Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

- USA Today* Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China – The World's Largest Nation – Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

- Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The

Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

- President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

- As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

- China And India – Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases – Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

- No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

- Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. RNC RESEARCH BRIEFING

RNCResearch@rnchq.org

June 13, 2001

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult – and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate – Which Must Ratify All Treaties – Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

- In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

- Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

- USA Today* Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China – The World's Largest Nation – Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

- Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The

Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is

Flawed

And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says

That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within

the

Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional

developments

to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick

W.

McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000)

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

- President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

- As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

- China And India – Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases – Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

- No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

- Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. RNC RESEARCH BRIEFING

RNCResearch@rnchq.org

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult – and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate – Which Must Ratify All Treaties – Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

- In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

- Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

- USA Today* Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China – The World's Largest Nation – Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

- Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The

Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

- President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

- As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

- China And India – Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases – Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

- No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

[T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is

Flawed

And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says

Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional

developments

to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick

McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is

Flawed

And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says

the

Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional

developments

to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick

W.

McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is

Flawed

And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says

the

Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional

developments

to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick

W.

McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify

The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On
The
Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon,
"Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says

the

Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional

developments

to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick

W.

McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

- China And India – Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases – Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

- No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

- Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

RNC RESEARCH BRIEFING

RNCResearch@rnchq.org

June 13, 2001

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult – and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate – Which Must Ratify All Treaties – Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

- In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

- Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

- USA Today* Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China – The World's Largest Nation – Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

- Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The

Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

- President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

- As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

- China And India – Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases – Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

- No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

- Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. RNC RESEARCH BRIEFING

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult – and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate – Which Must Ratify All Treaties – Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

- In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

- Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the hook until some future time. The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is

Flawed

And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says

the

Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional

developments

to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick

McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is

Flawed

And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says

the

Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional

developments

to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick

W.

McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:
Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the
hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed
And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming
Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic
Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an

anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is

Flawed

And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

ú Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

ú President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

ú As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

ú China And India - Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases- Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

ú No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

ú Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says

the

Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional

developments

to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick

W.

McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000)

- In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

- Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

- USA Today* Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China – The World's Largest Nation – Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

- Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The

Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

Compliance Costs Would Be Disastrous For American Consumers:

- President Clinton's Own Department Of Energy Predicted Catastrophic Gasoline And Electricity Price Increases If America Ratified The Kyoto Protocol. "[T]he [Department of Energy] report estimates that, in 2010: Gasoline prices would likely increase about 66 cents per gallon, from an anticipated baseline price of $1.25 without the Protocol's restrictions to $1.91 a gallon; and electricity would cost 86.4 percent more than it would otherwise." (Alexander F. Annett, "The Department Of Energy's Report On The Impact Of Kyoto," The Heritage Foundation, October 23, 1998; original data from "Impacts Of The Kyoto Protocol On U.S. Energy Markets And Economic Activity," U.S. Department Of Energy, Energy Information Administration, October 1998) (emphasis added)

Among Major Industrialized Countries, Only Romania Has Ratified The Kyoto Protocol:

- As Of May 9, 2001, Only 34 Countries Have Ratified The Agreement. While China, India, Brazil and other nations have yet to ratify Kyoto, the agreement has been ratified by Mauritius, Lesotho, Tuvalu and the Federal States of Micronesia. (U.N. Framework Convention On Climate Change Website, www.unfccc.int, June 12, 2001)

- China And India – Two Of The Top Global Emitters Of Greenhouse Gases – Are Exempt From The Provisions Of The Kyoto Treaty. (Bill Sammon, "Bush Hits Others For Global Warming," The Washington Times, June 12, 2001)

- No European Union Country Has Ratified The Kyoto Agreement. "Ever since President Bush announced that the United States would not support the Kyoto Protocol, European leaders have attacked him relentlessly for this decision, even resorting to petty name-calling. Their protests are hypocritical. Notwithstanding their purported commitment to the Protocol, no EU country has ratified the treaty. Moreover, studies suggest that emissions in Europe will increase over the next 10 years." (Charli E. Coon, "Why President Bush Is Right To Abandon The Kyoto Protocol," The Heritage Foundation, Backgrounder #1437, May 11, 2001) (emphasis added)

A Brookings Institution Expert Denounces The Kyoto Protocol As Implausible:

- Warwick McKibbin, A Senior Fellow At The Brookings Institution, Says That The Kyoto Protocol Will Never Work. ". . . [T]he mechanisms within the Protocol are too complex and require too many new institutional developments to be plausible. . . . [T]he Kyoto Protocol is never going to work because it is the wrong approach to tackling the climate change issue." (Warwick W. McKibbin, "Moving Beyond Kyoto," The Brookings Institution, October, 2000) (emphasis added)

The Flawed Kyoto Protocol:

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult - and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate - Which Must Ratify All Treaties - Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

ú In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

ú Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is

Flawed

And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

ú USA Today Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China - The World's Largest Nation - Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

RNC RESEARCH BRIEFING

RNCResearch@rnchq.org

June 13, 2001

Rejected By The Senate 95-0

"Economists from the Clinton White House now concede that complying with Kyoto's mandatory reductions in greenhouse gases would be difficult – and more expensive to American consumers than they thought when they were in charge." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001)

The U.S. Senate – Which Must Ratify All Treaties – Unanimously Stated Its Displeasure With The Kyoto Protocol In 1997:

- In 1997, The U.S. Senate Expressed The Sense Of The Senate, By A 95-0 Vote, That It Would Not Ratify Any Treaty That Would Damage The U.S. Economy Or Unfairly Regulate Developed Countries. (S. Res. 98, Roll Call #205: Resolution Agreed To 95-0: R 54-0; D 41-0, July 25, 1997)

- Democrat Senator Robert Byrd Said That The Exemption Of Developing Countries Spelled Trouble For America. "If you want to really kill this treaty, abide by the Berlin Mandate and let the developing countries off the hook until some future time. That is what will surely kill the treaty, and I will join in stabbing it in the heart, if that is the case. If that treaty comes back here and the developing countries are left off the hook, count me in on the assassination of the treaty. It will be done in public view. It won't be behind a bush." (Senator Byrd, Congressional Record, July 25, 1997) (emphasis added)

Former Aides To President Clinton Admitted That The Kyoto Protocol Is Flawed And That Support For The Treaty Has Stalled Over Time:

- USA Today* Reported That The Clinton Administration's Global Warming Coordinator Now Admits China – The World's Largest Nation – Will Not Ratify The Kyoto Protocol Any Time Soon. "Todd Stern, Clinton's global warming coordinator, says that the Europeans would likely go along with an unlimited trading system if the Bush administration would return to the negotiating table to produce a revised treaty it could sign. However, he concedes that China won't participate for now." (Jonathan Weisman, "Ex-Clinton Aides Admit Kyoto Treaty Flawed," USA Today, June 12, 2001) (emphasis added)

- Joseph Aldy, Who Helped Develop The Kyoto Protocol Compliance Cost Estimates, Admits The Clinton Administration Was "Uneasy" About Their Position From The

Beginning. "We always thought the (emissions) targets were very ambitious. . . . But the thing that made us really uneasy about our analysis . . . was that if our assumptions didn't come true, you could come out with costs that were much, much higher." Here's excerpt from an article from today's NYT on the work of Patricia Hynes' law firm. By my calculation, if the $6.3 million fee award were divided evenly among the firm's 66 lawyers (and I'm sure it won't be), each would make $95,454 on this case -- more than 10 times the $7500 award for each concentration camp survivor on whose behalf Hynes' firm was "working." It's enough to make you hate lawyers.

$52 Million for Lawyers' Fees in Nazi-Era Slave Labor Suits

By JANE FRITSCH

Lawyers who represent Nazi-era slave laborers split more than $52 million in legal fees yesterday for work on a case that will bring Holocaust victims $5,000 to $7,500 each.

Eleven lawyers were awarded more than $1 million each, with the biggest share, $6.3 million, going to Melvyn I. Weiss of the Manhattan law firm Milberg Weiss Bershad Hynes & Lerach. . . . The lawyers reportedly expect to receive their payments in a month, just as the victims begin to receive their checks. Victims who were forced into concentration camps or ghettos are eligible for the highest payments,

People who were not held in camps or ghettos but were forced to work for German companies or the government can receive $2,500.

The RNC would like to have a dinner for the various WH Liaisons and selected WH staff. This would not take place during working hours, and would be intended to develop the role of the Liaison as the political contact in each agency. Liaisons help with various political questions including grant announcements and scheduling requests. Can you give us quick guidance on this?

The dinner is fine. The liasions need to remember that because they are not PAS appointees and are not White House employees, they cannot perform "political activity" that goes beyond scheduling and the like while they are on duty and in their offices. It does not sound like that is how you intend to use them anyway, but that is the limitation under which they operate, as they all should know.

We knew yesterday that this was happening, and so our press people confirmed events, as you noted, but referred calls to DOJ on the theory that this was the AG's decisionence in him. But that is a far different scenario than the one you described, in which the focus was on the White House.

It must have been NPR then. Because I definitely heard "White House official" this morning, and was slightly surprised. That unnamed "White House official" was only confirming the events.

Actually, the term "White House official" never appears in this story. Indeed, the mini-headline is that the "Justice Department" is accused of capitulation, and the story focuses on the Justice Department and Ashcroft. There is one mention of the President, describing his campaign position on tobacco, but the sentence does not tie him to this specific decision.

The Secretary received a request from the College Republicans National Committee asking him to donate something for the College Republicans Silent Auction. DOEd sent the request to their lawyers/ethics office, who recommended that it was probably not a good idea and suggested declining the request. Terry would like to know if we have any ethical guidance, if other Cabinet Members have received similar requests, and if so, how have they responded?

Bush to submit new judicial choices
Stays conservative course on nominations to federal bench
By Joan Biskupic, USA TODAY

WASHINGTON -- President Bush will complete a new list of judicial nominations today that indicates he is just as focused on making the federal bench more conservative as he was before Republicans lost control of the Senate this month.

