Conversion	The Debentures are convertible, at the option of the holder, at any time after 90 days following the latest date of original issuance thereof and prior to maturity, unless previously redeemed or otherwise purchased by the Company, into Common Stock at the rate of 6.575 shares per $1,000 principal amount at maturity of the Debentures (the "Conversion Rate"). The Conversion Rate will not be adjusted for accrued Original Issue Discount (as defined), but will be subject to adjustment upon the occurrence of certain events. Upon conversion, the holder will not receive any cash payment representing accrued Original Issue Discount; such accrued Original Issue Discount will be deemed paid by the Common Stock received upon conversion. See "Description of Debentures—Conversion of Debentures."
Subordination	The Debentures will be subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future Senior Indebtedness (as defined) of the Company and effectively subordinated in right of payment to all indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company's subsidiaries. The Debentures will rank pari passu with liabilities owed to trade creditors of the Company. At December 28, 1997, on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing, the Offering and the application of the net proceeds therefrom, approximately $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness would have been outstanding and the Company's subsidiaries would have had approximately $731 million of indebtedness and other liabilities outstanding (excluding intercompany liabilities and liabilities of a type not required to be reflected on a balance sheet in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles) to which the Debentures would have been effectively subordinated. See "Description of Debentures—Subordination of Debentures."
Original Issue Discount	The Debentures are being issued at an Original Issue Discount for Federal income tax purposes equal to the excess of the stated redemption price at maturity of the Debentures (which is expected to be the principal amount at maturity) over the amount of their issue price (which is expected to be the Issue Price). Prospective purchasers of Debentures should be aware that, although there will be no periodic payments of interest on the Debentures, accrued Original Issue Discount will be included periodically in a holder's gross income for Federal income tax purposes prior to conversion, redemption, other disposition or maturity of such holder's Debentures, whether or not such Debentures are ultimately converted, redeemed, sold (to the Company or

Sinking Fund	None.
Redemption.....	The Debentures will not be redeemable by the Company prior to March 25, 2003. On or after such date, the Debentures will be redeemable for cash on at least 30 days' notice, at the option of the Company, in whole at any time or in part from time to time, at redemption prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company."
Fundamental Change	The Debentures may be redeemed for cash at the option of the holder if there is a Fundamental Change (as defined) at a price equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption, subject to adjustment in certain circumstances. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change."
Purchase at the Option of the Holder...	The Company will purchase Debentures at the option of the holder as of March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013, at purchase prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to such dates. The Company may, at its option, elect to pay any such purchase price in cash or Common Stock, or any combination thereof. See "Description of Debentures—Purchase of Debentures at the Option of the Holder."
Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds . .	The net proceeds from the Offering, together with the Bank Financing, will be used to finance the Acquisitions and related transactions. "See Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds "
Registration Rights	The Company will, for the benefit of the holders, file with the Commission as soon as practicable, but in any event within 90 days after the first date of original issuance of the Debentures, a shelf registration statement (the "Shelf Registration Statement") covering resales of the Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures (the "Registrable Securities"). The Company will use its best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to become effective as promptly as is practicable, but in any event within 180 days after such first date of original issuance, and to keep the Shelf Registration Statement effective until the earlier of (i) the sale pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement of all the securities registered thereunder and (ii) the expiration of the holding period applicable to such securities held by non-affiliates of the Company under Rule 144(k) of the Securities Act, or any successor provision, subject to certain permitted exceptions See "Registration Rights "
Transfer Restrictions .. .	The Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act and are subject to restrictions on transfer See "Transfer Restrictions "

RISK FACTORS

An investment in the Debentures offered hereby involves a high degree of risk. Prospective investors should carefully consider the following risk factors, in addition to the other information set forth in this Offering Memorandum, in connection with an investment in the Debentures offered hereby.

Substantial Leverage; Ability to Service Indebtedness. Following the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing and the Offering, the Company will be highly leveraged, with indebtedness that is very substantial in relation to its shareholders' equity. After giving pro forma effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing and the Offering, as of December 28, 1997, the Company's aggregate outstanding indebtedness would have been $2,044 million and the Company's shareholders' equity would have been $1,278 million. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will permit the Company to incur or guarantee additional indebtedness, subject to certain limitations. The Indenture does not restrict the ability of the Company to incur additional Indebtedness. See "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Financial Statements," "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations—Liquidity and Capital Resources," "The Acquisitions," "Description of Other Indebtedness" and "Description of Debentures."

The Company's high degree of leverage could have important consequences to holders of the Debentures, including but not limited to the following: (i) the Company's ability to obtain additional financing for working capital, capital expenditures, acquisitions or general corporate purposes may be impaired in the future, (ii) a substantial portion of the Company's cash flow from operations must be dedicated to the payment of principal and interest on its indebtedness, thereby reducing the funds available to the Company for its operations and other purposes; (iii) the Company may be substantially more leveraged than certain of its competitors, which may place the Company at a competitive disadvantage; (iv) the Company may be hindered in its ability to adjust rapidly to changing market conditions; and (v) the Company's substantial degree of leverage could make it more vulnerable in the event of a downturn in general economic conditions or its business.

The Company's ability to repay or to refinance its obligations with respect to its indebtedness will depend on its future financial and operating performance, which, in turn, will be subject to prevailing economic and competitive conditions and to financial, business and other factors, many of which are beyond the Company's control. These factors could include operating difficulties, increased operating costs, product pricing pressures, the response of competitors, and delays in implementing strategic projects. The Company's ability to meet its debt service and other obligations will depend in significant part on the extent to which the Company can implement its business strategy and successfully integrate the Acquisitions. There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to implement its strategy fully, that the anticipated results of its strategy will be realized or that the Acquisitions will be successfully integrated.

If the Company's cash flow and capital resources are insufficient to fund its debt service obligations, the Company may be forced to reduce or delay capital expenditures, sell assets, or seek to obtain additional equity capital, or to refinance or restructure its debt. There can be no assurance that the Company's cash flow and capital resources will be sufficient for payment of principal of, and premium, if any, and interest on, its indebtedness in the future, or that any such alternative measures would be successful or would permit the Company to meet its scheduled debt service obligations. In addition, because the Company's obligations under the New Credit Facility will bear interest at floating rates, an increase in interest rates could adversely affect, among other things, the Company's ability to meet its debt service obligations.

Holding Company Structure; Subordination. The Debentures will be exclusively the obligations of Sunbeam Corporation and not of any of its subsidiaries. The Company is a holding company that conducts substantially all of its operations through its subsidiaries. As a holding company, the Company holds no significant assets other than its investments in and advances to its subsidiaries. The Company is, therefore, dependent upon its receipt of sufficient funds from its subsidiaries to meet its own obligations, including its obligation to pay the accreted value of the Debentures upon maturity or earlier redemption or repurchase. The ability of the Company's subsidiaries to pay dividends or to make other payments or advances to the Company will depend on the operating results of its subsidiaries and any restrictions on paying such dividends or making such payments as may be applicable to such subsidiaries, including those expected to be contained in the New Credit Facility.

The Debentures will be unsecured and subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future Senior Indebtedness of the Sunbeam Corporation. As a result of such subordination, in the event of bankruptcy, liquidation or reorganization of the Company and in certain other events, the assets of the Company will be available to pay its obligations with respect to the Debentures only after all Senior Indebtedness has been paid in full, and there may not be sufficient assets remaining to pay amounts due on any or all of the Debentures then outstanding. The Debentures will be expressly subordinated to borrowings under the New Credit Facility and will be also effectively subordinated to all existing and future indebtedness and other liabilities and commitments of the Company's subsidiaries. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will permit the Company to incur or guarantee additional indebtedness, subject to certain limitations. The Indenture does not prohibit or limit the incurrence of Senior Indebtedness by the Company or the incurrence of other indebtedness and other liabilities by the Company or its subsidiaries, and the incurrence of additional indebtedness and other liabilities by the Company or its subsidiaries could adversely affect the Company's ability to pay its obligations with respect to the Debentures. After giving pro forma effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing and the Offering, as of December 28, 1997 the Company would have had $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness outstanding, and as of the same date the Company's subsidiaries would have had approximately $731 million of indebtedness and other liabilities outstanding (excluding intercompany liabilities and liabilities of a type not required to be reflected on a balance sheet in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles) to which the Debentures would have been effectively subordinated. The Company anticipates that from time to time it will incur indebtedness, including Senior Indebtedness, and that it and its subsidiaries will from time to time incur other additional indebtedness and liabilities. See "Description of Debentures—Subordination of Debentures."

The Company expects that borrowings under the New Credit Facility will be, and the Company's and its subsidiaries' future indebtedness may be, secured by liens and other security interests over the assets of the Company's subsidiaries and the Company's equity interests in the Company's subsidiaries. Moreover, the Company expects the New Credit Facility will be guaranteed by each of the Company's wholly-owned U.S. subsidiaries and that such subsidiary guarantees will be secured as described above. The ability of the Company, and therefore the holders of the Debentures to benefit from distributions of assets of the Company's subsidiaries may be limited to the extent that the outstanding shares of any of its subsidiaries and such subsidiary's assets are pledged to secure other debt of the Company or its subsidiaries. Any right of the Company to receive assets of any subsidiary upon such subsidiary's liquidation or reorganization will be structurally subordinated to the claims of that subsidiary's creditors.

Risks Associated with Acquisitions. The Company faces significant risks associated with the recently announced acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert. The Company must, among other things, return these companies to profitable operations; realize synergies from combining these companies with the Company's current operations; integrate the products manufactured by these companies into its existing product lines; consolidate duplicate facilities, systems and personnel; improve the operating efficiencies of such companies; develop new products; and shorten the product development cycle of the acquired companies. This process will require substantial attention from the Company's management team. The diversion of the attention of management from the day-to-day operations of the Company or difficulties encountered in the integration process could have an adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition and results of operations, which effect could be material. In addition, consummation of the Acquisitions will result in a substantial increase in the size of the Company's operations placing challenges on the Company to effectively use its employees, management, operational and financial resources to manage the expanded operations of the Company. Failure to use such resources effectively could have a material adverse effect on the Company. Other potential risks of the Acquisitions include the presence of unknown liabilities and the possibility of the incurrence of significant charges associated with write-downs of the recorded values of assets acquired or restructurings of the acquired companies. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the Company will realize the desired benefits of these acquisitions.

Although the Company has entered into separate definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, subject to various customary closing conditions, there can be no assurance that any or all of such transactions will be consummated.

New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed. The Company has been advised by an affiliate of the Initial Purchaser that, subject to customary qualifications, it is highly confident that under current market and economic conditions the New Credit Facility can be successfully syndicated to financial institutions, and the Company is currently discussing the terms of the New Credit Facility with prospective lenders. While the Company is confident that it will be able to obtain the New Credit Facility on a timely basis to complete the Acquisitions, the Company has no commitments yet from lenders to provide the New Credit Facility. The offering of the Debentures is not conditioned upon the availability of the New Credit Facility and the Acquisitions are not conditioned on the availability of adequate financing. If the Company were unable to secure the New Credit Facility on a timely basis, the Company would be required to secure alternative financing sources to fund the Acquisitions or to delay the closing of the Acquisitions until funds became available.

Risks of International Operations and Expansion. The Company currently manufactures some products and has sales in countries such as Mexico and Venezuela whose economies have been unstable or hyperinflationary in recent years. The economies of other foreign countries important to the Company's expansion plans, including other countries in Latin America and Asia, could suffer similar instability in the future. Such factors as currency devaluation, new tariffs, changes in monetary policies, inflation, governmental instability and similar matters could negatively affect the Company's operations in foreign markets. Although the Company plans to take advantage of recent economic and currency fluctuations in certain Asian countries by increasing the Company's purchase of products from such countries at a lower price, there is no guarantee that such purchasing advantage will be fulfilled or will fully overcome any lost sales opportunities in those same countries. As a result, the economic conditions discussed above or any of these circumstances could have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

The Company's goal is to substantially increase the amount of business conducted by it outside North America. If the Company fails to achieve anticipated market penetration in areas of the world into which the Company currently expects to expand its sales, such event is likely to have an adverse effect on the Company's future financial performance, which effect could be material. Expansion of the Company's sales in foreign markets depends upon many factors, including economic conditions in foreign countries, the strength of consumer demand in those countries for products which the Company sells (or expects to sell in those markets), the strength of competition from other global consumer product companies and other factors which may negatively affect the Company's anticipated performance in those markets. Although the recent financial instability in Asia has not currently had any material impact on the Company, if such conditions continue and/or worsen they could negatively impact the Company's ability to achieve anticipated sales growth in such countries, the effect of which could be material to the Company's future financial performance.

Risks Associated with New Product Development. The Company's plans to increase its revenues depend on its ability to develop new and innovative products. The Company anticipates that it will be able to rapidly develop and introduce a substantial number of new and innovative products in the future. However, the Company may prove unable to meet its aggressive schedules for future product development. Failure to develop and manufacture new products that achieve market acceptance in the amounts and with the quality required by its customers would likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

Dependence on Key Personnel. The Company depends heavily on the services of its senior management, including Albert J. Dunlap, the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Russell A. Kersh, the Company's Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, David C. Fannin, the Company's Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, and Donald R. Uzzi, the Company's Executive Vice President, Consumer Products Worldwide. The loss of any member of the Company's senior management, including Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fannin or Mr. Uzzi, could have an adverse effect on the Company, which effect could be material. On February 20, 1998, each of Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin signed new three year employment contracts with the Company which include substantial equity-based compensation.

Economic Conditions The Company's performance should be expected to be affected by the strength of the retail economy, primarily in the United States, but also in Canada, Latin America and Asia and, subsequent to the consummation of the acquisition of Coleman, Europe. Weakness in consumer confidence and retail outlets (including the financial weakness or bankruptcy of retail outlets, especially mass merchants) should be expected to adversely impact the Company's future financial results. In addition, the extended credit terms provided by the Company in connection with its "early buy" program increase the Company's risk of collection of related accounts receivable

Competition. The Company operates in a highly competitive environment with numerous domestic and foreign competitors which are financially strong and capable of competing effectively with the Company in the marketplace. Such competitors may take actions to meet the Company's new product introductions and other initiatives. Some competitors may be willing to accept lower margins and to reduce prices to compete with the Company. As a result, the Company could fail to achieve anticipated sales increases, to realize anticipated price increases, or otherwise fail to meet its anticipated goals. Any of such circumstances would likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material. The Company's future success will depend to a significant extent upon its ability to remain competitive in the areas of price, quality, marketing, product development, manufacturing, distribution and order processing. There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to compete effectively in all such areas in the future.

The Company anticipates realizing price increases from time to time for certain of its products. The Company operates in a highly competitive industry, and its ability to realize price increases may be limited due to competitive pressures. If there is a material failure to realize anticipated price increases, margins likely will be lower than anticipated by the Company, and this will likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

The Company's profitability may be negatively impacted by under-absorption of manufacturing costs resulting from underutilization of manufacturing capacity if the Company's sales growth is less than anticipated.

No Long Term Contracts with Customers. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, warehouse clubs, department stores, home centers and hardware stores. Due to the consolidation of the U.S. retail industry, the Company's customer base is relatively concentrated with its largest customer Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. accounting for 21%, and its five largest customers accounting for 36%, of 1997 net sales. The Company's customers, including all of its large retail customers, place orders for products on an as-needed basis and have no long term supply contracts with the Company. As a result, the Company relies on its ability to obtain a continuing flow of new orders from its large, high-volume retailing customers. While the Company has positioned itself to respond to the challenges of its markets by pursuing strategic relationships with large high-volume merchandisers, there can be no assurance that the Company will continue to be able to successfully meet the needs of its customers.

Raw Material Costs. A significant portion of the cost of goods manufactured by the Company in North America is the cost of raw materials and/or components. The Company has implemented changes in its purchasing function which have enabled the Company to purchase materials more efficiently and economically than it has in the past. The future success of the Company's purchasing initiatives may be affected by many factors beyond the Company's control, such as commodity pricing generally and higher prices for the specific materials required by the Company. Although there are numerous suppliers available for the materials and components sourced by the Company, any unanticipated change in suppliers could be disruptive and costly to the Company. In addition, the Company's future initiatives to reduce the cost of materials simply may not achieve savings in amounts comparable to those previously obtained by the Company. A significant failure by the Company to maintain material costs as anticipated would likely have an adverse effect on anticipated future financial performance, which effect could be material.

Dependence on Third-Party Suppliers and Service Providers. The Company currently manufactures approximately 70% of its products. One of the Company's goals for 1998 is to source approximately 50% of the Company's parts and/or products from third parties. The Company's ability to realize sales and operating profits at anticipated levels is dependent upon its ability to timely manufacture, source and deliver products which may be sold for a profit. Labor difficulties, delays in delivery or pricing of raw materials and/or sourced products, scheduling and transportation difficulties, management dislocation and delays in development and manufacture of new products can negatively affect operating profits. Although the Company will use its best efforts to select suppliers for sourced products which are reliable and dependable, the Company's planned increase in the percentage of sourced products will decrease the Company's immediate control of products and, if such suppliers fail to deliver products as anticipated, could have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

The Company has entered into various arrangements with third parties for the provision of back-office administrative services previously provided with internal resources, including provision of all necessary computer systems. Failure of any of these third-party service providers to perform in accordance with their respective agreements with the Company could result in disruptions of the Company's normal business operations with a consequent impact on sales, collections, cash flow and/or profitability.

Seasonality. Sales of certain of the Company's products can be negatively impacted by unseasonable weather conditions during different seasons and quarters of the year. For instance, the Company's sales of warming blankets were negatively impacted in the fourth quarter of 1997 by moderate temperatures in the northern states. The Company has attempted to levelize production, marketing and other activities related to seasonal products by implementing an "early buy" program; such a program shifts certain of the weather related risks of negative sales impact for such seasonal products to later months of the season and, as result, could have a negative impact on future financial performance.

Litigation. As a consumer goods distributor, the Company's results of operations can be negatively impacted by product liability lawsuits, product recall actions and/or by higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods. Certain of the product lines to be acquired in the Acquisitions may increase the Company's potential exposure to litigation.

Limitations on Repurchases and Redemptions of Debentures. On March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013 (each, a "Purchase Date"), the Company will become obligated to purchase, at the option of the holder thereof, outstanding Debentures, subject to certain conditions. In addition, upon a Fundamental Change, each holder of the Debentures will have the right, at the holder's option, to require the Company to redeem all or a portion of such holder's Debentures. There can be no assurance that the Company will have sufficient funds to pay the repurchase price on any Purchase Date (in which case, the Company could be required to issue shares of Common Stock to pay the repurchase price at valuations based on then prevailing market prices) or, in the event of a Fundamental Change, the redemption price for all the Debentures tendered by the holders thereof. The New Credit Facility is expected to contain, and future agreements relating to other indebtedness (including Senior Indebtedness) to which the Company becomes a party may contain, restrictions or prohibitions on the repurchase or redemption of the Debentures. It is also expected that the New Credit Facility will prohibit the purchase of the Debentures by the Company in the event of a Fundamental Change, unless and until such time as the indebtedness under the New Credit Facility is paid in full. In addition, it is expected that the New Credit Facility will prohibit the Company's right to purchase Debentures on a Purchase Date for cash, but will not prohibit the purchase of Debentures with Common Stock. If a Purchase Date occurs at a time when the Company is prohibited from repurchasing the Debentures for cash or the Company is prohibited from redeeming the Debentures after the occurrence of a Fundamental Change, the Company could seek the consent of its then existing lenders to repurchase or redeem the Debentures or could attempt to refinance the borrowings that contain such prohibition. If the Company does not obtain such a consent or repay such borrowings, the Company would remain prohibited from repurchasing the Debentures for cash or redeeming the Debentures. In such case, the Company's failure to repurchase or redeem Debentures required to be repurchased or redeemed under the terms of the Indenture would constitute an Event of Default under the Indenture and would likely constitute a default under the New Credit Facility and may also constitute a default under any other indebtedness of the Company outstanding at such time. In addition, it is expected that the occurrence of a Fundamental Change would constitute a default under the New Credit Facility and might constitute a default under other future indebtedness of the Company. In such circumstances, the subordination provisions in the Indenture would likely prohibit or restrict payments to the holders of Debentures. The inability to repay the indebtedness under the New Credit Facility, if accelerated, would have a material adverse effect on the Company and the holders of the Debentures. The term "Fundamental Change" is limited to certain specified transactions and does not include all events that could adversely affect the Company's financial condition or operating results. The requirement that the Company offer to redeem the Debentures upon a Fundamental Change will not necessarily protect holders of the Debentures in the event of a highly leveraged transaction, reorganization, merger or similar transaction involving the Company. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change."

Proposed Tax Legislation. On February 2, 1998, the Clinton Administration announced a legislative proposal (the "Administration Proposal") that would generally defer interest deductions for original issue discount on convertible debt, such as the Debentures, until such interest is paid in cash or other property. Payment would not include the conversion of such debt into equity of the issuer or the payment of an amount which is determined by reference to the value of the Common Stock. The Administration Proposal would be effective for convertible debt issued on or after the date of "first committee action." If enacted in its current form and if "first committee action" is taken with respect to the Administration Proposal on or before the date on which the Debentures are issued, such legislation would apply to the Debentures and the original issue discount accruing in respect of the Debentures would not be deductible by the Company for federal income tax purposes. Nevertheless, it is not possible to predict when or if the Administration Proposal will be enacted, or, if enacted, what form it may take. The federal income tax treatment of holders of Debentures would not be affected by the Administration Proposal if enacted in its current form.

Certain Tax Consequences to the Company. Section 279 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code") limits the deductibility of interest paid or incurred with respect to certain convertible debt incurred to finance the acquisition of stock of another corporation if such debt constitutes "corporate acquisition indebtedness." It is possible that the Internal Revenue Service could take the position that, as a result of the Acquisitions, the Debentures should be treated as "corporate acquisition indebtedness," which position, if sustained, could limit the Company's ability to deduct all or a portion of the original issue discount on the Debentures. Although the issue is not free from doubt, the Company believes that section 279 of the Code should not limit the Company's ability to deduct original issue discount.

Absence of a Public Market. Prior to the Offering, there has been no trading market for the Debentures. Although the Initial Purchaser has advised the Company that it currently intends to make a market in the Debentures, it is not obligated to do so and may discontinue such market making at any time without notice. In addition, such market making activity will be subject to the limits imposed by the Securities Act and the Exchange Act. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that any market for the Debentures will develop or, if one does develop, that it will be maintained. If an active market for the Debentures fails to develop or be sustained, the trading price of the Debentures could be adversely affected.

The Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act and, unless and until so registered, may not be offered or sold except pursuant to an exemption from, or in a transaction not subject to, registration under the Securities Act and applicable state securities laws. See "Registration Rights," "Plan of Distribution" and "Transfer Restrictions."

Initial Ratings Risks. The Company believes it is likely that one or more rating agencies may rate the Debentures. There can be no assurance that any such agency or agencies will rate the Debentures or, if they do, what rating or ratings they will assign to the Debentures. If one or more rating agencies assign the Debentures a rating lower than generally expected by investors, such event would likely have an adverse effect on the market price of the Debentures.

Restrictions on Ability to Pay Dividends. The New Credit Facility is expected to restrict the payment of dividends unless certain financial ratios are achieved. In addition, the Company may in the future issue additional indebtedness which contains similar restrictions.

In addition to the limitations imposed on the payment of dividends by the New Credit Facility and any future agreements governing indebtedness of the Company, under Delaware law the Company is permitted to pay dividends on its capital stock only out of its surplus or, in the event that it has no surplus, out of its net profits for the year in which a dividend is declared or for the immediately preceding fiscal year. Surplus is defined as the excess of a company's total assets over the sum of its total liabilities plus the par value of its outstanding capital stock. In order to pay dividends in cash, the Company must have surplus or net profits equal to the full amount of cash dividend at the time such dividend is declared. In determining the Company's ability to pay dividends, Delaware law permits the board of directors of the Company to revalue the Company's assets and liabilities from time to time to their fair market values in order to create surplus. The Company cannot predict what the value of its assets or the amount of its liabilities will be in the future and, accordingly, there can be no assurance that the Company will be able to pay cash dividends on the Common Stock.

THE ACQUISITIONS

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced the signing of separate definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert. The three transactions are subject to customary conditions, including the receipt of required regulatory approvals, and are expected to close early this spring of 1998.

The Company is acquiring these companies primarily due to their strong and established brand names, the potential opportunity to streamline operations, the diversification they provide to the Company's product base and the potential for revenue and operational synergies. In addition, the Company believes that its existing international geographic marketing and distribution strengths and those of the acquired companies will significantly complement each other. The Company's management team believes that these Acquisitions give the Company a platform from which to capitalize on the fragmentation and potential consolidation of the durable household consumer products sector.

Coleman

With 1997 net revenues of approximately $1,154 million, Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Its products have been sold domestically and internationally under the Coleman brand name since the 1920s. Coleman attributes its leading market position to the strength of its brand name, and breadth of products sold, product quality and innovation, marketing, distribution and manufacturing expertise.

- Outdoor Recreation: This product category includes lanterns and stoves, propane and butane fuel, coolers and jugs, recreational soft goods (including tents, sleeping bags, backpacks and duffle bags), outdoor furniture, electric lights, spas and camping accessories. Coleman believes it is the leading worldwide manufacturer of lanterns and stoves for outdoor recreational use and is a leading supplier to the worldwide camping and outdoor recreation market of propane and butane cartridges and camping fuel. Coleman's products are marketed under the brand names Coleman®, Camping Gaz® and East Pak®.
- Hardware: Following the divestiture of the safety and security products business anticipated in March 1998, this product category will include portable generators and air compressors marketed under the Powermate® brand name. Coleman is a leading worldwide manufacturer and distributor of portable generators. These products are distributed predominantly through mass merchandisers and home center chains.

The following table summarizes Coleman's net revenues for the year ended December 31, 1997 by product category and geographic area (in millions):

First Alert

With 1997 net sales of approximately $187 million, First Alert is the market leader in smoke and carbon monoxide detectors in the United States. First Alert's market position is supported by the strength of the First Alert® brand name, which First Alert believes is the most widely recognized consumer brand in the home safety market. The markets for residential smoke and carbon monoxide detectors outside the United States are in a much earlier stage of development than the United States. First Alert's market penetration is greatest in the United Kingdom and Canada. First Alert sells its products to mass merchants, home center and hardware chains, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, and electrical wholesale distributors. First Alert also supplies its products to its wholly-owned, non-U.S. subsidiaries and to independent foreign distributors.

Acquisition Structures and Agreements

The Acquisitions will be accounted for by the Company using the purchase method of accounting.

Coleman. Pursuant to an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Holdings Merger Agreement"), among the Company, Laser Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company ("LAC"), Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Parent Holdings"), and CLN Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Parent Holdings ("CLN Holdings"), LAC will be merged with and into CLN Holdings (the "Holdings Merger"). CLN Holdings is an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of Mafco Holdings, Inc., a corporation wholly owned by Ronald O. Perelman ("Mafco"), and is the indirect beneficial owner of 44,067,520 shares of common stock of Coleman, representing approximately 82.4% of the total number of outstanding shares of common stock of Coleman.

In the Holdings Merger, all of the outstanding shares of capital stock of CLN Holdings will be converted into the right to receive (i) 14,099,749 fully paid and nonassessable shares of Common Stock of the Company and (ii) $159,956,756 in cash, without interest thereon. As a result of the Holdings Merger, CLN Holdings will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company and the Company will become the indirect owner of 82.4% of the outstanding common stock of Coleman.

At the same time that it entered into the Holdings Merger Agreement, the Company also entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Coleman Merger Agreement"), with Coleman and Camper Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company ("CAC"). Pursuant to the Coleman Merger Agreement, following the consummation of the Holdings Merger, CAC will be merged with and into Coleman (the "Coleman Merger"), with Coleman continuing as the surviving corporation. In the Coleman Merger, each outstanding share of Coleman common stock (other than shares held indirectly by the Company and dissenting shares, if any) will be converted into the right to receive (i) 0.5677 of a share of Common Stock of the Company and (ii) $6.44 in cash, without interest thereon. Upon consummation of the Coleman Merger, Coleman will become an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of the Company.

Consummation of the Holdings Merger is subject to the expiration of the applicable waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended (the "HSR Act"), and the satisfaction of certain other customary conditions. It is currently anticipated that the Holdings Merger will be completed in early this spring of 1998. Consummation of the Coleman Merger is subject to the completion of the Holdings Merger and the preparation and filing of definitive documents with the Commission. It is anticipated that the Coleman Merger will be consummated this spring of 1998. Parent Holdings (the direct holder of all outstanding stock of CLN Holdings) and Coleman Worldwide Corporation (the direct holder of 82.4% of the outstanding common stock of Coleman) have approved the Holdings Merger and the Coleman Merger, respectively, and no other stockholder approvals will be required in connection therewith.

Based on the assumption that all presently exercisable Coleman options will be exercised prior to the closing of the Coleman acquisition, the Company expects to issue (and deliver from its treasury) approximately 21.3 million shares of Common Stock (with an aggregate value of approximately $1 billion based on current market prices) and to pay an aggregate of $221 million in cash in connection with the Coleman acquisition. On such basis, the Coleman acquisition is valued at approximately $2.2 billion (including the assumption of approximately $976 million of indebtedness). If none of the presently exercisable Coleman options are exercised prior to closing of the Coleman acquisition, the Company would expect to issue and deliver approximately 19.4 million shares of Common Stock and pay aggregate cash consideration of $261 million in connection with the Coleman acquisition.

Signature Brands. Pursuant to the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 28, 1998 (the "Signature Brands Merger Agreement"), among the Company, Java Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company ("Java Acquisition"), and Signature Brands, Java Acquisition commenced a tender offer (the "Signature Brands Tender Offer") on March 6, 1998 to acquire all of the outstanding shares of common stock of Signature Brands (the "Signature Brands Common Stock") for $8.25 per share in cash. Java Acquisition's obligation to purchase shares of Signature Brands Common Stock is subject to there being validly tendered and not withdrawn prior to the expiration of the Signature Brands Tender Offer that number of shares which when added to any shares owned by the Company or Java Acquisition represents at least 51% of the outstanding shares of Signature Brands Common Stock (assuming exercise of all outstanding options and warrants) on the date shares are accepted for payment. In addition, Java Acquisition's obligation to purchase shares of Signature Brands Common Stock is conditioned upon the expiration or termination of the applicable waiting period under the HSR Act prior to the expiration of the Signature Brands Tender Offer and certain other customary conditions.

Pursuant to the Signature Brands Merger Agreement, following the expiration of the Signature Brands Tender Offer, which is initially scheduled to expire at midnight on April 2, 1998, unless extended, and any necessary Signature Brands stockholder approval and provided that Java Acquisition has purchased shares of Signature Brands Common Stock in the Signature Brands Tender Offer and certain other customary conditions are met, Java Acquisition will be merged with and into Signature Brands (the "Signature Brands Merger"), with Signature Brands as the surviving corporation. As a result of the Signature Brands Merger, Signature Brands will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company and each outstanding share of Signature Brands Common Stock, which is not owned by Signature Brands or any of its subsidiaries or the Company or any of its subsidiaries, other than shares with respect to which dissenter's rights have been exercised and perfected, will be converted into the right to receive $8.25 in cash.

Timing of consummation of the Signature Brands Merger is dependent, among other things, upon whether the Signature Brands Tender Offer is extended beyond its initial expiration date and whether, depending on the number of shares tendered and accepted for payment, Signature Brands stockholder approval of the Signature Brands Merger will be required. It is anticipated, however, that the Signature Brands Merger will be consummated early this spring of 1998.

First Alert. Pursuant to an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 28, 1998 (the "First Alert Merger Agreement"), among the Company, Sentinel Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of the Company ("Sentinel Acquisition"), and First Alert, Sentinel Acquisition commenced a tender offer (the "First Alert Tender Offer") on March 6, 1998 to acquire all of the outstanding shares of common stock of First Alert (the "First Alert Common Stock"), for $5.25 per share in cash.

Sentinel Acquisition's obligation to purchase shares of First Alert Common Stock is subject to there being validly tendered and not withdrawn prior to the expiration of the First Alert Tender Offer that number of shares which when added to any shares owned by the Company or Sentinel Acquisition represents at least a majority of the outstanding shares of First Alert Common Stock (assuming exercise of all outstanding options) on the date shares are accepted for payment. In addition, Sentinel Acquisition's obligation to purchase shares of First Alert Common Stock is conditioned upon the expiration or termination of the applicable waiting period under the HSR Act prior to the expiration of the First Alert Tender Offer and certain other customary conditions.

Pursuant to the First Alert Merger Agreement, following the expiration of the First Alert Tender Offer, which is initially scheduled to expire at midnight on April 2, 1998, unless extended, and any necessary First Alert stockholder approval, and provided that Sentinel Acquisition has purchased shares of First Alert Common Stock in the First Alert Tender Offer and certain other customary conditions are met, Sentinel Acquisition will be merged with and into First Alert (the "First Alert Merger"), with First Alert as the surviving corporation. As a result of the First Alert Merger, First Alert will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company and each outstanding share of First Alert Common Stock, which is not owned by First Alert or any of its subsidiaries or the Company or any of its subsidiaries, or other than shares with respect to which dissenter's rights have been exercised and perfected, will be converted into the right to receive $5.25 in cash.

Timing of consummation of the First Alert Merger is dependent, among other things, upon whether the First Alert Tender Offer is extended beyond its initial expiration date and whether, depending on the number of shares tendered and accepted for payment, First Alert stockholder approval will be required, which would require the preparation and filing of definitive documents with the Commission. It is anticipated, however, that the First Alert Merger will be consummated early this spring of 1998.

Although the Company has entered into separate definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, subject to various customary closing conditions, there can be no assurance that any or all of such transactions will be consummated.

FINANCING PLAN AND USE OF PROCEEDS

The net proceeds from the Offering are expected to be $726.6 million ($835.7 million if the Initial Purchaser's overallotment option is exercised in full), after deducting discounts and commissions and expenses related to the sale of the Debentures. The net proceeds from the Offering, together with the Bank Financing, will be used to finance the Acquisitions and related transactions.

The Company intends to repay all or substantially all of the currently outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert as promptly as practicable following consummation of each Acquisition, subject to applicable notice provisions and other prepayment terms of the applicable indebtedness. Such repayments are expected to be funded with borrowings under the New Credit Facility and from the net proceeds of the Offering. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

The following table sets forth the expected sources and uses of cash in connection with the financing of the Acquisitions:

Sources		Uses
	(In millions)
New Credit Facility(a)	$1,294.3	Repayment of existing indebtedness(b)	$1,504.3
Debentures offered hereby	750.1	Cash Acquisition consideration(c)	477.6
		Fees and expenses(d)	62.5
Total	$2,044.4	Total	$2,044.4

(a) The New Credit Facility is expected to consist of a $1.5 billion term debt facility and a $500 million revolving credit facility. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

(b) Represents the repayment of existing indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Signature Brands, and First Alert in the amount of $202.2 million, $1,077.2 million, $179.9 million and $45.0 million, respectively. Existing indebtedness reflects amounts outstanding as of December 28, 1997, except for indebtedness of CLN Holdings issued at an original issue discount which reflects principal accreted through an assumed repayment date of May 15, 1998. The foregoing amounts include $7.0 million, $100.3 million and $5.5 million of estimated prepayment premiums related to the early retirement of indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings and Signature Brands, respectively. As of the actual date of repayment, the outstanding amount of existing indebtedness to be repaid is likely to be greater than the amount shown above due to increased borrowings to finance working capital requirements. The Company intends to refinance any such additional indebtedness using its unused borrowing capacity under the New Credit Facility. In particular, as of March 16, 1998 the outstanding indebtedness of the Company and CLN Holdings had increased by approximately $100 million and $60 million, respectively. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

(c) Represents the estimated net cash consideration payable (including the cash-out of options) in connection with the Acquisitions in the amounts of $261.1 million, $83.8 million and $132.7 million for Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, respectively.

(d) Represents estimated transaction costs in connection with the Acquisitions and debt refinancing, including financial advisory fees, Initial Purchaser's commissions, bank fees, and legal and accounting fees and expenses.

For a description of the expected terms of the New Credit Facility and other indebtedness of the Company, see "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility" and the Notes to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum. UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The following unaudited pro forma condensed balance sheet as of December 28, 1997 was prepared to illustrate the estimated effects of (i) the Acquisitions, accounted for under the purchase method of accounting, (ii) the Bank Financing, (iii) the Offering and (iv) the use of net proceeds from the Offering and from the Bank Financing as described under "Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds" (collectively, the "Pro Forma Transactions"), as if the Pro Forma Transactions had occurred on December 28, 1997. The following unaudited pro forma statement of operations for the year ended December 28, 1997 was prepared to illustrate the estimated effects of the Pro Forma Transactions as if they had occurred as of December 30, 1996.

The fiscal year of the Company ended on December 28, 1997 and the fiscal years of CLN Holdings and First Alert ended on December 31, 1997. The fiscal year of Signature Brands ended on September 28, 1997. The unaudited pro forma condensed financial statements have been derived from the audited financial statements of the Company as of and for the year ended December 28, 1997, the audited financial statements of CLN Holdings and First Alert as of and for the year ended December 31, 1997 and the unaudited financial statements of Signature Brands as of and for the year ended December 31, 1997. The unaudited statement of operations of Signature Brands for the year ended December 31, 1997 has been derived from the audited statement of operations for the year ended September 28, 1997 and the unaudited statements of operations from the thirteen weeks ended December 31, 1997 and December 31, 1996 in order to present Signature Brands operating results on a basis consistent with the Company's fiscal year.

The pro forma condensed financial statements were prepared utilizing the accounting principles of the respective entities as outlined in each entity's historical financial statements. Certain reclassifications were made to sales, cost of sales and selling, general and administrative expenses as reported in the historical financial statements of CLN Holdings, First Alert and Signature Brands to conform to the classifications of the Company as follows:

	Decrease
	Sales	Cost of Sales	Selling, General and Administrative
	(In thousands)
CLN Holdings	$(71,488)	$(63,886)	$(7,602)
First Alert	(9,902)	(4,760)	(5,142)
Signature Brands	(23,171)	(3,725)	(19,446)

Included in the historical Statement of Operations of CLN Holdings are cash and non-cash restructuring and other charges totaling $36.4 million and related tax benefits of $13.9 million. These costs have been allocated to cost of goods sold and selling, general and administration expense in the amounts of $19.5 million and $16.9 million, respectively. These costs primarily relate to closing and relocating certain administrative and sales offices, closing several manufacturing facilities, write-down of inventory and fixed assets, as well as severance costs. Additionally, the expense of the early extinguishment of debt of $15.2 million shown on the CLN Holdings' historical statement of operations has been excluded from the unaudited pro forma condensed statement of operations.

The pro forma adjustments are based upon available information and certain assumptions that the Company believes are reasonable under the circumstances. For purposes of developing the unaudited pro forma condensed financial statements, the assets and liabilities of CLN Holdings, First Alert and Signature Brands have been recorded at historical cost. The allocation of purchase price for the Acquisitions will be revised when additional information concerning asset and liability valuations is obtained. Adjustments, which could be significant, will be made during the allocation period based on detailed reviews of the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed and could result in a substantial increase in goodwill. The pro forma condensed financial statements do not include a one-time after-tax $30 million first quarter 1998 charge by the Company related to the execution of new employment contracts with the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company as further discussed in Note 14 of the Company's audited financial statements for the year ended December 28, 1997 or any adjustments for potential synergies or cost savings as a result of the Acquisitions.

The unaudited pro forma financial statements should be read in conjunction with "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations," the financial statements of each of the Company, CLN Holdings, First Alert and Signature Brands and the notes thereto, and the other financial information included elsewhere or incorporated by reference in this Offering Memorandum. This pro forma financial information is provided for informational purposes only and does not purport to be indicative of the results of operations or financial position which would have been obtained had the Pro Forma Transactions been completed on the dates indicated or the financial condition or results of operations for any future date or period

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

Year Ended December 28, 1997 Compared to the Year Ended December 29, 1996

In November 1996, the Company initiated a major restructuring and growth plan designed to substantially reduce its cost structure and grow the business in order to restore higher levels of profitability for the Company. By July 1997, the Company completed the major phases of the restructuring plan. The $225.0 million of annualized cost savings anticipated from the restructuring results primarily from the consolidation of administrative functions within the Company, the rationalization of manufacturing and warehouse facilities (including a reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and warehouses from 61 to 18), the elimination of over 6,000 positions (including 3,300 from the divestiture of non-core businesses described below and approximately 2,800 other positions), the centralization of the Company's procurement function and re-negotiation of supply contracts resulting in procurement savings for raw materials, components and sourced finished products and the reduction of the Company's product offerings and stock keeping units ("SKU's"). The restructuring and growth plan also included a redefinition of the Company's core product categories and the elimination of those businesses and product lines that did not fit the core categories. Sunbeam's core product categories are Appliances, Health at Home, Personal Care and Comfort, Outdoor Cooking and Away From Home. Product categories and businesses determined to be non-core were divested in 1997, including the Company's furniture business and its time and temperature, decorative bedding and Counselor® and Borg® scale product lines. In addition, the Company sold its textile mill in Biddeford, Maine in 1997.

Net sales from continuing operations for 1997 were $1,168.2 million, an increase of $183.9 million or 18.7% over 1996. Net sales on a normalized basis, after excluding divested product lines which are not classified as discontinued operations (time and temperature products, decorative bedding and Counselor® and Borg® branded scales), increased 22.4% during the year.

Global sales, on a normalized basis, increased during 1997 in all five of the Company's product categories primarily from new product introductions, improved distribution (particularly with the Company's top ten customers), international geographic expansion and improved price realization for certain products. Global sales growth on a normalized basis exceeded 25% in the Appliance, Outdoor Cooking and Away From Home categories with sales increases of 26.8%, 27.2% and 28.6%, respectively. Sales in the Health at Home category increased 10.7% on a normalized basis and sales in the Personal Care and Comfort category increased 3.4% during 1997.

The Company's Appliance category sales increases were driven by new products, such as re-designed blenders and mixers, coffeemakers, irons, deep fryers and toasters, and by increased distribution with large national mass retailers. Sales of Outdoor Cooking products increased in 1997 after three straight years of declines as a result of increased merchandising and advertising programs, new distribution and the introduction of an entirely new line of grills and accessories for the 1998 season that began to ship in the fourth quarter of 1997 under a new "early buy" marketing program that included, among other things, extended credit terms with due dates in the second quarter of 1998. The Company sold approximately $50.0 million of Outdoor Cooking Products under this program in the fourth quarter of 1997. The early buy program for Outdoor Cooking products is designed to improve customer service levels and production efficiencies with more level seasonal production and distribution activities that have historically peaked in the first half of each year and to drive additional retail sell-through of Outdoor Cooking products by reducing the likelihood of retail stock-outs during the important first and second quarter 1998 selling season.

Sales of Personal Care and Comfort products were up over 30% through September 1997, but suffered during the fourth quarter as a result of lower than expected retail sell-through of electric blankets in key northern markets in late 1997 coupled with the inability to service demand for king and queen sized blankets due to shortages of blanket shells. The Company anticipates shifting to a more level production for blankets in 1998 in order to more adequately service the seasonal demand for bedding products. Health at Home category sales increased as a result of new products and improved distribution in the drug channels. Away From Home sales increased in 1997 as a result of new products, including cordless clippers and titanium blades, coupled with increased distribution of commercially rated appliances. Also contributing to the Company's sales growth in 1997 were its new retail outlet stores, of which 22 were open by the end of 1997.

International sales, which represented 21% of total revenues in 1997, grew 31.2% during the year. This sales growth was driven primarily by 54 new 220 volt product introductions and the execution of 25 new international distribution and license agreements. Revenue growth of approximately 34% was achieved both in Mexico and by the Company's Latin American export sales organization, and sales in Venezuela and Canada increased approximately 23% each. European sales fell slightly in 1997, however the Company expects that expanded electric blanket and clipper sales along with the help of additional new distribution agreements will benefit European sales in 1998.

The gross margin percentage for 1997 increased 19.8 percentage points to 28.3%. This increase reflects the results of many cost savings and margin enhancement initiatives undertaken as part of the Company's restructuring plan coupled with the incremental margin attributable to new products and higher revenues associated with the Company's growth plan. The Company initiated a manufacturing refinement program in the second quarter of 1997 targeted at aggressively improving factory productivity at all of its remaining operations, including the Neosho, Missouri Outdoor Cooking Products facility which suffered from poor productivity and operating inefficiencies during the 1997 grill season. The benefits of the refinement program began to favorably impact factory productivity in several factories during the third quarter of 1997. The refinement of the Neosho facility, which was completed prior to the initiation of production for the 1998 grill season in the fourth quarter, included a revised plant layout to improve material flow, increased usage of common parts in the manufacturing process and modifications to the paint system to increase capacity and throughput.

Operating earnings for 1997 were $199.4 million, an increase of $195.0 million over 1996, excluding the impact of the 1996 special charge. As a percentage of sales, the operating margin of 17.1% increased 16.6 percentage points above last year's operating margin, excluding 1996 special charges. The operating margin improvements for 1997 were the result of the improved gross margin discussed above and lower selling, general and administrative ("SG&A") costs in 1997 associated with the consolidation of six divisional and regional headquarters into one corporate headquarters and one administrative operations center, reduced staffing levels, the outsourcing of certain administrative and distribution functions, a reduction in the number of warehouses, and Company wide cost control initiatives. In addition, SG&A during 1996 included incremental compensation costs associated with restricted stock awards and other costs related to the employment of a new senior management team, higher than normal expenditures for market research, packaging and other initiatives related to the launch of the Company's growth plan, and higher bad debt expenses associated with certain of the Company's customers. The cost reduction initiatives and one time items in 1996 coupled with increased sales in 1997 resulted in SG&A decreasing as a percentage of sales from 17.4% in 1996 (excluding the impact of special charges) to 11.2% for 1997.

Interest expense decreased from $13.6 million in 1996 to $11.4 million in 1997 primarily as a result of lower average borrowing levels in 1997 due to improved cash flows.

The effective income tax rate of 35% for 1997 and 1996 for earnings (loss) from continuing operations was lower than the statutory federal and state rates as a result of lower foreign taxes from the utilization of foreign tax credits and loss carryforwards and lower state income taxes as a result of certain state income tax credits.

The Company's diluted earnings per share from continuing operations was $1.41 per share versus a loss per share from continuing operations in 1996 of $2.37. The Company's share base utilized in the diluted earnings per share calculation increased approximately 6% during 1997 as a result of an increase in the number of shares of common stock and common stock equivalents outstanding due to the exercise of stock options and a higher market value of the Company's common stock in 1997.

The Company's discontinued furniture operations, which were sold in March 1997, had revenues of $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997 prior to the sale and break-even earnings. In 1996, the discontinued furniture operations had net income of $.8 million on revenues of $227.5 million and an estimated loss on disposal of the business of $32.4 million, net of applicable income tax benefits. The sale of the Company's furniture business assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment) was completed in March 1997

The Company received $69 million in cash and retained accounts receivable related to the furniture business of approximately $50.0 million as of the closing date The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, the Company recorded an additional loss on disposal of $13 7 million, net of income tax benefits. See discussion of Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in Note 8 and Discontinued Operations and Assets Held For Sale in Note 9 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum for further information regarding the individual components of the 1996 special charge and details of the 1997 activity in the Company's restructuring accrual.

The Company's operating results for 1996 include the effects of a pre-tax special charge of $337.6 million recorded in conjunction with the implementation of its restructuring and growth plan announced in November 1996. Approximately 20% of the charge was for cash items primarily for severance costs and lease and other facility exit costs. The special charge to earnings in 1996 is included in the following categories on the consolidated statement of operations:

	Pre-tax Dollar Amount	After-tax Per Share Amount
	(In millions)
Restructuring, impairment and other costs	$154.9	$(1.21)
Cost of sales	92.3	(0.72)
Selling, general and administrative	42.5	(0.33)
Estimated loss from discontinued operations	47.9	(0.39)
Total	$337.6	$(2.65)

Net sales from continuing operations of $984.2 million for 1996 represents a decrease of $32.7 million, or 3.2%, from 1995. The Company experienced a loss from continuing operations of $196.7 million or $2.37 per share for 1996 versus earnings from continuing operations of $37.6 million or $.45 per share (diluted) in 1995 primarily as a result of the restructuring activities discussed above. The net loss for 1996 was $228.3 million, or $2.75 per share, compared to net earnings of $50.5 million, or $0.61 per share (diluted), for 1995. Excluding the impact of special charge items for 1996, earnings from continuing operations before income taxes decreased from $60.6 million in 1995 to a loss of $12.9 million in 1996.

Domestic sales represented approximately 80% of total sales of the Company in 1996 and decreased $28.5 million or 3.4% from 1995. This sales decline was driven by lower sales of outdoor cooking products, which declined 7.3% and lower sales of bedding products which declined 9.0% from 1995, primarily as a result of lower decorative bedding sales (divested in December 1996). Domestic sales of appliance products were flat with sales increases from new products such as vegetable steamers and toaster ovens being offset by reduced pricing on breadmakers. Sales of other product categories such as health and personal care products and time and temperature products (divested in March 1997) were either flat or declined slightly from 1995 levels.

International sales decreased $4.2 million or 2.2% from 1995 primarily as a result of lower sales in Latin America due to political and/or economic instability in several countries such as Ecuador, Peru, Columbia and Venezuela (which suffered a bolivar devaluation in April 1996), a sales decline of 11.2% in Canada as a result of the bankruptcy filing of the Company's then largest Canadian customer offset by a 55.0% increase in sales in Mexico as a result of a more stable economic environment in 1996.

The Company's gross margin percentage, excluding the impact of special charges, was 17.9% of sales in 1996, down from 20.4% in 1995, primarily from the underabsorption of higher manufacturing costs and excess manufacturing capacity that has been realigned for 1997 and beyond by the Company's restructuring and growth plan cost reduction initiatives.

SG&A expenses, excluding the impact of special charges described above, were 17.6% of sales in 1996 primarily as a result of an inflated cost structure that has been realigned for 1997 and beyond. In addition, a $12.0 million fourth quarter 1996 media advertising campaign and one-time expenditures for market research, new packaging, and other growth plan initiatives resulted in higher than normal SG&A spending in 1996. Also included in 1996 SG&A costs were $7.7 million of compensation expense resulting from restricted stock awards made in connection with the employment of a new senior management team.

Interest expense for 1996 increased from $9.4 million in 1995 to $13.6 million as a result of increased indebtedness of the Company for working capital requirements and non-recurring capitalized interest in 1995 related to the construction of the Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing and distribution center

The effective income tax rate for 1996 decreased 3 percentage points from 1995 to 35.0% as a result of certain foreign and state operating losses for which no tax benefits were recorded and the non-deductibility of compensation expense related to restricted stock awards.

The Company's discontinued furniture operations had revenues of $227.5 million in 1996, up 22.6% from $185.6 million in 1995. This revenue growth was the result of the acquisition of the Samsonite® furniture business in November 1995. Excluding the impact of this acquisition, furniture business sales declined 2.1%. Earnings from the discontinued furniture operations, net of taxes, declined from $12.9 million in 1995 to $.8 million in 1996 primarily as a result of lower gross margins from reduced pricing, underabsorption of higher manufacturing costs and higher raw material costs. In addition, SG&A costs increased due to the inclusion of the Samsonite® furniture business, higher distribution and warehousing costs, particularly with resin furniture products and higher bad debt expenses.

Foreign Operations

During 1997 approximately 90% of the Company's business was conducted in U.S. dollars (including both domestic sales, U.S. dollar denominated export sales primarily to certain Latin American markets, Asian sales and the majority of European sales). The Company's exposure to market risk from changes in foreign currency and interest rates is generally insignificant. The Company's non-U.S. dollar denominated sales are made principally by subsidiaries in Mexico, Venezuela and Canada. Venezuela is considered a hyperinflationary economy for accounting purposes for 1995, 1996 and 1997 and Mexico reverted to hyperinflationary status for accounting purposes in 1997; therefore, translation adjustments related to Venezuelan and Mexican net monetary assets are included as a component of net earnings. Such translation adjustments were not material to 1995, 1996 and 1997 operating results.

On a limited basis, the Company selectively uses derivatives (foreign exchange option and forward contracts) to manage foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. No derivative contracts are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's financial results in 1995, 1996 and 1997. See Note 4 to the Company's consolidated financial statements.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

As of December 28, 1997, the Company had cash and cash equivalents of $52.4 million and total debt of $195.2 million. Cash used in operating activities during 1997 was $8.2 million compared to $14.2 million provided by operating activities in 1996. This decrease is primarily attributable to an increase in earnings before non-cash charges in 1997 and the utilization of tax benefits generated from the implementation of the Company's restructuring plan, offset by higher accounts receivable due to increased sales in 1997 and certain seasonal dating terms, increased inventory levels in 1997 necessary to support continued anticipated sales growth and the Company's initiatives to improve customer service levels and 1997 cash expenditures required to implement the restructuring plan. In addition, cash used in operating activities reflects $59 million of proceeds from the sale of trade accounts receivable under the Company's revolving trade accounts receivable securitization program entered into in December 1997 as more fully described in Note 3 to the Company's consolidated financial statements.

Capital spending totaled $58.3 million in 1997 and was primarily for new products, cost reduction and capacity expansion initiatives. Capital spending in 1996 was $75.3 million (including $14.5 million related to the discontinued furniture operations) and was primarily attributable to new product development, cost reduction initiatives and a $5.0 million warehouse expansion financed with a capital lease. Capital spending in 1995 reflected approximately $59.4 million associated with the Hattiesburg facility, $27.4 million related to new product development and $10.8 million attributable to the discontinued furniture business. The remaining 1995 capital spending was related to cost reduction projects, productivity initiatives and environmental compliance including $14.4 million for a powder coat paint system for Outdoor Cooking products. The Company anticipates 1998 capital spending to be approximately 5% of sales and primarily related to new product introductions, capacity additions and certain facility rationalization initiatives.

Cash provided by investing activities also reflects $91.0 million in proceeds from sales of businesses, assets and product categories determined to be non-core to the Company's ongoing operations in conjunction with the 1996 restructuring plan. Cash used in investing activities for 1995 includes the purchase of a portion of the Company's furniture business, which was subsequently divested in full in March 1997.

Cash provided by financing activities totaled $16.4 million in 1997 and reflects net borrowings of $5.0 million under the Company's revolving credit facility, $12.2 million of debt repayments related to the divested furniture operations and other assets sold and $26.6 million in cash proceeds from the exercise of stock options, substantially all by former employees of the Company. In 1996, cash provided by financing activities of $45.3 million was primarily from increased revolving credit facility borrowings to support working capital and capital spending requirements, $11.5 million in new issuances of long-term debt and $4.6 million in proceeds from the sale of treasury shares to certain executives of the Company. In July 1997, the Company reduced the amount of available borrowings under its September 1996 unsecured five year revolving credit facility from $500 million to $250 million.

The Company is a party to various environmental proceedings, substantially all related to previously divested operations. In connection with the Company's restructuring plan a comprehensive review of environmental exposures was undertaken and the Company accelerated its strategy for the resolution and settlement of certain environmental claims. This review and change in strategy resulted in additional environmental reserves being recorded in 1996 as more fully described in Note 12 to the consolidated financial statements. In management's opinion, the ultimate resolution of these environmental matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced the signing of definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert which are subject to various customary conditions including regulatory approvals. The Company's ability to complete the Acquisitions, which is expected in the early spring of 1998, is contingent on acquisition debt issuances. In connection with the Acquisitions, the Company plans to refinance existing indebtedness of the acquired companies as well as all or substantially all of its existing long-term debt. The Company expects to finance the cash portion of the Acquisitions and all debt refinancings through a combination of the Bank Financing and the Offering. For additional information regarding the Acquisitions, see Note 14 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements of the Company included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum.

The Company believes its cash flow from operations, existing cash and cash equivalent balances, its receivable securitization program, together with expected available borrowings under the revolving credit portion of the New Credit Facility, will be sufficient to support working capital needs, capital spending, debt service and acquisition related cash requirements for the foreseeable future.

The Company is currently discussing the terms of the New Credit Facility. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

New Accounting Standards

See Note 1 to the Company's consolidated financial statements for a discussion of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 130, Reporting Comprehensive Income and SFAS No. 131, Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information, both of which are required to be adopted for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. The adoption of these standards will not impact the Company's consolidated results of operations, financial position, or cash flows.

Year 2000

The Company has assessed and continues to assess the impact of the Year 2000 issue on its operations, including the development and implementation of project plans and cost estimates required to make its information systems infrastructure Year 2000 compliant. Based on existing information, the Company believes that anticipated spending necessary to become Year 2000 compliant will not have a material effect on the financial position, cash flows or results of operations of the Company, nor will the Year 2000 issues cause any material adverse effect on the future business operations of the Company.

Subsequent Events

For a discussion of the Acquisitions and the new three year employment contracts between the Company and each of Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin, see Note 14 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum.

BUSINESS

General

The Company is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Company's primary business is the manufacture, marketing and distribution of durable household consumer products through mass merchandisers, home centers and other channels (such as Wal-Mart, Kmart and Home Depot) in the United States and internationally. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions. Sunbeam products enjoy a long-standing reputation for quality, and a majority of the Company's sales are from products which hold the number one or two market share in their respective product categories. In 1997, the Company's net sales were approximately $1,168 million.

The Company's five product categories are: (1) Appliances (mixers, blenders, food steamers, bread makers, rice cookers, coffee makers, toasters, irons and garment steamers); (2) Health at Home (vaporizers, humidifiers, air cleaners, water filters, massagers and scales); (3) Personal Care and Comfort (shower massagers, hair clippers and trimmers, electric warming blankets); (4) Outdoor Cooking (electric, gas and charcoal grills and grill accessories); and (5) Away From Home (clippers and related products for professional beauty, barber and veterinarian trade and sales of products to commercial and institutional channels). The International Group is responsible for sales (primarily of small appliances, personal care, grills and comfort products, professional clippers and related products) in all countries other than the United States.

The Company was organized in 1989 (as Sunbeam-Oster Company, Inc.) and in September 1990, Sunbeam acquired the assets and assumed certain liabilities, through a reorganization, of Allegheny International, Inc. (the "Predecessor"). In August 1992, the Company completed a public offering of 20,000,000 shares of its common stock. In May 1995, the Company changed its name from Sunbeam-Oster Company, Inc. to Sunbeam Corporation.

The Company has a management team with extensive consumer products experience and proven expertise in cost containment and operational improvement. On February 20, 1998, each of the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mr. Dunlap; the Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, Mr. Kersh; and the Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, Mr. Fannin, signed new three year employment contracts with the Company which include substantial equity-based compensation. See "Management—New Employment Contracts."

Restructuring and Growth Plan

In the Fall of 1996, under newly elected Chairman, Albert J. Dunlap, the Company announced a major restructuring and growth plan. The restructuring portion of the plan was completed during 1997, resulting in a significant reduction in employees, facilities and costs, all of which is anticipated to generate approximately $225 million in annual savings for the Company. As a part of the restructuring plan, the Company divested its non-core business and assets, including furniture, time and temperature, decorative bedding, gas heaters and logs, Counselor® and Borg® scale business and the Company's Biddeford, Maine textile mill.

The Company's restructuring plan included the closure of 18 factories, 43 warehouses and 5 headquarters, resulting in the consolidation of all corporate offices into a single headquarters office located in Delray Beach, Florida and an operations facility at its Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing and distribution facility. The number of manufacturing facilities has been reduced from twenty-six to eight (four in the US and four international). See "—Properties" below.

The Company has also consolidated all purchasing functions, substantially reduced the number of stock keeping units maintained by the Company and outsourced certain administrative, manufacturing and distribution activities.

The Company has developed a comprehensive three year growth plan for its core business. Sunbeam's goal is for revenues to double, reaching $2 billion by 1999, with operating margins improving to 20% of sales. This revenue growth is anticipated to be derived, in large part, by the development of new innovative products and the globalization of the Company. Domestically, the goal is to introduce at least 30 new products each year; during 1997, the Company introduced 35 new domestic products and 54 new international products. In its international business, the Company has a goal to triple international sales to $600 million by 1999. During 1997, the Company entered into 25 new international distribution/license agreements. The Company has also identified new channels of distribution as additional sales growth opportunities, including commercial organizations and "direct to the consumer" channels such as catalogs, the Internet and Sunbeam® factory outlet stores. The foregoing contains certain forward-looking statements that involve risks and uncertainties, see "Forward-Looking Statements" and "Risk Factors" for cautionary remarks concerning these statements.

Both international expansion and new product introductions will be supported by a significant investment in a major new advertising program that is geared to strengthen the Sunbeam®, Oster® and Grillmaster® brands in the marketplace.

Products

The Company's core product categories are as follows:

Appliances

Small kitchen appliances including Mixmaster® stand mixers, hand mixers, Osterizer® blenders, food processors, rice cookers, food steamers, toasters, can openers, coffee makers, bread makers, waffle makers, ice cream makers, frying pans, deep fryers and culinary accessories, are sold primarily under the Sunbeam® and Oster® brand names. The Company holds the number one or two market positions in blenders, mixers and bread makers. The Appliance category also encompasses garment care appliances consisting of irons and steamers. Sales of appliances accounted for approximately 32% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

Health at Home

The Company markets its home health products under the Sunbeam®name and the trademark Health at Home®. These products include heating pads, bath scales, blood pressure and other health-monitoring instruments, massagers, vaporizers, humidifiers and dental care products. This product category also includes the recently introduced AllergySmart™ air detector and air cleaner and the FreshSource™ power water filter. Sales of health care products accounted for approximately 10% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

Personal Care and Comfort

The Company's Personal Care and Comfort products include a broad line of electric blankets, comforters and Cuddle-Up® heated throws, shower massagers, and hair clippers and trimmers for animals and humans which are sold through retail channels. The Company holds the number one market position in electric blankets, heated throws and retail hair clippers. Sales of Personal Care and Comfort products accounted for approximately 18% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

Outdoor Cooking

Sunbeam is a leading supplier of outdoor barbecue grills. Sunbeam has the leading market share position in the gas grill industry. Barbecue grills consist of propane, natural gas, electric and charcoal models sold primarily under the Sunbeam® and Grillmaster® brand names. Sales of outdoor cooking products accounted for approximately 34% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

Away from Home

The Company markets a line of professional barber, beauty and animal equipment, including the electric and battery clippers, replacement blades and other grooming accessories sold to both conventional retailers and through professional distributors. In addition, the Company is expanding the market of its appliances, scales and Personal Care and Comfort products to institutional and commercial channels. Sales of Away from Home products described above accounted for approximately 6% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

International

The Company markets a variety of products (primarily small kitchen appliances, Personal Care and Comfort products, grills, professional clippers and related products) outside the U.S. While the Company sells many of the same products domestically and internationally, it also sells products designed specifically to appeal to foreign markets. The Company, through its foreign subsidiaries, has manufacturing facilities in Mexico and Venezuela, and sales offices in Canada, the United Kingdom, Hong Kong and Australia. The Company's international products are sourced from the Company's United States, Mexican or Venezuelan manufacturing operations or from vendors primarily located in Asia. International sales accounted for approximately 21% of the Company's total net sales in 1997.

To date, the Company's activities outside the United States have been primarily focused in Mexico, Latin America and Canada. The Company enjoys a strong market position in a number of product categories in Latin America. The Oster® brand has the leading market share in small appliances in a number of Latin American countries.

The Company's pending acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert are anticipated to provide new opportunities for international expansion of the Company's activities. See "The Acquisitions."

Competitive Strengths

Sunbeam competes in markets with well-established United States and foreign companies on the basis of various strengths, depending on the country, product category and distribution channels. The Company believes that it is well-positioned to pursue continued growth as a result of these competitive strengths, which include the following:

Market Leadership. The majority of Sunbeam sales are from products in which the Company holds the number one or two market share position. The Company believes that this combination of leading brand-name products and breadth of product offerings makes Sunbeam an attractive vendor to all retailers, particularly those who are consolidating their suppliers.

Brand Name Recognition. The Sunbeam® and Oster® brands have been household names for generations. The Company believes that these brands, along with its other well-known secondary brand names such as Mixmaster®, Osterizer® and Grillmaster®, draw customers into retail stores specifically to purchase products bearing these brand names. During 1997, the Company spent over $56 million, or approximately 5% of its 1997 net sales, for advertising and sales promotion to support brand recognition.

Distribution Network. The Company has one of the premier mass merchant distribution networks serving large national retailers in the United States. The Company also has a strong network of well-established distributors and service organizations in Latin America. The Company supports its customers' needs with strong warehousing and distribution capabilities, a broad, high-quality product portfolio, electronic data interchange and just-in-time product delivery capabilities. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogues, Company-owned outlet stores and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and military post exchange outlets.

Strong Position in Consolidating Retail Environment. The consolidation trend in the retail industry has resulted in the emergence and global expansion of large mass merchandisers. These merchandisers demand financially strong, efficient suppliers who offer a broad range of innovative, quality products, have the ability to make timely shipments in large volumes and provide strong customer, promotional and merchandising support. The Company continues to benefit from this trend and believes it has the opportunity to further expand distribution with a number of major retailers while increasing its penetration of existing accounts. In 1997, the Company sold products to virtually all of the top 100 U.S. retailers, including Wal-Mart, Price Costco, Kmart, Target Stores, Home Depot and Sears.

Customers

The rapid growth of large mass merchandisers and warehouse clubs and changes in customer shopping patterns have contributed to a significant consolidation of the U.S. retail industry and formation of dominant multi-category retailers. Sunbeam has positioned itself to respond to the challenges of this changing retail environment by pursuing strategic relationships with large, high-volume merchandisers. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, hardware stores, catalogues, television shopping channels, home centers, drug and grocery stores, and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and military post exchange services. The Company's largest customer, Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., accounted for approximately 21% of the sales in 1997.

Retailers are pursuing a number of strategies in their competition to deliver the highest-quality, lowest-cost brand name products. A growing trend among retailers is to purchase on a "just-in-time" basis in order to reduce inventory cost and increase returns on investment. This trend has required increased working capital investments for manufacturers and requires manufacturers to more closely monitor consumer buying patterns as retailers shorten their lead times for orders. Currently, most Sunbeam products sold to U.S. retailers are manufactured at the Company's own facilities in North America. However, one of the Company's goals for 1998 is to "source" approximately 50% of parts and/or products from others, including suppliers in Asia, in order to reduce capital investment in plants while growing sales volume and to improve operating margins. The Company intends to continue to support its retail partners' "just-in-time" inventory strategies through investments in, among other things, improved forecasting systems, more responsive manufacturing and distribution capabilities and electronic communications. Currently, Sunbeam has approximately 90% of its U.S. customer sales on electronic data interchange (EDI) systems.

The amount of backlog orders at any point in time is not a significant factor in the Company's business.

Patents and Trademarks

Sunbeam believes that an integral part of its strength is its ability to capitalize on the Sunbeam® and Oster® trademarks which are registered in the United States and in numerous foreign countries. Widely recognized throughout North America, South and Central America and Europe, these registered trademarks, along with Osterizer®, Mixmaster®, Toast Logic®, Steammaster®, Oskar®, Grillmaster® and Blanket with a Brain® brands are important to the success of the Company's products. Other important trademarks within Sunbeam include Oster Designer® line, Cuddle-Up® and AS®.

Sunbeam holds numerous patents covering a wide variety of products, the loss of any one of which would not have a material adverse effect on the Company's business taken as a whole.

Employees

The Company currently has approximately 3,300 full-time domestic employees and 4,200 international employees. None of the Company's domestic full-time workforce has union representation. Sunbeam has had no material labor-related work stoppages and, in the opinion of management, relations with its employees are generally good.

Seasonality

On a consolidated basis, Sunbeam sales do not exhibit substantial seasonality. However, sales of outdoor cooking products are strong in the first half of the year, while sales of appliances and Personal Care and Comfort products are strongest in the second half of the year. In addition, sales of an number of Company's products, including warming blankets, vaporizers, humidifiers and grills may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions. During 1997, the Company initiated early buy programs for highly seasonal products such as grill and warming blankets in order to more levelize promotion and distribution activities.

Raw Materials

The raw materials used in the manufacture of the Company's products are available from numerous suppliers in quantities sufficient to meet normal requirements. The Company's primary raw materials include aluminum, steel, resin, copper, and corrugated cardboard for cartons.

Environmental Matters

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations in addition to laws and regulations regarding labeling and packaging of products and the sale of products containing certain environmentally sensitive materials ("Environmental Laws"). The Company believes it is in substantial compliance with all Environmental Laws which are applicable to its operations. Compliance with Environmental Laws involves certain continuing costs, however, such costs of ongoing compliance have not resulted, and are not anticipated to result, in a material increase in the Company's capital expenditures or to have a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial condition or competitive position.

In addition to ongoing environmental compliance at its operations, the Company also is actively engaged in certain environmental remediation activities relating primarily to divested operations. As of December 31, 1997, the Company had been identified by the United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") or a state environmental agency as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven (7) sites subject to the federal Superfund law and two (2) sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant.

The Superfund Act, and related state environmental remediation laws, generally authorize governmental authorities to remediate a Superfund site and to assess the costs against the PRPs or to order PRPs to remediate the site at their expense. Liability under the Superfund Law is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRPs at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRPs established with respect to such sites. The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at nine (9) sites, four (4) of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and five (5) of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law.

In addition, the Company is engaged in environmental remediation activities at a site located in Newburgh Heights, Ohio, where a subsidiary formerly conducted operations. The Company has been actively cooperating with the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission and state regulatory authorities in developing and implementing a plan for remediation of this site; which remediation is anticipated to be substantially completed in 1998.

The Company's costs for environmental remediation activities have not had a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial conditions or competitive position. The Company has established reserves to cover the anticipated probable costs of remediation, based upon periodic review of all sites for which the Company has, or may have, remediation responsibility. As of December 28, 1997, the amount of such reserves was approximately four percent (4%) of the Company's total liabilities as set forth in the consolidated financial statements. Such environmental reserves do not anticipate any offsets for potential insurance recoveries from certain of the Company's liability insurance carriers which the Company continues to pursue.

Due to uncertainty over the remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in Environmental Laws, and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, the Company's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved at fiscal year end 1997. In addition, the Company may be required to incur costs relating to remediation of other properties currently or previously owned or leased, including the properties to be acquired in the Acquisitions, as well as properties at which the Company and each of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert have disposed of waste. However, the Company believes, based on existing information, that the costs of completing the environmental remediation of all sites for which the Company has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

In December 1996, the Company reached a negotiated settlement with the EPA with regard to a notice of violation concerning the construction and operation of two paint lines at the Company's Neosho, MO facility prior to obtaining the necessary permits for construction and operation. The negotiated settlement amount of $829,825 was agreed upon in connection with the Company's implementation of the "supplemental environmental project" which consisted of the Company's installation of nominal emission powder coating lines to replace solvent paint lines. In October 1997, the Company executed a Consent Decree documenting the settlement and is awaiting the EPA's execution of the Consent Decree; the Company anticipates formal resolution of this matter by the second quarter of 1998.

Legal Proceedings

The Company and its subsidiaries are involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time which the Company considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of the Company, the resolution of these matters, and of certain matters relating to prior operations of the Company's predecessor, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect upon the financial position or results of operations of the Company. The Company has established reserves for pending litigation which the Company considers to be adequate to cover loss contingencies determined by the Company associated with such proceedings.

She is a member of the Board of Directors of Valassis Communications, Inc. (a publishing and printing company).

New Employment Contracts

On February 20, 1998, each of the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mr. Dunlap; the Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, Mr. Kersh; and the Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, Mr. Fannin, signed new three-year employment contracts with the Company, which include substantial equity-based compensation. These employment contracts replaced previous employment contracts entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999.

The new employment contract with Mr. Dunlap provides for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of 200,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 133,333 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreement as further described in Note 2 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements, a new equity grant of 300,000 shares of unrestricted stock, a new grant of a ten-year option to purchase 3,750,000 shares of Common Stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in three equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 833,333 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreement as further described in Note 5 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements. In addition, the new employment contract with Mr. Dunlap provides for tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the equity grant and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

The new employment contracts with Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin provide for, among other items, the grant of a total of 180,000 shares of restricted stock that vest in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant, the acceleration of vesting of 44,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 29,332 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under their July 1996 employment contracts, new grants of ten-year options to purchase a total of 1,875,000 shares of Common Stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 383,334 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 employment contracts. In addition, the new employment contracts with Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin provide for tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the restricted stock grants and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

Compensation expense attributed to the equity grant, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the related tax gross-ups will be recognized in the first quarter of 1998 and compensation expense related to the new restricted stock grants and related tax gross-ups will be amortized to expense beginning in the first quarter of 1998 over the period in which the restrictions lapse. Total after-tax compensation expense to be recognized in the first quarter of 1998 related to these items is expected to be approximately $30 million.

DESCRIPTION OF OTHER INDEBTEDNESS

New Credit Facility

The Company is currently negotiating the terms of the New Credit Facility with a group of banks which the Company expects will provide for borrowings by the Company or one or more of its subsidiaries in the aggregate principal amount of $2.0 billion. The New Credit Facility is being arranged by an affiliate of the Initial Purchaser who has advised the Company that it is, subject to customary qualifications, highly confident that under current market and economic conditions a $2.0 billion credit facility can be successfully syndicated to financial institutions. It is expected that the facility will provide for one or more term loans in the aggregate principal amount of $1.5 billion which, together with the net proceeds of the Offering, will be used to finance the cash portion of the Acquisitions and the repayment of all or substantially all of the indebtedness of the Company and the acquired companies (see "Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds") and a $500 million revolving credit facility which will be available for general corporate purposes. It is expected that the term borrowings under the New Credit Facility will mature based on an amortization schedule to be negotiated, subject to certain mandatory earlier repayments customary for facilities of a similar nature, and that the revolving credit borrowings will mature seven years from the closing date of the New Credit Facility. It is expected that interest will accrue, at the Company's option, at LIBOR plus a spread margin to be negotiated or at the Agent's (as defined below) Base Rate (generally the higher of the Agent's prime rate or the Federal Funds Rate plus 1/2 of 1%) plus a spread to be negotiated. The Company does not yet have commitments from lenders to provide the New Credit Facility and, in any event, the New Credit Facility is subject to the negotiation and execution of definitive documentation and other customary conditions.

Securities and Guarantees. Borrowings under the New Credit Facility may be secured by (i) a pledge of the stock of each of the Company's subsidiaries and (ii) security interests in substantially all of the assets of the Company and its subsidiaries. The Company expects the New Credit Facility will be guaranteed by each of the Company's wholly-owned U.S. subsidiaries and that such subsidiary guarantees will be secured as described above. To the extent borrowings are made by any subsidiaries of the Company, the obligations of such subsidiaries will be guaranteed by the Company.

Covenants. The Company expects that the definitive New Credit Facility will contain various covenants customary for facilities of this type, including (among others) covenants restricting the incurrence of indebtedness, the payment of dividends and other restricted payments, the incurrence of liens, dispositions of assets, mergers and acquisitions, capital expenditures and loans and investments. In addition, it is expected that the New Credit Facility will require the Company to maintain various financial ratios, including a maximum leverage ratio, a minimum interest coverage ratio and a maximum fixed charge coverage ratio.

Defaults. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will provide for events of default customary for transactions of this type, including nonpayment, misrepresentation, breach of covenant, cross-defaults, bankruptcy, ERISA, judgments and change of ownership and control (including for this purpose a Fundamental Change.)

Other Debt

The Company intends to repay all or substantially all of the currently outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert as promptly as practicable following consummation of each Acquisition, subject to applicable notice provisions and other prepayment terms of the applicable indebtedness. Until such indebtedness is repaid, the Company will continue to be subject to the covenants and restrictions and limitations contained in the terms of such indebtedness. For additional information concerning outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert see the consolidated financial statements set forth elsewhere herein.

DESCRIPTION OF DEBENTURES

The Debentures are to be issued under an indenture to be dated as of March 25, 1998 (the "Indenture"), between the Company and The Bank of New York, as trustee (the "Trustee"). A copy of the form of Indenture will be available from the Trustee upon request by a registered holder of the Debentures. The following summary of certain provisions of the Debentures and the Indenture does not purport to be complete and is subject to, and is qualified in its entirety by reference to, all the provisions of the Debentures and the Indenture including the definitions therein of certain terms that are not otherwise defined in this Offering Memorandum. Wherever particular provisions or defined terms of the Indenture (or of the form of Debenture which is a part thereof) are referred to, such provisions or defined terms are incorporated herein by reference. As used in this "Description of Debentures," the "Company" refers to Sunbeam Corporation only and does not, unless the context otherwise indicates, include its subsidiaries.

Holders of the Debentures will also have the benefit of a Registration Rights Agreement between the Company and the Initial Purchaser. Under the Registration Rights Agreement, the Company will agree to file the Shelf Registration Statement with the Commission covering resales of the Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion thereof. See "Registration Rights."

General

The Debentures will be unsecured general obligations of the Company subordinate in right of payment to the New Credit Facility and certain other secured obligations of the Company as described under "Subordination of Debentures" and convertible into Common Stock as described under "Conversion of Debentures." The Debentures will be limited to $2,316,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity (including $302,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity if the Initial Purchaser's over-allotment option is exercised in full) and will mature on March 25, 2018.

The Indenture does not contain any financial covenants or restrictions on the payment of dividends, the incurrence of indebtedness, including Senior Indebtedness (as defined below under "Subordination of Debentures"), or the issuance or repurchase of securities of the Company. The Indenture contains no covenants or other provisions to afford protection to holders of the Debentures in the event of a highly leveraged transaction or a change in control of the Company except to the extent described under "Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change."

The Debentures are being issued at a substantial discount from their stated redemption price at maturity. For U.S. federal income tax purposes, the excess of the stated redemption price at maturity of each Debenture over its issue price (which is expected to be the Issue Price) constitutes Original Issue Discount ("OID"). See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations." Maturity, conversion, purchase by the Company at the option of a holder or redemption of a Debenture will cause Original Issue Discount and interest, if any, to cease to accrue on such Debenture, under the terms and subject to the conditions of the Indenture. The Company may not reissue a Debenture that has matured or been converted, purchased by the Company at the option of a holder, redeemed or otherwise canceled (except for registration of transfer, exchange or replacement thereof).

The principal amount at maturity of each Debenture will be payable at the office or agency of the paying agent, initially the Trustee, in the Borough of Manhattan, The City of New York, or any other office of the paying agent maintained for such purpose. Debentures may be presented for conversion into Common Stock at the office of the conversion agent and Debentures in definitive form may be presented for exchange for other Debentures or registration of transfer at the office of the registrar, each such agent initially being the Trustee. The Company will not charge a service charge for any registration of transfer or exchange of Debentures; however, the Company may require payment by a holder of a sum sufficient to cover any tax, assessment or other governmental charge payable in connection therewith.

Form, Denomination and Registration

The Debentures will be issued in fully registered form, without coupons, in denominations of $1,000 principal amount at maturity and whole multiples thereof.

Global Debenture; Book-Entry Form. Debentures held by "qualified institutional buyers," as defined in Rule 144A under the Securities Act ("QIBs"), will be evidenced by a global Debenture (the "Global Debenture"), which will be deposited with, or on behalf of, The Depository Trust Company, New York, New York ("DTC") and registered in the name of Cede & Co. ("Cede"), as DTC's nominee. Except as set forth below, the Global Debenture may be transferred, in whole or in part, only to another nominee of DTC or to a successor of DTC or its nominee.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

QIBs may hold their interests in the Global Debenture directly through DTC, or indirectly through organizations which are participants in DTC (the "Participants"). Transfers between Participants will be effected in the ordinary way in accordance with DTC rules. The laws of some states require that certain persons take physical delivery of securities in definitive form. Consequently, the ability to transfer beneficial interests in the Global Debenture to such persons may be limited.

QIBs who are not Participants may beneficially own interests in the Global Debenture held by DTC only through Participants or certain banks, brokers, dealers, trust companies and other parties that clear through or maintain a custodial relationship with a Participant, either directly or indirectly ("Indirect Participants"). So long as Cede, as the nominee of DTC, is the registered owner of the Global Debenture, Cede for all purposes will be considered the sole holder of the Global Debenture. Except as provided below, owners of beneficial interests in the Global Debenture will not be entitled to have certificates registered in their names, will not receive or be entitled to receive physical delivery of certificates in definitive form, and will not be considered the holders thereof.

Payment of the redemption price and the purchase price of the Global Debenture as well as any Liquidated Damages (as defined) due on the Global Debenture arising out of the Company's failure to meet its obligations under the Registration Rights Agreement will be made to Cede, the nominee for DTC, as the registered owner of the Global Debenture by wire transfer of immediately available funds. Neither the Company, the Trustee nor any paying agent will have any responsibility or liability for any aspect of the records relating to or payments made on account of beneficial ownership interests in the Global Debenture or for maintaining, supervising or reviewing any records relating to such beneficial ownership interests.

The Company has been informed by DTC that, with respect to payment of Liquidated Damages (if any) on and the redemption price or the purchase price of the Global Debenture, DTC's practice is to credit Participants' accounts on the payment date therefor with payments in amounts proportionate to their respective beneficial interests in the Debentures represented by the Global Debenture as shown on the records of DTC (adjusted as necessary so that such payments are made with respect to whole Debentures only), unless DTC has reason to believe that it will not receive payment on such payment date. Payments by Participants to owners of beneficial interests in Debentures represented by the Global Debenture held through such Participants will be the responsibility of such Participants, as is now the case with securities held for the accounts of customers registered in "street name."

Holders who desire to convert their Debentures into Common Stock should contact their brokers or other Participants or Indirect Participants to obtain information on procedures, including proper forms and cut-off times, for submitting such request.

Because DTC can only act on behalf of Participants, who in turn act on behalf of Indirect Participants and certain banks, the ability of a person having a beneficial interest in the Debentures represented by the Global Debenture to pledge such interest to persons or entities that do not participate in the DTC system, or otherwise take actions in respect of such interest, may be affected by the lack of a physical certificate evidencing such interest.

Neither the Company nor the Trustee (or any registrar, paying agent or conversion agent under the Indenture) will have any responsibility for the performance by DTC or its Participants or Indirect Participants of their respective obligations under the rules and procedures governing their operations. DTC has advised the Company that it will take any action permitted to be taken by a holder of Debentures (including, without limitation, the presentation of Debentures for conversion as described below) only at the direction of one or more Participants to whose account with DTC interests in the Global Debenture are credited and only in respect of the principal amount of the Debentures represented by the Global Debenture as to which such Participant or Participants has or have given such direction.

DTC has advised the Company as follows: DTC is a limited purpose trust company organized under the laws of the State of New York, a member of the Federal Reserve System, a "clearing corporation" within the meaning of the Uniform Commercial Code and a "clearing agency" registered pursuant to the provisions of Section 17A of the Exchange Act. DTC was created to hold securities for its Participants and to facilitate the clearance and settlement of securities transactions between Participants through electronic book-entry changes to accounts of its Participants, thereby eliminating the need for physical movement of certificates. Participants include securities brokers and dealers, banks, trust companies and clearing corporations and may include certain other organizations such as the Initial Purchaser. Certain of such Participants (or their representatives), together with other entities, own DTC. Indirect access to the DTC system is available to others such as banks, brokers, dealers and trust companies that clear through, or maintain a custodial relationship with a Participant, either directly or indirectly.

CONFIDENTIAL

Although DTC has agreed to the foregoing procedures in order to facilitate transfers of interests in the Global Debenture among participants of DTC, DTC is under no obligation to perform or continue to perform such procedures, and such procedures may be discontinued at any time. If DTC is at any time unwilling or unable to continue as depositary and a successor depositary is not appointed by the Company within 90 days, the Company will cause Debentures to be issued in definitive form in exchange for the Global Debenture.

Conveyance of notices and other communications by DTC to Participants, by Participants to Indirect Participants and Indirect Participants to beneficial owners will be governed by arrangements among them, subject to any statutory or regulatory requirements that may be in effect from time to time. Redemption notices shall be sent to Cede. If less than all of the Debentures are being redeemed, DTC will reduce the amount of the interest of each Participant in such Debentures in accordance with its procedures.

Certificated Debentures. Debentures sold to investors that are not QIBs will be issued in definitive registered form and may not be represented by the Global Debenture. QIBs may request that any Debentures they hold in definitive registered form be exchanged for interests in the Global Debenture. Certificated Debentures may be issued in exchange for Debentures represented by the Global Debenture if a depositary is unwilling or unable to continue as a depositary for the Global Debenture as set forth above under "Global Debenture; Book-Entry Form."

Restrictions on Transfer; Legends. The Debentures will be subject to certain transfer restrictions as described below under "Transfer Restrictions" and certificates evidencing the Debentures will bear a legend to such effect.

Conversion of Debentures

A holder of a Debenture may convert it into Common Stock of the Company at any time after 90 days following the latest date of original issuance of the Debentures through the close of business on March 25, 2018; provided that if a Debenture is called for redemption, the holder may convert it only until the close of business on the last trading day prior to the Redemption Date unless the Company defaults in the payment of the redemption price. A Debenture in respect of which a holder has delivered a Purchase Notice exercising the option of such holder to require the Company to purchase such Debenture may be converted only if such notice is withdrawn in accordance with the terms of the Indenture. Similarly, a Debenture in respect of which a holder is exercising its option to require redemption upon a Fundamental Change may be converted only if such holder withdraws its election to exercise its option in accordance with the terms of the Indenture. A holder may convert such holder's Debentures in part so long as such part is $1,000 principal amount at maturity or a whole multiple thereof.

The initial Conversion Rate is 6.575 shares of Common Stock per $1,000 principal amount at maturity of Debentures, subject to adjustment upon the occurrence of certain events, as described below. A holder entitled to a fractional share of Common Stock shall receive cash equal to the then current market value of such fractional share.

On conversion of a Debenture, a holder will not receive any cash payment representing accrued Original Issue Discount. The Company's delivery to the holder of the fixed number of shares of Common Stock into which the Debenture is convertible (together with the cash payment, if any, in lieu of fractional Common Stock) will be deemed to satisfy the Company's obligation to pay the principal amount of the Debenture including the accrued Original Issue Discount attributable to the period from the Issue Date to the Conversion Date. Thus, the accrued Original Issue Discount is deemed to be paid in full rather than canceled, extinguished or forfeited. The Conversion Rate will not be adjusted at any time during the term of the Debentures for such accrued Original Issue Discount.

To convert a certificated Debenture into Common Stock, a holder must (i) complete and manually sign the conversion notice on the back of the Debenture (or complete and manually sign a facsimile thereof) and deliver such notice to the conversion agent, (ii) surrender the Debenture to the conversion agent, (iii) if required, furnish appropriate endorsements and transfer documents, and (iv) if required, pay all transfer or similar taxes. The procedure for converting a Global Debenture is described above under "Form, Denomination and Registration—Global Debenture; Book-Entry Form." Pursuant to the Indenture, the date on which all of the foregoing requirements have been satisfied is the Conversion Date.

The Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures has not been registered under the Securities Act and is subject to certain restrictions on transfer. See "Registration Rights" and "Transfer Restrictions."

The Conversion Rate is subject to adjustment under formulae as set forth in the Indenture in certain events, including: (i) the issuance of Common Stock of the Company as a dividend or distribution on the Common Stock; (ii) certain subdivisions and combinations of the Common Stock; (iii) the issuance to all holders of Common Stock of certain rights or warrants to purchase Common Stock; (iv) the distribution to all holders of Common Stock of capital stock (other than Common Stock), of evidences of indebtedness of the Company or of assets (including securities (other than Common Stock), but excluding those rights and warrants referred to in clause (iii) above or paid in cash); (v) distributions consisting of cash, excluding any quarterly cash dividend on the Common Stock to the extent that the aggregate cash dividend per share of Common Stock in any quarter does not exceed the greater of (x) the amount per share of Common Stock of the next preceding quarterly cash dividend on the Common Stock to the extent that such preceding quarterly dividend did not require an adjustment of the Conversion Rate pursuant to this clause (v) (as adjusted to reflect subdivisions or combinations of the Common Stock), and (y) 3.75 percent of the average of the last reported sales price of the Common Stock during the ten trading days immediately prior to the date of declaration of such dividend, and excluding any dividend or distribution in connection with the liquidation, dissolution or winding up of the Company; (vi) payment in respect of a tender offer or exchange offer by the Company or any Subsidiary of the Company for the Common Stock to the extent that the cash and value of any other consideration included in such payment per share of Common Stock exceeds the Current Market Price (as defined) per share of Common Stock on the trading day next succeeding the last date on which tenders or exchanges may be made pursuant to such tender or exchange offer; and (vii) payment in respect of a tender offer or exchange offer by a person other than the Company or any Subsidiary (as defined) of the Company in which, as of the closing date of the offer, the Board of Directors is not recommending rejection of the offer. If an adjustment is required to be made as set forth in clause (v) above as a result of a distribution that is a quarterly dividend, such adjustment would be based upon the amount by which such distribution exceeds the amount of the quarterly cash dividend permitted to be excluded pursuant to clause (v) above. If an adjustment is required to be made as set forth in clause (v) above as a result of a distribution that is not a quarterly dividend, such adjustment would be based upon the full amount of the distribution. The adjustment referred to in clause (vii) above will only be made if the tender offer or exchange offer is for an amount that increases the offeror's ownership of Common Stock to more than 25% of the total shares of Common Stock outstanding, and if the cash and value of any other consideration included in such payment per share of Common Stock exceeds the Current Market Price per share of Common Stock on the business day next succeeding the last date on which tenders or exchanges may be made pursuant to such tender or exchange offer. The adjustment referred to in clause (vii) above will generally not be made, however, if as of the closing of such offer, the offering documents with respect to such offer disclose a plan or an intention to cause the Company to engage in a consolidation or merger of the Company or a sale of all or substantially all of the Company's assets.

No adjustment in the Conversion Rate will be required unless such adjustment would require a change of at least 1% in the rate then in effect; provided that any adjustment that would otherwise be required to be made shall be carried forward and taken into account in any subsequent adjustment. Except as stated above, the Conversion Rate will not be adjusted for the issuance of Common Stock or any securities convertible into or exchangeable for Common Stock or carrying the right to purchase any of the foregoing.

In the case of (i) any reclassification of the Common Stock, or (ii) a consolidation or merger involving the Company or a sale or conveyance to another corporation of the property and assets of the Company as an entirety or substantially as an entirety, in each case as a result of which holders of Common Stock shall be entitled to receive stock, securities, other property or assets (including cash) with respect to or in exchange for such Common Stock, the holders of the Debentures then outstanding will be entitled thereafter to convert such Debentures into the kind and amount of shares of stock, securities or other property or assets (including cash) which they would have owned or been entitled to receive upon such reclassification, consolidation, merger, sale or conveyance had such Debentures been converted immediately prior to such reclassification, consolidation, merger, sale or conveyance assuming that a holder of Debentures would not have exercised any rights of election as to the stock, securities or other property or assets (including cash) receivable in connection therewith.

In the event of a taxable distribution to holders of Common Stock or in certain other circumstances requiring an adjustment to the Conversion Rate, the holders of Debentures may, in certain circumstances, be deemed to have received a distribution subject to United States income tax as a dividend; in certain other circumstances, the absence of such an adjustment may result in a taxable dividend to the holders of Common Stock. See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations."

The Company from time to time may, to the extent permitted by law, increase the Conversion Rate by any amount for any period of at least 20 days, in which case the Company shall give at least 15 days' notice of such increase, if the Company's Board of Directors has made a determination that such increase would be in the best interests of the Company, which determination shall be conclusive. The Company may, at its option, make such increases in the Conversion Rate, in addition to those set forth above, as the Board of Directors deems advisable to avoid or diminish any income tax to holders of Common Stock resulting from any dividend or distribution of stock (or rights to acquire stock) or from any event treated as such for income tax purposes. See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations."

Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company

No sinking fund is provided for the Debentures. Prior to March 25, 2003, the Debentures will not be redeemable at the option of the Company. Beginning on March 25, 2003, the Company may (subject to applicable contractual restrictions including under agreements governing Senior Indebtedness) redeem the Debentures for cash as a whole at any time, or from time to time in part, upon not less than 30 days' nor more than 60 days' notice of redemption given by mail to holders of Debentures. The Debentures will be redeemable in whole multiples of $1,000 principal amount at maturity.

The table below shows Redemption Prices of a Debenture per $1,000 principal amount at maturity thereof, at March 25, 2003 and at each March 25, thereafter prior to maturity and at maturity on March 25, 2018, which prices reflect the accrued Original Issue Discount calculated to each such date. The Redemption Price of a Debenture redeemed between such dates would include an additional amount reflecting the additional Original Issue Discount accrued since the next preceding date in the table to the actual Redemption Date.

If less than all of the outstanding Debentures held in certificated form are to be redeemed, the Trustee shall select the Debentures held in such form to be redeemed in principal amounts at maturity of $1,000 or whole multiples thereof by lot, pro rata or by another method the Trustee considers fair and appropriate (as long as such method is not prohibited by the rules of any stock exchange on which the Debentures are then listed, if any). If a portion of a holder's certificated Debentures is selected for partial redemption and such holder converts a portion of such certificated Debentures, such converted portion shall be deemed to be the portion selected for redemption. Debentures registered in the name of DTC or its nominee will be redeemed pro rata as described under "—Form, Denomination and Registration—Global Debenture; Book-Entry Form."

Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change

If a Fundamental Change (as defined) occurs at any time prior to March 25, 2018, each holder of Debentures shall have the right, at the holder's option, to require the Company to redeem any or all of such holder's Debentures on the date (the "Repurchase Date") that is 45 days after the date of the Company's notice of such Fundamental Change. The Debentures will be redeemable in whole multiples of $1,000 principal amount at maturity at their accreted value on the Repurchase Date.

The Company shall redeem such Debentures at a price equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to, but excluding, the Repurchase Date, provided that if the Applicable Price (as defined) in connection with the Fundamental Change is less than the Reference Market Price (as defined), the Company shall redeem such Debentures at a price equal to the foregoing Redemption Price multiplied by the fraction obtained by dividing the Applicable Price by the Reference Market Price.

The Company shall mail to all holders of record of the Debentures a notice of the occurrence of a Fundamental Change and of the redemption right arising as a result thereof on or before the tenth day after the occurrence of such Fundamental Change. The Company shall deliver to the Trustee a copy of such notice. To exercise the redemption right, holders of Debentures must deliver, on or before the 30th day after the date of the Company's notice of a Fundamental Change (the "Fundamental Change Expiration Time"), the Debentures to be so redeemed, duly endorsed for transfer, together with the form entitled "Option to Elect Redemption Upon a Fundamental Change" on the reverse thereof duly completed, to the Company (or an agent designated by the Company for such purpose). Payment for Notes surrendered for redemption (and not withdrawn) prior to the Fundamental Change Expiration Time will be made promptly following the Repurchase Date.

The term "Fundamental Change" means the occurrence of any transaction or event in connection with which all or substantially all of the Common Stock shall be exchanged for, converted into, acquired for or constitute solely the right to receive consideration (whether by means of an exchange offer, liquidation, tender offer, consolidation, merger, combination, reclassification, recapitalization or otherwise) which is not all or substantially all common stock of a company listed (or, upon consummation of or immediately following such transaction or event, which will be listed) on a United States national securities exchange or approved for quotation on the Nasdaq National Market or any similar United States system of automated dissemination of quotations of securities prices.

The term "Applicable Price" means (i) in the event of a Fundamental Change in which the holders of the Common Stock receive only cash, the amount of cash received by the holder of one share of Common Stock and (ii) in the event of any other Fundamental Change, the average of the reported last sale price for the Common Stock during the ten trading days prior to the record date for the determination of the holders of Common Stock entitled to receive cash, securities, property or other assets in connection with such Fundamental Change, or, if there is no such record date, the date upon which the holders of the Common Stock shall have the right to receive such cash, securities, property or other assets in connection with the Fundamental Change.

The term "Reference Market Price" shall initially mean $30.2083 (which is equal to 66⅔% of the last sale price of the Common Stock as reflected on the cover page of this Offering Memorandum) and in the event of any adjustment to the Conversion Rate pursuant to the provisions of the Indenture, the Reference Market Price shall also be adjusted so that the Reference Market Price shall be equal to the initial Reference Market Price multiplied by a fraction the numerator of which is the Conversion Rate specified on the cover of this Offering Memorandum (without regard to any adjustment thereto) and the denominator of which is the Conversion Rate following such adjustment.

The Company will comply with the provisions of Rule 13e-4 and any other tender offer rules under the Exchange Act which may then be applicable in connection with the redemption rights of Debenture holders in the event of a Fundamental Change.

The redemption rights of the holders of Debentures could discourage a potential acquiror of the Company. The Fundamental Change redemption feature, however, is not the result of management's knowledge of any specific effort to obtain control of the Company by means of a merger, tender offer, solicitation or otherwise, or part of a plan by management to adopt a series of anti-takeover provisions.

The term "Fundamental Change" is limited to certain specified transactions and may not include other events that might adversely affect the financial condition of the Company, nor would the requirement that the Company offer to repurchase the Debentures upon a Fundamental Change necessarily afford the holders of the Debentures protection in the event of a highly leveraged transaction, reorganization, merger or similar transaction involving the Company.

No Debentures may be redeemed at the option of holders upon a Fundamental Change if there has occurred and is continuing an Event of Default described under "—Events of Default; Notice and Waiver" below (other than a default in the payment of the Fundamental Change Redemption Price with respect to such Debentures). In the event of a Fundamental Change and exercise by holders of the Debentures of their associated rights to require the Company to redeem all or a portion of their Debentures, there can be no assurance that the Company would have sufficient funds to pay the redemption price for all the Debentures tendered by the holders thereof. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will provide, and any future credit agreements (including an extension of the New Credit Facility) or other agreements relating to indebtedness (including Senior Indebtedness) to which the Company becomes a party also may provide, that a Fundamental Change would constitute an event of default thereunder permitting the lenders thereunder to accelerate the maturity thereof and thereby cause the subordination provisions in the Indenture to apply, preventing redemption of the Debentures until Senior Indebtedness thereunder is paid in full. Any such provisions could restrict or prohibit the redemption of the Debentures. If the Company is prohibited from redeeming the Debentures upon the occurrence of a Fundamental Change, the Company could seek the consent of its then existing lenders to redeem the Debentures or could attempt to refinance the borrowings that contain such prohibition. If the Company does not obtain such a consent or repay such borrowings, the Company would remain prohibited from redeeming the Debentures. In such case, the Company's failure to redeem Debentures required to be redeemed under the terms of the Indenture would constitute an Event of Default under the Indenture and would likely constitute a default under the terms of any other indebtedness of the Company outstanding at such time, including Senior Indebtedness. In such circumstances, or if a Fundamental Change would in and of itself constitute an event of default under agreements governing Senior Indebtedness then outstanding, the subordination provisions in the Indenture would prohibit or restrict payments to the holders of Debentures.

Purchase of Debentures at the Option of the Holder

On March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013 (each, a "Purchase Date"), the Company will become obligated to purchase, at the option of the holder thereof, any outstanding Debenture for which a written Purchase Notice has been delivered by the holder to the office of the paying agent (initially the Trustee) at any time from the opening of business on the date that is 20 Business Days (as defined) prior to such Purchase Date until the close of business on such Purchase Date and for which such Purchase Notice has not been withdrawn, subject to certain additional conditions.

The Purchase Notice shall state (i) the certificate numbers of the Debentures to be delivered by the holder thereof for purchase by the Company; (ii) the portion of the principal amount at maturity of Debentures to be purchased, which portion must be $1,000 or a whole multiple thereof; (iii) that such Debentures are to be purchased by the Company pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Debentures; and (iv) in the event the Company elects, pursuant to the Company Notice (as defined), to pay the Purchase Price to be paid as of such Purchase Date in Common Stock, in whole or in part, but such Purchase Price is ultimately to be paid to such holder entirely in cash because any of the conditions to payment of the Purchase Price (or portion thereof) in Common Stock is not satisfied by the Purchase Date, as described below, whether such holder elects (x) to withdraw such Purchase Notice as to some or all of the Debentures to which it relates (stating the principal amount at maturity and certificate numbers of the Debentures as to which such withdrawal shall relate), or (y) to receive cash in respect of the entire Purchase Price for all Debentures subject to such Purchase Notice. If the holder fails to indicate, in the Purchase Notice and in any written notice of withdrawal relating to such Purchase Notice, such holder's choice with respect to the election described in clause (iv) above, such holder shall be deemed to have elected to receive cash in respect of the entire Purchase Price for all Debentures subject to such Purchase Notice in such circumstances. For a discussion of the tax treatment of a holder receiving cash or Common Stock pursuant to its election to tender its Debentures to the Company on a Purchase Date, see "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations."

Any Purchase Notice may be withdrawn by the holder by a written notice of withdrawal delivered to the paying agent prior to the close of business on the Purchase Date. The notice of withdrawal shall state the principal amount at maturity and the certificate numbers of the Debentures as to which the withdrawal notice relates and the principal amount at maturity, if any, which remains subject to the Purchase Notice.

The Purchase Price payable in respect of a Debenture shall be equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the Purchase Date. The table below shows the Purchase Prices of a Debenture as of the specified Purchase Dates. The Company may elect to pay the Purchase Price payable as of any Purchase Date in cash or Common Stock or any combination thereof.

Purchase Date	Purchase Price
March 25, 2003	$476.75
March 25, 2008	610.27
March 25, 2013	781.20

If the Company elects to pay the Purchase Price, in whole or in part, in Common Stock, the number of shares to be delivered in respect of the portion of the Purchase Price to be paid in Common Stock shall be equal to such portion of the Purchase Price divided by the Market Price (as defined) of the Common Stock. However, no fractional shares of Common Stock will be delivered upon any purchase by the Company of Debentures through the delivery of Common Stock in payment, in whole or in part, of the Purchase Price. Instead, the Company will pay cash based on the Market Price for all fractional shares of Common Stock.

The Company will give notice (the "Company Notice") not less than 20 Business Days prior to the Purchase Date (the "Company Notice Date") to all holders at their addresses shown in the register of the registrar (and to beneficial owners as required by applicable law) stating, among other things, whether the Company will pay the Purchase Price of the Debentures in cash or Common Stock, or any combination thereof (specifying the percentage of each) and, if the Company elects to pay in Common Stock, in whole or in part, the method of calculating the Market Price of the Common Stock.

The "Market Price" means the average of the Sale Prices (as defined) of the Common Stock for the five trading day period ending on the third Business Day prior to the applicable Purchase Date (if the third Business Day prior to the applicable Purchase Date is a trading day or, if it is not a trading day, then on the last trading day prior to such third Business Day), appropriately adjusted to take into account the occurrence during the period commencing on the first of such trading days during such five trading day period and ending on such Purchase Date of certain events that would result in an adjustment of the Conversion Rate under the Indenture with respect to the Common Stock. The "Sale Price" of the Common Stock on any date means the closing per share sale price (or if no closing sale price is reported, the average bid and ask prices or, if more than one in either case, the average of the average bid and average ask prices) on such date as reported in the composite transactions for the principal United States securities exchange on which the Common Stock is traded or, if the Common Stock is not listed on a United States national or regional stock exchange, as reported by the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation System. Because the Market Price of the Common Stock is determined prior to the applicable Purchase Date, holders of Debentures bear the market risk with respect to the value of the Common Stock to be received from the date of determination of such Market Price to such Purchase Date. The Company may elect to pay the Purchase Price in Common Stock only if the information necessary to calculate the Market Price is reported in a daily newspaper of national circulation.

Upon determination of the actual number of shares of Common Stock in accordance with the foregoing provisions, the Company will publish such determination in a daily newspaper of national circulation.

The Company's right to purchase Debentures with Common Stock is subject to the satisfaction of various conditions, including: (i) the registration of the Common Stock under the Securities Act, if required; and (ii) compliance with other applicable federal and state securities laws, if any. If such conditions are not satisfied by a Purchase Date, the Company will pay the Purchase Price of the Debentures to be purchased on such Purchase Date entirely in cash. See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations." The Company will comply with the provisions of Rule 13e-4 and any other tender offer rules under the Exchange Act which may then be applicable and will file a Schedule 13E-4 or any other schedule required thereunder in connection with any offer by the Company to purchase Debentures at the option of holders.

Payment of the Purchase Price for a Debenture for which a Purchase Notice has been delivered and not withdrawn is conditioned upon book-entry transfer or delivery of such Debenture (together with necessary endorsements) to the paying agent at its office in the Borough of Manhattan, The City of New York, or any other office of the paying agent maintained for such purpose, at any time (whether prior to, on or after the Purchase Date) after delivery of such Purchase Notice. Payment of the Purchase Price for such Debenture will be made promptly following the later of the Purchase Date or the time of book-entry transfer or delivery of such Debenture. If the paying agent holds, in accordance with the terms of the Indenture, money or securities sufficient to pay the Purchase Price of such Debenture on the Business Day following the Purchase Date, then, on and after such date, such Debenture will cease to be outstanding and Original Issue Discount on such Debenture will cease to accrue whether or not book-entry transfer of such Debenture is made or such Debenture is delivered to the paying agent, and all other rights of the holder shall terminate (other than the right to receive the Purchase Price upon delivery of the Debenture).

No Debentures may be purchased at the option of the holder for cash if there has occurred (prior to, on or after the giving by the holders of such Debentures of the required Purchase Notice) and is continuing an Event of Default described under "Events of Default; Notice and Waiver" below (other than a default in the payment of the Purchase Price with respect to such Debentures).

If the Company becomes obligated to purchase any outstanding Debenture on a Purchase Date, there can be no assurance that the Company would have sufficient funds to pay the Purchase Price on that Purchase Date (in which case, the Company could be required to issue shares of Common Stock to pay the Purchase Price at valuations based on then prevailing market prices) for all the Debentures tendered by the holders thereof. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will prohibit the purchase of the Debentures for cash but will permit the purchase of Debentures with shares of Common Stock on a Purchase Date. There can be no assurance that any future credit agreements (including an extension of the New Credit Facility) or other agreements relating to indebtedness (including Senior Indebtedness) to which the Company becomes a party will not contain prohibitions on or defaults with respect to the repurchase of the Debentures or provide that prepayment or redemption would constitute an event of default. In the event a Purchase Date occurs at a time when the Company is prohibited from repurchasing the Debentures, the Company could seek the consent of its then existing lenders to repurchase the Debentures or could attempt to refinance the borrowings that contain such prohibition. If the Company does not obtain such a consent or repay such borrowings, the Company would remain prohibited from repurchasing the Debentures. The Company's failure to repurchase Debentures required to be repurchased under the terms of the Indenture would constitute an Event of Default under the Indenture and would likely constitute a default under the terms of any other indebtedness of the Company outstanding at such time, including Senior Indebtedness. In such circumstances, the subordination provisions in the Indenture would prohibit or restrict payments to the holders of Debentures.

Subordination of Debentures

The Indebtedness evidenced by the Debentures is subordinated to the extent provided in the Indenture to the prior payment in full in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness of all existing and future Senior Indebtedness. Such subordination will not prevent the occurrence of any Event of Default under the Indenture.

Upon any distribution of assets of the Company upon any dissolution, winding up, voluntary or involuntary bankruptcy, insolvency, liquidation, reorganization, receivership or similar proceeding relating to the Company or its property, an assignment for the benefit of creditors or any marshaling of the Company's assets or liabilities, the holders of Senior Indebtedness will be entitled to receive payment in full, in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness, of all obligations due in respect of such Senior Indebtedness before the holders of Debentures will be entitled to receive any payment of the principal amount at maturity, Issue Price, accrued Original Issue Discount, Redemption Price, Purchase Price, Fundamental Change Redemption Price, interest, if any, Liquidated Damages, if any, or any other payment in respect of the Debentures (a "Payment on the Debentures"), and until all obligations with respect to Senior Indebtedness are paid in full in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness, any Payment on the Debentures to which the holders of Debentures would be entitled shall be made to the holders of Senior Indebtedness. By reason of the subordination, in the event of the Company's dissolution, winding up, bankruptcy, insolvency, liquidation, reorganization, receivership or similar proceeding relating to the Company or its property, an assignment for the benefit of creditors or any marshaling of the Company's assets or liabilities, holders of Senior Indebtedness may receive more, ratably, and the holders of Debentures may receive less, ratably, than the other creditors of the Company.

In the event that the Debentures are declared due and payable prior to their stated maturity by reason of the occurrence of an Event of Default, then the Company is obligated to notify promptly holders of Senior Indebtedness of such acceleration. The Company may not pay monies owed pursuant to the Debentures until 120 days have passed after such acceleration occurs and may thereafter pay the Debentures if the terms of the Indenture otherwise permit payment at that time.

The Company also may not make any Payment on the Debentures if (i) a default in any payment obligations in respect of Senior Indebtedness occurs and is continuing, without regard to any applicable period of grace (whether at maturity or at a date fixed for payment or by declaration or otherwise) (each a "payment default") or (ii) any other default occurs and is continuing with respect to Designated Senior Indebtedness that permits holders of the Designated Senior Indebtedness as to which such default relates to accelerate its maturity and the Trustee receives a notice of such default (a "Payment Blockage Notice") from the Company or from a representative for any issue of Designated Senior Indebtedness. Payments on the Debentures may and shall be resumed (a) in case of a payment default, the earlier of the date on which such default is cured or waived in accordance with the terms of the governing instrument or ceases to exist and (b) in case of a nonpayment default, the earlier of the date on which such nonpayment default is cured or waived in accordance with the terms of the governing instrument or ceases to exist or 179 days after the date on which the applicable Payment Blockage Notice is received by the Trustee if the terms of the Indenture otherwise permit payment at that time. No new period of payment blockage may be commenced pursuant to a Payment Blockage Notice unless and until 365 days have elapsed since the initial effectiveness of the immediately prior Payment Blockage Notice. No nonpayment default that existed or was continuing on the date of delivery of any Payment Blockage Notice to the Trustee shall be, or shall be made, the basis for a subsequent Payment Blockage Notice unless such default shall have been cured or waived for a period of not less than 90 days (it being acknowledged that (x) any action of the Company or any of its subsidiaries occurring subsequent to delivery of a Payment Blockage Notice that would give rise to any event of default pursuant to any provision of Senior Indebtedness under which an event of default previously existed (or was continuing at the time of delivery of such Payment Blockage Notice) shall constitute a new event of default for this purpose and (y) any breach of a financial covenant giving rise to a nonpayment default for a period ending subsequent to the date of delivery of the respective Payment Blockage Notice shall constitute a new event of default for this purpose).

The term "Senior Indebtedness" means the principal of, premium, if any, interest (including all interest accruing subsequent to, or which would accrue but for, the commencement of any bankruptcy or similar proceeding, whether or not a claim for post-petition interest is allowable as a claim in any such proceeding), original issue discount, rent and end of term payments payable on or in connection with, and, to the extent not included in the foregoing, all amounts payable as fees, costs, expenses, liquidated damages, indemnities, repurchase and other put obligations and other amounts to the extent accrued or due on or in connection with, Secured Indebtedness (as defined) of the Company, whether outstanding on the date of the Indenture or thereafter created, incurred, assumed, guaranteed or in effect guaranteed by the Company (including all deferrals, renewals, extensions or refundings of, or amendments, modifications or supplements to, the foregoing). Notwithstanding the foregoing, the term Senior Indebtedness shall not include (i) Indebtedness of the Company to any subsidiary of the Company, a majority of the voting stock of which is owned, directly or indirectly, by the Company, (ii) accounts payable or other indebtedness to trade creditors created or assumed by the Company in the ordinary course of business and (iii) any particular Indebtedness in which the instrument creating or evidencing the same or the assumption or guarantee thereof expressly provides that such Indebtedness shall not be senior in right of payment to, or is pari passu with, or is subordinated or junior to, the Debentures.

The term "Indebtedness" means, with respect to any Person (as defined) and without duplication: (a) all indebtedness, obligations and other liabilities (contingent or otherwise) of such Person for borrowed money (including obligations of the Company in respect of overdrafts, foreign exchange contracts, currency exchange agreements, interest rate protection agreements, and any loans or advances, whether or not evidenced by notes or similar instruments) or evidenced by bonds, debentures, notes or similar instruments (whether or not the recourse of the lender is to the whole of the assets of such Person or to only a portion thereof); (b) all reimbursement obligations and other liabilities (contingent or otherwise) of such Person with respect to letters of credit, bank guarantees, bankers' acceptances or similar facilities; (c) all obligations and liabilities (contingent or otherwise) in respect of leases of such Person (i) required, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles, to be accounted for as capitalized lease obligations on the balance sheet of such Person, or (ii) required, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles, to be accounted for as an operating lease, provided either (A) such operating lease requires, at the end of the term thereof, that such Person make any payment other than accrued periodic rent in the event that such Person does not acquire the leased real property and related fixtures subject to such lease or (B) such Person has an option to acquire the leased real property and related fixtures, whether such option is exercisable at any time or under specified circumstances; (d) all obligations of such Person (contingent or otherwise) with respect to an interest rate swap, cap or collar agreement or other similar instrument or agreement or foreign currency hedge or exchange agreement or other similar instrument or agreement; (e) all direct or indirect guaranties or similar agreements by such Person in respect of, and obligations or liabilities (contingent or otherwise) of such Person to purchase or otherwise acquire or otherwise assure a creditor against loss in respect of, indebtedness, obligations or liabilities of another Person of the kind described in clauses (a) through (d); (f) any indebtedness or other obligations described in clauses (a) through (d) secured by any mortgage, pledge, lien or other encumbrance existing on property which is owned or held by such Person, regardless of whether the indebtedness or other obligation secured thereby shall have been assumed by such Person; and (g) any and all deferrals, renewals, extensions and refundings of, or amendments, modifications or supplements to, any indebtedness, obligation or liability of the kind described in clauses (a) through (f).

The term "Designated Senior Indebtedness" means (i) Senior Indebtedness incurred under the New Credit Facility or (ii) any other particular Senior Indebtedness in which the instrument creating or evidencing the same or the assumption or guarantee thereof (or related agreements or documents to which the Company is a party) expressly provides that such Senior Indebtedness shall be "Designated Senior Indebtedness" for purposes of the Indenture; provided that such instrument, agreement or other document may place limitations and conditions on the right of such Senior Indebtedness to exercise the rights of Designated Senior Indebtedness.

The term "Secured Indebtedness" means, with respect to any Person, Indebtedness of such Person secured by any mortgage, pledge, lien or other encumbance existing on the property or assets which is owned or held by such Person.

The Debentures are obligations exclusively of the Company. Since the operations of the Company are conducted through subsidiaries, the cash flow and the consequent ability to service debt, including the Debentures, are dependent upon the earnings of its subsidiaries and the distribution of those earnings to, or upon loans or other payments of funds by those subsidiaries to, the Company. The subsidiaries are separate and distinct legal entities and have no obligation, contingent or otherwise, to pay any amount pursuant to the Debentures or to make any funds available therefor, whether by dividends, loans or other payments. In addition, the payment of dividends and making of loans and advances to the Company by its subsidiaries are subject to statutory or contractual restrictions, including those expected under the New Credit Facility, are contingent upon the earnings of those subsidiaries and are subject to various business considerations.

Any right of the Company to receive assets of any of its subsidiaries upon their liquidation or reorganization (and the consequent right of the holders of the Debentures to participate in those assets) will be effectively subordinated to the claims of that subsidiary's creditors (including trade creditors), except to the extent that the Company is itself recognized as a creditor of such subsidiary, in which case the claims of the Company would still be subordinate to any security interests in the assets of such subsidiary and any indebtedness of such subsidiary senior to that held by the Company.

At December 28, 1997, on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing, the Offering and the application of the net proceeds therefrom, approximately $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness would have been outstanding and the Company's subsidiaries would have had approximately $731 million of indebtedness and other liabilities outstanding (excluding intercompany liabilities and liabilities of a type not required to be reflected on a balance sheet in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles) to which the Debentures would have been effectively subordinated. The Debentures rank pari passu with all outstanding indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company, including trade payables. Upon the consummation of the Offering, on a pro forma basis the Company will have no outstanding indebtedness or other liabilities other than trade payables. The Indenture will not limit the amount of additional indebtedness, including Senior Indebtedness, which the Company can create, incur, assume or guarantee, nor will the Indenture limit the amount of indebtedness which any subsidiary can create, incur, assume or guarantee.

In the event that, notwithstanding the foregoing, the Trustee or any holder of the Debentures receives any payment or distribution of assets of the Company of any kind in contravention of any of the subordination provisions of the Indenture, whether in cash, property or securities, including, without limitation, by way of set-off or otherwise, in respect of the Debentures before all Senior Indebtedness is paid in full in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness, then such payment or distribution will be held by the recipient in trust for the benefit of holders of Senior Indebtedness or their representatives to the extent necessary to make payment in full in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness of all Senior Indebtedness remaining unpaid, after giving effect to any concurrent payment or distribution, or provision therefor, to or for the holders of Senior Indebtedness.

The Company is obligated to pay reasonable compensation to the Trustee and to indemnify the Trustee against certain losses, liabilities or expenses incurred by it in connection with its duties relating to the Debentures. The Trustee's claims for such payments will generally be senior to those of holders of the Debentures in respect of all funds collected or held by the Trustee.

Events of Default; Notice and Waiver

The Indenture provides that, if an Event of Default specified therein shall have occurred and be continuing, either the Trustee or the holders of not less than 25% in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the Debentures then outstanding may declare the Issue Price of the Debentures plus the Original Issue Discount on the Debentures and any liquidated damages under the Registration Rights Agreement accrued to the date of such declaration to be immediately due and payable, but if the Company shall cure all defaults (except the nonpayment of Issue Price and accrued Original Issue Discount which shall have become due by acceleration) and certain other conditions are met, such declaration may be annulled and past defaults may be waived by the holders of a majority in principal amount at maturity of the Debentures then outstanding. In the case of certain events of bankruptcy or insolvency, the Issue Price of the Debentures plus the Original Issue Discount accrued thereon to the occurrence of such event shall automatically become and be immediately due and payable. Under certain circumstances, the holders of a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures may rescind any such acceleration with respect to the Debentures and its consequences. Interest shall accrue at the rate of 5.0% per annum and be payable on demand upon a default in the payment of the Issue Price, accrued Original Issue Discount, accrued liquidated damages, if any, or any Redemption Price, Purchase Price or Fundamental Change Redemption Price to the extent that payment of such interest shall be legally enforceable

Under the Indenture, Events of Default are defined as: (1) default in payment of the principal amount at maturity, Issue Price, accrued Original Issue Discount, accrued Liquidated Damages, if any, Redemption Price, Purchase Price or Fundamental Change Redemption Price with respect to any Debenture when such becomes due and payable (whether or not payment is prohibited by the subordination provisions of the Indenture), provided that in the case of any failure to pay Liquidated Damages, such failure continues for a period of 30 days; (ii) failure by the Company to comply with any of its other agreements in the Debentures or the Indenture upon the receipt by the Company of notice of such default by the Trustee or by holders of not less than 25% in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the Debentures then outstanding and the Company's failure to cure such default within 60 days after receipt by the Company of such notice; or (iii) certain events of bankruptcy or insolvency.

The Trustee shall give notice to holders of the Debentures of any continuing default known to the Trustee within 90 days after the occurrence thereof, provided that the Trustee may withhold such notice if it determines in good faith that withholding the notice is in the interests of the holders.

The holders of a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures may direct the time, method and place of conducting any proceeding for any remedy available to the Trustee or exercising any trust or power conferred on the Trustee; provided that such direction shall not be in conflict with any law or the Indenture and subject to certain other limitations. Before proceeding to exercise any right or power under the Indenture at the direction of such holders, the Trustee shall be entitled to receive from such holders reasonable security or indemnity satisfactory to it against the costs, expenses and liabilities which might be incurred by it in complying with any such direction. No holder of any Debenture will have any right to pursue any remedy with respect to the Indenture or the Debentures, unless (i) such holder shall have previously given the Trustee written notice of a continuing Event of Default; (ii) the holders of at least 25% in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures shall have made a written request to the Trustee to pursue such remedy; (iii) such holder or holders have offered to the Trustee reasonable indemnity satisfactory to the Trustee; (iv) the holders of a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures have not given the Trustee a direction inconsistent with such request within 60 days after receipt of such request; and (v) the Trustee shall have failed to comply with the request within such 60-day period.

In the event that the Debentures are declared due and payable prior to their stated maturity by reason of the occurrence of an Event of Default, then the Company is obligated to notify promptly holders of Senior Indebtedness of such acceleration. The Company may not pay monies owed pursuant to the Debentures until 120 days have passed after such acceleration occurs and may thereafter pay the Debentures if the terms of the Indenture otherwise permit payment at that time.

However, the right of any holder (x) to receive payment of the principal amount at maturity, Issue Price, accrued Original Issue Discount, Redemption Price, Purchase Price, Fundamental Change Redemption Price and any interest in respect of a default in the payment of any such amounts on a Debenture, on or after the due date expressed in such Debenture, (y) to institute suit for the enforcement of any such payments or conversion or (z) to convert Debentures shall not be impaired or adversely affected without such holder's consent. The holders of at least a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures may waive an existing default and its consequences, other than (i) any default in any payment on the Debentures, (ii) any default with respect to the conversion rights of the Debentures or (iii) any default in respect of certain covenants or provisions in the Indenture which may not be modified without the consent of the holder of each Debenture as described in "Modification" below. The Company will be required to furnish to the Trustee annually a statement as to any default by the Company in the performance and observance of its obligations under the Indenture.

Mergers and Sales of Assets by the Company

The Company may not consolidate with or merge into any other person or convey, transfer or lease its properties and assets substantially as an entirety to another person, unless, among other items, (i) the resulting, surviving or transferee person (if other than the Company) is organized and existing under the laws of the United States, any state thereof or the District of Columbia, (ii) such successor person assumes all obligations of the Company under the Debentures and the Indenture and (iii) the Company or such successor person shall not immediately thereafter be in default under the Indenture. Upon the assumption of the Company's obligations by such person in such circumstances, subject to certain exceptions, the Company shall be discharged from all obligations under the Debentures and the Indenture. Certain such transactions which would constitute a Fundamental Change would permit each holder to require the Company to redeem the Debentures of such holder as described under "Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change."

Modification

Modification and amendment of the Indenture or the Debentures may be effected by the Company and the Trustee with the consent of the holders of not less than a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the Debentures then outstanding. Notwithstanding the foregoing, no such amendment may, without the consent of each holder affected thereby: (i) reduce the principal amount at maturity, Issue Price, Purchase Price, Fundamental Change Redemption Price or Redemption Price, or extend the stated maturity of any Debenture or alter the manner or rate of accrual of Original Issue Discount or interest, or make any Debenture payable in money or securities other than that stated in the Debenture; (ii) make any change to the principal amount at maturity of Debentures whose holders must consent to an amendment or any waiver under the Indenture or modify the Indenture provisions relating to such amendments or waivers; (iii) make any change that adversely affects the right to convert any Debenture or the right to require the Company to purchase a Debenture or the right to require the Company to redeem a Debenture upon a Fundamental Change; (iv) modify the provisions of the Indenture relating to the subordination of the Debentures in a manner adverse to the holders of the Debentures in any material respect; or (v) impair the right to institute suit for the enforcement of any payment with respect to, or conversion of, the Debentures. The Indenture also provides for certain modifications of its terms without the consent of the holders. No amendment may be made to the subordination provisions of the Indenture that adversely affects the rights of any holder of Senior Indebtedness then outstanding, unless the holders of such Senior Indebtedness (as required pursuant to the terms of such Senior Indebtedness) consent to such change.

Limitations of Claims in Bankruptcy

If a bankruptcy proceeding is commenced in respect of the Company, the claim of the holder of a Debenture is, under Title 11 of the United States Code, limited to the Issue Price of the Debenture plus that portion of the Original Issue Discount that has accrued from the date of issue to the commencement of the proceeding. In addition, the Debentures will be subordinated in right of payment to Senior Indebtedness to the extent set forth in the Indenture and effectively subordinated to the indebtedness and other obligations of the Company's subsidiaries. See "Subordination of Debentures" above.

Taxation of Debentures

See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations" for a discussion of certain tax considerations relevant to a holder of Debentures.

Rule 144A Information Requirement

The Company has agreed to furnish to the holders or beneficial holders of the Debentures or Common Stock issued upon conversion thereof and prospective purchasers of the Debentures or such Common Stock designated by such holders, upon their request, the information required to be delivered pursuant to Rule 144A(d)(4) under the Securities Act until such time as such securities are no longer "restricted securities" within the meaning of Rule 144 under the Securities Act (assuming such securities have not been owned by an affiliate of the Company).

Information Concerning the Trustee

The Bank of New York, as Trustee under the Indenture, has been appointed by the Company as paying agent, conversion agent, registrar and custodian with regard to the Debentures. The Indenture provides that, except during the continuance of an Event of Default, the Trustee thereunder will exercise such rights and powers vested in it under the Indenture and use the same degree of care and skill in its exercise as a prudent person would exercise under the circumstances in the conduct of such person's own affairs.

The Indenture and provisions of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939, as amended ("TIA"), incorporated by reference therein contain limitations on the rights of the Trustee thereunder, should it become a creditor of the Company, to obtain payment of certain claims in certain cases or to realize on certain property received by it in respect of any such claims, as security or otherwise. The Trustee is permitted to engage in other transactions, provided, however, that if it acquires any conflicting interest (within the meaning of the TIA) it must eliminate such conflicting interest or resign.

REGISTRATION RIGHTS

A copy of the Registration Rights Agreement will be available from the Trustee upon request by a registered holder of the Debentures. The following summary of certain provisions of the Registration Rights Agreement does not purport to be complete and is subject to, and is qualified in its entirety by reference to, all the provisions of the Registration Rights Agreement, including the definitions of certain terms that are not otherwise defined in this Offering Memorandum. The Company will enter into a registration rights agreement with the Initial Purchaser (the "Registration Rights Agreement") pursuant to which the Company, at its expense, will, for the benefit of the holders, file with the Commission the Shelf Registration Statement covering resale of the Registrable Securities as soon as practicable, but in any event within 90 days after the first date of original issuance of the Debentures. The Company will use its best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to become effective as promptly as is practicable, but in any event within 180 days of such first date of original issuance and to keep the Shelf Registration Statement effective until the earlier of (i) the sale pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement of all the securities registered thereunder and (ii) the expiration of the holding period applicable to such securities held by persons that are not affiliates of the Company under Rule 144(k) under the Securities Act, or any successor provision, subject to certain permitted exceptions. The Company will be permitted to suspend the use of the prospectus that is a part of the Shelf Registration Statement under certain circumstances relating to pending corporate developments, public filings with the Commission and similar events for a period not to exceed 30 days in any three-month period or not to exceed an aggregate of 90 days in any 12-month period; provided, however, that the Company will be permitted to suspend the use of the prospectus for a period not to exceed 60 days in any 3-month period or 90 days in any 12-month period under certain circumstances relating to probable acquisitions, acquisitions, financings or similar transactions. The Company will agree to pay predetermined liquidated damages as described herein ("Liquidated Damages") to holders of Debentures and holders of Common Stock issued upon conversion of the Debentures if the Shelf Registration Statement is not timely filed or made effective or if the prospectus is unavailable for periods in excess of those permitted above. Such Liquidated Damages shall accrue until such failure to file or become effective or unavailability is cured, (i) in respect of any Debenture, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% for the first 90 day period after the occurrence of such event and 0.5% thereafter on an amount equal to the sum of the Issue Price of the Debenture plus accrued Original Issue Discount thereon and, (ii) in respect of each share of Common Stock, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% for the first 90 day period and 0.5% thereafter on the then applicable conversion price for a share of Common Stock which equals the Issue Price of $1,000 principal amount at maturity of Debentures plus accrued Original Issue Discount thereon divided by the Conversion Rate in effect. A holder who sells Debentures and Common Stock issued upon conversion of the Debentures pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement generally will be required to be named as a selling stockholder in the related prospectus, deliver a prospectus to purchasers of such Debentures and/or Common Stock issued upon conversion thereof and be bound by certain provisions of the Registration Rights Agreement that are applicable to such holder (including certain indemnification provisions). The Company will pay all expenses of the Shelf Registration Statement, provide to each registered holder copies of such prospectus, notify each registered holder when the Shelf Registration Statement has become effective and take certain other actions as are required to permit, subject to the foregoing, unrestricted resales of the Debentures and the Common Stock issued upon conversion of the Debentures. The plan of distribution of the Shelf Registration Statement will permit resales of Registrable Securities by selling security holders through brokers and dealers.

Attached to this Offering Memorandum as Appendix B is a notice and questionnaire (the "Questionnaire") to be completed and delivered by a holder to the Company at least three business days prior to any intended distribution of Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement. Holders are required to complete and deliver the Questionnaire prior to the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement so that such holders may be named as selling stockholders in the related prospectus at the time of effectiveness. Upon receipt of such a completed Questionnaire, together with such other information as may be reasonably requested by the Company, from a holder following the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement, the Company will, as promptly as practicable but in any event within five business days of such receipt, file such amendments to the Shelf Registration Statement or supplements to the related prospectus as are necessary to permit such holder to deliver such prospectus to purchasers of Registrable Securities (subject to the Company's right to suspend the use of the prospectus as described above). The Company has agreed to pay Liquidated Damages in the amount set forth above to such holder if the Company fails to make such filing in the time required or, if such filing is a post-effective amendment to the Shelf Registration Statement required to be declared effective under the Securities Act, if such amendment is not declared effective within 45 days of the filing thereof. Any holder that does not complete and deliver a Questionnaire or provide such other information will not be named as a selling stockholder in the prospectus and therefore will not be permitted to sell any Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement.

DESCRIPTION OF CAPITAL STOCK

The Company's authorized capital stock consists of 200,000,000 shares of Common Stock, par value $.01 per share and 2,000,000 shares of preferred stock, par value $.01 per share.

Common Stock

As of February 27, 1998, there were 86,457,201 shares of Common Stock outstanding. Each share of Common Stock has one vote on all matters upon which stockholders are entitled or permitted to vote, including the election of directors. There are no cumulative voting rights. Shares of Common Stock would participate ratably in any distribution of assets in a liquidation, dissolution or winding up of the Company, subject to prior distribution rights of any shares of preferred stock then outstanding. The Common Stock has no preemptive rights or conversion rights nor are there any redemption or sinking fund provisions applicable to the Common Stock. Holders of Common Stock are entitled to participate in dividends as and when declared by the Company's Board of Directors out of funds legally available therefor. The Company's ability to pay cash dividends is subject to certain restrictions. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will contain limitations on the ability of the Company to pay dividends. The Company's Proxy Statement for its next annual meeting which is scheduled for May 13, 1998, includes an amendment to the Company's Restated Certificate of Incorporation increasing the total number of authorized shares of Common Stock to 500,000,000 shares from 200,000,000 shares.

The transfer agent and registrar for the Common Stock is The Bank of New York.

Preferred Stock

There are no shares of preferred stock currently outstanding. The Certificate of Incorporation provides that the Board of Directors of the Company may authorize the issuance of one or more series of preferred stock having such rights, including voting, conversion and redemption rights, and such preferences, including dividend and liquidation preferences, as the Board may determine without any further action by the stockholders of the Company.

Delaware General Corporation Law Section 203

Section 203 of the Delaware General Corporation Law (the "DGCL") prohibits certain transactions between a Delaware corporation and an "interested stockholder," which is defined as a person who, together with any affiliate and/or associates of such person, beneficially owns, directly or indirectly, 15% or more of the outstanding voting shares of a Delaware corporation. This provision prohibits certain business combinations (defined broadly to include mergers, consolidations, sales or other dispositions of assets having an aggregate value in excess of 10% of the consolidated assets of the corporation or the aggregate value of all of the outstanding capital stock of the corporation, and certain transactions that would increase the interested stockholder's proportionate share ownership in the corporation) between an interested stockholder and a corporation for a period of three years after the date the interested stockholder acquired its stock, unless (i) the business combination is approved by the corporation's board of directors prior to the date the interested stockholder acquired shares, (ii) the interested stockholder acquired at least 85% of the voting stock of the corporation in the transaction in which it became an interested stockholder or (iii) the business combination is approved by a majority of the board of directors and by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the votes entitled to be cast by disinterested stockholders at an annual or special meeting. Any future election to opt out of Section 203 can be effected only by an amendment to the Certificate of Incorporation or the Bylaws. Any such election would not be effective until 12 months after the adoption of such amendment and would not apply to a business combination with any interested stockholder who became such on or prior to the date of adoption.

CERTAIN UNITED STATES FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS

The following is a summary of certain material U.S. federal income tax considerations relating to the purchase, ownership and disposition of the Debentures and Common Stock to a holder of a Debenture or Common Stock that is, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, (i) a citizen or resident of the United States, (ii) a corporation, partnership or other entity created or organized in or under the laws of the United States or any political subdivision thereof, (iii) an estate, the income of which is subject to United States federal income taxation regardless of its source, or (iv) a trust, the administration of which is subject to the primary supervision of a court within the United States and which has one or more United States persons with authority to control all substantial decisions. This summary is based on laws regulations, rulings and decisions now in effect, all of which are subject to change, possibly with retroactive effect. There can be no assurance that the Internal Revenue Service (the "IRS") will not challenge one or more of the tax consequences described herein, and the Company has not obtained, nor does it intend to obtain, a ruling from the IRS or an opinion of counsel as to any U.S. federal income tax consequences relating to the Debentures.

This summary deals only with holders of Debentures who purchase the Debentures pursuant to the Offering and hold the Debentures and any Common Stock into which the Debentures are converted as capital assets. This summary does not address tax considerations applicable to investors that may be subject to special tax rules (including, without limitation, banks, insurance companies, tax-exempt entities, regulated investment companies, common trust funds, dealers in securities, or persons who hold Debentures or Common Stock as part of a hedge conversion or constructive sale transaction, straddle or other risk reduction transaction). This discussion also does not address the tax consequences arising under the laws of any foreign, state or local jurisdiction.

INVESTORS CONSIDERING THE PURCHASE OF A DEBENTURE SHOULD CONSULT THEIR OWN TAX ADVISORS AS TO THE PARTICULAR TAX CONSEQUENCES TO THEM OF ACQUIRING, HOLDING, CONVERTING OR OTHERWISE DISPOSING OF THE DEBENTURES AND COMMON STOCK, INCLUDING THE EFFECT AND THE APPLICABILITY OF STATE, LOCAL OR FOREIGN TAX LAWS.

Original Issue Discount on the Debentures. The Debentures are being issued at a substantial discount from their stated redemption price at maturity. For U.S. federal income tax purposes, the excess of the stated redemption price at maturity of each Debenture over its issue price (which is expected to be the Issue Price) constitutes Original Issue Discount ("OID"). The issue price of the Debentures will equal the initial price at which a substantial amount of the Debentures is sold for cash (other than to bond houses, brokers or similar persons or organizations acting in the capacity of underwriters, placement agents or wholesalers), and the stated redemption price at maturity of a Debenture will be the sum of all payments due under the Debenture (which is expected to be the principal amount at maturity).

For U.S. federal income tax purposes, each holder of a Debenture must include in gross income a portion of the OID in each taxable year during which the Debenture is held in an amount equal to the OID that accrues on the Debenture during such period, determined by using a constant yield to maturity method. The OID included in income for each year will be calculated under a compounding formula that will result in the allocation of less OID to the earlier years of the term of the Debenture and more OID to later years. For the approximate cumulative total amount of OID accrued annually, see the chart under "Description of Debentures—Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company." Any amount included in income as OID will increase a holder's tax basis in the Debenture.

Sale, Exchange or Retirement of the Debentures. A holder's tax basis for determining gain or loss on the sale or other disposition of a Debenture will generally equal the holder's cost of the Debenture increased by any accrued OID includible in such holder's gross income and reduced by payments, if any. Except as described in the next paragraph, upon the sale, exchange or retirement of a Debenture, a holder will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount realized on the sale or other disposition of the Debenture and the

CP 033233
CONFIDENTIAL

holder's tax basis in such Debenture. Gain or loss realized on the sale, exchange or retirement of a Debenture will generally be capital gain or loss and will be long-term capital gain or loss if the Debenture is held for more than one year.

If a holder elects to exercise its option to cause the Company to purchase its Debentures on a Purchase Date and the Company issues Common Stock in satisfaction of all of the Purchase Price, the exchange of the Debentures for Common Stock should generally not be a taxable event (except with respect to cash received in lieu of a fractional share). A holder's tax basis in the Common Stock received in such exchange of a Debenture should be the same as the holder's tax basis in the Debenture at the time of the conversion (except for any tax basis allocable to a fractional share) and the holding period for the Common Stock received in such exchange should include the holding period of the Debenture exchanged. If the Purchase Price is paid with a combination of Common Stock and cash, gain (but not loss) realized by the holder should be recognized, but only to the extent of the cash received (including cash received in lieu of a fractional share). A holder's tax basis in the Common Stock received should be the same as such holder's tax basis in the Debenture at the time of the conversion (except for any portion allocable to a fractional share of Common Stock), increased by the amount of gain recognized (other than with respect to a fractional share) and decreased by the amount of any cash received (except cash received in lieu of a fractional share). The holding period for Common Stock received in the exchange should include the holding period of the Debenture tendered to the Company in exchange therefor. The receipt of cash in lieu of a fractional share of Common Stock should generally result in capital gain or loss, measured by the difference between the amount of cash received for the fractional share and the holder's tax basis in the fractional share interest.

Conversion of Debentures. A holder's conversion of a Debenture into Common Stock will generally not be a taxable event (except with respect to cash received in lieu of a fractional share). A tax basis in the Common Stock received on conversion of a Debenture will be the same as the holder's tax basis in the Debenture at the time of conversion (except for any tax basis allocable to a fractional share) and the holding period for the Common Stock received on conversion will include the holding period of the Debenture converted, except that it is possible that the Internal Revenue Service may argue that the holding period of the Common Stock allocable to OID will commence on the date of the conversion and a holder would be required to hold such Common Stock for more than twelve months before long-term capital gain (or loss) treatment could be obtained upon a sale of such Common Stock. The receipt of cash in lieu of a fractional share of Common Stock should generally result in capital gain or loss, measured by the difference between the cash received for the fractional share interest and the holder's tax basis in the fractional share interest.

Dividends; Adjustment of Conversion Price. Dividends, if any, paid on the Common Stock generally will be includible in the income of a holder as ordinary income to the extent of the Company's current or accumulated earnings and profits.

If at any time the Company makes a distribution of property to shareholders that would be taxable to such shareholders as a dividend for federal income tax purposes (for example, distributions of evidences of indebtedness or assets of the Company, but generally not stock dividends or rights to subscribe for Common Stock) and, pursuant to the anti-dilution provisions of the Indenture, the Conversion Rate of the Debentures is increased, such increase may be deemed to be the payment of a taxable dividend to holders of Debentures. If the Conversion Rate is increased at the discretion of the Company or in certain other circumstances, such increase may also be deemed to be the payment of a taxable dividend to holders of Debentures. Moreover, in certain other circumstances, the absence of such an adjustment to the Conversion Rate of the Debentures may result in a taxable dividend to holders of the Common Stock.

Sale of Common Stock. Upon the sale or exchange of Common Stock, holders generally will recognize capital gain or capital loss equal to the difference between the amount realized on such sale or exchange and the holder's adjusted tax basis in such shares.

PLAN OF DISTRIBUTION

Under the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Purchase Agreement between the Company and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated (the "Initial Purchaser") dated March 19, 1998 (the "Purchase Agreement"), the Initial Purchaser has agreed to purchase, and the Company has agreed to sell to the Initial Purchaser, $2,014,000,000, aggregate principal amount at maturity of Debentures at a purchase price of 37.243% of the principal amount at maturity thereof. After the initial offering of the Debentures, the offering price and other selling terms may from time to time be varied by the Initial Purchaser.

The Purchase Agreement provides that the obligation of the Initial Purchaser to pay for and accept delivery of the Debentures is subject to approval of certain legal matters by its counsel and to certain other conditions. The Initial Purchaser is obligated to take and pay for all of the Debentures offered hereby if any are taken (other than the Debentures covered by the overallotment option described below).

The Company has granted to the Initial Purchaser an option, exercisable within 30 days of the date of the Purchase Agreement, to purchase up to an additional $302,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity of the Debentures solely for the purpose of covering over-allotments, if any.

The Purchase Agreement provides that the Company will indemnify the Initial Purchaser against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.

The Company has been advised by the Initial Purchaser that the Initial Purchaser proposes to resell the Debentures initially at the price set forth on the cover page hereof to "qualified institutional buyers" (as defined in Rule 144A under the Securities Act) in reliance on Rule 144A under the Securities Act and to a limited number of other institutional "accredited investors" within the meaning of Rule 501(a)(1), (2), (3) or (7) under the Securities Act, that agree in writing to comply with the transfer restrictions and other conditions set forth in the Purchase Agreement. See "Transfer Restrictions."

The Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act and may not be offered or sold within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. persons except as described in the immediately preceding paragraph.

The Debentures are eligible for trading in The Portal Market. The Initial Purchaser has advised the Company that it presently intends to make a market in the Debentures as permitted by applicable laws and regulations. The Initial Purchaser is not obligated, however, to make a market in the Debentures and any such market making may be discontinued at any time at the sole discretion of the Initial Purchaser. Accordingly, no assurance can be given as to the liquidity of, or trading markets for, the Debentures.

The Company and the directors and current executive officers referred to under "Security Ownership of Management" will agree that they will not (a) offer, pledge, sell, contract to sell, sell any option or contract to purchase, purchase any option or contract to sell, grant any option, right or warrant to purchase, lend, or otherwise transfer or dispose of, directly or indirectly, any shares of Common Stock or any securities convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for Common Stock, or (b) enter into any swap or other arrangement that transfers, in whole or in part, any of the economic consequences of ownership of the Common Stock, whether any such transaction described in clause (a) or (b) above is to be settled by delivery of Common Stock or such other securities, in cash or otherwise, for a 90-day period after the date of this Offering Memorandum, without the prior written consent of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, other than (i) the Debentures offered hereby, (ii) the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures, (iii) securities of the Company (and the agreement to provide such securities) as full or partial consideration in connection with any future acquisitions or strategic investments by the Company or securities of the Company issuable upon exercise or conversion of the foregoing securities; provided that the market value of such securities does not exceed $500 million in the aggregate, (iv) options granted or stock issued upon the exercise of outstanding stock options or otherwise pursuant to the Company's stock option or employee stock purchase plans or other executive compensation arrangements existing at the date of this Offering Memorandum and (v) in connection with the acquisition of CLN Holdings and Coleman.

In order to facilitate the offering of the Debentures and the Common Stock, the Initial Purchaser may engage in transactions that stabilize, maintain or otherwise affect the price of the Debentures or the Common Stock

Specifically, the Initial Purchaser may over-allot in connection with the offering, creating a short position in the Debentures for its own account. In addition, to cover over-allotments or stabilize the price of the Debentures and the Common Stock, the Initial Purchaser may bid for, and purchase, the Debentures or shares of the Common Stock in the open market. Finally, the Initial Purchaser may reclaim selling concessions allowed to dealers for distributing the Debentures in the offering, if the Initial Purchaser repurchases previously distributed Debentures in transactions to cover short positions established by the Initial Purchaser, in stabilization transactions or otherwise. Any of these activities may stabilize or maintain the market price of the Debentures or the Common Stock above independent market levels. The Initial Purchaser is not required to engage in these activities, and may discontinue any of these activities at any time.

The Initial Purchaser has performed various investment banking and other services for the Company in the past, and may do so from time to time in the future. In particular, the Initial Purchaser is acting as the Company's financial advisor in connection with the Aquisitions. In addition, an affiliate of the Initial Purchaser is arranging the New Credit Facility and expects to be a lender thereunder.

- As you know several weeks ago we embarked upon the acquisition of three publicly held companies.
  - -The Coleman transaction has an aggregate value of $2.2 billion of which approximately $815 million in stock and the remainder in cash and assumed debt. Coleman is the leader in outdoor camping & recreation, with great brand names such as Coleman, Powermate, Eastpak in the U.S. and Japan and Camping Gaz throughout Europe.
  - -With this transaction, Ron Perelman becomes our second largest shareholder behind Michael Price. Both men are brilliant investors and they see the potential to make a lot of money with Sunbeam.
  - -The Signature brands transaction is all cash and has an aggregate value of approximately $253 million. They have two great brands, Mr. Coffee and Health o meter and are dominant in North America
  - -The First Alert transaction is also all cash with an aggregate value of approximately $178 million. First Alert is the leader in home fire and carbon monoxide detectors in the U.S. and the U.K.
- With the acquisition of these three companies we essentially triple our annual revenues and take Sunbeam's market capitalization from about a billion, when I arrived, to almost $7 billion.

