successors and assigns, and inure to the benefit of and be enforceable by each of the Agents, each of the Lenders and their respective successors, transferees and assigns. This Guarantee is for the benefit of each Lender and its successors and assigns, and in the event of an assignment of all or any of any Lender's interest in and to its rights and obligations under the Credit Agreement or any Hedging Agreement in accordance with the Credit Agreement or such Hedging Agreement, the assignor's rights hereunder, to the extent applicable to the indebtedness or obligation so assigned, shall automatically be transferred with such indebtedness or obligation.

SECTION 15. Severability. If any provision hereof is invalid or unenforceable in any jurisdiction, then, to the fullest extent permitted by law, (i) the other provisions hereof shall remain in full force and effect in such jurisdiction and shall be liberally construed in favor of the Administrative Agent, the other Agents and the Lenders in order to carry out the intentions of the parties hereto as nearly as may be possible; and (ii) the invalidity or unenforceability of any provision hereof in any jurisdiction shall not affect the validity or enforceability of such provision in any other jurisdiction.

SECTION 16. Limitation on the Obligations. The obligations of each Guarantor hereunder shall be limited to an aggregate amount that is equal to the largest amount that would not render the obligations of such Guarantor hereunder subject to avoidance under Section 548 of the United States Bankruptcy Code or any comparable provisions of applicable law.

SECTION 17. Governing Law; Jurisdiction; Consent to Service of Process. (a) This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the law of the State of New York.

(b) Each Guarantor hereby irrevocably and unconditionally submits, for itself and its property, to the nonexclusive jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the State of New York sitting in New York County and of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, and any appellate court from any thereof, in any action or proceeding arising out of or relating to this Agreement or the other Loan Documents, or for recognition or enforcement of any judgment, and each of the parties hereto hereby irrevocably and unconditionally agrees that all claims in respect of any such action or proceeding may be heard and determined in such New York State or, to the extent permitted by law, in such Federal court. Each of the parties hereto agrees that a final judgment in any such action or proceeding shall be conclusive and may be enforced in other jurisdictions by suit on the judgment or in any other manner provided by law. Nothing in this Agreement shall affect any right that any Agent or Lender may otherwise have to bring any action or proceeding relating to this Agreement or the other Loan Documents against such Guarantor or its properties in the courts of any jurisdiction.

(c) Each Guarantor hereby irrevocably and unconditionally waives, to the fullest extent it may legally and effectively do so, any objection which it may now or hereafter have to the laying of venue of any suit, action or proceeding arising out of or relating to this Agreement or the other Loan Documents in any court referred to in paragraph (b) of this Section. Each of the parties hereto hereby irrevocably waives, to the fullest extent permitted by law, the defense of an inconvenient forum to the maintenance of such action or proceeding in any such court.

(d) Each party to this Agreement irrevocably consents to service of process in the manner provided for notices in Section 10.01 of the Credit Agreement. Nothing in this Agreement will affect the right of any party to this Agreement to serve process in any other manner permitted by law.

SECTION 18. WAIVER OF JURY TRIAL. EACH PARTY HERETO HEREBY WAIVES, TO THE FULLEST EXTENT PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE LAW, ANY RIGHT IT MAY HAVE TO A TRIAL BY JURY IN ANY LEGAL PROCEEDING DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY ARISING OUT OF OR RELATING TO THE LOAN DOCUMENTS OR THE TRANSACTIONS CONTEMPLATED THEREBY (WHETHER BASED ON CONTRACT, TORT OR ANY OTHER THEORY). EACH PARTY HERETO (A) CERTIFIES THAT NO REPRESENTATIVE, AGENT OR ATTORNEY OF ANY OTHER PARTY HAS REPRESENTED, EXPRESSLY OR OTHERWISE, THAT SUCH OTHER PARTY WOULD NOT, IN THE EVENT OF LITIGATION, SEEK TO ENFORCE THE FOREGOING WAIVER AND (B) ACKNOWLEDGES THAT IT AND THE OTHER PARTIES HERETO HAVE BEEN INDUCED TO ENTER INTO THE LOAN DOCUMENTS BY, AMONG OTHER THINGS, THE MUTUAL WAIVERS AND CERTIFICATIONS IN THIS SECTION.

EXHIBIT D TO CREDIT AGREEMENT

SUBSIDIARY
PLEDGE AND SECURITY AGREEMENT

AGREEMENT dated as of March 30, 1998 between DDG I, INC., GHI I, INC., OP II, INC., SUNBEAM AMERICAS HOLDINGS, LTD., SUNBEAM PRODUCTS, INC., LASER ACQUISITION CORP., COLEMAN WORLDWIDE CORP., SIGNATURE BRANDS INC., SIGNATURE BRANDS USA, INC., BRK BRANDS, INC., FIRST ALERT, INC., AND SI II, INC. (with their respective successors, the "Grantors" and each a "Grantor") and FIRST UNION NATIONAL BANK, as Administrative Agent.

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Sunbeam Corporation (with its successors, the "Parent"), the Subsidiary Borrowers referred to therein, the Lenders party thereto, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc., as Syndication Agent, Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, as Documentation Agent, and First Union National Bank, as Administrative Agent, are parties to a Credit Agreement dated as of March 30, 1998 (as the same may be amended from time to time, the "Credit Agreement"); and

WHEREAS, the Parent is, or may hereafter become obligated to one or more of the Lenders under one or more Hedging Agreements (as defined in the Credit Agreement) as contemplated by Section 5.10 of the Credit Agreement; and

WHEREAS, as of the date hereof, the Grantors have entered into a Subsidiary Guarantee Agreement (the "Subsidiary Guarantee") to guarantee the Borrower's obligations under the Credit Agreement, Hedging Agreements and certain related agreements; and

WHEREAS, in order to secure their obligations under the Subsidiary Guarantee, the Grantors have agreed to grant a continuing security interest in and to the Collateral (as hereafter defined) to secure the Secured Obligations (as hereafter defined);

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which are hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto agree as follows:

SECTION 1. Definitions. Terms defined in the Credit Agreement and not otherwise defined herein have, as used herein, the respective meanings provided for therein except that the term "Loan Documents" shall include any document with respect to any Hedging Obligations. The following additional terms, as used herein, have the following respective meanings:

"Collateral" has the meaning assigned to such term in Section 3(A).

"Direct Domestic Subsidiary" means a Direct Subsidiary organized under the laws of the United States of America or a state thereof.

"Direct Domestic Subsidiary Shares" means the shares of capital stock or other equity interest of each Direct Domestic Subsidiary listed on Schedule I opposite such Direct Domestic Subsidiary's name.

"Direct Foreign Subsidiary" means a Direct Subsidiary organized under the laws of any jurisdiction outside the United States.

"Direct Foreign Subsidiary Shares" means the shares of capital stock or other equity interests of each Direct Foreign Subsidiary listed on Schedule II opposite such Direct Foreign Subsidiary's name.

"Direct Subsidiary" means a Material Subsidiary of any Grantor, the capital stock or other equity interests of which is held directly by such Grantor.

"Direct Subsidiary Notes" means the Intercompany Agreements of each Direct Subsidiary listed on Schedule I or Schedule II opposite such Direct Subsidiary's name.

"Hedging Obligations" means all obligations of the Parent under any Hedging Agreement between the Parent and any Lender.

"Intercompany Agreements" means all instruments owned by any Grantor evidencing Indebtedness owed to it by any of its Direct Subsidiaries.

"Pledged Instruments" means (i) the Direct Subsidiary Notes and (ii) any instrument required to be pledged to the Administrative Agent pursuant to Section 3(B) and Section 3(C).

"Pledged Securities" means the Pledged Instruments and the Pledged Stock.

MORGAN STANLEY CONFIDENTIAL

16div-025865

"Pledged Stock" means (i) the Direct Domestic Subsidiary Shares, (ii) 66% of the Foreign Direct Subsidiary Shares and (iii) any other capital stock required to be pledged to the Administrative Agent pursuant to Section 3(B) and Section 3(C).

"Secured Obligations" means the obligations secured under this Agreement including all obligations of the Grantors under or in respect of the Subsidiary Guarantee, including without limitation their obligations in respect of (i) all principal of and interest (including, without limitation, any interest which accrues after or would accrue but for the commencement of any case, proceeding or other action relating to the bankruptcy, insolvency or reorganization of the Obligors, whether or not allowed or allowable as a claim in any such proceeding) on any loan under, or any note issued pursuant to, the Credit Agreement, (ii) all reimbursement obligations with respect to any Letter of Credit, (iii) any Hedging Obligations, (iv) all other amounts payable by the Obligors under the Loan Documents, and (v) any renewals or extensions of any of the foregoing.

"Security Interests" means the security interests in the Collateral granted hereunder securing the Secured Obligations.

Unless otherwise defined herein, or unless the context otherwise requires, all terms used herein which are defined in the New York Uniform Commercial Code as in effect on the date hereof shall have the meanings therein stated.

SECTION 2. Representations and Warranties. Each Grantor represents and warrants as follows:

(A) Title to Pledged Securities. The Grantors own all of the Pledged Securities, free and clear of any Liens other than the Security Interests. The Pledged Stock includes (i) all of the issued and outstanding capital stock of each Direct Domestic Subsidiary and (ii) 66% of the issued and outstanding stock of each Foreign Direct Subsidiary. The Pledged Instruments include all instruments owned by the Grantors evidencing Indebtedness owed to them by any of their Direct Subsidiaries. All of the Pledged Stock has been duly authorized and validly issued, and is fully paid and non-assessable, and is subject to no options to purchase or similar rights of any Person. No Grantor is or will become a party to or otherwise become bound by any agreement, other than this Agreement and the Subsidiary Guarantee, which restricts in any manner the rights of any present or future holder of any of the Pledged Securities with respect thereto.

(B) Validity, Perfection and Priority of Security Interests. Upon the delivery of the Pledged Instruments and certificates representing the Pledged Stock to the Administrative Agent in accordance with Section 4 hereof and the filing of UCC financing statements in the form specified in Exhibit A in the appropriate filing office in the jurisdiction specified on the signature pages of the Subsidiary Guarantee, the Administrative Agent will have valid and perfected security interests in the Collateral subject to no prior Lien other than Permitted Liens. Except for the filing of the UCC financing statements described in the immediately preceding sentence, no registration, recordation or filing with any governmental body, agency or official is required in connection with the execution or delivery of this Agreement or necessary for the validity or enforceability hereof or for the perfection or enforcement of the Security Interests. None of the Grantors nor any of their subsidiaries has performed or will perform any acts which might prevent the Administrative Agent from enforcing any of the terms and conditions of this Agreement or which would limit the Administrative Agent in any such enforcement. Other than financing statements or other similar or equivalent documents or instruments with respect to the Security Interests, no financing statement, mortgage, security agreement or similar or equivalent document or instrument covering all or any part of the Collateral is on file or of record in any jurisdiction in which such filing or recording would be effective to perfect a Lien on such Collateral. No collateral is in the possession of any Person (other than the Grantors) asserting any claim thereto or security interest therein, except that the Administrative Agent or its designee may have possession of Collateral as contemplated hereby.

(C) UCC Filing Locations. The chief executive office of each Grantor is located at its address set forth on the signature pages of the Subsidiary Guarantee. Under the Uniform Commercial Code as in effect in the State in which each office is located, no local filing is required to perfect a security interest in collateral consisting of accounts or general intangibles.

SECTION 3. The Security Interests. In order to secure the full and punctual payment of the Secured Obligations in accordance with the terms thereof, and to secure the performance of all the obligations of the Grantors hereunder:

(A) Each Grantor hereby assigns and pledges to and with the Administrative Agent for the benefit of the Lenders and grants to the Administrative Agent for the benefit of the Lenders security interests in all of the following property of such Grantor (collectively, the "Collateral"):

(1) the Pledged Securities, and all of its rights and privileges with respect to the Pledged Securities, and all income and profits thereon, and all interest, dividends and other payments and distributions with respect thereto;

(2) all Indebtedness now or hereafter owed to such Grantor by any of its Direct Subsidiaries (whether or not evidenced by instruments (as defined in the UCC));

(3) all other Investments made by such Grantor in any of its Direct Domestic Subsidiaries; and

(4) all proceeds of all or any of the collateral described in clauses (1) through (3) hereof.

Contemporaneously with the execution and delivery hereof, each Grantor is delivering the Direct Subsidiary Notes and certificates representing the Direct Domestic Subsidiary Shares and the Foreign Direct Subsidiary Shares in pledge hereunder.

(B) In the event that at any time any Person becomes a Direct Domestic Subsidiary, or any Direct Domestic Subsidiary issues any additional or substitute shares of capital stock of any class or any other equity interests or any substitute note, or owes any other Indebtedness to any Grantor, or any Grantor makes any other Investment in any Direct Domestic Subsidiary, such Grantor will immediately pledge and deposit with the Administrative Agent certificates representing all such shares or equity interests and such note or an instrument evidencing such other Indebtedness or other Investment as additional security for the Secured Obligations. All such shares, notes and instruments constitute Pledged Securities and are subject to all provisions of this Agreement.

(C) In the event that at any time any Person becomes a Direct Foreign Subsidiary, or any Direct Foreign Subsidiary issues any additional or substitute shares of capital stock of any class or any other equity interests or any substitute note, or owes any other Indebtedness to any Grantor, or any Grantor makes any other Investment in any Direct Foreign Subsidiary, such Grantor will immediately pledge and deposit with the Administrative Agent certificates representing additional shares or equity interests sufficient to cause the Secured Parties to have a security interest in 66% (but not more than 66%) of all the outstanding capital stock of or other equity interests in such Direct Foreign Subsidiary and such note or an instrument evidencing such other Indebtedness or other Investment as additional security for the Secured Obligations. All such shares, notes and instruments constitute Pledged Securities and are subject to all provisions of this Agreement.

(D) The Security Interests are granted as security only and shall not subject the Administrative Agent or any Lender to, or transfer or in any way affect or modify, any obligation or liability of the Grantors or any of their Direct Subsidiaries with respect to any of the Collateral or any transaction in connection therewith.

SECTION 4. Delivery of Pledged Securities. All Pledged Instruments shall be delivered to the Administrative Agent by the Grantors pursuant hereto indorsed to the order of the Administrative Agent, and accompanied by any required transfer tax stamps, all in form and substance satisfactory to the Administrative Agent. All certificates representing Pledged Stock delivered to the Administrative Agent by the Grantors pursuant hereto shall be in suitable form for transfer by delivery, or shall be accompanied by duly executed instruments of transfer or assignment in blank, with signatures appropriately guaranteed, and accompanied by any required transfer tax stamps, all in form and substance satisfactory to the Administrative Agent.

SECTION 5. Further Assurances.

(A) Each Grantor agrees that it will from time to time, at its expense and in such manner and form as the Administrative Agent may require, execute, deliver, file and record any financing statement, specific assignment or other paper and take any other action that may be necessary or desirable, or that the Administrative Agent may request, in order to create, preserve, perfect, confirm or validate any Security Interest or to enable the Administrative Agent to exercise and enforce any of its rights, powers or remedies hereunder with respect to any of the Collateral. To the extent permitted by applicable law, each Grantor hereby authorizes the Administrative Agent to execute and file, in the name of such Grantor or otherwise, Uniform Commercial Code financing statements (which may be carbon, photographic, photostatic or other reproductions of this Agreement or of a financing statement relating to this Agreement) which the Administrative Agent in its sole discretion may deem necessary or appropriate to further perfect the Security Interests.

(B) Each Grantor agrees that it will not change (i) its name, identity or corporate structure in any manner or (ii) the location of its chief executive office, in each case unless it shall have given the Administrative Agent not less than 30 days' prior notice thereof.

SECTION 6. Record Ownership of Pledged Stock. Upon the occurrence and during the continuance of any Default, the Administrative Agent may at any time or from time to time, in its sole discretion, cause any or all of the Pledged Stock to be transferred of record into the name of the Administrative Agent or its nominee. Each Grantor will promptly give to the Administrative Agent copies of any notices or other communications received by it with respect to Pledged Stock registered in the name of such Grantor and the Administrative Agent will promptly give to each Grantor copies of any notices and communications received by the Administrative Agent with respect to Pledged Stock registered in the name of the Administrative Agent or its nominee.

SECTION 7. Right to Receive Distributions on Collateral. The Administrative Agent shall have the right to receive and, during the continuance of any Default, to retain as Collateral hereunder all dividends, interest and other payments and distributions made upon or with respect to the Collateral and each Grantor shall take all such action as the Administrative Agent may deem necessary or appropriate to give effect to such right. All such dividends, interest and other payments and distributions which are received by any Grantor shall be received in trust for the benefit of the Administrative Agent and the Lenders and, if the Administrative Agent so directs during the continuance of a Default, shall be segregated from other funds of such Grantor and shall, forthwith upon demand by the Administrative Agent during the continuance of a Default, be paid over to the Administrative Agent as Collateral in the same form as received (with any necessary endorsement). After all Defaults have been cured, the Administrative Agent's right to retain dividends, interest and other payments and distributions under this Section 7 shall cease and the Administrative Agent shall pay over to the appropriate Grantor any such Collateral retained by it during the continuance of a Default.

SECTION 8. Right to Vote Pledged Stock. Unless a Default shall have occurred and be continuing, the Grantors shall have the right, from time to time, to vote and to give consents, ratifications and waivers with respect to the Pledged Stock, and the Administrative Agent shall, upon receiving a written request from any Grantor accompanied by a certificate signed by its principal financial officer stating that no Default has occurred and is continuing, deliver to the Parent or as specified in such request such proxies, powers of attorney, consents, ratifications and waivers in respect of any of the Pledged Stock which is registered in the name of the Administrative Agent or its nominee as shall be specified in such request and be in form and substance satisfactory to the Administrative Agent.

If a Default shall have occurred and be continuing, the Administrative Agent shall have the right to the extent permitted by law and each Grantor shall take all such action as may be necessary or appropriate to give effect to such right, to vote and to give consents, ratifications and waivers, and take any other action with respect to any or all of the Pledged Stock with the same force and effect as if the Administrative Agent were the absolute and sole owner thereof.

SECTION 9. General Authority. Each Grantor hereby irrevocably appoints the Administrative Agent its true and lawful attorney, with full power of substitution, in the name of such Grantor, the Administrative Agent, the Lenders or otherwise, for the sole use and benefit of the Administrative Agent and Lenders, but at the expense of such Grantor, to the extent permitted by law to exercise, at any time and from time to time while an Event of Default has occurred and is continuing, all or any of the following powers with respect to all or any of the Collateral:

(i) to demand, sue for, collect, receive and give acquittance for any and all monies due or to become due upon or by virtue thereof,

(ii) to settle, compromise, compound, prosecute or defend any action or proceeding with respect thereto,

(iii) to sell, transfer, assign or otherwise deal in or with the same or the proceeds or avails thereof, as fully and effectually as if the Administrative Agent were the absolute owner thereof, and provided that the Administrative Agent shall give each Grantor not less than ten days' prior notice of the time and place of any sale or other intended disposition of any of the Collateral except any Collateral which is perishable or threatens to decline speedily in value or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market. The Administrative Agent and the Grantors agree that such notice constitutes "reasonable notification" within the meaning of Section 9-504(3) of the Uniform Commercial Code.

(iv) to extend the time of payment of any or all thereof and to make any allowance and other adjustments with reference thereto;

SECTION 10. Remedies upon Event of Default. If any Event of Default shall have occurred and be continuing, the Administrative Agent may exercise on behalf of the Lenders all the rights of a secured party under the Uniform Commercial Code (whether or not in effect in the jurisdiction where such rights are exercised) and, in addition, the Administrative Agent may, without being required to give any notice, except as herein provided or as may be required by mandatory provisions of law, (i) apply the cash, if any, then held by it as Collateral as specified in Section 13 and (ii) if there shall be no such cash or if such cash shall be insufficient to pay all the Secured Obligations in full, sell the Collateral or any part thereof at public or private sale or at any broker's board or on any securities exchange, for cash, upon credit or for future delivery, and at such price or prices as the Administrative Agent may deem satisfactory. Any Lender may be the purchaser of any or all of the Collateral so sold at any public sale (or, if the Collateral is of a type customarily sold in a recognized market or is of a type which is the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations, at any private sale). The Administrative Agent is authorized, in connection with any such sale, if it deems it advisable so to do, (i) to restrict the prospective bidders on or purchasers of any of the Pledged Securities to a limited number of sophisticated investors who will represent and agree that they are purchasing for their own account for investment and not with a view to the distribution or sale of any of such Pledged Securities, (ii) to cause to be placed on certificates for any or all of the Pledged Securities or on any other securities pledged hereunder a legend to the effect that such security has not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933 and may not be disposed of in violation of the provisions of said Act, and (iii) to impose such other limitations or conditions in connection with any such sale as the Administrative Agent deems necessary or advisable in order to comply with said Act or any other law. Each Grantor will execute and deliver such documents and take such other action as the Administrative Agent deems necessary or advisable in order that any such sale may be made in compliance with law. Upon any such sale the Administrative Agent shall have the right to deliver, assign and transfer to the purchaser thereof the Collateral so sold. Each purchaser at any such sale shall hold the Collateral so sold absolutely and free from any claim or right of whatsoever kind, including any equity or right of redemption of any Grantor which may be waived, and each Grantor, to the extent permitted by law, hereby specifically waives all rights of redemption, stay or appraisal which it has or may have under any law now existing or hereafter adopted. The notice (if any) of such sale required by Section 9 shall (1) in the case of a public sale, state the time and place fixed for such sale, (2) in the case of a sale at a broker's board or on a securities exchange, state the board or exchange at which such sale is to be made and the day on which the Collateral, or the portion thereof so being sold, will first be offered for sale at such board or exchange, and (3) in the case of a private sale, state the day after which such sale may be consummated. Any such public sale shall be held at such time or times within ordinary business hours and at such place or places as the Administrative Agent may fix in the notice of such sale. At any such sale the Collateral may be sold in one lot as an entirety or in separate parcels, as the Administrative Agent may determine. The Administrative Agent shall not be obligated to make any such sale pursuant to any such notice. The Administrative Agent may, without notice or publication, adjourn any public or private sale or cause the same to be adjourned from time to time by announcement at the time and place fixed for the sale, and such sale may be made at any time or place to which the same may be so adjourned. In the case of any sale of all or any part of the Collateral on credit or for future delivery, the Collateral so sold may be retained by the Administrative Agent until the selling price is paid by the purchaser thereof, but the Administrative Agent shall not incur any liability in the case of the failure of such purchaser to take up and pay for the Collateral so sold and, in the case of any such failure, such Collateral may again be sold upon like notice. The Administrative Agent, instead of exercising the power of sale herein conferred upon it, may proceed by a suit or suits at law or in equity to foreclose the Security Interests and sell the Collateral, or any portion thereof, under a judgment or decree of a court or courts of competent jurisdiction.

SECTION 11. Expenses. Each Grantor agrees that it will forthwith upon demand pay to the Administrative Agent:

(i) the amount of any taxes which the Administrative Agent may have been required to pay by reason of the Security Interests or to free any of the Collateral from any Lien thereon, and

(ii) the amount of any and all out-of-pocket expenses, including the fees and disbursements of counsel and of any other experts, which the Administrative Agent may incur in connection with (w) the administration or enforcement of this Agreement, including such expenses as are incurred to preserve the value of the Collateral and the validity, perfection, rank and value of any Security Interest, (x) the collection, sale or other disposition of any of the Collateral, (y) the exercise by the Administrative Agent of any of the rights conferred upon it hereunder or (z) any Default or Event of Default.

Any such amount not paid on demand shall bear interest at the rate applicable to ABR Borrowings plus 2% and shall be an additional Secured Obligation hereunder.

SECTION 12. Limitation on Duty of Administrative Agent in Respect of Collateral. Beyond the exercise of reasonable care in the custody thereof, the Administrative Agent shall have no duty as to any Collateral in its possession or control or in the possession or control of any agent or bailee or any income thereon or as to the preservation of rights against prior parties or any other rights pertaining thereto. The Administrative Agent shall be deemed to have exercised reasonable care in the custody and preservation of the Collateral in its possession if the Collateral is accorded treatment substantially equal to that which it accords its own property, and shall not be liable or responsible for any loss or damage to any of the Collateral, or for any diminution in the value thereof, by reason of the act or omission of any agent or bailee selected by the Administrative Agent in good faith.

SECTION 13. Application of Proceeds. Upon the occurrence and during the continuance of an Event of Default, the proceeds of any sale of, or other realization upon, all or any part of the Collateral and any cash held shall be applied by the Administrative Agent in the following order of priorities:

first, to payment of the expenses of such sale or other realization, including reasonable compensation to agents and counsel for the Administrative Agent, and all expenses, liabilities and advances incurred or made by the Administrative Agent in connection therewith, and any other unreimbursed expenses for which the Administrative Agent or any Lender is to be reimbursed pursuant to Section 10.03 of the Credit Agreement or Section 11 hereof and unpaid fees owing to the Administrative Agent under the Credit Agreement;

second, to the ratable payment of unpaid principal of the Secured Obligations and unpaid reimbursement obligations which constitute Secured Obligations;

third, to the ratable payment of unpaid Hedging Obligations and accrued but unpaid interest on the Secured Obligations in accordance with the provisions of the Credit Agreement;

fourth, to the ratable payment of all other Secured Obligations, until all Secured Obligations shall have been paid in full; and finally, to payment to the Grantors or their successors or assigns, or as a court of competent jurisdiction may direct, of any surplus then remaining from such proceeds.

The Administrative Agent may make distributions hereunder in cash or in kind or, on a ratable basis, in any combination thereof.

SECTION 14. Concerning the Administrative Agent. The provisions of Article 8 of the Credit Agreement shall inure to the benefit of the Administrative Agent in respect of this Agreement and shall be binding upon the parties to the Credit Agreement in such respect. In furtherance and not in derogation of the rights, privileges and immunities of the Administrative Agent therein set forth:

(A) The Administrative Agent is authorized to take all such action as is provided to be taken by it as Administrative Agent hereunder and all other action reasonably incidental thereto. As to any matters not expressly provided for herein (including, without limitation, the timing and methods of realization upon the Collateral) the Administrative Agent shall act or refrain from acting in accordance with written instructions from the Required Lenders or, in the absence of such instructions, in accordance with its discretion.

(B) The Administrative Agent shall not be responsible for the existence, genuineness or value of any of the Collateral or for the validity, perfection, priority or enforceability of the Security Interests in any of the Collateral, whether impaired by operation of law or by reason of any action or omission to act on its part hereunder. The Administrative Agent shall have no duty to ascertain or inquire as to the performance or observance of any of the terms of this Agreement by any Grantor.

SECTION 15. Appointment of Co-Agents. At any time or times, in order to comply with any legal requirement in any jurisdiction, the Administrative Agent may appoint another bank or trust company or one or more other persons, either to act as co-agent or co-agents, jointly with the Administrative Agent, or to act as separate agent or agents on behalf of the Lenders with such power and authority as may be necessary for the effectual operation of the provisions hereof and may be specified in the instrument of appointment (which may, in the discretion of the Administrative Agent, include provisions for the protection of such co-agent or separate agent similar to the provisions of Section 14).

SECTION 16. Termination of Security Interests; Release of Collateral.

(A) Upon the repayment in full of all Secured Obligations, the cancellation of all Letters of Credit and the termination of the Commitments under the Credit Agreement, the Security Interests shall terminate and all rights to the Collateral shall revert to the Grantors. At any time and from time to time prior to such termination of the Security Interests, the Administrative Agent may release any of the Collateral with the prior written consent of the Required Lenders; provided that the Administrative Agent may not release all or substantially all of the Collateral (as defined in the Credit Agreement) without the prior written consent of all the Lenders.

(B) Unless otherwise instructed by the Required Lenders at a time when an Event of Default shall have occurred and be continuing, the Administrative Agent shall upon a sale of Collateral permitted by the Credit Agreement release the portion of the Collateral so sold (but not any proceeds of such sale). No such release shall require the consent of any Lender, and the Administrative Agent shall be fully protected in relying on a certificate of the Parent as to whether any particular sale is permitted by the terms of the Credit Agreement.

(C) Upon any termination of the Security Interests or release of Collateral in accordance with this Section, the Administrative Agent will, at the expense of the Grantors, execute and deliver to each Grantor such documents as such Grantors shall reasonably request to evidence the termination of the Security Interests or the release of such Collateral, as the case may be.

SECTION 17. Notices. All notices hereunder shall be given in accordance with Section 11 of the Subsidiary Guarantee.

SECTION 18. Waivers, Non-Exclusive Remedies. No failure on the part of the Administrative Agent to exercise, and no delay in exercising and no course of dealing with respect to, any right under this Agreement shall operate as a waiver thereof; nor shall any single or partial exercise by the Administrative Agent of any right under the Credit Agreement or this Agreement preclude any other or further exercise thereof or the exercise of any other right. The rights in this Agreement and the Credit Agreement are cumulative and are not exclusive of any other remedies provided by law.

SECTION 19. Successors and Assigns. This Agreement is for the benefit of the Administrative Agent and the Lenders and their successors and assigns, and in the event of an assignment of all or any of the Secured Obligations, the rights hereunder, to the extent applicable to the Indebtedness so assigned, may be transferred with such Indebtedness. This Agreement shall be binding on the Grantors and their successors and assigns.

SECTION 20. Changes in Writing. Neither this Agreement nor any provision hereof may be changed, waived, discharged or terminated orally, but only in writing signed by each Grantor and the Administrative Agent with the consent of the Required Lenders (except that any change, waiver, discharge or termination of Section 16 hereof shall require the consent of all of the Lenders).

SECTION 21. New York Law. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of New York, except as otherwise required by mandatory provisions of law and except to the extent that remedies provided by the laws of any jurisdiction other than New York are governed by the laws of such jurisdiction.

SECTION 22. Severability. If any provision hereof is invalid or unenforceable in any jurisdiction, then, to the fullest extent permitted by law, (i) the other provisions hereof shall remain in full force and effect in such jurisdiction and shall be liberally construed in favor of the Administrative Agent

Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have acted as special New York counsel for Sunbeam Corporation, a Delaware corporation (the "Parent") and the subsidiaries of the Parent that are parties to the Subsidiary Guarantees referred to below (the "Subsidiary Guarantors"; the Subsidiary Guarantors and the Parent are hereinafter referred to collectively as the "Obligors"), in connection with (i) the Credit Agreement dated as of March 30, 1998 (the "Credit Agreement") among the Parent, the Subsidiary Borrowers referred to therein, the lenders from time to time party thereto (the "Lenders"), Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc., as Syndication Agent, First Union National Bank, as Administrative Agent, and Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, as Documentation Agent, (ii) the Subsidiary Guarantee, (iii) the Parent Pledge and Security Agreement and (iv) the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement (each of the foregoing capitalized terms in clauses (ii) through (iv) as defined in the Credit Agreement, and all of the foregoing documents, including the Credit Agreement, the "Transaction Documents"). The capitalized terms defined in the Credit Agreement and not otherwise defined herein are used herein as therein defined. This opinion is being rendered to you at the request of our clients pursuant to Section 4.01 of the Credit Agreement.

We have examined originals or copies, certified or otherwise identified to our satisfaction, of such documents, corporate records, certificates of public officials and other instruments and have conducted such other investigations of fact and law as we have deemed necessary or advisable for purposes of this opinion.

Upon the basis of the foregoing, we are of the opinion that:

1. Each Obligor is a corporation duly incorporated, validly existing and in good standing under the laws of its jurisdiction of incorporation (the "Jurisdiction"), and has all requisite powers and authority to carry on its business as now conducted and, except where failure to do so, individually or in the aggregate, could not reasonably be expected to have a Material Adverse Effect, is qualified to do business in, and is in good standing in, every jurisdiction where such qualification is required.

2. The execution, delivery and performance by each Obligor of the Transaction Documents to which it is a party are within such Obligor's corporate powers and have been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action required by such Obligor, and do not contravene, or constitute a breach of or default under the certificate of incorporation or the by-laws of such Obligor or, to our knowledge after due inquiry, of any material agreement, judgment, injunction, order, decree or other instrument binding upon such Obligor or any of its Subsidiaries or result in the creation or imposition of any Lien on any revenues or assets of such Obligor or any of its Subsidiaries (other than the Liens created by the Collateral Documents) pursuant to any such material agreement or other instrument.

3. The execution, delivery and performance by each Obligor of the Transaction Documents to which it is a party (A) require no action by or in respect of, or filing with, any Governmental Authority and (B) do not contravene, or constitute a default under, any law or regulation.

4. Each of the Transaction Documents constitutes a valid and binding agreement of each Obligor party thereto, enforceable in accordance with its terms, subject to applicable bankruptcy, insolvency, fraudulent conveyance or similar laws affecting creditors' rights generally and general principles of equity, and except that certain of the remedial provisions in the Collateral Documents may be limited by applicable law, although such limitations do not in our opinion make the remedies provided for therein inadequate for the practical realization of the benefits of the security intended to be afforded thereby.

5. There are no actions, suits or proceedings by or before any arbitrator or Governmental Authority pending against, or to our knowledge threatened against or affecting, any Obligor or any of its Subsidiaries before any arbitrator or Governmental Authority (i) as to which there is a reasonable possibility of an adverse determination and that, if adversely determined, could reasonably be expected, individually or in the aggregate, to result in a Material Adverse Effect or (ii) that involve any of the Transaction Documents, the Transactions, the Acquisition Documents or the Acquisition.

6. Under the Uniform Commercial Code as currently in effect in the State of New York (the "UCC"), upon delivery to the Administrative Agent of the certificates evidencing the Pledged Stock (as defined in each Pledge and Security Agreement), together with the related duly executed stock powers, and assuming that (i) the Agents and the Lenders have no knowledge of any adverse claim in, on or to such Pledged Stock and (ii) the Administrative Agent maintains continuous possession of such stock certificates, the Administrative Agent has, for the benefit of the Lenders, a perfected security interest in each Obligor's right, title and interest in and to such Pledged Stock, free of any adverse claim (as provided for under Article 8-303(b) of the UCC).

7. None of the Obligors is (i) an "investment company" as defined in, or subject to regulation under, the Investment Company Act of 1940 or (ii) a "holding company" as defined in, or subject to regulation under, the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

8. There are no taxes imposed by the Jurisdiction (a) on or by virtue of the execution, delivery, enforcement or performance of the Subsidiary Guarantee or the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement or (b) on any payment to be made by the Subsidiary Guarantor pursuant to the Subsidiary Guarantee. */

9. To ensure the legality, validity, enforceability or admissibility in evidence of the Subsidiary Guarantee and the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement, it is not necessary that the Subsidiary Guarantee, the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement or any other Loan Document or any other document be filed, registered or recorded with, or executed or notarized before, any court or other authority of the Jurisdiction or that any registration charge or stamp or similar tax be paid on or in respect of the Subsidiary Guarantee or any other Loan Document.*

*/ Opinion required only with respect to Obligors that are organized under the laws of a jurisdiction other than New York or Delaware.

10. Each of the Subsidiary Guarantee and the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement is in proper legal form under the laws of the Jurisdiction for the enforcement thereof against the Subsidiary Guarantor under the laws of the Jurisdiction. */

11. In any action or proceeding arising out of or relating to the Subsidiary Guarantee or the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement in any court in the Jurisdiction, such court would recognize and give effect to the choice of law provisions in the Subsidiary Guarantee and the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement wherein the parties thereto agree that the same shall be governed by, and construed and interpreted in accordance with, the laws of the State of New York.*

12. It is not necessary under the laws of the Jurisdiction (a) in order to enable the Administrative Agent and the Lenders or any of them to enforce their respective rights under the Subsidiary Guarantee or the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement or (b) by reason of the execution of the Subsidiary Guarantee or the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement or the performance of the Subsidiary Guarantee or the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement that any of them should be licensed, qualified or entitled to carry on business in the Jurisdiction.*

13. Neither the Administrative Agent nor any of the Lenders will be deemed to be resident, domiciled, carrying on business or subject to taxation in the Jurisdiction merely by reason of the execution of the Subsidiary Guarantee or the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement or the performance or enforcement of any thereof. The performance by the Administrative Agent and the Lenders or any of them of any action required or permitted under the Subsidiary Guarantee or the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement will not violate any law or regulation, or be contrary to the public policy, of the Jurisdiction.*

14. The irrevocable submission of the Subsidiary Guarantor to the non-exclusive jurisdiction of the State and Federal courts in the Southern District New York (each a "New York court") and the waiver by the Subsidiary Guarantor of any objection to the venue of a proceeding in a New York court are legal, valid and binding under the laws of the Jurisdiction and will be respected by the Jurisdiction courts.*

15. If any judgment of a competent court outside the Jurisdiction were rendered against the Subsidiary Guarantor in connection with any action arising out of or relating to the Subsidiary Guarantee or the Subsidiary Pledge and Security Agreement, such judgment would be recognized and could be sued upon in the courts of the Jurisdiction, and such courts would grant a judgment which would be enforceable against the Subsidiary Guarantor in the Jurisdiction without any retrial unless it is shown that (a) the foreign court did not have jurisdiction in accordance with its jurisdictional rules, (b) the party against whom the judgment of such foreign court was obtained had no notice of the proceedings or (c) the judgment of such foreign court was obtained through collusion or fraud or was based upon clear mistake of fact or law. */

Dear Sirs:

We have participated in the preparation of the Credit Agreement dated as of March 30, 1998 (the "Credit Agreement") among Sunbeam Corporation, a Delaware corporation (the "Parent"), the Subsidiary Borrowers referred to therein, the Lenders party thereto, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc., as Syndication Agent, Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, as Documentation Agent and First Union National Bank, as Administrative Agent, and have acted as special counsel for the Agents for the purpose of rendering this opinion pursuant to Section 4.01 of the Credit Agreement. Terms defined in the Credit Agreement are used herein as therein defined.

We have examined originals or copies, certified or otherwise identified to our satisfaction, of such documents, corporate records, certificates of public officials and other instruments and have conducted such other investigations of fact and law as we have deemed necessary or advisable for purposes of this opinion.

Upon the basis of the foregoing, we are of the opinion that, assuming that the execution, delivery and performance by the Parent of the Credit Agreement are within the Parent's corporate powers and have been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action, the Credit Agreement constitutes a valid and binding agreement of the Parent, enforceable in accordance with its terms, subject to applicable bankruptcy, insolvency or similar laws affecting creditors' rights generally and to general principles of equity.

We are members of the Bar of the State of New York and the foregoing opinion is limited to the laws of the State of New York. In giving the foregoing opinion, we express no opinion as to the effect (if any) of any law of any jurisdiction (except the State of New York) in which any Lender is located which limits the rate of interest that such Lender may charge or collect.

This opinion is rendered solely to you in connection with the above matter. This opinion may not be relied upon by you for any other purpose or relied upon by any other Person without our prior written consent.

Very truly yours,

[FORM OF SUBSIDIARY BORROWING AGREEMENT]

SUBSIDIARY BORROWING AGREEMENT, dated as of _____, 1998 (this "Agreement") among [NAME OF SUBSIDIARY BORROWER] a _____ (the "Subsidiary"), SUNBEAM CORPORATION, a Delaware corporation ("Parent"), and FIRST UNION NATIONAL BANK, as administrative agent (in such capacity, the "Administrative Agent") for the several banks and other financial institutions or entities (the "Lenders") from time to time parties to the Credit Agreement, dated as of March 30, 1998 (as amended, supplemented or otherwise modified from time to time, the "Credit Agreement"), among Parent, the Subsidiary Borrowers (as defined in the Credit Agreement) from time to time parties thereto, the Lenders, the Administrative Agent, Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association, as Documentation Agent, and Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc., as Syndication Agent and Arranger.

The parties hereto hereby agree as follows:

1. Capitalized terms used herein but not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings assigned to such terms in the Credit Agreement.

2. Pursuant to Section 2.19 of the Credit Agreement, the Parent hereby designates the Subsidiary as a Subsidiary Borrower under the Credit Agreement.

3. The Parent and the Subsidiary, jointly and severally, represent and warrant that the representations and warranties contained in the Credit Agreement are true and correct on and as of the date hereof.

4. The Parent agrees that its guaranty contained in Article 9 of the Credit Agreement will apply to the obligations of the Subsidiary as a Subsidiary Borrower.

5. Upon execution of this Agreement by the Parent, the Subsidiary and the Administrative Agent, (i) the Subsidiary shall be a party to the Credit Agreement and shall be a Subsidiary Borrower and a Borrower for all purposes thereof, and the Subsidiary hereby agrees to be bound by all provisions of the Credit Agreement, until such time as the principal of and interest on the Loans and all other amounts payable by the Subsidiary Borrower under the Credit

SUBSIDIARY BORROWER
PLEDGE AND SECURITY AGREEMENT

AGREEMENT dated as of March 30, 1998 between [SUBSIDIARY BORROWER] (with its successors, the "Subsidiary Borrower") and First Union National Bank, as Administrative Agent.

WITNESSETH:

WHEREAS, Sunbeam Corporation (with its successors, the "Parent"), the Subsidiary Borrowers referred to therein, the Lenders party thereto, Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc., as Syndication Agent, Bank of America National. Trust and Savings Association, as Documentation Agent, and First Union National Bank, as Administrative Agent, are parties to a Credit Agreement dated as of March 30, 1998 (as the same may be amended from time to time, the "Credit Agreement"); and

WHEREAS, as of the date hereof, the Subsidiary Borrower, the Parent and the Administrative Agent have entered into a Subsidiary Borrowing Agreement (as the same may be amended from time to time, the "Subsidiary Borrowing Agreement"); and

WHEREAS, in order to induce the Lenders and Administrative Agent to permit the Subsidiary Borrower to become a party to the Credit Agreement by executing the Subsidiary Borrowing Agreement, the Subsidiary Borrower has agreed to grant a continuing security interest in and to the Collateral (as hereafter defined) to secure the Secured Obligations (as hereafter defined);

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the premises and other good and valuable consideration, the receipt and sufficiency of which are hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto agree as follows:

SECTION 1. Definitions. Terms defined in the Credit Agreement and not otherwise defined herein have, as used herein, the respective meanings provided for therein except that the term "Loan Documents" shall include any document with respect to any Hedging Obligations. The following additional terms, as used herein, have the following respective meanings:

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020131

"Collateral" has the meaning assigned to such term in Section 3(A).

"Direct Domestic Subsidiary" means a Direct Subsidiary organized under the laws of the United States of America or a state thereof.

"Direct Domestic Subsidiary Shares" means the shares of capital stock or other equity interest of each Direct Domestic Subsidiary listed on Schedule I opposite such Direct Domestic Subsidiary's name.

"Direct Foreign Subsidiary" means a Direct Subsidiary organized under the laws of any jurisdiction outside the United States.

"Direct Foreign Subsidiary Shares" means the shares of capital stock or other equity interests of each Direct Foreign Subsidiary listed on Schedule II opposite such Direct Foreign Subsidiary's name.

"Direct Subsidiary" means a Material Subsidiary of the Subsidiary Borrower, the capital stock or other equity interests of which is held directly by the Subsidiary Borrower.

"Direct Subsidiary Notes" means the Intercompany Agreements of each Direct Subsidiary listed on Schedule I or Schedule II opposite the Direct Subsidiary's name.

"Hedging Obligations" means all obligations of the Parent under any Hedging Agreement between the Parent and any Lender.

"Intercompany Agreements" means all instruments owned by the Subsidiary Borrower evidencing Indebtedness owed to it by any of its Direct Subsidiaries.

"Pledged Instruments" means (i) the Direct Subsidiary Notes and (ii) any instrument required to be pledged to the Administrative Agent pursuant to Section 3(B) and Section 3(C).

"Pledged Securities" means the Pledged Instruments and the Pledged Stock.

"Pledged Stock" means (i) the Direct Domestic Subsidiary Shares, (ii) 66% of the Foreign Direct Subsidiary Shares and (iii) any other capital stock required to be pledged to the Administrative Agent pursuant to Section 3(B) and Section 3(C).

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020132

"Secured Obligations" means the obligations secured under this Agreement including all obligations of the Subsidiary Borrower under or in respect of the Subsidiary Borrowing Agreement, including without limitation its obligations in respect of (i) all principal of and interest (including, without limitation, any interest which accrues after or would accrue but for the commencement of any case, proceeding or other action relating to the bankruptcy, insolvency or reorganization of any Obligor, whether or not allowed or allowable as a claim in any such proceeding) on any loan under, or any note issued pursuant to, the Credit Agreement, (ii) all reimbursement obligations with respect to any Letter of Credit, (iii) any Hedging Obligations, (iv) all other amounts payable by any Obligor under the Loan Documents, and (v) any renewals or extensions of any of the foregoing.

"Security Interests" means the security interests in the Collateral granted hereunder securing the Secured Obligations.

Unless otherwise defined herein, or unless the context otherwise requires, all terms used herein which are defined in the New York Uniform Commercial Code as in effect on the date hereof shall have the meanings therein stated.

SECTION 2. Representations and Warranties. Each Subsidiary Borrower represents and warrants as follows:

(A) Title to Pledged Securities. The Subsidiary Borrower owns all of the Pledged Securities, free and clear of any Liens other than the Security Interests. The Pledged Stock includes (i) all of the issued and outstanding capital stock of each Direct Domestic Subsidiary and (ii) 66% of the issued and outstanding stock of each Foreign Direct Subsidiary. The Pledged Instruments include all instruments owned by the Subsidiary Borrower evidencing Indebtedness owed to it by any of its Direct Subsidiaries. All of the Pledged Stock has been duly authorized and validly issued, and is fully paid and non-assessable, and is subject to no options to purchase or similar rights of any Person. The Subsidiary Borrower is not and will not become a party to or otherwise become bound by any agreement, other than this Agreement and the Subsidiary Borrowing Agreement, which restricts in any manner the rights of any present or future holder of any of the Pledged Securities with respect thereto.

(B) Validity, Perfection and Priority of Security Interests. Upon the delivery of the Pledged Instruments and certificates representing the Pledged Stock to the Administrative Agent in accordance with Section 4 hereof and the filing of UCC financing statements in the form specified in

Exhibit A in the appropriate filing office in the jurisdiction specified on the signature pages of the Subsidiary Borrowing Agreement, the Administrative Agent will have valid and perfected security interests in the Collateral subject to no prior Lien other than Permitted Liens. Except for the filing of the UCC financing statements described in the immediately preceding sentence, no registration, recordation or filing with any governmental body, agency or official is required in connection with the execution or delivery of this Agreement or necessary for the validity or enforceability hereof or for the perfection or enforcement of the Security Interests. Neither the Subsidiary Borrower nor any of its subsidiaries has performed or will perform any acts which might prevent the Administrative Agent from enforcing any of the terms and conditions of this Agreement or which would limit the Administrative Agent in any such enforcement. Other than financing statements or other similar or equivalent documents or instruments with respect to the Security Interests, no financing statement, mortgage, security agreement or similar or equivalent document or instrument covering all or any part of the Collateral is on file or of record in any jurisdiction in which such filing or recording would be effective to perfect a Lien on such Collateral. No collateral is in the possession of any Person (other than the Subsidiary Borrower) asserting any claim thereto or security interest therein, except that the Administrative Agent or its designee may have possession of Collateral as contemplated hereby.

(C) UCC Filing Locations. The chief executive office of the Subsidiary Borrower is located at its address set forth on the signature pages of the Subsidiary Borrowing Agreement. Under the Uniform Commercial Code as in effect in the State in which each office is located, no local filing is required to perfect a security interest in collateral consisting of accounts or general intangibles.

SECTION 3. The Security Interests. In order to secure the full and punctual payment of the Secured Obligations in accordance with the terms thereof, and to secure the performance of all the obligations of the Subsidiary Borrower hereunder:

(A) The Subsidiary Borrower hereby assigns and pledges to and with the Administrative Agent for the benefit of the Lenders and grants to the Administrative Agent for the benefit of the Lenders security interests in all of the following property of the Subsidiary Borrower (collectively, the "Collateral"):

(1) the Pledged Securities, and all of its rights and privileges with respect to the Pledged Securities, and all income and profits thereon, and all interest, dividends and other payments and distributions with respect thereto;

(2) all Indebtedness now or hereafter owed to the Subsidiary Borrower by any of its Direct Subsidiaries (whether or not evidenced by instruments (as defined in the UCC));

(3) all other Investments made by the Subsidiary Borrower in any of its Direct Domestic Subsidiaries; and

(4) all proceeds of all or any of the collateral described in clauses (1) through (3) hereof.

Contemporaneously with the execution and delivery hereof, the Subsidiary Borrower is delivering the Direct Subsidiary Notes and certificates representing the Direct Domestic Subsidiary Shares and the Foreign Direct Subsidiary Shares in pledge hereunder.

(B) In the event that at any time any Person becomes a Direct Domestic Subsidiary, or any Direct Domestic Subsidiary issues any additional or substitute shares of capital stock of any class or any other equity interests or any substitute note, or owes any other Indebtedness to the Subsidiary Borrower, or the Subsidiary Borrower makes any other Investment in any Direct Domestic Subsidiary, the Subsidiary Borrower will immediately pledge and deposit with the Administrative Agent certificates representing all such shares or equity interests and such note or an instrument evidencing such other Indebtedness or other Investment as additional security for the Secured Obligations. All such shares, notes and instruments constitute Pledged Securities and are subject to all provisions of this Agreement.

(C) In the event that at any time any Person becomes a Direct Foreign Subsidiary, or any Direct Foreign Subsidiary issues any additional or substitute shares of capital stock of any class or any other equity interests or any substitute note, or owes any other Indebtedness to the Subsidiary Borrower, or the Subsidiary Borrower makes any other Investment in any Direct Foreign Subsidiary, the Subsidiary Borrower will immediately pledge and deposit with the Administrative Agent certificates representing additional shares or equity interests sufficient to cause the Secured Parties to have a security interest in 66% (but not more than 66%) of all the outstanding capital stock of or other equity interests in such Direct Foreign Subsidiary and such note or an instrument evidencing such other Indebtedness or other Investment as additional security for the Secured Obligations. All such shares, notes and instruments constitute Pledged Securities and are subject to all provisions of this Agreement.

(D) The Security Interests are granted as security only and shall not subject the Administrative Agent or any Lender to, or transfer or in any way affect or modify, any obligation or liability of the Subsidiary Borrower or any of its Direct Subsidiaries with respect to any of the Collateral or any transaction in connection therewith.

SECTION 4. Delivery of Pledged Securities. All Pledged Instruments shall be delivered to the Administrative Agent by the Subsidiary Borrower pursuant hereto indorsed to the order of the Administrative Agent, and accompanied by any required transfer tax stamps, all in form and substance satisfactory to the Administrative Agent. All certificates representing Pledged Stock delivered to the Administrative Agent by the Subsidiary Borrower pursuant hereto shall be in suitable form for transfer by delivery, or shall be accompanied by duly executed instruments of transfer or assignment in blank, with signatures appropriately guaranteed, and accompanied by any required transfer tax stamps, all in form and substance satisfactory to the Administrative Agent.

SECTION 5. Further Assurances.

(A) The Subsidiary Borrower agrees that it will from time to time, at its expense and in such manner and form as the Administrative Agent may require, execute, deliver, file and record any financing statement, specific assignment or other paper and take any other action that may be necessary or desirable, or that the Administrative Agent may request, in order to create, preserve, perfect, confirm or validate any Security Interest or to enable the Administrative Agent to exercise and enforce any of its rights, powers or remedies hereunder with respect to any of the Collateral. To the extent permitted by applicable law, the Subsidiary Borrower hereby authorizes the Administrative Agent to execute and file, in the name of the Subsidiary Borrower or otherwise, Uniform Commercial Code financing statements (which may be carbon, photographic, photostatic or other reproductions of this Agreement or of a financing statement relating to this Agreement) which the Administrative Agent in its sole discretion may deem necessary or appropriate to further perfect the Security Interests.

(B) The Subsidiary Borrower agrees that it will not change (i) its name, identity or corporate structure in any manner or (ii) the location of its chief executive office, in each case unless it shall have given the Administrative Agent not less than 30 days' prior notice thereof.

SECTION 6. Record Ownership of Pledged Stock. Upon the occurrence and during the continuance of any Default, the Administrative Agent may at any time or from time to time, in its sole discretion, cause any or all of the Pledged Stock to be transferred of record into the name of the Administrative Agent or its nominee. The Subsidiary Borrower will promptly give to the Administrative Agent copies of any notices or other communications received by it with respect to Pledged Stock registered in the name of the Subsidiary Borrower and the Administrative Agent will promptly give to the Subsidiary Borrower copies of any notices and communications received by the Administrative Agent with respect to Pledged Stock registered in the name of the Administrative Agent or its nominee.

SECTION 7. Right to Receive Distributions on Collateral. The Administrative Agent shall have the right to receive and, during the continuance of any Default, to retain as Collateral hereunder all dividends, interest and other payments and distributions made upon or with respect to the Collateral and the Subsidiary Borrower shall take all such action as the Administrative Agent may deem necessary or appropriate to give effect to such right. All such dividends, interest and other payments and distributions which are received by the Subsidiary Borrower shall be received in trust for the benefit of the Administrative Agent and the Lenders and, if the Administrative Agent so directs during the continuance of a Default, shall be segregated from other funds of the Subsidiary Borrower and shall, forthwith upon demand by the Administrative Agent during the continuance of a Default, be paid over to the Administrative Agent as Collateral in the same form as received (with any necessary endorsement). After all Defaults have been cured, the Administrative Agent's right to retain dividends, interest and other payments and distributions under this Section 7 shall cease and the Administrative Agent shall pay over to the Subsidiary Borrower any such Collateral retained by it during the continuance of a Default.

SECTION 8. Right to Vote Pledged Stock. Unless a Default shall have occurred and be continuing, the Subsidiary Borrower shall have the right, from time to time, to vote and to give consents, ratifications and waivers with respect to the Pledged Stock, and the Administrative Agent shall, upon receiving a written request from the Subsidiary Borrower accompanied by a certificate signed by its principal financial officer stating that no Default has occurred and is continuing, deliver to the Subsidiary Borrower or as specified in such request such proxies, powers of attorney, consents, ratifications and waivers in respect of any of the Pledged Stock which is registered in the name of the Administrative Agent or its nominee as shall be specified in such request and be in form and substance satisfactory to the Administrative Agent.

If a Default shall have occurred and be continuing, the Administrative Agent shall have the right to the extent permitted by law and the Subsidiary Borrower shall take all such action as may be necessary or appropriate to give effect to such right, to vote and to give consents, ratifications and waivers, and take any other action with respect to any or all of the Pledged Stock with the same force and effect as if the Administrative Agent were the absolute and sole owner thereof.

SECTION 9. General Authority. The Subsidiary Borrower hereby irrevocably appoints the Administrative Agent its true and lawful attorney, with full power of substitution, in the name of the Subsidiary Borrower, the Administrative Agent, the Lenders or otherwise, for the sole use and benefit of the Administrative Agent and Lenders, but at the expense of the Subsidiary Borrower, to the extent permitted by law to exercise, at any time and from time to time while an Event of Default has occurred and is continuing, all or any of the following powers with respect to all or any of the Collateral:

(i) to demand, sue for, collect, receive and give acquittance for any and all monies due or to become due upon or by virtue thereof,

(ii) to settle, compromise, compound, prosecute or defend any action or proceeding with respect thereto,

(iii) to sell, transfer, assign or otherwise deal in or with the same or the proceeds or avails thereof, as fully and effectually as if the Administrative Agent were the absolute owner thereof, and provided that the Administrative Agent shall give the Subsidiary Borrower not less than ten days' prior notice of the time and place of any sale or other intended disposition of any of the Collateral except any Collateral which is perishable or threatens to decline speedily in value or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market. The Administrative Agent and the Subsidiary Borrower agree that such notice constitutes "reasonable notification" within the meaning of Section 9-504(3) of the Uniform Commercial Code.

(iv) to extend the time of payment of any or all thereof and to make any allowance and other adjustments with reference thereto;

SECTION 10. Remedies upon Event of Default. If any Event of Default shall have occurred and be continuing, the Administrative Agent may exercise on behalf of the Lenders all the rights of a secured party under the Uniform Commercial Code (whether or not in effect in the jurisdiction where such rights are exercised) and, in addition, the Administrative Agent may, without being required to give any notice, except as herein provided or as may be required by mandatory provisions of law, (i) apply the cash, if any, then held by it as Collateral as specified in Section 13 and (ii) if there shall be no such cash or if such cash shall be insufficient to pay all the Secured Obligations in full, sell the Collateral or any part thereof at public or private sale or at any broker's board or on any securities exchange, for cash, upon credit or for future delivery, and at such price or prices as the Administrative Agent may deem satisfactory. Any Lender may be the purchaser of any or all of the Collateral so sold at any public sale (or, if the Collateral is of a type customarily sold in a recognized market or is of a type which is the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations, at any private sale). The Administrative Agent is authorized, in connection with any such sale, if it deems it advisable so to do, (i) to restrict the prospective bidders on or purchasers of any of the Pledged Securities to a limited number of sophisticated investors who will represent and agree that they are purchasing for their own account for investment and not with a view to the distribution or sale of any of such Pledged Securities, (ii) to cause to be placed on certificates for any or all of the Pledged Securities or on any other securities pledged hereunder a legend to the effect that such security has not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933 and may not be disposed of in violation of the provisions of said Act, and (iii) to impose such other limitations or conditions in connection with any such sale as the Administrative Agent deems necessary or advisable in order to comply with said Act or any other law. The Subsidiary Borrower will execute and deliver such documents and take such other action as the Administrative Agent deems necessary or advisable in order that any such sale may be made in compliance with law. Upon any such sale the Administrative Agent shall have the right to deliver, assign and transfer to the purchaser thereof the Collateral so sold. Each purchaser at any such sale shall hold the Collateral so sold absolutely and free from any claim or right of whatsoever kind, including any equity or right of redemption of the Subsidiary Borrower which may be waived, and the Subsidiary Borrower, to the extent permitted by law, hereby specifically waives all rights of redemption, stay or appraisal which it has or may have under any law now existing or hereafter adopted. The notice (if any) of such sale required by Section 9 shall (1) in the case of a public sale, state the time and place fixed for such sale, (2) in the case of a sale at a broker's board or on a securities exchange, state the board or exchange at which such sale is to be made and the day on which the Collateral, or the portion thereof so being sold, will first be offered for sale at such board or exchange, and (3) in the case of a private sale, state the day after which such sale may be consummated. Any such public sale shall be held at such time or times within ordinary business hours and at such place or places as the Administrative Agent may fix in the notice of such sale. At any such sale the Collateral may be sold in one lot as an entirety or in separate parcels. as the Administrative Agent may determine. The Administrative Agent shall not be obligated to make any such sale pursuant to any such notice. The Administrative Agent may, without notice or publication, adjourn any public or private sale or cause the same to be adjourned from time to time by announcement at the time and place fixed for the sale, and such sale may be made at any time or place to which the same may be so adjourned. In the case of any sale of all or any part of the Collateral on credit or for future delivery, the Collateral so sold may be retained by the Administrative Agent until the selling price is paid by the purchaser thereof, but the Administrative Agent shall not incur any liability in the case of the failure of such purchaser to take up and pay for the Collateral so sold and, in the case of any such failure, such Collateral may again be sold upon like notice. The Administrative Agent, instead of exercising the power of sale herein conferred upon it, may proceed by a suit or suits at law or in equity to foreclose the Security Interests and sell the Collateral, or any portion thereof, under a judgment or decree of a court or courts of competent jurisdiction.

SECTION 11. Expenses. The Subsidiary Borrower agrees that it will forthwith upon demand pay to the Administrative Agent:

(i) the amount of any taxes which the Administrative Agent may have been required to pay by reason of the Security Interests or to free any of the Collateral from any Lien thereon, and

(ii) the amount of any and all out-of-pocket expenses, including the fees and disbursements of counsel and of any other experts, which the Administrative Agent may incur in connection with (w) the administration or enforcement of this Agreement, including such expenses as are incurred to preserve the value of the Collateral and the validity, perfection, rank and value of any Security Interest, (x) the collection, sale or other disposition of any of the Collateral, (y) the exercise by the Administrative Agent of any of the rights conferred upon it hereunder or (z) any Default or Event of Default.

Any such amount not paid on demand shall bear interest at the rate applicable to ABR Borrowings plus 2% and shall be an additional Secured Obligation hereunder.

SECTION 12. Limitation on Duty of Administrative Agent in Respect of Collateral. Beyond the exercise of reasonable care in the custody thereof, the Administrative Agent shall have no duty as to any Collateral in its possession or control or in the possession or control of any agent or bailee or any income thereon or as to the preservation of rights against prior parties or any other rights pertaining thereto. The Administrative Agent shall be deemed to have exercised reasonable care in the custody and preservation of the Collateral in its possession if the Collateral is accorded treatment substantially equal to that which it accords its own property, and shall not be liable or responsible for any loss or damage to any of the Collateral, or for any diminution in the value thereof, by reason of the act or omission of any agent or bailee selected by the Administrative Agent in good faith.

SECTION 13. Application of Proceeds. Upon the occurrence and during the continuance of an Event of Default, the proceeds of any sale of, or other realization upon, all or any part of the Collateral and any cash held shall be applied by the Administrative Agent in the following order of priorities:

> first, to payment of the expenses of such sale or other realization, including reasonable compensation to agents and counsel for the Administrative Agent, and all expenses, liabilities and advances incurred or made by the Administrative Agent in connection therewith, and any other unreimbursed expenses for which the Administrative Agent or any Lender is to be reimbursed pursuant to Section 10.03 of the Credit Agreement or Section 11 hereof and unpaid fees owing to the Administrative Agent under the Credit Agreement;
> second, to the ratable payment of unpaid principal of the Secured Obligations and unpaid reimbursement obligations which constitute Secured Obligations;
> third, to the ratable payment of unpaid Hedging Obligations and accrued but unpaid interest on the Secured Obligations in accordance with the provisions of the Credit Agreement;
> fourth, to the ratable payment of all other Secured Obligations, until all Secured Obligations shall have been paid in full; and > finally, to payment to the Subsidiary Borrower or its successors or assigns, or as a court of competent jurisdiction may direct, of any surplus then remaining from such proceeds.

The Administrative Agent may make distributions hereunder in cash or in kind or, on a ratable basis, in any combination thereof.

SECTION 14. Concerning the Administrative Agent. The provisions of Article 8 of the Credit Agreement shall inure to the benefit of the Administrative Agent in respect of this Agreement and shall be binding upon the parties to the Credit Agreement in such respect. In furtherance and not in derogation of the rights, privileges and immunities of the Administrative Agent therein set forth:

(A) The Administrative Agent is authorized to take all such action as is provided to be taken by it as Administrative Agent hereunder and all other action reasonably incidental thereto. As to any matters not expressly provided for herein (including, without limitation, the timing and methods of realization upon the Collateral) the Administrative Agent shall act or refrain from acting in accordance with written instructions from the Required Lenders or, in the absence of such instructions, in accordance with its discretion.

(B) The Administrative Agent shall not be responsible for the existence, genuineness or value of any of the Collateral or for the validity, perfection, priority or enforceability of the Security Interests in any of the Collateral, whether impaired by operation of law or by reason of any action or omission to act on its part hereunder. The Administrative Agent shall have no duty to ascertain or inquire as to the performance or observance of any of the terms of this Agreement by the Subsidiary Borrower.

SECTION 15. Appointment of Co-Agents. At any time or times, in order to comply with any legal requirement in any jurisdiction, the Administrative Agent may appoint another bank or trust company or one or more other persons, either to act as co-agent or co-agents, jointly with the Administrative Agent, or to act as separate agent or agents on behalf of the Lenders with such power and authority as may be necessary for the effectual operation of the provisions hereof and may be specified in the instrument of appointment (which may, in the discretion of the Administrative Agent, include provisions for the protection of such co-agent or separate agent similar to the provisions of Section 14).

SECTION 16. Termination of Security Interests; Release of Collateral.

(A) Upon the repayment in full of all Secured Obligations, the cancellation of all Letters of Credit and the termination of the Commitments under the Credit Agreement, the Security Interests shall terminate and all rights to the Collateral shall revert to the Subsidiary Borrower. At any time and from time to time prior to such termination of the Security Interests, the Administrative Agent may release any of the Collateral with the prior written consent of the Required Lenders; provided that the Administrative Agent may not release all or substantially all of the Collateral (as defined in the Credit Agreement) without the prior written consent of all the Lenders.

(B) Unless otherwise instructed by the Required Lenders at a time when an Event of Default shall have occurred and be continuing, the Administrative Agent shall upon a sale of Collateral permitted by the Credit Agreement release the portion of the Collateral so sold (but not any proceeds of such sale). No such release shall require the consent of any Lender, and the Administrative Agent shall be fully protected in relying on a certificate of the Parent or the Subsidiary Borrower as to whether any particular sale is permitted by the terms of the Credit Agreement.

(C) Upon any termination of the Security Interests or release of Collateral in accordance with this Section, the Administrative Agent will, at the expense of the Subsidiary Borrower, execute and deliver to the Subsidiary Borrower such documents as the Subsidiary Borrower shall reasonably request to evidence the termination of the Security Interests or the release of such Collateral, as the case may be.

SECTION 17. Notices. All notices hereunder shall be given in accordance with Section 10.01 of the Credit Agreement.

SECTION 18. Waivers, Non-Exclusive Remedies. No failure on the part of the Administrative Agent to exercise, and no delay in exercising and no course of dealing with respect to, any right under this Agreement shall operate as a waiver thereof; nor shall any single or partial exercise by the Administrative Agent of any right under the Credit Agreement or this Agreement preclude any other or further exercise thereof or the exercise of any other right. The rights in this Agreement and the Credit Agreement are cumulative and are not exclusive of any other remedies provided by law.

SECTION 19. Successors and Assigns. This Agreement is for the benefit of the Administrative Agent and the Lenders and their successors and assigns, and in the event of an assignment of all or any of the Secured Obligations, the rights hereunder, to the extent applicable to the Indebtedness so assigned, may be transferred with such Indebtedness. This Agreement shall be binding on the Subsidiary Borrower and its successors and assigns.

SECTION 20. Changes in Writing. Neither this Agreement nor any provision hereof may be changed, waived, discharged or terminated orally, but only in writing signed by the Subsidiary Borrower and the Administrative Agent with the consent of the Required Lenders (except that any change, waiver, discharge or termination of Section 16 hereof shall require the consent of all of the Lenders).

SECTION 21. New York Law. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with and governed by the laws of the State of New York, except as otherwise required by mandatory provisions of law and except to the extent that remedies provided by the laws of any jurisdiction other than New York are governed by the laws of such jurisdiction.

SECTION 22. Severability. If any provision hereof is invalid or unenforceable in any jurisdiction, then, to the fullest extent permitted by law, (i) the other provisions hereof shall remain in full force and effect in such jurisdiction and shall be liberally construed in favor of the Administrative Agent and the Lenders in order to carry out the intentions of the parties hereto as nearly as may be possible; and (ii) the invalidity or unenforceability of any provision hereof in any jurisdiction shall not affect the validity or enforceability of such provision in any other jurisdiction.

1. The Subsidiary Borrower is a corporation duly organized, validly existing and in good standing under the laws of _____ [specify the jurisdiction of its organization] (the "Jurisdiction").

2. The execution, delivery and performance by the Subsidiary Borrower of the Transaction Documents are within such Subsidiary Borrower's corporate powers and have been duly authorized by all necessary corporate action, and do not contravene, or constitute a breach of or default under the certificate of incorporation or the by-laws of the Subsidiary Borrower or, to our knowledge after due inquiry, of any material agreement, judgment, injunction, order, decree of other instrument binding upon the Subsidiary Borrower or any of its Subsidiaries or result in the creation or imposition of any Lien on any revenues or assets of the Subsidiary Borrower or any of its Subsidiaries (other than the Liens created by the Collateral Documents) pursuant to any such material agreement or other instrument.

3. The execution, delivery and performance by the Subsidiary Borrower of the Transaction Documents (a) require no action by or in respect of, or filing with, any Governmental Authority and (b) do not contravene, or constitute a default under, any law or regulation.

4. Each of the Transaction Documents constitutes a valid and binding agreement of the Subsidiary Borrower, enforceable in accordance with its terms, subject to applicable bankruptcy, insolvency, fraudulent conveyance or similar laws affecting creditors' rights generally and general principles of equity, and except that certain of the remedial provisions in the Collateral Documents may be limited by applicable law, although such limitations do not in our opinion make the remedies provided for therein inadequate for the practical realization of the benefits of the security intended to be afforded thereby.

5. There are no actions, suits or proceedings by or before any arbitrator or Governmental Authority pending against, or to our knowledge threatened against or affecting, the Subsidiary Borrower or any of its Subsidiaries before any arbitrator or Governmental Authority (a) as to which there is a reasonable possibility of an adverse determination and that, if adversely determined, could reasonably be expected, individually or in the aggregate, to result in a Material Adverse Effect or (b) that involve any of the Transaction Documents, the Transactions, the Acquisition Documents or the Acquisition.

6. Under the Uniform Commercial Code as currently in effect in the State of New York (the "UCC"), upon delivery to the Administrative Agent of the certificates evidencing the Pledged Stock (as defined in the Subsidiary Borrower Agreement), together with the related duly executed stock powers, and assuming that (a) the Agents and the Lenders have no knowledge of any adverse claim in, on or to such Pledged Stock and (b) the Administrative Agent maintains continuous possession of such stock certificates, the Administrative Agent has, for the benefit of the Lenders, a perfected security interest in the Subsidiary Borrowers right, title and interest in and to such Pledged Stock, free of any adverse claim (as provided for under Article 8-303(b) of the UCC).

7. The Subsidiary Borrower is not (a) an "investment company" as defined in, or subject to regulation under, the Investment Company Act of 1940 or (b) a "holding company" as defined in, or subject to regulation under, the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

Attention: Jerry W. Levin
Chairman and Chief Executive Officer

Ladies and Gentlemen:

This letter agreement confirms our understanding that The Coleman Company, Inc. (the "Company" or "you") has engaged Credit Suisse First Boston Corporation and its affiliates, successors and assigns, as appropriate ("CSFB" or "we"), to act as its exclusive financial advisor with respect to the evaluation of a proposed Transaction (as defined below) with a company we have code-named Laser ("Laser").

As part of our engagement, we will, if appropriate and if requested:

(a) assist you in analyzing and evaluating the business, operations and financial position of the Company;

(b) assist you in evaluating any proposal which is received from Laser;

(c) assist you in structuring and negotiating any proposed Transaction with Laser;

(d) be available at your request to meet with your Board of Directors to discuss the proposed Transaction and its financial implications; and

(e) render an opinion as to the fairness from a financial point of view to the Company's stockholders (other than Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. and its affiliates) of the consideration to be received in any proposed Transaction.

In connection with CSFB's engagement, the Company will furnish CSFB with all information concerning the Company which CSFB reasonably deems appropriate and will provide CSFB with access to the Company's officers, directors, employees, accountants, counsel and other representatives (collectively, the "Representatives"), it being understood that CSFB will rely solely upon such information supplied by the Company and its Representatives without assuming any responsibility for independent investigation or verification thereof. All non-public information concerning the Company which is given to CSFB will be used solely in the course of the performance of our services hereunder and will be treated confidentially by us for so long as it remains non-public. otherwise required by law, CSFB will not disclose this information to a third party without the consent of the Company.

As compensation for our services hereunder, the Company agrees to pay CSFB as follows:

(1) a financial advisory fee of $250,000, payable upon execution of this agreement (the "Financial Advisory Fee");

(2) a transaction fee of $3,750,000 (the "Transaction Fee") payable upon the consummation of the Transaction; and

(3) reimbursement of all reasonable out-of-pocket expenses, including the reasonable fees and expenses of its legal counsel, if any, and any other advisor retained by CSFB (it being understood that the retention of any such advisor, other than legal counsel, will be made with the prior approval of the Company), resulting from or arising out of this engagement.

All fees and expenses payable hereunder are net of all applicable withholding and similar taxes (but not of income or any similar taxes).

For purposes of this agreement, the term "Transaction" shall be defined to include, in any transaction involving Laser or any affiliate of Laser; the disposition (whether in one or a series of transactions) of all or a substantial amount of the assets or the capital stock of the Company, as well as any merger, recapitalization, restructuring or liquidation of the Company by the current owners, a third party or any combination thereof, or any other form of disposition which results in the effective sale of the principal business or operations of the Company by the current owners or an effective change of control of the Company's ownership.

If we are requested to render an opinion, the nature and scope of our analysis as well as the form and substance of our opinion shall be such as we deem appropriate. If requested by you, our opinion shall be delivered in writing.

No advice or opinion rendered by CSFB, whether formal or informal, may be disclosed, in whole or in part, or summarized, excerpted from or otherwise referred to without our prior written consent. In addition, CSFB may not be otherwise referred to without its prior written consent. If requested by CSFB, the Company shall include a mutually acceptable reference to CSFB in any press release or other public announcement made by the Company regarding the matters described in this letter.

Since CSFB will be acting on behalf of the Company in connection with its engagement hereunder, the Company has entered into a separate letter agreement, dated the date hereof, providing for the indemnification by the Company of CSFB and certain related persons and entities.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CSFB's engagement hereunder may be terminated at any time, with or without cause, by either CSFB or the Company upon ten days' prior written notice thereof to the other party; provided, however, that in the event of any termination of CSFB's engagement hereunder, CSFB will continue to be entitled to its full Transaction Fee provided for herein in the event that at any time prior to the expiration of two years after any such termination the Company consummates, or enters into an agreement providing for a Transaction and such Transaction is subsequently consummated; and provided, further, that no termination of CSFB's engagement hereunder shall affect the Company's obligations to pay the Financial Advisory Fee, other fees and expenses to the extent provided for herein, and to indemnify CSFB and certain related persons and entities as provided in the separate letter agreement referred to above.

In connection with this engagement, CSFB is acting as an independent contractor and not in any other capacity, with duties owing solely to the Company. All aspects of the relationship created by this agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York, applicable to contracts made and to be performed therein.

We are delighted to accept this engagement and look forward to working with you on this assignment. Please confirm that the foregoing is in accordance with your understanding by signing and returning to us the enclosed duplicate of this agreement.

Very truly yours,

December 10, 1997

In connection with your engagement (the "engagement") to advise and assist us with the matters described in our engagement letter dated December 10, 1997, we agree to indemnify and hold harmless CREDIT SUISSE FIRST BOSTON CORPORATION ("CSFB" or "you") and its affiliates, the respective directors, officers, partners, agents and employees of CSFB and its affiliates, and each other person, if any, controlling CSFB or any of its affiliates (collectively, "Indemnified Persons"), from and against, and we agree that no Indemnified Person shall have any liability to us or our owners, parents, affiliates, security holders or creditors for, any losses, claims, damages or liabilities (including actions or proceedings in respect thereof) (collectively "Losses") (A) related to or arising out of (i) our actions or failures to act (including statements or omissions made, or information provided, by us or our agents) or (ii) actions or failures to act by an Indemnified Person with our consent or in reliance on our actions or failures to act, or (B) otherwise related to or arising out of the engagement or your performance thereof, except that this clause (B) shall not apply to any Losses that are finally judicially determined to have resulted primarily from your bad faith or gross negligence. If such indemnification is for any reason not available or insufficient to hold you harmless, we agree to contribute to the Losses involved in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect the relative benefits received (or anticipated to be received) by us and by you with respect to the engagement or, if such allocation is judicially determined unavailable, in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect other equitable considerations such as the relative fault of us on the one hand and of you on the other hand; provided, however, that, to the extent permitted by applicable law, the Indemnified Persons shall not be responsible for amounts which in the aggregate are in excess of the amount of all fees actually received by you from us in connection with the engagement. Relative benefits to us, on the one hand, and you, on the other hand, with respect to the engagement shall be deemed to be in the same proportion as (i) the total value paid or proposed to be paid or received or proposed to be received by us or our security holders, as the case may be, pursuant to the transaction(s), whether or not consummated, contemplated by the engagement bears to (ii) all fees actually received by you in connection with the engagement.

We will reimburse each Indemnified Person for all expenses (including without limitation reasonable fees and disbursements of counsel and expenses incurred in connection with preparing for and responding to third party subpoenas) as they are incurred by such Indemnified Person in connection with investigating, preparing for or defending any action, claim, investigation, inquiry, arbitration or other proceeding ("Action") referred to above (or enforcing this agreement or any related engagement agreement), whether or not in connection with pending or threatened litigation in which any Indemnified Person is a party, and whether or not such Action is initiated or brought by you . We further agree that we will not settle or compromise or consent to the entry of any judgment in any pending or threatened Action in respect of which indemnification may be sought hereunder (whether or not an Indemnified Person is a party therein) unless we have given you reasonable prior written notice thereof and used all reasonable efforts, after consultation with you, to obtain an unconditional release of each Indemnified Person from all liability arising therefrom. In the event we are considering entering into one or a series of transactions involving a merger or other business combination or a dissolution or liquidation of all or a significant portion of our assets, we shall promptly notify you in writing. If requested by CSFB, we shall then establish alternative means of providing for our obligations set forth herein on terms and conditions reasonably satisfactory to CSFB.

If multiple claims are brought against you in any Action with respect to at least one of which indemnification is permitted under applicable law and provided for under this agreement, we agree that any judgment, arbitration award or other monetary award shall be conclusively deemed to be based on claims as to which indemnification is permitted and provided for. Our obligations hereunder shall be in addition to any rights that any Indemnified Person may have at common law or otherwise. Solely for the purpose of enforcing this agreement, we hereby consent to personal jurisdiction and to service and venue in any court in which any claim which is subject to this agreement is brought by or against any Indemnified Person. We acknowledge that in connection with the engagement you are acting as an independent contractor with duties owing solely to us. YOU HEREBY AGREE, AND WE HEREBY AGREE ON OUR OWN BEHALF AND, TO THE EXTENT PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE LAW, ON BEHALF OF OUR SECURITY HOLDERS, TO WAIVE ANY RIGHT TO TRIAL BY JURY WITH RESPECT TO ANY CLAIM, COUNTER-CLAIM OR ACTION ARISING OUT OF THE ENGAGEMENT, YOUR PERFORMANCE THEREOF OR THIS AGREEMENT.

The provisions of this agreement shall apply to the engagement (including related activities prior to the date hereof) and any modification thereof and shall remain in full force and effect regardless of the completion or termination of the engagement. This agreement and any other agreements relating to the engagement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York, without regard to conflicts of law principles.

Very truly yours,

EXAMINATION BY
MS. PAULE-CARRES:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Fasman.
A. Good afternoon.
Q. Could you please state your full name for the record?
A. Steven Lawrence Fasman.
Q. Can you please provide your business address?
A. 35 East 62nd Street, New York, New York.
Q. It's my understanding that you've provided deposition testimony before; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you provide prior deposition testimony?
A. On many occasions.
Q. Can you please tell me some of them?

Fasman

A. In this case, a few months ago.
Q. This case being --
A. Being Coleman (Parent) Holdings versus Morgan Stanley.
Q. What was the substance of that testimony?
A. It was a Rule 1.310 deposition concerning document production.
Q. What other cases have you provided testimony in?
A. A large number of cases.
Q. Could you list one for me?
A. Product liability a couple of times.
Q. What was the subject matter of that testimony?
A. I was called as a witness in a couple of product liability cases.
Q. As a fact witness?
A. Yes.
Q. How long ago was that testimony provided?
A. I can recall a session maybe about two years ago.

Fasman

Q. Was that the last time that you had provided deposition testimony prior to --
A. I'm sorry, that was not deposition testimony, that was trial testimony.
Q. Was that the most recent time, absent your September deposition in this case, that you provided any form of testimony, sworn testimony?
A. Probably.
Q. Have you served as a corporate representative for Coleman (Parent) before?
A. At the prior deposition.
Q. At any time prior to the prior deposition had you served as a representative of Coleman (Parent)?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever served as a corporate representative for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. When was that?
A. In a case called LaSalle National

Fasman

Bank versus Perelman.
Q. What was the subject matter of that deposition?
A. Document production.
Q. Have you served as a corporate representative for MAFCO in any other cases?
A. Possibly.
Q. You don't recall?
A. Not at this point.
Q. If you took a moment and thought about it, would you recall?
A. Possibly.
Q. I will ask you again in a few moments.
Have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding the use of e-mail at Coleman (Parent)?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding the use of e-mail at MAFCO?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding back-up procedures of computer systems at Coleman (Parent)?

Fasman

A. No.
Q. Have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding back-up procedures of computer systems used at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding data restoration processes used by Coleman (Parent)?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding data restoration processes used at MacAndrews & Forbes?

Q. Have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding e-mail or document retention policies at MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. No.

MR. BRODY: In those cases, you mean aside from questions he was asked in the prior session in this case?

MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.

MR. BRODY: Thank you.

Q. Have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding e-mail or document destruction policies at Coleman (Parent) with the limitation that absent the prior deposition in this case?

A. I'm sorry, you have to ask the question again.

Q. Other than your deposition in September of this past fall, have you ever been asked to provide testimony regarding e-mail or document destruction policies employed by Coleman (Parent)?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever been asked to testify regarding e-mail or document destruction policies at MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. It sort of depends what you mean by that. In the context of the LaSalle case which also concerned document production, there may have been questions on that subject. I don't recall precisely at this point.

Q. You commented that the LaSalle case you provided trial testimony?

A. Deposition.

Q. Do you recall when that deposition took place?

A. My best guess would be 1998.

Q. In light of the fact that you provided testimony in the past, I'm sure you know how a deposition works but I'm just going to go over a few of the rules of the road. Obviously, if you don't understand one of my questions or if I speak too fast, whatever, please let me know, I will repeat or I will clarify the question. Okay?

Fasman

A. Yes.

Q. Obviously, this is all being transcribed so I would ask that you allow me to finish questions prior to answering and I will extend the same courtesy and try not to interrupt you while you're answering. Okay?

A. Yes.

Q. If you need a break or need to speak to your counsel, just let me know and as soon as the pending question has been answered, we will recess for a few minutes. Okay?

A. Okay.

Q. After a question has been asked and answered, if you remember any additional information at a later point in time, just let me know and we'll go back to it. Okay?

A. Okay.

Q. Is there any reason today that you feel that you are unable to provide a full and complete testimony?

A. No.

Fasman

Q. Can you please tell me briefly your educational background starting with your undergraduate?

A. I attended Princeton University, graduated in 1984. I attended Yale Law School, graduated in 1987.

Q. Any other graduate schools or professional schools?

A. No.

Q. At Princeton, what was your major?

A. Mathematics.

Q. Did you have a minor as well?

A. No.

Q. Did any of your major course work of mathematics provide you any technical experience?

A. In my mathematics course?

Q. Um-hmm.

A. No.

Q. Did you take any other course work that provided you with any technical or computer experience?

A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Fasman
Q. What was that?
A. Courses in physics, organic chemistry, molecular biology, astrophysics, civil engineering. Limited to my Princeton education?
Q. Um-hmm.
A. That's it.
Q. Did you ever take any course work pertaining to computer science while you were at Princeton?
A. The civil engineering course was a course an advanced computer graphics.
Q. Did you ever have any employment during your undergraduate years in which you utilized your civil engineering experiences?
A. My civil engineering experiences?
Q. The things you learned in your civil engineering course.
A. Those things in particular as opposed to other computer related things?
Q. Those things in particular.
A. Yes. I was an instructor in a course in another semester.

Fasman
Q. What course was that?
A. Civil engineering 3.01. I also used that experience in my employment at the IBM Thomas J. Watson Research Center.
Q. Can you please explain what your employment at the IBM Thomas J. Watson Research Center entailed?
A. The Watson center is IBM's headquarters for advanced research projects. I worked there on high intensity computing graphics research.
Q. Did you have any other employment which utilized any other computer skills beyond what you learned in your civil engineering course work?
A. Yes.
Q. What were those?
A. I also worked on two different occasions for the -- what is most recently known as the Nathan Klein Research Center which is part of the New York State Department of Mental Health. It was an advanced research center into mental health drug related research. And I also worked for Princeton University as a user consultant aiding users with any of a wide variety of problems concerning their use of the university's computer systems. I did work for the Yale Law Review setting up a computerized subscription system for them. I did work with what at the time were advanced word processing programs assembling complicated documents.

Q. Is this while you were at Yale?
A. No, that was while I was at Princeton. That may be it.
Q. While at the Nathan Klein Research Center, what computer skills did you use there?
A. My principal work was in turning mathematical models of drug performance and interactions into computer software codes so that theories could be modeled on a computer.
Q. While at the Nathan Klein Research Center, did you ever do any work regarding the construction or maintenance of a network system?

Fasman
A. Yes.
Q. Can you please describe that experience?
A. Part of the work involved taking different computer related componentry and getting them to work in synchrony with one another.
Q. How many computers were networked while you were there at the Nathan Klein Research Center?
A. It was all part of a single computer system but there were different pieces of equipment that had to be made to work together.
Q. While you were at Nathan Klein Research Center, did you ever have to handle any data restoration issues?
A. No.
Q. While you were at the Nathan Klein Research Center, were you involved with formulation of data retention programs or policies?
A. No.
Q. At Princeton you said that you were a user consultant for the school's computer systems?

A. Yes.
Q. What systems were in use at Princeton at that time?
A. The principal system was either an IBM 370 or IBM 390 and it may have switched in the middle which is why I have difficulty recalling.
Q. Were you assisting students in word processing issues?
A. Among other things.
Q. What other things?
A. Anything having to do with computers and Princeton.
Q. Were you assisting students -- first of all, let me ask you, were you only assisting students?
A. No.
Q. Faculty as well?
A. Yes.
Q. Anybody other than faculty and students?
A. Administrators, others with permission to use the university's computer systems.

Page 18

Fasman

Q. In your capacity as a user consultant at Princeton, did you ever assist people in restoration of lost data?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you do?
A. They had data that was lost, I helped them restore it.
Q. How did you do that?
A. It depended upon the particular situation.
Q. Give me an example please.
A. Somebody had a data tape that did not seem responsive to normal commands to retrieve data, I retrieved it for them.
Q. How did you retrieve it?
A. By performing system level functions on the computer system in order to extract the data from -- at a much lower level than the user was capable of doing.
Q. Approximately what percentage of your experience at Princeton as a user consultant was consumed with data restoration?

Page 19

Fasman

A. I couldn't say.
Q. 50 percent?
A. I couldn't say.
Q. You couldn't estimate like was it a high percentage or a low percentage? I mean, there's got to be --
A. What's high and low for this purpose?
Q. Nine calls out of ten, were they data restoration?
A. I've never tried to compute it. I don't know what the percentage would be.
Q. One percent?
A. Whether you say one or you say 90, I've not tried to compute the percentage.
Q. I'm not asking you to compute the percentage, I am asking whether a lot of your calls related to data restoration or if it was an infrequent experience.
MR. BRODY: Objection to form.
A. Then I don't understand what you are asking. You asked me if it was one percent, at least I thought that's what you were asking.

Page 20

Fasman

Q. Did you often have calls requesting assistance in data restoration?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
A. What does often mean in this context?
Q. On a daily basis.
A. I only worked there part time.
Q. On the days that you were working there, were you receiving calls requesting data restoration?
A. On days that I was working there I did receive such calls.
Q. On the daily basis of the days that you worked there, did you receive calls requesting data restoration assistance?
A. Did I receive such a call everyday that I worked there?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Do you recall if within a week's time working as a Princeton user consultant you would receive a call for data restoration?

A. I don't understand the question.

Q. I'm taking the last question and changing it from daily to weekly.

A. Did that happen every week that I was working?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Now I'm changing it to monthly.

A. I don't know.

Q. At Yale, you were talking about your experience at the Law Review setting up a computer subscriber system?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any other experiences with computer systems while you were at Yale?

A. I typed my note on one.

Q. Did you have any experiences involving data restoration while you were at Yale?

A. No.

Fasman

Q. Never lost your note?

A. No.

Q. While you were at Yale, did you take any course work regarding computer systems?

A. No.

Q. During the period of time that you were at Yale, did you have any employment which provided you with any experiences with computer systems?

A. No.

Q. After you graduated Yale, what did you do employment wise?

A. I joined Paul Weiss Rifkin Wharton & Garrison.

Q. As an associate?

A. Yes.

Q. What type of law did you practice?

A. Litigation.

Q. Did your litigation experiences at Paul Weiss provide you with any technical or computer system experience?

A. Yes.

Fasman

Q. Can you please describe that?

A. I worked on a number of patent matters.

Q. How did that provide you with computer related experiences?

A. It did not.

Q. So it was technical related?

A. Yes, ma'am.

Q. While you were at Paul Weiss, did you have any responsibilities with regard to the firm's computer systems?

A. No.

Q. With their networks?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any experiences regarding data restoration while you were at Paul Weiss?

A. I assume you mean electronic data?

Q. Um-hmm.

A. No.

Q. How long were you at Paul Weiss?

A. Five years.

Q. After you left Paul Weiss, what did you do?

Fasman

A. I joined MacAndrews & Forbes.

Q. So that would be in 1992?

A. Yes.

Q. What was your position when you joined MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. Senior counsel.

Q. What were your job responsibilities as senior counsel?

A. To do whatever the company needed me to do.

Q. What did that entail?

A. A wide variety of things.

Q. Please list some of the things that you were asked to do by MacAndrews & Forbes in your capacity as senior counsel.

A. Hundreds of things that I worked on.

Q. Start with one.

A. The collapse of Executive Life Insurance Company.

Q. In your capacity as senior counsel working on the collapse of Executive Life Insurance Company, what were your responsibilities?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020168

Fasman

A. To mitigate the effects of that collapse on companies in which MacAndrew held an interest.
Q. In your role as senior counsel, did you ever represent MacAndrews & Forbes in court?
A. Yes.
Q. Solely or with outside counsel as well?
A. Solely and with outside counsel as well.
Q. In your capacity as senior counsel, did you ever represent Coleman (Parent) in court proceedings?
A. I'm sorry, ask the question again.
Q. In your capacity as senior counsel for MacAndrews & Forbes, did you ever represent Coleman (Parent) in court proceedings?
A. No.
Q. In your capacity as senior counsel, did your job responsibilities include a management of MacAndrews & Forbes computer systems?

Fasman

A. I was not the manager of MacAndrews & Forbes' computer systems, no.
Q. Who was the manager of MacAndrews & Forbes' computer systems?
MR. BRODY: This is during the time period he's senior counsel?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: When he's senior counsel.
A. I wouldn't say that anybody at MacAndrews & Forbes was the manager of computer systems.
Q. How about currently?
A. No.
Q. Currently your job responsibilities do not include management of the computer systems?
A. Correct.
Q. Currently, whose job responsibilities include management of MacAndrews & Forbes' computer systems?
A. I don't think anybody at MacAndrews & Forbes could be said to have management of the computer systems as one of their responsibilities.

Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes use computers?
A. Yes.
Q. What types of computers are used at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Principally personal computers.
Q. Desktops?
A. Yes.
Q. Are laptops used?
A. Sometimes.
Q. Are laptops reserved for people on travel?
A. No.
Q. In what instance is somebody issued a laptop as opposed to a desk top?
A. When they need it.
Q. When would somebody need a laptop versus a desktop if not for travel?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
A. Travel may be a reason why they need a laptop.

Fasman

Q. Would there be any other reasons in which a person would need a laptop in your experience?
A. Yes.
Q. What would those be?
A. Somebody is working in a location that doesn't have a computer in it.
Q. A location out of the office?
A. Sometimes.
Q. In your offices, are you referring to perhaps a conference room that wouldn't have a computer?
A. That could be a situation as well.
Q. Are there any other types of computers which are issued beyond desktops or laptops at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. What do you mean by issued?
Q. Provided to employees.
A. You mean physically handed to employees?
Q. How else would somebody be provided a computer? If you have another way then I'll take that as well.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020169

Fasman

A. A computer can be accessed remotely. One could be provided access to a computer as opposed to being physically handed a box.

Q. And employees of MacAndrews & Forbes are provided external access to a system?

A. Sometimes.

Q. In what circumstances would somebody be provided that access?

A. There are a number of different circumstances.

Q. Could you please list them for me?

A. Certain departments use many computers for certain of their functions. Certain functions are centralized on server computers.

Q. And those functions need to be accessed remotely?

A. Yes.

Q. From within MacAndrews & Forbes' offices or from a site beyond the physical office?

Fasman

A. Both.

Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes issue personal data, PDAs to its employees?

A. No, not generally.

Q. Has it in the past?

A. Not generally.

Q. Ever, has it ever issued a PDA to an employee?

A. I can't recall a situation.

Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes issue Blackberries to its employees?

A. Generally, no.

Q. By employees I'm including senior executives. Does it issue Blackberries to its senior executives?

A. Some of them.

Q. Who at MacAndrews & Forbes have you issued Blackberries to?

A. I don't have a full list.

Q. I will take a partial list.

A. I have one. Michael Borofsky has one. Larry Schwartz has one. Ronald Cohen has one. John Winkel has one. Caroline Orenski has one. I can't think of anyone else.

Q. Does Mr. Gittis have one?

A. I don't know.

Q. Does Mr. Perelman have one?

A. I don't know.

Q. Let me go back to my questions regarding the PDAs. Are PDAs issued by MacAndrews & Forbes to any of its senior executives?

A. I don't know.

Q. Were you issued a PDA by MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. No.

Q. Does Coleman (Parent) have any employees?

A. No.

Q. So Coleman (Parent) doesn't have any computers either, does it?

A. No.

Q. I sort of got off track. I was talking about your job responsibilities when you were senior counsel. I want to jump forward. Are you currently senior counsel at MacAndrews & Forbes?

Fasman

A. No.

Q. What was your position following your job as senior counsel?

A. Vice president law.

Q. When did you become vice president law?

A. January 1, 1998.

Q. Is that your current position?

A. No.

Q. How long were you vice president law?

A. Six years.

Q. So until January 1 of 2004?

A. Yes.

Q. What happened on January 1, 2004?

A. I became senior vice president law.

Q. Who was senior vice president law from the period of 1/1/98 to 1/1/04?

A. At least one person may have held that title and maybe two.

Q. Who was the one that you know held the title?

A. Glenn Dickes.

Fasman

Q. Who may have held the title?
A. Gary Leshko.
Q. Was Glenn Dickes issued a Blackberry by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know whether Gary Leshko was issued a Blackberry?
A. No, he was not.
Q. You are currently senior vice president law?
A. Yes.
Q. Have your responsibilities changed from senior counsel to vice president law? Had they changed?
A. No.
Q. Did they change when you went from vice president law to senior vice president law?
A. No.
Q. So when you were vice president law your job responsibilities still did not include management of a computer system at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Correct.

Fasman

Q. And that stands true today as well?
A. Correct.
Q. When you were senior counsel, did your job responsibilities include a management of MacAndrews & Forbes' network?
A. No.
Q. Did you manage MacAndrews & Forbes' network at all during your period as vice president law?
A. No.
Q. How about today?
A. No.
Q. At any point from the time that you were senior counsel through today, have you been responsible for the management of UNIX servers?
A. We do not have any UNIX servers.
Q. Have you had any responsibility from the time you were senior counsel through today for data storage infrastructure at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I'm sorry, repeat the question.
Q. From the time that you were senior counsel through today, at any point, did you have any responsibility for managing the data storage, electronic data storage at MacAndrews & Forbes?

Fasman

A. No.
Q. Did you have any responsibility specifically with regard to the storage of e-mails at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you please explain -- first of all, during what time period were you responsible for the management of the storage of e-mail?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
A. That wasn't what I said.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Could you please read back the prior two questions ago.
(Record read.)
Q. When did you have responsibility with regard to the storage of e-mail at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I am the principal author of the company's policy regarding the use of e-mails.

Fasman

Q. When did you author the policy regarding the use of e-mail?
A. 1997.
Q. Have you revised the policy since then?
A. No.
Q. Did anybody assist you in authoring the company policy with regard to the use of e-mail?
A. No.
Q. What is the company policy regarding the use of e-mail?
A. I cannot recall it verbatim. I can tell you that it generally suggests that e-mail is company property and it must be used with that in mind, that it cannot be used for an illegal purpose or for a purpose that would be considered offensive, discriminatory, defamatory, harassing. It confirms the company has the right to review e-mails at any time. It suggests that computer storage space is a valuable

Fasman

A. No.
Q. Who would be doing it?
A. Well, policy has a number of different aspects to it so I suppose he might have been responsible for implementing part of it.
Q. What part would he have been responsible for implementing?
A. If there were any complaints regarding use, probably they would at one point or another end up in Ron's hands, such complaints.
Q. What discussions did you have with John Henderson regarding the implementation of the e-mail policy?
A. How to set up the equipment so that the 30 day provision would be implemented in a reasonable fashion.
Q. What's the 30 day provision?
A. The first full paragraph on page 3.
Q. Page 3 being CPH 1433328?
A. No.
Q. Bates number 1433329?

Fasman

A. Yes.
Q. That paragraph reads, "Employees should delete promptly any e-mail messages they send or receive that no longer require action or not necessary to an ongoing project. Employees should audit stored e-mail messages weekly to identify messages that are no longer needed and should be deleted. In addition, the e-mail system will only back-up and preserve messages for a period of 30 days. Accordingly, every 30 days all messages will be purged from the e-mail system. Specific documents requiring longer storage will need to be moved elsewhere."
Is that the 30 day plan that you were referring to?
A. I didn't call it a plan.
Q. What did you call it?
A. I don't know, whatever I said.
Q. Is that what you are referring to when you are referring to a 30 day issue or whatever you called it?
A. Yes.

Fasman

Q. How did Ron Henderson help you with implementing this 30 day purging of e-mail?
A. He took care of it.
MR. BRODY: Ron Henderson? You mean John --
Q. I'm sorry, John Henderson.
A. He took care of it.
Q. Do you know what he did to take care of it?
A. No. Well, specifically or in broad terms? I thought you meant specifically.
Q. I meant specifically but if you know in broad terms then I'm happy to hear that.
A. Yes. He set up our back-up and review system so that materials would be saved for at least 30 days but not necessarily for longer.
Q. Is John Henderson still employed by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. He was never employed by MacAndrews & Forbes.

Fasman

Q. Who was he employed by?
A. I don't know.
Q. Was he employed by one of MacAndrews & Forbes' affiliates?
A. No.
Q. You don't know who he was employed by?
A. I don't even know if he's employed.
Q. How did you come in contact with John Henderson?
A. He runs Access Systems for us.
Q. How does he -- through what company does he run Access Systems?
A. Through Access Systems, that's the company.
Q. You have a program called Access Systems?
A. We have a company called Access Systems.
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form of the question. Go ahead.
Q. Please explain the relationship of Access Systems to MacAndrews & Forbes.

Fasman

A. Access Systems is our outsourced computer consultant provider maintainer.
Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes currently employ the services of Access Systems?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know how long MacAndrews & Forbes has been employing the services of Access Systems?
A. Roughly 10 years.
Q. Is John Henderson currently working with MacAndrews & Forbes through Access Systems?
A. Yes.
Q. Has John Henderson been working with MacAndrews & Forbes through Access Systems through the duration of that 10 years?
A. Yes.
Q. Does anybody else work with Mr. Henderson?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you please tell me their names?

Fasman

MR. BRODY: You mean from Access Systems?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.
A. I'm sorry, can I have the question back again?
Q. I will rephrase the question.
Can you please list the names of Mr. Henderson's colleagues at Access Systems who also work on the MacAndrews & Forbes account?
A. Joe Eger, Nick Roman, Chris Weisinger and another fellow whose name is slipping my mind.
Q. Is Mr. Henderson the project manager or team leader for that group?
A. Yes.
Q. Has Mr. Eger been working on the MacAndrews & Forbes account for the 10 year duration that MacAndrews & Forbes has used Access Systems?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know how long he's been there?
A. No, because that's why I can't answer the previous question.

Fasman

Q. Has he been there for five years?
A. At least.
Q. How long has Nick Roman been working at Access Systems on MacAndrews & Forbes' account?
A. I don't know.
Q. Has he been working for MacAndrews & Forbes for at least five years?
A. Yes.
Q. How about Mr. Weisinger?
A. I would say about four years.
Q. Who at MacAndrews & Forbes interfaces with Access Systems currently?
A. Many people.
Q. Who?
A. Just about everybody in the company that has a computer problem.
Q. They are told to call Access Systems when they have a computer problem?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there a manager at MacAndrews & Forbes or senior executive who is responsible for managing the Access Systems account?

Fasman

A. Yes.
Q. Who is that?
A. Caroline Orenski.
Q. What is her title?
A. I don't know.
Q. Has she been in charge of working, interfacing, being the primary interface with Access Systems during the 10 years you've used them?
A. No.
Q. Who did it before her?
A. Ron Cohen.
Q. And was there anyone prior to Mr. Cohen?
A. No.
Q. So earlier in the deposition when you were commenting that nobody at MAFCO had a job with responsibilities including the management of MAFCO's computer systems, is that because you used the services of Access Systems?

form.
A. That was not my previous testimony.
Q. The record will reflect what the testimony is but I asked you whether or not -- I will ask you again. Whose job responsibilities at MAFCO include the management of MAFCO computer systems?
A. Nobody.
Q. Why not?
A. Because we've outsourced that function.
Q. And you've outsourced that to Access Systems?
A. Yes.
Q. Whose job responsibilities at MAFCO include management of a network system?
A. Nobody.
Q. Is that also because you've outsourced that to Access Systems?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you also outsource data storage infrastructure management to Access

Fasman

Systems?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you also outsource the management and performance of data back-ups to Access Systems?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you also outsource responsibility for data archiving to Access Systems?
A. We do not engage in data archiving.
Q. Do you know why you do not engage in data archiving at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No need.
Q. Were you involved in the decision to forego data archiving?
A. There was no such decision.
Q. Do you also outsource responsibility for data recovery from Access Systems?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. Do you also outsource responsibility for data recovery from Access Systems?

Fasman

A. Yes.
Q. Nobody at MacAndrews & Forbes performs data recovery?
A. I can't say definitively that's never happened.
Q. Have you ever performed data recovery while at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. I've lost a file and figured out another way to get at it.
Q. Have you ever done it beyond -- for your personal use, have you ever performed data recovery for anybody else at the company?
A. My best guess would be yes.
Q. At what point do you determine that somebody within MacAndrews & Forbes will handle something such as data recovery versus calling Access Systems?
A. There's no principal distinction.
Q. Does Access Systems have personnel on-site?
A. Yes.
Q. How many people are on-site?
A. It may vary during the course of a given day, given week, given month.

Fasman

Q. Is there a desk set up for Access Systems at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. Are there two desks set up for Access Systems?
A. There's an office.
Q. Is there always at least one person from Access Systems at the MacAndrews & Forbes office?
A. During business hours, yes.
Q. If the need requires then perhaps another more will come, is that how it works?
A. Sort of.
Q. Do they have a separate office?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
Q. Does Access Systems have a separate office, corporate office beyond the physical office in MacAndrews & Forbes' headquarters?
A. I don't know.
Q. Are you responsible for any

A. No.
Q. Have you ever had to call Access Systems off-site?
A. I have called people with Access Systems who are not on-site.
Q. How do you call them?
A. I have their phone numbers.
Q. So they have phone numbers for phones other than that which is at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. But you don't know if that's for a separate office?
A. No.
Q. Are employees of MacAndrews & Forbes allowed to seek out the assistance of Access Systems unilaterally or do they need to go through yourself or Caroline Orenski or somebody else at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. They do not need to seek out permission, they can just go directly to the Access Systems personnel?

Page 54

A. Correct.
Q. Do you know how you're billed by Access Systems for the services that they perform for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No.
Q. You don't know if it's an hourly rate?
A. I don't know if it's an hourly rate.
Q. Correct me if I'm wrong but you commented that you were not sure how many employees are assigned to MAFCO's account?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you know how many employees are full time at Access Systems?
MR. BRODY: I will interpose an objection. I let this go on pretty far. The purpose of the notice is to enquire about CPH's e-mail retention policies and CPH's ability to delete or restore e-mail. It seems to me the number of employees working for Access Systems has nothing to do with that.

Page 55

Fasman
So you are getting way far beyond the scope of the notice on which Mr. Fasman is being offered as the corporate representative. So I object to the form of the question and direct you to constrain the questions to the things we're here for.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I'm laying the ground work for getting to the e-mail retention and recovery, what not. Are you directing him not to answer?
MR. BRODY: I'm not directing him not to answer. Asking a question how many people are working for Access Systems strikes me as having nothing to do with CPH's e-mail retention policy.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I am laying some ground work for myself but I will move on though.
Q. In preparing for this deposition today, did you communicate with anybody from Access Systems?
A. In preparing for this deposition, no.

Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes employ the services of a different IT contractor prior to Access Systems?
A. No.
Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes have in-house personnel who managed its information technology systems?
A. At any time?
Q. Prior to its contract with Access Systems.
A. No.
Q. Since contracting with Access Systems it has never had an IT person; correct?
A. Correct.

A. No, the last page being the fax cover sheet.
(Discussion off the record.)
Q. I've handed you the amended notice to videotape deposition. Do you recognize this document?
A. Yes.
Q. And you understand that you are here today to testify as a corporate representative regarding e-mail retention policies, practices and procedures from 1997 to the present?
A. Yes.
Q. Regarding the e-mail programs used, the frequency of e-mail back ups? Do you understand that that's what you are here for today?
A. Yes.
Q. And to testify regarding the media used for the storage of current backed up or archived e-mail; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. The identity of any vendors?

Fasman

A. Yes.
Q. And regarding your company's ability to retrieve, restore e-mail?
A. Yes.
Q. Including time, labor, procedure and expense involved; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you first see this document, Exhibit 63?
A. Around the time that it was served.
Q. What did you do to prepare to testify today?
A. My job.
Q. Can you please elaborate?
A. Doing my job allowed me to be in a position to testify as the corporate representative with respect to these topics.
Q. What in your job allowed you to prepare for testimony on the topics listed?
A. I've had more than 12 years with the company dealing with it day-to-day in many different respects, all of those things collectively have prepared me to testify today.

Fasman

Q. Did you meet with anybody to discuss preparations for your testimony today?
A. Yes.
Q. Who did you meet with?
A. Mr. Brody.
Q. Did you meet with anybody other than Mr. Brody?
A. No.
Q. Is Mr. Cohen still employed by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you meet with Mr. Cohen?
A. Ever?
Q. To discuss the topics of today's deposition.
A. No.
Q. Did you review any documents prior to -- in preparation for giving your testimony today?
A. Yes.
Q. What documents did you review?

Fasman

A. Exhibit 63.
Q. The amended notice of videotape deposition?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you review any other documents?
A. No.
Q. Currently does Coleman (Parent) utilize an electronic mail system?
A. The officers and directors of Coleman (Parent) are all employees of MacAndrews & Forbes. I don't know how you put on one hat or take off one hat when an individual is sitting down at a keyboard.
Q. So do the officers and directors of Coleman (Parent) utilize the same e-mail program that is utilized by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. No meaningful distinction can be made in terms of when somebody who has a MacAndrews & Forbes role or Coleman (Parent) role as everybody at Coleman (Parent) does something. I don't know how else to answer the question.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 61

Fasman

Q. So yes, they use the same system that they use when they are working as employees of MacAndrews & Forbes; is that correct?

A. If they were doing something in their capacity as a Coleman (Parent) person they would have to be using the same stuff that they would be using in their capacity as a MacAndrews & Forbes person.

Q. In that vein, I'm going to ask all the questions using MacAndrews & Forbes to avoid any confusion. Is that okay with you?

A. Depends on what the question is.

Q. All right. Well, stop me if you have a question about it but in the meantime I'm going to not distinguish between the two systems.

A. Okay.

Q. Currently does MacAndrews & Forbes utilize an electronic mail system?

A. Yes.

Q. What system is that?

A. Microsoft Exchange. It's

Page 62

Fasman

implemented through the Microsoft Outlook program.

Q. How long has MacAndrews & Forbes used Microsoft Exchange and Outlook?

A. Approximately seven years.

Q. Does everybody employed by MacAndrews & Forbes use that system while at the MacAndrews & Forbes offices?

A. No.

Q. What other systems are used?

A. None.

Q. Who does not use the Microsoft Exchange or Outlook systems?

A. There are numerous employees who have no need for computer access to do their jobs.

Q. So they don't use any e-mail system then?

A. Correct.

Q. So it's safe to say that anybody who's using an e-mail system in their job at MacAndrews & Forbes is using Microsoft Exchange and Outlook?

A. Yes.

Page 63

Fasman

Q. Do all computers have e-mail capabilities?

MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.

Q. Do all desktop computers used by employees at MacAndrews & Forbes have e-mail systems installed on them?

A. I believe so.

Q. Do all of the laptops owned by MacAndrews & Forbes have e-mail systems installed on them?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do employees of MacAndrews & Forbes have the ability to access e-mail from off-site?

A. Yes.

Q. So from home, if they're working from home, they can access the e-mail system?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of anybody at MacAndrews & Forbes who works from home?

A. Yes.

Q. Who are you aware of that works

Page 64

Fasman

from home?

A. Many, many people.

Q. It's a common thing that people work from home? Do you ever work from home?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you access the e-mail system from your house?

A. Yes.

Q. What system was in use at MacAndrews & Forbes, what e-mail system was in use at MacAndrews & Forbes prior to Microsoft Exchange and Outlook?

A. WP Mail.

Q. How long was WP Mail in use?

A. Roughly two or three years.

Q. During the period that WP Mail was used, did everybody who had e-mail services have to use WP Mail?

A. Yes.

Q. Prior to using WP Mail what e-mail system was used at MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. None.

Q. Does the current e-mail system, Microsoft Outlook, reside on a mainframe computer?
A. No.
Q. Where does it reside?
A. On a Compaq Proliant server.
Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes have any Internet or web based e-mail systems?
A. Yes.
Q. What is that?
A. Microsoft Web Outlook.
Q. Is the Compaq Proliant server located at MacAndrews & Forbes' headquarters?
A. What's the headquarters?
Q. At your office.
A. In my office, no.
Q. Not in your physical office, in MacAndrews & Forbes' offices, is the Compaq Proliant server there?
A. Yes.
Q. Was the WP Mail system, was that located on a mainframe computer?
A. No.

Fasman

Q. Was that located on a server?
A. Yes.
Q. What server was that located on?
A. I believe a previous version of the Proliant.
Q. While MacAndrews & Forbes was using WP Mail, did they also use an Internet or web based e-mail system?
A. No.
Q. Does Microsoft Outlook allow for users to archive their e-mail on the hard drives of their computer?
A. Repeat the question please.
(Record read.)
A. No.
Q. I'd like to look again at Exhibit 62 which you stated earlier was the corporate e-mail policy that you authored in 1997.
A. That's not what I testified.
Q. How would you characterize this document?
A. It is the MacAndrews & Forbes holdings, Inc. electronic mail security policy.

Fasman

Q. Is it not the document that you primarily authored?
A. I was the principal author, yes.
Q. If you turn to Bates number 1433329, we were discussing earlier a paragraph regarding a 30 day period after which e-mail messages would be purged from the system. Do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you please explain in your words, your understanding, what that policy provides?
A. It provides that the company has -- it provides for several things. First, it provides that employees should delete e-mails they no longer need or are not necessary or no longer require action. They should audit their e-mails on a routine basis in order to prevent the system from being overloaded with unnecessary e-mails. And it warns employees not to expect that e-mails will routinely be preserved for more than 30 days.

Q. So after 30 days, what happens to the e-mail?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
A. What do you mean the e-mail?
Q. After 30 days, what happens to an employee's e-mail that is on the employee's company, on their system?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
A. The way we've actually implemented this policy is slightly different than what that says.
Q. How has it been implemented? How has this policy been implemented?
A. We engage in a process that removes e-mails progressively from active use in the Outlook system.
Q. What do you mean by it removes e-mails progressively from the Outlook system?
A. For example, an e-mail which is in an employee's in-box after a period of time will be moved to the deleted box.

020179

Fasman

After a further of period of time, messages in the deleted box will be purged.

Q. What is the period of time that must elapse before an e-mail message is moved from an employee in-box to the deleted box?

A. It doesn't quite work that way.

Q. How does it work?

A. Every two weeks, this is generally speaking, every two weeks messages that are more than two weeks old in the in-box are moved to the deleted box. Every two weeks, messages that are more than one month old in the deleted box are purged. Really four weeks. Every two weeks messages that are more than four weeks old are moved to the deleted box -- are purged from the deleted box.

Q. Do employees have access to the deleted box?

A. Yes.

Q. Are employees provided with this policy upon the commencement of their employment?

Fasman

A. Supposed to be.

Q. How do employees learn that it's in fact a two-week period from which an e-mail in the in-box goes to the deleted box and then after a second two-week period it goes from the deleted box to being purged?

MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.

A. Every week when the system performs these clean-up operations, a notice is sent to the user telling them what happened to their e-mails.

Q. Are they provided with a list of the e-mail subject line --

A. No, simply that a number of e-mails were moved from one box to another or purged.

Q. But not identifying specifically which e-mails they were?

A. No.

Q. You said generally speaking this is how it happens. That leads me to believe there's an exception.

Fasman

A. If the worker who is doing the purge is sick, it might be delayed a day, it might be a week with a technical glitch, it doesn't happen. There are various reasons why there might be exceptions here and there.

Q. Are there ever exceptions due to reasons other than employee absence or sickness or technical errors?

A. Yes.

Q. What would those be?

A. Occasionally because of particular work that's being done, particular issues that have arisen, we will suspend the operation for a period of time.

Q. You will suspend the automatic purging after 30 days?

A. Yes, done for individual employees or that can become system wide.

Q. To do that it requires somebody at MacAndrews & Forbes or Access Systems to go in to the system and physically change the settings?

A. Access Systems, yes.

Fasman

Q. If a user, an e-mail user at MacAndrews & Forbes wants to save e-mail, do they have any mechanism by which they can do it?

A. Yes.

Q. How does that happen?

A. They can print it out, they could put it into a saved folder, they could keep sending it to themselves so it refreshes. Probably other ways too.

Q. So the saved folder is sort of a shelter from the automatic purging?

MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.

A. I'm not quite sure what that means.

Q. Do e-mail that have been moved by the user from say their in-box to the saved folder, are those e-mails subject to the automatic purging?

A. No, they are not.

Q. Are they indefinitely saved in that folder?

A. Yes.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 2:46 p.m. We're back on the record.
BY MS. PAULE-CARRES:
Q. Prior to the break we were discussing the e-mail policy whereby e-mail are kept in a user's in-box for two weeks and moved to the deleted box; is that correct?
A. We were discussing the implementation of the policy.
Q. Is that how it's implemented, after two weeks in the in-box it gets moved to the deleted box?
A. Every two weeks, e-mails in the in-box that are more than two weeks old are sent to the deleted items box.
Q. Does the in-box reside on a user's hard drive?

Fasman

A. No.
Q. Where does it reside?
A. On the Compaq server.
Q. So the deleted box also resides then on the server; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. The saved box or folder we called it earlier, does that reside on a user's hard drive?
A. No.
Q. That also is on the server?
A. Yes.
Q. Is the Compaq server separate from MacAndrews & Forbes other network servers?
A. I'm not sure what you mean by that.
Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes have multiple network servers?
A. Yes.
Q. How many does it have?
A. At least eight or nine.
Q. Is there anything on the Compaq server other than e-mail and Microsoft Outlook?

Fasman

A. The Compaq Proliant server that has Microsoft Exchange on it does not have any other function.
Q. How is the Compaq Pro -- how do you spell that by the way?
A. P-R-O-L-I-A-N-T.
Q. How is the Compaq Proliant server backed up?
A. Tape.
Q. Is that a magnetic tape?
A. Yes.
Q. Who backs up the Compaq Proliant server?
A. Access Systems.
Q. How often does Access Systems back-up the Proliant server?
A. Everyday.
Q. So when the Proliant server is backed up, the e-mail system is being backed up?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it a complete daily back-up?

Fasman

A. What do you mean by complete?
Q. Is it the entire system, the entire Microsoft Outlook -- Microsoft Exchange system that's being backed up?
A. Sometimes.
Q. When is it a complete back-up of the Microsoft Exchange program?
A. Once a month.
Q. What is the daily back-up then?
A. For every other day of the month -- every other business day of the month, it backs up all the changes to the system.
Q. The changes to the system which are backed up daily, do they overwrite each other?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
Q. Did you understand my question?
A. The tapes are regularly overwritten.
Q. So MacAndrews & Forbes' back-up today of its Proliant server will overwrite what was saved yesterday?

A. No.
Q. How long will yesterday, the June 20th back-up of the Proliant server be maintained on a back-up tape, on a magnetic tape?
A. Until Friday --
MR. BRODY: You mean January 20, you said June.
Q. I meant January 20. Hopeful thinking, this cold weather. So for one business week it's maintained?
A. No.
Q. Is that how it happens?
A. You asked about January 20th in particular?
Q. Yes.
A. January 20th's will be overwritten on January 23rd.
Q. When will January 21st's back-up be overwritten?
A. January 28.
Q. And January 24th's?
A. January 24th is a Saturday, there will be no back-up.

Fasman
Q. Is it correct to say it will reside on a back-up magnetic tape for five days?
A. No. January 20th's back-up tape will be overwritten on January 23rd, that's three days.
Q. Explain to me how you determine how frequently to overwrite a magnetic tape for a daily as opposed to a monthly back-up?
A. There is a Monday tape, a Tuesday and Friday tape a Wednesday tape and a Thursday tape.
Q. The Monday tape will be overwritten when?
A. The following Monday.
Q. The Tuesday/Friday tape did you say?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that mean it tapes both Tuesday and Friday or it overwrites Tuesday on Friday? What does it mean, the Tuesday/Friday tape?
A. Both of those things you just said. It's used on Tuesdays and Fridays so therefore Tuesday's data will be overwritten on Friday.

Fasman
Q. And Wednesday will be overwritten the following Wednesday?
A. Yes.
Q. And Thursday the following Thursday?
A. Yes.
Q. That's just for the daily back-ups though; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. After a month, explain to me the monthly back-up procedure.
A. There are two monthly back-up tapes. So that a monthly back-up tape will be overwritten every second month.
Q. If the saved folder is on this Proliant server, how does it remain exempt from these back-ups and overwriting?
A. It doesn't.
Q. Than how is it that the saved folder could possibly still be in existence, an e-mail could be there six months later if it were put in a saved folder?

Fasman
A. It remains on the server.
Q. So the server will keep e-mail on it for longer than a period of 30 days?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
A. Not in general.
Q. What circumstances will the server maintain e-mail for longer than 30 days?
A. If it's in a saved folder.
Q. Are there ever instances in which a daily tape is saved for longer than its either weekly or biweekly cycle in the case of a Tuesday/Friday tape?
A. I cannot think of an instance where that has occurred.
Q. Can you explain an instance in which a monthly tape has been saved for longer than it's monthly cycle?
A. I think the same would be in connection with the Arthur Andersen litigation, the oldest monthly tape still

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020182

Fasman

extant was removed from the normal overwriting cycle and saved.

Q. Was that just one tape that was removed from the cycle?

A. Actually, both tapes I think were removed but for this purpose, it's the older one that makes the difference.

Q. Why is that?

A. Because that happened in 2001 and the events in this case took place during 1997 and 1998 so any data that was on the older tape would have been merely replicated on the newer tape. The newer tape wouldn't have had anything else.

Q. Do you know the date at which that back-up tape was created?

MR. BRODY: Which back-up tape?

Q. The Arthur Andersen back-up tape that was removed from the overwriting cycle.

A. I believe the oldest extant tape was either from August or September 2001.

Q. Do you know what program or application is used to perform the back-ups of the Compaq Proliant server?

Fasman

A. It's built into the server.

Q. Does it have a special name?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Has MacAndrews & Forbes ever used optical disks to store its backed up data?

A. No.

Q. Is there a policy or practice of backing up individual user's computers at MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. No.

Q. Is there a practice or policy of saving data off of a user's computer onto the network server at MacAndrews & Forbes?

MR. BRODY: This e-mail data?

MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.

Q. I want to clarify a comment you made earlier, I want to make sure I understood your response. There is no component of the MacAndrews & Forbes e-mail system that resides on a user's hard drive; is there?

A. I believe that the Outlook program itself which retrieves the data from the server relies on an individual's hard drive.

Q. But in terms of the data or messages, none of that resides on an individual's hard drive; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Earlier we were discussing laptop computers. The data created through Microsoft Exchange from a laptop, does any of that reside on the laptop itself, the hard drive?

A. As I explained in response to one of your previous questions, I'm not sure and am inclined to think that's not the case, that all of the laptops even have Outlook on them. So I can't really answer your question.

Q. How about we were discussing Blackberries earlier in the deposition. Can you please explain to me how data and messages on a Blackberry are saved?

A. The whole way a Blackberry works is that it is constantly being synchronized with the e-mail system, in this case

Fasman

Outlook. So that every time a Blackberry device is placed in its cradle, it is synchronized with the larger e-mail system.

Q. So are all Blackberry messages created or received by MacAndrews & Forbes employees residing ultimately on the Compaq Proliant server?

A. Not necessarily.

Q. Where would they be?

A. They might be nowhere.

Q. Explain that please.

A. If I send an e-mail message from my Blackberry and delete that e-mail message before I synchronize the Blackberry in its cradle, the message will have been gone from the Blackberry already so there's nothing to synchronize and the message will not be saved on the exchange server.

Q. If the Blackberry has been synced, synchronized, then does the e-mail data reside on the Compaq Proliant server?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever in your experience at MAFCO recovered previously deleted data

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

3810270

Fasman

from a Blackberry?
A. No.
Q. Are you aware of whether it can be done?
A. I have no knowledge of its ability to be done.
Q. Can you also save e-mail data on the Blackberry itself?
A. Yes.
Q. So once you synchronize the Blackberry the data can be in two places?
A. Oh, I see. That wasn't what I meant. Now I understand your question. I guess it's theoretically possible but I don't know that anybody at MacAndrews & Forbes has tried to use that capability.
Q. Can you explain to me what you were responding to before?
A. You can save a message on the Blackberry and when you synchronize the Blackberry to the system it would save it on the system but if the normal purging took it off the system, it would also be removed from the Blackberry in the same -- at the next time it was synchronized. So in that case it wouldn't be sort of two independent lives to the e-mail which is what I thought you were getting at.