The nominees include Los Angeles Superior Judge Carolyn Kuhl, a former Reagan administration lawyer who was at the forefront of some of its efforts against abortion; University of Utah professor Paul Cassell, known for his legal work against the ''Miranda'' rights that police read to suspects; and federal magistrate Terry Wooten, once a top aide to Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

Kuhl is scheduled to be named to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit. Cassell and Wooten are being proposed for federal district court seats, as is Washington lawyer John Bates, a former assistant U.S. attorney who worked with independent counsel Kenneth Starr on the Whitewater investigation.

The nominees, out of a total of seven being made this week, some of them moderates, drew criticism from liberals who've been pressing Senate Democrats to be vigilant in reviewing Bush's choices for the federal bench. Such judges are appointed for life and can be an administration's most enduring legacy.

The names drew swift praise from conservatives who had worried that Bush would retreat from his conservative agenda for the courts after Vermont Sen. Jim Jeffords jumped from the GOP to become an independent. His move threw control of the chamber to Democrats. By putting Democrats in charge, Jeffords' move could make it tougher for Bush's most conservative nominees to get confirmed.

However, ''it doesn't seem that the president has altered his standard as the political landscape has changed,'' says Tom Jipping, of the conservative Free Congress Foundation.

Nan Aron, of the liberal Alliance for Justice, says that as a group, Bush's new nominees are ''dangerously out of step with the values of ordinary Americans.'' She also asserted that Wooten, as an aide to Thurmond, played a key role in the confirmation hearings of Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas hearings a decade ago by discouraging a witness from testifying about sexual harassment allegations against Thomas. Aron's group opposed Thomas; the allegations were never proved.

Wooten had no comment.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., had no comment on the nominees. After today, Bush will have made 26 nominations: 19 to U.S. appeals courts and seven to lower trial courts.

Subject: Re: Last night's Britt Hume report on judicial nominations

If this is not what you are looking for Brad let me know, but this looks like what you described....

BRIT HUME: When the White House announced that the American Bar Association would no longer be reviewing judicial nominees before their nominations, Democrats declared the move an effort to push through extremists. Senate Democrats called the ABA's ratings the, quote, "gold standard" for evaluating judges and declared that they, the Democrats, would rely heavily on the ABA's after-the-fact evaluations. Well, the president has moved quickly to fill vacancies on the bench, and the first ABA ratings are in. Senior White House correspondent Jim Angle has the story.

(BEGIN VIDEOTAPE)

JIM ANGLE, FOX CORRESPONDENT (voice-over): By the end of this week, the Bush administration will have nominated 30 people to become federal judges, far exceeding the efforts of the three previous White Houses. And Fox News has learned that seven of the president's first eleven choices introduced at the White House May 10th have now been evaluated by the American Bar Association or ABA. Sources say four Bush nominees got a "well qualified" rating, the highest there is. Three others were rated as "qualified," neither a boost nor an impediment. At least on one side of the aisle, the ABA rating is the most critical hurdle a nominee faces.

PAUL ROTHSTEIN, GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY LAW PROFESSOR: They're extremely influential, at least with the Democrats. They can make or break a judge.

ANGLE: Indeed, when the Bush administration informed key congressional Democrats it would no longer give the ABA a look at the nominees before any other group, Democrats cried foul.

SEN. CHARLES SCHUMER (D), NEW YORK (May 3, 2001): They intend to try to abrogate the Senate's role in choosing judges so that they can create the most ideological bench that we have seen in America, ever. Why else remove the ABA?

ANGLE: But there's an interesting political twist. One of the two nominees who got a unanimous rating of only "qualified," a lukewarm endorsement, is Roger Gregory, who was first nominated by President Clinton and is the man Democrats are most inclined to confirm.

ROTHSTEIN: The Democrats are likely to go for him notwithstanding that the hallowed ABA, hallowed in the eyes of the Democrats, haven't given him a very rousing welcoming recommendation, although "qualified" is not bad.

ANGLE: Some observers think that if the Senate were to confirm Gregory, with only a "qualified" rating, it would make it difficult to oppose others with the same or an even better rating. In any case, the Bush administration is, as one official put it, "gallops ahead" of where any previous administration was at this point in filling empty seats on the bench.

ROTHSTEIN: This is a very impressive record, very impressive speed.

(END VIDEOTAPE)

ANGLE: In fact, the previous three administrations -- Clinton, Bush, Sr., and Reagan -- had nominated -- had nominated no one at this point in their first terms. This administration is well on its way to its goal of nominating someone to fill every single vacancy in the federal courts. That's about 100 positions. Just as important politically, Brit, half of the nominees are women or minorities.

Brit?

HUME: Jim, do we have any sense now -- some of those nominees were considered quite conservative. How did those nominees -- I know there were 11 and we only have ratings on 7. But how did those nominees fare?

ANGLE: Well, you got some -- the -- they're actually conservatives -- they're all conservatives in one sense, officials maintain, and that is judicial philosophy. Every one of them shares the president's view and are what one official called "committed advocates of judicial restraint." Now, there were some very conservative people who did, in fact, get "well qualified" ratings. There are some very conservative people politically who have not been rated yet. There are four who still have not been rated.

HUME: Who?

ANGLE: But on the list, both of those who were "well qualified" and those who have not been rated, Brit, are some of the most conservative. Officials all over town do not believe that political philosophy had anything to do with whose ratings have been done and whose have not. They say it is just a matter of logistics, that it has nothing to do with politics. No one seems to believe that, in the administration or in Congress.

Brit?

HUME: All right, Jim. Thanks very much.

Subject: Re: Last night's Britt Hume report on judicial nominations

HUME: Back with our panel.

The American Bar Association has now -- Jim Angle mentioned earlier that seven Bush judicial nominees had been rated by the ABA. He now tells me it is eight.

Five of them have received "well qualified" recommendations from the ABA. That's as good as it gets. The other three were rated "qualified." And one of those rated merely qualified was the judge that the Democrats are most eager to confirm, Roger Gregory, formerly nominated to an appeals court seat by President Clinton, now nominated anew -- where he sits, actually -- he was in a recess appointment -- now nominated anew for a permanent seat there by President Bush.

What is the political affect in terms of the -- Mr. -- this crop of nominees? We only have eight of the 11 he's named, but what is the political effect of these ABA ratings?

KONDRACKE: Well, I think it serves to -- to support Bush's judgment on judges. I mean, for the ABA, which was -- it also raises questions about why Bush was so scared or so reluctant to have the ABA enter -- enter into this process, since they're -- they're vetting his judges just fine, you know, but, nonetheless, the effect is, well, OK, this ABA, allegedly a liberal organization, is rating his judges fine -- highly, and, you know, this is...

HUME: He's still got three to go.

KONDRACKE: Yeah. And -- but this is of a piece with what happened in Texas. I mean, the Texas Bar also gave him very high marks for rating on the basis not of ideology but on the basis of qualification.

BARNES: What...

LIASSON: What it means is that if the -- if the Democrats are going to fight on these judges, they're going to have to fight on ideology, and they can't hide behind some kind of competency bar -- test administered by the ABA. I don't think there's anything wrong with that.

But they have to be up front about it. I mean, if they don't want these judges, you certainly can say that they want Roger Gregory, but then -- then some other people who were rated higher -- they don't want them based on -- based on competence.

HUME: Does this take the ABA, at least in terms of these eight choices, simply out of the game?

BARNES: No, I don't think it takes them out of the game, but it takes Democrat -- it does deny Democrats the fig leaf that Mara was suggesting. Look, they're going to confirm Roger Gregory. He's qualified. And then they not -- they can't use the ABA then not to confirm others who are just qualified or particularly those conservatives who were rated well qualified.

Look, the ABA, Mort, is not "allegedly a liberal group." It is a liberal group, and -- and these are just the ones we've heard so far. Remember what they did to Robert Bork. I think in the beginning here the fact...

HUME: Remind everybody what they did to Robert Bork...

BARNES: The fact...

HUME: ... who was then a sitting appellate judge.

BARNES: Yeah. I think they judged him qualified, but...

HUME: Barely. Yeah.

BARNES: Barely, but four of the raters wanted to rate him unqualified purely on the grounds of ideology because they didn't agree with his, and there are some Democrats who think that that's grounds enough. There was a piece in "The Washington Post" just the other day saying that's grounds enough, Democrats ought to do that. This does make it harder for them to do that, I think.

KONDRACKE: Yeah, I -- I still think that if you -- if you -- the public is still dubious about Bush and judges. I mean, the CBS/"New York Times" poll that was out today indicates that the public overwhelmingly trusts Senate Democrats more than George Bush when it comes to naming Supreme Court justices. I -- you know, I think he is managing to convince people that is he's -- he's some sort of right winger when it comes to judges.

BARNES: Now wait a minute.

KONDRACKE: This -- this -- well, I'm telling you this is what the poll shows.

BARNES: Yeah, but the poll doesn't reflect any meaningful opinion. People are not out there. The general public is not out there thinking, "Gee, they're federal judges. Who should we trust on this?"

LIASSON: It shows that Democrats have a fertile field to plow if they want...

KONDRACKE: Oh, yes, it does. It does. Yes, it does.

LIASSON: ... to make this argument.

HUME: Maybe that. Maybe they have a fertile field to plow, but...

HUME: Let's talk -- but let's talk about that. Now we know that it -- that that poll prominently mentioned all over the front page, 53 percent approval rating for -- for President Bush. That's of a piece with the 55 percent and others that he's been getting. But there are some interesting findings within the poll on a couple of issues. There's a -- there's a question in the poll on -- which issues we want to take up first here?

If this is not what you are looking for Brad let me know, but this looks like what you described....

BRIT HUME: When the White House announced that the American Bar Association would no longer be reviewing judicial nominees before their nominations, Democrats declared the move an effort to push through extremists. Senate Democrats called the ABA's ratings the, quote, "gold standard" for evaluating judges and declared that they, the Democrats, would rely heavily on the ABA's after-the-fact evaluations. Well, the president has moved quickly to fill vacancies on the bench, and the first ABA ratings are in. Senior White House correspondent Jim Angle has the story.