Sunbeam Vision Statement

"BECOME THE GLOBAL LEADER IN DURABLE CONSUMER PRODUCTS THROUGH THE CONSOLIDATION OF LEADING CONSUMER BRANDS"

- Back in October of 1997 we engaged Morgan Stanley to advise us on how we could created the greatest amount of shareholder value for our investors. We concluded, jointly, that the best way to create additional value at Sunbeam was to take the leadership position in the consolidation of the industries in which we compete.
- Our strategy is to become the global leader in durable consumer products. In my view we will become the P&G of our industry.
- The announcement of these three acquisitions represents merely the initiation of our new strategy.

- I have always had the philosophy that there are 3 fundamental phases to creating shareholder value.
- The first phase, the restructuring, is when you change the management team, cut the costs, divest non-core businesses and develop a strategy for growth. I believe that if a restructuring is to be successful it needs to be completed in 12 months. People will give you a chance to make things better and are willing to change if they can see and share in the results. At Sunbeam we made all of our employees shareholders and we completed the restructuring in July of 1997 - just 12 months from when I started with the company.
- The second phase, the refinement and growth phase, begins when the restructuring initiatives are completed. It is important to continually refine the organization to ensure that you have the most competitive cost structure and that you are properly leveraging the strengths of the organization. In Sunbeam's case for example, we went from 26 factories to 8 during the restructuring, but that didn't mean that our 8 remaining factories were in world class shape. So we went back in and made the necessary investments to relay out and fix our plants.
- The third phase is the quantum leap. When you merge, acquire or sell a company you unleash an enormous amount of hidden value. I believe we did that with these three acquisitions. We'll now start the process over as we structure and consolidate these companies into Sunbeam.

Factories	26

of Warehouses	61

- When I arrived at Sunbeam the company was losing market share in just about every one of their major product lines (grills, blenders, mixers and scales). The top line, excluding acquisitions, was actually declining during the previous three years. And, more importantly to note was that this revenue decline came during a period where the company invested over $300 million in new capital.
- I firmly believe that this company had 9-12 months left before it went bust!
- There was tremendous excess capacity along with underutilized assets and factories. They had two many SKU's, had no budgetary control and had too many people.
- Additionally, margins were essentially non existent and worse of all there was no strategy to fix the company!
- That's why the Board hired me. They knew I would make the necessary difficult decisions to fix the company and restore its profitability.

- As you can see by the dramatic improvement in financial results we were very successful at turning the company around.
- Sales were up 22%, on a normalized basis. This growth represented the first time in company history that we were able to achieve double digit growth without an acquisition. The sales grew due to our strategic initiatives to introduce innovative new products (we introduce 89 last year) and expand our geographic reach (we signed 25 new distribution agreements around the world last year). Underlying this growth was the dramatic improvement in brand awareness - we experienced a 25% improvement due to an all new advertising campaign and new packaging for Sunbeam and Oster products.
- Our margins improved to record levels resulting from the dramatic cost and profit improvement initiatives that we implemented as part of the restructuring and repositioning of the Company. We reduced the number of factories from 26 to 8 and the number of warehouses from 61 to 18. We reduced the number of employees from 12,000 to 6,000, then added people back as the business grew, and we reduced the number of SKU's from over 11,000 to under 2,000.
- All of these initiatives translated into record levels of revenues and earnings for the company, but most importantly, we fixed the underlying business which has provided us with a strong base from which we can now grow.
- Let me take a few minutes to describe some of the specifics of our restructuring as well as the initiatives to refine and grow the company.

- As I mentioned earlier there are four key elements of the restructuring and repositioning of a company. While it is important that all four occur simultaneously, the ability to identify and implement a cost reduction and profit improvement program is critical.
- At Sunbeam we identified $225 million of profit enhancement opportunities. About 60% of the savings was realized in the first year and the balance will be achieved in 1998.
- As you can see the scope of the cost cutting and profit improvement is quite broad.
  - We consolidated the supplier base and used that leverage to obtain lower pricing and improve the overall supply chain
  - We consolidated and rationalized our factories, creating focus factories, which yielded the largest dollar savings
  - We consolidated 6 headquarters into one, reduced redundant functions and outsourced non-core responsibilities (payroll, collections, information systems, etc.)
  - And we enhanced margins by eliminating low margin SKU's and improved pricing by reducing unnecessary give-aways (volume rebates, co-op advertising, allowances, etc.) and in select cases we actually raised prices.
- As you can see it was quite a comprehensive plan to improve our cost structure. And it was all implemented within the first 12 months.

- The second phase, the refinement and growth, is the fun phase. Once all the massive moves and changes were completed, we were able to focus on refining the remaining operations.

- As you can see by both the top and bottom line percentage improvements, we were successful at accelerating the growth and improvement throughout the year. Both on a year over year basis and on a sequential basis. (Our top line was up 13%, 17%, 28% and 31%, respectively during 1997). Most importantly, in the 4th quarter we proved to ourselves that we could achieve a 20% operating margin (this was our three year goal!)

- In addition to the cost savings associated with the restructuring, the addition of 89 new products and 25 new international distribution agreements helped drive double digit sales increases and they favorably enriched the margins as a percentage of sales.

- Once we felt comfortable that the underlying business was fixed and able to support further growth, we engaged Morgan Stanley and began our quest for the third phase - the quantum leap.

- I learned working for Sir James Goldsmith that tremendous shareholder value is typically locked-up within companies because they fail to pursue strategic acquisitions or mergers. I have seen countless times that when companies merge or acquire they are able, through synergies, to unlock tremendous shareholder value.

- We'll continue to unlock shareholder value when we restructure, reposition, refine and grow these companies.

- Look at the chart, this is just a short list of the product lines which we are now number one in the industry. The leadership positions in these categories, both in the U.S. and abroad will enable us to leverage numerous synergies that will accelerate our top an bottom line growth rates.

- Not only do we plan to consolidate these three companies into Sunbeam, we will also take advantage of the geographic synergies. We will use Sunbeam's strength in Latin America to sell Coleman, First Alert, Mr. Coffee and Health o meter products. And we'll use Coleman's strength in Europe and Japan to sell Sunbeam, First Alert, Health o meter and Mr. Coffee products.

- I truly believe Sunbeam is quickly becoming the P&G of the durable consumer products industry. We have a tremendous brand name that is accepted across many different products throughout the house.

- The acquisition of Coleman enables us to add a second leg to the company. We believe the Coleman name is widely accepted outside the home and can be used to brand many different product lines.

- First Alert, Mr. Coffee, Health o meter, Powermate, Eastpak, Oster, Grillmaster and Sunbeam are very strong brands on their own, but the opportunity to cross brand increases the amount of leverage we have within our existing distribution channels.

- For example: we will now be able to put the Sunbeam and Health o meter name on smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors, we'll be able to put Oster, Sunbeam or Mr. Coffee names on Coffee makers around the world and we'll be able to put Grillmaster, Camping Gaz and Coleman on gas grills. This will provide us with a tremendous opportunity to better manage the retail channels of distribution.

- As you can see, Sunbeam has become a powerful house of brands virtually overnight!

$150MM in synergies

- When we looked at these companies we quickly determined that there was enormous opportunity to reduce costs through the consolidation of the three companies into Sunbeam. The opportunity to eliminate duplicate SG&A functions is the easy upside to create meaningful EPS accretion in 1999.

- The previous management at Coleman said they completed a restructuring. What they did doesn't begin to approach what I consider a restructuring. In fact I believe that Coleman is very similar to the old Sunbeam. Too many factories, too many SKU's and underperforming product lines and very weak management. Rest assured we'll fix all of that very quickly!

- First Alert and Signature Brands will be rapidly assimilated into Sunbeam as new product lines. We'll be able to quickly eliminate a large portion of their SG&A expenses.

- We have identified approximately $150 million of synergies. During our due diligence we visited many of the facilities, talked with existing management and we feel good about the $150 million in savings. There may be upside potential. Remember what we did at Sunbeam (we identified $225 million on a $1.2 billion business - and these three companies are about $1.5 billion).

- Since the announcement two weeks ago, we have already established teams which have been in the field to look at the factories and we are comfortable that we'll identify additional opportunities which will create upside to our initial estimates for synergies.

- We'll conduct an in depth study of all the potential synergies, including the consolidation of factories along with procurement and distribution savings.

- Additionally, we'll assess the potential revenue and margin benefits such as cross branding and expanded international sales using the strength of each individual company we acquired.

- I expect that we'll be in a better position to communicate these opportunities, and their impact on earnings, within a few months after we close these transactions.

- These three acquisitions mark the beginning of our strategy to grow through acquisitions and consolidate these fragmented industries along the way.
- Our criteria for evaluating acquisition targets is the following: companies with strong brand names, but weak management and poor cost structures, and companies which are synergistic with one or more of our core businesses.
- We can fix the cost structure of any company we acquire, thereby improving margins and generating re-investable returns. We'll then be able to invest in new products and strengthen the brand.
- As we continue to do this, we'll become stronger and stronger and our competition will become weaker. Many of our competitors are smaller and under capitalized and several of our competitors are divisions of larger companies. In either case they will be unable to attract the right resources, financial or human, to effectively compete with us. Interesting to note is that since we made the announcement of these three acquisitions, we have received numerous calls from smaller companies asking us to buy them.
- Our customers have applauded our decision to take the lead in consolidating the industry. When we talked with the President of WalMart he said, "I love what you guys did, I'm glad you guys finally listened to me".
- Our customers want to deal with fewer suppliers. They want suppliers to be financially capable of investing in the business; such as brand building and strengthening their infrastructure (EDI, information technology, just in time, etc.). And most importantly they want suppliers to help them manage their categories and improve their profitability.
- We are extremely well positioned to take the leadership role in this consolidation.

- And finally, what makes this all work is having the right management team.
- I am fortunate at Sunbeam to have a very supportive Board. Michael Price plays a very active role in the Company through his representative on our Board. Michael was the catalyst in renegotiating new three year contract for myself, Russ and David. Michael and I both agreed that the only way we would launch on an acquisition strategy was if the Board and I were both commited to see it all the way through.
- Not only does the existing management team have experience in turning around Sunbeam, but there are about 20-25 people in the company that have worked for me in the past, at Scott or in other companies over the past 15 years.
- We will also find some good people in these newly acquired companies once we remove all the bureaucracy. And we'll go to the outside hire special talent such as marketing or product development people, where necessary.
- I view a management team like a sports team. Let me put the best athletes on the field and I'll win the game. I believe we have a wining team in place at Sunbeam.
- Let me now turn the presentation over to Russ Kersh. Russ has been with me the better part of 14 years and he is my most trusted business advisor.

- Let me take a few minutes to review with you the pro forma financials.
- As you can see in this slide, we are adding a good amount of debt to finance the transactions. We are very confident that we'll quickly grow EBITDA and have the capability to pay down the debt.
- As Al said earlier, we expect to raise the performance of these companies up to the Sunbeam standard. This will provide us with a lot of flexibility to pay down debt and still have enough cash to invest in the business.
- At closing of the companies, the debt to cap will be around 61% and we believe we can get that to approximately 50% within the first 12 months. And we are comfortable that we'll still have the necessary resources to continue our acquisition strategy.

% Sales	17.1%	3.0%	(4.8%)	7.2%	8.0%

- We believe that the operating margins for each of these three companies can be raised up to the Sunbeam level very quickly ~~and~~ readily Achievable
- ~~We believe the ability to increase operating margins to our levels is readily achievable.~~
  What does this mean - As Examples
- Based upon on 1997 sales, if we were to raise the operating margins to 10% for these three companies, that would generate an additional $80 million in EBITDA and if we were able to achieve 15% operating margins that would create and additional $155 million in EBITDA. And, we could generate an additional $185 million in EBITDA if we get their margins up to Sunbeam's 17%. The leverage is quite impressive.
- Now you can see why we feel very comfortable with our ability to service the debt, continue our acquisition strategy and invest in the business at the same time.

- Our strategy to acquire companies and consolidate the industry will enable us to accelerate our top and bottom line growth rates.

E.g. w/o other Acquisitions

- We believe that it is quite possible to have revenues of $4 to $5 billion by the year 2000 and to achieve operating margins approaching 20%.

- ~~We'll continue to use our "acquire, restructure and grow" strategy to fold in additional acquisitions and raise their margins to those of~~ Sunbeam.

- ~~As we continue to get bigger and bigger we'll get stronger and stronger.~~

Our sales at Retail are strong and we are confident with our new products, powerful brand names, we are confident about our overall sales outlook for this year and beyond. As you may know we issued a press release this morning regarding sales for the current quarter. In the absence of this offering we would not have issued this release. Our retail customers give us a very short window on orders and we may not see some sales fall over into the 2nd qtr.

- Where to we go from here? ~~Strictly onward and upward.~~
- We plan to continue our selective acquisition of leading branded durable consumer product companies.
- We'll consolidate those acquisitions into the Sunbeam operating model thereby accelerating our growth rates.
- The synergies that we identify will be used to pay down debt, reinvest in the business and increase shareholder value.
- We believe we are in a unique position to consolidate our industry. The industry remains very fragmented with smaller and financially weaker players fighting for survival.
- We have just started.....~~stay tuned the best is yet~~ to come!

Investment Approach

TCW manages small-, mid- and large-cap strategies, as well as growth and value. The firm focuses on companies whose stocks are undervalued due to either macro trends or company-specific developments which have significantly enhanced the outlook for profit growth. The investment process begins with a weekly review and projection of overall economic and financial market conditions by the Equity Policy Committee. This top-down review is intended to evaluate the environment in which businesses and the financial markets will be operating, as well as to identify those industries and specific companies which are being affected both positively and negatively. Statistical valuation benchmarks and ratios are employed to gauge whether current market prices are appropriate in view of the projected rewards and risk.

• Investment Criteria:

1) Balance sheet strength;
2) Proven management team;
3) Dominant market position;
4) New product and market innovation;
5) Consistent earnings and dividends;
6) High return on assets and equity.

• Sell Criteria:

1) Decline of 15% from purchase price or market cycle high.

• Decision-Making Process:

The internal research staff of 15 equity analysts, together with the five members of the large-cap equity team develop investment ideas through their own field research, Street inputs, and other sources.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

Overall, the firm takes a countrian approach, seeking growth opportunities when prices are depressed. Franklin's investment process is guided by bottom-up, fundamental research. A liquidity screen is first applied to the firm's investment universe to insure that all potential candidates have sufficient trading volume. The resulting universe is then screened to identify stocks with lower P/Es. This list of potential investments is narrowed even further, screening for those companies which have had strong historical growth earnings. Portfolio managers have the flexibility to seek investments in value and growth situations, regardless of market-cap. Other funds also focus on precious metals and income producing stocks. The firm offers investment strategies for large, mid and small-cap stocks. International investments are managed through separate funds.

- Decision-Making Process:

Franklin does all of its own research. All new company recommendations for inclusion in the universe are agreed upon by the portfolio managers. This firm does not share research with Templeton Investment Counsel and makes decisions independently.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

The firm utilizes four different strategies for investing in domestic and international equities. Mutual fund categories include: Small/Mid-Cap Equities, Growth and Capital Appreciation Equities, Equity Asset Allocation, and International Equities. The firm's dominant investment style, Small/Mid Cap Equities, seeks to identify well-managed companies with sustainable earnings growth prospects selling at prices below their private market values. The investment process begins with a valuation process which screens its universe for growth rates and market-caps. The firm then conducts company visits in order to assess their operations and the quality of management. For those companies which pass the valuation process the fund will maintain a 1-2% initial position.

- Sell Criteria:

1) Reaches 80-100% private market value;
2) Becomes widely followed;
3) Deterioration in company fundamentals.

- Decision-Making Process:

The portfolio managers are responsible for investment decisions. Stocks are evaluated on a weekly basis in order to ensure that fundamentals and valuation criteria remain consistent. The investment professionals frequently meet with the management of companies they are targeting.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

Investments are typically concentrated in the securities of companies poised for above-average growth. Ultimately, portfolio managers look for attractive growth companies which are selling at a reasonable price. In order to identify investments for the large-cap portfolio, the firm utilizes top-down analysis to find attractive industries and sectors. Weightings are ultimately based upon the firm's industry outlook. Bottom-up analysis is used to evaluate potential investments for the small-cap portfolio. Northwestern screens these companies for growth potential, and subsequently determines fair value. The firm is more inclined to invest in ordinary issues of foreign securities.

- Investment Criteria:
1) Reasonably priced;
2) Consistent, sustainable growth;
3) Catalyst for growth;
4) Quality management.

- Sell Criteria:
1) Fundamentals deteriorate;
2) Price target reached;
3) Company looks poor on a technical basis.
- Decision-Making Process:
Each portfolio has a team, consisting of a portfolio manager and two analysts. Approximately 65% of research is generated internally, with the balance obtained from external sources.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

Allstate seeks to find growth at a reasonable price. Earnings momentum and earnings revisions are other characteristics used in valuing a company. Quantitative analysis is used to identify those factors contributing to a company's growth. Once the technical analyst has identified the most important factors, "paper" portfolios are run which identify companies from which managers are free to choose from. However, portfolio managers are not constrained by this "paper" portfolio; it simply serves as a guide.

• Decision-Making Process:

All investment strategies are presided over by the finance committee of the firm and its principal subsidiaries. While the Investment Department manages all investment activities, Allstate's portfolio managers have a great deal of latitude in their investment decisions.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

The firm utilizes both quantitative and fundamental analysis when evaluating potential investments. Emphasis is placed on growth stocks that are performing poorly due to a specific event or overall industry woes. Such companies are often underfollowed or out-of-favor with the Street. Fundamental analysis concentrates on companies which exhibit several of the following characteristics: 1) increasing earnings; 2) new products or services; 3) experiencing changes in market demand for products; 4) competitive industry position; 5) strong cash flow; and, 6) operating in favorable economic and regulatory environments. The firm prefers large-cap companies as all investments are set for long-term horizons.

• Investment Criteria:
1) Low P/E relative to both historical levels and current market levels;
2) Above-average, long-term growth prospects;
3) Catalyst to drive earnings;
4) Undervalued assets;
5) Qualified management team or new management policies or personnel.

• Decision-Making Process:
Portfolio managers, many of whom are analysts, generate a considerable amount of research and have the freedom to make investment decisions as long as they are within the guidelines set by the Investment Policy Committee.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

Equity products include Large Cap., Large/Medium Cap., Research Value, Disciplined Growth, Hudson River Growth, Disciplined Core, Convertible Securities, Aggressive Growth, Style Title (Passive), Enhanced Index, Global Equity, International Equity and Emerging Markets. The Large Capitalization Growth Equity strategy begins with the "Alliance 100," from which companies with superior relative fundamental strength, earnings momentum, and attractive valuations are chosen to form the "Favored 25." Focus is on short-term relative valuation. Large and Medium Capitalization growth funds seek companies with prospective earnings momentum across the capitalization spectrum. Hudson River Growth Equity invests in companies with the potential for strong earnings growth, strong and stable corporate management, high ROE, and a solid balance sheet. The Aggressive Growth strategy looks for dynamics of change that will accelerate earnings growth above market expectations. It looks for emerging industry leaders with an emphasis on small and mid-size companies. Disciplined Growth uses the security scoring system to evaluate momentum and valuations. Research Value Equity seeks stocks with strong management, above-average industry positions, excellent balance sheets, and the ability to demonstrate superior earnings growth. Annualized expected total return must exceed the greater of 18% or 2x the expected S&P 500 return.

Investment Approach

The firm manages investments using both value and growth strategies. For value, Mackay-Shields eliminates stocks with market-caps below $300 million. Emphasis is on the lowest quintile (20%) of the 2,500 stock universe based on P/E and/or P/CF on a trailing 12 month basis. Stocks are also screened for positive free cash flow. Analysts then evaluate value catalysts such as stock buybacks, management ownership, asset restructuring, discount to private market value, positive earnings trends and above-average yield. The Growth Equity product utilizes quantitative and qualitative research. Quantitative screens identify above-average earnings growth (>15%), earnings acceleration, and attractive P/Es relative to the growth rate. Qualitative measures look for value-added characteristics (growth catalysts) of a company. After securities have been identified, the firm attempts to maximize the entry point by looking at technical factors such as price momentum, relative strength, insider-ownership, and money flows.

- Decision-Making Process:

The Value & Growth teams exchange and share information, market research and judgments. Research is the responsibility of portfolio managers and analysts. A focus list is subjected to fundamental research, specifically company financial statements, Street research, periodicals, competitors and customers.

Investment Approach

General Motors Investment Management (GMIM) applies a growth-oriented, bottom-up approach towards its equity investments. The firm's stock selection process is based on traditional analysis. GMIM utilizes market timing and tactical asset allocation in an attempt to realize its investment objective. Approximately 10% of the firm's $40 billion domestic equity portfolio is internally managed, and according to market-cap, is benchmarked to the Russell 1000, Russell 2000, and S&P Mid-Cap.

Decision-Making Process:

The firm is organized around asset classes, with the staff divided into 6 investment units. The units include: 1) Investment Strategy and Asset Allocation, which is responsible for all funds under management; 2) Domestic Equities, responsible for both internally and externally managed U.S. equity assets; 3) Domestic Fixed-Income; 4) International Investments, responsible for non-U.S. equity and fixed-income investments; 5) Real Estate and Alternative Investments; and 6) Motors Insurance Corp. Investments, which invests the insurance company's portfolio. Each unit is headed by a managing director. In addition, there is a newly created research department. Frequently GMIM managers will meet with company management prior to purchase.

INVESTMENT APPROACH

Domestic equity management is divided into three different approaches: Core Growth, Specialty Growth, and Basic Value. Quantitative screens narrow an initial universe of 5000 stocks to 200, using appropriate measures for each of the three groups. These are rank-ordered into quintiles, based on earnings momentum, financial strength, valuation and dividend factors. The portfolio managers for the different equity groups perform fundamental research on the stocks that have passed the quantitative screen. The Basic Value approach examines P/B, P/Sales and yield, trying to find stocks that are undervalued but which are poised for a turnaround. The Specialty Growth approach is an aggressive approach which seeks stocks with exceptional earnings growth potential. The Core Growth approach looks for companies with strong ROE and ROIC, superior management, solid balance sheets and excellent products that assure market leadership. The firm also invests in international equities.

• Decision-Making Process:

The firm uses both internal and external research. Research is conducted from Putnam's offices in Boston, London and Tokyo. A list of about 200 approved stocks is generated at the company level for each type of fund, and individual portfolio managers may buy only stocks on this list. Each product has a lead manager, but almost all of the equity funds are team-managed.

Investment Approach

The investment process for Fidelity's equity disciplines is based on fundamental analysis. Analysts assess a stock's potential investment return based on dividend and earnings outlook. Quantitative screens supplement bottom-up equity research. Fidelity ultimately seeks superior projected long-term earnings growth and short-term momentum. The firm prefers companies that are not followed closely by other investors. Stocks that appear attractive under proprietary valuation disciplines are purchased. Due to its large asset size, the firm often holds large positions. Its active trading patterns often affect price, particularly for less liquid investments.

- Sell Criteria:

1) Perceived deterioration in the company or industry fundamentals;
2) Reduction in earnings or dividend growth forecasts;
3) Price appreciation causes excessive valuation.

- Decision-Making Process:

Fidelity's equity division consists of eight groups: Quantitative; Structured Investment; Income Growth; Asset Allocation Income; International; Capital Appreciation; Growth; and Specialized Growth. Portfolio managers conduct research specific to their product's investment strategy. The research staff supports the managers across disciplines. Because the firm places emphasis on visits with management, each manager receives a copy of what transpired between a Fidelity manager and a corporate manager.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Sunbeam States that First Quarter Revenues
May Be Lower than Street Estimates

Delray Beach, Florida; March 19, 1998 - - Sunbeam Corporation (NYSE: SOC) said today that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates of $285 million to $295 million, but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million. The Company stressed that sales of its products at retail remains very strong. The shortfall from analysts' estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management and order patterns at certain of the Company's major retail customers. The Company further stated that based on the strength of its new product offerings and powerful brand names, it remains highly confident about the overall sales outlook for its products for the entire year.

Sunbeam Corporation is a leading consumer products company that designs, manufactures and markets, nationally and internationally, a diverse portfolio of brand name products. The Company's Sunbeam® and Oster® brands have been household names for generations, both domestically and abroad, and the Company is a market leader in many of its product categories.

Subject: Discussion of Conversation with Representatives of Morgan Stanley During Sunbeams March 19, 1998 Drafting Session on their $2,014,000,000 Zero Coupon Bonds

The purpose of this memo is to document discussions held with Sunbeam, Sunbeam's counsel, Morgan Stanley and Morgan Stanley's Counsel during the drafting session held in New York for the final pricing of Sunbeams $2,014,000 zero coupon bonds. As part of our post audit review it became apparent that the Company's sales for the first two months of 1998 were significantly lower than the prior year. (Approximately $70 million vs. $140 million) We communicated to Bob Gluck, controller that this information would be supplied to the underwriter as part of our comfort letter. Upon review of the comfort letter and the offering document Phil Harlow, partner, Bill Pruitt, concurring partner and myself told Mr. Gluck on March 16, 1998 that that the decrease in sales from the prior year and that the potential for the Company to not meet analysts expectations of gross sales for the first quarter of 1998 was material and that this information would need to be disclosed in the updated offering document to be priced on March 19.

On March 19, the Company issued a press release without consultation with AA stating that the first quarter sales were not going to reach the expected $290-295 million but would still exceed prior year first quarter of $254 million.

On the evening of March 19, we attended a drafting session at Global Financial Press in New York. In attendance at the drafting session were as follows: Myself, Mark Brockleman, Arthur Andersen, John D. Tyree, Morgan Stanley, James Lurie, Davis Polk and Wardwell, Todd Freed, Skadden Arps and Adrian J.S. Deitz, Skadden Arps. I inquired with James Lurie what disclosure was going to be put in the offering document and he stated that the disclosure to be made in the recent development section would be the exact wording included in the Company's press release ~~would~~ be made. I told Mr. Lurie that the caveat that the Company would still exceed prior year first quarter sales was a forward looking statement and was not appropriate for an offering document and that I would need to discuss this matter with Phil Harlow.

I discussed the issue via telephone with Phil Harlow, who agreed that based on the known sales to date it would be very difficult to meet the sales estimates stated in the press release, and it was a risk to disclose it in the offering document. I discussed with Phil the sales estimate provided to Morgan Stanley (see attached) which showed booked sales through March 17 of approximately $100 million and a projected sales by customer to achieve the $254 million target. Mr. Harlow and I contacted Bob Gluck via the telephone and explained that the Company should only state in the offering document that sales would be less that $290-295 million. We explained that the Company only had ten days left in the quarter and that they would need to ship $15 million a day for the remainder of the quarter vs. $1 -1.5 million a day for the first 80 days of the quarter. Mr. Gluck agreed with our recommendation, however, he stated we should discuss it with David Fanin, inhouse counsel and Russ Kersh, CFO. I discussed the issue with Adrian J. S. Deitz, Skadden Arps, who discussed it with John Tyree and James Lurie.

Mr. Tyree and Mr. Lurie were very upset at the issue at hand and questioned me on whether I thought the Company would meet their sales target. I stated that I did not know, but I was trained to use healthy skepticism and that I thought it would be difficult. I again stated that is was AA recommendation to eliminate the statement about exceeding the prior year first quarter sales. I recommended that if they were to leave in the full press release that it should be cross-referenced to risk factors and forward-looking statements in the prospectus.

Mr. Harlow spoke with Mr. Fanin and Mr. Kersh as well as Janet Kelly, in-house counsel and was informed that the Company determined that they had to include the entire press release in the offering document.

Mr. Harlow strongly recommended that the reference to exceeding Q-1 from 1997 was not a wise disclosure to make because it represented a real "stretch" to achieve. Mr. Harlow was told that Don Izzi, V.P. Sales, was "very confident" of making the sales number.

Sunbeam Corporation

Dear Al:

Pursuant to our recent discussions, I am pleased to confirm the arrangements under which Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley") is engaged by Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam") in connection with the proposed sale or merger of Sunbeam (the "Company") to or with another corporation (a "Sale Transaction"), and/or the possible acquisition of one or more entities (an "Acquisition Transaction").

During the term of our engagement we will provide you with financial advice and assistance in connection with these transactions, including advice and assistance with respect to defining objectives, performing valuation analysis, and structuring, planning and negotiating the transaction. We also will provide, as and when requested by you, an opinion to the Company's Board of Directors as to the fairness from a financial point of view of a Sale Transaction or an Acquisition Transaction to the Company's shareholders.

If a Sale Transaction is consummated, we will charge a "Sale Transaction Fee" of 0.425% of the Sale Transaction's Aggregate Value. The "Aggregate Value" of the Sale Transaction shall be the value of the consideration paid for the Company's common equity (or, in the case of a sale of assets, the consideration paid for such assets), plus the value of any debt, capital lease, and preferred stock obligations of the Company assumed, retired, or defeased in connection with the Sale Transaction. Any amounts to be paid by the buyer contingent upon future events shall be estimated for purposes of the Sale Transaction Fee calculation at an expected value mutually agreeable to you and to us at the time of closing, except that amounts held in escrow shall be deemed paid at closing.

CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT UNDER
F.O.I.A. REQUESTED

SB 237825

The full Sale Transaction Fee in connection with a completed Sale Transaction will become payable and is to be paid by Sunbeam when control of 50% or more of the Company's common stock changes hands. Nevertheless, our advisory efforts pursuant to this letter will continue after control is obtained to assist you with a second step merger or similar transaction.

Any advice or opinions provided by Morgan Stanley may not be disclosed or referred to publicly or to any third party except in accordance with our prior written consent. Notwithstanding the foregoing, advice and opinions given by Morgan Stanley to the Company's Board of Directors may be disclosed in any disclosure document provided to the Company's shareholders that is required by the federal securities laws, provided that any such disclosure shall be reasonably satisfactory to Morgan Stanley and its counsel.

In the event the Company enters into a definitive agreement providing for a Sale Transaction, we will charge an "Exposure Fee" of $3,000,000. The Exposure Fee is intended to compensate us for publicly associating Morgan Stanley's name as a financial advisor with the Sale Transaction, for Morgan Stanley's contribution to the parties' reaching an agreement, or both. The Exposure Fee will be credited against the Sale Transaction Fee.

If an Acquisition Transaction is consummated, we will charge an Acquisition Transaction Fee calculated as a percentage of the Aggregate Value (as previously defined) of the Acquisition Transaction as follows:

Aggregate Value of Acquisition Transaction ($MM)	Acquisition Transaction Fee Percentage
$ 500	0.875%
1,000	0.540
1,500	0.510
2,000	0.480
3,000	0.450
Greater than 3,000	0.425

For an Acquisition Transaction in which the Aggregate Value is between two values shown in the above fee schedule, the Acquisition Transaction Fee Percentage applicable is determined by interpolation between the two nearest Acquisition Transaction Fee Percentages.

In the event the Company enters into a definitive agreement providing for an Acquisition Transaction, we will charge an Acquisition Exposure Fee equal to 25% of the estimated Acquisition Transaction Fee. The Acquisition Exposure Fee paid will be credited against the Acquisition Transaction Fee.

If the Company issues non-cash consideration in an Acquisition Transaction or receives non-cash consideration in a Sale Transaction, for purposes of computing the Acquisition Transaction Fee or the Sale Transaction Fee, non-cash consideration shall be valued as follows: (x) publicly traded securities shall be valued at the average of their closing prices (as reported in The Wall Street Journal) for the ten trading days prior to the closing of a transaction and (y) any other non-cash consideration shall be valued at the fair market value thereof as determined in good faith by mutual agreement of the Company and Morgan Stanley

If, in connection with this assignment, Sunbeam effects a repurchase of or a public sale or private placement of equity, preferred or debt securities or Sunbeam effects real estate financings, asset or property sales, and Sunbeam requires investment banking services in connection therewith, Sunbeam agrees to offer to retain Morgan Stanley on mutually agreeable terms to assist it with such transaction. In addition, if in connection with this assignment, Sunbeam effects any interest rate, equity-related or currency hedges or currency conversions, including but not limited to currency transactions on a spot, forward or option basis, Sunbeam agrees to offer to retain Morgan Stanley on mutually agreeable terms to assist it with such transaction.

In addition to our fee for professional services, we will separately bill our documented out-of-pocket expenses as incurred, not to exceed $250,000 per transaction payable at the conclusion of each transaction. Generally these expenses include travel costs, document production and other expenses of this type. The reasonable fees of outside counsel and other professional advisors, should they be engaged with your consent, will be billed as incurred and are not subject to the $250,000 limit per transaction.

Morgan Stanley will act under this letter agreement as an independent contractor with duties solely to Sunbeam. Because we will be acting on your behalf in this capacity, it is our practice to receive indemnification. A copy of our standard indemnity form is attached to this letter.

Please note that Morgan Stanley is a full service securities firm engaged in securities trading and brokerage activities, as well as providing investment banking, financing, and financial advisory services. In the ordinary course of our trading, brokerage, and financing activities, Morgan Stanley or its affiliates may at any time hold long or short positions, and may trade or otherwise effect transactions, for our own account or the accounts of customers, in debt or equity securities or senior loans of Sunbeam or any other company that may be involved in this transaction.

The term of our engagement under this letter shall commence on the date hereof and continue for 12 months after the date hereof, unless extended by mutual consent. Our services hereunder may be terminated with or without cause by you or by us at any time and without liability or continuing obligation to you or to us (except for any compensation earned and expenses incurred by us to the date of termination or date of expiration and except, in the case of termination by you or expiration of our engagement, for our right to fees pursuant to this letter for any transactions effected within one year of such termination or expiration of our engagement) and provided that the indemnity provisions will remain operative regardless of any such termination.

Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam (on its own behalf and, to the extent permitted by law, on behalf of its shareholders) each waives any right to trial by jury in any action, claim, suit or

Gentlemen:

This letter will confirm that we have engaged Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated to advise and assist us in connection with the matters referred to in our letter agreement dated September 5, 1997 (the "Engagement Letter"). In consideration of your agreement to act on our behalf in connection with such matters, we agree to indemnify and hold harmless you and your affiliates and your and their respective officers, directors, employees and agents and each other person, if any, controlling you or any of your affiliates (you and each such other person being an "Indemnified Person") from and against any losses, claims, damages or liabilities related to, arising out of or in connection with the engagement (the "Engagement") under the Engagement Letter, and will reimburse each Indemnified Person for all expenses (including fees and expenses of counsel) as they are incurred in connection with investigating, preparing, pursuing or defending any action, claim, suit, investigation or proceeding related to, arising out of or in connection with the Engagement, whether or not pending or threatened and whether or not any Indemnified Person is a party. We will not, however, be responsible for any losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or expenses relating thereto) that are finally judicially determined to have resulted from the bad faith or gross negligence of any Indemnified Person. We also agree that no Indemnified Person shall have any liability (whether direct or indirect, in contract or tort or otherwise) to us for or in connection with the Engagement except for any such liability for losses, claims, damages or liabilities incurred by us that are finally judicially determined to have resulted from the bad faith or gross negligence of such Indemnified Person.

RIDER

We will not, without your prior written consent, settle, compromise, consent to the entry of any judgment in or otherwise seek to terminate any action, claims, suit or proceeding in respect of which indemnification may be sought hereunder (whether or not any Indemnified Person is a party thereto) unless such settlement, compromise, consent or termination includes a release of each Indemnified Person from any liabilities arising out of such action, claim, suit or proceeding. No Indemnified Person seeking indemnification, reimbursement or contribution under this agreement will, without our prior written consent, settle, compromise, consent to the entry of any judgment in or otherwise seek to terminate any action, claim, suit, investigation or proceeding referred to in the preceding paragraph.

If the indemnification provided for in the first paragraph of this agreement is judicially determined to be unavailable (other than in accordance with the terms hereof) to an Indemnified Person in respect of any losses, claims, damages or liabilities referred to herein, then, in lieu of indemnifying such Indemnified Person hereunder, we shall contribute to the amount paid or payable by such Indemnified Person as a result of such losses, claims, damages or liabilities (and expenses relating thereto) (i) in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect the relative benefits to you, on the one hand, and us, on the other hand, of the Engagement or (ii) if the allocation provided by clause (i) above is not available, in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect not only the relative benefits referred to in such clause (i) but also the relative fault of each of you and us, as well as any other relevant equitable considerations; provided, however, in no event shall your aggregate contribution to the amount paid or payable exceed the aggregate amount of fees actually received by you under the Engagement Letter. For the purposes of this agreement, the relative benefits to us and you of the Engagement shall be deemed to be in the same proportion as (a) the total value paid or contemplated to be paid or received or contemplated to be received by us or our stockholders, as the case may be, in the transaction or transactions that are the subject of the Engagement, whether or not any such transaction is consummated, bears to (b) the fees paid or to be paid to you under the Engagement Letter.

The provisions of this agreement shall apply to the Engagement and any modification thereof and shall remain in full force and effect regardless of any termination or the completion of your services under the Engagement Letter.

This agreement and the Engagement Letter shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York applicable to contracts executed in and to be performed in that state.

Very truly yours,

We shall be entitled to participate at our own expense in the defense of any Action brought to enforce any claim or liability of any Indemnified Person resulting from any such Action and, if we so elect, we shall be entitled to assume the defense of such Action at our expense, including the employment of counsel (in which case we shall not thereafter be responsible for the fees, costs and expenses of any separate counsel retained by an Indemnified Person); provided, however, that such counsel shall be satisfactory to an Indemnified Person in the exercise of its reasonable judgment. Notwithstanding the foregoing, an Indemnified Person shall have the right to employ separate counsel in the defense of an Action, and we shall bear the reasonable fees, costs and expenses of such separate counsel if (a) the use of counsel chosen by us to represent the Indemnified Person would present such counsel with a conflict of interest; (b) the representation of both parties by the same counsel would be inappropriate due to actual or potential differing interests between them; (c) we shall not have employed counsel satisfactory to the Indemnified Person in the exercise of the Indemnified Person's reasonable judgment to represent the Indemnified Person, within a reasonable time after notice of the institution of such Action; or (d) we authorize the Indemnified Person to employ separate counsel at our expense. Bill , how are things. It has been crazy at Sunbeam given there recent activity. I assume you have heard that they are buying Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands valued at approximately $2.5 Billion. It looks like we are going to have alot more work in Mexico.

Please be advised that we anticipate having your team perform a limited quarterly review, with emphasis on cutoff procedures. The Company just released an early warning to the street that sales are not going to meet expectations of $285-295 million for the quarter. In fact they are at only $72 million at March 1. As you can see there will be a big push on sales, and we have been told they plan on having Bill -and - Hold transactions.

Finally , we have not seen your blue back report nor the report on the special work performed by your BSC group. Thanks

Sunbeam – Shipping cut-off observation instructions
March 29, 1998

General Information:

Although the information that follows is public information, it is summarized here for your use only and is not to be shared with client personnel at the facilities you visit

Sunbeam's first quarter of fiscal 1998 will end on March 29, 1998 (the Sunday closest to the end of the month) As of March 1, 1998, the Company reported sales of approximately $72 million vs $143 million for the corresponding period of the preceding year Despite this decrease, management has announced to the public that it expects first quarter sales for 1998 to exceed first quarter 1997 sales of $253 5 million That means that the Company expects to ship over $181 million (>70% of expected sales for the quarter) in the month of March

Revenue Recognition Policy:

Because of management pressures to meet earnings expectations, we are taking additional steps in connection with our quarterly review work to ensure that the client achieves a proper sales cut-off

Sunbeam's revenue recognition policy is as follows (from 1997 10-K)

> The Company recognizes revenues from product sales at the time of shipment to customers In limited circumstances, at the customer's request, the Company may sell seasonal product on a bill and hold basis provided that the goods are completed, packaged and ready for shipment, such goods are segregated and the risks of ownership and legal title have passed to the customer

Our job is to ensure compliance with this policy

What Constitutes "Shipment":

Shipment takes place when a customer's order is loaded on to a container, which is sealed and ready for delivery to the customer Shipments are generally not done on a "live" basis (i e the truck drivers are not sitting around waiting for their trucks to be filled) Rather, Sunbeam's customers work with various shipping companies (e g Consolidated Freightways, Yellow, etc), which drop-off empty containers at Sunbeam's locations to be filled and ready for shipment Filled trucks are parked on-site until truck drivers arrive to haul them away The majority of on-site containers are driven away within a couple of days

AA036293 Confidential Treatment Requested by Arthur Andersen LLP

Sunbeam locations include both Company-owned facilities and third-party warehouses to which Sunbeam outsources warehousing and distribution functions

In accordance with the Company's policy, filled and sealed containers which are ready for shipment but are parked on-site awaiting pick up as of midnight on March 29th are considered shipped and, therefore are properly includable in sales for the period Additionally, at midnight there will be containers on the loading dock, in process of being filled These container loads may be completed, sealed and included in shipments for the periods Any containers, which have not begun to be filled, may not be included in shipments for the period

Bill and Hold Sales

As described in the Company's revenue recognition policy, Sunbeam sometimes sells goods to customers on a bill and hold basis This means that goods are moved/shipped to a non-Sunbeam and non-customer location, at the customer's request until some future date at which the goods will be delivered to the customer In order to qualify for revenue recognition, these transactions must meet the following criteria

- The risk of ownership must pass to and be acknowledged by the customer
- The customer must have a fixed commitment to purchase the goods in writing
- The customer, not Sunbeam, must request that the sales be on a bill and hold basis and the customer must have a substantial business purpose for ordering the product bill and hold
- The company must not have retained any specific performance obligations such that the earnings process on the sales is not complete
- The ordered product must be segregated from Sunbeam's inventory and must not be subject to being used to fill other orders.
- The ordered product must be complete and prepared for shipment
- The Company has not modified its normal billing and credit terms for the customer

Bill and hold inventory will be located primarily at the Miami Oklahoma and Aurora Missouri locations. These are third-party warehouses operated by National Distribution Center ("NDC") NDC performs warehousing and distribution services for Sunbeam and also holds bill and hold inventory for Sunbeam customers Our job will be to observe bill and hold inventories, noting that they are (1) segregated by customer and separated from Sunbeam's inventory and (2) that the related orders are complete and ready for shipment.

Evening of March 29

1 Observe loading of containers at or near midnight, March 29, 1998 Any partially filled containers on the loading dock at midnight may be completed and shipped Bills of lading for these and any trucks previously filled should indicate a date of March 29, 1998 Bills of lading for any containers started after midnight should indicate a ship date of March 30, 1998 Obtain a sample of 5 bills of lading from containers being loaded on the dock at midnight

2 Determine through observation and inquiry that containers are traveling direct to customers. Determine if any containers are being shipped to non-customer locations If you identify containers being shipped to non-customer location, make inquiries as to the reasons Obtain a sample of 5 bills of lading for goods being shipped to non-customer locations

3 Obtain a report by customer of all bill and hold inventory at the location

4 Obtain "ship confirmations" for a sample of 5 orders shipped to customers on bill and hold basis Compare to the report obtained in step 3 noting inclusion Have the warehouse manager show you where the goods are located

7 Select orders from the report of bill and hold inventories and ask to see ship confirmations Have the warehouse manager show you where the goods are located on the floor

8 Ask the warehouse manager if there is any bill and hold inventory on hand for sales prior to 12/28/97 Obtain the order numbers for any such goods.

Wrap-up

COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS, INC.,
Plaintiff(s), vs.

MORGAN STANLEY & CO., INC.,
Defendant(s).
_____/

ORDER ON COLEMAN (PARENT) HOLDINGS INC.'S MOTION TO AMEND ITS COMPLAINT TO SEEK PUNITIVE DAMAGES

THIS CAUSE came before the Court November 5, 2004 on Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.'s Motion to Amend its Complaint to Seek Punitive Damages, with all counsel present.

This case arises out of an acquisition transaction that was negotiated and consummated in late 1997 and early 1998 in which Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. ("CPH"), sold its 82% interest in the Coleman Company, Inc., to Sunbeam Corporation. Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., served as financial advisor to Sunbeam for parts of the acquisition transaction and lead underwriters for a $750,000,000 debenture offering that Sunbeam used to finance the acquisition. CPH alleges that by both affirmative statements and omissions Morgan Stanley, either directly or through materials scripted for Sunbeam, made material misrepresentations to CPH to induce it to enter into and ultimately close the transaction. It has sued Morgan Stanley for fraudulent misrepresentation, negligent misrepresentation, aiding and abetting fraud, and conspiracy, seeking damages of at least $485,000,000.

CPH has moved for leave of court to include a claim for punitive damages on all but its negligent misrepresentation claim. The parties agree that Florida law governs the procedure employed. See Rule 1.190 (f), Fla. R. Civ. P.; Fla. Stat. §768.72 (1). Morgan Stanley contends, though, that New York substantive law controls the availability of punitive damages; that New York law requires that a defendant's acts show a pattern of wrongdoing aimed at the general public before punitive damages may be claimed; and that CPH's proffer fails to meet this element. Alternatively, it claims CPH's proffer is insufficient under Florida law. CPH claims that it need not show a pattern of misconduct aimed at the general public on a fraud claim under New York law and that, even if it does, such a pattern has been shown, and points out that no choice of law determination has been made on the aiding and abetting and conspiracy counts.

The Court concludes that under New York law the "public injury" element is required to be met only where the tort has its genesis in a breach of contract claim. See Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. v. Allegheny Energy, Inc., No. 2 Civ. 7689 (HB), 2003 WL 22795650 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 25, 2003) (public harm necessary to support punitive damages claim for fraudulent inducement to enter into a contract; not required for breach of fiduciary duty claim); Prohealth Care Associates, LLP v. April, 2004 WL 1872915 (N.Y. Supp.), 2004 N.Y. Sup. Op. 50919 (U) (N.Y. Sup. Aug. 18, 2004); cf. Rocanova v. Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, 612 N.Y.S. 2d 339, 634 N.E. 2d 940, 943-944 (N.Y. 1994) ("Punitive damages are not recoverable for an ordinary breach of contract as their purpose is not to remedy private wrongs but to vindicate public rights . . . However, where the breach of contract also involves a fraud evincing a 'high degree of moral turpitude' and demonstrating 'such wanton dishonesty as to imply a criminal indifference to civil obligations,' punitive damages are recoverable if the conduct was 'aimed at the public generally . . .'" [citations omitted]); New York University v. Continental Insurance Company, 639 N.Y.S. 2d 283, 662 N.E. 2d 763 (N.Y. 1995) (no punitive damages permitted where duties allegedly violated arose from contract terms or by operation of law based on contract). Here, CPH does not claim it had a contract with Morgan Stanley or that the duties allegedly breached by Morgan Stanley arose because of a contractual relationship between them. Rocanova and New York University do not apply. Because Morgan Stanley argued no other potentially outcome determinative difference between New York and Florida punitive damages law, Florida law controls. See Tune v. Philip Morris, Inc., 766 So. 2d 350 (Fla. 2d DCA 2000), rev. den. 786 So. 2d 1188 (Fla. 2001).

CPH has made a showing by record and proffered evidence which, if believed, would allow a reasonable juror to award punitive damages against Morgan Stanley on the fraud, aid and abetting, and conspiracy claims.

Based on the foregoing, it is ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that Plaintiff's Motion to Amend its Complaint to Seek Punitive Damages is Granted. The ad damnum clauses of Counts I, II, and III of Plaintiff's Complaint are hereby deemed amended to claim the damages sought in Exhibit A to the Motion.

audibly, instead of simply nodding or using some sort of a gesture.

If at any point I ask you a question that you don't hear, let me know that and I will try to repeat it.

If at any point I ask you a question that is unclear or you don't understand, let me know that and I will try to rephrase it.

Any questions about the process?

A. No.

Q. Are you currently employed?

A. Yes.

Q. With whom?

A. Morgan Stanley.

Q. Do you know which Morgan Stanley entity is your employer?

A. I am not exactly sure, but it is probably Morgan Stanley & Co.

Q. What position do you hold with Morgan Stanley?

A. I am the executive director in the credit department.

Q. Do you work in New York?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Would you summarize, please, your education since high school.

A. Yes.

I received a Bachelor's at Colby College in economics in 1988.

Then I went to work at Bank of New York in the credit training program, after graduating from college.

I left Bank of New York in 1991, joined Morgan Stanley in July of 1991, and I have been there ever since.

Q. Briefly describe your employment track at Morgan Stanley, since 1991.

A. I came in at Morgan Stanley as associate in 1991. I was promoted to vice president at the end of 1995 -- sorry, the end of 1996.

I was then promoted to what used to be called principal at the end of 2000, but after the merger with Dean Witter they changed the principal title to executive director, and that is what I am today.

Q. Have you been in the credit department throughout your history with Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. During the time that you were vice president in the credit department, what were your responsibilities?

A. At that time the department was called the credit and rating advisory services group, and my responsibilities were primarily to cover existing accounts that Morgan Stanley had credit exposure to, whether it was lending exposure, derivative exposure, commodities exposure, um, and I covered certain industries.

I covered consumer products. I covered real estate. I covered lodging and gaming. And my job, primarily, was to provide unbiased credit analysis to determine whether the firm should take credit exposure with certain counterparties.

My other major function was to provide rating advisory services to prospective clients and existing clients, when these clients were in the process of dealing with the major rating agencies.

Q. When you say "rating advisory services," was that predicting what rating a particular offering would achieve?

A. That is correct. That was part of the job, yes.

Q. What else?

A. Just a big part of it was advising clients on how to tell their story to the rating agencies, um, dealing with certain -- quite frankly, putting together presentations, effectively large road show presentations, if you will, to the rating agencies, so the clients could tell the story and then coach clients on how to handle certain strengths and credit issues that the rating agencies would want to get more information on.

Q. You mentioned that you also were responsible for providing unbiased credit analysis. How did you go about doing that?

A. How so?

Q. Describe that part of your job.

A. Well, I mean, simply, if it was a public company, we would use public filings to analyze the public financial statements.

And, many times, having conversations with senior management to understand what the strategy was, comparing a particular client to the competitive dynamics out there.

Looking at equity research. Looking at fixed income research. Talking to the rating agencies.
It really just depended on which situation you were looking at.
Q. The credit analysis was designed for use by people within Morgan Stanley?
A. The credit analysis was strictly internal to determine whether Morgan Stanley should grant credit to a particular client.
Q. How have your responsibilities changed, if at all, since you have become a principal or an executive director?
A. Well, the groups changed a bit. Now it is just called the credit department.
The rating advisory aspect of it has been taken out of my group and put into investment banking.
Currently we, my group, reports to Steve Crawford, who used to be the CFO but now is head of, basically head of strategy.
And my particular job now is, I still cover certain industries, but mostly what I do now is I determine whether to extend credit or not, to all companies in North America, depending on geography.

Q. Are there other executive directors in the credit department?
A. Yes.
Q. How many?
A. Worldwide? Worldwide, probably ten.
Q. In New York?
A. Um, probably six.
Q. When you were vice president, to whom did you report?
A. I reported directly to Les Bradford.
Q. Was that true the entire period from '96 to 2000?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. Were there other vice presidents at the same time who also reported to Ms. Bradford?
A. Yes, there were.
Q. How many in New York?
A. Probably about six, seven. Sorry, report directly to Leslie Bradford? Somewhere between four and six, give or take.
Q. Were there other vice presidents in the credit and rating agency department that reported to someone other than Leslie Bradford?

A. Yes.
Q. Explain the structure of the department then, please.
A. Well, the way the department worked is, we had Rick Felix ran the department, who was then an MD. Leslie Bradford was an MD under Rick Felix. And anyone who was dealing with industrial corporate accounts reported to Leslie Bradford. Okay.
There was another MD in the department who is still there, named John LaMountain. He oversaw, effectively, a number of people who were in charge of our counterparty derivatives trading credit functions, so to speak.
So, for instance, John LaMountain would have a vice president who had a product, whether it is foreign exchange or commodities, or whatnot, and if that particular product person had a prospective account that fell in my industry bucket, they would come to me and ask for a credit overview or a preliminary rating.

I would give it to that person, and then that person would structure the derivative or commodity transaction, or foreign exchange transaction, depending on what I told them about the nature of the credit.
Q. During the 1997, '98 time frame, was your compensation structured as base pay plus at least the possibility of a bonus?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. During that period of time, was your compensation in any way related to the Sunbeam financing?
A. No, it was not.
Q. Describe your compensation package in 1997 and 1998, please.
A. Um, it is -- you know, off the top of my head, I am guessing. You know.
Can I -- can I give an estimate?
MS. BROWN: Yes.
MR. CHORVAT: We are looking for your best estimate.
A. Okay. My base was probably somewhere in the $125,000 range. My bonus was probably in the -- probably in the $100,000 range.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018230

Q. Would it be correct for both years, 1997 and '98?
A. Probably the base stayed about the same. The base could have been a little less and the bonus was probably a little more.
Q. Sorry, which --
A. In 1998. The 125 is really a guess. I can't remember what it was.
But it was probably, total compensation was probably in the 225 range in 1997, and probably a little bit higher in 1998.
Q. Do you recall why it would have been a little higher in 1998?
A. I can't, quite frankly, now that I think of it, it could have been a little lower. I don't remember what kind of year we had that year, so.
Q. Who would have evaluated your performance in 1997 or 1998?
A. Well, I would have received a performance evaluation by Leslie Bradford.
Q. Anyone else?
A. No.

Q. What, if anything, have you done to prepare for today's deposition?
A. I met with an attorney yesterday.
Q. Aside from meeting with the attorney, have you done anything else to prepare for the deposition?
A. No, sir.
Q. Who did you meet with?
A. I met with Ms. Brown.
Q. How long did that meeting take?
A. Um, about four -- four and a half to five hours.
Q. Have you spoken to anyone else who has been deposed in connection with this case?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Have you spoken to any of those individuals about the topic of their depositions?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Have you reviewed any documents that refreshed your recollection about any of the events surrounding the Sunbeam matter?
A. Other than some documents yesterday? No.
Q. What documents have you reviewed at any time that refreshed your recollection with respect to Sunbeam?

A. Um, again, some documents yesterday. I can't remember exactly what those documents were, but some documents yesterday.
Q. Can you describe them in any way?
A. Um, they were various, you know, internal documents, by and large. Some perhaps, perhaps some public press releases. Some financial statements.
Q. Anything else that you can recall?
A. Um, no.
Q. What role did the credit and rating agency department play in connection with the Sunbeam financing?
A. Well, we were responsible for determining, first and foremost, whether the transaction that Morgan Stanley was looking to undertake, meaning providing a capital commitment for the bank financing to close the acquisitions, was a viable credit going forward.
It was a very large exposure to Morgan Stanley.
Our job as in the credit department is to make sure that the capital base of Morgan Stanley is protected. That was our first and foremost job.

The second part was to help Sunbeam get through the rating process with a fair outcome on the ratings on the bank department, and by default the ratings on the notes.
Q. In connection with the first part of your answer, how did the work that the credit group or the credit and rating agencies group, how did that fit together with work that other departments or groups at Morgan Stanley were doing?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
Q. When your counsel objects like that, you can go ahead and answer the question. The objection is preserved for the record.
A. Okay, can you repeat the question?
Q. Sure. How did the work that the credit and rating agencies group at Morgan Stanley fit in with or work together with groups that, work that other groups at Morgan Stanley were doing in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?
MS. BROWN: Same objection.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018231

A. Well, let me say that we were an independent group, okay, that worked along with a deal team to put together a proposal for the firm's senior managers to determine whether this was a transaction that Morgan Stanley should undertake.

There are lots of things that go into that teamwork analysis, so to speak.

So, I am not so sure that, you know, if that, I am not so sure if that answered your question.

Q. Let me back up a bit.

You described the Sunbeam transaction as involving the financing of the acquisitions.

Did you have any involvement with Sunbeam at a time prior to its proposed acquisitions of Coleman and the other companies?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have any involvement in a potential transaction involving the acquisition of Black & Decker?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Do you recall how you first came to be involved with Sunbeam?

A. No, I do not.

Q. What percentage of your time did you devote to the Sunbeam transaction at the highest point?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

A. "Highest point" meaning?

Q. I assume that there were times during the period that you worked on the Sunbeam matter when sometimes you would work on it more on some days, and other days you would work on it less; would that be fair?

A. That is fair.

Q. Would there be days where the Sunbeam transaction would be the predominant thing that you would work on?

A. Perhaps, but I don't recall.

Q. At a given -- in the spring of 1998, other than the Sunbeam transaction, how many other matters would you have been working on at the same time?

A. It is hard to say.

Q. Would it be more or less than ten?

A. Probably.

Q. Probably more or probably less?

Page 20

A. Probably more.

Q. Probably more than 25?

A. Well, when you say 25, what exactly are you talking about? 25 what?

Q. 25 other transactions that require material amounts of your time.

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

A. Um, I am not so sure about material.

Q. Anything more than a cursory amount of your time?

MS. BROWN: I continue the objection.

A. Yes. I am not so sure --

Q. I will step back and try it again.

Can you describe what your work load was like, the sorts of matters that you were working on in the spring of 1998.

A. Um, I can't describe specifically what I was working on.

There were probably a number of situations where I would get called and be asked to opine on a potential equity underwriting in the sense of we have a potential client, they are thinking about issuing some equity, what happens to their public rating. Okay.

Something like that takes a very little time. Okay.

I had other transactions probably, but again, I don't recall where I could have been having some back and forth advisory work with one or two, three clients, again, that took very -- the existing clients that were already rated.

Sunbeam was a little different, in the sense that it was not rated, and it was a big transaction.

Q. When you say that "it was a big transaction," how did Sunbeam fit in the spectrum of transactions that you worked on at that point in time?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

A. Can you --

Q. Sure. I will do it this way. You mentioned that Sunbeam was a big transaction. What do you mean by that?

A. What I meant was, it was a, the dollar amount that Morgan Stanley was committing in terms of the capital commitment was, at that time, the largest transaction that I had looked at.

018236

Q. The Sunbeam transaction involved a senior debt piece and also a convertible security.
Did your work focus on one or the other of those elements?
A. I was primarily, almost actually, almost entirely working on the senior debt piece.
Q. What role, if any, did Rick Felix have with respect to the Sunbeam transaction?
A. Well, Rick, as the head of the credit, department, and as a -- I believe he was co-chairman of the leveraged finance commitment committee, and he was responsible, he had the final credit authorization, so to speak, for the transaction. So, he ultimately approved the deal.
Q. You mentioned the leverage finance commitment committee.
What is that?
A. Well, it doesn't exist anymore in its present form, but it was a committee of very senior managers within the firm, business unit heads, who were responsible for, ultimately, approving whether to undertake capital commitments or not.

Q. Would the leveraged finance commitment committee have been involved in both the senior debt piece and the convertible security?
A. No.
Q. Just the senior debt piece?
A. Correct.
Q. To your knowledge, did Mr. Felix have a role in connection with the Sunbeam transaction, other than an approval function?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Speculation. Foundation.
A. Yes. I can't recall.
Q. What role, if any, did Leslie Bradford play in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
A. Can you rephrase the question?
Q. Sure. At the time you worked on Sunbeam, you reported to Ms. Bradford; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Did Ms. Bradford have a role in connection with the leveraged finance commitment committee?

A. Yes. She was also a member.
Q. And you were not; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Beyond being a member of the leveraged finance commitment committee, are you aware of whether Ms. Bradford did anything else in connection with the Sunbeam matter?
A. No, I am not aware.
Q. In connection with Sunbeam did you work with someone named Jason -- is it Kunreuther --
A. Kunreuther, yes.
Q. Who is he?
A. He was an analyst, a two-year analyst who worked in our department, worked for myself and other officers in the credit department.
Q. And he reported to you?
A. Um, he did not report directly to me. I don't remember who he reported to, but he reported to someone else in the department.
Q. What did Mr. -- could you say that again.

A. Kunreuther.
Q. What did Mr. Kunreuther do in connection with the Sunbeam matter, to your knowledge?
A. Specifically, I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether he did anything in connection with the Sunbeam matter?
A. He was involved -- I do remember him attending some diligence meetings with me. Um, and he -- he most likely spread some financial statements for me, into our database; so, it is easy to understand the financials.
Other than that, I don't recall.
Q. Other than Mr. Felix, Ms. Bradford and Mr. Kunreuther, is there anyone else from the credit group that you can recall having done work in connection with the Sunbeam matter?
A. No.
Q. Was there, at the time, something called the credit committee?
A. Credit committee? Um, I am not so sure what you mean by that.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018233

Q. Well, in 1997 or 1998, was there an entity called the credit committee at Morgan Stanley?
A. We had a, and still have an internal credit committee in the credit department, but it was not called the credit committee.
Q. What was it called?
A. I believe it was called the industrial credit committee.
Q. Did the industrial credit committee play any role in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?
A. I don't recall.
Q. What work, if any, did you do in connection with ratings or potential ratings with respect to any Sunbeam offerings?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Can you be a little bit more specific.
Q. Did you do any rating work in connection with Sunbeam?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Please describe what you did.
A. Um, well, I was responsible for providing expected ratings to the deal team, so that they could try to provide cost analysis to the client, because the big part of the cost on the bank debt is related to, is tied to ratings.

And at that time, again, Sunbeam was not rated.
Um, and then I also was responsible for working with the Sunbeam management, in preparing them for the meetings with the rating agencies and helping them along with some other team members, put together a rating agency presentation that they would walk through with the rating agencies at the meeting.
And then I was involved in some follow-up conversations with the rating agencies after those meetings.
Q. Did you do rating work in connection with both the senior debt piece and the convertible security?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Not directly.
Q. What rating work, if any, did you do in connection with the convertible security?
A. At what time? I am not sure what time you mean.

Q. Let me step back.
Over what period of time did you do rating work in connection with Sunbeam?
A. Um, I don't recall exactly. Um, probably somewhere between sometime in the -- with the company itself or with the team?
Well --
Q. Either one.
A. Probably sometimes towards the end of 1997, where I was providing some preliminary views on the ratings, and then more so in the, you know, the early part of 1998.
And then through, really, June.
Q. So, both before and after the acquisition of Coleman closed?
A. Yes.
Q. Would that time frame that you described from late 1997 through June of '98, would that apply to both the senior debt piece and the convertible security or just one or the other?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Are you familiar with a rating that would be written B1/B plus?

A. Yes.
Q. How would you describe that rating?
A. Well, on a scale -- on -- I mean, it is hard to describe it, as you word it that way, but the highest possible rating at S&P is a triple A, all the way down to single D.
And the highest possible rating at Moody's is an A double -- also a triple A.
And so, you have all the way from triple A down to D, basically, both agencies.
You know. A B1 B plus rating, it depends on what security you are talking about. Because that will impact the rating. It could go higher or could go lower.
Q. What sort of rating would be required to be considered investment grade?
A. Triple B minus, B double A3.
Big B little A, little A3.
Q. So, would a B1 B plus rating be considered investment grade?
A. No, it would not.
Q. You mentioned, a couple times in your testimony, I think you used the phrase "deal team."

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018234

A. Correct.
Q. Who are you referring to by that?
A. Um, specifically, I don't recall everyone on the deal team, but members probably came from M&A, corporate finance, fixed income research. Um, debt capital markets, which probably, at that time, included the bank loan group.
That's it.
Q. Who were the consumers of the information that you generated in connection with Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Can you be -- when you say consumers --
Q. Sure. When you performed an analysis in connection with the Sunbeam matter, to whom did you provide that analysis?
MS. BROWN: Same objection.
A. I guess it would depend on the situation.
Q. Well, is there a set of people that, in connection with the entire Sunbeam matter, that would constitute the people to whom you provided your analysis?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Provide my analysis? Which analysis?
Q. You said that you performed credit analysis.
A. Correct.
Q. What was the purpose for which you performed that credit analysis?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.
A. Um, the purpose was, again, to make sure that Morgan Stanley, as a firm, was making a proper capital commitment, because again, our job primarily in the credit department is to protect the capital base of the firm itself.
Q. And it was not, ultimately, your decision, as a vice president in the credit department, as to whether or not that capital commitment would be made; was it?
A. That is correct.
Q. So, the analysis that you performed in connection with deciding whether or not Morgan Stanley should make the capital commitment, to whom did you provide that credit analysis?

A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you provide your analysis to Ms. Bradford or Mr. Felix?
A. I am sure I did, but I don't recall to who, if it was both, one or the other. But I am sure I did.
Q. Would you have also have provided your analysis to people on the deal team?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Again, I don't recall if I did or not.
Q. What involvement, if any, did you have in formulating the amount of senior debt that would be extended to Sunbeam?
A. None.
Q. What involvement, if any, did you have in formulating the terms on which the senior debt would be extended to Sunbeam?
A. None.
Q. What involvement, if any, did you have in formulating the amount of the convertible security that Sunbeam would issue?
A. None.
Q. What involvement, if any, did you have in formulating the terms of the Sunbeam convertible security?

A. None.
Q. Would it be fair to say that you really took the proposed terms and then analyzed whether those were a sound credit decision?
MS. BROWN: Objection to the form.
A. I am not so sure I understand.
Q. Well, your role, as you described it, was that you performed an analysis to protect Morgan Stanley's interest in extending capital to Sunbeam; is that right?
A. That is right.
Q. And in performing that function would it be fair to say that you took the proposed terms of the capital that would be extended as a given and then you evaluated whether those terms were worth pursuing from Morgan Stanley's perspective?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I am not so sure, when you say pursue those terms, I am not so sure what you mean.
Q. You testified that you did not have a role in setting the terms of the financing or capital to be extended to Morgan Stanley.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018235

I am trying to ask you, as the flip side of that, is it correct that you took the terms of the capital that would be extended to Morgan Stanley as given, and then analyzed whether an extension of capital on those terms was in the interest of Morgan Stanley or not?
A. Well, in the interest of Morgan Stanley -- are you talking about from a credit standpoint whether it was an acceptable credit?
Q. Yes.
A. I think that is a fair statement.
Q. Are you familiar with the term "Sunbeam corporation working group" at Morgan Stanley?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Not specifically. I am not so sure what --
Q. All right. In connection with Morgan Stanley's work on different matters, are there working groups established?
A. There was a team that was part of the, you know, what we would call the working group.

Q. Is "team" another word for working group, or is there a team within the working group?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
Q. What do you mean by your last answer?
A. Um, --
MS. BROWN: Objection. Compound.
A. I guess what I meant was a team, you know -- how I used it as -- yes, team could be a subsection of the working group, so to speak. They are not always interchangeable, is what I am trying to get at.
Q. Did the working group in connection with Sunbeam ever meet as an entire group?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
A. Um, well, again, working group, I am not so sure, when you talk about working group, what we are talking about.
Q. So, is it your testimony that you are not familiar with any application of the term working group to the Sunbeam matter?
MS. BROWN: Objection to the extent it mischaracterizes.
A. I am familiar with a working group, but there are, there could have been certain people on the working group that I never spoke with.

Q. What does working group mean in the context of a matter like the Sunbeam transaction?
A. Um, it most likely would include everyone at Morgan Stanley who was associated with the transaction in some form.
It would also include members of Sunbeam senior management team.
It would also include, potentially, and I don't recall, but it could potentially include members from other capital providers, law firms, accounting firms, consulting firms. It would include a lot of different entities.
Q. The deal team that you referred to would be a smaller, like a subset of that group?
A. That is fair to say.
Q. Who would be part of the deal team?
MS. BROWN: Objection, asked and answered.
A. Well, it could be -- people from my department, people from fixed income research, people from M&A, people from corporate finance.

Um, that is pretty much it. Leveraged finance.
Q. Was there a particular leader of the deal team in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Yes. I am not so sure what you mean by "leader."
Q. Was there a particular person who was, would have been in charge of or primarily responsible for the deal team?
MS. BROWN: Same objection.
A. Yes, again, I don't know -- I am not so sure what you mean by "in charge."
Q. Please describe how the deal team functioned in connection with the Sunbeam matter.
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. It is kind of a broad question. I am trying to, I am not so sure what you mean.
Q. Well, I am trying to get a sense of how the team functioned and how you worked with others, and so -- I am looking for a fairly, I am looking for your best description of how this organization, this deal team functioned.

018236

A. I don't recall specifics, but again, there was usually a number of people involved from different areas of the group, or different areas of the deal team, again, from my department, from fixed income research, from leverage finance, from corporate finance, and from -- from M&A.

In terms of how the deal team worked, it just depended on where we were in the process.

Um, normally there was someone in corporate finance who was kind of um, um, in charge of or responsible for making sure that all of the constituencies -- meaning myself, and fixed income research and leverage finance, etc. -- were all kind of working together.

Q. Do you consider that you were part of the deal team with respect to Sunbeam?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

A. Um, again, it depends on what time you are talking about.

Q. When, if ever, were you part of the deal team in connection with Sunbeam?

A. Probably very preliminarily towards the end of 1997, and then more so, probably, in the February, March time frame of 1998.

Q. Were there any particular events that led you to become part of the deal team or led you to no longer be part of the deal team?

A. Well, I don't recall exactly, but there is no specific event that I can recall that got me involved in Sunbeam.

In relation to your second question, um, once Sunbeam had dismissed Mr. Dunlap and it was clear that Mr. Perelman's constituency was going to take over, at that point I was no longer involved.

Q. Why was that, if you know?

A. Well, at that time we had just hired someone from another institution to monitor and see through distressed situations and I did not have that experience, and he effectively took over, once things transpired as they did.

Q. To whom are you referring, in your last answer?

A. His name?

Q. Yes.

A. Morgan Edwards.

Q. Did you have occasion to deal directly with any individuals at Sunbeam?

A. I am sure I did, but I don't recall specifics.

Q. You can't recall any specific individuals that you talked with at Sunbeam?

A. Individually or --

Q. In any context, individuals that you would have spoken with.

A. I had spoken with Russ Kersh. I had spoken with Ron Richter. I had spoken with Al Dunlap.

I can't recall any other specific individuals.

Q. With respect to Mr. Kersh, did you speak to him in person, on the telephone, or both?

A. Both.

Q. Did you have one-on-one conversations with Mr. Kersh?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Did you speak to Mr. Kersh just once or twice, or was it something that, was Mr. Kersh someone with whom you spoke more frequently?

A. One on one?

Q. Yes.

A. No. It was one time.

Q. You said that you met Mr. Kersh in person, as well as over the telephone?

A. Yes. That's right.

Q. On how many occasions?

A. I don't recall.

Q. More than one or two?

A. Yes.

Q. With respect to Mr. Richter, did you speak with him in person, on the telephone, or both?

A. Both.

Q. Did you have one-on-one conversations with Mr. Richter?

A. Yes.

Q. Just once or twice, or more than that?

A. Um, I don't recall.

Q. With respect to Mr. Dunlap, did you

018237

speak with him on the telephone, in person, or both?
A. No. That was only in person.
Q. Was that a one-on-one conversation?
A. No, it was not.
Q. Part of a larger meeting?
A. That is correct.
Q. Is this just one occasion that you were to meet with Mr. Dunlap, or was it more than one?
A. It was more than one.
Q. Can you recall how many occasions you would have attended a meeting with Mr. Dunlap?
A. No, I can't recall.
Q. More or less than ten?
A. Definitely less than ten.
Q. Can you recall any specific meetings at which you and Mr. Dunlap were both present?
A. Um, I recall being at a meeting with Mr. Dunlap. I believe it was an equity analysts meeting, sometime in the spring of 1998.
I was at another meeting with Mr. Dunlap again, and I don't recall the primary reason for being at the meeting, although I know that he was signing copies of his book.

There may have been a couple of times, actually, thinking about it, on the phone, as part of diligence, but, quite frankly, I can't recall. But I remember those two specific times with Mr. Dunlap in person.
Q. At the in-person meetings with Mr. Dunlap that you mentioned, did those both take place after the Coleman acquisition closed?
A. When was the date of the Coleman acquisition?
Q. March 30th.
A. Um, I believe they were, yes.
Q. Can you recall having any conversations with Mr. Dunlap prior to March 30th, 1998?
A. Again, I believe, um, I can't recall specifics, but I believe there were a couple of phone calls with senior management of Sunbeam and some of the targets where, I believe, Mr. Dunlap was available by phone.
Q. Were these calls in which Mr. Dunlap was actually on the call or was he available to participate, if needed?

A. I don't recall.
Q. With respect to Mr. Kersh, did the conversations that you had with him take place before March 30th, after, or both?
A. Both.
Q. What did you talk to Mr. Kersh about?
A. I don't recall.
Q. With respect to Mr. Richter, do you recall whether your conversations with him were before or after March 30th, or both?
A. I believe they were after.
Q. Did they have to do with rating matters?
A. Perhaps, but I don't recall.
Q. Is there someone that you would describe as your primary contact at Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Other than Mr. Kersh, Mr. Richter and Mr. Dunlap, is there anyone else at Sunbeam that you can recall talking to?
A. Specifics? No.
Q. Would there be other people, but you just can't remember their names?

Page 45

A. I think that is fair.
Q. Had you heard of Mr. Dunlap prior to your work for Sunbeam?
A. Ah, I don't recall.
Q. In connection with your work did you say that the consumer products industry was one of the areas in which you focused?
A. It was one of them. However, at the time, and I cannot remember the specifics, a woman who I worked with, uhm, we had overlapping industry portfolios and there was some changing and she was on maternity leave; so, I believe, at the time of the Sunbeam transaction, consumer products was my, part of my portfolio.
Q. In connection with your work with the consumer products area, did you have occasion to learn about Mr. Dunlap's work with Scott Paper?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. No, I did not.
Q. At the time that you began work on the Sunbeam matter, did you have an understanding of Mr. Dunlap's reputation?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

018238

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall what Mr. Dunlap's reputation at the time may have been?
A. I don't.
Q. Have you, subsequently, come to have an understanding of Mr. Dunlap's reputation?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I am not so sure what you mean by "reputation."
Q. Did you have any understanding of how Mr. Dunlap is thought of in business circles?
MS. BROWN: Objection.
A. I can't -- I can't speculate. I don't know how he is thought of.
Q. I am not asking you to speculate. I am asking you, based on your work with Sunbeam and your following of the consumer products industry, do you have any understanding of how Mr. Dunlap is viewed, as a matter of general reputation?
A. Um, well, um, nothing other than what I have, I guess, I have read in the papers.
Q. What can you recall having read in the papers?

MS. BROWN: Objection. Time frame.
A. Um, I guess, yes, it depends on what time frame we are talking about.
Q. What can you recall having read at any time?
If it has changed over time, then please indicate that.
A. Um, I -- specifics, obviously, I can't give, but, you know, obviously, there was a lot of bad press regarding Mr. Dunlap, um, um, right -- again, I can't recall a specific time, but sometime probably in the, you know, springtime of 1998, probably in the, well, it was in the May time frame of 1998.
And then, subsequently, after his dismissal, of course, there was a lot of press about Mr. Dunlap, following his dismissal.
Q. In connection with your Sunbeam work did you have occasion to speak with any individuals at Arthur Andersen?
A. Um, I don't recall.
Q. In connection with your Sunbeam work did you have occasion to speak with any individuals at First Union?

A. I don't recall.
Q. In connection with your Sunbeam work did you have occasion to speak with any individuals at the Bank of America?
A. Again, I don't recall.
Q. In connection with your Sunbeam work did you have occasion to speak with any individuals at Coleman?
A. I believe there was a senior person from Coleman that we spoke to, as part of the transaction, but I don't remember that person's name.
Q. Do you remember their function, their title?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Is it someone that you spoke with just once, or twice, or more often?
A. It was -- it was a one-time meeting, um, as part of a larger group.
Q. Was the meeting in New York or somewhere else?
A. I don't remember. I don't recall.
Q. More generally, did you have occasion to travel away from New York in connection with the Sunbeam matter?

A. I don't recall if I did or not.
Q. Do you remember if you ever attended any meetings in Florida?
A. Um, no, I have never been to Florida in regards to Sunbeam.
Q. Do you remember if you traveled to Kansas or anywhere else in connection with Sunbeam?
A. I have never been to Kansas in connection with Sunbeam.
Q. So, it would be fair to say that the in-person meetings that you recall with respect to Sunbeam took place in New York?
A. From -- I don't recall. Most likely, was in New York.
Q. In connection with Sunbeam did you do any on-site due diligence in any place outside of Morgan Stanley's offices?
A. Off-site? Did you say "off-site due diligence"?
Q. I said "on-site." I basically mean -- is there something that you are able to -- is your work for Sunbeam something that you are able to do from your office or --
A. It could have been. It could have been.

Q. In connection with your Sunbeam work did you have occasion to speak with anyone at MacAndrews and Forbes?
A. No, I did not.
Q. In connection with your Sunbeam work did you ever, are you aware that an offering memorandum was issued?
A. Um, yes, I am aware.
Q. What role, if any, did you play in preparing the offering memorandum?
A. None.
Q. Did you review drafts of the offering memorandum?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Do you recall discussing the offering memorandum with anyone?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Please describe the work that you did in connection with Sunbeam prior to the end of 1997.
A. Um, the only work I would have done, at the end of 1997, would have been to provide preliminary rating estimates on the transaction.

Q. When you say "the transaction," you are referring to the senior debt piece of the convertible, or the convertible piece, or were those even settled at that point in time?
A. It wasn't, I don't remember what was, you know, how the capital structure was -- I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember what preliminary rating opinions you provided in 1997?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Moving from 1997 to the first part of 1998, say January and February of 1998, please describe what work, if any, you did in connection with Sunbeam during that period of time.
A. Um, I don't remember specifically. Um, I don't remember specifically in January or February, um -- what work I did.
Q. Do you recall when press releases were issued concerning Sunbeam's potential acquisitions of Coleman and the two other companies?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
Q. Do you recall when it was that Sunbeam issued a press release with respect to its acquisition of Coleman?
A. No, I don't recall specifically, no.
Q. If that were the beginning of March of 1998, does that sound right to you?
A. That sounds correct.
Q. Do you recall what work, if any, you did in connection with Sunbeam, prior to the issuance of the Coleman press release?
A. No, I do not specifically recall.
Q. Do you recall reviewing the Sunbeam press release announcing the potential acquisition of Coleman?
A. That wouldn't have been, that would not have been my job function.
Q. In connection with Sunbeam's potential acquisition of Coleman, what is the first thing that you remember doing?
A. Um, providing, again, rating estimates on this transaction.
Q. Do you recall whether or not you would have participated in an organizational conference call, on or about March 3rd, 1998, in connection with the Sunbeam matter?
A. I don't recall participating, but as a matter of course, that is something that our group normally would not be involved in.

Q. Why is it that that would be something that your group ordinarily wouldn't be involved in?
A. Again, because we were not really part of the client interaction. Our first priority was really -- my client was Morgan Stanley, the capital base of Morgan Stanley.
So, we normally did not get involved in organizational meetings, because it really had nothing to do with our department, other than potentially some ratings issues.
But normally, as a matter of course, we were not involved in those meetings.
MR. CHORVAT: I will mark this as an exhibit.
(CPH Exhibit 249, fax, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. I will hand you what has been marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit 249.
This is a two-page document bearing Bates numbers Morgan Stanley 36633 and 36634.
Can you identify Exhibit 249?
A. Well, this is a fax from me to Karen Eltrich, who, I believe, at the time, was working in fixed income research. And it looks like a, some type of due diligence agenda for Coleman.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Why is it that you sent this fax, on or about March 5th, 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Is the second page of this fax something that you prepared?
A. I don't recall.
Q. In the course of your work as a vice president in the credit group, did you have occasion to prepare due diligence review agendas?
A. As a matter of course, yes, I did.
Q. When you would prepare a due diligence review agenda, is that a sort of a standard form document that you would just apply to a particular transaction, or is it something that you would draw up from scratch?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
Go ahead.
A. From my standpoint, there is no standard. Every situation is different. Every credit is different.
So, from my standpoint, no, there is no standard form.

Q. So, each time you prepared a due diligence review agenda, you would sit down and determine what to include for that particular matter?
A. That is correct, for things I wanted answers to. That is correct.
Q. But you don't recall whether or not you prepared this particular due diligence review agenda for Coleman?
A. I don't recall preparing this.
Q. Do you recall whether there was someone else in the credit group who might have prepared this due diligence review agenda for Coleman?
A. There would have been no one else.
Q. What function does a due diligence review agenda like this serve?
A. What do you mean by "due diligence"?
Q. Well, you mentioned that, in the course of your work as a vice president in the credit group, you would have cause to prepare due diligence review agendas?
A. Yes.
Q. Why did you do that?

A. Um, well, from a credit standpoint, I would describe it as credit due diligence. And, again, the purpose of our credit due diligence was to analyze the strengths and weaknesses of a particular company, to make sure that Morgan Stanley was going to get its money back on a capital commitment.
Q. You used the term "credit due diligence." Were you using that in contrast to some other kind of due diligence that someone else might be doing?
A. Um, yes.
Q. What other sorts of due diligence might someone else at Morgan Stanley have been doing, in connection with the Coleman --
A. I really can't say.
Q. Other than credit due diligence, what other sorts of due diligence are you aware of?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I can't say. I was not -- I was not part of other forms of due diligence.
Q. When you used the phrase "credit due diligence," what were you distinguishing credit due diligence from?

A. I guess, I am talking about things that I am concerned about. It is kind of the way I look at the situation. That is all that I care about.
Okay. So, there could be, perhaps, someone in M&A that did some due diligence, you know, that had no bearing on my credit due diligence, so to speak.
Q. When you said that the due diligence work that someone else may or may not have done had no bearing on your credit due diligence, would your inquiry proceed on a separate track from any other due diligence inquiry that someone else might be doing?
A. It could. It could.
Q. When you say "it could," does that mean that there might also be interaction?
A. Um, yes. There could be interaction.
Q. In connection with Sunbeam do you recall whether your credit due diligence proceeded separately from any other due diligence work that anyone else at Morgan Stanley did, or whether there was interaction?
A. I am sorry, can you repeat the question.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018241

Q. Yes. In connection with your work for Sunbeam in connection with the Coleman acquisition, do you recall whether your credit due diligence work proceeded separately from any other work that anyone else at Morgan Stanley might have done?
A. Um, I think, I believe there was overlap. There were different -- again, I was part of a team, so to speak, and just from a resource standpoint, it was part of the process where I could be part of a larger group of people conducting "due diligence." I was there to conduct credit due diligence.
But, at the same time, um, most likely, I was part of um, um, separate diligence that was not part of the team.
Q. Outside of the credit group, who else would have been in this larger group of people who were doing due diligence work in connection with Sunbeam and Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
A. Um, again, specifically, I don't remember individuals, but some people from corporate finance, some people from debt capital markets, people from fixed income research, people from my department.

People from leverage finance.
Q. A moment ago you used the term "overlap" to describe what, I take it, were some interaction between yourself and individuals who were doing, in other groups, that were working on the Sunbeam Coleman matter.
Please describe the overlap that you referred to.
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Um, well, again, specifically, I can't remember specific times or persons who were there, but, generally speaking, when we undertake a commitment for a bank loan, there is a credit component, because Morgan Stanley is providing a capital commitment and there is, therefore, someone from that product group, being the bank loan group would also be involved in doing due diligence, as an example.
So, there may be overlap or a kind of a common diligence session with myself and someone from the loan product group to cover certain diligence topics.

Q. It is correct that you don't have any recollection of any specific overlap or meetings of the sort that you described in your last answer in connection with Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. Not specifically individuals, no, I do not.
Q. In connection with your credit due diligence with respect to Sunbeam, what sources of information did you utilize?
A. We relied on the public filings of Sunbeam and the financial statements of the companies that they were acquiring.
We relied on information provided to us by Sunbeam management and also management of the target companies.
And I don't recall specifics; however, in a situation like this, I probably used some fixed income research reports on some other consumer products companies that we researched -- reports, rating agency reports. That is probably it.
Q. You mentioned information from management of Sunbeam and the target companies.

What sorts of information did you request from management?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Are there types of information that you normally would request from management, beyond what would be in the filings or financial statements?
A. Perhaps. But every situation is different.
Q. In this instance you don't recall?
A. No.
Q. Other than public filings, financial statements, or information that you would specifically request, can you recall any other sources of information in connection with your credit due diligence reviews for Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Could I hear the question back, please.
(Record read.)
MR. CHORVAT: I will ask that again.
Q. In addition to public filings, financial statements from the target companies or information that the management of Sunbeam or the target companies provided to you, do you recall any other sources of information that you utilized in connection with your credit due diligence review?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018242

MS. BROWN: Objection. It mischaracterizes the prior answer.
A. Specifically, no, I don't.
Q. Did you have occasion to contact any customers of Sunbeam?
A. I may have, but I don't recall.
Q. What sorts of reviews or analyses did you perform with the information that you obtained with respect to Sunbeam?
A. Specifically, I don't recall.
Most of the analysis that I did, again, was focused on the fundamentals of the business, the strengths and weaknesses, trying to determine whether a company with this type of capital structure was creditworthy -- using, you know, various assumptions which I don't recall.
Q. What, if anything, do you recall about the conclusions you reached with respect to whether or not Sunbeam was creditworthy?
A. Well, based on the information that we had, and based on the best of my ability, um, I thought that Sunbeam was a creditworthy entity. Um, um, and would receive a double B, BA2 rating by the rating agencies.

Q. Do you recall at what point in time you reached that opinion?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Is that prior to the closing of the acquisitions?
A. Um, I don't recall when those -- I don't recall -- I don't recall.
Q. With respect to the information that Sunbeam management provided to you, did you do anything to challenge or look into the dependability of that information?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Um, I can't -- I can't say. I don't recall.
Q. Over what period of time did you perform your credit due diligence with respect to Sunbeam?
A. Um, again, I don't remember specific times, but it was probably sometime, based on this document that you have shown me here, sometime between the beginning of March and up until the time of the leveraged finance committee meeting.

Q. Did your due diligence work with respect to Sunbeam essentially end with the meeting of the leveraged finance commitment committee?
A. No.
Q. What work in connection with your credit due diligence review can you recall doing after the meeting of the leveraged finance commitment committee?
A. Well, I don't recall specifics, but again, there was a long time between the leveraged finance commitment committee meeting and the time that the company was presenting to the rating agencies. It was about, I think, three months.
So, there was ongoing, you know, work to be done to get the company ready to meet with the rating agencies.
Q. During that period of time after the meeting of the leveraged finance commitment committee would you consider your work, did it continue to be credit due diligence or did it sort of shift gears to something else?
A. I really -- I can't say. I don't recall.

Q. During the course of your credit due diligence review with respect to Sunbeam, did you take notes or record the work that you were doing in some fashion?
A. I am sure I did.
Q. What sorts of notes do you normally take in connection with the credit due diligence review?
A. It depends on what's being asked and what's being said.
Q. Do you recall what was being asked or being said in connection with the Sunbeam?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you, typically, take notes on a pad of paper, like a legal pad?
A. Um, you know, it is a piece of paper, but I don't remember what form it was in.
Q. Do you know what has happened to any notes that you would have prepared in connection with the Sunbeam --
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you still have any notes in connection with Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018249

A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you recall whether you utilized any e-mail in 1997 or 1998 with respect to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you ever come to believe that any information that you had been provided in connection with Sunbeam was false or misleading?
A. Um, no, I do not.
Q. Did you ever come to believe that any information that you had been provided in connection with Coleman was false or misleading?
A. I am sorry -- can you repeat the last question?
Q. The first one was Sunbeam, the second one was Coleman.
A. Was the question, have you come to believe or -- or did you believe?
Q. Have you come to believe, at any point in time.
A. Oh. Well, yes. At a point in time I have come to believe that some of the information provided to us was misleading.

Q. With respect to Sunbeam, what information have you come to believe was misleading?
A. I don't recall specifics.
Q. Do you have a general recollection that --
A. Um, um, not really. I mean, you know, again, it has been quite a while, but I don't specifically remember what was, you know, what the fact pattern was after the fact.
But I do believe that yes, there was information that, you know -- it seemed like we did not have all of the information or did not have the whole story.
Q. When you say you did not have all of the information or have the whole story, are you referring to information about Sunbeam, or about Coleman, or something else?
A. Yes, I don't recall. I don't recall.
Q. A moment ago, you said that you had come to believe that some information that you had been provided was misleading. Were you thinking about Sunbeam information?

I will ask more specifically.
Were you referring to Sunbeam's performance in the first quarter of 1998 or something else?
A. No. I was talking about basically what happened after, you know, after the company basically collapsed.
Q. So, you are talking about information post dating Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
Q. Sorry. I want to clarify your last answer. When you say the company's collapse, what period of --
A. Sorry.
Q. Please just elaborate on your answer, if you would, please.
A. I guess what I am trying to say is that it became clear to myself, um, that after Mr. Dunlap was dismissed, and subsequently to that, in the following months, that even though we did what, I believe, was the best due diligence to our ability, that we did not have all of the facts, given that Sunbeam eventually, you know, um, declared bankruptcy.

Q. Is it your recollection that you did not come to believe that information that had been provided to you was false or misleading until sometime after Mr. Dunlap was fired?
A. Yes, I think that is -- yes.
MS. BROWN: Could we take a break?
MR. CHORVAT: That is fine.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 10:56 a.m. and this completes tape number 1.
(Recess.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Stand by. The time is 11:09 a.m. and this begins tape number 2.
BY MR. CHORVAT:
Q. Mr. Whelan, in connection with your credit due diligence review in the Sunbeam matter, did you ever place a phone call, just yourself, to the management of Sunbeam to request information?
A. I don't recall.
Q. In connection with the Sunbeam matter were you ever denied access to any information that you wanted to review?
A. I don't recall, but -- I don't believe that would happen as part of, you know, my responsibility.

018214

Q. Why is it that you don't believe that that would happen?
A. Um, well, again, the job of extending credit lay, ultimately, with the credit department, and not having that information would not be acceptable.
However, I will, it depends on what information we are talking about. Okay.
But there should be no reason why the credit department wants some information that the client should be willing to give them that information.
Q. At the time that you did your due diligence work in connection with Sunbeam, did you believe that you had information sufficient to do your job?
A. Um, to the best of my knowledge, yes, I thought I had all of the information that I needed.
Q. Did you have sufficient time to review that information?
A. Um, again, I don't remember the time frame -- specifically. I think it was perhaps about a month, maybe a little less. But, looking back on it, I don't feel like I, I feel like, yes, I had enough time, based on the information that I had.

Q. Would you characterize your due diligence work in connection with Sunbeam as thorough?
A. Um, again, to the best of my ability, I thought it was.
Q. Are you familiar with the term "selling memorandum"?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. What's a selling memoranda?
A. It is, generally, a memorandum that is used to the sales force, depending, of course, on what type of instrument we are selling, to kind of give an overview of a particular company and/or transaction.
Q. Did you have any role in preparing any selling memorandum in connection with Sunbeam?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Would you have reviewed or commented on any selling memorandum in connection with Sunbeam?
A. No, I would not.

MR. CHORVAT: I will show you what previously has been marked as CPH Exhibit 129.
Q. Is Exhibit 129 a document that you are familiar with?
A. I am familiar with this document.
Q. What is Exhibit 129?
A. It looks like it is an equity commitment committee memo to the equity commitment committee.
Q. What is the equity commitment committee?
A. I honestly couldn't tell you exactly what it is, because I have never been to one. I have never been part of one.
Q. Do you have an understanding as to what role the equity commitment committee played in connection with Sunbeam?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know whether the equity commitment committee would have been involved with the convertible security, as compared to the senior debt?
A. Again, I was not part of it, but my understanding is that they would, most likely, review the convertible offering.

Q. Your name appears here on the first page of Exhibit 129, among the many others, after "from" and then a colon.
What role, if any, did you play in preparing Exhibit 129?
A. None.
Q. Do you know who would have prepared Exhibit 129?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Would you have reviewed Exhibit 129 before it went to the equity commitment committee?
A. No, I would not.
Q. In the course of your work on Sunbeam, did you review Exhibit 129?
A. I don't recall if I actually -- I don't recall.
Q. On the second page of this document there is a reference, in the first full paragraph, the longest paragraph on that page, to a rating on the zero coupon convertible security of not more than B1, B plus; do you see that?
A. Aha.

018215

Q. Do you know who would have come up with that expected rating?
A. That would be me.
Q. Do you recall what factors led you to conclude that the convertible security would be rated not more than B1, B plus?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you have a general recollection?
A. No.
Q. Would a rating of B1, B plus, what effect, if any, would that have on the marketability of a zero coupon convertible security like the one that Sunbeam was to issue?
A. I couldn't answer that.
Q. For what purpose did you come up with the B1, B plus rating with respect to the zero coupon convertible offering?
A. Um, I was -- I was -- I guess I was asked that since we were going to be doing a convert along with a senior debt piece. The senior debt piece was also going to be rated. The rating agency eventually would rate the convert, even though the convert was getting done prior to. Sunbeam had no rating, prior to the bank deal financing.

I was, again -- again, I can't recall specifically, but I was, most likely, asked by someone on the deal team to give a preliminary view on what we thought the rating on the convert would be, if it got rated.
Q. The rating of the convertible security would affect the interest rate that Sunbeam would have to pay on that security; is that correct?
A. I couldn't say.
Q. How, if at all, would the rating on the convertible security affect Morgan Stanley's position in connection with the Sunbeam financing?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Can you repeat the question, please.
Q. Sure.
You testified earlier that your role with respect to the Sunbeam transaction was to protect Morgan Stanley's interest in making a capital contribution.
A. Aha.
Q. And my question is just how a rating determination on the convertible security would affect Morgan Stanley's position, if at all.

A. By "position," what do you mean?
Q. The risk that Morgan Stanley was taking in the transaction.
A. That was not something that I really would opine upon. It was an underwriting. I was not involved.
I was never involved in the underwriting process. It was not deemed to be a capital commitment; so, therefore, that is not something that I would opine on.
Q. Is it fair to say that the B1, B plus rating that you predicted or opined on in connection with the convertible piece was done as an accommodation to others at Morgan Stanley or someone else in the transaction?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I am not -- I am not so sure what you mean by "accommodating."
Q. Why is it that you came up with that rating?
A. Again, I don't recall. I think I said I was guessing someone had asked me to come up with a rating just because they knew that eventually this convert would probably get rated once the senior piece got rated.

So, I don't remember exactly who or under what circumstances I was asked to provide that rating.
But this rating is a function of the senior rating; and so, since we were looking at a senior rating, the rating agencies always notch two notches below the senior implied rating, at that time; so, that is probably why I came up with the B1 B plus, but I can't remember exactly why.
Q. Providing the rating on the convertible piece was not part of your credit due diligence function in the Sunbeam transaction, or was it?
A. I would not say it was part of the credit function, per se. It was part of a function I performed as part of rating advisory, but it was not part of the credit function.
Q. Is it your recollection that the way that you got to the B1, B plus rating for the convertible security was that you provided a rating for the senior debt piece and then went down two notches?

018246

A. Again, that would have been the most likely situation. I don't remember specifically the timing and whatnot.
And, a lot of times, we would be providing -- you know, ratings are, they are not a science. They are not always easy to predict.
You are trying to predict what a committee of people, not the rating agencies, are trying to assess in terms of a credit risk.
So, but, yes, normally we would, when we come up with a senior implied rating, we would come up with a, if there was another piece of paper in the capital structure, it would just be kind of, it would just fall into place, as a matter of fact.
MR. CHORVAT: Let me show you what previously has been marked as CPH Exhibit 145.
Q. Are you familiar with Exhibit 145?
A. Um, it looks like the leverage finance commitment committee memo for the Sunbeam transaction.

Q. I will just ask, on the first page here, do you recognize the handwriting?
A. No, I don't.
Q. On the second page, which also looks sort of like a cover page, your name is listed, among many others --
A. Yes.
Q. -- as from.
What role, if any, did you play in preparing Exhibit 145?
A. I had no direct role. Again, I did not author this document.
I was, most likely, asked to read and make sure that I was okay with some of the statements in the document -- really, more so to the strengths and weaknesses of the credit. Obviously. The rating, this probably is a view of the rating, per se. That was my view. And then, again, I had some input into the financial model in the back.
Q. Can you recall any particular thoughts or comments that you would have had that would have contributed to this memorandum?
A. Um, verbally or -- or -- written?

Q. Either way.
A. I don't recall -- I don't recall specifics in terms of drafting the memo. I do recall, to a certain extent, talking about a downside scenario for this transaction, and getting comfortable even in the downside scenario that this was still a worthy, a viable entity.
Q. What do you recall the downside scenario for Sunbeam was like?
A. You know, I don't recall. But I do recall discussing it, um, at committee, but the specifics of it I don't recall.
Q. You said "discussing it at committee." Did you attend the meeting with the leveraged finance committee?
A. I don't believe I was -- I believe I was there telephonically.
Q. Did that meeting take place on or about March 20th, 1998?
A. Um, most likely. I mean, it is dated March. They usually are dated the day of the committee.
Q. Were you present telephonically for the entire meeting or just a part?

A. I don't recall. It was, I am sure, for a very good portion of it.
I don't recall, back then, whether -- for instance, today, we have a committee that has replaced this committee, and once the deal team has gone through the deal and everyone's questions are answered, it goes to a kind of core committee, and I don't remember whether they had that back then or not.
If they did, I was not there for the entire meeting. If they did, I was on for the entire deal team part of the meeting and then hung up when they went to core committee --
THE REPORTER: Excuse me.
A. -- after we were done.
MS. BROWN: He said, when they went to core committee.
Q. Would the leveraged finance committee meeting have been a meeting entirely devoted to Sunbeam or would there have been other matters, as well?
A. Um, I don't recall. There could have been an agenda. Um, if you are asking were other names discussed on this day -- at a different time -- there could have been, but there were no other names discussed during the Sunbeam transaction.

018247

Q. Do you recall how long the discussion of the Sunbeam transaction lasted at the leveraged finance committee meeting?

A. No, I do not.

Q. You mentioned that you recall there being discussion of the downside.

Are there other topics that you can recall being discussed?

A. Um, not specifically, no.

Q. Do you recall anything that you said, either in specific words or general topics?

A. No.

Again, my function, I think, was to discuss the rating generally and the rating, the senior rating. And, again, someone either had questions or had given a brief overview of the downside case.

Q. Do you recall whether you made a presentation, or answered questions, or something else?

A. Um, I don't recall, again, if someone asked me some questions and I answered them or I just -- I was asked to walk through the downside case, and I did that, in a, you know, you know, perhaps two- or three-minute time frame.

Q. Anything else that you can recall about the leveraged finance -- is it leveraged finance committee or leveraged finance commitment committee?

A. You know, back then it seemed like -- on the first page it says "leveraged finance commitment committee." On the next page it says "leveraged finance committee." Everyone was calling it different things back then.

So, I think it was LFCC; so, I think it was leveraged finance commitment committee.

Q. Anything else that you can remember about the LFCC meeting with respect to Sunbeam?

A. No.

Q. On the page that is the next page, with the number 2 at the bottom, in the paragraph just under the top box, it says that: "The anticipated senior-most credit rating for the pro forma Sunbeam is expected to be BB/BA 2," and that is in brackets.

Is that the rating that you were talking about?

A. Yes.

Q. That is the rating that you would have developed?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know why it is in brackets?

A. No.

Q. Would the brackets signify that rating was still tentative or to be discussed?

A. Definitely not.

Q. By the time that the leveraged finance commitment committee had met, would you have pretty much settled in on your opinion as to what the rating would be?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it the role of the leveraged finance commitment committee to give final approval to Morgan Stanley's participation in the senior debt piece with respect to Sunbeam?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. After the leveraged finance committee -- well, I will ask this.

Did the leveraged finance committee approve participation in the Sunbeam senior debt piece at its meeting on or about March 20th, 1998?

A. Um, again, I don't remember specifics. I did not hear anyone say that they approved this transaction, but I assume that they did.

Q. Why is it that you assume that? What's the basis for that?

A. Well, we went forward with the financing.

Q. After the leveraged finance commitment committee would approve a transaction like Sunbeam, what else is left to do before closing?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

A. Can you clarify that?

Q. Sure. In your experience in the credit group, once the leveraged finance commitment committee approved a transaction, what was the process like between that time and when the transaction would actually close?

MS. BROWN: For the credit group?

MR. CHORVAT: His understanding of what the process would be.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018248

Page 86

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. You know, again -- in this specific situation, I don't remember, and every situation is, every situation is different.
I mean, there are timing issues. There are -- you know, there are a lot of variables that can get you from commitment to closing.
And I don't recall, in this specific situation, how that would transpire.
And, again, there is no standard format, so to speak.
Q. Do you recall whether you continued to do credit due diligence between the time of the leveraged finance commitment committee meeting and the closing?
A. When was the closing?
Q. The Coleman acquisition closed on March 30th. I think some other pieces closed on March 27th.
A. No, I don't recall if I did or I did not.
Q. Did there come a time when you became aware of an issue as to whether or not

Page 87

Sunbeam would fail to meet projections or expectations for its performance in the first quarter of 1998?
A. Did there come a time when? I mean -- I am not so sure what you mean.
Q. Okay. During the course of your credit due diligence work, with respect to Sunbeam, did there come a time when you became aware of an issue as to whether or not Sunbeam's performance for the current quarter was falling below what had been anticipated?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Um, can you clarify that a little more?
Q. Okay. What part of it is unclear?
A. You said, in the last part, "anticipated."
Q. Okay.
In the course of your credit due diligence work on Sunbeam, did you look at Sunbeam's projections for how they were going to do in the first quarter of 1998?
A. Um, I don't recall specifically. Um, however, um, it would be a little, um, unusual to look at, um, a quarterly number.

Page 88

Most of the part -- the information was done on annualized numbers.
So, um, I don't remember specifically about a particular quarter.
Q. In connection with your --
A. Sorry, in terms of a projection model like the ones that are in this memo.
Q. Yes, and I don't know exactly how this is going on the tape, but I guess, my guess is if your hands are here, (indicating) they may not be picking everything up.
A. Okay.
Q. In the course of your credit due diligence work with respect to Sunbeam, did you have cause to look at sort of Street expectations as to Sunbeam's performance during 1998?
A. No. That wouldn't concern me.
Q. Why not?
A. Because I don't -- I don't rely on what The Street was saying. Remember, we -- um, do our own analysis internally. And whether a company, um, is above or below analysts' expectations is nothing, you know -- depending on the situation, again, but it is something that I wouldn't necessarily pay a whole lot of attention to.

Q. When you did your credit due diligence work, was that based entirely on Sunbeam's historical performance, or did you also look at projections for future periods?
A. I am certain it was both.
Q. At any point in time, did you become aware that Sunbeam's performance in the first quarter of 1998 fell below its equivalent performance for 1997?
A. Um, at some point, I believe, I did find out about that. I don't recall exactly when that was.
Q. Do you recall whether or not it was before the closing of the Coleman acquisition?
A. Um, again, when was the closing acquisition?
Q. March 30th.
A. I don't recall specifically. Um, but I believe -- I recall that there was something that came out before the end of the quarter.
Q. What, if anything, do you recall about the information that came out before the end of the quarter?

018249

A. Um, again, specifics, I don't recall specifics, but I know that their sales were going to be potentially below expectations, or something like that.
Q. Do you recall how you learned that?
A. I don't recall that, no.
Q. What, if anything, did you do when you found that out?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did the fact that Sunbeam's performance was going to be below expectations in the first quarter of 1998 have any effect on your credit due diligence work?
MS. BROWN: Objection, to the extent that his question mischaracterizes the testimony.
A. Um, sorry. Can you repeat the question?
(Record read.)
MS. BROWN: My objection stands.
A. You know, I don't recall.
Q. Is it fair to say, in general, that if a company's performance falls short of the projections upon which you based your analysis to a given point in time, that would be a fact that you would want to know?

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Can you be a little bit more specific or clarify.
Q. Okay. It is correct, is it not, that the risk that Morgan Stanley would be exposed to in providing money to Sunbeam would be affected by Sunbeam's actual performance?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Um, I think it depends on what you -- you know, how you define "performance."
Q. Is it fair to say that the risk that Morgan Stanley would be taking in extending financing to Sunbeam would be affected by the level of sales that Sunbeam would achieve?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. No. Not necessarily.
Q. Why not?
A. Well, there are a lot of things that impact on the creditworthiness. Sales is one of several dozen.
Uhm, for instance, a company with declining sales could generate more free cash flow because the company, in simple terms, with sales declining, is actually collecting receivables and inventory, um, all things being equal.

Um, so, that would bring in a level free of cash flow greater than a company that is growing very quickly.
So, that is just one possible variable.
So, if a company's -- you can't look at one metric and say, um, that is a, you know, a concern.
Q. Do you recall, in connection with Sunbeam's performance in the first quarter of 1998, whether the sales shortfall that it experienced was a positive or negative development?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form. Characterization.
A. Can you repeat the question.
(Record read.)
MS. BROWN: My objection stands.
A. Yes. Can you clarify positive from negative, from what standpoint.
Q. From your standpoint, in reviewing the risk that Morgan Stanley would be taking in extending credit.

A. I don't recall.
Q. What do you recall about Sunbeam's performance in the first quarter of 1998?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. When you say "performance," are you talking about earnings? Are you talking about sales? Are you talking about cash flow?
Q. Sales, earnings. If you want to talk about cash flow, whatever you recall. That's what I am trying to establish.
A. I mean, I do recall there was an, um -- um -- again, it is vague, but there was an issue in terms of sales performance, the first quarter of 1998 versus the first quarter of, I think, the first quarter of 1997.
But I don't remember the exact specifics, you know, at the time. I don't recall the exact specifics of what was happening at the time.
Q. Beyond the exact specifics, do you recall, generally, whether there had been a substantial shortfall in sales for the first quarter of 1998?
A. No, I do not.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Is it fair to say, then, that you don't have any recollection of coming to the conclusion that Sunbeam's performance was at variance from what you had expected in putting together your ratings conclusion?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. At the time, I don't recall.
Q. Are you familiar with the term "comfort letter"?
A. Um, I believe I am familiar with it, but I am not exactly sure, you know, in what context.
Q. Well, what is your understanding of what a comfort letter is?
A. Um, it is a letter between two parties providing comfort in certain situations.
Q. In the course of your work on the Sunbeam matter did you ever have cause to review any letters from Arthur Andersen with respect to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. I will show you what was previously marked as CPH Exhibit 17.
Is that a document that you are familiar with?

A. Um --
MS. BROWN: And, for the record, the witness will, whenever you ask him about documents, exclude any documents that he observed during his preparation for this, that he hasn't already testified about.
A. So -- no, this is not a document that I am aware of.
Q. This is not a document that you saw during your credit due diligence work with respect to the Sunbeam matter?
A. Not to my recollection, no, it is not.
Q. Okay. Do you recall whether Sunbeam issued a press release in 1998 concerning its performance in the first quarter?
A. Um, again, I don't recall the specifics, no.
Q. I will show you what was previously marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit 14.
Are you familiar with Exhibit 14?
A. Again, no, I am not.
Q. This is not something that you can recall seeing during your credit due diligence review of Sunbeam?

A. I can't recall this specific document, no.
Q. Do you recall whether Sunbeam's performance for the first quarter of 1998 was a topic that was discussed at the leveraged finance commitment committee meeting on or about March 20th, 1998?
A. Um, I can't recall.
Q. Is it your view that a press release from Sunbeam indicating that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates for that quarter, is not something that would be relevant to your credit due diligence work with respect to Sunbeam?
A. As stated here?
Q. Well, I did quote from there, yes. That is the basis for my question.
A. Oh. It wouldn't, I would not be overly concerned with it, no.
Q. This is not information that you would have wanted to know?
MS. BROWN: Objection, mischaracterizes.

A. Um, based on what the press release says, um, it is -- again, it is not something that would give me a lot of concern.
Q. Why is that?
A. Um, because the way it is, the way it is worded, it is very -- it is, again -- one, there is a lot more to sales growth or declines from a credit standpoint; and two, it talks about how it is unclear, it is unclear as to whether they are going to miss at all.
Q. So, is it fair to say that, in your view, there would be multiple possible explanations and multiple possible effects of the information that is contained in this press release?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form. Mischaracterization.
A. Um, can you be a little bit more specific?
Q. Sure. Is it fair to say that, in your view, the information that is contained in this press release is not necessarily a bad thing?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I would say, based upon what I am

018251

reading, it is not necessarily a bad thing.
Q. If you were aware of the information contained in this press release, during your credit due diligence review, would it have been something that you would have done to contact management of Sunbeam and ask follow-up questions to determine whether or not this was a bad thing?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Again, based on my experience and based on my judgment, if I thought it was something that I would need to follow up on, I would do that directly.
Q. Did you call anyone at Sunbeam to ask them about this press release or the information that is contained in it?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether you were aware of the information contained in this press release prior to the time that the leveraged finance commitment committee met?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether you were aware of the information in this press release prior to the time that the Coleman acquisition closed?

A. Um, again, I can't recall that.
Q. I will show you what has been previously marked as CPH Exhibit 112.
Are you familiar with Exhibit 112? In particular, the middle two pages.
A. No, I am not.
Q. Is Exhibit 112, is that something that you saw during your credit due diligence work for Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. On the second page of the letter, which is the third page of this exhibit, there is a little chart towards the top of the page showing Sunbeam's net sales and net income for the roughly first two months of 1998, as compared to 1997; do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And the net sales number is down from 143,499,000 to 72,018,000.
And the net income has gone from a positive 9,765,000 to a negative 41,190,000. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is that information that you were aware of during your credit due diligence work in connection with Sunbeam?

Page 100

A. I don't recall.
Q. Is that information that would have been relevant to your credit due diligence review?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Not necessarily.
Q. Why not?
A. Well, again, as I said before, there are a lot of factors that can impact the credit. Sales is just one of many.
And there could be a number of explanations as to why these numbers are different.
Q. If there are a number of possible explanations for these numbers, wouldn't it be relevant to your inquiry to know the numbers, so that you could seek those explanations?
A. Um, well, as these numbers are presented, it certainly would excite my curiosity as to what was happening and would, most likely, require some follow-up.
Q. On their face, these are numbers that reflected -- deteriorating performance; is that right?

Page 101

MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Again, not necessarily. The company -- well --
Q. Sorry.
Explain, please, what you mean by "not necessarily."
A. Well, again, a lot of things, a lot of things can happen.
And again, I don't recall the specifics, but, you know, the company could have sold a major part of its business in the first part of the prior, the last part of the prior year.
Q. Did that happen with Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall contacting anyone at Sunbeam for an explanation of the performance figures that are contained in Exhibit 112?
A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. Do you recall why you did not?
A. Recall why I did not contact them?
Q. Yes.
A. I just don't remember.
Q. Turn back to Exhibit 14 for just one more moment.

A. Yes.
Q. Were you involved in any discussions as to whether or not to issue any press release from Sunbeam?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. Did you have occasion to visit the global financial press in connection with the Sunbeam transaction?
A. What's the global financial press?
Q. Financial printer.
A. No, I did not.
Q. In connection with Sunbeam did you ever have occasion to hear about any conversations about Sunbeam or its performance that took place at the global financial press?
A. No, I am not aware of that.
Q. Are you aware of whether or not the Sunbeam transaction closed as scheduled or whether there was any advance or delay in the closing?
A. That doesn't -- I don't recall that happening, no.
Q. Were you involved in any conversations as to when to close any aspect of the Sunbeam transaction?

A. No.
Q. I will show you what has been previously marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit 36.
Is that a document that you are familiar with?
A. No, this is not a document that I am familiar with.
Q. To the best of your recollection, this is not something that you saw in connection with your work on the Sunbeam matter?
A. Well, you know, again, you know -- I may have seen this in the past six years, but I don't recall seeing it.
Q. You were not involved in any discussions as to whether or when to issue a press release containing the information in the Exhibit 36?
A. No, I was not.
Q. In connection with your work on Sunbeam, did you have occasion to consider potential synergies in Sunbeam's acquisitions?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

A. Sorry, can you repeat the question? I did not hear it.
(Record read.)
A. Can you be a little bit more specific?
Q. Sure.
Are you familiar with the word "synergies" in connection with corporate acquisitions?
A. Sure.
Q. Are synergies something that you look at from time to time in your work?
A. To evaluate credit? Yes.
Q. Why is that?
A. Well, depending -- again, every situation is different, but depending on the size of the synergies and the nature of the synergies, it could have an impact on the credit strength or weakness of the company.
Q. In connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman or First Alert or Signature, did you look at any synergies -- I guess that is the end of the question. Did you look at any synergies?
A. Again, specifically, I don't remember the dollar amounts, but I am sure that we were, at least my analysis entailed some type of synergies for the transaction.

Q. Do you recall what source of information you used in considering potential synergies?
A. Again, not specifically, but -- I am almost positive that almost all of the sources of the synergies came from either Sunbeam directly or their consultants -- I think it was Coopers & Lybrand.
Q. Did you have cause to work with Coopers & Lybrand in connection with this matter?
A. I don't remember having any direct contact with them, no.
Q. Do you know what Coopers & Lybrand did in connection with this transaction?
MS. BROWN: Foundation, form. Objections.
A. Can you be a little bit more specific?
Q. What understanding, if any, do you have as to the work that Coopers & Lybrand did for Sunbeam?

018253

A. Specifically, again, I am not, I can't recall, but I believe they were hired to analyze potential synergies for the transactions.
Q. Let me ask you to turn back to Exhibit 129, which would be in your stack there.
A. Aha.
Q. If you would turn to the page numbered 17 at the bottom.
A. Yes.
Q. There is a question, number 5 in the middle of the page, that deals with synergies.
A. Aha.
Q. Is that something that you would have reviewed at the time?
A. For this document?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. At the bottom of the response to number 5, there is a sentence that says: "They informed the Sunbeam board of directors that the synergies are likely to be in the 225 million to $275 million pre-tax range. Do you see that?

Page 107

A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who generated that estimate of synergies?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
THE WITNESS: Sorry, can you read the question again.
(Record read.)
A. No, I do not.
Q. Did you do any work in estimating synergies from the acquisitions of Coleman, Signature and First Alert?
A. I may have. I don't recall. Again, as part of our credit process it is something, it is one of the main things that we would look into.
Q. Do you recall doing anything to assess the achieveability of any synergy forecasts?
A. Specifically, I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether the estimated synergies grew over time, or were reduced over time, or changed in some other way?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. When you say "grew over time," what time period are you talking about?

Page 108

Q. During the period that you were doing credit due diligence with respect to the Sunbeam matter.
A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. If we extend the time period to include after the closing of the acquisitions and moving towards the rating presentations, do you recall whether the synergy estimates grew or shrank over that period of time?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered. And mischaracterizes.
A. Again, I don't recall over that time frame.
Q. Would you look at Exhibit 145, and look at page numbered 13 at the bottom, please.
A. Yes.
Q. The third bullet point there, under Roman 8, says that: "Synergies were also reduced on the MS base case."
Do you have an understanding of what "MS base case" is?
A. Yes. That is the Morgan Stanley base case.
Q. Who developed that?

Page 109

A. I don't recall.
Q. Someone at Morgan Stanley, other than yourself?
A. Again, I don't recall the specifics, but I am sure it was myself along with some other members of the team.
Q. So, when it says that synergies were also reduced on the MS base case, is that an adjustment that someone at Morgan Stanley would have made?
A. Um, yes. Yes.
Q. The reference, later in that sentence, to management case, those are projections that came from Sunbeam management?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Mischaracterizes the previous testimony.
A. Again, I can't be exact here, but it says from management case; so, you know.
Q. In ordinary usage, "management case" would refer to the case developed by management; is that right?
A. That is correct.
Q. Do you have any recollection of reducing synergies in projections from the management case?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0108254

A. I don't have any specific recollection, but that is pretty much standard operating procedure from the credit standpoint.
Q. How do you go about deciding what synergies to put into a Morgan Stanley case?
A. Again, you know -- every situation is different. A lot of factors go into it.
I don't remember why we assumed the 40 percent reduction, but I am sure there was some, you know, statistical data behind it, in some fashion or another.
Q. What sorts of information do you look at in evaluating synergies?
A. Um, well, again, a lot of things.
One is, are they cost synergies or revenue synergies. Generally speaking, cost savings are easier to generate than revenue synergies.
It depends on the, um, the nature of the overlap between, perhaps, some of the businesses that are being folded into the company, um, the factor would be management's past history of achieving synergies.
Um, and, you know, there are other things probably, too, that I can't think of off the top of my head.

Q. Do you recall if any of those factors came into play with respect to Sunbeam?
A. No, I can't.
Q. You mentioned, a couple answers ago, that it was, I think you said standard, or common, in any event, to reduce synergies from what management has suggested. Why is that?
A. Well, from a credit standpoint we always view synergies as something where -- well, for a lot of reasons, from a credit standpoint, we would view the glass as half empty.
And to just assume that a company is going to achieve everything that they say they are going to achieve I don't think is all that prudent, regardless of track record.
And, also, synergies can happen over a period of time.
And folding those in at different time periods is very hard to do.
So, again, from a credit standpoint, it is pretty standard to take some type of haircut. And how you come up with the haircut depends on the situation that you are involved with.

But that is, you know, I think any credit analyst, you know, or any rating agency person or any person would take that kind of haircut.
Q. Is it fair to say that companies' managements tend to be optimistic in predicting synergies from a transaction?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. "Companies' managements." Can you be more specific?
Q. Sure.
You explained in your testimony why, in looking at a glass half empty, you often reduce synergies. I just wanted to take a little different perspective on that.
In your experience, is it fair to say that the management of a company looking at an acquisition or a transaction will often be optimistic about the synergies that can be generated from that transaction?
A. Not necessarily, no. There are plenty of times that I can't -- management has exceeded synergies. It has happened.

Q. In your experience, is it equally likely that a company will exceed previous expectations as to synergies, as it will be to fall below those expectations?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Again, purely from a credit matter, um, it is hard to say, just because, again, you know, things change over time. And the synergies get factored in at potentially different points in time.
So, you know, it is hard for me to sit here and categorically say that companies, you know, generally are better or worse than what they originally anticipate in terms of projections. It is just, it is really a case-by-case example. It depends on what industry you are talking about.
It depends on the experience of the management team.
It depends on what they are buying.
I just, I can't give that a, any kind of a kind of blanket answer from an experience standpoint.
Q. I will show you what was previously marked as MS Deposition Exhibit 78.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Is this a document that you reviewed in connection with your Sunbeam work?
A. It doesn't look familiar, no.
Q. In connection with your Sunbeam work, did you become familiar with a gentleman named Andrew Conway?
A. I believe he was the equity analyst for Morgan Stanley for beverage companies, I think. I can't really remember.
Q. Do you recall any work that Andrew Conway did in connection with synergies in connection with Sunbeam?
A. No, I do not. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you recall any conversations with Mr. Conway with respect to Sunbeam?
A. No, I do not.
THE WITNESS: Could I take a recess?
MR. CHORVAT: Yes.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 12:16 p.m. and we are going off the record.
(Recess.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Stand by. The time is 12:24 p.m. and we are back on the video record.

BY MR. CHORVAT:
Q. Again, with reference to Deposition Exhibit 145, which, I think, you have in front of you, on page 13.
A. Yes.
Q. There are references there to the MS base case and MS downside case, and there is also a Morgan Stanley financing base case.
First of all, is the Morgan Stanley financing base case, is that the same as MS base case?
A. I don't know. Where did you see "MS financing"?
Q. The first sentence of the first bullet point.
A. Well, as it is worded here, they would seem to be the same, because there is only one clarifier. So, the second sentence is clarifying the first.
So, I am assuming, it seems like they are the same.
Q. And in the fourth bullet point there is a reference to an MS downside case.
A. Yes.
Q. What is a downside case, as compared to a base case?

A. Again, I don't recall specifics, but usually a downside case would be, perhaps, a one in 10 or, you know, one out of four possibility of something that could go differently, negatively of course, compared to our base case.
Just to show how much flexibility there is from a credit standpoint to make it through a potential downside event, if you will.
Q. Who at Morgan Stanley would have generated the MS downside case in connection with Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
A. Again, at the time -- it is done a little differently now, but at the time it was, most likely, myself, fixed income research and, perhaps, corporate financing, and/or the leverage product group.
Q. In a couple of these bullet points on page 13 is the acronym CAGR. Is that compound annual growth rate?
A. Yes.
Q. And in the second bullet point it notes that the CAGR for sales was reduced from almost 14 percent in the management case to 9.4 percent in the MS base case.

Do you know why that was done?
A. Specifically, no, I do not.
Q. In general, was it typical in your work in preparing projections to alter sales growth rates from what management had projected, if you found that to be warranted?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Well, that could be one factor that we could, I mean -- that we could change, or we would really call synthesize.
It could be sales. It could be EBITDA margin. It could be inventory turn. It could be, you know, the company generates a certain amount of free cash flow, how much of that cash flow goes towards back into the business, versus paying down debt service.
I mean, there are a lot of different assumptions that we can make here. I don't recall why we just looked at sales.
There could be other assumptions in the downside case that just aren't highlighted in this case, overview of the assumptions, but

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CA-18256

Page 118

I don't recall exactly why we chose sales.
Q. As set out in the fourth bullet point on page 13, the downside case still assumes that sales will grow on an annual rate of 4.4 percent, rather than 9.4 percent on the base case; is that correct?
A. Well, sorry, where does it say that? Yes. Yes.
Q. And then, the other difference that is laid out here between the downside case and the base case is that in the downside case Morgan Stanley has assumed no synergies from the transaction, as compared to the synergies that we talked about earlier that are in the third bullet point in the base case; is that right?
A. Aha.
Q. Did there come a time when Morgan Stanley worked to syndicate any portion of the Sunbeam financing?
A. Um, well, I am not in the syndication group and I never was. I can't, I am not really sure that I can answer that question.
Q. I will ask it a different way.

Page 119

What role, if any, did you play in any attempted syndication of any of the Sunbeam financing?
A. None.
Q. After March 30th, 1998, when is the next time that you can recall participating in a meeting with respect to Sunbeam?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether you participated in a meeting with analysts on or about May 11th, 1998?
A. I believe I was at that meeting, yes.
Q. Where did that meeting take place?
A. I believe it took place at the Equitable building on 7th Avenue, I believe.
Q. Do you recall who participated in that meeting from Morgan Stanley?
A. No, I do not.
Well, I was there, and I believe my analyst Jason Kunreuher was there.
Q. Can you recall who was there for Sunbeam?
A. Um, Al Dunlap was there. I can't recall if Russ Kersh was there, but I can't recall if he was there or not.

Q. Do you recall when that meeting occurred in relation to Sunbeam's issuing of its first quarter results for 1998?
A. No. I don't know when they issued the first quarter results.
Q. Other than the folks that you testified to as being there for Morgan Stanley for Sunbeam, how many other people were there? Roughly.
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I can't say, really.
Q. Was it held in a conference room or an auditorium?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall how big the room was.
Q. What was the purpose of the analysts' meeting on May 11th, 1998?
A. I don't recall at this time.
Q. You have been to analysts' meetings before?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Is there, typically, a reason why management will meet with analysts in a meeting like that?

Page 121

A. There could be a number of reasons why they meet with the analysts. There is no one specific.
Q. What are the reasons that you can think of?
A. It could be to announce the transaction.
It could be to announce a -- it could be just kind of a luncheon to kind of give an update on performance.
It could be a follow-on to an earnings announcement.
It could be, you know, probably, a lot of other things that I am thinking about.
Q. You don't recall which, if any, of those it was in the case of Sunbeam in May of 1998?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you recall why you were there?
A. Um, no, I don't recall why I was there, other than that it was right down the street from my office and it was convenient to go, but I can't recall exactly why I was there.
Q. You were continuing to do some work for Sunbeam at that point?

018257

A. Um, well, of course, we were still -- you know, we still had to meet with rating agencies at the beginning of June.
Q. Is it fair to say that your credit due diligence work had concluded by that point?
MS. BROWN: Objection, to the extent that it mischaracterizes the prior testimony.
A. Um, it is hard to say in what light.
Q. Well, as of May 11th, 1998, the acquisitions had already taken place and the closings had taken place on the financing; and so, were you continuing to do credit due diligence at that point?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.
A. Um, again, if it was -- most likely, any credit work was most likely related to the credit rating agencies, who are concerned about credits because that is why, how they rate bonds. So, it was, most likely, in that regard.
Q. In connection with your work in advance of the rating agency meetings, what was it that you were doing? What was your role?

A. Um, specifically, you know, I don't recall; but, generally, it would be helping the client put together, effectively, a presentation to the rating agencies to tell the story.
And, as was said before, the rating presentation is more of a larger road show presentation, so to speak. It is much more detailed. And so, that would be one aspect of it.
The other aspect would be scheduling the meetings with the constituencies at the S&P and Moody's, walking them through any potential issues they may have or things that they would like to hear about more specifically, so it is a more effective meeting.
And then, also, speaking with management and dealing with potentially some of the issues that the rating agencies may have.
Q. Do you recall who spoke at the May 11th analysts' meeting?

Page 124

A. Um, I believe Al Dunlap did. I know he was there, but I can't recall who actually spoke.
Um, um, I can't -- I believe -- I believe Michael Price may have been there, but I can't remember if that was that meeting or not.
Q. Who is Michael Price?
A. Well, at the time, I believe, Michael Price was a large shareholder in Sunbeam.
Q. Can you recall the tenor of the meeting, whether it was upbeat, or tense, or something else?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. You know, I really can't recall the length or the mood of the meeting.
Q. I will show you what has been previously marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit 195.
Are you familiar with Exhibit 195?
A. I don't recall it, no.
Q. In connection with the May 11th analysts' meeting, did you play a role in preparing any hand-outs or materials, written materials?

A. For this meeting?
Q. Yes.
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you review any written materials before the meeting?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Would you have seen any written materials that were handed out when you were actually there at the meeting?
A. Are you asking me, if this was handed out at the meeting, would I have seen it?
Q. Yes.
A. If they handed it out, I would have seen it.
Q. Let me ask you to turn to the page that has the Bates number 40250, also 3546. There are two Bates numbers.
A. 402 --
Q. 250, cost savings and synergies.
A. Yes.
Q. It says "original estimate of 150 million and actual of 291."
Do you know where either of those

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018258

Page 126

numbers come from?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know whether the $291,000,000 actual number is a number that was based on any input from you?
A. The 291, I had nothing to do with that number.
Q. Do you know if that is a Coopers & Lybrand number?
A. I have no idea where that number came from.
Q. Do you recall any discussions with anyone about the $291,000,000 synergy number?
A. Not to my recollection, no.
Q. Do you have any understanding of the model upon which that was based or the assumptions on which that was based?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to why the original estimate of cost savings and synergies would have increased from 150 million to 291 million by May 11th, 1998?
A. No.
Q. In connection with your rating agency work for Sunbeam, did you have cause to discuss synergies with anyone at Sunbeam?

A. I can't recall specifics, but I probably did in due course.
Q. It would be a fairly normal topic to come up, but you don't recall any specific discussions?
A. Again, the rating agencies are credit people, and I am assuming that if this was a big part of the story, that they would want to have a lot of details as to how the synergies were going to be achieved.
I think that is a fair statement.
Q. Can you recall discussing synergies with anyone at Coopers & Lybrand in connection with Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection, asked and answered.
A. No, I can't recall that.
Q. At any point, did you review the basis for any synergies estimates that Coopers & Lybrand generated in connection with Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Sorry, could you read that back.
(Record read.)

Page 128

MS. BROWN: Objection to form and foundation.
A. Sorry, could you read that again.
(Record read.)
A. I can't recall.
MR. CHORVAT: I am handing you what has been marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit 250.
Can you identify Exhibit 250?
(CPH Exhibit 250, memorandum, marked for identification as of this date.)
A. Yes. This is a memorandum that I put together in preparation for the -- it is really just a brief itinerary of the meeting that Russ Kersh and Ron Richter were going to have with the rating agencies on, I guess, June 3rd.
Q. These are the meetings that you have mentioned from time to time in your prior testimony; is that right?
A. Yes. That's right.
Q. Were you involved in drafting the materials to be shared with the rating agencies at those meetings?

Page 129

A. Yes, I was involved.
(CPH Exhibit 251, documents Bates Nos. 5547 to 5599, marked for identification as of this date.)
MR. CHORVAT: I am handing you what has been marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit 251, which is a fairly lengthy document which bears Bates stamps MS, Morgan Stanley 5547 through 5599.
Q. Can you identify Exhibit 251?
A. Yes. This is the rating agency presentation that Sunbeam gave to the rating agencies.
Q. Do you know whether this is a final version or a draft?
A. I don't know.
Q. Exhibit 250 discusses rating agency meetings on June 3rd. Were there also meetings on or about May 25th; do you recall?
A. No. There wouldn't have been other meetings. There was only one set of meetings, one day of meetings.
Q. Were there drafts of the presentation materials prepared prior to the actual rating agency meetings?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018256

Page 130

A. I am sure there were.
Q. What role did you play in preparing Exhibit 251?
A. Um, well, I did not physically put the document together. It was put together in, just as a matter of, that's how we did it in terms of efficiency, by the documentation, or whatever you wanted to call it, that was part of IBD.
But I -- based on what I knew, the strengths of the company weren't what the concerns of the rating agencies were going to be that crafted this document, to go over what we thought would be the salient points of what they would want to hear.
Q. The documentation group in IBD that you mentioned, that is a group within Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes. It is, like, word processing.
As a matter of fact, if you -- you know, there is a date on this document that says April 15th. I think that is the April 15th --
Q. If this document were prepared on or about April 15th, then it would be -- the May 25th date on the cover would be sort of a projected date for the meeting, the analyst meeting?

Page 131

A. It could have been.
We could have -- you know, a lot of times these things are fluid and there could have been a scheduling conflict that we had to move the meeting to June 3rd, or something like that, either from a company standpoint, or from my standpoint, or from the rating -- most likely, the rating agencies.
Q. With respect to the substance of Exhibit 251, what sources of information would you have drawn upon in connection with your contribution to this document?
A. Again, we would have relied on the information provided to us by the Sunbeam management team, along with the management team of some of the targets that they had purchased, the historical financials.
Obviously, let's say in the projection model, which is the management's projection model, so predominantly this information comes in some form through management.

Q. Other than yourself, who else at Morgan Stanley would have contributed to the substance or presentation of Exhibit 251?
A. Specifically, I can't say, but it would have been probably certain key members from corporate finance and leveraged finance.
Q. Do you recall who any of those would have been in connection with Sunbeam?
A. Specifically, or -- just general people who were involved in the deal?
Q. As specifically as you can recall, with respect to Sunbeam.
A. Well, I can't recall anyone being involved in this book. I am sure someone was, but I can't tell you if someone on the deal team had a comment on a certain page.
Q. Would this have circulated to the entire deal team from the March transaction?
A. The recipients would have been myself, corporate finance -- leveraged finance, and perhaps fixed income, and that's it.
Q. I will ask you to turn to the page that bears the Bates number 5551.
A. Executive summary.

Page 133

Q. Executive summary.
In the second bullet point it says: "Synergies are projected to be at least $150 million annually."
A. Aha.
Q. Do you know where that number came from?
A. No, I do not.
Q. This is not something that you, personally, prepared?
A. No, it is not.
Q. The prior sentence in that bullet point talks about the acquisitions of Coleman Signature Brands and First Alert.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know whether the $150,000,000 number is the combined synergies of all three acquisitions?
A. I can't say, for certain.
Q. If you turn to the page Bates numbered 5556.
A. Yes.
Q. It is a summary of acquisitions?
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. Under "Coleman" it says "$2.2

billion aggregate value"; do you see that?
A. Aha.
Q. Do you know what the source of that information was?
A. No, I do not.
Q. That is not something that you did, personally?
A. No. I had nothing to do with that.
Q. So, in instances like this, you and others at Morgan Stanley would have taken information that came from a management source, and then Morgan Stanley put it into the form of this document?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Mischaracterizes.
THE WITNESS: Can you read the question back, please.
(Record read.)
MS. BROWN: Also, objection to form.
A. Um, I think most of the information, it is fair to say -- I haven't gone through the document -- is information that has been provided by management.
Q. With respect to the $2.2 billion valuation of Coleman, do you know if that number came from Sunbeam management or some other source?

A. Yes. I don't know where that came from.
Q. I will ask you to turn to page 5571.
A. Yes.
Q. "Coleman synergies rationale $122 million."
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who came up with the $122 million number?
A. No, I do not.
Q. There is a whole list of considerations that seem to go into that. Do you know who generated those considerations?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know whether it was management or Coopers & Lybrand?
A. I don't recall who came up with these figures.
Q. It was not you?
A. Absolutely not.
MR. CHORVAT: I am handing you what has been marked as CPH Deposition Exhibit 252.

Page 136

(CPH Exhibit 252, rating agency presentation, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. Can you identify Exhibit 252?
A. Again, it looks like a Sunbeam rating agency presentation with a later date.
Q. It looks like a little footer is dated May 31st, 1998.
A. Yes. That looks to be right.
Q. What role, if any, did you play in preparing Exhibit 252?
A. Um, the same as I indicated before. It was more to help collect thoughts on the strengths and weaknesses of the company and issues that I knew the rating agencies would want to focus on.
Q. I will ask you to turn to the page that has the Bates number 19641.
There is some handwriting; do you recognize that?
A. No, I do not.
Q. That is not your handwriting?
A. I don't believe it is. It is hard to read, but I don't believe it is.
Q. This document bears Bates numbers

19638 through 19725.
Let me ask you to turn to page 19651.
A. Yes.
Q. And here, under "Sunbeam acquisition rationale," the second bullet point says that "cost savings/synergies are approximately $290,000,000 annually." Do you see that?
A. Aha.
Q. Do you know why that number had increased from 150 million in the draft we were looking at a moment ago to about 290?
A. No, I can't. I can't give you an answer to that.
Q. Do you know who prepared the $290,000,000 estimate?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you recall any discussions of synergies in the range of $290 million with anyone at Sunbeam?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. How about anyone at Coopers?
A. No.
Q. How about anyone during the analysts' meeting in May?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018261

A. Again, I did not specifically have, I did not have any conversations with anyone at the analysts' meeting.
Q. Do you recall whether synergies was a topic that was discussed at that meeting?
A. I don't recall. I can't recall.
Q. Can you recall any discussion of synergies during the meetings with the rating agencies in June?
A. Um, I can't recall specifically, no. But, you know, like I said, I am sure it was a topic of conversation.
Q. There were two rating agencies meetings in early June; is that correct?
A. Yes. That is correct.
Q. What can you recall about the Standard & Poors meeting?
A. Um, nothing really. It was a non-event.
Q. When you say a non-event --
A. It was not any -- to me, I had gone to so many of these things in my career, it doesn't really -- there is nothing that comes to my mind.
Q. Do you recall who attended?

A. I believe the people on this page, and I can't recall specifically, but I believe on this page attended.
Q. When you say "the people on this page," the people on behalf of Sunbeam would have been Mr. Kersh and Mr. Richter?
A. Yes. That's right is there.
Q. And yourself, Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. And then, the three individuals who are listed under Standard & Poors under 11A M?
A. Correct.
Q. Is there anyone else at that meeting that you can recall?
A. Jason Kunreuther, my analyst, but I can't recall him specifically being there.
Q. You can't recall any particular topics of conversation?
A. No, I cannot.
Q. How long did the meeting last?
A. I don't recall. A couple hours, probably.
Q. With respect to the Moody's meeting, who attended that meeting?
A. Kevin Kusniak (ph) was there, and a gentleman named Rob McCreary.

Q. Who was Mr. McCreary with?
A. He was with Moody's.
Pam Stump was not there; so, he was there in her place, I believe.
Q. And Messrs. Kersh and Richter for Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. And yourself, on behalf of Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
Q. How long did that meeting last?
A. Again, probably a couple hours.
Q. What, if anything, can you remember about that meeting?
A. I do remember that being a little contention between Mr. Kersh and Mr. McCreary. I can't remember specifically what about, but, quite frankly, that was pretty much the standard operating procedure with Mr. McCreary and pretty much anyone that was brought in to see Moody's.
Q. Do you recall whether synergies were discussed during that Moody's meeting?
A. I don't recall specifically, no.

Q. What about Sunbeam sales performance?
A. Not specifically.
Q. The acquisitions?
A. Sorry.
Q. The acquisitions?
A. Well, again, not specifically, but I am sure that is why they were there. Finance, I am sure, was part of the conversation.
Q. How long does it, typically, take after a rating agency meeting for the agencies to develop a rating?
A. Um, an official rating or preliminary rating?
Q. I take it the preliminary one comes first; right?
A. Yes.
Q. How long does that take?
A. It could take less than a day or so.
Q. Did you get preliminary ratings from Standard & Poors or Moody's?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. What did they have to say?
A. They both said double B, BA2 senior.

018262

Q. Did they, also, rate the convertible piece?
A. They did not have to, but I knew, by default, that it would be rated, because, again, it is always two notches below that; rating; so, it would have been B1, B plus.
Q. And did those preliminary ratings become official at some point?
A. No, they did not.
Q. Why is that?
A. Well, after the rating meetings, June 3rd, I don't know, it was probably the following weekend when Mr. Dunlap got fired, along with Mr. Kersh.
Or, I think -- I don't know where he was, but -- and, obviously, put the whole syndication, or whatnot, in kind of disarray, or kind of suspended syndication process; so, S&P Moody's had different policies at the time.
S&P basically said they are not going to rate it, they are not going to rate anything, they don't normally rate converts unless there is another reason to rate.
At the convert meeting they had something on a piece of paper, like the bank debt. Since the bank debt was not going to get rated -- because there was no syndication at the time, there was no reason to rate the converts. Okay.

Um, Moody's, on the other hand, the initial reaction, they were going to rate the bank debt, but when I told them that, look, there are three holders of the bank debt -- we do not need a rating on it because we are holding it -- us, being they and, I think, First Union.
We did not need the rating. And so, however, Moody's had this policy that there was a convert out there, and they were claiming that they were getting inquiries about a rating; and so, they gave it a rating.
Q. How long does it, typically, take to get an official rating after the rating agency meetings?
A. It depends, but in this situation, it is probably a couple weeks.
Q. Is that fairly typical?
A. I would say so.
Q. After the rating agency meetings on June 3rd, did you have any further work in connection with Sunbeam?

A. Um, well, as I said, I had some follow-up conversations with the rating agencies.
And I may have, you know, relayed some of that information to some of the team members.
But, other than that, I can't remember -- I can't remember, you know, when it stopped.
Q. Other than relaying that sort of rating agency information, had you done anything else with respect to Sunbeam since June of 1998?
A. Since June of 1998?
Q. Yes.
A. Um, you know, I can't remember exactly the date, but it was probably the end of June where I was pretty much done with the, done with the company.
Q. Did you continue to monitor Sunbeam's performance after that?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you have any involvement in any reserves established or write-downs or write-offs in connection with Sunbeam?

A. No, I did not.
Q. Have you had any cause to monitor American Household or Morgan Stanley's holdings in American Household, as a result of its Sunbeam position?
A. I recently, probably in the last year or so, received some financials on American Household, but I don't cover the industry anymore, and I believe I gave them to the person that covers the industry.
But it is not really a name that we follow from a portfolio management standpoint.
Q. Who is the person that you gave that information to?
A. I believe I gave it to a woman named Tina Trinkle, or I just let her know that we got these and filed them in our system, but -- I did not look at them.
Q. What group is Ms. Trinkle with?
A. She is in my group.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at Morgan Stanley who monitors American Household?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.

018263

Page 146

A. No, I am not aware.
Q. Are you aware of anyone at Morgan Stanley who would have valued Morgan Stanley's interest in American Household?
A. I am not aware of anybody.
Q. You have not?
A. I certainly have not.
Q. Just to step back for a second to March of 1998.
Were you involved at all in the road show in connection with the Sunbeam financing?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Did you attend any meetings or lunches that were part of the road show?
A. I may have, but I don't recall.
Q. Did you attend a lunch in Boston with respect to the road show?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Can you recall attending any meeting in New York with respect to the road show?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Again, I recall being at a meeting with Mr. Dunlap, and he was, you know, signing books, but -- so, you know, that could have been the road show. I don't know.

Page 147

Q. Is there anything else that you can recall about that meeting?
A. Actually, no.
Q. Do you recall who else was there?
A. Um, I know, again, Jason Kunreuther with there with me, but other people, no.
Q. Do you know whether anyone else from Morgan Stanley was present at that meeting?
A. I can't recall.
Q. At any point, have you been asked whether you have any documents that relate to this litigation?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Um, I don't recall.
Q. At any point, have you looked for any documents or electronic files that might relate to this litigation?
MS. BROWN: Same objection.
A. Um, again, you know, I was -- I was probably contacted several years ago for some documents, but I don't remember what those documents were, and whatnot, so.
Q. What is your understanding of what happened with respect to any working files that you had with respect to Sunbeam?

Page 148

THE WITNESS: Sorry, can you read back the question.
Q. I will try it again. It was a little sloppy.
I take it that during the time that you were working on Sunbeam you had some working files or papers that related to the matter that were in your possession?
A. That's right.
Q. At some point, did those documents come to be no longer in your possession?
A. Um, once I, uhm, once I was, once we brought Morgan Edwards on to cover our distress portfolio, I effectively gave them my entire file.
Q. You did not keep anything, at that point?
A. Not that I can recall, no, I did not.
Q. Would you also have transferred to Mr. Edwards any computer files that you had, related to Sunbeam?
THE WITNESS: What was the question, "could have"?
(Record read.)

Page 149

A. I don't recall.
Q. At the time that you were working on Sunbeam, the spreadsheets, word processing files, other kinds of computer files, those would have been on your computer; is that right?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I suppose it is possible, but anything that I would have had he would have had access to through his, through the L-drive at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Is it fair to say that you use a different computer today than you used in 1998?
A. Yes, I think that is a fair statement.
Q. Do you know whether there are any files relating to Sunbeam on your current computer?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you have cause to look?
A. No.
Q. Do you know whether anyone else has looked at your computer with respect to Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018264

A. Not that I am aware of.
Q. Are you aware of any document retention policy at Morgan Stanley with respect to papers or computer files like what you would have had in your possession relating to Sunbeam?
A. No, I am not aware of what, if any, what the policy is.
Q. Sorry, as you sit here today, you don't know where any of the Sunbeam-related documents that you once would have had or had access to are today?
A. I have no idea.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Five minutes left on the tape.
MR. CHORVAT: If we can break for a couple minutes, I think I am just about done.
MS. BROWN: Okay.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 1:12 p.m. and we are going off the video record.
(Recess.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Stand by. The time is 1:18 p.m. and we are back on the video record.

BY MR. CHORVAT:
Q. With respect to Exhibits 251 and 252, I will just ask you again about these footers that are on the lower left column.
Those are generated by a Morgan Stanley computer system; is that right?
A. I believe so.
Q. And so, these documents were generated by someone at Morgan Stanley; is that right?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. Can you be a little bit more specific.
Q. With respect to Exhibit 251, describe, to the best of your understanding, the process by which this document came to exist.
A. Well, it was put together through a collaborative effort between management of the company, certain members of the deal team who put the slides together, and then it was created in a word document, so to speak, by the word, I guess it is called the word processing group at Morgan Stanley.

Q. The same question with respect to Exhibit 252.
A. The same thing. You know. Management, along with certain team members, put together the slides and then, you know, in hand form. And then they were, obviously, put together by the word processing group at Morgan Stanley.
Q. These were prepared in connection with Morgan Stanley's work in preparation for the rating agency meetings?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I think that is fair.
MR. CHORVAT: Thank you, Mr. Whelan, that is all that I have.
MS. BROWN: No questions.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 1:20 p.m., and this completes tape number 2 and also the videotaped deposition of Mr. Christopher Whelan.

JOSEPH R. PERELLA, called as a witness, having been duly sworn by a Notary Public, was examined and testified as follows:
EXAMINATION BY
MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Perella.
A. Good afternoon.
Q. Mr. Perella, would you please state your full name for the record, please?
A. Joseph, middle initial R. Perella.
Q. Where do you reside, Mr. Perella?
A. New York City.
Q. And by whom are you currently employed?
A. Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do you have a title?
A. Chairman of Institutional Securities.
Q. And to whom do you report in that capacity?
A. Phil Purcell.
Q. Are there any other individuals at Morgan Stanley who report to you?

A. Two.
Q. And who are they?
A. Judy Foscale, F-o-s-c-a-l-e, and Ann Johnston, J-o-h-n-s-t-o-n.
Q. What is Mr. Purcell's position at Morgan Stanley?
A. Chief Executive Officer.
Q. He's the top person in the company?
A. Yes.
Q. And Judy Foscale, what is her title?
A. She's one of my two assistants.
Q. And Ann Johnston?
A. The other assistant.
Q. Do they have other administrative responsibilities, other than assisting you?
A. No.
Q. As the chairman of Institutional Securities what are your responsibilities?
A. As Chairman of Institutional Securities my role is really a client-oriented role. Some people refer to me as the senior client person in the firm. That's opposed to a line manager. So I have responsibility for leading the client effort, for being the senior banker on certain important accounts of the firm, and for -- I would say just as a general statement it's more of a leadership role, not a managerial role.

Q. You joined Morgan Stanley in 1993?
A. Correct.
Q. Could you briefly review for me the course of your employment at Morgan Stanley, the various positions you've held?
A. I joined in November '93. I was a manager/director. I had no line responsibilities, as a senior client person. Approximately 18 months later I was asked to become the head of the corporate finance department, which is in an industrial sense the sales arm of the investment bank. 18 months after that --
Q. I'm sorry, 18 months after you joined in November of '93 would have been late 1995?
A. Early 1995.
Q. Thanks.
A. Well, spring of 1995.
Q. Spring of '95?

