I did not.
Q. Mr. Bornstein did all the talking on that issue?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you remember whether Mr. Bornstein objected to including the entire press release in the Recent Development section or just a portion of it that he was objecting to?

017972

Page 105

A. I don't recall one way or another.
Q. Let's look at what we have just marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39, which is the hard copy of the press release.
I invite your attention to the first four or five lines of the press release.
There is an announcement here by Sunbeam that net sales for the first quarter may be lower than analysts estimates of 285 million to 295 million.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussions about whether it was appropriate to include that piece of information in the offering memo?
A. Yes, I believe our opinion was to have that in the offering memorandum.
Q. Okay. And you remember Mr. Bornstein expressing that view that evening?
A. Somewhat, yes.
Q. So there was no discussion or disagreement between Andersen and anybody else who was present that evening about whether that piece of information ought to be included in the offering memo?
A. I don't totally recall, but I believe that's correct.

Q. Do you recall anything else about that topic about whether that specific piece of information should be included in the offering memo?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form. By that topic of information, you refer to --
MR. CLARE: The statement that first quarter sales for 1998 may be lower than analysts' estimates.
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, could we have the question back?
MR. CLARE: Sure.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Other than what we have discussed, do you recall any other discussion about whether the disclosure that net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates ought to be included in the offering memo?
A. No.
Q. And the press release goes on. There is an additional 15 words in that same sentence that describes an expectation by Sunbeam that net sales would, for 1998, first quarter, would exceed 1991 first quarter net sales of 253.4 million.
Do you see that?

Page 107

A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any discussion at the printer that evening about whether that additional topic, Sunbeam's expectation about its first quarter sales exceeding the first quarter prior year sales, should be included in the offering memo?
A. I don't recall discussions on that portion of the announcement.
Q. So as you sit here today, you don't have a recollection one way or the other as to what the basis of discussion was about what ought to be included in the offering memo, what portion of the press release?
You couldn't differentiate between different portions of the press release?
A. That's correct.
Q. So your recollection is not detailed enough to permit you to testify today or at trial in this matter about which portion of the press release would be included in the offering memo in the different views that were expressed this evening?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: That's correct.
MR. MOSCATO: That's a little inconsistent with his testimony. I thought he said that the first part of the sentence was okay.

Page 108

THE WITNESS: Yeah, I just can't confirm the second part, whether that should or should not be in the offering memo.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. You don't remember Mr. Bornstein expressing the view on whether the comparison to prior year sales ought to be included or not?
You don't have a recollection?
A. Yeah, I don't have a recollection.
Q. You don't have a recollection of what Mr. Bornstein's view on that topic was?
A. No, I do not.
Q. And you don't have a recollection of what Morgan Stanley's view on that topic was?
A. No, I do not.
Q. There is some cautionary language at the bottom of the press release. You see there is two paragraphs labeled Cautionary Statements.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see that language or language like that on March 19th when you were at the printer in connection with this press release?
A. I didn't see the press release that night is what I stated earlier.

Page 109

Q. But was there any discussion that evening about whether cautionary language like this ought to be included in the offering memo?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Have you seen language like this in other press releases?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. And do you have experience in drafting or reviewing disclosures as part of your business?
A. At American Media I draft press releases for our company, yes.
Q. And you are familiar with cautionary statements of this kind?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have an understanding what the purpose of these kind of cautionary statements are?
A. Yes.
Q. What's your understanding?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form, foundation.
THE WITNESS: To provide prospective financial information. Obviously the actual results could differ from those prospective numbers you provide.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Do you have a view as you sit here today about whether it is appropriate to include cautionary statements like this on Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39 in a press release of this kind?

MR. BRODY: Same objection.
MR. MOSCATO: I object. I made the same objection as to Mr. Pruitt yesterday, so I'm not playing favorites. Mr. Brockelman is appearing here as a fact witness. He's not appearing as an expert witness. We can negotiate his fee for expert testimony if you want to pursue this, but as it stands now, I really don't want him testifying on matters such as this.
If we could keep it to the facts, I'd appreciate it, and I would prefer not to have a fight over it. I would prefer if you can move on to something else.
MR. CLARE: I don't think it's necessary to have a fight over it.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. I guess let me put it this way, Mr. Brockelman. I've now provided you with a copy of Morgan Stanley 39, which is the Sunbeam press release.
Is this the first time that you've seen a hard copy of the press release other than in connection with your prior depositions?

Page 111

A. I believe so.
Q. When you were provided with a hard copy of the March 19th press release, were you surprised to see cautionary statements like this in the press release?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.
MR. MOSCATO: I'm confused.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Does it surprise you that Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39 includes two paragraphs of cautionary statements?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: It doesn't surprise me, because there is prospective --
MR. MOSCATO: That's the answer. Just keep your answer short in this connection.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. It doesn't surprise you?
A. No, it does not surprise me.
Q. And the forward-looking statements that are referred to here, the statement about the expectations for first quarter 1998 sales, is that an example of the type of forward-looking statement?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.

Page 112

MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Let me ask you this way. Do you recall any discussion about whether it was appropriate to include cautionary language like this in the offering memo?
A. I don't recall.
Q. One way or the other?
A. One way or another.
Q. Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Tyree had a conversation about the Recent Development section of the offering memo, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you testified about that conversation already.
Other than -- after that conversation took place, did Mr. Bornstein leave the room?
A. Yes.
Q. And did he go by himself?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he tell you where he was going?
A. Yes, to a conference room.
Q. And to make a telephone call?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. Now did Mr. Tyree or any of the other attorneys go with him?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. No.
Q. Was there ever a point in time where Mr. Tyree or any of the other attorneys who were present that evening joined Mr. Bornstein in the conference room outside of your presence?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Some your recollection is that Mr. Tyree and the other individuals who were present stayed in the room with you the entire time and Mr. Bornstein then rejoined?
A. To my knowledge, yes.
Q. You don't have a recollection of Mr. Bornstein having a conversation with Mr. Tyree or anybody else outside of your presence, out in the hallway or in a conference room?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form and foundation.
THE WITNESS: Not that I had knowledge of.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. You testified this morning that Mr. Tyree was using profanity while Mr. Bornstein was out of the room. Do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. And I believe you said he called him a fucking asshole.

A. That's correct.
Q. Do you recall anything else that Mr. Tyree said besides that phrase?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Did Mr. Tyree direct his comments at you or were they directed more generally to those present in the room?
A. They were not directed towards me.
Q. They were directed towards the lawyers and the other people that were present there?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you have an understanding or a belief about what Mr. Tyree was upset about? I recognize I'm not asking you to put yourself in his mind or speculate about it, but as you sat there in the press release -- I'm sorry, strike that and withdraw.
As you sat there listening to this, did you have an understanding about what Mr. Tyree was upset about?
A. Only generally. It related to the disclosures in the offering memorandum.
Q. Was it your understanding that Mr. Tyree was upset about the position that Mr. Bornstein was taking, or was it that he was upset about the timing of this issue coming to his attention?

A. It was the timing.
Q. So at least from your perspective, your understanding was Mr. Tyree was unhappy that he was finding out about this at such a late date?
MR. MOSCATO: I object.
MR. BRODY: Join.
MR. MOSCATO: You can testify based on words you heard, all right? Don't try to put yourself into someone else's mind.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. No, that's fair. I'm not asking you to do that.
You formed an impression, sir, as you sat there about what was happening, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And I think you testified your impression was that Mr. Tyree was unhappy with the timing of this issue being raised with him. That was your impression?
A. That's correct.
Q. Was it your impression that Mr. Tyree was unhappy with the position that Mr. Bornstein was taking on disclosure?
A. It appeared to me it was more based on the timing of the events.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Tyree using any other profanity other than the phrase that you just described?

A. Not that I can recall right now.
Q. There was some discussion, there has been some testimony that Mr. Tyree said that evening to Mr. Bornstein, "Are these guys fucking with me? Are they going to make their numbers or not?"
Do you recall Mr. Tyree saying anything like that in words or substance?
A. I only heard that secondhand from Larry Bornstein.
Q. So you were not present when that conversation took place?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection at all about whether or not there were conversations that took place outside of your presence or in a different room?
A. No.
Q. There were attorneys there representing Morgan Stanley, I believe you said you thought they were from Davis Polk?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you remember the names James Lurie? Is that one of the names of the individuals that you remember?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017975

Page 117

A. I only know that by reading the memo you provided me. That's the only recollection I have.
Q. Putting the names aside, do you remember anything that was said by any of the lawyers from Davis Polk that evening on this topic of disclosures?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you remember any comments or statements that were made by any of the lawyers that were there representing Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Was there anybody else present that evening from the printer who was working in the room with you that evening?
A. At various times, yes. They would come in and out of the conference room.
Q. These would be Global Financial Press employees?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you remember whether any of those individuals were present for this discussion about the disclosures?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Can you place a time frame for this conversation for us?
In other words, how long did it last from beginning to end, the whole topic of disclosures?

Page 118

A. Unfortunately, I cannot.
Q. Do you have a, even a general sense of whether this was a topic that was discussed on and off throughout the evening or was it bounded in some finite period of time?
A. It was on and off throughout the evening, yes.
Q. At any point that evening at the print shop, did you join Mr. Bornstein in a telephone conference?
A. No, I did not.
Q. There has been testimony that Mr. Bornstein talked that evening with Mr. Harlow and Mr. Gluck, and it's recorded in his memo.
And I apologize if I've asked you this before, but you were not part of any telephone conversations that Mr. Bornstein had that evening on this topic of disclosures?
A. That's correct.
Q. Mr. Bornstein returned, came back to the conference room at some point, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you had a side conversation with him?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. You told him that Tyree was upset?

Page 119

A. Yes, I did.
Q. Is there anything else that you remember about that conversation with Mr. Bornstein?
A. Not that I currently recall.
Q. Did he tell you what he had been doing outside of the room?
A. He had mentioned he was on the phone with, with Gluck and with Harlow. That's all I recall.
Q. Did he tell you what position Mr. Gluck or Mr. Harlow had taken on this, on the issue that was being discussed?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. What was his reaction when you told him that Tyree was upset?
A. Mr. Bornstein was also upset.
Q. Did you communicate to Mr. Bornstein in words or in substance that Mr. Tyree appeared to be upset because of the timing of the issue?
A. I don't recall.
Q. So you don't recall being more specific with Mr. Bornstein one way or the other about what Tyree was saying?
A. That's correct.
Q. After Mr. Bornstein rejoined the folks in the conference room, did Mr. Bornstein say in words or in substance that Mr. Gluck did not agree with how the press release had been worded?

A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall him saying anything like that?
A. No, no.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein saying in words or in substance that Mr. Harlow did not agree with how the press release had been worded?
A. Again, I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall him saying anything like that?
A. I don't recall one way or another.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein relaying a view by Mr. Gluck that forward-looking statements should not be included in the offering memo?
A. That I do recall. That did refresh my memory. I remember Larry making such a comment to me, but not -- this is all secondhand.
Q. Okay. You recall Mr. Bornstein telling that to you?
A. That's correct.
Q. That evening at the print shop or at some later --
A. That evening at the print shop.
Q. Did he, Mr. Bornstein, make that comment to anybody other than you in your presence?

MR. BRODY: Can we define what that comment is?
MR. CLARE: Sure, the comment about Mr. Gluck's view on forward-looking statements appearing in the offering memo.
THE WITNESS: No, I don't remember.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. So to your recollection, Mr. Bornstein expressed that view to you, but to nobody else, to the best of your recollection?
A. Best of my recollection, yes.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein also tell you that Mr. Harlow did not think that forward-looking statements should appear in the offering memo?
A. Yes. What I recall now is that Mr. Gluck and Mr. Harlow both agreed that forward-looking statements should not be in the offering memorandum.
Q. Okay. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein being that specific with Mr. Tyree or any of the other individuals in the room about Mr. Gluck's view or Mr. Harlow's view?
A. That I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Tyree asking in words or in substance whether Sunbeam would meet or exceed the prior year's first quarter sales numbers?

Page 122

A. No.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Tyree asking in words or in substance whether Andersen had a view as to whether or not Sunbeam would meet analysts' expectations?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Tyree asking Mr. Bornstein any questions at all?
A. Only generally, but I don't recall the questions.
Q. Do you recall the topics of the questions that Mr. Tyree asked that evening, any of the questions that he asked?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember whether they related in any way to Sunbeam's first quarter '98 sales?
A. No, I don't.
MR. CLARE:
(MS Exhibit No. 41 was marked for identification.)
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. This is Morgan Stanley Exhibit 41.
Mr. Brockelman, I'm handing you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 41 and asking you to take a look at it.
Have you seen this document before?

Page 123

MR. MOSCATO: Let me just interrupt. When you say this document, you mean this particular one with this particular handwriting or some iteration of this document?
MR. CLARE: Let's start with some particular iteration of this handwriting -- of this document without the handwriting.
MR. BRODY: Any iteration?
MR. CLARE: Any iteration of this document.
THE WITNESS: No, I did not.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Do you recall seeing a document that looked like this the night at the print shop?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember that evening whether Mr. Tyree provided any documents to Mr. Bornstein or to you?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Was there a discussion about a schedule of actual and anticipated first quarter 1998 sales? Putting aside whether a document was discussed or not.
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Tyree saying that Sunbeam had provided Morgan Stanley with information about first quarter 1998 sales?

Page 124

A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein making any comments about first quarter 1998 sales?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein saying he was skeptical of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales objectives?
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, can you repeat that question?
MR. CLARE: Sure. Can you read it back?
(Thereupon, a portion of the record was read by the reporter.)
MR. MOSCATO: That's a little vague.
You can answer, I guess.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Are you able to answer the question or would you like me to rephrase it?
MR. MOSCATO: I have a problem with -- which sales objectives? There has been some testimony about some sales objectives, but that's such a broad term, but go ahead. I mean if you want an answer to that question, you can answer it. I'm suggesting it's fairly vague.
THE WITNESS: Do you mean comparatively to the prior year as far as --

Q. Well, I want to start broad and I'll work my way more narrow.
Do you remember Mr. Bornstein saying he was skeptical of any Sunbeam sales objectives?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember about Mr. Bornstein's comments in that regard?
A. I know he made a comment to me. As far as who he made a comment to in the group, I don't recall.
Q. What do you remember about his comment?
A. That he was skeptical that Sunbeam would be beat the prior year's first quarter results.
Q. Other than what you just testified to, do you remember anything else about Mr. Bornstein's comments to you about that topic?
A. No.
Q. And as you sit here today, do you have a recollection one way or the other about whether Mr. Bornstein addressed those or similar comments to others in the room?
A. I don't recall.
Q. So as you sit here today, you don't recall a discussion between Mr. Tyree and Mr. Bornstein about Mr. Bornstein's skepticism?

Page 126

A. That's correct.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein ever say to you in words or in substance that it would be impossible for Sunbeam to exceed first quarter 1997 sales numbers?
A. I don't recall the exact words he used. I know he was skeptical.
Q. Do you recall him saying the word skeptical?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein saying to anyone in the room that he was skeptical about Sunbeam's ability to ship any particular quantity of product on a per-day basis?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein addressing comments like that to you?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Bornstein that evening the impact of Sunbeam's bill and hold practices on its ability to meet sales objectives for the first quarter of 1998?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember that topic being discussed at all that evening?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember it being discussed at any other time?

Page 127

A. Yes.
Q. Tell me what you remember.
A. As part of the first quarter procedures, I know Dennis Pastrano was performing certain procedures related to the bill and hold. I wasn't party to that, but I know just generally that was a discussion leading up to the night at the printer's.
Q. Okay. Do you know what additional procedures Mr. Pastrana was performing leading up to the night at the printer's?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Bornstein whether or not Sunbeam's bill and hold practices might make it easier or more difficult for Sunbeam to exceed or meet its prior year first quarter sales numbers?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein say what his skepticism was based on?
A. I believe he did, but I don't recall.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein say that his skepticism was based on any study or analysis that he had done of Sunbeam's sales trends?
A. Again, I don't recall.
Q. Or something that he knew about a particular

Page 128

Sunbeam customer?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Or anything he knew about the likelihood of potential orders?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Or anything that he knew about the timing of potential orders?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Or any conversations that he had had with people in the Sunbeam sales team about the likelihood of future orders?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein say that evening in words or in substance that Sunbeam was intentionally misleading Morgan Stanley about its sales objectives for the first quarter 1998?
A. I don't recall him saying that.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein saying that privately to you?
A. No.
Q. In any setting?
A. No.
Q. That evening at the print shop, did you have any reason to think that Sunbeam was intentionally misleading Morgan Stanley about its sales objectives for first quarter 1998?

A. I had no basis one way or another.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein saying something to the effect of if Sunbeam is going to make its first quarter revenue number, they are going to make it, because I'm going to be sending people to shipping docks at the end of the quarter to enforce the cutoffs?
A. Mr. Bornstein said that?
Q. Yes.
A. No, I don't recall that being said.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein suggest that night in words or in substance that the bond offering ought to be cancelled as a result of his skepticism?
A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein ever suggest that evening in words or in substance that the bond offering ought to be delayed as a result of this skepticism?
A. I don't recall that either.
Q. Was there any discussion that you can remember even at a different time period about whether the bond offering ought to be delayed or cancelled as a result of this information about first quarter 1998 sales?
A. No, I don't recall.

Page 130

Q. Turning back to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 40, I'd like to, which is the offering memo, I'd like to invite your attention to page eight, the Recent Announcement section.
Compare it to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39, the press release.
Do you recall who made the final decision about what the content of the Recent Announcement section would be?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you recall whether Mr. Bornstein had another telephone conversation that evening with Janet Kelly?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein telling you that he had spoken with Miss Kelly?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein ever tell you whether his concerns about disclosure had been overruled by anyone at Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein tell you that he was satisfied with the way the issue had been resolved?
A. I don't recall one way or another.
Q. After this discussion where Mr. Tyree used profanity, you continued to work on the offering memo for the remainder of the evening and into the next morning; is that correct?

Page 131

A. That's correct.
Q. Can you describe what the atmosphere of the room was like?
In other words, did you continue to work amicably together on the rest of the offering memo that evening?
A. Yes, we continued to work together on it.
Q. So whatever tension there had been as it relates to the disclosure issue had been resolved by the time the offering memo was finalized?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form, foundation.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall if it was resolved, but it appeared everything was professional and continued to work on the offering memorandum.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. As far as you could tell, was there, were there any other heated discussions that evening other than the one that you've described?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Prior to your providing the comfort letter to Morgan Stanley that evening, were there any discussions internally about how the comfort letter ought to be provided to Morgan Stanley?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. In other words, was there any discussion about who would provide the comfort letter, who would physically hand it to or deliver it at the print shop that evening?
A. Who, you mean me versus Larry?
Q. Correct.
A. It really didn't matter, although Larry was authorized to sign. Once it's signed, I believe I handed it to them.
Q. Now you testified earlier that there were drafts of the comfort letter that were being worked on prior to the print shop, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And I believe you testified in response to a question from Mr. Brody that a draft of the comfort letter was provided to Morgan Stanley prior to March 19th in the print shop; is that correct?
A. I believe I said I didn't recall if a draft was provided.
Q. Okay.
A. Typically one is, but --

Q. That's what I'm trying to get at. Do you have a recollection of in this case, as opposed to what's typically done, about whether a draft of the press release was ever provided to Morgan Stanley?
MR. MOSCATO: You misspoke.
MR. BRODY: Object to form. You said press release.
MR. CLARE: Appreciate that, thank you.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. I want to put aside what's typically done and I want to focus specifically on this comfort letter and any comfort letter that was provided by Andersen to Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam bond offering.
Do you have any personal knowledge about whether a draft of the comfort letter was sent to Morgan Stanley before March 19th?
A. No firsthand knowledge.
Q. Do you have any second-hand knowledge? Have you ever heard that it was?
A. Yes, through Dennis Pastrana.
Q. Did Mr. Pastrana ask you to send it? In other words, did you physically send it to them?
A. I recall that Dennis sent it to them.
Q. Mr. Pastrana told you that he had?

Page 134

A. That's correct.
Q. Did you ever see the copy that Mr. Pastrana said that he had sent to Morgan Stanley?
A. Not the actual final draft copy that was sent to them, no.
Q. Am I correct then that the only comfort letter that you're aware of having been delivered to Morgan Stanley was the final signed version that night at Global Financial Press?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that, but go ahead.
THE WITNESS: The only firsthand knowledge report that was sent to them.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Okay. How did the subject come up with Mr. Pastrana about whether a draft comfort letter would be provided to Morgan Stanley before the evening at the print shop?
A. It's part of our typical procedures to send a draft version to the underwriter and their attorney.
Q. Do you know who at Morgan Stanley it was sent to?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know whether a copy was also sent to Davis Polk?
A. Yes, yes.

Page 135

Q. Mr. Pastrana told you that?
A. Mr. Pastrana told me that, yes.
Q. But you don't have any firsthand knowledge of a draft of the comfort letter being sent to Davis Polk?
A. That's correct.
Q. And again, no firsthand knowledge of it being sent to Morgan Stanley?
A. That's correct.
Q. And Mr. Pastrana didn't tell you the individual at Morgan Stanley that he had sent it to?
A. That's correct.
Q. Or the individual at Davis Polk that he had sent it to?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you don't recall the context of this discussion with Mr. Pastrana?
A. No.
Q. About how this topic came up?
Mr. Bornstein signed the comfort letter on behalf of Arthur Andersen at the printer's?
A. Yes.
Q. And then provided a copy to Morgan Stanley?
A. I believe Morgan Stanley and their attorneys.
Q. Do you recall him doing that? Do you recall him physically handing the comfort letter to --

Page 136

A. I believe I handed it to them after Larry signed it.
Q. Was there any discussion about the contents of the comfort letter at the printer's that evening with Morgan Stanley or its attorneys?
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry, repeat the question, please.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Was there any discussion about the contents of the comfort letter with Morgan Stanley or its attorneys that evening at the print shop?
A. Yes, there was.
Q. What do you recall?
A. I don't recall the conversations.
Q. The comfort letter that you were working on at the print shop, was it a collaborative effort in drafting that document between Andersen and Morgan Stanley or was it Andersen's work?
A. Andersen's work.
Q. So with regard to the offering memo, Morgan Stanley was working on it and Andersen was working on it together, correct?
A. And the company.
Q. And the company, yes, thank you.
A. Certainly mostly the company.

Q. So the offering memo was a collective effort between Morgan Stanley, Andersen and the company?
A. That's correct.
Q. But the comfort letter, you and Mr. Bornstein were working on, correct?
A. Along with several other people, yes, correct.
Q. Several other Andersen people?
A. Andersen people, correct.
Q. Prior to the time that you handed the comfort letter to Morgan Stanley, had Mr. Tyree or any of the attorneys representing Morgan Stanley looked at a copy that evening at the print shop?
A. I believe so. I don't recall, though, who looked at it.
Q. Do you recall generally, though, reviewing iterative drafts of it with Morgan Stanley and its attorneys that evening at the print shop before the final version was handed to them?
A. Yes. Again, I don't recall who from each team looked at it, but yes, I do recall.
Q. Did Andersen -- I'm sorry, strike that.
Do you recall any discussion about the comparison of first quarter 1998 sales to first quarter 1997 sales with Morgan Stanley or its attorneys as it relates to the information disclosed in the comfort letter?

A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember specifically flagging that issue for Morgan Stanley or its attorneys?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Bornstein doing that?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall what time you left Global Financial Press that evening or the next morning?
A. It was the next morning. I'm not quite sure what time.
Q. Did you stay there with Mr. Bornstein the entire time or did you leave at separate times?
A. We left together, but I believe I took a nap for an hour or two.
Q. That evening?
A. That evening, as I was separate from him for a little period of time.
Q. Do you recall at the time that you took a nap whether the question of the recent development section had been resolved or not at that time?
A. I assume so. We delivered the comfort letter with our consent.
MR. MOSCATO: No, the question was at the time you took your nap.

Page 139

THE WITNESS: My nap followed the release of the comfort letter.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. So that issue had been resolved?
A. That's correct.
Q. And then you took your nap, and then at some point you and Mr. Bornstein left together?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein talk to you about any events that had taken place during your nap?
A. I'm sorry? Repeat one more time.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein tell you what had happened or any discussions that occurred while you were taking a nap and out of the room?
A. No.
MR. CLARE: Why don't we take a few-minute break and see if I can streamline some of this.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video record. The time on the monitor is 12:13 p.m.
(Thereupon, a recess was taken.)

Q. Mr. Brockelman, I'm going to show you what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit Number 9. It's a copy of the March 19, 1998, comfort letter. I'd like you to turn to page three, please.

Page 140

Do you recall any discussion with Morgan Stanley or its attorneys at the printer's about paragraph 5B of the March 19, 1998, press release?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you recall whether you or Mr. Bornstein identified paragraph 5B to Morgan Stanley and its attorneys as an issue they should focus on?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Same question with regard to paragraph 6B.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall any discussion about paragraph 6B with Morgan Stanley or its attorneys on March 19th?
A. No.
Q. Same question with regard to paragraph 6C. Do you remember any discussion with Morgan Stanley or its attorneys about paragraph 6C?
A. No.
Q. After March 19th, you returned to Florida?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. Did you recall any discussions with anyone at Arthur Andersen about additional procedures or testing with regard to first quarter 1998 Sunbeam sales?

A. With regard to what?
Q. Any aspect of it.
A. The first quarter review?
Q. What do you mean by first quarter review? You money after the end of the first quarter?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. And I appreciate that clarification. Let's say between March 19th, 1998, and the end of the quarter, did you have any discussions or involvement with any additional procedures or testing with regard to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Are you aware of any additional procedures or testing that Andersen performed on Sunbeam's sales to date in the first quarter of 1998 at that point?
A. Sales to date through the end of the first quarter?
Q. Well, through that point in the first quarter.
A. Through the point as of the end of February?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Or were you aware from any source about whether Andersen obtained information about any time period after the end of February about Sunbeam's sales in the first quarter?

A. For the first quarter, yes.
Q. Okay. What do you recall about that?
A. In connection with the first quarter review. I thought we're not talking about that.
Q. Yeah, let me ask it this way.
Did you get involved in any procedures or testing to obtain information about Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales for the time period after February 1st, 1998, which is the period that's discussed in the comfort letter?
A. I was not involved, that's correct.
Q. Were you involved in drafting the bring-down comfort letter?
A. Yes.
Q. And the sales figures that are reflected in the bring-down comfort letter when provided by Mr. Pastrana?
A. Provided by the company to Mr. Pastrana.
Q. Thank you. And did you have any discussions or involvement in determining what sales Sunbeam had made in March of 1998 up to the point of the bring-down comfort letter?
A. I had no involvement.

Page 143

Q. Do you have any knowledge about whether anything was done?
MR. BRODY: Object, foundation.
THE WITNESS: No, I don't have knowledge what was done.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Is there -- at the time that -- let's mark this.
I hand you what's been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 10. Is this what you referred to as the bring-down comfort letter?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you have any discussions with Morgan Stanley about the information contained in the bring-down letter?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Morgan Stanley after that evening at the print shop on any topic?
A. No.
Q. Paragraph E of the bring-down letter, and specifically the updated information for paragraph 5B which you see at the top of the second page --
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have an understanding from any source as to Sunbeam's sales for any time period after March 1st, 1998?

Page 144

A. At that time?
Q. At that time.
A. No.
Q. It was not until the first quarter review that you obtained information about Sunbeam sales for effectively March 1998?
A. That's correct.
(MS Exhibit No. 42 was marked for identification.)
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I'm handing you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 42, a document entitled Form for Documentation of Referencing Procedures.
Do you recognize this document?
A. This specific document or the form?
Q. This form of document.
A. Yes, I recognize the form.
Q. Okay. Can you tell me briefly how this document is used internally at Andersen?
MR. BRODY: How the form is used?
MR. CLARE: How this form is used, thank you.
THE WITNESS: An independent person within

Arthur Andersen will reference the opinion or letter or report being issued to ensure they match our professional standards, make sure they're accurate, and independently verify numerical data in the report, and this form is their documentation of that review.

BY MR. CLARE:

Q. Does the review that you just described take place before the opinion is issued?

A. Yes, correct.

Q. And this is one of the procedures that we talked about earlier that Andersen does prior to issuing an opinion?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any involvement with the preparation of the procedures here in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 42?

A. No, I believe Larry Bornstein directly supervised the person referencing this.

Q. And the person referencing it is somebody who is independent of the group of Andersen team members who were working on the actual opinion?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you know who was the person listed here as the referencer? Do you recognize that signature or handwriting on page three?

Page 146

A. No.

Q. Do you recognize the signature at the bottom of the page under engagement partner or manager of Mr. Bornstein's?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. That is consistent with your testimony that Mr. Bornstein supervised the referencing procedures that you described?

A. Yes.

Q. On page two of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 42 there is a reference to management representation letters in item four.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see that?

A. In item four? Oh, yes, yes, I see.

Q. It says, "If applicable, trace information regarding contingencies, litigation or uncertainties to the financial statements and to legal or management representation letters or other source documents in the working papers."

Did you have any involvement with the management representation letters that were prepared for the comfort letters that were provided to Morgan Stanley as part of the bond offering?

Page 147

A. No.

Q. You weren't involved in drafting them or reviewing them or providing comments on them?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you know who was?

A. No, I do not.

(MS Exhibit No. 43 was marked for identification.)

BY MR. CLARE:

Q. I'm handing you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 43. It's a document entitled Post Audit Review For Subsequent Material Transactions and Events After the Date of the Auditor's Report.

Are you familiar with this form of document?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Can you tell me how this form of document is used at Arthur Andersen?

A. Yes. If our opinion is to be used in a registration statement subsequent to its initial issuance, this form is required to be used to basically bring our report more current, to identify any significant events or items that might impact our opinion of the audited financial statements.

Q. In connection with the registration of it?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Page 148

Q. Did you have any involvement in completing the procedures that are described here in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 43 for the registration of the bond offering?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Is any of the handwriting on Morgan Stanley Exhibit 43 yours?

A. No.

Q. Was it your understanding in the first quarter of 1998 when you were working on the comfort letters for the bond offering that the bond offering memo and offering materials would be registered and that these type of procedures would be required?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see the handwriting at the bottom of the first page?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recognize that as Mr. Bornstein's handwriting?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Okay. Mr. Gluck and Miss Kelly are identified by name here.

Did you have any discussions with Mr. Gluck or Miss Kelly about any of the comfort letters that were provided to Morgan Stanley in connection with the bond offering?

A. I had some discussions with Mr. Gluck.
Q. And what was the context of those discussions?
A. I don't recall. Mostly it related to the tick marks that I applied on the exhibit, the offering memorandum itself.
Q. So these were discussions that took place after the events at the print shop?
A. No, before, in the actual drafting.
Q. I see. In the drafting of the offering memo?
A. That's correct.
Q. Prior to going to New York?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. Do you recall any specifics about the topics that you discussed with Mr. Gluck?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Did Mr. Gluck have a copy of the offering memo in draft form when you had those discussions with him?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. Were these in-person meetings or telephone conferences?
A. In person.
Q. Who during that time period had document control, if you will, of the offering memorandum?

Page 150

MR. BRODY: Object to foundation.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. If you know.
A. Yeah, I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember who you provided your edits and comments to prior to the evening at the print shop?
A. To Larry Bornstein.
Q. And you don't know to whom he provided the comments in order to get the document changed and fixed to reflect your edits?
A. No, I do not.
MR. CLARE: Mark these as the next four in sequence, and I'll give you each a set.
(MS Exhibit Nos. 44-47 were marked for identification.)
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I've handed you four documents, and we have had them marked as deposition exhibits.
To make sure everybody is on the same page, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 44 is a March 16, 1998, letter on Sunbeam letterhead.
Morgan Stanley Exhibit 45 is an undated document that appears to be -- with Bates number CPH

0041651 through 654.
Morgan Stanley Exhibit 46 is a document with Bates numbers CPH 0038712 through 15.
And then Morgan Stanley Exhibit 47 is a March 23rd, 1998, letter on Sunbeam letterhead addressed to Arthur Andersen.
I'd like you to first look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 44, which is a March 16, 1998, letter from a group of individuals at Sunbeam to Arthur Andersen.
Do you recognize Morgan Stanley Exhibit 44 as being in the form of a management representation letter?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Have you ever seen Exhibit 44 before today?
A. I don't recall seeing it before.
Q. Did you have any involvement in drafting it or reviewing it or receiving it on behalf of Andersen?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Look at the next document, which is a, appears to be a draft of a management representation letter in connection with the Sunbeam bond offering.
Have you seen this document before, Exhibit 45?
A. No.
Q. It appears to be a draft of a management representation letter.

Page 152

A. No.
Q. In a typical engagement, does Andersen get involved in drafting the management representation letter for its client?
A. Yes.
Q. And have you done that in connection with other engagements?
A. Yes.
Q. But not the Sunbeam-related matter?
A. That's correct.
Q. You had no involvement in that?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you recall any discussion about the contents of the management representation letter internally at Andersen during the first quarter of 1998?
A. No.
Q. If you'd look at the last -- sorry, next-to-the-last page of Exhibit 45, paragraph ten of this draft, it's a paragraph that reads, "Despite the decrease in net sales described in the preceding paragraph, management believes that net sales for the first quarter of fiscal 1998 will exceed net sales of the first quarter of fiscal 1997."

Page 153

Do you recall any discussion at Andersen about including that statement in a management representation letter for the Sunbeam bond offering?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall any discussions with anyone from Sunbeam about whether that was a true statement or not?
A. No.
Q. About whether Sunbeam management had that belief?
A. No.
Q. If you look at the next exhibit, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 46, similar draft of a management representation letter for the Sunbeam bond offering. You see there is some handwritten edits.
Is that your handwriting?
A. No.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that Mr. Bornstein's handwriting?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Did Mr. Bornstein ever discuss with you the contents of the management representation letter for the Sunbeam bond offering?
A. No.

Page 154

Q. Or any views that he had about what ought or ought not to be included in them?
A. No.
Q. If you look at the next-to-the-last page of Exhibit 46, Mr. Bornstein made some comments on the paragraph ten that we looked at a minute ago.
Do you recall any discussions about Mr. Bornstein's view on that paragraph?
A. No.
Q. And whether it ought to be included in the engagement letter?
A. No.
Q. I'm sorry, not the engagement letter, in the management representation letter.
A. I understand.
Q. Okay, but no, the answer is --
A. The answer is no.
Q. Okay. If you look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 47, it's a signed version of a management representation letter dated March 23rd, 1998.
And going back to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 44, the March 16th version of the final representation letter, you see neither of these exhibits have that paragraph that we just looked at regarding management's expectations for first quarter 1998 sales.

Page 155

Do you have any knowledge one way or the other as to why that paragraph was not included in the final version of the representation letters?
A. No.
(MS Exhibit No. 48 was marked for identification.)
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 48, appears to be a draft of the March 19, '98 comfort letter.
Have you seen this document before?
A. Yes, I believe I have.
Q. And when do you recall having seen it before?
A. Prior to the release of the offering memorandum.
Q. You see that this draft of the March 19, '98 comfort letter has a header on it.
Did you draft any portion of this document?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you draft this first paragraph of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 48?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you know to whom this document was provided?
A. I believe I provided it to Larry Bornstein.

Page 156

I only have secondhand knowledge it was provided to Morgan Stanley.
Q. Again, that was the conversation we talked about earlier with Mr. Pastrana?
A. That's right.
Q. But you didn't send it to Morgan Stanley?
A. No, I did not.
Q. And you didn't send it to Davis Polk?
A. No, I did not.
Q. And you didn't provide it to Scadden Arps?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you provide a draft of a comfort letter to anybody at Sunbeam?
A. No, I did not.
Q. So as far as your own personal knowledge goes, you can only testify about providing drafts of the comfort letter to other people at Arthur Andersen?
A. To Larry Bornstein, yes.
Q. Okay. Do you recall any discussions with Mr. Bornstein about this draft, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 48?
A. Not any specific discussion.
Q. Any changes or comments about what additional information to be included or not included in here?
A. No.

Q. You described some work on the first quarter review that you did after the close of the first quarter 1998.
A. Not that I did.
Q. Okay. You had no involvement in the first quarter review?
A. That's correct. Only knowledge of it.
Q. You worked on the restatement investigation at Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were assigned to work on specific areas by Mr. Denkhaus; is that correct?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. You worked on customer chargeback deductions? That's one of the topics that you worked on?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Co-op advertising?
A. Yes.
Q. Bill and hold?
A. I served in certain parts of bill and hold, yes.
Q. Warranty reserves?
A. Yes.
Q. Freight analysis?
A. Yes.

Page 158

Q. Shipment confirmations and analysis?
A. Yes.
Q. Sales return reserves?
A. Yes.
Q. Are there any other areas as you sit here today that you remember working on in connection with the restatement investigation?
A. Not without refreshing my memory.
Q. And you reported to Mr. Denkhaus in the performance of those duties?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you approximate for me how much time you spent working on the restatement investigation? Hundreds of hours? Thousands of hours? Do you have any sense?
A. I would say hundreds of hours.
Q. We've seen some time reports, and I'll just represent to you it shows more than 600 hours that you worked on.
Does that sound about right to you?
A. Sounds reasonable, yes.
MR. MOSCATO: Tom, I trust you don't have a lot to cover.
MR. CLARE: I do not.

Page 159

BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I understand that you were not involved in the decision to recommend the restatement to Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. That decision was made by other people at Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. And your role was limited to investigation and procedures in some of the areas that we've talked about and documenting that, providing it to other people at Andersen to make decisions on; is that a fair summary?
A. That's correct, yes.
Q. In connection with your work on the restatement, did you ever discuss any of those areas with Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. As a result of your work on the restatement, did you ever discover any information that Morgan Stanley was involved in any way in any of those areas?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: How many exhibits is this?
MR. CLARE: It's one, two, three, four, five, six.

Page 160

MR. MOSCATO: Mr. Clare is going to proceed very briefly through these documents.
MR. CLARE: I actually only have one question.
(Discussion held off the record.)
(MS Exhibit Nos. 49-54 were marked for identification.)
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I've handed you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibits 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, and 54. They are a series of memos you are shown as an author or a coauthor of.
Do you recognize these documents, Exhibit 49 through 54 as memos that you prepared in connection with your work on the restatement?
A. Yes.
Q. Is any of the handwriting that appears on any of these exhibits yours?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you just identify for me briefly?
A. Which handwriting?
Q. Correct, on which exhibits?
A. Exhibit MS 49. Do you want me to actually say each --
Q. No, I don't think it's necessary.

Exhibit 53 at the very top is not mine.
And Exhibit 54 is mine.
Q. As a result of the work that you did on the restatement, did you learn information from Sunbeam that you determined was not previously known to Andersen?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
THE WITNESS: Well, certainly, because we were using hindsight. It wasn't known to either party.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. As a result of the work that you did on the restatement, did you form an opinion whether Sunbeam's internal controls were adequate in 1997 or in the first quarter of 1998?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
THE WITNESS: No.

BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Did you have --
MR. MOSCATO: No, you didn't form an opinion?
THE WITNESS: No, I didn't form an opinion, correct.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Do you have an opinion as to whether or not Sunbeam was able to produce accurate financial statements in 1997?
A. No, I didn't form an opinion.
Q. Or in the first quarter of 1998?
A. At that time either.
Q. Did not form an opinion?
A. Did not form an opinion.
Q. Did you form an opinion as to whether or not Sunbeam had withheld information from Andersen during the 1997 audit?
A. No, I did not form an opinion.
Q. Or during the first quarter of 1998?
A. I did not form an opinion at that time either.
Q. As a result of the work that you did on the restatement, did you identify any information to suggest that Morgan Stanley had conspired with Sunbeam employees with respect to any of the issues identified in the restatement?

A. No, I did not form an opinion.
Q. My question was did you learn any information?
A. Did I learn? I'm sorry, no, I did not learn any information.
Q. Did you learn any information as a result of your work on the restatement that Morgan Stanley had conspired with Sunbeam in connection with the bond offering to provide misleading information?
A. No.
Q. Or did you uncover any information that Morgan Stanley had conspired with Sunbeam to defraud Coleman (Parent) Holdings Company in connection with the acquisition of Coleman?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any involvement with the management letter that was provided by Andersen to Sunbeam in October of 1998?
A. No.
Q. At any point in the first quarter of 1998, did you ever talk to anyone representing the Coleman company?
A. I don't recall the timing, but I did have discussions with people at the Coleman company. I just don't recall what time that was. It was prior to the acquisition.

Q. And what was the purpose of those discussions?
A. I don't recall. There is certain due diligence procedures that I was directed to perform, but I don't recall the substance of it.
Q. So this was a due diligence that you were asked to perform on Coleman on behalf of Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. To what I recall, yes.
Q. Were you part of any discussions or meetings that were due diligence performed by Coleman on Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever talk with anybody representing the Coleman company about Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. Did you ever talk with anyone who identified themselves as being from Coleman (Parent) Holdings Company?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Or MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. Do you have an understanding that MacAndrews

& Forbes was the ultimate parent of Coleman, at least for a portion of the stock?
A. I understand that.
Q. Okay. And you don't recall having spoken with anybody from MacAndrews & Forbes about Sunbeam?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone from Credit Suisse First Boston about Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Did you know or understand that Credit Suisse First Boston was advising Coleman in connection with the acquisition?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any discussion or conversation or meetings with anybody from the law firm of Watchell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz in connection with the acquisition?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any due diligence that anybody representing Coleman did on Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Not aware of any in-person meetings for that purpose?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any accounting due diligence for that purpose?

Page 166

A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any inquiries by Coleman about Sunbeam's bill and hold practices?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any inquiries by Coleman about Sunbeam's Early Buy program?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of any inquiries by Coleman after the press release dated March 19th, 1998?
A. No.
Q. Did you understand that as part of the acquisition, that Coleman would be receiving Sunbeam stock?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have a view or expectation that Coleman would or should be conducting due diligence on Sunbeam as a result of taking Sunbeam stock?
MR. MOSCATO: I object. I'm going to instruct him not to answer that.
MR. CLARE: On what basis?
MR. MOSCATO: He's not an expert witness. You can take it to the court. I instructed Mr. Pruitt not to answer a very similar question that was directed towards what Morgan Stanley should be doing yesterday.

I'm not playing favorites. This is across the board. These guys are fact witnesses and that's it. That's my basis.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Let me ask it this way to try and avoid the objection and an unnecessary dispute that we don't need to have.
Did the thought ever occur to you in the first quarter of 1998 regarding the due diligence that was or was not performed by Coleman on Sunbeam?
MR. MOSCATO: Answer that yes or no.
THE WITNESS: No.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. You didn't think about that topic?
A. Didn't have any thought about it.
Q. Am I correct that you had no involvement in the accounting due diligence that was conducted by Morgan Stanley with Andersen in connection with the Sunbeam transactions?
MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry. You have to -- the word with Andersen threw me.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Were you involved in any way with the accounting due diligence that Morgan Stanley performed in the first quarter of 1998?

A. No.
Q. On Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware that Morgan Stanley had a telephone conference with individuals from Andersen to conduct accounting due diligence on Sunbeam?
A. I recall somewhat hearing secondhand from Larry Bornstein.
Q. You recall hearing that back in the first quarter of 1998?
A. That's right.
Q. What did he tell you about it?
A. I don't recall, just that they had the conversation.
Q. Did he tell you any specifics about it?
A. No.
Q. Were you involved in any way in preparing for that telephone call?
A. No.
Q. Were you involved in any way in documenting the telephone call after the fact?
A. No.
Q. Other than what you told me about your conversation with Mr. Bornstein, did you have any involvement in the accounting due diligence that was perform by Morgan Stanley --

A. No.
Q. -- in the first quarter of 1998?
A. No.
Q. I know I asked you earlier whether you had any meetings or telephone conversations with anyone from Morgan Stanley after the evening at Global Financial Press. I'm not sure I asked you the other question.
Did you have any meetings or conversations with Morgan Stanley prior to that point?
A. No.
Q. Do you have an opinion on the quality of due diligence that was conducted by Morgan Stanley with regard to Sunbeam?
MR. MOSCATO: Answer that yes or no.
THE WITNESS: Do I have an opinion? No.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Do you have any basis for forming an opinion?
A. No basis.
Q. Because you weren't involved in any aspect of it?
A. That's correct.
Q. Have you had other dealings with Morgan

Page 170

Stanley outside of the Sunbeam engagement?
A. Yes.
Q. Business dealings?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have, have you ever had dealings with Morgan Stanley as an underwriter?
A. Yes.
Q. In what context?
A. I believe they are the underwriter on one or two other deals while I was at Arthur Andersen. I don't recall which deals. I did several while I was at Arthur Andersen.
Q. Based on those other deals, did you have more involvement with Morgan Stanley in connection with the due diligence that were performed as underwriter?
A. No.
Q. Did you perform a similar function on those deals as you did on the Sunbeam bond offering?
A. Yes.
MR. MOSCATO: Just about finished on that topic?
MR. CLARE: Yes, we are. Why don't we take five minutes and then come back on. I think I'm either done or essentially done. I just want to consult for a minute.

Page 171

MR. MOSCATO: Can we do it even shorter than five minutes?
MR. CLARE: I hope so.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now going off video record. The time on the monitor is 1:08 p.m.
(Thereupon, a recess was taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on video record. The time on the monitor, 1:11 p.m.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I asked you earlier whether at any point after the evening at Global Financial Press you obtained any information about Sunbeam's first quarter sales. Do you remember generally me asking you those questions?
A. Yes.
Q. And you indicated that not until the first quarter review.
Is that correct?
A. That's correct, yes.
Q. And then I asked you whether you were involved in the first quarter review, and I think you said no.
A. Not in performing procedures, that's correct, yes.
Q. But you later became aware of the first quarter review that was done; is that right?

Page 172

A. Yes.
Q. And that was in connection with your work on the restatement?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. So it was not contemporaneous with the first quarter review being done?
A. Yes.
Q. It was months after the fact, while you were working on the restatement?
A. That's correct.
Q. You also testified that you remember being involved in a meeting with people from Coleman or telephone conversation with people from Coleman in performing due diligence on Coleman; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it just a single meeting or telephone conference that you remember?
A. No. Actually it was numerous meetings over the course of a couple of days.
Q. And where were the meetings located?
A. I forgot where Coleman's headquarters were.
Q. Wichita?
A. I believe it was via telephone conference to their headquarters.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 173

Q. So you were -- do you recall who at Coleman you spoke to?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Any names?
A. No names whatsoever.
Q. Who else at Andersen was participating in those meetings?
A. I don't recall.
Q. During those series of telephone video conferences, do you recall whether --
A. It was a telephone conference, not a video. I don't know if that was invented at the time.
Q. Sorry. Do you recall those telephone conferences that you had with Coleman, do you recall whether there were any advisors to Coleman that were on the call as well?
I mentioned CSFB and a law firm of Watchell Lipton. Do you recall them being participants in those telephone conversations?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. As you sit here today, you don't recall any inquiries that were directed to Andersen by Coleman about Sunbeam during those telephone conferences?
A. That's correct.
MR. CLARE: That's all I have.

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I'll try your patience with just a few follow-up questions.
Sir, is it correct to say that in connection with your work on the transaction that led to the bond offering, you only worked on limited projects that were assigned to you?
A. That's correct.
Q. Prior to that point, you weren't generally assigned to the Arthur Andersen engagement for Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That's correct?
A. That's correct, yes.
Q. Okay. Mr. Clare asked you some questions about trips to New York and so on.
Is it correct that during the work you did in connection with the transaction, not the restatement, but the transaction, you made only one visit to New York?
A. I'm a little hazy on that, quite honestly. There is a potential I might have had a second trip before the finalization of the bond offering. I'm not too sure on that point. Certainly my time reports and expense reports would reflect whatever reality was.

Q. But the rest of the work that you did over the month or two that you worked on the project, you did in Florida?
A. That's correct, yes.
Q. And on the night of the 19th from the printer's when someone called, I guess it was Mr. Bornstein called Mr. Harlow and Mr. Pruitt, they weren't in New York, were they?
MR. CLARE: Objection, no foundation.
THE WITNESS: I did know they were in Florida.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. How do you know that?
A. Just from knowing their schedule.
Q. Mr. Brockelman, I'm going to give you copies of several of the exhibits that have already been marked. And we'll just walk through a couple of things.
Exhibit 114, which I believe is at the top, Mr. Clare took you through there and asked you about certain things in that meeting and whether you were -- excuse me, in that memorandum and whether you were present when the referenced conversations took place, but he didn't ask you about all of them. I'd like to ask you about a couple more.

On the first page of the document, the third paragraph that begins with the text "On the evening of March 19," do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. You were present for those conversations, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And on the following page, I believe it's the first full paragraph, begins with "Mr. Tyree and Mr. Lurie were very upset," you were present for those conversations as well, were you not?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. You can put that document aside.
You were asked some questions by Mr. Clare and by me about the comfort letters. And I believe in your testimony you indicated that typically Arthur Andersen would send drafts of comfort letters and get comments from the underwriter; is that correct?
A. Yes, that is correct.
Q. And I believe you said that Mr. Pastrana, you learned secondhand that Mr. Pastrana had indeed sent the drafts?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you explain the basis for your understanding that Mr. Pastrana sent the drafts?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16div-023054

Page 177

A. He told me that.
Q. Do you know when he told that you?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Okay. But in March 1998?
A. Approximate to the date of the draft version that I was presented.
Q. Okay. And after Mr. Pastrana told you that, that was the sort of information you relied on; is that correct?
A. Absolutely, yes.
Q. Now, I believe, sir, in front of you are Morgan Stanley Exhibits 9 and 10 Mr. Clare showed you, and I think I showed you other versions of some of those letters, maybe the same thing, but let's use those for the time period.
Exhibits 9 and 10 are the final versions of the comfort letter from the 19th and the bring-down letter from the 25th; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Minus their exhibits?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you participate in any conversations with Morgan Stanley in which it was discussed that the information in these letters should be put in the offering memorandum?

MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, ask one more time.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. After these letters were transmitted, did you participate in any conversations with anyone from Morgan Stanley in which Morgan Stanley or anyone else suggested putting this information, the information from these letters, in the offering memorandum?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: The actual comfort letter into the offering memo?
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. For example, that would be one thing, put the comfort letter in in toto.
A. I wasn't part of any such discussions.
Q. Or if you turn to the comfort letter, for example, on page three of Exhibit 9 towards the bottom, in paragraph 5B there is discussion about sales through February 1, 1998, and then on page five of that document at the top, paragraph 6C, there is mention of sales through March 1.
Did anyone at Morgan Stanley discuss with you whether that information should be put in the offering memorandum?

Page 179

A. No.
Q. And likewise, on Exhibit 10 at the top of the second page, there are sales and net loss information for '97 and '98.
Anyone at Morgan Stanley discuss with you or Arthur Andersen to your knowledge putting that information in the offering memorandum?
A. No.
Q. After the comfort letters were delivered, did you ever hear anyone from Morgan Stanley suggest that Morgan Stanley would withdraw the offering?
A. No.
Q. Or delay it?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Clare also showed you the management rep letter, and I've pulled out of the stack Exhibit 47, which is one of the versions that he showed you.
This document is signed by four very senior executives at Sunbeam, is it not?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: Yes, it is.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. For example, Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh are the number one and number two most senior people there?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form.

Page 180

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Is that correct?
A. I don't know who number two is. Certainly I consider Dunlap number one.
Q. Mr. Kersh was an executive vice-president?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. And Mr. Fanin was the head lawyer for the company?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. And Mr. Gluck was the chief accounting officer?
A. Yes.
Q. And they signed this letter that they sent to Arthur Andersen on the 23rd; is that correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection, foundation.
THE WITNESS: It appears to be.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Okay. What I believe is finally -- Mr. Clare and I have both had discussions about the meetings at the printer and the print shop.
Just for people who are not familiar with how transactions like this have a better understanding, when you went to the print shop, were you in the vicinity of the printing presses?
A. No.

016991

Page 181

Q. You weren't looking at the guys wearing the hats made out of news print stopping the presses?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. You were in a series of conference rooms and executive offices?
A. That's correct.
Q. And information was brought to you, copies of draft pages were brought to you for your review?
A. That's correct.
Q. One moment.
MR. BRODY: I have no further questions. Thank you, Mr. Brockelman.

RECROSS (MARK BROCKELMAN)

BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Very briefly returning to CPH Exhibit 114, Mr. Bornstein's memo.
Mr. Brody had directed your attention to two paragraphs. The third paragraph on the first page, paragraph beginning "On the evening of March 19th."
A. Yes.
Q. You indicated that you were present for that conversation, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein making the statements that are reflected in this conversation -- in this paragraph?

MR. BRODY: Objection, asked and answered.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Well, what I'm trying to get at is you just testified in response to Mr. Brody's question that you were present for the conversation that's described here, but I've asked you a series of questions today about whether you remember Mr. Bornstein making certain statements or taking certain positions, and you've said that you couldn't recall.
So what I'm trying to understand is in response to Mr. Brody's question, were you saying that you were present for these conversations or that you recall them exactly as Mr. Bornstein has relayed them?
A. I was present for that paragraph, what's being described in that paragraph. Also I confirmed the events of that paragraph at the time this memo was written.
MR. MOSCATO: But that's not his question. Why don't you answer his question?
THE WITNESS: Yes, I was present at that time.
MR. MOSCATO: That wasn't his question.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Do you recall Mr. --

Page 183

MR. MOSCATO: I give up.
BY MR. CLARE:
Q. Do you recall Mr. Bornstein telling Mr. Lurie that the caveat that the company would still exceed prior year first quarter sales was a forward-looking statement and was not appropriate for an offering document?
Do you recall Mr. Bornstein making that statement?
A. No.
Q. And then on the second page of CPH Exhibit 114, do you recall Mr. Bornstein stating that it was Andersen's recommendation to eliminate that statement in the offering memorandum?
A. No.
MR. CLARE: Thank you. That's all I have.
MR. BRODY: Thank you, Mr. Brockelman.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This is the conclusion of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Brockelman. We are now going off video record. The time on the monitor, 1:25 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

JOSHUA A. WEBBER, the witness having been duly cautioned and sworn testified as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. BRODY:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Webber, would you please state your name and spell your name for the court reporter.
A. Joshua A. Webber, W-E-B-B-E-R.
Q. Mr. Webber, do you -- or have you ever gone by any other names?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been deposed before?
A. No.
Q. Do you understand how this process is to work?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. What is your understanding?
A. That you're going to ask me questions about the transactions, and I'm going to answer the best I can.
Q. That sounds great.
Let me just fill in a couple of things.
Because this is being taken down by a court reporter it's important that you and I wait for each other to finish before we start. So I will try not to step on your answers and you try not to step on my questions, or else the court reporter will tell us about it.

If you don't understand any of my questions, ask for a clarification. The record won't reflect your lack of understanding, and it's important that you understand before you answer.

If you need to take a break at any time, just say so. We may need to finish up a few questions to get to a logical breaking point, but we will accommodate your schedule.

Are those acceptable?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay, you said, sir, you have never been deposed before.

Have you ever testified under oath in any setting?

A. No.

Q. In connection with the work you did at Morgan Stanley, did you ever submit an affidavit or a signed statement for any reason?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Webber, do you have any documents in your possession, not necessarily with you right now, but maybe at home or at another office, relating to the work that you did at Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. Do any of them concern the work done on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?

A. No.

Q. What was -- what were the dates of your tenure at Morgan Stanley?

A. I started in August of 1997, and I left in May of 2001.

Q. When you were there, were you aware that there had been litigation filed concerning the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?

A. No.

Q. When was the first time you learned that there had been litigation filed?

A. I don't recall specifically, but it was in the last couple of years.

Q. Okay.

At any time did anyone at Morgan Stanley, be it an outside counsel, or a member of the legal department, or anyone else, ask you to collect any documents that you might have had at Morgan Stanley concerning the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?

A. No, I don't recall that.

Q. Mr. Webber, are you represented by counsel?

A. Yes.

Q. And Ms. Brown is your lawyer?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you first become represented by Ms. Brown or her firm?

A. It was probably the last sixth to eight weeks.

Q. Did you contact them or did they contact you?

A. They contacted me.

Q. And who is paying for their representation of you?

A. Morgan Stanley.

Q. What do you understand to be the nature of your arrangements with her firm?

Do you have any other understanding other than that Morgan Stanley pays?

A. That she is representing me and not Morgan Stanley. That is about it.

Q. You're aware that her firm also represents Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. Mr. Webber, how did you learn that a party in this case wished to take your deposition?

A. I was informed by Tom Clare.

Q. Do you know when that was?

A. As I said, it was probably six or eight weeks ago.

Q. Okay.

Is that the first time that you were aware of the lawsuit between Coleman Parent and Morgan Stanley?

A. The specifics, yes, or -- I believe I knew -- I had heard that something was transpiring, but I was not really familiar with the details.

Q. Do you remember how you had heard that something was going on?

A. No, no.

Q. Aside from your contact with Mr. Clare, -- let me withdraw that.

When did you retain Mr. Clare's firm or Ms. Brown to represent you in this matter?

A. I had a second conversation -- a second conversation with Tom, perhaps a week to two weeks after the first one in which I agreed to be represented by his firm.

Q. Had Mr. Clare offered to represent you in the first conversation?

MS. BROWN: Objection.

A. Yes.

Q. Have you had any contact with Morgan Stanley in-house lawyers concerning this case?

A. No.
Q. Mr. Webber, do you have any -- you're no longer at Morgan Stanley?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you have any continuing contact with Morgan Stanley in a business nature?
A. No, not in a business nature.
Q. Are you invested in any deals were Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Do you have -- are you -- does Morgan Stanley continue to pay you under any pay-outs or deals from your employment there?
A. I continue to hold some Morgan Stanley stock that will be -- as part of a -- some kind of performance plan that has not vested yet, that will vest soon.
Q. And when it's vested you will be able to sell it if you wish?
A. Correct.
Q. Aside from the stock that you have in Morgan Stanley, that non-vested plan, do you have any other business relationship -- or relationship under which Morgan Stanley is paying you anything?
A. No.
Q. Do you maintain personal contact with individuals at

Page 11

Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. In connection with that personal contact, have you ever discussed this lawsuit?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Webber, what did you do to prepare for today's deposition?
A. I met yesterday with my lawyer.
Q. Anything else?
A. No.
Q. Approximately how long did your meeting take?
A. I would say five hours.
Q. In connection with that meeting, or in that meeting, did counsel show you any documents?
A. Yes.
Q. Did any of those documents refresh your recollection about events that took place during the Morgan Stanley Sunbeam-Coleman transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. What documents refreshed your recollection?
A. There were documents related to a -- another acquisition that Morgan Stanley was contemplating that I had forgotten about -- I'm sorry, that Sunbeam was contemplating that I had forgotten about.

Page 12

Q. Any others that refresh your recollection?
A. I saw documents that help crystallize what had happened. Since it was so long ago I had, you know, forgotten specifics of the transaction, and members of the team, having looked at those documents, it is more clear than it once was.
Q. Any other documents that you remember refreshing your recollection?
A. No.
Q. The other acquisition that you referred to, was that First Alert or Signature Brands?
A. No, the one I was just referring to was -- it was a Black & Decker subsidiary.
Q. And the documents that helped crystallize your recollection of the events or the team, what documents were those?
A. The merger models, the -- some other Excel spread sheets that I created, other Sunbeam management presentations.
Q. Any others that come to mind?
A. No.
Q. When you say "the merger models," what do you mean by that?
A. While we were analyzing these transactions we created -- I was responsible for creating an extensive Excel model which evaluated the financials of these transactions.

Page 13

Q. And that is the document that you're referring to?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that the same as the Excel spread sheet that you created, or are those separate?
A. There was also a spread sheet which calculated the fees associated with the transaction.
Q. You prepared that?
A. Yes.
Q. The merger model that you created, who did you do that work with?
A. Tyrone Chang, primarily.
Q. Did you work with anyone at Sunbeam on that project?
A. No, we showed the results to the members of the Sunbeam team, but they were not involved in creating the model.
Q. Okay, did you receive inputs from anyone at Sunbeam to create the model?
A. I don't recall. I think most of the inputs were based on publicly-available information.
Q. Okay, just so I make sure I'm thinking of the right document, what was the end product of the merger model you created?

A. There was several pages, cash flow statements, earnings, accretion/dilution analysis, balance sheets, income statements.
Q. Was it a tenure-perspective estimate?
A. That was part of it, yes.
Q. Okay.
Okay, in connection with your preparation for this deposition, did you review any transcripts of any other depositions?
A. No.
Q. Did you talk to anyone other than Ms. Brown?
A. No.
Q. For example, Mr. Chang? Have you spoken with Mr. Chang?
A. No.
Q. Did you review videotapes of depositions?
A. No.
Q. Did you review any Morgan Stanley personnel evaluation forms to your recollection?
A. Yes.
Q. Which ones did you review?
A. My own.
Q. Do you remember what portions you reviewed?

Page 15

MS. BROWN: I'm going to object to the extent that this isn't going into a document to refresh his recollection, and it goes into work product of what was done during the deposition preparation, so I'm going to instruct him not to answer.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Are you going to follow your counsel's instruction?
A. Yes.
Q. The document -- the personnel evaluation form that you saw, had you seen it before?
A. Let's see, I -- I don't think I had seen the document before, but as part of the year-end evaluation process we are read pieces of the document. So I guess I did hear what was in it several years ago.
Q. Comparing what you saw yesterday to what you heard several years ago, did you see, yesterday, portions that you had not heard several years ago?
MS. BROWN: Same objection and instruction.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Are you going to follow your counsel's instruction?
A. Yes.
MS. BROWN: For the record, just so we're not called back on this, if you want to ask that same type of question in a different way, it can be done so it does not get into privileged information.

MR. BRODY: Well, I don't think it got into privileged information the way I asked it.
The question is have you waived an argument you made by showing him the document, so I think I'm entitled to ask him what you showed him.
MS. BROWN: Okay, I disagree, but I think that you can do the question -- that type of question differently by looking at the document asking if the portions that you're interested in you have seen before.
MR. BRODY: Okay, but I can't ask for the document because of the Order you got from the Court.
MS. BROWN: You can ask him about portions. You're entitled to show him portions of the document.
MR. BRODY: Yes, will show him portions. I will do that later. I can ask him if he saw something else.
MS. BROWN: In any event.
MR. BRODY: I think the objection is not well taken.
BY MR. BRODY:

Page 17

Q. Since you left Morgan Stanley have you been contacted by anyone outside of Morgan Stanley about the Sunbeam transaction, other than the events that -- other than the events that gave rise to this deposition?
A. No, no.
Q. You indicated you maintain personal relationships with individuals at Morgan Stanley.
A. Yes.
Q. Who?
A. John Collins.
Are you interested in people who are still at Morgan Stanley?
Q. We will start with that.
A. He is the only one who is still at Morgan Stanley that I have been in contact with in the last year.
Q. Do you remain in contact with any individual at Morgan Stanley who worked on the Sunbeam transaction?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Webber, as you probably, know we're going to focus primarily today on the Sunbeam transaction. I would like to address your background before we get into that.
What area of the country were you born and raised?
A. In Massachusetts.

Page 18

Q. Did you attend high school in Massachusetts?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. After high school did you attend college?
A. Yes.
Q. Where?
A. Kenyon College.
Q. Did you graduate from Kenyon?
A. Yes.
Q. When?
A. May of 1991.
Q. With a degree in what?
A. Economics and math.
Q. What did you do after you graduated from Kenyon?
A. I worked for Shearson Leeman Brothers, which through a series of mergers eventually became Smith Barney.
Q. Where?
A. In New York.
Q. What was your position at the time you left Smith Barney?
A. At the time I left Smith Barney I was a financial consultant.
Q. What did you do as a financial consult at that point in time?
A. A stockbroker.

Page 19

Q. On the retail side?
A. Yes.
Q. Were all of your positions at Shearson Leeman and Smith Barney on the retail side of the business?
A. No, most of my time there was as a -- in systems software.
Q. And then after a time you changed from systems to the retail side of the business?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you leave Smith Barney?
A. Spring of 1995.
Q. And where did you go then?
A. Graduate school, University of Virginia.
Q. In the business school?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you receive an MBA?
A. Yes.
Q. When?
A. May of 1997.
Q. You came to Morgan Stanley in August of that year?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any employment between graduation and Morgan Stanley?
A. No.

Page 20

Q. So you were hired by Morgan Stanley in August of '97, also in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. In what position?
A. Investment Banking Associate.
Q. How long were you an associate in investment banking?
A. I was an associate until December of 2000 when I was promoted to Vice President.
Q. Are there any steps in between associate and Vice President?
A. No.
Q. And you left Morgan Stanley in May of the following year?
A. May of 2001.
Q. Okay, in your undergraduate education did you take any business courses?
A. Economics courses.
Q. Okay, in your graduate work at the University of Virginia did you have an area of concentration?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. Finance and accounting.
Q. You're not a CPA?
A. No.

Page 21

Q. Have you ever sat for the CPA exam?
A. No.
Q. After you left Morgan Stanley in 2001, what position did you hold?
A. I currently run my family's businesses.
Q. And what are those businesses?
A. They are fairly diverse, but they are owning a restaurant, a function hall, real estate development, cell-tour business, and a cattle farm.
Q. That is rather diverse.
Where are these business located?
A. In Groton, Massachusetts.
Q. And you have been doing that since May of 2001?
A. August.
Q. Okay.
I would like to concentrate on the work that you did at Morgan Stanley.
You arrived there in August of 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. And were assigned to the investment banking division?
A. Yes.
Q. What were your responsibilities in investment banking division in August of '97?
A. In the first year all first-year investment bankers are in what is called "the associate pool," and we go through rotations in different groups.

The first group I was in was the Media Corporate Finance Group.

Q. How long did that rotation last?

A. Approximately four months.

Q. Did you work on the Sunbeam deal when you were in the Media Corporate Finance Group?

A. No.

Q. What was your next rotation?

A. Mergers and acquisitions.

Q. Do you know when you started in mergers and acquisitions?

A. I don't know specifically, but it -- I think it was around January 1st.

Q. And how long were you in that department?

A. Until I left in 2001.

Q. When you were first -- excuse me, when you were first assigned to the M&A department, to whom did you report?

A. Well, it -- you report to different people on different deal teams.

Q. Well, let me ask another question.

A. Okay.

Q. How many deals -- in the 1997, '98 time period, so when you started in the M&A, be it late '97 or early '98, throughout the remainder of 1998, did you work on deals other than the Sunbeam engagement?

A. Yes.

Q. I'm not going to ask a lot about it, but were the names of the other deals, if you recall?

A. I worked on GECs, acquisition of Tracor, I worked on the sale of Red Line Healthcare by Novardis.

Those are the only two I recall for sure that closed during that time.

Q. And you worked on the Sunbeam deal?

A. Yes.

Q. And I asked you to exclude that before.

What percentage of your time in 1998 was on the Sunbeam deal?

A. From when I started on the Sunbeam deal through --

Q. Through when you stopped working on the Sunbeam deal?

A. Probably three quarters of my time.

Q. And approximately when did you stop working on Sunbeam matters?

A. I don't recall specifically, but approximately June, July, perhaps.

Q. Okay.

Okay, focussing on the Sunbeam engagement, I don't need to know about the other ones you just identified, to whom did you report?

A. There were several people on the deal senior to me that I reported to, including Jim Stynes, Bob Kitts, Bill Strong and Alex Fuchs, F-U-C-H-S.

Q. Any others?

A. That I reported to?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I don't believe so.

Q. Okay, in connection with the Sunbeam matter did you work with Mr. Tyree?

A. Only peripherally. He was on the financing side, I was on the M&A side. Virtually all of my work was on the M&A side.

Q. Same with Mr. Savary? Do you know him?

A. I know who he is. I don't think I ever worked with him at all.

Q. You said you had peripheral contact with Mr. Tyree. Do you remember what it was?

A. I don't recall specifically what I did with him. He was working on the financing, and my recollection is that he from time to time would consult with me on Sunbeam since I was familiar with the client.

Q. You have identified the people you reported to. Did anyone report to you?

A. Yes, Tyrone Chang and Lili Rafi.

Q. Lili Rafi?

Their position at the company was as an analyst?

A. Correct.

Q. You said you became a Vice President at the end of 2000?

A. Yes.

Q. You were not a Vice President during the course of this deal?

A. No.

Q. You left Morgan Stanley in May of 2001?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did you leave the company?

A. Because I had had enough of living in New York and wanted to move back home.

Q. Did your work on Sunbeam have anything to do with your decision to leave?

A. No.

Q. Now, Mr. Webber, I'm going to focus primarily on the time period you were working on Sunbeam, so late '97, early '98, at the start, until June or July of '98, at the finish; is that correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 26

A. I don't believe I started working on Sunbeam until -- certainly til '98, but I believe it was, you know, prior on February 1st, 1998.
Q. Until June or July of '98?
A. Correct.
Q. At the time you were an associate in the Investment Banking Group?
A. Yes.
Q. You were assigned to the New York office?
A. Yes.
Q. The number of people that you've identified, such as Mr. Strong, had offices elsewhere?
A. He was the only one identified that did have offices elsewhere.
Q. How often did you see Mr. Strong?
A. I don't recall, but a few times a month.
Q. Would he come to New York, or would you go to Chicago?
A. He came to New York.
Q. Did you communicate with individuals such as Mr. Strong from other offices by telephone?
A. Yes.
Q. And by e-mail?
A. I don't recall using e-mail in 1998. It certainly was not used as it is today.

Page 27

Q. When you were at Morgan Stanley did you have an e-mail account in the 1998 time frame?
A. I believe I did, yes.
Q. Do you know if that was run through Morgan Stanley, or do you use something like Bloomberg?
A. No, it was run through Morgan Stanley.
Q. You never had a Bloomberg account?
A. No.
Q. You identified a number of individuals you reported to, Mr. Stynes, Mr. Kitts, Mr. Strong and Mr. Fuchs on this transaction.
From your perspective how was the hierarchy of the transaction organized?
A. Mr. Strong, Mr. Kitts and Mr. Stynes were Managing Directors, and they were ultimately in charge of the transaction.
Mr. Fuchs was a Vice President who was working for them, and I was working for Mr. Fuchs as well as the three managing directors.
Q. And then Mr. Chang and Ms. Rafi were working for you?
A. Correct.
Q. Between Strong, Kitts and Stynes, how was the authority divided, or the responsibility divided?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.

Page 28

A. Mr. Stynes and Mr. Kitts were M&A professionals whose responsibility was primarily on the three M&A transactions that we were working on.
Q. And Mr. Strong?
A. Mr. Strong had a relationship -- had a corporate-finance relationship with the client.
Q. Mr. Webber, what was your area of responsibility on the Sunbeam transaction?
A. I had a variety of responsibilities, however, primarily it was financial analysis of the three transactions, as well as preparing presentations to Sunbeam management from Morgan Stanley, as well as presentations to the Sunbeam Board of Directors.
Q. What presentations do you remember developing to Sunbeam management?
A. I did several pieces of analysis of the three targets that actually closed, accretion and dilution analysis, primarily, and I also evaluated several -- I evaluated other transactions that did not close and presented financial analysis on those.
Q. Such as the Black & Decker deal that you mentioned?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you say accretion and dilution analysis, accretion and dilution of earnings?

Page 29

A. Yes.
Q. The presentation to the Sunbeam Board of Directors, was that more than one presentation, or only one?
A. It was a presentation that we did presenting all three targets, but it was at one meeting we presented all three.
Q. Did you prepare any presentations that were given to people outside of Sunbeam management?
MS. BROWN: Or the Board of Directors?
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Or the Board of Directors?
A. No.
Q. For example, I know that Morgan Stanley made presentations to MacAndrews and Forbes. Do you know if you prepared any of those?
A. I don't recall preparing any of those, however, I -- it's reasonable to assume that I did, given that I was on the transaction.
Q. Okay, and then the financial analysis of the three transactions, you had spoken earlier of the Excel modeling.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any work you did besides that modeling?
A. Well, in preparing the presentations to the Board of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 30

Directors there were pages in the presentation that were not solely Excel spread sheets, so I was assisting in preparing those pages.
Q. Right.
In preparing the presentations that you did, what sources of data did you use?
A. We used information that was publicly available through other research analysts, and we also received some input from Sunbeam management.
Q. Did you, personally, ever speak with anyone at Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. With whom did you speak?
A. Several people.
The names that I recall are Al Dunlap, Russ Kersh, David Fannin, Deb McDonald, Rich Goudis.
I believe that is all I recall.
Q. Did you deal with Don Usi?
A. No.
Q. Lee Griffith?
A. No.
Q. Scott Yales?
A. No.
Q. Dixon Thayer?

Page 31

A. No.
Q. How frequently did you speak with Mr. Dunlap?
A. I would guess over the months that I was working on the transaction I probably spoke with him five or six times.
Q. Among those people that you identified, Dunlap, Kersh, Fannin, McDonald and Goudis, was there one individual that was your primary source of contact of information, or your primary contact?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Initially -- well, I would say Deb MacDonald was the one I spoke with the most, however, most of the work I did with her was on transactions other than -- potential transactions other than the three that actually closed.
I wouldn't say that I had regular contact with anyone from Sunbeam related to the Coleman or other -- Coleman acquisitions, or the other two targets.
Q. Okay.
Did you ever travel to Florida?
A. No.
Q. Did you speak to these individuals when they were in Florida? For example, call Ms. MacDonald while she was in Florida?

Page 32

A. Yes.
Q. Did you send her information by fax, or Fed/Ex, or by mail?
A. I don't recall doing that, although I suspect I did.
Q. And she sent you information?
A. I suspect she did.
Q. You talked to her and the others by telephone when they were in Florida?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever meet with any of the Sunbeam people in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. How many times?
A. Again, I would guess five or six times.
Q. Okay, we will come back to those in a second. Let me just ask you one other thing. Maybe I should have done this earlier.
When you were at Morgan Stanley did you understand there to be a policy of the company, or a practice of the company for retaining or destroying documents?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever instructed as to what you should do with documents from the deals that you worked on?
A. I don't recall being instructed.

Page 33

Q. You don't remember anyone talking to you about that?
A. No.
Q. Was there a -- to your knowledge, a document retention or destruction policy ever communicated to you?
A. I don't recall it being communicated to me.
Q. What was your personal practice on keeping or discarding files on matters that you worked on?
A. I kept -- I usually kept only finished products in an effort to keep my files manageable, meaning when presentation of books were created I would keep the book but I would discard most of the other materials.
Q. Where would you keep those materials?
A. I had a filing cabinet.
Q. In your office?
A. Well, no, not in my office, but on the floor.
Q. Okay.
When you left the company what happened to the files that you had kept?
A. I don't recall what happened to those files.
Q. I may have asked you this earlier, sir, but between the beginning of 1998, and May of 2001, when you left, did anyone ever come and ask to see your files or to collect your files?
A. No -- I don't recall that.

Page 34

Q. Let me show you, Mr. Webber, what was previously marked as Plaintiff Exhibit No. 6. We describe it as "CPH Exhibit No. 6," and it's an expert from a document produced to us by Morgan Stanley.
Have you ever seen this document, or something like it describing file maintenance practices?
A. I don't recall seeing this.
Q. It starts at the beginning by saying, "Files should be kept lean and unnecessary materials should be discarded on a regular basis."
Was that ever communicated to you as being the practice or policy?
A. I don't recall that being communicated to me.
Q. Was that in fact what you did?
A. Yes.
Q. When a deal was over, when a deal closed, did you have a practice of keeping certain materials in an archive or a set of files?
A. I usually kept finished products, finished presentations in a filing cabinet.
Q. And do you believe you did that on the Sunbeam deal?
A. I don't recall what I kept. I suspect I did.
Q. As you were keeping finished products it was your practice not to keep draft materials; is that correct?

Page 35

A. Correct.
Q. Would you discard the drafts after the deal had closed, or would you do it along the way?
A. Probably both, but certainly when the deal had closed, but a tremendous amount of paperwork accumulates on a deal like this, and so I throw away quite a bit as a deal was going.
Q. Now, we talked a little bit earlier about e-mail. While you were at Morgan Stanley did you ever try to retrieve e-mail from archives, or from some storage facility?
A. No.
Q. The lawsuit that brings us here today was filed in the scheme of things relatively recently. There was prior litigation involving Sunbeam. While you were still at Morgan Stanley were you aware of any litigation involving Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall if I was aware of the litigation or I wasn't.
Q. Okay.
Okay, returning to the work that you did for the Sunbeam transaction, at the time you came to the M&A Department Morgan Stanley had already been retained on the transaction?

Page 36

A. Yes.
Q. At the time that you first worked on the Sunbeam matter, what did you understand to be Morgan Stanley's assignment or role?
A. We were evaluating acquiring -- I don't recall if it -- the transaction that I worked on was the acquisition involved three targets, Coleman's, Signature Brands and First Alert, and I don't recall when I started if all three were under consideration.
Q. So you worked on the buy side of transactions?
A. Correct.
Q. And the terminology, "buy side," refers to the work of your business in assisting a company that was buying another company?
A. Correct.
Q. Are you aware that Morgan Stanley also did work with Sunbeam on the sell side?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have anything to do with that?
A. No.
Q. Was that done before you came to the M&A group?
A. Yes.
Q. And the sell-side work did not result in a transaction, did it?

Page 37

A. No.
Q. Do you know why?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever told a reason why Sunbeam had been unable to sell itself to close a sale?
A. No. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you have a general understanding as to why that happened?
A. I don't think they found a price that was acceptable.
Q. At the time you came to work in the M&A group, was there any sell-side work continuing?
A. I don't recall any sell-side work continuing, however, as a regular course of business Morgan Stanley would talk to Sunbeam management about other companies in the consumer-products world, and there would be brief discussions about those companies and potential combinations, more just gathering thoughts, just, you know, passing ideas around rather than any specific transaction.
Q. Did you ever hear it suggested that the sell-side transaction was not practical because the Sunbeam stock price was too high?
A. I don't recall hearing that.
Q. Was the Sunbeam transaction a difficult assignment?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 38

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Difficult in what way?
Q. Well, were -- was Sunbeam a difficult client to work with?
A. Yes.
Q. In what way?
A. They were very demanding.
Q. In what way?
A. They would -- it was their wish that we would spend an usually large percentage of our time on their transaction.
Q. So they assigned things to you with short-time deadlines, --
MS. BROWN: Objection.
Q. -- as an example?
A. That did occur.
Q. In what way did they express their demand that you work a large percentage your time on their deal?
A. I don't recall specifics, however, they were in constant contact with us requesting new work, or additional work to be done. They frequently called us and asked for more work to be done, I guess.
Q. Were the people at Sunbeam interested in closing these deals quickly?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall them being any more interested in closing quickly than any M&A transaction -- quicker than any other M&A transaction.
It's always in the best interest of everyone to close an M&A transaction as quickly as possible and this was no different.
Q. Can you think of any other ways in which the Sunbeam people were demanding of Morgan Stanley?
A. They expressed displeasure aggressively and loudly.
Q. They yelled at you?
A. Yes.
Q. Who do you remember being the yellers?
A. Primarily Al Dunlap and Russ Kersh.
Q. What sort of things set them off?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall specifically what set them off.
Q. Could be anything?
MS. BROWN: Objection, mischaracterizes.
A. We were working on a very complicated series of transactions, and every -- a lot of things happened everyday, and when things did not go -- when things weren't going the way that they wanted them to go, they got angry and yelled at us.