Q. So once it's synchronized onto the system, if it is purged from the system, are you saying it's also purged from your Blackberry the next time it's synchronized?
A. Correct. The Blackberry doesn't have a deleted box.
Q. Does it have a saved box?
A. Yes, but that's what I was referring to before.
Q. So if it gets purged off the system it could still reside on the saved file on the Blackberry?
A. No.
Q. It would be synchronized as a saved file on the system?
A. Correct. That's why I was hesitating because I think there's theoretically another way to do it with a Blackberry but I don't think anybody at

Fasman

MacAndrews & Forbes has ever utilized that capability.
Q. What's that way?
A. Not having done it myself, I'm not familiar enough with the protocol to be --
Q. How did you hear of this third way?
A. It's just playing with the Blackberry, it's something that I've noticed seems to be a function with the Blackberry but I've never utilized it myself so I don't know exactly how it works.
Q. What do you think you need to do --
A. I'd have to sit with the Blackberry and fiddle with the buttons and see if I could actually make it happen.
Q. It's not a test. You don't have to get 100 percent or anything. There's no right or wrong answer. Can you generally explain to me what you are referring to?
A. I just tried to the best of my ability to do so. I can't offer any further information on the subject.

Fasman

Q. Where are the back-up tapes, the daily back-up tapes maintained or stored?
A. At our offices.
Q. Are the weekly back-up tapes also stored at your offices?
A. There are no weekly --
Q. I'm sorry, I meant to say monthly.
A. Yes.
Q. Prior to using Microsoft Exchange you said that MacAndrews & Forbes used WP Mail?
A. Yes.
Q. How was WP Mail backed up?
A. It was closer to the implementation that this policy suggests. There was tapes made more occasionally and anything more than 30 days old wasn't saved.
Q. Did WP Mail also have some equivalent to Microsoft Exchange's saved folder?

0201814

Page 89

Fasman
A. Not to the best of my recollection.
Q. So there was no way for a user of WP Mail to keep an electronic copy of an e-mail document?
A. Not to the best of my knowledge. I suppose one could go to a manual for the programming and try to figure that out definitively but --
Q. In 1997 was that the year that you switched from WP Mail to Microsoft Exchange?
A. It was late '96, early '97, something like that.
Q. So every 30 days e-mail older than 30 days would be purged from the system; is that correct?
A. I'm sorry --
MR. BRODY: Under what system?
Q. Under the WP Mail system, every 30 days, give or take system -- the --
A. As I say, it was closer to the way this policy is written but it's been too long and precise details are no longer

Page 90

Fasman
at the top of my memory.
Q. Were daily back-ups performed of the WP Mail system?
A. I'm not aware that they were.
Q. Do you know of somebody else who might know that?
A. Not as I sit here today.
Q. Are you aware of the existence of any magnetic back-up tapes relating to WP Mail?
A. No.
MR. BRODY: From its prior use?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.
A. No.
Q. Let me clarify my question. Not in existence today, at the time you used WP Mail, were you aware of the existence of these magnetic tapes?
A. Oh, I don't understand that question at all. I'm sorry.
Q. The confusion when I was thinking about the question, I'm distinguishing not current tapes that exist with WP Mail data on them, but back in 1997 and prior when you used WP Mail, were you aware of the existence of magnetic back-up tapes?

Page 91

Fasman
A. First of all, as I said, we switched over sometime late '96, early '97 so I can't -- I have trouble with the predicate of your question to the extent you are asking about '97.
Q. I said '97 and periods before when you were using WP Mail.
A. I don't know that there was a '97 period when we were using WP Mail. Second, I said before that there were back-up tapes done. I've already testified to that.
Q. I thought you said that you purged every 30 days?
A. No, I said that the way the saving of the system worked, when things were no longer saved, back-up or otherwise, more than 30 days.
Q. So how were they backed up? That was my next question.
A. Tape.
Q. Daily?
A. As I said before, I don't believe

Page 92

Fasman
so.
Q. How frequently were they backed up to tape?
A. I think -- I guess it must have been -- yes, I guess it must have been daily.
Q. When using the WP Mail system, was there -- were the daily tapes kept then for a period of -- a duration of the month or were they overwritten?
THE WITNESS: I thought our case related to '97, '98?
MR. BRODY: It did. The notice relates to current or former.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I'm covering my bases -- he's unsure of the date, I'm going to make sure I got everything covered.
MR. BRODY: He's sure the date predates any discovery of Morgan Stanley and MAFCO about this deal by a year or maybe more so it doesn't have any relevance to the issue in the case.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: If you could

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020195

Fasman

answer a couple more questions we could be done with this.

A. What was the question?

Q. Whether or not --

A. -- very old stuff.

Q. Whether or not there was an overwrite procedure.

A. Well, nothing was saved for more than a month or so. So to the extent there were back-up tapes, they would have been overwritten.

Q. In your experiences at MAFCO, have you ever tried to reconstruct overwritten back-up tapes using ghost files or fragments?

A. No.

Q. Ever?

A. Correct.

Q. In relation to the Microsoft Exchange back-up tapes, we've established they are overwritten every month. How many times is a tape overwritten before its unusable any more?

A. I don't think there's a general rule. I think that -- I think some tapes seem to last longer than others. And I don't believe we put them to the test so I don't really have any experience with how long one could make it last.

Fasman

Q. What does MacAndrews & Forbes or Access Systems do with tapes when they retire them and stop using them for overwriting?

A. They're purged and trashed.

Q. Thrown away?

A. Um-hmm.

Q. But you delete the data first?

A. I believe so.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:16 p.m. This completes tape number 1 of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Steven Fasman.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:18 p.m. This is tape number 2 of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Steven Fasman.

BY MS. PAULE-CARRES:

Fasman

Q. Has MacAndrews & Forbes e-mail network systems ever resided on a distributed network?

A. No.

Q. Has MacAndrews & Forbes ever utilized the Legato network or product?

A. No.

Q. Has MacAndrews & Forbes ever used the Veritas Net back-up product?

A. No.

Q. Has MacAndrews & Forbes ever utilized any product other than the one that's internal to the Proliant server that we discussed earlier for backing up its e-mail data?

A. No.

Q. Has MacAndrews & Forbes ever relied on APL Mail?

A. No.

Q. Has it ever relied on EMC Technologies?

MR. BRODY: For e-mail purposes?

MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.

A. No.

Fasman

Q. We discussed earlier how certain back-up tapes are not overwritten given certain circumstances such as the Andersen litigation. Do you recall that?

A. Yes.

Q. Where are those tapes stored?

MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.

A. At our offices.

Q. Who is in charge of keeping these tapes?

A. MacAndrews & Forbes and Access Systems.

Q. Is there an individual who is responsible for maintaining those tapes?

A. I wouldn't say it was any one individual's responsibility, no.

Q. Is it several individuals' responsibility?

A. Yes.

Q. Who would that be?

A. The personnel at Access Systems and the personnel at MacAndrews & Forbes with oversight for Access Systems.

020186

Page 97

Fasman

Q. That personnel at MacAndrews & Forbes with oversight for Access Systems was Ron Cohen?
A. And Caroline Orenski.
Q. Is there anyone else?
A. No. I guess in some sense their supervisors but.
Q. Who are their supervisors?
A. I don't know.
Q. In your experience, has MacAndrews & Forbes ever had to recover data from back-up tapes?
A. Yes.
Q. Who at MacAndrews & Forbes performs --
A. I'm sorry, are we limited to e-mail here?
MR. BRODY: Yes.
Q. Yes.
A. I'm not aware of that ever needing to happen.
Q. Are you aware of it ever happening?
A. No.

Page 98

Fasman

Q. So in your experience MacAndrews & Forbes has never recovered backed up e-mail?
A. I didn't say that.
Q. In your experience, has MacAndrews & Forbes ever recovered backed up e-mail data?
A. Yes.
Q. Who at MacAndrews & Forbes performs the data recovery for those backed up e-mails?
A. Nobody.
Q. Who at Access Systems performed the data recovery for backed up e-mail?
A. Nick Roman.
Q. Anybody else?
A. I believe he had assistance but I don't know.
Q. Who at MacAndrews & Forbes instructed Nick Roman on the parameters of the recovery of back-up e-mail?
A. I did.
Q. When did you do this?
A. In -- sometime in the last few months.

Page 99

Fasman

Q. What data did you have Mr. Roman recover?
MR. BRODY: This is e-mail?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.
A. I had him recover the e-mail that was on the August or September 2001 back-up tape.
Q. You said you had him do this a few months ago?
A. Back-up tapes I guess. Yes. Within the last few months.
Q. Are you aware of any other back-up tapes aside from the August and September 2001 back-up tapes that have been preserved from overwriting?
A. I said August or September.
Q. Well, any other than the August or September.
A. I'm sorry, what was the question again?
Q. Are you aware of any back-up tapes other than the August or September 2001 tapes which have been preserved from overwriting?

Page 100

Fasman

A. Yes. As I said, a second set was also preserved at the same time for the same purpose. That is during the Arthur Andersen litigation.
Q. What months would they have covered?
A. November or December, something like that. October, November. Something in that range.
Q. Any other instances in which back-up tapes were preserved from overwriting?
A. It may have happened more recently in connection with another litigation.
Q. Would that litigation have been related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?
A. No.
Q. Other than the August or September and the October or November or December back-up tapes related to the Arthur Andersen case, are you aware of any other back-up tapes that pertained to data relating to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman that have been preserved?

020187

Fasman

A. E-mail data?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Can you please describe for me how the data recovery from these back-up tapes occurs?
A. How it occurred in the one instance I'm aware?
Q. Um-hmm.
A. Nick loaded the tapes on an old server and restored the tapes on to the server.
Q. What was the purpose of using an old server?
A. Because if I stored them onto the current server I would have lost all the current e-mails.
Q. Once it was loaded on the old server, is it fully usable data as if it were on my computer? Do you understand my question?

Fasman

A. I think the question you mean to ask as opposed to the question you asked the answer is yes but let me explain. As you phrased the question the answer is no because the server is not linked to anything.
Q. So I can't send or receive anything beyond what's there?
A. Correct. But the usability of the data as it sits on the server once restored is theoretically -- at least identical barring any glitches in either the backing up or in the restoring -- theoretically identical to the situation it was on the date of back-up. That's the whole point of the back-up.
Q. For what purpose did you have Mr. Roman restore those tapes?
A. To verify the completeness of the document production in this case.
Q. Did you also have him restore the tape from October, November or December?
A. No.
Q. Why did you not have him restore that tape?

Fasman

A. I think as I mentioned earlier, since the relevant period is '97, '98 there's nothing that the October, November, December tape, whatever it was, would have had that wouldn't have already been on the August, September tape.
Q. Wouldn't it have had data from October, November or December?
A. But the relevant events here are '97, '98.
Q. That was a 2001 tape?
A. Correct.
Q. But theoretically there could have been communications about the events in '97 or '98 in 2001, could there not?
A. Theoretically but highly, highly unlikely. Not so as to justify the effort involved.
Q. Did you find any information on the August or September tape that was responsive and necessary to complete your document production?
A. No.

Fasman

Q. Is it a cost intensive process to restore these back-up tapes?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
Q. How expensive is it -- what is the cost to MAFCO to restore a back-up tape?
A. Well, in this case we happen to have the server lying around. So that eased the cost on this one instance. It took a fair amount of time for Nick and/or his team to put it together. It took a lot of paper to printout the e-mails so that I could review them and it took a great deal of my time to review them.
Q. How much time did it take Nick and his team to restore the back-up tape?
A. I received the last of the printouts maybe a week or so, maybe as much as two weeks after my initial request.
Q. Are you aware whether they began the restoration procedure immediately upon receiving your request?
A. I'm sure I could answer yes to promptly. Immediately, I don't know

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020188

Page 105

Fasman
whether they had a cup of coffee first or something.
Q. I guess my question is is it your testimony that it took two business weeks for them to restore completely a back-up tape?
A. Somewhere between one and two business weeks. And they do work nights and weekends so I would say one or two weeks.
Q. Once the tape was restored on the server, how did you identify which documents, e-mail documents you were interested in reviewing?
A. By keyword searching.
Q. Is there any manner in which to retrieve back-up tapes other than by date? Do you ever back-up an individual user's files?
MR. BRODY: E-mail files?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.
A. No.
Q. No, it hasn't happened or no, you are not aware of it having happened?

Page 106

Fasman
A. To the best of my knowledge, it has not happened.
Q. I guess in that vein, has it ever occurred where a search for certain e-mail documents, a subject matter search say, has been done and that universe of documents has been saved separately?
A. Yes.
Q. When did that happen?
A. In connection with two or three different litigations I can think of.
Q. Any of those litigations related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?
A. No.
Q. Is the entire universe of MacAndrews & Forbes e-mail system residing on that Proliant server?
MR. BRODY: Currently?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Currently.
A. Yes.
Q. Has it ever been split to multiple servers?
A. Yes. There was a period of time when we used two servers, consolidated to

Page 107

Fasman
one.
Q. At what point did you consolidate to one server?
A. 2001.
Q. When you consolidated, did MAFCO purge the data on the other two servers?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. What servers were they? Were they also Compaq Proliant servers?
A. Yes.
Q. Both of them?
A. Yes. We consolidated from two to one.
Q. What was the underlying rationale for having two servers prior to 2001?
A. I don't know for sure.
Q. Are you familiar with how data was stored between the two servers?
A. Some users were on one server, the rest of the users were on the other server.
Q. How frequently were users moved from one server to the other and vice versa?

Page 108

Fasman
A. Never.
Q. Have you ever searched for --
A. I take that back. I think one person may have switched from one department to another department and therefore that person may have switched.
Q. Are you familiar with the concepts of having partitions within a server?
A. This is not a partition server. It's a single server.
Q. Currently, how many magnetic back-up tapes does MAFCO have in its possession?
MR. BRODY: For e-mail?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes. For e-mail.
Q. I'm sorry, the predicate to all my questions is related to e-mail.
A. Well, there would be the two from August, September 2001, the two from October, November, December, whenever that is, 2001. There would be the six currently in use. And I'm not aware of any others.

020189

Page 109

Fasman

Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes have a disaster recovery plan with regard to electronic mail?

A. It depends on how big the disaster is. I mean the whole point of back-up tapes is disaster recovery. If the building is destroyed we don't have off-site duplication if that's what you are getting at.

Q. I'm getting at whether you have any form of recovery beyond the magnetic back-up tapes.

A. I have this vague recollection that our tapes are -- while stored on site, are stored within a safe or secure kind of thing so that they should survive a normal fire or something like that.

Q. Is there a recovery plan in the event that the server malfunctions, not a fire that destroys the physical tapes but an internal malfunction within the system?

A. That's what the back-up tapes are for. Precisely what the back-up tapes are for.

Page 110

Fasman

Q. So only the back-up tapes then? Okay, that's fine.

Again, with the disaster recovery, that would be something that Access Systems would handle?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell me what Mr. Cohen's responsibilities are as head of facilities?

A. He currently is assigned to work principally with one of our operating companies so he doesn't have much in the way of day-to-day duties relating to the holding company any more.

Q. Does anybody else have any responsibilities regarding facilities or administration for MAFCO?

A. Ms. Orenski.

Q. What are Ms. Orenski's responsibilities with regard to the facilities at MacAndrews & Forbes?

A. Overall oversight.

Q. Has she had any prior technical or computer experience?

A. I don't believe so.

Page 111

Fasman

Q. But she is the primary interface with Access Systems; correct?

A. You will have to be more precise.

Q. Other than a user calling up Access Systems and saying I'm having a problem with my computer, who goes to Access Systems with a large project?

A. It would depend.

Q. Is there no clearing house so that there's like a bird's eye overview of their management of projects?

A. No.

Q. Who supervises the back-ups that Access Systems is performing?

A. There's nobody who supervises the back-ups per se. Ms. Orenski is generally charged with the relationship with Access Systems so if I had a problem with the back-ups and I wanted to talk to somebody within MacAndrews & Forbes to complain, I guess I would complain to Ms. Orenski but she's not there, she doesn't call up and say did you do the back-up okay tonight.

Q. Regarding the back-ups that are performed on the e-mail server, is there an index of what would be on the tapes or is it purely by date?

Page 112

Fasman

A. Purely by date.

Q. Does MAFCO have a written policy regarding the retention of documents?

MR. BRODY: We're going way beyond the scope.

MS. PAULE-CARRES: Regarding the retention of e-mail documents.

MR. BRODY: Okay.

A. Not really. The closest thing would be the paragraph to which we've referred several times in Exhibit 62.

Q. Is there any understood or oral policy at MAFCO regarding retention of e-mails?

A. No.

Q. Are MAFCO employees provided training regarding the retention of their e-mail documents?

A. No.

Q. Are MAFCO employees informed at any point during a training period that in

020190

Page 113

Fasman

the event of a litigation they must not destroy any of their electronic mail?

A. MacAndrews & Forbes doesn't have any kind of training program.

Q. Are employees ever told that in the event of a litigation, they are not to delete e-mail related to that litigation?

A. Yes.

Q. At what point are they told that?

A. When there's a litigation for which they need to retain their e-mails.

Q. How are they told?

A. I could tell them.

Q. You just walk up to them and tell them?

A. It's not a big company. It's pretty easy to do.

Q. How many employees are employed by MAFCO?

A. Including custodial staff and such, a hundred.

Q. Excluding custodial staff, I'm limiting it to people who are accessing the e-mail system, how many employees are there?

Page 114

Fasman

A. 40. Maybe as many as 50. Roughly speaking. I'm not trying to count up.

Q. Have you personally ever told an employee of MAFCO to be sure not to delete e-mail as it may be related to a litigation?

A. Yes.

Q. In what circumstances did you do that?

MR. BRODY: Are we now asking about other cases? If so I'm going to object. It's beyond the scope.

Q. In what circumstances did you do that with regard to cases related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?

A. I came into the picture after the fact. I was not involved in that effort.

Q. So you never told anybody during -- there was never an instance in which you told an employee of MAFCO not to delete e-mail as it may relate to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?

Page 115

Fasman

MR. BRODY: You are asking him personally?

MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.

A. That predated me.

Q. Is there anybody else at MAFCO who would communicate with an employee of MAFCO that they should not destroy e-mail as a result of impending litigation?

MR. BRODY: I will object to the form of the question. I also object as going beyond the scope of the notice in this case.

Q. You can still answer the question.

A. In my document production deposition, Ms. Brown went through this subject with me and we discussed memos from Eric Golden and requests to retain documents and such. So that's all covered there.

Q. I'm handing you what has been previously marked as Exhibit 2. It is CPH Bates number 2000000 through 2000007. Mr. Fasman, do you recognize this document?

A. Yes.

Page 116

Fasman

Q. Is this the document, what you were referring to as a memo from Mr. Golden?

A. This is one of the ones I was referring to and this particular one was actually from Mr. Schwartz.

Q. Oh, that's correct. But it's one of the ones you were referring to?

A. Yes.

Q. Where in this memo do you see an instruction to employees not to destroy e-mail?

A. All of these individuals were experienced with litigations and document productions previously and they are aware that when a document request production comes through you are not to destroy anything relating. So by transmitting the document production request, he was transmitting an instruction not to destroy anything relating to the subject of the request.

Q. So its implicit in this memo even though it's not explicitly stated?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

161020

Fasman

A. Yes.
Q. Was a written instruction to preserve e-mail documents ever issued to MAFCO employees at the inception of CPH's case against Morgan Stanley?
MR. BRODY: You done?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Um-hmm.
MR. BRODY: I object to that. It's beyond the scope of this 30(b)6 notice and it was covered in prior testimony. And exhibits. I know there's been prior testimony on precisely this.
Q. You can still answer the question.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I disagree. It does go to the retention policies whether or not notices are issued, that is part of a policy and, you know, he's here to speak to that matter.
MR. BRODY: He's also already spoken to what was done in this case four months ago.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I'm asking if an instruction was provided to MAFCO employees not to destroy documents.

Fasman

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:52 p.m. We're going off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 3:57 p.m. We're back on the record.
BY MS. PAULE-CARRES:
Q. Before the break, we were discussing whether or not MacAndrews & Forbes has a written policy for the retention of documents. Now I want to ask you whether MacAndrews & Forbes has a written policy regarding the destruction of documents.
MR. BRODY: Objection. Beyond the scope of this deposition which relates to e-mails.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I already have said that the underlying predicate for all my questions is e-mail.
MR. BRODY: Written policy about e-mails.
A. The only policy concerning e-mails is the policy which was marked as part of

Fasman

Exhibit 62.
Q. So there's no written policy provided to employees at MacAndrews & Forbes that discusses retention or destruction of e-mail in the event of a litigation; is that correct?
A. Exhibit 62.
Q. Where in Exhibit 62 does it discuss the procedure that a MacAndrews & Forbes employee is supposed to follow with regard to his or her e-mail retention or destruction in event of a litigation?
A. "The company reserves the right to access, review copy and delete any message sent received or stored on e-mail. E-mail system may not be used to engage in any communications that are in violation of the company's corporate policies." One of our policies is not to violate the law. "Employees should delete promptly any e-mail messages they send or receive that no longer require action or are not necessary to an ongoing project." Litigation is by definition an ongoing project. As long as there is litigation, employees are not to delete e-mails.

Q. Let me stop you there and ask you a particular question on that particular phrase. Are employees of MAFCO instructed at any point in time that in the event of a litigation they are to take the e-mail from their in-box and move it to the stored file so that it does not -- it is not subject to the automatic 30 day purge?
A. No. That's hardly the only way to make sure that the e-mails related to litigation are available.
Q. How else are they made available electronically?
A. Why does it have to be electronic?
Q. Other than printing out an e-mail, how else is it available to the employee?
A. We've already discussed two ways. One can take care of that centrally by the server, that's a third way and, actually, that's several different ways because the

201020

Page 121

Fasman
server provides a number of different means.
Q. The employee can't do that though, can they? The individual MAFCO employee cannot control the server, can they?
A. They can ask that things be done with the server.
Q. Like what?
A. Like I called up and asked for a restore to be made on the server.
Q. Will an individual employee's request to not delete e-mail from the server be responded to?
A. Sure.
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form of the question.
A. Sure.
Q. So it's your testimony today that the three ways that documents can be preserved pursuant to this Exhibit 62 is by printing them out, is that correct, that's one?
A. That is a way.

Page 122

Fasman
Q. By putting them into the saved file?
A. That's another way.
Q. Or by calling up -- would they call up Access Systems and say don't overwrite the tape this week because I have data on it that needs to be saved?
A. Access Systems, that is a third way.
Q. If Access Systems --
A. We're not done. There are lots of other ways too.
Q. Tell me.
A. One can cut and paste e-mails, Microsoft products are generally interoperable. One could save an e-mail into a word document or some other Microsoft product. In fact, one could do it into a word perfect document and other word processing programs too. They could be sent to an alternate system for saving.
Q. What would that system be?
A. Any place you wanted. You could send them to outside counsel for example.

Page 123

Fasman
Q. Any other ways?
A. I'm sure. Just off the top of my head, thinking about it for two seconds, I came up with seven different ways. I'm sure there are more.
Q. How are MAFCO's word processing programs, the data contained within them backed up?
MR. BRODY: Objection. Beyond the scope.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: It's not if people are cutting and pasting e-mails and putting them into word processing files.
MR. BRODY: The foundational predicate is missing from your question so I guess if that's where you are going, I would object for lack of foundation but, yes, it is beyond the scope --
MS. PAULE-CARRES: No, it's not if that's one of the ways that e-mail are retained at MacAndrews & Forbes, then it's not beyond the scope of an e-mail

Page 124

Fasman
retention and preservation deposition.
A. There's no testimony to that effect.
MR. BRODY: There's no foundation.
Q. You can go ahead and answer the question. We can argue about it later.
DI MR. BRODY: No, I'm instructing him not to answer. You haven't established the foundation. Now we're using a boot strap to get into the area that's far beyond the scope of this examination.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: You are going to instruct not to answer?
MR. BRODY: Unless you lay some foundation --
Q. Is it your understanding that anybody has ever taken an e-mail and copied it into a word processing file in order to save it?
A. No.
Q. You also commented earlier that part of the policy -- give me a moment, I want to get the wording correct.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020193

Fasman

A. Shall I pull out the exhibit?
Q. The company reserves right to access, view, copy and delete any messages sent. In your experience, have you ever reviewed e-mail that has been on the server prior to its being overwritten to insure that data relevant to litigation is not destroyed?
A. Yes.
Q. You have. In what instances have you done that?
A. In litigation unrelated to this matter.
Q. Did you review the server data prior to overwriting to insure that data related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman was not destroyed?
A. That was all taken care of before I joined the matter.
Q. Who took care of that?
A. I don't know precisely who had what roles. It was before I joined the matter.

Fasman

Q. Who potentially could have had the role to do that at that time?
MR. BRODY: What's that?
Q. Review e-mail to make sure that it's not destroyed in light of pending litigation.
MR. BRODY: This is going beyond the scope of the notice.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I disagree.
MR. BRODY: Well, it's -- are you asking him -- what you are asking is what was done to produce documents in this case. That was the subject of the last notice of deposition on which he testified for a day.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: We're talking about document retention and destruction and he commented earlier that one of the ways is the company has a right to access, review and copy and delete messages sent, received or stored on e-mail. That is the policy that we're discussing. I'm asking whether that policy is fulfilled.

Fasman

That's part of the purpose of this deposition.
MR. BRODY: How is that -- I don't see how that is -- you've taken a notice which asks about e-mail retention policies, practices and procedures and are trying to use that to morph into --
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I'm talking about e-mail practices, the practices of retaining and destroying documents. Whether or not they reviewed them before they destroyed them is perfectly within the parameters of the dep notice.
MR. BRODY: I disagree but there's already been prior testimony from Mr. Fasman in the prior deposition about what precisely and in this one about what was precisely done with the e-mails in this case.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: We have not discussed what I'm talking about. What I'm questioning him on now. Are you instructing him not to answer?

Fasman

MR. BRODY: Let's have the question back again.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: My question to Mr. Fasman is:
Q. Who performed the responsibilities that you took over? You said you were not responsible for that oversight for the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman period, who was at that time?
MR. BRODY: I will let you answer that one question. We'll do it on a question-by-question basis.
A. I replaced Eric Golden in the role of in-house management litigation in the Sunbeam litigation. I replaced Sina Toussi and Sina Toussi replaced Eric Golden.
Q. Are you aware of whether Sina Toussi reviewed the back-up tape of relevant e-mail data that pertained to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman before those back-up tapes were destroyed?
A. The back-up tapes have not been destroyed.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

20019h

Page 129

Fasman
Q. Is MAFCO in possession of back-up tapes dating from 1997?
A. No.
Q. Where are the back-up tapes?
A. Which back-up tapes are we talking about? The 2001 back-up tapes?
Q. I'm talking about back-up tapes that were created in 1997 on a daily and monthly basis.
A. There wasn't litigation at that time.
Q. 1998.
A. There was no litigation requiring production of e-mails at that time.
Q. In 1998 MAFCO received a document request; did it not?
A. And we objected to producing anything electronic in that document request.
Q. But the issue was before MAFCO, was it not, that electronic documents were being sought?
A. No, we told everybody we weren't going to do that.

Page 130

Fasman
Q. Regardless of whether you told them that you weren't going to do it, they were requested, were they not?
A. I don't think so. We made it clear we weren't going to do it and nobody ever had a problem with that.
Q. Were they requested initially?
A. I don't know. We just clarified that we weren't going to do that. Nobody said boo about that so I guess it really wasn't.
Q. So it's your position here today, your testimony today that there was no issue as to the preservation of e-mail because MAFCO took the position that electronic documents would not be produced; is that correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question. Beyond the scope.
Q. You can still answer the question.
A. There was no issue of preserving e-mail documents until the Arthur Andersen litigation.
Q. That was not my question.

Page 131

Fasman
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Could you please repeat my question.
A. That's what I understood your question to be.
(Record read.)
Q. I will add to that, at the end of 1998.
A. I think I answered your question.
MR. BRODY: Yes, asked and answered.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Could you please read back his answer.
(Record read.)
Q. Is it your testimony today that from 1998 until the Arthur Andersen litigation in 2001, MAFCO consistently overwrote its back-up of its e-mail server?
A. I'm not sure what you mean by consistently.
Q. Repeatedly, regularly, routinely.
A. We followed our normal procedures regarding the use of back-up tapes.
Q. And the normal procedures entailed purging and deletion of e-mail from 1998 until the inception of the Andersen litigation in 2001; correct?

Page 132

Fasman
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form of the question.
A. There was a progressive process which did involve in part the purging of old and unneeded e-mails, yes.
Q. My question was did you from 1998 until the inception of the Andersen litigation on a monthly basis, I'm ignoring the daily stuff now, on a monthly basis overwrite e-mail back-up tapes?
A. I think it was every other month.
Q. From 1998 until the inception of the Andersen litigation, did MAFCO save any e-mail back-up tapes that related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?
A. There are no e-mail back-up tapes relating to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman.
Q. Did they save any back-up tapes which contained data which related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman from 1998 until the inception of the Andersen litigation?

A. Not beyond their normal retention period.
Q. Which we've already discussed?
A. Yes.
Q. In your experiences at MAFCO, if a dispute is drawn over the potential production of electronic data such as e-mail, would you suspend the back-up tape overwriting?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form of the question. Can you ask that not as a question asking for expert witness testimony which is how it was phrased? Just ask what the policy and practice is.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: That's what I intended it to be.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. My personal practice as a litigator is to treat each litigation individually under its individual circumstances so I don't know how to answer that question.

Fasman
Q. Just for clarification, the 1998 litigation that we were discussing earlier, do you recall the name of it?
A. I'm sorry, which litigation?
MR. BRODY: I object to the form. I'm not sure we were.
Q. When we were discussing a 1998 litigation that had ensued, thereby -- in which you had a dispute over the production of e-mail, electronic documents, what litigation was that?
A. We never had a dispute.
Q. MAFCO said they were not going to produce electronic documents and nobody disputed it?
A. Correct.
Q. What litigation was that?
MR. BRODY: Asking for the name of the case?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.
A. I don't know -- In Re: Sunbeam's Securities Litigation or this one is entitled Goldstein versus Langerman but I know there was some kind of consolidation.

Fasman
It was the shareholder cases. Bondholder cases. There was a whole set of cases. We were sort of a peripheral player in those cases.
Q. On October 20, 1998, a litigation ensued, was filed, Shallal versus a series of defendants one of which was MacAndrews & Forbes.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 64, complaint to the Shallal case, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I'm marking the complaint to the Shallal case as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 64.
MR. BRODY: Wait a second. There's a Kirkland & Ellis memo on the back --
MS. PAULE-CARRES: It's not related to this case.
MR. BRODY: I'd love to keep it anyway. You need this too.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Not really.
Q. On October 20, when this case was filed naming MacAndrews & Forbes a defendant, are you aware of any notices given to MacAndrews & Forbes employees advising them to retain their e-mail, not to destroy them?

Fasman
A. My recollection is that we were dismissed out of the Shallal versus Ellison case very quickly so there was never a need to worry about any obligation we might have as a party in that case.
Q. So it's your testimony that you were dismissed within the 30-day period of which a back-up tape was overwritten?
A. I don't remember the precise timing but it was very quickly.
Q. Did anybody receive any notice not to --
A. To produce documents?
Q. -- not to destroy e-mail data that could be related to the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?
A. Not because the Shallal case where we were not a party very quickly.
Q. I'm just asking yes or no, once you received the Shallal complaint, was anybody given notice at MacAndrews & Forbes

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020196

Page 137

Fasman
not to destroy e-mail that could be relevant to the case?
A. If I recall correctly, I have gone and studied the Shallal complaint again, a reading of the Shallal complaint suggested that the only individual who was really at issue in the Shallal case was Howard Gittis and at the time Howard Gittis did not use e-mail so it was not an issue.
Q. So is it your testimony today that nobody at MacAndrews & Forbes was provided notice that they should not destroy e-mail that could potentially relate to Shallal and the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?
A. It is my testimony that no notice was sent to a null set of people, that is I didn't send a notice to nobody because there was nobody to send a notice to.
Q. So nobody got the notice?
A. There was nobody to send the notice to. So nobody got no notice to nobody for nothing. It doesn't make sense to say nobody got a notice because you have to send a notice to somebody or decide not to send a notice to somebody. There was nobody to send a notice to.

Page 138

Fasman
Q. So I'm guessing that MAFCO also did not suspend its automatic purge of e-mail as a result of the filing of the Shallal case?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
A. There would have been no reason to, it wouldn't make any sense.
Q. Similarly, did MacAndrews & Forbes save any back-up tapes that were produced subsequent to the filing of the Shallal case in anticipation that there could potentially be documents relevant to Shallal or the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman on the back-up tape?
A. On a theoretical possibility that has no basis in reality, no, nothing was done like that.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 65, complaint captioned Deutscher against the Coleman Company, marked for

Page 139

Fasman
identification, as of this date.)
Q. I've just handed you what has been marked as Morgan Stanley's Exhibit 65. It is a complaint captioned Deutscher against a series of defendants including the Coleman company. This complaint -- first of all, are you familiar with when this complaint was filed?
A. No.
Q. Obviously the file stamp is blurry and illegible. I believe it was filed in 1999. Following the filing of that complaint, did MAFCO issue any notices to its employees advising them to preserve e-mail that related to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman or potentially to this complaint?
A. I'm sorry, what does this complaint have to do with MacAndrews & Forbes?
Q. It relates to the Coleman company. So I'm asking in its relationship to the Coleman company, did MacAndrews & Forbes --

Page 140

Fasman
A. If somebody sued every time somebody sticks a mascara brush in their eye, is MacAndrews & Forbes supposed to save documents? It doesn't compute. I don't understand the fact that the Coleman company is a defendant has to do with MacAndrews & Forbes. How do I even know about this case when it's filed? I just don't understand the question. I don't understand what the first half of your question has to do with the second half of your question.
Q. Can you explain to me the relationship between the Coleman company and MacAndrews & Forbes prior to Sunbeam's acquisition?
A. At the time of the filing of this complaint?
Q. Prior to Sunbeam's acquisition.
A. We owned an equity interest in the company.
Q. Following Sunbeam's acquisition, MacAndrews & Forbes had no further interest in the Coleman company; correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0201697

Page 141

Fasman

A. Well, we owned a minority passive interest in Sunbeam which owned a majority of the Coleman company.
Q. So based on that relationship, did --
A. Being a passive investor in a company that owns another company.
Q. All you have to do is answer yes or no.
A. I'm just trying to answer the question, that's all.
Q. Based on that relationship, did MacAndrews & Forbes issue any notices to its employees to preserve any potentially relevant e-mail relevant to the Sunbeam acquisition of the Coleman company?
A. I still don't understand. Again, what does -- just because we have this passive ownership interest, what does that have to do with this complaint and something that MacAndrews & Forbes would do? Are you assuming that we know about this complaint?
Q. Yes.

Page 142

Fasman

A. Why are you assuming that? Because I don't know when we learned about this complaint.
Q. Well, if you don't know you don't know and that's all you have to say.
A. I'm trying to understand the question. I'm having trouble computing the question because you are asking about a case in which MacAndrews & Forbes wasn't even a party so I'm trying to figure out what it is that you are asking.
Q. I'm asking whether MacAndrews & Forbes issued a notice to its employees to preserve documents that were related to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman after the filing of this case. If you didn't know about the filing of this case, that's all you need to tell me.
A. I don't know when we learned about this case.
Q. Did you ever learn about this case until today?
A. Me personally?
Q. Yes.

Page 143

Fasman

A. This particular one is not familiar to me.
Q. Are you familiar with the Prescott Group litigation?
A. That name means nothing to me.
(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 66, complaint encaptioned Shallal against MacAndrews & Forbes, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. You've just been handed Morgan Stanley Exhibit 66 which is a complaint, a derivative complaint encaptioned Shallal against a series of defendants including MacAndrews & Forbes Holding, Inc. This complaint was filed on April 4, 2000. Subsequent to the filing of Exhibit 66, did MacAndrews & Forbes issue notices to any of its employees advising those employees not to destroy or delete e-mail in light of this pending litigation?
A. That's your representation as to when it was filed?
Q. If you look at page 47 of the complaint, it's the signature page, it has a date line.

Page 144

Fasman

A. I see that. But that's when it was dated, that's not necessarily when it was filed.
Q. Fair point. At some point on or around April 4th -- if you look at the last page of the document, it's dated April 6th, that's the civil cover sheet. So I'll use that date then. On or about April 6th, did MacAndrews & Forbes issue notice to its employees to preserve e-mail, not to destroy e-mail in light of this complaint?
MR. BRODY: Meaning April 6, 2000?
A. Why do you think it was filed April 6, 2000?
Q. The civil cover sheet has a date in the bottom left-hand corner.
A. That can be filled out any time.
Q. I'm not going to debate the date. On or about April 6th did MacAndrews & Forbes --
A. There's a built-in predicate to your question which I want to understand if

020198

Fasman
I'm going to answer it. The built-in predicate to your question is that this was filed on that date and, therefore, some obligation commenced. If it was not filed on that date then whatever your predicate is doesn't make any sense. So I'd like to understand why it is you think that about this document so I can appreciate the document and I can appreciate your question. If that's not what your question is asking I'm happy to try again but I don't understand your question.
Q. I'm thinking it's April 6 because it's -- for office use only, the attorneys did not fill out the civil cover sheet portion of that sheet --
A. Why do you say that?
Q. It says under the date, for office use only, signed by Ferguson, --
A. It says underneath, the bottom line, proceed, amount, applying, judge, magistrate judge.
Q. I'm going to remove the date restriction in my question. At any point subsequent to learning of the Shallal litigation filed at some point in spring or later of 2000, did MacAndrews & Forbes issue a notice to its employees to preserve e-mail, not to destroy e-mail in light of the Shallal complaint?

Page 146

A. At some point after the filing of the Shallal complaint there was a notice sent around, as there had been earlier, about preserving documents. But since I don't know when the Shallal complaint was filed, I can't tie it to the Shallal complaint. There was the '98 document that we've already marked as Exhibit 2 and there were other documents that were marked and discussed at length in my prior deposition. But I can't tie to a specific date based on your vague recollections which, I'm sorry to say, they don't seem all that well-grounded in fact as to what exactly the timing is of this particular complaint so I can't tie them altogether.
Q. Do you recall issuing a notice with regard to the Shallal complaint

Page 147

Fasman
requesting that MacAndrews & Forbes employees cease destroying or deleting e-mail?
A. I was not involved in the subject matter at that time.
Q. Do you recall issuing such a notice at any point prior to spring of 2000?
A. I was not involved in the Sunbeam matters prior to that time.
Q. Did you discuss with anyone the Sunbeam matters in preparation for your deposition today, people who would have been involved in the preservation or destruction of documents prior to your coming on to the scene?
A. I'm sorry, I understood that to be two different questions. I don't know what you are asking.
Q. Did you discuss matters of document retention or destruction of e-mail that could possibly be related to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman prior to your being involved in the case with either Eric

Page 148

Fasman
Golden who you testified preceded you --
A. I was asked to preserve my own documents.
Q. By Mr. Golden?
A. Yes.
Q. In regards to what case?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did it pertain to Sunbeam?
A. Yes.
Q. Was anybody else asked to retain their documents?
A. I believe so.
Q. Do you know who?
A. I believe it wasn't restricted to me. I know he had a general program of going to people who might have documents relating to Sunbeam and Coleman and asking them and I was just one on a list.
Q. It was e-mail as well; correct?
A. It was everything.
MR. BRODY: E-mail being the only subject of this deposition.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Exactly.
Q. At what point did your involvement

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020199

Page 149

Fasman
begin in the Sunbeam matter?
MR. BRODY: In what regard?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: He keeps saying, "I wasn't involved in Sunbeam at that point, I wasn't involved in Sunbeam, I have no knowledge," so I'm asking at what point --
A. I was asked to produce documents as I said before.
Q. I want to know at what point you became the person in control of the documents.
A. Late 2002 or late 2003. Something like that.
Q. When you were told by Mr. Golden not to destroy your e-mail, what did you do?
A. I was told by Mr. Golden to give him whatever I had. So if I had had e-mail, I would have given copies of whatever e-mails I had and then he would have had them.
Q. You would have given him hard copies?

Page 150

Fasman
A. Probably. But I didn't have any so it wasn't an issue.
Q. You did not have any hard copy e-mails to provide to him?
A. That related to Sunbeam or Coleman, no.
Q. He told you to give him everything you had. Did he also tell you to save your electronic e-mail?
A. If I'd given him a hard copy than I would have been saving the electronic e-mail.
MR. BRODY: You mean save it in electronic form?
A. Saving it is saving it. What difference does it make what form it is?
Q. So your answer is no?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
A. He wasn't -- he wanted what I had.
Q. In hard copy?
A. There was no discussion one way or the other.
Q. So it's possible that if you gave

Page 151

Fasman
him the hard copy the e-mail could still be destroyed?
A. Anything is possible.
Q. Did he ask you to both give him the hard copy and save the electronic version?
A. This is a theoretical question. I didn't have any e-mail.
Q. But he didn't -- it's not a theoretical. He didn't know you had e-mail. Did he ask you to give him the hard copy and save an electronic version?
A. He asked me to give him what I had.
Q. You commented that you were aware of a notice that went out to MAFCO employees to preserve documents related to the Shallal litigation --
A. I testified that I am aware.
Q. Are you aware --
A. No, no -- that's not what I testified to. I'm sorry. I misunderstood and I interrupted you in the middle of your question which is why I didn't understand.

Page 152

Fasman
I apologize. Do you want to start again?
Q. Are you aware of a notice that went out to MAFCO employees advising them to preserve e-mail in light of the Shallal litigation?
A. That wasn't the question you asked me last time.
Q. That's what I am asking you now.
A. There was an e-mail -- there was a memo that went out asking people to preserve e-mail subsequent to the Shallal litigation. I don't recall the e-mail referencing any particular litigation. So I can't say whether or not it was in light of the Shallal litigation. I certainly wouldn't think so because, again, this Shallal litigation, like the previous litigation, was dismissed as to MacAndrews & Forbes very quickly. So I don't know why that would have been done but whether or not it was done through the memo that I'm recalling I cannot say because it didn't reference a particular litigation.
Q. Are you aware of whether or not

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 153

Fasman
this memo that you are recalling was produced to Morgan Stanley?
A. I am aware that it was.
Q. You are. Do you recall the date of the memo?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall who sent the memo?
A. I believe Eric Golden.
Q. Who succeeded Eric Golden?
A. Sina Toussi but for a very brief period.
Q. Do you know at what point he took over Mr. Golden's responsibilities?
A. I think it was a matter of months prior to my taking them over.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Why don't we take a five minute break.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 442 p.m. we're going off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: The time is 4:53 p.m. we're back on the record.
BY MS. PAULE-CARRES:
Q. Before we broke we were

Page 154

discussing the Shallal litigation. I believe you told me that at some point, you don't recall if it was with regard to Shallal or not, Mr. Golden issued a notice to MAFCO employees to preserve documents. Do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall the substance of the memo?
A. Preserve documents.
Q. Any documents?
A. Relating to Sunbeam.
Q. Did that include e-mail?
A. Yes.
Q. So it did say to preserve e-mail?
A. Yes.
Q. Did it say to preserve electronic versions?
A. It was not that specific.
Q. From your experience, were MacAndrews & Forbes employees given notice to preserve both hard copies and electronic versions of e-mails?
A. In my experience, we're rarely

Page 155

Fasman
that specific.
Q. With regard to the Shallal litigation, are you aware as to whether or not the 30 day purge function attributed to the Microsoft Exchange system was disabled as it pertained to Sunbeam, documents relating to Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman?
A. As I said before, my recollection is that this Shallal versus Ellison case, like the previous Shallal versus Ellison case, was dismissed very quickly as against MacAndrews & Forbes so this was not an issue.
Q. So no, that automatic purge was not disabled?
A. Well, there was a saving of all the e-mails in the system as of August or September 2001. Since we can't seem to pin down exactly when this was filed, I don't know whether it was done within the 30 days following Shallal -- the filing of Shallal or not.
Q. The tapes you have are from

Page 156

Fasman
August and September of 2001; correct?
A. August or September.
Q. Assuming that Shallal was filed at some point in April of 2000 for the time being, those tapes from August and September of 2001 would not have the content that tapes from April of 2000 would have on them; is that correct?
MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
A. Relevant to Sunbeam?
Q. Um-hmm.
A. I have no reason to think they wouldn't or, stated affirmatively, I have every reason to believe they would.
Q. Wouldn't the Sunbeam materials have been purged?
A. Correct. So that the tapes from 2000 would be identical to the tapes of 2001, that is neither would have anything. Because relevant events were in 1998 and everything was long gone by then unless somebody had saved it in which case it would still be there.

Q. In October of 1998, when the first Shallal case had been filed, that would have been in the relevant time period in which you might have had Sunbeam and Coleman acquisition related documents, is that not correct?

A. No.

Q. You don't think so?

MR. BRODY: Objection to the form. Go ahead.

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. Why not?

A. Because the deal closed in March and October -- March is the third month, October is the 10th month, that's seven months later. In our normal procedures any e-mails from March would have been long gone by October.

Q. When did you personally learn of these accounting problems at Sunbeam?

DI MR. BRODY: Objection to the form of the question. Beyond the scope. Not even close to the scope. Hearing no defense, I guess I will instruct him not to answer?

MS. PAULE-CARRES: He can still answer it.

MR. BRODY: He can answer it, he can also answer stuff that goes way beyond the scope.

MS. PAULE-CARRES: We can argue it later. If it's an objection to the scope, that's not a form, we can argue it to the judge later.

MR. BRODY: But you have this witness here as a corporate representative on narrowly defined topics. That's the scope of the examination today. That's what he is permitted to talk about.

MS. PAULE-CARRES: And you are --

MR. BRODY: Unless you can tell me why it has anything to do with anything we're here for, yes.

MS. PAULE-CARRES: It has to do with the preservation of documents at MAFCO and at what point in time they learned or should have learned that they should have been preserving. That's wholly within the scope and we can debate it until kingdom come, that's why we have a judge, so he can answer them now or he can answer them later.

Page 159

Fasman

MR. BRODY: I think he can -- you can argue he should answer them later but I will instruct -- we've been here for hours. Now you are asking him nothing -- you know what he did, you know what the procedures were, you know what the practices were, if you want to argue that they should have done something differently, you have to establish that they should have done something differently with a different witness. That's beyond the scope of this examination.

MS. PAULE-CARRES: So you are instructing him not to answer?

MR. BRODY: That question I am, yes.

Q. Are you going to heed your

Page 160

counsel's instruction?

A. Yes.

(Morgan Stanley Exhibit 67, complaint Coleman (Parent) Holdings filed against Andersen June 8, 2001, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. You've just been handed what's been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 67. It is the complaint that Coleman (Parent) Holdings filed against Andersen on June 8, 2001. Prior to filing this complaint, did MacAndrews & Forbes issue a notice to its employees to preserve e-mail that could potentially be related to this case and the Sunbeam acquisition of Coleman?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that issued in written form?

A. Yes.

Q. Who issued that notice?

A. Barry Schwartz.

Q. And that notice is what has been labeled Exhibit 2? That's a question not a statement.

A. Yes.
Q. Were the people, Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Maher, Mr. Engleman, Mr. Slotkin and Mr. Nesbitt also instructed to preserve electronic versions of any documentation that they may have?
A. I'm not sure what you mean by also.
Q. Your prior testimony regarding this document was that this memo dated November 2, 1998 which in fact pertained to a case different from the Arthur Andersen case, was implicitly stating that people should retain their documents, not destroy documents. I'm asking whether people also received an instruction to retain electronic documents.
A. Again, I don't understand what you mean by also. They were instructed to retain documents. All documents.
Q. Did anyone ever question whether or not it was paper and electronic?
MR. BRODY: You are talking about e-mails again?

Fasman

MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes.
A. No.
Q. This letter is with regards to Goldstein v. Langerman?
MR. BRODY: Exhibit 2?
MS. PAULE-CARRES: Yes. Exhibit 2.
Q. Are you aware of a document that was submitted to MacAndrews & Forbes employees that pertained to the Coleman versus Arthur Andersen action?
A. That specifically related to that action?
Q. Yes.
A. Because by that point many documents had already been collected and preserved.
Q. I'm talking about specifically related to that action.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know whether that letter was produced to Morgan Stanley?
A. Yes.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I'm making a request that you double check and make sure these letters have been produced to Morgan Stanley. Mr. Fasman has now testified to two letters that have been --

MR. BRODY: Is that what you are referring to?
THE WITNESS: That's one.
MR. BRODY: Exhibit 5 is one such example.
THE WITNESS: Exhibit 6 as well.
MR. BRODY: Exhibit 6 would be another example. They have been produced and marked.
A. I testified about them. By me.
Q. After the decision to file the Andersen complaint, did MacAndrews & Forbes suspend the 30 day auto purge function on the Microsoft Outlook and Exchange system?
A. Yes.
Q. It did?
A. Yes.
Q. Who arranged for that suspension to occur?

Fasman

A. Eric Golden.
Q. How long did MacAndrews & Forbes suspend the auto purge function of Microsoft Exchange?
A. From the day he issued the instruction until today.
Q. So from the date -- do you know what day he issued the instruction?
A. Sometime in October or November of 2001.
Q. But the complaint was filed in June 2001.
A. Yes.
Q. He issued the instruction four months later?
A. As I said, lots of documents had already been collected in an exercise of an abundance of caution based on the breadth of the Arthur Andersen requests just to make sure there was nothing left out through all the previous document collection and production efforts. A supplemental request went out to preserve electronic versions of the e-mails.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020203

Fasman

Q. But the auto purge function wasn't suspended until fall of 2001?

A. Yes.

Q. So if I were to look at a back-up tape today, it would have e-mail on it from fall of 2001 to the present date?

A. No.

Q. Can you explain to me how the auto purge function has been disabled yet I will not be able to access e-mail from that date forward?

A. We preserved -- we continue to preserve the back-up tapes relating to August or September 2001 even today. Under any circumstances if we were to restart our systems, those tapes would be purged because they are too old. But we continue to preserve them. We've been preserving them since September -- August or September of 2001 when they were collected.

Q. I'm confused. You are saving back-up tapes, the monthly back-up tapes from August or September of 2001 until today?

Fasman

A. Right.

Q. So you have 12 back-up tapes from 2002 in storage; is that what you are saying?

A. No.

Q. You just said that you are saving back-up tapes since 2001 forward; right?

A. Yes.

Q. What do you mean by you're saving the back-up tapes from fall of 2001 to today?

A. I'm saying we haven't overwritten them or thrown them away.

Q. So your testimony is that you have one back-up tape for every month in 2002, one back-up tape for every month in 2003?

A. That's not what I said.

Q. If they are not being overwritten and you are not throwing them away, then they must be stored somewhere; isn't that correct?

A. Now you've used pronouns all over the place. I don't know what you mean by them.

Q. Back-up tapes from 2001, fall of 2001 until today.

A. The back-up tapes from the fall of 2001 have been preserved until today.

Q. So how many back-up tapes is that?

A. Two.

Q. Okay. I see. So you are not saving back-up tapes from 2000 through today, you have two back-up tapes dating from 2001 that you have saved?

A. Through today.

Q. I don't understand what you mean by through today.

A. I'm saving -- I'm continuing to save them.

Q. But you don't have back-up tapes from 2001 to today for every month during that period, you are just saving those two?

A. I never said that I did.

Q. Okay. Now I'm asking you what I started asking you about was the auto purge function. The auto purge you said was disabled in fall of 2001.

A. Correct.

Q. So you disabled the system --

A. We pulled those -- you mean, you make it sound like some robotic mechanical system. We took a set of back-up tapes that normally would have been overwritten in our normal systems and put them to the side. If I reinstated our systems, I put them back in the cue and they would get overwritten. But I've suspended it from -- MacAndrews & Forbes has suspended it from the fall of 2001 through today.

Q. But nobody physically went into the system, the server's system and said after 30 days don't delete them, wait 180 days or 360 days, whatever, nobody changed that parameters?

A. There's no need because I already have the copy from August of 2001.

Q. As of the filing of the Coleman (Parent) complaint against Morgan Stanley, when it was decided to file that complaint, did MacAndrews & Forbes issue any notices to its employees informing them not to delete any e-mail that could be potentially related to the action?

A. Didn't we just cover this?
Q. Different case.
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. CPH versus Morgan Stanley.
A. I'm sorry. I got it. What was the question?
Q. Upon the decision to file that case, did MacAndrews & Forbes issue any notices to employees to save any e-mails in either hard copy or electronic form that could be related to the litigation?
A. No. We'd already done it.
Q. So are you saying there could be no more relevant documents because it had already been done?
A. Right.
Q. Same thing with the automatic purge and making back-up tapes and what not, you didn't do it because it had already been done?
A. Right.

Fasman
Q. Do you know what the storage size in megabytes is for your back-up tapes?
A. No.
Q. I can't remember if I asked you this earlier in the day. Has MacAndrews & Forbes ever attempted to restore data using ghost files or fragments?
A. You asked and as I answered then, no.
Q. Do you know what operating systems are in use by MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. For e-mail?
Q. Yes.
A. Microsoft Exchange.
Q. Right. Sorry.
Are you aware -- we discussed Blackberries and PDAs earlier and we discussed the synchronizing factor specifically for the PDAs. With regard to the device themselves not synchronized, do you have any idea how long that machine will retain data?

Fasman
A. Until the battery runs out.
MS. PAULE-CARRES: I think I'm finished.
MR. BRODY: Okay. I have no questions.

INTRODUCTION

The Court should reject Morgan Stanley's proposed findings because it is inappropriate to find these facts for purposes of trial on a piecemeal basis at this preliminary stage, as they are immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion. Morgan Stanley abuses the summary judgment procedure here by seeking what amounts to a massive untimely request for admissions after discovery has closed. Nearly half of Morgan Stanley's proposed findings of fact are not even cited in Morgan Stanley's summary judgment brief. Adopting these selectively chosen proposed findings, plucked out of context, would distort the summary judgment function, confuse the issues at trial, mislead the jury, and impede an orderly trial process. Usurping the jury's role by adopting these proposed findings would undermine, not further, the purposes of Rule 1.510(d). Therefore, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's extraordinarily broad request for pretrial fact-finding.

CPH'S RESPONSE TO MORGAN STANLEY'S PROPOSED FINDINGS OF FACT

A. Morgan Stanley's Request for Pretrial Findings of Fact Is an Abuse of the Summary Judgment Rule.

Rule 1.510(d) of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure authorizes trial courts to enter findings of fact at the summary judgment phase of a case only when five conditions are met:

- the court's decision on the summary judgment motion must not end "the whole case," Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.510(d);
- the findings must involve "material" facts, id.;
- the material facts must "exist without substantial controversy," id.;
- it must be "practicable" for the court to separate those material, uncontroverted facts from controverted ones, id. (emphasis added); and

020212

- those material, uncontroverted facts must "be admissible in evidence" at trial, Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.510(e).

Not only do Morgan Stanley's 332 proposed findings of fact fail these tests, but Morgan Stanley's entire pleading ignores the very purpose for establishing this rule — to promote judicial economy. Morgan Stanley is not simply asking the Court to enter findings of uncontroverted facts that the Court might reach as it decides (and denies) the summary judgment motion. Rather, Morgan Stanley wants the Court to enter 332 discrete factual findings ranging across the entire subject matter of the case, and far beyond. Such an untethered fact-finding procedure bears no relationship to the purposes of the summary judgment rule. See Mendenhall v. Barber-Greene Co., 531 F. Supp. 947, 948 (N.D. Ill. 1981) (explaining that the rule "is not an independent provision permitting the singling out of limited issues on which the Court's advice may be obtained"). The main effect of granting Morgan Stanley's request would be to disrupt Plaintiff's presentation of its case in chief, forcing it to put witnesses on the stand while attempting to skirt areas that have already been deemed "established" by the Court. Rule 1.510(d) was not designed to subvert the ordinary order of proof at trial, and this Court should decline Morgan Stanley's invitation to misuse the Rule that way.

Even a cursory glance at the 332 paragraphs of fact findings that Morgan Stanley has proposed demonstrates the impracticability, indeed the futility, of trying to craft a Rule 1.510(d) order here. The Rule instructs courts to distinguish "material facts [that] exist without substantial controversy" from facts that are immaterial or that "are actually and in good faith controverted" — but only if making those distinctions at the summary judgment phase is "practicable." Fla. R. Civ. P. 1.510(d) (emphasis added). Here, the task Morgan Stanley asks the Court to perform is anything but practicable.

As stated above, perhaps the most obvious sign of Morgan Stanley's abuse of the summary judgment rule is the fact that Morgan Stanley does not even bother to cite nearly half of its proposed findings of fact anywhere in its summary judgment brief. Indeed, three whole sections of Morgan Stanley's proposed findings (Parts IV, XVII, and XX) do not contain a single paragraph cited in Morgan Stanley's summary judgment brief, and three other sections (Parts II, VIII, and IX) each contain only one paragraph cited in the brief. In one stretch, Morgan Stanley rattles on for 26 straight paragraphs (¶¶ 136 to 161, inclusive) without saying anything cited in its summary judgment brief.

020213

Of the 175 proposed findings that are cited in Morgan Stanley's brief, most are plainly inappropriate for pretrial judicial fact-finding under Rule 1.510(d). The first 31 of those 175 cited paragraphs (scattered among Paragraphs 1 to 60) inappropriately attempt to support the proposition that Plaintiff is a sophisticated company. The next 8 cited paragraphs, recounting early contacts between Dunlap and Perelman, are most notable for their melodramatic heading: "Perelman Meets Dunlap and Sees the 'Future.'" Indeed, many of Morgan Stanley's headings and subheadings (which were not numbered as proposed findings) read like the chapter titles in a dime-store novel, as they distort the "facts" that follow the heading by making sweeping and often inaccurate generalizations.

Once Morgan Stanley's document finally exhausts its introductory material and reaches the core chronological narrative, focused primarily on the events of early 1998, the remaining paragraphs cited in Morgan Stanley's brief suffer from a bevy of defects. For example, at least 16 of those paragraphs merely quote a snippet from a deposition transcript, and at least four do the same for a snippet of a document. See, e.g., Morgan Stanley's Proposed Findings ¶ 110 (quoting document), id. ¶ 256 (quoting deposition transcript). But those transcripts and documents speak for themselves. Plucking isolated lines out of context and presenting them to the jury as freestanding findings, with the Court's imprimatur — rather than allowing witnesses to testify about them, to be subjected to cross-examination in the courtroom, and to be evaluated by jurors — would do nothing but create chaos during the ordinary order of proofs. At least another 21 of the proposed findings cited in Morgan Stanley's brief merely describe one witness' failure to recollect certain facts. See, e.g., Morgan Stanley's Proposed Findings ¶ 212 (witness "testified that he was not aware of . . ."), id. ¶ 221 (witness "did not know of . . ."), id. ¶ 225-29 (witness "could not recall any . . ."). Again, this sort of fact, taken in isolation, is hardly material to the pending motion — much less helpful to the efficient progress of the litigation.

Once these and other clearly defective proposed findings are set aside, we are left with only a few dozen material facts contained in Morgan Stanley's proposed findings. But as explained in detail below, each of these remaining proposed findings is heavily controverted, or cannot practicably be determined at this stage of the proceedings, or both.

B. CPH's Objection Applicable To All Proposed Findings.

CPH respectfully submits that the Court should reject each and every proposed finding of fact on the basis of the following Objection (hereinafter referred to as the "Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings"), which is incorporated by reference into CPH's response to each paragraph:

> The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is inappropriate to find these facts for purposes of trial on a piecemeal basis at this preliminary stage, as they are immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion. Indeed, Morgan Stanley abuses the summary judgment procedure here, by seeking what amounts to an untimely request for admission after discovery has closed. Moreover, adopting this selectively chosen proposed finding, plucked out of context, would distort the summary judgment function, confuse the issues at trial, mislead the jury, and impede an orderly trial process. Usurping the jury's role by adopting this proposed finding would undermine, not further, the purposes of Rule 1.510(d). For a detailed exposition of the facts that are material to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, see CPH's brief opposing that motion, which is incorporated herein.

C. CPH's Paragraph-By-Paragraph Response to Morgan Stanley's Proposed Findings of Fact (Repeating, But Not Adopting, Morgan Stanley's Headings).

The following paragraph-by-paragraph response to Morgan Stanley's proposed findings shows that each proposed finding is immaterial to the pending summary judgment motion, is based on evidence that is inadmissible, is substantially controverted, or would be impracticable for the Court to resolve at this stage of the proceedings. For each paragraph, Morgan Stanley's proposed finding is reproduced in boldface, followed by CPH's response in regular type. For the convenience of the Court, CPH has repeated Morgan Stanley's headings, but CPH does not agree with or adopt them.

I. The Plaintiff And The Holding Companies Controlled By Ronald O. Perelman

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

In this heading and throughout the proposed findings, Morgan Stanley uses the term "Perelman" to have a variety of meanings in addition to the individual Ronald O. Perelman, such as shorthand for one or more companies owned directly or indirectly, wholly or in part, by Mr. Ronald O. Perelman, or for individuals working for MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. Indeed, Morgan Stanley improperly seeks to ignore corporate formalities and pierce the corporate veil without any basis or support in the record by phrasing many of its proposed findings in terms of "Perelman" rather than proper corporate entities. Because Morgan Stanley does not use the term "Perelman" in a consistent or predictable manner, and because Morgan Stanley frequently uses "Perelman" synonymously to mean CPH, other companies, or other individuals, all of Morgan Stanley's proposed findings referencing "Perelman" should be rejected.

A. Ronald O. Perelman

1. Ronald O. Perelman is an individual residing in New York, New York. He holds an MBA from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. He is a sophisticated businessman who owns and controls hundreds of companies through a complex series of holding companies.

CPH admits that Ronald O. Perelman resides in New York and that he received an MBA from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania.

The proposed finding is unsupported insofar as it asserts that Perelman owns and controls hundreds of operating companies, which he does not. In fact, Perelman testified that he owns seven operating companies. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 49-50).[1] In addition, the proposed finding labels Mr. Perelman as "a sophisticated businessman" without articulating how Morgan Stanley defines or uses that term. In using this emotionally charged term, Morgan Stanley fails to indicate whether Morgan Stanley is using it colloquially, or as a term of art under Florida law, or as a term of art under New York law, or in some other way. Likewise, the proposed finding characterizes the structure of Mr. Perelman's business as a "complex series of holding companies" without explaining what Morgan Stanley means.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's General Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

[1] "CPH App." refers to the 12-volume Appendix accompanying CPH's summary judgment brief, filed on December 23, and "CPH Supp. App." refers to the Supplemental Appendix accompanying this response.

2. Perelman, through his 100 percent ownership of his holding companies, owned over 82 percent of the common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman") before the merger with Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam").

CPH admits that Perelman was the ultimate indirect owner of over 82% of the common stock of Coleman before that stock was acquired by Sunbeam. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

B. The Holding Companies Controlled by Perelman

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

3. The top company in Perelman's holding company structure is MAFCO Holdings Inc. Perelman is the sole shareholder of MAFCO Holdings Inc.

CPH admits that Perelman is the sole shareholder of MAFCO Holdings Inc. and that MAFCO Holdings Inc. is a holding company. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

4. MAFCO Holdings Inc. owned 100 percent of the common stock of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("MAFCO"), the next holding company in Perelman's structure.

CPH admits that MAFCO Holdings Inc. owned 100 percent of the common stock of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

5. Howard Gittis is the vice-chairman of the board and chief administrative officer of MAFCO. He testified that Perelman's holding company structure eventually splits into lines of holding companies for each operating company, including Coleman. As Gittis described the business:

> A. Once you go down below MacAndrews & Forbes Group, each of the operating businesses go off into a series of companies, so that you don't mix the candy money with the beer money.
> That is, Coleman stays in its own line, no cross collateral, no obligation for any debt of, say, Revlon, which has its own line.
> And then the banks, which had their own line.
> And then the cigar company, when that was there, had its own line.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

C. The Coleman Co., Inc. Holding Company Structure

6. The top holding company within the Coleman structure was Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CPH"), the plaintiff in this action. CPH is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business at 35 E. 62nd Street, New York, New York. Perelman and Gittis were the two directors of CPH at the time of the merger transaction with Sunbeam.

CPH admits that it is a Delaware corporation, that CPH's current principal place of business is 35 E. 62nd Street, New York, New York, and that Perelman and Gittis were the two directors of CPH at the time of the merger transaction with Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and incorrect insofar as it implies that CPH's principal place of business was in New York at the time of the transaction. At the time of Sunbeam's acquisition of CPH's interest in Coleman, CPH's principal place of business was 5900 North Andrews Avenue, Fort Lauderdale, Florida. CPH Supp. App. 184 (Schwartz Dep. at 55-56); CPH Supp. App. 185 (MS Ex. 244 at 5).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

7. CLN Holdings Inc., formerly known as Coleman Escrow Corporation, was the next holding company and was 100 percent owned by CPH. Perelman and Gittis were the sole directors of this holding company.

CPH admits that CPH owned 100% of the common stock of CLN Holdings Inc., that CLN Holdings was formerly known as Coleman Escrow Corporation, and that Perelman and Gittis were CLN Holdings Inc.'s directors. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

8. Coleman Worldwide Corporation was owned 100 percent by CLN Holdings Inc. and held 82 percent of the common stock of Coleman.

CPH admits that CLN Holdings Inc. owned 100% of the common stock of Coleman Worldwide Corporation. However, the proposed finding misstates the exact amount of Coleman stock held by Coleman Worldwide Corporation. Coleman Worldwide Corporation held approximately 82.4% of the Coleman stock before the exercise of options. CPH Supp. App. 186 (MS Ex. 73).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

9. Coleman was a public operating company trading on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol CLN. The business of Coleman was the manufacture and marketing of consumer products for outdoor recreation and home hardware.

CPH admits that Coleman was a public company that traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol CLN. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

D. Perelman's Holding Companies Are Form over Substance

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. In particular, the references to Perelman and "form over substance" are incorrect, unsupported, and argumentative. Moreover, this heading and the proposed findings in this section regarding MAFCO's corporate structure are irrelevant and immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion.

10. Donald Drapkin, the vice chairman and member of the board of directors of MAFCO, as well as a director of Coleman, testified that "there are lots of holdings [sic] companies" under Perelman's control, and "I have trouble keeping the names [of the holding companies] straight."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is argumentative.

11. Bruce Slovin was the president of CPH and a member of the board of directors of Coleman. Slovin "do[es] not recall" what his "general job description as the president Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. [was] in 1998," at the time of the transaction with Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is argumentative.

12. Perelman, chairman of the board and 100 percent owner of MAFCO and, through it, 100 percent owner of CPH, testified that he was "not sure" if he was a director of CPH.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is argumentative.

13. Gittis testified that there are "hundreds of companies" within MacAndrews & Forbes' holding company structure and Perelman himself did not "know the intermediate holding company structure . . . between MacAndrews & Forbes and the Coleman Company . . . ."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is argumentative.

14. William Nesbitt, senior vice president of MAFCO, explained that separating Coleman and MAFCO is a "distinction without a difference."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is argumentative.

Moreover, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and incorrect. Morgan Stanley has mischaracterized Nesbitt's testimony. Nesbitt's "distinction without a difference" statement was made in the specific context of answering whether the numbers used for cost projects had come from MAFCO or Coleman. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 154-55). Morgan Stanley inappropriately expands Nesbitt's testimony into an observation concerning the entire MAFCO corporate structure.

The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and incorrect. Nesbitt was not a senior vice president of MAFCO. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 55). Moreover, Nesbitt is no longer an employee of MAFCO. Id.

II. Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated

15. The defendant, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan Stanley"), is a Delaware corporation with its principal place of business in New York, New York. Morgan Stanley is an investment banking firm that provides a wide range of financial and securities services, including underwriting the sale of both equity and debt securities.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

16. Investment bankers and underwriters are not auditors. They do not perform the function of auditors. Sunbeam has its own external auditor, Arthur Andersen. Similarly, Coleman had its own auditor, Ernst & Young LLP.

The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted because it implies that investment bankers and underwriters have no obligations to investigate the financial statements of the companies they represent. As Sunbeam's investment banker and the sole underwriter for the debenture offering, Morgan Stanley had a duty to investigate Sunbeam's finances and business operations. As a matter of law, that duty included an obligation to verify management's claims about Sunbeam's finances and business. The United States District Court for the Southern District of New York recently reemphasized that point in its December 15, 2004 decision in In re Worldcom, Inc. Securities Litigation: "The public relies on the underwriter to obtain and verify relevant information and then make sure that essential facts are disclosed." CPH App. 112 (Decision at 121-22).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

17. On September 11, 1997, Sunbeam retained Morgan Stanley to act as its investment banker and to assist with either the sale of Sunbeam or its acquisition of other companies.

The Court should reject this proposed finding as misleading. Morgan Stanley began working with Sunbeam in April 1997 before it was formally retained and without compensation. CPH App. 9 (Strong Dep. at 49-51).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

18. Morgan Stanley served as the underwriter for Sunbeam's issuance of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures ("Debentures"). By virtue of its position as underwriter, Morgan Stanley agreed to be the direct purchaser of the Debentures. CPH did not purchase any of the Debentures.

The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is incomplete and misleading. It is undisputed that CPH relied on the due diligence CPH knew that Morgan Stanley was required to conduct as the underwriter for the debentures. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 373-74); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 108-09). Indeed, CPH took considerable comfort in the fact that Morgan Stanley was the underwriter of the debentures, received comfort letters in connection with that offering, and continued with its $2 billion (face amount) offering following the March 19, 1998 press release. Id. CPH also took comfort in the fact that Morgan Stanley was involved in the transaction because CPH had a long history with and trusted Morgan Stanley. CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 352); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 86); CPH Supp. App. 224 (CPH 11/24/04 Resp. to 5th Set of Interrogs., No. 1). Morgan Stanley knew that investors would rely on Morgan Stanley's association with a company in making investment decisions: "[I]nstitutional investors I think believe . . . that if we put our name on an underwriting, that we've done due diligence at a very high standard, and that we work for quality companies." CPH App. 114 (Perella Dep. at 126); see also id. at 127 ("We like to be associated with first class companies and do business in a first class way, and try every day to live to that standard."); CPH App. 115 (Porat Dep. at 297-98).

This proposed finding also is misleading and substantially controverted because it implies that Morgan Stanley's only material responsibility as underwriter was to be the initial purchaser of the Debentures. Morgan Stanley's duties also included the obligation to conduct a thorough investigation of Sunbeam's business and financial condition. See CPH's Response to ¶ 16, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

19. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding, Inc. ("MSSF") is a financial services company that provides credit services to its clients. MSSF is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business in New York. In 1998 MSSF entered into a credit agreement with Sunbeam under which MSSF agreed to provide senior secured financing to Sunbeam in connection with Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman and two smaller competitors. Pursuant to the credit agreement, Sunbeam borrowed $680 million from MSSF, with the borrowings used by Sunbeam to fund certain costs relating to the acquisitions.

The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and incomplete. MSSF intended to syndicate its position in the Sunbeam loan so that MSSF would have minimal exposure and risk on the loan. The Court should also reject this proposed finding on the basis of

020227

CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

When Morgan Stanley's Leveraged Finance Commitment Committee met to approve the $1.7 billion loan, a key issue was how quickly Morgan Stanley could syndicate it (i.e., transfer virtually all of the obligations to other lenders). CPH App. 12 (Smith Dep. at 139-40, 212, 251). While the LFCC technically approved the loan, Morgan Stanley knew it had made no "operative commitment" to fund it. CPH App. 87 (Hart Dep. at 275). Moreover, the testimony that Morgan Stanley cites suggests only that Morgan Stanley's practice was to keep some portion of the loan, not "a significant" portion because it was not possible as a practical matter to fully syndicate a loan: "In my experience, Morgan Stanley never syndicated 100 percent of a syndicated loan, primarily for the reason that no lending institution would partake in a loan that was fully syndicated out." CPH Supp. App. 217 (Burchill Dep. at 91). And Bram Smith's testimony establishes only that Morgan Stanley "sometimes" kept a substantial portion of the loan. In this case they intended to risk only "50 to 60 million" on the $1.7 billion loan or even "less" if they were "lucky." CPH App. 12 (Smith Dep. at 139, 140-41). Morgan Stanley's goal all along was to transfer as much of the loan to the other banks as it could, as quickly as it could, not to retain a significant portion.

Moreover, before MSSF's loan was approved, the Committee specifically discussed the problem with Sunbeam's first quarter sales and earnings and the fees that Morgan Stanley could earn on the engagement and determined to go ahead with the loan. CPH App. 86 (CPH Ex. 76); CPH App. 12 (Smith Dep. at 203-04).

This proposed finding also should be rejected because Morgan Stanley is judicially estopped from arguing that MSSF's losses are indistinguishable from Morgan Stanley's losses

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020228

because in the proceedings associated with the Sunbeam bankruptcy, MSSF defeated an equitable subordination claim predicated on the improper conduct of Morgan Stanley by successfully arguing that MSSF and Morgan Stanley are separate and distinct corporate entities whose conduct is not attributable to each other: "the lenders [including MSSF] are independent legal entities from Morgan Stanley [and] no facts are alleged to justify disregarding their separateness." See CPH App. 239 (Lenders Mot. to Dismiss Br. 10/1/01 at 17); see also CPH App. 240 (Order at 16-19, In re Sunbeam, No. 01-40291 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Oct. 18, 2002) (refusing to impute Morgan Stanley's conduct to MSSF)).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

III. Perelman Is A Sophisticated Businessman Operating Through A Complex Network Of Holding Companies

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. In particular, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's improper characterization of Mr. Perelman's business as a "complex network of holding companies" and Morgan Stanley's use of the misleading term "sophisticated." See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference.

20. MAFCO is a holding company whose business purpose is the "buy[ing] and sell[ing] [of] companies."

The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Taking partial quotations out of context, as in this proposed finding of fact, presents a particular danger of bias and unfair prejudice. Drapkin testified that "[w]e own a number of companies, and we buy and sell companies." CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 23). However, Morgan Stanley's selective quotation omits the first part of Drapkin's answer to give the misleading impression that MAFCO only buys and sells companies. See also id. ("As I said, our business is owning and running companies, as well as buying and selling."); id. at 33 (Drapkin specifically correcting Morgan Stanley's attorney that MAFCO also "operate[s]" businesses). As Perelman made clear: "[W]hat we do is identify businesses that we like and hopefully over time help them grow and develop. Our plan is not to sell them. Our plan is to make them grow . . . . You posed the question as if buying and selling is our business. That is not our business. Buying and operating companies is our business." See CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 52-53).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

21. Since 1987, MAFCO has bought or sold as many as fifty public and private companies and currently owns at least seven operating companies. These operating companies include Revlon, Inc. (cosmetics), Consolidated Cigar Holding Inc. (tobacco), Panavision (motion picture camera systems), Scientific Games (games), California Federal Bank (financial services), Allied Security (protective services), M&F Worldwide (licorice and other flavoring), and AM General (automobiles). Additionally, in the past, MAFCO has owned Marvel Entertainment, New World, Technicolor, and Meridian Sports.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it mischaracterizes the testimony of Drapkin, who was asked to provide an "estimate" of the number of companies MAFCO had bought or sold since 1987. Drapkin replied: "I don't have a good number. It's more than one and less than 50." CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 34-35.)

The Court also should reject this proposed finding as unsupported insofar as it implies that MAFCO owned either the entire interest or a controlling interest in the listed companies. The proposed finding also is misleading and unsupported insofar as it confuses whether the companies are currently or were formerly owned.

22. Perelman, in buying and selling public and private companies through stock acquisitions or otherwise, has participated in transactions that have involved billions of dollars.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's improper and misleading reference to Mr. Perelman. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's improper and misleading reference to Mr. Perelman. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference.

24. Perelman, operating through MAFCO, is a financially sophisticated individual with extensive merger and acquisition experience. Indeed, Slovin testified:

proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

In addition, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's improper and misleading reference to Mr. Perelman and Morgan Stanley's use of the term "sophisticated." See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference.

25. Perelman himself is a "sophisticated businessman" who "over the course of [his] business career [has] hired sophisticated advisers," including both in-house and outside lawyers and investment bankers, "to help [him]."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

In addition, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's improper and misleading reference to Mr. Perelman and Morgan Stanley's use of the term "sophisticated." See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference.

B. Perelman's In-House Brain Trust

26. Gittis has been involved in every deal Perelman has conducted and characterizes himself as the number-two man in MAFCO and Perelman's right-hand man. Prior to working at MAFCO, Gittis practiced law for 25 years until 1985. Gittis is licensed to practice law in Pennsylvania and Florida. He is currently the vice chairman and chief administrative officer of MAFCO.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, the Court should reject the proposed finding because it is misleading and unsupported. Morgan Stanley cites no evidence to support its assertion that Gittis was involved in every deal Perelman conducted prior to 1985, when Gittis joined MAFCO. The proposed finding also is misleading and unsupported insofar as it implies that Gittis's law licenses are active.

27. Jerry W. Levin was the president, chief executive officer, and chairman of the Coleman Company at the time of the Sunbeam-Coleman merger. In fact, Levin twice served as the senior executive at Coleman, from 1989 to 1991 and 1997 to 1998, both times at the request of Perelman. In between his two stints as top executive at Coleman, Levin was chief executive officer at Revlon, another of Perelman's companies. Levin, who has an MBA from the University of Chicago Business School, is a "specialist in consumer branded products" whose "forte" is "execut[ing] turnarounds at consumer branded products companies" like Sunbeam.

because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

The Court also should reject this finding because it is unsupported by the evidence cited. During the first time period reference, Levin did not work for The Coleman Company, Inc. CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 15, 19).

28. Donald Drapkin, the vice chairman of MAFCO, served as Perelman's "in-house strategic thinker" and "in-house investment banker." Drapkin graduated from Columbia Law School and worked at Cravath, Swaine & Moore until 1977, when he joined Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP ("Skadden"). While at Skadden, Drapkin specialized in mergers and acquisitions. He left Skadden to join MAFCO in January 1987.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Moreover, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is controverted insofar as Drapkin disputed Morgan Stanley's attempt to characterize him as Perelman's "in-house investment banker." CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 156).

29. James Maher, the president of MAFCO and, according to Perelman, the individual who was "the head negotiator for MacAndrews & Forbes in the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction," was "a sophisticated individual in financial transactions." After Maher received his MBA from Columbia in June 1976, he worked for First Boston Corporation in the investment banking department. Maher was the head of investment banking and oversaw all issues related to underwriting at First Boston. In 1992, Maher went to work at National Health Labs as the CEO. Later, in 1995, he worked at MAFCO Consolidated Group, Inc., another of Perelman's holding companies.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted. Maher was not the president of MAFCO. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 6-7). Moreover, Maher formerly was the president of MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc. — not MAFCO. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 18-19). Moreover, Maher has no current employment with any company affiliated with MAFCO. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 6-7). The proposed finding is misleading insofar as it asserts that Maher "oversaw all issues relating to underwriting at First Boston." Maher was the executive to whom the underwriting function reported at one point, but Maher had little personal familiarity with underwriting. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 42-43). This proposed finding also is misleading and unsupported insofar as the characterization of MAFCO Consolidated Group Inc. as one of Perelman's "holding companies" implies that MAFCO Consolidated Group was wholly-owned, directly or indirectly by Perelman at the relevant time.

30. Barry Schwartz is executive vice president and general counsel of both MAFCO and CPH. Schwartz has a law degree from Georgetown University and is licensed to practice law in Illinois, Pennsylvania, and New York. Before joining MAFCO in 1989, Schwartz practiced law for 15 years and was a partner in the Philadelphia firm of Wolf, Block, Schorr and Solis-Cohen LLP, the same firm at which Gittis worked before joining MAFCO. According to Perelman, Schwartz was a "good business lawyer" and served as his "in-house legal adviser in connection with the [Sunbeam-Coleman] transaction."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

31. William Nesbitt, senior vice president of MAFCO, served as an in-house analyst for MAFCO. After Nesbitt graduated from Duke University in 1984 with an economics degree, he was a financial analyst at First Boston Corporation in mergers and acquisitions. In 1988 Nesbitt received his MBA from Harvard Business School. Nesbitt is "a financial analyst of some intelligence, he is a bright kid, and he worked mostly with Jimmy Maher" on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction.

The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading. Nesbitt was not a senior vice president of MAFCO. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 55). Moreover, Nesbitt is no longer an employee of MAFCO. Id.

32. Todd J. Slotkin is executive vice president and chief financial officer of MAFCO. At the time of the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, Slotkin was a senior vice president at MAFCO. After receiving his MBA from Cornell Business School in 1974, Slotkin went to work for Citibank, where he eventually became head of Citibank's leveraged buyout division and a senior managing director. In 1992, he left Citibank to join MAFCO, where he was responsible for "arrang[ing] financing for acquisitions and divestitures and refinancings for Perelman's companies."

Engleman has served as a senior executive at corporations such as Xerox, General Foods, CitiTrust, and GAF Corporation.

C. Perelman Uses Investment Bankers to Advise Him on Mergers and Acquisitions

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

34. Over the past twenty years, MAFCO has used investment bankers to advise it "[i]n almost every transaction" in which MAFCO has been involved.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. First, it is undisputed that Morgan Stanley first contacted CPH concerning a possible transaction with Sunbeam. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 71-72, which are incorporated herein by reference. Second, Morgan Stanley's assertion that Perelman personally contacted or retained CSFB is unsupported. Third, CSFB was retained only by The Coleman Company, Inc. -- not CPH. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 56); see also CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 35); CPH Supp. App. 188 (MS Ex. 169).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. 35. When Sunbeam approached Perelman with the idea of purchasing Coleman, Perelman contacted the investment bank of Credit Suisse First Boston ("CSFB") to "provide[]advice and/or assistance to CPH in connection with the transaction" with Sunbeam. CSFB also was retained by the Coleman Company, Inc. to serve as its "exclusive financial advisor with respect to the evaluation of a proposed Transaction" with Sunbeam. CSFB requested and received a fee of $4 million plus expenses to serve as the investment banker for Coleman.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Contrary to Morgan Stanley's assertion, CSFB was retained only by The Coleman Company, Inc. — not CPH — and "provided advice to the board of Coleman." CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 56); see also CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 35); CPH Supp. App. 188 (MS Ex. 169).

In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, for the same reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 1, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's use of the term "sophisticated."

D. Perelman Uses Sophisticated Legal Advisors to Advise Him on Mergers and Acquisitions

37. On January 28, 1998, Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz ("Wachtell") was retained by Barry Schwartz, MAFCO's executive vice president and general counsel, to provide legal counsel to MAFCO, CPH, and Coleman regarding a potential transaction with Sunbeam. controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Wachtell was not retained to provide legal counsel to "MAFCO, CPH, and Coleman regarding a potential transaction with Sunbeam." Wachtell was retained by The Coleman Company, Inc. regarding a potential transaction with Sunbeam and retained by CPH and MAFCO for various matters. See, e.g., CPH Supp. App. 189 (Fasman Dep. at 67); CPH Supp. App. 225 (CPH's Resp. to MS & Co. Inc.'s 1st Set of Interrogs., at 9 (Sept. 2, 2003)); CPH Supp. App. 236 (CPH's Resp. to MS & Co. Inc.'s 2d Set of Reqs. for Admis., at 3-4 (March 17, 2004)).

Moreover, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and unsupported insofar as it implies that Schwartz's retention of Wachtell was somehow inappropriate. Schwartz's actions were both authorized and appropriate. See CPH App. 184 (Schwartz Dep. at 35-36, 111-112).

38. At the time it served as legal counsel for MAFCO, CPH, and Coleman, Wachtell was "a law firm that was sophisticated . . . in mergers and acquisitions . . . ."

The Court also should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

41. According to Maher, Joe Page, the chief financial officer of Coleman, would have given Ernst & Young instructions on the due diligence investigation of Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and unsupported insofar as it implies that Page is the only person who would have provided instruction to Ernst & Young, or that Ernst & Young's only task on the transaction was to perform due diligence on Sunbeam.

F. The Sunbeam-Coleman Merger Transaction Was an Arm's-Length Transaction

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. The Court also should reject Morgan Stanley's use of the term "arm's-length," because that term implies that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam were honest and fair in their dealings with CPH and Coleman, which clearly was not the case.

42. The Sunbeam-Coleman merger transaction was an arm's-length transaction between two large and sophisticated companies, each advised by sophisticated in-house and outside lawyers, investment bankers, and accountants.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. Furthermore, for the same reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 1, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's use of the term "sophisticated." Further, this Court should reject Morgan Stanley's characterization of the transaction as "arm's-length" because that term implies that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam were honest and fair in their dealings with CPH, which clearly was not the case.

43. Schwartz confirmed this in his deposition:

Q. Do you know Scarola?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Is he an attorney retained by Coleman (Parent) Holdings in the matter that Coleman (Parent) Holdings brought against Arthur Andersen LLP and Phillip E . Harlow?

A. He was.

Q. He was authorized to speak on behalf of Coleman (Parent) Holdings in court?

A. He was.

Q. Focus please beginning with the third sentence starting with "this case," do you see that? [CPH 1315402.]

represented by prominent highly paid advisors, Morgan Stanley, Skadden, Arps and Arthur Andersen for Sunbeam and CS First Boston by Wachtell, Lipton. Sunbeam conducted due diligence just like any third-party buyer would do." Based on your positions in the MacAndrews & Forbes companies, are those true statements?

A. Yes, they are true statements.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is vague and cannot serve as a stand-alone finding because of its use of the word "this" in the first sentence. Further, Morgan Stanley has not quoted the document accurately. It actually says: "Each side was represented by prominent, highly paid advisors: Morgan Stanley, Skadden Arps, and Andersen for Sunbeam, and CS First Boston and Wachtell, Lipton for the Coleman Company." (CPH's Resp. to Andersen's Mtn. to Compel at 4. CPH v. Andersen, No. CA-01-06062AN (Jan. 2, 2002)).

44. The original Coleman company was founded in 1901. For many years Coleman was a closely held and privately owned corporation. Coleman was "a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for outdoor recreation and home hardware use on a global basis."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess such statements as they appear in the documents, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The documents speak for themselves.

The Court also should reject this proposed finding because it is vague, misleading, unsupported and inaccurate. Morgan Stanley uses the defined term "Coleman" in its proposed findings to mean The Coleman Company, Inc., which was incorporated in 1992, and is a very different company than what MAFCO indirectly purchased in 1989. CPH Supp. App. 241 (MS Ex. 241, at 6).

45. In 1989, Perelman, through a holding company, purchased 100 percent of the privately held common stock of Coleman for approximately $455 million. Perelman outbid the younger members of the Coleman family who were trying to do a leveraged buyout of the company.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject the proposed finding's reference to Mr. Perelman. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference. In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading, unsupported, and inaccurate in its description of the transactions through which MAFCO indirectly purchased the Company, which was publicly-held at the time. The Court also should reject the use of the term "outbid" and the reference to the "younger members of the Coleman family" because it is unsupported, irrelevant, and prejudicial.

46. At about the same time, Perelman hired Levin to run Coleman. Levin was brought in to restructure Coleman and build up its core businesses. Levin left in April of 1991 to run Revlon, Inc., another of Perelman's companies.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

47. In 1992, Perelman, through his holding company, made a public offering of a small percentage of Coleman's common stock. Perelman raised $125.7 million (9,670,000 shares of Coleman stock at $13 per share), but retained over 80 percent of the common stock, thus ensuring his control.

The Court also should reject this proposed finding as misleading and unsupported insofar as it implies that the offering was made "through a holding company" — as opposed to a primary offering of shares by Coleman. In addition, this Court should reject this proposed finding as misleading, unsupported, confusing, and prejudicial insofar as it implies that $125.7 million was the net amount and that Perelman received the proceeds.

B. Perelman Steadily Increases the Debt of Coleman

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. In particular, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's misleading and improper reference to Perelman. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this heading is misleading as it suggests that Coleman's debt was increased inappropriately — which is unsupported.

48. With Levin out, Coleman began taking on debt. In 1993 Coleman's long-term debt was $168,858,000.

Further, CPH objects to the unsupported and argumentative assertion that Coleman "began taking on debt" once Levin was "out" or that there is any connection between Levin's "departure" and the "taking on" of debt. In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and unsupported insofar as it implies that Coleman's debt was increased inappropriately.

Moreover, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's misleading and selective citation to Coleman's long-term debt without providing the jury any context or explanation for those amounts.

49. Within a year, Coleman had increased its long-term debt to $291,175,000, and by 1995, long-term debt had risen to $355,257,000.

Moreover, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's misleading and selective citation to Coleman's long-term debt without providing the jury any context or explanation for those amounts.

50. Coleman saw the high-water mark of long-term debt in 1996, reporting $583,613,000 in debt — a 350 percent increase over 1993 amounts.

Moreover, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's misleading and selective citation to Coleman's long-term debt without providing the jury any context or explanation for those amounts.

51. By 1997, Coleman's long-term debt was $477,799,000, up over 250 percent from the $168,858,000 it was carrying in 1993.

C. A Debt-Ridden Coleman Underperforms in 1997

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. In particular, this heading is argumentative, misleading, and unsupported.

52. Despite having shown a net profit of $39 million in 1995, Coleman reported net sales of almost $42 million the following year in 1996.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Moreover, the Court should reject this finding because it is unsupported and substantially controverted. In 1996, Coleman's net sales were $291.7 million. See MS's Ex. 251 at 13 (cited by Morgan Stanley at ¶ 52).

53. Faced with poor performance by Coleman and its management team, Perelman tapped Jerry Levin to return to Coleman as chief executive officer in February 1997, with the objective of making Coleman "profitable and sustainable."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, taking partial quotations out of context, as in this proposed finding of fact, presents a particular danger of bias and unfair prejudice. This proposed finding's statement that Levin was hired because of "poor performance by Coleman and its management team" is unsupported. Contrary to Morgan Stanley's assertion, Perelman never testified that Levin was asked to return to Coleman because of "poor performance by Coleman and its management team." See CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 248 (indicating that he thought Coleman could do better), id. at 248-49 (he hired Levin to drive the level of growth); CPH Supp. App. 190 (Clark Dep. at 70 ("It was [Levin's] objective to make it a profitable and sustainable, solid business.")).

54. Showing some signs of financial improvement, Coleman reported a net loss of $2,536,000 in 1997.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is unsupported, misleading, and argumentative. Coleman was showing far more than "some signs of financial improvement," as Morgan Stanley itself recognized at the time. See CPH App. 119 (CPH Ex. 272 (October 9, 1997 Morgan Stanley analyst report expecting "a return to full earnings momentum in 1998")).

55. Despite the marginal improvements in 1997, Coleman's stock price fell from a high of $26 per share in 1996 to a high of only $19-1/8 in 1997. Indeed, during the fourth quarter of 1997, Coleman's common stock traded between only $16-13/16 and $12-3/8.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is unsupported, misleading, and argumentative. Coleman was showing far more than "marginal improvements in 1997," as Morgan Stanley itself acknowledged at the time. See CPH App. 119 (CPH Ex. 272 (October 9, 1997 Morgan Stanley analyst report)). Moreover, Coleman's stock price as quoted on the New York Stock Exchange alone is not an accurate measure of the value of Coleman because it fails to take into account the fact that CPH owned 82% of the stock, and therefore the remaining stock held by the public was thinly traded. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 260-261); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 40, 68, 73, 76).

56. Karen Clark, vice president of finance for Coleman, testified that the restructuring of Coleman was not expected to be complete until 2002, and that the very earliest the restructuring could be completed was sometime in 2000.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

57. Upon learning of the impending transaction, Clark was "surprise[d]" that Coleman "was selling so quickly" and "selling at for what appeared to such a high premium."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, taking partial quotations out of context, as in this proposed finding of fact, presents a particular danger of bias and unfair prejudice. Clark made clear that the reason for her surprise was not the price for Coleman per se, but only the price in light of the stage of turnaround. CPH Supp. App. 190 (Clark Dep. at 60-61); see also CPH App. 119 (CPH Ex. 272 (October 9, 1997 Morgan Stanley analyst report expecting "a return to full earnings momentum in 1998")). Coleman's sale price reflected the value expected to result from the Coleman restructuring. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 73, 76-77).

D. Perelman Leverages His Investment in Coleman to Issue $732 million in Debt and Pledges Coleman Shares as Collateral

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. The Court also should reject Morgan Stanley's misleading and improper references to Mr. Perelman. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference.

58. In May 1997, Perelman utilized his investment in Coleman stock to generate cash. Through Coleman Escrow Corporation (later renamed CLN Holdings Inc.), Perelman ultimately issued $732,035,000 in Senior Secured Priority Discount Notes due 2001 and Senior Secured First Priority Discount Notes due 2001 (collectively, "the Notes"). Perelman pledged his 44,067,520 shares of Coleman as collateral for the Notes.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. The proposed finding's references to Mr. Perelman are incorrect, misleading and improper. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference. In addition, Morgan Stanley cites no evidence to support its assertion that Perelman, as an individual, "utilized his investment . . . to generate cash." Similarly, Morgan Stanley's contention that "Perelman pledged his 44,067,520 shares of Coleman as collateral" is unsupported by the record and misleading because any shares that were pledged were not pledged by Perelman. Moreover, this proposed finding is misleading because the $732,035,000 figure is the face value of the notes at maturity, not the amount of proceeds raised by the sale. CPH Supp. App. 191 (Slotkin Dep. at 154-55).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

59. As of the end of 1997, CLN Holdings Inc. was carrying $980,447,000 of long-term debt (including the Notes) and had pledged all of its shares of Coleman stock to secure portions of that debt.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. As required by the Securities and Exchange Commission rules, CLN Holdings issued consolidated financial statements that included Coleman and Coleman Worldwide Corporation. Morgan Stanley erroneously lumps the debt of CLN Holdings Inc. ("CLN Holdings"), the holding company, with the debt of other holding companies and The Coleman Company, Inc. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 308-09, which are incorporated herein by reference. As of December 30, 1997, CLN Holdings had long-term debt of $503,171,000. See CPH Supp. App. 191 (Slotkin Dep. at 162-74, 210-19); CPH Supp. App. 192 (MS Ex. 166 at F-27, F-31, F-39-41); see also CPH Supp. App. 221 (12/17/98 Grinblatt Report at 12) (stating that the accreted value of CLN Holdings' debt at the time of the merger was $512 million).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

60. As of March 30, 1998, MAFCO had pledged all of the Coleman stock to support the holding companies' indebtedness and the indebtedness of MAFCO under two bank agreements, a revolving credit agreement, and a term credit agreement.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, Morgan Stanley's assertion that MAFCO had pledged "all of the Coleman stock" as of March 30, 1998 is controverted and unsupported. The materials cited by Morgan

Stanley do not support the assertion that MAFCO pledged any Coleman shares. Moreover, on March 30, 1998, Sunbeam acquired Coleman Worldwide Corporation. At the time of that transfer, there was no pledge of Coleman shares owned by Coleman Worldwide. See also CPH Supp. App. 222 (MS Ex. 239 at 17 n.1 (Coleman Rule 14-F Information Statement noting that "substantially all" of the Coleman stock was or "from time to time may be pledged")); CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 92).

V. PERELMAN MEETS DUNLAP AND SEES THE "FUTURE"

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Further, this heading is argumentative.

61. In 1997, "Mr. Perelman and [Jerry Levin] made a trip to Boca Raton[, Florida] to meet with Bernie Marcus of Home Depot." While on that trip, Perelman met with Albert Dunlap, the CEO of Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Perelman was asked specifically about this alleged trip to Boca Raton with Levin and stated that he did not recall either the trip or this meeting. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 277-78 (" Q. At least one of those meetings where you ran into Mr. Dunlap and I think you said likely in a social setting, were you in Florida with Mr. Levin to call on Home Depot? A. Not that I recall.")); CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 283 ("I don't recall having drinks with Dunlap in Florida.")).

62. Perelman had met Dunlap on several occasions in 1997 and had spoken with Dunlap about "possibly coming on the board of Coleman."

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Perelman stated that he had met Dunlap "maybe three times" prior to the meeting with Dunlap at Perelman's house in Palm Beach on December 18, 1997, and that those meetings had been social in nature. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 275, 274). There were no "meetings" between Perelman and Dunlap about Dunlap joining the board of Coleman. Instead, Perelman characterized those "maybe two at the most" discussions with Dunlap as "very casual" and "social conversations" not specifically about joining the Coleman board at times when Perelman "bumped into" Dunlap in either Florida or New York. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 274-75).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

63. At the time, "Dunlap [was] currently the most admired and respected CEO in America" and "Wall Street's absolute darling." In addition to being "admired and respected," Dunlap was "a true great celebrity CEO at that point."

Although CPH does not contest the facts contained in this proposed finding, the Court should reject it on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

64. Indeed, Perelman himself contributed to Dunlap's burgeoning celebrity by providing a jacket blurb for Dunlap's 1996 bestseller, MEAN BUSINESS: HOW I SAVE BAD

COMPANIES AND MAKE GOOD COMPANIES GREAT, in which Perelman described Dunlap as "lively, funny and provocative" and encouraged readers to "find out what he's all about."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Perelman testified that he did not supply the "jacket blurb" for Dunlap's book. See CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 254-55). In addition, Morgan Stanley cites no evidence to support its assertion that this quote contributed anything to Dunlap's "burgeoning celebrity."

65. The morning after Perelman's meeting with Dunlap in Florida, while Perelman and Levin were driving to the airport to return to New York, Levin inquired about the meeting with Dunlap and was told "the guy [Dunlap] is doing a tremendous job [at Sunbeam] has extraordinary financial returns." Perelman further told Levin that "he couldn't understand why [Levin] couldn't produce profitability [at Coleman] like Dunlap was doing at Sunbeam."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Although Morgan Stanley attributes these quotes to Perelman, Perelman testified that he has no recollection of making these comments to Levin. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 280, 284).

66. When Levin expressed skepticism about the financial returns Dunlap had reported to Perelman, Perelman immediately telephoned Dunlap from the car and personally requested that Dunlap fax a copy of Sunbeam's interim financial statements to New York for Levin to review.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. As stated in CPH's Response to Paragraph 65, Mr. Perelman does not recall these events. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 280, 284). Moreover, Mr. Perelman does not recall calling Dunlap and requesting (or receiving) any Sunbeam financial statements — interim or otherwise. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 278-79). Moreover, Morgan Stanley's assertion that the financial statements that Perelman obtained were Sunbeam's "interim" financial statements is wholly unsupported. Levin testified that he did not recall whether the documents he reviewed were Sunbeam's interim financial statements or something else. CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 101).

67. A review of the Sunbeam interim financial statements that Dunlap provided at Perelman's request convinced Levin that Dunlap's plans for Sunbeam were "a business model that I was unfamiliar with." Indeed, Levin - a man whose "forte" was turning around underperforming branded consumer products companies like Sunbeam — "did not understand how [Dunlap's] model would be successful over the long term."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. There is no evidence whatsoever that Sunbeam or Dunlap provided "interim" financial statements to Perelman or Levin. See CPH's Response to ¶ 66, which is incorporated herein by reference.

68. Levin informed Perelman that he, Levin, "did not know based on my own experiences how to do what [Dunlap] is doing" and that "[i]f . . . Perelman, want[ed] somebody to try [Dunlap's approach]" he should "find somebody else because this is not in my business skill base."

opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, Perelman does not recall Levin making these comments. See CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 283-87).

VI. In Late 1997 Michael Price Initiates Discussions Between Sunbeam And Perelman

CPH disagrees with the "facts" and characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. In particular, Morgan Stanley was the first to contact CPH about the possibility of a transaction with Sunbeam. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 71-72.

A. Michael Price Asks Perelman to Meet Dunlap

CPH disagrees with the "facts" and characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

69. Michael Price — chairman of Mutual Benefit Shares, a mutual fund which owned a "ton" of Sunbeam stock in 1997 — called Howard Gittis in late November or early December to discuss the potential acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

The Court also should reject this finding because Morgan Stanley has produced no evidence that Mutual Benefit Shares owned a "ton" of Sunbeam stock or what amount would constitute a "ton" of stock. Further, the correct name of the mutual fund was Mutual Series Fund. CPH Supp. App. 184 (Schwartz Dep. at 103).

70. Price told Gittis that Dunlap had a significant interest in seeing Sunbeam acquire Coleman and would like to do the deal very quickly. Gittis told Price that

020261

"Coleman is in the early stages of its turnaround, its stock market price is not going to reflect what [Perelman] consider[ed] to be its real intrinsic value," and indicated that any meeting regarding a Sunbeam-Coleman transaction should not occur for six months to a year.

71. There was no mention of Morgan Stanley during the initial call between Gittis and Price. As Gittis put it, "[t]his was all Al."

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Contrary to Morgan Stanley's assertion, Morgan Stanley was discussed during Gittis's conversation with Price. Gittis testified that Price told him, "I will have Morgan Stanley, who was representing the company — call you." Gittis replied, "[D]on't have them call me, have them call Jim Maher. And, some time subsequent to that call, the call went in to Maher" from Morgan Stanley. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 70). Moreover, prior to Price's call to Gittis, Morgan Stanley approached CPH representatives at least twice to discuss a Sunbeam-Coleman transaction. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 148); see also CPH Supp. App. 193 (MS Ex. 374).

020262

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

72. As a result of Price's efforts, a meeting was arranged on December 18, 1997 at Perelman's mansion in Palm Beach. Present at the meeting were Dunlap, Price, Gittis, and Perelman.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted. Morgan Stanley is simply wrong in asserting that the December 18, 1997 meeting took place solely "[a]s a result of Price's efforts" and implying that Morgan Stanley played no role with respect to that meeting. Morgan Stanley laid the groundwork for this meeting. Morgan Stanley first approached CPH representatives during the summer of 1997 and again on November 6, 1997 to discuss a potential transaction with Sunbeam. See CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 144-48); CPH Supp. App. 193 (MS Ex. 374). At those meetings, Morgan Stanley provided CPH with written materials concerning Sunbeam.

Morgan Stanley also was the primary impetus for the meeting held between Sunbeam and Coleman management on December 12, 1997. As Gittis testified: "Maher started these conversations with Morgan. Morgan expressed the view that the companies should be together, that Al [Dunlap] had accomplished a lot with Sunbeam already, more to do, but he could do . . . the same thing with Coleman that he had done with Sunbeam. Maher said great . . . so, somehow or other, a meeting got set up for sometime in mid-December, where the Coleman guys met with the Sunbeam people." CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 71).

020263

Morgan Stanley also clearly had prepared Dunlap for the December 18, 1997 meeting in Palm Beach. Prior to the December, 18, 1997 meeting, Morgan Stanley met with Sunbeam representatives and provided them with an analysis of a potential Coleman-Sunbeam transaction, including an "overview of the Coleman Company, Inc.," a "transaction rationale," a "preliminary merger analysis," and information on Coleman's financial condition. CPH App. 135 (CPH Ex. 222). At the December 18, 1997 Palm Beach meeting, Dunlap repeatedly referred to the work Morgan Stanley had done in preparation for the meeting. For example, Dunlap told Perelman and Gittis that, "Morgan has looked all over, Morgan determined who should be our next acquisition. You are our favorite candidate. You are the only one we want to do this merger with. Morgan is prepared to finance it." CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 79). As one witness put it, it was Morgan Stanley who "broker[ed] the deal" and it was Morgan Stanley who "brought the parties together." CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 85).

Finally, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's attempt to bias the jury by referring to Perelman's Florida home as a "mansion."

B. Perelman Prepares to Meet Dunlap and MAFCO Does Its Own Analysis of a Sunbeam-Coleman Transaction

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

73. On or about December 8 and 10, 1997, MAFCO prepared its own internal analyses of the financial consequences of a merger transaction with Sunbeam. Nesbitt, an analyst by trade, was the "primary person" at MAFCO who "conducted the numerical analyses of the [Sunbeam] transaction."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, Nesbitt relied upon analyst reports and other public sources of information that Morgan Stanley later vouched for by including them in the materials it prepared and provided CPH on February 23, 1998. See CPH App. 29 (CPH Ex. 9).

74. Nesbitt based his numerical assumptions for Coleman on information he received internally from Coleman. In addition, he turned to public sources for information about Sunbeam, like Sunbeam's Securities [sic] Exchange Commission filings and estimates created by financial analysts at Goldman Sachs, not Morgan Stanley.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, Nesbitt relied upon analyst reports and other public sources of information that Morgan Stanley later vouched for by including them in the materials it prepared and provided CPH on February 23, 1998. See CPH App. 29 (CPH Ex. 9).

75. Under Nesbitt's models, the potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam would consist of an all stock deal because Perelman wanted as much Sunbeam stock as he could get. Perelman did not want cash.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Nesbitt testified that his models analyzed an all-stock transaction because that is the only consideration Sunbeam offered. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 287). CPH admits that Perelman wanted stock by the time the transaction was agreed upon, but that is because Perelman believed what Morgan Stanley told him about Sunbeam. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 126). Perelman's preference for an all-stock transaction arose after Morgan Stanley persuaded him that Sunbeam had been turned around and was poised for future growth and that Sunbeam's stock was fairly valued. Id.

76. Nesbitt, upon consultation with Maher, placed the value of Coleman somewhere along a range of $22 to $30 per share. Nesbitt did not share any of his numerical analyses of the potential transaction with Morgan Stanley or Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Nesbitt was not "valuing" Coleman. Nesbitt was analyzing whether the transaction was dilutive or accretive using different assumptions — e.g., differing levels of cost savings, assumed cost savings, and assumed, projected, and actual historical operating performance. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 18). Moreover, Nesbitt testified that the type of analysis he performed in MS 104 was a quick "back of the envelope, how are we doing, how are they doing" analysis. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 117).

020266

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

77. On December 11, 1997, Nesbitt prepared a spreadsheet reflecting Sunbeam's third quarter 1997 performance against the prior year's third quarter and estimating Sunbeam's fourth quarter 1997 performance against the prior year's fourth quarter. Nesbitt identified several "items that jumped out" about Sunbeam's quarter and noted these concerns in a footnote. Nesbitt identified that one "concern has been international pipeline filling."

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Nesbitt testified that what Morgan Stanley characterizes as Nesbitt's "concerns" reflect what analysts speculated might be happening at Sunbeam. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 228 ("I am referring to comments in the analyst community that perhaps this was the case.")).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

78. Nesbitt also concluded that the "[u]ptick in [Sunbeam's] third quarter receivables supposedly relates to one half of the quarter sales being shipped in September."

020267

He testified that the impetus for his footnote about the "uptick" in receivables was his awareness that financial analysts covering Sunbeam had reported that one half of Sunbeam's sales for the entire third quarter of 1997 arose in the final month of the quarter.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Nesbitt testified that CPH Supp. App. 234 (MS Ex. 165) does not reflect conclusions that he himself reached about Sunbeam. As Nesbitt testified, CPH Supp. App. 234 (MS Ex. 165) merely summarized analyst speculation about what might be happening at Sunbeam. See CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 227-288 ("Q. So you knew, at least based on what you wrote in your memorandum, that in 1997 the uptick in, at least Sunbeam's receivables, was supposedly the result of one half of its third quarter sales of 1997 being recorded in the last month of the quarter, right? A. Not necessarily. . . . what I wrote at the time would suggest that I am referring to comments in the analyst community that perhaps this was the case.")).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

79. Nesbitt circulated his December 11, 1997 analysis of Sunbeam to the "operating management team" of Coleman - including Levin - for their "judgment as to whether this was an issue or not and to follow up." The "operating guys at Coleman" never expressed that the footnotes to his December 11, 1997 analysis were of any concern to them, and he did not recall a need for further investigation by MAFCO.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

80. On December 12, 1997, Perelman, Maher, and Gittis met with Gordon Rich of CSFB and Levin to discuss a potential transaction with Sunbeam. There were no Morgan Stanley representatives at the meeting.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

81. That same day, Coleman executives (Levin, Shapiro, and Page) gave Sunbeam representatives (Russell Kersh, David Fannin, and Peter A. Langerman) a presentation on Coleman's business and the potential "synergies that could result from a combination of Sunbeam and Coleman." Morgan Stanley did not attend the meeting.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading insofar as it implies that Morgan Stanley was not involved in this meeting. To the contrary, Morgan Stanley arranged this meeting, spoke with CPH representatives in advance of the meeting, met with Sunbeam representatives to prepare them for the meeting, and provided Sunbeam with written materials concerning Coleman in advance of the meeting. See CPH App. 30 (MS Ex. 75); CPH App. 135 (CPH Ex. 222); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 71); CPH Supp. App. 237 (CPH's Supp. Resp. to Interrogs. No. 4 and No. 6 of MS & Co.'s 2nd Set of Interrogs.); s*ee also* CPH's Response to ¶ 72, which is incorporated herein by reference. Further, after the meeting, Fannin sent Morgan Stanley the list of ideas Coleman brought to the meeting. See MS Ex. 78 (cited in Morgan Stanley's Proposed Findings at ¶ 81).

82. As of the December 12, 1997 meeting, MAFCO had not received any documents from Morgan Stanley about a potential acquisition of Coleman by Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Maher testified that "[w]e were provided with documents by Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam prior to [December] 12th." CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 189). Indeed, Morgan Stanley met with CPH representatives on at least two occasions prior to December 12, 1997 and provided CPH representatives with documents and information about Sunbeam at both of those meetings. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 148); see also CPH Supp. App. 193 (MS Ex. 374). Morgan Stanley also spoke with CPH representatives in the week leading up to the meeting. See CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 71); CPH Supp. App. 237 (CPH's Supp. Resp. to Interrogs. No. 4 and No. 6 of MS & Co.'s 2nd Set of Interrogs.).

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Further, Morgan Stanley's assertion that Perelman conducted this analysis is unsupported and incorrect. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 257-58).

83. On December 15, 1997, Nesbitt prepared a memorandum detailing the compensation structure of Dunlap's employment contract with Sunbeam and circulated this memorandum to Perelman, Gittis, and Maher.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

84. Nesbitt prepared the December 15, 1997 memorandum to gauge Dunlap's "economic incentives" and concluded that Dunlap's employment contract created "the incentive to increase the stock price" of Sunbeam. Perelman did not recall why the memo was prepared. Perelman, Gittis, and Maher agreed with Nesbitt's conclusion.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. There is no evidence to support Morgan Stanley's assertion that Perelman, Gittis, and Maher "agreed with Nesbitt's conclusion." Indeed, Perelman testified at his deposition that he did not believe he ever saw this memorandum before it was shown to him at his deposition in this case. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 301). Similarly, Maher testified that he had no recollection of requesting, reading, or discussing this memorandum from Nesbitt. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 193-94). Gittis was never asked about this memorandum at his deposition.

87. At the behest of Michael Price, Perelman and Gittis met with Dunlap and Price at Perelman's Florida home on December 18, 1997 to discuss Sunbeam acquiring Coleman.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted. Morgan Stanley —not Price — laid the groundwork for this meeting. See CPH's Response to ¶ 72, which is incorporated herein by reference.

88. Morgan Stanley did not have any role in laying the groundwork for the December 18, 1997 meeting and did not attend the meeting.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Morgan Stanley, in fact, laid the groundwork and prepared Sunbeam representatives for the December 18, 1997 meeting. See CPH's Response to ¶ 72, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

89. At the December 18, 1997 meeting, Dunlap expressed to Perelman and Gittis that he wanted Sunbeam to acquire Coleman and believed that the "deal cri[ed] out to be done."

because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading. In stating that the "deal cried out to be done," Dunlap was repeating to Perelman and Gittis what Morgan Stanley had said about a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction. See CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 79).

90. Gittis informed Dunlap that MAFCO had "asked CSFB to calculate out one thing for [him], which is what price can Sunbeam pay depending upon the amount of synergies that we would agree might be available. Without us being dilutive to Sunbeam. And that is 30 bucks a share. And I have zero interest in selling for less than that."

91. Dunlap was visibly upset by Gittis' proposal and proceeded to shout and use scatological terms about the offer, Coleman, and Gittis. During the meeting, Dunlap told Gittis and Perelman that they didn't know what they were doing, and that he was a fabulous manager who would save Coleman. At one point, Gittis had to calm Dunlap down, warning him that he looked as if he would have a heart attack. Dunlap responded that he was fine and that it was he who would give them a heart attack. Perelman responded by laughing at Dunlap.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it mischaracterizes Perelman's testimony. Perelman did not "respond by laughing at Dunlap." Rather, Perelman laughed at what Dunlap said.

92. The December 18, 1997 meeting ended with Dunlap cursing and storming out of the meeting.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

93. Following Dunlap's blow-up at the December 18, 1997 meeting, the prospect of a transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman was, in the view of Perelman, "dead in the water."

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. 94. Levin learned of the outcome of the December 18 meeting and concluded the deal was dead. He had no further involvement in the negotiations that he can recall until February 20, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted. Levin testified only that he began participating in negotiations "in earnest" on or about February 20, 1998. CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 30). Other testimony and documents establish that Levin was involved in the transaction between December 18, 1997 and February 20, 1998. For example, Levin participated in a telephone call with Morgan Stanley on February 3, 1998 and a meeting on January 29, 1998. See CPH App. 123 (CPH Ex. 169); see also CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 168-69; 170-71); CPH App. 30 (MS Ex. 75).

VII. Perelman And Sunbeam Restart Discussions About Coleman

95. In late December, and after the meeting in Palm Beach at Perelman's mansion, Price contacted Gittis to apologize for Dunlap's behavior at Perelman's home. Price also told Gittis that Sunbeam would be willing to consider a transaction valued as high as $25 per Coleman share, but Gittis indicated that such a proposal would not be of interest to MAFCO.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should not accept Morgan Stanley's attempt to bias the jury by referring to Perelman's home as a "mansion."

96. In mid to late January 1998, William Reid of Morgan Stanley called Perelman and told him that Sunbeam was still interested in a transaction with Coleman.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

97. Perelman could not recall "anyone at either Coleman or MacAndrews & Forbes having any communications with Morgan Stanley about a Coleman-Sunbeam transaction" prior to Reid's telephone call. The telephone call from Reid is the only direct conversation Perelman can recall ever having with any Morgan Stanley representative in

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted. CPH representatives had numerous communications with Morgan Stanley about a Sunbeam-Coleman transaction both before and after Reid's telephone call. See CPH App. 123 (CPH Ex. 169); CPH App. 30 (MS Ex. 75); CPH Supp. App. 193 (MS Ex. 374); CPH App. 29 (CPH Ex. 9); CPH App. 138 (CPH Ex. 379); CPH Supp. App. 194 (MS Ex. 80); CPH Supp. App. 195 (MS Ex. 81); CPH Supp. App. 196 (MS Ex. 82); CPH Supp. App. 197 (MS Ex. 83); CPH Supp. App. 198 (MS Ex. 175); CPH Supp. App. 199 (MS Ex. 182); CPH Supp. App. 200 (MS Ex. 188); CPH Supp. App. 201 (MS Ex. 189); CPH Supp. App. 202 (MS Ex. 340)). The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and controverted. CPH admits that Mr. Reid's call was not viewed as improper at the time. In retrospect, however, it is clear that Morgan Stanley was trading on Reid's relationship with CPH representatives to restart the discussions with Coleman and CPH and that Reid misrepresented Sunbeam during the course of the call. See CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 394-95).

99. Perelman believed that there was more "upside" in taking Sunbeam stock rather than cash.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it seeks to imply that Perelman held this view at the outset of the negotiations. Although Perelman may have believed that there was more "upside" in taking Sunbeam stock rather than cash, Perelman formed this opinion because he "believed in what Morgan Stanley told him about Sunbeam." CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 126). Perelman's preference for an all-stock transaction arose after Morgan Stanley misrepresented that Sunbeam's stock was fairly valued and that Sunbeam had been turned around and was poised for future growth. Id.

100. Perelman therefore instructed his negotiators to negotiate a transaction structure with Sunbeam that provided consideration in the form of Sunbeam stock, and to seek a deal where Sunbeam stock was 100 percent of the consideration that MAFCO would receive. Indeed, Perelman would have taken 100 percent stock if he could have done so without delaying the deal.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that Perelman "instructed his negotiators" at the outset of negotiations to seek consideration consisting of all Sunbeam stock. Perelman testified that he rejected Dunlap's offer to buy Coleman in a 100% stock deal at the December 18, 1997 meeting in Florida. CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 341-42); see also CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 287 (Sunbeam originally proposed an all-stock deal in December)). Perelman's preference for an all-stock transaction arose after Morgan Stanley misrepresented that Sunbeam's stock was fairly valued and that Sunbeam had been turned around and was poised for future growth. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 126). Moreover, contrary to Morgan Stanley's implication, Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley also were very opposed to anything that might "delay[] the deal." See CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 98-99).

101. On January 23, 1998, following Reid's telephone call, representatives from Morgan Stanley met with Nesbitt to discuss a potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam. At the meeting, Morgan Stanley gave Nesbitt a document (MS 80) entitled "Laser Corporation Key Assumptions." Nesbitt testified that he did not view anything in the document provided by Morgan Stanley on January 23, 1998 to be a "misrepresentation of a fact." Morgan Stanley conveyed Sunbeam's offer to purchase Coleman in exchange for Sunbeam stock. Nesbitt listened to the offer, but he had no authority to negotiate a transaction. Nobody within MAFCO had authority to negotiate a particular price for the transaction unless Perelman had approved that price.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. First, Morgan Stanley has misstated Nesbitt's testimony. Nesbitt specifically testified that MS Ex. 80 contained misrepresentations. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. 305-06). Moreover, Nesbitt further testified that he could not believe based on the facts and Morgan Stanley's involvement with Sunbeam that Morgan Stanley did not know that Sunbeam "was a house of cards." CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 414-15); see also CPH Supp. App. 235 (CPH's Supp. Resp. to MS & Co.'s 1st Set of Interrogs.).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

102. Nesbitt understood that the projections Morgan Stanley presented regarding Sunbeam's EBITDA came from I/B/E/S ("Institutional Brokers Estimates Service"), a reporting service that provides combined analyst projections. I/B/E/S estimates are "[u]niversally used in the investment banking profession."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

This Court also should reject this proposed finding because it mischaracterizes what I/B/E/S does. I/B/E/S merely aggregates information disseminated by others. See CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 303).

Furthermore, Morgan Stanley gave credibility to and vouched for these figures by incorporating them and relying on them in its models. See CPH App. 114 (Perella Dep. at 125-26); CPH App. 115 (Porat Dep. at 297-98); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 152-53).

103. Although he was the head negotiator for MAFCO, Maher did not have the power to approve any deal on behalf of MAFCO regarding the potential transaction. Maher informed Morgan Stanley that the January 23, 1998 offer was unacceptable.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

104. Shortly after the January 23, 1998 meeting, Nesbitt created two additional spreadsheets analyzing the financial consequences of a transaction with Sunbeam. These spreadsheets, MS 106 and 107, were not based on information provided by Morgan Stanley at the January 23, 1998 meeting.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

B. MAFCO Retains Wachtell to Represent Coleman and to Prepare Confidentiality Agreements

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. This heading is particularly misleading in that it implies there was more than one confidentiality agreement, which there was not. See CPH's Response to ¶ 111, which is incorporated herein by reference.

105. On January 28, 1998, Barry Schwartz, MAFCO's executive vice president and general counsel, retained Wachtell to represent MAFCO, CPH, and Coleman in the discussions with Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. See CPH's Response to ¶ 37, which is incorporated herein by reference.

106. On January 29, 1998, Schwartz called Wachtell and informed them that a form of the "confidentiality agreement" to be proposed to Sunbeam would be faxed to them for their review. On the same day, Joram Salig, an in-house MAFCO attorney, prepared a

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

107. According to Maher (and others), it was customary for "parties in a transaction being negotiated such as the Coleman-Sunbeam transaction to exchange confidentiality agreements."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, this Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading, would confuse a jury, and is not relevant. Whether an "exchange" of confidentiality agreements is "customary" is not relevant to whether Coleman executed a confidentiality agreement in the form of CPH Supp. App. 204 (MS Ex. 134). There is no evidence that CPH or Coleman ever did so. See CPH's Response to ¶ 111, which is incorporated herein by reference.

108. To facilitate the exchange of information between CPH and Sunbeam, on or about February 4, 1998, Shapiro signed and sent a confidentiality agreement to Sunbeam. David C. Fannin, the executive vice president and general counsel of Sunbeam, executed the confidentiality agreement as of February 4, 1998. The confidentiality agreement is specifically referenced in the parties' merger agreements.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and inaccurate. There is no evidence that the purpose of the February 4, 1998 agreement was to "facilitate the exchange of information between CPH and Sunbeam." Coleman — not CPH — was the counterparty to the February 4, 1998 agreement. See CPH App. 203 (MS Ex. 133).

109. Schwartz, who was ultimately responsible for all in-house legal matters for MAFCO and its holding companies, agrees that the term "financial advisor" in the February 4, 1998 confidentiality agreement includes Coleman's investment banking firm, CSFB.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess such statements as they appear in the documents, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess such statements as they appear in the documents, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The documents speak for themselves.

The Court should also reject this proposed finding because it is not relevant to CPH's claims against Morgan Stanley and would mislead and confuse the jury.

111. On or about February 23, 1998, Sunbeam and Coleman entered into a second confidentiality agreement. This confidentiality agreement complemented the February 4, 1998 confidentiality agreement. The confidentiality agreement is specifically referenced in the parties' merger agreements.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

Morgan Stanley has produced no evidence that Coleman entered into a confidential agreement on February 23, 1998 in the form of CPH Supp. App. 204 (MS Ex. 134) — or, indeed, proving that Coleman entered into a second confidentiality agreement at all. The draft "agreement" that Sunbeam sent Coleman on February 23, 1998 identified precisely what was required to execute the document: "If you are in agreement with the foregoing, please sign two copies of this Agreement and return one to the undersigned, whereupon this Agreement will constitute the agreement between the Company and you with respect to the subject matter hereof.

020287

This Agreement may be executed and delivered, including by facsimile transmission, in one or more counterparts, all of which together will constitute one and the same agreement." CPH Supp. App. 204 (MS Ex. 134 at 6-7). There is no version of MS Ex. 134 that has been executed by Coleman. Id. at 7 (showing a blank signature line under the words "Confirmed and agreed to"); see also CPH App. 47 (Shapiro Dep. at 116, 119-20). Indeed, there is no version of MS Ex. 134 that has been executed by Sunbeam. CPH Supp. App. 204 (MS Ex. 134 at 4, 7). See Hinote v. Brigman, 33 So. 303, 305-06 (Fla. 1902) (where a "party neither had nor signified such an intention to close the contract until it was fully expressed in a written instrument and attested by signatures, then he will not be bound until the signatures are affixed"); Strong & Trowbridge Co. v. H. Baars & Co., 54 So. 92, 95 (Fla. 1910); 11 FLA. JUR. Contracts § 100 (2004).

By contrast, the executed February 4, 1998 Confidentiality Agreement, which bound Sunbeam to treat Coleman's information with confidence, was executed by both Sunbeam and Coleman and did not contain any blanks with missing information. CPH Supp. App. 203 (MS Ex. 133 at 1-8); see also CPH App. 30 (MS Ex. 75) (chronology reflecting the execution of the February 4, 1998, Confidentiality Agreement, but not reflecting the execution of another confidentiality agreement on February 23, 1998 or any other date).