A. Approximately 18 months later I was asked to become the head of the investment banking division. I -- I held that -- I was in that function for -- until approximately October of 2000.
And in October of 2000 I became Chairman of Institutional Securities and Investment Banking, which we shorten really for ease of description, and simply say Chairman of Institutional Securities.
I also was on the management committee of the firm from the time I joined, and still am on the management committee of the firm.
So that that's basically the 11-year -- 11 years I've been at Morgan Stanley.
Q. What were your responsibilities as the head of Corporate Finance?
A. To run the corporate finance department.
Q. What does that consist of? What are the functions of the corporate finance department at Morgan Stanley?
A. As I said, it's the -- the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

marketing arm and, in an industrial sense, the sales arm of the investment bank, to interface with the client world, and in a sense, the general practitioners who interface and are the first line of contact with companies, and so that group was under my direction for 18 months.

Q. And as the head of Corporate -- excuse me. As the head of the investment banking division --

A. Um-hm.

Q. -- what functions within Morgan Stanley are subsumed within that group?

A. The head of Investment Banking oversees the investment banking division that consists of corporate finance department, which consists of about half the resources of the division, Human Resources, the merger and acquisition department, the what was then Debt Capital Markets and Equity Capital Markets groups. They've since been combined to form a Global Capital Markets group, and the real estate department. So in effect, at the time I was the head of Investment Banking, that would be I believe six departments reporting to the head of Investment Banking.

Q. In your capacity as the head of the investment banking division to whom did you report?

A. The -- I have to think about that for a second, because there were some changes in management. As the head of Investment Banking, my best recollection is that I reported to Peter Karches, who was the head of Institutional Securities, and while I think that's -- during the period I was the head of Investment Banking, I reported to him. He resigned in early September, and in the month between then and the time I became Chairman of Institutional Securities I reported to John Mack, because that would be September of the year 2000.

Q. You're represented by counsel here today; are you not, Mr. Perella?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Yannucci's representing you today, and Mr. Claire and Mr. Doyle.

A. Um-hm, yes.

Q. Did you have an opportunity to prepare for the deposition today by meeting with them?

A. I met with them, yes.

Q. To prepare for your deposition today?

A. Yes.

Q. You've been deposed previously?

A. Yes.

Q. Approximately how many times?

A. Well, I started working on Wall Street in 1972, so I don't think I could recall the number, but significant in terms of number.

Q. You know Bill Strong?

A. Do I --

Q. -- know Bill Strong?

A. I certainly do.

Q. How long have you known Mr. Strong?

A. Since 1993.

Q. When you first joined the firm?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you review Mr. Strong's personal -- personnel evaluations to prepare for today?

A. I was shown them, but I -- I don't

-- it would depend on what you meant by review. I looked at some parts of them, but I didn't review them from front to back.

Q. Do you know what years you saw?

A. I'm -- I'm not confident I could be accurate in telling you what years that I looked at.

Q. You've seen Mr. Strong's personnel evaluations previously, correct?

A. Previous to?

Q. Previous to preparing for today's deposition.

A. Well, I was his evaluation director, so by -- by definition, I would have seen them during the evaluation process.

Q. Are you aware, sir, that Morgan Stanley opposed our request to take your deposition today?

A. I'm not familiar with the details of this lawsuit.

Q. You're not aware that we had to get a court order for today's deposition --

MR. YANNUCCI: Objection, relevance.

Q. -- to move forward?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018271

MR. YANNUCCI: What's relevance is that to his facts you want to get from him?
A. As I said, I'm not really familiar with the details of this lawsuit.
Q. Mr. Perella, is it fair to say that Morgan Stanley today takes its personnel evaluation process very seriously?
A. Today?
Q. Yes.
A. Today and always, yes.
Q. That was my next question.
That was true in the 1990s as well, when you first joined Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you estimate for me in any way, whether it's in terms of time or money, the amount of effort each year expended by Morgan Stanley in connection with the personnel evaluation process that the firm engages in?
A. Well, I -- I -- I couldn't do it in terms of money, because I have no basis for being able to build that model. I never asked the question.

In terms of time, I would say it's a significant amount of time in that it -- and, of course, it depends on whether you're talking about formal evaluation or informal evaluation. Informal evaluation, what I mean by that is people are encouraged to provide feedback on a regular basis. One of the things people like about the securities industry is that it's an instant feedback kind of business in that the market provides feedback to companies in terms of their performance. If they are performing well, their stocks go up. If they are not performing well, their stocks go down.
Our professionals are encouraged to provide advice to their teams as they're going along working on projects. If they see something that needs correction, they should do it on the spot, hopefully in private, and not in front of colleagues. That's what I mean by informal, the informal part of the process.
Because there -- there isn't a book that teaches you how to be an investment banker. It's a profession where you basically learn on the job.

The formal part of the evaluation process begins -- and I'm not using months, because our fiscal month has changed several times in the 11 years I've been here, but just to set the example for you, in a fiscal year-ended November 30th the formal evaluation process probably begins sometime in September and concludes in early December, and that evaluation process is for every person in the firm, so in an institutional securities unit that has had in the neighborhood of 10,000 people in it in the period of time that I've been involved with Morgan Stanley, if you just extrapolate the amount of time and the number of people, that's a significant commitment to the evaluation and development process.
Q. It'd be tens of thousands of hours, I take it.
A. Yes.
Q. You took your own involvement in the evaluation process seriously; did you not, sir?
A. Yes.

Q. Could you review for me the formal evaluation process as it existed at Morgan Stanley in the period from 1993 to 1998, and if there were any significant changes in that time frame, if you could identify them for me, I'd appreciate it.
A. Well, I'll qualify what I say by the fact that I joined in November I believe in a fiscal year that ended either February 1st or February 28th of the following year, so as to the 1993 process, as a newcomer I wouldn't really be familiar with the '93 year, so as to -- and these are general comments that I make, because these things are fine-tuned from year to year. In the human resource area it seems like people are always trying to make it better every year. They don't think they ever get it right, so they always like to fine-tune the forms. And so I can't really give you an answer as to, for example, how the evaluation development summary might have changed from year to year, or how the evaluation form might have changed from year to year. I'm pretty sure they've changed, but I just can't tell you how and when.

But let me try and at least give you a general description of the process. Each individual, from Dick Fisher and John Mack, who were running the firm when I came here, down to the most junior associate is evaluated. They are evaluated by peers, subordinates and superiors. The process begins by the individual requesting an evaluation of their performance, and that form, the evaluation request form, goes to the evaluation director for approval. The evaluation director reviews the form and ensures in their mind that it has a good cross-section of evaluators, and since it's someone who's responsible -- their responsibility is for the evaluation of that employee, they take some time and effort to make sure it's complete to make sure that someone is not -- we have an expression -- gaming the system. In other words, they just put their friends on it. I would say that's not been a problem, because people understand that, you know, they wouldn't look good if they did that.

So the evaluation director reviews it for completeness, approves it, and then the request for an evaluation of that employee goes out to those group of evaluators. They do the evaluation. The human -- that all goes in to the human resource department.

There was a time when this was done let's call it manually, meaning not on line, not direct into a computer, and -- and I think over the years it has migrated to be a totally electronic system.

So the -- all of these evaluations are then put together into what we call the package for that employee that goes to the evaluation director, and then the evaluation director reviews the package and prepares an evaluation development summary. And subsequent to that the evaluation development summary is reviewed by a committee of partners, and a presentation is made to that committee on the summary and on the package, and that person is -- is giving -- given an overall assessment.

And where people feel that the evaluation development summary might not accurately reflect the package, it could be amended, and then the EDS, Evaluation Development Summary, is reviewed with the employee by their evaluation director, they're given a copy. During the review the package is reviewed in depth with them. Excerpts are read to them from the package, and then the individual signs the Evaluation Development Summary indicating they've received it. If they have any comments, they can indicate it on the form. And that pretty much ends the formal part of the process.

And that's given at the end of, as I said, the fiscal year. And we try to get people to focus on the developmental issues, and it's I think a process of awareness, self -- self-improvement and in a sense trying to harness the human potential that exists in the organization by -- I guess the concept is that every day we come to work, we try to do better than we did yesterday, and if you're able to do that with a 2,000-person division better than the competition, that's a competitive advantage. So we always viewed our evaluation system as a competitive advantage.

Q. I've heard the term 360 review --

A. Um-hm.

Q. -- used to describe the Morgan Stanley formal evaluation process. Is that a term you're familiar with?

A. Yes.

Q. What does that refer to?

A. I think I mentioned that in the early part of my rather long answer to your question, and that is the peer, subordinate, superiors, so 360 means the full spectrum of people that you would interface with.

Q. What is the reason for having junior people review their bosses?

A. Well, in that model, if you want to call it the Renaissance model that I described, where you learn from someone who's more experienced in the art of investment banking, the ability to teach and lead by example is just as important as the ability to follow direction from a superior, and in the evaluation of a person as a complete professional we look at not only what people you're reporting to think of your performance, not only what your colleagues think of your performance, but also people who are in a sense under you, junior to you in experience level in the firm think of your performance. So it's designed to be a complete feedback loop rather than a partial one.

Q. What use is made of the formal evaluations by the firm?

A. I think I answered that question.

Q. Well, you indicated that you provide feedback to the employee. Is it used for other purposes by the firm, setting compensation, promoting someone, demoting someone, terminating someone?

A. The -- well, let's just --

THE WITNESS: Could you repeat his question? Because he used several words.

A. (Continuing) Your question is pretty clear to me. I just need to answer them in the sequence that you asked them.

Q. Let me rephrase it for you --

A. You used a few things.

Q. -- and break it down.

In addition to providing feedback and direction to the person whose performance is being evaluated --

A. Um-hm.

Q. -- does Morgan Stanley use the formal evaluation process for other things?

A. Well, I like the fact that you were being specific about what you think these other things might be. The -- the -- the --

MR. YANNUCCI: You want to have that question read back?

THE WITNESS: That's really the most helpful, because I think I could answer that.

A. (Continuing) And I think I answered it in the sense that the goal is development, growth, and harnessing the human potential in a division and of the firm. Most of the evaluations end with goals for next year, for example. So they point the individual in the direction of things they need to work on.

And the beginning of the form tends to state -- usually says how did you do vis-a-vis your goals, for example, in the self-evaluation. Excuse me. I forgot that part. Part of the evaluation package that I described earlier is a -- every individual fills out a self-evaluation, which is part of the package the evaluation director gets in doing the summary. Now, if the reporter could read back that original question, then I could address one by one the points that you ticked off.

Q. Let me try to address them one by one.

A. Okay.

Q. Does Morgan Stanley use the formal evaluation process in connection with setting compensation?

A. Well, the answer to that is yes and no, and I don't mean -- I mean that in -- very sincerely. It's intentionally separate from the comp process, because if -- what we don't want is people to focus on comp at the end of the year; we want them to focus on the developmental messages. So nowhere in the process do we talk about money and the comp. By money I mean the compensation. The focus is on the developmental message, the strengths, and the things that employees need to work on.

Now, in the course of the people in charge evaluating people, they have usually read the packages of all the managing directors, for example, so they will have in their mind impressions from those packages, which have to filter into their determining comp, but it -- but -- but the reason I say -- that's the reason why I said yes and no.

But the no is when they're doing comp, they don't sit there with the evaluation package. That's not in the room. It's not -- it's really they're -- they're two separate processes in the firm's let's say broadly speaking HR function.

Q. What is the process for setting compensation for managing directors? Let me focus again on the time period that I'm most interested in, the mid to late 1990s.

A. Well, it's really -- this -- this is something I -- I would have to answer with general statements, and -- and it would be as follows. First of all, compensation depends on how well the firm does. It depends on, within the context of how well the firm does, how well the business unit, the division does, and then it depends on how well or what -- what an individual contribution to that overall effort was. So it's a combination of things that enter into sort of the determination of compensation levels.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018274

The -- so within the -- the sort of you want to call it budget that gets created by performance of the enterprise, the managers make a determination of what the total reward should be to the employee -- and that is generally done by a very small group of partners in the business unit -- that is then reviewed by the individual or individuals that that unit reports to, and then would be signed off on by the person ultimately responsible or persons ultimately responsible for the firm, and then finally reviewed -- well, approved by the compensation committee of the board of directors.

Q. What role does revenue generation play in determining bonus compensation to the managing directors?

MR. YANNUCCI: I'm going to object to the general nature of the question, ask you if you could focus on the -- I thought the evaluation we're concerned about, Mr. Strong.

Q. Okay, can you provide me a general answer, sir, or is that too difficult a question?

A. Let me -- if I recall your question, what role does revenue play in determining comp?

Q. Bonus compensation, yes.

A. Well, it's an important ingredient in determining compensation. And while I was in a position to determine compensation, what -- one of the things I stressed was that I -- first of all, my philosophy of investment banking is you don't pay investment bankers like traders, number one. Number two, that is the traders, you know, could have a very big year, and their compensation can spike. I believe investment bankers, being let's say a more -- more of a let's call it profession, should be paid --

(Interruption at the door.)

(Mr. Schwartz joined the proceedings.)

MR. MARKOWSKI: Take a brief break.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going off the record. The time is 3:41.

(Discussion off the record.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are now back on the record. The time is 3:42.

A. (Continuing) So I was sharing with you my philosophy of compensation while I was in a managerial post.

I think revenue contribution was an important ingredient, but what I -- I stressed was the development of relationships and growth of the professional revenue over time. I didn't want, particularly since we were hiring new people into the firm that hadn't begun their careers at Morgan Stanley -- Morgan Stanley was a private firm up until 1986, and in that environment it tended to grow its own talent, and when it went public -- and this is not a pattern that's unusual for firms on Wall Street -- when it went public, it began to hire people from other firms. So when you come into a culture that's home grown, I didn't want the people to feel like they had to be instantly successful and productive, and I stressed that we would be looking at revenue over time.

So what we look at is what I would call overall athleticism, and that is -- and I don't think any different in banking than it would be in the law, for example -- you get a sense, when you're around a professional over a period of time, you know, that certain people have more potential than others. So I would say overall athleticism. A person could have a very bad revenue year but be a good athlete. They're not going to be penalized in our system.

A person could have a spectacular revenue year, but we're not going to pay them like a trader, because what we try to do is bring people along. I think if you pay a younger person a lot of money early on in their career because they pay -- they do something spectacular, it creates a -- a system that's to me out of kilter with what I call true banking culture.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018275

So revenue played a part, but in my mind it's just one part of determining overall compensation, salary plus bonus, of our professionals, while I was running the division.

Q. Just to refer back for a moment to the formal evaluation process.

A. Hm.

Q. As I understand your answer, the process culminates in the development of the Evaluation Development Summary?

A. Correct.

Q. And that's shared with the employee -- correct? -- who actually receives a copy of that to keep.

A. But it's reviewed by that committee of partners before it's shared with the employee.

Q. It goes through a process of being vetted by people in addition to the evaluation director.

A. Correct.

Q. And those people have an opportunity to comment on it or revise it if they see problems with the evaluation summary, correct?

A. If they don't think it reflects what's in the package.

Q. Is it fair to say that -- that at the end of that process the Evaluation Development Summary reflects a considered judgment of firm management with respect to the employee's performance in that time period?

MR. YANNUCCI: Object to the form of the question.

You may answer.

A. I -- I think to say it reflects firm management is -- is not accurate, because that implies that Dick Fisher and John Mack would somehow have their stamp of approval on that. I think it -- it reflects the -- it's the output of a process that goes on in a division with 2,000 people, and it tries to synthesize the input from usually somewhere between 15 and 30 evaluators so that it can be summarized in a -- in a way that feedback's provided to the employee while at the same time protecting the source of the information, because you can't share the package with the employee, because that's got everyone's name there, and the whole point is that, you know, you want it to be let's call it a transparent process, one where the people -- people's views are expressed without fear of retribution, and, you know, in an open and constructive manner.

Q. Did I understand you to say, Mr. Perella, that when you served as evaluation director that you would read excerpts from the package to the person who was being reviewed?

A. Yes.

Q. How would you decide what material to read from a package?

MR. YANNUCCI: I'm going to object both to relevance and I don't know that he can generalize when he would or when he wouldn't.

But go ahead and answer if you can.

THE WITNESS: Restate the question.

(Record read.)

A. Well, one way you can do it is you can read the whole package to the person. That would eliminate the -- the need to pick and choose. What I tried to do was basically read some portion of every evaluator's comments, so I -- I didn't sort of self-select. You know, if a person had 15 evaluators, they heard comments from all 15, because of -- you know, in my mind, if a person is asked to do an evaluation, and they've spent so much time on someone, they deserve to have their view shared.

Q. Was there a time, Mr. Perella, where you had managerial responsibility for Bill Strong?

A. Yes. When I was head of Corporate Finance Bill would have been under -- you know, in my department.

(Coughing) Excuse me.

Q. And that time period was approximately the spring of 1995 through early 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. When you became head of Investment Banking did you have any managerial responsibility for Mr. Strong?

A. Well, he was no longer a direct report, so he -- he -- he was not under my direct reporting line; that when I became the head of Investment Banking my direct reports were the six division heads -- excuse me, department heads running those departments that I mentioned in I think the first early part of your questions.

018276

Q. So when you were head of Corporate Finance Bill Strong reported directly to you; is that correct?

A. He was one of the individual -- one of the managing directors in Corporate Finance under my jurisdiction. It's -- when you say reported directly to you, it wasn't like he -- he was picking up the phone and telling me what he was doing every day. I mean there were maybe a hundred managing directors in Corporate Finance at the time. I'm saying a hundred -- I don't know the exact number -- as opposed to ten, just to sort of order -- give you the sense of magnitude. So, you know, to say that all hundred reported to me would -- you know, I didn't function like that. So -- but they were -- you know, they were under my supervision and in my department.

Q. And then after that Mr. Strong remained in Corporate Finance, which was one of the departments that you had overall responsibility for, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, you've already indicated, sir, that you were involved in Mr. Strong's evaluations, his formal evaluations.

A. Yes.

Q. And what I'd like to show you and have you identify for us today are a set of exhibits that I've prepared. They've been marked by the court reporter as CPH Deposition Exhibit numbers 371 through 376.

A. Um-hm.

Q. I give you those as a stack and ask you if you can identify each one of them for us, for the record.

A. Well, why don't I do it as I go along.

Q. Yes. That would be good.

A. This appears to be 1993 performance evaluation package for Bill Strong.

Q. And you're referring to Exhibit 371, correct?

A. Yes.

372 is 1995 performance evaluation package for Bill Strong.

373 is 1996 performance evaluation for Bill Strong.

374, 1997 performance evaluation package for Bill Strong.

1998, Exhibit 375, performance evaluation for Bill Strong.

Q. I'm sorry, sir, you said 375 is the 1998 --

A. Correct.

Q. -- evaluation package?

A. And there's for some reason -- I was going through all these to make sure there was an EDS. (Perusing documents).

There's 376, which appears to be some other document, and I'm not so sure -- I mean it says "1998 IBD Evaluation and Development Summary," but it's not a package, it's just three pieces of paper, all -- and it's 376.

Q. Are you familiar with the form of Exhibit 376, sir?

A. I -- I --

Familiar with the form?

Q. Yes.

It's referred to in its title as an "IBD Evaluation and Development Summary." Are you familiar with that form of document?

A. Well, I -- you're going back now six years in time, so, you know, if this came out of our system, you know, it's what it is. I just -- you know, as I said, these things have changed from year to year, so I'd have to -- it appears to the EDS from -- for Bill Strong, but for some reason there's two of them in here, one in 375, called "Firm-Wide Performance Evaluation," and the other one says "1998 IBD," so I -- I don't know whether they're the same summary on two different forms or whether the forms changed in the middle of the process, so I'm -- I'm a little puzzled as to why there are two.

Q. Now, in 1996 or, excuse me, sir, 1995, Exhibit 372, you served as the evaluation director for Mr. Strong's evaluations; is that correct?

A. 1995? Yes.

Q. And you played that same role again

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018277

in 1996, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in 1997 you again played that role, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in 1998 you were co-director of Mr. Strong's annual formal evaluation, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in that year Robert W. Jones was the primary director?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you come to have the responsibility as the evaluation director or co-director for Mr. Strong's annual evaluation?
MR. YANNUCCI: Objection, asked and answered.
A. Could -- I -- I -- I lost track of the question. I'm sorry.
Q. I can restate it.
How did you get the responsibility to serve as the evaluation director or co-director for Mr. Strong?
A. For each of these years you've given me?

Q. Yes.
A. Well, as we discussed earlier, in '95 and '96 I was the head of -- and for part of '97 the head of Corporate Finance, and I was the evaluation director for many managing directors during that period of time, and -- and so that would basically -- I would have the responsibility for being ED.
Q. Because of your response -- because of your managerial responsibilities of the firm?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, you've generally described the responsibility of Evaluation Director. Is that a fair characterization of the role you've played with respect to Mr. Strong's own evaluations?
A. That I was his evaluation director?
Q. And that you played the role that you've described previously as the role that Evaluation Director plays generally at Morgan Stanley in the annual formal evaluation process.
A. Sure.

Page 40

Q. Did you personally undertake to draft initially the summary of the evaluation comments?
MR. YANNUCCI: In any year?
MR. MARKOWSKI: In the years that we're looking at here for Mr. Strong.
A. As opposed to?
Q. Have someone else do it for you.
A. No, this is not something I delegated.
Q. So you would personally draft the summary statement?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know, sir, who other than yourself in the years that we're talking about here, 1995 through 1998, had input into Mr. Strong's evaluation summaries?
A. The summary's the responsibility of the evaluation director. I indicated that there's a review process wherein the package is reviewed and the summary is included in the package and reflected on by that what's called a committee, so if you want to call that input, that's fine. I just wouldn't be able to remember whether as a result of

Bill's review in any year a sentence was added, taken out. So when you use the word input, it sort of has0, you know, it could have a broad meaning in -- in developing an answer to your question.
Q. Do you know as you sit here today the names of any other people that reviewed your summaries before they were finalized and provided to Mr. Strong in the years we're speaking?
A. No. I couldn't remember that now.
Q. Is it fair to say, Mr. Perella, that the evaluation summaries that are contained in Exhibits 372 through 375, where you were involved in preparing or serving as the evaluation director, reflect your considered views of the comments that were made by those who evaluated Mr. Strong?
A. Yes.
Q. In some of the evaluations -- and we'll get to them in some detail shortly, sir, but in some of the evaluations, in some packages you personally evaluated Mr. Strong based on your own experiences with him. Do you recall doing that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018278

A. Doing?
Q. Providing your own personal comments about Mr. Strong in the course of the evaluation process.
A. In the 11 years I've been here I've -- I get -- I've probably done between 50 and a hundred of these. I get requests from people to do an evaluation of them, not as their director but as a -- one of the evaluators, so somewhere around 75 to a hundred, so I -- I -- Bill was one of the ones that I would have done during that period of time, but as to specifically remembering sitting down and doing it, no.
Q. I assume that --
A. The only reason I went on about that is because I'm not doing just -- if it were just one or two that I was doing, I'd probably remember it, but when you're doing a hundred, I think it's a little bit difficult to remember the specific circumstances around which you wrote it.
Q. If you lacked a sufficient basis to make a comment in a particular year, what would you do, sir?

A. If I -- I'd say --
If I lacked the specific --
Q. -- sufficient basis to make a comment, what would you do?
A. I'd say I'd be unable to evaluate the person.
Q. If the evaluation packages contain summaries or a statement of your personal evaluation of Mr. Strong, I assume it's the case that you made an effort to be fair and accurate in your comments. Is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any reason during the time period that we're addressing, sir, 1995 to 1998, to exaggerate criticisms of Mr. Strong?
A. Me exaggerate criticisms?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe --
Do you know Robert Scott?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Robert Scott would have had a reason to exaggerate criticisms of Mr. Strong?

A. No.
Q. Do you know Terry Meguid?
A. Meguid.
Q. Meguid? Excuse me.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe that in the time period we're addressing today, 1995 through 1998, that Mr. Meguid would have had any reason to exaggerate criticisms of Mr. Strong?
A. No.
Q. What was Mr. Scott's position at Morgan Stanley in the -- in this time period; do you recall, sir?
A. The time period?
Q. 1995 through 1998.
A. Bob Scott was -- preceded me as head of Corporate Finance, became -- and became head of Investment Banking, so he preceded me also as the head of Investment Banking and then he became Chief Financial Officer of the firm.
Q. And ultimately ended up a member of the board of directors, correct?

A. When John -- yeah, I guess he did, when John Mack resigned from the firm in 2001.
Q. What was Mr. Meguid's position in this time period, nineteen ninety --
A. He was my deputy.
Q. Mr. Meguid was your number two person in --
A. Correct.
Q. -- Investment Banking?
A. And in Corporate Finance.
Q. In both positions.
A. Correct.
Q. He moved with you?
A. Most of the time, yeah.
Q. Is Mr. Meguid someone you worked with closely then for a number of years?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you respect his judgment?
A. Yes!
When you say number of years, I met him when I joined Morgan Stanley. He was not employed at any of my previous employers.
Q. Thank you.
A. I think he's been at Morgan Stanley

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 46

his whole career.
Q. You respect Mr. Meguid's ability -- ability to evaluate personnel?
A. Yes.
Q. Bill Strong was hired -- let me ask you the question.
Do you know when Bill Strong joined Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. It was before you; is that correct?
A. I don't know when he joined.
Q. You're not certain that he was here when you joined the firm?
A. I don't know when he joined. I think he preceded me.
Q. Do you know what Mr. Strong's responsibilities were when you first joined the firm in late '93?
A. No. I wouldn't --
Q. Are you --
A. -- be familiar with that.
Q. Mr. Strong did have administrative responsibilities when you were running -- when you were running the corporate finance department; is that correct?

Page 47

A. Well, I don't know the time sequence, but there -- there was a point in time when Bill had oversight for regional offices, but the exact start-end date of that, I'm not familiar with.
Q. The regional offices you're referring to are what, sir?
A. Offices outside of New York, in the United States, and that might have included Canada, although I'm not positive.
Q. There came a point where Mr. Strong ceased having that administrative responsibility for the regional offices; is that correct?
A. I'm -- I'm -- I'm sure that's true, but I'm not clear on the timing, because there was an interim attempt by the firm to -- when Bob Scott got elevated to head of Investment Banking I was not immediately made head of Corporate Finance. They actually had a three-person, if you believe it, head of Corporate Finance, one in Europe, one in New York and Bill in the region, and John Mack sort of lived with that for all of a few months maybe and decided that a three-headed corporate finance department really wasn't working well, and it might have been Bob Scott involved in that process, too, because they one day called me up and asked me to do it. But that was a very, very short period of time. I think it was -- you know, I might have even been an interim solution, because when Scott got taken out of the job at Corporate Finance to become the head of IBD having one (sic), they didn't immediately come up with a solution. They asked me to do it a few months later. So that there was a period of time there where they had tri-heads, so during that period of time, I can't be sure that Bill continued to, quote, run the regions, unquote.

And then there -- there -- there probably was a time when they transitioned that job to a younger person, which is kind of a typical pattern here of management.
(Discussion off the record.)
Q. What -- I want to make sure I understand the timing, sir.
Is it the case that there was a period of time where you had responsibility for the corporate finance department while Mr. Strong continued to serve as head of the regional offices?

A. Yes.
Q. How -- how long a period of time do you believe that was?
A. Well, the most it could have been was 18 months.
Q. One of Mr. Strong's responsibilities as head of the regional corporate finance department offices was generating revenue through those offices; is that correct?
A. I don't know if I would characterize his responsibility was generating revenue.
Q. He was given goals of increasing the revenue at the regional offices that he was responsible for, correct?
A. Well, everyone at the firm thinks that it's their responsibility to try and enhance our revenue base. I mean it's -- it's sort of everyone's responsibility. So when -- I -- I didn't quite understand the question, you know, that it was his responsibility.

Q. Well, as the person who is at the head of the management of the regional offices, Mr. Strong was told to make efforts to increase the revenues generated by the offices under his supervision --
MR. YANNUCCI: Objection.
Q. -- correct?
MR. YANNUCCI: Lack of foundation.
A. I never told him that.
(Counsel confer off the record.)
Q. I want to ask you, sir, to -- do -- do you have Exhibit 374, sir, in that stack?
It's the 1997 evaluation package.
1997 was a year in which you served as Mr. Strong's evaluation director; is that correct?
MR. YANNUCCI: Asked and answered.
It's also on the front page of the document.
A. Yeah.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the page -- there are numbers in the right-hand corner of the pages, sir. The last three digits of the page I'd like to direct your attention to are 470. It's the first page of the evaluation summary, I believe.

A. (Perusing document) Got it.
Q. Under "1997 Performance Summary" the first two sentences read "Bill has continued to enhance the MS franchise. Regional offices achieved a record with market-by-market share improvements." Do you see those two sentences, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Was Mr. Strong's performance at least in part judged by the amount of revenues generated by the regional offices under his supervision?
A. Well, that -- that would be one factor in, you know, assessing his performance, yes.
MR. YANNUCCI: Just for the record, it says "Summarize the individual's performance relative to the objectives set for the year," end of quote.
Q. Let me -- let me direct your attention to page 455 in the same document, sir.
A. 455?

Q. That's correct.
A. Yeah.
Q. This is a portion of Mr. Strong's annual self-evaluation; is that correct?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. And Mr. Strong states at the top of that first page "I am very pleased with my performance in 1997. 1997 is the best year that I've had with the firm since joining in January of 1993. The regional offices for which I am responsible, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Toronto achieved record revenue in 1997."
A. Um-hm.
Q. "The regional offices have achieved affirmed revenue of 130 million, 205 million, 276 million, and will incur revenue in the range of from 375 to 400 million in 1994 and '95, '96 and '97 respective" -- "respectively."
A. Um-hm.
Q. Do you see those statements, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Strong in his annual self-evaluations would take credit for the revenue accomplishments of the regional offices under his supervision, correct?

A. Take credit for the accomplishments? Is that what you said?
Q. In -- in discussing his own accomplishments for the year.
A. Well, he obviously has.
Q. Did you consider Mr. Strong, Mr. Perella, as someone who generated significant revenues for Morgan Stanley?
A. Are you referring to any particular year or just in general or --
Q. During the time period when you were serving as his evaluation director.
A. Well, we had a lot of, you know, significant producers here at the firm, and he was one of them.
(Telephone interruption.)
Q. And you referred to a significant producer. Significant producer of revenue?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you familiar with the term rainmaker, sir?
A. I've heard it, yeah.
Q. What does it mean to you?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018281

A. We don't use it that much around here.
Q. What does the term mean to you?
A. On Wall Street?
Q. Whatever your source of understanding is.
A. Well, I read a lot about it. I guess you hear it in the press. It's I guess a term that people use when referring to someone who has the ability to generate revenue for his or her firm.
Q. Did you consider Mr. Strong to be a rainmaker, given that definition?
A. As I said, we don't use that firm -- that phrase around here that much.
Q. But given your definition of it, would you consider Mr. Strong to meet that definition?
A. Bill Strong was a significant revenue producer, and has been at Morgan Stanley for quite some time.
Q. Is that still true today, to your knowledge?
A. What is?
Q. Is it still true today that Mr.

Strong continues to generate substantial revenues for the firm?
A. I believe he does, yes.
Q. Does Morgan Stanley have a system for tracking fee credits or business origination?
A. Fee credits?
Q. Somehow --
A. You mean revenue?
Q. Yes.
A. What -- we track revenue according to Managing Director's area of responsibility, and it's -- because we try to emphasize teamwork, we generally attribute the revenues to more than one person. Therefore it's -- when you talk about rainmaker, there -- there's this sort of impression that one person's doing everything himself. This firm doesn't run like that. It's antithetical to the culture of Morgan Stanley. So the revenue -- tracking revenue is allocated and distributed to the team members that are a part of an effort to -- that were part of the team that -- that worked on the particular business or deal over time.

Q. Is there a tally of some sort kept?
A. Well, as I said, there -- there -- somewhere in the administrative function they keep track of firm-wide revenues and attribute it to individuals that are working on the deals.
Q. Let me refer you again to Mr. Strong's self-evaluation --
A. Um-hm.
Q. -- for 1997. It's a few lines farther down from where I was just reading. There's a sentence that begins "My personal firm revenue has been 70 million, 73 million and will exceed 90 million in 1995, 1996 and 1997 with respect" --
A. I haven't found where you're reading here.
MR. YANNUCCI: It's right here (indicating).
A. (Continuing) Oh, further down.
Q. Yes.
Do you see it, sir?
"My personal firm revenue has been 70 million, 73 million and will exceed 90 million --

A. Yeah.
Q. -- for 1995, 1996 and 1997 respectively."
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you know what those figures consist of?
A. No.
Q. Do you know how Mr. Strong kept track of those numbers?
A. No.
Q. Would Mr. Strong be provided some form of a report by the firm, that identified for him the revenue that was attributed to him?
A. I don't really know the answer to that question.
Q. As his -- as the director of Mr. Strong's evaluation for 1997 would you have seen such a report?
A. At some point, but exactly when, I don't know. If I wanted to see it.
Q. You personally considered Mr. Strong, sir, as someone who is aggressive in pursuing business for Morgan Stanley; did you not?

018282

A. Yes.
Q. There were some people within Morgan Stanley who thought Mr. Strong was too aggressive -- is that the case? -- in pursuing business.
A. There were some people at Morgan Stanley that thought Bill was too aggressive?
Q. In his pursuit of business.
A. Well, that's -- you know, that's a judgmental thing. That's a subjective statement.
Q. Did anyone express to you, sir, the point of view that they believed that Mr. Strong was overly aggressive in his pursuit the business or revenue for the firm?
A. Well, you're using adjectives like overly. I don't know that I could confirm that word.
But, you know, Bill Strong is a high achiever kind of person, and, you know, he doesn't sit still too long, but we have a lot of people around here like that.
Q. Did Mr. Meguid ever tell you that Bill Strong, in his personal view, was overly aggressive in his pursuit of revenue?

A. Overly aggressive? Did he tell me?
Q. In words -- in those words or in substance?
A. Well --
MR. YANNUCCI: Object to the form of the question.
A. -- I -- I -- he might have. I don't have specific recollection of it sitting here now.
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 458 of Mr. Strong's 1997 evaluation --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- Exhibit 374.
A. Page 458?
Q. Let me make sure.
A. Is that what you said?
MR. YANNUCCI: Yeah, that's what he said.
A. It says "Phil is a great team player and does as good a job of" (inaudible) as anyone in the firm."
Q. It's actually --
A. Is that what you're talking about?
Q. No. It's actually on the next page, sir.

A. Oh.
MR. YANNUCCI: 459?
THE WITNESS: (Reading).
Q. Are you on page 459, sir?
A. I was reading page 458.
Go ahead.
Q. Do you see Mr. -- there's a -- it's the -- I believe the -- one, two -- the third comment down under "Colleague"? It's the first comment --
A. Well, there's seven people commenting on this page. Which one are you referring to, which comment?
Q. The first comment under "Colleague Comments"?
A. Yeah, but which individual?
Q. The first one, Tarek?
A. Tarek Meguid?
Q. Meguid.
A. Yeah, I read that. That's under "Downward Comments." So all the comments on this page to from -- well, no. That's "Downward." These are "Colleagues." Okay. Yeah.

Page 61

Q. These are Mr. Meguid's, the first comment under "Colleague Comments"; is that correct, sir?
A. Yeah, but I'm trying to determine what -- all right. Go ahead.
Q. Could read Mr. Meguid's comment out loud for the record, please?
A. "Bill" --
You want me to read it?
Q. Yes, out loud.
A. "Bill is an extremely commercial banker and a tenacious competitor. He is highly focused on money-making opportunities sometimes to a fault. He is incredibly energetic, very diligent, very strong commercial results."
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 460, two pages farther into the document.
A. Yeah.
MR. YANNUCCI: 460?
MR. MARKOWSKI: 461.
A. (Continuing) Right.
Q. There's another comment by Mr. Meguid on that page --

018283

A. Right.
Q. -- do you see that, sir --
A. Yes.
Q. -- in the center?
Would you read that out loud?
A. Yes. "Bill can be overly aggressive in terms of trying to capture transitional opportunities. Makes some judgments which are sometimes very close to if not over the line. A number of individuals have had experience which" -- "have had experiences which I have had to deal with on conflicts, et cetera, which reflect this."
Q. You personally considered Mr. Strong to be something of a self promotor; did you not, sir?
A. I don't recall saying that.
Q. Let me direct your attention to your own comment at the bottom of page 461.
A. Yeah.
Q. Would you read that out loud, please?
A. "Bill should engage less in self promotion and focus more on developing a team approach, giving credit to others. The one problem I continue to have with Bill is that you never seem to get the whole story unless you probe very hard. There are very few people at Morgan Stanley that give me that impression."

Q. And those were your views of Mr. Strong in 1997 correct, sir?
A. That was a comment I wrote in 1997. That doesn't reflect my entire point of view on the gentleman.
Q. But that was --
A. I -- I wrote this in 1997, yes.
Q. And you were trying to be fair and accurate in that observation, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Morgan Stanley set a high revenue objective for Mr. Strong in 1997, did it not, sir?
A. I don't know what you mean by that.
Q. Well, Mr. Strong was given a -- in his -- in a summary of his evaluation for 1997 given a revenue objective for 1998; do you recall that?
A. No.

Q. Let me direct your attention to the last page of --
A. Um-hm.
Q. -- Exhibit 374.
A. Right.
Q. Under "Business Goals"?
A. Yup.
Q. Would you read the first sentence?
A. "Maintain revenue contribution at or above currently level of 90 million. Provide support for continued improvement in the regional offices. All this will require continued commitment of the kind Bill has demonstrated to all. However, he should try and relax once in a while."
Q. That reference to $90 million there is the reference to the revenue that Mr. Strong should personally attempt to generate for the firm, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall that the Sunbeam engagement was a significant part of Mr. Strong's business backlog at the end of 1997?
A. No.
Q. Let me refer you to the first page of the summary.

A. Back to the first page?
Q. Of the summary.
MR. YANNUCCI: For '97.
Q. (Continuing) Just the page before it.
MR. YANNUCCI: Before '97?
MR. MARKOWSKI: 470.
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you see the -- it's the third sentence under "Performance Summary"?
A. Yes.
Q. Self-evaluation states "Personal revenue contribution at 90 million with excellent backlog, including the Sunbeam mandate."
A. Right.
Q. Do you recall that Mr. Strong considered to be -- considered the Sunbeam engagement to be one in which he had obtained a -- a fee arrangement for the firm that was higher than the firm's usual fee, fee structure?
A. Do I recall that? No.
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 455 of the exhibit. This is --

018284

A. Self-evaluation.
Q. Yes. It's immediately after the sentences that we'd been previously focusing on in this page.
Mr. Strong states "Highlights from that backlog include the sale of Sunbeam, market capitalization 3.7 billion, signed engagement letter with success fees" -- excuse me, "with success fees above fee scale."
A. Yeah. It goes on to state a whole bunch of other things that he said he was working on, too.
Q. Does this refresh your recollection that Mr. Strong characterizes the Sunbeam fee arrangement as being above scale?
A. It says here "the sale of Sunbeam." Is that what you're referring to?
Q. I'm referring to the statement that Mr. Strong makes concerning --
A. In his self-evaluation?
Q. Yes.
A. Well, what it says is that the engagement letter has a success fee above fee scale. That's what it says.

Q. Do you have any recollection as you sit here today, sir, whether that was true or not?
A. No. It wouldn't be unusual for that to be the case, because some fees are above fee scale and some fees are at fee scale and some fees are below fee scale.
Q. Let me direct your attention to Mr. Strong's 1998 self-evaluation. It's Exhibit --
A. '98?
Q. Yes.
-- Exhibit 375.
A. '98. Yup.
Q. We -- we've seen, sir, in '97 that Mr. Strong's summary set a revenue objective of $90 million for Mr. Strong for 1998; do you recall that?
We just looked at it.
A. Could you repeat that question?
Q. Do you recall that Mr. Strong's revenue objective given to him in his 1997 evaluation was to generate 90 million or more in revenue in 1998?

A. Yeah. That was stated as a business -- one of his business goals.
Q. I'd like to refer you to page three -- excuse me, 475 of Exhibit 375.
A. 475. "Bill Strong 1998."
Q. This is Mr. Strong's self-evaluation -- -
A. Yeah.
Q. -- of his performance in 1998?
A. Right.
Q. And my questions at this point, sir, relate to the first paragraph. If you would take a moment to review that to yourself.
A. Well, it's a pretty long paragraph. (Reading) Yeah, I've read it.
It's pretty impressive.
Q. Mr. Strong recounts his success in generating revenue in 1998, correct?
MR. YANNUCCI: I'm going to object to that characterization.
THE WITNESS: Right.
A. It's -- it's an answer to the question "Describe your performance relative to your business goals and to the relative performance criteria. Your comments should not exceed the space provided." So it's a -- it's a description of his commercial accomplishments during that period of time, yes. And it's quite extensive.

Q. And the among the things Mr. Strong reports is his successes in generating revenue for Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Well, that's where he worked.
Q. That's what he's commenting on, his success in generating revenue.
A. I think it's a little more than that.
Q. But he is commenting on his success in generating revenue --
A. He's commenting on a lot of thing. It's -- it's a long paragraph. Must have three or four hundred words in it.
Q. Do you disagree with me, sir, that Mr. Strong in that paragraph is recounting his success in generating revenue in 1998 for Morgan Stanley?
A. He is in the course of commenting on his performance, talking about the aggregate revenue of the regional offices for which he oversaw, with hundreds of people in it, and the revenue growth, his commitment to Toronto. I mean this is a very long sentence, and included in here are several references to "revenue." Yes, "revenue" is stated a number of times.

018285

Q. Mr. Strong's success in generating revenue, correct?

A. It -- you're making it sound like it's one person did all of this. This -- the regional offices consist of hundreds of people, and they're referred to $600 million of revenue and six years in a row of record performance. That is the result of a lot of people doing a lot of work. Bill was overseeing all that. That would be like me saying that I had, you know, $5 billion of revenue because I had a -- I was the head of the investment banking division. So it's -- it's -- it's his area of responsibility, and these were the revenues generated in those areas.

Q. In addition to talking about the performance of the offices, Mr. Strong in this paragraph also recounts his own personal success --

A. Yes.

Q. -- in generating revenue, correct?

A. His own personal success? Let me see here. I think he does.

(Reading) As I said, it's a long paragraph. I'm looking for reference -- "My personal revenue production has exceeded the previous year," right.

Q. Right.

A. This year. "My personal revenue production each year at Morgan Stanley has exceeded the previous year. At this point in the year my TSW revenue exceeds $100 million, which exceeds the comparable number from 1997 by over 30 percent."

Q. And then Mr. Strong goes further into details what makes up that hundred million dollars by identifying specific transactions.

A. Yeah. There's a long -- long -- there's a -- quite a long narrative here of the different companies that he was involved in.

Q. And he references Sunbeam on three different occasions, correct, sir?

A. I don't know. I didn't count them.

Q. There's first --

A. "The result includes successful solicitation and execution of IPOs, capital trusts," Silestico (ph.), "LaSalle Hotel, Midway Airlines, Steelcase, True North, Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, First" --

Q. First Alert.

A. -- "Alert and Signature Brands 13 and a half million convertible secondary follow-on equity transactions, Fort James, Omniquip, Sunbeam," again Fort Meyer -- "Fred Meyer." I mean there -- and it continues to talk about a lot of other companies, "Allstate, Cargo, Price List," et cetera, et cetera.

Q. He identifies a 13 and a half million-dollar M&A fee for Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, First Alert and Signature Brands, correct, sir?

A. Sunbeam -- well, what it says is "Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, First Alert" --

(Discussion off the record.)

A. -- "and Signature Brands 13.5 million," close paren.

Q. And then it refers to a 18.2 million-dollar Sunbeam fee relating to convertible debt offering, correct?

A. I don't know what it relates to. I can't tell from that.

Q. It's behind the phrase "secondary and follow-on equity transactions," correct?

A. Well, but it refers to Fort James, and that's a different company, "10.6, Hollow Industries 1.1, Omniquip 2.2, Sunbeam 18.2," so --

Q. And then farther it refers to another 4.9 million-dollar revenue generated by Sunbeam, correct?

A. "High yield and senior bank transactions Omniquip 1.6, Scotsman 2.0, Sunbeam 2.9, Focal Communications 1.4." Yes.

Q. You have a hundred million dollars that Mr. Strong claimed credit for in this self-evaluation for his personal revenue contributions for the firm. There are three Sunbeam pieces, 13.5 million-dollar fee of revenue, a 18.2 million-dollar revenue and a

018286

4.9 million-dollar revenue, correct, sir?
MR. YANNUCCI: I'm going to object.
A. Well, you used the word personal. He's talking about his involvement, yes, with -- with revenue relating to the Sunbeam account.
Oh, yeah, he does say "my personal revenue," right. So you -- you used his word, "my personal revenue production." He's referring to each year at Morgan Stanley. And then he includes the result with a listing of those names, so Sunbeam would be in that total, I presume.
Q. And the Sunbeam total is --
A. I don't know what the total is.
Q. -- something in excess of $35 million, correct, sir?
A. Well, if it's 13 plus 18 plus five, around $35 million, yeah.
Q. About a third of personal revenue that Mr. Strong was claiming credit for in this self-evaluation, correct?
A. It's -- it's a third of -- it's a third of a hundred million. Yes.
Q. What is TSW revenue; do you know?

Are you familiar with that phrase that Mr. Strong uses, sir?
A. I believe that's the internal document that tracks revenue.
Q. Do you know what the -- what the letters TSW stand for?
A. I think it stands for -- well, Mr. Meguid would know better -- transaction summary work sheet perhaps?
Q. Mr. Strong was a highly ambitious person, was he not, sir, at Morgan Stanley?
A. Was Mr. Strong highly ambitious? Well, I guess it depends on -- on how you see it. Some people might have thought he was highly ambitious, yes.
Q. Did you consider him to be ambitious?
A. It depends on what you mean by ambitious.
Q. I'm asking if you consider --
A. I thought of him as a high achiever. Some people might call that ambitious.
Q. Within two years of joining the firm he announced that he wanted to be some day a member of the Morgan Stanley board of directors.

A. Uh-huh.
Q. Do you recall that?
A. (Laughing) Do I recall it?
Q. Yes.
A. I -- I -- I had no recollection of it up until very recently.
Q. What reminded you of it?
A. I went over in preparing for my deposition.
Q. You saw in these documents that Mr. Strong --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- declared his objectives of becoming a member of the Morgan Stanley board of directors?
A. Right.
Q. And he did that in 1995.
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you consider that to be highly ambitious, sir?
A. My guess is there probably were at the time several hundred people who would like to have been on the board of Morgan

Stanley, just about every MANAGING DIRECTOR that was reporting to me.
Q. Excuse me. Did they all put it in their self-evaluations?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Strong constantly in his annual self-evaluations complained about the fact that he was not being given more or greater management responsibility for the firm's business; do you recall that, sir?
MR. YANNUCCI: I'm going to object to the form of the question and the characterization.
A. Yeah, you -- you -- you -- you -- you like to characterize what he was doing. He was doing what he was doing. He was saying what he was saying. Bill is a very, you know, direct individual. It's not surprising if he wanted to be on the board, he would put it on his self eval. Other people may not be as direct and honest, quite frankly. They may harbor desires to be on the board but never express it, but they nevertheless would do what they could to get there. We've -- you know, that's just not in the cards for employees.

Q. How many insiders at Morgan Stanley are on the Morgan Stanley board of directors?
A. One. One.
Q. That's the chief executive officer.
A. Right. At the time -- remember what I said. Morgan Stanley was going through a transition when Bill arrived here. Now you've refreshed my memory by referring to his self eval as January of '93. Private ownership to public ownership. As a private firm, whatever you might refer to as a board were all insiders, and as it went into public ownership, they added outside directors. And in the early years the head of the investment banking division was on the board of directors, and then as we became more like a public company, fewer and fewer insiders were on the board, and it evolved. So as people dropped off, they weren't replaced. When Matchalot (ph.) went off the board, he was -- because he was replaced as the head of Investment Banking by Bob Scott, Bob Scott at the time did not go on the board. When I took over as the head of Investment Banking I did not go on the board.

So what he's reflecting in his aspiration is something that was in a sense going out of existence, because we were making a transition. And here we are today with only Phil Purcell on our outside board.
Q. Do you recall, sir, that Mr. Strong complained each year that his management capabilities were being underutilized by the firm?
MR. YANNUCCI: Object to the characterization.
A. I -- I -- I don't recall specifically complaining. There may be some reference to wanting to do more, in his evaluation, in his self-evaluation, in terms of goals and objectives.
Q. You recall that Mr. Strong wanted to be relocated from Chicago?
A. I -- I -- I have -- you know, if you put something in front of me that would indicate what it is that you're aiming at, then I could comment on it, but asking me, who has evaluated hundreds of people over the 11 years, to sort of talk about what individuals wanted to go where and when is kind of difficult.

Q. I appreciate that, sir.
Let me refer you to Mr. Strong's 1997 self-evaluation. It's Exhibit 374.
A. Seven, right?
Q. 374
A. Or '97 you said.
Q. Yes, 1997.
A. Page -- self eval?
Q. Yeah. It's page 457 of the document.
A. Yeah, I've got that page.
Q. And there's a section at the bottom of that page that starts with the phrase "What skills and abilities would you put to greater use"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And would you read Mr. Strong's -- this is Mr. Strong's statement.
A. Okay. So under the question -- under the section "Goals and Objectives" in the self-evaluation, which is at the front of the document, on the third page, it says "In addition to developing business and professional goals," it says "what skills and abilities would you put to greater use? Describe training or other support that would leverage your effectiveness," and "What are your long term career goals at Morgan Stanley?"

And Bill writes "As mentioned in prior years, I continue to aspire to positions of increased responsibility within the firm. I continue to believe that my managerial skills are underutilized. Further and as mentioned last year, at the right time and only if it serves the firm's interests I would like to return to London or New York."
Q. Does that refresh your memory that Mr. Strong made those requests?
A. Well --
MR. YANNUCCI: Object to the description of the request.
A. It's written here.
THE WITNESS: Right.
A. (Continuing) It's written here. He never rang me up and said, hey, I want to move to London, or, hey, I want to come to New York. He's still in Chicago.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018288

Page 82

Q. That was my question. Why is he still in Chicago?
A. Well, first of all, people are generally working in our firm where they want to work.
I think he had a family he was raising there. I think they've since grown up. He's Chairman of the Chicago Symphony Board of Directors. He has become a name brand, if you will, in the community. And I think he has a comparative advantage, because continuity in our business is very valuable. So once you kind of weave yourself into the fabric of a community --
Goldman had a partner named Jim Gorda there, who for many years that we all, you know, were kind of like always trying to catch in my old firm, First Boston, and even at Wastein Perella (ph.), because he was so interwoven into the community.
Now, you know, having worked in London I think for a prior employer, and probably New York, you know, he developed a -- a love of those two cities. Having said that, I think as time went on, you know, Bill really became the senior-most person in that part of the world doing investment banking business. So I would -- this is a presumption on my part at this point -- think that his -- you know, his value added has never been higher, because of the continuity and the time and grade.

And, you know, some company -- now, for example, Boeing moves from Seattle to Chicago. We started doing business with Boeing for the first time when that happened thanks to Bill being there and having a senior person to pursue that business.
We had a problem with Eli Lilly as a company. They stopped doing business with Morgan Stanley. Having Bill -- we took it away from New York, gave it to Bill, and we started doing business with Eli Lilly again. So -- Let me say something else. You know, people express desires and interests. Bill is not the only one who would say, you know, hey, some day I'd welcome the opportunity to work in London ,and if it serves the firm's purpose, we would try and accommodate that, but, on the other hand, if we think they're a value added at hire somewhere else, we wouldn't do it.

And in looking at the whole situation, you know, if you take Bill out of Chicago, then you've got to answer the next question: Who's going to do it? Who's going to run Chicago? And, you know, there wasn't anyone of his stature there who could have filled his shoes that quickly, and so I think his highest and best use was to remain in Chicago, which was where he is, in despite of his from time to time mentioning that, you know, if the opportunity arose, he'd love to be back in London and New York again.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Strong has stopped asking to be moved out of Chicago?
A. I'm still his evaluation director, and I would have to say in all of years I've been Bill's ED he has never called up and complained about working in Chicago, verbally. I mean he might have written this in his package, but -- I think if I called him up and say, hey, how would you like to move to London, he'd say let me go home and talk to my wife and see what she thinks.

I mean we have these conversations with our people all the time. It's a little bit easier to get them to do that than say how about moving to Tokyo.
Q. We're running out of tape. Why don't we take a short break.
A. Okay.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This marks the end of tape number one in the videotaped deposition of Mr. Joseph Perella. We are going off the record. The time is 4:57.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: This marks the beginning of tape number two in the videotaped deposition of Joseph Perella. We are now back on the record. The time is 5:07.
Q. Mr. Perella, during the time period that we've been focusing on here this afternoon, 1995 to 1998, when you served as Mr. Strong's evaluation director there were a number of people that raised concerns during the course of the formal evaluation process about Mr. Strong's lack of candor in dealing with his colleagues; were there not?

018289

A. I am sure if you asked the question, there must be a reference to it somewhere in his files, so I'll just follow your lead and take it wherever it goes in the -- in the package, if you want to go there.
Q. Well, as you sit here, before we go into the documents, do you recall that as being the case, that a number of people, when you were serving at Mr. Strong's evaluation director, raised during the course of the formal evaluation process concerns that they had about Mr. Strong's lack of candor in dealing with his colleagues at Morgan Stanley?
A. Well, what I recall is the fact that each and every year Bill Strong got evaluated by at least 20 people, and there were people from year to year who had developmental messages for him that included comments about being aggressive, that referred to what I referred to, the word you used, candor, you know, difficulty getting information, and a number of developmental messages which exist in each and every professional's package here. Otherwise it's not a credible package.

So the general answer to your question is yes, there -- there -- there were comments in there, and if you want to refer me to specific comments, I'm happy to focus on them.
Q. Well, let's do that. Let me refer you first to one of your own comments. It's in the 1997 evaluation package.
A. Yes?
Q. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, 374.
Q. 374?
And at page 461, at the bottom there's a comment that you made relating to Mr. Strong.
A. (Reading).
Q. Do you see your own comment there, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you read that out loud for us?
A. I read it before. "Bill should engage less in self promotion and focus more on developing a team approach, giving credit to others. The one problem I continue to have with Bill is that you never seem to get the whole story unless you probe very hard. There are very few people at Morgan Stanley that give me that impression."

Q. Mr. Meguid also had concerns about Mr. Strong's lack in condor in dealing with his colleagues; do you recall that, sir?
A. No, not specifically, but I'm sure there's a comment in there.
Q. Well, let me direct your attention to the first comment on the following page.
Do you see Mr. Meguid's comment at the top of 462, sir?
A. Oh, I'm on the wrong page. I was reading his comment on the other page.
Page 462?
Q. Yes.
A. Let's see where we are.
Q. Mr. Meguid's comment is the first one on that page.
A. I'm just trying to see where we are here. (Reading) Yeah.

Page 89

Q. Do you see that?
A. I see a comment on page 461.
Q. Would you read --
462, sir.
A. Oh, sorry.
Q. Top of 462?
A. Yeah.
Q. Would you read Mr. Meguid's comments?
A. "Bill continues to suffer the consequences of less than a straightforward approach. Gives people, including me, the impression that he is not completely up front. This needs to improve. There are numerous approaches to me from very credible people on the issue."
Q. Do you have any reason as you sit here today to doubt the accuracy of Mr. Meguid's characterization of the -- of his views of Mr. Strong or his comment concerning the approaches to him from other people on the same subject?
A. Well, I don't think they reflect his total view of Mr. Strong, but I have no reason to doubt that on this point it reflected Terry's view at the time.

018290

Q. And that it reflected his report on communications that he had had with others within the firm.
A. That other people had commented to him about this developmental issue, yes.
Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Meguid about this comment?
A. About this specific comment?
Q. Yes.
When you were serving as the evaluation director for Mr. Strong did you go to Mr. Meguid and say, Terry, tell me what causes you to say this, and tell me what you're hearing from these other credible sources?
A. I -- I think it's important for you to understand the nature of the relationship I have with Mr. Meguid. First of all, in terms of proximity, he's in an adjacent office. Secondly, for all the time I was at Morgan Stanley in a managerial post for most of the time he served as my deputy. And so in the course of the period from April of 1995 to today, you know, I have had literally thousands of conversations with Terry Meguid about people at the firm, and discussed the careers of all of our professionals, for that matter, who are let's say at the MD level, and so it's difficult for me to say, aha, on this very specific comment I walked across the hall to Terry Meguid's office and said X, Y or, okay? But, you know, I think it's fair to say that Terry and I have had conversations over the years about all of our senior managing directors, and the development of their careers at the firm.

Q. This is not the first time in the formal evaluation process that Mr. Meguid raised concerns about the manner in which Mr. Strong was dealing with his colleagues.
MR. YANNUCCI: Is that a question?
Q. (Continuing) Do you recall that, sir?
A. I -- not specifically, but I'm sure you probably have similar comment in another year.
Q. Let me turn you back to 1996.
A. Right.
Q. Exhibit 373.

A. 373.
Page?
Oh, oh, oh, Exhibit 373.
Q. Correct.
A. I'm looking for the page number.
Q. Page number 442.
A. 442, Bill Strong. One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten -- there's 25 evaluators.
Yeah?
Q. Are you on page 442, sir?
A. Not yet.
I am now.
Q. Do you see Mr. Meguid's comment that -- I think it's the third comment on the page?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you read that out loud, sir?
MR. YANNUCCI: Excuse me. I'm just going to object to using the witness as a human highlighter. If you want to ask him what he remembers about these issues, I certainly understand that, but I don't know why you're asking just read verbatim these statements.

Go ahead.
A. "His colleagues seem to be wary of his motives generally. I believe," comma, "because the manner in which he deals with certain external and client matters, i.e. with greater shrewdness" -- that's a parenthetical statement -- "is interpreted as the way in which he deals with his colleagues."
Q. In other words, that Mr. -- Mr. Meguid was raising the concern that Mr. Strong's colleagues were concerned that he was being shrewd in dealing internally with people at Morgan Stanley, correct?
MR. YANNUCCI: Object if you're asking him to interpret what Mr. Meguid thought other people thought about this individual.
Q. Is that how you read that comment, sir, as the person who served as Mr. Strong's evaluation director?
A. Look, you know, Bill Strong's getting evaluated by 25 people this year. I counted them before I turned to that page. And the thing you have to understand is what

018291

I said earlier, and I probably felt it as much as Bill did. When you come into a firm like Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley had been a home grown culture, okay? Terry Meguid, for example, who's my deputy, had never worked anywhere else. Possible Scott retired 33 years at the firm. Just about everyone you come in contact with when you come into this firm as an outsider in the early 90s was a home grown Morgan Stanley person. Morgan Stanley had an inheritance, almost a sense of entitlement, in my opinion, which I considered to be a negative, that somehow the world owed them a living, and I think one of the good things that happened when John Mack took over is he believed in hybrid vigor, and believed in bringing in people from outside the firm to give it sort of new blood. And people like myself and like Bill Strong tended to stand out, because they had worked in places where they had to fight to get their market share, they were outside the bus, knocking on the bus to get in, and Morgan Stanley was inside the bus, okay? So when Bill Strong comes to Morgan Stanley there are going to be people -- I mean he's going to stick out, and so is Joe Perella for that matter, and other lateral hires.

And also I think there is a strong feeling on the part of people that they're sort of, you know, not on display. What's the right word? They're being tested, and -- and so there's a lot of conflicting emotions here. I think the old guard is kind of not used to this new blood, so they're -- they're not used to the style. I mean these are people who -- you know, they referred to one another "He was in my training class." Well, whose training class was Bill Strong in? Whose training class was Joe Perella in? So they came into the firm, and I think one of the reasons John brought -- you know, these -- these -- these people in was to kind of give it a transfusion or a shot of adrenalin. And I think from time to time people are going to have problems with the style of these outsiders, okay?

So Bill's style is a lot different than Bob Scott's. I don't know if you took Bob Scott's deposition, but you would see that instantaneously if the two guys were before you. And I think mine would be a little different than Bob Scott's.

Over time, you know, we I think grew to appreciate one another, but I think in the early -- in this period of transition there -- there were a lot of conflicting styles at work in the firm. But I would have to say, you know, that, you know, we took all the comments seriously, and we transmitted them to whoever the evaluatee was. Bill wasn't treated any differently than anyone else.

I think if this kind of thing rose to the level of concern where we thought someone shouldn't be at the firm, we would have done something about it, but I -- I -- in the total package and the sort of the evaluation of overall performance that was not the case with Bill. There were other managing directors I had greater concerns about than Bill Strong.

Q. Well, you yourself said that Bill Strong was one of the few people at Morgan Stanley that you had a problem with with respect to --

A. No, I didn't say I had a problem with him.

Q. Excuse me.

-- with respect to trying to get the full story from him, that you had to probe very hard to get the full story from Bill Strong, and that in your experience, as an outsider coming into Morgan Stanley --

A. Um-hm.

Q. -- that he was one of the few people that you had that experience with; isn't that right?

Isn't that what you said in 1997 about Mr. Strong?

A. Oh, no wonder. This is 1996. I'm looking in the wrong place.

Q. It's Exhibit --

A. Well, I remember --

Q. -- 374 --

-- the comment you're referring to.

Q. -- page 461.

You said about Mr. Strong "The one problem I continue to have with Bill is that you never seem to get the whole story unless

018292

you" --
A. Okay.
Q. -- "probe very hard."
A. Yes.
Q. "There are very few people at MS that give me that impression." That was you, Joe Perella, saying that.
A. Fine, I said it.
People in our business are -- have it beaten into them from the time they come in to the firm about being careful with information, okay? And so at the same time I had made it a goal, when I took over corporate finance and investment banking later, that I thought internal communication at Morgan Stanley was inadequate or insufficient or less than what it should be in what I would called a well-oiled investment banking machine. So I had gone on record with the division and with the department that my number one goal was to improve internal communication. And I said there's some people here who can't spell communication, there's some people here who could give a course in it, and there's some people here that need improvement. So you have this internal tension, if you will, sharing information on the one hand and protecting information that's privileged, and on the other hand wanting to have the division operate better by having better communications. And everyone, you know, deals with that tension in different ways.

And what I was reflecting, I believe, in my comment was that, you know, Bill was --
What did you say the page was, 469?
Q. I think it's 461.
A. Oh, okay. No wonder I couldn't find it.
Q. "The one problem I continue to have with Bill is he never seems" --
MR. YANNUCCI: He was in the middle of finishing his answer.
Q. (Continuing) I'm sorry.
A. So with Bill, he was more protective of the information he had than some other people, so I had to work harder -- I've had to work hard to get him to be a better communicator.

Q. That's what you say you're referring to on that page?
A. Well, that's part of it, isn't it? Getting the whole story, you have to ask, you have to probe, so you have to ask questions, so that's -- that's to me part of communication.
Q. Well, let's take a look at the summary for 1997.
A. Sure.
Q. And see after going through the review process --
A. All right.
'97 EDS?
Q. This is an evaluation summary that you prepared.
A. Right. '97.
Q. And it was vetted by a group of others within the firm, correct, sir?
A. Correct.
MR. YANNUCCI: Asked and answered.
Go ahead.
Q. Let me -- let me direct your attention to the section entitled "Development Needs" --

A. Correct.
(Discussion off the record.)
Q. -- on page 470.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Read the three comments made.
A. Which ones?
Q. "Balance." Beginning with "Balance."
A. "Developmental needs client skills business development"?
Q. Yes.
A. Because there's a column marked "Suggestions to Improve."
Q. I'm talking about the left-hand column.
A. Okay. "Client Skills. Business Development. Balance," colon, "overly aggressive at times in trying to capture transactions so as to miss possible negative impact on resource usage for the franchise. Two" -- Sorry. You want me to read the second one?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Yes, please.
A. "Prone to exaggeration. Can cause skeptical reaction from client and loss of credibility with teammates. Also a tendency to overcommit clients on certain items which are not in Morgan Stanley's area of expertise. Three, straightforwardness. People have the impression he is not being completely up front. Also certain product areas think he should consult with them before racing to answer a client question. Some suggest he still manages by intimidation or setting artificial deadlines."
Q. And next to that the suggestion to improve was what, sir?
A. You want me to read those, too?
Q. Well, you can, sure.
MR. YANNUCCI: Yeah, I'm going to object to having this -- taking the witness' time just to read comments that there's no dispute over.
I also for purposes of completeness I'm going to state that this on the same page as or right above it, "Primary Strengths." You're just selecting certain quotes out of this document and asking him to read them out load on the record, and I think that's highly inappropriate.

A. Well, I indicated that, you know, this is a summary, and it's a summary of the comments reflecting 22 people, that were shared by other partners in the firm.
MR. YANNUCCI: But it's only the negative comments that he wants you to read.
THE WITNESS: I know that, but I'm happy to answer -- to -- to do whatever he likes.
A. (Continuing) "Try to be more selective in pursuing business. If there are doubts, seek advice from colleagues. Also, try not to get into details. Your time is better spent. Resources are not endless to prioritize what is important before making requests for work."
Q. The next suggestion?
A. "Don't oversell. You don't have to. As your stature grows, your salesmanship must mature."

Q. And the suggestion to improve, next to the comment about straightforwardness?
A. "Need -- "Needs to work on being more open and transparent with colleagues."
Q. And those were the comments you delivered to Mr. Strong during his 1997 evaluation, correct, sir, you personally?
A. He got a written copy of this.
Q. And you personally delivered those comments to him, correct?
A. Well, I handed him the page, and I read comments from the package backing up the performance summary, including the many positive things that were said about him that year.
Q. And you told him about these specific things, these are things he should improve on, correct?
MR. YANNUCCI: Asked and answered.
A. Yes, I said that.
Q. Let's take a look at 1998, then.
A. Yup.
Q. Let's start with Mr. Meguid's comment on page 480. This is in Exhibit 375.
A. Four --

Q. I'm sorry, it's Exhibit 375, page 480.
Have you found page 480, sir?
A. Yup.
Q. Would you read Mr. Meguid's comment?
MR. YANNUCCI: 'M going to object again.
Go ahead.
A. "Bill can be overly aggressive in terms of trying to capture transactional opportunities. Makes some judgments which are sometimes very close to if not over the line. I continue to hear comments about his greater general concerns for his own people business unit relative to the firm's best interest."
Q. That's almost word for word the criticism that Mr. Meguid made of Mr. Strong in his 1977 (sic) evaluation correct, sir, on that subject?
A. '97?
MR. YANNUCCI: '77?
Q. 1997, excuse me.
A. I don't know. I haven't compared

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

it.
Q. Let's do that. Pull out --
MR. YANNUCCI: I'm going to object.
A. Why don't you ask Mr. Meguid the question?
MR. MARKOWSKI: If the witness would like to compare, I'm content to have him do that.
A. Sure.
Q. That's Exhibit 374, page 461.
A. Right. (Reading).
Q. Mr. Meguid reiterates the comment again in 1998, correct, sir?
MR. YANNUCCI: Your question was before, I think, it was almost word for word the same.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm content with that question.
A. Mr. Meguid has made a comment in each year, yes.
Q. Mr. Meguid repeats the substance of his 1997 criticism in 19 -- his 1998 comment in almost exactly the same words, correct, sir?
A. (Reading) Yes.

Q. Let me direct your attention to page 481.
A. Which year?
Q. This is in the 1998 evaluation summary.
A. Eight. Yes?
Q. Mr. Meguid makes another comment at the top of the page?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you read that, please?
A. "Bill continues to suffer the consequences of less than a straightforward approach. Gives people including me the impression that he is not completely up front. I have heard fewer negative comments this year than in the past."
Q. That again is almost exactly the same comment that Mr. Meguid made in 1997, correct?
A. Where is that?
Q. Page 462 of Exhibit 374.
A. Well, in 1997 it says at the end "this needs to improve," and at the end in 1998 it says "I have heard fewer negative comments this year than in the past."

Q. Mr. Meguid continued in 1998 to say that Mr. Strong continued to suffer the consequences of a less than straightforward approach, correct, sir?
MR. YANNUCCI: Objection, asked and answered.
A. Yeah, no, you're right, he uses the same words in both years.
Q. Let's take a look at the summary in 1998.
A. EDS 1998.
MR. YANNUCCI: It's the page on the back.
Q. Before we get there --
You were co-director of Mr. Strong's evaluation in 1998, sir; is that correct?
MR. YANNUCCI: Asked and answered.
A. We answered that about two hours ago.
Q. Right.
What role would you have played in preparing the summary for 1998, given the fact that you were serving as co-director?
A. The -- the -- the -- the correct answer to that is I -- I wouldn't recall, but if -- as a generalization? The -- the primary director would probably do the write-up and share it with the co-director.

Q. Do you remember there being any disagreement between you and Mr. Jones in 1998 concerning Mr. Strong's evaluation summary?
A. Don't recall.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the development needs section, page 492 of the 1998 evaluation summary.
A. Um-hm.
Q. Would you read the first one into the record, please?
MR. YANNUCCI: I'm going to object again, because you're just again taking his commentS out of context, you're not reading the entire -- you're just picking certain sections.
But go ahead.
A. Well --
MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm going to pause for a second. Mr. Yannucci, I have been patient. Florida procedure provides the opportunity to object to the form of my questions without a speaking objection, and I'd appreciate it if you would limit your comments so that you're not influencing the witness' testimony.

MR. YANNUCCI: I don't think I am, counsel, and I would appreciate it if you would conduct the deposition as you should, and not waste the time of the witness to have him read statements that aren't -- aren't in dispute. You have him sit here and just read these documents.

Go ahead.

A. Well --

Q. Would you read --

A. -- I will read the ones you want me to read, you know, recognizing, as I'm well aware, that they reflect -- that these packages reflect the thoughts of 25 people, and this is a summary of the developmental needs, which are in everyone's package.

"Client skills business development. Overly commercial," colon, "can be overly aggressive in terms of trying to capture transactional opportunities. Makes some judgments which are sometimes very close to if not over the line. Needs to avoid overcommitting and maintaining" -- "needs to avoid overcommitting and maintain the efficacy of M&A fee scale. Intense style. Has a very intense style which can be off-putting to some clients. Professional and execution skills. Management teamwork. Communication. Although he has made progress and is acutely aware of the concerns he continues to suffer the consequences of less than a straightforward approach. Some colleagues feels" -- "feel he gives people the impression that he is not completely up front and uses information selectively. Oftentimes does not disclose information which others may view important or will disclose some information on a subject but not all. Also there is the perception that he does not properly balance the issues of the people -- of his people," slash, "his region with the best overall interest of the firm. Management. Should let his junior professionals manager" -- "manage the day-to-day relationships with his clients at the more junior levels. Connects very well with the officers, but needs to spend more time with the associates and analysts in the office."

Q. At the time that evaluation summary was prepared, sir, the effort was made to be fair and balanced in reporting to Mr. Strong the results of his evaluation, correct?

A. Absolutely.

Q. I asked you some questions generally, sir, about Morgan Stanley's compensation structure for managing directors. Do you know -- let me ask this question.

When Bill Strong was first hired to join Morgan Stanley from Salomon Brothers, do you know if he was given an employment contract?

A. No.

Q. You don't know?

A. I do not know.

Q. Do you know what percentage of Mr. Strong's compensation in the time period that we've been focusing on, 1995 through 1998, was bonus-based compensation as opposed to salary?

A. I don't know, but I know the pattern of our compensation, which is at least 90 percent, probably -- well, somewhere between 80 and 90 percent bonus.

Q. Do you know what Mr. Strong's total compensation was during the time period we've been focusing on?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Do you know what influence Mr. Strong's -- let me take a step back.

Were you personally involved in the process of setting Mr. Strong's bonus in this time period?

A. From?

Q. '95 through '98?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what influence Mr. Strong's personal success in generating revenue had on the size of his bonus in those years?

MR. YANNUCCI: Objection, asked and answered.

A. I think over sometime in the last few hours I answered the question about -- that you asked about what role revenue plays in comp, and I think that was a pretty comprehensive answer --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 114

Q. I asked --

A. -- if I'm not mistaken.

Q. I'm sorry to interrupt you.

I had asked a general question. Now I'm asking specifically about Mr. Strong.

A. Well, the -- the -- I said that person's compensation is based on a number of factors, revenue being one of them, and I said also revenue over time, not revenue in a specific year, or not wanting to have investment bankers' comp spike.

It -- it's -- there are some firms who have -- and I think it's worth mentioning, since you seem to be focused on comp. There are some companies who pay people purely on their revenue production in a given year. There are some people who like to be paid that way. We don't have that kind of system, and whenever a person has come to a point in their career here where they feel that's the kind of system they want to be on, they inevitably are told if they're not happy here, they can leave, which has happened in the fast. Some of our biggest producers wanted to be paid just on revenue less heat, light, and power, 50 percent for me, 50 percent for you. Firms that have done that have generally created firms within firms, created a lot of friction, they blow up. The most famous of those is Mike Milken, where people get paid based purely on their revenue sheet and nothing else. We've never had that system here.

And so that's why when I say revenue is just part of it, it's -- it's -- it's one of the factors that's taken into account in determining comp. And that was the case with Bill as well. And whenever people have -- and so when we sit down to determine comp, we look at all those things that I talked about that determine the revenue pool, the comp pool, and then take all those factors into account in coming up with that person's comp.

So no one here at the firm has a deal where they get paid in the investment banking division a percentage of the revenues, okay? When someone wanted that here once, I was in an office that same year that you're referring to, Bob Scott -- the guy wrote a written proposal, and Bob Scott took the proposal, said "Is there anything in this proposal, anything in your plan that you want to say that's not in the -- in the write-up," and the person said no, and he went like this right in front of him (indicating), in the garbage pail. Okay? The biggest producer, the highest paid person in my department in 1996, and the person left and went to another firm that gave him that package, and when his contract expired two years later another firm gave him the same package. And you know who that person is if I tell you, because he's now indicted. That's all I've got to say about revenue and compensation at Morgan Stanley.

Q. I have a few more questions about it, so let's see.

Mr. Strong --

A. Excuse me. Convicted, not indicted.

Page 117

Q. Mr. Strong had had success in generating substantial revenues for Morgan Stanley over a period of years; had he not, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. And he was valued by Morgan Stanley for his ability to generate substantial revenues for the firm, correct?

MR. YANNUCCI: Objection --

A. Among other things.

MR. YANNUCCI: -- to form of the question.

A. (Continuing) Among other things.

REQ MR. MARKWSKI: Mr. Yannucci, we have not received, I'm confident, copies of the TSW sheets that the witness has identified today as tracking the fee credits that Mr. Strong received in connection with the Sunbeam transaction or in connection with his evaluation process generally. I'd ask you to search Morgan Stanley's files and produce those documents to us.

Q. Sir, you did not personally have any involvement in the work that Morgan

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Stanley did for Sunbeam, did you?
A. None whatsoever.
Q. Were you aware that in -- I'll set the time for you, sir. This is not a matter that's in dispute. But Sunbeam acquired my client's 82 percent interest in the Coleman company in March of 1998. Prior to that transaction closing Sunbeam issued a press release. I'll show you a copy of that. It's been previously marked as CPH Exhibit number 14.
A. So you were saying -- what is this?
Q. This is a press release that Sunbeam issued on March 19, 1998, about ten days or so before Sunbeam closed on the acquisition of my client's interest in the Coleman company. I'd like you to take a moment to read it.
A. You want me to read this?
Q. Yes, just to yourself.
A. (Reading).
Q. Have you had an opportunity to read it, sir?
A. I read it.
Q. Did anyone --

A. For the first time.
Q. Okay. Did anyone working on the Sunbeam transaction at Morgan Stanley, Mr. Strong or anyone else on the Morgan Stanley team, come to you to discuss issues relating to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance or the press release that's Sunbeam issued on March 19th?
A. No.
Q. Ruth Porat is another person at Morgan Stanley who worked on the Sunbeam transaction.
Do you know Ruth Porat?
A. I do know Ruth Porat.
Q. She works in the equity capital markets part of the firm?
A. Not today, no.
Q. She did back in 1998.
A. She did work in Equity Capital Markets, if that was the period.
Q. Ruth Porat didn't come to talk to you about the circumstances leading to the issuance of the March 19th press release to ask for counsel from you concerning what Morgan Stanley should do, did she?

MR. YANNUCCI: Objection, asked and answered.
A. I think I can cut through a lot of this for you, if it makes a difference, and simply say that in my capacity at Morgan Stanley and whatever role I was playing during the period of time that this transaction developed and was done I had zero involvement, zero involvement in work, conference calls or anything you would refer to as work at Morgan Stanley. So it -- it is my belief that this was one of the many things going on at the firm that I read about when it transpired, and I had no involvement at all on any aspect of the deal, consulting, input, anything. So everything you would be asking me about the deal I'd be hearing for the first time, other than what I learned subsequent to the deal: It was announced. I bumped into Jimmy Maher. I see him. I see Howard Giddis. I see Don Drapkin, or whoever. Okay? You know, we worked on something together. I had -- I didn't even know it was going on when it was going on.
But that's not difficult to understand, I think, if you have 2,000 people in the division working on hundreds of transactions at any given point in time. What I'm familiar with are the things that I was specifically working on or being consulted on, or where issues came to my desk.

But the way our system works, which is -- you know, there is a process set up at Morgan Stanley for things to get done, and they don't all flow through the head of the division or the head of the department's desk. If they did, it would be the definition of a bottleneck.
Q. If someone working on the Morgan -- on the Sunbeam deal for Morgan Stanley did have a concern and sought your counsel with respect to it, what would you have done?
A. Tried to help them out.
Q. Sir, do you recall being interviewed for an article that the New Yorker in 1999 about Mary Meeker?
A. Mary Meeker?
Q. Yes.
A. Our research analyst?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018298

Q. Yes.
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Mary Meeker is an employee of Morgan Stanley, a managing director of Morgan Stanley, correct?
A. Yeah, in good standing 500,000 e-mails later.
Q. I want to just show you a quote that's attributed to you in this article.
MR. YANNUCCI: This is in the New Yorker?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes.
We'll mark it as -- that will be CPH Exhibit 377.
(CPH Exhibit 377, 4/26/99 Mary Meeker article in The New Yorker, marked for identification, as of this date.)
(Discussion off the record.)
MR. MARKOWSKI: The date of the article is April 26th, 1999.
Q. And there doesn't appear to be a page number, but the quote I'm going to be asking you about is on the fifth page of the exhibit. There's a paragraph that begins in the left-hand column.

A. There's only one column on the page.
MR. YANNUCCI: Let me show him my page.
A. (Continuing) Oh, I'm on the wrong page.
Q. I think it's the fifth page.
A. Let me start all over. "The Woman in the Bubble," is that the title of the article?
Q. Correct. And it's the fifth page of the exhibit.
A. This is in which magazine?
Q. The New Yorker.
A. The New Yorker. Not New York Magazine.
Q. No, the New Yorker.
A. Okay.
Q. You can see in the upper right-hand column of the --
A. Three, four, five. Okay, I'm on the fifth page.
Q. -- there are two columns there?
And do you see the -- there's a new paragraph that begins in that left-hand column?

A. "Morgan could have"?
Q. Yes.
It reads "Morgan could have made more money by being selective, but Meeker and her colleagues say that big money investors tend to rely on the firm's seal of approval." Quote, "If Morgan Stanley has its name on it," comma, "investors assume it's greater than Schlock Incorporated," comma, close quote, "Joe Perella, the head of Morgan: Morgan's corporate finance department mused." Do you see that?
A. Yes, I certainly do.
Q. Do you recall making that statement to the New Yorker?
A. No.
MR. YANNUCCI: Are you assuming that the quote comes from an interview to the New Yorker, or just was a quote elsewhere?
Q. Well, do you recall making that statement, that Morgan Stanley -- if Morgan Stanley has its name on it, investors assume it's better than Schlock Incorporated?

A. I don't recall making that specific statement, no.
Q. What does Schlock Incorporated mean to you, sir?
MR. YANNUCCI: Object to the relevance of this, but --
A. What does it mean to me?
Q. Yes.
A. Something that's not of high quality.
Q. Do you -- do you agree, sir, that if Morgan Stanley has its name on a deal, investors will assume it's something of quality?
MR. YANNUCCI: Object to the relevance.
A. I think that our firm has very high standards. We have a motto here, first class business in a first class way. We have a tremendous system of checks and balances, a process that people have to go through to vet things, to get things done.
For example, in the -- in the case of the -- let's say the bubble, the Internet, Mary was always of the opinion that 90 percent of the companies were going to fail, that you'd only remember who was number one or two, and you'd forget all the rest of the companies. Because she was the leading analyst, everyone wanted her imprimatur. And so I think consistent with, you know, the standards of the firm, we tried to pick firms to work for that we thought were winners in that particular era.

018299

Secondly, institutional investors I think believe that we have higher standards or let's say the highest standards on Wall Street, and I think they believe that if we -- they believe that if we put our name on an underwriting, that we've done due diligence at a very high standard, and that we work for quality companies.

I think -- and you heard me make the statement 500,000 e-mails later no one has been asked to leave our firm from the research department or the investment banking division. In all of the scandals that have rocked Wall Street, and Elliot Spitzer's investigation for the last I don't know how many years, 500,000 e-mails later our name is not on Adelphia, it's not on Enron, it's not on WorldCom, it's not on Global Crossing, okay? So they're -- all those, Tyco, Quest. And that I think has a lot to do with the fact that a lot of these companies that were at least 50 percent of business model, and the rest, Omnicom, have passed a very rigorous test to get through the Morgan Stanley system, and when people know you have that kind of rigorous test, a lot of times they don't even have ask you to even go through it; they go somewhere else. And it wasn't because we couldn't have done business with these companies. We wanted to.

So, you know, you ask me about what Schlock, Inc. means. It's -- it's -- it's something we don't like to be associated with. We like to be associated with first class companies and do business in a first class way, and try every day to -- to live to that standard.

Q. I take it, sir, although you can't recall making the statement to New Yorker reporter, that you'd agree that if Morgan Stanley has its name on it, investors assume it's better than Schlock Incorporated.

MR. YANNUCCI: Object to the relevance.

A. I -- I -- I -- I assume that if Morgan Stanley has its name -- I think investors believe that Morgan Stanley has its name on something, that we've done enough work on it, and that it's passed through our system to get to where it is, and we have a very rigorous capital commitment process here, a very rigorous equity commitment process here that is made up of a cross-section of people who are not interested in the particular deal of the moment.

Q. Just a moment.

A. Yeah.

(Counsel confer off the record.)

MR. MARKOWSKI: I have no further questions.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Thank you very much.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: That's it? This marks the end of tape number two in the videotaped deposition of MR. MARKOWSKI: Actually, let's stay on the record. If you can go back on for a second.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I just want to make sure that Morgan Stanley has no questions, and that the deposition is concluded.

Will counsel please introduce themselves?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Bob Markowsi, Jenner & Block LLP, on behalf of Coleman Parent Holdings.
MR. O'CONNOR: Chris O'Connor of Jenner & Block LLP, on behalf of Coleman Parent Holdings.
MR. CLARE: Tom Clare, Kirkland & Ellis LLP, on behalf of Morgan Stanley and the witness, Ruth Porat, and here with me Jim Doyle, from Morgan Stanley's law department.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Will the court reporter please swear in the witness.
RUTH PORAT, resumed as a witness, having been previously sworn by the Notary Public, was examined and testified further as follows:
EXAMINATION BY
MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Ms. Porat, you understand you're still under oath, do you not?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Ms. Porat, how do you feel today?

Page 227

A. Fine, thank you.
Q. Did you do anything to prepare for the resumption of your deposition today?
A. I briefly scanned the prior deposition.
Q. Did you do anything else?
A. No.
Q. Did you meet with counsel?
A. Just briefly to -- very briefly yesterday.
Q. How much time did you spend with counsel preparing for today?
A. Fifteen minutes maybe.
Q. In reviewing your transcript, did you notice anything that you wish to change or correct?
A. No. I scanned it pretty quickly. I saw one typo that may have a confusing reference which I will find for you, but other than that, no.
Q. Is there anything that in reviewing that transcript you believe you now recall that you could not recall at the time you gave your testimony on November 23?
A. No.

Page 228

Q. Let me show you what we marked as CPH Exhibit 378. It's a copy of the deposition transcript from your November 23 testimony. You said you found a typo. Can you locate it for me?
A. I don't remember where it is. I can spend the time to do it now or call you back; whatever you prefer.
MR. CLARE: I think we can do it through the errata portion of it.
MR. MARKOWSKI: That's fine.
Q. There are a couple of things I wanted to bring to your attention, to see if we can clear them up. If you can turn to page 167. You're at page 167 of the transcript, ma'am?
A. Yes.
Q. You see at the, bottom beginning at line 21, you begin to read from Exhibit CPH 17. It's a copy of the Arthur Andersen November 19, 1998 comfort letter?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see on line, 25 and continuing to line 1 on page 168, the text reads: "From November 29, 1997 through

Page 229

March 1, 1998, which were $72,018,000 as compared to $43,499,000 for the corresponding period of the preceding year." Do you see those words?
A. Yes.
Q. And I don't know if you misspoke, or the court reporter took it down incorrectly, but that reference to $43,499,000 should be $143,499,000, shouldn't it?
MR. CLARE: Do you want to share a copy of that?
MR. MARKOWSKI: I can --
Q. But do you recall that?
MR. CLARE: Why don't you -- let me show her a copy of the document, so she can know what she was reading from.
Q. Let me show, you Ms. Porat, what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 17. It's the Arthur Andersen March 19, 1998 letter to Morgan Stanley, and you were reading from paragraph C at the top of page, number five of the exhibit, I believe.
A. You're correct. It should have been $143,499,000.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018304

16div-023682

Page 230

Q. So that's either a typographical error, or you misspoke, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Let me direct your attention to one other item that I caught in scanning over the transcript, at page 142 and 143. This time it really says something I said.
You see at the bottom of page 142, I asked you a question relating to whether Mr. Tyree had told you that, during the due diligence call with Arthur Andersen on March 12, that Arthur Andersen had advised Morgan Stanley that in Arthur Andersen's view Sunbeam had used a number of aggressive techniques to enhance its 1990 sales revenue. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And your answer was "I don't recall hearing that," correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Did you understand, when I asked that question, that I was asking you about Sunbeam's 1997 sales revenue?
A. That would have been the proper comparison.

Page 231

Q. Right. And I don't know if I misspoke, or the court reporter took it down incorrectly, but you understood me to be asking about 1997, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Were either of those the items that --
A. Unfortunately not, but I will find it.
Q. You can do that at a later time.
Do you recall that immediately -- let me take a step back. You attended the Sunbeam February 27 board meeting where the Sunbeam board voted to approve the acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman Company, correct?
A. I recall being at a board meeting, and I don't recall when that board meeting was, but it was a board meeting at which financing was discussed. And I don't recall whether the acquisition was approved at that board meeting.
Q. Let me show you the minutes of the Sunbeam February 27 board meeting, just so we have that point of reference clear.

A. Okay.
Q. Let me show you, Ms. Porat, what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit 206. These are the minutes of the February 27, 1998 Sunbeam board meeting. I think we covered this in your -- the last session of your deposition, but I believe it's in the second paragraph here that identifies you as a participant or as an attendee at the board meeting. Do you see that?
A. Yes I do.
Q. You don't need to read the minutes, but I will represent to you that's the board meeting where Sunbeam voted to approve the acquisition of Coleman Company; the Sunbeam board did.
Do you recall that immediately after the February 27 board meeting you met with Sunbeam's outside public relations firm?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. Sunbeam had engaged Hill & Knowlton to act as its public relations firm in connection with the announcement of these acquisitions. Do you recall that?
A. I don't recall that.

Page 233

Q. Let me show you a document that we will be marking for the first time today. It will be CPH Deposition Exhibit 379 I guess.
(Plaintiff's Exhibit CPH 379, Copy of an April 28, 1998 letter from Skadden Arps to Michael MacPhail, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. CPH Exhibit No. 379 is a copy of an April 28, 1998 letter from Skadden Arps to Michael MacPhail at the Securities and Exchange Commission. Just take a look at it briefly, Ms. Porat, and tell me whether you've seen it before?
A. I don't believe I've seen it before.
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 17 of the attached chronology. Do you see an entry there that reads February 28 - March 1, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And that entry states Messrs. Dunlap, Kersh, Fannin, Goodis of Sunbeam and Messrs. Kits, Fuchs and Porat of Morgan Stanley met with Mauri Hope of Hill & Knowlton to discuss the public relations aspects of the transactions. Do you see that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

16div-023683

Page 234

A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall participating in discussions with that group of people relating to the public relations aspects of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 acquisitions?
A. I don't. I don't remember that name Mauri Hope, either.
Q. Do you believe that this is erroneous?
A. I have no basis for judging. I just don't remember this meeting or that name.
Q. Hill & Knowlton is a public relations firm. You're familiar with that, correct, ma'am?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall any involvement on your part with Hill & Knowlton at any point relating to the public relations aspects of the acquisitions that Sunbeam made in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't recall. They may have been there and I didn't know it, but I don't recall Hill & Knowlton; meeting Hill & Knowlton.

Page 235

Q. Do you recall participating in a series of discussions relating to the development of responses that Sunbeam management might consider making to inquiries relating to the transactions?
A. I remember meeting with Mr. Dunlap at one point in his apartment on a weekend with Bob Kitts to talk about some questions and answers, but I don't recall whether they were related to the acquisition specifically or the financing. I do remember a Q-and-A discussion, though.
Q. Let me show you a calendar for February and March of 1998 just so you can get the timing clear in your mind. I don't think we need to mark this as an exhibit, but let me show you a 1998 calendar. The minutes I showed you from the Sunbeam board meeting were from February 27. Do you see that February 27 was a Friday in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And March 1 -- excuse me. March -- February 28 and March 1 are Saturday and

Page 236

Sunday, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So it would be consistent with your recollection of meeting with Mr. Dunlap on a meeting, about a weekend, for you to have met with Mr. Dunlap on March 28 and March 1, or on one or the other of those days, to discuss inquiries that may be made of Sunbeam management relating to the first quarter acquisitions?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Or it could have been March 7th or 8th.
Q. Do you think the meeting would have occurred prior to the public announcement of the acquisitions so that Mr. Dunlap would be prepared for inquiries immediately upon the first announcement of the public that the acquisitions were taking place?
A. As I said, I don't recall whether it was about the financing or whether it was about more than the financing, so I don't know when it occurred. All I remember was it was a weekend.
Q. But you do have some recollection of participating in a meeting in Mr. Dunlap's apartment on a weekend to discuss questions that might be put to Mr. Dunlap relating to -- by people in the public relating to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 acquisitions, or relating to the financing concerning those acquisitions, correct?

A. Just to make sure I'm answering it clearly enough, my involvement would have been as it related to a road show presentation, so what would have been covered are any questions or answers that we thought might have been raised in the context of a road show.
That's why I'm not sure whether it was the weekend you asked me about, or the following weekend immediately preceding the road show.
Q. Ms. Porat, I'm going to show you four different exhibits. They're numbered CPH Exhibit 140, 141, 142 and 143. I would like you to look at them for a moment and tell me whether or not you have seen one or more of those documents previously.
A. I don't remember these documents.

Page 238

Q. They relate to questions concerning the first quarter 1998 acquisitions, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And these draft documents, or these documents contain potential answers to the questions concerning those transactions, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You have no recollection of participating in the preparation of these documents?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You have no recollection of commenting on these documents?
A. I don't recall seeing a document like this. I may have, but I just don't recall it.
Q. There's handwriting on each of the exhibits, I believe. Do you recognize any of the handwriting on Exhibit 140?
A. I don't recognize it. I know it's not mine, but I don't recognize it.
Q. Do you recognize any of the handwriting on Exhibit 141?
A. No. Same answer.

Page 239

Q. Do you recognize any of the handwriting on Exhibit 142?
A. No. Same answer.
Q. I don't see any handwriting on 143. Does looking at these documents refresh your recollection concerning whether your meeting with Mr. Dunlap related to the road show, or to questions that Mr. Dunlap might receive upon the announcement of the acquisitions?
A. No.
Q. I think we touched on it briefly when we were together last, but do you recall that the debenture offering relating to the financing of the Sunbeam acquisitions required the approval of Morgan Stanley's Equity Commitment Committee?
A. Yes.
Q. And the committee received a written presentation, do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you a copy of CPH Exhibit 129. This document is dated March 10, 1998?
A. Correct.

Page 240

Q. And it's a memorandum to the Morgan Stanley Equity Commitment Committee?
A. Correct.
Q. You're identified as one of the authors of the document?
A. I am identified as one of the authors.
Q. In fact, a number of individuals who are involved in Morgan Stanley's work for Sunbeam are identified as author of this document, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Is this the formal presentation to the Equity Commitment Committee relating to the Sunbeam debenture offering?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. Is this the formal presentation, the written presentation, to the Equity Commitment Committee relating to the Sunbeam convertible debenture offering?
A. Yes, this looks like the document that would have been distributed to the Equity Commitment Committee.
Q. Were you involved in preparing this document?

Page 241

A. I don't recall if I was.
Q. Would you have at least reviewed it before it was presented to the Equity Commitment Committee?
A. Yes, I think I would have.
Q. You would have reviewed it to verify the accuracy of the things that you at least had knowledge of?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who was involved in preparing this written document?
A. I don't remember who wrote it.
Q. It was prepared by the Morgan Stanley team working on the Sunbeam transaction though, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Mr. Strong, Mr. Kitts and Mr. Stynes are among the individuals who are identified as the authors of this document, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All three of them had been working on the Sunbeam transaction for -- the Sunbeam engagement for some period of time by this point, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection to form. It calls for speculation.
You can answer.
A. I don't know when each of them began to work on it, but I knew they were all involved in working on it.
Q. It was your understanding that they were involved from the outset of Sunbeam's engagement of Morgan Stanley?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. No. As I just said, I know they were all involved. I don't know when they each became involved.
Q. It was your understanding that Mr. Strong was involved from the outset, in any event, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend the Equity Commitment Committee meeting?
A. I believe I did. I don't specifically remember it.
Q. Did the committee meet on the date of this memorandum, on March 10, or at some later date?
A. I have no idea.

Q. Is there any practice with respect to the date of the preparation of the written report to the committee and the time of the committee's meeting?
A. The memo oftentimes would be written and distributed before the meeting, although not always. And I was just looking at the calendar because I think the committee met on Tuesdays, and this happens to be a Tuesday, so I don't know when this was prepared or circulated, and whether this date referred to a committee date. I have no recollection of all those dates; specific dates.
Q. Your recollection is that you attended the meeting whenever it occurred, correct?
A. I think that's right.
Q. Did anyone during the course of the -- let me ask a background question. Who else do you recall attending who was involved in performing work on the Sunbeam engagement?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. Who else do you recall from the Sunbeam team, the Morgan Stanley Sunbeam team other than yourself attending the Equity Commitment Committee meeting?

A. I don't actually remember the details of the Equity Commitment Committee meeting so I don't know.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Strong was there?
A. I don't know.
Q. Mr. Strong was the relationship officer, I believe is the term some have used to describe his responsibilities for Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Would it have been typical for the Morgan Stanley relationship officer to attend the Equity Commitment Committee meeting relating to a transaction such as this?
A. He could either have attended, dialed in, or not attended, because there were enough other people who could present the issues.
Q. Would the Equity Commitment Committee expect to hear from Mr. Strong before approving the transaction?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the extent you're asking Ms. Porat to speak for the committee. Calls for speculation.

Page 245

You can answer.
Q. Based on your experience?
A. I don't know. I think it varied by case.
Q. Do you recall anyone during the course of the Equity Commitment Committee where the Sunbeam convertible debenture offering was presented to the committee advising the committee members that Sunbeam was having problems with respect to its first quarter 1998 sales performance?
A. I don't remember, as I said, the meeting itself, but I do know that the first time I heard about any problem with first quarter was much later towards the New York road show, so your question doesn't actually hold for me, because I don't know what happened to the committee. I don't remember that, as I said a couple of times. But I do know when I first remember hearing about a sales problem that was much later.
Q. So you know that the committee wasn't advised at the meeting to approve the Sunbeam convertible debenture offering that there was a problem with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter performance, correct?

MR. CLARE: Objection, that misstates her testimony.
A. I didn't know that there was, and as I've said I don't remember this meeting. So you're interpreting -- I think that's an extension. I don't know, is the short way of putting it.
Q. Let me try to parce through this. You believe you attended the Equity Commitment Committee meeting where the Sunbeam convertible debenture offering was presented to the committee, correct?
A. I believe so, but I can't say it specifically.
Q. That's your belief, correct?
A. Right.
Q. You did not learn personally that there was a problem with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales until, I believe you just said, some time significantly after the Equity Commitment Committee had approved the convertible debenture offering, correct?

Page 247

A. Correct.
MR. CLARE: Objection to form. You can answer.
A. Correct.
Q. So if in fact you were an attendee at the March 10 1998 Equity Commitment Committee meeting, or whatever date that meeting took place concerning the Sunbeam convertible debenture offering, you didn't hear anyone advise the participants in that meeting that there was a problem with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales, correct?
A. If I was there, I didn't hear it.
Q. Take a brief look, Ms. Porat, at the written report that was provided to the committee. Let me ask this question. You've testified that you didn't learn that there was a problem with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales until sometime significantly after March 10, correct?
A. It was -- just to make sure I'm clear on what "significantly" means -- it was in that couple of days prior to pricing, so it was within a week that it was -- I don't remember hearing it until right prior to pricing.

Q. You first heard it, according to the testimony you gave at your last deposition session, at the end of the road show, correct?
A. Right.
Q. And the Equity Commitment Committee meeting occurred before the beginning of the road show, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you didn't have any knowledge before the road show began that there was a problem with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Based on that, are you comfortable saying that there is nothing in this March 10 report that alerts any reader of it to a problem with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales, or would you like to take a moment to look at it?
MR. CLARE: Objection to the form of the question.
A. I would assume there is not.

Page 249

Q. Well, just take a moment to look at it.
A. Can you just tell me?
MR. CLARE: Well, the document says what it says.
A. I'm assuming there's not, but you know the answer. I will assume there's not.
Q. If there had been a problem known to you with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales, is that something you would have brought to the attention of the participants in the Equity Commitment Committee meeting relating to the debenture offering?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and hypothetical. You can answer.
A. I believe I would have brought it to their attention.
Q. And you didn't do that, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. We spent some time when we were together last talking about the series of conversations that you were involved in when you did first hear about a problem with Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales, correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 250

A. Correct.
Q. And one of the -- you testified that you received a one-page summary of Sunbeam's sales situation in the first quarter, correct?
A. From the company.
Q. Correct.
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you CPH Exhibit 16 again, just to have that in front of you. CPH Exhibit No. 16 is the one-page document that you received from the company on March 18, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you receive any other written materials from the company on March, 18 or at any time prior to Sunbeam issuing its press release on March 19th, relating to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?
A. I don't recall seeing anything other than this and the draft press release.
Q. Do you see the list of companies under the heading "Potential Orders"?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you understand that to be a reference to?

Page 251

A. As I recall, the names of companies and the potential orders in dollars that were expected to come from those companies by the end of the quarter.
Q. Those were not orders that Sunbeam had in hand at that point, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation.
Q. Based on your understanding at the time?
A. Right. As I read it, it was -- the way it was described, as I recall, is there were verbal -- they had verbal indications that those orders would come in, and that they would come in prior to the end of the quarter.
Q. But Sunbeam wasn't describing those to you as orders that had in fact been made at that point, correct?
A. No, they were very adamant -- let me just step back. They were not booked yet. They hadn't occurred. They hadn't shipped, which is what the potential orders meant.
As I recall a lot of the debate the evening we were doing due diligence is the company was extremely adamant that those orders would come in, that they had been verified. They knew they would, and that they would not slip. And that was a lot -- by that I mean they would come in within the first quarter and not slip over even a day or two into the next quarter.

Q. Do you see that this document draws a distinction between open orders and potential orders?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you understand open orders to mean?
A. I don't recall sitting here today the difference between the two, but there was a lot of discussion about every line item on here, and the reason I'm making this point about this list of companies having orders that would close, or would be shipped, or closed, or properly accounted for by the end of the quarter, that was a big part of the debate that we had about -- and question we had about company's confidence that there was no question that those orders would occur in the first quarter.

So to simply answer your question, I can't remember the difference between that prior line and the next set of lines.
Q. But that's something that someone would have explained to you in the course of your conversations about this document?
A. I believe that's right.
Q. The total for potential orders is $86 million, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. The company told you that day that that $86 million was gross sales, not net sales?
A. I don't recall sitting here today.
Q. Did you ask that question, whether these were gross numbers or net sales numbers, under the heading Potential Orders?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You understand the difference between net sales and gross sales, do you not, ma'am?
A. I've heard that term used and seen that term in many contexts that something -- there's some kind of deduction between a gross and a net. It can vary by company.

Q. The size of the deduction can vary?
A. The size and the reason and a whole host of things.
Q. Do you see the references at the bottom of this page, there is a No. 1 in parenthesis, and a number 2, estimated waterfall of 7 percent, estimated waterfall of 10 percent?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that explained to you?
A. I don't recall if it was. I don't recall what it is sitting here today.
Q. What involvement Ms. -- before we move on, is there anything else that you can recall other than what you've previously testified to relating to the activities you were engaged in on March 18 concerning Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales performance?
A. I don't think so.
Q. What involvement did you have, Ms. Porat, after March 18 in monitoring Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?
A. I don't recall having involvement.

Page 255

Q. Is it your belief you had no further involvement at that point in communications with the company about its first quarter performance?
A. I don't recall communications with the company.
Q. That you were involved in?
A. That I was involved in.
Q. Do you recall any -- do you recall whether you monitored Sunbeam's performance through conversations with others at Morgan Stanley?
A. The only thing I recall is very generally there was a bring-down due diligence session, but I don't remember the details of that.
Q. Did you participate in it?
A. No.
Q. What's a bring-down due diligence session?
A. It's just a -- between pricing and closing, it's a further due diligence discussion.
Q. Between pricing and closing what, ma'am?

Page 256

A. Of the securities that were sold.
Q. So before Morgan Stanley closed on the debenture offering, there was a final set of due diligence activities?
A. I wasn't involved in it. I just vaguely recall there was -- bring-down was done. I don't remember the details of it.
Q. Whose responsibility was it to do that?
A. That would have been John Tyree.
Q. Did you have any responsibility for it?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any responsibility for making sure it happened?
A. Not really. No.
Q. Did you have any responsibility for consulting with Mr. Tyree to hear what he had been told in connection with his bring-down due diligence activities?
A. I don't think so, no.
Q. Did Mr. Tyree make any report to you?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Were you involved in any

Page 257

conversations with Arthur Andersen at any point in 1998 relating to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?
A. I don't recall ever being on a call with them, but whether they were on a conference call and I didn't know it, I couldn't say.
Q. As far as you know Arthur Andersen was not involved in any of the conversations you had with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?
A. Yes. If they were I don't recall that they were.
Q. Let me show you, Ms. Porat, what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit 33. It's a one-page document dated March 19th, 1998 on Morgan Stanley stationery from John Tyree and Johannes Groeller to Bob Gluck, Alan Dean and Greg Fernicola, subject bring-down due diligence?
A. Yes.
Q. Take a moment to look at that document, ma'am. Have you seen it before?
A. I believe I have, but it may have been in the prior deposition. I don't recall.

Q. Do you see what the first bullet point is?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you read that?
A. "Top and bottom line outlook for first quarter, first half and the year."
Q. What does that relate to, top and bottom line outlook?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and calls for speculation.
Q. Are you familiar with those terms, ma'am?
A. I would assume it refers to -- top refers to revenues, and bottom would probably refer to net income. But depending on the context could refer to operating income, or operating income before depreciation amortization. It could be a number of different types of references to earnings.
Q. In general, it's a reference to the company's sales performance and revenues and its earnings, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And this indicates that there will be an inquiry about Sunbeam's outlook for the first quarter, the first half and for the full year, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. Were you involved in preparing the bring-down due diligence checklist?
A. I don't recall if I was.
Q. Do you recall having any involvement in the preparation of this particular document?
A. I don't recall being involved in the preparation of this document.
Q. Let me show you what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 34. It's a document dated the next day from CPH Exhibit 33. CPH exhibit 34 is a Morgan Stanley memorandum, dated March 20, 1998. Do you see, that, ma'am?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And the authors of this document are identified as Ruth Porat, Brooks Harris, John Tyree and Johannes Groeller, and the subject is bring-down due diligence?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have involvement in the preparation of this document?

Page 260

A. I don't recall being involved in the preparation of this document.
Q. You indicated to me a few moments ago that you had no involvement personally in the bring-down due diligence activity, correct?
A. I don't recall. I should have said -- I may have said I don't recall whether I was involved in the bring-down.
Q. Does this document change your testimony?
A. It does not.
Q. So even seeing CPH Exhibit, 34 the March 20, 1998 memorandum regarding bring-down due diligence, your testimony is that you personally had no involvement in that activity, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. That misstates the testimony.
A. No. My testimony was that I don't recall if I had any involvement.
Q. And this document doesn't change that recollection?
A. It does not change the

recollection.
Q. Do you see that there is a -- you see that the first bullet point from the March 19th memorandum, "top and bottom line outlook for first quarter, first half and year," does not appear in CPH Exhibit No. 34, the March 20 version?
A. That sentence does not appear in the second.
Q. In fact, there is no reference in the March 20 version of the bring-down due diligence document to making any inquiry relating to Sunbeam's expectations for the first half of 1998; isn't that correct?
A. It looks like they had more detail in the first, quarter and they still look at the full year, versus the prior one which had one sentence on first quarter, first half and the year.
Q. So the specific inquiry concerning the first half of 1998 that was included in the March 19 due diligence checklist has been dropped from the March 20 version of the bring-down due diligence checklist, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.

Page 262

A. Those two words, "first half," are not on this second checklist.
Q. And there is no reference in the March 20 version of making any inquiry about the second quarter, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you know why that was dropped?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Foundation. Calls for speculation.
A. I do not.
Q. Your name is on the March 20 version of the bring-down due diligence checklist, correct, Ms. Porat?
A. Correct.
Q. Were you involved in preparing this document, CPH Exhibit 34?
A. I think I previously said I don't recall one way or the other.
Q. Do you know why your name would be included on this document if you weren't involved in it?
A. Unfortunately it happens.
Q. What do you mean, "unfortunately it happens"?
A. At times people put team members on even when they're not involved in the preparation of the document.

Page 263

Q. Did you give any instruction to Mr. Tyree in connection with his bring-down due diligence activities to drop the inquiry into the company's expectations for the second quarter of 1998?
A. I don't recall doing it, and I don't believe I would do it.
Q. Do you think that would have been an inappropriate thing to drop under the circumstances?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and incomplete hypothetical.
A. Just to put this in context, this is an outline for a broader discussion, so I guess I objected to your question which implied trying not to review issues, when in fact this second list appears to be a more detailed outline that would guide a fuller discussion.
So I don't recall the preparation of it, but I just want to make sure the context in which it is typically used is a bit more clear.

Q. I'm only inquiring about what I can read in the documents, ma'am, and I'm trying to understand the reasons for the differences.
CPH Exhibit 33, the March 19th version, indicates that there would be a specific inquiry relating to Sunbeam's expectations for the first half of 1998, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And CPH Exhibit No. 34 doesn't contain that same specific reference, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you can't explain that today, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Let me show you CPH Exhibit 35, Ms. Porat. CPH Exhibit No. 35 is a March 23 1998 Morgan Stanley memorandum from John Tyree, Johannes Groeller and Shanj Boone, subject Sunbeam bring-down due diligence. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this document previously?

A. I don't recall if I have.
Q. Now, your name is not included in the list of authors on this version of the bring-down due diligence checklist, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Can you explain that?
A. No, I can't explain it.
Q. The March 23 bring-down due diligence checklist does not include any reference to making an inquiry of Sunbeam relating to its expectations for the first half of 1998, does it?
A. It does not.
Q. And it doesn't contain any reference to making an inquiry concerning Sunbeam's expectations for the second quarter of 1998 either, does it?
A. I don't see the reference; a reference to the second quarter.
Q. You may have just answered this, and if you did I apologize. Have you seen CPH 35 previously?
A. I don't recall if I have.
Q. Do you recall any involvement in its preparation?

A. I don't recall any involvement in its preparation.
Q. Does seeing CPH 33, 34, or 35 refresh your recollection, Ms. Porat, concerning your own personal involvement in due diligence activities after the March 19th press release was issued by Sunbeam?
A. No it doesn't change my recollection.
Q. Ms. Porat, let me show you what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit No. 112. CPH Exhibit 112 is a letter from Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley & Company Inc. dated March 25, 1998. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize this document?
A. No.
Q. March 25, 1998 is the date on which the debenture offering closed, correct?
A. If you're telling me it did. I don't recall when it closed.
Q. Ms. Porat, let me show you what I will have the court reporter mark as CPH 380. It is a three-page document bearing Sunbeam Bates No. SB 251292 to 94 and it's entitled Sunbeam for immediate release, Sunbeam Corporation announces successful private placement of 750 million dollars of convertible debentures.

(Plaintiff's Exhibit CPH 380, Three-page document bearing Sunbeam Bates No. SB 251292-94 entitled Sunbeam For Immediate Release, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I'm only showing you this at the moment, Ms. Porat, to establish the date of the closing of the debenture offering. This press release announces that the debenture offering closed on March 25, 1998, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. The date of the Arthur Andersen letter that I just provided you is March 25, 1998, correct, Ms. Porat?
A. Correct.
Q. Would it be consistent with Morgan Stanley's procedures to receive a bring-down comfort letter from Sunbeam's auditors dated as of the date of the closing of the debenture offering?

Page 268

A. I actually don't know.
Q. Do you recognize CPH No. 112 as a bring-down comfort letter?
A. It looks that way.
Q. What is a bring-down comfort letter, ma'am?
A. It is something the auditors would provide at the time of bring-down due diligence prior, you know, in conjunction with a pricing or a closing of a transaction.
Q. Among other things, the bring-down comfort letter brings information relating to the company's financial performance current to the date of the closing of the transaction, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the second page of CPH Exhibit 112. This letter reports Sunbeam's sales and earnings performance through the first two months of 1998, does it not, Ms. Porat?
A. I'm sorry. Where are you?
Q. The second page of the letter.
A. Right.
Q. There is a table at the top. Do you see that?

Page 269

A. Yes.
Q. And that table reports Sunbeam's financial performance through the first two months of 1998, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And it reports that Sunbeam's net sales through March 1, 1998 are $72,018,000, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And it reports that Sunbeam's net income for the first two months of 1998 is a loss of $41,190,000, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And those numbers compare to sales of $143,499,000 through the first two months of 1997, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And earnings of $9,765,000 through the first two months of 1997, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So Sunbeam's sales for the first two months of 1998, according to this letter, are about half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, correct?

Q. From a profit of $9.7 million to a loss of a little over $41 million, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, the comfort letter identifies one component of that $41 million loss in the following paragraph, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. It indicates that the company has incurred a $30.2 million compensation charge in February 1998 relating to new employment agreements with certain officers of the company?
A. Correct.
Q. Eliminating the effect of that one-time expense, Ms. Porat, according to this document Sunbeam had still lost approximately $10 million in the first quarter of -- first two months of 1998, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Compared to a profit of about 9.7

million in the first two months of 1997, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. A negative change of about $20 million in net earnings, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Were you aware of those facts at the time the debenture offering closed on March 25?
A. I don't recall if I was.
Q. Did you talk to Mr. Tyree or anyone else to confirm that Morgan Stanley had received a bring-down comfort letter from Andersen?
A. I don't recall specifics around that.
Q. Did Mr. Tyree report to you the information contained in Arthur Andersen's bring-down comfort letter relating to Sunbeam's financial performance in the first two months of 1998?
A. As I said, I don't recall specifics.
Q. Was that a subject that you had interest in, given your participation in the telephone conferences on March 18 leading to the March 19th press release?

A. I'm sorry?
Q. Was that a subject in which you had interest given your participation in the events of March 18 that led to the issuance of Sunbeam's March 19th press release?
A. Yes.
Q. But as you sit here today you have no recollection of being advised that Arthur Andersen had informed Morgan Stanley on March 25 that Sunbeam had lost approximately $41 million in the first two months of the quarter?
A. I don't recall being advised that a problem -- there was a problem. And I don't recall the specifics behind the discussion.
Q. You told me when we were together last time, Ms. Porat, that you made it your business on March 18 to gather the facts relating to Sunbeam's sales situation in the first quarter, correct?
A. Correct.
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.

Page 273

Q. You agree with me that's something that you took upon yourself, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. After March 18 did you consider yourself to have no further interest in that issue?
A. I don't remember thinking about it that way.
Q. Why didn't you make it your business to find out what Sunbeam's performance was after the -- after the issuance of the March 19th press release and prior to the closing of the debenture offering on March 25?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Because we had a due diligence team that was proceeding to prosecute the business the way corporate finance and execution teams do.
Q. You left those matters in the hands of other people then?
A. Yes. As I said it was not my responsibility to be doing the due diligence.
Q. Do you have the March 25 Sunbeam press release in front of you, CPH No. 380?

A. Yes.
Q. Take a moment to read it to yourself, ma'am. Have you had an opportunity to do that?
A. Yes.
Q. This press release relates to the part of the Sunbeam engagement that you were personally involved in, correct?
A. It relates to the part that I was personally? Yes.
Q. Did you have any involvement in reviewing this press release before it was issued?
A. I don't recall reviewing it.
Q. Do you believe you did not see this press release before it was issued?
A. I don't recall if I did or I didn't.
Q. You don't recall one way or the other?
A. No I don't.
Q. There's nothing in this press release, is there, Ms. Porat, relating to Sunbeam having incurred a loss of something in excess of $40 million in the first two months of 1998?

A. No, there's not.
Q. Would you agree with me that the statements attributed to Mr. Dunlap continue to be bullish with respect to the company's performance and prospects?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form and foundation.
A. Can you repeat your question?
Q. Would you agree with me the comments attributed to Mr. Dunlap in the March 25, 1998 press release continued to be bullish with respect to the company's performance and prospects?
MR. CLARE: I renew my objections to form and foundation.
A. As I sit here and read it today, he seems bullish about his vision, but I was reading it to see if there was something more specific.
Q. You agree with me there is nothing negative in Mr. Dunlap's comments in this press release, correct?
MR. CLARE: Same objections.
A. I don't see negative comments by

Page 276

Mr. Dunlap in this.
Q. Mr. Dunlap -- the press release notes that the size of the debenture offering has been increased to $750 million from the originally planned 500 million offering, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And Mr. Dunlap cites that as support for the public's view, investors' view, of Sunbeam's success, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Calls for speculation as to -- other than what the statement is on the page.
Q. Do you agree with me?
A. I'm sorry. Can you repeat your question?
Q. Mr. Dunlap cites as evidence of the public's support for Sunbeam's success the fact that the debenture offering was increased from $500 million to $750 million?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. As I just said the last time you asked me that, I think you're basically confusing the term vision and prospects. What he says here is a high level of confidence in Sunbeam's strategic direction. It's not a comment about financial performance.

Q. And its prospects for the future, correct?
A. Right.
Q. And Mr. Dunlap cites the fact that the debenture offering was oversubscribed, correct, as the reason why the size of the offering was increased from 500 million to $750 million?
A. Correct.
Q. And he refers to that as the overwhelming response of the investment community to the offering, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And he states that that overwhelming response reflects a high level of confidence in Sunbeam's strategic direction and its prospects for the future, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. No reference to the fact that Sunbeam had lost $40 million in the first two months of 1998, correct?

Page 278

A. Correct.
Q. No reference to the fact that Sunbeam's sales in the first two months of 1998 were half of what they had been in the first two months of 1997, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Morgan Stanley knew those facts at the time this press release was issued, correct?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Foundation. There is none.
You can answer if you can.
A. Well, based on the bring-down comfort letter from Arthur Andersen, people within Morgan Stanley were aware of the sales trends, et cetera, and from the diligence discussion then that we had had prior to the pricing, we were aware of the sales trends even beyond what was in this letter.
Q. Morgan Stanley knew based on, if nothing else, the March 25 letter it received from Arthur Andersen that Sunbeam had lost approximately $41 million in the first two months of 1998, correct?
MR. CLARE: Same objection;

Page 279

foundation.
A. When you keep using the term Morgan Stanley as a blanket I'm uncomfortable. I'm not sure what implication that has. As you said, as I said, the team members involved in bring-down diligence were aware of this.
Q. They were aware that Sunbeam, if no other source than this March 25 letter from Arthur Andersen, had lost in excess of $40 million in the first two months of 1998, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. The members of Morgan Stanley's Sunbeam team knew that, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You don't recall personally being aware of it, correct?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You may have been; it's just that you're not certain today?
A. That's correct.
Q. Between the closing of the debenture offering on March 25, Ms. Porat, and the closing of Sunbeam's acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman Company on

Page 280

March 30, did you have any involvement in any aspect of any work being done by Morgan Stanley for Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall having involvement.
Q. Ms. Porat, do you recall whether on March 18 or March 19th, or any date before the closing of the debenture offering on March 25, participating in any discussions at Morgan Stanley concerning whether it would be prudent to postpone the closing of the debenture offering?
A. I don't recall a discussion about postponing the closing.
Q. Did you raise that as a possibility with anyone at any point?
A. I don't recall raising it.
Q. Do you believe you did not?
A. I don't think I did. I don't recall doing it.
Q. Did anyone suggest that as an alternative that Morgan Stanley should consider in your presence?
A. I don't recall a discussion about a postponed closing.
Q. Did Mr. Strong ever raise that as a possibility?

Page 281

A. I don't recall if he did.
Q. Is that something that occurred to you as something to consider?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.
Q. It's a different question. I want to make sure I'm clear if Mr. Clare didn't perceive the difference.
I asked you previously whether or not you made the suggestion to anyone, and I'm asking you now not whether you made the suggestion, but whether you considered it?
A. I don't recall considering it.
Q. So you gave no consideration to Morgan Stanley postponing the March 25 closing of the debenture offering despite the information that came to your attention during the course of the conversations you were involved in on March 18?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the testimony, and argumentative.
Q. Is that correct?
A. As I have said, I don't recall whether I considered postponing the closing.

Page 282

Q. In any event, you don't believe you made that suggestion to anyone, correct?
A. I don't believe I did, but I don't honestly recall.
Q. Ms. Porat, let me show you what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit 36. The cover page is a fax to William Strong, James Stynes, Robert Kitts and John Tyree from David Fannin at Sunbeam, and it attaches a Sunbeam press release dated April 3, 1997. Actually -- I read it correctly. It is dated April 3, 1997, but I believe that the record will show it was issued on April 3, 1998.
A. When there is a convenient break point, if we could break.
Q. If you want to take a break before we spend a little time with this exhibit, that would be fine with me.
A. As you prefer.
Q. That's fine.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 2:27, and we're going off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is now 2:38, and we are back on the record.

Page 283

Q. Ms. Porat, I do have Exhibit CPH 36 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. And you see the first page is a fax cover page from David Fannin dated April 3, 1998, and it's directed to four people at Morgan Stanley: William Strong, James Stynes, Robert Kitts and John Tyree. Correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in the fax cover sheet Mr. Fannin advises Mr. Strong, Mr. Stynes, Mr. Kitts and Mr. Tyree that the company will be issuing a press release shortly, and he attaches a copy of that press release. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Strong or Mr. Stynes or Mr. Kitts or Mr. Tyree share this fax with you when they received it from Mr. Fannin on April 3?
A. I don't recall if they did. I don't recall one way or the other.
Q. Did you at some point see Sunbeam's April 3 announcement?

Page 284

A. I believe I did.
Q. Among other things, the April 3 announcement advises that Sunbeam now expects that its first quarter 1998 sales will be, quote, somewhat below 1997 levels, close quote. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And it also indicates that the company now expects to realize a loss in the first quarter of 1998. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what analysts' expectations were as of March 31, 1998 for Sunbeam's first quarter earnings?
A. I don't recall.
Q. That's something you would have been aware of at the time correct?
A. Probably.
Q. You testified previously that it was important to the debenture offering that Sunbeam continued to hit its numbers in the first quarter correct?
A. Correct.
Q. I'm sorry, did you tell me at some point you saw Sunbeam's announcement?

Page 285

A. I believe I did.
Q. How did you see it?
A. I remember an announcement. I can't remember if it was this one or some subsequent news that -- across the tape. I don't remember receiving a document like this, but I remember, when there was some bad news, being very surprised.
Q. What did you do?
A. I don't recall one way or the other. I just remember being surprised.
Q. At that point did you have any continuing work-related responsibilities concerning Sunbeam?
A. I don't believe I did.
Q. After you saw some Sunbeam announcement that surprised you with its bad news, do you recall doing anything?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall having any conversations with any members of the Sunbeam team at Morgan Stanley concerning the bad news that you saw?
A. I don't recall one way or the other.

Q. Did you have any conversations with anyone within Morgan Stanley management relating to the bad news announcement that you saw?
A. I don't recall discussions.
Q. Who was your boss at the time?
A. Richard Kauffman.
Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Kauffman?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You did have a conversation, you testified to previously I believe, that you had a conversation with Mr. Kauffman before the March 19th press release was issued, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You don't recall any subsequent conversation with him when Sunbeam announced the bad news that you referred to?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Were you angry when you saw the Sunbeam announcement that you just referred to?
A. It's probably a fair description.
Q. What did you do about it?

Page 287

A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you complain to anyone at Sunbeam?
A. As I said, I don't recall.
Q. As you sit here today you can't remember having any conversations -- let me ask a broader question.
Do you recall that there was a series of bad news announcements that Sunbeam made after the closing of its acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman Company?
A. No. I was careful when I answered this. I don't remember what specifically I was referring to when I said I remember some bad news crossing the tape. So I don't recall if there were others -- if there was something other than this.
Q. Do you recall that by June 15 the Sunbeam board had terminated Al Dunlap?
A. I recall at some point they did.
Q. Do you recall that during that period of time from the closing of the acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman Company until the termination of Mr. Dunlap in the middle of June 1998, that

Page 288

Sunbeam's stock price took a precipitous drop?
MR. CLARE: Object to the form of the question.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Were you paying any attention to Sunbeam's stock price during that period of time?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I assume I was, but I don't recall what happened.
Q. You don't recall Sunbeam's stock price dropping substantially from March 30 or March 31, 1998 until the time that Mr. Dunlap was terminated?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I just answered it.
Q. I'm sorry, your answer is what?
A. I don't.
Q. Were you involved in any internal discussions at Morgan Stanley at any time between the closing of Sunbeam's acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman Company and Mr. Dunlap's termination by the board of directors of Sunbeam Corporation to -- concerning what was going on at Sunbeam Corporation during that time period?

A. I don't recall if I was, but that's not to say that I wasn't. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember being given any responsibility to try to gather facts relating to those circumstances?
A. I don't.
Q. Do you remember being briefed by anyone at Morgan Stanley relating to those circumstances?
A. I don't recall.
Q. During that time period, did you field any complaints from investors that had purchased the Sunbeam convertible debentures?
A. I don't recall getting complaints directly to me.
Q. Do you know if there were complaints?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley took any actions during that time period or subsequently to appease investors who purchased the Sunbeam convertible debentures?
A. I don't know.

Page 290

Q. You don't know one way or the other?
A. I don't know one way or the other.
Q. Did anyone make it known to you at some point, Ms. Porat, that investors in the convertible debenture offering were unhappy about their investment?
A. I don't recall any discussions. I'm not saying they didn't. I just don't recall.
Q. Did anyone advise you that the purchasers of the Sunbeam convertible debentures -- any of them were unhappy with Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't recall hearing that.
Q. Morgan Stanley was the underwriter of that offering, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. The sole underwriter, correct?
A. I believe that's right.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley repurchased any of the debentures from anyone who complained after the problems at Sunbeam began to emerge?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Foundation.

Page 291

A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley paid any money to any of the debenture investors?
A. I don't know if they did.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley offered to give them anything else of value to appease their unhappiness?
MR. CLARE: Same objection.
A. I don't know.
Q. Ms. Porat, at any time before the closing on March 30, 1998 of Sunbeam's acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman Company, did you suggest to anyone that any of the factual information being shared with you or with others at Morgan Stanley relating to the problems that Sunbeam was experiencing in the first quarter of 1998 be shared with my client?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall any discussions.
Q. You don't recall making that suggestion to anyone?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did anyone make that suggestion in your presence?

Page 292

A. I don't recall hearing that.
Q. Mr. Strong never made that suggestion to you, I take it?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Asked and answered.
Q. Is that correct?
A. I said I didn't recall any conversations along those lines.
Q. Ms. Porat, after the convertible debenture offering closed on March 25, 1998, what did you do with materials that were in your possession at that point relating to that transaction?
A. I don't recall Sunbeam specifically, but what I have done my entire career is when a transaction is priced, I retain only maybe the selling memo and the prospectus. But if there was anything else, I never would keep it, because there was no need to.
Q. You would throw anything else you had away?
A. Consistently. So I don't recall on this one, but I would assume I did what I always do.

Page 293

Q. So it's your best recollection that as of March 19th, when the Sunbeam convertible debenture offering was priced, that you would have thrown away any materials you had relating to your involvement in that transaction except for the offering memorandum?
MR. CLARE: Objection. Misstates the testimony. You can answer.
A. I don't recall specifically on this one. All I was giving you is what I do at the completion of any transaction, is when it's priced, throw everything out other than the offering memorandum and maybe the selling memo.
Q. Was there a point in this case -- was there a point, Ms. Porat, when you were asked by someone at Morgan Stanley to gather any materials that you had relating to the work you were involved in concerning Sunbeam?
A. I hate to speculate, but I would assume so. But I don't remember it.
Q. Do you remember if you had anything other than the offering memorandum?
A. If I did, anything I would have had would have gone directly to legal.

Page 294

Q. But, consistent with your practice, it's likely that the only thing you would have had at that point, if you followed your practice, is the offering memorandum?
A. Correct.
Q. Ms. Porat, in connection with the work that you were doing on the debenture offering, did you read any analyst reports concerning Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall if I did.
Q. Would you have, during the time period where the transaction was under way, and before the closing, made it your business to obtain any available current analyst reports concerning Sunbeam, or is that something you wouldn't typically do?
MR. CLARE: Objection to form.
A. Not necessarily.
Q. Well, that was a good objection, then, because now I don't know what your answer means. So let me rephrase it. I asked a poor question.
Would it have been your practice, in connection with the work you were doing relating to the Sunbeam convertible debenture offering and the marketing of those securities, to monitor any analyst reports that were then being issued relating to Sunbeam; issued during that time period?

A. Not necessarily, I think is the right response.
Q. After the March 19th press release was issued -- that's a press release that you were involved in reviewing before it was released, correct?
A. That's the date of the press release you showed me last time?
Q. Yes. I can show it to you again if you would like.
A. That's fine. If it's the one press release we discussed last time, if that was the date, then yes.
Q. After the press release was issued, did you review the analyst reports that were issued concerning that press release?
A. I don't recall if I did.
Q. Ms. Porat, I would like to take a short break and we may be done with this portion of your job here today.

Q. Ms. Porat, I'm going to show you a document that we've previously marked as CPH Exhibit 377. It's an April 26, 1999 article from the New Yorker magazine entitled, "The Woman in the Bubble, How Mary Meeker Helps Internet Entrepreneurs Become Very, Very Rich," by John Cassidy.
You've seen that article before, have you not, Ms. Porat?
A. Yes I have.
Q. It talks about you, does it not?
A. It does.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the fifth page of the exhibit. Are you there? There is a paragraph that begins in the left-hand column with the words, "Morgan Stanley could have," do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. I'll read a couple of sentences to you, ma'am. It reads, quote, "Morgan Stanley could have made more money by being less selective, but Meeker and her colleagues say that big-money investors tend to rely on the firm's seal of approval." Quote, "If Morgan Stanley has its name on it, investors assume it's better than Schlock Incorporated," close quote, "Joe Perella, the head of Morgan's Corporate Finance Department, mused."

Page 297

Do you see that statement?
A. I do.
Q. Do you agree with Mr. -- the quote attributed to Mr. Perella?
MR. CLARE: I object to the form of the question.
A. I agree that if Morgan Stanley has its name on it, investors assume it's better than Schlock Incorporated.
Q. That's your personal feeling, correct?
A. Yes.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I have no further questions for Ms. Porat.
MR. CLARE: I don't have any questions for Ms. Porat.

BLAINE V. FOGG, having been first duly sworn by the Notary Public, testified as follows:

EXAMINATION BY
MR. BEMIS:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Fogg. My name is Larry Bemis. I'm with the law firm of Kirkland & Ellis, and I represent Morgan Stanley. Sitting on my right is Kathryn DeBord-Rothman, hyphenated, just recently married. And she will be assisting me in the deposition. She's also an attorney in my office.

Would you state your full name for the jury, please.

A. Blaine V. Fogg.

Q. And where do you live, Mr. Fogg?

A. Right now, I live in Paris.

Q. Where do you live in Paris?

A. Yes.

Q. What is -- what is your ZIP code there?

A. 10128.

Q. Are you employed today by the law firm of Skadden Arps?

A. I am.

Q. And how long have you been employed by Skadden Arps?

A. I started at Skadden Arps in 1966. I was employed until I became a partner. Then I was a partner until October 1st of this year.

Q. Are you of counsel to the firm now?

A. I am.

Q. Do you maintain a business address in Paris?

A. Yes.

Q. And where is that?

A. That's 68, Rue Du, D-U, Faubourg, F-A-U-B-O-U-R-G, St.-Honore, H-O-N-O-R-E. And that is in the eighth arrondissement.

Q. Do you plan to have an office here in New York, being of counsel to Skadden Arps?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is your office address here in New York?

A. 4 Times Square, in this very building.

Q. As I understand, then, you have been of counsel since October of this year?

A. Correct.

Q. Would that be October of 2004?

I wanted to ask you to step back a few years from 2004 and turn to 1997 and 1998. Can your memory go back that far for me?

A. I'll try.

Q. In 1997, were you a partner resident in the New York office of Skadden Arps?

A. 1997? Yes, I was.

Q. When did you take up residency in Paris?

A. In Paris?

Q. Yes.

A. This year, October.

Q. Just this year in October?

A. Yes.

Q. In 1990 -- withdrawn.

You're familiar with the Coleman/Sunbeam merger transaction, aren't you, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. In that transaction, did Skadden Arps act as an attorney for Sunbeam Corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was your position relative -- withdrawn.

Were you the lead attorney for Sunbeam in that transaction?

A. I was the lead mergers and acquisitions attorney, yes.

Q. And tell the jury what mergers and acquisitions is.

A. Companies buying other companies.

Q. And selling other companies?

A. And selling other companies and merging with other companies.

Q. You --

A. And doing joint ventures with other companies. It takes in a lot of territory.

Q. You, in your capacity as an attorney for Sunbeam Corporation, addressed the board of directors of Sunbeam Corporation at the time the merger agreements were approved by the board of directors, correct?
A. I don't think that's correct.
Q. Did you attend the board of directors meeting of Sunbeam Corporation when the merger was approved?
A. I did.
Q. And did you -- and is it your recollection you did not speak at the meeting?
A. I honestly don't recall. I probably did, but I don't recall.
Q. Would the minutes, in your view, if they reflected that you spoke, be an accurate reflection of what transpired?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't recall, so I don't know how to answer that question.
Q. Okay. We'll get to it a little bit later.
Setting aside the meeting, you were involved, as well, in the issuance of a press release of Sunbeam Corporation dated on or about March 19, 1998, were you not?

A. I was involved in the events leading up to the issuance of that press release, yes.
Q. And you -- at the time that you were involved in those events, you were representing Sunbeam Corporation, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Following the issuance of the March 19th, 1998 press release, you were also involved with the -- an investigation of events at Sunbeam Corporation following Mr. Dunlap's termination, were you not?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you participate in the investigation and the eventual preparation of a report to the board of directors of Sunbeam Corporation about those events?
A. I'm not sure what you mean by participate. I certainly reviewed it and drafts of it. I was not one of the draftspersons of it.
Q. But you did see the report before it was finally issued; is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. And you did attend board meetings of Sunbeam Corporation in 1998 while this investigation was ongoing, did you not?

A. I did.
Q. Is there any part of -- withdrawn.
Did you have any participation in the debenture offering that was part of the financing of the Sunbeam transaction debenture? Let me withdraw the question. It was a little too broad.
Skadden Arps did represent Sunbeam as counsel in connection with Sunbeam's debenture offering in 1998; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. And that -- did you participate as an attorney in any of the drafting of the documentation for the debenture offering?
A. I don't believe I did, no.
Q. Did you review any of it before it was finalized?
A. I don't believe I did, but I don't specifically recall.
Q. If you -- who at Skadden Arps was -- withdrawn.
Was there one attorney, one partner at Skadden Arps who had responsibility for Skadden's work in connection with the Sunbeam debenture offer?

A. Yes.
Q. Who was that?
A. Greg Fernicola, F-E-R-N-I-C-O-L-A.
Q. My understanding is that you have been deposed on at least one occasion in your life; is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were deposed in this action, I think, during the arbitration proceeding involved Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh?
MR. MALLOY: Object to the form.
A. Not this action.
Q. I may have misspoken.
You were involved in an arbitration proceeding relating to Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh, were you not, as a witness?
A. I was deposed in that proceeding, yes.
Q. Right. In preparation for your deposition today, did you review your transcript in that proceeding?
A. I did read it, yes.
Q. When did you do that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018339

A. I read it in Paris about a week or 10 days ago.
Q. Let me show you a copy of the transcript that I have and ask if that's a transcript of the proceeding -- of your deposition.
A. The copy that I read in Paris had some missing pages.
Q. I think mine --
MR. MALLOY: Sounds like I might be in trouble.
THE WITNESS: No.
Q. Let me hand you what the reporter will mark for me as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 529.
(Defendant's Exhibit 529, Transcript of deposition of Blaine V. Fogg taken on 6/16/20, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I've handed you, Mr. Fogg, a copy of what I understand to be your deposition taken on June 16, 2000 in what I referred to as the arbitration proceeding.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. I do.

Q. Now, is this a copy of the deposition transcript, albeit, I hope, with all of the pages that you reviewed in Paris before you came here for your deposition?
A. It appears to be the same document.
Q. At the time that you gave your deposition on June 16th of 2000, did you review it after -- after it was taken -- well, withdrawn.
After your deposition was taken on June 16, 2000 and before you did your review in Paris for your deposition here, did you read the deposition for corrections or errors or transcript changes?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Did you make any changes in the deposition, that you can recall?
A. I don't remember.
Q. In your review of the deposition in Paris before you came here for your deposition in New York, did you find any errors in the transcript?
A. I honestly read it rather quickly, but, no, I didn't find any -- nothing jumped out at me.

Q. At the time that you -- at the time you gave your deposition on June 16, 2000, the transcript reflects that you were under oath; is that correct?
A. I believe I was.
Q. The same oath, in effect, that you took here today, right?
A. I believe it was substantially similar, yes.
Q. In preparation for your deposition, other -- in preparation for your deposition, did you read any other documents -- well, withdrawn.
Did you read your deposition, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 529, to refresh your recollection about events in 1997 and 1998 and even thereafter?
A. Yes.
Q. And did it help you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you look at any other documents in preparation for your deposition here today?
A. Yes.
Q. And did they help you refresh your recollection about events at that time period?

A. I'm trying to remember what documents I saw.
MR. MALLOY: He's entitled to ask you which documents actually refreshed your recollection. But, otherwise, he's not entitled to inquire into what you looked at. So, just limit your answer with that concept in mind.
A. Yes.
Q. Please tell me what documents you reviewed that refreshed your recollection.
A. Well, I do recall reviewing a draft of the Sunbeam March 19, 1998 press release which refreshed my recollection.
Q. Now, did the draft -- did the draft of the press release that you reviewed in preparation for your deposition have any indication on whether it had been prepared at Skadden Arps' offices, such as a footer at the bottom indicating a word processing source?
A. I didn't notice. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. We'll get to that later.
Did you -- what other documents did you review that refreshed your recollection?
A. That refreshed my recollection?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018340

MR. MALLOY: Meaning that it caused you to recall something that you hadn't previously recalled.
A. I saw some documents that I hadn't seen before and, therefore, they didn't refresh my recollection.
MR. MALLOY: He's not entitled to know what those were.
THE WITNESS: I understand.
MR. BEMIS: Okay. Could I respectfully not have a -- I'm not -- I understand what you're doing, but not have dialog. If there's an objection, put it on --
MR. MALLOY: You're probing into privileged areas, and I'm making sure that the witness answers appropriately.
MR. BEMIS: I'm sure you had an opportunity to prep Mr. Fogg before he came today and I don't want to get contentious, I know we have a short amount of time to get this done, so we'll try to get it done.
A. I don't really recall whether any of the documents I looked at refreshed my recollection or not. I really can't say, sitting here today.

Q. Did you see the -- did you see, for example, the merger agreements between Sunbeam, Coleman and the various MacAndrews & Forbes companies?
MR. MALLOY: Are you asking if he saw them and they refreshed his recollection, or are you asking if he saw them? Because I'm going to instruct him not to answer the question if it's the latter.
MR. BEMIS: Let me rephrase the question.
Q. Did you see -- did you see the merger agreements between Sunbeam, Coleman and the MacAndrews & Forbes entities and various other corporations in the course of your preparation, and did you -- did they refresh your recollection about events of the matter?
MR. MALLOY: Well --
A. The answer is no.
THE WITNESS: Sorry.
Q. Did you review -- withdrawn.
Did you see the complaint in this action that's been brought against Morgan Stanley?

A. No, I didn't.
Q. Did you read -- see any deposition transcripts from other witnesses who have been deposed either in this proceeding or in earlier proceedings involving Sunbeam?
A. No, I didn't.
Q. In preparation for -- withdrawn.
Have you given any interviews, other than to your attorneys, about the matters in controversy between Morgan Stanley and the MacAndrews & Forbes companies that we are here about today?
A. No.
Q. You've not spoken to anybody at Mr. Solovy's office, for example?
A. No, no one.
Q. Have you spoken to anyone, other than your attorneys, about the lawsuit that you are here giving a deposition on?
A. I mentioned it to my wife.
Q. We'll exclude your wife.
A. I don't think so.
Q. Okay. I know you do maintain a residence in Paris and you told us you have one in New York. You are still a U.S. citizen, right?

A. Yes.
Q. And where do you -- where -- are you registered to vote in the United States?
A. Yes.
Q. In what state?
A. New York.
Q. Do you -- do you have a driver's license in the United States?
A. Yes.
Q. Where is that issued?
A. New York.
Q. And how much time do you spend -- how much time do you spend -- well, withdrawn.
Recognizing that you only moved to Paris, I understand, in October, not a very long period of time, how -- how do you plan on allocating your time between the United States and New York?
A. Well, I have no plan. I mean, I will be where I need to be when I need to be there.
Q. How often have you come back to the United States since you went to -- went to Paris in October of 2004?

A. Twice.
Q. Twice.
Is this the second time?
A. Yes.
Q. Does your wife reside with you in Paris?
A. Yes.
Q. And does she reside with you in New York when you come to New York?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you -- one last question on this. Do you -- do you pay -- do you pay income taxes in the state of New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you pay city income taxes?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you receive -- do you receive mail at your address in New York City?
A. Yes.
Q. Where do you consider your -- to be your legal residence, or if you prefer, your domicile today, New York or Paris?
MR. MALLOY: Calls for a legal

MR. BEMIS: He can answer the question.
MR. MALLOY: -- domicile and you seem to have done that.
MR. BEMIS: Well, I'm trying to -- he can answer the question subject to your objection, of course.
DI MR. MALLOY: He's not here to answer legal questions, so I'll instruct him not to answer.
MR. BEMIS: Well --
Q. Just so we can get this clear, I'll only ask it one time. If counsel tells you not to answer a question, Mr. Fogg, are you going to follow those instructions?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, if I understood you correctly, you started work at Skadden Arps in 1966, I think you said; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you go -- did you join the firm right out of law school?

Page 24

A. No.
Q. What did you -- where did you go to law school?
A. Harvard Law School.
Q. And when did you graduate?
A. 1965.
Q. And what did you do between 1965 and when you started at Skadden?
A. I worked for another law firm.
Q. And then -- have you continuously worked for Skadden, then, since 1966?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. And how long -- withdrawn.
When did you become -- I forgot to ask you, how old are you?
A. 64.
Q. When did you become a partner at Skadden?
A. I believe it was 1971.
Q. And --
A. Maybe '72. I'm just -- '71 or '72.
Q. It won't make a difference today whether it's '71 or '72. Either one is fine.
During -- during your practice as a partner, has your area of practice been mergers and acquisitions, as you described it earlier?

Page 25

A. Yes.
Q. Has that been true -- was it true continuously from 1971 even up until today?
A. Yes, pretty much.
Q. Even though you are of counsel today, do you -- do you work a full -- a full-time schedule for the firm?
A. I work full-time.
Q. In 19 -- in 1997 and 1998, did you consider yourself a specialist in mergers and acquisitions?
A. In 1997 and 1998?
Q. '98.
A. '98.
Q. The time of the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction we'll be talking about today.
A. Yes. Specialist?
Q. Specialist.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you consider yourself highly respected in the field of mergers and acquisitions?
A. I hope so, yes.

Q. When was the first time that you met Mr. Dunlap, Albert Dunlap, former chairman and chief executive officer of Sunbeam Corporation?
A. To the best of my recollection, it was in the 1980s, probably the first half of the 1980s.
Q. What were the circumstances under which you met him?
A. He went to work for a client named Sir James Goldsmith, for whom I did a lot of work.
Q. And could you just tell the jury very briefly who Sir James Goldsmith was?
A. He was -- he's now deceased. He was a European entrepreneur, who, during this time period, acquired several U.S. companies through a holding company of his.
Q. And what was -- what was -- what were the circumstances precisely under which you met Mr. Dunlap in connection with Mr. Goldsmith?
A. I don't have a precise recollection of a circumstance in which I met Mr. Dunlap, but it was -- he was hired by Mr. Goldsmith following Goldsmith's acquisition of Crown Zellebach, a Forest Products company, based on the West Coast.

Q. What, if anything, did you do -- well, strike that.
Did you do any legal work for Mr. Dunlap while he was working for Mr. Sir James Goldsmith?
A. For him personally?
Q. No, no. In his capacity as an employee of Mr. Goldsmith.
A. Yes, I did do work for Goldsmith or his holding companies in which Mr. Dunlap has worked.
Q. What kind of work?
A. Transactions in which -- I represented Goldsmith and his companies in transactions in which we sold off -- he sold off pieces of Crown Zellebach.
Other transactions including a transaction in which he swapped some assets for a big stake in the equity of a company called Hanson Industries, I believe.
Subsequent transactions which never took place but which Goldsmith and other parties tried to take over a British company called BAT. Mr. Dunlap was involved in that aborted effort.

MR. MALLOY: If I could just interrupt briefly. I'm sure Mr. Bemis doesn't want you to testify about any confidential matters you might have worked on for Sir James Goldsmith or Mr. Dunlap. Just keep that in mind when you're describing this for him.
A. Yes, all the above-mentioned transactions were publicly known at the time.
And there may have been others. I just don't have precise recollection.
Q. Did you work with Mr. Dunlap in connection with a company called General Oriental?
A. General Oriental was the Goldsmith holding company I alluded to earlier.
Q. And it was through General Oriental that Crown Zellebach was acquired, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then through a series of transactions various assets of Crown Zellebach were sold off or liquidated in some fashion, correct?

Page 29

A. Correct.
Q. And you provided legal -- legal advice in connection with some of these transactions, I take it?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever represent Mr. Dunlap personally at any time in your career?
A. No.
Q. Did -- to your knowledge, did the law firm of Skadden Arps ever represent Mr. Dunlap personally?
A. No, although I do know that he claims we did, in a shareholder loss, put an appearance on his behalf.
Q. I take it, he was a -- he was sued along with other officers and directors --
A. Yes.
Q. -- of the company and Skadden represented all the parties in the case?
A. Yes, up to a point. I mean --
Q. All right. We'll set that aside.
In addition to -- well, withdrawn.
Did there come a time when you worked with Mr. Dunlap after he had left

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Mr. Sir James Goldsmith's companies?
A. Yes.
Q. And when was that that you worked with Mr. Dunlap?
A. I can't put a precise time frame on it. It was after the Goldsmith attempt -- aborted attempt to take over BAT, which I believe was in the late 1980s. Not too long after that.
Q. Did you work at all with Mr. Dunlap while he was the chief executive officer of Scott Paper?
A. Yes.
Q. And in what -- what was just the general nature of the work that you did with Mr. Dunlap while he was the CEO of Scott Paper?
A. Well, the principal transaction that I recall was Scott Paper's merger with Kimberly-Clark. There was a previous transaction in which Scott Paper sold its interest in a paper company, the name of which is escaping me, to another company which was principally handled by one of my partners.
Q. And was -- was Scott Paper a Skadden client -- drawn.