Page 40

Q. I take it there were occasion when they yelled at you?
A. Not so much me, more the senior people on the team.
Q. Mr. Kitts, Mr. Fuchs, Mr. Strong, Mr. Stynes?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember any other ways in which this became a difficult client or difficult matter?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. It -- no, primarily it was their personalities and the amount of work that they asked us to do in a short period of time.
Q. I believe you testified that you spoke with Mr. Dunlap on five or six occasions?
A. Yes.
Q. Were those in person, on the telephone, or both?
A. Those were in person. I was probably on other conference calls that he was on -- more conference calls that he was on.
Q. All right, when you were on the conference calls were there other people from Morgan Stanley on them as well?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. What do you remember meeting with Mr. Dunlap in person about?
A. I don't recall the specifics of the meetings, however, they centered around the three acquisitions that closed, as well as looking at other potential transactions.

Q. As you sit here do you remember any particular meeting with Mr. Dunlap, a meeting in which Mr. Dunlap was in attendance?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, if you can separate them in your mind, what is the first one you remember?
A. I'm sorry, I don't recall the specifics -- I don't recall what was discussed at the -- I recall a few meetings specifically where he was in attendance. I don't remember what we talked about, you know, other than -- I don't remember what the primary reason for us meeting was.
Q. Do you remember anything that was communicated in those meetings, in words or in substance?
A. I recall a couple of -- I recall one meeting in which we were -- in which Sunbeam was considering acquiring another target, and we were discussing what we should offer.
Q. Do you remember the target?
A. Yes, Toastmaster.
Q. Aside from the meeting on the Toastmaster transaction,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

do you remember anything else -- any other meetings with Mr. Dunlap and the matters that were discussed?
A. I do recall one other meeting with Mr. Dunlap, and I don't recall the specifics of what was said -- of what we were discussing at that meeting.
Q. What do you remember about the meeting?
A. It was a day that Sunbeam's stock was performing particularly well, and Mr. Dunlap was in an unusually good mood, and he would ask me to leave the room every 15 minutes or so to go see where Sunbeam's stock was, and then he would announce how much money he had just made based on his contract that he had just signed.
Q. I take it it was a lot of money?
A. It was. I don't recall how much it was.
Q. Do you remember any other meetings that Mr. Dunlap was in?
A. No.
Q. When you worked on the Sunbeam deal did you understand that Mr. Dunlap had a reputation within his company of being a difficult person to work with?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I -- my understanding of Mr. Dunlap was that he had a successful track record of turning around companies, and often he did that through laying off employees, so he was in many -- he was often feared because of his history of firing people.

Q. Have you heard him described as "overbearing"?
A. I don't recall hearing him described as that, but my experience with him was that he was.
Q. Did people describe to you instances in which he had been verbally abusive to people in his company?
A. I don't recall hearing those stories.
Q. Did you ever read his book?
A. I recall reading pieces of the book. I did not read the whole thing.
Q. Did somebody give you a copy?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who gave you a copy?
A. I recall Mr. Dunlap had several copies of his book sent to me and asked me to distribute them.
Q. And did you that?
A. Some of them.
Q. You kept one?
A. No, I don't have one -- I don't believe I still have one.
Q. Do you know how many copies Mr. Dunlap sent you, approximately?
A. No, it was several dozen.

Page 44

Q. I assume there were enough copies floating around Morgan Stanley that anyone who wanted one could get one?
A. If they knew that they were there, yes.
Q. You talked about Mr. Dunlap's prior representation, his track record in turning around companies.
Are you aware that Mr. Dunlap, prior to Sunbeam, had been at Scott Paper?
A. I'm aware of that, yes.
Q. All right, did you ever look into the track record of Mr. Dunlap at Scott Paper, what he had done there, how successful it had been?
A. No.
Q. Do you know of anyone at Morgan Stanley that did that?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever hear anyone say or suggest that the turn around at Scott Paper wasn't as good as Mr. Dunlap said it was?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever hear anyone say or suggest that Mr. Dunlap had just made Scott Paper look good so it could be sold?
A. No.
Q. The expression "prettied it up for sale," did you ever hear that?

Page 45

A. I don't remember hearing that.
Q. Now, we talked some about the buy side and the sell side differences, and I believe you said you worked primarily on buy-side transactions.
Did you participate in any meetings with other companies, third parties, in which a sell-side transaction was discussed, that is selling Sunbeam to those companies?
A. No.
Q. Now, while you worked at Morgan Stanley did you have a calendar in which you kept track of your meetings and an appointments?
A. No.
Q. You did not have a calendar at all?
A. Not at that time, no.
Q. How did you keep track of things you needed to do?
A. Things were day-to-day as a first-year associate n investment banking. There were very few meetings planned for the future.
Q. Did you have a -- any system whereby you kept track of what you had done? Did you have to do a time sheet?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, what did you put down on your time sheet?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

010025

Page 46

A. I would put down how many hours I worked on which -- on what transaction.
Q. Aside from the number of hours, was there any description of what you did?
A. No.
Q. Any codes you put down to indicate what types of matters you were working on?
A. Just the client code.
Q. What happened to the time sheets after you finished them? Where did they go?
A. I believe the practice was that they went to the M&A -- what is called "M&A Admin."
Q. Did you ever receive reports on how many hours you worked on particular matters?
A. While I was working on that transaction?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. After the transaction?
A. No.
Q. When it came time to do your evaluation form at the end of the year was there some information to you to indicate what you had worked on and how much time?
A. No, not how much time.
Q. Okay, what purpose -- let me withdraw that.

Page 47

Do you have any understanding of what use was made of the time sheets and the information there on that you prepared?
A. I'm not sure what they were used for.
Q. Okay, were you ever told while you were working on this transaction that your hours were high, or low, or in between? I mean, anything like that?
A. I don't recall being told that, no.
Q. Okay, in connection with the work that you did for Sunbeam, did you ever put together a calendar or chronology of various events performed by Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't personally recall putting together such a calendar.
Q. Have you ever seen one?
A. Sure.
Q. When did you see it, while you were working on the deal?
MS. BROWN: Any time you ask him about documents he saw, he will exclude any documents that he saw in preparation for his deposition.
MR. BRODY: Well, we will get to that.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Did you see the chronology or calendar while you were working on the deal?

Page 48

A. Yes.
Q. Do you know why the chronology or calendar was put together?
A. I don't -- I don't specifically recall why it was put together, however, we were -- I would suspect that we were trying to keep track of when things happened.
Q. Mr. Webber, I have given you what has been previously marked as Exhibit No. 84. Have you seen that document before?
MS. BROWN: Other than yesterday?
A. I don't recall seeing this before.
Q. Is this the type of chronology or calendar that you believe you saw while you were working on the deal?
A. Yes.
Q. Does this appear to be a Morgan Stanley document?
A. Yes.
Q. You recognize the form?
A. Yes.
Q. Having looked at this document do you have any understanding as to why Morgan Stanley would prepare such a document?
A. I don't recall specifically why we rated this document.

Page 49

Q. Did you have anything to do with the creation of this document, Exhibit No. 84?
A. I don't recall having anything to do with the creation of this.
Q. If you look at the last page of the document there is a little footnote, "Footnote A."
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. It refers to the MS Team consisting of B. Strong, J. Stynes, R. Kitts, A. Fuchs, G. Yoo, Webber, T. Chang and L. Rafi.
A. Correct.
Q. Mr. Yoo is a name that I don't think we mentioned today.
A. Correct, Gene Yoo.
Q. Did you work with Mr. Yoo?
A. He -- not very much. He was an associate on the transaction who worked on the transaction primarily before I came on, and I think when I came on to the transaction it was largely as a replacement for him as the day-to-day person on the transaction.
Q. Do you know where Mr. Yoo went at the time?
A. He was still at the M&A department, and he still had some limited involvement with Sunbeam.
Q. Now, I'm going to refer you to that note, and I ask you to flip back to the first page of the document, and if you look on the August 5th entry it refers to a letter to Lester Crown, and the participants are shown as the MS Team, and the little "a" there I assume is meant to refer to the note that I just read to you.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Is it correct, sir, that in August of '97 you were not working on the matter?
A. That's correct.
Q. Notwithstanding the fact you're in the note here?
A. Correct.
Q. And so you would not be working on this matter until some time after the first of the year?
A. Correct.
Q. We will return some more to this document, sir, but I would ask you to put it -- well, before you put it aside, sir, the chronology runs through March 2, the announcement of the transaction.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Morgan Stanley's work continued after March 2nd?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to why the chronology stopped on March 2nd?
A. No.
Q. Having seen that it stopped on March 2nd, does that refresh your recollection or inform you as to what purpose the document was prepared for?

Page 51

A. No.
Q. Okay, as I said, we will return to that document.
Focussing on the Coleman transaction, Sunbeam's acquisition of its interest in Coleman, did you have any meetings with individuals from either Coleman or MacAndrews and Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. How many?
A. I specifically remember one meeting in which there were members present from Coleman, and MacAndrews and Forbes, and I believe I was in at least one more meeting. It's very vague, I don't recall the specifics, or even where that meeting was, the second one.
Q. The second meeting.
A. Yes.
Q. In addition to meetings did you have telephone calls with people from Coleman or MacAndrews and Forbes?
A. I participated in conference calls. I don't recall ever having one-on-one contact with any members.
Q. Do you recall the subject matter of any of those conference calls?

Page 52

A. I recall the negotiations of the Coleman -- I recall negotiations of an exchange ratio, or a price to be paid for Coleman shares -- let me take that back.
I believe it was for Coleman shares.
Q. It could have been one of the other deals?
A. Actually, I don't -- I don't recall, specifically.
I believe the other deals were cash, so it couldn't have been the other deals, it must have been Coleman.
Q. Who do you remember being on the call?
A. I recall Alex Fuchs and Bob Kitts being on the call, and, actually, it was several calls over the course of a day. We were in contact periodically throughout the day.
Q. Aside from Mr. Fuchs and Mr. Kitts, do you remember anyone else being on the call?
A. I don't recall anyone else being on the call.
Q. Who from MacAndrews or Coleman?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember the substance of the questions?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.
BY MR. BRODY:

Page 53

Q. Well, beyond that do you remember anything else that was discussed, any specifics, or prices, or --
A. It was a negotiation.
Q. Did the negotiation conclude in the calls that you were on?
A. I don't believe I was on the final call in which an agreed upon exchange ratio was reached.
Q. These were all on the telephone, you did not participate in any in-person negotiations?
A. Correct.
Q. I think we may spend some more time on that later, but let's return to these meetings with Coleman and Mafco.
A. Okay.
Q. You said you remember one meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. When was that?
A. I don't recall the date.
Q. Where was it?
A. I believe it was at MacAndrews and Forbes, I know -- I believe it was on -- I believe it was in the mid down, on the east side, which is where I believe their headquarters are, so I believe that is where it was.
Q. Who was that?
A. I recall from Morgan Stanley Alex Fuchs being there,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018027

Page 54

myself, for sure, and I believe there were -- I believe Tyrone Chang was there as well, but I'm not certain.
Q. Perhaps others?
A. From Morgan Stanley, perhaps. I don't recall any others.
Q. And who was there from the Coleman/MacAndrews side?
A. I recall Jerry Levin was there, Joe Page was there, and there were -- there were others, probably three to six other people, but I don't -- I know that a few of them were from MacAndrews and Forbes, I don't recall their names.
Q. Was anyone there from Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall anyone being there from Sunbeam.
Q. What do you remember being discussed at the meeting?
A. I don't recall the specifics of what was discussed at the meeting.
Q. Do you remember in general what was discussed?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you have notes of the meeting?
A. No.
Q. Would anything refresh your recollection of what happened at the meeting, what you're aware of?
Anything I can show you that might bring it back?

Page 55

A. I can't say. Perhaps.
Q. As you sit here, you don't recall any of the substance of the conversation?
A. No, I recall looking at financials, but I don't recall whose financials they were, and what we were doing.
Q. Okay, you said you believe there might have been one additional meeting. What do you recall about that additional meeting?
A. I recall being -- I believe we were at Ron Pearlman's offices, and the only reason I'm remembering this is because of the offices themselves.
Q. What do you remember about the offices?
A. They were very nice. I don't remember what we were doing there.
Q. Do you remember anything about the physical layout of the room you were in, or --
A. I remember it being more like a town house than actually an office building.
Q. Okay, in this meeting at Mr. Pearlman's office, who was there?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was Mr. Pearlman there?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't remember meeting him?

Page 56

A. I don't remember ever meeting him.
Q. Okay, and you don't remember the substance of any communications?
A. No, no.
Q. Okay, why don't retake our first break.

(Brief break.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber, turning to the chronology that was marked as Exhibit No. 84, which is in front of you, I'm going to ask you to start on Page 4 of the document, and it says "December 12th" at the top.
A. Okay.
Q. I ask you to look through there and tell me what is the first event on the chronology that you recall having participated in as a Morgan Stanley employee?
A. I don't recall being involved in any of these meetings.
Q. That is on Page 4?
A. Yes.
Q. You can turn to the next page.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Just so you know, your name first appears at the

Page 57

February 11th entry.
A. Yes.
I do recall being at that February 11th meeting. I don't recall anything prior to that.
Q. And the February 11th meeting is with T.H. Lee, that involves a different transaction?
A. That involves the acquisition of Signature Brand and First Alert.
Q. Okay, turning to the page before, the page you didn't remember, down the bottom there is a meeting with Mafco, which it says, "reinitiate talks, re: Coleman."
You weren't involved in that meeting?
A. I don't recall being involved.
Q. Do you have a recollection of why talks needed to be reinitiated?
A. No.
Q. I think that is the fact that that was before your time?
A. I believe that was before my time, yes.
Q. Okay.
The February 11th entry involves First Alert a Signature Brands.
Turning to the next entry, the February 12th, Conair, do you recall doing any work on a Conair deal?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018028

Page 58

A. I don't recall doing any work on Conair.
Q. Now, if you turn to the next page, February 13th, meeting with Sunbeam, you understand "SOC" to refer to Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. "Meeting with Sunbeam, discuss Coleman transaction and tactics negotiated with J. Maher via telephone."
Do you believe you participated in such a meeting or negotiations?
A. I don't recall being part of that meeting.
Q. Do you ever remember any conversations with Mr. Maher, M-A-H-E-R?
A. No, I remember his name being on the transaction. I don't recall specifically speaking with him.
Q. The February 19th entry identifies a meeting with Sunbeam, and among other participants you were listed. Do you have a recollection of that meeting?
A. No.
Q. Okay, the third entry says, "Preliminary handshake agreement on 0.745 exchange ratio."
Did you participate in any conversations in which that arrangement was reached?
A. I believe that was the arrangement that I discussed earlier when we reached -- when an agreement was reached on a price for Coleman.

Q. Did you participate in a discussion in which the agreement was reached?
A. I was not an active participant in a discussion. I believe I was on the line as part of conference call n some of the conversations. As I said, it was a series of conversations throughout the day.
Q. And aside from the fact that those conversations took place, did you have any recollection of what was discussed in words or in substance in those negotiations?
A. I recall it being a negotiation on the price for Coleman.
Q. Do you remember the range that was being discussed?
A. No.
Q. In those negotiations that you were aware of, was anything being negotiated other than a stock-exchange ratio?
A. I don't recall the specifics.
Q. So, maybe, yes; maybe, no?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember in the conversation with representatives with MacAndrews and Forbes, any discussion about how things were going with Sunbeam?

Page 60

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall the specifics of any conversations with MacAndrews and Forbes?
Q. Okay, you can put that document aside for a bit.
Are you familiar with the term "due diligence"?
A. Yes.
Q. What does that term mean to you?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Are you talking about due diligence for an M&A banker, or for -- I think it means different things for different -- in different roles.
Q. What does it mean to an M&A banker?
A. It means -- it means the gathering of information through as many sources as is reasonable to become as familiar with a company as possible.
Q. Does THE term "due diligence" have different meaning for someone outside of the M&A field?
A. I suspect it does.
Q. Do you have any understanding of what it means to do due diligence in a public offering, or the underwriting of a public offering?
A. I didn't work on public offerings, or securities transactions, so I would be uncomfortable saying what it involves.

Q. Do you understand it to mean something different to a public offering underwriter as opposed to an M&A banker?
A. Well, what I understand is they are different types of transactions, so I suspect that a due diligence process might be different depending on the type of transaction that you're working on, however, I didn't work on a securities transaction, so I'm not -- I don't want to -- I feel uncomfortable speaking about the specifics of a due-diligence session.
Q. Okay.
In the M&A circumstance I believe you testified that it was the gathering of information from as many sources as is reasonable, and then you continued.
What sources does an M&A banker gather information from in the course of doing due diligence?
A. From public information, such as an annual report or a 10-K, from other -- from research analysts who write reports on a company, and from company management.
Q. And the Sunbeam engagement, you gathered information from all of those?
A. I don't recall the specifics of the due diligence that was done on Sunbeam.
Q. All right, I believe you testified that it's the gathering of information from as many sources as is reasonable.

018029

Page 62

How do you determine what is reasonable?

A. Well, I think an M&A banker would do the best job they could gathering information. You need to rely on other parties as well, such as the company management, to provide you with information, auditors provide you with information, and you compile all of those sources and try to become as informed as you can.

Q. But as an investment banker, the job you performed, how did you determine what was a reasonable amount of investigation at which point you could stop, or what was the amount of investigation that required you to do more?

A. We would do a through job, but we would also rely on information that was provided to us by the company, and we rely on -- and we would use information or -- that was created by outside parties, such as other research analysts.

Q. When you received information from the company -- let me withdraw that.

You referred to receiving information from the company. From whom at the company do you receive information?

Page 63

A. On a typical M&A project?

Q. Yes.

A. It could come from any number of sources, quite often the financial division of the company, or perhaps the CFO, or sometimes even the President or the CEO of the company, depending on what information it is.

Q. In performing due diligence of an M&A client, did you ever speak to customers of the client?

A. It would not be typical in an M&A transaction to speak to customers. I don't believe I ever did.

Q. Did you ever talk to other third parties outside of the company, vendors, for example?

A. I don't recall speaking to vendors.

Q. In dealing with people at the company did you ever speak to employees below the senior management level, below the CFO, CEO --

A. Yes.

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

BY MR. BRODY:

Q. At what level? Who did you speak with?

A. Are you talking about somebody specifically?

Q. Sure, specifically.

A. I don't recall doing any -- I don't specifically recall due diligence on Sunbeam itself, the company itself.

Are we talking about other targets that Sunbeam was looking at?

Page 64

Q. We will get to that, but let's focus on Sunbeam.

A. All right.

I don't recall the due diligence process that occurred on Sunbeam itself.

Q. Is that because it was done by others, or you don't recall?

A. Again, I was -- I joined the team quite late into the process, and it's quite possible that the due diligence was done before I arrived, but I don't recall.

Q. Who was in charge, or who was responsible for doing due diligence from Sunbeam from the M&A side of Morgan Stanley?

A. The senior people on the team would be responsible for all activities.

Q. Well, I assume Mr. Strong, as the most senior person was ultimately responsible, but who did the work?

A. I don't recall the specific due diligence on Sunbeam, so I don't know who did the work.

Q. When Morgan Stanley did due diligence of a company, did it collect a file of information, or a repository information about the company?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

A. I don't think there was any one way in which we collected information that was consistent.

Q. Okay, well, in the Sunbeam transaction did Morgan Stanley collect information and put it somewhere where it could be consulted by others?

A. I'm not familiar with the due diligence process on Sunbeam.

Q. When you were doing the analysis and presentations that you were doing, where did you go for information about the company?

A. From the targets?

Q. No, let's focus on Sunbeam.

A. For the work that I specifically did, which was primarily financial analysis of the combination of Sunbeam with other targets, I used -- I used estimates for Sunbeam earnings, which are --

Q. That is I/B/E/S?

A. Which are publicly available estimates that are compiled by research analysts.

Q. That was the source of information that you used about Sunbeam?

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0018030

Page 66

Q. Did you ever speak to the people at Sunbeam about how accurate that information was?
A. I don't recall speaking to them about it.
Q. You're aware that there was some public offering of subordinated debentures in connection with financing the acquisitions?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any role in that financing effort?
A. Virtually none.
The only role I would have had would be supporting -- answering questions here or there for John Tyree as he prepared the materials, but it was very, very limited.
Q. Do you know who was in charge of doing the due diligence in connection with that transaction?
A. No.
Q. Judging by your earlier answers, is it correct to say that the due diligence done in the financing may involve different efforts than the due diligence you did?
A. It may. I am not familiar with it, so I cannot comment.
Q. So you can't speak as to what the responsibilities of an investment banking professional are in that circumstance?

A. No.
Q. What training did you receive in performing due diligence?
A. I don't recall specific training in due diligence, however, I was part of -- I was a junior member of teams on several transactions, not just Sunbeam, in which due diligence efforts were underway, and I learned from the people senior to me.
Q. I'm sorry, you --
A. I learned from the people senior to me who are in charge of the process.
Q. So you learned on the job?
A. Yes, and I don't recall -- I don't recall any specific training on due diligence, however there may have been some.
Q. Do you ever see any manuals or program materials by Morgan Stanley on how to perform due diligence or how not to perform due diligence?
A. I don't recall seeing anything.
Q. All right.
In the M&A business at Morgan Stanley, was there a practice or a policy of what sort of due diligence materials to keep, a file to keep?

Page 68

A. I don't recall there being a specific policy, no.
Q. If in the course of performing due diligence about a company, you, as an investment banker, uncovered some bad news about the company, what are you supposed to do with that information?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I think it's -- it would be my role to understand the news, understand -- understand what we uncovered, why it's happening.
Q. And beyond that what would you do with it? What is your understanding?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form, hypothetical.
A. Well, it depends. Specifically what situation am I in?
Q. Well, let me ask it a little differently.
In the Sunbeam transaction did you ever uncover any bad news about Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. No, I did not uncover that. I was not involved in the due diligence process for Sunbeam.
Q. Can you identify anyone at Morgan Stanley in the investment banking department on the M&A side that was involved in due diligence of Sunbeam?
A. I can't. I don't recall the due diligence efforts on

Page 69

Sunbeam.
Q. Can you identify anyone on the underwriting side, the pub securities side that was involved in the due diligence?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley looked at Sunbeam's use of restructuring reserves, as part of its reinstructing?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Sunbeam -- excuse me.
Do you know of anyone at Morgan Stanley, in the course of this transaction, contacted any of Sunbeam's customers.
A. I don't know if that happened.
Q. Do you me anyone at Sunbeam -- I keep saying "Sunbeam." Let me withdraw that.
Do you know of anyone at Morgan Stanley that did any investigation of due diligence into Sunbeam's first-quarter sales?
A. I don't recall any investigation.
Q. Do you know of anyone at Morgan Stanley that looked into how Sunbeam budgeted its 1998 budget?
A. I don't recall anyone looking into that.
Q. In the course of the work that you did at Morgan

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Stanley on the Sunbeam transaction, did you have any contact with Sunbeam's auditors?
A. I don't recall any contact.
Q. Were you aware that Arthur Andersen was Sunbeam's auditor?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever have any communication with them?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Let me just mention some names and see if they refresh your recollection.
Mr. Harlow?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Bornstein?
A. I remember that name. I don't believe I ever talked to him.
Q. Mr. Rockleman?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Pastrano?
A. No.
Q. Okay, you said you remembered Mr. Bornstein's name.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any recollection about what?
A. No.
Q. And you never visited Sunbeam's offices in Florida?

A. No.
Q. Have you ever visited any of their facilities or factories?
A. I don't believe I did, no.
Q. Did you do any investigation or work into looking at how Sunbeam had accomplished its restructuring, its -- its reinstructing under Mr. Dunlap?
A. No, I did not look into that.
Q. Do you know of anyone at Morgan Stanley that did that?
A. I'm not familiar with the due diligence process. I don't know.
Q. Okay.
Returning to our -- the chronology that Morgan Stanley prepared, sir, I would like to refer you to a couple of other entries.
There is an entry on February 23rd which appears to be the sixth page of the document.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. You see your name listed there?
A. Yes.
Q. And at the location of the meeting is MCO, HQ, New York.
A. (No response.)
Q. Do you have an understanding as to what that means?

A. I suspect that means MacAndrews and Forbes Headquarters.
Q. Does that refresh you recollection that -- let me withdraw that.
I believe you testified that you remember one meeting at MacAndrews and Forbes Headquarters in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. And there is a number of names there, Mr. Levin and Mr. Page are among them.
A. Yes.
Q. And there are a bunch of other names including some Sunbeam people, and some Morgan Stanley people?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection as to who attended the meeting that you attended?
A. It doesn't refresh my memory, however, I -- I suspect this is the meeting that I intended.
Q. Among the attendees, in addition to Mr. Levin and Mr. Page, are Mr. Nezbit. Do you ever remember speaking with Mr. Nezbit?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Mr. Goudis, I think you earlier testified you spoke with him?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. Do you remember meeting with Mr. Goudis and the Mafco people?
A. I don't recall Mr. Goudis being at the meeting that I was at.
Q. Fair enough.
It also identified an entry for CSFBT. Do you recall that Credit Suits, First Boston was involved in this transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember who they did work for?
A. They were on the other side from us, so I'm not sure if they worked for MacAndrews and Forbes, or they worked for Coleman, specifically, or Ron Pearlman, but the other side.
Q. Okay, do you remember who worked on the deal from CSFB?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Gordon Rich?
A. No.
Q. As you sit here do you recall any meetings with anyone from CSFB?
A. No.
Q. If you look at the entry here, it refers to strategic due diligence meeting with CLN, or Coleman.

A. Yes.
Q. Do you believe that is the meeting you attended?
A. I don't recall the specifics of the meeting, however, based on the attendees and the location I suspect it was the meeting that I attended.
Q. Having seen this, does it refresh your recollection that in fact one of the things discussed was what was going on at Coleman?
A. It does not.
Q. Did you do any due diligence of Coleman?
A. I don't recall doing any due diligence.
Q. Do you know who did?
A. Well, let me take that back.
That is not entirely true. I did do some due diligence on Coleman.
Q. What did you do?
A. I worked extensively on the potential sale of East Pack, and I did due diligence on -- as related to that transaction.
Q. Anything else that you recall doing?
A. I don't recall doing any due diligence.
Q. Do you recall if the East Pack transaction closed before or after the Sunbeam acquisition of stock in

Page 75

Coleman?
A. To my recollection it didn't close.
Q. Referring to this entry on the 23rd, do you recall after that meeting, perhaps on the same day, a further meeting at Morgan Stanley's offices?
A. I do not.
Q. Do you remember any meeting at Morgan Stanley S offices in which the MacAndrews and Forbes people, and the Sunbeam people were present?
A. I do not.
Q. Have you ever come to learn, sir, that one of the things Sunbeam did was accelerate sales from 1998 into 1997, which had an impact on '97 and '98 financials?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Could you be more specific as to when you're asking me if I knew that?
Q. At any time did you come to learn that?
A. I -- yes, I understand now that that has happened.
Q. When did you learn that that had happened?
A. I don't recall specifically when I learned when it happened.
Q. Did you learn before or after the closing of the Coleman transaction?
A. I don't recall when I learned.

Page 76

Q. Do you remember how you learned?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Are you familiar with the term "bill and hold sales"? "Bill and hold"?
A. I'm not familiar with the term.
Q. Were you familiar with the term "bill and hold sales" while you were working on the transaction?
A. I don't believe I was, no.
Q. In the work that you did for Sunbeam, and the modeling, and so on, that you did, did you ever look at the affect of Sunbeam's sales practices on its profit margin?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall it. I don't recall ever looking at that.
Q. Now you're aware that Mr. Dunlap had come to Sunbeam and made changes to decrease costs and improve the profitability of the company?
A. Yes.
Q. And that was one of the things he was famous for?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you or anyone else, to your knowledge, at Morgan Stanley, look at how Sunbeam lowered its costs and whether that policy would be sustainable?

Page 77

A. I don't recall looking into that.
Q. Okay, and I may have asked you this, sir, but did you do any investigation, or do any analysis of Sunbeam's reserves and how those reserves were used in 1997?
A. I don't recall ever looking at those.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley looked at that?
A. I don't recall if anyone did that.
Q. Do you remember any discussion prior to the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction within Morgan Stanley about bill and hold or the acceleration of sales from one year into the prior year?
A. I don't recall when I heard about those discussions -- I heard those discussions.
Q. I may have asked you, but do you remember from whom?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Now, one other topic relating to the work that was done at the time.
Did you do any investigation or analysis of Sunbeam's 1998 earnings or earnings per share -- projections of earnings?
A. I don't recall ever doing that. We -- earnings per share estimates that we used were from I/B/E/S.
Q. And the source of the I/B/E/S information was analyst reports prepared by others?

A. Correct.
Q. And at the time of this transaction did Morgan Stanley do its own research on Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
MR. BRODY: Let me withdraw that.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. At the time of this transaction did Morgan Stanley do equity research? Did it follow the stock of Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall if it did or not.
Q. Do you remember using any information from Morgan Stanley's equity analysts, or that department, in the work that you did?
A. I don't recall using that.
Q. Okay, the next entry on this -- the Morgan Stanley chronology is a meeting, again, with Sunbeam at MSHQ, New York, and also identifies a conference call, and you were identified as a participant.
Having seen this, does it refresh your recollection any about whether there was a meeting at Morgan Stanley Headquarters that you attend?
A. It does not.
Q. The chronology identifies meetings with Wachtell. Do you remember who, or what party Wachtell represented?

Page 79

A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember any meetings from individuals with Wachtell?
A. No.
Q. And SASM, I will state for the record that that is a reference Skadden Arps.
Do you remember who Skadden Arps represented?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember any meetings with them?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
Mr. Webber, I have given you what has previously been marked as CPH Exhibit No. 9, and it's identified as "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials, February, 1998."
If you look down at the bottom, the bottom, right, it has the word "Morgan Stanley."
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize this as a Morgan Stanley presentation book?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have a role in the preparation of any of this document -- preparation, revision, organization?
A. I don't recall having any role in this document.

Page 80

Q. Is this -- let me withdraw that.
Have you seen this document prior to today, excluding your preparation session?
A. I don't recall ever seeing this document, however, given -- I suspect that I did.
Q. Do you suspect also that you had some role in creating or editing this document?
A. I probably did.
Q. What do you recognize this book as?
A. As I look through this document it appears to be a book which summarizes the Sunbeam company, and could possibly be used in discussing a sale of Sunbeam, and based on what I'm seeing, I would like to take back what I said, that I probably did have some input in creating this document, because I'm not sure that is true. I may not have had any.
Q. Okay.
This is the sort of material that would be shown in this form to a potential business combination target?
A. Yes.
Q. And it's prepared by Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. Within Morgan Stanley, before material such as this are shown outside of the company, do they have to be approved by someone, or is there a practice on how they are prepared or approved?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. It's created by Morgan Stanley, and -- but there is no formal practice on how they are eventually approved.
Q. It's not as if it has to be signed off on by a Vice President?
A. There is no specific rules.
Q. Okay.
If you turn to the page bearing the production number in the corner, 26,290, it's about the fifth page in, it is the fifth page in within the executive summary, and it's entitled "Investment Rational."
A. Okay.
Q. Have you ever seen this page before, either in this document, or any other?
A. This specific page I do not recall having seen. I am familiar with an investment rational concept.
Q. What is your familiarity with an investment rational presentation?
A. It would be outlined -- specific reasons why a company would be an attractive investment target.
Q. Do you have any recollection or understanding as to who at Morgan Stanley prepared this page?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 82

A. I don't recall who would have prepared this page.
Q. Do you think it was you?
A. I do not think it was me.
Q. Looking at the -- at just the bullet points, the first bullet point states that "Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story and investment opportunity."
Do you know who at Morgan Stanley did any work or investigation into that?
A. I don't know who created this page, and I don't know who investigated Sunbeam.
Q. Referring to the second one, "Sunbeam has undergone a profound transformation."
Do you know anyone at Morgan Stanley that did investigation into what that transformation was, and how successful it was?
A. I don't recall being part of such an investigation, and I don't know who at Morgan Stanley performs such an investigation.
Q. Okay.
Do you recall being present at any meetings in which this document, or ones like it, a presentation booklet about Sunbeam were presented to third parties, including MacAndrews and Forbes?

Page 83

A. I don't recall being in any meeting when this document or a document like this was used.
Q. Okay, you can put that document aside.
MR. BRODY: Can we mark this as our first deposition today, "CPH 187."

(Exhibit 187, Plan, marked for identification.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber we gave you what has been marked as Exhibit No. 187, and I will state for the record there are a variety of copies of this document floating around the case, others have been marked at prior depositions, but I believe this one has not.
Okay, having said that, have you seen this document before, sir?
A. I don't recall seeing this document.
Q. Okay, do you remember being at any meeting at which Mr. Goudis or Mr. Kersh, or Mr. Dunlap made presentations about this document containing this information?
A. I don't recall.
Q. If you turn to the page using the production number, in the far right corner, 254636, --

Page 84

A. (Witness complying.)
Q. -- and it describes projected earnings under the long range plan. Do you see this?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen this page before? Do you recall seeing this before?
A. I don't recall ever seeing this before.
Q. If you look at the 1998 earnings per share projection of $2.20, do you remember that being discussed that Sunbeam expected $2.20 per share?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Kersh or anyone else talking about how well Sunbeam was doing in the first quarter of 1998 in terms of a achieving that earnings per share?
A. I don't recall any of those -- any discussions along those lines.
Q. Do you remember anyone from Sunbeam talking about how sales were going, or how earnings were going in 1998?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember anyone from Morgan Stanley ever asking?
A. No.
MS. BROWN: Objection.

Page 85

A. I don't recall those discussions.
Q. Okay, turn to the last page of this document.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. It is a description of first quarter 1998 earnings, comparing 1997 to the plan for 1998.
Does this refresh your recollection -- or based on this do you recall that Sunbeam was projecting earnings in the first quarter of 1998 of 32 cents per share?
A. I don't recall that number.
Q. You don't recall any discussion about those projected numbers?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Now, you testified earlier that you and Mr. Chang worked on a model of how well Sunbeam would do as a combined company, and I cannot remember the term you applied to that. A "merger model"?
A. Yes.
Q. Collection of pro formas; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Did you ever compare those pro formas to what was actually happening at the company?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. What I recall doing is comparing them to I/B/E/S' estimates.

Q. And those are estimates of people outside of the company?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, returning to our chronology, sir, on the February 24th -- as on some of the others, there is reference about the terms and the final structure of the transaction, and I believe you testified you participated in one of those transactions -- one of those sets of calls, negotiations?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form, misstates.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Well, let me state it differently.
You participated in some calls in which the terms of the transaction was discussed?
A. The exchange ratio.
Q. Did you ever prepare term sheets or summaries of what those terms would be?
A. I recall preparing term sheets. I believe they were for Signature Brands and First Alert. I may or may not have created term sheet for Coleman. I don't recall.
MR. BRODY: Please mark this as Exhibit No. 188.

Page 87

(Exhibit 188, Fax, marked for identification.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber, the court reporter has given you what has been marked as Exhibit No. 188.
Please look at it and I will be asking you some questions.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Turning to the cover of the document, it's a fax transmittal from you to Mr. Emmerich.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your handwriting?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember who Mr. Emmerich was?
A. No.
Q. If I told you he was a lawyer involved in this matter, this transaction, would that refresh your recollection any?
A. It doesn't refresh my memory, but I believe you --
Q. Okay.
Do you have a recollection as to why you sent this to Mr. Emmerich?

Page 88

A. No.
Q. Turn to the term sheet that follows.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Do you believe that this is something you drafted?
A. I believe this is something I had -- I was involved in creating, yes.
Q. What do you mean by that?
A. I think there was more than one person who did this. I think it was -- I was part of a -- my recollection is that Alex Fuchs and I created this document together.
Q. If you look at the structure of the transaction, and there is Consideration Package One, and Consideration Package Two -- do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection of what was discussed in the calls?
A. No.
Q. Do you ever remember a time where MacAndrews and Forbes was being given a choice to take either Package A, or what is behind the box of Carol Merel standing in front of sort of thing?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
A. I remember them having a choice.

Page 89

Q. What do you remember them discussing about the choice?
A. Nothing other than the fact that there were two options -- more than one option, actually.
Q. As the negotiations went on there were discussions about the amount of cash and the amount of stock, more cash, less cash; more stock, less stock.
Do you remember the position taken by MacAndrews and Forbes about whether it would take more cash or more stock?
A. I don't.
Q. Do you remember any discussion within the Morgan Stanley-Sunbeam side about whether it wanted to offer more stock or more cash?
A. I do not.
Q. If you turn to the last page of this document there is a transaction pricing calculation. Is that something that you prepared?
A. (Witness complying.)
I don't recall preparing this.
Q. The last column refers to implied price per Camper share. Do you recognize Camper as Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. What does that imply-price column mean?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.

018036

A. If I'm reading this correctly, it means that is the value to be received for a share of Coleman stock.
Q. So as of the time --
A. As of the time of the transaction, right.
Q. So as of the time this document was created, if the structure helps way, the implied price of the stock would be 28/68?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A. According to this document, and that Laser share price, shareholders of Coleman would receive $28.68 worth of value for each share Coleman had.
Q. And the laser share price is the Sunbeam?
A. Right, correct.
Q. And just looking at this model of the transaction, if the Laser share price went up, the implied price per Camper share would also increase?
A. Correct.
MR. BRODY: Mark this, please, as 189.

(Exhibit 189, Fax, marked for identification.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber, I have asked the court reporter to give you what has just been marked as Exhibit No. 189, and the cover page is a fax transmittal from yourself to Alison Amorison.

A. Yes.
Q. Is that your handwriting?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize the name Alison Amorison?
A. I do recall that name.
Q. Do you know what her role was in this deal?
A. I do not.
Q. If I were to tell you that she was also a lawyer, and a lawyer at the law firm of Skadden Arps, does that refresh your recollection?
A. It doesn't refresh my recollection.
Q. Having seen these two documents, they appear to have been sent on the same day, is that correct, roughly the same time?
I'm just looking at the transmittal at the top.
A. I don't seem to have dated the cover sheet.
Q. I'm referring to the fax cover lines on the first page of each.
MS. BROWN: Objection.
A. It appears they were sent at the same time.
Q. Having seen that, does that refresh your recollection any as to why you were sending these documents to those people at those times?

A. No, it does not.
Q. The final structure -- do you have a recollection as you sit here what the final structure was for the transaction with Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't have a recollection, but as I sit here, as I read these documents, I recall what the documents say, but I don't recall if this was the final structure used.
Q. I guess you're getting at what I was asking about.
The -- you're aware that as part of this transaction -- are you aware that as part of this transaction Sunbeam paid some cash to Coleman, or to Mafco?
A. I'm actually not. I don't recall if that cash was part of the transaction or not.
Q. Are you aware that as part of the final consideration Sunbeam assumed some debt at the holding-company level?
A. I'm not aware that that was part of the final transaction.
Q. And do you remember any discussions within Morgan

Stanley with Sunbeam, or with MacAndrews and Forbes about those components of the transaction, the amount of cash or the assumption of debt?
A. I recall that there were discussions on the structure of the deal that included non stock -- included items other than solely common stock.
Q. Do you remember the positions taken by anyone in those discussions?
A. No.
Q. Turning to the chronology, sir, what we marked as Exhibit No. 184, you can put those other documents aside --
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. -- I refer you to the document, and it's Page No. 7, the second to last page of the document.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. I ask you to look at the entry for February 25th at the top.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. It shows a meeting with Sunbeam at Morgan Stanley Headquarters in New York, and you're listed as a participant, or an attendee.
Does that refresh your recollection that perhaps you did attend a meeting on the 25th with some or all of those people?

A. It does not, no.
Q. Do you remember any meetings with Mr. Dunlap, personally, at Morgan Stanley where he came there?
A. Yes.
Q. How many?
A. That I was a part of?
Q. Yes, that you were at.
A. I specifically -- I recall being in a conference room at Morgan Stanley with Mr. Dunlap. I don't recall how many times that occurred, or what was discussed at those meetings.
Q. Aside from the time he sent you out to get the stock price, do you remember any things that were discussed in words or in substance in those meetings?
A. In meetings at Morgan Stanley?
Q. With Mr. Dunlap.
A. With Mr. Dunlap?
No, I do not.
Q. Okay.
Turning to the next entry here, sir, the entry for the 26th, it's another meeting with Sunbeam at Morgan Stanley Headquarters. The description is the same as the prior one, and you were shown as an attendee.

Page 95

Do you remember attending that meeting?
Does that refresh your recollection, sir?
A. No, it does not.
Q. Okay, the next entry refers to the board meeting.
Do you remember attending a Sunbeam board meeting at which these transactions were approved?
A. I do, and this refreshes my memory that there was a second meeting Mr. Dunlap attended at Morgan Stanley, which was this board meeting.
Q. Okay, so the Board of Directors' meeting -- Sunbeam Board of Directors' meeting at which the transactions were approved was held at Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. The entry here lists a bunch of people attending the MS Team, and then some others.
B. Smith. Do you know who B. Smith is?
A. Bram Smith.
Q. Do you know what his role was in this deal?
A. He works for Morgan Stanley in their Bank-Debt Division.
Q. Did you have any dealings with Mr. Smith concerning this transaction?
A. No, I did not.
Q. The next person is R. Porat. I understand that to be

Page 96

Ruth Porat?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what her role was in the transaction?
A. I don't recall her being involved in the transaction.
Q. Okay, did you work with her on other matters?
A. Yes, in my career at Morgan Stanley I worked with her on other matters.
Q. And what part of Morgan Stanley was she involved with?
A. I believe she was involved with Equity Capital Markets, although she had a number of rolls at Morgan Stanley.
Q. There is also an M. Hart. Do you understand who M. Heart is?
A. Yes, I believe that is Mike Hart. I don't recall -- I don't recall specifically what he did.
Q. And then finally John Tyree. We talked about Mr. Tyree.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Smith, Ms. Porat, Mr. Hart and/or Mr. Tyree being present at the board meeting?
A. I don't recall them being there.
Q. Do you remember them saying anything?
A. No.
Q. How long did the Board of Directors meeting take?

Page 97

A. I don't recall specifically how long it took.
Q. Fifteen minutes, five hours?
A. It was -- my guess would be it was a couple of hours.
Q. Did you speak at the meeting?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember who spoke from Morgan Stanley?
A. I recall Jim Stynes speaking at the meeting.
Q. Anyone else?
A. I don't recall anyone else speaking.
Q. Did Mr. Strong speak?
A. I don't recall him speaking.
Q. Do you remember others besides Mr. Stynes speaking at the meeting? I don't did mean Morgan Stanley people. Anyone.
A. I recall Mr. Dunlap speaking.
Q. Anyone else? Any of the lawyers?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember what Mr. Stynes said?
A. Mr. Stynes -- Mr. Stynes went through the presentations that I had helped create with the Board of Directors explaining the transactions.
Q. At that Board meeting did Morgan Stanley present Fairness Opinion?
A. I don't recall presenting a Fairness Opinion.

Page 98

Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley ever presented a Fairness Opinion?
A. I don't recall if we did or not.
Q. I'm going to show you that presentation in a moment, sir, but before I do, do you remember anything else being said or discussed at the meeting, the Board of Directors' meeting?
A. The only thing I recall -- the only other thing that I recall, other than the presentation materials that were discussed, I recall Mr. Dunlap being unhappy with several board members who were late.
Q. What do you remember him doing, saying, or expressing?
A. I remember him telling people that they should get their own time and -- I don't remember the specifics of what he said.
Q. Okay.
MR. BRODY: Here is one for you, and one for Mr. Webber.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber, I have given you what has been previously marked as Exhibit No. 89, and it has handwriting on it that says "Tyrone Chang," and I believe Mr. Chang testified that that was his handwriting, and it's a copy of a presentation.

Page 99

Do you recognize this as the presentation to the Board of Directors at Sunbeam about the Coleman acquisition?
A. It appears to be.
Q. And is this a document you helped to create?
A. Yes, if this is in fact our presentation then I did help create it.
Q. At the top it says "preliminary draft." Do you know if this document was ever put in final form?
A. I don't recall if that draft stamp was ever taken off.
Q. If indeed this was presented to the Board of Directors, that would be the final copy, wouldn't it?
You wouldn't keep working on it after you presented it to the Board?
A. That's correct.
Q. I believe Mr. Chang testified that this was the copy of the presentation that he saved from that meeting, but I can't tell you that is the fact, that is just what he said.
This is a document -- let me withdraw that.
Aside from you, who else worked on this document, the preparation of this document?
A. Given the fact that there were three of these documents that needed to be created on a very short time frame, we solicited the help of a few people who were not on the Project Laser Team to help us with -- to prepare this document.

Page 100

Q. Do you remember who those people were?
A. I remember Davis Wang helped, and I remember Ed Lam, Assistant Manager, helped, but there were always -- they were not familiar with transactions, they were primarily always processing and, you know, work that was -- that didn't involve the knowledge of the transactions.
Q. Were they -- Mr. Wang and Mr. Lam associates or analysts?
A. Mr. Wang was an associate, Mr. Lam was an analyst.
Q. And who Mr. the Morgan Stanley team worked on preparing this besides yourself?
A. I believe Tyrone Chang.
I recall working on this with Tyrone Chang. I suspect Lili Rafi worked on it as well, but I don't recall working with her on it.
Q. Okay.
At the time this was presented --
A. Sorry, and Alex Fuchs worked on it as well.
Q. Did Mr. Fuchs review the work?
A. He reviewed the work, correct.

Page 101

Q. Did he make suggestions on things to change or improve?
A. I don't recall his comments.
Q. At the time this was presented to the Board of Directors, Sunbeam, did you believe it to be correct and accurate?
A. Yes.
Q. After that meeting were you ever advised that there was something in here that was wrong?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Compound and form.
A. I don't recall being advised that anything in this document was wrong.
Q. Okay, and I showed you the document that relates to the acquisition of Coleman. There were similar documents for the First Alert and the Signature Brand deal?
A. Yes.
Q. Let's focus on this. That should be enough.
If you turn to the page bearing the internal pagination No. 2, the first page was real tex'd up; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a page that you prepared?
A. I don't recall preparing this.

Page 102

Q. It describes the strategic rationale of the acquisition of Camper?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this to tell the Board of Directors of the potential up side of acquiring Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A. I don't recall creating this document, but it appears to outline the strengths of an acquisition of Coleman.
Q. Okay, if you turn to the next page of text with internal pagination No. 3, it's entitled "Transaction Summary."
Do you know if this is a document you prepared, or perhaps Mr. Fuchs or Mr. Chang?
A. I don't recall who prepared this page.
Q. If you look down the bottom of the first column it refers to an expected closing in the second quarter of 1998.
A. Yes.
Q. The transaction was in fact closed in the first quarter of 1998; isn't this correct?
A. I believe it was.
Q. Do you know why that happened, why it was closed in the first quarter?
A. No, I don't.

Page 103

Q. Do you remember any discussions about that?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Up at the top of this page it refers to a two-step transaction, first the acquisition of the stock owned by MacAndrews and Forbes, and second the purchase of the public shareholders stock.
A. Okay, yes.
Q. Did you participate in negotiations in which that structure was laid out?
A. I don't believe I actively participated in that, no.
Q. Fair enough.
If you turn, please, to the document bearing the Bates Number, the production number, Morgan Stanley Confidential 83,979, the heading is "Preliminary Evaluation of Camper Company."
A. Yes.
Q. And what follows is a number of pages valuating Coleman.
Is that something you prepared?
A. I don't recall preparing this, but I suspect I was involved in preparing it.
Q. And at the time this was presented to the Board, this was Morgan Stanley's view as to the value of Coleman at that time?

Page 104

MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A. Based on reading this document it appears to be.
Q. Well, let me ask it a little differently.
Do you remember Morgan Stanley giving any other information to the Board of Directors of Sunbeam about the value of Coleman, other than this document that has been marked as Exhibit No. 89?
A. No.
Q. Now, the methodology is described on the next page as "Four Valuation Methodologies." Do you see that?
A. I do see that.
Q. And maybe to just clear something up for me, there appear to be only three of them?
A. You're right there do appear to be only three.
Q. So that is a typo, it should be three valuation methodologies?
A. I suspect they are including LTM trading range as one of the valuation methodologies on the next page.
Q. Okay, and "LTM"?
A. Last 12 months.
Q. Do you know if this page is -- this page marked 83,980 is one you prepared?
A. I don't recall if I prepared this one or not.
Q. Well, turn to the next page.

Page 105

A. (Witness complying.)
Q. 83,981, the Summary Evaluation Analysis. Do you know who prepared this document?
A. I don't know who prepared this.
Q. Do you believe it's something you at least had some involvement in?
A. Yes.
Q. Let's go through those four methodologies.
The LTM trading range is the -- is what?
A. That is the price of publicly traded Coleman shares over the 12 preceding months. The range -- the low is $12.06, apparently, and the high was $20.88.
Q. And that is just the price you find at the back of "The Wall Street Journal"?
A. Yes.
Q. The next item is "Public Market Trading Analysis;" what is that?
A. That methodology is applying the earnings multiples that other similar companies are trading at to Coleman's specific earnings numbers.
Q. Is that an analysis that you did?
A. I don't recall doing that.
Q. And the -- where would the earnings multiples come from? Is that I/B/E/S?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018040

Page 106

A. Of the other companies?
Q. Yes.
A. It would come from some form of publicly available research.
Q. There are three sub categories here, the first one is "Without Syn." Do you understand that to be synergies, S-Y-N?
A. Yes.
Q. And, "no control premium."
A. Right.
Q. And then the second one is, "without synergies and 50% control premium"?
A. Right.
Q. And the third one is with "P/T synergies of 50 million;" is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. What does "P/T" stand for?
A. I suspect it's "pre tax."
Q. Do you know who within Morgan Stanley decided to use for this analysis a 50 percent control premium and synergies of 50 million?
A. I don't know who decided on those numbers.
Q. Did you?
A. I don't recall deciding on it, and probably not. It would probably be someone more senior.

Page 107

Q. Have you done analysis of this kind in other instances?
A. Yes.
Q. Or other companies?
A. Yes.
Q. And you have used control premiums?
A. Yes.
Q. And have you used a control premium of 50 percent in other --
A. I don't recall specifically, but I suspect I probably did.
Q. That doesn't strike you as unreasonable?
A. I --
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I would not say "unreasonable," but it -- I would say that it's higher than is typically used.
Q. There is a reference to synergies of $50 million. Do you know where that came from?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you know who within Morgan Stanley did analysis of the synergies that could or might result from a combination of Coleman and Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

Page 108

A. I did not know.
Q. Did you?
A. I don't recall ever doing that.
Q. Having looked at this document today, and perhaps yesterday, if you looked at it in preparation for today, do you have any recollection of where that $50 million synergy number came from?
A. I do not.
Q. The next item refers to "President Transactions Analysis." Is that another methodology?
A. Yes.
Q. And what does that mean?
A. That is applying earnings multiples that were paid in president M&A transactions to the earnings of Coleman.
Q. And the president transactions are contained in this document; is that correct?
A. I'm not sure. Typically they are.
Q. If you turn to the appendix of the document towards the end bearing Bates No. 84021 and following.
A. (Witness complying.)
Yes.
Q. Are those the presidents that were used?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A. They appear to be.

Page 109

Q. Well, this is a document you created, isn't it sir, or you were involved in?
A. I believe I was involved in this. These appear to be transactions paid -- transactions that would have been used to base our president transaction analysis on.
Q. Okay, and then the next entry is a discounted cash-flow analysis?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember working on a discounted cash flow analysis?
A. I remember one being contained in our merger model.
Q. Was there a person within Morgan Stanley that was responsible for doing that discounted cash flow?
A. Tyrone Chang was primarily responsible for the model.
Q. The DCF model, or the whole model?
A. The whole model including the DCF.
Q. And you and Mr. Change imported that analysis?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, there are three cases, the laser management case with 100 million of pre-tax synergies, with 150 million of pre-tax synergies, 200 million of pre-tax synergies.
What do you understand the Laser management case to be?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 110

A. That appears to be -- I don't recall where that case comes from, however, I would suspect it's Sunbeam's estimates of Coleman's Company's projected financials.
Q. And the synergies, do you know where those came from?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember being told to use synergies of that amount?
A. I don't.
Q. These are the three numbers that -- let me withdraw that.
Do you remember if Morgan Stanley presented any other estimates of synergies, other than what is contained in this document, to the Board of Directors when they made their decision to go forward with this deal?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Looking at this document, sir, and this page, does this attempt to show a range of values for Coleman using each of these methodologies, and then compare them to the offer price as contained in the potential merger?
A. What this page does is lays out a range of values for Coleman, and plots them on a chart, and then compares them to -- it appears to be four different prices, one is a market price on February 19th, and one is a current, and then the offer price of February 19th, and the current offer.

Q. Okay, and by the "offer price" does that just apply the exchange ratio to the Coleman -- excuse me, to the Sunbeam stock price?
A. It does that as well as I -- I suspect include any non stock consideration that is paid for the shares.
Q. If you turn to the next page of the document, sir, that is the numerical back up for the drafts and the information contained on the summary evaluation that we just discussed?
A. Yes.
Q. Turn to the page -- several pages later bearing the internal pagination No. 18.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. It describes the Camper valuation matrix without synergies, and the Laser management case without synergies.
If you take a second to look at that and see if that refreshes your recollection as to what the Laser management case meant.
A. (Witness complying.)
That does not refresh my memory.

Page 112

Q. Okay, look at the next three pages, Mr. Webber, they show that case with synergies of 100, 150 and 200 million.
Does that refresh your recollection as to where those numbers came from?
A. No.
Q. At the Board meeting at which this presentation -- this analysis was presented, you said Mr. Stynes did most of the talking for Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Stynes walking through any of these numbers with the Board?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember any questions from the Board about the numbers, or their accuracy, or where they came from?
A. No.
Q. If you turn further in the document to the number -- excuse me, the page numbered 84,007.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. It's entitled, "Review of Anticipated Combination Synergies."
Who prepared this section?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you?

Page 113

A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you have any understanding or recollection as to where the information contained in this section came from?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Are you aware that Sunbeam retained Coopers and Lybrand to help it analyze the synergies from this transaction, among other things?
A. I do recall Coopers & Lybrand being involved in the transaction; I do not recall what they were doing.
Q. Did you have any communications or contact with Coopers?
A. None that I recall. I may have been on a call with him, but I don't recall what was discussed.
Q. Okay, if you turn several pages further, internal pagination Page 44, also Page No. 84,011, there is a page about Scott Paper.
Did you insert this page in the document?
A. I don't recall it was me putting this in a document.
Q. Do you know who created this page?
A. No.
Q. Do you know why it was put in this document?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember it being discussed at the Board meeting?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 114

A. No.
Q. Now, if you turn to the next page there is a description of the pro forma combination analysis. Is that the analysis that you worked on?
A. It appears to be, although, I don't recall creating this page.
Q. Okay, prior to presenting this document to the Board of Directors, do you remember discussing it with individuals from Sunbeam?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley discussed it with individuals from Sunbeam?
A. No, I don't.
MR. BRODY: We can go off the record for a second.

(Brief break.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Webber.
Before we broke we were talking about the Board meeting at which Exhibit 89, your presentation at the Board was of discussed.

Page 115

After having looked at that do you remember anything that was discussed at that meeting about the content of Exhibit No. 89?
A. I don't remember the specifics of the conversation, all I recall is Jim Stynes going through the presentation and explaining the pages to the group.
Q. Okay.
Now, I think I asked you this before, but do you remember Morgan Stanley presenting a fairness opinion at that meeting?
A. I don't recall whether -- if we did or not.
Q. Do you know if a fairness opinion was ever presented?
A. I don't know if it was presented or not.
Q. Mr. Webber, let me show you what has been previously marked as Exhibit No. 90 --
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. -- which appears to be an unsigned copy of a fairness opinion.
Have you ever seen that before?
A. (Witness complying.)
I do recall this document. I don't -- but I don't recall -- I do recall the document.
Q. Do you ever recall seeing a signed copy?
A. No, I do not.

Page 116

Q. Okay, typically in a transaction does Morgan Stanley present a signed copy of its fairness opinion? Does it sign it?
A. Typically if a fairness opinion is asked for it would be signed.
Q. And then it would then be printed on letterhead and signed?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember ever seeing a signed copy of the Fairness Opinion?
A. I don't.
Q. If you turn to the second page of the Fairness Opinion.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. It recites, among other things, that "For purposes of the opinions set forth herein we have," and then it lists a variety of things, 15 of them.
I'm not going to ask you about all of them, but I'm going to ask you about a few them, and my question is going to be, did you do this, or did somebody else do this?
Turning to Item No. 4 -- no, excuse me, Item No. 2, "Reviewed certain internal financial statements and other financial and operating data concerning the company and the buyer prepared by the management of the company and I buyer." Did you do that?

A. I don't recall ever doing that.
Q. Item No. 3 -- no, excuse me, No. 4, "Reviewed certain financial projections prepared by the management of the company and the buyer respectively."
Did you do that?
A. I don't -- I don't recall doing that other than looking at the East Pack financials.
Q. I understand. You talked about that earlier.
"Item No. 6, reviewed with the management of the buyer, the buyer being defined as Sunbeam, their estimates of the synergies and the cost savings expected to be achieved from the merger." Did you do that?
A. I don't recall doing that.
Q. "Item No. 7, discussed the past and current operations and financial conditions and the prospects of the buyer with senior executives of the buyer."
Again, did you do that?
A. I don't recall doing that.
Q. "Item No. 12, participated in discussions and negotiations among representatives of the company and the buyer and their financial and legal advisors."

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018043

Aside from the conference calls you may have been on where the exchange ratio was discussed, did you do any of that?
A. Well, at the meeting that I did attend, I suppose I did participate in a discussion among representatives -- actually, I take that back, because I don't know if Sunbeam was at that meeting or not, but we did take part in discussions among representatives of the company, Sunbeam, so I did do that as well.
Q. Okay, No. 13, reviewed the merger -- excuse me, the Company Merger Agreement and Holdings Merger Agreement. Did you look at those documents?
A. I don't recall looking at those documents.
Q. And then 14, "Reviewed evaluations prepared by Coopers & Lybrand of the potential synergy opportunities present in the mergers."
A. I don't recall looking at those estimates.
Q. Do you know if by February 27th Coopers had provided any evaluations of the potential synergies present in the mergers?
A. I don't know if they had or hadn't.
Q. Now having seen this -- if you turn to the next page of the document.

Page 119

A. (Witness complying.)
Q. You see at the end this document states that, "Morgan Stanley is of the opinion that the merger agreement is fair from a financial point of view of the buyer"?
Do you see that to be the concluding paragraph?
A. Yes, I see that.
Q. Do you know if that opinion in words or in substance was delivered to the Board of Directors of Sunbeam?
A. I don't know if it was or wasn't.
Q. You don't know remember that from the meeting that you attended?
A. I don't recall that occurring at the meeting I attended.
Q. Fair enough.
The Fairness Opinion that is in front of you, is that something that you had any role in drafting or revising?
A. I don't recall if I did or did not.
Q. Now this morning, Mr. Webber, you had discussed merger modeling that you had done, and I would like to show you a document that was previously marked in Mr. Chang's deposition -- Exhibit No. 61 in Mr. Chang's deposition.
A. (Witness complying.)

Page 120

Q. And I am going to apologize in advance for its copy quality, it's been faxed, and refaxed, and copied, so it's a little hard to make out.
I'm asking you if this appears to reflect the merger modeling that you and Mr. Chang did?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. Do you recognize this as the final draft, the final merger document?
A. I don't know which draft -- draft of the merger document this was.
Q. Okay.
If you look at the cover, there is a fax transmittal to Mr. Chang from Ms. MacDonald on March 11th.
As you sit here do you remember if you did any work on the merger model after March 11th?
A. On this -- we did financial modeling after March 11th when we looking at other targets.
Q. I'm focussing on Coleman.
A. Okay, I don't recall if I did any work on Coleman after March 11th.
Q. Okay.
And Ms. MacDonald, what involvement did you have with Ms. MacDonald on the merger model?

Page 121

A. Only with Coleman?
Q. With Coleman, yes.
A. I don't recall speaking with Ms. MacDonald about Coleman at all.
Q. Okay, if you look at the document that we have marked, about halfway through the document, let me give you the page number, Page 84,993, do you see the words "down side case"?
A. Yes.
Q. That is Mr. Chang's handwriting, not yours?
A. It's not my handwriting.
Q. Okay, fair enough.
Do you recognize the first half of this document, that is up to the page identified as "one case," and then the second case thereafter, "a second case"?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Yes, the first page appears to be, let's call it "the base case," and the rest appear to be a "down side case."
Q. In what ways does the base case and the down-side case differ?
A. I don't recall how they differ without looking through this document. I would not be able to tell you how they differ.

018044

Page 122

Q. Well, in looking at the documents can you asses differences? Can you determine differences?
A. The down side of the case appears to have slower revenue growth and lower operating margins than the base case.
Q. If you look at the heading of the two models they also reflect different synergies, don't they?
A. Yes, they do.
Q. Do you know where those differences and assumptions came from?
Is that a Morgan Stanley difference, or a Sunbeam difference, or both?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't know where that came from.
Q. If you look at the base case, and, you know, I confess this is difficult to read, but if you look at the 1998 projected pro forma for the company, and this is the combined companies, all three -- all four --
A. They appear to be all four companies together, correct.
Q. And if you look at the 1998 projected pro forma it has a basic earnings per share of $1.30?
A. That appears to be correct.
Q. And if you look at the same line on the down-side case, again, this is difficult to read, but it appears to be $1, right, earnings per share?

A. It's tough to read, but it could be $1.
Q. Okay, do those numbers -- are those numbers consistent with your recollection of the results of your financial model?
A. I don't recall the results of the financial model.
Q. Who did the quantitative mathematical work, the result of what we're seeing here in Exhibit No. 61? Is that Mr. Change, or by you?
A. Primarily done by Mr. Chang. I supervised.
Q. What guidance did you give Mr. Chang in developing this model?
A. I don't recall specifically what guidance I gave him. He was a very competent modeler, so in terms of -- I don't recall what I gave him.
Q. Fair enough.
Was this all done on an Excel Spread Sheet, or was there a different program used to develop it?
A. I didn't recall whether this was on Excel or Lotus 123. It might have been Lotus.
Q. Do you have a recollection of who, if anyone, the results of your modeling were shared with?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

Page 124

A. I recall sharing the results of this with Morgan Stanley team members, and I also recall sharing some results of the merger analysis with Sunbeam management, although I don't recall if it was this -- I recall showing them pages that resulted from our models, but I don't recall if they were these pages, and I don't recall when we showed it to them.
Q. Starting with the Morgan Stanley team members, who on the Morgan Stanley team did you share the results with?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I recall instances where we -- where results of the model were discussed at team meetings with several team members involved, but I don't recall specifically who was there.
I know Alex Fuchs was -- saw the results of these, and I suspect Jim Stynes and Bob Kitts did as well, but I cannot be sure we showed it to anybody else.
Q. Do you know if it was shown to any of the people working on the underwriting, the public offering portion?
A. I don't know. I don't recall ever doing that.
Q. Do you know what was shown to people in other branches of Morgan Stanley in terms of financing the deal?

Page 125

A. I don't recall it being shown to anyone other than --
Q. You said you recall sharing results with Sunbeam management. Do you recall what you shared with them?
A. I recall sharing accretion/dilution analysis, or the affect that the transactions would have on earnings per share with Russ Kersh.
Q. Do you remember when you did that?
A. No.
Q. Perhaps using this document as an example, what was the result of your accretion/dilution analysis?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. The result of the accretion/dilution analysis would depend on several inputs, and I'm not sure, you know, what the specific results were.
I'm not sure what the specific results were, and I'm -- and to know what they were would have to depend on what the individual inputs were.
Q. So it depended on which way you run the model?
A. It would depend on assumptions.
Q. Do you know if the results of this modeling was ever shared with MacAndrews and Forbes?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Were any of the runs of the model -- did any of the runs of the model show an increase in earnings for

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

1998?
A. I don't recall if they did or not.
Q. Did any of them show decrease in 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Your testimony earlier was that you shared the accretion/dilution analysis with Mr. Kersh. Was that done in person?
A. Yes.
Q. Where?
A. I recall doing that at Morgan Stanley offices.
Q. What do you remember discussing with Mr. Kersh?
A. I recall showing him accretion/dilution analysis. I'm not -- I don't recall specifically which transaction we were looking at, and I don't recall -- and, obviously, I don't recall the inputs that were used to generate that accretion/dilution analysis.
Q. Do you remember anything that you discussed with Mr. Kersh in words or in substance?
A. All I recall is being in a meeting with Mr. Kersh, discussing a potential transaction, and him asking to see what the results of that transaction would be on Sunbeam's earnings, and Tyrone and I left the meeting, calculated it, and came back and showed it to Mr. Kersh.

Page 127

Q. Do you remember his reaction to that?
A. No.
Q. When you completed work on the Morgan Stanley transaction, certain hard copies of the models remain -- certain print out remain; is that correct?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Apparently.
Q. And also, did the model continue to reside on the servers of the computers at Morgan Stanley?
A. I'm not sure if it did or not.
Q. Did you ever have an occasion to consult it thereafter, after that deal was over?
A. After the Coleman deal was over we continued to use the merger model from time to time to evaluate other potential acquisitions.
So I suppose that it did reside, at least for a while.
Q. Other transactions for Morgan Stanley -- for Sunbeam?
A. For Sunbeam, yes.
Q. At the team meetings in which you presented the merger model, or portions of the merger model, do you remember any discussion about what the model was showing, it's impact on the deal?
A. I don't remember a discussion.

Page 128

Q. You can put that back on the side for the time being.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Mr. Webber, you were not involved in the financing of the transaction; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Are you aware that at some point in time Morgan Stanley prepared and sent a highly-confident letter?
A. I am aware that there was discussion about a highly-confident letter, I'm not aware of what the results of those discussions were and whether or not one was ever delivered.
Q. What do you recall about the discussions about a highly-confident letter?
A. I remember the concept of the highly-confident letter, and I -- but I don't recall that one was ultimately provided.
Q. With whom did you have those discussions?
A. I remember discussing -- or I remember it was discussed with Mr. Stynes in the room, but I don't remember who else was in the room.
Q. Do you remember any representatives from Sunbeam in that room?
A. No.
Q. What do you remember being discussed about the highly-confident letter?

Page 129

A. I don't recall. I just remember the concept of a highly-confident letter.
Q. Do you remember if it was something that was requested by Morgan Stanley -- excuse me, by Sunbeam?
A. I don't know if it was or was not.
Q. Do you remember a discussion of whether it would be in Morgan Stanley's interest?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Let me show you a couple of documents. I start with Exhibit No. 74, two copies.
I will state for the record that that has been identified as a letter sent by Sunbeam on March 5th signed by Mr. Smith -- Bram Smith.
I ask you if you have ever seen it before?
A. I don't recall seeing this before.
Q. Do you have any recollection of working on it or doing anything on it?
A. I do not.
MR. BRODY: Please mark this as Exhibit No. 190.

BY MR. BRODY:

Q. Mr. Webber, are you familiar with the concept of Metadata on certain word processing documents?

A. No.

Q. Okay, certain computer systems keep track of data other than the document itself, when it was last edited, who did the last edit, and so on.

In some systems that is called "Metadata."

Your counsel produced to us certain documents from Morgan Stanley that were accompanying with things done by Metadata, and I am giving you what has been printed out as the Metadata and the accompanying letter that the Metadata is associate waited with, and they have been marked together as Exhibit No. 190.

Let me ask you first to look at the letter. Do you recognize the attached letter there as a draft of a highly-confident letter?

A. It appears to be a -- similar to the letter that you showed me.

Q. Okay, and then turning to the first page of the document, and I have no reason to think -- the cover, sir.

I have no reason to think you have ever seen this before, and I will represent that this has been described to me as the Metadata associated with the following draft.

And the Metadata recites the author as "Webber, J."

Are you aware of any other Webbers at Morgan Stanley that were involved in the investment banking?

A. No.

Q. Now, having listened to the speech I just gave you about Metadata, and seeing this document, does that refresh your recollection that at any point in time you did work on a highly-confident letter?

A. No, it does not.

Q. Have you worked on highly-confident letters for other transactions?

A. I don't recall working on another highly-confident letter.

Q. Okay, you can put those two documents aside.

A. (Witness complying.)

Q. Now, within Morgan Stanley, do you know if there is an approval process required to get a highly-confident letter out the door?

A. I believe there is, yes.

Q. What is that process?

Page 132

A. I'm not familiar with the process other than typically in -- well, I don't want to pretend to understand the capital market side of the business, I don't understand it.

However, I know that there are committees that need to approve items such as -- I believe they need to approve items such as a highly-confident letter.

Q. But you're not involved in that?

A. I'm not involved in that, no.

Q. Mr. Webber, were you involved in any of the efforts to -- let me withdraw that.

If you go back to the document that we marked as Exhibit No. 84, the chronology.

A. (Witness complying.)

Q. I think we're just about done with this document.

A. Okay.

Q. The second to last page, the entry for March 2 describes an event as "Announcement of Transactions."

Using that as a reference point, were you involved in any efforts, on or around March 2, to announce the transactions, to publicize the transactions, to make contacts with the press, and so on, about the transactions?

A. I was not involved in any of that.

Page 133

Q. Okay, are you aware whether others at Morgan Stanley were involved in those efforts?

A. I recall Rich Goudis, from Sunbeam, at Morgan Stanley's offices, working to prepare for the announcement of the transactions.

I don't recall if he was assisted by Morgan Stanley or not, but I -- I did not assist him, personally.

Q. Have you been involved in other transactions, or for other clients in which Morgan Stanley has assisted in preparing a Q & A, questions and answers, to go along with a public announcement?

A. I recall -- I recall working on other transactions where we had conversations with senior management about the impacts -- or a reaction that the press might have to a transaction.

Q. And in those circumstances have you ever been involved in drafting questions and proposed answers, or reviewing them?

A. I don't recall personally ever reading that.

Q. But you're aware that Morgan Stanley has done that?

MS. BROWN: Objection, mischaracterizes.

A. I'm not aware of specifically preparing questions and answers for -- Morgan Stanley specifically preparing questions and answers for a client.

Q. Okay, have you been involved in assisting clients in dealing with the press and the public after their announcement of earnings or other information?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. As an M&A banker, I don't recall doing that.
Q. Do you know if others at Morgan Stanley have been involved in that effort?
A. I am aware that investment bankers talk to senior management teams about -- about how events will be seen in the press and how to react to news.
Q. Okay, do you know if senior bankers or others at Morgan Stanley have assisted the company management in preparing for those sessions, doing draft questions draft answers?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answers. Objection.
A. I don't know of any specific instance where Morgan Stanley bankers prepared questions or answers for clients.
Q. And that is not something you have done?
A. I have not done that.

(Exhibit 191, Letter, marked for identification.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. I have given you what has been marked as Exhibit No. 191. You can look at the whole thing if you want, but I'm trying to focus your attention on just a couple of things.
First, have you ever seen this before?
A. No.
Q. Turn to the second page under the entry of "1:15 p.m.," there is a reference to an interview with Suzanne Prat, a business report, and it says in the second column, "Contact Josh Webber."
Does that refresh your recollection of any involvement you may have had with the press in connection with this deal?
A. No, it does not.
Q. Do you remember speaking with Ms. Prat, or anyone else about this?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Dunlap spending time at Morgan Stanley on March 1 or 2 in connection with public announcements of this transaction?
A. No, I don't.
Q. That is not a time that you remember having conversations with them?

A. Correct.
Q. Put that aside, please.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. I am going to show you some additional documents, and I think we can move through them quickly given your last testimony.
I am showing you what has been marked as Exhibit No. 140. Have you ever seen that before?
A. No, I don't recall seeing this before.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?
A. No, I do not.
Q. It's not yours?
A. No, it's not.
Q. Okay, you can put that document aside.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Another document previously marked as Exhibit No. 141, have you ever seen that before?
A. No, I have not -- I don't recall seeing this one.
Q. If you turn to the second page of the document.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. There is some handwriting, and it continues on the third page.
Have you ever seen that before?

A. The handwriting?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. No, I have not.
Q. Turn to the third page.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Question No. 13, "What's your first quarter going to look like? Are you comfortable with analysts estimates"?
The answer is, "We're happy with our first quarter so far, we're on target. At this point I'm comfortable with the estimates."
Do you remember any discussion within Morgan Stanley, or with Sunbeam, at any time prior to the announcement of the first quarter results about how the first quarter was going?
A. I do not recall any such conversations.
Q. You don't remember any questions being asked?
A. No.
Q. Or any answers being given?
A. No.
Q. Okay, you can put that aside.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. I now have given you what has been marked as Exhibit No. 142, additional handwriting. My question is going to focus on the handwriting, sir.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018048

Page 138

Do you recognize that?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Okay, Mr. Webber, are you aware that in March of 1998 Arthur Andersen provided Morgan Stanley with a comfort letter concerning this transaction?
A. I'm not aware that that happened specifically, but I do remember the concept of a letter.
Q. What is it you remember about the concept?
A. Only that a comfort letter was discussed by the team members. I don't recall which team members, but I don't know the results of that conversation, I don't know whether or not we received a comfort letter.
Q. When you say "a comfort letter was discussed," do you remember anything more about that discussion?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember who was involved in the discussion?
A. No, I don't.
Q. In person, on the telephone?
A. I don't.
Q. You previously mentioned that the name "Larry Bornstein" sounded familiar to you.
Do you remember if Mr. Bornstein's name came up in connection with the comfort letter?

Page 139

A. No, I don't.
Q. Let me show you a copy of a comfort letter.
I'm sorry, I keep throwing those at you.
A. That is all right.
Q. This is CPH 17. There are various drafts of this document, but this appears to be a signed copy.
Have you ever seen this before?
A. I don't recall ever seeing this before.
Q. Do you remember -- just take a look at it and see if it refreshes your recollection about a discussion that you had.
A. (Witness complying.)
This doesn't mark any memories for me.
Q. If you turn to the third page the document, Paragraph 5, Item B, it discloses that for the first month of the year, essentially, from late December through the beginning of February, sales for Sunbeam are less than one half what they were the prior year.
Do you remember any discussions within the company, within Morgan Stanley about that?
A. When? Discussions at what times?
Q. Prior to the closing of the transaction.
A. No.
Q. Do you remember discussions after the closings?

Page 140

A. I do recall discussions after the closing about the fact that -- after events that had occurred and Sunbeam had underperformed, I remember discussing that with members of Morgan Stanley's team.
Q. What do you remember discussing?
A. Just the fact that -- I don't remember the specifics of the conversation, but it became very public that Sunbeam was having problems, and as a team we discussed those.
Q. Did you ever discuss within the team about how or why Sunbeam happened to underperform? The reasons for it?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
A. I don't recall if we were -- if we spoke about specific reasons.
Q. Did you ever discuss with the team -- within the team, anything that could be done about it to make Sunbeam a better-performing company?
A. I don't recall any of those conversations.
Q. The next line in Paragraph 5-B, in addition to showing sales being 50 percent or less what they were the year before, it says -- it shows net income, it shows that in '97 in the first month it was a gain of about $5 million, and through this roughly same period in '98, it's a loss of about $10 million.

Page 141

Do you remember any discussion about that prior to the closing?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know if either of those pieces of information, the fact that sales were down and the fact that earnings were negative was there disclosed to my client, MacAndrews and Forbes?
A. I don't know if it was or it wasn't.
Q. If you turn to the fifth page of the letter, it's Paragraph No. 6-C, it's at the top.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. I would like you to read that to yourself.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. And, again, it shows that sales for the first two months of the year are still running low, they are at one half of what they were the year before.
Do you remember any discussions within the company prior to the closing about that?
A. No, I do not.
Q. And, again, do you remember if that information was ever shared with MacAndrews and Forbes?
A. I don't know if it was or if it wasn't.
Q. I may have asked you this before, sir, but do you remember any discussions within the company prior to -- within Morgan Stanley, prior to the closing of the Coleman transaction, about the first quarter results at Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't recall any discussions about the first quarter.
Q. Based on your experience at Morgan Stanley, and your, you know, involvement in the business world, what is your understanding of what Morgan Stanley -- Morgan Stanley's practice was when learning of the fact that a company that it was doing a deal for was showing bad results?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. What stage of the deal would we be in --
Q. Prior to closing.
So prior to closing --
A. But after announcing?
Q. After announcing, prior to closing.
A. Well, I don't know if there is a policy. I think it would depend on the specific situation, and it would depend on what was in the contract that was signed between the two parties.
Q. Can you explain what you mean by that, how would it depend?
A. Well, if there was a merger agreement that was signed, that would dictate what, if anything, I assume, but not being a lawyer, I would assume what if anything would need to be done if we came to realize that sales were underperforming.

Page 143

Q. Okay, i guess my question -- I appreciate your answer. I'm not asking you to give me a legal opinion. Ms. Brown and I can argue about that.
I'm asking you what, as an investment banker, an investment banker ought to do when it discoverers that the preliminary results, the first two months, for example, for a company, that has signed a definitive merger agreement in which doc. is going to be exchanged, shows that the company's sales are not doing well and it's earnings are doing worse?
MS. BROWN: Objection, form, speculation, hypothetical.
A. I don't -- I'm not sure what an investment banker's responsibility would be. I suspect it would depend on the document signed between the two parties.
Q. Meaning between its client and --
A. Meaning if a merger agreement is already signed --
Q. Yes.
A. -- then Morgan Stanley my or may not have responsibility -- its responsibilities, I suspect, would be laid out in the merger document.

Page 144

Q. There came a point in time in March when Morgan Stanley -- and Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in making public announcements about its prospects for the first quarter, were you involved at all in that discussion, or in that announcement?
MS. BROWN: Objection to the extent it mischaracterizes the record, and also to form.
A. I don't recall being involved in those discussions.
Q. Are you aware they have gone on?
A. Repeat --
Q. Well, I will show you the press release in a second. We will get to that.
A. Okay.
Q. In the training and other education that you received either at college, your graduate program, or on the job, or in training programs at Morgan Stanley, were you ever instructed or taught what an investment banker should do when learning of news that might be unfavorable to a company that it was doing work for?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Form.
A. I -- I don't recall ever receiving specific instructions. I think the proper response would be, depending on a case-by-case basis.