In any event, the draft agreement would not be binding on CPH -- because Coleman, not CPH -- is identified as the counter-party to both the executed February 4, 1998 agreement and the draft February 23, 1998 agreement. CPH Supp. App. 204 (MS Ex. 134); CPH Supp. App. 203 (MS Ex. 133).

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that there was more than one confidentiality agreement, which there was not. See CPH's Response to ¶ 111, which is incorporated herein by reference.

114. Pursuant to these Confidentiality Agreements, CPH, as an affiliate of Coleman, agreed that Sunbeam and its representatives, including Morgan Stanley, would not have any liability to CPH by virtue of CPH's use of the information supplied to it by Sunbeam and its representatives, including Morgan Stanley, while the parties were negotiating Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. First, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that there was more than one confidentiality agreement, which there was not. See CPH's Response to ¶ 111, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Second, the executed February 4, 1998 agreement contains no agreement by Coleman or CPH that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley "would not have any liability to CPH by virtue of CPH's use of the information supplied to it by Sunbeam and its representatives, including Morgan Stanley, while the parties were negotiating Sunbeam's purchase of Coleman." CPH App. 203 (MS Ex. 133).

Third, even if the February 23, 1998 draft agreement was executed, which it was not, this "non-reliance" clause would have no effect on CPH's claims against Morgan Stanley. Among other things, CPH was not even contemplated as a party to the February 23 draft document. See CPH's Response to ¶ 111, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Finally, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

115. In the Confidentiality Agreements, CPH also agreed that Sunbeam and its representatives, including Morgan Stanley, did not make any representations or warranties about the accuracy or completeness of the information that they supplied to CPH.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. First, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that there was more than one confidentiality agreement, which there was not. See CPH's Response to ¶ 111, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Second, the executed February 4, 1998 agreement contains no agreement by Coleman or CPH that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley "did not make any representations or warranties about the accuracy or completeness of the information that they supplied to CPH [or Coleman]." CPH App. 203 (MS Ex. 133).

Third, even if the February 23, 1998 draft agreement was executed, which it was not, this "non-reliance" clause would have no effect on CPH's claims against Morgan Stanley. Among other things, CPH was not even contemplated as a party to the February 23 draft document. See CPH's Response to ¶ 111, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Finally, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

C. Sunbeam Stock Tumbles after It Announces Lower than Projected Profits for the 4th Quarter of 1997

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

116. On January 29, 1998, an article appeared in the Wall Street Journal entitled, "Sunbeam Posts Profits Below Forecast, A Stumble That Sends Stock Down 9.5%." MAFCO was aware of the article.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading. Following Sunbeam's announcement that its fourth quarter profits would be lower than expected, analysts continued their bullish statements about Sunbeam. See, e.g., CPH Supp. App. 205 (CPH Ex. 388 (Bear Stearns analyst report giving Sunbeam a "buy" recommendation and noting room for earnings growth)); CPH Supp. App. 206 (MS Ex. 144 (Merrill Lynch analyst report giving Sunbeam a "buy" rating and noting that it considered Sunbeam "solid")); CPH Supp. App. 207 (CPH Ex. 389 (Goldman Sachs analyst report recommending Sunbeam and noting a "great trading opportunity" and that "targeted sales growth and operating margins are real")); CPH Supp. App. 208 (MS Ex. 202 (CIBC Oppenheimer analyst report giving Sunbeam a "strong buy" recommendation and noting that its "fundamentals [were] strong and balance sheet improved")); CPH Supp. App. 209 (MS Ex. 138 (Paine Webber analyst report giving Sunbeam a "buy" recommendation and noting its "solid momentum")).

117. MAFCO continued to receive news clippings regarding the performance of various companies, including Sunbeam, in January 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

118. Following the January 29, 1998 Wall Street Journal article, Nesbitt, the primary internal analyst for MAFCO, did not contact any financial analysts who followed Sunbeam. Nesbitt did, however, review analyst reports revised in the wake of Sunbeam's announcement of fourth quarter 1997 results. He also participated in a conference call conducted by Dunlap.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading. Following Sunbeam's announcement that its fourth quarter profits would be lower than expected, analysts continued their bullish statements about Sunbeam. See CPH's Response to ¶ 116, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, this proposed finding is unsupported and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that Nesbitt should have contacted analysts in the wake of Sunbeam's fourth quarter 1997 earnings announcement. To the contrary, it would have been inappropriate and possibly illegal for Nesbitt to contact analysts to discuss Sunbeam before the transaction was announced because doing so would have revealed non-public information to the analyst community, which was anticipating some type of transaction involving Sunbeam. CPH App. 8 (Levin Dep. at 350-351); CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 133).

119. Andrew Shore, an analyst at PaineWebber and acquaintance of Levin, covered Sunbeam. Shore reported on or about January 29, 1998 that "Sunbeam has been and continues to be a very risky story"; that Sunbeam's "BPS growth target of 40 percent in 1998 is very aggressive and comes in the face of a difficult economic climate in Asia and very solid growth in [the second half of 1997]"; and that Sunbeam "is employing a risky strategy to capture a larger share of the grill market."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess such statements as they appear in the documents, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The documents speak for themselves.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because Morgan Stanley's selective quotation from the report renders the proposed finding misleading. Shore's report also contains very positive comments about Sunbeam, which Morgan Stanley ignores. For example, Shore's overall conclusion is that Sunbeam was a "good buy." Shore also stated: "Sticking with our revised 'low-end' outlook, our 12-18 month price target is $50, representing 20x the low-end of our 1999 estimate." CPH Supp. App. 210 (MS Ex. 204). Taking partial quotations out of context, as in this proposed finding of fact, presents a particular danger of bias and unfair prejudice.

120. On February 6, 1998, Shore issued another report that noted Sunbeam's "aggressive balance sheet management" and "high inventory and receivable levels" and stated that "some 'warning signs' persist."

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because Morgan Stanley's selective quotation from the document renders the proposed finding misleading. Shore's February 6, 1998 report contains very positive comments about Sunbeam, which Morgan Stanley ignores. Shore again reached the overall conclusion in his February 6, 1998 report that Sunbeam was a "good buy." Shore also stated: "Sticking with our revised 'low-end' outlook, our 12-18 month price target is $50, representing 20x the low-end of our 1999 estimate." CPH Supp. App. 210 (MS Ex. 204). Taking partial quotations out of context, as in this proposed finding of fact, presents a particular danger of bias and unfair prejudice.

121. Perelman was aware that PaineWebber was reporting "warning signs" at Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Perelman testified that he had not seen Shore's report nor had he heard what Shore reported about Sunbeam at the time. See CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 448-51). In the specific passage of Perelman's testimony herein cited by Morgan Stanley, Perelman was asked to look at MS Ex. 138: "[I]f you look at the bottom of that same paragraph, at the very bottom, that there were warning signs, do you see that?" Perelman replied, "Yes." Perelman was testifying only that he saw what the report said, but he never testified that he had read the report or was aware of the report's contents at the time. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 448-51).

Moreover, Morgan Stanley has taken the quotes from Shore's report out of context and neglected to mention that Shore reached the overall conclusion in the same report that Sunbeam was a "good buy." See CPH's Response to ¶ 120, which is incorporated herein by reference.

D. Perelman and Sunbeam Agree to Defer Due Diligence until Sunbeam Makes an Acceptable Offer

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Contrary to the heading, the parties did not "agree to defer" due diligence. CPH had been conducting due diligence since December 1997. In fact, CPH and CSFB reviewed publicly available information concerning Sunbeam, analyzed the transaction using varying assumptions, and conferred extensively with Morgan Stanley about Sunbeam and the potential transaction. See CPH's Response to ¶ 122, which is incorporated herein by reference.

122. On January 29, 1998, representatives from Sunbeam, Coleman, MAFCO, Morgan Stanley, and CSFB met in New York to discuss potential synergies that would result from a combination of Coleman and Sunbeam and to set a time frame for due diligence. This was the first meeting between representatives of Sunbeam and Coleman since December 12, 1997.

The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as Morgan Stanley implies the participants at the January 29, 1998 meeting discussed a time frame to conduct the only due diligence to be conducted on the transaction. Both CPH and CSFB had been conducting due diligence since December 1997. See CPH App. 41, 42 (MS Ex. 104 & 105); see also CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 237 ("[T]he specific due diligence relating to interaction between representatives of Sunbeam and Coleman would take place after an acceptable proposal was on the table. It doesn't mean that Levin wasn't doing work, due diligence work. It doesn't mean that Nesbitt wasn't doing it, it doesn't mean that First Boston wasn't doing it in the interim.")).

For example, beginning in December 1997, CPH representatives prepared financial analyses of the merger, see, e.g., CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 117); CPH App. 41 (MS Ex. 104); CPH App. 42 (MS Ex. 105); CPH App. 43 (MS Ex. 106); CPH App. 44 (MS Ex. 107). As Sunbeam was a public company, CPH representatives and analysts at CSFB, CPH's investment advisor, reviewed publicly available information on Sunbeam, including Sunbeam's 10-Q for the period ending September 1997, Sunbeam's 1996 Form 10-K, and various research and analyst reports, CPH App. 45 (MS Ex. 76); CPH App. 47 (Shapiro Dep. at 131); CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 415); CPH App. 49 (Geller Dep. at 31); CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 32); CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 69, 100-02, 159-62). CPH representatives also made numerous inquiries of Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam in early 1998 regarding Sunbeam's financial status since the end of the 1997 calendar year, and what Sunbeam's future "growth plan" looked like, see CPH App. 47 (Shapiro Dep. at 143). These inquiries culminated in the series of due diligence meetings held on February 23, 1998. CPH App. 47 (Shapiro Dep. at 134); CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 366-68). At those meetings, Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam presented CPH and CSFB with oral and written information concerning Sunbeam's business, Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 and full year sales and earnings expectations, and Sunbeam's position for future growth. CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 134, 146-49); CPH App. 52 (MS Ex. 84) ("Sunbeam's Long Range Strategic Plan"); CPH Supp. App. 212 (MS Ex. 85) ("Sunbeam Discussion Materials"). Following the February 23 meeting, CPH representatives conducted additional due-diligence, including discussions with Sunbeam on the company's "future operations," CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 351), and inquiries about outstanding litigation, environmental matters, and business operations.

CPH App. 50 (Shapiro Dep. at 298-99). Additionally, on February 24, CSFB met again with Sunbeam senior management to discuss Sunbeam's strategic plan and 1997 results. CPH App. 125 (MS Ex. 230). After the merger agreements were signed, CPH continued to conduct due diligence. For example, CPH obtained and reviewed copies of Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K, the March 16, 1998 preliminary offering memorandum, CPH Supp. App. 223, and the March 19, 1998 final offering memorandum, CPH Supp. App. 119 (MS Ex. 166); see also CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 171). CPH also attended Morgan Stanley's debenture offering "road show" and received a copy of the presentation materials. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 425-26, 484); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 105-06). Upon receipt of the March 19, 1998 press release, see CPH App. 79 (CPH Ex. 14), CPH representatives reviewed the release and discussed its contents. CPH App. 50 (Shapiro Dep. 333-34). Following the issuance of the March 19, 1998 press release, CPH took steps to understand Sunbeam's position on the press release and canvassed the analyst community for reaction. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 433).

Likewise, CSFB began conducting its due diligence on the Sunbeam transaction immediately after CSFB was retained by Coleman in December 1997. CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 271-72). CSFB prepared a report on the valuation of Coleman. CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 272-73); CPH App. 46 (CPH Ex. 236). CSFB studied public filings and analyst reports on Sunbeam. CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 294). CSFB prepared voluminous materials for Coleman's review, including Sunbeam's 10-Q for the period ending September 1997, Sunbeam's 1996 10-K, and numerous financial analyst research reports. CPH App. 45 (MS Ex. 76). CSFB participated in several due diligence meetings with Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam. CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 61); CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 134). CSFB made presentations to the Coleman Board of Directors on February 25th and 27th that analyzed the proposed transaction.

CPH App. 53 (CPH Ex. 239); CPH App. 54 (MS Ex. 112); CPH App. 55 (MS Ex. 88); CPH App. 56 (MS Ex. 113). Based on its due diligence and the analysis it conducted, CSFB issued an opinion to the Coleman Board that the transaction was fair from a financial point of view. CPH App. 57 (MS Ex. 120).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

123. At the January 29, 1998 meeting, the parties agreed that "the specific due diligence relating to interaction between representatives of Sunbeam and Coleman would take place after an acceptable proposal was on the table."

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. In the portion of the Maher deposition that Morgan Stanley cites, Maher was asked, "So the due diligence was to proceed once Sunbeam made an acceptable proposal; is that correct?" Maher replied, "Not necessarily," and reiterated that due diligence was ongoing and that the only due diligence discussion that was to take place after a proposal was on the table was the due diligence related to the mechanics of combining Coleman and Sunbeam and how their management would interact with one another after the merger. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 237); CPH App. 45 (MS Ex. 76); CPH App. 46 (CPH Ex. 236).

Moreover, CPH and CSFB conducted extensive due diligence beginning in December 1997. See CPH's Response to ¶ 122, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

E. Perelman Rejects Sunbeam's February 6, 1998 Proposal

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley

has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

124. On February 6, 1998, James Stynes, Alexandre Fuchs, Tyrone Chang, and Robert Kitts of Morgan Stanley met with Maher, Nesbitt, and Gordon Rich and Robert Duffy of CSFB. At that meeting, the Morgan Stanley representatives made a presentation reflecting a proposed transaction in which Coleman would be acquired by Sunbeam for consideration of .6017 Sunbeam shares per Coleman share (which was approximately $22 per share) plus warrants that Morgan Stanley valued at $4 per share.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

125. Nesbitt does not believe that there were any misrepresentations in the document (MS 81) Morgan Stanley gave Nesbitt as part of its presentation at the February 6, 1998 meeting.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Moreover, it is not material whether Nesbitt believed that Morgan Stanley had intended to misrepresent any facts in MS Ex. 81. There is ample evidence that Morgan Stanley did so. Morgan Stanley assisted Sunbeam in falsely portraying Sunbeam as a "turnaround" success at this and other meetings with CPH in December 1997 and February 1998. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 196-99, 273-74, 308); CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 182-87); CPH App. 30 (MS Ex. 75 at CPH 1401528-31); CPH App. 29 (CPH Ex. 9); CPH App. 37 (CPH Ex. 238); CPH App. 38 (CPH Ex. 316). Nesbitt himself testified that he could not believe based on the facts and Morgan Stanley's involvement with Sunbeam that

020300

Morgan Stanley did not know that Sunbeam "was a house of cards." CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 414-15). See also CPH Supp. App. 235 (CPH Supp. Resp. to MS & Co. 1st Set of Interrogs.).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

126. Maher told Morgan Stanley that MAFCO would not be prepared to support the proposed transaction and "advised Morgan Stanley that only an all-stock transaction that valued Coleman stock at $30 a share or an amount slightly lower than $30 a share if the transaction involved cash and stock would be of interest."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, the emphasis supplied by Morgan Stanley in this proposed finding is misleading and unclear. Insofar as Morgan Stanley is suggesting that Maher's February 6, 1998 proposal reflected a preference for an all-stock transaction over a transaction involving cash consideration, that suggestion is unsupported by the citations.

020301

127. Also at the February 6, 1998 meeting, James Maher suggested that, as part of an eventual Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, Sunbeam assume Coleman Worldwide's and CLN Holdings' indebtedness, which was approximately $519,000,000 as of December 31, 1997.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is incorrect and unsupported insofar as it asserts that Coleman Worldwide's and CLN Holdings' indebtedness was approximately $519,000,000 as of December 31, 1997. CPH Supp. App. 221 (Grinblatt Rep., 12/17/04, at 12). See also CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 59, 308-09, which are incorporated herein by reference.

VIII. Perelman Agrees To Sell Coleman To Sunbeam For $27.50 Per Share

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its heading in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Among other things, the consideration for the transaction was based on an exchange ratio and there was no fixed price per share. Further, the proposed heading's reference to Mr. Perelman is incorrect, misleading and improper. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference. In addition, CPH only agreed to sell the shares of Coleman that it owned. CPH did not agree to sell the publicly-owned shares of Coleman.

128. On February 13, 1998, Morgan Stanley representatives contacted Maher and proposed what was termed Sunbeam's best and final proposal, offering .65116 shares of Sunbeam stock per share of Coleman, which was approximately $24.50 per share, but Maher indicated that the proposal was not of interest. Maher then flew back to Aspen, Colorado on the afternoon of February 13, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's reference to Maher's travel as immaterial, irrelevant, misleading, and prejudicial.

129. Maher returned to New York from Aspen on February 18, 1998, and on that day was contacted by Kitts of Morgan Stanley, who invited MAFCO to make a counterproposal to Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's reference to Maher's travel as immaterial, irrelevant, misleading, and prejudicial.

130. On February 19, 1998, Maher, having consulted with Perelman, made a counterproposal to Kitts of .789 shares of Sunbeam per Coleman share, or $30 per share.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

131. Kitts responded to Maher's counterproposal on February 19, 1998, offering an exchange rate of .711 Sunbeam shares per Coleman share, or $26.90. Maher informed Kitts that Coleman "would be prepared to consider an exchange ratio of .745 shares of Sunbeam stock which was approximately $28.20 per share." Maher then flew to Aspen, Colorado, where he spent the weekend skiing before returning to New York on February 22, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's reference to Maher's travel and weekend activities as immaterial, irrelevant, misleading, prejudicial, and as an attempt to bias the jury.

132. On February 20, 1998, MAFCO received documents entitled Project Laser Proposed Summary Transaction Terms, which contained two consideration packages for the proposed transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman. This document (MS 83) "formed the basis for further negotiations and those negotiations ultimately led to an execution of the merger agreement" between Coleman and Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

133. On or about February 20, 1998, Gittis returned to New York from vacation and received an update on the negotiations undertaken in his absence. Similarly, on February 20, 1998, Levin, while in Puerto Rico, received a call from either Perelman or Gittis and was told to return to New York because Perelman had agreed to sell Coleman to

020304

Sunbeam. This was Levin's first involvement with the Sunbeam negotiations since December 1997.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

First, the details of the phone call that Levin received while in Puerto Rico are not supported by the excerpt of Levin's testimony cited by Morgan Stanley. The testimony does not establish that Levin received a phone call on February 20, 1998, does not show that Gittis called Levin on this date, and does not reveal the contents of any such conversation. Moreover, the referenced phone call was not Levin's "first involvement with the Sunbeam negotiations since December 1997." Levin was involved in the transaction between December 1997 and February 20, 1998. See CPH's Response to ¶ 94, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, CPH objects to the reference to Mr. Gittis' vacation as immaterial, irrelevant, misleading, and prejudicial. The proposed finding also is unsupported insofar as it seeks to imply that Gittis was uninformed concerning the conduct of negotiations while he was away from the office.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

134. The deal was signed one week later.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

IX. MAFCO Performs Virtually No Due Diligence Of Sunbeam Before The Execution of The Merger Agreement

020305

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. In particular, CPH and CSFB conducted due diligence on Sunbeam beginning in December 1997. See CPH's Response to ¶ 122 which is incorporated herein by reference.

135. With the Confidentiality Agreements in place, Sunbeam and MAFCO engaged in due diligence between February 23 to February 27, 1998, with each party represented by its own advisors. During this due diligence MAFCO had direct access to Sunbeam's management.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, at least some of the supporting evidence is inadmissible, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

First, the proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as Morgan Stanley asserts that the February 23, 1998 confidentiality "agreement" was "in place." The February 23, 1998 draft agreement was never executed. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 111, 114-15, which are incorporated herein by reference.

Second, the proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as Morgan Stanley implies that due diligence was conducted by CPH and Coleman only between February 23 and February 27 or that due diligence during that period was insignificant. To the contrary, there is ample evidence that CPH, along with Coleman and CSFB, conducted due diligence appropriate to the proposed transaction beginning in December 1997. See CPH's Response to ¶ 122, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Third, Morgan Stanley's assertion that CPH representatives had "direct access to Sunbeam management" between February 23 to February 27 is ambiguous and misleading. The only evidence cited by Morgan Stanley in support of this assertion establishes that CPH representatives had face-to-face discussions with senior Sunbeam executives during this period, but Morgan Stanley also was present and participated in these meetings. See CPH's Response to ¶ 167, which is incorporated herein by reference. At these meetings, Morgan Stanley also provided written materials concerning Sunbeam to CPH to bolster the information provided by Sunbeam to CPH. Id.

Morgan Stanley's participation in these meetings and discussions lent credibility to Sunbeam and to Sunbeam's representations, as Morgan Stanley well knew. For example, in Morgan Stanley's presence, Sunbeam assured CPH representatives "in no uncertain terms" that Sunbeam would meet its long term strategic plan for sales and earnings in the first quarter of 1998 and the full year. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 305-306). CPH trusted Morgan Stanley to deal honorably with CPH in the transaction. CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 352); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 86). As two of Morgan Stanley's senior executives have testified in this case, Morgan Stanley supposedly associates itself only with quality companies, and understands and expects investors to rely on that fact in making their investment decisions. See CPH App. 114 (Perella Dep. at 126 ("[I]nstitutional investors I think believe . . . that if we put our name on an underwriting, that we've done due diligence at a very high standard, and that we work for quality companies.")); id. ("So, you know, you ask me about what Schlock, Inc. means. It's — it's — it's something we don't like to be associated with. We like to be associated with first class companies and do business in a first class way, and try every day to — to live to that standard."); CPH App. 115 (Porat Dep. at 297-98).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

A. The MAFCO Due Diligence Team Is Leaderless

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Moreover, the heading is argumentative and misleading.

136. It was unclear who at MAFCO was responsible for conducting due diligence of Sunbeam. Even the most basic tasks, such as reviewing Sunbeam's financial statement for the year ending December 27, 1997, were neglected. More importantly, no one even asked for, let alone reviewed, Sunbeam's interim financial statements for January 1998, February 1998, and March 1998 prior to the Closing on March 30, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. The proposed finding also is argumentative, unsupported, and misleading.

First, and contrary to Morgan Stanley's assertion, the record reflects that due diligence on behalf of CPH and Coleman was conducted by several people, each responsible for a different aspect of due diligence. See CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 479-480); CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 324-28 (although Levin and Page made up the "laboring oar from a business standpoint," due diligence obligations were shared among the Coleman/MAFCO team)). Morgan Stanley representatives testified that Morgan Stanley itself did not place one person in charge of due diligence. CPH App. 20 (Tyree Dep. at 94, 118).

Second, there is ample evidence that CPH representatives reviewed Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. See CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 512-13) (Perelman reviewed the Sunbeam 1997 10-K); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 171) (Gittis reviewed the March 19, 1998 Offering Memorandum, which contained the same Sunbeam 1997 financial statements as the 10-K); CPH Supp. App. 184 (Schwartz Dep. at 153-54) (Schwartz reviewed the Sunbeam 1997 10-K); CPH Supp. App. 223 (March 16, 1998 Preliminary Offering Memorandum, which contained the same Sunbeam 1997 financial statements as the 10-K).

Moreover, the Court should reject the proposed finding insofar as Morgan Stanley implies that CPH should have been on notice of Sunbeam's fraud as a result of its review of Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. Sunbeam's 10-K for 1997 was false and misleading because it contained no disclosure about the various forms of earnings management practiced by the Company and their implications for future sales and liquidity. Moreover, Sunbeam's 1997 10-K fraudulently misrepresented both the scope of the early-buy program and its effect on earnings. The 10-K did not reveal that Sunbeam was stealing revenue from 1998 to increase 1997 sales and did not disclose the true extent of Sunbeam's bill-and-hold revenue or that Sunbeam's bill-and-hold sales were not true bill-and-hold sales in accordance with GAAP. See, e.g., CPH App. 34 (Perelman at 515-16). These false and misleading partial disclosures relating to "bill-and-hold" revenue recognition were fraudulent, and CPH disputes that the 10-K gave notice that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley were engaged in fraud. Indeed, Morgan Stanley's own analyst, Andrew Conway, testified that he saw no areas of concern in Sunbeam's 1997 10-K. CPH Supp. App. 211 (Conway Dep. at 23-24).

Third, the assertion that CPH failed to ask for Sunbeam's January through March 1998 "interim" financial information is misleading and substantially controverted. CPH representatives made numerous inquiries regarding Sunbeam's sales and earnings during the first quarter of 1998. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 305, 316 ("there was a substantial amount of discussion about the first quarter" at the February 23 meeting)); CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 187 (questions were asked at the February 23 meeting "related to how is [Sunbeam's] performance today, how is it going relative to analyst expectations . . . are you going to meet your numbers for the remainder of the year")); CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 231 (Levin felt that Sunbeam had disclosed its sales through February 23, 1998 at the February 23, 1998 meeting so that there was no need to request detailed sales information)).

Moreover, CPH had bargained for a material adverse change clause, which placed the burden on Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley to advise CPH of changes in Sunbeam's business and financial health. See CPH's Response to ¶ 209, which is incorporated herein by reference. There is no question that information for Sunbeam's interim financial first quarter should have been disclosed under this provision. CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 517-18); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 184). Instead, CPH was falsely reassured by Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam that Sunbeam would meet first quarter 1998 and full year 1998 sales and earnings expectations. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 135, 263, which are incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

137. Engelman said MAFCO' s due diligence leaders were Maher and Schwartz: "Q: [D]id you ever learn who on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes has been responsible for due diligence of Sunbeam corporation in connection with the acquisition? A: It would have been Jim Maher and to some extent Barry Schwartz."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

138. Schwartz, however, denied that he had any responsibility for due diligence: "Q: Did you going forward from the date of January 28 have any responsibility for the due diligence on the seller's side? A: I did not participate in any of the due diligence on our side of the transaction, no." Schwartz testified that "Maher was sort of leading the charge."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

139. Gittis said Maher and Levin were responsible for due diligence: "Now, turning to the Coleman Sunbeam transaction, the negotiations, externally — was Mr. Maher, in your view, the head negotiator? A. Mr. Maher and Mr. Levin. Q. Mr. Levin on behalf of Coleman? A. Mr. Levin on behalf of the Coleman Company Inc. Mr. Maher on behalf of the various Coleman holding companies and the MacAndrews companies."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

020311

Furthermore, the proposed finding is unsupported because the quoted testimony from Gittis describes responsibility for "negotiations," not "due diligence" as Morgan Stanley's proposed finding asserts.

140. Nesbitt said it was Maher: "I think it is fair to say that Mr. Maher was responsible for coordinating the transaction generally which included due diligence."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

141. But Maher denied he had responsibility for due diligence: "Q: Did you [James Maher] have overall responsibility for monitoring the due diligence? A: No."

The proposed finding also is substantially controverted insofar as it implies that Maher disclaimed any responsibility for due diligence. Maher testified that due diligence obligations for CPH and Coleman were shared among several people. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference.

020312

142. Maher, in turn, pointed the finger at Levin, Joe Page (Coleman's Chief Financial Officer), and Coleman's accountants (Ernst & Young LLP): "Q: [L]et me ask you whether there was a person on behalf of MacAndrews & Forbes that had overall responsibility for this due diligence that was conducted between February 24 and February 27, 1998? A: I would say the laboring oar was, from a business standpoint, was Jerry Levin and Joe Page and their accountants [Ernst & Young]. Obviously from a legal standpoint it was Wachtell, Lipton and First Boston was involved with both the legal and financial, business due diligence."

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is argumentative, misleading, and highly prejudicial insofar as it asserts that Maher "pointed the finger" at others. The proposed finding also is substantially controverted insofar as it implies that Maher disclaimed any responsibility for due diligence. Maher testified that due diligence obligations for CPH and Coleman were shared among several people. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference.

143. Page's testimony, however, reveals that he considered his due diligence responsibilities to be somewhat more limited:

> Q. Were you involved with or responsible for conducting any due diligence on Sunbeam prior to the acquisition?
> A. No.
> Q. Did you work with any of Coleman's outside advisors who were tasked with doing due diligence on Sunbeam?
>
> A. No.
> Q. Did you perform an evaluation of the deal for Coleman?
>
> A. No.
> Q. Do you know who, if anyone, did perform such evaluation?
> A. I don't have a direct recollection of anybody performing that that I would have known. If it would have been done, it would have been done by MacAndrews & Forbes staff.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

144. Levin, the individual Maher identified as taking the "laboring oar" on due diligence, testified that his due diligence responsibilities consisted of "review[ing] Sunbeam's business plan and long term strategy" and "going to the [February 23, 1998] meeting."

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is controverted to the extent it implies that Levin was the "laboring oar" with respect to all due diligence on Sunbeam or did not fulfill his due diligence responsibilities. Levin was not responsible for all due diligence of Sunbeam, but charged with conducting operating due diligence. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. 324 (Levin was "laboring oar" from a business standpoint)). See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference. Thus, Levin's review of Sunbeam's business plan and long-term strategy is consistent with his responsibilities. Moreover, Levin's operational due diligence was intensive, as he questioned the company about its new product lines and sought additional detail for several elements of Sunbeam's long range strategic plan. CPH App. 7, 8 (Levin Dep. at 182-242; 252-55).

145. Levin had no responsibility for due diligence of Sunbeam after the signing of the merger agreements. Indeed, Levin testified that he "was out of the company completely" following the signing of the merger agreements.

In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. B. Maher Does No Due Diligence of Sunbeam

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

146. Maher was capable of performing due diligence in connection with a merger such as the Sunbeam-Coleman merger.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

147. Maher did not review the Sunbeam 10-K for 1997 —which contained Sunbeam's audited financial statements for the year ending December 27, 1997 — before the closing of the merger agreements.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. First, Maher testified that he did "not recall" reading the Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K — not that he did not do so. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 27-28).

Moreover, this proposed finding is misleading insofar as it implies that CPH and Maher failed to review Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. Maher was given a copy of the same Sunbeam financial statements as are contained in Sunbeam's Form 10-K, and several other CPH representatives also reviewed Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. See CPH Supp. App. 223 (March 16, 1998 offering memorandum addressed to Jim Maher); see also CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference. This proposed finding also is misleading insofar as it implies that readers of Sunbeam's 10-K would have been on notice of Sunbeam's fraud. Morgan Stanley's own analyst saw no areas of concern in Sunbeam's 1997 10-K. Id.

148. Maher did not read the March 19, 1998 Offering Memorandum (MS 166) for the Sunbeam debentures underwritten by Morgan Stanley in connection with the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 147, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

149. Maher did not read or even request copies of Sunbeam's 1998 interim financial statements before the closing on March 30, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

150. MAFCO was aware that Sunbeam maintained a room of material (a so-called, data room) that contained a collection of documents that might be required for due diligence. Nesbitt testified that he never visited this room, and did not know if anyone from the Coleman team actually visited the room.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

C. CSFB Does No Due Diligence of Sunbeam

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

151. CSFB, the exclusive financial advisor to MAFCO, CPH, and Coleman, was capable of performing due diligence in connection with a merger such as the Sunbeam-Coleman merger in 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020318

The Court also should reject the proposed finding because it is inaccurate and misleading insofar as it characterizes CSFB as the "exclusive financial advisor to MAFCO [and] CPH." CSFB was the "exclusive" financial advisor to The Coleman Company, Inc. See CPH App. 122 (Slovin Dep. at 182). CPH and MAFCO also received and relied upon financial information and projections from Morgan Stanley, including Morgan Stanley's "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials," and "Sunbeam's Long Range Strategic Plan," CPH App. 29 (CPH Ex. 9); CPH App. 37 (CPH Ex. 238), which were presented to CPH representatives at the meeting conducted by Morgan Stanley at its offices on February 23, 1998.

152. CSFB was instructed by MAFCO "to do their normal due diligence that they would conduct in a transaction like this."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

153. Among its responsibilities, CSFB was assigned the task of reviewing Sunbeam's audited and unaudited financial statements. CSFB, however, never asked for or reviewed Sunbeam's unaudited interim financial statements for January, February or March 1998.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020319

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that CSFB should have reviewed Sunbeam's unaudited "interim" financial statements for the first quarter of 1998. For the reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

154. Perelman testified that he was not aware of anyone from CSFB who "review[ed] any unaudited financial statements such as interim financial statements of Sunbeam" for any period in 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that CSFB should have reviewed Sunbeam's unaudited "interim" financial statements for the first quarter of 1998. For the reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

155. In a February 25, 1998 internal memorandum to the CSFB Investment Banking Committee, Gordon Rich, Steven Duffy, Robert Geller, Ramesh Chakrapani — the CSFB personnel who worked on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction — described the extent of CSFB's "normal due diligence" which did not include reviewing Sunbeam's interim financial statements for any period in 1998:

> 12. Due Diligence

> CSFB has had a long relationship with Coleman. It participated in the initial public offering of the Company in 1992 and several financings since then. In connection with this transaction, the CSFB team has met several times with Coleman senior management (primarily Jerry Levin, the CEO, and Joe Page, the CFO) to discuss the Company's historical and financial results.

CSFB also met with Sunbeam senior management on February 23, 1998 and February 24, 1998 to discuss Sunbeam's strategic plan and 1997 results. CSFB attendees were Robert Duffy and Steven Geller.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Nothing in the February 25, 1998 internal CSFB memorandum suggests that the due diligence listed in that memo was "the extent" of the due diligence conducted by CSFB. Indeed, the memorandum does not mention much of the due diligence performed by CSFB. As set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 122, which is incorporated herein by reference, CSFB conducted due diligence appropriate to the transaction contemplated.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that CSFB should have reviewed Sunbeam's unaudited "interim" financial statements for the first quarter of 1998. For the reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

156. The law firm of Wachtell, Lipton, Rosen & Katz, the legal advisor to MAFCO, CPH, and Coleman, was capable of performing due diligence in connection with a transaction like the Sunbeam-Coleman merger in 1998.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that Wachtell was qualified or expected to conduct the same sort of business due diligence as investment bankers or that Wachtell had the same access to Sunbeam's information as Morgan Stanley. See CPH Supp. App. 224 (CPH's Resps. and Objs. to Morgan Stanley & Co. E. Ernst & Young Does No Due Diligence of Sunbeam

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

159. In conducting due diligence, both MAFCO and Morgan Stanley relied upon the financial statements of Sunbeam as audited by Arthur Andersen.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

CPH relied on far more that Sunbeam's audited financial statements. For example, CPH, Coleman, and CSFB met extensively with Morgan Stanley; met with Sunbeam's senior executives together with Morgan Stanley; reviewed analyst reports; reviewed materials provided by Morgan Stanley; reviewed the debenture offering memoranda, reviewed press releases, and attended the debenture roadshow. See, e.g., CPH's Response to Paragraph 122, which is incorporated herein by reference.

020323

Morgan Stanley was in a much different position than CPH. After all, Morgan Stanley had a duty, as Sunbeam's investment banker and as the sole underwriter of Sunbeam's subordinated debenture offering, to investigate Sunbeam's finances and business operations. As a matter of law, that duty included an obligation to verify management's claims about Sunbeam's finances and business. The United States District Court for the Southern District of New York recently reemphasized that point in its December 15, 2004 decision in In re Worldcom, Inc. Securities Litigation: "The public relies on the underwriter to obtain and verify relevant information and then make sure that essential facts are disclosed." CPH App. 112 (Decision at 121-22).

Morgan Stanley had had a wealth of information about Sunbeam's true financial condition that was not available to CPH. As Morgan Stanley itself put it, Morgan Stanley had "gained an extremely sound knowledge of the Company" as a result of "working closely with Sunbeam" since April 1997. CPH App. 86 (CPH Ex. 76). Beginning in April 1997, Morgan Stanley conducted extensive due-diligence on Sunbeam, sending more than a dozen representatives to Sunbeam's headquarters to study every facet of the business. CPH App. 19 (CPH Ex. 37); CPH App. 12 (Smith Dep. at 91); CPH App. 20 (Tyree Dep. at 575-81); CPH App. 21 (CPH Ex. 84); CPH App. 11 (Kitts Dep. at 16-19); CPH App. 22 (CPH Ex. 172); CPH App. 23 (Rafii Dep. at 106-08); CPH App. 24 (CPH Ex. 173); CPH App. 25 (CPH Ex. 221); CPH App. 26 (Yoo Dep. at 83-88); CPH App. 27 (CPH Ex. 245). During that time, Strong personally spoke with Dunlap and/or Kersh in Florida between 50 and 100 times. CPH App. 9 (Strong Dep. at 53-54).

On March 12, 1998, just one week before the issuance of the March 19 press release, Morgan Stanley received a warning from Sunbeam's auditors that Sunbeam had engaged in aggressive revenue recognition practices, with a robust bill-and-hold strategy and many sales that included a 100% right of return. CPH App. 63 (Bornstein Dep. at 104-06); CPH App. 64 (CPH Ex. 123). On March 18, Morgan Stanley and its attorneys received a draft comfort letter from Sunbeam's outside auditors precisely detailing Sunbeam's massive sales shortfall in the first quarter of 1998, its disastrous earnings, and massive increase in long-term debt, as well as the primary cause of the sales shortfall. The letter proved false all the representations made at the February 23, 1998 face-to-face meeting, all the representations made in the written presentations Morgan Stanley had given to CPH, and all the representations made at other meetings about Sunbeam's turnaround and position for future growth. CPH App. 70 (CPH Ex. 24); CPH App. 69 (CPH Ex. 17); CPH App. 71 (CPH Ex. 344). One of Morgan Stanley's attorneys at Davis Polk stated that, as a matter of general practice, comfort letters would not be shared with anyone other than the underwriter (in this case, Morgan Stanley) on the transaction. CPH App. 73 (Lurie Dep. at 172-73).

020324

Morgan Stanley also had in its possession Mr. Uzzi's "build-up" chart showing Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam had only $101.6 million in net sales as of March 18, 1998. CPH App. 76 (CPH Ex. 16) On March 25, five days before the Coleman transaction closed, Arthur Andersen sent Morgan Stanley a "bring down" comfort letter revealing that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 situation had deteriorated even further. Morgan Stanley now knew that Sunbeam had incurred a net loss of $11 million in the first two months of the first quarter of 1998, excluding one-time charges. CPH App. 88 (CPH Ex. 112 at CPH 129615); CPH App. 72 (Dean Dep. at 177); CPH App. 73 (Lurie Dep. at 170-72). Thus, it is clear that Morgan Stanley knew far more about Sunbeam than simply just some audited financial statements.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection

Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

160. Maher testified that an accounting due diligence by Ernst & Young would have been done under the direction of Joe Page, Coleman's CFO. Page testified that he did not know of any such due diligence.

Furthermore, to the extent that the proposed finding of fact implies that Joe Page was told to instruct Ernst & Young to "conduct accounting due diligence," that fact is controverted. Page testified that he "would have alerted Ernst & Young that we were going to be acquired; that they may be requested to make their working papers available to Sunbeam's auditors." CPH App. 51 (Page Dep. at 124).

X. Sunbeam Discloses To MAFCO That Sunbeam's January And February 1998 Sales Are "Slow"

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. In fact, as shown below, this heading mischaracterizes the record evidence. Moreover, "slow" does not even begin to described Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales meltdown.

A. MAFCO Representatives Hear Sunbeam's Plans for the Next Three Years

161. On February 23, 1998, a series of three meetings were held regarding the potential transaction between Coleman and Sunbeam. At the first meeting, representatives of MAFCO, Coleman, Morgan Stanley, and CSFB met to conduct due diligence on Coleman.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

162. At the second February 23, 1998 meeting, representatives from MAFCO met with CSFB "to discuss the status of the transaction" between Coleman and Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

163. The third and final meeting on February 23, 1998 took place at the offices of Morgan Stanley and was attended by Nesbitt, Shapiro, and Maher of MAFCO; Isko, Fannin, Goudis, and Kersh of Sunbeam; Levin and Page from Coleman; Duffy of CSFB; and Messrs. Chang, Kitts, Fuchs, and Stynes of Morgan Stanley. The meeting lasted for "at least an hour."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Furthermore, the proposed finding is misleading insofar as it implies that the meeting lasted only 1 hour. CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 288). The evidence that Morgan Stanley cites does not support the statement that Isko attended the meeting on behalf of Sunbeam. Isko attended the meeting on behalf of Coleman. CPH App. 30 (MS Ex. 75). Further, Shapiro was an employee of Coleman, not MAFCO. CPH App. 47 (Shapiro Dep. at 26-27).

164. Levin attended the third meeting because he was, in his own words, "probably in the best position to evaluate [Sunbeam's] business plans from our group."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

165. At the third meeting, Russell Kersh, chief financial officer of Sunbeam, gave a presentation using overheads of a document entitled "Sunbeam Strategic Long Range Plan," which summarized in bullet-point fashion Sunbeam's projections for 1998 through 2000, as well as other information about Sunbeam.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020328

This proposed finding is misleading, incomplete, and substantially controverted insofar as it suggests that Morgan Stanley played no role in the February 23, 1998 presentation and that Sunbeam was the sole source of information presented at the February 23, 1998 meeting. To the contrary, Morgan Stanley played a critical role in the presentation, and Morgan Stanley's presence lent credibility to Sunbeam's presentation, and gave CPH comfort. See CPH's Responses to ¶ 135, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the proposed finding is misleading and unsupported insofar as it asserts that the Long Range Plan "summarized in bullet point fashion."

166. Levin "understood that the financial matters that were presented [by Kersh] were projections three years into the future."

This proposed finding is misleading, incomplete, and substantially controverted insofar as it suggests that only projections were presented at the February 23, 1998 meeting. To the contrary, Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley made numerous misrepresentations concerning historical and current facts concerning Sunbeam, as well as projections that both Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley knew had no basis in fact. See CPH Supp. App. 225 (CPH's Resp. to Morgan Stanley's First Set of Interrogs. at 10-14); CPH Supp. App. 226 (CPH's Resp. to Morgan Stanley's Fourth Set of Interrogs. at 3-4); CPH Supp. App. 227 (CPH's Amended Resp. to Morgan Stanley's Fourth Set of Interrogs. at 2-3).

167. Morgan Stanley did not make a presentation at the third February 23, 1998 meeting.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. To the extent that this proposed finding of fact implies that Morgan Stanley did not make representations at the third February 23, 1998 meeting, that fact is plainly wrong. At that meeting, which was held at Morgan Stanley's offices, Morgan Stanley gave CPH an 85-page book — in a blue Morgan Stanley binder with the Morgan Stanley logo on every page — that it had created. CPH App. 29 (CPH Ex. 9); CPH App. 38 (CPH Ex. 316 at MSC 27062-63); CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 367-69); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 48); CPH App. 26 (Yoo Dep. at 114). Morgan Stanley's book promoted Sunbeam's supposed turnaround and represented that Sunbeam was well-positioned to continue its extraordinary growth in sales and earnings through 1998 and beyond. CPH App. 29 (CPH Ex. 9).

CPH and Coleman representatives also received a second document at the February 23 meeting entitled "Sunbeam Long Range Strategic Plan." CPH App. 37 (CPH Ex. 238). Morgan Stanley introduced Kersh's oral presentation of Sunbeam's long-range strategic plan and fielded questions from CPH representatives. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 308-09). Sunbeam senior management — with the imprimatur of Morgan Stanley, which had been representing Sunbeam for months — represented that "Sunbeam was going to make their numbers." CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 187); see also CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 306 ("Mr. Kersh in no uncertain terms said that not only was he going to make 'what the Street's forecast was,' but they were going to make their budget in the first quarter and for the year.")); accord CPH App. 50 (Shapiro Dep. at 388). Morgan Stanley's presence and participation lent credibility to Sunbeam and gave CPH substantial comfort in the information that CPH received. See CPH's Response to ¶ 135, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

B. Sunbeam Alerts MAFCO that Sunbeam's Sales are "Slow"

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. As shown below, this heading mischaracterizes the record evidence. Moreover, "slow" does not even begin to accurately describe Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse.

168. Attendees at the third February 23, 1998 meeting received a hard copy version of Kersh's presentation. Levin made notations on his copy of the document. MS 84 is Levin's copy of the "Long Range Plan" with his handwritten notes.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

169. Specifically, in the section of the presentation that covered Sunbeam's net sales in 1998, Levin made the notation "Jan Feb Slow," as set forth below.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. First, to the extent that Morgan Stanley implies that Levin's notations indicate he was told that January and February were slow, this proposed fact is misleading and substantially controverted. CPH App. 52 (MS Ex. 84) plainly shows that Levin wrote "slow" next to "Jan." but not next to "Feb." At his deposition, Levin testified that he did not recall what he was told about February sales. CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 229). Morgan Stanley also cites Perelman's testimony, but Perelman contradicts Morgan Stanley's assertion that the notation meant that February sales were slow. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 371 ("I think the notes should be taken in context for the whole notes that January is slow, February good")). Perelman also testified that Levin reported to him after the meeting that January sales were "slow," February sales were "fine," and that the statements by Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam were "bullish." CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 372-73); see also CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 102). Moreover, "slow" does not even begin to accurately describe Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Moreover, Morgan Stanley's own documents and witness testimony debunk Morgan Stanley's suggestion that the attendees at the February 23, 1998 meeting were told that Sunbeam's January and February 1998 sales were slow or that Sunbeam was performing poorly. The Morgan Stanley participants at the meeting prepared a March 10, 1998 internal Morgan Stanley memorandum seeking approval to underwrite the debenture offering. That memorandum contains no reference to any sales slowdown in either January or February of 1998. CPH App. 126 (CPH Ex. 129); CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 245-50). Indeed, Ruth Porat, the Managing Director of Morgan Stanley's equity capital markets, who was Morgan Stanley's Rule 1.310 designee on the procedures for obtaining such internal approvals and who was heavily involved in the debenture offering, testified that the first time she heard Sunbeam's sales were slow was on March 18. CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 96, 147). Consistent with Porat's testimony, no other participants in the February 23 meeting recall any comments that Sunbeam's first quarter sales were slow and no other copies of the Long Range Strategic Plan contains that notation. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 305); CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 188-89); CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 151); CPH App. 49 (Geller Dep. at 111-12).

020332

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

170. Between February 23, 1998 and the March 30, 1998 closing, Levin does not know of anyone at MAFCO or Coleman, including himself, who asked Sunbeam for "detailed information on Sunbeam's net sales for any period in the first quarter of 1998."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

This proposed finding should be rejected because it is misleading and substantially controverted for the reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference. Those facts demonstrate that CPH requested "detailed information" regarding Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales and earnings.

171. Levin further noted that Sunbeam's estimated earnings per share for 1998 would be "$1.99" rather than the $2.20 that was indicated in the text of the document.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. First, Morgan Stanley's characterization of Levin's notations is misleading and substantially controverted. As Levin testified, his notation of "$1.99" on MS 84 referred to the street estimate — not Sunbeam's estimate.

020333

> Q. Below the earnings per share line it looks like you have written 1.99 and then there's something in writing after that. Can you read that into the record for us?
> A. Yes. It's 1.99 street.
> Q. Was that the street estimate for earnings?
>
> A. Yes.

CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 235).

Second, Levin testified that he believed, based on what he was told at the February 23, 1998 meeting, that the street estimate of $1.99 was "certainly achievable." CPH App. 8 (Levin Dep. at 258).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

172. At the meeting, Sunbeam also provided a packet of information entitled "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials February 1998." Levin, Coleman's expert on consumer products for MAFCO, said he never saw the documents.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted. Morgan Stanley prepared and distributed to CPH the "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials February 1998." See CPH's Response to ¶ 167, which is incorporated herein by reference. In fact, Gittis, whose testimony Morgan Stanley cites in support of its assertion, testified that the document "had a beautiful blue Morgan Stanley cover on it." CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 48).

020334

Second, Morgan Stanley has mischaracterized Levin's testimony. Levin testified that he did "not recall" Morgan Stanley's discussion materials. Taken in isolation, that Levin does not recall seeing the document is not probative of whether he actually saw it six years ago. In any event, other CPH representatives including Perelman and Gittis, testified that they reviewed it in detail. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 48; 133-34); CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 367-68).

173. These Discussion Materials are Evaluation Materials as defined in the Confidentiality Agreements. The financial information contained in MS 85 regarding Sunbeam came from various public sources, including an Oppenheimer research report. Gittis testified that he was "sure" that MAFCO already possessed the Oppenheimer research report cited by Morgan Stanley in the "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials February 1998" packet.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

First, to the extent that the proposed finding of fact implies that CPH was not entitled to rely on Morgan Stanley's "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials February 1998," CPH App. 29, pursuant to provisions in the Confidentiality Agreements, that fact is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. The February 4, 1998 agreement contains no provision that would preclude CPH's reliance on information provided by Morgan Stanley. See CPH's Response to ¶ 114, which is incorporated herein by reference. The February 23, 1998 draft confidential "agreement," CPH Supp. App. 204, also does not bar CPH's claims. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 111, 114, which are incorporated herein by reference.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020335

Second, by using and relying on publicly available information concerning Sunbeam, Morgan Stanley vouched for and gave that information credibility. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 140 ("Q. With regard to the projections going forward that you mentioned, those are also footnoted as being projections from Oppenheimer, an Oppenheimer research report; correct? A. Yeah, that doesn't excuse them. They were — are being presented to me by Morgan Stanley as being accurate")). Whether CPH also had access to some of the same underlying information is controverted. See CPH Supp. App. 227 (CPH's Resps. and Objs. to MS & Co.'s Fourth Set of Reqs. for Admis., at 8-9).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, to the extent the proposed finding incorporates a snippet of Gittis' deposition testimony, it is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

174. Gittis did not participate in the third February 23, 1998 meeting, but he testified that he reviewed the materials distributed at the meeting that same day.

Although CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

020336

175. Gittis did not ask CSFB to investigate any of the statements in the "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials February 1998." Nor did Gittis know if anyone on the MAFCO team investigated any of the statements about Sunbeam made in the "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials February 1998."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

The Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that CPH did not investigate the statements contained in Morgan Stanley's Discussion Materials. That investigation plainly took place. See, e.g., CPH's Response to ¶ 167, which is incorporated herein by reference (describing the discussions of the February 23, 1998 meeting).

176. Maher was asked if he could recall "any specific question ever asked of Morgan Stanley at the February 23 meeting [about] whether Sunbeam would meet its net sales objectives for the first quarter of 1998." Maher did not recall any such question.

Furthermore, Morgan Stanley has misstated Maher's testimony. Maher testified that he did "not recall" whether any questions regarding Sunbeam's sale objectives for the first quarter of 1998 were asked of Morgan Stanley. Taken in isolation, that Maher does not recall any such question is not probative of whether those questions were asked of Morgan Stanley. Moreover, Maher testified that Sunbeam assured CPH representatives, in Morgan Stanley's presence, that Sunbeam stated "in no uncertain terms" that Sunbeam would meet its long term strategic plan for sales and earnings in the first quarter of 1998 and the full year. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 305-306). See also CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 187 (questions were asked at the February 23 meeting "related to how is [Sunbeam's] performance today, how is it going relative to analyst expectations . . . are you going to meet your numbers for the remainder of the year")); CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 231 (Levin felt that Sunbeam had disclosed its sales through February 23, 1998 at the February 23, 1998 meeting); (CPH App. 50 (Shapiro Dep. at 388). Morgan Stanley's participation gave credibility to those representations. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 102, 135, which are incorporated herein by reference. See CPH App. 114 (Perella Dep. at 126); see also CPH App. 115 (Porat Dep. at 297-98); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 152-53); see also CPH's Response to ¶ 135, which is incorporated herein by reference.

020337

177. Maher was asked if he could recall "any question asked of Morgan Stanley at the February 23 meeting [about] whether Sunbeam would meet its earnings per share estimates of $2.20 for the first quarter of 1998." Maher did not recall any such question.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

020338

Furthermore, taken in isolation, the fact that Maher does not recall any specific question asked of Morgan Stanley about whether Sunbeam would meet its earnings per share estimates of $2.20 for the first quarter of 1998 is not probative of whether questions were asked of Morgan Stanley on this issue. Sunbeam assured CPH representatives, in Morgan Stanley's presence, that Sunbeam would achieve earnings of $2.20 per share in 1998. CPH App. 50 (Shapiro Dep. at 283-84); CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 185-87). Moreover, this proposed finding of fact is misleading because the $2.20 figure was for the year of 1998, and not only for the first quarter, as Morgan Stanley suggests. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 198-199). Morgan Stanley's participation gave credibility to those representations. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 102, 135, which are incorporated herein by reference. See CPH App. 114 (Perella Dep. at 126); see also CPH App. 115 (Porat Dep. at 297-98); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 152-53); see also CPH's Response to ¶ 135, which is incorporated herein by reference.

178. Maher was asked whether "anyone ask[ed] Morgan Stanley at the [February 23, 1998] meeting whether Sunbeam would meet its long term strategic plan net sales goals." Maher testified that no one posed such a question to Morgan Stanley.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is substantially controverted. Sunbeam assured CPH representatives, in Morgan Stanley's presence, that Sunbeam would achieve earnings of $2.20 per share in 1998 and that net sales were on track with Sunbeam's long term strategic plan. CPH App. 50 (Shapiro Dep. at 283-84; 334); CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 421; CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 185-87). Morgan Stanley's participation gave credibility to those representations. See CPH's Response to ¶ 135, which is incorporated herein by reference.

179. Maher could not recall anyone at the meeting asking Sunbeam for a copy of Sunbeam's interim financial statements for the month of January 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that CPH should have requested Sunbeam's "interim" financial statements at the February 23, 1998 meeting. Thus, for the reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

C. In the Elevator, Levin Tells Maher and Nesbitt that Sunbeam's Plans Are "Quite a Stretch" and Not Achievable

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Moreover, the heading is argumentative and misleading.

180. Levin left the February 23, 1998 meeting with Maher and Nesbitt and rode down in the elevator with them. In the elevator, Levin told them both that Sunbeam's projections were "quite a stretch" and not achievable.

A. Yes.

Q. Where did that discussion take place?

A. Between the conference room we were in and reaching the lobby of the Morgan Stanley building.

Q. Do you recall the discussion?

A. I recall some of it.

Q. What do you recall?

A. I voiced an opinion.

Q. What was your opinion? Who did you voice the opinion to from — while you were traveling from the Morgan Stanley conference room to the lobby of the building?

A. The MacAndrews & Forbes people.

Q. What did you tell them?

A. That I thought the sales in that, and net income expectations of the long-range plan were quite a stretch and I did not think they were achievable.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. In addition, this proposed finding is substantially controverted insofar as it implies that Levin knew that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley were committing a fraud or that Sunbeam was experiencing any financial difficulties prior to February 27, 1998. The proposed finding of fact is also misleading insofar as it selectively quotes Levin and mischaracterizes his assessment of Sunbeam's condition and position for future growth. In fact, Levin testified that he believed Sunbeam was performing well and that analyst estimates for Sunbeam were "certainly achievable." CPH App. 8 (Levin Dep. at 258). Levin's testimony certainly does not support a finding that he was aware of the information contained in the March 19 and March 25 comfort letters. That is confirmed by Levin's vote in favor of the transaction as a member of Coleman's board of directors with fiduciary duties to the public shareholders.

Moreover, Levin concedes that any concerns he had about accepting Sunbeam stock went against conventional wisdom at the time: "I was a lone voice in the wilderness with all of Wall Street and the stock is high and Dunlap's book being a best seller, all those things, I was one voice and [Perelman] chose to ignore me and go with the conventional wisdom ... that Dunlap was the future of CEOs, that that was the right way of running a company." CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 136-37).

Moreover, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. Except where the rules permit a party to designate portions of the deposition transcripts for use at trial, the jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

181. Levin reiterated his opinion the next morning to Perelman, Gittis, and Maher:

> Q. Between the evening of February 23rd, 1998 and the conclusion of the meeting that we have been going over, discussing Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84 and the actual execution of the merger agreements, as of February 27th, 1998, did you have any discussions with anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes or Coleman about Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84?

BIDEAU: Other than the elevator —

Q. Other than the elevator conversation, yes.

A. Probably.

Q. Did you have any specific recollection of those conversations, as you sit here today?

A. Not specific, no.

Q. Do you have any general recollection of discussions of the, of Morgan Stanley Exhibit 84, of —

A. That was the presentation?

Q. Yes, sir. From the conclusion of the presentation up to the signing of the merger agreements on February 27th.

A. Yes.

Q. What is your general recollection?

A. That I felt the strategic plan, as presented, was a stretch, unlikely to be achieved, but that I thought it was reasonable that they would achieve growth and earnings in line with whatever, where Wall Street was, which was considerably below the strategic plan at that point.

And I did not have any particular thoughts, one way or the other, as to whether the stock was valued high or low, as a result.

Q. Who did you have these discussions with?

A. I am sure I had them with Mr. Perelman and Mr. Gittis and associates.

Q. Would Mr. Maher be within that group?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would Mr. Nesbitt be in that group?

A. He may or may not have been in attendance.

Q. Where did these discussions take place, if you remember?

A. They — almost certainly took place the next morning. Assuming that was not the Friday night — I don't — February 23rd?

Q. It was a Monday, I believe.

A. I am almost certain they took place the next morning, either at breakfast at the townhouse or after breakfast at the townhouse — the MacAndrews & Forbes headquarters, I should say.

Q. And the townhouse, and the headquarters are virtually within 100 yards of each other; correct?

A. It is a lot closer.

For the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 180, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

182. Nesbitt did not believe that Morgan Stanley intended to misrepresent any information presented at the third February 23, 1998 meeting.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

This proposed finding of fact is misleading and unsupported because Morgan Stanley has misstated Nesbitt's testimony. Morgan Stanley cites Nesbitt's testimony that "based on information that I am aware of, that I have been shown through discovery, I am not aware at this point that there was an intent to misrepresent." CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 384). Moreover, it is not material whether Nesbitt believed that Morgan Stanley intended to misrepresent any facts at the February 23, 1998 meeting. There is ample evidence that Morgan Stanley did so by, among other things, assisting Morgan Stanley in falsely portraying Sunbeam as a "turnaround" success at this and other meetings with CPH. See CPH's Response to ¶ 125, which is incorporated herein by reference. As Nesbitt explained, Sunbeam, in the presence of Morgan Stanley, reassured CPH representatives that Sunbeam would exceed analysts' expectations for net sales and earnings in the first quarter of 1998 and the full year. CPH App. 35 (Nesbitt Dep. at 185-87). Morgan Stanley's presence and participation in the meeting lent credibility to the representations about Sunbeam. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 102, 135, which are incorporated herein by reference. See CPH App. 114 (Perella Dep. at 126); see also CPH App. 115 (Porat Dep. at 297-98); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 152-53); see also CPH's Response to ¶ 135, which is incorporated herein by reference.

020344

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

183. Following the third February 23, 1998 meeting where MAFCO was informed that sales were "slow," Nesbitt did not speak with any financial analysts who followed Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

For the reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 169, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact insofar as it asserts that CPH was informed that Sunbeam's sales were "slow" because the proposed finding is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Moreover, "slow" does not even begin to accurately describe Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse.

Further, the proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that Nesbitt should have spoken to financial analysts about Sunbeam following the February 23, 1998 meeting. It would have been improper and possibly illegal for Nesbitt to do so. See CPH's Response to ¶ 118, which is incorporated herein by reference.

184. Following the February 23, 1998 meeting, Levin informed both Perelman ("the final decision maker") and Gittis (his "right hand") that Sunbeam was experiencing slow sales in 1998.

This proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it asserts that Levin knew or told Perelman and Gittis that "Sunbeam was experiencing slow sales in 1998." Moreover, "slow" does not even begin to accurately describe Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse. Thus, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 169, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

185. The CLN Merger Agreement between Sunbeam and Coleman was first presented to the full Coleman board of directors at a board meeting on February 25, 1998, only 2 days after Sunbeam and Coleman began their due diligence of each other. The meeting lasted about 90 minutes.

This proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it asserts that CPH did not begin its due diligence of Sunbeam until February 23, 1998. Thus, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 122, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

186. At the February 25, 1998 board meeting Levin made a presentation to the board, telling them the transaction was "structured to put Sunbeam in control as quickly as possible in order to reduce disruption to [Coleman's] business."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading and unsupported insofar as it implies that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley had no interest in closing the transaction quickly. To the contrary, both Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley were eager to close the transaction quickly. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 98-99).

187. At the February 25, 1998 meeting, Maher made a presentation to the board about the history of the negotiations between Sunbeam and MAFCO. Maher reported that there were no other bidders interested in Coleman.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

188. At the February 25, 1998 meeting, CSFB made a presentation to the Coleman board regarding the proposed transaction. CSFB advised the board that Sunbeam was paying a 44.2 percent premium over Coleman's stock based on the closing price of Coleman's stock on February 24.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading and unsupported insofar as it implies that Sunbeam overpaid for Coleman.

189. Although Maher, Levin, Perelman, Nesbitt, and Gittis attended the board meeting, no one told the board about Sunbeam's slow sales in early 1998 or Levin's opinion that Sunbeam's "Strategic Long Term Plan" was "quite a stretch" and "probably not achievable."

This proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that any of Maher, Levin, Perelman, Nesbitt, or Gittis knew of Sunbeam's "slow sales" in February or March 1998. Moreover, "slow" does not even begin to accurately describe Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse.Thus, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

In addition, to the extent that Morgan Stanley is referring to slow sales in January, numerous witnesses testified that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley indicated that slow January sales would have no impact on Sunbeam's ability to make sales and earnings expectations for the quarter and year. See CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 101-02 ("It could have been Mr. Levin said that January sales were slow. But that February was okay. And that they were going to make the quarter.")); CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 370-71 ("Q. You discuss — did you discuss with Mr. Levin his handwritten notes on this page that net sales Jan. was slow? A. Yes, but you have to continue on. 'Jan. slow, operating profit 296' which is what they were told in front of Morgan Stanley that the company was going to do and that January slow was of no concern to anybody.")); CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 229 ("Well, I must have asked them or they volunteered that January was a slow month in sales, not unusual for a company in these businesses, January should be — December or January should be their smallest month. So it doesn't mean that much when you're off somewhat in January. I wrote something about February, I really don't recall what the comment was.")); CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 306 ("[M]y recollection is that Mr. Kersh in no uncertain terms said that not only was he going to make "what the Street's forecast was," but they were going to make their budget in the first quarter and for the year.")).

Further, the proposed finding is substantially controverted insofar as it implies that the board was unaware of Levin's views concerning Sunbeam's future prospects. Levin testified that his views about Sunbeam's plan were reflected in CSFB's Board presentation. See CPH App. 8 (Levin Dep. at 300 ("Q: Was there any discussion at the February 27, 1998 meeting about your opinions that you formed following the February 23, 1998 meeting about Sunbeam's long-range strategic plan — that it was 'a stretch,' as you put it? more Street estimates and a more conservative view, and that apparently was presented to the board.")).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

190. There were no Morgan Stanley representatives at the February 25, 1998 meeting of the Coleman board of directors.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Moreover, this proposed finding is misleading insofar as it implies that Morgan Stanley played no role in the Board's decision-making process. Members of Coleman's Board relied on Morgan Stanley's involvement, which is exactly what Morgan Stanley expected. CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 352); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 86); CPH Supp. App. 224 (CPH 11/24/04 Resp. to 5th Set of Interrogs., No. 1); CPH App. 114 (Perella Dep. at 126 ("[I]nstitutional investors I think believe . . . that if we put our name on an underwriting, that we've done due diligence at a very high standard, and that we work for quality companies.")); CPH App. 115 (Porat Dep. at 297-98). Moreover, because Morgan Stanley failed to tell the truth about Sunbeam to CSFB, CPH, and Coleman, the information presented to the Board did not reflect the truth about Sunbeam.

191. Morgan Stanley made no presentation at the February 25, 1998 meeting, nor were any materials prepared by Morgan Stanley distributed to the attendees at that meeting.

020350

In addition, this proposed finding is misleading insofar as it implies that the board did not receive any information provided by Morgan Stanley. CSFB's February 25 and February 27 presentations to the Coleman board relied upon and incorporated information directly from "Sunbeam's Long Range Strategic Plan" — which Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam provided to CSFB and CPH on February 23, 1998. See CPH's Response to ¶ 193, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading insofar as it implies that Morgan Stanley played no role in the Board's decision-making process. See CPH's Response to ¶ 190, which is incorporated by reference herein.

B. Perelman and the Coleman Board Meet Again on February 27, 1998

192. The Coleman board met again to consider the proposed merger with Sunbeam on February 27, 1998.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

193. At the February 27, 1998 meeting, CSFB, the exclusive financial adviser to MAFCO, made a presentation to the Coleman board. CSFB opined that the proposed transaction was fair. In reaching its opinion, CSFB did not rely on Sunbeam's Long Range Strategic Plan (MS 84) or the Discussion Materials (MS 85). Instead, CSFB presented its models and evaluations, which were based on analysts' models of Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

In particular, CSFB attended the February 23, 1998 due diligence meetings at which

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam misrepresented Sunbeam's condition and prospects, see CPH App. 40 (Duffy Dep. at 134, 146-49); CPH App. 52 (MS Ex. 84) ("Sunbeam's Long Range Strategic Plan"); CPH Supp. App. 212 (MS Ex. 85) ("Sunbeam Discussion Materials"). CSFB's February 25 and February 27 presentations to the Coleman board relied upon and incorporated information directly from "Sunbeam's Long Range Strategic Plan" — which Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam provided to CSFB and CPH on February 23, 1998. See CPH App. 54 (MS Ex. 112) (February 25, 1998 CSFB Draft Materials Prepared for the Board of Directors) (models based on Sunbeam's "Long-Term Strategic Plan"); CPH Supp. App. 213 (MS Ex. 118) (February 27, 1998 CSFB Draft Materials Prepared for the Board of Directors) (same); see also CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 103). CSFB's presentations also relied on "public" information that Morgan Stanley had vouched for by incorporating and relying on that information in materials provided to CPH. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 140). In sum, CSFB's presentations were heavily influenced both by what Morgan Stanley disclosed and what Morgan Stanley kept hidden about Sunbeam.

Moreover, the proposed finding is inaccurate and misleading insofar as it characterizes CSFB as the "exclusive financial advisor to MAFCO." CSFB was the "exclusive" financial advisor to The Coleman Company, Inc. See CPH App. 122 (Slovin Dep. at 182). Aside from information provided by CSFB, CPH received and relied upon financial information and projections from Morgan Stanley, including Morgan Stanley's "Sunbeam Corporation Discussion Materials," and "Sunbeam's Long Range Strategic Plan," CPH App. 29 (CPH Ex. 9); CPH App. 37 (CPH Ex. 238), which were presented to CPH representatives at the meeting conducted by Morgan Stanley at its offices on February 23, 1998. CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 481); CPH App.10 (Gittis Dep. at 108-09).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

194. As was the case on February 25, 1998, Perelman, Maher, Levin, Gittis, and CSFB were all present at the meeting. No one told the board about Sunbeam's slow sales in early 1998 or Levin's opinions about Sunbeam's Long Term Plan.

This proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that any of Maher, Levin, Perelman, Gittis or CSFB knew of Sunbeam's "slow sales" in early 1998. Moreover, "slow" does not even begin to accurately describe Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales collapse. Thus, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 189, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

195. The Coleman board voted to approve the merger agreement between Sunbeam and Coleman at the February 27, 1998 board meeting.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

196. No Morgan Stanley representative attended the February 27, 1998 meeting.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

This proposed finding also is misleading insofar as it implies that Morgan Stanley played no role in the Board's decision-making process. To the contrary, Morgan Stanley played a significant role. See CPH's Response to ¶ 190, which is incorporated by reference herein.

This proposed finding also is misleading insofar as it implies that Morgan Stanley played no role in the Board's decision-making process. To the contrary, Morgan Stanley played a significant role. See CPH's Response to ¶ 190, which is incorporated by reference herein.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading insofar as it implies that the board did not receive any information provided by Morgan Stanley. CSFB's February 25 and February 27 presentations to the Coleman board relied upon and incorporated information directly from "Sunbeam's Long Range Strategic Plan" — which Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam provided to CSFB and CPH on February 23, 1998. See CPH's Response to ¶ 193, which is incorporated herein by reference.

201. As of February 27, 1998, CPH and Sunbeam entered into the Agreement and Plan of Merger Among Sunbeam Corporation, Laser Acquisition Corp., CLN Holdings Inc., and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc. ("CLN Merger Agreement"). Pursuant to this CLN Merger Agreement Sunbeam acquired CPH's approximately 82 percent interest in Coleman.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

202. Schwartz signed the CLN Merger Agreement on behalf of CPH in his capacity as executive vice president and general counsel of CPH.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

205. Morgan Stanley was not a party to the CLN Merger Agreement.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

B. The Coleman Merger Agreement Is Approved by Coleman's Board

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

206. On February 27, 1998, Coleman and Sunbeam entered into the Agreement and Plan of Merger Among Sunbeam Corporation, Camper Acquisition Corp., and The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman Merger Agreement").

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

207. Both the CLN Merger Agreement (MS 93) and the Coleman Merger Agreement (MS 117) contain extensive representations and warranties between CPH and Coleman on the one hand and Sunbeam on the other. The respective parties each bargained for the representations and warranties that were material to them.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020357

Further, this proposed finding is incomplete and misleading. The representations and warranties in the merger agreements were to be true at the time of signing and the time of closing, and CPH bargained for a material adverse change clause and for an "advice of change" clause, which placed the burden on Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley to advise CPH of any developments that might lead to material adverse change in Sunbeam's condition. See CPH's Response to ¶ 209, which is incorporated herein by reference.

208. The parties to the Merger Agreements agreed that "there were no other representations and warranties other than [those] set forth in the definitive documents that [the parties] signed."

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

First, the proposed finding of fact is substantially controverted. Morgan Stanley materially misquotes both agreements, as well as Maher's deposition testimony. Maher testified only that the agreements speak for themselves. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 344-345 ("Q. And in customary fashion the parties in those agreements agreed there were no other representations and warranties other than set forth in the definitive documents that they signed? . . . THE WITNESS: I don't know that for a fact. If it says it, if you want to tell me that it says it, then it says it. BY MR. BEMIS: Q. You would agree with me if it says that, right? A. Yes.")) (emphasis added); CPH App. 95 (MS Ex. 93 § 12.5 (Private Merger Agreement); CPH App. 58 (MS Ex. 117 § 10.4 (Public Merger Agreement)).

Second, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that that the integration clause absolves Morgan Stanley of liability. As CPH explains in its Response in Opposition to Summary Judgment [hereinafter "CPH Opp."], the boilerplate integration clause in the Private Merger Agreement is irrelevant to whether Morgan Stanley is liable to CPH for fraud, conspiracy, aiding and abetting, or negligent misrepresentation. See CPH Opp. at 60-63.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020358

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

209. Neither the CLN Merger Agreement nor the Coleman Merger Agreement contain any representations or warranties concerning (i) Sunbeam's performance against the expectations of "Wall Street analysts" on a quarterly or annual basis; (ii) the "turnaround" of Sunbeam since 1996; or (iii) any increase in revenues, sales, profits, or earnings.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

First, the proposed finding of fact is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion. Morgan Stanley was not a party to either Merger Agreement, and CPH is not suing Morgan Stanley for breach of contract. Second, the proposed finding of fact is substantially controverted. Both agreements contained representations and warranties that Sunbeam's filings with the SEC — which portrayed Sunbeam as having been successfully turned around — were accurate, see CPH App. 95 (MS Ex. 93 § 4.7 & Art. V); CPH App. 58 (MS Ex. 117 § 5.6). The agreements also contained representations and warranties that those representations and warranties remained accurate through the date of closing, and that no event having an "adverse effect on the business, results of operation or financial condition" of Sunbeam had taken place.

See CPH App. 95 (MS Ex. 93 §§ 8.2(a), 8.2(c)); CPH App. 58 (MS Ex. 117 § 5.7).

Moreover, as Morgan Stanley was well aware, CPH bargained for a material adverse change clause and an "advice of change" clause, which placed the burden on Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley to inform CPH of any development that might lead to a material adverse change in Sunbeam's business, result of operations, or financial condition. See CPH App. 95 (MS Ex. 93 § 6.8, at 19); see also id. § 1.1, at 4 (defining material adverse effect).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

210. The CLN Merger Agreement contains an integration clause that states that the Agreement is the entire agreement and understanding between CPH and Sunbeam and "supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral or written."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess such statements as they appear in the documents, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The documents speak for themselves.

Furthermore, this proposed finding of fact is substantially controverted insofar as it implies that the integration clause has any impact on Morgan Stanley's liability. For the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 208, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

211. Schwartz, who signed the CLN Merger Agreement on behalf of CPH and CLN Holdings Inc., testified that he was not aware of any other representations or warranties after February 27, 1998 beyond those already contained in Article 5 of the CLN Merger Agreement. Schwartz also testified that he was not aware of any amendments or modifications to the CLN Merger Agreement prior to the closing on March 30, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

212. Schwartz also testified that he was not aware of any contractual arrangements between MAFCO and Morgan Stanley with regard to the Sunbeam transaction or any representations or warranties by Morgan Stanley to any MAFCO or Coleman entity with regard to the Sunbeam transaction.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

213. The Coleman Merger Agreement also contains an integration clause that states that the Agreement is the entire agreement and understanding and "supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral or written, with respect to such matters, except for the Confidentiality Agreements which shall remain in full force and effect for the term provided therein."

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

First, this proposed finding is immaterial insofar as it cites a provision of the Public Merger Agreement entered into by The Coleman Company Inc. and Sunbeam, CPH App. 58.

CPH was not a party to the Public Merger Agreement. See id.

Second, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that the integration clause in the Public Merger Agreement has any impact on CPH's claims against Morgan Stanley. Thus, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 208, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

Third, the proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it suggests that more than one Confidentiality Agreement was "in full force in effect" between Sunbeam and Coleman. Only the February 4, 1998 Confidentiality Agreement was executed. For the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Responses to Paragraphs 111 and 114, which are incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

Finally, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

C. MAFCO Gains Full and Complete Access to Sunbeam's Books and Records

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Moreover, as is laid out in the responses below, the heading misleadingly suggests that CPH should have inspected Sunbeam's "books and records." As a widely-followed, publicly-traded company, Sunbeam was required to file its financial statements and certain business information with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Sunbeam had warranted that these filings were accurate at the time the Merger Agreement was signed and would be accurate as of the date of closing. And, as Morgan Stanley well knew, Sunbeam was obligated to inform CPH of any such developments that might lead to a material adverse change in Sunbeam's business or financial results. See CPH's Response to ¶ 209, which is incorporated herein by reference.

214. The CLN Merger Agreement gave CPH access to Sunbeam's books, records, personnel, and facilities. Specifically, the Agreement required Sunbeam to provide CPH and all of its "financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants, consultants and other representatives [with] full access . . . to all of [Sunbeam's] books, records, properties, plants and personnel."

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion and because it is substantially controverted insofar as it implies that this clause has any impact on CPH's claims against Morgan Stanley. As CPH shows in its Response in Opposition to Summary Judgment, CPH Opp. at 57-59, the merger agreement provisions dealing with access to Sunbeam's books do not render CPH's reliance on Morgan Stanley's misrepresentations unjustified. In addition, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 209, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because the merger agreement required CPH to proceed to closing absent a "material adverse change" and because the agreement contained an "advice of changes" clause that required Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley to disclose any development that might lead to a material adverse change in Sunbeam's business or financial results.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

215. The Coleman Merger Agreement likewise required Sunbeam to provide Coleman and all of its "financial advisors, legal counsel, accountants, consultants and other representatives [with] full access . . . to all of [Sunbeam's] books, records, properties, plants and personnel."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess such statements as they appear in the documents, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The documents speak for themselves.

This proposed finding of fact is immaterial insofar as it involves the Coleman Merger Agreement, CPH App. 58 (MS Ex. 117), to which CPH was not a party, see id., and is also misleading and substantially controverted. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 213-14, which are incorporated herein by reference.

216. Gittis testified that it was "absolutely" important that the people signing the Coleman Merger Agreement and the CLN Merger Agreement understand what was contained in the agreements.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

217. Maher, the president of MAFCO and its head negotiator on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction, "didn't read the final version of the [merger] agreement."

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. CPH is not suing for fraud in the factum; whether CPH representatives had read the agreement CPH entered with Sunbeam is irrelevant to whether CPH was fraudulently induced to enter the Private Merger Agreement, or defrauded into closing the transaction after that agreement was executed.

Moreover, this proposed finding is argumentative and misleading insofar as it implies that Maher should have read the merger agreement. Maher was not responsible for signing or executing the finalized agreement and was not expected to read the finalized version. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 341-42). In fact, the Private Merger Agreement was executed by Barry F. Schwartz, the general counsel for MAFCO, who testified that he read it before signing it, and the Public Merger Agreement was executed by Paul E. Shapiro, General Counsel for Coleman, who testified that he read it before signing it. CPH App. 58 (MS Ex. 117 at 40); CPH App. 95 (MS Ex. 93 at 34); CPH Supp. App. 184 (Schwartz Dep. at 28 ("Q: Did you read the merger agreement, MS 93, before you signed it? A: I'm sure that I did but I don't have a memory of that now.")); CPH App. 47 (Shapiro Dep. at 76 ("Q. And you had, as the chief legal officer and general counsel, reviewed the document before you signed it, correct? A. Yes.")).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection

Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

218. Slovin, the president of both MAFCO and CPH and a Coleman board member, "[does not] recall reading any specific page [of the merger agreement] . . . in February 1998" or at any time "after [the] board voted to approve the merger."

First, taken in isolation, that Slovin does not recall reading the agreement is immaterial to the issues before the Court at summary judgment, including whether he indeed read the agreement, and accordingly is not material to the issues before the Court at summary judgment.

Furthermore, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 217, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is misleading, argumentative, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

XIII. From Signing To The March 19 Press Release — Sunbeam Makes Disclosures And CPH Looks Away

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley

has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Moreover, the heading is argumentative and misleading. As is laid out in greater detail in the responses below, CPH kept itself informed of Sunbeam's "disclosures" prior to the March 19 press release, but those "disclosures" were false and misleading. CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 376).

A. MAFCO Elects Not to Inspect Sunbeam's Books and Records

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Moreover, as is laid out in the responses below, the heading misleadingly suggests that CPH should have inspected Sunbeam's "books and records." As a widely followed, publicly traded company, Sunbeam was required to file its financial statements and certain business information with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Sunbeam had warranted that these filings were accurate at the time the Merger Agreement was signed and would be accurate as of the date of closing. And, as Morgan Stanley well knew, Sunbeam was obligated to inform CPH of any such developments that might lead to a material adverse change in Sunbeam's business or financial results. See CPH's Response to ¶ 209, which is incorporated herein by reference.

219. Gittis testified that both MAFCO and Sunbeam had an "opportunity to do whatever due diligence they chose to do before signing the documents and, indeed, closing the transaction."

opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

220. Although both merger agreements explicitly gave CPH full access to Sunbeam's books and records, Perelman was not aware of "anyone from MAFCO or its subsidiary companies [who] had examined the books and records of Sunbeam after the signing of the merger agreements and before the closing on March 30."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

This proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that CPH should have examined Sunbeam's books and records prior to the closing on March 30, 1998. Thus, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 273, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

221. Gittis, the number two man at MAFCO, did not know of any due diligence conducted by the MAFCO team after the third February 23, 1998 meeting and before the closing on March 30, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading insofar as it implies that CPH conducted no due diligence after February 23, 1998. Following the February 23 meeting, CPH representatives conducted additional due diligence, including discussions with Sunbeam on the company's "future operations," CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 351), and inquiries about outstanding litigation, environmental matters, and business operations. CPH App. 50 (Shapiro Dep. at 298-99). Additionally, on February 24, CSFB met again with Sunbeam senior management to discuss Sunbeam's strategic plan and 1997 results. CPH App. 125 (MS Ex. 230). Further, on March 18, 1998, Nesbitt attended the New York debenture road show. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 425-29, 483-85). CPH also reviewed Sunbeam's 10-K, issued on March 6, 1998, and the preliminary and final offering memoranda for the debenture offering. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. 512-13); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 171); CPH Supp. App. 223. Upon receipt of the March 19, 1998 press release, see CPH App. 79 (CPH Ex. 14), CPH representatives reviewed the release and discussed its contents. CPH App. 50 (Shapiro Dep. 333-34). In addition, CPH representatives also conducted their own independent research following the press release. William Nesbitt testified that he "canvassed the institutional research community" to see what "the response was to this release." CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 433). CPH also spoke to Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley about the press release. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 106); CPH Supp. App. 229 (CPH Am. Supp. Resp. to Interrogs. No. 2 of MS & Co.'s 5th Set of Interrogs.).

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

222. Levin, the top Coleman executive and Perelman's expert on consumer products companies, did not know of any due diligence done by the MAFCO or Coleman teams between February 23, 1998 and the closing on March 30, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, as described in CPH's Response to Paragraph 221, which is incorporated herein by reference, CPH representatives conducted additional due diligence following the February 23 meeting.

223. Maher was not aware of "any request by the MacAndrews and Forbes due diligence team directed to either Sunbeam or its accountants to examine Sunbeam's books and records, properties, [and] copies of any documents filed with the federal or state securities authorities pursuant to Section 6.7 of MS 93 [CLN Merger Agreement]."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

224. Maher was not aware of "any request by Coleman pursuant to . . . section 7.2 [of the Coleman Merger Agreement] made to either Sunbeam or its accountants or its legal counsel or its financial advisers for access to books and records relating to properties, plants, personnel, business operations, et cetera."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is not relevant to CPH's claims against Morgan Stanley and would mislead and confuse the jury.

225. Levin could not recall any request by Coleman between February 27 and March 30, 1998 "to inspect the books and records of Sunbeam corporation pursuant to" the merger agreements.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. 226. Maher could not recall having any communications with anyone at Morgan Stanley about the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction between February 28, 1998 and the closing of the transaction on March 30, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, this proposed finding is misleading, unsupported, and controverted insofar as it implies that no CPH representatives communicated with Morgan Stanley during this period. For example, Nesbitt attended Morgan Stanley's roadshow presentation on March 18, 1998, and received a copy of Morgan Stanley's presentation materials. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 425-26, 484).

227. Maher could not recall Levin, Page, Nesbitt, or anyone from CSFB having any communications with anyone at Morgan Stanley about the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction from February 28, 1998 until the closing of the transaction on March 30, 1998.

Slovin, president of both MAFCO and CPH and a Coleman board member, did not attend any meetings with, participate in any conference calls with, or receive any documents from Morgan Stanley concerning the Sunbeam-Coleman merger between the Coleman board's approval of the merger and the closing of the transaction.

232. Barry Schwartz, who had ultimate responsibility for in-house legal matters at MAFCO and its holding companies, was not aware of anyone on the MAFCO side of the transaction:

- interviewing middle management at Sunbeam regarding its operations or financial performance;
- visiting any Sunbeam plants to evaluate the inventory of Sunbeam products;
- contacting Sunbeam's major customers about Sunbeam;
- contacting any analysts who followed Sunbeam; or
- interviewing anyone at Arthur Andersen, Sunbeam's outside auditors, regarding Sunbeam's financial performance.

233. Lawrence Bornstein, the audit manager on the Arthur Andersen engagement with Sunbeam, testified that he was not aware of:

- any due diligence conducted by MAFCO or its representatives as part of the transaction;
- any in-person meetings between MAFCO or its representatives and Arthur Andersen as part of the transaction;
- any telephone conferences between MAFCO or its representatives and Arthur Andersen as part of the transaction;

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

234. In sum, Bornstein testified he was "surprised" by the lack of inquiry from MAFCO regarding Sunbeam.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because at least some of the supposedly supporting evidence is inadmissible, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Bornstein testified that he does not have personal knowledge of what CPH did to inform itself of Sunbeam's condition. See CPH App. 63 (Bornstein Dep. at 343 ("Q: Mr. Bornstein, do you know whether — excuse me, do you know what my client, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, asked Sunbeam and asked Morgan Stanley on the subject of how Sunbeam was doing in the first quarter of 1998 and what my client told them? A: No.")). His testimony about an alleged "lack of inquiry from MAFCO regarding Sunbeam" therefore lacks foundation. Indeed, if anything Bornstein was "surprised" by Morgan Stanley's failure to inquire about first-quarter 1998. CPH App. 63 (Bornstein Dep. at 183).

The proposed finding of fact is impracticable for the court to determine at this stage of the proceedings. The jury, acting as factfinder in the first instance, will have ample opportunity to listen to Bornstein's testimony and evaluate the weight, if any, it wishes to give his opinion. For the court to adopt Bornstein's testimony as a finding of fact prior to trial would confuse and hinder, rather than aid, the jury in that determination.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

235. Gittis believed that Levin contacted Sunbeam's customers, but was unable to recall if the contact occurred before or after the closing on March 30, 1998. In fact, such contact occurred after the closing.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Levin testified that it would have been highly improper for him to engage in the investigation described. See CPH App. 8 (Levin Dep. at 350 ("Q. Just so we are clear, before the closing of the merger transaction on March 30th, 1998, no one at MacAndrews & Forbes asked you to contact any of Sunbeam's customers, such as Wal-Mart, Target or K-Mart to see what the status of their relationship was with Sunbeam? A. That would have been disastrous and probably illegal.")).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

236. On March 2, 1998, the merger between Coleman and Sunbeam was announced. Perelman stated that "[t]his is a fantastic situation for all Sunbeam shareholders giving them the opportunity to participate in the wealth that Al Dunlap and

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess such statements as they appear in the documents, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial. The documents speak for themselves.

B. MAFCO Insiders Bail Out of Coleman Stock as Soon as the Merger Is Publicly Announced

237. Levin testified that a "particular point[] of interest" for him in the transaction was that the "management [of the Coleman Company] not be put in a position of having to hold Sunbeam stock or options unless they voluntarily chose to do so." Levin further testified that he "didn't want to wind up in a situation where . . . most of my wealth would be tied up in Sunbeam stock options. It was just something I did not want to do. . . . I did not want Sunbeam stock."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is based solely on inadmissible evidence: (a) a deposition of a third-party (Levin) in an entirely different proceeding and (b) a newspaper article that Morgan Stanley never used as an exhibit.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and unsupported insofar as Morgan Stanley asserts that Levin "bailed out" of Coleman. The newspaper article cited by Morgan Stanley, "Coleman's Levin profits by selling stock after sale to Sunbeam," provides Levin's explanation for why he sold his Coleman stock: "I tend to invest only in things I'm involved in." MS Ex. 398 (cited in Morgan Stanley's Proposed Findings at ¶ 238).

238. Accordingly, Levin advocated for and received a provision that allowed Coleman insiders to exercise any Coleman options they had and "receive no less than $27.50 in price" for those options. Levin himself exercised options on about 500,000 shares of Coleman stock at about $12 per share and sold them for about $34 per share.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Levin testified in this litigation that the purpose of the voluntary option cash-out provision was to put Coleman employees, many of whom would no longer be employed at the company after the acquisition, on the same footing as the public shareholders who had the ability to hold or sell their stock. CPH App. 7 (Levin Dep. at 89-91). Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and unsupported insofar as Morgan Stanley asserts that Levin "bailed out" of Coleman. The newspaper article cited by Morgan Stanley, "Coleman's Levin profits by selling stock after sale to Sunbeam," provides Levin's explanation for why he sold his Coleman stock: "I tend to invest only in things I'm involved in." MS Ex. 398 (cited in Morgan Stanley's Proposed Findings at ¶ 238).

239. Soon thereafter, and before the March 30, 1998 closing date, at least two other inside directors of Coleman, Bruce Slovin and Donald Drapkin, sold their shares of Coleman stock. Slovin sold 52,600 shares and sold Drapkin 20,000 shares at around $32 per share.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading, unsupported, and controverted insofar as it implies that Drapkin's and Slovin's stock sales reflect a "bail out" of Coleman stock. Both Drapkin and Slovin explained their stock sales. Drapkin, who sold 20,000 of his shares, but retained his children's 10,000 shares, testified: "My position is in all the companies in which I'm a director, as long as I'm a director I think it's appropriate that I own shares. When I no longer serve as a director, I no longer feel the need to own shares. . . . I was not going to be a director of the combined companies. I had no continuing interest." CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 193). Drapkin also testified that because of his decision to sell his stock immediately following the announcement of the merger based upon the fact that he would no longer be director of the combined companies, he actually missed out on the subsequent increase in the value of the stock between the time of the announcement and the issuance of the March 19, 1998 press release. CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 193-95). Slovin similarly testified that he "held the stock when it was part of the Perelman enterprises" and sold his 52,600 shares because Coleman would no longer be a Perelman company after the merger. CPH App. 122 (Slovin Dep. at 82). He also testified that he "made a judgment on behalf of [his] children that it was . . . in their best interest and [his], as well, to liquidate the stock." CPH App. 122 (Slovin Dep. at 83).

C. MAFCO Elects Not to Read Sunbeam's 1997 Annual Report on Form 10-K

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact. Moreover, this heading is argumentative and substantially controverted because CPH representatives did read Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference.

240. On March 6, 1998, Sunbeam filed with the SEC Sunbeam's Form 10-K annual report for 1997. In its Annual Report, Sunbeam disclosed that it engaged in "bill-and-hold" revenue recognition for certain sales amounting to 3 percent of Sunbeam's consolidated revenues.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

This proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that Sunbeam publicly disclosed its deteriorating financial status prior to the March 30, 1998 closing because the disclosures in Sunbeam's 1997 10-K did not put readers on notice of the fact that Sunbeam's bill-and-hold sales were not true bill-and-hold sales. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

241. Sunbeam's 1997 annual report also disclosed that in 1997 Sunbeam had created an "early buy" program for highly seasonal products such as grills. Sunbeam explained that the early buy program would help levelize grill sales, which typically occurred in the first half of the year. Sunbeam also disclosed that the early buy program would shift certain sales risks to later periods and that grills had begun to ship in the fourth quarter of 1997 under the program.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

The Court should reject this finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted to the extent that it implies that Sunbeam's 10-K disclosures were sufficient to put readers on notice of that Sunbeam's "early buy" program was simply an earnings manipulation technique designed to accelerate sales from future periods. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

242. Gittis did not see Sunbeam's annual report on form 10-K for the year 1997 before the closing on March 30, 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, this proposed finding of fact is misleading, substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Gittis testified that he reviewed Morgan Stanley's debenture offering memorandum, which included the financial statements from Sunbeam's 1997 10-K. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 171); CPH Supp. App. 192 (MS Ex. 166). Moreover, Perelman testified that he reviewed Sunbeam's 10-K before the March 30, 1998 closing, see CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 513 ("Q: Did you see Sunbeam's form 10-K before the March 30 closing? A: Yes.")), as did other CPH representatives. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference.

This proposed finding also is misleading insofar as it implies that readers of Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K would have been on notice of Sunbeam's fraud. Id.

243. Levin does not recall reading a copy of Sunbeam's annual report on form 10-K for the year 1997 before closing on the Sunbeam-Coleman transaction on March 30, 1998. At the time the annual report was released, Levin was in Tucson, Arizona at his vacation home.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, this proposed finding of fact is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceeding because CPH representatives reviewed Sunbeam's 1997 10-K. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference. This proposed finding also is misleading insofar as it implies that readers of Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K would have been on notice of Sunbeam's fraud. Id.

Furthermore, CPH objects to the reference to Levin's whereabouts at the time the annual report was released as immaterial, irrelevant, misleading, and prejudicial.

244. Maher did not see or read Sunbeam's 1997 annual report before the closing on March 30, 1998.

Furthermore, this proposed finding of fact is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. Maher testified that he does not recall whether it saw Sunbeam's 1997 Annual Report before the closing. CPH App. 39 (Maher Dep. at 27). In addition, Maher received a copy of Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. See CPH App. 223 (March 16, 1998 Preliminary Offering Memorandum). Moreover, other CPH representatives reviewed Sunbeam's 1997 10-K. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference. Further, this proposed finding is misleading insofar as it implies that readers of Sunbeam's 1997 Form 10-K would have been on notice of Sunbeam's fraud. Id.

XIV. Morgan Stanley First Learns Of Sunbeam's First Quarter Sales And Insists That Sunbeam Issue The March 19 Press Release.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020384 and its proposed findings of fact at Paragraphs 169, 183, 184, 189, and 194.

A. Morgan Stanley Learns of a Possible Sales Shortfall.

245. On March 18, 1998, Ruth Porat of Morgan Stanley learned that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales were not as strong as expected. She promptly brought this concern to the attention of other Morgan Stanley employees working on the Sunbeam transaction.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, CPH does not dispute that Morgan Stanley received on March 18, 1998, a copy of the "comfort letter" from Sunbeam's auditors and a chart of "potential" sales from Donald Uzzi, Sunbeam's Executive Vice President of Consumer Products. These documents advised Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's purported turnaround was a sham, that Sunbeam's projected 1998 performance promoted by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley was unattainable, and that Sunbeam already was in the midst of a disastrous collapse in sales and earnings. CPH App. 69 (CPH Ex. 17 at MS 379); CPH App. 70 (CPH Ex. 24); CPH App. 71 (CPH Ex. 344); CPH App. 72 (Dean Dep. at 132-33). The letter warned Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's actual January and February 1998 net sales of $71 million were less than 25 percent of Wall Street's first quarter expectations of $285 to $295 million, and were just half of the $143.5 million in net sales Sunbeam had made in the first two months of 1997. The auditors' letter also disclosed that the primary reason for the collapse in Sunbeam's net sales was that Sunbeam had "accelerated" sales that would have been received in the first quarter of 1998 into the fourth quarter of 1997. CPH App. 69 (CPH Ex. 17 at MS 378).

The sales chart from Uzzi detailed the severity of the sales crisis and showed that matters were even worse than shown in the comfort letter. CPH App. 76 (CPH Ex. 16); CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 176-79). This document revealed that Sunbeam's average daily sales for the first

020385

18 days in March were a mere $1.6 million, and that Sunbeam somehow needed to sell $151.8 million in products — an average of $13.8 million per day — simply to match 1997 first quarter sales. CPH App. 76 (CPH Ex. 16); CPH App. 75 (Tyree Dep. at 232-35). In order to reach analysts' estimates of $285 to $295 million in net sales, Sunbeam somehow needed to sell $183.4 to $193.4 million in products — an average of $16.7 to $17.5 million per day. Id. The Uzzi sales chart contains no indication of how Sunbeam could even hope to achieve $285 to $295 million in net sales. CPH App. 117 (Fogg Dep. at 112). The chart did purport to show how Sunbeam might barely match its 1997 net sales of $253.4 million, but to do so, Sunbeam had to obtain and close more than $125.5 million of "potential orders" or "forecasted" orders in 11 days. CPH App. 76 (CPH Ex. 16); CPH App. 117 (Fogg Dep. at 112-16). It thus became clear, as one of Morgan Stanley's lawyers admitted, that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales certainly would be lower than Wall Street analysts had expected. CPH App. 77 (Stack Dep. at 123, 147-48). Indeed, Porat feared Sunbeam might not meet analysts' estimates, yet she did not receive any assurance that Sunbeam had ever accomplished $180 million in sales in the last 11 days of any prior quarter. CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 184-85).

246. On March 18, 1998, Morgan Stanley and its counsel participated in several conference calls with Sunbeam's management and Sunbeam's outside counsel regarding Sunbeam's sales in the first quarter of 1998.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, as described in CPH's Response to Paragraph 245, which is incorporated herein by reference, the information that Morgan Stanley received on March 18, 1998 advised Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's purported turnaround was a sham, that Sunbeam's projected

020386

1998 performance promoted by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley was unattainable, and that Sunbeam already was in the midst of a disastrous collapse in sales and earnings.

247. In the afternoon, Sunbeam management faxed a build-up of first quarter sales to Morgan Stanley for discussion. Morgan Stanley then participated in a conference call with Sunbeam's management, including David Fannin, Russell Kersh, and Donald Uzzi, as well as attorneys from Davis Polk and Skadden Arps. During this call, Sunbeam walked through the build-up of Sunbeam's sales and projections and assured Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam would make its expected numbers.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, as described in CPH's Response to Paragraph 245, which is incorporated herein by reference, the documents that Morgan Stanley received on March 18, 1998 advised Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam's purported turnaround was a sham, that Sunbeam's projected 1998 performance promoted by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley was unattainable, and that Sunbeam already was in the midst of a disastrous collapse in sales and earnings.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is substantially controverted insofar as Morgan Stanley asserts that Sunbeam "assured Morgan Stanley that Sunbeam would make its expected numbers." See CPH's Response to ¶ 248, which is incorporated herein by reference.

248. Despite Sunbeam's assurances, Morgan Stanley demanded that Sunbeam issue a press release alerting investors that Sunbeam may not make its expected numbers in the first quarter.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. In particular, it is controverted whether Sunbeam made "assurances" to Morgan Stanley that it would reach its first quarter 1998 sales targets, because evidence not cited by Morgan Stanley indicates that Sunbeam never made such promises. For example, other witnesses, such as Morgan Stanley's Tyree and Strong, did not recall Sunbeam guaranteeing that it would be able to reach its sales (or profit) targets for first quarter 1998. See, e.g., CPH App. 75 (Tyree Dep. at 239); CPH App. 9 (Strong Dep. at 307). The evidence shows that Morgan Stanley and its lawyers knew that Sunbeam could not attain the sales and profits expected for first quarter 1998 and Morgan Stanley participated in the preparation of a press release carefully crafted so as to not throw a "monkey wrench" into the Coleman transaction. See, e.g., CPH App. 118 (Fogg Dep. at 315-16); CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 184); CPH App. 9 (Strong Dep. at 307); CPH App. 77 (Stack Dep. at 47, 123, 147-48 (Morgan Stanley's attorney, indicating that the group believed Sunbeam would not be able to meet analysts' expectations, based on information about first-quarter sales)). As the "build up" chart cited by Morgan Stanley makes clear, Sunbeam had no chance of making its first quarter 1998 sales. See CPH's Response to ¶ 245, which is incorporated herein by reference.

020387

Furthermore, the proposed factual finding is misleading insofar as it asserts that the press release was issued by Sunbeam, when the evidence shows that Morgan Stanley worked hand-in-hand with Sunbeam. See CPH's Response to ¶ 249, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, the proposed finding's term "expected numbers" is vague and undefined, as it does not explain which numbers and by whom they were expected, and is therefore inappropriate as a factual finding. Indeed, Morgan Stanley's use of the vague term "numbers" incorrectly suggests that Morgan Stanley pushed for the issuance of a press release that revealed Sunbeam's truly dire state. In fact, Morgan Stanley — despite knowing that Sunbeam could not make Wall Street's first-quarter 1998 estimates for net sales or match first-quarter 1997 sales, and that first-quarter 1998 earnings would indeed be a loss — ultimately signed off on the false and misleading press release that did not disclose this information and the true reason behind the sales shortfall. CPH App. 118 (Fogg Dep. at 343-344). Morgan Stanley considered a suggestion that the press release include Sunbeam's actual sales figures, so that the public would have more complete information, but this suggestion was "soundly rejected." See, e.g., CPH App. 72 (Dean Dep. at 123-24, 132-33). This was so, even though Morgan Stanley knew full well that the more negative (and therefore candid) the press release, the greater the risk to the Coleman deal, CPH App. 118 (Fogg Dep. at 333), and the more likely that the Sunbeam stock price would decline, making the debenture offer more expensive for the company. CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 96, 216). Had Morgan Stanley been unsatisfied with the disclosures in the press release, it simply could have declined to price the debentures the next day. See CPH App. 118 (Fogg Dep. at 190-192). Indeed, Morgan Stanley signed off on the contents of the press release before it was issued on March 19. Id. at 343-344.

020388

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

B. The March 19, 1998 Press Release

249. On March 19, 1998, Sunbeam issued a press release stating that its sales for the first quarter of 1998 might be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. A press release was issued on March 19, 1998, but Sunbeam did not issue this press release alone, as the proposed finding suggests. Rather, Morgan Stanley was closely involved in the process of drafting, reviewing, and issuing the press release. See, e.g., CPH App. 72 (Dean Dep. at 123-24, 132-33); CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 187-90); CPH App. 118 (Fogg Dep. at 343-44); CPH App. 137 (CPH Ex. 13).

Furthermore, this proposed finding mischaracterizes the press release by failing to describe it fully and accurately. Although the press release included a statement that first quarter 1998 sales "might be lower" than analysts' expectations, it concealed the actual results in January, February, and the first half of March, it did not disclose that Sunbeam was $185-$195 million short of net sales expectations, and it also asserted that sales were expected to exceed those for first quarter 1998, which Morgan Stanley knew to be untrue. See CPH App. 79 (CPH Ex. 14). The press release also was silent with respect to Sunbeam's undisclosed (and bleak) earnings expectations and falsely blamed any shortfall on inventory management and order patterns, rather than Sunbeam's "early buy" program, see id., which Morgan Stanley knew (from the draft comfort letter it had reviewed) to be the real reason for Sunbeam's shortfall, see CPH App. 69 (CPH Ex. 17 at 3-4). The press release was carefully prepared to avoid "throw[ing] a monkey wrench" into Sunbeam's pending deals. See CPH's Response to ¶ 248, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, the Perelman testimony cited does not describe the contents of the press release. And, to the extent that the Court's August 11, 2004 Choice of Law Order can serve as basis for undisputed facts in light of discovery that has since occurred, that Order does not characterize or describe the press release in the manner that this proposed finding does. Moreover, the Court's Order expressly recognized that Morgan Stanley reviewed the press release before it was released. See CPH App. 96 (Aug. 11, 2004 Order at 7-8).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection

020390

Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

250. The press release was drafted by Sunbeam and its attorneys at Skadden Arps.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. It is telling that Morgan Stanley cites the testimony of one of Morgan Stanley's junior lawyers as support for this proposed finding, because the testimony of other principals reveals that it was not merely Sunbeam and its attorneys who drafted the press release, but that Morgan Stanley had an integral role in the process. See, e.g., CPH App. 72 (Dean Dep. at 123-24, 132-33); CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 187-90).

Moreover, the scant evidence cited by Morgan Stanley does not support the proposed finding. Rather, Stack stated, in full:

> Q. And do you recall who was charged with drafting the press release?
> A. I think it was probably Skadden, as the company's counsel.
> Q. Do you recall —
> A. Yeah, I am probably just speculating, I don't remember specifically.
> Q. Do you know if Morgan Stanley or its counsel, Davis Polk, reviewed drafts of the press release?
> A. I am sure that we did. I don't remember reviewing it myself. But, again, as the junior person, it probably would have gone to the more senior people.

CPH App. 77 (Stack Dep. at 158-59). As this complete excerpt of testimony reveals, Stack did not testify that Sunbeam drafted the release, but merely speculated that Skadden Arps may have drafted it, conceding a lack of personal knowledge. Furthermore, Stack confirmed that Morgan Stanley knew, while assisting with the press release, that Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 sales certainly would be lower than Wall Street analysts had expected. See CPH App. 77 (Stack Dep. at 123, 147-48). Thus, if anything, the witness relied upon by Morgan Stanley confirms that Morgan Stanley and its attorneys were intimately involved in the drafting process and knew that

Sunbeam would not meet analysts' expectations. See CPH's Responses to ¶¶ 248-49, which are incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

251. Perelman saw the press release "at the time it was issued or right about the time it was issued."

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

252. Although he was skiing in Aspen, Colorado at the time, Maher saw the press release issued by Sunbeam "[s]omewhere on that day [March 19, 1998] or thereafter."

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020392

Furthermore, CPH objects to the reference to Mr. Maher's whereabouts at the time of the March 19, 1998 press release as immaterial, irrelevant, misleading, and prejudicial.

253. Gittis recalled that Sunbeam's stock dropped nearly 10 percent following the March 19, 1998 press release, but testified that he "would have taken the Sunbeam stock at that price" and that the sudden change in value "did not bother" him.

In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because the selective quotations are misleading. As Gittis explained, even after the March 19, 1998 press release, Sunbeam's stock was trading at levels higher than when the CPH-Sunbeam merger agreement was signed on February 27, 1998, CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 110-11), and thus, if anything, CPH was better off than at the time of signing.

254. Under the terms of the CLN Merger Agreement, Perelman was to receive 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam common stock. Sunbeam's stock fell $4-11/16 on March 19, 1998 and was the 20th most active stock on the NYSE. On paper, Perelman lost over $66,000,000 dollars.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020393

In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading, unsupported, and controverted. After the March 19 press release, Sunbeam's stock was trading at levels higher than when the CPH-Sunbeam deal was signed. See CPH's Response to ¶ 253, which is incorporated herein by reference. Moreover, this proposed finding should be rejected because it is misleading, unsupported, and would confuse the jury insofar as it suggests that CPH had a "paper loss" where the stock was trading at levels higher than where the deal was signed. See CPH Supp. App. 238 (12/7/04 Nye Report at ¶¶ 21-22). Finally, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's improper and misleading reference to Perelman. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1, which are incorporated herein by reference.

255. Schwartz testified that he considered the information in the March 19, 1998 press release to be "material," but he believed that the stock's value rebounded "after the analysts wrote their reports about the significance of . . . what's in the press release."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

C. Perelman Asks No Questions of Sunbeam Following the March 19, 1998 Press Release.

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

256. According to Perelman, the March 19, 1998 Sunbeam press release "point[ed] up some issues that ha[d] to be addressed."

Further, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that the March 19, 1998 press release informed CPH, analysts, and other investors of Sunbeam's sales and earnings collapse, that CPH was obligated to investigate the matters raised by the press release, or that CPH failed to follow up on the press release. See CPH's Response to ¶ 263, which is incorporated herein by reference.

257. Perelman testified that he does not recall making any inquiries regarding the March 19, 1998 press release but that "[he] would imagine that [he] would have asked either [James] Maher and/or Jerry Levin" to "make inquiry about the March 19 press release."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. This proposed finding is also argumentative, unsupported, and misleading insofar as it implies (through supplied emphasis or otherwise) that Perelman did not make personal inquiry or ask someone to make inquiry of Sunbeam or Morgan Stanley. See CPH Supp. App. 229 (CPH Am. Supp. Resp. to Interrogs. No. 2 of MS & Co.'s 5th Set of Interrogs).

258. Schwartz did not ask anyone at Sunbeam for more specific information about its sales during the first quarter of 1998 after receiving the March 19, 1998 press release.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

259. Nesbitt testified that he understood the March 19, 1998 press release to be "an indication that [Sunbeam] might not meet their results."

260. Maher, who was skiing in Aspen, Colorado at the time of the March 19 press release, "believe[s] that [Jerry] Levin talked to [Sunbeam]" about the March 19, 1998 press release.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. ¶ 263, which is incorporated herein by reference. CPH also objects to the reference to Mr. Maher's activities in Colorado as immaterial, irrelevant, misleading, and prejudicial.

261. Levin testified that he took no action to inquire of Sunbeam about the March 19 press release because it was "not [his] problem."

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted. Levin testified that "anything that could happen that could affect Coleman Company and its shareholders would be my problem." CPH App. 8 (Levin Dep. at 316). Additionally, Levin testified that the press release, on its face, did not reveal any problems that needed to be addressed, and therefore, "it was not my problem, it was not their problem, there was really no action necessary." Id. at 320-321.

This proposed finding also is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that the March 19, 1998 press release informed CPH, analysts, and other investors of Sunbeam's sales and earnings collapse, that CPH was obligated to investigate the matters raised by the press release, or that CPH failed to follow up on the press release. See CPH's Response to ¶ 263, which is incorporated herein by reference.

262. Maher does not know whether "anyone on the MacAndrews & Forbes due diligence team call[ed] [Sunbeam CEO] Mr. [Albert] Dunlap and ask him about the statements that were being attributed to him in connection with the March 19 press release."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that the March 19, 1998 press release informed CPH, analysts, and other investors of Sunbeam's sales and earnings collapse, that CPH was obligated to investigate the matters raised by the press release, or that CPH failed to follow up on the press release. See CPH's Response to ¶ 263, which is incorporated herein by reference.

263. Maher never saw — and neither he nor anyone else on the MAFCO due diligence team ever requested from Sunbeam, or its auditor, Arthur Andersen — a copy of Sunbeam's interim financial statements for any period in the first quarter of 1998.

This proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that CPH should have requested Sunbeam's "interim" financial statements. Thus, for the same reasons that are set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference, the Court should reject this proposed finding of fact.

Further, CPH was obligated, absent a material adverse change at Sunbeam, to proceed to closing after the merger agreement was executed on February 27, 1998. As Morgan Stanley well knew, Sunbeam was obligated under the terms of the merger agreement to inform CPH of any developments that might constitute or lead to a material adverse change in Sunbeam's condition. See CPH's Response to ¶ 209, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Moreover, CPH was falsely reassured by Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley in the March 19, 1998 press release, the March 25, 1998 press release, and elsewhere — that Sunbeam was in good business and financial health. CPH was certainly entitled to believe that the press releases were a full and complete disclosure, particularly where CPH was told by Morgan Stanley that the press releases were no cause for concern. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 106); CPH Supp. App. 229 (CPH Am. Supp. Resp. to Interrogs. No. 2 of MS & Co.'s 5th Set of Interrogs.). Indeed, Christopher Whelan, the employee in Morgan Stanley's credit department responsible for the Sunbeam loan, saw nothing in the press release that would raise red flags for him. CPH App. 113 (Whelan Dep. at 96-98); see also CPH App. 8 (Levin Dep. at 320-321) (Levin testified that he did not believe that the March 19, 1998 revealed any problems that needed to be addressed).

Indeed, proof that the press release did not provide a meaningful warning of an adverse change can be seen from the fact that Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley were able to increase the size of the expected proceeds from the debenture offering from $500 million to $750 million. CPH App. 12 (Smith Dep. at 223-24); CPH App. 129 (Harris Dep. at 104); CPH App. 74 (Porat Dep. at 130).

In addition, Nesbitt canvassed research analysts' reports, which included Sunbeam's roundly optimistic statements about the press release. CPH App. 35, 28 (Nesbitt Dep. 16, 431-33); CPH Supp. App. 229 (CPH Am. Supp. Resp. to Interrogs. No. 2 of MS & Co.'s 5th Set of Interrogs.). The record is replete with evidence that Wall Street analysts reiterated their "buy" or "strong buy" ratings of the company and raised no concerns over Sunbeam's anticipated profits. CPH App. 89 (CPH 1241513-14 ("we think the timing of the pricing of the convertible deal so close to the end of the quarter, coupled with orders now on the books prompted the company's press release")); CPH App. 90 (CPH 1039208 (the "cautious comment was driven by Sunbeam's legal staff" on the eve of pricing debentures)); CPH App. 91 (CPH 1059641 ("Continue to recommend purchase of SOC")). Analysts also believed that the decline in Sunbeam's stock price was "unwarranted," and an overreaction to the information contained in the press release. CPH App. 89 (CPH 1241513).

CPH could reasonably be expected to, and reasonably did in fact, rely on the reassurances provided by (1) knowing that Morgan Stanley was proceeding to close the $2 billion face amount debenture offering even after receiving comfort letters from Morgan Stanley, (2) the reassuring March 19, 1998 and March 25, 1998 press releases, and (3) the lack of notification by Sunbeam of a material adverse change. CPH thus had no reason to scrutinize Sunbeam's financial statements — particularly when it knew that Morgan Stanley was doing so. CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 108-09); CPH App. 48 (Maher Dep. at 373-74); CPH App. 92 (CPH Ex. 380). As Morgan Stanley witnesses have testified, CPH was entitled to rely on Morgan Stanley because of its good "name." See CPH's Response to ¶ 135, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

264. Perelman could not recall "any communication by anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes or its subsidiary companies with Morgan Stanley about the March 19 press release."

Further, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that the March 19, 1998 press release informed CPH, analysts, and other investors of Sunbeam's sales and earnings collapse, that CPH was obligated to investigate the matters raised by the press release, or that CPH failed to follow up on the press release. To the contrary, following the issuance of the March 19, 1998 press release, CPH took steps to understand Sunbeam's position on the press release, received reassurance from Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley, and canvassed the analyst community to determine their reaction. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 433); CPH Supp. App. 229 (CPH Am. Supp. Resp. to Interrogs. No. 2 of MS & Co.'s 5th Set of Interrogs.); see also CPH's Response to ¶ 263, which is incorporated herein by reference.

265. Though Perelman believed that "there was a point in talking to the analysts and getting their input" regarding Sunbeam, he could not supply the name of "a single analyst that anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes spoke to before March 30, 1998 about their thoughts, that is the analyst thoughts on Sunbeam."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

270. Robert Duffy of CSFB, MAFCO's exclusive financial advisor, testified that the March 19, 1998 press release was "bad news that caused [Sunbeam] stock to drop." Duffy, however, could not recall anyone at CSFB undertaking "any additional inquiry" as a result of the press release.

273. Despite receiving the March 19, 1998 press release, CPH failed to exercise its contractual rights under the CLN Merger Agreement and Coleman Merger Agreement to examine Sunbeam's books, records, financial statements, facilities, results of operations, and business plans ("Sunbeam Information").

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that CPH should have demanded access to Sunbeam's books and records in reaction to the March 19, 1998 press release, that the March 19, 1998 press release put CPH, analysts, and other investors on notice of Sunbeam's sales and earnings collapse, or that CPH failed to follow

In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is not supported by the material cited by Morgan Stanley. Nesbitt did not testify that he or others at CPH did not request the "Sunbeam Information" as defined in Morgan Stanley's proposed finding, but merely stated that he did not personally request certain of Sunbeam's financial statements and that he was not aware if others made such a request. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 437-39).

Moreover, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

steps to understand Sunbeam's position on the press release, received reassurance from Sunbeam and Morgan Stanley, and canvassed the analyst community to determine their reaction. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 433); CPH Supp. App. 229 (CPH Am. Supp. Resp. to Interrogs. No. 2 of MS & Co.'s 5th Set of Interrogs.); see also CPH's Response to ¶ 263, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, this proposed finding is incorrect and misleading, because record evidence establishes that, among other things, Coleman's auditors met with Arthur Andersen. CPH Supp. App. 121 (Harlow Dep. at 135-36).

XV. The Sunbeam Debenture Offering

A. The Debenture Offering Memorandum

276. MS 166 is a true and correct copy of the offering memorandum for Sunbeam's offering of $2.014 billion of Zero Coupon Convertible Subordinated Debentures Due 2018.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

277. The offering memorandum for the Sunbeam debentures included Sunbeam's audited financial statements for 1997, Coleman's audited financial statements for 1997, and CLN Holdings Inc.'s financial statements for 1997, which is customary in such an offering.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

278. Sunbeam's audited financial statements for 1997 — and therefore, by extension, the Sunbeam debenture offering memorandum — included references to Sunbeam's "early buy" program and to "bill-and-hold" sales.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

The Court should also reject this finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted to the extent that it implies that Sunbeam's 10-K disclosures were sufficient to put readers on notice of that Sunbeam was engaged in fraudulent bill-and-hold sales or of Sunbeam's channel stuffing, acceleration of sales from future periods, or that Sunbeam had engaged in massive and fraudulent sales and earnings manipulation. To the contrary, the disclosures in Sunbeam's 1997 10-K did not put readers on notice of Sunbeam's fraud. CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 515); see also CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference.

279. Maher testified that he "doesn't think" he ever saw the Sunbeam debenture offering memorandum.

Furthermore, this proposed finding is substantially controverted because the record shows that Maher received the March 16, 1998 preliminary offering memorandum distributed at Morgan Stanley's roadshows, CPH Supp. App. 223, and that other CPH representatives reviewed Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements. See CPH's Response to ¶ 136, which is incorporated herein by reference.

280. Maher acknowledged that, had he read the offering memorandum, he would have been aware of Sunbeam's early buy program and its practice of using "bill-and-hold" sales.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. For the reasons set forth in CPH's Response to Paragraph 136, which is incorporated herein by reference, the disclosures in Sunbeam's 1997 financial statements failed to put readers adequately on notice of Sunbeam's fraud, that Sunbeam's bill-and-hold sales were fraudulent, or that Sunbeam's "early buy" program was a fraudulent revenue manipulation technique rather than a legitimate business practice.

Moreover, CPH's William Nesbitt attended the debenture road show in New York on March 18, and reviewed and circulated the materials prepared in connection with that road show — and nothing in Sunbeam's or Morgan Stanley's road show presentation mentioned any unusual business or accounting practices. CPH App. 28 (Nesbitt Dep. at 425-26, 483-85); CPH Supp. App. 214 (CPH Ex. 130). To the contrary, Morgan Stanley emphasized to its debenture sales force that they should promote the success of Sunbeam's turnaround, that they should minimize below-expectation fourth quarter 1997 earnings by pointing out that in the analysts' eyes, "business has shown significant improvement," and that they should predict a rise in Sunbeam's value. CPH Supp. App. 215 (CPH Ex. 183 at 18, 23, 27).

Further, to the extent the proposed finding consists of nothing more than a snippet of deposition testimony, it is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

B. The Comfort Letters

281. It is customary for the underwriter of an offering of securities to obtain "comfort letters" from the offering company's outside auditor to "provide comfort" to the underwriter with regard to the period of time between the company's last audited financial statement and the offering memorandum. Comfort letters summarize interim financial information since the issuer's last audited financial statement.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

The Court also should reject this proposed finding because Morgan Stanley's overbroad generalization that comfort letters "customarily" "provide comfort" to underwriters. See CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 145-46 (discussing "cold comfort" letters)).

282. The Coleman Merger Agreement provided for an exchange of Comfort Letters from Sunbeam and CPH's respective auditors. As a sophisticated party, CPH was aware of the general content of Comfort Letters.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, at least some of the supposedly supporting evidence is inadmissible, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

This proposed finding also is misleading, confusing, and prejudicial insofar as it implies that CPH or Coleman would have been entitled to receive the comfort letters at the same time or containing the same information as Morgan Stanley received in March 1998. The Coleman Merger Agreement contemplated that Coleman could receive comfort letters when the SEC declared Sunbeam's "Registration Statement" effective (which happened on December 6, 1999) and when Sunbeam began mailing its "Information Statement" to Coleman's public shareholders to close the second step of the merger (which happened on December 7, 1999). See CPH App. 58 (MS Ex. 117 at § 4.9, 7.3(b)); CPH Supp. App. 230 (CPH 1352691) (Sunbeam 12/6/99 press release); CPH Supp. App. 231 (CPH Ex. 253) (Information Statement mailed to public shareholders on 12/7/99). Moreover, the Court should reject this finding because of substantial danger that the jury might confuse these comfort letters, which have minimal, if any relevance, with the Andersen comfort letters at issue. CPH App. 69.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

283. Similarly, the registration rights agreement for Perelman's 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock (Exhibit A to the CLN Merger Agreement) included a provision entitling Perelman to a comfort letter from Sunbeam's auditors.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, at least some of the supposedly supporting evidence is inadmissible, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

020415

This proposed finding also is misleading, confusing, and prejudicial insofar as it implies that the registration rights agreement entitled CPH to receive a comfort letter at the same time or containing the same information as Morgan Stanley received in March 1998. The registration rights agreement contemplated that CPH could receive a comfort letter only upon a future "sale of Registerable Securities by or through an underwriter," and the Holdings Merger provided that no such sale could take place until "three (3) months" after the close of the transaction. CPH Supp. App. 216 (MS Ex. 278 at § 2.4(a)(12)); CPH App. 95 (MS Ex. 93 at § 7.1). Because of Sunbeam's collapse, there was never such a sale, and there was never such a comfort letter. Moreover, the Court should reject this finding because of substantial danger that the jury might confuse this comfort letter, which has minimal, if any relevance, with the Andersen comfort letters at issue, (MS App. 69).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

284. In connection with the offering memorandum for the Sunbeam debentures, the Coleman Company's auditors, Ernst & Young, provided a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Moreover, the Court should reject this finding because of substantial danger that the jury might confuse the Ernst & Young comfort letter, which has minimal, if any relevance, with the Andersen comfort letters at issue.

285. On March 20, 1998, Arthur Andersen provided a comfort letter, dated as of March 19, 1998, to Morgan Stanley indicating that through February 1, 1998, Sunbeam's net sales were approximately half of what they were in the first two months of the first quarter of the proceeding year.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, the proposed finding contains material factual errors. The March 19, 1998 comfort letter indicates that, as of March 1, 1998, Sunbeam's net sales were approximately half of what they were in the corresponding period in 1997. CPH App. 69 (CPH Ex. 17).

C. MAFCO Does Not Request Copies of Either the Ernst & Young or Arthur Andersen Comfort Letters

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked the Court to enter them as findings of fact. As discussed below, this heading is incomplete and misleading, because CPH had no reason to request the comfort letters because Sunbeam was obligated to inform CPH of any relevant developments concerning Sunbeam's condition.

286. Maher never requested and has not seen the comfort letter (MS 243) provided by Coleman's auditors, Ernst & Young, to Morgan Stanley in connection with the offering of Sunbeam debentures, although a copy of the letter is addressed to CLN Holdings, Inc.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading, argumentative, and unsupported insofar as it implies that Maher should have requested or reviewed Ernst & Young's comfort letter to Morgan Stanley. Morgan Stanley has not suggested any reason why CPH should have reviewed Ernst & Young's comfort letter concerning Coleman's financials, which CPH already knew. Moreover, the Court should reject this finding because of substantial danger that the jury might confuse the Ernst & Young comfort letter, which has minimal, if any relevance, with the Andersen comfort letters at issue.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

287. Perelman was not aware of anyone at MAFCO who made any request of Coleman for a copy of the comfort letter that was provided to Morgan Stanley by Coleman's auditors, Ernst & Young.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading, argumentative, and unsupported insofar as it implies that anyone at MAFCO should have requested or reviewed Ernst & Young's comfort letter to Morgan Stanley. Moreover, the Court should reject this finding because of substantial danger that the jury might confuse the Ernst & Young comfort letter, which has minimal, if any relevance, with the Andersen comfort letters at issue.

288. Perelman was not aware of anyone at MAFCO who made any request of Sunbeam for a copy of the comfort letter that was provided to Morgan Stanley by Sunbeam's auditors, Arthur Andersen.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading, argumentative, and unsupported insofar as it implies that anyone at MAFCO should have requested Andersen's comfort letters to Morgan Stanley. As Morgan Stanley well knew, Sunbeam was obligated under the terms of the merger agreement to inform CPH of any developments that might constitute or lead to a material adverse change in Sunbeam's condition. See CPH's Response to ¶ 209, which is incorporated herein by reference. Clearly, the information contained in Andersen's comfort letters should have been disclosed to CPH under that clause. CPH App. 34 (Perelman Dep. at 517-18); CPH App. 10 (Gittis Dep. at 184).