(BEGIN VIDEOTAPE)

JIM ANGLE, FOX CORRESPONDENT (voice-over): By the end of this week, the Bush administration will have nominated 30 people to become federal judges, far exceeding the efforts of the three previous White Houses. And Fox News has learned that seven of the president's first eleven choices introduced at the White House May 10th have now been evaluated by the American Bar Association or ABA. Sources say four Bush nominees got a "well qualified" rating, the highest there is. Three others were rated as "qualified," neither a boost nor an impediment. At least on one side of the aisle, the ABA rating is the most critical hurdle a nominee faces.

PAUL ROTHSTEIN, GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY LAW PROFESSOR: They're extremely influential, at least with the Democrats. They can make or break a judge.

ANGLE: Indeed, when the Bush administration informed key congressional Democrats it would no longer give the ABA a look at the nominees before any other group, Democrats cried foul.

SEN. CHARLES SCHUMER (D), NEW YORK (May 3, 2001): They intend to try to abrogate the Senate's role in choosing judges so that they can create the most ideological bench that we have seen in America, ever. Why else remove the ABA?

ANGLE: But there's an interesting political twist. One of the two nominees who got a unanimous rating of only "qualified," a lukewarm endorsement, is Roger Gregory, who was first nominated by President Clinton and is the man Democrats are most inclined to confirm.

ROTHSTEIN: The Democrats are likely to go for him notwithstanding that the hallowed ABA, hallowed in the eyes of the Democrats, haven't given him a very rousing welcoming recommendation, although "qualified" is not bad.

ANGLE: Some observers think that if the Senate were to confirm Gregory, with only a "qualified" rating, it would make it difficult to oppose others with the same or an even better rating. In any case, the Bush administration is, as one official put it, "gallops ahead" of where any previous administration was at this point in filling empty seats on the bench.

ROTHSTEIN: This is a very impressive record, very impressive speed.

(END VIDEOTAPE)

ANGLE: In fact, the previous three administrations -- Clinton, Bush, Sr., and Reagan -- had nominated -- had nominated no one at this point in their first terms. This administration is well on its way to its goal of nominating someone to fill every single vacancy in the federal courts.

That's about 100 positions. Just as important politically, Brit, half of the nominees are women or minorities.

Brit?

HUME: Jim, do we have any sense now -- some of those nominees were considered quite conservative. How did those nominees -- I know there were 11 and we only have ratings on 7. But how did those nominees fare?

ANGLE: Well, you got some -- the -- they're actually conservatives -- they're all conservatives in one sense, officials maintain, and that is judicial philosophy. Every one of them shares the president's view and are what one official called "committed advocates of judicial restraint." Now, there were some very conservative people who did, in fact, get "well qualified" ratings. There are some very conservative people politically who have not been rated yet. There are four who still have not been rated.

HUME: Who?

ANGLE: But on the list, both of those who were "well qualified" and those who have not been rated, Brit, are some of the most conservative. Officials all over town do not believe that political philosophy had anything to do with whose ratings have been done and whose have not. They say it is just a matter of logistics, that it has nothing to do with politics. No one seems to believe that, in the administration or in Congress.

Brit?

HUME: All right, Jim. Thanks very much.

Subject: Last night's Britt Hume report on judicial nominations

Fox News last night ran a big segment on Britt Hume's show about the judicial nominations. Most of us in Counsel's Office missed it but would like to see it. Do you have any way to obtain and e-mail me a transcript of that piece? I'll forward it to the others here, at DOJ, and on the Hill who are interested.

Bush Nominates Conservative Judge

CRAWFORD, Texas (AP) -- President Bush nominated conservative judge Carolyn B. Kuhl on Friday to a federal appeals court considered among the most liberal in the country.

The White House announced that Kuhl of Los Angeles County Superior Court is Bush's choice for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in San Francisco.

Kuhl must be confirmed by the Senate, where Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., promised not to block a vote. Feinstein had raised objections with the

White House after it floated Kuhl's name for the federal bench without consulting California lawmakers.

Feinstein has since ''had a chance to discuss it with the White House and now she wants to hear the full case for Judge Kuhl and make a decision,'' said the senator's spokesman, Howard Gantman.

If confirmed, Kuhl, would lend some right-leaning weight to the California appeals court.

Also on Friday, Bush nominated Hawaii attorney and Republican partisan Richard R. Clifton to the Ninth Circuit, which includes not only the Western states but also Hawaii.

Clifton, who has been a partner in the firm of Cades Schutte Fleming & Wright since 1977, also has served as volunteer attorney for the local Republican Party in Honolulu and as legal counsel for GOP gubernatorial candidates in Hawaii.

Well, now it's official: the media is clearly counting on John Edwards to be the Democratic candidate for President in 2004. There is simply no other (lawful) explanation for why he is doing the Sunday talk shows every single week without exception. I hate to sound like a black helicopter type, but I believe this is a conscious project being undertaken by the networks.

Why doesn't FOIA apply to the WH office? Doesn't FOIA's definition of agency explicitly include the EOP? Is there a judicial opinion on this?

I ask because I'm trying to figure out whether the Rehabilitation Act provisions that require gov't websites to be accessible to the disabled apply to the WH. The provisions apply to any "federal agency" includes "any federal department or agency." If it said "executive agency," I'd be comfortable that it didn't apply to the WH in light of 5 USC 105, but I'm not sure what to make of the term "federal agency."

letter sent to Senators by People for the American way:

On behalf of People For the American Way, I am writing to express our serious concern about the possible nomination of Carolyn B. Kuhl for a seat on the United State Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. Kuhl's record as both a lawyer and judge raises troubling issues.
Several published reports state that when Kuhl was a special assistant to the attorney general under the Reagan administration, she and two other Justice Department officials successfully advocated reinstating the tax-exempt status of Bob Jones University and other racially discriminatory institutions, reversing an 11 year IRS policy. According to The New York Times, Kuhl's position was opposed by the Department of the Treasury's general counsel, the head of the IRS, and more than 200 lawyers in the Civil Rights Division who signed a letter stating their concern regarding the reversal. Indeed, the reversal created a legal and political firestorm, with many Republicans and Democrats joining in condemnation of the administration's position. The Supreme Court later rejected the Justice Department's reversal in an 8-1 vote.
Kuhl's positions on reproductive issues also are troubling. She co-authored an amicus curiae brief for the Justice Department in Thornburgh

v. American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, arguing that Roe v.
Wade should be overturned and that states should be allowed to ban all abortions. Additionally, the United States Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit rejected Kuhl's argument in support of a Reagan administration rule that required federally funded family planning providers to notify parents within 10 days of prescribing contraceptives to minors. Furthermore, as a lawyer in private practice, Kuhl filed an amicus curiae brief in Rust v. Sullivan, arguing that prohibiting doctors who receive federal funds from discussing abortion does not violate the First Amendment.
As a California Superior Court judge, Kuhl was overruled by a California court of appeals in a decision that dismissed the invasion of privacy claim of a breast cancer patient whose doctor allowed a drug company salesman, whom the doctor did not identify, to observe her breast examination. Judge Kuhl had held that even if the patient's story was correct, the facts did not amount to an illegal invasion of privacy. The California appellate court disagreed and reversed Judge Kuhl's decision.
We urge you to consider carefully these and all other relevant aspects of Carolyn Kuhl's record as you review her nomination to the Ninth Circuit.
Please do not hesitate to contact us if we can provide you with any further information.

Brad --

Ed left me word that it would be great to get our suggested questions by 10 pm, or else by 8 am tomorrow. Perhaps he's trying to send one set out to other Senators tonight, and use whatever else he gets in the morning himself. He also tells me that he has reserved about 14 seats -- he's specifically holding 2 for the White House Counsel's office and 2 for DOJ. I'm not sure where that leaves Tim and his folks, but it might make sense for someone there to call Ed directly rather than me acting as go-between. We will use our two seats. He suggests getting there at 9:30 am if one wants a seat.

Still checking on the other matter . . .

When to watch for refund

Wondering when you'll be getting that tax refund check from the IRS? Check out Fence's Web site (http://oikepence.house.gov) to the computer-spot-ring in the last two digits of your Social Security number, and the week your check will be mailed out will pop up. Of course, be reminded that you had to owe taxes on last year's earnings to be getting some thing back from the tax-cut package President Bush recently signed into law. An estimated one in five Hoosiers didn't pay enough to be getting the full refund, or any money at all.

Wondering when you'll be getting that tax refund check from the IRS? Check out Fence's Web site (http://oikepence.house.gov) to the computer-spot-ring in the last two digits of your Social Security number, and the week your check will be mailed out will pop up. Of course, be reminded that you had to owe taxes on last year's earnings to be getting some thing back from the tax-cut package President Bush recently signed into law. An estimated one in five Hoosiers didn't pay enough to be getting the full refund, or any money at all.

Wondering when you'll be getting that tax refund check from the IRS? Check out Fence's Web site (http://oikepence.house.gov) to the designated spot, plug in the last two digits of your Social Security number, and the week your check will be mailed out will pop up. Of course, be reminded that you had to owe taxes on last year's earnings to be getting something back from the tax-cut package President Bush recently signed into law. An estimated one in five Hoosiers didn't pay enough to be getting the full refund, or any money at all.

Wondering when you'll be getting that tax refund check from the IRS? Check out Fence's Web site (http://onlepence.house.gov) to the designated spot, plug in the last two digits of your Social Security number, and the week your check will be mailed out will pop up. Of course, be reminded that you had to owe taxes on last year's earnings to be getting some thing back from the tax-cut package President Bush recently signed into law. An estimated one in five Hoosiers didn't pay enough to be getting the full refund, or any money at all.

Wondering when you'll be getting that tax refund check from the IRS? Check out Fence's Web site (http://oikepence.house.gov) to the designated spot, plug in the last two digits of your Social Security number, and the week your check will be mailed out will pop up. Of course, be reminded that you had to owe taxes on last year's earnings to be getting some thing back from the tax-cut package President Bush recently signed into law. An estimated one in five Hoosiers didn't pay enough to be getting the full refund, or any money at all.

associated with giving press credentials at political events (as opposed

Here's a draft of the letter I would propose to send in response to Waxman's second letter, the one directly to the Judge. Note that I provided no response at all to his final question about the pendency of a DOJ investigation; we should discuss whether this is the right approach.
Also, we should talk about whether this (and perhaps letter #1) should be shared with folks in Communications to get their input, given the likelihood they will be publicized. We should also talk about whether this needs to be shared with Terry. Finally, Moose and I think we ought to convene the team for a short meeting to discuss another aspect of overall approach that should be mooted further to ensure we are all comfortable. Perhaps Libby can slot in a little time tomorrow morning.