Page 145

Q. Having seen this comfort letter, does that refresh your recollection any about further contacts with Arthur Andersen, or discussions with Andersen about the work they did in this case?
A. No, it does not.
Q. I may have asked you this, but you had no communications with Andersen?
A. I don't recall any conversations with them.
Q. Are you familiar with the term "road show"?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware that there was a road show for the offering of the Sunbeam securities in this case?
A. I'm not sure if there was a road show or not.
Q. Did you attend any road show presentations?
A. I don't recall doing that.
Q. Do you remember any discussions about the road show, what is it going in it, what is being discussed at it, how it is going, that sort of thing?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Compound.
A. I don't, no.
Q. Do you remember attending a lunch after a road show presentation in New York about this deal?
A. I vaguely do recall attending a lunch at a hotel in New York, and it may have been on this deal, it may not have. I don't recall.

018050

Q. Do you remember anything that happened at it?
A. No.
Q. After the definitive merger agreements were signed, and the Board of Directors meeting was held on February 27th, do you know what work, if any, you did on the work going forward?
A. Coleman deal?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. I don't recall any work that I did going forward on Coleman.
Q. Now, Mr. Webber, I previously averted to this, but I'm showing now what is marked as CPH Exhibit No. 14, which is a Press Release issued by Sunbeam on March 18, 1998.
I'm going to ask you if you recall seeing this before?
A. I don't recall having seen this before.
Q. Do you recall any discussions within Morgan Stanley prior to the issuance of this press release about whether to issue it?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember any discussions after the press release about the press release or it's impact on the deal?

A. I do not recall.
Q. As you sit here do you have any views as to whether the press release is or was accurate?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't have any view on whether or not at this time -- at the time of this Press Release whether or not it was accurate or not.
Q. As you sit here now do you have a different -- do you have a view?
A. Well, about the actual results compared to what they were predicting here? Is that what you're asking?
Q. Well, sure.
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I believe that this -- ended up being an incorrect statement that 1997 first quarter sales would exceed $253.4 million, but I don't know whether or not -- but I don't have any reason to believe that it's inaccurate that they expected it to look --
Q. If at the time this Press Release was issued in March of 1998, Morgan Stanley knew that it was inaccurate and had reason to believe that it was false or misleading, what should Morgan Stanley have done?
MS. BROWN: Objection, hypothetical, calls for speculation, facts not in evidence, and also to the extent that it calls for a legal conclusion.

A. I don't think I'm qualified to answer what Morgan Stanley should or shouldn't have done.
Q. You have no views on that?

(Brief break.)

MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber, if at the time this press release was issued on March 19th, 1998, Morgan Stanley knew or had reason to believe that the press release was false or misleading, what should it have done?
MS. BROWN: Same objection, sworm, speculation, hypothetical, and I think legal conclusion, to the extent it calls for a legal conclusion.
A. Hypothetically if I knew this to be false, I would have consulted an attorney about what to do.
Q. Do you remember reading this press release after it was issued?
A. No, I don't recall reading this press release.
Q. Did you see it come across the wire, or circulating within the company, or anything like that?

A. I don't recall it coming across. I don't recall seeing it.
Q. Is it customary, or at least frequent in your business that after a major deal closes there is a closing dinner, or some event to thank people for their hard work on the deal?
A. That does often happen.
Q. Do you know if there was one on this deal?
A. I don't believe there was.
Q. Do you have an understanding of why not?
A. I don't know why there wasn't.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at Morgan Stanley who after March 19th, the date of this Press Release, performed or conducted any due diligence into either Sunbeam or Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Can you repeat that question?
Q. Sure.
Do you know of anyone at Morgan Stanley who after March 19th, 1998 did any due diligence, any factual investigation concerning Sunbeam or Coleman between that time and the closing of the deal.
MS. BROWN: Same objection.
A. I'm not aware of any due diligence or fact finding

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0180-51

Page 150

that was done by anyone at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Okay.
Do you know of anyone at Morgan Stanley that requested updates from Sunbeam at any time during the first quarter on their actual sales?
A. I don't recall any inquiries about sales.
Q. Do you know of anyone at Morgan Stanley that did inquiries of Sunbeam into its January close, or its February close, that is the close of its books after each month?
A. I don't recall any investigation into the first-quarter numbers.
Q. Do you know anyone who did any look at projected earnings per share after January, or after February, or as March was proceeding?
A. I don't recall any such analysis.
Q. Are you familiar with the concept of a "bring-down due diligence call"?
A. I believe I am. It's vague, but I believe I recall -- I know what that is.
Q. Is that something done by corporate finance rather than M&A?
A. I'm not sure -- I'm not sure I entirely know what it is, so I don't know that I can actually answer that question.

Q. Okay, well, let me show you a -- well, let me withdraw that.
Do you remember in part whether you participated in a phone call with the auditors, either Arthur Andersen, or the auditors of Coleman, First Alert, or Signature, shortly before closing, about the statements contained in the merger documents?
A. I recall being on a conversation -- on a conference call with Alex Fuchs, the subject -- and we were -- it the a bring-down due diligence call. However, I don't remember who we were talking to, and I don't remember what we were discussing.
Q. Do you remember any of the substance of the call?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember how long it took?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Let me show you what has been previously marked as Exhibit No. 112.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Have you ever seen that document before?
A. I don't recall ever seeing this document.
Q. If you turn to the second page there is additional information about the sales -- declining sales and net loss of Sunbeam through March 1, 1998.

Do you remember that being discussed in the bring-down call that you remember participating in with Mr. Fuchs?
A. I do not.
Q. Have you seen that document -- does it refresh your recollection any of what you or Mr. Fuchs or others may have discussed?
A. No, it does not.
Q. Now, at some point did you learn that Sunbeam's first quarter sales for 1998 actually did fall short of their first quarter sales for 1997?
A. I eventually found that out. I don't recall when I found that out.
Q. Do you think you learned it before or after the deal closed?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember how you learned it?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Did you discuss it with anyone, the fact that sales were off?
A. I do remember it being a discussion at Morgan Stanley amongst the team members, but I don't specifically remember when it happened, and I don't remember who on the team was in the conversation.

Q. In that discussion, were you ever advised that Arthur Andersen had objected to statements made by Morgan Stanley and some of the public filings it made?
A. I was not aware of that.
Q. Were you aware that Arthur Andersen, through Mr. Bornstein; and Morgan Stanley, through Mr. Tyree, had an argument about whether certain statements that Morgan Stanley made were correct or not?
A. I was not aware of that.
MS. BROWN: Objection to the characterization of the question.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. In connection with this discussion that you had about the fact that sales were off, that you can't place in time or can't identify the individuals who were on, did the fact that the sales were off come as a surprise to you? Do you remember that?
A. I don't remember -- I remember at some point being surprised that the company -- that the numbers were as -- were such that they were, but I don't remember when that was, but I do remember being surprised at one point.
Q. Were there any follow-up discussions within Morgan

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

2508052

Page 154

Stanley about how did this come to be, and what could we do differently so this does not happen again?
MS. BROWN: Objection, form.
A. I don't recall any such discussion.
Q. Do you remember ever being told by Mr. Stynes, or Mr. Fuchs, or Mr. Kitts, or Mr. Strong that the banking team should have done something differently in this case?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Did you ever -- did you or anyone else at Morgan Stanley ever state that Sunbeam had withheld information from Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't recall stating that.
Q. Do you remember others saying that in your presence?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever come to the conclusion that Morgan Stanley -- excuse me, that Sunbeam had lied to Morgan Stanley?
A. I would not use the word "lie," but as I sit here today it appears that -- that Sunbeam was at least being aggressive with their predictions for the quarter.
Q. Do you remember any conversations with Morgan Stanley about whether Sunbeam lied or had been too aggressive in its predictions?

A. I don't remember.
Q. Anyone at Morgan Stanley ever state or suggest that Sunbeam had provided false information to you or to others in connection with this deal?
A. I don't recall that ever happening.
Q. Now, after these three acquisitions closed at the end of March, what work did you continue to do on the Morgan Stanley engagement?
A. I continued to look at a potential acquisitions for Sunbeam within a consumer products industry, and we continued to keep an eye on other companies within the consumer products industry that could potentially partner up with Sunbeam in some kind of business combination.
Q. What sort of business combinations were you looking at?
A. I specifically recall looking at a subsidiary of Black & Decker, and I recall looking at Toastmaster, and I don't --
Q. Go ahead.
A. I don't recall any others, but there may have been others.
Q. Were those companies that Sunbeam would acquire?

Page 156

A. Yes.
Q. Not that would acquire Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember doing any work in estimating the synergies, or the cost savings that would result from the combination of these companies?
A. I don't recall looking at any such estimates.
Q. Did you have any further discussions with Coopers?
A. I don't recall anymore discussions with Coopers.
Q. In the realm of Morgan Stanley that you worked in, did you ever submit or prepare memorandum to more senior people to seek approval for Morgan Stanley to participate in this transaction?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Which transaction?
Q. The Coleman Acquisitions.
A. Did I prepare a document?
Q. Yes, let me -- that was an unclear question.
I guess what I'm getting at is, in order for the merger and acquisition work to go forward with Morgan Stanley as an investment banker, did there need to be approval by senior people within the company, to your knowledge?
MS. BROWN: Same objection, form.

Page 157

A. Before any client is -- before Morgan Stanley agrees to represent any client an engagement letter would need to be signed.
Q. That was done before your time?
A. Yes.
Q. Aside from that, are you aware of any approvals that were needed for the M&A work to go forward?
MS. BROWN: Same objection.
A. I'm not aware of any approvals that were needed, however, you know, if a fairness opinion was provided, and I can't recall if one was or not, then it would have to go through the Fairness Committee.
Q. Now, if a fairness opinion were provided, you said it would have to go through the Fairness Committee. What does that entail?
A. Before issuing Fairness Opinions the transaction would need to be presented to a committee that consisted of senior bankers who would need to approve the transaction and agree with the conclusion that it was fair to Morgan Stanley's client.
Q. Was there a procedure for presenting the transaction to the committee? Was that done in writing, orally?
A. In general?
Q. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 158

A. In general it would be -- a presentation book would be distributed to the team members, they would be walked through the transaction, and a copy of the fairness opinion would be supplied as well, and they would have the chance to review --
Q. When you say "team members," do you mean the committee --
A. Committee members. Sorry.
Q. Do you know who sat on the Fairness Committee?
A. In general?
Q. Yes.
A. In general it was a combination of managing directors, there was -- there wasn't a specific committee, it was rather a certain number of managing directors needed to be present in order to form a committee, and there was also members of what was called MNA admin., which is the management group that ran the department.
Q. Do you know if the fairness opinion for the Coleman transaction was ever presented to committee?
A. I don't know if it was or wasn't.
Q. Did you have any involvement in trying to put together a committee meeting or presenting it?
A. For Coleman?
Q. Yes.

Page 159

A. I don't recall ever doing that.
Q. On the financing side we've heard testimony of presentation of this deal to be Equity Committee and the Leverage Finance Committee. Did you have any role in that?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever see any memos or other documents that were submitted to those committees about this transaction?
A. I don't recall ever seen one.
Q. Were you involved in any way in efforts to sell the subordinated debentures?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Do you know in anyone from the finance side of the business asked you for input in connection with the sale of the subordinated debentures?
A. I don't recall ever being asked for input, however, I would be at least the logical point of contact so they might have asked me something.
Q. You previously looked at the merger model result, I think it was Exhibit No. 61.
Do you recall presenting those to anyone in connection with the sales efforts?
A. No, I don't.

Page 160

Q. Mr. Webber, I have given you an exhibit that was previously marked Exhibit No. 36, which is a lengthy Morgan Stanley Press Release issued on April 3 -- excuse me, let me withdraw that -- it is a lengthy Sunbeam Press Release issued on April 3rd, 1998.
I'm going to ask you to look at that, but my first question is going to be, have you seen that before, so let me know when you have read it.
A. (Witness complying.)
I don't recall having seen this before.
Q. Either before or after it was issued?
A. Correct.
Q. In the memo it refers to Rich Goudis leaving the company.
A. Yes.
Q. Were you aware of that?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you learn that Mr. Goudis was leaving the company?
A. I don't remember when I learned, but I -- I do recall learning fairly soon after it happened.
Q. Do you know who you learned it from?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Goudis again after you learned that he was leaving the company?

Page 161

A. I don't recall.
Q. In this document, sir, Sunbeam reports that its first quarter sales are actually going to be below the first quarter sales from the year prior.
Prior to the issuance of this Press Release, April 3, were you aware of that fact?
A. I don't recall being aware of that fact.
Q. We talked earlier about certain discussions you had about the last press release. Does this press release help you place in time or identify the individuals with whom you had those discussions?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Discussions about the quarter?
Q. About the quarter?
A. It does not, no.
Q. So having seen this you still don't remember when you had the discussions about the quarter?
A. The only thing I recall is I believe I recall having a discussion with Jim Stynes about the fact that the quarter was not going to hit the projections.
Q. Do you remember when?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember where those discussions took place?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0180538

A. I remember having that discussion at Morgan Stanley.
Q. So it was face to face?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you believe that discussion about the view that the quarter was not going to hit projections, did you say -- was that before the announcement on April 3rd that in fact it had not hit projections?
A. I don't recall when it was, but I -- I don't recall having that information prior than when it was released.
Q. As you sit here do you remember anything in words or in substance about your conversation with Mr. Stynes?
A. I recall that Mr. Stynes was surprised that they were missing a quarter.
Q. Do you remember anything else being said or expressed?
A. No.

(Brief break.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Okay, Mr. Webber, are you aware that in connection with the contemplated second half of this transaction, that is the acquisition of the public shares, there was to be a filing of an S-4, or a Registration Statement?

A. I don't recall that happening.
Q. Do you recall working at all on in reviewing an S-4 or a public securities document?
A. I guess I do vaguely remember that, but I don't recall what work I did.
Q. Well, I just want to ask you about one aspect of it. Well, maybe more than one, but it's primarily one.
Can we mark this as our next exhibit.

(Exhibit 192, Part of Archives, marked for identification.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber, this a very lengthy document, and I'm going to only ask you about bits and pieces of it, and I will represent for the record that this is printed off of the government's Edgar Archives and the S-4 filed with the SEC on May 11th, 1998, and if you have seen this document, you may have seen it in a different form, but just having glanced at this, does this remind you of the work you did in connection with this document?
A. No, it does not.

Q. Do you remember -- let me mark one additional exhibit that may refresh your recollection.

(Exhibit 193, Fax, marked for identification.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Looking at Exhibit No. 193, sir, it's a fax from Richard Easton at the Skadden Arps Law Firm, and if you look at the last two pages, the memo that apparently goes with it from Mr. Easton to the attached distribution list about the S-4, if you look at the distribution list you are the individual as the sole distrubtee at Morgan Stanley.
Now, does that refresh your recollection of what you might have done on this deal?
A. No, it does not.
Q. And looking at Mr. Easton's memo that he had received a telephone call from Anita Karu, K-A-R-U, of the SEC staff who was assigned to review the S-4, she indicated that she intended to give it and Sunbeam's 1997 form a full review. Do you remember that?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Please put Exhibit No. 193 aside.

A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Looking at the S-4 itself, if you turn to Page 15 of the document.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. Beginning on Page 15, and going for a couple of pages, there is a description of results for the first quarter, and then it incorporates a Press Release that had been issued on May 11th.
Did you have anything to do with that press release on May 11th?
A. I don't recall having anything to do with the press release.
Q. Okay.
If you turn to the section on Page 32, there is a description about the background of the merger. We talked about that, and I'm not going to ask you about that in detail, but my question is, did you have any involvement in drafting or revising this section entitled "Background of the Merger"?
A. I don't recall having any input in drafting this.
Q. Do you remember any discussions about this or where the information that is found in here came from?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Okay, if you look on Page 34 there is a description of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

GI 18054

Page 166

Coleman's reasons for the Coleman merger and approval by the Coleman Board, and you will see it goes on for several pages, and on Page 36 there is a reference to a Credit Suites First Boston Opinion.
A. Okay.
Q. Did you ever review the Credit Suites First Boston Opinion?
A. I don't recall having ever reviewed it.
Q. You don't remember looking at that and reviewing it before or after it was issued?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Now, if you turn to Page 42 of the document, down at the bottom of the page, the last line, and it carries over on to the next page, it refers to the opinion of the financial advisor of Sunbeam, and that is Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in the second paragraph it recites that Morgan Stanley -- excuse me, on February 27th, 1998 Morgan Stanley rendered to the Sunbeam Board an oral opinion which was later confirmed in writing, and it continues.
That is a reference to the Fairness Opinion, correct?

Page 167

A. Yes.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection any as to whether there was actually a written opinion -- fairness opinion?
A. No, it does not.
Q. Is it customary for the fairness opinion to be first delivered orally, and then later to be confirmed in writing, or are they usually oral and written at the same time?
A. I don't know whether it's customary or not.
Q. In your employment at Morgan Stanley did you see any other instance where the fairness opinion was delivered orally before it was delivered in writing?
A. I don't recall when this is typically delivered. I don't recall another instance where we did that, but I don't know -- on the other instances that I delivered a Fairness Opinion, I don't recall when they were delivered.
Q. I understand.
I believe you testified earlier today that you had reviewed a spread sheet describing the fees that Morgan Stanley received in connection with this engagement?
Maybe I'm misremembering your testimony.

Page 168

In connection with your preparation, sir, you looked at some information about fees?
A. I have.
Q. As you sit here do you remember what the total fees that Morgan Stanley received in this transaction were?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A. Actually received?
Q. Yes.
A. I don't know the amount of fees that were actually received by Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do you have a recollection of the amount of fees that Morgan Stanley was to receive in connection with this engagement?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I do have a recollection of estimates that were created on the total amount of fees.
Q. And what was that amount, sir?
A. I recall it being approximately 55 million.
Q. 55 million?
A. Yes -- I'm sorry, I'm talking about all the transactions combined when I say "55 million."
Q. Okay.
Do you have a recollection of what percentage of that was attributed to the financing?

Page 169

A. My recollection is that the M&A piece was somewhere in the neighborhood of 15 million, and the remaining piece would have, I suppose, been some form of financing.
Q. And the 15 million is the M&A for all three transactions?
A. All three transactions.
Q. Was there to be an additional fee for doing the second stage of the transaction, that is the takeout of the public shares?
A. I'm not sure how that was -- my recollection is that the fee would have been based on the total value of the transaction, and I'm not sure whether we were to receive the fee in two stages or one.
Q. Okay, if you turn to Page 51 of this document --
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. -- there is a reference to certain fees and expenses that will be incurred in connection with the Coleman merger, and there is a reference to a $15 million financial advisory fee.
Is that the same amount that you recall being associated with the merger?
A. I had recalled that all three transactions were -- would have been a total of 15 million, but that was an estimate, so I can believe this (indicating).

Q. Okay.
Having, you know, flipped as we did briefly through this document, does that refresh your recollection as to any work you did in connection with the S-4?
A. No, it does not.
Q. Do you know if any lawyers for Morgan Stanley were involved in the S-4?
A. I don't know of any lawyers being involved.
Q. When going through the S-4, sir, I showed you some sections that involved the work that Morgan Stanley did, and we referred to the Fairness Opinion.
Do you remember revising or drafting that section in any way?
A. In the S-4?
Q. Yes.
A. I do not.
MR. BRODY: Can we mark this as the next exhibit, Exhibit No. 194.

(Exhibit 194, Draft Section, marked for identification.)

Page 171

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber, I have given you what has been marked as Exhibit No. 194, and it appears to be a draft, or a section that may have been intended to go in the S-4, and it's also preceded by some Metadata that identifies the document, and it's a Tommy Hill opinion, and it shows that it was last saved by you, and that you were the author.
It refers to the -- the third page of the exhibit, second paragraph, refers to the Fairness Opinion, the Oral Fairness Opinion that we had seen referenced to in the S-4.
Having looked at this document, and the accompanying Metadata, does that refresh your recollection that in fact you did draft something about the fairness agreement?
A. I do recall -- I recall looking at a Tommy Hilfiger -- Tommy Hilfiger transaction as a way to -- as a format to help me draft something. I don't remember if it was for the S-4 or not.
Q. Okay, and if you look at the third page -- excuse me, the second page of this text where the reference begins "Comparable Company Analysis."
A. Yes.

Page 172

Q. The paragraph that follows describes a clothing company, not Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So if you were in the process of revising this, that part hadn't been revised; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now having seen that, and made that connection, does that refresh your recollection any about work that you may have done on the S-4, particularly the description of the work done by Morgan Stanley?
A. It does refresh my recollection that I did alter the Tommy Hilfiger wording -- or I did use the Tommy Hilfiger document as a guideline to create another document.
I don't recall what I was creating. I don't recall that it was the S-4.
Q. Okay.
You indicated that you continue to work on Sunbeam matters until, I believe, June or July of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. What caused you to cease working on them?
A. I don't recall the specific circumstances that led to me stopping work, however, with the change of management at Sunbeam I think it -- I don't want to speculate, but -- so I don't recall why I stopped working.

Q. Well, did it -- were you at one point asked to stop working?
Was Morgan Stanley asked to stop working?
A. I don't recall.
MS. BROWN: Objection, compound, foundation.
A. I don't recall that happening.
Q. Do you recall how it was you came to be working on it one day and then stopped working on it thereafter?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Okay, do you know if Morgan Stanley was ever criticized by the work it had done on this matter by Sunbeam?
A. On which matter?
Q. On the Coleman acquisition.
A. I don't recall that.
Q. That was never expressed to you if it was?
A. No.
Q. Now we have talked some about the estimates of synergies. Do you remember any work done by anyone at Morgan Stanley to estimate or calculate the synergies that would result from a combination of Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.

A. No, I don't.
Q. I show you one more document that relates to that, sir.

(Exhibit 195, Agenda, marked for identification.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Before I present the document to you, sir, do you remember participating in a meeting of analysts about Sunbeam in the second quarter of 1998?
A. I remember being in a presentation that was done to analysts. I don't recall when it was.
Q. Do you remember where that was?
A. I remember being in what I believe was a hotel in Manhattan.
Q. Do you know if that presentation took place after the Coleman transaction closed?
A. I don't know whether it was after it closed, but I do recall being after it was announced, at least.
Q. Was Mr. Dunlap in attendance?
A. I remember Russ Kersh presenting. I don't recall

Page 175

Mr. Dunlap specifically being there.
Q. Do you remember any questions or discussion that took place at the analysts' meeting?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember any arguments that took place between people from Sunbeam and analysts?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. What do you remember?
A. I recall Mr. Dunlap becoming agitated at a person in the audiance.
Q. What do you remember?
A. I don't remember what -- I don't remember what was said, or what Mr. Dunlap was upset about, but I do remember him raising his voice to that person.
Q. Was it in a public gathering in front of others?
A. It was in front of others, yes.
Q. Do you know the name of the analyst?
A. I'm not sure it was an analyst.
Q. The person?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know an individual by the name of Andrew Shore?
A. No.
Q. What do you remember about this conversation between Mr. Dunlap and the member of the audiance, other than

Page 176

Mr. Dunlap raised his voice?
A. All I recall is that the person -- I believe what occurred is the person asked Mr. Dunlap a question in the formal presentation, and then was confronted by Mr. Dunlap after the presentation.
Q. Do you -- did you witness the confrontation?
A. I believe I did.
Q. What did you see?
A. Mr. Dunlap raising his voice at the person.
Q. Do you remember what he said?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember what the person said back?
A. No.
Q. Okay, now I'm going to show you what we have marked as Exhibit No. 195.
A. (Witness complying.)
Q. I'm going to ask you to look at the first couple of pages, the introduction of the individuals, and the agenda, and ask you if that appears to be presentation materials from a meeting that you attended.
A. I don't recall this presentation.
Q. Fair enough.
If you turn to page -- I'll use the Morgan Stanley number at the very bottom, 3546.

Page 177

A. (Witness complying.)
Oh, that one?
Q. I'm sorry about that, there are too many numbers in these documents.
A. Okay.
Q. Do you see there is an estimate of synergies, original estimate, and then an actual estimate, or an actual?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any understanding of what those numbers mean, or where they came from?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember any discussion within Morgan Stanley about those numbers or any other synergy numbers?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. No, I don't.
Q. If you turn to Page 3549, something entitled "Sources Of Growth."
They are additional estimates of synergies -- do you have any understanding as to where those came from?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know if you saw these presentation slides before they were given?
A. I don't recall seeing them before.

Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley did?
A. I don't know that anyone did.
Q. Do you remember who else from Morgan Stanley was at the presentation where Mr. Dunlap and the member of the audiance got into their little argument?
A. No, I do not.

(Exhibit 196, Documentation, marked for identification.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Mr. Webber, I am giving you what has been marked as Exhibit No. 196.
At our last break I exhibited this to your counsel, and we have a Court Order about what we can show to people, and what we can't show to people, and she had no objection to me showing this to you.
Have you ever seen these two pages that we have marked as Exhibit No. 196 before?
A. I believe I authored them.
Q. And you authored them back in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. At the top it refers to you as a Vice President.
A. Yes.

Page 179

Q. In 1998 you were not a Vice President?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Do you remember seeing that form come back with you as a Vice President on it?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any understanding how that mistake was made?
A. Are we sure that -- when I left the firm I was a Vice President. Are we sure that when this was printed it did not just insert my current title?
Q. I don't know. It was printed within the last few of months.
A. I don't know how it happened.
Q. Okay. Fair enough.
In your preparation session yesterday did you review this document?
MS. BROWN: Objection, I instruct you not to answer.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. In your preparation session yesterday did you review pages of your Performance Evaluation from 1998, other than this?
MS. BROWN: Same instruction.
BY MR. BRODY:

Page 180

Q. Sir, in your preparation sessions yesterday, did you review performance evaluation pages that refresh your recollection about work that you had done or things that you had written in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, did those documents that you reviewed that refreshed your recollection include these two pages?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, did they include documents other than these two pages?
A. Did I review any other documents yesterday that refreshed my memory?
Q. That were documents in connection with your performance that refreshed your recollection.
A. Oh, I don't recall anything yesterday that -- regarding my performance -- any documents on my performance evaluation that sparked any memories, other than these pages (indicating).
Q. Do you recall -- this is a "yes" or "no" answer, I don't think it can be objected to.
Do you recall whether you looked at portions of your performance evaluation other than these two pages?
MS. BROWN: Yes, I can. Objection, instructed not to answer.

Page 181

MR. BRODY: I'm asking if he recalls, not if he did or not. Either he recalls or he doesn't. If he doesn't recall, well, then I'm done.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Do you understand the distinction I'm making?
A. You're asking if I recall looking at something yesterday?
Q. Looking at pages of your performance evaluation other than these two pages.
MS. BROWN: No.
MR. BRODY: Are you instructing him?
MS. BROWN: Yes.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Are you going to follow your counsel's instruction?
A. Yes.
Q. In this document, sir, the first entry refers to how did you enhance the firm's franchise, Item No. 3, Sunbeam. Would you read that into the record.
A. "It's hard to make an argument that Sunbeam has enhanced the firms franchise, in fact I will not even try. However, having spent 80 percent of my time for three or four months, I think I deserve some credit."
Q. Okay, what did you mean by that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018058

Page 182

A. I believe what I meant was that Morgan Stanley lost a lot of money as a result of the Sunbeam transaction through the Sunbeam's bankruptcy, and so my opinion was that the transaction did not enhance the firm's franchise because it lost money.
Q. Now, in 1998 Sunbeam was still several years from bankruptcy, right?
A. Maybe it was not bankruptcy, but it had become clear, I believe, at the time, that Morgan Stanley's capital was at risk, and I believe it was well known or -- well, it was believed throughout Morgan Stanley that our money was at risk as a result of the Sunbeam transaction.
Q. At the time at Morgan Stanley did you think that Morgan Stanley was going to lose money on its bank loan?
A. At the time that I wrote this I believe that I thought there was a risk that Morgan Stanley was going to lose money in the bank, yes.
Q. Well, there is always a risk a bank is going to lose money on a loan. Did you think it was anything more than the typical credit risk in association with lending money?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

Page 183

A. I believe I had the timing right in that it had become clear by the time I had written this that Sunbeam looked like it was in trouble, and -- and as a result of Sunbeam being in trouble, I was concerned that Morgan Stanley might lose the money that it had invested.
Q. Do you remember when you wrote this?
A. It would have been, I believe, October of 1998.
Q. Okay, the evaluation cycle called for that to be done in the fall?
A. Yes.
Q. Looking back, do you think there is anything that Morgan Stanley could have done differently to achieve a more positive result on its franchise?
MS. BROWN: Objection, form.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. "Morgan Stanley's franchise," the words that you used.
A. At the time -- well, obviously knowing what has happened, now, had we not taken on this assignment we would have been better off.
However, at the time I don't know of anything that Morgan Stanley should have done differently based on current information that was available to them at the time.

Page 184

Q. In the portion you just read, you said, having spent the time you did on the deal, "I think I deserve some credit."
Do you think you got some credit?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't know.
Q. Is your compensation determined in part by these evaluations?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you receive a bonus after this evaluation?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that bonus as a percentage of your income -- percentage of your base income?
A. It was more than double my base income.
Q. So if your base income was X, your bonus is more than 2X?
A. No, it was slightly less than 2X, if I recall.
Q. Okay.
Do you recall what your compensation was, what your bonus was?
A. In the first year -- in that year I believe my salary was $75,000, and my total compensation was $210,000.
Q. Within the realm of Morgan Stanley, was that a good bonus, or did it reflect that you were not being given credit for work that you had done?

MS. BROWN: Objection, form, foundation.
A. If I -- I believe that as a first-year associate, which I was at that time, virtually all investment banking first-year associates received the same bonus, which I received, and I don't believe there are any higher than that. There were a few that were lower.
Q. Okay, that answered my question, thank you.
On the next page of the document, in the big paragraph at the beginning, right in the middle it says, "two deals in particular, the Sunbeam acquisitions and the Tracor acquisition required a significant amount of fairly complicated, quantitative work. I was very successful in working with the analysts to produce accurate work that helped to provide insight, and eventually lead to successful transactions." Did I read that correctly?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you mean by that?
A. I think I was trying to communicate that I had strong quantitative skills and I used them in my job successfully.
Q. What do you mean by "successful transactions"?
A. Completed transactions.

Q. In -- this is the performance evaluation for 1998. Did you also receive a performance evaluation for 1999 or 2000?
A. Yes.
Q. Did those performance evaluations make any reference to Sunbeam, or the work you had done on Sunbeam?
A. I don't -- I didn't see them, but I doubt that they would.
Q. Okay, let's go off the record for a second.

(Brief break.)

BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Subject to potential rulings on the instructions, and any later produced documents, I have no further questions. I thank you for your cooperation and patients, Mr. Webber.
A. Thank you.

CROSS EXAMINATION BY MS. BROWN:

Q. I have just a couple of quick questions. You testified -- I believe you said that you didn't get on the Sunbeam-Coleman deal until January,

Page 187

February of 1998; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. As you sit here today do you know what due diligence had been done by the M&A team prior to your getting on to the deal?
A. No, I do not.
Q. And were you involved in the due diligence on the underwriting side of the bank financing side?
A. No, I was not.
Q. So in the testimony you recall that there was a number of questions by Mr. Brody concerning the due diligence by Morgan Stanley on the Coleman acquisitions?
A. Yes.
Q. Your testimony was limited to your personal knowledge and involvement?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you testified, for instance, that you weren't aware of anyone from Morgan Stanley talking to customers, was it your understanding that that did not occur, or are you -- or could you clarify your testimony?
MR. BRODY: Objection. Leading.
A. I don't know whether that occurred or not. I know that I didn't do it.

Page 188

It may have occurred. I'm not familiar with the due diligence that occurred.
Q. When you say you're not familiar with the due diligence that occurred, are you referring both to due diligence prior to your involvement and on the underwriting side?
MR. BRODY: Objection, same.
A. That's correct, I'm not familiar with the due diligence that occurred prior to me being placed on the deal team, and I'm also not familiar with the due diligence that occurred on the underwriting side.
Q. When you testified that you weren't aware of whether anyone contacted Sunbeam's customers, are you aware one way or the other whether or not that happened?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: Objection. Leading.
BY MS. BROWN:
Q. When you testified that -- with regard to any of the due diligence, other than your own personal involvement, are you aware one way or the other whether that due diligence occurred?
A. I don't specifically know which -- what due diligence was done by Morgan Stanley if I was not involved in it.

Page 189

MS. BROWN: No further questions.
MR. BRODY: I have a couple.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION BY MR. BRODY:

Q. In the course of the work that you did in this transaction, did you ever look at a file that reflected the due diligence done by others?
A. I don't recall looking at a file.
Q. Do you know if there was one?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.
A. I don't know if -- I don't know that there was a file.
Q. And in response to some prior questions you referred to the fact that there were occasionally team meetings or meetings of people that worked on the team.
In connection with any of those team meetings, did anyone ever say that they had done or going to do any due diligence or other factual investigation about the first quarter of '98?
A. I don't recall the specifics of those team meetings, but I don't recall whether that topic was discussed at these team meetings or not.
Q. You don't remember anyone ever raising that topic?
MS. BROWN: Objection, asked and answered.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. No, I don't.

MR. BRODY: Thank you, I have nothing further.

MS. BROWN: We have a standing order.

Company Description: Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE: SOC) designs, manufactures, and markets consumer products. The Company had 1997 sales of $1.1 billion and net income of $123 million. SOC's products are primarily sold through mass merchants and other distributors in the United States and internationally. Key product categories include Appliances (25% of sales); Health and Home (8.3% of sales); Personal Care and Comfort (15% of sales); Outdoor Cooking (23% of sales and Away from Home (4.3% of sales). Wal-Mart (NYSE: WMT) is SOC's largest customer, accounting for about 19% of sales. During 1996, the Company installed a new management team led by Al Dunlap as Chairman. Also in 1996, the Company completed a restructuring and growth plan that should lead to annual cost savings on the order of $225 million.

Investment Highlights

- Company pre-announces sales shortfall for first quarter. Today the Company indicated that its sales for 1Q 1998 may be below "Street" estimates of $285 million to $295 million, but would be higher than last year's $253 million. SOC indicated that any shortfall would be due to changes in retail customers' buying patterns including increased inventory management. While we do not yet know the products that have been impacted, retail customers may have sharply drawn down inventories of electric blankets, due to warmer-than-expected weather. The Company expressed confidence in its full year revenue outlook due to new product launches and confidence in its brand strength. In reaction to today's announcement, we have cut our 1Q sales assumption to $259 million from $290 million, and we have reduced our EPS estimate by $0.04 to $0.28. We are maintaining our $2.00 EPS estimate for the full year for several reasons. First, our $2.00 estimate was back-weighted towards the second half. Secondly, we expect new products to boost sales, along with increased distribution strength from the Coleman (NYSE: CLN) acquisition. The Company should benefit from increased sourcing of its manufacturing in lower-cost Asia/Pacific countries. Furthermore, SOC should realize cost synergies from an increased focus on outsourcing, with a year-end goal of 50% outsourced product versus 30% at the end of 1997.
- Focus on the big picture. We believe it makes sense to look beyond the first quarter's likely earnings disappointment and focus on value-creation through pending acquisitions of CLN, Signature Brands (NASDAQ: SIGB) and First Alert (NASDAQ: ALRT). Post-transactions, SOC should post 1999 revenues on the order of $4.1 billion, versus $2.1 billion in 1997. SOC should achieve at least $150 million in cost-savings in the acquired companies. Additionally, the acquired companies should be platforms for international growth. SOC has a weak presence in Asia/Pacific and Europe, although its Oster brand has strong recognition in Latin America. Combining forces with CLN should provide SOC with a platform for distribution in Europe and Asia. Our 1999 EPS estimate does not include any further acquisitions, although we expect Al Dunlap to pursue additional accretive acquisitions.
- We recommend buying on weakness. After today's announcement, SOC shares hit an intra-day low of $45 3/4, a drop of 8.6% from yesterday's close. That level implied a valuation of just 16X our 1999 EPS estimate. In our view, SOC shares still warrant a 25X multiple of our 1999 EPS estimate of $2.80, a sharp discount to its growth rate. We expect the Company's shares to recover from recent weakness and we believe they can reach $70 over the next 12 months. We reiterate our Strong Buy rating.

DENISE COTE, District Judge:

This Opinion addresses issues related to an underwriter's due diligence obligations. Following the conclusion of fact discovery, several of the parties in this consolidated securities class action arising from the collapse of WorldCom, Inc. ("WorldCom") have filed for summary judgment. This Opinion resolves the motions for summary judgment filed by Lead Plaintiff for the class, who seeks a declaration that certain of the WorldCom financials incorporated in the registration statements for two WorldCom bond offerings contained material misstatements; and by the underwriters for those same bond offerings, who seek a declaration that they have no liability for any false statements in the WorldCom financials that accompanied the registration statements or for the alleged omissions from those registration statements.

It is undisputed that at least as of early 2001 WorldCom executives engaged in a secretive scheme to manipulate WorldCom's public filings concerning WorldCom's financial condition. Because those public filings were incorporated into the registration statements for the two bond offerings, the underwriters are liable for those false statements unless they can show that they were sufficiently diligent in their investigation of WorldCom in connection with the bond offerings. Through these motions, the Lead Plaintiff emphasizes that the underwriters did almost no investigation of WorldCom in connection with their underwriting of the bond offerings for the company, and because they did essentially no investigation, will be unable to succeed with their defense that they were diligent. The Lead Plaintiff contends moreover that there were "red flags" that should have led the underwriters to question even the audited financials filed by WorldCom.

018069

For their part, the underwriters emphasize that WorldCom management concealed the fraud from almost everyone within WorldCom, from WorldCom's outside auditor, and from the underwriters themselves. They assert that they were entitled to rely on WorldCom's audited financial statements as accurately describing the company's financial condition, and also on the comfort letters that WorldCom's outside auditor provided for the unaudited financial statements. While they have not moved for summary judgment on the adequacy of their due diligence efforts per se, they do argue that those efforts should not be measured solely by the work that they undertook in connection with the bond offerings themselves, but should be assessed against a background of their long term familiarity and work with the company. They also argue that much of the information that was allegedly omitted from the bond registration statements was already known to the public.

For the following reasons, the Lead Plaintiff's motion is granted in part. The underwriters' motion is also granted in part.

Background

These summary judgment motions require, in varying amounts of detail, an understanding of the industry in which WorldCom operated, some of the accounting issues that affected the reliability of the WorldCom financial statements, and the due diligence work performed by the underwriters in connection with the two bond offerings. The facts recited here are either undisputed or as shown by the party resisting summary judgment, unless otherwise identified. A brief description of the history of this litigation and the context for the summary judgment motions precedes the factual recitation.

Procedural History

WorldCom announced a massive restatement of its financials on June 25, 2002. It reported its intention to restate its financial statements for 2001 and the first quarter of 2002. According to that announcement, "[a]s a result of an internal audit of the company's capital expenditure accounting, it was determined that certain transfers from line cost expenses[1] to capital accounts during this period were not made in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP)." The amount of transfers was then estimated to be over $3.8 billion. Without the improper transfers, the company estimated that it would have reported a net loss for 2001 and the first quarter of 2002. On July 21, it filed for bankruptcy. A restatement of WorldCom's financials was issued in 2004 in connection with WorldCom's emergence from bankruptcy. WorldCom restated its financial information for the years ending 2000 and 2001. The restatement included approximately $76 billion in adjustments, which reduced WorldCom's net equity from approximately $50 billion to approximately minus $20 billion.

Securities litigation addressing the accuracy of WorldCom's financial statements commenced in the Spring of 2002. Those class actions filed in this district were consolidated on August 15, 2002. The Judicial Panel on Multi-District Litigation ("MDL Panel") transferred the securities litigation pending in federal courts to this district and all of the actions, both individual ("Individual Actions") and class actions, were consolidated for pre-trial purposes on December 23, 2002. In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 02 Civ. 3288 (DLC), 2002 WL 31867720 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 23, 2002). This litigation is referred to as the Securities Litigation.[2]

[2] The MDL Panel also transferred all litigation concerning WorldCom raising issues under the Employment Retirement Income Security Act, 29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq., to this district. It has been consolidated and is referred to as the ERISA Litigation.

The consolidated class action complaint in the Securities Litigation was filed on October 11, 2003, and the first wave of motions to dismiss that pleading were resolved in an Opinion of May 19, 2003. In re WorldCom, Inc. Sec. Litig., 294 F. Supp. 2d 392 (S.D.N.Y. 2003). Fact discovery in the Securities Litigation concluded on July 9, 2004.[3] Before its conclusion, Citigroup, Inc., Citigroup Global Markets Inc. f/k/a/ Salomon Smith Barney Inc. ("SSB"), Citigroup Global Markets Limited f/k/a/ Salomon Brothers International Limited, and Jack B. Grubman ("Grubman") (collectively "Citigroup Defendants") settled the class action lawsuit. A fairness hearing on the $2.575 billion settlement was held on November 5, 2004, and the settlement was approved. In re WorldCom Sec. Litig., No. 02 Civ. 3288 (DLC), 2004 WL 2591402 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 12, 2004).

SSB had functioned was the co-lead underwriter for the two bond offerings issued by WorldCom that are at issue in the class action: one in May 2000 ("2000 Offering") and one in May 2001 ("2001 Offering"). Grubman, an SSB employeé, was the leading telecommunications analyst covering WorldCom and it is alleged that he had issued reports urging investors to purchase WorldCom securities when he knew that WorldCom's financial statements did not accurately disclose information that was material to investors. The plaintiffs asserted that SSB's desire to obtain WorldCom's investment banking business caused it to issue misleading analyst reports that urged investors to purchase WorldCom securities. The class action complaint alleged that the Citigroup Defendants violated not just the strict liability statutes governing securities offerings, but also the securities statutes that forbid fraud, including Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 ("Section 10(b)" and "Exchange Act").

The defendants in the class action, as named in a Corrected First Amended Class Action Complaint of December 1, 2003, include former WorldCom executives Bernard J. Ebbers ("Ebbers"), WorldCom's CEO, and Scott Sullivan ("Sullivan"), WorldCom's CFO; members of WorldCom's Board of Directors ("Director Defendants"), investment banks that underwrote the 2000 and 2001 Offerings,[4] and Arthur Andersen LLP ("Andersen"), WorldCom's former auditor. The plaintiffs allege that the Underwriter Defendants violated

[4] The underwriters consist of Salomon Smith Barney, Inc., now d/b/a/ Citigroup Global Markets Inc. and Salomon Brothers International Limited (collectively "SSB"); J.P. Morgan Chase & Co., J. P. Morgan Securities, Ltd., & J.P. Morgan Securities, Inc. (collectively "J.P. Morgan"); Banc of America Securities LLC; Chase Securities Inc.; Lehman Brothers Inc., Blaylock & Partners, L.P.; Credit Suisse First Boston Corp.; Deutsche Bank Alex. Some of the Underwriter Defendants participated in only one of the two Offerings. For purposes of this Opinion, it is unnecessary to distinguish among them. As used in this Opinion, the term "Underwriter Defendants" refers to all underwriters except for SSB.

Sections 11 and 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act of 1933 ("Section 11", "Section 12(a)(2)", and "Securities Act"), 15 U.S.C. § 77k and § 77*l*, and that Andersen violated Section 11 of the Securities Act and Section 10b of the Exchange Act.

On August 20, 2004, summary judgment motions were filed by parties to the class action. The trial is scheduled to begin on February 28, 2005.

The Lead Plaintiff has moved for partial summary judgment, and the Underwriter Defendants have moved for complete summary judgment.[5] The Lead Plaintiff moves for summary judgment on its Sections 11 and 12(a)(2) claims with respect to certain statements in WorldCom's financial filings that the Lead Plaintiff contends are indisputably false and material. WorldCom's financial filings were incorporated into the registration statements for the 2000 and 2001 Offerings. The allegedly false statements on which the Lead Plaintiff's motion is based relate to the reporting of WorldCom's line costs, capital expenditures, depreciation and amortization, assets, and goodwill.

[5] With one exception, all of the material misstatements in the 2000 and 2001 offerings outlined by Lead Plaintiff in its responses to the Underwriter Defendants' second set of interrogatories are grounded in WorldCom's financial statements. The sole exception relates to statements in the May 2001 Registration Statement as to how proceeds from the offering would be used. This alleged misstatement is similar to an alleged omission in the registration statement, and the Underwriter Defendants have presented arguments in their briefs that address either characterization.

The Underwriter Defendants move for summary judgment on the Sections 11 and 12(a)(2) claims against them with the argument that it is undisputed that they conducted reasonable due diligence with respect to the WorldCom financial statements that were incorporated into the registration statements for the 2000 and 2001 Offerings. They argue in particular that they were entitled to rely on WorldCom's audited financial statements and had no duty to investigate their reliability unless they had reasonable grounds to believe that they were not accurate, and that they were also entitled to rely on the "comfort letters" from WorldCom's auditor for the interim unaudited WorldCom financial statements. With respect to the alleged material omissions that are also a basis for those same Securities Act claims, the Underwriter Defendants contend that none of the omissions are actionable, for instance, because the information was already publicly disclosed or was not material.

The parties have made extensive submissions in connection with these competing motions. Because of the analysis which follows, it is only essential to set forth a small portion of the factual material presented through these motions. The essential facts as shown through the evidence presented with these motions include the following.

WorldCom and its Role in the Telecommunications Industry

Ebbers founded a long-distance telephone service provider in 1983 in Mississippi. His company grew by purchasing other small long-distance companies throughout the late 1980s and early 1990s. The company went public in 1989, and by 1993 it was the fourth largest long-distance carrier in the United States. It took the name WorldCom in 1995.

Congress enacted the Telecommunications Act in 1996, 47 U.S.C. § 251 et seq., which encouraged competition in local and long-distance telephone services. At this same time, the Internet was expanding rapidly and there was a demand for increased bandwidth.[6] To meet that demand and in response to the intense competition, telecommunications companies made substantial capital investments in fiber optic networks and telecommunications infrastructure.

Between 1996 and 1999, WorldCom completed several major acquisitions that helped diversify or enlarge its business. Through a merger with MFS Communications, Inc., WorldCom acquired UUNET Technologies Inc., which was the world's largest Internet service provider and which had a substantial fiber optic cable network. It acquired CompuServe Corporation and ANS Communications Inc., which gave WorldCom a large Internet dial-up [6] Bandwidth is used to mean the rate of data transmission and refers to the maximum amount of information that can be sent along a particular communications circuit per second.

communications network. The acquisition of SkyTel Communications, Inc. gave WorldCom an expertise in the wireless business. In 1998, WorldCom acquired MCI Communications ("MCI"), a company whose revenues were more than two and half times greater than WorldCom's. With that acquisition WorldCom became the second largest telecommunications company in the world. Its share price, which had been approximately $8 per share in 1994, increased to $48 per share by September 1999.

As noted, by the late 1990s, the telecommunications industry was growing increasingly competitive. Regional companies were entering the long-distance market, long-distance carriers were entering the local call market, and many companies were seeking to provide Internet services. Some analysts expressed concerns about WorldCom's weakness in wireless technologies and the increased competition it faced in the long-distance telephone service market, where competition was driving prices down.

On October 5, 1999, WorldCom announced that it had agreed to merge with Sprint in a transaction valued at $129 billion. With this acquisition, WorldCom would get Sprint's wireless business and address some of the concerns expressed about its competitive posture in the telecommunications market. The market initially reacted enthusiastically to the announcement, but as time passed WorldCom's share price fell dramatically. On May 18, 2000, attorneys in the Antitrust Division of the United States Department of Justice formally recommended to their division chief that the merger be blocked. On July 13, WorldCom announced that it was terminating its merger agreement with Sprint. By the end of August 2000, WorldCom's stock was trading in the low $30s.

On September 5, 2000, WorldCom announced that it had entered into a $6 billion merger agreement with Intermedia. Intermedia had a local exchange carrier business and owned a web hosting business, Digex. WorldCom hoped to sell the local carrier business and to take advantage of the Digex Internet business. With the acquisition of Intermedia, WorldCom assumed massive debt obligations. WorldCom paid approximately $250 million a quarter to fund Intermedia's business and approximately $300 million a year to support Digex's capital expenditure needs. WorldCom was unable to find a buyer for the Intermedia local carrier business.

On November 1, 2000, WorldCom announced that its revenues for 2001 would not be as high as previously estimated. WorldCom indicated it was issuing "new financial guidance due to continuing competitive pressures in the telecommunications industry, increased spending to support the Company's growth initiatives and other economic factors."

Ebbers' Dependence on WorldCom Stock

Ebbers' personal finances were dependent on the rise and fall of WorldCom's stock price. The majority of his wealth was concentrated in his holdings of WorldCom stock. He pledged essentially all of his WorldCom stock to secure loans that he used to acquire other businesses and to fund their operations. Most of his personal debt was held by affiliates of Citibank and Bank of America.

As described above, WorldCom's stock price fell during 2000. By the Fall of 2000, Ebbers began receiving substantial margin calls from Bank of America's private bank. Because Ebbers had already pledged all of his holdings to secure his personal debt, he was unable to pledge any additional stock. On September 6, WorldCom agreed to extend Ebbers a $50 million loan to cover the margin calls. Within a few weeks, Ebbers faced additional margin calls. When WorldCom refused a request for an additional loan, Ebbers entered into a forward sale of three million WorldCom shares to raise $70 million. The sale was reported by the media on October 4, and WorldCom's stock price dropped nearly 8%, to $24.93.

In early October 2000, Citibank issued margin calls to Ebbers. Its affiliate SSB had a significant investment banking relationship with WorldCom, and SSB agreed to guarantee payment of Ebbers' personal debt to Citibank.[7]

[7] A November 21, 2000 SSB memorandum explains that the SSB private banking group held approximately $50 million of margin loans to Ebbers and certain of his companies which were secured by WorldCom stock. At the then current price of WorldCom stock, this gave Citigroup an unsecured exposure of $5 million. The memorandum explained, "[o]n the strength of the corporate finance relationship between SSB and [WorldCom], SSB effectively guaranteed the Private Bank's exposure, and has elected not to enforce the margin call provisions or the demand feature of our loan documents. We are, however, in the process of taking liens

On October 27, WorldCom agreed to loan Ebbers an additional $25 million and to guarantee an additional $75 million of Ebbers' debt to Bank of America, staving off additional margin calls. In mid-November, the guarantee was increased to $100 million. By the end of 2000, WorldCom had extended a total of $200 million in loans and guarantees to Ebbers. The loans increased to over $250 million by May 2001.

On April 11, 2001, Ebbers met with the private banking arm of J.P. Morgan and requested a loan of $40 million to refinance $20 million of his debt to Bank of America relating to his investment in a yacht building business, and to invest another $20 million in building additional yachts. The investment bankers encouraged their bank to accommodate Ebbers, and in June, J.P. Morgan gave Ebbers a personal line of credit of $20 million. An April 26 memorandum analyzing Ebbers' personal financial situation noted that "Ebbers has used his wealth in WCOM to fund his investments," principally in a yacht building business, timber, motels, a trucking company and the largest working ranch in North America. The memorandum continued,

> Unusual for a CEO of this type, he has virtually no other marketable securities. . . . To finance these private investments, Ebbers has accumulated substantial margin loans against his WCOM shares. Last fall, when the share price of WCOM declined substantially, his largest lender, Bank of America, issued some well-publicized margin calls. In order to forestall a sale > of the Chairman's shares and risk further downward pressure on the share price[,] WCOM stepped in and replaced Bank of America as lender on $75 million and provided an additional guaranty on the remaining $186 million loans outstanding. . . . While Bank of America seems comfortable for the moment, the current margin structure of his debt and the illiquid nature of his other assets provides little room for movement in the WCOM share price.

(Emphasis supplied.) The memorandum added that Ebbers had a "highly leveraged balance sheet with $315 million in debt structured as margin loans against his [WorldCom] shares. 80% leverage against WCOM shares."

WorldCom's Accounting Strategies

WorldCom's single largest operating expense was its line costs. This item accounted for roughly half of its expenses and was so material that it was reported as a separate line item on its financial statements. WorldCom's ratio of line cost expense to its revenue was called the E/R ratio, was used as a measurement of its performance, and was also publicly reported in its SEC filings. The lower the ratio, the better the performance.

The parties dispute the extent to which WorldCom's financial statements were intentionally and materially false before the first quarter of 2001. They do not dispute, however, that senior management in WorldCom manipulated the public reports of WorldCom's line costs beginning in the first quarter of 2001 through shifting a portion of them to capital expenditures accounts, and that this manipulation was criminal.[8] The manipulation reduced the reported line costs and resulted in a lower E/R ratio.

018082

16div-023144

Before capitalizing the line costs in 2001, WorldCom had engaged in other strategies to reduce the apparent magnitude of its line costs. One example will suffice. During 2000, WorldCom released reserves or accruals that had been set aside to cover anticipated costs, and used them to offset line costs. These reserves had been maintained to cover additional bills that WorldCom had estimated it might receive from outside service providers.[9] By releasing these reserves, line costs appeared smaller. Prior to 2000, WorldCom had a 24-month billing reserve for invoices it had not yet received. This reserve covered its estimated exposure for a rolling 24-month period. In the first quarter of 2000, WorldCom management decided to reduce the period

---

[8] On July 9, 2004, the Underwriter Defendants refused, when responding to the Lead Plaintiff's Requests for Admission, to admit that any of WorldCom's financial disclosures contained misstatements. The Underwriter Defendants maintained this position during a telephone conference with the Court and other parties on August 18, 2004, noting that Andersen had taken an identical stance. Two days later, however, the Underwriter Defendants filed their motion for summary judgment, in which they represent that they are reviewing their responses to Lead Plaintiff's Requests for Admission "to determine the extent to which amendment of any denial is required by the fact that WorldCom improperly accounted for $771 million in line costs in the first quarter of 2001."

[9] A reserve was created when WorldCom received a bill that was smaller than the bill it had estimated it would receive. The statute of limitations on submitting a corrected bill, or "backbilling," was understood to be 24 months.

of time covered by the reserve from 24 to twelve months. WorldCom divided the impact from this change in policy between the first and second quarters of 2000: $59 million was released in the first quarter; $77 million was released in the second quarter. In the last quarter of 2000, WorldCom reduced the period from twelve months to 90 days and released $70 million in reserves in that quarter.

Unable to reduce reserves further, and still wishing to conceal the magnitude of WorldCom's expenses and artificially inflate WorldCom's reported income, senior management of WorldCom started in 2001 to capitalize WorldCom's line costs. They would review WorldCom's financial results toward the end of each quarter in order to decide how much of the line cost expenses to capitalize. The capitalization of line costs was unsupported by any contemporaneous analysis or records, and was a violation of GAAP. It is undisputed that it constituted fraud.

The capitalization fraud began on Friday, April 20, 2001, when Troy Normand, WorldCom's Director of Legal Entity Reporting in General Accounting, directed that line costs be reduced by $771 million by booking that amount of line costs in an entry labeled "prepaid capacity." Between that day and Tuesday, April 24, WorldCom personnel allocated the line costs expenses to WorldCom's two tracker stocks[10] and other business units. This

[10] On November 1, 2000, WorldCom announced a plan to separate its businesses and create two publicly traded tracking manipulation was necessary to make the E/R ratio for the first quarter of 2001 "fairly consistent" with the E/R ratio for the prior quarter.

Andersen was unaware of the manipulation of line costs through this capitalization scheme. On April 26, WorldCom issued a Form 8-K.[11] That Form 8-K falsely represented WorldCom's financial condition.

The Lead Plaintiff contends that two WorldCom documents from March and April 2001, if reviewed, would have revealed the discrepancy between WorldCom's actual financial condition and its public reports.[12] A March 20, 2001 document, which is labeled "2001 Line Cost Budget/Final Pass/Corporate Financial Planning," reveals that WorldCom internally projected line costs to be materially higher than what it was reporting for line costs in 2001. The document projects line costs for the first quarter at stocks: WorldCom, which would reflect the performance of WorldCom's "core high-growth data," Internet, hosting and international businesses; and MCI, which would reflect the performance of its high cash flow consumer, small business, wholesale long-distance voice and dial-up Internet access operations.

[11] A Form 8-K is the SEC form used for companies' current reports pursuant to Sections 13 and 15(d) of the Exchange Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 78m(a)(2), 78o(d). A Form 8-K must be filed upon the occurrence of certain significant corporate events as defined by the SEC and may be filed with respect to any other matter the company considers of material importance.

$4.65 billion. On April 26, 2001, it publicly reported in its Form 8-K first quarter line costs of only $4.1 billion, or half a billion dollars less.

The 2001 Line Cost Budget document also showed that WorldCom expected an E/R ratio of 47.6% for 2001, based on $19.2 billion of line costs on $40.3 billion of revenue. WorldCom had reported an E/R ratio of 39.6% in 2000. The document attributes the difference to several factors, including the fact that WorldCom could no longer release line cost reserves.[13] The document cryptically lists dollar values as "tasks" and computes the effect of the "task" on WorldCom's E/R ratio. For instance, a "Task of $100M improves E/R to 40.7%." Overall, the document reflects a "proposed 2001 task" in the amount of $471 million.

WorldCom's Capital Expenditure Report, prepared on a monthly and quarterly basis by its Financial Planning Department, described its capital expenditures. The March 2001 Capital Expenditure Report was distributed on April 20, 2001. It reported that WorldCom's capital expenditures (excluding software) were $1.691 billion for the first quarter. On April 26, however, WorldCom's Form 8-K publicly reported that the first quarter capital expenditures were $544 million more or $2.235 billion.[14]

The significance of the Capital Expenditure Report was self-evident. On May 1, 2002, after the March 2002 report was distributed, one co-conspirator e-mailed a colleague: "Where do I sign my confession?" Another complained, "Why did you distribute this report? I thought we were never again distributing this. . . . No need to reply but do not distribute again."

The improper capitalization of line costs continued through the first quarter of 2002. WorldCom's internal audit department had completed its last audit of WorldCom's capital expenditures in approximately January of 2002, and had not uncovered any evidence of fraud. In May of 2002, it began another audit of the company's capital expenditures. The fraudulent capitalization of line cases was uncovered as a result of a May 21 meeting between the company's internal auditors and the WorldCom director in charge of tracking capital expenditures. During that meeting the director used the term "prepaid capacity" to explain the difference between two sets of schedules that he was being shown. The auditors were unfamiliar with the term. After asking questions of several people about "prepaid capacity," Eugene Morse, a member of WorldCom's internal audit group, used a new software tool to investigate WorldCom's books and was able to uncover the transfer of line costs to capital accounts in a matter of hours.[15]

On June 17, David Myers, WorldCom's former controller, admitted to the internal audit team that there was "no support" for the prepaid capacity entries and that there was "no standard" supporting the entries. He explained that the "entries had been booked based on what they thought the margins should be." Myers told the team, "if we couldn't get the costs down that we might as well shut the doors of the business, that we can't continue." On June 20, during a meeting in which Sullivan was confronted with the fraud, Myers told internal audit that the capitalization of line costs had started in the first quarter of 2001. As of that time, the internal audit team thought that the [15] Morse testified that without that software tool and without access to the general ledger (which the internal audit department did not have), it would have taken him weeks of digging to uncover the fraud. In his opinion, someone with access to the general ledger or someone who asked those who made the questionable entries for the documentation to support the entries, could also have uncovered the fraud.

capitalization of line costs had begun in the second quarter of 2001, and was no longer trying to find out how far back the entries went.

Andersen and the 1999 Form 10-K[16]

Andersen had been the auditor for WorldCom or its predecessors for almost twenty years. It issued an unqualified or "clean" opinion for the WorldCom annual financial statements for 1997 through 2000[17] After the public disclosure of the accounting fraud, Andersen withdrew its support for the WorldCom 2001 Form 10-K, but it never withdrew its audit opinions for the 1999 or 2000 Form 10-Ks.

The WorldCom 1999 Form 10-K, for the year ending December 31, 1999, was dated March 30, 2000. It included detailed discussions of a number of the items that are central to the parties' motions for summary judgment. Its description of the business of WorldCom included the following: "MCI WorldCom [17] "An unqualified opinion, the most favorable report an auditor may give, represents the auditor's finding that the company's financial statements fairly present the financial position of the company, the results of its operations, and the changes in its financial position for the period under audit, in conformity with consistently applied generally accepted accounting principles." leverages its facilities-based networks to focus on data and the Internet. MCI WorldCom provides the building blocks or foundation for the new e-economy. . . . MCI WorldCom provides the broadest range of Internet and traditional, private networking services available from any provider." The 10-K described nine mergers since 1995. In describing the merger agreement with Sprint, it defined its strategy as an effort > to further develop as a fully integrated telecommunications company positioned to take advantage of growth opportunities in global telecommunications. Consistent with this strategy, the Company believes that transactions such as the MCI Merger, the CompuServe Merger, the AOL Transaction, the SkyTel Merger and, if consummated, the Sprint Merger, enhance the combined entity's opportunities for future growth, create a stronger competitor in the changing telecommunications industry and allow provision of end-to-end bundled services over global networks, which will provide new or enhanced capabilities for the Company's residential and business customers. In particular, the Company believes that if consummated, the Sprint Merger will enable the combined company to: (i) offer a unique broadband access alternative to both cable and traditional telephony providers in the United States through a combination of digital subscriber line ("DSL") facilities and fixed wireless access using the combined company's "wireless cable" spectrum; (ii) continue to lead the industry with innovative service offerings for consumer and business customers; and (iii) continue as an effective competitor in the wireless market in the United States.

In a section labeled "transmission facilities," the 1999 Form 10-K explains that it owns long-distance, international and multi-city local service fiber optic networks with access to additional fiber optic networks through lease agreements with other carriers. It also owns and leases trans-oceanic cable capacity. WorldCom uses what it calls "ring topology." The network backbones for this system are installed in conduits owned by WorldCom or leased from third parties. The lease arrangements "are generally executed under multi-year terms with renewal options and are non-exclusive." To serve its customers in buildings that are not located directly on the fiber network described in the Form 10-K, WorldCom leases lines from local exchange carriers and others.

018090

The 1999 Form 10-K described WorldCom's ability to generate profits as depending in part "upon its ability to optimize the different types of transmission facilities used to provide communications services." While the Company's own networks were "typically" the most effective transmission routes, "a variety of lease agreements for fixed and variable cost (usage sensitive) services" ensured "diversity and quality of service." The "rapid and significant" changes in technology were also discussed.

In describing rates and charges, the Form 10-K explained that its rates "are generally designed to be competitive." It reported that to date, "continued improvement in the domestic and international cost structures" had allowed the Company to maintain "acceptable margins."

The topics of competition and regulation were discussed at length. WorldCom represented that it expected that competition, which was already extreme, would "intensify in the future." After discussing different business competitors, the 1999 Form 10-K reported that "WorldCom may also be subject to additional competition due to the development of new technologies and increased availability of domestic and international transmission capacity." It noted that the desirability of its fiber optic network could be adversely affected by changing technology, and that it could not predict which of many future product options would be important. It noted that the Telecommunications Act of 1996 had removed barriers to competition. Once the Bell operating companies were allowed to offer long-distance services, they would be in a position "to offer single source local and long-distance service similar to that being offered" by WorldCom. It predicted that the increased competition would result in increased pricing and margin pressures. As for its data communications services, including Internet access, that was also extremely competitive. "The success of MCI WorldCom will depend heavily upon its ability to provide high quality data communications services, including Internet connectivity and value-added Internet services at competitive prices."

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

160810

In its lengthy description of the regulatory environment, the 1999 Form 10-K noted that access charges are a principal

018092

WorldCom expense. WorldCom was attempting to bring access charges down to cost-based levels.

Voice revenues for 1999 were described as having increased by 6% over the prior year because of a 10% gain in traffic. "These volume and revenue gains were offset partially by anticipated year-over-year declines in carrier wholesale traffic as well as federally mandated access charge reductions that were passed through to the consumer."

Line costs "as a percentage of revenues" for 1999 were reported to be 43% as compared to 47% for 1998. "Overall decreases are attributable to changes in the product mix and synergies and economies of scale resulting from network efficiencies achieved from the continued assimilation of MCI," and other companies into the Company's operations.

> Additionally, access charge reductions that occurred in January 1999 and July 1999 reduced total line cost expense by approximately $363 million for 1999. While access charge reductions were primarily passed through to customers, line costs as a percentage of revenues were positively affected by over half a percentage point for 1999.

The report explained that the "principal components of line costs are access charges and transport charges." It added that WorldCom's "goal is to manage transport costs through effective utilization of its network, favorable contracts with carriers and network efficiencies made possible as a result of expansion of the Company's customer base by acquisitions and internal growth."

018093

WorldCom's total debt was reported to be $18.1 billion. It had available liquidity of $8.7 billion under its credit facilities and commercial paper program and from cash. Its aggregate credit facilities were $10.75 billion.

WorldCom represented that the development of its business "will continue to require significant capital expenditures." Failure to have access to sufficient funds for capital expenditures on acceptable terms or other difficulties in managing capital expenditures "could have a material adverse effect on the success" of WorldCom.

Andersen consented to the inclusion of its March 24, 2000 audit report in the Form 10-K. In that report, Andersen represented that it had audited WorldCom's balance sheets, and statements of operations, shareholders' investment and cash flows. It reported that

> [w]e conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit . . . provide[s] a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, based on our audit . . ., the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of MCI WorldCom, Inc. and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1999 . . ., in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States.

2000 Offering

On May 24, 2000, WorldCom conducted a public offering of debt securities by issuing approximately $5 billion worth of bonds ("2000 Offering"). It filed a registration statement dated April 12, 2000, and prospectus supplement dated May 19, 2000 (collectively "2000 Registration Statement") that incorporated by reference among other things the WorldCom Form 10-K for the year ending December 31, 1999, and its Form 10-Q[18] for the quarter ended March 31, 2000. SSB was the book runner and, with J.P. Morgan, was the co-lead manager.[19]

The April 12, 2000 Registration Statement[20] began with a warning that > [w]e have not authorized anyone to give any information or to make any representations concerning the offering of the debt securities except that which is in this prospectus or in the prospectus supplement. . . . You should rely only on the information contained in or incorporated by reference into this prospectus.

The document then explained that it was part of a registration statement that was filed with the SEC using a "'shelf' registration process."

> Under this process, we may sell any combination of the debt securities described in this prospectus in one or more offerings up to a total dollar amount of $15,000,000,000. This prospectus provides you with a general description of the securities we may offer. Each time we sell securities, we will provide a prospectus supplement that will contain specific information about the terms of that offering. The prospectus supplement may also add, update or change information contained in this prospectus.

In describing recent developments, the 2000 Registration Statement focused exclusively on the merger agreement with Sprint. It warned that consummation of the merger was subject to various conditions, including regulatory approval.

In describing how the proceeds would be used from the sale of debt securities, it represented that the proceeds would be used "for general corporate purposes. These may include, but are not limited to, the repayment of indebtedness, acquisitions, additions to working capital, and capital expenditures."

The 2000 Registration Statement included a section labeled "experts." It explained that the year-end WorldCom consoldiated financial statements > have been audited by Arthur Andersen LLP, independent public accountants, as indicated in their report with respect thereto, and are included in the MCI WorldCom's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 1999, and are incorporated herein by reference, in reliance upon the authority of such firm as experts in accounting and auditing in giving such reports.

Among the "undertakings" contained in the 2000 Registration Statement was the obligation to file during the period in which sales were being made, a post-effective amendment to "reflect in the prospectus any facts or event arising after the effective date of this registration statement (or the most recent post-effective amendment hereof) which, individually or in the aggregate, represent a fundamental change in the information set forth in this registration statement."

The May 19, 2000 Prospectus Supplement explained that the net proceeds from the $5 billion offering would be used to "repay commercial paper, which was issued for general corporate purposes." It announced that following that repayment, WorldCom expected "to incur additional indebtedness. . . ." The document briefly explained WorldCom's business. The bulk of the document addressed the proposed Sprint merger, described Sprint, and presented an unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statement for the merged entity. It warned that "the merger is subject to the receipt of consents and approvals from various government entities, which may jeopardize or delay completion of the merger or reduce the anticipated benefits of the merger."

The document also included the following explanation of the relationship between the Underwriter Defendants and WorldCom:

> The underwriters and their affiliates have performed certain investment banking and advisory and general financing and banking services for us from time to time for which they have received customary fees and expenses. The underwriters and their affiliates may, from time to time, be customers of, engage in transactions with and perform services for us in the ordinary course of their business. Salomon Smith Barney Inc. has acted as financial advisor to WorldCom in connection with the Sprint merger, for which it has received certain fees and for which it expects to receive additional fees upon the closing of the Sprint merger. In addition, Salomon Smith Barney will receive a financial advisory fee in connection with this offering.

Each of the Underwriter Defendants involved in the 2000 Offering has stated that it relied on the due diligence performed by SSB. Many of the Underwriter Defendants had underwritten prior WorldCom offerings or had other dealings with WorldCom prior to the 2000 Offering. For example, J.P. Morgan was involved in an offering of WorldCom securities in 1998 and participated in syndicating credit extended to WorldCom that same year. Bank of America had a web of relationships with WorldCom and considered itself the "leading capital provider" to WorldCom since 1990. Among other things, it participated in the securitization of WorldCom's accounts receivable and a private placement for WorldCom in the 1990s, participated in an April 1998 bond offering by WorldCom, and was a lead manager of the WorldCom acquisition of MCI in 1998.

The prospectus supplement for the 2000 Offering did not include a section labeled "risk factors." Several weeks earlier, on April 30, an investment banker at SSB sent a draft prospectus supplement to a more senior SSB banker with a detailed list of risk factors included in it. Under the heading "Risk Factors," the draft itemized risk factors relating to the Sprint merger, WorldCom's business, and competition in the telecommunications industry, among other things.[21] At the request of WorldCom, the risk factors section was removed.[22]

660810

The only written record of due diligence performed by the Underwriter Defendants for the 2000 Offering is a May 26 memorandum prepared by Cravath, Swaine & Moore ("Cravath"), counsel to the Underwriter Defendants. The memorandum reflects due diligence conducted from May 15 to 23.[23] It describes a May 17 telephone conversation in which Sullivan was asked questions about the Sprint merger, whether WorldCom had experienced problems integrating either SkyTel or MCI, and whether there were

---

[21] The draft document noted, for instance, that the development of the business of WorldCom required "significant capital expenditures" and that it planned to "access" the debt market to meet its needs to the extent that its cash flow, credit facilities, and commercial paper program were insufficient. It warned that the "effect of technological changes, including changes relating to emerging wireline and wireless transmission and switching technologies, on the businesses of MCI WorldCom cannot be predicted." It described legislation and court rulings that were affecting its business. On the issue of competition, the draft document noted over the course of a several page detailed discussion that WorldCom expected that competition would intensify, including competition "due to the development of new technologies."

[22] WorldCom explained that it "no longer disclose[d]" risk factors related to the business of WorldCom in its SEC filings. Insofar as the regulatory environment was concerned, it noted that it updated its regulatory information each quarter in its "34 Act filings." WorldCom did, however, want to consider whether risks associated with the Sprint merger should be included.

[23] The memorandum indicated that due diligence for WorldCom for the period prior to August 17, 1999 was contained in a document of that date.

any other material issues.[24] In that conversation, Sullivan predicted overall growth for the year 2000 would be about 14%, represented that the proceeds for the 2000 Offering would be used to repay "commercial debt," reported that WorldCom was experiencing a very competitive environment but that there were no changes in that environment since 1999, and stated that there were no other material issues than the ones he described in the call. The memorandum then outlines the board minutes for WorldCom, lists its public filings, refers to its press releases, and discusses Sprint documents.

J.P. Morgan's 1998 Overview of the Debt Underwriting Process was still in effect in 2000 and contained the following descriptions of an underwriter's responsibility.

> In our role as an underwriter or distributor of securities, performance by J.P. Morgan entities of an appropriate due diligence investigation of the issuer serves a variety of important purposes. The most obvious key advantage of proper due diligence is protection against unexpected news regarding the issuer or its business having an adverse effect of the pricing and/or placement of the offered securities during the primary distribution and in the immediate aftermarket.
> From a legal perspective, under the securities laws of the U.S. and several other jurisdictions, due diligence creates an affirmative defense to underwriter/distributor liability for misstatements or omissions of material facts in offering documents. In practical terms, this means that if the market value of the offered securities declines weeks, months or years after closing and unhappy investors sue the issuer and the underwriters, on the theory that the underlying reason for such market decline should have been disclosed in the offering document, then J.P. Morgan should be able to avoid an expensive adverse judgment, so long as we can demonstrate that we conducted an appropriate due diligence investigation of the issuer and its business in connection with the offering. . . .

[24] The memorandum does not identify who participated in the conversation with Sullivan.

At least as importantly, due diligence reduces the possibility of commercial and reputational losses arising out of such misstatements and provides us with an opportunity to demonstrate to the issuer client our professionalism, our understanding of its business and our commitment to the transaction.

In order to successfully establish a due diligence defense, underwriters and securities distributors may not take at face value representations made to them by the issuer and its representatives, but rather must demonstrate they made a reasonable investigation of the facts to ensure there is no misstatement or omission of a material fact in the offering documents. . . .

Generally such investigation will focus on discussions with and information provided by the issuer and its counsel and accountants, although it may be appropriate, in the case of some issuers and industries, to include meetings with outsiders, such as consultants with industry expertise, major suppliers or dominant customers.

Andersen created an undated worksheet in connection with WorldCom's first quarter 2000 unaudited financial statement. The worksheet was an eleven-page Andersen form entitled "U.S. GAAS Review of Interim Financial Statements of a Public Company," and was a vital step in preparing a "comfort letter" for a company and underwriters. The form reflects tasks to be performed, with boxes to indicate whether the task had been "done" or was "N/A." Most of the tasks had one of those two boxes checked, some had both boxes checked, and one task -- reading the financial statements and disclosures in the client's draft Form 10-Q -- was left blank. Brief comments were handwritten next to some of the tasks. The form paragraph that appears directly above the engagement partner's signature, states: "Based on the results of the review procedures, we are not aware of any material modifications that should be made to the interim financial statements for them to be in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles consistently applied."

018102

16div-023164

A "comfort letter" for the first quarter 2000 unaudited financial statement is dated May 19, is eight pages long, and indicates that it is written at the request of WorldCom. In it, Andersen reaffirms its audits, including those incorporated in the 2000 Registration Statement. It warns that having not audited any financial statements for any period subsequent to December 31, 1999, it is unable to express any opinion on the unaudited consolidated balance sheet of WorldCom as of March 31, 2000, or the results of operations or cash flows as of any date subsequent to December 31, 1999. The letter indicates, however, that Andersen had performed the procedures specified by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants for a review of interim financial information as described in SAS No. 71 on the unaudited condensed consolidated balance sheet as of March 31, 2000, and related statements, and had made certain inquiries of WorldCom officials who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters. Andersen represented that nothing had come to its attention as a result of that work that caused Andersen to believe that "[a]ny material modifications should be made to the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements [for the first quarter of 2000], incorporated by reference in the Registration Statement, for them to be in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles" or that "[t]he unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements . . . do not comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of the Act and the related published rules and regulations." The letter concludes that it is offered to "assist the underwriters in conducting and documenting their investigation" of the affairs of WorldCom in connection with the offering of securities covered by the 2000 Registration Statement. A two page May 23 Andersen letter reaffirmed the May 19 letter.

Late 2000 Investment' Banking Transactions

As already described, in November 2000, WorldCom announced that it would be creating two tracking stocks. J.P. Morgan and SSB were involved in this project.

On December 14, 2000, WorldCom conducted a $2 billion private placement of debt. J.P. Morgan was the lead manager and sole book runner for that private placement.

The Underwriter Defendants' Credit Assessment of WorldCom as of Early 2001

In February 2001, several of the Underwriter Defendants downgraded WorldCom's credit rating due to their assessment of WorldCom's deteriorating financial condition. Then, during the weeks that followed, several of the Underwriter Defendants made a commitment to WorldCom to help it restructure its massive credit facility. In doing so, there is evidence that at least some of the Underwriter Defendants internally expressed concern again about WorldCom's financial health. WorldCom had required the banks to participate in the restructuring of the credit facility if a bank wished to play a significant role in its next bond offering, the 2001 Offering. That offering turned out to be the largest public debt offering in American history. The Lead Plaintiff contends that the evidence of the Underwriter

018105

Defendants' concerns about WorldCom's financial condition in the months immediately preceding the 2001 Offering undercuts their contention that the due diligence that they performed in connection with the 2001 Offering was reasonable.

As noted, several of the Underwriter Defendants downgraded WorldCom as a credit risk in February 2001. At the same time, one of the major credit rating agencies publicly announced that it was downgrading long-term WorldCom debt.

On February 22, Bank of America downgraded WorldCom's credit rating from 3 to 4, citing its lack of revenue growth, margin deterioration, the likelihood that WorldCom revenue from its long-distance business would continue to decline, the increasing competitive landscape, WorldCom's increasing debt load, and concerns regarding its strategic direction following the failure of the merger with Sprint.

On February 27, a J.P. Morgan document reflects that the bank reduced its internal "senior unsecured" risk rating for WorldCom from A2 to BBB1 because of WorldCom's "weakened credit profile and continued pressure on its MCI long-distance business segment."[25] The internal report noted that WorldCom's cash flow had moved from a positive to a "Cash Burn" of negative $137 million. It also emphasized WorldCom's high ratio of debt. The report observed that "[i]t remains to be seen if WCOM can stabilize cash flows and increase profitability in its MCI segment while supporting the capital requirements for the high growth data business in an increasingly competitive environment."[26]

[25] By February 21, 2001, a J.P. Morgan banker described the burden of carrying the debt associated with the Intermedia business as "a serious risk factor" for WorldCom.

On February 27, Standard & Poor's ("S&P") also downgraded WorldCom's credit rating, albeit just its ratings on WorldCom's long-term debt instruments. Those were downgraded from a rating of A- to BBB+. S&P simultaneously removed WorldCom from its previously imposed "creditwatch." S&P did not revise its ratings for WorldCom's short-term debt. S&P explained that the downgrade reflected WorldCom's "heightened business risk profile" because of competitive challenges and pricing pressures in the voice and data markets. It observed that the risk was "somewhat offset by the company's financial flexibility and experienced management." It described the outlook for WorldCom as "stable."

In late February, Deutsche Bank downgraded WorldCom as part of a global credit review because of price declines in the long-distance market and WorldCom's need to generate cash. The credit review listed WorldCom's credit status as "[p]erformance concerns" and the bank's credit strategy and risk appetite as "[r]isk appetite reduced."