289. Maher is not aware of anyone on the MAFCO due diligence team who, following the March 19, 1998 press release, requested the contents of the comfort letter provided by Arthur Andersen to Morgan Stanley in connection with the offering of Sunbeam debentures.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading, argumentative, and unsupported insofar as it implies that anyone at MAFCO should have requested Andersen's comfort letters to Morgan Stanley. This proposed finding also is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it implies that the March 19, 1998 press release put CPH, analysts, and other investors on notice of Sunbeam's sales and earnings collapse, that CPH was obligated to investigate the matters raised by the press release, or that CPH failed to follow up on the press release. See CPH's Response to ¶ 263, which is incorporated herein by reference.

290. Drapkin, the vice chairman of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings and the in-house investment banker for Perelman's companies, does not recall anyone at any of Perelman's companies asking Morgan Stanley if Morgan Stanley received a comfort letter from Arthur Andersen in connection with the debenture offering.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading, argumentative, and unsupported insofar as it implies that anyone at MAFCO should have requested Andersen's comfort letters to Morgan Stanley. Further this proposed finding is misleading and incomplete because it is undisputed that CPH relied on the due diligence that CPH knew Morgan Stanley was required to conduct as the underwriter for the debentures. See CPH's Response to ¶ 18, which is incorporated herein by reference.

XVI. Morgan Stanley Senior Funding Closes The Credit Facility

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked the Court to enter them as findings of fact.

299. In addition to its issuance of the Debentures, Sunbeam further financed the acquisition of Coleman and two other companies through a credit facility with Morgan Stanley Senior Funding ("MSSF"), First Union, and Bank of America.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

300. Pursuant to this credit facility, MSSF agreed to loan Sunbeam $680 million. MSSF determined that it would extend this facility and closed upon the facility after Morgan Stanley performed its due diligence and after Sunbeam issued its March 19, 1998 press release.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

This proposed finding is misleading because MSSF intended to syndicate its position in the Sunbeam loan as quickly as possible so that MSSF would have minimal exposure and risk on the loan. See CPH's Response to ¶ 19, which is incorporated herein by reference.

This proposed finding also should be rejected because Morgan Stanley is judicially estopped from using MSSF's losses to argue that MS was a "victim" of Sunbeam's fraud. Id.

301. Additionally, Bank of America and First Union each loaned Sunbeam $510 million under the credit facility.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

302. MSSF, pursuant to its policy and practice, intended to retain a significant portion of the credit facility, even if or after the bank loan was syndicated.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is substantially controverted and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings. See CPH's Response to ¶ 19, which is incorporated herein by reference.

XVII. Perelman And Sunbeam Close On The CLN Merger Agreement On March 30, 1998.

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its numbered paragraphs or asked the Court to enter them as findings of fact. Further, the Court should reject Morgan Stanley's improper and misleading reference to Perelman. See CPH's Responses to Heading I and ¶ 1.

306. On March 30, 1998, Sunbeam and Coleman closed the Sunbeam transaction in New York.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, this proposed finding is misleading insofar as Coleman did not close the transaction on March 30, 1998. Rather, the only portion of the transaction that closed on March 30, 1998 was Sunbeam's acquisition of CPH's interest in Coleman. The Coleman closing took place in January 2000. CPH App. 224 (CPH's Resps. and Objs. to MS & Co.'s Fifth Set of Interrogs., at 8); CPH Supp. App. 232 (CPH Ex. 254, at 6); CPH App. 218 (MS Ex. 279).

307. In exchange for his shares of Coleman, Perelman received 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam stock and $159,956,756 in cash.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

308. Sunbeam also assumed and repaid $1.016 billion in indebtedness of Coleman and its parent, CLN Holdings Inc. This figure represented $519 million of debt carried by CLN Holdings Inc. and the $497 million of debt carried by Coleman at the time of the closing.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

First, the proposed finding is unsupported insofar as Morgan Stanley asserts that Coleman and CLN Holdings had debt of $1.016 billion and that CLN Holdings carried $519 million in debt. The document cited states instead the $1.016 billion debt belonged to "Coleman and its parent corporations" (which were CLN Holdings and Coleman Worldwide Corporation) and that Coleman's indebtedness amounted to $497 million. CPH Supp. App. 218 (MS Ex. 279) at 11.

Second, this proposed finding incorrectly implies that part of CPH's consideration in this transaction included the assumption of Coleman debt, which it did not. Even Morgan Stanley's damages expert agrees that it would be wrong to include the operating company debt as consideration to CPH. Dr. Mark Grinblatt, one of Morgan Stanley's experts, makes absolutely no reference to Coleman's debt in calculating the consideration received by CPH. His own report shows that the only consideration that CPH received consisted of cash, Sunbeam shares, and the assumption of debt held by CLN Holdings Inc. See CPH App. 221 (Grinblatt Rep., 12/17/04, at 7, 11-12.)

Third, following the Coleman-Sunbeam merger, Sunbeam's consolidated balance sheet included the Coleman Company debt; but that debt should not be separately valued as part of the consideration to CPH because the value of Coleman shares inherently included the value of the debt owed by that company. Therefore, to include that debt as a separate element of consideration would double-count it.

020429

Finally, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

309. As an integral part of the transaction, Sunbeam assumed or defeased the $980,447,000 of long-term debt of CLN Holdings Inc. and its subsidiaries, which included CPH.

The Court should reject this proposed finding of fact because it is immaterial to Morgan Stanley's summary judgment motion, it is substantially controverted, and it would be impracticable for the Court to resolve this factual controversy at this stage of the proceedings.

First, Morgan Stanley's proposed finding is unsupported and incorrect insofar as it asserts that CPH was a subsidiary of CLN Holdings Inc. Second, this proposed finding is unsupported insofar as it asserts that Sunbeam's defeasance of debt was "an integral part of the transaction."

Third, as shown above in CPH's Response to Paragraph 308, this proposed finding incorrectly implies that part of CPH's consideration in this transaction included the assumption of Coleman debt, which it did not. Indeed, this proposed finding is based on a misreading of CLN Holdings' 1997 Consolidated Financial Statement. See CPH Supp. App. 192 (MS Ex. 166 at F-27, F-31, F-39-41). CLN Holdings' 1997 Consolidated Financial Statement presents on a consolidated basis the financial statements of CLN Holdings and all subsidiaries in which CLN Holdings owned more than 80% of the stock. Because CLN Holdings owned (through a wholly-owned subsidiary) more than 80% of the stock in Coleman, the consolidated financial statements also include the assets and liabilities of Coleman as if they had been directly owned by CLN

Holdings. The line item for "Long Term Debt" lumps together the debt of CLN Holdings, Coleman, and other companies to reach an amount of $980.447 million as of December 30, 1997. See id. at F39-F42. The financial statement goes on, however, to explain each piece of that debt in detail, including the obligor of that debt. See id. at F39-F42. Thus, the financial statement makes clear that CLN Holdings had long term debt of $503.171 million as of December 30, 1997 (id. at F40 n.9(e)), and that the remaining debt was owed by other companies, including Coleman. Id. at F39-F42.

Fourth, the testimony cited by Morgan Stanley does not support its proposed finding, and, indeed, those witnesses controvert it elsewhere in their depositions. For example, Slotkin testified that Perelman and the MAFCO holding companies were not responsible for repayment of the debt of the operating company Coleman. See, e.g., CPH App. 191 (Slotkin Dep. at 162-74; 210-19). Similarly, Drapkin testified that even if Sunbeam assumed debt of the operating company Coleman, that assumption of debt could not have been merger consideration because CPH had no obligation for that debt. CPH App. 97 (Drapkin Dep. at 85-86). Likewise, the Perelman testimony does not support Morgan Stanley's proposed finding that Sunbeam assumed nearly $1 billion of CLN Holdings Inc.'s debt, including debt of the operating company Coleman. CPH App. 32 (Perelman Dep. at 237).

Finally, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

310. On April 3, 1998, Sunbeam issued a press release announcing that it expected sales for the first quarter to be 5 percent below those of the first quarter of 1997 and that the company would post a loss for the quarter.

In addition, the April 3, 1998 press release was false and misleading because it failed to disclose the full extent of Sunbeam's sales shortfall in the first quarter of 1998. The press release provided a conservative estimate of the sales shortfall and failed to disclose that Sunbeam had extended the first quarter by two days to capture additional Sunbeam sales along with two days of Coleman sales. See CPH App. 63 (Bornstein Dep. at 21-22).

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it has no relevance to Morgan Stanley's motion for summary judgment.

311. Sunbeam's stock dropped nearly 25 percent on April 3, 1998 following the issuance of the press release.

CPH does not contest the facts set forth in this proposed finding. However, the Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

312. Following the April 3, 1998 press release, Perelman made no attempt "to communicate directly with Sunbeam to obtain additional information about . . . Sunbeam's results for the first quarter 1998." Perelman "[did]n't think that [it] [was] his place" to "confront or tell [his] people to confront" Dunlap, Kersh, or Morgan Stanley.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. The jurors should have the opportunity to assess each witness' testimony as it is delivered in the courtroom, without the confusion of having isolated quotes read to them from the bench at the start of the trial.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it has no relevance to Morgan Stanley's motion for summary judgment.

313. Perelman is not "aware of anyone associated in any way with MacAndrews & Forbes who contacted anyone at Sunbeam about the April 3 press release."

XIX. Perelman Gives Dunlap MAFCO's Proxy For 14,099,749 Shares Of Sunbeam Stock

CPH disagrees with the characterizations in this heading but notes that Morgan Stanley has not included its headings in its number paragraphs or asked this Court to enter them as findings of fact.

316. Sunbeam scheduled a meeting with analysts on May 11, 1998 to present Sunbeam's results of operations for the first quarter of 1998. In advance of this meeting, as well as Sunbeam's annual stockholders meeting on May 12, 1998, representatives of Sunbeam and Perelman scheduled a meeting at MAFCO's offices in New York.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it has no relevance to Morgan Stanley's motion for summary judgment.

317. On May 7 or 8, 1998, there was a meeting at MAFCO's offices among Perelman, Schwartz, Levin, Dunlap, and Fannin to discuss "what was going on at Sunbeam." Perelman and Gittis were "concerned" about what was transpiring at Sunbeam.

320. After Dunlap finished haranguing Levin, Levin repeated his question about Sunbeam's grill sales to Wal-Mart and Dunlap again flew into a rage — so much so that attendees at the meeting "actually were concerned about his physical well-being because he was so out of control."

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. In addition, this proposed finding is particularly inappropriate for piecemeal judicial fact-finding before trial because it consists of selective quotations taken out of context. Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it has no relevance to Morgan Stanley's motion for summary judgment.

321. When Dunlap failed to answer Levin's question, David Fannin, Sunbeam's general counsel, confirmed that Sunbeam's grill sales to Wal-Mart had diminished. Levin had learned this news before the meeting with Dunlap when he, Levin, contacted individuals at Wal-Mart who informed him of the lost grill sales.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference. Furthermore, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it suggests that Sunbeam's general counsel fully and accurately informed CPH representatives of the shortfall in Sunbeam's grill sales. 324. On May 15, 1998, Sunbeam issued its 10-Q for the first quarter of 1998. Sunbeam reported that its first quarter sales for 1998 were $244,296,000 versus $253,450,000 in the first quarter of 1997. These figures were eventually restated to be $247,601,000 (1998) versus $252,488,000 (1997).

Furthermore, this proposed finding is misleading and substantially controverted insofar as it attempts to compare Sunbeam's first quarter 1997 sales to first quarter 1998 sales on a restated basis in isolation. An examination of Sunbeam's restated financials for first quarter 1998 (which restore sales that improperly were book in the fourth quarter of 1997) necessarily must examine the effect on Sunbeam's restated financials for the fourth quarter 1997. The restated 1996, 1997, and first quarter 1998 financials — viewed in their entirety — demonstrate that the Sunbeam turnaround never occurred.

In addition, Morgan Stanley's comparison ignores Sunbeam's earnings. On a non-restated basis, Sunbeam had first quarter 1998 loss of $0.45 before extraordinary charges versus a profit of $0.24 over the same period in 1997. On a restated basis, Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 loss was $0.53 before extraordinary charges versus a profit of $0.10 over the same period in 1997. See CPH Supp. App. 233 (MS 282 at 2). It is clear, when one considers Sunbeam's sales, earnings, and the reasons for the collapse, that Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam concealed from CPH the Sunbeam fraud and the sales and earnings collapse that took place in the first quarter of 1998.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it has no relevance to Morgan Stanley's motion for summary judgment.

XXI. Burdened By Debt, Sunbeam Slides Into Bankruptcy

325. Following the closing of the financing, the merger transaction, and the release of Sunbeam's first quarter 1998 results, Arthur Andersen repeatedly assured Sunbeam and its board that the audited financial statements for 1997 and 1998 were "accurate in all material respects." In June of 1998, however, those assurances began to unravel.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

Furthermore, Morgan Stanley cites no evidence — because there is none — to support its claim that Sunbeam's restatement was caused by Arthur Andersen's decision to withhold consent to the use of its 1997 audit opinion in Sunbeam's S-3. To the contrary, Sunbeam's financial statements were restated because they were false.

The Court should reject this proposed finding on the basis of CPH's Objection Applicable to All Proposed Findings, which is incorporated herein by reference.

In addition, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it is not relevant, and Morgan Stanley is judicially estopped from asserting that MSSF's losses demonstrate that Morgan Stanley was a victim of Sunbeam's fraud. Moreover, this proposed finding is misleading and unsupported insofar as it implies that $664 million is the actual amount of MSSF's loss. Accordingly, the rush of jury confusion and prejudice outweighs any minimal probative value of this proposed finding.

Further, the Court should reject this proposed finding because it has no relevance to Morgan Stanley's motion for summary judgment.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. As this Court has already determined, CPH's negligent misrepresentation claim is governed by New York law. See Aug. 11, 2004 Order, at 11.

CPH satisfies all the elements necessary to prevail on a negligent-misrepresentation claim under New York law. See CPH's Response in Opposition to Morgan Stanley's Motion for Summary Judgment [hereinafter "CPH Opp."] at 37-45.

2. Under New York law, a plaintiff cannot establish liability for negligent misrepresentation without establishing, among other things, that the challenged information was imparted in the context of a "special relationship of confidence or trust" with the defendant. See, e.g., American Protein Corp. v. AB Volvo, 844 F.2d 56, 64 (2d Cir. 1988); Dyncorp v. GTE Corp., 215 F. Supp. 2d 308, 329 (S.D.N.Y. 2002); WIT Holding Corp. v. Klein, 724 N.Y.S.2d 66, 68 (App. Div. 2001).

There is a genuine issue of material fact concerning whether Morgan Stanley held a special relationship of confidence or trust, and Morgan Stanley has not demonstrated conclusively the non-existence of such a relationship. See CPH Opp. at 37-45.

3. Here, CPH has not produced any evidence that the challenged information was imparted in the context of a "special relationship of confidence or trust" with Morgan Stanley, which sat across the negotiating table from CPH as the financial advisor to CPH's counterpart Sunbeam.

There is a genuine issue of material fact concerning whether Morgan Stanley held a special relationship of confidence or trust, and Morgan Stanley has not demonstrated conclusively the non-existence of such a relationship. See CPH Opp. at 37-45.

CPH satisfies all the elements necessary to prevail on a fraudulent-misrepresentation claim under New York law. See CPH Opp. at 46-67.

6. Under settled New York law, a sophisticated plaintiff cannot establish liability for fraudulent misrepresentation with respect to the purchase of securities without establishing, among other things, that it conducted its own due diligence into the company whose securities were being purchased. See, e.g., Schlaifer Nance & Co. v. Estate of Andy Warhol, 119 F.3d 91, 98 (2d Cir. 1997); Rotterdam Ventures, Inc. v. Ernst & Young LLP, 752 N.Y.S.2d 746, 749 (App. Div. 2002); *UST Private Equity Investors Fund, Inc. v. 7. Here, it is undisputed that CPH is a sophisticated plaintiff, and CPH has produced no evidence that it conducted its own due diligence into Sunbeam, despite express warnings from its own team regarding Sunbeam's financial health and the credibility of Sunbeam's financial statements.

There is a genuine issue of material fact concerning justifiable reliance, and Morgan Stanley has not demonstrated conclusively the non-existence of justifiable reliance. See CPH Opp. at 46-63.

8. In addition, under settled New York law, fraudulent misrepresentation is an intentional tort, so a party seeking to establish such a claim must establish scienter, i.e., intent to deceive. As a matter of law, a plaintiff cannot establish scienter by alleging that the defendant was motivated by ordinary economic motives, such as the desire to receive reasonable and ordinary compensation for its services. See, e.g., THC Holdings Corp. v. Chinn, No. 95 Civ. 4422, 1998 WL 50202, *9 (S.D.N.Y. Feb. 6, 1998); Friedman v. Arizona World Nurseries Ltd. P'ship, 730 F. 11. Under settled New York law, a plaintiff cannot establish liability for aiding and abetting fraud without establishing, among other things, that the defendant (1) had actual knowledge of the underlying fraud, and (2) provided substantial assistance in the commission of that fraud. See, e.g., Stolow v. Greg Manning Auctions Inc., 258 F. Supp. 2d 236, 250 (S.D.N.Y. 2003); Cromer Fin. Ltd. v. Berger, 137 F. Florida law applies to CPH's aiding and abetting claim, and, in any event, there are genuine issues of material fact concerning whether Morgan Stanley had the necessary knowledge of the fraud and concerning whether Morgan Stanley provided substantial assistance, and Morgan Stanley has not demonstrated conclusively that it lacked that knowledge or that it did not provide substantial assistance. See CPH Opp. at 67-82.

12. Here, CPH has not produced any evidence that Morgan Stanley had actual knowledge of the underlying Sunbeam fraud (which involving Sunbeam's accounting), or provided substantial assistance in the commission of that fraud. To the contrary, Morgan Stanley itself was a victim of that fraud, and lost hundreds of millions of dollars in connection with Sunbeam.

Florida law applies to CPH's conspiracy claim, and, in any event, there is a genuine issue of material fact concerning the existence of an agreement between Morgan Stanley and Sunbeam, and Morgan Stanley has not demonstrated conclusively the non-existence of such an agreement. See CPH Opp. at 82-85.

15. Here, CPH has not produced any evidence that Morgan Stanley entered into an actual agreement with Sunbeam to commit fraud.

There is a genuine issue of material fact concerning the existence of such an agreement, and Morgan Stanley has not demonstrated conclusively the non-existence of such an agreement. See CPH Opp. at 83-85.

16. Accordingly, Morgan Stanley is entitled to summary judgment on CPH's conspiracy claim.

Morgan Stanley is not entitled to summary judgment on CPH's conspiracy claim. Among other things, there is a genuine issue of material fact concerning the existence of an agreement to commit fraud, and Morgan Stanley has not demonstrated conclusively the non-existence of such an agreement. See CPH Opp. at 82-85.

CONCLUSION

Morgan Stanley's request for a fact-finding order under Rule 1.510(d) of the Florida Rules of Civil Procedure should be denied.

Los Angeles, California, Friday, October 8, 2004
10:07 a.m. - 2:49 p.m.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Good morning. Here begins videotape No. 1 in the deposition of Karen Clark in the matter of Coleman Parent Holdings, Inc. vs. Morgan Stanley and Co., Inc., and related actions in the 15th Judicial Circuit in and for Palm Beach County, Florida, Case No. CA 03-5045 AI.

Today's date is October 8, 2004. The time is 10:07 a.m. This deposition is taking place at 777 South Figueroa, 35th floor in Los Angeles, California at the request of Lawrence Bemis of the law offices of Kirkland & Ellis.

The videographer is Jay Wertzberger. The court reporter is Rebecca Corral here on behalf of Esquire Deposition Services, Chicago.

Would counsel and all present please identify yourselves and state whom you represent.

MR. BEMIS: Good morning. Lawrence Bemis on behalf of the Morgan Stanley entities.

MR. OCCHUIZZO: Michael Occhuizzo, also for the Morgan Stanley entities.

MR. BRODY: Good morning. Michael Brody on behalf of Coleman Parent Holdings, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, and the witness.

THE WITNESS: I am the witness, Karen Clark.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Thank you.

And would the court reporter please administer the oath.

KAREN CLARK, having been first duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q Good morning, Ms. Clark. My name, again, is Larry Bemis and I'm representing Morgan Stanley. You have been introduced to the court reporter and the videographer.

Would you tell the jury your full name, including your middle name, please.

A Karen Kay Clark.

Q It is Kay, K-a-y, Clark?

A Correct.

Q How old are you, Ms. Clark?

A 44.

Q And what's your date of birth?

A 6/27/60.

Q And you are represented here today by Mr. Brody?

A Correct.

Q Where do you live today?

A Thousand Oaks, California.

Q Would you give us your full address, please?

A 1674 Amarelle, A-m-a-r-e-l-l-e, Street, Thousand Oaks.

Q And your zip code?

A 91320.

Q Do you have a listed telephone number there?

A Yes.

Q What is your listed telephone number?

A (805) 375-0906.

Q Are you married?

A Yes.

Q You live at that residence with your spouse?

A Yes.

Q Who do you work with today?

A Capstone Turbine.

Q Is that C-a-p-s-t-o-n-e?

A Yes.

Q Is it Capstone Turbine, Corp.?

A Corporation.

Q Corporation. What is your position there?

A Chief financial officer.

Q Are you also a vice president?

A I am a senior vice president.

Q So your full title is senior vice president and chief financial officer?

A Correct.

Q When did you join Capstone?

A In 2002.

Q Where is Capstone located, its actual address?

A 21211 Nordhoff Street, Chatsworth, California 91311.

Q And do you have -- is there a general telephone number for the company?

A Yes.

Q What is it?

A (818) 734-5300.

Q And is that the number through which you could be reached if we reached this switchboard?

A Theoretically.

Q Do you have a direct line there?

A Yes.

Q What is it?

A (818) 407-3616.

Q It's my understanding, looking at the record in this case, that you did work for the Coleman Company, Inc. before the merger with Sunbeam in 1998; correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020458

A Correct.
Q What was your position at Coleman?
A Vice president, finance.
Q Is that a position similar to what you have now, although not with the title chief financial officer?
A Not quite.
Q How did it differ?
A I worked for the chief financial officer, but similar to many chief financial officer positions, the controller and other people in the finance function reported to me.
Q Who did you report to at Coleman before the merger with Sunbeam in 1998?
A Joe Page.
Q Was he the chief financial officer at that time?
A He was the interim chief financial officer.
Q After the merger, did you go to work for Sunbeam?
A Yes.
Q What position did you have?
A Vice president, operations, finance.
Q You said operations and finance?
A No, it is operation or operational finance.

Q And you stayed at Sunbeam until when?
A 2000.
Q During the time that you were at Sunbeam, who did you report to first?
A Rus Kersh.
Q Was he the chief financial officer of the company at that time?
A Yes.
Q And after Mr. Kersh left Sunbeam, I think it was in June of 1998, who did you report to next?
A The next clearly delineated reporting was to Bobby Jenkins.
Q Did you report to Mr. Jenkins until you left Sunbeam in the year 2000?
A Yes.
Q Did your title remain the same, vice president of operations, finance through the entire period that you worked for Sunbeam?
A No.
Q What -- did you have a change in title?
A Yes.
Q When was your first change in title?
A I don't recall precisely, but it would have been around late June, July time frame.
Q Is this when you signed your employment contract with Sunbeam?

A Likely.
Q What was your new title?
A Senior vice president, finance.
Q Now, I -- looking at your records as to the extent they appear in public filings, you were a pretty senior person in Coleman during the time you were there; correct?
A Yes.
Q You were relatively highly paid; right?
A Relatively.
Q Well, my records that I looked at show that you had a 1997 -- you had a base salary of $97,000.
Does that sound about right?
A No.
Q What was it?
A Probably closer to 170,000.
Q $170,000. Well, we don't read very well.
You also had a bonus, as well?
A Correct.
MR. BEMIS: Excuse me one second. Let's go off the record. We are going to have to stop the noise outside.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are off the record at 10:14 a.m.

(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going back on the record at 10:15 a.m.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Ms. Clark, in addition to your base salary and, again, focusing on Coleman in 1997, you also received a bonus during that year; correct?
A I don't recall if I received one or not, but I believe I was eligible for one.
Q Do you recall what the size of the bonus you were eligible for in 1997?
A No.
Q You don't have any idea at all today as you sit here?
A No.
Q Was it a percentage of your base salary?
A Likely.
Q Was it based on your performance?
A I don't recall what the construct of the plan was.
MR. BEMIS: Let me see M.S. 236.
Let me show you what's previously been marked as -- let me show you what the court reporter will mark as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 236.
Ms. Reporter, if you could please initial that and date it.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020459

(Defendant's Exhibit 236 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 236 in front of you?
A Yes.
Q In the lower right-hand corner there are numbers on the pages and I -- given your experience, you know that those are called Bates numbers; right?
A Correct.
Q I want you to turn to the page that is numbered CPH 0627125, last three digits again being 125, and it is under Title 11 of the document called Executive Compensation. Tell me when you are there.
A I am there.
Q Now, all right. The Karen K. Clark that is -- well, first of all, is this the Form 10-K for the Coleman Company, Inc. for 1998?
A It appears to be.
Q All right. And I didn't look, but are you one of the signatories of this at this time? And if you will turn to the very last page before the financial statements, see if your name is there.
A I believe you are looking for Bates CH -- or

CPH 0627152.
Q Right. Are you one of the signatories?
A No.
Q Would you take a look, go back now to page CPH 0627125, which was the Executive Compensation table. Tell me when you are there.
A I am there.
Q Now, the compensation listed under your -- or across your name is for two years, 1997 and 1998; correct?
A Correct.
Q For 1998 it shows your base compensation, as I understand it, a salary of 88 -- is that $88,173?
A That's not for 1998.
Q For -- if I misspoke, I meant to say 1997. Let me ask you the question again.
For 1997, was your base compensation $88,173?
A According to this, yes.
Q So when you said $160,000, you were mistaken?
A No. You asked what my base salary level was, which is an annualized number. This is only a portion of the year.
Q A portion of a year for 19 -- I see, because you only worked a portion of 1997?
A Correct.

Q Okay. I appreciate that clarification.
Then did you receive a bonus in that year, that is, 1997, of $81,761?
A According to this, yes.
Q So that would, again, be a part of a bonus for a partial year?
A It was all of the bonus offered for my services in that year.
Q All right. All right. So then you went to work for Sunbeam in 1998, as you have told us; correct?
A Correct.
Q Now, did you receive, in addition to your salary from Sunbeam in 1998, did you also receive the compensation shown beside your name for 1998, which is a salary of $160,501? And you also might want to look at footnote 6.
A Could you restate what your question was, please.
Q Sure. Is the amount of salary that is shown payable to you in 1998 on an annual compensation, which is $160,501, is that your compensation paid to you by the Coleman Company, Inc. in 1998?
A Yes.
Q Then in addition to that, you also received a salary from Sunbeam; correct?

A No.
Q So this is a combination of the two with appropriate offsets?
A I don't believe they are offsets. It is a combination of the two of which they settled up among themselves who paid which portion.
Q That's a better way to describe it than offsets. Thank you.
Then in addition to the compensation that you received, you also received a bonus in 1998 of $43,561; is that correct?
A According to this, yes.
Q Now, is that a bonus strictly from Coleman or does that include a bonus also from Sunbeam?
A It appears to be a bonus from Coleman.
Q You also, in that year, received a bonus from Sunbeam; did you not?
A I don't recall.
MR. BEMIS: Well, in 1998 -- let me show you what's been marked by the court reporter as M.S. 392.
(Defendant's Exhibit 392 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, if you would initial and date the sticker, please. You don't need to put new stickers on it.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020460

Q Do you have -- you have a Morgan Stanley Exhibit 392 in front of you?
A Yes.
Q Now, is this your employment letter with Sunbeam as of April 24, 1998?
A Yes.
Q And does it correctly state that your salary for the year of 1998, on an annual basis, is $205,000?
A Correct.
Q And in addition, you were eligible for participation in the Sunbeam 1998 bonus plan; correct?
A Correct.
Q And it is described as a 50 percent target performance based on salary dollars paid.
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Is that -- withdrawn.
Am I correct that that means that if you meet your performance requirements, that you could earn up to 50 percent of your base salary as a bonus?
A If you can -- no, because if you continue reading the next sentence, it says, "Actual payouts could exceed 50 percent based on the achievement of stretch targets during our 1998 performance year."
Q Stretch targets means if you went over and above the business plan targets, you might be eligible for additional compensation; correct?

A Well, this seems to be achievement of stretch targets, so they could be targets established. Whether those would be where the budget was, I don't know, I can't say at this time.
Q Well, whatever it is, it would be more than 50 percent if you reach the stretch targets; right?
A It had the potential to be.
Q Okay. On this -- so when you went to work for Sunbeam, you got -- strike that.
When you went to work for Sunbeam in 1998, you got an increase in your base compensation over what you were being paid at the Coleman Company, Inc.; correct?
A Correct.
Q Then shortly after -- you can set aside M.S. 392.
Then shortly after you joined the Coleman Company, Inc., you signed another employment contract; did you not?
A I believe so.
MR. BEMIS: Let me show you what the court reporter --
MR. BRODY: Just for clarification, you mean after she joined Sunbeam?

MR. BEMIS: I thought that's what I said.
MR. BRODY: I think you said Coleman.
MR. BEMIS: I will withdraw the question.
Let me ask the court reporter to mark the following document as M.S. 393. I will hand you the original.
(Defendant's Exhibit 393 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 393 in front of you, ma'am?
A Yes.
Q Is that your employment agreement with Sunbeam Corporation dated as of August 31, 1998?
A Yes.
Q Is that your signature that appears on page 11 above the signature of Mr. Shapiro?
A No. Mine is below the signature of Mr. Shapiro.
Q Excuse me, below. Thank you for correcting that.
So when you signed this agreement, which commenced -- well, strike that.
Although this agreement is dated August 31, it actually commenced, if I read section 2.1 correctly, on June 15, 1998; is that right?

A Yes.
Q Did this agreement stay in place until you resigned from Sunbeam in the year 2000?
A To the best of my recollection, yes.
Q Did you work all the way through June 14 of the year 2000?
A No.
Q When did you leave in 2000?
A January.
Q In January of 2000. Under the terms of this agreement, your salary was increased from that shown in M.S. 392, which was your, I think, April 24 employment letter, to $270,000; is that correct?
A Yes.
Q You also were eligible for an annual bonus as set forth in section 3.2 of your employment agreement; correct?
A Correct.
Q This was -- was this a performance bonus, as well as -- withdrawn.
Was this a performance bonus?
A It was a performance-based bonus.
Q Did you receive a bonus in 1998 from Sunbeam?
A I don't recall.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q You don't recall one way or the other?
A No.
Q Did you have other employment besides Sunbeam in 1998?
A Continuing my duties at Coleman.
Q Well, other than your duties at Sunbeam and Coleman, did you have any other employment?
A No.
Q When you left Coleman, did you have stock options?
A When I left Coleman, would you define when I left Coleman.
Q I am not trying to play games with you. I understand you had some options that you cashed out at the time of the merger; right?
A Some time, as a result of the merger, I was one of the last people to be cashing out.
Q You cashed out about 25,000 options, didn't you?
A I don't recall the number.
Q You don't have any idea at all?
A No.
Q Do you know how much profit you made on the options that you cashed out at Coleman when you left?
A No.

MR. BRODY: Object to form.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q You don't have any idea at all?
A No.
Q You are an accountant by trade, too, aren't you?
A Yes.
Q Graduated from Montana State?
A Correct.
Q Degree in -- you had a degree in what?
A Business accounting.
Q Economics; right?
A No.
Q What did you say?
A Business accounting.
Q I'm sorry. Business accounting. And you were also, at some point, you were a certified public accountant, weren't you?
A Yes.
Q What states licensed you to be a certified public accountant?
A I believe I was licensed in Idaho, Montana, and Washington.
Q Washington State; right?
A Washington State.

Q Okay. Well, when you left -- well, strike that.
Are you a certified -- withdrawn.
Are you still licensed as a certified public accountant today?
A No.
Q When did you let your last license lapse?
A I don't recall.
Q No idea at all?
A Probably some time in the '90s.
Q Now, just -- you have been deposed before; right?
A Correct.
Q You have been deposed before in connection with the Sunbeam cases; right?
A Yes.
Q And you understand that you are being videotaped; right?
A Yes.
Q And you understand that the videotape can be played to the jury in the case?
A Yes.
Q You have had an opportunity to consult with Mr. Brody, who says he is appearing on your behalf today?

A Yes.
Q And you understand that the oath that you took this morning has the same force and effect as if you were testifying in court; correct?
A Absolutely.
Q And is there any reason that you can't testify truthfully today?
A No.
Q Is there anything wrong with your memory today that may cause you not to remember something, for example, you are on some medication that impairs your memory?
A I am not on medication that would impair my memory.
Q So there is nothing that would impair your memory?
A Nothing besides the normal things like passage of time and aging.
Q When did you retain Mr. Brody to represent you, by the way?
A In the last few months.
Q And do you have like a written agreement, retainer agreement with him?
A I don't have a written document.
Q Are you paying him fees or is someone else paying his legal fees for appearing here?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A Someone else is paying his fees.
Q And do you know who that is?
A I don't know precisely what entity it is.
MR. BEMIS: Could you reread that.
(Record read.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q I'd ask you if you could just keep your voice up just a little bit. You are a little soft-spoken.
Is Mr. Brody -- withdrawn.
Has Mr. Brody represented you in any other matters?
A No.
Q Have you ever met him before he became your attorney in this matter?
A No.
Q How did you come in contact with him?
A I was given his name by an individual at MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q Who was that?
A I don't recall who it ultimately was who gave me his name.
Q Well, who called you from MacAndrews & Forbes to tell you that there was a request to take your deposition?

A No one.
Q How did you find out about your deposition?
A I was called -- well, the deposition itself, Mr. Brody informed me about.
Q So Mr. Brody called you? You have to answer yes or no.
A Yes.
Q Sorry. Head nods are pretty good, but we need an answer, if we can.
Had you spoken to someone at MacAndrews & Forbes before you spoke to Mr. Brody?
A Yes.
Q So that person told you you were going to receive a call from Mr. Brody?
A Yes.
Q Whom did you speak to at MacAndrews & Forbes?
A I don't recall who it was.
Q Did you speak to more than one person?
A Yes.
Q Do you recall any of the other people you spoke to?
A I can't come up with any other names.
Q Did Mr. Barry Schwartz call you?
A No.
Q Was it Mr. Fasman who called you?

A I don't know.
Q What did they tell you, whoever called you?
A That Mr. Brody would be contacting me.
Q Did they tell you what the deposition was about?
A Not other than there was an action that MacAndrews was involved in. I really didn't get very many details about it.
Q Did you ever work for MacAndrews & Forbes?
A No.
Q Did they tell you why they were offering to have Mr. Brody represent you in the deposition?
A I had asked if they would offer representation.
Q You asked that of MacAndrews & Forbes?
A Yes.
Q They agreed to it?
A Yes.
Q Did they offer -- withdrawn.
Did you talk to anybody about your -- withdrawn.
Did you talk to anyone at Sunbeam about your deposition?
A Yes.
Q Who was that?
A Steve Berreth.

Q Would you spell his last name, please?
A B-e-r-r-e-t-h.
Q And where is Mr. Berreth located?
A Chicago.
Q Who does he work for?
A Today, I don't know.
Q Well, who did he report to at the time you spoke to him?
A Coleman.
Q What was -- what is his position at Coleman or was -- withdrawn.
What was his position at Coleman at the time you spoke to him?
A I believe he was general counsel.
Q What did you say to him and what did he say to you?
A I told him I had received a telephone call from some attorneys who wanted to interview me about some situation with, I believe it was, Coleman Parent Holdings or some M & F entity and asked him if he knew anything about what it was and he told me he did not.
Q Did he say he would get back to you?
A No.
Q Did you ask him to get back to you?
A No.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q What happened next?
A I asked him who might know and he referred me to Mr. Schwartz's office.
Q Mr. Barry Schwartz?
A Correct.
Q Did you then call Mr. Schwartz's office?
A Yes.
Q Did you speak to Mr. Schwartz?
A No.
Q Who did you speak to?
A His admin assistant.
Q His administrative assistant?
A Yes.
Q What did you say -- what did the administrative assistant to Mr. Schwartz say to you?
A I will get back to you.
Q I will get back to you. Did someone get back to you?
A Yes.
Q Who was that?
A I don't remember.
Q What was said when this person you cannot remember got back to you at a time you don't remember?
A They said that they would have Mr. Brody give me a call.

Q How long ago was this conversation with the administrative assistant you can't remember, at a time you can't remember that you were told you would speak to Mr. Brody?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
MR. BEMIS: You can answer.
THE WITNESS: The messages were a few months ago.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Did you eventually meet with Mr. Brody -- strike that.
Did -- Mr. Brody and you did, at some point, then, speak on the telephone; is that right?
A Yes.
Q And did you ever have any face-to-face meeting before your -- with Mr. Brody before your deposition here today?
A Yes.
Q When was -- how many times have you met with him?
A Face-to-face?
Q Yes, ma'am.
A Once.
Q And was that yesterday?
A Yes.

Q Before you met with Mr. Brody yesterday, had you spoken to him on the telephone about matters other than just scheduling?
A I believe he gave me a very high level overview of the nature of this issue.
Q The issue. What are you referring to?
A That there was some action going on between MacAndrews and is it Morgan Stanley, that's who you are representing.
Q And that's it?
A That's about it.
Q Then you met yesterday?
A Yes.
Q And where did you meet yesterday, in Chatsworth?
A No.
Q Where did you meet?
A At my home.
Q Where is -- how close is that to Chatsworth where you wanted to have your deposition taken?
A It is about 35 miles away.
Q How long did you meet yesterday at your home?
A A few hours.
Q Did you provide any documents to either Mr. Brody -- or withdrawn.

Did you provide any documents to Mr. Brody, to Coleman, or to anyone from MAFCO or Sunbeam in relationship to this deposition?
A No.
Q Did you review yesterday, while you were preparing for this a couple of hours, any documents with Mr. Brody?
A Yes.
Q Did those documents help you remember events?
A Yes.
Q What documents did you look at?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question. I would instruct her not to answer because as we have addressed before, it invades work product. I think you ought to ask her what documents refreshed her recollection.
MR. BEMIS: I just asked her that question.
MR. BRODY: No, you asked her what documents she looked at, not what documents refreshed --
MR. BEMIS: I asked her whether the documents refreshed her recollection and she said yes. Now I asked her what documents.
MR. BRODY: Well, if the question is considered what documents did you review that refreshed your recollection --

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 34

MR. BEMIS: Are you instructing her not to answer?
MR. BRODY: I am trying to get a clarification of the question, Larry.
MR. BEMIS: I am trying to do the same thing that you have done in every other deposition, so if you are instructing her not to answer, give her the instruction and let's get on with it.
MR. BRODY: I asked you to rephrase your question because, apparently, we don't understand each other.
MR. BEMIS: Apparently, we don't.
Q What documents did you review yesterday with Mr. Brody that refreshed your recollection of events?
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
MR. BEMIS: You are welcome.
THE WITNESS: There were a variety of them.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Well, I understand that, but it was less than 24 hours ago that you looked at the documents; right?
A Correct.
Q Do the best you can and tell me what documents you looked at.
A There were minutes of meetings. There were schedules. There were pages out of presentations.

Page 35

There were e-mails --
Q What kind of presentations? Excuse me.
A Presentations that, apparently, had been made to various boards or presentations related to meetings.
Q That's all you can remember from yesterday?
A It is a lot of documents. I mean, I don't recall specifically which ones. I could name some memos, if you would like. How detailed do you want to get?
Q Well, do the best you can and I will -- if I have additional questions, I will ask you.
A I looked at a memo about a 3 by 3 by 6 meeting.
Q What's a 3 by 3 by 6 meeting?
A It was a meeting that was being called at Sunbeam that was to review three months of performance expectations, the next three months, and the six months following that.
Q What was the date of this meeting?
A In the summer of 1998.
Q What else?
A I looked at what appeared to be a draft of a memo about a project that was named something like 265.
Q Project 265?
A I believe that's what it was called, I don't --

Page 36

Q Did you know what that was?
A No.
Q So had you ever seen the memo before?
A No.
Q Just -- we'll go on in a second, get some more of these documents, but the minutes of the meetings that you looked at, were these Board of Directors minutes?
A No.
Q What kind of minutes were they?
A Audit committee.
Q Audit committee of Sunbeam?
A Correct.
Q And all -- were these all like post June of 1998?
A I can't say specifically what date because it was a very cursory -- there are minutes.
Q Had you seen them before yesterday?
A On an item by item basis, I can't recall if I had seen them in writing.
Q Were you on the audit committee of Sunbeam at any time?
A No.
Q Did you make presentations to the audit committee of Sunbeam while you were there?
A Yes.

Page 37

Q Okay. You also said you looked at some schedules. What kind of schedules are you referring to?
A Schedules that were attached to documents like forecast schedules or schedules that had forecast numbers on them, schedules that had actual numbers on them.
Q Were these Sunbeam forecasts or were they Coleman forecasts?
A I recall yesterday looking at a column that had Coleman forecast numbers on them.
Q Were these for 1998?
A I believe there was a portion of 1998.
Q And were these comparing forecasts and actual results for 1998 at Coleman?
A For a portion of the period, yes.
Q Did you look at any forecasts for -- versus actual performance for Coleman for 1997?
A I don't recall that.
Q Going back to the 1998 forecast and comparison to actual, were these for the entire year 1998?
A No.
Q What period were these forecasts for?
A I believe it was a comparison of the first quarter forecast versus actual results.
Q And did these forecasts that you looked at -- excuse me, for Coleman for the first quarter of 1998 and the comparison to actual results, did they show that Coleman had not met its forecasts for the first quarter of 1998?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A Correct.

Q And in what -- strike that.

Did Coleman miss its forecast for EBITDA?

A I don't recall.

Q Do you remember any of the items that Coleman -- that you looked at yesterday that Coleman did not meet its forecast for the first quarter of 1998?

A Sales.

Q Anything else?

A I don't recall anything else.

Q How about earning per share?

A I didn't look at it.

Q Do you recall how much Coleman missed its forecast for the first quarter of 1998 on the schedules that you looked at yesterday with Mr. Brody?

A No.

MR. BRODY: Objection to form.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q All right. Other than -- any other schedules that you now recall looking at yesterday?

A I know there were others, but I can't specifically recall what they were at this time.

Q I didn't mean to interrupt you.

What period of time were they for?

A The documents that I looked at predominantly were in the 1997 and 1998 time frame, generally.

Q Were these other schedules for the 1997 and 1998 time frame, were they comparisons of forecasts to actuals for those years for Coleman's performance?

A Not that I recall.

Q What were they?

A As I mentioned, I can't recall what they were. Would you like to know about other memos that I remember?

Q Sure.

A Okay. I remember looking at a copy of the memo that Frank Feraco, Lee Griffith, Al LeFevre, and I prepared for Al Dunlop regarding the performance of Sunbeam.

Q For what period?

A It was a memo done in June of 1998 and it was addressing a prospective period.

Q Was this a prospective period of meeting certain earnings per share target for the year 1998?

A I believe it addressed the performance expectations of the company, which would have been in response to those expectations.

Q And did this memo conclude that the performance expectations that you were calculating were not going to meet what certain analyses had been made as to what the company's performance might be for 1998?

A That's my recollection of the memo, although I did not read it yesterday.

Q What other memos did you look at yesterday?

A I can't recall specifics.

Q Do you recall any nonspecifics?

A I have given you the nonspecifics.

Q Do you recall any other types of documents you reviewed yesterday?

A No.

Q Did you review any public filings, by the way, such as Morgan Stanley 236 that you have in front of you?

A No.

Q Let me ask you a couple questions about your -- a little bit more about your background, and then we'll get into some more details about your employment at Coleman.

I know you told me earlier you graduated from Montana State; correct?

A Correct.

Q When was that?

A 1981.

Q My son is at the University of Montana, by the way.

A I am sorry?

Q Yes.

A What's he studying?

Q He is studying business and computer science. Maybe he'll get -- be on the opposite side some day.

When you graduated, you graduated with a degree in business accounting?

A Correct.

Q And did you graduate with honors?

A Yes.

Q And when did you take your first C.P.A. examination?

A 1981.

Q 1981?

A Correct.

Q Did you pass the first time?

A Yes.

Q All four sections?

A Yes.

Q Congratulations.

A Thank you.

Q And did you have to take the examination -- which state was that in?
A I took it in Montana.
Q And I know you told me you were also licensed in Washington, and where did you say another state was?
A Idaho.
Q That's what I thought. You didn't have to take the test again, did you?
A No. We are lucky.
Q And you maintained your license as a certified public accountant in at least one other state up until some time in the 1990's; right?
A I believe that's correct.
Q Now, are you still, today, a member of the AICPA?
A Yes.
Q And for the jury's benefit, that's the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants; correct?
A Correct.
Q And are you also -- are you a member of any other professional organizations?
A Not at this time.
Q Were you once a member of a group called the Financial Executives Institute?
A Yes.

Q What is that, for the jury?
A It is an organization of financial executives.
Q When you -- are there any other professional organizations that you have been a member of since you graduated in 1981 from Montana State?
A Yes.
Q What?
A National Association of Accountants. I have also been a member of a number of state society organizations, the Institute of Management Accountants, I have also had participation with.
Q When you went to -- excuse me. When you -- withdrawn.
When you completed your degree work at Montana State and shortly thereafter got your C.P.A. license, did you go into private employment?
A I was in public accounting.
Q And who did you work for first?
A Arthur Andersen.
Q The same auditors that were Sunbeam's auditors?
A Correct.
Q What -- when did you work for Arthur Andersen?
A 1981 to 1983.
Q What area were you -- strike that.
What area did you work in?

A Do you mean geography or practice area?
Q I meant practice area.
A I was in audit and consulting and computer audit.
Q I will ask you to keep your voice up. I can barely hear your answers. If you could, I would appreciate it.
MR. BRODY: Is it coming through all right on the tape?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: It is.
MR. BRODY: Good.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q If I heard you correct, you did auditing; correct?
A Correct.
Q And, in particular, you did -- did you say computer auditing?
A Computer auditing and also business consulting.
Q Business control test?
A Yes.
Q What are business control tests?
A I'm sorry, I said business consulting, but business control tests are -- an audit control test can be part of an audit procedure.
Q After you left -- where did you work for Arthur

Andersen, by the way, geographically, where did you work?
A Boise, Idaho.
Q Nice place.
A Not bad.
Q Then after you left Arthur Andersen, where did you go to work next?
A A small company called Skyland Scientific.
Q What did you do there?
A I was the controller.
Q How long did you stay there?
A About one month.
Q Where did you go after that?
A I went to a public accounting practice called Dobbins, DeGuire & Tucker.
Q Is that D-e, capital G-u-i-r-e, ampersand, Tucker?
A Correct.
Q And what did you do there?
A I was an auditor. I also did business consulting.
Q How long were you at Dobbins, DeGuire & Tucker?
A I believe until about 1997.
Q '97 or '87?
A I am sorry, '87. Thank you for the correction.

Q After you left the Dobbins firm, what did you do next?
A I went to Arthur Young.
Q Which became, eventually, Ernst & Young?
A Correct.
Q What did you do at -- I will refer to them as Ernst & Young. What did you do with Ernst & Young?
A I did auditing and business consulting.
Q Was that -- and how long did you work for what is now Ernst & Young?
A For the combined practice, until 1990.
Q Ernst & Young was, at the time that you worked for the Coleman Company, was the auditor for the Coleman Company; correct?
A I don't recall how long they had that assignment to know if they were the auditors in 1990 or not.
Q I wasn't -- I may have misspoken.
When you worked at the Coleman Company in 1997 and 1998, Ernst & Young was the outside accounting firm for Coleman; correct?
A Correct.
Q And Arthur Andersen, who you worked for before, when you went to work for Sunbeam, was the outside auditor for Sunbeam?

A Correct.
Q All right. After -- so you had about, with the exception of a month that you spent at Skyland Scientific, you had about 18 or 19 years of audit practice; did you not?
A No. It was nine years.
Q Nine years?
A From 1981 to 1990.
Q I can't add either, but that's right. That would be nine years. So --
A It felt like 18.
Q I know it. I hear you.
What was the highest audit position you achieved within any of the organizations that you worked for?
A My title was an audit manager. The level now is generally described as a senior manager.
Q Did you audit any public companies in your assignments for Arthur Andersen, Dobbins, or Ernst & Young in this nine-year period?
A Yes.
Q Give me a couple names of the public companies that you audited.
A Boise Cascade Corporation.
Q Any others?

A Yes. I believe Todd Shipyards was still public at the time I worked on them.
Q Do you want to give us the name again?
A Todd Shipyards. I did some work with Aldus Corporation, although not in an auditing role with them. There were others. I can't recall their names at this time.
Q Did you ever work on any -- strike that.
Did you ever do any work, while you were in the accounting profession from 1981 to 1990, in connection with mergers and acquisitions?
A I am sorry, can you repeat the question.
Q Yes. During that nine-year period that you were in the accounting profession, did you ever do any work as part of your professional work in connection with mergers and acquisitions, something like Sunbeam, Coleman, although it could have been structured differently?
A Yes.
Q What mergers and acquisitions did you work on in your professional capacity in this time frame?
A A number of acquisitions typically of one company, of a private company. They generally aren't names you would recognize.
Q Okay. And did you have some experience, when you worked in the accounting profession, with public filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission?

A Yes.
Q When you went -- withdrawn.
When you left Ernst & Young, which I believe you said was in about 1990?
A Correct.
Q Where did you go to work next?
A Tektronix.
Q That's T-e-k-t-r-o-n-i-x?
A Correct.
Q Where is Tektronix located?
A In the Portland, Oregon area.
Q Are you from Portland?
A No.
Q Are you from Oregon?
A No.
Q Where are you from?
A Trick question.
Q Trick question. Where are you from?
A A variety of places. Pennsylvania, Delaware, Montana.
Q What did you do at Tektronix?
A I worked as an accounting manager, a planning manager, cost accounting manager. In the color printer division, I also worked as corporate planning manager.

Q Did you report in that capacity -- those capacities to the chief financial officer?
A No.
Q To the controller?
A To a division controller and -- in the first three positions, and to the corporate vice president of planning. I don't recall what his title was in the last position.
Q In corporate planning, did you do financial planning?
A Yes.
Q Prepare forecasts and budgets?
A Yes.
Q And track performance against forecasts and budgets?
A To a degree, yes.
Q Did you create business plans?
A I assisted the business units in their creation of the business plans.
Q After you left -- well, strike that.
When did you leave Tektronix again?
A 1994, I believe.
Q Where did you go, then?
A Precision Cast Parts.

Page 51

Q Where is that located?
A Portland, Oregon.
Q What does that company do or did?
A Still do.
Q What does it still do?
A They are a heavy metal manufacturer.
Q What did you do there as controller? That's a bad question. Withdraw that.
Were you the corporate controller the entire time?
A Yes.
Q Did you report to the chief financial officer?
A Yes.
Q Were you involved in corporate planning, as you have described it earlier?
A Yes.
Q Forecasting, budgeting; correct?
A Correct.
Q Business plans?
A Yes.
Q When you -- withdrawn.
How long did you stay with Precision Cast Parts?
A Approximately three years.
Q So that would bring us up to about 1997; is that right?

Page 52

A Yes.
Q Is that the time, then, that you joined the Coleman Company?
A Yes.
Q Did you also work for one of the other -- another company related to the Coleman Company?
A Like whom?
Q Like Coleman Worldwide Corporation.
A No.
Q Never had a position with them?
A I didn't have an active day-to-day job with them.
Q Well, did you have a nonactive, non-day-to-day job with them?
A There were various entities that I became an officer of, but they weren't really operating entities, so it is not --
Q These are holding companies?
A Holding companies or other entities.
Q All right. So let's set Coleman Worldwide Corporation aside right now, but we know you went to work for the Coleman Company, Inc.; right?
A Correct.
Q Again, so the jury can understand the time frame, we are at about 1997; right?

Page 53

A Correct.
Q And just to put this in context, you were vice president of finance; right?
A Correct.
Q And you stayed in that position as vice president of finance until you went to work for Sunbeam in 1998 pursuant to your letter agreement dated April 24, 1998; right?
A I was exactly in both jobs.
Q Both jobs, that is, what you mean by that is you worked for both Sunbeam and Coleman; correct?
A And retained both titles at the same time.
Q Because after -- as of April 24, 1998, Sunbeam had acquired the majority interest in the Coleman Company, Inc.; right?
A Well, I will trust you on the date, but that's about the story.
Q Where -- when you were vice president of finance at Coleman, where were you, where was your office?
A In a building in Wichita, Kansas.
Q So you had to move from Portland to Wichita?
A Yes. There are worse things.
Q I am sure there are, but Wichita is a fine place.

When you joined the Coleman Company, Inc., you initially -- you reported first to Mr. Joe Page; right?
A No.
Q I am sorry. Who did you report to initially?
A Steve Kaplan.
Q Steve Kaplan. What was his title?
A Chief financial officer.
Q Then you reported to Mr. Page?
A Correct.
Q You said Mr. Page was the acting chief financial officer; isn't that what you said earlier?
A I believe I said interim.
Q Interim. Who hired you to work at the Coleman Company?
A Mr. Kaplan.
Q Did you know him, did you know him before you went to work for him at the Coleman Company?
A Only from having met him in the interview process.
Q How did you come to go to work for the Coleman Company from Portland, Oregon to Wichita, Kansas?
A I was recruited.
Q By a headhunter?
A Correct.

Q When you joined the Coleman Company in 1997 and moved to Wichita, what did you understand you were going to be doing as you reported to Mr. Kaplan and later to Mr. Page?
A I understood that I was going to be actively involved in rebuilding the corporate office, that I would have responsibilities for the controller function, and add on, then, tax and treasury, and that I would be helping to work in a turnaround business.
Q Basically, when you came to work for the Coleman Company, you went there because you knew that as a turnaround situation; correct?
A You are saying I went there because it was a turnaround?
Q No, you went there because Coleman was in the process of a restructuring or turnaround; right?
A I went there because we put together an offer and acceptance on a job, that was one of the features.
Q One of the features was that you were going to a company that was in the process of a restructuring; correct?
A Correct.
Q And that you were going to be a participant in restructuring the company; correct?
A Correct.

Q And that if you were successful in restructuring the company, you expected to benefit monetarily, if you will, from stock options that you were granted as a consequence of your successful work; right?
A My bigger incentive was the ability to do that with an expanded role in the financial background. You could tell from my earlier testimony my focus is not on what I get compensated, but on the experience that I get.
Q Well, whether it be your compensation or your experience, you did go to Wichita because you wanted to participate in the restructuring of the Coleman Company; right?
A Yes.
Q And I think you called it the rebuilding of the corporate office?
A Yes.
Q What did you mean by that?
A The corporate office had been in Denver, Colorado, it was being moved to Wichita, and most of the people from Denver were not being asked to go back to Wichita, and so it meant finding people for various positions, building a team, building new processes and procedures.

Q Was the objective of this restructuring eventually to position the Coleman Company so that it could be an attractive acquisition target for another corporation?
A That's one of the possible outcomes of it.
Q And according to M.S. 236, which we looked at earlier, that's the December 31, 1998 Form 10-K, you had granted to you 25,000 options -- and that's, if you would like to look, that's at CPH 0627125. Am I correct?
A Yes.
Q Did you get -- strike that.
Were you awarded those 25,000 Coleman options at the time you accepted employment with the Coleman Company?
A I can't recall if they were all on the first day or not, but according to this report, it was all done by the end of 1997.
Q And then at the time of the -- withdrawn.
Was the strike price of the underlying options equal to the market price of the options on the day you -- day or days that you received the grants of the 25,000 options?
A I can't recall specifically, but that would be normal.

020470

Q So if, for example -- withdrawn.
Now, at the time of the merger -- strike that.
At the time of the closing of the Sunbeam-Coleman merger transaction, the nonpublic closing as of March 30, 1998, did you exercise your options, your Coleman options?
A I don't believe -- I don't recall if I exercised them then or not, but I didn't monetize it for some time.
Q What do you mean? Please tell us what you mean by "monetize" them.
A I didn't get any cash.
Q You eventually got cash, though, didn't you?
A Eventually.
Q So you monetized them at some point?
A Correct.
Q And you monetized them at the difference between the stock price, which was the market price of the stock at the time you were issued, if custom followed -- practice followed custom, and what was the market price you exercised at?
A I don't remember.
Q Did you have a profit?
A I believe so, yes.
Q Did you have a pretty substantial profit?

MR. BRODY: Objection to the form.
THE WITNESS: I don't remember.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Well, was it in the hundreds of thousands of dollars?
A I don't remember.
Q Now, at the time of the -- when did you learn, by the way, that the Coleman Company was going to be acquired by Sunbeam?
A Not long before it happened or before the announcement. I believe the announcement was in early March and it wasn't long before that, maybe just about a few days that I heard it was going to be acquired by Sunbeam.
Q Were you surprised at the announcement?
A Not on the day of the announcement because I obviously knew a few days before that it was going to be acquired.
Q Let's put it this way. On the day that you learned that there was to be an acquisition, whether it was at that point public or not public, were you surprised at the announcement?
A Yes.
Q Were you surprised at the price that Sunbeam was paying?

A Yes.
Q Why were you surprised first at the announcement that Sunbeam was acquiring the Coleman Company?
A I was surprised that anyone would be acquiring the Coleman Company at that point in time because it was a company in turnaround, not a company turned around.
Q Did you read any of your deposition transcripts before you came in here today?
A I read like four pages. When I say "pages," I mean the little boxes that are numbered pages of one, but that's all I had time for.
Q Who gave you those little boxes of testimony, Mr. Brody?
A I had them.
Q You had them. Was your prior testimony on that subject, one of the boxes that you read, what you just told me?
A No.
Q Did -- why were you surprised about the price that Sunbeam was paying for the Coleman stock?
A I was surprised about the price because, as I recall, it was a rather significant premium to where the stock was trading at that time. And significant enough that, you know, one would question the price in light of the stage of turnaround.

Q When you came to work for the Coleman Company in 1997, do you remember the month?
A My first day was June 30.
Q Of 1997?
A 1997.
Q Do you remember what the approximate market price was for the Coleman stock as it was publicly traded?
A No, I don't.
Q You don't have any idea at all?
A No.
Q It wasn't $50 a share?
A I don't recall it being that high. I would want to say it was kind of a teens stock.
Q Kind of a 14, 15, $12 share; right?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: You probably looked at it more recently than I have and it's a factual point we can look up.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q All right. Do you remember what the approximate per price share was for Coleman stock as announced in the acquisition that closed on March 30, 1998?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020471

A Again, I don't remember specifics, but my gut reaction is that it was somewhere in like the high 20's or low 30's; is that right? You have the facts.
Q It is lower. It is much higher than that.
Did you share your surprise at both the acquisition and the price of the acquisition with anyone at the Coleman Company?
A Yes.
Q With whom?
A Joe Page.
Q And what did you say to Mr. Page on this subject matter?
A I don't recall the specifics of the conversation, but the context of it was that it was surprising it was selling so quickly and surprising it was selling for what appeared to be such a high premium.
Q What did, if anything, did Mr. Page say in response to your surprise?
A I believe he concurred.
Q He was surprised?
A Yes.
Q On both points?
A Yes.
Q That is, both the timing and the price?
A Yes.

Q Just to close out this area, you told us you left Sunbeam January of 2000; right?
A Correct.
Q Where did you go then?
A I went to PacifiCorp.
Q And is that in Portland?
A Yes.
Q PacifiCorp is P-a-c-i-f-i, and then Corp, C-o-r-p, but one word; right?
A Correct, with a capital C.
Q What does it do?
A It is a utility.
Q You stated -- what was your position there?
A Chief financial officer.
Q Were you -- was that your first position as a chief financial officer?
A Yes.
Q PacifiCorp is a public utility, isn't it?
A Correct.
Q Its stock is traded; is it not, on the Exchanges?
A Not any longer.
Q Not any longer. How long did you stay at PacifiCorp?
A Approximately two years.

Q Then you went to your present position at Capstone; right?
A Correct.
Q And you are -- you went -- you went as senior vice president of chief financial officer; correct?
A Correct.
Q You are still in those positions today?
A Correct.
Q You are also the secretary to the corporation; right?
A Correct. I am also the chief legal officer, if that matters.
Q You are also the chief legal officer. Congratulations.
A Great.
Q I assume you have some -- you are not a licensed attorney, are you?
A No.
Q Do you have lawyers working, reporting to you?
A No, but I hire outside counsel.
Q You hire outside counsel, okay.
Let's go back now and spend a few minutes on what the Coleman Company was like when you got there as part of this restructuring effort that you described for us earlier. Did you work on the business plan for the restructuring in 1997 when you came in June of that year?

A I don't recall working on one in June.
Q Was there one in place when you arrived at the Coleman Company in June of 1997, that is, a business plan for restructuring?
A I don't recall what plan there would have been at that time, but I do recall that we would be on a path building a different one.
Q On the path to a different one?
A Yes.
Q That's because in 1996 the company lost quite a bit of money, didn't it?
A I don't recall the specifics, but I do recall that Jerry Levin had just been put in as the president of the company with the idea to get it back on track with its turnaround efforts that had waned in recent history.
Q Well, just -- why don't we take -- take a look at M.S. 236 again, which is the -- let me ask you to set that aside. Let me show you a better one to look at is 1997. Get the right date. It will be easier to work with.
A Let me grab some water while you get that.
Q If you would like to take a short break, we have been going an hour. If you would like to take a short break, we can break or we can continue. It's up to you.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A We can go for a little while longer.

Q I understand. Believe me, I understand.

I'm going to hand you, Ms. Clark, what's previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251, which is the December 31, 1997 Form 10-K or annual report in shorthand for the Coleman Company, Inc. I am sorry to slide that over to you, but I can't reach.

Mr. Brody, I have a copy for you to follow along, if you like.

Now, I would like you to look at, I think page 13, if I remember correctly, of the report, which is entitled Selected Financial Data. It is -- tell me when you are there.

A I'm there.

Q Before we talk about that financial data, maybe keep a thumb on that page, you did sign this annual report Form 10-K M.S. 251; did you not? I direct your attention to page 46.

A Yes.

Q You signed it as an officer of the Coleman Company, vice president of finance; right?

A Correct.

Q Now, this document reflects combined data for 1996 and 1997; right, as well as other periods?

A Correct.

Q So let's turn to the highlights of Coleman's financial data on page 13 of the Form 10-K for 1997. Tell me when you are there again.

A I am there.

Q All right. Just want to ask you a couple questions about what the situation was when you arrived on June of 1997.

According to the document that you signed and filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, M.S. 251, Coleman had a net loss in 1996 of $4,893,000; is that right?

A Yes.

Q And that was in contrast to a profit of $39,280,000 in 1995; right?

A Correct.

Q Now, if I understood you correctly, you were one of the people who were brought in along with Mr. Levin to assist in a turnaround of the company, that is, the Coleman Company; right?

A Correct.

Q And now, as part of your job to turn around Coleman, what specific tasks were assigned to you as part of the restructuring?

A Well, to work on rebuilding the corporate finance group, to work on --

Q Is that like hire the right people to get the job done?

A That's a part of it.

Q Okay. What else were you to do?

A To work on improving systems and processes.

Q Is that so you can reduce your G & A?

A That might be one of the benefits of it, but really more to provide timely, accurate, and insightful information for use in running the business.

Q Better information so you know what's really going on in the business; right?

A Well, so you get the information more timely and in a consistent fashion.

Q And then you can apply that information, hopefully, to be more profitable?

A One would hope so.

Q What else were you charged with doing?

A Participating with the business units as requested and needed in their efforts.

Q Now, there are, in this selected -- well, strike that.

When you joined the Coleman Company as part of this restructuring effort, how large was the department that reported to you?

A At the time I got there, I can't say precisely how large it was. I don't remember. I remember three people.

Q Did you say you remembered the people?

A Three people.

Q And did your group have a name within the company? I know you had titles, but did you have like a group name?

A Well, I had the accounting group and then eventually I worked with the tax group. The intention was that I would also, at some point, have responsibility for the treasury group, but on the first day I came in, my focus area was the accounting group.

Q That's your internal accounting group?

A The corporate accounting group.

Q Who prepares the internal financial statements of the company?

A As well as external ones.

Q When you say the "external," you mean the ones that are then audited by your accountants?

A Correct.

Q Your outside accountants?

A It is the same financials.

0204713

Page 70

Q I hope so.
A It is a feature.
Q Now, did you have any specific role in creating the turnaround or restructuring plan for the Coleman Company?
A Just supporting the business units, it was a business plan.
Q Who was in charge of the Coleman -- at the Coleman Company when you arrived in June of 1997 for the business restructuring plan for the Coleman Company?
A Jerry Levin.
Q And Mr. Levin, was it his charge, as you understood it, that he was to turn around the company and reverse the type of results that the company had in 1996 losing almost $42 million?
A It was his objective to make it a profitable and sustainable, solid business.
Q Now, as I read page 13, the selected financial data, which is in Morgan Stanley 251, for 1997, the company, that is, the Coleman Company, lost $2,536,000; correct?
A Correct.
Q And if I -- looking down further to balance sheet data, do you see the heading Long Term Debt?
A Yes.

Page 71

Q Now, if I look at -- am I reading this correctly, in 1993, Coleman's long term debt was only $168,858,000; is that correct?
A Correct.
Q By 1997, Coleman's long term debt had swollen -- strike swollen. Increased to $477,799,000; is that correct?
A The debt had increased, as had other numbers in the business at that point.
Q Well, let me look at -- what is stockholders equity under balance sheet data, what does that mean?
A It is the source of the assets that came from stockholders or the interest of stockholders.
Q Well, am I correct that the total interest of stockholders, that had increased from $228,104,000 in 1993 to $240,469,000 in 1997?
A Correct.
Q Now, when you went through this restructuring of the Coleman Company while you were there in 1997 and up -- well, withdrawn.
Did the restructuring, was it ongoing at the time of the acquisition by Sunbeam in March of 1998?
A Yes.
Q So it was a work in progress at the Coleman Company; right?

Page 72

A Absolutely.
Q Now, as I read the footnotes to your selected financial data, looking first at footnote A, are you with me, do you see that?
A Yes.
Q You have, for example, in your financial statement, restructuring charges; correct?
A Yes.
Q Then it looks to me like -- excuse me, I withdraw that.
Am I reading footnote A correctly, that there were restructuring charges, and this is net of tax, as described here, of $22,501,000 in 1997; is that right?
A Correct.
Q And then there were, for 1996, there were restructuring charges of $52,516,000; is that right?
A Correct.
Q And then that's just referring to the restructuring charges that appear under the title -- under the statement of operations data for selling, general, and administrative expenses; right?
A I would have to take a look at it to answer that.
Q You will see that's footnote A that I am -- next to that line item.

Page 73

A Okay, I am sorry, what was your question again?
MR. BEMIS: Could you re-read the question again, please, to the witness.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: I have to say no. The 22,501,000 appears to be the summation of the 19,673,000 that was reported in cost of sales plus the 16,746,000 recorded in SG&A net of the tax benefit of 13,918,000. Those together appear to be the 22501 total.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Okay. Those are all restructuring charges net of the taxes as set forth; right?
A Those later numbers identify where that first number was set out in the above, so it wasn't on one line, it was spread among several lines.
Q So the 22,501,000 is a number of restructuring charges that were for the year 1996; correct?
A It is a number of elements of a restructuring, yes. It is restructuring and certain other charges, and I don't recall at this time what the certain other charges may have been.
Q Now, part -- and the same would be true for the 1997 figures; correct?
A You mean 1996?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020474

Page 74

Q Correct. They are in that order. Let me ask the question again.
Same would be true for the 1996 charges?
A Correct.
Q All right. If you turn to the next page, which is page 14 of the Form 10-K, do you see the heading Management Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations?
A Yes.
Q This -- did you -- when you signed Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251, you had reviewed these results of operations figures and the text material; correct?
A Yes.
Q And in your view and in your position as a senior officer of Coleman, these are correct, what's stated here; right?
A These are factually correct within all material respects.
Q And the restructuring that is identified for the period during 1997, about halfway down the page, would you please direct your attention to that paragraph. Tell me when you are there.
A I am there.
Q As I read this, part of the restructuring and other charges includes, for example, in 1997, an expenditure of $15.7 million to exit various low margin products; is that right?

A Correct.
Q "Exit" means stop selling; right?
A It may mean a decision was taken to exit the business. Whether that meant immediate stop selling or not, I can't recall.
Q Well, it means -- "exit" means to get out of the business; right?
A Correct.
Q And then also it includes, for example, an expenditure of $15 million to close and relocate administrative and sales offices; right?
A Correct.
Q And then there is another charge of 5.7 million to close manufacturing facilities; correct?
A Correct.
Q If I go down a paragraph, I come to the restructuring of 1996 discussion; right?
A Correct.
Q Then if I read -- am I reading this correctly that there was, for example, a 29.1 million charge in 1996 to integrate the camping GAZ -- and that's G-A-Z, Ms. Reporter -- and Coleman operations into a global recreation products business; is that right?

Page 76

A Correct.
Q And then there is a $19 million charge to exit, again, get out of business, at some point, electric pressure and washer businesses; right?
A It was an electric pressure washer business.
Q And then there is another charge for 14.1 million to exit a portion of the Coleman Company's battery powered light business; right?
A Correct.
Q And then you have -- did you have, during that period in 1996 and 1997, charges for reductions in employees?
A I don't recall. We haven't seen it yet.
Q Turn to page 15, midway down, which identifies termination costs. Are you at that paragraph?
A No. Now, I am.
Q The termination -- are the termination costs, which you identified on page 15 of this exhibit, M.S. 251, are these termination costs in connection with termination of employees as part of the restructuring?
A Give me a minute and I will read it and find out.
Q Okay.
A Yes, they appear to be.
Q So in 1996, for example, as part of the restructuring, approximately 200 employees were terminated; right?

Page 77

A The accrual was taken for the termination of approximately 200 employees.
Q And in 1997, the -- which you called the accrual, was for the termination of approximately 525 employees?
A Correct.
Q And then there is a reference to a charge on December 31 of 1997 of $11.3 million for costs that were paid on behalf of the -- it says approximately 700 employees who were terminated as of that date.
Do you see that?
A I don't believe it is appropriate to characterize it as a charge.
Q Okay. Setting aside whether it is -- whether "charge" is the right word, and I don't want to quarrel with you about that, there is -- there were termination costs paid of $11.3 million as of December 31, 1997; right?
A Correct.
Q These payments, were they for the employees terminated in the -- withdrawn.
Is -- are the 700 employees, are they the same employees that are identified in the first sentence of that paragraph?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A I believe that's correct.
Q Okay. The math didn't quite square, so I wasn't sure.
A I believe that the first part is the accrual for the full termination benefit. The second part is the actual cash paid in the period related to their termination benefits.
Q And these 700 employees or so who had been terminated -- withdrawn.
These employees who had been terminated by the Coleman Company as part of the restructuring, these were all people who had been terminated as of December 31, 1997; correct?
A I'm not sure they were all actually terminated at that date. I can't tell from reading this.
Q Well, then, what does the language, "700 employees who were terminated as of that date" mean?
A It could relate to the termination, the individuals who had actually been terminated as of that date. Accruals were taken for, it looks like, 725. So approximately 700, it appears, had actually gone by that point in time. So --
Q Just so the jury understands the question, because it could get somewhat confusing, at least as of December 31 of 1997, based on what we are reading in your Form 10-K, 700 Coleman employees had been terminated as of that date as part of Mr. Levin's restructuring; right?

A It appears about 700 employees had been terminated as of that date as a result of somebody's restructuring, because I don't believe Mr. Levin was in charge for the full period at that time.
Q And as you put it, in 1998, at the time that you learned of the merger of Coleman and Sunbeam, the restructuring had not been completed, it was a work in progress; right?
A Correct.
Q So more employees were going to be terminated, weren't they?
A Hard to tell.
Q Well, did you expect -- withdrawn. Let me ask you that.
Did you increase your head count in 1998 up to the time of the merger?
A I know I did in my department. I don't recall the overall answers for the corporation.
Q Now, if you turn back to -- withdrawn.
Please turn back to page 14 of M.S. 251. And I would ask you to look at the last paragraph beginning,

"1996 pretext restructuring charges."
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Now, in the first sentence it refers to "the termination cost for 174 administrative employees."
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Are those 174 administrative employees included in the 700 that we were talking about on page 15 of this exhibit?
A I haven't studied it, but on the surface, it would appear that's the case.
Q At the time of the announcement -- withdrawn.
At the time you learned of the pending merger between Sunbeam and Coleman, which I believe you said was shortly before the public announcement, what remained to be done at Coleman to complete the restructuring plan that you were working on?
A A lot.
Q Could you tell the jury what "a lot" means?
A Improving the overall performance of the business, building a trend of improvements in sales and profitability, enhancing the value of the company, as reflected in the stock price.
All those things are a result of a number of underlying fundamentals, such as enhancing a product offering, building better relationships with the channel, building more success with the channel, reducing costs, improving systems, front to back building a better business.

Q You know, from front to back, how much longer did you expect the restructuring to take, assuming there had not been a merger between Coleman and Sunbeam?
A When I was hired, I was told the expectation was approximately five years, really, no less than three, and potentially longer, but I had set my expectations around a horizon of approximately five years.
Q And the acquisition was announced approximately eight months after you joined the company, if you joined on June 30, 1997; right?
A That's right.
MR. BEMIS: If you could set aside Morgan Stanley Exhibit 251.
THE WITNESS: Is this a good time for a break?
MR. BEMIS: It sure is, ma'am. You are very gracious to go as long as you did. Ten minutes, is that enough for you?
THE WITNESS: That would be great.
MR. BEMIS: Okay. Off the record, please.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going off the record at 11:44 a.m.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going back on the record at 11:55 a.m., October 8, 2004. This is the beginning of videotape No. 2 in the deposition of Karen Clark.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Do you feel comfortable going another hour at least before we break for lunch? If so, we can assess where we are in an hour.
A That would be good. Thank you.
Q You just let me know if you think you get to the point where you think you need to get something to eat, we'll stop.
Let's change topics now. I want to talk about the events leading up to the signing of the merger agreements in February of 1998. You are at least familiar with the agreements themselves, that they got signed and the deal went forward; right?
A At about that level, that's correct.
Q Tell me when it was -- withdrawn.
Tell me how you learned about the pending merger between Sunbeam and Coleman.
A I called Joe Page, who I believe was in New York at the time, and asked him to just give me enough time to put together a data room before they came in. I didn't know who they were, but I knew something was up.

Q You must have heard something about, quote, "they," closed quote, in order to make a call to Mr. Page. How did you find out there was a "they" out there?
A I figured there had to be one because I couldn't get the attention of a lawyer if my hair was on fire and normally they were all over and accessible, and I couldn't get the lawyers or anybody else to pay attention to whatever my issue was at the time.
And I thought whatever they have must be pretty big because it tops what I have, and so I just surmised and said that to Mr. Page, and he then wondered how I knew and I said, well, I just figured it out.
Q And your options vested at that point in time. I will withdraw that. Just kidding.
When you spoke to Mr. Page, you said, if I heard you correctly, you asked him about setting up a data room; right?
A Correct.
Q And a data room, as you are using that term, refers to a room of materials about the Coleman Company that a potential acquirer would like to look at in the process of conducting due diligence; right?

A Straight out of Webster's, yes.
Q I got it right, didn't I?
A Correct.
Q And my -- did you ever -- strike that.
Did Mr. Page or anyone else at Coleman, for that matter, ever direct you to set up a data room?
A No.
Q Did anyone at the Coleman Company set up a data room?
A I don't recall there ever being a physical room at Coleman that would serve the purpose of a data room.
Q Did you, at any time -- strike that.
So this call to Mr. Page, you announced to him that, in effect, you knew and asked about the data room, that was your first communication internally with your seniors where you discussed or suggested you knew about the merger; right?
A Correct.
Q And the transaction, the record will show, was announced on March 2 of 1998. Can you place, with that date in mind, your conversation with Mr. Page?
A I don't recall the specific time of that. He was at a meeting in New York, and we can probably go back to his diary and figure out when that was.

Q Was it -- withdrawn.
The documents for the merger, the contracts, if you will, they are dated as of February 28 -- excuse me, February 27 of 1998. That's a Friday. When you signed, I think, on Saturday, February 28, does that in any way help you place your call with Mr. Page?
A I believe it would have been before that, but I don't know whether it was a matter of days or weeks.
Q But not much before that?
A I can't recall. I do recall him saying that it was almost done, but I don't know what "almost done" means in terms of where that was relative to the preparation of signing of the document.
Q So when you say "he" referred to it being almost done, the "he" refers to Mr. Page; correct?
A Correct.
Q And the "it" refers to the merger agreements; correct?
A The transaction of the merger.
Q The transaction agreements.
MR. BRODY: I'll object to the form. I don't think you have correctly heard her answer.
MR. BEMIS: Okay. I will stand on what I have.
Q Had you ever met Mr. Dunlop before you went to work for Sunbeam?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

02047

A No. Besides my interview.
Q And you interviewed with him after the closing of the transaction on March 30, 1998?
A Yes.
Q Did you have -- strike that.
Did you, up to the point in time where you spoke to Mr. Page about setting up the data room, ever have any communications with the investment banking firm of Credit Suisse First Boston?
A Not unless they would have been, you know, in a normal course of business with a debt of a company, but not as to this transaction, not at all.
Q Are you aware that Credit Suisse First Boston was retained by the Coleman Company as its exclusive financial advisor in the transaction with Sunbeam?
A I may have been at a point in time, but I didn't recall that today.
Q Okay. Did you, at any time, have any working relationship with Credit Suisse First Boston up to the time of the closing of the merger transaction on March 30, 1998?
A I had, in my prior life, but not related to this transaction.
Q I am only, at this point, just on the Sunbeam transaction.

A No.
Q Let me see M.S. 206.
Were you personally or Coleman following Sunbeam at any time before you learned of the possible merger?
A I wasn't. I am not aware of anyone who said they were.
Q Let me show you what --
MR. BRODY: Before you -- can I have that question back.
(Record read.)
MR. BEMIS: Let me show you what's been marked as M.S. 206 in an earlier deposition.
Here is an extra copy, Mr. Brody, if you want to follow along.
Q I have handed you M.S. 206 and this is a photocopy of a January 29, 1998 Wall Street Journal article and there is an attachment in which is a distribution, which has your name on it.
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Let me ask you, first of all, did you receive M.S. 206 as shown on the distribution list?
A I don't recall getting it. Doesn't mean that I might not have.

Q Who is Mark Shiffman?
A He is an individual who worked at Coleman in investor relations.
Q Do you know why you were on the distribution list for this article from the Wall Street Journal on Thursday, January 28 -- excuse me, 29, 1998?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: It would not have been unusual to receive information about the performance of consumer products companies just to be getting a sense of what was happening in the market and in the sector. So I would surmise that that's why I would have been on this type of a distribution.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Did you -- withdrawn.
There has been previous testimony by a number of MAFCO witnesses, MacAndrews & Forbes witnesses, that they received periodic distributions of newspaper or financial services clippings, like a clipping service. Did you receive that type of information in your position at Coleman?
A Yes.
Q Did you receive that in 1997 and 1998 while you were employed by Coleman?
A That would have been normal.

Q How often did you receive the clipping services?
A I don't recall specifically, but it is typically something that's periodic.
Q Was Mr. Shiffman the person that circulated within Coleman the clippings on the matters such as set forth in M.S. 206?
A I would expect the clipping service information to be distributed by Mr. Shiffman.
Q And did Coleman subscribe to an outside service that provided the information to Mr. Shiffman who, in turn, circulated it, or did Coleman just gather it itself internally?
A I don't recall specifically. I believe it was a service, but I can't say for sure at this point.
Q Was the -- strike that.
Was the distribution of clippings, such as M.S. 206, was that handled by the investor relations department, if you will, of Coleman?
A I think I previously said that's something I believed Mr. Shiffman's department would typically have done, and so he was in charge of investor relations, yes.
Q So in addition to monitoring, I guess, everything that was being set in the marketplace by

0047978

Page 90

Coleman, I understand that the investor relations department at Coleman monitored what was being set by other consumer products companies; is that correct?
A Correct.
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry, object to form, foundation.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q And was this the first -- strike that.
So you are not surprised that you were on the distribution list for M.S. 206; right?
A No.
Q And did you receive, in the course of your employment by the Coleman Company from June of 1997 up until the time you became, by letter agreement, employed by Sunbeam as well, did you receive clippings on Sunbeam?
A I can't say they weren't in the mix. As I recall, clipping files, they are usually pretty hefty documents.
Q How often did you get the clippings files?
MR. BRODY: Objection. Form.
THE WITNESS: Again, I said I don't recall the specific frequency, but it was a periodic thing that occurred.
BY MR. BEMIS:

Page 91

Q Once a week at least?
A Once a week, once every two weeks, something of that frequency. It was not like it was semiannually.
Q And was this -- when you received the clippings files, did you review them so you could keep yourself abreast of business information of other companies in the consumer products business?
A Usually not.
Q You can set that aside. You did not attend -- strike that.
Did you attend any meetings at all with Morgan Stanley before the closing of the acquisition on March 30, 1998?
A No.
Q Have you ever, in any -- did you ever have any communications with anyone that you understood to be employed by any Morgan Stanley entity before the closing on March 30, 1998 of the transaction we are discussing?
A Not that I recall.
Q Any -- and I use communications just so we are clear in writings, E-mails, letters, voice mails, anything at all that you can think of?
A It is possible, but I don't recall any of it.
Q And you didn't attend any of the Board of Directors meetings of the Coleman Company, did you, that -- where the merger was discussed?

Page 92

A No.
Q Let me show you what's been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 133, which is a confidentiality agreement executed by Morgan Stanley and -- excuse me, by Sunbeam and the Coleman Company.
A Can you make it a little cooler in here? It's getting kind of warm, isn't it?
MR. BEMIS: Let's go off the record.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are off the record at 12:10 p.m.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going back on the record at 12:12 p.m.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q I have handed you what the reporter has marked in a previous deposition as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 133.
Do you have that in front of you?
A Yes.
Q This is a document that has been identified as a confidentiality agreement dated February 4, 1998 between Sunbeam and the Coleman Company.
Have you seen this document before?
A I don't recall having seen it.
Q In your experience in working in earlier mergers and acquisitions and business transactions as an auditor or even in your business life when you were in accounting, was it customary, in your experience, to have confidentiality agreements executed between or among parties when they were in preliminary discussions about a business compensation?

Page 93

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q In the course of -- withdrawn.
In the days leading up to the closing of the first step of the transaction, that is, March 30, 1998, did you participate in any way in the due diligence investigation, if any, of either Sunbeam or Coleman by any of the parties? That's a terrible question. Let me withdraw. Rephrase it.
Between the time you spoke to Mr. Page and talked to him about the data room and the actual closing of the first leg of the transaction, which was March 30, 1998, did you participate in due diligence in any fashion?
A I believe, during that time frame, I had discussions with people from Sunbeam, but whether that was a portion of their due diligence activities or not, I don't know.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0204 79

Page 94

I would expect that due diligence would have been completed by the signing and announcement of the transaction and that the closing was just a passage of time, and I believe that was pretty much the better part of the month of March.

Q So at some point in time before the closing, you did speak with people at Sunbeam; is that correct?

A I believe that we had started some conversations and even providing information to them prior to the actual closing.

Q Was there a single person at the Coleman Company that was responsible for coordinating, if you will, any due diligence inquiries of Sunbeam to Coleman?

A I don't know who that would have been. Again, I believe the due diligence process would have been completed by the beginning of March, and the events prior to that beginning of March period, prior to the announcement, I didn't see those taking place in our business from either side.

Q So as you -- at least up to the announcement, you didn't see any due diligence, as you put it, from either side, either the Sunbeam or the Coleman side with regard to the businesses of either company; is that right?

A Correct. Not in our facility. I did hear that there were conversations that were happening in New York where there was some review of some information going on.

Q Are you aware of anyone at -- withdrawn.

So that what you have described takes us up to the public announcement, and I want to now go forward with you from the public announcement, which I told you before was May 2, 1998.

A May or March?

Q Did I say May? I apologize. Let me rephrase the question.

I want to go forward with you and take you from the public announcement March 2, 1998 up to the first closing, which is on March 30, 1998. Are you with me on the time frame?

A Yes, I am.

Q Okay. During that one-month time frame, I am going to ask you first, did you respond to any requests for information from Sunbeam about Coleman's business, regardless of whether you thought it was due diligence or not?

A I believe I did.

Q Who did you -- strike that.

Who, at Sunbeam, did you speak to?

A I am a little hazy on the specific dates of the time frame, whether it would have been during that March time frame or the early -- or the early April time frame.

But generally in that early March from the announcement to mid-May time frame -- I'm sorry, mid-April time frame, I provided information to a number of people at Sunbeam. They included Ken Huff, Rus Kersh, Debra McDonald, I believe Al LeFevre asked for some information, Robert Gluck. There may have been others.

Q Now, this was information that you provided about Coleman's business to business people at Sunbeam; correct?

A Correct.

Q Now, I want to now ask you to separate out that flow of information. I want you to reverse the flow and that is Coleman requesting information from Sunbeam.

Are you aware, during the period March 2, 1998 through the closing, March 30, of any due diligence inquiries made by Coleman that you are aware of of Sunbeam?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.

Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Again, I said anything that would be a due diligence inquiry by either party, I would have expected to be pre that public announcement.

Whether there was any flow of information, assuming you take out the words "due diligence," but as you did it going the other way, just flow of information was Coleman requesting information about Sunbeam's business only to the effect of trying to understand what it meant to be an acquired company, what they were going to expect from us, what kind information they were going to need so that we could begin to adapt to providing it.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q So in the period from March 2, 1998 to March 30, to the extent that there was information -- withdrawn.

In the period between March 2, 1998 and March 30, to the extent Coleman was asking questions of Sunbeam, without trying to characterize them as due diligence, the inquiries were in the nature of how are we going to integrate with the business of Sunbeam?

MR. BRODY: Objection, foundation.

Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Of that nature, correct.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q Did you -- strike that.

To your knowledge, did anyone at Coleman,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020480

during the period March 2 to March 30, 1998, make any inquiries of Sunbeam about Sunbeam's business plan going forward after the acquisition of Coleman?

A Well, I think we were all trying to figure out what was going to happen with the combined businesses and how we would fit in.

I know that to the extent people had an opportunity, it was not uncommon to try to poke and figure out what this meant to our lives being acquired and what that would mean to our businesses and our operations which, of course, relates to what Sunbeam's go forward plans are.

Q Did you see, in the period we are discussing, March 2 to March 30, 1998, any what I think you just characterized as, quote, "go forward," closed quote, plans of Sunbeam for Coleman?

A No, I don't recall seeing any.

Q Were the types of inquiries that -- about the go forward plans, the type of kind of office discussion you had with your coworkers and seniors about just how are things going to be a month from now if this deal closes?

A Well, and as opportunities presented themselves with the people from Sunbeam, as we had opportunities to speak with them, we tried to elicit what we could about what they knew about what was going to happen.

Q Did you refer to a -- withdrawn.

Earlier you talked -- strike that.

Earlier you told the jury about your question to Mr. Page for the establishment of a data room at Coleman. Did you ever hear that there was a data room set up for Sunbeam?

A No, I didn't, but I wouldn't expect one to. They were the buyer, not the seller.

Q So, I take it, you never looked at the Sunbeam data room?

A No. And as I mentioned, I wouldn't expect there to be a data room. As a buyer of companies in my past, I never had a data room as a buyer. I always had a data room as a seller.

Q Did you -- in the case when you were a buyer, did you ever -- withdrawn.

In the course of the other deals that you have been involved with, in business combinations, did you work on transactions where they were essentially stock transactions, stock for stock as opposed to stock for cash?

A I am trying to remember the combinations. I have done a fair number. I have to believe in there somewhere there was stock for stock, but I don't recall public company stock for public company stock.

Q Now, you told the jury in your earlier testimony that you would have assumed that any due diligence that was going to be done about the transaction would have been done before the signing of the merger agreements; right?

A Yes.

Q And can you tell me what, if any, due diligence you are aware of being performed by the Coleman Company first before the signing of the merger agreements?

A I don't know of any.

Q Do you know of any due diligence done by Sunbeam before the signing of the merger agreements, which are dated as of February 28, 1998?

A I had heard from Mr. Page that he had a briefcase of material at his meeting in New York and that information in that briefcase was reviewed.

Q But did you see that information?

A The information we discussed that he had, much of it I had prepared before he left.

Q So this was -- was this information about the Coleman Company that Mr. Page took to his meetings in New York?

A That's my understanding.

Q So are you aware of Mr. -- strike that.

Page 101

So just so the jury understands what is in the briefcase. Now, this is, again, Coleman information being provided to Sunbeam; correct?

A That's my understanding.

Q Setting that aside now, is there any other due diligence inquiry that you can think of that was done before the signing of the February 28, 1998 merger documents other than what -- other than this briefcase of materials from Mr. Page?

A Nothing that I heard of.

Q Did anyone at the Coleman -- strike that.

Are you aware of anyone at the Coleman Company doing any research, if you will, of the Sunbeam company before the signing of the merger documents?

A I have no idea if they did or didn't.

Q You didn't do any?

A No.

Q And Mr. Page, did he tell you whether he did any?

A We never had a conversation that said whether he did or didn't.

Q Are you aware of anyone at the Coleman Company interviewing any Sunbeam employees prior to the signing of the merger agreements?

MR. BRODY: Objection, foundation.

020481

Page 102

THE WITNESS: Again, I had very little involvement or knowledge even of what was happening prior to the signing of the document. I think I told you about my two instances.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q At any point -- strike that.
Before the closing on March 30, 1998, are you aware of anyone at the Coleman Company conducting any interviews or inquiries of Arthur Andersen about Sunbeam's financial results for the first quarter of 1998?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: I am not aware of that.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Were you personally aware that Arthur Andersen was Sunbeam's outside accountants in 1998 before the closing?
A I might have been, but it wouldn't have mattered to me, so it doesn't really strike me that I did know.
Q Did anyone at, to your knowledge, at the Coleman Company, request any interim financial statements from Sunbeam before the closing?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall.

Page 103

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q You didn't see any?
A Not that I remember.
Q The Coleman Company, for example, in the first quarter of 1998, generated monthly financial statements internally; correct?
A Correct.
Q So by the time of the closing, you would have closed the books at least on January; right?
A Correct.
Q Would you have closed them by -- for February?
A Yes.
Q Now, when you -- strike that.
So as you sit here today, you don't recall anyone at the Coleman Company asking to see, from Sunbeam, its January or February internal financial statements; is that correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: No, I don't recall that.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q In the course of the -- strike that.
You were aware that part of the acquisition was being funded by an offering of debentures, weren't you?
A I really didn't pay attention to where they were getting their money from.

Page 104

Q Well, regardless of whether you paid attention to it or not, did you have any role in Ernst & Young providing a comfort letter to Morgan Stanley in connection with the debenture offering that was used to finance the transaction?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall any role in it.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Did you know that the comfort letter existed?
A It doesn't strike me that I knew that.
Q Well, let me back up. You have done a number of transactions in various business -- in various forms -- withdrawn.
You have done a number of business combination transactions with public and nonpublic companies; correct?
A Correct.
Q And you being a certified public accountant licensed in three states at one time and an auditor, you know what a comfort letter is, don't you?
A Yes.
Q You have read the accounting and auditing standards on comfort letters at least at some point in your career?
A Yes.

Page 105

Q And it is customary in your experience if one is going to issue debentures which are securities under the 1933 act, particularly section 11, that it is customary for the underwriters to request comfort letters from the auditors for the issuer; correct?
A Correct.
Q Now, in this instance, I am going to show you what's been marked as Morgan Stanley 243. Slide that over there for you.
Mr. Brody, here's one for you.
I have handed you what's been marked as Exhibit M.S. 243. Please take a look at it and then I have a couple questions for you.
A How detailed would you like me to look at it?
Q You don't have to read it. I don't have questions on the individual paragraphs. It is more what the nature of the document itself is, so if you are ready, my first question is: Have you ever seen this document before?
A Not that I recall.
Q Did you, at the time of the -- withdrawn.
Who would have been responsible at the Coleman Company at this time, March 20, 1998, the date of the comfort letter, for requesting that Ernst & Young -- withdrawn.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 106

Based on your knowledge of accounting and as a certified public accountant, at least licensed at one time, comfort letters are requested by management to be issued, in this instance, to the underwriter; correct?

A Correct.

Q Now, given that this is Ernst and Young's comfort letter to Morgan Stanley, who is an underwriter, who, at the Coleman Company, would have been the person responsible for requesting Ernst & Young provide the comfort letter?

MR. BRODY: Object to form.

THE WITNESS: It could have come from a variety of places.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q Did it come from you?

A I don't know if it did or not.

Q Could it have come from you?

A Possibly.

Q If it had, how would you have made the request?

MR. BRODY: Object to form.

THE WITNESS: I would have called someone on the engagement and said we need a comfort letter.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q When you said "on the engagement," you would have called someone at Ernst & Young?

Page 107

A Correct.

Q Now, if Sunbeam was issuing debentures, the offering documents would include financial statements of the Coleman Company; right?

A Yes.

Q They would also include financial statements from Sunbeam, wouldn't they?

A Correct.

Q And it would be customary, in your experience, in a debenture offering of public companies where both companies' financial statements are attached to a debenture offering, to obtain cross-comfort letters from both companies' auditors, wouldn't it?

MR. BRODY: Object to form. For who to obtain, for Morgan Stanley?

MR. BEMIS: For the issuer of the debentures.

THE WITNESS: Both financial statements would contain -- would have accompanying them comfort letters from their respective auditors.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q Are you comfortable with the term "cross-comfort letters"?

A I am not familiar with how you are using it in this moment.

MR. BEMIS: Okay. Let me show you what's been marked as Exhibit 395, which is the audit standard, and see if you are comfortable with using that term after I show it to you.

I will ask the court reporter to mark, as Exhibit 395, the -- this is the 1998 version we are going to be looking at. It is not the current one.

THE WITNESS: I hope --

MR. BEMIS: There is no change to what we are going to be looking at. Nonetheless, we will give you the 1998 version.

Ms. Reporter, please mark the date and give it to the witness.

(Defendant's Exhibit 395 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q I have handed you what is an excerpt, obviously, from the AICPA's codification of statements on auditing standards, numbers 1 through 82. You have seen this, the full text of these at some time; have you not, in your profession?

A I can't say I have read them all.

Q I don't mean that. None of us have probably read them all, but you have seen the auditing standards in connection with your work as an auditor; right?

A Correct.

Q Look at what is identified on page 575 and, again, we are looking at the 1998 edition, AU, section 634, letters for underwriters and certain other requesting parties.

Are you there?

A Yes.

Q Have you read, if not even in full, are you familiar with this section of auditing standards?

A I may have been at one point in time. Today, I would not say I am current on it.

Q All right. Well, look at section .05, which begins, "Accountants may also issue a comfort letter in connection with the acquisition transactions," parentheses, "for example, cross-comfort letters in the typical form S4 or merger proxy situation," closed parentheses, "in which there is an exchange of stock and such comfort letters are requested by the buyer or the seller or both, et cetera."

Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Now, I was referring to cross-comfort letters in this context when you asked me the question. Now, would you agree that in the circumstance here, where you had financial statements attached to the offering documents for the debentures, that you would have expected cross-comfort letters to have been issued by the auditors?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 110

MR. BRODY: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: Again, based on where I sit today, I am not up to speed on the technicalities of how these things were done at that point in time, and even at that point in time, I wasn't involved in the transaction, and so what they would have wanted and needed would not have been my area of concern and work at that point. I wasn't involved in that aspect of the transaction.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q My question really was whether -- I really got kind of off track. I was focusing on the term just "cross-comfort letters" and giving you a point of reference.
A Well, it doesn't define cross-comfort short of, "Accountants may issue a comfort letter in connection with an acquisition transaction, for example, cross-comfort letters." It doesn't define that term here.
Q Well, comfort letters can take various forms, depending on the transaction; right?
A Right.
Q You know that based on your experience in business combinations; right?

Page 111

A Right.
Q One of the forms they can take is to bring current, if you will, interim financial statements from the date of the last audit to the date of the closing of the business combination; correct?
A Basically to -- the ones I am familiar with have a tendency to say, you know, nothing has come to our attention since that point in time that would cause us to change our opinion on those financials as previously issued.
Q Other than the following?
A Correct, if there is information.
Q And then that information would be set forth in the comfort letter?
A Correct.
Q That's called the negative assurance; right?
A Correct.
Q You set that aside. You actually remember more than you think.
To your knowledge -- strike that.
As you sit here today, you do not recall ever seeing the Ernst & Young comfort letter that we looked at, M.S. 243; correct?
A I don't recall.

Page 112

Q And as you sit here today, you don't ever recall seeing the comfort letters issued by Arthur Andersen in connection with the debenture offering; correct?
A No.
Q And as you sit here today, you don't recall anyone at the Coleman Company ever asking to see the Arthur Andersen comfort letters; is that true?
A If somebody did it, I am not aware of who it would have been.
Q Are you aware of anyone at CLN Holdings, Inc. asking for a copy of the Andersen comfort letters issued in connection with the debenture offerings?
A Not aware of any of the activities related with the comfort letters.
Q Are you aware of Ernst & Young, the Coleman companies' auditors, doing any due diligence investigation of the interim financial statements of Sunbeam for the period January through the closing of 1998? That's a poor question. Let me rephrase the question.
Are you aware of Ernst & Young doing any due diligence on Sunbeam's audited financial statements as audited by Arthur Andersen?
A No.

Page 113

Q Why, you would find that unusual?
A Yes, quite.
Q Why would you find that unusual?
A Well, auditors are supposed to be public representatives that represent what's going on. You don't often have two auditors check out the same company. You hire one set of auditors to do a job and that's what people rely on.
Q So are you telling me that you would have relied on Arthur Andersen's financial statements as audited of Sunbeam?
A I would have gotten a certain degree of comfort from the fact they are there. I know auditors are not responsible for the financial statements. They audit the financial statements of management, but it is their role in society is to provide a degree of assurance.
Q Well, the auditors may not own the financial statements, if you will, but they do express an opinion on the financial statements; correct, in their public function?
A Correct.
Q And you, at Coleman, would -- are you telling the jury that you would have relied on Sunbeam's accountant's certification of Sunbeam's financial statements without further investigation?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 114

MR. BRODY: Object to form and foundation.
THE WITNESS: Well, the financials are put into the public domain for reliance by society based, first, on the integrity of management to prepare the financial statements in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Principles and also S.E.C. requirements.
The auditors' role is really a detect function to see if they see anything that leads them to believe, as to the financial statements, that they are not compliant. It doesn't give you absolute assurance, but it is a degree of comfort.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Are you aware of -- strike that.
I want to move now from audited financial statements of Sunbeam. I will ask you a couple quick questions on unaudited and, again, the period we would be addressing is January of 1998 through, perhaps, the closing of March 30, 1998.
Do you have that time frame in mind?
A Absolutely.
Q Are you aware of Ernst & Young doing any examination of unaudited financial statements of Sunbeam?
A No, I am not aware of that.
Q Are you aware of Ernst & Young doing any analysis of projections prepared by Sunbeam for the year 1998 following the merger?

Page 115

A Again, if they were asked to do something like that in relation to the due diligence, I would have had no visibility to it.
Q Are you aware of Ernst & Young doing any examination of the books and records of Sunbeam?
A No, I am not.
Q Are you aware of anyone at CPH, Coleman Parent Holdings, or CLN Holdings, Inc., or MAFCO or MacAndrews & Forbes, whatever name we use, doing any investigation of the books and records of Sunbeam during the period leading up to the signing of the merger agreements?
MR. BRODY: Objection, foundation.
THE WITNESS: I am not aware of that.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Are you aware of any such examination being done by these same groups, whether it be Coleman, Coleman Parent Holdings, CLN Holdings, MAFCO, MacAndrews & Forbes, doing any examination of the books and records of Sunbeam after the signing of the merger agreements and before the closing on March 30?
MR. BRODY: Same objection to form.
MR. BEMIS: You can answer.
THE WITNESS: No.

Page 116

BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Did you see the press release that Sunbeam issued on or about March 19, 1998 concerning its results for the first quarter?
A I believe I had seen that at a point in time.
Q Let me show you a copy of it just to show you in point of context.
A That will help a lot.
Q This is not something that I would expect you to have on the tip of your tongue. Here, I will give you what has been previously marked as M.S. 39. Excuse me. Let me slide it. There we go.
A Thank you.
Q I have handed you what's been marked as M.S. 39. Do you have that in front of you?
A Yes.
Q This previously has been identified as a press release issued by Sunbeam on or about March 19, 1998. Would you take a second and read it and when you are done, let me know. I don't have detailed questioning on it, but I wanted to give you a chance to look at it before I ask you a couple questions.
A Okay.
Q Have you -- by the way, did you see this yesterday when you were preparing for your deposition with Mr. Brody?

Page 117

A I did see this.
Q You did see it. Okay. I didn't recall you mentioning this one.
A I didn't remember it until you mentioned it.
Q I believe you.
Now that you have seen it again, do you recall seeing it in March of 1998?
A I don't remember if I saw it at that time or not.
Q When do you first recall seeing it?
A I know I have seen it in prior depositions.
Q Okay.
A Or in preparation for them.
Q Do you recall discussing the text of the March 19 press release with anyone following its release to the public?
A No.
Q Why don't you hand that back to me. We'll put that one away.
Do you recall any action undertaken by Coleman following the issuance of the March 19 press release to make further inquiry of Sunbeam about the contents of the press release?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.

Q Did you see Sunbeam's annual report before the closing -- strike that.
Did you see Sunbeam's 1997 annual report before the closing on March 30, 1990?
A I don't recall seeing it.
Q Were you personally following public filings by Sunbeam following the signing of the merger agreements and before the closing?
A I don't recall really focusing on their public filings.
Q Was there someone at the Coleman Company that was following public filings by Sunbeam during this period between signing of the merger agreements and the closing on March 30, 1998?

A I have no idea who it was.
Q Let me show you what's been marked as M.S. 390. I will withdraw the question.
What involvement did you have with -- strike that.
You are aware of a settlement agreement between Sunbeam and MacAndrews & Forbes following the closing of the transaction; correct?
A A settlement agreement as in settling up on that or a settlement of disputes? What are you referring to?
Q It is the latter, but it is such a poor question, I will withdraw it and ask you a different one.
When you went to work for Sunbeam as of April 24, 1998, you actually moved to Del Rae Beach, didn't you?
A Eventually.
Q Eventually. And you did have an office there in Del Rae Beach once you got moved up until the time that you left in January of 2000; correct?
A I eventually got an office, but I did have one through most of that time.
Q Now, were you -- you are aware that Sunbeam issued a number of warrants to purchase Sunbeam stock and they issued those warrants to MacAndrews & Forbes; correct?

A Correct.
Q What role did you have, if any, in the warrant -- in the settlement that -- and the issuance of the warrants?
A I think I just provided information to people who were doing analyses on that.
Q Who were the people that were doing analyses to whom you provided information?
A I don't recall specifically, but I think it was some group like Blackstone or something like that; is that right?
Q Well, I believe it is right. I think it is called the Blackstone Group. Does that name ring a bell with you?
A Vaguely.
Q How was it that you came to provide information to the Blackstone Group?
A I would have been asked to provide it.
Q Who asked you to do that?
A It could have been Bobby Jenkins or lawyers, I can't say precisely.
Q Do you know what the Blackstone Group was asked to do on behalf of Sunbeam?

Page 121

MR. BRODY: I would ask you to answer that yes or no. There may be a privilege here and we can do it a step at a time.
THE WITNESS: Can you read the question again, please.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: I believe I do.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q What were they asked to do?
MR. BRODY: Before we go into that, as you know, Mr. Bemis, this is an area in which Sunbeam has asserted privilege in this litigation and in others. And I don't want your examination of her in a capacity when she is working for Sunbeam to inadvertently or advertently inquire into that privilege.
I think this question probably can be answered at a very high level. If we go into specifics of it, though, I think it will impinge upon the privilege.
So I would ask for a friendly modification for your question in that it be described in general terms, and if we can go beyond that, there may be privilege issues when we find out who is involved.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q The question is -- you can answer in general terms, and this is public knowledge, as far as I know, in court published opinions, so can you answer that in general terms what was the Blackstone Group's assignment on behalf of somebody?

A My recollection, and for your benefit, the best I am going to be able to do is general, was valuation work.

Q Valuation of what?

A I believe it was valuation related to the warrants.

Q Now, at some point, the warrants were issued; correct?

A Correct.

Q And at some point, a valuation was placed on the warrants by Sunbeam; right?

A I believe that's correct.

Q Sunbeam had to book the warrants as an expense of some kind; correct?

A They had to record the warrants, correct.

Q And they would have recorded it as probably an extraordinary item for whatever fiscal period was involved?

A I can't recall that that would have hit the extraordinary item accounting, but it certainly would have been something that would have been called out.

Q In -- now, at the time that the valuation was -- strike that.

In what -- strike that.

Was the -- withdrawn.

Were the warrants valued for financial statement purposes during the time you were an employee of Sunbeam? And for your benefit, they were issued in August of 1998.

A I was not there in August of 1998. I am sorry. It was 2000. I was there in August 1998. You are correct.

Q So if the warrants were issued in August of 1998, they would have been reflected as an expense in 1998 by Sunbeam; correct?

A They would have been recorded in 1998.

Q And the recordation of the warrants would have been reflected as a dollar value on the financial statements of Sunbeam; correct?

A I would want to refer to the financials themselves to answer that question.

Q Did you have any role in the valuation of the warrants for financial statement purposes?

A I don't recall that I did.

Q For example, I heard your answer, but let me just probe a little bit deeper with you.

For example, did you review, at some point, the Blackstone Group's valuation of the warrants?

A I don't recall at what level I would have gotten into that. That's a technical area that the company would more than likely have relied on the work of experts.

Q Well, setting aside the actual computation of the value, did you, at some point, see a valuation for the warrants ascribed to the warrants by the Blackstone Group?

A I surmise I must have seen something to be able to disclose them in the financials.

Q Other than the -- did you see any valuations done of the warrants by Deloitte & Touche and other public accounting firms?

A I don't recall if I did or not.

MR. BEMIS: Let me show you what has been previously marked as M.S. 97. We may have to print it off the PDF file.

It is one o'clock. I think I am going to finish in about 30 minutes with you. Do you want to break for lunch or do you want to finish?

THE WITNESS: How long are you going to need?

MR. BRODY: I may need 30 minutes after that. I may not, but it may be 30 minutes.

MR. BEMIS: Okay. So what do you want to do? Are we talking an hour? An hour -- do you want to take like 30 minutes for lunch and come back?

MR. BRODY: Works for me.

MR. BEMIS: It is up to you.

THE WITNESS: If we can seriously do it in an hour, I will stay, but if it is like an hour and 20 minutes, then we better break. So you guys judge. Are you apt to go short or long?

MR. BEMIS: You know, it is really -- if we told you one thing, I suspect we are going to get done, but I -- there is no way to promise you that with certainty without penalty. So if you want to break for 20, 30 minutes and grab something quick and come on back up and --

THE WITNESS: Yes, better safe than sorry.

MR. BRODY: Is that possible?

MR. BEMIS: Go downstairs, go to the food court, and you can just walk into that little -- let's start about -- grab a sandwich. There is food you can eat.

THE WITNESS: Substance is all we need.

MR. BRODY: Why don't we go off the record.

MR. BEMIS: Off the record, and we'll see you back up here in probably 30 minutes would be great, and we'll try to get you out of here within an hour.

020487

THE WITNESS: Great. At 1:30 we'll be back, then.
MR. BEMIS: Okay. 1:30 is perfect.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are off the record at 12:57 p.m.
(Lunch recess.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going back on the record at 1:39 p.m.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Ms. Clark, thank you for returning. When we had adjourned, we were about to look at a document called M.S. 97. I am going to set that aside for a second and ask you to -- about a couple of other documents and then we'll come back to that, if that's all right.
The first one I want to show you is a document the court reporter is going to mark as Morgan Stanley 389.
(Defendant's Exhibit 389 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
MR. BEMIS: A copy for Mr. Brody.
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Do you have M.S. 389 in front of you?

A Yes.
Q Did you send this letter to Mr. Stefan, S-t-e-f-a-n, R. Feuerabendt, F-e-u-e-r-a-b-e-n-d-t, on or about July 14, 1998?
A It appears I did.
Q The first item that you had sent -- strike that.
Who is Mr. Feuerabendt?
A I don't know.
Q Do you know why you sent this material to him?
A I must have been asked to do this.
Q Do you -- you refer in item No. 2 to the Morgan Stanley books for each of the acquisitions. Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q And what are you referring to there?
A As I recall, there were books on each of the companies that were acquired.
Q You are talking about the three companies that were acquired at the March 30 closing?
A On or about that time.
Q First learned of Mr. Coffee and Coleman; right?
A Signature brands.
Q These books that you are referring to, those -- are those books that you found at Sunbeam?

A Yes.
Q Were these presentations to Sunbeam's Board of Directors?
A I don't know who they were presented to.
Q Where did you find them?
A At Sunbeam.
Q I understand that. Where, at Sunbeam, did you find them?
A In the office. I don't know specifically where I would have gotten them from at that time.
Q Were you requested by Mr. -- is it Feuerabendt? You probably don't know.
A I don't even remember who he is.
Q Okay. Did you get any further requests from him for information?
A I have no idea, since I can't place who he is.
MR. BEMIS: Okay. You can set Exhibit 389 aside.
I am going to show you now another document which the reporter will mark as Morgan Stanley 397.
(Defendant's Exhibit 397 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Do you have Exhibit 397 in front of you?
A Yes.

Q Did you send this letter to Mr. Paul K. Rowe, R-o-w-e?
A It appears I did.
Q What plan information are you referring to in the first paragraph?
A I believe this was the financial plan of Coleman that was built for the 1998 year.
Q And you provided this information to the Blackstone Group; correct?
A That appears to be the case.
Q And when you refer in Exhibit M.S. 397 in connection with the work for Sunbeam, you were referring to their work in connection with the valuation of the warrants?
A To the extent that's all that Blackstone Group was doing, that would have been consistent.
Q And the plan information that was Coleman's 1998 business plan, as I understand you have been telling me, that was also provided to Sunbeam before the acquisition; is that right?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
Go ahead.
THE WITNESS: It appears that's the case.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Now, you also conclude -- withdrawn.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

You conclude that you will continue to provide the information to Mr. Rowe as is being shared with Blackstone.

Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Did you continue to do that?

A I would surmise I did.

Q What was Mr. Rowe's relationship to the work that Blackstone was doing for Sunbeam?

A I can't say for sure, but it appears he worked for what I think is a law firm.

Q Well, I will give you it is a law firm. Wachtel Lipton is a law firm in New York.

Were you working with anyone -- strike that.

Was -- did you receive instructions from someone at Sunbeam to communicate with the Wachtel Lipton firm?

A I would have received instructions from someone to send this information to Mr. Rowe.

Q Do you know who gave you -- strike that.

Who gave you those instructions?

A At this point in time, I can't recall who would have done that.

Q And your immediate supervisor on July 22, 1998 was who?

A Bobby Jenkins.

Q And for the jury's benefit, his title as of July 22, 1998 was what?

A I believe he was the chief financial officer on that day.

Q He reported directly to Mr. Jerry Levin at this time; right, or did he report to Mr. Shapiro?

A No, he reported to Mr. Levin.

Q Were you the -- strike that.

Let me show you now Exhibit M.S. 396, which the court reporter will mark for me.

(Defendant's Exhibit 396 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q Ms. Clark, do you have in front of you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 396?

A Yes, I do.

Q This appears to be a handwritten facsimile to Mr. Paul Rowe again at the Wachtel firm from you; is that correct?

A Correct.

Q This is your handwriting; right?

A Yes.

Q And was this further -- strike that.

Were you providing further information to

Mr. Rowe in connection with the work that the Blackstone Group was doing for Sunbeam about this time?

A That appears to be the case.

Q Now, please turn to the second page of the document M.S. 396.

Are you there?

A Yes.

Q This is entitled Coleman 1998, and then it says, in quotations, "Original plan bridge to 1998 final plan."

Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q What does that mean?

MR. BRODY: In connection with this document?

MR. BEMIS: Yes.

MR. BRODY: Okay.

THE WITNESS: It appears to be a bridge between different iterations of the plan document.

BY MR. BEMIS:

Q What do you mean by a "bridge"?

A A bridge would reconcile changes.

Q From forecast to actual?

A No. In this case, from an original plan to a final plan.

Q I see. So this is the original plan, for example, has sales of $1,184,900,000; right?

A Correct.

Q And then the final plan, at least as it existed on the date of this document, was sales were declining to $1,122,400,000; is that right?

A They had been adjusted to that number.

Q And reading across we have EBITA and it declines from $136,300,000 to 114 -- I misspoke. Look at the column EBITA, E-B-I-T-A.

Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q That stands for Earnings Before Income Taxes and Amortization; right?

A Earnings Before Interest, Taxes, Amortization.

Q And amortization. And the original plan was that the earnings, as described, would be $136.3 million; correct?

A Correct.

Q And now, the 1988 final plan, at least as it existed in July, that's been -- it has decreased to 114.1 million; right?

A Correct.

Q The third column is a variation on EBITA and it adds depreciation, as well; correct?

A It removes the depreciation effect. I am sorry, it adds it back for the before.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

0020489

Q I was going to say --
A Yes, it adds it back, you are right.
Q If we -- this, again, shows that the original plan, that would be -- that the earnings would be 167.6 million, but they are declining in the final plan as of July of 145.2 million; right?
A Correct.
Q Did you prepare this page 2 of Exhibit M.S. 396?
A I don't know if I did or not.
Q But you provided this information to the Blackstone Group before you gave it to Mr. Rowe; correct?
A It appears that way, yes.
Q Now, if you will turn to -- by the way, is this one of the documents you looked at in your preparation yesterday?
A No.
Q Did you look at the attachments in your preparation?
A No.
Q Okay. Look at now the third page of M.S. 396. Are you there?
A Yes.

Q Now, if you will direct your attention to the title bar, for lack of a better term, where it says Coleman-1997 Bridge to 1998 Final Plan.
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q What does that title mean?
A It means it is a reconciliation of the 1997 results to the 1998 final plan.
Q To the 1998 final plan?
A Correct.
Q So you are comparing what your actual results were in 1997 as titled and then you are comparing that to what your plans are for 1998 at least as of July 1998; correct?
A As of some day, but that's what was sent on July 1998. I don't know what day this document was prepared.
Q Fair enough. I was using July because that's the day of the transmittal, but I hear you that it might be a slightly different date. All right.
So if I am reading this correctly, you don't have the 1997 plan figures on this page of M.S. 396; right?
A Correct.
Q So we are just making -- we are comparing, for example, 1997 actual sales, looks like they were 1,154.3 million before adjustments; is that right?

A Correct.
Q And then if we -- then you add, you have less CSS actual, what does that stand for?
A Coleman Safety and Security. It's a business that was sold or was being sold.
Q Now, was the business -- strike that.
Was Coleman Safety and Security sold in 1997?
A I believe it was sold in 1998.
Q That's what I thought, so why is it in the 1997 column?
A If you are trying to compare what the results would be, if in 1997 it produced revenue, then in 1998 it doesn't exist, it is not an apples to apples comparison. So the 1997 results would have been adjusted to pull it out to show what the business would have done without it.
Q Thanks. I appreciate that.
So what you are taking out, then, is $88.3 million of Coleman Safety and Security sales from the 1997 figures because you are going to take them out of the 1998 plan, as well; right?
A Correct. They would never have been in -- my supposition is this final 1998 plan did not happen in there, and I believe if you look at the prior page, that is a component of the adjustment from the 1998 original plan to the 1998 final plan. It is removing some aspects of Coleman Safety and Security.

Q So the line entry on page 2 removed Q1 CSS, means remove first quarter, Coleman Safety and Security sales and EBITDA in both forms?
A Correct.
Q Now, when you have the -- withdrawn.
Looking at the 1997 actual where you have the add back restructuring expense in the EBITDA column, it looks like $36.4 million.
Am I reading that correctly?
A Correct.
Q Why are you adding that back on this chart?
A Again, to enhance the comparability of the numbers presented. That type of restructuring charge, it appears the way it is presented, would not be an expected recurring item, and so to try to peel out the unusual or nonrecurring things to get at the core business, it would be added back.
Q Turn to the last page of the Exhibit 396 which is headed the Coleman Company, Inc. Proforma Without Safety and Security, it looks like semicolon, Without Restructuring 1998 Final Plan Without Management

Page 138

Adjustment in Millions. Am I reading that correctly?
A Correct.
Q So is this -- this is a summary of the 1998 final plan as it existed as of the date that you sent this to Mr. Paul Rowe in July of 1998?
A It appears to be.
Q Were you working for Coleman at the time that Coleman Safety and Security was sold?
A Well, I was either at Coleman or Sunbeam. I think they were sold in the first quarter of 1998 right around the time of the announcement of the transaction so, yes, I was at Coleman at that time, if my recollection of the timing of that transaction is correct.
Q Who purchased Coleman Safety and Security?
A I don't remember.
Q Could you tell the jury what the business was?
A Smoke detectors and fire suppression.
Q Primarily for homes; right?
A They also had some commercial lines and you can find their products in buildings.
Q What was the sales price, as close as you can recall, for Coleman Safety and Security?
A I have no idea.
Q Was it reported -- the sale was reported in the financial statements; right?

Page 139

A Yes.
Q That would have appeared, if it was in the first quarter of 1998, would appear in the 1998 form, now 10-K, for the Coleman Company; right?
A Correct.
Q And the number that appears in the 1998 10-K for the Coleman Company for the sale would be the number as accurate as you could pinpoint it today; correct?
A Correct.
Q Were there any further revisions to the 1998 plan after Exhibit 396?
A I don't know. It appears to be the final plan, but I don't know without having reference to some of the files.
Q Did you continue, after July 27, which was the transmittal we just looked at, to continue to send material to the Blackstone Group and Mr. Rowe?
A I have no idea what the date of my last communication to them was.
Q Do you have -- did you keep any type of log of material that you were sending to the Blackstone Group?
A Odds are I kept a file of the information until it was no longer relevant.
Q You said you kept it until it was no longer relevant?

A Correct.
Q When was the point in time when the file was no longer relevant?
A More than likely when the valuation was determined and we had closure, I would have cleaned up the file and put those documents that needed to be in the corporate records filing and cleaned out the rest.
Q Cleaned out, being thrown out, disposed of?
A I would dispose of miscellaneous notes and things that weren't necessary.
Q Were you the primary -- withdrawn.
Were you the primary point of information at Sunbeam for providing information to the Blackstone Group?
A I don't --
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
Go ahead.
THE WITNESS: I don't really recall. I know that in presenting information to the Blackstone Group, I was getting requests to do it, but whether I was the primary one sending them information or not, I don't know.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Well, let me ask the question in a slightly different way. Do you know of anyone else at Sunbeam who was providing information directly to the Blackstone Group?

A I can't say who it might -- that there would have been somebody else. Odds are, there was. There were other people involved in the transaction.
Q But as you sit here today, you don't know who, if there was -- if, indeed, there was another person sending the information?
A I don't know other sources of information.
Q Now, there comes a point in time when Arthur Andersen asks you for information about the valuation of the warrants; right?
A Perhaps. I can't recall the day.
MR. BEMIS: It is not supposed to be a trick question, so if you thought it was, it is not.
Let me show you a document that I will ask the reporter to mark as Morgan Stanley 387.
(Defendant's Exhibit 387 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Do you have Morgan Stanley 387 in front of you?
A Yes.
Q Did you receive this document from Mr. Larry Bornstein?

020491

Page 142

A I don't recall it specifically, but it is to me, so I might have.
Q There is a reference four bullets down of the primary bullets, I will call them, the first level, and it is -- excuse me, fifth bullet down.
Do you see the word "valuation"?
A Yes.
Q It reads as follows, "Valuation of Pearlman," and here it is spelled P-e-a-r-l-m-a-n, "Warrants and Coleman Public Shareholder Warrants."
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Did you provide this valuation to Arthur Andersen as requested?
A I can't say that I, per se, did, but I would surmise someone in the accounting function did.
Q And was the Blackstone report -- strike that.
Was there a report eventually prepared by the Blackstone Group on the warrants?
A Again, as I testified, I am not entirely clear on my recollection of what Blackstone did, but to the extent that they were engaged to do the valuation of the warrants, then I would surmise they did a report, but I can't recall the report.
Q So you don't recall, as you sit here today, you cannot tell the jury whether you saw the report?

A I can't recall a report. If they did issue one that was the basis upon which the warrants were valued and relied on for the financials, then I surmise, at some point, I would have seen at least a portion of it.
Q Did you provide Arthur Andersen with a copy of the Pearlman settlement, which is another one of the bulleted items about midway down the page?
A Again, I am not sure if I would have provided information, but to the extent Andersen requested information on here, we would have provided it. I'm not seeing the specific point you are referring to, though.
Q The heading -- excuse me, the language is "Copy of the Pearlman settlement."
A Okay. So somebody in accounting would have provided them the information.
Q Who is Don Jackson?
A He was one of the individuals in accounting.
Q Did he work for you?
A He worked for the controller, who worked for me.
Q Now, if you had not -- withdrawn.
So as you sit here today, it would be your belief that if there was a valuation of the Pearlman warrants, it would have been provided to Arthur Andersen pursuant to their request?

MR. BRODY: Object to form.
THE WITNESS: We would have provided them information to address their review concerns.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q And if there was a copy of the Pearlman settlement in Sunbeam's files, you would have provided that to Arthur Andersen as requested?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
Go ahead.
THE WITNESS: Somebody would have.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Somebody at Sunbeam?
A Somebody at Sunbeam.
Q Why don't you please set that exhibit aside for right now.
Did you ever see the final settlement agreement between Sunbeam and Mr. Pearlman's companies?
A I don't know if I did. If you have the document, it might refresh my memory.
Q Let me show it to you real quickly. If it does, you can tell us.
I'm going to hand you what has been marked in another deposition as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 96.
Do you need a copy of this? I don't have any specific questions on it.