Was Scott Paper a Skadden Arps client at the time that you performed this work, or did Mr. Dunlap personally retain you to represent Scott Paper?
A. Scott Paper had been a Skadden Arps client for a number of years before Mr. Dunlap went to Scott Paper.
Q. The surviving entity in the merger that you described with Scott Paper and Kimberly-Clark was Kimberly-Clark, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And is it your understanding that Mr. Dunlap's next job -- withdrawn.
When you worked with Mr. Dunlap on -- while he was employed by Scott Paper, he was the chief executive officer, correct?
A. He was, yes.
Q. And was he, at that time, to your knowledge, largely hailed as turning around Scott Paper?
A. Yes.
Q. Or is restructuring a word that was used in connection with Mr. Dunlap's work at Scott Paper?

A. I don't specifically recall, but he was regarded as the darling of Wall Street for having turned around Scott Paper and made the shareholders a lot of money.
Q. And was the next -- when did you next work with Mr. Dunlap after the merger of Scott Paper and Kimberly-Clark?
A. After he joined Sunbeam Corporation.
Q. Was -- at the time that Mr. Dunlap joined Sunbeam Corporation, I think the record will fairly reflect it was in 1996 -- did you, that is Skadden Arps, represent Sunbeam Corporation?
A. Sunbeam Corporation was a client for a period of time before Mr. Dunlap joined them.
Q. Were you -- were you one of Sunbeam Corporation's attorneys before Mr. Dunlap became the chief executive officer of Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Had you done any work for Sunbeam Corporation before Mr. Dunlap became Sunbeam's chief executive officer?
A. I had personally not done any work for Sunbeam.

Q. Now, after -- after Mr. Dunlap became the chief executive officer, did you begin to do work for Sunbeam Corporation?
A. Yes.
Q. And tell the jury how that came about.
A. Well, I'm not specifically -- I don't specifically recall, except somebody from Sunbeam called me. I don't know whether it was Mr. Dunlap or someone else.
Q. And about when was that after Mr. Dunlap joined Sunbeam?
A. I honestly don't recall.
Q. What was your first -- what was your first legal assignment for Sunbeam Corporation after -- after you got a call?
A. I have to stop here and think about privilege and discuss it with my lawyer.
Q. Let me ask the question a little simpler. Maybe I can avoid it for you. If I can't, Mr. Malloy --
A. I understand Sunbeam Corporation, which is now called American Household, has not waived the privilege.
Q. I'm not --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 34

A. Therefore, I have to respect Sunbeam.
Q. I'm not trying to get into any of these privileged conversations, at least at this point.
And just, in general terms, what was the first legal matter that you recall addressing on behalf of Sunbeam Corporation, without getting into specific communications with the client?
MR. MALLOY: If you want to break and talk about that, we can. Maybe we should. Let's -- let's go off the record.
(Discussion off the record.)
MR. BEMIS: Do we need the question reread?
THE WITNESS: No.
MR. MALLOY: Sure.
MR. BEMIS: I need the question reread, even if you remember it.
(Record read.)
MR. BEMIS: Would you, please, read it back and show it repeated in the transcript.

"Q. I'm not trying to get into any of these privileged conversations at least at this point.
And just, in general terms, what was the first legal matter that you recall addressing on behalf of Sunbeam Corporation, without getting into specific communications with the client?")
A. I was asked to look at a number of possible acquisition candidates, without naming names.
Q. And when did this occur?
A. I wouldn't put a time frame on it. It was after he arrived in 1996. It could have been late '96 or early '97 or sometime thereafter. I just don't recall.
Q. Let me show you a document that has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 109.
MR. BEMIS: We have a copy problem. We don't have one copy. Is it possible, Chris, we can take a short break and have a copy of this made?
MR. MALLOY: Sure.

MR. BEMIS: Please mark Exhibit 109, Ms. Reporter, and give it to the witness.
(Defendant's Exhibit 109, Skadden chronology, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Fogg, do you have in front of you Exhibit MS 109?
A. I have it in front of me.
Q. Have you --
MR. MALLOY: I instruct him not to answer with his mouth full.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you assist at all in the -- in the preparation of a chronology to the Securities And Exchange Commission in the spring of 1998 concerning certain matters related to Sunbeam Corporation?
A. Apart from this document, I have no independent recollection.
Q. Having reviewed the document, does it, in any way, refresh your recollection of whether you did have a part in the preparation of a chronology to the Securities And Exchange Commission?

A. Doesn't really refresh my recollection.
Q. Looking at the document, can you, if you want to -- if you turn to -- I'm using the page numbers which are Bates numbers on the lower right-hand side. Looking at page CPH 1042291, will you tell me when you are there?
A. I'm there.
Q. There are entries -- there is an entry in March or April of 1997. And do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you, please, just read it to yourself.
(Witness reading document.)
A. I did.
Q. Did you have -- did you participate in any matters for Sunbeam relating to a possible sale of Sunbeam as referred to in that paragraph to the SEC?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question back for me, please.

In general terms, what was your participation?
A. I don't specifically recall, but I do recall in this time frame Morgan Stanley was retained by Sunbeam to explore, among other things, the possibility of a sale of Sunbeam.
Q. Did you have any -- withdrawn.
When you started working for Sunbeam, as you've described for us, had you had any discussions with Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam's interest in a possible sale of the company?
THE WITNESS: Could you read the question back.
MR. BEMIS: It's all right. I don't know if it's the noise or -- is the noise bothering you?

THE WITNESS: No.
MR. BEMIS: Okay. Sometimes it's hard -- it is hard to hear.

MR. BEMIS: Let me ask the question again.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Morgan Stanley at the same -- about the time that you were working with Sunbeam in the manner you've described about a possible sale of Sunbeam?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I participated in at least one meeting where Morgan Stanley people and Sunbeam people were present, and that possibility was discussed.
Q. Was this meeting that you just described your first face-to-face meeting with Sunbeam -- Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley at which a possible sale of Sunbeam was discussed?
A. Together?
Q. Yes.
A. I believe so.
Q. And where -- where was this meeting?
A. It was at -- it was at Sunbeam in Del Rey Beach, Florida.

Q. Who was present at the meeting?
A. Well, I remember Messrs. Dunlap, Kersh and Fannin all being there for Sunbeam. And the principal guy from Morgan Stanley was Bill Strong. I don't remember who else.
Q. Did you know Bill Strong at that time?
A. I knew Bill from before, yes.
Q. How long had you known Bill Strong?
A. I don't really remember. A number of years. We worked on things together.
Q. At the time -- at the time of this meeting in Del Rey Beach -- withdrawn.
Looking at the chronology that I put in front of you that was on the Skadden letterhead, MS 109, can you pinpoint the date of the meeting or the month of the meeting?
A. I can't really pinpoint it.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. No.
Q. Were you -- withdrawn.
How long did this meeting last in Del Rey Beach?
A. I recall being there the better part of the working day.

Q. Were there any other attorneys from Skadden Arps, other than yourself at the meeting?
A. Rich Easton was there.
Q. Was Mr. Easton, at the time of this meeting, a partner at Skadden?
A. Yes.
Q. Other than the people you've identified for us, Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin for Sunbeam, Mr. Strong from Morgan Stanley and yourself and Rich Easton, did anyone else attend this meeting?
A. I think there were other people from Morgan Stanley, but I don't remember who they were exactly. I don't remember if anyone else from Sunbeam was there. I kind of doubt it, but I'm not sure.
Q. And you believe that the meeting took the better part of a working day?
A. Yes. I remember starting in the morning and we had lunch and it went on into the afternoon.
Q. Were there documents used at the meeting?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 42

A. I don't recall.
Q. Let me show you a document and ask if either this document -- if this document was used at the meeting.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, could you mark this document as MS 541.
(Defendant's Exhibit 541, Project Laser Discussion Materials for September 11, 1997 conference call, marked for identification, as of this date.)
THE WITNESS: What's the question? Sorry.
Q. I think the question -- there was no question pending.
I've handed you a document we've marked as Morgan Stanley 541. Do you have that in front of you?
A. I do. 541, I have it, yes.
Q. Have you seen that document before?
A. I don't remember.
Q. And in looking at this document, does that, in any way, refresh your recollection of whether you reviewed a document at the time of your meeting in Del Rey Beach, as you described it?

Page 43

A. No, it doesn't.
Q. Is any of the handwriting on this document yours?
A. I haven't looked at every single page, but the handwriting on the first page is certainly not mine. I don't see my handwriting on any of it.
Q. Okay. You can hand it back to me.
Did you -- let me show you another document which we're going to mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 543.
A. I would note this is a document which purports to be for a conference call. Somebody wrote the names of the participants in the upper right and didn't include Skadden.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, could you mark that, please, ma'am.
(Defendant's Exhibit 543, Memorandum dated 7/25/97, from Fannin to Strong, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I've handed you what's been marked as Exhibit 543. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Um-hum.

Page 44

Q. Would you -- you have to answer yes or no, just for writing down purposes.
Do you have it in front of you?
A. I have it, yes.
Q. Okay, sir --
A. Sorry.
Q. -- this meeting -- this document refers to a possible meeting with you and Mr. Easton in, it looks like, either July or the early part of August of 1997.
Do you -- do you recall -- have you ever seen this document before?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Does this, in any way, refresh your recollection of when your first meeting was with Sunbeam?
A. Actually, I think it does. The reference to a July date brings back memories of how hot and muggy it was when we had the meeting. So, the summer would probably have been the time frame when we had the meeting.
Q. Okay. So, the meeting you're referring to is the meeting where Morgan Stanley was present as you've identified, correct?

Page 45

A. Yes.
Q. Now, with that time frame in mind, July, perhaps, of 1997, could you tell us what -- just the general subject matter of the meeting that took the better part of a working day?
A. The general subject matter was reviewing the strategic alternatives available to Sunbeam.
Q. How did the meeting progress, that is, you know, how did it start and what was the general manner in which the business was discussed throughout the day?
A. Let me just ask my counsel something about a privilege.
(Discussion off the record.)
MR. MALLOY: I think we would consider that to be a privileged conversation to the extent it involved communications related to legal advice. So --
MR. BEMIS: Morgan Stanley was at the meeting.
MR. MALLOY: Yes, they were acting as Sunbeam's financial advisors, which doesn't break the privilege. I'm sure Morgan Stanley takes that position as well.

018347

But, subject to that, I think the witness can testify generally about what occurred at the meeting, but not as to the specific conversations that he was involved in, if he recalls any.
MR. BEMIS: So, you're going to take the position in this deposition that, if he had a conversation with Morgan Stanley where Morgan Stanley was present --
MR. MALLOY: Depends on the nature of the conversation.
MR. BEMIS: We're not going to go forward with the deposition if that's the position you're going to take.
MR. MALLOY: And the capacity in which Morgan Stanley was serving at the time.
MR. BEMIS: Well, let's just get a clear record. You're going to instruct the witness not to answer --
MR. MALLOY: It depends on what the question and what his -- and what is it that would be the subject of his testimony.

MR. BEMIS: What was the last question that was pending, ma'am, before we hit the point of an objection?
MR. MALLOY: My point is, to the extent Morgan Stanley was present when communications between Sunbeam and Mr. Fogg occurred, we don't believe that that would break the privilege. And I think that's fairly elementary.
MR. BEMIS: What was the question that was pending, ma'am?
(Record read.)
MR. BEMIS: Let me ask -- let me ask a fresh question so we can get an objection if we're going to get one.
Q. First of all, did Morgan Stanley -- did Morgan Stanley speak at the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you speak at the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap speak at the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. How did the meeting begin?

Page 48

A. I don't recall specifically how it began.
Q. Now, by that I don't mean pleasantries. I mean, generally, how did the meeting by topic, if you will, begin?
A. As I said before, it was a meeting to discuss strategic alternatives. I don't know what particular alternative was discussed first, second or third. But the whole range of alternatives was discussed from the sale of the company to buying another company, et cetera. And it was a -- I'm probably volunteering, it was sort of a free-for-all discussion. It wasn't a formal Morgan Stanley presentation of a book and slide show and everything. It was -- we were sitting around a conference room table just brainstorming.
Q. And was there one strategic alternative as opposed to another that predominated the conversation during the working day?
A. I don't -- I don't recall. I believe it was Sunbeam management's preference to see if they could find a buyer for the company. That had been Mr. Dunlap's modus operandi before.

Q. What do you mean by that had been his modus operandi before?
A. Well, at Scott Paper he came in, sold off chunks, fired people, got the stock price up and then sold it to Kimberly-Clark. I don't think it was any secret that's what he was hoping to do with Sunbeam.
MR. BEMIS: Could you read his answer back. I'm sorry. You trailed off a little bit.
(Record read.)
Q. Did he say that at the meeting?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did it -- was there any discussion of buying companies at the meeting?
A. There was a discussion of buying companies. I don't know if it was this meeting or a different meeting. I just don't recall.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap say anything about buying other companies?
A. I'm sure he did. But I don't have a recollection, sitting here today, what he said.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Did you --
A. If I did, I probably wouldn't be able to tell you because it's privileged.
Q. Did Mr. Strong say anything at the meeting?
A. Oh, I'm sure he did, yes, but I don't recall -- I don't recall who said what, really.
Q. So, with regard to anyone -- withdrawn.
With regard to other Morgan Stanley people who you believe were there, do you recall anything that they said?
A. No, not really.
Q. And do you recall anything that you or Mr. Easton said?
A. No, I don't really recall exactly what we said.
Q. Do you recall any of the general substance of what you said without -- recognizing that you might not remember your exact words.
A. I really don't. I really don't.
Q. How was the meeting -- how was -- strike that.

As I understand your testimony, there wasn't a booklet of materials, for example, that you recall being handed out?
A. There may have been, but I don't recall.
Q. And do you recall overhead slides being discussed?
A. I recall they were not used.
Q. So, this was -- was this more of a working session, as you put it, I think earlier?
A. Brainstorming.
Q. Brainstorming session?
A. Yes.
Q. There was no written forma agenda -- well, strike that.
Was there a written formal agenda, that you recall?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. How was the meeting left at the end of the working day?
A. I don't really remember.
Q. I take it that you and Mr. Easton did fly back to New York after the meeting was over?

A. I flew back to New York. I don't know where Rich went. He works in our Delaware office. I don't remember if he flew back with me or somewhere -- or with somebody else.
Q. What's the next thing that you recall happening after this first meeting which -- with Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley that you've placed in July of 1997 or thereabouts?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I mean, the next specific recollection I have was a call I received from Mr. Fannin, general counsel of Sunbeam, sometime in late 1997, but I know there were a lot of stuff happened between July and December that I don't specifically recall.
Q. And just, in general -- withdrawn.
You said you got a phone call from Mr. Fannin?
A. Yes.
Q. And when did you say that was, late December?
A. I said it was late 1997, probably in December.
Q. And what was the subject matter of the phone call, without telling me exactly what Mr. Fannin said or you said in the call, just the subject matter?

MR. MALLOY: Generally.
A. Generally? How general -- excuse me. I don't know what my counsel means by generally.
MR. MALLOY: Then let's --
THE WITNESS: I need to talk about privilege again.
MR. BEMIS: Okay.
(Discussion off the record.)
MR. BEMIS: Okay. Can you answer the question?
A. Mr. Fannin called me to say that Sunbeam was thinking of acquiring Coleman. And that was the subject of the call.
Q. Were you asked to do anything?
A. Yes.
Q. What were you asked to do?
A. Well, Mr. Fannin knew that we had represented MacAndrews & Forbes, which owned Coleman. And he wanted to make sure that we could represent Sunbeam in the transaction, so we talked about getting a waiver from

018349

MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. Now, at the time that you had this first meeting in Del Rey Beach that you described earlier where Morgan Stanley was present, I think the brainstorming meeting, did Skadden represent MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. We've represented them for some time, yes.
Q. To your --
A. To my knowledge, we represented them before that meeting and after that meeting.
Q. To your knowledge, does Skadden still represent MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. Are they presently a client of the firm?
A. Yes.
(Mr. Schwartz entered the deposition room.)
Q. All right. Did you proceed, then, to get -- to get a waiver?
A. Yes.
Q. Who did that?
A. I called my partner, Frank Gittis, who is the partner who interacts most directly with MacAndrews & Forbes, and we talked about it. And he said he would speak to them and see if they had a problem.

Q. Did you eventually obtain a waiver?
A. Frank said he obtained their approval, but he didn't put anything in writing.
Q. All right. Using the December 1997 benchmark that you've just given us and then going back to the July brainstorming meeting, what, if any, involvement did you have with Sunbeam and potential strategic alternatives during that time period?
A. I don't have a specific recollection of much, except my partner Rich Easton and I looked at several potential acquisition candidates, without naming names, and rendered advice with respect to that.
Q. Was this Black & Decker and Maytag that you testified to earlier in your earlier deposition?
THE WITNESS: Can I answer that question?
MR. MALLOY: Yes, you can.
A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any communications with Morgan Stanley between the date of the brainstorming meeting which you placed in July of 1997 up to the date that Mr. Fannin called you in December of 1997?
A. I'm certain that I did, but I don't recall when or the substance of them.
Q. Do you recall during that same time period receiving any documents from Morgan Stanley?
A. Sitting here today, I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall anything at all unusual or out of the ordinary that, in your -- in that time period that involves Morgan Stanley?
A. Not really.
MR. MALLOY: I'm just wondering if there's a way to move this along. You seem to be rehashing a lot of what he's already testified to.
MR. BEMIS: Well, if I thought there was a way to just use his other deposition in the other proceeding, that might have been an option, but I'm not sure how we would do that.

Would you, please, mark this, Ms. Reporter -- excuse me -- this has been previously marked.
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 82. Excuse me. I misspoke. It's CPH Exhibit 82.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Do you have a copy of that for us, Mr. Bemis?
MR. BEMIS: After you see that, Mr. Markowski, can I have it back. I only have three of these big ones. It's one of your exhibits. You probably have it in your box.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't have it memorized.
MR. BEMIS: I don't have it memorized either. But I assume you have it in one of your boxes. If you don't, I'll give you another copy.
Q. Do you have a copy of CPH Exhibit 82 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen that document before?
A. I don't remember.

Q. There's a cover memorandum right behind page 1.
A. I see it.
Q. Page --
A. I'm cc'd on it.
Q. Yes, you are, sir.
Let me put the page number on the record so it's clear. CPH 0469478. And, yes, you are cc'd.
Does -- and after having reviewed the document, do you remember any portion of the document?
A. How long is the document?
MR. MALLOY: Do you want him to flip through every page, or is there specific issues you want to direct his attention to?
MR. BEMIS: I want to have him just take a general review of the document to see if it, in any way, is going to refresh his recollection about whether he participated in any of the information inside of the document.
Q. Just let me know when you're done.
A. You've asked a question that forces me to look at every page.

Q. Okay. Well, let me withdraw the pending question and let me see if we can move it along for you.
Having looked -- having looked at the document and whatever pages you flipped through, does it, in any way -- did you have, at any point, a role in preparing what is referred to as an information memorandum?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't recall.
Q. In the period between -- in the period between this July 1997 meeting, the brainstorming meeting and the time Mr. Fannin called you in late 1997, did you receive anything from either Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley in the nature of an information memorandum such as you have in front of you, CPH 82?
A. I don't specifically recall. Probably, it's possible. I don't --
Q. Have you seen documents like this before in the course of --
A. Many.
Q. -- mergers --
A. Many.

Page 60

Q. What are they called?
A. Various things. Selling memorandum, whatever. That's what this appears to be. I do not recall right here today whether I participated in this preparation or whether -- if I saw it.
Q. Is it customary, based on your many years of experience, to have something in the nature of a selling memorandum when a company is considering a strategic alternative or option of selling the company?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it, likewise, similar to have an information memorandum in the nature of CPH 82 if the company is interested in making an acquisition?
A. Not really.
Q. You can hand that back to me. All the way up -- withdrawn.
I'd like you now to move toward to the end of 1997 around the time of Mr. Fannin's telephone call.
Did Skadden Arps put together an internal team to work on a possible acquisition by Sunbeam of Coleman?

Page 61

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question back, please.
(Record read.)
A. I don't recall whether we did so at that time, because I was informed pretty soon thereafter that the deal was dead.
Q. Who told you the deal was dead?
A. Mr. Fannin.
Q. Was this in a face-to-face conversation or a telephone call?
A. No, he called me.
Q. And do you recall this being before the -- before year-end 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. What did Mr. Fannin say to you about -- and what did you say about the deal being dead?
MR. MALLOY: Are you asking him to disclose this conversation with Sunbeam's general counsel?
MR. BEMIS: Well, he just said that Mr. Fannin said the deal was dead. I'm just asking what he said about the deal was dead. I'm not asking him for legal advice. At this point, it seems like a fact statement that he's already disclosed.

018351

(Discussion off the record.)
A. He told me that the principals had met and they could not reach a meeting of the minds on price, and they had parted company.
Q. Was -- strike that.
Did he identify who the principals were?
A. Yes.
Q. Who?
A. It was Mr. Dunlap, and I'm not sure if anyone else was there from Sunbeam. I think, probably, Kersh and Fannin were there, but I couldn't swear to it. And Mr. Perelman from MacAndrews, Mr. Goudis from MacAndrews. I'm not sure if anyone else was there from MacAndrews. But those were the principal people.
Q. Did you ever talk to anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes about this meeting?
A. Ever?
Q. Yes, ever.
A. Yes.
Q. Who?

A. I remember talking to Howard Goudis about it.
Q. When did you speak to Howard Goudis?
A. Much later, after -- much later, after Sunbeam had acquired Coleman, after Mr. Dunlap had been removed from his position, after the events that thereafter unwound.
Q. Did Mr. Fannin tell you anything else about the meeting that -- other than what you have told me?
A. I think he told me Michael Price was there. I'm not sure.
Q. Did he tell you -- did he tell you anything else about the meeting? And, again, now I'm referring to the meeting with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Goudis.
A. I think he told me the meeting was quite heated.
Q. What did he say about that?
A. I don't remember.
Q. What did you say to Mr. Fannin?
A. I said, okay, too bad, I think.
Q. Anything else that you recall?
A. No.
Q. Did you exchange any documents or correspondence about the meeting that Mr. Fannin was describing for you?

A. Not that I recall.
Q. And you said some time later, Mr. Goudis, he gave you some information about this meeting between Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Perelman, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. What did he tell you?
THE WITNESS: This is not privileged, right?
A. He told me he was afraid Mr. Dunlap was going to have a heart attack. He got so angry and incensed at Mr. Perelman's suggested purchase price. Then he said that he had told Al to calm down. This is, you know, something you shouldn't get this excited about.
Q. Anything else?
A. No.
Q. What did you say?
A. I pretty much listened. I didn't say much of anything, that I recall.
Q. Now, in the -- this conversation that you had with Mr. Goudis, this was in reference to the Sunbeam offer to purchase

Coleman, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was in connection with, indeed, the transaction that Mr. Fannin had called you about earlier, correct?
A. Yes, it was about the meeting that he told me had taken place where the parties couldn't come to a meeting of the minds.
Q. Did you -- withdrawn.
Up to the time of the meeting with Mr. Perelman -- if it helps you, it was December 18, 1997, based on prior testimony -- had you participated in the preparation of any term sheets for a transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Had you reviewed any, even if you didn't participate in their preparation?
A. I don't remember.
Q. At the time -- withdrawn.
At the end of the year, that is 1997 -- withdrawn.
Have you ever heard the term data room?
A. Have I what?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018352

Q. Heard the term data room?
A. Certainly.
Q. What is -- tell the jury what a data room is.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. A data room is a -- used to be a physical location in a lawyer's office or an accountant's office for a company seeking to be acquired, they would deposit non-public information about itself to be inspected by potential buyers under -- usually under a confidentiality agreement.
Now there are such things as electronic data rooms, but that's not what we're talking about in those days.
Q. Had a data room been set up by Sunbeam, to your knowledge, by year-end 1997?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Was a data room set up at some point?
A. I don't remember. By Sunbeam, I don't remember.
Q. I'm going to hand you what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 418. Do you have that exhibit in front of you, sir.

A. Um-hum, yes.
Q. Have you ever seen it before?
A. I don't remember it.
Q. Did you have any role in drafting any press releases -- withdrawn.
Did you have a role in drafting this draft of a press release?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. Can you hand it back.
After the deal was announced dead by Mr. Fannin in late December, I think you said, 1997, did you discuss that fact with Mr. Dunlap at any point?
A. I don't believe I did.
Q. What's the next thing that -- well, withdrawn.
There comes a point in time when the deal is no longer dead, right?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you first have knowledge that discussions were, at least, resuming between the parties?
A. I believe it was sometime in early 1998, but I couldn't pinpoint it.

Q. Now, and what were the circumstances under which you learned the discussions were on again?
A. I don't remember who called to let me know. I just don't --
Q. What was your next involvement in the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction?
A. Well, I know that I got Rich Easton involved and he, in turn, got Allison Amorison involved, both from our Delaware office. I had not previously worked with Allison. I know we looked at a lot of public documents about Coleman, analyzed its indebtedness, did that kind of analysis. I don't recall all of the specifics of that.
MR. MALLOY: I don't think he's asking you for the specifics of the work that was performed.
A. Well, Skadden did that work and I was involved in it and so was Rich Easton and so was Allison. There was -- agreements were drafted pursuant to which the acquisition would be made, negotiated.
Q. Before the agreements were drafted, did you have any role in the drafting of the confidentiality agreements between the parties?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't remember.
Q. Let me show you -- strike that.
You did participate in the drafting of the merger agreements, correct?
A. In the negotiations, I did participate. I'm not sure if I put pen to paper or not.
Q. Did you read them before they were signed?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you read them carefully?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you -- let me show you first an exhibit which has previously --
(Discussion off the record.)
(Recess taken.)
Q. I'm going to hand you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93 in previous depositions. I only have two clean copies of this, so I'm sorry but that's all I have. Mr. Markowski may have a copy in his box, I don't know.

MR. MARKOWSKI: We'll share.
MR. BEMIS: Or you can share, if you could. I don't have many questions on it.
Q. Do you have the Exhibit MS 93 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Did you look at -- strike that.
When was the last time you looked at this agreement?
A. I looked at it very briefly yesterday.
Q. Okay. And you did that in preparation for your deposition?
A. Yes.
Q. Morgan Stanley Exhibit 93 is one of the two mergers agreements that were part of the Coleman/Sunbeam transaction, correct?
A. Yes, there were two.
Q. And this is one of the documents that you reviewed carefully before they were executed by the parties, correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. Yes.
Q. Look at, if you would, page 18 and 19. And I'm going to address your attention briefly to section 6.7.

A. 18 and --
Q. Pages 18 and 19, section 6.7 --
A. Yes.
Q. -- is entitled, "access to information, confidentiality."
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. At the end of that section, there's reference to two confidentiality agreements. Tell me when you are there.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you -- do you see the reference to the agreements dated February 4, 1998 and February 23, 1998?
A. I see the reference.
Q. Did you have any participation in the drafting of those agreements as referenced in section 6.7?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. The confidentiality agreements?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. I don't remember.

Q. At the time that you reviewed the merger agreement, MS 93, that you have in front of you, did you take any steps to verify that these two agreements as identified in section 6.7 had been executed by the parties?
A. I don't recall.
Q. What would be the normal practice?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. The normal practice?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. I'm not sure I know what you mean.
Q. Well, as counsel for one of the parties, you were reviewing, as an attorney, the documents here, the merger document, you're reading it carefully. What would be your normal practice to determine, for example, whether the agreements referred to had, indeed, been executed?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. My normal practice?
Q. Your normal practice, right, sir
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
A. Not the normal practice?
Q. We'll start with your normal practice.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Excuse me. Same objection.
A. My normal practice would be to assume that they had been executed and that someone had made sure of that.
Q. And when you say someone had made sure of that, that would be someone on the Skadden team representing Sunbeam?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. Someone on the Sunbeam team. Could be Skadden, could be Fannin, could be somebody working for the company. But somebody had made sure they were executed.
Q. Have you ever -- withdrawn.
Have you ever been told by anyone that either of the two agreements, that is, the February 4th or the February 23rd, 1998 confidentiality agreements referenced in 6.7, were not executed by the parties?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. Not in a non-privileged setting.
Q. Were you -- were you told something in a privileged setting?

MR. BEMIS: Well, you may have answered the question, then. That makes it --
Q. Can you answer my question? Were you told in a privileged setting, just yes or no?
A. Told what?
Q. Whether there was any evidence -- whether these agreements had or had not been signed.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
MR. MALLOY: Yes or no?
THE WITNESS: Could I have the question read back.
MR. BEMIS: Fair enough.

Q. Have you been told, in what you referred to as a privileged setting, whether there was any information to the effect that the confidentiality agreements, either one of them, had been signed?

A. Yes.
Q. And when was this?
A. Recently.
Q. Recently during a session with your attorneys in preparing for the deposition?
A. Yes.
MR. MALLOY: Now, I assume going forward you're not going to -- you can -- the witness can understand that nothing that you're asking is asking questions about what he learned or discussed yesterday. So, we can --
MR. BEMIS: I'm not asking anything about what he --
MR. MALLOY: For your purposes, you can get a cleaner record and we don't have these sort of digressions.
MR. BEMIS: I'm not asking about any conversation with you.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
MR. BEMIS: And I have not tried to do that.
MR. MALLOY: You can exclude those altogether from your --

Page 76

THE WITNESS: Expunge them from my memory, yes.
Q. Let me show you Exhibit 117. And, again, I apologize but I only have two clean copies of that one as well.
Do you have Exhibit MS 117 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Is this one of the two merger agreements that you reviewed as part of the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. And did you review it in the same degree of detail that you reviewed Exhibit MS 93?
A. I would have reviewed them both the same -- the same degree of detail.
Q. If you would turn to page 29, section 7.2.
A. I'm there.
Q. All right. In that section, sir, there is, again, a reference to the two confidentiality agreements dated February 4, 1989 and February 23, 1998. Do you see that?

Page 77

A. I do.
Q. Do you understand that the confidentiality agreements that is referenced in section 7.2 of this exhibit, MS 117, are the same confidentiality agreements referred to in MS 93, what we discussed just a moment ago?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I have no understanding of that issue, except that the documents speak for themselves and say they are the same.
Q. Well, did anyone come to your attention in your review of the merger agreements, and in particular here MS 117, to suggest that the documents are different, that is, it's a confidentiality -- that's a terrible question. Let me withdraw it and try again.
In your review of the merger agreements, MS 117, did anything come to your attention that the confidentiality agreements referenced in section 7.2 were different from those referenced in Exhibit MS 93?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. No.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 78

Q. You can hand that back to me.
You said in your practice you assumed that someone would have checked to determine whether the confidentiality agreements had been executed; is that correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't think that's exactly what I did say.
Q. Then tell me exactly what you did say, because I don't want to misstate what you said.
A. I said it was my practice to assume that -- assume that somebody else did.
Q. Was there a person on the Skadden team that -- in particular that you would identify as being the person, if it was a person at Skadden, who would have seen these documents were executed?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't -- I don't know. I don't believe so. I just don't know. I don't recall.
MR. BEMIS: Please mark the following document as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 533.

Page 79

MR. MALLOY: I think Mr. Fogg has a clarification to his answer to the last question.
Q. Okay.
A. Well, the clarification --
Q. Please.
A. The clarification is simply that confidentiality agreements have become so standardized that it is not infrequently the practice to have the company or the company's in-house attorneys or even the investment bankers deal and write the confidentiality agreements without outside lawyers like Skadden Arps even being involved.
Q. Not even being notified?
A. Right.
Q. Okay. Please look at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 533, which the court reporter is marking now
(Defendant's Exhibit 533, Letter dated 2/3/98, from Fannin to Shapiro, marked for identification, as of this date.)
A. Um-hum. I have it in front of me.
Q. Thank you, sir.

Page 80

Did you receive a copy of this -- of this letter from Mr. Shapiro dated February 3, 1998 from Mr. Fannin?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Excuse me.
THE WITNESS: Sorry.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I think you misspoke, Mr. Bemis.
MR. BEMIS: What was the question?
(Record read.)
MR. BEMIS: I did misspeak. Thank you.
Q. Did you receive a copy of this letter from Mr. Fannin dated February 3, 1998 to Mr. Shapiro, the executive vice president general counsel of the Coleman company?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. It's indicated that a copy was sent to me. I'm listed as a cc.
Q. Other than that, do you --
A. Apart from a reference, I have no recollection.
Q. Okay. You may hand it back to me.
Having looked at Morgan Stanley Exhibit 533, does it, in any way, refresh your recollection whether you had any involvement at all with the drafting of the confidentiality agreements?

A. The substance of that document suggests that I did not.
Q. Does the substance of that document suggest that you, at least, saw one or more of the confidentiality agreements?
A. Yes.
Q. As you sit here today, do you have any independent recollection of seeing any of the confidentiality agreements referenced in the merger agreements, MS 117 and 93? Let me finish. Go ahead.
A. I have no independent recollection.
Q. You mentioned in your -- in a prior answer that it was customary to have confidentiality agreements. Did I hear you correctly?
A. It was -- it is and was customary.
Q. So, it was customary in 1998?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. In this kind of transaction?
Q. Yes.
A. Absolutely, yes.
Q. Why is it absolutely, yes, customary in transactions such as the Coleman/Sunbeam merger?

A. Because each party wants to find out everything they can about the other party. Sunbeam, because it's acquiring Coleman. Coleman, because it's taking part of the purchase price in Sunbeam's stock. The only way to find out information is to get the company to turn over all its information to you, and the only way the company will do that is if you agree to keep it confidential.
Q. In the -- at any time either -- strike that.
At any time either before the execution of the merger agreements or thereafter, other than a conversation with your attorney, did you ever come to -- come to hear from any source that either party, that is, either the Sunbeam side of the transaction or the MacAndrews & Forbes side of the transaction, had refused to execute confidentiality agreements?
A. No, I did not.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read that back for me, please.

Page 83

(Record read.)
MR. MARKOWSKI: I object to the form.
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you review drafts of the merger agreements as they were being prepared by the parties' attorneys? Let me rephrase the question.
We've looked at two of the merger agreements, MS 93 and MS 117. Did these documents go through drafts?
A. Certainly.
Q. And that's customary, correct?
A. Customary, yes.
Q. Did you review -- did you review drafts of the documents -- withdrawn.
Did you review drafts of the merger agreements as they were being negotiated, drafted and circulated?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you ever remember a -- withdrawn.
At the closing of the merger transactions which took place on March 30, 1998, was there someone at your firm, at Skadden, that was responsible for a closing checklist, if you will, of the documents that needed to be executed as part of the transaction?

A. It would have been normal practice to do a closing checklist, but I don't recall anything about it in this case.
Q. Do you -- withdrawn.
Was there a person at Skadden on the Sunbeam -- representing the Sunbeam side of the transaction that was responsible for a closing checklist?
A. Same answer, I don't -- I don't really recall.
Q. Did you have anything to do with the actual closing of the transaction itself?
A. I don't remember if I was even there. I just don't remember.
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 344. Do you have that in front of you, sir?
A. I do.
Q. One of the attorneys that you mentioned earlier was Allison Amorison, correct?
A. Amorison.

Page 85

Q. Amorison. I apologize for mispronouncing her name.
She -- am I correct that she worked with Mr. Easton on the -- on the transaction?
A. Correct.
Q. She also worked with you?
A. Correct.
Q. And now, this document which has been identified in another deposition as a -- is a closing checklist -- as a checklist by title. Do you see that on page 2?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this -- is the type -- withdrawn.
Does this, in any way, refresh your recollection whether there was a closing checklist prepared by Skadden with regard to the closing of one or -- the first merger transaction, which is MS 93?
A. Independent of this document, even after reviewing it, I do not recall anything about a closing checklist. This document would seem to indicate on its face that Wachtell Lipton did the closing list and not Skadden.
Q. Or Wachtell had a closing checklist,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018357

Page 86

not -- is there anything on the face of the document that -- strike that -- there -- that this is the only closing checklist?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't -- I don't know. I just don't know.
Q. In your practice, sir, in a transaction such as this Coleman/Sunbeam transaction and a closing on one of the merger agreements, in this case MS 93, would it be customary for the two principal law firms to have just a single closing checklist?
A. Yes, it would be customary for there to be an agreed closing checklist. One of them, yes, one.
Q. Is it customary for one of the firms to be assigned the task of preparing the closing checklist?
A. One of the firms has to draft it and the other one comments on it and, hopefully, they reach an agreement.
MR. BEMIS: We need to take a short break so the reporter can change the cable on her computer.
(Recess taken.)

Page 87

Q. Am I correct, sir, that, as you sit here today, you do not recall attending the actual closing of the first merger agreement, MS 93; is that correct?
A. I don't recall.
Q. All right. Up to the time -- I want you to focus now on the period before February 28th, 1998, which is the date the merger agreements were signed, MS 93 and 117. Are you with me time period-wise?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Can you tell me -- withdrawn.
In the time period up to February 28, 1998, are you aware of any due diligence of Sunbeam that was done by Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes-related companies?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form. Lack of foundation.
A. Am I aware of any?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. I believe some was done, but I don't have any awareness, other than that.
Q. And what is it -- strike that.
What is it that causes you to

Page 88

believe that some was done?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objections.
A. Just that it would be highly unusual for none to have been done.
Q. Highly unusual in a transaction of this magnitude?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. Highly unusual in a transaction of this magnitude, yes.
Q. Would it be highly unusual in a transaction of this magnitude in which one of the parties was receiving stock as consideration in the transaction?
A. In a transaction in which one of the parties is buying a company, the other party is receiving stock as part of the consideration, it would be highly unusual if they didn't both do due diligence on the other.
Q. Are you aware of, as you sit here today, of any financial due diligence done of Sunbeam by MacAndrews & Forbes-related companies?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form and lack of foundation.

Page 89

A. Not other than what I just answered.
Q. Are you aware of any legal due diligence done of Sunbeam by MacAndrews & Forbes-related companies?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objections.
A. Same answer, I don't really recall.
Q. Was -- I'm sorry. I interrupted you.
A. I don't really recall.
Q. Okay. Was there anyone on the Skadden team representing Sunbeam that acted as the main point of contact, if you will, for due diligence requests, if any, by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember there being any disagreements, if you will, about due diligence matters before February 28th, 1998?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Do you recall Sunbeam ever declining to provide MacAndrews & Forbes any information before February 28th, 1998 pursuant to a due diligence request by MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form and lack of foundation.

A. I don't recall any such instance.
Q. Did you receive -- withdrawn.
Did you receive from York -- withdrawn.
Your counterpart legally was Wachtell Lipton, correct?
A. Um-hum, yes.
Q. And the attorney that you dealt there was Adam Emmerich?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you recall any correspondence or communications from Mr. Emmerich to the effect that Sunbeam was not cooperating with any due diligence requests from MacAndrews & Forbes in connection with the merger agreements?
A. I don't recall any such correspondence.
Q. Did you, in the course of your representation of Sunbeam, have any communications either directly or through people who worked with you on the transaction from the accounting firm of Ernst & Young?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Again, in the time period up to and including February 28, did you have any communications with the investment banking firm of Credit Suisse First Boston in connection with due diligence of Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall any.
Q. Do you remember the Wachtell Lipton firm making any requests of you directly, or one of the people working with you, for matters related to legal due diligence by MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Up to February 28th of -- strike that.
Do you know -- withdrawn.
Was there any type of log or record kept, to your knowledge, of any due diligence that was performed by MacAndrews & Forbes up to the signing of the merger agreements on February --
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you have -- you never saw such a document?
A. No, I didn't.
MR. MALLOY: Mr. Bemis, you're sort of beating a dead horse here, aren't you?

Q. Let's move forward now from February 28th to March 30th.
During that time period, did you, personally or through your team, receive any requests for due diligence from MacAndrews & Forbes up to the point of closing on March 30, 1998?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form and lack of foundation.
A. I don't recall any. In fact, I don't recall anything about due diligence.
Q. You don't recall anyone doing due diligence, do you, after February 28th and up to March 30th?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't remember whether they did or they didn't.
Q. I would ask you some questions about the period before February 28th, and I think I understand your testimony is you have no recollection of due diligence from any source, correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. Due diligence was not on my radar screen. I don't recall anything about due diligence.

Q. Was it supposed to be on somebody's radar screen?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form. This obviously --
Q. Could you tell me who was on your side of the transaction?
A. No, I can't. I don't know. Sitting here today, I can't answer that.
Q. There comes a point in time in March where you said you were involved with the March 19, 1998 press release, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. When was the first time -- when was the first time that you had any information about a potential earnings shortfall at Sunbeam?
A. March 18th --
Q. What happened --
A. -- 1998.
Q. And what happened on March 18th, 1998?
MR. MALLOY: I think this may involve some privileged conversations, so I would ask the witness to limit his testimony to a very general description of what occurred.

A. That's what I'm thinking about. Group of people congregated in my office at Skadden to discuss the results for that -- of Sunbeam for that quarter, that first quarter of 1998, trying to find out what the facts were, to try to figure out whether some disclosures should be made publicly about those facts. And then to prepare such a disclosure.
Q. Well, if I understand you correctly, you edict and people congregating in your office at some point; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. Is that on March 18th?
A. Yes.
Q. And how did this congregation come into existence?
A. I got a call from David Fannin saying he was coming over to see me. He was in New York.
Q. So, the first thing that happens on March 18th is a telephone call; is that fair to say?

Page 95

A. Yes.
Q. And it was Mr. Fannin calling you?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this phone call from Mr. Fannin -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Fannin tell you that he was calling you about this earnings shortfall?
THE WITNESS: I have to discuss privilege issues with my counsel.
Q. Well, a lot of this you've already testified to. This --
MR. MALLOY: I don't think he testified about this conversation.
MR. BEMIS: Well, he -- according to his deposition testimony, he learned it directly from Mr. -- he learned it directly from Mr. Fannin on that phone call on that day, just what he said just now.
MR. MALLOY: But he didn't discuss what was said during the conversation.
MR. BEMIS: He said -- according to his testimony, he learned of an earnings problem from Mr. Fannin in his prior testimony.

Page 96

MR. MALLOY: Can you testify that far?
A. Yes.
Q. What did Mr. Fannin say to you in this phone call?
DI MR. MALLOY: I instruct you not to answer the question on the grounds of attorney/client privilege.
Q. When did Mr. Fannin -- strike that.
What time of day did Mr. Fannin call you on March 18? For example, was it the morning, afternoon?
A. It was in the morning.
Q. In the morning.
And what was the -- the substance of the phone call, without telling me what he said to you or you said to him, what was the subject matter of the phone call?
MR. MALLOY: He's already testified to that.
A. If there -- the substance was --
MR. MALLOY: Let's take a break for a minute --
A. -- the first quarter results for Sunbeam and whether there had to be some public announcement about that.

Page 97

Q. What happened -- what happened next?
A. Mr. Fannin came to my office -- it was in a conference room, not my office at Skadden. We were there at 919 Third Avenue. I got Greg Fernicola to join us. And I got a fellow named Mark Shehan to join us. Mark is no longer with the firm.
Q. Could you spell his name?
A. Mark, M-A-R-K.
Q. That one I had.
A. S-H-E-H-A-N, one E.
Q. Thank you.
A. And the four of us met. That was the first meeting.
Q. How long did you meet?
A. That first little session? I can't remember. Not that long. Thereafter, we had several conference calls, some involving Morgan Stanley people and Davis Polk people and company people, other than Fannin. Some involving just Skadden and company people. And this all lasted several hours into the afternoon, perhaps took up the better -- it took up the better part of my working day.

018360

Q. What is the next thing that happened in this sequence after the meeting in your office with Mr. Fannin, Mr. Fernicola, Mr. Shehan and yourself?
A. I believe that Mr. Fannin called people at the company, a guy in charge of sales, Don Uzzi, U-Z-Z-I, I believe. And he had somebody else with him. There was a brief discussion and we, also, spoke -- I, also, spoke to Morgan Stanley, Bill strong and Ruth Porat, P-R-O-R-A-T, I believe.
Q. P-O-R.
A. P-O-R, Porat. Sorry, Ruth. And Davis Polk. And then all of the above got on a big conference call to try to figure out where Sunbeam's first quarter was.
Q. Could we step back, again focusing on the very first thing you remember happening. I understand things run together and, please, tell me if they do. Stepping back to the meeting that you had with Mr. Fannin and Mr. Fernicola right after the phone call, what is the next thing that happened in the sequence of events?
A. I -- sitting here today, six and a half years later, I'm not sure I can answer that question.

MR. BEMIS: Let's take a break.
(Recess taken.)
Q. Let me put a question to you so that we have a clear record. Is the next thing that happened after the meeting where Mr. Fannin was in your office following the phone call a series of conference calls with other people?
A. Yes.
Q. What's the first conference call that you can -- that you can remember today?
A. To the best of my recollection, it involved the people sitting in my office, Fannin, Fernicola, Shehan, myself, people from Morgan Stanley, I believe Strong and Porat and one or two or three people from Davis Polk representing Morgan Stanley. A fellow named Deitz, I believe, Alan Deitz.
Q. Alan Deitz, yes.
A. And a couple of other people. I don't recall who.
Q. So, there was a conference call?
A. I believe that's the next thing that happened, best of my recollection.

Q. Was this call placed from your office?
A. Yes.
Q. And how long did that group of people speak on the conference call from your office?
A. It wasn't a long call, I don't believe.
Q. Who was on the phone representing Mr. Fannin -- well, strike that.
Was there anyone else on the call, other than Mr. Fannin, representing Sunbeam?
MR. MARKOWSKI: When you say "representing" --
MR. BEMIS: Sunbeam's management.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Employed by Sunbeam?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, Sunbeam management.
A. Not on that call, I don't think.
Q. How did the conference call get initiated? I don't mean dialing. Who called who?
A. We called Morgan Stanley or Davis Polk -- or I don't know. I don't know if we used a dial-in number or we just plugged people in. I don't remember.

Q. What was -- strike that.
Have you ever seen any notes of the telephone call, this first conference call?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you see -- I take it, then, you didn't see any in your deposition preparation?
A. I thought we weren't asking about that.
MR. MALLOY: Yeah, we're not asking about that.
MR. BEMIS: Well, if he saw notes in his deposition preparation and he doesn't remember anything, then I want to know about it.
MR. MALLOY: I'm not sure I follow you. You already asked him whether there were any documents that refreshed his recollection. Having testified --
MR. BEMIS: Why don't you just instruct -- look, just instruct him not to answer, Chris.
MR. MALLOY: I just want to -- I'm trying to understand what you're asking him.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018361

Page 102

MR. BEMIS: I'm asking whether he ever saw any notes of the meeting. If he did not, he did not. Now if he's segregating out something he saw yesterday, I want to know whether the notes exist, that's all. I suspect they do not and we're just going to move right on.

Q. So, the question is: Have you ever seen any notes of the conversation at this first conference call at any time?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Okay. There we go. That was easy. Now, what do you recall being said by the people who were on the conference call? And as best you can tell me, who said what?

A. I can't give you a who said what. I can give you the gist of it.

Q. All right. If that's the way you recall it.

A. The gist of it --

Q. Please.

A. -- was there was information indicating that Sunbeam's sales for the quarter were going to be below the range of analyst estimates. How far below, no one seemed to know on that call. But we needed to find out what the true facts were and decide after we did that whether or not we had to issue a press release.

And that was pretty quickly decided on the call. And then we segued into the next call.

Q. Well, what was the source of the information that Sunbeam's first quarter sales might not meet analyst expectations?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form. It mischaracterizes the witness's statement.

A. I'm not sure I pinpointed that at the time. Fannin told me that's what the company was telling him. I don't know anything more than that.

Q. So, as you sit here today, as you recall it --

A. And Morgan Stanley knew it, too. Now, exactly how they found out, I don't know either.

Q. How is it -- withdrawn.

Can you tell me how you know that

Page 104

Morgan Stanley knew about it -- withdrawn.

Are you saying that Morgan Stanley knew about it at the time of the conference call?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you come to the conclusion that they knew it?

A. Well, I mean, they were -- they were taking the position, we got to find out what the facts are. And we know there's this shortfall and let's find out what they are and what, if anything, we have to say about it.

Q. Who spoke on behalf of Morgan Stanley?

A. I can't put particular words in particular people's mouths. I think both Bill Strong and Ruth Porat spoke. I know that the people at Davis Polk spoke. I spoke. Greg Fernicola spoke. Fannin spoke. I don't recall who said what.

Q. Was -- before this first conference call, had you spoken to anyone at Sunbeam's management, other than Mr. Fannin, about the sales shortfall issue?

A. I don't believe so.

Page 105

Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley in this first coverage call object to finding out what the facts were?

A. No, not at all.

Q. What happened next in the sequence of events on March 18th?

A. Well, we had determined that the way to find out what the facts were was to call the guy at Sunbeam who was in charge of sales, see where the sales were for the quarter.

And that's -- so, I -- then I believe there was a call to people in my office and Mr. Uzzi at Sunbeam. And he had somebody with him, Deborah McDonald, I think, to sort of tell him that the next call was coming involving Morgan Stanley and Davis Polk and we needed to get to the bottom of this. I think that was a pretty short call.

Q. Who was on this next conference -- withdrawn.

Was there a call to Sunbeam? I believe, you're referring to Mr. Uzzi that there was going to be another call and --

A. Yeah.

Q. Let's set a time for it.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 106

A. With Morgan Stanley. And are you available, and let's do it promptly, and scheduling it, yes.
Q. So, the second call is in the nature of, let's schedule a time and here's what we're going to discuss?
A. It's a heads up of what is going to happen and scheduling.
Q. Now, was this call -- was anyone from Morgan Stanley on this call?
A. This particular -- no, I don't think so.
Q. So, the next call -- is the next call the first time that you spoke directly to -- well, withdrawn.
When did the next conference call or phone call take place on March 18th?
A. Promptly after that one.
Q. Who was on the line? And, if I can, I'll refer to this as the third call. Who was on the line?
A. Uzzi, McDonald, Fannin. I couldn't swear where -- Fernicola was in and out. I think Mark Shehan. He may have been in and out. I just don't recall. Fannin and I certainly. Bill Strong, Ruth Porat and the people from Davis Polk were all on the big call.

Q. Was this -- were the people from Morgan Stanley at their offices?
A. I don't know. I don't remember.
Q. Fair question. What I was -- let me try again.
You were in your office with -- was there anyone from Skadden besides yourself on this call, the third call?
A. As I just indicated, I don't recall whether Fernicola -- Fernicola was in and out. Shehan was in and out. I don't recall which particular things they were in for and which particular things they were out for.
Q. Was Mr. Fannin with you?
A. Yeah, Mr. Fannin was anchored in a chair in front of my desk. I don't think he left there for hours.
Q. So, we have now representatives of Sunbeam in Florida on the phone call, Mr. Uzzi and Ms. McDonald, as you recall it; is that fair?
A. Yes.

Page 108

Q. And then yourself and Mr. Fannin in your office and then Morgan Stanley and the people at a location or locations that you don't know for sure?
A. Correct.
Q. How long does this third conference call last?
A. Quite a while. I can't put a time frame on it, but it could have been an hour or more. I just don't recall.
Q. Did you have any documents at this third call that you used as a basis for questions or answers -- questions to anyone?
A. Yes.
Q. Describe the document that you had.
A. I think it was a one-page or two -- possibly a two-page document prepared by somebody at Sunbeam, presumably Uzzi, but I'm not sure or somebody working for him, which purported to show where Sunbeam stood in terms of sales for the first quarter of 1998, what was already booked and then sort of -- they went down a list of major accounts and indicated potential additional sales to those accounts, I think.

Page 109

Q. Did you --
A. I don't know when we got that document. It was --
Q. That my next question. When did you get the document?
A. I'm only -- I can't speculate, but I -- I don't remember. I don't think Fannin had it with him when he came over. I believe we got by fax during the day. I just don't remember.
Q. Did the people that were not in your office, did they have a copy of the document?
A. I believe they did. I think, maybe, we faxed it to them. I don't recall. I'm pretty sure they did. We were all working on the same page.
Q. And did Mr. Uzzi, based on your recollection of the phone call, have a copy of the document when he spoke?
A. I think so. I think it was prepared by him or somebody working for him, yes. I think he did, but I couldn't swear to it because I wasn't with him, so --
Q. But you and Mr. Fannin had a copy of the document?

A. Yeah, yes.
Q. Let me show you what been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 411.
(Defendant's Exhibit 411, Sales Buildup, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Fogg, I have handed you what has been marked as -- by the reporter, as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 411.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, I'm not representing to you that the handwriting on the document is -- was on the document originally. So, for the time being, I'd just ask you to disregard the handwriting.
First of all, with -- excluding the handwriting, is this the document that you had in front of you when you spoke to Mr. Uzzi, Ms. McDonald in this third conference call?
A. I believe it was, yes.
Q. When was the last time that you saw this document?
A. Yesterday.
Q. And did it refresh your recollection about the events of March 18th?

Page 111

A. Yes.
Q. Is this the same document that you testified to in your deposition in August -- excuse me -- June of 2000 that you had in front of you when you spoke to Mr. Uzzi on this conference call?
A. I don't remember that testimony, but --
Q. It's not a trick question. It wasn't identified in your transcript and that's why I ask you. Let me try it a different way.
Do you recall receiving only one document from Mr. Uzzi on the -- on March 18th?
A. I don't remember. I think so, but I'm not -- I couldn't be 100 percent sure.
Q. All right. Is any of the handwriting on Exhibit MS 411 yours?
A. Doesn't appear to be, no, none of it.
Q. All right. Could you, as best you can, take me through the conference -- the conference call with Mr. Uzzi which we've identified as the third conference call.

A. Well, again, I'm not sure I can give you a who said what in any great specifics. But the focus of the call was, okay, what sales are already in -- have been booked? What do those add up to? What sales are in the works that probably will be booked? And where does that leave Sunbeam for the quarter compared with the analyst estimates and with the first quarter of 1997?
And we discussed all of that at great length. A large part of the call related to going down this list of potential orders and hearing from Uzzi primarily -- McDonald didn't say much, as I recall -- from Uzzi why he thought these orders were going to be booked for each of these major accounts.
And he was very optimistic they would be booked. He said he talked to the people out in the field, the sales force. And he was just very confident that this was going to happen.
And he was pretty optimistic that this was going to come within the range of analyst expectations and ahead of last year's -- first quarter of 1997.

Q. Did I hear you say -- sorry.
A. And all us questioned him on each of these items. And what makes you so sure of this and that and the other thing, at great length. I don't know how long the call went on, but it was quite a while.
And the Morgan Stanley people asked questions, the Davis Polk people asked questions. I asked questions, Fannin asked questions. And that was it.
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley ask questions?
A. I just said so, yes.
Q. Who on behalf of Morgan Stanley asked -- asked questions?
A. I believe both -- I recall both Bill Strong and Ruth Porat asking questions, saying things on the call. I can't, as I indicated earlier, give you a who said what, when. I just can't do that after six years or six and a half years.
Q. Was Mr. -- strike that.
Did Mr. Uzzi express confidence that he -- that he -- withdrawn.

Was -- withdrawn.
Did Mr. Uzzi express confidence in this third call that Sunbeam would meet analyst expectations for Sunbeam sales in the first quarter of 1998?
A. He did.
Q. Did he express even more confidence that Sunbeam would meet, at least, sales for Sunbeam's first quarter of 1997?
A. I'm -- I'm not sure about my earlier answer. I think he was quite confident they were going to beat the first quarter of 1997. I don't know -- and he was very confident on that basis, on that.
I'm not sure that he was -- how confident he was about the analyst expect -- estimates, meeting those or beating those. But I think he was -- felt there was a good shot at doing so.
Q. How would you describe Ms. Porat's questioning?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. As I sit here today, I can't -- I can't really characterize what she said, as opposed to what I said, as opposed to what --

I don't recall who said what.
But everyone on the call who was sitting in my office, as well as the Morgan Stanley people and the Davis Polk people, asked a lot of questions. They were, you know, challenging questions, probing questions. How can you possibly think that, this, so forth?
Q. You described in your earlier deposition Ms. Porat, in effect, quote, hammering at a point. Do you recall that testimony?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. I don't really recall that testimony, but it sounds like her.
Q. Why do you say that?
A. She's -- she's a strong person.
Q. Well, in your deposition on June 16th, 2000, you were asked the following questions and gave the following answers. And this is on page 73, sir, line 12 through 24:
"Q. When Uzzi was going through the numbers on your summary report, did anyone voice the opinion that they didn't believe those numbers?

"A. Well, I think that Morgan Stanley's people, especially Ruth Porat, was of the view that this is all very good, Mr. Uzzi, but there is a real chance you are not going to make these high end numbers the analysts are projecting, isn't there?
She was hammering at that point. He finally had to admit yes. He was trying to convince us that all he was -- all he was going to do to make the numbers."
Was that testimony accurate at the time you gave it, sir?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. When I testified under oath, what I say is what I believe, so the answer is yes.
Q. And your -- your description of -- strike that.
I think you described Ms. Porat as a strong person?
A. Very strong person, yes, capable person.
Q. Have you dealt with her -- had you dealt with her before this phone call with Mr. Uzzi?

A. No, no.
Q. Do you recall anything --
A. I'm sorry. I had.
Q. And what was that?
A. I think she was involved, at the time of the Sunbeam board meeting, when the merger -- the Coleman and the other two acquisitions were approved and the financing of them was discussed, I believe. I'm not sure, but I believe.
Q. Do you recall anything that Mr. Strong said?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you recall anything that Mr. Fannin said?
A. I'll say it again. I don't recall who said what specifically and when. I just recall the gist of the whole thing.
Q. Sometimes when you talk through these things, some things come back. And that's why I'm asking. I'm not trying to make it any longer, but occasionally you do remember something.
Is it -- how was the telephone -- the third telephone conference left on

018365

March 18th after you went through the items on MS 411?
A. Well, the bottom line was that we weren't confident that there was 100 percent sure we were going to make the analyst estimates. Pretty -- we were pretty confident that we were going beat the first quarter of '97. But since the analysts' estimates were out there and since probably the analysts had reached their estimates based on company information, that we ought to correct it, better put out a press release that accurately gives the best picture of where we are.
So, a public disclosure of some kind was -- was decided upon. And --
Q. Was there any dissent -- I interrupted you. I apologize.
Was there any dissent at the conference call amongst those who were in your office or in the Morgan Stanley locations about the wisdom of issuing a press release?
A. No dissent.
Q. Was the issue of issuing a press release discussed directly with Mr. Uzzi in this phone call?

A. I don't recall -- I really don't recall.
Q. Given the consensus that a press release should be issued, was someone assigned the task of taking pen to paper and drafting a press release?
A. Yes.
Q. Who?
A. Well, it was not so much an assignment, but Fannin, I guess, grabbed a yellow pad in my office and started writing. He produced a draft. We had it typed. People in my office looked at it. I don't recall the specifics of what it said versus what the final thing said.
And I believe we circulated it to the other people who were on the previous call and discussed it with them. Except I don't think -- I don't think I ever called any -- I had any other discussion with Uzzi or McDonald on this subject.
I do recall discussing the press release with the Morgan Stanley people and the Davis Polk people. I'm not sure if we faxed it to them or read it to them or what, but we did discuss it.

Q. Stepping back, Mr. Fannin then -- Mr. Fannin started the drafting process, as you remember it?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you -- your office had the press release typed up; is that fair?
A. Yes.
Q. I will now hand you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 504. Do you have that in front of you, sir?
A. I do.
Q. If you care to, please, take a moment and look at it. And, please, look at the footers on the document and in particular --
A. Yes.
Q. Is this document, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 504, a draft of the March 18th press -- or March 19th press release?
A. Yes, that's what it appears to be.
Q. And on the lower right-hand corner of both pages, it has draft March 18, 1998. And I believe it says 11:12 p.m.; is that correct?

A. That's what it says.
Q. Now, does that -- does that date indicate that this is the date that it was prepared and printed at your office?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
Q. Let me ask it a different way. I'll withdraw the question.
What does that date mean?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the lack of foundation.
A. I believe it means that document was emitted from our word processing equipment on March 18, 1998 at 11:12 p.m.
Q. And does the left-hand footer, which has the number 203024.01-New York server 3A, refer to a server here at Skadden -- at Skadden Arps?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, am I correct, then, based on the -- looking at -- well, withdrawn.
Is this, then, a draft of the press release that started with Mr. Fannin's pen to paper, as you described it, and then went through some process of review by others?

Page 122

A. I believe so.
Q. Let's -- let me move forward from the point that Mr. Fannin drafted something.
I understand that you did look at what he drafted after it was typed up, correct?
A. I, among other people, yeah.
Q. Did you make any changes that you can identify for the jury today?
A. I don't recall.
Q. And who were the -- who were the others at Skadden Arps that reviewed the press release?
A. I believe Fernicola and Shehan.
Q. Both of these gentlemen were in or in and out of the conversation with Mr. Uzzi we've identified as the third call, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Did they make any changes?
A. I don't remember.
Q. You said that you believed that the draft was also sent or read to Morgan Stanley and Davis Polk. Do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. Starting with Davis -- let's start with Davis Polk. Do you have any recollection, as you sit here today, of speaking to anyone at Davis Polk?

Page 123

A. I don't recall.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You're focused on commenting on the press release because he's testified about conversation with Davis Polk.
MR. BEMIS: He said he may have sent it to Davis Polk. I'm now asking whether he had discussions -- I'm now asking about any conversations he had with Davis Polk.
Q. Let me put a question to you so we're -- do you recall having any conversation with Davis Polk about a draft of the press release, assuming that you sent one over to them? Or you read it to them on the telephone, if that may be the case?
A. I don't recall the gist of any such conversations, or with Morgan Stanley. I just don't recall.
Q. So, as you sit here today, you don't recall any -- withdrawn.
Did you discuss the press release with anyone outside -- withdrawn.

Page 124

Did you discuss the press release with Mr. Dunlap?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you do it -- did you do it before or after the press release was drafted?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you have more than one conversation with him before the press release was issued, about the press release?
A. I don't remember.
Q. What did you say -- withdrawn.
Did you speak to Mr. Dunlap in a face-to-face conversation or were you on the telephone?
A. Telephone.
Q. Where was Mr. Dunlap, as far as you know?
A. Somewhere in New York, but I'm not sure where.
Q. Was the subject matter of the phone call the issuance of the press release?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you say to Mr. Dunlap and what did he say to you?

Page 125

A. This may be privileged.
MR. MALLOY: Can we establish who else was on the call?
MR. BEMIS: Sure. Did you want to talk to him about it or --
MR. MALLOY: Can you establish who else was on the call?
MR. BEMIS: I didn't hear you.
Q. Was anyone else on the telephone?
A. I believe it was Fannin, myself, Kersh and Dunlap.
Q. So, this was a conference call?
A. Yeah.
Q. And did you place it from your office?
A. I believe so.
Q. When had you made contact with Mr. Kersh about the press release -- well, withdrawn. Let me try it a different way.
Had you spoken to Mr. Kersh about the press release before this conference call --
A. No.
Q. -- you had with Mr. Dunlap?
A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Did Mr. -- to your knowledge, based on your participation in these events, was Mr. Kersh aware there was an issue of whether a press release was going to have to be issued?
A. I'm not sure. I'm not sure.
Q. What happened in this phone call between Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fannin -- withdrawn.
What was said in this telephone call?
MR. MALLOY: Well, let me take a break with the witness to discuss a privilege issue.
(Recess taken.)
THE WITNESS: Can I have the question read back.
(Record read.)
A. Mr. Dunlap very strongly took the position no press release. Mr. Kersh seconded that motion. Fannin and I tried to explain to them they had no choice. We had to do it and, finally, sort of -- sort prevailed.
Q. Having gone through the conversation, at least in your own mind, was Bill Strong on this call?

A. I don't remember.
Q. You don't remember one way or the other?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Given that Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh's position is counter poised, if you will, by yourself and Mr. Fannin, did you receive instructions as to what you were to do?
A. Not really. I mean, the -- the instructions were that the press release was going to be issued. But Fannin, I thought, was going to talk further with them about it. But that we had -- we had to issue a press release, Sunbeam had to issue a press release.
Q. At the time you spoke with Mr. Dunlap, did you have a draft of the press release reduced to writing?
A. I don't really recall, but I think so.
Q. What was -- did -- can you recall anything in -- in particular that Mr. Dunlap said?
A. Well, he used very colorful language. He said we were -- never mind. He -- he was very strong and said, the quarter is not over, you can't release a press release. We dont know what the quarter is going to do. How can you possibly do that? You guys are disloyal, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera.

Q. You started to tell us what language he used, and I -- it may be inappropriate in other circles, but in these proceedings I would ask you to tell us what he did say. What you remember he said, what language did he use?
A. I mean, his language was punctuated with expletives of all kinds.
Q. How about Mr. Kersh, did he say anything, other than echo his agreement with Mr. Dunlap on whether a press release should be issued?
A. Pretty much echoed.
Q. In the sequence of phone calls, this would be the fourth call that you've told me about.
Can you tell me what happened next after the telephone call with Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh?

A. Well, I think Mr. Fannin left and -- with a draft of the press release, and that was the last I heard of it until after it was issued, I think.
Q. Did you have any further conversations with anyone from Morgan Stanley, that you can remember, other than what you've told me about so far?
MR. MARKOWSKI: On that day?
MR. BEMIS: On that day, yes, March 18th.
Q. Let me re-ask the question again.
On March 18th, did you have any additional phone calls or face-to-face meetings with Morgan Stanley about the press release?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you have any more telephone conferences or face-to-face meetings with anyone at Sunbeam, whether it be Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Fannin, Mr. Uzzi, Ms. McDonald, anyone?
A. I told you everything that I recall of that day.
Q. Were you satisfied -- strike that.

In these conferences and face-to-face meetings as you've described them for us, you -- you were acting as legal counsel to Sunbeam, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you believe at the time, as their legal counsel, that the press release was accurate?
A. Yes.
Q. Based on the information that you had at the time?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there anyone, other than Mr. Dunlap -- withdrawn.
Did you ever speak to Mr. Goudis before the press release was issued about the subject of the press release?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall sending Mr. Goudis a copy of the press release by facsimile?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was there anyone on the Skadden Arps team that reviewed the press release, and you've identified Mr. Fernicola and Mr. Shehan as well as yourself, that echoed -- or I should say expressed any question about the content of the press release --

Page 131

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection.
Q. -- before it was issued?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Excuse me. Object to the form.
A. Anybody on the Skadden team?
Q. Yes. Let me put the question to you again since there was an objection. I don't know what it was, but let me ask it one more time.
Was there anyone on this Skadden team of lawyers, which I believe you've identified as Mr. Fernicola, Mr. Shehan and yourself, who participated in these calls who questioned the truthfulness of the press release as it was issued on March 19th?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Other than Mr. -- strike that.
As to -- in the group that you've identified or whether it be Morgan Stanley, whether it be Mr. Fannin, whether it be people at Skadden, was there anyone in that group at any point that expressed any dissent as to the need to issue a press release?

Page 132

A. The group consisting of Fannin, Skadden, Morgan Stanley, and Davis Polk?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. No dissent, that I recall.
Q. Did anyone within that -- withdrawn.
Let me show you now what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 39.
THE WITNESS: Do you need to mark this?
MR. BEMIS: That has been previously marked, sir.
Q. Sir, I've handed you what has previously been marked as a copy of the Sunbeam press release issued on March 19th, 1998. Have you seen that before, the press release?
A. I probably saw it, yes. I don't recall specifically.
Q. After the press release was issued, did you have any communications with anyone about the contents of the press release -- withdrawn.
Between March 19th and March 30th, 1998, did you have any communications with anyone from MacAndrews & Forbes about the press release?

Page 133

A. MacAndrews & Forbes?
Q. MacAndrews & Forbes, yes. And I would include within that Coleman.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you have any -- any communications with anyone between March 19th and March 30th, 1998 with anyone at Wachtell Lipton, the attorneys for Coleman and MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Between March 19th, 1998 and the closing on March 30th, did you have any communications with anyone from Credit Suisse First Boston about the press release?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Between March 19, 1998 and March 30, 1998, did you have any communications with anyone from Arthur Andersen about the press release?

A. Concerning the press release?
Q. The press release, yes, sir.
A. Yes.
Q. With who?
A. Mr. Dunlap.
Q. When did you speak to Mr. Dunlap next about the issuance of the press release which we've marked as MS 39?
A. It was either on March 19th or shortly thereafter.
Q. Was this a face-to-face call -- or withdrawn.
Was this a telephone call or a face-to-face meeting?
A. He called me.
Q. Were you in your office?

A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Did he tell you where he was?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Was anyone else on the line?
A. No, not -- not on my end.
Q. How long did the two of you speak?
A. Very shortly, very, very brief.
Q. What was the subject matter of the call, the press release?
A. He chewed me out for having forced him to make a press release.
Q. Did he use colorful language in chewing you out?
A. Not as colorful as on other occasions, although he did tell me that I was disloyal, that he could never rely on me in the future. And that I had sold him out down the river.
Q. What did you say to him?
A. I said, you're wrong, you had no choice, put it behind you and move on, or words to that effect.
Q. Was that the end of the conversation?
A. Yes.

Page 136

Q. Did you ever have any other -- withdrawn.
Did you ever have again a conversation with Mr. Dunlap about the March 19th press release?
A. Yes.
Q. When was that?
A. I remember it was at a board meeting later on.
Q. A board meeting of Sunbeam?
A. A board meeting of Sunbeam, yes.
Q. Was --
A. After the first quarter had been completed and the results -- or the then-purported results thereof had been publicly announced --
Q. Was --
A. -- in which I inquired --
Q. Excuse me.

And he responded by blaming the press release of March 19th saying that the press release of March 19th caused all his customers to believe that Sunbeam was in a desperate position and they could take all kinds of advantage of it, of Sunbeam.

Q. Obviously, this was a board meeting before Mr. Dunlap was terminated?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this -- was this the May board meeting in advance of the annual shareholders meeting on -- I think it was May 12th?
A. I don't remember which -- what date it was or --
Q. Did you respond at all to Mr. Dunlap's reasoning?
A. I didn't say a word after that about that subject.
Q. Was this statement made in front of the other board members?
A. Yes.
Q. Did any of the other board members say anything?
A. I think Russell Kersh echoed Al's views, but nobody else said anything, I don't recall.

Did you see the offering memorandum for the debentures before the actual purchase of the debentures by Morgan Stanley, which I believe the closing, if it helps you, is March 25, 1998.

Q. And a copy of the March 19th press release was -- withdrawn.
Let me show you a document marked in a previous deposition as CPH Exhibit 122.
A. Yes.
Q. Sir, have you -- you've seen this before, correct?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you review the disclosure of the information in the press release as -- before it was put in the offering memorandum under the caption, I believe it's "recent developments"?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Now, according to -- withdrawn.
These footers that appear on the document on both the left and the right-hand side, do you see those?

Page 140

A. Um-hum, yes.
Q. And now, this -- although they're slightly different numbers, do these numbers indicate to you that this document was printed from the server and on a Skadden Arps printer at your office here in New York?
A. Yes, they do.
Q. And do you know whose handwriting this is that appears on the document?
A. No, I don't. It's not mine.
Q. Did you see the offering -- withdrawn.
You were aware that -- you were aware that the press -- the press release, in substance, was -- included the offering memorandum for the debentures, right?
A. I was aware of it when I saw the offering memorandum after the fact. I don't know if I was aware of it at the time or before the offering memorandum was finalized. I'm not sure I focused on it at that point.
Q. Okay. Why don't you hand me that back and I'll just stick it back in the file. Thank you very much.
Did you attend any of the road shows for the debentures?

A. No.
Q. Did anyone from Skadden, to your knowledge, attend any of the road shows?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. There was a -- a due diligence call, sometimes referred to as a bring-down due diligence call, on or about March 24, 1998. Did you participate in that call?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you discuss the call with anyone?

A. Correct.

Q. And the offering memorandum for the debentures was something that was drafted by Skadden Arps, correct, for Sunbeam?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.

A. Yes, Skadden Arps or Sunbeam or both.

Q. Or both.

Let me show you what the reporter will mark as MS 530, which is an -- it's a portion of about a 1,000-page document, which is the closing binder for the debentures. For example, we didn't put the entire debenture offering memorandum in here, but we did include the entire tabs.

(Defendant's Exhibit 530, Sunbeam Corporation Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures Due 2018, dated 3/25/98, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. All right. Do you have Exhibit MS 530 in front of you?

A. Yes.

Page 144

Q. And was this document prepared by Skadden Arps? I recognize that I did not give you the full 1,000 pages, but everything behind the tabs and the indexes is complete.

A. The footers on the pages would indicate no, it wasn't.

Q. And who -- who would it indicate prepared it based on the footer?

A. I have no idea.

Q. Okay. Did -- there is -- if you will -- if you will look at -- I'm going to have to give you a page number here. First of all, you were -- you are, by definition, issuer's counsel, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you look at page -- if you look at page CPH and then -- the last -- the last three digits will be 379. Just look for 379 through 82.

A. 379.

Q. Through 82.

A. Through 82, yes.

Q. Now --

A. Wait a minute. Oh, yes, sorry. Yes.

Page 145

Q. This Schedule B is a list of documents that were to be -- which were to be delivered by the issuer, and the issuer in this case would be Sunbeam, correct?

A. Sunbeam is the issuer, yes.

Q. According to the -- the documents to be delivered, if you look at items -- item 9, it says "comfort letter from the accountants."

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And does -- am I correct that that indicates that an original copy of the comfort letter was to be provided to the issuer, and that is Sunbeam, right?

A. Original --

Q. As opposed to a copy?

A. Was to be provided to the issuer?

Q. Yes. Is that right?

A. And the issuer's counsel.

Q. Which would be?

A. And Morgan Stanley.

Q. And Morgan Stanley?

A. And Davis Polk.

Q. Let me ask the question again if you

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0183721

didn't get it.
Am I reading this correctly, sir, that a copy of the accountant's comfort letter, an original copy was to be provided to the issuer, which is Sunbeam; the issuer's counsel, which is Skadden Arps; the initial purchaser, which was Morgan Stanley; and the purchaser's counsel, which was Davis Polk?
A. That's what the document says.
Q. Now, did -- did -- at the time of the closing, which is shown as March 25, 1998, did Skadden Arps receive a copy of the accountant's comfort letter?
A. I don't know.
Q. Who would know? Would it be Mr. Fernicola?
A. Mr. Fernicola or Mr. Deitz.
Q. Attached to -- let me get the right page number for you. Just give me one second here. Turn to the page CPH 0628849.
A. It -- what's the last three?
Q. The last three digits are 849.
A. 849.
Q. It also has Skadden Arps Bates No. SASMF 03665.

Page 147

A. I have it.
Q. Now, this is the -- this is the comfort letter referred to in the index.
Did you -- did you ever see a copy of the comfort letter from the auditors that's in the closing binder for the debentures?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form.
A. Yes
Q. When did you first see it?
A. I saw it yesterday, but I don't recall whether I saw it before that or not.
Q. Now, Mr. -- do you recall any discussions with Mr. Fernicola between March 25th, 1998, the date of the closing of the debentures, and March 30, 1998, about the Arthur Andersen comfort letter that we've just identified in the closing binder, MS 530?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall any internal discussions at all at Skadden Arps about the contents of the comfort letter, which is attached to the March 25th, 1998 closing binder?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Am I correct, sir, that

Page 148

Mr. Fernicola would be the person at Skadden Arps who would be the most knowledgeable and the most -- about the debenture -- debenture closing and your -- Skadden's role as issuer's counsel for the debentures?
A. Mr. Fernicola and/or Mr. Alan Deitz.
Q. Who is the senior -- the most senior of those two gentlemen?
A. Mr. Fernicola.
Q. Mr. Deitz, at that time, reported to Mr. Fernicola, correct?
A. Correct.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Can I ask a question about how the document was put together? There's a page before this document. It has a No. 11 on it.
MR. BEMIS: Correct.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Is that the tab?
MR. BEMIS: It is. And the index is off by one.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Okay. This is -- your understanding is that's a copy of tab 11?
MR. BEMIS: It is correct. It was produced to us. I think they mis-indexed it, is what happened.

Page 149

MR. MARKOWSKI: Because the index does not tie to the tab in the document.
MR. BEMIS: It's off by one for that document or, maybe, off two at one point. But it is in the manner in which it was produced to us.
Q. If I -- if I've asked you this, I apologize. Mr. Fernicola, is he still with the firm?
A. Yes.
Q. Is he in this office in New York?
A. Um-hum, yes.
Q. Would you look at the handwriting on the first page, which appears to be Nick S. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who that is?
A. Nick S.?
Q. Yes.
A. I know a Nick S., but I don't know if it's him.
Q. Okay. Who is it -- who is the Nick S. that you know?
MR. MALLOY: If you know a Nick S.

0018373

Page 150

A. Nick Saggese.
Q. And who is that? Can you spell that for us?
A. S-A-G --
THE WITNESS: Two Gs?
MR. MALLOY: I don't know.
A. S-A-G-G-E-S-E, I believe. He's a partner in our Los Angeles office.
Q. Is he --
A. I don't know why his initials would be -- why his Nick S. would be on the cover page. I have no idea.
Q. Is he still in the Los Angeles office --
A. Yes.
Q. -- of Skadden Arps?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have any reason to believe, based on your review of the closing binder which was produced by Skadden in this case, that your firm did not have possession of the comfort letter from Arthur Andersen which we've identified -- withdrawn.
Do you have any reason to believe your firm did not have a copy of the comfort letter which we identified in MS 530 as of the date of the closing, March 25, 1998?

A. No reason to believe one way or the other.
Q. Is it customary as -- is it customary to prepare closing binders for something as -- like a debenture offering of a $2 billion face amount of securities?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it customary for your law firm to prepare the closing binder in the manner -- with the indexes such as we have looked at in MS 530?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it customary in a closing binder for a debenture offering, in which auditors issue comfort letters, to include the comfort letters within the closing binder?
A. I don't know, since I don't work on those kinds of things, but I would think so.
Q. Would you, please, look at the pages identified with the Bates numbers ending -- well, I'll tell you what. I'll use the Skadden Bates numbers. They will be a little shorter. Please look at the page beginning with the Skadden Arps Bates number 03767.

Page 152

A. 03767, yes.
Q. 03767. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. If you'll turn to the -- this -- this is a letter to Morgan Stanley addressed to Morgan Stanley in Skadden's capacity as special counsel to Sunbeam, right?
A. Yes, it's an opinion letter.
Q. It's an opinion letter, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And it's signed at the end, and the last page I see is 03775.
A. Yes.
Q. I have to confess the photocopy is pretty bad here, but is that signed Skadden Arps, just the firm's name? Is that how it's signed?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that the traditional manner in which your opinion letters are provided?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Now, according to -- who would have been responsible for preparing this opinion letter to Morgan Stanley?

Page 153

A. Greg Fernicola and his team.
Q. Okay. Would you ever view this letter before it was signed by Skadden Arps?
A. I might have, but I don't recall.
Q. Please turn to the page marked 03774, again, using the Skadden Arps Bates numbers.
A. Yes.
Q. If you'll look at the first -- the first paragraph, not the first full paragraph, but the --
A. Yes.
Q. Is -- there is language midway down that begins, "No facts." Would you please turn your attention to that.
A. Yes.
Q. Now, that language reads as follows: No facts have come to our attention that have led us to believe that the offering memorandum as of its date and as of the date hereof contained or contains an untrue statement of material fact or omitted or omits to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statements therein, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading, except that we express no opinion or belief with respect to the financial statements, schedules or other financial information -- excuse me -- financial and statistical data included therein or excluded therefrom.

Do you see that language?

A. I do.

Q. Is that language a customary language for an opinion letter of this type, assuming that nothing has come to your attention?

A. In my limited experience, yes. It's known as a 10(b)(5) opinion.

Q. That was my next question. Thank you.

All right. You may set this aside.

MR. BEMIS: It's 5 o'clock and we said we would break at 5:00. And I will easily finish tomorrow within the time frame that we have.

MR. SOLOVY: Whoa, whoa, whoa, say it a little louder.

MR. MALLOY: Yes.

MR. SOLOVY: You will easily finish?

Page 155

MR. BEMIS: I will finish within the time frame allotted for us tomorrow.

MR. SOLOVY: What does that mean?

MR. BEMIS: Well, without getting into an argument, you asked for one-half of the time.

MR. SOLOVY: Yes.

MR. BEMIS: We reserved a full day today. I've gone four hours.

MR. SOLOVY: Okay.

MR. BEMIS: So, therefore, I will finish within the allotted time that was given to me.

MR. SOLOVY: Well, let's do a little math, okay?

MR. BEMIS: I'm not going to do math with you.

MR. MALLOY: I want to hear the math.

MR. SOLOVY: Come on.

MR. MALLOY: You're going to finish in --

MR. SOLOVY: Give us a break here.

MR. MALLOY: We've given you a day and a half, and you agreed to take half of it, right?

MR. BEMIS: I didn't agree to that, but I'm not going to take more than that.

MR. MALLOY: It was represented to me that both parties could finish this deposition in a day and a half.

MR. BEMIS: We will -- we're going to finish it in a day and a half with me taking no more --

MR. MALLOY: Both paries.

MR. BEMIS: Well, I can't speak for them. I will take no more than one-half.

MR. SOLOVY: Well, let's figure out what the one-half is.

MR. BEMIS: Well, you figure it out and I may agree with you. But I will not take any more -- I'm not going to argue with you.

MR. MALLOY: Well, why don't you tell me when you expect to --

MR. BEMIS: What time are we going to start tomorrow, at 9 o'clock?

MR. SOLOVY: 9 o'clock, we're supposed to start.

MR. BEMIS: And I would expect -- I would expect to be done by 11 o'clock at the absolute latest tomorrow, which leaves you with six hours, Mr. Solovy, if my math is a correct.

MR. SOLOVY: Assuming everybody starves and doesn't eat lunch. Or we work past 5:00. That's what my math tells me.

Well, Mr. Malloy, you know, I address this issue to you. I mean, if we can go past 5:00 -- and that assumes, of course, that you'll have no redirect.

MR. BEMIS: We'll be done on time. Thank you very much, Mr. Fogg. It's nice to meet you finally.

MR. SOLOVY: Well, we're not satisfied with the way this is left, Mr. Malloy.

MR. BEMIS: You know, what would you like me to do?

MR. SOLOVY: I'm saying on the record, Mr. Bemis, to Mr. Malloy we're not satisfied with the way this is left in terms of treating us fairly.

MR. MALLOY: It's between you guys.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018375

MR. SOLOVY: Correct. But it's on the record. But you understand the Court's order that, if it's not done, it's their responsibility to reproduce the witness.

MR. BEMIS: I don't necessarily agree with any of that, but we are finished for the day.

MR. SOLOVY: Well, there's a court order. And the court order says what it says.

BLAINE FOGG, having been first duly sworn by the Notary Public, testified as follows:

EXAMINATION BY
MR. BEMIS:

Q. Good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Let me hand you MS 530 again, which is the closing binder abstract for the debentures that we looked at yesterday.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. I only have one question, and that is: Is that your handwriting, "Nick S," at the top?
A. No.
Q. Do you know whose it is?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Did Seggese -- is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Saggese work at all on the Sunbeam Coleman transaction?
A. Not to my knowledge. That is why I am surprised to see that on there.
Q. Let me show you a document that the court reporter, well, that we already have marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 616, but I ask the court reporter to initial this.

018379

Page 167

Would you take that, sir.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have Exhibit 616 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Is that your handwriting? Below memo from Finn Fogg.
A. It honestly doesn't look like it. It says memo from Finn Fogg, but that does not look like my handwriting.
Q. Were you working with Mr. Saggese on any matter around March 29th of 1998?
A. I have no recollection.
Q. All right. Can you hand that back to me.
A. March 29th was my birthday.
Q. I would say happy birthday, but it's not the 29th.
At any time after March -- withdrawn. We looked at the audit comfort letters yesterday in the context of the closing binder for the debentures, MS 530. I am now going to hand you a separate copy which has previously been marked as MS 9. That is the comfort letter dated March 19th, 1998.

A. Yes. I have it in front of me.
Q. Have you seen, have you ever seen --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Do you have a copy for me, Mr. --
A. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: Yes, I am getting it for you.
Q. Have you ever seen that document before?
A. I saw it two days ago.
Q. You have never seen it at all in the course -- strike that. Did you ever see the document at any time before March 30th, 1998, the closing date?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you ask to see it?
A. I don't recall.
Q. All right. Let me show you what has previously been marked, and would you hand those back to me. We are done with it.
MR. MALLOY: All right.
BY MR. BEMIS:
MR. MALLOY: I want to keep copies.

Page 169

Q. I will show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 10. Do you have that exhibit in front of you?
A. I do, sir.
Q. This is the March 25th, 1998 comfort letter, also included in MS 530, that we discussed yesterday. Have you seen this March 25th, 1998 comfort letter?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you see it in your preparation yesterday or the day before?
A. I don't recall.
MR. MALLOY: I think -- oh, we are not going to get into his prep session.
MR. BEMIS: He told me what he looked at just a moment ago. As to the other ones, I think it is an appropriate question, but he answered it.
Q. At any point before March 30th, 1998, did you see Morgan Stanley Exhibit 10, the March 25th, 1998 comfort letter?
A. I don't recall.
Q. At any time after March 30th, 1998, did anyone ask you or, to your knowledge, anyone at Skadden for a copy of either MS 9 or

Page 170

MS 10, the two comfort letters that we just looked at?
A. I don't recall.
Q. As you sit here today, your recollection is that the first time that you saw MS 9, which was the comfort letter of March 19th, was in your deposition preparation; is that correct?
A. That is the only time I recall seeing it.
Q. As you sit here today, you don't ever recall seeing MS 10, the comfort letter dated March 25th, 1998; correct?
A. My recollection is, I don't have any recollection of seeing it, before today.
Q. Okay. You can hand it back to me. Thank you.
Following the closing, did you review a press release that Sunbeam issued on April 3rd of 1998 announcing some of its first quarter results?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
Q. You can answer.
A. I have seen a lot of Sunbeam press

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018380

releases. I can't say that I did not review it. I can't say, sit here today and say that I did. If you show it to me, it may refresh my recollection.
Q. Let me show you what has been marked as MS 58. This is a press release dated April 3rd, 1998. The press release is attached behind the cover sheet.
A. Yes, I believe I have seen this before.
Q. Did you see it before it was issued?
A. I believe I did, yes.
Q. Please tell me what the circumstances were under which you saw the press release MS 58.
A. Well, I believe it was the night before this, and I was at home. It was, like, 9 or 10 o'clock at night, and David Fannin called me.
MR. MALLOY: Just, I caution you not to reveal the substance of that conversation, other than generally.
A. David Fannin called me to tell me more about events at Sunbeam.
Q. Did he discuss with you the press release attached to MS 58?

Page 172

A. I believe he did. He may have even faxed a copy to my home. I don't recall. But, yes, I believe he did.
Q. Did you discuss the fax release, on the telephone -- withdrawn. Did you discuss the press release in your telephone call with Mr. Fannin, the night before April 3rd?
A. I believe we discussed what's in the press release, the substance of what's in the press release. Whether we discussed the actual press release, I don't know. I don't recall.
Q. Was anyone else on the telephone call, other than yourself and Mr. Fannin?
A. Just the two of us.
Q. What did you say to Mr. Fannin and what did he say to you on the subject of the press release?
MR. MALLOY: I will instruct the witness not to answer on the grounds of attorney/client privilege.
Q. Did you discuss the April 3rd press release with anyone else, either in its draft form, as you looked at it on April 2nd, or in the form that it was eventually issued on April 3rd?

MR. MALLOY: Ever?
MR. BEMIS: Yes. Ever.
A. I believe that night, after I spoke to Fannin, I called Rich Easton, my partner in Delaware, and told him about it.
I remember, after it was issued, Bill Strong called me and we discussed it.
Q. This is Bill Strong from Morgan Stanley?
A. Correct.
Q. Who else did you speak to about the April 3rd press release, other than Mr. Easton and Mr. Strong and Mr. Fannin?
A. Those are the three conversations that stand out in my mind. I may have spoken to other people, I just don't recall.
Q. When did you speak -- withdrawn. My understanding is that you did speak to Mr. Easton that evening -that is, the evening of April 2nd?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Who was on the call, besides yourself and Mr. Easton?

Page 174

A. Just the two of us.
Q. How long did you talk?
A. I think it was pretty short.
Q. Did you send Mr. Easton a copy of the press release that Mr. Fannin had sent to you, as you --
A. I did not. Not that evening, I don't think.
Q. Did you read it to him what you had?
A. I don't recall if I -- I don't recall whether or not I had the actual draft of the press release. I told him about the events.
Q. The events including the termination of Mr. Uzzi?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you say to Mr. Easton and what did he say to you?
DI MR. MALLOY: We would consider that to be a privileged conversation, as well.
Q. When did you speak to --
MR. BEMIS: You are instructing him not to answer?
MR. MALLOY: Yes.
Q. When did you speak to Mr. Strong?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018381

A. I believe it was sometime in the afternoon of the day of the press release, which was April 3rd.
Q. Did you speak to him in person or on the telephone?
A. No. He called me.
Q. Did he call you at your office or your home?
A. Yes. At my office.
Q. How long did the two of you speak?
A. It may have been 15 minutes, maybe less. I can't really say.
Q. Was anyone else present on the telephone call, other than yourself and Mr. Strong?
A. Just the two of us, I believe.
Q. Would you believe this call took place on or about April 3rd, right after the issuance of the press release?
A. Sometime after the press release, and I believe on the same day of the press release.
Q. What did Mr. Strong say to you when he called you, on or about April 3rd?
A. In substance, and I can't quote him because it is, I don't remember exactly what he said, but he was saying that the press release has caused the marketplace to go crazy, and everybody thinks Sunbeam is in disarray, having put out a prior press release about the quarter and now, just two weeks plus later, having to announce that that was an inaccurate estimate.

The fact that Uzzi has been fired.
And I also think that, and I don't know if it is in the press release or not, that Rich Goudis had left Sunbeam. He was urging me to urge Dunlap to have an analyst conference call to quiet the marketplace and explain Sunbeam is still a viable company, et cetera, et cetera.
I told him that I thought such a message to Dunlap would carry more weight if it came from Bill Strong rather than from me.
Q. Did you say anything else at all in the call?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Were you concerned about the April 3rd press release?
A. Concerned?

Q. Yes.
A. Um --
Q. I will withdraw the question.
Did Mr. Strong appear concerned about the April 3rd press release?
A. Absolutely, yes.
Q. I think you used the term, he said the market was "in disarray"?
A. Yes. We were both concerned. I was concerned -- not about the press release, but about the company, what was really going on.
Q. Before April 3rd, did you have any foreshadowing of the results that were going to be announced on April 3rd?
A. None whatsoever.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. David Fannin call the night before, hit me out of the blue, and I was in shock to hear this.
Q. You referred to "this." Are you referring to Sunbeam's results for the first quarter?
A. That, the firing of Uzzi and, I believe, the leaving of Goudis.

Q. Based on your telephone call with Mr. Strong and the tone of voice that you heard from Mr. Strong, did you conclude that Mr. Strong was of the same state of mind?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. Yes. I was concerned, as I previously testified, that this press release was causing havoc in the marketplace, ah, and he wanted to see if that situation could be addressed.
Q. What if -- withdrawn. Is there anything else that you can recall today, as you sit here, about the telephone call with Mr. Strong, on or about April 3rd?
A. No. Not really.
Q. Did you make any notes of the phone call?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you create any memoranda about the phone call at a later time?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you make any follow-up phone calls to anyone, or after the April 3rd call with Mr. Strong? For example, you called

Page 179

Mr. Easton, earlier -- when Mr. Fannin called you --
A. Nothing stands out in my mind today. I don't recall. I may have called Fannin. I may have called Easton. I may have called both of them, but I don't really remember.
Q. Did you call Mr. Dunlop?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did he call you about the April 3rd press release -- that is, Mr. Dunlap?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall speaking to him about it, but I may have.
Q. Did you speak to anyone else at Morgan Stanley about the April 3rd press release, other than Mr. Strong, in this call on April 3rd?
A. I remember the morning of April 3rd noticing that the press release hadn't been issued, the stock was trading, as the day went on.
Um, I spoke to Rich Easton. We both got very nervous that this information should be out.
MR. MALLOY: Wait a minute.
THE WITNESS: I am sorry.

Page 180

A. I spoke to Easton and Fannin about the fact that the press release, that there seemed to be some delay in the issuance of the press release.
Q. Was it ever, did the presses release, at some point, get issued on April 3rd?
A. I believe it did.
Q. Did you ever hear from any source as to the reason there was any delay in issuing the presses release?
MR. MALLOY: In a non-privileged context.
MR. BEMIS: Just Yes or No at this point.
MR. MALLOY: You are asking him for the substance of a --
MR. BEMIS: I asked him if he learned the reason, not what the reason was, not who said it to him, not when, but whether he knows, Yes or No, and then I will follow up on that.
A. Yes.
Q. When did you learn the reason?
A. Sometime in April 3rd, in a conversation with David Fannin.

Page 181

Q. Was anyone else on the call?
A. No. I don't think so.
Q. Did Mr. Fannin give you the reason for the delay?
A. Yes.
Q. What time of day was the press release issued?
A. I don't remember.
Q. How late in the day was it?
A. I believe it got out, I don't remember -- I am not even sure that it made it out in the morning. I don't recall.
Q. What did Mr. Fannin say about the reason for the delay in issuing the press release?
DI MR. MALLOY: I instruct you not to answer that question on the grounds of attorney/client privilege.
Q. Was Mr. Fannin seeking your legal advice in telling you the reason for the delay?
A. No.
Q. What did Mr. Fannin say to you about the delay in issuing the press release?

Page 182

MR. MALLOY: Let me talk to the witness.
MR. BEMIS: No. I don't want you to talk to him. I object to you talking to the witness in the middle of an examination when the witness has just said he wasn't giving legal advice.
MR. MALLOY: I need to be satisfied of that before he answers the question on the record.
MR. BEMIS: All right. I don't agree with it, but obviously you are his attorney and you can speak to him.
Off the record.
(Discussion off the record.)
MR. MALLOY: I will stand by my instruction.
A. I must clarify a prior answer. It was in the context of my giving legal advice.
Q. After the -- withdrawn.
Was the conversation that you had with Mr. Strong before or after the press release was issued on April 3rd?
A. Was my conversation with --
Q. With Bill Strong.

Page 183

A. It was after the press release was issued, I believe.
Q. Did you speak to anyone at Sunbeam, other than Mr. Fannin, after the press release was issued -- withdrawn.
Did you speak to anyone else, other than Mr. Fannin, about the reason for what you referred to as the delay in issuing the April 3rd press release?
A. I believe I spoke to Rich Easton about it.
Q. Other than Mr. Easton, anyone else?
A. I don't recall any such conversation.
Q. Did you speak to anyone at Wachtel Lipton about the April 3rd press release, either before or after it was issued?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Anyone at Credit Suisse First Boston?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Anyone at Arthur Andersen?
A. I don't recall.

Page 184

Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Uzzi again after the phone call on March 18th?
A. I don't recall any such conversation.
Q. Did you ever speak to Deborah McDonald again, after the phone call on March 18th?
A. I may have, but I am not sure.
Q. After the April 3rd press release, did you ever receive from anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes a request for any information concerning Sunbeam's results of operations for the first quarter of 1998?
A. I am not sure how to answer the question.
There were many, many discussions involving people at MacAndrews & Forbes about Sunbeam's operations, including the first quarter of 1998, which took place at a later time than what we are talking about.
Q. Is this after the change in management at Sunbeam in June of 1998?
A. Correct.
Q. Let me focus the time period and may I, I would like to use June 15th, just as a marker point for us for the point, the change of management. Is that a fair date for you to use?

A. The record would show what date it was. Is that the date of the board meeting?
Q. The board meeting, I think, was on June 13th, and I think -- that is when Mr. Dunlap was terminated, and I think Mr. Levin was hired, I think, on June 14th and 15th. Within a day.
A. That is a Sunday? That is the right day.
Q. We will use that day, subject to correction. I will just ask you a question, posted between March 30th, and June 15th, 1998. Did you ever speak to anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes on the matter of any request for financial information about Sunbeam's operations in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I have no recollection of any such conversation.
Q. The same question with regard to Wachtel Lipton.
A. I don't recall.

Page 186

Q. And the same question with regard to Credit Suisse First Boston.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Ernst & Young?
A. I don't recall.
Q. During that same, period March 30th, 1998, up to and including, say, June 15th, 1998, did you ever receive any request for information about Sunbeam on any subject from MacAndrews & Forbes, whether it be financial information, who is who in management?
A. I don't recall.
Q. The same question with regard to Wachtel Lipton.
A. I don't recall.
Q. The same question with regard to Credit Suisse First Boston.
A. The same answer: I don't recall.
Q. The same question with regard to Ernst & Young.
A. I don't recall.
Q. After your conversation with Mr. Strong, on or about April 3rd, 1998, following the issuance of the press release, did you have any further communications with him, say, up through June 15th, about Sunbeam?

018384

A. I don't remember.
Q. Any communications with anyone at Morgan Stanley in that time period, between April 3rd and June 15th, 1998, about, again, Sunbeam?
A. I really don't remember. I am trying to remember. There was a, there was an analyst meeting at some point at which Sunbeam executives made presentations and I am, I don't know if Morgan Stanley -- I can't remember if Morgan Stanley was there or not, or if I talked to them or not. It is very possible. I don't remember.
Q. Are you referring to the analyst meeting on May 11th, 1998 that you attended?
A. I am referring to analyst meeting in the time frame previously indicated, um, which I attended, and I don't remember the date specifically.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap speak at this analyst meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this the only analyst meeting that you can recall taking place in the period between April 30th, 1998 and June 15th, 1998?

A. It is the only one I attended.
Q. Okay.
Short of the analyst -- excuse me, withdrawn.
Excluding this analyst meeting, do you have any recollection of any communication of any kind with anyone from Morgan Stanley, whether it be written or oral or electronic, between April 3rd, 1998 and June 15th, 1998?
A. I don't have any recollection.
Q. Do you have any recollection of anyone at Skadden Arps having any such communication with Morgan Stanley, even though you did not, personally, have it?
A. I don't have any recollection.
Q. Do you have any recollection, as you sit here today, of MacAndrews & Forbes, at any period during the negotiations of the merger agreements and up to the closing on March 30th, 1998, requesting copies of Sunbeam's interim financial statements for any period in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I don't have any recollection.
Q. Do you have any recollection -- strike that.

To your knowledge, did anyone from Credit Suisse First Boston make any request for the interim financial statements of Sunbeam for any period in the first quarter of 1998 during the negotiation of the merger agreements and up to and including their closing on March 30th, 1998?
A. I don't know.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection. Lack of foundation.
MR. BEMIS: What was his answer?
(Record read.)
Q. To your knowledge, did any representative of Ernst & Young, the accounting firm, make any request that you are aware of for Sunbeam's interim financial statements for any period in 1998 during the negotiations of the merger agreements, up to and including their closing on March 30th, 1998?
A. I don't have any. I don't recall.
Q. Did anyone from the law firm of Wachtel Lipton make any request that you are aware of for copies of Sunbeam interim financial statements for any period during the first quarter of 1998, either during the negotiations of the merger agreements or in the period up to and including their closing on March 30th, 1998?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't recall.
Q. What, if any, involvement did you have with Sunbeam -- strike that.
You did continue to represent Sunbeam after the April 3rd, 1998 press release; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your involvement, if any, with Sunbeam between the April 3rd, 1998 press release and the analyst meeting, which, for the record, fairly shows was May 11th, 1998?
A. I don't remember what I did for Sunbeam during that period. I believe -- I mean -- at some point in that general time frame there was a big meeting with Sunbeam people and their consultants from one of the accounting firms.
Q. Coopers & Lybrand?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018385

Page 191

A. I think it was Coopers. And I was invited to that all-day meeting, which was for the purpose of talking about restructuring Coleman, the other companies Sunbeam had acquired, et cetera. An all-day meeting, management presentations, consultants presentations.

I said and did very little at that meeting. There was also a board meeting somewhere in that time frame. I just can't pinpoint it, sitting here today.

Q. Let me show you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley 535, first.

A. Thank you. I have it, yes, I have read it.

Q. Did you receive a copy of this memorandum, as shown on the CC lines at the bottom-left-hand corner?

A. I probably did, yes.

Q. There are several meetings referred to in this memorandum.

A. Yes.

Q. Let me ask you: Do you recognize this as being a document received from David Fannin, based on the signatures that appear at the left top?

A. Yes.

Q. There are several meetings referred to, and one is a meeting concerning some presentations by Coopers & Lybrand; do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. You did refer to a meeting concerning Coopers & Lybrand, that Coopers & Lybrand appeared at and there were presentations. Is the meeting that you were testifying to the meeting that is identified in MS 535?

A. Um, the first meeting that is identified in MS 535 is a meeting of the board of directors of Sunbeam to be held on May 6th.

Q. Correct.

A. 1998. There was a prior meeting. Not a board meeting, but a prior meeting with Sunbeam management and Coopers & Lybrand, at Coopers & Lybrand, which I attended, previous to the board meeting.

Q. And then there was also a board meeting; correct?

A. Yes.

Page 193

Q. And after the board meeting -- withdrawn.

Was the board meeting on May 6th, 1998, as reflected in MS 535?

A. To the best of my recollection, it was -- yes, somewhere around there. I think the record speaks for itself.

Q. I have the minutes of the meeting, so I will not -- it is not a guessing contest. The Coopers & Lybrand meeting preceded the board meeting, as best you recall?

A. Yes.

Q. And then, following the board meeting, there was the analyst meeting?

A. Yes. Three meetings. I attended all three.

Q. Did you attend the annual meeting of the stockholders of Sunbeam on May 12th?

A. I don't remember.

Q. All right. Focusing now on the --

A. Excuse me. If as this document indicated it was in South Florida, I don't believe I did.

Q. Okay. Focusing on the Coopers & Lybrand meeting, first in the sequence, did anyone from Morgan Stanley attend that meeting?

A. I believe so, but I don't recall specifically who.

Q. Do you recall if anyone did attend, and what, if anything, the Morgan Stanley representative said?

A. No. I don't remember who said what at that meeting.

Q. Were the results of Sunbeam's operations for the first quarter, that is financial results discussed at this meeting?

A. I don't recall. The focus of the meeting was how can we restructure Sunbeam and these acquired companies, position the company for moving forward, et cetera. The focus of the meeting was on the future.

Q. Did Mr. Dunlap speak at the meeting?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Where was this meeting?

A. At Coopers, I believe.

Q. It was at Coopers.

A. In New York.

Q. In New York. Who attended on behalf of Sunbeam, besides Mr. Dunlap?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0183386

Page 195

A. There were a lot of people. Russ Kersh was there. David Fannin was there. I remember a fellow name Frank Ferako was there. He had just been hired.
There were a bunch of other people, and I don't remember exactly.
Q. Did anyone from Skadden Arps attend. Other than yourself?
A. I think I was a Lone Ranger at that meeting.
Q. Do you remember any of the individuals from Coopers & Lybrand who were at the meeting?
A. There was a whole troop. I don't remember the guy's name who was in charge, but he was Al Dunlap's go-to guy for restructuring.
Q. Does Bennett ring a bell?
A. Who? It doesn't ring a bell.
Q. How long did this meeting last?
A. It was, like, all day.
Q. Were there any -- were there documents that were handed out at the meeting?
A. I think there were all kinds of documents.

Page 196

Q. Slides, decks?
A. I don't remember slides or decks, but there were all kinds of documents.
Q. What was your role at the meeting?
A. I had no idea why I was invited to the meeting. I sat there and listened.
Q. How did the meeting come to a conclusion?
A. They decided to move forward and presented to the board some kind of a restructuring plan, the details of which I no longer recall.
Q. Did you attend the board meeting where those details were presented?
A. I did.
Q. Let me show you the minutes of the board of directors meeting, which we will mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 614. I handed you what the reporter has marked for us as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 614. Do you have that in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. Okay. Have you seen this document before?
A. Probably, but I don't have any specific recollection of having done so.

Page 197

Q. While you represented Sunbeam, was it customary for you to receive copies of the board of directors minutes?
A. Um, not all of them. I mean, sometimes I did and sometimes I did not.
Q. You are shown as being in attendance in the second paragraph of the minutes of May 6th, 1998. Do you see that?
A. I was there.
Q. You were there.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend the entire meeting?
A. I was there from the opening gavel until the board said let's adjourn. Yes.
Q. On page 5 --
A. Faith Wittlesey was late.
Q. Why is it that you remember that?
A. Because when she walked in maybe 20 minutes late, Mr. Dunlap dressed her down in front of the whole board and said that if she couldn't come on time, she should leave the board.
Q. Did she respond?
A. Not really.

Page 198

Q. Did any of the other directors respond?
A. I don't think anybody said anything at that point. Burnett, not Bennett, Burnett, that is the guy.
Q. I apologize. I thought that is what it was after I told you Burnett.
A. You told me Bennett.
Q. Excuse me. We were both close.
A. Right.
Q. Turn to page 5, please, under the heading "first quarter."
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Kersh make a presentation to the board of directors about the results of Sunbeam's operations for the first quarter, including an analysis of the reason for any shortfall in the results?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember his presentation, other than what is written in the minutes?
A. No.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
Q. Do you remember anything at all that

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Mr. Kersh said about the first quarter operations of Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you remember that he said?
A. Let me just pause for a minute. Is this privileged?
MR. MALLOY: Can you read back the question.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: Actually, I testified about it yesterday.
Q. Not only that, the minutes reflect that, if it was privileged, it would have been redacted like the rest of the minutes were redacted. I am not your lawyer. I think you did --
MR. MALLOY: I think you are on safe ground.
A. Well, I remember asking the question as to why, wasn't it a fact that the first quarter was bad because the customers weren't buying the product. And both Dunlap and Kersh responding by saying that press release on March 19th put us in a terribly weak position and the customers took advantage of us.

Q. This is the conversation, I believe, you related to us yesterday?
A. Yes. Correct.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Dunlap saying anything else?
A. No.
Q. I believe yesterday you said that Mr. Kersh echoed Mr. Dunlap; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Kersh saying anything else?
A. No. Not really.
Q. Did the board of directors say anything in response to Mr. Dunlap's explanation?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you say anything else?
A. No, I don't think I did.
Q. Do you recall anyone else at the meeting making any other comments or asking any questions about the first quarter results, other than what you have described to us?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley make any statements at the meeting that you remember?

A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. Did you have any discussions, at or about the time of the meeting, with anyone from Morgan Stanley? Again, about the matters of the meeting.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was the Coopers & Lybrand meeting and the discussion of the restructuring efforts discussed with the board of directors?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. What was discussed on that subject?
A. I believe the general parameters of the restructuring plan proposal was presented to the board by Coopers & Lybrand.
Q. Did the board ask any questions?
A. I believe that they did, yes, but I don't recall what they were.
Q. All right.
A. Or who asked them specifically.
Q. Mr. Easton is shown in the minutes as attending the meeting.
A. He was there.
Q. Did you, at the meeting, provide any legal advice to the company?

A. I don't recall doing so.
Q. Did Mr. Easton provide any legal advice?
A. I don't recall him doing so.
MR. BEMIS: You may hand that back to me. Thank you.
MR. MALLOY: Off the record.
(Discussion off the record.)
THE REPORTER: Is this confidential?
MR. MALLOY: Yes. We are designating yesterday's transcript as confidential, as well.
MR. BEMIS: We are going to challenge that, since we are on the record.
Q. I am handing you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 115 at an earlier deposition. Do you have that in front of you, sir?
A. I do.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. Yes.
Q. What were the circumstances under which you first saw the document?
A. It was -- in which I first saw it.

I don't remember. But I did see it before it was issued. And I discussed it with Rich Easton and I discussed it with David Fannin and I discussed it with the people at the PR firm of Sard Verbinnen.

The first word is S-A-R-D, George Sard and Maureen Bailey.

Q. Did you draft the press release?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Do you know who drafted it?

A. No. But I think it was somebody at the company and/or George Sard's firm.

Q. How did you first -- withdrawn.

Did I hear you correctly that you believe you saw a draft of it before it was issued?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you receive the draft?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you speak to Mr. Easton alone about the press release?

A. I believe Rich and I discussed it before we talked to Fannin and Sard and Bailey.

Q. Did you talk to --

MR. MALLOY: I would just note that we consider those conversations to be privileged.

Q. Did you --

MR. MALLOY: I will caution the witness not to go into the substance of those conversations.

THE WITNESS: I am sorry, I need a clarification. The substance of all of those conversations?

MR. MALLOY: We will let Mr. Bemis establish the nature of the conversations, and then we will take a -- we will take them one by one.

A. Okay.

Q. Are we all set?

You spoke as to Mr. Easton first about the draft of Morgan Stanley 115; right?

A. I did, yes.

Q. Just now I want to go through the sequence, so that I understand who was present. You then had a -- did you then have a conference with Mr. Fannin and Maureen Bailey?

A. I believe Easton and I then spoke probably with Fannin alone first, and then with Fannin and George Sard and Maureen Bailey, and it may be that Dunlap and/or Kersh were at Sard Verbinnen and in the room for that call. I don't remember. All of these were phone calls.

Q. Was the conversation with Mr. Easton a phone call?

A. Correct. Yes.

Q. When you spoke to Mr. Easton, did you have a draft of the press release?

A. Yes. We both did.

Q. Okay.

When you spoke to Mr. Fannin, he had a draft of the press release, as well?

A. He was at Sard Verbinnen and they were creating a press release there, as I recall.

Q. But you did speak to him separately before you spoke to the larger group, Mr. Fannin, Ms. Maureen Bailey --

A. That is my recollection, yes.

Q. And possibly Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you and Mr. Easton say to each other when you first spoke about the press release?

MR. MALLOY: I will instruct you not to answer that question on the grounds of attorney/client privilege.

Q. Were you asked -- had you been asked to review the press release?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked to give legal advice about the press release?

A. I was asked to comment on it.

Q. Were you asked to comment on legal matters, as opposed to business matters?

A. Yes. I think the text of the press release is both business and legal.

Q. This was now, at least the third press release that you identified that you either reviewed or helped create, correct, because you looked at the March 19th press release, you helped write the March 19th press release, and you also assisted in some fashion with the April 3rd press release; correct?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.

MR. MALLOY: I object to that question. It mischaracterizes his testimony.
A. I would correct that in that, yes, with respect to the March 19th press release, as I testified at great length yesterday, I was involved in the creation of that press release.
Q. Okay. You also --
A. With respect to the April --
Q. Excuse me.
A. With respect to the April 3rd press release, my involvement simply was to get a phone call to Mr. Fannin at home, the night before it was issued, telling me --
MR. MALLOY: Well --
A. Here is what happened and here is what is being issued.
Q. You were asked to comment on it?
A. I was.
Q. You asserted an attorney/client privilege to your conversation with Mr. Fannin; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You refused to tell me what was said?

MR. MALLOY: He was instructed not to answer.
A. I was asked not to comment on it.
Q. You met with your counsel out in the hall and came back in and said you would not tell me what was said; is that correct?
A. I do remember that.
Q. Let's move forward -- let's go forward to the April -- excuse me, the May 11th press release, 1998, and your testimony is that you are giving both business and legal advice to Sunbeam; correct?
A. No. I give legal advice.
Q. All right. I thought I heard you say that you were, your advice was both business and legal.
MR. MALLOY: He did not say that.
Q. If I misheard him, I misheard him. I don't wish to suggest otherwise.
A. I believe I said that the press release is both a business matter and a legal matter.
Q. You were giving legal advice to Sunbeam on the contents of their press release of May 11th; correct?

A. Correct.
Q. All right. You did that first in a conversation with Mr. Easton; right?
A. Mr. Easton and I -- we got our comments together on the press release.
Q. These were your legal comments?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And then, the next thing that happens is -- well, just so we can close the record on this -- what did you and Mr. Easton say to each other?
MR. MALLOY: I have instructed him not to answer that question already.
MR. BEMIS: Okay.
Q. Let's move on, then, to the next telephone call on -- and that is between you and Mr. Fannin.
A. And Mr. Easton, I believe.
Q. I did not realize that he was on that call. Sorry.
A. I think so.
Q. Again, was this on May 11th, the same day? Withdrawn.
Were all these conversations on May 11th, or were they before May 11th?

A. I don't remember. I think they were before May 11th.
Q. But close to May 11th?
A. Yes. Between the board meeting and the issuance of the press release sometime.
Q. What did you say to Mr. Fannin in this three-way call between yourself, Mr. Easton and Mr. Fannin?
MR. MALLOY: I will instruct you not to answer that question, on the grounds of privilege.
Q. What did Mr. Easton say?
MR. MALLOY: Same instructions.
Q. What did Mr. Fannin say?
MR. MALLOY: Same instruction.
Q. And then, after this conversation between Messrs. Fannin, Easton and yourself, there was another phone call which you have identified with the Maureen Bailey and -- Sard, is it Michael Sard?
A. George Sard.
Q. George Sard. Sorry. George Sard. And possibly Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh; correct?

Page 211

A. Correct.
Q. How long did that conversation last?
A. It was not a long conversation.
Q. On the press release again; correct?
A. Yes, correct.
Q. What did you say in the telephone call?
DI MR. MALLOY: Same instruction. I instruct you not to answers on the grounds of privilege.
Q. Were you on this telephone call providing legal advice to George Sard and Maureen Bailey and Mr., Messrs. Fannin, Dunlap and Kersh?
A. Yes, we were.
Q. Was Mr. Easton, by the way, on this call?
A. Yes, I believe he was.
Q. How long did the six of you speak?
A. I am not sure that Dunlap and Kersh were involved in the phone call. I am not sure that they were at Sard Verbinnen.
I think I heard. I think one of them said something, but just with that amendment. The call was not a long call, maybe ten minutes.

Page 212

Q. Was your legal advice followed?
A. No.
Q. Did you and/or you and Mr. Easton make specific legal recommendations as to the text of the press release which we have identified as MS 115?
DI MR. MALLOY: I will instruct him not to answer that question on the grounds of privilege.
Q. What was the general subject matter of the advice that you gave them at the meeting, without telling me what the specific advice was that was rejected?
A. Generally, it was about the text of the press release.
Q. Did Sunbeam accept any of your recommendations?
MR. MALLOY: You can answer that Yes or No.
A. Yes.
Q. And they rejected others?
A. Other.
Q. Other. Did you document in any way in your files the legal advice that was rejected by Sunbeam?

Page 213

A. I don't recall doing so.
Q. Was anyone at Morgan Stanley on any of these calls leading up to the issuance of the May 11th press release?
A. Not to the best of my recollection.
Q. Did you consult with anyone at Morgan Stanley about the legal advice that you gave Sunbeam in these various phone calls concerning MS 115?
A. I don't recall doing so.
Q. Was there any delay in issuing the March, excuse me, May 11th press release, similar to what you recall of the April 3rd --
A. I don't recall any such delay.
Q. Did you then attend the May 11th analyst meeting that Mr. Dunlap spoke at?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend the entire meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you say anything at the analyst meeting?
A. Nothing.
Q. How would you describe the meeting?
A. It was a typical analyst meeting.

Page 214

Management, Dunlap, Kersh and others made presentations and the analysts asked questions.
Q. Anything unusual about the questions or the answers?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. There was one analyst who asked some very pointed questions and Mr. Dunlap got very, very heated and dressed him down and called him irresponsible in front of the whole group.
I don't think I have ever seen that before or after in an analyst conference.
Q. Who was the analyst; do you know?
A. I don't recall, sitting here today. I think it was Andrew-something.
Q. Andrew Shore?
A. Andrew-something.
Dunlap kept pointing a finger at him, saying, Andrew you don't know what you are talking about, you are irresponsible, etc., etc.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Dunlap about the analyst meeting after it took place?

A. I don't recall doing so.
Q. Did you witness any confrontation between Mr. Shore and Mr. Dunlap at the end of the meeting?
A. I saw it from a distance, that the two of them were engaged in what appeared to be an argument, but I did not really witness it.
Q. Did you hear about it?
A. I think so, but I don't remember who told me what or when.
Q. Attached to the press release of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 111 are the -- are the results as presented?
A. 115 or 111?
Q. I may have misspoke. Let me look here. 115. Let me ask the question again.
Do you have Exhibit 115 in front of you?
A. I do.
Q. If you would turn to the last three pages, as certain condensed consolidated financial information.
A. Yes.

Q. Do you see it?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see that information in the draft press release that you reviewed before May 11th?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Referring to specifically the third to the last page, bearing the Bates number 0063809, would you look at that, please.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The net sales figures that appear at the top under the headings March 31st, 1998, and March 30th, 1997, do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. When was the first time that you -- strike that.
Had you seen these figures before?
A. I don't remember. The April 3rd press release addressed, in general, this topic. But I don't think it had the figures in there.
Q. Okay. You may set this document aside. We are done with it. You can hand it back.
MR. MALLOY: Are you going to wrap up now?

MR. BEMIS: Shortly.
Q. Did you see the article that appeared in the June 6th, 1998 Barron's magazine?
A. Yes.
Q. What were the circumstances under which you saw it?
A. I think Mr. Fannin called me.
Q. Had you seen the article at the time that Mr. Fannin called you?
A. No.
Q. Let me show you a copy of the document, just so that you have it, the letter -- the one that I will show you is a printout, because the large copy doesn't photocopy very well. I will hand you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 74.
A. Yes, sir, I have it in front of me.
Q. At the time you had spoken to Mr. Fannin, had you seen the article in Barron's, MS 74?
A. No. He called and told me about it.
Q. Did he send it to you or did you go out and buy a copy?

A. I think I wandered over to my nearest newsstand and picked it up. It was a weekend, if I recall.
Q. What did Mr. Fannin say to you about the article when you spoke to him on the telephone?
A. He said it is a damaging article and I aught to see it.
Q. Not having seen it, what did you say?
A. I said that I will go get a copy.
Q. Did your read the article after you purchased the Barron's?
A. As soon as I bought it.
Q. Did you speak to Mr. Fannin or anyone else at Sunbeam after that?
A. Sure. Yes.
Q. Did you speak to Mr. Easton about it?
A. I believe so. I don't recall exactly whom I spoke to and when I spoke to them, but there were a lot of conversations about that article.
Q. Did you have a conversation,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

conversations with people at Sunbeam?
A. Other than Mr. Fannin, I don't believe so.
Q. Did you attend the board meeting on June 9th, 1998, at which time the Barron's article was discussed?
A. I did.
Q. Were you asked to attend the board meeting by Mr. Fannin?
A. Yes.
Q. I will show you a copy of the minutes of that meeting, which have been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 605.
Now, you -- I think you said that the article, that Mr. Fannin said that the article in Barron's MS 74 was quite damaging. Did I hear you correctly?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was your reaction to the article in Barron's when you read it?
A. It seemed quite damaging.
Q. Is it fair to say that you agreed with Mr. Fannin' assessment?
A. Yes.

Q. Was it is board meeting -- strike that.
You did attend the board meeting, and I have now handed you the minutes of that meeting, MS 605, for June 9th, 1998.
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen the minutes of the meeting, MS 605, before that are signed by Mr. Fannin?
A. Probably, but I don't recall when.
Q. Did the minutes of the meeting, based on your attendance of the meeting, fairly and actually summarize the meeting?
A. Let me read them.
Q. Please do so.
A. Yes. But, with respect to the stuff on page 2, I was not there during that portion of the meeting; so, I can't comment on whether that is an accurate summary or not.
Q. All right. Let's limit --
A. I was told that that is what happened. The earlier part, in very broad outlines, appears to be an accurate summary.
Q. You were there with your partner Mr. Easton; right?

A. Yes.
Q. And at this meeting there is also shown in attendance Phil Harlow of Arthur Andersen; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you understand or -- did you know who -- withdrawn.
Did you know who Mr. Harlow was?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was he?
A. I am not sure if I had met him before, but I knew he was the partner in charge of the Sunbeam audit at Arthur Andersen.
Q. When you saw the partner in charge, is that like you being the partner in charge of the Sunbeam account here at Skadden at the time for the Coleman transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
A. I don't know. I -- I don't know what exactly the partner in charge of an audit does; so, I can't really answer that.
Q. Did Mr. Harlow use the term "partner in charge," or how did you --

A. No. I just -- I used the term, that is what I thought of him as, um, and I don't know that he ever said it to me, he was the point man at Arthur Andersen with respect to Sunbeam.
Q. Did he speak at the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. He is reported to have stated in the third paragraph, from the bottom of the minutes: "Mr. Harlow stated that after having reviewed the Barron's article and management's position, Arthur Andersen stood by its opinion with respect to the corporation's 1997 audited financial statements." Do you see that sentence?
A. I do.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Harlow saying that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Was there any hesitation in his voice when he said that?
A. None whatsoever.
Q. Did you sense any hesitation in his body language at the meeting?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.

A. No. He was unequivocal.
Q. Did you have any reason to believe that Arthur Andersen was going to later, within weeks, withdraw its opinion as to Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements?
A. Not at that time.
Q. What was your reaction when Arthur Andersen withdrew its opinion as to Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements?
A. I was quite surprised.
Q. Were you shocked?
A. I am not sure I would characterize it as shocked. I was surprised.
Q. Did the board ask any questions of Arthur Andersen and Mr. Harlow at the meeting of June 9th?
A. Yes, I think so.
Q. It refers to numerous questions being asked.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you recall any of the questions being asked of Mr. Harlow?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form of the question.

Page 224

A. I believe I recall the areas of some of the questions.
Q. What were the areas?
A. The gist of some of the questions.
Q. What were the gist of the questions that you recall?
A. Um, well Mr. Harlow, what about bill and hold, was that appropriate. That was one area that they talked about.
Q. What did he say?
A. He was responded in the affirmative.
Q. Any other questions that you recall?
A. Not specifically, but there were numerous questions. I don't remember who asked them or exactly what they were, but --
Q. Were they questions that tracked some of the allegations in the Barron's article, MS 74?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you ask any questions of Mr. Harlow?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did Mr. Easton?
A. I don't recall. There were a lot of questions by a lot of people, and I don't know if I chimed in or Rich chimed in. I just don't remember.

Page 225

Q. Do you recall anyone from Morgan Stanley being present at the meeting?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Did you leave the meeting after the discussion of the Barron's article?
A. Um, there was a discussion of the Barron's article. There was a discussion with Harlow about the 1997 audited statements. There was a discussion about the second quarter brief discussion -- and that, after that, I believe the outsiders were asked to leave, nonboard members. The board members and Fannin stayed and the rest of the people were excused.
Q. What do you recall about the discussions of the second quarter?
A. I recall myself asking Dunlap and Kersh and whoever else were, management was there, how the second quarter is going.
Q. What did they say?
A. I believe Mr. Kersh said it is a little soft. And no one followed up on that.
Q. Was there any discussion of

Page 226

Sunbeam's -- withdrawn.
Was the next board meeting that you attended of Sunbeam, the board meetings that took place over the weekend, I believe the second week of June, where Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Kersh were terminated?
A. Mr. Kersh was not terminated over that week, only Mr. Dunlap.
Q. Then I misspoke. Is that -- is the meeting where Mr. Dunlap was terminated the next meeting that you attended?
A. Yes. The next meeting of the board, yes.
Q. Between the June 9th, 1998 board meeting and Mr. Dunlap's termination, what was your next involvement with Sunbeam?
A. I remember a telephone conversation, telephone conversations with Fannin and with Peter Langerman.
Q. When was this?
A. Between those dates that you just gave.
Q. What was the subject matter of those telephone conversations?

MR. MALLOY: Generally.
A. Generally, I think one of them told me or -- I don't remember who or maybe both of them told me.
MR. MALLOY: I caution you not to get into who said what, because we consider this to be a privileged conversation.
MR. BEMIS: Just right now, tell me generally what they were about.
A. Generally what had happened at the board meeting of June 9th, after the outsiders were excused.
Q. You subsequently learned that Mr. Dunlap offered to resign after you left the meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you asked to do anything on behalf of Sunbeam in these phone calls with Mr. Langerman and Mr. Fannin?
A. I don't really recall, other than to come to the meeting on the 13th.
Q. The meeting, the board meeting of the 13th?
A. Yes. Ah, yes.

Q. Is this the board meeting in which Mr. Dunlap was terminated?
A. Yes.
Q. Following Mr. Dunlap's termination and the change in management at Sunbeam, did you participate in a --
A. I believe I was asked by one of them to look at the employment contracts of Messrs. Dunlap and Kersh.
Q. Did you do that?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Did you look at the provisions in the contracts involving termination?
DI MR. MALLOY: I instruct him not to answer questions regarding the nature of his review.
Q. All right. Following the board meeting when Mr. Dunlap was terminated, did you participate, either yourself or indirectly, -- withdrawn.
Following Mr. Dunlap's termination, did Skadden Arps assist Sunbeam in conducting an investigation of the events of Sunbeam, including its, including financial transaction matters that had occurred since Mr. Dunlap was hired?

A. Yes.
Q. What was your role in that investigation?
A. Well, the investigation was primarily conducted by Bob Zimet, the very able Chris Malloy, and others from the litigation group here at Skadden, and I reviewed drafts of the report.
Q. Was a final report prepared?
A. I believe so.
Q. Was it presented to the board of directors?
A. I believe it was presented to the audit committee.
Q. The audit committee.
A. I believe.
Q. Of the board of directors of Sunbeam?
A. Yes. Correct. That is my recollection.
Q. You have to be a director to be on the audit committee; right?
A. Yes.
Q. In the report was Morgan Stanley identified as having been responsible for any wrongdoing at Sunbeam?

DI MR. MALLOY: I will instruct the witness not to answer the questions regarding the substance of the investigation or the report.
Q. Was Morgan Stanley mentioned in the report?
DI MR. MALLOY: Same instruction.
Q. When was the last time that you saw this report?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you know who received copies of the report?
A. Do I, personally, know who received copies? No. I assume the audit committee received copies.
Q. Did you receive a copy yourself?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you do with your copy?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you ever discuss the audit committee -- strike that.
Did you ever discuss this report with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes?

Page 231

A. I don't really remember. I mean, there were all kinds of discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes about what went wrong at Sunbeam, and whether the report was discussed with them, I just don't recall.
Q. Did you have discussions with MacAndrews & Forbes over what went wrong at Sunbeam?
A. Following Mr. Dunlap's termination, there were numerous meetings, telephone calls with people like Howard Gittes, Barry Schwartz, others at MacAndrews & Forbes about Sunbeam, about the whole situation.
Q. Did you participate in these conversations?
A. A lot of them, yes.
Q. Can you separate one conversation from another?
A. No. They all sort of meshed together in my mind.
Q. What did you tell them about what went wrong at Sunbeam?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the form.
MR. MALLOY: Well, you will have to -- many of these conversations were privileged and you will have to parse it out.

Page 232

MR. BEMIS: He said he can't separate one conversation from another.
MR. MALLOY: I will instruct him not to answer.
MR. BEMIS: These people are not your clients, MacAndrews & Forbes.
MR. MALLOY: Mr. Gittes was a director.
MR. BEMIS: Mr. Schwartz wasn't a director.
MR. MALLOY: I think you have already gotten a report on that; so, I stand by the instructions.
Q. What did you tell, did you tell, what did you tell Mr. Schwartz -- about what went wrong at Sunbeam?
A. I don't think I told him anything.
Q. Was that discussed?
A. I previously testified that there were numerous meetings, telephone conversations which I participated in and people from MacAndrews & Forbes participated in about the whole Sunbeam situation, and not just the past, but the present and the future, and I can't separate out in my mind any of those with a couple of exceptions.

Q. What are the exceptions that you can separate out?
A. I remember Howard Gittes taking Peter Langerman and me aside and having a conversation about the situation.
Q. When was this?
A. Sometime after Mr. Dunlap was terminated, and I don't recall when.
Q. What did he say and what did they say?
A. Mr. Gittes said that MacAndrews & Forbes has big fraud claims against Sunbeam for having failed to make full disclosure when they issued the stock to them to pay for Coleman, and that it was an intolerable situation for him to be sitting on the board, for other MacAndrews & Forbes people to be involved, ah, while they had these claims.
And we had to resolve the situation, one way or the other. The two alternatives he presented to Mr. Langerman and to me were either we rescind the Coleman transaction or we reach some kind of settlement of the claims.

Q. What did you say?
A. I said, I don't know -- I don't recall, but I think Peter Langerman and/or I said, it is not really in Sunbeam's interest or practical to even think about rescinding the transaction.
In terms of the settlement, at some point I told Mr. Gittes and/or Mr. Langerman that Skadden couldn't represent either party in that, if there are to be settlement negotiations between MacAndrews & Forbes and Sunbeam.
Q. What did Mr. Gittes respond?
A. I don't recall exactly, but he, I think he wanted us to stay involved and to represent either Sunbeam or MacAndrews, but I took the position that we really couldn't.
Q. You said you did remember this conversation. I thought you said that you remembered another one or more than -- perhaps even more than one, or a specific conversation.

Page 235

A. That is the one that I -- I may have misspoke. That is the one that really stands out in my mind.
Q. I thought you said several conversations stood out in your mind. I asked you what was the first.
A. We can go back and have the transcript -- I believe I said one or two.
Q. If you only remember one, that is all you remember. I don't want to quarrel with you about your words. You may have misspoken.
A. That is really the one that I remember, now -- I remember sitting in the MacAndrews & Forbes board room with the beautiful Roy Lichtenstein mural, having all kinds of conversations, but I don't recall all of the substance of those conversations.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley ever come up in those conversations?
A. I don't recall.
MR. MALLOY: You said at the beginning that you would go an hour or an hour and a half. It has been an hour and a half.

Page 236

MR. BEMIS: I know. I am almost finished.
MR. MALLOY: I understand your reluctance to reveal your strategy here.
MR. BEMIS: I don't have an overall strategy, but --
MR. MALLOY: We really do need to know that you will end today and when your examination will end; so, why don't you tell us how much you will have.
MR. BEMIS: As soon as I am done, I will be done --
MR. MALLOY: Are you almost done?
MR. BEMIS: Yes.
MR. MALLOY: Tell us how much more you have, then tell us that you are almost done.
MR. BEMIS: I am reviewing my notes. Calm down. Calm down. This is just business.
MR. MALLOY: No, you need to wrap up, and you need to not --
MR. BEMIS: I need to finish my examination and I intend to do so and I intend to do so properly. Calm down.

Page 237

(Pause.)
MR. BEMIS: I think I am finished, but why don't we take five minutes and I will check with my associate.
THE WITNESS: All right. I have to make a phone call.
MR. MALLOY: Off the record.
(Recess.)
MR. BEMIS: Thank you. I have no further questions at this time.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I have some questions.
EXAMINATION BY
MR. MARKOWSKI:
Q. Good morning, Mr. Fogg.

A. 1966.
Q. In 1998, sir, you acted as Sunbeam's lawyer in connection with the transaction by which my client sold its stock in Coleman Company to Sunbeam; correct?
A. Correct.

A. Me, personally?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes, I would guess that he was the one that got me involved in the Sunbeam account, yes.
Q. At the time Skadden was also

A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Unrelated to the Sunbeam transaction; correct?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. That was your understanding at the time?
A. Yes.
Q. In this transaction, though, Skadden Arps only represented -- by "this transaction" I mean the Coleman Sunbeam transaction -- Skadden Arps only represented Sunbeam's interests; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Skadden did not represent MacAndrews & Forbes' interest in that transaction in any way; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Skadden Arps did not represent my client Coleman (Parent) Holdings' interest in that transaction, in any way; is that correct?

A. That is correct.
Q. What other things were you doing?
A. There were two other acquisitions.

Q. And you were, personally, involved in each of those transactions as Sunbeam's counsel; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Skadden Arps was also involved in doing certain other things for Sunbeam relating to those transactions in the first quarter of 1998; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. What were those things?
A. Financing transactions.
Q. There were two of those; correct?
A. Bank financing and a high yield financing.
Q. The high yield financing that you referred to is sometimes called the debenture transaction?
A. Correct.
Q. It was an issuance of zero coupon debentures by Sunbeam; correct?
A. Correct
Q. Convertible debentures?
A. Convertible, yes.
Q. And Skadden Arps was acting as Sunbeam's lawyer in connection with those two transactions; correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And you were involved in those two transaction, as well?
A. Not very much involved, no.
Q. But you were acting as Sunbeam's lawyer to the extent that you were involved in those transaction; correct, sir?
A. The firm was acting as Sunbeam's lawyer, yes. I was not really very much involved with the bank financing or the debenture offering. I am an M&A lawyer.
Q. To the extent that you had any involvement in it, it was as Sunbeam's counsel?
A. Yes.
Q. Skadden Arps was also hired in the first quarter of 1998 to draft new employment agreements for Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Fannin, and Mr. Kersh; correct?
A. I know that there were new employment agreements, but I don't recall exactly when those were to be drafted or whatever.

Page 244

Q. Do you recall that before the announcement of the transaction involving the sale of my client's interest in Coleman Company to Sunbeam there was an announcement that Mr. Dunlap had entered into a new three-year employment agreement with Sunbeam?
A. Yes. I think it was before the Coleman deal was announced, yes.
Q. And Skadden Arps drafted that employment agreement; is that correct?
A. I believe we did, yes.
Q. Do you recall getting a call from Mr. Fannin asking you to do that; don't you?
A. I do, yes.
Q. At the time, sir, in addition to the three transactions that Sunbeam had underway and the three acquisitions, excuse me, that Sunbeam had underway, in the first quarter of '98, the acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman, the acquisition of Signature Brands, and the acquisition of First Alert, Mr. Dunlap had also made public statements indicating an invitation to make yet still more acquisitions at some future point; is that correct?

Page 245

A. I don't recall that.
Q. You don't recall Mr. Dunlap indicating a plan to engage in further consolidation of the consumer products business, as part of the long-range strategic plan of Sunbeam?
A. I really don't recall.
Q. Mr. Dunlap was somebody known for making deals; correct, sir?
A. I guess so. He had done the Scott deal. I guess so.
Q. He had done the Scott deal after being there for a relatively short period of time; correct, sir?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
A. I don't remember how long he was there.
Q. The Scott deal that you are referring to is the sale of Scott Paper to Kimberly Clark; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Dunlap had been the chief executive officer of Scott Paper; correct?
A. He had, yes.
Q. He had retained you to assist him in the sale of Scott Paper to Kimberly Clark; correct, sir?

Page 246

A. To assist Scott, yes.
Q. Yes. Sir, I would like to show you a document that has been produced to us by your firm in connection with your deposition. I understand these, sir, based on what we have been told about them, to be a printout of the time records that Skadden Arps maintained for the work being done by the firm on behalf of Sunbeam in the first quarter -- excuse me, March of 1998. I would like to ask you a couple questions about that.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Let's mark this as CPH Exhibit 384.
(CPH Exhibit 384, documents Bates Nos. 19645 to 687, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. I will ask you some very specific questions about this. You don't need to look at entire document at this point.
Have you looked at this document as it has been produced to us before this -- just now?
A. Yes.

Q. Do you see those?
A. Yes.
Q. Under "personnel type," the column to the left of your name -- do you see that the words "of counsel" appear?
A. Yes.
Q. That was not your position at the firm in the first quarter of 1998; correct, sir?
A. No.
Q. You were --
A. A partner.
Q. Let me direct your attention to another reference here that caught my eye, actually on the first page. There is a reference to an Al Morrison, towards the bottom, or towards the top, as well, actually. Do you see that?

A. She was not a partner at that time.
Q. That is correct. She was associate?
A. She was associate and --
Q. She is a partner now?
A. She is a partner now.
Q. Does this indicate to you that the personnel type designations reflected on this document are those that people hold today at Skadden Arps, as opposed to those that these individuals held back in March of 1998?
A. Well, in those two cases, surely.
Q. Perhaps your counsel can clarify that for us at some point, and determine whether that is the case.
MR. MALLOY: That is the case. This was a, this was run recently at your request and it includes the -- is -- I couldn't hear you.
This was run recently at their request and it includes on the personnel type the current designations.

Q. The only other thing I want to cover right now with you, sir, concerning this document, are the matter names.
There are a series of matter names, and I think they are in sequence here. And I would like you to go through with me each one of the matter names listed here and have you describe, to the best you can, the general nature of the matter that is the subject of these descriptions.
Do you see that the first matter name on the first page of the exhibit is "corporate advice"?
A. I do, yes.
Q. In general terms, what was that matter to be used for?
A. Basically, anything that did not fit into the other specific matters.
Q. It was a catchall for corporate work?
A. Yes.
Q. And then, beneath that, the first change in matter name is on the fourth line; do you see that?
A. Yes. Shareholders' meeting.

Page 250

Q. There was a special file created for a shareholders' meeting for Sunbeam?
A. That's what it would appear to be, yes.
Q. Are you familiar with the nature of the work that was to be billed to that matter?
A. I don't have any independent recollection, other than this document, since all of the work appears to have been done in March.
Q. This time record only relates to --
A. Only relates to March.
Q. I don't want to confuse you.
A. It had to do with work in connection with the shareholders' meeting.
Q. Do you know which shareholders' meeting?
A. It must have been the 1998 meeting. I don't see why work in March would have related to any other shareholders' meeting.
Q. Was there a point in time when there was some thought that a shareholder meeting of some sort might be required in connection with any of the three acquisitions?
A. Probably a shareholder meeting of

Page 251

Coleman.
Q. Not to speculate, but can you recall?
A. I don't recall that the three acquisitions were subject to the Sunbeam shareholder group.
Q. As you sit here, you are not sure what this relates to, what time it was billed to?
A. No. Not really.
Q. The next matter name that appears is on the fourth box from the bottom.
A. Averdesian.
Q. Do you know what that related to?
A. I have not a clue.
Q. And the next matter, after that, is "strategy"; do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. And there are several pages of entries here relating to strategy. I think those entries run through page 17 of the document. Do you see that, sir?
A. Well, yes. I have not looked at all 17 pages, but --
Q. But if you --

Page 252

A. Yes.
Q. Page to page 17, you will see that it continues to that page.
A. Yes.
Q. In general terms, what was the nature of the Skadden work activity that was to be billed to the strategy matter?
A. I think that was the Coleman transaction.
Q. The strategy is in reference to Coleman?
A. I believe so.
THE WITNESS: There is other stuff in there. I am sorry. I am looking at my own entries.
A. My own entries indicate Coleman. Also some other stuff, other than work on that transaction. But it is mostly Coleman, I think. I can't say that either.
Joe Nisa's time has some First Alert and Signature in it.
Q. Does it appear to relate generally, perhaps, to the three acquisitions?
A. I thought that there was a separate matter.

Page 253

Q. I will take you through each of them, sir, perhaps it will become more clear to you. On page 17.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The matter names shift from strategy to --
A. Creditor.
Q. Creditor. Do you know what that matter related to?
A. Not really, but most of the time it is by Greg Galardi, who is a bankruptcy or restructuring lawyer in Delaware.
And I don't really know what this is. I can only speculate. I will do so if my counsel lets me.
Q. In addition to the work that Skadden was doing for Sunbeam in the first quarter of 1998 relating to the transactions of the financing and the employment agreements, was Skadden also doing other corporate work for Sunbeam?
A. Yes. There was the creditor matter, for example.
Q. This appears to be an example of that?

Page 254

A. It appears to be an example of that.
Q. Beneath creditor at the bottom of page 17 there is a matter name --
A. Boston.
Q. -- that appears there, it is Boston; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. What did the Boston matter relate to?
A. I believe that was supposed to have captured the time dealing with the Signature Brands and First Alert acquisitions -- the so-called Boston, because those companies were owned by funds established by Tom, Thomas H. Lee & Company, based in Boston.
Q. There are quite a few entries for Boston; correct, sir?
A. Quite a few.
Q. They continue until it looks like the bottom of page 22; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. It is possible, sir, is it not, that in matters such as this, that people would sometimes bill time to the wrong matter?
A. Yes.

Q. The next matter --
A. It is not only possible, it is inevitable, in my experience.
Q. It is your experiences here.
At the top of page 23 there is a new matter.
A. Bank financing.
Q. What did that matter pertain to?
A. The bank financing for the three acquisitions.
Q. The three acquisitions, again, are Coleman Company, Signature Brands and First Alert; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Beneath that, I think beginning at page 34 -- there are quite a few entries for bank financing here, as well, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. The bottom of page 34, sir, you see towards the bottom there is a matter named, that is called rule 144A; do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. What does that matter pertain to?
A. The debenture offering.

Page 256

Q. The debenture offering also related to obtaining funds to be used by Sunbeam, at least in part, in connection with the three acquisitions; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. And there are quite a few entries for the 144A matter; correct, sir?
A. There are, yes.
Q. Those continue to page 43 of the time printout?
A. That is the end. Well, yes.
Q. And then, there are a few, there are two other matters on page 43 that have a relatively small number of entries; do you see those?
A. Mercer and MD Corp.
Q. The Mercer matter related to what, sir?
A. I don't recall, except since it is Barbara Rubell's time, mostly, it must have had to do with the product liability matter.
Q. You see a reference to Hank Marshall; do you see his name?
A. Who?
Q. Hank Marshall, it is --

Page 257

A. Hank Marshall.
Q. Do you know Hank?
A. No.
Q. He is a partner at Sidley & Austin, Sidley Austin Brown?
A. I don't know Hank.
Q. All right. Do you see the matter, the last matter listed in this record, MD Corp., at the bottom?
A. Yes.
Q. At the bottom of page 43.
A. Yes.
Q. MD Corp. related to what, sir? I see you billed a little bit of time to them.
A. I don't recall. I don't recall.
Q. Sir, Skadden Arps was paid about $3,000,000 for its work on the three acquisitions and the related financings?
A. I don't remember.
Q. I would like to have the court reporter mark, as CPH Exhibit Number 384, a -- 385, excuse me, a two-page document. It bears Bates number SAS MF 19691 to 692. It says "Skadden Arps invoice" dated April 27th, 1998.
(CPH Exhibit 385, document Bates

SAS MF 19691 to 692, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. Do you have Exhibit 385 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. You have seen this before; correct?
A. I don't recall, but I am sure I did.
Q. Would you have been the person responsible for billing Sunbeam for the work related to --
A. No.
Q. To the first quarter transactions?
A. No.
Q. There was another person at Skadden that did that?
A. Rich Easton.
Q. Rich Easton was one of the partners that you brought into in to assist you in connection with the work that needed to be done?
A. Not exactly. Rich Easton is a partner in our Delaware office, was then and still is. He had represented Sunbeam for some time before Mr. Dunlap got involved and before I got involved.

Page 259

So, he stayed on the account, and he knew Mr. Fannin from before. He had a good relationship with Mr. Fannin. And so, I came in and we worked together. But he remained the billing partner.
Q. This invoice reflects $3,000,000 in charges for professional services; is that correct, sir?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. And it indicates that $900,000 had previously been paid by Sunbeam; correct?
A. It does.
Q. And that $2.1 million remained due; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. It also indicates that the firm was billing Sunbeam for slightly less than $120,000 in charges of disbursements; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And these fees and expenses all relate to the three first quarter acquisitions and the related financings; correct?
A. Those are the five matters listed on page 1, yes.
Q. It doesn't relate to any other work that Skadden Arps was doing for Sunbeam?

Page 260

A. It doesn't seem to be, no.
Q. These amounts, sir, are not, at least precisely based on the firm's hours; correct?
A. Um, not sure in this case. I don't know what our hours were.
Q. They are all rounded numbers; correct, sir?
A. Yes. But they could have been close to the hours and to the hourly time charges and just rounded. I don't recall.
Q. That was going to be my question. Was there some agreement with Sunbeam in advance that the firm would be paid a certain amount of money for the work or was the agreement that the firm would be paid based on the hours, or was it something else?
A. I don't recall.
Q. In any event, the invoice here is for $3,000,000 for the work; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know whether this represents the entire charge to Sunbeam for professional services relating to the three first quarter acquisitions and the related financings?

A. It purports to. I don't -- I don't -- I don't know any reason to think that there were other charges for these five matters.
Q. Your involvement with Sunbeam had started -- had started several months earlier than the first quarter of 1998; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. You indicated yesterday it was, at least as early as the middle of 1997 that you received a call from Sunbeam requesting your involvement in assisting the company in connection with various strategic alternatives; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And that work, at least partially, culminated in the transactions that occurred in the first quarter of 1998; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. In 1997, sir, did Skadden Arps bill Sunbeam for any out-of-pocket costs or fees incurred in connection with the services that were being performed at that time?
A. What time is this?

Q. 1997. The period before the transactions of the first quarter of 1998.
A. I don't remember.
Q. You don't remember whether the firm, whether you were charging your time to Sunbeam?
A. Before the first quarter of 1998?
Q. Yes. You testified that --
A. I charged some time to Sunbeam before that.
Q. Okay. Is it your understanding that that was being billed to Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall whether that is included in this bill or not.
Q. You are just uncertain about that?
A. I don't know.
Q. It could have been --
A. I don't know. Our records would certainly reflect that.
Q. During the work that was being done in the 1997 time period, you were involved in doing various things; correct, sir?
You were involved in 1997 in doing various things relating to assisting Sunbeam in connection with assessing strategic alternatives; correct?