Within weeks of these decisions to downgrade WorldCom's credit rating, the Underwriter Defendants had to consider whether to participate in WorldCom's restructuring of its credit facility, which was a line of credit extended to WorldCom by several of the banks, and whether to compete for investment banking positions in the bond offering that WorldCom hoped to undertake that Spring. WorldCom had a $10.25 billion credit facility with affiliates of some of the banks and it wanted to restructure that facility in a $8 to 10 billion transaction. WorldCom informed banks that they could only participate as an underwriter on the 2001 Offering if they agreed to participate in the restructuring. WorldCom also let banks know that the greater a bank's commitment to the credit facility, the greater the role it could have in the offering. With a commitment of at least $800 million to the new credit facility, a bank was promised a role as "joint book running manager" in the offering.[27] Bank of America calculated that if it were successful in becoming a joint [27] According to a March 28, 2001 Bank of America memorandum, "[b]ecause WCOM needs to refinance its existing Bank Facilities in a tough bank environment, the Company has stated that it will tie the bank refinance with its new $10 billion bond deal. Specifically, the Company stated it plans to only ask a few players (including BAS) to hold $800 million in the new Bank Facilities for Joint Book Running Manager on the bonds."

book running manager, it could earn 20 to 25% of an expected investment banking fee of $10 to 12.5 million.

There is evidence that several of the Underwriter Defendants[28] decided to make a commitment to the restructuring of the credit facility and to attempt to win the right to underwrite the 2001 Offering, while at the same time reducing their own exposure to risk from holding WorldCom debt by engaging in hedging strategies, such as credit default swaps.[29] For example, as early as March 23, J.P. Morgan identified one of its three key objectives in connection with the restructuring of the credit facility and its participation in the 2001 Offering as: "to minimize exposure after $800MM initial commitment. . . ." The memorandum recommended developing a strategy that would give up some participation in the 2001 Offering in return for reducing the bank's exposure under the credit facility down to $600 million. It concluded, "Lets [sic] make this a true team effort: first class execution for the client, attractive economics for [28] This Opinion does not discuss similar evidence regarding SSB, on this and other points, since it has settled with the Lead Plaintiff. That evidence will be admissible at trial, however, to the extent that SSB's due diligence is at issue.

[29] A credit default swap enables a lender to hedge its exposure to a borrower. The lender enters into a swap contract and pays a premium for credit default protection to the swap seller. In the event of a failure to pay, the swap seller agrees to pay the lender the value of the loan. If there is no failure to pay, the lender has lost only the premium.

JPM and the minimum credit exposure." (Emphasis supplied.) Within less than a month, J.P. Morgan wanted to reduce its exposure to $500 million. By May 22, through a carefully managed entry into the market, J.P. Morgan had entered a $150 million credit default swap, out of a goal of $200 million, to reduce its exposure in the event of a default by WorldCom. J.P. Morgan personnel structured its activities so that neither WorldCom nor any of J.P. Morgan's investment banking rivals would learn what it was doing. A May 16 e-mail captured the problem with these words: "if WCOM gets any sense that we're laying off exposure DURING the syndication process (and wouldn't SSB love to pass that along), it would not be good news. Understandably" this point is "Jennifer's greatest and principal concern." (Emphasis in original.) Jennifer Nason was the bank's due diligence team leader for the 2001 Offering.

Bank of America was in a particularly precarious position. It had been the sole lead arranger and sole book manager for a $10.75 billion senior credit facility for WorldCom in August 2000. It was one of five arrangers for a $2 billion WorldCom trade receivable securitization program. As of March 2001, it had an exposure of approximately $1.5 billion to WorldCom. This exposure was concentrated in a syndicated credit facility of about $600 million, an accounts receivable securitization of $306 million, and a commitment of $175 million to Intermedia. Bank of America sought to make a commitment of $800 million to the restructured credit facility and yet reduce its overall exposure to WorldCom to no more than $500 million through credit default swaps and other devices, again, without telling WorldCom.[30] Those within Bank of America, who were recommending that the bank participate in the restructuring of the credit facility in order to be eligible to play a lead investment banking role in the 2001 Offering, argued in a March 28 memorandum that it was likely that WorldCom would never need to draw on its credit facility -- in their words: "No funding anticipated."

2000 Form 10-K

The April 26, 2001 WorldCom Form 10-K for the year ending 2000 explained that, if approved by WorldCom's shareholders, the company would create two separately traded tracking stocks to correspond to "the distinct customer bases" served by its businesses. It advised shareholders that if they did not approve

[30] The Bank of America communication reflecting this plan reads: "we will get down in this facility to $500MM (through syndication, secondary sales or 364 day credit default swaps) . . .we are telling the company $800MM hold though." A February 2 Bank of America memorandum put the problem succinctly: "If we try (and successfully win) Joint Books this quarter of a potential . . . Bond deal and then try and exit the Securitization (we are one of the Leads) or significantly lower commitment as the Lead in one of the larger Bank deals out there at $10.25BN . . . WCOM should go nuts." (Emphasis supplied.)

the creation of the two stocks, the company would still realign its businesses into the two distinct service entities.

With respect to long-distance services, the document reported that revenue fell in 2000 in absolute terms and as a percentage of total WorldCom revenues. In its description of operations, line costs were shown as a decreasing percentage of revenues for each year from 1998 to 2000, beginning with 45.3% in 1998, and ending at 39.6% in 2000. The Form 10-K explained that the improvement was a result of increased data and dedicated Internet traffic.

2001 Offering

Through the 2001 Offering WorldCom issued $11.9 billion worth of notes. The May 9, 2001 registration statement and May 14, 2001 prospectus supplement (collectively, "2001 Registration Statement") for the 2001 Offering incorporated WorldCom's 2000 10-K and first quarter 2001 Form 8-K dated April 26, 2001.

J.P. Morgan and SSB served as co-book runners. Each of the Underwriter Defendants for the 2001 Offering have stated that they relied on the due diligence performed by SSB and J.P. Morgan. Cravath again represented the Underwriter Defendants.

A May 16, 2001 memorandum prepared by Cravath describes the due diligence conducted from April 19[31] through May 16, 2001 in connection with the 2001 Offering.[32] On April 23, the Underwriter Defendants forwarded due diligence questions to WorldCom. The due diligence for the 2001 Offering included telephone calls with WorldCom on April 30 and May 9, and a May 9 telephone call with Andersen and WorldCom. The due diligence inquiry also included a review of WorldCom's board minutes, 1998 revolving credit agreement, SEC filings, and press releases from April 19 to May 16, 2001.

During the April 30 telephone call, two bankers from J.P. Morgan and SSB, and two attorneys from Cravath spoke with Sullivan. Sullivan explained that WorldCom intended to use half of the proceeds from the 2001 Offering "to repay the balance of its outstanding commercial paper, to retire debt and to fund a portion of the Company's negative free cash flow." When asked whether WorldCom had significant reserves for bad receivables, Sullivan responded that WorldCom had a general $1.1 billion reserve. Sullivan indicated that WorldCom was comfortable with the current earnings per share, that there were no issues that [31] The memorandum lists the date as April 19, 2000. It is assumed that it should be April 19, 2001.

[32] The memorandum indicates that the due diligence for WorldCom for the period from August 16, 1999 to May 23, 2000 is contained in a memorandum of May 26, 2000.

could affect the company's credit rating, and that the company had nothing material to disclose that had not been discussed with the investment bankers. When asked about the competitive environment, Sullivan answered that > the general economic slowdown has not had a material impact on the Company's business, however the telecommunication environment has affected the Company. In particular, he was surprised that receivables declined in the first quarter. Despite this, the Company is selling through the rough parts of the telecommunications slowdown and the number of new installations is still strong.

On May 9, Sullivan confirmed that there were no material changes since the April 30 telephone call.

On May 9, a banker from J.P. Morgan and two Cravath attorneys spoke by telephone with Sullivan and Stephanie Scott of WorldCom and with representatives of Andersen. Andersen indicated that it had not issued any management letters to WorldCom and that there were no accounting concerns. WorldCom and Andersen assured J.P. Morgan that there was nothing else material to discuss. In neither the April 30 due diligence telephone call nor the May 9 call did Sullivan disclose the $771 million capitalization of line costs.

On May 9 and 16, Andersen issued comfort letters for the WorldCom first quarter 2001 financial statement. The 2001 comfort letters stand in contrast to the 2000 comfort letter, which expressed that nothing had come to Andersen's attention to cause it to believe that "[a]ny material modifications should be made to the unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements described in 4(a)(1), incorporated by reference in the Registration Statement, for them to be in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles" or that "[t]he unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements . . . do not comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of the Act and the related published rules and regulations." In 2001, by comparison, the letters indicated that nothing had come to Andersen's attention that caused it to believe that the financial statements "were not determined on a basis substantially consistent with that of the corresponding amounts in the audited consolidated balance sheets of WorldCom as of December 31, 2000 and 1999, and the consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' investment and cash flows for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 2000 . . . ." A J.P. Morgan banker and a Cravath attorney noticed the absence of the "negative GAAP assurance" in the 2001 comfort letter. An SSB banker noted that the issue was important to understand but advised against getting "too vocal" about it since "WorldCom's a bear to deal with on that subject."

Some of the investment bankers responsible for performing due diligence in connection with the 2001 Offering were aware of their own bank's credit concerns regarding WorldCom, and some were not. For instance, the lead investment banker for J.P. Morgan testified that she was unaware of her bank's memorandum downgrading WorldCom's risk rating. Two investment bankers at Deustche Bank testified that they were aware that their bank had downgraded WorldCom's credit rating. One testified that he believed that the downgrading was "too early"; the other testified that the downgrading was not inconsistent with the information that was in the public domain.[33]

018115

16div-023177

The 2001 Offering was preceded by a road show in America and Europe in which WorldCom, J.P. Morgan, and SSB made presentations to convince potential investors to purchase the bonds. A script for that presentation begins with the following statement:

> Welcome to WorldCom's Multi-billion Global Debt Offering Roadshow presentation. . . . On behalf of J.P. Morgan and SSB as joint bookrunners, our joint lead managers, and co-managers, we are excited about the WorldCom credit story and this debt offering. . . . We value WorldCom's senior debt at low single A with a stable credit trend. . . . WorldCom's financial position gives it the strongest credit profile of any of the largest broadband providers.

[33] The Lead Plaintiff contends that the lead investment banker for Bank of America was aware that her bank's credit experts had downgraded WorldCom, and that she testified that that knowledge did not influence her due diligence and that she did not advise any other Underwriter Defendant or Cravath that her bank had downgraded WorldCom. The Lead Plaintiff has not included with its summary judgment papers the deposition pages that would confirm that description.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018116

16div-023178

Later in the script, there were representations about WorldCom's revenue in 2000 and a representation that the peak in the company's capital expenditures was behind it. The script included a comparison of 1999 and 2000 credit ratios for WorldCom. This comparison suggested an improving trend in revenues and in the "EBITDA[34] coverage ratio" from 1999 to 2000. The comparison of 1999 and 2000 credit ratios appears in the script despite an April 24 comment by a J.P. Morgan analyst that those credit ratios were "misleading" because WorldCom's "financial profile will be more leveraged in 2001." She suggested substituting long term target ratios.

The May 9 Prospectus for the 2001 Offering explained that it was part of a registration statement filed with the SEC using a "'shelf' registration process" that permitted it to sell any combination of debt securities in one or more offerings up to a total remaining dollar amount of just under $12 billion. It warned that the investor "should rely only on the information incorporated by reference or provided in this prospectus and any supplement. We have not authorized anyone else to provide you with different information." It described the use of proceeds as "for general corporate purposes," which may include "repayment of indebtedness, acquisitions, additions to working capital, and capital expenditures." The remainder of the prospectus described the debt securities that would be offered. At the end of the document, it advised that WorldCom's year-end financial statements for each of the years in the three-year period ending December 31, 2000 had been audited by Andersen, and were incorporated by reference "in reliance upon the authority of such firm as experts in accounting and auditing in giving such reports."

The Prospectus Supplement contained information about WorldCom, including selected financial information. Under a section labeled "recent developments," it announced that the WorldCom group revenue increased over the same period in 2000, but that the MCI group's revenues had declined. It described the use of proceeds as "for general corporate purposes, including to repay commercial paper, which was issued for general corporate purposes."[35]

After describing the underwriters' commitments to buy portions of the 2001 Offering, the 2001 Registration Statement advised that > the underwriters and their affiliates have performed certain investment banking, advisory and general financing and banking services for us from time to time for which they have received customary fees and expenses. The underwriters and their affiliates may, from time to time, be customers of, engage in transactions with and perform services for us in the ordinary course of their business. Discussion

Summary judgment may not be granted unless the submissions of the parties taken together "show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law." Rule 56(c), Fed. R. Civ. P. The moving party bears the burden of demonstrating the absence of a material factual question, and as such, "always bears the initial responsibility of . . . identifying those portions of the 'pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any,' which it believes demonstrates the absence of a genuine issue of material fact." Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986) (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)); accord Koch v. Town of Brattleboro, 287 F.3d 162, 165 (2d Cir. 2002). In making this determination the court must view all facts in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247 (1986); Celotex, 477 U.S. at 323. "A dispute regarding a material fact is genuine if the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving party." Mount Vernon Fire Ins. Co. v. Belize NY, Inc., 277 F.3d 232, 236 (2d Cir. 2002).

When the moving party has asserted facts showing that it is entitled to summary judgment, the opposing party must "set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial," and cannot rest on the "mere allegations or denials" of the movant's pleadings. Rule 56(e), Fed. R. Civ. P.; accord Burt Rigid Box, Inc. v. Travelers Prop. Cas. Corp., 302 F.3d 83, 91 (2d Cir. 2002). While evidence as a whole must be assessed to determine whether there is a trial-worthy issue, Bickerstaff v. Vassar Coll., 196 F.3d 435, 448 (2d Cir. 1999), conclusory statements are insufficient to defeat a motion for summary judgment. Opals on Ice Lingerie v. Body Lines, 320 F.3d 362, 370 n.3 (2d Cir. 2003). Throughout its consideration of a motion for summary judgment, a court "may rely only on admissible evidence." Ehrens v. Lutheran Church, 385 F.3d 232, 235 (2d Cir. 2004). Thus, in determining whether to grant summary judgment, this Court must (1) determine whether a genuine factual dispute exists based on the admissible evidence in the record; and (2) determine, based on the substantive law at issue, whether the fact in dispute is material.

I. Legal Framework

The "primary innovation" of the Securities Act was the creation of duties in connection with public offerings, principally "registration and disclosure obligations." Gustafson v. Alloyd Co., 513 U.S. 561, 571 (1995). The Securities Act "was designed to provide investors with full disclosure of material information concerning public offerings of securities in commerce, to protect investors against fraud and, through the imposition of specified civil liabilities, to promote ethical standards of honesty and fair dealing." Ernst & Ernst v. Hochfelder, 425 U.S. 185, 195 (1976). The purpose of the Act was to "eliminate serious abuses in a largely unregulated securities market." United Hous. Found., Inc. v. Forman, 421 U.S. 837, 849 (1975). Liability under Section 11 of the Securities Act flows from the requirements for filing a registration statement. Liability under Section 12(a)(2) flows from the requirement to distribute prospectuses.

A. Section 11

Section 11 of the Securities Act provides that any signer, director of the issuer, preparing or certifying accountant, or underwriter may be liable if "any part of the registration statement, when such part became effective, contained an untrue allegedly misleading registration statement." DeMaria v. Andersen, 318 F.3d 170, 178 (2d Cir. 2003).

A registration statement "means a filing that includes the prospectus and other information required by section 7 of the Securities Act." 12 C.F.R. § 16.2(m). A prospectus is defined as "an offering document that includes the information required by section 10(a) of the Securities Act." 12 C.F.R. § 16.2(l).

Section 7(a) of the Securities Act provides that registration statements must be accompanied by the information and documents specified in Schedule A of the Act, which sets forth thirty-two items that must be included in a registration statement. 15 U.S.C. §§ 77g(a), 77aa. Section 7(a) also authorizes the SEC to enact "rules or regulations" so that "disclosure fully adequate for the protection of investors is otherwise required to be included within the registration statement." 15 U.S.C. § 77g(a). Pursuant to Section 7(a), the SEC issued Regulations S-X, 17 C.F.R. § 210 et seq., and S-K, 17 C.F.R. § 229 et seq. Regulation S-X governs the form and content of financial statements required to be included in a registration statement. Regulation S-K dictates the non-financial information that must be included in a registration statement.[37] In a catch-

[37] Regulations S-X and S-K, which were developed as parts of the "integrated disclosure system," which is described below, also address the form and content of disclosure under the Exchange Act. See, e.g., 2 Louis Loss & Joel Seligman, all provision, the SEC regulations also provide that "[i]n addition to the information expressly required to be included in a registration statement, there shall be added such further material information, if any, as may be necessary to make the required statements, in the light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading." 17 C.F.R. § 230.408 (emphasis supplied). See DeMaria, 318 F.3d at 180.

Section 11 of the Securities Act "was designed to assure compliance with the disclosure provisions of the Act by imposing a stringent standard of liability on the parties who play a direct role in a registered offering." Herman & MacLean v. Huddleston, 459 U.S. 375, 381-82 (1983). This design reflects Congress' sense that underwriters, issuers, and accountants bear a "moral responsibility to the public [that] is particularly heavy." Gustafson, 513 U.S. at 581 (1995) (quoting H.R. Rep. No. 85, 73d Cong., 1st Sess., at 5 (1933)). As a result, such parties will be found to have violated Section 11 whenever "material facts have been omitted or presented in such a way as to obscure or distort their significance." I. Securities Regulation 607 (3d ed. 1999).

In determining whether a registration statement is materially misleading, the "central inquiry" is "whether defendants' representations, taken together and in context, would have misled a reasonable investor about the nature of the investment." I. Meyer Pincus, 936 F.2d at 761 (citation omitted).[38] A material fact is one that "would have been viewed by the reasonable investor as having significantly altered the 'total mix' of information made available." DeMaria, 318 F.3d at 180 (citation omitted). See also Ganino v. Citizens Util. Co., 228 F.3d 154, 162 (2d Cir. 2000). Material facts may "include not only information disclosing the earnings and distributions of a company but also those facts which affect the probable future of the company and those which may affect the desire of investors to buy, sell, or hold the company's securities." Kronfeld v. Trans World Airlines, Inc., 832 F.2d 726, 732 (2d Cir. 1987) (citation omitted).

An omitted fact may be immaterial if it is "trivial," or "so basic that any investor could be expected to know it." Ganino, 228 F.3d at 162 (citation omitted). In a similar vein, a misrepresentation may be immaterial as a matter of law where "adequate cautionary language [is] set out in the same offering."

[38] The standard for materiality under Sections 11 and 12 of the Securities Act is "identical to that under Section 10(b)" of the Exchange Act. Rombach v. Chang, 355 F.3d 164, 178 n.11 (2d Cir. 2004).

Rombach, 355 F.3d at 173 (citation omitted). Materiality remains, however, "a mixed question of law and fact." Ganino, 228 F.3d at 162. Since materiality is necessarily a "fact-specific inquiry," Basic, Inc. v. Levinson, 485 U.S. 224, 240 (1988), courts within the Second Circuit have "consistently rejected a formulaic approach to assessing the materiality" of misrepresentations. Ganino, 228 F.3d at 162.

Because of the fact-intensive inquiry that accompanies any analysis of materiality, a registration statement or prospectus must be read "as a whole." DeMaria, 318 F.3d at 180 (citation omitted). See also Rombach, 355 F.3d at 172 n.7; Olkey v. Hyperion 1999 Term Trust, Inc., 98 F.3d 2, 5 (2d Cir. 1996). "The touchstone of the inquiry is not whether isolated statements within a document were true, but whether defendants' representations or omissions, considered together and in context, would affect the total mix of information and thereby mislead a reasonable investor regarding the nature of the securities offered." Halperin v. eBanker USA.COM, Inc., 295 F.3d 352, 357 (2d Cir. 2002). Or, as the Second Circuit has explained even more recently, the inquiry must focus not on whether "particular statements, taken separately, were literally true, but whether defendants' representations, taken together and in context, would have misled a reasonable investor about the nature of the securities." DeMaria, 318 F.3d at 180 (citation omitted). A prospectus violates Section 11 "if it does not disclose material objective factual matters, or buries those matters beneath other information, or treats them cavalierly." Id. (citation omitted).

018126

Section 11 provides two affirmative defenses. First, the statute provides an affirmative defense where a defendant can prove that the loss in value of a security is due to something other than misleading statements within a registration statement. Specifically, Section 11(e) provides:

> [I]f the defendant proves that any portion or all of such damages represents other than the depreciation in value of such security resulting from such part of the registration statement, with respect to which his liability is asserted, not being true or omitting to state a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, such portion of or all such damages shall not be recoverable.

15 U.S.C. § 77k(e). A defendant's burden in establishing this defense is heavy since "the risk of uncertainty" is allocated to defendants. Akerman v. Oryx Comm., Inc., 810 F.2d 336, 341 (2d Cir. 1987); see also McMahan & Co. v. Wherehouse Entm't, Inc., 65 F.3d 1044, 1048-49 (2d Cir. 1995).

In addition, Section 11 provides an affirmative defense of "due diligence," which is available to defendants other than the issuer of the security. See Huddleston, 459 U.S. at 382; Chris-Craft Indus., Inc. v. Piper Aircraft Corp., 480 F.2d 341, 370-71

(2d Cir. 1973). The standard that applies to this defense varies depending on whether the misleading statement in the registration statement is or expressly relies on an expert's opinion. The due diligence defense is discussed further below.

B. Section 12

Section 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act (formerly Section 12(2)) allows a purchaser of a security to bring a private action against a seller that "offers or sells a security . . . by means of a prospectus or oral communication, which includes an untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statements . . . not misleading." 15 U.S.C. § 77*l*(a)(2). The section entitles the buyer > to recover the consideration paid for such security with interest thereon, less the amount of any income received thereon, upon the tender of such security, or for damages if he no longer owns the security.

Id.; Commercial Union Assurance Co. v. Milken, 17 F.3d 608, 615 (2d Cir. 1994); see also Randall v. Loftsgaarden, 478 U.S. 647, 655 (1986) ("§ 12(2) prescribes the remedy of rescission except where the plaintiff no longer owns the security.").

Section 12 turns on status, not scienter: It imposes liability without requiring "proof of either fraud or reliance." Gustafson, 513 U.S. at 582; see also Rombach, 355 F.3d at 164. A plaintiff need only show "some causal connection between the alleged communication and the sale, even if not decisive." Metromedia Co. v. Fugazy, 983 F.2d 350, 361 (2d Cir. 1992) (citation omitted). "Reliance by the buyer need not be shown, for § 12(2) is a broad anti-fraud measure and imposes liability whether or not the purchaser actually relied on the misstatement." Id. (citation omitted).

0181128

Defendants may be liable under Section 12(a)(2) either for selling a security or for soliciting its purchase. First, Section 12 creates a cause of action against sellers who "passed title, or other interest in the security, to the buyer for value." Pinter v. Dahl, 486 U.S. 622, 642 (1988); see also Wilson v. Saintine Exploration & Drilling Corp., 872 F.2d 1124, 1126 (2d Cir. 1989) (applying Pinter's § 12(1) analysis to what is now § 12(a)(2)); Capri v. Murphy, 856 F.2d 473, 478 (2d Cir. 1988) (same). To be liable as a seller, the defendant must be the "buyer's immediate seller; remote purchasers are precluded from bringing actions against remote sellers. Thus, a buyer cannot recover against his seller's seller." Pinter, 486 U.S. at 644 n.21. As underwriters in a firm commitment underwriting become the owners of any unsold shares, they may be liable as sellers for direct sales to the public. In re WorldCom Sec. Litig., 219 F.R.D. at 283.

Second, persons who are not in privity with the plaintiff may be liable if they "successfully solicit[ed] the purchase, motivated at least in part by a desire to serve [their] own financial interests or those of the securities owner." Pinter, 486 U.S. at 647; see also Commercial Union Assurance Co., 17 F.3d at 616. In finding that Section 12 included liability for solicitation, the Supreme Court observed that "[t]he solicitation of a buyer is perhaps the most critical stage of the selling transaction. . . . [and] the stage at which an investor is most likely to be injured." Pinter, 486 U.S. at 646.

Section 12(a)(2) provides affirmative defenses that parallel those available for a Section 11 claim. First, the statute prohibits recovery to the extent that > the person who offered or sold such security proves that any portion or all of the amount recoverable . . . represents other than the depreciation in value of the subject security resulting from such resulting from such part of the prospectus or oral communications, with respect to which liability of that person is asserted. . . .

15 U.S.C. § 77l(b). In addition, Section 12(a)(2) provides an affirmative defense of reasonable care. See Royal Am. Managers, Inc. v. IRC Holding Corp., 885 F.2d 1011, 1019 (2d Cir. 1989).

II. Lead Plaintiff's Motion for Partial Summary Judgment

Lead Plaintiff moves for partial summary judgment on the issue of whether certain statements regarding WorldCom's financial condition in its financial statements, that were incorporated into the 2000 and 2001 Registration Statements, were false. With respect to the 2000 Registration Statement, the Lead Plaintiff's motion is addressed to the reporting of line costs and depreciation and amortization. With respect to the 2001 Registration Statement, the Lead Plaintiff's motion is addressed to the reporting of line costs, capital expenditures, and assets and goodwill.

The Underwriter Defendants concede that the reporting of line costs and capital expenditures for the first quarter of 2001 was false. They resist summary judgment regarding the falsity of any other line of financial reporting with respect to the 2000 and 2001 Registration Statements. They assert that Andersen's professional judgment regarding certain items has not been shown to be unreasonable. For example, they argue that Andersen used reasonable judgment in deciding that MCI's workforce and customer base should be included in goodwill. They also assert that there are disputed issues of fact regarding the materiality of certain of the alleged false statements. For example, they argue that only those statements that are relevant to cash flow would be material to bondholders since bondholders are entitled to be paid principal and interest regardless of the price movements in a company's stock.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018131

The Underwriter Defendants argue in addition that the Lead Plaintiff's motion does not address their affirmative defense of due diligence and their entitlement to rely on Andersen's audits and comfort letters. They argue that they are entitled to further discovery of Lead Plaintiff's experts and of ten "embargoed" witnesses,[39] the latter of whom they contend will agree that no amount of due diligence would have uncovered the accounting fraud.[40]

---

[39] Although fact discovery closed on July 9, 2004, the parties in the Securities Litigation were permitted to reserve time to depose ten witnesses that the Government deems critical to its prosecution of Ebbers following their testimony in Ebbers' criminal trial. Ebbers' trial is scheduled to begin on January 17, 2005.

[40] As described below, the Underwriter Defendants are entitled to rely on the due diligence defense whether or not it would have uncovered the fraud. Conversely, they must shoulder the burden of establishing their due diligence even if that due diligence would not have revealed the existence of fraudulent conduct. The parties have not addressed whether the Underwriter Defendants' argument in this regard would be more persuasive under Section 12(a)(2). Compare 5 Arnold S. Jacobs, Disclosure and Remedies Under the Securities Laws § 3:158 (West 2004) (contending that a defendant could successfully establish a reasonable care defense under Section 12(a)(2) "if he does not exercise reasonable care but would have been unable to ascertain the falsity even if he had used reasonable care") with 3B Harold S. Bloomenthal & Samuel Wolff, Securities & Federal Corporate Law § 12:6 (2d ed. 1998) ("Given the role of an underwriter, in order to avoid Section 12(a)(2) liability it must make a reasonable investigation in order to establish that it used reasonable care.").

In Demarco v. Edens, 390 F.2d 836 (2d Cir. 1968), the Court of Appeals affirmed a judgment following trial that an issuer had used "reasonable care" in selecting an underwriter and did not know that the underwriter would not remit the proceeds of the sale of securities. Id. at 842. The court observed both that the issuer had taken the steps necessary to show its reasonable

Since there is no material issue of fact in dispute regarding the falsity of WorldCom's first quarter financial statement for 2001 insofar as it reported WorldCom's line costs, or the materiality of that false statement to investors purchasing notes in the 2001 Offering, the Lead Plaintiff is entitled to summary judgment on the issue of whether the Registration Statement for the 2001 Offering was false and misleading. The Lead Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment on the 2000 Offering, and on any other purported false statement made in connection with the 2001 Offering is denied.

III. The Underwriter Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment: The Financial Statements

The Underwriter Defendants move for summary judgment with respect to the financial statements that were incorporated into the Registration Statements. They assert that there is no dispute that they acted reasonably in relying on Andersen's audits and comfort letters. The Underwriter Defendants contend that they were entitled to rely on WorldCom's audited financial statements and had no duty to investigate their reliability so long as they had "no reasonable ground to believe" that such financial statements contained a false statement. They also care but also that it did not need to "probe[] more deeply into the background and affairs" of the underwriter as "[f]urther inquiry . . . would have disclosed nothing." Id. at 843.

assert that they were entitled to rely in the same way on Andersen's comfort letters for the unaudited quarterly financial statements incorporated into the Registration Statements.

Before analyzing the Underwriter Defendants' arguments, it will be helpful to describe the legal and regulatory framework surrounding the "due diligence defenses," which are in turn composed of a reliance defense and a due diligence defense. Following a brief description of the role of the underwriters, the Opinion will discuss the due diligence defenses under Sections 11 and 12(a)(2); the role of accountants as experts; the enactment in the 1980s of integrated disclosure, shelf registration, and SEC Rule 176, as well as their impact on underwriters' due diligence obligations; the reliance defense as described in case law and the impact on that defense of the existence of red flags; and the case law regarding the due diligence defense. With that background, the specific argument presented by the Underwriter Defendants will be addressed.

A. Role of the Underwriter

An underwriter is commonly understood to be a "person who buys securities directly or indirectly from the issuer and resells them to the public, or performs some act (or acts) that facilitates the issuer's distribution." In re WorldCom Sec. Litig., 308 F. Supp. 2d 338, 343 (S.D.N.Y. 2004) (citation omitted). As the SEC has observed, in enacting Section 11, "Congress recognized that underwriters occupied a unique position that enabled them to discover and compel disclosure of essential facts about the offering. Congress believed that subjecting underwriters to the liability provisions would provide the necessary incentive to ensure their careful investigation of the offering." The Regulation of Securities Offerings, SEC Release No. 7606A, 63 Fed. Reg. 67174, 67230, available at 1998 WL 833389 (Dec. 4, 1998) ("SEC Rel. 7606A"). At the same time, Congress specifically rejected the notion of underwriters as insurers. H.R. Conf. Rep. No. 73-152, at 277 (1933); SEC Rel. 7606A, 63 Fed. Reg. at 67230. Rather, it imposed upon underwriters the obligation to "exercise diligence of a type commensurate with the confidence, both as to integrity and competence," placed in them by those purchasing securities. H.R. Conf. Rep. No. 73-152, at 277.

Underwriters must "exercise a high degree of care in investigation and independent verification of the company's representations." Feit v. Leasco Data Processing Equip. Corp., 332 F. Supp. 544, 582 (E.D.N.Y. 1971). Overall, "[n]o greater reliance in our self-regulatory system is placed on any single participant in the issuance of securities than upon the underwriter." Chris-Craft, 480 F.2d at 370. Underwriters function as "the first line of defense" with respect to material misrepresentations and omissions in registration statements. 2 Gary M. Lawrence, Due Diligence in Business Transactions § 2.03A (2004) ("Lawrence, Due Diligence"). As a consequence, courts must be "particularly scrupulous in examining the[ir] conduct." Feit, 332 F. Supp. at 581; see also In re Enron Corp. Sec., Derivative & ERISA Litig., 235 F. Supp. 2d 549, 612-13 (S.D. Tex. 2002).

B. The "Due Diligence" Defenses

The phrase "due diligence" does not appear in the Securities Act, but two of the affirmative defenses available under Section 11(b) are collectively known as the "due diligence" defense. See Lawrence, Due Diligence § 2.03A. The first such defense provides that "as regards any part of the registration statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert," a defendant will not be liable upon a showing that > he had, after reasonable investigation, reasonable ground to believe and did believe, at the time such part of the registration statement became effective, that the statements therein were true and that there was no omission to state a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading.

15 U.S.C. § 77k(b)(3)(A) (emphasis supplied). This defense is understood as "a negligence standard." Hochfelder, 425 U.S. at

208. The SEC has described the duty of an underwriter to conduct a reasonable investigation as follows:

> By associating himself with a proposed offering [an underwriter] impliedly represents that he has made such an investigation in accordance with professional standards. Investors properly rely on this added protection which has a direct bearing on their appraisal of the reliability of the representations in the prospectus. The underwriter who does not make a reasonable investigation is derelict in his responsibilities to deal fairly with the investigating public.

41 SEC 398 [1961-1964 Transfer Binder] Fed. Sec. L. Rep. (CCH) ¶ 76,904 (Feb. 27, 1963).

There is a different standard that applies when a Section 11 defendant is entitled to rely upon the opinion of an expert. "[A]s regards any part of the registration statement purporting to be made on the authority of an expert," a defendant other than that expert will not be liable if he demonstrates that > he had no reasonable ground to believe and did not believe, at the time such part of the registration statement became effective, that the statements therein were untrue or that there was an omission to state a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading.

15 U.S.C. § 77k(b)(3)(C) (emphasis supplied).[41]

---

[41] Section 11 also provides a defense to an expert as concerns "any part of the registration statement purporting to be made upon his authority as an expert." The expert must prove that > he had, after reasonable investigation, reasonable ground to believe and did believe, at the time such

018137

Although the requirements of due diligence vary depending on whether the registration statement has been made in part or in whole on the authority of an expert, the standard for determining what constitutes a reasonable investigation and reasonable ground for belief is the same: "[T]he standard of reasonableness shall be that required of a prudent man in the management of his own property." 15 U.S.C. § 77k(c).

Courts have distinguished between these two standards by labeling them the due diligence defense and the reliance defense, referring in the latter case to the reliance permitted by the statute on an expert's statement. See, e.g., Kaplan v. Rose, 49 F.3d 1363, 1371 (9th Cir. 1994); In re Worlds of Wonder Sec. Litig., 35 F.3d 1407, 1421 (9th Cir. 1994); Ackerman v. Schwartz, 947 F.2d 841, 845 (7th Cir. 1991); Feit, 332 F. Supp. at 576.

Section 12(a)(2) has a defense of reasonable care that is less demanding than the duty of due diligence imposed under Section 11. Section 12(a)(2) provides that a defendant shall not be liable if he "sustain[s] the burden of proof that he did not know, and in the exercise of reasonable care could not have > part of the registration statement became effective, that the statements therein were true and that there was no omission to state a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading.

known, of such untruth or omission" which is "necessary in order to make the statements, in the light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading." 15 U.S.C. § 77*l*(a)(2).

Thus, while Section 11 imposes a duty to conduct a reasonable investigation as to any portion of a registration statement not made on the authority of an expert, Section 12(a)(2) does not make any distinction based upon "expertised" statements and only requires the defendant to show that it used reasonable care. This difference is attributable to the emphasis placed on the importance of registration statements and the underwriter's vital role in assuring their accuracy. See John Nuveen & Co. v. Sanders, 450 U.S. 1005, 1009 (1981) (Powell, J., dissenting from denial of cert.). Because Section 11 imposes a more exacting standard, this Opinion principally addresses the law that applies to Section 11.

C. Accountants as Experts

Although Section 11(b) furnishes different standards, depending on whether a statement is made on the authority of an expert, the statute does not define the term "expert." Section 11(a)(4) lists professions that give a person authority to make a statement, which on consent can be included in a registration statement. 15 U.S.C. § 77k(a)(4). The list of professions includes an accountant. Id. Thus, while Section 11(b) does not define the term expert or explain what sort of documents and/or work constitutes that "made on an expert's authority," it is settled that an accountant qualifies as an expert, and audited financial statements are considered expertised portions of a registration statement. See, e.g., In re Software Toolworks Inc. Sec. Litig., 50 F.3d 615, 623 (9th Cir. 1994); Enron, 235 F. Supp. 2d at 613; SEC Rel. 7606A, 63 Fed. Reg. at 67233.

Not every auditor's opinion, however, qualifies as an expert's opinion for purposes of the Section 11 reliance defense. To distinguish among auditor's opinions, some background is in order. While financial statements[42] are prepared by the management of a company, an accountant serving as the company's auditor may give an opinion as to whether the financial statements have been presented in conformity with GAAP. This opinion is given after the accountant has performed an audit of the company's books and records. Audits are generally completed once a year, in connection with a company's year-end financial statements. There are ten audit standards with which an auditor must comply in performing its annual audit. They are known as Generally Accepted Auditing Standards ("GAAS"). If an auditor signs a consent to have its opinion on financial statements incorporated into a company's public filings, the opinion may be shared with the public through incorporation.

[42] Financial statements are generally understood to include a balance sheet, an income statement, a statement of changes in stockholders' equity, a statement of cash flow, and related note disclosures.

Public companies are also required under the Exchange Act to file quarterly financial statements, which are referred to as interim financial statements. While not subject to an audit, interim financial statements included in Form 10-Q quarterly reports are reviewed by an independent public accountant using professional standards and procedures for conducting such reviews, as established by GAAS. The standards for the review of interim financial statements are set forth in Statement of Auditing Standards No. 71, Interim Financial Information ("SAS 71"). When a public company files a registration statement for a sale of securities, the auditor is customarily asked by underwriters to provide a comfort letter. The comfort letter will contain representations about the auditor's review of the interim financial statements. Guidance about the content of comfort letters is contained in the Statement on Auditing Standards No. 72, Letters for Underwriters and Certain Other Requesting Parties ("SAS 72"). There is frequently more than one comfort letter for a transaction: an initial comfort letter, and a second or "bringdown" comfort letter issued closer to the time of closing.

018141

In order for an accountant's opinion to qualify as an expert opinion under Section 11(b)(3)(C), there are three prerequisites. First, it must be reported in the Registration Statement. Second, it must be an audit opinion. Finally, the accountant must consent to inclusion of the audit opinion in the registration statement.

In an effort to encourage auditor reviews of interim financial statements, the SEC acted in 1979 to assure auditors that their review of unaudited interim financial information would not subject them to liability under Section 11. See Accountant Liability for Reports on Unaudited Interim Financial Information, SEC Release No. 6173, 1979 WL 169953, at *1 (Dec. 28, 1979)("SEC Rel. 6173"). The SEC addressed the circumstances in which an accountant's opinion can be considered an expert's opinion for purposes of Section 11(b) and made it clear that reviews of unaudited interim financial statements do not constitute such an opinion. Under Rule 436, where the opinion of an expert is quoted or summarized in a registration statement, or where any information contained in a registration statement "has been reviewed or passed upon" by an expert, the written consent of the expert must be filed as an exhibit to the registration statement. 17 C.F.R. § 230.436(a), (b). Yet written consent is not sufficient to convert an opinion or review into an expertised statement. Rule 436 provides that notwithstanding written consent, "a report on unaudited interim financial information . . . by an independent accountant who has conducted a review of such interim financial information shall not be considered a part of a registration statement prepared or certified by an accountant or a report prepared or certified by an accountant within the meaning of sections 7 and 11" of the Securities Act. 17 C.F.R. § 230.436(c)(emphasis supplied).

018142

Rule 436 also defined the term "report on unaudited interim financial information." It consists of a report that contains the following five items:

> (1) A statement that the review of interim financial information was made in accordance with established professional standards for such reviews;
> (2) An identification of the interim financial information reviewed;
> (3) A description of the procedures for a review of interim financial information;
> (4) A statement that a review of interim financial information is substantially less in scope than an examination in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, the objective of which is an expression of opinion regarding the financial statements taken as a whole, and, accordingly, no such opinion is expressed; and
> (5) A statement about whether the accountant is aware of any material modifications that should be made to the accompanying financial information so that it conforms with generally accepted accounting principles.

17 C.F.R. § 230.436(d).[43]

[43] SAS 71 states that an accountant's "report accompanying interim financial information that he or she has reviewed should consist of" the five components of the Rule 436 definition as

0181743

In promulgating Rule 436, the SEC contrasted accountants' review of year-end financial statements with those of interim financial data, remarking that

> The objective of a review of interim financial information differs significantly from the objective of an examination of financial statements in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. The objective of an audit is to provide a reasonable basis for expressing an opinion regarding the financial statements taken as a whole. A review of interim financial information does not provide a basis for the expression of such an opinion, because the review does not contemplate a study and evaluation of internal accounting control; tests of accounting records and of responses to inquiries by obtaining corroborating evidential matter through inspection, observation, or confirmation; and certain other procedures ordinarily performed during an audit. A review may bring to the accountant's attention significant matters affecting the interim financial information, but it does not provide assurance that the accountant will become aware of all significant matters that would be disclosed in an audit.

Accountant Liability for Reports on Unaudited Interim Financial Information Under Securities Act of 1933, SEC Release No. 6127, 1979 WL 170299 (Sept. 20, 1979), at *3 (citation omitted) ("SEC Rel. 6127") (emphasis supplied).

Rule 436 underscores that SAS 71 reports and SAS 72 letters are not expertised statements within the meaning of the Section

11 reliance defense. Specifically, in finalizing Rule 436, the SEC directed that

> [i]n any suit for damages under Section 11(a), the directors and underwriters should not be able to rely on SAS No. [71] reports on interim financial data included in a registration statement as statements "purporting to be made on the authority of an expert . . . which they had no ground to believe . . . were untrue . . ." under Section 11(b)(3)(C). Rather, underwriters and directors should be required, as has previously been the case whenever unaudited financials are included in a registration statement, to demonstrate affirmatively under Section 11(b)(3)(A) that, after conducting a reasonable investigation, they had reasonable ground to believe, and did believe, that the interim financial data was true.[44]

SEC Rel. 6173, 1979 WL 169953, at *4 (emphasis supplied). Given this, the SEC expects that "underwriters will continue to exercise due diligence in a vigorous manner with respect to SAS No. [71] reports." Id. at *4.

In sum, underwriters can rely on an accountant's audit opinion incorporated into a registration statement in presenting a defense under Section 11(b)(3)(C). Underwriters may not rely on an accountant's comfort letters for interim financial statements in presenting such a defense. Comfort letters do not "expertise any portion of the registration statement that is

[44] At the time that Rule 436 was implemented, SAS 24 was the governing standard for auditors' reviews of unaudited interim financial statements. In 1992, it was superceded by SAS 71, which was in effect during the events at issue here. See John J. D. Integrated Disclosure, Shelf Registration, and Rule 176

Beginning in the late 1960s, the SEC embarked on a "program to integrate the disclosure requirements of the Securities Act and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934." See Circumstances Affecting the Determination of What Constitutes Reasonable Investigation and Reasonable Grounds for Belief Under Section 11 of the Securities Act, SEC Release No. 6335, 1981 WL 31062, at *1 (Aug. 6, 1981) ("SEC Rel. 6335"). The chief purpose of the integrated disclosure system was to furnish investors with "meaningful, nonduplicative information both periodically and when securities distributions are made to the public," while decreasing "costs of compliance for public companies." of Securities Offerings, SEC Release No. 6331, 1981 WL 30765, at *2 (Aug. 6, 1981) ("SEC Rel. 6331").

Although earlier steps toward integration had been taken, the SEC aimed in the early 1980s to integrate the two acts, "primarily by incorporating by reference Exchange Act reports into Securities Act registration statements." SEC Rel. 6335, 1981 WL 31062, at *3. The push to incorporate by reference was motivated by the growing recognition that "for companies in the top tier, there is a steady stream of high quality corporate information continually furnished to the market and broadly digested, synthesized and disseminated." Shelf Registration, SEC Release No. 6499, 1983 WL 408321, at *2 (Nov. 17, 1983) ("SEC Rel. 6499"). The SEC reasoned that top-tier companies should be able to incorporate their Exchange Act filing by reference, since these disclosures, along with "other communications by the registrant, such as press releases, ha[ve] already been disseminated and accounted for by the market place." SEC Rel. 6331, 1981 WL 30765, at *4. Those eligible include issuers who, among other things, either have substantial equity "floats" or rated debt securities. Incorporation by reference was implemented by introducing a new, shortened registration form -- Form S-3 -- for use by "companies which are widely followed by professional analysts." Id. In a Form S-3 registration, the registrant's Form 10-K from the most recently concluded fiscal year and all subsequent periodic Exchange Act filings between the end of that fiscal year and the termination of the offering are required to be incorporated by reference. Given the reduced length of the form, the process of filing a Form S-3 is known as short-form registration.

Short-form registration was accompanied by related changes in shelf registration, the process by which securities are registered to be offered or sold on a delayed or continuous basis. The purpose of shelf registration is to allow a single registration statement to be filed for a series of offerings. SEC Rel. 6499, 1983 WL 408321, at *4. Shelf registration aims to afford the issuer the "procedural flexibility" to vary "the structure and terms of securities on short notice" and "time its offering to avail itself of the most advantageous market conditions." Id. More concretely, shelf registration enables > an issuer that wishes to sell some or all of the registered securities at any point during the two year period to contact the several managing underwriters named in the registration statement, determine which underwriter will give it the best terms, and offer the security to the market through that underwriter in a matter of hours.

Although shelf registration had been available prior to the introduction of integrated disclosure, integrated disclosure mandated a reexamination of which securities could be offered on a continuous or delayed basis. Under Rule 415, which was finalized in 1983, all registrants eligible to use Form S-3 may engage in shelf registration "in an amount . . . reasonably expected to be offered and sold within two years from the initial effective date of the registration."[45] 17 C.F.R. §§ 230.415(a)(1)(x), (a)(2). As amended in 1992, Rule 415 allows registration of shelf offerings without requiring registrants to allocate the total amount to specific classes of securities. As a result, issuers can "decide as late as the point of sale which of its securities to use." SEC Rel. 7606A, 63 Fed. Reg. at 67179.

[45] Although Rule 415 was not finalized until 1983, it was proposed concurrently with the development of Form S-3 and Rule 176, which is discussed below. See generally SEC Rel. 6335, 1981 WL 31062, at *2 (listing a "three tier system for the registration of securities, Forms S-1, S-2 and S-3" and "a new rule governing registration of securities to be sold in a continuous or delayed offering" among several rulemaking proposals announced on the same day as Rule 176).

Rule 415 does not limit shelf registration to those issuers eligible to use Form S-3, but also permits shelf registration for "traditional primary and secondary shelf offerings," including "those where securities are sold to employees, customers or existing shareholders; those involving interests in limited partnerships; those related to acquisitions and other business combinations; and those of securities underlying options, warrants, rights or conversions." SEC Rel. 6499, 1983 WL 408321, at *7; see generally 15 C.F.R. § 230.415.

Together, the mechanism of incorporation by reference and the expansion of shelf registration significantly reduced the time and expense necessary to prepare public offerings, thus enabling more "rapid access to today's capital markets." SEC Rel. 6335, 1981 WL 31062, at *4. As the SEC recognized, these changes affected the time in which underwriters could perform their investigations of an issuer. Underwriters had weeks to perform due diligence for traditional registration statements. By contrast, under a short-form registration regime, "[p]reparation time is reduced sharply" thanks to the ability to incorporate by reference prior disclosures. Id. at *5.

These two innovations triggered concern among underwriters. Members of the financial community worried about their ability "to undertake a reasonable investigation with respect to the adequacy of the information incorporated by reference from periodic reports filed under the Exchange Act into the short form registration statements utilized in an integrated disclosure system." Id. at *1. Specifically, underwriters expressed concern that > this reduction in preparation time, together with competitive pressures, will restrict the ability of responsible underwriters to conduct what would be deemed to be a reasonable investigation, pursuant to Section 11, of the contents of the registration statement. . . . Id. at *5. Because an underwriter could select among competing underwriters when offering securities through a shelf registration, some questioned whether an underwriter could "afford to devote the time and expense necessary to conduct a due diligence review before knowing whether it will handle an offering and that there may not be sufficient time to do so once it is selected." SEC Rel. 6499, 1983 WL 408321, at *5. Others doubted whether they would have the chance "to apply their independent scrutiny and judgment to documents prepared by registrants many months before an offering." Id.

Because of concerns like those described here, the SEC introduced Rule 176 in 1981 "to make explicit what circumstances may bear upon the determination of what constitutes a reasonable investigation and reasonable ground for belief as these terms are used in Section 11(b)." SEC Rel. 6335, 1981 WL 31062, at *1. Rather than give underwriters a "safe harbor from liability for statements made in incorporated Exchange Act reports,"[46] id. at *7, as some suggested should happen, the SEC turned to the [46] Academic assessments of Rule 176 have often observed that Rule 176 does not provide a safe harbor. See, e.g., Donald C. Langevoort, Deconstructing Section 11: Public Offering Liability in a Continuous Disclosure Environment, 63 Law & Contemp. Probs. 45, 63 (2000) (Rule 176 does not furnish a "true safe harbor, providing immunity to underwriters who follow its guidelines.").

American Law Institute's proposed Federal Securities Code for guidance. Rule 176, which largely mirrors Section 1704(g) of the Code, provides in relevant part:

> In determining whether or not the conduct of a person constitutes a reasonable investigation or a reasonable ground for belief meeting the standard set forth in section 11(c), relevant circumstances include, with respect to a person other than the issuer. [sic]
>
> (a) The type of issuer;
> (b) The type of security;
> (c) The type of person;
> . . . .
> (f) Reasonable reliance on officers, employees, and others whose duties should have given them knowledge of the particular facts (in the light of the functions and responsibilities of the particular person with respect to the issuer and the filing);
> (g) When the person is an underwriter, the type of underwriting arrangement, the role of the particular person as an underwriter and the availability of information with respect to the registrant; and
> (h) Whether, with respect to a fact or document incorporated by reference, the particular person had any responsibility for the fact or document at the time of the filing from which it was incorporated.

17 C.F.R. § 230.176.

Although "[n]o court has ever been called upon to interpret Rule 176," the SEC's own commentary on the rule makes clear that Rule 176 did not alter the fundamental nature of underwriters' due diligence obligations. Langevoort, 63 Law & Contemp. Probs. at 65; Task Force Report, 48 Bus. Law. at 1210. At the time Rule 176 was finalized, the SEC took care to explain that integrated disclosure was intended to "simplify disclosure and reduce unnecessary repetition and redelivery of information," not to "modify the responsibility of underwriters and others to make a reasonable investigation." SEC Rel. 6335, 1981 WL 31062, at *10. Instead, emphasizing that "nothing in the Commission's integrated disclosure system precludes conducting adequate due diligence," the SEC advised underwriters concerned about the time pressures created by integrated disclosure to "arrange [their] due diligence procedures over time for the purpose of avoiding last minute delays in an offering environment characterized by rapid market changes." Id. It also reminded them that an underwriter is "never compelled to proceed with an offering until he has accomplished his due diligence." Id. (emphasis supplied). And the SEC warned underwriters that the verification "required by the case law and contemplated by the statute" would still be required in appropriate circumstances. Id. at *10-11. As recently as December 1998, the SEC recalled that it "expressly rejected the consideration of competitive timing and pressures when evaluating the reasonableness of an underwriter's investigation." 63 Fed. Reg. at 67231.

The SEC's intent to maintain high standards for underwriter due diligence is confirmed by its many discussions of appropriate due diligence techniques in the integrated disclosure system. In proposing Rule 176, the SEC acknowledged that different investigatory methods would be needed "in view of the compressed preparation time and the volatile nature of the capital markets." SEC Rel. 6335, 1981 WL 31062, at *11. Nonetheless, it emphasized that such techniques must be "equally thorough." Id. (emphasis supplied). Among the strategies recommended by the SEC were the development of a "reservoir of knowledge about the companies that may select the underwriter to distribute their securities registered on short form registration statements" through a "careful review of [periodic Exchange Act] filings on an ongoing basis," consultation of analysts' reports, and active participation in the issuer's investor relations program, especially analysts and brokers meetings. Id. at *11-12.

At the time the SEC finalized the shelf registration rule two years later, it again recognized that "the techniques of conducting due diligence investigations of registrants qualified to use short form registration . . . would differ from due diligence investigations under other circumstances." SEC Rel. 6499, 1983 WL 408321, at *6. Nonetheless, it stressed the use of "anticipatory and continuous due diligence programs" to augment underwriters' fulfillment of their due diligence obligations. Id. Among other practices, the SEC approvingly noted the increased designation of one law firm to act as underwriters' counsel, which "facilitates continuous due diligence by ensuring on-going access to the registrant on the underwriters' behalf"; the holding of "Exchange Act report 'drafting sessions,'" which allow underwriters "to participate in the drafting and review of periodic disclosure documents before they are filed"; and "periodic due diligence sessions," such as meetings between prospective underwriters, their counsel, and management shortly after the release of quarterly earnings. Id.

In 1998, the SEC proposed expanding Rule 176 to "identify six due diligence practices that the Commission believes would enhance an underwriter's due diligence investigation when conducting an expedited offering." SEC Rel. 7606A, 63 Fed. Reg. at 67231. Among these six practices were the underwriter's receipt of a SAS 72 comfort letter. Yet the SEC emphasized that "these practices in no way constitute an exclusive list or serve as a substitute for a court's analysis of all relevant circumstances." Id. The 1998 proposal has never been finalized. Even if the proposed changes had been enacted, however, the SEC cautioned that "only a court can make the determination of whether a defendant's conduct was reasonable under all the circumstances of a particular offering." SEC Rel. 6335, 1981 WL 31062, at *13.

It must be noted that academics and practitioners alike have asserted that the current regime for underwriter liability under Section 11 no longer makes sense. Professor Coffee, for one, has observed that "it is not clear that the underwriter today still performs the classic gatekeeping function. . . . Many argue that serious due diligence efforts are simply not feasible within the time constraints of shelf registration. Given these constraints, they claim that the solution lies in downsizing the threat under section 11." John C. Coffee, Jr., Brave New World?: The Impact(s) of the Internet on Modern Securities Regulation, 52 Bus. Law. 1195, 1211 (1997). Another professor has remarked that "there is a strong practical case to be made for absolving underwriters of all inquiry obligations short of recklessness. . . . As underwriter involvement diminishes in significance relative to the deal as a whole, it becomes that much more problematic to apply a negligence-based standard in the first place." Langevoort, 63 Law & Contemp. Probs. at 67. A third asserts that in today's capital markets, "it is reasonable to question whether the underwriter's 'due diligence' role is justified at all. . . . [F]or shelf registrations, disinterested advance due diligence is the exception not the rule." Frank Partnoy, Barbarians at the Gatekeepers?: A Proposal for a Modified Strict Liability Regime, 79 Wash. U. L.Q. 491, 522 (2001) (citation omitted) ("Barbarians at the Gatekeepers").

In a related vein, a Task Force of experienced counsel to underwriters concludes that the "'integrated disclosure system' and the expansion of shelf registration statements have called into question whether underwriters any longer 'sponsor' an issue in a meaningful way, as opposed to delivering advice and distribution services." Task Force Report, 48 Bus. Law. at 1239. Similarly, the ABA Committee on Federal Regulation on Securities has complained to the SEC that > [t]he benefits of 'on demand' financing . . . are undermined by contiuning to impose on financial intermediaries and other 'gatekeepers' the responsibility to take the time necessary to do a sufficient due diligence investigation to assure quality disclosure without recognizing and making allowances for their difficulty or even inability to do so. It is not possible for underwriters and others to meet this standard in the current financing environment.

Letter from ABA Committee on Federal Regulation on Securities, Business Law Section, to David B.H. Martin, Director, Division of Corporation Finance, SEC, Aug. 22, 2001. Thus, academics and practitioners have called for a reexamination of underwriters' liability under Sections 11 and 12(a)(2) on the grounds that "Congress's assumptions in 1933 and 1934 about registrants working with individual underwriters in a relatively leisurely atmosphere are at odds with today's competition by multiple underwriters for high-speed transactions." Id. Implicit in these calls for a legislative change is the recognition that current law continues to place a burden upon an underwriter to conduct a reasonable investigation of non-expertised statements in a registration statement, including an issuer's interim financial statements.

018157

E. Case Law: Reliance Defense

Over thirty-five years ago, the Honorable Edward C. McLean of this District observed that "there is little or no judicial authority" on how a defendant can successfully establish his affirmative defenses under Section 11. Escott v. BarChris Constr. Corp., 283 F. Supp. 643, 683 (S.D.N.Y. 1968). This remains true today. Neither the Supreme Court nor the Second Circuit has explored this area of law in any significant way. Justice Powell, however, reflected on the reliance defense in his dissent from the Court's denial of certiorari in John Nuveen & Co. v. Sanders, 450 U.S. at 1005, a case addressed to the requirements of Section 12(a)(2)'s reasonable care defense. According to Justice Powell, Section 11 > explicitly absolve[s] [an underwriter] of the duty to investigate with respect to "any part of the registration statement purporting to be made on the authority of an expert" such as a certified accountant if "he had no reasonable ground to believe and did not believe" that the information therein was misleading.

> This provision is in the Act because, almost by definition, it is reasonable to rely on financial statements certified by public accountants.

Id. at 1010 (emphasis supplied) (citation omitted). Justice Powell further explained that underwriters' reliance on certified financial statements is not only reasonable but also, in his view, "essential to the proper functioning of securities marketing, to the trading in securities, to the lending of money by banks and financial institutions, and to the reliance by stockholders on the reports of their corporations." Id. n.4. He observed that "where breaches by accountants occur, it is the accountants themselves -- not those who rely in good faith on their professional expertise -- who are at fault and who should be held responsible." Id.; see also Worlds of Wonder, 35 F.3d at 1421, Software Toolworks, 50 F.3d at 623; Griffin v. PaineWebber, Inc., 84 F. Supp. 2d 508, 512-13 (S.D.N.Y. 2000).

Nevertheless, underwriters' reliance on audited financial statements may not be blind. Rather, where "red flags" regarding the reliability of an audited financial statement emerge, mere reliance on an audit will not be sufficient to ward off liability.

The concept of red flags primarily appears in cases arising under Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act. See, e.g., LC Capital Partners, LP v. Frontier Ins. Group, Inc., 318 F.3d 148, 154 (2d Cir. 2003); Chill v. Gen. Elec. Co., 101 F.3d 263, 269 (2d Cir. 1996); In re Ames Dep't Stores, Inc. Note Litig., 991 F.2d 968, 981 (2d Cir. 1993); Mosesian v. Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co., 727 F.2d 873, 877 (9th Cir. 1984); In re Philip Servs. Corp. Sec. Litig., No. 98 Civ. 0835 (MBM), 2004 WL 1152501, at *9-10 (S.D.N.Y. May 24, 2004); In re Global Crossing, Ltd. Sec. Litig., 322 F. Supp. 2d 319, 347 (S.D.N.Y. 2004); In re WorldCom Sec. Litig., No. 02 Civ. 3288 (DLC), 2003 WL 21488087, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. June 25, 2003); In re Complete Mgmt. Inc. Sec. Litig., 153 F. Supp. 2d 314, 334 (S.D.N.Y. 2001).

In these cases, the phrase "red flags" can be used to describe two different concepts. First, red flags can be those facts which come to a defendant's attention that would place a reasonable party in defendant's position "on notice that the audited company was engaged in wrongdoing to the detriment of its investors." In re Sunterra Corp. Sec. Litig., 199 F. Supp. 2d 1308, 1333 (M.D. Fl. 2002). In contrast to Section 11 and Section 12(a)(2) claims, which do not require a showing of scienter, in a Section 10(b) case, the plaintiff must sufficiently plead that the defendant acted with "an intent to deceive, manipulate or defraud." Kalnit v. Eichler, 264 F.3d 131, 138 (2d Cir. 2001) (citation omitted). One way of meeting this standard is to allege facts showing that the defendant's conduct was "highly unreasonable, representing an extreme departure from the standards of ordinary care to the extent that the danger was either known to the defendant or so obvious that the defendant must have been aware of it." Rothman v. Gregor, 220 F.3d 81, 90 (2d Cir. 2000) (citation omitted). Therefore, in an attempt to demonstrate recklessness, plaintiffs in Section 10(b) cases often assert that a defendant ignored "red warning flags" of another actor's wrongdoing. Chill, 101 F.3d at 269. See also Philip Servs., 2004 WL 1152501, at *9; Complete Mgmt., 153 F. Supp. 2d at 334.

The phrase "red flags," or "storm warnings," may also describe facts or circumstances that "would suggest to an investor of ordinary intelligence the probability that she has been defrauded." Frontier Ins., 318 F.3d at 154 (citation omitted); see also Ames Dep't Stores, 991 F.2d at 981, Complete Mgmt., 153 F. Supp. 2d at 337. The Second Circuit, for example, has found that a company's taking three substantial reserve charges over four years should have "alert[ed] any reasonable investor that something is seriously wrong." Frontier Ins., 318 F.3d at 155. Where such red flags arise, a duty of inquiry arises and knowledge of the fraud is imputed to the investor with consequences as to whether or not a claim has been filed within the statute of limitations. Id. at 154; see also 15 U.S.C. § 78i(e).

191810

While the existence of red flags is principally discussed in the Section 10(b) context, courts have also used this concept to inform their analysis of Section 11 claims. In Software Toolworks, 50 F.3d 615, for example, the plaintiffs asserted that the underwriter defendants were not entitled to "blindly rely" on the audited financial statements in light of "red flags" suggesting that the recognition of revenue for certain sales was improper. Id. at 623. Among other assertions, the plaintiffs alleged that the underwriter defendants' discovery of a memorandum that revealed the backdating of a sales contract so that Toolworks could recognize revenue in a particular fiscal year constituted a "red flag" that should have deprived the defendants of their reliance defense. Id. at 624. Finding that the underwriters demanded an explanation from the auditor about its accounting, insisted on written confirmations of particular contracts, and confirmed the auditor's accounting method with other accounting firms, the Ninth Circuit upheld the district court's holding that the underwriters' "investigation . . . was reasonable" as a matter of law. Id. Nevertheless, it noted that "[i]f the Underwriters had done nothing more" than simply discover the red flag, the plaintiffs' contention that the underwriter could no longer rely on the audit would be correct. Id.

Given the difference between the contexts in which the term "red flag" is used, a particular fact that is deemed to constitute a red flag in a Section 10(b) claim may not be a red flag in a Section 11 inquiry, and vice versa. An example from Mosesian, 727 F.2d 873, may be instructive here. At trial, to support its argument that a Section 10(b) claim was time-barred, the auditor identified seven "red flag" events that it contended should have "alert[ed] a reasonably prudent investor of wrongdoing on [its] part." Id. at 877. The court rejected the auditor's argument, finding that a company's "[f]inancial problems . . . do not necessarily suggest accounting fraud." Id. at 878. The court's conclusion in Mosesian does not mean, however, that financial problems cannot constitute red flags in Section 11 cases. Rather, as outlined above, in order to be entitled to the reliance defense under Section 11, a defendant must show that he had "no reasonable ground to believe and did not believe" that the statements within the registration statement that were made on an expert's authority were untrue. 15 U.S.C. 77k(b)(3)(C). Any information that strips a defendant of his confidence in the accuracy of those portions of a registration statement premised on audited financial statements is a red flag, whether or not it relates to accounting fraud or an audit failure. What is at stake under Section 11 is not an auditor's scienter, but the accuracy and completeness of the statements in the registration statement.

It is equally important to note that what constitutes a red flag depends on the facts and context of a particular case. For instance, this Circuit asserted in a recent Section 10(b) case that its determination of whether storm warnings exist would "depend in large part on how significant the company's disclosed problems are, how likely they are of a recurring nature, and how substantial are the 'reassuring' steps announced to avoid their recurrence." Frontier Ins., 318 F.3d at 155. In a similar vein, "[t]he question of what a reasonably prudent [man] should have known is particularly suited to a jury determination." Mosesian, 727 F.2d at 879.

F. Case Law: Due Diligence Defense

Just as there is little judicial elaboration of the reliance defense, so too there is "little judicial gloss" on the due diligence defense afforded to underwriters for non-expertised portions of a registration statement. Feit, 332 F. Supp. at 576. See also Glassman v. Computervision Corp., 90 F.3d 617, 628 (1st Cir. 1996) ("The law on due diligence is sparse. . . ."); John C.

Coffee, Jr., A Statutory and Case Law Primer on Due Diligence Under the Securities Law, 886 P.L.I./Corp 11, 17 (1995) ("Few decisions have wrestled with the concepts in §§ 11(b) and 11(c)."); Joseph McLaughlin, Some Challenges to Underwriters and Their Counsel in the Modern Capital Markets Environment, 28 Wake Forest L. Rev. 61, 67 (1993) (noting "relative paucity of judicial interpretations of the underwriters' 'due diligence' defense"); Partnoy, Barbarians at the Gatekeepers, 79 Wash. U. L.Q. at 514 (2001) (Section 11 due diligence defense has generated "little case law."). While there is a paucity of caselaw, "two early cases," Escott v. BarChris Construction Corp., 283 F. Supp. at 643, and Feit v. Leasco Data Processing Equipment Corp., 332 F. Supp. at 544, "remain the major polestars" in defining what constitutes a reasonable investigation. Coffee, 886 P.L.I./Corp. at 17 (citation omitted).

Faced with "no judicial decision defining the degree of diligence which underwriters must exercise to establish their defense under Section 11," in 1968, the BarChris court contemplated whether "it is sufficient [for an underwriter] to ask questions, to obtain answers which, if true, would be thought satisfactory, and to let it go at that, without seeking to ascertain from the records whether the answers in fact are true and complete." BarChris, 283 F. Supp. at 696. The lead underwriter or its counsel read annual reports and prospectuses of other companies within the industry; perused the issuer's prior prospectuses, annual reports, and most recent unaudited interim financial statements, as well as its minutes from the previous five years and its major contracts; and attended several meetings with the issuer at which underwriter and underwriters' counsel asked "pertinent questions and received answers which satisfied them" and in which "extensive, successive proofs of the prospectus were considered and revised." Id. at 693-95.

Rendering his opinion following a bench trial, Judge McLean noted the impossibility of establishing "a rigid rule suitable for every case defining the extent to which such verification must go. It is a question of degree, a matter of judgment in each case." Id. at 697 (emphasis supplied). Nonetheless, he held the underwriters had not conducted a "reasonable investigation of the truth of those portions of the prospectus which were not made on the authority of [the auditor] as an expert" because they made "almost no attempt to verify management's representations." Id. at 697 (emphasis supplied). In determining that an underwriter's due diligence obligations include efforts to verify information supplied by the issuer, the BarChris court relied heavily on the purpose of Section 11 and underwriters' role within the statutory scheme. As Judge McLean observed,

0181691

> The purpose of Section 11 is to protect investors. To that end the underwriters are made responsible for the truth of the prospectus. If they may escape that responsibility by taking at face value representations made to them by the company's management, then the inclusion of underwriters among those liable under Section 11 affords the investors no additional protection. To effectuate the statute's purpose, the phrase "reasonable investigation" must be construed to require more effort on the part of the underwriters than the mere accurate reporting in the prospectus of "data presented" to them by the company. It should make no difference that this data is elicited by questions addressed to the company officers by the underwriters, or that the underwriters at the time believe that the company's officers are truthful and reliable. In order to make the underwriters' participation in this enterprise of any value to the investors, the underwriters must make some reasonable attempt to verify the data submitted to them. They may not rely solely on the company's officers or on the company's counsel. A prudent man in the management of his own property would not rely on them.

Id.

Three years later, the Honorable Jack B. Weinstein further expounded on the due diligence defense in Feit, 332 F. Supp. at 544. Like the BarChris opinion before it, which refused to set forth a "rigid rule" for reasonable investigation, Feit insists that "[w]hat constitutes 'reasonable investigation' and a 'reasonable ground to believe' will vary with the degree of involvement of the individual, his expertise, and his access to the pertinent information and data." Id. at 577. Yet Feit places great emphasis on the underwriters' role in a securities offering, observing that "the underwriter is the only participant in the registration process who, as to matters not certified by the accountant, is able to make the kind of investigation which will protect the purchasing public." Id. at 581 (citation omitted).

018167

Given the underwriter's independence from the issuer, Judge Weinstein affirmed that while an underwriter is not "expected to possess the intimate knowledge of corporate affairs of inside directors," his obligation is to conduct a meaningful investigation, "not merely . . . listen[] to management's explanations of the company's affairs." Id. at 581-82 (citation omitted). "Tacit reliance on management assertions is unacceptable; the underwriters must play devil's advocate." Id. at 582 (citation omitted). Rendering his decision following a bench trial, Judge Weinstein found that the Feit underwriters had "just barely" satisfied this standard by completing a "thorough review of all available financial data," including an examination of the issuer's audit, "searching inquiries" of the issuer's major bank, and a study of the issuer's corporate minutes, records, and major agreements; attending due diligence meetings at which the proposed registration statement was reviewed "line by line"; reviewing correspondence pertinent to the omission at issue; and remaining in "constant contact" with the issuer. Id. at 582-83.

The years following BarChris and Feit have been marked by considerable change in the regulatory framework governing securities registration. Specifically, short-form registration, the expansion of shelf registration, and Rule 176 were each introduced well after these two cases were decided. Recent Section 11 case law, however, shows no signs of abandoning the early courts' demand that underwriters employ "a high degree of care in investigation and independent verification of the company's representations." Feit, 332 F. Supp. at 582.

The most prominent recent discussion of an underwriter's due diligence obligation appears in Software Toolworks, 50 F.3d at 615. In Software Toolworks, the Ninth Circuit partially affirmed a decision granting summary judgment to the underwriter defendants on the basis of their due diligence defense, specifically, that they had sufficiently investigated the issuer's business with Nintendo. In conducting that investigation, the underwriters obtained written representations from the auditor and issuer as to the prospectus's accuracy, confirmed the issuer's return policy with its customers, and surveyed retailers regarding pricing and other relevant details. Software Toolworks, 50 F.3d at 622-23. The Software Toolworks court reversed the district court's grant of summary judgment with respect to other aspects of the underwriters' due diligence efforts. Notably, it found that there were questions of fact as to whether underwriters performed adequate due diligence on the issuer's post-prospectus entry of $7 million in large consignment sales, which were later reversed in the final financial statements for the quarter. Id. at 626. Rather than play's "devil's advocate," as Feit requires an underwriter to do, the Software Toolworks underwriters "did little more than rely on Toolworks' assurances that the transactions were legitimate," making summary judgment in their favor inappropriate. Id.

018169

The Honorable Robert W. Sweet of this District, citing Feit, asserted in 1993 that "reasonably due diligence will normally involve a careful review of the issuer's financial statements and important contracts." Ades v. Deloitte & Touche, Nos. 90 Civ. 4959 (RWS), 90 Civ. 5056 (RWS), 1993 WL 362364, at *19 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 17, 1993) (emphasis supplied). The court denied summary judgment for the underwriter defendant, which had argued that it was entitled to rely upon the interim financial statements despite having not performed "line-by-line scrutiny" of the same. Id. at *21. While acknowledging that a "private placement agent need not duplicate accounting procedures in evaluating a firm," the court found that the underwriter's inquiries as to certain major contracts and its reliance on the interim financial statements presented factual issues as to the adequacy and reasonableness of its due diligence investigation. Id.

018170

Where district courts have granted summary judgment for underwriters in recent years, the underwriters have demonstrated extensive due diligence efforts. As one court recounted in granting summary judgment,

> The underwriters had over twenty meetings with various management personnel, covering all aspects of the company's business. Company personnel were specifically questioned about the development and scheduled availability of products, related operating systems and applications software. The underwriters also contacted many of [the issuer's] suppliers, customers, and distributors, who were asked extensive questions about the company's operations. The underwriters reviewed company documents including operating plans, product literature, corporate records, financial statements, contacts, and lists of distributors and customers. They examined trade journals and other industry-related publications to ascertain industry trends, market trends and competitive information. . . . When any negative or questionable information was developed as a result of their investigation, the underwriters discussed it with the appropriate persons and arrived at informed decisions and opinions.

Weinberger v. Jackson, No. C-89-2301-CAL, 1999 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18394, at *7-8 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 11, 1990) (emphasis supplied). Another court granted summary judgment for the underwriter defendant only after establishing that the underwriters conducted an "unquestionably extensive" investigation. In re Int'l Rectifier Sec. Litig., No. CV91-3357-RMT, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23966, at *7 (C.D. Cal. 1997). Among other things, their diligence included a review of the issuer's "internal financial forecasts, contracts, and other important documents"; interviews of the issuer's major customers, outside quality consultants, attorneys, auditor, and nearly a dozen of the issuer's managers; "written verification from [the issuer's] management that the information in the prospectus was correct"; and "a 'cold comfort' letter from [the issuer's] outside accountants indicating that there had been no material changes in [the issuer's] financial position since its last audit." Id. at *20-21.

Similarly, the court in Phillips v. Kidder, Peabody & Co., 933 F. Supp. 303 (S.D.N.Y. 1996), aff'd, 108 F.3d 1370 (2d Cir. 1997), found that the underwriter defendant had conducted extensive due diligence, which included "reviewing the [issuer's] financial statements, forecasts, budgets, and accounting controls, including discussions and/or meetings with management, outside directors, accountants, suppliers, and lending banks." Phillips, 933 F. Supp. at 318. Moreover, although the underwriters "relied in large part on the cold comfort letters provided by Arthur Andersen," those comfort letters did not concern unaudited interim financial information. Id. at 323. Rather, the detailed comfort letter in Phillips recited specific steps taken to confirm the adequacy of the issuer's internal inventory and accounting controls in the wake of a major supplier's reduction of prices on certain products, and was only one part of the underwriters' due diligence on the issue of inventory shrinkage. Id. at 319 n.11.

Thus, courts have continued to insist that underwriters demonstrate that they have conducted a meaningful investigation before granting summary judgment. That includes a reasonable investigation of unaudited financial information. See Glassman, 90 F.3d at 629 ("[A] failure by the underwriters either to verify a company's statements as to its financial state or to consider new information up to the effective date of an offering would almost certainly constitute a lack of due diligence."). In addition, an underwriter conducting a due diligence investigation must "look deeper and question more" where confronted with red flags. Enron, 235 F. Supp. 2d at 707; see also Univ. Hill Found. v. Goldman, Sachs & Co., 422 F. Supp. 879, 900 (S.D.N.Y. 1976) (whether or not underwriter conducted "reasonable investigation" depends on "the presence or absence of 'warning signals' to [underwriter] that something more might be in order.") (citation omitted).

While none of these courts have employed principles of statutory construction to reach their holdings, our role here, as always, is "to interpret the language of the statute enacted by Congress." Barnhart v. Sigmon Coal Co., Inc., 534 U.S. 438, 461

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

(2002). Such statutory interpretation must "begin with the language employed by Congress and the assumption that the ordinary meaning of that language accurately expresses the legislative purpose." Engine Mfrs. Ass'n v. S. Coast Air Quality Mgmt. Dist., 124 S. Ct. 1756, 1761 (2004) (citation omitted). In the Section 11 context, this presumption is heightened by the fact that "in the securities Acts Congress has used its words with precision." Nuveen, 450 U.S. at 1009 (Powell, J., dissenting from denial of cert.).

Section 11(b) plainly commands that underwriters conduct an investigation as to portions of a registration statement not made on the authority of an expert. "When a word is not defined by statute, we normally construe it in accord with its ordinary or natural meaning." Smith v. United States, 508 U.S. 223, 228 (1993). Today, as in 1933 when Section 11 became law, the word "investigation" connotes a "thorough" or "searching inquiry." Compare Webster's New International Dictionary of the English Language 1306 (2d ed. 1934) ("Webster's 1934") with Webster's Third New International Dictionary of the English Language 1189 (1993) ("Webster's 1993"). Then and now, it can also mean the process of investigating. See Webster's 1934 at 1306; Webster's 1993 at 1189. Under this latter definition, an investigation is no less demanding, as the word "investigate" is defined as "to inquire and examine into with systematic attention to detail and relationship." Webster's 1934 at 1306; see also Webster's 1993 at 1189 ("to inquire into systematically.")

G. The Application of the Law to This Motion

The Underwriter Defendants have moved for summary judgment on each of the alleged misstatements in the 2000 and 2001 Registration Statements. The Underwriter Defendants analyze each of the misstatements (as opposed to the omissions) that the Lead Plaintiff has alleged as quintessentially matters of accounting. Most of the misstatements are financial figures from WorldCom's Exchange Act reports that were incorporated by reference into the Registration Statements. Additional misstatements include management's comparison of financial figures from one period to the next, statements by WorldCom's management describing accounting policies and future expectations, and the use of proceeds. The Underwriter Defendants contend that they are entitled to summary judgment on their affirmative defenses of reliance and due diligence because they were entitled to rely on Andersen's audits and comfort letters. The analysis that follows distinguishes between the expertised and non-expertised statements which are the subject of this motion.

1. Audited Financial Statements

The Underwriter Defendants contend that they were entitled to rely on Andersen's unqualified "clean" audit opinions for WorldCom's 1999 and 2000 Form 10-Ks as expertised statements under Section 11(b)(3)(C). Their motion for summary judgment on their reliance defense is denied.

a. 2000 Registration Statement

The Lead Plaintiff points to one issue that it contends gave the Underwriter Defendants a reasonable ground to question the reliability of WorldCom's 1999 Form 10-K. According to the computations presented by the Lead Plaintiff, WorldCom's reported E/R ratio was significantly lower than that of the equivalent numbers of its two closest competitors, Sprint and AT&T.[47] The Lead Plaintiff argues that, in the extremely competitive market in which WorldCom operated, that discrepancy triggered a duty to investigate such a crucial measurement of the company's health. The Lead Plaintiff has shown that there are issues of fact as to whether the Underwriter Defendants had reasonable grounds to believe that the 1999 Form 10-K was inaccurate in the lines related to the E/R ratio reflected in that filing.

[47] WorldCom's E/R ratio was 43%. The expert for the Lead Plaintiff calculates that AT&T's equivalent ratio was 46.8% and Sprint's was 53.2%.

The Underwriter Defendants argue that the difference in the E/R ratios was insufficient as a matter of law to put the Underwriter Defendants on notice of any accounting irregularity. In support of this, they point to the fact that this difference was publicly available information and no one else announced a belief that it suggested the existence of an accounting fraud at WorldCom.

The fact that the difference was publicly available information does not absolve the Underwriter Defendants of their duty to bring their expertise to bear on the issue. The Underwriter Defendants do not dispute that they were required to be familiar with the Exchange Act filings that were incorporated by reference into the Registration Statement. If a "prudent man in the management of his own property," 15 U.S.C. § 77k(c), upon reading the 1999 Form 10-K and being familiar with the other relevant information about the issuer's competitors would have questioned the accuracy of the figures, then those figures constituted a red flag and imposed a duty of investigation on the Underwriter Defendants. A jury would be entitled to find that this difference was of sufficient importance to have triggered a duty to investigate the reliability of the figures on which the ratio was based even though the figures had been audited.