MR. BRODY: Sure.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q I have handed you now what's previously been identified as a copy of the settlement between Sunbeam and the company identified as Coleman Parent Holdings, no comma, Inc.
Do you have that now in front of you?
A Yes.
Q Have you seen this before?
A I may have. It is -- nothing is ringing a bell. It is pretty unremarkable.
Q Did you review -- withdrawn.
At some point, I think you told me there had to be a valuation placed on the warrants that were issued pursuant to the settlement agreement you just looked at; right?
A Yes.
Q As you told me earlier, they would have been reported on the books and records of the company, that is, Sunbeam; right?
A Right.
Q That would have been done unless accepted with the concurrence of your auditors; right?
A Correct.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q Are you aware that the valuation, at some point, was placed on the warrants at Sunbeam?
A Yes.
Q Do you recall the auditors ever taking exception to the valuation placed on the warrants on Sunbeam's books and records?
A I don't recall that they had any exception to it, but they also are not experts in that area for that particular case.
Q You say they were not experts. You mean the auditors were not experts?
A Well, the valuation is something that would typically be performed by an independent organization engaged to provide a professional opinion, and I wouldn't expect my auditors to override that opinion, but rather to get some comfort that it was done by a reasonably qualified organization and who had not just prepared it capriciously, but rather had done some process.
Q Was it your understanding or is it -- withdrawn.
Is it your understanding, as you sit here today, that the professional organization that did that valuation was the Blackstone Group?
A Yes.

Q All right. Let me now return to the issue of the actual valuation of the warrants. I am going to show you some minutes of the audit committee. I think you said you actually saw some audit committee minutes?
A Yes.
Q I will hand you Morgan Stanley Exhibit 260, which was marked in an earlier deposition, and I'm going to direct your attention in particular to the page ending with the last two digits 48, 48. Just tell me when you are there.
A I am there.
Q For the record, that Bates number on here is CPH 1039848. There is -- well, withdrawn.
Did you see these minutes, M.S. 260, in your deposition preparation yesterday with Mr. Brody?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.
Go ahead.
THE WITNESS: I don't believe I saw these.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Now, these minutes are dated December 14, 1998. And --
MR. BRODY: I am sorry, I don't mean to be a pest. Can we call them an agenda rather than minutes because I think that's what they are.

THE WITNESS: Right.
MR. BEMIS: That's fine with me. I will call them an agenda.
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Did you see this agenda for the audit committee meeting which is identified in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 260?
A No. You mean yesterday; right?
Q Yesterday, yes. Your answer was no?
A Correct.
Q Have you ever seen this agenda before?
A Possibly.
Q Let's look at the page that I originally identified ending with 48 and the heading Third Quarter 1998 Significant Issues.
Are you there?
A Yes.
Q This is a reference to third quarter -- to Sunbeam's third quarter 1998 results of operations; correct?
A It appears to be the case.
Q And there is an item B, as in Baker. Do you see that?
A Yes.

Q And it reads, quote, "Valuation of warrants on settlement with MAFCO," all capital letters, "of $70 million."
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Is this the valuation, that is, $70 million, that Sunbeam placed on the settlement with MAFCO?
A I refer to the published financial statements to confirm that, but that appears to be at least where they were on this day.
Q Did you attend the audit committee that is identified as relating to this agenda, M.S. 260?
A I don't know if I was there or not.
Q You can set that aside. Now, when we broke at lunch, I told you I was going to show you Exhibit 97, so now I will show you that exhibit. I will hand a copy to Mr. Brody and a copy to you. There you go.
Exhibit 97, it was previously marked in other depositions. Do you have that in front of you now, ma'am?
A Yes.
Q My first question is: Have you ever seen it before?
A I may have, but it is not ringing a bell.
Q Do you know Susan C. Tripp?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 150

A The name is familiar, but I can't place her.
Q Was she an employee of Sunbeam or an employee of Deloitte & Touche?
A Well, given those choices, I would choose the latter because it wasn't the former.
Q What was Deloitte & Touche's role as of April 2, 1999 with regard to the Warrant Accounting and Valuation, as this document is headed on page 2?
A I can't recall what their role was at that point in time, whether they were an auditor or not. I don't remember the timing.
Q Did there come a point in time when Deloitte & Touche did become the auditors of Sunbeam?
A I believe so, correct.
Q Did they replace Arthur Andersen?
A Yes.
Q And did -- you were still employed by Sunbeam, as you told us, at year end 1999; correct?
A Correct.
Q And was Deloitte -- strike that.
For the jury's benefit, could you tell us was Deloitte & Touche the auditor for Sunbeam at -- for the year ending December 31, 1999?
A I believe that's the case.
Q Now, according to the memorandum from Deloitte

Page 151

& Touche, if you turn to, I think it is page 4 of the memorandum under Valuation of Warrants, you will see some figures for the valuation. Tell me when you are there.
A I am there.
Q Ms. Tripp writes that Sunbeam engaged the Blackstone Group, initial capitals, to --
A Where are you reading from? I'm sorry.
Q Directly under Valuation of Warrants.
MR. BRODY: It's the prior page. It's page 4 of the exhibit, page 3 of the attachment. That's okay. We are there now.
THE WITNESS: Okay, I am there now.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q So for the record, we are on Bates No. Page CPH 1308868; right?
A Correct.
Q Good. Under the heading Valuation of Warrants, Ms. Tripp writes, "Sunbeam engaged the Blackstone Group to assist them with the valuation of the warrants." Period.
Do you see that?
A Yes, I do.
Q Based on your position at Sunbeam, that's a correct statement; right?

Page 152

A I believe that's a correct statement.
Q Okay. The next sentence reads, "The Blackstone report estimated a value of the warrants to range from 30 million to 107 million with a midpoint of 70 million."
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q Is that consistent with your recollection of the report issued by the Blackstone Group?
MR. BRODY: I'll object there. This has been litigated in another case. I know, Mr. Bemis, your client was not a party to it and the court has found the Blackstone report itself to be a privileged document. So I think asking her in this kind of roundabout way to disclose the contents of the Blackstone report violates Sunbeam's privilege, and I instruct her not to answer.
I think you could ask some foundational questions to see if there is recollection here, but I think the question, as phrased, would violate the privileges already found by the court.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q Did you -- are you going to follow those instructions, and let's close this out.
A I will follow his instructions.
Q All right. The report continues over onto the next page of the document, and I'm now on Page CPH 1308869. Are you there?

Page 153

A Yes.
Q And there is, in paragraph numbered 3, a paragraph below a table identified as Blackstone's, apostrophe S, warrant sensitivity analysis.
Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q It reads as follows, quote, "The boxed range of 30 to $107 million is the range recommended by Blackstone. The company recorded the warrants," plural, "at 70 million, the midpoint of the range."
Do you see that -- those two sentences?
A I think you missed one word in reading it, but it is there.
Q Now, based on reading this, does this refresh your recollection as to what Sunbeam, during your tenure, recorded the warrants that were issued to Coleman Parent Holdings pursuant to the settlement agreement which, I think, was Morgan Stanley Exhibit 96?
A That's what Mr. Pass, in her memo, I would guess that she's accurate again. If I really wanted a definitive answer, I would go back to the financials.
Q Did you -- Deloitte & Touche concludes on the very last page of the report as follows, quote, "Based on the independent calculation performed by Deloitte," D & T, which I understand to be Deloitte & Touche, "financial instrument specialists, the estimate for the value of the warrants of $70 million appears to be reasonable," period, closed quote.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Do you see that sentence?

A Yes.

Q Did -- to your -- withdrawn.

Did Deloitte & Touche ever express to Sunbeam, during your tenure, that they thought, that is, Deloitte & Touche, that the valuation of $70 million for the warrants issued to Coleman Parent Holdings was unreasonable?

A I don't recall any such statements.

MR. BEMIS: You may set that aside. That's all I have.

MR. BRODY: Why don't we go off the record for a few minutes and set up. I will just have a few questions.

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going off the record at 2:20 p.m.

(Recess taken.)

THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are going back at 2:25 p.m., October 8, 2004. This is the beginning of videotape No. 3 in the deposition of Karen Clark.

EXAMINATION

MR. BRODY: Thank you. This is also the beginning of cross-examination by counsel from MAFCO.

Q Ms. Clark, I want to ask you a few follow-up questions based on the things Mr. Bemis addressed and then touch on a couple of additional topics.

I believe you testified in describing your background that you were at a company known as Skyland Scientific for a month; is that right?

A Correct.

Q Can you explain why you were only there one month?

A I identified that the company was not keeping its books correctly. I approached management with that finding and they said that they liked the way their bookkeeper kept the books and that I could learn from her, and I quit that day.

Q That was after you had been there one month?

A Approximately.

Q Mr. Bemis also asked you some questions about the fact that Coleman was restructuring or turnaround mode. Do you remember those questions?

A Yes.

Q I believe you said that it was only part of the way through that process?

A Correct.

Q Was that fact, that is, the fact that it was in a restructuring mode and that there was work still to be done, had that been publicly disclosed?

A Yes, as far as I recall, that was reasonably well-known.

Q The financial statements that you looked at that Mr. Bemis showed you referred to restructuring charges. Were those financial statements publicly available?

A Yes.

Q So those financial statements were available to Sunbeam or to Morgan Stanley; is that right?

A To anyone who wanted access to the public records.

Q Mr. Bemis asked you about your reaction to the deal when you learned of the purchase price, and I think you said that you seemed -- it seemed you were surprised, it seemed like a large premium.

Do you recall that testimony?

A Yes.

Q Did you ever perform any analysis of the premium or the sales price that Sunbeam was paying?

A I don't know if you call it an analysis. Kind of a back of the envelope, but it would have been just considering what the trading price was for the stock and some of the things you could attribute that somebody might ascribe a premium to. It just seemed like a hefty premium.

Q Did you write anything down?

A Not that I recall.

Q Did you do, for example, a discounted cash flow analysis or a comparable company analysis, the way an investment banker might?

A Definitely not.

Q In the same area you described, in your conversation with Mr. Page, that you asked if he wanted a data room before they came in. I believe that was your testimony.

Who was the "they"?

A The counter party.

Q In this case, would that be Sunbeam?

A As we learned subsequently, yes. At the time, I didn't know who the party was.

Q So the data room would have been information about Coleman for Sunbeam to look at?

A Correct.

Q And after our lunch break Mr. Bemis showed you some documents that you sent to Mr. Rowe, Paul Rowe, referencing other documents sent to Blackstone, I believe. Mr. Bemis asked you some questions about it and you, I believe, answered a number of times that you surmised what Blackstone was doing.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020495

As you sit here, do you recall actually sending those documents to Mr. Rowe or to Blackstone?

MR. BEMIS: Object to the form of the question.

You can answer.

THE WITNESS: They had my handwriting on them and so it would seem reasonable that I sent them, but do I recall at this moment walking to the fax machine and sticking the paper on? No.

BY MR. BRODY:

Q I guess that was my first question. Do you have a recollection who requested that you send that information to them?

A No, I don't specifically recall that.

Q And I believe you said that you know that Blackstone was involved in valuing the warrants. Do you know if Blackstone was involved in other things, as well?

A I don't remember them being an entity that was around doing a lot of work. I just put them in context with one -- that one project.

Page 159

MR. BRODY: I will ask the court reporter to mark some exhibits, and our practice is to mark them as CPH exhibit and we'll start with the number 267. So the first one will be CPH 267 and then following.

Please mark that Exhibit 267.

(CPH Exhibit 267 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)

BY MR. BRODY:

Q Ms. Clark, after the transaction when you were working -- continuing to do work for Coleman and also working for Sunbeam, did you participate in the preparation for and the actual calls to investors about the results of Sunbeam?

A Yes.

Q I am going to show you a document that's been marked as CPH 267 and ask you if you recognize it?

A I recognize the form of the document. I can't say I specifically recall this one.

Q What do you recognize, based on the form of the document, that the document is?

A It appears to be a script of a conference call.

Q What does a script of a conference call mean?

A It means that in advance of a call where the company is going to be on kind of an open phone line that is publicly accessible, people can dial in and listen to the call and, in some cases, pick up recordings of it or transcripts.

And there are usually analysts or major investors on the call who can ask questions of the company. Before the company goes into a call like that, they script out what they are going to say in prepared comments.

Q Does this appear to be the prepared comments for the Monday, August 24, 1998 investor call?

MR. BEMIS: Objection, form, leading.

THE WITNESS: It appears to be a script and the date at the top says that, so that's what it would look like.

BY MR. BRODY:

Q Were you involved in the collection of information to go into scripts of investor conference calls?

A Usually, yes.

Q What sort of information did you collect or were you asked to collect?

A I provided information about financial results, about analysis of variances of financial results versus prior period results, helped to basically put together the document.

Q Would the document then be read verbatim?

Page 161

MR. BEMIS: Objection, form, leading.

THE WITNESS: Normally, people would get pretty close to what was written. They wouldn't always say every single word, just like when you read things in church, you sometimes mess up. You usually get the content pretty close.

BY MR. BRODY:

Q I understand.

To your recollection, was the information that Sunbeam provided in the investor conference calls correct?

MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form. No foundation.

THE WITNESS: We did our best to provide factual, useful, insightful information on these calls.

MR. BRODY: Put that document aside, please, and I will show you another one.

Please mark this as Exhibit 268.

(CPH Exhibit 268 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)

BY MR. BRODY:

Q Ms. Clark, I have given you what's been marked as Exhibit 268. Can you tell us what this document is?

A This appears to be a script of a Q4 earnings release conference call for April 21, 1999.

Q It appears to be -- excuse me. There is some handwriting on the top. Do you recognize that handwriting?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020496

A I can't be sure whose it is.
Q Fair enough.
Do you recall providing information in response to a request from other people at Sunbeam for inclusion in the script for this conference call?
A I can't recall this one specifically, but I did it as a matter of course on a pretty routine basis.
Q Do you have an understanding as to whether the information contained in document 268 was correct at the time of its inclusion in that document?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form. Foundation.
THE WITNESS: Again, as I mentioned with respect to the other one, with all of these, we did our best to provide accurate information at the date that it was provided.
MR. BRODY: You may put that document aside. Please mark that as 269.
(CPH Exhibit 269 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
BY MR. BRODY:
Q Ms. Clark, I will give you what's been marked as Exhibit 269. Can you tell us what that document is?
A The title of it says Sunbeam Corporation Q1

Earnings Release Conference Call, June 7, 1999, and it appears to be the script for that call.
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Move to strike. No foundation.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q Ms. Clark, if you look at the first bullet point after Introduction, do you see that you were a participant in that call?
A It has my name on here.
Q Do you recall participating in some of the conference calls?
A I usually participate in the conference calls.
Q Do you recall speaking in the conference calls or just listening?
A I normally did not speak. As a matter of fact, I can't recall I ever spoke in one of the Sunbeam ones.
Q Again, do you believe the information communicated by Sunbeam to its investors on June 7, 1999 was correct to the best of Sunbeam's knowledge at that time?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
THE WITNESS: I believe, as I said before, that every time Sunbeam did one of these conference calls, that at least during the time I was there, we did our best to provide accurate information at that time.

MR. BRODY: Just a couple more of these. Ask the court reporter to mark our next exhibit as Exhibit 270.
(CPH Exhibit 270 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
BY MR. BRODY:
Q Did you -- can you describe what Exhibit 270 is?
A This appears to be a conference call script for second quarter earnings release, conference call for 1999.
Q That second quarter release would have been done in August or thereabouts of '99?
A That would seem appropriate.
Q Does this document reflect that you participated in the conference call?
A It does say I was there.
Q I am sorry?
A It does say that I was there.
Q Again, do you believe the information communicated to the investors on August 11, 1999, on or about that date was correct to the best of someone's knowledge at that time?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
THE WITNESS: I do believe the company made its best efforts to provide accurate information on the dates it communicated such information.

BY MR. BRODY:
Q Before this information was communicated, I refer to the information contained in Exhibits 267 through 270, before it was, in fact, communicated to the investors, what would be done to come up with these documents, these scripts?
MR. BEMIS: Objection to form, foundation.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q Was there a custom or practice at Sunbeam?
A There was a practice, as there has been in most of the companies I worked in, that there is what I would consider a more standard portion of the script that reviews the financial results, and then there is another portion of the script that discusses the business more broadly than what was just covered in the financials.
And so the typical practice would be that someone, often the accounting group, would put together the financial analysis portion and then a team of people would work on the discussion about the business section.
And as I recall, Mr. Shiffman had a lot to do with helping to set some of the tone and direction for the business section but, of course, he was the facilitator for the work of many in the company.

020497

Q Were drafts of this information of these releases circulated before they were presented to the investors?
A Yes.
Q Did you and others comment on those drafts?
A Yes.
MR. BRODY: Please mark this as Exhibit 271.
(CPH Exhibit 271 was marked for identification by the court reporter.)
MR. BRODY: Can we go off the record for a second?
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: We are off the record at 2:40 p.m.
(Recess taken.)
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: And we are going back on the record at 2:41 p.m.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q Thank you. While we were off the record, we corrected a pagination problem on the exhibit.
Ms. Clark, I will give you what's been marked as Exhibit 271, CPH Exhibit 271. What do you recognize this document to be?
A This, again, appears to be a script of -- this script for the Q3 earnings release conference call for third quarter 1999.

Q Does it identify you as a participant in that conference call?
A It does.
Q Do you have any reason to doubt that identification?
A No.
Q You recently, in response to a prior question, you described your custom and practice at Sunbeam in developing these scripts. Do you believe that practice was followed in connection with this script, as well?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, generally.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q Okay. Ma'am, looking at -- just looking at these exhibits altogether, Exhibits 267 through 271, do you believe them to be true and accurate copies of earnings conference call scripts prepared by the Sunbeam company?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation, breadth.
THE WITNESS: I have no reason to believe they are not.
MR. BRODY: Thank you. You can put those aside.

Q Ms. Clark, I will show you one additional exhibit. I am showing you what's been previously marked as CPH Exhibit 9, and before I ask you a lot of questions about it, first, is this a document that you saw prior to the closing of the first stage of the Coleman transaction on March 30, on or about March 30, 1998?
A I don't recall that I would have seen it at that time.
Q Now, after the transaction closed, you became employed by Sunbeam; correct?
A Towards the end of April, 1998.
Q I am sorry.
A And to the extent that they were the majority owner of Coleman prior to that, I was employed by a Sunbeam entity.
Q I understand. You remained at Sunbeam until January of 2000?
A Correct.
Q In connection with the work you did at Sunbeam, did you come to understand what the Sunbeam business was like in this time frame of 1998?
A Yes.
Q I would ask you to turn to what I believe is the fifth page of the document, bears Bates No. CPH 026290, and it is entitled Investment Rationale. The first bullet item in this presentation states, "Sunbeam represents an attractive growth story and investment opportunity."

Based on what you know about Sunbeam, do you believe that that was a true statement in February 1997?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation.
THE WITNESS: Based on what I learned after that date?
BY MR. BRODY:
Q Yes, ma'am.
A I don't believe that was accurate.
Q Why is that?
A Sunbeam --
MR. BEMIS: Same objection.
You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Sunbeam, as I later learned, was in a state of disarray. Early on in the beginning of Sunbeam's acquisition of Coleman, there was someone, I can't exactly place the party, it was like a third party consulting firm, somehow he said something about, you know, Coleman was a company being turned around and had issues. And they said, well, compared to Sunbeam,

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020498

Coleman runs like a Swiss watch.
And we thought that was a pretty funny statement because we were nothing close to the precision of a Swiss watch, and to hear someone say we looked like a Swiss watch by comparison seemed curious to me at the time because I had every reason to believe, at that stage of the game, that Sunbeam was a reasonably well run company, certainly one that had the capacity to be taking on acquiring a lot of other companies.
And one doesn't, in my experience, do that when you are in a period of disarray because you have got too many other things to do, but what I learned later is they were in quite a bit of disarray and that the Swiss watch comment seemed appropriate in hindsight.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q The next major bullet items says, "Sunbeam is undergoing a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in July 1996."
The third item there underneath it refers to a renewed focus on profitability and growth. Based on your knowledge that Sunbeam acquired after the transaction, did you understand that to be a -- those to be true statements or not?
MR. BEMIS: Objection. Form, foundation. Calls for speculation.

You can answer.
THE WITNESS: Sunbeam, having undergone a profound transformation since the arrival of new management in July 1996, I have to believe, based on my observation, that it was pretty profound because it certainly had a very well-entrenched corporate culture when I got there, which was quite different than corporate cultures I had experienced previously, and so that would represent a component of a transformation.
Renewed focus on profitability and growth, my perception was that Sunbeam had a very intense quarter to quarter focus on profitability and growth and that had gone on for quite some time, so I can't say that, at this point in time, it was renewed. I got the perception that that had existed during most of Dunlop's tenure.
BY MR. BRODY:
Q What do you mean by saying there was a quarter to quarter emphasis?
A The understanding I got from people who were at Sunbeam was every quarter they were driven to make the numbers, the numbers being what were pushed down expectations.
Q The next bullet item refers to tremendous intrinsic value in the company. Did you believe that there was tremendous intrinsic value in Sunbeam after you moved to Sunbeam and came to realize what the company was doing?

MR. BEMIS: Objection to form, foundation, calls for speculation.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: When I got there, you know, at first, I believed it was what seemed to be publicly known at the time. I had every reason to believe the company was -- what it appeared to be on the surface, but as I participated in things with the company, it was clear that it was, in that particular period, quite a ways off.
I still believed in the potential to leverage some of the channels from the acquisition, but Sunbeam, by itself, where it was at that point in time, I can't say it would have had a lot of intrinsic value. I think it had a lot of problems.
MR. BRODY: You can put that document aside. Thank you very much. I have no further questions.
MR. BEMIS: I have nothing further. Thank you very much.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Stipulation?
MR. BEMIS: No, there are no stipulations.

Page 173

Well, usual stipulation, you mean, for California? That's fine with me. Just has to do with signing and handling the transcripts. It has nothing to do with the evidence.
MR. BRODY: We reserve.
MR. BEMIS: We all reserve.
MR. BRODY: We reserve signature.
THE VIDEOGRAPHER: Thank you, Counsel.
This is the end of videotape No. 3 and concludes today's deposition of Karen Clark. The number of tapes used was three. We are going off the record at 2:49 p.m., October 8, 2004.

EXAMINATION BY MR. BEMIS:

020503

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Good morning, Mr. Slotkin. My name is Larry Bemis. Nice to meet you.
Would you state your full name, including your middle initial, for the jury, please.
A. Todd J. Slotkin.
Q. What does the "J" stand for?
A. James.
Q. How old are you, sir?
A. 51.
Q. Are you represented by Mr. Brody here this morning?
A. Yes.
Q. What is your residence address today?
A. 888 Park Avenue, New York, New York.
Q. Do you have a listed telephone number there?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is it?
A. 212-439-9455.
Q. Are you married?
A. Yes.
Q. Does your spouse live with you at that address?

A. Yes.
Q. Who are you employed by today?
A. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings.
Q. MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc.?
A. Inc.
Q. And what is your title?
A. Chief financial officer and executive vice president.
Q. Do you hold any other positions with any companies associated with Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. Similar types of responsibilities, in a variety of different companies.
Q. Are you -- when you say "similar positions", you mean executive vice president and chief financial officer?
A. Yes.
Q. And with all of the -- is that -- withdrawn. Is that true for all of the other companies that you are associated with that are owned or controlled by Mr. Perelman?

A. Many of them.
Q. So there are some variations in your titles?
A. Yes.
Q. How many companies, roughly, do you -- withdrawn. How many companies in Mr. Perelman's group of companies are you employed in these positions?
A. Active companies, only a few -- three.
Q. What do you mean by "active companies", as opposed to what, inactive companies?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. What do you mean by that?
A. Holding company.
Q. A holding company is an inactive company?
A. In our case, yes.
Q. And then an "active company" would be a company such as Revlon that has an operating business?
A. Correct.

Q. And is MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc., is that an "inactive company", in your definition?
A. It's a holding company.
Q. We will go into this in a little bit more detail later, but let me ask you where your office is today.
A. 35 East 62nd Street.
Q. In New York, New York?
A. Yes.
Q. 10021?
A. Yes.
Q. What floor do you work on in that building?
A. Fourth floor.
Q. What is your office telephone number?
A. 212-572-5035.
Q. Who are the -- withdrawn. Who are the people who are immediately adjacent to your office on the fourth floor of your office, as you have described it?
And I don't mean secretaries, I mean others.

A. On one side is a conference room, on the other side is Paul Savas, S-A-V-A-S.
Q. What does he do?
A. He is a senior vice president of finance.
Q. Do you understand that you are being videotaped here today?
A. Yes.
Q. And you understand that your videotape can be played back to the jury in this case, should it go to trial?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have an opportunity to consult with Mr. Brody before you appeared here today?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have a chance to look at documents?
A. Some documents.
Q. Did he bring the documents -- withdrawn. Did Mr. Brody show you documents in preparation for your deposition?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you -- withdrawn. Do you understand that the oath that you took this morning has the same force and effect as if you were testifying in front of a jury?
A. Yes.
Q. Is there any reason that you wish to tell us now that you cannot testify truthfully?
A. No.
Q. Any medication, for example, that might affect your memory?
A. No.
Q. Any medical condition that might affect your memory?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever been deposed before, by the way?
A. Yes.
Q. How many times?
A. I never counted.
Q. So there must have been more than a few, huh?
A. 25 years, probably half a dozen times.

Q. Is it in connection with your work, as opposed to personal matters?
A. Yes, most of it happened when I was working for Citibank, running the buyout business for Citibank.
Q. I asked you where your residence was today. How long have you lived there?
A. A year-and-a-half.
Q. Where did you live before that?
A. Across the street.
Q. Okay. Have you lived in New York since 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that your tax residence?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you registered to vote in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you carry a New York driver's license?
A. Yes.
Q. And you receive your personal mail at that address?
A. Yes.
Q. My understanding is that you graduated from Cornell University and then went on and got an M.B.A. there; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. When did you get your M.B.A.?
A. The class of '75, I received it in December of '74. That's when I fulfilled my number of credits for -- required.
Q. And did you go -- you went into the work force right after that; didn't you?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. You went into the work force right after that; did you not?
A. Yes, I got a job.
Q. You didn't do any military service, anything like that; right?
A. No.
Q. Let me ask you a couple questions about some of your job background, and then we will turn to more substantive things.
Did you first go to work for Citicorp in 1975, after you graduated from Cornell?

A. Yes.
Q. What did you do there?
A. I worked as a loan -- corporate loan officer for Citibank, in their Rochester office. I attended their credit analysis program and returned to Rochester.
Q. How long were you a corporate loan officer?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. Well, you started in 1975.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you stay a corporate loan officer until the time you left Citibank?
A. In one form or another.
Q. Did you become eventually the head of Citicorp's leveraged buyout business?
A. Yes.
Q. When did that happen?
A. Approximately 1987.
Q. And how long did you do that, that is --
A. For four years.

Page 15

Q. Four years.
Would you describe for the jury what the leveraged -- what a "leveraged buyout business" is?
A. It was a lending organization, primarily, that would lend to either entrepreneurs or corporations to help finance the acquisitions, sometimes the divestitures of other corporate assets.
Q. And did you assume another position after you -- well, at some point, did you get a promotion or a change of position from your head of the Citicorp's leveraged buyout business?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that position?
A. Senior managing director.
Q. Of Citicorp?
A. Yes.
Q. Where were you located?
A. 399 Park Avenue.
Q. What did you do in that position?
A. I ran the non-investment grade businesses for Citibank and the corporate bank for Europe, North America, and Africa -- Europe, North America, and Asia.

Page 16

Q. What did you do in that position?
A. I managed the non-investment grade businesses for the bank on the corporate side.
Q. Well, tell the jury what "non-investment grade businesses" are on the corporate side.
A. "Investment-grade business" would be primarily well-known companies that are -- have a great deal of access to the capital markets and are well-known names.
The "non-investment grade" companies would be a larger group of companies but they would be smaller and they would have a little bit less access to the capital markets.
Q. How long did you do that?
A. Approximately, two years.
Q. So, from about 1990 to 1992?
A. Correct.
Q. Was that -- and then after -- withdrawn. Did you then leave Citicorp and go to MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc.?

Page 17

A. Yes.
Q. Did you join MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. in 1992?
A. Yes.
Q. What was your first position there?
A. Senior vice president.
Q. Of what?
A. It was -- the title was senior vice president.
Q. What did you do, as senior vice president?
A. Finance.
Q. Did you do finance for Mr. Perelman's various companies?
A. Yes.
Q. When you say you "did finance", what do you mean by that?
A. I would arrange financing for acquisitions and divestitures and refinancings for Mr. Perelman's companies.
Q. Well, for example, would you arrange for the issuance of debt securities through an underwriter, for example?

020506

Page 18

A. Yes.
Q. So you are familiar with underwriting of debt securities that are securities under the 1933 Securities Act; right?
A. Yes.
Q. And I take it that, in that position, you also would -- you would be involved with the negotiation and entering into, for example, revolving credit agreements; wouldn't you?
A. Yes.
Q. MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., through one or more of its subsidiary companies or parent companies, has entered into revolving credit agreements with lending institutions during the time you have been there; right?
A. I'm sorry, where was the question?
Q. "Where was the question?"

Page 19

A. Or what was the question?
Q. Oh, okay, I'm sorry, better yet.
A. It sounded like a statement.
Q. Many of them are, and I ask you to answer them "Yes" or "No".
While you have been at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc., have you been involved with the negotiation and execution of revolving credit agreements on behalf of either MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. or one of its subsidiary or parent companies?
A. Yes, most of them.
Q. You have been involved in most of the revolving credit agreements; right?
A. Most of the negotiations.
Q. And do you know Mr. Dickes, D-I-C-K-E-S?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. Do you know Mr. Dickes, D-I-C-K-E-S?
A. Mr. Dickes?
Q. Is it Dickes?
A. Glenn?
Q. Glenn, yes.

Page 20

A. Dickes, yes.
Q. Did I spell his name right, though, at least?
A. Yes, but the pronunciation --
Q. I apologize, because I didn't have the pronunciation correct.
Does he work for you?
A. No, he does not work for me.
Q. Does he work in your department?
A. No, he does not work in my department.
Q. What department does he work in?
A. He doesn't work at MacAndrews & Forbes right now.
Q. Well, who did he work for?
A. He worked for the general counsel.
Q. Mr. Schwartz?
A. Mr. Schwartz.
Q. I asked you about some debenture underwritings, for example -- withdrawn. I asked you about underwriting of debt securities, and we just talked about revolving credit agreements. Have you also worked on term -- T-E-R-M -- credit agreements while at MacAndrews & Forbes, for either that company or one of its parents or one of its subsidiaries?

A. Yes.
Q. Are you -- strike that. Let's go forward a little bit, from 1998. Did you get a promotion in 1998 to the executive vice president position?
A. Approximately, either the end of '98 or the middle of '99, I don't know the exact date.
Q. I'm sorry. I didn't mean to interrupt you.
Were you still responsible for finance?
A. Yes.
Q. When you were a senior -- when you were a senior vice president, in the period 1992 to 1998, around that period of time, who did you report to?
A. Mr. Howard Gittis.
Q. Was he the CFO at that time?
A. No.
Q. What was his position?
A. Chief administrative officer.

020507

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Did MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. have a chief financial officer during the period 1992 to 1998?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was that?
A. Irwin Engleman.
Q. Is that the same Irwin Engleman who then became the chief financial officer of the Coleman Company, Inc?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't know what title he became, if any, at Coleman, but it would be highly coincidental.
Q. Coincidental with what?
A. It wasn't the same person.
Q. Okay. Did you ever report to Mr. Engleman?
A. No.
Q. Did you always report to Mr. Gittis while you were a senior vice president?
A. Yes.
Q. When you became executive vice president of finance, to whom did you report?

A. Mr. Gittis.
Q. And how long did you have the title of executive vice president finance?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
Q. Did I misspeak your title? Are you more comfortable just with executive vice president?
A. It doesn't matter --
Q. Okay.
A. -- whether it's the -- sometime approximately beginning of 1999 through today.
Q. And when did you get the title chief financial officer?
A. Approximately the end of 1998, the beginning of 1999, I don't have the specific date.
Q. And who do you report to in your position of executive vice president and chief financial officer?
A. Howard Gittis.
Q. Still Mr. Gittis, okay.
Now, you had said that you were an officer with approximately the same title, if I understand your testimony, in other companies associated with Mr. Perelman. Can you give us a list of those companies that you worked -- that you are an employee of?

A. I am sure our office could supply you with a list.
Q. Well, given that I can't go to your office, and I am only -- can you tell me today? If you can't, just tell me and we will move on and do something else. I don't want to take your time unnecessarily, if you don't remember.
A. The only one that would be of interest would be the chief financial officer of MacAndrews & Forbes Worldwide, which is a public company.
Q. And you are the executive vice president and chief financial officer of that company, as well?
A. Yes.
Q. How long have you had that title with MacAndrews & Forbes Worldwide?
A. Approximately the same time period.
Q. Since 1992?

A. No, since -- end of 1998 or beginning of 1999.
Q. Are your duties at MacAndrews & Forbes Worldwide essentially the same as your duties as executive vice president and chief financial officer for MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you hold any -- do you hold any positions in Mr. Perelman's public companies -- or, I misspoke, let me try the question again.
Do you hold any positions in any of the companies that Mr. Perelman holds an interest but are -- also have other shareholders?
A. No.
Q. So, for example, you do not hold any position in Revlon, for example, or any of the Revlon companies?
A. Correct.
Q. Are you a director of any of the companies owned directly or indirectly by Mr. Perelman?
A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Q. Which companies?
A. TransTech Pharma, Pharma Corp., Spectraguard Acquisition. I believe that's it.
Q. Is it TransTech Pharma? Is that the name of the company?
A. Yes.
Q. What does it do?
A. Biotech business.
Q. Where is it headquartered?
A. North Carolina.
Q. Is your only position as a director?
A. And shareholder.
Q. And shareholder.
What is Spectraguard Acquisition? And if I got the name wrong, please correct me.
A. It's the name of the company that owns Mr. Perelman's stake in Allied Security, which is a guard company, a security guard company.
Q. Are you a director, then, of Spectraguard Acquisition?
A. It's actually a director of the board of managers. It's not a -- or maybe it's a member of the board of managers. It's not a director of a corporation, it's a member of the managing board.

Q. Are you a shareholder of that, as well?
A. No.
Q. Do you receive a salary from MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc.?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you receive a salary from any of the other companies that you hold positions with in Mr. Perelman's organization of companies?
A. No.
Q. Do you receive director fees for the companies that you serve as a director and that are affiliated with Mr. Perelman or his companies?
A. No.
Q. Is your sole compensation that you receive from Mr. Perelman's companies your salary as executive vice president and chief financial officer of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc?

A. Yes.
Q. In addition to a salary, do you receive a bonus at the year end or any time during the year.
A. One is eligible for a bonus.
Q. Do you -- you did indicate -- strike that. You did testify that you were a shareholder of Pharma Corp. Are you a shareholder in any other company that is affiliated with Mr. Perelman or his companies?
A. Yes.
Q. What?
A. Well, I own some public shares in Revlon. I am a custodian for an account of some shares for one of my sons that has shares of Scientific Games.
Q. Scientific Games?
A. Yes.
Q. Thank you.
A. And there are a variety of privately-owned companies, including TransTech and Pharma Corp., that Mr. Perelman has investments in that I also have investments in.

Q. Did you make these investments at the same time that Mr. Perelman made his investments in these companies?
A. Approximately.
Q. Did you ever own any stock in The Coleman Company, Inc.?
A. No.
Q. Any options?
A. No.
Q. Warrants?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever -- there is -- withdrawn. I want to go through a list of a couple of companies that are what I think are in an ownership line, and just see if you ever had any positions with those companies. It won't take long. And if you haven't just tell me and we will just move on.
Have you ever had any positions in MAFCO Holdings Inc.?
A. Do you have an organization chart that I also could look at?
Q. The answer is no, because your client -- not your client, but CPH has refused to produce organization charts, so unfortunately I have to do this the way I am going to do it. But I think I am going to start at the top and walk -- I think I have the organization correct, and if I don't you can qualify your answer however you like. And I appreciate that it can be difficult to do this without a chart.

020509

With that, let's just start with MAFCO Holdings Inc.

MR. BRODY: Before you ask your question, I'm going to object to the speech because I don't think that's an accurate description of what the parties agreed to do.

MR. BEMIS: I don't think there was an agreement, but let's just set it aside, you made your objection, and let's see if we can get a question and answer.

MR. BRODY: There was an agreement, actually.

MR. BEMIS: Okay. If there was, so then I misspoke, so it is what it is.

Page 31

Q. Let me put the question to you again.

Are you -- have you ever held any position -- officer, director -- of a company called MAFCO Holdings Inc.?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Have you ever held a position in a company, which is a Plaintiff in this case, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc.?

A. No, I do not believe so.

Q. Have you ever held a position in a company called CLN Holdings Inc.? no comma after the Holdings.

A. No, I do not believe so.

Q. CLN Holdings Inc., as I understand it, was formerly known as Coleman Escrow Corporation. Have you ever held -- did you ever hold a position in that company as an officer or a director?

A. No, I don't believe so.

Q. Did you ever hold a position as an officer or director in a company called Coleman Worldwide Corporation?

A. No, I don't believe so.

Q. Did you have any involvement in the 1993 offering at maturity of approximately $575 million of liquid yield option notes for that company sometimes referred to as LYONS, L-Y-O-N-S, all caps.

Page 32

A. No.

Q. Did you ever hold a position in The Coleman Company, Inc., either as an officer or a director?

A. No.

Q. Given that your principal employer appears to be MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., where your paycheck comes from, I would like to ask you a couple questions about that company.

How would you describe to the jury its business?

A. I'm sorry, I didn't hear the last part of --

Q. How would you describe the business of MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. to the jury?

Tell the jury what the company does.

A. The company acquires -- makes an investment in assets, it builds assets and holds them for a variety of length of period of time, and it sometime monetizes either part of the asset or sells all of the asset.

Q. You used the term "monetize". Tell the jury what you mean by "monetize".

A. If it's a hundred-percent privately-owned company, and you wanted to do a public offering and do an IPO for approximately 10 percent or 20 percent of the company, so those shares would then be available to the public, then the company would have a market value, because it trades in the marketplace. So that the remaining stake of ownership would then have a value that was tied to the value of the stock of the IPO.

Q. When you say you "acquire businesses", you mean you buy businesses; correct?

A. Sometimes.

Q. You sell businesses sometimes.

A. Sometimes.

Q. And you may sell a part of a business after you have bought a business;

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020510 correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And, as you put it, when you -- on a totally private transaction, you said you may do an "IPO" -- that's an initial public offering; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. -- where you sell some percentage of the shares of the private company to the public; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. For cash; right?
A. Yes.
Q. And the seller, in this case would be MacAndrews & Forbes Holding, gets the cash for the sale of the stock; correct?
A. Not necessarily. The company in most cases would receive the cash.
Q. And that's part of the monetization, isn't it, getting the cash.
A. Well, there is a difference.
Q. Well, I understand there is a difference, but "monetization" is a word that's used in a lot of different ways in the deal business; isn't it?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't know.
Q. Well, are you in the deal business?
A. I am just the chief financial officer of the company.
Q. Is MacAndrews & Forbes in the deal business, doing deals?
A. They make investments, they do divestitures.
Q. Do they do deals?
A. You can call them what you wish.
Q. Have you ever heard the business of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. being described as a company that does deals?
A. I haven't.
Q. You have never heard the term "deals" used at MacAndrews & Forbes?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. That's not what you asked.
Q. Don't worry about what I asked, just answer the current question, if you don't like the old one.
A. What's the current question?

Q. Have you ever heard the term at MacAndrews & Forbes that: We are a company that does deals?
A. No, that's not how they think of their business.
Q. Who is the "they" that thinks of their business? Who are you referring to?
A. The senior people in the firm.
Q. And who are you talking about?
A. Mr. Perelman.
Q. Anybody else?
A. Mr. Gittis.
Q. Anybody else?
A. No.
Q. Now, in addition to selling -- if you sell the stock, as you have described it, in an IPO, in whatever percentage you happen to sell to the public, the public sale of the stock establishes a market for the stock that is not part of the IPO; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's another way you have used the term "monetize"; correct?
A. It gives a easily understandable market value for the remaining shares.

Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. have any operating businesses today?
A. They have investments in operating businesses.
Q. No, that's not my question. Does it have any operating businesses itself?
A. No.
Q. Are all of its offices -- strike that. Does it have -- withdrawn. Within MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., is Mr. Perelman the most senior officer?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is his title?
A. Chairman.
Q. Who is directly below Mr. Perelman, if you were going down an organizational chart in the company on the officers?
A. Mr. Gittis.
Q. And below Mr. Gittis?
A. Since he's the chief administrative officer, essentially

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020511

everyone else.
Q. You are a direct report to Mr. Gittis; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Who are -- withdrawn. Does Mr. Gittis have other direct reports at the company?
A. Yes.
Q. And who are they?
A. Mr. Schwartz, the general counsel, Mr. Drapkin. Those are the main ones.
Q. Are you one of the individuals who frequently has breakfast with Mr. Perelman at his townhouse?
A. There are business meetings that we have at breakfast time, usually during the week, and I would attend those.
Q. Well, Mr. Drapkin, for example, described it as has breakfast virtually every day with Mr. Perelman, if they are in town, at Mr. Perelman's townhouse. Do you attend those breakfast meetings?
A. Most of them.
Q. So would you describe yourself as one of the inner circle at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't describe myself that way.
Q. Well, who else attends these breakfast meetings, on a regular basis, at Mr. Perelman's townhouse in Manhattan?
A. I don't know, whoever Mr. Perelman would like to have at the meeting.
Q. I'm sure -- I appreciate that, but given that you do attend, who are the regular attendees of these meetings, if people are in town?
A. Today, it would be Mr. Drapkin, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Schwartz, myself, then other guests as they might be invited.
Q. When was the last time that you saw Mr. Perelman, by the way?
A. This morning.
Q. For breakfast?
A. I attended the breakfast meeting, yes.
Q. Did you go over your deposition -- you were being deposed today?

A. I'm sorry?
Q. Did you discuss that you were being deposed today?
A. "Discussed" is a little broad.
Q. Well, let me just -- let me limit the question.
Did the word "deposition" come up at all over breakfast in connection with your name?
A. I indicated that I would not be available today because I was going to be having my deposition filmed, yes.
Q. And who did you indicate that to?
A. Mr. Perelman.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman say anything?
A. No.
Q. Has Mr. Perelman indicated -- and I am using "indicated" the way you used it, that he is going to be deposed in this action?
A. No.
Q. Did you discuss at the breakfast meeting at all anything about your deposition today, other than you were going to be filmed?

A. No.
Q. Now, in addition to these breakfast meetings with Mr. Perelman, Mr. Drapkin said, as well, that he frequently lunches with Mr. Perelman. Do you do likewise?
A. No.
Q. Mr. Drapkin also said that he frequently has dinner with Mr. Perelman, if they are in town. Do you do likewise?
A. No.
Q. Is your compensation from MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. in any way related to the outcome of this lawsuit?
A. No.
Q. Is your bonus in any way related to it?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Well, let's -- do you know how much money that Mr. Perelman's companies are asking for in this lawsuit, from

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020512

Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Do you have any idea at all?
A. I don't guess.
Q. Well, I am not asking you to guess, we are all adults, we don't have to be children to guess, you are telling the jury you don't have any idea how much is in controversy in this lawsuit between the parties, as the chief financial officer of the company you don't know.
A. How much the lawsuit is for? No.
I know how much money, approximately, we lost in the transaction.
Q. How much money did you lose in the transaction?
A. Approximately, half a billion dollars.
Q. So you lost approximately half a billion dollars. If you were to recover a half a billion dollars from Morgan Stanley in this transaction, would your compensation be affected by that recovery?
A. No.

Q. Would your bonus be affected by that recovery?
A. No.
Q. Would Mr. Gittis's compensation be in any way affected by a recovery in this lawsuit?
MR. BRODY: Object to form, foundation.
A. I don't know, you would have to ask him.
Q. I will, when the time comes.
How about Mr. Perelman?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. What is it that you don't understand? I will try to fix it.
A. Mr. Perelman owns the company.
Q. Well, then, I would think that he would get -- are you saying, then, that he would get the 500 million, if it was recovered?
A. I am just saying that he owns the company.
Q. Does he own it alone or does he own it with other people?
A. I think I have indicated the answer to that.

Q. I'm sorry, then I misunderstood. Does he own all of the company?
A. Mr. Perelman owns the company.
Q. As chief financial officer of the company, is Mr. Schwartz's compensation in any way tied to the recovery in this lawsuit?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't know.
Q. How about Mr. Drapkin's, is his compensation tied to a recovery in this lawsuit in any way?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
A. I don't know.
Q. Well, who knows at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. the compensation arrangements for yourself, for example, what your compensation -- withdrawn. Who at MacAndrews & Forbes has knowledge of how much you are paid?
A. Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Schwartz, and the -- and Ms. Kessel.
Q. What is her -- spell her last name, please.

A. K-E-S-S-E-L.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: Mr. Slotkin, can you put that on your tie?
THE WITNESS: (Putting microphone on tie.)
Q. What is her first name?
A. Gerry.
Q. "J" or a "G"?
A. "G."
Q. G-E-R-R-Y?
A. Correct.
Q. There is so many different spellings for Gerrys, and Jerrys, so I always like to ask.
What is her position?
A. Treasurer.
Q. Do you have a written employment contract?
A. Yes.
Q. And does your employment contract -- is it for a period of years?
A. Yes.
Q. How many years is your current contract for?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020513

A. Four years.
Q. When did it begin and when does it end?
A. It started at the beginning of 2004, ends four years later.
Q. Now, does Mr. Schwartz have an employment contract?
A. I believe so.
Q. Does Mr. Drapkin have an employment contract?
A. I believe so.
Q. And does Mr. Gittis have an employment contract?
A. I believe so.
Q. And does Mr. Perelman have an employment contract?
A. I am not aware of one.
Q. And who has possession of these employment contracts? Strike that. Do you have a copy of your employment contract? Not with you today but, I mean, do you have one?
A. Yes.
Q. And is there a person in the company, MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings

Inc., that has custody of the employment contracts as business records of the company?
A. Mr. Schwartz.
Q. Is Mr. -- does Mr. Schwartz -- strike that. Did Mr. Schwartz countersign your employment contract?
A. I don't remember, either Mr. Schwartz or Mr. Gittis.
Q. And does your employment contract set -- withdrawn. That was terrible.
Does your employment contract set forth your compensation on an annual basis?
A. Yes.
Q. Does it set forth the manner in which your bonuses are determined, if any?
A. It identifies that there could be discretionary bonuses.
Q. Are there -- in the terms of this -- withdrawn. When you say "discretionary bonus", what do you mean by that?
A. I have a compensation. If, for some reason, the managers of the business believe that I deserved a bonus, they could give me one, if they saw fit. If they did not see fit, they would not give me one. So they have full discretion.

Q. And who is the manager who determines whether you receive a bonus on an annualized basis?
A. Mr. Gittis and Mr. Perelman.
Q. Have you ever received a bonus while working at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. No, I have not received a discretionary bonus.
Q. Do you have any non-discretionary bonuses in your employment contract today?
A. Basically, part of my compensation, it's a guarantied compensation. You have a salary and you have a -- there is a -- you can either pay the guarantied bonus during the year or pay it at the end of the year, so to me that's basically salary.
Q. So, in your parlance, and I may have been slightly confused in your past answers, you have a guarantied compensation which is, nonetheless -- in your view, is called a "guarantied bonus"?

A. I have a base-level compensation. There is two parts. One part is a salary, one part is a fixed guarantied bonus.
Q. And then do you have on top of those two items, which are your base level of compensation, do you have a possible discretionary bonus; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. And my understanding is that while you have been employed by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., you have never received a discretionary bonus; is that correct?
A. That's right, I have never been paid a discretionary bonus.
Q. What is your current compensation on -- strike that. What is your current base-level compensation at MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc.?
MR. BRODY: I am going to object to the form.

And can you explain to me why his personal information is at all relevant to this case?
MR. BEMIS: I think it's relevant. I am not going to argue with you on the record over my reasoning for asking the question. He can answer it or tell him not to answer.
MR. BRODY: I will instruct him not to answer. But let me advise you, Larry, that I will -- I assume your follow-up question would be to ask him the amount of his bonus, the guarantied bonus, as it's been described, and I would revisit those questions at the end of the deposition, if you wish, and I will think about your question in the meantime.
MR. BEMIS: So you are instructing him not to answer now?
MR. BRODY: I am.
(DIRECTION NOT TO ANSWER.)

Page 51

MR. BEMIS: Okay. Unless you tell me at the end of the deposition you have changed your mind, I am going to assume that you have instructed him not to answer the question and we will deal with it at the appropriate --
MR. BRODY: That's fair.
MR. BEMIS: Is that fair?
MR. BRODY: If you want to remind me, I think that might make it easier.
MR. BEMIS: Well, I don't guaranty you I will remember to remind you, but right now that instruction is what it is and we will deal with it if we decide to pursue it.
MR. BRODY: I understand.
Q. Now, other than the officers that you have identified for us, from Mr. Perelman to Mr. Gittis and then yourself, Mr. Schwartz, Mr. Drapkin, and Gerry Kessel -- did I pronounce her name wrong?

Page 52

A. Yes.
Q. It's "Kessel"?
A. "Kessel."
Q. K-E-S-S-E-L.
-- are there any other officers of MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. today?
A. Yes.
Q. And who are they?
A. There is a vice president in charge of -- senior vice president is Paul Savas, you have a controller that is Larry Winoker.
Q. Would you spell Larry's last name, please?
A. W-I-N-O-K-E-R.
You have a vice president of taxes, which is Adam Ingber, I-N-G-B-E-R.
Q. Anyone else?
A. There is a long list of officers. I don't have them off the top of my head.
Q. Are those the ones you can remember as you sit here today?
A. There is a long list of officers.

Page 53

Q. I appreciate that, but I was just asking if there are any others that you remember today.
If you don't, we will just move on.
A. I don't remember all of them right now.
Q. Does MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Inc. have any other office locations, other than your office at 35 East 62nd Street?
A. Could you elaborate?
Q. Could you help -- in what way would you like me to elaborate, and I will try to do that for you.
A. Executive offices? No.
Q. Earlier, I asked you if you had met with your counsel before the deposition, and you told me that you had had an opportunity to do so. And I also asked you if you looked at any documents during your preparation.
Do you recall your testimony, that you did see documents?
A. Yes.

Q. What documents did you look at?
MR. BRODY: I am going to instruct him not to answer, in keeping with our custom, I would ask you to ask him which, if any, refreshed his recollection, which I think is the formulation you have allowed your witnesses to answer.
(DIRECTION NOT TO ANSWER.)
Q. Do you want to answer the question? What documents did you look at?
MR. BRODY: There is a -- I have instructed the witness not to answer.
Q. Did you look at any documents that you had seen before?
A. Yes.
Q. And how long has it been since you had seen these documents?
A. A couple years, since whenever I put them together upon the request of counsel to send documents. It's been a while.
Q. Did you assemble the documents that you reviewed or did Mr. Brody or someone from his office bring them to

New York to show to you?
A. Someone from Mr. Brody's office, perhaps Mr. Brody himself, assembled the documents and brought them.
Q. Okay, my question probably was not clear, let me try again.
What I was trying to differentiate, between you collecting documents for your preparation and Mr. Brody or someone from his office bringing a collection of documents for you to look at in your preparation.
Which was it, or was it a combination of both?
A. The documents that I looked at yesterday were documents that were showed to me by my attorney.
Q. No, I understand --
A. I don't know who assembled them.
Q. Oh, okay. You didn't assemble them, your office?
A. No.
Q. So whatever you saw you believe are documents that you or your office assembled several years ago?

A. No, not exactly.
I said -- you had asked me --
Q. I'm sorry, I misunderstood. Clear it up for me.
A. -- if I had seen any of the documents, and I said I had seen some of them when I had put them together and sent them to the attorneys, whenever it was requested, a couple years ago. What I saw yesterday were some of those documents and some other documents.
Q. So you saw some of the documents that had been collected by your office a few years ago as well as documents that had not necessarily been collected by your office, but had come from some other source; is that accurate?
A. Correct.
Q. Had you seen all of these documents, whether you collected them or someone else had collected them at some other time, had you seen them all before?
A. No.
Q. Some of them you looked at yesterday for the first time.

A. Yes.
Q. How long did you spend preparing for your deposition with Mr. Brody or people in his office?
A. A few hours.
Q. And did you do that yesterday?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that the first time that you had met with attorneys in Mr. Brody's office about the matters at issue in the litigation that you are now giving testimony in?
A. Yes.
Q. Had you ever been interviewed before by any attorneys concerning the matters at issue in this litigation?
A. No.
Q. Did you review -- did you review any transcript -- withdrawn. Did you review any transcripts of depositions yesterday while you were preparing?
A. No.
Q. Any partial transcripts?
A. No.
Q. Did any of the documents that you reviewed yesterday refresh your recollection of documents you had collected several years ago?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 58

A. Some documents looked familiar, some did not.
Q. Which ones looked familiar to you?
A. I didn't make a list of them.
Q. Oh, I understand that, but do you have any idea at all what you looked at, less than -- roughly 24 hours ago, what documents you looked at?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, what ones?
MR. BRODY: Is the question what documents did he look at or what documents refreshed his recollection as having seen them before?
MR. BEMIS: The latter question was what we were on.
A. There were some -- there was a document on The Coleman Company zeros, some indentures.
Q. Was this an offering memorandum?
A. I don't know the exact name of it, it was in the indenture.

Page 59

Q. The thick -- (indicating) a thick document?
A. It was a --
Q. I wasn't trying to --
A. It was a bond debenture, but I didn't measure how thick it was. I guess it's a half an inch thick.
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 166, and tell me if that's what you looked at.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 166, previously marked for identification.)
Q. Is this what you looked at?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
MR. BRODY: May I see that?
A. Do you want me to read what it was?
It says "Sunbeam $2,014,000,000 offering memorandum.
Q. Right.
A. I did not see that.
Q. Okay. Did you see the actual -- you saw the actual -- did you call it an "indenture agreement"?

Page 60

A. Coleman indenture agreement.
Q. I'm sorry, Coleman indenture agreement.
A. Yes. You showed me Sunbeam.
Q. I know, and I apologize. I misunderstood what you looked at.
The Coleman indenture agreement for what, indenture for what?
A. For the zero coupon bonds.
MR. BEMIS: May I see 242.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 241, previously marked for identification.)
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 241. Is that what you are referring to?
A. (Pause.)
It was a -- it wasn't in a form like this, it was in a -- the original form, the original indenture form, so I don't know -- I didn't look at something that looked like this, but it may have been this.

Page 61

Q. Well --
A. What's the date on this? Yes, this is it, May 15th, '97 -- 1997, this is the Coleman Escrow Corp. agreement for $732,035,000, but it was not in this form.
Q. But when you referred to "the Coleman indenture", you were referring to at least the securities that are represented --
A. Yes.
Q. -- by MS 241; correct?
A. I don't know what "MS 241" is.
Q. Well, that's the exhibit number that we put on the exhibit.
A. Well, I am just telling you that I looked at the escrow -- I saw the escrow agreement.
Q. We have to try to reach a little common understanding. I am going to refer to documents by numbers, because the record, that way, when it is written down, we know for all time what document you are referring to because we have identified these, so that's what I will use these numbers for. And if you are confused by what that means at any point, let me know and I will sort it out for you.

020517

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 62

A. I thought you were asking me to tell you what it was numbered, I have no idea what it was numbered.
Q. No, that was not my question, but, so the record is clear, whatever Coleman indenture you looked at yesterday, it was for debt securities which are the securities for the Coleman Escrow Corporation which had been previously identified in a document marked as MS 241; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, thanks very much. We may come back to that later, we will just set that aside.
What other documents did you look at yesterday that refreshed your recollection?
A. There was a Sunbeam press release in April of 1998.
Q. April or March of 1998?
A. (Gesturing.)
Q. What was the subject matter of the press release -- strike that. What was the subject matter of the press release?

Page 63

A. That they were going to miss their numbers.
Q. I will show you a copy of what I believe is a version of the press release that you looked at, and ask you to take a look at that, 210.
(Deposition Exhibit 210, previously marked for identification.)
MR. BRODY: May I see it? Thank you.
A. (Pause.)
There was this one and there were subsequent ones.
Q. Okay. You can hand 210 back to me. We may talk about it later.
MR. BEMIS: Hand me your copy back. Thanks.
Q. Any other documents that you recall now beyond the indenture and the press release?
MR. BRODY: That refreshes --

Page 64

A. That refreshed my --
Q. Yes.
A. Not that I recall.
Q. Have you ever read the complaint in this action that Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. filed against Morgan Stanley?
A. No.
Q. Did you review any documents yesterday that you had written or were copied on?
A. I don't think there was any that I had written. There might have been some that I was copied on.
Q. Have you provided to your counsel any affidavits related to any of the claims in this civil litigation?
A. No.
Q. Have you given any statements, whether under oath or not under oath, to anyone in connection with the events in this litigation?
A. I don't understand the question.
Q. What is it you don't understand and I will try to correct it.

Page 65

A. Did I make any statements?
Q. Give a statement.
A. No.
Q. Before yesterday, had you been interviewed, even if it wasn't in a face-to-face interview, were you interviewed by any attorneys for the Plaintiff here, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, or its affiliates, upward or down, in connection with any of the allegations in this civil litigation?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. Can you restate the question?
Q. Sure. Have you given any interviews, whether in person or by telephone, with attorneys representing Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. in this civil litigation?
A. No.
Q. You said that at a point in time -- withdrawn. Several years ago, I understand you were asked to collect documents by someone, and you turned them over to either your counsel or someone in-house; is that correct?

020518

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. Yes.
Q. Who made the request for you to collect documents?
A. I don't remember.
Q. When was the request made?
A. I don't know.
There were a variety of different requests, I don't remember all of the different people that sent them and I don't remember all the different people that they were sent to. We just try to comply with requests.
Q. Was the request from Mr. Schwartz's office?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Were these written requests or verbal requests?
A. Written.
Q. Did you personally undertake to look for documents or did you delegate the task to someone else?
A. I personally did it.
Q. How many documents -- strike that. Did you locate documents that were responsive to the request that was made to you?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you keep a -- strike that. Do you have a record of the documents that you collected?
A. No.
Q. Did you keep a copy of the documents that you collected?
A. No, but I wish I had.
Q. Why?
A. Then it would have been easier to be prepared yesterday.
Q. To whom did you provide the documents that you collected several years ago?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you provide them to -- strike that. Did you give them to Mr. Fasman?
A. Might have. Whoever requested it, I complied with.
Q. How many documents -- and by this I mean total pages, as opposed to one document of a hundred pages -- how many pages of documents did you collect and provide to whomever in your company in response to these requests?

A. I don't have any way of estimating the number of pages.
Q. Earlier, you described a document that was about one-half-inch thick. Without telling me how many pages there were, about how large a stack, if you will, of documents did you produce?
A. I really don't remember. More than an inch.
Q. But less than a box, (indicating), like we have these transfer cases here on the floor?
A. Less than a box.
Q. So bigger than an inch and less than a box.
A. Correct.
Q. And you gave them to somebody in your -- at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.; right?
A. I gave them to whoever requested them, whether it was MacAndrews & Forbes, whether it was -- (indicating Mr. Brody) --

THE WITNESS: Your law firm.
Q. He works for Jenner & Block.
A. Whatever.
Q. Okay. Do you -- and -- withdrawn. Did you ever see those documents again before yesterday? Assuming some of them were the same documents you had collected.
A. No.
Q. Did you ever meet with anyone before yesterday to go over the documents that you had collected?
A. No.
Q. Since the first request was made of you to collect documents, several years ago, have any other requests been made of you to go back and look for additional documents?
A. There was more than one request for documents, which I have already indicated, and it was signed by different parties, and I assumed that they would not have been asking for exactly the same information that the first request had, but I don't recollect which documents they were asking for.

020519

Q. In the last year -- well, withdrawn. Since May of 2003, a little over a year ago, have you been asked to review your files for any documents that might be relevant to the litigation between the parties here in the deposition you are giving?
A. I think all the requests were before that.
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 2 at a previous deposition.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 2, previously marked for identification.)
Q. I'm sorry. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit Number 2 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. You are listed as one of the parties this memorandum is addressed to. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this one of the requests that you received to locate documents in connection with litigation?

A. It must have been.
Q. Do you know whose handwriting that is in the upper right-hand corner where it says "file colon Sunbeam litigation"?
A. No.
Q. Now, if Mr. Schwartz -- if Mr. Schwartz sent you this request, as indicated, Exhibit Number 2, and you had documents, would you then have given them to Mr. Schwartz?
A. I would ask Mr. Schwartz when they were put together what he wanted done with them and then he would direct me to forward them to someone.
Q. Okay. You may hand that back to me.
MR. BEMIS: Hand that back to me.
Q. Let me show you now what's been marked as MS 123.
MR. BEMIS: I am going to ask the reporter to mark that, I'm sorry.
MR. BRODY: It has not previously been used?

MR. BEMIS: Apparently, not. I don't see any -- I do not see any initial by the court reporter.
MR. BRODY: Fair enough.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 123, memorandum from Mr. Schwartz, dated November 11th, 1998, re: document request in Shallal -v- Elson, and Mr. Slotkin is shown as a copy on this document, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. I have shown you now what is marked by the reporter as MS 123. Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. This is a memorandum from Mr. Schwartz, dated November 11th, 1998, re: document request in Shallal, S-H-A-L-L-A-L, -v- Elson, E-L-S-O-N, and you are shown as a copy on this document; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, did you collect documents in response to this request by Mr. Schwartz?

A. I don't remember.
Q. If you had located any documents in response to this, would you have followed the same procedure, that is, called Mr. Schwartz and: Mr. Schwartz, please tell me what to do with the documents that I found, if I found any?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, you can hand that back.
MR. BEMIS: You are going to get copies of all these. We are going to get you initialled copies. I am just not lugging -- I am no longer going to lug, if at all possible, eight or nine boxes around, trying to reduce the cartage for Federal Express, and we will try to get you a set, even this evening.
MR. BRODY: Okay.
MR. BEMIS: Can I see 124?
Ms. Reporter, would you mark, as MS 124, a one-page document, from Mr. Barry F. Schwartz, to the listees, dated June 19th, 2001.

one-page document, from Mr. Barry F. Schwartz, to the listees, dated June 19th, 2001, marked for identification, as of this date.)

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

Q. The reporter has shown you what's been marked as MS 124. Did you receive a copy of this document?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know whose handwriting that appears in the upper right-hand corner?

A. No.

Q. In response to this document from Mr. Schwartz, which is in relationship to litigation, quote, "commenced", closed quote, against Arthur Andersen, there is a request for preservation of documents which includes electronic documents.

Do you see that in the first paragraph?

A. Yes.

Q. And what, if any, steps did you take to comply with Mr. Schwartz's direction to preserve documents?

Page 75

A. I already stated, I don't remember receiving the request.

Q. Well, do you recall taking any steps at any time to preserve documents as requested by this memorandum?

A. I don't remember receiving the document -- receiving this document, (indicating). We do preserve documents.

Q. What steps did you take personally to preserve documents related to Sunbeam's purchase of the assets of The Coleman Company in March of 1998?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you have any record of what steps you took to preserve documents?

A. No.

Q. So today you could not, for example, go back to your office, locate a file where you had written out or -- the steps that you took to preserve documents.

A. No.

Q. Is that true?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay, you can hand that document back to me.

Did you have any documents -- withdrawn. Do you recall receiving before June 19th of 2001, which was the date of Mr. Schwartz's memorandum, any steps being taken by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. to preserve documents related to the Sunbeam/Coleman merger transaction?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.

Q. You may answer.

A. No, I don't remember

(Deposition Exhibit Morgan Stanley 5, previously marked for identification.)

Q. I am handing you what has previously been marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit Number 5, which is an October 5th, 2001 document, from Mr. Eric W. Golden, concerning document production for Coleman (Parent) -v- Arthur Andersen.

Do you have that document in front of you?

A. Yes.

Page 77

Q. Did you receive a copy of MS 5 from Mr. Eric W. Golden?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did you review this document in your deposition preparation yesterday?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Did you review any documents concerning document retention yesterday, while you were being prepared for your deposition?

A. No.

Q. Did you -- withdrawn. Did you at any time search your files for documents relating to the six categories identified by Mr. Golden on the first page of MS 5?

A. All I know is that I searched my files for documents related to Coleman and Sunbeam, I don't remember which category they might have fit into or which category they didn't fit into.

Q. Am I correct that you don't remember which memorandum prompted you to conduct the search?

A. No, but there was more than one.

Q. Did you do more than one document collection in response to these memoranda or were you able to get all of your documents collected at one time?
A. I don't remember.
I think that the subsequent -- the subsequent request asked for other things, so....
Q. Well, did you find any documents responsive to the later request?
A. I don't remember.
I didn't keep a log of what went for which request.
Q. Okay, you can hand that back to me for the time being.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, will you mark, as MS 125, a one-page document, which is an E-mail from Eric Golden to distribution, including Mr. Slotkin.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 125, one-page document, dated November 6th, 2001, which is an E-mail from Eric Golden to distribution, including Mr. Slotkin, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Do you have MS 125 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have an E-mail system at MacAndrews & Forbes Holding Company Inc. at the date of this E-mail, November 6th, 2001?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you receive this E-mail?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Do you remember -- strike that. Did you at any point in the request that you are identified as a -- on the distribution list, search in your electronic files for documents requested by Mr. Schwartz, for example, or Mr. Golden?
A. I'm sorry, could you -- what's the question in it?
Q. Let me try again.
Do you recall ever searching for electronic documents, such as E-mails or a Word, W-O-R-D, document, or a spreadsheet on your computer, whether it be on diskette, whether it be on your hard drive, or whether it be resident on a server somewhere, in response to these requests for production of documents from Mr. Schwartz or Mr. Golden.

A. I remember looking at my E-mail system, yes.
Q. When you looked at your E-mail system, did you have documents that were responsive to the request by Mr. Schwartz or Mr. Golden?
A. I don't remember. But whatever I had, I forwarded to whoever asked for it.
Q. Do you want to hand that document back to me, please?
MR. BEMIS: We will take a break here.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 11:05 a.m., we are going off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 11:19 a.m., on July 7, 2004, this is tape number two of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Todd Slotkin.

(Deposition Exhibit MS 126, memorandum, dated November 8th, 2001, from Mr. Eric Golden, and Mr. Slotkin is shown as one of the people receiving the document, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Mr. Slotkin, I am now going to hand you what the reporter has marked as MS 126.
Do you have that in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Please take a moment and look at it, and I just have a few questions.
A. (Pause.)
Q. Are you finished?
A. Mm-hmm -- yes.
Q. This is a memorandum, dated November 8th, 2001, from Mr. Eric Golden, and you are shown as one of the people receiving the document. Did you receive it?
A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, did you receive a request at any time to locate your calendars for the period, as set forth in this memorandum, November 1st, 1997 to March 30th, 1998?
A. Either for this request or for some other request, I did check my calendar.
Q. From your answer, then, I take it that during the period of November 1st, 1997 through March 30th, 1998, you kept a calendar of some kind; am I right?
A. I looked to see if they had anything on record.
Q. Let's just step back a question. Let's get the foundation question first. Did you have a calendar, regardless of the entries on the calendar, for the time period asked for in MS 126?
A. I don't have a calendar per se. I have a calendar that I keep track of expenses that are related to meals or related to travel, or whatever.
Q. You do not keep a "daily planner", I use that term in a large sense, daily planner calendar?

A. I have a sheet that my secretary would put out every day for what I was doing.
Q. Did your secretary maintain a calendar for you on a computer?
A. I am not aware of it.
Q. Did she keep one in a hard copy form, such as in a daily planner book?
A. I don't think so.
Q. How did you keep track of your calendar appointments without using either a written or electronic calendar?
A. I don't have that many meetings, I can keep track of them.
I knew I had a meeting this morning with you.
Q. Do you keep a calendar, for example, today?
A. No.
Q. Does your secretary keep a calendar for you today?
A. No.
Q. In any event, when you looked for calendar entries, did you -- regardless of what you looked at, whether they be expense reports or some other type of notation, did you find anything in your search, pursuant to MS 126, relating to Sunbeam and its purchase of Coleman between the period November 1st, 1997 and March 30th, 1998?

A. I don't remember.
Q. If you had found anything, you would have provided it to Mr. Golden or to whomever he directed; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, you can hand that back to me.
MR. BEMIS: Thank you.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 70, previously marked for identification.)
Q. I will hand to you now what a reporter previously has marked as Deposition Exhibit MS 70.
Do you have that in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you ever seen this document before?

A. I don't remember.
Q. If you will turn to page 2, and I am referring now to the numbered pages, you will see your name and a phone number below there.
Do you see that?
A. I see my name and a fax number below it.
Q. Is that fax number for -- at the time of this -- strike that. Was that your fax telephone number at the time that this document is dated, which appears to be May 21st, 1998, from the first page.
A. That was my phone number at the time. I don't know whether this was as of. I can't really identify the date.
Q. If you look at the first page of the document, in the upper right-hand corner, it has a date of 5-21-98. But at the bottom of the page, there is also a date which I think is probably a print date, which is August 14th, 1998.
Do you see those two dates?
A. I see the dates, I am not sure

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020523

that's the date of the document.
Q. What was your role, if any -- well, strike that. Do you know what Project Laser refers to?
A. Not exactly.
Q. Well, you know "Laser" refers to Sunbeam; doesn't it?
A. You just asked me the question. If I knew that, then I would have said I knew that, but I didn't know that. I guess now if that's what it means then that's what it means.
Q. Well, did you know at some point that there was -- withdrawn. Did you know at some point in time that there were discussions between Sunbeam and representatives of Mr. Perelman's companies concerning a merger agreement between Sunbeam and The Coleman Company, Inc.?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you first learn that there were any ongoing discussions of that nature?
A. Approximately, December of 1997.

Q. Were you ever given any specific assignments with regard to the Sunbeam/Coleman transaction, either before or after the merger agreements were signed, which if it helps you is February 27th, 1998.
A. No, not that I remember.
Q. Do you know why your name is on a working group list as evidenced by MS 70 under the Andrews Group Incorporated?
A. Because I worked at MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. And I misspoke, it's not under Andrews Group Incorporated, you are listed under MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc., so I stand corrected.
Even with that correction, did you have any responsibilities, either before the merger agreements were signed or after the merger agreements were signed, with regard to the Sunbeam/Coleman merger transaction?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. Your first -- withdrawn. Did you have a general phone number at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. in 1998?

MR. BRODY: "You" meaning was there a switchboard number? Is that what you mean?
Q. Yeah, a general phone number for you.
MR. BRODY: For the company?
Q. For the company, yeah.
A. Uh -- yes, it's listed on page 1.
Q. Is that the 212-572-8600 number?
A. Yes.
Q. And -- withdrawn. Did you have a direct line to your office that I could call, for example, and bypass the switchboard general number?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was that number?
A. 212-572-5035.
Q. You can set that aside for right now. We may come back to it later, but I don't think we are going to use it right at the moment.
Let's go backwards from that last document to December of 1997, when you told me that you first heard of negotiations concerning a possible transaction between Sunbeam and The Coleman Company. How did you learn about that?

A. I learned at breakfast, there had been a discussion.
Q. When you say "at breakfast", this would be a breakfast meeting at Mr. Perelman's townhouse in Manhattan?
A. It could have been in that building or in the office building.
Q. Who was present at the meeting where you --
A. I don't remember.
Q. Well, you know you were present. Do you remember anyone else who was present?
A. Um -- Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, and there might have been others.
Q. What was said about the transaction?
A. Well, there was no transaction. There had just been a conversation that Mr. Dunlap had had with Mr. Perelman about their expressing their interest in acquiring Coleman.

Q. Was this a conversation with -- withdrawn. Was this conversation between Mr. Perelman and Mr. Dunlap the meeting that took place in Palm Beach in December of 1997 at Mr. Perelman's home there?
A. I believe so.
Q. How did Mr. Perelman describe the meeting with Mr. Dunlap?
A. It was a short meeting.
Q. Is that all he said, it was a short meeting?
A. Mr. Dunlap indicated he was interested in Coleman and was interested in a price for buying Coleman. I believe that Mr. Perelman -- he asked Mr. Perelman at what price would he sell his stake in Coleman, because it was a publicly-owned company, and whatever number Mr. Perelman gave at the time, which I do not remember, was not found to be interesting at that time to Mr. Dunlap.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman describe -- strike that. Mr. Gittis was also at this meeting with Mr. Dunlap; was he not?

Page 91

A. I don't know. I wasn't at the meeting with Mr. Dunlap.
Q. Well, even if you weren't at the meeting, did you come to learn based on your breakfast meeting that Mr. Gittis was at the meeting with Mr. --
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. Did Mr. Perelman in any way describe the atmosphere of the meeting?
A. I am not sure I understand the question.
Q. What is it that you don't understand? I will try to correct it or help you out with it.
A. Well, you said -- you said the meeting was at Mr. Perelman's house, so I am not sure what you mean, can I describe the atmosphere of the meeting.
Q. Did Mr. Perelman -- I think my question was slightly different. If it wasn't, it's my error. And let me fix it for you.
Did Mr. Perelman or anyone else at the breakfast meeting describe the atmosphere of the meeting at Mr. Perelman's home in Palm Beach where Mr. Dunlap was present?

A. And, again, I will try -- what would you -- please define for me the -- what you mean by "atmosphere".
Q. Well, for example, it was a warm, friendly conversation, it was hostile, people used profanities, someone stormed out of the meeting.
A. The only thing that I remember about the conversation was that there was a meeting and that Mr. Dunlap did -- was not interested in the price level that Mr. Perelman had indicated, and shortly thereafter Mr. Dunlap left the meeting. Since I wasn't at the meeting, I really can't give you anymore description or -- of the atmosphere.
Q. Well, please understand, I am not asking you to give me a firsthand account, because I appreciate you were not there. What I am asking for is a firsthand account of what you were told at the breakfast meeting about the atmosphere, if you will, at Mr. Perelman's home in Palm Beach when Mr. Dunlap made whatever approach he did to Mr. Perelman about selling his interest in The Coleman Company.

Now, does that help you at all answer the question?
A. No, I think I have answered it.
Q. So no one told you at this breakfast meeting that Mr. Dunlap, for example, stormed out of Mr. Perelman's home.
A. He left.
Q. Well, I didn't ask you how he left --
A. That's correct.
Q. You weren't there. Did anyone tell you he stormed out of the house?
A. I don't remember that.
Q. Did anyone tell that you Mr. Dunlap used profanities during the meeting with Mr. Perelman?
A. No, not that I remember.
Q. So, as far as you can remember the conversation, when Mr. Dunlap left, it was on an amicable basis with Mr. Perelman, is that fair, as far as you know.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020525

Page 94

A. I am not sure I quite understand your use of the word "amicable".
Q. You know what "amicable" means?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay, that's how I mean it.
A. Well, then, I don't know what it means.
Q. Then you don't know what it means.
A. That's correct.
Q. Friendly, amicable, friendly?
A. Well, since I wasn't there, I couldn't -- I don't think I could really give an opinion.
Q. Okay, I am not asking you to put yourself in me, I am asking you what you understand the manner in which the meeting ended at Mr. Perelman's home based on what you were told at the breakfast meeting.
Now, are you clear on what I am asking you?

Page 95

A. Uh -- no.
Q. What is it that you are confused about, because I would like to help you with this.
A. I don't know how you -- I don't understand what the question is that you want me to try to recollect.
Q. Okay, let me try again for you, and I think we can probably communicate, we are both pretty smart guys.
I understand you were not at Mr. Perelman's home in Palm Beach. All right? We are both in agreement on that. Correct?
A. Yes, I didn't know that was a question.
Q. And to the extent you know what happened at Mr. Perelman's home in December of 1997, you know that by virtue of attending a breakfast meeting, as you have described it; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, that's what I am focusing on. Based on the breakfast meeting, did the meeting end with Mr. Dunlap on an amicable basis.
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. I think you have asked the question.
Q. I know I have, but I don't think you have answered because I thought you were confused over what I was asking and I tried to fix it for you.
A. Well, I don't know -- I am not able to guess what Mr. Dunlap thought as he left the meeting.
If somebody asks you if they want to buy something at a price and it's at a different price than you want to pay, I don't know whether you -- because you are disagreeing with that price, you still leave on an amicable basis or you don't leave on an amicable basis, I don't know what was in his mind.
Q. My question isn't what was in his mind, because you weren't there, and I wouldn't ask you that. I am asking you what you understood at the breakfast meeting, or the circumstances, if you will, of how the meeting ended. Was it on an amicable basis? Did it -- or did it end otherwise, such as one of the participants, Mr. Dunlap for example, quote, "storming out of the meeting", closed quote?
A. I just remember that he left.
Q. What was the next "involvement", and I am using "involvement" now in a very broad sense with you, that you had in relationship to the Coleman/Sunbeam merger transaction?
A. I don't remember offhand what the next involvement was.
Q. Well, what is the next thing that you do remember happening with regard to the Coleman/Sunbeam merger transaction that you had any involvement with, whether it be by a discussion, a meeting, an assignment, what happened?
A. Well, probably the next one would be approximately when the deal was signed in the -- the banks of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings would be informed that we were going to -- we were entering into an agreement to sell an asset.

Page 97

020526

Q. Now, when you say the banks were being informed that MacAndrews & Forbes was about to sell an asset, you are referring to banks that loaned money to MacAndrews & Forbes or one of its subsidiaries or senior companies -- "parent companies" would be a better term.
A. Yes.
Q. And, at that time, which would be March of -- would that time be about March of 1998?
A. It could have been late February.
Q. Okay.
A. I think the document was signed sometime late February, if I remember correctly.
Q. It was signed as of February 28th, 1998, if that helps you.
A. Okay.
MR. BRODY: February 28th or February 27th.
MR. BEMIS: It was signed as of February 27th, but it was signed on the 28th, on Saturday morning. If I misspoke, I didn't mean to, but I think that's a correct statement.

Q. Is it your recollection that the banks were -- of MacAndrews & Forbes, were first informed of the sale after the documents, that is, the merger documents, were signed?
A. I remember that it occurred approximately around when the merger documents were signed. I don't know whether it was just before, very soon thereafter, it was approximately.
Q. Now, the banks that you are referring to were lenders to -- is it MAFCO Holdings Inc.?
A. What are you asking? The borrower is MAFCO Finance.
Q. Is it MAFCO Finance.
A. Right, which was wholly owned by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.
Q. Let me show you first what we will mark as MS 299.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 299, document which is entitled Fifth amended and restated MAFCO guaranty, dated as of March 20th, 1997, marked for identification, as of this date.)

MR. BEMIS: All right, back on the record. Actually, we never left the record.
Q. Do you have MS 299 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this document before, which is entitled Fifth amended and restated MAFCO guaranty, dated as of March 20th --
A. Yes.
Q. -- 1997.
Now, is this document a guaranty by MAFCO Holdings Inc. of debt incurred by MAFCO Finance under two other -- two credit agreements?
A. It's definitely debt that's owed by MAFCO Finance Corp. I am not sure where you get the two credit agreements, but --
Q. Well, I am going to show them to you, but that's why I had hoped you would be able to clarify that before I started.

So let me show you the credit agreements and we'll see if I have got it right.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 300, document titled the Fifth Amended and restated revolving credit agreement dated as of March 20th, 1997 among MAFCO Finance Corp. (formerly known as Marvel IV Holdings Inc.), as the borrower, and then a number of financial institutions listed thereafter, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Let me show you what's been marked first as MS 300.
(Discussion off the record.)
A. Okay.
Q. Do you have now MS 300 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, is MS 300 -- well, strike that. Have you seen MS 300 before?
A. Yes.
Q. And is this the -- as it's titled, the Fifth Amended and restated revolving credit agreement dated as of

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020527

March 20th, 1997 among MAFCO Finance Corp., C-O-R-P with a period, (formerly known as Marvel IV Holdings -- no comma -- Inc. period closed parentheses, as the borrower, and then a number of financial institutions listed thereafter?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, when you now were referring to the banks that had lent money to MAFCO Finance Corp., is this agreement, that is, MS 300, one of the credit agreements with the banks?
A. Yes.
Q. And is this credit agreement, MS 300, subject to the guaranty you have in front of you as MS 299?
A. Yes.
Q. Also, dated March 20th, 1997.
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now let's look at one other document.
A. Do I keep these?
Q. You should probably just keep those in front of you for the time being.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, would you mark this as MS 301.

(Deposition Exhibit MS 301, document which is entitled 400 million, and then Amended and restated term credit agreement dated as of March 20th, 1997, among MAFCO Finance Corp. (formerly known as Marvel IV Holdings Inc.), as borrower, and then a number of financial institutions, marked for identification, as of this date.)
MR. BEMIS: I lost my lifeline here. (Pause.)
Q. Do you have MS 301 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. Yes.
Q. This document is entitled 400 million, and then Amended and restated term credit agreement dated as of March 20th, 1997, among MAFCO Finance Corp. (formerly known as Marvel Roman numeral IV Holdings Inc., period closed parentheses, as borrower, and then a number of financial institutions.

A. Yes.
Q. Is this document, MS 301, one of the credit agreements between the banks that you identified as being informed of the asset sale?
A. Yes.
Q. And does MS 299, the MAFCO Holdings Inc. guaranty, apply to MS 301 as it did to MS 300?
A. Yes.
Q. So, at the time -- excuse me. Withdraw that question. Is the term of the revolving credit agreement, of $250 million two years, the revolving agreement.
A. (Pause.)
The termination date is March 20th, 1999.
Q. And what section are you reading from in MS 300?
A. Definitions, page 39.
Q. And the term credit agreement, MS 301, also terminates on the same date,

March 20th, 1999, does it not, sir?
Do you want to check that for me? I think it's under Section 2.03 on page 38 in this one, as opposed to page 39, but I could be wrong, I will let you check that.
A. (Pause.)
It's at page 38?
Q. Yes. I think it's under Section 2.03.
And if I have this wrong, that's why I am asking, to make sure I understand it, prepayment refers to a termination date and the termination date --
A. The termination date is on page 35.
Q. That's correct.
A. That's the definition, says March -- the earlier of March 20th, 1999 or, B, the date of termination in whole the term commitments pursuant to Sections 2.04 or 6.01.
Q. And the amount -- excuse me, the repayment of the amount then outstanding in the aggregate under the term credit agreement has to be repaid under Section 2.03 on the termination date; is that right?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020528

A. I am not exactly sure why you keep referring to 2.03. Section 2.03 --
Q. That's what I was referring to.
A. It just says: "The borrower shall repay to the administrative agent" --
(Discussion off the record.)
MR. BRODY: You can read it, just do it a little slower.
A. "The borrower shall repay to the administrative agent for the ratable account of the lenders on the termination date the aggregate principal amount of the term advances then outstanding."
Q. Maybe my question was poorly -- or maybe I don't understand the documents. My understanding of this was, please tell me if I am wrong, that on the termination date, that whatever is the outstanding aggregate principal amount of the advances made, as defined, that those are to be repaid; is that right?

Page 107

A. Yes.
Q. And the termination date, by virtue of the definitional section that you read to us, is March 20th, 1999.
A. The earlier of March 29, 1999 or, B, the date of termination in whole of the term commitments pursuant to Sections 2.04 or 6.01.
Q. Okay. I appreciate that clarification. These are very complicated documents, and I appreciate your help with them.
So the term -- both the term credit agreement for $400 million, evidenced by MS 301, and the $250 million revolving credit line, evidenced by MS 300, both have a term of two years, commencing on March 20th, 1997 and terminating no later than March 20th, 1999; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, on March -- withdrawn. Just to bring us forward, you had -- up to the time of the notification of the lenders, did you have any involvement at all with the negotiation of the merger agreements?

Page 108

A. Not that I remember.
Q. Was your involvement with the transaction between Sunbeam and Coleman strictly in connection with advising the banks of the sale of an asset of MAFCO Holdings Inc. that was subject to the credit agreements, MS 300, MS 301, and the guaranty, MS 299?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, as a consequence of the merger agreement closing, did MAFCO Holdings -- let me rephrase that, I want to make sure I have the right entity here.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, would you mark this as MS 302, entitled Third amended and restated pledge agreement, dated as of March 30th, 1998, from Coleman (Parent Holdings Inc. as pledger to Citibank, N.A. as collateral agent.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 302, document entitled Third amended and restated pledge agreement, dated as of March 30th, 1998, from Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., as pledger, to Citibank, N.A., as collateral agent, Bates numbers beginning CPH 2006618 and ending at Bates numbers CPH 2006640, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Q. Sir, do you have MS 302 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this before?
A. Not recently.
Q. I appreciate that, but have you seen it before today?
A. Yes, but not recently.
Q. The signature that appears on the -- probably three pages from the back, I believe, Glenn P. Dickes, is that how he pronounces his name?
A. Yes.
Q. At that time -- is that his signature?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, I realize this is a long document and, just so we can shortcut this, does this document, that is, MS 302, pledge the Sunbeam shares acquired in the merger transaction by Mr. Perelman's companies to the banks as collateral for the loans evidenced in the revolving credit agreement and the term credit agreement, Morgan Stanley Exhibits 300 and 301?

020529

A. You have to wait a second, I will have to check.
Q. Okay.
A. (Pause.)
Q. I think what you are looking for is on page 3 of the document. CPH 2006623. And I direct your attention to Preliminary Statement Number 9, in parentheses, and then Section 1, Grant of security and, also, Schedule 1 to the document, which lists approximately 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock.
A. Schedule 1?
Q. (Indicating), Schedule 1.
A. My Schedule 1 is blank.
Q. You know, I may have made a mistake. It may be Schedule -- let me take a look. My Schedule 1 has pledged shares. Let me see --

Page 111

A. (Indicating.)
Q. Is there one behind there? Look behind there and see if there is another one.
A. Well, there is Schedule 2 behind there, but it looks exactly the same as Schedule 1 except it is blank.
MR. BRODY: I think the witness is referring to the schedules to the guaranty --
MR. BEMIS: Ah.
MR. BRODY: -- that somehow became a copy of our exhibit.
THE WITNESS: Oh.
Q. Let me take a look -- let's stop for a second. Let me look at the exhibit to see if we have got it assembled improper for you, because I know I have got it right. (Pause.)
MR. BRODY: (Indicating.)
A. Well, on his exhibit, (indicating Mr. Brody), there is a Schedule 1, (indicating).

Q. Right. Let's stay off -- let's just rest one second, and let me make sure I have got the documents organized properly. (Pause.) If you -- let's try this one more time.
I was -- attached to MS 302 is an execution copy of the Fifth amended and restated Coleman guaranty, dated as of March 30, 1998 from Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. as guarantor in favor of the lenders referred to in the document, and should that -- is that a separate document from the Third amended and restated pledge agreement? Or is it --
A. I would think so --
Q. Or is it an attachment to the Third amended and restated pledge agreement?
A. I don't know, I am not a lawyer.
Q. Well, I don't guaranty you that by being a lawyer would help you figure this out.
A. Well --
Q. What I am just trying to find out is whether the documents were somehow assembled incorrectly. It is possible that the Fifth amended and restated Coleman guaranty is simply an attachment to the pledge agreement that we marked as 302, and that's what I want to sort out for a second.

A. Well, if you go to the table of contents of the Third amended and restated pledge agreement --
Q. Right.
A. -- it doesn't refer to the Fifth Amended and restated Coleman guaranty as being an attachment.
Q. Okay. So, let's do this. I am going to ask you -- I am going to just separate out the Fifth Amended and restated Coleman guaranty for the time being.
A. Okay.
Q. If you will hand that back to me, I just want to make sure your exhibit looks like mine. Can I have 302 back, please?
MR. BRODY: That's my copy.
A. That's his 302, you already have 020530

Page 114

my 302.
MR. BEMIS: Let me do the same thing with yours, Mr. Brody, and we will mark it separately. And I apologize for the....
(Pause.)
MR. BRODY: Okay, so 302 --
MR. BEMIS: Let me get it done and we will go on the record and we will sort it out for you.
MR. BRODY: Okay.
MR. BEMIS: (Pause.)
MR. BRODY: You already gave me 302.
MR. BEMIS: I gave you 302.
MR. BRODY: Let's just confirm the beginning and ending Bates number.
MR. BEMIS: We will go back on the record -- or, we never left the record.
To clarify, Exhibit MS 302 has Bates numbers beginning CPH 2006618 and ends at Bates numbers CPH 2006640.

Page 115

Everyone have the right exhibit now?
MR. BRODY: I do.
A. Yes.
Q. And I apologize for the paper shuffling. Normally we are a little better at that, but it does happen.
Now, my question, I think, it's been a while, but I think my question was, does MS 302 result in a pledge to the banks pursuant to the credit agreement and revolving credit agreement, MS 301 and 300, the 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock acquired by Mr. Perelman's entities in the merger transaction with Sunbeam.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.
Go ahead.
A. It's 14 million -- according to this Schedule 1, it says it's 14,099,749 shares.
Q. We have rounded that up usually to 14.1, but I appreciate your helping me with that.
A. So that's what it was.

Page 116

Q. Now, before the merger transaction which resulted in the pledge evidenced by MS 302, Mr. Perelman's entities owned approximately 82.4 percent of the Coleman common stock; correct?
A. Approximately.
Q. And that stock was held by Coleman Worldwide Corporation; is that right?
A. I don't recall.
Q. But one of the Holding entities had the stock or owned the stock of The Coleman Company, Inc.; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, was The Coleman Company stock, the 82.4 percent of the stock, was it, at the time of the signing of the merger agreements, February 27th, 1998, was that stock pledged to any of the lending institutions under the term credit agreement or the revolving credit agreement identified as MS 300 and 301?
A. I believe so.
Q. And can we -- can you, by looking at either of the credit agreements or the guaranty agreements, identify where it is -- where in those agreements it evidenced that the Coleman stock was pledged to those lending institutions pursuant to either the term credit agreement or the revolving credit agreement.

A. (Pause.)
On page 30, it's --
Q. Give me the Exhibit Number first, and then I will follow along with you.
A. MS 300 in the revolving credit agreement refers --
Q. Could you just wait one second here? Let me get the paper out.
All right. Could you give me the page number, sir, you are referring to?
A. I was just going to page 30.
Q. Page 30, okay. All right, I am there.
A. Just talked about new Coleman and new Coleman pledge agreement.
Q. (Pause.) Perhaps I don't -- I didn't understand your answer, or my question was poorly phrased.

020531

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 118

Is the Coleman stock, common stock, the 82.4 percent, owned by what I believe is Coleman Worldwide Corporation, as of March 1st, 1998, is it pledged to secure the obligations of MAFCO Finance Corp. in MS 300 and, if so, where is the specific reference to that stock being pledged.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
Go ahead.
A. I already said that I believe that it is pledged, and on page 30 of the definitions it talks about the new Coleman pledge agreement which -- do you want me to read it?
Q. No, no, you don't need to read it, but if that's the provision you are referring to, is that the only way -- is that the only place that the pledge is referred to? Because I can't trace it through to that.
A. I am sure it's not, but I would have to go through all the documents to find the exact reference to it, but can we assume that it was pledged?

Q. No, we can't, that's what my question is.
A. Well, I already said that I believe that it was pledged.
Q. I know you did, and I am trying to find out why you think that is the case based upon the documents.
A. The reason I believe so is because I was the architect of the business transaction, I was not the architect nor the writer of the document.
Q. Did you draft the term sheet for the transactions in March of 1997 when these documents were executed?
MR. BRODY: Wait, which transactions?
MR. BEMIS: The 1997 lending transactions, evidenced, at least in part now, by MS 299 through MS 302.
A. I didn't actually draft -- do the drafting of the term sheet, but I was the architect of all the MAFCO Finance (indicating) business transactions.

Page 120

Q. Okay. Well, let's step back then. Let's go back and look at the term sheet, and we will come back to this question. Let me see if the term sheet helps at all.
MR. BEMIS: I will ask the court reporter to mark, as MS 308, a document entitled MAFCO Finance Corp. summary of terms and conditions.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 308, document entitled MAFCO Finance Corp. summary of terms and conditions, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Sorry about that.
MR. BEMIS: Do you want to just mark the first page of this.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 311, document which is entitled Fifth Amended and restated Coleman guaranty dated as of March 30th, 1998 from Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. as guarantor in favor of lenders, et cetera, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Page 121

MR. BEMIS: Okay.
Q. Do you have MS 308 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you seen this document before?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who prepared it?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Was it prepared by someone at your direction?
A. I am not sure I understand the question.
Q. Well, was it prepared by someone who works for you?
A. No, it was prepared by a lawyer.
Q. At Shearman & Sterling?
A. I don't know who prepared it.
Shearman & Sterling doesn't work for me.
Q. Well, I understand that. I am not looking at -- for the name of a lawyer, although I think I know who it was. My question is, was that the law firm that you were using to prepare the loan documentation?

020532

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Page 122

A. No.
Q. Was someone else using Shearman & Sterling to prepare the loan documentation, that is, the lenders?
A. Yes, the lenders were using Shearman & Sterling.
Q. Did you have counsel in the lending transactions in March of 1997 that we have been discussing?
A. Yes.
Q. And who was it?
A. I believe it was Skadden.
Q. Is it your believe, then, that MS 308 was a document prepared by the law firm of Shearman & Sterling?
A. I don't know whether it was prepared by Shearman & Sterling or Skadden.
Q. But it was prepared --
A. It is not indicated on the document.
Q. Well, there is a document identifier in the lower left-hand corner.
A. Okay.

Page 123

Q. And I didn't know if you see it, I don't know if that helps you at all.
A. All I see is 2-- this number "230742.6/NYL3"?
Q. Yes.
A. No, I don't recognize that.
Q. Okay.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, please mark, as MS 291, memorandum from Maura E. O'Sullivan, dated February 12, 1997, on the letterhead of Shearman & Sterling, with distribution to, among others, Mr. Slotkin.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 291, document dated February 12, 1997, on the letterhead of Shearman & Sterling, with distribution to, among others, Mr. Slotkin, marked for identification, as of this date.)
MR. BEMIS: I'm sorry, there you go.
Q. All right. Do you have MS 291 in front of you?
A. Yes.

Page 124

Q. Did you receive a copy of this memorandum from Maura E. O'Sullivan?
A. Yes.
Q. And was Ms. O'Sullivan an attorney at Shearman & Sterling working on the proposed financing for MAFCO Finance Corp., which eventually was documented in MS 300 and 301, as well as other exhibits?
A. Yes.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form. That's okay.
Q. Now, is -- the term sheet in this transmittal has a date of 12-12-97, and I realize the term sheet that I gave you has a little bit later date, I think it's February 24th. Was Shearman & Sterling the law firm then that was drafting the term sheet for people to review?
A. For the lenders to agree to, yes.
Q. Explain to me how the circulation of the term sheet works amongst the parties in a financing transaction such as we are talking about in March of 1997.

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. The attorneys that were involved representing the borrower and the lender would agree amongst themselves who would do the term sheet, who would do the first cut of the term sheet, who would do the revisions of the term sheet, who would do which documents. Sometimes the lender would say they will do other -- all the documents, sometimes they would do the term sheets. I don't know what the arrangement was on this one, seven years ago.
Q. Is it customary, however, in a financing of this size, and complexity, to have -- to have a term sheet that purports to summarize the transaction in a short form, if you will, for the parties?
A. Yes.
Q. And is it customary in a transaction of this size, that is, the March 1997 transaction, to have the borrower review the term sheet and approve it before the documents are drafted?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020533

Page 126

A. Yes.
Q. And did that happen in this transaction for the borrowings of March 1997?
A. I believe so.
Q. Now, looking at the term sheet, can you -- which is MS 308, can you show me anywhere on the term sheet where we could identify that The Coleman Company, Inc. common stock owned by Mr. Perelman's entities were pledged as collateral for either the revolving credit agreement or the term credit agreement?
A. Yes. On page 5, under the Securities section, 1 G and H refers to New Coleman Holdings and Coleman guarantor, and it says: "Pledge of stock together with all dividends, distributions, and other proceeds in respect of such pledged stock".
Q. Yes, but you are assuming that new Coleman Holdings Inc. or Coleman -- well, withdrawn. Are you assuming that New Coleman Inc. owned The Coleman Company, Inc. common stock?

Page 127

A. Yes.
Q. Well, if it's not owned by that company but it's owned by Coleman Worldwide Corporation, is it still pledged pursuant to what you have just identified for me?
A. No, only the pledge of the stock from New Coleman Holdings and from Coleman guarantor are pledged.
Q. And that's the stock of those two entities; right?
A. Yes.
Q. And The Coleman Company, Inc. stock at the time of the merger transaction was owned by Coleman Worldwide Corporation.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. (Gesturing.)
Q. Well, let me put it this way. If it is the case, sir, that at the time of the merger transaction The Coleman Company, Inc. common stock owned by the Perelman entities was owned, indeed, by Coleman Worldwide Corporation, is it pledged under this -- under the term sheet to secure either the revolving credit or the term credit agreement?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. (Pause.)
I can infer, from page 7 of the term sheet, little 2 I, that the lender is looking to the fair market value of the collateral which includes the net equity value of The Coleman Company, Inc. So, from that, I would conclude that the banks would have that as collateral.
Q. Now, when you say "that as collateral", what do you mean, the "that"?
A. The shares are shares of The Coleman Company, Inc.
Q. The net equity value of those shares.
A. Yes.
Q. If previously pledged, however, to secure an obligation of another Perelman entity -- withdrawn. That's poorly phrased. I know what I am thinking, I have to get it out clearly.
At the time of the merger agreements, February 27th, 1998, was any of The Coleman Company, Inc. stock pledged to secure any other debt obligations of Mr. Perelman's companies except, if you are correct, MS 300 and 301?

MR. BRODY: For -- can I have a time frame?
MR. BEMIS: At the time of the merger transaction.
A. All I can remember is that there were some shares that were tied up with the Coleman LYONS --
Q. That's correct.
A. -- which you mentioned, but I am really not very familiar with how many shares, but you could only pledge shares once.
Q. That's correct. And isn't it a fact, sir, that at the time of the closing -- excuse me. Isn't it true that at the time of the merger agreements being signed, February 27th, 1998, that indeed The Coleman Company common stock had already been pledged to secure the LYONS, L-Y-O-N-S, that we looked at earlier, issued by Coleman Escrow Corporation or -- well, you are shaking your head. Do I have it wrong?

020534

A. I haven't said anything, I am just listening.
Q. Okay.
A. I am allowed to move.
Q. No, I am not being critical, I thought maybe I made a mistake. Let me try it again for you.
At the time of the merger transaction documentation, February 20th, 1998, isn't it true that The Coleman Company common stock owned by Mr. Perelman's entities had been pledged to secure obligations of the Coleman Escrow Corporation in the -- for securities, both the LYONS and two note issues.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I am a little confused at what you are trying to get to.
Q. Well, don't worry about what I am trying to get to.
A. Okay, I can't understand your question.

Q. What is it that you don't understand about it?
A. Are you talking about March of 1997? Are you talking about February of 1998? I am a little confused.
Q. All right. Well, let's set the time period for you.
As -- and maybe, as a point of reference, we will pull out the Coleman Escrow Corporation offering memorandum, see if that helps at all. And I genuinely want to make sure I get it right because it's possible you know this better than I. I suspect it is true that you know it better than I.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 241, previously marked for identification.)
A. (Pause.)
Q. All right, do you have MS 241 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, my question is as follows. As of the date of the offering memorandum, May 15th, 1997, was the common stock of

The Coleman Company, Inc. owned by Mr. Perelman's entities pledged or to be pledged, if that's the case, to secure the -- either the LYONS or the $732,035,000 of senior secured first priority discount notes due 2001 or senior secured second priority discount notes due 2001?
A. Mm-hmm.
Q. Is your answer "yes"?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, if they were pledged to secure those obligations, they couldn't be pledged a second time; am I correct?
A. You can have a second on it, which is called a "residual value", yes.
Q. I used -- you couldn't do it twice, because that's what you said to me --
A. You can't make a first --
Q. I appreciate that, I didn't think of that.
Now, at the time, then, of the credit agreements, MS 300 and 301, I ask you again, was The Coleman Company stock owned by Mr. Perelman's entities, which we know was pledged to secure the debt instruments in MS 241 as well as the LYONS, was it pledged to secure the revolving credit line or the term credit lines totalling $650 million?

A. The net equity value, after taking into account the debt of these instruments, which have a prior claim to the collateral, was -- the residual value was pledged to -- 300 and 301 -- or 300 was the revolver and 301 was the term.
Q. So the first call on The Coleman Company, Inc. common stock as a pledge was pursuant to the debt instruments that are represented by MS 241; correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I'm sorry, 241 has the first. (Indicating.)
Q. Thank you, sir.
MS 241 --
A. Right.
Q. -- has the first pledge of the Coleman stock; correct?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020535

Page 134

A. That's correct.
And if you look back to the term sheets, on page 7, I read to you little two I, the net equity value of The Coleman Company, so there must be a defined term for "net equity value", but it basically would be after the debt that has the first claim.
Q. Which is evidenced by MS 241.
A. Yes.
Q. Thank you very much.
MR. BEMIS: Let's take a break for lunch.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 12:35 p.m., and we are going off the record.
(Luncheon recess: 12:35 p.m.)

AFTERNOON SESSION
(1:27 p.m.)

TODD J. SLOTKIN, resumed, having been previously duly sworn, was examined and testified as follows:

CONTINUED EXAMINATION
BY MR. BEMIS:
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 1:27 p.m., we are back on the record.
Q. Let me hand you what has been previously marked as Morgan Stanley Exhibit 311.
MR. BRODY: Previously marked or marked today?
MR. BEMIS: It just was marked today, and your copy doesn't have a sticker number on it because we --
MR. BRODY: That's fine.
MR. BEMIS: The one we had a little bit of disassembly issues.
MR. BRODY: No problem.

Page 136

Q. Do you have Morgan Stanley Exhibit 311 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Earlier, we discussed Morgan Stanley 299, which was the pledge of the Sunbeam stock by -- I think it's by -- by MAFCO Holdings Inc. Do you recall that testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, that document is dated March 30th, 1998, correct, MS 299?
A. No.
Q. Excuse me, that's dated --
A. March 20th, 1997.
Q. Now --
A. Am I looking at the right document?
Q. I don't think so. Let me look --
A. It says "299".
Q. I know, I may have made a mistake.
My error, just give me one second.
I misspoke. If you will pull

Page 137

302 out.
A. Yes, here's 302.
Q. All right. Sorry for the confusion.
Earlier, we were discussing Exhibit MS 302, which you now have in front of you, which is the Third amended and restated pledge agreement which dealt with the pledge of the Sunbeam stock to the lending banks; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, I have handed you what we have marked as MS 311, which is entitled, again, Fifth Amended and restated Coleman guaranty dated as of March 30th, 1998 from Coleman in parentheses Parent Holdings, Inc. as guarantor in favor of lenders, et cetera.
Do you have that in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, is MS 311 a guaranty in favor of the lending banks under the term credit agreement and the revolving credit agreement which we marked as MS 300 and

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020536

301 earlier today?
A. I believe so.
Q. So, the documents -- this -- withdrawn. And as I understand MS 311, in its broadest sense, that CLN -- excuse me, Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc. is guarantying the obligations of MAFCO Finance Corporation; is that correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. Yes.
Q. Pursuant -- and when I say -- withdrawn. And I am referring now, of course, to the loan documents we have been discussing, MS 300 and 301.
A. Right.
Q. Okay. You may set that aside for the time being. We are essentially done with that document.
MR. BEMIS: We will get you one with a sticker on it.
Q. At the time of the closing of the merger agreement, which the record has previously established to be March 30th, 1998, had MAFCO Finance Corp. incurred any debt obligations under the term credit agreement in the amount of $400 million?

A. Which date, March 30th, 1998?
Q. As of March 30th, 1998.
A. Yes, I believe that it was pre-existing.
Q. How much debt was existing on the term agreement as of March 30th, 1998?
A. I don't know.
Q. Who would know, if not you?
A. Who would know on a specific date?
Q. Yes, who would you ask that question if not you as the chief financial officer?
A. The controller would have a record of it.
Q. And who is that today, the controller?
A. Larry Winoker.
Q. Would you spell his last name for the reporter and me?
A. W-I-N-O-K-E-R.
Q. As of March -- strike that. Would he have the same information for the indebtedness, if any, on the term credit agreement as of March 1st, 1998?

A. Sure.
Q. Let me ask you to shift agreements now, and focus on the revolving credit agreement, which is marked as MS 300.
Do you know the -- if there was any indebtedness by MAFCO Finance Corp. pursuant to the revolving credit agreement as of March 1st, 1998?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Would Mr. Winoker know, if someone knows that answer?
A. He would either know or he could find it.
Q. Do you know whether MAFCO Finance Corp. had any indebtedness under the line of credit, MS 300, as of March 30th, 1998?
A. I don't know.
MR. BRODY: By "line of credit", you are referring to the revolver?
A. Revolver.
Q. Yes, the "revolver" credit. Did I say "line of credit"?

MR. BEMIS: Thank you.
Q. The revolving credit agreement.
A. I still don't know.
Q. And that would be Mr. Winoker, again?
A. Yes.
Q. Is he based here in New York?
A. Yes.
Q. Same office as yourself?
A. Essentially.
Q. Under the terms of the loan documents that we have been discussing, MS 300 and MS 301 in particular, along with the pledge agreements, was there a provision whereby if the borrower or its affiliates disposed of assets that they had to make certain payments directly to the banks or their agents as a consequence of the disposition of assets?
MR. BRODY: Object, foundation. Go ahead.
A. Somewhere in the documents there will be a sharing of proceeds between what the company, MAFCO Finance, can retain versus what it has to repay.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020537

Q. Would you look at the -- do you need to take a break?
A. No.
Q. Okay. If you would please look at MS 308, the term sheet, please, and tell me when you have it.
A. Okay.
Q. There is a section on page 8 with the left-hand heading Mandatory prepayments.
Do you see that?
A. Mm-hmm -- yes.
Q. Is this what you were referring to when you referred to the sharing of the payments?
A. Yes.
Q. Without taking the time to walk through each one of the long credit agreements, is the term sheet a fair summary of the mandatory prepayment provisions in the credit agreement subject to whatever detail is in the agreements themselves?
MR. BRODY: Object to form, foundation.

Go ahead.
Q. You can answer.
A. It should be.
Q. If there is any -- let me ask you a couple of questions, and if there is anything you would take exception with just let me know because I know it's a more laborious process to walk through each one of the paragraphs of the master documents.
A. Well, you know, there are times when the term sheet is -- the terms, under the term sheet, are modified somewhat when you get to the (indicating) full document.
Q. I appreciate that. And if you get to one of those points, let me know or tell me it's subject to the final documentation, and we will go from there.
A. Fine. I am not going to remember each.
Q. I understand it, these are difficult questions.
Having said that --
A. (Laughing.)
Q. -- as I understand it, if I look at sub-paragraph A on page 8 under Mandatory prepayments of MS 308, that the first $265 million in net cash proceeds from the sale of an asset would be retained by MAFCO and its subsidiaries without any mandatory prepayment to the banks; am I reading that right?

A. Correct.
Q. Now, as of March 30th, 1998, had there been any net cash proceeds from the sale or disposal of assets such that there had been a reduction in the $265 million in sub-paragraph A that would be paid directly to MAFCO?
A. I believe it was set accordingly.
Q. Perhaps my question wasn't clear.
From the date of the credit agreements, which is -- strike that. The mandatory prepayment is a provision that is applicable both to the revolving credit agreement and the term credit agreement; correct?
A. Yes.

Q. All right. So, having said that, from the period of March 20th, 1997, which is when the agreements were signed, and the merger agreements closing, which is March 30th, 1998, had MAFCO or any of its affiliates disposed of the assets that triggered an application against the $265 million provision in sub-paragraph A as we have been discussing on page 8 of Exhibit 308?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Well, isn't -- my understanding, and you can see if this helps, is that after March 20th of 1997, and before March 30th of 1998, MAFCO had sold -- and I am using "MAFCO" as for the whole set of companies -- had sold a company called Coleman Safety & Security. Is that correct?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Well, do you remember whether the company Coleman Safety & Security was sold at some point?
MR. BRODY: By anyone?
MR. BEMIS: Well, yes, it would

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020538

Page 146

be sold by the owners.
Q. And I am referring, of course, to a time when it was owned by MAFCO or its affiliates, however --
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
MR. BEMIS: Okay.
Q. You can answer, anyway.
A. I am not familiar with what that exact business is.
Q. Okay. Did you -- who --
A. But those proceeds, if they were something that was owned by Coleman, would not be (indicating) monies that they are talking about. They are only talking about the sale of the security that is pledged to the lenders, for ex-- do you understand my answer?
Q. Yes, I think I do understand your answer.
A. Sorry.
Q. No, don't be sorry, I appreciate it.
Who would know if Coleman Safety & Security had been sold in this 1997 to 1998 time period in the amount of the proceeds of the sale? Who would I ask today?

A. You would either have to go back to the controller or our head of taxes, and they would have to investigate it, but you would get a different outcome if it's -- if the business that you are talking about was owned by Coleman than if it was -- than if it was owned by MAFCO Finance, because the proceeds of the -- of a business sale in a normal operating unit of a publicly-owned company are retained by the publicly-owned company. Those are not -- the only proceeds that they are talking about in the MAFCO Finance loan agreement are the proceeds of the sale of publicly-owned stock that we had pledged.
Q. Who owned Coleman -- withdrawn. Who owned Coleman Safety & Security?
A. I don't know.
Q. Okay.
A. I am not exactly sure which business it is.
If you could tell me which business it is, it could refresh my memory. Otherwise --

Page 148

Q. I have done the best I can, Coleman Safety & Security. And if you don't remember, we will move on to another question.
A. Okay.
Q. After the $265 million application, as we discussed, in paragraph A, am I correct that if there is another sale that the next 150 million then gets split 50/50 between MAFCO and its subsidiaries and the banks, which are referred to as "senior facilities" here?
MR. BRODY: Referring to the term sheet?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, again, referring to the term sheet, MS 308.
A. It could be a separate sale or the same sale.
Q. Thank you. And after the $150 million amount is used up, either in one or multiple sales, am I correct that under the credit documents, MS 300 and 301, any remaining net cash proceeds would then be applied or paid directly to the banks or senior facilities as used in these documents?

A. Yes, unless it was negotiated separately at that time -- differently at that time.
Q. Please look at Exhibit 299.
MR. BRODY: Do we have it?
MR. BEMIS: You should have it in there. It was the one I misspoke about earlier.
MS. DeBORD: Here is a copy.
Q. Do you have Exhibit 299 in front of you, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. If you would look, please, at page 15, and direct your attention to Section 6 Q, as in "queen".
A. Mm-hmm -- yes.
Q. Please look at Section Q, and tell me when you have read it, and I just have a couple of questions about it and Schedule 5.
A. (Pause.)
Okay, I have read it.
Q. Am I correct that, pursuant to

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020539

Page 150

Section 6 Q, there is a schedule attached that lists debt -- with a capital "R" -- Relevant -- capital "P" -- Party which is not debt which qualifies as intercompany debt, debt under the loan documents, and debt under the term loan documents, which I understand to be the credit agreement, term credit agreement, and the revolving credit agreement. Is that right?

A. I am not sure I understand your question.

Q. All right. Well, let me try again.

A. Is there a Schedule 5 attached?

Q. There is a Schedule 5 attached. Tell me when you have that, and then I will ask --

A. Okay, I have Schedule 5.

Q. What is Schedule 5?

A. It looks as if it is a listing of the debt of each of the legal entities that are parties to the loan agreement.

Q. And this is debt that exists as of the date of the term credit agreement and the revolving credit agreement, MS 300 and 301; is that right?

A. (Pause.)
Well, it's definitely under the 300 and 301.
What was the rest of the question?
(The record was read.)

A. This is the debt of the different entities that were party to the agreement.

Q. So assuming there had -- and I want you to make this assumption, and just so I can understand the document -- assuming there had been no payments down of any of the debt listed on Schedule 5 as of March 30th, 1998, and assuming that there had been borrowings under the term credit agreement and under the revolving credit agreement as of March 30th, 1998, if we added up those three classifications of debt, we would have at least for the parties to the credit agreements the total amount of material debt that they have outstanding; is that correct?

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.

A. Well, the only thing that you wouldn't have would be if there was a party that wasn't one of the loan parties and they had debt, then that debt would not be on that list.

Q. Okay. I think we are -- I think I understand what you said. Let me make sure that I do, and then we will move on to another topic.
As of March 20th, 1997, the Schedule 5 gives a listing of debt that is the obligation of the companies listed in the schedule which does, of course, not include the revolving credit debt or the term credit debt because none has yet been incurred; correct?

A. (Pause.)
No.

Q. All right. Well, let me try one more time.
In Schedule 5, is there any debt reflected under a revolving credit agreement for MAFCO Finance Corp.?

A. No, there is not.

Q. Okay. Is there any debt

Page 153

reflected in Schedule 5 under a term credit agreement for MAFCO Finance Corp.?

A. No, there is not.

Q. Was there outstanding indebtedness by those entities -- excuse me. Was there -- withdrawn. Did MAFCO Finance Corp. have outstanding indebtedness to the lenders as of March 20th, 1997 which was being, in effect, refinanced?

A. I believe so.

Q. All right. So the March 20th, 1997s were refinanced documents; is that right?

A. Refinanced and amended documents, yes.

Q. All right. Now, so as of March 20th, 1997, Schedule 5 of MS 299, as I understand it, lists out the debt other than the revolving credit debt and the term debt that might exist as of that date for the companies who are parties to the two credit agreements; is that right?

A. That's what it says.

Q. Okay. Now, Schedule 5 is not a

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020540

Page 154

listing -- excuse me. Schedule 5 is a listing of debt just of the companies affiliated with Mr. Perelman who are parties to the MAFCO Finance Corp. credit agreements, MS 300 and 301; right?
A. Yes.
Q. So there can be other debt by other companies affiliated with Mr. Perelman who are not on this Schedule 5; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And, indeed, there is other debt outstanding as of March 20th, 1997 from these other companies; isn't that true?
A. There was other debt outstanding.
Q. For example, we talked about the LYONS and the senior first notes and the senior second notes in Morgan Stanley Exhibit 241, the Coleman Escrow Holdings offering memorandum. That would be an example of such debt; right?
A. I am not sure of Number 241, but there is other -- the LYONS, which is not an obligation of any of the parties here, would be outside of this listing.

Q. And it would also include the 600 million 475 senior secured first priority discount notes due 2001; right? (Indicating.)
A. That would be outside of the list because it is not to one of the parties on this list.
Q. And, just to close this out, so that other outstanding debt not included on the list would be the 131,560,000 senior secured second priority discount notes reflected in MS 241; right?
A. I can't read the numbers from here, but I believe you.
MR. BRODY: The numbers, again, are numbers at maturity; correct?
THE WITNESS: Yes.
MR. BEMIS: Yes.
Q. If you will look at Exhibit 301, at page 75, sir, under Section 5.01, (small O), use of proceeds. Tell me when you are there.
A. Okay, page 75 what? Then what?
Q. Sub-paragraph -- or subsection, excuse me, Section 5.01 (o). It's right above --

A. Yes, 5.01 yes, little O.
Q. Under Use of proceeds. Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Am I correct that the proceeds of the term credit agreement of $400 million were used to defease -- D-E-F-E-A-S-E -- all or a portion of -- initial caps -- Revlon Worldwide -- one word -- bonds?
A. Well, it actually says to purchase or defease all or a portion of the Revlon Worldwide bonds.
Q. What does it mean to "defease" in banking parlance?
A. If monies were owed under a bond, and you wanted to pre-pay them, sometimes there is a mechanism set up by the indenture that the trustee is responsible for that would allow this -- whatever monies would be necessary to be invested in an instrument that's acceptable to the bondholders and to the bond trustee so that at the maturity it would cover all principal and interest and fees thereof, therefore extinguishing said bonds.

Q. In effect, the bond is extinguished and there is substituted for the bond on some parallel terms another instrument acceptable to the bondholders, is that what that means?
A. No. It means the bond continues but that the bondholders -- let's say they are owed a hundred dollars. Let's say the interest over the next two years would be $14, and a mechanism was set up that $114 was deposited with the bond trustee for the sole beneficiary of the bondholders at maturity and invested in an instrument acceptable to the bond trustee, usually dictated by the document, typically Treasuries or some form of risk-free value, so that the bond continues to maturity but the bondholders have, in effect, the cash on hand to be satisfied in full.
Q. Is that how the term "defease"

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020541 is used in MS 301 at Subsection 5.02 (o)?

MR. BRODY: Object to form, foundation.
A. Yes, to purchase or defease.
Q. Correct, "to purchase" would be simply to go into the marketplace and purchase the bonds if they wanted to thereby extinguish them.
A. Right, but sometimes you can't always purchase all the bonds because you can't find the people that own the bonds. So in order to satisfy the bonds, you would have to defease them.
Q. Understood. Thank you.
MR. BEMIS: Let's stop here and change the tape, please.
MR. BRODY: Okay.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 1:59 p.m., on July 7th, 2004, this is the end of tape number two of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Todd Slotkin.
(Pause in proceedings.)
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 2:01 p.m., on July 7th, 2004, this is tape number three of the videotaped deposition of Mr. Todd Slotkin.

Q. Were there any major assets of MAFCO Holdings Inc. through its subsidiary Holdings that had not been pledged against existing debt as of the first quarter of 1998?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. All of the material assets were pledged.
Q. Okay, you can set that aside.
At any time under the term credit agreement or the revolving credit agreement, MS 300 and 301, from March 20th, 1997 up to, say, March 30th of 1998, had there ever been a notice of default by the banks to MAFCO Finance Corp.
A. No.
Q. Well, had there ever -- strike that. As of March 30th, 1998, was MAFCO Holdings Inc. in breach of any of the debt covenants in the loan documents, MS 300 or 301?
A. No.

Q. By pledging the Sunbeam stock pursuant to the pledge agreement of March 30th, 1998, which is -- I will withdraw the question until I get the number of the exhibit. (Pause.)
Excuse me, I'm sorry for the interruption.
Did the pledge of the Sunbeam common stock, the approximately 14.1 million shares that we identified on Schedule 1, I believe, of Exhibit MS 303 -- excuse me, 302, did that have the effect of increasing the banks' or the lenders' security under the two credit agreements, MS 300 and 301?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. It replaced the security.
Q. Which security did it replace?
A. Coleman.
Q. Coleman security. The Coleman security that had been pledged for the -- for the debt instruments we identified, the LYONS and those notes issued by the -- by Coleman Escrow; correct?
A. There was a residual value --

Q. I understand.
A. -- of equity that was pledged to the banks. That was in excess -- the amount of monies, that was in excess of the total value of the Coleman shares that we owned minus whatever debt that had stock pledged to it that had a first priority lien on that stock.
Q. Well, let's talk about what the amount of that debt was as of March 30th, 1998, so perhaps we can arrive at a net value at some point.
At the closing --
MR. BRODY: Which closing?
MR. BEMIS: I am not finished with the question.
MR. BRODY: Sorry.
Q. At the closing of the merger agreements --
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
Q. -- as of March 30th, consideration was paid by Sunbeam in connection with the merger transaction; correct?
A. Yes.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020542

Page 162

Q. And do you know what that consideration was?
A. There was cash and shares of Sunbeam.
Q. And was there an assumption of debt as well by Sunbeam?
A. Yes, there was.
Q. The amount of the securities, the Coleman -- excuse me. The amount of the common stock, Sunbeam stock, we have established was a shade under 14.1 million shares; right?
A. Correct.
Q. And the amount of the cash, based on prior testimony, is just a few dollars under $160 million. Is that consistent with your recollection?
A. Approximately.
Q. What is the amount of debt that Sunbeam Corporation assumed from the seller's side of the transaction, the MAFCO-affiliated companies, as part of the consideration in the merger?
A. I don't remember the exact number or the approximate number.

Page 163

Q. Well, was it in excess of a billion dollars?
A. Was the amount of the --
Q. Assumed debt in excess of $1 billion.
A. Are you combining the operating company debt with the --
Q. I am combining all of the debt that was assumed as a consequence of the merger agreements and then paid by Sunbeam.
MR. BRODY: Object to the form of the question.
A. You are mixing apples and oranges.
Q. Okay, tell me why.
A. Well, when you buy an operating company, there is debt that is on the operating company, and the value that you are willing to pay for that operating company, that trades on the Stock Exchange, is the value after that debt. In addition, above that number, there could be additional debt, if there was debt against the pledge of the shares, which in this case there was.

Q. So what's the total amount of the debt that was assumed and paid by Sunbeam Corporation after the merger?
A. I don't know the exact or the approximate number.
Q. Who would know that?
A. Certainly, the chief financial officer of Coleman.
Q. Mr. Engleman?
A. Mr. Engleman might -- he would have known it at the time. Whether he knows it now, I don't know -- whoever was the controller of the -- of MacAndrews Company, we could -- you know, go back in the records and try to figure out what it was.
Q. Am I correct that as a consequence of the merger and as part of the consideration, all of the debt of CLN Holdings Inc. was assumed by Sunbeam?
MR. BRODY: Object to form, foundation.
Go ahead.
A. Is the --

Page 165

Q. Do you want to see the merger agreement?
A. No.
Q. Would that help?
A. I wasn't looking for the merger agreement, I was looking for the first and second secured (indicating) instruments and who the issuer was so I could answer your question.
Q. Okay. I will give it to you. It was Coleman Escrow Corp., but I think this is probably a year or two earlier, you can get the figures you are looking for.
A. I am not trying to get the figures, I am just trying to figure out if that was the entity that you are referring to. Sometimes the names of the companies are --
Q. Confusing?
A. -- hard for me to remember.
(Pause.)
A. So the -- I am looking at an organization chart in MS 241, and it doesn't refer specifically to the entity that you asked me about.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020543

Page 166

Q. That is because that document (indicating) is earlier than the merger agreement and there were changes in the organization. That's why I didn't refer you to it earlier.
A. Okay.
Q. You don't have to take my word for it, but there were some changes from --
A. I am not disagreeing with you --
Q. And I am not trying to be quarrelsome, I am just trying to explain the answer to you. Sometimes it is confusing.
Here you go. Here is some water.
A. Thank you very much.
Q. You are welcome.
Well, let's go back to the question of the assumption of debt at the closing, and see if we can sort out what some of it was, based upon your knowledge as the chief financial officer.
MR. BRODY: Objection to the

Page 167

characterization.
MR. BEMIS: Let the ice settle.
Q. Let me hand you what's been marked as MS 166.
If you would turn to the page marked F 27, I will give you a Bates numbered page for it, so it will be easier to find, it is Bates number page CPH 1326585 and it's headed CLN Holdings Inc. and subsidiaries consolidated balance sheets.
A. 6585?
Q. 6585, CPH 1326585.
A. Okay, I think I have got the same page you do.
Q. Is it entitled Consolidated balance sheets CLN Holdings Inc. at the top?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Look down under the heading Liabilities and stockholders deficit on the balance sheet, and tell me when you are there.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see long-term debt for the periods December 30th, 1997 and 1996?

