SUBJECT: Managing Groundwater Contamination on Military Installations

The extent to which the federal institutions are subject to North Carolina's environmental laws is yet the subject of some controversy. The potential problems posed by these uncertainties are made even more serious by the number and size of federal military installations in the State and the types of activities associated with them.

Therefore, future official communications with military installations regarding government responsibilities for investigations and clean-up will be from the Groundwater Section Chief or higher authority.

Please coordinate your intended activities on federal installations with the appropriate member of the central office staff and prepare pertinent correspondence for my signature.

Your cooperation is appreciated.