The Underwriter Defendants contend that an audited figure can never constitute a red flag and impose a duty of investigation. This argument mischaracterizes the Lead

Plaintiff's position. The Lead Plaintiff has pointed to facts extraneous to WorldCom's audited figures to argue that a reasonable person would have inquired further about the discrepancy between the audited figures and the comparable information from competitors.[48] As discussed above, the existence of red flags can create a duty to investigate even audited financial statements.

The Underwriter Defendants argue that the standard that should apply is whether they had "clear and direct notice" of an "accounting" problem. They argue that case law establishes that "ordinary business events" do not constitute red flags. They are wrong. There is no basis in law to find a requirement that a red flag arises only when there is "clear and direct" notice of an accounting issue. The standard under Section 11 is whether a defendant has proven that it had "no reasonable ground to believe and did not believe" that a registration statement contained material misstatements, a standard given meaning by what a "prudent man" would do in the management of his own property. Nor is the bar lowered because there is an expert's opinion on which an underwriter is entitled to rely. The "prudent man"

[48] The Underwriter Defendants assert that they were extremely knowledgeable about the telecommunications industry and had a sophisticated understanding of it and WorldCom's place within that industry due to their continuous due diligence over the years. They do not deny that they were, and were required to be, in a position to understand and analyze the significance of a variation in E/R ratios.

standard applies to Section 11(b)(3)(C). Finally, what constitutes an ordinary business event and what constitutes a red flag is an issue of fact. These are exquisitely fact intensive inquiries that depend on the circumstances surrounding a particular issuer and the alleged misstatement. There is no category of information which can always be ignored by an underwriter on the ground that it constitutes an ordinary business event. What is ordinary in one context may be sufficiently unusual in another to create a duty of investigation by a "prudent man."

In their analysis of the E/R ratio discrepancy itself, the Underwriter Defendants contend that a difference in ratios is not necessarily suspicious in a competitive industry and that the Lead Plaintiff's expert has incorrectly calculated the comparable ratios for AT&T and Sprint.[49] Each of these arguments raises questions of fact that must be resolved at trial.

[49] The Underwriter Defendants contend that the Lead Plaintiff's expert has included costs AT&T and Sprint incurred to operate their own lines, while WorldCom's E/R ratio is based solely on the amount it pays to others for access to lines. In their reply brief, the Underwriter Defendants represent that Lead Plaintiff's expert calculates that the line costs for 1999 were understated by $60 million, which would have had a minimal effect on the E/R ratio. They argue that this discrepancy was not material. Arguments made for the first time in reply will not be considered.

b. 2001 Registration Statement

The Lead Plaintiff points to three issues that it contends imposed upon the Underwriter Defendants a duty to investigate the reliability of WorldCom's 2000 Form 10-K. They are the discrepancy between WorldCom's E/R ratio and that of its competitors; the deterioration in the MCI long-distance business, which the Lead Plaintiff alleges should have caused them to question the accuracy of WorldCom's reported assets;[50] and Ebbers' personal financial situation, which gave him both the motive and opportunity to inflate WorldCom's stock price through manipulation.

The Underwriter Defendants' general arguments about the nature of the reliance defense insofar as it concerns audited information have already been addressed. The arguments that are particular to the individual red flags identified by the Lead Plaintiff are addressed below. The Underwriter Defendants have shown that they are entitled to summary judgment on the issue of whether Ebbers' financial situation constituted a red flag that imposed upon them the duty of inquiry.

[50] When WorldCom acquired MCI for $47 billion, $29 billion of that purchase price was attributed to goodwill, which is treated as an intangible asset.

16div-023242

i. Goodwill and Asset Impairment

The Underwriter Defendants make several arguments concerning the issue of goodwill and asset impairment. They contend that it was public knowledge that AT&T and Sprint took asset impairment charges to their core networks in 2000 while WorldCom did not, that the telecommunications sector was in decline, and that analysts had described the equity value of the MCI tracking stock as close to zero. To the extent that these arguments are meant to suggest that bondholders cannot show that they relied on any misstatement in the WorldCom financials, there is no requirement of such a showing under either Section 11 or Section 12(a)(2). Furthermore, the issue in connection with the reliance defense is not whether the red flag information was well known, but whether the red flags existed and imposed a duty upon the Underwriter Defendants under the "prudent man" standard to inquire of WorldCom and/or Andersen about the reporting of WorldCom's assets because the Underwriter Defendants had a reasonable ground to believe that the reporting of assets may have been inaccurate.

The Underwriter Defendants next contend that WorldCom's treatment of the accounting issue was defensible.[51] The Underwriter Defendants may be able to establish at trial that there was no misrepresentation of WorldCom's assets, but they have not moved for summary judgment on that ground. Instead, they have moved for summary judgment on their reliance defense by arguing that they had no duty to make any inquiry regarding the accuracy of WorldCom's statement of its assets. The Lead Plaintiff has shown that there are issues of fact regarding WorldCom's statement of its assets that a jury may find raised a red flag and imposed upon the Underwriter Defendants the obligation to inquire.

ii. Ebbers' Personal Finances

The Underwriter Defendants are entitled to summary judgment on the issue of whether Ebbers' personal financial situation, and in particular the extent to which his wealth was dependent on WorldCom's stock price, imposed upon them an obligation to inquire. The Lead Plaintiff has shown that the Underwriter Defendants were well aware of the complexity of Ebbers' personal finances and the extraordinary extent to which those finances were dependent on the movement in WorldCom's stock price. They had access to information which painted a much starker picture in this regard than the public record. The Lead Plaintiff has also shown that the Underwriter Defendants should have understood that Ebbers was in a position to affect the integrity of WorldCom's financial reporting. What the Lead Plaintiff has not shown is that the Underwriter Defendants had any reason to believe that Ebbers would use his access and power to commit fraud.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018182

16div-023244

The "motive and opportunity" cases that arise in the context of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act have limited relevance here. The issue under Section 10(b) is whether a plaintiff has adequately pleaded an officer's motive and opportunity to engage in fraud such that the defendant's scienter has been adequately alleged. See, e.g., Acito v. IMCERA Group, 47 F.3d 47, 54 (2d Cir. 1995). The issue here is whether the Underwriter Defendants' knowledge of Ebbers, incldiing his financial circumstances, gave them reason to believe the WorldCom audited financial statements were inaccurate. Without some evidence that the Underwriter Defendants had reason to believe that Ebbers was untrustworthy, his dependence on WorldCom's financial health, even though extraordinary, is insufficient to constitute a red flag that he may have caused a manipulation of WorldCom's financial statements.

iii. E/R Ratio

The Underwriter Defendants rely on many of the arguments that they made regarding the E/R ratio in connection with the 2000 Registration Statement. The Lead Plaintiff has shown that there are issues of fact as to whether the discrepancy in the WorldCom E/R ratio, when compared to comparable companies' E/R ratios, was sufficient to cause a prudent man to make an inquiry regarding the accuracy of the 2000 Form 10-K.

2. Interim Financial Statements

The Underwriter Defendants contend that, pursuant to Sections 11(b)(3)(A) and 12(a)(2), they were entitled to rely on Andersen's comfort letters for WorldCom's unaudited interim financial statements for the first quarter of 2000 and 2001 so long as the Lead Plaintiff is unable to show that the Underwriter Defendants were on notice of any accounting red flags. They argue that this statement of the due diligence defense is particularly appropriate because WorldCom was a seasoned issuer and the Registration Statements were part of the integrated disclosure system that allowed the Exchange Act periodic reports to be incorporated by reference. The Underwriter Defendants contend that "Form S-3 issuers" like WorldCom are only required to include transaction-related information in a Form S-3 prospectus and that the information contained in the Exchange Act filings which are incorporated by reference do not need to be repeated. They argue that in the context of integrated disclosure for shelf registrations, and as a result of SEC Rule 176, the focus is on an underwriter's continuous learning about an "industry" and reasonable reliance on other professionals, such as an issuer's auditor. As a consequence, they contend that there is no difference from the point of view of the underwriter between audited and unaudited financial statements so long as the underwriter receives an auditor's comfort letter. According to the Underwriter Defendants, so long as there are no red flags that bring the auditor's assessment into question, the receipt of a comfort letter "goes a long way to establish" due diligence with respect to all matters of accounting. They ask for a legal ruling that "an underwriter's investigation of accounting issues is reasonable when it rests on the independent auditor's SAS 71 review for interim financial statements," at least in the context of seasoned issuers engaged in a shelf registration. Finally, they argue that it is material that no amount of reasonable diligence could have uncovered the capitalization of line costs since the WorldCom management deliberately concealed it from Andersen and every other outsider and would never have given them any documents or information that would have revealed the fraud.

018184

Andersen issued a May 19 comfort letter and May 23 bringdown comfort letter for the 2000 Offering. Andersen issued comfort letters on May 9 and 16 for the 2001 Offering. These comfort letters addressed the only interim financial statements that were incorporated by reference in the Registration Statements. In connection with the latter Offering, the Underwriter Defendants emphasize that J.P. Morgan and SSB had recently had occasion to work closely with WorldCom on other projects. The two firms had participated in the two tracking stock realignment of WorldCom announced in November 2000, and J.P. Morgan had acted as a lead manager and sole book-runner for WorldCom's $2 billion private placement in December 2000. They point to these activities as part of their continuous due diligence for WorldCom.

018185

To prevail on their due diligence defense at trial, the Underwriter Defendants must show that they conducted a reasonable investigation and that after such an investigation that they had reasonable ground to believe that the statements in the Registration Statements, including the information in the unaudited interim financial statements, were true. See 15 U.S.C. § 77k(b)(3)(A). In judging that investigation, a jury will have to consider the non-exclusive list of factors enumerated in Rule 176. Insofar as Rule 176 is concerned, there does not appear to be any dispute that WorldCom was a "well-established" issuer, that the notes at issue were investment-grade debt securities, that SSB and J.P. Morgan assigned experienced personnel to the due diligence teams, that they spoke to the issuer's CFO and in 2001 also spoke to Andersen, that the underwriting was a firm commitment underwriting, that the underwriting was through a shelf registration, that many analysts and credit reporting agencies followed and reported on WorldCom, that the issuer and not the Underwriter Defendants had responsibility for preparing the interim financial statements, and that Andersen and not the Underwriter Defendants had responsibility for reviewing the interim financial statements.

The Lead Plaintiff has shown that there are questions of fact, however, as to whether the Underwriter Defendants conducted a reasonable investigation in either 2000 or 2001. It points to what it contends is evidence of the limited number of conversations with the issuer or its auditor, the cursory nature of the inquiries, the failure to go behind any of the almost formulaic answers given to questions, and the failure to inquire into issues of particular prominence in the Underwriter Defendants' own internal evaluations of the financial condition of the issuer or in the financial press. It argues in particular with respect to 2001, that having internally downgraded WorldCom's credit rating and having taken steps to limit their exposure as WorldCom creditors, the Underwriter Defendants were well aware that WorldCom was in a deteriorating financial position in a troubled industry, and that a reasonable investigation would have entailed a more searching inquiry than that undertaken by the Underwriter Defendants. Given the enormity of these two bond offerings, and the general deterioration in WorldCom's financial situation, at least as of the time of the 2001 Offering, they argue that a particularly probing inquiry by a prudent underwriter was warranted. These issues of fact require a jury trial.[52]

98181O

---

[52] To the extent that the Lead Plaintiff seeks to find an issue of fact from the differences between the comfort letters provided in 2000 and 2001, that argument does not seem particularly strong. The 2001 Registration Statement incorporated WorldCom's Form 8-K for the first quarter of 2001, while the 2000 Registration Statement incorporated Worldcom's Form 10-Q for the first quarter. The Underwriter Defendants appear to have shown that in 2001 Andersen gave the appropriate form of comfort letter for a Form 8-K.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018187

16div-023249

The Underwriter Defendants have framed their summary judgment motion in a way that is incompatible with their burden of proving their due diligence defense under Section 11. They seek to restrict the inquiry on their due diligence solely to the work undertaken with respect to the interim financial statements and therefore to restrict it to a determination of whether any red flags existed that would put them on notice of a duty to make an inquiry of the interim financial statements. This formulation converts the due diligence defense into the reliance defense and balkanizes the task of due diligence.

In order to succeed with a due diligence defense, the Underwriter Defendants will have to show that they conducted a reasonable investigation of the non-expertised portions of the Registration Statements and thereafter had reasonable ground to believe that the interim financial statements were true. In assessing the reasonableness of the investigation, their receipt of the comfort letters will be important evidence, but it is insufficient by itself to establish the defense.

It is important to note that even if no reasonable investigation would have uncovered a fraud, an underwriter will prevail on its defense if can show it did conduct a reasonable investigation. Conversely, an underwriter must conduct a reasonable investigation to prevail on the due diligence defense, even if it appears that such an investigation would have proven futile in uncovering the fraud. Without a reasonable investigation, of course, it can never be known what would have been uncovered or what additional disclosures would have been demanded.

018188

The Underwriter Defendants argue that if they are not entitled to rely on a comfort letter, the costs of capital formation in the United States will be substantially increased since underwriters will have to hire their own accounting firms to rehash the work of the issuer's auditor. Nothing in this Opinion should be read as imposing that obligation on underwriters or the underwriting process. The term "reasonable investigation" encompasses many modes of inquiry between obtaining comfort letters from an auditor and doing little more, on one hand, and having to re-audit a company's books on the other. Nonetheless, if aggressive or unusual accounting strategies regarding significant issues come to light in the course of a reasonable investigation, a prudent underwriter may choose to consult with accounting experts to confirm that the accounting treatment is appropriate and that additional disclosure is unnecessary. See Software Toolworks, 50 F.3d at 624.

Underwriters perform a different function from auditors. They have special access to information about an issuer at a critical time in the issuer's corporate life, at a time it is seeking to raise capital. The public relies on the underwriter to obtain and verify relevant information and then make sure that essential facts are disclosed.[53] Acting with the degree of diligence that applies to a prudent man when managing his own property, underwriters should ask those questions and seek those answers that are appropriate in the circumstances. They are not being asked to duplicate the work of auditors, but to conduct a reasonable investigation. If their initial investigation leads them to question the accuracy of financial reporting, then the existence of an audit or a comfort letter will not excuse the failure to follow through with a subsequent investigation of the matter. If red flags arise from a reasonable investigation, underwriters will have to make sufficient inquiry to satisfy themselves as to the accuracy of the financial statements, and if unsatisfied, they must demand disclosure, withdraw from the underwriting process, or bear the risk of liability.

An underwriter should, and the Underwriter Defendants here certainly did, have the "business and financial expertise to identify the weak points in an issuer's business and financial condition and to assess the adequacy of an issuer's disclosure in this regard." Task Force Report, 48 Bus. Law. at 1222. It is in part because underwriters have taken their responsibilities seriously in this regard that, from the perspective of over seventy years, the Securities Act has been an effective instrument of regulation. The question the jury will have to decide here is whether the Underwriter Defendants have fulfilled that obligation in the context of the two WorldCom Offerings.

The Underwriter Defendants contend that they will be able to show at trial that the continuous due diligence that they performed with respect to WorldCom amounted to a reasonable investigation for both Offerings. This Opinion does not address the likelihood of that showing because the Underwriter Defendants have not moved for summary judgement on that ground. For that reason, it is also unnecessary to address their arguments about the difficulty of meeting the traditional standard for due diligence in the context of integrated disclosure and shelf registrations. In any event, the Underwriter Defendants have not shown that the prudent man standard in Section 11 has been diluted by any regulatory changes. The processes through which and the timing in which due diligence is performed have changed, but the ultimate test of reasonable conduct in the specific circumstances of an offering remains unchanged.

IV. The Underwriter Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment: Omissions

The Underwriter Defendants have also moved for summary judgment on each of the omissions from the Registration Statements that underlie the Securities Act claims. The alleged omissions are numerous. The Lead Plaintiff has identified twenty omissions from the 2000 Registration Statement, and forty-two from the 2001 Registration Statement.[54] The Underwriter Defendants have shown that they are entitled to summary judgment on some of these alleged omissions.

018191

A. 2000 Registration Statement

The identified omissions from the 2000 Registration Statement are that it:

1. Failed to disclose WorldCom's lack of a strategic plan if the Sprint merger failed, leaving the Company without a wireless business.

2. Failed to disclose WorldCom's serious problems with obtaining the requisite regulatory approvals for the Sprint merger, including the fact that on May 18, 2000, a committee of the Department of Justice recommended that the Department block the merger.

3. Failed to disclose adequately that WorldCom was experiencing continued difficulty with its MCI long-distance business segment.

4. Failed to disclose adequately that the proliferation of new competitors in the voice long-distance business was having a negative impact on WorldCom's revenue and cash generation.

5. Failed to disclose adequately that the WorldCom Group's stated plan of focusing on high-growth data and Internet segments was almost entirely dependent on the Company's ability to stabilize cash flows in its long-distance business.

6. Failed to disclose the extent to which consumer and wholesale long-distance revenue was declining and was expected to decline.

7. Failed to disclose adequately that, while the Company intended to increase revenues by focusing on providing data services, this segment of WorldCom's business required large infusions of capital.

8. Failed to disclose adequately that WorldCom's future performance was contingent upon the success of its data and IP [Internet portal] initiatives.

9. Failed to disclose that certain of the Underwriter Defendants suffered from conflicts of interest that affected their ability to conduct a reasonable due diligence investigation in connection with the May 2000 Offering, including the following:

a. The fact that WorldCom selected the Underwriter Defendants for the May 2000 Offering based, at least in part, on the amount of credit that the Underwriter Defendants' commercial banking affiliates agreed to extend to WorldCom, rather than on the basis of merit;

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018193

b. The fact that WorldCom selected the Underwriter Defendants for the May 2000 Offering based, at least in part, on the ratings that the Underwriter Defendants' research analysts had provided WorldCom;

c. The fact that certain of the Underwriter Defendants, and their corporate affiliates, extended millions of dollars in loans to WorldCom's CEO Bernie Ebbers in exchange for WorldCom's investment banking business; and

d. The fact that Salomon Smith Barney allocated numerous shares of initial public offering[s] to WorldCom officers and directors - enabling them to make millions of dollars in risk-free profits - in exchange for WorldCom's investment banking business.

10. Failed to include a risk factor section, despite the fact that WorldCom's business was facing a number of significant risks.

11. Failed to disclose that Ebbers was encumbered with a staggering amount of personal debt - much of which was extended by certain of the Underwriter Defendants and their affiliates and much of which was guaranteed by Ebbers' WorldCom shares - such that he faced personal financial ruin if the price of WorldCom stock dropped.

12. Failed to disclose the numerous outside business ventures in which Ebbers was involved, in addition to what was supposed to be his full-time job as WorldCom's CEO, and that he undoubtedly was distracted by the demands of those other businesses.

13. Failed to disclose the lack of any meaningful internal accounting controls at WorldCom.

14. Failed to disclose the lack of Board oversight at WorldCom, including the Board's failure to carefully consider large corporate transactions and its abdication of authority to Ebbers and Sullivan.

15. Failed to disclose that personnel assigned by the Underwriter Defendants to conduct due diligence on the Company were not able to form a view about what events or conditions were material to WorldCom.

16. Failed to disclose that the Underwriter Defendants had failed to conduct a reasonable investigation to determine whether WorldCom had the ability to service the debt it was assuming in the May 2000 Offering.

17. Failed to disclose that the audit committee of WorldCom's Board of Directors was not actively involved in discharging its duty to oversee the auditing of the Company's financial statements.

18. Failed to disclose that WorldCom provided significantly less financial information regarding its business segments to the public than its competitors.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018195

19. Failed to disclose the lack of meaningful debt planning by the Company or its advisors, including the lack of analysis to assess whether the Company could maintain the debt it incurred.

20. Failed to disclose that WorldCom's acquisition of SkyTel Communications ("SkyTel") had not been properly considered by WorldCom's Board and that it was not a sound business decision.

The Underwriter Defendants seek summary judgment on all of these purported material omissions. The Lead Plaintiff opposes summary judgment with respect to three groups of the listed omissions from the 2000 Registration Statement: the Sprint merger, the conflicts of interest, and risk factors. The last category encompasses several of the separately listed omissions. Because the Lead Plaintiff has not addressed the Underwriter Defendants' arguments in support of summary judgment on omission items 12-18, and 20, summary judgment is granted with respect to them. Summary judgment is denied on the items related to the remaining three issues.

1. Sprint Merger

The 2000 Registration Statement did not discuss the May 18 decision by officials in the antitrust division of the Department of Justice to recommend against approval of the merger or the impact that a failure to merge would have on WorldCom. The 2000 Registration Statement did disclose that "the merger is subject to the receipt of consents and approvals from various government entities, which may jeopardize or delay completion of the merger." The Underwriter Defendants argue that they had no duty to handicap the chances that the merger would be approved, and that many articles on May 18 discussed the antitrust decision and the likelihood that it would be reversed or upheld.

A duty to disclose exists "when disclosure is necessary to make prior statements not misleading." In re Time Warner Sec. Litig., 9 F.3d 259, 268 (2d Cir. 1993) (citation omitted). Once a potential merger is disclosed by an issuer, there is a duty to "update opinions and projections . . . if the original opinions or projections have become misleading as the result of intervening events." Id. at 267.

Moreover, cautionary language within a registration statement indicating that a merger is subject to certain conditions does not necessarily mean that an underwriter has satisfied its disclosure duties. A defendant may not be liable for misrepresentations in a registration statement if they were "sufficiently balanced by cautionary language within the same prospectus such that no reasonable investor would be misled about the nature and risk of the offered security." P. Stolz Family P'ship, L.P. v. Daum, 355 F.3d 92, 96 (2d Cir. 2004); see also Halperin, 295 F.3d at 357. Yet "the misrepresentation of present or historical facts cannot be cured by cautionary language."

Daum, 355 F.3d at 96-97. The type of cautionary language that gives shelter to Section 11 and 12(a)(2) defendants is that > aimed at warning investors that bad things may come to pass -- in dealing with the contingent or unforeseen future. Historical or present fact -- knowledge within the grasp of the offeror -- is a different matter. Such facts exist and are known; they are not unforeseen or contingent. It would be perverse indeed if an offeror could knowingly misrepresent historical facts but at the same time disclaim those misrepresented facts with cautionary language.

Id. at 97. "When objectively verifiable factors cause a significant change in a party's attitude toward a merger . . . the securities laws may require that previously disclosed intentions be corrected." In re Gulf Oil/Cities Serv. Tender Offer Litig., 725 F. Supp. 712, 748 (S.D.N.Y. 1989).

An underwriter can be relieved of a duty to disclose when certain developments affecting a corporation become "matters of general public knowledge." Seibert v. Sperry Rand Corp., 586 F.2d 949, 952 (2d Cir. 1978). As the Second Circuit stated in Seibert, "there is no duty to disclose information to one who reasonably should already be aware of it"; rather, "where information is equally available to both parties, a defendant should not be held liable to the plaintiff under the securities laws for failure to disclose." Id. (citation omitted). In Seibert, for instance, the Second Circuit granted summary judgment for the defendants, who were accused of violating Section 14(a) of the Exchange Act, on the grounds that "any reasonable shareholder who was not already familiar with [the allegedly omitted information] had this information readily available to him" in the form of a nationwide consumer boycott accompanied by "massive media advertising," pervasive press coverage, congressional debate, and administrative and judicial opinions. Id.

Nonetheless, the Second Circuit has more recently found that there are "serious limitations" on a Section 11 defendant's ability to "charge its stockholders with knowledge of information omitted from a . . . prospectus on the basis that the information is public knowledge and otherwise available to them." Kronfeld, 832 F.2d at 736. Moreover, sporadic press reports or reports published in other contexts may "not be considered to be part of the information that was reasonably available" to investors. United Paperworkers Int'l Union v. Int'l Paper Co., 985 F.2d 1190, 1199 (2d Cir. 1993).

The Sprint merger was a principal focus of the 2000 Registration Statement, in particular the May 19 Prospectus Supplement,[55] which contained a pro forma consolidated financial statement for the post-merger company. Given that the announcement of the antitrust division posed a serious obstacle to obtaining the requisite regulatory approvals for the Sprint Merger, Lead Plaintiff may be able to show that the failure to describe those problems and their impact on WorldCom was a material omission and that the boilerplatebn language in the Registration Statement warning investors that the merger was subject to regulatory approval was inadequate. While the May 18 decision may have been a matter of wide public knowledge, there is an issue of fact as to whether WorldCom's own failure to describe those problems and their impact on WorldCom was material.

[55] The Underwriter Defendants contend that the Prospectus Supplement was filed on May 12 and not May 19. They are wrong. There is a Prospectus that is dated May 12, 2000. This document is attached to the Prospectus Supplement dated May 19, 2000. On its first and last pages, the Prospectus Supplement indicates that its date of filing is May 19, and that it includes the May 12 Prospectus.

2. Conflicts of Interest

The Underwriter Defendants contend that the amalgam of conflict of interest allegations omitted from the 2000 Registration Statement should be dismissed principally because there was no duty to disclose these facts. They point out that it is not illegal for banks to lend money, to underwrite bonds, to issue research reports, or to make a profit from doing each of these activities. They urge that it is a matter of opinion rather than fact as to whether their agreement to lend money to WorldCom or to Ebbers, their issuance of favorable analyst reports about WorldCom, or their decision to give WorldCom officers IPO shares[56] was behind their selection as underwriters. The Underwriter Defendants also point out that many of these industry practices were the subject of press reports.

The primary function of a registration statement is to disclose information about the issuer, not its underwriters. Indeed, the regulations governing the form and content of registration statements do not require many underwriter-specific disclosures. Regulation S-K, for example, simply "requires an issuer to identify each underwriter with a material relationship with the issuer and the nature of the relationship, the underwriter's obligation to take securities, the underwriter's compensation, the existence of any underwriter's representatives on the issuer's board of directors, and any indemnity provided to the underwriter." Degulis v. LXR Biotech., Inc., 928 F. Supp. 1301, 1314 (S.D.N.Y. 1996); see also 17 C.F.R. § 229.508(a),(e), (f), (g). It is also worth noting that although Item 508(a) of Regulation S-K requires each underwriter with a material relationship with a "registrant" to "state the nature of the relationship," 17 C.F.R. § 229.508(a), the term "registrant" refers only to an issuer of securities and not to its employees, officers, or directors. See, e.g., 17 C.F.R. § 230.100(a)(4) ("[a]s used in the rules and regulations prescribed in this part by the Securities and Exchange Commission pursuant to the Securities Act of 1933," registrant means the "issuer of securities for which a registration statement is filed" unless context requires otherwise).

While Regulation S-K requires disclosure of limited underwriter-related information, "no authority suggests that Regulation S-K is preemptive of the materiality requirement." Degulis, 928 F. Supp. at 1314. As stated previously, the regulations accompanying Section 11 include a catch-all provision, Rule 408, that requires registration statements to contain, "in addition to the information expressly required to be included in a registration statement. . . such further material information, if any, as may be necessary to make the required statements, in the light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading." 17 C.F.R. § 230.408.

Information regarding relationships that undermine the independence of an underwriter's judgment about the quality of the investment can be material to an investor. As a consequence, non-disclosure of an underwriter or issuer's conflicts of interest can constitute material omissions, even where no regulation expressly compels the disclosure of such conflicts. SEC v. Softpoint, Inc., 958 F. Supp. 846, 863 (S.D.N.Y. 1997) (corporation paid money to brokerage firms in exchange for their cooperation in illegally liquidating unregistered stock); SEC v.

See also Jenny v. Shearson, Hammill, & Co., No. 74 Civ. 3526, 1981 WL 1611, at *5 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 20, 1981) (brokerage's failure to disclose investment banking relationship with issuers).

The Lead Plaintiff has presented sufficient information to raise questions of fact as to the adequacy of the disclosures in the 2000 Registration Statement concerning the relationship between certain of the underwriters, including the co-lead underwriters, and WorldCom. The jury will have to determine whether press reports about such topics as the spinning of IPO shares and bankers' dual roles as analysts and underwriters were sufficient to make it unnecessary to provide further disclosure within the Registration Statement. The jury will also have to determine whether the relationships between Ebbers and the bankers were so significant, given Ebbers' prominent position within the registrant and his power to affect their selection as underwriters for a bond offering, that a description of that relationship was material and required to be disclosed by Rule 408.[57]

[57] The Underwriter Defendants contend that any ruling that it is for the jury to decide whether it was a material omission to fail to disclose their economic entanglements with Ebbers will require disclosure in every underwriting of home mortgages, student loans, and checking and savings accounts. This very list

3. Risk Factors

The Lead Plaintiff contends that the 2000 Registration Statement was required by Item 503(c) of Regulation S-K to include a risk factors section that discussed WorldCom's ability to sustain its debt load, its reliance on borrowed money to fund its operations, its problems placing its commercial paper, its lack of positive cash-flow, and its underperforming stock.[58] The Underwriter Defendants contend that as an investment grade company, WorldCom only had to describe in a risk factors section those "special circumstances" that had arisen since its last public filing and that the 2000 Registration Statement did so in its detailed discussion of the Sprint merger. They also assert that each of the risk factors identified by the Lead Plaintiff was in any event adequately disclosed, albeit not in a section denominated for risk factors.

underscores the difference between ordinary arrangements between employees and banks and the extraordinary financial relationships between the Underwriter Defendants and Ebbers. The Lead Plaintiff has presented sufficient evidence for a fact finder to conclude that Ebbers' arrangements with the Underwriter Defendants were of a magnitude and complexity to be both extraordinary and material to investors. Should the jury agree, such a decision should not be read as indicating that there is a duty to disclose an executive's ordinary banking arrangements and relationships.

[58] This list is taken from the Lead Plaintiff's June 14, 2004 Supplemental Responses to Underwriter-Related Defendants' Second Set of Interrogatories. The list omits those items where the Lead Plaintiff did not respond to the arguments made by the Underwriter Defendants.

Item 503(c) of Regulation S-K requires that a registration statement "must" include "where appropriate. . . a discussion of the most significant factors that make the offering speculative or risky." 17 C.F.R. § 229.508(c). With respect to the form and scope of a risk factors section, Item 503 directs that the risk factors discussion "be concise and organized logically. Do not present risks that could apply to any issuer or any offering. Explain how the risk affects the issuer or the securities being offered. Set forth each risk factor under a subcaption that adequately describes the risk." Id. In addition, Item 503 provides some guidance as to the issues that merit discussion in a risk factors section, explaining that

> The risk factors may include, among other things, the following:
> (1) Your lack of an operating history;
>
> (2) Your lack of profitable operations in recent periods;
>
> (3) Your financial position;
>
> (4) Your business or proposed business;
>
> (5) The lack of a market for your common equity securities or securities convertible into or exercisable for common equity securities.

Id. (emphasis supplied.)

SEC guidance surrounding the content of Item 503 has been limited. For instance, in proposed rules released last month, the SEC briefly stated that a risk factors discussion under Item 503 is intended to "describe the most significant factors that may adversely affect the issuer's business, operations, industry or financial position, or its future financial performance." Securities Offering Reform, SEC Release No. 8501, 2004 WL 2610458, at *86 (Nov. 3, 2004). Similarly, in providing guidance to issuers as to what they should disclose regarding their readiness for Y2K issues, the SEC advised in 1998 that a discussion of risk factors must be "specific to the particular company and its operations, and should explain how the risk affects the company and its operations, and should explain how the risk affects the company and/or the securities being offered. Generic or boilerplate discussions do not tell the investors how the risk may affect their investment." 'Statement of the Commission Regarding Disclosure of Year 2000 Issues and Consequences by Public Companies, Investment Advisers, Investment Companies, and Municipal Securities Issuers, SEC Release No. 7558, 1998 WL 425894, at *14 (July 29, 1998).

018205

When and if a prospectus must include a risk factor disclosure pursuant to Item 503 does not appear to have been discussed within the case law. Securities law commentators have noted that "even though the inclusion of a risk factors section in a prospectus filed under the 1933 Act is technically voluntary under Item 503(c) of Regulation S-K . . . this inclusion has become widely accepted as a sound and prudent defensive measure in an era marked by class action lawsuits." 2 Alan R. Bromberg & Lewis D. Lowenfels, Bromberg & Lowenfels on Securities Fraud and Commodities Fraud § 5:280 (2d ed. 2001). The SEC itself, however, has issued conflicting statements. While stating in 1983 that the disclosure of risk factors is "optional, at the discretion of the registrant," Registration Form Used by Open-End Management Investment Companies; Guidelines, SEC Release No. 6479, 1983 WL 35814, at *5 (Aug. 12, 1983), the SEC has suggested more recently that a risk factor discussion may be a necessity. Specifically, in 1998, the SEC proposed requiring risk factor disclosure in annual and quarterly reports filed pursuant to the Exchange Act and allowing reporting companies to incorporate risk factor disclosure into Securities Act registration statements. SEC Rel. 7606A, 63 Fed. Reg. at 67239. In so doing, it noted that > [m]ost Securities Act registration statements currently require an analysis of the risks associated with an investment in a company's securities. Item 503 of Regulation S-K describes that required disclosure as a "discussion of the most significant factors that make the offering speculative or risky." The Commission promulgated this requirement because it assists investors in comprehending more fully whether the securities present an appropriate level of risk for them as an investment.

The Lead Plaintiff has identified a constellation of material omissions from the 2000 Registration Statement that concern the profitability of WorldCom's long-distance voice business and the impact that decreasing profit margins in that part of its business were having and would have on WorldCom's ability to compete, in particular on its ability to pour capital into its data services and Internet portal initiatives. While the Registration Statement discusses repeatedly and in many contexts the intense competition that WorldCom was facing, the Lead Plaintiff has shown that there is a question of fact as to whether it adequately disclosed even to a careful reader the alleged precarious state of WorldCom's profit margins in a major component of its business -- the long-distance voice business -- and the impact of that problem on its business as a whole, including its ability to service its debt.[59] It has shown that [59] Among the passages in the 1999 Form 10-K and first quarter 2000 Form 10-Q on which the Underwriter Defendants rely as evidence of the adequacy of the disclosures in the 2000 Registration Statements are descriptions of increases in "voice revenues" that were partially offset by declines in "wholesale traffic" and federally mandated access charge reductions. They also point to descriptions in the 1999 Form 10-K of a number of factors that could impact WorldCom's ability to compete successfully in its data and Internet portal business and the statement that "[t]he success of MCI WorldCom will depend heavily upon its ability to provide high quality data communications services, including Internet connectivity and value-added Internet services at competitive prices." The Form 10-K added that "the Company's pursuit of necessary technological advances may require substantial time and expense," and devoted an entire paragraph to an explanation of the necessity for significant capital expenditures to develop a competitive business.

similar questions of fact exist at least as to WorldCom's disclosures regarding the burden of its debt load.[60]

The Underwriter Defendants contend that public reports from rating agencies described the competition that WorldCom faced from other carriers in the long-distance market and that WorldCom's revenue from that line of business was declining. The Lead Plaintiff has shown that the issue of the condition of WorldCom's long-distance business was of sufficient importance to the overall economic health of WorldCom that a fact-finder could determine that it was appropriate under Item 503, as well as material to investors, to have a more complete description from WorldCom itself of the state of that business.

B. 2001 Registration Statement

The Lead Plaintiff has identified forty-two purported material omissions from the 2001 Registration Statement. They are, that the document:

2. Failed to disclose that WorldCom had fraudulently under-reported its line costs in 2000 and the first quarter of 2001 by billions of dollars through the improper release of reserves.

3. Failed to disclose that WorldCom's business plan, in light of its failure to acquire Sprint, lacked a wireless strategy needed to compete effectively.

4. Failed to disclose adequately that the proliferation of new competitors in the voice long-distance business was having a negative impact on WorldCom's revenue and cash generation.

5. Failed to disclose that the WorldCom Group's stated plan of focusing on high-growth data and Internet segments was almost entirely dependent on the Company's ability to stabilize cash flows through the MCI Group.

6. Failed to disclose adequately that WorldCom was experiencing continued difficulty with its MCI long-distance business segment.

7. Failed to disclose the extent to which consumer and wholesale long-distance revenue was declining and was expected to decline.

8. Failed to disclose adequately that certain of the proceeds of the offering would be used to fund the Company's negative free cash flow.

9. Failed to disclose that certain of the Underwriter Defendants extended credit to WorldCom based on the promise of significant investment banking fees, planning immediately to reduce this exposure through transactions hidden from the Company and the investing public.

10. Failed to disclose that, while the Company intended to increase revenues by focusing on providing data services, this segment of WorldCom's business required large infusions of capital.

11. Failed to disclose that WorldCom's future performance was contingent upon the success of its data and IP initiatives.

12. Failed to disclose adequately the rapid rate at which WorldCom's debt leverage was rising and the effect this would have on the Company's liquidity.

13. Failed to disclose adequately the effect that the lack of a wireless component was having on WorldCom's business.

14. Failed to disclose adequately the liquidity threat from continuing pricing pressures in long-haul transport, consumer long distance and other business segments.

15. Failed to disclose adequately that the slowdown in corporate telecom spending due to a weakening global economy was adversely affecting WorldCom's financial health.

16. Failed to disclose that WorldCom provided significantly less financial information regarding its business segments to the public than its competitors.

17. Failed to disclose that WorldCom had not had a permanent Treasurer for many months and that the newly appointed Treasurer lack relevant experience.

18. Failed to disclose that personnel assigned by the Underwriter Defendants to conduct due diligence on the Company were not able to form a view about what events or conditions were material to WorldCom.

19. Failed to disclose there were concerns among certain of the Underwriter Defendants that the Company would be downgraded by Moody's.

20. Failed to disclose concerns among certain of the Underwriter Defendants that WorldCom would be unable to maintain its credit ratings after assuming the debt from the May 2001 Offering as well as the debt from the acquisition of Intermedia.

21. Failed to disclose that certain of the Underwriter Defendants suffered from conflicts of interest that affected their ability to conduct a reasonable due diligence investigation. . . .

22. Failed to disclose that several of the Underwriter Defendants had, in the months immediately preceding the May 2001 Offering, internally downgraded the Company's credit rating in recognition of WorldCom's deteriorating financial condition, and other Underwriter Defendants had expressed significant concerns about the Company's creditworthiness.

23. Failed to disclose that WorldCom would be required to fund Digex's significant operating losses, which would have a material adverse effect on WorldCom's financial condition.

24. Failed to disclose that Intermedia was subject to a going concern letter from its auditor Ernst & Young.

25. Failed to disclose that the Company would need to expend significant amounts of cash to fund Intermedia as a going concern, despite the absence of any meaningful return on this investment of cash.

26. Failed to disclose that there was no sound business reason for WorldCom to acquire Digex.

27. Failed to disclose that the Intermedia acquisition was not properly considered by WorldCom's Board of Directors prior to committing the Company to a purchase agreement.

28. Failed to disclose that WorldCom did inadequate due diligence on Intermedia before agreeing to purchase the company.

29. Failed to disclose the likelihood that the Company would not be able to sell the non-Digex assets of Intermedia, as required by the Department of Justice, for any material amount.

30. Failed to include a risk factor section, despite the fact that WorldCom's business was facing a number of significant risks.

31. Failed to disclose certain of the Underwriter Defendants' belief that WorldCom's institution of tracker stocks served no legitimate business purpose, and was done merely to attempt to disguise the deterioration in the business of WorldCom, Inc.

32. Failed to disclose the lack of any meaningful internal accounting controls at WorldCom.

33. Failed to disclose the lack of Board oversight at WorldCom, including the Board's failure to carefully consider large corporate transactions and its abdication of authority to Ebbers and Sullivan.

34. Failed to disclose the lack of meaningful debt planning by the Company or its advisors, including the lack of analysis to assess whether the Company could maintain the debt it incurred.

35. Failed to disclose that WorldCom's acquisition of SkyTel Communications had not been properly considered by WorldCom's Board and that it was not a sound business decision.

36. Failed to disclose that WorldCom's commercial paper credit rating prevented it from using commercial paper to fund its business plan and service its debt in the future.

37. Failed to disclose adequately the significant risk that WorldCom did not have the ability to service the debt it was assuming in the May 2001 Offering.

39. Failed to disclose the numerous outside business ventures in which Ebbers was involved, in addition to what was supposed to be his full-time job as WorldCom's CEO, and that he would undoubtedly be distracted by the demands of running these businesses.

40. Failed to disclose that certain Underwriter Defendants were concerned about Ebbers' long-term objectives and the depth of senior management on WorldCom's future financial health.

41. Failed to disclose that the Underwriter Defendants did not conduct an adequate investigation into Ebbers' ability to repay his personal loans, much of which was guaranteed by WorldCom.

42. Failed to disclose that the audit committee of WorldCom's Board of Directors was not actively involved in discharging its duty to oversee the auditing of the Company's financial statements.

The Underwriter Defendants have moved for summary judgment with respect to each of these alleged omissions. The Lead Plaintiff argues in response that the 2001 Registration Statement should have included discussions of the Underwriter Defendants' conflicted relationship with WorldCom and Ebbers, their decision to downgrade WorldCom as a credit risk and to hedge their own financial exposure to WorldCom, WorldCom's intent to use the proceeds of the offering to fund negative cash flow, and WorldCom's cash flow needs and ability to service its debt, as well as a risk factor section.[61]

For reasons similar to those discussed in connection with the 2000 Registration Statement, the motion for summary judgment on the claims based on the conflicts of interest, and WorldCom's cash flow and debt problems are denied. Because the Lead Plaintiff has not responded sufficiently to the arguments made by the Underwriter Defendants, or for the reasons explained herein,

---

[61] Although the Lead Plaintiff also refers to the problems that plagued the Intermedia acquisition, it does not respond to the detailed arguments made by the Underwriter Defendants outlining the disclosures about those problems in, inter alia, Intermedia's and WorldCom's public filings, including WorldCom's May 9, 2001 Form S-4 filed in connection with that merger. Similarly, although the Lead Plaintiff refers to the fact that the creation of the tracker stocks had no legitimate business purpose, it does not respond to the Underwriter Defendants' recitation of the extensive disclosures about these stocks and WorldCom's concommitant realignment of its business units. The Underwriter Defendants have shown that, given the extensive disclosures by WorldCom, they are entitled to summary judgment on the omissions relating to Intermedia and the tracker stocks.

the Underwriter Defendants' motion is granted for listed omissions 8, 16-20, 22-29, 31-33, 35, and 39-42. The motion is granted as to the omission of any disclosure that the Underwriter Defendants had internally downgraded WorldCom as a credit risk, and the omission from the use of proceeds section of the Registration Statement.

1. Downgrading WorldCom as a Credit Risk

In February 2001, several of the Underwriter Defendants internally downgraded their credit ratings for WorldCom and some of them took steps to minimize or hedge their own exposure stemming from their participation in WorldCom credit facilities. While the Underwriter Defendants did not publicly disclose their ratings during this same period S&P publicly downgraded its credit rating for WorldCom.

The SEC regulations do not include, in their lengthy and detailed description of facts to be disclosed in a registration statement, any requirement to disclose an underwriter's internal credit ratings for the issuer or an underwriter's management of its own exposure on loans to an issuer. See Schedule A to Section 7(a) of the Securities Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 77g(a), 77aa, and Reg. S-K, 17 C.F.R. § 229.10, et seq. The limited disclosures that the regulations do require regarding an underwriter have already been described.

018217

Regulation S-K permits the disclosure of an issuer's credit ratings but does not compel it. The SEC initially discouraged the disclosure of credit ratings publicly reported by credit agencies since the "rating represents the subjective opinion of the rating organization that cannot be verified or even explained by the issuer of the securities." Disclosure of Security Ratings in Registration Statements, SEC Release No. 6336, 1981 WL 30768, at *3 (Aug. 6, 1981) ("SEC Rel. 6336"). In 1981, however, the SEC revised its policy to "permit[] registrants to disclose, on a voluntary basis, ratings assigned by rating organizations to classes of debt securities . . . in registration statements and periodic reports." 17 C.F.R. § 229.10(c) (emphasis supplied). In so doing, the SEC noted the "significance and usefulness" of ratings to investors, market professionals, and regulatory bodies alike. SEC Rel. 6336, 1981 WL 30768, at *3. The SEC further emphasized that by enabling registrants to include security ratings assigned to a class of debt securities in a registration statement, it was not imposing "a mandatory rule in this area nor . . . indicating that issuers should disclose security ratings." Id. at *4.

The Underwriter Defendants had no obligation to disclose in the WorldCom Registration Statement information about their own internal credit ratings for WorldCom or their own hedging strategies for WorldCom debt that they held. These facts were unknown to WorldCom, and the Lead Plaintiff has not shown that the registration process requires disclosure of such facts.

0118218

This does not mean, however, that the Underwriter Defendants' internal credit ratings and hedging strategies are irrelevant to the issues to be tried. An underwriter's perception of the nature of the risks faced by a WorldCom creditor is some evidence of the existence of such risks, and thus reflects on the quality of disclosures that an underwriter was required to ensure were made through a registration statement.[62] Even if these internal downgrades and hedging activities need not be disclosed, the Lead Plaintiff has shown that they help to raise material issues of fact as to whether the 2001 Registration Statement adequately described the risk of investing in WorldCom.

2. Use of Proceeds

The Lead Plaintiff contends that it was a material omission not to disclose, in the "use of proceeds" section of the 2001 Registration Statement, that the proceeds would be used to fund

---

[62] The Underwriter Defendants' internal credit ratings for WorldCom and their hedging activities are also relevant to the due diligence defense that the Underwriter Defendants intend to proffer at trial. While the Underwriter Defendants argue that it is always prudent to hedge one's investments, it will be a question of fact for the jury whether the hedging activity undertaken here was in the ordinary course or because of special concern over WorldCom's economic health.

WorldCom's "negative cash flow." The Prospectus Supplement disclosed that the proceeds would be used for general corporate purposes, including "to repay commercial paper, which was used for general corporate purposes."

Item 504 of Regulation S-K requires a registration statement to disclose the "principal purposes for which the net proceeds to the registrant from the securities to be offered are intended to be used and the approximate amount intended to be used for each such purpose." 17 C.F.R. § 229.504 (emphasis supplied). While "[d]etails of proposed expenditures need not be given," the Instructions to Item 504 direct a registrant to consider "the need to include a discussion of certain matters addressed in the discussion and analysis of [the] registrant's financial condition." Id. Moreover, the Instructions explain that a registrant "may reserve the right to change the use of proceeds, provided that such reservation is due to certain contingencies that are discussed specifically and the alternatives to such use in that event are indicated." Id.

Last year, the Second Circuit affirmed the dismissal of a claim that a prospectus that stated that the proceeds would primarily be used as working capital for business expansion, including for "general corporate purposes," was false and misleading. DeMaria, 153 F. Supp. 2d at 313. The issuer's "alleged use of the proceeds in part to repay [] losses does not constitute a misstatement because a function of working capital is to fund operations." DeMaria, 153 F. Supp. 2d at 313. In contrast, an issuer's declaration in a prospectus that a portion of the proceeds from a debt offering would be used to repay in full certain short-term bank borrowings was actionable when substantially all of the proceeds were used for this purpose. Beecher v. Able, 374 F. Supp. 341, 355 (S.D.N.Y. 1974).

The disclosure that the proceeds would be used for "general corporate purposes" was broad enough to include the funding of negative cash flow. There is no misrepresentation about the use of proceeds, and Item 504 does not require disclosure of details. Whether the Registration Statement otherwise adequately disclosed material information about WorldCom's cash flow is more appropriately addressed in the context of its omission of a risk factors section.

3. Risk Factors

The Lead Plaintiff asserts that Item 503(c) of Regulation S-K required the 2001 Registration Statement to include a risk factors section that discussed WorldCom's ability to satisfy its debt burden and its lack of planning in that regard, the fact that it was not cash-flow positive, the problems it was experiencing placing its commercial paper, WorldCom's renegotiation of its credit facilities, and the fall in WorldCom's stock price.[63] The Underwriter Defendants rely on their argument that it is unnecessary to include a risk factors section in the Registration Statement unless there are "special circumstances" and that none existed here.

This prong of the Lead Plaintiff's case rests on its overarching argument that the 2001 Registration Statement did not adequately describe critical financial information about WorldCom that any reasonable investor would have wanted to have and that should have been included in the Registration Statement in a complete and accessible manner. Whether, when read as a whole, the 2001 Registration Statement adequately described WorldCom's financial position and the risks attendant to a purchase of WorldCom bonds is a question for the jury. In the event that the 2001 Registration Statement did adequately describe the risks, albeit not in a section labeled "risk factors," that description would ameliorate if not eliminate any argument that the failure to include the description a section labeled "risk factors" was material. The Lead Plaintiff has shown that there are questions of fact as to whether material information regarding WorldCom's

---

[63] This list of omitted risk factors is taken from the Lead Plaintiff's Supplemental Responses to the Underwriter-Related Defendants' Second Set of Interrogatories. The list omits certain items which are not discussed in the Lead Plaintiff's opposition to summary judgment. It also omits the fact that several of the senior underwriters had recently lowered their internal credit ratings for WorldCom. For reasons already discussed, there was no duty to disclose this last fact.

financial condition was omitted from the 2001 Registration Statement, and as to whether that omitted information was of the kind that should have been highlighted by including it in a section labeled "risk factors."

Conclusion

The motion by the Securities Industry Association and the Bond Market Association to appear as amici curiae is granted.

For the reasons stated herein, the parties' motions for summary judgment are each granted in part and denied in part.

The Lead Plaintiff's motion is granted as to WorldCom's 2001 Registration Statement insofar as it reported line costs in WorldCom's first quarter financial statement for 2001. The Underwriter Defendants' motion is granted as to listed omissions 12-18 and 20 for the 2000 Registration Statement, and 8, 16-20, 22-29, 31-33, 35, and 39-42 for the 2001 Registration Statement.

AGREEMENT AND PLAN OF MERGER

AGREEMENT AND PLAN OF MERGER (this "Agreement"), dated as of February 27, 1998, among Sunbeam Corporation, a Delaware corporation ("Laser"), Laser Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Laser ("Laser Merger Sub"), Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Parent Holdings"), and CLN Holdings Inc. ("Holdings"), a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Parent Holdings.

WHEREAS, the Boards of Directors of Laser, Laser Merger Sub, Parent Holdings and Holdings deem it advisable and in the best interests of their respective stockholders that Laser Merger Sub merge with and into Holdings (the "Holdings Merger"), and such Boards of Directors have approved the Holdings Merger upon the terms and conditions set forth herein;

WHEREAS, Parent Holdings, as the sole stockholder of Holdings, and Laser, as the sole stockholder of Laser Merger Sub, have approved this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby;

WHEREAS, at the Closing (as hereinafter defined), Laser and Parent Holdings shall enter into a registration rights agreement (the "Registration Rights Agreement") relating to the registration of the Laser Shares (as hereinafter defined) issuable to Parent Holdings in the Holdings Merger, in the form of Exhibit A hereto;

WHEREAS, for United States federal income tax purposes, it is intended that the Holdings Merger provided for herein shall qualify as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), and that this Agreement shall constitute a plan of reorganization; and

WHEREAS, Laser, Laser Merger Sub and Holdings desire to make certain representations, warranties, covenants and agreements in connection with the Holdings Merger and also to prescribe certain conditions to the Holdings Merger.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the foregoing and the respective representations, warranties, covenants and agreements set forth herein, the parties hereto agree as follows:

Section 1.2. Other Terms. Other terms may be defined elsewhere in the text of this Agreement and, unless otherwise indicated, shall have such meaning throughout this Agreement.

ARTICLE II

THE HOLDINGS MERGER

Section 2.1. The Holdings Merger. Upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth herein, and in accordance with the DGCL, at the Holdings Effective Time (as defined in Section 2.3 hereof), Laser Merger Sub shall be merged with and into Holdings. Following the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings shall continue as the surviving corporation (the "Surviving Corporation"), and the separate corporate existence of Laser Merger Sub shall cease. The Holdings Merger shall have the effects set forth in Section 259 of the DGCL.

Section 2.2. Closing. The closing of the Holdings Merger (the "Closing") will take place at 10:00 a.m. on a date to be specified by the parties (the "Closing Date"), which (subject to satisfaction or waiver of the conditions set forth in Article VIII) shall be no later than the third NYSE trading day after satisfaction or waiver of the conditions set forth in Section 8.1, at the offices of Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP, 919 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10022, unless another time, date or place is agreed to in writing by the parties hereto.

Section 2.3. Effective Time of the Holdings Merger. The Holdings Merger shall become effective on the date and at the time at which a properly executed certificate of merger (the "Certificate of Merger") is duly filed with the Secretary of State of the State of Delaware. The Certificate of Merger shall be filed as soon as practicable on or after the Closing Date. When used in this Agreement, the term "Holdings Effective Time" shall mean the date and time on which the Certificate of Merger is so filed.

Section 2.4. Certificate of Incorporation. From and after the Holdings Effective Time, the certificate of incorporation of Holdings as in effect at the Holdings Effective Time (the "Certificate of Incorporation") shall be the certificate of incorporation of the Surviving Corporation until amended as provided by the DGCL and the Certificate of Incorporation.

Section 2.5. By-Laws. From and after the Holdings Effective Time, the by-laws of Laser Merger Sub as in effect at the Holdings Effective Time shall be the by-laws of the Surviving Corporation until amended as provided by the DGCL, the Certificate of Incorporation of the Surviving Corporation and the terms thereof.

Section 2.6. Directors. The directors of Laser Merger Sub at the Holdings Effective Time shall be the initial directors of the Surviving Corporation and shall hold office from the Holdings Effective Time until their respective successors are duly elected or appointed and qualify in the manner provided in the Certificate of Incorporation and by-laws of the Surviving Corporation or as otherwise provided by Law.

Section 2.7. Officers. The officers of Laser Merger Sub at the Holdings Effective Time shall be the initial officers of the Surviving Corporation and shall hold office from the Holdings Effective Time until their respective successors are duly elected or appointed and qualify in the manner provided in the Certificate of Incorporation and by-laws of the Surviving Corporation, or as otherwise provided by Law.

Section 2.8. Holdings Merger Election. Notwithstanding the foregoing, at any time prior to the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings may elect, in its sole discretion, upon notice to Laser, to effectuate the Holdings Merger such that Holdings will be merged with and into Laser Merger Sub, with Laser Merger Sub as the "Surviving Corporation" for all purposes hereunder. In such event, the parties hereto shall execute an appropriate amendment to this Agreement to reflect the foregoing.

ARTICLE III

CONVERSION OF SHARES

Section 3.1. Effect on Capital Stock. At the Holdings Effective Time, by virtue of the Holdings Merger and without any action on the part of any holder thereof:

(a) Conversion of Holdings Common Stock.

(i) The Holdings Shares shall be converted into the right to receive an aggregate of (A) 14,099,749 fully paid and nonassessable shares of Laser Common Stock (the "Laser Shares") and (B) $159,956,756 in cash, without interest thereon (the "Cash Payment" and, together with the Laser Shares, the "Merger Consideration").

(ii) If, prior to the Holdings Effective Time, Laser shall (A) pay a dividend in, subdivide, combine into a smaller number of shares or issue by reclassification of its shares, any shares of Laser Common Stock, the number of Laser Shares to be issued pursuant to Section 3.1(a)(i) hereof shall be adjusted appropriately or (B) pay an extraordinary dividend (other than regular quarterly dividend payments, consistent with past practice), whether in cash or property, the amount of the Cash Payment shall be adjusted appropriately, such that the aggregate amount of cash, or if a dividend shall have been paid in other property, cash and other property, shall be equal to that which would have been received had the dividend been paid following the Holdings Effective Time at a time when the Laser Shares were already issued to and the Cash Payment made to Parent Holdings.

(iii) The shares of Holdings Common Stock converted in accordance with paragraph (i) of this Section 3.1(a) shall no longer be outstanding and shall automatically be cancelled and retired and shall cease to exist, and Parent Holdings, as the holder thereof, shall cease to have any rights with respect thereto, except the right to receive the Merger Consideration.

(b) Conversion of Laser Merger Sub Common Stock. Each share of Laser Merger Sub Common Stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the Holdings Effective Time shall be converted into and become one fully paid and nonassessable share of common stock, par value $1.00 per share, of the Surviving Corporation.

(i) Exchange of Certificates. At the Closing, Parent Holdings shall surrender certificates representing the Holdings Shares, and Laser shall deliver or cause to be delivered to Parent Holdings a duly executed stock certificate or stock certificates representing the Laser Shares, and the Cash Payment, in immediately available funds by wire transfer to an account specified in writing by Parent Holdings at least one day prior to the Closing Date. In connection with the delivery by Laser of the Laser Shares, Laser shall utilize all shares of Laser Common Stock held by Laser as treasury shares before issuing any authorized but unissued shares of Laser Common Stock.

ARTICLE IV

REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES OF HOLDINGS AND PARENT HOLDINGS

Holdings and Parent Holdings hereby represent and warrant to Laser as follows:

Section 4.1. Organization and Qualification.

(a) Each of Holdings and Worldwide is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the laws of the State of Delaware and has the corporate power to carry on its business as it is now being conducted.

Section 4.2. Capitalization.

(a) The authorized capital stock of Holdings consists of 1,000 shares of Holdings Common Stock (the "Holdings Shares"), all of which are issued and outstanding and beneficially owned by Parent Holdings. All of the issued and outstanding shares of Holdings Common Stock are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. Except as set forth above, there are no other shares of capital stock of Holdings issued or outstanding nor any options, warrants, subscriptions, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Holdings to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities.

(b) The authorized capital stock of Worldwide consists of 1,000 shares of Worldwide Common Stock (the "Worldwide Shares"), all of which are issued and outstanding and beneficially owned by Holdings, free and clear of all Liens, other than the pledge in connection with the Notes. All of the issued and outstanding shares of Worldwide Common Stock are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights. Except as set forth above, there are no other shares of capital stock of Worldwide issued or outstanding nor any options, warrants, subscriptions, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Worldwide to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities.

Section 4.3. Authority Relative to this Agreement and the Registration Rights Agreement. Each of Holdings and Parent Holdings has the requisite corporate power and authority to execute and deliver this Agreement and, if a party thereto, the Registration Rights Agreement, to perform its obligations hereunder and, if a party thereto, thereunder and to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby and, if a party thereto, thereby. The execution, delivery and performance of this Agreement and the Registration Rights Agreement, and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby and thereby, have been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action on the part of Holdings and Parent Holdings, and no other corporate action on the part of Holdings or Parent Holdings (including on the part of their respective stockholders) is required to authorize the execution, delivery and performance hereof and thereof and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby and thereby. This Agreement has been duly executed and delivered by each of Parent Holdings and Holdings and, assuming that it constitutes a valid and binding agreement of Laser and Laser Sub, constitutes the valid and binding obligation of Parent Holdings and Holdings enforceable against Parent Holdings and Holdings in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or other laws now or hereafter in effect relating to or limiting creditors' rights generally and the remedy of specific performance and injunctive and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and to the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefor may be brought. Prior to the Holdings Effective Time, the Registration Rights Agreement will have been duly executed and delivered by Parent Holdings and, assuming that it constitutes the valid and binding agreement of Laser, will constitute the valid and binding obligation of Parent Holdings enforceable against Parent Holdings in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or other laws now or hereafter in effect relating to or limiting creditors' rights generally and the remedy of specific performance and injunctive and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and to the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefor may be brought.

Section 4.4. No Business Activities of Holdings and Worldwide.

(a) Since its formation, Holdings has engaged in no business activities or operations, other than in connection with holding the Worldwide Shares and the stock of its predecessor corporation and in connection with the Senior Secured Discount Notes due 1998 of Holdings and the Series B Senior Secured Discount Notes due 1998 of Holdings (collectively, the "1998 Notes") and the Notes. Holdings has no material assets other than Worldwide Common Stock, and has no liabilities other than under the Notes and other de minimis liabilities. Worldwide is the beneficial owner of 44,067,520 shares of Company Common Stock, free and clear of all Liens, other than the pledge pursuant to the LYONs and the Notes.

(b) Since its formation, Worldwide has engaged in no business activities or operations, other than in connection with holding shares of Company Common Stock and in connection with the 1998 Notes, the Notes and the LYONs. Worldwide has no material assets other than the Company Common Stock (other than, as of the date hereof, the Mafco Demand Note and the LYONs Escrow Fund), and has no liabilities other than under the LYONs, the Notes and other de minimis liabilities.

Section 4.5. Consents and Approvals; No Violations. Except for applicable requirements of the HSR Act, the Securities Act, the Exchange Act, Competition Laws and state securities or blue sky Laws, no filing with, and no permit, authorization, consent or approval of, any Governmental Entity is necessary for the consummation by Parent Holdings or Holdings of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, except for such filings, permits, authorizations, consents or approvals the failure of which to be made or obtained would not individually or in the aggregate (i) have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. Except as set forth on Section 4.5 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule, neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by Parent Holdings or Holdings, nor the consummation by Parent Holdings or Holdings of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by Parent Holdings or Holdings with any of the provisions hereof, will (a) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of Parent Holdings, Holdings or Worldwide; (b) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any Contract or of any license, franchise, permit, concession, certificate of authority, order, approval, application or registration of, from or with any Governmental Entity to which Parent Holdings, Holdings or Worldwide is a party or by which any of them or any of their properties or assets may be bound; or (c) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to Holdings, Parent Holdings or Worldwide or any of their properties or assets, except in the case of clauses (b) and (c) for violations, breaches or defaults which would not individually or in the aggregate have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect.

Section 4.6. No Litigation. As of the date hereof, there is no suit, action, proceeding or investigation pending against or affecting Holdings or Worldwide.

Section 4.7. SEC Reports.

(a) Holdings has filed all reports, forms, registrations, schedules, statements and other documents required to be filed by it with the SEC since January 1, 1997 (the "Holdings SEC Reports"). As of their respective dates, the Holdings SEC Reports complied in all material respects with the requirements of the Securities Act or the Exchange Act, as the case may be, and the applicable rules and regulations promulgated thereunder. Except to the extent that information contained in any Filed Holdings SEC Report has been revised, amended or superseded by a later Filed Holdings SEC Report, none of the Filed Holdings SEC Reports, when filed, contained any untrue statement of a material fact or omitted to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading, except that no representation or warranty is made herein with respect to any information relating to the Company and its subsidiaries. For purposes of this Agreement, the Holdings SEC Reports filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement (as revised, amended or superseded by the Holdings SEC Reports filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement) are hereinafter referred to as the "Filed Holdings SEC Reports."

(b) Worldwide has filed all reports, forms, registrations, schedules, statements and other documents required to be filed by it with the SEC since January 1, 1997 (the "Worldwide SEC Reports"). As of their respective dates, the Worldwide SEC Reports complied in all material respects with the requirements of the Securities Act or the Exchange Act, as the case may be, and the applicable rules and regulations promulgated thereunder. Except to the extent that information contained in any Filed Worldwide SEC Report has been revised, amended or superseded by a later Filed Worldwide SEC Report, none of the Filed Worldwide SEC Reports, when filed, contained any untrue statement of a material fact or omitted to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading, except that no representation or warranty is made herein with respect to any information relating to the Company and its subsidiaries. For purposes of this Agreement, the Worldwide SEC Reports filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement (as amended, revised or superseded by the Worldwide SEC Reports filed and publicly available prior to the date of this Agreement) are hereinafter referred to as the "Filed Worldwide SEC Reports."

Section 4.8. Acquisition of Shares for Investment. Parent Holdings is not acquiring the Laser Shares with any present intention of distributing or selling any of such Laser Shares in violation of federal or state securities laws.

Section 4.9. Taxes.

(a) Except as would not have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect or as set forth on Section 4.9 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule:

(i) Each of Holdings and Worldwide (A) has filed (or there has been filed on its behalf) with the appropriate Governmental Entities all Tax Returns required to be filed by it, and all such Tax Returns are true, correct and complete and (B) has paid all Taxes due by it;

(ii) There are no outstanding waivers in writing or comparable consents regarding the application of any statute of limitations in respect of Taxes of Holdings or Worldwide;

(iii) There is no action, suit, investigation, audit, claim or assessment pending or proposed in writing or threatened in writing with respect to Taxes of Holdings or Worldwide and to the best of Holdings' knowledge, no basis exists therefor;

(iv) There are no Liens for Taxes upon the assets of Holdings or Worldwide except Liens relating to current Taxes not yet due;

(v) All Taxes which Holdings or Worldwide are required by law to withhold or to collect for payment have been duly withheld and collected, and have been paid or accrued, reserved against and entered on the books of Holdings in accordance with GAAP; and

(vi) No power of attorney which is currently in force has been granted by or with respect to Holdings or Worldwide with respect to any matter relating to Taxes.

(b) Except as would not have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect, Holdings and its subsidiaries have previously delivered or made available to Laser (and its representatives) complete and accurate copies of:

(i) all audit reports, letter rulings, technical advice memoranda relating to United States federal, state, local and foreign Taxes due from or with respect to Holdings or its subsidiaries;

(ii) United States federal Tax Returns (to the extent that such Tax Returns relate to Holdings and its subsidiaries), and those state, local or foreign Tax Returns filed by (or on behalf of) Holdings or any of its subsidiaries (to the extent that such Tax Returns relate to Holdings and its subsidiaries) (including, in each case, workpapers related to such Tax Returns);

(iii) any closing agreements entered into by Holdings or any of its subsidiaries with any taxing authority, in each case existing on the date hereof; and

(iv) any Tax Sharing Arrangements and Tax indemnity arrangements to which Holdings or any of its subsidiaries was a party at any time prior to the Closing Date. Holdings and its subsidiaries will deliver or make available to Laser (and its representatives) all similar materials for all matters arising after the date hereof.

Section 4.10. Affiliate Agreements. Section 4.10 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule sets forth a true and complete list of all agreements, Contracts, arrangements, payables, obligations and understandings between Holdings or any of its subsidiaries, on the one hand, and Parent Holdings or any of its Affiliates (other than Holdings or its subsidiaries), on the other hand (the "Affiliate Agreements").

Section 4.11. Brokers. No broker, investment banker or other person, other than Credit Suisse First Boston, the Company's financial advisor, the fees and expenses of which will be paid by the Company (as reflected in an agreement between Credit Suisse First Boston and the Company, a copy of which has been furnished to Laser), is entitled to any broker's, finder's or other similar fee or commission in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement based upon arrangements made by or on behalf of the Company or any of its Affiliates.

Section 4.12. LYONs Escrow Fund. The LYONs Escrow Fund is sufficient to fund the redemption, exchange or other retirement in full of the LYONs and related expenses.

ARTICLE V

REPRESENTATIONS AND WARRANTIES OF LASER

Laser hereby makes the same representations and warranties to Parent Holdings and Holdings as the representations and warranties made by Laser to the Company in the Company Merger Agreement, and also represents and warrants to Parent Holdings and Holdings as follows:

Section 5.1. Laser Merger Sub. Laser Merger Sub is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the Laws of the State of Delaware. Laser Merger Sub is a newly incorporated company formed solely for purposes of consummating the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and has engaged in no activity other than as provided in, or contemplated by, this Agreement. The authorized capital stock of Laser Merger Sub consists of 1,000 shares of Laser Merger Sub Common Stock, all of which are validly issued, fully paid and nonassessable and free of preemptive rights and are owned by Laser. Except as set forth above there are no shares of capital stock of Laser Merger Sub issued or outstanding or any options, warrants, subscription, calls, rights, convertible securities or other agreements or commitments obligating Laser Merger Sub to issue, transfer, sell, redeem, repurchase or otherwise acquire any shares of its capital stock or securities.

Section 5.2. Authority Relative to this Agreement. Each of Laser and Laser Merger Sub has the corporate power and authority to execute and deliver this Agreement and, if a party thereto, the Registration Rights Agreement, to perform its obligations hereunder and, if a party thereto, thereunder and to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby and, if a party thereto, thereby. The execution, delivery and performance of this Agreement and the Registration Rights Agreement, and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby, thereby and by the Company Merger Agreement, have been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action on the part of Laser and Laser Merger Sub and no other corporate action on the part of Laser or Laser Merger Sub (including on the part of their respective stockholders) is required to authorize the execution, delivery and performance hereof or thereof and the consummation of the transactions contemplated hereby and thereby. This Agreement has been duly executed and delivered by Laser and Laser Merger Sub and constitutes the valid and binding obligation of Laser and Laser Merger Sub, assuming it is the valid and binding obligation of Parent Holdings and Holdings, enforceable against Laser and Laser Merger Sub in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or similar laws now or hereafter in effect relating to creditors' rights generally and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefore may be brought. Prior to the Holdings Effective Time, the Registration Rights Agreement will have been duly executed and delivered by Laser and, assuming that it constitutes the valid and binding agreement of Parent Holdings, will constitute the valid and binding obligation of Laser enforceable against Laser in accordance with its terms, except that such enforcement may be subject to any bankruptcy, insolvency, reorganization, moratorium or other laws now or hereafter in effect relating to or limiting creditors' rights generally and the remedy of specific performance and injunctive and other forms of equitable relief may be subject to equitable defenses and to the discretion of the court before which any proceedings therefor may be brought.

Section 5.3. Consents and Approvals; No Violations. Except for applicable requirements of the HSR Act, the Securities Act, the Exchange Act, Competition Laws and state securities or blue sky Laws, no filing with, and no permit, authorization, consent or approval of, any governmental or regulatory authority is necessary for the consummation by Laser and Laser Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, except for such filings, permits, authorizations, consents or approvals the failure of which to be made or obtained would not (i) individually or in the aggregate have a Laser Material Adverse Effect or (ii) delay in any material respect or prevent the consummation of any of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement. Neither the execution and delivery of this Agreement by Laser and Laser Merger Sub nor the consummation by Laser and Laser Merger Sub of the transactions contemplated hereby, nor compliance by Laser and Laser Merger Sub with any of the provisions hereof, will (a) conflict with or result in any breach of any provisions of the certificate of incorporation or by-laws of Laser or Laser Merger Sub; (b) result in a violation or breach of, or constitute (with or without due notice or lapse of time or both) a default (or give rise to any right of termination, cancellation or acceleration) under, any of the terms, conditions or provisions of any Contract or of any license, franchise, permit, concession, certificate of authority, order, approval, application or registration of, from or with any Governmental Entity to which Laser or Laser Merger Sub is a party or by which either of them or any of their properties or assets may be bound; or (c) violate any order, writ, injunction, decree, statute, rule or regulation applicable to Laser, Laser Merger Sub or any of their properties or assets, except, in the case of clauses (b) and (c), for violations, breaches or defaults which would not individually or in the aggregate have a Laser Material Adverse Effect.

Section 5.4. Acquisition of Shares for Investment. Laser is acquiring the Holdings Shares for its own account for investment purposes only and not with a view toward or for a sale in connection with, any distribution thereof, or with any present intention of distributing or selling any of such in violation of federal or state securities laws.

ARTICLE VI

COVENANTS

Section 6.1. Conduct of Business. Except as expressly permitted by this Agreement or with the prior written consent of Laser, during the period from the date of this Agreement to the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings shall and shall cause Worldwide to conduct its business only in the ordinary course consistent with past practice, except that Holdings and Worldwide shall be permitted (but not required) to (i) effect the merger of Worldwide with Holdings, and (ii) take all action necessary in connection with the redemption or exchange of the LYONs and payment of any amounts thereunder and distribution to Parent Holdings from the LYONs Escrow Fund of any excess thereof. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, and except as otherwise expressly permitted by this Agreement, during the period from the date of this Agreement through the Holdings Effective Time, Holdings shall not and shall cause Worldwide not to, without the prior written consent of Laser:

(a) declare, set aside or pay any dividend or other distribution (whether in cash, securities or property or any combination thereof) in respect of any class or series of its capital stock, other than in respect of the LYONs Escrow Fund or the Mafco Demand Note;

(b) settle or compromise any Tax liability or agree to any adjustment of any Tax attribute or make any election with respect to its Taxes other than in the ordinary course of business;

(c) amend its certificate of incorporation or by-laws;

(d) acquire by merging or consolidating with, or by purchasing a substantial portion of the assets or securities of, or by any other manner, any corporation, partnership or other entity;

(e) create, incur, assume or guarantee any Indebtedness;

(f) except as otherwise required by Law or GAAP, change any of the accounting or Tax principles, practices or methods used by Holdings or Worldwide or fail to maintain the accounts, books and records of Holdings or Worldwide in the usual, regular and ordinary manner on a basis consistently applied;

(g) make any payments, loans, advances or other distributions to, or enter into any transaction, agreement or arrangement with, any of its Affiliates, officers, directors, or stockholders or it or its Affiliates or any associates or family members of any of the foregoing, or make any changes in or modify any of the Affiliate Agreements, other than in the ordinary course of business consistent with past practice or as required by the Affiliate Agreements, other than in respect of the LYONs Escrow Fund or the Mafco Demand Note;

(h) adjust, split, combine, subdivide or reclassify any shares of its capital stock;

(i) issue, sell, deliver, transfer, repurchase, redeem, acquire or pledge or authorize or propose the issuance, sale, delivery, transfer, repurchase, redemption, acquisition or pledge of shares of capital stock of any class or series, or any securities (other than the LYONs) convertible into capital stock of any class or series, or grant or enter into any rights, warrants, options, agreements or commitments with respect to the issuance of such capital stock or convertible securities;

(j) take any action that would make any representation or warranty of Parent Holdings or Holdings contained in this Agreement untrue or incorrect in any material respect and which could reasonably be expected to prevent the satisfaction of any condition to closing set forth in Article VIII hereof or otherwise prevent or materially delay the consummation of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement; or

(k) enter into any agreement or commitment to take any of the foregoing actions.

Section 6.2. Reasonable Best Efforts.

(a) Upon the terms and subject to the conditions of this Agreement, each of the parties hereto agrees to, and Holdings agrees to cause Worldwide and the Company and its subsidiaries to, use reasonable best efforts to take, or cause to be taken, all actions, and to do, or cause to be done, all things necessary, proper or advisable under applicable Laws to consummate and make effective the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement, as applicable, as promptly as practicable (including satisfaction, but not waiver, of the conditions set forth in Article VIII hereof and Article VIII of the Company Merger Agreement).

(b) Laser shall perform all of its obligations under the Company Merger Agreement in accordance with their terms.

Section 6.3. Consents.

(a) Without limiting the generality of Section 6.2(a) hereof, each of the parties hereto shall, and Holdings shall and shall cause Worldwide and the Company and its subsidiaries to, use reasonable best efforts to obtain all Consents of all Governmental Entities and, to the extent that the failure to obtain such Consents would have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect or a Laser Material Adverse Effect, as applicable, all third parties necessary in connection with the consummation of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement prior to the Holdings Effective Time. Notwithstanding the foregoing, none of the parties hereto nor Worldwide nor the Company or any of its subsidiaries shall have any obligation to pay any fee to any third party (other than filing or similar fees payable to Governmental Entities) for the purpose of obtaining any Consent or any costs and expenses of any third party resulting from the process of obtaining such Consents. Each of the parties hereto shall make or cause to be made all filings and submissions under laws and regulations applicable to it as may be required for the consummation of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement.

(b) Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this Agreement shall be deemed to require any party hereto to enter into any agreement with any Governmental Entity which requires, or to consent to any order, decree or judgment which requires, such party to hold, separate or divest, or to restrict the dominion or control of such party or any of its Affiliates over, any of the assets, properties or businesses of such party or its Affiliates in existence on the date hereof.

Section 6.4. HSR Notification. As soon as reasonably practicable, Laser and Parent Holdings shall make, or cause to be made, all filings and submissions under the HSR Act and any other applicable Competition Laws as may be reasonably required to be made in connection with this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby. Subject to Section 6.7 hereof, Parent Holdings will furnish to Laser and Laser will furnish to Parent Holdings, such information and assistance as the other may reasonably request in connection with the preparation of any such filings or submissions. Subject to Section 6.7 hereof, Parent Holdings will provide Laser, and Laser will provide Parent Holdings, with copies of all correspondence, filings or communications (or memoranda setting forth the substance thereof) between such party or any of its representatives, on the one hand, and any Governmental Entity or authority or members of their respective staffs, on the other hand, with respect to this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby. Parent Holdings and Laser shall consult with one another with respect to any such correspondence, filings or communications and shall engage in any discussions with any Governmental Entity on a joint basis.

Section 6.5. LYONs Refund. Promptly following redemption, exchange or other retirement in full of the LYONs, Laser shall cause to be paid to Parent Holdings all amounts remaining in the LYONs Escrow Fund by wire transfer of immediately available funds to an account(s) designated in writing by Parent Holdings. Until the making of such payment, Laser shall cause Holdings and Worldwide to comply with all of their obligations under the Indenture relating to the LYONs, the Indenture and the related Escrow Agreement, shall not take any action to amend such indenture or agreement in any manner adverse to Parent Holdings and shall use reasonable best efforts to take action to cause the redemption or retirement in full of the LYONs as promptly as practicable. Promptly following the Holdings Effective Time, at the request of Parent Holdings, Laser shall cause Holdings and Worldwide to give the escrow agent under such Escrow Agreement irrevocable written notice of the assignment of all right, title and interest in and to any such amounts to and for the benefit of Parent Holdings, on which notice Parent Holdings may rely. Following the redemption or retirement in full of the LYONs, the Mafco Demand Note shall be canceled automatically without the further action of any Person, and shall be of no further force or effect whatsoever, and, until the time of such cancellation, no demand or request for payment of any kind shall be made with respect to the Mafco Demand Note.

Section 6.6. Listing Application. Laser shall prepare and submit to the NYSE a listing application covering the Laser Shares to be issued in connection with the Holdings Merger, and shall use its reasonable best efforts to obtain as promptly as practicable approval for the listing of such Laser Shares, subject to official notice of issuance.

Section 6.7. Access to Information; Confidentiality. Holdings and Laser shall each afford, and Holdings shall cause Worldwide, the Company and each of its subsidiaries to afford, to the other and to the other's financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants consultants and other representatives full access at all reasonable times throughout the period prior to the Holdings Effective Time to all of its books, records, properties, plants and personnel (provided that all such access shall be on reasonable advance notice and shall not disrupt normal business operations) and, during such period, each shall furnish promptly to the other (a) a copy of each report, schedule and other document filed or received by it pursuant to the requirements of federal or state securities laws, and (b) all other information as such other party may reasonably request, provided that no investigation pursuant to this Section 6.7 shall affect any representations or warranties made herein or the conditions to the obligations of the respective parties to consummate the Holdings Merger. Each party and their respective affiliates, representatives and agents shall hold in confidence all nonpublic information in accordance with the terms of the Confidentiality Agreements between Laser and the Company dated February 4, 1998 and February 23, 1998 (the "Confidentiality Agreements").