Page 168

A. Yes.
Q. All right. What was the amount of long-term debt -- well, withdrawn. Just as a foundational matter, what we are looking at is the audited financial statements of CLN Holdings Inc.; correct?
You can take a look --
A. I didn't prepare them.
Q. I assume you are not the certified auditor.
A. No, but you picked a page and said look at it, so I don't know what -- oh, I know it's part of the Morgan Stanley offering memorandum.
Q. Well, you know that the --
A. So let me go back and see what this is --
Q. If you like, if you will turn to page F -- I will get the right number here for you -- the footnotes are longer than the financial statements --
A. It's on page --
Q. 55, F 55; correct?
A. I wouldn't have picked F 55,

Page 169

but --
Q. I wouldn't have picked that one, either.
A. But I am on page -- the last four digits are 6557 and it says in it: "The consolidated financial statements of CLN Holdings and its subsidiaries included in this offering memorandum have been audited by Ernst & Young LLP".
Q. Were those the auditors of CLN Holdings at this time, 1997?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, go back now to F 27.
A. Right.
Q. And the long-term debt is shown there as $980,447,000 as of December 31st, 1997; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Was that long-term debt assumed by Sunbeam as a consequence of the merger transaction which closed March 30th, 1998, subject to whatever adjustment occurred within the three months prior to the merger?

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020544

Page 170

A. I don't know whether it was assumed, paid off, defeased, but somehow it had to be -- or it just could have been assumed by the company, I don't know, but there is that amount of debt.
Q. That's pretty close to a billion dollars, isn't it, 980 million?
A. Well, I guess it all depends who you are.
If I had the extra $20 million, I would think that would be a good thing for me personally.
Q. Me, too.
A. It's more than a rounding error.
Q. Me, too. But if we round up to the nearest hundred million here, we get to a billion dollars on the debt, don't we, sir?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you aware of any material reduction in the CLN long-term debt of $980,447,000 that's reflected on page F 27 of Exhibit MS 166 prior to the closing of the merger transaction on March 30th, 1998?

Page 171

A. I am not aware of any.
Q. Now, after the closing of the -- strike that. As of the time of the closing, CLN Holdings Inc. was a wholly-owned subsidiary of one of Mr. Perelman's companies; correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
The confusion on "closing", you mean prior to March 30?
MR. BEMIS: Let me try again.
A. Prior to March 30, Coleman was a publicly-owned company.
Q. We are talking about CLN Holdings now. Let me just focus on that.
Before March 30th, 1998, CLN Holdings was a wholly-owned subsidiary of one of Mr. Perelman's companies; right?
A. I have to check to make sure.
Q. Okay. I will tell you right now, it's a wholly-owned subsidiary of Coleman (Parent) Holdings, Inc., if that helps you.
A. Okay.
Q. Now, after the closing, Mr. Perelman's companies -- or, excuse me,

Page 172

CLN Holdings Inc. merged into the Laser Acquisition Corporation.
MR. BRODY: Is that --
Q. Is that correct?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
Q. You don't know?
A. It was an acquisition.
Q. Okay.
A. There was a merger. Since I wasn't party to it, I can't tell you exactly how the entities worked but, at the end of the day, Sunbeam acquired three companies that day, one of them was Coleman.
Q. As a consequence of the -- as a consequence of the closing of the merger on March 30th, 1998, the $980,447,000 of long-term debt that appears on the CLN Holdings Inc. and subsidiaries consolidated balance sheet no longer became an obligation of Mr. Perelman or any of his companies; is that right?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. That's not actually -- it's not exact.

Page 173

Q. Well, tell me why it's not exact.
A. Well, because there is a difference between debt that is owed or guarantied by Mr. Perelman and there is -- between debt that is owed by companies that are the majority of which or a portion of which might be owned by Mr. Perelman that are not guarantied by Mr. Perelman.
Q. I don't think I said anything about guaranties. Maybe the question may have appeared too broad. Let me see if I can try it again.
As of the closing -- withdrawn. Immediately before the closing, CLN Holdings Inc. and its subsidiaries, which is wholly-owned by Mr. Perelman's entities, had long-term debt of $980,447,000, at least, as of December 31st, 1997; is that right? According to the financial statement.
A. Yes.
Q. After the closing on March 30th, 1998, subject to any adjustment in the long-term debt, that long-term debt of CLN Holdings became an obligation of Sunbeam -- became an obligation of Sunbeam Corporation.

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.

A. It either became a -- it's either assumed, part repaid, or defeased in some manner.

Q. Okay, thank you very much.

A. You can't buy the stock without paying off the debt.

Q. That's all I need. Thank you very much. You can set that aside. I will take that back, we are all done with that.

Did you participate in any discussion about hedging the Sunbeam stock following the closing on March 30th, 1998?

A. Could you restate the question?

Q. Sure. Did you participate in any discussions with anyone about hedging the 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock following the closing on March 30th, 1998 of the merger transaction?

A. I -- at one of the breakfast meetings that we had, the topic came up to whether or not it was allowed under the agreement, and I believe that the conclusion was that it wasn't.

Q. That hedging was not permitted under the merger agreements?

A. Without notification and filings and -- yes.

(Deposition Exhibit MS 86, previously marked for identification.)

Q. Let me show you what's previously been marked as MS 86, which is previously -- well, let me withdraw that. I am showing you what's been marked previously as MS 86, which I understand to be a portion of Mr. Maher's calendar.

And if you turn to the very last page --

MR. BRODY: Can I have a copy?

MR. BEMIS: Sure. All you have to do is ask, and if I forget --

MR. BRODY: Yes, I did.

Q. Do you have that document in front of you? And are you on the last page?

A. Yes.

Q. There is at 3 p.m. noted a "per", and it says: "Slotkin slash Citibank Steve Sellhausen", S-E-L-L-H-A-U-S-E-N, and then some other individuals.

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you attend that meeting?

A. I don't know. I don't remember.

Q. Well, do you know who any of the individuals besides yourself, of course, who are listed behind your name?

A. I know Mr. Sellhausen, I know Mr. Dewey. I don't remember the others.

Q. Who is Mr. Sellhausen?

A. Mr. Sellhausen worked at the time for the administrative agent from MAFCO Finance.

Q. What does that mean, "administrative agent from MAFCO Finance" -- oh, pursuant to the loan documents?

A. MS 308, MAFCO Finance Corp.,

there is an administrative agent on page 1, Citibank. He, at the time, was the representative of Citibank from MAFCO Finance, for the administrative agent.

Q. So he worked for Citibank.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Well, I didn't understand that because you didn't use "Citibank" in your answer, I apologize.

A. I said "administrative agent", I was trying to be helpful.

Q. And you were.

A. Sorry.

Q. Finally, if you had said "administrative agent from Citibank", I wouldn't have asked the second question. I thought that's what it was.

All right. So Mr. Dewey, did he work for Citibank, as well?

A. I know Mr. Dewey at one point worked for Citibank. I don't know if on that date he worked for Citibank.

Q. Now, there is then at 3:01 p.m. a reference to "fourth floor conference re: Sunbeam stock hedging."

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend a meeting about that time at the fourth floor conference room on the subject of Sunbeam stock hedging?
A. No.
Q. Did you attend any meeting on or about March 30th, 1998 on Sunbeam stock hedging?
A. No.
Q. Did you attend a meeting with Mr. Sellhausen and Mr. Dewey on March 30th, 1998?
A. It's possible. I don't recall.
Q. Do you --
A. But I don't -- my recollection -- they are not involved in hedging, Sellhausen is an administrative agent for a loan.
Q. Well, do you know what the reference -- do you know what the reference is to the "fourth floor conference re colon Sunbeam stock hedging" as shown on Mr. Maher's calendar for March 30th, 1998?

A. No, I do not.
Q. So --
A. It looks to me as if Mr. Maher double-booked.
Q. Well, we will have to ask Mr. Maher.
A. You have to ask Mr. Maher.
Q. That's the best we can do today.
MR. BEMIS: Do you want to give me 86 back, please?
A. I also believe "WGN" must be Will Nesbitt --
Q. Will Nesbitt?
A. -- who worked for Mr. Maher. I see him on the next -- on the Tuesday, March 31st. I see the same reference, so there is a person that worked for Mr. Maher.
Q. I am going to hand you what we will mark as MS 195.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 195, document believed to be the calendar for Mr. Will Nesbitt, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Page 180

MR. BRODY: This is a new one?
MR. BEMIS: Yes.
MR. BRODY: But it hasn't been marked before?
MR. BEMIS: No, not to my knowledge.
MR. BRODY: Thank you.
Q. Okay. I have handed you what the court reporter has marked as MS 195. And this is, I believe, the calendar for Mr. Will Nesbitt.
And if you will turn to the last page of the document, the last three digits, 686, tell me when you are there.
A. I am there.
Q. There is an entry between the time frame of 3 and 3:30 p.m. reading: "Citibank meeting re: hedging Sunbeam stock fourth floor large conference room attendees colon" and then the first person is "TS". Is that you?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. I don't know.
Q. Well, do you know any other "TS" who is either employed by Citibank or employed by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc. such that we might be able to identify the person?

A. Not offhand.
I haven't given it any thought.
Q. The other people identified here are "JRM". Is that Mr. Maher?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
A. I believe so.
Q. Okay. And Mr. Sellhausen, that would be the Mr. Sellhausen from Citibank we talked about earlier?
A. As far as I know, there is only one Mr. Sellhausen.
Q. And Mr. Dewey, likewise, from Citibank?
A. I don't remember whether -- I knew he worked at Citibank at some point, I don't know when he left Citibank.
Q. By reviewing this calendar entry, did you have a meeting -- does this in any way refresh your recollection whether you had a meeting on March 30th, 1998 with Citibank representatives about Sunbeam stock hedging either on March 30th or somewhere very close to that?

020547

A. No.
Q. So, do you have any recollection of discussing Sunbeam stock hedging other than at the breakfast meeting that you have told me about earlier?
A. Not that I can remember.
Q. Who was at the breakfast meeting where the Sunbeam stock hedging was discussed? Other than yourself, obviously.
A. Um -- Mr. Perelman, Mr. Gittis, Mr. Maher.
There may have been others, I don't remember.
Q. When did this meeting take place?
A. Either before or after March 30th, 1998.
Q. Can you be anymore precise than that?
For example, within a week of the closing or within a week after the closing?
A. Not really. I mean, I just remember that the topic came up and that we talked about it.

Q. Do you recall anything that you talked about other than what you have already told me on the subject of hedging the Sunbeam stock?
A. No. I think I said I couldn't be -- I didn't think it could be done.
Q. Did you ask -- withdrawn. Did anyone at the breakfast meeting suggest receiving an opinion of legal counsel whether there could be a hedging of the Sunbeam stock?
MR. BRODY: Answer that "Yes" or "No".
A. Can you repeat the question?
Q. Sure. At the breakfast meeting --
MR. BRODY: I'm sorry, before you do. The reason for my objection is that I don't want you to disclose what might be a privileged communication. I understand Mr. Bemis just to be asking a "Yes" or "No" question, and if you answer it that way we will find out if there is a privilege issue.

Sorry about that.
Q. Did anyone at the breakfast meeting we have been talking about suggest that MacAndrews & Forbes obtain a legal opinion concerning the ability to hedge the stock under the documentation of the merger or whatever legal requirements there were existing at that time?
A. I don't recall.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 295, document, the last page is entitled MAFCO Holdings Inc., marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Let me show you what's been marked as MS 295.
MR. BRODY: That's another new one?
MR. BEMIS: Yes, it is.
Q. Do you have Plaintiff's Exhibit 295 in front of you?
A. Yes.
Q. Turn to the last page, entitled MAFCO Holdings Inc., then it's Structured equity products hedging techniques is the title.

Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And there is -- it then says below there: Presented by acquisition finance and then lists the names of various individuals, several of which we have identified at Citibank; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And it's also dated March 30th, 1998, the day we identified on two calendars; correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, having looked at this document, have you ever seen the presentation -- well, strike that. Have you ever seen this page of this document?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Have you ever seen a presentation by Citibank to MAFCO Holdings Inc. on the subject matter of structured equity project -- products hedging techniques, as this document is titled?
A. I don't remember.

A. No.
Q. Look at the first page of Exhibit 295, which has some business cards photocopied.
Tell me when you are there.
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize any of the individuals whose business cards are photocopied onto this page or the names which appear in handwriting at various locations on the same page?
A. No.
Q. The doc-- there is handwriting at the top, "Sunbeam hedging", and then "Goldman Sachs & Co." below.
Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you attend any meetings with any representatives of Goldman Sachs & Co. concerning hedging of Sunbeam stock?
A. I don't remember meeting any of these people, recognizing any of their names, or attending any meetings.

Page 187

Q. Do you recall any internal discussion at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings, Inc., whether at the breakfast meetings or at the office, about any meetings with Goldman Sachs & Co. about hedging Sunbeam stock?
A. No.
(Pause.)
MR. BEMIS: Let me just take a five-minute break here.
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 2:43 p.m., we are going off the record.
(Recess taken.)
THE LEGAL VIDEO SPECIALIST: The time is 2:51 p.m., we are back on the record.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, will you mark, as Exhibit 297, a four-page document, entitled Hedging and monetization strategies.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 297, four-page document, entitled Hedging and monetization strategies, marked for identification, as of this date.)

Page 188

Q. Sir, please take a minute and look at MS 297, which you have in front of you, and let me know when you are done. And I will tell you that I think the document is not in the proper order, although it is now stapled the way we received it.
A. (Pause.)
Okay.
Q. Have you seen this document or any portion of it before?
A. I don't remember it.
Q. Let's look at the last page. Actually, let's look at the third page first, which is Bates numbered CPH 2010678.
Are you there?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you send this fax cover sheet and three additional pages then to Mr. Dickes?
I mispronounced his name again, sorry.
A. The -- it was sent under my name, yes. I didn't do the actual sending.

Page 189

Q. Well -- okay.
Did you instruct someone to send it on your behalf?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you receive -- excuse me. Are the other pages -- or, strike that. Are the pages that were attached to the fax cover sheet the first two pages of MS 297 and the last page, which is a cover -- fax cover page it appears from Kate W. Cook, C-O-O-K.
A. What's the question?
Q. Did you send the three pages that are -- the balance of this exhibit, to Mr. Dickes?
A. I don't remember, I don't remember the document.
Q. Do you know Kate W. Cook?
A. Yes.
Q. The name appears on the fourth page.
A. Yes.
Q. Who is Ms. Cook?
A. She worked at the time for Bankers Trust.

Q. Did you -- had you spoken to her before she apparently faxed to you the first two pages of Exhibit MS 297?
A. I don't remember speaking to her.
I mean, I talk to her all the time about lots of different things, but I don't remember talking to her about this.
Q. When you say "about this", let me ask you specifically, did you discuss with Ms. Cook possible hedging and monetization strategies as set forth in the first two pages of Exhibit MS 297?
A. I think I indicated I don't remember doing so.
Q. Did you see this document in your deposition preparation?
A. No.
Q. Were you asked by anyone at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. to discuss with anyone outside of the company possible hedging strategies for the Sunbeam stock?
A. Not that I recall.

Q. Do you know where Ms. Kate W. Cook would have gotten the information that is set forth in the first two pages of MS 297, if not from you?
A. She could have talked to somebody else at MacAndrews & Forbes.
Q. Do you know if she did so?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know why she sent you MS 297, or at least three of the four pages?
A. No.
Q. Why did you -- did you send her fax to you to Mr. Dickes, as indicated on page 3 of MS 297?
A. It appears I did.
Q. Why did you do that?
A. Since I don't remember the document, I don't remember the conversation, I would have to speculate and I don't know.
Q. Well, recognizing that you can't recall, what would be the reason that you would send it to Mr. Dickes as opposed to somebody else, like Mr. Maher?

MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. Perhaps Mr. Dickes asked Kate Cook for information.
Q. Did you --
A. And she certainly had my telephone number so, I mean, I don't remember.
Q. Did Mr. Dickes ever discuss with you MS 297 after you faxed Ms. Kate Cook's attachments to Mr. Dickes?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. You can set that aside.
MR. BEMIS: Ms. Reporter, would you mark, as MS 298, a communication from Shearman & Sterling, dated April 23rd, 1998, to the MAFCO Finance Lenders, initial caps, from Maura E. O'Sullivan.
(Deposition Exhibit MS 98, communication from Shearman & Sterling, dated April 23rd, 1998, to the MAFCO Finance Lenders, from Maura E. O'Sullivan, marked for identification, as of this date.)
Q. Do you have MS 298 in front of you?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you -- please take a moment and look at it, and then tell me when you feel comfortable with a couple of questions.
And, obviously, you can look at it if I ask you anything real specific.
A. (Pause.)
Okay.
Q. My first question, sir, is, did you receive a copy of this, as is indicated on page 2 under the heading Distribution.
A. I don't remember the document.
Q. The Maura E. O'Sullivan, she is the attorney that we identified earlier who worked on the credit agreements and, in particular, the term sheet, I believe it was February 12th, of 1997. Do you recall her name?
A. She was a lawyer from Shearman & Sterling.
Q. And now, had you participated in any discussions with anyone up to April 23rd, 1998, about modifying the MAFCO Finance Credit Agreements and the MAFCO Guaranty, initial caps on those, to permit MAFCO and its subsidiaries to enter an equity hedge with regard to the Sunbeam capital stock?

A. I don't recall that.
Q. Do you know why --
A. Did it actually go into effect?
Q. That's one question I have for you. I mean, that's why we are here asking questions, and I will ask you that in a second.
Did you -- withdrawn. Was there a working group within MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. assigned to investigating the hedging of the Sunbeam stock?
A. I don't know, I think I have answered that.
Q. Mr. Savas, Paul G. Savas, S-A-V-A-S, what was his position at the time of this document, April 23rd, 1998?
A. I believe he was a vice president.
Q. What was his area of responsibility as a vice president?

A. I don't recall. He didn't work for me.
Q. Do you know who he did work for?
A. He worked for Mr. Woodland.
Q. Mr. Woodland appears below your name, Gregory J. Woodland.
MR. BEMIS: Just like it sounds.
Q. What was his position at MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. in 1998 as -- let's say as of April 23rd, 1998.
A. He was a vice president, I believe.
Q. And in what area?
A. I don't know the specific area. He didn't work for me.
Q. Who did he work for?
A. Mr. Engleman.
Q. And Mr. Engleman, at this time, April 23rd, 1998, he was the CFO of MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc.?
A. I think that's the timing, yes.
Q. And Mr. Dickes, as of April 23rd, 1998, what was his position, again?
A. He was an attorney.

Page 196

Q. At MacAndrews & Forbes?
A. Yes.
Q. And he reported to Mr. Schwartz then at this time?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. Okay. Now, turning to page 1 -- well, strike that. Did you have any meetings with any of the people on the distribution list within MacAndrews & Forbes about the proposed modification to the MAFCO Finance credit agreements?
A. I don't recall.
Q. Am I correct, sir, that the MAFCO credit -- excuse me. Am I correct -- withdrawn. Am I correct, sir, that the MAFCO Finance Credit Agreements, which are referred to on page 1 of MS 298, is a reference to the term credit agreement and the revolving credit agreement that we discussed earlier as MS 300 and 301?
MR. BRODY: Object to form.
A. I believe so. You lost me in some of the things, but I think it's the same.

Page 197

Q. And is the MAFCO Guaranty, initial caps, the guaranty that we discussed earlier as Exhibit 299?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you agree with me, sir, that -- strike that. Are the people who are listed below Distribution, on page 2, attorneys or bank representatives who -- let me withdraw the question and start over.
Are the banks that are identified in the list under Distribution, on page 2, are those banks that were lenders under the credit -- term credit agreement -- excuse me, or the revolving credit agreement?
A. The best of my recollection, yes.
Q. What was the -- strike that. Did you have any discussions with anyone, whether inside MAFCO or outside of MAFCO, concerning the proposed modifications Ms. Maura E. O'Sullivan sent on April 23rd, 1998? Assuming that all of them received it.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

A. I don't remember being involved in the hedging discussion.
Q. If you received MS 298, and I recognize that you don't remember receiving it, if you weren't involved in the hedging discussions, would you have directed this document, MS 298, to somebody else in the company and say, for example: I have this document, but I am not involved in this?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. No.
Q. What would you have done with the document?
Would you have ignored it?
A. If it wasn't meant for me, yes.
Q. Did you call Ms. O'Sullivan, just as an example, and say: Ms. O'Sullivan, why are you sending me this document? I don't have anything to do with this?
A. I think we have gone over the point. I don't remember receiving the document, so that if all the other things that you want to ask after that really isn't going to get any deeper into it. I mean, if I don't remember the document, I can't remember what I did with the document.

Q. Well, my question may not have been real clear to you, and I will try one more time, and then we will go on to something else.
If a lawyer from a law firm like Shearman & Sterling sent you something which is significant -- as significant as pledging or hedging -- excuse me, 14.1 million shares of Sunbeam stock, and you are not the intended recipient of the document, what steps would you ordinarily take in your business to see that the right person got the document?
A. Well, if you look at the distribution list, I am not the only person from MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings that got a copy of it. If I was the only person that had received a copy of it, then I would go to whoever else -- may go to Barry Schwartz and ask him: I received this, I don't know, what's it about. But there are other people that received it, so if they -- if they are familiar with what was going on, then there was nothing else that I could add to it.

Q. All right. You can set the document aside.
MR. BEMIS: Let me see 298.
MR. BRODY: That was 298.
MR. BEMIS: That was 298, I'm sorry.
Q. Did you have any discussions at any time with anyone associated with Morgan Stanley concerning the Sunbeam/ Coleman merger transaction?
A. Prior to March 30th, 1998?
Q. Well, that's a fair question. Let me ask it again, and we will break it out for you.
Let's do before the signing of the merger agreements, which was February 28th, 1998, did you have any discussions with anyone at Morgan Stanley about the merger transaction?
A. No, not that I can recall.
Q. Did you receive any documents from Morgan Stanley before that time about the merger transaction?

A. I don't remember if I was on the distribution list.
If I was on the distribution list, I am sure I got the copies of volumes of documents.
Q. What distribution list are you referring to?
A. You talked about the merger agreement.
Q. Right.
A. So it must have been -- that's what I am referring to, a distribution list for the merger agreement or any other documents from Morgan Stanley.
Q. I am not aware of any distribution list before possibly May of 1998 for the merger agreement where your name appears.
A. Okay.
Q. No, I am just saying, are you aware of any such document?
A. I am not aware of any document about the distribution list having a date.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020552

Page 202

All I am aware of is, you asked me if I received a copy. I said if I -- I don't know if I received a copy. If I did receive a copy, it was because I would have been on a distribution list.
Q. Did you look at any documents yesterday in your preparation that came from Morgan Stanley?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did you --
A. Well, the convert came from Morgan Stanley.
Q. The which now?
A. The convert.
Q. The convert?
A. The convertible debenture that was issued, the $2 billion.
Q. Oh, excuse me, the document that was marked as MS 166, is what you are referring to?
A. I don't know what it was.
Q. The zero coupons --
A. The ones that were issued in conjunction with the acquisition of the three companies on the same date.

Page 203

Q. That document's dated March 19th of 1998, and I was actually directing my questions now to before the signing of the merger agreements on February 27th -- let me just close out on this, and then we will go to the next one and, hopefully, we will be done.
Before March -- excuse me, before February 27th, 1998, did you have any communications of any kind with anyone from Morgan Stanley, be it writing, E-mail telephone, conference calls, face-to-face meetings, that you can recall that are in connection with what becomes the Coleman/Sunbeam merger?
A. No, not that I can recall.
Q. Okay. After February 28th, did you have any communications with anyone from Morgan Stanley? And, again, "communications" used in its broadest sense -- writings, E-mails, face-to-face meetings, telephone calls, conference calls -- on the subject matter of the Sunbeam/Coleman merger?
A. After March 30th, yes.

Page 204

Q. Okay. Fair enough.
What was -- who did you speak to after -- withdrawn. Who did you -- withdrawn. What communication did you have after March 30th, 1998 with anyone from Morgan Stanley?
A. There were bank meetings from June afterwards, from June of '98 on that included representatives from Morgan Stanley, First Union, and Bank of America. So I had repeated meetings, in person and telephone calls, with representatives of each institution, including -- I think his name is Mitch Petrick. There is a whole group of people from Morgan Stanley over the next year that I have -- that were assigned to the account. There was Bram Smith, there was Bill Reid, R-E-I-D, sorry, Bram is B-R-A-M. There was someone, his name was Michael Hart, H-A-R-T, I think, all involved in the restructuring of and workout on Sunbeam after the fraud came to light.
Q. Now, when you met with these people in connection with the bank meetings, this was in connection with the bank facility that Sunbeam closed in connection with the merger transaction borrowing, I think approximately $1.2 billion, if I recall correctly, from various -- the various banks you identified?

A. I think it was about 1.7 billion.
Q. Well, whatever the number is.
A. But it was in the conversations after the board of directors of Sunbeam had thrown out the senior managers of Sunbeam and asked if -- asked the MacAndrews people if they had any managers that they could use to manage Sunbeam in light of the problems with the financials.
Q. Did you -- so this would be after June 15th of 1998 when Mr. Dunlap was discharged?
A. It was after Mr. Dunlap had been discharged, and it was after the board of directors had asked the MacAndrews people to make available its -- some of its managers to help run the company because the company was in problems.

020553

Page 206

Q. Now, in all of these meetings that you had with the people that you have identified and associated with Morgan Stanley, did any of them make any statements to you that you considered to be evidence that Morgan Stanley had committed any fraud?
MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. I don't remember any of the Morgan Stanley people telling me that they committed fraud.
Q. Did they make any statements that would suggest to you in the course of -- well, strike that. Do you remember how much money Morgan Stanley Senior Funding loaned to Sunbeam in connection with the transaction?
A. I don't remember the exact amount.
Q. It was in excess of $650 million; wasn't it?
A. Approximately.
Q. Can you think of any reason why Morgan Stanley would want to participate in a fraud and loan $650 million to Sunbeam?

Page 207

MR. BRODY: Object to the form.
A. Can you restate the question?
Q. Can you think of any reason why Morgan Stanley wanted -- would have wanted to participate in a fraud so that it could loan Sunbeam over $650 million?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Should I answer?
MR. BRODY: If you can.
A. Perhaps they -- perhaps Morgan Stanley had more to gain by closing the transaction than losing by not closing, I don't know.
Q. So do you know anything that Morgan Stanley had to gain that was greater than the 650-plus million dollars that it lost in the bankruptcy proceeding of Sunbeam?
Let me rephrase the question.
A. I don't believe Morgan Stanley lost $650 million in the bankruptcy proceeding. I believe that the banks did exchange some of their debt for equity and still retained some amount of debt outstanding and they took over ownership of the company with the other banks. That's what I remember.

Q. Do you recall -- are you aware of, quote, anything Morgan Stanley could gain, closed quote, by loaning $650 million to Sunbeam in connection with this "fraud", as you have called it?
A. I wasn't the only person that -- I referred to it as a "problem". There were -- I think it's been referred to by many people as a "fraud".
Q. I thought you had used the word "fraud" earlier in an answer, perhaps I misunderstood you, but we will call it the "problem" at Sunbeam.
Can you think of anything that Morgan Stanley had to gain by -- at Sunbeam, by loaning $650 million if it had knowledge of the problems at Sunbeam?
MR. BRODY: Same objection.
THE WITNESS: Am I instructed to answer?
MR. BRODY: You can answer if

Page 209

you want -- if you can, I am not instructing you not to answer, I am just making my objection for the record.
A. Perhaps at the time, prior to closing, they were not aware of the extent of the problems and they made a decision to proceed.
Q. Earlier, in -- when you say "to proceed", you mean proceed with the closing of the transaction, the merger transaction, and the financing of it?
A. Yes.
Q. Earlier in the deposition, I asked you a question that your attorney instructed you not to answer. It was about your compensation, I believe.
MR. BEMIS: And you said you would consider it again. Have you had an opportunity to do so?
MR. BRODY: I have, and I am not changing my instruction.
MR. BEMIS: Okay.
I have nothing further for today, and I thank you very much for 020554

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

your courtesies, and perhaps we will see each other again under more pleasant circumstances.

MR. BRODY: I have just a few questions, and I would like to examine about Exhibit 166.

I am not sure if you have a copy of that anymore, Mr. Slotkin --

MR. BEMIS: We will get you a copy, if it's not there.

MR. BRODY: It's the Sunbeam zero coupon offering.

BY MR. BRODY:

Q. Now, you were asked some questions about page F 27 and, in particular, about the long-term debt number from year-end 1997 of approximately $980 million.

Do you remember those questions?

A. Correct.

Q. Up at the top, this document, page F 27, is referred to as a Consolidated balance sheet. Do you know what it's a consolidated balance sheet of?

A. For CLN Holdings and its

Page 211

subsidiaries.

Q. Do you understand what subsidiary was consolidated within this balance sheet for purposes of this document?

A. The 82-plus percent of Coleman that we owned.

Q. So the public company, The Coleman Company, was consolidated into this balance sheet for this reporting purpose; is that correct?

MR. BEMIS: Objection, leading, form.

Q. You can answer.

A. Yes.

THE WITNESS: I don't have anybody to tell me whether I can answer. (Laughing.)

A. Sorry.

Q. That's okay. Of that $980 million listed on the consolidated balance sheet, do you know how much of that was owed by Coleman? That is, the public company.

A. No.

Page 212

MR. BEMIS: Objection.

A. No.

Q. Do you know how much of that was owed by CLN Holdings Inc. or some other company in which Mr. Perelman had an ownership interest?

A. No, not the exact number.

Q. If I were to tell you, sir, that approximately $450 million of that 980 million was owed by Coleman, the public company, let's use that as a assumption for this question, is that 450 million money that CLN Holdings or any other MAFCO entity had to pay?

MR. BEMIS: Objection, form.

A. No.

Q. As to --

A. It's the obligation of the operating company.

Q. That is, the public company to Coleman.

A. Yes.

Q. If the public company, Coleman, did not pay that 450 million, would there be any corresponding obligation to a company owned by Mr. Perelman, such as MAFCO?

Page 213

MR. BEMIS: Objection, form, foundation.

A. No.

Q. Now, after the deal was done, and the merger that we have discussed today took place, and Coleman became an entity owned or controlled by Sunbeam or one of its subsidiaries, did that debt remain the obligation of Coleman Companies, the public company?

MR. BEMIS: Objection, form, foundation.

A. I am not sure I understand the question.

Q. Well, let me withdraw that, I will ask a different one.

Now, we have talked about the portion of the $980 million that was the responsibility of Coleman. I would now like to turn my attention to any portion of that debt that was the obligation of CLN Holdings.

Do you know if any of that debt

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020555 was the obli-- or what portion of that 980 million debt was the obligation of CLN Holdings?

A. No.
Q. Stating just for purposes of an assumption for this question, were we to assume that, let's say, 500 million or 525 million of that 980 million was debt issued by CLN Holdings Inc., do you know if that was debt that CLN Holdings or MAFCO had an obligation to pay?
A. The CLN Holdings had an obligation to pay, not MAFCO.
Q. All right. If CLN Holdings did not pay that debt, that 500, 525 million, would that obligation become an obligation of some other MacAndrews & Forbes entity?
A. No. The -- that obligation was collateralized solely by the shares of Coleman that were pledged to it, and if there was a deficit then there was no recourse to any MAFCO entity.
Q. Okay. When you say the debt was "collateralized by the shares", what do you mean by that?

A. The debt -- the shares were pledged to the holders of the debt for the debt and that was what the holders were looking to for repayment, solely.
Q. And if the shares were of insufficient value to satisfy the debt, did MAFCO have an obligation to make up the difference?
A. No.
Q. Is there a term in the finance field that is used to refer to that type of debt?
A. Either "non-recource" or "stand-alone debt".
MR. BRODY: Thank you, I have no further questions.
BY MR. BEMIS:
Q. Sir, turn to page F 39 of the same document, which is footnote 9 to the financial statements for CLN Holdings Inc. for the period ending December 31, 1997.
A. Yes.
Q. The long-term debt there, under footnote 9, is the same -- is a breakdown by the auditors and of the long-term debt of $980,447,000; right?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Please read any one of those footnotes, A through -- A through G, that includes or -- includes Coleman Company, Inc. public debt -- or not, excuse me.
A. I'm sorry?
Q. Poor question. Please look at footnotes 9 A through -- 9 A through G, and tell me where there is any footnote where the auditors have identified any Coleman Company, Inc. debt, as you have termed it, to be included in the $980,447,000 of long-term debt of CLN Holdings Inc.
A. So you are trying to identify the debt of the public company? Is that --
Q. You have got it, that's what I want you to find it for me.
A. (Pause.)
D is a revolving credit facility which -- and, also, the term loan.
And offhand, I can't -- oh. A is the private placement of $200 million in senior notes. I believe that's the -- (pause) -- I think A, B, and C are all private placements.

Q. Of Coleman Company notes?
A. I think so.
I think it's with the insurance companies.
Q. And is it your position that --
A. Must be, because it's un-- the first A and B, A is 200 million, B is $85 million -- and the C is also unsecured, 75, so those must have all been at the public company, Coleman.
Q. Were any of those obligations guarantied by any -- again, A, B, or C, as you have identified, guarantied by any MAFCO entity?
A. No.
Q. Any other provisions in the footnotes of Coleman debt? And, again, The Coleman Company, Inc. is what we are talking about.
A. I'm sorry, what's the question?
Q. Are there any other of the

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020556

footnotes in footnote 9 -- let me rephrase the question.

Are there any other paragraphs of footnote 9 that refer to The Coleman Company, Inc. debt as part of the $980 million of CLN Holdings' long-term debt.

A. No, but that would be 350, 400 -- about 460, if I counted correctly, at least on December 31st of 1997.

Q. And you are adding up, then, the debt in the Summary column that appears on page F 39?

A. Right, the 200 million, the 85 million, the 75 million, the 52 million, and the 64 million.

Q. Any other of the -- any other debt that is The Coleman Company, Inc. debt?

A. No -- I don't know what "other" is.

MR. BEMIS: All right. That's it, that's all I have. Thank you very much.

MR. BRODY: I just have a follow-up on that last point, sir.

I'm sorry to not let you put it away.

BY MR. BRODY:

Q. If you turn to page F 39 in footnotes A, B, C, and D, it describes the debt as debt of the company; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And if I ask you to turn to page F 31 of the same document, do you see how the term "company" is defined?

A. As The Coleman Company, Inc., period.

Q. That being the public company?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So, do you agree that on page F 39, items A through D, as you previously testified, are the obligations of The Coleman Company?

A. Yes.

MR. BRODY: Then I have nothing.

MR. BEMIS: That's all we have. Thank you very much, have a nice day.

OFFERING MEMORANDUM STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL

$2,014,000,000

Sunbeam.

ZERO COUPON CONVERTIBLE SENIOR SUBORDINATED DEBENTURES DUE 2018

The Debentures are convertible at any time after 90 days following the latest date of original issuance thereof and prior to maturity, unless previously redeemed or otherwise purchased, into shares of the Company's common stock, $0.01 par value (the "Common Stock"), at a conversion rate of 6.575 shares per $1,000 principal amount at maturity. The conversion rate will not be adjusted for accrued Original Issue Discount (as defined), but will be subject to adjustment in certain events. See "Description of Debentures—Conversion of Debentures." The Company's Common Stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol "SOC." The reported last sale price of the Company's Common Stock as reported on the New York Stock Exchange Composite Tape on March 19, 1998 was $45⅝ per share.

The Debentures are being issued at an original price of $372.43 per $1,000 principal amount at maturity (the "Issue Price"), which represents an original issue discount of 62.757% from the principal amount thereof payable at maturity (the "Original Issue Discount"). The Issue Price represents a yield to maturity of 5.0% per annum (computed on a semi-annual bond equivalent basis).

Prior to March 25, 2003, the Debentures are not redeemable at the option of the Company. On or after such date, the Debentures are redeemable on at least 30 days' notice at the option of the Company, in whole or in part at any time, at redemption prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company."

The Debentures may be purchased by the Company, at the option of the holder, as of March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013 for purchase prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to such dates. Subject to certain conditions, the Company may elect to pay any such purchase price in cash or Common Stock, or any combination thereof. See "Description of Debentures—Purchase of Debentures at the Option of the Holder." The Debentures may also be redeemed at the option of the holder if there is a Fundamental Change (as defined) at redemption prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption, subject to adjustment in certain circumstances as described herein. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change." The Debentures will be subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future Senior Indebtedness (as defined) of the Company and effectively subordinated in right of payment to all indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company's subsidiaries. At December 28, 1997, on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Acquisitions (as defined), the Bank Financing (as defined), the offering of the Debentures and the application of the net proceeds therefrom, approximately $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness would have been outstanding and the total indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company's subsidiaries would have been approximately $731 million.

The Debentures are eligible for trading in Private Offerings, Resales and Trading through Automated Linkages ("PORTAL") Market.

SEE "RISK FACTORS" BEGINNING ON PAGE 12 FOR A DISCUSSION OF CERTAIN FACTORS THAT SHOULD BE CONSIDERED BY PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS.

THE DEBENTURES AND THE COMMON STOCK ISSUABLE UPON CONVERSION OF THE DEBENTURES HAVE NOT BEEN REGISTERED UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED (THE "SECURITIES ACT"), AND MAY NOT BE OFFERED OR SOLD EXCEPT PURSUANT TO AN EXEMPTION FROM, OR IN A TRANSACTION NOT SUBJECT TO, THE REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS OF THE SECURITIES ACT. ACCORDINGLY, THE DEBENTURES MAY BE OFFERED AND SOLD ONLY TO (i) "QUALIFIED INSTITUTIONAL BUYERS" (AS DEFINED IN RULE 144A UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT) IN COMPLIANCE WITH RULE 144A AND (ii) A LIMITED NUMBER OF OTHER INSTITUTIONAL "ACCREDITED INVESTORS" (AS DEFINED IN RULE 501(A)(1), (2), (3) OR (7) UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT) THAT, PRIOR TO THEIR PURCHASE OF THE DEBENTURES, DELIVER TO THE INITIAL PURCHASER A LETTER CONTAINING CERTAIN REPRESENTATIONS AND AGREEMENTS. FOR A DESCRIPTION OF CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS ON RESALE OR TRANSFER, SEE "TRANSFER RESTRICTIONS."

PRICE 37.243% AND ACCRUED ORIGINAL ISSUE DISCOUNT, IF ANY

The Company has granted Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated (the "Initial Purchaser") an option to purchase up to an additional $302,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity of Debentures to cover over-allotments, if any. See "Plan of Distribution."

The Debentures are offered, subject to prior sale, when, as and if accepted by the Initial Purchaser and subject to approval of certain legal matters by Davis Polk & Wardwell, counsel for the Initial Purchaser. It is expected that delivery of the Debentures will be made on or about March 25, 1998 at the office of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, New York, N.Y., against payment therefor in immediately available funds.

THIS OFFERING MEMORANDUM DOES NOT CONSTITUTE AN OFFER TO SELL, OR A SOLICITATION OF AN OFFER TO BUY, ANY OF THE SECURITIES OFFERED HEREBY BY ANY PERSON IN ANY JURISDICTION IN WHICH IT IS UNLAWFUL FOR SUCH PERSON TO MAKE SUCH AN OFFERING OR SOLICITATION. NEITHER THE DELIVERY OF THIS OFFERING MEMORANDUM NOR ANY SALE MADE HEREUNDER OF THE SECURITIES DESCRIBED HEREIN SHALL UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES IMPLY THAT THE INFORMATION HEREIN IS CORRECT AS OF ANY DATE SUBSEQUENT TO THE DATE HEREOF.

This Offering Memorandum is highly confidential and has been prepared by the Company solely for use in connection with the proposed private placement of the Debentures described herein. The Company and the Initial Purchaser reserve the right to reject any offer to purchase Debentures, in whole or in part, for any reason and to sell less than the principal amount at maturity of the Debentures offered hereby. This Offering Memorandum is personal to each offeree and does not constitute an offer to any other person or to the public generally to subscribe for or otherwise acquire the Debentures or the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures. Distribution of this Offering Memorandum to any person other than the offeree and those persons, if any, retained to advise such offeree with respect thereto is unauthorized, and any disclosure of any of its contents without the prior written consent of the Company is prohibited. Offerees represent that they are basing their investment decision solely on this Offering Memorandum and their own examination of the Company and the terms of the offering. Each prospective purchaser, by accepting delivery of this Offering Memorandum, agrees to the foregoing and, if the offeree does not purchase Debentures or this offering is terminated, to return this Offering Memorandum and all documents delivered herewith to: Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, 1585 Broadway, New York, New York, 10036, Attention: Syndicate Department.

Each person receiving this Offering Memorandum acknowledges that (i) such person has been afforded an opportunity to request from the Company and to review all additional information considered by it to be necessary to verify the accuracy of or to supplement the information herein, (ii) it has not relied on the Initial Purchaser or any person affiliated with the Initial Purchaser in connection with its investigation of the accuracy of such information or its investment decision and (iii) no person has been authorized to give any information or to make any representation concerning the Company or the Debentures or the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures offered hereby other than as contained or incorporated by reference herein and information given by duly authorized officers and employees of the Company in connection with investors' examination of the Company and the terms of the offering, and, if given or made, such other information or representation should not be relied upon as having been authorized by the Company or the Initial Purchaser.

No representation or warranty, express or implied, is made as to the accuracy or completeness of the information contained or incorporated by reference herein, and nothing contained in this Offering Memorandum, or incorporated by reference herein, is, or shall be relied upon as, a promise or representation. The Initial Purchaser assumes no responsibility for the accuracy or completeness of such information.

IN MAKING AN INVESTMENT DECISION, INVESTORS MUST RELY ON THEIR OWN EXAMINATION OF THE COMPANY AND THE TERMS OF THE OFFERING, INCLUDING THE MERITS AND RISKS INVOLVED. THESE SECURITIES HAVE NOT BEEN RECOMMENDED BY THE SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION OR ANY STATE SECURITIES COMMISSION. FURTHERMORE, THE FOREGOING AUTHORITIES HAVE NOT PASSED UPON THE ACCURACY OR ADEQUACY OF THIS DOCUMENT. ANY REPRESENTATION TO THE CONTRARY IS A CRIMINAL OFFENSE.

CERTAIN PERSONS PARTICIPATING IN THIS OFFERING MAY ENGAGE IN TRANSACTIONS THAT STABILIZE, MAINTAIN OR OTHERWISE AFFECT THE PRICE OF THE DEBENTURES AND COMMON STOCK OF THE COMPANY. SPECIFICALLY, THE INITIAL PURCHASER MAY OVERALLOT IN CONNECTION WITH THE OFFERING AND MAY BID FOR AND PURCHASE DEBENTURES AND SHARES OF COMMON STOCK IN THE OPEN MARKET. INCORPORATION OF CERTAIN DOCUMENTS BY REFERENCE

The following document has been filed by the Company with the Commission (File No. 1-52) pursuant to the Exchange Act and is incorporated herein by reference: the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended December 28, 1997. All documents filed by the Company pursuant to Sections 13(a), 13(c), 14 or 15(d) of the Exchange Act subsequent to the date of this Offering Memorandum but prior to the termination of the offering to which this Offering Memorandum relates shall be deemed to be incorporated by reference in this Offering Memorandum and to be part hereof from the date of filing of such documents. Any statement contained in a document incorporated by reference herein shall be deemed to be modified or superseded for purposes of this Offering Memorandum to the extent that a statement contained herein or in any other subsequently filed document which also is or is deemed to be incorporated by reference herein modifies or supersedes such statement. Any such statement so modified or superseded shall not be deemed, except as modified or superseded, to constitute a part of this Offering Memorandum. The Company will provide without charge to each person, including any beneficial owner, to whom this Offering Memorandum is delivered, upon written or oral request of such person, a copy of any and all of the documents that have been or may be incorporated by reference herein (other than exhibits to such documents unless such exhibits are specifically incorporated by reference into such documents). Requests for such documents should be directed to Rich Goudis, at the principal executive offices of the Company in writing at Sunbeam Corporation, 1615 South Congress Avenue, Suite 200, Delray Beach, Florida 33445 or by telephone at (561) 243-2100.

FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Offering Memorandum, including the documents incorporated by reference herein, contains forward-looking statements that involve risks and uncertainties. The statements contained in this Offering Memorandum or incorporated by reference herein that are not purely historical are forward-looking statements within the meaning of Section 27A of the Securities Act and Section 21E of the Exchange Act, including without limitation statements regarding the expectations, beliefs, intentions, plans or strategies of the Company, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, or their directors or officers regarding the future. All forward-looking statements included in this document or incorporated by reference herein are based on information available to the Company on the date hereof or thereof, and the Company assumes no obligation to update any such forward-looking statements. Prospective investors are cautioned that any such forward looking statements are not guarantees of future performance and involve risks and uncertainties and that actual results may differ materially from those anticipated in these forward-looking statements as a result of various factors. The information included in this Offering Memorandum, including without limitation the information set forth under the headings "Risk Factors," "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" and "Business" identifies important factors that could cause such differences.

Except as otherwise indicated, (i) all references to the "Company" or "Sunbeam Corporation" refer to Sunbeam Corporation and its subsidiaries, unless the context otherwise requires, and (ii) all information in this Offering Memorandum assumes that the Initial Purchaser's over-allotment option will not be exercised.

SUMMARY

The following information does not purport to be complete and is qualified in its entirety by the more detailed financial and other information appearing elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum and in the documents incorporated by reference herein. The offering of the Debentures is referred to herein as the "Offering." For a discussion of certain important factors that should be considered by prospective purchasers of the Debentures, see "Risk Factors" beginning on page 12.

THE COMPANY

The Company is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Company's primary business is the manufacture, marketing and distribution of durable household consumer products through mass merchandisers, home centers and other channels (such as Wal-Mart, Kmart and Home Depot) in the United States and internationally. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions. Sunbeam products enjoy a long-standing reputation for quality, and a majority of the Company's sales are from products which hold the number one or two market share in their respective product categories. In 1997, the Company's net sales were approximately $1,168 million.

The Company's five product categories are: (1) Appliances (mixers, blenders, food steamers, bread makers, rice cookers, coffee makers, toasters, irons and garment steamers); (2) Health at Home (vaporizers, humidifiers, air cleaners, water filters, massagers and scales); (3) Personal Care and Comfort (shower massagers, hair clippers and trimmers, electric warming blankets); (4) Outdoor Cooking (electric, gas and charcoal grills and grill accessories); and (5) Away From Home (clippers and related products for professional beauty, barber and veterinarian trade and sales of products to commercial and institutional channels). The International Group is responsible for sales (primarily of small appliances, personal care, grills and comfort products, professional clippers and related products) in all countries other than the United States.

The Company has a management team with extensive consumer products experience and proven expertise in cost containment and operational improvement. On February 20, 1998, each of the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mr. Dunlap; the Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, Mr. Kersh; and the Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, Mr. Fannin, signed new three year employment contracts with the Company which include substantial equity-based compensation.

Competitive Strengths

Sunbeam competes in markets with well-established United States and foreign companies on the basis of various strengths, depending on the country, product category and distribution channels. The Company believes that it is well-positioned to pursue continued growth as a result of these competitive strengths, which include the following:

Market Leadership. The majority of Sunbeam sales are from products in which the Company holds the number one or two market share position. The Company believes that this combination of leading brand-name products and breadth of product offerings makes Sunbeam an attractive vendor to all retailers, particularly those who are consolidating their suppliers.

Brand Name Recognition. The Sunbeam® and Oster® brands have been household names for generations. The Company believes that these brands, along with its other well-known secondary brand names such as Mixmaster®, Osterizer® and Grillmaster®, draw customers into retail stores specifically to purchase products bearing these brand names. During 1997, the Company spent over $56 million, or approximately 5% of its 1997 net sales, for advertising and sales promotion to support brand recognition.

Distribution Network. The Company has one of the premier mass merchant distribution networks serving large national retailers in the United States. The Company also has a strong network of well-established distributors and service organizations in Latin America. The Company supports its customers' needs with strong warehousing and distribution capabilities, a broad, high-quality product portfolio, electronic data interchange and just-in-time product delivery capabilities. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogues, Company-owned outlet stores and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and military post exchange outlets.

Strong Position in Consolidating Retail Environment. The consolidation trend in the retail industry has resulted in the emergence and global expansion of large mass merchandisers. These merchandisers demand financially strong, efficient suppliers who offer a broad range of innovative, quality products, have the ability to make timely shipments in large volumes and provide strong customer, promotional and merchandising support. The Company continues to benefit from this trend and believes it has the opportunity to further expand distribution with a number of major retailers while increasing its penetration of existing accounts. In 1997, the Company sold products to virtually all of the top 100 U.S. retailers, including Wal-Mart, Price Costco, Kmart, Target Stores, Home Depot and Sears.

Restructuring and Growth Plan

In the fall of 1996, Sunbeam announced a major restructuring and growth plan under newly appointed Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Albert Dunlap. The restructuring, which was recently completed, included the redefinition of Sunbeam's core products, divestiture of non-core businesses, assembling a new management team, and the closing of 18 factories, 43 warehouses and 5 headquarters offices. The Company also consolidated all purchasing functions, reduced the number of stock keeping units ("SKU's") from approximately 11,400 to 2,000 and outsourced certain of the administrative, manufacturing and distribution activities. These actions led to a reduction of nearly half the work force (approximately 6,000 jobs). In 1997, net sales grew 18.7% and operating margin improved to 17.1% from 0.5% (excluding the impact of special charges) in 1996, with operating margins reaching 20% in the fourth quarter of 1997.

The Acquisitions

Following the successful restructuring of the Company, the management team has extended its strategic focus to identify underperforming companies with strong brand names. The Company intends to capitalize on its proven capability in cost containment and operational improvement by acquiring such companies and their premier brand names, thereby broadening the Sunbeam product offering spectrum and presenting opportunities to eliminate redundant or inefficient operations.

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced that it had entered into separate agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert (collectively, the "Acquisitions"). The Company is acquiring these companies primarily due to their strong and established brand names, the potential opportunity to streamline operations, the diversification they provide to the Company's product base and the potential for revenue and operational synergies. In addition, the Company believes that its existing international geographic marketing and distribution strengths and those of the acquired companies will significantly complement each other. The Company's management team believes that these Acquisitions will give the Company a platform from which to capitalize on the fragmentation and potential consolidation of the durable household consumer products sector.

Coleman. With 1997 net revenues of approximately $1,154 million, Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Its products have been sold domestically and internationally under the Coleman brand name since the 1920s. Coleman attributes its leading market position to the strength of its brand name, the breadth of products sold, product quality and innovation, marketing, distribution and manufacturing expertise.

- Outdoor Recreation: This product category includes lanterns and stoves, propane and butane fuel, coolers and jugs, recreational soft goods (including tents, sleeping bags, backpacks and duffle bags), outdoor furniture, electric lights, spas and camping accessories. Coleman believes it is the leading worldwide manufacturer of lanterns and stoves for outdoor recreational use and a leading supplier to the worldwide camping and outdoor recreation market of propane and butane cartridges and camping fuel. Coleman's products are marketed under the brand names Coleman®, Camping Gaz® and East Pak®.
- Hardware: This product category includes portable generators and air compressors marketed under the Powermate® brand name. Coleman is a leading worldwide manufacturer and distributor of portable generators. These products are distributed predominantly through mass merchandisers and home center chains.

Based on the assumption that all presently exercisable Coleman options will be exercised prior to the closing of the Coleman acquisition, the Company expects to issue and deliver approximately 21.3 million shares of Common Stock (with an aggregate value of approximately $1 billion based on current market prices) and to pay an aggregate of $221 million in cash in connection with the Coleman acquisition. On such basis, the Coleman acquisition is valued at approximately $2.2 billion (including the assumption of approximately $976 million of indebtedness). If none of the presently exercisable Coleman options are exercised prior to closing of the Coleman acquisition, the Company would expect to issue and deliver approximately 19.4 million shares of Common Stock and pay aggregate cash consideration of $261 million in connection with the Coleman acquisition.

Signature Brands. With net sales of approximately $276 million for its fiscal year ended September 28, 1997, Signature Brands is a leading manufacturer of a comprehensive line of consumer and professional products. Signature Brands attributes its leading market position to its strong brand name recognition, distribution in major domestic high volume retail outlets, marketing and sales promotion efforts, electronic data interchange capabilities, merchandise flow systems and established relationships with its retail customers.

- Consumer Products: Signature Brands markets its consumer products under the Mr. Coffee®, Health o meter®, Counselor® and Borg® brand names. Signature Brands produces and markets an extensive line of Mr. Coffee® brand automatic drip coffeemakers, espresso/cappuccino makers and iced and hot teamakers. Mr. Coffee, Inc. has been the leading producer of automatic drip coffeemakers in the U.S. since 1975. In addition, Mr. Coffee® is the leading brand of basket-type coffee filters in the United States. Other consumer products marketed under the Mr. Coffee® brand name include water filtration products, coffeemaker related accessories such as replacement decanters and mug warmers, and other kitchen countertop appliances such as food dehydrators. In addition, Signature Brands manufactures a comprehensive line of Health o meter® brand analog (mechanical) and digital (electronic) floor scales and waist-high and eye-level scales. Capitalizing on the recently acquired rights to the Borg® and Counselor® brand names, Signature Brands intends to introduce in 1998 a new line of Borg® scales that are distinctly European in design for department and specialty stores. Counselor® scales, to be introduced in 1998, will represent opening price point scales for the mass market.
- Professional Products: Professional products include the Pelouze® and Health o meter® brands of office, foodservice and medical scales and Mr. Coffee® brand commercial coffeemakers. Products sold as professional products include analog and digital scales for a full range of medical uses, including traditional balance beam scales, pediatric scales, wheelchair ramp scales, chair and sling scales for non-ambulatory patients, and home healthcare scales. Signature Brands' office products, marketed under the Pelouze® brand name, include analog and digital scales designed to provide mailing solutions for small, commercial establishments, home offices and departments within larger companies that process a small to medium volume of letters and packages daily. Pelouze® foodservice products include analog and digital portion control scales, thermometers and timers for commercial and non-commercial applications.

The Signature Brands transaction is valued at approximately $253 million, consisting of approximately $84 million in cash and the assumption of approximately $169 million of indebtedness.

First Alert. With 1997 net sales of approximately $187 million, First Alert is the market leader in smoke and carbon monoxide detectors in the United States. First Alert's market position is supported by the strength of the First Alert® brand name, which First Alert believes is the most widely recognized consumer brand in the home safety market. First Alert has capitalized on the First Alert® brand name and its leading smoke detector market share to develop and market a broad range of residential safety products.

- Smoke Detectors: First Alert's smoke detector product line consists of UL listed photoelectric and ionization smoke detectors. First Alert has the leading U.S. market share for these products. First Alert markets its smoke detectors under three principal brand names: the First Alert® premium brand name, which is featured in media and public relations promotional campaigns; the Family Gard® brand name, which is marketed as a lower priced, functional alternative for those consumers who are price sensitive; and the BRK® brand name, which is sold to the wholesale electrical market.
- Carbon Monoxide Detectors: These products include carbon monoxide detectors, first introduced by First Alert in September 1993, with biomimetic sensors sold under the First Alert® and Family Gard® brand names. First Alert holds the leading market position in the carbon monoxide detector market.
- Fire Extinguishers: First Alert's disposable fire extinguisher product line was introduced in 1985 to complement its First Alert® brand smoke detectors. First Alert currently markets a full range of fire extinguisher products for use by the consumer, including fire extinguishers for use in the kitchen, garage, workshop, automobiles and boats. These products are sold under the Sure Grip® brand name which is one of the leading brand names in the U.S. retail fire extinguisher market.

The First Alert transaction is valued at approximately $178 million, consisting of approximately $133 million in cash and the assumption of approximately $45 million of indebtedness.

Although the Company has entered into separate definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, subject to various customary closing conditions, including the receipt of required regulatory approvals, there can be no assurance that any or all of such transactions will be consummated.

For further information with respect to the effects of the Acquisitions, see "Capitalization," "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Financial Statements" and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations—Liquidity and Capital Resources."

Financing Plan

In order to finance the cash portion of the Acquisitions and the repayment of all or substantially all of the outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, the Company intends to negotiate a new bank credit facility (the "New Credit Facility") and to issue the Debentures offered hereby. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed." For a summary description of the expected terms of the New Credit Facility, see "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

The Company intends to repay all or substantially all of the currently outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert as promptly as practicable following consummation of each Acquisition, subject to applicable notice provisions and other prepayment terms of the applicable indebtedness. Such repayments are expected to be funded with borrowings under the New Credit Facility and from the net proceeds of the Offering of the Debentures. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed," "Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

The following table sets forth the expected sources and uses of cash in connection with the financing of the Acquisitions:

Sources		Uses
	(In millions)
New Credit Facility(a)	$1,294.3	Repayment of existing indebtedness(b)	$1,504.3
Debentures offered hereby	750.1	Cash Acquisition consideration(c)	477.6
		Fees and expenses(d)	62.5
Total	$2,044.4	Total	$2,044.4

(a) The New Credit Facility is expected to consist of a $1.5 billion term debt facility, and a $500 million revolving credit facility. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

(b) Represents the repayment of existing indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Signature Brands and First Alert of $202.2 million, $1,077.2 million, $179.9 million and $45.0 million, respectively. Existing indebtedness reflects amounts outstanding as of December 28, 1997, except for indebtedness of CLN Holdings issued at an original issue discount which reflects principal accreted through an assumed repayment date of May 15, 1998. The foregoing amounts include $7.0 million, $100.3 million and $5.5 million of estimated prepayment premiums related to the early retirement of indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings and Signature Brands, respectively. As of the actual date of repayment, the outstanding amount of existing indebtedness to be repaid is likely to be greater than the amount shown above due to increased borrowings to finance working capital requirements. The Company intends to refinance any such additional indebtedness using its unused borrowing capacity under the New Credit Facility. In particular, as of March 16, 1998 the outstanding indebtedness of the Company and CLN Holdings had increased by approximately $100 million and $60 million, respectively. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

(c) Represents the estimated net cash consideration payable (including the cash-out of options) in connection with the Acquisitions in the amounts of $261.1 million, $83.8 million and $132.8 million for Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, respectively.

(d) Represents estimated transaction costs in connection with the Acquisitions and debt refinancing, including financial advisory fees, Initial Purchaser's commissions, bank fees, and legal and accounting fees and expenses.

Recent Announcement

On March 19, 1998 the Company issued a press release in which it stated that it is possible that its net sales for the first quarter of 1998 may be lower than the range of Wall Street analysts' estimates of $285 million to $295 million, but that net sales are expected to exceed 1997 first quarter net sales of $253.4 million. The Company stressed that sales of its products at retail remains very strong. The shortfall from analysts' estimates, if any, would be due to changes in inventory management and order patterns at certain of the Company's major retail customers. The Company further stated that based on the strength of its new product offerings and powerful brand names, it remains highly confident about the overall sales outlook for its products for the entire year.

Actual results could differ materially from the statements in the press release due to various factors including those set forth in "Risk Factors," "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" and "Business." See "Forward-Looking Information."

(b) Gives pro forma effect to (i) the Acquisitions, (ii) the Bank Financing, (iii) the Offering and (iv) the use of net proceeds from the Offering and the Bank Financing as described under "Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds" (collectively, the "Pro Forma Transactions"), as if they had occurred on December 30, 1996.

(c) Reflects the adoption of SFAS No. 128, Earnings Per Share. See Note 1 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum.

(d) In computing the ratio of earnings to fixed charges: (a) earnings represent income from continuing operations before income taxes and fixed charges (exclusive of interest capitalized); and (b) fixed charges consist of interest expense, capitalized interest and the estimated interest portion of rental expense. For the fiscal year ended December 29, 1996, earnings were insufficient to cover fixed charges by $285.6 million.

(e) Gives pro forma effect to the Pro Forma Transactions as if they had occurred as of December 28, 1997.

THE OFFERING

Securities Offered	$2,014,000,000 principal amount at maturity (plus up to an additional $302,100,000 principal amount at maturity if the Initial Purchaser's over-allotment option is exercised in full) of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Debentures"). There will be no periodic interest payments on the Debentures. See "Description of Debentures—General."
Yield to Maturity of Debentures	5.0% per annum (computed on a semi-annual bond equivalent basis) calculated from March 25, 1998.
Conversion	The Debentures are convertible, at the option of the holder, at any time after 90 days following the latest date of original issuance thereof and prior to maturity, unless previously redeemed or otherwise purchased by the Company, into Common Stock at the rate of 6.575 shares per $1,000 principal amount at maturity of the Debentures (the "Conversion Rate"). The Conversion Rate will not be adjusted for accrued Original Issue Discount (as defined), but will be subject to adjustment upon the occurrence of certain events. Upon conversion, the holder will not receive any cash payment representing accrued Original Issue Discount; such accrued Original Issue Discount will be deemed paid by the Common Stock received upon conversion. See "Description of Debentures—Conversion of Debentures."
Subordination	The Debentures will be subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future Senior Indebtedness (as defined) of the Company and effectively subordinated in right of payment to all indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company's subsidiaries. The Debentures will rank pari passu with liabilities owed to trade creditors of the Company. At December 28, 1997, on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing, the Offering and the application of the net proceeds therefrom, approximately $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness would have been outstanding and the Company's subsidiaries would have had approximately $731 million of indebtedness and other liabilities outstanding (excluding intercompany liabilities and liabilities of a type not required to be reflected on a balance sheet in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles) to which the Debentures would have been effectively subordinated. See "Description of Debentures—Subordination of Debentures."
Original Issue Discount	The Debentures are being issued at an Original Issue Discount for Federal income tax purposes equal to the excess of the stated redemption price at maturity of the Debentures (which is expected to be the principal amount at maturity) over the amount of their issue price (which is expected to be the Issue Price). Prospective purchasers of Debentures should be aware that, although there will be no periodic payments of interest on the Debentures, accrued Original Issue Discount will be included periodically in a holder's gross income for Federal income tax purposes prior to conversion, redemption, other disposition or maturity of such holder's Debentures, whether or not such Debentures are ultimately converted, redeemed, sold (to the Company or otherwise) or paid at maturity. See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations."

Sinking Fund	None.
Redemption	The Debentures will not be redeemable by the Company prior to March 25, 2003. On or after such date, the Debentures will be redeemable for cash on at least 30 days' notice, at the option of the Company, in whole at any time or in part from time to time, at redemption prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company."
Fundamental Change	The Debentures may be redeemed for cash at the option of the holder if there is a Fundamental Change (as defined) at a price equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the date of redemption, subject to adjustment in certain circumstances. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change."
Purchase at the Option of the Holder	The Company will purchase Debentures at the option of the holder as of March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013, at purchase prices equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to such dates. The Company may, at its option, elect to pay any such purchase price in cash or Common Stock, or any combination thereof. See "Description of Debentures—Purchase of Debentures at the Option of the Holder."
Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds	The net proceeds from the Offering, together with the Bank Financing, will be used to finance the Acquisitions and related transactions. "See Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds."
Registration Rights	The Company will, for the benefit of the holders, file with the Commission as soon as practicable, but in any event within 90 days after the first date of original issuance of the Debentures, a shelf registration statement (the "Shelf Registration Statement") covering resales of the Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures (the "Registrable Securities"). The Company will use its best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to become effective as promptly as is practicable, but in any event within 180 days after such first date of original issuance, and to keep the Shelf Registration Statement effective until the earlier of (i) the sale pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement of all the securities registered thereunder and (ii) the expiration of the holding period applicable to such securities held by non-affiliates of the Company under Rule 144(k) of the Securities Act, or any successor provision, subject to certain permitted exceptions. See "Registration Rights."
Transfer Restrictions	The Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act and are subject to restrictions on transfer. See "Transfer Restrictions."

RISK FACTORS

An investment in the Debentures offered hereby involves a high degree of risk. Prospective investors should carefully consider the following risk factors, in addition to the other information set forth in this Offering Memorandum, in connection with an investment in the Debentures offered hereby.

Substantial Leverage; Ability to Service Indebtedness. Following the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing and the Offering, the Company will be highly leveraged, with indebtedness that is very substantial in relation to its shareholders' equity. After giving pro forma effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing and the Offering, as of December 28, 1997, the Company's aggregate outstanding indebtedness would have been $2,044 million and the Company's shareholders' equity would have been $1,278 million. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will permit the Company to incur or guarantee additional indebtedness, subject to certain limitations. The Indenture does not restrict the ability of the Company to incur additional Indebtedness. See "Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Financial Statements," "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations—Liquidity and Capital Resources," "The Acquisitions," "Description of Other Indebtedness" and "Description of Debentures."

The Company's high degree of leverage could have important consequences to holders of the Debentures, including but not limited to the following: (i) the Company's ability to obtain additional financing for working capital, capital expenditures, acquisitions or general corporate purposes may be impaired in the future; (ii) a substantial portion of the Company's cash flow from operations must be dedicated to the payment of principal and interest on its indebtedness, thereby reducing the funds available to the Company for its operations and other purposes; (iii) the Company may be substantially more leveraged than certain of its competitors, which may place the Company at a competitive disadvantage; (iv) the Company may be hindered in its ability to adjust rapidly to changing market conditions; and (v) the Company's substantial degree of leverage could make it more vulnerable in the event of a downturn in general economic conditions or its business.

The Company's ability to repay or to refinance its obligations with respect to its indebtedness will depend on its future financial and operating performance, which, in turn, will be subject to prevailing economic and competitive conditions and to financial, business and other factors, many of which are beyond the Company's control. These factors could include operating difficulties, increased operating costs, product pricing pressures, the response of competitors, and delays in implementing strategic projects. The Company's ability to meet its debt service and other obligations will depend in significant part on the extent to which the Company can implement its business strategy and successfully integrate the Acquisitions. There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to implement its strategy fully, that the anticipated results of its strategy will be realized or that the Acquisitions will be successfully integrated.

If the Company's cash flow and capital resources are insufficient to fund its debt service obligations, the Company may be forced to reduce or delay capital expenditures, sell assets, or seek to obtain additional equity capital, or to refinance or restructure its debt. There can be no assurance that the Company's cash flow and capital resources will be sufficient for payment of principal of, and premium, if any, and interest on, its indebtedness in the future, or that any such alternative measures would be successful or would permit the Company to meet its scheduled debt service obligations. In addition, because the Company's obligations under the New Credit Facility will bear interest at floating rates, an increase in interest rates could adversely affect, among other things, the Company's ability to meet its debt service obligations.

Holding Company Structure; Subordination. The Debentures will be exclusively the obligations of Sunbeam Corporation and not of any of its subsidiaries. The Company is a holding company that conducts substantially all of its operations through its subsidiaries. As a holding company, the Company holds no significant assets other than its investments in and advances to its subsidiaries. The Company is, therefore, dependent upon its receipt of sufficient funds from its subsidiaries to meet its own obligations, including its obligation to pay the accreted value of the Debentures upon maturity or earlier redemption or repurchase. The ability of the Company's subsidiaries to pay dividends or to make other payments or advances to the Company will depend on the operating results of its subsidiaries and any restrictions on paying such dividends or making such payments as may be applicable to such subsidiaries, including those expected to be contained in the New Credit Facility.

020572

The Debentures will be unsecured and subordinated in right of payment to all existing and future Senior Indebtedness of the Sunbeam Corporation. As a result of such subordination, in the event of bankruptcy, liquidation or reorganization of the Company and in certain other events, the assets of the Company will be available to pay its obligations with respect to the Debentures only after all Senior Indebtedness has been paid in full, and there may not be sufficient assets remaining to pay amounts due on any or all of the Debentures then outstanding. The Debentures will be expressly subordinated to borrowings under the New Credit Facility and will be also effectively subordinated to all existing and future indebtedness and other liabilities and commitments of the Company's subsidiaries. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will permit the Company to incur or guarantee additional indebtedness, subject to certain limitations. The Indenture does not prohibit or limit the incurrence of Senior Indebtedness by the Company or the incurrence of other indebtedness and other liabilities by the Company or its subsidiaries, and the incurrence of additional indebtedness and other liabilities by the Company or its subsidiaries could adversely affect the Company's ability to pay its obligations with respect to the Debentures. After giving pro forma effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing and the Offering, as of December 28, 1997 the Company would have had $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness outstanding, and as of the same date the Company's subsidiaries would have had approximately $731 million of indebtedness and other liabilities outstanding (excluding intercompany liabilities and liabilities of a type not required to be reflected on a balance sheet in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles) to which the Debentures would have been effectively subordinated. The Company anticipates that from time to time it will incur indebtedness, including Senior Indebtedness, and that it and its subsidiaries will from time to time incur other additional indebtedness and liabilities. See "Description of Debentures—Subordination of Debentures."

The Company expects that borrowings under the New Credit Facility will be, and the Company's and its subsidiaries' future indebtedness may be, secured by liens and other security interests over the assets of the Company's subsidiaries and the Company's equity interests in the Company's subsidiaries. Moreover, the Company expects the New Credit Facility will be guaranteed by each of the Company's wholly-owned U.S. subsidiaries and that such subsidiary guarantees will be secured as described above. The ability of the Company, and therefore the holders of the Debentures to benefit from distributions of assets of the Company's subsidiaries may be limited to the extent that the outstanding shares of any of its subsidiaries and such subsidiary's assets are pledged to secure other debt of the Company or its subsidiaries. Any right of the Company to receive assets of any subsidiary upon such subsidiary's liquidation or reorganization will be structurally subordinated to the claims of that subsidiary's creditors.

Risks Associated with Acquisitions. The Company faces significant risks associated with the recently announced acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert. The Company must, among other things, return these companies to profitable operations; realize synergies from combining these companies with the Company's current operations; integrate the products manufactured by these companies into its existing product lines; consolidate duplicate facilities, systems and personnel; improve the operating efficiencies of such companies; develop new products; and shorten the product development cycle of the acquired companies. This process will require substantial attention from the Company's management team. The diversion of the attention of management from the day-to-day operations of the Company or difficulties encountered in the integration process could have an adverse effect on the Company's business, financial condition and results of operations, which effect could be material. In addition, consummation of the Acquisitions will result in a substantial increase in the size of the Company's operations placing challenges on the Company to effectively use its employees, management, operational and financial resources to manage the expanded operations of the Company. Failure to use such resources effectively could have a material adverse effect on the Company. Other potential risks of the Acquisitions include the presence of unknown liabilities and the possibility of the incurrence of significant charges associated with write-downs of the recorded values of assets acquired or restructurings of the acquired companies. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the Company will realize the desired benefits of these acquisitions.

Although the Company has entered into separate definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, subject to various customary closing conditions, there can be no assurance that any or all of such transactions will be consummated.

New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed. The Company has been advised by an affiliate of the Initial Purchaser that, subject to customary qualifications, it is highly confident that under current market and economic conditions the New Credit Facility can be successfully syndicated to financial institutions, and the Company is currently discussing the terms of the New Credit Facility with prospective lenders. While the Company is confident that it will be able to obtain the New Credit Facility on a timely basis to complete the Acquisitions, the Company has no commitments yet from lenders to provide the New Credit Facility. The offering of the Debentures is not conditioned upon the availability of the New Credit Facility and the Acquisitions are not conditioned on the availability of adequate financing. If the Company were unable to secure the New Credit Facility on a timely basis, the Company would be required to secure alternative financing sources to fund the Acquisitions or to delay the closing of the Acquisitions until funds became available.

NOT CERTIFIED COPY

Risks of International Operations and Expansion. The Company currently manufactures some products and has sales in countries such as Mexico and Venezuela whose economies have been unstable or hyperinflationary in recent years. The economies of other foreign countries important to the Company's expansion plans, including other countries in Latin America and Asia, could suffer similar instability in the future. Such factors as currency devaluation, new tariffs, changes in monetary policies, inflation, governmental instability and similar matters could negatively affect the Company's operations in foreign markets. Although the Company plans to take advantage of recent economic and currency fluctuations in certain Asian countries by increasing the Company's purchase of products from such countries at a lower price, there is no guarantee that such purchasing advantage will be fulfilled or will fully overcome any lost sales opportunities in those same countries. As a result, the economic conditions discussed above or any of these circumstances could have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

The Company's goal is to substantially increase the amount of business conducted by it outside North America. If the Company fails to achieve anticipated market penetration in areas of the world into which the Company currently expects to expand its sales, such event is likely to have an adverse effect on the Company's future financial performance, which effect could be material. Expansion of the Company's sales in foreign markets depends upon many factors, including economic conditions in foreign countries, the strength of consumer demand in those countries for products which the Company sells (or expects to sell in those markets), the strength of competition from other global consumer product companies and other factors which may negatively affect the Company's anticipated performance in those markets. Although the recent financial instability in Asia has not currently had any material impact on the Company, if such conditions continue and/or worsen they could negatively impact the Company's ability to achieve anticipated sales growth in such countries, the effect of which could be material to the Company's future financial performance.

Risks Associated with New Product Development. The Company's plans to increase its revenues depend on its ability to develop new and innovative products. The Company anticipates that it will be able to rapidly develop and introduce a substantial number of new and innovative products in the future. However, the Company may prove unable to meet its aggressive schedules for future product development. Failure to develop and manufacture new products that achieve market acceptance in the amounts and with the quality required by its customers would likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

Dependence on Key Personnel. The Company depends heavily on the services of its senior management, including Albert J. Dunlap, the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Russell A. Kersh, the Company's Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer; David C. Fannin, the Company's Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, and Donald R. Uzzi, the Company's Executive Vice President, Consumer Products Worldwide. The loss of any member of the Company's senior management, including Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh, Mr. Fannin or Mr. Uzzi, could have an adverse effect on the Company, which effect could be material. On February 20, 1998, each of Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin signed new three year employment contracts with the Company which include substantial equity-based compensation.

Economic Conditions. The Company's performance should be expected to be affected by the strength of the retail economy, primarily in the United States, but also in Canada, Latin America and Asia and, subsequent to the consummation of the acquisition of Coleman, Europe. Weakness in consumer confidence and retail outlets (including the financial weakness or bankruptcy of retail outlets, especially mass merchants) should be expected to adversely impact the Company's future financial results. In addition, the extended credit terms provided by the Company in connection with its "early buy" program increase the Company's risk of collection of related accounts receivable.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020574

Competition. The Company operates in a highly competitive environment with numerous domestic and foreign competitors which are financially strong and capable of competing effectively with the Company in the marketplace. Such competitors may take actions to meet the Company's new product introductions and other initiatives. Some competitors may be willing to accept lower margins and to reduce prices to compete with the Company. As a result, the Company could fail to achieve anticipated sales increases, to realize anticipated price increases, or otherwise fail to meet its anticipated goals. Any of such circumstances would likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material. The Company's future success will depend to a significant extent upon its ability to remain competitive in the areas of price, quality, marketing, product development, manufacturing, distribution and order processing. There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to compete effectively in all such areas in the future.

The Company anticipates realizing price increases from time to time for certain of its products. The Company operates in a highly competitive industry, and its ability to realize price increases may be limited due to competitive pressures. If there is a material failure to realize anticipated price increases, margins likely will be lower than anticipated by the Company, and this will likely have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

The Company's profitability may be negatively impacted by under-absorption of manufacturing costs resulting from underutilization of manufacturing capacity if the Company's sales growth is less than anticipated.

No Long Term Contracts with Customers. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, warehouse clubs, department stores, home centers and hardware stores. Due to the consolidation of the U.S. retail industry, the Company's customer base is relatively concentrated with its largest customer Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. accounting for 21%, and its five largest customers accounting for 36%, of 1997 net sales. The Company's customers, including all of its large retail customers, place orders for products on an as-needed basis and have no long term supply contracts with the Company. As a result, the Company relies on its ability to obtain a continuing flow of new orders from its large, high-volume retailing customers. While the Company has positioned itself to respond to the challenges of its markets by pursuing strategic relationships with large high-volume merchandisers, there can be no assurance that the Company will continue to be able to successfully meet the needs of its customers.

Raw Material Costs. A significant portion of the cost of goods manufactured by the Company in North America is the cost of raw materials and/or components. The Company has implemented changes in its purchasing function which have enabled the Company to purchase materials more efficiently and economically than it has in the past. The future success of the Company's purchasing initiatives may be affected by many factors beyond the Company's control, such as commodity pricing generally and higher prices for the specific materials required by the Company. Although there are numerous suppliers available for the materials and components sourced by the Company, any unanticipated change in suppliers could be disruptive and costly to the Company. In addition, the Company's future initiatives to reduce the cost of materials simply may not achieve savings in amounts comparable to those previously obtained by the Company. A significant failure by the Company to maintain material costs as anticipated would likely have an adverse effect on anticipated future financial performance, which effect could be material.

Dependence on Third-Party Suppliers and Service Providers. The Company currently manufactures approximately 70% of its products. One of the Company's goals for 1998 is to source approximately 50% of the Company's parts and/or products from third parties. The Company's ability to realize sales and operating profits at anticipated levels is dependent upon its ability to timely manufacture, source and deliver products which may be sold for a profit. Labor difficulties, delays in delivery or pricing of raw materials and/or sourced products, scheduling and transportation difficulties, management dislocation and delays in development and manufacture of new products can negatively affect operating profits. Although the Company will use its best efforts to select suppliers for sourced products which are reliable and dependable, the Company's planned increase in the percentage of sourced products will decrease the Company's immediate control of products and, if such suppliers fail to deliver products as anticipated, could have an adverse effect on future financial performance, which effect could be material.

The Company has entered into various arrangements with third parties for the provision of back-office administrative services previously provided with internal resources, including provision of all necessary computer systems. Failure of any of these third-party service providers to perform in accordance with their respective agreements with the Company could result in disruptions of the Company's normal business operations with a consequent impact on sales, collections, cash flow and/or profitability.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

020575

Seasonality. Sales of certain of the Company's products can be negatively impacted by unseasonable weather conditions during different seasons and quarters of the year. For instance, the Company's sales of warming blankets were negatively impacted in the fourth quarter of 1997 by moderate temperatures in the northern states. The Company has attempted to levelize production, marketing and other activities related to seasonal products by implementing an "early buy" program; such a program shifts certain of the weather related risks of negative sales impact for such seasonal products to later months of the season and, as result, could have a negative impact on future financial performance.

Litigation. As a consumer goods distributor, the Company's results of operations can be negatively impacted by product liability lawsuits, product recall actions and/or by higher than anticipated rates of warranty returns or other returns of goods. Certain of the product lines to be acquired in the Acquisitions may increase the Company's potential exposure to litigation.

Limitations on Repurchases and Redemptions of Debentures. On March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013 (each, a "Purchase Date"), the Company will become obligated to purchase, at the option of the holder thereof, outstanding Debentures, subject to certain conditions. In addition, upon a Fundamental Change, each holder of the Debentures will have the right, at the holder's option, to require the Company to redeem all or a portion of such holder's Debentures. There can be no assurance that the Company will have sufficient funds to pay the repurchase price on any Purchase Date (in which case, the Company could be required to issue shares of Common Stock to pay the repurchase price at valuations based on then prevailing market prices) or, in the event of a Fundamental Change, the redemption price for all the Debentures tendered by the holders thereof. The New Credit Facility is expected to contain, and future agreements relating to other indebtedness (including Senior Indebtedness) to which the Company becomes a party may contain, restrictions or prohibitions on the repurchase or redemption of the Debentures. It is also expected that the New Credit Facility will prohibit the purchase of the Debentures by the Company in the event of a Fundamental Change, unless and until such time as the indebtedness under the New Credit Facility is paid in full. In addition, it is expected that the New Credit Facility will prohibit the Company's right to purchase Debentures on a Purchase Date for cash, but will not prohibit the purchase of Debentures with Common Stock. If a Purchase Date occurs at a time when the Company is prohibited from repurchasing the Debentures for cash or the Company is prohibited from redeeming the Debentures after the occurrence of a Fundamental Change, the Company could seek the consent of its then existing lenders to repurchase or redeem the Debentures or could attempt to refinance the borrowings that contain such prohibition. If the Company does not obtain such a consent or repay such borrowings, the Company would remain prohibited from repurchasing the Debentures for cash or redeeming the Debentures. In such case, the Company's failure to repurchase or redeem Debentures required to be repurchased or redeemed under the terms of the Indenture would constitute an Event of Default under the Indenture and would likely constitute a default under the New Credit Facility and may also constitute a default under any other indebtedness of the Company outstanding at such time. In addition, it is expected that the occurrence of a Fundamental Change would constitute a default under the New Credit Facility and might constitute a default under other future indebtedness of the Company. In such circumstances, the subordination provisions in the Indenture would likely prohibit or restrict payments to the holders of Debentures. The inability to repay the indebtedness under the New Credit Facility, if accelerated, would have a material adverse effect on the Company and the holders of the Debentures. The term "Fundamental Change" is limited to certain specified transactions and does not include all events that could adversely affect the Company's financial condition or operating results. The requirement that the Company offer to redeem the Debentures upon a Fundamental Change will not necessarily protect holders of the Debentures in the event of a highly leveraged transaction, reorganization, merger or similar transaction involving the Company. See "Description of Debentures—Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change."

Proposed Tax Legislation. On February 2, 1998, the Clinton Administration announced a legislative proposal (the "Administration Proposal") that would generally defer interest deductions for original issue discount on convertible debt, such as the Debentures, until such interest is paid in cash or other property. Payment would not include the conversion of such debt into equity of the issuer or the payment of an amount which is determined by reference to the value of the Common Stock. The Administration Proposal would be effective for convertible debt issued on or after the date of "first committee action." If enacted in its current form and if "first committee action" is taken with respect to the Administration Proposal on or before the date on which the Debentures are issued, such legislation would apply to the Debentures and the original issue discount accruing in respect of the Debentures would not be deductible by the Company for federal income tax purposes. Nevertheless, it is not possible to predict when or if the Administration Proposal will be enacted, or, if enacted, what form it may take. The federal income tax treatment of holders of Debentures would not be affected by the Administration Proposal if enacted in its current form.

NOT A FILED COPY

Certain Tax Consequences to the Company. Section 279 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code") limits the deductibility of interest paid or incurred with respect to certain convertible debt incurred to finance the acquisition of stock of another corporation if such debt constitutes "corporate acquisition indebtedness." It is possible that the Internal Revenue Service could take the position that, as a result of the Acquisitions, the Debentures should be treated as "corporate acquisition indebtedness," which position, if sustained, could limit the Company's ability to deduct all or a portion of the original issue discount on the Debentures. Although the issue is not free from doubt, the Company believes that section 279 of the Code should not limit the Company's ability to deduct original issue discount.

Absence of a Public Market. Prior to the Offering, there has been no trading market for the Debentures. Although the Initial Purchaser has advised the Company that it currently intends to make a market in the Debentures, it is not obligated to do so and may discontinue such market making at any time without notice. In addition, such market making activity will be subject to the limits imposed by the Securities Act and the Exchange Act. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that any market for the Debentures will develop or, if one does develop, that it will be maintained. If an active market for the Debentures fails to develop or be sustained, the trading price of the Debentures could be adversely affected.

The Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act and, unless and until so registered, may not be offered or sold except pursuant to an exemption from, or in a transaction not subject to, registration under the Securities Act and applicable state securities laws. See "Registration Rights," "Plan of Distribution" and "Transfer Restrictions."

Initial Ratings Risks. The Company believes it is likely that one or more rating agencies may rate the Debentures. There can be no assurance that any such agency or agencies will rate the Debentures or, if they do, what rating or ratings they will assign to the Debentures. If one or more rating agencies assign the Debentures a rating lower than generally expected by investors, such event would likely have an adverse effect on the market price of the Debentures.

Restrictions on Ability to Pay Dividends. The New Credit Facility is expected to restrict the payment of dividends unless certain financial ratios are achieved. In addition, the Company may in the future issue additional indebtedness which contains similar restrictions.

In addition to the limitations imposed on the payment of dividends by the New Credit Facility and any future agreements governing indebtedness of the Company, under Delaware law the Company is permitted to pay dividends on its capital stock only out of its surplus or, in the event that it has no surplus, out of its net profits for the year in which a dividend is declared or for the immediately preceding fiscal year. Surplus is defined as the excess of a company's total assets over the sum of its total liabilities plus the par value of its outstanding capital stock. In order to pay dividends in cash, the Company must have surplus or net profits equal to the full amount of cash dividend at the time such dividend is declared. In determining the Company's ability to pay dividends, Delaware law permits the board of directors of the Company to revalue the Company's assets and liabilities from time to time to their fair market values in order to create surplus. The Company cannot predict what the value of its assets or the amount of its liabilities will be in the future and, accordingly, there can be no assurance that the Company will be able to pay cash dividends on the Common Stock.

THE ACQUISITIONS

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced the signing of separate definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert. The three transactions are subject to customary conditions, including the receipt of required regulatory approvals, and are expected to close early this spring of 1998.

The Company is acquiring these companies primarily due to their strong and established brand names, the potential opportunity to streamline operations, the diversification they provide to the Company's product base and the potential for revenue and operational synergies. In addition, the Company believes that its existing international geographic marketing and distribution strengths and those of the acquired companies will significantly complement each other. The Company's management team believes that these Acquisitions give the Company a platform from which to capitalize on the fragmentation and potential consolidation of the durable household consumer products sector.

Coleman

With 1997 net revenues of approximately $1,154 million, Coleman is a leading manufacturer and marketer of consumer products for the worldwide outdoor recreation market. Its products have been sold domestically and internationally under the Coleman brand name since the 1920s. Coleman attributes its leading market position to the strength of its brand name, and breadth of products sold, product quality and innovation, marketing, distribution and manufacturing expertise.

- Outdoor Recreation: This product category includes lanterns and stoves, propane and butane fuel, coolers and jugs, recreational soft goods (including tents, sleeping bags, backpacks and duffle bags), outdoor furniture, electric lights, spas and camping accessories. Coleman believes it is the leading worldwide manufacturer of lanterns and stoves for outdoor recreational use and is a leading supplier to the worldwide camping and outdoor recreation market of propane and butane cartridges and camping fuel. Coleman's products are marketed under the brand names Coleman®, Camping Gaz® and East Pak®.

- Hardware: Following the divestiture of the safety and security products business anticipated in March 1998, this product category will include portable generators and air compressors marketed under the Powermate® brand name. Coleman is a leading worldwide manufacturer and distributor of portable generators. These products are distributed predominantly through mass merchandisers and home center chains.

The following table summarizes Coleman's net revenues for the year ended December 31, 1997 by product category and geographic area (in millions):

Signature Brands

With net sales of approximately $276 million for its fiscal year ended September 28, 1997, Signature Brands is a leading manufacturer of a comprehensive line of consumer and professional products. Signature Brands attributes its leading market position to its strong brand name recognition, distribution in major domestic high volume retail outlets, marketing and sales promotion efforts, electronic data interchange capabilities, merchandise flow systems and established relationships with its retail customers. Signature Brands, founded in 1919, is one of the oldest and largest domestic manufacturers of scales for home and medical use.

- Consumer Products: Signature Brands markets its consumer products under the Mr. Coffee®, Health o meter®, Counselor® and Borg® brand names. Signature Brands produces and markets an extensive line of Mr. Coffee® brand automatic drip coffeemakers, espresso/cappuccino makers and iced and hot teamakers. Sales of automatic drip coffeemakers accounted for approximately 43% of Signature Brands' net revenues in 1997. Mr. Coffee, Inc. has been the leading producer of automatic drip coffeemakers in the U.S. since 1975. Mr. Coffee® is the leading brand of basket-type coffee filters in the United States. Other consumer products marketed under the Mr. Coffee® brand name include water filtration products, coffeemaker related accessories such as replacement decanters and mug warmers, and other kitchen countertop appliances such as food dehydrators. Under the Health o meter® brand name, Signature Brands manufactures a comprehensive line of analog (mechanical) and digital (electronic) floor scales and waist-high and eye-level scales, and offers a range of health and wellness therapeutic products. Capitalizing on the recently acquired rights to the Borg® and Counselor® brand names, Signature Brands intends to introduce in 1998 a new line of Borg® scales that are distinctly European in design for department and specialty stores. Counselor® scales, to be introduced in 1998, will represent opening price point scales for the mass market. Sales of consumer scales accounted for approximately 19% of Signature Brands' net sales in fiscal 1997. Signature Brands offers its consumer products through a combination of direct sales and independent manufacturers' representatives to distributors and major retail outlets, including mass merchants, national hardware chains, drugstore chains, catalogue showrooms, warehouse clubs, retail grocery chains, specialty stores, department stores and various mail-order companies.

- Professional Products: Professional products include the Pelouze® and Health o meter® brands of office, foodservice and medical scales and Mr. Coffee® brand commercial coffeemakers. Signature Brands' reputation for quality and its Health o meter® brand name recognition have been based on its participation in the medical scale market for over 75 years. Products sold as professional products include analog and digital scales for a full range of medical uses, including traditional balance beam scales, pediatric scales, wheelchair ramp scales, chair and sling scales for non-ambulatory patients, and home healthcare scales. Signature Brands' office products, marketed under the Pelouze® brand name, include analog and digital scales designed to provide mailing solutions for small, commercial establishments, home offices and departments within larger companies that process a small to medium volume of letters and packages daily. Pelouze® foodservice products include analog and digital portion control scales, thermometers and timers for commercial and non-commercial applications. Professional scale products are marketed through a combination of direct sales and independent manufacturers' representatives to distributors, dealers, office megastores, mail order companies and major buying groups.

The following table summarizes Signature Brands' net sales for its fiscal year ended September 28, 1997 by product category (in millions):

First Alert

With 1997 net sales of approximately $187 million, First Alert is the market leader in smoke and carbon monoxide detectors in the United States. First Alert's market position is supported by the strength of the First Alert® brand name, which First Alert believes is the most widely recognized consumer brand in the home safety market. First Alert has capitalized on the First Alert® brand name and its leading smoke detector market share to develop and market a broad range of residential safety products. First Alert is also one of the leading participants in the United States retail fire extinguisher market. The markets for residential smoke and carbon monoxide detectors outside the United States are in a much earlier stage of development than the United States. First Alert's market penetration is greatest in the United Kingdom and Canada. First Alert sells its products to mass merchants, home center and hardware chains, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, and electrical wholesale distributors. First Alert also supplies its products to its wholly-owned, non-U.S. subsidiaries and to independent foreign distributors.

- Smoke Detectors: First Alert's smoke detector product line consists of UL listed photoelectric and ionization smoke detectors. First Alert has the leading U.S. market share for their products. First Alert markets its smoke detectors under three principal brand names: the First Alert® premium brand name which is featured in media and public relations promotional campaigns; the Family Gard® brand name, which is marketed as a lower priced, functional alternative for those consumers who are price sensitive; and the BRK® brand name which is sold into the wholesale electrical market.

- Carbon Monoxide Detectors: These products include carbon monoxide detectors, first introduced by First Alert in 1993, with biomimetic sensors sold under the First Alert® and Family Gard® brand names. First Alert holds the leading market position in the carbon monoxide detector market.

- Fire Extinguishers: First Alert's disposable fire extinguisher product line was introduced in 1985 to complement its First Alert® brand smoke detectors. First Alert currently markets a full range of fire extinguisher products for use by the consumer, including fire extinguishers for use in the kitchen, garage, workshop, automobiles and boats. These products are sold under the Sure Grip® brand name which is one of the leading brand names in the U.S. retail fire extinguisher market.

Acquisition Structures and Agreements

The Acquisitions will be accounted for by the Company using the purchase method of accounting.

Coleman. Pursuant to an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Holdings Merger Agreement"), among the Company, Laser Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company ("LAC"), Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation ("Parent Holdings"), and CLN Holdings Inc., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Parent Holdings ("CLN Holdings"), LAC will be merged with and into CLN Holdings (the "Holdings Merger"). CLN Holdings is an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of Mafco Holdings, Inc., a corporation wholly owned by Ronald O. Perelman ("Mafco"), and is the indirect beneficial owner of 44,067,520 shares of common stock of Coleman, representing approximately 82.4% of the total number of outstanding shares of common stock of Coleman.

In the Holdings Merger, all of the outstanding shares of capital stock of CLN Holdings will be converted into the right to receive (i) 14,099,749 fully paid and nonassessable shares of Common Stock of the Company and (ii) $159,956,756 in cash, without interest thereon. As a result of the Holdings Merger, CLN Holdings will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company and the Company will become the indirect owner of 82.4% of the outstanding common stock of Coleman.

At the same time that it entered into the Holdings Merger Agreement, the Company also entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 27, 1998 (the "Coleman Merger Agreement"), with Coleman and Camper Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company ("CAC"). Pursuant to the Coleman Merger Agreement, following the consummation of the Holdings Merger, CAC will be merged with and into Coleman (the "Coleman Merger"), with Coleman continuing as the surviving corporation. In the Coleman Merger, each outstanding share of Coleman common stock (other than shares held indirectly by the Company and dissenting shares, if any) will be converted into the right to receive (i) 0.5677 of a share of Common Stock of the Company and (ii) $6.44 in cash, without interest thereon. Upon consummation of the Coleman Merger, Coleman will become an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of the Company.

Consummation of the Holdings Merger is subject to the expiration of the applicable waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended (the "HSR Act"), and the satisfaction of certain other customary conditions. It is currently anticipated that the Holdings Merger will be completed in early this spring of 1998. Consummation of the Coleman Merger is subject to the completion of the Holdings Merger and the preparation and filing of definitive documents with the Commission. It is anticipated that the Coleman Merger will be consummated this spring of 1998. Parent Holdings (the direct holder of all outstanding stock of CLN Holdings) and Coleman Worldwide Corporation (the direct holder of 82.4% of the outstanding common stock of Coleman) have approved the Holdings Merger and the Coleman Merger, respectively, and no other stockholder approvals will be required in connection therewith.

Based on the assumption that all presently exercisable Coleman options will be exercised prior to the closing of the Coleman acquisition, the Company expects to issue (and deliver from its treasury) approximately 21.3 million shares of Common Stock (with an aggregate value of approximately $1 billion based on current market prices) and to pay an aggregate of $221 million in cash in connection with the Coleman acquisition. On such basis, the Coleman acquisition is valued at approximately $2.2 billion (including the assumption of approximately $976 million of indebtedness). If none of the presently exercisable Coleman options are exercised prior to closing of the Coleman acquisition, the Company would expect to issue and deliver approximately 19.4 million shares of Common Stock and pay aggregate cash consideration of $261 million in connection with the Coleman acquisition.

Signature Brands. Pursuant to the Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 28, 1998 (the "Signature Brands Merger Agreement"), among the Company, Java Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company ("Java Acquisition"), and Signature Brands, Java Acquisition commenced a tender offer (the "Signature Brands Tender Offer") on March 6, 1998 to acquire all of the outstanding shares of common stock of Signature Brands (the "Signature Brands Common Stock") for $8.25 per share in cash. Java Acquisition's obligation to purchase shares of Signature Brands Common Stock is subject to there being validly tendered and not withdrawn prior to the expiration of the Signature Brands Tender Offer that number of shares which when added to any shares owned by the Company or Java Acquisition represents at least 51% of the outstanding shares of Signature Brands Common Stock (assuming exercise of all outstanding options and warrants) on the date shares are accepted for payment. In addition, Java Acquisition's obligation to purchase shares of Signature Brands Common Stock is conditioned upon the expiration or termination of the applicable waiting period under the HSR Act prior to the expiration of the Signature Brands Tender Offer and certain other customary conditions.

Pursuant to the Signature Brands Merger Agreement, following the expiration of the Signature Brands Tender Offer, which is initially scheduled to expire at midnight on April 2, 1998, unless extended, and any necessary Signature Brands stockholder approval and provided that Java Acquisition has purchased shares of Signature Brands Common Stock in the Signature Brands Tender Offer and certain other customary conditions are met, Java Acquisition will be merged with and into Signature Brands (the "Signature Brands Merger"), with Signature Brands as the surviving corporation. As a result of the Signature Brands Merger, Signature Brands will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company and each outstanding share of Signature Brands Common Stock, which is not owned by Signature Brands or any of its subsidiaries or the Company or any of its subsidiaries, other than shares with respect to which dissenter's rights have been exercised and perfected, will be converted into the right to receive $8.25 in cash.

Timing of consummation of the Signature Brands Merger is dependent, among other things, upon whether the Signature Brands Tender Offer is extended beyond its initial expiration date and whether, depending on the number of shares tendered and accepted for payment, Signature Brands stockholder approval of the Signature Brands Merger will be required. It is anticipated, however, that the Signature Brands Merger will be consummated early this spring of 1998.

First Alert. Pursuant to an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of February 28, 1998 (the "First Alert Merger Agreement"), among the Company, Sentinel Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and an indirect wholly owned subsidiary of the Company ("Sentinel Acquisition"), and First Alert, Sentinel Acquisition commenced a tender offer (the "First Alert Tender Offer") on March 6, 1998 to acquire all of the outstanding shares of common stock of First Alert (the "First Alert Common Stock"), for $5.25 per share in cash.

Sentinel Acquisition's obligation to purchase shares of First Alert Common Stock is subject to there being validly tendered and not withdrawn prior to the expiration of the First Alert Tender Offer that number of shares which when added to any shares owned by the Company or Sentinal Acquisition represents at least a majority of the outstanding shares of First Alert Common Stock (assuming exercise of all outstanding options) on the date shares are accepted for payment. In addition, Sentinel Acquisition's obligation to purchase shares of First Alert Common Stock is conditioned upon the expiration or termination of the applicable waiting period under the HSR Act prior to the expiration of the First Alert Tender Offer and certain other customary conditions.

Pursuant to the First Alert Merger Agreement, following the expiration of the First Alert Tender Offer, which is initially scheduled to expire at midnight on April 2, 1998, unless extended, and any necessary First Alert stockholder approval, and provided that Sentinel Acquisition has purchased shares of First Alert Common Stock in the First Alert Tender Offer and certain other customary conditions are met, Sentinel Acquisition will be merged with and into First Alert (the "First Alert Merger"), with First Alert as the surviving corporation. As a result of the First Alert Merger, First Alert will become a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company and each outstanding share of First Alert Common Stock, which is not owned by First Alert or any of its subsidiaries or the Company or any of its subsidiaries, or other than shares with respect to which dissenter's rights have been exercised and perfected, will be converted into the right to receive $5.25 in cash.

Timing of consummation of the First Alert Merger is dependent, among other things, upon whether the First Alert Tender Offer is extended beyond its initial expiration date and whether, depending on the number of shares tendered and accepted for payment, First Alert stockholder approval will be required, which would require the preparation and filing of definitive documents with the Commission. It is anticipated, however, that the First Alert Merger will be consummated early this spring of 1998.

Although the Company has entered into separate definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, subject to various customary closing conditions, there can be no assurance that any or all of such transactions will be consummated.

FINANCING PLAN AND USE OF PROCEEDS

The net proceeds from the Offering are expected to be $726.6 million ($835.7 million if the Initial Purchaser's overallotment option is exercised in full), after deducting discounts and commissions and expenses related to the sale of the Debentures. The net proceeds from the Offering, together with the Bank Financing, will be used to finance the Acquisitions and related transactions.

The Company intends to repay all or substantially all of the currently outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert as promptly as practicable following consummation of each Acquisition, subject to applicable notice provisions and other prepayment terms of the applicable indebtedness. Such repayments are expected to be funded with borrowings under the New Credit Facility and from the net proceeds of the Offering. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

The following table sets forth the expected sources and uses of cash in connection with the financing of the Acquisitions:

Sources		Uses
	(in millions)
New Credit Facility(a)	$1,294.3	Repayment of existing indebtedness(b)	$1,504.3
Debentures offered hereby	750.1	Cash Acquisition consideration(c)	477.6
		Fees and expenses(d)	62.5
Total	$2,044.4	Total	$2,044.4

(a) The New Credit Facility is expected to consist of a $1.5 billion term debt facility and a $500 million revolving credit facility. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

(b) Represents the repayment of existing indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Signature Brands, and First Alert in the amount of $202.2 million, $1,077.2 million, $179.9 million and $45.0 million, respectively. Existing indebtedness reflects amounts outstanding as of December 28, 1997, except for indebtedness of CLN Holdings issued at an original issue discount which reflects principal accreted through an assumed repayment date of May 15, 1998. The foregoing amounts include $7.0 million, $100.3 million and $5.5 million of estimated prepayment premiums related to the early retirement of indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings and Signature Brands, respectively. As of the actual date of repayment, the outstanding amount of existing indebtedness to be repaid is likely to be greater than the amount shown above due to increased borrowings to finance working capital requirements. The Company intends to refinance any such additional indebtedness using its unused borrowing capacity under the New Credit Facility. In particular, as of March 16, 1998 the outstanding indebtedness of the Company and CLN Holdings had increased by approximately $100 million and $60 million, respectively. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

(c) Represents the estimated net cash consideration payable (including the cash-out of options) in connection with the Acquisitions in the amounts of $261.1 million, $83.8 million and $132.7 million for Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert, respectively.

(d) Represents estimated transaction costs in connection with the Acquisitions and debt refinancing, including financial advisory fees, Initial Purchaser's commissions, bank fees, and legal and accounting fees and expenses.

For a description of the expected terms of the New Credit Facility and other indebtedness of the Company, see "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility" and the Notes to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum. UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The following unaudited pro forma condensed balance sheet as of December 28, 1997 was prepared to illustrate the estimated effects of (i) the Acquisitions, accounted for under the purchase method of accounting, (ii) the Bank Financing, (iii) the Offering and (iv) the use of net proceeds from the Offering and from the Bank Financing as described under "Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds" (collectively, the "Pro Forma Transactions"), as if the Pro Forma Transactions had occurred on December 28, 1997. The following unaudited pro forma statement of operations for the year ended December 28, 1997 was prepared to illustrate the estimated effects of the Pro Forma Transactions as if they had occurred as of December 30, 1996.

The fiscal year of the Company ended on December 28, 1997 and the fiscal years of CLN Holdings and First Alert ended on December 31, 1997. The fiscal year of Signature Brands ended on September 28, 1997. The unaudited pro forma condensed financial statements have been derived from the audited financial statements of the Company as of and for the year ended December 28, 1997, the audited financial statements of CLN Holdings and First Alert as of and for the year ended December 31, 1997 and the unaudited financial statements of Signature Brands as of and for the year ended December 31, 1997. The unaudited statement of operations of Signature Brands for the year ended December 31, 1997 has been derived from the audited statement of operations for the year ended September 28, 1997 and the unaudited statements of operations from the thirteen weeks ended December 31, 1997 and December 31, 1996 in order to present Signature Brands operating results on a basis consistent with the Company's fiscal year.

The pro forma condensed financial statements were prepared utilizing the accounting principles of the respective entities as outlined in each entity's historical financial statements. Certain reclassifications were made to sales, cost of sales and selling, general and administrative expenses as reported in the historical financial statements of CLN Holdings, First Alert and Signature Brands to conform to the classifications of the Company as follows:

	Decrease
	Sales	Cost of Sales	Selling, General and Administrative (in thousands)
CLN Holdings	$(71,488)	$(63,886)	$(7,602)
First Alert	(9,902)	(4,760)	(5,142)
Signature Brands	(23,171)	(3,725)	(19,446)

Included in the historical Statement of Operations of CLN Holdings are cash and non-cash restructuring and other charges totaling $36.4 million and related tax benefits of $13.9 million. These costs have been allocated to cost of goods sold and selling, general and administration expense in the amounts of $19.5 million and $16.9 million, respectively. These costs primarily relate to closing and relocating certain administrative and sales offices, closing several manufacturing facilities, write-down of inventory and fixed assets, as well as severance costs. Additionally, the expense of the early extinguishment of debt of $15.2 million shown on the CLN Holdings' historical statement of operations has been excluded from the unaudited pro forma condensed statement of operations.

The pro forma adjustments are based upon available information and certain assumptions that the Company believes are reasonable under the circumstances. For purposes of developing the unaudited pro forma condensed financial statements, the assets and liabilities of CLN Holdings, First Alert and Signature Brands have been recorded at historical cost. The allocation of purchase price for the Acquisitions will be revised when additional information concerning asset and liability valuations is obtained. Adjustments, which could be significant, will be made during the allocation period based on detailed reviews of the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed and could result in a substantial increase in goodwill. The pro forma condensed financial statements do not include a one-time after-tax $30 million first quarter 1998 charge by the Company related to the execution of new employment contracts with the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company as further discussed in Note 14 of the Company's audited financial statements for the year ended December 28, 1997 or any adjustments for potential synergies or cost savings as a result of the Acquisitions.

The unaudited pro forma financial statements should be read in conjunction with "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations," the financial statements of each of the Company, CLN Holdings, First Alert and Signature Brands and the notes thereto, and the other financial information included elsewhere or incorporated by reference in this Offering Memorandum. This pro forma financial information is provided for informational purposes only and does not purport to be indicative of the results of operations or financial position which would have been obtained had the Pro Forma Transactions been completed on the dates indicated or the financial condition or results of operations for any future date or period.

NOTES TO UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
(in thousands, except percentages and as noted)

(a) Represents the elimination of the assets and liabilities related to the announced sale of CLN Holdings' Safety/Security Division as of December 31, 1997 and reflects the net proceeds from the sale as a reduction of long-term debt. The sale of this division is expected to be completed prior to the acquisition of CLN Holdings.

(b) Represents the tax benefit at 37.6% of (1) the cash out of stock options as a result of the Acquisitions and (2) the prepayment penalty on refinanced indebtedness of the Company, Coleman and Signature Brands.

(c) Represents the elimination of an intercompany tax receivable ($35,395) and payable on the financial statements of CLN Holdings relating to a tax sharing agreement with Mafco that will be cancelled in connection with the Holdings Merger. The net tax receivable will be assigned to Mafco in connection with the Holdings Merger.

(d) Represents the elimination of the historical goodwill and organizational costs of First Alert, Signature Brands and CLN Holdings in amounts of $23,018, $139,005 and $306,358, respectively.

(e) Represents the excess of cost over book value of the net assets acquired of First Alert, Signature Brands and CLN Holdings in the amounts of $73,457, $181,954 and $1,604,436, respectively and an additional $4,368 relating to the Company's debt prepayment penalty. No estimate has been made in these pro forma statements of the one-time expenses that will be incurred in the rationalization of the businesses that will result from these Acquisitions. The amount of goodwill will change once the Company completes the final allocation of purchase price.

(f) Represents the estimated capitalizable debt issuance costs.

(g) Represents the repayment of the existing indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Signature Brands and First Alert in the amount of $195,248, $958,563, $169,060 and $45,026, respectively.

(h) Represents the issuance of new long-term debt to fund the Acquisitions and the refinancing of outstanding indebtedness in the amounts of $202,248, $1,338,263, $263,531 and $177,896 for the Company, CLN Holdings, Signature Brands, and First Alert, respectively, and to fund approximately $62.5 million in transaction costs. This new debt will be funded by borrowings of $1,294,000 under the New Credit Facility at an assumed interest rate of LIBOR plus 1.25% (6.9325% at March 13, 1998) and the Debentures offered hereby at a yield to maturity of 5.0% (or approximately $2,014,000 principal amount at maturity).

(i) Represents the elimination of the minority interest of Coleman's equity held by the public shareholders. Amount also includes the elimination of the minority interest loss for the period ended December 31, 1997.

(j) Represents the elimination of the historical equity balances of First Alert, Signature Brands and CLN Holdings.

(k) Includes the issuance of 14,099,749 and 5,366,721 shares of the Company's Common Stock to Mafco and public shareholders, respectively, with a total equity value of $756.7 million less estimated transaction costs of approximately $10.2 million. This equity value was derived by using the average ending stock price as reported by the NYSE Composite Tape for the day before and day of the public announcement of the acquisition. Additionally, the shares held by Mafco have been discounted 15% due to the restrictive nature of the securities.

(l) Represents the elimination of the 1997 results of operations relating to the sale of CLN Holdings' Safety/Security Division. The Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Statement of Operations reflects the sale of CLN Holdings' Safety/Security Division as of January 1, 1997. The sale of this division is expected to be completed prior to the acquisition of CLN Holdings.

(m) Represents amortization, on a straight-line basis, for goodwill (see Note (e)) over a period of forty years.

NOTES TO UNAUDITED PRO FORMA CONDENSED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS—(Continued)
(in thousands, except percentages and as noted)

(n) Represents the reduction in amortization expense resulting from the elimination of the historical goodwill and organizational costs as discussed in Note (d) above.

(o) Represents interest expense on $2,044,000 estimated borrowing under the New Credit Facility at the assumed rate set forth in Note (h) above and the Debentures in the aggregate amount of $132,039 ($89,797 with respect to the New Credit Facility and $37,504 with respect to the Debentures). Amount also includes estimated debt issuance costs aggregating $4,738 related to the New Credit Facility amortized on a straight-line basis over a period of seven-years and the Debentures amortized on a weighted average accreted basis over a twenty-year period.

(p) The interest rate on borrowings under the New Credit Facility may differ from the assumption set forth in Note (h) above. The effect on income of a ⅛ percent variance in interest rate is approximately $1.6 million with respect to the borrowings under the New Credit Facility.

(q) Represents the reduction in interest expense resulting from the debt refinancing as discussed in Note (g) above.

(r) Represents the incremental change in the consolidated entity's provision for income taxes at 37.6% as a result of the pre-tax earnings of First Alert, Signature Brands and Coleman, and all pro forma adjustments as described above.

(s) Represents basic and diluted weighted average shares outstanding of the Company as of December 28, 1997 plus the additional equity issued in connection with the acquisition of CLN Holdings as discussed in Note (k) above. The incremental shares relating to the Debentures have not been included, as they would be anti-dilutive.

MANAGEMENT'S DISCUSSION AND ANALYSIS OF FINANCIAL CONDITION AND RESULTS OF OPERATIONS

Year Ended December 28, 1997 Compared to the Year Ended December 29, 1996

In November 1996, the Company initiated a major restructuring and growth plan designed to substantially reduce its cost structure and grow the business in order to restore higher levels of profitability for the Company. By July 1997, the Company completed the major phases of the restructuring plan. The $225.0 million of annualized cost savings anticipated from the restructuring results primarily from the consolidation of administrative functions within the Company, the rationalization of manufacturing and warehouse facilities (including a reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and warehouses from 61 to 18), the elimination of over 6,000 positions (including 3,300 from the divestiture of non-core businesses described below and approximately 2,800 other positions), the centralization of the Company's procurement function and re-negotiation of supply contracts resulting in procurement savings for raw materials, components and sourced finished products and the reduction of the Company's product offerings and stock keeping units ("SKU's"). The restructuring and growth plan also included a redefinition of the Company's core product categories and the elimination of those businesses and product lines that did not fit the core categories. Sunbeam's core product categories are Appliances, Health at Home, Personal Care and Comfort, Outdoor Cooking and Away From Home. Product categories and businesses determined to be non-core were divested in 1997, including the Company's furniture business and its time and temperature, decorative bedding and Counselor® and Borg® scale product lines. In addition, the Company sold its textile mill in Biddeford, Maine in 1997.

Net sales from continuing operations for 1997 were $1,168.2 million, an increase of $183.9 million or 18.7% over 1996. Net sales on a normalized basis, after excluding divested product lines which are not classified as discontinued operations (time and temperature products, decorative bedding and Counselor® and Borg® branded scales), increased 22.4% during the year.

Global sales, on a normalized basis, increased during 1997 in all five of the Company's product categories primarily from new product introductions, improved distribution (particularly with the Company's top ten customers), international geographic expansion and improved price realization for certain products. Global sales growth on a normalized basis exceeded 25% in the Appliance, Outdoor Cooking and Away From Home categories with sales increases of 26.8%, 27.2% and 28.6%, respectively. Sales in the Health at Home category increased 10.7% on a normalized basis and sales in the Personal Care and Comfort category increased 3.4% during 1997.

The Company's Appliance category sales increases were driven by new products, such as re-designed blenders and mixers, coffeemakers, irons, deep fryers and toasters, and by increased distribution with large national mass retailers. Sales of Outdoor Cooking products increased in 1997 after three straight years of declines as a result of increased merchandising and advertising programs, new distribution and the introduction of an entirely new line of grills and accessories for the 1998 season that began to ship in the fourth quarter of 1997 under a new "early buy" marketing program that included, among other things, extended credit terms with due dates in the second quarter of 1998. The Company sold approximately $50.0 million of Outdoor Cooking Products under this program in the fourth quarter of 1997. The early buy program for Outdoor Cooking products is designed to improve customer service levels and production efficiencies with more level seasonal production and distribution activities that have historically peaked in the first half of each year and to drive additional retail sell-through of Outdoor Cooking products by reducing the likelihood of retail stock-outs during the important first and second quarter 1998 selling season.

Sales of Personal Care and Comfort products were up over 30% through September 1997, but suffered during the fourth quarter as a result of lower than expected retail sell-through of electric blankets in key northern markets in late 1997 coupled with the inability to service demand for king and queen sized blankets due to shortages of blanket shells. The Company anticipates shifting to a more level production for blankets in 1998 in order to more adequately service the seasonal demand for bedding products. Health at Home category sales increased as a result of new products and improved distribution in the drug channels. Away From Home sales increased in 1997 as a result of new products, including cordless clippers and titanium blades, coupled with increased distribution of commercially rated appliances. Also contributing to the Company's sales growth in 1997 were its new retail outlet stores, of which 22 were open by the end of 1997.

International sales, which represented 21% of total revenues in 1997, grew 31.2% during the year. This sales growth was driven primarily by 54 new 220 volt product introductions and the execution of 25 new international distribution and license agreements. Revenue growth of approximately 34% was achieved both in Mexico and by the Company's Latin American export sales organization, and sales in Venezuela and Canada increased approximately 23% each. European sales fell slightly in 1997, however the Company expects that expanded electric blanket and clipper sales along with the help of additional new distribution agreements will benefit European sales in 1998.

020592

The gross margin percentage for 1997 increased 19.8 percentage points to 28.3%. This increase reflects the results of many cost savings and margin enhancement initiatives undertaken as part of the Company's restructuring plan coupled with the incremental margin attributable to new products and higher revenues associated with the Company's growth plan. The Company initiated a manufacturing refinement program in the second quarter of 1997 targeted at aggressively improving factory productivity at all of its remaining operations, including the Neosho, Missouri Outdoor Cooking Products facility which suffered from poor productivity and operating inefficiencies during the 1997 grill season. The benefits of the refinement program began to favorably impact factory productivity in several factories during the third quarter of 1997. The refinement of the Neosho facility, which was completed prior to the initiation of production for the 1998 grill season in the fourth quarter, included a revised plant layout to improve material flow, increased usage of common parts in the manufacturing process and modifications to the paint system to increase capacity and throughput.

Operating earnings for 1997 were $199.4 million, an increase of $195.0 million over 1996, excluding the impact of the 1996 special charge. As a percentage of sales, the operating margin of 17.1% increased 16.6 percentage points above last year's operating margin, excluding 1996 special charges. The operating margin improvements for 1997 were the result of the improved gross margin discussed above and lower selling, general and administrative ("SG&A") costs in 1997 associated with the consolidation of six divisional and regional headquarters into one corporate headquarters and one administrative operations center, reduced staffing levels, the outsourcing of certain administrative and distribution functions, a reduction in the number of warehouses, and Company wide cost control initiatives. In addition, SG&A during 1996 included incremental compensation costs associated with restricted stock awards and other costs related to the employment of a new senior management team, higher than normal expenditures for market research, packaging and other initiatives related to the launch of the Company's growth plan, and higher bad debt expenses associated with certain of the Company's customers. The cost reduction initiatives and one time items in 1996 coupled with increased sales in 1997 resulted in SG&A decreasing as a percentage of sales from 17.4% in 1996 (excluding the impact of special charges) to 11.2% for 1997.

Interest expense decreased from $13.6 million in 1996 to $11.4 million in 1997 primarily as a result of lower average borrowing levels in 1997 due to improved cash flows.

The effective income tax rate of 35% for 1997 and 1996 for earnings (loss) from continuing operations was lower than the statutory federal and state rates as a result of lower foreign taxes from the utilization of foreign tax credits and loss carryforwards and lower state income taxes as a result of certain state income tax credits.

The Company's diluted earnings per share from continuing operations was $1.41 per share versus a loss per share from continuing operations in 1996 of $2.37. The Company's share base utilized in the diluted earnings per share calculation increased approximately 6% during 1997 as a result of an increase in the number of shares of common stock and common stock equivalents outstanding due to the exercise of stock options and a higher market value of the Company's common stock in 1997.

The Company's discontinued furniture operations, which were sold in March 1997, had revenues of $51.6 million in the first quarter of 1997 prior to the sale and break-even earnings. In 1996, the discontinued furniture operations had net income of $.8 million on revenues of $227.5 million and an estimated loss on disposal of the business of $32.4 million, net of applicable income tax benefits. The sale of the Company's furniture business assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment) was completed in March 1997.

The Company received $69 million in cash and retained accounts receivable related to the furniture business of approximately $50.0 million as of the closing date. The final purchase price for the furniture business was subject to a post-closing adjustment based on the terms of the Asset Purchase Agreement and in the first quarter of 1997, after completion of the sale, the Company recorded an additional loss on disposal of $13.7 million, net of income tax benefits. See discussion of Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in Note 8 and Discontinued Operations and Assets Held For Sale in Note 9 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum for further information regarding the individual components of the 1996 special charge and details of the 1997 activity in the Company's restructuring accrual.

The Company's operating results for 1996 include the effects of a pre-tax special charge of $337.6 million recorded in conjunction with the implementation of its restructuring and growth plan announced in November 1996. Approximately 20% of the charge was for cash items primarily for severance costs and lease and other facility exit costs. The special charge to earnings in 1996 is included in the following categories on the consolidated statement of operations:

	Pre-tax Dollar Amount	After-tax Per Share Amount
	(in millions)
Restructuring, impairment and other costs	$154.9	$(1.21)
Cost of sales	92.3	(0.72)
Selling, general and administrative	42.5	(0.33)
Estimated loss from discontinued operations	47.9	(0.39)
Total	$337.6	$(2.65)

Net sales from continuing operations of $984.2 million for 1996 represents a decrease of $32.7 million, or 3.2%, from 1995. The Company experienced a loss from continuing operations of $196.7 million or $2.37 per share for 1996 versus earnings from continuing operations of $37.6 million or $.45 per share (diluted) in 1995 primarily as a result of the restructuring activities discussed above. The net loss for 1996 was $228.3 million, or $2.75 per share, compared to net earnings of $50.5 million, or $0.61 per share (diluted), for 1995. Excluding the impact of special charge items for 1996, earnings from continuing operations before income taxes decreased from $60.6 million in 1995 to a loss of $12.9 million in 1996.

Domestic sales represented approximately 80% of total sales of the Company in 1996 and decreased $28.5 million or 3.4% from 1995. This sales decline was driven by lower sales of outdoor cooking products, which declined 7.3% and lower sales of bedding products which declined 9.0% from 1995, primarily as a result of lower decorative bedding sales (divested in December 1996). Domestic sales of appliance products were flat with sales increases from new products such as vegetable steamers and toaster ovens being offset by reduced pricing on breadmakers. Sales of other product categories such as health and personal care products and time and temperature products (divested in March 1997) were either flat or declined slightly from 1995 levels.

International sales decreased $4.2 million or 2.2% from 1995 primarily as a result of lower sales in Latin America due to political and/or economic instability in several countries such as Ecuador, Peru, Columbia and Venezuela (which suffered a bolivar devaluation in April 1996), a sales decline of 11.2% in Canada as a result of the bankruptcy filing of the Company's then largest Canadian customer offset by a 55.0% increase in sales in Mexico as a result of a more stable economic environment in 1996.

The Company's gross margin percentage, excluding the impact of special charges, was 17.9% of sales in 1996, down from 20.4% in 1995, primarily from the underabsorption of higher manufacturing costs and excess manufacturing capacity that has been realigned for 1997 and beyond by the Company's restructuring and growth plan cost reduction initiatives.

SG&A expenses, excluding the impact of special charges described above, were 17.6% of sales in 1996 primarily as a result of an inflated cost structure that has been realigned for 1997 and beyond. In addition, a $12.0 million fourth quarter 1996 media advertising campaign and one-time expenditures for market research, new packaging, and other growth plan initiatives resulted in higher than normal SG&A spending in 1996. Also included in 1996 SG&A costs were $7.7 million of compensation expense resulting from restricted stock awards made in connection with the employment of a new senior management team.

Interest expense for 1996 increased from $9.4 million in 1995 to $13.6 million as a result of increased indebtedness of the Company for working capital requirements and non-recurring capitalized interest in 1995 related to the construction of the Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing and distribution center.

The effective income tax rate for 1996 decreased 3 percentage points from 1995 to 35.0% as a result of certain foreign and state operating losses for which no tax benefits were recorded and the non-deductibility of compensation expense related to restricted stock awards.

The Company's discontinued furniture operations had revenues of $227.5 million in 1996, up 22.6% from $185.6 million in 1995. This revenue growth was the result of the acquisition of the Samsonite® furniture business in November 1995. Excluding the impact of this acquisition, furniture business sales declined 2.1%. Earnings from the discontinued furniture operations, net of taxes, declined from $12.9 million in 1995 to $.8 million in 1996 primarily as a result of lower gross margins from reduced pricing, underabsorption of higher manufacturing costs and higher raw material costs. In addition, SG&A costs increased due to the inclusion of the Samsonite® furniture business, higher distribution and warehousing costs, particularly with resin furniture products and higher bad debt expenses.

Foreign Operations

During 1997 approximately 90% of the Company's business was conducted in U.S. dollars (including both domestic sales, U.S. dollar denominated export sales primarily to certain Latin American markets, Asian sales and the majority of European sales). The Company's exposure to market risk from changes in foreign currency and interest rates is generally insignificant. The Company's non-U.S. dollar denominated sales are made principally by subsidiaries in Mexico, Venezuela and Canada. Venezuela is considered a hyperinflationary economy for accounting purposes for 1995, 1996 and 1997 and Mexico reverted to hyperinflationary status for accounting purposes in 1997; therefore, translation adjustments related to Venezuelan and Mexican net monetary assets are included as a component of net earnings. Such translation adjustments were not material to 1995, 1996 and 1997 operating results.