Here are the 2 best and most cogent from recent times:

President Bush statement on Marshall retirement:

"Justice Marshall has rendered extraordinary and distinguished service to his country as a pioneering civil rights lawyer, a judge on the US Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, as Solicitor General, and in his tenure on the Supreme Court. His career is an inspiring example for all Americans. He grew up under segregation to achieve the highest office to which a lawyer can aspire. His accomplishments on the bench will long be remembered. We wish him the best in his retirement. I intend to nominate a successor very soon."

President Reagan statement on Powell retirement:

"I have been advised today that, after 16 years on the Supreme Court bench, Justice Lewis F.
Powell Jr., has announced his retirement.

Throughout his career, Justice Powell has won a reputation for intellectual balance and

fair-mindedness. He is known for his courtliness and courtesy and is truly a justice's justice.

These past 16 years have been among the most momentous in the court's history. Justice Powell's personal role in the court's decisions on a wide range of issues has led one commentator to say he 'has had as powerful an influence as anyone alive' in interpreting the law of the land. I speak for all Americans in saying that his has been a wise and generous influence, and one that will be greatly missed.

The president's responsibility under Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution to nominate justices of the Supreme Court is one of the most significant duties of my office. I believe that the court should enter the next term at full strength, and so I will soon be submitting to the Senate my nomination for Justice Powell's successor."

Subject: Presidential statements on SCt retirements

Here are the 2 best and most cogent from recent times:

President Bush statement on Marshall retirement:

"Justice Marshall has rendered extraordinary and distinguished service to his country as a pioneering civil rights lawyer, a judge on the US Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, as Solicitor General, and in his tenure on the Supreme Court. His career is an inspiring example for all Americans. He grew up under segregation to achieve the highest office to which a lawyer can aspire. His accomplishments on the bench will long be remembered. We wish him the best in his retirement. I intend to nominate a successor very soon."

President Reagan statement on Powell retirement:

"I have been advised today that, after 16 years on the Supreme Court bench, Justice Lewis F.
Powell Jr., has announced his retirement.

Throughout his career, Justice Powell has won a reputation for intellectual balance and fair-mindedness. He is known for his courtliness and courtesy and is truly a justice's justice.

These past 16 years have been among the most momentous in the court's history. Justice Powell's personal role in the court's decisions on a wide range of issues has led one commentator to say he 'has had as powerful an influence as anyone alive' in interpreting the law of the land. I speak for all Americans in saying that his has been a wise and generous influence, and one that will be greatly missed.

The president's responsibility under Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution to nominate justices of the Supreme Court is one of the most significant duties of my office. I believe that the court should enter the next term at full strength, and so I will soon be submitting to the Senate my nomination for Justice Powell's successor."

No justice volunteers to step down
WASHINGTON, June 28 (UPI) -- After months of media speculation that at least one would step down, the nine justices of the Supreme Court gathered for their last public session Thursday, and none took the occasion to announce a retirement.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist, the object of much of the speculation, was absent from the bench, but only because he left early to preside over the 4th U.S. Circuit conference in Richmond, Va.

Rehnquist frequently leaves the courtroom during argument to relieve an aching back, but walks in the corridor behind the bench and is able to follow what the lawyers are saying a few feet away.

Several media reports speculated that the 76-year-old Rehnquist, a conservative, would step down from the Supreme Court at the end of this term to allow a Republican president to name a successor. But those who work closely with the chief justice privately say he has given no indication that he intends to retire soon, and will use the summer break to teach in Europe as usual.

Another frequent target of retirement speculation has been Justice Sandra Day O'Connor. The 71-year-old O'Connor suffers from a minor form of tremors, and has said frequently she believes there is life beyond the Supreme Court.

Media reports speculated O'Connor would step down this term in order to allow President Bush to name a successor. The speculation became so intense earlier this year that O'Connor let it be known she definitely would not step down this term.

A third member of the high court, Justice John Paul Stevens, is 81-years-old and has also been the subject of retirement speculation. Stevens, however, is in excellent health and is the leader of the four-justice liberal block on the Supreme Court. Though he spends much of his time at home in Florida, Stevens also has shown no inclination to step down from the bench.

The loss of either the moderately conservative O'Connor or the liberal Stevens would cause a major shakeup on the Supreme Court. Both help to make up a consistent but slim majority ensuring a woman's right to an abortion. Both justices were part of a 5-4 majority last term that struck down state bans on "partial-birth" abortions.

Because the Supreme Court is so evenly divided between conservatives and liberals, O'Connor -- along with moderate Justice Anthony Kennedy, 64 -- frequently casts the key vote on many 5-4 decisions. She is rarely in dissent, a sign of her power to form a majority. The rest of the court, Justices Antonin Scalia, Clarence Thomas, David Souter, Ruth Bader Ginsburg and Stephen Breyer, are relatively young and not expected to leave the court soon.

SEN. SCHUMER: Well, I think I'd start by asking "What is your judicial ideology on the large issue?" and then bring to it the smaller issues. For instance, I'd ask the nominee "What's your views on the First Amendment? How broad, how narrow?" And then I'd say, "Well, how does that stack up in terms of campaign finance reform? Would you vote to knock out much of campaign finance reform?" That's a great debate on the court.

I'd ask: "What are your views of the Second Amendment? Do you believe that, for instance, it pertains just to militias or to the average person?" That's a great debate. And then I'd ask: "Would your views on the Second Amendment have you rule that any kind of licensing or registration of hand guns wouldn't be allowed? What's your views on privacy? Do you believe there's a constitutional right to privacy? And do you believe that right to privacy would allow the court to make a decision on a woman's right to choose, to guarantee that right?" I think these...

MR. RUSSERT: And if a nominee says, "I'm not going to answer those questions"?

SEN. SCHUMER: Well, that's the nominee's right. And, see, I think, Tim, you have to look at this in the whole context of the nominee, their experience in the real world, their legal experience, and their excellence. Do they have a record? A judge who's been on the bench, say, the Court of Appeals nominated to the Supreme Court, we might need to know the answers to these questions a lot less because they have a whole track record. But if it's somebody who's been a law professor who's been in one little--studied one corner of antitrust law, I think we would want more to know. But it's every judge's right not to answer the question. But I think we should be taking that into account as we go through this.

SEN. SCHUMER: Well, I don't think that's true at all. Let me say that, first, Mr. Gigot's article incorrectly states my position. I do not think ideology should be the sole determining factor. I think it's one factor that should be out there. And let me tell you, the American people have a lot of common wisdom on this. If you ask people 'Do a judge's views matter when the Senate votes for them?' they'll say yes. What's happened in the last 15 or 20 years is that it's become somewhat taboo, and so what we do is end up--some people start looking for little personal foibles about judges when they really object to their ideological views, and it leads to a game of sort of "gotcha." Did that person commit a financial small impropriety? He didn't leave a tip at a restaurant 20 years ago, and that's the reason. But then--and this happens on both sides--all the Democrats oppose the Republican for that little financial impropriety and vice versa.

We ought to have ideology out there. Should it be the sole determinant factor? No. Should it be judicial ideology, judicial philosophy? But it should be part of it? Yes. And let me just say one other thing, Tim. The president has said he is going to make ideology part of why he chooses judges. In his campaign, the president said, "I don't believe in liberal activist judges. I believe in strict constructionists, and those are the kind of judges I will appoint." Now, if it's good for the president to choose a judge of a certain philosophy--strict constructionism, very strict, like Scalia or Thomas--why shouldn't it be appropriate for the Senate to ask questions about what that strict constructionism means and how it goes?

SEN. SESSIONS: But I would just say that's a factor of their judicial philosophy and how they approach the law. It doesn't deal with their personal views about political issues. And I think we've got to be careful. And what Mr. Cutler said so eloquently is in America today there's a danger of politicizing law. There's a group of professors and others that believe that law is not an objective ideal that can be ascertained, but it's really politics and power and is a secular--has no moral foundation to it. And I think that's part of what we've got to watch here.

We also know that this is a planned attack on Bush judges. I mean, they had a conference, the Democrats did, at a retreat. Three of the witnesses who testified just this week were at that retreat telling the Dems how to be more aggressive in blocking judges. So this is changing the ground rules, precisely what they want to do.

SEN. SCHUMER: OK, let me just--I don't. And let me just say this. The fact that Scalia was confirmed with that I think again makes the point. To have one Scalia on the court. There should not be a litmus test. It should not be, if you don't agree with me on every single issue, I will not vote for you. Jeff Sessions has voted for a whole lot of judges whose philosophy are closer to mine. I have voted for judges whose philosophy is closer to him. But it should be part of the equation. I would not take umbrage at having one Scalia on the Supreme Court. But it might be different if there were five, especially when so many key issues are before the courts right now. And all I am saying is not how people should vote, but this should be part of the discussion. The American people and the Senate have a right to know people's views on these vital issues before they send somebody to a lifetime appointment.

SEN. SCHUMER: Jeff, would you have a problem with my asking the next nominee, whether it be a Scalia or a Ginsberg, "What is your view of the First Amendment and how does it affect your views of campaign finance reform? What are your views on the right to privacy? How does it affect your views on choice?" What is wrong with asking those questions?

SEN. SESSIONS: Nothing wrong with asking those questions.

SEN. SCHUMER: Good.

SEN. SESSIONS: But that question is how--what do you expect of the nominee to answer? I have said things about legal matters and had my staff come to me and explain to me and show me research and change my mind entirely. So you certainly can't expect a nominee just to answer a complex question like that.

SEN. SCHUMER: Right.