Section 6.8. Advice of Changes. Upon obtaining knowledge of any such occurrence, Holdings or Laser shall promptly advise the other party orally and in writing of (i) any representation or warranty made by it contained in this Agreement that is qualified as to materiality becoming untrue or inaccurate in any respect or any such representation or warranty that is not so qualified becoming untrue or inaccurate in any material respect, (ii) the failure by it to comply with or satisfy in any material respect any covenant, condition or agreement to be complied with or satisfied by it under this Agreement or (iii) any change or event (x) having, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would have, in the case of Laser, a Laser Material Adverse Effect and, in the case of Holdings, a Holdings Material Adverse Effect, (y) having, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would have, the effect set forth in clause (i) above or (z) which has resulted, or which, insofar as can reasonably be foreseen, would result, in any of the conditions set forth in Article VIII not being satisfied; provided, however, that no such notification shall affect the representations, warranties, covenants or agreements of the parties or the conditions to the obligations of the parties under this Agreement.

Section 6.9. Affiliate Agreements; Intercompany Accounts. Parent Holdings and Holdings shall cause all intercompany accounts to be settled, and all Affiliate Agreements to be treated, as set forth in Section 4.10 of the Holdings Disclosure Schedule.

Section 6.10. Registration Rights Agreement. Immediately prior to the Holdings Effective Time, Parent Holdings and Laser shall execute and deliver the Registration Rights Agreement.

ARTICLE VII

ADDITIONAL AGREEMENTS

Section 7.1. Sales of Laser Shares. Parent Holdings agrees not to, directly or indirectly, sell, transfer, pledge, assign or otherwise dispose of or otherwise transfer (other than, in any such case, in connection with a pledge to secure bona fide indebtedness or other obligations) (collectively, "Transfer"), any Laser Shares received pursuant to the terms hereof as consideration for the Holdings Merger, other than to one of its Affiliates who agrees in writing to be bound by the terms of this Section 7.1, for a period of nine (9) months from and after the Holdings Effective Time, except that Parent Holdings may Transfer (A) from and after the date that is three (3) months following the Holdings Effective Time, twenty-five percent (25%) of the total number of the Laser Shares, and (B) from and after the date that is six (6) months following the Holdings Effective Time, an additional twenty-five percent (25%) of the total number of the Laser Shares (such that a total of fifty percent (50%) of the total number of the Laser Shares shall be Transferable from and after the date that is six (6) months following the Holdings Effective Time).

Section 7.2. Restrictive Legend. Pursuant to Section 7.1 hereof, each certificate representing the Laser Shares received by Parent Holdings shall be stamped or otherwise imprinted with the following legend:

> THE SECURITIES REPRESENTED BY THIS CERTIFICATE ARE SUBJECT TO THE RESTRICTIONS ON TRANSFER CONTAINED IN THE AGREEMENT AND PLAN OF MERGER DATED AS OF FEBRUARY 27, 1998 AMONG SUNBEAM CORPORATION, LASER ACQUISITION CORP., CLN HOLDINGS INC., AND COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC. AND MAY NOT BE OFFERED, SOLD, TRANSFERRED, PLEDGED, ASSIGNED, OR OTHERWISE DISPOSED OF OR TRANSFERRED (OTHER THAN, IN ANY SUCH CASE, IN CONNECTION WITH A PLEDGE TO SECURE BONA FIDE INDEBTEDNESS OR OTHER OBLIGATIONS) ("TRANSFERRED") EXCEPT AS PERMITTED BY THE TERMS THEREOF. THE SECURITIES REPRESENTED BY THIS CERTIFICATE HAVE NOT BEEN REGISTERED UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED (THE "ACT"), OR THE SECURITIES LAWS OF ANY STATE. THE SHARES REPRESENTED BY THIS CERTIFICATE MAY NOT BE TRANSFERRED, AND THE COMPANY WILL NOT REGISTER THE TRANSFER OF SUCH SECURITIES, EXCEPT (A) PURSUANT TO AN EFFECTIVE REGISTRATION STATEMENT UNDER THE ACT, (B) PURSUANT TO RULE 144 UNDER THE ACT, OR (C) UPON RECEIPT BY THE COMPANY OF AN OPINION OF COUNSEL, REASONABLY SATISFACTORY TO THE COMPANY, THAT SUCH TRANSFER IS EXEMPT FROM REGISTRATION UNDER THE ACT.

Upon request of Parent Holdings, Laser shall cause to be issued certificates representing such Laser Shares as to which the restrictions set forth herein are no longer applicable without such legend.

ARTICLE VIII

CONDITIONS TO CONSUMMATION OF THE HOLDINGS MERGER

Section 8.1. Conditions to Each Party's Obligation to Effect the Holdings Merger. The respective obligations of each party to effect the Holdings Merger shall be subject to the satisfaction or waiver, to the extent permitted by Law, at or prior to the Holdings Effective Time of the following conditions:

0176536

MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL 0007970

16div-023311

(a) Any waiting period applicable to the consummation of the Holdings Merger under the HSR Act shall have expired or been terminated.

(b) All of the Laser Shares shall have been previously approved for listing on the NYSE, subject only to official notice of issuance, if required.

(c) No preliminary or permanent injunction or other order by any federal or state court in the United States of competent jurisdiction which prohibits the consummation of this Agreement or the Holdings Merger shall have been issued and remain in effect.

(d) All authorizations, consents, orders, declarations or approvals of, or filings with, or terminations or expirations of waiting periods imposed by, any Governmental Entity, which the failure to obtain, make or occur would have the effect of making this Agreement or the Holdings Merger Agreement or any of the transactions contemplated hereby illegal.

Section 8.2. Conditions to Obligation of Holdings to Effect the Holdings Merger. The obligation of Holdings to effect the Holdings Merger shall be subject to the satisfaction by Laser or waiver by Holdings or Parent Holdings, to the extent permitted by Law, at or prior to the Holdings Effective Time of the following additional conditions:

(a) The representations and warranties of Laser in this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement that are qualified as to materiality shall be true and correct, and the representations and warranties of Laser in this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement that are not so qualified shall be true and correct in all material respects, in each case as of the date hereof, and, except to the extent such representations and warranties refer to a specific date, as of the Closing Date as though made on the Closing Date; provided, however, that this condition shall be deemed satisfied unless the failure or failures of such representations and warranties to be so true and correct (disregarding for this purpose all qualifications in such representations and warranties relating to materiality or knowledge), in the aggregate, would have a Laser Material Adverse Effect.

(b) Laser shall have performed in all material respects all obligations required to be performed by it under this Agreement or under the Company Merger Agreement at or prior to the Closing Date.

(c) Except as disclosed in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, since the date of the most recent audited financial statements included in the Filed Laser SEC Reports, there shall not have been any event, change or development which individually or in the aggregate has had or reasonably would be expected to have a Laser Material Adverse Effect or would impair the ability of Laser to consummate the transactions contemplated by this Agreement or to satisfy its obligations hereunder.

(d) The Registration Rights Agreement shall have been duly executed and delivered by each of the parties thereto.

Section 8.3. Conditions to Obligation of Laser to Effect the Holdings Merger. The obligation of Laser to effect the Holdings Merger shall be subject to the satisfaction by Holdings and Parent Holdings or waiver by Laser, to the extent permitted by Law, at or prior to the Holdings Effective Time of the following additional conditions, unless:

(a) The representations and warranties of Holdings and Parent Holdings in this Agreement and the representations of the Company in the Company Merger Agreement that are qualified as to materiality shall be true and correct, and the representations and warranties of Holdings and Parent Holdings in this Agreement and the representations of the Company in the Company Merger Agreement shall be true and correct in all material respects, in each case as of the date hereof, and, except to the extent such representations and warranties refer to a specific date, as of the Closing Date as though made at and as of the Closing Date; provided, however, that this condition shall be deemed satisfied unless the failure or failures of such representations and warranties to be so true and correct (disregarding for this purpose all qualifications in such representations and warranties relating to materiality or knowledge), in the aggregate, would have a Holdings Material Adverse Effect or Company Material Adverse Effect (as defined in the Company Merger Agreement), as the case may be.

(b) Parent Holdings and Holdings shall have performed in all material respects all obligations required to be performed by them under this Agreement at or prior to the Closing Date.

(c) The Company shall have performed in all material respects those obligations required to be performed by it under the Company Merger Agreement on or prior to the Closing Date.

(d) Up to six (6) individuals designated by Laser (the "Laser Designees") shall have been duly elected members of the Board of Directors of the Company and all other members of such Board shall have resigned, all effective as of the later of (i) the Closing and (ii) the eleventh (11th) day following the date on which the Section 14(f) Notice (as defined in the Company Merger Agreement) shall have been filed with the SEC and mailed to all stockholders of record of the Company in accordance with the Company Merger Agreement.

ARTICLE IX

TAX MATTERS

Section 9.1. Taxes.

(a) Parent Holdings shall indemnify and hold Laser and Laser's subsidiaries and Affiliates harmless from and against the following:

(i) any liability for Taxes of any member of the "affiliated group" (within the meaning of Section 1504(a) of the Code) (except for the Company and its subsidiaries) of which Mafco Holdings Inc. (or any predecessor or successor) is the common parent that arises under the provisions of Treasury Regulation Section 1.1502-6(a) (or any successor provision) or comparable provisions of foreign, state or local law; and

(ii) except to the extent provided in Section 9.1(b)(iii), any liability for Taxes (other than Taxes that arise under the provisions of Treasury Regulatory Section 1.1502-6(a) (or any successor provision) or comparable provisions of foreign, state or local law) imposed on Holdings or Worldwide or for which Holdings or Worldwide may otherwise be liable for any Pre-Closing Period (including, without limitation, any Taxes resulting from Holdings or Worldwide ceasing to be a member of the "affiliated group" of which Mafco Holdings Inc. (or any successor) is the common parent, any income Taxes that arise in the Holdings Merger, and any Taxes imposed on Holdings or Worldwide as a result of any transaction effected between (and including) the date hereof and the Closing Date).

(b) Laser shall indemnify and hold Parent Holdings and its Affiliates harmless from and against the following:

(i) Taxes imposed on Holdings or Worldwide for any Post-Closing Period;

(ii) except to the extent provided in Section 9.1(a)(i), any liability for Taxes of the Company and any of its subsidiaries; and

(iii) any liability for Taxes resulting from transactions or actions taken by Holdings or Worldwide on the Closing Date but after the Holdings Effective Time, except for transactions or actions undertaken in the ordinary course of business.

(c) To the extent permitted by law or administrative practice, (i) the taxable year of Holdings or Worldwide which includes the Closing Date shall be treated as closing on (and including) the Closing Date and (ii) all transactions not in the ordinary course of business occurring after the Holdings Effective Time shall be reported on Laser's consolidated United States federal income Tax Return to the extent permitted by Treasury Regulation Section 1.1502-76(b)(1)(ii)(B) and shall be similarly reported on other Tax Returns of Laser or its Affiliates to the extent permitted by Law. For purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b)(i), where it is necessary to apportion between Parent Holdings and Laser the Tax liability of an entity for a Straddle Period (which is not treated under the immediately preceding sentence as closing on the Closing Date), such liability shall be apportioned between the period deemed to end at the close of the Closing Date and the period deemed to begin at the beginning of the day following the Closing Date on the basis of an interim closing of the books, except that Taxes (such as real property Taxes) imposed on a periodic basis shall be allocated on a daily basis.

(d) For purposes of Sections 9.1(a) and (b), whenever it is necessary to allocate an item of income, gain, deduction, loss or credit to either a taxable year or period that is not part of a Straddle Period and that ends on or before the Closing Date or a taxable year or period that is not part of a Straddle Period and that begins after the Closing Date, such allocation shall be made consistent with the Law.

(e) Any real property transfer or gains Tax, sales Tax, use Tax, stamp Tax, stock transfer Tax, or other similar Tax imposed on Holdings or any of its subsidiaries arising out of or in connection with the transactions contemplated by this Agreement shall be borne by the party primarily obligated for such Tax under applicable Law, and each party shall indemnify the other party for any such Tax for which it is so liable.

(f) (i) Except as set forth in Section 9.1(f)(iii), Laser shall be entitled to any refund of Taxes or the benefit of the utilization of any Tax attribute (including, without limitation, any net operating loss, investment Tax credit, foreign Tax credit, or other credit or deduction) of (x) the Company or any of its subsidiaries and (y) for a Post-Closing Period, Holdings or Worldwide . If Parent Holdings or any of its Affiliates or subsidiaries receives any refund of Tax to which Laser is entitled pursuant to this Section 9.1(f)(i) or utilizes any Tax attribute to which Laser is entitled pursuant to this Section 9.1(f)(i), Parent Holdings shall promptly notify Laser and shall pay the amount of such refund or the benefit realized from such utilization within five (5) days of the receipt of such refund or the realization of such benefit.

(ii) Except as set forth in Section 9.1(f)(iii), Parent Holdings shall be entitled to any refund of Taxes or the benefit of the utilization of any Tax attribute of Holdings or Worldwide for a Pre-Closing Period. If Laser or any of its Affiliates or subsidiaries receives any refund of Tax to which Parent Holdings is entitled pursuant to this Section 9.1(f)(ii) or utilizes any Tax attribute to which Parent Holdings is entitled pursuant to this Section 9.1(f)(ii), Laser shall promptly notify Parent Holdings and shall pay the amount of such refund or the benefit realized from such utilization within five (5) days of the receipt of such refund or the realization of such benefit.

(iii) No payment shall be made in respect of a Tax deduction, Tax credit or other Tax benefit pursuant to this Section 9.1(f) in duplication of payments previously made in respect of the same Tax deduction, Tax credit or other Tax benefit.

(g) Any indemnity payment required under this Article IX as a result of an adjustment shall be paid seven (7) days after a "determination" within the meaning of Section 1313(a) of the Code. Any payment required to be made under this Article IX by one party to the other party that is not made on or before the date specified in this Article IX shall bear interest after such date at the rate specified in Code Section 6621(a)(2) for underpayments.

Section 9.2. Tax Returns. (a) Parent Holdings shall file or cause to be filed when due (i) all Tax Returns that are required to be filed on or before the Closing Date by or with respect to Holdings or any of its subsidiaries and (ii) all consolidated, combined or unitary Tax Returns that are required to be filed by or with respect to Parent Holdings or any entity that will be its Affiliate after the Holdings Merger, on the one hand, and Holdings or any of its subsidiaries, on the other hand, for taxable years or periods that include or precede the Closing Date. Parent Holdings shall remit (or cause to be remitted) any Taxes shown as due on such Tax Returns. In the case of Tax Returns described in clause (ii) above, Laser shall pay Parent Holdings no later than five (5) days prior to the due date (including extensions) of any such Tax Return the Tax in connection with such Tax Return for which Laser is liable pursuant to this Article IX (or Parent Holdings shall pay Laser on such date the excess, if any, of any estimated Tax payments by the Company or any of its subsidiaries, relating to the period covered by such Tax Return, over the Tax in connection with such Tax Return for which Laser is liable pursuant to this Article IX). Holdings and its subsidiaries shall cooperate in the preparation of any Tax Returns for which Parent Holdings has filing responsibility hereunder. Such cooperation shall include, but not be limited to, furnishing in a timely manner return preparation packages in the form and of the quality provided prior to the Holdings Merger. Such packages shall be prepared in good faith in a manner consistent with past practice.

(b) Laser shall file or cause to be filed when due all other Tax Returns that are required to be filed by or with respect to Holdings or any of its subsidiaries. Laser shall remit (or cause to be remitted) any Taxes shown as due on such Tax Returns. Parent Holdings shall pay Laser no later than five (5) days prior to the due date (including extensions) of any such Tax Return the Tax in connection with such Tax Return for which Parent Holdings is liable pursuant to this Article IX.

(c) The party with filing responsibility under this Section 9.2 for a Tax Return shall, 20 days prior to the due date (including extensions) of such Tax Return, present to the other party (the "Indemnifying Party") for the approval (which approval shall not be unreasonably withheld) of the Indemnifying Party the portion, if any, of the Tax Return reflecting solely the items and positions for which the Indemnifying Party is liable pursuant to this Article IX.

(d) From and after the date hereof, Parent Holdings and each of its Affiliates shall not amend any Tax Return with respect to Taxes for which Laser or any of its Affiliates is liable pursuant to this Agreement, without the written consent of Laser, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

(e) From and after the date hereof, any payment (including any estimated payment) in respect of Taxes pursuant to a Tax Sharing Arrangement that includes Holdings or any of its subsidiaries shall be reduced by any payment that would be owed by the other party pursuant to a Tax Sharing Arrangement.

Section 9.3. Tax Claims.

(a) In the case of any Tax audit, examination or judicial or administrative proceeding (a "Tax Proceeding") relating to a combined, consolidated or unitary Tax Return that includes Mafco Holdings Inc. (or any predecessor or successor thereto), Laser shall be entitled to control the portion of the Tax Proceeding, if any, relating solely to items for which Laser is liable pursuant to this Agreement, and Parent Holdings shall be entitled to control every other portion of the Tax Proceeding; provided, however, that neither Parent Holdings nor any of its Affiliates shall settle or otherwise dispose of any issue in any such Tax Proceeding that could materially affect the Tax liability hereunder of Laser, without the prior written consent of Laser, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld. Parent Holdings shall be entitled to control the Pre-Closing Period portion of a Tax Proceeding relating to a Straddle Period Tax Return, or a Tax Return for a Pre-Closing Period ending before the Closing Date, of Holdings or Worldwide; provided, however, that neither Parent Holdings nor any of its Affiliates shall settle or otherwise dispose of any issue in any such Tax Proceeding that could materially affect the Tax liability hereunder of Laser, without the prior written consent of Laser, which consent shall not be unreasonably withheld.

(b) Parent Holdings or Laser, as the case may be, shall promptly notify the other party in writing of any tax claim that could result in liability of the other party under this Agreement (a "Tax Claim"). With respect to any Tax Claim, the party controlling the Tax Proceeding with respect thereto shall (i) not make any submission to any taxing authority without offering the other party the opportunity to review it, (ii) keep the other party informed as to the progress of such Tax Claim, (iii) provide the other party with any information that it receives in connection with the Tax Proceeding, (iv) permit the other party to participate (at its own expense) in all conferences, meetings or proceedings with any taxing authority in which the indemnified Tax Claim is or may be a subject, and (v) permit the other party to participate (at its own expense) in all court appearances in which the indemnified Tax Claim is or may be a subject. With respect to any Tax Claim, the party not controlling the Tax Proceeding with respect thereto shall not take any action or make any representations in connection with such Tax Claim with respect to issues affecting the other party's indemnity hereunder. With respect to any Tax Claim relating to a Pre-Closing Period for which Laser is or may be liable pursuant to this Agreement, Parent Holdings or any of its Affiliates shall either file (or cause to be filed) submissions at Laser's direction or appoint (or cause to be appointed) Laser or its authorized representatives as additional authorized representatives entitled to communicate fully with the Internal Revenue Service or the appropriate state, local or foreign taxing authority with respect to such Tax Claim.

(c) Nothing contained in this Section 9.3 shall be construed as limiting any party's right to indemnification under Section 9.1.

Section 9.4. Assistance and Cooperation. After the Closing Date, each of Parent Holdings and Laser shall (and shall cause their respective Affiliates to):

(a) timely sign and deliver such certificates or forms as may be necessary or appropriate to establish an exemption from (or otherwise reduce), or file Tax Returns or other reports with respect to, Taxes described in Section 9.1(e) (relating to sales, transfer and similar Taxes);

(b) assist the other party in preparing any Tax Returns which such other party is responsible for preparing and filing in accordance with Section 9.2;

(c) cooperate fully in preparing for any audits of, or disputes with taxing authorities regarding, any Tax Returns of Holdings and each of its subsidiaries;

(d) make available to the other and to any taxing authority as reasonably requested in connection with any Tax Return described in Section 9.4(b) or any proceeding described in Section 9.4(c), all information relating to any Taxes or any Tax Returns of Holdings and each of its subsidiaries, including, without limitation, records, returns, schedules, documents, work papers or other relevant materials;

(e) provide timely notice to the other in writing of any Tax audits or assessments of Holdings and each of its subsidiaries that are pending or proposed in writing for taxable periods for which the other may have a liability under this Article IX; and

(f) furnish the other with copies of all correspondence received from any taxing authority in connection with any Tax audit or information request with respect to any such taxable period.

Section 9.5. Adjustment to Merger Consideration. For all Tax purposes, any payment by Laser or Parent Holdings under this Agreement will be an adjustment to the Merger Consideration.

Section 9.6. Survival of Obligations. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Agreement, and notwithstanding Article X of this Agreement, the obligations of the parties set forth in this Article IX shall be unconditional and absolute and shall remain in effect until 90 days after the expiration of the applicable statute of limitations.

Section 9.7. Reorganization. Laser shall not, and shall not permit any of its subsidiaries or Affiliates to, take any action that could prevent the Holdings Merger from qualifying as a reorganization within the meaning of Section 368(a) of the Code. Laser and Parent Holdings shall treat, and shall cause their respective Affiliates to treat, the Holdings Merger as a reorganization for all Tax and reporting purposes.

Section 9.8. Tax Sharing Agreements. All rights and obligations of Parent Holdings (and the entities that will be its Affiliates after the Holdings Effective Time) pursuant to any of the Tax Sharing Arrangements or any Tax indemnity arrangements involving Holdings or any of its subsidiaries will terminate on the Closing Date.

Section 9.9. Information. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement or the Company Merger Agreement, neither Laser nor any of its Affiliates nor any other Person shall have any right to receive or obtain any information relating to Taxes of Parent Holdings or any of its Affiliates other than information relating solely to Holdings or any of its subsidiaries.

ARTICLE X

INDEMNIFICATION; SURVIVAL

Section 10.1. Parent Holdings' Agreement to Indemnify.

(a) Subject to the terms and conditions of this Article X, from and after the Closing Date, Parent Holdings shall indemnify, defend and hold harmless Laser and its subsidiaries (including after the Closing Date, the Company and its subsidiaries) and each of their respective successors and permitted assigns, directors, officers, employees, representatives, agents, Affiliates and associates (collectively, the "Laser Group") from and against any and all losses, liabilities, expenses (including reasonable attorneys' fees), claims and damages (collectively, "Damages") asserted against, resulting to, imposed upon or suffered by the Laser Group, or any one of them, arising out of or related to any liability or obligation of Holdings or Worldwide existing on or prior to the Closing Date other than any such liability or obligation (i) arising in connection with the Notes, the LYONs and the 1998 Notes, (ii) which is also a liability or obligation of the Company or its subsidiaries (on a joint basis or otherwise), or (iii) which relates to the conduct, operations or activities of the Company or its subsidiaries.

(b) If there are any conflicts between the provisions of this Section 10.1 and Section 9.3 with respect to Tax Claims, the provisions of Section 9.3 shall control.

(c) Any payment by Parent Holdings under Article IX or this Section 10.1 will be an adjustment to the Merger Consideration.

(d) Anything in this Agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, the liability of Parent Holdings to indemnify the Laser Group pursuant to this Section 10.1 against any Damages sustained by reason of any Laser Claim shall be limited to Laser Claims as to which the Laser Group has given Parent Holdings written notice, setting forth in reasonable detail the basis for such Laser Claim, on or prior to the fourth (4th) anniversary of the Closing Date.

Section 10.2. Conditions of Indemnification With Respect to Third-Party Claims. The obligations and liabilities of Parent Holdings with respect to Laser Claims for Damages which arise or result from claims made by third parties ("Third-Party Claims") shall be subject to the following conditions:

(a) The Laser Group shall give Parent Holdings prompt notice of any such Third-Party Claim, and Parent Holdings shall have the right to undertake the defense thereof by representatives chosen by it; provided, however, that failure to provide prompt notice shall not affect Parent Holdings' obligations hereunder except to the extent that Parent Holdings is actually prejudiced by such failure;

(b) If Parent Holdings undertakes the defense of any such Third-Party Claim, the Laser Group shall, to the best of its ability, assist Parent Holdings, at the expense of Parent Holdings, in the defense of such Third-Party Claim, and shall promptly send to Parent Holdings, at the expense of Parent Holdings, copies of any documents received by the Laser Group which relate to such Third-Party Claim;

(c) If Parent Holdings, within a reasonable time after notice of any such Third-Party Claim, fails to defend the member(s) of the Laser Group against which such Third-Party Claim has been asserted, the Laser Group shall (upon further notice to Seller) have the right to undertake the defense, compromise or settlement of such Third-Party Claim on behalf of and for the account and risk of Parent Holdings, subject to the right of Parent Holdings to assume the defense of such Third-Party Claim at any time prior to settlement, compromise or final determination thereof; and

(d) Anything in this Article X to the contrary notwithstanding, (i) if there is a reasonable probability that a Third-Party Claim may materially and adversely affect the Laser Group other than as a result of money damages or other money payments, the Laser Group shall have the right, at its own cost and expense, to defend, compromise or settle such Third-Party Claim, and shall by doing so release Parent Holdings from any liability to provide indemnification with respect to such Third-Party Claim; and (ii) Parent Holdings shall not, without the written consent of the Laser Group, settle or compromise any Third-Party Claim or consent to the entry of any judgment which does not include as an unconditional term thereof the giving by the claimant or the plaintiff to the Laser Group a release from all liability with respect to such Third-Party Claim.

Section 10.3. Survival of Representations; Covenants. The representations and warranties in this Agreement shall terminate upon and not survive the Closing Date. This Section 10.3 shall not limit any covenant or agreement of the parties contained herein which by its terms contemplates performance after the Holdings Effective Time.

ARTICLE XI

TERMINATION

Section 11.1. Termination. This Agreement may be terminated at any time prior to the Holdings Effective Time:

(a) by mutual written agreement of Laser and Holdings;

(b) by either Laser or Holdings if the Holdings Merger shall not have been consummated on or before August 31, 1998 (the "Termination Date"); provided, however, that the right to terminate this Agreement under this Section 11.1(b) shall not be available to any party whose failure to fulfill any obligation under this Agreement has been the cause of, or resulted in, the failure of the Closing to occur on or before the Termination Date;

(c) by either Laser or Holdings if a court of competent jurisdiction or governmental, regulatory or administrative agency or commission shall have issued an order, decree or ruling or taken any other action (which order, decree or ruling the parties shall use their reasonable best efforts to lift), in each case permanently restraining, enjoining or otherwise prohibiting the transactions contemplated by this Agreement, and such order, decree, ruling or other action shall have become final and nonappealable;

(d) by either Laser or Holdings in the event of a breach by the other party or any of its subsidiaries (including, in the case of Holdings, the Company and its subsidiaries) of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained in this Agreement or the Company Merger Agreement, as applicable, which would give rise to the failure of a condition set forth in Section 8.2(a) or Section 8.3(a) hereof or Section 8.1 thereof, as applicable, and is not capable of being cured (provided that the terminating party is not then in material breach of any representation, warranty, covenant or other agreement contained in this Agreement).

Section 11.2. Effect of Termination. In the event of termination of this Agreement as provided in Section 11.1 hereof, this Agreement shall forthwith become void, provided that the last sentence of Section 6.7 and Article XII shall continue, and there shall be no liability on the part of any of the parties, nothing herein shall relieve any party from liability for any willful breach hereof.

ARTICLE XII

MISCELLANEOUS

Section 12.1. Notices. All notices or other communications hereunder shall be deemed to have been duly given and made if in writing and if served by personal delivery upon the party for whom it is intended, if delivered by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, or by a national courier service, or if sent by telecopier; provided that the telecopy is promptly confirmed by telephone confirmation thereof, to the person at the address set forth below, or such other address as may be designated in writing hereafter, in the same manner, by such person:

Section 12.2. Amendment. This Agreement may be amended by the parties pursuant to a writing adopted by action taken by all of the parties at any time before the Closing Date. This Agreement may not be amended except by an instrument in writing signed by the Parties.

Section 12.3. Extension; Waiver. At any time before the Closing Date, any party hereto may (a) extend the time for the performance of any of the obligations or other acts of the other parties, (b) waive any inaccuracies in the representations and warranties contained herein or in any document delivered pursuant hereto and (c) waive compliance with any of the agreements or conditions contained herein. Any agreement on the part of a party to any such extension or waiver shall be valid only as against such party and only if set forth in an instrument in writing signed by such party. The failure of any party to this Agreement to assert any of its rights under this Agreement or otherwise shall not constitute a waiver of such rights.

Section 12.4. Assignment. No party to this Agreement may assign any of its rights or obligations under this Agreement without the prior written consent of the other party hereto.

Section 12.5. Entire Agreement. This Agreement (including all Schedules and Exhibits hereto) contains the entire agreement among the parties hereto with respect to the subject matter hereof and supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral or written, with respect to such matters, except for the Confidentiality Agreements which will remain in full force and effect for the term provided for therein.

Section 12.6. Parties in Interest. This Agreement shall inure to the benefit of and be binding upon the parties hereto and their respective successors and permitted assigns. Nothing in this Agreement, express or implied, is intended to confer upon any Person other than Laser Holdings, Worldwide, their respective subsidiaries or their successors or permitted assigns, any rights or remedies under or by reason of this Agreement.

Section 12.7. Expenses. Whether or not the transactions contemplated by this Agreement are consummated, all costs and expenses incurred in connection with this Agreement and the transactions contemplated hereby shall be borne by the party incurring such expenses.

Section 12.8. Governing Law. This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of Delaware, its rules of conflict of laws notwithstanding.

Section 12.9. Counterparts. This Agreement may be executed in one or more counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original, and all of which shall constitute one and the same agreement.

Section 12.10. Headings. The heading references herein and in the table of contents hereto are for convenience purposes only, do not constitute a part of this Agreement and shall not be deemed to limit or affect any of the provisions hereof.

Section 12.11. Further Assurances. From time to time after the Closing Date, at the request of the other party hereto and at the expense of the party so requesting, Holdings and Laser shall execute and deliver to such requesting party such documents and take such other action as such requesting party may reasonably request in order to consummate the transactions contemplated hereby.

Section 12.12. Specific Performance. Each party hereto acknowledges that money damages would be both incalculable and an insufficient remedy for any breach of this Agreement by such party and that any such breach would cause the other party hereto irreparable harm. Accordingly, each party hereto also agrees that, in the event of any breach or threatened breach of the provisions of this Agreement by such party, the other party hereto shall be entitled to equitable relief without the requirement of posting a bond or other security, including in the form of injunctions and orders for specific performance.

Section 12.13. Certain Terms. As used herein: (i) the term "material adverse effect" (including as used in any definition) with respect to any Person, shall exclude any change, event, effect or circumstance (a) arising in connection with the announcement or performance of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the Company Merger Agreement and (b) affecting in the United States economy generally or such Person's industries generally; and (ii) "to the knowledge of Holdings" shall mean to the actual knowledge of Paul E. Shapiro, Jerry W. Levin and Steven R. Isko.

Section 12.14. Interpretation. When a reference is made to this Agreement to an Article or Section, such reference shall be to an Article or Section of, this Agreement unless otherwise indicated. Whenever the words "include", "includes" or "including" are used in this Agreement, they shall be deemed to be followed by the words "without limitation". The words "hereof", "herein" and "hereunder" and words of similar import when used in this Agreement shall refer to this Agreement as a whole and not to any particular provision of this Agreement. The phrase "made available" in this Agreement shall mean that the information referred to has been made available if requested by the party to whom such information is to be made available. All terms defined in this Agreement shall have the defined meanings used in any certificate or other document made or delivered pursuant hereto unless otherwise defined therein. The definitions contained in this Agreement are applicable to the singular as well as the plural forms of such terms and to the masculine as well as to the feminine and neuter genders of such term. REGISTRATION RIGHTS AGREEMENT

REGISTRATION RIGHTS AGREEMENT, dated as of _____ __, 1998 (the "Agreement"), among SUNBEAM CORPORATION, a Delaware corporation ("Laser"), and COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC., a Delaware corporation ("Parent Holdings").

WHEREAS, pursuant to the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Holdings Merger Agreement"), by and among Laser, LASER ACQUISITION CORP., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Laser ("Laser Merger Sub"), CLN HOLDINGS INC., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Parent Holdings ("Holdings"), and Parent Holdings, Laser Merger Sub will be merged immediately after the execution of this Agreement with the surviving corporation becoming an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of Laser, upon the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Holdings Merger Agreement (the "Holdings Merger"); and

WHEREAS, upon consummation of the Holdings Merger, the shares of Holdings Common Stock (as defined herein) issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time of the Holdings Merger shall be converted into the right to receive an aggregate of (A) 14,099,749 fully paid and nonassessable shares of Laser Common Stock (as defined herein) and (B) $159,956,756 in cash, without interest hereon; and

WHEREAS, it is a condition to the obligations of Holdings to consummate the Holdings Merger that this Agreement be duly executed and delivered by each of the parties hereto; and

WHEREAS, in order to induce Holdings to enter into the Holdings Merger Agreement, Laser has agreed to provide registration rights with respect to the shares of Laser Common Stock to be issued to Parent Holdings upon consummation of the Holdings Merger.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements set forth herein and for good and valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the parties agree as follows:

ARTICLE I

ARTICLE II

REQUIRED REGISTRATION

Section 2.1 Required Registration.

(a) Form S-3. Laser shall prepare and file with the SEC a registration statement (the "Shelf Registration Statement") on Form S-3 or another appropriate form permitting registration of the Registrable Securities so as to permit the resale of the Registrable Securities by Parent Holdings pursuant to an offering on a delayed or continuous basis pursuant to Rule 415 (or any successor rule) under the Securities Act (a "Rule 415 Offering") and shall use reasonable best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to be declared effective by the SEC on or before the date on which any of the Registrable Securities may be transferred by Parent Holdings pursuant to Article VII of the Holdings Merger Agreement. Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to permit the Shelf Registration Statement to be used by Affiliates of Camper for resales of shares of Laser Common Stock issued to such Affiliates in the merger of a wholly owned subsidiary of Laser with Camper; provided, however, that any such Affiliate using the Shelf Registration Statement shall agree in writing to be bound by all of the restrictions, limitations and obligations of Parent Holdings contained in this Agreement.

(b) Effectiveness. Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to keep the Shelf Registration Statement continuously effective under the Securities Act until the date that is the earliest to occur of (i) the date by which all Registrable Securities covered by the Shelf Registration Statement have been sold and (ii) the second anniversary of the consummation of the Holdings Merger.

(c) Amendments/Supplements. Laser shall amend and supplement the Shelf Registration Statement and the prospectus contained therein if required by the rules, regulations or instructions applicable to the registration form used by Laser for such Shelf Registration Statement, if required by the Securities Act.

(d) Offerings. At any time from and after the date on which the Shelf Registration Statement is declared effective by the SEC (the "Effective Date"), Parent Holdings, subject to the restrictions and conditions contained herein and in the Merger Agreement, and subject further to compliance with all applicable state and federal securities laws, shall have the right to dispose of all or any portion of the Registrable Securities.

Section 2.2 Holdback Agreement.

From and after the Effective Date, upon the request of Laser, Parent Holdings shall not effect any public sale or distribution (including sales pursuant to Rule 144) of Registrable Securities that are equity securities of Laser, or any securities convertible into or exchangeable or exercisable for such securities (other than any such sale or distribution of such securities pursuant to registration of such securities on Form S-8 or any successor form) during the period commencing on the date on which Laser commences a Laser Offering through the sixty (60)-day period immediately following the closing date of such Laser Offering; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not be obligated to comply with this Section 2.2 on more than two (2) occasions in any twelve (12)-month period; and provided, further, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Section 2.2 or Section 2.3, in no event shall Parent Holdings be disabled from effecting offers or sales of Registrable Securities for more than one-hundred-and-fifteen (115) days during any twelve (12)-month period.

Section 2.3 Blackout Provisions.

In the event that, at any time while the Shelf Registration Statement remains effective, Laser determines in its reasonable judgment and in good faith that the sale of Registrable Securities would require disclosure of material information which Laser has a bona fide business purpose for preserving as confidential, Parent Holdings shall, upon receiving written notice from Laser of such good faith determination, suspend sales of the Registrable Securities for a period beginning on the date of receipt of such notice and expiring on the earlier of (i) the date upon which such material information is disclosed to the public or ceases to be material or (ii) forty-five (45) days after the receipt of such notice from Laser; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not be obligated to comply with this Section 2.3 on more than two (2) occasions in any twelve (12) month period; and provided, further, that notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Section 2.3 or Section 2.2, in no event shall Parent Holdings be disabled from effecting offers or sales of Registrable Securities for more than one-hundred-and-fifteen (115) days during any twelve (12)-month period.

Section 2.4 Registration Procedures.

(a) Procedures. In connection with the registration of the Registrable Securities pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall use reasonable best efforts to effect the registration and sale of the Registrable Securities in accordance with Parent Holdings' intended method of disposition thereof and, in connection therewith, Laser shall:

(1) prepare and file with the SEC the Shelf Registration Statement and use reasonable best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to become and remain effective in accordance with Sections 2.1(a) and (b) above;

(2) prepare and file with the SEC amendments and supplements to the Shelf Registration Statement and the prospectuses used in connection therewith in accordance with Section 2.1(c) above;

(3) before filing with the SEC the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto, Laser shall furnish to one (1) counsel selected by Parent Holdings and one (1) counsel for the underwriter or sales or placement agent, if any, in connection therewith, drafts of all such documents proposed to be filed and provide such counsel with a reasonable opportunity for review thereof and comment thereon, such review to be conducted and such comments to be delivered with reasonable promptness;

(4) promptly (i) notify Parent Holdings of each of (w) the filing and effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement and each prospectus and any amendments or supplements thereto, (x) the receipt of any comments from the SEC or any state securities law authorities or any other governmental authorities with respect to any such Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto, (y) any oral or written stop order with respect to such registration, any suspension of the registration or qualification of the sale of the Registrable Securities in any jurisdiction or any initiation or threatening of any proceedings with respect to any of the foregoing, and (z) of the happening of any event that requires the making of any changes in such Shelf Registration Statement, prospectus or documents incorporated or deemed to be incorporated therein by reference so that they will not contain any untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading and (ii) use reasonable best efforts to obtain the withdrawal of any order suspending the registration or qualification (or the effectiveness thereof) or suspending or preventing the use of any related prospectus in any jurisdiction with respect thereto;

(5) furnish to Parent Holdings, the underwriters or the sales or placement agent, if any, and one (1) counsel for each of the foregoing, a conformed copy of the Shelf Registration Statement and each amendment and supplement thereto (in each case, including all exhibits thereto) and such additional number of copies of such Shelf Registration Statement, each amendment and supplement thereto (in such case, without such exhibits), the prospectus (including each preliminary prospectus) included in such Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus supplements and all exhibits thereto and such other documents as Parent Holdings, its underwriters, agent or such counsel may reasonably request in order to facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities by Parent Holdings;

(6) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, if requested by Parent Holdings or the managing underwriter or underwriters of a Rule 415 Offering, subject to approval of counsel to Laser in its reasonable judgment, promptly incorporate in a prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment to the Shelf Registration Statement such information concerning underwriters and the plan of distribution of the Registrable Securities as such managing underwriter or underwriters or Parent Holdings reasonably shall furnish to Laser in writing and such request to be included therein, including, without limitation, information with respect to the number of Registrable Securities being sold by Parent Holdings to such underwriter or underwriters, the purchase price being paid therefor by such underwriter or underwriters and with respect to any other terms of the underwritten offering of the Registrable Securities to be sold in such offering; and make all required filings of such prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment as soon as reasonably practicable after being notified of the matters to be incorporated in such prospectus, supplement or post-effective amendment;

(7) use reasonable best efforts to register or qualify the Registrable Securities for offer and sale under such securities or "blue sky" laws of such jurisdictions as Parent Holdings reasonably requests and do any and all other acts and things which may be reasonably necessary or advisable to enable Parent Holdings to consummate the disposition in such jurisdictions in which the Registrable Securities are to be sold and keep such registration or qualification in effect for as long as the Shelf Registration Statement remains effective under the Securities Act (provided that Laser shall not be required to (i) qualify generally to do business in any jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be required to qualify but for this paragraph, (ii) subject itself to taxation in any such jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be subject to taxation but for this paragraph or (iii) consent to the general service of process in any jurisdiction where it would not otherwise be subject to general service of process but for this paragraph);

(8) notify Parent Holdings, at any time when a prospectus relating to the Shelf Registration Statement is required to be delivered under the Securities Act, upon the discovery that, or of the happening of any event as a result of which, the Shelf Registration Statement, as then in effect, contains an untrue statement of a material fact or omits to state any material fact required to be stated therein or any fact necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, and promptly prepare and furnish to Parent Holdings a supplement or amendment to the prospectus contained in the Shelf Registration Statement so that the Shelf Registration Statement shall not, and such prospectus as thereafter delivered to the purchasers of such Registrable Securities shall not, contain an untrue statement of a material fact or omit to state any material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading;

(9) cause all of the Registrable Securities to be listed on each national securities exchange and included in each established over-the-counter market on which or through which the Laser Common Stock is then listed or traded;

(10) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, make available for inspection by Parent Holdings, any underwriter participating in any disposition pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement, and any attorney, accountant or other agent retained by Parent Holdings or its underwriter, all financial and other records, pertinent corporate documents and properties of Laser as shall be reasonably necessary to enable either of them to exercise their due diligence responsibility, and cause Laser's officers, directors, employees, attorneys and independent accountants to supply all information reasonably requested by Parent Holdings, its underwriters, attorneys, accountants or agents in connection with the Shelf Registration Statement; information which Laser determines, in good faith, to be confidential shall not be disclosed by such persons unless (i) the disclosure of such information is required by applicable federal securities laws or is necessary to avoid or correct a misstatement or omission in such Shelf Registration Statement or (ii) the release of such information is ordered pursuant to a subpoena or other order from a court of competent jurisdiction; Parent Holdings agrees, on its own behalf and on behalf of all of its underwriters, accountants, attorneys and agents, that the information obtained by any of them as a result of such inspections shall be deemed confidential unless and until such is made generally available to the public; Parent Holdings further agrees, on its own behalf and on behalf of all of its underwriters, accountants, attorneys and agents, that Parent Holdings will, upon learning that disclosure of such information is sought in a court of competent jurisdiction, give notice to Laser and allow Laser, at Parent Holdings' expense, to undertake appropriate action to prevent disclosure of the information deemed confidential; nothing contained herein shall require Laser to waive any attorney-client privilege or disclose attorney work product;

(11) use reasonable best efforts to comply with all applicable laws related to the Shelf Registration Statement and offering and sale of securities and all applicable rules and regulations of governmental authorities in connection therewith (including, without limitation, the Securities Act and the Exchange Act, and the rules and regulations promulgated by the SEC) and make generally available to its security holders as soon as practicable (but in any event not later than fifteen (15) months after the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement) an earnings statement of Laser and its subsidiaries complying with Section 11(a) of the Securities Act;

(12) in connection with a sale of Registrable Securities by or through an underwriter, use reasonable best efforts to furnish to Parent Holdings a signed counterpart of (x) an opinion of counsel for Laser (including a "Rule 10b-5" opinion) and (y) a "comfort" letter signed by the independent public accountants who have certified Laser's financial statements included or incorporated by reference in such registration statement, covering such matters with respect to such registration statement and, in the case of the accountants' comfort letter, with respect to events subsequent to the date of such financial statements as are customarily covered in opinions of issuer's counsel and in accountants' comfort letters delivered to the underwriters in underwritten public offerings of securities for the account of, or on behalf of, an issuer of common stock, such opinion and comfort letters to be dated the date that such opinion and comfort letters are customarily dated in such transactions; and

(13) take other actions as Parent Holdings or the underwriters, if any, reasonably request in order to expedite or facilitate the disposition of the Registrable Securities.

(b) Further Agreements. Without limiting any of the foregoing, in the event that the sale of Registrable Securities is to be made by or through an underwriter, Laser shall enter into an underwriting agreement with a managing underwriter or underwriters selected by Parent Holdings containing representations, warranties, indemnities and agreements customarily included (but not inconsistent with the agreements contained herein) by an issuer of common stock in underwriting agreements with respect to offerings of common stock for the account of, or on behalf of, such issuers; provided, however, that Parent Holdings shall not utilize the Shelf Registration Statement for more than two (2) underwritten offerings during the term of this Agreement. In connection with the sale of Registrable Securities hereunder, Parent Holdings may, at its option, require that any and all representations and warranties by, and the other agreements of, Laser to or for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be made to or for the benefit of such an underwriter or underwriter if such sale of Registrable Securities were pursuant to a customary underwritten offering) be made to and for the benefit of Parent Holdings and that any or all of the conditions precedent to the obligations of such underwriter or underwriters (or which would be so for the benefit of such underwriter or underwriters under a customary underwriting agreement) be conditions precedent to the obligations of Parent Holdings in connection with the disposition of Parent Holdings' securities pursuant to the terms hereof. In connection with any offering of Registrable Securities registered pursuant to this Agreement, Laser shall, upon receipt of duly endorsed certificates representing the Registrable Securities, (i) furnish to the underwriter, if any (or, if no underwriter, Parent Holdings), unlegended certificates representing ownership of Registrable Securities being sold, in such denominations as requested, and (ii) instruct any transfer agent and registrar of the Registrable Securities to release any stop transfer order with respect thereto.

Parent Holdings agrees that upon receipt of any notice from Laser of the happening of any event of the kind described in paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a), Parent Holdings shall forthwith discontinue its disposition of Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement and prospectus relating thereto until Parent Holdings' receipt of the copies of the supplemented or amended prospectus contemplated by paragraph (8) of Section 2.4(a) and, if so directed by Laser, deliver to Laser all copies, other than permanent file copies, then in Parent Holdings' possession of the prospectus current at the time of receipt of such notice relating to the Registrable Securities.

Section 2.5 Registration Expenses.

All expenses incidental to Laser's performance of, or compliance with, its obligations under this Agreement including, without limitation, all registration and filing fees, all fees and expenses of compliance with securities and "blue sky" laws (including, without limitation, the fees and expenses of counsel for underwriters or placement or sales agents in connection therewith), all printing and copying expenses, all messenger and delivery expenses, all fees and expenses of underwriters and sales and placement agents in connection therewith (excluding underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor), all fees and expenses of Laser's independent certified public accountants and counsel (including, without limitation, with respect to "comfort" letters and opinions) and other Persons retained by Laser in connection therewith (collectively, the "Registration Expenses"), shall be borne by Laser. Laser shall not be responsible for and shall not pay underwriters' discounts and commissions and the fees and expenses of counsel therefor and fees and expenses of legal counsel, accountants, agents or experts retained by Parent Holdings in connection with the sale of the Registrable Securities. Laser will pay its internal expenses (including, without limitation, all salaries and expenses of its officers and employees performing legal or accounting duties, the expense of any annual audit and the expense of any liability insurance) and the expenses and fees for listing the Registrable Securities on the New York Stock Exchange or, if the Laser Common Stock is then not so listed, included in an established over-the-counter market.

Section 2.6 Indemnification.

(a) By Laser. Laser agrees to indemnify Parent Holdings and Parent Holdings' directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person to the fullest extent lawful, against all losses, claims, damages, liabilities, judgments, and reasonable costs (including, without limitation, reasonable attorneys' fees and expenses) (collectively, the "Losses") as incurred, caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, except insofar as the same are based upon any information furnished in writing to Laser by Parent Holdings or its underwriter or other agent expressly for use therein or by Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or its underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Laser's other obligations under this Agreement, Laser shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Parent Holdings.

(b) By Parent Holdings. In connection with the Shelf Registration Statement, Parent Holdings shall furnish to Laser in writing information regarding Parent Holdings' ownership of Registrable Securities and Parent Holdings' intended method of distribution thereof and shall indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such other indemnified Person against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (i) is caused by, arises out of, results from or relates to, or is alleged to be omitted from, such information so furnished in writing by Parent Holdings or (ii) arises out of or results from Parent Holdings' failure to deliver, or Parent Holdings' underwriter's or other agent's failure to deliver, a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished Parent Holdings with the requested number of copies of the same. In connection with an underwritten offering and without limiting any of Parent Holdings' other obligations under this Agreement, (i) Parent Holdings shall indemnify such underwriters, their officers, directors, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) such underwriters or such other indemnified Person to the same extent as provided above with respect to the indemnification of Laser and (ii) Parent Holdings shall cause each underwriter of an underwritten offering to indemnify Laser, its directors, officers, employees and agents and each Person who controls (within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 of the Exchange Act) Laser or such indemnified Person, on terms and subject to conditions customary for such indemnification by nationally known investment banking firms, against all Losses caused by, arising out of, resulting from or relating to any untrue or alleged untrue statement of material fact contained in the Shelf Registration Statement, any prospectus or preliminary prospectus or any amendment thereof or supplement thereto or any omission or alleged omission of a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, but only to the extent that such untrue statement or omission or alleged untrue statement or omission (x) is caused by, arises out of or results from information furnished in writing by such underwriter specifically for inclusion in the Shelf Registration Statement or (y) arises out of or results from such underwriter's failure to delivery a copy of the Shelf Registration Statement or prospectus or any amendments or supplements thereto after Laser has furnished such underwriter with the requested number of copies of the same.

(c) Notice. Any Person entitled to indemnification hereunder shall give prompt written notice to the indemnifying party of any claim with respect to which it seeks indemnification; provided, however, the failure to give such notice shall not release the indemnifying party from its obligation, except to the extent that the indemnifying party has been prejudiced by such failure to provide such notice.

(d) Defense of Actions. In any case in which any such action is brought against any indemnified party, and it notifies an indemnifying party of the commencement thereof, the indemnifying party shall be entitled to participate therein, and, to the extent that it may wish, jointly with any other indemnifying party similarly notified, to assume the defense thereof, with counsel reasonably satisfactory to such indemnified party, and after notice from the indemnifying party to such indemnified party of its election so to assume the defense thereof, the indemnifying party shall not (so long as it shall continue to have the right to defend, contest, litigate and settle the matter in question in accordance with this paragraph) be liable to such indemnified party hereunder for any legal or other expense subsequently incurred by such indemnified party in connection with the defense thereof other than reasonable costs of investigation, supervision and monitoring (unless such indemnified party reasonably objects to such assumption on the grounds that there may be defenses available to it which are different from or in addition to the defenses available to such indemnifying party, in which event the indemnified party shall be reimbursed by the indemnifying party for the reasonable expenses incurred in connection with retaining one separate legal counsel). An indemnifying party shall not be liable for any settlement of an action or claim effected without its consent. The indemnifying party shall lose its right to defend, contest, litigate and settle a matter if it shall fail to diligently contest such matter (except to the extent settled in accordance with the next following sentence). No matter shall be settled by an indemnifying party without the consent of the indemnified party unless such settlement contains a full and unconditional release of the indemnified party.

(e) Survival. The indemnification provided for under this Agreement shall remain in full force and effect regardless of any investigation made by or on behalf of the indemnified Person and will survive the transfer of the Registrable Securities.

(f) Contribution. If recovery is not available under the foregoing indemnification provisions for any reason or reasons other than as specified therein, any Person who otherwise would be entitled to indemnification by the terms thereof shall nevertheless be entitled to contribution with respect to any Losses with respect to which such Person would be entitled to such indemnification but for such reason or reasons. In determining the amount of contribution to which the respective Persons are entitled, there shall be considered the Persons' relative knowledge and access to information concerning the matter with respect to which the claim was asserted, the opportunity to correct and prevent any statement or omission, and other equitable considerations appropriate under the circumstances. It is hereby agreed that it would not necessarily be equitable if the amount of such contribution were determined by pro rata or per capita allocation. No person guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation (within the meaning of Section 11(f) of the Securities Act) shall be entitled to contribution from any Person who was not found guilty of such fraudulent misrepresentation.

All such notices, requests, demands, waivers and communications shall be deemed to have been given on the date on which so hand-delivered, on the third business day following the date on which so mailed, on the next business day following the date on which delivered to such overnight courier and on the date of such facsimile transmission and confirmation, except for a notice of change of person or address, which shall be effective only upon receipt thereof.

Section 4.4 Entire Agreement.

This Agreement contains the entire understanding of the parties hereto with respect to the subject matter hereof. This Agreement supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral and written, with respect to its subject matter.

Section 4.5 Binding Effect; Assignment.

This Agreement and all of the provisions hereof shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the parties hereto and their respective heirs, executors, successors and permitted assigns, but, except as expressly contemplated herein, neither this Agreement nor any of the rights, interests or obligations hereunder shall be assigned, directly or indirectly, by Laser or Parent Holdings without the prior written consent of the other; provided, that in connection with a bona fide pledge of any Registrable Securities to secure indebtedness or other obligations, Parent Holdings may assign its rights, interests and obligations hereunder to the beneficiary of such pledge. Upon any permitted assignment (other than in connection with any such bona fide pledge), this Agreement shall be amended to substitute the assignee as a party hereto in a writing reasonably acceptable to the other party.

Section 4.6 Amendment, Modification and Waiver.

This Agreement may be amended, modified or supplemented at any time by written agreement of the parties hereto. Any failure by Parent Holdings, on the one hand, or Laser, on the other hand, to comply with any term or provision of this Agreement may be waived by Laser or Parent Holdings, respectively, at any time by an instrument in writing signed by or on behalf of Laser and Parent Holdings, but such waiver or failure to insist upon strict compliance with such term or provision shall not operate as a waiver of, or estoppel with respect to, any subsequent or other failure to comply.

Section 4.7 Third-Party Beneficiaries.

Except with respect to Affiliates which have agreed to be bound in accordance with Section 2.1(a), this Agreement is not intended, and shall not be deemed, to confer upon or give any person except the parties hereto and their respective successors and permitted assigns, any remedy, claim, liability, reimbursement, cause of action or other right under or by reason of this Agreement.

Section 4.8 Counterparts.

This Agreement may be executed in counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original, but all of which together shall constitute one and the same instrument.

Section 4.9 Interpretation.

The article and section headings contained in this Agreement are solely for the purpose of reference, are not part of the agreement of the parties and shall not in any way affect the meaning or interpretation of this Agreement.

Section 4.10 Governing Law.

This Agreement shall be governed by the laws of the State of New York, without regard to the principles of conflicts of law thereof.

Section 4.11 Termination; Restrictive Legend.

Subject to the provisions of Section 2.1(b) hereof, this Agreement shall terminate on the second anniversary of consummation of the Merger; provided, however, that the provisions of Section 2.6 hereof shall survive termination of this Agreement. It is understood and agreed that any restrictive legends set forth on any Registrable Securities shall be removed by delivery of substitute certificates without such legends and such Registrable Securities shall no longer be subject to the terms of this Agreement, upon the resale of such Registrable Securities in accordance with the terms of this Agreement or, if not theretofore removed, on the third anniversary of the date hereof.

ORDER ON MORGAN STANLEY & CO. INCORPORATED AND MORGAN STANLEY SENIOR FUNDING, INC.'S MOTION FOR APPLICATION OF NEW YORK LAW

THIS CAUSE came before the Court June 28, 2004 on Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc.'s Motion for Application of New York Law, with all parties well represented by counsel.

I. Introduction

This case arises out of an acquisition transaction that was negotiated and consummated in late 1997 and early 1998, in which Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH"), sold its 82% interest in the Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"), to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc. ("MS & Co."), served as financial advisor to Sunbeam for parts of the acquisition transaction and served as the lead underwriter for a $750,000,000 debenture offering that Sunbeam used to finance the acquisition.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01753178

In 1998, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF"), and other lenders entered into a credit agreement with Sunbeam under which MSSF agreed to provide senior secured financing to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman and two smaller companies.

CPH's Complaint alleges claims against MS & Co. arising from this transaction for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, and conspiracy, and seeks damages of at least $485 million.

MSSF's Complaint alleges that, in the course of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, Defendants MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. ("MAFCO"), CPH's parent company, and CPH provided false information to MSSF about the "synergies" that Sunbeam would achieve from the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman. MSSF alleges that MAFCO and CPH's inflated synergy projections caused Sunbeam to pay a higher price to acquire Coleman and consequently caused Sunbeam's lenders, including MSSF, to make larger loans to finance the acquisition. MSSF's Complaint asserts claims for fraud and negligent misrepresentation and alleges that MSSF suffered hundreds of millions of dollars in damages when Sunbeam declared bankruptcy in February 2001 and defaulted on acquisition-related loans.

II. Analysis

A. An overview

MS & Co. and MSSF (together "Morgan Stanley"), filed their Motion for Application of New York Law ("Motion"). The Motion seeks a determination that New York substantive law controls all claims in these consolidated cases.

Florida's choice of law rules govern the conflict of laws analysis. Hoffman v. Ouellette, 798 So. 2d 42 (Fla. 4th DCA 2001). A conflict of laws analysis involves a three step process. First, the court must consider whether there are potentially outcome determinative differences between the substantive laws alleged to apply. See Tune v. Philip Morris, Inc., 766 So. 2d 350 (Fla. 2d DCA 2000), rev. den. 786 So. 2d 1188 (Fla. 2001). If there are, the Court must next determine the choice of law rule to be applied for the type of claim alleged. Finally, the court must apply the appropriate choice of law rule. Hoffman.

The parties agree that Florida applies the "significant relationship" test in tort cases. The parties disagree on whether there are potentially outcome determinative differences in New York and Florida substantive law and, if there are, which state's law prevails on application of the conflicts principles. Choice of law is made on an issue by issue basis. Crowell v. Clay Hayden Trucking Lines, Inc., 700 So. 2d 120 (Fla. 2d DCA 1997), rev. den. 705 So. 2d 569 (Fla. 1998). To resolve the dispute, then, the Court must determine whether there are material differences between New York and Florida law on each issue and, if there are, apply the appropriate conflicts principles to determine the controlling substantive law on each contested issue.

B. Step One - New York v. Florida Law

(i) Negligent Misrepresentation

Morgan Stanley contends that New York law requires Coleman to prove that it had a "special relationship" with Coleman before it can bring a claim for negligent misrepresentation. Coleman contends that the "special relationship" requirement in the New York case law is merely a term of art that designates the same group of potential recipients of misrepresentations who have a cause of action as in Florida.

Florida has adopted §552 of the Restatement (Second) of Torts as a statement of the elements for a negligent misrepresentation claim:

> Information Negligently Supplied for the Guidance of Others.
>
> (1) One who, in the course of his business, profession or employment, or in any other transaction is which he has a pecuniary interest, supplies false information for the guidance of others in their business transactions, is subject to liability for pecuniary loss caused to them by their justifiable reliance upon the information, if he fails to exercise reasonable care or competence in obtaining or communicating the information.
> (2) Except as stated in Subsection (3), the liability stated in Subsection (1) is limited to loss suffered

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

017530

(a) by the person or one of a limited group of persons for whose benefit and guidance he intends to supply the information or knows that the recipient intends to supply it; and

(b) through reliance upon it in a transaction that he intends the information to influence or knows that the recipient so intends or in a substantially similar transaction.

(3) The liability of one who is under a public duty to give the information extends to loss suffered by any of the class of persons for whose benefit the duty is created, in any of the transactions in which it is intended to protect them.

See Gilchrist Timber Co. v. ITT Rayonier, Inc., 696 So. 2d 334, 337 (Fla. 1997). Thus, in Florida, one who has a pecuniary interest in a transaction is liable if he negligently supplies incorrect information for the benefit or guidance of another who justifiably relies on it.

New York, however, circumscribes a tighter circle of potential claimants, engrafting a requirement that the information's recipient be in a position of trust or confidence to its publisher. See American Protein Corp. v. AB Volvo, 844 F. 2d 56 (2d Cir. 1988), cert. den. 488 U.S. 852 (1988); DynCorp v. GTE Corporation, 215 F. Supp. 2d 308 (S.D.N.Y. 2002); Citibank, N.A. v. Itochu International, Inc., 2003 WL 1797847 (S.D.N.Y. 2003); Fleet Bank v. Pine Knoll Corp., 736 N.Y.S. 2d 737 (A.D. 3 Dept. 2002); St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co. v. Health Fielding Insurance Brokerage, Ltd., 976 F. Supp. 198 (S.D.N.Y. 1996). The difference between Florida and New York law is material, and may be outcome determinative: the parties dispute whether MS & Co. held or acquired a position of trust or confidence over CPH, and whether MAFCO and CPH held or acquired a position of trust or confidence over MSSF.

(ii) Fraudulent Misrepresentation

Morgan Stanley contends that New York law prevents a recipient of a fraudulent misrepresentation from bringing a claim if it is a "sophisticated party" with access to information which, if checked, would have allowed it to determine the representation was inaccurate. CPH maintains that New York law is merely a specific application of the general rule that a misrepresentation is not actionable unless reliance on it was reasonable, and that it is unreasonable for a sophisticated party in an arms' length commercial transaction to rely on information provided by its opponent that could have been verified.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01753 1

Under New York law, reliance on a fraudulent misrepresentation is not reasonable if the recipient "has the means available to him of knowing, by the exercise of ordinary intelligence, the truth . . ." See Schumaker v. Mather, 133 N.Y. 590; 30 N.E. 755, 757 (1892). Thus, a sophisticated investor may not claim it was fraudulently induced to enter into a transaction if it failed to use the means available to test the representations. UST Private Equity Investors Fund v. Salomon Smith Barney, 733 N.Y.S. 2d 385, 288 A.D. 2d 87 (N.Y. App. Div. 2001).

In contrast, in Florida a recipient of a fraudulent misrepresentation may rely on it unless he knows it is false or its falsity is obvious, even if it had the means to verify the representation's accuracy. See Besett v. Basnett, 389 So. 2d 995 (Fla. 1980); M/I Schottenstein Homes, Inc. v. Azam, 813 So. 2d 91 (Fla. 2002); Sheer v. Jenkins, 629 So. 2d 1033 (Fla. 4th DCA 1993).

Clearly, there is a fundamental distinction on this point between New York and Florida which could be outcome determinative. MS & Co. claims CPH had access to information which would have allowed it to test the allegedly false representations but CPH failed to do its due diligence. MAFCO and CPH claim that MSSF had access to information that would have allowed MSSF to test the synergy representations, but MSSF failed to do its due diligence. If true, a jury could find reliance that is reasonable under Florida law to be unreasonable under New York law.

C. Step Two - Choice of Law Rule

(i) Applicable Rule

Florida has adopted the Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws' significant relationships test. See Bishop v. Florida Specialty Paint Company, 389 So. 2d 999 (Fla. 1980). Section 145 states the general principles with respect to tort. Section 148 states the choice of law principles for fraud and misrepresentation. Counsel agree section 148 applies.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

D 17582

See Trumpet Vine Investments, N.V. v. Union Capital Partners I, Inc., 92 F. 3d 1110 (11th Cir. 1996).

(ii) Procedure

The Court was unable to find any cases specifically delineating the procedure to be used for a judicial choice of law determination prior to trial. However, because application of the significant relationships test is fact-dependent, the Court concludes that a pre-trial determination is controlled by the summary judgment rule, Rule 1.510, Fla. R. Civ. P. First, the Court is unaware of any other procedural vehicle that would permit a pre-trial determination of facts. Second, it appears that when summary judgment has been used by the trial courts, the appellate courts have reviewed the orders without comment on the procedure employed. See, e.g., Rush v. Joyner, 540 So. 2d 266 (Fla. 4th DCA 1989); Bishop.

(iii) The Undisputed Facts

The following facts are undisputed:

1. CPH is a wholly owned subsidiary of MAFCO. Before the transaction with Sunbeam in March 1998, CPH was a holding company with an 82% interest in Coleman. CPH is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in New York City, New York.

2. MS & Co. is an investment banking firm providing financial and securities services. MS & Co. is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in New York City, New York.

3. CPH retained the investment bank of Credit Suisse First Boston ("CSFB") to serve as its financial advisor on the Sunbeam transaction. CSFB is a global investment bank with offices in New York. CPH worked with CSFB personnel in the New York office on the Sunbeam deal.

4. MS & Co. served as Sunbeam's financial advisor during the negotiations that led to the Coleman acquisition. MS & Co.'s contract with Sunbeam was governed by New York law.

5. New York counsel represented CPH, MS & Co., and MSSF during the course of the negotiations and closing of the Sunbeam transaction.

6. CPH retained the accounting firm of Ernst & Young, a national accounting firm with offices in New York. CPH worked with accountants in the New York office on the Coleman deal.

7. MSSF is a financial services company that provides credit services to its clients. MSSF is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in New York .

8. MAFCO relied on New York-based personnel at CSFB for financial services; on Wachtell, Lipton Rosen & Katz, a New York based law firm, for legal advice; and on Ernst & Young for accounting services.

9. There were numerous telephone calls between MS & Co. personnel and Sunbeam personnel in Florida concerning MS & Co.'s retention; its work for Sunbeam; and the Coleman transaction.

10. MS & Co. personnel met with Sunbeam personnel in Florida several times to discuss MS & Co.'s retention as Sunbeam's financial advisor, strategy, potential acquisition candidates, and merger issues.

11. On or about September 23 and 24, 1997; October 29, 1997; and March 4 and 5, 1998, MS & Co. personnel conducted due diligence at Sunbeam's Florida offices.

12. MS & Co. corresponded with Sunbeam at its Florida offices on a variety of issues dealing with its representation of Sunbeam and the merger.

13. On or about December 18, 1997, representatives of Sunbeam and MAFCO met in Florida to discuss a potential transaction involving Sunbeam and Coleman.

14. On or about February 3, 1998, Sunbeam personnel met with an Arthur Andersen representative at Sunbeam's Florida offices in connection with the Coleman transaction.

15. On March 5, 1998, MS & Co. personnel attended a drafting session in Florida in connection with the subordinated debenture offering.

16. On or about March 12, 1998, MS & Co. personnel conducted an accounting due diligence conference call with Arthur Andersen personnel in Florida regarding Sunbeam's financial circumstances.

17. The March 19, 1998 press release was publicly issued from Sunbeam's headquarters in Delray Beach, Florida; was drafted by Sunbeam's lawyers at the New York offices of Skadden Arps; was reviewed by MS & Co. in New York; and was received by CPH in New York.

011584

18. The statements by Lawrence Bornstein of Arthur Andersen concerning Sunbeam's earnings shortfalls took place at the offices of Global Financial Press in New York.

19. Any representations that MAFCO and CPH made to MSSF at the December 12, 1997 and January 29, 1998 meetings were made and received in New York.

20. On February 4, 1998, Coleman sent Sunbeam a proposed Confidentiality Agreement in connection with the proposed merger. Sunbeam executed the Confidentiality Agreement. The Confidentiality Agreement provided that New York law applies to it.

21. On February 27, 1998, Sunbeam and CPH's boards of directors met in New York and approved the merger agreement. MS & Co. made a presentation to Sunbeam's Board of Directors at the meeting in New York and provided a "fairness opinion" prior to the Board's approval of the transaction.

22. Sunbeam and CPH signed the merger agreement later that day in New York.

23. The merger agreement specified that the acquisition would close in New York and that all share certificates and other consideration would be exchanged by the parties at the closing in New York.

24. Written notice of changes in circumstances having a material adverse effect was to be delivered to CPH's wholly owned subsidiary in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. No notice was received.

25. On March 29, 1998, Sunbeam and CPH entered into a Registration Rights Agreement which provided for the registration by Sunbeam of 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam common stock that were issued to a wholly owned subsidiary of CPH. The Registration Rights Agreement provided that it was governed by New York law without regard to New York conflicts of law principles.

26. The Sunbeam transaction closed on March 30, 1998 in New York.

27. CPH tendered its shares of Coleman to Sunbeam in New York. At the time of the transaction, Coleman was a public company traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

28. CPH accepted shares of Sunbeam stock in New York. At the time of the transaction, Sunbeam was a public company traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

29. The Sunbeam financing transactions were closed in New York on March 31, 1998.

30. MSSF loaned Sunbeam $680 million in New York in part to be used for the Coleman deal.

D. Step Three - Application of the Law to the Facts

(i) Negligent Misrepresentation - CPH v. MS & Co.

Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws §148 (1971) provides:

> §148. Fraud and Misrepresentation
>
> (1) When the plaintiff has suffered pecuniary harm on account of his reliance on the defendant's false representations and when the plaintiff's action in reliance took place in the state where the false representations were made and received, the local law of this state determines the rights and liabilities of the parties unless, with respect to the particular issue, some other state has a more significant relationship under the principles stated in §6 to the occurrence and the parties, in which event the local law of the other state will be applied.
> (2) When the plaintiff's action in reliance took place in whole or in part in a state other than that where the false representations were made, the forum will consider such of the following contacts, among others, as may be present in the particular case in determining the state which, with respect to the particular issue, has the most significant relationship to the occurrence and the parties:
>
> (a) the place, or places, where the plaintiff acted in reliance upon the defendant's representations,
>
> (b) the place where the plaintiff received the representation,
>
> (c) the place where the defendant made the representations,
>
> (d) the domicil, residence, nationality, place of incorporation and place of business of the parties,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0117636

(e) the place where a tangible thing which is the subject of the transaction between the parties was situated at the time, and

(f) the place where the plaintiff is to render performance under a contract which he has been induced to enter by the false representations of the defendant.

MS & Co. argues that subsection (1) applies; CPH argues that subsection (2) applies. The correct answer is unclear, since subsection (1) applies only if the false statements were both made and received in the same state, and subsection (2) applies if reliance occurs in whole or in part in a different state that where the representation was made. §148 does not state a rule where the place of reliance and representation are the same, but different from the place where the representation was received.

The representations were received in New York. The actionable part of CPH's reliance occurred in New York, where the contract was entered into and closed. Finally, it is undisputed that the representations relied on in Count I of CPH's Complaint were made in New York. Consequently, New York law controls unless Florida has a more significant relationship under the principles stated in section 6 of the Restatement. It does not. While Florida's public policy provides broader protection for the recipients of false information in commercial transactions, which creates greater incentives for parties to take reasonable care that their representations are correct, that interest is not paramount to New York's, under the principles outlined in section 6. Instead, certainty and predictability in commercial transactions require that New York law apply.

Even if the choice of laws was not dictated by subsection (1), application of subsection (2) would lead to the same result: CPH relied on the statements in New York; it received the representations in New York; the representations were made in New York; the parties are domiciled in New York; and CPH was required to perform in New York.

(ii) Negligent Misrepresentation: MSSF v. MAFCO and CPH

MSSF's claims against MAFCO and CPH are centered on two meetings where MSSF alleges MAFCO and CPH gave inflated synergy projections, on December 12, 1997, and

01783

January 29, 1998. Both were face to face meetings in New York. Consequently, the allegedly false synergy projections were made, received, and relied on in New York. Florida does not have a more significant relationship to the particular issue--the group of people to which MSSF owed a duty--under the principles listed in section 6. Consequently, New York law governs whether MSSF owed a duty to MAFCO and CPH.

(iii) Fraudulent Misrepresentation: CPH v. MS & Co.

As outlined above, section 148 (1) of the Restatement dictates the application of New York law to determine whether reliance on a fraudulent misstatement is justified. Florida does not have a more significant relationship to this issue than New York, based on application of the principles outlined in section 6 of the Restatement. Though Florida has a strong public policy dictating that "(a) person guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation should not be permitted to hide behind the doctrine of caveat emptor," that interest does not override New York's. Besset at 997. Certainty and predictability require that the standards of due diligence governing sophisticated New York domiciled corporations entering into a commercial transaction in New York be governed by New York law.

(iv) Fraudulent Misrepresentation: MSSF v. MAFCO and CPH

Section 148 (1) of the Restatement dictates the application of New York law to determine the due diligence required to find reliance on a false statement reasonable. Application of section 6's principles does not dictate a different result.

(v) Conspiracy and Aiding and Abetting-CPH v. MS & Co.

The Court is unable to apply section 148's principles or conclude whether Florida or New York has the more significant relationship to CPH's aiding and abetting fraud and conspiracy claims, found at Counts II and III of its Complaint.

Both counts claim that MS & Co. actively worked with Sunbeam personnel to manipulate Sunbeam's finances to make it appear that Sunbeam had successfully rebounded from poor performance; to conceal and misrepresent Sunbeam's true financial condition to entice a potential purchaser or investor; and to provide CPH, both through MS & Co. and by materials it scripted for Sunbeam, false and inaccurate financial information to persuade

01763

CPH to agree to, then consummate, a merger with Sunbeam.

It is unclear to the Court how, if at all, the two claims differ. However, if MS & Co. were found liable based on allegations of its participation with Sunbeam personnel in an elaborate fraud, then it would be liable for the entire fraud. See Hoch v. Rissman, Weisberg, Barrett, 742 So. 2d 451 (Fla. 5th DCA 1999), rev. den. 760 So. 2d 948 (Fla. 2000); Ford v. Rowland, 562 So. 2d 731 (Fla. 5th DCA 1990), rev. den. 574 So. 2d 141 (1990); Nicholson v. Kellin, 481 So. 2d 931 (Fla. 5th DCA 1985). Further, MS & Co. could be liable for Sunbeam's actions prior to its retention if it joined with Sunbeam to perpetuate a fraud with knowledge of its general purpose and scope. See James v. Nationsbank Trust Co. (Florida), N.A., 639 So. 2d 1031 (Fla. 5th DCA 1994). The fraud alleged is largely Florida based, and the location of its ultimate victim incidental. Florida has a strong public policy in favor of protecting the recipients of fraudulent misrepresentations. Besset. That policy is more clearly implicated if CPH is able to prove that MS & Co. was an actor in a Florida-based fraud. The allegations of conspiracy are disputed, precluding summary judgment at this juncture on the choice of law issue.

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc.'s Motion for Application of New York Law is Granted, in part. As to Counts I and IV of CPH's Complaint and MSSF's claims against MAFCO and CPH, the Court determines that New York substantive law applies (i) to engraft a requirement that the recipient of a negligent misrepresentation be in a special relationship to its publisher for the misrepresentation to be actionable, and (ii) to engraft a requirement that a party perform reasonable due diligence as to available information in order to prove that its reliance on a misrepresentation was reasonable.

DONE AND ORDERED in West Palm Beach, Palm Beach County, Florida this 18 day of August, 2004.

A. (Indicating).
Q. You have to answer yes or no.
A. Yes.
Q. Thank you very much. How old are you, sir?
A. 56.
Q. What is your date of birth?
A. March 1, 1948.
Q. Are you represented by Mr. Marmer here this morning?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. Can you tell the jury where you live today?
A. 47 Rio Vista Drive, Alpine, New Jersey.
Q. Do you have a listed telephone number there?
A. Yes.
Q. What is it?
MR. MARMER: Excuse me. Can we supply that off record just in case.
We have --
MR. BEMIS: It's a listed phone number. That's why I asked him.

Drapkin

MR. MARMER: Is it listed as in the sense of listed, publicly accessible?
THE WITNESS: It's publicly accessible.
MR. MARMER: Okay.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
A. 201-767-5650.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Are you married today?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you live at that address with your wife?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. How long have you been there?
A. I think it's going on 20 years.
Q. Any present intention to move?
A. No.
Q. Who do you work for today?
A. MacAndrews & Forbes -- I think it's Holdings. The ultimate parent company of MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. And how long have you been employed by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings? There's an S on the end I think.
A. Since January 1, 1987.
Q. What is your title at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. today?
A. Vice chairman.
Q. Do you hold any other titles?
A. Not that I'm aware, no.
Q. Are you a director of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And what is the office address for MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings?
A. 35 East 62nd Street, New York, New York 10021.
Q. And do you have an office telephone number there, sir?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And what is it?
A. (212) 572-8440.

A. Yes, sir.
Q. And do you understand that the videotape can be played to the jury in the trial of this action?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And did you have an opportunity to consult with Mr. Marmer before your deposition today?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you have an opportunity to review documents with him that he brought and showed to you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you understand, sir, that even though we are not in a courtroom, that the testimony you are giving is under oath, and has the same force and effect as if you were testifying in front of a jury?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Is there any reason that you can tell us about today that you could not testify truthfully?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been deposed before?
A. Yes.
Q. About many times?
A. Less than half a dozen.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

Q. Is there -- withdrawn.
Have you ever been deposed in any litigation that is in any way connected with the Sunbeam Coleman transaction that we'll be talking about today?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any residences -- let me withdraw that question.
Do you have a residence in Florida?
A. No.
Q. Have you had since 1997?
A. No.
Q. You have a driver's license, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And is it a New Jersey driver's license?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you registered to vote in New Jersey?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. I don't know if you pay state taxes there. I assume you do. Do you pay state income taxes in New Jersey?
A. Unfortunately.

Drapkin

Q. I note from looking at your background that you did graduate from Columbia Law School; is that right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. About 1971?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Are you admitted to practice as a lawyer today in any state?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Which states?
A. The State of New York.
Q. Any other states, sir?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. When did you begin --
A. I might have been years ago. I don't recall whether I kept up.
Q. When did you begin -- strike that.
When were you first admitted to practice in New York?
A. I believe it was 1971.
Q. And have you been continuously licensed to practice in New York since 1971?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. I've done a little bit of background checking on you just to speed things along. And I want to ask you a couple of questions about your background before we get to some more substantive matters.

Drapkin

When you graduated from law school and passed the bar exam, did you go to work for a law firm?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Which one?
A. Cravath, Swaine & Moore.
Q. And how long were you with Cravath?
A. Until January 1, 1977.
Q. Then did you go to Skadden, Arps?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. How long -- what years were you there?
A. Until January 1, 1987.
Q. Did you have an area of practice that you specialized in as an associate at Cravath?
A. Cravath has a rotation system. So as an associate, I worked in, as I recall, three different areas.
Q. What were the areas that you worked in at Cravath?

Drapkin

A. My first rotation was what I would call general corporate work, representing public companies mostly and doing underwritings.
My second rotation was for another corporate partner who did mostly company work rather than -- and deals rather than public offerings.
And my third rotation was for a gentleman named Dick Simmons who was a Chemical Bank partner. And I did mostly Chemical Bank work.
(Discussion off the record.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Would you -- thank you for your patience. I'm sorry for the interruption.
Would you characterize the work that you did at Cravath generally being in the corporate field?
A. Yes.
Q. You then spent a number of years, it looks like 10 years if I count it correctly, at Skadden, Arps?
A. That's correct.
Q. When you left there, were you a partner?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you have an area of specialization when you worked at Skadden?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that, sir?
A. Corporate law.
Q. Any particular area of corporate law that you concentrated in?
A. I suppose one could say mergers and acquisitions.
Q. Did you do public offerings?
A. On occasion.
Q. Were you involved in mergers and acquisitions that involved underwritings?
A. On occasion.
Q. Have you ever worked on -- withdrawn. When you left Skadden -- Skadden, Arps in I believe you said January 1st of -- was it 1987?
A. Correct.
Q. Is that when you went to work for MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.?
A. Correct.