On a limited basis, the Company selectively uses derivatives (foreign exchange option and forward contracts) to manage foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. No derivative contracts are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's financial results in 1995, 1996 and 1997. See Note 4 to the Company's consolidated financial statements.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

As of December 28, 1997, the Company had cash and cash equivalents of $52.4 million and total debt of $195.2 million. Cash used in operating activities during 1997 was $8.2 million compared to $14.2 million provided by operating activities in 1996. This decrease is primarily attributable to an increase in earnings before non-cash charges in 1997 and the utilization of tax benefits generated from the implementation of the Company's restructuring plan, offset by higher accounts receivable due to increased sales in 1997 and certain seasonal dating terms, increased inventory levels in 1997 necessary to support continued anticipated sales growth and the Company's initiatives to improve customer service levels and 1997 cash expenditures required to implement the restructuring plan. In addition, cash used in operating activities reflects $59 million of proceeds from the sale of trade accounts receivable under the Company's revolving trade accounts receivable securitization program entered into in December 1997 as more fully described in Note 3 to the Company's consolidated financial statements.

Capital spending totaled $58.3 million in 1997 and was primarily for new products, cost reduction and capacity expansion initiatives. Capital spending in 1996 was $75.3 million (including $14.5 million related to the discontinued furniture operations) and was primarily attributable to new product development, cost reduction initiatives and a $5.0 million warehouse expansion financed with a capital lease. Capital spending in 1995 reflected approximately $59.4 million associated with the Hattiesburg facility, $27.4 million related to new product development and $10.8 million attributable to the discontinued furniture business. The remaining 1995 capital spending was related to cost reduction projects, productivity initiatives and environmental compliance including $14.4 million for a powder coat paint system for Outdoor Cooking products. The Company anticipates 1998 capital spending to be approximately 5% of sales and primarily related to new product introductions, capacity additions and certain facility rationalization initiatives.

Cash provided by investing activities also reflects $91.0 million in proceeds from sales of businesses, assets and product categories determined to be non-core to the Company's ongoing operations in conjunction with the 1996 restructuring plan. Cash used in investing activities for 1995 includes the purchase of a portion of the Company's furniture business, which was subsequently divested in full in March 1997.

Cash provided by financing activities totaled $16.4 million in 1997 and reflects net borrowings of $5.0 million under the Company's revolving credit facility, $12.2 million of debt repayments related to the divested furniture operations and other assets sold and $26.6 million in cash proceeds from the exercise of stock options, substantially all by former employees of the Company. In 1996, cash provided by financing activities of $45.3 million was primarily from increased revolving credit facility borrowings to support working capital and capital spending requirements, $11.5 million in new issuances of long-term debt and $4.6 million in proceeds from the sale of treasury shares to certain executives of the Company. In July 1997, the Company reduced the amount of available borrowings under its September 1996 unsecured five year revolving credit facility from $500 million to $250 million.

The Company is a party to various environmental proceedings, substantially all related to previously divested operations. In connection with the Company's restructuring plan a comprehensive review of environmental exposures was undertaken and the Company accelerated its strategy for the resolution and settlement of certain environmental claims. This review and change in strategy resulted in additional environmental reserves being recorded in 1996 as more fully described in Note 12 to the consolidated financial statements. In management's opinion, the ultimate resolution of these environmental matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced the signing of definitive agreements to acquire Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert which are subject to various customary conditions including regulatory approvals. The Company's ability to complete the Acquisitions, which is expected in the early spring of 1998, is contingent on acquisition debt issuances. In connection with the Acquisitions, the Company plans to refinance existing indebtedness of the acquired companies as well as all or substantially all of its existing long-term debt. The Company expects to finance the cash portion of the Acquisitions and all debt refinancings through a combination of the Bank Financing and the Offering. For additional information regarding the Acquisitions, see Note 14 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements of the Company included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum.

The Company believes its cash flow from operations, existing cash and cash equivalent balances, its receivable securitization program, together with expected available borrowings under the revolving credit portion of the New Credit Facility, will be sufficient to support working capital needs, capital spending, debt service and acquisition related cash requirements for the foreseeable future.

The Company is currently discussing the terms of the New Credit Facility. See "Risk Factors—New Credit Facility Not Yet Committed" and "Description of Other Indebtedness—New Credit Facility."

New Accounting Standards

See Note 1 to the Company's consolidated financial statements for a discussion of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 130, Reporting Comprehensive Income and SFAS No. 131, Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information, both of which are required to be adopted for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. The adoption of these standards will not impact the Company's consolidated results of operations, financial position, or cash flows.

Year 2000

The Company has assessed and continues to assess the impact of the Year 2000 issue on its operations, including the development and implementation of project plans and cost estimates required to make its information systems infrastructure Year 2000 compliant. Based on existing information, the Company believes that anticipated spending necessary to become Year 2000 compliant will not have a material effect on the financial position, cash flows or results of operations of the Company, nor will the Year 2000 issues cause any material adverse effect on the future business operations of the Company.

Subsequent Events

For a discussion of the Acquisitions and the new three year employment contracts between the Company and each of Mr. Dunlap, Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin, see Note 14 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements included elsewhere in this Offering Memorandum.

BUSINESS

General

The Company is a leading designer, manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Company's primary business is the manufacture, marketing and distribution of durable household consumer products through mass merchandisers, home centers and other channels (such as Wal-Mart, Kmart and Home Depot) in the United States and internationally. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions. Sunbeam products enjoy a long-standing reputation for quality, and a majority of the Company's sales are from products which hold the number one or two market share in their respective product categories. In 1997, the Company's net sales were approximately $1,168 million.

The Company's five product categories are: (1) Appliances (mixers, blenders, food steamers, bread makers, rice cookers, coffee makers, toasters, irons and garment steamers); (2) Health at Home (vaporizers, humidifiers, air cleaners, water filters, massagers and scales); (3) Personal Care and Comfort (shower massagers, hair clippers and trimmers, electric warming blankets); (4) Outdoor Cooking (electric, gas and charcoal grills and grill accessories); and (5) Away From Home (clippers and related products for professional beauty, barber and veterinarian trade and sales of products to commercial and institutional channels). The International Group is responsible for sales (primarily of small appliances, personal care, grills and comfort products, professional clippers and related products) in all countries other than the United States.

The Company was organized in 1989 (as Sunbeam-Oster Company, Inc.) and in September 1990, Sunbeam acquired the assets and assumed certain liabilities, through a reorganization, of Allegheny International, Inc. (the "Predecessor"). In August 1992, the Company completed a public offering of 20,000,000 shares of its common stock. In May 1995, the Company changed its name from Sunbeam-Oster Company, Inc. to Sunbeam Corporation.

The Company has a management team with extensive consumer products experience and proven expertise in cost containment and operational improvement. On February 20, 1998, each of the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mr. Dunlap; the Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, Mr. Kersh; and the Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, Mr. Fannin, signed new three year employment contracts with the Company which include substantial equity-based compensation. See "Management—New Employment Contracts."

Restructuring and Growth Plan

In the Fall of 1996, under newly elected Chairman, Albert J. Dunlap, the Company announced a major restructuring and growth plan. The restructuring portion of the plan was completed during 1997, resulting in a significant reduction in employees, facilities and costs, all of which is anticipated to generate approximately $225 million in annual savings for the Company. As a part of the restructuring plan, the Company divested its non-core business and assets, including furniture, time and temperature, decorative bedding, gas heaters and logs, Counselor® and Borg® scale business and the Company's Biddeford, Maine textile mill.

The Company's restructuring plan included the closure of 18 factories, 43 warehouses and 5 headquarters, resulting in the consolidation of all corporate offices into a single headquarters office located in Delray Beach, Florida and an operations facility at its Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing and distribution facility. The number of manufacturing facilities has been reduced from twenty-six to eight (four in the US and four international). See "—Properties" below.

The Company has also consolidated all purchasing functions, substantially reduced the number of stock keeping units maintained by the Company and outsourced certain administrative, manufacturing and distribution activities.

The Company has developed a comprehensive three year growth plan for its core business. Sunbeam's goal is for revenues to double, reaching $2 billion by 1999, with operating margins improving to 20% of sales. This revenue growth is anticipated to be derived, in large part, by the development of new innovative products and the globalization of the Company. Domestically, the goal is to introduce at least 30 new products each year; during 1997, the Company introduced 35 new domestic products and 54 new international products. In its international business, the Company has a goal to triple international sales to $600 million by 1999. During 1997, the Company entered into 25 new international distribution/license agreements. The Company has also identified new channels of distribution as additional sales growth opportunities, including commercial organizations and "direct to the consumer" channels such as catalogs, the Internet and Sunbeam® factory outlet stores. The foregoing contains certain forward-looking statements that involve risks and uncertainties, see "Forward-Looking Statements" and "Risk Factors" for cautionary remarks concerning these statements.

Both international expansion and new product introductions will be supported by a significant investment in a major new advertising program that is geared to strengthen the Sunbeam®, Oster® and Grillmaster® brands in the marketplace.

Products

The Company's core product categories are as follows:

Appliances

Small kitchen appliances including Mixmaster® stand mixers, hand mixers, Osterizer® blenders, food processors, rice cookers, food steamers, toasters, can openers, coffee makers, bread makers, waffle makers, ice cream makers, frying pans, deep fryers and culinary accessories, are sold primarily under the Sunbeam® and Oster® brand names. The Company holds the number one or two market positions in blenders, mixers and bread makers. The Appliance category also encompasses garment care appliances consisting of irons and steamers. Sales of appliances accounted for approximately 32% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

Health at Home

The Company markets its home health products under the Sunbeam®name and the trademark Health at Home®. These products include heating pads, bath scales, blood pressure and other health-monitoring instruments, massagers, vaporizers, humidifiers and dental care products. This product category also includes the recently introduced AllergySmart™ air detector and air cleaner and the FreshSource™ power water filter. Sales of health care products accounted for approximately 10% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

Personal Care and Comfort

The Company's Personal Care and Comfort products include a broad line of electric blankets, comforters and Cuddle-Up® heated throws, shower massagers, and hair clippers and trimmers for animals and humans which are sold through retail channels. The Company holds the number one market position in electric blankets, heated throws and retail hair clippers. Sales of Personal Care and Comfort products accounted for approximately 18% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

Outdoor Cooking

Sunbeam is a leading supplier of outdoor barbecue grills. Sunbeam has the leading market share position in the gas grill industry. Barbecue grills consist of propane, natural gas, electric and charcoal models sold primarily under the Sunbeam® and Grillmaster® brand names. Sales of outdoor cooking products accounted for approximately 34% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

Away from Home

The Company markets a line of professional barber, beauty and animal equipment, including the electric and battery clippers, replacement blades and other grooming accessories sold to both conventional retailers and through professional distributors. In addition, the Company is expanding the market of its appliances, scales and Personal Care and Comfort products to institutional and commercial channels. Sales of Away from Home products described above accounted for approximately 6% of the Company's domestic net sales in 1997.

International

The Company markets a variety of products (primarily small kitchen appliances, Personal Care and Comfort products, grills, professional clippers and related products) outside the U.S. While the Company sells many of the same products domestically and internationally, it also sells products designed specifically to appeal to foreign markets. The Company, through its foreign subsidiaries, has manufacturing facilities in Mexico and Venezuela.

and sales offices in Canada, the United Kingdom, Hong Kong and Australia. The Company's international products are sourced from the Company's United States, Mexican or Venezuelan manufacturing operations or from vendors primarily located in Asia. International sales accounted for approximately 21% of the Company's total net sales in 1997.

To date, the Company's activities outside the United States have been primarily focused in Mexico, Latin America and Canada. The Company enjoys a strong market position in a number of product categories in Latin America. The Oster® brand has the leading market share in small appliances in a number of Latin American countries.

The Company's pending acquisitions of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert are anticipated to provide new opportunities for international expansion of the Company's activities. See "The Acquisitions."

Competitive Strengths

Sunbeam competes in markets with well-established United States and foreign companies on the basis of various strengths, depending on the country, product category and distribution channels. The Company believes that it is well-positioned to pursue continued growth as a result of these competitive strengths, which include the following:

Market Leadership. The majority of Sunbeam sales are from products in which the Company holds the number one or two market share position. The Company believes that this combination of leading brand-name products and breadth of product offerings makes Sunbeam an attractive vendor to all retailers, particularly those who are consolidating their suppliers.

Brand Name Recognition. The Sunbeam® and Oster® brands have been household names for generations. The Company believes that these brands, along with its other well-known secondary brand names such as Mixmaster®, Osterizer® and Grillmaster®, draw customers into retail stores specifically to purchase products bearing these brand names. During 1997, the Company spent over $56 million, or approximately 5% of its 1997 net sales, for advertising and sales promotion to support brand recognition.

Distribution Network. The Company has one of the premier mass merchant distribution networks serving large national retailers in the United States. The Company also has a strong network of well-established distributors and service organizations in Latin America. The Company supports its customers' needs with strong warehousing and distribution capabilities, a broad, high-quality product portfolio, electronic data interchange and just-in-time product delivery capabilities. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogues, Company-owned outlet stores and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and military post exchange outlets.

Strong Position in Consolidating Retail Environment. The consolidation trend in the retail industry has resulted in the emergence and global expansion of large mass merchandisers. These merchandisers demand financially strong, efficient suppliers who offer a broad range of innovative, quality products, have the ability to make timely shipments in large volumes and provide strong customer, promotional and merchandising support. The Company continues to benefit from this trend and believes it has the opportunity to further expand distribution with a number of major retailers while increasing its penetration of existing accounts. In 1997, the Company sold products to virtually all of the top 100 U.S. retailers, including Wal-Mart, Price Costco, Kmart, Target Stores, Home Depot and Sears.

Customers

The rapid growth of large mass merchandisers and warehouse clubs and changes in customer shopping patterns have contributed to a significant consolidation of the U.S. retail industry and formation of dominant multi-category retailers. Sunbeam has positioned itself to respond to the challenges of this changing retail environment by pursuing strategic relationships with large, high-volume merchandisers. The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, hardware stores, catalogues, television shopping channels, home centers, drug and grocery stores, and pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and military post exchange services. The Company's largest customer, Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., accounted for approximately 21% of the sales in 1997.

Retailers are pursuing a number of strategies in their competition to deliver the highest-quality, lowest-cost brand name products. A growing trend among retailers is to purchase on a "just-in-time" basis in order to reduce inventory cost and increase returns on investment. This trend has required increased working capital investments for manufacturers and requires manufacturers to more closely monitor consumer buying patterns as retailers shorten their lead times for orders. Currently, most Sunbeam products sold to U.S. retailers are manufactured at the Company's own facilities in North America. However, one of the Company's goals for 1998 is to "source" approximately 50% of parts and/or products from others, including suppliers in Asia, in order to reduce capital investment in plants while growing sales volume and to improve operating margins. The Company intends to continue to support its retail partners' "just-in-time" inventory strategies through investments in, among other things, improved forecasting systems, more responsive manufacturing and distribution capabilities and electronic communications. Currently, Sunbeam has approximately 90% of its U.S. customer sales on electronic data interchange (EDI) systems.

The amount of backlog orders at any point in time is not a significant factor in the Company's business.

Patents and Trademarks

Sunbeam believes that an integral part of its strength is its ability to capitalize on the Sunbeam® and Oster® trademarks which are registered in the United States and in numerous foreign countries. Widely recognized throughout North America, South and Central America and Europe, these registered trademarks, along with Osterizer®, Mixmaster®, Toast Logic®, Steammaster®, Oskar®, Grillmaster® and Blanket with a Brain® brands are important to the success of the Company's products. Other important trademarks within Sunbeam include Oster Designer® line, Cuddle-Up® and A5®.

Sunbeam holds numerous patents covering a wide variety of products, the loss of any one of which would not have a material adverse effect on the Company's business taken as a whole.

Employees

The Company currently has approximately 3,300 full-time domestic employees and 4,200 international employees. None of the Company's domestic full-time workforce has union representation. Sunbeam has had no material labor-related work stoppages and, in the opinion of management, relations with its employees are generally good.

Seasonality

On a consolidated basis, Sunbeam sales do not exhibit substantial seasonality. However, sales of outdoor cooking products are strong in the first half of the year, while sales of appliances and Personal Care and Comfort products are strongest in the second half of the year. In addition, sales of an number of Company's products, including warming blankets, vaporizers, humidifiers and grills may be impacted by unseasonable weather conditions. During 1997, the Company initiated early buy programs for highly seasonal products such as grill and warming blankets in order to more levelize promotion and distribution activities.

Raw Materials

The raw materials used in the manufacture of the Company's products are available from numerous suppliers in quantities sufficient to meet normal requirements. The Company's primary raw materials include aluminum, steel, resin, copper, and corrugated cardboard for cartons.

Environmental Matters

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations in addition to laws and regulations regarding labeling and packaging of products and the sale of products containing certain environmentally sensitive materials ("Environmental Laws"). The Company believes it is in substantial compliance with all Environmental Laws which are applicable to its operations. Compliance with Environmental Laws involves certain continuing costs; however, such costs of ongoing compliance have not resulted, and are not anticipated to result, in a material increase in the Company's capital expenditures or to have a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial condition or competitive position.

CPH 1326526

In addition to ongoing environmental compliance at its operations, the Company also is actively engaged in certain environmental remediation activities relating primarily to divested operations. As of December 31, 1997, the Company had been identified by the United States Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA") or a state environmental agency as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven (7) sites subject to the federal Superfund law and two (2) sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant.

The Superfund Act, and related state environmental remediation laws, generally authorize governmental authorities to remediate a Superfund site and to assess the costs against the PRPs or to order PRPs to remediate the site at their expense. Liability under the Superfund Law is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRPs at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRPs established with respect to such sites. The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at nine (9) sites, four (4) of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and five (5) of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law.

In addition, the Company is engaged in environmental remediation activities at a site located in Newburgh Heights, Ohio, where a subsidiary formerly conducted operations. The Company has been actively cooperating with the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission and state regulatory authorities in developing and implementing a plan for remediation of this site; which remediation is anticipated to be substantially completed in 1998.

The Company's costs for environmental remediation activities have not had a material adverse effect on the Company's results of operations, financial conditions or competitive position. The Company has established reserves to cover the anticipated probable costs of remediation, based upon periodic review of all sites for which the Company has, or may have, remediation responsibility. As of December 28, 1997, the amount of such reserves was approximately four percent (4%) of the Company's total liabilities as set forth in the consolidated financial statements. Such environmental reserves do not anticipate any offsets for potential insurance recoveries from certain of the Company's liability insurance carriers which the Company continues to pursue.

Due to uncertainty over the remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in Environmental Laws, and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, the Company's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved at fiscal year end 1997. In addition, the Company may be required to incur costs relating to remediation of other properties currently or previously owned or leased, including the properties to be acquired in the Acquisitions, as well as properties at which the Company and each of Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert have disposed of waste. However, the Company believes, based on existing information, that the costs of completing the environmental remediation of all sites for which the Company has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

In December 1996, the Company reached a negotiated settlement with the EPA with regard to a notice of violation concerning the construction and operation of two paint lines at the Company's Neosho, MO facility prior to obtaining the necessary permits for construction and operation. The negotiated settlement amount of $829,825 was agreed upon in connection with the Company's implementation of the "supplemental environmental project" which consisted of the Company's installation of nominal emission powder coating lines to replace solvent paint lines. In October 1997, the Company executed a Consent Decree documenting the settlement and is awaiting the EPA's execution of the Consent Decree; the Company anticipates formal resolution of this matter by the second quarter of 1998.

In addition, the Company has 17 United States and 5 Canadian retail outlet stores under lease totaling 103,000 square feet.

The Company believes that its existing facilities will adequately provide sufficient suitable capacity to implement its operating plans.

Legal Proceedings

The Company and its subsidiaries are involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time which the Company considers to be ordinary routine litigation incidental to its business. In the opinion of the Company, the resolution of these matters, and of certain matters relating to prior operations of the Company's predecessor, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a material adverse effect upon the financial position or results of operations of the Company. The Company has established reserves for pending litigation which the Company considers to be adequate to cover loss contingencies determined by the Company associated with such proceedings.

MANAGEMENT

Executive Officers and Directors

The following table sets forth certain information regarding the directors and executive officers of the Company as of February 1, 1998.

Name	Age	Position
Albert J. Dunlap	60	Chairman, Chief Executive Officer and Director
Russell A. Kersh	44	Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer
David C. Fannin	52	Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary
Donald R. Uzzi	45	Executive Vice President, Consumer Products Worldwide
Charles M. Elson	38	Director
Howard G. Kristol	60	Director
Peter A. Langerman	42	Director
William T. Rutter	67	Director
Faith Whittlesey	59	Director

Albert J. Dunlap has been Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the Company since July 18, 1996. From April 1994 to December 1995, he was Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Scott Paper Company. From 1991 to 1993, Mr. Dunlap was the Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer of Consolidated Press Holdings Limited (an Australian media, chemicals and agricultural operation).

Russell A. Kersh has been Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer of the Company since February 1, 1998, and has been a Director of the Company since his appointment on August 6, 1996. He served as Executive Vice President, Finance and Administration of the Company from July 22, 1996 to January 1998. From June 1994 to December 1995 he was Executive Vice President, Finance and Administration of Scott Paper Company. Mr. Kersh served as Chief Operating Officer of Adidas America from January 1993 to May 1994.

David C. Fannin has been Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary since January 1994. From 1979 until 1993, he was a partner in the law firm of Wyatt, Tarrant and Combs.

Donald R. Uzzi has been Executive Vice President, Consumer Products Worldwide since January 1997. From November 1996 to January 1997, he held the position of Senior Vice President, Global Marketing. Mr. Uzzi joined the Company in September 1996 as Vice President, Marketing and Product Development. From January 1993 to July 1996, Mr. Uzzi served as President of the Beverage Division of Quaker Oats. During 1990 to 1992, Mr. Uzzi was employed by Pepsi Cola as Senior Vice President for North America (1992) and Vice President and General Manager of the Mid-Atlantic Division (1990-1991).

Charles M. Elson has been a Director of the Company since his appointment to the Board of Directors on September 25, 1996. Mr. Elson has been a Professor of Law at Stetson University College of Law since 1990 and serves as Of Counsel to the law firm of Holland & Knight (since May 1995). He is also a Member of the American Law Institute and the Advisory Council and Commission on Director Compensation and Director Professionalism of the National Association of Corporate Directors. Mr. Elson is Trustee of Talledega College and a Salvatori Fellow of the Heritage Foundation. Mr. Elson has served as a Director of Circon Corporation (a medical manufacturer) since October 1997.

Howard G. Kristol has been a Director of the Company since his appointment on August 6, 1996. Mr. Kristol has been a partner in the law firm of Reboul, MacMurray, Hewitt, Maynard & Kristol since 1976.

Peter A. Langerman has been a Director of the Company since 1990 and served as the Chairman of the Board of Directors from May 22, 1996 until July 18, 1996. Since November 1996, Mr. Langerman has been Senior Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Franklin Mutual Advisers, Inc., a registered investment advisor and a wholly owned subsidiary of Franklin Resources, Inc., a diversified financial services organization. Mr. Langerman was a Senior Vice President of Heine Securities Corporation, an investment advisory service company, from 1986 to November 1996, and a Vice President of Mutual Series Fund from 1988 until its acquisition by Franklin Resources, Inc. in 1996. He has been a Director of Franklin Mutual Series Fund, Inc. (previously Mutual Series Fund Inc.) since 1988 and a Director of Metallurg Inc. (a metals and related materials manufacturer) since 1997.

William T. Rutter has been a Director of the Company since his appointment on April 8, 1997. Mr. Rutter is a Senior Vice President/Managing Director, Private Banking of First Union National Bank of Florida, a position he has held since 1986.

Faith Whittlesey has been a Director of the Company since her appointment in December 1996. Mrs. Whittlesey has served as the Chief Executive Officer of the American Swiss Foundation, a charitable and educational foundation, since 1991. She is a member of the Board of Directors of Valassis Communications, Inc. (a publishing and printing company).

New Employment Contracts

On February 20, 1998, each of the Company's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, Mr. Dunlap; the Vice Chairman and Chief Financial Officer, Mr. Kersh; and the Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary, Mr. Fannin, signed new three-year employment contracts with the Company, which include substantial equity-based compensation. These employment contracts replaced previous employment contracts entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999.

The new employment contract with Mr. Dunlap provides for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of 200,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 133,333 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreement as further described in Note 2 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements, a new equity grant of 300,000 shares of unrestricted stock, a new grant of a ten-year option to purchase 3,750,000 shares of Common Stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in three equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 833,333 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreement as further described in Note 5 to the Company's Consolidated Financial Statements. In addition, the new employment contract with Mr. Dunlap provides for tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the equity grant and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

The new employment contracts with Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin provide for, among other items, the grant of a total of 180,000 shares of restricted stock that vest in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant, the acceleration of vesting of 44,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 29,332 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under their July 1996 employment contracts, new grants of ten-year options to purchase a total of 1,875,000 shares of Common Stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 383,334 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 employment contracts. In addition, the new employment contracts with Mr. Kersh and Mr. Fannin provide for tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the restricted stock grants and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

Compensation expense attributed to the equity grant, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the related tax gross-ups will be recognized in the first quarter of 1998 and compensation expense related to the new restricted stock grants and related tax gross-ups will be amortized to expense beginning in the first quarter of 1998 over the period in which the restrictions lapse. Total after-tax compensation expense to be recognized in the first quarter of 1998 related to these items is expected to be approximately $30 million.

DESCRIPTION OF OTHER INDEBTEDNESS

New Credit Facility

The Company is currently negotiating the terms of the New Credit Facility with a group of banks which the Company expects will provide for borrowings by the Company or one or more of its subsidiaries in the aggregate principal amount of $2.0 billion. The New Credit Facility is being arranged by an affiliate of the Initial Purchaser who has advised the Company that it is, subject to customary qualifications, highly confident that under current market and economic conditions a $2.0 billion credit facility can be successfully syndicated to financial institutions. It is expected that the facility will provide for one or more term loans in the aggregate principal amount of $1.5 billion which, together with the net proceeds of the Offering, will be used to finance the cash portion of the Acquisitions and the repayment of all or substantially all of the indebtedness of the Company and the acquired companies (see "Financing Plan and Use of Proceeds") and a $500 million revolving credit facility which will be available for general corporate purposes. It is expected that the term borrowings under the New Credit Facility will mature based on an amortization schedule to be negotiated, subject to certain mandatory earlier repayments customary for facilities of a similar nature, and that the revolving credit borrowings will mature seven years from the closing date of the New Credit Facility. It is expected that interest will accrue, at the Company's option, at LIBOR plus a spread margin to be negotiated or at the Agent's (as defined below) Base Rate (generally the higher of the Agent's prime rate or the Federal Funds Rate plus 1/2 of 1%) plus a spread to be negotiated. The Company does not yet have commitments from lenders to provide the New Credit Facility and, in any event, the New Credit Facility is subject to the negotiation and execution of definitive documentation and other customary conditions.

Securities and Guarantees. Borrowings under the New Credit Facility may be secured by (i) a pledge of the stock of each of the Company's subsidiaries and (ii) security interests in substantially all of the assets of the Company and its subsidiaries. The Company expects the New Credit Facility will be guaranteed by each of the Company's wholly-owned U.S. subsidiaries and that such subsidiary guarantees will be secured as described above. To the extent borrowings are made by any subsidiaries of the Company, the obligations of such subsidiaries will be guaranteed by the Company.

Covenants. The Company expects that the definitive New Credit Facility will contain various covenants customary for facilities of this type, including (among others) covenants restricting the incurrence of indebtedness, the payment of dividends and other restricted payments, the incurrence of liens, dispositions of assets, mergers and acquisitions, capital expenditures and loans and investments. In addition, it is expected that the New Credit Facility will require the Company to maintain various financial ratios, including a maximum leverage ratio, a minimum interest coverage ratio and a maximum fixed charge coverage ratio.

Defaults. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will provide for events of default customary for transactions of this type, including nonpayment, misrepresentation, breach of covenant, cross-defaults, bankruptcy, ERISA, judgments and change of ownership and control (including for this purpose a Fundamental Change.)

Other Debt

The Company intends to repay all or substantially all of the currently outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert as promptly as practicable following consummation of each Acquisition, subject to applicable notice provisions and other prepayment terms of the applicable indebtedness. Until such indebtedness is repaid, the Company will continue to be subject to the covenants and restrictions and limitations contained in the terms of such indebtedness. For additional information concerning outstanding indebtedness of the Company, CLN Holdings, Coleman, Signature Brands and First Alert see the consolidated financial statements set forth elsewhere herein.

DESCRIPTION OF DEBENTURES

The Debentures are to be issued under an indenture to be dated as of March 25, 1998 (the "Indenture"), between the Company and The Bank of New York, as trustee (the "Trustee"). A copy of the form of Indenture will be available from the Trustee upon request by a registered holder of the Debentures. The following summary of certain provisions of the Debentures and the Indenture does not purport to be complete and is subject to, and is qualified in its entirety by reference to, all the provisions of the Debentures and the Indenture including the definitions therein of certain terms that are not otherwise defined in this Offering Memorandum. Wherever particular provisions or defined terms of the Indenture (or of the form of Debenture which is a part thereof) are referred to, such provisions or defined terms are incorporated herein by reference. As used in this "Description of Debentures," the "Company" refers to Sunbeam Corporation only and does not, unless the context otherwise indicates, include its subsidiaries.

Holders of the Debentures will also have the benefit of a Registration Rights Agreement between the Company and the Initial Purchaser. Under the Registration Rights Agreement, the Company will agree to file the Shelf Registration Statement with the Commission covering resales of the Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion thereof. See "Registration Rights."

General

The Debentures will be unsecured general obligations of the Company subordinate in right of payment to the New Credit Facility and certain other secured obligations of the Company as described under "Subordination of Debentures" and convertible into Common Stock as described under "Conversion of Debentures." The Debentures will be limited to $2,316,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity (including $302,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity if the Initial Purchaser's over-allotment option is exercised in full) and will mature on March 25, 2018.

The Indenture does not contain any financial covenants or restrictions on the payment of dividends, the incurrence of indebtedness, including Senior Indebtedness (as defined below under "Subordination of Debentures"), or the issuance or repurchase of securities of the Company. The Indenture contains no covenants or other provisions to afford protection to holders of the Debentures in the event of a highly leveraged transaction or a change in control of the Company except to the extent described under "Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change."

The Debentures are being issued at a substantial discount from their stated redemption price at maturity. For U.S. federal income tax purposes, the excess of the stated redemption price at maturity of each Debenture over its issue price (which is expected to be the Issue Price) constitutes Original Issue Discount ("OID"). See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations." Maturity, conversion, purchase by the Company at the option of a holder or redemption of a Debenture will cause Original Issue Discount and interest, if any, to cease to accrue on such Debenture, under the terms and subject to the conditions of the Indenture. The Company may not reissue a Debenture that has matured or been converted, purchased by the Company at the option of a holder, redeemed or otherwise canceled (except for registration of transfer, exchange or replacement thereof).

The principal amount at maturity of each Debenture will be payable at the office or agency of the paying agent, initially the Trustee, in the Borough of Manhattan, The City of New York, or any other office of the paying agent maintained for such purpose. Debentures may be presented for conversion into Common Stock at the office of the conversion agent and Debentures in definitive form may be presented for exchange for other Debentures or registration of transfer at the office of the registrar, each such agent initially being the Trustee. The Company will not charge a service charge for any registration of transfer or exchange of Debentures; however, the Company may require payment by a holder of a sum sufficient to cover any tax, assessment or other governmental charge payable in connection therewith.

Form, Denomination and Registration

The Debentures will be issued in fully registered form, without coupons, in denominations of $1,000 principal amount at maturity and whole multiples thereof.

Global Debenture; Book-Entry Form. Debentures held by "qualified institutional buyers," as defined in Rule 144A under the Securities Act ("QIBs"), will be evidenced by a global Debenture (the "Global Debenture"), which will be deposited with, or on behalf of, The Depository Trust Company, New York, New York ("DTC") and registered in the name of Cede & Co. ("Cede"), as DTC's nominee. Except as set forth below, the Global Debenture may be transferred, in whole or in part, only to another nominee of DTC or to a successor of DTC or its nominee.

NOT A CERTIFIED COPY

CPH 1326534

16div-026366

QIBs may hold their interests in the Global Debenture directly through DTC, or indirectly through organizations which are participants in DTC (the "Participants"). Transfers between Participants will be effected in the ordinary way in accordance with DTC rules. The laws of some states require that certain persons take physical delivery of securities in definitive form. Consequently, the ability to transfer beneficial interests in the Global Debenture to such persons may be limited.

QIBs who are not Participants may beneficially own interests in the Global Debenture held by DTC only through Participants or certain banks, brokers, dealers, trust companies and other parties that clear through or maintain a custodial relationship with a Participant, either directly or indirectly ("Indirect Participants"). So long as Cede, as the nominee of DTC, is the registered owner of the Global Debenture, Cede for all purposes will be considered the sole holder of the Global Debenture. Except as provided below, owners of beneficial interests in the Global Debenture will not be entitled to have certificates registered in their names, will not receive or be entitled to receive physical delivery of certificates in definitive form, and will not be considered the holders thereof.

Payment of the redemption price and the purchase price of the Global Debenture as well as any Liquidated Damages (as defined) due on the Global Debenture arising out of the Company's failure to meet its obligations under the Registration Rights Agreement will be made to Cede, the nominee for DTC, as the registered owner of the Global Debenture by wire transfer of immediately available funds. Neither the Company, the Trustee nor any paying agent will have any responsibility or liability for any aspect of the records relating to or payments made on account of beneficial ownership interests in the Global Debenture or for maintaining, supervising or reviewing any records relating to such beneficial ownership interests.

The Company has been informed by DTC that, with respect to payment of Liquidated Damages (if any) on and the redemption price or the purchase price of the Global Debenture, DTC's practice is to credit Participants' accounts on the payment date therefor with payments in amounts proportionate to their respective beneficial interests in the Debentures represented by the Global Debenture as shown on the records of DTC (adjusted as necessary so that such payments are made with respect to whole Debentures only), unless DTC has reason to believe that it will not receive payment on such payment date. Payments by Participants to owners of beneficial interests in Debentures represented by the Global Debenture held through such Participants will be the responsibility of such Participants, as is now the case with securities held for the accounts of customers registered in "street name."

Holders who desire to convert their Debentures into Common Stock should contact their brokers or other Participants or Indirect Participants to obtain information on procedures, including proper forms and cut-off times, for submitting such request.

Because DTC can only act on behalf of Participants, who in turn act on behalf of Indirect Participants and certain banks, the ability of a person having a beneficial interest in the Debentures represented by the Global Debenture to pledge such interest to persons or entities that do not participate in the DTC system, or otherwise take actions in respect of such interest, may be affected by the lack of a physical certificate evidencing such interest.

Neither the Company nor the Trustee (or any registrar, paying agent or conversion agent under the Indenture) will have any responsibility for the performance by DTC or its Participants or Indirect Participants of their respective obligations under the rules and procedures governing their operations. DTC has advised the Company that it will take any action permitted to be taken by a holder of Debentures (including, without limitation, the presentation of Debentures for conversion as described below) only at the direction of one or more Participants to whose account with DTC interests in the Global Debenture are credited and only in respect of the principal amount of the Debentures represented by the Global Debenture as to which such Participant or Participants has or have given such direction.

DTC has advised the Company as follows: DTC is a limited purpose trust company organized under the laws of the State of New York, a member of the Federal Reserve System, a "clearing corporation" within the meaning of the Uniform Commercial Code and a "clearing agency" registered pursuant to the provisions of Section 17A of the Exchange Act. DTC was created to hold securities for its Participants and to facilitate the clearance and settlement of securities transactions between Participants through electronic book-entry changes to accounts of its Participants, thereby eliminating the need for physical movement of certificates. Participants include securities brokers and dealers, banks, trust companies and clearing corporations and may include certain other organizations such as the Initial Purchaser. Certain of such Participants (or their representatives), together with other entities, own DTC. Indirect access to the DTC system is available to others such as banks, brokers, dealers and trust companies that clear through, or maintain a custodial relationship with a Participant, either directly or indirectly.

Although DTC has agreed to the foregoing procedures in order to facilitate transfers of interests in the Global Debenture among participants of DTC, DTC is under no obligation to perform or continue to perform such procedures, and such procedures may be discontinued at any time. If DTC is at any time unwilling or unable to continue as depositary and a successor depositary is not appointed by the Company within 90 days, the Company will cause Debentures to be issued in definitive form in exchange for the Global Debenture.

Conveyance of notices and other communications by DTC to Participants, by Participants to Indirect Participants and Indirect Participants to beneficial owners will be governed by arrangements among them, subject to any statutory or regulatory requirements that may be in effect from time to time. Redemption notices shall be sent to Cede. If less than all of the Debentures are being redeemed, DTC will reduce the amount of the interest of each Participant in such Debentures in accordance with its procedures.

Certificated Debentures. Debentures sold to investors that are not QIBs will be issued in definitive registered form and may not be represented by the Global Debenture. QIBs may request that any Debentures they hold in definitive registered form be exchanged for interests in the Global Debenture. Certificated Debentures may be issued in exchange for Debentures represented by the Global Debenture if a depositary is unwilling or unable to continue as a depositary for the Global Debenture as set forth above under "Global Debenture; Book-Entry Form."

Restrictions on Transfer; Legends. The Debentures will be subject to certain transfer restrictions as described below under "Transfer Restrictions" and certificates evidencing the Debentures will bear a legend to such effect.

Conversion of Debentures

A holder of a Debenture may convert it into Common Stock of the Company at any time after 90 days following the latest date of original issuance of the Debentures through the close of business on March 25, 2018; provided that if a Debenture is called for redemption, the holder may convert it only until the close of business on the last trading day prior to the Redemption Date unless the Company defaults in the payment of the redemption price. A Debenture in respect of which a holder has delivered a Purchase Notice exercising the option of such holder to require the Company to purchase such Debenture may be converted only if such notice is withdrawn in accordance with the terms of the Indenture. Similarly, a Debenture in respect of which a holder is exercising its option to require redemption upon a Fundamental Change may be converted only if such holder withdraws its election to exercise its option in accordance with the terms of the Indenture. A holder may convert such holder's Debentures in part so long as such part is $1,000 principal amount at maturity or a whole multiple thereof.

The initial Conversion Rate is 6.575 shares of Common Stock per $1,000 principal amount at maturity of Debentures, subject to adjustment upon the occurrence of certain events, as described below. A holder entitled to a fractional share of Common Stock shall receive cash equal to the then current market value of such fractional share.

On conversion of a Debenture, a holder will not receive any cash payment representing accrued Original Issue Discount. The Company's delivery to the holder of the fixed number of shares of Common Stock into which the Debenture is convertible (together with the cash payment, if any, in lieu of fractional Common Stock) will be deemed to satisfy the Company's obligation to pay the principal amount of the Debenture including the accrued Original Issue Discount attributable to the period from the Issue Date to the Conversion Date. Thus, the accrued Original Issue Discount is deemed to be paid in full rather than canceled, extinguished or forfeited. The Conversion Rate will not be adjusted at any time during the term of the Debentures for such accrued Original Issue Discount.

To convert a certificated Debenture into Common Stock, a holder must (i) complete and manually sign the conversion notice on the back of the Debenture (or complete and manually sign a facsimile thereof) and deliver such notice to the conversion agent, (ii) surrender the Debenture to the conversion agent, (iii) if required, furnish appropriate endorsements and transfer documents, and (iv) if required, pay all transfer or similar taxes. The procedure for converting a Global Debenture is described above under "Form, Denomination and Registration—Global Debenture; Book-Entry Form." Pursuant to the Indenture, the date on which all of the foregoing requirements have been satisfied is the Conversion Date.

The Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures has not been registered under the Securities Act and is subject to certain restrictions on transfer. See "Registration Rights" and "Transfer Restrictions."

The Conversion Rate is subject to adjustment under formulae as set forth in the Indenture in certain events, including: (i) the issuance of Common Stock of the Company as a dividend or distribution on the Common Stock; (ii) certain subdivisions and combinations of the Common Stock; (iii) the issuance to all holders of Common Stock of certain rights or warrants to purchase Common Stock; (iv) the distribution to all holders of Common Stock of capital stock (other than Common Stock), of evidences of indebtedness of the Company or of assets (including securities (other than Common Stock), but excluding those rights and warrants referred to in clause (iii) above or paid in cash); (v) distributions consisting of cash, excluding any quarterly cash dividend on the Common Stock to the extent that the aggregate cash dividend per share of Common Stock in any quarter does not exceed the greater of (x) the amount per share of Common Stock of the next preceding quarterly cash dividend on the Common Stock to the extent that such preceding quarterly dividend did not require an adjustment of the Conversion Rate pursuant to this clause (v) (as adjusted to reflect subdivisions or combinations of the Common Stock), and (y) 3.75 percent of the average of the last reported sales price of the Common Stock during the ten trading days immediately prior to the date of declaration of such dividend, and excluding any dividend or distribution in connection with the liquidation, dissolution or winding up of the Company; (vi) payment in respect of a tender offer or exchange offer by the Company or any Subsidiary of the Company for the Common Stock to the extent that the cash and value of any other consideration included in such payment per share of Common Stock exceeds the Current Market Price (as defined) per share of Common Stock on the trading day next succeeding the last date on which tenders or exchanges may be made pursuant to such tender or exchange offer; and (vii) payment in respect of a tender offer or exchange offer by a person other than the Company or any Subsidiary (as defined) of the Company in which, as of the closing date of the offer, the Board of Directors is not recommending rejection of the offer. If an adjustment is required to be made as set forth in clause (v) above as a result of a distribution that is a quarterly dividend, such adjustment would be based upon the amount by which such distribution exceeds the amount of the quarterly cash dividend permitted to be excluded pursuant to clause (v) above. If an adjustment is required to be made as set forth in clause (v) above as a result of a distribution that is not a quarterly dividend, such adjustment would be based upon the full amount of the distribution. The adjustment referred to in clause (vii) above will only be made if the tender offer or exchange offer is for an amount that increases the offeror's ownership of Common Stock to more than 25% of the total shares of Common Stock outstanding, and if the cash and value of any other consideration included in such payment per share of Common Stock exceeds the Current Market Price per share of Common Stock on the business day next succeeding the last date on which tenders or exchanges may be made pursuant to such tender or exchange offer. The adjustment referred to in clause (vii) above will generally not be made, however, if as of the closing of such offer, the offering documents with respect to such offer disclose a plan or an intention to cause the Company to engage in a consolidation or merger of the Company or a sale of all or substantially all of the Company's assets.

No adjustment in the Conversion Rate will be required unless such adjustment would require a change of at least 1% in the rate then in effect; provided that any adjustment that would otherwise be required to be made shall be carried forward and taken into account in any subsequent adjustment. Except as stated above, the Conversion Rate will not be adjusted for the issuance of Common Stock or any securities convertible into or exchangeable for Common Stock or carrying the right to purchase any of the foregoing.

In the case of (i) any reclassification of the Common Stock, or (ii) a consolidation or merger involving the Company or a sale or conveyance to another corporation of the property and assets of the Company as an entirety or substantially as an entirety, in each case as a result of which holders of Common Stock shall be entitled to receive stock, securities, other property or assets (including cash) with respect to or in exchange for such Common Stock, the holders of the Debentures then outstanding will be entitled thereafter to convert such Debentures into the kind and amount of shares of stock, securities or other property or assets (including cash) which they would have owned or been entitled to receive upon such reclassification, consolidation, merger, sale or conveyance had such Debentures been converted immediately prior to such reclassification, consolidation, merger, sale or conveyance assuming that a holder of Debentures would not have exercised any rights of election as to the stock, securities or other property or assets (including cash) receivable in connection therewith.

In the event of a taxable distribution to holders of Common Stock or in certain other circumstances requiring an adjustment to the Conversion Rate, the holders of Debentures may, in certain circumstances, be deemed to have received a distribution subject to United States income tax as a dividend; in certain other circumstances, the absence of such an adjustment may result in a taxable dividend to the holders of Common Stock. See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations."

The Company from time to time may, to the extent permitted by law, increase the Conversion Rate by any amount for any period of at least 20 days, in which case the Company shall give at least 15 days' notice of such increase, if the Company's Board of Directors has made a determination that such increase would be in the best interests of the Company, which determination shall be conclusive. The Company may, at its option, make such increases in the Conversion Rate, in addition to those set forth above, as the Board of Directors deems advisable to avoid or diminish any income tax to holders of Common Stock resulting from any dividend or distribution of stock (or rights to acquire stock) or from any event treated as such for income tax purposes. See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations."

Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company

No sinking fund is provided for the Debentures. Prior to March 25, 2003, the Debentures will not be redeemable at the option of the Company. Beginning on March 25, 2003, the Company may (subject to applicable contractual restrictions including under agreements governing Senior Indebtedness) redeem the Debentures for cash as a whole at any time, or from time to time in part, upon not less than 30 days' nor more than 60 days' notice of redemption given by mail to holders of Debentures. The Debentures will be redeemable in whole multiples of $1,000 principal amount at maturity.

The table below shows Redemption Prices of a Debenture per $1,000 principal amount at maturity thereof, at March 25, 2003 and at each March 25, thereafter prior to maturity and at maturity on March 25, 2018, which prices reflect the accrued Original Issue Discount calculated to each such date. The Redemption Price of a Debenture redeemed between such dates would include an additional amount reflecting the additional Original Issue Discount accrued since the next preceding date in the table to the actual Redemption Date.

If less than all of the outstanding Debentures held in certificated form are to be redeemed, the Trustee shall select the Debentures held in such form to be redeemed in principal amounts at maturity of $1,000 or whole multiples thereof by lot, pro rata or by another method the Trustee considers fair and appropriate (as long as such method is not prohibited by the rules of any stock exchange on which the Debentures are then listed, if any). If a portion of a holder's certificated Debentures is selected for partial redemption and such holder converts a portion of such certificated Debentures, such converted portion shall be deemed to be the portion selected for redemption. Debentures registered in the name of DTC or its nominee will be redeemed pro rata as described under "—Form, Denomination and Registration—Global Debenture; Book-Entry Form."

Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change

If a Fundamental Change (as defined) occurs at any time prior to March 25, 2018, each holder of Debentures shall have the right, at the holder's option, to require the Company to redeem any or all of such holder's Debentures on the date (the "Repurchase Date") that is 45 days after the date of the Company's notice of such Fundamental Change. The Debentures will be redeemable in whole multiples of $1,000 principal amount at maturity at their accreted value on the Repurchase Date.

The Company shall redeem such Debentures at a price equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to, but excluding, the Repurchase Date, provided that if the Applicable Price (as defined) in connection with the Fundamental Change is less than the Reference Market Price (as defined), the Company shall redeem such Debentures at a price equal to the foregoing Redemption Price multiplied by the fraction obtained by dividing the Applicable Price by the Reference Market Price.

The Company shall mail to all holders of record of the Debentures a notice of the occurrence of a Fundamental Change and of the redemption right arising as a result thereof on or before the tenth day after the occurrence of such Fundamental Change. The Company shall deliver to the Trustee a copy of such notice. To exercise the redemption right, holders of Debentures must deliver, on or before the 30th day after the date of the Company's notice of a Fundamental Change (the "Fundamental Change Expiration Time"), the Debentures to be so redeemed, duly endorsed for transfer, together with the form entitled "Option to Elect Redemption Upon a Fundamental Change" on the reverse thereof duly completed, to the Company (or an agent designated by the Company for such purpose). Payment for Notes surrendered for redemption (and not withdrawn) prior to the Fundamental Change Expiration Time will be made promptly following the Repurchase Date.

The term "Fundamental Change" means the occurrence of any transaction or event in connection with which all or substantially all of the Common Stock shall be exchanged for, converted into, acquired for or constitute solely the right to receive consideration (whether by means of an exchange offer, liquidation, tender offer, consolidation, merger, combination, reclassification, recapitalization or otherwise) which is not all or substantially all common stock of a company listed (or, upon consummation of or immediately following such transaction or event, which will be listed) on a United States national securities exchange or approved for quotation on the Nasdaq National Market or any similar United States system of automated dissemination of quotations of securities prices.

The term "Applicable Price" means (i) in the event of a Fundamental Change in which the holders of the Common Stock receive only cash, the amount of cash received by the holder of one share of Common Stock and (ii) in the event of any other Fundamental Change, the average of the reported last sale price for the Common Stock during the ten trading days prior to the record date for the determination of the holders of Common Stock entitled to receive cash, securities, property or other assets in connection with such Fundamental Change, or, if there is no such record date, the date upon which the holders of the Common Stock shall have the right to receive such cash, securities, property or other assets in connection with the Fundamental Change.

The term "Reference Market Price" shall initially mean $30.2083 (which is equal to 66⅔% of the last sale price of the Common Stock as reflected on the cover page of this Offering Memorandum) and in the event of any adjustment to the Conversion Rate pursuant to the provisions of the Indenture, the Reference Market Price shall also be adjusted so that the Reference Market Price shall be equal to the initial Reference Market Price multiplied by a fraction the numerator of which is the Conversion Rate specified on the cover of this Offering Memorandum (without regard to any adjustment thereto) and the denominator of which is the Conversion Rate following such adjustment.

The Company will comply with the provisions of Rule 13e-4 and any other tender offer rules under the Exchange Act which may then be applicable in connection with the redemption rights of Debenture holders in the event of a Fundamental Change.

The redemption rights of the holders of Debentures could discourage a potential acquiror of the Company. The Fundamental Change redemption feature, however, is not the result of management's knowledge of any specific effort to obtain control of the Company by means of a merger, tender offer, solicitation or otherwise, or part of a plan by management to adopt a series of anti-takeover provisions.

The term "Fundamental Change" is limited to certain specified transactions and may not include other events that might adversely affect the financial condition of the Company, nor would the requirement that the Company offer to repurchase the Debentures upon a Fundamental Change necessarily afford the holders of the Debentures protection in the event of a highly leveraged transaction, reorganization, merger or similar transaction involving the Company.

No Debentures may be redeemed at the option of holders upon a Fundamental Change if there has occurred and is continuing an Event of Default described under "—Events of Default; Notice and Waiver" below (other than a default in the payment of the Fundamental Change Redemption Price with respect to such Debentures). In the event of a Fundamental Change and exercise by holders of the Debentures of their associated rights to require the Company to redeem all or a portion of their Debentures, there can be no assurance that the Company would have sufficient funds to pay the redemption price for all the Debentures tendered by the holders thereof. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will provide, and any future credit agreements (including an extension of the New Credit Facility) or other agreements relating to indebtedness (including Senior Indebtedness) to which the Company becomes a party also may provide, that a Fundamental Change would constitute an event of default thereunder permitting the lenders thereunder to accelerate the maturity thereof and thereby cause the subordination provisions in the Indenture to apply, preventing redemption of the Debentures until Senior Indebtedness thereunder is paid in full. Any such provisions could restrict or prohibit the redemption of the Debentures. If the Company is prohibited from redeeming the Debentures upon the occurrence of a Fundamental Change, the Company could seek the consent of its then existing lenders to redeem the Debentures or could attempt to refinance the borrowings that contain such prohibition. If the Company does not obtain such a consent or repay such borrowings, the Company would remain prohibited from redeeming the Debentures. In such case, the Company's failure to redeem Debentures required to be redeemed under the terms of the Indenture would constitute an Event of Default under the Indenture and would likely constitute a default under the terms of any other indebtedness of the Company outstanding at such time, including Senior Indebtedness. In such circumstances, or if a Fundamental Change would in and of itself constitute an event of default under agreements governing Senior Indebtedness then outstanding, the subordination provisions in the Indenture would prohibit or restrict payments to the holders of Debentures.

Purchase of Debentures at the Option of the Holder

On March 25, 2003, March 25, 2008 and March 25, 2013 (each, a "Purchase Date"), the Company will become obligated to purchase, at the option of the holder thereof, any outstanding Debenture for which a written Purchase Notice has been delivered by the holder to the office of the paying agent (initially the Trustee) at any time from the opening of business on the date that is 20 Business Days (as defined) prior to such Purchase Date until the close of business on such Purchase Date and for which such Purchase Notice has not been withdrawn, subject to certain additional conditions.

The Purchase Notice shall state (i) the certificate numbers of the Debentures to be delivered by the holder thereof for purchase by the Company; (ii) the portion of the principal amount at maturity of Debentures to be purchased, which portion must be $1,000 or a whole multiple thereof; (iii) that such Debentures are to be purchased by the Company pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Debentures; and (iv) in the event the Company elects, pursuant to the Company Notice (as defined), to pay the Purchase Price to be paid as of such Purchase Date in Common Stock, in whole or in part, but such Purchase Price is ultimately to be paid to such holder entirely in cash because any of the conditions to payment of the Purchase Price (or portion thereof) in Common Stock is not satisfied by the Purchase Date, as described below, whether such holder elects (x) to withdraw such Purchase Notice as to some or all of the Debentures to which it relates (stating the principal amount at maturity and certificate numbers of the Debentures as to which such withdrawal shall relate), or (y) to receive cash in respect of the entire Purchase Price for all Debentures subject to such Purchase Notice. If the holder fails to indicate, in the Purchase Notice and in any written notice of withdrawal relating to such Purchase Notice, such holder's choice with respect to the election described in clause (iv) above, such holder shall be deemed to have elected to receive cash in respect of the entire Purchase Price for all Debentures subject to such Purchase Notice in such circumstances. For a discussion of the tax treatment of a holder receiving cash or Common Stock pursuant to its election to tender its Debentures to the Company on a Purchase Date, see "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations."

Any Purchase Notice may be withdrawn by the holder by a written notice of withdrawal delivered to the paying agent prior to the close of business on the Purchase Date. The notice of withdrawal shall state the principal amount at maturity and the certificate numbers of the Debentures as to which the withdrawal notice relates and the principal amount at maturity, if any, which remains subject to the Purchase Notice.

The Purchase Price payable in respect of a Debenture shall be equal to the Issue Price plus accrued Original Issue Discount to the Purchase Date. The table below shows the Purchase Prices of a Debenture as of the specified Purchase Dates. The Company may elect to pay the Purchase Price payable as of any Purchase Date in cash or Common Stock or any combination thereof.

Purchase Date	Purchase Price
March 25, 2003	$476.75
March 25, 2008	610.27
March 25, 2013	781.20

If the Company elects to pay the Purchase Price, in whole or in part, in Common Stock, the number of shares to be delivered in respect of the portion of the Purchase Price to be paid in Common Stock shall be equal to such portion of the Purchase Price divided by the Market Price (as defined) of the Common Stock. However, no fractional shares of Common Stock will be delivered upon any purchase by the Company of Debentures through the delivery of Common Stock in payment, in whole or in part, of the Purchase Price. Instead, the Company will pay cash based on the Market Price for all fractional shares of Common Stock.

The Company will give notice (the "Company Notice") not less than 20 Business Days prior to the Purchase Date (the "Company Notice Date") to all holders at their addresses shown in the register of the registrar (and to beneficial owners as required by applicable law) stating, among other things, whether the Company will pay the Purchase Price of the Debentures in cash or Common Stock, or any combination thereof (specifying the percentage of each) and, if the Company elects to pay in Common Stock, in whole or in part, the method of calculating the Market Price of the Common Stock.

The "Market Price" means the average of the Sale Prices (as defined) of the Common Stock for the five trading day period ending on the third Business Day prior to the applicable Purchase Date (if the third Business Day prior to the applicable Purchase Date is a trading day or, if it is not a trading day, then on the last trading day prior to such third Business Day), appropriately adjusted to take into account the occurrence during the period commencing on the first of such trading days during such five trading day period and ending on such Purchase Date of certain events that would result in an adjustment of the Conversion Rate under the Indenture with respect to the Common Stock. The "Sale Price" of the Common Stock on any date means the closing per share sale price (or if no closing sale price is reported, the average bid and ask prices or, if more than one in either case, the average of the average bid and average ask prices) on such date as reported in the composite transactions for the principal United States securities exchange on which the Common Stock is traded or, if the Common Stock is not listed on a United States national or regional stock exchange, as reported by the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation System. Because the Market Price of the Common Stock is determined prior to the applicable Purchase Date, holders of Debentures bear the market risk with respect to the value of the Common Stock to be received from the date of determination of such Market Price to such Purchase Date. The Company may elect to pay the Purchase Price in Common Stock only if the information necessary to calculate the Market Price is reported in a daily newspaper of national circulation.

020615

Upon determination of the actual number of shares of Common Stock in accordance with the foregoing provisions, the Company will publish such determination in a daily newspaper of national circulation.

The Company's right to purchase Debentures with Common Stock is subject to the satisfaction of various conditions, including: (i) the registration of the Common Stock under the Securities Act, if required; and (ii) compliance with other applicable federal and state securities laws, if any. If such conditions are not satisfied by a Purchase Date, the Company will pay the Purchase Price of the Debentures to be purchased on such Purchase Date entirely in cash. See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations." The Company will comply with the provisions of Rule 13e-4 and any other tender offer rules under the Exchange Act which may then be applicable and will file a Schedule 13E-4 or any other schedule required thereunder in connection with any offer by the Company to purchase Debentures at the option of holders.

Payment of the Purchase Price for a Debenture for which a Purchase Notice has been delivered and not withdrawn is conditioned upon book-entry transfer or delivery of such Debenture (together with necessary endorsements) to the paying agent at its office in the Borough of Manhattan, The City of New York, or any other office of the paying agent maintained for such purpose, at any time (whether prior to, on or after the Purchase Date) after delivery of such Purchase Notice. Payment of the Purchase Price for such Debenture will be made promptly following the later of the Purchase Date or the time of book-entry transfer or delivery of such Debenture. If the paying agent holds, in accordance with the terms of the Indenture, money or securities sufficient to pay the Purchase Price of such Debenture on the Business Day following the Purchase Date, then, on and after such date, such Debenture will cease to be outstanding and Original Issue Discount on such Debenture will cease to accrue whether or not book-entry transfer of such Debenture is made or such Debenture is delivered to the paying agent, and all other rights of the holder shall terminate (other than the right to receive the Purchase Price upon delivery of the Debenture).

No Debentures may be purchased at the option of the holder for cash if there has occurred (prior to, on or after the giving by the holders of such Debentures of the required Purchase Notice) and is continuing an Event of Default described under "Events of Default; Notice and Waiver" below (other than a default in the payment of the Purchase Price with respect to such Debentures).

If the Company becomes obligated to purchase any outstanding Debenture on a Purchase Date, there can be no assurance that the Company would have sufficient funds to pay the Purchase Price on that Purchase Date (in which case, the Company could be required to issue shares of Common Stock to pay the Purchase Price at valuations based on then prevailing market prices) for all the Debentures tendered by the holders thereof. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will prohibit the purchase of the Debentures for cash but will permit the purchase of Debentures with shares of Common Stock on a Purchase Date. There can be no assurance that any future credit agreements (including an extension of the New Credit Facility) or other agreements relating to indebtedness (including Senior Indebtedness) to which the Company becomes a party will not contain prohibitions on or defaults with respect to the repurchase of the Debentures or provide that prepayment or redemption would constitute an event of default. In the event a Purchase Date occurs at a time when the Company is prohibited from repurchasing the Debentures, the Company could seek the consent of its then existing lenders to repurchase the Debentures or could attempt to refinance the borrowings that contain such prohibition. If the Company does not obtain such a consent or repay such borrowings, the Company would remain prohibited from repurchasing the Debentures. The Company's failure to repurchase Debentures required to be repurchased under the terms of the Indenture would constitute an Event of Default under the Indenture and would likely constitute a default under the terms of any other indebtedness of the Company outstanding at such time, including Senior Indebtedness. In such circumstances, the subordination provisions in the Indenture would prohibit or restrict payments to the holders of Debentures.

Subordination of Debentures

The Indebtedness evidenced by the Debentures is subordinated to the extent provided in the Indenture to the prior payment in full in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness of all existing and future Senior Indebtedness. Such subordination will not prevent the occurrence of any Event of Default under the Indenture.

Upon any distribution of assets of the Company upon any dissolution, winding up, voluntary or involuntary bankruptcy, insolvency, liquidation, reorganization, receivership or similar proceeding relating to the Company or its property, an assignment for the benefit of creditors or any marshaling of the Company's assets or liabilities, the holders of Senior Indebtedness will be entitled to receive payment in full, in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness, of all obligations due in respect of such Senior Indebtedness before the holders of Debentures will be entitled to receive any payment of the principal amount at maturity, Issue Price, accrued Original Issue Discount, Redemption Price, Purchase Price, Fundamental Change Redemption Price, interest, if any, Liquidated Damages, if any, or any other payment in respect of the Debentures (a "Payment on the Debentures"), and until all obligations with respect to Senior Indebtedness are paid in full in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness, any Payment on the Debentures to which the holders of Debentures would be entitled shall be made to the holders of Senior Indebtedness. By reason of the subordination, in the event of the Company's dissolution, winding up, bankruptcy, insolvency, liquidation, reorganization, receivership or similar proceeding relating to the Company or its property, an assignment for the benefit of creditors or any marshaling of the Company's assets or liabilities, holders of Senior Indebtedness may receive more, ratably, and the holders of Debentures may receive less, ratably, than the other creditors of the Company.

In the event that the Debentures are declared due and payable prior to their stated maturity by reason of the occurrence of an Event of Default, then the Company is obligated to notify promptly holders of Senior Indebtedness of such acceleration. The Company may not pay monies owed pursuant to the Debentures until 120 days have passed after such acceleration occurs and may thereafter pay the Debentures if the terms of the Indenture otherwise permit payment at that time.

The Company also may not make any Payment on the Debentures if (i) a default in any payment obligations in respect of Senior Indebtedness occurs and is continuing, without regard to any applicable period of grace (whether at maturity or at a date fixed for payment or by declaration or otherwise) (each a "payment default") or (ii) any other default occurs and is continuing with respect to Designated Senior Indebtedness that permits holders of the Designated Senior Indebtedness as to which such default relates to accelerate its maturity and the Trustee receives a notice of such default (a "Payment Blockage Notice") from the Company or from a representative for any issue of Designated Senior Indebtedness. Payments on the Debentures may and shall be resumed (a) in case of a payment default, the earlier of the date on which such default is cured or waived in accordance with the terms of the governing instrument or ceases to exist and (b) in case of a nonpayment default, the earlier of the date on which such nonpayment default is cured or waived in accordance with the terms of the governing instrument or ceases to exist or 179 days after the date on which the applicable Payment Blockage Notice is received by the Trustee if the terms of the Indenture otherwise permit payment at that time. No new period of payment blockage may be commenced pursuant to a Payment Blockage Notice unless and until 365 days have elapsed since the initial effectiveness of the immediately prior Payment Blockage Notice. No nonpayment default that existed or was continuing on the date of delivery of any Payment Blockage Notice to the Trustee shall be, or shall be made, the basis for a subsequent Payment Blockage Notice unless such default shall have been cured or waived for a period of not less than 90 days (it being acknowledged that (x) any action of the Company or any of its subsidiaries occurring subsequent to delivery of a Payment Blockage Notice that would give rise to any event of default pursuant to any provision of Senior Indebtedness under which an event of default previously existed (or was continuing at the time of delivery of such Payment Blockage Notice) shall constitute a new event of default for this purpose and (y) any breach of a financial covenant giving rise to a nonpayment default for a period ending subsequent to the date of delivery of the respective Payment Blockage Notice shall constitute a new event of default for this purpose).

The term "Senior Indebtedness" means the principal of, premium, if any, interest (including all interest accruing subsequent to, or which would accrue but for, the commencement of any bankruptcy or similar proceeding, whether or not a claim for post-petition interest is allowable as a claim in any such proceeding), original issue discount, rent and end of term payments payable on or in connection with, and, to the extent not included in the foregoing, all amounts payable as fees, costs, expenses, liquidated damages, indemnities, repurchase and other put obligations and other amounts to the extent accrued or due on or in connection with, Secured Indebtedness (as defined) of the Company, whether outstanding on the date of the Indenture or thereafter created, incurred, assumed, guaranteed or in effect guaranteed by the Company (including all deferrals, renewals, extensions or refundings of, or amendments, modifications or supplements to, the foregoing). Notwithstanding the foregoing, the term Senior Indebtedness shall not include (i) Indebtedness of the Company to any subsidiary of the Company, a majority of the voting stock of which is owned, directly or indirectly, by the Company, (ii) accounts payable or other indebtedness to trade creditors created or assumed by the Company in the ordinary course of business and (iii) any particular Indebtedness in which the instrument creating or evidencing the same or the assumption or guarantee thereof expressly provides that such Indebtedness shall not be senior in right of payment to, or is pari passu with, or is subordinated or junior to, the Debentures.

The term "Indebtedness" means, with respect to any Person (as defined) and without duplication: (a) all indebtedness, obligations and other liabilities (contingent or otherwise) of such Person for borrowed money (including obligations of the Company in respect of overdrafts, foreign exchange contracts, currency exchange agreements, interest rate protection agreements, and any loans or advances, whether or not evidenced by notes or similar instruments) or evidenced by bonds, debentures, notes or similar instruments (whether or not the recourse of the lender is to the whole of the assets of such Person or to only a portion thereof); (b) all reimbursement obligations and other liabilities (contingent or otherwise) of such Person with respect to letters of credit, bank guarantees, bankers' acceptances or similar facilities; (c) all obligations and liabilities (contingent or otherwise) in respect of leases of such Person (i) required, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles, to be accounted for as capitalized lease obligations on the balance sheet of such Person, or (ii) required, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles, to be accounted for as an operating lease, provided either (A) such operating lease requires, at the end of the term thereof, that such Person make any payment other than accrued periodic rent in the event that such Person does not acquire the leased real property and related fixtures subject to such lease or (B) such Person has an option to acquire the leased real property and related fixtures, whether such option is exercisable at any time or under specified circumstances; (d) all obligations of such Person (contingent or otherwise) with respect to an interest rate swap, cap or collar agreement or other similar instrument or agreement or foreign currency hedge or exchange agreement or other similar instrument or agreement; (e) all direct or indirect guaranties or similar agreements by such Person in respect of, and obligations or liabilities (contingent or otherwise) of such Person to purchase or otherwise acquire or otherwise assure a creditor against loss in respect of, indebtedness, obligations or liabilities of another Person of the kind described in clauses (a) through (d); (f) any indebtedness or other obligations described in clauses (a) through (d) secured by any mortgage, pledge, lien or other encumbrance existing on property which is owned or held by such Person, regardless of whether the indebtedness or other obligation secured thereby shall have been assumed by such Person; and (g) any and all deferrals, renewals, extensions and refundings of, or amendments, modifications or supplements to, any indebtedness, obligation or liability of the kind described in clauses (a) through (f).

The term "Designated Senior Indebtedness" means (i) Senior Indebtedness incurred under the New Credit Facility or (ii) any other particular Senior Indebtedness in which the instrument creating or evidencing the same or the assumption or guarantee thereof (or related agreements or documents to which the Company is a party) expressly provides that such Senior Indebtedness shall be "Designated Senior Indebtedness" for purposes of the Indenture; provided that such instrument, agreement or other document may place limitations and conditions on the right of such Senior Indebtedness to exercise the rights of Designated Senior Indebtedness.

The term "Secured Indebtedness" means, with respect to any Person, Indebtedness of such Person secured by any mortgage, pledge, lien or other encumbance existing on the property or assets which is owned or held by such Person.

The Debentures are obligations exclusively of the Company. Since the operations of the Company are conducted through subsidiaries, the cash flow and the consequent ability to service debt, including the Debentures, are dependent upon the earnings of its subsidiaries and the distribution of those earnings to, or upon loans or other payments of funds by those subsidiaries to, the Company. The subsidiaries are separate and distinct legal entities and have no obligation, contingent or otherwise, to pay any amount pursuant to the Debentures or to make any funds available therefor, whether by dividends, loans or other payments. In addition, the payment of dividends and making of loans and advances to the Company by its subsidiaries are subject to statutory or contractual restrictions, including those expected under the New Credit Facility, are contingent upon the earnings of those subsidiaries and are subject to various business considerations.

Any right of the Company to receive assets of any of its subsidiaries upon their liquidation or reorganization (and the consequent right of the holders of the Debentures to participate in those assets) will be effectively subordinated to the claims of that subsidiary's creditors (including trade creditors), except to the extent that the Company is itself recognized as a creditor of such subsidiary, in which case the claims of the Company would still be subordinate to any security interests in the assets of such subsidiary and any indebtedness of such subsidiary senior to that held by the Company.

At December 28, 1997, on a pro forma basis after giving effect to the Acquisitions, the Bank Financing, the Offering and the application of the net proceeds therefrom, approximately $1,294 million of Senior Indebtedness would have been outstanding and the Company's subsidiaries would have had approximately $731 million of indebtedness and other liabilities outstanding (excluding intercompany liabilities and liabilities of a type not required to be reflected on a balance sheet in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles) to which the Debentures would have been effectively subordinated. The Debentures rank pari passu with all outstanding indebtedness and other liabilities of the Company, including trade payables. Upon the consummation of the Offering, on a pro forma basis the Company will have no outstanding indebtedness or other liabilities other than trade payables. The Indenture will not limit the amount of additional indebtedness, including Senior Indebtedness, which the Company can create, incur, assume or guarantee, nor will the Indenture limit the amount of indebtedness which any subsidiary can create, incur, assume or guarantee.

In the event that, notwithstanding the foregoing, the Trustee or any holder of the Debentures receives any payment or distribution of assets of the Company of any kind in contravention of any of the subordination provisions of the Indenture, whether in cash, property or securities, including, without limitation, by way of set-off or otherwise, in respect of the Debentures before all Senior Indebtedness is paid in full in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness, then such payment or distribution will be held by the recipient in trust for the benefit of holders of Senior Indebtedness or their representatives to the extent necessary to make payment in full in cash or other payment satisfactory to the holders of Senior Indebtedness of all Senior Indebtedness remaining unpaid, after giving effect to any concurrent payment or distribution, or provision therefor, to or for the holders of Senior Indebtedness.

The Company is obligated to pay reasonable compensation to the Trustee and to indemnify the Trustee against certain losses, liabilities or expenses incurred by it in connection with its duties relating to the Debentures. The Trustee's claims for such payments will generally be senior to those of holders of the Debentures in respect of all funds collected or held by the Trustee.

Events of Default; Notice and Waiver

The Indenture provides that, if an Event of Default specified therein shall have occurred and be continuing, either the Trustee or the holders of not less than 25% in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the Debentures then outstanding may declare the Issue Price of the Debentures plus the Original Issue Discount on the Debentures and any liquidated damages under the Registration Rights Agreement accrued to the date of such declaration to be immediately due and payable, but if the Company shall cure all defaults (except the nonpayment of Issue Price and accrued Original Issue Discount which shall have become due by acceleration) and certain other conditions are met, such declaration may be annulled and past defaults may be waived by the holders of a majority in principal amount at maturity of the Debentures then outstanding. In the case of certain events of bankruptcy or insolvency, the Issue Price of the Debentures plus the Original Issue Discount accrued thereon to the occurrence of such event shall automatically become and be immediately due and payable. Under certain circumstances, the holders of a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures may rescind any such acceleration with respect to the Debentures and its consequences. Interest shall accrue at the rate of 5.0% per annum and be payable on demand upon a default in the payment of the Issue Price, accrued Original Issue Discount, accrued liquidated damages, if any, or any Redemption Price, Purchase Price or Fundamental Change Redemption Price to the extent that payment of such interest shall be legally enforceable.

Under the Indenture, Events of Default are defined as: (i) default in payment of the principal amount at maturity, Issue Price, accrued Original Issue Discount, accrued Liquidated Damages, if any, Redemption Price, Purchase Price or Fundamental Change Redemption Price with respect to any Debenture when such becomes due and payable (whether or not payment is prohibited by the subordination provisions of the Indenture), provided that in the case of any failure to pay Liquidated Damages, such failure continues for a period of 30 days; (ii) failure by the Company to comply with any of its other agreements in the Debentures or the Indenture upon the receipt by the Company of notice of such default by the Trustee or by holders of not less than 25% in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the Debentures then outstanding and the Company's failure to cure such default within 60 days after receipt by the Company of such notice; or (iii) certain events of bankruptcy or insolvency.

The Trustee shall give notice to holders of the Debentures of any continuing default known to the Trustee within 90 days after the occurrence thereof, provided that the Trustee may withhold such notice if it determines in good faith that withholding the notice is in the interests of the holders.

The holders of a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures may direct the time, method and place of conducting any proceeding for any remedy available to the Trustee or exercising any trust or power conferred on the Trustee; provided that such direction shall not be in conflict with any law or the Indenture and subject to certain other limitations. Before proceeding to exercise any right or power under the Indenture at the direction of such holders, the Trustee shall be entitled to receive from such holders reasonable security or indemnity satisfactory to it against the costs, expenses and liabilities which might be incurred by it in complying with any such direction. No holder of any Debenture will have any right to pursue any remedy with respect to the Indenture or the Debentures, unless (i) such holder shall have previously given the Trustee written notice of a continuing Event of Default; (ii) the holders of at least 25% in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures shall have made a written request to the Trustee to pursue such remedy; (iii) such holder or holders have offered to the Trustee reasonable indemnity satisfactory to the Trustee; (iv) the holders of a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures have not given the Trustee a direction inconsistent with such request within 60 days after receipt of such request; and (v) the Trustee shall have failed to comply with the request within such 60-day period.

In the event that the Debentures are declared due and payable prior to their stated maturity by reason of the occurrence of an Event of Default, then the Company is obligated to notify promptly holders of Senior Indebtedness of such acceleration. The Company may not pay monies owed pursuant to the Debentures until 120 days have passed after such acceleration occurs and may thereafter pay the Debentures if the terms of the Indenture otherwise permit payment at that time.

However, the right of any holder (x) to receive payment of the principal amount at maturity, Issue Price, accrued Original Issue Discount, Redemption Price, Purchase Price, Fundamental Change Redemption Price and any interest in respect of a default in the payment of any such amounts on a Debenture, on or after the due date expressed in such Debenture, (y) to institute suit for the enforcement of any such payments or conversion or (z) to convert Debentures shall not be impaired or adversely affected without such holder's consent. The holders of at least a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the outstanding Debentures may waive an existing default and its consequences, other than (i) any default in any payment on the Debentures, (ii) any default with respect to the conversion rights of the Debentures or (iii) any default in respect of certain covenants or provisions in the Indenture which may not be modified without the consent of the holder of each Debenture as described in "Modification" below. The Company will be required to furnish to the Trustee annually a statement as to any default by the Company in the performance and observance of its obligations under the Indenture.

Mergers and Sales of Assets by the Company

The Company may not consolidate with or merge into any other person or convey, transfer or lease its properties and assets substantially as an entirety to another person, unless, among other items, (i) the resulting, surviving or transferee person (if other than the Company) is organized and existing under the laws of the United States, any state thereof or the District of Columbia, (ii) such successor person assumes all obligations of the Company under the Debentures and the Indenture and (iii) the Company or such successor person shall not immediately thereafter be in default under the Indenture. Upon the assumption of the Company's obligations by such person in such circumstances, subject to certain exceptions, the Company shall be discharged from all obligations under the Debentures and the Indenture. Certain such transactions which would constitute a Fundamental Change would permit each holder to require the Company to redeem the Debentures of such holder as described under "Redemption at Option of the Holder Upon a Fundamental Change."

Modification

Modification and amendment of the Indenture or the Debentures may be effected by the Company and the Trustee with the consent of the holders of not less than a majority in aggregate principal amount at maturity of the Debentures then outstanding. Notwithstanding the foregoing, no such amendment may, without the consent of each holder affected thereby: (i) reduce the principal amount at maturity, Issue Price, Purchase Price, Fundamental Change Redemption Price or Redemption Price, or extend the stated maturity of any Debenture or alter the manner or rate of accrual of Original Issue Discount or interest, or make any Debenture payable in money or securities other than that stated in the Debenture; (ii) make any change to the principal amount at maturity of Debentures whose holders must consent to an amendment or any waiver under the Indenture or modify the Indenture provisions relating to such amendments or waivers; (iii) make any change that adversely affects the right to convert any Debenture or the right to require the Company to purchase a Debenture or the right to require the Company to redeem a Debenture upon a Fundamental Change; (iv) modify the provisions of the Indenture relating to the subordination of the Debentures in a manner adverse to the holders of the Debentures in any material respect; or (v) impair the right to institute suit for the enforcement of any payment with respect to, or conversion of, the Debentures. The Indenture also provides for certain modifications of its terms without the consent of the holders. No amendment may be made to the subordination provisions of the Indenture that adversely affects the rights of any holder of Senior Indebtedness then outstanding, unless the holders of such Senior Indebtedness (as required pursuant to the terms of such Senior Indebtedness) consent to such change.

Limitations of Claims in Bankruptcy

If a bankruptcy proceeding is commenced in respect of the Company, the claim of the holder of a Debenture is, under Title 11 of the United States Code, limited to the Issue Price of the Debenture plus that portion of the Original Issue Discount that has accrued from the date of issue to the commencement of the proceeding. In addition, the Debentures will be subordinated in right of payment to Senior Indebtedness to the extent set forth in the Indenture and effectively subordinated to the indebtedness and other obligations of the Company's subsidiaries. See "Subordination of Debentures" above.

Taxation of Debentures

See "Certain United States Federal Income Tax Considerations" for a discussion of certain tax considerations relevant to a holder of Debentures.

Rule 144A Information Requirement

The Company has agreed to furnish to the holders or beneficial holders of the Debentures or Common Stock issued upon conversion thereof and prospective purchasers of the Debentures or such Common Stock designated by such holders, upon their request, the information required to be delivered pursuant to Rule 144A(d)(4) under the Securities Act until such time as such securities are no longer "restricted securities" within the meaning of Rule 144 under the Securities Act (assuming such securities have not been owned by an affiliate of the Company).

Information Concerning the Trustee

The Bank of New York, as Trustee under the Indenture, has been appointed by the Company as paying agent, conversion agent, registrar and custodian with regard to the Debentures. The Indenture provides that, except during the continuance of an Event of Default, the Trustee thereunder will exercise such rights and powers vested in it under the Indenture and use the same degree of care and skill in its exercise as a prudent person would exercise under the circumstances in the conduct of such person's own affairs.

The Indenture and provisions of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939, as amended ("TIA"), incorporated by reference therein contain limitations on the rights of the Trustee thereunder, should it become a creditor of the Company, to obtain payment of certain claims in certain cases or to realize on certain property received by it in respect of any such claims, as security or otherwise. The Trustee is permitted to engage in other transactions; provided, however, that if it acquires any conflicting interest (within the meaning of the TIA) it must eliminate such conflicting interest or resign.

REGISTRATION RIGHTS

A copy of the Registration Rights Agreement will be available from the Trustee upon request by a registered holder of the Debentures. The following summary of certain provisions of the Registration Rights Agreement does not purport to be complete and is subject to, and is qualified in its entirety by reference to, all the provisions of the Registration Rights Agreement, including the definitions of certain terms that are not otherwise defined in this Offering Memorandum. The Company will enter into a registration rights agreement with the Initial Purchaser (the "Registration Rights Agreement") pursuant to which the Company, at its expense, will, for the benefit of the holders, file with the Commission the Shelf Registration Statement covering resale of the Registrable Securities as soon as practicable, but in any event within 90 days after the first date of original issuance of the Debentures. The Company will use its best efforts to cause the Shelf Registration Statement to become effective as promptly as is practicable, but in any event within 180 days of such first date of original issuance and to keep the Shelf Registration Statement effective until the earlier of (i) the sale pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement of all the securities registered thereunder and (ii) the expiration of the holding period applicable to such securities held by persons that are not affiliates of the Company under Rule 144(k) under the Securities Act, or any successor provision, subject to certain permitted exceptions. The Company will be permitted to suspend the use of the prospectus that is a part of the Shelf Registration Statement under certain circumstances relating to pending corporate developments, public filings with the Commission and similar events for a period not to exceed 30 days in any three-month period or not to exceed an aggregate of 90 days in any 12-month period; provided, however, that the Company will be permitted to suspend the use of the prospectus for a period not to exceed 60 days in any 3-month period or 90 days in any 12-month period under certain circumstances relating to probable acquisitions, acquisitions, financings or similar transactions. The Company will agree to pay predetermined liquidated damages as described herein ("Liquidated Damages") to holders of Debentures and holders of Common Stock issued upon conversion of the Debentures if the Shelf Registration Statement is not timely filed or made effective or if the prospectus is unavailable for periods in excess of those permitted above. Such Liquidated Damages shall accrue until such failure to file or become effective or unavailability is cured, (i) in respect of any Debenture, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% for the first 90 day period after the occurrence of such event and 0.5% thereafter on an amount equal to the sum of the Issue Price of the Debenture plus accrued Original Issue Discount thereon and, (ii) in respect of each share of Common Stock, at a rate per annum equal to 0.25% for the first 90 day period and 0.5% thereafter on the then applicable conversion price for a share of Common Stock which equals the Issue Price of $1,000 principal amount at maturity of Debentures plus accrued Original Issue Discount thereon divided by the Conversion Rate in effect. A holder who sells Debentures and Common Stock issued upon conversion of the Debentures pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement generally will be required to be named as a selling stockholder in the related prospectus, deliver a prospectus to purchasers of such Debentures and/or Common Stock issued upon conversion thereof and be bound by certain provisions of the Registration Rights Agreement that are applicable to such holder (including certain indemnification provisions). The Company will pay all expenses of the Shelf Registration Statement, provide to each registered holder copies of such prospectus, notify each registered holder when the Shelf Registration Statement has become effective and take certain other actions as are required to permit, subject to the foregoing, unrestricted resales of the Debentures and the Common Stock issued upon conversion of the Debentures. The plan of distribution of the Shelf Registration Statement will permit resales of Registrable Securities by selling security holders through brokers and dealers.

Attached to this Offering Memorandum as Appendix B is a notice and questionnaire (the "Questionnaire") to be completed and delivered by a holder to the Company at least three business days prior to any intended distribution of Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement. Holders are required to complete and deliver the Questionnaire prior to the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement so that such holders may be named as selling stockholders in the related prospectus at the time of effectiveness. Upon receipt of such a completed Questionnaire, together with such other information as may be reasonably requested by the Company, from a holder following the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement, the Company will, as promptly as practicable but in any event within five business days of such receipt, file such amendments to the Shelf Registration Statement or supplements to the related prospectus as are necessary to permit such holder to deliver such prospectus to purchasers of Registrable Securities (subject to the Company's right to suspend the use of the prospectus as described above). The Company has agreed to pay Liquidated Damages in the amount set forth above to such holder if the Company fails to make such filing in the time required or, if such filing is a post-effective amendment to the Shelf Registration Statement required to be declared effective under the Securities Act, if such amendment is not declared effective within 45 days of the filing thereof. Any holder that does not complete and deliver a Questionnaire or provide such other information will not be named as a selling stockholder in the prospectus and therefore will not be permitted to sell any Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement.

DESCRIPTION OF CAPITAL STOCK

The Company's authorized capital stock consists of 200,000,000 shares of Common Stock, par value $.01 per share and 2,000,000 shares of preferred stock, par value $.01 per share.

Common Stock

As of February 27, 1998, there were 86,457,201 shares of Common Stock outstanding. Each share of Common Stock has one vote on all matters upon which stockholders are entitled or permitted to vote, including the election of directors. There are no cumulative voting rights. Shares of Common Stock would participate ratably in any distribution of assets in a liquidation, dissolution or winding up of the Company, subject to prior distribution rights of any shares of preferred stock then outstanding. The Common Stock has no preemptive rights or conversion rights nor are there any redemption or sinking fund provisions applicable to the Common Stock. Holders of Common Stock are entitled to participate in dividends as and when declared by the Company's Board of Directors out of funds legally available therefor. The Company's ability to pay cash dividends is subject to certain restrictions. The Company expects that the New Credit Facility will contain limitations on the ability of the Company to pay dividends. The Company's Proxy Statement for its next annual meeting which is scheduled for May 13, 1998, includes an amendment to the Company's Restated Certificate of Incorporation increasing the total number of authorized shares of Common Stock to 500,000,000 shares from 200,000,000 shares.

The transfer agent and registrar for the Common Stock is The Bank of New York.

Preferred Stock

There are no shares of preferred stock currently outstanding. The Certificate of Incorporation provides that the Board of Directors of the Company may authorize the issuance of one or more series of preferred stock having such rights, including voting, conversion and redemption rights, and such preferences, including dividend and liquidation preferences, as the Board may determine without any further action by the stockholders of the Company.

Delaware General Corporation Law Section 203

Section 203 of the Delaware General Corporation Law (the "DGCL") prohibits certain transactions between a Delaware corporation and an "interested stockholder," which is defined as a person who, together with any affiliate and/or associates of such person, beneficially owns, directly or indirectly, 15% or more of the outstanding voting shares of a Delaware corporation. This provision prohibits certain business combinations (defined broadly to include mergers, consolidations, sales or other dispositions of assets having an aggregate value in excess of 10% of the consolidated assets of the corporation or the aggregate value of all of the outstanding capital stock of the corporation, and certain transactions that would increase the interested stockholder's proportionate share ownership in the corporation) between an interested stockholder and a corporation for a period of three years after the date the interested stockholder acquired its stock, unless (i) the business combination is approved by the corporation's board of directors prior to the date the interested stockholder acquired shares, (ii) the interested stockholder acquired at least 85% of the voting stock of the corporation in the transaction in which it became an interested stockholder or (iii) the business combination is approved by a majority of the board of directors and by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the votes entitled to be cast by disinterested stockholders at an annual or special meeting. Any future election to opt out of Section 203 can be effected only by an amendment to the Certificate of Incorporation or the Bylaws. Any such election would not be effective until 12 months after the adoption of such amendment and would not apply to a business combination with any interested stockholder who became such on or prior to the date of adoption.

CERTAIN UNITED STATES FEDERAL INCOME TAX CONSIDERATIONS

The following is a summary of certain material U.S. federal income tax considerations relating to the purchase, ownership and disposition of the Debentures and Common Stock to a holder of a Debenture or Common Stock that is, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, (i) a citizen or resident of the United States, (ii) a corporation, partnership or other entity created or organized in or under the laws of the United States or any political subdivision thereof, (iii) an estate, the income of which is subject to United States federal income taxation regardless of its source, or (iv) a trust, the administration of which is subject to the primary supervision of a court within the United States and which has one or more United States persons with authority to control all substantial decisions. This summary is based on laws regulations, rulings and decisions now in effect, all of which are subject to change, possibly with retroactive effect. There can be no assurance that the Internal Revenue Service (the "IRS") will not challenge one or more of the tax consequences described herein, and the Company has not obtained, nor does it intend to obtain, a ruling from the IRS or an opinion of counsel as to any U.S. federal income tax consequences relating to the Debentures.

This summary deals only with holders of Debentures who purchase the Debentures pursuant to the Offering and hold the Debentures and any Common Stock into which the Debentures are converted as capital assets. This summary does not address tax considerations applicable to investors that may be subject to special tax rules (including, without limitation, banks, insurance companies, tax-exempt entities, regulated investment companies, common trust funds, dealers in securities, or persons who hold Debentures or Common Stock as part of a hedge conversion or constructive sale transaction, straddle or other risk reduction transaction). This discussion also does not address the tax consequences arising under the laws of any foreign, state or local jurisdiction.

INVESTORS CONSIDERING THE PURCHASE OF A DEBENTURE SHOULD CONSULT THEIR OWN TAX ADVISORS AS TO THE PARTICULAR TAX CONSEQUENCES TO THEM OF ACQUIRING, HOLDING, CONVERTING OR OTHERWISE DISPOSING OF THE DEBENTURES AND COMMON STOCK, INCLUDING THE EFFECT AND THE APPLICABILITY OF STATE, LOCAL OR FOREIGN TAX LAWS.

Original Issue Discount on the Debentures. The Debentures are being issued at a substantial discount from their stated redemption price at maturity. For U.S. federal income tax purposes, the excess of the stated redemption price at maturity of each Debenture over its issue price (which is expected to be the Issue Price) constitutes Original Issue Discount ("OID"). The issue price of the Debentures will equal the initial price at which a substantial amount of the Debentures is sold for cash (other than to bond houses, brokers or similar persons or organizations acting in the capacity of underwriters, placement agents or wholesalers), and the stated redemption price at maturity of a Debenture will be the sum of all payments due under the Debenture (which is expected to be the principal amount at maturity).

For U.S. federal income tax purposes, each holder of a Debenture must include in gross income a portion of the OID in each taxable year during which the Debenture is held in an amount equal to the OID that accrues on the Debenture during such period, determined by using a constant yield to maturity method. The OID included in income for each year will be calculated under a compounding formula that will result in the allocation of less OID to the earlier years of the term of the Debenture and more OID to later years. For the approximate cumulative total amount of OID accrued annually, see the chart under "Description of Debentures—Redemption of Debentures at the Option of the Company." Any amount included in income as OID will increase a holder's tax basis in the Debenture.

Sale, Exchange or Retirement of the Debentures. A holder's tax basis for determining gain or loss on the sale or other disposition of a Debenture will generally equal the holder's cost of the Debenture increased by any accrued OID includible in such holder's gross income and reduced by payments, if any. Except as described in the next paragraph, upon the sale, exchange or retirement of a Debenture, a holder will recognize gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount realized on the sale or other disposition of the Debenture and the

020625

MF 01796

CONFIDENTIAL - SUBJECT TO PROTECTIVE ORDER

CPH 1326551

16div-026383

holder's tax basis in such Debenture. Gain or loss realized on the sale, exchange or retirement of a Debenture will generally be capital gain or loss and will be long-term capital gain or loss if the Debenture is held for more than one year.

If a holder elects to exercise its option to cause the Company to purchase its Debentures on a Purchase Date and the Company issues Common Stock in satisfaction of all of the Purchase Price, the exchange of the Debentures for Common Stock should generally not be a taxable event (except with respect to cash received in lieu of a fractional share). A holder's tax basis in the Common Stock received in such exchange of a Debenture should be the same as the holder's tax basis in the Debenture at the time of the conversion (except for any tax basis allocable to a fractional share) and the holding period for the Common Stock received in such exchange should include the holding period of the Debenture exchanged. If the Purchase Price is paid with a combination of Common Stock and cash, gain (but not loss) realized by the holder should be recognized, but only to the extent of the cash received (including cash received in lieu of a fractional share). A holder's tax basis in the Common Stock received should be the same as such holder's tax basis in the Debenture at the time of the conversion (except for any portion allocable to a fractional share of Common Stock), increased by the amount of gain recognized (other than with respect to a fractional share) and decreased by the amount of any cash received (except cash received in lieu of a fractional share). The holding period for Common Stock received in the exchange should include the holding period of the Debenture tendered to the Company in exchange therefor. The receipt of cash in lieu of a fractional share of Common Stock should generally result in capital gain or loss, measured by the difference between the amount of cash received for the fractional share and the holder's tax basis in the fractional share interest.

Conversion of Debentures. A holder's conversion of a Debenture into Common Stock will generally not be a taxable event (except with respect to cash received in lieu of a fractional share). A tax basis in the Common Stock received on conversion of a Debenture will be the same as the holder's tax basis in the Debenture at the time of conversion (except for any tax basis allocable to a fractional share) and the holding period for the Common Stock received on conversion will include the holding period of the Debenture converted, except that it is possible that the Internal Revenue Service may argue that the holding period of the Common Stock allocable to OID will commence on the date of the conversion and a holder would be required to hold such Common Stock for more than twelve months before long-term capital gain (or loss) treatment could be obtained upon a sale of such Common Stock. The receipt of cash in lieu of a fractional share of Common Stock should generally result in capital gain or loss, measured by the difference between the cash received for the fractional share interest and the holder's tax basis in the fractional share interest.

Dividends; Adjustment of Conversion Price. Dividends, if any, paid on the Common Stock generally will be includible in the income of a holder as ordinary income to the extent of the Company's current or accumulated earnings and profits.

If at any time the Company makes a distribution of property to shareholders that would be taxable to such shareholders as a dividend for federal income tax purposes (for example, distributions of evidences of indebtedness or assets of the Company, but generally not stock dividends or rights to subscribe for Common Stock) and, pursuant to the anti-dilution provisions of the Indenture, the Conversion Rate of the Debentures is increased, such increase may be deemed to be the payment of a taxable dividend to holders of Debentures. If the Conversion Rate is increased at the discretion of the Company or in certain other circumstances, such increase may also be deemed to be the payment of a taxable dividend to holders of Debentures. Moreover, in certain other circumstances, the absence of such an adjustment to the Conversion Rate of the Debentures may result in a taxable dividend to holders of the Common Stock.

Sale of Common Stock. Upon the sale or exchange of Common Stock, holders generally will recognize capital gain or capital loss equal to the difference between the amount realized on such sale or exchange and the holder's adjusted tax basis in such shares.

PLAN OF DISTRIBUTION

Under the terms and subject to the conditions set forth in the Purchase Agreement between the Company and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated (the "Initial Purchaser") dated March 19, 1998 (the "Purchase Agreement"), the Initial Purchaser has agreed to purchase, and the Company has agreed to sell to the Initial Purchaser, $2,014,000,000, aggregate principal amount at maturity of Debentures at a purchase price of 37.243% of the principal amount at maturity thereof. After the initial offering of the Debentures, the offering price and other selling terms may from time to time be varied by the Initial Purchaser.

The Purchase Agreement provides that the obligation of the Initial Purchaser to pay for and accept delivery of the Debentures is subject to approval of certain legal matters by its counsel and to certain other conditions. The Initial Purchaser is obligated to take and pay for all of the Debentures offered hereby if any are taken (other than the Debentures covered by the overallotment option described below).

The Company has granted to the Initial Purchaser an option, exercisable within 30 days of the date of the Purchase Agreement, to purchase up to an additional $302,100,000 aggregate principal amount at maturity of the Debentures solely for the purpose of covering over-allotments, if any.

The Purchase Agreement provides that the Company will indemnify the Initial Purchaser against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.

The Company has been advised by the Initial Purchaser that the Initial Purchaser proposes to resell the Debentures initially at the price set forth on the cover page hereof to "qualified institutional buyers" (as defined in Rule 144A under the Securities Act) in reliance on Rule 144A under the Securities Act and to a limited number of other institutional "accredited investors" within the meaning of Rule 501(a)(1), (2), (3) or (7) under the Securities Act, that agree in writing to comply with the transfer restrictions and other conditions set forth in the Purchase Agreement. See "Transfer Restrictions."

The Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act and may not be offered or sold within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. persons except as described in the immediately preceding paragraph.

The Debentures are eligible for trading in The Portal Market. The Initial Purchaser has advised the Company that it presently intends to make a market in the Debentures as permitted by applicable laws and regulations. The Initial Purchaser is not obligated, however, to make a market in the Debentures and any such market making may be discontinued at any time at the sole discretion of the Initial Purchaser. Accordingly, no assurance can be given as to the liquidity of, or trading markets for, the Debentures.

The Company and the directors and current executive officers referred to under "Security Ownership of Management" will agree that they will not (a) offer, pledge, sell, contract to sell, sell any option or contract to purchase, purchase any option or contract to sell, grant any option, right or warrant to purchase, lend, or otherwise transfer or dispose of, directly or indirectly, any shares of Common Stock or any securities convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for Common Stock, or (b) enter into any swap or other arrangement that transfers, in whole or in part, any of the economic consequences of ownership of the Common Stock, whether any such transaction described in clause (a) or (b) above is to be settled by delivery of Common Stock or such other securities, in cash or otherwise, for a 90-day period after the date of this Offering Memorandum, without the prior written consent of Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated, other than (i) the Debentures offered hereby, (ii) the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures, (iii) securities of the Company (and the agreement to provide such securities) as full or partial consideration in connection with any future acquisitions or strategic investments by the Company or securities of the Company issuable upon exercise or conversion of the foregoing securities; provided that the market value of such securities does not exceed $500 million in the aggregate, (iv) options granted or stock issued upon the exercise of outstanding stock options or otherwise pursuant to the Company's stock option or employee stock purchase plans or other executive compensation arrangements existing at the date of this Offering Memorandum and (v) in connection with the acquisition of CLN Holdings and Coleman.

In order to facilitate the offering of the Debentures and the Common Stock, the Initial Purchaser may engage in transactions that stabilize, maintain or otherwise affect the price of the Debentures or the Common Stock.

Specifically, the Initial Purchaser may over-allot in connection with the offering, creating a short position in the Debentures for its own account. In addition, to cover over-allotments or stabilize the price of the Debentures and the Common Stock, the Initial Purchaser may bid for, and purchase, the Debentures or shares of the Common Stock in the open market. Finally, the Initial Purchaser may reclaim selling concessions allowed to dealers for distributing the Debentures in the offering, if the Initial Purchaser repurchases previously distributed Debentures in transactions to cover short positions established by the Initial Purchaser, in stabilization transactions or otherwise. Any of these activities may stabilize or maintain the market price of the Debentures or the Common Stock above independent market levels. The Initial Purchaser is not required to engage in these activities, and may discontinue any of these activities at any time.

The Initial Purchaser has performed various investment banking and other services for the Company in the past, and may do so from time to time in the future. In particular, the Initial Purchaser is acting as the Company's financial advisor in connection with the Aquisitions. In addition, an affiliate of the Initial Purchaser is arranging the New Credit Facility and expects to be a lender thereunder.

TRANSFER RESTRICTIONS

The Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act. The Debentures and Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures may not be offered or sold within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. persons, except (i) in compliance with the registration requirements of the Securities Act and all other applicable securities laws, or (ii) pursuant to an exemption from, or in a transaction not subject to, the registration requirements of the Securities Act and any other applicable securities laws. Accordingly, the Debentures are being offered and sold only (1) to "qualified institutional buyers" (as defined in Rule 144A under the Securities Act) ("QIBs") in compliance with Rule 144A and (2) to a limited number of other institutional "accredited investors" (as defined in Rule 501(a)(1), (2), (3) or (7) under the Securities Act) ("Institutional Accredited Investors") that, prior to their purchases of Debentures, deliver to the Initial Purchaser a letter attached hereto as Appendix A, which contains certain representations and agreements.

Each purchaser of Debentures will be deemed to (1) represent that it is purchasing the Debentures for its own account or an account with respect to which it exercises sole investment discretion and that it or such account is a QIB, or an institutional accredited investor, (2) acknowledge that the Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures have not been registered under the Securities Act, and may not be offered or sold within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. persons except as set forth below, (3) agree that if it should resell or otherwise transfer the Debentures or the Common Stock issuable upon conversion of the Debentures within the period prior to the expiration of the holding period applicable to sales thereof under Rule 144(k) under the Securities Act (or any successor provision), it will do so within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. persons only (a) to the Company or any subsidiary thereof, (b) to a QIB in compliance with Rule 144A, (c) to an institutional accredited investor that, prior to such transfer, furnishes to the Trustee, as registrar for the Debentures (or in the case of the Common Stock, the transfer agent for the Common Stock (the "Transfer Agent")), a signed letter containing certain representations and agreements relating to the restrictions on transfer of the Debentures (or the Common Stock, as the case may be) (the form of which letter can be obtained from the Trustee for the Debentures or the Transfer Agent for the Common Stock), (d) pursuant to an exemption from registration provided by Rule 144 under the Securities Act (if available) or (e) pursuant to a registration statement which has been declared effective under the Securities Act (and which continues to be effective at the time of such transfer), and (4) agree that it will give each person to whom it transfers such Debentures or Common Stock issuable on conversion of the Debentures notice of any restrictions on transfer of such Debentures and such Common Stock. Each institutional accredited investor (other than a QIB) that is an original purchaser of the Debentures will be required to sign an agreement to the foregoing effect in the form attached hereto as Appendix A. In the case of any certificated Debentures, prior to any proposed transfer of Debentures within the period prior to the expiration of the holding period applicable to sales thereof under Rule 144(k) under the Securities Act (or any successor provision), the holders thereof must check the appropriate box set forth on the certificate representing the Debentures relating to the manner of such transfer and submit the certificate representing the Debentures to the Trustee. If (i) such transfer is to an institutional accredited investor or (ii) any holder proposes to transfer Common Stock issued upon conversion of Debentures in either case prior to the expiration of the holding period applicable to sales thereof under Rule 144(k) under the Securities Act (or any successor provision), the holder (or beneficial holder, as the case may be) will be required to furnish to the Trustee (or, in the case of the Common Stock, the Transfer Agent) such certifications, legal opinions or other information as it may reasonably require to confirm that the proposed transfer is being made pursuant to an exemption from, or in a transaction not subject to, the registration requirements of the Securities Act.

Each certificate representing a Debenture will bear the following legend (unless such Debenture has been sold pursuant to a registration statement that has been declared effective under the Securities Act):

THE DEBENTURE EVIDENCED HEREBY HAS NOT BEEN REGISTERED UNDER THE UNITED STATES SECURITIES ACT OF 1933, AS AMENDED (THE "SECURITIES ACT"), OR ANY STATE SECURITIES LAWS, AND, ACCORDINGLY, MAY NOT BE OFFERED OR SOLD WITHIN THE UNITED STATES OR TO, OR FOR THE ACCOUNT OR BENEFIT OF, U.S. PERSONS EXCEPT AS SET FORTH IN THE FOLLOWING SENTENCE. BY ITS ACQUISITION HEREOF, THE HOLDER (1) REPRESENTS THAT (A) IT IS A "QUALIFIED INSTITUTIONAL BUYER" (AS DEFINED IN RULE 144A UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT) OR (B) IT IS AN INSTITUTIONAL "ACCREDITED INVESTOR" (AS DEFINED IN RULE 501(a)(1), (2), (3) OR (7) UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT) ("INSTITUTIONAL ACCREDITED INVESTOR"); (2) AGREES THAT IT WILL NOT, PRIOR TO EXPIRATION OF THE HOLDING PERIOD APPLICABLE TO SALES OF THE DEBENTURE EVIDENCED HEREBY UNDER RULE 144(K) UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT (OR ANY SUCCESSOR PROVISION), RESELL OR OTHERWISE TRANSFER THE DEBENTURE EVIDENCED HEREBY OR THE COMMON STOCK ISSUABLE UPON CONVERSION OF SUCH DEBENTURES WITHIN THE UNITED STATES OR TO, OR FOR THE ACCOUNT OF, U.S. PERSONS EXCEPT (A) TO SUNBEAM CORPORATION OR ANY SUBSIDIARY THEREOF, (B) TO A QUALIFIED INSTITUTIONAL BUYER IN COMPLIANCE WITH RULE 144A UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT, (C) TO AN INSTITUTIONAL ACCREDITED INVESTOR THAT, PRIOR TO SUCH TRANSFER, FURNISHES TO THE BANK OF NEW YORK, AS TRUSTEE (OR A SUCCESSOR TRUSTEE, AS APPLICABLE), A SIGNED LETTER CONTAINING CERTAIN REPRESENTATIONS AND AGREEMENTS RELATING TO THE RESTRICTIONS ON TRANSFER OF THE DEBENTURE EVIDENCED HEREBY (THE FORM OF WHICH LETTER CAN BE OBTAINED FROM SUCH TRUSTEE OR A SUCCESSOR TRUSTEE, AS APPLICABLE), (D) PURSUANT TO THE EXEMPTION FROM REGISTRATION PROVIDED BY RULE 144 UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT (IF AVAILABLE) OR (E) PURSUANT TO A REGISTRATION STATEMENT WHICH HAS BEEN DECLARED EFFECTIVE UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT (AND WHICH CONTINUES TO BE EFFECTIVE AT THE TIME OF SUCH TRANSFER); (3) PRIOR TO SUCH TRANSFER (OTHER THAN A TRANSFER PURSUANT TO CLAUSE 2(E) ABOVE), IT WILL FURNISH TO THE BANK OF NEW YORK, AS TRUSTEE (OR A SUCCESSOR TRUSTEE, AS APPLICABLE), SUCH CERTIFICATIONS, LEGAL OPINIONS OR OTHER INFORMATION AS THE TRUSTEE MAY REASONABLY REQUIRE TO CONFIRM THAT SUCH TRANSFER IS BEING MADE PURSUANT TO AN EXEMPTION FROM, OR IN A TRANSACTION NOT SUBJECT TO, THE REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS OF THE SECURITIES ACT AND (4) AGREES THAT IT WILL DELIVER TO EACH PERSON TO WHOM THE DEBENTURES EVIDENCED HEREBY ARE TRANSFERRED A NOTICE SUBSTANTIALLY TO THE EFFECT OF THIS LEGEND. IN CONNECTION WITH ANY TRANSFER OF THE DEBENTURE EVIDENCED HEREBY PRIOR TO THE EXPIRATION OF THE HOLDING PERIOD APPLICABLE TO SALES OF THE DEBENTURE EVIDENCED HEREBY UNDER RULE 144(K) UNDER THE SECURITIES ACT (OR ANY SUCCESSOR PROVISION), THE HOLDER MUST CHECK THE APPROPRIATE BOX SET FORTH ON THE REVERSE HEREOF RELATING TO THE MANNER OF SUCH TRANSFER AND SUBMIT THIS CERTIFICATE TO THE BANK OF NEW YORK, AS TRUSTEE (OR A SUCCESSOR TRUSTEE, AS APPLICABLE). IF THE PROPOSED TRANSFEREE IS AN INSTITUTIONAL ACCREDITED INVESTOR OR IS A PURCHASER WHO IS NOT A U.S. PERSON, THE HOLDER MUST, PRIOR TO SUCH TRANSFER, FURNISH TO THE BANK OF NEW YORK, AS TRUSTEE (OR A SUCCESSOR TRUSTEE, AS APPLICABLE), SUCH CERTIFICATIONS, LEGAL OPINIONS OR OTHER INFORMATION AS IT MAY REASONABLY REQUIRE TO CONFIRM THAT SUCH TRANSFER IS BEING MADE PURSUANT TO AN EXEMPTION FROM, OR IN A TRANSACTION NOT SUBJECT TO, THE REGISTRATION REQUIREMENTS OF THE SECURITIES ACT. REPORT OF INDEPENDENT CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANTS

To the Board of Directors and Shareholders of Sunbeam Corporation:

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Sunbeam Corporation (a Delaware corporation) and subsidiaries as of December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997 and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity and cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 28, 1997. These consolidated financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Sunbeam Corporation and subsidiaries as of December 29, 1996 and December 28, 1997, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for each of the three fiscal years in the period ended December 28, 1997 in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

SUNBEAM CORPORATION AND SUBSIDIARIES

NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

1. Operations and Significant Accounting Policies

Organization

Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam" or the "Company") is a leading manufacturer and marketer of branded consumer products. The Sunbeam® and Oster® brands have been household names for generations, and the Company is a market share leader in many of its product categories.

The Company markets its products through virtually every category of retailer including mass merchandisers, catalog showrooms, warehouse clubs, department stores, catalogs, television shopping channels, Company-owned outlet stores, hardware stores, home centers, drug and grocery stores, pet supply retailers, as well as independent distributors and the military. The Company also sells its products to commercial end users such as hotels and other institutions.

Approximately 79% of total Company sales are generated in the United States. The remaining sales are generated primarily in Latin America, Mexico, Canada, Europe and Asia.

Principles of Consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and all majority-owned subsidiaries that it controls. All material intercompany balances and transactions have been eliminated.

Presentation of Fiscal Periods

The Company's fiscal year ends on the Sunday nearest December 31. Fiscal years 1997, 1996 and 1995 ended on December 28, 1997, December 29, 1996, and December 31, 1995 respectively, which encompassed 52-week periods.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of the consolidated financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the consolidated financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ from those estimates. Significant accounting estimates include the establishment of the allowance for doubtful accounts, reserves for product warranty, product liability, excess and obsolete inventory, litigation and environmental exposures.

Concentrations of Credit Risk

Substantially all of the Company's trade receivables are due from retailers and distributors located throughout the United States, Latin America and Canada. Approximately 36% of the Company's sales in 1997 were to its five largest customers. The Company establishes its credit policies based on an ongoing evaluation of its customers' creditworthiness and competitive market conditions and establishes its allowance for doubtful accounts based on an assessment of exposures to credit losses at each balance sheet date. The Company believes its allowance for doubtful accounts is sufficient based on the credit exposures outstanding at December 28, 1997. However, certain retailers filed for bankruptcy protection in the last several years and it is possible that additional credit losses could be incurred if the trends of retail consolidation continue.

Inventories

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost or market with cost being determined principally by the first-in, first-out method.

Property, Plant and Equipment

Property, plant and equipment is stated at cost. The Company provides for depreciation using primarily the straight-line method in amounts that allocate the cost of property, plant and equipment over the following useful lives:

Buildings and improvements	20 to 40 years
Machinery, equipment and tooling	3 to 15 years
Furniture and fixtures	3 to 10 years

Leasehold improvements are amortized on a straight-line basis over the shorter of its estimated useful life or the term of the lease.

Long-lived Assets

The Company accounts for long-lived assets pursuant to Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 121, Accounting for the Impairment of Long-lived Assets and for Long-lived Assets to Be Disposed Of. See Notes 8 and 9 for a discussion of asset impairment charges in 1996.

Capitalized Interest

Interest costs for the construction of certain long-term assets are capitalized and amortized over the related assets' estimated useful lives. Total interest costs during 1997 and 1996 amounted to $12.3 million and $14.0 million respectively, of which $.9 million and $.4 million respectively, was capitalized into the construction cost of the long-term assets.

Amortization Periods

Trademarks and trade names are being amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years.

Revenue Recognition

The Company recognizes revenues from product sales principally at the time of shipment to customers. In limited circumstances, at the customers request the Company may sell seasonal product on a bill and hold basis provided that the goods are completed, packaged and ready for shipment, such goods are segregated and the risks of ownership and legal title have passed to the customer. The amount of such bill and hold sales at December 29, 1997 was approximately 3% of consolidated revenues.

Net sales is comprised of gross sales less provisions for expected customer returns, discounts, promotional allowances and cooperative advertising.

Warranty Costs

The Company provides for warranty costs in amounts it estimates will be needed to cover future warranty obligations for products sold during the year. Estimates of warranty costs are periodically reviewed and adjusted, when necessary, to consider actual experience.

1. Operations and Significant Accounting Policies—(Continued)

Advertising Costs

Media advertising costs included in "Selling, General and Administrative Expense," are expensed as incurred. Co-operative advertising costs are expensed ratably over the year in relation to revenues.

Foreign Currency Translation

The assets and liabilities of subsidiaries, other than those operating in highly inflationary environments, are translated into U.S. dollars at year-end exchange rates, with resulting translation gains and losses accumulated in a separate component of shareholders' equity. Income and expense items are converted into U.S. dollars at average rates of exchange prevailing during the year.

For subsidiaries operating in highly inflationary environments, (Venezuela and Mexico) inventories and property, plant and equipment are translated at the rate of exchange on the date the assets were acquired, while other assets and liabilities are translated at year-end exchange rates. Translation adjustments for those operations are included in "Other (income) expense, net" on the Accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations.

Stock-Based Compensation Plans

SFAS No. 123, Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation allows either adoption of a fair value method for accounting for stock-based compensation plans or continuation of accounting under Accounting Principles Board ("APB") Opinion No. 25, Accounting for Stock Issued to Employees, and related interpretations with supplemental disclosures.

The Company has chosen to account for its stock options using the intrinsic value based method prescribed in APB Opinion No. 25 and, accordingly, does not recognize compensation expense for stock option grants made at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant. Pro forma net income and earnings per share amounts as if the fair value method had been adopted are presented in Note 5 herein. SFAS No. 123 does not impact the Company's results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

Earnings Per Share of Common Stock

In 1997, the Company adopted SFAS No. 128, Earnings Per Share. Basic earnings per common share calculations are determined by dividing earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock. Diluted earnings per share are determined by dividing earnings available to common shareholders by the weighted average number of shares of common stock and dilutive common stock equivalents outstanding (all related to outstanding stock options and restricted stock discussed in Note 5). The Company's reported primary earnings per share for 1995 has been restated to comply with the requirements of SFAS No. 128. SFAS No. 128 had no impact on the Company's reported loss per share for 1996 and no impact on the diluted earnings per share reported in 1995. The effect of this accounting change on previously reported earnings per share (EPS) for 1995 was as follows:

Earnings per share from continuing operations
Primary EPS as reported	$0.45
Effect of SFAS No. 128	0.01
Basic EPS as restated	0.46
Earnings per share
Primary EPS as reported	$0.61

Reclassification

Certain prior year amounts have been reclassified to conform with the 1997 presentation.

New Accounting Standards

In June 1997, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued SFAS No. 130, Reporting Comprehensive Income. SFAS No. 130 establishes standards for reporting and display of comprehensive income and its components in the financial statements. SFAS No. 130 is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Reclassification of financial statements for earlier periods provided for comparative purposes is required. The Company is in the process of determining its preferred format. The adoption of SFAS No. 130 will have no impact on the Company's consolidated results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

In June 1997, the FASB issued SFAS No. 131, Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information. SFAS No. 131 establishes standards for the way that public business enterprises report information about operating segments in annual financial statements and requires that those enterprises report selected information about operating segments in interim financial reports issued to shareholders. It also establishes standards for related disclosures about products and services, geographic areas, and major customers. SFAS No. 131 is effective for financial statements for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Financial statement disclosures for prior periods are required to be restated. The Company is in the process of evaluating the disclosure requirements. The adoption of SFAS No. 131 will have no impact on consolidated results of operations, financial position or cash flow.

2. Shareholders' Equity

The Company has 200,000,000 shares of $.01 par value common stock authorized. At December 28, 1997 there were 9,404,068 shares of common stock reserved for issuance upon the exercise of outstanding stock options.

In June 1995, the Company retired 7,376,395 shares of common stock held in treasury, and such shares were returned to the status of authorized but unissued shares. As a result, $103.7 million assigned to treasury stock has been eliminated with a corresponding decrease to common stock, paid-in capital and retained earnings. In 1995, the Company repurchased 905,600 shares of its common stock at a total cost of $13.1 million.

In July 1996, the Company sold 321,786 shares of common stock for total proceeds of approximately $4.4 million, and granted 1,100,000 shares of restricted stock in connection with the employment of a new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and certain other officers of the Company. Compensation expense attributable to the restricted stock awards is being amortized to expense beginning in 1996 over the periods in which the restrictions lapse (which in the case of 333,333 shares, was immediately upon the date of grant, in the case of 666,667 shares, is equally over two years from the date of grant and in the case of the remaining restricted shares, is equally over three years from the dates of grant).

On February 20, 1998 the Company entered into new three-year employment agreements with its Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company. These agreements replaced previous employment agreements entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999. Refer to Note 14 for additional information regarding the new employment contracts, including the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock grants discussed above.

3. Credit Facilities and Long-Term Debt

In 1994, the Mississippi Business Finance Corporation ("MBFC") issued $75 million of 7.85% Industrial Development Revenue Notes (the "Notes") maturing serially in eleven equal annual installments beginning June 1999 to certain institutional investors through a private placement. The MBFC loaned the proceeds of the Notes to a subsidiary of the Company under a non-recourse loan agreement (the "Hattiesburg Loan") restricting the use of such funds to the acquisition, design, construction and equipping of the Hattiesburg, Mississippi manufacturing and distribution center. The Notes are guaranteed by the Company and the Hattiesburg Loan is secured by the Hattiesburg facility.

In September 1996 (as subsequently amended), the Company entered into a $500 million syndicated unsecured five year revolving credit facility (the "Credit Agreement") which replaced a previous credit facility of $500 million. In July 1997, the Company reduced the amount of available borrowings under the facility to $250 million. Under the Credit Agreement, the Company can borrow under a competitive bid option, or at a spread above LIBOR (currently .5%) or at a bank base rate. In addition, the Company pays an annual facility fee (currently .25%). The Credit Agreement contains certain financial covenants.

During 1997, the Company repaid $12.2 million of long-term borrowings related to the divested furniture operations and other assets sold.

The aggregate annual principal payments on long-term debt, excluding amounts outstanding under the Credit Agreement, due in each of the years 1998-2002, are $.7 million, $7.5 million, $7.6 million, $7.6 million and $7.7 million, respectively.

3. Credit Facilities and Long-Term Debt—(Continued)

Long-term debt at the end of each fiscal year consists of the following (in thousands):

	1997	1996
Revolving credit facility, weighted average interest rate of 5.99% and 5.60% for 1997, and for 1996, respectively	$110,000	$105,000
Hattiesburg industrial revenue bond due 2009, fixed interest rate of 7.85%	75,000	75,000
Other long-term borrowings, due through 2012, weighted average interest rate of 3.92% and 4.95%, at December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996, respectively	10,248	22,036
	$195,248	$202,036

In December 1997, the Company entered into a revolving trade accounts receivable securitization program to sell without recourse, through a wholly-owned subsidiary, certain trade accounts receivable. The maximum amount of receivables that can be sold through this program is $70 million. At December 28, 1997, the Company had received approximately $59 million from the sale of trade accounts receivable. The proceeds from the sale were used to reduce borrowings under the Company's revolving credit facility. Costs of the program, which primarily consist of the purchaser's financing cost of issuing commercial paper backed by the receivables, totaled $.2 million during 1997, and have been classified as interest expense in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations. The Company, as agent for the purchaser of the receivables, retains collection and administrative responsibilities for the purchased receivables.

4. Financial Instruments

Fair Value of Financial Instruments

The carrying amounts of the Company's financial instruments as of December 28, 1997 approximate market values based upon the following methods and assumptions:

Cash and Cash Equivalents—The carrying amount of cash and cash equivalents is assumed to approximate fair value as cash equivalents include all highly liquid, short-term investments with original maturities of three months or less.

Short and Long Term Debt—The carrying value of the Company's various debt outstanding as of December 28, 1997 approximates market. The fair value of the Company's fixed rate debt is estimated using discounted cash flow analysis, based upon the market yield of public debt securities of comparable credit quality and maturity. The carrying value of the Company's variable rate debt is assumed to approximate market based upon periodic adjustments of the interest rate to the current market rate in accordance with the terms of the debt agreements.

Letters of Credit—The Company utilizes stand-by letters of credit to back certain financing instruments and insurance policies and commercial letters of credit guaranteeing various international trade activities. The contract amounts of the letters of credit approximate their fair value.

Derivative Financial Instruments

The Company selectively uses derivatives to manage interest rate and foreign exchange exposures that arise in the normal course of business. The use of derivatives did not have a material impact on the Company's results of operations in 1997, 1996 and 1995. No derivatives are entered into for trading or speculative purposes. Foreign exchange option and forward contracts are used to hedge a portion of the Company's underlying exposures denominated in foreign currency. Although the market value of derivative contracts at any single point in time will vary with changes in interest and/or foreign exchange rates, the difference between the carrying value and fair value of such contracts at December 29, 1996 and December 31, 1995 is not considered to be material, either individually or in the aggregate. The Company had no derivative financial instruments outstanding at December 28, 1997. The Company enters into derivative contracts with counterparties that it believes to be creditworthy. The Company does not enter into any leveraged derivative transactions.

4. Financial Instruments—(Continued)

As of December 28, 1996, $10.0 million of the Company's outstanding floating rate debt was subject to interest rate swap agreements.

In order to mitigate the transaction exposures that may arise from changes in foreign exchange rates, the Company purchases foreign currency option contracts to hedge anticipated transactions. The option contracts typically expire within one year. Any realized gains on options are not deferred but are recognized in income in the period when the hedged exposure is recognized. The Company purchased options with a notional value of $16.6 million in 1997, $18.2 million in 1996 and $11.7 million in 1995. Options with notional value of $17.9 million, $25.4 million and $3.2 million expired in 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively. The Company held purchased option contracts with a notional value of $1.4 million at December 29, 1996.

5. Employee Stock Options and Awards

The Company has one stock-based compensation plan, the Amended and Restated Sunbeam Corporation Stock Option Plan (the "Plan"). Under the Plan, all employees are eligible for grants of options to purchase up to an aggregate of 11,300,000 shares of the Company's common stock at an exercise price equal to or in excess of the fair market value of the stock on the date of grant. The term of each option commences on the date of grant and expires on the tenth anniversary of the date of grant. Options generally become exercisable over a three to five year period.

The Plan also provides for the grant of restricted stock awards of up to 200,000 shares, in the aggregate, to employees and non-employee directors. See Note 2 for a discussion of restricted stock awards made outside the Plan.

In July 1996, options to purchase an aggregate of 3,000,000 shares (of which 2,750,000 options were outstanding at December 28, 1997) were granted outside of the Plan at exercise prices equal to the fair market value of the Company's common stock on the dates of grant in connection with the employment of a new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and certain other executive officers of the Company. These outstanding options have terms of ten years and, with respect to options for 2,500,000 shares, are exercisable in three annual installments beginning July 17, 1996. Options for the remaining 250,000 shares still outstanding are exercisable in three annual installments beginning on the first anniversary of the July 22, 1996 grant date. On February 20, 1998 the vesting provisions of the options granted outside the plan were accelerated as further described in Note 14.

The Company applies APB Opinion No. 25 and related interpretations in accounting for its stock options. Accordingly, no compensation cost has been recognized for outstanding stock options. Had compensation cost for the Company's outstanding stock options been determined based on the fair value at the grant dates for those options consistent with SFAS No. 123, the Company's net earnings (loss) and diluted earnings (loss) per share would have been reduced to the pro forma amounts indicated below (in thousands except per share amounts):

	1997	1996	1995
Net earnings/(loss)
As reported	$109,415	$(228,262)	$50,511

6. Employee Benefit Plans

Retirement Plans

The Company sponsors several defined benefit pension plans covering eligible U.S. salaried and hourly employees. Benefit accruals under such plans covering all U.S. salaried employees were frozen, effective December 31, 1990. Therefore no credit in the pension formula is given for service or compensation after that date. However, employees continue to earn service toward vesting in their interest in the frozen plans as of December 31, 1990. Employees of non-U.S. subsidiaries generally receive retirement benefits from Company sponsored plans or from statutory plans administered by governmental agencies in their countries.

The funded status of the Company's U.S. defined benefit pension plans at the end of each fiscal year follows (in thousands):

	1997	1996
Actuarial present value of benefit obligations:
Vested	$126,941	$122,379

The Company funds its pension plans in amounts consistent with applicable laws and regulations. Pension plan assets include corporate and U.S. government bonds and cash equivalents.

The assets, liabilities and pension costs of the Company's non-U.S. defined benefit retirement plans are not material to the consolidated financial statements.

Other Postretirement Benefits

The Company provides health care and life insurance benefits to certain former employees who retired from the Company prior to March 31, 1991. The Company has consistently followed a policy of funding the cost of postretirement health care and life insurance benefits on a pay-as-you-go basis.

Effective July 1993, various amendments to the Company's postretirement benefits program were adopted. The amendments included increases in retiree contribution levels for certain retiree groups and the discontinuation of medical and/or life insurance coverage for certain retirees who qualify for Medicare. These amendments resulted in an unrecognized reduction in prior service cost which is being amortized over future years.

The following table presents the funded status reconciled with the amounts recognized in the Company's consolidated balance sheet at the end of each fiscal year (in thousands):

The assumed health care cost trend rate used in measuring the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation is 8.8% for 1998 and is assumed to decrease gradually to 6% by 2003 and remain at that level thereafter. A one percentage point increase in the assumed health care cost trend rate for each year would increase the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation as of December 28, 1997 and the net periodic postretirement benefit cost for 1997 by approximately 8%. The weighted average discount rate used in determining the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation was 7.25% at December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996.