A. Correct.
Q. Other than yourself, were others at Skadden Arps involved in that activity?
A. Rich Easton was involved.
Q. Anyone else?
A. I am not sure. I don't know.
Q. You were involved in at least -- let me take a step back.
You had various meetings and conversations with Sunbeam in connection with that activity in 1997; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. And Morgan Stanley was involved in at least some of those meetings and conversations; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And Bill Strong is a person that you recall being involved in that activity for Morgan Stanley; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. In 1997, sir, when you first became involved, it was your understanding that Mr. Dunlap's preference was to have Morgan Stanley find a firm willing to acquire

Page 264

Sunbeam; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. That was his strong preference; is that correct, sir?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did Mr. Dunlap ever say that in your presence to any representatives of Morgan Stanley, such as Mr. Strong?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Dunlap, at any point, ever being critical of Mr. Strong for Morgan Stanley's inability to find a company willing to acquire Sunbeam?
A. I don't really recall. I am sure he would be. He was critical of everyone else.
Q. Mr. Dunlap was a very demonstrative person; correct, sir?
A. Very.
Q. You had known him, by this point, for a better part of 15 years?
A. I am not sure that I ever knew him. I had worked for companies in which he was involved back into the mid-'80s.
Q. You were familiar by 1997 with the manner in which Mr. Dunlap communicated with people; correct, sir?

A. I had seen him communicate with quite a few people, yes.
Q. He was often quite blunt; correct, sir?
A. Often blunt. Yes.
Q. As you sit here today, you can't recall any circumstances where Mr. Dunlap was, to use that phrase, "quite blunt" in expressing his disappointment that Morgan Stanley had been unable to find a company willing to acquire Sunbeam?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Asked and answered.
A. I really don't recall.
Q. You have just mentioned that you had first became involved in doing corporate work, where Mr. Dunlap was also involved in some way, back in the mid-1980s; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. I think you testified yesterday, sir -- well, let me -- it would be faster if I let you do it.
Could you go through, chronologically, for me, sir, the transactions where you were involved as counsel to accompany where Mr. Dunlap was employed as an executive, beginning with the first transaction that you can recall and then taking us right through the time when you got the call in 1997 to become involved in Sunbeam.

A. First, a series of transactions in which Skadden and I represented Sir James Goldsmith and his holding company, General Oriental, and I don't specifically remember all of the transactions, but they took place after Goldsmith had acquired Crown Zellerbach, and it involved, generally, selling off parts of Crown Zellerbach.
I remember one very complicated transaction involving James River Corporation, and there were others.
Q. You had assisted Sir James Goldsmith in the acquisition of Crown Zellerbach; is that correct?
A. I have.
Q. Mr. Dunlap was not involved in that activity?
A. No. He was hired by Mr. -- to the best of my recollection, he was hired by Mr. Goldsmith after that acquisition.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 267

Q. And then -- what was Mr. Dunlap's role in connection with the transactions relating to the sale of various Crown Zellerbach assets?
A. Sir James Goldsmith had the whole staff of people involved in those transactions. Mr. Dunlap was not, at that point, a transaction person, he was a restructuring person. He would come in and fire people and, more that than actually handling the transactions themselves. But he was involved in that way.
Q. Do you recall his position or his title?
A. No, I don't.
Q. You had personal contact with him in connection with the legal work that you were doing?
A. Yes. Although I had much more contact with Sir James Goldsmith himself and other people working for him.
Q. This is just the circumstance in which you first became, in which you first met

Page 268

Mr. Dunlap; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And can you recall, approximately, sir, how many of these sale transactions there were and over what period of time they occurred?
A. There was the James River transaction, which was the principal one, and I don't recall whether Dunlap was involved with that at all.
There was another transaction that we sold, a leveraged buyout, this was somebody represented by somebody in Chicago. I am very vague on this.
There was a transaction in which, I think this was the final transaction in which Sir James Goldsmith swapped his Crown Zellerbach, maybe, other Timberlands, for a big chunk of Hanson.
Dunlap was involved in that one. That's all I remember about the Crown Zellerbach exit transactions.
Q. Do you think there may have been more?
A. It is possible.

Page 269

Q. Do you recall over what period of time these transactions took place?
A. Not really. Probably a couple of years.
And the next time I encountered Mr. Dunlap was in London. Still he was working for Sir James Goldsmith and his holding company, and Sir James Goldsmith was teaming up with two other colorful entrepreneurs, Lloyd Jake Rothschild in London and Kerry Packer in Australia, to try to take over a U.K. public company called BAT, represented by Cravath. This was a hostile bid, and Dunlap was part of the Goldsmith team on site in London.
And the whole team, including merchant bankers and British lawyers and myself and one of my partners, Goldsmith, and Dunlap, would meet every day to strategize about how to proceed.
Q. Is it fair to say that you had more direct contact with Mr. Dunlap in connection with that transaction than you had previously?
A. Um, I saw more of him.
In these meetings in London he did not have a lot to contribute.

Page 270

Q. Do you recall when this was?
A. The late '80s. That's about the best time frame that I can put on it.
Q. What happened in that transaction?
A. Um, the group Goldsmith, Rothschild, Packer, formed a company called Hoylake, which made a hostile tender offer for BAT, which was unsuccessful
Because BAT had a big U.S. insurance company, Fireman's, and the state insurances regulators in the United States refused to approve the takeover, which killed the deal, but that went on for months.
Q. Did you spend a great deal of time on that?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you recall next?
A. Next, I recall that, at some point, Dunlap left Goldsmith, and I am not sure if he left on his own accord or he was pushed, I just don't know.
And he went to work for Kerry Packer in Australia, one of the Goldsmith partners on the BAT take over.

And I had one, I did one transaction, or the firm did one transaction for a Packer-controlled company in which Mr. Dunlap was involved. It was a U.S. company called Balassis Communications, and it wanted to, they wanted to take it public.

So, we did an initial public offering called Balassis Communications, principally handled by my corporate finance partner, Phyllis Korff.

And I was involved in the beginning of that transaction, with Mr. Dunlap and others, in negotiating with the management of Balassis over their employment, what piece of the equity that they would get, et cetera, et cetera.

Q. How did Skadden Arps come to be involved in representing Kerry Packer in that transaction?

A. Dunlap called.

Q. What do you recall next?

A. Scott Paper. Dunlap was named CEO of Scott Paper, which -- it was a pre-existing Skadden client, for whom we had been, had done quite a bit of work, and the Scott Paper team at Skadden at that time was headed by my partner Peter Atkins, and Peter and I went down to visit the new management team at Scott, outside of Philadelphia, um, and met with Dunlap, Kersh and the general counsel whose name escapes me.

And, thereafter, Dunlap or the general counsel called me, I can't remember who, to see if we would represent Scott in selling off, I think it was Hammermill Paper, some division of Scott, and my partner Bob Pincus in Delaware handled that transaction pretty much by himself. I did not get much involved.

Q. The call for that transaction came in to you either from Mr. Dunlap or the general counsel?

A. Yes.

And then the Kimberly Clark sale, which Bob Pincus and I, and others, represented Scott Paper in selling out to Kimberly Clark.

Q. The sale of Kimberly Clark to Scott Paper was a defining moment in Mr. Dunlap's career; was it, sir?

Page 273

MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form.

A. Defining moment? I don't know.

Q. He was given, I think you referred to him yesterday, sir, at least as of 1997, 1998, as a darling of Wall Street; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the Kimberly Clark transaction was certainly an important part of Mr. Dunlap becoming, in your opinion, one of the darlings of Wall Street; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You indicated yesterday that that transaction made a lot of money for the Kimberly Clark shareholders; correct?

A. Not -- for Scott.

Q. For the Scott. Mr. Dunlap was working at Scott.

A. Yes.

Q. And Kimberly Clark acquired Scott; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. In connection with that sale you represented Scott?

A. Scott.

Q. And the Scott shareholders, in connection with that transaction, you said yesterday, made a great deal of money; correct?

A. Yes. Scott's stock during Mr. Dunlap's tenure there went way up.

Q. Mr. Dunlap was given a great deal of credit for turning Scott Paper around and capitalizing on the sale and the benefits of that turnaround by selling the business to Scott Paper; correct?

A. Yes. He became a --

Q. Selling the business to Kimberly Clark.

A. He became a legend in his own mind, yes.

Q. He also became something of a legend on Wall Street; is that correct, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the nature of Skadden Arps' involvement in that transaction, sir?

A. Kimberly Clark?

Q. Yes.

A. We did everything. I mean, we -- we drafted and negotiated the merger agreement. Drafted and negotiated the SEC documents, the whole thing. We did the whole transaction.

Q. You worked extensively in that transaction personally; correct?
A. I certainly did, yes.
Q. Mr. Dunlap, personally, made a substantial amount of money as a result of the sale of Scott Paper to Kimberly Clark; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Dunlap held a substantial amount of Scott Paper stock in options; correct?
A. That is my recollection.
Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dunlap made something in the neighborhood of $100,000,000 as a result of the sale of Scott Paper to Kimberly Clark?
A. I couldn't fix a precise amount on it, but that doesn't seem unreasonable.
Q. I think you indicated, sir, that you did recall that Skadden Arps prepared a new employment agreement for Mr. Dunlap at Sunbeam, sometime before the three acquisitions were announced in the first quarter of 1998; is that correct, sir?
A. Yes.

Q. Let me show you the employment agreement.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I will mark this as CPH Exhibit 386, sir. It is a document entitled "employment agreement by and between Sunbeam corporation and Albert J. Dunlap" effective as of February 1st, 1998.
(CPH Exhibit 386, employment agreement, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. Do you have CPH Exhibit 386 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. This is a copy of the employment agreement that Skadden Arps prepared; is that correct?
A. It purports to be, but there is nothing on here to indicate that it came out of our word processor. Yes, there is, on the last page. Sorry.
Q. This is the document that Skadden Arps prepared, the employment agreement that Skadden Arps prepared for Sunbeam relating to Mr. Dunlap's employment as chief executive officer of the company; correct, sir?

A. That is what it purports to be, yes.
Q. It is effective as of February 1st, 1998; is that correct?
A. That is what it says.
Q. If you turn to the second page, sir, executed according to the document, on February 20th. Do you see that?
A. That is what it says.
Q. All right. Do you recall that the -- we will get to it later, I am sure, but actually I think you saw some documents already -- that the acquisition agreements relating to the sale of Coleman Company to Sunbeam were dated as of February 27th.
A. Right.
Q. Do you recall that, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. So, this agreement is dated about a week before the agreement was entered into between my client and Sunbeam relating to the acquisition of Coleman Company; correct, sir?
A. That's what it says, yes.
Q. And the term of this agreement, sir, is the employment period, is through January

Page 278

31st, 2001; correct?
You will see that at the bottom of page 2, in the paragraph entitled "Employment Period."
A. That's what it says.
MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form. He is highlighting the document.
He doesn't have any personal knowledge of this. Objection to the form.
Q. Sir, do you recall that Morgan Stanley advised Sunbeam that it was important, in connection with the announcement of the three acquisitions and the related financings, that Mr. Dunlap's employment period be extended?
A. I don't recall that.
Q. You don't recall that becoming a subject of conversation?
A. No.
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Asked and answered.
Q. Do you recall that Mr. Dunlap's employment contract was scheduled to expire in mid-1998, prior to the February 1st, 1998 agreement?

MR. BEMIS: Objection. No foundation.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall that when the acquisitions were announced, that Mr. Dunlap made it a point to say that he had just signed a new employment agreement and intended to stay with the company to restructure the three companies that were being acquired?
A. I don't recall. I have some vague recollection of it, that that was known, but I don't recall specifically saying that.
Q. Sir, do you recall that Mr. Dunlap wrote a book?
A. Yes.
Q. Mean Business?
A. Yes.
Q. You bought quite a few copies of the book; do you recall that, sir?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. About a thousand?
A. Not me, personally. The firm did.
Q. I was going to ask that question. I had seen an indication that you bought 1,000 copies of the book.

Page 280

A. The firm.
Q. Skadden Arps bought the book, the 1,000 copies?
A. Yes.
Q. How did that come about?
A. Mr. Dunlap instructed me to do that.
Q. When did he do that?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you actually take delivery of 1,000 copies of his book?
A. I believe so.
Q. What did you do with them?
A. I think I stuck them in the library for anyone who wanted a free copy. There were a lot left over. I don't know what we did with those.
Q. Let me show you a document that we are going to mark as CPH Exhibit 387.
(CPH Exhibit 387, documents Bates Nos. 598 to 99, marked for identification as of this date.)
A. Thank you.
Q. Exhibit 387, sir, is a document, two-page document that bears Bates number

Page 281

HK SOC 598 to 599. I will represent to you, sir, that this was a document that was first produced by Hill & Knowlton.
A. All right.
Q. Do you see your name there, sir?
A. I do.
Q. And next to your name it indicates, actually written in hand beneath your hand is written the number 1,000; do you see that, sir?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. 1,000 is the number of copies of Mr. Dunlap's book, Mean Business, that you recall acquiring?
A. I don't specifically recall, but it sounds like it is right.
Q. Okay.
Do you see, on the bottom of this second page, sir, there is the date September 5th, 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that refresh your recollection that you were approached about buying a large number of copies of Mean Business sometime in the latter part of 1997?

Page 282

A. Not really, but -- it sounds right.
Q. Do you recall that it was during the time period when you were working for Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. So, sometime before Mr. Dunlap was terminated; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall it was before the acquisitions took place in the first quarter of 1998?
A. I believe so.
Q. Why did the firm buy 1,000 copies of the book?
A. To please a CEO of a good client.
Q. You did not, personally, pay for them, I take it?
A. No.
Q. Sir, Morgan Stanley was a client of Skadden Arps in 1998; correct?
A. I believe so. Yes.
Q. Are they a client of the firm today?
A. I believe so, although I don't know what we are doing for them.
Q. In connection with the work that Morgan Stanley -- do you have an understanding, sir, of, in general terms, of the various things that Morgan Stanley was doing for Sunbeam that related to the first quarter of 1998 acquisitions?

A. Yes.
Q. Could you tell me what your understanding is.
A. They were financial advisers with respect to the acquisitions, which included giving fairness opinions or fairness advice to the Sunbeam board with respect to the acquisition. On the one hand.
On the other hand, they were to provide or raise the money needed to finance the acquisitions.
Q. And in connection with the fundraising activity that Morgan Stanley itself was involved in, sir, what's your understanding of what Morgan Stanley did to accomplish that? In very general terms.
A. Well, there are two pieces of financing. There was a bank financing. Morgan Stanley provided a piece of that and brought other banks into, with respect to the rest of it. On the debenture offering they placed the debentures.

Q. They underwrote the debentures; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. And then they marketed them; is that correct?
A. Yes. Correct.
Q. Morgan Stanley was being paid substantial amounts for its activity both as financial adviser to Sunbeam and as the senior lender and as the underwriter of the debenture offering; is that correct?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
Q. Was that your understanding, at the time?
A. I believe they did get significant fees in connection with those activities, yes.
Q. Is it your understanding, at the time, sir, that if the transactions did not go forward, if for some reason the three acquisitions did not occur, and if the financings were unnecessary, that Morgan Stanley would not be paid those fees?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form,

foundation.
A. I don't recall the nature of their engagement letter.
Q. Is it your understanding, based on your involvement in transactions such as this, sir, that the fees that the investment banker typically will be paid are contingent on the transactions actually occurring?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
A. It is customary that all or part of the investment banking fees are success fees, contingent on the successful completion of the transaction.
Q. That was your understanding, as of the time these transactions were occurring in the first quarter of 1998; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. Sir, you have never been involved in representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings, personally; have you?
A. No.
Q. You have never been involved in representing any MacAndrews & Forbes entities; is that correct?

Page 286

A. I don't believe I have.
Q. When you testified earlier, sir, about the first call that you got from Mr. Fannin, relating to the possibility of Sunbeam acquiring Coleman, the telephone call, I think you placed in late 1997 --
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall that testimony, generally?
A. Yes.
Q. You told Mr. -- or maybe it was Mr. Fannin telling you that he was aware that Skadden Arps, at least sometimes, represented MacAndrews & Forbes entities; correct?
A. We both were aware, yes.
Q. Mr. Fannin was aware of that when he placed this call?
A. I believe so.
Q. You certainly were aware of it; correct?
A. I certainly was aware.
Q. And if Mr. Fannin was not aware of it, you told him during that first telephone call?
A. Yes.

THE WITNESS: But I do think he knew of it before we even started talking about it.
Q. There was no doubt about the fact that Mr. Fannin was aware of that relationship; correct?
A. No doubt.
Q. And when Mr. Fannin raised with you the possibility of Skadden Arps becoming involved in the representing of Sunbeam, in connection with the possible acquisition of Coleman Company, you knew that there was a conflict presented by that engagement, potential engagement; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Fannin understood that, too; correct?
A. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
Q. It was your understanding that Mr. Fannin, in your conversation with him, was aware of that; correct?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
A. Yes.
Q. And did you tell Mr. Fannin at that time, sir, that for you to become involved in representing Sunbeam, in connection with the possible acquisition of Coleman Company, you would need to obtain a conflict waiver from MacAndrews & Forbes?

Page 288

A. Yes.
Q. Could you explain, sir, everybody in this room, I think understands, but could you explain for the jury what this conflict situation involved, in your mind?
A. Well, the ethical rules that govern our profession, as you know, state that a lawyer shall not represent a client in a matter where the interests of another client are adverse.
And, therefore, we could not, without the consent of the clients involved, undertake the representation of either Sunbeam or MacAndrews in this transaction between the three of them.
Q. That is because the interests of Coleman (Parent) Holdings or MacAndrews & Forbes were adverse to the interests of Sunbeam in connection with this transaction; is that correct, sir?

Page 289

A. Yes.
Q. And Skadden Arps couldn't be both representing the interests of Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes in that transaction; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And Skadden Arps couldn't become involved in representing Sunbeam in that transaction, even though it was representing MacAndrews & Forbes in unrelated matters without getting the consent of my client; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You followed up to speak to one of your partners with respect to obtaining such a waiver; correct, sir?
A. I did.
Q. And that person's name, again, is what?
A. Frank Gittes.
Q. What did you tell Mr. Gittes?
THE WITNESS: Is that okay?
MR. MALLOY: Well --
Q. I will rephrase the question.
What did you tell Mr. Gittes that you wanted him to do?

A. I called Frank. Frank and I are good friends -- and I said Frank, I have just learned that your client MacAndrews & Forbes was talking to my client Sunbeam about selling Coleman to Sunbeam, and I told him that Sunbeam wanted us to represent them, and did he think that that would be okay with MacAndrews & Forbes and that he could get their approval.
He thought that he could.
Q. Did you ask him to do that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if he did?
A. He told me he did, later.
Q. When did he tell you that?
A. I couldn't put a time frame on it, but it was not a long period.
Q. The reason why you made that call to your partner was you wanted to become involved in representing Sunbeam in connection with this transaction; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Sunbeam had asked you to become involved; correct?

A. Yes.
Q. You had been doing some work with Sunbeam on this general -- in this general area of strategic options for some months; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you had previously done a number of transactions for Mr. Dunlap or other companies that he had been involved in; correct, sir?
A. For companies, but not for him, personally.
Q. Correct. And I think you testified previously that one of the reasons you bought the firm bought 1,000 copies of Mean Business is that you considered him to be a CEO of an important client; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you wanted to be in a position to provide Mr. Dunlap and Sunbeam, an important client, with the services that they wanted in connection with the possible acquisition of Coleman Company; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And that is why you called

Page 292

Mr. Gittes; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. I want to skip ahead a little bit and see if you have any knowledge of certain things.
There has been a lot of testimony in this case about a meeting that took place on February 23rd, 1998 at the offices of Morgan Stanley. That is about four days before the acquisition agreements relating to Coleman were executed. Do you have that time period in your mind?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall whether you were present at that meeting at Morgan Stanley on February 23rd, where there was a meeting of Morgan Stanley representatives, Coleman representatives, Sunbeam representatives, and representatives of my client?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
A. I don't have any specific recollection of that meeting.
Q. Do you have any recollection of being at a meeting at the offices of Morgan Stanley about four days before the Coleman merger agreements were executed where Mr. Kersh, Mr. Goudis, perhaps others, made presentations to First Boston, my client, Coleman Company representatives, concerning Sunbeam's strategic plan?

A. I don't recall being -- I don't recall.
Q. You have no recollection of being at such a meeting; correct, sir?
A. I don't.
Q. Let me show you a copy of an exhibit that has been identified as a strategic plan presentation that Mr. Kersh and others made at that meeting. It has previously been marked as CPH Exhibit Number 238.
I will ask you to take a look at the document, sir, at least sufficiently to see whether it refreshes your recollection about whether you were present at a meeting about four days before the Coleman merger agreements were signed where Mr. Kersh, or perhaps someone else from Sunbeam presented this information to my client.
A. No, it doesn't.
Q. Looking at this document, sir, does it lead you to believe that you were not present at this meeting?

Page 294

A. It doesn't provide any basis for me to recall whether I was or wasn't. I doubt that I was there.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before, sir?
A. I don't recall.
Q. If you can exclude the handwritten notes. There are a few handwritten notes.
A. I don't recall seeing it, no.
Q. Do you see, towards the end of this document, sir, it is a page that has Bates number 332, the last three digits of the Bates number at the bottom. The bottom right-hand corner. Three or four pages.
A. My Bates numbers are five --
Q. If you turn the page this way, the way that I have it, the bottom --
A. Sorry. 332. Yes.
Q. Do you see that page is entitled "long-range strategic objectives - earnings from continuing operations"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen this before?

Q. I will show you a copy of what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 9, sir.
It is a document entitled "Sunbeam Corporation discussion materials, February 1998," and it has, it is on Morgan Stanley stationery. You will see on the bottom right-hand corner of each page.
A. Yes.
Q. There has been testimony, sir, that this document was the, was delivered to my client and to the other participants in the February 23rd meeting at Morgan Stanley.
MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form. Foundation.
Q. Does this document refresh your recollection about whether you participated in the February 23rd meeting?
A. No, it doesn't.
Q. Have you seen this document previously?
A. I don't recall.
One of the documents -- I was shown yesterday -- has some pages that look like this, but I don't --

Q. I want you to exclude for this purpose, sir, seeing this in connection with your preparation.
A. I don't recall seeing this.
Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley presented this document to my client, sir?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form. Foundation.
A. I don't have any awareness, one way or other.
Q. Did anybody from Morgan Stanley describe to you, sir, the information that was being provided to my client in connection with its due diligence?
A. I don't recall.
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
Q. Is that something that you would have had interest in?

Q. Was that outside of what you were doing?

Foundation.
MR. MALLOY: When you say that, what are you referring to?
Q. You said that you don't recall being told what Morgan Stanley provided to my client in connection with my client's due diligence; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. And I think inartfully, just trying to understand whether you viewed that as something that really did not relate to the activities that you were responsible for.
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
A. I guess the answer to that is Yes.
Q. There has also been testimony, sir, that there was an accounting due diligence call that Morgan Stanley undertook in connection with the three acquisitions where representatives of Morgan Stanley spoke with the outside auditors for the Coleman Company, Signature Brands and First Alert.
Do you have any knowledge about the substance of the accounting due diligence conversations that Morgan Stanley had with the outside auditors for my client?

A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you have any understanding, sir, of knowledge concerning the information that Morgan Stanley received in connection with its accounting due diligence calls with Sunbeam's outside auditor, Arthur Andersen?
A. No.
Q. Let me show you a document to see if it refreshes your recollection on that, sir. It is a document that has been previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 31. It is a document dated March 7th, 1998, on Morgan Stanley letterhead from John Tyree, to the Sunbeam financing team, subject accounting due diligence call.
Do you have Exhibit 31 in front of you, sir?
A. I do.
Q. Do you see that it refers to a planned series of conference calls with the outside auditing firms --
A. Yes.
Q. -- on March 12th, 1998?
A. Yes.

Page 299

Q. That is after the agreement, the merger agreements were signed relating to the acquisition by Sunbeam of Coleman Company; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And this indicates that one of the participants in the scheduled accounting due diligence conference calls was Arthur Andersen; do you see that, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. There is a reference to a Larry Bornstein next to the name Arthur Andersen; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you participate in the accounting due diligence call on March --
A. I don't believe I did.
Q. -- on March 12th?
A. I don't believe I did.
Q. Did you, personally, ever have any conversation with Larry Bornstein?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. For this purpose, sir, I am focusing on the period before the closing of the transaction, with my client, on March 3rd. Do you recall that during that time --

Page 300

A. I don't recall any conversations with Larry Bornstein ever.
Q. Did anyone report to you, sir, about the substance of the conversations that Arthur Andersen had with representatives of Morgan Stanley relating to Morgan Stanley's accounting due diligence inquiries?
A. I don't recall any such report.
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley report to you, sir, that in connection with its conversations with Arthur Andersen, as part of its accounting due diligence, that Arthur Andersen advised Morgan Stanley that, in Arthur Andersen's view, Sunbeam had taken a number of aggressive actions in the fourth quarter of 1997 to enhance its net sales revenue?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
A. Could I hear the question back.
(Record read.)
A. I don't recall any such --
Q. Do you know John Tyree, sir, the author of this document?

Page 301

A. I know the name. I am sure I met him, but -- I -- I am not sure I can pick him out of a lineup.
Q. Do you recall Mr. Tyree ever advising you about the substance of his conversations with Arthur Andersen?
A. No, I don't.
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.
Q. You participated in the February 27th Sunbeam board meeting, correct, sir, that is the meeting where the board approved the acquisition of Coleman Company?
A. Yes.
Q. And there were representatives of Morgan Stanley present at that meeting; correct?
A. Yes. I believe the meeting was at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do you recall that Mr. Strong was there?
A. I believe he was.
Q. Do you recall, at that meeting, that Morgan Stanley advised the Sunbeam board that it considered the Coleman acquisition terms fair to Sunbeam?

Page 302

A. Yes. From a financial point of view, I believe they did advise them.
Q. That was important to the Sunbeam board; correct, sir?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form.
A. Yes.
Q. Why is that important to the Sunbeam board?
A. It supports their decision to do the deal.
Q. In what way, sir?
A. In what way?
Q. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form.
Q. In what way did the Morgan Stanley fairness opinion support the board's decision to go forward about the deal?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form.
A. It told the board that in the professional opinion of Morgan Stanley the deal was fair to Sunbeam.
Q. When you say from a financial point of view, what does that mean?
A. Financial point of view. The financial terms are favorable.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 303

Q. What does that mean, the financial terms?
A. The price.
Q. The price that is being paid for my client's stock; correct, sir?
A. Yes. It is a fair price to pay for the asset.
Q. That's what Morgan Stanley was saying to the Sunbeam board on February 27th; correct?
A. In effect. You would have to look at -- I don't know if there was a written fairness opinion. You have to refresh my recollection on that, but the terminology used by the banker is fair from a financial point of view.
Q. I just want to --
A. Those are the traditional, customary words used.
Q. What that relates to, for lay people, is to the price that is being paid; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you recall that, in connection with the Sunbeam board's meeting on the 27th, that Mr. Strong, or perhaps others from Morgan Stanley, addressed the subject of financing?

Page 304

A. I believe they did, yes.
Q. Do you recall that Morgan Stanley, at the February 27th board meeting, assured the board that financing for the acquisitions could be obtained?
A. I would not sure that I would use the word "assured," but they certainly indicated that, in their judgment, the financing could be obtained.
Q. And that Morgan Stanley was willing to play a lead role in connection with arranging that financing; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you recall, sir, that there was no financing contingency in the Coleman agreement?
A. I do.
Q. In other words, the agreement was binding and there was no out for Sunbeam if it couldn't arrange financing; correct?
A. Correct.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am about to go into an area that is fairly lengthy. If you want to break now for lunch, we can do that. It is noon. Rather than break up this.

MR. MALLOY: It is a little early for lunch. Did you need to take a break for something?
THE WITNESS: I am not sure. I don't know when they are setting up there. I would just assume, keep going.
MR. MARKOWSKI: We can do that.
MR. BEMIS: Could we take a short break?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Yes.
(Recess.)
Q. Mr. Fogg, you indicated that you received a telephone call from David Fannin on March 18th, indicating that he wanted to come over to meet with you; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That is the day before Sunbeam issued its press release on March 19th; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Fannin indicate in his initial call to you that he was coming over to discuss issues relating to Sunbeam's first quarter performance?

Page 306

MR. MALLOY: You can answer that Yes or No.
A. Yes.
Q. Was that the first indication that you had had, sir, of any sort, that there was any issue with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 performance?
A. Yes.
Q. You had not heard previously that Sunbeam's first quarter sales were in any way behind plan?
A. No.
Q. Or that its net income for the quarter was somehow behind plan?
A. No.
Q. By March 18th, Sunbeam's first quarter was almost over; correct?
A. January, February, 18 months of March -- 18 days of March were over, there were 13 days left.
Q. And, actually, I do not know if you recall this, sir, but Sunbeam was not on a calendar year fiscal year; do you recall that?

A. A calendar year?
Q. Right. Sunbeam's first quarter was going to close on March 29th or 30th.
A. Well, okay.
Q. Do you recall that?
A. Towards the end of March, correct.
Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam was not on a December 31st fiscal year?
A. Right.
Q. And that Sunbeam's first quarter was going to close slightly a few days before March 31st?
A. It sounds right.
Q. And, in any event, Sunbeam's first quarter was -- January was gone, February was gone and a substantial part of March was gone at that point; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And this is the first indication that had been brought to your attention that there was any issue with respect to Sunbeam's first quarter performance?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me show you, I think we have the time record, sir, for your activity that day, CPH Exhibit 384. Do you have that in front of you? It should be in the stack of documents, probably the first one.

Page 308

A. Here it is.
Q. Let's see if I can find it for you. Would you turn to page 38 of 43.
A. 38?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see your time entry for March 18th, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And it is billed to the rule 144A matter; correct, sir, that day?
A. Yes.
Q. And the entry, could you read the description, the narrative that is --
A. The first quarter problem.
Q. That is how you described your work that day; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And how much time did you bill that day to --
A. 8 and a half hours.

Page 309

Q. As you sit here today, is that consistent, in your mind, with the amount of time that you spent on March 18th?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. When Mr. Fannin arrived in your office, Mr. Fogg, he described in some more detail the first quarter issue than he had during the phone call?
A. Yes.
Q. And the two of you then began to call others; is that correct?
A. That is right.
Q. And one of the telephone calls you made, and one of the telephone calls you made after speaking to Morgan Stanley was to Sunbeam; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You made a call and spoke to Don Uzzi; correct?
A. Yes. A lot of people were on the phone.
Q. I think you indicated that there were two telephone calls to Don Uzzi; correct?
A. Yes. There was an initial call, for just the people in my office calling Uzzi, to sort of set up a subsequent call.

Q. That is the first call that I want to spend a moment on.
A. Yes.
Q. The initial call that is made to Mr. Uzzi that day from your office.
A. Yes.
Q. How far into the discussions you were having that day on this issue do you believe that call took place?
A. I couldn't really put a time frame on it. I think it was probably the first third of the day, but I am not sure.
Q. It was one of the earlier events; correct, sir?
A. Yes. It was the -- first Fannin arrived, then Fernicola and Shehan joined us.
Then I think we spoke to Morgan Stanley and Davis Polk, and then the next thing I remember was the people in my room calling Uzzi.
Q. The purpose of the call to Uzzi was to essentially give him a heads-up; correct, sir?
A. To tell him that we were going to have a call later on with Morgan Stanley and Davis Polk and to schedule it and make sure that he was available, et cetera.

Q. And to give him a chance to prepare for that call; correct?
A. I don't know what. I don't know.
Q. Was he told, in general, what the subsequent call was going to deal with?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall what he was told about what the second call would deal with?
A. Where things stand for the first quarter.
Q. Now, you have testified, I think, just now, and then earlier, that the Skadden personnel in your office participating that day in these issues were Mr. Fernicola and Mr. Shehan, in addition to yourself; correct?
A. Mark Shehan. Not to be confused with Bob Shehan; yes.
Q. Is Greg Fernicola and Mark Shehan?
A. Yes.
Q. The Skadden personnel involved that day with this issue were the three of you; correct?

Page 312

A. Correct. And I am not sure -- I was the only one of the three who was there all the time. It was in my office, except to go to the men's room. The other two, I think left for periods and came back, but I don't remember. They were doing other things.
Q. Was there anyone else from Skadden Arps that day, that you can recall, involved in dealing with this issue?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Fernicola and Mr. Shehan had already been involved in doing work for Sunbeam in connection with the first quarter transactions; correct, sir?
A. Correct.
Q. That is why they were in the room?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Shehan, at the time, was associate, sir; is that correct?
A. Yes. Or maybe he was counsel -- he was not a partner.
Q. He was either associate or of counsel?
A. Not of counsel. We have another category called counsel.

Page 313

THE WITNESS: Is that right?
MR. MALLOY: Yes.
Q. But in any event, he was not a partner; correct?
A. He was not.
Q. He was not of counsel?
A. No, he was not. He was a senior corporate lawyer and I don't remember his title. I think it was, I think it was associate. Maybe it was counsel.
Q. When you say he was a senior corporate lawyer, he was still associate or counsel, correct, sir, he was not a partner?
A. He had been there many years, right, but he was not a partner. I worked with him on many, many occasions.
Q. What was Mr. Shehan doing before this on the Sunbeam matter; do you recall, generally?
A. Yes. I mean, Mark was one of the guys I had working on one of the lead transactions, I forget whether it was signature or First Alert, but one of them was his.
Q. Anything else that you can remember him doing?

Page 314

A. No.
Q. Was he involved in the rule 144A matter?
A. No.
Q. That is the debenture offering; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Mr. Shehan wasn't involved in the debenture offering?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Fernicola was?
A. Yes.
THE WITNESS: The reason I called Mr. Shehan was because I had worked with him in the past. He was very experienced, and I always find that on difficult issues it is better to have more smart people in the room rather than fewer.
Q. You testified earlier that Mr. Dunlap adamantly opposed the issuance of a press release when the question was put to him; correct, sir?
A. Yes, sir.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 315

Q. Did that come as a surprise to you?
A. Um, certain aspects of it surprised me, yes.
Q. Did you expect Mr. Dunlap to immediately embrace the idea of issuing a press release?
A. No.
Q. Why do you believe that Mr. Dunlap was so adamant in his opposition to the issuance of a press release?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.
Q. Let me make sure that I ask the question that I intended to ask.
I will withdraw the question.
At the time, back in the first quarter of 1998, why did you believe that Mr. Dunlap was being so adamant in his opposition to issuing a press release?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
A. I did not ask him why so he did not tell me why. So, I would only be, have been speculating at the time, which I did. And my speculations were that he was very concerned about doing anything that would throw a monkey wrench into his deals, and he thought the press release might do that.

I must add that I would probably have expected any client in the circumstance, similar circumstances to at least push back on the lawyers to at least get them, you know, to challenge their thinking and make sure that they weren't taking the easy way out.
Q. Mr. Dunlap did a little bit more than push back; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. And you already testified that Mr. Dunlap can be very demonstrative in expressing his point of view; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. He was doing that on this occasion, too?
A. He was.
Q. Your belief, at the time, was that Mr. Dunlap was being driven here by concerns that a press release would throw a monkey wrench into his deals?
A. Yes.
Q. And the deals you are referring to, sir, are what?

Page 317

A. The financing and, without the financing, the acquisitions.
Q. And Mr. -- your belief was that Mr. Dunlap was concerned that public disclosure of a first quarter problem at Sunbeam could have an adverse effect on those transactions; correct?
A. Correct.
And, in addition, I speculated that it might, he was afraid that it might, ah, adversely affect his status as a darling of Wall Street who had never missed a quarter.
Q. The debenture offering was scheduled to be priced just the following day; correct?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. On March 19th?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Sunbeam, along with Morgan Stanley, had been out on a road show marketing the debentures; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that road show was coming to --
A. I am not sure. I am not sure. I don't know when the timing of the road shows took place.

Page 318

Q. Do you recall, sir, that Mr. Fannin that day was at the New York road show, that is why he was in town?
A. I honestly don't recall. I knew they were all in town having something to do with the financing, and whether it was a -- a New York road show or a bank meeting or what the hell it was, I don't remember.
Q. Okay. But, in any event, your recollection is that, at the time, you understood that the financing was going to be the debenture offering was going to be priced on March 19th, the day after the discussions -- that were taking place that day; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, the acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman Company hadn't closed at that point; is that correct?
A. The what?
Q. The acquisition of my client's interest in Coleman Company had not closed at that point; correct, sir?
A. Correct. We just went through the fact that this is taking place on March 18th, and that deal did not close until March 30th.

01-0417

Q. Correct. Do you recall previously saying, sir, that you thought that Mr. Dunlap opposed the issuance of a press release because he did not want to "screw up his financing"?
A. I think I testified to that in the arbitration. That's a different way of saying throw a monkey wrench into it; isn't it?
Q. Did you ever hear, sir, anyone from Morgan Stanley who was involved in the debenture offering say to Mr. Dunlap, or anyone else at Sunbeam, that it was important in connection with marketing the debentures that Sunbeam continue to hit its numbers?
A. I don't recall any discussion like that, no.
Q. In connection with the conversation that you had with Mr. Uzzi, you have testified that you got a one-page piece of paper that had some numbers on it; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. I will show you another copy of that, this time, with our Exhibit Number on it.

A. All right.
Q. Let me show you, sir, what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 16.
A. All right.
Q. Do you recognize that as the document that you had, excluding the handwriting on it, the documented that you had in front of you during the conversation that you had that day with Mr. Uzzi and others about where Sunbeam was at as of March 19th, 1998?
A. Yes. And this is a copy including the handwriting of the same document I saw yesterday.
Q. You see the fax numbers in the upper corner, sir?
A. I do.
Q. Next to the -- there are three names up there, route, Allen and David. Do you see those?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Next to David, is that your fax number?
A. Yes.
Q. I would like to spend a moment --

A. Not my current fax number, but my then fax number.
Q. That was what I was interested in, sir. Thank you.
A. No.
Q. I would like to spend a moment with you on the numbers in the document, sir.
Do you see, in the upper right-hand corner, the first line indicates "January consolidated net sales actual"; do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. And the number there is 29; do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you understand that to be $29 million?
A. Yes.
Q. The second line is "February consolidated net sales actual"; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And next to that, next to that typed number is the number 43; do you see that?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you understand that, at the time, to be a reference to $43 million in net sales in February?
A. Yes.
Q. Somebody has done the math, I think, next to those two numbers for us, but those two numbers total $72 million; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. By the way, that is not your handwriting; correct?
A. No.
Q. And then do you see, beneath that: March international net sales through March 15th, 1998"?
A. I do.
Q. And the number 6.9 appears there; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. $6.9 million in net sales, international sales through March 15th; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That's what you understood that to be?
A. Yes.

Q. And then, skipping down two lines, do you see a reference to March domestic net sales through March 17th?
A. I do.
Q. And that number is $22.7 million; do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. The total of those four numbers, sir, for the actual net sales in January, February and international net sales for the first two weeks of March and March domestic net sales through March 17th is approximately $100,000,000; is that correct?
A. Do you want me to do the math?
Q. Sure. It is 72 plus 6.9.
MR. MALLOY: Here is a fresh page.
A. 72, 6.9. And 22.7. Is that right? Yes. Right?
Q. I believe so.
A. 101 million point 6.
Q. So, this document advised the people who received it that, as of mid-March, 1998, Sunbeam had total net sales of a little less than $102 million; correct?
A. That is what it purports to show,

yes.
Q. And the other numbers on this page all relate to sales that have not taken place yet; correct, sir?
A. Um, yes, the line March international net sales forecast was a forecast number.
The rest of March.
International. And March domestic open orders. I guess they are open orders, yes.
Q. And then -- the column for potential orders?
A. Yes.
Q. Those orders hadn't even occurred yet; correct?
A. I don't know. Potential orders. Yes. Correct.
Q. It was being represented that those were orders that the company was expecting or hoping to get, but had not actually?
A. Yes.
Q. Had actually not been made yet; correct?
A. Correct.

Q. The reason for this meeting that day was that Wall Street analysts had been led by the company to expect that Sunbeam would achieve sales in the first quarter of 1998 of something in the neighborhood of 285 to 295 million dollars; correct, sir?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form of the question. No foundation.
Q. That was your understanding.
MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form of the question. No foundation.
A. I only would quibble with a couple parts of the question.
And that is led to believe, I don't know who led what to whom.
I don't know if the analysts arrived at this based on their own analysis or to what extent it was the company information that they had put out. I don't know. But the analysts did have an estimated range, which, I think, was in the neighborhood that you mentioned, but I can't -- I think.
Q. Let's see if we can pin that down, sir, and we will move on. I will show you the March 19th press release.

A. All right.
Q. You have already seen this. But this is our version of it, March -- the CPH Exhibit 14. Do you see in the first sentence, sir, it states that --
A. It refers to the range of -- analyst estimates 285 million to 295 million, yes.
Q. That is something that you would have known at the time that these discussions had taken place, leading up to the issuance of the press release; correct, sir?
A. I would have known that at that time, yes.
Q. So, as of the time that the people are speaking about where Sunbeam stands in the first quarter of 1998, Sunbeam is about 185 to $195 million short of Wall Street's expectations for first quarter sales at that point; correct?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
A. Yes. Correct.
Q. With about 12 days, or so, left in the quarter; correct, sir?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
A. Yes.

Q. A question, sir, for you about the column entitled potential orders.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. It sums up at the bottom to 86; do you see that?
A. To 86 or 88? I can't -- if you say it is the 6, I will take your, it is a 6, I will take your word for it. I can't.
Q. It is either 86 or 88, that is the way you are reading it?
A. Yes.
Q. My question doesn't relate so much to the number, as to what the number reflects, sir.
You indicate that there were probing questions to Mr. Uzzi that day, relating to this document; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall being told that the list of potential orders was a gross sales number, not a net sales number?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You know the difference between gross sales and net sales, sir?

Page 328

A. Um, probably varies from company to company. I don't specifically recall.
Q. Gross sales would be the amount that customer pays; correct?
A. That would be, yes, right.
Q. And net sales would be some amount less than that that includes some expenses that the company deducts in calculating its net sales; correct?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.
A. Yes. Some expenses, I don't know which ones.
Q. And in this case the Wall Street analysts' estimate was a net sales estimate of 285 to $295 million; correct?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.
A. I don't recall, except that is what the March 19th press release says; so, that must have been what it was.
Q. The focus that day was on what net sales Sunbeam would achieve in the first quarter of 1998. That was the exercise; correct?

A. I believe so.
Q. You can't recall, as you sit here today, whether you were alerted to the fact that this $86 million number was a gross number?
A. I don't recall.
Q. But it is put in terms of orders, not net sales; correct, sir?
A. It says "orders," yes. Potential orders.
Q. The total, sir, of all of the numbers that are on this page came to -- well, let's -- there are two numbers that I can focus your attention on, sir. Do you see the grouping of numbers on the top of the page, Janet sales, February, March --
A. Yes.
Q. International. That total, group of sales totaled to $168.7 million; correct? Do you see that there?
A. Yes. That's what it says.
Q. Potential orders totals $86 million; correct?
A. Yes. Okay. It is a 6; right.

Page 330

Q. And the total of those two numbers is something in the neighborhood of $255 million; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Something significantly short of 285 to $295 million; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. There is no other detail on this page that explains how the company might get from this group of numbers to 285 to $295 million; correct?
A. It doesn't seem to be.
Q. Did anyone in the course of the conversation that you had with Sunbeam that day, sir, claim that Sunbeam, at any point in the past, had ever accomplished sales of something in the neighborhood of 280 to $290 million in the last 12 days of the quarter?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.
A. I don't recall. There is an indication on this document, at the bottom, of a low and a high, and I am trying to figure out what that means. But I don't recall.
Q. There are no entries in here supporting a number higher than $255 million or so; correct, sir?

MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.
A. Well, the numbers next to low and high are higher, and I don't know what, I don't know how they got to them.
Q. There is nothing?
A. I don't recall.
Q. There is nothing in the document that explains that; correct, sir?
A. I don't know what these percentages are next to those numbers, 5.3 and 15.6. I just don't recall.
Q. And my question, sir, is simply: There was nothing in the document that explains how they got to those higher numbers; correct?
A. I don't see anything.
Q. Do you recall, sir, that, as of this time, mid-March, 1998, that Wall Street analysts were expecting Sunbeam to realize a significant first quarter profit, net profit?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form, foundation.

Page 332

A. I don't recall.
Q. Was there any discussion on March 18th, sir, relating to where the company stood with respect to net earnings in the first quarter of 1998?
MR. MALLOY: Are you referring to the March call that included Morgan Stanley, or a different call?
Q. I am asking, generally: Was there any discussion on March 18th that you were privy to, sir, where the subject of where Sunbeam stood with respect to its first quarter net earnings --
A. On the large call involving Morgan Stanley, Uzzi, Davis Polk, Fannin, myself, etc., there was something discussed about that, but I don't know, I don't recall the substance.
Q. There is nothing on CPH Exhibit 16 that relates to net earnings; correct?
A. Right. There is nothing in the press release either.
Q. As you sit here, you can't recall --
A. I can't recall. I am sure it was discussed, I just can't recall what was discussed.

Q. There is no warning in the press release that Sunbeam may fall short of analysts' expectations for first quarter net earnings; correct?
A. There is no statement in the press release about net earnings.
Q. Do you agree, sir, that the more negative the press release that Sunbeam issued on March 19th, the greater the risk that the press release might throw a monkey wrench into the first quarter deals?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
MR. MALLOY: Objection. Speculation.
A. Yes.
Q. That was your understanding at the time; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have the March 19th press release in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. CPH Exhibit 14.
A. Yes.
Q. The press release issued on March

Page 334

19th, does not state that Sunbeam would fall below Wall Street's expectations of 285 to $295 million for the first quarter net sales; does it, sir?
A. No.
Q. The March 19th press release doesn't disclose that Sunbeam would fall short of Wall Street's first quarter net earnings estimates, either; does it?
A. Nothing in there about earnings.
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Asked and answered three times.
Q. The March 19th press release doesn't disclose that Sunbeam had net sales of just two $9,000,000 in January; does it?
A. No.
Q. It doesn't disclose that Sunbeam had net sales of just $43 million in February; does it?
A. No.
Q. It doesn't disclose that Sunbeam had net sales of about $102 million as of the date of the press release; correct?
A. No.
Q. The press release doesn't disclose that Sunbeam's net sales for the first two months of 1998 were about half of the net sales that Sunbeam had realized in the first two months of 1997; does it?

MR. MALLOY: I think the press release speaks for itself.

A. It doesn't say anything about that.

Q. Were you aware of that, sir, that Sunbeam's net sales through the first two months of 1998 were about half of Sunbeam's net sales in the first two months of 1997?

MR. BEMIS: Objection to form, foundation.

A. I know that on the large call, and on the discussion with Uzzi, we discussed prior quarters, and how "back end loaded" they were, as opposed to this one. We discussed that. And I don't recall any of the details about that.

Q. Do you remember anyone from Morgan Stanley, during the call, saying, um, the net sales numbers through January and February are only about half of what Sunbeam's net sales had been in the year ago quarter?

A. I don't specifically recall that, no.

Q. The March 19th press release did not disclose that Sunbeam had lost about $40,000,000 in the first two months of 1998; does it, sir?

MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.

A. It doesn't say anything about losses or earnings.

MR. MALLOY: You are wasting our time with this at this point.

Q. Sir, on March 20th --

A. March 20th.

Q. We will move to the day after the press release, the press release issued on March 19th; correct, sir.

A. To the best of my recollection, yes.

Q. And one of the things that you did on March 20th was monitor Wall Street's reaction to the press release. Do you recall that?

A. Monitored Wall Street's reaction to the press release?

Q. Do you recall doing that?

A. I am not a monitor. No, I don't think I did that.

Q. Let me show you a time entry that I am basing the question on, sir.

Do you have Exhibit 384 in front of you, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Let's see if I can find it. It is page 38 of 43 again --

A. Excuse me.

Q. Page 38 of 43. The page we looked at a minute ago.

A. Yes, March 20th.

Q. Do you see your March 20th time entry?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. This time entry is billed to the rule 144A matter; correct, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. And that is the debenture offering; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And would you read the time entry that you wrote that day.

A. "TC," that means telephone calls, "with Fernicola, Goudis, Kelly," that is Janet

Kelly, who worked for David Fannin; Fannin. "Review Dow Jones and Bloomberg stories, advice on disclosures."

Q. Does that refresh your recollection, sir, that one of the things that you did on March 20th was review Wall Street's reaction to the March 19th press release?

MR. MALLOY: The question?

Q. Did it refresh your recollection?

A. The prior question was whether I monitored Wall Street's reaction. I don't think I monitored anything. Did I read media coverage of the press release? Obviously, I would have, yes.

Q. That's what that time entry relates to on March 20th; correct?

A. Part of it.

Q. Mr. Goudis was, do you remember Rich Goudis? You referred to him earlier this morning.

A. Yes, he was the PR guy.

Q. He was the investor relations person.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember your conversation with Mr. Goudis that day?

A. I do not, no.
Q. Do you recall if Mr. Goudis was reporting to you what he was hearing from Wall Street analysts?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Goudis where he reported to you what he was hearing from Wall Street analysts relating to the --
MR. MALLOY: Well.
Q. -- relating to the March 19th press release?
DI MR. MALLOY: I will instruct him not to answer questions regarding the conversations that you had with Mr. Goudis.
Q. I am not asking about the substance, at this point, as opposed to whether there was such a conversation.
MR. MALLOY: You asked whether there was a conversation about particular substance. You are calling for him to reveal the substance of conversations.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Are you instructing him not to answer?

MR. MALLOY: Would you read back the question.
A. I have no recollection; so, it doesn't matter.
Q. Do you see the statement there, sir, at the end of your time entry that, relating to advice on disclosures?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall what that subject related to?
A. Not really, no.
Q. Do you recall that analysts, do you recall the analyst reaction to the press release, sir?
A. No.
Q. I will show you two or three analysts' reports to see if it refreshes your recollection.
A. I recall it was not positive. Do I recall precisely what they said? No.
Q. I will show you what I will ask the court reporter to mark as CPH Exhibit Number 388, and it is a two-page document bearing Bear, Stearns' production number 51 and 52.

Page 341

And it is a research equity, research report issued by Connie Maneaty at Bear, Stearns, relating to Sunbeam.
(CPH Exhibit 388, documents Bates Nos. 51 to 52 , marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. Do you have CPH Exhibit 388 in front of you?
A. I have it, yes.
Q. This is a report issued by Connie Maneaty at Bear, Stearns on March 19th, 1998, Orelating to Sunbeam; do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And the headline of it states: "Sunbeam SOC - 45 - buy"; do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. And the headline below that reads: "4-and-one-half point drop unwarranted, buy reaffirmed, one year target remains 60 dollars"; do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Do you recall seeing this document in connection with your review of Wall Street reaction to the March 19th press release?
A. I don't recall it, no.

Page 342

MR. BEMIS: I would like to show you what we will mark as CPH Exhibit Number 389. This is a two-page document that bears Bates number CPH 1393262 to 263. This is a Goldman, Sachs investment research report issued on March 20th, 1998, relating to Sunbeam.
(CPH Exhibit 389, documents Bates Nos. 3104 to 05 , marked for identification as of this date.)
A. I have it.
Q. Do you recall seeing this document, sir?
A. Not really.
Q. Do you see the first bullet point underneath the financial information?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. It states: "Continue to recommend purchase of SOC"; do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you see that, further into that paragraph, excuse me, in the second bullet point, you see that Ms. Fontenelli is adjusting her expected net sales target for Sunbeam's first quarter?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 343

A. Yes.
Q. And that she indicates that her range previously had been 285 to $295 million; do you see that?
A. Aha.
Q. You have to answer Yes or No, sir.
A. Yes.
Q. And that she is adjusting her range down to 275 to $280 million, based on the press release; correct?
A. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: I move to strike that entire section of questioning. There is no foundation. You are asking the witness to read from a document that he has never seen or never saw before.
Q. Mr. Fogg, Morgan Stanley had an opportunity to comment on the press release that was issued on March 19th, before that press release was finalized; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. At the time that the press release was issued, was it your understanding that Morgan Stanley had signed off on it?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.

Page 344

Foundation.
A. It was my understanding that everyone on the large call had been, had come to an agreement on what we should say, yes.
Q. Morgan Stanley was part of that group; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And was it your view, sir, that Morgan Stanley was in the driver's seat with respect to what Sunbeam would say in that first quarter 1998 -- excuse me, the March 19th, 1998 press release?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.
A. "The driver's seat"? No, I would not use that term.
Q. If Morgan Stanley wasn't satisfied with the disclosures made in the March 19th press release that Morgan Stanley would have declined to proceed with the pricing of the debenture offering the next day, you understood that, sir; right?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form, foundation.
A. Yes.

Page 345

Q. And Sunbeam wanted that debenture offering to proceed; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. It was important to Sunbeam's ability to complete the three acquisitions that the debenture offering proceed; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If Morgan Stanley took the position that the disclosures in the March 19th press release were inadequate, Morgan Stanley was in the position not to proceed with the pricing of the debenture offering; correct?
A. Yes.
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation, argumentative.
Q. That was your understanding at the time; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. The debenture offering proceeded to pricing the next day; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall, sir, that the plan had been to issue debentures sufficient to raise about $500 million?
A. I wish I had a perfect recollection of that. If you say that is what it was, I can't quibble with you. I don't recall.

MR. MALLOY: He is just asking you what you remember.
A. I don't recall exactly how much it was supposed to raise.
Q. Do you recall that, at the end, after the March 19th press release was issued, the size of the debenture offering was significantly increased?
A. I recall that it was oversubscribed.
Q. And the size of the offering was, therefore, increased; do you recall that?
A. Correct.
Q. Were you involved in the conversations on March 19th, where Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam representatives discussed pricing of the debentures?
A. No.
Q. Were you involved in any discussions relating to increasing the size of the debenture offering on that day?
A. I don't recall being involved in any, no.
Q. Did the company seek advice from you with respect to the advisability of increasing the size of the debenture offering?

A. I don't recall any such request to me.
Q. Sir, do you recall that after, and we have seen a time entry for you relating to this general subject on March 20th; correct?
A. March 20th? Yes.
Q. The review of reports relating to reaction to the press release; correct?
A. The entry talks about Dow Jones and Bloomberg reports, yes.
Q. Your understanding, your recollection today is that that entry related to reviewing matters concerning the March 19th press release; correct?
MR. MALLOY: I don't think he testified that he recollected work on that day at all.
Q. Do you recall?
A. I think I testified that I am sure that I would not have ignored the reaction to the press release.
Q. Your belief is that that March 19th, or, excuse me, the March 20th entry related to reviewing those kinds of reports; correct?

A. That's my belief.
Q. Do you recall that after that day, after March 20th, you stopped performing work on the Sunbeam transaction for several days?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Let me show you a couple things and see if they refresh your memory. I will show you what we will mark as CPH Exhibit Number 390. It is a two-page document, and it is a Skadden Arps fax cover sheet and a March 20th, 1998 memorandum from Blaine V. Fogg to Adam Emmerich, re Sunbeam/Coleman.
(CPH Exhibit 390, documents Bates Nos. 55 to 56, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. I will also give you your calendars, so that you can have that next to this document.
MR. MALLOY: It is 1 o'clock, now. We would like to take --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Could I have three more minutes on this and we will be at a breaking point.
MR. MALLOY: Yes.

Page 349

MR. MARKOWSKI: Would you mark this as 391.
(CPH Exhibit 391, documents Bates Nos. 19637 to 644, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Fogg, can you identify for us what exhibits 390 and 391 are?
A. Um, 390 appears to be a one-page memo that I faxed to Adam Emmerich at Wachtel Lipton on March 20th, 1998.
391 appears to be a copy of some pages from my appointment calendar starting in late February of 1998 and continuing on into March. Yes.
Q. And in your March 20th memorandum to Mr. Emmerich, sir, in the last paragraph -- would you read that to us, please.
A. "In my absence next week Allison Amorison will be handling these matters, as well as other matters which may arise between now and the closing."
Indicating I was going someplace for a week.
Q. Ms. Amorison was an associate working on the transaction; correct, sir?

Page 350

A. Correct.
Q. Do you recall -- I do not know if this is at all helpful to you, sir, but your calendar doesn't contain any, I guess it has a, there is something reacted, I hadn't noticed that. There is a redaction from your calendar for the week of March 23rd; do you see that?
A. I do.
Q. Do these documents assist you in recalling where you were between March 20th and March 30th?
A. No.
Q. Does this refresh your recollection that there was a hiatus in your involvement in these transactions between shortly after the time the press release was issued, until approximately the day in which Sunbeam's acquisition of my client's Coleman stock occurred?
A. It would appear from these documents that there was a hiatus, perhaps even a vacation, but I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall what it was. Okay.

BLAINE FOGG, having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:
CONTINUED EXAMINATION
BY MR. MARKOWITZ:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Fogg.
A. Good afternoon.
Q. Mr. Fogg, between the time the press release was issued and these events that we have spent a little time on on March 20th --
A. The March 19th --
Q. The March 19th press release. Thank you.
-- and the review you did of news stories related to the press release on the 20th, the pricing took place with respect to the debentures; do you recall that?
A. My understanding, yes.
Q. And in connection with the pricing, the offering memorandum for the debentures was finalized.
A. It would have been, yes.
Q. It is standard practice, is it not, sir, that an offering memorandum on a transaction like this is finalized promptly after the pricing takes place?
A. I am not sure I have enough experience to answer that question. I know of another situation for a client where I was involved. I don't get involved much in the financing aspects. But, actually, Mr. Fernicola and I handled another transaction for a client, within the last year or so, where we did not have the offering memorandum finalized for days after the deal was priced.
Q. In this case the offering memorandum was finalized promptly after pricing; was it not?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you recall that two Skadden Arps associates were at the printer of Global Financial Press on the night of March 19th, the day the press release was issued?
A. I don't recall who the printer was. I don't recall --
MR. MALLOY: He is just asking if you recall that fact.

A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you have Exhibit 384 in front of you, sir, the --
A. 384, yes.
Q. -- the printout of Skadden Arps' big records for March 1998, relating to the Sunbeam transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. Let me direct your attention to page 35 of 43. There is an entry towards the bottom of the page for A.S. Deitz.
A. Adrian Deitz.
Q. On March 19th.
A. On March 19th. Yes.
Q. Mr. Deitz spent 22 hours that day working on Sunbeam's rule 144A offering, correct, according to this record?
A. That's what it says.
Q. Do you see the statement at the end of his time record for that day, the last three sentences, begins with the words "attend printers"?
A. Yes.
Q. Attend?
A. "Attend printers to print final OM, discuss press release, pricing due diligence call."

Q. Who is, or who was Adrian Deitz in March of 1998?
A. Adrian Deitz, at that time, was associate here in the New York office. He is now a partner in the London office.
Q. In March of 1998 he was an associate?
A. Yes.
Q. I will direct your attention to page 40 of Exhibit 384. Do you see the reference to a T.E. Freed?
A. Todd Freed.
Q. On March 19th.
A. Yes. At the printer.
Q. Mr. Freed billed 15 hours that day on Sunbeam's 144A offering?
A. Yes. Associate then and associate now. I am not saying that it did not happen, I just don't recall it.
Q. So the record is complete, Mr. Freed's entry for that date states "drafting and revising offering memorandum at the printer for the Sunbeam corporation debt offering"; do you see that?

A. That's what it says.
Q. That doesn't refresh your recollection that that took place that night?
A. No. But obviously it did.
MR. MALLOY: He just wants to know your recollection.
Q. I will refer you to your time entry for March 19th, sir.
A. Where's that?
Q. Let's see if I can find it for you. It is on page 38.
A. Dinner, et cetera.
Q. Yes. Do you recall -- I will show you your calendar, also. Perhaps it will flesh it out.
A. I recall the dinner.
Q. You do.
A. Yes.
Q. There is a little more detail relating to this?
A. Mr. K's.
Q. That is what your calendar says?
A. A Chinese restaurant near the Waldorf.

Page 357

Q. This time that dinner was billed to the 144A offering; correct, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was present for the dinner?
A. Um, Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fannin -- Ruth Porat, several other Morgan Stanley people. Maybe Bill Strong. I don't remember. It was sort of a dinner to celebrate the pricing of the offering.
Q. Was there discussion that night relating to the press release, the March 19th press release, during the dinner?
A. I don't recall much discussion about it. It was more a social occasion than anything.
Q. Can you recall any business discussion relating to the Sunbeam transactions that took place that night, at the dinner?
A. I remember they were very happy that the offering was going to be a success. They had oversubscribed. Other than that, I don't recall much of anything.
Q. Who is the "they," sir, both Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam?

Page 358

A. Yes.
Q. Other than celebrating the fact that the debenture offering was moving forward, can you recall anything else?
A. I don't really recall anything else.
Q. Do you recall, sir, that Mr. Freed was a first-year associate at this time?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you receive any calls the night of March 19th, Mr. Fogg, from the Skadden lawyers present at the printer that night working on finalizing the offering memorandum, Mr. Freed or Mr. Deitz?
A. I don't recall any. I may have, but I don't know.
Q. At any time, sir, did anyone report to you, either that night or subsequently, about the events that took place that night at the printer?
A. Other than talking to Mr. Malloy and preparing for the deposition, I don't recall any discussion.
Q. Did anyone report to you, excluding Mr. Malloy -- in connection with your preparation for today, did anyone report to you, sir, that in connection with the activity that night relating to finalizing the offering memorandum for the debentures, that the Arthur Andersen representatives present that night objected to including the press release language in the offering memorandum?

018427

A. I don't recall hearing that.
Q. Let me direct your attention back to Exhibit 384, the time entry for Mr. Deitz that day, page 35.
A. Yes. The time for the 19th.
Q. March 19th. It states: "Attend printers to print final OM. Discuss press release." Do you see that? Do you see the entries?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you know what the entry in Mr. Deitz's time entry on March 19th relating to discussion of the press release related to?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation.
A. No. No. Other than what the three words are, "discuss press release," I don't.
Q. The press release had been issued on March 19th; correct?

Page 360

A. It had.
Q. Mr. Deitz wasn't involved in preparing it; was he?
A. No.
Q. The entry here wouldn't related to work that Mr. Deitz engaged in in the preparation or issuance of the press release; right?
A. Correct.
MR. BEMIS: Objection, form. Foundation. Calls for knowledge of a person other than the witness.
Q. Your answer, sir?
A. That is correct.
Q. Did anyone report to you, sir, that there was any upset that night at the printer between the Arthur Andersen personnel present and the Morgan Stanley personnel present?
A. I do not recall getting any such report.
Q. As you sit here today, you don't recall any report relating to the events of that night; correct?
A. I don't recall any report about what happened at the printers, no.

Page 361

(Pause.)
Q. Mr. Fogg, let me show you what has been previously marked as CPH Exhibit 112.
It is a copy of the March 25th, 1998 letter from Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley.
A. All right.
Q. Is it your testimony, sir, that you don't recall seeing this prior to March 30th, 1998?
A. I don't recall, yes.
Q. Do you believe that you did not, or is it --
A. I have no recollection.
Q. One way or other?
A. One way or the other.
Q. Let me direct your attention to the second page of the document, sir.
A. All right.
Q. Do you see the financial information reported at the top of the page?
A. Yes.
Q. It reports that Sunbeam's net sales for the period December 29th, 1997 through March 1st, 1998, are $72,018,000; correct?
A. That's what it says.

Page 362

Q. And that its net sales for the comparable period in the first quarter of 1997 were $143,499,000; correct?
A. That is what it says.
Q. So, this document would have put the reader of it on notice that Sunbeam's sales in the first two months of 1998 were about half of what they had been in the first quarter of the prior year; correct?
A. That's what it says.
Q. And this also states that Sunbeam had suffered a loss of $41,190,000 through the first two months of 1998; do you see that, sir?
A. I do.
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
Q. And that compared to a profit of 9 point -- 9,765,000, in the first two months of 1997?
MR. BEMIS: Same objection. You are just reading documents that the witness hasn't seen.
A. That is what it says.
Q. Did anyone advise you, sir, prior to the closing of Sunbeam's acquisition of my

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018428

client's interest in the Coleman Company, the Coleman Company, that Sunbeam had a $50 million swing, negative swing in its net earnings in the first two months of 1998?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form and foundation.
A. Prior to the closing --
MR. MALLOY: Can you read back the question.
A. I don't recall.
MR. BEMIS: Also misleading, the special charge of $30 million reflected there.
(Record read.)
MR. BEMIS: Same objections.
A. I don't recall receiving any such advice. I don't believe I did receive any such advice because, as I previously testified, Fannin called me a few days later and hit me like a ton of bricks and I was totally shocked that the first quarter had not been as good as the March 19th press release.
Q. Let me show you, sir, a document that has previously been marked as CPH Exhibit Number 380. This is a press release dated

March 25th, 1998, issued by Sunbeam Corporation, that bears the headline "Sunbeam Corporation announces successful private placement of $750 million of convertible debentures."
I would like you to take a moment to look at that press release, sir, and tell me whether you can recall seeing it previously.
A. I seem to recall having seen it at some point.
Q. Do you know whether Skadden Arps was consulted with respect to this press release before it was issued, sir?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether you were?
A. I don't really recall. Probably, but that is only speculation.
Q. Well, let me remind you, sir, that we went through some documents right before we broke at lunch that indicated that you were away from your office between March 20th and March 30th. Do you recall that?
A. Well --
MR. BEMIS: He was away?
A. We went through some documents that said that, I told Adam Emmerich that I was going to be away. I guess I was away. I don't recall.

Page 365

Q. Do you have any recollection of being consulted about the debenture offering press release while you were away from your office?
A. I don't recall.
Q. There is nothing in this press release, is there, sir, relating to Sunbeam's first quarter performance?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form. Foundation. Argumentative.
A. It doesn't appear to be.
Q. There is nothing in here about Sunbeam suffering a loss of $41 million in the first two months of the quarter; is there?
A. There doesn't appear to be.
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form. Foundation. Misleading.
Q. Sir, I want to go back to the conversation that you described this morning in your testimony, relating to a conversation that you had with Howard Gittes and, I believe, Peter Langerman; do you recall that testimony?

A. Yes.
Q. That is one of the conversations that you say that stood out in your mind; correct, sir? That took place after the closing of Sunbeam's acquisition in -- of my client's interest in the Coleman Company?
A. It is one of them, yes.
Q. Why does it stand out in your mind, sir?
A. I don't know.
Q. What do you recall Mr. Gittes -- Who initiated the conversation; do you recall?
A. It was Gittes.
Q. How did he do that?
A. He said, -- we were at MacAndrews & Forbes offices here in New York, and he asked Peter Langerman and me to step out and go into a smaller conference room.
Q. There was a larger group of people congregated that day?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the purpose for that larger meeting?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't recall. It was Sunbeam.
Q. And Mr. Gittes asked that you and Mr. Langerman meet with him privately; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. What do you recall happening next?
A. You can read back my prior testimony.
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Asked and answered.
Q. I want to make sure that the record is complete with respect to your recollection.
A. Mr. Gittes, who had been named to the Sunbeam board, said that it is an intolerable situation for me to be on the Sunbeam board, for other representatives of MacAndrews & Forbes to be involved on behalf of Sunbeam, while at the same time we have big claims against Sunbeam, MacAndrews & Forbes has big claims against Sunbeam, for duping us into taking Sunbeam's stock in connection with the Coleman acquisition.
We have to resolve this somehow. The only way we can do it is either to rescind the Coleman deal or reach some kind of a settlement. Whereupon, Langerman and/or I, said, Jesus, we don't think it is possible, or in the best interest of Sunbeam to rescind the Coleman deal.

Um, so, that is off the table.
Settlement we can discuss.
Q. For a layperson --
A. Then we went on and I said, but I can't represent either of you guys in this transaction.
Q. For a layperson, sir, what does it mean to rescind this transaction?
A. It means to undo it and put it, put the situation back in the place it would have been if the transaction had never occurred.
Q. Mr. Gittes was saying that it would be acceptable to MacAndrews & Forbes if Sunbeam returned Coleman Company's stock to MacAndrews & Forbes; is that what Mr. Gittes was proposing?
A. He was proposing a rescission. He did not elaborate as to what that was, but what I thought it was, was Sunbeam gives Coleman back to MacAndrews & Forbes, and MacAndrews & Forbes gives back to Sunbeam that which it received for Coleman. Stock and cash.

Q. And that conversation, either you or Mr. Langerman, or both of you, said, we are not prepared to discuss rescission, that is not on the table?
A. Right.
Q. What do you recall Mr. Gittes saying?
A. Well, we've got to settle somehow.
Q. Do you recall anything else about that private conversation that day?
A. No. Well, yes, as I testified earlier, that I told them that Skadden couldn't represent either Sunbeam or MacAndrews in that situation.
Q. Right. You have already described that to us. There is nothing else that you can recall?
A. I don't recall anything.
Q. Do you recall when that took place, how close in time to the closing of the acquisition by Sunbeam of my client's Coleman stock?
A. It was after Dunlap was terminated, which took place in the middle of June. It was after a bunch of us, including Jerry Levin, trooped down to Sunbeam on the next day, and we spent sort of a week down there trying to get our hands around where the hell the company was, what was going on. And it took place, it would have to be, I don't know, after June of 1998, certainly.

Q. Just so the record is complete with respect to this, Mr. Langerman, at that time, was a member of the Sunbeam board of directors; correct?
A. At the time of that conversation he was a chairman of the Sunbeam board of directors.
Q. When Mr. Dunlap was terminated, Mr. Langerman replaced him as chairman of the Sunbeam board; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. I will show you what we previously marked as CPH Exhibit Number 211. CPH Exhibit 211, sir, is a fax, the first page is a fax transmittal to James Lurie, Heather Stack and Adrian Deitz, care of Global Financial Press, and it is dated March 19th, 1998; do you see that, sir?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018430

Page 371

A. Yes.
Q. And attached to it is a draft document; do you see that?
A. Yes, I guess it is a draft.
Q. And the document is entitled "zero coupon convertible senior subordinated debentures, due 2018, purchase agreement."
A. Yes. I see that.
Q. Do you have an understanding what the purchase agreement is, sir?
A. Generally, sure.
Q. Can you describe that for us?
A. It is the agreement pursuant to which Morgan Stanley agrees to buy the bonds that Sunbeam is issuing, subject to certain terms and conditions, representation and warranties. It is like an underwriting agreement.
Q. The way this transaction was structured, Morgan Stanley was the initial pusher of the Sunbeam debentures?
A. Yes.
Q. And Morgan Stanley then resold those debentures to other parties; correct?

Page 372

A. Correct.
Q. I will direct your attention to -- did you see this document, not necessarily this particular version of it, but did you see the purchase agreement, either in final or draft form?
A. I don't remember it specifically.
Q. I direct your attention to page 5.
A. Page 5, yes.
Q. You see paragraph L, on page 5?
A. Yes.
Q. There is some language that is underlined in paragraph L; do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you read that, sir? Out loud.
A. "It being understood that the information set forth in the company's March 19th, 1998 press release shall not, in and of itself, constitute any such material adverse change or prospective material adverse change."
Q. Do you have an understanding why, do you have any knowledge why that language was being added to the draft purchase agreement on March 19th?

Page 373

A. I know why a lawyer representing Sunbeam would have --
MR. MALLOY: He is asking you for your recollection.
A. No. He did not ask that.
MR. MALLOY: I assume you are asking for his understanding based on his knowledge at the time, you are not asking him to formulate an opinion here.
BY MR. MARKOWITZ:
Q. Do you recall, at the time, sir, any discussion about adding language like this to the purchase agreement?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you know what purpose it serves?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you explain that?
A. So that the facts set forth in the March 19th, 1998 press release cannot serve as a basis for Morgan Stanley deciding not to close.
Q. Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam together were agreeing that the information set forth in the press release could not be used by Morgan Stanley as a basis for declining to close the purchase of the debentures; correct?

A. Correct.
Q. Do you know, was there any discussion during this time period, sir, or at any time prior to the closing of Sunbeam's purchase of my client's interest in Coleman Company, of raising with my client the question whether my client would view the information known to Morgan Stanley as a material adverse change?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to the form of the question.
A. I don't have any recollection.
Q. In your presence, sir, did you ever see a, hear a Morgan Stanley representative suggest to Sunbeam that Sunbeam should disclose to my client the information contained in the sheet that was the subject of Mr. Uzzi's report to Sunbeam -- excuse me, to Morgan Stanley, about the status of Sunbeam's first quarter sales? CPH Exhibit 16.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Don't have any recollection of Morgan Stanley saying to Sunbeam, this information needs to be disclosed to

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0184341

Page 375

MacAndrews & Forbes, the information in Exhibit CPH 16?
A. I don't recall any such statement.
Q. Do you recall, sir, that one of the activities that -- let me ask a background question, sir. You previously testified that there were two merger agreements relating to the Coleman Company acquisition; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. One was an agreement with my client; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was the second agreement?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall that it related to the acquisition of the publicly traded Sunbeam stock?
A. I don't recall. I would have to look at the agreements again.
Q. Let me show you. While we are getting the document, sir, do you recall that Sunbeam was acquiring 100 percent of Coleman Company in connection with the first quarter transactions?
A. In two steps.

Page 376

Q. The first step was the acquisition of my client's stock; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And my client had approximately 82 percent of Coleman Company stock?
A. Correct.
Q. The rest of it was held --
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.
Q. Excuse me. The rest of it was held by whom; do you recall?
A. It looks like public shareholders, I think.
Q. I will show you what we will mark as CPH Exhibit 392.
A. I believe the two documents were the first step document with your client and then the second step merger.
MR. MARKOWITZ: CPH Exhibit 392, sir, is a document that bears Bates number Morgan Stanley 8011 through 8066. It is entitled "Agreement and plan of merger, among Sunbeam Corporation Camper Acquisition Corp., and the Coleman Company," dated as of February 27th, 1998.

Page 377

(392 Exhibit 392, agreement, marked for identification as of this date.)
A. Yes.
Q. Can you identify for us, sir, what the CPH Exhibit 392 is?
A. The agreement and plan of merger, among Sunbeam Corporation and the Camper Acquisition Corp and the Coleman Company, dated as of February 27th, 1998. --
Q. What was the purpose of this agreement, sir; do you know?
A. I'd have to read it to tell you what the purpose was.
(Pause.)
A. I believe this was for the second step merger.
Q. The acquisition of the publicly traded Coleman stock?
A. Yes, I believe that is right.
Q. As part of the consideration that the public shareholders were to receive under this agreement, sir, Sunbeam was to issue registered shares of Sunbeam stock; is that correct?

Page 378

A. That is my recollection. Is that what it says?
Q. You can look, sir, but is that your recollection of --
A. My recollection.
Q. And Skadden Arps was involved in the activities relating to Sunbeam's registration of the shares necessary to complete the second stage of the Coleman Company acquisition; correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. That registration was not, did not become final for quite some period of time after this agreement; correct?
A. Absolutely right.
Q. Why is that?
A. Because in the -- first of all --
In the interim period, before we could get it filed and/or effective, a lot of things happened, like Arthur Andersen pulling its opinion for 1997 and the situation at Sunbeam unraveled.
Q. Do you recall that it was some period of time before Sunbeam was in a position to restate its 1997 financial statements?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0184132

A. Yes, I recall it.
Q. And that was one of the impediments to registering the --
A. Yes.
Q. -- the stock to be issued to the Coleman shareholders; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall that the Sunbeam restatement was completed in late 1998?
A. In that general time frame, yes. I don't recall when exactly.
Q. Do you recall that it was almost another year, perhaps even a little bit more, before the registration statement was finalized and became effective?
A. I know that it was a long time.
Q. Do you know what the impediment was to that, after Sunbeam filed its restated financial statements?
MR. MALLOY: I caution the witness that if any knowledge that you have on the subject comes from conversations with Sunbeam management, that you should break and talk about it to determine whether there was a privilege issue.

THE WITNESS: I don't think so.
Q. One impediment was that your client was taking the position that it had a claim against Sunbeam and there was a settlement of that claim, pursuant to which your client was getting some additional consideration and it was thought advisable, maybe even necessary, to include, to give that same additional consideration to the public shareholders.
So, we sort of had to wait for the settlement to get finalized.
Um, there was a hang-up with the SEC, I know.
Q. Are you familiar with that?
A. I was involved in some of that, yes.
Q. Let me show you a document and see if it helps focus this for us. This is a document that we will mark as CPH Exhibit 393. It bears the Bates number Morgan Stanley confidential 14766 to 14775. It is a memorandum from Steve Daniels to Steve Isko dated July 30th, 1999, re Sunbeam S4 comments.
A. I seem to recall that there was also litigation brought by the, I think Coleman shareholders, that wanted to settle or something. I don't remember specifically.

(CPH Exhibit 393, document Bates Morgan Stanley confidential 14766 to 14775, marked for identification as of this date.)
Q. You do remember that there were also some issues at the SEC after all of that was taken care of?
A. I remember one that --
Q. Sir, do you have Exhibit 393 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen either this document, the July 30th, 1999 memorandum, or the attached August 3rd, 1999 letter from Skadden Arps to the SEC?
A. I am sorry?
Q. Have you seen either the July 30th, 1999 cover memo or the attached August 3rd, 1999 letter from Skadden Arps to the SEC?
A. Yes.
Q. The August 3rd letter is signed by you; correct?
A. Well, that is not my handwriting.

Page 382

Somebody signed it on my behalf.
Q. You did see the letter before it was signed?
A. Yes, I believe I did.
Q. Does this correspondence relate to the registration statement, sir?
A. Just let me -- there is also a letter here having to do with the S1, which was the registration statement relating to the debentures, but I guess you are not asking me to look at that one.
Q. I am focused on the public stock deal.
A. The Coleman, back-end merger deal?
Q. Yes.
A. What was the question?
Q. My question is whether these documents relate to the registration statement relating to that stock.
MR. BEMIS: Which documents in this package are you referring to?
MR. MARKOWITZ: The cover memo and the August 3rd document that I referred --
A. The first, the two-page cover memo

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0184433

Page 383

that I am cc'd from Mr. Daniels does relate to that.

And then the two-page letter to the SEC, dated August 3rd, 1999, from me, signed by someone on my behalf, does relate to this.

Q. Your August 3rd letter to the SEC, sir, seeks, asks that the SEC do whatever it can to expedite receipt of the staff comments relating to the S4; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you remember there being frustration with getting the SEC's comments on the draft S4?

A. I just remember a need to get it done and the SEC was holding us up, and some frustration there.

Q. Was there a desire on Sunbeam's part to move as quickly as possible to get this registration statement on file and effective?

A. Yes.

Q. Why was that?

A. They wanted to complete the acquisition of Coleman and own 100 percent of it.

Q. And Skadden Arps was doing whatever it could to expedite that; correct?

Page 384

A. We were trying to move it through the SEC, yes.

Q. Do you recall that Sunbeam was incurring penalties under the merger agreement as a result of the delay in registering the stock?

MR. BEMIS: Objection to form.

A. I don't think there was a merger agreement. I don't recall any penalties on the merger agreement.

Q. Do you recall that there were other penalties that Sunbeam was incurring because of the delay?

A. Not as a result of that registration statement, but there were penalties under the debentures as a recall for the failure to get the debenture registration statement -- registration statement, effectively --

Q. You said you could recall one significant SEC issue that delayed final approval of the S4 registration statement, for the stock to be issued to the Coleman public shareholders.

A. Right.

Q. What was that issue?

A. It was an issue that is under SEC rule 13E3, which relates to going private transactions, which says that the board of the acquiring company, in this case Sunbeam, has to take a position as to whether or not the deal is fair to the shareholders of Coleman. The Sunbeam board was reluctant to do that.

MR. MALLOY: I caution you not to get into communications with counsel.

A. I told the SEC that the Sunbeam board was reluctant to do that under the circumstances. And they insisted, and we somehow -- and I don't recall exactly how we resolved the issue.

Q. You don't recall?

A. We did put in some recommendation.

Q. Ultimately, it was resolved and the registration became effective in late 1999?

A. Right.

Q. And the second stage of the transaction, then, closed in the first part of the year 2000; correct?

A. Right. Well, I don't remember where exactly, when it closed, but it closed. It closed.

Q. I take it, sir, that Skadden was doing whatever it could to expedite, as best it could, the activities that needed to take place for that transaction to close; correct?

A. Yes.

MR. MARKOWITZ: We will take a short break. I think I may be completed.

MR. MALLOY: Off the record.

(Recess.)

MR. MARKOWITZ: Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. BEMIS: I have no redirect. Thank you. I have no further questions.

Summary and Investment Conclusion

We have listed the Coleman Escrow 1st & 2nd Priority Discount Notes as Strong Buys as we believe the company is on the brink of an impressive turnaround. After an earnings stumble in 1996, a new management team, lead by Mr. Jerry Levin, is refocusing the company on profitability while attempting to revitalize the industry through increased advertising and new product innovations. The first tangible result from these initiatives appeared in the second quarter of 1997, when the company reported a 30 basis point improvement in their EBITDA margin. With the majority of Mr. Levin's restructuring plan now in place, we are expecting positive earnings comparisons for the last half of 1997 and a return to full earnings momentum in 1998.

Our investment case is not solely based on management's case for a turnaround. Our own research has shown there is an inherent value in Coleman's franchise which cannot be damaged by one year of poor performance. The components of this value are Coleman's dominant marketshare (see exhibit 13), its breadth of distribution, the overall health of the camping industry (see exhibits 10-12) and the equity existing in the Coleman brand name. It is a name that has been around since the 1900's and equates value, quality, reliability and camping to the consumer.

We believe Coleman's turnaround efforts will produce 1997 EBITDA of $123.7 million and 1998 EBITDA of $162.1 million. Applying a conservative multiple of 12.0x EBITDA which is below the median take-out multiple of 13.4x EBITDA for consumer products (see appendix 1), we derive a 1998 equity valuation of $25 per share for Coleman stock, providing equity coverage of 2.3x and 5.9x for the accreted value of the 1st and 2nd Priority issues respectively. Given the historical pricing correlation between the Coleman Escrow issues and Coleman stock, we have set a one year spread target of 350 basis points for the 1st Priority Issue and 450 basis points for the 2nd Priority Notes.

With our Strong Buy opinion, we are placing particular emphasis on the 2nd Priority issue, which we feel trades at a spread to the 1st Priority that is disproportionate to the associated risk. Although we recognize that if earnings continue to deteriorate the value of this issue will decline exponentially (see exhibit 5), we do not foresee any risk of a liquidity crisis at the company, and furthermore view the weighting of the tranches to be favorable to the 2nd Priority issue. Currently, the greatest upside potential exists in this tranche where we view a more appropriate spread between the two issues to be closer to 100 basis points.

In our valuation, we apply a 12.0x multiple of EBITDA, which is well below the industry median of 13.4x (see appendix 1). We believe our valuation is conservative given Coleman's strong market share and growth prospects. We have not done a downside valuation in the case of a liquidity crises as we do not perceive this to be a risk at any time in the near future. Even at its current depressed EBITDA levels, Coleman's operating company has interest coverage of 1.8x and revolver availability of $174 million, providing ample liquidity to the company should they not deliver a turnaround in the expected time frame.

Getting Back to Basics

The key credit issue for Coleman is whether or not the company will be able to successfully complete a turnaround. The company experienced a period of growth through acquisition, without creating the infrastructure necessary to channel this growth into profits. The inefficiencies associated with this management error manifested themselves into a 46% decline in EBITDA in 1996. Mr. Levin took the position of Chairman and CEO in February of this year, and although he has been very active in making changes at Coleman, investors are yet to see these efforts translated into positive earnings momentum.

We are believers in Mr. Levin's ability to turn Coleman around. Moderate earnings appreciation will occur in the second half of 1997 as the company begins to receive the benefits of their cost savings plan. Our spread to treasury targets for the end of 1997 are 400 and 600 basis points for the 1st Priority and 2nd Priority issues respectively. The company will have a full return to earnings momentum in 1998 as the full impact from cost savings initiatives are felt coupled with earnings growth from their acquisitions and new products.

Our expectations for 1998 EBITDA are $160 million, representing a 16% increase over the company's 1995 historic high EBITDA of $137 million. The company's performance in the first half of 1998 will demonstrate to investors the untapped strength of the Coleman brand and the newly formed existence of an operating base that is exceptionally well-positioned for the growth of the Coleman franchise. This prospect of stable earnings going forward will produce spread to treasuries of 350 basis points for the 1st Priority Notes and 450 basis points for the 2nd Priority Notes, which is in line with comparable consumer product companies.

Our investment hypothesis is based on the overall health of the camping industry, the opportunities associated with this health which are yet to be exploited, the enduring strength of the Coleman brand name and Mr. Levin's ability to bring operational discipline to a neglected infrastructure.

Investment Strengths

- Coleman is the leading brand name in the camping industry with nearly four times the market share of their nearest competitor.
- The Coleman brand name is widely recognized by consumers and is associated with quality and value.
- The camping industry has shown impressive growth over the past 10 years.
- The industry remains highly fragmented with several opportunities for further consolidation.
- Prior to new management, Coleman was run with growth for growth's sake versus a strategy of profitable growth. This has left new management with several opportunities for cost-cutting.
- Coleman exceeds the industry in terms of distribution, selling in mass merchandisers, sporting goods stores, wholesale clubs, sports specialty shops, food and drug chains, catalogue showrooms, home center stores and military exchanges. This is in contrast to their competitors whom generally focus on two or three channels. (Canvas & Camping Equipment, The U.S., Market, September 1996; Euromonitor International).
- Coleman has an advantageous relationship with retailers due to their breadth and scope of product offerings, strong brand recognition and high advertising expenditure. An example of the benefits of this relationship is when Coleman entered the camping accessory market, several retailers removed the market leader, Coughlan's, from their shelves to make room for Coleman.

Investment Weakness

- The camping industry is vulnerable to performance downturns in the event of poor weather
- The industry is highly seasonal, with the majority of sales occurring in the spring and summer seasons.
- The U.S. government has been gradually cutting the budget of the National Park Service, making the maintenance of these parks more difficult and limiting their accessibility. Backlogs in maintenance and reconstruction of trails for the USDA Forest Service are estimated at over $300 million, while the National Park Service puts its maintenance deficit in the billions of dollars. (1997 State of The Industry Report, The Outdoor Recreation Coalition of America and The Sporting Goods Manufacturers Association).
- The Japanese market, which represents an estimated 10% of Coleman's sales has had poor economic conditions with no expectation of a recovery.
- During 1996 and the first half of 1997, Coleman has reported deteriorating earnings results. New management is currently undertaking a turnaround strategy but it is yet to produce positive earnings comparisons.
- The equity sponsor of Coleman is perceived by some in the high yield market as lacking credibility after a stumble in a Marvel Comics investment. Although this situation was unique and bears no relevance on Coleman, it leaves Coleman securities vulnerable to "sympathetic trade-offs".

Nature's First Green is Gold

According to Jim Lyons, assistant U.S. Secretary of Agriculture for Natural Resources and Environment, recreation has replaced mining, grazing and timber harvest as the most important use of U.S. Forest Service Land. The total contribution of Forest Service Land to the U.S. economy is $130.7 billion. Of this, recreation contributes $97.8 million, Fish & Wildlife $12.9 million, mineral production $10.1 million and timber, $3.5 million (National Forest Service).

A clear indication of this new popularity is attendance levels in the National Parks. With the most popular parks rivaling the attendance at Disneyworld (which offers year-round entertainment versus seasonal) it is little wonder these parks require reservations for guaranteed spaces during peak seasons.

Fueling this growth is a heightened awareness of America's natural beauties, a desire by families for vacations in child-friendly environments, and a "back to nature" movement attracting the baby boomer generation.

This new breed of campers, which extend beyond the usual backpackers, are not willing to sacrifice the comforts of home in order to experience nature. This has produced an opportunity for Coleman to capitalize on.

Campers are no longer satisfied with a backpack, tent and sleeping bag. They require the amenities of home which include comfortable, warm sleeping bags, larger tents, high-tech cooking equipment and everything must be lightweight and compact. This class of consumer is willing to frequently upgrade their existing equipment if the new product is worthwhile and pay more for added convenience and luxury.

New products and innovations also have the ability to draw new users into the category, by increasing consumer awareness and broadening the appeals of camping.

To date, however, manufacturers have failed to fully take advantage of the favorable trends affecting the camping industry. There has been an overall lack of innovation and advertising by manufacturers. Coleman has been cited to us as an exception to this rule by industry observers and in the past year has introduced two exceptional products to appeal to the family camper, the Quick Bed™ air mattress, which inflates in less than three minutes and the 3-person Fastrack™ tent, which is designed to set up in only 60 seconds. Coleman, however, has not yet fully developed their own potential in this category and we expect it to be a source of further growth in the coming years.

Coleman dominates the camping equipment industry. The company has nearly four times the market share of their nearest competitor and is the only camping equipment and hardware manufacturer that offers retailers a broad spectrum of products. Historically they have aimed primarily at the middle income consumer, but their acquisition of Camping Gaz has successfully positioned the company in all segments in both Europe and America.

Given its fragmented nature, the industry has undergone a great deal of consolidation over the past 10 years, with Coleman being a very active participant in this trend. The second and third largest players, American Recreation Equipment manufactures with a 10.1% share and American Camper, holding an 8.4% share have also been active on the acquisition front. American Camper's parent Brunswick, was rumored to have been in talks to purchase Coleman in 1995.

A Period of Growth

When MacAndrews & Forbes first acquired Coleman in 1989, he hired Mr. Levin to serve as Chairman. Mr. Levin immediately lowered debt and improved profitability by selling several non-core divisions. Mr. Levin served as chairman from, 1989 to 1991. After his departure, several leaders served in the intervening period with the final being Mr. Michael Hammes as Chairman and CEO. During this period Coleman underwent a strategy of growth through acquisition. Given the high fragmentation of the industry, and the strong Coleman brand name, the reasoning behind these acquisitions was not unsound. These acquisitions included:

- Eastpak - a leading designer, manufacturer and distributor of branded daypacks, sports bags and related products
- Sanborn Manufacturing Company - a manufacturer of a broad line of portable and stationary air compressors
- Seatt Corporation - a leading designer, manufacturer and distributor of smoke alarms, thermostats and carbon monoxide detectors. The reasoning behind this product extension was the sector would leverage Coleman's reputation for providing safe and reliable products.

- Active Technologies, Inc. - a manufacturer of technologically advanced lightweight generators and battery charging equipment

- Sierra Corporation of Fort Smith, Inc. - a manufacturer of portable outdoor and recreational folding furniture and accessories.

- Camping Gaz - a leader in the European camping equipment market.

Although each of these acquisitions were good strategic fits, where management made their mistake was in failing to create an infrastructure able to profitably manage the new divisions and maximize the synergies.

All of these mistakes became apparent in 1996, after the acquisition of Camping Gaz. Operating company debt ballooned to $740 million from $640 million in the year ago period. EBITDA dropped to $98.6 million from its 1995 high of $127.6 million and the company's stock dropped from a high of $26 in early 1996 to a low of $12.125 at the end of that year. It was at this time Mr. Levin was asked to return as Chairman and interim CEO.

Returning Home

In returning to Coleman, Mr. Levin is facing several of the challenges seen at Revlon in 1991. Fundamentally, the company lacks a management infrastructure conducive to organic growth and profitability. Strategically, Coleman has neglected the wants of consumers for a prolonged period of time. While it is the leader in a growing market, the company's products are often regarded as commodities. Many consumers still use the same Coleman products they purchased decades ago. Coleman has remained the category leader and continues to offer products that are top-of-the-market in quality, price-points, durability, convenience and safety. But this message has gotten lost - especially with retailers.

The first phase of Mr. Levin's turnaround plan has been to initiate operational improvements to drive profitability.

- In March, Coleman announced plans to leave the company's Golden, Colorado headquarters and sell the corporate jet - legacies of the previous management.

Mr. Levin made the decision to move back to Wichita, Kansas, where Coleman was founded in 1902. Wichita is currently home to Coleman's largest workforce and core operations. Wichita, Sedgewick County and Kansas are providing a combined $500,000 in economic development funding for the relocation. In addition to closing the Golden, Colorado headquarters, the company closed its regional headquarters in Geneva Switzerland. The international operations will now be run out of Coleman's New York offices. Eastpak's headquarters will remain in Boston.

We believe this move proved to benefit the company twofold. The first is the obvious cost savings associated with the closure of the pricey Colorado headquarters. More importantly, however, we view the company's decision to return to Wichita, Kansas as an important symbolic action to employees and retailers that Coleman is returning to its roots and remains a focused company committed to its legacy.

- The company closed and consolidated one international and three domestic factories and cut its workforce of 7,000 by approximately 10%. These factories included the Hastings Nebraska, New Ulm, Minnesota and Manchester, UK factories. This legacy of a bloated infrastructure appears to have been the result of previous management neglecting to rationalize product lines and factories as new acquisitions were made.

- The company is in the process of eliminating unprofitable products, representing 1/3 of their SKUs. This has removed approximately $100 million in low or no-profit revenue. Coleman has exceptional manufacturing capabilities which has always been a source of pride for the company. When a retailer would ask for a product to be manufactured in a new color, Coleman was able and willing to comply. This accommodation was done without undergoing a cost-benefit analysis, causing a proliferation in SKUs. At the end of 1996, Coleman had over 6,000 SKUs, with 1500 of those SKUs being added in one year.

- Liquidity will be improved by $100 million through reductions in working capital. During the first quarter, inventory was flat despite this quarter being the building period before the peak summer season. By the second quarter of 1997, Coleman had lowered year-over-year inventory and accounts receivables by $100 million, well ahead of our expectations for timing.

- Coleman plans to sell their pressure-washer business, which historically has been a drag on earnings. Through management's recent operational improvements, this division has since turned around, creating more value, but also creating the possibility that it will no longer be sold. If sold, the net proceeds are estimated to equal the cash restructuring charges, creating a neutral cash flow affect for the year.

- Mr. Levin is rebuilding the team around him that will redirect Coleman to profitable levels in both corporate and divisions. In general, he is hiring individuals he or Mr. Perelman have worked with before. Most recently, he hired Joseph Page as Chief Financial Officer. Since 1993, Mr. Page has served as EVP and CFO of Andrews Group, a wholly owned subsidiary of MacAndrews & Forbes. Mr. Page has also served as CFO of New World Communications Group, a company that was previously controlled by MacAndrew & Forbes Holdings.

  David Ramon was appointed President of the Outdoor Recreation Group, which represents the core brands and business for Coleman. Mr. Ramon was most recently President and Chief Operating Officer of New World Television Inc.. Prior to joining New World Communications, Mr. Ramon was EVP and CFO of Gillett Holdings, Inc., where he successfully managed and directed the restructuring of Gillett Holdings in three distinct and profitable businesses (Vail Associates, Packerland Packing Co. and New World Television Inc.).

To date, the company has put into place over $50 million of annualized cost savings against the 1997 plan from reductions in personnel, production facilities and administrative overhead combined with improved productivity and working capital management.

The second phase of Levin's strategy is to change the way in which Coleman does business. This includes establishing a corporate culture that encourages communication, increasing Coleman's profile with the consumer, bringing new excitement to the industry through product innovations, creating global unity through the Coleman brand names, seeking international growth and managing the company as one operation thereby maximizing synergies between divisions.

Employee Development. With the removal of the corporate headquarters to Colorado, Coleman lost touch with one of its most important resources - its employees. Mr. Levin has long recognized the importance of a corporate culture for the long-term success of a company. At Revlon he created an environment which fostered employee development, communication and teamwork while rewarding individual achievements.

We are expecting similar actions to be taken at Coleman. Already, Mr. Levin has accelerated efforts in training and development and has created a new incentive system for management that rewards performance against defined profit, cash flow and globalization goals.

Increased advertising. Coleman's greatest advantage is their brand name. With three times the market share of their nearest competitor, Coleman has the highest consumer brand awareness level of any camping manufacturer. Mr. Levin intends to exploit this advantage with increased advertising and exposure. With the exception of Jansport, the rest of the industry players lack the scope or scale to advertise on a large-scale basis and historically have not attempted to do so.

Traditional advertising for camping equipment has been magazines such as Camping Magazine, Camping Today, Field and Stream, Outdoor Life, Outdoor Retailer and Backpacker (Canvas & Camping Equipment, The U.S. Market, September 1996; Euromonitor International). We are expecting Mr. Levin, however, to broaden Coleman's reach into television advertising such as ESPN, ESPN2 and MTV in an effort to tap one of the lowest penetration age groups for camping, the 18-24 year old bracket. Mr. Levin is hoping to increase Coleman's sales through both existing users and new ones.

Product innovation. Camping is not a mature market, it is a growth area and there are new users entering every day. Levin hopes to attract these new users to the Coleman name while enticing old users to update existing products through the excitement of innovations, with these new products being supported by the afore mentioned increased advertising. Mr. Levin has stated his intention to increase Coleman's commitment to Research and Development in order to meet these goals.

The camping market is hungry for new products as the industry has neglected the changing demographics occurring in today's camping population (see appendix 4). Seeking an economical and child-friendly vacation in the splendor of the outdoors, today's campers are older and more likely to have a family. These segments of the population are more inclined to require comfort, convenience and consistency in their camping experience. They are willing to pay more for the added-luxury and to update existing products. This represents a currently untapped sales opportunity for Coleman to develop.

This does not mean Coleman plans to ignore the needs of campers and backpackers who do like to "rough it". These campers also present sales opportunities with product innovations as they are always seeking new products which are lighter, more reliable and mobile. This market also has the added benefit of dedicated press coverage through consumer interest magazines such as Camping Today, which provides a higher consumer profile for Coleman.

Examples of product innovations with large growth potential that Mr. Levin has identified already in Coleman's repertoire include:

1. The Quick Bed™ air mattress which inflates in less than three minutes.

2. A 22 pound, gas-powered electrical generator that is about one-third the weight of competitive products, the Coleman® Powermate® 1000 Generator. This portable generator weighs 40 pounds less than its nearest competitor.

3. The Peak 1® X-Series™ collapsible backpacking stoves. These stoves won the 1997 Editors's Choice Award from Backpacker Magazine.

4. The Liquid Fuel (propane/butane mix) patent pending withdrawl mechanism and patent pending interconnection devise used in the Peak 1® X-Series™ collapsible backpacking stoves. This innovation will also be used in future Coleman Family products.

5. The 3-person Fastrack™ tent, with its attached preassembled frame, is designed to set up in only 60 seconds.

Brand Globalization. Levin will be applying his packaged goods to Coleman's strong repertoire of brands, focusing on the core brands of Coleman, Camping Gaz, Powermate and Eastpack. His strategy to maintain and grow Coleman's leadership position in the worldwide outdoor recreation business will be expanding and globalizing the brands with a distinct and uniform image throughout the world.

The obvious operational benefits to this strategy are the significant cost savings to be realized. By globalizing the products, packaging and advertising of these brand names Coleman will be able to further consolidate purchasing, production and marketing. Mr. Levin instituted these measures at Revlon, producing significant operating leverage the company is still benefiting from today.

Overall, we view the globalization of the brands as an important measure in the building of an infrastructure that is conducive to profitable growth. This new structure will enable management to have a greater level of focus with their time, a fundamental that appeared to be lacking previously.

International

International operations currently represent approximately 25% of sales, with the majority of these sales derived from Europe and Japan.

The company plans on growing their presence in emerging markets - believing that to be an investment in the future growth of the company. Currently in Asia, the company has a presence in Hong Kong, South Korea, Indonesia and the Philippines. The main goal in these markets is to increase distribution and establish Coleman as the pre-eminent camping brand. It is not expected to be a major contributor to earnings for the next few years.

One of Coleman's larger international markets, Japan, has suffered recently in the past years. A poor economy, which has shown no indicators for improving, has hampered sales. Management is working to alleviate some of the problems in this difficult operating environment, but a recovery is not expected soon.

The greatest problem the company has had to face is inventories - retailers had never adjusted the levels to reflect the lower sales levels being experienced. Mr. Levin and his team this year have gone in and lowered inventories with wholesalers. This has been a painful process which harmed second quarter earnings for the company, but management believes the majority of reductions have been taken, with little impact expected going forward.

Japan is a large camping market. About 14.6 million people (4 million households) engage in camping, with this number growing by 4-5% per year. There are 3,000 campgrounds in Japan today, with an average occupancy rate of 14%. This compares to the U.S. occupancy rate of 45%. (Chamber World Network, International U.S. & Foreign Commercial Service).

The lower usage rate can be attributed to the lack of amenities provided at these campgrounds, most of which don't offer hot showers, sufficient sanitation facilities or organized out-door leisure programs for campers. Only 900 campgrounds actually allow campers to drive to their sites, the remaining ones require campers to park in a central parking area from which the tent must be carried to the campsite. This lack of user-friendliness makes it difficult for campers to spend more than 2-3 days "roughing it" and is a very large obstacle for families camping. In recognition of the dearth of organization in the Japanese camping industry, the U.S. Recreational Vehicle Industry Association, the U.S. Recreational Park Trailer Industry Association and the Commercial Service of the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo filed a joint appeal to the Government of Japan to form a new regulatory framework for the industry (Chamber World Network, International US&FCS).

The first step in formulating this new regulatory framework occurred in March of this year, when the Ministry of Construction issued a notice relaxing the BSL regulations for trailers used in campgrounds for destination camping purposes. Although the wording was highly ambiguous, the notice should suffice to give developers the ability to undertake 10-20 campground upgrades every year. (Chamber World Network, International US&FCS).

We believe this upgrading of camping facilities could be a potential boon to Coleman in the future. With the lack of improvement in the Japanese economy we believe more families would turn to camping as a frugal vacation alternative - were it more user-friendly and convenient.

In Europe, the new management team has made the important step of integrating the acquisition Camping Gaz into Coleman's distribution system. The increased presence this will give Camping Gaz coupled with the synergies will create earnings appreciation in 1998.

Camping Gaz is the leading camping manufacturer in Europe but has a similar problem to Coleman, the brand has been taken for granted. Consequently, Camping Gaz required a face-lift. The brand has been the same to consumers since its introduction and needed a new look to serve as a reminder of the higher technology products the company offers. In September, management introduced a new image for the brand to retailers during the Spoga trade show in Cologne, Germany. This is the first step in what management hopes is a rejuvenation of the brand in Europe.

The Coleman Company Financial Forecast

1997 is an unusual year in sales for Coleman, with the elimination of the $100 million in SKUs, the reduction of inventory in Japan and the exiting of the pressure washer business (approximately 8% of sales). The overall affect should be roughly flat sales, year over year. We are forecasting 1998 sales growth of 7.0%, which we view as conservative given Coleman's many marketing initiatives. Currently, the company is not focused on acquisitions and does not expect to make any unless an opportunistic acquisition were to present itself.

Gross margin will continue to appreciate as the company benefits from their SKU reduction program. In 1998, we expect further appreciation from the globalization of Coleman's brands. This will produce significant savings in procurement, packaging and manufacturing.

Selling General & Administrative Expenses as a % of sales are also expected to continue to improve as Coleman realizes the cost savings associated with their reduction in workforce and a new focus on cost savings by managers. These savings will be partially offset by increased advertising and research expenditures, which should in turn increase sales and operating leverage for the company.

We are being very conservative with regards to Coleman's capital structure. The company will be generating significant cash flow and we expect continued deleveraging to occur in 1998.

EXAMINATION BY MR. BRODY:
Q. Good morning, Ms. Haycox-Eltrich. As introduced, my name is Mike Brody. I represent Coleman (Parent) Holdings. I'll be asking you questions today. The address you just gave, is that a home address or work address?
A. Home address.

Page 6

Q. Do you go by names other than the one you used to introduce yourself?
A. Frankly, it's mainly Karen Eltrich.
Q. Have you ever been deposed before?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Let me tell you a little bit about the process. You've just taken an oath. It's the same oath you would take for this case were you testifying live in front of a judge or a jury. I will ask you questions, and it will be your job to answer them to the best of your ability. If you don't understand any of my questions, let me know, and I'll try to rephrase them. If you need to take a break, just say so. And even though it's being videotaped, when I ask you questions, it will be important to give an oral answer rather than a non-verbal method of communication so the court reporter can take it down. Are all those rules acceptable to you?
A. Yes.
Q. You indicated you've never been deposed. Have you ever testified under oath in any circumstance?
A. No, I have not.

Page 7

Q. Do you remember ever providing any affidavits or other sworn written testimony?
A. No, I do not.
Q. As you undoubtedly know from talking to your counsel, this case involves certain work you did while at Morgan Stanley. What were the approximate dates of your employment at Morgan Stanley?
A. I was at Morgan Stanley from October 1995 to May 2001.
Q. During that time period were you ever asked to collect documents relating to the work that you did at Morgan Stanley insofar as it related to Sunbeam or Coleman or the litigation that's before us?
A. Once I was, yes.
Q. When was that?
A. Couldn't tell you. I don't recall.
Q. Can you approximate with reference to your days of employment?
A. Obviously it was after the event, but no, I really couldn't tell you when it happened.
Q. Do you remember who asked you for documents?

Page 8

A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you remember what you provided? Did you provide documents?
A. Absolutely. It wasn't much. I mean I gave my Coleman model. I gave whatever notes I had had from my Sunbeam very limited due diligence, but nothing else. It was probably like, you know (indicating) -- sorry, you can't for the camera, for you -- about half an inch thick of documents. There was not a lot that I had been involved in.
Q. When you refer to your Coleman model, what do you mean?
A. I had covered Coleman in the secondary market as a high yield research analyst, so I had, obviously, forecasts, etc., and it was something even after the deal that it's not like I delete the model. So it wasn't an updated model, but it was the historical perspective.
Q. Was it maintained on a computer?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know what program the model was generated in?
A. I'm assuming Excel.

Page 9

Q. That's what you used at the time?
A. Yes.
Q. We'll be talking further about the research you did. I'll ask you more questions about the model later on.
A. Okay.
Q. But aside from providing the model, you said you provided some documents relating to Sunbeam due diligence?
A. It would have been notes I may have taken or just -- I mean as a research analyst, you kind of keep whatever you have just in case it ever takes another life or form. And I couldn't tell you what I had. But it's just basically any documents that had been given to me regarding Sunbeam would have gone to them. And it, frankly, probably wasn't a lot because I wasn't that involved in the due diligence because I was high yield and there was actually no high yield bonds issued.
Q. Okay. Do you remember what attorney or other person asked you for these documents?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember who you gave them to?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 10

A. No. It was someone internal from Morgan Stanley. That's all I know.
Q. Internal legal?
A. Don't know.
Q. Are you represented by counsel today?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. By Ms. Brown.
A. Yes, I am.
Q. And you know that her firm is Kirkland & Ellis?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you retain them to represent you?
A. It was about two months ago, I would say, six to eight weeks ago.
Q. Is that when you first learned that there might be a deposition?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you paying for their services?
A. No, I am not.
Q. Do you understand Morgan Stanley to be paying for their services?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did they initially contact you or did --

Page 11

A. Yes.
Q. -- you initially contact them?
A. Well, given that you asked to depose me, they kind of contacted me.
Q. But it wasn't the sort of thing where someone from Morgan Stanley called and told you. The first call came from Kirkland & Ellis?
A. Yes, it did. Actually, I'm sorry, the first call came from Goldman Sachs, because they contacted Goldman Sachs, and then it was our Goldman Sachs legal representative who contacted me. But it was, yes, Kirkland.
Q. And is Goldman Sachs your current employer?
A. Yes, they are.
Q. So you learned of the possibility of a deposition in this case from someone at Goldman Sachs?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember the name of the person who talked to you?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you know if it's someone in the law department?

Page 12

A. It was definitely in the legal department, yes.
Q. Since you left Morgan Stanley and prior to today, have you had any contact with people from Morgan Stanley about this deposition?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. So you haven't spoken with any in-house attorneys?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Do you have any continuing involvement in any deals with Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. You don't have continuing compensation or --
A. I own stock in the company, but that's it.
Q. Do you maintain professional contacts with anyone from Morgan Stanley?
A. No professional, but a lot of personal.
Q. Just people you worked with?
A. People I worked with who are friends, but there is no professional contact whatsoever.

Q. Have you discussed the Sunbeam or Coleman matters with anyone at Morgan Stanley since you left?
A. No, I have not.
Q. So you haven't discussed this litigation with anyone?
A. No, I have not.
Q. What did you do to prepare for today's deposition?
A. Yesterday we met and she showed me some of the documents that had my name on it, but that would probably be about it.
Q. Do you remember what documents you saw?
MS. BROWN: Objection. I instruct the witness not to answer.
Q. Did any of those documents refresh your recollection about events in this case?
A. Vaguely, but not really.
Q. Well, which ones even had a vague effect on refreshing your recollection?
A. Honestly, just reading the press release that they were missing sales. You have to understand I was eight and a half months pregnant when all of this happened, so it wasn't the core focus that I had. And so it was more of just kind of figuring out the time line. I mean obviously I remember the events, but I don't necessarily remember the time line in which they happened. And I would say that was probably all it gave me.

0184159

Q. Okay. You said you were eight and a half months pregnant. When was your child born?

A. March 25th, 1998. A girl. Thank you.

Q. Congratulations. That allows us to place this a little bit in time. I think the question I asked you that got us into that was whether any of the documents refreshed your recollection. Which were the documents, if any, that had your name on it that may have refreshed your recollection?

A. No.

MS. BROWN: Objection. I'm going to instruct the witness not to answer. She's already testified to what refreshed her recollection, and it wasn't anything that relates to the question that you just asked.

MR. BRODY: Well, I don't think that's exactly right.

Q. But which things that you saw yesterday had any effect in refreshing your recollection?

A. Exactly as I said. It was more of a time line incident. It was more of a time line issue versus an events issue, and it was the document which basically said that they were going to miss their sales, the sales forecast that the research analyst had.

Q. Ms. Eltrich, I'm handing you what has been previously marked as Exhibit 14. When you referred to a document that helped you place this in time, I think you said it was an indication that they were going to miss their sales, were you referring to the document that's been marked as CPH Exhibit 14?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Did you see that back in March of 1998?

A. I saw it when it was released to the Street, yes, I did.

Q. Okay. You can put that aside for a moment. We'll come back to that. I believe you testified that in preparation for the deposition you met with Ms. Brown?

A. Yes.

Q. Approximately how long did you meet with her?

A. Two and a half hours.

Q. And that was yesterday?

A. Yes.

Q. Aside from reviewing documents, did you speak with anyone else --

A. No.

Q. -- besides Ms. Brown? Did you review any testimony that others had given?

A. No.

Q. Did you look at any videotapes of testimony?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever spoken with anyone connected with the New York Stock Exchange or the SEC about the events at Sunbeam or Coleman?

A. No, I have not.

Q. And I believe I may have asked you this, but have you discussed the substance of this testimony, the testimony you're giving today, with anyone other than Ms. Brown?

Page 17

A. No, I have not.

Q. Before we focus on the events at Sunbeam, I would like to address your background a little. Could you describe for us your education after high school.

A. I went to NYU Stern School of Business and graduated in 1994 with a bachelor of science in economics and finance.

Q. Any other postgraduate education?

A. No.

Q. While at the Stern School, did you have any concentration within economics and finance? Was there an area that you studied more than any other?

A. No.

Q. And that was an undergraduate degree from the Stern School?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. After graduating from the Stern School, did you become employed?

A. I became employed in August of '94 with Advest as a research assistant.

Q. How long were you at Advest?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 18

A. A little less than a year. It was -- actually, it was a little more than a year.
Q. What was your next job?
A. Then I was at Morgan Stanley.
Q. Now, focusing on your position at Advest, you said you were a research analyst?
A. Research assistant.
Q. I'm sorry. Research assistant. What were the responsibilities of a research assistant at Advest?
A. It was a hybrid between being a secretary and being a research analyst. There was one analyst who had me make haircut appointments for him, and there was another analyst who had me build his models for him. So it was a combination between the two.
Q. What types of businesses did you analyze?
A. It was financial institutions. It was large cap banks primarily with a few small caps.
Q. Did anyone report to you?
A. No.
Q. You left Advest in late 1995?
A. It was October, October of 1995, which is when I joined Morgan Stanley.

Page 19

Q. What was your first position at Morgan Stanley?
A. I was an analyst. I believe I came on as a second-year analyst in the high yield research group.
Q. Describe for us what the high yield research group analyzed, what types of issuances?
A. Junk bonds, bonds related -- bonds that were below investment grade status.
Q. How long were you in the high yield research group?
A. Up until May of 2001.
Q. That's when you left?
A. Yes.
Q. What positions did you hold aside from analyst?
A. Analyst, associate, vice president.
Q. When did you become an associate?
A. When did I become an associate.
Q. Well, let me ask it a little differently if you don't remember the date. The events we're looking at in this case are in late '97 into early 1998. At that time were you an analyst or were you an associate?

A. I was an associate.
Q. And do you know when you became a vice president?
A. I believe it was either '99 or 2000, but I couldn't tell you exactly which date unless I honestly saw my records.
Q. I understand. And you remained a vice president until you left in May of 2001?
A. Yes.
Q. Returning to the position you held as an analyst at Morgan Stanley in the high yield research group, was there a particular area that you covered?
A. I covered several sectors. I was working with Jake Foley, who was my senior analyst, and under him we covered supermarkets, food and beverage, and restaurants, and occasionally special retail. On my own at that point I was covering consumer products as the lead analyst.
Q. You called that consumer products?
A. Um-hmm.
Q. And Coleman fit within consumer products?

Page 21

A. Yes, it did.
Q. Did Sunbeam fit within consumer products?
A. It did, but it was not under my universe of coverage.
Q. At the time you were covering Coleman did anyone report to you?
A. No.
Q. And you reported to Mr. Foley?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember what his title was at the time?
A. He was a principal.
Q. Principal, is that the next position up from vice president?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. At the time you were an associate did you continue coverage of the same areas?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. It was just a promotion, but you covered the same fields?
A. Yes.
Q. How about when you were vice president?
A. Same. Well, when I was vice president, Jake had left the firm, so I assumed coverage of all the sectors. Or I should say Jake had left the group. Sorry.

01846

Page 22

Q. But after Mr. Foley left the group, you were still covering supermarkets, food and beverage?
A. Restaurants, retail.
Q. Restaurants, specialty retail?
A. Sorry. Not retail. Specialty retail. Thank you.
Q. What does specialty retail mean?
A. It's small, very small little specialized companies. Really it was like one name, mother's work.
Q. I'm sorry?
A. Mother's work, which is maternity wear, versus covering the true retail spectrum.
Q. And you continued in that position until you left in May 2001?
A. Yes.
Q. Why did you leave Morgan Stanley?
A. Do I really have to put this on the record? I left Morgan Stanley because I was very happy under John Mack's leadership. I was less happy under Phil Purcell's leadership. And Goldman Sachs presented a great opportunity to me.

Q. And you left Morgan Stanley to go to Goldman Sachs?
A. Yes.
Q. What position were you hired into at Goldman Sachs?
A. Exactly the same position, vice president covering the same sectors adding on full retail. And, actually, now I did have consumer products.
Q. And when you say you added full retail, what types of companies did that include?
A. Petco, PCA, Pay Less Shoe Source. Just retail.
Q. What position do you now have at Goldman Sachs?
A. I am still vice president.
Q. Now, I'm going to focus on the 1997 to 1998 time frame and your employment at Morgan Stanley during that time frame. You were a research analyst, and then I guess in '97, '98, you were an associate?

Page 24

A. Yes.
Q. And that was in the high yield research group?
A. Yes.
Q. Was the high yield research group part of another group?
A. High yield.
Q. Who was in charge of the high yield group?
A. Dwight Sipprelle and Mike Rankowitz.
Q. The high yield research group that you were associated with, what was its business? What did it do?
A. It was several functions. Our primary goal was to cover bonds in the secondary market.
Q. Any other functions?
A. We also did do proprietary trading, so obviously we assisted the trading desk in their investment decisions.
Q. Trading in high yield bonds?
A. In high yield bonds.
Q. Anything else?
A. And we would as a very third front, we would assist the investment banking group in the underwriting of bonds. But, again, it wasn't really -- I shouldn't say assisting. It was working with the investment banking group to protect our group from what I would call bad deals, because we live with the bonds in the secondary, so we were involved in making the decision of whether or not something should be underwritten.

Q. And when you say you live with the bonds, what do you mean by that?
A. I mean bonds on average have a ten-year life, and I have to cover it in a secondary, and if I recommend it to my investor, I want to have that recommendation and know all the risks.
Q. And that was the business of the high yield research group. The high yield research group reported to Mr. Sipprelle and Mr. Rankowitz as high yield group?
A. Correct.
Q. And the high yield group, did they do the underwriting of high yield issuances?
A. No, we do not.
Q. What did the high yield group do?
A. We trade the bonds in the secondary.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018462

Page 26

We obviously assist in the primary in terms of our sales force placed the bonds with clients. But our primary function was trading bonds in the secondary.
Q. Now, are you aware that in the Sunbeam deal that Morgan Stanley was involved in, there was a subordinated debenture offering?
A. The convertible?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. Would that be considered a high yield issuance?
A. No, it was not a high yield issuance. Some high yield hybrid investors purchased it, but no. Our sales force was not as involved.
Q. I'm sorry. Not as involved? What do you mean?
A. I mean one or two salespeople sold it to their accounts, but, in general, it was sold off the convert desk, not the high yield desk. And it was recognized on their P&L, not ours.
Q. Meaning if Morgan Stanley had gains or losses on the sale of those bonds, it was not attributable to your division? Is that what you mean?

A. Meaning the underwriting fee we did not get an allocation of.
Q. You referred to proprietary trading. What do you mean by that?
A. Meaning we would take positions in bonds. It was like having your own investment fund where if we truly believed in a bond, and it was primarily bonds we underwrote, we would take a position.
Q. And when you refer to "we," who do you mean by "we"?
A. Meaning the trader, the group. The sales force is not involved in that decision. It's research and trading who makes the decision of whether or not they think a bond is undervalued and there is an investment opportunity.
Q. When a trader took a position in a bond, a high yield bond, whose money would that trader be investing? Morgan Stanley's?
A. Morgan Stanley's.
Q. Do you know if that money came from particular Morgan Stanley funds, or was it just undifferentiated Morgan Stanley money?

Page 28

A. No. It was our book. We were allocated a certain amount of capital with which to invest.
Q. And by "us" you mean the high yield group?
A. The high yield group, which included emerging markets and bank loans.
Q. What do you mean by bank loans?
A. Leveraged bank loans.
Q. That was considered part of the high yield group?
A. It was, but they were private. We were public. So although it was part of our P&L, there was not as much interaction.
Q. Are you familiar with an entity known as Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A. Not really, no.
Q. Do you understand that to be a part of Morgan Stanley that made bank loans?
A. That would be my assumption, but I can't confirm.
Q. Do you know where the entities within Morgan Stanley that made bank loans got their money?

A. No, I don't. I would assume from Morgan Stanley.
Q. So just so I understand the structure, was the issuance of bank loans by Morgan Stanley considered to be part of its high yield group?
A. Yes. If it was a levered loan, yes.
Q. What do you mean by levered loan? Was there a leverage ratio that qualified it?
A. No. It's your investment rating. Again, if it's below investment grade.
Q. Do you know if there was a bank loan to Sunbeam in connection with this transaction?
A. There was, yes.
Q. Was that considered a levered loan?
A. It was off of -- honestly, I cannot remember what the ratings were, but it was off of our P&L, so it was from our leveraged finance group, yes.
Q. So just so I understand, the loan made to Sunbeam was considered a loan made by the high yield group?
A. Yes.

018463

Page 30

Q. So any profits or losses on that loan were attributed to the high yield group?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. And that was the group that at the time was being headed up by Mr. Sipprelle and Mr. Rankowitz?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you know who made the investment decisions for those bank loans?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. If you know.
A. I only know a few names, but the way it worked at Morgan Stanley was it was always -- it was always a consensus, so there was several parties involved. There was investment banking, and there was bank loans, there was high yield. You had equity having to talk about it. So there was not any one party who made the decision. It was, as I say, it was a commitment committee with consensus.
Q. So let me see if I can rephrase your answer. Was the decision to make the loan or not make the loan made by a committee?
A. Yes.

Page 31

Q. I've seen reference to a leveraged finance commitment committee. Is that the committee?
A. Yes.
Q. And they would decide however they would decide, but they were the ones who made the decision?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. The decision would be made by that group; is that right?
A. The decision is made by the group with a strong veto voice by anyone who objects.
Q. Okay. I understand, I think. You referred to Mr. Foley. Did Mr. Foley report to Mr. Rankowitz or Mr. Sipprelle?
A. We had a head of research at the time. I can't remember who it was because we turned so often. But there was a head of research, and then there was Dwight and Rank, yes.
Q. Dwight and Rank? That's Mr. --
A. Yes. Sorry. That's Mr. Sipprelle and Mr. Rankowitz.
Q. And I've referred to them, as I think you have. Did they jointly hold the position?
A. Yes, they did. Mr. Rankowitz was primarily head of emerging markets, while Dwight was head of the high yield, but they ran the group together.
Q. I understand. You've referred to emerging markets. What does that mean?
A. It's countries who are yet to attain an investment grade rating, and we traded their bonds in the secondary.
Q. So international bonds?
A. Yes.
Q. Bonds of other countries?
A. Correct.
Q. Also traded by your group?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know a gentleman by the name of Andrew Conway?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Conway's position in '97 and 1998?
A. He was the beverage analyst for Morgan Stanley.
Q. Was he within the high yield group?

Page 33

A. No.
Q. What group was he within?
A. He was in equity research.
Q. How did equity research and high yield research relate to one another?
A. It would depend on if we covered a name together. In the case of Sunbeam, we would compare notes, but, again, I wasn't covering Sunbeam, so it was more of I could add value to them on Coleman, but it was a completely separate entity. They're analyzing a completely separate asset class than we are.
Q. At the time you were covering Coleman's bonds, was there someone covering Coleman's equity?
A. No, there was not.
Q. And you referred to Mr. Conway. Do you know if Mr. Conway ever initiated coverage of Sunbeam's stock?
A. I cannot recall.
Q. Do you know if there was anyone that issued coverage of Sunbeam's debt?
A. I don't think so, but I cannot recall.
Q. Do you know if that was ever under consideration?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 34

A. No, I do not.
Q. Now, in 1997 and 1998 were you compensated on a base pay and bonus basis?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Who made the decisions about what you were to be paid?
A. Frankly, I'd like --
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
Q. Do you know?
A. No. I would like to know, but no, I don't know.
Q. Who told you what you were being paid?
A. My head of research.
Q. That would be Mr. Foley?
A. No. It would have been whoever was head of research at the time, which would have been either John Irish or Ann Short, but I can't recall who was the head of research at that time.
Q. And head of research includes both high yield and equity and other areas of research?
A. No, it does not. It is only high yield research.

Page 35

Q. What were the names of those individuals you mentioned?
A. John Irish or Ann Short. It was most likely Ann Short.
Q. Did Mr. Foley report to either Ms. Short or Mr. Irish?
A. Yes. He reported to them as well.
Q. Okay. I understand. Do you know how your bonus was determined?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if your pay related in any way to returns on the instruments that you followed?
A. No.
Q. Roughly as a percentage of your compensation, do you know how much your bonus was in 1997 and '98?
A. No.
Q. Are we talking more than 50 percent, less than 50 percent?
A. It was probably more than 50 percent.
Q. And --
A. But just to give you a frame of reference, 1998 was the Russian crisis. It wasn't a good bonus year period.

Page 36

Q. Particularly given that your department had emerging markets, among other things?
A. Among other things.
Q. Do you know if your -- and this may be related to the question I just asked, but do you know if your bonus had any relation to the returns on the proprietary trading that you assisted with?
A. No.
Q. Were you ever told that it did?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if any Morgan Stanley funds invested in Sunbeam?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if any Morgan Stanley funds invested in Coleman?
A. No. Sorry. My own trading desk had invested in Coleman, so yes, in that sense.
Q. And that was on the high yield side, not the equity side?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you know if anyone within Morgan

Page 37

Stanley invested in Coleman equity?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Individuals that I know, yes, but not as a firm, no.
Q. What do you know about individuals who invested in Coleman? What do you remember?
A. A couple of my friends, because I had been covering the bonds, thought the stock was cheap, so they bought the stock.
Q. And they told you that?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Did they do well as a result of their purchase?
A. No.
MS. BROWN: Object to form. Foundation.
Q. Did they make money or did they lose money?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
Q. Do you know?
A. They lost money because we were restricted in the period that the stock ran up because we had done the deal.
Q. Do you remember who or what group

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018469

Page 38

within Morgan Stanley made investment decisions for the Morgan Stanley and Morgan Stanley Dean Witter funds?
A. No.
Q. Do you ever remember receiving inquiries from any of those funds about Coleman?
A. I don't recall, no.
Q. Now, I think you testified in response to an earlier question that you assisted investment banking in some work. Can you describe the work that you assisted investment banking in?
A. If we were looking at a deal, if we were mandated to do a deal, we were always brought in not to do investment banking's due diligence, but to do due diligence for the trading desk and to do due diligence for our clients, because, again, if we're going to bring a deal to market, if we felt there was imminent danger to bankruptcy, we had the power to turn down a deal. If we felt there were certain risks that should be communicated to our clients, we had the power to communicate those risks to our clients. And our goal, our job, was to surface those risks so that the bond would be priced accordingly.

Q. You referred to being mandated to do a deal. What do you mean by that?
A. Meaning that a contract was signed whereby Morgan Stanley would underwrite a bond for a company.
Q. So you signed an underwriting agreement?
A. Exactly.
MS. BROWN: "You" being Morgan Stanley?
MR. BRODY: Yes. Exactly.
Q. You referred to you'd look at the deal to see if there was imminent risk of bankruptcy; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. What other risks would you be looking for?
A. As a research analyst, there's many risks you look for. You know, is there a liquidity crunch, what is the competitive pressures, can the company make their numbers, what is the quality of management. There is many different elements you look at, but you make an assessment of a company. And the thing of high yield versus equity is as long as you pay our coupon, we're happy. It's not like equity where the company needs to be a star performer. We just need them to pay their coupons. So it basically is just you assess varying degrees of what is their ability to pay their coupon.

Q. So the research that you did would look to the ability of the company to satisfy its high yield obligations?
A. Correct.
Q. Not its equity obligations?
A. Correct.
Q. In connection with the Sunbeam and Coleman transaction, did you look at Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. You personally.
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
MR. BRODY: Fine.
Q. You can answer.
A. I was eight and a half months pregnant, so my ability to do due diligence was highly limited, and it was not a high yield underwriting. So really my only -- my only involvement was my expertise in Coleman.

Q. Okay. We'll go into this in greater detail I think when we talk about Coleman, but what research, if any, do you remember doing into Sunbeam as opposed to Coleman?
A. I have very vague recollections of a couple of conference calls, but it really, again, was more to see how the company would relate to Coleman than me actually doing due diligence on Sunbeam.
Q. Do you remember who was on those calls?
A. No, I do not.
Q. We'll come back to that and see if you remember any details. Do you know an entity within Morgan Stanley known as the client service group?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. What was the business of the client service group?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
A. If memory recollects, the client service group, it's either one or two things. Either they were related to private clients of the bank, or it was our actual investment banking clients of the company. I can't remember if it was individuals or companies.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018466

Q. Do you know what work, if any, you did with people in the client service group?
A. No, I do not recall.
Q. Do you know a gentleman by the name of John Tyree?
A. No, I do not recall.
Q. Andy Savarie?
A. Do not recall.
Q. Within the high yield area is it correct to say that your research group would support the traders?
A. That was our primary function, yes.
Q. And by supporting the traders, you would assist them in making trades that would be profitable for Morgan Stanley and its clients?
A. Ideally, yes.
Q. That was your goal?
A. Yes.
Q. Didn't always work that way?
A. Did not always work that way.
Q. Were there metrics by which the high yield group's performance was measured?

MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
A. Only thing I ever heard was a year-end P&L.
Q. Were Mr. Rankowitz and Mr. Sipprelle responsible for maintaining the year-end P&L?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form. Foundation.
A. I don't know.
Q. In 1997 do you know if the year-end P&L for the high yield group was a profit or loss?
A. It was a profit.
Q. What about 1998?
A. I don't know, but I know it was less than '97.
Q. Were you circulated documents or emails showing how well the high yield group was doing?
A. No, we were not.
Q. Did you hear about it?
A. Can't recall.
Q. If I wanted to obtain the P&L for the high yield group, who would I talk to?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you ever receive an evaluation from the people you worked for for the work you did on Coleman or Sunbeam?

A. No, I did not.
Q. Were you personally evaluated based on how well your research turned out?
A. There is something called the Institutional Investor Report, which are Institutional Investor rankings which would measure what your clients thought of your research. But one of the hardest things of being a research analyst is most of what we do is subjective.
Q. Sure. Now, the Institutional Investor rankings, I think that's what you called it?
A. Um-hmm.
Q. Was that a Morgan Stanley document?
A. No. It's a magazine, Institutional Investor, and they poll your clients, and they rank you.
Q. Do you ever remember anyone after the fact looking back and, you know, critiquing your research, saying, well, this turned out to be right, this turned out to be wrong? Was that done?

A. No.
Q. Now, I believe that you talked earlier about the kinds of documents that you would hold on to. When you were at Morgan Stanley, what was your practice or policy for maintaining copies of the documents that you worked with?
A. It varied with the technology. As more and more things got filed on the web and SEC, you had to hold less. But at the time of this, obviously there was less technology, so you just held on to whatever you were given, because it could be value added at some point.
Q. Where did you keep it?
A. File cabinets.
Q. And was it in that file cabinet when you left Morgan Stanley in 2001?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember what sorts of things you kept about Sunbeam and Coleman?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember anything that you kept?
A. The most I could remember is a prospectus.

0184967

Page 46

Q. Did you keep notes of things that you did?
A. I don't know.
Q. When you put together a research report, I assume you generated drafts?
A. Well, it's on a computer, so it's always the same draft. You just type over it.
Q. You wouldn't print out copies and keep them?
A. No, I would not.
Q. In connection with putting together a research report, you would gather a variety of pieces of paper and so on that they were based on, wouldn't you?
A. No. Most of my research is done on the web.
Q. Even in 1997 and '98?
A. Even in 1997.
Q. Now, in '97 and '98 did you use email?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you use email to communicate with people about Coleman and Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. On the Sunbeam deal, there were a variety of people working on that deal from offices other than your high yield office; is that correct?

Page 47

A. I don't recall, but probably.
Q. Do you remember communicating with any of them by email?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you communicate at all with people from Sunbeam, the company, in connection with the work that you did?
A. I don't recall, but highly unlikely.
Q. What about with people from Coleman?
A. While I was covering Coleman, I communicated frequently with the company to get updates on how the business was doing.
Q. In what form did you do that?
A. Primarily through the telephone.
Q. Did you keep notes of your calls? Did you make notes of your calls?
A. No, not really. Probably not.
Q. You wouldn't write stuff down?
A. During a conference call I would take notes, because I tend to give very great detail. But in a conversation where your life and death is resting on whether or not they meet your numbers, you don't need to write that down. You remember it.

Q. When did you first hear of the fact that there was litigation surrounding the Sunbeam deal? I don't mean this case. I mean any litigation.
A. I can't recall.
Q. You were at Morgan Stanley at the time?
A. I don't -- I don't remember.
Q. Well, let's focus on the coverage that you did of Coleman. You are aware of the Coleman Company?
A. It was six years ago, but yes, I'm aware of the Coleman Company.
Q. And what do you understand their business to be in 1997 and 1998?
A. They were primarily camping goods.
Q. You covered the high yield debt of Coleman's parent?
A. I covered the escrow bonds.
Q. You didn't have anything to do with covering the stock?
A. No, I did not.
Q. And I believe you said that Morgan

Page 49

Stanley did not cover the stock?
A. To my recollection, we did not have coverage of the stock.
Q. Fair enough. Now, in connection with the work you did for Coleman covering the escrow bonds, who did you have contact with?
MS. BROWN: Object to characterization, but go ahead.
A. At the company?
Q. Yes.
A. Mark Shiffman was my primary contact.
Q. Do you know where Mr. Shiffman was located?
A. He started out in New York, and he ended up in Florida.
Q. Do you understand whether Mr. Shiffman worked for MacAndrews & Forbes or for Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation. Go ahead.
A. He worked for Coleman, but the rumor was he was dating Perelman's daughter, so it's kind of a blurry line.
Q. Did you ever talk to him about that?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018468

Page 50

A. No. Just behind his back.
Q. What did it mean to cover the escrow bonds? That's the security you covered?
A. Yes. It means that those were the two bonds which I had a recommendation on. I did not have opinions on other parts of the capital structure.
Q. When you covered a company, when you covered Coleman, you made recommendations as to those bonds?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And recommendations about whether to buy or sell or hold?
A. Correct.
Q. At the time did Morgan Stanley have certain categories of ratings for securities?
A. We did, but I couldn't tell you what they were. It changes all the time.
Q. If I were to tell you that I've seen research reports referring to a strong buy, do you ever remember there being a rating higher than a strong buy?
A. No. There was no rating higher than a strong buy.
Q. I assume there were ratings lower?

Page 51

A. Yes, there were.
Q. Hold, sell, sell right away?
A. Well, no. At Morgan it was more very strong buy. But no. I don't -- there was a hold and a sell, but I can't remember what the exact terminology was. But in general, there's only three or four ratings categories.
Q. And the top one was strong buy?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. Before you covered the bonds that you covered, was there anyone at Morgan Stanley covering anything for Coleman?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. How was it that Morgan Stanley decided to initiate coverage of the Coleman bonds?
A. Because of me. I looked at them and I thought that there was an investment opportunity.
Q. What do you mean by investment opportunity?
A. I can't recall the exact parameters at the time, but I felt the bonds were oversold. If memory serves correct, they had had very bad management, very disappointing year. We had Jerry Levin come in from Revlon, who was highly respected, and by our research we felt that it was a great brand and a potentially strong cash flow-generating company.

Q. When you say the bonds were oversold, what do you mean?
A. They were trading at a significant discount to par.
Q. So you expected them to go up?
A. Yes.
Q. To increase in value?
A. Yes. And plus you were getting -- again, this is off of memory, but you were getting like a ten, eleven percent yield. So your total return potential was very high.
Q. Now, when you say you made the decision to do this, you looked at the bonds, how was it that you happened to notice this?
A. I don't remember.
Q. At the time you noticed this investment opportunity, could you then just issue the research report, or did you need to get approval from others?

Page 53

A. I did not need to get approval from others. Obviously there are certain channels you go through. I would confer -- before I started doing work on the company, I would confer with my trader to make sure that there were bonds to be traded. And then obviously before you write a report, it has to go through legal to ensure that we're not violating any Morgan Stanley procedures.
Q. Do you know who the trader was on the Coleman bonds?
A. Michael Lily.
Q. Do you remember discussing the Coleman bonds with Mr. Lily?
A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. Yes.
A. But we obviously did discuss it, yes.
Q. Do you remember anything about that conversation?
A. No.
Q. And then you said you also had to get approval from legal?
A. Whenever you draft a report, it has to go through legal compliance before it can be published.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018469

Q. Was there a person that you dealt with?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember if there was a person or a function responsible for reviewing those research reports?
A. It was all done by my secretary, so I really don't know.
Q. Do you remember if you showed your report to Mr. Foley before it issued?
A. I probably did, but I couldn't tell you exactly.
Q. Now, once coverage is initiated, did you continue to monitor the performance of those bonds?
A. Yes. We did quarterly updates. And if we had the opportunity to see the company on a one-off basis, we would publish on that.
Q. You're going to have to -- there is a lot of terminology that goes with this field, and I think I got most of it, but you're going to have to describe it. Now, you said you would do quarterly updates of your research?

Page 55

A. Basically when they report numbers, and we would report on how they did versus our estimates.
Q. And then I think you also referred to a one-off?
A. For example, Coleman presented at our high yield conference I believe it was in 1997, so we would do a written update on that.
Q. Did there come a time when you stopped covering the bonds?
A. I stopped covering the bonds when the Sunbeam deal was announced. I immediately became restricted.
Q. What do you mean by that?
A. Meaning Morgan Stanley was handling the deal, and so, consequently, we will not publish research when we're involved on the investment banking side.
Q. Got it. Would you then issue something saying, hey, we're not going to cover it anymore?
A. No. We just stop publishing. The client base -- our client base is private clients. Sorry. Are institutional clients. So they understand.

Page 56

Q. You're aware that the reports that you issued could have an effect on the market for the securities?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. Foundation.
A. I disagree with that. As I just said, our clients, our institutional clients, they're extremely sophisticated, and they use our work to help them make their decision, but we don't actually make their decisions for them. It's very rare that a high yield research report will move markets unless they have some truly new information.
Q. Did you ever personally buy or sell any securities in Coleman?
A. I did not.
Q. I don't know if you were allowed to. Were you allowed to under the Morgan Stanley rules?
A. No, I was not.
Q. But I believe you testified that Morgan Stanley and its traders took positions in the Coleman bonds?
A. Morgan Stanley trading did, yes.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley make a market --

Page 57

A. Yes, we did.
Q. -- in these bonds?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. In addition to making a market, did it take a long position in the bonds?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. And by taking a long position, that means that Morgan Stanley held them expecting them to go up in value so they could make money on the bonds?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, when you do a coverage report, what information do you typically consider?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. It varies so much company by company and it varies by how much information was already out there. In the case of Coleman, we obviously did what we thought -- you know, we gave the company's investment strengths, weaknesses. The report also included a very comprehensive study of the camping industry and its potential growth and how we felt Coleman was a leader. But there is no template whatsoever to a research report.
Q. Okay. I guess I'm not asking the question right. I'm trying to get at the types of information you would consider rather than what the report would look like. Were there types of information you typically considered?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 58

MS. BROWN: Object to form.

A. As a high yield research analyst, your number one consideration is their ability, as I said, to pay the coupons. So every research report will include a capital structure, your amortization schedule, your model, financial forecast, your free cash flow. That's much more of the financial consideration which every report will contain, but then everything else is far more subjective in terms of, okay, we know this is what they have to pay down their bonds, what is the likelihood based on the fundamentals of the company that they can do that.

Q. I guess I'm not asking the question right.

A. Okay.

Q. I'm focusing less on what the report looks like and more on the information, the raw material that you would use to generate it. You would look at financial statements, for example; correct?

A. We look at publicly filed SEC filings, yes.

Q. Okay. What else?

A. We actually went to the -- I can't remember the name now, but we went to some park conservation, national wildlife park to see what their camping numbers were. We commissioned a study from one group to see what camping demand was and the quality of the Coleman name. But I obviously primarily look at financial statements, and, ideally, if you can, you talk to retailers and say, okay, what is the quality of this brand for you.

Q. Do you remember if you did talk to retailers about Coleman?

A. No, I did not. I did not have those contacts at that time. For us it was more going into the retail channels and seeing the shelf space that they had.

Q. And you did that?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you do that? Do you do that yourself, or do you have --

Page 60

A. You go to a Target. You go to a Wal-Mart.

Q. So you would go and look?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever buy any of their products?

A. I live in New York City, unfortunately not a big occasion for camping.

Q. Hey, people in New York camp, too. I know it happens. Would you participate in conference calls with management?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you talk to management aside from the regularly scheduled conference calls?

A. Only Mark Shiffman.

Q. And Mr. Shiffman was the director of investor relations?

A. He was. And he was extremely well-informed and very accessible, so he worked -- he was very, very good in that function.

Q. Did you speak to other analysts, other people that were covering Coleman?

A. Only on the buy side, not on the sell side.

Page 61

Q. Okay. You're going to have to explain what that means.

A. Meaning clients who were investing in the bonds, buying bonds from us, versus other shops that were potentially selling the bonds in the secondary.

Q. So you would talk to people who were interested in buying the bonds?

A. Correct.

Q. To see what they were looking for or looking -- what they saw to be value in Coleman?

A. No. It's the reverse. They were asking me why I saw value in Coleman.

Q. Did you read the reports of other analysts?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Of Goldman Sachs or someone else?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Do you know if other people covered the Coleman bonds?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you track related companies, that is, other companies in the same field?

A. Yes, I did.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018471

Page 62

Q. What companies?
A. Well, within consumer products, but no other camping companies.
Q. Okay. And you obviously tracked consumer product companies for other purposes. Did you track them for purposes of comparing them to Coleman?
A. There is two answers to that is yes, on the bond spread basis, and, second, we would look at where equity comparables were trading on a total enterprise value, TEV, to EBITDA basis to get a downside multiple valuation for Coleman in the event they went bankrupt.
Q. Okay. We're going to do those one step at a time. You said you would look at the bond spread?
A. Meaning I would look at what total debt to EBITDA, EBITDA to interest and yield was for varying companies within the sector.
Q. Do you remember what companies you looked at?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Okay. And on the equity side you said you looked at the ratio between total enterprise value --

Page 63

A. Total enterprise value to EBITDA.
Q. How would you determine total enterprise value?
A. That's total debt plus the market equity cap.
Q. And you would compare that to the company's EBITDA?
A. You would divide -- you would put that over EBITDA, yes.
Q. And you would compare Coleman's ratio to the ratio of other companies?
A. No. I would see what the ratio of other companies were, and I would see what Coleman's total debt to EBITDA was, and see what my recovery value was for the bonds.
Q. Okay. In the event of bankruptcy?
A. In the event of bankruptcy.
Q. Now, in connection with the work you did looking into Coleman, did you ever talk to Mr. Levin?
A. I don't recall. I mean obviously I heard him on the conference calls, but I don't recall if I ever had a one on one meeting with him.

Page 64

Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Page?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know Joe Page, or do you know who he is?
A. Don't recall.
Q. Did you ever speak to Mr. Shapiro?
A. I don't recall. The name is vaguely familiar, but I don't recall.
Q. I believe you identified Mr. Shiffman. Do you remember anyone else at Coleman that you spoke with?
A. No, I don't.
Q. And you're aware that 82 percent of the common stock of Coleman was owned by a MacAndrews & Forbes entity?
A. Yes, I was aware.
Q. Did you speak with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes about Coleman?
A. No, I did not.
Q. In connection with the coverage you did of Coleman, did you ever visit a Coleman facility?
A. No, I did not.
Q. And I believe you said you went to the retail outlets and looked how their products were placed; is that correct?

A. Yes, it is.
Q. Did you talk to retailers?
A. No, I did not. I did not have those connections.
MS. BROWN: Let's take a break before we start using the exhibits.
MR. BRODY: Yes. That's fine. We can take a break now.
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time on the monitor is now 10:35, and we are off the record.
(Recess)
(Initiation of coverage for Coleman marked CPH Exhibit 272 for identification, as of this date.)
(Document Bates stamped Morgan Stanley Confidential 23225-23229 marked CPH Exhibit 273 for identification, as of this date.)
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time on the monitor is 10:44, and we're back on the record.
Q. While we were off the record, Ms. Eltrich, we marked two exhibits, and I'm going to show you the first of the two. It's been marked as Exhibit 272. Do you recognize that document?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. And what is it?
A. I believe it was my initiation of coverage for Coleman.
Q. And this is a document that you wrote?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Did you prepare this document in the ordinary course of your business at Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. It's dated October 9th, 1997. Is that the date on or about the time you created it?
A. I couldn't recall.
Q. Did you issue this document on or about October 9th, 1997?
A. It was published on October 9th.
Q. Okay. "Published" is the word you prefer?
A. Yes.
Q. And then thereafter was a copy of this document kept in the files of Morgan Stanley?

Page 67

MS. BROWN: Object to foundation.
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you keep a copy of it?
A. I believe I kept a copy with my own personal files.
Q. When you prepared this document, were you acting within the scope of your authority at Morgan Stanley?
MS. BROWN: Object to the extent he's calling for a legal conclusion.
MR. BRODY: I'm not.
A. To my knowledge, I was.
Q. And I would also like to show you what has been marked as Exhibit 273. Do you recognize that document?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Your name appears at the top. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you recognize this as a document faxed to you or faxed from you?
A. Faxed to me. It basically looks like a second quarter earnings update, but I can't recall the details.

Q. And it's dated August 7, 1997; is that correct?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. And that would be about the time that a company like Coleman would issue its second quarter earnings?
A. It would appear so, yes.
Q. Is Exhibit 273, the earnings document, one of the documents you considered in connection with issuing the report that is shown as 272?
A. I don't recall specifically, but I would assume so.
Q. In any event, though, you would have read earnings announcements such as Exhibit 273 before doing the research report or as part of doing your work?
A. Yes, I would.
Q. Now, at the time you issued your first research report in October of 1997, did you understand that Coleman was in the process of a turnaround?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. To the best of my knowledge, that was my assumption.