Drapkin

Q. And have you -- you've been there continuously ever since; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you hold -- MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. is owned a hundred percent by another company called Mafco, Inc.; is it not?
A. I actually am not exactly sure what the ultimate name -- as I said before, the ultimate name of the parent holding company. There may be. I would defer to my colleague, Mr. Fasman, who knows the corporate structure a little better than I do.
Q. Setting that issue aside, it is your understanding there is one holding company above MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.; is that correct?
A. No.
Q. Then I want to see if we can get this sorted out and get it behind us. Let me see.
MR. BEMIS: Can you mark this as Exhibit 279, please.
(Discussion off the record.)
(MS Exhibit 279, Notice of Merger and Appraisal Rights, marked for identification,

Drapkin

as of this date.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. I've handed you a document that the Court Reporter has marked as Morgan Stanley 279. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. I direct -- I'd like you to -- withdrawn.
Please look at page 69. I don't know if it's double sided or not, but 279 is the page that I -- 69 excuse me. Are you there?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. My understanding is that you worked for the entity that is shown on this page as MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you familiar with a company called Mafco Holdings, Inc.?
A. I know the name.
Q. That's all you know is the name?
A. I may be a director of it. We have lots -- as you can see from this, there are lots of holdings companies, and I have trouble keeping the names straight.

Drapkin

Q. Well, for the record, this document is dated -- and it's on page ii if you want -- December 6, 1999. And you can set that aside for the moment and I may come back to it later.
Now, in addition to your position with MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings, Inc., do you hold any position in a company called MacAndrews & Forbes Group, Inc.?
A. I may be -- I may be a director of MacAndrews & Forbes Group, Inc. My employment is with MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. I'm probably a director of all of the intermediates and subsidiaries.
Q. When you say you are an employee of that company, is that the company that issues you a paycheck?
A. I have no idea. We have direct deposit.
Q. Well, even if you have direct deposit, you usually get something from the company at the end of the year for federal tax purposes that tells you who paid you. Do you know what that is?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

A. It goes to my accountant. I'll add, we only have one shareholder so.
Q. And the one shareholder you have is Mr. Ronald O. Perelman?
A. That's correct.
Q. And he owns all of the companies, either 100 percent or whatever stock is owned of companies owned by these subsidiary companies, correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Have you ever held any position in the company that is a Plaintiff in this case, Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.?
A. I believe I was a director.
Q. Do you remember when you were a director?
A. I don't remember the exact dates, no.
Q. Another company involved in this litigation is the Coleman Company, Inc. You were a director of that company, correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And did you also serve on the executive committee of that company?
A. I believe so.

Drapkin

Q. How long were you a director?
A. I believe I was a director from when the date we bought the company until we were no longer involved.
Q. And when you say no "longer involved," would that be the date that you resigned pursuant to the merger agreement that CLN Holdings was a party to with Sunbeam?
A. That is correct.
Q. And did you submit -- you submitted a written resignation? Excuse me.
A. I don't recall.
Q. After you resigned from the Coleman Company, did you ever have any further position with the company?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you ever hold a position with Coleman Worldwide Corporation?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Let me hand you a document we previously marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 130. Please look at page 3 and you'll see your name about four paragraphs down, directly below Mr. Perelman's name.

Drapkin

A. Yes, sir.
Q. Reading this paragraph, this is a document that's previously been identified as being filed by Coleman Company, Inc.. It identifies you as a director of Coleman Worldwide, which is short for Coleman Worldwide Corporation. Does that refresh your recollection if you were a director of that company?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You can set that aside.
Were you -- withdrawn. Did you hold any positions in a company called CLN Holdings Inc.?
A. I don't recall.
Q. In addition to the companies we've been talking about, and kind of the chain of ownership of the Coleman Company, are you a director in other companies owned or controlled by Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. Revlon?
A. Yes.
Q. You are a director of that company?
A. Yes.

Drapkin

Q. How long have you been a director of Revlon?
A. Since we've owned it.
Q. And when would that be?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember the decade since you've owned it?
A. I believe it was sometime in -- actually, let me amend my answer. I was still a lawyer when we acquired Revlon in 1985 and '6. I didn't join the company until '87. So I probably became director sometime in '87.
Q. And are Revlon -- is Revlon, Inc. a publicly-traded company?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you also a director of a number of its subsidiary companies? And I'll start with Revlon Group, Inc. Are you a subsidiary of that?
A. I believe those are not subsidiary companies.
Q. What are they?
A. I think they are holding companies.
Q. Holding companies. Are you a director of Revlon Group, Inc.?

A. I believe so.
Q. There's a company called Revlon Consumer Products Corporation. Are you a director of that company?
A. I believe so.
Q. Is that a holding company as well?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. There's another company Revlon Worldwide Corporation. Are you a director of that company?
A. I believe so.
Q. Is that a holding company?
A. I'm not sure where in the chain what we call RGI Worldwide and Consumer Products are. But there's an organizational chart I'm sure you can get a hold of.
Q. Do you hold --
A. Excuse me one second.
(Discussion off the record.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Turning back to the companies that are most closely involved with, I think, this case, you've told us about MacAndrews & Forbes Holding, Inc. What is the business of that company?

Page 23

Drapkin

A. We own a number of companies, and we buy and sell companies.
Q. It's a holding company, isn't it?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And when you say you buy and sell companies, would this be in the nature of doing merger and acquisition transactions as you described in your legal practice?
A. In some sense.
Q. And has that been the business, as you've just described it for us, of MacAndrews & Forbes Holding since you went to work there in 1987?
A. Yes.
Q. Does it have any business that it operates today?
A. Lots. As I said, our business is owning and running companies, as well as buying and selling.
Q. What business does MacAndrews and Forbes Holding, Inc. actually operate itself as opposed through another entity?
A. None. But I'm not sure I understand

Page 24

Drapkin

the question.
Q. Well, do you understand that -- you understand the difference between an operating company and a holding company?
A. Yes, I think I do.
Q. Okay. The Coleman Company, which you heard me talking about, that's an operating company, correct? It was an operating company when you owned it?
A. Yes.
Q. It made things?
A. Right.
Q. It had factories?
A. Correct.
Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. as a corporation, does it have factories?
A. No.
Q. Does it make any products?
A. No.
Q. And I think you told me the address there was 35 East 62nd Street; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you -- does it have any other offices at all other than just that one office?

Page 25

Drapkin

A. Yes.
Q. Where is its other office -- offices if there's more than one?
A. We have spaces in various different locations in New York: 63rd Street -- I'm not exactly sure, but we do have some space at other places in New York. But the main offices are at 35 East 62nd.
Q. Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., which is one of the parties to this case, I think you said you were a director of that company?
A. I believe so.
Q. Where are its offices?
A. Where are they today?
Q. Yes. Where are they today?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Are you still a director of the company today?
A. I have no idea.
Q. What was the -- what did you -- was the -- withdrawn.
What was the business of Coleman (Parent) Holdings company the last time you knew?
A. To take action with respect to the interests of the Coleman Corporation, the operating company.

Drapkin

Q. Did it have any business in and of itself or was it just a holding company?

A. I believe it was just a holding company.

Q. And was Coleman (Parent) Holdings then owned 100 percent by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, the company that you worked for?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did it have any --

A. Are you asking about today or then or ever? The answer is going to be the same --

Q. Fair question. Let's say January 1st of 1988.

A. Directly or indirectly it would have been owned by MacAndrews & Forbes. Excuse me --

Q. I'm sorry, I didn't mean to interrupt you.

MR. MARMER: Could I have the year in that question.

Q. January 1, 19 -- I said '88 and I misspoke. Let me try again.

As of January 1, 1998, did Coleman

Drapkin

(Parent) Holdings have any operating businesses?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And was its business essentially a holding company directly or indirectly of a common stock of the Coleman Company, Incorporated?

A. I believe so.

Q. Did it ever have an office in Florida to your knowledge? Again, lets focus on 1998.

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did it have any employees other than directors?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did it maintain -- did CPH, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, maintain an office in New York City at the 35 East 62nd Street address?

A. I don't know.

Q. There's another company, CLN Holdings Inc., that we've been talking about. Going back now to say January 1st of 1998, did it have any operating businesses that you know of?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you know what its business was at all?

Drapkin

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did it have any material assets?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did it have any offices in Florida?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did it have an office in New York?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did it have any employees?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Any officers?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did it have any directors?

A. I assume it had directors, and I assume that I was one of those directors.

Q. You told me you were a director of Coleman Worldwide Corporation, and I think we confirmed that in one of the filings, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And again focusing, we'll take the time period January 1, 1998. Was Coleman Worldwide Corporation owned by CLN Holdings Inc.?

A. I don't know where in the chain CLN Holdings was, whether it was a subsidiary, a holding company. I just don't recall.

Drapkin

Q. Is this something that you would need an organization chart to answer these questions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As of, say, January 1, 1998, did Coleman Worldwide Corporation, of which you were a director, have a business?

A. I assume it did.

Q. Do you know what it was, sir, as the director?

A. I assume its business was owning shares of Coleman Inc.

Q. Have you heard of an instrument which is abbreviated LYONs or liquid yield option notes?

A. Yes.

Q. Are those sometimes called LYONs, although spelled differently?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What are those in the case of -- that you are familiar with?

A. It's a -- it was a popular device back in the '90s to issue a form of quasi debt security that could be converted into equity or the holder could demand back cash payment at somewhat reduced interest rate because he had the option to get stock if he wanted.

Q. Were they also sold at a discount from face value like zero -- like the zero coupon debentures?

A. I think that would depend on the LYONs.

Q. On the LYONs, right?

MR. BEMIS: And again, Ms. Reporter, that's L-Y-O-N-S, not L-I-O-N.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Did Coleman Worldwide Corporation ever issue LYONs?

A. I believe we did do a LYON issue. I don't recall the details.

Q. I'm going to show you what's already been marked as Morgan Stanley 241. And you are not going to need to read the whole thing. I just want you to look at the second paragraph of the first page of MS 241. Tell me when you're looking at that and I'll direct you to the sentence I want to you look at. Are you with me?

A. I'm looking at the first page.

Q. First page, second paragraph.

Drapkin

A. Okay.

Q. If you read halfway down that paragraph, it refers to notes due 2013, LYONs of Coleman Worldwide Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Coleman Holdings. Do you see that?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You have to answer yes or no.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Thank you. Does that refresh your recollection whether Coleman Worldwide Corporation issued LYONs which were due 2013?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And the amount of the LYONs that were issued according to this Coleman escrow offering memorandum, if I read it correctly, is $561,553; is that correct?

A. I have no idea.

Q. You have no idea of?

A. That's your math. I see lots of different numbers here. I'd have to sit down and read it carefully to see what the exact number was.

Q. But you do recall that Coleman Worldwide did issue the LYONs securities, right?

Drapkin

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You can set that aside.

At any time that you were a director of the Coleman Worldwide Corporation, did it ever have any operating businesses at all?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Was it to your knowledge an operating -- excuse me, a holding company at all times?

A. To my knowledge.

Q. Did it hold any material assets other than stocks or securities of some kind?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Do you know what its principal address was at any time?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did it have an office at 35 East 62nd Street?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you know any of the directors other than yourself?

A. I would be guessing.

Q. I won't hold you to it, but what's your best, if you want to call it guess or assumption, as to who the other directors would have been.

Drapkin

MR. MARMER: Objection to the form.

A. I don't want to guess. I just don't recall.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Did it have any officers?

A. Same answer.

Q. That you don't know?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did it have any employees of any kind?

A. I don't recall.

Q. You have to keep your voice up --

A. I'm sorry. I don't recall.

Q. You told me earlier when I asked you what the business was of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc., you buy and sell businesses, right?

A. And operate them.

Q. And operate businesses you said. And you operate these businesses through other companies that you own?

A. Using your definition, yes, that's correct.

Q. Since 19 -- since 1987, how many businesses have -- has MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, your employer, bought and sold?
A. I don't know.
Q. You have no idea at all?
A. I'd have to sit down and go through all my recollections to see what we owned, what we didn't own, what we sold. What we kept.
Q. I understand that --
A. You're asking me right here, do I know how many businesses that we owned or operated or sold. I don't know.
Q. Is it more than one?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Is it more than 10?
A. Maybe.
Q. Seriously, are you telling me that you don't know whether it's more than 10 businesses that you've bought and sold since 1987?
A. I don't know the exact number.
Q. I'm not going to hold you to an exact number. It's your best approximation under oath in front of the jury what it is.

Page 35

Drapkin

A. Since I'm under oath and in front of the jury, I don't want to mislead anybody. I don't remember the exact number. If you want me to go back and check, I can go back and check. And we can figure out exactly the right number.
Q. Tell me what's your best --
A. I don't remember the dates we owned and sold Technicolor, is it before or after 1987. We had lots of smaller companies, bigger companies. I just don't remember.
Q. I appreciate you don't remember an exact number. And qualify the number in any way that you want. Give the jury your best estimate since 1987 of how many companies MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. has bought and sold.
MR. MARMER: Objection; asked and answered.
Subject to my objection, the witness may answer again.
A. I don't have a good number. It's more than one and less than 50.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Have some of these been public companies?

Page 36

Drapkin

A. Yes, sir.
Q. And some of them private companies?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And is this true on both the buy and the sell side, that is you've bought public companies?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you've sold public companies?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And MacAndrews & Forbes has bought private companies?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And MacAndrews & Forbes, while you were there, has sold private companies?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. While you were at MacAndrews & Forbes, has that company or any of its subsidiaries issued debt securities, that is instruments that would qualify as securities under the 1933 Act?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. How many times?
A. I don't know.
Q. One of them you recalled was the

Page 37

Drapkin

LYONs, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you recall any others?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What others?
A. I mean, we do debt financing all the time. So almost every company we have either has a bank loan, which is a debt security as defined by the 1933 Act, or public debt or 144 debt. I mean, virtually every company in America has some form of debt, and our companies would be no -- excuse me. Would be no exception to those rules.
Q. When you say "144 debt," you're referring to Rule 144, correct?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. Since 1987, in an aggregate amount, how much debt financing has MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. done?
A. I don't know.
Q. Is it in the hundreds of millions of dollars?
A. I don't know.
Q. Is it in the billions of dollars?
A. You're asking me to guess how much debt we've issued since 1987--

Q. I'm not asking you to guess.
A. But it would be a guess, so I can't answer the question.
Q. You have no idea at all as a director of the company? And you're the second ranking officer in the company, aren't you?
MR. MARMER: Objection.
Q. Let me rephrase the question.
MR. MARMER: Are you abandoning the question?
MR. BEMIS: I said I would rephrase it, so I guess that means I'm abandoning it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. You are the second ranking officer in MacAndrews & Forbes, are you not?
A. We don't rank our officers.
Q. Who do you report to?
A. Mr. Perelman.
Q. Is he the top?
A. That's correct.
Q. Is it your testimony, as a man who reports to Mr. Perelman, that you do not know even an estimate of the amount of fine debt financing that MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. or its subsidiaries have done since 1987?

Drapkin

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.
A. It is my testimony that every single one of our companies has done some form of debt financing. And you're asking me to total that amount for a sixteen year period for up to 50 companies and to guess that number. I am not in the business of speculating on that number.
Q. When you do debt financings for all of these companies, as you have described them to us, do you -- have you used underwriters?
A. In some cases.
Q. Who are some of the underwriters that you've used?
A. Almost every major name on Wall Street.
Q. So, for example, you have used Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Have you used Morgan Stanley?
A. I do not know whether we have ever used Morgan Stanley for a debt financing. I actually think not.

Drapkin

Q. Salomon?
A. Salomon Brothers was an independent entity for many years, and then merged three or four times. Somewhere in that change, we've used an entity that either owned or was Salomon Brothers. But today it's part of Citigroup. And if you question is did we ever used Citigroup, the answer is yes.
Q. Well, I don't remember the date of the merger so.
A. I did the merger, so I actually remember it.
Q. When was it?
A. '82.
Q. Let me turn to the -- ask you a couple of questions about -- well, withdrawn.
MR. BEMIS: Could you mark this as 288 please, Miss Reporter.
(MS Exhibit 288, Cigar Afficionado article on Ron Perelman, marked for identification, as of this date.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Exhibit MS 288 in front of you?

Drapkin

A. Yes, sir.
Q. If you turn to Page 18 of 19, there's a second paragraph. And I'd like to direct your attention there, please. You'll see it begins "Perelman."
Are you there?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You can read the whole paragraph if you like, but I'd like you to direct your attention to the remarks attributed to Mr. Perelman in this article. It states "and then Donald Drapkin, who's been our partner -- I mispronounced your name. I'm sorry. "Who had been our partner at Skadden, Arps, likewise reached a point where he was thinking about a change of career. And I made the same speech to him that I made to Gittis, and he joined us at that time. He's basically our in-house strategic thinker. He's our in-house investment banker.".
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is than an accurate statement of your position at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.?
A. Yes.

Have you ever been referred to as Mr. Perelman's alter ego?
A. I don't know.

MR. BEMIS: It's been previously marked, Miss Reporter.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have MS 240 in front of you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Have you seen this article before entitled "The Richest Guy in Town"?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Well, did you give a -- did you give an interview at some point to Mr. Craig, C-R-A-I-G, Horowitz?
A. The copy of this article you're giving me does not tell me the date, the publication it's in or where it might have come from.
Q. It does on the second page, sir, if you look at the footer on the second page. I'm sorry, I should have given you that page. That's

Drapkin

November -- September 6, 1993.
A. And this is supposed to be -- it says "New York." Does that mean New York Magazine?
Q. That I can't tell you off the top of my head, sir.
A. Well, I reiterate, do I remember whether I gave an interview to some magazine eleven years ago about Ronald? I don't recall.
Q. Well, turn to page -- to page 50 of the article.
A. Page 50. Okay.
Q. Page 50. And below the heading which reads "We will spend one billion dollars to put together a real Entertainment," and it continues over onto the next page.
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And the paragraph that begins "but Perelman," directly below there. Would you look at that, please --
A. Yes. Yes, sir.
Q. And tell me when you are done reading the paragraph.
Did you make those statements that are attributable to you, sir: "Just because he's done ten deals or 20 deals or 30 deals that have been spectacular," says Donald Drapkin, Perelman's alter ego and MacAndrews & Forbes, "doesn't mean he should slow down or stop. If it was only about having enough money to live, he would have stopped a long time ago. But this is what we do. We do deals, big deals, little deals, deals."

Drapkin

Did you say that, sir?
A. I have no reason to doubt it, but I don't recall.
Q. Is it an accurate statement about what you do at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc.?
MR. MARMER: Object to the form.
Q. As of this time in 1993 when this article was attributed to you?
MR. MARMER: Same objection.
A. It was certainly part of what we did.
Q. You can set that aside.
Now you attended the -- withdrawn. I would like to now move forward to 1998, and to the February board meetings of the Coleman Company Inc. at which time the merger transaction that's the subject matter of this litigation was considered by the Coleman Company, Inc. board of directors. Are you with me timewise now?

A. Uh-huh.
Q. You have to answer yes or no?
A. Okay.
Q. Now, there were at least two meetings of the board of directors in February of '98 of Coleman Company Inc. Do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. Perhaps to put this in context and move it a little quicker, the dates that we've identified are February 25th and February 27, 1998. Does that square with your recollection?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, you attended both of those meetings, did you not?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you attend in your capacity as a director?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you were also at that time employed by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., correct?

A. You've shown me documents that indicate that. I don't have a recollection.
Q. Now, the board of directors meeting, and I'm going to show you the minutes that we've previously marked Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88, and feel free to refer to those if they help you at any point in the questioning.
And I hand you now what's been marked as Morgan Stanley 88, which was previously marked.
MR. BEMIS: And here's an extra copy for you today, Ron.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley 88 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes, sir.

Page 47

Drapkin
Q. If you need it, if you'd like to stop and read the minutes, I'm more than happy to let you do that. But most of my questions are not going to be very detailed on the minutes at this point. So, if you need to stop, just tell me and I'll be more than happy to let you review the document. Is that all right?
A. Certainly.
Q. You have the minutes for the February 25th meeting, which is shown as beginning at 4 p.m. eastern time. Was this to your knowledge the first time that the Coleman company's board of directors was advised of a proposed transaction whereby the Coleman company would be merged with Sunbeam corporation?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall whether it was the first time?
A. (Indicating.)
Q. You have to answer yes or no.
A. I do not recall whether it was the first time.
Q. When do you recall the first time the board of directors of the Coleman Company was

Page 48

Drapkin
advised of a transaction with Sunbeam Corporation?
A. Do you mean the entire board sitting en masse?
Q. Yes, the board of directors.
A. Then I would have to say that was probably this meeting.
Q. Did you know about it before this meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you first learn of a potential transaction whereby the Coleman company would be merged with Sunbeam?
A. It has been discussed on and off for a number of months. I can't give you the exact dates.
Q. Did you learn in your capacity as an officer and director of MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings, Inc.?
A. I learned because we discuss everything that goes on in our company. So if you want to characterize that as my capacity as an officer of MacAndrews, I suppose the answer is yes.

Page 49

Drapkin
Q. When you say "we discuss," who are the "we" that you're talking about?
A. Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, at the time Mr. Slovin. Maybe Mr. Levin.
Q. Anyone else?
A. Mr. Maher might have been there. In that period of time, I'm quite sure Jimmy would have been around.
Q. Did this group that you've identified, Mr. Perelman, Mr. Geddes [sic], Bruce Slovin?
A. Gittis.
Q. Gittis. I'm sorry. Mr. Levin, Mr. Maher. Did this group usually meet in Mr. Perelman's townhouse for breakfast?
A. Every morning.
Q. And you would meet about 7:30 every morning for breakfast and go over what was going on in the companies wouldn't you?
A. No.
Q. How often did you meet?
A. Every morning.
Q. Did I have the time wrong?
A. Yes.

A. 8:30.
Q. Sorry.
How long would these meetings usually last for breakfast?
A. It varied from day to day.
Q. This was a set schedule though, was it not?
A. There was breakfast available every morning five days a week for the last 25 years or whatever number of years it is. I guess it's 17 years for me.
Q. Was it at one of these breakfast meetings at Mr. Perelman's townhouse -- in New York, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. At his townhouse in New York that you first learned of the potential transaction involving Sunbeam Corporation and the Coleman Company, Inc.?
A. I have no idea.
Q. If I asked you this, I'm apologizing for asking you again, but do you remember how you first learned as opposed to when you first

Page 51

Drapkin
learned?
A. No.
Q. Do you know, did you learn about it in a conversation with someone or by reviewing a document for example?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know of any other Coleman Company board of directors who were aware of the potential transaction between Sunbeam Corporation and the Coleman Company before February 25th?
MR. MARMER: Object to the form.
A. Well, certainly Mr. Levin and Mr. Slovin. Who else they might have talked to prior to that, I think that you have copies of chronologies done for other matters, and who knew when, where. And I would not want to challenge those. I don't have any contemporaneous knowledge.
Q. When you referred to "chronologies," did you review some chronologies in preparation for your deposition?
A. I saw one. I didn't review it.
Q. Was this prepared by Wachtell, Lipton?

Page 52

Drapkin
A. I believe so.
MR. BEMIS: Let me have MS 75, and we'll just make sure we have the right document.
A. Can I ask my counsel?
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Let me get a question pending. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 75. And I don't have any questions on it right now, but I just want to find out if that's what you're referring to.
A. Well, I don't recognize this.
Q. So you don't recall reviewing that in your deposition preparation?
A. No, sir.
Q. Or seeing it either?
A. No, sir.
Q. You can hand that back to me.
A. But I would ask -- I wanted to ask my counsel a question, because it might have been in a different form.
Q. Well, that's probably -- not to be rude, and I'm not trying to be rude to you, it's probably best if we just do question and answer.

Page 53

Drapkin
If he wants to ask you a question later, I'd rather do it that way.
A. I'm just trying to be accurate.
Q. I appreciate that. And, again, I'm not trying to be rude. As you might know, there's forms we have to go through.
At the February 25th meeting of the board of directors of the Coleman Company, Inc., were there any presentations at that meeting by investment bankers?
A. I recall that Credit Suisse First Boston had a book, a handout which would have been typical.
Q. Typical of what?
A. Any deal.
Q. That the investment bankers would prepare some type of handout for the board?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did -- was anything handed out at the board of directors meeting on February 25th that had been prepared by Morgan Stanley?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Was there any representative of Morgan Stanley at the meeting?

Drapkin

A. Not that I recall.
Q. Was the February 25th board meeting the first time that the independent members of the board of directors were told of a potential transaction between Sunbeam and the Coleman Company?
A. The same answer that I gave you before.
Q. You don't know?
A. That there was a chronology floating around that was -- prepared more contemporaneously, that would have more accurate information than my recollection.
Q. And, again, you did see this chronology during your deposition preparation?
A. Again, I saw a chronology. The one that you handed me did not look familiar to me.
MR. BEMIS: Miss Reporter, would you mark this as 173, please.
(MS Exhibit 173,"Project Laser" chronology, marked for identification, as of this date.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have exhibit MS 173 in front of you?

A. Yes, sir.
Q. Is this the chronology that you looked at?
A. No.
Q. Okay. You can hand that back to me.
Do you recall what this chronology looked like at all; how many pages for example? Did it have a heading on it or anything at all?
A. I don't recall a heading. It had smaller type. And it was in a different -- it didn't have a letter. Maybe it's the same one as you showed me, but without the letter.
Q. Without the letter.
Let me go forward now to the second board meeting at which we, I think, placed it February 27, 1998. Do you recall that meeting?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you did attend that as a director, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you -- that was the meeting that the board of directors voted -- withdrawn. On February 27th, the Coleman board did vote in favor of the merger, correct?

Drapkin

A. Yes, sir.
Q. Was there any -- was there a presentation by an investment banking firm at that meeting?
A. I believe Credit Suisse First Boston was at that meeting.
Q. And did Credit Suisse First Boston make a presentation to the board members?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley attend the meeting?
A. No, sir.
Q. Were there any documents handed out to the directors from Morgan Stanley?
A. No, sir.
Q. Did the board of directors vote unanimously for the transaction?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were any of the board members to your knowledge told how to vote?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. Just that. Did they exercise -- let me try it this way. Did they exercise their own independent business judgment or were they given instructions how to vote?

Drapkin

A. I am not aware of any director that was instructed to vote any particular way.
Q. Were you told how to vote?
A. Course not.
Q. Like Frank Gifford, did you tell him how to vote?
A. Course not.
Q. How about Ann Jordan, she was there, right?
A. Yes. Either there or by phone. I don't recall.
Q. Did you tell her how to vote?
A. Of course not.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman tell anybody how to vote?
A. Of course not.
Q. So all of the directors, relying on the information that they had, voted using their own independent business judgment whether this was in the best interests of the shareholders of the Coleman Company, correct?
A. Absolutely.

A. There was a presentation by Credit Suisse.

Q. I think you said there was also a handout of some kind, correct?

A. Yes, I believe so.

Q. And did you -- strike that. Did the board of directors receive a presentation from its legal advisers?

A. I'm quite sure we did, but I don't recall it.

Q. Do you recall that the Coleman Company did have a legal advisor in the transaction?

A. Of course. I just don't remember. I don't remember if it was Wachtell. I assume it was Wachtell.

MR. MARMER: He does not want me to provide the answer --

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. When you say "Wachtell," you mean the law firm Wachtell, Lipton?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there presentations -- withdrawn.

At the February 25th meeting -- and you can look at the minutes if you like -- was there a presentation by an attorney representing the Coleman Company?

A. Yes.

Q. And who was that?

A. Well, assuming these minutes that you have accurately -- given me are the accurate minutes, then that would be Adam Emmerich of Wachtell, Lipton.

Q. Were there any presentations by any attorneys representing Sunbeam?

A. I would think not.

Q. Any presentations by attorneys representing Morgan Stanley?

Drapkin

A. I would hope not.

Q. Was -- other than the written materials that you recalled Credit Suisse First Boston preparing, do you recall any other written materials being handed out at the February 25th board meeting?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Now let's move forward to the 27th board meeting. Do you recall any legal presentations at that meeting?

A. I'm sure -- I don't have the minutes in front of me.

Q. Let me give you those. I should have given them to you, I apologize. I have them, too.

I hand you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 118.

And do you have MS 118 in front of you?

Q. That's a yes, right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. These previously have been identified as the minutes of the board of directors of the Coleman Company, Inc. on February 27, 1998. Have you seen these minutes before?

A. I might have looked at them.

Q. In your deposition preparation?

A. I might have. I don't recall.

Q. How long by the way did you spend preparing for your deposition?

A. I don't know, two hours, two-and-a-half hours. Something like that.

Q. Did you do that yesterday?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now in -- at the meeting, now turning to February 27th, I think the question that was pending when I showed you the minutes, was there a presentation by attorneys, so --

A. The answer is yes.

Q. Was that the attorneys from Wachtell, Lipton again?

A. Yes.

Q. And they were the -- still the attorneys for the Coleman Company, correct?

A. They were the shareholder -- they were counsel to both MacAndrews and Coleman.

Q. And there was -- was there a further presentation by Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were there any written materials handed out at the meeting to the directors?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And what materials were handed out to the directors?
A. The First Boston presentation, and I imagine that we all would have received copies of the proposed resolutions.
Q. When you say "the proposed resolutions," there are resolutions attached to the minutes, do you see those?
A. Correct.
Q. Is it your understanding -- withdrawn.
Is it your recollection that the resolutions in draft form were handed out to the directors at the meeting?
A. That would have been standard operating procedure.
Q. In advance of the board of directors meeting, was there a package of materials prepared for the directors for them to review when they came to the meeting?

Drapkin

A. I don't recall.
Q. Is that standard procedure in your experience?
A. It is very often the case that we would receive a copy of an agenda and/or proposed resolutions. On the other hand, this was 48 hours after the last board meeting and there might not have been time for that.
Q. Was there a package of materials prepared for the directors for the February 25, 1998 Coleman company board of directors meeting?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was the merger agreement that was eventually executed by the Coleman Company, Inc. as one of the parties, was that present at the meeting?
A. I would imagine that somebody had it.
Q. Well, did the directors have it so they could review it?
A. The actual full copy of the merger agreement?
Q. Yes, sir.

Drapkin

A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you read the merger agreement before you voted to approve it?
A. I'm sure I read a synopsis of the merger agreement or scanned the merger agreement myself since I spent many years writing them.
Q. Was there a synopsis of the merger agreement prepared for the directors at either meeting?
A. I don't recall. There's a summary of the proposed transaction.
Q. In writing?
A. It's attached to the minutes you handed me.
Q. What's attached to the minutes?
A. Yes.
Q. Anything beyond that?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. At the February 27th meeting, and still focusing on that, Credit Suisse First Boston made a presentation for the second time to the board, right?
A. Correct.
Q. Were there written materials handed out by Credit Suisse First Boston at the meeting?

Drapkin

A. I assume there was another package, yes.
Q. Well, when you say you assume there was, do you have a specific recollection as you sit here today that there was a package?
A. I reviewed a document yesterday that looked like the deck of cards that First Boston did.
Q. When you say the "deck of cards," you mean by like an eight-and-a-half by eleven piece of paper, like a Power Point presentation?
A. Exactly.
Q. A/k/a a deck now in our business?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you what's previously been marked as MS 197, which has a cover page "Credit Suisse First Boston."
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Is this the deck you're referring to?
A. I don't understand the question.

a deck of cards I think you referred to it, that Credit Suisse First Boston prepared. Is this it?

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.

A. I don't know which meeting -- this says February 25. I don't recall if this was given out at the 25th, the 27th. It is one of the presentations -- it looks like one of the presentations that First Boston would have handed out.

Q. Is this document, MS 197, one of the documents that you reviewed yesterday in preparing for your deposition?

A. Actually, it doesn't look like the one that I looked at. If you notice also, this says February 25th at 7:41 p.m.

That would have been way after the board meeting. So maybe this was the one for the 27th. I don't know.

Q. That is -- that is an inference one can draw from it, but I'm asking you. I'm not trying to tell you the answers --

A. I don't recall which one is which. I don't see the deal page that shows the ratios.

Q. Let me show you what's been marked in a previous deposition as MS 112. Please take a look at that.

Page 67

A. Yeah, this looks more like what I looked at yesterday.

Q. Now you're referring to MS 112 as one of the documents you believe was discussed at one of the two board of directors meetings?

A. Yeah.

Q. Was this document, MS 112, used at the February 25th or the February 27th meeting or both?

A. I would think it would be the 27th.

Q. And why do you say that?

A. Because I think this has got the right exchange ratio.

Q. And when you're referring to the exchange ratio, are you referring to the figures which appear on page -- that's Page 2 of the document, but it's numbered page 1 in the upper-right-hand corner?

A. Correct. But I could be confused.

Q. Now as I understand the -- what the board was being told by Credit Suisse First Boston that in the -- in the transaction,

Page 68

Drapkin

MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. or it's subsidiary companies, however the Coleman stock was held at any moment in time as of the date of these meetings, that they would exchange approximately 44.1 million dollars of -- excuse me, not dollars but shares of Coleman stock, for approximately 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam common stock as part of the transaction; is that correct?

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.

A. I'll take your word for it.

Q. Look at the summary of the transaction on page 1.

A. That's what it says.

Q. And in addition, MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings, Inc. or its subsidiary companies as the case may be, would receive approximately $160 million in cash, correct?

A. That's what the document says.

Q. Well, you were at the meeting. I'm asking you now as a member of the board of directors.

A. I don't remember the exact numbers, but it roughly sounds correct.

Page 69

Drapkin

Q. And another part of the consideration flowing to MacAndrews and Forbes Holdings, Inc. and its subsidiary companies, as the case may be, was an assumption of debt by Sunbeam Corporation, correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. And according to the, again, page 1 of Morgan Stanley 112, there were -- there were two sets of notes that were being assumed, a first and second priority notes; is that correct?

A. That's what it says.

Q. Well, you voted on the transaction, so now I'm asking you as a director of the company who voted on this for the shareholders. Is that correct?

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.

A. It is correct that they're assuming some notes. Whether the 496 and 525 are the exact numbers, taking the document at face value, I don't recall eight years later what the exact numbers were.

Q. Okay. Well, taking it at face value, assuming that these figures are correct from Credit Suisse First Boston, and there was an assumption of debt of -- if my math is correct, $1,021,000,000; is that correct?

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.

A. That's what it says.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Well, did you as a director, did you vote for that?

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. On behalf of the Coleman Company --

A. Again, I voted in favor of the assumption of the first and second priority notes. I can't remember the exact numbers. If your math is right, it's right.

Q. So in total, the consideration -- the consideration that flowed to MacAndrews, and that is on page 1 of MS 112 --

A. I'm a little confused because if you look at page 2, the accreted value of the zero coupons are at 521 -- 525, rather, which is the same number as on page 1. But the 496 number does not appear in the total consideration. So I don't know where the 496 comes from.

Q. Well, I'll get back to that in a second with you.

Drapkin

A. Maybe it's the 40, less the cash. I mean, I just it's eight years ago. I don't remember the exact numbers.

Q. Well, do you remember that there was an excess of one billion dollars of assumed debt that was part of the consideration flowing to MacAndrews as stated on Page 2 -- excuse me, page 1 of MS 112? And I'm looking at the chart --

A. I'm a little confused --

MR. MARMER: Just one moment. I object to the form of the question.

A. I'm a little confused because of page 2.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. What is your confusion?

A. What the total amount of assumed debt was and where it was. I know what the 525 was. I'm a little confused about the 496.

Q. What was the 525?

A. I assume those were the LYONs.

Q. And the first and second notes, weren't those first and second notes -- and I could be wrong on this, but weren't those second notes of CLN Holdings Inc.?

Drapkin

A. I just don't remember.

Q. Let me show you what's been marked as --

MR. MARMER: Mr. Bemis, at some point be thinking about where is a good breaking point.

MR. BEMIS: Oh, that's fair. Let me just finish this.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. If you take out 279. It's probably the very thickest one at the bottom of the pile, please. That for the record is the Coleman Company, Inc. Notice of Merger and Appraisal Rights and Information Statement, which if you look on Page 2 is dated December 6, 1999. Is that what you have in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, if you'll turn to page 11 of the document, which is in the summary section. Look under the M&F transaction, and the second paragraph, if you will. And read that to yourself and tell me when you're done.

A. Right. Exactly.

Drapkin

Q. And those are indeed the figures rounded, if you will, that appear in the MS 112, which is the presentation by Credit Suisse First Boston?

A. I don't believe that's correct.

Q. Where am I incorrect?

A. The $525 million was MacAndrews & Forbes' consideration, the assumption of the parent debt.

Q. Right?

A. I believe the 496 was Coleman, Inc. debt, the operating company. And that was owed by the operating company, which is owned a hundred percent by MacAndrews & Forbes and the rest of the public shareholders, not MacAndrews and Forbes. That's why I was confused when you keep asking me the question. I don't believe the parent holding company had more than 525 million debt. You previously offered me a document -- and I don't mean to be conducting your deposition -- MS 241, which is the LYONs. And the total there was 600 face value, which I assume when this document is referring to the $525 million worth of accreted value, it is referring to this

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 74

Drapkin
Coleman escrow LYONs issue. I believe that the balance of the 496 is Coleman Inc. debt, but that's what I'm guessing from the documents that you've handed me.
Q. I think that you may be correct in that. So let's go back and see if we can get it fixed, and then we'll take a break. In terms of the consideration that is listed under the MacAndrews consideration and the Credit Suisse First Boston, there is the consideration in the form of the Sunbeam shares, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And that's about 14.1 million shares rounded up, correct?
A. Plus the cash.
Q. And then there's the cash to MacAndrews of $160 million, correct?
A. That's what it says here.
Q. And then Sunbeam assumes debt of the $525 million, which you believe is the LYONs debt that we discussed earlier, correct?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. You have to answer yes or no.
A. Yes, sir.

Page 75

Drapkin
Q. And then there is debt of the Coleman Company, $497 million?
A. No, no. I think what this is saying, that the first and second priority notes on November 15, 1997 had an accreted value of 496, which was growing to 525 on May 15, 1998. That I believe is the correct reading of that --
Q. Now I understand.
A. And you do not add 496 and 525. It might have been nice for us to get an extra half a billion dollars, and we wouldn't have to have this lawsuit because we would have known all the facts, but in this case, I don't believe those are additive. Sorry. And that's why I was confused. I was just trying to be accurate.
Q. Well, then can you explain, I mean, I'm confused then. It does state in the Coleman's Company's statement it filed with the SEC that Sunbeam did assume one billion sixteen million in debt of Coleman and its parent corporations?
A. That's correct.
Q. Including 497 million debt of Coleman?

Page 76

Drapkin
A. Once again, turn to page 2.
Q. Okay?
A. "Total Consideration to be Paid to Coleman Shareholders." There are the shares to be issued, okay?
Q. Uh-huh.
A. There's the cash to be issued. There are the zero coupon debt, which we now -- now shown to be the accreted value on March 15th, which was I guess the estimated closing date at that time of 525 million; whatever they had to pay out the option holders. So for the common equity they were paying 1,583,000,000, which would included $525 million for the assumption of debt. Then there's net debt underneath that.
Q. Right.
A. Which is here Coleman's management estimate of the year-end debt of 1997, less 90 million they expected from the sale of one of the units. Well, if you add the 440 and the 525, you get very close to the number that you just gave me for the debt assumed by Sunbeam when they did the transaction. But far be it for me to do your homework.

Page 77

Drapkin
Q. Okay. When I say "okay," I hear your explanation. I don't necessarily accept that's what happened --
A. I'm trying to re-create it for you. I'm just trying to be accurate.
Q. I appreciate how accurate you're trying to be --
A. This is eight years ago, and I'm trying to put it back together in twenty seconds.
MR. BEMIS: Okay. Let's take a break here.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:17 a.m. and this completes tape number 1.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 11:33 a.m. and this begins tape number 2.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. All right. Back on the record. Would you please look at 241 again. I think that should be right off to your right.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, the instruments that are referred to in this document, the senior secured first priority discount notes due 2001, and the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

senior secured second priority discount notes due 2001, are those the same instruments that you see referred to on page numbered 1 of the Credit Suisse First Boston materials, MS 112, under the "Description" column?

A. I assume they are.

Q. Okay. Now Coleman Escrow Corporation eventually changed its name and it became CLN Holdings, right?

A. I take your word for it.

Q. If you don't know, you don't know.

Now, in addition to the -- I may just be confused as to this, and you can hopefully help me out. Are the senior secured first priority discount notes or the second security priority discount notes, both of which are referred to in MS 241, are those the same things as the liquid yield option notes due 2013?

A. That's what it says on the page.

Q. Which page now are you referring to, on 241?

A. 241, the first page.

Q. Where are you reading from?

A. In the second paragraph, starting

Drapkin

"the notes are being offered."

Q. Right.

A. "The retirement of the LYONs is expected to occur in a series of transactions, including an exchange-over by Coleman Worldwide, and subsequent redemption by Coleman Worldwide on May 27th of all LYONs and outstanding."

So I guess they're not. I guess these are the notes that replaced the LYONs.

Q. To the extent that they were replaced. The LYONs due 2013 are a different debt instrument from the senior secured first priority discount notes and the second senior secured -- excuse me, senior secured second priority discount notes due 2001, correct?

A. On the face of it, these look like zero or what we would call zero coupon holding company notes. And we use these to retire the LYONs. But -- and it's all here on the next page. I don't know why we're going through it. I just don't remember the chronology.

Q. All right. I think you can set that aside for right now.

A. It's all here on the second page.

Drapkin

Q. It may well be, but I'm far enough along that I've now got my question answered. If you want to take a look at it, go ahead.

A. No, it's just that you had me confused by talking about the LYONs.

Q. I wasn't trying to confuse you. Sorry.

A. I know you weren't trying, you just had that effect.

Q. Okay. But I am correct that the LYONs that we've been referring to are an instrument, even though they were or were not retired, that was an instrument due 2013, and these --

A. I have no idea when the LYONs were due.

Q. Well, it says that on the first page of the document.

A. Well, I missed that, but that's fine.

Q. So the LYONs are a debt instrument. And the two discount notes that are on the front page of MS 241, those are different debt instruments as well, correct?

A. That's correct.

Drapkin

Q. Okay. You can set that aside.

At the time of the closing, was -- excuse me. At the time the merger agreements were executed, and they're dated as of February 28, 1998, was the Coleman Company indebted to any companies affiliated with Mr. Perelman?

A. I don't recall. I would add to that, there are certified financials in the Coleman financial statements that were included. And some number of these documents would show that.

Q. Do you have 166 in front of you? We'll give you 166. I hand you what's been marked as Exhibit 166 -- excuse me, Morgan Stanley 166, which is the offering memorandum for the zero coupon senior subordinated debentures due 2018 that were issued in connection with the Coleman/Sunbeam transaction. Now attached -- strike that. Have you seen this document before?

A. No.

Q. And you were referring to some audited financial statements. And I think if you look at page F -- look at F 27, which are the CLN audited financial statements.

A. F 27?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

21 / 1 / 10

Drapkin

Q. F 27. Uh-huh.
A. Yeah.
Q. And CLN Holdings and subsidiaries included the Coleman Company, correct?
A. It should.
Q. And Worldwide, right?
A. I assume so.
Q. And I want you to look at the long term debt for December 31, 1997. Do you see that?
A. Long term debt?
Q. Uh-huh.
A. You mean the 980?
Q. $980,000,447.
A. Okay.
Q. What does that represent?
A. I don't know. I'd have to look at the footnotes.
Q. Okay.
A. Consolidated I guess it would probably include these notes plus whatever the operating company debt was.
Q. Well, it would include all of the debt of CLN consolidated up from Coleman Company being if you will the bottom of the operating company up through the holding companies through CLN, right?

Drapkin

A. It should.
Q. And we know that some of the debt that had been issued is the senior secured first priority discount notes that we talked about, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And the seconds that we talked about, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And we know there were the LYONs of 2013 that in some amount, whether they had been redeemed or not, those are still outstanding?
A. No.
Q. No what?
A. The purpose of doing the zero coupons or whatever these first and second priorities were, if I'm reading this correctly on page 2, was to retire the LYONs.
Q. Is it your understanding it had all been retired by the date of the merger documents, December 27, 1998?

Drapkin

A. No, I'm just making that assumption.
Q. Okay. Let's go back to my question then. What is the long term debt of $980,000,447 --
A. Would you like to know?
Q. Yeah.
A. Yeah. Sure. 7.260 senior notes due 2007 in the amount of $200 million --
Q. Where are you reading from? A little slower for the Court Reporter and for me. Where are you reading from?
A. The Court Reporter doesn't have to do this. Page F 39 will give you a list of what that $980,000,447. It's usually -- any audited financial statements will give you a break down of long term debt. Since it's in your client's document, I'll defer to you on this.
Q. Well, but it may be in my client's document, but this is a CLN Holdings audited financial statement that's attached pursuant to the auditors for CLN Holding.
MR. MARMER: Excuse me. There's no question pending.
MR. BEMIS: All right.

Drapkin

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you see the liquid yield option notes listed there?
A. Yes. There's a tag end amount. I'm reading the foot note on page F 41 which tells you why they're out.
Q. Well, will you at least agree with me, sir, that whatever may have been paid or -- withdrawn.
Would you agree with me that the outstanding debt, at least as presented in the audited financial statements of CLN Holdings as of December 31, 1997, was $980,000,447?
A. According to this document, correct.
Q. And isn't it a fact, sir, that in the consideration that was paid to the MacAndrews group as a consequence of the merger agreement dated February 28th of 1998 that the long term debt of CLN Holdings was assumed by the Sunbeam Corporation?
A. No.
Q. Which portion was not assumed?
A. That's not your question.
Q. Well, assume that is my question.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01113

Drapkin

A. But MacAndrews & Forbes did not receive $ 980 million. You keep asking that question.

Q. Let me try again. Maybe we can't answer it and we have to ask somebody else.

Under the terms of the February 28, 1998 merger agreement, not necessarily the Coleman agreement but the CLN merger agreement with Sunbeam, the holdings agreement --

A. Got it.

Q. Am I correct that Sunbeam assumed the debt of CLN Holdings Inc. as of the date of the closing?

A. CLN Holdings and its subsidiaries.

Q. And its subsidiaries.

A. That's correct.

Q. As of at least December 31, 1997, the amount of that outstanding debt, according to the certified financial statements, is 980,000,447 -- excuse me, $980,000,447; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. In addition to the assumed debt, whatever the final figure was as of the date of the closing on March 30th of 1998 -- you would agree with me that was the date of the closing, March 30, 1998?

Drapkin

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any, to your knowledge, material adjustment upward or downward in the amount of CLN Holdings Inc.'s consolidated debt as reflected on the financial statements?

A. I don't know what you mean by material. They were normal accruals.

Q. I mean, was there like a $500 million reduction in the debt between the end of the year 1997 and March 30th, anything like that?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. In addition to the assumption of debt then at the closing, which we know was 980,000,447,000, at least as of 12/31/97, CLN Holdings or it -- received 160 million in cash, right?

MR. MARMER: Excuse me, have you finished?

MR. BEMIS: Yeah.

MR. MARMER: Is that your question? I object to the question; misstates the record evidence.

Drapkin

A. Ask me the question again.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. As of the date of the closing --

A. March 30, 1998.

Q. -- CLN Holdings Inc. or one of its affiliates received consideration of 160 million in cash?

A. That is what the First Boston presentation says we were supposed to receive, and I assume that is what happened.

Q. And indeed if we were to look at MS 93, which is the actual merger agreement, this will get it sorted out and beyond this point -- if you will look at page 8 -- withdrawn.

First, let me just make the record clear that you do have in front of you Exhibit MS 93 previously marked, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And this is the agreement and plan of merger among Sunbeam Corporation, Laser Acquisition Corporation, CLN Holdings Inc. and Coleman (Parent) Holdings, correct? And if you want to check the signatures on the back, I think Mr. Schwartz signed this one.

Drapkin

A. Okay.

Q. Look at page 8.

A. Yes.

Q. Under heading section 3.1 (a) (i), do you see that?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You have to say yes or no.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. The cash consideration paid is shown here as $159,956,765, correct?

A. That's what it says.

Q. And rounding that up, would you assume that's the $160 million referred to in MS 112 by Credit Suisse First Boston?

A. I would indeed.

Q. All right. Now, the third part of the consideration, it's in addition to the assumption of debt that we've talked about and the cash, was the issuance of Sunbeam shares, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And according to Credit Suisse First Boston that was about 14.1 million shares, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin
A. Correct.
Q. And that is consistent is it not with the merger agreement, MS 93, at again section 3.1(a)(i)?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All right you can set that aside.
Now, at the time of the closing, March 30, 1998, when the consideration we've been discussing was paid by Sunbeam Corporation, the Coleman stock that was outstanding -- do you recall that stock?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. It was about 44 million shares?
A. When you say "Coleman," I assume you mean the publicly-traded company, Coleman Inc.?
Q. That's a fair question. The stock that CLN Holdings Inc. or its subsidiaries, because I think it may have actually been held by Worldwide at this point, but I'm not sure. That stock represented about -- was it 44 million shares?
A. You're asking me about how many shares were outstanding --
Q. That's a terrible question. No, that

Drapkin
isn't what I'm asking you --
A. -- publicly owned -- I don't know what you're asking me.
Q. That's a fair question. Let me try again. At the time of the closing on March 30, 1998, CLN Holdings or its affiliates owned a number of shares of the Coleman Company Inc. common stock, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was about 44 million shares?
A. And I'll ask the question again. CLN Holdings would include publicly-traded Coleman. I don't know what shares were in Coleman's treasury. You've asked the question Coleman and its affiliates. That would include publicly-owned Coleman. So I don't understand the question you're asking. If you're asking how many shares were outstanding in Coleman Inc. that were owned, if you will, by MacAndrews & Forbes entities, that's a number I could look up.
Q. How many shares of the Coleman Company Inc. common stock were owned by MacAndrews & Forbes entities?
A. I think that's your 44 million or

Drapkin
whatever the number is --
Q. Just confirm what it is.
A. Actually, this says -- I don't know, where was your Sunbeam -- if you go back to the Sunbeam financial statements, it will give me the total number of shares outstanding. And this says MacAndrews & Forbes has 44.1 million CLN shares. That's probably correct.
The reason you're getting screwed up is CLN was the ticker I believe for Coleman.
Q. Yes, I know --
A. So you keep talking about CLN Holdings, which is an up top company which MacAndrews owns, while CLN is the publicly-traded symbol for Coleman on the New York Stock Exchange.
Q. That I did figure out a couple of weeks ago. I appreciate that. But I am referring now to the Coleman stock that was held by CLN Holdings inc. or its direct subsidiaries.
A. Well, stop saying "direct subsidiaries." That includes publicly owned -- that includes Coleman. I don't know what Coleman had of its own shares in the treasury and the rest. I mean, you're asking a question --

Drapkin
Q. Who owned the 44.1 million shares of Coleman stock at the time of the meeting before the closing --
A. My understanding is from this document it was owned by Coleman Worldwide, which is a MacAndrews & Forbes company.
Q. Let's then focus on that 44.1 million shares held by Coleman Worldwide immediately before the closing on March 30, 1998. Are you there?
A. Yeah, sure.
Q. Were any of those 44.1 million shares pledged as security for indebtedness?
A. I would imagine that they were pledged somehow to the zero -- I'm sorry, to the priority notes that you gave me the prospectus for since they are called 600 million face amount of senior secured first priority discount notes. I imagine if you give me time and I read this, I will find out there were shares pledged.
Q. Let me show you --
A. Twenty-six million shares of Coleman Company Inc. -- of Coleman common stock. So the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin
answer to your question is yes, there were apparently shares pledged to those notes.
Q. Well, as of the date of the -- as of the date of the closing, March 30, 1998, were all or substantially all of these 44.1 million shares of Coleman stock pledged to secure debt?
A. I don't know the answer to that.
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 239.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter.
(MS Exhibit 239, information statement dated 3/38/98, marked for identification, as of this date.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Turn to page -- withdrawn.
Do you have MS 239 in front of you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. This is an information statement dated, if you look at the last page, March 18, 1998 --
A. Right.
Q. -- by the Coleman Company Inc., which was printed -- I believe it was printed from Edgar, but I'm not positive of that.

Drapkin
If you'll turn to page 17.
A. Yes, sir. This says those shares pledged.
Q. Well, if you look at -- withdrawn.
Please look at note 1.
A. I'm reading it.
Q. And does it not indeed provide that by -- "that substantially all of the shares owned are pledged to secure obligations of Coleman Worldwide and CLN Holdings, and shares of intermediate holding companies are or from time to time may be pledged to secure obligations of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. or its affiliates"?
A. Okay.
Q. So am I correct then that these shares that we -- the 44.1 million shares that we were speaking of were indeed pledged at this time?
MR. MARMER: Objection to the form of the question.
A. I have no idea.
Q. Why is it that you have no idea.
A. Because the words of this footnote say, substantially all of the shares are or from time to time may be. So you're asking me to tell you what they were on that date. I don't know.

Drapkin
Q. On that date being March 18, 1998?
A. That's the date you asked me, yeah.
Q. That's correct.
As a result of the transaction, the closing on March 30, 1998, the MacAndrews group did receive Sunbeam stock as we've discussed, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And that stock came -- without -- withdrawn.
At the time of the receipt of the stock, was that stock in any way pledged to cover any indebtedness?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Have you ever heard that it was pledged as of that -- as of the date of its receipt?
A. I don't recall. We have loan agreements. Could it have been somehow swept into them? I have no idea.
Q. I misunderstood your answer. When

Drapkin
you say it may have been, the stock once received by -- by the MacAndrews group --
A. Correct.
Q. -- it could have been as you put it swept into some other instrument or debt obligation of that group --
A. Possibly.
Q. But as you sit here today, you're not aware of that?
A. No.
Q. When Sunbeam delivered the stock to the MacAndrews group, as we've been using that term, it was not encumbered with any pledge by Sunbeam though, right?
A. I think all of those pledged were probably removed. Although the time period -- the discovery of the fraudulent financial statements occurred quickly thereafter. So the Sunbeam stock was rendered not much of an asset that you would use for security or anything.
Q. Setting that issue aside, I just want to know at the moment of closing as far as you know when the stock was received by the MacAndrews group, it wasn't subject to any pledge

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

on behalf by Sunbeam?
A. Certainly not that I'm aware of.
You're asking me if it was pledged by your client?
Q. Yes. Exactly.
A. They're a better person to ask than me.
Q. Well, I'm asking you what you know, and you're telling me you're not aware of any?
A. No, I'm not.
Q. So as far as you know, when MacAndrews group got the Sunbeam stock, it got that stock --
A. Free and clear.
Q. -- free and clear, and subject to whatever terms and conditions are in the merger agreement with regard to its future disposition?
A. That's not true.
Q. How is that not true?
A. I don't think that we could have sold the stock the next day.
Q. No, I said subject to whatever terms and conditions were in merger agreement concerning the stock's disposition.

Drapkin

A. And the security laws of the United States.
Q. Which are by the way incorporated into the merger agreement?
A. I don't know that sitting here, but if you say so, I agree. We don't violate the law.
Q. Now, at the time -- at the time of the -- withdrawn.
In 1996, did Coleman Company report a loss for the calendar year from its operations?
A. I would have to look at the 1996 audited financials to remember.
Q. Let me show them to you. I'm going to show you what we'll mark as MS 251.
(MS Exhibit 251, Coleman Company 10-K form for the year-ended December 31, 1997, marked for identification, as of this date.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Sir, I've handed you what's been identified as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And is this the form 10-K for the

Drapkin

Coleman Company for the year-end December 31, 1997?
A. That is what it purports to be.
Q. Look at the financial statements which appear on page F --
A. F 1 at sequence.
Q. Yes, sir. And I think the page I want you to turn to is 13, F 13.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The financial statements here provide, if you will, a summary of the two years for the periods ending December 31, 1996 and 1995, correct?
A. This part of this footnote?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. This is a proforma footnote.
Q. I gave you the wrong page. I apologize. Let me get you the right page. I think it may be easier to work off of the selected financial data on page 13, although we can go back to the financial statements as well.
A. Back to page 13?
Q. Not F 13.
A. Oh, page 13?

Drapkin

Q. Right. Uh-huh.
A. That is the same as page F 4 in the financial statements.
Q. If you want to look at that.
A. I don't care. It's your pleasure. But since they're audited, they're identical.
Q. So let's just work off of 13, rather than F 13 if it's okay with you.
Did the Coleman Company have a net loss for 1996?
A. For 1996?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. Yes.
Q. And what was it?
A. The net loss for 1996 would be $41,000,893 -- thousand dollars.
Q. And on an earnings-per-share basis, what is the loss?
A. Seventy-nine cents.
Q. And then for the year-ending December 31, 1997, did the Coleman Company have a loss?
A. Yes.
Q. What was it?
A. $2,536,000,000.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 102

Drapkin

Q. And on an earnings-per-share basis, what was the gain or loss?
A. A nickel.
Q. Five cents. Okay. You can set that aside.
Just to be clear, the nickel was a loss for the year not a gain, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you know what the Coleman Company -- strike that.
Did the Coleman Company have a gain or a loss for the first three months of 1998?
A. I don't recall. I also can't tell from these financials that you've handed me for both 1996 and 1997 where the restructuring charges were taken, which could have -- which would have impacted net earnings. So the company might have shown traditionally higher net earnings had those restructuring charges not been taken in those years. But I don't remember what they were.
Q. I'm going to go back now to the board of directors meeting on the 27th. We actually were there when we digressed. We were talking about the consideration that flowed from the transaction.

Page 103

Drapkin

And going to the Coleman board meeting that you attended, we had been reviewing the Credit Suisse First Boston materials which I think we identified as MS 112. Its still in front of you.
Can you tell me whether there were any materials presented at the board meeting by any other investment bankers other than Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. To your knowledge, did Credit Suisse First Boston in doing its analysis and presentation to the board rely on the audited financial statements of Sunbeam Corporation as prepared by Arthur Andersen?
A. You're asking me if Credit Suisse relied on --
Q. To your knowledge. To your knowledge.
A. I'm sure they did.
Q. Why do you say that "I'm sure they did"?

Page 104

Drapkin

A. Because I've done thousands of deals and it would be usual to rely on financial statements that Morgan Stanley and Arthur Andersen gave you.
Q. Are you saying that Morgan Stanley audited the financial statements of Sunbeam Corporation?
A. No. I assume not. You would know that better than I would. But I assume --
Q. Do you have any knowledge that Morgan Stanley audited the financial statements of Sunbeam Corporation?
MR. MARMER: We're now embarked upon a little bit of speaking over each other.
MR. BEMIS: I agree and I apologize.
MR. MARMER: Let's slow the pace down a bit --
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Do you have any knowledge that Morgan Stanley audited any of the financial statements of Sunbeam Corporation?
A. I'm not sure I understand the question. You mean audited in a FASB sense?
Q. We'll start there.

Page 105

Drapkin

A. No. I have no knowledge.
Q. Do you have any knowledge that Morgan Stanley hired anyone to do an audit of the financial statements of Sunbeam Corporation?
A. You mean to check Arthur Andersen's audit?
Q. Either that or do another audit?
A. I have no idea.
Q. And what audited -- what financial statements did Morgan Stanley provide to you personally?
A. To me personally?
Q. Yeah, you personally.
A. None -- well, indirectly. You asked me if they gave them to First Boston and did First Boston rely on them.
Q. Are you saying that Morgan Stanley gave audited financial statements to Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. I assume they gave them --
Q. Not assume. Do you know?
MR. MARMER: We're having the same problem again.
A. You're getting me a little confused.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 106

Drapkin
You asked me whether or not Credit Suisse First Boston would have relied on information in the audited financials provided by Arthur Anderson.
Q. Let me start over. Let's not worry about what was asked in the past. Let me try again so we can move on and not confuse each other.
Is it your testimony that Morgan Stanley provided financial statements of Sunbeam Corporation to Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. I have no idea.
Q. The Coleman Company at the time of the execution of the merger agreements, dated as of February 28th, had an accounting firm, correct?
A. Coleman had an accounting firm.
Q. And the accounting firm was Ernst & Young?
A. E&Y is my recollection, yeah. But do you want me to check the certificate and make sure I'm right that it was E&Y?
Q. Sure, if you would like to.
A. Does someone know what page it's on?
MR. FASMAN: F 2.

Page 107

Drapkin
A. Yeah, it was E&Y,
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. So in connection --
A. My only hesitation by the way is whether it was called E&Y in those days or some other name.
Q. Fair enough.
In connection with the merger transaction, the Coleman Company and CLN Holdings investment banking advice from Credit Suisse First Boston; is that right?
A. Yeah.
Q. And it had legal advice from the Wachtell, Lipton firm, correct?
A. Correct, yeah.
Q. And it had access from an accounting standpoint to its auditors Ernst & Young, correct?
A. Certainly.
Q. And Ernst & Young had been the auditors for the Coleman Company for a number of years preceding the closing of the merger agreement on March 30, 1998, correct?
A. I don't think we changed auditors. I think that's correct.

Page 108

Drapkin
Q. After the merger -- after the merger agreements were signed, and up to the -- which is -- we'll use February 28, 1998 and up through the closing on March 30th, did you ever have any communications with anyone about -- let me withdraw the question and start over again.
Between the date of the signing of the merger agreements, which are in the record as MS 93 and MS 117, and the date of the closing, which the first agreement is March 30, 1998, did you have any face-to-face meetings with anyone at Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't think so.
Q. How about after the closing on March 30, 1998 and say up to July 31, 1998, did you have any meetings with anyone from Morgan Stanley?
A. With regards to the Coleman transaction?
Q. Yes, sir. Not just a casual meeting some place. I realize you may have run into them on the street in your business or --
A. Or they may have pitched us on

Page 109

Drapkin
something.
Q. Let's focus on the Coleman transaction.
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Before the vote of the Coleman board of directors on February 27, 1998 on the merger agreement, which has been identified as MS 117 in this case, did you speak to anyone at Morgan Stanley about the transaction?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. Did you receive any documents from Morgan Stanley between the signing of the merger agreements dated as of February 28th and the closing on March 30, 1998?
A. Personally?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. Personally, directly to me?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. Not that I recall.
Q. And did you receive documents from Morgan Stanley through someone else?
A. Well, we saw the Sunbeam press release announcing that they might miss their estimates of sales for the quarter, but was going to make it for the year. That came from somebody, I assume. We didn't just read it off the tape. I assume that Morgan or Skadden would have sent it over to us in the normal course since we were in the middle of a deal. But that's an assumption. And I did see that prosecutes release.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

Q. Can we refer to that as the March 19th press release going forward just for simplicity?

A. We can refer to it anything you like.

Q. I'd like to do it that way, so that's what we'll do.

Other than the March 19th press release, did you see anything -- strike that. Did you receive indirectly from any other source documents that you associated with Morgan Stanley?

A. Not that I can recall.

Q. Let me ask you the same questions about the correspondence from Morgan Stanley.

After the signing of the merger agreements dated as of February 28, 1998 and the closing on March 30th, did you receive any correspondence from anyone from Morgan Stanley concerning the Sunbeam transaction?

Drapkin

A. Not that I recall.

Q. After the closing on March 30, 1998, and through, say, July 1st of 1998, did you receive any correspondence from anyone from Morgan Stanley concerning this transaction?

A. Not that I recall. I have to amend that. There may have been a research report that Morgan Stanley issued. I can't swear to that, but I have some vague recollection of Morgan Stanley research reports. I don't know whether O received that directly from Morgan Stanley or heard about it or someone forwarded it to us.

Q. Was it a research report on Sunbeam?

A. I think so, but I just can't recall.

Q. Well, if you remember later in your deposition, let me know.

A. I don't have a copy of it today so.

Q. I appreciate that.

A. But there was a research report during that period of time and it's my recollection that I looked at it.

Q. Focusing now just on one other area, did you have any conference calls where Morgan Stanley to your knowledge was on the conference call between the execution of the merger agreements dated as of February 28, 1998 and the closing on March 30, 1998?

Drapkin

A. No.

Q. Any conference calls that you're aware of from the date of the closing through July 1st of 1998?

A. That I participated in?

Q. Yes, that you participated in.

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Before February 28, 1998, did you receive any -- did you receive any documents from Morgan Stanley concerning the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Before the execution of the merger documents dated as of February 28th, do you recall any correspondence from anyone at Morgan Stanley about the Coleman/Sunbeam transaction?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Can you recall -- can you recall any communications with -- from -- withdrawn.

Drapkin

Can you recall any communications of any kind whether they be documents, face-to-face, telephone calls, electronic mail from Morgan Stanley to you in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?

A. To me personally?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. No, sir.

MR. BEMIS: Okay. This is a good place to break. I know you want to get out earlier, so 45 minutes for lunch? I know you want to work forever, but that's not going to work for the Court Reporter and me too. I'm going to have to take a short break. What time is your call this afternoon?

THE WITNESS: No, no I have be at a presentation. What time do you anticipate finishing?

MR. BEMIS: I suspect we're going to go most of the day, but it's possible we won't. It depends what you have to say. I suspect most of the day.

DONALD G. DRAPKIN, resumed, having been previously duly sworn, was examined and testified further as follows:

EXAMINATION (Cont'd.)

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Right before we broke, I was asking you some questions about Morgan Stanley. And I want to talk now about Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, the other entity in these cases.

At any time between the approval of the merger agreements, which were dated as of February 28, 1998, and the closing on March 30th, did you have any face-to-face meetings or conference calls for example with anyone from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding about the Coleman acquisition?

A. I didn't have any contact with respect to the Coleman deal with anybody from Morgan Stanley or any related entity about this deal that I can recall any of this time.

Q. And "any of this time frame," that would be, say, February 27th through the date I asked you earlier, which would be July 8th?

Page 116

Drapkin

A. Correct.

Q. Before the signing of the document, as of February 20, 1998 do you remember having any conversations with anyone from Morgan Stanley Senior Funding? And in that I will include telephone conferences, electronic conferences, anything of that nature.

A. I'd answer that by saying I don't recall having any contact with anyone from Morgan Stanley. I have no idea what Morgan Stanley Senior Funding is. With respect to Coleman.

Q. Right. I understand we've been limiting ourselves with respect to Coleman.

Let me show you what's been marked as MS 93. I'm going to hand you what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93, which you should have in front of you.

Sir, would you look at section 6.7 of MS 93 and tell me when you are there.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. This session is titled "Access to Information," colon, or it maybe a semi colon, Confidentiality." Do you see that?

A. Sure.

Page 117

Drapkin

Q. I have a couple of questions about this section. If you'd like to read it, please do so and let me know when you're finished. Otherwise, let me know and I'll go ahead.

A. I've read it.

Q. At any time after the execution of this document, MS 93, as of February 27, 1998, were you ever informed that anyone representing the Coleman Company Inc. or CLN Holdings Inc. had sought to review the "books, reports, property, plans and personnel of Sunbeam"?

A. I'm not -- I wasn't working on the transaction, so I can't tell you what the scope of the due diligence that the law firms or First Boston or even us internally did.

Q. When you say you weren't working on the transaction, were you working on some other transactions during this period?

A. I imagine I was working on a number of them, but I seriously hope you don't ask me what they were.

Q. What were they?

A. I don't remember. I'm always working on something.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

Q. But if I understand you correctly, you did not work on the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction as an officer or an employee of the MacAndrews group, right?

A. Other than to hear chitchat, it was not an area of my primary responsibility.

Q. There was -- withdrawn.

Did you ever hear as chitchat as you put it whether anyone representing the MacAndrews group, and all of the companies within the chain that would be related to the acquisition, if they ever reviewed the room of document that had been set up at Skadden, Arps for due diligence?

A. I don't have any great recollection. I'm sure we did, but I don't know of my own.

Q. Would you -- at any of the board of directors meetings -- withdrawn.

Were there any board of director meetings of the Coleman Company after the February 27th meeting and before the closing on March 30, 1998 at which the Sunbeam/Coleman acquisition was discussed in any way?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. So the last --

Drapkin

A. There would be minutes. You'd have to refresh my recollection.

Q. I don't have any, that's why I'm asking the question.

Do you recall any telephone conference with directors about any issues after February 27, 1998 and before the closing --

A. Well, remember, some of my cohorts at work were directors. So the conversation would have turned to Coleman a number of times post February 27th.

Q. I'd like you to focus just on director meetings as opposed to a conversation you may have had with someone who also happens to be a director --

A. I'm just trying to be accurate.

Q. And I appreciate that. And that's a fair question, but now I want to just concentrate on a director meeting, an official director meeting --

A. Not that I recall.

Q. So the last, if you will, official meeting of the Coleman board of directors while it was still an affiliate of the MacAndrews group in the sense -- let me withdraw the question.

Drapkin

The last meeting of the board of directors of the Coleman Company Inc. that you attended either in person or by telephone would have been the February 27th meeting?

A. The last formal all together board meeting that I recall was then. Could we have signed consents relating to some action or something? That's quite possible, but I don't recall.

Q. I hand you, sir, what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley 39, which is a document. It is I believe what you were referring to as the March 19, 1998 press release.

First, would you take a look at that and tell me when you're done reviewing it.

A. Yes, I've looked at it.

Q. Is this the press release that you referred to earlier as the March 19, 1998 press release?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you upon receipt of -- strike that.

Drapkin

Do you remember how you received the press release?

A. No.

Q. Did you discuss it with any other board members? Now both formally or informally.

A. I don't recall specific conversations, but it would be impossible for me not to have discussed it.

Q. So I take it the press release was something that was important to you?

A. Anything with respect to Sunbeam would be important to me.

Q. Did you -- withdrawn.

Do you have any recollection of who it is that you spoke to the press release about after you received it, recognizing you didn't have a formal board meeting?

A. I'll repeat what I said before. I don't have any specific recollections of any particular conversation, but I remember the press release. I remember the interest that it caused, and it would have been impossible that we didn't discuss it.

Q. Was it discussed at these breakfast

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 122

Drapkin

meetings at Mr. Perelman's home in his townhouse?
A. Well, Mr. Maher, who was working on the transaction, his office is next door to mine. Mr. Schwartz, who is our general counsel, his office is twenty feet away. Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis and I, in addition to having breakfast everyday, have lunch together for the last 17 years maybe three or four times a week and very frequently dinner, in addition to being together throughout most of the day. So you want me to pinpoint when we might have discussed this? I can't do that.
Q. No, I really wasn't asking you the exact date. Did you discuss it --
A. At the breakfast. I have no idea.
Q. Okay. Did you discuss it at the lunch?
A. We discussed it sometimes. I have no recollection of the times, dates, substance of the discussion or vague -- of the discussion, but I know it was discussed.
Q. Let me shortcut this. You know it was discussed and the group it would have been discussed with are the people you've identified for us: Mr. Perelman, Mr. Maher, Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Gittis; is that right?

Page 123

Drapkin

A. Yeah. Mr. Nesbitt, who was working on the case -- the transaction, not the case. I don't know, Richard Halperin might have been around in those days. We have a very small office, so it would be very unusual for us not to discuss whatever goes on.
Q. Were you out of -- were you in the United States --
A. Oh, actually, thank you very much. I have a ski house in Aspen. And on March 19th -- I don't know where I was March 19, 1998, but traditionally the last two weeks in March are my kid's--
Q. Spring break?
A. Spring break. So there's an excellent chance that I was skiing in Aspen those two weeks. I'd have to go back and check the records. It's also an excellent chance that Mr. Maher who has a house not far from me in Aspen was also skiing in Aspen those two weeks. But sitting here now, I just don't remember.
Q. And the opportunities that you would have had most likely, as you say, to discuss the press release, if you were skiing, it could have been skiing or it could have been at breakfast lunch or these dinner meetings --

Page 124

Drapkin

A. Well, if I was in Aspen I didn't have breakfast, lunch and dinner. So I wouldn't have been discussing it.
Q. I'm putting it both in the alternative well as the conjunctive --
A. I talk to the office 19 times a day when I'm not there.
Q. So you weren't out of communication when you were skiing if you were skiing?
A. No.
Q. As a result of the discussions that you had or -- and I realize you said it was impossible that you did not have them, did you direct that any action be taken?
A. Did I personally direct any action?
Q. Yes?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of anyone on behalf of Coleman, CPH or CLN Holdings taking any action?
A. I believe, and I know you're going to ask me all kinds of details, but I believe the Sunbeam side of the transaction -- and whether that was Morgan Stanley or Skadden or Al Dunlap himself, probably called someone at MacAndrews. It wouldn't have been me -- telling then they were going to issue this press release and it wasn't a big deal. But I don't remember who that was and who communicated that.

Page 125

Drapkin

Q. Following receipt of the press release, do you recall anyone in the MacAndrews group of people, regardless which company they were affiliated with, being asked to take any action with regard to the information in the press release?
A. What I'm saying is I think the Sunbeam people preempted that by calling and warning us about this press release and saying, Don't worry about it. It's not a big deal.
Q. So as I understand it then, whatever happened, nothing happened after the issue of the press release on behalf of the MacAndrews -- --
A. I can't tell you what Mr. Schwartz or Mr. Gittis or anybody else did. I know I didn't do anything.

Q. Of the group that you've identified in the MacAndrews group, from Mr. Perelman on down to yourself, and I'm not hierarching (phonetic) anybody, who would be the person in your judgment would most likely know what, if any, steps were taken in follow up on the press release?

A. In this case?

Q. In this case.

A. Mr. Maher. Mr. Maher and Mr. Schwartz maybe.

Q. Mr. Barry Schwartz, right?

A. Correct. But more likely Mr. Maher.

Q. Recognizing that you didn't personally do anything, did you ever hear back from any source that somebody had done something to follow up on the press release?

A. My only recollection is that whether it was -- again, whether it was from Sunbeam or Morgan or Skadden, they said they had a -- they were slow in the first couple of months, but they were going to make it up in the third quarter and this was not a big deal.

Q. Following the -- following the issuance of the press release, did you -- I recognize you might have been out of town, however -- did you for example see an article we're going to mark as MS 36?

Page 127

Drapkin

A. Actually, could have been Mr. Levin as well. Thinking back, Jerry Levin -- it's very likely Jerry Levin was in contact with whoever his counterpart was at Sunbeam.

Excuse me. Actually, Gordon Rich might have called Morgan Stanley as well.

Q. Gordon Rich was not with Morgan Stanley. Gordon Rich was with Credit Suisse First Boston.

A. I said Gordon Rich might have called someone at Morgan Stanley --

Q. I'm sorry. I misheard you. I'm sorry.

Why do you think that might have happened?

A. Just would seem like the normal thing to do.

Q. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 36m which is what I started to do when we got distracted.

Page 128

Drapkin

MR. BEMIS: Miss Reporter, that was previously marked. And I think that was Mr. Slovin's deposition.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Do you have MS 36 in front of you?

A. Sure.

Q. Tell me when you're done looking at it, and I'll just have a couple of questions for you.

A. Yeah. I'm reading it.

Q. Okay.

Did you see a copy of this article from The New York Times dated March 20, 1998?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you recall, even if you didn't see this article, that the price of the Sunbeam common stock did fall in trading 9.4 percent following the March 19th press release?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And, now, going back to MS 93, which is the merger agreement, I think we previously established that part of the consideration that the MacAndrews group was going to receive was approximately 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam

Page 129

Drapkin

Corporation, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was there any provision in MS 93, the merger agreement, for a renegotiation of the consideration if the price of Sunbeam stock fell or rose between the date of the agreement and the date of the closing, March 30, 1998?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Are you familiar with the term "collar," C-O-L-L-A-R?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Tell the jury what a collar is.

A. It's exactly what you just said. In a lot of cases if the price of the stock goes too far one way or the other up or down, the ultimate price is adjusted within that collar. It can work a hundred different ways, but that's the general idea.

Q. So in this case with regard to both the agreement -- let me rephrase the question.

With regard to MS 93, which is the holdings merger agreement, there was no collar in that agreement to protect the MacAndrews group's Sunbeam stock against a price drop or the benefit of a price increase?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

A. There was no collar to protect against short term swings in the price of Sunbeam's stock, but there were lots of other protections against bad things happening.
Q. With regard to -- are you talking about -- withdrawn.
Are you speaking of a material adverse event or consequence, "MAC" as they're sometimes called?
A. Well, that's one. But the second, and the one you pointed me to just a minute ago following the access to information and confidentiality, if you read the next paragraph, it's called "Advice of Changes." That was supposed to mean that they would tell us if anything bad was happening.
Q. We'll come back to that in a second, but what you were speaking -- were you speaking of anything beyond a material adverse event or consequence?
A. Yeah, sure. They had to tell us if anything bad was going on.
Q. Well, that is a material adverse consequence as defined in the document --

Drapkin

A. I didn't parse that through, but if that's so at the time, then okay.
Q. Let's go to the Coleman agreement, which is MS 117. I don't know if you have that in front of you, and if you don't, let me pull it out for you.
Do you have MS 117 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. You can set 93 aside if you like just for a minute. We'll probably come back to it, but just so you don't have so much paper.
A. Okay.
Q. Was there any provision in MS 117, which is the agreement and plan of merger involving the Coleman Company Inc., that protected the public shareholders from a decrease in the price of the Coleman or the Sunbeam common stock after February 28th -- excuse me, February 27, 1998 and prior to closing?
A. Sure.
Q. Where is it?
A. Section 6.3. "Upon obtaining knowledge of any occurrence, company and Laser shall promptly advise the other party orally and in writing of any rep and warranty wouldn't be true in a material respect. Failure to comply, any change of event, having which insofar as can be reasonably foreseen would have, in the case of Laser an material adverse effect" -- and on and on and on or what you have called a MAC out.

Drapkin

Q. Where does that provide that if there had been -- in the documents does it provide if there is a change in the price of the Sunbeam common stock --
A. That wasn't the question that you asked me.
Q. Then I misspoke. I may have not asked the question the way I wanted, so I'll try again.
Is there anywhere in Morgan Stanley 117 that there is a provision that allows Coleman to either not go forward with the closing, delay the closing, or terminate the agreement if there is a decrease in the price of Sunbeam common stock between February 27, 1998 and the date of the closing of the merger agreement?
A. There is no collar, if that's question that you're asking, that I'm aware of.

Drapkin

Q. So in effect in both the MS 93 and 117 there were no collars imposed as of February 27, 1998 on the marketplace of Sunbeam's stock?
A. No. Of course it wouldn't have mattered, but no.
Q. Let me show you another article which we'll mark as MS 215.
This was previously marked in Mr. Slovin's deposition. Please take a minute and look at MS 215.
Do you have MS 215 in front of you?
A. Yeah. I'm reading it.
Q. When you're done reading it, just let me know. I just have a couple of questions for you.
A. Okay.
Q. Do you read The Wall Street Journal?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And I'm not trying to be facetious, but when you're on vacation skiing, do you read The Wall Street Journal, if you can get a copy?
A. Either I read it if I can get a copy or I read the headlines online.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

Q. Did you see this article that appeared in The Wall Street Journal on Friday March 20, 1998 regarding Sunbeam?
A. I have no recollection.
Q. The article states in the approximately the fifth paragraph beginning, "While Sunbeam's," do you see that?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. "While Sunbeam's announcement didn't discuss the company's earnings outlook, analysts said the sales disappointment is bound to affect profit. Sunbeam officials didn't return calls seeking comment." Do you see that?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. You have to answer yes or no.
A. Yes, I see it. But it also says on the side there "redacted privileged."
Q. This was produced by your people. I don't know what was redacted from it so.
In that paragraph, when it refers to "the sales disappointment is bound to affect profit," did you reach the same conclusion when you read the press release of March 19th?
A. I don't recall.