Defined Contribution Plans

The Company sponsors defined contribution profit sharing plans covering eligible employees. Company contributions to these plans include employer matching contributions as well as discretionary profit sharing contributions depending on the performance of the Company, in an amount up to 10% of eligible compensation. The Company provided $1.8 million in 1997, $1.7 million in 1996 and $4.1 million in 1995 for its defined contribution plans.

Non-cash Transactions

In connection with a warehouse expansion related to the electric blanket business, the Company entered into a $5 million capital lease obligation in 1996.

8. Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs

In November 1996, the Company announced the details of its restructuring and growth plan. The cost reduction phase of the plan included the consolidation of administrative functions within the Company, the rationalization of manufacturing and warehouse facilities, the centralization of the Company's procurement function, and reduction of the Company's product offerings and stock keeping units ("SKU's"). The Company also announced plans to divest several lines of business which it determined are not core for Sunbeam (see Note 9).

In connection with the restructuring plan, the Company consolidated six divisional and regional headquarters functions into a single worldwide corporate headquarters in Delray Beach, Florida and outsourced certain back-office activities resulting in a 50% reduction in total back-office/administrative headcount. Overall, the restructuring plan calls for a reduction in the number of production facilities from 26 to 8 and the elimination of over 6,000 positions from the Company's workforce, including 3,300 from the disposition of non-core business operations and the elimination of approximately 2,800 other positions. The Company completed the major phases of the restructuring plan by January 1997.

In conjunction with the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan, the Company recorded a pre-tax special charge to earnings of approximately $337.6 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. This amount is allocated as follows in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations: $154.9 million to Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs as further described below; $92.3 million to Cost of Goods Sold related principally to inventory write-downs from the reduction in SKU's and costs of inventory liquidation programs; $42.5 million to Selling, General and Administrative expenses principally for increases in environmental and litigation reserves (see Note 12) and other reserve categories; and the estimated pre-tax loss on the divestiture of the Company's furniture business of approximately $47.9 million. During the first quarter of 1997, upon completion of the sale, the Company provided for additional losses on the disposal of the furniture business of $13.7 million, net of applicable income tax benefits as a result of lower than anticipated sales proceeds.

Amounts included in Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in 1996 in the accompanying Consolidated Statement of Operations include cash items such as severance and other employee costs of $43.0 million, lease obligations and other exit costs associated with facility closures of $12.6 million, $7.5 million of start-up costs on back-office outsourcing initiatives and other costs related to the implementation of the restructuring and growth plan. Non-cash Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in 1996 include $91.8 million related to asset write-downs to net realizable value for disposals of excess facilities and equipment and non-core product lines, write-offs of redundant computer systems from the administrative back-office consolidations and outsourcing initiatives and intangible, packaging and other asset write-downs related to exited product lines and SKU reductions. The following table sets forth the details and the cumulative activity in the restructuring accrual as of December 28, 1997 (in millions):

	Accrual Balance at December 29, 1996	Cash Reductions	Non-Cash Reductions	Accrual Balance at December 28, 1997
Severance and other employee costs	$36.9	$18.6	$9.5	$ 8.8
Closure and consolidation of facilities and related exit costs	26.9	24.8	—	2.1
Total	$63.8	$43.4	$9.5	$10.9

9. Discontinued Operations and Other Assets Held For Sale

As part of the restructuring plan and redefinition of its core businesses, the Company also announced the divestiture of the furniture business, by a sale of assets. In February 1997, the Company entered into an agreement to sell the business to U.S. Industries, Inc. which was completed on March 17, 1997. In connection with the sale of these assets (primarily inventory, property, plant and equipment), the Company received $69 million in cash. The Company retained accounts receivable related to the furniture business of approximately $50.0 million as of the closing date.

In connection with the furniture divestiture, the Company recorded a provision for estimated losses to be incurred on the sale of $32.4 million in 1996, net of applicable income tax benefits and an additional loss of $13.7 million, net of applicable income tax benefits in the first quarter of 1997 as a result of lower than anticipated sales proceeds. Earnings from the discontinued furniture business were $.8 million in 1996 and $12.9 million in 1995, net of applicable income taxes of $.5 million and $7.9 million, respectively. Earnings from the discontinued furniture business in 1997 were not material. Revenues for the discontinued furniture business were $51.6 million in 1997, $227.5 million in 1996 and $185.6 million in 1995. These revenues are not included in net sales as reported in the accompanying Consolidated Statements of Operations.

In addition to the furniture business divestiture, the Company also completed the sale of other non-core product lines and assets in 1997 as part of its restructuring plan, including time and temperature products, Counselor® and Borg® scales and a textile facility. Losses incurred on the disposal of these assets, which consist primarily of write-downs of assets to net realizable value, are included in Restructuring, Impairment and Other Costs in 1996 in the Consolidated Statements of Operations as described in Note 8.

10. Income Taxes—(Continued)

Deferred U.S. income taxes are not provided on the undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries, since such earnings are considered to be permanently reinvested. At December 28, 1997, the cumulative amount of undistributed earnings of foreign subsidiaries on which U.S. federal income taxes have not been provided was approximately $51.5 million. Determination of the amount of unrecognized deferred U.S. income tax liability is not practical because of the complexities associated with its hypothetical calculation; however, unrecognized foreign tax credit carryovers would be available to reduce some portion of the U.S. liability.

11. Customer and Geographic Data

Classes of products which contributed more than 10% to consolidated sales were outdoor home use durable products and indoor home use durable products. Sales of outdoor home use durable products amounted to $325.8 million in 1997, $256.9 million in 1996 and $269.0 million in 1995. Sales of indoor home use durable products were $769.6 million in 1997, $680.7 million in 1996 and $688.3 million in 1995.

The Company's largest customer accounted for approximately 21% of consolidated net sales in 1997 and 19% in 1996 and 1995.

The Company's operations are conducted in the United States and international markets, principally in Latin America, Canada and Mexico. Information about the Company's domestic and international operations for each fiscal year is as follows (in thousands):

	1997	1996	1995
Net sales:
Domestic	$ 927,660	$ 800,969	$ 829,423

12. Commitments and Contingencies

Environmental Matters

The Company's operations, like those of comparable businesses, are subject to certain federal, state, local and foreign environmental laws and regulations. As of December 28, 1997, the Company had been identified as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") in connection with seven sites subject to the federal Superfund law and two sites subject to state Superfund laws comparable to the federal law (collectively the "Environmental Sites"), exclusive of sites at which the Company has been designated (or expects to be designated) as a de minimis (less than 1%) participant. Substantially all of these sites relate to divested operations of the Company.

The Company currently is engaged in active remediation activities at nine sites, four of which are among the Environmental Sites referred to above, and five of which have not been designated as Superfund sites under federal or state law. In addition, the Company is engaged in environmental remediation activities at a site in Newburgh Heights, Ohio, where a subsidiary formerly conducted operations. The Company has been actively cooperating with the United States Nuclear Regulatory Commission and state regulatory authorities in developing a plan for remediation of this site; which remediation is expected to be substantially completed during 1998.

The Company has established reserves, in accordance with SFAS No. 5, Accounting for Contingencies, to cover the anticipated probable costs of remediation, based upon periodic reviews of all sites for which the Company has, or may have remediation responsibility. As of December 28, 1997, the amount of such reserves was less than 5% of the Company's total liabilities as set forth in the consolidated financial statements. Liability under the Superfund law is joint and several and is imposed on a strict basis, without regard to degree of negligence or culpability. As a result, the Company recognizes its responsibility to determine whether other PRP's at a Superfund site are financially capable of paying their respective shares of the ultimate cost of remediation of the site. Whenever the Company has determined that a particular PRP is not financially responsible, it has assumed for purposes of establishing reserve amounts that such PRP will not pay its respective share of the costs of remediation. To minimize the Company's potential liability with respect to the Environmental Sites, the Company has actively participated in steering committees and other groups of PRP's established with respect to such sites. The Company continues to pursue the recovery of some environmental remediation costs from certain of its liability insurance carriers; however, such potential recoveries have not been offset against potential liabilities and have not been considered in determining the Company's environmental reserves.

Due to uncertainty over remedial measures to be adopted at some sites, the possibility of changes in environmental laws and regulations and the fact that joint and several liability with the right of contribution is possible at federal and state Superfund sites, the Company's ultimate future liability with respect to sites at which remediation has not been completed may vary from the amounts reserved as of December 28, 1997. In connection with the Company's restructuring plan, in the fourth quarter of 1996 a comprehensive review of all environmental exposures was performed, and the Company accelerated its strategy for the resolution and settlement of certain environmental claims. As a result, the Company recorded additional environmental reserves of approximately $9.0 million in the fourth quarter of 1996. The Company believes, based on existing information, that the costs of completing environmental remediation of all sites for which the Company has a remediation responsibility have been adequately reserved, and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

Leases

The Company rents certain facilities, equipment and retail stores under operating leases. Rental expense for operating leases amounted to $7.4 million in 1997, $8.0 million for 1996 and $8.6 million for 1995. The minimum future rentals due under noncancelable operating leases as of December 28, 1997 aggregated $30.9 million. The amounts payable in each of the years 1998-2002 and thereafter are $4.8 million, $4.6 million, $4.2 million, $3.9 million, $3.4 million and $10.0 million, respectively.

12. Commitments and Contingencies—(Continued)

Certain Debt Obligations

Responsibility for servicing certain debt obligations of the Company's predecessor were assumed by third parties in connection with the acquisition of former businesses, although the Company's predecessor remained the primary obligor in accordance with the respective loan documents. Such obligations, which amounted to approximately $19.0 million at December 28, 1997, and the corresponding receivables from the third parties, are not included in the consolidated balance sheets since these transactions occurred prior to the issuance of SFAS No. 76, Extinguishment of Debt. Management believes that the third parties will continue to meet their obligations pursuant to the assumption agreements.

Letters of credit aggregating $28.6 million were outstanding as of December 28, 1997.

Litigation

The Company is involved in various lawsuits arising from time to time in the ordinary course of business and/or related to divested operations of the Company. The Company has established reserves, in accordance with SFAS No. 5, Accounting for Contingencies, to cover the anticipated probable costs of litigation matters, based upon periodic reviews of all cases.

The Company believes, based on existing information, that anticipated probable costs of litigation matters have been adequately reserved, and that the ultimate resolution of these matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the Company's financial condition.

Product Liability Matters

The Company is party to various personal injury and property damage lawsuits relating to its products and incidental to its business. Annually, the Company sets its product liability insurance program based on the Company's current and historical claims experience and the availability and cost of insurance. The Company's program for 1997 was comprised of a self-insurance retention of $1 million per occurrence.

Cumulative amounts estimated to be payable by the Company with respect to pending and potential claims for all years in which the Company is liable under its self-insurance retention have been accrued as liabilities. Such accrued liabilities are necessarily based on estimates (which include actuarial determinations made by independent actuarial consultants as to liability exposure, taking into account prior experience, numbers of claims and other relevant factors); thus, the Company's ultimate liability may exceed or be less than the amounts accrued. The methods of making such estimates and establishing the resulting liability are reviewed continually and any adjustments resulting therefrom are reflected in current operating results.

Historically, product liability awards have rarely exceeded the Company's individual per occurrence self-insured retention. There can be no assurance, however, that the Company's future product liability experience will be consistent with its past experience. Based on existing information, the Company believes that the ultimate conclusion of the various pending product liability claims and lawsuits of the Company, individually or in the aggregate, will not have a materially adverse effect on the financial position or results of operations of the Company.

14. Subsequent Events

New Employment Agreements

On February 20, 1998 the Company entered into new three-year employment agreements with its Chairman and Chief Executive Officer and two other senior officers of the Company. These agreements replaced previous employment agreements entered into in July 1996 that were scheduled to expire in July 1999.

14. Subsequent Events—(Continued)

The new employment agreement for the Company's Chairman provides for, among other items, the acceleration of vesting of 200,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 133,333 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreement as further described in Note 2, a new equity grant of 300,000 shares of unrestricted stock, a new grant of a ten-year option to purchase 3,750,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in three equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 833,333 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreement as further described in Note 5. In addition, the new employment agreement with the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer provides for tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the equity grant and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

The new employment agreements with the two other senior officers provide for, among other items, the grant of a total of 180,000 shares of restricted stock that vest in four equal annual installments beginning the date of grant, the acceleration of vesting of 44,000 shares of restricted stock and the forfeiture of the remaining 29,332 shares of unvested restricted stock granted under the July 1996 agreements, new grants of ten-year options to purchase a total of 1,875,000 shares of the Company's common stock with an exercise price equal to the fair market value of the stock at the date of grant and exercisable in four equal annual installments beginning on the date of grant and the acceleration of vesting of 383,334 outstanding stock options granted under the July 1996 agreements. In addition, the new employment agreements provide for tax gross-ups with respect to any tax assessed on the restricted stock grants and acceleration of vesting of restricted stock.

Compensation expense attributed to the equity grant, the acceleration of vesting of restricted stock and the related tax gross-ups will be recognized in the first quarter of 1998 and compensation expense related to the new restricted stock grants and related tax gross-ups will be amortized to expense beginning in the first quarter of 1998 over the period in which the restrictions lapse. Total after-tax compensation expense to be recognized in the first quarter of 1998 related to these items is expected to be approximately $30.0 million.

Pending Acquisitions

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced the signing of three definitive agreements to acquire The Coleman Company, Inc., Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc. Completion of the acquisitions, which is expected in the second quarter of 1998, is contingent on customary conditions, including regulatory approvals, and acquisition financings. Each of the acquisitions will be accounted for under the purchase method, whereby the purchase price will be allocated to the underlying assets acquired and liabilities assumed based upon their estimated fair values.

The acquisition of The Coleman Company, Inc., the global leader in outdoor recreational and hardware products is valued at approximately $2.0 billion, consisting of the Company's common stock valued at approximately $811 million, cash of approximately $260 million and assumed debt. Shareholders of The Coleman Company, Inc. will receive $6.44 in cash and .5677 shares of the Company's stock for each share of Coleman stock.

The acquisition of Signature Brands USA, Inc., the North American leader in coffeemakers marketed under the Mr. Coffee® brand and a leader in consumer health products marketed under the Health o Meter® brand is valued at approximately $250 million, consisting of cash of $8.25 per share of Signature Brand common stock and the assumption of existing debt.

The acquisition of First Alert, Inc., the worldwide leader in residential safety equipment, including smoke detectors and carbon monoxide detectors is valued at approximately $175 million, consisting of cash of $5.25 per share of First Alert common stock and the assumption of existing debt.

The Company plans on refinancing all or substantially all of the assumed debt of the acquired companies concurrent with the transactions closings.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT AUDITORS

The Board of Directors and Stockholder
CLN Holdings Inc.

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of CLN Holdings Inc. and subsidiaries as of December 31, 1997 and 1996, and the related consolidated statements of operations, stockholder's deficit, and cash flows for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 1997. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the consolidated financial position of CLN Holdings Inc. and subsidiaries at December 31, 1997 and 1996, and the consolidated results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 1997, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
(In thousands, except share data)

1. Significant Accounting Policies

Background:

CLN Holdings Inc. (formerly known as Coleman Escrow Corp. ("CLN Holdings")), is a holding company formed in May 1997 in connection with the offering of Senior Secured First Priority Discount Notes due 2001 (the "Old First Priority Notes") and Senior Secured Second Priority Discount Notes due 2001 (the "Old Second Priority Notes" and together with the Old First Priority Notes, the "Old Escrow Notes") to hold all of the outstanding shares of capital stock of Coleman Holdings Inc. ("Coleman Holdings"). Coleman Holdings was a holding company formed in July 1993 in connection with the offering of Senior Secured Discount Notes due 1998 (the "Holdings Notes") to hold all of the outstanding shares of capital stock of Coleman Worldwide Corporation ("Coleman Worldwide"). On July 15, 1997, Coleman Holdings was merged into CLN Holdings. Coleman Worldwide is a holding company formed in March 1993 in connection with the offering of Liquid Yield Option™ Notes due 2013 (the "LYONs"™). Coleman Worldwide also holds 44,067,520 shares of the common stock of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman" or the "Company") which represents approximately 82% of the outstanding Coleman common stock as of December 31, 1997. CLN Holdings and Coleman Worldwide are holding companies with no business operations of their own. In connection with an initial public offering ("IPO"), Coleman was formed in December 1991 to succeed to the assets and liabilities of the outdoor products business of New Coleman Holdings Inc. ("Holdings") an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Mafco Holdings Inc. ("Mafco"). Holdings (then named The Coleman Company, Inc.) was acquired in 1989 by MacAndrews & Forbes Holdings Inc. ("MacAndrews Holdings", and together with Mafco, "MacAndrews & Forbes"), a corporation wholly owned through Mafco by Ronald O. Perelman. Coleman is a subsidiary of Coleman Worldwide Corporation which is an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Holdings. In March 1992, the Company completed an IPO of its common stock.

Principles of Consolidation:

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of CLN Holdings and its subsidiaries after elimination of all material intercompany accounts and transactions.

Cash and Cash Equivalents:

All highly liquid investments with a maturity of three months or less at the date of purchase are considered to be cash equivalents. The Company's cash equivalents consist primarily of investments in money market funds and commercial paper. The Company's cash equivalents are generally held until maturity and are carried at cost, which approximates fair value.

Inventories:

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost or market. Cost is determined by the first-in, first-out method.

Property, Plant and Equipment:

Property, plant and equipment is recorded at cost and depreciated on a straight-line basis over the estimated useful lives of such assets as follows: land improvements, 5 to 25 years; buildings and building improvements, 7 to 45 years; and machinery and equipment, 3 to 15 years. Leasehold improvements are amortized over their estimated useful lives or the terms of the leases, whichever is shorter. Repairs and maintenance are charged to operations as incurred, and significant expenditures for additions and improvements are capitalized.

1. Significant Accounting Policies—(Continued)

Intangible Assets:

Intangible assets primarily represent goodwill which is being amortized on a straight-line basis over periods not in excess of 40 years. The carrying amount of goodwill is reviewed if facts and circumstances suggest it may be impaired. If this review indicates goodwill will not be recoverable over the remaining amortization period, as determined based on the estimated undiscounted cash flows of the entity acquired, the carrying amount of the goodwill is reduced to estimated fair value based on market value or discounted cash flows, as appropriate. Accumulated amortization aggregated $48,148 and $39,520 at December 31, 1997 and 1996, respectively.

Revenue Recognition:

The Company recognizes revenues at the time title passes to the customer. Net revenues comprise gross revenues less provisions for estimated customer returns and allowances.

Research and Development:

Research and development expenditures are expensed as incurred. The amounts charged against operations for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995 were $11,871, $11,082, and $6,548, respectively.

Advertising and Promotion Expense:

Production costs of future media advertising are deferred until the advertising occurs. All other advertising and promotion costs are expensed when incurred. The amounts charged against operations for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995 were $53,408, $58,823, and $37,544, respectively.

Insurance Programs:

The Company obtains insurance coverage for catastrophic exposures as well as those risks required to be insured by law or contract. It is the policy of the Company to retain a significant portion of certain losses related primarily to workers' compensation, employee health benefits, physical loss and property, and product and vehicle liability. Provisions for losses expected under these programs are recorded based upon the Company's estimates of the aggregate liability for claims incurred.

Foreign Currency Translation:

Assets and liabilities of foreign operations are generally translated into United States dollars at the rates of exchange in effect at the balance sheet date. Income and expense items are generally translated at the weighted average exchange rates prevailing during each period presented. Gains and losses resulting from foreign currency transactions are included in the results of operations. Gains and losses resulting from translation of financial statements of foreign subsidiaries and branches operating in non-highly inflationary economies are recorded as a component of stockholder's equity. Foreign subsidiaries and branches operating in highly inflationary economies translate nonmonetary assets and liabilities at historical rates and include translation adjustments in the results of operations.

Derivative Financial Instruments:

The Company uses derivative financial instruments to reduce interest rate and foreign exchange exposures. The Company maintains a control environment which includes policies and procedures for risk assessment and for the approval, reporting and monitoring of derivative financial instrument activities. The Company does not hold or issue derivative financial instruments for trading purposes.

Amounts to be received or paid under interest rate swap and cap contracts designated as hedges are recognized over the life of the contracts as adjustments to interest expense. Gains and losses on terminations of interest rate swap and cap contracts designated as hedges are deferred and amortized as adjustments to interest expense over the remaining life of the terminated contracts. Unrealized gains and losses on outstanding interest rate contracts designated as hedges are not recognized.

Foreign currency forward contracts are marked to market and gains and losses on foreign currency forward contracts to hedge firm foreign currency commitments are deferred and accounted for as part of the related foreign currency transaction. Gains and losses on all other forward contracts to hedge third-party and intercompany transactions are recorded in operations as foreign exchange gains and losses. Gains and losses on purchased foreign currency option contracts are deferred and recognized as adjustments to cost of sales upon the sale of the related inventory to the third-party customers.

Credit Risk:

Financial instruments which potentially subject the Company to concentrations of credit risk consist primarily of trade receivables and derivative financial instruments. Credit risk on trade receivables is minimized as a result of the large and diversified nature of the Company's worldwide customer base. Although the Company has one significant customer (See Note 15), there have been no credit losses related to this customer. With respect to its derivative contracts, the Company is also subject to credit risk of non-performance by counterparties and its maximum potential loss may exceed the amount recognized in the financial statements. The Company controls its exposure to credit risk through credit approvals, credit limits and monitoring procedures. Collateral is generally not required for the Company's financial instruments.

Fair Value of Financial Instruments:

The following methods and assumptions were used by CLN Holdings in estimating its fair value disclosures for financial instruments:

Cash and cash equivalents: The carrying amount reported in the balance sheet for cash and cash equivalents approximates its fair value.

Long- and short-term debt: The carrying amounts of CLN Holdings' borrowings under its foreign bank lines of credit, revolving credit agreement and other variable rate debt approximate their fair value. The fair value of the Company's senior notes issues (see Note 9) are estimated using discounted cash flow analysis based on the Company's estimated current borrowing rate for similar types of borrowing arrangements. The fair value of the publicly traded LYONs debt and Escrow Notes is based on quoted market prices.

Foreign currency exchange contracts: The fair values of CLN Holdings' foreign currency contracts are estimated based on quoted market prices of comparable contracts, adjusted through interpolation where necessary for maturity differences.

The carrying amounts and fair values of CLN Holdings' financial instruments are as follows:

	December 31, 1997		December 31, 1996
	Carrying Amount of Asset/ (Liability)	Fair Value of Asset/ (Liability)	Carrying Amount of Asset/ (Liability)	Fair Value of Asset/ (Liability)

1. Significant Accounting Policies—(Continued)

Stock-Based Compensation:

Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 123, "Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation," encourages, but does not require companies to record compensation cost for stock-based employee compensation plans at fair value. The Company has chosen to account for stock-based compensation plans using the intrinsic value method prescribed in Accounting Principles Board ("APB") Opinion No. 25, "Accounting for Stock Issued to Employees," and related Interpretations. Accordingly, compensation cost for stock options is measured as the excess, if any, of the quoted market price of Coleman's stock at the date of the grant over the amount an employee must pay to acquire the stock.

Reclassifications:

Certain prior year amounts in the financial statements have been reclassified to conform to the current year presentation.

Use of Estimates:

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts reported in the financial statements and accompanying notes. Actual results could differ materially from those estimates.

Recently Issued Accounting Standards:

In June 1997, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (the "FASB") issued SFAS No. 130 "Reporting Comprehensive Income". SFAS No. 130 establishes standards for reporting and display of comprehensive income and its components in the financial statements. SFAS No. 130 is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Reclassification of financial statements for earlier periods provided for comparative purposes is required.

In June 1997, the FASB issued SFAS No. 131, "Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information". SFAS No. 131 establishes standards for the way public business enterprises report information about operating segments in annual financial statements and requires those enterprises report selected information about operating segments in interim financial reports. It also establishes standards for related disclosures about products and services, geographic areas, and major customers. SFAS No. 131 is effective for financial statements for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Financial statement disclosures for prior periods are required to be restated.

In February 1998, the FASB issued SFAS No. 132, "Employers' Disclosures about Pensions and Other Postretirement Benefits". SFAS No. 132 revises employers' disclosures about pension and other postretirement benefits to the extent practicable. It also requires additional information on changes in the benefit obligations and fair value of plan assets and eliminates certain other disclosures. SFAS No. 132 is effective for financial statements for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1997. Financial statement disclosures for prior periods are required to be restated.

CLN Holdings has not yet determined the impact of adoption of these standards; however, the adoption of these standards will have no impact on CLN Holdings' consolidated results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

2. Acquisitions and Divestitures

On November 2, 1994, the Company purchased substantially all the assets of Eastpak, Inc. and all the capital stock of M.G. Industries, Inc. (collectively, "Eastpak"), a leading designer, manufacturer and distributor of branded daypacks, sports bags and related products. The Company also entered into an agreement with the predecessor owner of Eastpak to make additional payments based upon the achievement of certain annual sales levels of Eastpak products and other products substantially similar to the Eastpak products during the years ended December 31, 1995, 1996, and 1997. A total of $23,000 was earned by the predecessor owner of Eastpak under the terms of this agreement. This amount has been recorded as additional goodwill.

During 1995, the Company purchased all of the outstanding shares of capital stock of Sierra Corporation of Fort Smith, Inc., a manufacturer of portable outdoor and recreational folding furniture and accessories, and substantially all of the assets of Active Technologies, Inc. ("ATI"), a manufacturer of technologically advanced lightweight generators and battery charging equipment. The aggregate purchase price for these acquisitions was $19,516 including fees and expenses. These acquisitions were accounted for using the purchase method of accounting. The purchase price and expenses associated with these acquisitions exceeded the fair value of net assets acquired by $11,186 and the excess has been assigned to goodwill and is being amortized over 20 to 30 years on the straight-line method. In connection with the ATI purchase, the Company may also be required to make payments to the predecessor owner of ATI of up to $18,750 based on the Company's sales of ATI related products and royalties received by the Company for licensing arrangements related to ATI patents. As of December 31, 1997, the amounts recorded, as additional goodwill, under the terms of this agreement have been immaterial. The results of operations of these companies on a pro forma basis as if their acquisitions had occurred at the beginning of 1995 individually and in the aggregate were not significant to CLN Holdings.

On January 2, 1996, the Company purchased substantially all the assets and assumed certain liabilities of Seatt Corporation ("Seatt"), a leading designer, manufacturer and distributor of safety and security related electronic products for residential and commercial applications. The Seatt acquisition, which was accounted for under the purchase method, was completed for approximately $65,300 including fees and expenses. The results of operations of Seatt have been included in the consolidated financial statements from the date of acquisition. In connection with the purchase price allocation of the Seatt acquisition, the Company recorded goodwill of approximately $38,800. The Company is amortizing this amount over 40 years on the straight-line method.

On February 18, 1998, the Company announced an agreement was signed for the sale of Coleman Safety & Security Products, Inc., the successor to Seatt, to Ranco Incorporated, a U.S. subsidiary of Siebe plc, a United Kingdom diversified engineering group. The sale price is approximately $105,000 and is subject to adjustment upon closing which is expected to occur by the end of March 1998. Net assets of Coleman Safety & Security at December 31, 1997 were approximately $73,000.

On February 28, 1996, the Company purchased approximately 70% of the outstanding shares of Application des Gaz, S.A. ("ADG" or "Camping Gaz"), a leading manufacturer and distributor of camping appliances in Europe. The Company completed the necessary steps to acquire the remaining 30% of the outstanding shares during the second quarter of 1996. The cost of acquiring all the shares of ADG was approximately $100,000 including fees and expenses.

The acquisition of Camping Gaz was accounted for under the purchase method. In connection with the final allocation of purchase price to the fair values of assets acquired and liabilities assumed, the Company recorded goodwill of approximately $78,900, which is being amortized over 40 years on the straight-line method. At acquisition, the Company recognized liabilities in the amount of $21,898 representing severance and other termination benefits for certain production and administrative employees of Camping Gaz. As of December 31, 1997, the Company had paid termination costs of approximately $13,350 and anticipates all remaining termination costs will be paid during 1998.

The Company has included the results of operations of Camping Gaz in the consolidated financial statements from March 1, 1996, the date on which the Company obtained control of Camping Gaz, and has recognized minority interest related to the remaining shares for the period March 1, 1996 through June 30, 1996.

3. Restructuring and Other Charges—(Continued)

The components of the combined 1997 Restructuring Charges and 1996 Restructuring Charges and an analysis of the amounts charged against the reserve are outlined in the following table:

	1996 Original Reserve	Charges During Year Ended 12/31/96	Balance at 12/31/96	1997 Additional Reserves	Charges During Year Ended 12/31/97	Balance at 12/31/97
Impairment of fixed assets	$10,012	$ (1,789)	$ 8,223	$ 6,449	$ (6,530)	$ 8,142
Inventory and other asset impairments	38,257	(25,875)	12,382	10,961	(14,966)	8,377
Termination costs	2,018	(1,633)	385	12,146	(9,729)	2,802
Idle facilities, relocation and other exit costs	23,913	(12,429)	11,484	6,863	(9,656)	8,691
	$74,200	$(41,726)	$32,474	$36,419	$40,881	$28,012

The termination costs recognized in 1996 related to approximately 200 employees and the 1997 termination costs related to approximately 525 employees. As of December 31, 1997, $11,362 of termination costs were paid on behalf of the approximately 700 employees who were terminated as of that date.

During 1995, the Company recognized an asset impairment charge of $12,289 related to its Brazilian operations. The Brazilian operations had not performed to the Company's expectations since acquisition of this business in April of 1994, and in the fourth quarter of 1995, the Company initiated actions to reduce the operating losses in Brazil. These actions included replacing management, increasing prices, downsizing the manufacturing operations and reducing SG&A and other expenses. Because of these actions, the Company performed an impairment review and concluded recognition of an asset impairment charge was appropriate. The basis of the fair values used in the computation of the charge were appraisals for property and equipment and estimated discounted cash flows for goodwill. The charge has been included in the statement of operations under the caption "Asset Impairment Charge".

(a) On August 8, 1995, the Company completed a private placement issuance and sale of $200,000 aggregate principal amount of 7.26% Senior Notes due 2007 (the "2007 Notes"). Interest on the 2007 Notes is payable semiannually, and the principal is payable in annual installments of $40,000 each commencing August 8, 2003, with a final installment payment of $40,000 due on August 8, 2007. If there is a default, the interest rate will be the greater of (i) 9.26% or (ii) 2.0% above the prime interest rate.

The 2007 Notes are unsecured and are subject to various restrictive covenants including, without limitation, requirements for the maintenance of specified financial ratios and levels of consolidated net worth and certain other provisions limiting the incurrence of additional debt and sale and leaseback transactions under the terms of the note purchase agreement.

(b) On June 13, 1996, the Company completed a private placement issuance and sale of $85,000 aggregate principal amount of 7.10% Senior Notes due 2006 (the "2006 Notes"). Interest on the 2006 Notes is payable semiannually, and the principal is payable in annual installments of $12,143 each commencing June 13, 2000, with a final installment payment of $12,143 due on June 13, 2006. If there is a default, the interest rate will be the greater of (i) 9.10% or (ii) 2.0% above the prime interest rate.

The 2006 Notes are unsecured and are subject to various restrictive covenants including, without limitation, requirements for the maintenance of specified financial ratios and levels of consolidated net worth and certain other provisions limiting the incurrence of additional debt and sale and leaseback transactions under the terms of the note purchase agreement.

(c) On June 13, 1996, the Company completed a private placement issuance and sale of $75,000 aggregate principal amount of 7.25% Senior Notes due 2008 (the "2008 Notes"). Interest on the 2008 Notes is payable semiannually, and the principal is payable in annual installments of $15,000 each commencing June 13, 2004, with a final installment payment of $15,000 due on June 13, 2008. If there is a default, the interest rate will be the greater of (i) 9.25% or (ii) 2.0% above the prime interest rate.

9. Long-Term Debt—(Continued)

The 2008 Notes are unsecured and are subject to various restrictive covenants including, without limitation, requirements for the maintenance of specified financial ratios and levels of consolidated net worth and certain other provisions limiting the incurrence of additional debt and sale and leaseback transactions under the terms of the note purchase agreement.

(d) In April 1996, the Company amended its credit agreement to: a) provide a term loan of French Franc 385,125 ($64,894 at December 31, 1997 exchange rates) (the "Term Loan"), b) provide a $275,000 unsecured revolving credit facility line (the "Credit Facility"), c) allow for the Camping Gaz acquisition and d) extend the maturity of the credit agreement (as amended, the "Company Credit Agreement"). In connection with the Company recording the restructuring and other charges as discussed in Note 3 and lower than expected operating results, the Company further amended the Company Credit Agreement in October 1996 and again in March 1997.

The Company Credit Agreement is available to the Company until April 30, 2001. The outstanding loans under the Company Credit Agreement bear interest at either of the following rates, as selected by the Company from time to time: (i) the higher of the agent's base lending rate or the federal funds rate plus .50% or (ii) the London Inter-Bank Offered Rate ("LIBOR") plus a margin ranging from .25% to 2.125% based on the Company's financial performance. If there is a default, the interest rate otherwise in effect will be increased by 2% per annum. The Company Credit Agreement also bears an overall facility fee ranging from .15% to .375% based on the Company's financial performance.

In addition, the Company Credit Agreement provides, subject to certain exceptions, for the net cash proceeds from disposition of assets other than in the ordinary course of business, to be used to prepay any outstanding Term Loan balances with any remaining excess net cash proceeds to be applied to outstanding borrowings under the Credit Facility with a corresponding reduction in the overall amount of the Credit Facility line.

The Company Credit Agreement contains various restrictive covenants including, without limitation, requirements for the maintenance of specified financial ratios, levels of consolidated net worth and profits, and certain other provisions limiting the incurrence of additional debt, purchase or redemption of the Company's common stock, issuance of preferred stock of the Company, and also prohibits the Company from paying any dividends until on or after January 1, 1999 and limits the amount of dividends the Company may pay thereafter. The Company Credit Agreement also contains an event of default upon a change of control of the Company (as defined in the Company Credit Agreement) and other customary events of default. In addition, substantially all of the shares of the Company's common stock owned by Coleman Worldwide are pledged to secure indebtedness of Coleman Worldwide and of its parent, CLN Holdings Inc. The indentures governing this indebtedness contain various covenants including a covenant placing certain limitations on the Company's indebtedness.

(e) On May 20, 1997, CLN Holdings issued approximately $600,475 in principal amount at maturity of Old First Priority Notes and approximately $131,560 in principal amount at maturity of Old Second Priority Notes resulting in aggregate net proceeds of approximately $455,257 in a private placement offering. The Old First Priority Notes and Old Second Priority Notes were issued at a discount from their principal amount at maturity to yield 11 1/8% and 12 7/8%, respectively, per annum calculated from May 20, 1997. Subsequent to the private placement offering, a registration statement on Form S-1 was filed to exchange the Old First Priority Notes for Senior Secured First Priority Discount Exchange Notes due 2001 (the "First Priority Notes") and to exchange the Old Second Priority Notes for Senior Secured Second Priority Discount Exchange Notes due 2001 (the "Second Priority Notes" and together with the First Priority Notes, the "Escrow Notes"). The indenture governing the Escrow Notes (the "Indenture") requires, subject to certain exceptions, that the retirement of the remaining outstanding LYONs be consummated no later than June 10, 1998. The Indenture requires CLN Holdings to hold, directly or indirectly, a majority of the voting power of the Company at all times, unless and until CLN Holdings exercises its right to substitute U.S. Government obligations for all of the pledged collateral. The Indenture, to which Coleman is not a party, also contains certain covenants that, among other things, generally prohibit the incurrence of additional debt by CLN Holdings and the issuance of additional debt and the issuance of preferred stock by Coleman Worldwide, and limit (i) the incurrence of additional debt and the issuance of preferred stock by the Company, (ii) the payment of dividends on the capital stock of CLN Holdings and its subsidiaries and the redemption or repurchase of the capital stock of CLN Holdings, (iii) the sale of assets and subsidiary stock, (iv) transactions with affiliates, (v) the creation of liens on the assets of CLN Holdings and Coleman Worldwide, and (vi) consolidations, mergers and transfers of all or substantially all of CLN Holdings' assets. The foregoing limitations and prohibitions, however, are subject to a number of qualifications. The Escrow Notes also contain customary events of defaults and a put right by the holders at a price specified in the Indenture in the event of a change of control of CLN Holdings (as defined in the Indenture).

Approximately $262,194 of the net proceeds of the Escrow Notes were contributed to Coleman Holdings, then a subsidiary of CLN Holdings, and used by it to redeem, on July 15, 1997, the Discount Notes (as defined below). Coleman Holdings recorded an extraordinary loss of $4,300, net of tax benefits of $2,315, relating to the excess of the redemption price over the accreted value of the Discount Notes and the write-off of deferred charges related to the Discount Notes. Approximately $191,278 of the net proceeds of the Escrow Notes were contributed to Coleman Worldwide and used by it to accept for exchange, $554,053 aggregate principal amount at maturity of LYONs, including redemption fees and expenses. Coleman Worldwide recorded an extraordinary loss of $10,939, net of tax benefits of $7,076, relating to the excess of the exchange offer price over the accreted value of the LYONs, the write-off of deferred charges related to the LYONs exchanged and redemption fees and expenses. The $7,500 principal amount at maturity of LYONs which remain outstanding are secured by a pledge of 7,692,854 shares of Coleman common stock owned by Coleman Worldwide. The Escrow Notes are secured by a pledge of all the shares of common stock of Coleman Worldwide and guaranteed pursuant to a non-recourse guaranty of Coleman Worldwide (the "Guaranty"), which Guaranty is currently secured by a pledge of 36,374,666 shares of Company common stock and will be secured by the shares currently securing the LYONs upon their redemption.

(f) On May 27, 1993, Coleman Worldwide issued and sold $500,000 principal amount at maturity of LYONs in an underwritten public offering. On June 7, 1993, an additional $75,000 principal amount at maturity of LYONs was sold upon exercise of the underwriter's overallotment option. During 1997, Coleman Worldwide redeemed $554,053 principal amount at maturity of LYONs as described above. The $7,500 principal amount at maturity of LYONs which remain outstanding are secured by a pledge of 7,692,854 shares of Coleman common stock owned by Coleman Worldwide. There are no periodic payments of interest on the LYONs. The aggregate principal amount of the LYONs represents a yield to maturity of 7.25% per annum (computed on a semi-annual bond equivalent basis) calculated from May 27, 1993. Coleman Worldwide plans to redeem the remaining $7,500 aggregate principal amount at maturity of LYONs no later than May 27, 1998 with the remaining proceeds from the issuance of the Escrow Notes which are being held in escrow. The LYONs, to which the Company is not a party, provide that it is an Additional Purchase Right Event (as defined below) if, among other things, the amount of debt incurred by the Company exceeds certain limitations. The Indenture governing the LYONs, to which the Company is not a party, provides the holders of LYONs with the option to require Coleman Worldwide to purchase the LYONs at a price specified in the Indenture after the occurrence of certain events ("Additional Purchase Right Events"). Additional Purchase Right Events occur, among other things, upon the Company's Consolidated Debt Ratio (as defined) exceeding 0.75 to 1.0 or the Consolidated Net Worth (as defined) of Coleman Worldwide as of the end of any fiscal quarter being less than a specified amount which is $70,000 at December 31, 1997.

(g) On July 22, 1993, Coleman Holdings issued and sold $281,281 principal amount at maturity of Old Notes in a private placement offering. Subsequent to the private placement offering, a registration statement on Form S-1 was filed to exchange the Old Notes for Series B Senior Secured Discount Notes (the "Discount Notes"). During 1997, Coleman Holdings redeemed the Discount Notes as described above.

The aggregate scheduled amounts of long-term debt maturities in the years 1998 through 2002 are $3,026, $78, $12,207 $632,376, and $12,159, respectively.

10. Derivative Financial Instruments

The Company periodically enters into a variety of foreign currency exchange contracts to reduce its foreign currency exposure resulting primarily from firm commitments, intercompany foreign sales transactions expected to occur within the next twelve months, and intercompany accounts receivable and payable.

At December 31, 1997 and December 31, 1996, the Company did not have any outstanding foreign currency exchange contracts related to firm commitments.

During the fourth quarter of 1995, the Company elected to adopt the provisions of the Emerging Issues Task Force Issue No. 95-2, "Determination of What Constitutes a Firm Commitment for Foreign Currency Transactions Not Involving a Third Party" ("EITF 95-2") which narrowed the scope of intercompany foreign currency commitments eligible to be hedged for financial reporting purposes. As a result of this change, the Company increased net income by $3,796 in the fourth quarter of 1995. Prior to the adoption of EITF 95-2, the gains and losses associated with these contracts were accounted for under the deferral method. At December 31, 1997, the Company did not have any outstanding foreign currency forward contracts related to intercompany foreign sales transactions. At December 31, 1996, the Company had forward exchange contracts to sell $8,500 in Canadian dollars maturing on February 28, 1997, for which the Company has recognized a net gain of $40 as a component of cost of sales.

At December 31, 1997, the Company did not have any outstanding option contracts. At December 31, 1996, the Company had outstanding option contracts for the sale of Japanese yen at fixed exchange rates totaling $20,038 for specified periods of time which expired during 1997. Net unrealized gains deferred at December 31, 1996 were $653.

With respect to intercompany accounts receivable and payable, at December 31, 1997, the Company had foreign currency forward contracts to sell $1,580 in foreign currencies, which contracts matured in February 1998, and had deferred a net gain of $128. At December 31, 1996, the Company had foreign currency forward contracts to sell $26,623 and to buy $3,898 in foreign currencies, which contracts matured at various dates in 1997, and had deferred a net gain of $185.

At December 31, 1997, $25,000 of the Company's outstanding long-term debt was subject to an interest rate swap agreement and $25,000 of the Company's outstanding long-term debt was subject to an interest rate cap. Under the interest rate swap agreement, the Company pays the counterparty interest at a fixed rate of 6.115%, and the counterparty pays the Company interest at a variable rate equal to the three month LIBOR for a seven-year period commencing January 2, 1996. The agreement is with a major financial institution which is expected to fully perform under the terms of the agreement, thereby mitigating the credit risk from the transaction. The interest rate cap agreement entitles the Company to receive from a major financial institution the amount, if any, by which the Company's interest payments on $25,000 of its variable rate debt exceed 7.35%. 11. Taxes

CLN Holdings is included in the consolidated federal and certain consolidated state income tax returns of Mafco and/or its affiliates. CLN Holdings and Mafco and subsidiaries provide taxes as if they were a separate taxpayer. CLN Holdings will pay to Mafco amounts equal to the taxes that CLN Holdings would otherwise have to pay if it were to file separate tax returns for itself. To the extent that CLN Holdings is entitled to a tax benefit from Mafco as a result of its tax losses, such amounts are recorded as a reduction in the provision for income taxes and a distribution to its parent. During 1997 and 1996, respectively, CLN Holdings recorded a benefit of $18,769 and $9,013 for income taxes, and similar amounts were recorded as distributions to its parent. Coleman Worldwide and Mafco are parties to a tax sharing agreement (the "Tax Sharing Agreement"), pursuant to which Coleman Worldwide is required to pay to Mafco amounts equal to the taxes Coleman Worldwide would otherwise have to pay if it were to file separate consolidated federal, state or local income tax returns including only itself and its domestic subsidiaries. Pursuant to the LYONs indenture agreement, at any time the LYONs are outstanding, the amounts Coleman Worldwide would be required to pay to Mafco under the Tax Sharing Agreement, together with any remaining funds paid to Coleman Worldwide by the Company under the tax sharing agreement between Coleman Worldwide and the Company, may not be paid as tax sharing payments, but Coleman Worldwide may advance such funds to Mafco as long as the aggregate amount of such advances at any time does not exceed the issue price plus accrued OID of the LYONs. Such advances are evidenced by noninterest bearing unsecured demand promissory notes (the "Mafco Demand Notes") from Mafco in the amount of $35,395 at December 31, 1997. Following the redemption or retirement in full of the LYONs, expected to occur no later than May 27, 1998, the Mafco Demand Notes shall be canceled automatically without further action of any person, and shall be of no further force or effect whatsoever, and, until the time of such cancellation, no demand or request for payment of any kind shall be made with respect to the Mafco Demand Notes. As a result of the restriction on the payment of the tax sharing amounts, income taxes provided pursuant to the Tax Sharing Agreement are reflected as a non-cash charge. For all periods presented, federal and state income taxes are provided as if Coleman Worldwide filed its own income tax returns. The accompanying consolidated balance sheet includes approximately $13,317 and $18,528 of federal and state income taxes payable to Mafco pursuant to the Tax Sharing Agreement at December 31, 1997 and 1996, respectively.

11. Taxes—(Continued)

The deferred tax account balance at December 31, 1997 differs from the account balance at December 31, 1996 due primarily to the 1997 deferred tax provision, the tax effects of the foreign exchange gain recorded as a component of stockholder's equity, the tax effects of adjustments related to the finalization of the purchase accounting related to the acquisition of Camping Gaz and the deferred tax asset recorded related to the acquisitions in 1997 of inactive companies which were recorded as a capital contribution (see Note 12).

During 1997, CLN Holdings increased the valuation allowance related to certain foreign deferred tax assets due to uncertainties over realization. At December 31, 1997, CLN Holdings had net operating loss carryforwards ("NOL's") of approximately $107,229 for certain foreign income tax purposes. These NOL's expire beginning in 1998.

CLN Holdings has not provided for taxes on undistributed foreign earnings of approximately $20,860 at December 31, 1997, as CLN Holdings intends to permanently reinvest these earnings in the future growth of the business. Determination of the amount of unrecognized deferred U.S. income tax liability is not practicable because of the complexities associated with its hypothetical calculation.

12. Related Party Transactions

Capital Contributions

As of March 31, 1997, the Company purchased an inactive subsidiary from an affiliate for net cash consideration of $1,031, including transaction costs. The Company expects to realize certain foreign tax benefits from this transaction in future years. Under certain circumstances, a portion of these tax benefits will be payable to the affiliate to the extent such tax benefits are realized by the Company. During the fourth quarter of 1997, the Company purchased an inactive subsidiary from an affiliate in a transaction in which the Company expects to realize certain foreign tax benefits in future years and for which the Company agreed to pay 50% of those realized benefits to the affiliate. The Company has recorded a liability to the affiliate in the amount of $219 which represents 50% of the estimated amount of future tax benefits. The Company has accounted for these transactions in a manner similar to a pooling-of-interests due to the Mafco Holdings Inc. common control over each of the parties involved in the transactions. The $2,799 excess value of estimated realizable tax benefits acquired over the total acquisition costs have been accounted for as a capital contribution.

Insurance Programs

The Company participates in certain of Holdings' insurance programs, including health and life insurance, workers compensation, and liability insurance. The Company's expense represents its expected costs for self-insured retentions and premiums for excess coverage insurance. The expense was $13,339, $13,923 and $9,875 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

Services Agreement

From time to time, Coleman purchases, at negotiated rates, specialized accounting and other services provided by an affiliate. Coleman also provides, at negotiated rates, services to an affiliate. The net expense for such services was $394 during 1997 and was immaterial in prior years.

Management Agreement

The Company provided management services to certain affiliates pursuant to a management agreement through June 30, 1995. The consolidated financial statements reflect the management fees as a reduction in selling, general and administration expenses. For the year ended December 31, 1995, management fees earned by the Company were $2,400.

Licensing Agreement

During 1997, the Company engaged an affiliate of MacAndrews & Forbes to provide licensing services. The Company recorded expenses of $650 related to these services in 1997.

Other

In 1996, the Company entered into an agreement with an affiliate in which the Company realized approximately $1,800 of net tax benefits associated with certain foreign tax net operating loss carryforwards that had not previously been recognized.

The Company purchases and sells products from and to certain affiliates. These amounts are not, in the aggregate, material.

The Company subleases six thousand square feet of office space in New York City from an affiliate pursuant to a month-to-month occupancy memorandum (the "Lease") entered into during 1997. The rent paid by the Company during the year ended December 31, 1997 pursuant to the Lease was $158.

During 1997, Coleman used an airplane owned by a corporation of which a director of Coleman is a stockholder, for which Coleman paid approximately $158.

13. Employee Benefit Plans

Pension Plans

Holdings maintains pension and other retirement plans in various forms covering employees of the Company who meet eligibility requirements. The U.S. salaried retirement plan is a non-contributory defined benefit plan and provides benefits based on a formula of each participant's final average pay and years of service. The U.S. hourly pension plan is a non-contributory defined benefit plan and contains a flat benefit formula. The salaried and hourly plans provide reduced benefits for early retirement and the salaried plan takes into account offsets for Social Security benefits. The Company's policy is to contribute annually the minimum amount required pursuant to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, as amended. Under certain circumstances, the Company may make additional contributions to the pension plans up to the maximum deductible amounts for income tax purposes.

Holdings also has an unfunded excess benefit plan covering certain of the Company's U.S. employees whose benefits under the plans described above are limited by provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The following table reconciles the funded status of the pension plans with the amount recognized in CLN Holdings' consolidated balance sheets as of the dates indicated:

	December 31,
	1997	1996
Actuarial present value of benefit obligation:
Accumulated benefit obligation, including vested benefits of $24,296 and $18,686	$(27,843)	$(21,933)
Projected benefit obligation for service rendered to date	$(43,246)	$(37,092)
Plan assets at fair value	23,102	16,197
Projected benefit obligation in excess of plan assets	(20,144)	(20,895)
Unrecognized prior service cost	130	50
Unrecognized net loss	6,259	7,999
Accrued pension cost	(13,755)	(12,846)
Amount reflected as an intangible asset	(143)	(288)
Amount reflected as minimum pension liability adjustment	(1,526)	(470)
Amount reflected as pension liability	$(15,424)	$(13,604)

The weighted-average discount rate used in determining the actuarial present value of the projected benefit obligation was 7.5% as of December 31, 1997 and 1996. The rate of increase in future compensation levels reflected in such determination was 5% as of December 31, 1997 and 1996. The expected long-term rate of return on assets was 9% as of December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995. Plan assets consist primarily of common stock, mutual funds and fixed income securities stated at fair market value, and cash equivalents stated at cost, which approximates fair market value. Unrecognized items are being recognized over the estimated remaining service lives of active employees.

Net pension expense includes the following components:

	Year Ended December 31,
	1997	1996	1995
Service cost-benefits attributed to service during the year	$3,081	$3,098	$2,125
Interest cost on projected benefit obligation	2,813	2,442	2,004

13. Employee Benefit Plans—(Continued)

Savings Plan:

Holdings maintains an employee savings plan under Section 401(k) of the Internal Revenue Code. This plan covers substantially all of the Company's full-time U.S. employees and allows employees to contribute up to 10% of their salary to the plan. The Company matches, at a 34% rate, employee contributions of up to 6% of their salary. Amounts charged to expense for matching contributions were $1,401, $1,314, and $1,165 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

Retiree Health Care and Life Insurance:

The Company, through Holdings, provides certain unfunded health and life insurance benefits for certain retired employees. Approximately 55% of the Company's U.S. employees may become eligible for these benefits if they reach retirement age while working for the Company.

The following table reconciles the funded status of the Company's allocable portion of Holdings' postretirement benefit plans with the amount recognized in CLN Holdings' consolidated balance sheets as of the dates indicated:

	December 31,
	1997	1996
Accumulated postretirement benefit obligation:
Retirees	$ (6,852)	$ (6,682)
Fully eligible active plan participants	(3,308)	(3,015)
Other active plan participants	(10,322)	(10,664)
Total accumulated postretirement benefit obligation	(20,482)	(20,361)
Unrecognized transition benefit	(3,707)	(3,973)
Unrecognized prior service cost	(404)	(492)
Unrecognized net gain	(2,415)	(976)
Net postretirement benefit liability	$(27,008)	$(25,802)

Net periodic postretirement benefit expense includes the following components:

	Year Ended December 31,
	1997	1996	1995
Service cost-benefits attributed to service during the year	$ 927	$1,044	$ 756
Interest cost on accumulated postretirement benefit obligation	1,453	1,454	1,352
Amortization of transition benefit and other net gains	(358)	(354)	(455)
Net periodic postretirement benefit expense	$2,022	$2,144	$1,653

The discount rate used in determining the accumulated postretirement benefit obligation ("APBO") was 7.5% as of December 31, 1997 and 1996. At December 31, 1997, the assumed health care cost trend rate used in measuring the APBO was 7.5% starting in 1998 then gradually decreasing to 5% by the year 2003 and remaining at that level thereafter. The health care cost trend rate assumption has a significant effect on the pamount of the obligation and periodic benefit expense reported. An increase in the assumed health care cost trend rates by 1% in each year would increase the APBO as of December 31, 1997 by approximately 19% and the service and interest cost components of net periodic postretirement benefit expense by approximately 22%.

Stock Option Plans:

The Company adopted The Coleman Company, Inc. 1992 Stock Option Plan (the "1992 Stock Option Plan") in 1992. During 1993, the shareholders approved the 1993 Stock Option Plan (the "1993 Stock Option Plan") and during 1996, the shareholders approved The Coleman Company, Inc. 1996 Stock Option Plan (the "1996 Stock Option Plan"). Under the terms of the 1992 Stock Option Plan, the 1993 Stock Option Plan and the 1996 Stock Option Plan (collectively the "Stock Option Plans"), incentive stock options ("ISOs"), non-qualified stock options ("NQSOs") and stock appreciation rights may be granted to key employees of the Company and any of its affiliates from time to time. Stock options have been granted under the Stock Option Plans with vesting terms and maximum terms of approximately five years and ten years, respectively. The aggregate number of shares of common stock as to which options and rights may be granted under the Stock Option Plans may not exceed 4,700,000.

The following table summarizes the stock option transactions under the Stock Option Plans:

13. Employee Benefit Plans—(Continued)

As described in Note 1, the Company follows APB Opinion No. 25 in accounting for stock compensation arrangements. Pro forma financial information regarding net income and earnings per share has been determined as if the Company had accounted for its employee stock options under the fair value method of SFAS No. 123. The fair value of ISOs and NQSOs granted during 1997, 1996 and 1995 were estimated at the date of grant using the Black-Scholes option pricing model with the following weighted-average assumptions: risk-free interest rates of 6.53%, 6.11% and 5.91 % for 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively, dividend yield of 0.0%, volatility of the expected market price of the Company's common stock of 31.3%, 20.2% and 30.8% for 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively, and a weighted-average expected life of the option of 7.7, 5.5 and 5.5 years for 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

SFAS No. 123 requires the use of option valuation models, one of which is the Black-Scholes model, that were not developed for use valuing ISOs or NQSOs. Further, these option valuation models require the input of highly subjective assumptions, including the expected stock price volatility. In management's opinion, based on the above, the existing models do not necessarily provide a reliable single measure of the fair value of its ISOs or NQSOs.

The following summarized, unaudited pro forma results of operations assume the estimated fair value of the ISOs and NQSOs granted during the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995 is amortized to expense over the ISOs' and NQSOs' vesting period. SFAS No. 123 does not require disclosure of the effect of any grants of stock based compensation prior to 1995 and, therefore, the pro forma effect of SFAS No. 123 on net earnings is not representative of the pro forma effect on net earnings in future years.

	Year Ended December 31,
	1997	1996	1995
Pro forma net (loss) earnings	$(55,045)	$(58,918)	$9,742

14. Commitments and Contingencies

Leases:

The Company leases manufacturing, administrative and sales facilities and various types of equipment under operating lease agreements expiring through 2007. Rental expense was $15,620, $14,164, and $11,526 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively. Minimum rental commitments under all noncancellable operating leases with remaining lease terms in excess of one year from December 31, 1997, aggregated $31,506; such commitments for each of the five years subsequent to December 31, 1997 are $7,571, $6,683, $4,622, $2,848, and $3,560, respectively, and $6,222 thereafter.

The Company leases its former corporate office building in Denver, Colorado under agreements which give the Company the right, subject to certain qualifications, to renew or terminate the lease, or purchase the property. Upon termination, the Company has guaranteed the lessor certain residual values.

Environmental Matters:

Gilbert and Mosley Site. As a result of investigations undertaken in 1986, the Kansas Department of Health and Environment ("KDHE") discovered that groundwater in the downtown Wichita area (the "Gilbert and Mosley Site") was contaminated with volatile organic chemicals ("VOCs"). Coleman occupied a facility within the boundaries of the Gilbert and Mosley Site. Subsequent investigations in the area, including investigations in November 1988 by Coleman, indicated the groundwater beneath the Coleman property is contaminated with VOCs. Coleman is in the process of remediating the contamination on its property.

The City of Wichita has entered into a voluntary agreement with KDHE in which the City agreed to investigate and then remediate contamination in the Gilbert and Mosley Site. Coleman has entered into an agreement with KDHE in which Coleman agreed to perform a similar study for the Coleman property and to implement remedial activities at its property. In addition, Coleman entered into an agreement with the City of Wichita in which Coleman agreed to fund its proportionate share of the City's study and remediation of the Gilbert and Mosley site.

Maize Site. Coleman has undertaken a soil and groundwater investigation at its facility in Maize, Kansas (the "Maize Site"). Results indicate that limited VOC contamination is present in the groundwater under and to the southeast of the facility. The data has been reported to the KDHE, and Coleman has entered into an agreement with KDHE to implement appropriate remedial actions. The remediation system has been installed, and Coleman is in the process of remediating the contaminated groundwater.

Northeast Site. In 1990, Coleman undertook a soil and groundwater investigation of its facility in northeast Wichita (the "Northeast Site"). Results indicated the presence of VOCs in the groundwater and soils. Although some of the contamination may be a result of Coleman's operations at the facility, the data also indicated that contamination was migrating onto the Coleman property from up gradient sources. Coleman reported the initial results of its study to KDHE. Coleman has also provided copies of all data to the United States Environmental Protection Agency (the "EPA"), at its request. The EPA has not initiated any actions against the Company with respect to the Northeast Site. An agreement has been entered into with KDHE to undertake additional investigatory activities, and an interim remediation system has been installed.

The Company has not been named as a potentially responsible party ("PRP") by the EPA nor does it have joint and several liability with any other PRP for remediation at any of the above sites.

The Company has adopted an environmental policy designed to ensure the Company operates in full compliance with applicable environmental regulations and, where appropriate, the Company's own internal standards. Coleman has also undertaken an environmental compliance audit program. The Company makes expenditures it believes are necessary to comply with environmental management practices. Environmental expenditures that relate to current operations are expensed or capitalized as appropriate and were not significant in 1997 and are not expected to be significant in the foreseeable future. The Company accrues for losses associated with environmental remediation obligations when such losses are probable and reasonably estimable. Accruals for estimated losses from environmental remediation obligations generally are recognized no later than completion of the remedial feasibility study. Such accruals are adjusted as further information develops or circumstances change. Costs of future expenditures for environmental remediation obligations are not discounted to their present value. Recoveries of environmental remediation costs from other parties are recognized as assets when their receipt is deemed probable.

While it is possible the Company reserves may change in the near term, the Company believes the reserves established for environmental matters are adequate. This belief is based on estimates provided by the state governmental authorities referred to above, results of environmental investigations of the groundwater and soils at the manufacturing facilities operated by Coleman conducted by independent consultants specializing in environmental investigations and remediation and estimates provided by such independent consultants, together with estimates provided by Coleman's environmental engineering staff.

Other:

The Company and Holdings are involved in various claims and legal actions arising in the ordinary course of business. The Company believes the ultimate disposition of these matters is not expected to have a material adverse effect on CLN Holdings' consolidated financial condition or results of operations. The Company has entered into a cross-indemnification agreement with Holdings pursuant to which it will indemnify Holdings against all liabilities related to businesses transferred to the Company, and Holdings will indemnify the Company against all liabilities of Holdings other than liabilities related to the businesses transferred to the Company.

The Company is party to a license agreement which requires payments of minimum guaranteed royalties aggregating to $11,778 at December 31, 1997; such commitments for each of the five years remaining under the agreement subsequent to December 31, 1997 are $1,040, $1,745, $2,434, $3,010 and $3,549, respectively.

15. Significant Customers

The Company's U.S. and Canadian operations have one significant customer which accounted for approximately 13%, 15%, and 19% of net revenues in the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

16. Cash Flow Reporting

CLN Holdings uses the indirect method to report cash flows from operating activities. Interest paid was $42,217, $37,608, and $23,976 and net income taxes paid were $3,206, $2,857, and $4,606 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively. Certain non-cash transactions relating to acquisitions, the issuance of long-term debt and income taxes have been reported in Notes 2, 9 and 11.

17. Geographic Segments

CLN Holdings, through the Company, designs, manufactures and markets a wide variety of multiuse products and accessories, which are primarily marketed through independent retail markets for outdoor recreation and hardware consumers. CLN Holdings, through the Company, is a leading manufacturer and marketer of brand name consumer products for the camping and related outdoor recreation markets in the United States, Canada, Europe, and Japan.

Operating profit, as indicated below, represents net revenues less operating expenses and amortization of goodwill. Generally, sales between geographic areas are made at cost plus a share of operating profit. Identifiable assets are those used by each geographic segment. Corporate assets are principally cash, certain property and equipment, income tax refunds receivable—affiliate, and deferred charges.

Information related to CLN Holdings' geographic segments is as follows:

19. Impact of Year 2000 (Unaudited)

Some of the Company's older computer programs were written using two digits rather than four to represent the applicable year. As a result, those computer programs recognize a date represented by "00" as the year 1900 rather than the year 2000. This situation, known as the "Year 2000" issue, could cause a system failure or miscalculations causing disruptions of operations, including, among other things, a temporary inability to process transactions, send invoices, or engage in similar normal business activities.

Based on ongoing assessments of the Company's operations, the Company has determined it will be required to modify or replace portions of its computer software so the computer systems will function properly with respect to dates in the year 2000 and thereafter. The Company believes that, in most instances, with minor modifications to existing software, the Year 2000 issue will not pose significant operational problems for its computer systems. The Company has identified one location with significant Year 2000 software issues. Failure to complete a timely conversion of this location to a Year 2000 compliant system could have a material impact on the operations of the Company; however, the Company has begun to replace the software at this location, and such replacement software is expected to be installed prior to December 31, 1999.

The Company has initiated formal communications with some of its significant suppliers and large customers to determine the extent to which the Company's interface systems are vulnerable to those third parties' failure to remediate their own Year 2000 issues. There can be no guarantee that the systems of other companies on which the Company's systems rely will be timely converted and would not have an adverse effect on the Company's systems.

In 1996, the Company began a project to select and install a Company-wide enterprise resource computer software system designed to improve operational efficiency. The selected system is Year 2000 compliant and complete installation of this software system is expected to take three years. The cost of the purchase of the software and installation costs is expected to range from $20,000 to $25,000. The Company will capitalize a significant portion of these costs and does not believe the costs of this project will have a significant impact on the Company's financial condition or results of operations.

The costs of the project and the date on which the Company believes it will be Year 2000 compliant are based on management's best estimates, which were derived utilizing numerous assumptions of future events, including the continued availability of certain resources, third party modification plans and other factors. However, there can be no guarantee that these estimates will be achieved and actual results could differ materially from those anticipated. Specific factors that might cause such material differences include, but are not limited to, the availability and cost of personnel trained in this area, the ability to locate and correct all relevant computer codes, and similar uncertainties.

20. Subsequent Event (Unaudited)

On February 27, 1998, the Company, Sunbeam Corporation ("Sunbeam"), and a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Merger Sub"), entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Coleman Merger Agreement") providing that, among other things, Merger Sub will be merged (the "Coleman Merger") with the Company. Pursuant to the Coleman Merger Agreement, each share of the Company's Common Stock, issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time of the Coleman Merger (other than certain shares) will be converted into the right to receive (a) 0.5677 shares of Sunbeam common stock, with cash paid in lieu of fractional shares, and (b) $6.44 in cash, without interest.

Coincident with the execution of the Coleman Merger Agreement, CLN Holdings and Coleman (Parent) Holdings Inc., the parent company of CLN Holdings, entered into an Agreement and Plan of Merger (the "Holdings merger Agreement" and with the "Coleman Merger Agreement", collectively the "Merger Agreements"), with Sunbeam and a wholly owned subsidiary of Sunbeam ("Laser Merger Sub"). The Holdings Merger Agreement provides that, among other things, Laser Merger Sub will be merged (the "Holdings Merger") with CLN Holdings. Pursuant to the Holdings Merger Agreement, the shares of CLN Holdings' common stock issued and outstanding immediately prior to the effective time of the Holdings Merger (other than certain shares) will be converted into the right to receive in the aggregate 14,099,749 shares of Sunbeam's common stock and $159,957 in cash, without interest.

Following consummation of the Holdings Merger, CLN Holdings will be a direct wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam. Following consummation of the Coleman Merger, the Company will be an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Sunbeam.

The Holdings Merger is subject to the expiration of antitrust waiting periods and certain other customary conditions. The Coleman Merger Agreement is subject to consummation of the Holdings Merger. These transactions will constitute a change in control as defined in the Company Credit Agreement, the Lyons and the Escrow Notes. Per the terms of the Merger Agreements, certain arrangements with related parties may be altered or terminated. In addition, outstanding, unvested stock Company options immediately vest upon consummation of the Holdings Merger.

INDEPENDENT AUDITORS' REPORT

The Board of Directors
Signature Brands USA, Inc. and Subsidiary:

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Signature Brands USA, Inc. and subsidiary (formerly Health o meter Products, Inc.) as of September 28, 1997 and September 29, 1996, and the related consolidated statements of operations, stockholders' equity, and cash flows in the years ended September 28, 1997, September 29, 1996 and October 1, 1995. These consolidated financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these consolidated financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the consolidated financial position of Signature Brands USA, Inc. and subsidiary as of September 28, 1997 and September 29, 1996, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for the years ended September 28, 1997, September 29, 1996, and October 1, 1995, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

SIGNATURE BRANDS USA, INC. AND SUBSIDIARY

NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

September 28, 1997 and September 29, 1996
(Amounts in thousands, except share and per share data)

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

(a) Description of Business

Signature Brands USA, Inc. (the Company) is a holding company which, through its wholly owned subsidiary, Signature Brands, Inc. (Signature Brands), designs, manufactures, markets, and distributes a comprehensive line of consumer and professional products. The Company's consumer products, marketed under the Mr. Coffee® and Health o meter® brand names, include automatic drip coffeemakers, iced and hot teamakers, coffee filters, water filtration products, accessories, and other kitchen countertop appliances as well as bath, kitchen, and gourmet scales and therapeutic devices. Professional products include the Pelouze® and Health o meter® brands of office, foodservice, and medical scales.

(b) Principles of Consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Company and its wholly owned subsidiary. All significant intercompany accounts and transactions are eliminated in consolidation.

(c) Revenue Recognition

The Company recognizes revenue from product sales upon shipment to the customer. Costs or losses estimated to be incurred in connection with product returns and warranties are charged against revenues at the time of sale, based upon consideration of historical experience and information available from customers.

(d) Inventories

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost or market. Cost is determined using the first-in, first-out (FIFO) method.

(e) Property, Plant and Equipment

Property, plant and equipment are stated at cost. The Company calculates depreciation using the straight-line method over the estimated useful lives of the respective assets.

(f) Excess of Cost over Fair Value of Net Assets Acquired

The Company's excess of cost over the fair value of net assets acquired primarily represents the value of its brand names, created by advertising and product performance over many years, and is being amortized on the straight-line basis over a 40-year period. The Company assesses the recoverability of this intangible asset by determining whether the brand name dominance in terms of market share and the national distribution secured can generate sufficient revenues, growth, and cash flow to recover the intangible asset balance over its remaining life. Accumulated amortization amounted to $15,195 and $11,258 at September 28, 1997 and September 29, 1996, respectively.

(g) Deferred Financing and Stock Issuance Costs

Financing costs related to the issuance of debt are capitalized and amortized over the term of the debt. Accumulated amortization of financing costs amounted to $2,606 and $1,750 at September 28, 1997 and September 29, 1996, respectively. Issuance costs related to the sale of common stock reduce paid-in capital.

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies—(Continued)

(h) Income Taxes

The Company accounts for income taxes under the asset and liability method whereby deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized for the future tax consequences attributable to differences between the financial statement carrying amount of existing assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured using the tax rates in effect at the end of the period. The effect on deferred tax assets and liabilities of a change in tax rates is recognized in income in the period that the new tax rate is enacted.

(i) Product Liability Costs

Costs estimated to be incurred with respect to product liability claims are accrued based upon actuarially determined estimates derived from experience factors. The current portion represents product liability costs estimated to be paid within one year.

(j) Net Income (Loss) per Common Share

Net income per common share is calculated by dividing net income by the weighted average of outstanding common stock and common stock equivalents using the treasury stock method, except when the effect of common stock equivalents would be antidilutive or when dilution is less than 3 percent. Net loss per common share is based on the weighted average of outstanding common shares.

(k) Use of Estimates

Generally accepted accounting principles require management to make a number of estimates and assumptions relating to the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and the disclosure of contingent liabilities, at the date of the financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the period in preparing these financial statements. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

(l) Stock-Based Compensation

During 1995, the FASB issued Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 123, Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation, which provides a basis for measurement and recognition of all stock-based employee compensation plans. The disclosure requirements of this Statement are effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 1995. The Company chose to maintain its current accounting method for stock-based compensation and disclose the pro forma effects on net income and net income per share of the fair market value method, if material, as permitted by the Statement.

(m) Advertising Costs

The Company expenses reimbursement of customers' advertising costs at the time the related revenues are recognized. Advertising expense was $23,450, $20,087 and $18,458 for the years ended September 28, 1997, September 29, 1996 and October 1, 1995, respectively.

2. Name Change

On March 6, 1997, the stockholders of the Company approved an amendment to the Company's Certificate of Incorporation to change the name of the Company to "Signature Brands USA, Inc." In view of the Company's name change, on April 30, 1997, Health o meter, Inc., the Company's operating subsidiary, was merged with and into a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company, Signature Brands, Inc., an Ohio corporation, formed by the Company solely for the purpose of changing the name of Health o meter, Inc. to "Signature Brands, Inc."

3. Accounting Change

As of September 30, 1996, the Company changed its method of determining the cost of certain inventories from the last-in, first-out (LIFO) method to the first-in, first-out (FIFO) method. Management believes that the change in accounting for inventories is preferable because it will more appropriately measure operating results and inventory value, better match revenues and expenses, and conform all inventories of the Company to the same accounting method.

The change in the method of valuing inventories has been applied retroactively by restating financial statements for prior years. The effect of this restatement was to reduce retained earnings as of September 29, 1996 by $363. The following summarizes the effect of changing the accounting method for certain inventories:

	1996	1995
Net income as previously reported	$2,959	$ 712
Effect of change in accounting method for inventories, net of income tax	(238)	272
Net income as restated	$2,721	$ 984
Net income per share as previously reported	$ .33	$ .08
Effect of change in accounting method for inventories, net of income tax	(.03)	.03
Net income per share as restated	$ .30	$ .11

4. Unusual Item

The Company charged $2,350 to operations in the year ended September 28, 1997 primarily for costs associated with the severance of several senior executive officers.

5. Inventories

The components of inventories are as follows:

	1997	1996
Raw materials and purchased parts	$11,233	$13,446
Finished goods	28,374	29,591
	$39,607	$43,037

Work-in-process inventories are not significant and are included with raw materials.

6. Property, Plant and Equipment

Property, plant and equipment are as follows:

	1997	1996
Land, buildings and building improvements	$ 6,241	$ 6,108
Machinery and equipment	9,477	7,862
Tools, dies and patterns	22,783	21,657

Bank Credit Agreement

Signature Brands' Bank Credit Agreement (the Agreement) includes a $60.0 million revolving credit facility (including an $18.0 million letter of credit subfacility) and a $75.0 million term loan facility. The revolving credit facility includes a charge of 0.5 percent on the unused line and 2.5 percent for letter of credit guarantees.

Signature Brands is required to make prepayments on the term loan and revolving credit facility with a percentage of Excess Cash Flow, as defined, and 100 percent of the proceeds from certain asset sales, issuances of debt and equity securities, and extraordinary items outside the ordinary course of business. There is no required prepayment for fiscal 1998. Signature Brands may also make optional prepayments, in full or in part, on the term loan.

Borrowing availability under the revolving credit facility at September 28, 1997 was $13.6 million after giving effect to outstanding letters of credit of $1.2 million, actual borrowings of $33.7 million, and sufficiency of collateral.

Signature Brands is subject to certain customary affirmative and negative covenants contained in the Agreement. These include, without limitation, covenants that restrict, subject to certain exceptions, incurrence of additional indebtedness; mergers, consolidations, or asset sales; changes in the nature of the business; granting of liens to secure any other indebtedness; and transactions with affiliates. In addition, the Agreement requires that the Company maintain certain specified financial ratios, including minimum interest and fixed charge coverage ratios, maximum leverage ratios, minimum net worth levels, and ceilings on leverage and capital expenditures. At September 28, 1997, the Company was in compliance with such covenants.

In December 1997, the Agreement was amended to increase the term loan facility by $1.0 million and to modify the amortization schedule such that the annual aggregate payments are $5.0 million, $8.75 million, $14.5 million, and $33.0 million during fiscal 1998 through fiscal 2001, respectively. A portion of the annual payment for fiscal 2001 may be accelerated into fiscal 2000 if certain EBITDA levels are not achieved in fiscal 1999. In addition, the revolving credit facility was reduced to $55.0 million, however, because the advance rate on collateral was increased, the Company's availability thereunder should not be materially impacted.

Senior Subordinated Notes

The Senior Subordinated Notes (the Notes) are general obligations of Signature Brands. Signature Brands' payment obligations under the Notes are unconditionally guaranteed by the Company. The Notes and the Company's guaranty are subordinated to the prior payment of the Company's amounts outstanding under the Agreement. The Indenture governing the Notes contains customary provisions restricting mergers, consolidations, or sales of assets; issuances of preferred stock or the incurrence of additional indebtedness; payment of dividends; creation of liens; and transactions with affiliates. Provided that certain financial tests are met, the Indenture does not limit the amount of additional indebtedness that Signature Brands and its subsidiaries may incur.

The Notes are generally not redeemable at the option of the Company until August 15, 1999. Under certain limited circumstances, the Company may be required to use a portion of the proceeds from asset sales to make an offer to purchase a portion of the Notes, at a price of 101 percent of the principal amount thereof, together with accrued and unpaid interest. In addition, in the event of a change in control of the Company, each holder will have the right to require Signature Brands to repurchase its Notes at a price of 101 percent of the principal amount thereof, together with accrued and unpaid interest thereon. Except for the foregoing circumstances, Signature Brands is not required to make mandatory redemption or sinking fund payments with respect to the Notes.

The Agreement currently prohibits the Company from purchasing any Notes prior to the expiration thereof and also provides that certain change in control events with respect to the Company would constitute a default thereunder.

9. Warrants

The Company, in conjunction with the issuance of the Notes, issued 70,000 warrants. Each warrant entitles the holder thereof to purchase 10.96 shares of common stock at $6.25 per share, subject to adjustment under certain circumstances. The warrants expire on August 15, 2002.

10. Income Taxes

Income tax expense (benefit) for the years ended September 28, 1997, September 29, 1996, and October 1, 1995, respectively, consisted of:

	1997	1996	1995

State	215	326	40
Deferred	(283)	349	2,547
	$788	$4,727	$2,687

The principal items accounting for the difference in taxes on income computed at the U.S. statutory rate and as recorded for the years ended September 28, 1997, September 29, 1996, and October 1, 1995, respectively, are as follows:

	1997	1996	1995
Tax expense (benefit) at statutory rate of 35%	$ (498)	$2,607	$1,285
State taxes, net of federal benefit	86	455	206
Goodwill amortization	1,241	1,302	1,255
Other	(41)	363	(59)
	$ 788	$4,727	$2,687

The tax effects of temporary differences that give rise to significant portions of the deferred tax assets and liabilities at September 28, 1997 and September 29, 1996 are as follows:

	1997	1996
Deferred tax assets
Compensation and vacation	$1,096	$ 340
Warranties and sales reserves	2,259	2,897
Advertising	676	683

Other	(232)	(279)
Total gross deferred tax liabilities	(1,725)	(2,207)
Net deferred tax asset	$5,158	$4,875

The realization of the Company's net deferred tax asset is dependent on the generation of future taxable income. Management believes that it is more likely than not that the Company will generate sufficient future taxable income to fully utilize the established net asset. Accordingly, no valuation allowance for the net deferred tax asset has been provided.

11. Lease Commitments

The Company leases various buildings and equipment under leases expiring at various dates. At September 28, 1997, minimum rental commitments under noncancelable leases are as follows:

Fiscal Year Ending
1998	$ 2,031
1999	1,903
2000	1,800
2001	1,790
2002	1,750
Thereafter	18,400
	$27,674

Rental expense amounted to approximately $1,630, $1,438, and $1,447, for the years ended September 28, 1997, September 29, 1996, and October 1, 1995, respectively.

12. Contingencies

The Company is involved in various claims and items of litigation. Management believes that the ultimate outcome of such matters will not have a material adverse effect upon the operations or financial position of the Company.

13. Stock Incentive Plans

The Company has five stock-based compensation plans. Options granted under these plans have ten-year terms and generally have graded vesting schedules of either four or five years. Options scheduled over five years require achievement of company-wide performance goals in order for options to vest.

The Company applies APB Opinion 25 (APB 25) in accounting for its stock incentive plans and, accordingly, recognizes compensation costs only to the extent that the market price of shares granted exceeds the exercise price at the grant date. During 1995, the Financial Accounting Standards Board issued Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 123, Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation (SFAS 123), which permits the continued use of APB 25 and requires disclosure of the pro forma effects on net income and net income per share had the fair value method of accounting prescribed under SFAS 123 been used. Under SFAS 123, an option's fair value is estimated at the grant date using an option pricing model, the resulting fair value is then recognized as compensation cost over the vesting period of the related option. In the Company's case these pro forma disclosures are required to be applied only to options granted after October 1, 1995 (fiscal 1996). In estimating fair value, the Company has used the Black-Scholes option pricing model with the following weighted-average assumptions for 1997 and 1996, respectively; risk free interest rate of 6.21 percent and 6.10 percent, expected lives of 4.1 years and 4.7 years, and stock price volatility of 29.3 percent. The weighted average fair value of options granted during 1997 and 1996 was $1.18 and $1.70, respectively. The following chart depicts the pro forma affects on net income of applying the provisions of SFAS 123.

Options unexercised at end of year	1,401,228	919,853	813,853
Weighted average exercise price	$3.93	$4.15	$3.86
Options exercisable at end of year	567,728	443,478	398,353
Weighted average exercise price	$3.52	$3.15	$3.08

At September 28, 1997, the range of exercise prices and weighted average remaining contractual life of outstanding options was $2.61—$14.50 and 8.5 years.

1992 Incentive Stock Option Plan

In February 1992, the Company adopted a new incentive stock plan (1992 Plan). The 1992 Plan provides that incentive stock options and nonqualified stock options may be granted to such officers and key employees as the administrators of the 1992 Plan may select. The 1992 Plan is administered by a committee of the board of directors which selects the participants and determines (i) the type of options; (ii) the vesting schedule of options; (iii) the exercise price (which may not be less than fair market value on the date of grant); and (iv) the duration of the options (which cannot exceed 10 years). A total of 220,000 shares of common stock have been reserved for issuance under the 1992 Plan. No options may be granted under the 1992 Plan after December 31, 2001.

1994 Nonqualified Stock Option Grant

In August 1994, the Company granted an executive officer of the Company 362,353 nonqualified stock options at an exercise price of $2.61 per share in exchange for canceled options of Mr. Coffee. The difference between the aggregate exercise price of such new options and the fair value of the Company's stock was equal to the option spread for the canceled Mr. Coffee options. The options are exercisable immediately, but may not be exercised more than one year after termination or death while in the employ of the Company or more than 10 years from date of grant.

13. Stock Incentive Plans—(Continued)

1995 Stock Option and Incentive Plan

In April 1995, the Company adopted a new stock option and incentive plan (1995 Plan). The 1995 Plan provides authority for the grant of stock options and stock appreciation rights to directors, employees, and consultants by the Compensation Committee (Committee) of the board of directors. The total number of shares of common stock that may be subject to awards granted under the 1995 Plan is equal to 750,000 shares of common stock, subject to certain adjustments. The Committee selects the participants and determines (i) the type of option; (ii) the vesting schedule of options; (iii) the exercise price; and (iv) the duration of the options. No options may be granted under the 1995 Plan after April 27, 2005.

1997 Stock Option and Incentive Plan

In March 1997, the Company adopted a new stock option and incentive plan (1997 Plan). The 1997 Plan provides the Compensation Committee (Committee) of the board of directors the authority to grant stock options and stock appreciation rights to directors, employees, and consultants. The Committee selects the participants and determines (i) the type of award; (ii) the vesting schedule of awards; (iii) the exercise price; and (iv) duration of the award. The total number of shares of common stock that may be subject to awards granted under the 1997 Plan is equal to 270,000 shares of common stock, subject to certain adjustments. No awards my be granted under the 1997 Plan after March 5, 2007.

1997 Nonqualified Stock Option Grant

In August 1997, the Company granted an executive officer of the Company 500,000 nonqualified stock options at an exercise price of $3.50 per share. One-half of the options become exercisable on September 30 of each year following the date of grant, but may not be exercised more than ten years from the date of grant.

15. Business and Credit Concentrations

The Company distributes and sells its products through major retail outlets, including discounters/mass merchants, department stores, warehouse clubs, specialty stores, catalog showrooms, mail order catalog companies, and national hardware, drugstore, and retail grocery chains. Approximately 39 percent, 36 percent, and 33 percent of the Company's revenues were from two customers in the years ended September 28, 1997, September 29, 1996, and October 1, 1995, respectively. The largest of these two customers accounted for 27 percent, 23 percent, and 23 percent of the Company's revenues in those same years, respectively.

16. Related Party Transactions

Signature Brands pays a management fee to a related party for certain administrative and professional services performed by the related party. Amounts paid to this related party for management fees, including reimbursed expenses, were $252, $263, and $305 for the years ended September 28, 1997, September 29, 1996, and October 1, 1995, respectively.

17. Financial Instruments

Management has determined that at September 28, 1997 and September 29, 1996, the fair value of financial instruments included in the balance sheets approximated their carrying values. With respect to cash, receivables, payables, and accrued liabilities, this determination was based on the short maturity of the instruments. With respect to debt, the assessment was based on management's judgment as to currently available rates on debt with similar maturities.

SIGNATURE BRANDS USA, INC. AND SUBSIDIARY

NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

(Unaudited)

(Amounts in thousands, except per share data)

1. Basis of Presentation

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of Signature Brands USA, Inc. (the "Company") and its wholly owned subsidiary. All significant intercompany accounts and transactions are eliminated in consolidation.

In the opinion of management, the information furnished herein includes all adjustments of a normal recurring nature that are necessary for a fair presentation of results for the interim periods shown in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. The unaudited interim consolidated financial statements have been prepared using the same accounting principles that were used in preparation of the Company's annual report on Form 10-K for the year ended September 28, 1997, and should be read in conjunction with the consolidated financial statements and notes thereto. Because of the seasonal nature of the small appliance and consumer scale industries, the results of operations for the interim period are not necessarily indicative of results for the full fiscal year.

2. Inventories

The components of inventories are as follows:

	December 28, 1997	September 28, 1997
Raw materials and purchased parts	$10,040	$11,233
Finished goods	27,811	28,374
	$37,851	$39,607

Work-in-process inventories are not significant and are included with raw materials.

3. Earnings per share

The Company adopted Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 128, Earnings per Share ("SFAS No. 128"), in the quarter ended December 28, 1997. SFAS No. 128 requires the Company to disclose two earnings per share amounts, basic and diluted. Basic earnings per share is based on net income available to common stockholders and weighted average common stock outstanding during the period. Diluted earnings per share includes the effect of all dilutive securities which are convertible to common stock of the Company such as stock options and warrants.

Below is a table which reconciles basic earnings per share with diluted earnings per share for the thirteen weeks ended December 28, 1997 and December 29, 1996.

	Net Income		Shares		Per Share Amounts
	1997	1996	1997	1996	1997	1996
Basic Earnings Per Share
Net income available to common stockholders	$1,225	$491	9,109	9,081	$0.13	$0.05
Effect of Dilutive Securities[1]
Stock Options	—	—	298	268
Diluted Earnings Per Share	$1,225	$491	9,407	9,349	$0.13	$0.05

[1] The Company's outstanding warrants and certain outstanding stock options have not been included as they are currently antidilutive.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT ACCOUNTANTS

Price Waterhouse LLP

To the Board of Directors and Stockholders of First Alert, Inc.

In our opinion, the accompanying consolidated balance sheet and related consolidated statements of operations, of cash flows and of stockholders' equity present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of First Alert, Inc. and its subsidiaries at December 31, 1997 and 1996 and the results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 1997, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management; our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits. We conducted our audits in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards which require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, and evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for the opinion expressed above.

Note 1—The Company

Effective July 31, 1992, THL-FA Operating Corp. acquired substantially all the net assets of the BRK Electronics Division and all the issued and outstanding shares of certain non-U.S. subsidiaries of the Fire Safety Group of Pittway Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "Predecessor" or the "Division") for approximately $92,500 ("Acquisition"). THL-FA Operating Corp. is a wholly owned subsidiary of THL-FA Holding Corp. THL-FA Operating Corp. subsequently changed its name to BRK Brands, Inc. and THL-FA Holding Corp. subsequently changed its name to First Alert, Inc. ("Company" or "First Alert"). After this acquisition, the Company was owned by Thomas H. Lee Company and related entities, Pittway Intellectual Property Corporation, a subsidiary of Pittway Corporation ("Pittway") and management of the Company. On April 5, 1994, the Company completed an initial public offering ("IPO") of 5,180,000 shares of its common stock. An additional 3,100,000 shares of the Company's common stock were sold by Pittway as part of the same offering.

The Company, through its subsidiaries, manufactures and markets residential safety products including smoke and carbon monoxide detectors, fire extinguishers, motion sensing lighting control devices, timers, fire security safes and chests, fire escape ladders, child safety products and rechargeable flashlights. The Company's manufacturing operations are located in Juarez, Mexico and Aurora, Illinois.

While the Company has a number of customers in the retail and wholesale markets, a significant amount of its net sales are concentrated in three major U.S. national retail chains comprising 13%, 7% and 7% of consolidated net sales for the year ended December 31, 1997; 15%, 7% and 5% for the year ended December 31, 1996 and 13%, 8% and 6% for the year ended December 31, 1995.

Most of the components used in the Company's products are available from multiple sources; however, the Company has elected to purchase integrated circuit components used in the Company's smoke detectors and carbon monoxide detectors, and certain other components used in the Company's products, from single sources. The Company has developed an alternative source of supply for these integrated circuit components. However, there can be no assurance that the Company will be able to continue to obtain these components on a timely basis given the unpredictability of the demand for carbon monoxide detectors. In addition, the biomimetic sensor, which is the key component used in the Company's battery-powered carbon monoxide detector, is obtained by the Company pursuant to a license from Quantum Group, Inc. (Quantum), its sole supplier of this component. Commencing on January 1, 1997, Quantum was permitted to sell its sensors to other customers. There is no alternative supply for the biomimetic sensor. An extended interruption or termination in the supply of any of the components used in the Company's products, or a reduction in their quality or reliability, would have an adverse effect on the Company's business and results of operations.

Note 2—Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Principles of Consolidation

The consolidated financial statements of the Company include those assets, liabilities, revenue and expenses of the Company and its subsidiaries and its foreign operations after eliminating significant intercompany accounts and transactions. The financial statements include the operations in the United States, Canada, Europe, Mexico and Australia.

Revenue Recognition

Revenue is recorded at the time products are shipped to customers and title passes. Net sales include estimates for returns, warranties, discounts and volume rebates. The Company grants credit terms to its customers consistent with normal industry practices.

Cash and Cash Equivalents

Only highly liquid investments with initial maturities of less than three months are considered as cash and cash equivalents. Substantially all of the Company's cash is held by one bank at December 31, 1997. The Company does not believe that as a result of this concentration, it is subject to any unusual credit risk beyond the normal risk associated with commercial banking relationships.

Earnings per Share

In 1997, the Company adopted Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 128 (SFAS 128), "Earnings per Share." This statement establishes standards for computing earnings per share (EPS) and simplifies the standards for computing EPS previously found in APB Opinion No. 15 (APB15), "Earnings per Share." It replaces the presentation of Primary EPS with a presentation of Basic EPS. It also requires dual presentation of Basic and Diluted EPS on the face of the income statement for all entities with complex capital structures. Basic EPS is based on the weighted average number of shares of common stock while Diluted EPS is based on the weighted average number of shares of common stock and dilutive potential shares of common stock outstanding during the periods. In accordance with the requirements of SFAS 128, the Company has restated all EPS data for prior periods.

A reconciliation of both the income and shares used in the calculation of Basic and Diluted EPS are as follows:

	1997	1996	1995
Basic EPS calculation:
Numerator:
Net income (loss)	$(7,836)	$(18,702)	$11,437
Denominator:
Common shares outstanding	24,242	24,119	24,043
Basic EPS	$ (0.32)	$ (0.78)	$ 0.48
Diluted EPS calculation:
Numerator:
Net income (loss)	$(7,836)	$(18,702)	$11,437
Denominator:
Common shares outstanding	24,242	24,119	24,043
Dilutive Options	0	0	788
Total shares	24,242	24,119	24,831
Diluted EPS	$ (0.32)	$ (0.78)	$ 0.46

Stock options were outstanding at December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, as discussed in Note 11.

Translation of Foreign Currencies

The functional currency of the foreign operations included in these financial statements is the U.S. dollar. Translation adjustments and transaction gains and losses are reflected in net income and consisted of a loss of $1,149 in the year ended December 31, 1997, a gain of $733 in the year ended December 31, 1996, and a loss of $39 in the year ended December 31, 1995.

Note 2—Summary of Significant Accounting Policies—(Continued)

Inventories

Company inventories are valued at the lower of cost, determined on the first-in, first-out (FIFO) basis, or market.

Property, Plant and Equipment

Properties are stated at cost. Depreciation of all assets is computed over their estimated useful lives using the straight-line method for financial reporting and accelerated methods for income tax reporting.

Upon sale or retirement of property, plant and equipment, a gain or loss is recognized. Expenditures for maintenance and repairs are charged to expense.

Useful lives for property, plant and equipment are as follows:

	Years
Buildings	Up to 40
Building improvements	20
Furniture and fixtures	10
Machinery and equipment	10
Tools, jigs and dies	3

Goodwill

Goodwill, representing the difference between the total purchase price and the fair value of assets (tangible and intangible) and liabilities at the date of acquisition, is being amortized on a straight-line basis over 40 years. Amortization expense totalled $638 for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 1997.

Impairment of Assets

In 1996, the Company adopted Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 121 "Accounting for the Impairment of Long-Lived Assets and for Long-Lived Assets to be Disposed Of." This statement requires that long-lived assets and certain identifiable intangibles be reviewed for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstance indicate that the carrying amount of an asset may not be recoverable. Under provisions of the statement, impairment losses are recognized when expected future cash flows are less than the assets' carrying value.

Patents, Trademarks and Other Intangibles

Patents, trademarks and other intangibles are carried at cost less accumulated amortization, which is calculated on a straight-line basis over the estimated useful lives of the assets, not to exceed 40 years (see Note 5). Amortization expense was $704, $682 and $1,054 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

Fair Value of Financial Instruments

The carrying values of cash and cash equivalents, accounts receivable and payable and accrued liabilities approximate fair value due to the short-term maturities of these assets and liabilities. The aggregate fair value of the Credit Facility approximates its carrying amount because of the recent and frequent repricing based on market conditions.

Stock Based Compensation

Effective January 1, 1996, the Company adopted the "disclosure method" provisions of Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 123 "Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation." As permitted under this statement, the Company continues to recognize stock-based compensation costs under the intrinsic value based method of accounting as prescribed by Accounting Principles Board Opinion No. 25, "Accounting for Stock Issued to Employees."

Income Taxes

Income taxes of the Company are accounted for using Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 109, "Accounting for Income Taxes."

Advertising and Research and Development Costs

Advertising costs, including advertising allowances granted to customers, are accrued at the date of sale of certain products to reflect advertising commitments made to customers. Research and development costs are charged to expense as incurred. Expense charged to operations for the periods presented were as follows:

	Year Ended December 31,
	1997	1996	1995
Advertising and product promotion	$12,796	$22,899	$33,258
Research and development	$ 2,012	$ 3,121	$ 2,866

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting periods. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Impact of New Accounting Standards

Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 130 (SFAS 130), "Reporting Comprehensive Income" and Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement No. 131 (SFAS 131), "Disclosures about Segments of an Enterprise and Related Information," were issued in June 1997 and are effective for the Company's fiscal year 1998. SFAS 130 establishes standards for the reporting and display of comprehensive income, which includes net income and changes in equity except those resulting from investments by, or distributions to, stockholders. SFAS 131 establishes standards for disclosures related to business operating segments. The Company is currently evaluating the impact that these statements will have on the consolidated financial statements.

Note 3— Restructuring Charge

During the fourth quarter of 1996, the Company adopted a plan to revitalize the Company's core product lines of smoke and carbon monoxide detectors and discontinue, reposition or outsource non-performing product lines, right-size and consolidate manufacturing operations, reduce the Company's selling, general and administrative cost structures and aggressively address inventory levels. As a result of this plan, the Company recorded a pre-tax restructuring charge of $4,497 including a provision of $1,998 for inventory write-downs which was appropriately charged to cost of sales, excluding depreciation. The remaining restructuring charge of $2,499 includes $1,789 for the write-down of the net book value of manufacturing equipment for product lines that will be outsourced or eliminated, $410 for severance costs for approximately 600 manufacturing and corporate office employees who were released from employment in the fourth quarter of 1996 and $300 for contractual plant restoration costs. The provision for inventory write-downs relates primarily to inventory for product lines that either have been or will be outsourced or eliminated. The following table sets forth the details of activity for 1997:

	Balance at December 31, 1996	1997 Charges	Balance at December 31, 1997
Manufacturing equipment write-down	$1,789	—	$1,789
Inventory write-down	1,998	$1,283	715
Severance	93	93	—
Plant restoration	300	135	165
Total	$4,180	$1,511	$2,669

Of the 1997 charges, $93 of severance was a cash charge with the remainder being non-cash charges.

During the fourth quarter of 1997, the Company released $1,005 of inventory write-down and plant restoration cost accruals which were determined by the Company's management as no longer being required. The release, reflected as a non-cash charge in the above table, was recorded through cost of sales, excluding depreciation. These accruals were deemed no longer necessary as the Company, in light of market conditions faced in 1997, reassessed its original cost estimates associated with repositioning certain product lines and consolidating its manufacturing operations.

Long-term revolving credit facility	$ —	$40,000

On May 14, 1997, the Company entered into an $80.0 million revolving three-year credit facility (the "Credit Facility") with an agent financial institution, replacing its Former Credit Facility (as defined below). Advances under the Credit Facility are limited to (a) 85% of eligible accounts receivable plus (b) the lesser of 60% of eligible inventory or $35.0 million. During the period of May 1997 through October 1997, $10.0 million in additional borrowing was available and from June 1998 through September 1998, $5.0 million in additional borrowing will be available under the Credit Facility. All obligations under the Credit Facility are secured by first priority liens upon certain of the Company's assets. Amounts outstanding under the Credit Facility bear interest at prime rate plus ½% or the London Interbank Offered Rate (LIBOR) plus 2%. The Company is subject to a commitment fee of 0.375% per annum on the unused portion of the Credit Facility less $2.0 million. The Credit Facility agreement contains covenants for, among other things, total liabilities to tangible net worth and fixed charge ratios; maintenance of tangible net worth; and restrictions on additional indebtedness, capital expenditures and payment of dividends.

At December 31, 1997, the Company was not in compliance with the total liabilities to tangible net worth, fixed charge coverage ratio and minimum tangible net worth covenants set forth in the Credit Facility. While a waiver was obtained from the lender for the noncompliance with these covenants at December 31, 1997, it is not expected that the Company will be able to meet the restrictive covenants throughout 1998. Accordingly, the Credit Facility has been classified as a current liability. The Company is currently negotiating the terms of an extension of the Credit Facility, as well as a modification of the restrictive covenants and fully expects that a new agreement with its current lender will be in place by the second quarter of 1998.

At December 31, 1996, under the terms of the Company's former revolving credit facility (the "Former Credit Facility"), the Company was able to borrow up to $77.5 million until January 31, 1997, when the amount available was reduced to $70.0 million. In connection with a September 4, 1996 amendment, the Company granted a security interest in all of its assets which included the stock of wholly owned subsidiaries to secure the obligations to the lenders under the Former Credit Facility. Similarly, Electronica BRK de Mexico S.A. de C.V., a wholly owned subsidiary, agreed to pledge all of its assets to secure repayment of advances under the Former Credit Facility.

Under the Former Credit Facility, the Company was subject to a commitment fee of 0.35% per annum on the unused portion of the Former Credit Facility. The Former Credit Facility carried an interest rate of LIBOR plus 1.5% for amounts up to $70.0 million (LIBOR plus 2.0% for amounts in excess of $70.0 million) on the LIBOR based portion of the Former Credit Facility and the higher of the lender's corporate borrowing rate or the Federal Funds Rate plus 0.75% for amounts up to $70.0 million (Federal Funds Rate plus 1.25% for amounts in excess of $70.0 million) on the remaining balance. Additionally the Former Credit Facility contained covenants restricting, among other things, the payment of dividends, the sale of assets, mergers and acquisitions and required maintenance of interest coverage ratios, leverage ratios and a minimum tangible net worth. At December 31, 1996, the Company was not in compliance with the interest coverage ratio and the leverage ratio covenants. On May 14, 1997, proceeds from the Credit Facility were used to fully reduce the Company's indebtedness under the Former Credit Facility.

Note 10—Retirement Plans

The Company has retirement plans covering substantially all U.S. employees of its subsidiaries. No other post-retirement benefits are offered to retirees.

Eligible U.S. employees may participate in the Company's defined contribution plans. Company contributions to the plans are based upon a percentage of the employee contribution and vest over a five-year period commencing with date of employment. Such contributions amounted to $182, $210, and $154 for the years 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

There are two non-contributory defined benefit plans covering substantially all U.S. employees. Benefits are based on years of service and annual compensation as defined by such plans. Employees vest in plan benefits after five years of service.

Pursuant to the terms of the purchase agreement with Pittway, all retirement obligations earned by Company employees through July 31, 1992, were retained by Pittway. Obligations arising subsequent to that date are the responsibility of the Company. Pension costs recorded for the fiscal years 1997, 1996 and 1995 aggregated $307.

Accrued pension cost included in the consolidated balance sheet	$ 285	$ 147

The cost of benefit plans covering non-U.S. employees is not significant.

Note 11—Stock Options

Following the Acquisition, the Company established the 1992 Time Accelerated Restricted Stock Option Plan ("1992 Plan") under which it is authorized to grant non-qualified options to purchase shares of Company common stock at a price equal to the market value of a share of such stock on the date of grant. Such options vest over a five-year period if certain provisions are met and are generally exercisable once vested, or, in the case of a terminated employee, become exercisable pursuant to the terms of the plan.

During 1994, the Company established the 1994 Stock Option Plan ("1994 Plan") which provides for the grant of options to purchase up to 1,226,666 shares of common stock. During 1997, the Company established the 1997 Stock Option Plan ("1997 Plan") which provides for the grant of options to purchase up to 1,300,000 shares of common stock. The 1994 and 1997 Plans allow for the issuance of incentive stock options and non-qualified options. Options granted under the 1994 and 1997 Plans are generally issued at an exercise price of not less than the current market price and vest over periods determined by the Board of Directors. Under the 1994 and 1997 Plans, no option shall be exercisable after ten years from the date on which it was granted.

Note 11—Stock Options—(Continued)

During 1996, the Company established the Nonqualified Stock Option Plan for Non-Employee Directors ("Non-Employee Director Plan") which provides for the grant of options for the purchase of an aggregate of 100,000 shares of common stock by all independent directors of the Company. Options to purchase 12,912 shares of common stock at an exercise price of $1.78 per share 6,456 of which have expired and 6,827 shares of common stock at an exercise price of $1.17 per share were granted in 1997 under the Non-Employee Director Plan. Options granted under the Non-Employee Director Plan are generally granted at an exercise price of one half of the market price of a share of common stock at the date of grant and become fully exercisable on the first anniversary of the date of grant. Under the Non-Employee Director Plan, options expire ten years after the date granted.

In February 1997, options for 314,000 shares of common stock were repriced to $3.19 per share, the market price of the Company's common stock on the date of repricing. Of these options, 114,000 shares have a time-based vesting schedule while 200,000 shares were only to become exercisable in the event of a change in control of the Company consummated on or before December 31, 1997. Options for those 314,000 shares were granted apart from any Company stock option plan. The option for 114,000 shares was outstanding at December 31, 1997, while the one for 200,000 shares expired by its terms on December 31, 1997.

In February 1997, 505,200 options under the 1994 Plan were repriced to $3.19 per share, the market price of the Company's common stock on the date of the repricing.

Stock option activity for fixed plans is as follows:

	Year ended December 31,
	1997	1996	1995
Outstanding at beginning of period	1,587,224	1,541,864	1,238,364

Options exercisable at end of year	483,346	643,457	725,963

The weighted average exercise price per share related to this stock option activity is as follows:

	At December 31,
	1997	1996	1995
Outstanding at beginning of period	$5.55	$ 6.34	$ 4.25
Granted	3.11	6.83	14.12

13.50	22,500	13.50

Shares of common stock have been reserved for future issuance under all of the foregoing options.

The Company applies APB Opinion No. 25 and related interpretations in accounting for the aforementioned stock option plans. Accordingly, no compensation cost has been recognized for its fixed stock option plans while compensation expense has been recognized for its compensatory plans. Had compensation cost for the Company's fixed stock option plans been determined based on the fair value based method, as defined in Statement No. 123, the Company's net earnings (loss) and earnings (loss) per share would not be significantly different from those reported and consequently pro forma amounts have not been disclosed.

The fair value of each option grant is estimated on the date of grant using the Black-Scholes option pricing model with the following weighted average assumptions used for grants: expected volatility of 27.0% in 1997, 29.3% in 1996 and 28.0% in 1995; expected lives of seven years for 1997, 1996 and 1995 and risk free interest rate of 6.3% in 1997, 6.4% in 1996 and 7.8% in 1995. It has been assumed that no dividends will be paid for the expected term of the options.

Note 12—Lease Commitments

The Company leases certain warehouses, office space and equipment under noncancelable operating leases expiring at various dates through the year 2010. Minimum annual rental commitments under all noncancelable leases for the next five years beginning with 1998 are as follows:

1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	Thereafter
$2,879	$2,852	$2,483	$2,172	$2,165	$11,547

Total rent expense including taxes, insurance and maintenance when included in rent amounted to $3,223, $3,801 and $2,681 for the years ended December 31, 1997, 1996 and 1995, respectively.

Note 13—Contingencies

In November 1994, the Company and certain of its officers and directors were named as defendants in four purported class action lawsuits filed in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division. The plaintiffs in these actions, pursuant to a Court order, filed a consolidated and amended complaint resulting in the consolidation of the four actions. The consolidated case is entitled Gilbert et al. vs. First Alert, Inc. et al. ("Gilbert"). The amended complaint sought compensatory damages, costs and attorneys' fees on behalf of the purchasers of the Company's Common Stock during the period from October 12, 1994 through November 10, 1994. By order dated August 21, 1995, the Court certified the class. Subsequently, the plaintiff's motion to amend the complaint to expand the class period to September 20, 1994 through December 7, 1994, was granted and a second consolidated and amended complaint was filed on January 16, 1996. The new class was certified by the Court. The complaint alleges generally that the Company and other defendants disseminated false and misleading information to the investing public regarding the First Alert® Carbon Monoxide Detector in connection with an anticipated secondary public offering of the Company's Common Stock in late 1994 in violation of various provisions of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and the rules promulgated thereunder. The Registration Statement with respect to the proposed secondary public offering was declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission on November 9, 1994, but was subsequently withdrawn by the Company at the request of the selling stockholders. The public offering was solely to facilitate the sale of shares by certain selling stockholders and the Company would not have received any proceeds therefrom.

The Company vigorously contested all claims and denied liability. Nevertheless, to avoid further expense and the burdens of litigation, in November 1996, the Company agreed to a tentative settlement of the consolidated class actions. An executed settlement agreement was filed with the Court on February 11, 1997 and the Court entered an order on February 25, 1997, giving preliminary approval to the settlement.

Pursuant to the Court's February 25, 1997, order, members of the class had until May 12, 1997, to opt out of the class and until July 28, 1997, to file proofs of claim if they wished to receive a share of the settlement amount. The Court held a hearing on June 20, 1997, to consider the fairness of the settlement and, at that time, the Court approved the settlement.

Under the terms of the settlement agreement, defendants will pay a fixed amount per share to class members, depending on when they bought or sold their shares, with a maximum amount of $3.0 million (including attorney's fees and costs for class counsel) to be paid out in settlement. The majority of the settlement amount is being paid by the Company's directors and officers liability insurance carrier. The pendency of the Gilbert complaint has not had a material effect on the Company's financial results for any period and adequate reserves exist at December 31, 1997, for the Company's share of the settlement amount.

A purported class action entitled Betley et al. vs. First Alert, Inc. et al. ("Betley") was filed in the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois on January 3, 1995, against the Company and its wholly owned subsidiary, BRK Brands, Inc., alleging common law fraud, breach of warranties, and a statutory violation of the Illinois Consumer Fraud Act, all related to alleged defects in the original First Alert® Carbon Monoxide Detector (Model FACO) design and the manner in which the detector was marketed. The Company does not believe that the plaintiffs claim any personal injuries or property damage; nor do the plaintiffs claim that their detectors failed to detect dangerous levels of carbon monoxide. Instead, they claim (i) that the Company failed to disclose that the product alarms in non-life threatening conditions (which they state in their complaint to be a "nuisance"), (ii) that the Company falsely proclaims the product resets "automatically" when, in fact, the product can take several hours or days to reset after it has gone into alarm and (iii) that the Company falsely claims that the product met Underwriters Laboratories' listing criteria for residential carbon monoxide detectors in effect at the time the Model FACO was manufactured. The plaintiffs seek a refund of their purchase price, other out-of-pocket expenses, punitive damages, and attorneys' fees. The Company has raised numerous defenses to this claim and will continue to oppose it forcefully.

In February 1997, the Company and its wholly owned subsidiary, BRK Brands, Inc., were named as defendants in a purported class action lawsuit entitled Houlihan et al. vs. First Alert, Inc. et al. ("Houlihan") in the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, alleging breach of express warranty and statutory violations of various states' consumer protection statutes due to alleged misrepresentations and product defects involving First Alert® Carbon Monoxide Detectors. The Company does not believe the plaintiff claimed any personal injuries or property damage; nor did he claim specifically that his detector failed to detect dangerous levels of carbon monoxide. Rather, the plaintiff sought "rescissionary damages" and attorneys' fees. The plaintiff's original complaint was stricken by the Court on April 9, 1997, but the Court gave the plaintiff leave to re-plead the case which was done. The Company filed a Motion to Dismiss the amended complaint and that motion was granted on August 22, 1997. The case has now been settled by refunding the plaintiff's purchase price of the detector.

On February 11, 1998, a jury returned a verdict against the Company's BRK Brands, Inc., subsidiary, awarding damages totaling $16.9 million in the case of Mercer et al. vs. BRK Brands, Inc. et al., which was tried in the Iowa District Court for Scott County. The verdict includes $12.5 million of punitive damages. The case alleged negligence, breach of warranty and fraudulent nondisclosure in connection with a BRK® Electronics smoke detector that alarmed during a residential fire. The punitive damage award was based upon the jury finding a preponderance of clear, convincing and satisfactory evidence the Company's conduct constituted willful and wanton disregard for the rights or safety of others. Substantially all of the cost of defense and the damages assessed in this case are covered by the Company's insurance. The Company intends to continue to vigorously contest this case by pursuing a number of post-trial motions to overturn the verdict and appealing the decision, if necessary.

In addition to the Gilbert, Betley and Mercer actions, the Company and its subsidiaries, including BRK Brands, Inc., are parties to various product liability and other types of lawsuits and are from time to time subject to investigations by various governmental agencies, including investigations regarding environmental matters. Although the ultimate liabilities, if any, arising out of the Gilbert, Betley, Mercer and other pending legal actions or investigations cannot presently be determined, based on its past experience and assessment of such matters, the Company believes that the outcome of these matters will not have a material adverse effect on the Company's financial position.

Income per share amounts for each quarter are required to be computed independently and, therefore, may not equal the amount computed for the entire year.

Results of operations in the three month period ended December 31, 1997 include costs associated with inefficiencies incurred in manufacturing operations, premium freight out charges and key customer allowances which were partially offset by the release of $4.5 million of reserves established in prior years deemed no longer necessary. These reserves had been established over a period of years and their initial recording was not significant to any individual prior reporting period.

Results of operations during the three months ended December 31, 1996, include a pre-tax restructuring charge of $4,497, including inventory write-down, and a pre-tax charge to operations of $4,972. The pre-tax charge to operations includes additional inventory related costs, anticipated product allowances for sales made prior to December 31, 1996, severance and asset impairment costs.

Note 17—Subsequent Events

On March 2, 1998, the Company announced that it had entered into a definitive agreement with Sunbeam Corporation (the "Agreement") providing for the acquisition of the Company by Sunbeam in a transaction valued at approximately $175 million including the assumption of existing debt. The consummation of the offer is subject to certain customary conditions, including expiration of the waiting period under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvement Act. The Agreement provides that the Company pay a fee of $3.75 million in the event that the acquisition is terminated.

ACCREDITED INVESTOR LETTER

Sunbeam Corporation
1615 S. Congress Avenue, Suite 200
Delray Beach, Florida 33445

Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated
1585 Broadway
New York, New York 10036

Ladies and Gentleman:

We are delivering this letter in connection with an offering by Sunbeam Corporation (the "Company") of its Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2018 (the "Debentures"), which are convertible into shares of the Company's common stock, $0.01 par value per share (the "Common Stock"), all as described in the Offering Memorandum (the "Offering Memorandum") relating to the Offering. We hereby confirm that:

(i) we are an "accredited investor" within the meaning of Rule 501(a)(1), (2), (3) or (7) under the Securities Act of 1933 (the "Securities Act") or an entity in which all of the equity owners are accredited investors within the meaning of Rule 501(a)(1), (2), (3) or (7) under the Securities Act (an "Institutional Accredited Investor") able to bear the economic risk of an investment in the Debentures;

(ii) (A) any purchase of Debentures by us will be for our own account or for the account of one or more other Institutional Accredited Investors for each of which we exercise sole investment discretion (and have authority to make, and do make, the statements contained in this letter) or as fiduciary for the account of one or more trusts, each of which is an "accredited investor" within the meaning of Rule 501(a)(7) under the Securities Act and for each of which we exercise sole investment discretion or (B) we are a "bank," within the meaning of Section 3(a)(2) of the Securities Act, or a "savings and loan association" or other institution described in Section 3(a)(5)(A) of the Securities Act that is acquiring Debentures as fiduciary for the account of one or more institutions for which we exercise sole investment discretion;

(iii) in the event that we purchase any Debentures, we will acquire Debentures having a minimum purchase price of not less than $100,000 for our own account or for any separate account for which we are acting;

(iv) we have such knowledge and experience in financial and business matters that we are capable of evaluating the merits and risks of purchasing Debentures;

(v) we are not acquiring Debentures with a view to distribution thereof or with any present intention of offering or selling Debentures or the Common Stock issuable upon conversion thereof, except as permitted below; provided that the disposition of our property and property of any accounts for which we are acting as fiduciary shall remain at all times within our control; and

(vi) we have received a copy of the Offering Memorandum and acknowledge that we have had access to such financial and other information, and have been offered the opportunity to ask such questions of representatives of the Company and receive answers thereto, as we deem necessary in connection with our decision to purchase Debentures.

We understand that the Debentures are being offered in a transaction not involving any public offering within the meaning of the Securities Act and that the Debentures and the Common Stock issuable upon conversion thereof have not been registered under the Securities Act, and we agree, on our own behalf and on behalf of each account for which we acquire any Debentures, that if in the future we decide to resell or otherwise transfer such Debentures or the Common Stock issuable upon conversion thereof, such Debentures or Common Stock may be resold or otherwise transferred within the United States or to, or for the account or benefit of, U.S. persons only (i) to the Company or any subsidiary thereof, (ii) to a person who is a "qualified institutional

SELLING SECURITYHOLDER NOTICE AND QUESTIONNAIRE

The undersigned beneficial holder of Zero Coupon Convertible Senior Subordinated Debenture due 2018 (the "Debenture") of Sunbeam Corporation (the "Company" or "Registrant") or Common Stock, $0.01 par value (the "Common Stock" and, together with the Debentures, the "Registrable Securities") of the Company understands that the Registrant has filed or intends to file with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "Commission") a registration statement on Form S-3 (the "Shelf Registration Statement") for the registration and resale under Rule 415 of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act"), of the Registrable Securities, in accordance with the terms of the Registration Rights Agreement, dated as of March , 1998 (the "Registration Rights Agreement"), between the Company and the Initial Purchaser named therein. A copy of the Registration Rights Agreement is available from the Company upon requests at the address set forth below. All capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein shall have the meaning ascribed thereto in the Registration Rights Agreement.

Each beneficial owner of Registrable Securities is entitled to the benefits of the Registration Rights Agreement. In order to sell or otherwise dispose of any Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement, a beneficial owner of Registrable Securities generally will be required to be named as a selling securityholder in the related prospectus, deliver a prospectus to purchasers of Registrable Securities and be bound by those provisions of the Registration Rights Agreement applicable to such beneficial owner (including certain indemnification provisions, as described below). Beneficial owners that do not complete this Notice and Questionnaire and deliver it to the Company as provided below will not be named as selling securityholders in the prospectus and therefore will not be permitted to sell any Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement. Beneficial owners are encouraged to complete and deliver this Notice and Questionnaire prior to the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement so that such beneficial owners may be named as selling securityholders in the related prospectus at the time of effectiveness. Upon receipt of a completed Notice and Questionnaire from a beneficial owner following the effectiveness of the Shelf Registration Statement, the Company will, as promptly as practicable but in any event within five business days of such receipt, file such amendments to the Shelf Registration Statement or supplements to the related prospectus as are necessary to permit such holder to deliver such prospectus to purchasers of Registrable Securities. The Company has agreed to pay liquidated damages pursuant to the Registration Rights Agreement under certain circumstances as set forth therein.

Certain legal consequences arise from being named as a selling securityholder in the Shelf Registration Statement and the related prospectus. Accordingly, holders and beneficial owners of Registrable Securities are advised to consult their own securities law counsel regarding the consequences of being named or not being named as a selling securityholder in the Shelf Registration Statement and the related prospectus.

NOTICE

The undersigned beneficial owner (the "Selling Securityholder") of Registrable Securities hereby gives notice to the Company of its intention to sell or otherwise dispose of Registrable Securities beneficially owned by it and listed below in Item 3 (unless otherwise specified under Item 3) pursuant to the Shelf Registration Statement. The undersigned, by signing and returning this Notice and Questionnaire, understands that it will be bound by the terms and conditions of this Notice and Questionnaire and the Registration Rights Agreement.

Pursuant to the Registration Rights Agreement, the undersigned has agreed to indemnify and hold harmless the Company's directors, the Company's officers who sign the Company Registration Statement, and each person, if any, who controls the Company within the meaning of either Section 15 of the Securities Act or Section 20 or the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended (the "Exchange Act"), from and against certain losses arising in connection with statements concerning the undersigned made in the Company's Registration Statement or the related prospectus in reliance upon the information provided in this Notice and Questionnaire.

In connection with sales of the Registrable Securities or otherwise, the undersigned may enter into hedging transactions with broker-dealers, which may in turn engage in short sales of the Registrable Securities in the course of hedging in positions they assume. The undersigned may also sell Registrable Securities short and deliver Registrable Securities to close out short positions, or loan or pledge Registrable Securities to broker-dealers that in turn may sell such securities.

State any exceptions here: _____

Note: In no event will such method(s) of distribution take the form of an underwritten offering of the Registrable Securities without the prior agreement of the Company.

The undersigned acknowledges that it understands its obligation to comply with the provisions of the Exchange Act and the rules thereunder relating to stock manipulation, particularly Regulation M thereunder (or any successor rules or regulations), in connection with any offering of Registrable Securities pursuant to the Shelf Registration Agreement. The undersigned agrees that neither it nor any person acting on its behalf will engage in any transaction in violation of such provisions.

The Selling Securityholder hereby acknowledges its obligations under the Registrable Rights Agreement to indemnify and hold harmless certain persons as set forth herein.

Pursuant to the Registration Rights Agreement, the Company has agreed under certain circumstances to indemnify the Selling Securityholder against certain liabilities.

In accordance with the undersigned's obligation under the Registration Rights Agreement to provide such information as may be required by law for inclusion in the Shelf Registration Statement, the undersigned agrees to promptly notify the Company of any inaccuracies or changes in the information provided herein that may occur subsequent to the date hereof at any time while the Shelf Registration Statement remains effective. All notices hereunder and pursuant to the Registration Rights Agreement shall be made in writing at the address set forth below.

By signing below, the undersigned consents to the disclosure of the information contained herein in its answers to Items (1) through (6) above and the inclusion of such information in the Shelf Registration Statement and the related prospectus. The undersigned understands that such information will be relied upon by the Company in connection with the preparation or amendment of the Shelf Registration Statement and the related prospectus.

Re: Trading in the Securities of Coleman Co., Inc., Signature Brands USA, Inc. and First Alert, Inc. (MD-1200)

Dear Ms. Youn:

This letter supplements the information voluntarily provided to you on behalf of The Coleman Company, Inc. ("Coleman" or the "Company") on March 30, 1998 in response to your request for certain information relating to the March 2, 1998 announcement concerning Sunbeam Corporation and Coleman.

1. The chronology set forth in Exhibit A to the March 30 letter should be supplemented as follows:

MS 374
Rec 11/2/04

(i) the following entry should be added for November 6, 1997:

Representatives of Morgan Stanley (which, from time to time advises MacAndrews on a variety of business and financial matters), met with James R. Maher of MacAndrews to discuss potential business opportunities. Among the business opportunities identified by Morgan Stanley was the potential acquisition of Sunbeam by MacAndrews. Mr. Maher advised the Morgan Stanley representatives that MacAndrews was not interested in such a transaction.

(ii) Mr. Gittis should be included among the individuals identified as attending the February 18, 1998 meeting.

2. The list of individuals set forth in Exhibit B to the March 30 letter should be supplemented in the following respect:

(i) John W. Behringer, Esq. and Sean O'Brien, Esq., both of Fitzpatrick, Cella, Harper & Scinto, should be added to the list.

As noted in my letter to you of March 30, the information provided herewith represents a reconstruction of events and was compiled based upon a reasonable review of the documents in the possession of Coleman and reasonable inquiries made by Coleman of its personnel and certain of its legal and other advisors and representatives. The information is based in substantial part on the recollection of the individuals involved, as may of the events leading up to the March 2 announcement were not documented. Therefore, it is possible that further supplementation, correction, and/or modification by the Company may be needed in the future.

We request confidential treatment for this letter and the information contained herein pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1905, 17 C.F.R. § 200.83, and other applicable laws and regulations and further request that it not be made part of any public record and not be disclosed to any person.

The information contained in this letter is maintained in confidence and is not available to competitors or other parties. In addition, the information has been provided voluntarily in connection with the above-referenced inquiry. We believe that the disclosure of this information could have adverse affects on our client's competitive position and/or would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Accordingly, such information is exempt from mandatory disclosure pursuant to 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(3), (b)(4), (b)(6) and (b)(7), and disclosure is prohibited pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1905.

Overview of Warrant Instruments

- Allows holders to participate in the potential upside of the company while limiting the downside risk
  - CAMPER shareholders have the opportunity to benefit from the incremental synergies of the combination
- Provides significant value if the full assessment of the synergies is realized
  - Returns to warrant holders increase as greater operational improvements are achieved
  - AD will continue to be focused on creating shareholder value; currently owns over 1 million shares
- Out-of-the-money options send a strong signal to the market about management's belief in the prospect of the combined company
- Warrant holders have the opportunity to reap the benefits from future acquisitions
  - Accretive transactions will continue to boost the stock price
  - Restructuring and consolidation of acquired companies will give rise to cost savings which will further increase earnings
- Four year maturity allows ample time to implement restructuring programs and extract synergies
- LASER is committed to realizing the full value of the combination
  - AD to sign a three-year employment agreement
- Warrants deliver value to CAMPER shareholders with minimum negative impact on short-term accretion

PROJECT LASER

Pricing Mechanism Overview

Transaction pricing assumes the following steps:

I. Assumed CAMPER Holding Company debt balance of $500,000,000 is offset by a portion of the existing Holding Company stock position in CAMPER at an assumed $26.00 per CAMPER share valuation. The economic cancellation of the existing CAMPER Holding Company debt reduces the CAMPER Holding Company's CAMPER stock ownership position by 19,230,769 shares ($500,000,000/$26.00=19,230,769 shares)

II. Each remaining CAMPER share owned by CAMPER Holding Company (44,067,520[1]-19,230,769=24,836,751 shares) as well as all CAMPER shares help by public shareholders (10,708,480[1] shares) are valued at 0.7450 LASER Common Shares, at an approximate implied value of $28.68 per CAMPER share as of February 19,1998. MAFCO Affiliates to receive 18,503,379 LASER Common Shares (24,836,751*0.7450=18,503,379). Public shareholders to receive 7,977,818 LASER Common Shares (10,708,480[1]*0.7450=7,977,818)

III. MAFCO Affiliates have the right, 30 days prior to closing, to elect to take $300,000,000 (at a $27.50 per CAMPER share exchange ratio) or 10,909,091 CAMPER Shares ($300,000,000/$27.50=10,909,091 shares) equivalent of the net consideration for CAMPER Holding Company's CAMPER shares in the form of LASER Convertible Preferred Shares. In this case, the remaining 13,927,660 CAMPER shares (24,836,751-10,909,091=13,927,660 shares) held by CAMPER Holding Company will be exchanged for 10,376,107 LASER Common Shares at the .7450 exchange ratio