Page 69

Q. What did you understand that to mean?
A. To the best of my recollection, it was that the numbers had been extremely disappointing, the company had become highly leveraged, but under new management I felt that the company could regain its bearings and service its debt.
Q. Did you understand that the company had adopted a strategy to improve its financial performance?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. To the best of my recollection, yes, they had.
Q. If you look at Exhibit 273, the earnings announcement that shows that it was sent to you, the first paragraph refers to success in its turnaround strategy; correct?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. And that's the sort of thing that you would have read and analyzed in connection with doing a research report?
A. One part of it, yes.
Q. Of course. Other things as well. I

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018473

understand. If you turn to the next page, the first full paragraph, the one that begins, "We were able to show dramatic progress." Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And the last sentence of that paragraph says, "Our turnaround strategy has provided us with a strong foundation on which to build Coleman's future." Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you understand that Coleman had started its turnaround but had not finished its turnaround?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I don't recall where we were in the process.
Q. Well, do you remember reading this document?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. But you don't doubt that you did?
A. To the best of my recollection, I read this document.
Q. If you look at the research report that you drafted and issued --
MS. BROWN: Published.

Page 71

Q. Published. Do I keep saying "issued"?
A. Published.
Q. I'll try to use "published." Let me withdraw that. Let's look at the research report that you published. Better?
A. Yes.
Q. It lists yourself and Mr. Foley; correct?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. Do you understand that it's listing the two of you as authors?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. But I believe your testimony is that this is something that you were the primary drafter of?
A. That is correct, with Mr. Foley supervising my work.
Q. Do you remember if Mr. Foley made any changes or suggestions?
A. I don't recall.
Q. The recommendation strong buy, was that your conclusion?
A. That was my conclusion.
Q. Do you know if anyone else had to sign off or make approvals of that?

Page 72

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. To the best of my recollection, at the time it was the autonomy of the analyst to make that conclusion.
Q. Now, at the time you issued this report, were you aware that Sunbeam had retained Morgan Stanley to assist it as its investment banker?
A. I had no idea whatsoever.
Q. Were you aware of any interest of Sunbeam in Coleman?
A. None whatsoever.
Q. Now, the securities that you're analyzing are the Coleman Escrow I and Coleman Escrow II securities. You understand those to be the first and second priority discount notes?
A. To the best of my recollection, yes.
Q. Well, if you look at the first line of your summary and investment conclusions, that's how it refers to them.
A. I believe they were zeros, yes.
Q. And by zeros, you mean a zero coupon bond?

Page 73

A. Correct.
Q. And you understand that the bonds were not issued by the operating company Coleman, but by one of its parents?
A. Correct.
Q. And did you recall that those bonds were secured by stock in Coleman?
A. Vaguely to my recollection, yes, that was the case, if it was -- particularly if it was akin to the Revlon structure. That's how Perelman typically did it.
Q. You mentioned the Revlon structure. Did you look at the Revlon structure?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you provide research coverage of Revlon?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Who did you do that with?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Can't recall, but it was probably primarily myself.
Q. Now, you earlier identified the types of companies that you did work on. Would Revlon be a consumer products company?
A. Yes, it was.

018474

Page 74

Q. What research do you remember issuing on Revlon?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. Go ahead.
A. I remember issuing research on the zeros that were subsequently refinanced prior to 1998, but -- and, actually, I'm sorry. I shouldn't say -- I remember recommending them to my trader, but I'm not sure if we ever published on them. I can't recall.
Q. Aside from that issuance, do you remember any other securities that you provided research on?
A. I can't recall. I can't recall what I published on. We watched the company, but I can't recall what I published on.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley took positions in Revlon?
A. We did for the first zero coupon note. And, unfortunately, 1998 we took positions in the stock.
Q. Were you long on both?
A. Again, the zero coupon, I can't remember when it got refinanced, but it was well ahead of 1998. And then in 1998 I do very vividly remember having a position in the stock when they preannounced that they were stuffing the trade.

Q. When you refer to zeros, you mean zero coupon bonds?
A. Yes. They had a discount holding note very similar to Coleman.
Q. Now, returning to Exhibit 272, could you just read to yourself what you wrote on the first page of those four paragraphs in italics, then I'll ask you about them.
You've had a chance to read it?
A. Yes.
Q. Thank you. Turning to the first paragraph, you start by saying, "We have listed the Coleman escrow first and second priority discount notes as strong buy as we believe the company is on the brink of an impressive turnaround." You start by saying "We have listed." Does that indicate that this is the first coverage?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. And your statement that you believe the company is on the brink of a strong turnaround -- excuse me, an impressive turnaround, did you understand that to be true at the time you issued it?

A. I believe so.
Q. Published it. Thank you. I'm going to get this issue, publish before we're done. I apologize for that mistake in language. The next paragraph refers to the earnings stumble in 1996. That's the downturn in earnings you had talked about already?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And then it says, "A new management team led by Mr. Jerry Levin is refocusing the company on profitability while attempting to revitalize the industry through increased advertising and new product innovations."
You believed that to be correct when you published it?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And what do you recall, if anything, to be the basis for that statement?
A. I can't recall specifically.
Q. Do you remember anything?
A. I remember an SKU reduction. I remember investments in associating Coleman more with the outdoors, of being the premier brand of choice, and expanding distribution, for example, into Target, but I don't recall any other specifics.

Q. But those are things you recall the company had done?
A. Yes.
Q. The last sentence in that paragraph reads, "With the majority of Mr. Levin's restructuring plan now in place, we are expecting positive earnings comparisons for the last half of '97 and a return to full earnings momentum in 1998." You believed that to be correct at the time you published it?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And what do you mean by positive earnings comparisons for the last half of '97?
A. I believe what I meant was that EBITDA would be up year over year.
Q. So the second half of '97 would be better than the second half of '96?
A. Correct.
Q. And then the next phrase, "and a return to full earnings momentum in 1998." What do you mean by that?
A. I believe what I meant was that the full year 1998 would have positive comparisons to the full year 1997.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018475

Q. Okay. The next paragraph says, "Our investment case is not solely based on management's case for a turnaround. Our own research has shown there is inherent value in Coleman's franchise which cannot be damaged by one year of poor performance." You believed those statements to be correct when you published them?
A. I believe so. I believe so, yes.
Q. And what research are you referring to there?
A. I believe this is what I had referred to earlier where we contacted -- we hired a consultant to get a brand equity evaluation, and we talked to people within the park industry, the camping, you know, wildlife, conservation park industry to see what kind of demand they were seeing.
Q. Do you remember the name of the consultant you used?
A. I should, but I don't.
Q. Did those consultants produce to you a written report of some kind?

Page 79

A. Yes, they did.
Q. Is that the sort of thing that you would keep in your files?
A. I would assume so, yes.
Q. The next paragraph states, "We believe Coleman's turnaround efforts will produce '97 EBITDA of 123.7 million and '98 EBITDA of 162.1 million." Did you believe that to be correct when you published it?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. What do you understand to be the basis for that?
A. I can't recall.
Q. And it continues by saying, "Applying a conservative multiple of 12.0 times EBITDA, which is below the median takeout multiple of 13.4, times EBITDA for consumer products (see Appendix 1), we derive a 1998 equity valuation of $25 per share for Coleman stock, providing equity coverage of 2.3 times and 5.9 times for the accreted value of the first and second priority issues, respectively." That's something that you published in '97?
A. It's on here, so I assume so, yes.

Page 80

Q. And you believed that to be correct when it was published?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Now, where did the 123.7 million and 162.1 million estimates of '97 and '98 EBITDA come from?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.
A. I couldn't recall specifically.
Q. And the multiples of 12 times and 13.4 times, do you remember where you got those multiples?
A. I can't tell you where I came -- how I derived 12.0 because that was an assumption, but the 13.4 was the median of all the takeouts of consumer products which had happened over probably two to three years.
Q. What do you mean a takeout?
A. Meaning companies that had been transacted, their TEV to EBITDA at the time.
Q. Okay. So companies that had been bought or sold?
A. Yes.
Q. Their ratio of total enterprise value to EBITDA reflected that multiple?

Page 81

A. Correct.
Q. And so you're saying that using a 12.0 multiple as opposed to the 13.4, which was the comparable, was conservative?
A. I can't recall what my thought process was at the time.
Q. But it was you that chose the 12.0 multiple?
A. It was most likely me who chose the 12.0, yes.
Q. Now, the equity valuation of $25 per share, was that your prediction or estimate of what you thought Coleman stock would be worth in 1998?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And then the next ratios, that shows the coverage of Coleman's earnings to pay for the debt service on the bonds?
A. No. The next ratio of the 2.3 and 5.9 is because the escrow was secured by the stock. It was our determination -- and, again, the bonds had been accreted. It was not for face value. It was the zero accreted value. And it was our estimation at $25 per share what your collateral was worth and how many times it covered you.

0184796

Page 82

Q. So if the stock is worth $25 a share and Coleman Escrow or whoever had issued the bonds sold the stock, they would be able to cover 230 percent of the value of the first bonds?
A. It's one way of looking at it, but as a high yield analyst, the way you looked at it is if the company were to go bankrupt, and as the escrow you get first claim of the stock, what is the enterprise value that covers you.
Q. Okay. The last sentence on this page reads, "Currently, the greatest upside potential exists in this tranche," referring to the second priority notes, "where we view a more appropriate spread between the two issues to be closer to 100 basis points." What does that mean?
A. It means that right now as you see in this report, the first escrow is yielding 10.41, the second escrow is yielding 13.31, which is roughly a 300 basis point spread. We felt it should have been closer to 100 basis points.

Q. So you're saying that the return on the seconds was really a good return?
A. If I recall correctly, that was, yes, our favorite in terms of total return.
Q. Turn to the third page of the document. The Exhibit 3 references the Coleman escrow capital structure, and it says you obtained that from the company financials?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. By "company financials" you mean just the public published financials?
A. It would be the SEC filings, yes.
Q. And in that item there is a reference to the Lyons, L-y-o-n. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have a recollection of what the Lyons were?
A. Not specifically, no. I remember they were in the capital structure, but, again, as you read the footnote, assumes redemption of these issues. If memory serves best, they did something to redeem these issues.
Q. Okay. So you understood those were not going to remain on the capital structure?

A. To my best recollection, yes.
Q. Exhibit 4 identifies as a source company financials and Morgan Stanley estimates. You see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you know what Morgan Stanley estimates you were referring to?
A. I can't recall.
Q. In looking at these documents, excuse me, in looking at Exhibit 4, can you tell me which of those numbers came from the Morgan Stanley estimates as opposed to which came from the financials?
A. No, I cannot.
Q. Can you explain what Table 5 shows, what that means?
A. Table 5 is your collateral value of the stock based on the varying prices. So you have your first priority coverage, second priority coverage, and, again, I can't recall the exact numbers, but you had X number of stock, theoretically, covering your bonds in the event of a downside, so at what stock price what your collateral was. So it's a varying degree of that.

Q. So correct me if I'm wrong, but does this mean that if the stock price was nine, there was enough collateral in the stock to cover the first priority notes?
A. Correct.
Q. And if the stock price was between ten and eleven, there would be enough to pay the second priority notes?
A. If it was at eleven, yes.
Q. Somewhere between there?
A. Towards eleven, yes.
Q. Turn to the next page. After Exhibit 7 there is a paragraph that refers to the 12.0 multiple.
A. Yes.
Q. See that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this something that you published at the time?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And at the time you understood it to be correct?
A. I believe so. Well, no, no, no. At the time I believed it to be a fair assumption.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018477

Q. Okay. This was your best understanding of the multiple to use?
A. It was my best estimate.
Q. Okay. Your text reads, "We believe our valuation is conservative given Coleman's strong market share and growth prospects. We have not done a downside valuation in the case of a liquidity crisis as we do not perceive this to be a risk at any time in the near future." Is that something you wrote?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. What do you mean by a liquidity crisis?
A. Meaning they run out of cash and they're unable to service their debt.
Q. Why did you not think that to be a risk at the time?
A. I can't specifically recall what the circumstances were.
Q. Exhibit 8, the valuation based on 1997 forecasted EBITDA, is that something that you did?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And, again, you believed that to be a correct calculation at the time?

Page 87

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I believe it was my best estimation at the time.
Q. And, likewise, Exhibit 9 is something that you did as well?
A. It was something I did, yes.
Q. And you believed that to be the best estimation at the time?
A. I believe it was my best estimation, yes.
Q. Okay. The next page of the document, I believe it's Page 5 of the report, contains some text about the performance of Coleman. Do you know what the basis, your basis was for this?
A. No. I can't recall.
Q. The third paragraph refers to the expectations for 1998 EBITDA. Could you just read that to yourself.
A. Yes.
Q. After having read that, does that refresh your recollection as to where that $160 million number came from?
A. No, it does not.

Page 88

Q. The next paragraph refers to the overall health of the camping industry. Is that something that you learned based on the consultant that you hired?
A. It was through the consultant, and it was through doing research on the web.
Q. Now, the next section of the report reads, "Nature's First Green is Gold," starting on the next page.
A. Um-hmm.
Q. And it's an analysis of the camping industry. Is that something that you prepared?
A. It is something that I researched, yes.
Q. And did you draft this section of the report?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Beginning on Page 7 under the heading "A Period of Growth" and continuing for the next couple of pages, there is a description of Coleman's acquisitions and Coleman's plans. Do you remember what the basis was for these statements?
A. No, I do not.

Page 89

Q. But these are statements that you made and published in this report?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And you understood them to be correct when you issued them?
A. I believed them --
MS. BROWN: Object to the form.
A. I believed them to be my best estimate.
Q. Turn to Page 11 of the report and read to yourself the Coleman Company financial forecast. Just let me know when you've finished reading that.
A. Okay.
Q. And it concludes with the statement, "We are being very conservative with regard to Coleman's capital structure. The company will be generating significant cash flow, and we expect continued deleveraging to occur in 1998." By that you mean Coleman would be paying off even more of its debt?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. That's what deleveraging means?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. Do you believe the statements

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018478

contained in that Coleman company financial forecast to be your best understanding at the time you wrote them?
A. It was my best estimate, yes.
Q. The next page, the next two pages are financial forecasts for 1997 and 1998. And if you look at the bottom of those tables, they say, "Source: Company financial and Morgan Stanley estimates." Do you know what Morgan Stanley estimates went into this?
A. I couldn't tell you specifically. Well, just basically the third, fourth quarter in the year were our estimates.
Q. And when you say "our estimates," were they estimates that you did or estimates that you obtained from others?
A. Estimates that I did.
Q. The EBITDA number for the year end 1997 is 123.7 million. Do you know how you derived that number?
A. I can't recall, no.
Q. And, likewise, if you turn to the next page, you'll see the year end 1998 EBITDA is 162.3 million. Is that a number you derived?

Page 91

A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Do you remember how you derived it?
A. No, I couldn't tell you.
Q. But having looked at this document, do you recognize that to be your best estimate of 1998 EBITDA?
A. I don't recognize it, but to my best recollection, it would have been my best estimate.
Q. You wouldn't have put it in there if you had some other number?
A. Correct.
Q. Was there a protocol or methodology or model that you followed to derive numbers such as that?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. At the time?
A. No.
Q. Did you receive any guidance or instruction at Morgan Stanley as to what estimates to use or what predictions to make for companies of this type?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. For a secondary company like this, absolutely not.

Page 92

Q. What do you mean by a secondary company?
A. Meaning a company that published financials, etc. There was no one else. It was our own. We had the autonomy to determine our estimates.
Q. Do you remember discussing your estimates of EBITDA for '97 or '98 with anyone else at Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't recall, no.
Q. Do you think you might have discussed them with Mr. Foley?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Turn to the next document.
MS. BROWN: Page?
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry. It's Page 14.
MS. BROWN: Turn to the next page.
Q. Page 14 and 15. It's Appendix 1, "Prices Paid for Recent Consumer Product Transactions." Is this a compilation that you prepared?
A. No, it is not.
Q. Where did you get it?
A. I got it from the investment banking division.

Page 93

Q. Do you know who at investment banking?
A. I do not recall. And, actually, I should specify. It was either investment banking or equity research. I'm not sure which one.
Q. There are some indications for footnotes. For example, after aggregate value it has a little footnote two, and after-premium price it has a little footnote three, but I don't see the footnotes. Do you know what that's there for?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Do you have an understanding of what premium price means?
A. I believe -- no, I can't recall specifically.
Q. What is your belief?
A. I would believe it's the price over where the stock was trading at the time.
Q. And if you look at the bottom of this table, which is found in the next page, the mean premium price is just under 50 percent, and the median is just over

018479

Page 94

50 percent?
A. That's what it would appear to say, yes.
Q. And this is the information that you included in the report that you published; correct?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Now, if you look at the bottom lines on Page 15, the mean and median numbers, the aggregate value column, there is a revenue column, an EBITDA column, an and EBIT column?
A. Yes.
Q. And there is that 13.4 number. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is this the source of the 13.4 multiple that is referenced earlier in the paper?
A. I would assume so.
Q. And that reflects that for these transactions in the consumer product field, the median multiple of revenue was 2.0, the median multiple of EBITDA was 13.4, and median multiple of EBIT was 17.6?
A. That's what it would seem to say,

yes.
Q. For a financial analyst such as yourself, would you prefer to use the median or the mean?
A. In general, we use the median.
Q. Why is that?
A. Because it rules out the absolutes.
Q. Meaning the outliers?
A. Yes.
Q. Having looked at this document and now having really gone through the whole thing, do you remember any other sources of information that you used to prepare this other than the ones you've talked about already?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Is there anything in here that you believe to be incorrect?
A. I couldn't recall.
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. Let me state that a little differently. I think I've asked you this in a number of places. Is there anything in here that you didn't believe to be correct or your best estimate at the time you published the report?

A. No, I do not think so.
Q. And looking back, do you look back on this and say, oh, gee, I don't think that was right?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I don't have the -- I don't have -- Coleman's done, so I don't have the perspective with which to answer that.
Q. Okay. Well, that answers the question. I appreciate that. Now, after you published this report, did you discuss it with anyone at Morgan Stanley, that you remember?
A. Not specifically, but you would obviously discuss it with your sales force, your traders, and your clients.
Q. Was there a particular trader that was responsible for Coleman?
A. Michael Lily.
Q. And he remained responsible for Coleman throughout the period?
A. Yes, he did.
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. The '97, '98 time frame?
A. Yes, he was.

Page 97

Q. Do you remember any discussions with Mr. Lily?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Do you remember any general topics of conversation with him?
A. Yes. Whenever earnings came out, and Coleman, frankly, disappointed a lot, we would have to have conversations on that.
Q. Do you remember any discussions with the sales staff?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. You referred to earnings coming out. I would like to show you what I'll mark as an additional exhibit.
MR. BRODY: Mark this as 274.
(Earnings announcement of Coleman marked CPH Exhibit 274 for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I've given you what has been marked as Exhibit 274. Do you recognize that as an earnings announcement of Coleman?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And that was earnings for the third quarter announced in November of 1997?
A. Appears to be, yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And it shows that it was sent to you?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. Is this an earnings report from Coleman?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. Were you on a regular circulation list that you would receive these documents?
MS. BROWN: Object. Foundation.
A. To my knowledge, I was.
Q. Do you know how that happened, how you got to be on that?
A. I requested to be on their distribution list.
Q. You requested that of Coleman?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. If you turn to the fourth page of this document, there are some financial numbers, and on the bottom there appears to be some handwriting?
A. Um- hmm.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting?
A. It may be mine, but I'm not sure.
Q. Do you have any understanding as to what it refers to?

A. No, I don't.
Q. After you received this report, did you modify the research that you put out there?
A. I couldn't recall.
MR. BRODY: Mark this, please, as Exhibit 275.
(Research report dated January 26 issued by Ms. Eltrich marked CPH Exhibit 275 for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Ms. Eltrich, I'm showing you what has been marked as Exhibit 275. Do you recognize that as another research report that you issued?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. That you published?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And it's dated January 26th?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, the prior one was dated October 9th, 1997. Are you aware of any research reports between those two dates?
A. I can't recollect.
Q. And can you recall any research reports after this date?

A. I can't recollect.
Q. If I were to tell you that the acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam, Sunbeam being a Morgan Stanley client, was publicly announced at the beginning of March 1998, would you believe that you would have done another research report after this one?
A. No, I would not have been allowed to.
Q. So if the facts I just told you are correct, and I believe them to be, you believe this to be your final research report?
A. I can't recollect.
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. Looking at Exhibit 275, is that a document that you drafted?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And at the time you drafted it, you did so in the course of your responsibilities at Morgan Stanley?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And the document was published by Morgan Stanley to the recipients of its research reports, its high yield research reports?

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. It was distributed on a distribution list to our clients.
Q. Okay. That's a better way of stating it. And it was sent to those clients in the ordinary course of Morgan Stanley's business?
A. To my knowledge, yes.
Q. Did you keep a copy of this document in your file?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you believe you did?
A. Probably not.
Q. It wasn't your practice to keep copies of research reports that you issued?
A. It was kept in my computer, not on file.
Q. So it was kept in electronic form?
A. Correct.
Q. And was it the ordinary course of your business to keep copies of the research reports you issued in electronic form on your computer?
A. It was the firm's practice, yes.

Q. In this report dated January 26, 1998, you continued to recommend a strong buy for the Coleman Escrow I and Coleman Escrow II zero coupon notes; correct?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. At the time, January 26, 1998, were you aware that Sunbeam, counseled by Morgan Stanley, was in conversations with Coleman about acquiring Coleman?
A. I did not know.
Q. Do you know when you learned that fact?
A. When it was announced.
Q. Have you had a chance to review this document recently?
A. Not really, no.
Q. Okay. Well, we'll go through it a bit at a time. If you look at the summary and investment conclusions, I'll ask you to read that first paragraph to yourself.
A. Um-hmm.
Q. You've had a chance to read that paragraph?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. And those are statements that you published in January of 1998?

Page 103

A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. And you believed them to be correct at the time?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Turn to a couple of paragraphs later that begins, "At the end of 1996." Do you see that paragraph?
A. Um-hmm.
Q. And about two-thirds of the way through the paragraph there is a sentence that reads, "Fundamentally, Coleman is in its best position in nearly five years."
A. Yes.
Q. You wrote that?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And you believed that to be true when you wrote it?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Turn to the next page. There is a listing of investment strengths and weaknesses. See that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Again, those are statements that you made?

Page 104

A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And you believed them to be correct at the time you issued them?
A. I believe so.
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. You published them?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. If you turn to the document that bears the page number four of the document, "Coleman Company 1997 Summary Financial Forecast"?
A. Yes.
Q. Again, that's a financial forecast that you derived?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Some of the numbers are historical and some of them are estimates that you created?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. And, likewise, the following page is a similar set of estimates for 1998, some of which were historical and others reflect work that you did?
A. I believe --
MS. BROWN: Object to form. You said historical for 1998.

Page 105

MR. BRODY: Well, the document is entitled 1998, but it contains 1997 numbers, among other things. Let me start over.
Q. Page No. 5, it's entitled "Coleman Company 1998 Summary and Financial Forecast." It contains some historical numbers from 1997?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. And it contains some estimated numbers for 1997 and 1998?
A. It appears to, yes.
Q. And those estimates are estimates that you created?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And at the time you published these numbers, you believed them to be the best estimates that you could come up with; is that correct?
A. To the best of my recollection, yes.
Q. Now, there is no reference in here, as best I can tell, to multiples of EBITDA, the 12.0 and the 13.4 numbers, for example, that we saw in Exhibit 272. Any reason to believe that you thought that those had changed between October of 1997 and January of 1998?

A. I cannot recall.
Q. You cannot recall any reason?
A. Cannot recall.
Q. At the time you published this report, you believed it to be true and the best estimate of what you expected to happen?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Did you continue to follow Coleman after this date?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Did you ever come to learn that any of the statements that you made in the report we've marked as Exhibit 275 were incorrect?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. Now, when you wrote one of these documents and they were published, do you know to whom they were sent?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know how many of them were sent out?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Can you estimate hundreds or thousands or any idea?

Page 107

A. I can safely say less than a thousand, but that's about all I can give you.
Q. Do you know if it was more than a hundred?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Now, I believe you testified in response to an earlier question that you first learned of the possible transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman when the deal was publicly announced; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you know how it was that you came to learn of it?
A. No, I don't remember.
Q. Prior to that date, that announcement date, do you remember anyone from any other division within Morgan Stanley asking you for information about Coleman?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. No one asked me directly about Coleman, no.
Q. Did people ask you indirectly?
A. There was one time when I was asked for potential acquisition targets, and I mentioned Coleman.

Page 108

Q. What do you remember of that conversation? Who was it with?
A. Bob Kitts.
Q. What do you remember Mr. Kitts asking you?
A. Do you have any good consumer product companies in high yield that you feel could be takeover candidates?
Q. And what did you tell him?
A. I remember Coleman was on the list and probably Playtex.
Q. Did you cover Playtex?
A. Yes.
Q. Besides those two companies, any others that you remember?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Do you remember when this conversation was with Mr. Kitts?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you remember giving him copies of your reports?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know if he had them?
A. He would have had access to them,

Page 109

yes.
Q. How?
A. We're the same firm, and it's all on a -- it's all on a portal.
Q. Okay. So someone in investment banking could call up your reports on a computer portal?
A. Correct.
Q. After that conversation with Mr. Kitts, did you have any follow-up conversations with him?
A. No, I did not.
Q. And then when the deal was announced, did you have further conversations with Mr. Kitts?
A. I don't recall who -- no, I don't believe I did directly.
Q. Do you know a Morgan Stanley employee by the name of Bill Strong, William Strong?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Did you ever work with Mr. Strong on the Coleman or Sunbeam transaction?
A. Not directly, no.
Q. Did you work with him indirectly?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018483

Page 110

A. Indirectly, yes.
Q. In what way?
A. They had me look at the transaction from -- basically giving what I knew about Coleman during that due diligence process.
Q. Can you explain what you mean by that?
A. In terms of as they were looking at Coleman as an acquisition target, what I thought of the company, could I verify statements by management.
Q. Who did you work with?
A. The only name I can remember directly is Chris Whelan.
Q. In connection with that work, did Mr. Whelan or others show you financial analyses that the investment bankers had prepared about Coleman?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Well, we'll go through that in a bit. And you understand Mr. Whelan to be working in Mr. Strong's organization?
A. No, he was not. Chris Whelan worked for credit, which is -- they worked with the rating agencies to determine what rating a bond will be issued with.

Q. What do you mean by saying this was indirectly from Mr. Strong?
A. Because we're the same firm and it was the same deal.
Q. Did you understand Mr. Strong to be in charge of the deal?
A. No.
MS. BROWN: Object to the form.
Q. Ms. Eltrich, were you aware that Morgan Stanley advised the board of directors of Sunbeam about the Coleman transaction?
A. I was aware, yes.
Q. Are you aware that Morgan Stanley made a presentation to the Sunbeam board of directors?
A. I was not directly aware, no.
Q. Did you ever, to your knowledge, see a presentation that they made?
A. Not to my knowledge, no.
Q. Were you aware that Morgan Stanley issued a fairness opinion?
A. Not directly, no.
Q. Do you know what a fairness opinion is?

Page 112

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Ms. Eltrich, I'm handing you what has previously been marked as Exhibit 89. And up at the top it says "Preliminary Draft," but I believe the testimony is this is as final as it got. And there is some handwriting there, Tyrone Chang, on the first page. Do you know a Mr. Tyrone Chang?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. There are some things in here I may ask you about, but the first thing I'm going to ask you about this document is have you ever seen it before?
A. Not my recollection.
Q. Well, that's going to make the other questions go a little faster. I will represent to you that this is a presentation to the board of directors of Sunbeam about Coleman. The title is, "Presentation to the Board of Directors Camper," but it's not to the Coleman board. It's about Coleman. And I would ask you to turn to the page bearing number two. It's got the production number in the corner ending with 64. And it's entitled "Strategic Rationale Camper." Have you ever seen that before?

A. Not to my recollection.
Q. If you turn to Page 16 of the document, it ends with the production number 82. It's entitled "Summary of Camper Evaluation Analyses." Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And what is contained therein is a trading analysis, a precedent transaction analysis, a discounted cash flow, and an estimated value of synergies. Do you see those numbers?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Prior to this deposition had you seen those numbers before?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. If you look at the trading analysis at the beginning, there are various multiples of EBITDA and EBIT contained therein, among other things. Do you ever remember having any consultations with anyone at Morgan Stanley about what was the appropriate multiple to use?
A. No, I do not think I did.
Q. And in the precedent trading analysis, do you remember discussing those multiples or the appropriate transactions to use as precedents with anyone at Morgan Stanley?

Page 114

A. Not to my recollection.
Q. The last item refers to estimated value of synergies. Do you remember ever performing any analysis of synergies that would or could result from this transaction?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. If you turn to the appendix of this document, it's Page 54. It ends Page 22, 022. There is a description of various premiums paid in consumer and sporting goods transactions. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And it goes on for a couple of pages. Have you ever seen this before?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. Now, when we were looking at Exhibit 272, your initiation of coverage for Coleman, at the end of the document you had various other transactions that you compared Coleman to.
A. Yes.

Page 115

Q. Do you believe that the source for your information was a document such as the one we're looking at here, Page 55, 56?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form
A. I can't -- like I said, I don't know if I got it from banking or equity. I don't know who kept track.
Q. Okay. And this doesn't look familiar to you?
A. It's the same format as the firm uses, but, again, I don't know who the source is.
Q. Okay. When you received that information from either banking or equity, did you keep a copy of it in your files?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Do you know if you received it in hard copy form or electronic form?
A. It would have been electronically.
Q. In addition to making the presentation we've seen that's been marked as Exhibit 89, Morgan Stanley prepared a fairness opinion or a fairness opinion letter relating to this transaction. Have you ever seen that before?

Page 116

A. No, I have not.
Q. Do you know if you were ever asked questions about the fairness of the transaction to the shareholders of Sunbeam?
A. To my recollection, no.
Q. Now, the record reflects that Morgan Stanley was retained by Sunbeam to assist it in the fall of 1997. I'll just state that for you. You don't have to believe me, but I believe that's what the record will reflect. And I believe your testimony is you first learned of the Coleman transaction in March of '98?
A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. Between the fall of '97 and March of 98, did you receive any other questions, other than the ones from Mr. Kitts about potential takeover candidates, relating to the work that Morgan Stanley did for Sunbeam?
A. No.
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you have any knowledge of what Morgan Stanley was doing for Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall.

Page 117

Q. And I understand you've never worked in the investment banking division of Morgan Stanley?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Do you know what they were doing or what their duties were for Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. At some point Morgan Stanley was looking for a company to acquire Sunbeam. Did you have anything to do or were you asked any questions about efforts to find a company to acquire Sunbeam?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. And obviously at some point Morgan Stanley was looking for a company for Sunbeam to buy, and I believe you testified about your conversations with Mr. Kitts prior to the announcement. Do you have any other involvement or knowledge of the work that Morgan Stanley did on the buy side?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Are you aware that Morgan Stanley's chairman was a gentleman by the name of Al Dunlap?

Q. Are you aware that Sunbeam's chairman was an individual by the name of Al Dunlap?
A. I am now, yes.
Q. Were you aware of that prior to the announcement of this deal?
A. No. I didn't know who he was.
Q. Between the announcement of the deal and its closing, did you have anything to do with Mr. Dunlap?
A. As memory recollects, I listened to one of his earnings conference calls, but I can't recall what direct due diligence I had with him.
Q. Do you believe that earnings conference call was between the announcement and the closing?
A. Actually, I shouldn't -- I don't know if -- I think it was actually the announcement conference call. I don't think it was in an earnings conference call. I'm sorry. It was the actual announcement call.
Q. The announcement of the deal?

Page 119

A. Yes.
Q. We'll get to that. Have you ever covered any other companies or investigated covering any other companies that Mr. Dunlap was involved in?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you know a company by the name of Scott Paper?
A. I've heard of the company, yes.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley covered Scott Paper?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you?
A. No, I did not.
Q. So you didn't do any work on Scott Paper?
A. No, I've never done work.
Q. Have you ever heard it suggested by anyone that Mr. Dunlap's turnaround of Scott Paper was not real?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. No, I have not, can't recollect.
Q. Do you remember any conversations with anyone at Morgan Stanley about whether Mr. Dunlap had accomplished anything at Scott

Page 120

Paper?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Is it correct that at the time of this deal, the announcement of this deal, Morgan Stanley did not cover Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall any coverage that it provided?
A. I don't recall any coverage, no.
Q. Were you ever asked to consider covering Sunbeam securities?
A. It was an investment grade company, so no.
Q. Do you know if others within the company were asked to cover --
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. I believe I asked you this before. You understand that Mr. Conway, Andrew Conway, was an equity analyst?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever have any conversations with Mr. Conway about Sunbeam or Coleman?
A. Not that I recall. Actually, his junior, Jim Dormer, was going to do most of the work if they were to initiate coverage.

Page 121

Q. Did you have any conversations with Mr. Dormer?
A. I'm sure I did, but I don't recall them specifically.
Q. Do you have any general recollection of items that you discussed with Mr. Dormer?
A. No, I do not.
MR. BRODY: Why don't we go off the record for a minute. We need to change the tape.
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is now 11:39. We've reached the end of tape number one, and we are off the record.
The time is now 11:41, and this is tape number two, and we are back on the record.
(Document Bates stamped CPH 251099-251122 marked CPH Exhibit 276 for identification, as of this date.)
Q. In prior testimony you've talked about how you learned of the Sunbeam Coleman transaction through an announcement; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. I'm going to show you what the court reporter has marked as Exhibit 276, and if you turn to the page ending with the number 119, there is a list of participants and a number -- I'll wait until you're there.

A. Yes.
Q. And at number 257 is your name. And if you turn to Page 115, it describes that that's a list of participants, too. And it's about a conference call on March 2, 1998. See that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. No, I have not.
Q. There is some handwriting on the first couple of pages of the document. Do you recognize that handwriting?
A. No.
Q. The very beginning.
A. Oh. No, I do not recognize the handwriting.
Q. There is evidence in the case that the deal was publicly announced on March 2nd. Do you recognize this as a list of people who participated in a conference call on March 2,

1998?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
A. I couldn't tell you.
Q. You believe you learned of the deal from participating in a conference call; is that correct?
A. No, it is not.
Q. How did you learn of the deal?
A. I believe it was when it was publicly announced on the press wire.
Q. Then did you thereafter participate in a conference call?
A. I can't specifically recall, but I believe so.
Q. After the deal was publicly announced on the press wire, did you do anything?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. In relation to the deal?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Do you remember discussing the announcement with anyone?
A. I discussed it with my trader.
Q. That's Mr. Lily?
A. Yes.

Page 124

Q. What do you remember discussing with him?
A. That we just made a lot of money.
Q. Why is that?
A. Because the Coleman bonds were going to be taken out.
Q. How did you know that?
A. I believe -- this is to my recollection, but I believe they announced that plan in the -- or it may have been our own speculation, but either way the bonds were getting taken out or the bonds would be investment grade because Sunbeam was investment grade, so they would appreciate in value.
Q. Your idea was that there would be a reduced risk of loss on the bonds with Sunbeam as the ultimate owner?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you know if the bonds were, in fact, taken out?
A. To my recollection, yes, the bonds were taken out.
Q. Do you know why they were taken out? And by "taken out" you mean they were redeemed?

A. Correct.
Q. They were sold or --
A. They were paid back.
Q. Paid back. Do you know why they were redeemed?
A. I can't recall specifically what the capital structure decision was on that.
Q. Do you know who was involved in that capital structure decision?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Did your trading operation, the high yield group, in fact, make money on these bonds?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. Do you remember how big a position you had?
A. No, I don't remember.
Q. But are we talking millions or?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Aside from the conversation with Mr. Lily about the fact that you would make money on the bonds, do you remember any other conversations you had after the announcement?
A. All I remember talking to

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 126

specifically is Chris Whelan.
Q. And that was the conversation you referred to earlier?
A. There were multiple conversations, and I couldn't recall any of them specifically.
Q. Mr. Whelan worked in the credit group?
A. Correct.
Q. Was his office near yours?
A. It was in the same building.
Q. Where was that?
A. 1585 Broadway. He may have been in a different building, but he was within blocks.
Q. What do you remember being your first conversation with Mr. Whelan about this?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you know why Mr. Whelan and the credit group were involved in the transaction?
A. The credit group's function is to get a rating from the rating agency. So his function was to get a rating for the converts.
Q. Did Mr. Whelan, to your knowledge, prepare a rating agency presentation?

Page 127

A. I wouldn't have been involved in that.
Q. I believe you testified that Mr. Whelan asked you some questions and asked you to verify certain statements that they were making; is that correct?
A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. Do you remember what sorts of things Mr. Whelan asked you about?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Did you communicate with him face to face or on the telephone?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if you sent emails back and forth to Mr. Whelan?
A. I don't specifically recall.
Q. What do you think?
A. I would say most --
MS. BROWN: Objection. Speculation.
A. Pure speculation would be most likely, yes.
Q. Most likely yes emails?
A. Yes. Well, did we email, yes. Was that the primary form of the communication, I don't recall.

Page 128

Q. Sometimes face to face?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Sometimes on the phone?
A. Most likely, yes.
Q. And I believe you testified that Mr. Whelan asked you questions about Coleman; is that correct?
A. Most likely, yes.
Q. Do you remember any of the specifics he asked you about Coleman?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you remember any of the areas or topics he asked about?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Ms. Eltrich, I'm showing you what has been marked as Exhibit 9 in a prior deposition, and like the other big one I gave you, I'm just going to first ask you if this is something you've ever seen before.
A. Not to my recollection, no.
Q. In connection with any of the work that you did for Morgan Stanley beginning on the date of announcement and going forward, do you know if you were ever shown any of the discussion materials or presentation books that Morgan Stanley prepared for use in its efforts on behalf of Sunbeam?

A. Not that I recall.
Q. If you turn to the page ending in 290, it's very early in the document, it's about the fifth or sixth page of the document entitled "Investment Rationale."
A. Um-hmm.
Q. Got it?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that a document you've ever seen before?
A. I don't recall.
Q. The first bullet point refers to Sunbeam being an attractive growth story. Did you ever see that phraseology contained in Morgan Stanley presentations or materials?
A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. Do you recall generally that people discussed Sunbeam as an attractive growth story?
A. I don't recall.
Q. The next item refers to the profound transformation at Sunbeam. Do you recall any discussions within Morgan Stanley or with

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 130

Sunbeam about this profound transformation?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I can't specifically recall anything.
Q. Do you recall generally?
A. Commitment committee. That would be it.
Q. Were you at the commitment committee?
A. I was at meetings. Again, I was -- I can't remember the exact time frame because, again, I was eight and a half months pregnant, but I was definitely in meetings discussing the bridge loan, but I can't remember if it was -- most likely it was the commitment committee, but I can't recall.
Q. Okay. We'll get to that in a moment. The next item refers to tremendous intrinsic value in the company. Do you recall any discussions within Morgan Stanley about that?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. None that I directly participated in.
Q. Do you remember any discussion about the intrinsic value of Sunbeam?

Page 131

A. No.
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I don't recall.
Q. Are you aware that Mr. Dunlap had published a book?
A. No, I was not aware.
Q. You have not seen his book Mean Business?
A. Not that I'm aware of, no.
Q. Nobody ever gave you a copy?
A. No. I have plenty of other bad CEOs who have given me books, so...
Q. Not that one?
A. Not that one.
Q. Were you involved in any efforts at Morgan Stanley in preparing materials to go to the public or to go to investors in Sunbeam about this transaction?
A. No, I was not.
Q. So you weren't involved in any announcements, any press statements or public statements about the announcement or the deal?
A. I believe I was not.
Q. Now, after the deal was announced in early March 1998 and until the first stage of the Coleman transaction closed, which I'll state was on March 30th, 1998, in that March time frame, and I know you were only there for part of it, what did you work on relating to the deal?

Page 132

A. Very little.
Q. Well, if anything, what do you recall?
A. All I recall is a couple of conference calls for due diligence on different parts of the varying acquisitions and one for -- I believe one for Sunbeam. But I would clarify I was not really doing the due diligence role. It was more just to verify statements on Coleman.
Q. Now, when you referred to the different parts of the acquisition, by that do you mean First Alert --
A. Yes.
Q. -- Signature Brands, and Coleman?
A. Correct.
Q. So you were on conference calls about those companies?
A. Correct.

Page 133

Q. And you were also on, you believe, a conference call about Sunbeam?
A. If memory serves correct, yes.
Q. And then you had some role in the events leading up to the leveraged finance credit committee?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I did not have roles in that, no.
Q. But you participated in the meeting?
A. I was at the meeting, again, to provide my knowledge on Coleman.
Q. Anything else that you remember doing in that time frame?
A. No.
Q. Now, you had a daughter?
A. Yes.
Q. Your daughter was born when?
A. March 25th.
Q. Did you work up until she was born?
A. Pretty much, yes.
Q. So you were probably, I don't know what day of the week it was, but were you in the office on the 24th?
A. No.
Q. Were you there on the 23rd?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018489

Page 134

A. I don't recall.
Q. Okay. Then I think it's safe to assume after she was born, you weren't around for a while?
A. That is correct. I took I believe twelve or fourteen weeks.
Q. So you didn't come back until sometime in the summer?
A. I came back the day Al Dunlap was fired.
Q. June 15th.
A. There you go.
Q. So between sometime around the 25th-ish of March until June 15th or thereabouts you weren't around?
A. Correct.
Q. And during that time frame did you get stuff at home? Did you do anything relating to Sunbeam?
A. I did not.
Q. So let's focus on the time period between the announcement and the 25th or so of March when you ceased working for the time being. Was there a team or group of people that was put together to work on this deal?

Page 135

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I would assume so.
(Revised Working Group List for Sunbeam Corp. marked CPH Exhibit 277 for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Ms. Eltrich, I've given you what has been marked as Exhibit 277. And the subject of the memorandum is "Revised Working Group List for Sunbeam Corp." Do you see that?
A. Um-hmm.
Q. And you were listed as a recipient on this memorandum?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. And if you turn to Page 11 of the fax, it bears the Bates number Morgan Stanley Confidential 4683.
A. Um-hmm.
Q. There is a list of Morgan Stanley participants, including yourself; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall if you received this working group list?
A. I don't recall, no.
Q. Mr. Conway and Mr. Dormer are listed there, who we've spoken about. Mr. Foley is listed. Do you know what Mr. Foley did on the transaction?

Page 136

A. I don't think he was that involved, but I can't recall specifically.
Q. Fair enough. If you turn to the beginning of this document, Page 3 of the fax, it describes a number of individuals at Sunbeam. It goes on for two pages. I would like you to tell me if you recall speaking with any of those individuals.
A. No, I do not recall.
Q. If you turn to Page 4 of the document, the first name listed there is Bob Gluck. Do you recognize Mr. Gluck to be the controller or senior accounting officer at Sunbeam?
A. It's what's listed here. If this is correct, then yes.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Gluck was on the Sunbeam call that you participated on?
A. I can't recall.
Q. And any of these other names, do you remember them being involved in that call?
A. I really can't recall.
Q. The next several pages are

individuals from Morgan Stanley. And I'm going to ask you just to go through them. We'll go through it a page at a time, but I'm just going to ask you if you remember having any communications, conversations, phone calls, face to face, email, or otherwise with these individuals about the Sunbeam deal or about Coleman.
The first page has Mr. Fiedorek, Mr. Strong, Mr. Savarie, Mr. Stynes. Do you remember them, working with them?
A. I remember Bruce Fiedorek, I remember Bill Strong, but I don't recall any specific conversations on Sunbeam or Coleman.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Fiedorek and Mr. Strong from the Sunbeam transaction or just from being at Morgan Stanley?
A. Just from being at Morgan Stanley.
Q. The next page identifies Mr. Kitts, and you've spoken about your conversation with Mr. Kitts.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you remember any other conversations with him?
A. I don't.

Page 138

Q. We've spoken about Mr. Chang. There is Alexander Fuchs. Do you remember any conversations with him?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Or Mr. Yoo?
A. No, I do not.
Q. The next page identifies the client services group. Do you remember any conversations with them or communications of any kind with them about Sunbeam?
A. No, I do not.
Q. The next page identifies equity capital markets. Likewise, do you remember any conversations with them?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you know Ruth Porat?
A. I know her through the firm, yes.
Q. You don't remember her from the Sunbeam deal?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Likewise, Mr. Harris, do you know him?
A. Actually, I don't recall him.
Q. The next page identifies Mr. Whelan, and you've testified about him. Do you remember any conversations with Mr. Kunreuther?

Page 139

A. No, I do not.
Q. Turn to the next page, it identifies leveraged finance. And do you understand them to be the organization within Morgan Stanley that was making the loan?
A. Correct.
Q. Did you have any dealings with any of these individuals?
A. I dealt frequently with Rom Smith and Michael Hart.
Q. Did you have dealings with them on this deal?
A. I'm sure at some point we had conversations on it.
Q. You said you frequently dealt with Mr. Smith and Mr. Hart. What about?
A. Because a lot of companies that have high yield also have bank debt, so we would compare notes on the market, etc.
Q. Do you remember comparing notes with either of those individuals on Coleman or Sunbeam?
A. No, I do not.

Page 140

Q. Likewise, Mr. Burchill or Mr. Seth?
A. I don't recall them.
Q. Next page we've spoken about. The next page, Page 12, is for a law firm Davis Polk & Wardell. Did you ever deal with lawyers on this deal?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Two pages later there is a listing of even more lawyers from Skadden Arps. Did you have any dealings with them?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Page 16 of the document refers to Coopers & Lybrand. Did you have any dealings with Coopers?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you know what Coopers did on this transaction?
A. No. I was not involved in that.
Q. The next two pages, Ernst & Young, do you know what they did?
A. I was not involved in that.
Q. Ernst & Young were auditors for Coleman. On the conference call you were on about Coleman, do you know if the auditors were on the call?

Page 141

A. I don't know.
Q. We're going to skip a couple of pages and ask you to turn to Page 22 of the document, and you see the listing for Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. And it continues for a couple of pages. It lists Mr. Harlow, Mr. Bornstein, and then some other individuals?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have any conversations with those gentlemen?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you remember if there were accountants from Arthur Andersen on the due diligence calls or the conference calls that you participated in?
A. I can't recall.
Q. After the listing of Arthur Andersen, there is a listing for Bank America followed by First Union. Do you know what roles those entities played?
A. I believe they were also participating in the bridge loan.
Q. Did you have any conversations with

018491

them, with individuals from those companies?
A. Not until after the deal fell apart. It was after I came back from maternity leave.
Q. And when you refer to the deal falling apart, what do you mean?
A. Meaning Sunbeam preannouncing that they were missing numbers, and we were not able to syndicate the bridge loan.
Q. Were you involved in the efforts to syndicate?
A. No, I was not.
Q. You indicated that you were on a number of conference calls. Do you understand those calls to be part of the due diligence process?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. To my recollection, I believe so.
Q. What does the term "due diligence" mean to you?
A. From a research perspective, due diligence for the available information that we get is to learn as much as you can and to identify the risk accordingly so that you can convey them to your investors.
Q. Do you remember the purpose for your involvement in these various due diligence calls?

MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.
A. It was more to relate on how they -- it was more to provide knowledge on Coleman than anything else.
Q. When you participated in the conference calls about Signature Brands and First Alert, did you say anything?
A. To my recollection, no, I did not.
Q. I take it nobody asked you anything?
A. To my recollection, no.
Q. Do you remember anything that was said in those conference calls?
A. I really don't recall.
Q. At Morgan Stanley or at Advest where you had worked before, had you received any training in how to do the investigation into the risks that you just described?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Describe what you mean by "training."
Q. Well, had there been any within the firm seminars or written materials or instructional meetings where people told you how to do this kind of investigation or research?

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. The primary source of learning was through, as a junior, sitting with the senior analysts and seeing what they did, and then within our research group, we tended to invoke best practices of here's a mistake I made, you don't make it. And one of my senior analysts that I worked with kept a due diligence checklist of questions for different industries that you should always ask. But it's not something that you learn in a day. It's primarily done through experience.
Q. You referred to best practices. How are those communicated to other people within your group or within Morgan Stanley?
A. Through research meetings.
Q. Were they communicated in writing or just --
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you ever remember getting a memo or some other --
A. I don't recall. I don't recall.

Page 145

Q. -- some other writing describing best practices?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You indicated that a colleague of yours had a due diligence checklist?
A. He did, for example, for financial institutions, because I subbed for him when he was in Hong Kong for the summer, and he had kept a checklist.
Q. Who was that?
A. Emil Costa.
Q. Did you keep a copy of that after you stopped subbing for him?
A. I did at Morgan Stanley. I was not able to take my files, obviously, to Goldman Sachs.
Q. Of course. So while you were working at Morgan Stanley, you had this checklist of the sorts of things to look for?
A. For financial --
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
Q. For the sorts of things to look into?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. For financial institutions.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018492

Page 146

Q. Did you use that checklist when looking at companies that were not financial institutions?
A. Maybe a couple. I mean to the best of my recollection, maybe a couple of the bullet points. But every company is different, and the amounts of information you get for each company is different. So there is no cookie-cutter way of looking at due diligence.
Q. I understand. I understand your testimony. Aside from what you've just described, do you remember there being any documents or manuals on how to do due diligence?
A. Within research, not that I recall.
Q. Do you recall them being elsewhere in Morgan Stanley?
A. I would not be aware.
Q. Now, you participated in a number of conference calls. Aside from the conference calls, were you ever told what else Morgan Stanley had done to investigate Sunbeam, Coleman, First Alert, or Signature Brands?
A. Not that I recall.

Page 147

Q. So your knowledge of the investigation that was done is limited to those calls?
MS. BROWN: Object to form and characterization.
A. I couldn't recall specifically, but yes, I would say to the best of my recollection, my knowledge was confined to the calls.
Q. I would like to deal with each of the calls individually. There was a call about First Alert?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you remember anything about it?
A. I really don't.
Q. Do you know who was on it?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you know how long it lasted?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you remember participating on your own phone, or were you in a room with others speaking on the speaker phone?
A. I believe I was on my own phone.
Q. Was it a type of thing where you would dial in to a call?

Page 148

A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. Do you remember anything that was said in that call about First Alert?
A. No, I really don't remember.
Q. Signature Brands, that was another company that Sunbeam was acquiring?
A. Yes.
Q. And you participated in the call about Signature Brands?
A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. What do you remember about the call?
A. I don't remember anything.
Q. Again, did you dial into that call, or were you in a room with others?
A. To my recollection, I dialed in.
Q. Do you know anyone else who was on the call?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember anything that was said?
A. No, I don't. I should clarify the only person I know who would have been on the call with me is Chris Whelan.
Q. Okay. Do you remember Mr. Whelan being on the calls or --

Page 149

A. I don't remember specifically, but I know he would have been on the calls.
Q. The call about Sunbeam, do you remember when that took place in relation to the announcement or the closing?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you remember who was on the call?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Were there people other than Morgan Stanley people on the call?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember what was said?
A. No, I don't.
Q. Do you recall if you said anything?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Now, for these three calls, the First Alert, Signature Brands, and Sunbeam calls, did you take notes?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Would it have been your custom or practice to take notes?
A. If it was a bond underwriting, yes. But as this wasn't a bond underwriting and I wouldn't have to convey the facts to investors, not necessarily.

Q. Do you remember if there was an agenda for the calls?
A. I don't recall specifically.
MS. BROWN: Let's just take a ten or fifteen-minute break and I'll just grab a snack and we'll start up again.
MR. BRODY: That's fine with me if it's okay --
THE WITNESS: Yes.
MR. BRODY: Okay. We're off the record.

VIDEOGRAPHER: The time on the monitor is 12:23, and we are back on the record.
Q. Ms. Eltrich, when we broke we were talking about the due diligence calls and what you remembered from them.
A. Yes.
Q. And I think we talked about Signature Brands, First Alert, and Sunbeam. Now I would like to talk about the call about Coleman.

Page 151

A. Okay.
Q. You were on a call in which Coleman was discussed as well?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Do you remember who was on the call?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you remember what was discussed?
A. Not specifically, no.
Q. Were you asked any questions on the call?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you remember anything that you said on the call?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Anything said by others?
A. Not that I recall, no.
Q. Let me show you what previously has been marked as I believe Exhibit 249 in a prior deposition. Do you recognize that as a fax sent by Mr. Whelan to yourself?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And it's sent on March 5th, 1998?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. Do you believe that you received this fax on or about March 5th, 1998?

Page 152

A. I couldn't specifically recall.
Q. If you would look at the fax tag line at the top, it indicates that it was sent from Morgan Stanley 212-761-0687 to 0590. Do you recognize 0590 to be the last digits of your fax number?
A. I can't remember.
Q. Pull out Exhibit 277. It's the working group list. It would be that document. And go to Page 11 of the document. It lists your fax number. That's your fax number, isn't it?
A. If this document is correct, yes.
Q. You don't have any reason to doubt it, do you?
A. No.
Q. If you turn to the second page of the document that's been marked as Exhibit 249, it's a due diligence review agenda for Coleman Company. Do you ever remember looking at that or seeing that?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if those topics were discussed in the conference call that you were in?

Page 153

A. I don't recall.
Q. Does this refresh your recollection at all about what was said?
A. No. It really doesn't.
Q. Do you remember individuals from outside of the Morgan Stanley companies that were involved in the Coleman due diligence call?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if there were accountants or Coleman people?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember taking notes of the call?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Had you taken notes, are those the sorts of things you would have kept?
A. On my computer. If I had taken notes, there would be notes on my computer.
Q. Was it your practice at the time when you took notes to take them on the computer?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. What happened to your computer when you left?

Q. Did you have a custom or a practice at the time?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember anything about what was said or not said on this Coleman due diligence call?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Did you participate in any efforts by Morgan Stanley to look at Sunbeam's reserves?
A. No, I did not.
Q. To contact any of Sunbeam's customers?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. To investigate Sunbeam's current sales or budgets?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. To look at how sales were made or revenue was recognized?

A. Not to my recollection.
Q. Did you participate in any conference calls or communications of any kind with people at Sunbeam other than senior management?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you have any conversations or communications that you know of with Sunbeam's inside accountants or auditors?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Did you personally -- I assume you weren't traveling much at the time. Did you ever visit Sunbeam's offices?
A. Not in the month of March, no.
Q. Did you visit thereafter?
A. I can't recall if I went to the offices. We did tour a couple of plants after.
Q. After June?
A. After June, yes.
Q. Do you know what purpose you were doing that for?
A. It was in terms of seeing what our term loan was worth, our bridge loan was worth. It was putting that in context.

Q. In connection with your investigation of Coleman, either to do your published research reports or to assist investment banking in doing due diligence, prior to the closing of the deal do you know if people from Morgan Stanley looked at Coleman's level of sales?
A. I wasn't involved in that.
Q. Or how Coleman made its sales to its customers?
A. I was not involved in that.
Q. Any conversations with Coleman's senior or junior management?
A. With regard to their sales?
Q. With regard to anything, aside from your conversations with Mr. Shiffman.
A. That's all I'm aware of.
Q. Do you remember any communications with Coleman's accountants?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered. Objection.
A. I was not involved.
Q. And did you ever visit any of

Page 157

Coleman's offices or facilities?
A. I don't recall so, no.
Q. I'm going to show you a series of documents that have been marked in other depositions. And on each of them my first question is going to be have you ever seen this before.
A. Okay.
Q. And then we'll see where we go from there. The first document I'm showing you has previously been marked as Exhibit 28. Have you ever seen this before?
A. I don't recall.
Q. I take it this is not a document you prepared?
A. I don't think so, no.
Q. I'm next showing you what has been marked as Exhibit 27. Have you ever seen this before?
A. I don't think so, no.
Q. There is a reference to fast track due diligence. Do you remember anyone ever referring to fast track due diligence?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. You don't know what that means?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 158

A. I don't think so.
Q. I show you what has previously been marked as Exhibit 31. Have you ever seen that before?
A. I don't think so, no.
Q. It gives information for calling in to various conference calls and indicates that there will be a conference call with the Coleman auditors at 11:30, the Sunbeam auditors at 12, the Signature Brand auditors at 12:30, and the First Alert auditors at one. Does that refresh your recollection about whether you participated in any conference calls with accountants?
A. No, it does not.
Q. That doesn't ring a bell?
A. No.
Q. I'm showing you what has previously been marked as Exhibit 128. And it says, "Attached are the agendas for the due diligence conference calls with First Alert and Signature Brands." And I believe you testified that you were on certain calls with or about First Alert and Signature Brands. I'm asking first if you've ever seen this before.

A. I don't recall.
Q. And second, do the agendas attached to this document refresh your recollection about what was discussed?
A. No, it does not.
Q. Okay. You can put that aside. I'm now showing you what has been marked previously as Exhibit 32. And it's entitled "Accounting Due Diligence." And it's topics one through 18. Have you ever seen that before?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. If you look at item eight it says, "How aggressive is the company in its accounting policies?" Do you remember any conversations with Coleman or Sunbeam about that topic?
A. No, I do not.
Q. And item 16, "Company is conservative and leans to full disclosure?" Do you remember any conversations with either company about that?
A. I do not recall any, no.
Q. I'm showing you what has been marked as Exhibit 33. It refers to a bring-down due diligence call. Are you familiar with the concept of bring-down due diligence?

A. I am not, no.
Q. Are you familiar with the idea that sometimes shortly before a closing, the parties will have a follow-up due diligence call to see if anything has changed since the last time they talked?
A. I'm aware of the concept, but I'm not involved in that side of the business.
Q. Do you remember if one of these calls that you participated in was a bring-down call, served that purpose?
A. Not to my awareness.
Q. Document 33 that I've shown you, have you ever seen this before?
A. This, no, I have not.
Q. I've got one last one in this series, Ms. Eltrich. It's labeled Exhibit 34. Have you ever seen that document before?
A. I don't recall so, no.
Q. Do any of those documents refresh your recollection about what was said in the due diligence calls?

Page 161

A. No, it does not.
Q. In connection with the calls that you were on, did you learn at any time prior to the closing on March 30th, 1998, that Sunbeam had accelerated sales from 1998 into 1997?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I don't recall so.
Q. Had you heard any discussion about that?
A. I don't recall any discussions on that.
Q. When you came back to the company in June, are those things that you looked into or were made aware of?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Prior to the closing on March 30th, 1998, were you aware that Sunbeam had used bill and hold sales techniques to increase its revenue in 1997?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. To my recollection, I was not aware.
Q. Was that a topic that you recall being discussed at all?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 162

A. I do not recall that being discussed?
Q. In any of the work that you did in connection with the deal, do you remember anyone looking at or asking about Sunbeam's sales in the first quarter of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you recall being discussed about Sunbeam's sales in the first quarter of '98?
A. I can't tell you the event, or I should say when it happened, but my recollection, which is vague, is that it came to our attention that Sunbeam would fall short of analyst estimates. And so from our perspective in terms of underwriting the bridge loan, the banker, who I believe at the time the person called upon was Bill Strong, was asked to validate his client and stand up for his client and say should Morgan Stanley underwrite this loan on behalf of your client.
Q. And what happened?
A. Again, it's my recollection Bill Strong did verify his client and did believe that the credit still stood, that the company was still strong.

Q. I believe you said that it came to Morgan Stanley's attention that Sunbeam would fall short of analysts' projections. Is that what you said?
A. I don't remember exactly the context it was put in, but I know obviously after the fact that that was the concern.
Q. How did it come to your attention? How did it come to Morgan Stanley's attention?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you remember this being discussed in a particular context?
A. That's -- I can't remember specifically what context. I remember a meeting on it, but I can't tell you if it was commitment committee or if it was a sidebar meeting.
Q. What do you mean by a sidebar meeting?
A. Meaning a non-formal meeting.
Q. Okay. Who do you remember speaking in the meeting?
A. I can't recall specifically.
Q. Were you there when Mr. Strong said,

Page 164

I validate this?
MS. BROWN: Object to form. It's a mischaracterization.
MR. BRODY: Let me withdraw the question.
Q. Were you there when Mr. Strong responded to the concern that you just expressed?
A. To my memory, I was, yes.
Q. Does that suggest to you that it was the commitment committee meeting?
A. If I had to -- if I had to make a guess, I would say yes, it was commitment committee for the bridge loan.
Q. Right. I'm not asking you to guess. You don't know one way or the other?
A. I don't know one way or another.
Q. Do you know when the meeting was held?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Obviously before March 25th?
A. It would be, yes.
Q. Because that's when --
A. Correct.
Q. You were gone by then?

Page 165

A. Correct.
Q. On maternity leave. You said the fact that Sunbeam would fall short of the analysts' sales projections came to Morgan Stanley's attention in some way. Do you remember who it was who said that at the meeting?
A. No, I do not.
Q. In response to that, was Mr. Strong asked questions?
A. To my memory, yes, he was.
Q. Who did the asking?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember in words or substance what they asked?
A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. Generally, do you remember what was discussed or what was asked of him?
A. The only specific thing I remember was, you know, can you vouch for your client's integrity. And after six years, that's what stood out most as the crux of what they cared about.
Q. What do you mean by "integrity"?
A. In terms of, you know, it happens.

Companies miss numbers. And that's what they wanted to say, is this a one-time blip, or is this a trend we need to be aware of?
Q. And this question was put to Mr. Strong?
A. To my memory, yes.
Q. Do you remember what Mr. Strong said in response?
A. My memory is that he stood by his client.
Q. Do you remember in words or substance what he said to communicate that?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Do you remember any follow-up asked of Mr. Strong, why do you stand by your client, what is your basis, that sort of thing?
A. I would not have been involved in those conversations.
Q. In the meeting that you were at do you remember any follow-up?
A. I can't recall specifically.
Q. Do you remember anything else being said in that meeting about the fact brought to Morgan Stanley's attention that Sunbeam would fall short of its numbers?

MS. BROWN: I'm going to object to the extent it mischaracterizes. Go ahead.
A. I don't recall anything else.
Q. Okay. Do you remember anything discussed or communicated orally or in writing after that meeting about the same topic?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you take notes of this leveraged finance meeting?
A. No, I would not have taken notes.
Q. You testified earlier that sometimes you took notes on your computer. If you didn't have your computer with you, did you ever take notes on paper?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. If I'm with a company, yes, I'll take notes.
Q. Meaning if you're with a company that you're covering?
A. Correct.
Q. But I mean at a Morgan Stanley meeting, was it your practice to take notes?
A. Not at a commitment committee.

Page 168

Q. Okay. Well, that's a better answer than what I asked. I was focusing on that meeting. Thank you.
Aside from that conversation, do you remember any other conversations about Sunbeam's first quarter performance prior to the closing?
A. None that I recall.
Q. Do you remember any conversations or communications about whether Sunbeam's announced turnaround was real?
A. None that I recall.
Q. Do you remember any conversations or communications, written or oral, about whether Sunbeam's announced turnaround was sustainable?
A. None that I recall.
Q. Do you remember any conversations within Morgan Stanley prior to the closing about Sunbeam's earnings per share from the first quarter of '98 or earnings more generally?
A. None that I recall.
Q. Now, we've spoken about your conversations with Mr. Shiffman at Coleman.

Page 169

Did you ever have any conversations with anyone else at Coleman other than perhaps participating in a conference call where you listened to Mr. Levin?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.
A. What time frame are you talking about?
Q. Prior to the closing.
A. Only conference calls.
Q. And broadening the question to other individuals within MacAndrews & Forbes, Mr. Perelman, Mr. Guinness, some of those individuals, did you ever have any conversations with any MacAndrews & Forbes people?
A. I don't recall so, no.
Q. Did you have conversations with Mr. Levin and others at MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman after you came back in June?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. About what topics?
A. About Sunbeam and Coleman and -- because Mr. Levin had taken over the company.
Q. Okay. We'll get to that in a moment. Ms. Eltrich, I'm showing you a document that's been previously marked as Exhibit 238, and I'm going to ask you if you've seen it before. Now, first let me do the easy question. There is some handwriting on this document. Do you recognize it?

A. No, I do not.
Q. Okay. Then ignoring the handwriting, is this a document you recall seeing?
A. I do not recall.
Q. Return, please, to page ending with 32, CP 022332. There are two sets of numbers on here. Which number are you using?
A. I'm sorry. I was using this one.
Q. Okay. Well, using that one, it's CPH 1412567.
A. Okay.
Q. There is some handwriting on there. You don't recognize that; is that correct?
A. I do not recognize that.
Q. Well, then, ignoring the handwriting, do you recall ever seeing this page before?
A. I don't recall.

Page 171

Q. Do you recall any conversations about Sunbeam's long-range strategic plan?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Were you ever at meetings where Sunbeam's long-range strategic plan was presented or discussed?
A. I don't recall specifically.
Q. Let me show you one additional document.
(Document Bates stamped Morgan Stanley Confidential 36700-36720 marked CPH Exhibit 278 for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Ms. Eltrich, I'm showing you what has been marked as Exhibit 278. There is a cover page. Then there is a copy of the long-range strategic plan that is similar but somewhat different than the one I just showed you. And the cover page reflects it was faxed from Mr. Seth to you. Do you recognize the cover page as Mr. Seth's handwriting?
A. I couldn't tell you. I couldn't answer.
Q. Do you remember doing any work with Mr. Seth on this deal?

Page 172

A. I don't remember the name.
MS. BROWN: Sayt (phonetic).
MR. BRODY: It's pronounced Sayt? Thank you.
Q. The fax number that's shown there is the same fax number we previously saw as being your number. Do you have any reason to doubt that you received this document?
A. No, I have no reason.
Q. Having seen this document now having been sent to you, do you have any recollection of getting it or doing anything with it?
A. No, I don't.
Q. If you turn to the third page of the document, the Bates number is Morgan Stanley Confidential 100. There is some handwriting. Do you recognize that?
A. No, I do not recognize it.
Q. If you turn to page Morgan Stanley 108, there is some different handwriting. Do you recognize that?
A. It looks like my handwriting.
Q. Can you read into the record what those things say?
A. "Primarily private label. Three to 400 million blankets. Five to 600 million carpets. Do not have leading market share in Europe or Asia."

Page 173

Q. And having seen that, does that refresh your recollection that you had conversations about this?
A. It does not.
Q. Does this refresh your recollection that you were at a meeting where this was presented?
A. No, it does not. I may have been on a phone call for it, but I don't think I was in any meetings.
Q. If you turn to page Morgan Stanley Confidential 114, there is a description of Sunbeam's long-range strategic plan earnings per share numbers '98 through 2000. Do you recall having seen those numbers prior to the closing?
A. No, I do not recall.
Q. Do you recall doing anything with them?
A. No, I do not recall anything.
Q. Turn to the last page of this document. There is a description of Sunbeam's earnings, net sales, gross margin, operating profit, earnings, then earnings per share, actual and plan for 1998, and this is a first quarter statement. Do you remember any discussions about Morgan Stanley's view of Sunbeam's earnings for the first quarter?

A. No, I do not.
Q. There was a 32 cent per share number for 1998. Do you remember any discussions about that number?
A. I do not recall, no.
Q. You can put that document aside. In connection with the work that was done by Morgan Stanley, Morgan Stanley did a merger consequences analysis. Did you have anything to do with the merger consequences analysis?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I don't recall we did, I did, no.
Q. Do you remember ever seeing any documents that showed whether this merger would be accretive or dilutive of Sunbeam's financial performance?
A. I don't recall being part of any of that.
Q. Do you remember being shown copies of a merger model or an estimate of what the merger would do?

A. I don't recall.
Q. Ms. Eltrich, I've given you what has been marked as Exhibit 61. And given your prior testimony, this one may go quickly. Have you ever seen this before?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. If you turn to the first page containing numbers, the second page of the document, there is a form of financial analysis that has a pro forma income statement. Prior to the closing did you see any pro forma income statements for the combined company?
A. I can't recall specifically.
Q. Why don't we put this one aside, although we may come back to this. Did you participate in any discussions that you recall in which anyone discussed whether the deal, the combination of Sunbeam and Coleman, would produce synergies?
A. I cannot recall any specific conversations.
Q. Do you remember that topic being generally discussed?

A. Based on some of the sheets that you've shown me, I believe it was probably discussed.
Q. Well, aside from what you now see in the papers, do you remember participating or being involved in any discussions in which synergies numbers were raised?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. And just so we're talking about the same thing, can you just tell us what your understanding is of the term "synergy" as used in a merger consequence?
A. Cost savings.
Q. So it would be a savings to the combined company by combining the two companies?
A. Correct.
Q. And you didn't perform any analyses of whether there would be savings?
A. I don't recall doing any, no.
Q. And you don't remember discussions with others about whether there would be?
A. I don't remember any, no.
Q. Now, the transaction, aside from the merger, also involved a financing piece that Morgan Stanley was involved in?

Page 177

A. Yes.
Q. And you've testified about what you referred to as the bridge loan?
A. Yes. Actually, it wasn't a bridge loan. It was a term loan.
Q. Okay. And do you remember the dollar value of that loan?
A. I remember it was over 600 million.
Q. Do you understand that to be Morgan Stanley's piece or the whole loan?
A. The whole loan.
Q. And then there were also the convertible debentures?
A. Yes.
Q. And I believe your testimony is that you were not involved in the convertible debentures?
A. That is correct.
Q. And so focusing now on the term loan, what was the nature of your involvement in that loan?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. It was very limited. It really was only, again, with respect to Coleman.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018500

Page 178

Q. The loan was ultimately approved by a committee at Morgan Stanley?
A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. And as you understand the procedures at Morgan Stanley, a loan of this type would have to be approved by a committee?
A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. And also as you understand the way things worked at Morgan Stanley, would there be a collection of materials presented to the committee to assist it in deciding whether to approve the loan?
A. To my recollection, yes.
Q. Did you have anything to do, that you recall, in preparing those materials?
A. To my recollection, no, I did not.
Q. The committee that approved the transaction, was that the leveraged finance commitment committee?
A. I can't recall specifically.
Q. And I believe you testified that you attended a meeting at which the loan was discussed, and it may have been the commitment committee meeting?

Page 179

A. That is correct.
Q. Let me show you what has previously been marked --
MR. BRODY: Can we go off the record for a second.
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 12:54, and we are off the record.
(Discussion off the record)
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 12:55. We're back on the record.
(Commitment Committee memo marked CPH Exhibit 279 for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Ms. Eltrich, I'm giving you what has been marked today as Exhibit 279, and I will state for the record I thought I had brought the marked copy. This document has been marked in another deposition bearing a different number.
A. Okay.
Q. That's something for the lawyers to straighten out at some later point, but I'll just state that for the record. Do you recognize Exhibit 279?
A. I vaguely recognize it.

Page 180

Q. What do you recognize it as?
A. As a commitment committee memo.
Q. And what is a commitment committee memo?
A. It is what you referred to earlier as materials submitted to a commitment committee to aid them in their investment decision.
Q. And this one relates to the investment decision for Sunbeam?
A. It appears to, yes.
Q. The first page is from Mr. R.B. Smith. Is that Brom Smith?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And it identifies the fact that there is going to be a commitment meeting on March 20th at 7:30 in the morning?
A. Yes.
Q. Having seen that, does that refresh your recollection whether you, in fact, were at that meeting?
A. It doesn't.
Q. Do you have a calendar or some document where you would have written down whether you were there or not?

Page 181

A. Morgan Stanley would have kept record, obviously, but no, I don't necessarily mark it -- now I do, but back then, no, I did not have electronic measurements to know where I was.
Q. You said Morgan Stanley would have kept track. Was there some record of who attended these meetings?
A. No. They would have kept track if I was in the office or not. And if I was in the office, most likely, yes, I would have attended it.
Q. I understand. Towards the bottom there is a distribution of a variety of people. Do you recognize who all of those people are?
A. Not all of them.
Q. I'm going to go through these names and ask you first, if you know the individual, and then, second, if you recall if they were at the meeting that you remember participating in.
A. Um-hmm.
Q. Mr. Sipprelle?
A. I know him. I believe he was at the meeting.

Q. And that was the meeting at which the loan was discussed?
A. I can't confirm that.
Q. Mr. Rankowitz?
A. I know him. I can't confirm if he was at the meeting.
Q. Mr. Kourakos?
A. I know him. Can't confirm if he was at the meeting.
Q. Mr. Felix?
A. I know him. Can't confirm if he was at the meeting.
Q. Mr. Smith?
A. I know him, and I believe he was at the meeting.
Q. Mr. Newhouse?
A. I know him. I can't confirm he was at the meeting.
Q. I don't know if it's a Mr. or Ms.
A. It's Leslie. Leslie Bradford.
Q. Is that a man or woman?
A. Woman.
Q. Was she at the meeting?
A. I believe she was, yes.

Page 183

Q. I don't know again Mr. or Ms. Feldman?
A. Joel Feldman. I know him. I can't confirm if he was at the meeting.
Q. S. Brown?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't know him?
A. Him or her, yes. I don't know them.
Q. I believe it's Mr. Pellecchio?
A. I don't know them.
Q. Bunger?
A. I know him. I can't confirm if he was at the meeting or not.
Q. Is the next individual Mr. Abdel Meguid?
A. Terry Meguid, I believe. I know him, but I don't know if he was at the meeting.
Q. Sanders?
A. Don't know them.
Q. Is that Ann Short?
A. Yes, it is. And I don't know if she was at the meeting.
Q. And then Mr. Strong?
A. Know him, and I believe, yes, he was at the meeting. But whether it was in person or via phone, but I believe he was in attendance.

Q. I understand. Now, if you look at the cover page here, there is some handwriting. Do you recognize that handwriting?
A. No, I do not.
Q. Turn to the next page of the document. This is the memorandum to the committee about the loan; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And it shows that it's from a large number of people; is that correct?
A. Appears to, yes.
Q. And one of the people that it shows that it's from is K. Eltrich. Do you know if you drafted any portion of this document?
A. Not to my recollection.
Q. Do you know if you saw drafts of this document before it was sent out?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall seeing this document at any time prior to today?
A. I don't recall.

Page 185

Q. As you understand Morgan Stanley's procedures at the time, do you understand this to be the document that the leveraged finance committee would consider in deciding whether to approve the loan or not?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I don't know the full process. I wasn't involved in that side.
Q. Do you know if documents in addition to this one were circulated to the committee?
A. I don't know.
Q. Turn to the second page of the document. Below the box there is a paragraph that starts, "While Morgan Stanley seeks the committee's approval." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And about the second or third to last sentence in that paragraph is the phrase "due to the accelerated timing of the transaction, it is MSSF's intention to first close the transactions at the end of March and then syndicate its position." Did I read that correctly?
A. Except you said something instead of "acquisitions," but otherwise, yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 186

Q. Okay. Do you remember any discussions about the accelerated timing of the transaction?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I do not recall, no.
Q. The document indicates the transactions will be closed at the end of March and then the loan syndicated. Is that customary to close first and syndicate later?
A. I don't work in the bank debt world, so I really couldn't give you a good answer on that.
Q. The next box, the expected economics, do you have an understanding of what that means?
A. I have a vague understanding.
Q. And what is that understanding?
A. I believe it's reconciling -- for this it looks like what you would make in terms of fees specifically to the bank loan.
Q. So these are bank loan fees to Morgan Stanley?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation. Mischaracterization.
A. I couldn't answer specifically.

Page 187

Q. Well, when you talked about the fees, whose fees were you talking about?
A. I would assume for the bank loan, but, again, I don't know if it's for the entire facility or if it's just for Morgan Stanley.
Q. I understand your distinction. Turn to Page 4 the document, the category under heading number four there is a reference to due diligence, and I'll ask you just to read that, and when you're done, I'll ask you some questions about it.
A. Okay.
Q. It describes certain due diligence done on this deal. Does that refresh your recollection about any involvement you may have had in due diligence?
A. I believe I was on the calls.
Q. That you've already testified about?
A. Yes.
Q. Aside from that?
A. No. I don't think I had any -- to my recollection, I didn't have other involvement.
Q. Okay. Turn, please, to Page 7 of the document. Under the category "Restructuring," the second sentence reads, "The restructuring portion of the plan has been substantially completed with only the final refinement stage remaining."

Page 188

And the last sentence in this paragraph reads, "Cost reductions are expected to result in annual savings of $225 million, most of which were already realized in 1997."
Do you remember any discussion within Morgan Stanley about how much of Sunbeam's restructuring plan had been completed?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Or the amount of cost savings realized to date or expected to be realized in the future?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Turn to Page 10. Page 10 contains a description of Coleman. I would like you to look at that and tell me if there is anything that you recall drafting.
A. I don't recall being involved in this.
Q. In looking at this document today, is there anything in here that you think is in any way incorrect?

MS. BROWN: Object to form. Foundation.
A. I couldn't answer that based on the information I have.
Q. If you would turn, please, to Page 13, there is a description of projections and assumptions, and then four items under there. It talks about the Morgan Stanley financing base case and the downside case and the management case. Did you have anything to do with -- I'm sorry. Are you on the same Page 13?
A. No, I'm not. Sorry. Which? 15?
Q. 13.
A. 13. Okay. Oh, I see. Sorry. Okay. Yes.
Q. I would just like you to read those. My question is going to be, did you have anything to do with developing any of those cases or commenting on them?
A. I don't recall being involved, no.
Q. Do you know who did?
A. No, I don't know.

Q. Turn to the next page. It's a "Pro Forma Capitalization for 1997" is what it's entitled, and then it continues thereafter; is that correct?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Do you see the line entitled "Pre-Tax Synergies"?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And it shows synergies from 1996, '97, '98, and thereafter?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have anything to do with selecting that number or --
A. I don't believe so, no.
Q. Do you know where it came from?
A. No, I do not.
Q. If you look down at the balance sheet data at the bottom and the reference to the debt, this set of projections would reflect that Sunbeam would be free of both the bank debt and the zero coupon debt by some point of 2002?
A. That's what it appears to indicate, yes.
Q. Do you remember any conversations at the leveraged finance commitment committee about how long it would take Sunbeam to clear itself of this debt?

Page 191

A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember any discussions about whether the debt would be repaid from earnings or repaid from asset sales or other sources?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember Mr. Strong being asked about that?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Turn to the next page, Page 15, there are some credit statistics, and it's various debt coverage ratios.
A. Yes.
Q. Do those debt coverage ratios reflect the coverage you would expect for a high yield loan or an investment grade loan?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. It's very much a qualitative decision, because you can't just look at the numbers. The rating agencies also look at the scope and the scale of the company, which I think was taken into consideration for

Page 192

Sunbeam. So I'm not a rating agency, so I could not -- I couldn't say one way or another. I disagree with them frequently.
Q. Okay. Fair enough. Do you know if the rating agencies ever rated this debt?
A. To my knowledge, I believe they did, yes.
Q. Did they rate it after Mr. Dunlap's termination?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know if they rated it before his termination?
A. I don't know.
Q. Turn to the next page, Page 16, there is an item that says, "Coleman synergies rationale, 118 million." Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you remember any discussions about the items contained under that heading?
A. No, I do not recall.
Q. You don't remember that being discussed at the meeting that you attended?
A. I don't recall.
Q. If you turn, please, to Page 18, there is a description of Sunbeam among investment considerations, and the last item is as follows: "Conservatively estimated synergies of $150 million from combination." Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you remember any discussion about those items?
A. No, I do not recall.
Q. It continues on to the following page, just in case that refreshes your recollection.
A. No, it does not.
Q. And then at the bottom of Page 19 carrying onto Page 20, there is a description of Coleman and the Coleman acquisition. I would ask you to read that, please.
A. Okay.
Q. Did you provide any of the material that's contained here?
A. I don't recall anything, no.
Q. Do you remember any discussion about this either at the committee or before?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. There is no mention in here of the fact that Coleman is in the process of restructuring. Do you remember that being discussed at the commitment committee?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018504

A. I don't recall.
Q. Would you please turn to Page 23. There is an item entitled "Ability to attain synergies." I would like you just to read that to yourself, and let me know when you've finished it.
A. Okay.
Q. Did you have anything to do with drafting this?
A. I don't recall so, no.
Q. Do you remember any discussions about it?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. It starts by saying that Morgan Stanley and Coopers & Lybrand, special acquisition consultants to Sunbeam, have had extensive discussions, and so on. Did you participate in any discussions with Coopers & Lybrand about potential synergies?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. At the end of this paragraph it says that Mr. Conway has modeled 150 million in synergies in '98, and he feels that there could be upside to this figure. Do you remember that being discussed?

A. I don't remember that, no.
Q. You know Mr. Conway?
A. I know him, yes.
Q. Do you remember if he was at the meeting?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember any discussions Mr. Conway had or participated in about synergies?
A. I don't remember, no.
Q. If you turn to the next page and largely for the remainder of this document are financial numbers, and it's entitled "Based Financing Case." You didn't have anything to do with preparing that document; is that correct?
A. I don't think I did, no.
Q. And if you turn, please, to Page 40 of the document, it's entitled "Credit Downside." Did you have anything to do with preparing that downside case?
A. I don't think so, no.
Q. I'm not going to ask you to go through this model, but do you have a recollection of the difference between the base case and the downside case?

Page 196

A. I know one's better than the other, but --
Q. I think I know that, too.
A. But other than that, specifically, no.
Q. Okay. Well, that's all I needed to know. You can put that document aside. Now having seen this document and going through the things that we've gone through, does that refresh your recollection further about the conversation that you previously testified about in which Mr. Strong was asked to stand behind Sunbeam?
A. No, it does not.
(Document Bates stamped Morgan Stanley Confidential 18885-18942 marked CPH Exhibit 280 for identification, as of this date.)
(Document Bates stamped Morgan Stanley Confidential 59244-59266 marked CPH Exhibit 281 for identification, as of this date.)

Page 197

Q. Ms. Eltrich, the court reporter has marked as Exhibits 280 and 281 some additional copies of this document, and I suspect you're not going to have to turn past the cover page on either one.
A. Okay.
Q. Do you recognize the handwriting on either one of them?
A. No, I do not.
Q. You testified that you recall a conversation in which Mr. Strong was asked about Sunbeam's first quarter performance. Do you recall any conversations after that date to ask how Sunbeam was doing, whether Mr. Strong's representation was correct?
MS. BROWN: Objection to the extent that mischaracterizes the testimony.
A. I was not -- to my recollection, I was not involved in any conversations.
Q. Have any been related to you?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Subsequent to the closing, you've come to learn that Sunbeam, in fact, did not meet their numbers for the first quarter of 1998; is that correct?

018505

Page 198

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. I know I learned it at some point. I couldn't tell you when.
Q. And have you come to learn that one of the reasons for that was that Sunbeam had accelerated sales from 1998 into 1997?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form.
A. I learned it at some point, but, honestly, it took us a while to figure out -- from my memory, it took us a while to figure out exactly what they had done.
Q. And I think we've established that you went on maternity leave between the 20th and the 25th of March?
A. Correct.
Q. And you returned on June 15th?
A. Correct.
Q. When you refer to the figuring out of what Sunbeam had done, was that after June 15th or before March 25th?
A. From my own figuring out, it was after June.
Q. Now, in connection with the financings, the convertible debenture offering, are you aware that Morgan Stanley received comfort letters from Sunbeam's accountants?

A. I was not involved in that process.
Q. Whether you were involved in the process or not, are you aware that Morgan Stanley, in fact, obtained comfort letters from Arthur Andersen?
A. I'm not in a position to verify that.
Q. Okay. So you don't know?
A. I don't know.
Q. To your knowledge, have you ever seen the comfort letters that Morgan Stanley received?
A. To my knowledge, no, I have not.
Q. Ms. Eltrich, I'm giving you what has been marked as Exhibit 17 in a prior deposition. It's a letter to Morgan Stanley dated March 19th, 1998, from Arthur Andersen. Have you ever seen this before?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Now, if you turn a couple of pages into it, Paragraph 5, it's on Page 3 of the letter, in item 5-B there at the bottom of the page it describes Sunbeam's net sales, and it compares roughly the same month in two different years. The first column is basically sales in January of '97, and the second column is basically sales in January of '98; is that correct?

A. It appears to be.
Q. And it shows that January '97 sales were about 73 million, and January '98 sales were about 29 million. Were you aware of that fact when you were at the leveraged finance credit committee?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember if that was discussed at the meeting?
A. I don't recall.
Q. If you turn to the next page, Paragraph 6-B, just read that to yourself.
A. Okay.
Q. Prior to the closing had you seen that language?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You can put that one to the side. Earlier in this deposition I showed you a press release that was issued by Sunbeam. And I believe it's in front of you. It's been marked CPH Exhibit 14.

Page 201

A. Um-hmm.
Q. Were you aware of that press release on or about the date it was issued?
A. I vaguely remember it being issued.
Q. Did you have anything to do with its issuance, you personally?
A. I don't believe I did, no.
Q. Were you aware it was going to be issued before it was issued?
A. I can't recall.
Q. Do you remember whether the press release was discussed at the leveraged finance commitment committee?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if any disclosure other than Exhibit 14 was made to the public about Sunbeam's first quarter sales?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember if any disclosure was made to the public about Sunbeam's first quarter earnings prior to the closing on March 30th?
A. I don't recall.
Q. In connection with the work that you

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0-8506

did for Morgan Stanley, did you do any investigation or digging into any of the facts that are addressed in the press release?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. To my recollection, I was not involved in that part of the process.
Q. Are you aware of the efforts that Morgan Stanley went through to attempt to sell the convertible notes to investors?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. To my recollection, I was not involved in that process.
Q. So there was a road show you didn't attend?
A. I do not recall attending the road show.
Q. Do you remember attending a lunch in New York, it was part of the road show, but it was not just a road show presentation, at which the deal was discussed?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Now, after the leveraged finance commitment committee meeting, do you recall doing anything else on this deal prior to closing?

Page 203

A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley did any further digging after the commitment committee meeting into Sunbeam's first quarter performance or Sunbeam's sales or Sunbeam's earnings?
MS. BROWN: Objection to form and foundation.
A. I wasn't involved, so I really can't --
Q. You don't know.
A. I can't comment.
Q. Now, the analysis you did of Coleman primarily addressed its debt structure, the debt issuance it had made; correct?
MS. BROWN: I'll object to form.
A. It was specifically on the escrow notes.
Q. Did you ever prepare an analysis of the stock value of Coleman, what you thought the stock should be trading at?
A. Within our research report we put a valuation on the company, which gave an implied stock value, but I never put an opinion or direct valuation on the stock.

Q. Aside from what's contained in the research reports we've talked about, would there be anything else out there that would reflect the work you did that would have this implied price, implied value for the stock?
MS BROWN: I'm sorry. Can I hear that back.
MR. BRODY: Let me withdraw it and ask it again.
Q. Aside from the two research reports that we've addressed, are you aware of any documents that were published by Morgan Stanley reflecting your work that would contain an implied price for the equity in Coleman?
A. To my knowledge, there was nothing else.
Q. Now, are you aware that Morgan Stanley opined to Sunbeam that the acquisition price of Coleman was fair to the Sunbeam shareholders?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.
A. I was not involved in that process.
Q. Did you ever hear anyone express a view that the transaction was not fair to Sunbeam?

Page 205

A. To my recollection, I never heard anything to that nature.
Q. Now, you left on maternity leave a few days before your daughter was born on the 25th of March; is that correct?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And then you returned, you said, you think the day that Mr. Dunlap was removed?
A. No. I remember the front page of the Wall Street Journal. It was the day that Mr. Dunlap was removed.
Q. Okay. After you returned, what work did you do in connection with Sunbeam?
A. What I remember is touring a couple of facilities, and I think they were primarily distribution and manufacturing for Sunbeam specifically, and I remember a couple of meetings with Mr. Levin where he was giving us updates as he kind of sorted through the mess.
Q. Do you remember when these facility tours were?
A. I do not recall.
Q. Do you remember when your meetings

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 206

with Mr. Levin were?
A. I do not recall.
Q. Can you place them in connection with your return to the company?
A. No, I really cannot.
Q. When you met with Mr. Levin, was it just Morgan Stanley people, or was it representatives of other banks as well?
A. There were representatives of other banks.
Q. Do you know who was there from Morgan Stanley?
A. I remember Brom Smith, but that's it. And I can't say he was at all the meetings. I just remember him being at one.
Q. Do you know why you participated in these meetings, why you were invited?
A. Because I was the consumer products analyst.
Q. Do you remember what Mr. Levin said?
A. No, not specifically.
Q. Do you remember generally what he addressed?
A. He addressed some of the inefficiencies throughout the company, but that's all I can generally state to you. He was on a steep learning curve as well, obviously, as he tried to figure out what was going on.

Q. Okay. So does this indicate to you that these meetings were probably early in Mr. Levin's tenure?
A. To my recollection, yes, they were.
Q. Do you remember anything else that was said at those meetings?
A. I remember Levin saying that Sunbeam should be able to work, that he should be able to fix it, that it was a great brand, and that the category, if you look at what Cuisinart had done, he felt there was something to be done there. But that was very preliminary, obviously.
Q. Do you remember anything else that was said at the meetings?
A. I don't specifically remember anything, no.
Q. Thereafter did you play any additional role in connection with Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Do you remember providing any support to the bank group in trying to decide how the company should proceed?

Page 208

A. I don't recall any, no.
Q. You're aware that at some point Sunbeam declared bankruptcy?
A. I was aware, yes.
Q. Were you at Morgan Stanley at the time?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember being consulted or advised about the bankruptcy?
A. I don't recall anything.
Q. Do you remember any further conversations with Mr. Smith or others from the bank group at Morgan Stanley about the loan?
A. I don't remember any.
Q. Do you remember if you or your group were ever asked to analyze the value of Sunbeam?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Now, you indicated that in connection with the work that you do for evaluating the risk of high yield notes, you look at the risk of bankruptcy?

Page 209

A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever perform a bankruptcy risk analysis for Sunbeam?
A. To my recollection, no, I did not.
Q. Do you know if anyone at Morgan Stanley did?
A. I don't know.
Q. In connection with the bank loan, Sunbeam made various communications to Morgan Stanley about its performance. Were you ever asked to analyze any of those estimates or projections?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A. To my recollection, no, I was not.
MR. BRODY: Let's go off the record. I may just have a few minutes.
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 1:27, and we are off the record.
(Recess)
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is now 1:30, and we are back on the record.
MR. BRODY: I have no further questions. Thank you for your time and your cooperation.
MS. BROWN: I just have a couple of 018508

Page 210

quick questions.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
EXAMINATION BY
MS. BROWN:
Q. First referring to CPH Exhibits 272 and 275, which were the analysis or analyses that you published.
A. Yes.
Q. Referring to the first one, which is dated October 9th, 1997, and marked CPH Exhibit 272, you answered a number of questions from Mr. Brody concerning the estimates or estimations that you had placed into this document. Do you know whether Coleman met your estimates?
A. To my recollection, they did not meet my initial estimates.
Q. And referring to CPH Exhibit 275, which is dated January 26, 1998, do you recall one way or the other whether Coleman met the estimates that you had published in that document?
A. I don't remember.
Q. When you spoke about the meeting that you were at where Mr. Strong stood by his client, and you mentioned that he was asked to vouch for the integrity of his client, can you explain what you meant by the word "integrity"?

A. Meant by do you believe in your client, is this a client that is what Morgan Stanley will represent. It's hard to exactly -- I mean it encompasses many different things. Is this a quality value client that we trust, that we are willing to represent for our investors. And that's what I mean by integrity.
Q. At the time of this meeting was there any concern raised that you recall with regard to Sunbeam's accounting practices?
A. To my recollection, there was nothing raised.
Q. Do you recall any questions concerning Sunbeam's accounting practices discussed within Morgan Stanley prior to the close of the deal in March of 1998?
A. I don't recall any.
Q. Do you remember having any concerns?
A. I don't remember having any concerns, no.

Page 212

Q. So when you spoke about the word "integrity," were you referring to a moral integrity or financial integrity?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I was referring to a moral integrity.
Q. And the point of this meeting was to determine whether or not Morgan Stanley would make a loan to Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. To my recollection, yes, it was.
Q. What was the consequence to Morgan Stanley, as you understood it, if Sunbeam failed to honor its obligations under the loan?
A. We would lose over $600 million.
Q. Do you know whether Morgan Stanley actually lost money on that loan?
A. I believe we lost the entire loan, yes.
Q. And very early in your testimony you referred to the fact that Revlon had preannounced in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. You were referring to the fact that they had preannounced that they didn't expect that they would meet earnings estimates?

Page 213

A. That is correct.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. Actually, I'm sorry. That is not correct. They actually outright missed numbers in October of 1998. They did not preannounce. They simply completely missed their forecast.
Q. And you referred to something called "stuffing the trade"?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you explain what you were referring to?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. The process that they had undergone was they had incentivized the channel to over-order for what they could sell, and thereby artificially increasing their sales in the previous quarters, and then when the third quarter came, the channel had too much product and did not reorder, and consequently they missed their numbers.
Q. And when you say "they," you're referring to Revlon?
A. I am referring to Revlon.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CONFIDENTIAL

Q. And this occurred in 1998?
A. Yes. This was in October of 1998 that they missed.
Q. And at the time Revlon was owned in large part indirectly by Mr. Perelman; correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. It was to my knowledge, yes.
MS. BROWN: I have no further questions.
MR. BRODY: I just have a couple.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q. I think you testified that Morgan Stanley lost their entire loan?
A. To my knowledge, they had, yes.
Q. Okay. You weren't at Morgan Stanley when the bankruptcy was resolved, were you?
A. I don't think I was.
Q. Are you aware that as a result of the bankruptcy, Morgan Stanley became the largest shareholder of Sunbeam?
A. I'm not aware.
Q. Have you followed Sunbeam after that to see what's happened to it since then?
A. I have not.

Q. So you don't know what Morgan Stanley's investment in Sunbeam has returned to them?
A. I only know anecdotally from people that I know that are still at the firm who have complained about it.
Q. But that's nothing from your personal knowledge?
A. Nothing from my personal knowledge.

MR. BRODY: I have nothing further. Thank you.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is now 1:35, and this ends the deposition, and we are off the record.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Harlow.

A. Good morning.

Q. You've been deposed before; is that correct?

A. Many times.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. You understand that you have to give verbal answers in response to all my questions?
A. Yes.
Q. And I'd ask if you don't understand a question of mine that you ask me to rephrase it, and I'll do my best to do that. You understand that?
A. Yes.
Q. And is it fair for me to assume that if you don't ask me to rephrase it, you understood my question?
A. If I -- if I hear you correctly, that's -- yes, that's my understanding.
Q. What did you do in preparation for today's deposition?
A. Just flipped through a couple past depositions and looked at a couple of memos, and that was it.
Q. What memos did you look at?
A. Looked at a memo from our work papers on discussions with your client, Morgan Stanley.
Q. Who wrote that memo?
A. That memo was written by Larry Bornstein.
Q. Do you know when it was written?
A. Sometime in 1998.
Q. Do you know when in 1998?

A. No, I don't.
Q. Was it after March of 1998?
A. Yes, after March.
Q. Was it in the summer of 1998?
A. Somewhere around there, I would guess.
Q. What other documents did you review?
A. I reviewed an Answer to a Complaint. I don't remember which one it was. And it was just cursory -- cursory review. Nothing -- didn't read it in detail.
Q. Do you know who, which party was making that answer?
A. I don't remember.
Q. You don't remember that it was Arthur Andersen or Morgan Stanley?
A. I think it was Arthur Andersen, but -- I've seen so many documents over the past six years that I just lose track.
Q. Where did you get that Answer?
A. From my attorneys.
Q. Did you review any other documents in addition to the memo from Mr. Bornstein and the Answer to the Complaint?
A. I just looked at a few other things, but I just don't recall where they were.
Q. And why did you review these documents?

A. Because it's -- you know, so much time has transpired since whatever you want to talk about today has taken place. I've got, you know, lots to do and lots on my mind, and I don't think about Sunbeam much anymore.
Q. Did anybody suggest that you review these documents?
A. My attorneys thought that I should try to refresh my memory.
Q. Did you review any documents that your attorneys did not recommend you to review?
A. No.
Q. Did you meet with anybody in preparation for today's deposition?
A. No one other than my attorneys.
Q. Have you met with anybody from Jenner & Block before today?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. Have you ever --
A. Well, let me think about that. Years ago when I was in Chicago we used to do work with Jenner & Block. They were one of the top firms that my firm worked with, and I worked on transactions with Jenner & Block people. So to answer your question correctly, I would have to say yes.

Q. Have you met with anybody from Jenner & Block in connection with this litigation?
A. Other than this morning?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Have you spoken with anybody from Jenner & Block on the phone in connection with this litigation?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Have you spoken with anybody other than your attorneys about this litigation that -- the case between Coleman and Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Have you met with anybody from Coleman regarding this litigation?
A. No.
Q. Where do you work, Mr. Harlow?
A. I'm an office furniture salesman now.
Q. And where were you working in March of 1998?
A. Arthur Andersen.
Q. How long had you been with Arthur Andersen at that point?
A. Well, I don't know. If I've got to do math without coffee, that may take a while. I started in 1971, so, you know, I guess 27 years maybe. '98 to '71.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. And in March of 1998 were you part of the Sunbeam audit team?
A. Well, we completed the audit by then. I -- you know, we had auditors working on various things at Sunbeam, so I guess you would say yes.
Q. What was your position in the Arthur Andersen Sunbeam audit team?
A. I was an engagement partner.
Q. Was that the most senior position in the audit team?
A. I really don't know. I mean, we had all kinds of senior partners at Arthur Andersen that would technically be more senior than me.
Q. No, I didn't mean if anybody at Arthur Andersen was more senior than you. I'm asking if you were the most senior member of the Sunbeam audit team.
A. No, I would say that Bill Pruitt was more senior than I was, and he was a member of the audit team.
Q. What was his position?
A. He was the managing partner of our Florida practice, and he was the concurring partner that I would concur with on issues.
Q. Did there come a time in 1998 when you began to do work in connection with the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?

MR. MOSCATO: Object to the form. You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, very very limited work, yes.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. What work did you do?
A. We spent a day in a Kansas City meeting with Ernst & Young. We were told we couldn't go to Wichita to the actual Coleman facility because they didn't want outsiders coming in to take a look at the company. And so we spent a grand total of a day looking at the Coleman acquisition, just meeting with their outside auditors, no one with the company. And that was, you know, apparently to help the company do some due diligence on the transaction.
Q. To help who do due diligence?
A. The company, Sunbeam. We were retained by Sunbeam for that work.
Q. Did Sunbeam have anybody else helping them do due diligence on Coleman?
A. My understanding Morgan Stanley did a tremendous amount of work on that acquisition.
Q. For Sunbeam?
A. For Sunbeam, that's correct.

Q. When was this meeting in Kansas City?
A. I don't remember the exact date, but it was prior to the transaction.
Q. Do you remember whether it was in March or February of 1998?
A. Well, I think, I think the transaction was announced sometime early March, so it probably was the latter half of February.
Q. Who else attended the meeting?
A. I had Mr. Gluck was with me who is the controller of Sunbeam. And I don't remember the engagement partner from Ernst & Young from Wichita. You know, I could look in records, but I just don't remember his name. That's who we met. And we spent basically time looking at their audit work papers.
Q. Did you other than the Kansas City meeting did you meet with Ernst & Young any other time in connection with the acquisition?
A. Which acquisition now?
Q. Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman.
A. Of Coleman. We're not talking about other -- any other acquisition, just Coleman. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Okay. Did you meet with Ernst & Young in connection with other Sunbeam acquisitions?

A. I believe I did in earlier years.
Q. Okay.
A. Not Coleman related.
Q. Now you said that you could not go to Wichita?
A. Yes.
Q. Which is where the Coleman plant was?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that unusual?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. In your experience was that unusual?
MR. JOHNSON: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: You know, over my years I had done it both ways. I can understand why public companies want to keep a pending acquisition somewhat under wraps, you know, to avoid leakage of information about a potential merger acquisition. But, you know, in my professional opinion it's more helpful for us to be -- you know, if I'm going to be helping in due diligence to actually see the facility and be familiar with things from a hands-on standpoint rather than from a distance.

BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. What do you mean by leakage of information?
A. Well, people leak information all the time. Pending transactions. You know, someone that works at Coleman could have said, well, Arthur Andersen was in here doing due diligence for Sunbeam asking a lot of questions on accounting. That information could get out to the public, and people could start selling or buying stock based on that information.
Q. So you're referring to information about the existence of the acquisition?
A. Yes.
Q. Not financial information about Coleman?
A. No, no, not at all. Leakage of information which should not be leaked to the public at that point in time.
Q. Was it your understanding that you had complete access to Coleman's financial information when you conducted the due diligence?
A. No, it was not my understanding at all.
Q. What was your understanding?
A. My understanding was I just had access to the work papers that were provided by Ernst & Young. And they pulled out a lot of work papers and kept a lot of things from us in that review.

Q. Were there things that you requested that they kept from you?
A. Yes.
Q. What did they keep from you that you requested?
A. Specifically items related to internal control issues, conservatism or lack therein, preparation of financial statements. I think they -- the internal review memos and so forth that were prepared by review partners on the engagement. Those are the things that come to mind.
Q. How did that impact your ability to conduct the due diligence?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to the form. You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Well, I -- you know, I was asked to, you know, spend one day reviewing work papers and find what I could find. And, you know, I found a number of things, a number of issues just based on that. I probably could have found some more issues.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did you report those all to Sunbeam?

A. Yes.
Q. What were the issues that you found that you reported to Sunbeam?
A. We had issues on reserves not being properly established. We had, I think, rebates issues that -- were not properly recorded. I think we had some timing on sales issues improperly reported. That was just based on a review, quick review of the work papers.
Q. Did you discuss your findings with Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Who did you discuss them with?
A. Mr. Gluck.
Q. And what did you say?
A. Oh, he was there right there with me and we went through them together, so he was nodding his head yes and taking notes.
Q. How were those issues resolved?
A. Well, you know, the company was aware of them. I don't know if there was any subsequent renegotiation of purchase price as a result, but as far as I know those issues remained at the time the acquisition was done.
Q. Did you encourage Mr. Gluck to ask for more access to Coleman financial information?

A. I think Mr. Gluck -- I think Mr. Gluck was a pretty astute, you know, CPA. He was an experienced controller, senior manager at a big eight accounting firm, Ernst & Young, I guess. And Mr. Gluck pretty much made up his mind what he wanted to do. And at that time he was conferring with Mr. Rus, Rus Kersh on what should be done.
But I -- I let it be known to Bob that I thought it was a pretty limited review for this size of acquisition, but I was assured that there were others that were taking a very close look at the company, including Morgan Stanley, and they were very involved in due diligence of Coleman.
Q. Who told you that?
A. Mr. Gluck, Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fannin.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Gluck or anybody at Sunbeam pushed for more access to Coleman's financial information?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to the form. You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, Mr. Gluck did. I mean, I was involved in, you know, a number of conversations after the acquisition was done where Mr. Gluck was trying to get more financial information about the company, trying to get his arms around the, you know, the numbers.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. This is after the acquisition?

A. Yes, yeah.

Q. But before the acquisition do you know if he pushed for more access to Coleman financial information?

A. I don't know what he did. He was extremely busy. There were three acquisitions going on at the same time. Again, we were -- like I say, our review was extremely extremely limited for this type of deal.

Q. Did you do any work in connection with the financing of the acquisition of Coleman?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: Well, we didn't basically design the -- or come up with the structure of the financing. I mean, we just basically were involved in the financial recording relating to documents that needed to be filed to complete financing. But we were not involved in the structure of the financing or giving opinions on any aspect of the financing. That was totally out of our area of responsibility.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. You did do some work in connection with the debenture offering; is that correct?

A. Debenture?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, we did whatever work was required to prepare the document as it related to financial statements and financial information within that document. But in terms of anything else in that document, no.

Q. Well, what did that work entail?

A. I don't remember all the details on that. It was a long time ago. But it was basically doing post audit review work. I think there was a -- I think there was a comfort letter in connection with that work that was requested by Morgan Stanley. You know, that was basically it. Review of the documents to be filed.

Q. I want to go back a second to the work that you did, the due diligence work you did on Coleman. Did you ever talk to anybody at Morgan Stanley about your due diligence work on Coleman?

MR. MOSCATO: I object to the form. You can answer.

THE WITNESS: We had discussions with Morgan Stanley from time to time. I can't remember if we talked specifically about the one-day experience related to Coleman. We had discussions about, you know, Morgan Stanley couldn't figure out how to calculate earnings per share. One of my staff people had to straighten them out on that. We had, you know, discussions on synergies that they prepared, synergies related to the acquisition.

But, you know, as far as, you know, that one day there I don't think I had any discussions. And I didn't think it was my responsibility to report to Morgan Stanley anyhow, but I did.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Why is that?

A. It's not my responsibility.

Q. You weren't working for Morgan Stanley?

A. Exactly. I was not working for Morgan Stanley. I was working for Sunbeam.

Q. Did you ever participate in a due diligence call with Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. I don't remember the date. Sometime in -- sometime in 1998, spring of '98.

MR. WEBSTER: Let's go off the record a second.

(A discussion was held off the record.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Back on the video record 9:25 a.m.

(Defendant's Exhibit #MS-600 for i.d.)

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Okay. In front of you, Mr. Harlow, is a document that's been marked Exhibit MS 600. Have you had a chance to review that?

A. I'm still looking at it here. Okay. I've looked at it.

Q. Does this document refresh your recollection as to when this due diligence phone call was?

A. I don't remember seeing this document, but this must have been around the time that it took place.

Q. Do you have any reason to doubt that the due diligence conference call took place on Thursday, March 12th?

A. No.

Q. Who else participated in the due diligence

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

call?
MR. MOSCATO: You mean who else besides him or who else besides --
MR. WEBSTER: Who else besides Mr. Harlow.
THE WITNESS: I don't remember all the names of the people on the call. There were, you know, several people from Morgan Stanley, their attorneys, some other folks. But I did participate in this even though it doesn't have my name on it.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Who else participated from Arthur Andersen?
A. Larry Bornstein who's indicated in this memo.
Q. Anybody else?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you ever speak to a man named John Tyree from Morgan Stanley?
A. I understand John was on the -- was on that call. I don't recall ever meeting him face to face.
Q. Was anybody from Sunbeam on the call?
A. I believe Mr. Gluck was on the call.
Q. Were any representatives of Coleman on the call when you participated?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. And when I say representatives, I mean their auditors, Ernst & Young. Do you remember if anyone from Ernst & Young was on the call?

A. He might have been on the call, but I don't remember him being announced on the call or speaking on the call.
Q. Do you remember whether Coleman had any financial advisors in connection with the acquisition?
A. I don't remember. Don't recall.
Q. Do you remember whether Credit Suisse First Boston was involved in the transaction?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember what counsel Coleman had in connection with the transaction?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if there were any attorneys on the phone call?
A. Morgan Stanley's attorneys were. I think Davis Polk. I don't remember the gentleman's name.
Q. Any other attorneys?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. What was the purpose of the call?
A. I just asked some questions. Morgan Stanley had provided kind of an outline as to areas they wanted to discuss. And, you know, it was just an opportunity for them to ask us questions.

Q. What questions did they ask? What type of questions did they ask?
A. I think they asked about things like passed adjustments that we might have made, you know, accounting in accordance with GAAP. You know, generally accounting type issues.
MR. MOSCATO: For the benefit of the court reporter, when he says "passed adjustments," it's p-a-s-s-e-d, not p-a-s-t.
Sorry.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did Morgan Stanley ask any questions about the first quarter sales of Sunbeam for 1998?
A. I don't recall that on that call at all.
Q. Did you have any idea of what the status of Sunbeam's first quarter sales were for 1998 at the time of this call?
A. At the time of this call I don't think we had done our comfort letter work, and that's when I became aware of it. I think our comfort letter work was done after this date. So to answer your question, I don't believe I knew about it at that time.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Mr. Bornstein in advance of this call to prepare for it?

A. Yes.
Q. What did you discuss?
A. Well, we discussed the outline that had been set by Morgan Stanley and appropriate responses to those questions.
Q. Did you discuss the possibility of questions about first quarter sales coming up?
A. I don't recall anything of that nature, no.
Q. Before this call had you asked Mr. Bornstein to look into Sunbeam's first quarter sales?
A. Specifically, no, not that I can recall.
Q. And did there come a point in time when you asked Mr. Bornstein to look into Sunbeam's first quarter sales?
A. Yes, there came a time when we became very focused on first quarter sales.
Q. When was that?
A. Sometime after this date. I don't remember the precise date.
Q. What prompted you to begin looking into first quarter sales for Sunbeam?
A. We were asked to prepare a comfort letter for Morgan Stanley.
Q. Who asked you to do that?

A. I don't recall. We got, one of my team got a letter from Morgan Stanley or a call. I don't recall, but, you know, we got a request for a comfort letter.
Q. From Morgan Stanley?
A. From Morgan Stanley, yes.
Q. Had you talked to Sunbeam about the comfort letter before you got this request from Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't recall any direct discussion with Sunbeam.
Q. Do you know if anybody in your team had talked to Sunbeam about the comfort letter before you got this request from Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't. I don't know of that -- or those conversations, but I would assume that Mr. Gluck at some point in time mentioned to either Larry or, you know, one of our staff that a comfort letter would be required. But I don't know that for a fact.
Q. Did you talk to anybody on your staff about preparation of this comfort letter before you got the request from Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't recall any discussions before the request.
Q. Did you anticipate that this request would come from Morgan Stanley?

A. I thought there was a good possibility there would be one.
Q. Had Arthur Andersen started work on the comfort letter before this request came in from Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember when the request from Morgan Stanley came in for the comfort letter?
A. I don't remember that date, but it was sometime later in March. Sometime after this date.
Q. Okay.
A. But I can't recall the exact date.
Q. During the due diligence call, was there any discussion of Sunbeam's refusal to agree to certain accounting treatments on the '97 financial statements?
MR. MOSCATO: I object. I object to the form of the question.
MR. WEBSTER: Let me withdraw question. Let me withdraw the question.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Your team conducted the audit of Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And at any point in that audit did you recommend certain -- that Sunbeam change any accounting treatments on their financial statements?

A. Well, in connection with the 1997 audit we proposed some audit adjustments which we discussed with the company, and they had valid reasons for not wanting to record those. They had a different of -- opinion with, you know, our interpretation of GAAP, but they were, you know, in our mind immaterial, insignificant and we passed those adjustments.
Q. So they did not take the adjustments that you recommended; is that correct?
A. They did not pass -- they did notebook the immaterial adjustments that we proposed, that is correct.
Q. Was there any discussion of that in the due diligence call on March 12th of 1998?
A. There was a discussion that passed adjustments were immaterial, so that would fall within that category in my opinion.
Q. And who raised that subject?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall who asked the question, because I couldn't put the voices with the faces on the other end of the line.
Q. Did you discuss all of the proposed adjustments with Morgan Stanley in the due diligence call?

A. I don't recall if we discussed each and every one. We certainly made the point that we had passed adjustments which were, in our opinion, immaterial.
Q. Now besides this due diligence call with Morgan Stanley did you ever have any due diligence call with Coleman, with Coleman's auditors or financial advisors?
A. Not that I can recall.
Q. Did Coleman ever make any requests for your audit work papers from 1997?
A. I don't recall. They may have, but I just don't recall.
Q. Do you know if Coleman made any requests to discuss the '97 audits with you or anybody else at Andersen?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall any discussions with Coleman, the representatives, their auditors. I just don't recall any conversation on due diligence.
Q. All right. Now sometime after Morgan Stanley asked you to prepare a comfort letter did there come a time when you learned that Sunbeam's sales for the first quarter of 1998 were lower than expected?
MR. MOSCATO: I'm going to object to the characterization of the first quarter.

MR. WEBSTER: I'll withdraw the question.
MR. MOSCATO: I think you know what I mean. I don't want to make -- give a talking objection.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did there come a time after Morgan Stanley requested the comfort letter that you learned that sales for Sunbeam in January and February of '98 were lower than expected?
A. Can you clarify that question for me as to whose expectations are we talking about?
Q. Sunbeam's.
A. I'm not -- I'm not sure I ever knew what Sunbeam's expectations were.
Q. Well, then the analysts' expectations?
A. I was told that the analysts expectations were probably not going to be met based on -- based on the sales at the point in time we were preparing the comfort letter.
Q. How did you learn this?
A. I learned this through my staff that was doing the work --
Q. Who finished it --
A. -- doing the work on the comfort letter.

Q. Who from your staff told you about this?
A. I believe I discussed it with Mr. Bornstein and -- certainly Mr. Bornstein and Dennis Pastrana.
Q. Do you remember when you discussed it with them?
A. It was during the time period in which they were working on the content of the comfort letter.
Q. Do you remember when that was?
A. It was probably within several days after receiving the Morgan Stanley request for the company, but I can't -- I don't recall the exact date.
Q. Did you have these discussions with Mr. Bornstein and Mr. Pastrana over the phone or in person?
A. Both.
Q. So there was more than one discussion?
A. Oh, yeah, more than one discussion, yes.
Q. And what was said about the sales figures?
A. I don't recall specific conversation, but it was one of, you know, somewhat disbelief that the sales levels were what they were compared to, you know, prior years you know, prior quarters. We were somewhat surprised that the sales were as low as they were. So that was the gist of that conversation or those conversations.

Q. Was there any discussion about what you needed to do about this information?
A. Well, at some point, you know, those conversations turned into need for disclosure. And any document that's going to go out, you know, where -- you know, any documents that were going to be used to sell debentures or, you know, we felt that if there was an analyst expectation of X and, you know, the company was not going to meet that expectation, that needed to be disclosed.
Q. Why?
A. Well, it needed to be disclosed because if you have potential investors, you know, thinking one thing and then reality is something else, that's exposure for the company and also exposure for, you know, anyone working with the company.
Q. So the need for disclosure was to protect those people who were going to invest in the debentures?
A. Well, potentially. That wasn't my responsibility. That was the company's responsibility. But, you know, we felt we should point it out.
Q. Did you discuss the need to disclose to anybody besides potential purchasers of the debentures?

A. We didn't discuss with the -- well, we discussed with -- you're referring to Morgan Stanley as a purchaser of the debenture?
Q. No.
MR. MOSCATO: I was going to have a -- I was going to object to that. You answered too quick. I thought the question was vague. I personally couldn't understand it.
THE WITNESS: That's why I asked the question.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. I'll rephrase the question. Did you have any discussions with your team about the need to disclose these figures?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And in your internal discussions with your team did you discuss the need to disclose this information to anyone other than potential investors in the debentures?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: Well, I mean, what do you mean others? The company -- Sunbeam? Stanley?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Coleman. Did you discuss the need to disclose this to Coleman?
A. Well, what we discussed was the need for disclosure in the documents which all parties associated with that document would be able to see.
Q. The debenture offering?
A. Um-hum, yes.
Q. Did you discuss, though, the need specifically to disclose this to Coleman?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall whether with your Andersen team you discussed the need to send a letter to Coleman or place a phone call to Coleman to advise them of these sales figures?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: I'm pretty certain I didn't recommend that because that would have been way out of bound for us to do.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Why is that?
A. That's the company's responsibility, not our responsibility.
Q. Okay.
A. We were retained by Sunbeam, not Coleman.

Q. Did you discuss within Andersen whether or not you felt that Sunbeam had a responsibility to disclose this information to Coleman?
A. Yes.
Q. What was the discussion?
A. I don't recall the discussion, but we felt that Sunbeam should disclose this to the world.
Q. Well --
A. Make public disclosure. So that would be disclosure to everybody.
Q. I'm not asking about generally the world. Did you focus on the need for Sunbeam to disclose specifically to Coleman?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Now as a result of the discussions with your team did you come to a decision about what course of action you needed to take about this information?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. We felt it was necessary to discuss with management of the company that it was important that the company disclose, you know, in some fashion. We did not craft any wording or come up with, you know, precise disclosure for the company but disclosed that the company would not meet the expectations that were on the street, you know, in some fashion, in some fashion let that be known.

Q. Were you confident at that time that the company would not meet the expectations of the analysts?
A. I was -- at the time I first saw it I was not confident. I was not confident at all. And then after I had discussions with some of the management team I was -- I still felt it was a real stretch that the company was going to be able to show significant increases in revenues by the end of the month because they only had at the time we found out 10, 11, 12 days to go by the end of the month, and they had to make, I think, in excess of $100 million in sales. And it had not been the company's experience in the past to be able to generate that level of sales in that short period of time. So I was, I was very skeptical that the company was going to be able to make their numbers.
Q. But did you ever conclude that they would not meet the numbers?
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
MR. MOSCATO: I object. It's just unclear what numbers.

MR. WEBSTER: The analysts' expectations for sales for the first quarter of 1998.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did you ever conclude that it wasn't just a stretch but that they, in fact, would not meet those analysts' expectations?
MR. JOHNSON: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Yeah, I concluded at some point on that.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. When was that?
A. When the company -- when the company concluded.
Q. When was that?
A. Sometime towards the end of March. The company made a statement, made a public statement that they would not meet the analyst estimates. I concluded at that point.
Q. So after the press release came out?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection to form.
MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Was it after the press release came out that you concluded that they would not meet those expectations?

MR. JOHNSON: Same objection. Which press release? There's lots of press releases.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Did there come a time when Sunbeam made a press release about these first quarter sales figures?

MR. MOSCATO: I'm going to object to that.

MR. JOHNSON: I'd object to that.

THE WITNESS: There were a number of press releases that the company did put out in, you know, March, April time frame. And some of those press releases talked about sales; some talked about acquisitions. Which ones do we want to talk about?

MR. WEBSTER: Can I have MS 39, please?

(Defendant's Exhibit #MS-39 for i.d.)

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Okay. Have you had a chance to review that?

A. I didn't read every word in this, but I think I've seen this unless some words have been changed in the original document.

Q. MS-39 is a press release from Sunbeam on March 19th of 1998; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And if you could read the first sentence of that, please, in the record.

A. Delray Beach, Florida, March 19th, 1998. Sunbeam Corporation New York Stock Exchange SOC said today that it's possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates for $285 million to 295 million. But net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of 253.4 million.

Q. All right. That sentence -- nowhere in this press release does it say that Sunbeam will not meet analysts' expectations for the first quarter of 1998, does it?

A. Well, I think, in my opinion, when a public company puts out a statement like this, in my 30 years they're saying they're not going to make it. It's crystal clear in my opinion.

Q. The language in the press release does not say they will not meet their expectations, does it?

A. It's clear to me. It's clear to me. The company concluded -- anybody -- any investor that would read this would say they're not going to make it and their stock is going to get hit. I'm a hundred percent confident.

Q. And is this is the press release that convinced you that they, in fact, would not meet the first quarter estimates?

A. Yeah, when I saw this press release, I -- concluded that management is saying they're not going to meet 285 million to 295 million sales in the first quarter.

Q. Did you participate in the drafting of this press release?

A. No.

Q. Did you discuss the creation of this press release with Sunbeam before it was issued?

A. I don't know how to answer that. I think that this press release -- and maybe I'm trying to take too much credit, but I think the reason why this press release even came out was because of the discussions I had with the management team about not being able to meet expectations.

Q. So you had discussions with management about the inability to meet expectations before this press release?

A. I did. I did, but we did not discuss drafting a press release or exactly what we were going to say in it. But this showed up shortly after my conversation with management.

Q. Who did you talk to in management about the need for disclosure?

A. I talked to Mr. Gluck. I talked to legal department, Janet Kelley, David Fannin and Mr. Kersh, the company CFO.

Q. Gluck, Kelley, Fannin and Kersh?

A. Yes.

Q. On more than one occasion?

A. I don't recall. Well, let me go one by one. Mr. Gluck, yes, on more than one occasion. Miss Kelley, yes, on more than one occasion. Mr. Fannin, probably once before -- well, I talked to Mr. Fannin on a number of issues, but on this particular issue probably once before the press release was prepared. And, once again, Mr. Kersh, I talked to him from time to time on various issues. But in the time frame we're talking about just days prior to the release of this probably once.

Q. How many times did you talk to Mr. Gluck?

A. I don't recall. Five or six times.

Q. And what was said about the need for disclosure?

A. Mr. Gluck -- I don't remember precisely the words that he used, but the belief and the feeling that I got in talking to him about this issue is that he felt that it would be good if the company did have some disclosure on this issue, but he needed some help from me to get that done, the work on it.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. To work on other members of management over him.

Q. Did he say why?

A. No.

Q. What do you mean he needed you to work on management?

A. Once again, I don't precisely remember the words, but I had the impression Mr. Gluck had some difficulty in dealing with Mr. Kersh as the CFO. And Mr. Kersh and Mr. Gluck had some difference of opinion as to disclosure specifically related to this issue. And Mr. Gluck had recommended or suggested that I talk to Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin about this issue and my concerns.

Q. And did you, in fact, talk to Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin about it?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What was said?

A. I, in essence, told them that based on where the sales were year to date for the company that we felt that in connection with this offering statement there should be some disclosures made in the document indicating the company was not going to perform as, you know, outside analysts expected.

Q. This is in -- disclosure in the offering memorandum for the debentures?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there a discussion about disclosure anywhere else other than the offering memorandum?

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: I don't recall. I mean, I think we were talking in the -- we were talking in primarily the context of the offering memorandum to put disclosure in there because that's what we were working on at that point in time.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Did you discuss how it should be disclosed in the offering memorandum?

A. Not precisely. As far as geography within the document we thought it should be in a prominent section of the document. You know, I don't recall if there was a risk, risk section of that or not. It's been so long. But, you know, there should be a prominent display of the fact that the company sales were not going to meet analysts' expectations.

Q. Did you discuss disclosing it anywhere other than the offering memorandum?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you ever discuss a press release with -- them before this press release came out?

MR. JOHNSON: Asked and answered.

THE WITNESS: As I say, this press release kind of appeared after that discussion. We didn't say press release or when it was going to come out or anything like that, so...

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. There were no discussions about a press release before this came out?

A. No, not that I recall. There may have been, but I don't recall.

Q. Did you discuss the degree of disclosure with Sunbeam?

A. No, just the essence of disclosure, that sales expectations were not going to be met. How that was said and, you know, the specific wording was not discussed.

Q. Did you discuss with Sunbeam prior to the release of this press release the ability to exceed the first quarter results for 1997?

A. I don't recall any direct discussion on that.

Q. Did you discuss the ability to exceed '97 first quarter results within your Arthur Andersen team before this press release came out?

A. I don't remember specific discussions on that, but part of the -- as I recall, part of the comfort letter work was to make comparisons with the prior quarter. So in the context of putting the comfort letter together, that probably was looked at. May have been discussed. I mean, I think that was specifically reported on the comfort letter. I'd have to look at a copy to recall, but I think there was a comparison of prior, you know, prior periods.

Q. Well, you didn't have the full numbers for the first quarter yet, did you?

A. No. Did not have the full -- no. It was short of the first quarter, so there were another 10, 11, 12 days to go before the quarter ended.

Q. Just to be clear, you don't have any recollection of discussing the ability to exceed '97 first quarter results within the Andersen team?

MR. JOHNSON: This is at any time?

THE WITNESS: Oh, no, it was discussed.

MR. JOHNSON: I object.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

THE WITNESS: We certainly discussed it, yes.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. What was said?
A. Well, it was discussed, clearly it was discussed when this press release came out.
Q. Before the press release came out?
MR. JOHNSON: That's my objection.
MR. MOSCATO: Do you understand the question, Phil?
THE WITNESS: I think I do.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Well, let me rephrase it just to be clear. Before this press release came out did you discuss with other members of your Andersen team the ability of Sunbeam to exceed their '97 first quarter results?
A. I believe there were some discussions on that. Like I say, we were doing work on the comfort letter. And, you know, there were schedules prepared. There was a subtotal of sales through March whatever the date was. We had a schedule of the first quarter from 1997. You know, and I'm sure at some point there might have been some discussion as to the difference in those sales compared to the prior quarter.
Q. Did you or anybody else in the Andersen team express an opinion about whether Sunbeam would be able to exceed the first quarter of '97 results before this press release came out?

A. Before this press release. I don't recall. I don't recall.
Q. So did you discuss with Morgan -- not Morgan Stanley. Did you discuss with Sunbeam their ability to exceed '97 first quarter results before this press release came out?
A. I don't recall. I mean, what I do recall is saying compared to the prior year your sales are substantially less in 1998 than they were in 1997. Now can that be construed to be discussing first quarter shortfall? I don't know. But I would think a reasonable person could draw that conclusion.
Q. Just to be clear, you did -- before this press release came out you did discuss with Sunbeam the need to disclose that first quarter '98 expectations of the analysts would not be met; is that correct?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. But you did not discuss with Sunbeam before this press release came out whether or not Sunbeam would exceed the '97 first quarter results?
MR. JOHNSON: Object to the form.

THE WITNESS: I think we did. I think we did have an indirect discussion. I mean, I didn't come out and say, as I recall -- I mean, I may have. But I made it clear in the discussion that the year-to-date sales for 1998 were substantially less than year-to-date sales in 1997.
Now did I say you need to disclose you're not going to make, you know, your 1997 number? I don't recall. But we talked about the shortfall. And it could be -- you know, I think any accountant could make that assumption that, hey, you know, we've got to take a look at '97 as well as '98 where we were.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. The 1998 analyst expectation, that was a higher number than the '97 first quarter number, correct?
A. That's correct, that's correct.
Q. What was the result of your discussion with Mr. Kersh about the need to made this disclosure about the analysts' expectations?
A. You know, once again, I don't remember exact words that were said, but, you know, the impression in my mind from that conversation was the company is going to work hard to make the sales numbers. They felt pretty confident that there were going to be a lot of late sales reported at the end of the quarter. You know, made statements like, you know, the SEC attorneys were drafting the documents and that's their responsibility, not our responsibility. You know, things like that are in my mind, but exact words I don't recall.

Q. Now before this press release came out did you discuss with anybody at Morgan Stanley the need to make disclosures about the ability to meet the analysts' expectations for the first quarter of 1998?
A. At some point I had a discussion with some folks from Morgan Stanley, including their legal counsel. I don't remember precisely when that discussion was, but it was about the time this document came out.
Q. Do you remember whether it was before or after it came out?
A. Well, as I recall, it was -- I think it was right about the time this document came out.
Q. So it could have been before; could have been after?

MR. MOSCATO: I object.
THE WITNESS: Well, I think -- well, the call was set up by Mr. Bornstein, and it was not a face-to-face meeting. And Mr. Bornstein was in New York working on the offering memorandum along with Morgan Stanley and counsel and, you know, the whole team up there. And there was, you know, some kind of heated discussions about disclosure of this in the document. And Mr. Bornstein would give me updates on those discussions.
And then at some point in time he asked me to participate in a conference call with Morgan Stanley and attorneys. And I think -- I think the company's attorneys were on that call as well, outside attorneys, not in-house attorneys. But things got pretty heated between Arthur Andersen and Morgan Stanley on disclosure on this particular issue.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Do you remember was Mr. Bornstein in the same room, same location with people from Morgan Stanley when this conference call was held?

A. I had the impression they were in a conference room. I mean, I was in Florida and they were in New York. And they were at Morgan Stanley's office or the printer's office. I don't recall. But from the -- from the sounds of the conversation it sounded as if they were on a speaker phone in a conference room.
Q. Did you talk to Mr. Bornstein at all when he was at the printers?
A. Yes.
Q. And you don't remember whether this conference call with Morgan Stanley was when they were at the printers or at Morgan Stanley's office?
MR. MOSCATO: I object. You can answer.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall. It was one or the other. But they were together wherever it was.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Do you remember whether the press release had come out when you had this conference call?
A. Well, as I say, I think, I think the disclosure of the press release in the document was, you know, one of the basis for our conversation. So I think the press release was just freshly out.

Q. Okay.
A. You know.
Q. You testified that, I believe -- correct me if I'm wrong -- that you didn't know about the press release until it came out; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the press release was discussed in this conference call; is that right?
A. I believe it was.
Q. So --
A. Well, I believe the disclosure of this issue in the press release was discussed on that conference call.
Q. Do you remember whether the press release was discussed in the conference call?
A. I don't remember it precisely, but I do remember talking about this issue, which most likely would have been generated as a result of the press release coming out.
Q. Okay. Let's stop for just a second. Someone is at the door.

Q. Okay, Mr. Harlow, I just want to clarify in this conference call with Morgan Stanley you did discuss the need to make the disclosure that's in the press release in the offering memorandum; is that correct?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that characterization.
MR. JOHNSON: Object to the form.
MR. MOSCATO: Misstates his testimony.
THE WITNESS: That's not -- I don't think I said that. What I said was I think the contents of this press release were discussed in that call with Morgan Stanley. Now how that was -- well, I think that's what I said.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. The press release was eventually included in the offering memorandum; is that correct?
A. As I recall, it was.
Q. During this conference call with Morgan Stanley, did you discuss the need to include this press release in the offering memorandum?

MR. JOHNSON: Join.
MR. MOSCATO: You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Well, as I recall, what we discussed was even more disclosure than what was in the press release, the need for more disclosure in the offering memorandum than what was in here.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Does that mean that you knew about the press release at the time of this conference call?
A. Well, I think that's one of the things that generated the call was that press release.
Q. Okay. And what was your opinion about whether anything more than had been disclosed in the press release needed to be disclosed in the offering memorandum?
A. Well, specifically I had a concern about the last section of that first sentence where the company made the statement "...but net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million."
Q. What was your concern?
A. My concern was that they should have put a period after 285 to 295 and eliminate that statement.
Q. Eliminate that statement from the press release or from the offering memorandum?

A. Well, the press release was already out, so not much I could do about that, but specifically in the offering memorandum.
Q. Your opinion was that the information in the press release, except for that last clause of the first sentence should be disclosed in the offering memorandum?
MR. MOSCATO: I object. You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Well, at a minimum. Oh, I would have -- I would have loved to make some editorial changes to this press release.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Other than cutting out that information did you suggest that any more information needed to be disclosed in the offering memorandum?
A. Yeah, but we didn't wordsmith this particular press release.
Q. It was already out?
A. Yeah, the press release was -- that was a done deal.
Q. You were focusing on what should go in the offering memorandum?

A. Exactly.
Q. Did you discuss with Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam the need to include more information than was in this press release in the offering memorandum?
A. We discussed having stronger language, making it clear that -- well, what we wanted to do was to show where the sales were at the point in time the document was being prepared so the reader could see if they had a long way to go to make the number. And there was tremendous kickback from, resistance from, you know, the other parties up there to do that.
Q. What did they say?
A. I don't recall, but they just thought it was crazy, didn't make sense; we're stupid; we don't know what we're doing. They made us feel like idiots basically.
Q. You don't remember who said that?
A. I think it was the Davis Polk guy and the Morgan Stanley guy.
Q. Do you remember their names?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Let me go off the record.
(A discussion was held off the record.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Back on the video record.

BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Do you remember specifically what you recommended should be added in the offering memorandum that wasn't in the press release?
A. The only thing that I specifically remember was the deletion of the sentence which we discussed earlier regarding 1997 first quarter net sales. Do I need to clarify that?
Q. No. You didn't want the whole sentence, just the last part of that first sentence excluded?
A. Just the last part of sentence which I previously read.
Q. Okay.
A. And I don't -- I don't recall other comments, you know, that were made relative to this disclosure.
MR. WEBSTER: MS-117, please.

Q. Okay.
A. Dated as of February 27th, 1998.
Q. Could you please turn to page 29 of that document, which is Bates stamped 0008043? And I'd ask you to read Section 7.2 to yourself and let me know when you finish.
MR. MOSCATO: Can you just do me a favor. Who's Laser?
MR. WEBSTER: Laser?
MR. MOSCATO: Yeah.
MR. WEBSTER: Defined --
MR. MOSCATO: You don't have to show me. Just tell me.
MR. WEBSTER: Laser is defined as Sunbeam, and the company is defined as Coleman.
MR. MOSCATO: The company is Coleman?
MR. WEBSTER: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Okay. I'm through.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Have you ever reviewed this section of this agreement before, Mr. Harlow?

A. No.
Q. What does this Section 7.2 provide for?
MR. JOHNSON: I object to this.
MR. MOSCATO: I object.
MR. JOHNSON: He said he's never even read it before, and he's not a party to it either.
MR. MOSCATO: I really do object. The documents speaks for itself.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. The first sentence of Section 7.2 says that the company and Laser shall each afford to the other and to the other's financial advisors legal counsel, accountants, consultants and other representatives full access at all reasonable times throughout the period prior to the company effective time to all of its books, records, properties, plants and personnel provided that all such access shall be on reasonable advanced notice and shall not disrupt normal business operations. And during such period, each shall furnish promptly to the other a copy of each report, schedule and other document filed or received by pursuant to the requirements of federal or states securities laws and all other information as such other party may reasonably request provided that no investigation pursuant to this Section 7.2 shall affect any representation or warranties made herein or the conditions to the obligations of the respective parties to consummate the company merger."

Is that an accurate reading that have sentence, Mr. Harlow?
A. I don't know. I had my glasses off, but I assume you can read.
MR. MOSCATO: I will -- I will say that that was an accurate reading.
MR. WEBSTER: Thank you.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Mr. Harlow, did you have an understanding during March of 1998 that Coleman and Sunbeam had a right to review all of the other parties' books, records, properties, plants, et cetera?
A. I don't know what their rights were at that point.
Q. Okay. Did you during the period of March 1998 have any understanding that Coleman might request to review Sunbeam's books and records?
A. I assume that was a possibility.
Q. Did you discuss that possibility with Sunbeam?
A. I don't recall direct discussions, but I'm sure at some point in time it came up.

Q. Did you discuss with -- after you learned that the sales figures for January and February of 1998 were low did you discuss with Sunbeam the possibility that Coleman might ask to see those sales figures?
A. I don't recall that discussion. I know they were Coleman people working with Mr. Gluck. I think he had their controller down a number of times in his office. And I assumed that they were discussing results of the company. But that was not my responsibility at all to follow up on that.
Q. During the time that you were discussing with Sunbeam the need to make disclosure about the sales figures for January and February of 1998, did you discuss with Sunbeam the possibility that Coleman might make a request for those figures?
A. I don't recall a discussion, but, you know, I absolutely assume that they, you know, they were a pretty sophisticated company, one of Mr. Perelman's companies, and I'm sure that they look at the numbers. I was not conducting their due diligence, and I can't tell them what they should and should not look at.
Q. Did anybody from Sunbeam ever express any concern to you about the possibility that Coleman

Q. Did anybody from Morgan Stanley ever express to you a concern that Coleman might ask to see sales figures for January or February of 1998?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. Was it your understanding that Coleman could have received the sales figures for January and February of 1998 if they had asked for them?
A. Yes.
MR. MOSCATO: Phil, you got to pause just for a second.
THE WITNESS: That was my assumption.
MR. MOSCATO: I just want to object.
THE WITNESS: Okay. Object.
MR. MOSCATO: Retroactively I will object.

MR. MOSCATO: I'm not objecting.

Q. And that was in connection with Morgan Stanley's underwriting of the debentures; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if any comfort letters were prepared for Coleman or Sunbeam in connection with the acquisition?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. You can answer if you understand the question.
MR. JOHNSON: I'll join.

Obviously if you want to engage in the questioning, you can, but I want to note my objection.

Q. And the first page is a printout of an e-mail; is that correct?
A. It appears to be, yes.
Q. And an e-mail from Mr. Pastrana to you, Mr. Bornstein, and Mark Brockelman; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. On March 18th, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is attached to this e-mail?
A. This is a draft of a comfort letter addressed to Morgan Stanley & Company.
Q. Do you know who created this document?
A. No.
Q. Did you participate in the drafting of this document?

A. I don't recall if I did up to this point. At some point in time I reviewed the final version of the document, but I don't recall if I participated in the drafting of this version.
Q. Do you know why this draft was created?
A. I assume it was to just provide Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam a copy of our -- of what we thought would be in the comfort letter at the time it was to be issued.
Q. Was it intended that this draft would be circulated to -- outside Arthur Andersen?
A. Yes.
Q. Who did you intend to circulate it to?
A. Well, typically a draft of this letter is sent to the requesting party prior to the issuance date and also our client.
Q. Who was the requesting party here?
A. Morgan Stanley.
Q. Do you know if this draft was, in fact, circulated to Morgan Stanley and to Sunbeam? Actually, strike that.
Do you know if this draft was actually circulated to Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't know if this draft was. I can't answer that. I can't tell from the -- I can't tell if this draft was.
Q. Do you know if a draft of the comfort letter was circulated to Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes, I know that a draft was. I don't know if this draft was.
Q. Do you know when a draft was circulated to Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't know the exact time or the exact date, but prior to the issuance date on the letter there was a draft sent.
Q. Do you know who at Morgan Stanley it was sent to?
A. I don't know that.
Q. Do you know how it was delivered to Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you offer -- Do you know if Andersen offered a draft of the comfort letter to anyone besides Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam?
A. I don't know that.
Q. Do you know if Sunbeam offered a draft of the comfort letter to anybody besides Morgan Stanley?

Q. And the purpose of the draft is to get feedback on Morgan Stanley if this is satisfactory for their purposes; is that correct?

THE WITNESS: Well, we found that underwriters have -- they like to pay attorneys lots of money, you know, to cross T's and dot I's, so, you know, we learned long ago you send these out ahead of time so there's plenty of time for the attorneys to do their thing and look at these letters and either get happy or unhappy with it.
So we sent them out well in advance so that they can look at them and pick them apart if they don't like them.

BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. What's well in advance?
A. Well in advance of the issuance date.
Q. The issuance of the comfort letter?
A. The issuance of the comfort letter, you know, the comfort letter requirement for one that needs to be dated.
Q. Do you know how far in advance of the issuance of the comfort letter to Morgan Stanley the draft was sent to them?
A. Oh, this probably, you know, several days at least would be my guess.
Q. Did you review the draft before it was sent to Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Did you get any feedback from Morgan Stanley after they received the draft comfort letter?
A. I personally, I don't think I ever received feedback, but...
Q. Do you know if Andersen received feedback from Morgan Stanley?
A. Mr. Bornstein got some feedback from the letter, I think.
Q. Did you discuss --
A. It was my understanding he got some feedback.

Q. Did you talk to Mr. Bornstein about the feedback that he received?
A. I'm sure we did. I just don't remember the details.
MR. WEBSTER: Can I have Exhibit MS-48, please?
(Defendant's Exhibit #MS-48 for i.d.)
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Mr. Harlow, before you is Exhibit MS-48. Is this another draft of the comfort letter?
A. It appears to be.
Q. I'd like you to compare the two drafts we have, MS-31 and MS-48. And specifically I'd like you to look at paragraph nine in MS-48, and I'd like to ask you whether that was included in MS-31, if that's new language.
A. I don't know if it's new language or old language. I don't know which draft was prepared first.
Q. Do you know if this --
A. I can't tell by these drafts.
MR. WEBSTER: Well, let's pull out MS Number 9, then.
(Defendant's Exhibit #MS-9 for i.d.)
BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. And before you is Exhibit marked MS Number 9. Do you recognize this document, Mr. Harlow?
A. Yes, I've seen this before.
Q. Okay. Now the final comfort letter has 13 paragraphs; is that correct?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. And MS-48 only has 12, and MS-31 only has 11; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. One of those new paragraphs, one of those additional paragraphs in the final comfort letter is paragraph 10, which was not in MS-31 if you compare those two documents.
A. Okay. That appears to be a difference between those two drafts.
Q. Do you know why that paragraph was added to the final comfort letter?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know who requested that it be added to the final comfort letter?
A. I don't recall.
Q. All right. Focusing on MS-9, the final comfort letter, what was the purpose of the comfort letter?
A. The purpose of a comfort letter is basically to -- for Morgan Stanley to say that they've done a certain amount of due diligence on a transaction and, you know, get a letter from the accountants.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0185311

Q. And the transaction in this case was the debenture offering?

A. In this case that's what it was, yes.

Q. And do you know if a comfort letter was prepared by Ernst & Young on behalf of Coleman?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Morgan Stanley about the preparation of a comfort letter by Ernst & Young?

A. I don't recall any discussion of that nature.

Q. Prior to this transaction, the acquisition of Sunbeam by -- the acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam, had you worked on other acquisition transactions for other clients?

A. Yes.

Q. And had you worked on other transactions that involved debenture offerings?

A. Yes.

Q. And had you prepared comfort letters in connection with those other debenture offerings?

A. I had previously prepared a number of comfort letters, yes.

Q. And in those prior representations had you represented buyers in the transaction?

MR. MOSCATO: I object to the form. You can answer.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Well, in this case the debenture offering was to finance Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman; is that correct?

A. That was the purpose of this debenture, right.

Q. And in this transaction you were representing the purchaser, which was Sunbeam, correct?

MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. You can answer.

THE WITNESS: Well, I was doing work for the purchasers, that's correct, yes.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. And you prepared a comfort letter on behalf of the purchaser for Morgan Stanley, correct?

A. No, we prepared the comfort letter for Morgan Stanley. The request came directly from Morgan Stanley.

Q. And in your previous work on comfort letters had you also represented parties who were selling to another company?

A. No, I don't recall that. My clients usually were acquiring -- I worked on -- I don't ever recall working on a seller where I provided a comfort letter. Worked on a lot of buyers, but no sellers.

Q. You didn't represent any sellers?

A. Not that I can recall.

Q. Was it your experience that comfort letters were prepared for the sellers in those transactions?

MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.

MR. MOSCATO: I object to the whole line. I think it misconstrues what a comfort letter is, but go ahead and answer the question.

THE WITNESS: I've never really thought about it. I mean, it's, you know, it's typically an investment banker underwriting the transaction is calling the accountants for a letter that they can put in their file for information they already know. So, you know, it's kind of a cover your ass type of document. But I suppose that could be asked by an investment banker for -- representing a seller. I just don't know.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. There are provisions in the AICPA rule and accounting standards for the preparation of comfort letters; is that correct?

A. There is literature related to comfort letter preparation, that's correct.

Q. And do you know what the standards are that govern the preparation of the comfort letters?

A. I used to, but I don't -- I haven't practiced accounting for sometime, so I would have to refresh my memory.

Q. Did you consult any of those accounting standards in connection with the preparation of this comfort letter?

A. Personally, probably not, but my staff did consult, you know, with those documents or those necessary references for comfort letters.

Q. And those -- was it your understanding that those standards govern the form in which those comfort letters would take and contents of the comfort letter?

MR. MOSCATO: I object. You can answer.

THE WITNESS: Form is discussed. I don't know if it governs it because I've had comfort letters take a number of different forms. I've had some pretty screwy requests from underwriters in the past. They want us to opine on everything, you know, accounting related or not accounting related. But I assume there's some standards in there. I'd have to read it. I just -- I just don't recall.

018532

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Did those -- do you remember if those accounting standards governed who was entitled to a copy of the comfort letter?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Was it your understanding that Coleman could have requested a copy of this comfort letter?

MR. JOHNSON: Asked and answered.

MR. MOSCATO: That's been asked and answered actually.

THE WITNESS: It wasn't my understanding at all. I wasn't even thinking about that particular issue. So I suppose they could ask for anything. You know, I certainly couldn't provide it to Coleman without any authorization from my client.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. And where did you get the information that was in this comfort letter?

MR. MOSCATO: I assume when you say you, you mean Andersen generally or Mr. Harlow's specifically?

MR. WEBSTER: Andersen.

THE WITNESS: Well, we started out with the annual financial statements of the company, which are as of December 28th, 1997, and then we reviewed minutes of the board of directors, and we reported on that in paragraph four. And then in paragraph 4A we looked at certain unaudited financial statements of the company from the beginning of the fiscal year to February 1, 1998. We talked to company officials regarding accounting matters.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Paragraph five of the comfort letter contains information about the sales, about Sunbeam sales in January of 1998 or between December 29th, 1997 and February 1, 1998; is that correct?

A. Paragraph 5B does, that's correct.

Q. Where did you get that information? Where did Andersen get that information?

A. We would have received that from the company's records. The company would have given that to us. This was not audited information. This was merely given to us by the company.

MR. WEBSTER: Can I have MS-44, please?

(Defendant's Exhibit #MS-44 for i.d.)

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Have you had a chance to review MS-44, Mr. Harlow?

A. I've not reviewed everything in it, but I've reviewed it.

Q. What is this document, Mr. Harlow?

A. This is a representation letter to Arthur Andersen from Sunbeam officials related to the -- our preparation of the comfort letter.

Q. Why was this drafted, do you know?

A. This is received by the auditor preparing the comfort letter because most of the information in the comfort letter is not audited, so we require the company to represent certain things that are disclosed in the comfort letter.

Q. Is this where Andersen first learned about Coleman's sales in 1998?

MR. JOHNSON: I think.

MR. MOSCATO: I think, number one, you misspoke. And number two -- you said Coleman sales.

MR. WEBSTER: I'm sorry. Sunbeam sales with the first quarter of 1998.

MR. MOSCATO: And even with that correction I'll object.

MR. JOHNSON: I'll join.

THE WITNESS: Could you repeat the question?

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Do you know if this is the first time that Andersen was informed about Sunbeam's sales for the first month of 1998?

A. For the first month of 1998? For the month of January?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you --

A. I mean, I guess I'm not -- I'm not clear on the time frame because are we talking about the representation letter? Because there was --

Q. This is the representation letter, right?

A. This is the representation letter.

Q. It's dated March 16, 1998.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018533

A. But this would have been signed and completed after March 16th, so --
Q. Why do you say that?
A. Well, because.
MR. MOSCATO: Why don't you let him finish before you interrupt. All right.
THE WITNESS: Because it's almost always impossible to get all signatures on a representation letter on the day that you want them. To have all four of these people in the office on the same day is probably next to impossible to get done unless they're having a board meeting.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. This has all four signatures on it, correct?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. Do you have a recollection that this was received after March 16th of 1998?
A. I don't know. I'm assuming that, you know, this was received after that date.
Q. Why is that?
A. Just because I don't think we could have physically got all the signatures on this -- on that particular date.
Q. Other than that, do you have any reason to doubt that you received this on March 16, 1998?