O'CONNOR: Justice Raises Concerns Over Death Penalty

In a 7/2 speech to the MN Women Lawyers Assn in Minneapolis, SCOTUS Justice Sandra Day O'Connor "criticized application of the death penalty" in the U.S. O'Connor: "Serious questions are being raised about whether the death penalty is being fairly administered in this country. Minnesota doesn't have it, and you must breathe a big sigh of relief every day." O'Connor said that since she joined SCOTUS, "the number of death row inmates has increased from 856 nationwide to 3,711 last year." She also noted that last year, "six death row inmates were exonerated and released after a full trial and review, bringing the total to 90" since '73. More O'Connor: "If statistics are any indication, the system may well be allowing some innocent defendants to be executed" (Baca, Minneapolis Star-Tribune, 7/3).

New Gallup Poll: Bush Job Approval Steady

-Gallup's Tuesday Briefing, July 3, 2001

SUMMARY

Two interesting facts on the President's job approval from the latest Gallup Poll Analysis:

- Very little change. The last six Bush job approval numbers, through this weekend, have been 53% (early May), 56%, 56%, 55%, 55%, and 52% (this past weekend). In terms of disapproval, the last six measures have been 33% (in early May), 31%, 36%, 35%, 33%, and 34% (in this weekend's poll).
- Rise in disapproval normal. An increase in disapproval between February and July of a president's first year is consistent with previous presidencies. The 9% increase in President Bush's disapproval (from 25% to 34%) is slightly lower than the average increase of 13% set by the previous seven presidents. The largest jumps in disapproval during the first six months in office were Reagan (whose disapproval increased 17%, from 13% to 30%) and Clinton (30% to 47%, also 17%).

New Gallup Poll: Bush Job Approval Steady

SUMMARY

Two interesting facts on the President's job approval from the latest Gallup Poll Analysis:

- Very little change. The last six Bush job approval numbers, through this weekend, have been 53% (early May), 56%, 56%, 55%, 55%, and 52% (this past weekend). In terms of disapproval, the last six measures have been 33% (in early May), 31%, 36%, 35%, 33%, and 34% (in this weekend's poll).
- Rise in disapproval normal. An increase in disapproval between February and July of a president's first year is consistent with previous presidencies. The 9% increase in President Bush's disapproval (from 25% to 34%) is slightly lower than the average increase of 13% set by the previous seven presidents. The largest jumps in disapproval during the first six months in office were Reagan (whose disapproval increased 17%, from 13% to 30%) and Clinton (30% to 47%, also 17%).

Wall Street Journal, July 5, 2001

We Gave BCCI the Death Penalty

The premise of your June 26 editorial "Questions for Mr. Mueller" is in the sixth paragraph, where you begin with both a truism and a fundamentally incorrect statement that "[b]oth Mr. Terwilliger and Mr. Mueller were senior Justice Department officials when BCCI got away." The truism is that Mr. Terwilliger and Mr. Mueller were senior officials in the Justice Department. The incorrect statement is that BCCI got away. It did not.

A careful study of the archives you allude to should have discovered that George Terwilliger and Robert Mueller had been respected career prosecutors prior to becoming senior presidential appointees at Justice. Mr. Mueller was a Marine veteran of Vietnam. Honest and aggressive, he, like other leaders in every administration, may well have ruffled feathers among the "anonymous sources" whose attacks you repeated. But innuendo is no basis upon which to question his (or anyone else's) stellar record.

In summer 1991, when William Barr became attorney general, he tasked his acting deputy (Mr. Terwilliger) and the newly confirmed assistant attorney general of the Criminal Division (Mr. Mueller) with putting an end to the turf battles that had reportedly inhibited the prompt, effective use by various U.S. attorneys offices, the Federal Reserve and the district attorney of New York of information relating to BCCI's illegal acquisition of ownership interest in U.S. financial institutions. In just six months they achieved four key objectives:

1) All U.S. assets of BCCI (more than $1 billion) were forfeited to the U.S. to serve as insurance against the possible collapse of the infiltrated financial institutions and to compensate victims around the world;

2) Through a historic plea agreement involving 18 federal prosecutorial and regulatory agencies and the district attorney of New York, and approved by courts in London and Luxembourg, BCCI's largest U.S. bank holding was effectively put into a court-appointed receivership (ably managed by Harry Albright Jr.) that prevented a billion-dollar threat to the FDIC and resulted in the sale of the bank at almost a half-billion dollars above its book value;

3) Access to key evidence held by foreign liquidators and authorities beyond the reach of then-existing U.S. evidence gathering agreements; and,

4) An end to the rift between federal prosecutors and the district attorney's office in Manhattan that had hampered prosecutive efforts.

This record goes unmentioned as your editorial twists the record:

First, the evidence adduced through years investigation and litigation in the courts shows that the infiltration of First American was done without the knowledge of the U.S. bank regulators -- through subterfuge that was prosecuted.

Second, there was no evidence the U.S. intelligence community influenced U.S. regulators to look the other way. Indeed, regulators, particularly those from the Fed, OCC and FDIC, worked tirelessly to bring the wrongful infiltration to light.

Third, whether the Justice Department was part of the solution of BCCI may best be left to history, but at least it should be viewed in light of the facts. One fact can be gleaned from an opinion by now retired U.S. District Court Judge Joyce Hens Green, who presided over the Justice's criminal forfeiture case against BCCI and related civil matters for eight years.
In accepting BCCI's guilty plea on Jan. 24, 1992, Judge Green stated:

"[T]he plea agreement now before the Court reflects on a truly global measure extraordinary efforts and amazing cooperation of a multitude of signatories representing a myriad of jurisdictions to fully settle actions against the corporate defendants, which had operated in 69 countries around the globe, and, through that plea resolution to locate and protect all realizable assets of BCCI for the ultimate benefit of the depositors, creditors, United States financial institutions, and other victims of BCCI. The promise of the plea agreement is that those extraordinary efforts, that amazing cooperation, shall continue."

And continue it did. The coordinated prosecution of Clark Clifford and Robert Altman, and the Justice Department's deference to the New York D.A.'s proceedings, were the product of cooperation with Mr. Morgenthau that was spearheaded by Mr. Mueller rather than the "battles" you erroneously attribute to him. By the time the federal forfeiture case was over, $1.2 billion had been recovered and First American Bank had been saved from becoming a billion-dollar drain on the Federal Deposit Insurance fund. The guilty plea of BCCI would not have happened without the management and negotiating skills of Messrs.
Terwilliger and Mueller. BCCI did not get away. It was given the corporate death penalty in this country and around the world.

I know these things from the record and as another "senior official" appointed by President George H.W. Bush as the Justice Department's special counsel for financial institutions crimes. I was proud to serve the president and the United States in that position and to represent the U.S. in court during BCCI's guilty plea. I know of no more honorable public servants than those I served with in the Justice Department, including Messrs. Mueller and Terwilliger.

Fran Skinner called (for Ms. Illinois) wanting to know if there is a Counsel member working on 'Teens against Violence' issues. Apparently, in the previous administration, there was a Counsel member who worked on this issue, and she is wondering if that was carried over by our administration.... Can anyone help me on this? Thanks.

Based on these e-mails, this appears to be government official travel, so it should be paid for by the government. The Travel Office here can assist.

Hi. There are some things I need to know:

1. Flight times, airline and numbers (both arrival and departure)

2. Does Ms. Westine need ground transportation or is it provided ?

3. Are there any special needs ?

4. Is she willing to take questions after she speaks ? (I am figuring about 20 mns to 1/2 hour for her address and 10-15 minutes for questions, if there are any). She will likely begin speaking between 12:30 to 12:45 PM.

Please let me know ASAP, especially if I need to make provisions. Thanks

The NSC guys have drafted a guidance memo for Card, Rice, and Hadley on the use of gov't vehicles. I thought it should make some mention of the political question, since the only guidance that I know Andy has sought guidance.

So, just so I understand: If Andy comes to work in the morning knowing that he will be attending a political event that evening, he should drive his own car into the office, OR, he should use the gov't car between home and the WH, but take an RNC car between here and the political event.

I advised them not to use a government car. If they want to (or do so), it should work its way back to me, in which case the reimbursement will be calculated based on mileage. What is the context of your question?

In a meeting with Claire O'Donnell and Anita today, the question of the status (official vs. political) of advance personnel travelling on political trips was raised. I remember your saying that you originally thought such employees should not be deemed "always official," but that you were getting some push back from Vickers et al. Where did that come out?

7:00 would be fine. Do you like Levante next to Barnes & Noble downtown?

Also, it occurs to me we should probably coordinate some of our Maryland consultation and candidate search efforts, since I'm back to the drawing board on Maryland 4th Circuit and need to do a full canvass before presenting the next recommendations.

Thanks. My conflict wasn't actually the Fried lunch -- I'm going to Sidley & Austin to talk to the summer associates. (A commitment made, unfortunately, before I knew what a busy day Wednesday was apt to be.)

I'm bach-ing it tonight. Would you have any interest in grabbing a bite in Bethesda somewhere?

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush met with patients and doctors at Fair Oaks Hospital in Northern Virginia. He toured the hospital and met with doctors and patients to discuss their experiences and concerns about managed care.

- President Bush recently welcomed the bipartisan Fletcher-Peterson-Johnson-Burr legislation that is consistent with his principles for HMO reform. He called on the House of Representatives to pass a strong patients' bill of rights that he can sign into law.

The President's Commitment to a Strong Patients' Bill of Rights:

- Needed patient protections have been stalled because some in Washington have been unwilling to compromise. President Bush is committed to cutting through the gridlock and passing a Patients' Bill of Rights this year. Since early days of his Administration, the President has worked with Members of Congress from both parties to forge a bipartisan consensus that puts patients and their families first.

- President Bush believes the bipartisan legislation introduced by Representatives Ernie Fletcher, Collin Peterson, Nancy Johnson, and Richard Burr represents a sensible compromise. It will allow patients to hold HMOs accountable while also protecting patients and their families from paying the costs of unnecessary and expensive litigation that will increase their health care premiums and jeopardize their health insurance coverage.

- The President is pleased that the compromise House bill meets the principles for a Patients' Bill of Rights that he announced earlier this year:

  - ✓ Patient protections should apply to all Americans.
  - ✓ Patient protections should be comprehensive.
  - ✓ Patients should have a rapid medical review process for denials of care.
  - ✓ The patient review process should ensure that doctors are allowed to make medical decisions and patients receive care in a timely manner.
  - ✓ Federal remedies should be expanded to hold health plans accountable.
  - ✓ Patient protection legislation should encourage, not discourage, employers to offer health care.