Drapkin

Q. Would that be a logical thing you would conclude based on your many years of doing deals?
A. I mean, certainly id your sales go down, it's possible that your profit would be affected. On the other hand, we're talking about Al Dunlap who patterned himself as being the world's greatest cost cutter. So it's quite conceivable that Al could have been saying -- and I don't know this but if you're asking me on my years of -- did he cut costs in the corner so that his profit would remain fine. Big companies do that all the time.
Q. Then the next paragraph --
A. It happened this morning I think to AT&T.
Q. The next paragraph reads, "The company has made promises that they haven't delivered on and that is certainly being favored into the stock today."
A. "Factored."
Q. "Factored." Excuse me. Thank you, sir. "Said R. Scott Graham, an analyst for CIBC Oppenheimer in New York." Do you see that paragraph?

Drapkin

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Were you aware that earlier in 1998 that Sunbeam had announced that its quarterly earnings for 1997 fourth quarter had fallen short of analysts' expectations?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Look at the very last --
A. I read the paragraph, and I see it says they have done it before, but I -- and I don't remember sitting here whether or not they made their numbers for the year or not despite lowering sales forecast. I just don't remember. I'm sure I did at the time.
Q. In your judgment, given the years of your experience in being a strategist, and "the inside investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies," would you consider Sunbeam, given that it had two drops, one of 9.5 percent according to this article and another of 9.4 percent roughly within a two-month period to be a volatile stock?
MR. MARMER: Object to form.
A. You know, the stock had risen dramatically post our deal as I recall. I think the stock even after it fell 9.5 percent was still above the deal price on the day we approved the deal. And there were lots of analysts that seemed to be saying this was a short-term problem. So I guess anytime a stock is down 10 percent, there's some degree of volatility.

Drapkin

Q. My question though is not just a one time drop of 10 percent, but here you have a stock that drops twice 10 percent in less than a two month period based on adverse announcements by the company --
A. But the first time it had recovered erred.
Q. My question is: When you see a stock drop 10 percent twice in a two-month period, it may have recovered partially, do you consider that to be in your experience a volatile stock --
A. It more than recovered. It had gone way above.
Q. But do you consider it to be a volatile stock --
A. I'm not qualified to answer that question. There are volatility index. You can

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

put pull them for the time and you could get an exact answer.

Q. I didn't ask you this question earlier, but do you read The New York Times regularly?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you read the business section?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Following the -- withdrawn. Let me show you now a document marked as MS 212.

A. After this line of questioning, can I take a short break?

Q. Do you want to take it now?

A. No let's get through this.

Q. For the record, do you have MS 212 in front of you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let me know when you're finished. I have a few questions for you. Not very many.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Sir, this document has a print date at the bottom of March 23, 1998. And this document was produced to Morgan Stanley by CPH, Coleman (Parent) Holdings.

Drapkin

Have you ever seen this document before?

A. No, not that I recall. I might have at the time.

Q. Do you know who Andrew Shore is?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Were you reading his analyst reports concerning Sunbeam in 1998?

A. Only if someone gave them to me.

Q. Is this because you weren't the guy tracking this, that would be Mr. Maher again?

A. Yes, sir. I believe that in one of the CSFB books there were analysts estimates, but I can't swear to that. We could look at that if you wanted to. I'm just trying to be accurate. If he was in there, then I would have looked at it.

Q. You are correct. And let me show you the document that you're referring to.

Let me show you what's been marked -- these documents are really thick -- MS 76.

A. There it is. Researcher.

Q. So the record is clear, do you have MS 76 in front of you?

Drapkin

A. Yeah.

Q. If you look at the table of contents on Page 2, there is a heading "Four," which probably referred to a tab in the original version. And if you would turn to the section Four, and I believe, sir, if you go all the way to -- I'll give you a Bates numbered page what we calm it at the bottom. Bates numbered page CPH in the lower right hand corner, 147290. And it would be a blank page with a "four" on it.

A. Yup.

Q. Did you see this package of information before your preparation for your deposition?

A. No.

Q. Is it nonetheless your understanding based on looking at these documents that Credit Suisse First Boston was following analysts' reports on Sunbeam?

A. Not based on looking at that document. I just knew they were.

Q. Is it customary for an investment banker in a deal like the Coleman/Sunbeam transaction for the investment banks on each side to at least collect and look at the analysts reports?

Drapkin

A. I would say so.

(Discussion off the record.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 2:13 p.m. and this begins tape number 3.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Referring to the holdings merger, which is identified as MS 93, we talked about the consideration in article 3.1 (a) (i). Do you recall that discussion earlier about the stock and the cash that was being given?

A. Yes.

Q. This is a question I just forgot to ask you. When we were talking about the debt that was assumed, this was a stock merger between CLN Holdings Laser Acquisition Corporation, correct?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You have to answer yes or no.

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 142

Drapkin

Q. So whatever CLN Holdings' debt was on a consolidated basis, that debt gets assumed by virtue of the stock merger, correct?

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.

A. Essentially they're not assuming it personally, but they own the company that owns the debt so they become responsible for paying.

Q. Going back to the March 19th press release, following the press release, was there any discussion, even if it was chitchat in the hallway -- and again, I'm not trying to be pejorative about it. I understand what you're talking about -- concerning going back to Sunbeam and asking for an adjustment in the price based on the drop of the price of the stock?

A. I don't think I was at the firm during those two weeks.

Q. So you answer is you're not aware of any such conversation?

A. Correct.

Q. In the Coleman/Sunbeam merger, did you know that Sunbeam was raising some of the money that it needed to complete the acquisition through a zero coupon debenture offering that was being underwritten by Morgan Stanley?

Page 143

Drapkin

A. Yes.

Q. And I showed you earlier the offering memorandum which is -- and I'll show it to you one more time, MS 166. Did you tell me that you had not seen the offering memorandum?

A. That's correct.

Q. In connection with an underwriting of this size, which is at least on its face $2,014,000,00, that's face value not issue price because these were issued discount, would it be in your experience as both an attorney and as the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies, for the underwriter to obtain from the auditors of Sunbeam a comfort letter?

A. Yes.

Q. And would it be customary in your experience as both an attorney and as the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies, for Sunbeam to direct its auditors to provide such a comfort letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Would it be in your experience as a lawyer and as the investment banker in-house for

Page 144

Drapkin

Mr. Perelman's companies for Morgan Stanley to request a comfort letter at the time not only of purchasing, in this case the debentures, but the actual effective date if you will of the offering memoranda, a bring down letter?

A. Yes.

Q. And in your experience both as a lawyer and as the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies, would it be your judgment that the reason that one would obtain such a comfort letter would be for the auditors to establish at least in part their due diligence defense under Section 11 of the 1933 Securities Act?

MR. MARMER: Just a moment. May I have the question read back.

(Record read.)

MR. BEMIS: Thank you for having it reread because I misspoke. Let me do it again.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Would it be your experience, sir, both as an attorney and as the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's company that the reason the underwriter, here Morgan Stanley, would obtain a comfort letter from Sunbeam's auditors, here Arthur Andersen, would be for Morgan Stanley to establish a due diligence defense under Section 11 of the 1933 Federal Securities Act?

Page 145

Drapkin

A. No.

Q. What would it be for?

A. They call it a cold comfort letter because it does not act as a defense in its entirety from liability for failure to find things you should have otherwise known.

Q. Without quarreling with you --

A. I mean, there are all kinds of public policy arguments I used to hear when I was a young lawyer, but you probably know this better than I do.

Q. Without quarreling with you whether it's an absolute or nonabsolute defense because I wasn't trying to suggest one way or the other, would it be your judgment that an underwriter in a case such as this Morgan Stanley, underwriting zero coupon debentures issued by Sunbeam, that the underwriter would seek to obtain a comfort letter from, in this case Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen, to attempt to establish to whatever degree is legally permissible a due diligence defense under Section 11 of the 1933 Securities Act?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

A. You're tying it to Section 11. I think that underwriters ask for a due diligence letter, for a cold comfort letter from the accountants in a prudent exercise of their due diligence, without giving you a legal conclusion as to the legal reasons they ask for.

Q. Do you know why comfort letters refer to the underwriter's obligations and duties under the 1933 Act when they write such comfort letters?

A. Because the underwriters have such duties.

Q. Under the '33 Act?

A. Under the '33 Act and case law, yes.

Q. And Section 11 of the '33 Act?

A. Section 11, Section 10 (b) (5), Section 7, Section 5. Do you want me to continue? Section 3.

Q. Let me show you -- did you -- strike

that.

To your knowledge, did anyone at the MacAndrews group in connection with the Sunbeam/ Coleman transaction request a copy of the -- let me withdraw the question.

To your knowledge, did anyone in the MacAndrews group make inquiry of Sunbeam whether or not Arthur Anderson had provided Morgan Stanley with a comfort letter in connection with the underwriting of the zero coupon debentures?

A. I personally have no knowledge.

Q. Do you know whether anyone from the MacAndrews group in connection with the Sunbeam/ Coleman transaction asked Morgan Stanley as opposed to Sunbeam whether Morgan Stanley had received a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen in connection with the underwriting of the two billion 14 million face amount of zero coupon debentures that we've been discussing?

A. I was not personally working on it, so I have no idea.

Q. Even if you weren't personally working on it, did you ever hear of such a thing?

A. In connection with the Sunbeam deal,

Drapkin

no.

Q. Did you ever hear, and again in chitchat or when you were discussing things on the telephone, if you happened to be skiing or what have you during this period of March 19th, whether anyone in the MacAndrews group such as Mr. Maher, Mr. Perelman or Nesbitt or Gittis, whomever was involved in the transaction, asked Arthur Andersen whether they had provided a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley in connection with the underwriting of the two billion 14 million zero coupon subordinated debentures issued in connection with the Sunbeam/ Coleman merger?

A. No.

Q. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 9.

Do you have MS 9 in front of you, sir?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you take a moment and review it and let me know when you're comfortable. I do have some specific questions, but not on every paragraph. Just let me know when you're ready.

Drapkin

A. Okay.

Q. If you need at any point to stop and read anything in particular, just tell me and we'll stop.

Have you ever seen MS 9 before?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. When did you see it?

A. Yesterday.

Q. In your deposition preparation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you recognize it as a comfort letter?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you recognize it as a comfort letter that was issued by Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley in connection with the offering memorandum for the two billion 14 million Sunbeam Corporation zero coupon convertible senior subordinated debentures due 2018?

A. That's what it purports to be.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe it's not?

A. No.

Q. Is this letter in any way -- strike

that.

In your view as a person who's done many deals and been involved in underwriting and is the in-house investment banker, if you will, for Mr. Perelman, is this letter in the customary form of comfort letters?

A. Seems to be.

Q. And in your experience, sir, are you familiar at least if not as an expert, but just in your practice with the form of comfort letters as articulated by the accounting profession?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And are they generally set forth in a statement of auditing standards?

A. Uh-huh. Yes, yes.

Q. And codified in sometimes what we refer to as the statement of auditing standards with an AU number followed there behind?

A. Correct.

Q. Have you read those standards at any time in your career?

A. Certainly.

Q. Would you agree with me, sir, that one of the matters that a comfort letter in the circumstance of this case, where there is an underwriting that is approximately 90 days after the date of the last certified financial statements would cover a negative assurance on sales from the period of the last audited financial statement to the date of the request?

A. It would be quite common. But please let me add, I am not an accountant. I never went to business school. I took accounting for lawyers and that was the extent of it. I have practiced in the area for many years, but I do not hold myself out as an expert in the matters and intricacies of accounting.

Q. If you'll look at paragraph 5 (b), please. It's on page 3.

A. I see it.

Q. That paragraph, 5 (b), would that be in your view -- I recognize you're not claiming to be an expert, but a customary paragraph of negative assurance with regard to sales for the period following the last audited period?

A. It sure is negative.

Q. Setting aside whether it was negative --

Drapkin

A. You asked me whether it was negative assurance.

Q. No, I said was it a negative assurance. And you know the know the difference, what that is, right?

A. Sorry. It is not negative assurance, it is a bring down of sales for that period of time. And I didn't mean to be facetious. It is quite negative.

Q. If you look at-- withdrawn.

Looking at paragraph 5 (b) of MS 9, which is dated March 19, 1998, which by the way if it's helpful, that's the date of the offering memoranda --

A. I know.

Q. -- MS 166. It's also the date of that press release. Would you conclude that this is a material adverse event under either MS 93, which is the merger agreement with CLN, the holdings agreement, or the Coleman merger agreement, which is marked as MS 117?

A. I would certainly say that absent some rather elaborate explanation that this would give rise to one's worrying about it being an adverse material change. And I assume further this was the cause for the March 19th press release.

Q. Let me show you now what's been marked as MS 10.

Do you have MS 10 in front of you, sir?

A. Yeah.

Q. Please take a look at it and when you're finished let know. I just have a couple of questions for you.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see this -- have you seen this comfort -- strike that. Withdrawn.

Have you seen this exhibit before, MS 10?

A. I saw Page 2 of it yesterday. I don't recall page 1, but I certainly saw Page 2 -- or the numbers there on Page 2.

Q. Is MS 10, which is dated March 25, 1998, dated as of the date you understand the debentures were actually issued?

A. Yeah.

Q. And is it customary in your experience, both as an attorney in the areas that you practice and as the in-house investment banker in Mr. Perelman's companies, for an underwriter such as Morgan Stanley in a transaction similar to what we've been addressing, the purchase and underwriting of $2,014,000,000 worth of zero coupon debentures to get a bring down letter from the auditors on the date of the actual purchase of the securities?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in your judgment looking at this, would you conclude this is indeed the bring down letter for the zero coupon debenture offering?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Looking at paragraph E as in echo, sir, I'd like you to look at the table which appears on Page 2 which has the net sales figures?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You have to say yes --

A. Yes, sir.

Q. -- or no.

Looking at that paragraph and the figures disclosed therein for net sales and net income loss, would this in your judgment be a material adverse event or consequence as set forth in MS 93 the CLN Holdings merger agreement? And I believe it's paragraph 6.6 thereof.

A. I believe that failure to alert the Coleman people under their responsibilities under that -- I think it was 6.7 of material adverse change, with or without an explanation of 5 E, would be a material breach of that obligation by both by anybody who is connected with this piece of paper.

Q. Having said that, if you'll look at the definition of laser material adverse effect which appears on page 4 of MS 93.

A. I have too many.

Q. I know you do. I've been trying to get some of them back so can with reduce the pile.

A. Page 4?

Q. Page 4. You'll see the definitions?

A. You want --

Q. I'd like you to look at the one, "laser material adverse effect," and tell me when you're there?

Page 156

Drapkin

A. I see that.

Q. It provides, "a Laser Material Adverse Effect," that's in initial caps and quotes, "shall mean a material adverse effect on the business results of operation or financial condition of laser and its subsidiaries taken as a whole," correct?

A. Correct.

Q. My question to you, again based on your experience and based on being the in-house investment banker for Mr. Perelman's companies, is the information in paragraph E of MS 10, in particularly the table 5A and B, is the information there a laser material adverse effect in your opinion?

MR. MARMER: Objection; asked and answered.

A. I'll answer that, but first I'd like to correct you. I'm not an investment banker.

Q. I didn't say you were. I said you're the in-house investment banker.

A. That's a magazine eponym that doesn't necessarily mean very much. But as a lawyer, which I am, on page 19 of the same agreement there is a -- there's a section called 6.8, "Advice of Changes." "Holdings or Laser shall promptly advise the other party orally or in writing of anything" -- if you read down. "Any change or event, having which insofar as can be reasonably foreseen would have, in the case of Laser, a laser material adverse effect." I believe that the failure to -- as a lawyer, had I been faced with this nightmare -- as a lawyer, the failure to live up to 6.8 is a clear violation of the agreement. This document should have been provided to us without having to go find Waldo by ourselves.

Page 157

Drapkin

Q. Well, I appreciate that, but that wasn't my question.

A. I thought that was your question.

Q. Fair enough. We'll get there. My question is: I take it from you answer though that you think this information, as you said, go find Waldo, that MS 10 is in your view information that constitutes a laser material adverse effect as defined in MS 93?

A. What I'm saying, to use your words from before, a volatile enough fact that the failure -- and certainly in hindsight it was a material adverse change, but this document on its face, as a lawyer, I would have advised my client they had an affirmative obligation not only to the Laser people, but to the public to correct the March 19th press release, and indeed to tell the bond buyers there was something amiss. I don't know if that answers your question, but.

Remember, this is substantially worse than it was just a few days before.

Q. We'll get to the question of how substantially worse in a minute, but the focus in my next question is the notice provision, which you've been referring to under section 6.8.

My understanding is from your testimony that the MacAndrews side of the transaction, referenced by MS 93, did not receive from Laser a notice of a "laser material adverse effect"; is that correct?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. And it's my understanding that to your knowledge, that no one, not withstanding from -- excuse me. Withdrawn.

My understanding of your testimony is at least to your knowledge, and I understand you didn't work on the deal yourself personally, that you're not aware of anyone on the MacAndrews side of the transaction, notwithstanding the March 19th press release, making any inquiry of either Sunbeam, Arthur Andersen or Morgan Stanley as to whether Morgan Stanley had received a comfort letter, and B, the contents of the comfort letter?

Drapkin

A. I am not aware.

Q. Are you aware of the MacAndrews group purchasing any of the zero coupon convertible senior subordinated debentures that were underwritten by Morgan Stanley pursuant to MS 166?

A. No, sir.

Q. In connection with the Coleman merger and that's MS 117 -- you might pull that out, that merger agreement, sir.

A. Sure.

Q. There is a -- withdrawn. You can set that aside for right now.

Let me show you what's been marked as MS 166, which is a letter from Ernst & Young,

Drapkin

L.L.P. to Morgan Stanley, 243.

Do you have in front of you MS 243?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you seen this letter before which is addressed to CLN Holdings and Morgan Stanley and Co., Incorporated?

A. No.

Q. Did you see this letter in your preparation for your deposition?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what it is?

A. It looks like a comfort letter addressed to Morgan Stanley relating to the Coleman financial statements.

Q. It's also addressed to CLN Holdings, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And this is the CLN Holdings Inc. that is the same CLN Holdings that is a party to MS 93, the holdings merger agreement we've been talking about, correct?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You have to answer yes or no.

A. Yes.

Drapkin

Q. Now, it's customary is it not, sir, before a comfort letter is issued by the auditors in connection with an underwriting such as we've been speaking here, MS 166, for the company to request the audit letter from its accountants, right?

A. You've got to repeat the question.

Q. Fair enough. Before an auditor issues a comfort letter in connection with an underwriting transaction such as the zero coupons we've been speaking here about that Morgan Stanley underwrote --

A. Right.

Q. -- it's customary is it not for the company whose financial statements are the subject of the auditors' work to request from the auditor that they issue such a letter?

A. My problem with your question is the "company." In this case if the company you're asking about is Morgan Stanley requesting it from our auditors because the Coleman financials were inside of the registration statement relating to the zero coupons, the answer to your question is yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011732

Page 162

Q. I think we're on the same wave length. Let me try it again because my question probably wasn't clear now that you've pointed it to me. In the instance in which the auditors are attaching the financial statement of for example Coleman to the underwriting offering memorandum which they were, it would be customary for Coleman to request that its auditors issue a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. And indeed that is -- even before that the auditors would request a representation letter from the company whose statements are being audited, right?

A. Normally yes.

Q. In this -- in the case of Coleman, did Coleman request that Ernst & Young issue a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley in connection with the zero coupon debenture offering represented by MS 166?

A. I have no idea.

Q. Assuming it was done, who would be the person who would have made the request to Ernst & Young from the Coleman Company?

Page 163

Drapkin

A. Probably the CFO.

Q. Do you remember who that was in 1998?

A. I don't remember. I knew, but I don't remember his name.

Q. It was a man?

A. I believe so, but I could be wrong.

Q. I'm sure we can figure it out --

A. It's in the materials -- one of the materials you gave me listed all of the executive officers of Coleman.

Q. We're not going to take your time to do that. We can go back and look for that, if that's the person who would have done it.

A. But Jerry could have asked for it, anybody could have asked for it. It's routine.

Q. Getting the comfort letters and making the request is routine?

A. Absolutely.

Q. In your history of doing deals, has there ever been a transaction that you were involved with that after the execution of the definitive merger document -- the transaction documents and the dates of the closing a material adverse event came to your attention which caused you, as either the buyer or the seller as the case may be, to declare a material adverse effect if that's the term or consequences that's sometimes used in documents?

Page 164

Drapkin

A. Yes.

Q. How about the Panavision deal, did you do that?

A. Which Panavision deal are you talking about?

Q. The Panavision -- the Panavision deal in which you renegotiated the price for what you were going to pay for Panavision?

A. When we bought it or? I mean, there's been six Panavision deals.

Q. Fair enough. I'll have to pull them out for you because I didn't know there were six of them.

A. If you're talking about the original deal that we bought it from whatever.

Q. The transaction that I'm referring to was originally signed on December 18, 1997 and then there was an amended transaction that occurred on June 4, 1998. Does that help? I don't have the document. That's the bottom line

Page 165

Drapkin

--

A. Who was the deal with?

Q. On behalf of -- it was between -- I honestly can't remember which entity it was. I don't have the document, which irritates me. I have five boxes of documents. I don't have that one. Well, I can ask somebody else.

A. We bought Panavision. If we renegotiated the price in between, that wouldn't have been particularly startling. It was owned by -- Panavision was owned by Warburg Pincus. It was controlled by Warburg Pincus.

Q. Did you work on that deal?

A. No.

Q. Who handled that deal?

A. Mr. Maher.

Q. Well, he's the person we should ask that question.

A. And he was vice chairman of CSFB. He's a real investment banker.

Q. Did you have any involvement with the registration rights agreement for the Sunbeam stock that was issued to CLN Holdings -- let me withdraw that. That is not actually correct.

Q. You have to answer yes.

A. Yes.

Q. There was a registration rights agreement, which is attached by the way to MS 93, although it's not executed, that was to be executed before the closing which covered the registration of those securities at some point in the future. Did you have any part in the negotiation of that agreement?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Maher again?

A. I have no personal knowledge who negotiated it.

Q. Have you heard from any source that Arthur Andersen in the period between March 19, 1998 and the closing, March 30, 1998, refused in any fashion to provide CLN Holdings Inc. or Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. a copy of either MS 9 or MS 10, which are the two comfort letters, that were provided to Morgan Stanley in connection with Morgan Stanley's underwriting of the 2,014,000,000 of zero coupon debentures?

A. I have no knowledge.

Q. Have you ever heard that Sunbeam in any way refused or impeded either CLN Holdings Inc. or Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. access to the Arthur Andersen comfort letters, marked as Morgan Stanley 9 and Morgan Stanley 10, that were issued in connection with the underwriting of the zero coupon debentures?

A. No, sir.

Q. Have you heard from any source that Morgan Stanley took any action that in any way interfered with any attempt, if there was one, by either CLN Holdings Inc. or Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. to obtain and read copies of the comfort letters, MS 9 and MS 10, that were issued by Arthur Andersen in connection with the underwriting of the zero coupon debentures?

A. I have no knowledge on this subject.

Q. Under the -- under section -- excuse me. Under MS 93, which is the merger agreement, we talked about the advice of changes clause and material adverse effect. If either CLN Holdings Inc. or Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. was aware of a material adverse change, even if it had not received notice, did it have the right to take any action under the agreement?

Page 168

Drapkin

A. It seems to say so -- I mean, it's hypothetical.

Q. I realize that, but that's my question.

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.

A. It seems to say that we could.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. What action could you take?

A. We could walk away from the deal.

Q. Could you point me to the section where you can walk away from the deal?

A. This is 93?

Q. Yes, sir, MS 93.

A. Section 8.2 (c).

Q. Let me make sure that I am there.

A. I'm reading this quickly.

Q. That's why I want to make sure that

Page 169

Drapkin

we get it right. So take as much time as you need.

A. Section 8.2 says "conditions to obligations of holdings to affect the holdings merger."

Q. All right.

A. I assume that refers to, since that's the agreement that you gave me, that "holdings" I assume "holdings" is us.

Q. You have the holdings agreement by definition in front of you --

A. Holdings yes. That holdings shall be -- "The conditions to our obligations to effect the merger includes the reps and warranties being true, and it also includes that there hasn't been any event change which individually or in the aggregate had or has reasonably expected to have a material adverse effect." You made me read the definition of material adverse effect before.

Q. Can I interrupt for a second, because it will go faster. What I want you to do is just give me the section first, then we can talk about it. So we can follow through. I'll be very clear in my question.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

If there had been an material adverse affect, if you either knew of it or had been advised of it, my question is what were your rights under the agreement as you understood it?

A. Not to go forward with the agreement.

Q. When you say not to go forward, do you mean not to close or to terminate? They mean different things.

A. Not to me.

Q. Oh, are you sure of that under the agreement?

A. I'm just saying not to me. I have no idea.

Q. Well, look at section eight 8.2.

A. Yeah.

Q. That is "conditions to obligations of holdings to affect the holdings merger."

A. Right.

Q. And it goes to on to say,"That the obligations to affect the merger shall be subject to satisfaction by Laser or waiver by Holdings or parent," and then it goes on to describe the additional conditions, correct? That's one section. Are you with me?

Drapkin

A. Right.

Q. Now I want you to go over to section 11, which is "Termination." Do you see that?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Is it your understanding that the obligation not to close is the equivalent of the right to terminate the agreement?

A. This says, "This agreement may be terminated at any time prior to the holdings effective time by either Laser or Holdings in the event of a breach" -- blah, blah, blah, "which would give rise to the failure of a condition set forth in 8.2 (a)," which is what we were just reading.

Q. No, you were reading 8.2 (b).

A. Well, I don't know since I haven't reread the entire agreement whether or not this comfort letter contains information that might actually have breached some other representation and warranty that the company had made to us. But assuming if not, I'm not really sure I understand what the difference is between if I don't close the merger, sooner or later the

Drapkin

August 31st date would have occurred and I could terminate. So I'm not sure that I understand the distinction between not going forward and terminating.

Q. Because you can satisfy or waive a condition of closing, can't you?

A. You can always do that. I can always rewrite the agreement. I mean, the two parties getting together can agree on anything.

Q. If the two parties don't agree however --

A. Then the deal will fail.

Q. No, then the deal will be determined by the terms of the deal, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the rights of the parties, assuming there's not an agreement to abandon the agreement, if you will, are set forth -- the terms we're speaking of 8.2, "Conditions of Closing" and "Termination." That's what I'm asking you to look at. Are we clear on that?

MR. MARMER: Are we clear on what?

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. That's the sections we're talking about.

Drapkin

A. I understand that I can terminate immediately if the reps and warranties aren't true is what this says, and I don't have a legal opinion as to whether the reps and warranties were or were not true at the time. I'd have to go back and parse them against the A, letter. Since I don't practice law any more, I don't intend to do that.

As to whether or not -- it's quite based on your question that if there was an event that allowed me not to consummate the merger, then I could sit there and wait until August 31, 1998 and the merger would not have been consummated, and I'd have the right to just walk away.

Q. Or you could also have the right to waive it and close and take $160 million, have a billion dollars in debt assumed, and take 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock, couldn't you?

MR. MARMER: Object to the form.

A. Sure.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Okay. You can set that aside.

I'm going to show you a series of documents now. We'll just go one at a time, and I just want to know if you've seen them before. And if you haven't, we'll move on and it should go pretty quickly.

I hand you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley deposition Exhibit 79. And do you have that in front of you?

A. No, I've never seen this.

Q. I'm sorry. You've never seen it before?

A. I don't recall.

Q. I hand you what's been marked as MS 80. Let me know if you have that in front of you.

A. I don't recall ever having seen this.

Q. Okay. You can hand that back to me.

I hand you now what's been marked as MS 81.

A. I've never --

MR. MARMER: Just a moment. Let me take a look at it.

MR. BEMIS: I'm sorry.

A. I don't recall ever having seen it.

Drapkin

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. Thank you, sir.

I hand you what has been marked as MS 82.

A. I have never seen this.

Q. Do you know what "I/B/E/S" stands for, which is at the very top of the first page?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

A. No.

Q. If you don't know, you don't know.

A. I've seen that acronym, but I don't remember.

Q. I show you what's been marked as MS 83.

A. I don't remember ever seeing this.

Q. Do you know whose handwriting that is on the document; do you recognize any of it?

A. No. No.

Q. I'm now going to hand you MS 84, which is entitled "Sunbeam Long Range Strategic Plan." Have you ever seen that document before?

A. I don't recall ever having seen this, no.

Drapkin

Q. Before we move on, I'd like to just ask you if you can look at -- we're going to go page by page. I want to see if you can identify any of the handwriting. Go to the page with the CPH numbers at the bottom ending in '59.

Do you see that?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Do you see the handwriting there? It says, "need head of licensing," I think.

Do you know whose handwriting that?

A. No.

Q. Continuing to the last page, the last two digits '60, do you recognize any of that handwriting?

A. No.

Q. Turning to the next page, '61, do you recognize any of that handwriting?

A. No.

Q. And turning to the page headed "Strategic Headlines," the last two digits '63, do you recognize that handwriting?

A. No.

Q. Why don't you just thumb through the rest of the documents so we don't unnecessarily take up your time, but tell me if there's any handwriting that you recognize or even have an inkling whose it might be.

Drapkin

A. I'm sorry, I don't know.

Q. Without holding it to you, none of this, you recognize none of this handwriting even if you're not sure?

A. Not even a clue.

Q. Okay. Fair enough --

A. It looks like it was all the same person, but I don't know.

Q. That's what I assume, but I don't know whose it is. If you don't know, we'll ask somebody else.

I show you what's been marked previously as MS 85.

Do you have that in front of you?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Yes or no?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Thank you, sir. Have you seen this document before?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. You can hand it back to me then.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

Am I correct that you had no involvement whatsoever in whatever due diligence was done by the MacAndrews companies of Sunbeam, regardless of the time that it was done, in connection with the merger agreement?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the person that you think would have the most knowledge of that would be Mr. Maher?

A. Mr. Levin.

Q. Or Mr. Levin perhaps. Are those the two people that you would think would be the knowledgable -- I'm not holding it to you, just your best assumption based on your position in the company.

A. Yeah.

Q. You did have some meetings with CSFB in connection with this transaction, didn't you?

A. Me personally?

Q. Yes. Well, there may have been others present, but you personally did attend meetings where they were present?

A. I don't recall. You mean other than board meetings?

Drapkin

Q. I want to get the predicate for it and then I want to focus on it.

A. Other than the board meetings?

Q. Fair question. Yes, other than the board meetings.

A. I don't know. It's quite possible they came over when the transaction was originally being discussed, and I sat in on one or two of those meetings. That's possible.

Q. Can we see if you have MS 75 there? I have another copy.

MR. BEMIS: It should be in the pile over there of yours, Ron. It's the Wachtell chronology. We looked at it pretty early this morning.

A. Right.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. If you would look at Exhibit A --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- which is attached there to, sir. There's two entries where your name appears. The first is on December 16th.

A. I see that.

Q. Do you see that reference? Do you have any recollection at all of this meeting?

Drapkin

A. No.

Q. And then there's another meeting on December 17th where you are identified as being present, and the individuals -- some of the individuals there are with CSFB. Do you remember this meeting?

A. No.

Q. Do you keep a calendar of any kind?

A. Yes.

Q. Currently?

A. Currently?

Q. Yes.

A. Yeah.

Q. Do you keep the old ones?

A. No.

Q. When do you throw them out, at the end of the year?

A. You have to ask my secretary, but I believe she throws them out when the year is over.

Q. Back in 1998 or 1999, did you keep a paper calendar or electronic calendar?

A. Always the same.

Drapkin

Q. Was it just a date planner?

A. Date planner.

Q. Do you keep that yourself or does your secretary keep it?

A. My secretary keeps it, but occasionally I'll pencil something in.

Q. And in connection with this litigation, were you asked by anyone to locate your old date planners to see whether you still had them going back to '97 or '98?

A. I don't know if it was, particularly in connection with this particular litigation, but I saw a piece of paper that purported to be a page from one of my calendars, which is where I think these two dates came from (indicating).

Q. A couple of background questions. You know Mr. Gordon Rich, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long -- he's deceased now correct?

A. Unfortunately.

Q. Would you tell us who he was, please.

A. When? I mean, at what period of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

time? Or how do I know him? I'm not sure of the question.

Q. Well, he worked for CSFB, correct?

A. At the time of his demise, yes.

Q. Was he an uninvestment [sic] banker?

A. Was he an investment banker?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, he was.

Q. Had you worked with Mr. Gordon Rich on other deals for the MacAndrews group of companies?

A. He went to the Harvard Law School and then started at Skadden, Arps. And he worked for me on numerous transactions before he left and went to First Boston.

Q. Do you know about how long he was at First Boston before he died?

A. I don't recall. A number of years.

Q. How many transactions, best you can recall, that he worked on with you at the MacAndrews group?

A. I really couldn't say.

Q. More than -- more than ten?

A. It depends on how you define transactions. Gordon Rich was a very bright, very nice guy and he came with ideas all the time. Did we take all of his ideas? No. Did he do work from time to time for companies in other regards? There may have been lots of things that he did. I don't want to mislead you. We did work with him.

Drapkin

Q. Was he the lead person on behalf of CSFB in the Coleman/Sunbeam transaction?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know Steve Geller?

A. No. I mean, I think I've met him, but if he was here, I couldn't pick him out of a line up.

Q. By name, was he subordinate to Mr. Rich --

A. I don't know.

Q. Robert Duffy, do you know him?

A. I think I've met these guys, but I just don't remember them. This is eight years ago and I sometimes have trouble remembering what I did last month.

Q. Did your doctor ever tell you it's going to get worse?

Drapkin

A. The more Lipitor you take, the worse it gets. Although, they swear it has no effect.

Q. I want you to go back to -- I want to go back to the Coleman board meeting where the merger is approved. And I'd ask you to pull out of the pile, it's probably the thickest one in the pile, MS 279.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Pull it out.

A. Got it.

Q. And I'm going to give you a page number to turn to --

A. Yup.

Q. -- to make your lives a little bit easier.

Turn to page 40.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And I'd like you first to focus on "Terms and Structure of the Transaction."

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Referring now to the Coleman board of directors, would you read that first paragraph to yourself. I want to ask you a couple of questions about it.

Drapkin

A. Okay.

Q. Now my first question is, is that paragraph accurate based on your being a director who voted in terms of the -- withdrawn.

My first question is, is that an accurate statement as to what the Coleman board of directors considered, given that you were present at the board of directors meetings in February of 1998.

MR. MARMER: Objection; lack of foundation. Objection; mischaracterizes the material.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. You can still answer.

A. It's accurate.

Q. So with regard to the Coleman merger agreement, which we've identified as MS 117, there was market risk associated with the transaction after the -- after February 27, 1998, right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And with regard to the CLN merger document, there was also market risk in the period between the date of the agreements and the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

011738

Drapkin

closing, correct?
A. Absolutely.
Q. Now the next paragraph of MS 279, which begins on page 40, begins " The Coleman board reviewed the economic terms." Would you read that paragraph to yourself, sir, and I just have a couple of quick questions on that.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Based on being a director of the Coleman Company Inc. and being at the board meetings at the end of February, is this an accurate statement of what was reviewed at the board meeting?
A. To the best of my recollection, yes, sir.
Q. And am I correct in reading this that CSFB said there was an implied premium of 44.2 percent to the market value of the Coleman stock based on the consideration that Sunbeam was going to provide at the merger?
MR. MARMER: Objection; mischaracterizes the material.
A. That's what the document appears to say, yes.

Drapkin

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. And did CSFB --
A. I'm sorry, B doesn't say that --
Q. My question is, somebody computed the premium of 44.2 percent, correct?
A. It's just a mathematical computation.
Q. Well, no, this is an implied market price they're referring to in this sentence.
A. I don't think so.
Q. Well, maybe I'm reading it wrong.
A. I think you take the $40 and -- $40 625 and 20, 686. You take the cash and whatever the exact percentage was of $40 and 625 each shareholder would get, and that is 44.2 percent higher than $20.68.
Q. I think you're correct. I think I did misspoke. It was based on the mathematical calculations of the cash per share, times the fractional share of Sunbeam stock you would get at market price?
A. Correct.
Q. And when you did that mathematical calculation, which most of us could do I think, the premium was at the time of closing 44.2

Drapkin

percent; is that right?
A. No. This is not the time of closing. This is February 26th. That's the time of signing.
Q. At the time of signing then. Just tell me what the 44.2 percent is as of what date.
A. This document speaks to February 26, 1998. If I am reading it correctly, the premium would be 44 percent based on what we just discussed.
Q. And that would be as of February -- close of business on February 26, 1998?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And then we know -- we know there was another board meeting on the 27th. The calendar would show us that that's a Friday. And I think all the agreements were signed on Saturday, but dated back as of the 27th. Is that your recollection?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. Now, there's a long discussion -- well, I don't want to characterize. I'll let somebody else characterize it, but there is a discussion beginning on page 40 on the opinion of

Drapkin

Credit Suisse First Boston, and that discussion carries over to the next page. And I think there is a more detailed discussion inside of the document. Would you please read the section on the opinion of Credit Suisse First Boston.
A. I read it.
Q. And did Credit Suisse First Boston opine at the board of directors meeting on February 27, 1998 that the transaction was fair?
A. That is my recollection.
Q. In your understanding, what does that mean as a board of director of the Coleman Company?
A. That what I as a Coleman shareholder was receiving for my stock was fair.
Q. Did you have any Coleman stock?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. How many shares did you have at the time of the board meeting?
A. My recollection is I had about 20,000 shares, and my kids had about 10.
Q. Following the announcement of the merger transaction, which I think the record will show is March 2nd -- I think that's right, it's

011739

Drapkin

March 2nd or 3rd -- did you sell your Coleman stock?

A. I sold it sometime in there, yes.

Q. You sold it sometime before the closing --

A. Yes, I did.

Q. -- on March 30th?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you also sell your children's shares?

A. I actually don't know that. I didn't go back to look to see -- when I was looking at the proxy that you gave me, it showed that my kids had 10,000 shares. I only remembered my 20. I would have filed a form 4, so the record would show whether or not I sold the kids shares. I just don't have any recollection whatsoever. But I would have if I knew they were there.

Q. You sold your shares before the March 19th press release?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you aware of other directors of -- strike that.

Do you know what the term inside director means, don't you?

Drapkin

A. Sure.

Q. You were an inside director?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Slovin has testified that he sold 53,300 shares of his stock immediately after the announcement of the Coleman merger. Are you aware of any other inside directors selling their Coleman stock immediately after the announcement?

A. I wasn't even aware that Bruce did. I think subsequent to these lawsuits I heard Jerry sold some shares, but I don't know that that's of my own personal knowledge.

Q. Turn to page 8, if you would, of Exhibit 279.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. If you look at the last paragraph, this does refer to the exercise of options, not necessarily shares that's separate and apart from options. It refers to Mr. Levin, his sales of stock after exercising options. And Mr. Jenkins, he's identified as the chief financial officer.

Is that who you were thinking of earlier who might have issued the request for the comfort letter?

Drapkin

A. Yes. It's probably Jenkins. He's worked at a couple of companies that we've had so.

Q. Was Mr. Jenkins a director at this time? I can look, but I can't remember.

MR. MARMER: At which time?

Q. At the time --

A. Of the merger?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't think so.

Q. It would be in the minutes. I just don't have them in front of me.

The stock that you owned, was that as a result of exercising options or did you have the stock already?

A. No, I think I bought the stock. I think I bought the stock on the market when I was -- when we took the company public. I can't swear to that, but I'm pretty sure.

Q. Okay.

A. I never got options so.

Q. "I never" what?

A. I never received options, so I assume

Drapkin

that's how I got them.

Q. Why did you sell your 20,000 shares as opposed to keeping them and taking Sunbeam stock?

A. My position is in all the companies in which I'm a director, as long as I'm a director I think it's appropriate that I own shares. When I no longer serve as a director, I no longer feel the need to own shares.

Q. Not to quarrel with you, but you were still the director at the time of the sale --

A. I was not going to be a director of the combined companies. I had no continuing interest. I wasn't front-and-center, paying attention to it. I missed the whole runup in the Sunbeam stock.

Q. You missed the runup in the Sunbeam stock?

A. Between the date that I sold and the date before the March 19th now famous press release, I believe the Sunbeam stock went up substantially.

Q. Well, the Coleman stock went up substantially too, didn't it?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

01/710

Drapkin

A. The Coleman just traded in tandem with Sunbeam. Coleman was no longer Coleman; Coleman was a right to receive a share of Sunbeam.

Q. But the Coleman stock ran up almost $10 a share --

A. But I missed that.

Q. Oh, you missed that. You missed the runup of the Coleman stock after the announcement?

A. I sold two days after the announcement. Whatever that part of the runup, I got. But then the Sunbeam stock performed admirably prior to the March 19th bomb and it was up another -- I want to say -- I think it got over 50 bucks. Which would have been worth another 6 bucks a share to me.

Q. If you look at Page 17, you'll see the stock prices there. And for the first quarter of 1998, when you get there, just tell me and we'll look at that.

A. I'm there.

Q. It says the high for the Coleman stock was 35.563. Do you see that?

Drapkin

A. Yes.

Q. What did you sell your stock at, your 20,000 shares?

A. I want to say somewhere around $32 maybe, 31 or 32. Don't hold me -- I mean, I just --

Q. I won't hold you to it. I'm just asking. You got close to --

A. The Sunbeam stock got over 50 bucks a share. And the date that I sold it, I bet it was about 41. So maybe I got less than 32. I just don't remember.

Q. Okay, we can put that exhibit back together. We're done with it for the time being. Why don't we take five minutes here.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:34 p.m. We're going off the video record.

(Recess taken.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:44 p.m. We're back on the video record.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q. In connection with the zero coupon debenture offering that Morgan Stanley underwrote in March of 1998, did you attend any of the road shows?

Drapkin

A. No.

Q. You want to attend a road show today on a public offering I understand; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Tell the jury what a road show is.

A. When you're selling securities to the public, the management and the underwriters arrange for meetings with potential investors, institutional, retail sales forces and the like, and they so-call go on the road to tell their story to see whether they can get people interested in the deal.

Q. Did you have any involvement with the settlement between the MacAndrews group and Sunbeam that resulted in the issuance of warrants to the MacAndrews group?

A. None.

Q. Did you have any participation in the valuation of those warrants?

A. None.

Q. Let me show you what the Court Reporter will mark as MS 238.

Drapkin

(MS Exhibit 238, Sunbeam Preacquisition Business Plan, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. The Court Reporter has handed you MS 238. Do you have that in front of you?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Is that a yes?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you ever seen that before?

A. No, sir.

Q. Okay, you can hand it back to me.

There were some meetings between or among the parties concerning a potential synergies that the combined Coleman/Sunbeam enterprise might achieve. Did you attend any of those meetings?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Did you have any input in drafting any documentation that purported to analyze the dollar amount of those synergies?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you involved in any way with the restatement investigation of Sunbeam's financial statements that was undertaken under the direction of the Sunbeam audit committee in 1998?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Drapkin

A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you ever see the results of it?
A. I might have.
Q. Did you ever investigate what the actual sales short fall was of Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998 versus the first quarter of 1997?
A. Did I personally?
Q. Yeah. Did you ever determine what it was?
A. I think I saw a piece of paper yesterday that actually showed what it was, but I didn't do any investigation on my own.
Q. Do you know what piece of paper that you saw?
A. No. It was some internal document that showed-- there was one piece of paper that I looked at that actually had the actual number.
Q. The actual number of the sales or the shortfall?
A. Whatever the first quarter was for Sunbeam.
Q. Do you remember what you saw in terms -- withdrawn.

Drapkin

Do you remember what the difference was between what Sunbeam eventually recorded in 1998 for its first quarter sales versus its first quarter sales in 1997?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Did you ever -- strike that.
Did you ever see what the difference was in sales between the first quarter of 1997 and the first quarter of 1998 on a restated basis as opposed to as originally set forth in the financial statements of Sunbeam?
A. No, I did not.
MR. BEMIS: Okay. I don't have anything else for you. Thank you, sir.

PRELIMINARY AND TENTATIVE
FOR DISCUSSION PURPOSES ONLY

This draft is furnished solely for the purpose of indicating the form of letter that we would expect to be able to furnish Morgan Stanley & Co. ("Morgan") in response to their request, the matters expected to be covered in the letter, and the nature of the procedures that we would expect to carry out with respect to such matters. Based on our discussions with Morgan it is our understanding that the procedures outlined in this draft are those they wish us to follow. Unless Morgan informs us otherwise, we shall assume that there are not additional procedures they wish us to follow. The text of the letter itself will depend, of course, on the results of procedures, which we would not expect to complete until shortly before the letter is given and in no event before the cutoff date indicated therein.

March 19, 1998

Morgan Stanley & Co.
1585 Broadway
33rd Floor
New York, New York 10036-8293

Gentlemen:

We have audited the consolidated balance sheets of Sunbeam Corporation (the "Company") as of December 27, 1997 and December 29, 1996 and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity and cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ending December 28, 1997 included in the offering memorandum for $1,300,000,000 Sunbeam Corporation Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018; our report with respect thereto is also included in the offering memorandum. The offering memorandum dated March 16, 1998 is herein referred to as the Offering Memorandum.

This letter is being furnished in reliance upon representation to us from Morgan Stanley & Co. that:

a. They are knowledgeable with respect to the due diligence review process that would be performed if this placement of securities were being registered pursuant to the Securities Act of 1933 (the Act).

b. In connection with the Offering Memorandum, the review process they have performed is substantially consistent with the due diligence review process that they would have performed if this placement of securities were being registered pursuant to the Act.

PRELIMINARY AND TENTATIVE
FOR DISCUSSION PURPOSES ONLY

In connection with the Offering Memorandum—

1. We are independent public accountants with respect to the Company within the meaning of the Securities Act of 1933 (the "Act") and applicable published rules and regulation thereunder.

2. In our opinion, the financial statements audited by us and included in the Offering Memorandum comply in form in all material respects with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP").

3. We have not audited any financial statements of the Company as of any date or for any period subsequent to December 28, 1997; although we have conducted an audit for the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997, the purpose (and therefore the scope) of the audit was to enable us to express our opinion on the consolidated financial statements as of December 28, 1997, and for the fiscal year then ended, but not on the financial statements for any interim period within that year. Therefore, we are unable to and do not express any opinion on the financial position, results of operations, or cash flows as of any date or for any period subsequent to December 28, 1997.

4. For purposes of this letter, we have read the 1997 minutes of meetings of the Board of Directors of the Company and its subsidiaries as set forth in the minute books at January 26, 1998, officials of the Company having advised us that the minutes of all such meetings through that date were set forth therein. In addition, we read the agendas for meetings of the Board of Directors which took place on February 3, 1998 and February 28, 1998, officials of the Company having advised us that these constitute a complete listing of such meetings from January 26, 1998 through March 16, 1998 and that approved minutes for these meetings were not available as of March 16, 1998. We have carried out other procedures to March 16, 1998, as follows (our work did not extend to the period from March 16, 1998, to March 19, 1998, inclusive):

   a. With respect to the period from December 29, 1997 to February 1, 1998, we have -

      (i) Read the unaudited consolidated financial statements of the Company and subsidiaries for the period from December 29, 1997 to February 1, 1998 furnished us by the Company, officials of the Company having advised us that no such financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, were available. The financial information for the period from December 29, 1997 to February 1, 1998 is incomplete in that it omits the statements of cash flows and other disclosures.

(ii) Inquired of certain officials of the Company who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters whether the unaudited consolidated financial statements referred to in a(i) are stated on a basis substantially consistent with that of the audited consolidated financial statements included in the Offering Memorandum.

The foregoing procedures do not constitute an audit conducted in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Also, they would not necessarily reveal matters of significance with respect to the comments in the following paragraph. Accordingly, we make no representations regarding the sufficiency of the foregoing procedures for your purposes.

5. Nothing came to our attention as a result of the foregoing procedures, however, that caused us to believe that –

a. At February 1, 1998, there was any change in the common stock, increase in long-term debt or any decrease in consolidated net current assets or shareholders' equity of the consolidated companies as compared with amounts shown on the December 28, 1997, audited consolidated balance sheet included in the Offering Memorandum, except as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	December 28, 1997	February 1, 1998
Long-term debt	$ 194,580	$ 219,449
Shareholders' Equity	531,937	525,913

b. For the period from December 29, 1997, to February 1, 1998, there were any decreases, as compared with the corresponding period in the preceding year, in consolidated net sales or in net income, except in all instances for changes, increases, or decreases that the Offering Memorandum discloses have occurred or may occur, except as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	The Period
	December 30, 1996 through February 2, 1997	December 29, 1997 through February 1, 1998
Net sales	$ 72,945	$ 28,984
Net income (loss)	4,786	(9,510)

6. As mentioned in 4(a), Company officials have advised us that no consolidated financial statements as of any date or for any period subsequent to February 1, 1998, are available; accordingly, the procedures carried out by us with respect to changes in financial statement items after February 1, 1998, have, of necessity, been even more limited than those with respect to the period referred to in 4. We have inquired of certain officials of the Company who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters whether (a) at March 16, 1998, there was any change in the capital stock, increase in long-term debt or any decreases in consolidated net current assets or shareholders' equity of the consolidated companies as compared with amounts shown on the December 28, 1997, audited consolidated balance sheet included in the Offering Memorandum or (b) for the period from December 29, 1997, to March 16, 1998, there were any decreases, as compared with the corresponding period in the preceding year, in consolidated net sales or in the total or per-share amount of net income. On the basis of these inquiries and our reading of the minutes and meeting agendas as described in 4, nothing came to our attention that caused us to believe that there was any such change, increase, or decrease, except in all instances for changes, increases, or decreases that the Offering Memorandum discloses have occurred or may occur, except as follows:

   a. Between December 28, 1997 and March 16, 1998, (i) capital stock increased primarily due to stock issued in connection with stock option exercises, (ii) long-term debt has increased as a result of drawings on the Company's credit facility and (iii) consolidated shareholders' equity has decreased primarily because of a first quarter compensation charge from restricted stock issued in connection with new employment contracts for key officers and net losses during the period, offset in part by contributions received for stock option exercises.

   b. For the period from December 29, 1997 through March 16, 1998, consolidated net sales decreased as compared to the corresponding period of the preceding year primarily due to the Company's new early-buy program for outdoor grills which accelerated outdoor grill sales into the fourth quarter of fiscal 1997. Net income decreased primarily due to the aforementioned sales decrease and the compensation charge incurred in connection with new employment agreements for key officers.

7. At your request, we have -

   a. Read the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated balance sheet as of December 28, 1997, and the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations for the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997.

b. Inquired of certain officials of the Company who have responsibility for financial and accounting matters about –

(i) The basis for their determination of the pro forma adjustments, and

(ii) Whether the unaudited proforma condensed consolidated financial statements referred to in 7a comply as to form in all material respects with the applicable accounting requirements of rule 11-02 of Regulation S-X.

c. Proved the arithmetic accuracy of the application of the pro forma adjustments to the historical amounts in the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements.

The foregoing procedures are substantially less in scope than an examination, the objective of which is the expression of an opinion on management's assumptions, the pro forma adjustments, and the application of those adjustments to historical financial information. Accordingly, we do not express such an opinion. The foregoing procedures would not necessarily reveal matters of significance with respect to the comments in the following paragraph. Accordingly, we make no representation about the sufficiency of such procedures for your purposes.

8. Nothing came to our attention as a result of the procedures specified in paragraph 7, however, that caused us to believe that the pro forma adjustments have not been properly applied to the historical amounts in the compilation of those statements. Had we performed additional procedures or had we made an examination of the pro forma condensed consolidated financial statements, other matters might have come to our attention that would have been reported to you.

9. For purposes of this letter, we have also read the items identified by you on the attached copy of the Offering Memorandum, and have performed the following procedures, which were applied as indicated with respect to the symbols explained below:

✓ Compared to corresponding amounts appearing in the Company's audited consolidated financial statements and notes thereto for the period indicated contained in the Offering Memorandum and found them to be in agreement.

- Recomputed from corresponding amounts appearing in the Company's audited consolidated financial statements and notes thereto for the period indicated contained in the Offering Memorandum and found them to be in agreement.
- Compared to the Company's unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements and notes thereto for the period indicated contained in the Offering Memorandum and found them to be in agreement.
- Recomputed from the Company's unaudited condensed consolidated financial statements and notes thereto for the period indicated contained in the Offering Memorandum and found them to be in agreement.
- Compared to, or recomputed from, amounts included in an unaudited schedule or report prepared by the Company and found them to be in agreement. We make no representations regarding the completeness or accuracy of the Company's assumptions underlying the schedule or report.
- Compared to, or recomputed from, the books and records of the Company and noted agreement.
- Compared to, or recomputed from, corresponding amounts appearing in the Company's unaudited proforma condensed combined financial statements included in the Offering Memorandum and found them to be in agreement.

10. It should be understood that our work with respect to the "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" section of the Offering Memorandum was limited to applying the procedures stated above and thus we make no representations regarding the adequacy of disclosure or, other than with respect to the noted results of the specific procedures applied, the accuracy of the discussion contained therein or whether any facts have been omitted.

11. Our audit of the consolidated financial statements for periods referred to in the introductory paragraph of this letter comprised audit tests and procedures deemed necessary for the purpose of expressing an opinion on such financial statements taken as a whole. For none of the periods referred to therein, or any other period, did we perform audit tests for the purpose of expressing an opinion on individual balances of accounts or summaries of selected transactions such as those enumerated above, and, accordingly, we express no opinion thereon.

12. It should be understood that we make no representations regarding questions of legal interpretation or regarding the sufficiency for your purposes of the procedures enumerated in the preceding paragraph. Also, such procedures would not necessarily reveal any material misstatement of amounts listed above. Further, we have addressed ourselves solely to the foregoing data as set forth in the Offering Memorandum and make no representations regarding the adequacy of disclosures or regarding whether any material facts have been omitted.

13. This letter is solely for the information of the addressees and to assist the underwriters in conducting and documenting their investigation of the affairs of the Company in connection with the offering of securities covered by the Offering Memorandum, and it is not to be used, circulated, quoted, or otherwise referred to for any purpose, including but not limited to the purchase or sale of securities, nor is it to be filed with or referred to in whole or in part in the Offering Memorandum or any other document, except that reference may be made to it in any list of closing documents pertaining to the offering of securities covered by the Offering Memorandum.

ZERO COUPON CONVERTIBLE SENIOR SUBORDINATED DEBENTURES DUE 2018

The Debentures are convertible at any time after 90 days following the latest date of original issuance thereof and prior to maturity, unless previously redeemed or otherwise purchased, into shares of the Company's common stock, $0.01 par value (the "Common Stock"), at a conversion rate of 6.575 shares per $1,000 principal amount at maturity. The conversion rate will not be adjusted for accrued Original Issue Discount (as defined), but will be subject to adjustment in certain events. See "Description of Debentures—Conversion of Debentures." The Company's Common Stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol "SOC." The reported last sale price of the Company's Common Stock as reported on the New York Stock Exchange Composite Tape on March 19, 1998 was $46⅛ per share.

The Debentures are being issued at an original price of $372.43 per $1,000 principal amount at maturity (the "Issue Price"), which represents an original issue discount of 62.757% from the principal amount thereof payable at maturity (the "Original Issue Discount"). The Issue Price represents a yield to maturity of 5.0% per annum (computed on a semi-annual bond equivalent basis).

Prior to March 25, 2003, the Debentures are not redeemable at the option of the Company. On or after such date, the Debentures are redeemable on at least 30 days' notice at the option of the Company, in whole or in part at any time, at redemption prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company."

The Debentures may be purchased by the Company, at the option of the holder, as of March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013 for purchase prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to such dates. Subject to certain conditions, the Company may elect to pay any such purchase price in cash or Common Stock, or any combination thereof. See "Description of Debentures—Purchase of Debentures at the Option of the Holder." The Debentures may also be redeemed at the option of the holder if there is a Fundamental Change (as defined) at redemption prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption, subject to adjustment in certain circumstances as described herein. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change." The Debentures will be subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future Senior Indebtedness (as defined) of the Company and effectively subordinated in right of payment to all indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company's subsidiaries. At December 28, 1997, on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Acquisitions (as defined), the Bank Financing (as defined), the offering of the Debentures and the application of the net proceeds therefrom, approximately $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness would have been outstanding and the total indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company's subsidiaries would have been approximately $731 million.

The Debentures are eligible for trading in Private Offerings, Resales and Trading through Automated Linkages ("PORTAL") Market.

SEE "RISK FACTORS" BEGINNING ON PAGE 12 FOR A DISCUSSION OF CERTAIN FACTORS THAT SHOULD BE CONSIDERED BY PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS.

THE DEBENTURES AND THE COMMON STOCK ISSUABLE UPON CONVERSION OF THE DEBENTURES HAVE NOT BEEN REGISTERED UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED (THE "SECURITIES ACT"), AND MAY NOT BE OFFERED OR SOLD EXCEPT PURSUANT TO AN EXEMPTION FROM, OR IN A TRANSACTION NOT SUBJECT TO, THE REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS OF THE SECURITIES ACT. ACCORDINGLY, THE DEBENTURES MAY BE OFFERED AND SOLD ONLY TO (i) "QUALIFIED INSTITUTIONAL BUYERS" (AS DEFINED IN RULE 144A UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT) IN COMPLIANCE WITH RULE 144A AND (ii) A LIMITED NUMBER OF OTHER INSTITUTIONAL "ACCREDITED INVESTORS" (AS DEFINED IN RULE 501(A)(1), (2), (3) OR (7) UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT) THAT, PRIOR TO THEIR PURCHASE OF THE DEBENTURES, DELIVER TO THE INITIAL PURCHASER A LETTER CONTAINING CERTAIN REPRESENTATIONS AND AGREEMENTS. FOR A DESCRIPTION OF CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS ON RESALE OR TRANSFER, SEE "TRANSFER RESTRICTIONS."

PRICE 37.243% AND ACCRUED ORIGINAL ISSUE DISCOUNT, IF ANY

The Company has granted Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated (the "Initial Purchaser") an option to purchase up to an additional $302,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity of Debentures to cover over-allotments, if any. See "Plan of Distribution."

The Debentures are offered, subject to prior sale, when, as and if accepted by the Initial Purchaser and subject to approval of certain legal matters by Davis Polk & Wardwell, counsel for the Initial Purchaser. It is expected that delivery of the Debentures will be made on or about March 25, 1998 at the office of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, New York, N.Y., against payment therefor in immediately available funds.

THIS OFFERING MEMORANDUM DOES NOT CONSTITUTE AN OFFER TO SELL, OR A SOLICITATION OF AN OFFER TO BUY, ANY OF THE SECURITIES OFFERED HEREBY BY ANY PERSON IN ANY JURISDICTION IN WHICH IT IS UNLAWFUL FOR SUCH PERSON TO MAKE SUCH AN OFFERING OR SOLICITATION. NEITHER THE DELIVERY OF THIS OFFERING MEMORANDUM NOR ANY SALE MADE HEREUNDER OF THE SECURITIES DESCRIBED HEREIN SHALL UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES IMPLY THAT THE INFORMATION HEREIN IS CORRECT AS OF ANY DATE SUBSEQUENT TO THE DATE HEREOF.

This Offering Memorandum is highly confidential and has been prepared by the Company solely for use in connection with the proposed private placement of the Debentures described herein. The Company and the Initial Purchaser reserve the right to reject any offer to purchase Debentures, in whole or in part, for any reason and to sell less than the principal amount at maturity of the Debentures offered hereby. This Offering Memorandum is personal to each offeree and does not constitute an offer to any other person or to the public generally to subscribe for or otherwise acquire the Debentures or the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures. Distribution of this Offering Memorandum to any person other than the offeree and those persons, if any, retained to advise such offeree with respect thereto is unauthorized, and any disclosure of any of its contents without the prior written consent of the Company is prohibited. Offerees represent that they are basing their investment decision solely on this Offering Memorandum and their own examination of the Company and the terms of the offering. Each prospective purchaser, by accepting delivery of this Offering Memorandum, agrees to the foregoing and, if the offeree does not purchase Debentures or this offering is terminated, to return this Offering Memorandum and all documents delivered herewith to: Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, 1585 Broadway, New York, New York, 10036, Attention: Syndicate Department.

Each person receiving this Offering Memorandum acknowledges that (i) such person has been afforded an opportunity to request from the Company and to review all additional information considered by it to be necessary to verify the accuracy of or to supplement the information herein, (ii) it has not relied on the Initial Purchaser or any person affiliated with the Initial Purchaser in connection with its investigation of the accuracy of such information or its investment decision and (iii) no person has been authorized to give any information or to make any representation concerning the Company or the Debentures or the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures offered hereby other than as contained or incorporated by reference herein and information given by duly authorized officers and employees of the Company in connection with investors' examination of the Company and the terms of the offering, and, if given or made, such other information or representation should not be relied upon as having been authorized by the Company or the Initial Purchaser.

No representation or warranty, express or implied, is made as to the accuracy or completeness of the information contained or incorporated by reference herein, and nothing contained in this Offering Memorandum, or incorporated by reference herein, is, or shall be relied upon as, a promise or representation. The Initial Purchaser assumes no responsibility for the accuracy or completeness of such information.

IN MAKING AN INVESTMENT DECISION, INVESTORS MUST RELY ON THEIR OWN EXAMINATION OF THE COMPANY AND THE TERMS OF THE OFFERING, INCLUDING THE MERITS AND RISKS INVOLVED. THESE SECURITIES HAVE NOT BEEN RECOMMENDED BY THE SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION OR ANY STATE SECURITIES COMMISSION. FURTHERMORE, THE FOREGOING AUTHORITIES HAVE NOT PASSED UPON THE ACCURACY OR ADEQUACY OF THIS DOCUMENT. ANY REPRESENTATION TO THE CONTRARY IS A CRIMINAL OFFENSE.

CERTAIN PERSONS PARTICIPATING IN THIS OFFERING MAY ENGAGE IN TRANSACTIONS THAT STABILIZE, MAINTAIN OR OTHERWISE AFFECT THE PRICE OF THE DEBENTURES AND COMMON STOCK OF THE COMPANY. SPECIFICALLY, THE INITIAL PURCHASER MAY OVERALLOT IN CONNECTION WITH THE OFFERING AND MAY BID FOR AND PURCHASE DEBENTURES AND SHARES OF COMMON STOCK IN THE OPEN MARKET. INCORPORATION OF CERTAIN DOCUMENTS BY REFERENCE

The following document has been filed by the Company with the Commission (File No. 1-52) pursuant to the Exchange Act and is incorporated herein by reference: the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997. All documents filed by the Company pursuant to Sections 13(a), 13(c), 14 or 15(d) of the Exchange Act subsequent to the date of this Offering Memorandum but prior to the termination of the offering to which this Offering Memorandum relates shall be deemed to be incorporated by reference in this Offering Memorandum and to be part hereof from the date of filing of such documents. Any statement contained in a document incorporated by reference herein shall be deemed to be modified or superseded for purposes of this Offering Memorandum to the extent that a statement contained herein or in any other subsequently filed document which also is or is deemed to be incorporated by reference herein modifies or supersedes such statement. Any such statement so modified or superseded shall not be deemed, except as modified or superseded, to constitute a part of this Offering Memorandum. The Company will provide without charge to each person, including any beneficial owner, to whom this Offering Memorandum is delivered, upon written or oral request of such person, a copy of any and all of the documents that have been or may be incorporated by reference herein (other than exhibits to such documents unless such exhibits are specifically incorporated by reference into such documents). Requests for such documents should be directed to Rich Goudis, at the principal executive offices of the Company in writing at Sunbeam Corporation, 1615 South Congress Avenue, Suite 200, Delray Beach, Florida 33445 or by telephone at (561) 243-2100.

FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Offering Memorandum, including the documents incorporated by reference herein, contains forward-looking statements that involve risks and uncertainties. The statements contained in this Offering Memorandum or incorporated by reference herein that are not purely historical are forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act and Section 21E of the Exchange Act, including without limitation statements regarding the expectations, beliefs, intentions, plans or strategies of the Company, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, or their directors or officers regarding the future. All forward-looking statements included in this document or incorporated by reference herein are based on information available to the Company on the date hereof or thereof, and the Company assumes no obligation to update any such forward-looking statements. Prospective investors are cautioned that any such forward looking statements are not guarantees of future performance and involve risks and uncertainties and that actual results may differ materially from those anticipated in these forward-looking statements as a result of various factors. The information included in this Offering Memorandum, including without limitation the information set forth under the headings "Risk Factors," "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" and "Business" identifies important factors that could cause such differences.

Except as otherwise indicated, (i) all references to the "Company" or "Sunbeam Corporation" refer to Sunbeam Corporation and its subsidiaries, unless the context otherwise requires, and (ii) all information in this Offering Memorandum assumes that the Initial Purchaser's over-allotment option will not be exercised.

SUMMARY

The following information does not purport to be complete and is qualified in its entirety by the more detailed financial and other information appearing elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum and in the documents incorporated by reference herein. The offering of the Debentures is referred to herein as the "Offering." For a discussion of certain important factors that should be considered by prospective purchasers of the Debentures, see "Risk Factors" beginning on page 12.

THE COMPANY

The Company is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Company's primary business is the manufacture, marketing and distribution of durable household consumer products through mass merchandisers, home centers and other channels (such as Wal-Mart, Kmart and Home Depot) in the United States and internationally. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions. Sunbeam products enjoy a long-standing reputation for quality, and a majority of the Company's sales are from products which hold the number one or two market share in their respective product categories. In 1997, the Company's net sales were approximately $1,168 million.

The Company's five product categories are: (1) Appliances (mixers, blenders, food steamers, bread makers, rice cookers, coffee makers, toasters, irons and garment steamers); (2) Health at Home (vaporizers, humidifiers, air cleaners, water filters, massagers and scales); (3) Personal Care and Comfort (shower massagers, hair clippers and trimmers, electric warming blankets); (4) Outdoor Cooking (electric, gas and charcoal grills and grill accessories); and (5) Away From Home (clippers and related products for professional beauty, barber and veterinarian trade and sales of products to commercial and institutional channels). The International Group is responsible for sales (primarily of small appliances, personal care, grills and comfort products, professional clippers and related products) in all countries other than the United States.

The Company has a management team with extensive consumer products experience and proven expertise in cost containment and operational improvement. On February 20, 1998, each of the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mr. Dunlap; the Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, Mr. Kersh; and the Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, Mr. Fannin, signed new three year employment contracts with the Company which include substantial equity-based compensation.

Competitive Strengths

Sunbeam competes in markets with well-established United States and foreign companies on the basis of various strengths, depending on the country, product category and distribution channels. The Company believes that it is well-positioned to pursue continued growth as a result of these competitive strengths, which include the following:

Market Leadership. The majority of Sunbeam sales are from products in which the Company holds the number one or two market share position. The Company believes that this combination of leading brand-name products and breadth of product offerings makes Sunbeam an attractive vendor to all retailers, particularly those who are consolidating their suppliers.

Brand Name Recognition. The Sunbeam® and Oster® brands have been household names for generations. The Company believes that these brands, along with its other well-known secondary brand names such as Mixmaster®, Osterizer® and Grillmaster®, draw customers into retail stores specifically to purchase products bearing these brand names. During 1997, the Company spent over $56 million, or approximately 5% of its 1997 net sales, for advertising and sales promotion to support brand recognition.

Distribution Network. The Company has one of the premier mass merchant distribution networks serving large national retailers in the United States. The Company also has a strong network of well-established distributors and service organizations in Latin America. The Company supports its customers' needs with strong warehousing and distribution capabilities, a broad, high-quality product portfolio, electronic data interchange and just-in-time product delivery capabilities. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogues, Company-owned outlet stores and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and military post exchange outlets.

Strong Position in Consolidating Retail Environment. The consolidation trend in the retail industry has resulted in the emergence and global expansion of large mass merchandisers. These merchandisers demand financially strong, efficient suppliers who offer a broad range of innovative, quality products, have the ability to make timely shipments in large volumes and provide strong customer, promotional and merchandising support. The Company continues to benefit from this trend and believes it has the opportunity to further expand distribution with a number of major retailers while increasing its penetration of existing accounts. In 1997, the Company sold products to virtually all of the top 100 U.S. retailers, including Wal-Mart, Price Costco, Kmart, Target Stores, Home Depot and Sears.

Restructuring and Growth Plan

In the fall of 1996, Sunbeam announced a major restructuring and growth plan under newly appointed Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Albert Dunlap. The restructuring, which was recently completed, included the redefinition of Sunbeam's core products, divestiture of non-core businesses, assembling a new management team, and the closing of 18 factories, 43 warehouses and 5 headquarters offices. The Company also consolidated all purchasing functions, reduced the number of stock keeping units ("SKU's") from approximately 11,400 to 2,000 and outsourced certain of the administrative, manufacturing and distribution activities. These actions led to a reduction of nearly half the work force (approximately 6,000 jobs). In 1997, net sales grew 18.7% and operating margin improved to 17.1% from 0.5% (excluding the impact of special charges) in 1996, with operating margins reaching 20% in the fourth quarter of 1997.

The Acquisitions

Following the successful restructuring of the Company, the management team has extended its strategic focus to identify underperforming companies with strong brand names. The Company intends to capitalize on its proven capability in cost containment and operational improvement by acquiring such companies and their premier brand names, thereby broadening the Sunbeam product offering spectrum and presenting opportunities to eliminate redundant or inefficient operations

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced that it had entered into separate agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert (collectively, the "Acquisitions"). The Company is acquiring these companies primarily due to their strong and established brand names, the potential opportunity to streamline operations, the diversification they provide to the Company's product base and the potential for revenue and operational synergies. In addition, the Company believes that its existing international geographic marketing and distribution strengths and those of the acquired companies will significantly complement each other. The Company's management team believes that these Acquisitions will give the Company a platform from which to capitalize on the fragmentation and potential consolidation of the durable household consumer products sector.

Coleman. With 1997 net revenues of approximately $1,154 million, Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market Its products have been sold domestically and internationally under the Coleman brand name since the 1920s. Coleman attributes its leading market position to the strength of its brand name, the breadth of products sold, product quality and innovation, marketing, distribution and manufacturing expertise.

- Outdoor Recreation: This product category includes lanterns and stoves, propane and butane fuel, coolers and jugs, recreational soft goods (including tents, sleeping bags, backpacks and duffle bags), outdoor furniture, electric lights, spas and camping accessories Coleman believes it is the leading worldwide manufacturer of lanterns and stoves for outdoor recreational use and a leading supplier to the worldwide camping and outdoor recreation market of propane and butane cartridges and camping fuel. Coleman's products are marketed under the brand names Coleman®, Camping Gaz® and East Pak®.
- Hardware: This product category includes portable generators and air compressors marketed under the Powermate® brand name. Coleman is a leading worldwide manufacturer and distributor of portable generators. These products are distributed predominantly through mass merchandisers and home center chains.

Based on the assumption that all presently exercisable Coleman options will be exercised prior to the closing of the Coleman acquisition, the Company expects to issue and deliver approximately 21 3 million shares of Common Stock (with an aggregate value of approximately $1 billion based on current market prices) and to pay an aggregate of $221 million in cash in connection with the Coleman acquisition On such basis, the Coleman acquisition is valued at approximately $2.2 billion (including the assumption of approximately $976 million of indebtedness) If none of the presently exercisable Coleman options are exercised prior to closing of the Coleman acquisition, the Company would expect to issue and deliver approximately 19 4 million shares of Common Stock and pay aggregate cash consideration of $261 million in connection with the Coleman acquisition

Signature Brands. With net sales of approximately $276 million for its fiscal year ended September 28, 1997, Signature Brands is a leading manufacturer of a comprehensive line of consumer and professional products Signature Brands attributes its leading market position to its strong brand name recognition, distribution in major domestic high volume retail outlets, marketing and sales promotion efforts, electronic data interchange capabilities, merchandise flow systems and established relationships with its retail customers.

- Consumer Products: Signature Brands markets its consumer products under the Mr Coffee®, Health o meter®, Counselor® and Borg® brand names. Signature Brands produces and markets an extensive line of Mr. Coffee® brand automatic drip coffeemakers, espresso/cappuccino makers and iced and hot teamakers. Mr. Coffee, Inc. has been the leading producer of automatic drip coffeemakers in the U.S. since 1975. In addition, Mr. Coffee® is the leading brand of basket-type coffee filters in the United States. Other consumer products marketed under the Mr. Coffee® brand name include water filtration products, coffeemaker related accessories such as replacement decanters and mug warmers, and other kitchen countertop appliances such as food dehydrators. In addition, Signature Brands manufactures a comprehensive line of Health o meter® brand analog (mechanical) and digital (electronic) floor scales and waist-high and eye-level scales. Capitalizing on the recently acquired rights to the Borg® and Counselor® brand names, Signature Brands intends to introduce in 1998 a new line of Borg® scales that are distinctly European in design for department and specialty stores. Counselor® scales, to be introduced in 1998, will represent opening price point scales for the mass market
- Professional Products: Professional products include the Pelouze® and Health o meter® brands of office, foodservice and medical scales and Mr Coffee® brand commercial coffeemakers. Products sold as professional products include analog and digital scales for a full range of medical uses, including traditional balance beam scales, pediatric scales, wheelchair ramp scales, chair and sling scales for non-ambulatory patients, and home healthcare scales Signature Brands' office products, marketed under the Pelouze® brand name, include analog and digital scales designed to provide mailing solutions for small, commercial establishments, home offices and departments within larger companies that process a small to medium volume of letters and packages daily Pelouze® foodservice products include analog and digital portion control scales, thermometers and timers for commercial and non-commercial applications

The Signature Brands transaction is valued at approximately $253 million, consisting of approximately $84 million in cash and the assumption of approximately $169 million of indebtedness

First Alert. With 1997 net sales of approximately $187 million, First Alert is the market leader in smoke and carbon monoxide detectors in the United States. First Alert's market position is supported by the strength of the First Alert® brand name, which First Alert believes is the most widely recognized consumer brand in the home safety market. First Alert has capitalized on the First Alert® brand name and its leading smoke detector market share to develop and market a broad range of residential safety products

- Smoke Detectors: First Alert's smoke detector product line consists of UL listed photoelectric and ionization smoke detectors. First Alert has the leading U.S. market share for these products. First Alert markets its smoke detectors under three principal brand names: the First Alert® premium brand name, which is featured in media and public relations promotional campaigns; the Family Gard® brand name, which is marketed as a lower priced, functional alternative for those consumers who are price sensitive, and the BRK® brand name, which is sold to the wholesale electrical market
- Carbon Monoxide Detectors. These products include carbon monoxide detectors, first introduced by First Alert in September 1993, with biomimetic sensors sold under the First Alert® and Family Gard® brand names. First Alert holds the leading market position in the carbon monoxide detector market.
- Fire Extinguishers. First Alert's disposable fire extinguisher product line was introduced in 1985 to complement its First Alert® brand smoke detectors First Alert currently markets a full range of fire extinguisher products for use by the consumer, including fire extinguishers for use in the kitchen, garage, workshop, automobiles and boats. These products are sold under the Sure Grip® brand name which is one of the leading brand names in the U.S retail fire extinguisher market.

The First Alert transaction is valued at approximately $178 million, consisting of approximately $133 million in cash and the assumption of approximately $45 million of indebtedness

---

Although the Company has entered into separate definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, subject to various customary closing conditions, including the receipt of required regulatory approvals, there can be no assurance that any or all of such transactions will be consummated

Financing Plan

In order to finance the cash portion of the Acquisitions and the repayment of all or substantially all of the outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, the Company intends to negotiate a new bank credit facility (the "New Credit Facility") and to issue the Debentures offered hereby. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed." For a summary description of the expected terms of the New Credit Facility, see "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

The Company intends to repay all or substantially all of the currently outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert as promptly as practicable following consummation of each Acquisition, subject to applicable notice provisions and other prepayment terms of the applicable indebtedness. Such repayments are expected to be funded with borrowings under the New Credit Facility and from the net proceeds of the Offering of the Debentures. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed," "Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

The following table sets forth the expected sources and uses of cash in connection with the financing of the Acquisitions:

Sources		Uses
	(In millions)
New Credit Facility(a)	$1,294.3	Repayment of existing indebtedness(b)	$1,504.3
Debentures offered hereby	750.1	Cash Acquisition consideration(c)	477.6
		Fees and expenses(d)	62.5
Total	$2,044.4	Total	$2,044.4

(a) The New Credit Facility is expected to consist of a $1.5 billion term debt facility, and a $500 million revolving credit facility. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

(b) Represents the repayment of existing indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Signature Brands and First Alert of $202.2 million, $1,077.2 million, $179.9 million and $45.0 million, respectively. Existing indebtedness reflects amounts outstanding as of December 28, 1997, except for indebtedness of CLN Holdings issued at an original issue discount which reflects principal accreted through an assumed repayment date of May 15, 1998. The foregoing amounts include $7.0 million, $100.3 million and $5.5 million of estimated prepayment premiums related to the early retirement of indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings and Signature Brands, respectively. As of the actual date of repayment, the outstanding amount of existing indebtedness to be repaid is likely to be greater than the amount shown above due to increased borrowings to finance working capital requirements. The Company intends to refinance any such additional indebtedness using its unused borrowing capacity under the New Credit Facility. In particular, as of March 16, 1998 the outstanding indebtedness of the Company and CLN Holdings had increased by approximately $100 million and $60 million, respectively. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

(c) Represents the estimated net cash consideration payable (including the cash-out of options) in connection with the Acquisitions in the amounts of $261.1 million, $83.8 million and $132.8 million for Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, respectively.

(d) Represents estimated transaction costs in connection with the Acquisitions and debt refinancing, including financial advisory fees, Initial Purchaser's commissions, bank fees, and legal and accounting fees and expenses.

Recent Announcement

On March 19, 1998 the Company issued a press release in which it stated that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates of $285 million to $295 million, but that net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million. The Company stressed that sales of its products at retail remains very strong. The shortfall from analysts' estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management and order patterns at certain of the Company's major retail customers. The Company further stated that based on the strength of its new product offerings and powerful brand names, it remains highly confident about the overall sales outlook for its products for the entire year.

Actual results could differ materially from the statements in the press release due to various factors including those set forth in "Risk Factors," "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" and "Business." See "Forward-Looking Information."