MR. MOSCATO: I object.
THE WITNESS: It was probably several days after because if you read paragraph nine, it actually covers the period up to March 16th. And it would have been pretty difficult to do that work, draft this letter and get it all signed on the same date. So there's probably some lag time between March 16th and when this got finalized.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did you review this letter? Did you ever receive a copy of this letter?
A. At the time we did the work I don't believe so. I've seen this letter subsequent to that time.
Q. How long after that time?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Did you see it at any time in March of 1998?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if this representation letter is the source for the information in paragraph 5B of the comfort letter?
MR. MOSCATO: I object.
MR. JOHNSON: Join.

BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Again, the comfort letter is MS-9.
A. Okay. Sorry. The question again.
Q. Do you know if this March 16th letter, MS-44, is the source for the information in paragraph 5B of the comfort letter?
A. I would highly doubt it, because this letter is going to be prepared after the comfort letter, so I think it's the other way around.
Q. Do you know what was the source of the information in paragraph 5B of the comfort letter?
A. The source for that would have been the company.
Q. Do you know how it was conveyed from the company?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know whether it was orally or any written document?
A. I don't know. I don't know.
Q. In your experience, is the representation letter typically prepared after the comfort letter is prepared?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
THE WITNESS: They are done about the same time, but usually the finalization of the representation letter, you know, lags the preparation of the comfort letter.

BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Do you remember in this case whether you received the representation letter after you prepared the comfort letter?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection. I think that was asked and answered.
THE WITNESS: My opinion is it was received after for the reasons I stated before.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Okay. Now you said that Morgan Stanley requested the comfort letter from Andersen; is that correct?
A. That's my understanding.
Q. Did you need approval from Sunbeam before you could go ahead and deliver the comfort letter to Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't know. I know we provided them a copy. I know that if the company didn't agree with the comments in there, then we wouldn't issue the letter, so, you know, kind of a back-ended answer to your question is probably we needed Sunbeam's concurrence on that letter to issue it since all the information in the letter was about the company, and it had been based on unaudited, much of it unaudited information.

Q. Did you review the contents in the comfort letter with anybody at Sunbeam before you issued it to Morgan Stanley?

A. My staff did.

Q. You did not personally, though?

A. I did not personally, no.

Q. Did your staff report to you about those conversations with Sunbeam?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Other than the comfort letter what other information, if any, was Morgan Stanley entitled to as the underwriter from you?

MR. MOSCATO: Well, I object to that.

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry. I didn't hear the last part of your question. From who?

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. From Arthur Andersen.

A. From Andersen.

MR. MOSCATO: I object.

THE WITNESS: I don't know. We had no, you know, contractual relationship with Morgan Stanley. You know, I don't know what -- other than the comfort letter, that's all I know, other than discussions with Morgan Stanley.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Did you have any expectations that anybody else would receive a copy of the comfort letter besides Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley?

MR. JOHNSON: It's asked and answered several times.

MR. MOSCATO: I object. You can answer it.

THE WITNESS: No.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Did you approve the comfort letter before it was sent out to Morgan Stanley?

A. As I recall, I did.

Q. Did you discuss the 1998 sales figures with Sunbeam before the comfort letter was sent out to Morgan Stanley?

MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Now are we talking about a draft of the comfort letter? Are we talking about the final comfort letter?

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Before the final comfort letter went out?

A. Before the time the comfort letter went out.

Q. Did you discuss the sales for January and February of 1998 with Sunbeam?

MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.

MR. MOSCATO: I thought that was asked and answered, too, but go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, I mean, it would have been right around that time, within, we're talking about within a day or two.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. What was said?

MR. MOSCATO: I object. That was asked and answered too.

MR. JOHNSON: He's testified in detail about somebody in personnel he spoke with.

THE WITNESS: Yes, well, as I testified before I don't remember exact words, but do we want to go through it again?

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. I just want to make sure I've got it.

MR. MOSCATO: I object to that, but go ahead. Is there anything that you remember in addition to what you've already testified to?

THE WITNESS: No, nothing additional.

MR. WEBSTER: All right. Can I have MS-43.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Would this be a good time to change the tape?

MR. WEBSTER: Yes.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Off the video record, 11:11 a.m.

(Defendant's Exhibit #MS-43 for i.d.)

(a recess was taken from 11:11 a.m. to 11:15 a.m.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We're back on the video record. The time is 11:15 a.m.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Mr. Harlow, before you is a document marked MS Exhibit 43. Have you had a chance to review the document?

A. I have flipped through this document.

Q. This appears to be an Arthur Andersen internal form; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And what kind of form is this?

A. This is a form that was prepared after completion of post audit review work in connection with filings the company might be making. The periods

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018535

after -- look at subperiods after an audit was complete. That was kind of a checklist to make certain certain areas are covered in those reviews.
Q. And does this document deal with the post audit review of Sunbeam after their 1997 audit?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this form prepared for distribution outside Andersen?
A. No.
Q. Solely an internal form?
A. Well, you have a copy, so it does get outside every once in a while, so -- but the purpose was an internal document.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?
A. Well, I signed it at one point in time, so I would have to say yes.
Q. Where is your signature?
A. It's on the front page.
Q. At the bottom of the front page?
A. Yes.
Q. There are two signatures there at the bottom of the front page. Which one is yours?
A. The bottom signature.
Q. Do you know whose signature that is above yours?

A. I believe that's Larry Bornstein's.
Q. And what is the date of your signature?
A. March '98.
Q. Now there's a date above there typed in on the fifth line down that says date to which post audit review completed, and it's dated March 16th, 1998. What does that mean?
A. That would have been the date up to which the post audit review was done.
Q. Okay. So this means this covers information about Sunbeam up to March 16th, 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. So this form was prepared sometime after March 16th of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know when it was prepared?
A. No.
Q. Do you know who prepared it?
A. I don't know, but I'm assuming Dennis Pastrana prepared it since most of the work was completed by him.
Q. Do you know if this document was prepared before the comfort letter was issued?
A. I don't think it was prepared in its entirety before the comfort letter was issued.

Q. Why do you say that?
A. It was probably -- well, typically what we would do is prepare this simultaneous with the completion of the comfort letter. But, once again, this is a case where circulating the document and getting the signatures might take several days internally.
Q. Now this document, MS-43, says it covers information. I believe you indicated it covers information at Sunbeam through March 16th of 1998; is that correct?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
THE WITNESS: Well, I think it covers the period of review up through March 16th. Whether all the information in here is precisely up to March 16th, I don't know. I'd have to review it in more detail.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Okay. There's also above those signatures --
A. Actually, I can say no because item four on page four we're talking about 1998 budget which is going to go beyond March 16th.
Q. Okay.
A. So there's probably a few other items in here which are around that date.

Q. Okay. Are there any items which indicate that the information contained herein does not go through March 16th of 1998?
A. Well, the 1998 budget is going to cover the entire fiscal year.
Q. That would go beyond March 16th of 1998, correct?
A. Yes. That's for the entire year of 1998, a budget, which is beyond March 16th.
Q. So all the information covered in this document is through March 16th, 1998 or beyond?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
MR. JOHNSON: Join.
THE WITNESS: No, I didn't say that either. I was trying to respond to your earlier question does everything go up through March 16th. My answer to that question was not necessarily. I pointed out one thing, and there's probably some more things in here.
On item 4B there's a discussion of a 1998 plan does not take into account the effects of recent acquisitions. I assume that plan deals with the entire fiscal year, not just through March 16th. Also, 4A, budget net sales, net income first quarter 1998, that goes beyond March 16th, 1998.

018536

73d5d6ca-ab2c-4e77-8ead-53fb3edfdffd

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Okay. Going back to the first page, there's some handwriting above the signatures. Do you see that?

A. Below the signature -- below the typed names? Yes.

Q. Yes. Do you know whose handwriting that is?

A. I don't know.

Q. If you turn to the second page, the remaining pages of the documents are in a table form; is that correct, columns and rows?

A. Yes.

Q. The second column has a heading saying work done by, and I assume the initials under there are initials of the individuals that did the work; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the third column?

A. That's work paper reference.

Q. So that column references various work papers which support the comments and disposition of items that are included in the fourth column?

A. In some cases it would, but really the purpose is to document where in the work papers there's documentation to support the first column.

Q. Okay.

A. The work done in the first column. Not necessarily comments and dispositions. Those might be elsewhere within the work papers.

Q. If you look at paragraph 2A or box 2A there, the fourth column discusses a declining sales trend due to early buy program for outdoor grills which accelerated sales into the fourth quarter and sales in first quarter of 1997 of discontinued SKUs and ENO inventory in connection with the 1996 restructuring; is that correct?

A. Yes, that's the comment.

Q. What was your understanding of what that meant?

A. My understanding was the company instituted a program in which they were attempting to level out the sale of the grills so that they could get orders in earlier and not have the problems that they had in 1997 previous year whereby they were not able to deliver grills on a timely basis to some major customers, including Wal-Mart.

So the company instituted a program whereby they would attempt to get the orders in earlier. There were incentives given to the customers to order the grills on an earlier basis, and that was known as the early buy program.

Q. Did you discuss the early buy program with Morgan Stanley?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you discuss the early buy program with Morgan Stanley before the comfort letter was issued?

A. I don't recall exactly when that discussion took place, but there was some discussion, you know, when I referred to that conference call with Mr. Bornstein at the printers or Morgan Stanley's office.

Q. After the press release had been issued?

A. That was in connection with the press release discussion.

Q. What was said?

MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry. I'm sorry. Can you read back his answer?

(The record was read as requested.)

MR. MOSCATO: Sorry.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. You discussed the early buy program with

Morgan Stanley during the conference call after the press release was issued; is that correct?

A. That's -- yeah, that's my recollection.

Q. And what was -- what was the discussion about the early buy program?

A. I don't recall what the detail of the discussion was, but it was one of the reasons for the lower sales level for 1998. It was just one of the reasons given. But there wasn't an extensive discussion as to exactly what it was. But it was given as a result of lower sales level in the first part of 1998.

Q. Did you discuss whether that should be disclosed in the offering memorandum?

A. I don't recall. I believe it was -- it was disclosed in the financial statements.

Q. Turn to --

A. And I believe -- I believe it also was disclosed in the offering memorandum.

Q. Was there any -- did anybody object to disclosing that in the offering memorandum?

A. Not that I recall.

MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. Can you turn to page four, specifically

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

paragraph 4A of that document, please.
A. You -- I don't know if you want a full answer on your previous question or not, but you asked me about, you know, 2A, and I only talked about the first item in 2A. I don't know if you wanted me to talk about the second item or not. We kind of skipped over that.
MR. MOSCATO: Well let him ask the questions.
THE WITNESS: Okay. All right. 4A?
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Actually, going back 2A for a second, was -- you said the information about the early buy program was in the 10-K already?
A. Yes.
Q. And did the offering memorandum contain anything different about the early buy program than had been disclosed in the 10-K?
A. I don't recall anything different. There should have been the same disclosure, at least at a minimum the same disclosure.
Q. Was there any discussion about making more disclosure in the offering memorandum that had been made in the 10-K?
A. I don't recall.

MR. JOHNSON: Objection to form.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. All right. Going back to 4A on four, what does 4A concern?
MR. MOSCATO: I'll object to that. You can answer if you understand the question.
THE WITNESS: Well, 4A says, "To read the respective financial information and inquire as to whether it has been prepared on the same basis as the audited historical financial statements; compare such prospective financial information with historical results; investigate significant fluctuations."
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. And paragraph four, box four above that indicates this concerns the latest available forecast projection budget or other prospective financial data; is that correct?
A. Yeah, it indicates, "Obtain the latest available forecast projection budget, including capital and operating or other prospective financial data, particular data relating to cash flows. State the periods covered by such prospective information."

Q. And does the document indicate that the work described in four and 4A has been completed?
A. Yeah, there's an indication the work was done and there's a work paper reference.
Q. And do you know who made the comments in the comment box to 4A?
A. I assume Dennis Pastrana made those comments. I don't know for certain.
Q. And the last sentence in the comments says, "Through the second period of 1998 the company has net sales of approximately $72 million and a net loss of approximately $14.8 million; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. What is the second period 1998?
A. The second period would be the second month. Essentially Sunbeam was on 52, 53-week fiscal year, and it's -- in essence, would be the month of February.
Q. Okay. So through February the comments indicate that the company had net sales of approximately 72 million and a net loss of approximately 14.8 million; is that correct?
A. Yeah. I don't remember the date of the end of the second period, but it's -- might be February 28th, might be March 1st. I don't recall.

Q. Now the comfort letter if you look back at MS-9 in paragraph 5B, that also contains a discussion of net sales and net income or net loss for 1990 -- for 1998; is that correct?
MR. JOHNSON: I'm sorry. Can I hear that again?
THE WITNESS: Yeah. Repeat the question.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. The comfort letter also contains in paragraph 5B information about Sunbeam's net sales and net income or net loss in 1998; is that correct?
A. That's correct. But this is a different period than what's in this letter.
Q. That was my next question. Do you know why the comfort letter only goes through February 1st of 1998 on net sales and net loss?
MR. JOHNSON: I object to that.
MR. MOSCATO: I have to object to that. It really -- I can't imagine it's a deliberately misleading question. I'm sure it's an inadvertently misleading question if one looks at paragraph 6C.
THE WITNESS: Yeah, I do know why there's a difference.
BY MR. WEBSTER:

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Why is that?
A. Because the company did not have financial statements prepared for a period beyond that. And, you know, they cover that in --
Q. 6C?
A. 6C.
Q. Thank you.
A. And it clearly states --
MR. JOHNSON: It's actually 5C for everyone.
MR. WEBSTER: There is no 5C in the comfort letter.
MR. MOSCATO: You're looking at the wrong one.
MR. WEBSTER: MS-9.
MR. JOHNSON: I'm sorry.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Mr. Harlow, before the comfort letter was issued did you talk to Morgan Stanley about the sales figures for 1998?
A. I don't remember when the exact -- I don't know the exact sequence of the timing of the receipt of the comfort letter draft, the final comfort letter into Morgan Stanley's hands, but during that time frame there was clearly a discussion on sales.

shortfalls related to the first part of 1998 and disclosure of that information in the document. But I can't tell you exactly how that falls relative to comfort letter delivery.
Q. You did talk to Morgan Stanley about it, though, in that conference call that we've discussed already, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Is that the first time you talked to Morgan Stanley about the sales shortfalls for 1998?
A. That's the first time that I recall that I talked to them about it. Mr. Bornstein had called me several times in frustration because he had had verbal battles with Morgan Stanley and Morgan Stanley's attorney about disclosure, and Larry was very frustrated in their inability to listen to him about the need for disclosure and wanted me to have a discussion with them.
Q. But were those phone calls the same day as the conference call that you participated in?
A. They were in -- if not the same day -- some of them were the same day, and some of them could have been the previous day. I don't recall. But I can remember Larry called, and he was very upset and just felt like he was a lone wolf on this particular issue, and everybody was basically beating him up and giving him a very hard time about the need for disclosure.

Q. Did Morgan Stanley ever request that the 1998 sales information be excluded from the comfort letter?
A. I don't -- I think prior to the press release -- I think that was the position that they were taking. The impression that we had was Morgan Stanley wanted to get this done, this deal done regardless of, you know, what did or did not get disclosed on this issue. And, you know, I don't remember if they specifically said -- you know, talked about specifics on disclosure. But my -- my strong feeling was there was significant kickback by them on disclosure on this issue.
Q. Disclosure in the comfort letter or disclosure to the public?
A. Disclosure in the document.
MR. MOSCATO: When you say the document, the offering memorandum?
THE WITNESS: The offering memorandum.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. In the offering memorandum?
A. I don't think they had a big problem with the comfort letter, but there was certainly concern about documentation in the offering memorandum.

Q. Did they express concern about documenting it in the offering memorandum after the press release was issued?
A. As I recall, they were okay with the -- after the press release was issued with having the press release as the disclosure in the document. There was a -- there was a strong resistance to our elimination of the reference to the meeting of the 1990 -- 1997 first quarter sales with 1998.
Q. When you participated in the calls, would you describe them as -- how would you describe the level of discussion?
MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Contentious?
A. Yes, contentious.
Q. At any time did you threaten to withdraw as auditors for Sunbeam?
A. We discussed it internally. We discussed withholding our opinion, giving the company notice that they could no longer rely on our opinion if there was not some disclosure, but we did not threaten anyone externally, but we did have internal discussions on that issue.
Q. When did you have those internal discussions?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q1 85 36

A. About the time we determined sales levels and the lack of disclosure in the offering memorandum. So it would have been mid March.
Q. Before this conference call with Morgan Stanley?
A. It would have been about that time, within days of that.
Q. Days before or days after?
A. I don't recall. Most likely it would have been before that call.
Q. Do you remember whether you had internal discussions about withdrawing after the conference call with Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. How many discussions?
A. One or two.
Q. Who participated in those internal discussions?
A. Mr. Pruitt, Mr. Bornstein, myself. That's all I can remember.
Q. What was decided?
A. Well, it was ultimately decided that, you know, the disclosure was okay based on, you know, the company's adamant stance that they could meet those sales levels, and the company's telling us that there their SEC attorney was 100 percent satisfied with disclosure, and that basically we're accountants and not attorneys, and you can't tell the company what to disclose.

But they told us they had done extensive work, you know, with their chief sales executive and, you know, actually prepared a schedule showing detailed sales by customer on how they were going to meet those first quarter numbers.
Q. Those were documents prepared by Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley prepare any of those documents?
A. I don't know. I was told they were involved in discussions, but I was not a party to those internal discussions.
Q. And, in fact, you did not end up withdrawing from representing Sunbeam, did you?
A. At that point, no.
Q. Did you ever have any discussions with Sunbeam about withdrawing or was it all internal?
A. Oh, at that time it was just internal.
Q. Did you discuss whether you should threaten to withdraw?
A. No.

Q. Internally did you discuss whether you should threaten to withdraw?
A. Oh, internally we did, but not externally.
Q. And you decided that you shouldn't even threaten to withdraw?
A. Well, at that point in time we decided not to.
Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley took any steps to review or verify the accuracy of these sales forecasts that Sunbeam was making?
A. I don't know that for a fact. I was told they did by the company, but I don't know that.
Q. Who told you that?
A. Mr. Gluck, Mr. Kersh.
Q. What did they say?
A. They said Morgan Stanley is all over the situation, and they've been very involved in due diligence. They've done extensive work. And I was given the impression that they'd done a heck of a lot more work than we'd done, so... But I don't know that for a fact.
Q. Now after the press release was issued do you know if Donald Drapkin from MAFCO ever called Arthur Andersen?
A. Never heard the name.

Q. Did Arthur Andersen receive any calls from Ronald Perelman from MAFCO about the press release?
A. Ronald Perelman calling us directly, not that I'm aware of.
Q. Do you know if Ronald Perelman called Sunbeam about the information in the press release?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know if Irwin Engelman of MAFCO called Andersen about the information in the press release?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Engelman called anybody at Sunbeam about the information in the press release?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if Mr. Engelman made contact in any way with Sunbeam about the information in the press release?
A. No.
Q. Did he make contact in any way with Andersen about the information in the press release?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know if Norman -- did Norman Einstling ever -- of MAFCO ever call you about the information in the press release?

Q. -- Andersen?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Do you know if he made any contact with Sunbeam about the information in the press release?
A. I can't say.
Q. Did you ever have a conversation with Howard Gittis of MAFCO?
A. Yes.
Q. What about?
A. He was showing me some of his fine cigars one day and wanted to know if I wanted one.
Q. Is that it?
A. He's a cigar connoisseur. I met him several times. We just had conversations on other issues.
Q. Did you ever meet with him during March of 1998 when this acquisition was going on?
A. No.
Q. Did he ever call you or contact you in any way during that period of time?
A. In March? No.
Q. April?
A. I think I met Mr. Gittis for the first time probably in June of '98.
Q. Okay. Did Jerry Levin call you after the issuance of the press release about information that was disclosed?

A. No.
Q. Do you know if he contacted --
A. Well, I talked to him after, after.
Q. After what?
A. But, once again, it's not in March.
Q. When did you first talk to him?
A. First talked to him in probably June of '98.
Q. Okay. Do you know if he contacted anybody at Andersen in March or April of 1998 about the information in the press release?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Do you know if he contacted anybody at Sunbeam about the information in the press release?
A. It was my understanding that he was having meetings with management of Sunbeam at that time. What was discussed, I don't know.
Q. How about James Maher, did you ever receive a phone call from him after the issuance of the press release?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Do you know if he made any contact with Andersen after the issuance of the press release?
A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Do you know if he contacted Sunbeam at all about the information in the press release?
A. I don't know.
Q. How about William Nesbitt of MAFCO, did you ever receive a phone call, or did he contact you about the information in the press release?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if he contacted Andersen about any of the information in the press release?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know if he contacted Sunbeam about any of the information in the press release?
A. I have no knowledge.
Q. Joseph Paige of Coleman, did he ever contact you about information in the press release?
A. Can we just condense all of these?
Q. I just want to make sure --
A. Why don't you just name -- why don't you just give me all the names and the question you want, and I can take them all in one.
Q. Sure. The other names are Joseph Paige, Joram Salig, Paul Shapiro, Bruce Slovin, or Barry Schwartz, all of MAFCO or Coleman. Did you ever hear from any of them?
A. The only person I heard from is Paul Shapiro.

Q. Okay.
A. But, once again, I met Paul Shapiro in June of 1998, and it was not in the March time frame. The others I have not met or know of no knowledge of any questions of me, Arthur Andersen or Sunbeam.
Q. Did anyone from Ernst & Young ever contact you about the information in the press release?
A. I don't recall. I don't believe so.
Q. Do you know if anybody at Ernst & Young contacted Andersen about any information in the press release?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Do you know if anybody at Ernst & Young contacted anybody at Sunbeam about the information in the press release?
A. Well, I know that -- I know that Mr. Gluck met with Ernst & Young in connection with the transaction, but I don't know what they discussed.
Q. Do you know if --
A. It was about the time the transaction was consummated.
Q. At the end of March?
A. During the March, late March time frame.
Q. Did anyone at Credit Suisse First Boston contact you about the information in the press release?

A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Did anyone at Credit Suisse First Boston contact Andersen about the information in the press release?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Did anyone at Credit Suisse First Boston -- do you know if anybody at Credit Suisse First Boston contacted anyone at Sunbeam about the information in the press release?
A. I have no knowledge of that.
Q. Did anyone at Wachtell Lipton contact you about the information in the press release?
A. That name's familiar. I'm just trying to remember the context of it. I just -- I don't remember. I don't remember who Wachtell represented, but the name is familiar. I may have seen it on a letter or something from them.
Q. Do you know if counsel for Coleman contacted you about the information in the press release?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if counsel for Coleman contacted Andersen about the information in the press release?
A. Not that I'm aware of.
Q. Do you know if counsel for Coleman contacted

Sunbeam about the information in the press release?
A. I don't know that. I can't count that one way or the other. Once again, I know they met with management, but what was discussed, I don't know.
Q. After the issuance of the press release did anyone from Coleman call you and ask to talk to you about the sales figures for 1998?
A. Other than the conversation?
Q. Other than what conversation?
A. At the printers? Did you say Coleman?
Q. Coleman. Was Coleman involved in the conversation at the printers?
A. No. I thought you said Morgan. No.
Q. Would you like me to repeat the question?
A. Well, I'm getting tired, so I need coffee.
Q. Let me ask you --
A. I'm starting to hear things.
Q. After the press release was issued did anybody from Coleman call you or contact you to ask you about the sales figures for 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Who?
A. It was the -- pretty much the new management team that came into Sunbeam.
Q. When was this?

A. Mr. Levin, Mr. Shapiro, Karen Clark, the whole shooting match.
Q. So that was June of 1998?
A. Um-hum, yeah.
Q. And that was the first time they asked you about the sales figures for 1998?
A. Um-hum.
Q. After the issuance of the press release -- Strike that.
Was June of 1998 the first time that you talked to anybody at Coleman about Sunbeam's business?
A. That I can recall. You know, I think I met Karen Clark prior to June because she would -- she came to Delray to meet with Mr. Gluck to talk about the transition after the transaction was completed. So I did meet Karen Clark, but that's the only name I can recall.
Q. That was after the transaction was completed?
A. That was after, probably sometime in April of '98 when I met her.
Q. Did she ask you about the sales for --
A. No.
Q. -- the first few months?
Do you know if anyone from Coleman contacted Andersen about sales for '98 after the issuance of the press release?

A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Do you know if anybody from Coleman contacted Sunbeam about sales for '98 after the issuance of the press release?
A. Once again, I know there were meetings between Sunbeam and Coleman executives. What they discussed, I don't know.
Q. Did anybody from Sunbeam ever report to you that Coleman expressed concerns about the sales figures?
A. I heard something about that, but I don't remember the details.
Q. Who did you hear that from?
A. Mr. Gluck.
Q. What did he say?
A. Basically that there were some concerns about those numbers.
Q. On the part of Coleman?
A. On the part of Coleman.
Q. And this was after the press release came out?
A. Yes.

A. No.
Q. Did he ask you to do anything about it?
A. No.
Q. Did he indicate whether any books and records of Sunbeam were going to be provided to Coleman?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Do you remember any other details of the conversation?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Morgan Stanley after the issuance of the press release about concern on Coleman's part about the sales figures for '98?
A. I don't recall any discussion with Morgan Stanley about Coleman's concern.
Q. Did anybody from Morgan Stanley indicate that they had inquiries from Coleman about the '98 sales figures?
A. Not that I'm aware of.
Q. After the issuance of the press release did anybody at Credit Suisse First Boston contact you or Andersen to talk about the '98 sales figures?

MR. JOHNSON: Isn't that asked and answered?
THE WITNESS: Not that I recall.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Do you know if anybody at Credit Suisse First Boston contacted Sunbeam about the '98 sales figures after the issuance of the press release?
A. I don't know.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Sunbeam about Coleman inquiring about the '98 sales figures?
A. Yeah, Mr. Gluck brought it up one day. I don't remember the context of the conversation, but he mentioned it to me. And I don't remember who the individual was. I don't know if it was Mr. Perelman he mentioned or, you know, somebody in the MAFCO. But it was in the context, you know, that Coleman was a little surprised when they heard the information. And that was about the gist of the conversation.
Q. Was there any concern that -- did Sunbeam -- did Mr. Gluck express any concern that Coleman would back out of the deal?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall that he did.
Q. During that conference call with Morgan Stanley, did anybody express a concern about how Coleman would react to the disclosure of the '98 sales figures?

MR. JOHNSON: That's asked and answered.
THE WITNESS: Are we talking about the due diligence conference call, or are we talking about the printers' conference call?
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Printers'.
A. Printers' conference call. I don't recall Coleman's name coming up in that conversation.
Q. Did Coleman -- was there any -- well, during the due diligence conference call, did you know about the '98 sales figures yet?
MR. MOSCATO: I think that's been asked and answered.
MR. JOHNSON: Yeah.
THE WITNESS: As I recall, I didn't.
MR. WEBSTER: Let's look at MS-32.
MR. MOSCATO: Do you want him to focus on both documents or just one document?
MR. WEBSTER: Both.

A. I've just flipped through it. I haven't read it.
Q. Are you familiar with these documents?
A. I don't know if I've seen these before or not.
Q. Do you know what they are?
A. Yeah, they're just drafts.
Q. Drafts of what?
A. The comfort letter and also the representation letter.
Q. Okay. And the first page of the document is a printout of an e-mail; is that correct?
A. It appears to be.
Q. Did you ever receive a copy of these documents that are attached to the e-mail?
A. I don't remember. I doubt it.
MR. MOSCATO: Your question meant these particular drafts of the document; is that right?
MR. WEBSTER: Yeah.

(Defendant's Exhibit #MS-47 for i.d.)
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did you get a chance to review that yet, Mr. Harlow?
A. (Nodding head).
Q. What is MS-47?
A. MS-47 is the signed representation letter from the company to Arthur Andersen.
Q. What's the date of the letter?
A. This one is dated March 23rd.
Q. Do you know why there's a representation letter dated March 16th and one dated March 23rd?
A. Well, one's probably relates to the bring-down letter when the deal was funded.
Q. And that would be the latter one?
A. That would be the latter date.
Q. Why was a second representation letter needed in connection with the bring-down letter?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. You can answer.
MR. JOHNSON: Join.

THE WITNESS: Because there is additional information in that letter typically that's different than the information in the first letter.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. What is a bring-down letter?
A. Just updates the comfort letter to the later date.
Q. Okay.
A. Just really an updating of the original comfort letter.
Q. Okay. Did you have any discussions with -- did you personally have any discussions with Morgan Stanley about the preparation of the bring-down letter?
A. I don't recall. I don't recall any discussions with them.
Q. Do you remember -- did you have any discussions with your team at Arthur Andersen about the preparation of the come-down letter -- bring down letter?
A. Yeah, we had some discussions. I don't remember the details of those discussions.
Q. Did you participate in the drafting of the bring-down letter?

A. I reviewed it.
Q. But did not draft it?
A. I did not draft it, no.
Q. Do you know who drafted it?
A. It was probably Mr. Pastrana.
Q. Okay. And did Arthur Andersen prepare this representation letter?
A. The representation letter was most likely a copy of the earlier representation letter with some modifications. And the client could have made some modifications to this letter. But most likely it's what was -- it was pretty much a draft of the first representation letter with changes in dates.
Q. Did you discuss this representation letter with Sunbeam?
A. I did not.
Q. Do you know if -- do you know who in your team discussed this representation letter with Sunbeam?
A. I don't know who, but, you know, this letter would have been delivered probably by Mr. Pastrana to Mr. Gluck, and he would have handled the finalization of that letter.
Q. Did you have any expectation about whether Coleman would ask for a copy of this representation letter?

MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: Did I have any expectation?
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Yeah.
A. I wouldn't think they'd want this letter.
Q. Why not?
A. I mean, it's not a letter that they would normally receive.
Q. Well, after -- this letter was -- is dated after the press release; is that right?
A. Which press release?
Q. The March 19th press release.
A. Yes. This date is after March 19th.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Sunbeam about Coleman requesting copies of the representation letter or bring-down letter after the press release was issued?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any discussions internally about the possibility of Coleman requesting copies of these documents after the March 19th press release was issued?
A. No, not that I can recall.
Q. Do you have an understanding as to whether Coleman had a right to these documents if they requested them?

MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
MR. JOHNSON: Join.
THE WITNESS: Well, I'm not an attorney, and I don't know what the agreements say, but I would say that Coleman did not have a right to these letters.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Why is that?
A. Because this is a letter to Arthur Andersen in a representation by Sunbeam. I just don't see why they would have a right to receive these letters. We certainly couldn't give these letters up.
Q. Okay.
MR. WEBSTER: Can I have MS-10, please.
(Defendant's Exhibit #MS-10 for i.d.)
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Have you had a chance to review the document?
A. I've reviewed it. I've not read it in detail.
Q. Do you recognize what MS-10 is?
A. Yes.
Q. What is it?
A. This is the, what's known as the bring-down comfort letter that Arthur Andersen issued to Morgan Stanley on March 25th.

Q. Do you know who requested that this document be drafted?
A. I assume it was a direct request from Morgan Stanley, but it could have been a request made through Sunbeam. I don't know.
Q. Would either a request from Morgan Stanley or through Sunbeam be sufficient for you to draft this letter?
A. Yes.
Q. Did they have to make the request in a certain way? Did it have to be written, or could an oral request generate the drafting of this letter?
A. Either way. I don't recall how they made the request.
Q. Who was entitled to receive a copy of this document?
A. Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam.
Q. Did you discuss the 1998 sales figures that are in this bring-down letter with Morgan Stanley before it was issued?
A. This particular letter I personally did not.
Q. Do you know if anybody at Andersen had discussions with Morgan Stanley about the '98 sales figures before this letter was issued?

MR. MOSCATO: I'm sorry. Read back the question.
(The record was read as requested.)
MR. MOSCATO: I object. The question is vague.
MR. WEBSTER: Yeah, I'll rephrase the question.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. This bring-down letter, Mr. Harlow, contains updated figures on the '98 sales of Sunbeam since the comfort letter; is that correct?
MR. MOSCATO: Well, I object to that.
MR. JOHNSON: Object to form.
MR. MOSCATO: I really do object to that.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. I'll rephrase it.
This letter updates the '98 sales figures that were in the comfort letter; is that correct?
MR. MOSCATO: Why don't you take the comfort letter out, Phil, and compare before you answer that question.
MR. WEBSTER: The comfort letter is MS-9.

MR. MOSCATO: Look at 6C.
THE WITNESS: Okay. What's the question?
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Does the bring-down letter update the figures on '98 sales for Sunbeam from the comfort letter?
A. No.
Q. Well, if you look at the second page of the bring-down letter at the bottom of paragraph -- well, the second page, it includes a figure there for net loss for Sunbeam for the first two months of 1998; is that correct?
MR. JOHNSON: Your question was sales.
THE WITNESS: Your question was on sales.
MR. MOSCATO: Yeah.
THE WITNESS: Not income or loss.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Well, does it update the net income loss figures from the comfort letter?
A. Yes, it does, it appears to.

A. Yes, through February 01, 1998.
Q. And the bring-down letter indicates that the net loss for Sunbeam in the first two months of 1998 was 41,190,000; is that correct?
A. Yes, that's for -- yeah, through March 1st, 1998. Another month, yes.
Q. Did you have any discussions with Sunbeam about including this figure in the bring-down letter?
A. Not that I recall. I mean, these were the -- these were the facts.
Q. Did Morgan Stanley ask any questions about the updated net loss figures in the bring-down letter?
A. I don't recall having any direct discussions with Morgan Stanley on the second letter.
Q. Do you know if they contacted anybody at Andersen about the second letter?

A. I believe Larry had some discussions, but I was not part of those discussions.
Q. Okay. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley indicate to you that they were conducting due diligence on Coleman in connection with the debenture offering?
A. I don't think I -- I can't recall, you know, someone from Morgan Stanley saying we're doing due diligence. I mean, the documents I saw indicated that they were, and the company told me they were. But any direct discussion with Morgan Stanley about their work on due diligence, I don't -- I don't remember.
Q. Did anybody at Sunbeam ever discuss with you or anybody -- Well, strike that.
Did anybody at Sunbeam ever discuss with you how you should react if Coleman or anybody representing Coleman inquired about the '98 sales figures?
A. No.
Q. Did you receive any instructions from Sunbeam about how you should respond to inquiries for financial information from Coleman?
A. No, not that I recall.
Q. Did anybody from Sunbeam ever express concern or worry that Coleman might inquire about '98 sales figures?

A. No, not to my knowledge.
Q. Did anybody from Sunbeam ever express any concern that Coleman might inquire about financial information on Sunbeam?
A. From Arthur Andersen? Not to my knowledge.
Q. Did they express any concern that Coleman would ask Sunbeam itself for such information?

Q. There's handwriting in various parts of this document. Is any of the handwriting yours?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any idea who prepared this document?
A. No. Looks like -- well, any idea. I think the typed portion was prepared by Sunbeam, someone at Sunbeam.
Q. Why do you think that?
A. Because the version I saw at some point in time I was told is prepared by Sunbeam, which was similar to this. As far as the, you know, the handwritten notes, telephone numbers, I don't know whose those are.
Q. Do you remember when you saw a version of this document?
A. It would have been sometime in 1998, but I don't remember the exact date.
Q. Do you remember whether you saw this before the March 19th press release was issued?
A. I'm pretty sure I didn't see it before that date.
Q. Do you remember whether you saw it in March of 1998?
A. I think it was -- I think I saw it after

March 1998.
Q. After March of 1998?
A. Yep. I can remember discussing items -- discussing this document but not actually physically seeing.
Q. If you look at the top of the document, there's a fax lug line up there. Do you see that?
A. Which one?
Q. Both, I think. Well, it's crossed out a little bit on 602. If you look at 603, do you see the fax line up at the top?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see where it indicates a date of March 19th, '98?
A. Yes, um-hum.
Q. Does this refresh your recollection as to when you might have seen this document?
MR. MOSCATO: Objection.
MR. JOHNSON: Join.
THE WITNESS: Not really.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Okay. All right. Mr. Harlow, I want to go back to a topic that we covered at the beginning of the deposition. You indicated that sometime in March of '98 you went to Kansas City to review Coleman work papers; is that correct?

A. No. I actually reviewed -- there were Ernst & Young work papers.
Q. Ernst & Young work papers?
A. Of the audit of the Coleman Corporation.
Q. And was Ernst & Young present?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you discuss their work papers with Ernst & Young during that meeting?
A. Yes.
Q. Who else went with you to that meeting?
A. As I testified earlier, it was Mr. Gluck and Mr. Bornstein.
Q. Nobody else from Andersen?
A. I don't recall anyone other than myself and Larry from Andersen.
Q. Okay. Did you review any records regarding Coleman sales in the first part of 1998 during that meeting?
A. Those records were not made available to us, so the answer is no.
Q. Did you request them?
A. We only requested work papers, and there was no -- well, there was no audit done subsequent to that date, so we were just told we'd have access to their audit work papers, which were actually incomplete at that point in time.

Q. Did you request that Ernst & Young or somebody from Ernst & Young be present to talk to you about the work papers?
A. They required their presence.
Q. Do you know why they did that?
A. That's just standard operating procedure for accounting firms.
Q. Okay.
A. When they allow access to their work papers.
Q. Do you know if Ernst & Young ever came to review Arthur Andersen's work papers on the Sunbeam audit?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Was there any discussion at that Kansas City meeting about conducting a similar meeting to review the Arthur Andersen work papers of the Sunbeam audit?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Gluck or anybody else at Sunbeam the possibility of Ernst & Young coming to do due diligence on your work, audit of Sunbeam?
A. We most likely did, but I just -- I don't recall precise dates and how it was discussed.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Do you recall any of the details of those discussions?
A. I don't. I had the assumption that it might occur in this type of transaction, but I -- and I think Mr. Gluck and I may have casually discussed it, but I don't -- I don't remember the details.
Q. Did Mr. Gluck express any concern about that occurring?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. What was the scope of the due diligence that you performed on Coleman in connection with the transaction?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that. You can answer.
THE WITNESS: There was really no scope defined by the company. It was basically -- basically it was dictated by the amount of time we had at Ernst & Young's offices. It was a review of their work papers and to identify issues that Sunbeam should know about that might be documented in Ernst & Young's work papers, but there was no formal scope that, you know, that certain things were going to be reviewed, and this work was going to be done.

It was merely, you know, Andersen fly out -- we actually flew out with Mr. Gluck and spent a day looking at the work papers and come up with what we can and catch a plane that night, and that's it.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Was a follow-up meeting discussed at that Kansas City meeting?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Do you know if you or anybody at Andersen ever requested an opportunity for a follow-up meeting or further review of the documents?
A. Well, I didn't request further review of the documents because we basically got everything reviewed that was made available to us that day. So I didn't -- I didn't feel another trip to flip through Ernst & Young work papers was going to do anybody any good.
Q. Okay. I want to go back to the conference call that you had with Morgan Stanley and others right after the issuance of the March 19th press release.
A. Okay. This is the --
MR. MOSCATO: I object to the --
THE WITNESS: The call at the printers or

Morgan Stanley's office or wherever?
MR. MOSCATO: Right.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Right. That's the conference call where you discussed what should be disclosed in the offering memorandum.
A. Okay.
Q. Did it -- during that conference call, did anyone from Morgan Stanley express surprise at the sales figures for the first part of 1998?
A. I don't recall surprise. I think it was -- it was more -- it seemed to be there was contentiousness about disclosure of those sales numbers in the document. I don't remember anybody saying, gee, whiz, I'm really surprised the numbers are what they are. I just don't recall that.
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley complain that the sales figures hadn't been disclosed earlier?
A. They may have, but I wasn't -- I just don't -- I don't recall them saying Arthur Andersen should have disclosed those at an earlier point in time, but...
Q. Did they complain that Sunbeam should have disclosed?
MR. MOSCATO: Wait. Were you finished with your answer?

THE WITNESS: No, I'm just trying to recollect. It's possible that there was some, you know, some disappointment in Sunbeam in not disclosing that at an earlier point in time, but I just don't recall, because most of our, most of our focus and energy was, okay, it is what it is; let's get it documented in the document as professionals should recommend to their clients. That's where we were coming from.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. And that conference call was the first time that you talked to Morgan Stanley -- anybody at Morgan Stanley about the '98 sales figures?
A. Well, it was the second time I talked to Morgan Stanley, but the first time that I recall talking to them about the year-to-date '98 sales.
Q. The first time you talked to them was the due diligence call?
A. That was the -- yeah, the earlier discussion on accounting issues.
Q. And that was before you knew about the '98 sales figures?

A. That's right.
Q. Did -- during that March 19th or -- March 19th conference call with Morgan Stanley, did anybody discuss the possibility of a lawsuit or litigation in connection with disclosure?
A. Yeah, I think, I believe we brought it up that there's potential for litigation if you don't disclose this information.
Q. Litigation by whom?
A. Litigation by the parties harmed as a result of not knowing that information.
Q. Did you suggest who might sue?
A. No. I don't recall. I don't recall the detailed discussion, but --
Q. What else was said about the possibility of litigation?
A. I mean, I don't remember. We had -- we had attorneys on the call, and they were supposedly the experts on litigation, so they didn't want to hear us.
Q. Who was it that first alerted you to the '98 sales figures for Sunbeam?
MR. JOHNSON: I'm going to object to form.
THE WITNESS: I assume you're asking about the sales figures through first month of January.

BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Yes.
A. First month of 1998. It would have been either Mr. Bornstein or Mr. Pastrana. I don't remember which one. Most likely Mr. Bornstein.
Q. How did they get in touch with you? Were they a phone call?
A. Probably a phone call because we were in three separate offices. Mr. Bornstein was in our West Palm Beach office; Mr. Pastrana was based in our Miami office; and I ran the Fort Lauderdale office, so a lot of our conversation on work was over the phone as opposed to face to face.
Q. And that was sometime after the March 12th due diligence call?
A. Yeah, that would have been most likely after, yeah.
Q. Was it before the draft comfort letter was sent to Morgan Stanley?
A. It would have been about the time because I saw the draft about the same time it was sent to Morgan Stanley.
Q. Had you talked to Mr. Bornstein about the sales figures before you saw the draft comfort letter?
A. I don't recall. I mean, I think -- we had a discussion about the same time I got them. He may have alerted that they were coming and, you know, don't be -- don't be surprised when you see it or something to that effect. But it was -- it was very close to, if he talked to me before I got it, it was very close to the time I received it. And it might have been a case where he was just notifying me.

Q. You've testified numerous times in the past about your work for Sunbeam; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And have you had a chance to review all of the transcripts that were created?
A. Absolutely not. I don't have that kind of time to waste.
Q. Have you reviewed any of the transcripts?
A. Very little. Very little.
Q. In each of those times that you were deposed did you make an effort to be truthful and accurate if all of your answers?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Do you have any reason to doubt that any of the answers you gave in those previous depositions were inaccurate?
MR. JOHNSON: Object to the form.
MR. MOSCATO: I object. You can answer.

THE WITNESS: In reviewing some of the transcripts, yeah, there are some inaccuracies in those transcripts.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. I thought you said you haven't. You have reviewed some of the transcripts?
A. I said in reviewing some -- I haven't -- I haven't reviewed a lot of those transcripts, but I've got a pile of transcripts that are probably this high (indicating) on testimony on Sunbeam. And I have gone back in some cases prior to other depositions and found errors in those transcripts.
Q. Did you alert counsel to any of the errors that you found in the transcripts?
A. In some cases, I have.
Q. Do you know if Errata sheets were filled out for any of those transcripts?
A. I don't know what an Errata sheet is.
Q. Do you know if a sheet was filled out indicating what the errors were that you found in those transcripts?
A. I have no idea. A lot of that litigation is dead litigation and SEC stuff which has been settled, so I'm not going to worry about it now.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Other than those errors that you found, do you have any reason to believe that the transcripts of your previous testimony were inaccurate in any way?
MR. MOSCATO: I object. I don't understand the question.
MR. JOHNSON: Join.
THE WITNESS: I don't know how to answer that. I'd have to identify all the errors, but... Let me see, yeah, it's good testimony as long as I could go through and identify any errors, make those be known.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Your counsel has never asked you to go through the transcripts to find errors?
A. No.
MR. MOSCATO: You know, well, I object to that. That's attorney-client privilege. I'd ask that the answer be stricken.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Do you remember how far in advance of March 19th the draft comfort letter was created?
A. No.
Q. Just sometime between March 12th and

March 19th?
A. Um-hum. I mean, it was five years ago. No, I don't remember exactly what date it was prepared.
Q. Do you know if you saw the first draft of the draft comfort letter?
A. I don't know that. Probably didn't see it.
Q. Okay.
MR. WEBSTER: That's all the questions I have.
MR. JOHNSON: I've just got a couple of questions. Now, Mr. Harlow --
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Did you want to get a microphone?
MR. JOHNSON: Yeah, I did. Thanks.
THE WITNESS: We need to turn the heat back up so he won't talk too long.
MR. JOHNSON: What's that?
THE WITNESS: We need to turn the heat back up so you won't have too many questions.
CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. I think I just have a few minutes of questions. Mr. Webster asked you about the printer conference call or the Morgan Stanley conference call on several occasions, and I want to explore that testimony a little bit.

Is it your testimony that you preferred a disclosure of the net sales information through the first two months of 1998?
A. We preferred disclosure of a level of sales through the date in which was, you know, the effective date -- not effective date but the final printing date on the offering memorandum.
Q. So sales through some point in March of 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And why did you or Andersen have that preference?
A. Well, it was our feeling that by doing so, it would give the reader of that document an idea as to the magnitude and the gap between the sales as of March 16th or whatever the date was as compared to a prior period.
Q. Did you have any concern that the sales situation was inconsistent with the picture of Sunbeam as a turned-around company?
MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
MR. WEBSTER: Object.
THE WITNESS: I guess it depends on which way you're turning it around, but, I mean, obviously the thought entered my mind, you know, that, you know, for the first two months we really didn't have a company that looked like it was really going and blowing, you know, as purported by the chairman of the company.

BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did you -- didn't you testify to Mr. Webster that you discussed bill and hold transactions with Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't believe that question came up.
Q. Then I'll ask it.
A. I believe -- I believe he had asked me about the early buy program.
Q. Well, let me --
A. And I indicated that this been disclosed in the document.
Q. Okay. How about bill and hold in particular, did you ever discuss with Morgan Stanley that some people engaged in bill and hold sales?
A. I believe that was discussed in the due diligence conference call on the -- whatever date that was, March 10th or --
Q. 12th?
A. -- 11th or 12th or 13th or whatever.

018550

Q. And your view was that bill and hold was a lousy business practice; is that correct?
MR. MOSCATO: I object.
MR. WEBSTER: Objection.
THE WITNESS: I've testified to that in the past. I'm not a proponent of bill and hold transactions, but doesn't mean they're illegal or anything like that.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Putting aside the accounting issues associated with it, your view at the time and today is that it's not a good business practice to engage in bill and hold sales?
MR. MOSCATO: I'll object to that.
THE WITNESS: Well, you know, there could be in some industries it is an accepted practice, a common practice. You know, I think you can go back and look at my previous testimony. It relates to, you know, this particular situation ultimately had a harmful effect on the company.
And, you know, I think my testimony, my previous testimony really is based on hindsight to see what happened as a result of bill and hold, not necessarily knowing what I know today back in January of 1998 or February '98 or March '98. But today I would say bill and hold in this particular situation was not a good idea, not a good business practice.

BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. Did anyone from Morgan Stanley ask your opinion about bill and hold as a business practice?
A. I don't recall.
Q. You don't recall that happening?
A. I don't recall that question being asked.
Q. Let me show you what's been previously marked as Exhibit 12, see if you can identify this for me. I'm more of an environmentalist than Mr. Webster, so I don't have copies for everybody, but I think all the parties should have one.
A. Do you need to mark this?
Q. It's been marked already.
I wonder if you could identify Exhibit 12, CPH Exhibit 12 for me, Mr. Harlow.
A. Okay. I'm sorry. Your question again?
Q. I just wonder if you can identify that for me.
A. This is a letter addressed to Arthur Andersen specifically to my attention dated March 11th from Morgan Stanley requesting a comfort letter.

Q. Did you receive this document on or about March 11th?
A. I assume I did. I just -- it's dated March 11th. I'm sure I got it about that time.
Q. Okay. In the middle of the second paragraph of see page Exhibit 12, Morgan Stanley indicates that it will be engaged in a review process substantially consistent with the due diligence review process that Morgan Stanley would perform if the placement of securities were being registered under the 33 Act. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did that portion of this letter have any significance to you?
A. Well, when I see that, I -- you know, my reaction is that Morgan Stanley is going to be doing a lot of work to make sure that this complies with SEC rules and regulations, and there would be a significant amount of due diligence in connection with it.
Q. Let me give out what's been marked previously as CPH Exhibit 36.
MR. MOSCATO: Where do you want this to go, right here?

MR. JOHNSON: Right there is fine. One for the witness there.
BY MR. JOHNSON:
Q. In particular, Mr. Harlow, I want you to have a look at the press release that is contained on the last four pages of Exhibit 36.
A. Do you want me to read the entire document?
Q. If you'd just be good enough to skim it. Feel free to study it more carefully if my questions call for that.
A. All right.
Q. This is the April 3 press release relating to Sunbeam's first quarter '98 sales; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. Did you review this press release after it was issued?
A. I believe I saw this after, after it was released by the company.
Q. Did you have any reaction to this news?
A. I've got a lot of testimony on this one. I was -- you know, it was like no big surprise. But I think I called one of their in-house attorneys trying to rub their nose in it a little bit.
Q. When you say it was no big surprise, that's because you were of the view that the company would

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

73d5d8ca-ab2c-4e77-8ead-53fb3edfdff
16div-023924

not meet first quarter sales numbers?
A. I was skeptical. As I testified earlier, I was skeptical at the company's ability to meet their 1997 first quarter sales levels based on what they had to do in the last ten days of the month of March.
Q. And you turned out to be right?
A. Yeah. I'm not real happy about that, but I did. I was right.
Q. And you say you called one of the Sunbeam in-house lawyers, rubbed their nose in it. Is that Janet Kelley?
A. Yes.
Q. Did she --
A. And later Mr. Fannin.
Q. When you say you rubbed their nose in it, can you tell me what you mean by that?
A. Oh, I just -- I'm not a very subtle person, but I tried to be subtle and just let them know that the wrong decision was made in their previous press release.
Q. And that was a decision that essentially ignored Andersen's concerns?
A. Yes.
MR. JOHNSON: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Just a couple follow-ups. That press release, the March 19th press release was issued before you talked to Morgan Stanley about the '98 sales figures; is that correct?
MR. MOSCATO: You being Phil Harlow personally?
MR. WEBSTER: Phil Harlow.
THE WITNESS: I mean. What's the 16th (sic) date?
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. The 19th is the date of the press release I'm talking about.
A. The 19th was the date.
Q. My question is, the March 19th press release was issued before you ever talked to Morgan Stanley about the '98 sales figures; is that correct?
A. Before I personally did, as I recall. As I testified earlier, I think I talked to Morgan Stanley the day, it was later in the day, the day that press release was released.
Q. Right. Mr. -- you indicated a moment ago, I believe, that you preferred disclosure of the '98 net sales info through the date of the offering memorandum in the offering memorandum; is that correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. Did you express that preference to Morgan Stanley?
A. As I testified earlier today, I did.
Q. Had you ever disclosed that kind of detail -- or strike that.
Are you aware of that level of detail ever being disclosed in a prior offering memorandum in a transaction you were associated with?
MR. MOSCATO: I object.
MR. JOHNSON: Join.
THE WITNESS: I've seen a lot of things disclosed over the years. You know, I didn't -- I had not seen precisely that kind of disclosure in an offering memorandum.
MR. WEBSTER: Thank you.
MR. MOSCATO: Are you finished with your answer?
THE WITNESS: Yeah, that's good enough.
MR. MOSCATO: Okay.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did you ever talk to Morgan Stanley about disclosing the bill and hold practice in the offering memorandum?

A. I don't recall. I think it was disclosed in the offering memorandum.
Q. The CPH Exhibit 36, the press release --
A. Which press release?
MR. MOSCATO: It would be the April 3 press release.
THE WITNESS: April 3.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. April 3rd. April 3rd press release indicated that the company expected first quarter sales for '98 to be approximately five percent below '97's first quarter sales; is that correct?
A. That's what it says, that's correct.
Q. Was that degree of shortfall about what you had expected?
MR. MOSCATO: I object.
MR. JOHNSON: Join.
THE WITNESS: I had not calculated a shortfall percentage to be honest.
BY MR. WEBSTER:
Q. Did you have any expectation about the magnitude of the shortfall?
A. I -- no, I had not targeted a number.
Q. Did it surprise you that they had come within five percent of '97's first quarter sales?

MR. MOSCATO: I object.
THE WITNESS: No, I wouldn't say that surprised me. I mean, I thought it was going to be below, whether it's five percent or seven percent, not surprising.
MR. WEBSTER: That's all the questions I have.

RECROSS EXAMINATION

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. One more follow-up. You indicated, Mr. Harlow, that the bill and hold sales were disclosed in the offering memorandum; is that correct?

A. Well, I can't remember. I mean, it's been years since I looked at the document. I think the financial statements if they're not a part of it are incorporated by reference. And in the financial statements, 1997 -- or, no -- yeah, 1997 financial statements they were disclosed.

Q. That's the 10-K for 1997?

A. Yes.

Q. And you've previously testified, haven't you, that the disclosure of the risks associated with bill and hold in the '97 10-K was not sufficient, haven't you?

MR. MOSCATO: I object to that.
THE WITNESS: Well, I think my -- you know, where I am on bill and hold and disclosure on that, you know, we had discussed with the company to have additional disclosures. And originally the company was not going to put anything relating to bill and hold transactions in the financial statements, and we insisted that that be done.
And they ultimately put in a discussion of bill and hold and also quantified the amount of bill and hold in the footnotes to the financial statements. There was also a discussion in the MDMA section. You know, is it adequate or isn't adequate? I don't know. I can't say.

BY MR. JOHNSON:

Q. On your June 8th, 1999 testimony, Mr. Lipman (phonetic) reviewed the various disclosures in the 10-K for 1997 at pages 157 through 160 relating to bill and hold.

A. What year was that testimony?

Q. The testimony was 1999.

A. 1999.

Q. June of 1999. You were then asked the question, "Now in your view is this sufficient disclosure of the risks of, well, I'll say the negative impact of future financial performance?"
Answer, "No, I think I would suggest better wording than this."
Do you recall giving that testimony?
THE WITNESS: I don't --
MR. MOSCATO: I object.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall.
MR. MOSCATO: Well, let me finish. I object. I believe that is out of context. Go ahead.
THE WITNESS: Well, it is out of -- clearly out of context, but, I mean --
MR. MOSCATO: The question is do you recall the testimony, yes or no.
THE WITNESS: Vaguely. I mean, you know, I testified 15 days up there. To remember everything I said would be next to impossible.
MR. MOSCATO: Are you finished?
MR. JOHNSON: I'm finished, yes.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. WEBSTER:

Q. To be clear, Mr. Harlow, did you ever recommend to Morgan Stanley that the offering memorandum should have more detailed disclosure regarding bill and hold than was in the 10-K?

A. I don't recall. I don't recall.

MR. MOSCATO: Thank you, everybody.
MR. WEBSTER: Thank you.

Q. Please take a moment and look at it, if you choose, and tell me if that is, indeed, the agreement and plan of merger among Sunbeam Corporation, Camper (phonetic) Acquisition Corporation, and The Coleman Company, dated as of February 27th.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I object to the lack of foundation.

Q. You can answer.

A. It states that it is.

Q. Is this the document that you approved -- excuse me -- is this a copy of the document that you approved as a member of the board of directors at the meeting of February 27th, 1998?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.

A. It appears to be, (indicating).

Q. Now, at the meeting of February 27th, 1998 of the board of directors of The Coleman Company, you were present; correct?

Q. You voted for the merger, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see the merger agreement before you voted for the merger?

A. I don't recall.

Q. You don't even want to take a moment to look at it --

A. I have.

Q. -- and see --

A. I have.

Q. Okay.

A. I have flipped through every page, and I don't recall reading any specific page at the time, in February 1998.

Q. Well, did you read any portion of it after February 27th, 1998, after your board voted to approve the merger?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Well, you voted for the merger on behalf of the public shareholders of The Coleman Company, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, there were two board meetings at which the merger was discussed; correct?

A. To the best of my recollection, yes.

Q. The first meeting was February 25th of 1998; correct?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. I show you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Deposition Exhibit 88, sir.

MR. BEMIS: Do you need another copy, Mr. Markowski?

MR. MARKOWSKI: (Nodding.)

Q. I think I gave you two copies, sir. Let me just see if I did that. I did, I'm sorry.

Now, do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 88 in front of you, Mr. Slovin?

A. Yes, I do -- well -- yes, I did do.

Q. Okay. Now, sir, would you confirm for me, sir, that these are -- as a director of the company, that these are a true and correct copy of the minutes of the board of directors of The Coleman Company, Inc. held on February 25th, 1998 at 4 p.m.?

A. I believe they are.

Q. And if you will turn to the last page of the minutes, sir, will you confirm for me, sir, that the minutes reflect that the meeting was adjourned at 5:30 p.m. that date?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Yes, I can confirm that based upon the comment on page 6 of these minutes.

Q. So the very first meeting in which the Coleman/Sunbeam merger was discussed at a board of directors meeting of the Coleman Corporation lasted one-and-a-half hours, according to the minutes; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any reason to dispute that that is the length of that board meeting, sir, based on the minutes that have been presented to you here this morning?

A. No.

Q. And just to confirm -- withdrawn.

Now, let me show you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 119.

Q. Do you have Plaintiff's -- excuse me, "Plaintiff's" -- do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 119 in front of you, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. This, sir, is a copy of a court document filed by Coleman (Parent) Holdings in the lawsuit that was brought against Arthur Andersen, LLP and Mr. Philip E. Harlow in the Circuit Court for Palm Beach County, Florida, as you will see on the caption.

Do you see that, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. And you at one time were the president of (Parent) -- of -- excuse me, of Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc.; were you not?

A. Which company are you referring to?

Q. Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., you were the president of that company at one time.

A. I don't have a specific recollection of what title I carried at the time.

Q. Well, if -- even if you don't have a specific recollection at a point in time you were president at one time, were you not, sir?

A. You are suggesting I was president of a holding company, that held --

Q. No.

A. -- Coleman?

Q. I am suggesting -- I am asking you, really, is what I am asking you, at one time you were the president of Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., the Plaintiff in the lawsuit that's captioned in the documents in front of you.

A. I actually don't remember --

Q. But you did hold some title in the company.
A. I don't recall precisely what title.
Q. No, no, that's not my question. You recall holding a title. If you don't --
A. I don't recall holding a title specifically^.
Q. Well, let me ask you, sir, to turn to page 4 of the filing here by Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. and turn to paragraph 7, which is on page 4, and tell me when you are there; page 4, paragraph 7.
A. (Pause.)
I have read that paragraph.
Q. All right, sir.
Directing your attention to the third sentence, beginning: "This case involves a transaction". Do you see that?
A. Yes.

Q. The transaction referred to in this document is the Sunbeam/Coleman -- Coleman merger, and I will ask you, sir, do you agree that the lawyer's statement on behalf of Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. that the transaction was, quote, "negotiated at arm's-length by two large sophisticated and public-traded corporations"?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you agree with the next sentence, sir, that: "Each side was represented by prominent highly-paid advisors, Morgan Stanley, Skadden Arps, and Anderson for Sunbeam"? Do you agree with that?
A. Yes.
Q. And would you agree with the next portion of the sentence, "and CS Boston and Wachtell, Lipton for The Coleman Company"?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you -- would you agree with the following sentence: "Sunbeam conducted due diligence of The Coleman Company just like any third-party buyer would do"?

A. Yes.
Q. Would you agree with me, sir, that The Coleman Company also conducted due diligence of Sunbeam like any buyer or buyer would do?
A. In the particular circumstances of this transaction, yes.
Q. Thank you. You can set that aside. You can hand it back to me. Thank you.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, why don't we just take one second and let you mark these, initial these before I forget, and I will try to remember to let you do that as we move along.
(Discussion off the record.)
Q. Now, I would like now to ask you to direct your attention back to the board of directors meetings on February 27th and February 25th, 1998 of The Coleman Company, Inc.

Are you there, sir, are you thinking, are you with me at that time frame?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. The Coleman Company at -- board of directors, was represented by Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's a New York City law firm?
A. Yes.
Q. A prominent New York City law firm?
A. Yes.
Q. And The Coleman Company was also represented by an investment banking firm; right?
A. Yes.
Q. And that investment banking firm was Credit Suisse First Boston; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And, indeed, Credit Suisse First Boston was the exclusive financial advisor to The Coleman Company in the transaction; was it not, sir?

A. That's my belief, that they were.

Q. And, in addition, The Coleman Company, Inc. had auditors; did it not?

A. Yes.

Q. And your auditors were -- excuse me, The Coleman Company's auditors were Ernst & Young, LLP at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. And those auditors were, indeed, under the terms of the merger agreement, supposed to provide a comfort letter to Sunbeam with regard to the financial statements of The Coleman Company as part of the merger, were they not, sir?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to lack of foundation.

A. I have no specific recollection of that.

Q. I will ask you to look at Plaintiff's Exhibit 117. Turn to Section 7.3 A on page 29. And read that paragraph, please.

Confidential - Slovin

A. Which paragraph are you referring to?

Q. Paragraph 7.3, titled Comfort letter, sub-paragraph A.

A. Yes. (Pause.)

I have read the 7.3.

Q. My question was, sir, Arthur -- excuse me, Ernst & Young L.L.P., the accountants for The Coleman Company, Inc., were to provide a comfort letter to Laser, which is a subsidiary of the -- a subsidiary of Sunbeam in connection with the merger pursuant to this paragraph of the merger agreement; correct?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

Are you asking him whether he recalls that --

MR. BEMIS: You can just object to the form of the question --

MR. MARKOWSKI: I want to know if you are asking him if he recalls it or whether you are asking him to read this and interpret this. I have a different objection --

MR. BEMIS: I heard your objection.

He can answer the question.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object, then.

MR. BEMIS: You did, you said "object to form".

MR. MARKOWSKI: Excuse me. I am going to object on the grounds that it is a lack of foundation to the extent you are calling for him to interpret it, I object, the document speaks for itself.

MR. BEMIS: I have never heard of talking documents, but let's get an answer to the question.

A. That's how I interpret the reading of 7.3 sub A.

Q. And that's how you would have interpreted it, then, when you reviewed and approved the merger agreement at the board of directors meeting on February 27th, 1998 as a fiduciary to the shareholders; correct?

Confidential - Slovin

A. I imagine that's so.

Q. All right.

At the board meeting, on February 27th of 1998, did Credit Suisse First Boston provide a fairness opinion to the board of directors of The Coleman Company?

A. My recollection is that they did, yes.

Q. Did you see it and was it given in writing or orally?

A. I think both.

Q. Let me show you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley 120.

A. Excuse me, you were talking about Credit Suisse or Morgan Stanley.

Q. Credit Suisse First Boston.

A. Yes, I have it.

Q. I am going to ask the court reporter to mark that, and I will just have a couple questions for you.

Q. I hand you now what I have had marked as Morgan Stanley 120.

Do you have that in front of you, sir?

A. I do.

Q. And can you please confirm for me, sir, that this is the written fairness opinion that was provided to the board of directors of The Coleman Company, Inc. on February 27th, 1998 --

A. It appears to be that.

Q. And this was provided by your exclusive financial advisor, Credit Suisse First Boston Corporation; correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. All right. You may set that aside for now.

At the board of directors meeting of February 27th, 1998, did you, that is, as a director of The Coleman

Company, receive a fairness opinion from Morgan Stanley & Company, Incorporated?

A. I actually don't recall.

Q. You don't recall one way or the other?

A. Yes.

Q. Well, in preparation for your deposition, did you see a Morgan Stanley & Company, Incorporated fairness opinion --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection.

Q. -- directed to the board of directors of The Coleman Company?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object, instruct the witness not to answer, calls for work product.

(DIRECTION NOT TO ANSWER.)

Do you want to ask him whether he has ever seen one --

MR. BEMIS: Well, that may be the next question. I don't need your assistance in telling me what questions --

MR. MARKOWSKI: I instruct him not to answer that.

I made myself clear with respect to asking questions about what he reviewed with me, so why you ask that question I don't understand.

Q. Have you ever seen a fairness opinion prepared by Morgan Stanley & Company, Incorporated addressed to the board of directors of The Coleman Company, Inc.?

A. I have no specific recollection one way or another of seeing that.

Q. Now, am I correct, sir, that the only fairness opinion that was ever provided to The Coleman Company, Inc. is the document that you have in front of you as Morgan Stanley 120?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Would you read the question back, please.

MR. BEMIS: Let me rephrase the question.

Q. Am I correct that the only written fairness opinion that was provided to The Coleman Company by Credit Suisse

First Boston is Plaintiff's -- excuse me, Morgan Stanley Exhibit 120?

A. I do not know.

Q. You don't recall one way or the other?

A. I do not recall if there were other written documents within the fairness opinion. A legend that was submitted to the board of directors.

Q. Did you say "legend"?

A. It's an awkward word.

The -- I don't know if I saw any other fairness opinions written by First Boston.

Q. Other than MS 120 that is in front of you.

A. That is my recollection, yes.

Q. Now, am I correct, sir, that you, as a member of the board of directors of The Coleman Company, voted to approve the agreement and plan of merger as fair?

A. Yes.

Q. And did the other -- were there any dissenting directors, to your

A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. All right. When you voted as a director that the agreement and plan of merger was fair, what did you understand "fair" to mean?
A. Reasonable, economic relationships.
Q. So it was fair to the -- were you finished?
A. Yes.
Q. Good, I didn't mean to interrupt you. Sometimes that happens. I will try not to do that.
So, in your view, the merger agreement, which we marked as Morgan Stanley 117, it was fair to the public shareholders of The Coleman Company; correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are asking him for his view at the time?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, as a director when he voted on it.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I just wanted to know if you are asking him today or when he voted on it.

MR. BEMIS: I said -- I think I said when he voted, but if you are confused I will ask him again.
A. No, you don't have to ask again.
Q. Okay.
A. Yes, I thought it was fair to the public shareholders.
Q. And you thought that the merger agreement was fair to Coleman Worldwide Corporation?
A. Yes.
Q. By the way, who -- what entity held the shares of The Coleman Company that were owned by Mr. Perelman's affiliates?
A. I am not certain.
Q. Well, the Plaintiff in one of these cases is Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. Did you assume the transaction as a director on February 27th was fair to Coleman (Parent) Holdings?
A. Yes.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. And there is another entity that in the chain that we will get to, a company called CLN Holdings, Inc. Are you familiar with that?
A. No.
Q. You are not familiar with it?
A. No.
Q. Now, let me ask you a couple of specific questions about the company Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, which is one of the parties to the case, that's its full name, and I will refer to them right now as "Morgan Stanley" just to keep the questions a little shorter. Is that okay with you?
A. Perfectly okay with me.

THE WITNESS: So I should not answer.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Right.

THE WITNESS: I thought I could answer, even if you object.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Not if I instruct you. Questions he has relating to the materials we reviewed yesterday or discussions we had yesterday, those are privileged communications and he's not entitled to know that.

THE WITNESS: Very good.

Q. Now, as a -- as a member of the board of directors, and having reviewed and approved Morgan Stanley 117, which is the merger and acquisition agreement, you were aware as a director, were you not, sir, that The Coleman Company had access to Sunbeam's books and records before the merger agreement was approved; correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
Q. You may answer.
A. I believe so.
Q. And what steps did -- withdrawn.
MR. BEMIS: Would you please mark this as Morgan Stanley 210, please.
(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 210, press release issued by Sunbeam, marked for identification.)
Q. Sir, do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 210 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. For the record, this is a press release issued by Sunbeam. And I would ask you to please take a moment to read it and let me know when you are finished.

A. (Pause.)
I have read it.
Q. Okay. Have you seen this press release before today, sir?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. And would you please tell me when you first saw it?
A. My recollection is that I saw it when it was issued and I saw it again with counsel.
Q. So when you say when it was first issued, you are referring to March 19th of 1998?
A. The date that appears on this document someplace.
Q. And that is March 19th, 1998; correct?
A. It is.
Q. Now, sir, when you saw the press release, you were still -- were you still a director of The Coleman Company?

Q. Did you have a conversation when you contacted this person?

A. I believe I did, these persons or person or persons, I don't recall if I had one or many conversations with one or more than one person, but I do believe I had some conversation concerning this release.

Q. I would like to limit myself now to one time period, and that would be March 19th up until the closing of March 30th of 1998.

Are you with me on the time period now?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, just within that time period, did you discuss the press release with anyone on the board of directors of The Coleman Company?

A. I think I did.

Q. Now, what did you -- what did you say to the person that you talked to or persons that you talked to and what did they say to you?

Confidential - Slovin

A. I don't have specific recollection.

Q. Do you have general recollections?

A. Yeah -- yes.

Q. What are your general recollections?

A. Just that the (indicating) sales were reported to be off slightly and that the company attributed that result to a reorganization of some customer inventories, but that the company expected year results to equal what their predictions were on a sales basis.

Q. And as a consequence -- withdrawn. As a result of these conversations, as you have generally related to them, did the board of directors of The Coleman Company convene any meetings between March 19th and the closing to reconsider the merger agreement?

A. Not to my recollection.

Q. To your -- strike that. Between March 19th and March 30th, 1998, were there any further meetings of the board of directors to discuss the merger agreement?

A. I do not have such a recollection.

Q. Did -- after receiving the press release of March 19th, 1998, did any member of the board of directors request a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen concerning the financial statements of Sunbeam Corporation?

A. I have no such knowledge.

Q. Please turn to Morgan Stanley Exhibit 117 again, if you would, sir. It's in front of you. And look at paragraph 7.2 -- excuse me, 7.3 entitled Comfort letters, and sub-paragraph B, and tell me when you are there.

A. Sub-paragraph B?

Q. Yes, sir, it's on page 30. And tell me when you are there.

A. (Pause.)

Yes, I have read it.

Q. Sir, following the press release of March 19th, 1998, did anyone who was a director, now of The Coleman Company, make any request of officers or employees, if you will, of The Coleman Company, to have delivered to it a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen, LLP as set forth in sub-paragraph 7.2 B of the merger agreement?

A. I don't have any such recollection.

Q. When you had these informal conversations -- withdrawn. When you had your conversations with your other directors, between March 19th and when the press release was issued and the closing on March 30th, in the course of those discussions, did any of the directors say words to the effect: Gentlemen, under the terms of the merger agreement, we are entitled to receive from Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen, a comfort letter? Did anyone say that?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you think in light of the March 19th press release of 1998 it would have been a good idea for the directors to do that, given their fiduciary duties to the public shareholders?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

A. I don't know that they did it or didn't do it.

There were people who were in our organization who were more intimately involved, and they may have done what you are suggesting, I do not know.

Q. Who were --

A. I don't remember.

Q. I interrupted, I apologize.

Who would be the person in the organization, that is, The Coleman Company, you are referring to, who would be intimately familiar with this topic and would have had the responsibility for requesting the comfort letter from Arthur Andersen that they were -- that Sunbeam was obligated to request pursuant to paragraph 7.2 B of the merger agreement,

Exhibit MS 117?

A. Jerry Levin was intimately involved, Jim Maher, our lawyers, and our accountants and our investment banking advisors, those are the people who were intimately involved with this transaction.

Q. Okay, you can set 117 aside for now, sir.

When you acted as a member of the board of directors of The Coleman Company, in 1998, approving the merger, you were acting as a business person and not as an attorney; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You did not -- strike that.

At any point when you were a director of The Coleman Company, did you render legal advice to the company as a lawyer?

A. No.

MR. BEMIS: Mr. Markowski?

Q. Mr. Slovin, do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 121 in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. Is this a copy of your calendar, if you will, plus a printout of a monthly calendar that you kept in the -- 1997 and 1998 for the months indicated on the document?

A. It appears to be that.

Q. Are there any -- well, let me ask you another question.

In 1997 and 1998, did you personally keep this calendar which we have marked as Morgan Stanley 121?

A. My secretary would have.

Q. May I call it your "calendar", is that fair enough, or do you want to call it something else?

Confidential - Slovin

A. You can call it my "calendar", if you wish.

Q. Okay. So your secretary kept your appointments and meetings for you on this electronic calendar?

A. It appears she did.

Q. Well, you didn't keep it yourself, I take it?

A. No.

Q. Did you provide this calendar to your legal counsel in this case pursuant to a request for production of documents?

A. I imagine we did.

Q. Do you have any recollection of when you did it?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any recollection of why only the months of December of 1997 and February of 1998 were produced?

A. No.

Q. And you have --

MR. MARKOWSKI: I'm sorry, you said only December and February?

MR. BEMIS: It's December and February, that's the only two months I see. Maybe I made a mistake.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I have got January in my copy.
MR. BEMIS: You know what? I don't have a January front page for it, and that's what confused me. Let me rephrase the question.
Q. On the daily planner section, there is just -- there are two dates, December 9th and February 27th. Do you see that? Just take a look at that real quick for us.
A. Yes.
Q. Are those the only two dates that you had on your daily planner any references to The Coleman Company?
A. I do not recall.
Q. Do you have -- strike that. Are there any other meetings during the months of December 1997, January and February of 1998 that involve The Coleman Company that are not on your calendars?
A. I do not remember.

Page 58

Q. Was your calendar generally accurate, that was kept by your secretary?
A. I think so.
Q. Okay. Well, one thing that strikes me when looking at your calendar, is you did have a board meeting on February 27th -- excuse me, February 25th of 1998 at 4 p.m., and we marked that as -- the minutes of that, as MS 88, which you have in the pile. Do you recall that?
A. Do I recall what?
Q. Do you recall that you had a board meeting of The Coleman Company on February 25th of 1998.
A. Yes.
Q. And when I look at your cal-- first of all, you don't have a day planner for that date and you also don't have it on your monthly grid for February, that is, the meeting of the board of directors.
Do you see that?
A. Yes -- yes.
Q. Was the February 25th, 1998 board meeting called without any prior advance notice to you?

A. I have no recollection of that.
Q. Do you have any explanation of why it would not appear on your calendar under the date February 25th?
A. No.
Q. Other than the calendar that we have a portion of in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 121, did you keep any other type of calendar in 1997 and 1998?
A. I had a big red book, (indicating) --
Q. Like a day planner?
A. Yeah, but I think (indicating) this was supposed to reflect what was in the book. This was my secretary's product, and I would jot down from time to time things to do as well as appointments to be met.
Q. And what -- when you say "a big red book", it had a red cover on it; right?
A. Right.
Q. I have seen those, a "day planner" book lawyers call them. Do you still have those?

A. Do I have it back in '97 and '98? I don't recall, I might.
Q. When you were asked to produce documents in this case, did you look -- did you produce those red books to the attorneys?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. Do you have any current plans to, if you do have the 1997/1998 day planners still in existence, do you have any current plans to dispose of them?
A. I haven't thought about that in a while.
Q. Okay.
MR. BEMIS: I would make a formal request of counsel, if such documents exist that they at least not be destroyed until we have an opportunity to see whether they are subject to production. I am not suggesting you would do that, I am just, for the record, making a

(REQUEST.)

Q. In addition to your day -- your red book day planner -- I, by the way, gave those up a long time ago, but I do remember them, and what your secretary kept, did you keep any other type of record of your appointments, business or personal?

A. No.

Q. Nothing like on a home computer, calendar, or something like that?

A. No.

Q. Did you use electronic mail in 1997 and 1998 in your business?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. When did you first start using it?

A. A few years ago, I think.

Q. Was it after you -- withdrawn. Did you use it while you worked for any of Mr. Perelman's companies?

A. I don't think so.

A. I don't see the parentheses.

The title that is reflected on page 3 under my name is Coleman Holdings and Coleman Worldwide, that's my recollection as to those two companies.
MR. MARKOWSKI: If you are reading from the document, the reference is to your position as a director.
A. As a director, it was Coleman Worldwide and Coleman Holdings.
Q. Let's just focus on my question, rather than reading the document. You read the document, if you could, to yourself and it will help the record be a little clearer and just answer the best that you can. If you don't know, you don't know.
MR. MARKOWSKI: He is asking that you set the document aside for a moment.

My question is, were you the

A. I believe so.

A. I believe so.

Q. And you served as a director until you resigned as a consequence of the merger; correct?

I am referring now to the members of the executive committee of The Coleman Company.

A. My answer is the same, I don't recall.

A. From Coleman, no.

MR. BEMIS: Yes, that's what I am referring to.

A. Yes.

Q. Now, if you will again -- now I would ask you to turn to MS 237 and that penultimate paragraph, which reads as follows, quote: "This is a fantastic situation for all Sunbeam shareholders giving them the opportunity to participate in the wealth that Al Dunlap and his team are building, closed quote, said Ronald O. Perelman, who will become Sunbeam's second largest shareholder after the transaction. Quote Coleman will thrive as a part of Sunbeam's unbeatable family of brands" -- "brands," excuse me, "added Mr. Perelman."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you agree with that statement at the time it was made?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Did you -- following the announcement on March 2nd, did you dispose of any of the 52,600 shares of Coleman stock that you owned?

A. Yes.

Q. How many did you dispose of?

A. I believe all.

Q. And you sold those on the open market?

A. Yes.

Q. In fact, you sold them on March 4th, 1998; didn't you?

A. I believe so.

Q. And, so, you made a decision that it was better to liquidate your Coleman stock than receive Sunbeam stock?

A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. I thought that I had fair value for my Coleman stock. I held the stock when it was part of the Perelman enterprises and it seemed to me the right financial thing to do.

Q. So, as I take it, based on your due diligence and your -- as a director of The Coleman Company, and your voting for the merger, you thought financially the best thing to do was to sell your Coleman stock rather than participate in what this fantastic opportunity that Mr. Perelman is quoted in the press release as telling the public; is that correct?

Confidential - Slovin

A. I made --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

A. I made a judgment on behalf of my children that it was the -- in their best interest and mine, as well, to liquidate the stock, and I had very little or nothing to do with Mr. Perelman's statement.

Q. Well, what did you think of Sunbeam as a company under Mr. Dunlap's tutelage in March of 1998?

A. I thought it was a fine company.

Q. And he was a fine president?

A. Oh, well, I am not a hundred-percent sure of my impression of

Confidential - Slovin

Mr. Dunlap at that time, it has fused with later events I am afraid. I know he was an experienced manager, having taken over and improved -- and apparently improved and later sold companies. I know he was an experienced businessman from reading the newspapers.

That was my recollection of my thoughts about Mr. Dunlap.

Q. Did you ever meet Mr. Dunlap?

A. No.

Q. To this day, you have never met him?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever read any of his books?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever read any books about him?

A. I have read snippets about him, yes.

Q. Did you read his book "Chain Saw"?

A. No.

Q. Or the book "Chain Saw", not his book, the book "Chain Saw".

A. I have it, but I have not read it.

Q. Have you read "Testosterone, Inc." yet?

A. That -- authored by Mr. Dunlap?

Q. No.

A. I don't think I read that, either.

Q. Let's shift gears now from the Coleman -- one last question.

As a result of your -- the sale of the 52,600 shares of stock identified in Morgan Stanley 130, at page 17, you no longer, as of March 4th, had any equity interest in The Coleman Company; correct?

A. That's my belief, yes.

Q. So you had no financial or equity participation in the consequences of the merger; right?

A. Except as they affected Mr. Perelman's enterprises, with whom I was employed.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Okay. Well, setting aside your employee relationship, your own personal -- from your personal financial standpoint, you liquidated all of yours and your family's and your trust's interests on March 4th, the day or so after the public announcement and you had no further interest in The Coleman Company.

A. No direct financial interest, yes.

Q. Are you aware of -- if you would look at MS -- if you look at MS 130 again, and again page 117.

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of -- strike that. Do you know whether any of the other individuals listed on page 17 sold their Coleman stock after the public announcement on March 2nd of 1998 of the Coleman/Sunbeam merger acquisition?

A. I have no such knowledge.

Q. Okay, you can set that aside for the time being, sir.

You were -- withdrawn. I am going to shift directions now to a different company, so if that helps.

Were you an off-- a member of the board of directors of The Coleman -- of Coleman Holdings Inc., no comma?

A. I think so.

Q. And when was that?

A. Mid-Nineties.

Q. At the time of the merger?

A. I believe so.

Q. And you were also a director, were you not, of MacAndrews & Forbes Group Inc.?

A. I believe so.

Q. And were you an officer of that company, as well?

A. I think so.

Q. Was that during the time of the merger?

A. I think so.

Q. What did you do as an officer and director of MacAndrews & Forbes Group with a comma Inc?

A. It was one of the holding companies of the Perelman Group, and from time to time you would discuss investments.

Q. So you didn't have any specific responsibilities.

A. No.

Q. Now, one of the other companies we identified earlier is MAFCO, and that's all capital MAFCO Holdings no comma Inc., you told me you were the president of that company; right?

A. I believe so.

Q. And that was at the time of the merger; correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. And you were also a director of that company; were you not?

A. I believe so.

Q. And was your job as president and director essentially generalized discussions of the holding operations?

Q. That was one of the holding companies that -- of Mr. Perelman; correct?

A. One of the intermediate companies.

Q. And was -- you know, was the business of these holding companies to do deals?

MR. MARKOWSKI: You are talking about all of them?

MR. BEMIS: The holding companies he has identified as opposed to an operating company like Coleman.

A. There was some kind of a complex structure designed by Mr. Perelman's advisors for various reasons. You asked the question whether they were designed to do deals.

Q. Yes.

Confidential - Slovin

A. I don't think that was their sole purpose. It may have been one of the purposes, assuming many deals were engaged upon during the time frame you are talking about.

Q. Now, when I use the term "deals" and you used the term "deals", were you comfortable with referring to these as "mergers and acquisition deals" ?

A. Yes.

Q. Of all kinds, whether they are state law mergers, buyouts, almost any combination you can think of under that caption of mergers and acquisitions?

A. I would say yes.

Q. Okay. Let me show you a document that we will mark as MS 240.

MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, if you would please mark that.

Q. I have handed you what has been marked as MS 420 -- excuse me, 240, I misspoke, which is an article entitled "The richest guy in town, the high life and times of Ron Perelman, master of Revlon" by Craig Horowitz, H-O-R-O-W-I-T-Z.

Do you have that in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. If you will turn to page -- the fourth page of the article, right above the heading, quote: "We will spend 1 billion to put together a real entertainment company says Perelman top gun". Tell me when you are there.

A. Oh, I read the headline, yes.

Q. Okay. Below the headline, there is a paragraph that begins with "But". Do you see that?

A. "But Perelman is" --

Q. "Monomaniacal", which I wasn't going to read into the record, but that is where I was referring to.

A. Yes.

Q. Below that, it's read, quote: "Just because he's" -- referring to Mr. Perelman -- "done 10 deals or 20 deals or 30 deals that have been spectacular," says Donald Drapkin, Perelman's alter ego at MacAndrews & Forbes quote doesn't mean he should slow down or stop. If it was only about having enough money to live, he would have stopped a long time ago, but this is what we do. We do deals. Big deals, little deals, deals", followed by an ellipsis, closed quote. Do you see that quotation?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know Mr. Drapkin?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you a friend of his?

Q. You did -- excuse me, before -- for four -- a few years ago.

Do you agree with Mr. Drapkin's statement that: "This is what we do, we do big deals, little deals, deals"?

A. Yes, we were very active in mergers and acquisitions of all types.

Q. And this was true in 1998, as well; correct?

A. Yes, we were very active.

Q. Okay, you can set that aside.

And when you did deals, you customarily retained advisors to assist you in the deals; correct?

A. The large deals, yes.

Q. And when you did -- the Coleman deal was a large deal; was it not?

A. Yes.

Q. $2 billion, roughly?

A. Yes.

Q. And, so, when you did large deals, you would, that is, Mr. Perelman's companies, would retain advisors such as sophisticated law firms; correct?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Yes.

Q. In fact, Wachtell, Lipton was a firm that Mr. Perelman's companies had used during the 1990's for his deals; correct?

A. One of the firms.

Q. What other ones did you use, in big deals?

A. I think we used Cravath and we used Skadden, we used Kramer Levin, I believe -- um -- I forgot the name of Judge Rifkind's firm, who passed on -- Arthur Liman's firm, I forget the name of it.

THE WITNESS: You don't know the name?

A. That was another firm, the name just slipped my mind.

Q. That's okay. In addition to -- would you describe these as all big powerful sophisticated New York law firms?

A. Yes.

Q. In addition to law firms you -- when you did deals, big deals, did you customarily hire, "retain" may be a better word, a financial advisor?

A. When we felt it was necessary, yes.

Q. And other than Credit Suisse First Boston, that you identified for me in the Coleman transaction, can you identify any other investment banking firms that you used in these deals?

A. I think we employed Goldman Sachs and Lazard.

Q. Lazard Freres?

A. Yes. I am not certain whether we used Merrill Lynch, but those were -- and CS First Boston we used, Morgan Stanley we used, they represented the bulk of our employment of investment bankers.

Q. When you needed accounting assistance in these big deals, did you have a preferred accounting firm?

A. I don't think we had a preferred accounting firm in the singular. We used Peat Marwick, we used Ernst & Young, primarily.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. And was it -- in these large deals, was it customary for the person -- the entity on the other side of the transaction, sometimes there may have been more than one, for those entities to retain their own advisors?

A. Yes.

Q. So they would retain their own law firms?

A. The firms on the other side of a buy or sell deal, yes.

Q. And would the other -- the person on the other side of the buy or sell deal customarily, again, in these big deals, retain an investment banking firm to advise them?

A. Yes.

Q. And if accountants were needed, would they customarily retain their own accounting firms?

A. Surely.

Q. At any point in your big deals, did you ever use private investigators as part of your due diligence investigation?

Q. Were any private investigators used in connection with the Coleman transaction?
A. Not to my knowledge, I don't have any such recollection.

A. Paul Weiss was the firm that I couldn't recall.
Q. Paul Weiss Rifkind?
A. Yes, forgive me.
Q. You did miss the judge's name. It went by me, too, I'm sorry.
I don't -- I apologize if I asked you this, but were you on the board of directors of a company called M & F Worldwide Corporation, as well?
A. I may have been, I don't have a specific recollection.
Q. Do you recognize the name as being one of Mr. Perelman's holding companies?
A. Yes.
Q. One of his deal -- companies

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object, lack of foundation.
A. I recall it being one of the companies in his structure. Whether that company was employed for deals specifically, I do not know. But it was a company that I recall being in his grouping of companies.
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as 128.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, would you please mark, as MS 128, a document entitled Corporations listed on Schedule 1.

Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley 128 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Take a look at it, because you are going to see, towards the end of the

A. Yes.
Q. You are going to see a Schedule 1 of companies where it says board of -- and tell me when you are at that page where it says "Schedule".
A. I have that.
Q. Okay. On Schedule 1, on the left-hand side, there is a name of a corporation and then there is a board or executive committee on the right-hand side.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, this document which was provided in discovery in this case is dated as of November 1st of 1996, and the first page has Mr. Perelman's signature and your signature appears on the page immediately before Schedule 1 and it is Bates numbered DPW 0014390.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your signature, sir?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, looking at Schedule 1, can you just confirm to me, for me, sir, that the companies and -- that list you as either a board or executive committee member, that these are true and accurate, at least as of the date of this document, November 1st, 1996, of positions that you held with the identified companies.
A. They appear to be accurate as presented by the MacAndrews & Forbes group of companies.
I do not have a specific recollection as to the accuracy of every company in which I am listed as either a board or an executive committee member.
Q. (Pause.) By my count, there are 79 different companies listed on Schedule 1 and, you know, if I am wrong somebody can re-count them later, but does that seem consistent with the number of companies that were -- that you were aware of in Mr. Perelman's groupings of

A. I had no knowledge as to the precise number of companies in his grouping of companies. He had many, that's what I recall.
Q. (Pause.) Well, I count for you 24 companies alone that you were on the board of directors or the executive committee. You served on all those companies at one time, 24 companies?
A. Well, there are companies, for example, where you will see that I am involved with an Eric Hanson, those companies related to old companies that were owned at one point by Mr. Perelman's group of companies. They were created, as I said, by his advisors for various reasons. They were not all operating companies by any means. I recall that I was an officer or director or served on the executive committee of many of his companies as being one of a small group of people that worked closely with him. That's all I can recall.

Q. How were you paid by Mr. Perelman's companies?
A. I was employed --
Q. Not how much but how you were paid.
A. I was employed by one of the top companies in the holding company chain, biweekly and cash.
Q. Was your -- the company on your paycheck MAFCO Holdings no comma Inc.?

Q. And that company was the ultimate holding company, then directly above that was Mr. Perelman; correct?

A. I didn't say "also in cash".
Q. Oh, I'm sorry, I misheard you.
A. I was paid by check on a biweekly basis. I used "cash" as being synonymous with a "check". You asked me how I was paid.
Q. I misunderstood you. Thank you.
And did you receive -- in addition to your biweekly pay, did you receive an annual bonus?
A. No.
Q. Did you receive any additional compensation, other than your biweekly pay?
A. At one point, I had options in Revlon. But, other than that, I don't think I received any other compensation.
Q. Were you given opportunities to participate in deals as an investor?
A. No.

I am going to start at the top and work down to The Coleman Company and, unless it would be easier for you to describe the organizational structure from the bottom to the top. What's easier for you?

In other words, Coleman Company is owned by somebody, and we can trace that ownership up all the way to the top or we can start at the top and work downwards.

A. I don't think it will make any difference to me.

Q. Okay. Well, then let me start with The Coleman Company Inc. at the bottom.

My understanding, and you can correct me if I am wrong, is that the stock of The Coleman Company Inc. that was owned by Mr. Perelman's affiliated companies was owned by Coleman Worldwide Corporation; is that correct?

A. I have no specific recollection of that now. I imagine it's correct but my own knowledge, sitting here today, I don't recall the precise names of the intermediate holding companies.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Things like this, he is not asking you to guess at, he is asking you whether you know or don't know.

A. I don't know, sorry.

Q. I am going to show you a document that was in a public filing, or at least a draft public filing for the company, and we will have you look at that and see if that helps you understand the organizational structure or helps you

MR. BEMIS: Could you please mark, as Exhibit 241, a document entitled Offering memorandum, dated May 17th, 1997, for $732,035,000, Coleman Escrow Corporation, Bates number -- initial Bates number is CPH 1107884.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Just so we are clear on the record, are you at page 8 of MS 241?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And this document, which is a 1997 Coleman offering memorandum, has been produced to us in litigation, has an organizational chart which is headed on page 8 Ownership of the issuer and the Company.

A. Yes.
Q. And you were also either an officer or director of -- or -- of all of the entities I believe in this chain with the possible exception of Coleman Escrow Corporation; is that true?
A. I believe so.
Q. Now, looking at this publicly-filed document, does it, based on your personal knowledge, represent the structure of The Coleman Company as of May 15th, 1997, when you were a director of the company?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Now he's asking you not what the document says, he is asking you whether you can remember that, those facts today.

Q. Okay. A. You would have had a corpse on your hand.
Q. I don't think so.
Now, starting at the top, with -- if you want to look at the chart, I don't think you will need it, MAFCO Holdings Inc., who were the -- do you know who the directors of that company were in 1998, when you were the president?
A. I don't have a recollection today.
Q. Okay. Do you know who the directors of MacAndrews & Forbes Holding

Inc. were in 1998 at the time of the acquisition?
A. I thought you (indicating) showed me something along the way that showed officers and directors.
Q. It showed some directors and it showed -- or executive committee members, so it's not clear whether they were one or the other or both.
A. I have no independent recollection. I could guess at it, but that's not what you are asking me to do.
Q. Do you know who the directors were of New Coleman Holdings Inc.?
A. No.
Q. And all my questions now will be for 1998, okay, so we don't have to go back too far.

Q. Would they be the ones listed in the board of directors minutes; correct?
A. Of course.
Q. So we won't test your memory on that because we have got a document that tells us.
A. Correct.
Q. Now, with regard to the -- with the exception of The Coleman Company Inc., on this organization chart we looked at in -- what's the name of it -- MS 241, were all of their offices from MAFCO Holding Inc. all the way down to Coleman Worldwide Corporation, were they in the same building in New York City?
A. All the officers and directors?
Q. No, "the offices", the physical offices.

A. The top companies, the MacAndrews companies were. All the Coleman companies may or may not have been. I don't recall where their offices were.
Q. Well, let's just start with MAFCO Holdings Inc. Were its offices in New York City in 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was the address?
A. 1998, I believe it was 35 East 62nd Street.
Q. And would that be the same address in 1998 --
A. Yes.
Q. -- for MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc.?
A. Yes.
Q. And the same for New Coleman Holdings Inc.
A. I am uncertain as to what the office -- what offices existed for those intermediary -- intermediate companies, I am uncertain.

A. I believe we met in Wichita, Kansas.
Q. Would that be for an annual meeting?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Excuse me. Could you read the question before back that started this.
(The record was read.)
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are asking about board meetings?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, and that was a poor question. Let me rephrase the question, so the record is clear.. Thank you for helping me with that.
Q. When you were a member of the board of directors of The Coleman Company Inc., did all of the director meetings, board of directors meetings, take place in New York City?
A. I don't think so. I think on occasion a board of directors meeting would be held in Wichita. I recall annual meetings being held in Wichita and I believe, also, that there were board of directors meetings held in Wichita, as well.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Would it be fair to say that the majority of the board of directors meetings during the period you were a director were held in New York City?
A. Yes.
Q. How would you describe your job for all of the companies that you held positions in -- and we counted 28 on that one -- on the exhibit Schedule 1 about a few minutes ago, how would you describe your job?
A. Well, I was in the inner circle for many years, from 1980, when I joined Ronald, until the year when I ended, three years ago. We would, you know, consider various subjects that would come up as pertained to that corporation.
Primarily, however, my job was

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018584

that of a mergers and acquisition executive. I travelled the world, I bought and sold companies for any number of his companies in the structure that you elaborated a moment ago.

I did spend more time on the Coleman side operationally, although I am not an operations person, but I spent more time with Coleman than I did with any of his other companies. Wherever they needed my help, I did what I was capable of doing, but my main function, as a business person, was that of one searching for acquisitions to be made or investments, I should say, broader -- more broadly to be made, helping to negotiate them. I was not terribly much involved on a financial side, that is, to structure the finance of any of these companies, the purchase of these companies, or the continued operations, I was not much involved in that. And when a company needed to be sold, I would most often participate in the negotiations to sell that company, whether it was big or small.

Confidential - Slovin

Towards the middle and the end of -- towards the middle of the 1990's, Jimmy Maher came to work with us, and he took over some of the role that I had in the negotiating and searching for investment opportunities. Donny Drapkin did more and more of that, as did Howard Gittis, but that was my main function.

Q. So, if you put one sentence on your job application for your new job instead of your prior work is you were searching out mergers and acquisition candidates, both on the buy and sell side?

A. Yes.

Q. And would that be a fair description of your job, recognizing it's somewhat general, for the entire time you worked for Mr. Perelman's companies?

A. I would say yes.

Q. Why did you spend more time with The Coleman Company, as you have described it, particularly on operations?

A. Well, I don't want to exaggerate

Confidential - Slovin

my involvement with operations.

I spent more time with Coleman, they were changing executive management, Mike Hammas came in to be the chief operating officer. I -- Jerry Levin had originally managed Coleman when Ronald bought it, in 1988, and then he stepped away to work with Revlon, and I am embarrassed to say a man by the name of Larry something, the name slips my mind, once again, took over from that role and he was, you know, getting older and wanted to retire, and I was asked to help find his replacement, which I did, also, for Ronald, searching for personnel, senior personnel. And, so, I was asked to engage in that activity, which I did. And inasmuch as Mike Hammas was new to the enterprise, I was asked to involve myself, because there appeared to be a need to stay close to a new employee and observe his activities, which is what I did. During that period, and prior to Mike Hammas's coming, I tried and did expand

Confidential - Slovin

Coleman by purchasing companies in Europe and South America, the United States.

When I was needed to do something, and Ronald asked me to do it, I would do it. When we took over Technicolor, in 1982, I spent a year working in Los Angeles, selling the companies that we did not believe were to our best interests to hold. We kept certain core companies and sold others. When Ronald took over the banks, in 1988, he asked me to go down to Texas for a year and to observe the management and to try to report back on how I thought things were going. It was a new investment of his, and he thought I could help in the integration of the banks with the home office, which I did.

So, when a need occurred, he would ask me to get involved. And as I said, with Coleman, I was helping to buy companies and, also, to work with Mike Hammas and helping to manage what was then a worldwide company.

Q. Was there within these holding companies reporting to Mr. Perelman a group of close-knit advisors to him, like yourself, Mr. Drapkin?

A. No, I think the -- Howard Gittis, Donald Drapkin, myself --

Q. I mispronounced his name, I apologize.

A. Apologize to him, it's okay what you call him.

Q. Okay.

A. But he had legal advisors, he had insurance advisors, he had tax advisors, he had public relations advisors, he had real estate advisors. His enterprise was complex and required specialists of all kinds. And, yes, I mean, he had certain people who he went to more often than others in all aspects of the business world and community, the investment banking community was the same thing.

Q. Did you consider yourself in Mr. Perelman's inner circle during this period --

Confidential - Slovin

A. Uh --

Q. -- of advisors?

A. I was a little bit slipping out of the inner circle when I joined Ronald in 1980. It was just he and I and then Howard came and Donald came and others of -- you know, of -- excellent businessmen. As he got more complicated, he needed other skills. And I think at this time I was not quite in the inner circle that I had been in prior years.

Q. By 1998, at the time of the sale of the -- or, the merger of the Coleman companies with Sunbeam, who would you identify as being on Mr. Perelman's inner circle, most trusted confidants?

A. I would say Howard Gittis, Donald Drapkin, he was using Jimmy Maher in the M&A side more and more and he became a close confidant. There was a man by the name of Bill Bevins, who no longer works with us, in the entertainment area that was a confident of his. Certainly

Confidential - Slovin

Jerry Ford in the banking business was very close to Ronald. You know, lawyers like Joe Flom and Arthur Liman, Judge Rifkind, accountants at Peat Marwick, a man by the name of Mike Regan was close to him. He had, as I say, special people in tax and public relations, but I would say the inner circle was Gittis and Drapkin, and on the M&A side it became Maher.

Q. Based on all the complex deals that I know you have participated in -- well, withdrawn. I will withdraw that. When you were the president of MAFCO Holdings Inc., did it have any employees per se?

A. MAFCO --

Q. Holdings Inc., the company directly below Mr. Perelman.

A. I do not know.

I did not participate much in the financial structuring of his businesses. He had lawyers and accountants and tax people who helped him much more intensely than I did, and I do not recall who were the officers or directors of that company or employees.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Let me try this a different way.

In 1998, at the time of the merger, if you handed someone your business card --

A. Mm-hmm.

Q. -- what company name was on your business card? Or maybe you had multiple business cards, I don't know, you tell me.

A. No, no, I think it was MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, I think that was my business card.

Q. Okay, which was wholly-owned by MAFCO Holdings Inc.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, within these holding companies -- withdrawn. Have you ever heard the term "shared resources" used in operating a business when you -- multiple companies under a single umbrella?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

Q. You can answer.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018586

Confidential - Slovin

A. My understanding of a "shared resource" would be a person like myself, where I was working for MacAndrews & Forbes but I did work for MacAndrews & Forbes by assisting its various investments for whatever they needed at the time, but primarily in the area of buying and selling companies and hiring executives.

Q. And that's how I am using the term "shared resource", that a person employed by one entity will also provide resource and assistance to other companies within the same holding group of companies.

A. Right.

Q. And that's how I am using the terms.

Is it fair to say that MAFCO Holdings Inc., either directly or through MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc., essentially operated at the holding company level using shared resources among the various holding companies?

Confidential - Slovin

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

A. Well, there were a group of people that worked for MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, and they had assignments, and often those assignments would be to be working with other corporations which represented Mr. Perelman's investments.

Q. Is that why, for example, you had worked -- you had titles at over 28 different companies at one point?

A. Well, when you structure a complex enterprise, as Mr. Perelman had at that time, you very often use your key lieutenants to be the officers and directors of companies which serve a rather narrow purpose but, yet, an important purpose, and I think that's why you find me as a director of many companies.

I told you a moment before you'll find, in the list of companies you gave me, where Eric Hanson, who was an employee at one time, and I were the sole names because those were little boat companies we had under a boat company investment we had and there did not need to be other officers and directors because the purpose was rather narrow, holding certain assets, holding certain licenses, et cetera.

Q. Did you -- did the holding companies, either through MAFCO Holdings Inc. or MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc., did it have an analyst function somewhere, financial analyst function in the companies?

A. I don't think we had such a title.

The financial people would some do work on their side, the business people would do, you know, their aspect of the work, the lawyers the same, public relations people. We didn't have someone called a "financial analyst".

At one point, I had some young men working for me who helped me analyze companies and when I was looking at acquisitions, but you could call them "analysts" if you wish but they were working specifically for me and helping analyze an acquisition candidate of which, of course, was -- took a good deal of my time.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Elliot Nesbitt?

A. Will Nesbitt.

Q. Will, I apologize, I get it wrong.

A. Yes, he could be called an "analyst".

He was working for Jimmy Maher, very bright young guy, and he could be called an "analyst". He helped Jimmy the way other people helped me.

Q. And that would be --

A. Helping out --

Q. -- number-crunching and analyzing the financial consequences of a transaction.

A. Yes.

Q. And you used to do that yourself, as well?

A. I did some of it myself, I had other people helping. Maher did it himself, too, Perelman did that, as well. We would read documents, we would try to see what opportunities lay in what fields, you know, whether we could make a good investment.

So we all did a little bit of the analysis.

Q. Let me ask you something, you know, given your years of experience in M&A, I mean, did you consider yourself a successful man in this field?

A. Yes.

Q. I don't mean to embarrass you, but do you consider yourself a smart man in this field?

A. Yeah, I think I am probably smart as most.

Q. How about Mr. Perelman, do you think --

A. Smart.

Q. -- he has been successful?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Has he been successful?

Q. Yes.

A. By what measure?

Q. How do we measure -- how would you measure success?

A. Well, are you talking about what -- business?

Q. Yes, business.

A. Or you want to talk about religious?

Q. Yes, business.

A. Yes, of course he has been successful.

Q. A smart man?

A. Very smart man.

Q. Good analyst?

A. Good analyst.

Q. And Mr. Maher, a smart man?

A. Yes.

Q. Good analyst?

A. Yes.

Q. Successful in his business?

A. Yes.

Q. And, in fact, this whole group,

Confidential - Slovin

let's take Mr. Drapkin, a smart man?

A. Yes.

Q. Successful in his business?

A. Yes.

Q. Sharp analyst?

A. I wouldn't say that Donny is the type of analyst that Will Nesbitt is, will get into the details, and nor is he as clever analyzing businesses as Ronald. Donny was a lawyer, but in the Wall Street world he's as smart as they come, structuring deals, but analyzing the right or left side of a balance sheet and product lines, that's not really his strength. He is certainly very smart and successful.

Q. Taken as a group, the inner circle in 1998, would you categorize them as a smart intelligent group of sophisticated businessmen?

A. Yes.

MR. BEMIS: Would you please mark a document entitled Notification in report form for certain mergers and acquisitions as Morgan Stanley 132.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 132, document entitled Notification in report form for certain mergers and acquisitions, marked for identification.)

Q. Do you have Exhibit 132 in front of you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Have you ever seen this form before?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Not necessarily the particular contents of this form but this type of form, for mergers and acquisitions, a form filed under the Hart Scott Rodino Act.

A. Well, I know what the Hart Scott Rodino Act is. I may have reviewed such a document in the past. I don't recall this one at all.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object --
A. Well --
MR. MARKOWSKI: -- to the form of the question.
A. I think the answer is yes. I can't say it's exhaustive or complete, but all the items that I looked at now do relate to one or more businesses that he owned or controlled.
Q. Okay, you can set that aside. Did you -- withdrawn. When is the first time that you heard from any source that there were discussions ongoing between Mr. Perelman's companies and Sunbeam concerning a possible deal involving The Coleman Company Inc.?
A. I think relatively shortly before the board meetings in February.
Q. Could you tell me how it is you came to learn about these discussions between Mr. Perelman's companies and Sunbeam?

A. It could have been Ronald or Jerry Levin or Jim Maher --
MR. MARKOWSKI: He -- I don't mean to interrupt, he is not asking you to guess, he is asking whether you can tell him --
A. Well, it would have had to have been --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Don't guess, when you start out "it would have had to have been".
Q. Well, let me put it this way, Mayor Giuliani didn't tell you; right?
A. No.
Q. All right. So, given the source of people that you work with, what is your best recollection, as you sit here, as to who would have told you or who did tell you?
A. I have no specific recollection of any conversation I had, but it -- shortly before I did know that conversations were taking place, and I can't tell you the individual that mentioned it to me because I have no such recollection.

Q. Given the people that you work with, what would be the universe of people who you would have heard this information from?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question, calls for speculation.
A. Well --
Q. Well, I don't want you to speculate because I don't want you to tell me --
A. I only could guess, but it would be one of a few people.
Q. Right, that's what I am asking you, who are the few people that you would identify --
A. Well, the best guess I would have is that I might have heard it that there were discussions from Maher or Levin or Perelman or Gittis or Drapkin. I am really not sure, the people who were in the inner circle who would be participating in such an activity.

A. Absolutely.
Q. And you didn't tell anybody about the discussions.
A. I hope not.
Q. Okay. What did you learn -- withdrawn. What were you told by one or more of these individuals in the inner circle about a possible transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: If you can recall. Don't guess.
MR. BEMIS: Excuse me, he understands that, you don't need to interrupt --
MR. MARKOWSKI: I don't think so because you are asking him what would you have been, it calls for speculation, the way you phrased the question.

MR. BEMIS: Okay, then object to the form of the question.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am trying.
MR. BEMIS: Don't coach the witness.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Ask an appropriate question, you are calling for speculation.
MR. BEMIS: Then you can object to the form, that's the proper procedure, and you know it and I know it.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Ask a proper question, don't call for speculation, we'll get done a lot faster. I don't think it's a worthwhile discovery.
MR. BEMIS: Then you make an objection to form and, otherwise, you be quiet.
A. (Laughing.) Now we are going.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I will make my record the way I make my record.
MR. BEMIS: Well, we will see how you make your record, whether you can dictate the terms of the deposition.

Let's try to get back so we can get the gentleman out of here today.
Q. The question I had was, from -- what were you told, as best you can recall, by one or more of these members of the inner circle about the discussions concerning The Coleman Company and Sunbeam.
A. My vague recollection is that there were negotiations under way to do some deal, a deal, with the Sunbeam Corporation.
MR. BEMIS: Can we go off the record for one second, please.

MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, could you please give me the courtesy of reading back the last answer.
(The record was read.)
Q. As a result of these discussions with the inner circle, did you receive any assignment from anyone to do anything in connection with the ongoing discussions?
A. No.
Q. Following these initial discussions with someone in the inner circle, did you have any further discussions with them or anyone else about the acquisition or discussions about the acquisition before the board meeting on February 25th of 1998?
A. I don't recall any such discussions.
Q. So, it was the next thing that happened after you had these initial discussions with someone in the inner circle the board meeting on February 25th?
A. Well, the "initial discussions" is really mislabeled. I don't think "discussions" actually describe accurately these conversations. They were brief, they were short, I was not involved. They could have been more than one. They could have taken place in different days but they led up, ultimately, to the board meetings when we were called to discuss in detail the prospective business arrangement with Sunbeam.

Q. Is it fair to say that the first substantive presentation, if you will, as opposed to a conversation that you had about the transaction that becomes the merger, was at the board meeting of February 25th?
A. For myself.

THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 12:03, we are back on the tape, on the record.
Q. I'm sorry for the interruption.
A. I thought it was rather charming, made my day.
Q. We will have to snip that out of the deposition. So let's go back and serious matters here.
I would like to ask you some questions now about some individuals within Mr. Perelman's companies and specifically what role they had, if any, that you know about in connection with the merger, discussions that -- ultimately the transaction.
Let's start with Mr. Perelman. Do you know what role he had?
A. No, not specifically.
Q. He did attend the board meeting,

Page 143

as I understand, on February 25th?
A. Yeah.
Q. And he was at the board meeting on February 27th, as well?
A. My recollection is yes, but I -- honestly, I don't quite recall all those who were in attendance.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman have the final authority, the "yes" or "no", on the merger transaction?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Which merger are you referring to?
MR. BEMIS: The February 27th, 1998 Coleman, where The Coleman Company was a party to the transaction, not the second agreement.
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are referring to the public shareholder transaction.
MR. BEMIS: The one we marked as MS 117, I believe.
A. I think the board has the final decision, Mr. Perelman could advise of his

Page 144

Confidential - Slovin
opinion but it's a board vote.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman, by the way, advise the board of his opinion in either the February 25th or the February 27th, 1998 board meetings?
A. I don't know if he did it in a formal sense. I know that he was for the arrangement, the business arrangement, but I don't know that he held forth a discourse on whether it was the right thing to do, but I know the board made the final decision.
Q. Let me ask you now about Mr. Howard Gittis.
What was his role in the merger negotiations?
A. I can't say that I know, because I don't know.
Q. Okay, so you just said you don't know.
Mr. Drapkin?
A. I don't know, either.
Q. Mr. Maher?
A. I think Jimmy was involved most directly in negotiating the terms of the arrangement with the representatives of Sunbeam.

Q. Barry Schwartz?

A. Barry Schwartz is an attorney, and a senior officer. He would have been involved in the crafting of the documents.

Q. Did Barry Schwartz work for The Coleman Company?

A. Was he an officer? He was certainly not employed by The Coleman Company. Was he an officer or director, I do not recall.

Q. Do you know if he worked -- withdrawn. Do you know the names of any of Mr. Perelman's companies that he held a position in?

A. Well, (indicating), you had --

A. Yes, he is one of Perelman's lead counsels, if not the lead counsel.

Q. But he is employed by Mr. Perelman's companies.

A. Yes.

Q. And Mr. Nesbitt, you said he was a financial analyst of sorts?

A. No, a financial analyst of some intelligence, he is a bright kid, and he worked mostly with Jimmy Maher, and he worked -- employed by one of Perelman's top companies.

Q. Okay. You knew right where to look.

A. Well, it does say "confidentiality" in it's heading, and I did notice it says February 4th, 1998 referring to the document named Morgan Stanley 133.

Q. So when you read -- when you -- even though you did not see in advance Morgan Stanley 133, you knew when you approved the merger agreement, as a member of the board of directors, that a confidentiality agreement had been signed dated as of February 4th, 1998; correct?

A. I imagine I did know that. I don't have a recollection of everything I knew back in February of 1998. I presume

I did know that because it's imbedded in this document and it may have been discussed but I am guessing at my recollection, though, six years ago.

Q. But setting -- withdrawn. For a deal of this size, $2 billion, roughly, and given your experience in this -- in mergers and acquisitions, it would indeed be customary for such an agreement to be executed between the buyer and the seller, would it not, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Let me show you now a document that is dated February 23 of 1998, and that I will have the court reporter mark, and I will show that to you.

A. Right now, I don't know what this document is, I must read it -- executed by the parties since it's referenced in the merger agreement?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Objection to the lack of foundation.

A. I think that the language of 7.2 suggests that, yes.

Q. All right. You may set those documents aside.

Can you tell me what steps The Coleman Company Inc. took in terms of doing due diligence of Sunbeam before the merger agreement was approved on February 27th, 1998 by the Coleman board of directors?

A. I can only speak to my role as a director.

We reviewed (indicating) the agreements presented to us, and we listened to the opinions of CS First Boston, in so far as discussing the adequacy of the -- or fairness to the Coleman side. I listened to other people speaking to the deal who were actively involved in the negotiation and the analysis of the deal, and I accumulated knowledge of, as presented to me, both orally and in writing, and then voted, as the records indicate.

Q. And when you say you accumulated the material presented to you orally and in writing, you are referring to the board meeting information.

A. Yes.

Q. Was -- withdrawn. As I understand your earlier testimony, the February 25th, 1998 board meeting, which started at 4 p.m. in the afternoon, was indeed the first time that you had received oral or written presentations on the merger that results in the merger agreement we marked as MS 117; is that correct?

A. In a detailed fashion, yes.

Q. And before this board meeting, your discussions had -- or "conversations", if it's a better term, were strictly, as you have described them, with these members of the inner circle of Mr. Perelman; right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you as a board member, before February 27th, do any independent research at all about Sunbeam or -- at all?

A. I knew of the company as a public company, but I didn't do any independent research.

Q. Did you read any analyst reports about Sunbeam, for example?

A. I might have.

Q. But you don't remember as you sit here today?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Well, let's go, then -- let me ask you to look at a couple of documents, and we will start with MS 138.

MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, would you mark, as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 138, a document entitled Household products PaineWebber, Sunbeam, did Al show his hand too soon.

Q. Do you have MS 138 in front of you, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. This is a report by analyst Andrew Shore, dated February 6, 1998.

Have you ever seen it before?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Did you see -- withdrawn. Following the consummation of the merger, and closing on March 30th, did you ever go back and look at any of -- any analyst reports for Sunbeam that were written in early 1998?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, will you mark, as MS 137, a document with the heading MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc., January 30th, 1998, and attached to it is an identical

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 137, document with the heading MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc., January 30th, 1998, marked for identification.)
Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 137 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. This document, which was produced in litigation, has in the upper left-hand corner MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. What is MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc.?
A. What is it? It looks like it's some business enterprise.
I don't know precisely what it is.
Q. Was there someone -- have you

A. No.

Were you aware that someone at MAFCO --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Before you go on, when you say "this document", look at the Bates numbering on this, and it doesn't appear to me that this has been produced in this form. Is this something that was assembled?
MR. BEMIS: Yeah, I said that there were two pages attached to it and one has handwriting and one does not, but they are otherwise identical.
MR. MARKOWSKI: They were produced in separate pieces of paper.
MR. BEMIS: Yes, they were, they were not stapled together.
MR. MARKOWSKI: So when you say "this document", you are referring to the first page?
MR. BEMIS: I am referring to the entire document.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Thank you.
Q. Have you ever seen either of the two pages of MS 137?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Were you aware that someone at MA-- strike that. As a director of The Coleman Company, Inc., and as an employee of Mr. Perelman's company, were you aware that someone at MAFCO Consolidated Group was apparently monitoring analysts' reports of estimates for fourth quarter earnings for Sunbeam?
A. I was not aware of that.
Q. Okay. You can set that -- you already have, you set that aside. Thank you.
Before the board meeting on February 25th, of 1998, had you been told by anyone, or were you aware of indirectly, that one of the MAFCO entities had been doing independent research on Sunbeam Corporation?
A. I have no such recollection.

A. Yes.
Q. My only question is -- well, put it this way -- withdrawn. My first question is, looking at the handwriting that appears on the first page, which I will tell you is a reproduction of a Post-it note, do you recognize the handwriting?

Have you ever seen this document before?

A. Not to my recollection.

Q. So if you haven't seen it before you didn't rely on it in any way in voting for the merger.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.

A. Did I rely on -- no, I don't think I used this document, which I don't recall seeing, to express my opinion as director on the merger, no.

Q. You may set the document aside.

My understanding is that the information that you relied upon in voting as you did at the board of directors meetings of Coleman Company Inc. on February 27th was the information presented to you at the board meetings; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. I want to ask you some questions, although you might not have actually done it, I want to know whether you know if anyone else did it. So, in that context, do you know if anyone from The Coleman Company, either its advisors or employees, in connection with the due diligence in this transaction interviewed any of Sunbeam's middle management?

A. I have no such knowledge of such interviews, I don't know anything about it.

Q. The same question with regard to the Sunbeam customers.

A. I don't know.

Q. Are you a-- do you know whether anyone from The Coleman Company or its professional advisors that it retained met with any analysts that were following Sunbeam?

A. I have no specific knowledge as to such meetings.

Q. Do you know if anyone at Coleman or anyone who was retained by or -- by Coleman or on behalf of Coleman, visited

A. I have no such knowledge.

Q. Do you know whether, as part of the due diligence process, anyone at Coleman, or anyone retained by or on behalf of Coleman, interviewed anyone at Arthur Andersen, the accountants for Sunbeam?

A. I have no specific knowledge of any such meetings.

Q. Are you aware of whether Coleman's board of directors or anyone retained by or on behalf of Coleman made any inquiry at or about the time of

A. No.

Q. Where did the closing take place?

A. I do not know.

A. I would say about half a dozen times.

Q. What transactions?

A. Well --

Q. As best you can remember.

A. I remember once I was selling a cosmetic line. I think they were involved in some boat deals I did. I can't recall other specifics.

Q. Were they involved in the Panavision deal?

MR. BEMIS: To Coleman, yes.

A. Yes.

Q. Now, would you read that paragraph to yourself, sir, if you would?

A. Yes.
Q. Now, before February 27th, 1998, had the board of directors in any way approved CSFB as being the exclusive financial advisor to The Coleman Company Inc.?
A. I don't think in a formal way that they had done that, no, before this meeting, that's why this resolution is here.
MR. BEMIS: I would like the court reporter to mark for us as MS 169 a letter dated December 10, 1997 to The Coleman Company, attention Mr. Jerry W. Levin and signed on the third page by Mr. Shapiro, I believe.

A. Yeah.
Q. Now, when the board of directors approved the retention of The Coleman Company -- excuse me, when the board of directors of The Coleman Company Inc. approved the engagement of Credit Suisse First Boston as its exclusive financial advisor, as set forth in the first paragraph of MS 169, did the board have the engagement letter at the meeting?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Have you ever seen the engagement letter before today?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Have you ever seen a similar engagement letter addressed to The Coleman Company issued by Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated for this transaction?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Is it your understanding of the transaction that Morgan Stanley & Co. was the financial advisor for Sunbeam?
A. It's my understanding.

Page 179

Q. And Credit Suisse First Boston was the financial advisor for The Coleman Company and its affiliated companies --
A. Yes.
Q. -- correct?
So you were on opposite sides of the table; right?
A. We represented different clients, my recollection, the best that I can tell you.
Q. Now, according to the terms of the letter, MS 169, the fee that was to be charged for CSFB services was a $4 million plus reasonable out-of-pocket expenses.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. As a director of the company, can you tell us whether that $4 million was paid as a result of the consummation of the merger?
A. I don't have any such knowledge, one way or the next.
Q. Would you have any reason to believe that it was not paid?

Page 180

A. No.
Q. There was also attached to MS 169, on the fourth page, a separate document, which is also dated December 10th of 1997 which, for lack of a better term, I am going to refer to as an "indemnity agreement". Do you see that page, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this page of the engagement letter also approved by the board of directors on February 27th, 1998?
A. I have no independent recollection other than if I read the minutes I could tell you.
Q. Okay, go ahead and read the minutes if you need to, it would begin on page 7.
A. (Pause.)
MR. MARKOWSKI: I am not clear on what the question is right now.

A. The best answer -- repeat the question for me, please.

Q. Is it your understanding, based on reading the minutes of the board of directors meeting, that the board of directors on February 27th, 1997 approved as part of CSFB's engagement the last page of MS 169, what I call the "indemnity agreement".

A. Well, it states in this first resolution that they are -- we authorize the entering of the engagement letter as well as the indemnity arrangements and the -- my answer is yes.

Q. You can set that aside for right now.

Now, is it your understanding based on the presentations that were made at the board of directors meetings, on both February -- well, withdrawn. CSFB did make presentations to the board both on February 25th and February 27th, 1998; correct?

A. I think so, yeah.

Q. And it was based on those -- withdrawn. And is it your understanding, as a director, that CSFB evaluated the financial terms of the merger proposal between Sunbeam and Coleman?

A. Yes.

Q. And is it your understanding, as a director, that as a consequence of their evaluation that they then advised The Coleman Company exclusively on the fairness of the transaction?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of any facts which suggest that CSFB advised Sunbeam on the fairness of the transaction?

A. No.

Q. You have to keep your voice up a little bit with the tape. Thank you.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 76, marked for identification.)

Q. Let me show you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley 76, please. It's already been marked.

A. Yep.

Q. My question is, have you ever seen MS 76 before in any form?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay, you can set that aside.

As you sit here today now, you have looked at the retention letter of December 10th, 1997 for CSFB, and you have taken me up to the board meetings starting February 25th, are you aware of any meetings, even if you might not have been present, between representatives of The Coleman Company or representatives of Sunbeam and CSFB in that period?

A. No, I am not.

Q. By the way, were you in the United States continuously between December 10th, 1997 and February 25th of 1998?

A. December 10th, it was my birthday so where I was non compas mentis for weeks after --

Q. Okay.

A. Yes, I was in -- oh, no, I go to Europe, I have a home in Italy, my wife being Italian, so I go to Europe for Christmastime.

Q. So, roughly, when were you out of the United States during that time period?

A. The last ten days or so, beginning a few days of the new year, ten days to two weeks.

Q. And then you were -- were you in the United States after your return from Italy continuously up until, say, the closing of March 30th, 1998?

the other issues with regard to any investigation that was done of the merger transactions which the board approved. And the first question is, are you aware of any type of accounting due diligence that was done by Coleman's accountants, Ernst & Young, LLP, in connection with the merger.

A. I have no specific knowledge of that type of work.

Q. Now, when you say you have "no specific knowledge", have you heard whether they did any work even though you didn't see it yourself?

A. I don't remember whether I heard that -- what work they did or did not do. I have no recollection of that subject.

Q. Did you personally have any communications with Ernst & Young, LLP that in any way were related to the merger transaction approved by the board on February 27th?

A. No.

Q. At the February 27th board of directors meeting, which we have already marked as Exhibit 118, the board also approved the retention of Wachtell, Lipton as its attorneys; correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. Were you aware, as a director, that Wachtell, Lipton had been retained before February 27th, 1998 to advise The Coleman Company in connection with the Sunbeam/Coleman merger?

A. I don't have a specific recollection of when they were first retained.

Q. Other than Wachtell, Lipton, was there any other law firm that the Coleman Company retained in connection with the merger transaction?

A. I am uncertain.

Q. Had you worked with the Wachtell firm before in the merger and acquisition transactions you have been doing over the years?

A. I have done some work with them.

Q. Had you ever worked with, excuse

A. Yes.

Q. -- of the firm.

And what other transactions had you worked on with Adam Emmerich?

A. I can't remember the specifics, but I do remember working with that firm on some deals, but I don't remember which ones.

Q. Did they serve bagels in the morning when you came in?

A. Better than yours.

Q. Okay. I will take that --

A. That's a real New York law firm.

Q. I will take that to management, (smiling).

Are you aware of any due diligence of any kind that Wachtell, Lipton did in connection with the Coleman/Sunbeam merger that was approved on February 27th, 1998 by The Coleman Company board?

A. As I sit here today, I have no specific memory of what specific work they did on this transaction other than to do the documents.

Q. So, when you say "do the documents", it would be, for example, do the merger agreements?

A. Yeah, the various paperwork would be done.

Q. The various confidentiality agreements that we reviewed?

A. I imagine that would fall in that category.

Q. Other than the two board meetings of February 25th and February 27th, 1998, when Mr. Emmerich appeared, did you speak with him about the Coleman/Sunbeam merger?

A. No.

Q. So, did you speak with him at all after the transaction was assigned on February 27th, about this transaction?

Q. So your -- just to close this out, your sole interface, if you will, as a director with the Wachtell, Lipton firm

A. To the best of my recollection, that is true.

Q. And if Wachtell, Lipton prepared any documents and you saw them, they would have been documents that were presented to you at the board meetings?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question, calls for speculation.

A. I am speculating, I could have gotten some documents outside of the board meeting but I have no recollection of getting them.

Q. Okay. Well, that's fair, let me ask the question a different way. Wachtell, Lipton did make presentations at both board meetings; correct?

A. To my knowledge.

Q. And they presented some documents because they are attached to the minutes of the meeting we looked at; right?

A. I think so.

Q. Okay. Now, aside from the documents that are attached to the minutes of the meeting, that are identified as being prepared by Wachtell, Lipton, did you receive any documents in connection with the merger from Wachtell, Lipton?

A. I don't recall ever seeing this before.

MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, will you mark as MS 188 a facsimile transmittal sheet and attachments for Project Laser Exhibit A: Transaction pricing calculations.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 188, facsimile transmittal sheet and attachments for Project Laser Exhibit A: Transaction pricing calculations, marked for identification.)

Q. Do you have MS 188 in front of you, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. This is a fax from Will Nesbitt to Adam Emmerich at Wachtell?

A. Yes.

Q. With an attachment.

Have you ever seen either the facsimile cover sheet or the attachment?

A. Not to my recollection.
Q. Do you understand -- looking at the transaction pricing calculations and the date of this document, do you recognize this as pricing calculations that were used in deciding whether to approve the merger agreement?
A. I couldn't say, I do not know.
Q. Look at the last -- please look at the last page of Mr. Em-- or Mr. Nesbitt's transmittal, please.
A. Yes.
Q. And, so, for the record it's Bates numbered CPH 1316962. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Third item under Basis of arrangement to convert to cash and stock, do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. It is: "Deliver as much in laser stock as can be permitted, remainder in cash".

Confidential - Slovin
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. At either of the board meetings, was there any discussion of whether the transaction should be structured as a cash transaction as opposed to a transaction that included the common stock of Sunbeam Corporation?
A. I just don't have a specific recollection of that -- it may have been a subject, but I just don't have a recollection of it, I'm sorry.
Q. You may set that aside, we are done.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: Five more minutes.
MR. BEMIS: Why don't we go ahead and change the tape now.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 2:05, this is the end of tape number two.
(Pause in proceedings.)
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 2:08, this begins tape number three of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Bruce Slovin, Esquire.

THE WITNESS: "Esquire.".
Q. Could you locate in your pile there MS 88, which may be towards the -- it's the board of directors minutes meetings, Mr. Slovin. And you might want to pull out, as well, the February 27th minutes, which are 118, those two documents will help.
188 and 118, they are both board of directors meetings.
A. 188 --
(Discussion off the record.)
Q. I can give you another one --
A. No, it's there. Okay --
Q. You have got it. Thank you very much, thank you for your help.
All right. Let's -- now that you have the two minutes in front of you, MS 88 and MS 118, let's focus now on -- exclusively on the board of directors meetings.
What did you understand your

Confidential - Slovin
duties to be as a director representing the majority shareholder of Coleman at that meeting?
MR. MARKOWSKI: Object to the form of the question.
Q. And I will limit it in connection with the approval of the merger.
A. As the majority shareholder and the public shareholders?
Q. I am going to ask you about them later, but right now I want to start as majority shareholder.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Same objection.
A. I don't think my sense of duty would have been any different.
I was asked to vote on a proposed transaction. I listened to the experts tell me their conclusions based upon the work they had done. I considered what I had heard and comments made at the table by the directors, and concluded that this was a fair and a reasonable transaction for both, the majority shareholder and the public shareholders and, therefore, I voted for the transaction.

Q. Now, with regard to the public shareholders, did you understand as minority shareholders in the Coleman organization that you, as a director, owed them a fiduciary duty under Delaware law?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Now, as part of the -- as part of the transaction, Sunbeam assumed a large amount of Coleman debt; did it not?

A. One of The Coleman Company, not Coleman Inc., I don't believe, I believe it was one of those two companies on top of Coleman, on the chart you showed me before, yes.

Q. And how much was that debt that was assumed?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I am just going to object to the form of the question, at this point, I think it was unclear what entity we are referring to.

Confidential - Slovin

A. My recollection it was in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Q. So by the assumption of that debt under the merger documents, and related documents, that debt was removed from the companies affiliated with Mr. Perelman and became then the obligation of Sunbeam; correct?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the question back for me, please.

(The record was read.)

MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the form.

A. I believe so.

Q. Now, in terms of the public shareholders, that is, those shareholders not affiliated with Mr. Perelman, there was no similar assumption of debt part of the transaction; correct?

A. No.

Q. Now focusing specifically on the board of directors meeting on the 25th of February 1998, which is memorialized in the minutes of MS 88, if you would look at that. There are documents -- excuse me, three pages of charts, if you will, attached to the back of the minutes.

Confidential - Slovin

Would you look at those, please?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, were you -- strike that. Were these documents -- withdrawn. Were these three pages shown to the directors at the meeting?

A. I'm sorry, I have no recollection of whether I saw these three pages at the meeting or not.

Q. Well, let's set aside whether the same three pages. Did you see as a part of the presentation by your law firm, Wachtell, Lipton -- when I say "your", I am talking about The Coleman Company -- your law firm a presentation on the proposed structure of the merger?

A. There was conversation concerning the structure. Whether I saw a chart I cannot tell you because I don't remember.

Q. Well, during the meeting which we have identified lasting approximately 1.5 hours, could you tell the jury how the meeting progressed by presen-- in order of presentation?

Confidential - Slovin

A. I am afraid I cannot do that. I don't recall the precise presentation, the manner in which it was presented.

I believe that Jerry Levin was the chair of the meeting, and he introduced the subject matter and introduced Adam Emmerich, the attorney, and I believe then he introduced Gordon Rich, and we had a discussion, and they talked about the prospective deal and my recollection was that at the end of the meeting they said: We are not asking you to do any voting, they can consider it, reflect on it, and we still have some work to do and we will be back to you fairly shortly with what most likely would be a request to approve or disapprove the transaction.

Q. So, if I understand correctly, Mr. Levin spoke first; is that right?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0186096

Confidential - Slovin

A. That's my recollection.
Q. Is that your recollection?
A. It's reflected by these minutes. This does refresh my recollection a bit. I don't know if I have any independent recollection.
Q. The minutes also reflect on page 2, in the third paragraph, that Mr. James Maher spoke. Do you recall that?
A. Do I recall that? I think I do, yes.
Q. Do you recall what Mr. Maher said at the meeting?
A. He was talking about the structure of the deal, as I recall, and some of the work he had done and why he thought that was a sensible deal for the Coleman entities.
Q. Can you be any more specific in adding what Mr. Maher said, sir?
A. No, I cannot. I do not recall his specific comments.
Q. Was there a -- withdrawn. Did Mr. Maher give you a history of the negotiations with Sunbeam up to the time of the board of directors meeting on February 25th, kind of a blow-by-blow, if you will, of the negotiations?

Confidential - Slovin

A. I don't recall a blow-by-blow. I do recall some general overview, but not step-by-step.
Q. Is it, in your experience, as someone who has done many M&A transactions, is it customary for deals to go back and forth between the buyers and the sellers until they reach a final deal?
A. Yes.
Q. According to the minutes, on page 2, in the third paragraph, it says quote: "Following Mr. Maher's review, the directors asked numerous questions regarding the proposed transaction and a discussion ensued among the directors."
Do you see that?
A. Where -- I'm sorry.
Q. In the third paragraph on the second page, last sentence, sir.
A. Yes, I do.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Could you tell the jury what any of the numerous questions were?
A. "The jury"?
Q. The jury who may watch your tape, yes, sir.
A. I don't have a specific recollection of questions, other than they went to the structure of the deal, the consideration of the deal, why it was the right thing to do, in the opinion of Mr. Maher, how he came to the terms that he was working on, those type of general questions, but a specific question I am afraid I can't help you.
Q. Do you remember any questions being asked of Mr. Maher concerning why the deal was being structured to take Sunbeam stock, as opposed to cash?
A. I do believe there was some conversation to that extent, but precisely what it was I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember generally what it was?
A. No, I do not.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Did you ask any questions of why the transaction was being structured to take Sunbeam stock rather than an all-cash transaction?
A. I think I asked a question or two. I don't know if it was on that particular subject.
Q. What questions do you think you asked?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. There is in the minutes, in that same sentence that we read, after the numerous questions were asked, a discussion ensued among the directors. Do you remember any of the discussion that ensued among the directors after Mr. Maher's presentation?
A. Well, it related to the subject of the questions and the answers.
Q. I would hope so.
A. (Laughing.)
Q. Can you be anymore specific than that?
A. This was six years ago, my memory is really not so good, I don't remember details.

Q. All right. Well, after Mr. Levin's presentation and Mr. Maher's presentation, according to the minutes, Mr. Levin then introduced Mr. Emmerich. Is that consistent with your recollection?

A. My general recollection.

Q. What did Mr. Emmerich say at the meeting to the directors and the visitors?

A. He talked about the structure of the deal, why it was composed the way it was, from a legal point of view, what some of the ramifications were from a legal point of view, that sort of thing.

Q. What did he say about why the deal was structured the way it was and the legal ramifications?

A. Well, he said that this was a serious consideration, a thought, that this was the best interests of the Coleman shareholders and the public and majority shareholder.

Q. Did Mr. Maher express the same conclusion, that it was in the best interests of the public and private shareholders of The Coleman Company?

Confidential - Slovin

A. I think he was an advocate of the deal. What his exact terms were and his expressions, I don't remember. But he did tell us about the deal, and my understanding was he, after his extensive work, was an advocate of it going forward.

Q. So in addition to Mr. Emmerich and Mr. Maher, let's go back up to Mr. Levin --

A. "Levin."

Q. I apologize, Mr. Levin --

A. Minnesota, Levin.

Q. -- did he, as well, express the view that the transaction was in the best interests of The Coleman Company shareholders?

A. My recollection was that he did.

Q. Now, when the -- withdrawn.

(Discussion off the record.)

Q. Did Mr. -- I'm sorry, I don't mean to interrupt. Did Mr. Emmerich go through any of the additional agreements that are set forth in the merger agreement that -- and if it helps you, that is set forth in Section 7 -- excuse me, Article 7 of the merger agreement, MS 117, if you need to look at it.

Confidential - Slovin

A. I don't remember what other collateral agreements or documents he talked about.

Q. Well, one of them was the comfort letters from the -- cross-comfort letters from the two auditing firms.

A. Right.

Q. Was there any discussion of that?

A. My recollection is that -- I have no recollection of specific discussion on that subject. It was a subject that was raised at some point. What level of discussion ensued or who raised the question, what the responses were, I don't remember.

Q. But you do remember the subject being raised at one of the board meetings?

Confidential - Slovin

A. I do think so, I do think so, but my recollection is fuzzy, and sometimes the suggestion creates a memory, and I don't really want that to happen, so....

Q. So, as you sit here today, you can't remember the specific discussions on the cross-comfort letters but you believe it was discussed at some point.

A. I think so.

Q. Okay. And, just for the record, the cross-comfort letters I am referring to are those set forth in Section 7.2 of the merger agreement, MS 117.

Following Mr. Emmerich's presentation, the minutes reflect that the board asked questions and discussion ensued.

Do you recall any of the questions that were asked of Mr. Emmerich?

A. I recall that there were several questions, but I don't remember the specific ones.

Q. Do you remember any of the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018608

Confidential - Slovin

discussion that ensued following -- the questions that were asked?

A. They related to the questions that were asked, but I don't remember the specifics, I'm sorry.

Q. Now, turning to the next presentation at the board meeting, it would appear that Mr. Gordon Rich spoke, as you previously identified. Is that now consistent with your recollection?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Rich present any documents at the meeting on February 25?

A. I remember reading something in the presentation, I think he passed out some documents.

Q. Let me show you two documents, and ask you if those were shown to anyone.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 112, document, dated February 25th, 1998, marked for identification.)

Q. The first document I would like you to look at is marked as Morgan Stanley 112.

Do you have Exhibit MS 112 in front of you, sir?

A. Yeah.

Q. Was this document or any portion of it presented to the board of directors at the May -- "May" -- February 25th, 1998 meeting?

A. I believe so.

Q. Now, is there something in particular that makes you believe that this document was presented, other than it's dated February 25th, 1998?

A. Well, it talks to the subject of valuations, and that's what we were all interested in. It talks about, you know, range of values which, again, is something that we were all interested in. These valuations of stock prices and part of consideration are very important, and some are complicated. I sort of remember seeing something like this.

Q. Did CSFB use a PowerPoint presentation to present these to you in slide form or did you have hard copies handed out?

A. I think we had hard copies handed out.

I have seen Gordon present with slides, and maybe I am confusing them, because he has made many presentations to us. In this one, I don't recall a PowerPoint slide but I recall a hard copy.

Q. Okay. So this document, MS 112, would have been one of the documents that you would have considered in approving the merger?

A. Yes.

Q. On the February 27th; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Let me show you one other document, which is MS 197, which is on a cover -- I have with a cover page of Credit Suisse First Boston, and if the court reporter would mark that, as well.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 197, document with a cover page of Credit Suisse First Boston, marked for identification.)

Q. Do you have MS 197 in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see this document at either the February 25th or the 27th board meeting?

A. It's hard to say. This is more detail, as it's entitled, it's backup material for the presentation. I am a little confused because what you are showing me in this prior document was draft materials.

Q. Right.

A. So I am confused whether this was a final version that was presented, the prior one or whether -- I don't recall this backup document, the detail. I don't re-- but you see, some of the material in the backup document is very similar to the material in what is entitled the draft material. So, I remember more receiving this item called Draft materials and I don't remember clearly receiving the document called Backup materials.

Q. All right. So your best recollection is that you think you saw MS 112, but you don't recall --
A. Right.
Q. -- whether you saw MS 197; right?
A. Right.
Q. Okay. All right. You can set those two documents aside in your pile.
A. Can I take these home with me?
Q. You know, we could probably arrange that.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Actually, under the form of our protective order, you can't.
Q. We can have you sign Exhibit A and then you can take it home, if you want.
MR. MARKOWSKI: Even then you can't, but I am sure you don't want them.
THE WITNESS: It's just some humor.

Page 218

Q. One of the -- withdrawn. If you will look at the board of directors minutes again. I hope you didn't put those aside. Look at 188, please, and turn to the second page of the minutes, and focus on the third paragraph. And the second sentence of the third paragraph reads: "Mr. Maher reviewed the history of the proposed transaction, including both the course of discussion between the company and Sunbeam and an inquiry made by the company to what the company believed was the most likely potential bidder, which bidder was not interested."
Do you see that sentence?
A. Yeah.
Q. Did Mr. Maher identify, either directly or in response to questions, who the other potential bidder was?
A. I don't recall that he did.
Q. When CSFB made its presentation, did Mr. -- what did Mr. Rich say about another buyer would likely discount the First Boston estimates as set forth on page 4 in the second-to-the-last paragraph? And, again, I am referring to MS 88.

Page 219

Confidential - Slovin
A. Which page? Which paragraph?
Q. Page 4, next-to-the-last paragraph, and if you would focus on the last sentence, which reads as follows, quote: "Mr. Rich stated that although First Boston did not discount the 1998 EBITDA forecast, another buyer would likely discount such estimates resulting in a lower discounted cash flow range of values than those presented by First Boston." Closed quote.
What did Mr. Rich say about that topic, other than what's set forth here?
A. Well, I think he was suggesting that he thought that this deal perhaps was better valued than another deal might be and because another buyer might be more severe in his discounting the cash flow range, that was, he wasn't sure of that, but he said might be and likely and, therefore, the present deal was likely to be better for the Coleman people.

Page 220

Confidential - Slovin
Q. So, as I understand it, the First Boston's presentation did not discount the current forecast given by Sunbeam for its 1998 earnings; correct?
MR. MARKOWSKI: You are asking whether he knows that?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, I am asking that.
A. I am not sure. You are asking me things about which I don't remember, I'm sorry. And I don't know how to answer that question. I don't remember.
Q. Well, let's turn to the next page of the minutes, on page 5. The first paragraph reads: "Mr. Rich then provided a brief overview of Sunbeam, including Wall Street estimates for Sunbeam's stock price and then reviewed a" -- excuse me -- "reviewed a summary of the discounted cash flow analysis." Do you see that sentence?
A. Yes.
Q. What did Mr. Rich --
MR. MARKOWSKI: I think that's a comma.

MR. BEMIS: Is that a comma? Let me start over, you are correct, it is a comma.

Q. I would ask you, sir, to direct your attention to the first sentence on page 5 of MS 88, which reads as follows: "Mr. Rich then provided a brief overview of Sunbeam, including Wall Street estimates for Sunbeam's stock price and then reviewed a summary of the discounted cash flow analysis, comparable company analysis and comparable acquisition analysis for Sunbeam."

Do you see that sentence?

A. Yeah.

Q. What did Mr. Rich state, by way of overview, of Wall Street's estimates for Sunbeam's stock price?

A. Other than what it says in these minutes, I can't tell you more about what he said because I just don't remember.

Q. Was this information, Wall Street's estimates for Sunbeam's stock price, information that you considered in deciding whether to vote for the merger on February 27th?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Yes, I considered everything that they spoke about. Clearly, I was swayed by their conclusions and judgments, not only First Boston but our entire staff of people who worked on the deal and, yes, their words carried weight with me to help me make my judgment.

Q. All right. It states at the end of the paragraph we were reading from: "Following Mr. Rich's presentation, the directors asked questions and a discussion ensued."

Can you tell us what, if any, questions the directors asked and what discussion ensued?

A. You know, other than that it was about the content of Mr. Rich's presentation, I can't help you.

Q. Did Mr. Levin, at the end of the meeting, tell you what the status of the negotiations were as of February 25th?

Confidential - Slovin

A. I think he implied that they had reached a very serious point and that they were ongoing and a serious pace, and that we could expect to hear from him shortly as to what final deal they might be presenting to the board, if a final deal was, in fact, reached.

Q. Going back up to the first paragraph again, the reference to "Wall Street estimates", do you see that up there, sir?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you understand "Wall Street estimates" to be estimates of analysts who follow the Sunbeam stock?

A. Yes.

Q. Such as Mr. Shore, who we looked at earlier from PaineWebber?

A. Yeah -- yes.

Q. Is that something that, as a man experienced in M&A transactions with the many years that you have described it, that when you are looking at a company you will research and look at analyst reports on a company if it's being followed by a brokerage house?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did any of the directors at the -- at that February 25th meeting, ask to see any of the Wall Street estimates such as what Mr. -- we showed you earlier regarding Mr. Andrew Shore, that he had done with regard to Sunbeam, did you ask to see the actual underlying estimates?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I am going to object to the form of the question.

A. I don't remember.

Q. All right. Let's set aside February 25th and move forward to -- one second before -- withdrawn.

Do you have the minutes of the February 27th meeting now in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. That should be MS 118. Okay, good.

The minutes reflect, on the first page, that the meeting was called to order at 9:30 a.m.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0011811

Confidential - Slovin

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And at the very end of the minutes, it reflects that the meeting had adjourned at 10:30 p.m.

Do you see that?

A. What page is that?

Q. It would be page 11, sir.

A. Yes.

Q. And did the meeting -- was the meeting continuous from 9:30 in the morning until 10:30 or -- setting aside people taking a quick break for coffee or the restrooms, were you in session for 11 -- I mean 13 hours?

A. Oh -- hmm -- I don't remember our meeting lasting that long, honestly. I don't remember. It might have. It says it does. There is no reason for me to argue against it. I can't believe that if it lasted that long, that people didn't step in and out of that meeting. Had a lot of old characters on the board, they would definitely be stepping out.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Well, let's start with the people in attendance, starting with the directors again.

Based on your recollection, is that an accurate accounting of those directors that attended the meeting?

A. I swear I don't remember. I'm sorry.

Q. Okay. The others in attendance that are listed on the first page of MS 118, does that appear to be a correct listing of the "quote" "others" who were attending?

A. Looked like the cast of characters that would supplement the meeting, other than directors, yeah.

Q. Now, I asked you earlier about a Michael Katzke. Do you remember I --

A. No, I didn't remember who he was.

I see he is one of the attorneys from Wachtell, Lipton.

Q. Okay.

A. And Richard Duffy, who I didn't

Confidential - Slovin

know was one of the Credit Suisse people.

Q. Could you tell me how the meeting progressed, regardless of how long it took, on February 27th of 1998.

A. To do so, I would have to look over the minutes themselves. I mean, I would start that Mr. Levin called the minute -- the meeting to order at 10:30, and he then related to us some of the changes that had taken place and the consideration and exchange ratios from the time we met, just two days before, and then again --

MR. MARKOWSKI: I ask you to read the minutes.

A. But that's the way it would progress.

I don't have an independent recollection of -- other than the reading of the minutes, of the manner in which the meeting progressed, who spoke first, who spoke second.

Q. Well, according to the minutes, it appears that Mr. Levin spoke, then

Confidential - Slovin

Mr. Emmerich spoke, Mr. Rich spoke again, and Mr. Levin then reviewed the transactions, and then various motions were put to the board of directors. That's in the first two pages --

A. Yeah.

Q. -- of one paragraph.

A. Yes.

Q. Now -- and I am not trying to be facetious, or anything -- is there any reason to believe that it took 13 hours to cover these two pages of the minutes?