The President's Principles for a Bipartisan Patients Bill of Rights

- Patient Protections Should Apply to All Americans: A federal Patients' Bill of Rights should ensure that every person enrolled in a health plan enjoys strong patient protections. Because many legislatures have passed strong patient protection laws that are appropriate for their states, deference should be given to these state laws and to the traditional authority of states to regulate health insurance.

- Patient Protections Should Be Comprehensive: A federal Patients' Bill of Rights should provide patient protections such as:

  - ✓ Access to emergency room and specialty care.
  - ✓ Direct access to obstetricians, gynecologists and pediatricians.
  - ✓ Access to needed prescription drugs and approved clinical trials
  - ✓ Access to health plan information.
  - ✓ Prohibition of "gag clauses" that prevent doctors from discussing certain health care options with their patients because of their HMO.
  - ✓ Consumer choice provisions that give consumers more choice of doctors.
  - ✓ Continuity of care protections that allow patients to continue to see their doctor if they are terminally ill, pregnant or awaiting scheduled surgery – even if their doctor switches HMO plans.

- Patients Should Have a Rapid Medical Review Process for Denials of Care: Patients who have been denied medical care should have the right to a fair, prompt and independent medical review to ensure that disputes are dissolved quickly and inexpensively, and that patients receive the quality care they deserve.

- The Review Process Should Ensure that Doctors Are Allowed to Make Medical Decisions and Patients Receive Care in a Timely Manner: Slow and costly litigation should be a last resort. Patients should exhaust their appeals process first — allowing independent medical experts to make medical decisions and ensuring patients receive necessary medical care without the staggering costs and needless delays of going to court.

- Federal Remedies Should Be Expanded to Hold Health Plans Accountable: After an independent review decision is rendered, patients should be allowed to hold their health plans liable in federal court if they still have been wrongly denied needed medical care.

- Patient Protection Legislation Should Encourage, Not Discourage, Employers to Offer Health Care: Americans want meaningful remedies, not a windfall for trial lawyers resulting in expensive health care premiums and unaffordable health coverage. To protect patients' rights without encouraging excessive litigation, damages should be subject to reasonable caps. Employers – especially small businesses that are struggling to offer health coverage to their employees -- should be shielded from unnecessary and frivolous lawsuits and should not be subject to multiple lawsuits in state court. Increased litigation will only result in higher health care costs, potentially causing millions of Americans to lose their health insurance. Only employers who retain responsibility for making final medical decisions for their employees should be subject to lawsuits.

President Calls on Congress to Pass Key Priorities Before The August Recess

- The President today called on Congress to pass before the August recess an education reform package, a strong Patients' Bill of Rights, and legislation to empower and strengthen Faith-Based and Community Initiatives to help those most in need.

- These are issues where the need for action is compelling, and these are issues where bipartisan agreement is within our reach.

- The President wants July to be a month of bipartisan achievement.

The President & Patients' Bill of Rights:

- The President wants to sign a strong Patients' Bill of Rights that helps families get the health care they need, when they need it.

- There are broad areas of agreement on this issue:

  - ✓ A heart patient should be able to see the cardiologist he needs – when he needs him.
  - ✓ A woman should be able to see her gynecologist without asking permission first. Parents should always be able to choose their child's pediatrician.
  - ✓ And anyone denied care by an HMO should have the right to an immediate appeal – with the outcome determined by doctors, not HMO bureaucrats or trial lawyers.

- There is only one obstacle to quick passage of a Patients' Bill of Rights. Some members of Congress want to add expansive provisions for expensive and lengthy litigation – lawsuits that will raise the price of health insurance for everyone, and deny millions of Americans health insurance altogether.

- Sick people don't want to have to go to court for the treatment they need. They want to get to the doctor. Sick people don't need money later. They need treatment now. And treatment now is what a good Patients' Bill of Rights will deliver.

- The President today called on Congress to send him a Patients' Bill of Rights that:

  - ✓ Offers any patient who has been denied care an immediate and impartial review, by a panel of doctors.
  - ✓ Encourages the quick, fair settlement of disputes, rather than slow, expensive lawsuits.
  - ✓ Keeps healthcare affordable and encourages more employers to offer coverage.

- The President strongly supports passage of a bipartisan patients' bill of rights this year. After years of bickering, the time has come for action -- it's time to put the needs of patients first. The President wants doctors and patients to make medical decisions – not HMO gatekeepers and trial lawyers.

- Since the first week of his Administration, the President has worked with Members of Congress from both parties to forge a bipartisan consensus that puts patients and their families first.

- The President strongly urges Congress to pass a patients' bill of rights this year that provides meaningful protections for patients, not a windfall for trial lawyers or a threat to the health care coverage of millions of Americans. The President wants bipartisan legislation that is built on the following principles:

  - ✓ Patient protections should apply to all Americans.
  - ✓ Patient protections should be comprehensive.
  - ✓ Patients should have a rapid medical review process for denials of care.
  - ✓ The patient review process should ensure that doctors are allowed to make medical decisions and patients receive care in a timely manner.
  - ✓ Federal remedies should be expanded to hold health plans accountable.
  - ✓ Patient protection legislation should encourage, not discourage, employers to offer health care.

The President & Education Reform:

- Great progress has been made and a bipartisan consensus has been reached on education reform.

  - ✓ We agree on the need for local control of schools.
  - ✓ We agree that schools must measure what their students know – and be held accountable when their students don't learn what they should.
  - ✓ We agree that the federal government should provide greater resources to schools – and insist on seeing results for this investment.

- Both the House and Senate have passed bills reflecting these principles. The differences between them are small – and reasonable people should be able to resolve them quickly.

- Teachers, local school boards, state legislatures, and governors are excited by the opportunities our education reform gives them. The President urges Congress to act, and act quickly, on education reform – before the new school year begins – so schools can start planning for a better future.

- The President's education proposal and the legislation moving through Congress share the following core principles:

  - ✓ Accountability for results through high standards, assessments, and consequences for failure. States will administer state tests in reading and math to every child in grades 3-8 annually. States will be held accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. And, while failing schools get help under the President's plan, they will face serious consequences for persistent failure.

  - ✓ Maximum Local Control: States and local districts will be given unprecedented flexibility with federal education dollars. The Senate bill contains important consolidation and flexibility that will make key teacher quality, bilingual education and after-school programs work better.

  - ✓ Funding Proven Education Approaches That Work: To ensure progress, states and schools must demonstrate results with federal education funds. For the first time, historic increases in federal education funding will be directly tied to school performance. And, the federal government will help states to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to provide kids with basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.

- ✓ Empowering Parents to Make Informed Educational Choices: For the first time, Republicans and Democrats have agreed -- real reform requires that parents must have more options and more control over their children's education. Parents and the public will be given detailed school-by-school Report Cards on the performance of their schools. Parents will be able to choose to transfer their child from a failing public school to an effective public school with transportation provided or to redirect their child's share of federal funds toward tutoring or after-school academic services. And, parents will be given the option to transfer their child out of a persistently unsafe public school to another public school of their choice.

- The President looks forward to working with House and Senate conferees to develop a final bill that meets his core principles and can be signed into law. The President looks forward to working on a bipartisan basis to take the best parts of the House and Senate education bills and enact the most substantial education reforms in a generation before the new school year begins.

- In order to ensure that these reforms can be effectively implemented, the President has proposed an historic level of investment to help states and local schools. The President believes reasonable education spending increases are justified, but they must be carefully directed toward effective, results-oriented programs. Simply increasing spending without focus and creating layers of new programs impedes real reform and will not help to improve public schools.

The President's Initiative to Rally America's Armies of Compassion:

- The President is ready to implement the next stage of compassionate welfare reform to help those most in need.

- This year, many states reach the five-year time limit on welfare benefits set by the welfare reform of 1996. Great progress has been made – bringing work and independence into the lives of many Americans. And yet great problems remain.

- There is a growing consensus in this country that hope and help for these problems can be found in charities and faith-based groups – which give communities their humanity.

- Congress should act to support faith-based and community groups. It should, among other measures, permit all Americans, including the large majority who do not itemize on their tax returns, to deduct charitable contributions.

- Momentum continues to build behind the President's initiative on Capitol Hill. The President is working to bring Republicans and Democrats together to make social service programs more effective. Floor action in the House is expected soon. The President's initiative will:

  - ✓ Stimulate an outpouring of private giving to nonprofits, faith-based programs, and community groups by expanding tax deductions and other initiatives:

- Granting a charitable tax deduction to 80 million non-itemizing American taxpayers
- Promoting corporate in-kind donations such as equipment, facilities and vehicles
- Permitting charitable contributions from IRAs without penalty
- Creating a Compassion Capital Fund to strengthen model programs that are achieving strong civic purposes

✓ Pioneer a new model of cooperation with local organizations to expand the involvement of faith and community groups in transforming lives:

- Helping the estimated 2+ million children of prisoners who suffer disproportionate rates of severe social problems by providing support for mentoring programs
- Improving rehabilitation for inmates nearing release
- Expanding eligibility for drug treatment funding to help close the treatment gap
- Widening after-school opportunities for low-income children
- Providing structured "second chance" homes for unwed teen mothers
- Strengthening responsible fatherhood and combating father absence

- Expanding established Charitable Choice principles to enable private, charitable and religious organizations to compete, on a nondiscriminatory basis, for federal funds
- Creating the White House Office of Faith-Based & Community Initiatives
- Creating Centers for Faith-Based & Community Initiatives at the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, HUD, Justice and Education to spearhead efforts to eliminate barriers impeding the vital work of neighborhood charities
- Encouraging states to create their own faith-based and community initiatives programs with start-up funds.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush met with patients and doctors at Fair Oaks Hospital in Northern Virginia. He toured the hospital and met with doctors and patients to discuss their experiences and concerns about managed care.

- President Bush recently welcomed the bipartisan Fletcher-Peterson-Johnson-Burr legislation that is consistent with his principles for HMO reform. He called on the House of Representatives to pass a strong patients' bill of rights that he can sign into law.