A. No, I couldn't -- I wouldn't under-- be able to tell you why it would take so long.

I -- perhaps there is an error in typing.

Q. Well, that's what I am asking -- I guess, ultimately, that might be the question, is there an error in the typing "adjourned at 10:30 p.m."?

MR. MARKOWSKI: To be fair to the witness, there is an explanation at the end of the minutes, if you want to see if it refreshes his recollection.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018612

Confidential - Slovin

Q. You can look at page 10 at the bottom there.

A. Thank you for your help.

Oh, thank you, there you go. It sounded like it was postponed for a bit until the Sunbeam people finished their work and then we concluded when they concluded.

Q. So, is it fair to say there was a meeting starting at 9:30, it concluded at some point, then there was a break and then you-all came back after a Sunbeam meeting, and then you adjourned again at 10:30?

A. I didn't recall that, honestly, but thanks to counsel's identifying this last penultimate paragraph -- half-paragraph on page 10, that's what would appeared to have happened.

Q. Now, did anyone other than the directors and the advisors, that is, First Boston through Mr. Gordon Rich and

Confidential - Slovin

Mr. Emmerich on behalf of Wachtell, Lipton and Mr. Levin on behalf of -- not advisor but was employed by Coleman, did anyone else make formal preparations to the board?

A. I don't have any recollection of others presenting in a formal manner.

Q. There are some documents attached to the minutes beginning right after page 11. If you will turn to those, please.

A. Yes.

Q. Were these documents presented to the board of directors on February 27th?

A. Well, this is, once again, those little charts you referred to earlier, and I would have to repeat my remarks, I don't recall.

Q. Was there any type of -- withdrawn. Was there a PowerPoint or slide presentation given at the meeting on February 27th?

A. I don't recall.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Now, having gone through both the meetings on February -- well, strike that. When the board reconvened, after the adjournment and I guess following the Sunbeam meeting, if the minutes are to be believed, what transpired at the second part of the board of directors meeting?

A. I'm sorry, I don't remember.

Q. Okay. Was the merger agreement, which we have marked as MS 113 --

MS. BROWN: 17.

Q. Withdrawn. Was the merger agreement, which we marked as MS 117, was that document available to the directors at the board of directors meeting on February 27th, 1998, when they actually voted to approve the merger?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Would you have approved -- voted to approve the merger without reviewing the merger documents, the merger agreement, MS 117?

A. If it was gone over by counsel and those who were responsible for its drafting and execution, and they explained it to me, I don't think I would feel obliged in the execution of my fiduciary duties to read each page. I had confidence in the lawyers and our staff. We talked extensively about the terms, and I don't think I had to read it in order to execute my authority.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Do you know if any of the directors read the merger agreement, MS 117, before they voted to approve the merger on February 27th, 1998?

A. I don't know who did what, as far as reading the entire document, no, I do not remember.

Q. With regard to the further responsibilities under the merger agreement, MS 117, such as the cross-comfort letters from the auditors, who at the Coleman Company, whether it be the board or employees, were responsible for seeing that these other items were followed up on?

A. Well, the people in charge of the transaction had the responsibility to see that all the requirements of the deal were honored by our side as well as by Sunbeam's side.

Q. So who is the person --

A. I don't --

Q. Is there one person?

A. I don't think there is one person that has such a responsibility.

I think the lawyers have their area of privilege, and the analysts have theirs, and I would think that Jerry Levin was the generalist on this deal, along with Jim Maher, to make sure that responsibilities were honored on both sides.

Q. Let me show you now what's been marked as -- withdrawn. One final question. I asked you earlier whether at either of the board meetings anyone from Morgan Stanley spoke. We have now been through all the meetings, and you have told me the course of proceeding. Do you recall anyone from Morgan Stanley ever appearing at these board meetings on February 25th or February 27th?

A. I'm sorry, but I don't recall.

Q. You don't recall them appearing.

A. I don't recall either way.

Q. Do you see them on the list of attendees under the name Others on either of the board minutes?

A. No, no, I do not.

MR. BEMIS: So the record will reflect the witness was referring to MS 112 -- excuse me, it's 88 -- you are hiding those -- let the record reflect the witness is referring to the minutes of the board meeting February 25th and February 27th, which are MS 88 and 118.

Q. You can set those aside.

A. Did you say that was the final question?

Q. On that subject. We are doing fine.

Do you want to take a break before we get going?

Confidential - Slovin

A. No, I want to keep going.

MR. BEMIS: How are you doing, Ms. Reporter?

(Discussion off the record.)

MR. BEMIS: Would you please mark this MS 189, please. This is a two-page document.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 189, two-page document, which is addressed to Will Nesbitt from Alexandre J. Fuchs, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated, and there is an attachment of one page to it, marked for identification.)

Q. The court reporter has marked for you MS 189, which is addressed to Will Nesbitt from --

A. Fuchs.

Q. -- from Alexandre J. Fuchs, Morgan Stanley & Co., Incorporated.

MR. MARKOWSKI: And could I have mine?

MR. BEMIS: Oh, I'm sorry.

Q. And there is an attachment of

Confidential - Slovin

one page to it.

Have you ever seen this document?

A. Not to my recollection.

Q. Okay. You may set that aside.

Do you know what a "road-show" is?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Okay. Tell the jury what a "road-show" is.

A. My understanding of a "road-show" is this arena would be proponents of a deal of some sort, the sale of some financial instrument, representing a particular company, going out on the road to visit various financial institutions to try to sell the product that they were hawking at the time, and they would go from city to city, from financial institution to financial institution and explain why a bond, for example, they were selling, why some stock that they were selling was good value and that the audience ought to consider purchasing same.

That's what I understand a "road-show" to mean.

Q. When you said "hawking", you weren't using that in a pejorative sense; were you?

A. Not at all.

Q. Could you explain to the jury how in the case of -- say the zero coupon debentures that we looked at earlier that were going to be used as part of the financing of this transaction, how those are underwritten and sold, based on your experience?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read that back, please?

MR. BEMIS: I will rephrase the question.

Q. You remember we looked at the offering memorandum for the zero coupon debentures?

A. (Nodding.)

Q. I think they are subordinated debentures, that were being offered in connection with the Sunbeam acquisition. Do you recall that?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Yes.

Q. What is an "underwriter"?

A. My understanding is someone who says that -- the financial institution that says that: I will underwrite the success of this deal, whoever doesn't take whatever remains unsold I will see to it that it's taken by our house, if necessary.

Q. In this case, when you -- withdrawn. Carrying that forward now to the road-show, is it customary for the underwriters to participate in the road-show?

A. I think so.

Q. Did you attend any of the road-show presentations for the zero coupon notes that were being offered in connection with the financing of the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Let me just -- I want to show

Confidential - Slovin

you what the court reporter will mark as MS 193.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 193, on the second page, it's entitled Sunbeam road-show presentation speaking points March 15th, 1998, marked for identification.)

Q. Do you have MS 193 in front of you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. All right, sir.

On the second page, it's entitled Sunbeam road-show presentation speaking points March 15th, 1998. I ask you to take a look at this quickly and -- or take as much time as you want, and tell me whether you have ever seen this document with or without handwriting. There are some handwritten notes --

A. I don't recall ever having seen this document.

Q. And have you ever done a road-show?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever been a presenter at a road-show?

A. Did present as the lead presenter? I don't think so, I think I participated.

Q. And were you participating along with an underwriter?

A. I think the financial institution hired to sell the instrument went along with us, and whether they were underwriters or using best efforts I don't remember, but everybody talked what a good deal was being offered to them and that they should reflect and participate.

Q. Well, best efforts is also underwriting, it's a firm underwriting best efforts --

A. Fair enough. I was using "underwriting" as a firm underwriting before when I spoke.

Q. And I understood that, that's why I wanted to clarify.

A. Right.

018615

Q. But, in your experience -- strike that. You have actually participated with underwriters whether they be best efforts --

A. Right.

Q. -- or firm underwriting in a road-show representing the -- one of the beneficiaries, if you will, of the debt obligation and if it happens to be that that was trying to be sold; correct?

A. Right, right.

Q. So in terms of there being a road-show, if you will, for these zero coupon notes, you don't find anything unusual in that, do you, in this case?

A. Unusual? No. Road-shows, you know, if you are fortunate, you don't have to go on the road because the document sells itself mostly, but most often in a large offering you have to get out there, you know, and rub elbows with the prospective purchaser, and try to convince them of the quality of the product. I don't know if it's -- I don't think it's unusual.

Q. And, in this case, the offering that was being made, underwritten by -- I think it's Morgan Stanley Senior Funding was --

MR. MARKOWSKI: That's --

MR. BEMIS: No, I misspoke.

Q. It was being offered by Morgan & Stanley & Co., Incorporated, being underwritten by them, was in excess of a billion dollars; wasn't it?

A. Is the document -- can I --

Q. Go ahead, you can look at it.

A. Was it in excess of a billion dollars?

Q. Yeah.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Are you referring to the face value of the note or --

MR. BEMIS: Yes, face value of the note.

A. $2,014,000,000.

Q. And on a discounted basis, I think it was approximately $1.2 billion;

Confidential - Slovin

correct?

A. I don't know --

MR. MARKOWSKI: That's not --

A. -- what the discount value --

MR. MARKOWSKI: That's not correct.

Q. What was the number?

MR. MARKOWSKI: It's actually in the speaking points, if you want to take a look.

MR. BEMIS: No --

A. What's the relevancy of that?

MR. MARKOWSKI: The fourth page.

Q. Just for the purposes of not forgetting it, the next time I get asked.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Do you see the --

THE WITNESS: Help him out, give him the page.

MR. MARKOWSKI: 398, CPH 255398.

A. Can we switch the camera to you now?

Q. No, can't do that.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Just trying to

MR. BEMIS: (Pause.)

Yep. (Pause.)

Q. Now, with that help, which is probably not necessary at this point, but let me go on to another topic with you and show you one additional document and ask you whether you have seen that before.

And that is MS -- we will mark as MS 194.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 194, document entitled Sunbeam road-show presentation speaking points March 15th, 1998, marked for identification.)

Q. I have handed you what has been marked as MS 194, which is also entitled Sunbeam road-show presentation speaking points March 15th, 1998.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, this -- have you seen this document or any version of it before --

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Okay. You can set that aside.
(Pause.)
(Discussion off the record.)
THE WITNESS: You don't have to go to the Equinox Club after doing all this jumping up and down, you can go home early tonight.
MR. BEMIS: I wish. Would you, Ms. Reporter, please mark as MS 208 the Form 10-K for Sunbeam Corporation for -- the as-of date, I think I missed this, I want to say February 27th, 1998.
(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 208, Form 10-K for the period ending December 28, 1997 for the Sunbeam Corporation, marked for identification.)
MR. MARKOWSKI: Are you referring to the date when it was filed?
MR. BEMIS: No, I was referring to the bottom date, I think that was incorrect, I will correct it as soon as I give it to him.

Q. I have handed you what has been marked as MS 208, which is the Form 10-K for the period ending December 28, 1997 for Sunbeam Corporation.
Do you have that in front of you sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen that document before?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you look at Sunbeam's Form 10-K before you voted to approve the merger on February 27th, 1998 at The Coleman Company board meeting?
A. I don't remember.
Q. The Form 10-K is a document that, when filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, is generally considered public information; isn't it?
A. Yes.
Q. You can go -- you can actually go on line now and a program called Edgar and you can print it out without any difficulty at all; correct?

A. Yes.
Q. Have you done that before?
A. No.
Q. "No"? You have had other people do it for you?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, set that aside.
Did you look at any analyst reports on Sunbeam Corporation after the press release of March 19th, 1998, which I think we previously identified as MS 210.
A. You know, I just don't remember.
I do do reading, you know, it sounds like I don't read anything. I just don't remember, in answer to your questions, did I read an analyst's report subsequent to the meetings. I may, indeed, have. I just don't remember.
Q. Well, let me show -- let me just show you one of these reports. We will look at Mr. Shore's report on March 19th, 1998, which I will ask the court reporter to mark as MS 212.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 212, Mr. Shore's report on March 19th, 1998, marked for identification.)
Q. Now, I have handed you --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Do you have a copy of that?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, I'm sorry.
Q. The court reporter has handed you what's been marked as MS 212.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who Andrew Shore is at PaineWebber?
A. Other than he's the author of this document, so I take it he's some form of analyst.
Q. Have you ever read any of his reports on Sunbeam?
A. I may have, I don't know for sure.
Q. Well, Mr. --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Before we go on, the page -- the copy I have got isn't complete.

MR. BEMIS: Okay, let me look, 2 of 3.
A. Nor is mine.
Q. You are missing the middle?
MR. BEMIS: I have got three pages in mine, let me see.
Q. How many pages do you have?
A. Two.
Q. Okay. Well, we have got a problem, here is 2 --
MR. BEMIS: Let's go off the record for a second.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 3:10, we are going off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 3:16, we are back on the record.
Q. All right. Thank you for your patience, we have now corrected the missing page on Exhibit 212.

Page 250

Do you have in front of you Morgan Stanley 212?
A. Yes.
Q. And, for the record, this is a report entitled Sunbeam Corp. grilled three exclamation marks by PaineWebber Andrew Shore March 1998.
A. Right.
Q. Would you take a minute and read this, sir, if you haven't seen it before.
A. (Pause.)
Yes.
Q. Now, my question is, having read it, at any point after the signing of the merger agreement up until I showed you this document, have you ever seen it before?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Well, reading its contents, had you seen it, would you have taken any action, as a director of The Coleman Company, to consult with your other directors as to the consummation of the merger transaction on March 30th?

Page 251

Confidential - Slovin
A. Would I or did I?
Q. Would you have, since you said you didn't see it or don't remember having seen it.
MR. MARKOWSKI: I object to the form of the question.
A. Well, I mean, this relates to the Sunbeam release which you showed me earlier, saying that the sales were weaker than they expected, and they gave a reason for that, the Sunbeam folks did, that the customers were either restocking or doing something to alter the purchasing of product. Then they go on in the release, I remember, that they would overcome that weakness in the first quarter and they were sticking with their yearly projections. This fellow's going into it in a little more detail than the other -- than Sunbeam, but he concludes that, all things considered, he thinks they will get back on track, and he's still recommending the company.
Would I, and did I, and would I

Page 252

Confidential - Slovin
have spoken to -- you know, if I read this before, I might have spoken to one of the people involved, saying: Do you think this is serious? Or: Is it as the release suggests that it's going to be overcome, as Shore suggests, it will be overcome? I might have said something. But that is also hypothetical because I don't remember saying it -- I don't remember if I engaged in any conversations concerning the subject matter of the release or this report by Shore.
Q. Okay, you can set it aside.
Now, let me show you now what we will mark as MS 213.
(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 213, Sands Brothers & Company Limited Investment Bankers document, dated March 19th, 1998, marked for identification.)
Q. Do you have MS 213 in front --
A. Yes.
Q. -- of you.
For the record, this is a Sands

Brothers & Company Limited Investment Bankers document, dated March 19th, 1998, following the press release of March 19th that we discussed earlier.

Have you ever seen this document before?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Okay. Do you know Sands Brothers Limited?

A. I know of them, yes, a smaller brokerage house -- a brokerage house, investment banking house, I guess.

MR. BEMIS: Would you please mark, Ms. Reporter, as MS 214, a CIBC Oppenheimer report, dated March 19th 1998, on Sunbeam Corporation.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 214, CIBC Oppenheimer report, dated March 19th 1998, on Sunbeam Corporation, marked for identification.)

Q. Do you have MS 214 in front of you, sir?

A. Yes.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Have you ever seen this analyst's report?

A. Not that I recall.

Q. You may set it aside.

Let me show you now a document marked as MS 36 by the court reporter.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 36, copy of The New York Times article appearing on March 20th, 1998, entitled Sunbeam stock falls 9.4 percent on lower projections for revenue, marked for identification.)

(Discussion off the record.)

Q. Do you have MS 36 in front of you, which is a reprint -- or a copy of The New York Times article appearing on March 20th, 1998, entitled Sunbeam stock falls 9.4 percent on lower projections for revenue.

A. Right.

Q. Have you seen -- did you see this story in The New York Times?

A. I may have.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Well, as a director of The Coleman Company, Inc., who had voted to approve the merger on February 27th, 1998, was the fall in Sunbeam stock of 9.4 percent as a result of the March 19th press release a matter of concern to you?

A. Yes.

Q. After seeing that -- I mean, even if you didn't see the article, you were following the price of the stock; were you not?

A. No, I knew that Sunbeam came in with a lower first quarter than they anticipated. Whether I read (indicating) any one of these Shore or this fellow from Sands or this fellow from Oppenheimer, whether I read their report, I don't remember, but I do recall being told and -- that this was nothing to worry about, and that the company had adequately explained the fall in sales, that they thought that it was going to recover. The analysts picked that up and agreed. The stock fell, I think, you know, as often occurs, there are overreactions, temporary overreactions to news, you see it every day in the paper today, and that doesn't belie value or what something is going to -- the stock is going to be the next day.

I did not see that, though, the slight weakness in sales.

Don't forget, they didn't talk about earnings weakness, which we would presume would be slightly affected, more affected by the shortfall in sales, but it was still up against the prior year, the momentum still looked like it was carrying forward with the company, and I didn't see, in my judgment, that it was so material. I wasn't happy with it, but not being pleased with an event doesn't require you to act unless it rises to the level of what you conclude or your associates conclude is a "material event".

Q. Did you consider the fall in Sunbeam's stock price of 9.4 percent after the March 19th press release, as reported

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Confidential - Slovin

by the New York Times on March 20th, 1998, as to be a "material event"?

A. I didn't view that as a "material event". I viewed it as an overreaction to an earnings report in a stock that was fairly fully valued.

Q. Did you rush in and buy any Sunbeam stock as a result of the price dropping 9.4 percent on March 19th?

A. I don't believe I did. I would have to review my stock trends.

Q. You can set that aside.

By the way, when you said that you were told that by someone, as I recall your testimony, that this was only a temporary event or temporary setback, who was it who told you that?

A. One of the participants in the deal on our side.

Q. So it would have either been -- it would have had to have been one of your inner circle people, if you will, or your investment bankers or your lawyers or your accountants; right?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Yeah, the people with whom I relied upon to take facts and analyze it for us, because they knew the company much better than I and upon whose judgment I relied a good deal upon.

Q. Okay. I show you what's been marked as MS 215, which is a reprint of a Wall Street Journal article, on March 20th, 1998.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 215, reprint of a Wall Street Journal article, on March 20th, 1998, marked for identification.)

Do you have that in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. You told me earlier that one of the financial sources that you read is The Wall Street Journal along with the other one was The Financial Times; is that right?

A. And The New York Times.

Q. And The New York Times.

Did you read MS 215, which is a

Confidential - Slovin

reprint from an article of The Wall Street Journal, on Friday, March 20th, 1998?

A. I'm sorry, I don't remember if I read this article on March 20th, 1998.

Q. Well, if you look at the paragraph, which begins: "While Sunbeam's" -- which is one, two -- five paragraphs down: "While Sunbeam's announcements ".

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. It says: "While Sunbeam's announcement didn't discuss the company's earnings outlook, analysts said the sales disappointment is bound to affect profits. Sunbeam officials didn't return calls for" -- "calls seeking comment."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, that's actually consistent with what you said, right, that if sales fall it was bound to affect their profits; correct?

A. Yes.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. So if you had read The Wall Street Journal on March 20th, 1998, you knew at least by that date, ten days before the closing, that not only had there been a downturn announced in their sales but that was bound to affect the company's profits, as well; didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. And the next paragraph, one of the analysts is quoted as saying: "The company has made promises they haven't delivered on and that is certainly being factored into the stock today."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And if you had seen that, you would have known at least one of the analysts said the company wasn't delivering on promises they had made; right?

A. No, they said, if you read it carefully, hadn't in the past, has made promises that they haven't delivered on, and that is certainly being factored into the stock today. In other words, they took the stock down, you know, what I viewed as excessive, having, you know, read or been told about the shortfall in sales, which seemed to me fairly slight, it was up against the prior period last year, I still felt that there was momentum in the company, and that they gave a reasonable explanation for the shortfall in sales which, you know, having been in business many years, you do have, every once in a while, your customers rearranging inventory, it has nothing to do with the product acceptance, and often the next quarter or the quarter following picks up on the shortfall.

It didn't appear to me -- I wasn't happy with it, but it didn't appear to me to be anything very serious, not the way it was set forth in the release and in the analyst's reviews, which were fairly consistent, saying that they felt that they were going to catch up and that this wasn't a break in the momentum that they had built up in the last couple of years.

Q. When you said "they felt they were going to catch up", that they felt they were going to do better in the future, is that what you mean by that?

A. No, I think that in the Sunbeam release it said that: We had a shortfall in sales -- I mean, if I can find it, but that: For the year, we are still on target to meet the projections for the year.

Q. That's --

A. So you don't --

Q. I'm sorry.

A. -- you don't do deals based upon quarterly gyrations in sales, you can't do that.

Q. Any projections as to what Sunbeam -- well, withdrawn. What's a "forward-looking statement"?

A. A statement about the future.

Q. And do you rely on forward-looking statements in doing mergers and acquisition agreements?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Absolutely. How can you walk out of the office here without knowing what or thinking what's going to happen an hour from now? You know, the world doesn't stop at the minute the clock ticks.

Q. So, notwithstanding the March 19th press release, the analyst's report, to you the world didn't stop and the clock kept ticking and you just proceeded on to the closing?

A. Well, did you read the analysts' reports? They seemed fairly uniform, that this would be a problem overcome and that they were still recommending the company.

Q. So as long as the analysts were still recommending the company, it was your considered judgment, as a person who does this as a living, that you would proceed with the merger closing?

A. Certainly, analysts' views are not to be dismissed lightly. They are intelligent people from the Wall Street community, good houses, who spent a lot of time with this particular company. It's their bread and butter.

In addition, I relied upon the release of the company -- "relied" is a little bit wrong, but I took into account the words of the release, which was comforting, I spoke to my people who knew much more than I did at the time, and they were not exorcized by it. When I put it all together, I myself was not unduly concerned with the 10 percent fall in sales due to inventory corrections, as I read it.

I have seen that happen many times in monitoring businesses, and it didn't seem to be an occasion for too much hand-wringing. No one liked it, but it was one of those events that occur in every business as it moves along from month to month, especially a retail business, where you are depending upon the customer coming every day and you don't know who is going to come in and buy your product. Whether it could be Farrell (phonetic) or some other event takes place.

Q. And was this the view that you articulated the view of your investment advisor, Credit Suisse First Boston?

A. You know, again, I don't remember if I had a specific conversation with Gordon Rich or it was with Maher or Perelman or Gittis or Nesbitt, but the conclusion that I recall reaching, based upon what I had read and what conversations I had, that this was not a terribly negative event.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 216, report by Goldman Sachs, under the name of Elizabeth Fontanelli (phonetic), dated March 20th, 1998, marked for identification.)

Q. Let me show you now what's been marked as 216.

I have handed you what's been marked as MS 216, which is a report by Goldman Sachs, under the name of Elizabeth Fontanelli (phonetic), dated March 20th, 1998. Have you seen this before?

A. I don't recall.

Q. You will notice the -- withdrawn. Please turn to the last page.

A. Yeah.

Q. The last sentence reads: "We expect near-term volatility around these fundamental issues until Sunbeam reports earnings in late April".

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you agree with that statement, that there would be near-term volatility in its stock?

A. I don't know.

Don't forget, the Sunbeam stock was fairly fully priced at the time, it wasn't a stock that was priced on a skimpy basis, it was a full price, and when you have that, you know, you are bound to get down-drafts from time to time based upon a piece of news that isn't positive. And I also read that they continued to recommend the purchase, this is Goldman Sachs, of the various houses that were reporting on the company, it was the most prestigious, and they stayed with their estimate of 1999 earnings.

So they are saying to you here: Near-term, you can get bounces in the stock. We certainly just had one, if -- 9.4 percent, as you point out, and that to expect some volatility, but we are sticking with the company, we think momentum is in place, and we are recommending that you purchase it at these levels, and what was the level, $45.38, a pretty good price that Goldman Sachs is recommending to buy it at this price at this time, notwithstanding the weakness in the sales of the first quarter, written by a woman who obviously knew the company and had been following it and analyzing it for a period of time.

Q. You can set that aside.

MR. MARKOWSKI: I think, before we do that, we may have found the

MR. BEMIS: It's not on mine.

MR. MARKOWSKI: Does yours have --

Q. Do you have Exhibit 219 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, this report is dated one day after the Exhibit 218 that we just looked at from Standard & Poor's. And I would ask you to focus your attention now under Valuation 20 - March 1998.
Do you see that?
A. Recently downgraded the shares to hold from accumulate; right?
Q. Right, that's the paragraph I am

Page 271

Confidential - Slovin
asking you to look at. Are you there?
A. I am there.
Q. Can you read that sentence -- first of all, did you see this report by Standard & Poor's on Sunbeam Corporation which was issued nine days before the closing of the merger?
A. I can't tell you that I did, I don't remember.
Q. Well, the report notes that, quote: "This would represent the second consecutive quarter that results did not meet projections and suggests more doubt about the company's ability to meet its aggressive financial objectives."
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you know on February 27th, 1998, when you voted to approve the merger, that Sunbeam had missed its 1997 fourth quarter earnings estimates?
A. I think I did.
Q. So you knew that at the time you voted on the merger and then --

Page 272

Confidential - Slovin
A. Yeah, because I thought that -- I still expected rapid growth, 2-99, and that there was a general positive trend should support the price of the stock, even though the near-term trading would be choppy.
I mean, this paragraph you are choosing to select portions of it that are negative, but the paragraph ends on a positive note.
Q. So, people -- so analysts following this stock, notwithstanding the information that was in the press release, still were acting on a positive note; is that your conclusion?
A. Yeah, I mean, I have read all of these reports.
As I said to you, the best house that I see analyzing it was Goldman Sachs, and they recommended purchase at forty-five dollars and change. You know, you can't disregard that.
I mean, these houses build up reputations, and Goldman Sachs has the best reputation of all the companies that we read, although the great majority of them were optimistic.

Q. As a result of these press releases that all came out following the March 19th -- excuse me, withdrawn. As a result of these analyst reports that we have been going through following the March 19th press release, did you make any inquiry of anyone at Morgan Stanley at all about Sunbeam's financial performance?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask -- did anyone from The Coleman Company ask Sunbeam Corporation for any financial update, if you will --

A. I don't --

Q. -- about its condition, excuse me, following the March 19th press release.

A. I do not know.

Q. Well, given that under the terms of the -- given that under the terms of the merger agreement, Sunbeam was obligated to request and provide to The Coleman Company a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen, wouldn't it have been prudent for the directors of the company -- The Coleman Company, to request a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen as they were -- as agreed to in the merger agreement?

Confidential - Slovin

MR. MARKOWSKI: Hold on, let me object. I am going to object to the form of the question. I think it's misleading and improper.

Q. You can answer.

A. I relied on seasoned, experienced people to draw conclusions on what action should be taken given the events that we are referring to now. It was their judgment. I don't know things that they did do, what investigations that they did make to comfort them or discomfort them. I just don't know. And I can't answer your question because I don't know what they had done, you know, to comfort themselves based upon the shortfall of sales.

Q. My question is, I think, a little bit different than perhaps you understood it, and let me try it one more time.

You were a director of The Coleman Company on March 27th with fiduciary duties to not only the public shareholders but the private shareholders of Mr. Perelman's companies; right?

A. Yes.

Q. And on March 19th, you get a press release, the second earnings or sales shortfall where Sunbeam had failed to meet street estimates; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The stock --

(Discussion off the record.)

Q. By Sunbeam Corporation. And your answer was "yes"; right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And the stock price falls -- the stock price falls 9.7

Confidential - Slovin

percent --

A. 4 percent.

Q. 9.4 percent, thank you for correcting me -- the stock price of Sunbeam falls 9.4 percent upon the issuance of the press release; correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you -- and you, "you", that is Coleman -- had a right to receive from Sunbeam a comfort letter from Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen, pursuant to Section 7.2 B of the merger agreement; right?

MR. MARKOWSKI: I object, the form of the question, it's misleading.

Q. You can answer.

A. What's the question?

Q. Do you want me to try it again? I will ask it again.

Under the terms of the merger agreement, Sunbeam, through the subsidiary Laser, as was described in the merger agreement, was required to use its reasonable best efforts to cause to be delivered to the company -- company, that is, The Coleman Company, a quote comfort closed quote letters, letters of Arthur Andersen, LLP Lasers, i.e. Sunbeam's independent public accountants; correct? Right?

A. Yeah, you are reading from the document.

Q. That's right. And that was one of --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Could you read the entire sentence, Larry, or did you cut it off?

Q. I can continue reading. "Dated the date of the registration shall become effective and as of the date which the information statement is mailed to the company stockholders and addressed to the company and Laser in a form and substance reasonably satisfactory to the company and is reasonably customary in scope and substance for letters delivered by independent public accountants in connection with transactions such as those contemplated by this agreement." That's the whole sentence.

Do you know the date the information statement was mailed to the stockholders of Coleman pursuant to Section 14 F?

A. It was sometime later.

Q. No, it wasn't sometime later, it was on March 18th.

I can show it to you, if you want.

A. So that's the day before.

Q. Right, the press release.

A. The press release, okay.

Q. Now, my question to you, wouldn't it have been prudent, given the information that you had as a director with fiduciary duties to the public stockholders, at a minimum, to have requested from Sunbeam that they deliver the comfort letter that they were obligated to seek using reasonable efforts from Arthur Andersen pursuant to Section

Confidential - Slovin

7.2 B?

A. And you are suggesting that we didn't do that?

Q. I asked you whether you did it and you said you didn't know.

A. I don't know.

Q. Now my question is, even if you don't know, wouldn't it have been prudent for you as a fiduciary to ask for the comfort letter.

A. And I said I can't answer that because I don't know the other things that the people did do.

In some instances, it would be more prudent and less prudent in other instances. What had they done to satisfy themselves that their actions or inactions were appropriate. And I don't know. So, I can't answer that in a vacuum, because it depends on what other things I have done.

It's a thing that -- right that you have, do you determine that it's necessary.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Did you make a conscious decision that it wasn't necessary --

A. No --

Q. -- to get a comfort letter?

A. No, because I wasn't involved in those decisions.

As a director, I did not follow each portion of the contract to make sure that it was observed by either side. I just assumed that the people that were handling it abided on both sides by the terms of the contract, so all the warranties and representations by both sides were properly adhered to.

Q. Well, let me ask the question, then, a different way.

In your judgment, as a director and as a fiduciary to the shareholders, would it have been prudent for those responsible for following, if you will, compliance with the merger agreement, to have requested of Sunbeam that they provide The Coleman Company with the comfort letter from Arthur Andersen set forth in paragraph 7.2 B of the merger agreement?

A. Well, obviously, our people made a decision on a course of action. I don't know what course of action they took and they made a decision based upon an assemblage of facts and circumstances that were satisfactory to themselves. There are a whole range of considerations that go into a final decision in this regard.

They made a decision, whatever it was.

Q. What --

A. And I presume that they were responsible people, because their records indicated that they were. And, you know, if they didn't do it, they probably had good reason because they did other things. I really don't know.

Q. Well --

A. You are saying why not take advantage of it and, you know, I don't know how to answer you. It's necessary or unnecessary.

Confidential - Slovin

I don't know if it would have been a delaying factor of significance, would it have set people's teeth ajar in some ways? I don't know what considerations went into a determination of their decision, which I don't know what it was, again.

So there are lots of -- you can't ask these questions in the abstract and say: Oh, they didn't do something they had a right to do, therefore they are not doing their job, it's impossible to answer it that way.

Q. Do you know what a "comfort letter" is?

A. I think it's a letter that --

MR. MARKOWSKI: Do you know what the comfort letter referred to in that paragraph is? Is that your question?

Q. Can you answer, sir, my question?

MR. MARKOWSKI: Hold on, let me --

Confidential - Slovin

A. Okay.

MR. MARKOWSKI: -- object to the form of the question, it's vague and misleading.

A. I think that a "comfort letter" tells you that they know of nothing material that has been other than from the representations and the warranties in the contract, and you ask is everything more or less okay, you know. And I think that's what a "comfort letter" is. And, normally, if something isn't okay with responsible people are going to tell it to you, so they are obliged to do that pursuant to the contract, whether you ask for it or not. If something material and negative has happened, I think they say: Hey, guys, something has happened. They didn't do that, to my knowledge, because they said it wasn't material because it was a blurred little answer, and everybody seemed to agree to that. All the analysts agreed to it that, that it wasn't anything serious. They all were saying that: It's going to be choppy, but we are recommending the purchase or hold the stock. And you get an Arthur Andersen, you get a Morgan Stanley, very very responsible people. If something material and negative happened, you know, you expect them to raise their hand and say: Hey, wait a second. They didn't do it. But, once again, I don't know what our guys concluded.

Confidential - Slovin

You are asking me something in a way that is in the abstract for me, because I don't know the circumstances at the time that led to whatever decision they made.

Q. Okay. Are you all done? I don't want to interrupt you.

A. (Laughing.)

Q. Okay. Let me go back.

Do you know what a "comfort letter" is from an auditing firm in the context of this paragraph 7.2 B?

A. You know, I am really not that sure.

I thought I told you what I thought it was, and you are asking me the same question again, and you want me to repeat the -- what I said before?

Q. No, I don't need you to repeat what you said before. If that is your answer, that's your answer.

A. Yeah.

MR. BEMIS: Would you please mark, Ms. Reporter, as MS 220, an Andrew Shore analyst report, dated -- let's see -- April 3rd, 1998.

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 220, Andrew Shore analyst report, dated April 3rd, 1998, marked for identification.)

Q. Please look at MS 220, and tell me when you are done.

A. (Pause.)

Yes.

Q. Have you seen MS 220 before?

A. I don't know if I have seen it, but I knew of the contents.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. "The contents" being the downgrade by Mr. Shore at PaineWebber?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you learn of the contents?

A. I might have read it, someone might have told it to me, but I did know that Coleman reported those bad numbers in April, early April.

MR. MARKOWSKI: You said "Coleman".

THE WITNESS: Uh --

A. Sunbeam.

Q. And do you see the initials on the right-hand side, it says "ROP" and then, below there, "DD FYI HG", I think?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that Mr. -- is that Mr. Gittis's writing?

A. Yes.

Q. Is "ROP" Mr. Perelman?

A. I believe, yes, it is, and "DD" is Donald Drapkin.

Q. Now, as a result of -- strike this. This was -- withdrawn. This report by Mr. Shore of April 3rd, 1998 was just -- what, four days after the closing; correct?

Confidential - Slovin

A. Yes.

Q. And did the board of directors -- did the board of directors of -- did the board of directors of any -- withdrawn. Did Mr. -- well, withdrawn.

What was your reaction to this downgrade by Mr. Shore on April 3rd and the mentioned press release on the earnings by Sunbeam?

A. I was shocked.

Q. You were shocked notwithstanding all the other information that you had received in March.

A. As I said to you, (indicating), I am going to have to repeat myself again, the great percentage of the analysts and the statement of the company were still upbeat, notwithstanding a small downward turn in the sales with a proper explanation. It was not negative.

Confidential - Slovin

This (indicating) report, and the Sunbeam report, is a hundred and eighty degrees opposite what was stated just a few weeks before. One doesn't follow the next. This came as a rude shock to our side, certainly, and you did not have a hint of the degree of trouble that's articulated here from the report and confirmation of the: Don't worry, we still recommend of the entire Wall Street community.

This is (indicating) just opposite. This is terrible. Before: This is nothing so bad, we still love the stock, buy it. Goldman Sachs $53 -- $45, sorry.

Q. So, as long as the analysts were --

A. No, no --

Q. Let me finish.

with the transaction, notwithstanding any other information you had or had an ability to acquire?

A. No, I didn't say that.

Q. No, the board of directors of The Coleman Company.

A. No, but you said notwithstanding other information out. What other information are you referring to? I don't know.

No one told me that this (indicating) was going to happen. I don't think anybody on our side had an inkling that this was going to happen. Why should they? Why would they? They had financial statements audited. They had one of the leading brokerage houses going around -- selling the bonds and standing behind the bonds. Why should the company have anticipated this? I don't see it at all. I didn't. There is nothing that have I read or had been told about that would have anticipated this dreadful set of results.

Confidential - Slovin

Q. Well, what is it you are telling me?

Are you telling me that Morgan Stanley knew something that they should have anticipated these dreadful results?

A. I didn't say that.

I said that what we had relied upon was audited statements, was a contract put together by serious representatives, by financial advisors of repute, by our own people and their analysis, and that led us to conclude that the transaction -- notwithstanding that the earnings might not hit the top level of the prognostication, we are still a valid and a good acquisition for the shareholders of Coleman, the small ones and the large one. That was our conclusion. And I think we had every right, based upon what I have read, to come to that conclusion, that this was a good arrangement for us, you know, notwithstanding the fact that Sunbeam was not the General Motors of its time, but it was a company that was moving in the right direction and had momentum behind it, everybody that represented them seemed to think that they were very good, that -- the momentum was good and the pricing was good and that, all things together, it was a very reasonable and fair deal for the Coleman people.

This statement (indicating) comes out of the blue, you know, it's nothing that you could have -- that we could have -- I don't believe, divined from the work that -- the documents that were presented to us, that were represented, and that the work that we had done.

You know, this (indicating) came from someplace that was a rude shock.

Q. Do you think it was -- are you aware -- do you think it was a rude shock to Morgan Stanley?

A. I have not the slightest idea what was in Morgan Stanley's mind.

All I know --

Confidential - Slovin

Q. So you -- I'm sorry, go ahead.

A. -- Morgan Stanley is a firm of high repute and, you know, you tend to rely on things that they say.

I don't think they gave representations and warranties in the contract but, you know, you see them out on a road-show and the like, you know, they are smart guys. You have every reason to believe that things are okay.

Q. With regard to the road-show, you didn't attend any of the road-show meetings; right?

A. Wasn't Morgan Stanley the underwriter?

Q. And Mr. Perelman's companies, they didn't buy any of the zero coupon notes that were the subject of the road-show; did they?

A. No, I don't think so, but I was saying that Morgan Stanley was the underwriter here, so they were backing the sale of bonds of this company right at this -- what time was the road-show, right around now, or close to it? When was the road-show?

Q. March 15th, 1998, before the press release.
A. Yeah, two weeks before the press release -- my God, was this a rude shock to Morgan Stanley? I don't know what they knew, and I never talked to any of them.
Q. That's right, you never talked to any of them, you never relied on anything they said to you in deciding to approve the merger; did you?
A. No. That's not true. Their very presence has a -- as a representative of Sunbeam, gave me some comfort. This was not a small house from some small, you know, backwater town. This was Morgan Stanley.
Q. Just like Goldman Sachs was --
MR. MARKOWSKI: Don't interrupt him, hold on.
Q. I didn't mean to interrupt you. Go ahead.
A. I never spoke to Morgan Stanley, but their very presence, as a representative of Coleman -- excuse me, of Sunbeam, comforted me.

Q. So am I -- so are you telling me and the jury, sir, that the mere presence of Morgan Stanley as an investment advisor for Sunbeam caused you to vote for the merger?
A. Did I say "the mere presence"?
THE WITNESS: Can you read back my prior statements?
A. I am afraid you won't hear that I said that.
I said that was a fact that comforted me along with all the other things that we did, as prudent businessmen, to analyze and to make a judgment on the fairness of a deal for our shareholders.
Q. Are you aware of -- are you aware of any statement that -- whether orally or by -- in a document that Morgan Stanley made to anyone representing The Coleman Company or its affiliates in the transaction that you --

A. No.
Q. -- contend was false?
A. No, I can't tell you, I do not know because I don't have a recollection of all of their statements and representations as the facts bore them out or challenged them as they occurred. I do not remember.
Q. But, as you sit here today, your testimony is Morgan Stanley didn't make any statements to you personally --
A. Personally?
Q. -- as a director of The Coleman Company --
A. Right, I don't recall any statements made to me personally from Morgan Stanley. I might have forgotten something but, sitting here today, I don't remember.
Q. Following the closing, on March 30th, 1998, were you involved with any discussions with anyone about hedging Mr. Perelman's company's stock interests in Sunbeam Corporation?

A. No.
MR. BEMIS: Okay, why don't you give me about five minutes, I think we are about done. I want to go over my notes real quick and check with my colleague here and see if she has anything else. Can you give me about five minutes?
A. Should we leave the room?

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who put that there?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what it means? Have you ever seen either Mr. Perelman, Mr. Drapkin, Mr. Gittis use that symbol to mean anything?

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay, you can set it aside.

Outside of board meetings at The Coleman Company, did you ever have any discussions with anyone about whether the merger transaction should be structured to receive cash rather than stock?

A. I do recall there was conversations about cash and stock. They were both elements of the transaction and ratios, do you take more or less of what was available from the buyer or your merger partner, but details I have no recollection. And I was not part of the decision-making apparatus. So, I listened to a conversation but didn't participate with my advice.

Q. When you say you recall discussions about that outside of the board meetings, with whom were those discussions?

A. Well, I have to say, once again, which becomes a common theme, it would have been with one of the men that were actively engaged in the negotiations.

Q. That would be the people you previously identified, the inner circle, Mr. Maher, et cetera; correct?

A. Yeah, those who worked on this transaction.

Q. Do you recall anyone affiliated with Mr. Perelman's company suggesting that the deal should be structured as an all-cash offer, as opposed to taking stock?

A. I don't remember, I don't recall.

Q. Do you remember anyone, again, outside the board meetings, within this group of the inner circle, advocating the desire to take stock over cash?

A. No. Again, I understood from the beginning, or someplace in the beginning, that this was a cash and a stock deal. What proportions were based upon negotiations, I did not, and I was not -- my opinion was not solicited, and I didn't give it because I did not know enough about the inner workings of the negotiations.

Q. When -- strike that. Did you have any discussions outside of board meetings about any potential synergies to be achieved, the one plus one equals three that we talked about earlier, by the combination of Coleman and Sunbeam? And again, I am talking about outside the board meetings.

A. Well, it was felt -- and when I say -- when you use the word "discussions", sometimes I use the word "conversations", because they weren't deep discussions, I had no deep discussions on any aspect of this transaction with anybody except to an extent at the board meetings when people were raising questions and questions were being answered. But, yes, I think it was felt that we both had consumer products, we sold to similar customers. I don't recall if there were conversations about manufacturing synergies, but sales synergies I think yes. Purchasing the raw materials, yes.

Q. Were these discussions with the same group of individuals that --

A. You --

Q. -- inner circle you described earlier?

A. Yes, those that knew the deal.

Q. Did you -- strike that. When did you retire, again, in 2001; right?

A. Uh -- I retired when I became 65, I think was December --

Q. December 10th, 2001?

I think I stayed on for some time afterward, not doing very much, and then left his premises and went to work in my own shop, again, as I say, doing private investments for myself in 2001.

Q. Did you have -- withdrawn. So, you would have left the offices of Mr. Perelman's companies about the beginning of 2001 based on your --

A. Well, I -- my office and his office are one block apart. I can't get away from them. And, so, I shuttled back and forth. But I did very little.

You know, I am trying to remember back in an earlier question you asked me that I might have answered incorrectly.

Q. I think you answered it correctly earlier, but that's okay.

A. Okay.

Q. Whatever it is, it's not a big deal.

A. But my office is one street away from his, so when I stopped working for him I still stayed in his office. I had to move papers out, and the like, and I had conversations with the people, but very little.

Q. Okay. Well, let me just get more focused in regards to when you left the office, did you have any role at all in the decision to bring the lawsuit against Arthur Andersen?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. And did you have any role whatsoever in the settlement of that lawsuit?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. During the entire time that -- withdrawn. During the period of time that you were still employed by Mr. Perelman's companies, did you have any discussions with anyone about bringing a lawsuit against Morgan Stanley?

A. I had no such discussions.

Q. Did you ever hear or even if you didn't participate in any discussions where Morgan Stanley was --

A. I don't have a specific recollection of what action they would take based upon events as they were unfolding.

Q. But let me finish the question, because I didn't get it out --

A. Forgive me.

Q. -- before you answered, and I'm sorry, we are almost done, it's getting late.

While you were employed by

Mr. Perelman's companies, did you ever hear of any discussions, even if you did not directly participate, in bringing a lawsuit against Morgan Stanley?

MR. MARKOWSKI: You should exclude from your answer any conversations involving counsel.

A. I have no specific recollection. I mean, I know there was a lot of upset about events as they were transpiring. What conclusions were drawn from the feelings of being upset and shocked, I don't really remember.

Q. Do you know what "bill and hold" means?

A. Yeah, I think I do.

Q. What does it mean, as you understand it?

A. As I understand it, it generally refers to an effort of a corporation to create sales when the customer really doesn't need it in order to get the sales that -- the profit margins into a particular financial reporting period. So they will bill for merchandise bought but they will hold it, either in warehouses outside of their own manufacturing facility or trailers, so they can effect a sale, thereby enhancing the sales line and the earnings line, generally speaking, by the end of a quarter so that they can satisfy Wall Street.

Q. Is it your understanding that bill and hold transactions are per se improper under Generally Accepted Accounting Principles or --

A. Well, "bill and hold" is a generalized term. It's -- I don't think it's quite a term of art, though it may be, but I don't think it is.

I think it depends upon a degree of a bill and hold. If it's an immaterial amount, I think auditors tend to look away from it.

If the merchandise didn't leave the warehouse or your warehouse or it's standing, you know, on the factory line, I think they take a dim view of including that in the sale. If it's out on the road someplace, sometimes they blink at it. It depends on the dimension of it. It's often engaged in -- it's really trying to bring up to date a sale that really hasn't matured yet.

Q. Well, my question, though is, it may have been poorly framed, let me try it one more time.

Is it your understanding that bill and hold -- bill and hold transactions, are just per se impermissible under --

A. No.

Q. -- accounting principles?

A. I do not know the answer to that per se, I can't answer that.

Q. We have previously marked this, this is Exhibit 208, so you don't have to go back into your pile, just please use that one. This is the Sunbeam 10-K, publicly filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

A. Three -- 30 million.
Q. So about $30 million.
A. Right, a billion two.
Q. So it's not a truckload is what we are talking about; right?
Did you ever come -- withdrawn. In the mergers and acquisition agreements that you have -- withdrawn. In the mergers and acquisition transactions that you have negotiated and worked on over the years, you have reviewed, I take it, the underlying documents such as the merger agreement that we looked at in this case; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And, you know, you told me earlier you are a lawyer, you read them at Harvard Law School; right?
A. Yes.
Q. And in the transactions that you have worked on, have they generally provided that New York law would be the controlling law in the transactions?
A. It was often the case but not uniformly.

Q. You know, other than New York law, can you give me some examples of some where it wasn't, transactions where New York law was not selected as the controlling law?
A. Companies in Brazil --
Q. Well, let's exclude international transactions. Let's take a U.S.-based transaction, U.S.-based companies.
A. Well, I mean, I sold companies out of California to California buyers. I don't know that we used New York law on those. I don't remember.
I mean, it's most appropriate to use New York law if you are dealing with companies in New York or headquarters in New York but not all the time. I mean, I think in California cases I used New York law. I think that the deals that Ronald did in the banking world were also not under New York law, but I am guessing at that, I don't have a specific recollection.

Q. Okay. (Pause.)
Did you have any role in the negotiation of the settlement with Sunbeam Corporation as a result of the threatened litigation by Mr. Perelman's companies against Sunbeam?
A. No.

	Feb. 14, 1998 (conversation w/ Maher) - Sent Maher Laser multiples	Analyzing structure assuming holding company
	Feb. 6, 1998 (meeting w/ Coleman) - Made it clear that they want debt at holding company to be assumed and could then possibly back off of $30 a share - Meeting was constructive - New analysis needs to be examined	Pursuing aggressively; Return to Coleman with initial structure and offer to begin negotiations in earnest and conduct due diligence
	Feb. 3, 1998 (call w/ Jerry Levin) - Camper believes business will be growing at 10% continuously; 12.5% EBIT margin target, also discussed value of synergies, proforma accretion/dilution and other analysis

The Coleman Company, Inc. (Target) Jerry Levin (CEO) Ronald Perelman Will Nisbitt McAndrews & Forbes (cont)	Jan. 27, 1998 (BReed) - Coleman expressed view that synergies were understated, they think there is at least $150MM in synergies - They are nervous about AI, that is why deal is moving from all stock to another form, they don't think they will have a big enough position to have an effect on AI; they do not want to do all stock - They will most likely not do a deal at $25 a share (10x next year's EBITDA); they pointed out that at $30 there would still be accretion Jan. 23, 1998 (meeting w/ Will Nisbitt) - Meeting relatively uneventful; walked through presentation which showed that we would be flexible on structure, he was under impression that we were coming to talk about a $25 all cash deal; we had said low to mid 20s and not all cash; though we are flexible on structure the point was to use our stock as currency - Issue with synergies; they brought up that AI had suggested $200MM in synergies during dinner with Ronald we used $75 Dec. 19, 1997 - Could not reach an agreement on the price of transaction - Talks terminated

The Coleman Company, Inc. (Cont.)	Dec. 16, 1997 - Interest level is very high over possibility of a merger - Ronald said they will be looking at valuing the company on a contribution basis; impression that CLN gets the majority credit of the synergies - Pre-synergy breakdown of EBIT, EBITDA, Net income are about 75%, 25%; it is less favorable to Laser on the sale side because CLN's margins are lower - Could be much higher than 25-30% stake of whole company when synergies are factored in, CLN will clearly have an aggressive asking price - They definitely want Al to run combined business - Going after BDK is what has peaked interest here - Significant concern about Laser earnings Dec. 15, 1997 - Biggest problem is concern over systems - No issue as to who would run the combined entity - Ron is willing to take a minority position, would only take stock - "Deal is done" except for price Dec. 11, 1997 - Interested in negotiating a transaction; plan to meet with Al on

The Gillette Company (Cont.)	Oct. 24, 1997 - Have looked at it before (2 years ago); concern with sustainable profitability of 20% EBIT margins - With gross margins in the low 30s and EBIT margin at 20%, there doesn't appear to be much room to achieve SG&A/marketing type synergies. - Sales growth appears aggressive; also would have too many brands with Sunbeam, Oster, and Braun - Interest in outdoor cooking unlikely - Questions regarding extent of growth of new product strategy - Another concern is the restructuring charge and quality/sustainability of earnings issues Oct. 6, 1997 - Initial contact

Philips Electronics (Cont.)	Nov. 11, 1997 - Have already been approached about Laser - Appear potentially interested; after initial meeting with the head of M&A, had another meeting with the CFO of the appliance division - Intrigued with prospect - International fit, Philips is stronger in Asia and Europe where Laser is weaker, while Laser has a strong presence in the US and Latin America, places where Philips is weak - Both brands are recognizable for the same attributes, ie innovation, which makes for a complementary business model - A concern is the fact that Philips' strategy is to adhere to the Philips brand name; perhaps a cobranding marketing strategy can act as a transitory mechanism to introduce Philips to the US market - Primary concern ("80% of issue") is valuation of Laser, feel uncomfortable with 4x sales - Next step is presentation by Appliance CFO to operational people Oct. 3, 1997 - Initial contact

CLN Holdings on March 4, 1998. On March 30, 1998 the Merger was consummated. Upon consummation of the Merger, among other things, all shares of common stock of CLN Holdings were converted into 14,099,749 Shares and cash. This statement on Schedule 13G is being filed because Mafco Holdings and Parent Holdings may be deemed to beneficially own the aforementioned 14,099,749 Shares by virtue of the consummation of the Merger.

Pursuant to the Merger Agreement, upon consummation of the Merger, options (the "Options") to purchase 500,000 shares of common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman"), which Options were granted during 1997 to Mr. Perelman under certain of Coleman's stock option plans, became immediately exercisable. Pursuant to the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998, among Sunbeam, Camper Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Camper"), and Coleman, pursuant to which Coleman will merge (the "Coleman Merger") with Camper and become a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam, each share of the common stock of Coleman acquired pursuant to the exercise of such Options and outstanding as of the consummation of the Coleman Merger will be converted into the right to receive $6.44 in cash and .5677 Shares of common stock of Sunbeam. Any Options unexercised as of the consummation of the Coleman Merger will be canceled, and, in settlement therefor, the holders of such Options will be paid cash in an amount equal to the product of (i) the total number of shares of common stock of Coleman subject to such Options and (ii) the excess of $27.50 over the exercise price per share of such common stock subject to such Options, less any applicable withholding taxes. Sunbeam has indicated that it expects the Coleman Merger to be consummated during the second quarter of 1998. This statement on Schedule 13G reflects Mr. Perelman's ownership of the Options to acquire 500,000 shares of common stock of Coleman that may be converted in the Coleman Merger into 283,850 Shares of common stock of Sunbeam. Pursuant to Rule 13d-4, Mafco Holdings and Parent Holdings expressly disclaim beneficial ownership of such 283,850 Shares and declare that the filing of this statement on Schedule 13G shall not be construed as an admission that either of them is, for purposes of Section 13(d) or 13(g) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, the beneficial owner of any of such Shares.

(a) Amount Beneficially Owned: 14,099,749 Shares plus, in the case of Mr. Perelman only, Options to purchase shares of common stock of Coleman that may be converted in the Coleman Merger into 283,850 Shares.

(b) Percent of Class: Approximately 14.0% (14.3% in the case of Mr. Perelman only) based upon an aggregate of 100,811,445 Shares outstanding on March 30, 1998 which includes the 14,099,749 Shares issued in the Merger (based on information provided to the filing persons by Sunbeam).

CREDIT SUISSE FIRST BOSTON
Inter-Office Memorandum

To: Investment Banking Committee

From: Gordon A. Rich
Robert J. Duffy
Steven K. Geller (Document Retention)
Ramesh Chakrapani

Date: February 25, 1998

Subject: Proposed sale of The Coleman Company, Inc. to Sunbeam Corporation

The purpose of this memorandum is to apprise the Committee of our work in connection with the proposed two-step sale of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") to Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"). Credit Suisse First Boston has been asked to provide a fairness opinion to Coleman's Board of Directors as early as February 25, 1998, in connection with the proposed sale to Sunbeam.

1. Description of the Transaction

Credit Suisse First Boston is acting as financial advisor to Coleman in connection with its proposed sale to Sunbeam (the "Transaction"). Coleman, listed on the New York Stock Exchange, is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the outdoor recreation and hardware markets. Approximately 82% (44,067,520) of the outstanding Coleman common shares are held through an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary ("Holdco") of Mafco Holdings Inc. ("Mafco") which is controlled by Ronald O. Perelman.

Sunbeam and Coleman propose to enter into an agreement whereby, at closing, Sunbeam will (a) in exchange for Sunbeam stock and cash purchase Holdco which has as its primary asset its shares of Coleman and as its primary liability $525 million of zero-coupon debt against which its shares of Coleman are pledged, and (b) offer the public shareholders Sunbeam stock and cash in a second-step merger. The proposed transaction is expected to be taxable to the public shareholders of Coleman and tax-free to Holdco.

Summary of Transaction Consideration

SHAREHOLDER	SHARES EXCHANGED	CONSIDERATION
Mafco	44.1 million	• Assumption of $525 million of zero coupon debt for 19.2 million CLN shares
		• $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 SOC shares for each of 24.8 million CLN shares
Public	9.4 million	• $6.44 in cash and 0.5677 SOC shares for each of 9.4 million CLN shares

2. Question to the Committee

Is the consideration of $6.44 in cash plus 0.5677 Sunbeam common shares fair to Coleman shareholders from a financial point of view?

3. Summary Conclusions and Recommendations to the Committee

Based on the analysis of the value of Coleman common shares and the value of the securities to be issued by Sunbeam pursuant to the transaction, the consideration is fair to Coleman shareholders (other than Holdco) from a financial point of view.

I. At a current Sunbeam trading price of $40.63 (2/24/98), the implied consideration of $29.50 (value of $6.44 cash and 0.5677 Sunbeam shares) is (i) above Coleman's valuation range of $21.31-$28.35 per share; (ii) at a 42.6% premium to Coleman's current trading price and 52-week high of $20.69 (2/24/98); and (iii) at a 136.0% premium to Coleman's 52-week low of $12.50 (1/27/98).

II. The transaction on a pro forma basis is 5.3% accretive to Sunbeam in 1998 and 6.2% in 1999 assuming pre-tax synergies of $100 million in 1998 and $100 million in 1999.

III. The Sunbeam offer is supported by the respective contributions of Sunbeam and Coleman as shown in section 9 of the memorandum.

4. Transaction Summary

The per share consideration being offered by Sunbeam represents the following premiums and multiples.

Coleman

Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the outdoor recreation and hardware markets on a global basis. The Company's products have been sold domestically and internationally under the Coleman brand name since the 1920s.

The Company participates in two primary markets, outdoor recreation and hardware.

Outdoor Recreation: The Company's principal products include a comprehensive line of lanterns and stoves for recreational use, fuel-related products such as disposable fuel cartridges, a broad range of coolers and jugs, sleeping bags, backpacks, tents, outdoor folding furniture, portable electric lights, spas, camping accessories and other products for recreational use. These products are distributed predominantly through mass merchandisers, sporting goods chains and outdoor specialty stores.

Hardware: The Company's principal products include portable generators, portable and stationary air compressors and pressure washers. On February 18, 1998, the Company announced its intention to sell its Safety & Security Products Inc. division, a maker of smoke alarms, carbon monoxide detectors and thermostats, to Siebe Plc for $105 million.

1997 Restructuring. Coleman restructured its operations in 1997 to reduce costs, improve operating efficiency, and divest non-strategic businesses. The Company eliminated 1,000 positions, eliminated 25% of SKUs (with an expected target of 33%) and enhanced working capital management. The Company took a $36 million restructuring charge of which $16 million will be non-cash.

In arriving at the above values for Coleman, we have considered discounted cash flows, comparable companies and comparable acquisitions analyses.

a. Discounted Cash Flows Analysis

Our discounted cash flows analysis is based on management projections for 1998 to 2001 and estimates developed in conjunction with Coleman management for 2002 and beyond (the "Coleman Base Case"). We have used a discount rate range of 10.0% - 11.0% based on Coleman's WACC and terminal EBITDA multiples of 9.5x-10.5x applied to 2007E EBITDA.

b. Comparable Companies Analysis

We have considered the trading multiples of comparable companies in the consumer products industry. The appropriate universe of comparables for Coleman were determined based on a variety of comparability parameters including product mix, customer base, distribution channels and financial and equity market parameters. Coleman trades at a discount to many of its peers due to its sensitivity to weather conditions. Our reference range of $1,150 million - $1,600 million represents 7.0x - 9.8x 1998E Coleman Base Case EBITDA.

Synergies

Coleman management has estimated that the combination with Sunbeam could create up to $150 million of cost savings and revenue synergies. Revenue synergies (approximately 25% of the total) would be created primarily by using the Coleman distribution network to sell Sunbeam products and through savings on licensing. Cost synergies (approximately 75% of the total) would occur through the elimination of the corporate staff, consolidated sales forces, consolidated headquarters, and consolidated sourcing and logistics.

Sunbeam management expects to estimate $100 million of cost savings in their public announcement of the deal. The pro forma analysis assumes $100 million of annual cost savings including 1998 which is presented on a pro forma basis.

SUBJECT: SUNBEAM CORP. – RULE 144A ZERO COUPON CONVERTIBLE OFFERING ($500MM)

I. BACKGROUND

Sunbeam Corp. ("SOC", NYSE) is a leading worldwide manufacturer of a wide range of household and specialty brand name consumer products. As of March 6, 1998, the Company had an equity market value of $4.4Bn. Morgan Stanley became involved with Sunbeam through the relationship between Bill Strong and Al Dunlap. Bill Strong first met Al Dunlap in 1986 when Al Dunlap worked for Sir James Goldsmith. Bill Strong has been involved with three transactions for Al Dunlap and Sir James Goldsmith. The last transaction was a $275MM Regulation S sale of Newmont Mining common stock in 1993 successfully executed by Morgan Stanley. The Firm began soliciting a strategic relationship with Al Dunlap in April 1997 and was retained as sole strategic advisor to Sunbeam in early September 1997. Since that time, we have been exploring various strategic alternatives for the Company, with the active participation of Sunbeam's management team. Such advisory reviews have included potential acquisitions, a sellside process for the Company and the recently announced buyside transactions. As a consequence of these projects, the Firm has developed strong relationships with both the CEO and senior management at the Company. Furthermore, Andrew Conway expects to initiate equity research.

Morgan Stanley is advising the Company in its pending acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert with a total $2.6Bn in aggregate value, including assumption of $1.2Bn in debt at the three entities. The Sunbeam common stock price has risen by $9.75 per share, from $41.75 to $51.50 (a 23% increase) since the transactions were announced. To finance these acquisitions, Sunbeam has asked Morgan Stanley to underwrite $2.0Bn in senior bank debt financing ($1.5Bn term debt and a $500MM Revolving Credit Facility), and to sole-manage a $500MM Zero Coupon Convertible Subordinated Debenture (plus a $75MM greenshoe) to be issued pursuant to Rule 144A. The price talk will be 35.5%-39.1%, with a yield to maturity of 4¼% to 5¼%, on a standard zero coupon structure. These financings, combined with the $814MM Sunbeam equity being provided to the seller of Coleman (MAFCO and minority shareholders), complete the financing of the acquisition. Morgan Stanley has signed a "Highly Confident" letter in reference to the financing of these acquisitions.

The convertible transaction will tentatively be launched on Monday, March 16, priced on Monday, March 23 and closed on Friday, March 27 to roughly coincide with the closing of the Signature and First Alert acquisitions. The transaction will be marketed through a four-day roadshow as well as investor conference calls from Wednesday, March 18 through Monday, March 23. MS believes Sunbeam's rating on this security would be not more than B1/B+, pro forma and as adjusted for the acquisition strategy and financing plan as described above, although we do not believe that the security will be rated until several weeks after pricing.

We are asking the Committee to approve underwriting the $500MM Zero Coupon Convertible security.

Restructuring

In the fall of 1996, after several years of disappointing results, Sunbeam announced a major restructuring and growth plan under newly appointed chairman Albert Dunlap. The restructuring portion of the plan has been substantially completed with only the final "refinement" stage remaining. It included the redefinition of Sunbeam's core products, divestiture of non-core businesses, hiring a new management team, closing of warehouses and consolidation of headquarters, elimination of production facilities, and a large reduction in unprofitable products. The actions led to a reduction of approximately half the work force (about 6,000 jobs). Cost reductions are expected to result in annual savings of $225MM, most of which were already realized in 1997.

The restructuring resulted in double-digit sequential sales growth throughout 1997 with annual sales growth of 18.7% and an operating margin improvement from 0.2% in 1996 to 17.1% in 1997, and with operating margins reaching 20% by the fourth quarter of 1997. Sunbeam's share price increased from the $15 range before the appointment of Al Dunlap to $41.75 before the announcement of the recent acquisitions.

Pre-Acquisition Strategy/Goals

Prior to the acquisition announcements, Sunbeam management outlined the following goals for growth in 1998:

- 25% top line and 40% EPS growth based on new innovative products, successful roll out of air and water filtration products, higher advertising levels and increased penetration of international markets
- Expansion of global distribution by adding 30 new global products as well as international distribution/licensing agreements
- Project Full Time: Strategic initiative to improve customer service levels and therefore enhance growth (initiated 2Q 1997)
- Merger or acquisitions: Management will continue to examine strategic alternatives to strengthen the business and create shareholder value

Following the acquisition, the Company is going to pursue a strategy focused on the consolidation of the consumer non-durables sector. With the significant number of underperforming companies in this sector (Black & Decker, Rubbermaid, etc.), the Company believes it will have a significant opportunity to make additional future acquisitions.

IV. EQUITY VALUATION

- As of February 27, 1998, Sunbeam shares were trading at $41.75 per share and were valued at the low end of its comparable range.
  - 20.9x 1998 median I/B/E/S estimate of $2.00 (versus 22.3x for comparables)
  - 15.2x 1999 median I/B/E/S estimate of $2.75 (versus 19.2x for comparables)
  - The low valuation was driven in part by the announcement of 4Q97 earnings $0.03 below street expectations
- After the transaction announcement, Sunbeam's share price has experienced an increase of $9.75, rising from $41.75 to $51.50, a 23% increase.
- The Company's current trading levels are warranted given the level of expected synergies ($150MM, pre-tax) and investors' confidence in Sunbeam's management team and proven ability to turn around companies and leverage undervalued brand names.
- Investors also view there to be other, significant acquisition opportunities for Sunbeam to capitalize on in its new role as an industry consolidator
- Investors are also pricing in the potential for future add-on acquisitions as Sunbeam can be viewed as the industry consolidator
- Investors focus on the 1999 P/E multiple (the first full year of ownership and of full cost savings) and currently price Sunbeam at a discount reflecting execution risk for the integration

VI. INVESTMENT CONSIDERATIONS

- Sunbeam

  - SUCCESSFUL RESTRUCTURING; CREATION OF A GROWTH COMPANY
    - During 1997, Sunbeam completed its restructuring program and initiated a growth strategy which resulted in double-digit sales growth, with operating margins reaching 20% in 4Q 97, up from 0.2% before the turnaround
    - The Company exited all of its non-core businesses, closed 18 factories, 43 warehouses and 5 headquarters, reduced employment by 50% and significantly reduced its number of SKU's offered (by about 80%)
    - The Company added 25 international distribution/licensing agreements which added $35MM in revenue, introduced 89 new products (35 U.S., 54 international) which added $150MM in revenue
    - Significant expansion of distribution with key retailers such as WalMart, KMart, Target, Costco and Home Depot
    - The Company improved capacity utilization to 75% in 1997 (50% in 1996) and increased factory productivity by over 20% as a result of more efficient manufacturing process
    - New product development time was decreased to 6 months from over 2 years (e.g. AllergySmart)
    - Sunbeam gained market share in every product category in 1997

  - EXPERIENCED AND COMMITTED MANAGEMENT TEAM
    - Al Dunlap has brought in an experienced management team with a history in similar turnaround situations
    - Management incentive systems, including the newly signed management employment agreements, are designed to ensure commitment to the turnaround process
    - Market has strongly endorsed the turnaround and acquisitions through strong stock price appreciation, which is expected to continue as the recent acquisitions are integrated

  - REALIZABLE SYNERGIES OF $150MM FROM COMBINATION
    - $100MM from combination with Coleman

- Quality/Inspection
- The combined company sales will also benefit from dual branding of product lines as well as complementary strengths in specific European, Asian and emerging markets

- The Coleman Acquisition
  - STRONG, ESTABLISHED BRAND EQUITY VALUE
    - Near 40% market share in industry, nearest competitor has only 10%
    - Untapped strength in the Coleman brand name
    - Increased leverage over distribution channels
  - OPPORTUNITY TO STREAMLINE OPERATIONS AND UTILIZE EXPERTISE IN COST CUTTING
    - Current businesses are operating efficiently, however, operational redundancies will result in the potential to realize substantial synergies
    - Capacity available at current facilities to absorb significant production responsibilities of Coleman
    - Coleman has grown rapidly through acquisitions without associated operations rationalization, leaving significant opportunity for business re-engineering
  - CONSOLIDATION OF OUTDOOR RECREATIONAL PRESENCE
    - Combination results in less seasonal product mix in outdoor segment
    - Acquired brands expected to maintain sales levels during economic downturns
    - Increased critical mass for major innovation and advertising initiatives

- The Signature Brands Acquisition
  - ACCELERATED GROWTH IN REVENUES AND EARNINGS
    - This product line acquisition will be easily assimilated into the Sunbeam system, allowing for immediate recognition of significant synergies
    - Strong brand names will complement existing brands and remove major competitors in certain areas (Health o Meter)
    - Strong parent will be able to strengthen relationship with major retailers and help to gain additional shelf space
  - COMMITMENT TO NEW STRATEGIC PLAN
    - The transaction proves the willingness by Sunbeam to make fold-in acquisitions
    - Will lead to additional attractive acquisition opportunities

- The First Alert Acquisition
  - ENHANCES EXISTING PORTFOLIO OF HOME DEVICES PRODUCTS
    - Strengthens the home/kitchen device segment by capitalizing on complementary distribution channels

- Strong brand recognition and #1 market share in smoke alarms and carbon monoxide alarms
- Long-term relationship with major retailers

– SIGNIFICANT GROWTH POTENTIAL OF HOME SAFETY MARKET

- Strong momentum in alarms replacement with $850MM untapped retail market for replacing existing 10-year old alarms

– OPPORTUNITY FOR BUSINESS RE-ENGINEERING AND COST CUTTING

- Unsatisfactory performance mainly due to manufacturing inefficiency, poor customer service and shipping delays
- Sunbeam's experience in streamlining operations opens up significant re-engineering and cost cutting opportunities
- Redundancies in business model create the opportunity to realize significant potential synergies
- Better purchasing power to improve margins

VII. POTENTIAL INVESTOR CONCERNS

1) Significant dependence on management team; particularly Al Dunlap.

Concern: Sunbeam's recent turnaround performance appears to be due more to the capability of its management team in cost-cutting than to the innate strength of the Company's core business or growing demand for Sunbeam's products. What if the CEO and his team do not stay to fully implement Phase III of the Company's strategic plan?

Response: Al Dunlap and his senior management team recently signed new, three year employment contracts. These agreements are primarily stock and option based, and incorporate a vesting feature which encourages management tenure. In addition, Al Dunlap has publicly stated (on several occasions) that he is committed to Sunbeam and "this new employment agreement will put to rest any rumors that I [he] would leave the Company." Finally, the Company has already begun to search for other managers from within the industry who would add further depth and operational expertise to this team.

2) The Company has recently experienced results below street expectations.

Concern: The Company recently reported fourth quarter earnings that were $0.03 below consensus expectations, resulting in a 9% share price decline on the day of the announcement. Is this indicative of a slowdown in the double digit growth that Al Dunlap has declared is his ongoing goal?

Response: Lost in the turmoil of this earnings announcement was the fact that business has shown significant improvement from the recent restructuring very quickly. Fourth quarter sales jumped 31%, excluding divestitures, from last year's numbers. Sales growth had, in fact, accelerated all year. Fourth quarter results were broad-based with all businesses, except for blankets, showing healthy gains. Operating margins hit an unprecedented 20%. EPS were $0.47 vs. $(0.03) in 4Q97. In short, the Sunbeam management team sets extremely high goals and, even when they fall slightly short, it is still a significant achievement.

3) Sunbeam's growth is highly dependent on its ability to expand internationally.

Concern: Pre-acquisition, Sunbeam is forecasting 25-35% growth in the international business. Given the recent departure of Dixon Thayer, VP of Sunbeam's international business, and potential currency/business deterioration in Asia, aren't these growth projections a bit high?

Response: International sales grew 17% from 3Q98 to 4Q98, representing a 42% increase from 4Q97. The growth resulted from Sunbeam's superior technology (EMF technology in electric blankets in Japan, "smart" toasters, etc.), as well as a focused effort to strengthen the brand equity of the Oster brand name through direct response print advertising, in-store and trade demonstrations, etc. In addition, the recent currency turmoil in Asia is not expected to have a significant impact as Sunbeam has nearly all of its distribution agreements denominated in U.S. dollars with a relatively small portion of pro-forma sales from non-Japan Asia.

4) Integration of recent acquisitions and future acquisitions.

Concern: The Company is facing a significant challenge in integrating three separate companies concurrently. In addition, given the Company's new strategy of adopting the role of industry consolidator, it is likely that the Company will make additional acquisitions in the future. How can the Company be sure this integration effort will be successful?

Response: Sunbeam management plans to integrate these acquisitions with immediate focus on cost synergies and brand development. Their acquisition strategy essentially involves acquiring undervalued, unmarketed brand names, and leveraging this established brand equity while combining administration, marketing, finance and other corporate functions more efficiently. This is a strategy that Al Dunlap and his team have successfully utilized at a number of companies before Sunbeam, including Scott Paper. In addition, revenue synergies derived from increasing geographical breadth, greater penetration of product offerings to major customers (i.e. WalMart) and the potential for dual branding will also generate substantial benefits through the combination.

5) Are the supposed synergies to be gained as a result of the acquisitions attainable?

Concern: The synergies anticipated from these combinations are sizable (over $150MM in the first full year. How attainable are these synergies? What will be the cost of achieving these synergies?

Response: Morgan Stanley and Coopers & Lybrand (special acquisition consultants to Sunbeam) have had extensive discussions with the management of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, as well as the Sunbeam management regarding the potential synergies. Following these discussions and the subsequent due diligence performed prior to the announcement of these transactions, the Sunbeam management has expressed a high degree of confidence in their ability to achieve the stated synergies of approximately $150MM by the end of 1999. They, in fact, have stated that it is not unlikely that they could achieve even greater synergies in a shorter period of time. They informed the Sunbeam Board of Directors that the synergies are likely to be in the $225MM - $275MM pre-tax range.

6) Dependence on one major customer, WalMart.

Concern: The Company presently attributes over 20% of its total revenues to WalMart. Following the acquisition, this concentration will increase to approximately 25%. Isn't this dependence on one major customer dangerous for the Company?

Response: WalMart is widely recognized as the industry leader in mass retailing. In addition, WalMart offers all of the types of products manufactured by all five of Sunbeam's primary product lines, and WalMart (like Sunbeam) is aggressively expanding overseas. These characteristics make WalMart an excellent partner for the Company. However, Sunbeam is also aggressively expanding its distribution channels with other key retailers such as KMart, Target, Costco and Home Depot, and the Company now advertises on QVC. Sunbeam also has 22 factory outlet stores which are designed to sell

Cross-examination by MR. CHORVAT:

MR. CHORVAT: Please state your name for the record.

A Simon Rankin.

Q Mr. Rankin, have you ever been deposed before?

A No, I haven't.

Q Let me just describe the procedure, although you may be familiar with this. I am going to ask you a series of questions. My questions, your answers, and any objections or comments that your counsel make are going to be taken down. They will be transcribed stenographically and also recorded on the video. Because a written record is being made of our discussions today, it is important that any answer or response you make is made verbally, rather than with a nod or a shake of the head.

Page 6

A Okay.
Q If at any point you don't hear a question that I ask, maybe if I have mumbled, let me know that and I will try and repeat it. If at any point I am unclear, and you don't understand a question that I ask, let me know that and I will try and rephrase it.
A Okay.
Q Please describe your educational background.
A I am a graduate from the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University, that is where I got my MBA. Before that I graduated from the University of Toronto, Trinity College, with a Bachelor of Arts in Commerce and Economics, and my high school education was in Upper Canada College in Toronto, Canada.
Q When did you receive your BA?
A 1987.
Q When did you get your MBA?
A 1995. Graduated in 1995.
Q Do you hold any other degrees?
A No.

Q Please describe your employment history since whenever you took your first full-time job.?
A When I came out of college I worked for Corank Development Corporation(?) which is my father's real estate company. I worked there until I went to Kellogg in 1993. My summer internship, between my two years at Kellogg, was at Bankers Trust in New York. I took a full-time job at Bankers Trust upon graduation from Kellogg, worked there until end of 1997 when I joined Morgan Stanley, January 1998. I have worked full-time at Morgan Stanley in London and New York since then.
Q When you first went to work for Morgan Stanley, what position did you --
A Associate.
Q Was that in New York?
A When I left Bankers Trust -- sorry, take a step back. I am a Canadian citizen, and so I was working in the States on an H1B visa which was terminated when I left Bankers Trust, so Morgan Stanley had to apply for a new visa for me, so I came to London first for the first three months of 1998. I was working here in London, and then when my H1B visa came through I transferred back to New York, so it was pretty much at the end of March 1998.

Q The end of March 1998?
A Yes.
Q Please describe the positions that you have held with Morgan Stanley since January of 1998.
A I was an associate for two years, Vice-President for three years, and have been an executive director now for two years.
Q During your time at Morgan Stanley has there been a particular division or group in which you have worked?
A Generally I have been working in debt products. I have worked for Morgan Stanley Senior Funding doing, you know, commercial syndicated loans. I currently work in a group called the Loan Products Group, where we focus on the allocation of the firm's balance sheet, and also relationship lending to our investment-great clients. That is what I have been doing over the last couple of years.
Q What corporate entity is your employer?
A I don't know.
Q In the first half of 1998 do you know what corporate entity was your employer?
A I don't know.

Page 9

Q During the first three months of 1998 when you were working in London, what division or group within Morgan Stanley did you work for?
A I don't know the technical answer to that.
Q Can you describe it as best you can?
A I just don't know. I mean, from my perspective, I work for Morgan Stanley. Could you be more specific? I don't know what you are looking for.
Q Is there an investment banking division at Morgan Stanley?
A Yes. Again, we have Joint Ventures. At least part of my responsibility would have been within IBD, Investment Banking Division, yes.
Q Is there another group that you also would have had some responsibility for?
A I don't know. We sat within the investment bank.
Q Was that true when you were in London in the first three months of 1998 and then after you went to New York as well?
A I had similar responsibilities. I mean, I think the closest I would probably come would probably be Morgan Stanley Senior Funding.
Q Do you know whether you were at any point

Page 10

a Corporate Officer of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A I am now a Vice-President of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding. I don't know exactly when I became that.
Q Do you know whether you would have held that position with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding at any time during 1998?
A No. I was an Associate. I think it is something that -- I don't know. I don't know exactly.
Q Do you recall how you came to learn that you were being appointed a Vice-President of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding?
A When I got signing authority.
Q What is your best recollection of when that was?
A I don't know.
Q Was there someone who informed you that you would, henceforth, have signing authority for MSSF?
A Yes.
Q Who was that?
A I don't recall.
Q Have you had occasion to sign documents on behalf of MSSF?

Page 11

A Yes.
Q Do you recall when you first signed documents on behalf of MSSF?
A I don't remember.
Q Do you continue to execute documents on behalf of MSSF as part of your regular duties today?
A Yes, I do.
Q Is there someone within the corporate structure of MSSF that you report to?
A My immediate report is Kevin Addison. He's the Managing Director of the Loan Products Group.
Q Is Mr. Addison also an Officer of MSSF?
A I believe so.
Q Do you know what position he holds?
A I am not sure.
Q Within the larger umbrella of Morgan Stanley, is it also correct that you report to Mr. Addison today?
A Yes.
Q Moving back to the time that you first went to work for Morgan Stanley, when you were working in London at the beginning of 1998, to whom did you report?
A Kevin Addison.

Page 12

Q Then when you went to New York. Toward the end of March of 1998 to whom did you report in New York?
A Bram Smith, probably. That is the best I can do on that name.
Q For how long did you report to Mr Smith?
A Until I left to come to London.
Q How long was that?
A Early 2002. January 2002. Maybe February 2002.
Q During your work for Morgan Stanley, have you ever had occasion to work on bridge loans?
A Yes.
Q Just so that the record is clear, what is a bridge loan?
A Bridge loan is a situation where funding is arranged in advance of some kind of takeout, so it is a bridge to a permanent financing.
Q It is a situation where Morgan Stanley extends credit for some limited period of time, anticipating that it will be taken out?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Could you repeat the question?
MR. CHORVAT: Sure. Is it correct to say that a bridge loan is a situation in which

Morgan Stanley would extend funding for a limited period of time, anticipating that at the end of that period of time there is some other source of financing which would be arranged to take out the Morgan Stanley bridge loan?
A I think that is one type of a bridge loan, but I think there are many types of bridge loans. Sometimes a bridge loan is to a capital markets transaction, and sometimes it is to a bank loan transaction, and if we are underwriting a bridge to a bank loan transaction we would typically be part of the permanent financing as well as the bridge loan itself.
Q Within the Morgan Stanley structure, how are bridge loans approved?
A We have a Credit Committee.
Q Would that be the Leverage Finance Credit Committee, or is it another committee you are thinking of?
A It has changed its name over the years. It is currently called the Capital Commitments Committee, "CCC", but it has been called, "Leverage Finance Credit Committee", and it has been called other things over the years.

Page 14

Q If we were thinking back to the first part of 1998, is this the entity that would have been called the, "Leverage Finance Credit Committee"?
A I don't know.
Q What, if anything, have you done to prepare for today's deposition?
A I met with Zhonette for a couple of hours yesterday.
Q Anything else?
A No.
Q Was anyone else present for that meeting?
A No.
Q During the course of that meeting did you have occasion to review any documents?
MS. BROWN: Objection. I would instruct the witness not to answer on the basis of privilege.
MR. CHORVAT: During the course of that meeting did you review any documents that refreshed your recollection?
A Yes.
Q What documents did you review that refreshed your recollection?
A I think we looked at the original syndication memorandum that was used. I don't remember the rest.

Q At any point have you ever seen any of the pleadings in the lawsuit that brings us here today?
A No.
Q At any point have you reviewed any deposition transcripts in connection with the lawsuit that brings us here today?
A No.
Q Other than your meeting with Ms. Brown yesterday, have you discussed your deposition with anyone else?
A No.
Q Have you discussed the pending litigation with anyone else?
A No.
Q During the time that you have worked for Morgan Stanley, have you ever had occasion to work on a matter or matters that involved Sunbeam?
A Yes.
Q When did you first have occasion to work on a matter involving Sunbeam?
A When I came back to New York from London, near the end of March 1998 I started working on a Sunbeam transaction.
Q You did no work on Sunbeam matters when you were in London, the first quarter of 1998?

Page 16

A No. I was doing local transactions.
Q Do you recall when in March of 1998 you moved to New York?
A It was in the last week of March. I don't know the specific date.
Q Prior to the last week of March 1998, you did no work on the Sunbeam matters?
A That's right.
Q When was the last occasion you had to work on a Sunbeam matter?
A I don't recall.
Q Have you had occasion to work on a Sunbeam matter since you have been back in London?
A No.
Q Was there some period of time before you left New York when you had stopped working on Sunbeam matters?
A I don't remember the specific date that I stopped working on it. I just got -- no. I don't recall a specific date.
Q In connection with your work on Sunbeam matters, did you report to Mr Smith?
A Yes.
Q Who else at Morgan Stanley did you work with on Sunbeam matters?

Page 17

A Michael Hart, Ishaan Seth, during early on, and then Mitch Petrick later on.
Q Did you ever have occasion to work with Tom Burchill on Sunbeam?
A No.
Q Do you know whether you effectively took over the role that Mr. Burchill had been playing with respect to Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I mean, Tom left and I came at the same time. That is the best I can give you on that. Tom moved to London.
MR. CHORVAT: What understanding do you have as to Mr Smith's role in connection with the Sunbeam work?
MS. BROWN: Objection, form.
A Could you be more specific?
Q Sure. Please describe the work that Mr Smith did in connection with Sunbeam to the extent you are aware of it.
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I don't know his specific responsibilities. He was head of our sales force at Morgan Stanley.

Q Was there a particular aspect of the Sunbeam financing that Mr Smith worked on?
MS. BROWN: Objection, form.
A Not that I recall.
Q Do you recall whether there were more than one piece to the Sunbeam financing effort?
MS. BROWN: Objection, form.
A I don't really understand the question.
MR. CHORVAT: Sure. It is not terribly complicated. I mean, there was a senior lending piece, like a bank loan, and there was a convertible debenture; right?
A Oh, sure. There was a zero, there was the convert, and there was the syndicated loan.
Q Was there one part or the other of that that you worked on?
A I did not work on the zero coupon, so I would have worked on the syndicated loan.
Q When you say, "The syndicated loan", was that loan ever syndicated?
A No.
Q But it was intended to be syndicated?
A That's right.
Q Is that also true of Mr Smith, that he worked on the syndicated loan piece?

Page 19

A Yes.
Q As to Mr. Hart, was there a particular piece that he worked on?
A I don't know. I don't know if he only worked on one of them. I don't know.
Q What was Mr. Seth's role?
A He was an analyst. You know, drafting, modeling, you know, getting papers together.
Q Did he effectively report to you?
A I mean, I was senior to him, but whether he reported to me would be -- I mean, I gave him jobs to do, but I don't know if that is the specific term.
Q Please describe your role in connection with the Sunbeam syndicated loan.
A I was responsible for drafting the bank book, the memorandum that was to be used to syndicate the loan, to coordinate with the other banks, the process to syndicate the loan which involved inviting other banks, distributing materials.
Q Anything else?
A Broadly speaking, that is what I did.
Q At the time that you began work on the Sunbeam syndicated loan, did you have an understanding as to the timeframe on which the syndication would take place?

A It was within, you know, two or three months.
Q Do you recall when the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman and first-alerted signature banks took place?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A I was aware that they were closing, but it wasn't really my responsibility.
MR. CHORVAT: As of the time you began work on Sunbeam, you understood that the loan to Sunbeam would not be syndicated before those acquisitions closed. Is that correct?
A My focus was on, you know, preparing, generally, to syndicate the loan, and I was aware that there were other things going on, but the direct correlation, not really.
Q Did you have an understanding as to why it was that the acquisitions were going to close, and the loan would be extended to Sunbeam before the loan was syndicated?
A Sometimes loans are syndicated before closing, sometimes after, so it really didn't strike me as anything one way or the other. They get done both ways.

Q I take it that there might be reasons in any individual situation why it would be done one way or done another way?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Could you be more specific?
MR. CHORVAT: Sure. Do you have any understanding as to any reason why it was that in this particular instance the senior loan was extended to Sunbeam before the loan was syndicated?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q That is not a topic that you can recall discussing with anyone at Morgan Stanley?
A No. It just didn't strike me as relevant.
Q During the course of your work on Sunbeam for Morgan Stanley, did you have occasion to communicate in any way with any individuals within Sunbeam?
A Ron Richter was my main point of contact.
Q Do you recall what his title was?
A I think it was, "Treasurer". I am not sure.
Q You said he was your main point of contact. Were there others that you had occasion to speak with?

A He had an assistant whose name I can't recall, but it was just the two of them, to the best of my knowledge.
Q What were the nature of your communications with Mr. Richter?
MS. BROWN: I am going to object to form.
A Can you be more specific?
MR. CHORVAT: Sure. Is it a situation where you would seek information from Mr. Richter or he would seek information from you or something else?
A He assisted with the writing of the bank book, the distribution memorandum.
Q Did you physically write the text that went into the bank book?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A No, not that I recall, physically, no.
MR. CHORVAT: Who did?
A I don't remember.
Q I think you indicated earlier that you were responsible for drafting the bank book. What is it that you did in order to ensure that the bank book was drafted?
A You know, I think it was based on the memorandum for the zero coupon bonds, so largely the way it works is that the material is taken from that book and just changed in its form.

Q At the time that you began work on Sunbeam, the memorandum for the zero coupon bonds was already in existence?
A That's right.
Q Then your role was essentially to take that material and adapt it for your needs and then adjust as necessary?
A I think that is fair.
Q Other than Mr. Richter and his assistant, were there any other individuals at Sunbeam that you had occasion to contact?
A At this part of the process, no. Not that I recall.
Q Would your answer be different at some later part of the process?
A I mean, I was introduced to Jerry Levin later on and some of the other people who were working with him.
Q Do you recall when that was?
A Not specifically.
Q Sometime after Mr. Levin had assumed responsibilities with respect to Sunbeam?

Page 24

A Yes.
Q We will get to that period of time a little later.
At any point in time have you had occasion to speak with anyone at Coleman during your work for Morgan Stanley?
A Not that I recall.
Q At any point in time have you had occasion to speak with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes or, "MaFCo", with respect to your work for Morgan Stanley?
A Are those -- sorry, could you be more specific, just so I understand the entity that you are talking about? I have met various people over time.
Q Sure.
A Howard Beavis, Irwin Engelman. Is that the right name?
Q Anyone else at MaFCo or any affiliate of MaFCo?
A I have met some other people whose names I don't recall.
Q When did you first have occasion to meet Mr. Beavis?
A I don't recall the exact date.

Page 25

Q Would it be during the summer of 1998 or later?
A Yes.
Q During, say, the first six months of 1998, did you have any occasion to speak with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes, or MaFCo, or any related entities?
A Not that I recall.
Q During your work on Sunbeam for Morgan Stanley, have you had occasion to speak with anyone at Arthur Andersen?
A I don't think so.
Q I take it from your earlier answer that you have had occasion to speak with representatives of Bank of America with respect to Sunbeam?
A In terms of -- yes. Yes.
Q Who at Bank of America have you dealt with?
A I don't recall. It was just, you know, pretty much blocking and tackling to get the meetings together, lists of who was going to be invited to the bank meeting. It was very much related to the syndication.
Q What role did anyone from Bank of America play in the preparation or drafting of the bank book?

MS. BROWN: Object, foundation.
A I don't recall.
MR. CHORVAT: With whom at First Union did you have occasion to deal with with respect to Sunbeam?
A The same as with Bank of America. I don't recall exactly who I was dealing with.
Q Other than the individuals that you have mentioned thus far, can you recall any discussions with anyone else on behalf of a third party or any other party with respect to Sunbeam?
A Not that I recall.
Q Do you recall what the size was of the Senior loan to Sunbeam?
A About 1.4 billion. Something in that area.
Q 1.7 billion sound right?
A I don't recall exactly. I am sorry.
Q Prior to the time that you began work on Sunbeam, had you worked on any other Senior loans or bank loans during your time at Morgan Stanley?
A Yes.
Q Was the Sunbeam loan larger in size than the prior bank loans that you had worked on at Morgan Stanley?

Page 27

A I don't remember.
Q Do you recall whether the Senior loan to Sunbeam was proceeding on a more accelerated schedule than normal?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Could you be more specific?
MR. CHORVAT: Sure. When you began work on the Sunbeam matter at Morgan Stanley, did you understand that there were time constraints, that the loan had to be closed by a particular day?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q Did you ever have occasion to interact in any way with any members of Sunbeam's board?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q Did you play any role in any negotiations with respect to any acquisitions that Sunbeam made?
A Not that I recall.
Q Did you ever have occasion to review any agreements that governed any acquisitions that Sunbeam made?
A Not that I recall.
Q What role, if any, did you play in connection with the documentation of the Senior debt placed to Sunbeam?

Page 28

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Could you be more specific?
MR. CHORVAT: Sure. You have mentioned that you worked on the bank book.
A Yes.
Q Let's, I guess, get this clear on the record. What is it that you are referring to as the, "Bank book"?
A I guess we would refer to that as a, "Confidential Information Memorandum". It is a thick Information Memorandum that is distributed to the potential lenders for the loan, the syndication of the loan.
Q So, the audience for the bank book would be lenders who are at least potentially interested in participating in the syndication?
A That is fair.
Q There also was documentation that governed the Senior loan as between Sunbeam as a borrower and Morgan Stanley and the other lenders. Isn't that right?
A Yes. Yes. The facility agreement, the loan agreement, whatever.
Q Did you ever have occasion to review that documentation?

Page 29

A Yes. I would have seen it.
Q Did you play any role in drafting or commenting on that documentation?
A Not that I recall.
Q That was a finished product during the time that you reviewed it?
A To the best of my knowledge, yes.
Q You mentioned that you reviewed the memorandum with respect to the convertible debentures. Did you play any role in drafting or editing or commenting on them?
A No.
Q What role, if any, did you play in connection with due diligence with respect to Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Could you be more specific?
MR. CHORVAT: Sure. Is, "Due diligence", a term that you are familiar with?
A Yes.
Q What is your understanding of the meaning of the phrase, "Due diligence"?
A Well, it is a discovery process.
Q Who is it that is doing the discovering?
A Could you be more specific?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0187

Page 30

Q Sure. You mentioned that due diligence is a discovery process, and all I would like you to do is to elaborate on that. Who is it that is discovering what?
A Well, it is usually, generally, a process that involves lawyers, accountants, bankers, you know. It is a very generic term. It is very specific in each case, but generally a group of experts.
Q In connection with a loan like the loan that was made to Sunbeam, what is the purpose of due diligence?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A What do you mean by, "Objective"?
MR. CHORVAT: "Objective", wasn't a word that I used, but that would work.
A Sorry.
Q Why is it that due diligence takes place in connection with a loan like the one that was made to Sunbeam?
A Well, you know, it is in order to fairly present your understanding of the loan, or of the situation, of the credit.
Q Were you involved at all in any due diligence that Morgan Stanley did with respect to Sunbeam?

Page 31

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A No, not that I recall.
MR. CHORVAT: You never traveled to Florida, Wichita or anywhere else in connection with due diligence?
A No.
Q Did you do any travel from New York to anywhere else in connection with Sunbeam?
A Not that I recall.
Q Did you ever have occasion to review a highly confident letter in connection with Sunbeam?
A Not that I recall.
Q Let me show you what previously has been marked as CPH deposition Exhibit 10. Is this document the zero coupon memorandum that you referred to earlier?
A It appears to be a copy of the zero coupon offer memorandum, yes.
Q Tell me what use you made of this document, or another copy of it, in your work.
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A I don't recall, exactly.
MR. CHORVAT: But this was a source of information and/or text for you in drafting the bank book?

Page 32

A Yes. We would have used parts of this document, yes.
Q What other sources of information did you use for the bank book, beyond this document?
A Talk to the company about any additional materials that they felt was relevant, or any changes, I suppose, since this was printed.
Q Did you update the financial information beyond what was in this document?
A I don't recall.
Q This document is dated March 19th, 1998. Do I understand correctly that you had not gotten to New York yet on March 19th, 1998?
A Again, I believe I arrived in New York after March 19th. I don't have the exact date, but to the best of my knowledge it was later than March 19th.
Q Were you involved in any way in any roadshow with respect to sunbeam?
A No.
Q Roadshow.
A You mean related to this document, just to be clear, right?
Q That's right.

Page 33

A No.
Q Was there some other roadshow with respect to Sunbeam?
A One could argue that the syndication of the Senior loan is like a roadshow. It is a single date instead of going on the road, but it is a similar process, I suppose.
Q That is something that you were involved in?
A Yes.
Q Did you ever have occasion to review one or more comfort letters from Arthur Andersen with respect to Sunbeam?
A Not that I recall.
Q Did any materials from Arthur Andersen—let me start that over.
Did you make any use of any information supplied by Arthur Andersen in connection with your preparation of the bank book?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Not that I recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Did you ever have any involvement in any press releases that Sunbeam issued with respect to its financial situation?
A Not that I recall.

Page 34

Q Did you ever have occasion to discuss Sunbeam with Ruth Porat?
A Not that I recall.
Q Did you work with Ms. Porat at all?
A I don't know. Not that I recall.
Q Let me show you what has previously been marked as CPH deposition Exhibit 133. Is Exhibit 133 a document that you are familiar with?
A Yes.
Q What is Exhibit 133?
A It appears to be a copy of the briefing memo that would have gone to the Leverage Finance Committee.
Q Do you recognize the handwriting on the first page of Exhibit 133?
A It looks like my handwriting.
Q It says, "Simon", in a circle toward the upper right-hand corner. That is you?
A That is the way I mark my copy of documents, keep track of them.
Q Up at the top right of the first page of this document it appears to say, "Due diligence complete".
A I cannot read that third word. It looks like, "Due diligence ...", something.

Page 35

Q It doesn't look like, "Complete", to you?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Asked and answered.
A It doesn't.
MR. CHORVAT: Do you know why you would have written, "Due diligence complete", or, "Due diligence", something else on this document?
MS. BROWN: Objection to the extent it mischaracterizes.
A I don't recall why I wrote, "Due diligence", on there.
MR. CHORVAT: Do you recall whether due diligence had been completed as of the time you would have gotten this document?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A I think due diligence is an ongoing process.
MR. CHORVAT: When did you first get a copy of Exhibit 133?
A Probably when I arrived.
Q Do you recall whether that was on or after March 20th of 1998?
A I believe I arrived after March 20.
Q Did you attend a meeting of the Leverage Finance Credit Committee with respect to Sunbeam?

Page 36

A Not that I recall.
Q Just to broaden out the time period, during your work for Morgan Stanley have you ever had occasion to attend a meeting of the Leverage Finance Credit Committee, or the same committee by some later name, that dealt with Sunbeam?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q Under your name, it looks like there is writing that says, "Business, Environmental, Accounting, Legal". Do you know to what you were referring when you wrote that?
A I don't recall.
Q Were those different aspects of information that you would need to include in the bank book?
A Typically, yes.
Q Would that be a little checklist to yourself of things you needed to look into?
A Just sections. Not actually look into.
Q The upper left hand corner, is that just a doodle or is that an exclamation point, or is that -- what is that?
A That is a doodle. That is a paperclip like this, drawn around.
Q On the third page of this document the one that has the Bates number 40988, is that your handwriting as well? 40988.

A This one?
MS. BROWN: I don't think we have the same copy you have.
MR. CHORVAT: The one with the Bates number 59246.
A Okay.
Q Is that your handwriting?
A It looks like mine.
Q Why is March 30th circled, if you remember?
A Just that it was a date that was coming out.
Q You have mentioned that you got to New York and began work sometime after March 20th. Can you recall with any more specificity of when it would have been?
A I don't recall.
Q March 23rd of 1998 was a Monday. Would it have been on or about that Monday?
A If, "On or about", means give or take three or four days, yes.
Q Was it before March 30th that you began working --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 38

A I believe so, yes.
Q What, if anything, did you do with respect to Sunbeam prior to March 30th of 1998?
A I would have just started learning about it, reading materials.
Q Just to help focus your recollection, the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman closed on March 30th of 1998 which was also a Monday. Does that context refresh your recollection in any way of anything else you would have done prior to March 30th?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q Did you have any role in connection with the closing of the Coleman acquisition?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q On the page that bears the Bates number 59249, is that your handwriting on that page as well?
A It looks like my handwriting.
Q On the upper part of the page you wrote, "Audited?" Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Do you know why you would have an arrow pointing to the 1997 column? Do you know why you would have written that?
A I don't recall, but the timing would -- end of March, timing, April, August 1997, sorry, 1997 year end, it would just be whether or not it was complete, I suppose, but I don't recall, exactly.

Q Further down in that same column it looks like you have written, "Major restructuring". Do you recall what you were referring to there?
A I don't recall.
Q Let me just ask you to page through the rest of this document. There is additional handwriting. If there is any of the handwriting that is not yours, please point that out.
A (Pause) It is difficult to judge the lines and circles. Looks like my copy of the document.
Q During that first week or so that you worked on Sunbeam, I take it you would have had a copy of Exhibit 133, and a copy of Exhibit 10. Would there be any other materials that you would have made use of during your initial work on Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Mischaracterizes the evidence; assumes facts not in evidence.
A I don't know. I mean yes, if there were other documents. I don't know what they were. If you have any I would be happy to identify them.

Page 40

MR. CHORVAT: Let me show you what previously has been marked as CPH deposition Exhibit 112. Don't worry about that first page, but with respect to the next two pages of the exhibit, would this be something that you would have had occasion to look at in connection with your work on Sunbeam?
A I don't recognize this document. It appears to refer to the zero coupon, but I don't recall having this document.
Q Were there any other letters from Arthur Andersen that you can recall?
A I don't recall. As I said earlier, I don't recall correspondence or contact with Arthur Andersen.
Q Did you attend any closings of any acquisitions that Sunbeam made after you arrived in New York?
A No. I don't recall.
Q In connection with your work on Sunbeam, did you ever have occasion to review Sunbeam's financial performance for the first quarter of 1998?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Not that I recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Did you ever hear that

Page 41

Sunbeam's financial performance for the first quarter of 1998 fell below analysts' expectations?
A No, not that I recall.
Q During the time that you worked on the bank book you never heard that Sunbeam's performance was less than what had been anticipated?
A You asked me if I had heard if it was below analysts's expectations, and I don't know what analysts' expectations were, so it is difficult for me to say, but I was aware that there was noise around the name, absolutely.
Q When you say there was, "Noise around the name", tell me what you recall.
A I don't recall, specifically. I just remember that there was discussion of missing numbers.
Q When you say, "Missing numbers", are you saying that Sunbeam's sales or earnings were lower than --
A Off target. I don't know what the exact word is, but I did not have a list of analysts -- I wasn't, you know, I wasn't keeping track of what analysts' expectations were. It is a different -- but I was aware that there were starting to be some discussion about their performance generally, if that is an answer.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q There is some sense in which Sunbeam's performance in the first quarter of 1998 was disappointing?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A "Disappointing"?
MR. CHORVAT: Well, let's try it again. Sunbeam's financial performance, Sunbeam's sales and earnings for the first quarter of 1998 were less than what Sunbeam had projected?
A I don't recall.
Q Do you recall hearing that Sunbeam's sales and earnings for the first quarter of 1998 were less than Sunbeam's sales and earnings in the first quarter of 1997?
A I recall something like that, yes.
Q Do you recall when you first heard about any issue with respect to Sunbeam's sales or earnings for the first quarter of 1998?
A I don't recall specifically, no.
Q What, generally, do you recall about that?
A I just recall becoming aware of, you know, that they were below expectations, I suppose, below our expectations, or somebody's expectations, there was just discussion that ... I don't recall, exactly. I don't recall the date. I don't recall the timing. I just, you know -- there was definitely some discussions but I don't know when.

Q Is that a topic that you discussed with anyone else at Morgan Stanley?
A Not that I recall.
Q How, if at all, did the noise with respect to Sunbeam's performance affect your work on the bank book?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A You know, I would ask Ron Richter to give me, to help me understand, you know, what was going on, what was relevant, you know, I suppose.
Q It is correct, is it not, that Sunbeam's financial performance would be something that potential participants in a syndication would be interested in looking at?
A Yes.
Q So, it is also correct that information about Sunbeam's financial performance is something that you would want to include in the bank book?
A To the extent that it was relevant I would put any information in the bank book.
Q What discussions with Ron Richter, in words or substance, can you recall with respect to Sunbeam's financial performance?

Page 44

A I don't recall.
Q Did you ask him for updated information on Sunbeam's finances?
A I don't recall. I don't recall exactly what the information flow was.
Q Do you recall when it was in relation to your beginning work on Sunbeam and that you first had occasion to speak with Mr. Richter or his assistant?
A You know, I don't know when exactly I was introduced to him.
Q You see, he's an individual that you met at some point as well?
A Yes. We were on the 'phone first and then I met him in person later.
Q When was it that you met him in person?
A I don't remember.
Q Was it a meeting with analysts or lenders or banks or something?
A I am sorry, I don't remember.
Q Do you recall if it was in New York or somewhere else?
A I don't recall.

Page 45

Q On how many occasions have you met Mr. Richter in person?
A At least once.
Q Do you recall whether you had occasion to speak with Mr. Richter or anyone else at Sunbeam during the first week that you were working on Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Asked and answered.
A I don't recall. I don't think it was in the first week.
Q Please describe the timing process of your work on the bank book. What did you do, when, as best as you can recall.
A You know, essentially as soon as I arrived in New York I started, you know, I was staffed on this transaction, spent sometime getting up to speed, learning the background, reading, looking through these documents, looking through the Leverage Finance Committee memorandum, and thinking about structuring this material into the bank book.
Q Had you prepared other bank books prior to that time?
A Yes.
Q Was the process of preparing the Sunbeam bank book different in any way to the process that you had gone through previously?

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A I think they are all different, but, you know, your goal is to get a representative book out to the prospective lenders so in that sense they are all the same.
MR. CHORVAT: In what respects was the preparation of the Sunbeam bank book unique?
A I mean, the material is all different.
Q Is there any other respect in which the preparation of the Sunbeam bank book was unusual?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A I would say no. I don't recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Let me show you what previously has been marked as CPH deposition Exhibit 261. Are you familiar with Exhibit 261?
A Yes.
Q Is 261 a draft of the bank book?
A No. This appears to be a slide presentation that would have been used at the meeting itself, whereas the bank books, the materials you would distribute in advance.
Q Is this your handwriting in Exhibit 261?
A It appears to be my handwriting, yes.
Q Looking through here, based on the handwriting, it appears that this is a draft of the document.

Page 47

A It looks like a draft, yes.
Q What role did you play in drafting the slide presentation that is for the lender meeting?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A I don't recall. I mean, it looks like I was commenting on it.
MR. CHORVAT: Is this your handwriting that runs throughout the document?
A It looks like my handwriting.
Q Is this a document that Mr. Saith prepared?
A I don't know.
Q What recollection, if any, do you have of your role with respect to this document?
MS. BROWN: Objection, asked and answered.
A I mean, this looks like I was commenting on it.
MR. CHORVAT: Do you have an understanding of what source or sources of information went into this document?
A No. Sorry. I don't recall.
Q Is a slide presentation like this typical of a national syndication?

Page 48

A Yes.
Q Let me ask you to turn to the page that has the Bates number 24399. Can you explain what the meaning of your comments on that page is?
A I don't recall.
Q Do you recall whether these are numbers that you are adding for your own use or whether you are suggesting a different presentation?
A I don't know. I mean, it looks like I was just adding numbers. That seems to be a good way of putting it. 253, a sum of ...
Q I want to show you what previously has been marked as CPH deposition Exhibit 155.
A This is the bank book.
Q So this is the bank book that you referred to earlier in your testimony?
A Yes.
Q Were there some portions of this document that you yourself wrote?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Not that I recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Other than yourself was there another individual or were there other individuals at Morgan Stanley who wrote portions of the bank book?

Page 49

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Other than the people that would have been involved in preparing it, I think, "Writing it" -- it would have been myself and Ishaan Seth.
Q Other than yourself and Mr. Seth, were there others at Morgan Stanley who reviewed or commented on drafts of the bank book?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I don't recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Is the bank book something that you had authority in 1998 to sign off on approval or was that something that was reviewed at some other level?
A I don't understand what you mean by, "Sign off and approve". It is the company's document, so ultimate responsibility, I guess it says up front, lies with the company.
Q Were there any individuals, senior to yourself at Morgan Stanley, who had any involvement in connection with the preparation of the bank book?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A When you say, "Responsibility", I don't know what you mean.
MR. CHORVAT: Well, let me say, "Involvement".

A Sorry.
Q Other than yourself and Mr. Seth, who, if anyone, at Morgan Stanley had any involvement in preparing the bank book?
MS. BROWN: Same objection.
A I don't recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Well, is it something -- would Mr. Hart have had occasion to look at drafts of the bank book?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I don't know. I don't recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Would Mr Smith have had occasion to look at drafts of the bank book?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A You know, probably would have looked at the list of the Sales people to make sure that these guys, make sure all the names are spelled correctly and the numbers are correct.
MR. CHORVAT: Is there anyone other than yourself and Mr. Seth to whom drafts of the bank book would have been circulated at Morgan Stanley?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A Probably. I don't recall.
Q I mean, let me broaden it out. More generally in the process of preparing a bank book, does an associate report to or work with anyone more senior in getting to a finished product?

Page 51

A I mean, yes. Mike Hart was on the deal. I was working with Mike.
Q Would individuals at Bank of America and First Union also have participated in the process of drafting, or was it a Morgan Stanley task?
MS. BROWN: Object to form and mischaracterizes evidence.
A The book would have been distributed to other institutions in a draft form, yes.
MR. CHORVAT: When you say it would have been distributed, who would have done that distributing?
A Myself, Reshan Paul(?).
Q Is the bank book something that was on a Morgan Stanley computer system?
A I think so.
Q It was like a Word document or something like that?
A I think so, yes.
Q It would have been somewhere physically on the Morgan Stanley word processing system at the time it was prepared?

Page 52

A Yes.
Q During your work on Sunbeam for Morgan Stanley, did you ever have occasion to attend any meeting or meetings of analysts?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q Did you ever have occasion to attend any meeting or meetings with rating agencies?
A Not that I recall.
Q The draft of the slide presentation that we looked at a moment ago, Exhibit 261, refers to a lender meeting on June 9th of 1998. Did you attend a lender meeting on or about June 9th of 1998?
A Yes, I did.
Q Who else from Morgan Stanley attended that meeting?
A I don't recall.
Q Do you recall whether Mr. Seth attended that meeting?
A I would be surprised if he didn't, but I don't recall.
Q Do you recall whether Mr Smith and Mr. Hart attended the meeting?
A I would say the same thing.
Q You would expect that they would have but you don't recall?

Page 53

A Yes.
Q What can you recall about that lender meeting?
A It was a relatively, you know -- nothing specific. I mean, the company gave a presentation, not a lot of Q and A at the end which is fairly typical for these bank meetings, banks like to ask their questions later, and Dunlap signing a lot of books.
Q Who gave the presentation on behalf of Sunbeam?
A I have no idea. I mean, a number of people. I think they took -- they would take sections.
Q Mr. Dunlap was one of them?
A Yes.
Q Mr. Kersh was one of them?
A I don't recall Kersh's presentation. I had a lot of responsibility so, you know, making sure that a lot of things were going on, so I didn't necessarily sit in there watching the whole thing.
Q Tell me what your responsibilities were.
A Make sure people signed in, there were enough seats. Some of the stuff we do is kind of boring.

Page 54

Q You had to handle the logistics, among other things?
A Yes.
Q Where did the meeting take place?
A In a hotel. I don't recall. A hotel in New York City.
Q Was it in a conference room, an auditorium?
A Yes, auditorium, yes.
Q Do you recall how many people or how many institutions attended?
A I don't recall exactly.
Q Do you have a --
A It was well-attended. There were a number of institutions and banks there.
Q More than 50 people? Several dozens of people?
A Probably.
Q What, if anything, about the specific discussions took place can you recall?
A It was a presentation rather than discussions.
Q Were there questions and answers?
A There was a Q and A session, yes.
Q Do you recall the topics that were covered in any of the questions?

Page 55

A Not that I recall.
Q Do you recall whether there was any attention to or concern about somebody's financial performance?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A These, you know, I don't recall. It is unusual for banks to ask pointed questions at these meetings. They just don't do it, but I don't recall specifically.
Q In addition to the lender meeting, did you also have occasion during the course of the syndication efforts to speak with representatives of potentially interested institutions?
A Those -- the answer -- not that I recall. Typically, we have a sales force and they deal with their counterparts at institutions, so, you know, sometimes the sales force cannot answer questions unless we know that it generally comes through to us, but I don't recall specifically having questions from the counterparts of the other institutions.
Q With respect to Sunbeam, was there someone else at Morgan Stanley who would have been involved in those discussions?
A Yes. The sales force.

Page 56

Q Under Mr Smith?
A Yes.
Q After the lender meeting in June 1998, what else, if anything, did you do with respect to the attempt to syndicate the Sunbeam loan?
A I don't recall. The process takes two or three weeks, and, you know, potentially the lenders declined to participate in the loan.
Q The bank book would have been available to lenders as of the time of the lender meeting. Is that right?
A Typically, it distributed in advance.
Q Do you recall in this occasion?
A I don't recall.
Q You mentioned a moment ago that the process takes two or three weeks. Describe that process, please.
A Typically, you have the bank meeting, and then, I think actually if you look at the front of this book there is a timetable. Typically, the banks were given three weeks to come back with commitments after the bank meeting, and it is an iterative process from the bank meeting to that date, where you just answer bank's questions, and, you know, try to assist them to get an approval on the loan.

Q When you say it is an iterative process, what is it that iterates?
A They come to you with questions, you answer their questions, they can come back with more questions.
Q You mentioned that the syndication effort with respect to Sunbeam was not successful?
A We didn't syndicate the loan.
Q Did you have an understanding at the time as to why it was that you didn't syndicate the loan?
A I think there were questions starting to come up as to, you know, what was going on in the company. I don't remember specifically, but ...
Q Do you recall anything about the nature of those questions?
A No. I don't recall.
Q Do you recall whether it had anything to do with efforts to accelerate a sales or earnings from one reporting period into another?
A At some point over -- I don't recall when exactly I became aware of that as an issue at some point, but I don't recall whether it was during the process here, or whether there were just other issues that the banks were concerned about. The share price was falling. There were a number of things going on.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 58

Q At some point during the syndication process Mr. Dunlap was terminated?
A I don't recall exactly. Do you recall when? I don't recall exactly when it was terminated.
Q I guess the question I am wondering, I want to get at, is whether you recall whether the syndication process was proceeding successfully up to the point that he was terminated, or whether it was already having problems?
A I don't recall.
MS. BROWN: Let's take a break.
(11.29 am)
OFF THE RECORD
(11.37 am)
MR. CHORVAT: Mr. Rankin, there came a time when the efforts to syndicate the Sunbeam loan in June of 1998, when those efforts ended?
A Yes.
Q How did that come about?
A I think the bank, you know, we had declines from all the banks who had been invited to the syndication.

Page 59

Q So, it wasn't so much a decision that Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam made, as it was you had just gotten answers back and there were no takers?
A Yes. I don't know if the last decline had come in, but it became obvious that we weren't going to syndicate the loan.
Q I take it you didn't work any further on the bank book after that?
A That is fair.
Q Other than things that you have testified to so far in connection with the bank book or the lender agreement, what else did you do with respect to Sunbeam at Morgan Stanley?
A Well, after -- you know, I think the focus shifted, and I don't know the exact sequence of events, but the Macandrews and Forbes and MaFCo became involved and I started attending meetings with different parties, I suppose.
Q When you say, "Different parties", what parties were those?
A I mean, I remember having meetings, I think, with Macandrews and Forbes and their attorneys, I suppose, or their advisers. I don't know exactly who.
Q Together with, or separately from, those meetings, did you also have meetings with representatives of Bank of America and First Union?

A I didn't, no. I don't recall.
Q Do you know whether someone else at Morgan Stanley was continuing to coordinate with Bank of America and First Union?
A I don't know.
Q With respect to the meetings with MaFCo, are these meetings in person or conference calls or both?
A Both, I think.
Q How did that process start, to your recollection?
A I don't recall.
Q Do you recall how your involvement in that process came to be?
A Attending meetings with Mike Hart.
Q Something where Mr. Hart asked you to attend a particular meeting?
A Yes.
Q Did you have any responsibility with respect to the dealings with Macandrews and Forbes or MaFCo, other than to show up at meetings?
A No.
Q Did you have any logistical

Page 61

responsibilities in connection with any of those meetings?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A No. The meetings were at their offices.
MR. CHORVAT: Were these meetings that you took notes at or wrote memos about?
A I don't recall how we were recording it.
Q Do you recall when in relation to the lender meeting the first meeting with MacAndrews and Forbes or MaFCo took place?
A I don't recall.
Q What can you recall about your meetings with MaFCo?
A You know, I don't have a great recollection of the meetings.
Q How many meetings are we talking about?
A Three, five. More.
Q Over what general period of time did they take place?
A A number of weeks, months.
Q All in 1998?
A I believe so.
Q Were they all in the same place?
A No. They moved around.
Q What locations can you remember?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 62

A Some were at what is called The Townhouse, I guess, that is MacAndrews and Forbes' office, and some were at an attorney's office, but I don't recall which attorney. Manhattan attorney.
Q Who attended the meetings?
A Morgan Stanley, Macandrews and Forbes, Macandrews and Forbes' advisers. I can't remember if we had our attorneys there. We might have had advisers from Morgan Stanley as well.
Q Who served as Morgan Stanley's advisers?
A I don't recall.
Q When you say, "Advisers", do you mean someone other than counsel?
A I mean counsel, yes.
Q What do you recall about the purpose of the meetings?
A Just to determine what, you know, to determine what was going on, the situation, and really just to, you know, get a handle on what was going on, and how we were going to deal with it.
Q When you say, "What was going on", do you mean events at Sunbeam?
A At Sunbeam, yes. Their accounting issues, who was going to run it, who owned it.
Q Without asking you to recall specific words that specific individuals used, what can you recall about the substance of the discussion?

A You know, it was pretty much about who was going to run the company, how to get the company back on its feet, how to move forward, how to constructively attack the situation, and, you know, try to presumably -- I will not say "presumably", but, I mean, to maintain value.
Q Would you characterize it as a collaborative effort to maintain that?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A Yes.
MR. CHORVAT: Now, I had carved out from my prior question any specific statements that any particular individuals made. Do you recall any specific statements that any particular individuals made?
A No. I do not.
Q Do you recall why it was that those meetings stopped happening after some period of time?
A Actually, I stopped attending them, so I am not sure when they stopped happening.
Q Other individuals at Morgan Stanley continued to attend them after you stopped?

Page 64

A Yes. Mitch Petrick became involved in the transaction.
Q When is it that Mr. Petrick first became involved with Sunbeam?
A I don't recall exactly, but after the syndication was not completed, after the information about the accounting became well-known, but specifically, I cannot tell you.
Q What is your understanding of the role that Mr. Petrick played with respect to Sunbeam?
A How to, you know, maintain as much value in the company as possible, you know, make sure that it was managed properly, make sure that -- that is it. Just maintain values, really, I think is the order of the day.
Q In addition to your work on the bank book, the meeting, and your attendance at some meetings with representatives of Macandrews and Forbes, what other work did you do with respect to Sunbeam?
A There were certain amendments that were required, so I was -- you know, I facilitated that, if you will, internally, from the Morgan Stanley perspective.
Q What is it that you did to facilitate amendments to the agreements with Sunbeam?

Page 65

A The loan agreement would have certain requirements and obligations of the company in it. If the company couldn't meet those they would technically be in default, so they would need an amendment to cure that default. That is my recollection as to what we were doing.
Q Why is it that there would be an amendment to cure the default as compared to enforcing the rights that the lenders had upon a default?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation; speculation.
A You know, I don't know.
MR. CHORVAT: Is there someone at Morgan Stanley who made a decision in one or more instances to wave a default by Sunbeam?
A Well, I think generally speaking the banks aren't interested in running a company, you know, the management of the company. That is not their job, so I think that, you know, there is a co-operative value maintaining, hopefully, an enhancing exercise, where you work together.
Q Who at Morgan Stanley would have had authority to agree to the substance of an amendment to waive a default?
A Mike Hart, Mitch Petrick.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 66

Q Were those the individuals with whom you worked in connection with amendments to the Sunbeam credit agreement?
A Generally Mike Hart.
Q What was your role in contrast to Mr. Hart's role with respect to amendments to the credit agreement?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A I suppose mine was more making sure that it was drafted correctly, and that Mike would be more responsible for making sure that it reflected the firm view, I suppose.
Q Were you involved in negotiating the terms of any of the amendments to the credit agreement?
A No, I wasn't.
Q Was that Mr. Hart's responsibility?
A I don't know whose responsibility it was directly.
Q But at some point it was communicated to you that there would be a particular change made in the substance of the credit agreement, and it would be your responsibility to see that that was documented correctly?
A Well, a lot of attorneys were involved, so it was a group effort.

Page 67

Q In connection with the amendments to the Sunbeam credit agreement, other than Mr. Hart, with whom did you work? And I don't mean just internally at Morgan Stanley. I mean anyone else you work with.
A I forget. I mean, we had attorneys. I just don't recall which firm it was, but I am sure there is materials around that can demonstrate who it was. I just don't recall exactly which law firm it was.
Q Did the firm of Davis Polk work on that?
A I just don't recall.
Q Were there individuals at other lending institutions who also worked on the amendments?
A Yes. The Bank of America and First Union had representatives at the meetings as well, yes.
Q Were there meetings with respect to amendments to the credit agreement?
A I am sure there were. There will be ongoing discussions whether, you know -- but it was a fairly continuous process. I wasn't necessarily part of all the conversations, but, I mean, it took all three of us, all three of the banks, Bank of America, First Union and Morgan Stanley were generally in agreement on what we were doing, so there must have been conversations going on.
Q Over the course of time there were quite a few amendments to the Sunbeam credit agreement. In your experience, is that typical, or were there an unusual number of amendments here?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A I haven't been in a situation like that before, so ... we just did what was necessary.
Q Are you familiar with something called the, "Parent security agreement", with respect to Sunbeam?
A That doesn't -- I don't recall it.
Q You don't recall why it was that a parent security agreement was developed?
A I don't recall.
Q In connection with the loan to Sunbeam, is it correct that there were a couple of pieces to the Senior debt? There was a term piece and a revolver piece?
A I think that's right, yes.
Q Do you recall over what period of time advances were made to Sunbeam under either part of their facility?
A A revolving credit facility can be drawn and repaid, drawn and repaid, so that is over the life of it. The term facilities, I don't recall here, but typically they are drawn relatively close to the closing of the transaction. They are the funded part of the loan to fund the acquisition. I don't remember the specific dates that they were actioned.
(Exhibit CPH 292 marked for identification)
Q I will ask you to look at what has been marked as Exhibit 292. Is this, or any part of this, a document that you have seen before?
A I don't recall this document specifically, but, you know, generally I am familiar with the issues that were being addressed in it.
Q After the cover page, this is a draft of a second amendment to the credit agreement.
A That is what it appears to be, yes.
Q Your role with respect to the second amendment would be, as you have described it, as a facilitation role for the Morgan Stanley perspective. Is that right?
A That's right.
Q In the first page of the amendment itself, the second page of this document, there is a, "Whereas", clause that appears to list the purposes for the amendment. In the (iii) it says that:
"One of those purposes is to modify the conditions to borrowing and issuance amendment renewal and extends of Letters of Credit", and (iv):

"Extending the time period by which the parent is required to enter into hedging agreements".
Do you recall whether those portions of this amendment would be things that Sunbeam would have requested?
A I don't know if they would have requested it, or if it was just passage of time. It may, you know -- I don't know. I don't recall.
Q You started to say, "Passage of time". What was the thought you were getting at there?
A It says, "Extend the time period by which the parent is required under the hedging agreements", and if they hadn't entered into the hedging agreements by the time they were required to, the passage of time would necessitate an amendment, but I am just reading into it. That is all.
Q In (v) it says:
"Answer information or requirements".
Was it the case that as the amendment process went on, the lenders, including Morgan Stanley, added information or requirements to enhance their ability to monitor the situation at

Page 71

Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Object to form and foundation.
A I don't know whether it was clarification or additional. I don't know.
Q Do you recall whether, during the process of amending the credit agreement, the lenders, including Morgan Stanley, sought additional information beyond what Sunbeam had previously been required to supply?
MS. BROWN: Same objections.
A I don't recall the specifics.
MR. CHORVAT: In (ii) it says:
"Increase pricing".
Is it the case that in connection with amendments to the credit agreement that the lenders, including Morgan Stanley, increased the fees and interest that they charged to Sunbeam?
A I think that's correct, yes.
Q Why is that?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I would be -- I don't know. Presumably the risk had gone up.
MR. CHORVAT: I was going to ask you if it was a function of the risk or of the administrative time and effort that you are putting in, or something else.

A It could be both.
Q Do you recall whether, as of June of 1998, Sunbeam had drawn down the full availability that it had under the revolver?
A I don't think so. It is very rare that a company -- the revolver -- it is very rare that a company does that, so the answer is I don't know, but I would be very surprised.
Q On the first page of this document, this appears to be a fax transmittal to Tom Mollitt(?) or of First Union. Is that an individual that you dealt with in connection with Sunbeam?
A I met Tom, yes.
Q Was he the person at First Union that was your primary contact with respect to Sunbeam?
A I don't recall.
Q Was there a particular role that First Union played in contrast to the role that Morgan Stanley played with respect to Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A People had, you know, people did have different roles, but I don't recall specifically. I mean, we were in charge of getting this thing into its form, for instance.

Q That thing being Exhibit 155, the bank book. Is that what you were pointing to there?
A Yes.
Q What role did First Union play? Was there a particular aspect that they were in charge of?
A No, I don't recall what the split of responsibilities was.
Q Would your answer be the same with respect to Bank of America?
A Yes.
Q Was there a particular individual at Bank of America with whom you dealt?
A I don't recall who it was. I don't recall.
Q Over the course of the amendment process with respect to the Sunbeam credit agreement there are instances where interest rates that are charged under the documents to Sunbeam are increased. Do you recall the reason for those increases?
A I don't recall the specific reasons.
Q Do you recall whether interest rates charged to Sunbeam were increased because of market factors, or because of factors specific to Sunbeam, or some of both?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.

018753

Page 74

A I believe they were variable rates, variable interest rates, and so there would be a market section. If the underlying rates went up and down, the rates would go up and down, and then there is a margin on top of that that reflects the risk of the transaction.

MR. CHORVAT: And that margin on top of whatever the variable portion of the rate would be, that is an element of the rate that is set specifically with respect to Sunbeam. Is that correct?

A Yes.

Q It is designed to reflect the particular circumstances and risks that are associated with Sunbeam?

MS. BROWN: Objection, form.

A The margin of a loan, the margin of loans reflects the company's specific situation.

MR. CHORVAT: Let's pause just a moment. We need to change the tape.

(12.03 pm)

OFF THE RECORD

(12.06 pm)

VIDEOGRAPHER: This is the beginning of videotape number 2 in Simon Rankin's deposition.

MR. CHORVAT: Mr. Rankin, what role, if any, did you play in connection with any decisions to mark-down or write down Sunbeam dead on the books of Morgan Stanley?

A None.

Q Do you have an understanding as to who at Morgan Stanley would have been involved in that process?

A I don't know.

Q Do you have any understanding of when any mark-downs were taken with respect to any debt of Sunbeam on --

A I don't know.

Q Are you aware that the lenders, including Morgan Stanley, worked to obtain a direct pledge of collateral from Coleman in connection with the Sunbeam financing?

A I don't recall it.

Q I will ask you to take a look at Exhibit 293 which is a one-page document bearing the Bates number Morgan Stanley 75968. Note that your name is listed about halfway down the list of addressees there. Is this a document that you are familiar with?

Page 76

(Exhibit 293 marked for identification)

A I don't recognize the document specifically, but I recognize my name on the, "To", list.

Q Is this the sort of document that you received from time to time in connection with your work on Sunbeam for Morgan Stanley?

A Yes.

Q In the list of individuals, "To", there you see Mr. Petrick's name. He was at Morgan Stanley?

A Yes.

Q Mr. Hart was at Morgan Stanley?

A Yes.

Q Anyone else who was at Morgan Stanley?

A I think Morgan Edwards. It is a tough call. I think we hired him. At some point Morgan Edwards was working at Morgan Stanley.

Q Can you identify any of the other individuals there on the, "To", list?

A No. I believe they are employees of First Union and Bank of America.

Q In the second paragraph there it says: "We are currently working with Skadden to prepare the documentation for the direct pledge of Coleman to the lenders".

What, if anything, can you recall about a direct pledge of collateral by Coleman?

A I don't recall those negotiations.

Q Do you recall whether the lenders, including Morgan Stanley, sought a direct pledge of collateral by Coleman in order to improve their secured position with respect to Sunbeam?

A That would sound like the right fact pattern, but I don't recall the actual motivation behind it, but that would presumably be their intent.

Q On the cc list, can you identify those individuals?

A I don't remember who they are.

MS. BROWN: By the way, a lot of these documents refer to communications to or from attorneys, so I just caution you to the extent that you are answering questions not to reveal any communication you had with any of your counsel.

A Okay. Thank you.

MR. CHORVAT: This document is dated April 22nd of 1999. As of April of 1999, or the spring of 1999, or generally, do you have a recollection of whether Morgan Stanley believed that its position with respect to Sunbeam was fully secured?

MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I don't know.
MR. CHORVAT: Let me try and improve the question a little bit. I don't know if it will change the answer. Do you have an understanding as to any time in the first half of 1999 whether Morgan Stanley understood that its Senior loan position with respect to Sunbeam was fully secured?
MS. BROWN: Same objection.
A I wasn't involved in any -- to the best of my recollection I was not involved in discussions of that nature, so I don't know.
MR. CHORVAT: At any time.
A I was not involved in these negotiations and I was not involved as you were discussing earlier, so I don't know, and I was not involved in trying to line up the security value and the loans outstanding to see if they were fully secured on the technical basis, no.
Q Was there any point in time, if we move away from the first half of 1999, just to broaden it out, is there any point in time in which you had an understanding as to whether or not Morgan Stanley's Senior loan position vis-a-vis Sunbeam was fully secured or something other than fully secured?

A No. I don't.
Q Let me ask the reporter please to mark this as CPH deposition Exhibit 294.
(Exhibit 294 marked for identification)
Mr. Rankin, let me ask you to look at Exhibit 294 which is a document that bears the Bates number Morgan Stanley 20379 through 20401. Can you identify Exhibit 294?
A It is entitled, "Amendment number 10 to the credit agreement".
Q If you look at the page that bears the Bates number 20395, is that your signature?
A That is my signature.
Q In what capacity did you sign this document?
A As Vice-President of Morgan Stanley Senior Funding Inc.
Q On the first page of this document there is, in the second, "Whereas", clause it says that the parent, and that is Sunbeam Corporation, has requested that the administrative agent and the lenders agree to continue to waive for approximately another year from the date of this document, certain provisions of the credit agreement. Do you have an understanding as to why Morgan Stanley agreed to that?

MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I don't recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Would this be an instance of the general tendency that you testified to earlier concerning the waiver of defaults by Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Mischaracterizes the witnesses testimony; calls for speculation.
A I don't recall the specific reasons for this amendment.
MR. CHORVAT: What do you recall more generally about the process as of -- this would be the first half of 2000 in which the credit agreement was amended and waiver dates were extended?
A I don't have specific recollection about the specific events that were going on at that point.
Q Do you have a general recollection of how things evolved with respect to the credit agreement?

Page 81

MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A We, as a firm, were continuing to work with the company to try to stabilize it, maintain value. I think, you know, that is to the best of my knowledge.
MR. CHORVAT: On the page that is labeled Morgan Stanley 20383, there is a Section 5 that carries over to the following page that relates to fees, and then there is the credit agreement with respect to fees. Do you recall why there were provisions relating to fees and the increases of fees included in either amendment 10 specifically or amendments like it more generally?
A I don't know.
Q Do you have a recollection of who at Morgan Stanley would have been involved in determining the appropriate fees to charge Sunbeam?
A I don't recall.
Q Is that something that Mr. Hart would have done, or Mr. Petrick or someone else?
A I don't recall, but they were the underwriters leading the negotiations. So, it is a fair speculation.
Q Mr. Rankin, let me ask you to look at

018755

Page 82

Exhibit 295, which is a three-page document that bears the Bates number Morgan Stanley 59312 through 59314. Can you identify this document?
(Exhibit 295 marked for identification)
A It appears to be an inter-office memorandum to senior members of Morgan Stanley from Bram Smith, Mike Hart, myself, Petrick, Doster, and credit officers.
Q Is this your handwriting on this document?
A It looks like my handwriting.
Q The four individuals who are to whom this memo is addressed, would it be fair to describe them as senior management of Morgan Stanley?
A Yes.
Q Do you know why a memorandum with respect to Sunbeam would have been addressed to senior management in April of 2000?
A It would just be a communication to Senior management as to what was going on in this transaction.
Q Do you know what role, if any, senior management was playing with respect to the Sunbeam transaction?
A I don't know.
Q In the, "From", portion of this memorandum, there are eight individuals who are grouped into three categories. Were there particular responsibilities with respect to Sunbeam that each of those three groups had?

A I think it was a collaborative effort that was going on between the teams. This is just really a functional, you know, distinction of what groups the people are in, but this would have been everybody working together on it.
Q You mentioned a functional distinction. Were there different functions that the different groups performed with respect to Sunbeam?
A The loan group is origination, credit is, you know, the internal credit group that reviews it from a credit perspective, and SSG, I don't know what that stands for, but that would have been who Petrick was -- the individual within the group within he was working in.
Q Who is T Doster?
A Ted Doster worked for Mitch. I don't know what his role is now, but I think at the time he was working for Mitch Petrick.
Q Do you have any understanding of his role with respect to Sunbeam?
A No.

Page 84

Q Is this a memorandum that you wrote?
A I don't recall who wrote this.
Q In the first paragraph of the memorandum it -- most of the way toward the bottom of that paragraph on the left side, it says that the extension will allow Sunbeam management time to continue the turnaround of the company's operations and to prepare the credit for ultimate syndication. As of April of 2000, was it still Morgan Stanley's intention to syndicate the Sunbeam loan?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation.
A Well, it appears from what is written here that syndicating the loan was a goal.
Q The next sentence says:
"The lenders ..."
And by, "Lenders", I take it that refers to Morgan Stanley, First Union and Bank of America. It says:
"The lenders believe that the strategies being pursued by Jerry Levin and his Management Team have stabilized the company's operations, providing a platform for growth, and that an achievable business plan has been established".
Do you recall whether you or others at Morgan Stanley held that view with respect to Mr. Levin's efforts at Sunbeam?

MS. BROWN: Objection. Foundation and compound.
A I believe it is fair to say that.
Q Looking at the handwriting on this page, toward the bottom of this page is written, "Hoolihan Lokley(?)". Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Did you have occasion to deal with anyone from Hoolihan Lokley in connection with Sunbeam?
A I believe they made -- I don't recall exactly what Hoolihan Lokley was doing.
Q Do you recall who retained Hoolihan Lokley?
A I don't recall.
Q With your handwriting on this document, is it fair to conclude that this was a document that you at least received in connection with your work at Morgan Stanley?
A Yes.
Q Do you recall who Lizzie is or was in the very bottom handwritten portion?
A I think that is my aunt.
Q That probably has nothing to do with

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Exhibit 6

Page 86

Sunbeam?
A I think it was a note to myself to call her back.
Q With respect to Sunbeam documents that you marked up, we have seen a number today, what sort of files did you keep with respect to Sunbeam?
A I kept -- I just kept the materials that were -- I kept a file of the related documents.
Q It was something that you maintained in your office?
A I had a file somewhere on my desk, in the desk.
Q How did you decide what documents to keep in your file with respect to Sunbeam?
A Probably kept most documents.
Q It was just your practice to keep documents that related to Sunbeam in a file?
A Yes, or a stack, or a file, or -- you know.
Q Mr. Rankin, let me ask you to look at Exhibit 296 which is a document that bears Bates numbers Morgan Stanley 59295 through 59311. Can you identify Exhibit 296?
(Exhibit 296 marked for identification)
A It appears to be a briefing memo for amendment number 12, and a copy of the amendment.

Page 87

Q The handwriting on this document, is that yours?
A Yes.
Q Some of the names here are crossed out. Do you know, for example, why Mr. Hart's name would have been crossed out?
A Probably because he wasn't a contributor, or wasn't a contributor for the memo, I think. I don't recall exactly.
Q Did there come a time when Mr. Hart stopped working object Sunbeam matters?
A I believe so.
Q When was that in relation to August of 2000, if you recall?
A I don't recall.
Q Can you get a sense, comparing the 296 with 295, of whether you start of started with the shell of the April memo and used that to draft the August memo and then went back and corrected the names as appropriate?
A I don't know. I don't recall. They are certainly related.
Q Toward the bottom of this page, the handwriting talks about, "Can Adrian be guarantee".

Page 88

Can you read what that says after that?
A It looks like, "... secured [something] stock, maybe with stock, shorthand."
Q And then there is a, "Coleman guarantee/pledge of any outstanding Sunbeam ownstock", or Sunbeam owned stock".
A Yes.
Q Do you know why you would have written that?
A It looks like a detail of the actual sentence, so lenders have enhanced their security position by securing assets. That is the specifics.
Q Was that a note to yourself to beef up that part of the memo?
A I don't know.
Q There is a reference in the third paragraph on the first page to Policano & Manzo which is then abbreviated to, "P and M". Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Did you have occasion to deal with individuals from Policano & Manzo in connection with Sunbeam?
A Yes.
Q Who at Policano & Manzo did you have occasion to deal with?

A I mean, "Deal", is probably unfair. I think I -- I think they made some presentations and did some analysis which I would have received, but to deal with them, I don't think that is a correct characterization.
Q Are there particular individuals at Policano & Manzo with whom you communicated?
A I don't recall. I mean, there were, but I don't recall their names.
Q Does the name Ed Ordway ring a bell?
A I recall that name, yes.
Q Is that somebody who worked on Sunbeam for Policano & Manzo?
A I recognize his name. I recognize Paul Canny(?) Manzo. If you tell me that he worked there at the time I would say yes.
Q Do you know whether he made any presentations to which you referred?
A I just don't recall.
Q To whom did Policano & Manzo make presentations in connection with Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I don't recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Did you, yourself, attend

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 90

any presentations that Policano & Manzo made with respect to Sunbeam?
A I don't recall whether -- I don't recall.
Q Do you have a recollection of what the nature of the work that Policano & Manzo did with respect to the work that Sunbeam did was?
A The purpose of their work was to evaluate the controls and operations at Sunbeams. I don't recall exactly what they did.
Q Do you recall over what period of time Morgan Stanley and the other lenders worked with Policano & Manzo with respect to Sunbeam?
A I don't recall when we hired them precisely.
Q Do you have a general understanding?
A I don't recall.
Q Was there someone other than yourself at Morgan Stanley who would have been more involved in communicating with Policano & Manzo?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I don't recall, although I think Mitch Petrick and Ted Doster were becoming more involved with the transaction as the transaction went on.
Q Do you recall what use, if any, Morgan Stanley made of information supplied by Policano &

Page 91

Manzo?
A I don't recall.
Q During the course of your work for Morgan Stanley with respect to Sunbeam, did you have occasion to deal with anyone from FTI?
A I don't know who that is.
Q Does the name Fred Nuttall ring a bell?
A No.
Q We discussed Hoolihan Lokley a little earlier. Does the name Michael Claimer ring a bell with respect to Sunbeam?
A No.
Q What role, if any, did you play in connection with Sunbeam's bankruptcy?
MS. BROWN: Object to form.
A None that I recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Were you aware that Sunbeam filed a Chapter 11 petition at some point?
A Yes.
Q Were you still working with respect to Sunbeam as at the time that Sunbeam filed its Chapter 11 petition?
A Not that I recall.
Q When did you move to London?
A I think it was February 2001.

Page 92

Q Have you done any work with respect to Sunbeam since you moved to London?
A No. Not that I recall.
Q Did you do any work with respect to any preparation for debtor and possession financing for Sunbeam?
A Not that I recall.
Q Was there someone else at Morgan Stanley who would have worked on preparations for debtor and possessions financing for Sunbeam?
A Somebody. I just don't know who it was.
Q During the year 2000, when we have seen a couple of memos that were drafted with respect to Sunbeam, what was your role in connection with Sunbeam?
A I would put it down more as monitoring than being directly involved in the negotiations.
Q From, say, the beginning of 2000, through the time that you left for London, did your role with respect to Sunbeam change?
A It diminished over time. Petrick and Doster took an increasing role.
Q When you left for London, did someone take over your responsibilities with respect to Sunbeam?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.

Page 93

A Not that I recall. I don't know. Presumably somebody did.
Q Have you played any role whatsoever with respect to American Household, the successor to Sunbeam?
A No.
Q Was there ever time that you are aware of when Sunbeam had fully drawn down on its revolver?
A I am not aware of that.
Q Is it the case that over the time that you worked with respect to Sunbeam, that Sunbeam would, from time to time, take advances on its revolver?
A I don't recall.
Q Do you recall when Sunbeam last took an advance on its revolver?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A No.
MR. CHORVAT: Mr. Rankin, I will ask you to look at Exhibit 297 which bears the Bates numbers Morgan Stanley 69860 through 69869. Are you familiar with Exhibit 297?
(Exhibit 297 marked for identification)
A I am not familiar with this document.
Q Your name is listed on the first page as an addressee with a 2123 fax number. The date is

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018758

September of 2001. Were you working on Sunbeam matters as of September 6th of 2001?
A I think my role had been dramatically reduced.
Q And the substance of this document relates to Sunbeam's debtor in possession credit facility. Did you have any function with respect to Sunbeam's debtor in possession Credit Facility?
A Not that I recall.
Q If you had gotten a fax like this in September of 2001 what would you have done with it?
MS. BROWN: Objection. Speculation; hypothetical.
A I would have made sure that one of the other people on this list had seen it.
MR. CHORVAT: Would you have sent it out to Mr. Petrick, or was there someone else?
A It seems that Mr. Petrick appears to have got a copy and Ted Doster, Rick Felix, Dan Ryan, so I would have, you know, just made sure that one of them was taking responsibility for it.
Q Mr. Rankin, let me ask you to look at Exhibit 298 which is a two-page document that bears the Bates numbers Morgan Stanley 24720 and 24721. Can you identify this exhibit?

(Exhibit 298 marked for identification)
A It looks like -- it is a comparison of two loan structures written on my letterhead, and the second page appears to be the source of the current loan amount.
Q The handwriting on the first page, is that yours?
A It looks like my handwriting.
Q The handwriting on the second page, is that your handwriting as well?
A That looks like my handwriting.
Q Can you tell why you wrote this?
A The loan had changed and I was lining up the differences.
Q This is something that you wrote in connection with your work at Morgan Stanley with respect to Sunbeam?
A Yes.
Q The loans that are added up here, that is the Sunbeam facility, is that right? This refers to Sunbeam?
A I think so.
Q That is a better question. On the first page there is a question that appears to be answered, "Yes". Can you read what the question is?

A "Is the B loan second secured"?
Q Do you know what you meant by that?
A I think -- I don't know what I meant by that but, "Second secured", would generally mean that it is a second priority behind the rights of the first loan.
Q There is a tranche A and a tranche B to the Sunbeam facility?
A Yes.
Q The B loan, would that refer to tranche B?
A I presume so, yes.
Q Can you tell when you wrote this?
A I would guess at the same time that this document came out. If you find this document we can figure out what time it was done.
Q Can you tell from the little computer code in the bottom left of that page when that was written?
A No. That is not our code.
Q 299 is a one-page document that bears the Bates number Morgan Stanley 58883. Mr. Rankin, can you identify Exhibit 299?
(Exhibit 299 marked for identification)
A It looks like my handwriting on a piece of my letterhead. I see the name Jerry Levin on it, so it appears to be Sunbeam-related, but I don't remember actually writing this note.

Q This is something that you wrote in connection with your work at Morgan Stanley?
A Yes.
Q At the bottom line there, does it say, "Could work with Jerry Levin"?
A It looks like it.
Q Do you know why you wrote that?
A I don't.
Q Exhibit 300 is a document that bears the Bates numbers Morgan Stanley 24863 through 24871, which is a series of pages of handwritten notes. Mr. Rankin, is this your handwriting?
(Exhibit 300 marked for identification)
A That does not look like my handwriting.
Q Can you tell whose handwriting it is?
MS. BROWN: Objection, speculation.
A No. I have no idea. I don't know.
MS. BROWN: Somebody that likes to trace their writing.
A No. There is nothing on here that helps me.
MR. CHORVAT: Let me just ask you to take a look at the Bates numbered paged 24867. That is not your handwriting either, anywhere there?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

018759

Page 98

A No.
Q This page refers to a June 25th 1998 all hands meeting at Davies Polk. Is that a meeting that you were at?
A I don't recall.
Q At any point were you asked to assemble or preserve documents that related to the pending litigation?
A Yes.
Q When was that?
A I don't recall exactly.
Q A long time ago?
A Yes.
Q What is it that you did in response to that request?
MS. BROWN: Well, objection to the extent -- I will just instruct you not to reveal any communications with counsel.
A Okay. I mean, I just put all my files in a safe place.
MR. CHORVAT: Is that a request that you received when you had been in London, or that you received before that?
A I think it was before that.

Page 99

Q Do you have any materials relating to Sunbeam or the pending litigation that you have not provided to counsel?
A No. Not that I -- no.
Q In 1998 did you keep an electronic calendar or some similar system?
A I don't recall. I think we had it, but I don't think I -- I am not sure I was using it.
MR. CHORVAT: Let's take a break for a few minutes.
(12.51 pm)
OFF THE RECORD
(12.57 pm)
MR. CHORVAT: Mr. Rankin, did you say you moved back to London in 2001 or 2002?
A 2001.
Q In February?
A I think so, yes.
Q So, a fax that would have come to New York to your attention in September of 2001 you wouldn't even have been there to get it. Is that right?
A I wouldn't have been in New York.
Q If it had been forwarded on to you in London, you haven't worked on Sunbeam since you have been in London?

Page 100

A That's right.
Q Getting back to the meetings in the summer of 1998 that you participated in with respect to Sunbeam, you mentioned, I believe, that Mr. Hart also participated in at least some of those meetings?
A Yes.
Q Is there anyone else at Morgan Stanley who would have participated in those meetings?
A I don't recall. I mean, as I say, as time progressed, Mitch Petrick and Ted Doster started becoming more involved, but precisely when that overlap started to occur I don't recall.
Q Did Mr. Doster become involved before Mr. Petrick?
MS. BROWN: Objection, foundation.
A I don't know.
MR. CHORVAT: In connection with your work on the bank book, you have mentioned thus far that you used CPH deposition Exhibit 10 as a source of information. That is the zero coupon memoranda.
A Yes.
Q You have mentioned CPH deposition Exhibit 133, which is your copy of the Leverage Finance

Page 101

Credit Committee memo. You are hesitating.
A I am sorry, as a --
Q As a source of information. Is that not right? We could clean up the record and ask this as a better question if you are confused. Let's do this in pieces.
A All right.
Q In connection with your work on the bank book, you used CPH deposition Exhibit 10 as a source of information?
A Yes.
Q Did you also use CPH deposition Exhibit 133 as a source of information?
A This was background information, just getting familiar with the transaction, but I don't recall specifically taking information out of here and putting it into here, if that is clear enough.
Q I believe you also testified that you dealt with Mr. Richter and his assistant at Sunbeam for information in connection with the bank book.
A Yes.
Q Other than those sources of information, did you use any other sources of information in connection with the bank book?
A The audited financials that are in here

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

would have come from the appropriate auditing firms.
Q Any other sources of information with respect to the bank book?
A Not that I recall.
MR. CHORVAT: Thank you, Mr. Rankin. That is all I have.