The President's Commitment to a Strong Patients' Bill of Rights:

- Needed patient protections have been stalled because some in Washington have been unwilling to compromise. President Bush is committed to cutting through the gridlock and passing a Patients' Bill of Rights this year. Since early days of his Administration, the President has worked with Members of Congress from both parties to forge a bipartisan consensus that puts patients and their families first.

- President Bush believes the bipartisan legislation introduced by Representatives Ernie Fletcher, Collin Peterson, Nancy Johnson, and Richard Burr represents a sensible compromise. It will allow patients to hold HMOs accountable while also protecting patients and their families from paying the costs of unnecessary and expensive litigation that will increase their health care premiums and jeopardize their health insurance coverage.

- The President is pleased that the compromise House bill meets the principles for a Patients' Bill of Rights that he announced earlier this year:

  - ✓ Patient protections should apply to all Americans.
  - ✓ Patient protections should be comprehensive.
  - ✓ Patients should have a rapid medical review process for denials of care.
  - ✓ The patient review process should ensure that doctors are allowed to make medical decisions and patients receive care in a timely manner.
  - ✓ Federal remedies should be expanded to hold health plans accountable.
  - ✓ Patient protection legislation should encourage, not discourage, employers to offer health care.

The President's Principles for a Bipartisan Patients Bill of Rights

- Patient Protections Should Apply to All Americans: A federal Patients' Bill of Rights should ensure that every person enrolled in a health plan enjoys strong patient protections. Because many legislatures have passed strong patient protection laws that are appropriate for their states, deference should be given to these state laws and to the traditional authority of states to regulate health insurance.

- Patient Protections Should Be Comprehensive: A federal Patients' Bill of Rights should provide patient protections such as:

  - ✓ Access to emergency room and specialty care.
  - ✓ Direct access to obstetricians, gynecologists and pediatricians.
  - ✓ Access to needed prescription drugs and approved clinical trials
  - ✓ Access to health plan information.
  - ✓ Prohibition of "gag clauses" that prevent doctors from discussing certain health care options with their patients because of their HMO.
  - ✓ Consumer choice provisions that give consumers more choice of doctors.
  - ✓ Continuity of care protections that allow patients to continue to see their doctor if they are terminally ill, pregnant or awaiting scheduled surgery – even if their doctor switches HMO plans.

- Patients Should Have a Rapid Medical Review Process for Denials of Care: Patients who have been denied medical care should have the right to a fair, prompt and independent medical review to ensure that disputes are dissolved quickly and inexpensively, and that patients receive the quality care they deserve.

- The Review Process Should Ensure that Doctors Are Allowed to Make Medical Decisions and Patients Receive Care in a Timely Manner: Slow and costly litigation should be a last resort. Patients should exhaust their appeals process first — allowing independent medical experts to make medical decisions and ensuring patients receive necessary medical care without the staggering costs and needless delays of going to court.

- Federal Remedies Should Be Expanded to Hold Health Plans Accountable: After an independent review decision is rendered, patients should be allowed to hold their health plans liable in federal court if they still have been wrongly denied needed medical care.

- Patient Protection Legislation Should Encourage, Not Discourage, Employers to Offer Health Care: Americans want meaningful remedies, not a windfall for trial lawyers resulting in expensive health care premiums and unaffordable health coverage. To protect patients' rights without encouraging excessive litigation, damages should be subject to reasonable caps. Employers – especially small businesses that are struggling to offer health coverage to their employees -- should be shielded from unnecessary and frivolous lawsuits and should not be subject to multiple lawsuits in state court. Increased litigation will only result in higher health care costs, potentially causing millions of Americans to lose their health insurance. Only employers who retain responsibility for making final medical decisions for their employees should be subject to lawsuits.

President Calls on Congress to Pass Key Priorities Before The August Recess

- The President today called on Congress to pass before the August recess an education reform package, a strong Patients' Bill of Rights, and legislation to empower and strengthen Faith-Based and Community Initiatives to help those most in need.

- These are issues where the need for action is compelling, and these are issues where bipartisan agreement is within our reach.

- The President wants July to be a month of bipartisan achievement.

The President & Patients' Bill of Rights:

- The President wants to sign a strong Patients' Bill of Rights that helps families get the health care they need, when they need it.

- There are broad areas of agreement on this issue:

  - ✓ A heart patient should be able to see the cardiologist he needs – when he needs him.
  - ✓ A woman should be able to see her gynecologist without asking permission first. Parents should always be able to choose their child's pediatrician.
  - ✓ And anyone denied care by an HMO should have the right to an immediate appeal – with the outcome determined by doctors, not HMO bureaucrats or trial lawyers.

- There is only one obstacle to quick passage of a Patients' Bill of Rights. Some members of Congress want to add expansive provisions for expensive and lengthy litigation – lawsuits that will raise the price of health insurance for everyone, and deny millions of Americans health insurance altogether.

- Sick people don't want to have to go to court for the treatment they need. They want to get to the doctor. Sick people don't need money later. They need treatment now. And treatment now is what a good Patients' Bill of Rights will deliver.

- The President today called on Congress to send him a Patients' Bill of Rights that:

  - ✓ Offers any patient who has been denied care an immediate and impartial review, by a panel of doctors.
  - ✓ Encourages the quick, fair settlement of disputes, rather than slow, expensive lawsuits.
  - ✓ Keeps healthcare affordable and encourages more employers to offer coverage.

- The President strongly supports passage of a bipartisan patients' bill of rights this year. After years of bickering, the time has come for action -- it's time to put the needs of patients first. The President wants doctors and patients to make medical decisions – not HMO gatekeepers and trial lawyers.

- Since the first week of his Administration, the President has worked with Members of Congress from both parties to forge a bipartisan consensus that puts patients and their families first.

- The President strongly urges Congress to pass a patients' bill of rights this year that provides meaningful protections for patients, not a windfall for trial lawyers or a threat to the health care coverage of millions of Americans. The President wants bipartisan legislation that is built on the following principles:

  - ✓ Patient protections should apply to all Americans.
  - ✓ Patient protections should be comprehensive.
  - ✓ Patients should have a rapid medical review process for denials of care.
  - ✓ The patient review process should ensure that doctors are allowed to make medical decisions and patients receive care in a timely manner.
  - ✓ Federal remedies should be expanded to hold health plans accountable.
  - ✓ Patient protection legislation should encourage, not discourage, employers to offer health care.

The President & Education Reform:

- Great progress has been made and a bipartisan consensus has been reached on education reform.

  - ✓ We agree on the need for local control of schools.
  - ✓ We agree that schools must measure what their students know – and be held accountable when their students don't learn what they should.
  - ✓ We agree that the federal government should provide greater resources to schools – and insist on seeing results for this investment.

- Both the House and Senate have passed bills reflecting these principles. The differences between them are small – and reasonable people should be able to resolve them quickly.

- Teachers, local school boards, state legislatures, and governors are excited by the opportunities our education reform gives them. The President urges Congress to act, and act quickly, on education reform – before the new school year begins – so schools can start planning for a better future.

- The President's education proposal and the legislation moving through Congress share the following core principles:

  - ✓ Accountability for results through high standards, assessments, and consequences for failure. States will administer state tests in reading and math to every child in grades 3-8 annually. States will be held accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. And, while failing schools get help under the President's plan, they will face serious consequences for persistent failure.

  - ✓ Maximum Local Control: States and local districts will be given unprecedented flexibility with federal education dollars. The Senate bill contains important consolidation and flexibility that will make key teacher quality, bilingual education and after-school programs work better.

  - ✓ Funding Proven Education Approaches That Work: To ensure progress, states and schools must demonstrate results with federal education funds. For the first time, historic increases in federal education funding will be directly tied to school performance. And, the federal government will help states to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to provide kids with basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.

- ✓ Empowering Parents to Make Informed Educational Choices: For the first time, Republicans and Democrats have agreed -- real reform requires that parents must have more options and more control over their children's education. Parents and the public will be given detailed school-by-school Report Cards on the performance of their schools. Parents will be able to choose to transfer their child from a failing public school to an effective public school with transportation provided or to redirect their child's share of federal funds toward tutoring or after-school academic services. And, parents will be given the option to transfer their child out of a persistently unsafe public school to another public school of their choice.

- The President looks forward to working with House and Senate conferees to develop a final bill that meets his core principles and can be signed into law. The President looks forward to working on a bipartisan basis to take the best parts of the House and Senate education bills and enact the most substantial education reforms in a generation before the new school year begins.

- In order to ensure that these reforms can be effectively implemented, the President has proposed an historic level of investment to help states and local schools. The President believes reasonable education spending increases are justified, but they must be carefully directed toward effective, results-oriented programs. Simply increasing spending without focus and creating layers of new programs impedes real reform and will not help to improve public schools.

The President's Initiative to Rally America's Armies of Compassion:

- The President is ready to implement the next stage of compassionate welfare reform to help those most in need.

- This year, many states reach the five-year time limit on welfare benefits set by the welfare reform of 1996. Great progress has been made – bringing work and independence into the lives of many Americans. And yet great problems remain.

- There is a growing consensus in this country that hope and help for these problems can be found in charities and faith-based groups – which give communities their humanity.

- Congress should act to support faith-based and community groups. It should, among other measures, permit all Americans, including the large majority who do not itemize on their tax returns, to deduct charitable contributions.

- Momentum continues to build behind the President's initiative on Capitol Hill. The President is working to bring Republicans and Democrats together to make social service programs more effective. Floor action in the House is expected soon. The President's initiative will:

  - ✓ Stimulate an outpouring of private giving to nonprofits, faith-based programs, and community groups by expanding tax deductions and other initiatives:

- Granting a charitable tax deduction to 80 million non-itemizing American taxpayers
- Promoting corporate in-kind donations such as equipment, facilities and vehicles
- Permitting charitable contributions from IRAs without penalty
- Creating a Compassion Capital Fund to strengthen model programs that are achieving strong civic purposes

✓ Pioneer a new model of cooperation with local organizations to expand the involvement of faith and community groups in transforming lives:

- Helping the estimated 2+ million children of prisoners who suffer disproportionate rates of severe social problems by providing support for mentoring programs
- Improving rehabilitation for inmates nearing release
- Expanding eligibility for drug treatment funding to help close the treatment gap
- Widening after-school opportunities for low-income children
- Providing structured "second chance" homes for unwed teen mothers
- Strengthening responsible fatherhood and combating father absence

✓ Eliminate federal barriers to effective faith-based and community-serving programs through legislative, regulatory, and programmatic reforms:

- Expanding established Charitable Choice principles to enable private, charitable and religious organizations to compete, on a nondiscriminatory basis, for federal funds
- Creating the White House Office of Faith-Based & Community Initiatives
- Creating Centers for Faith-Based & Community Initiatives at the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, HUD, Justice and Education to spearhead efforts to eliminate barriers impeding the vital work of neighborhood charities
- Encouraging states to create their own faith-based and community initiatives programs with start-up funds.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush met with patients and doctors at Fair Oaks Hospital in Northern Virginia. He toured the hospital and met with doctors and patients to discuss their experiences and concerns about managed care.

- President Bush recently welcomed the bipartisan Fletcher-Peterson-Johnson-Burr legislation that is consistent with his principles for HMO reform. He called on the House of Representatives to pass a strong patients' bill of rights that he can sign into law.

The President's Commitment to a Strong Patients' Bill of Rights:

- Needed patient protections have been stalled because some in Washington have been unwilling to compromise. President Bush is committed to cutting through the gridlock and passing a Patients' Bill of Rights this year. Since early days of his Administration, the President has worked with Members of Congress from both parties to forge a bipartisan consensus that puts patients and their families first.

- President Bush believes the bipartisan legislation introduced by Representatives Ernie Fletcher, Collin Peterson, Nancy Johnson, and Richard Burr represents a sensible compromise. It will allow patients to hold HMOs accountable while also protecting patients and their families from paying the costs of unnecessary and expensive litigation that will increase their health care premiums and jeopardize their health insurance coverage.

- The President is pleased that the compromise House bill meets the principles for a Patients' Bill of Rights that he announced earlier this year:

  - ✓ Patient protections should apply to all Americans.
  - ✓ Patient protections should be comprehensive.
  - ✓ Patients should have a rapid medical review process for denials of care.
  - ✓ The patient review process should ensure that doctors are allowed to make medical decisions and patients receive care in a timely manner.
  - ✓ Federal remedies should be expanded to hold health plans accountable.
  - ✓ Patient protection legislation should encourage, not discourage, employers to offer health care.

The President's Principles for a Bipartisan Patients Bill of Rights

- Patient Protections Should Apply to All Americans: A federal Patients' Bill of Rights should ensure that every person enrolled in a health plan enjoys strong patient protections. Because many legislatures have passed strong patient protection laws that are appropriate for their states, deference should be given to these state laws and to the traditional authority of states to regulate health insurance.

- Patient Protections Should Be Comprehensive: A federal Patients' Bill of Rights should provide patient protections such as:

  - ✓ Access to emergency room and specialty care.
  - ✓ Direct access to obstetricians, gynecologists and pediatricians.
  - ✓ Access to needed prescription drugs and approved clinical trials
  - ✓ Access to health plan information.
  - ✓ Prohibition of "gag clauses" that prevent doctors from discussing certain health care options with their patients because of their HMO.
  - ✓ Consumer choice provisions that give consumers more choice of doctors.
  - ✓ Continuity of care protections that allow patients to continue to see their doctor if they are terminally ill, pregnant or awaiting scheduled surgery – even if their doctor switches HMO plans.

- Patients Should Have a Rapid Medical Review Process for Denials of Care: Patients who have been denied medical care should have the right to a fair, prompt and independent medical review to ensure that disputes are dissolved quickly and inexpensively, and that patients receive the quality care they deserve.

- The Review Process Should Ensure that Doctors Are Allowed to Make Medical Decisions and Patients Receive Care in a Timely Manner: Slow and costly litigation should be a last resort. Patients should exhaust their appeals process first — allowing independent medical experts to make medical decisions and ensuring patients receive necessary medical care without the staggering costs and needless delays of going to court.

- Federal Remedies Should Be Expanded to Hold Health Plans Accountable: After an independent review decision is rendered, patients should be allowed to hold their health plans liable in federal court if they still have been wrongly denied needed medical care.

- Patient Protection Legislation Should Encourage, Not Discourage, Employers to Offer Health Care: Americans want meaningful remedies, not a windfall for trial lawyers resulting in expensive health care premiums and unaffordable health coverage. To protect patients' rights without encouraging excessive litigation, damages should be subject to reasonable caps. Employers – especially small businesses that are struggling to offer health coverage to their employees -- should be shielded from unnecessary and frivolous lawsuits and should not be subject to multiple lawsuits in state court. Increased litigation will only result in higher health care costs, potentially causing millions of Americans to lose their health insurance. Only employers who retain responsibility for making final medical decisions for their employees should be subject to lawsuits.

President Calls on Congress to Pass Key Priorities Before The August Recess

- The President today called on Congress to pass before the August recess an education reform package, a strong Patients' Bill of Rights, and legislation to empower and strengthen Faith-Based and Community Initiatives to help those most in need.

- These are issues where the need for action is compelling, and these are issues where bipartisan agreement is within our reach.

- The President wants July to be a month of bipartisan achievement.

The President & Patients' Bill of Rights:

- The President wants to sign a strong Patients' Bill of Rights that helps families get the health care they need, when they need it.

- There are broad areas of agreement on this issue:

  - ✓ A heart patient should be able to see the cardiologist he needs – when he needs him.
  - ✓ A woman should be able to see her gynecologist without asking permission first. Parents should always be able to choose their child's pediatrician.
  - ✓ And anyone denied care by an HMO should have the right to an immediate appeal – with the outcome determined by doctors, not HMO bureaucrats or trial lawyers.

- There is only one obstacle to quick passage of a Patients' Bill of Rights. Some members of Congress want to add expansive provisions for expensive and lengthy litigation – lawsuits that will raise the price of health insurance for everyone, and deny millions of Americans health insurance altogether.

- Sick people don't want to have to go to court for the treatment they need. They want to get to the doctor. Sick people don't need money later. They need treatment now. And treatment now is what a good Patients' Bill of Rights will deliver.

- The President today called on Congress to send him a Patients' Bill of Rights that:

  - ✓ Offers any patient who has been denied care an immediate and impartial review, by a panel of doctors.
  - ✓ Encourages the quick, fair settlement of disputes, rather than slow, expensive lawsuits.
  - ✓ Keeps healthcare affordable and encourages more employers to offer coverage.

- The President strongly supports passage of a bipartisan patients' bill of rights this year. After years of bickering, the time has come for action -- it's time to put the needs of patients first. The President wants doctors and patients to make medical decisions – not HMO gatekeepers and trial lawyers.

- Since the first week of his Administration, the President has worked with Members of Congress from both parties to forge a bipartisan consensus that puts patients and their families first.

- The President strongly urges Congress to pass a patients' bill of rights this year that provides meaningful protections for patients, not a windfall for trial lawyers or a threat to the health care coverage of millions of Americans. The President wants bipartisan legislation that is built on the following principles:

  - ✓ Patient protections should apply to all Americans.
  - ✓ Patient protections should be comprehensive.
  - ✓ Patients should have a rapid medical review process for denials of care.
  - ✓ The patient review process should ensure that doctors are allowed to make medical decisions and patients receive care in a timely manner.
  - ✓ Federal remedies should be expanded to hold health plans accountable.
  - ✓ Patient protection legislation should encourage, not discourage, employers to offer health care.

The President & Education Reform:

- Great progress has been made and a bipartisan consensus has been reached on education reform.

  - ✓ We agree on the need for local control of schools.
  - ✓ We agree that schools must measure what their students know – and be held accountable when their students don't learn what they should.
  - ✓ We agree that the federal government should provide greater resources to schools – and insist on seeing results for this investment.

- Both the House and Senate have passed bills reflecting these principles. The differences between them are small – and reasonable people should be able to resolve them quickly.

- Teachers, local school boards, state legislatures, and governors are excited by the opportunities our education reform gives them. The President urges Congress to act, and act quickly, on education reform – before the new school year begins – so schools can start planning for a better future.

- The President's education proposal and the legislation moving through Congress share the following core principles:

  - ✓ Accountability for results through high standards, assessments, and consequences for failure. States will administer state tests in reading and math to every child in grades 3-8 annually. States will be held accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. And, while failing schools get help under the President's plan, they will face serious consequences for persistent failure.

  - ✓ Maximum Local Control: States and local districts will be given unprecedented flexibility with federal education dollars. The Senate bill contains important consolidation and flexibility that will make key teacher quality, bilingual education and after-school programs work better.

  - ✓ Funding Proven Education Approaches That Work: To ensure progress, states and schools must demonstrate results with federal education funds. For the first time, historic increases in federal education funding will be directly tied to school performance. And, the federal government will help states to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to provide kids with basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.

- ✓ Empowering Parents to Make Informed Educational Choices: For the first time, Republicans and Democrats have agreed -- real reform requires that parents must have more options and more control over their children's education. Parents and the public will be given detailed school-by-school Report Cards on the performance of their schools. Parents will be able to choose to transfer their child from a failing public school to an effective public school with transportation provided or to redirect their child's share of federal funds toward tutoring or after-school academic services. And, parents will be given the option to transfer their child out of a persistently unsafe public school to another public school of their choice.

- The President looks forward to working with House and Senate conferees to develop a final bill that meets his core principles and can be signed into law. The President looks forward to working on a bipartisan basis to take the best parts of the House and Senate education bills and enact the most substantial education reforms in a generation before the new school year begins.

- In order to ensure that these reforms can be effectively implemented, the President has proposed an historic level of investment to help states and local schools. The President believes reasonable education spending increases are justified, but they must be carefully directed toward effective, results-oriented programs. Simply increasing spending without focus and creating layers of new programs impedes real reform and will not help to improve public schools.

The President's Initiative to Rally America's Armies of Compassion:

- The President is ready to implement the next stage of compassionate welfare reform to help those most in need.

- This year, many states reach the five-year time limit on welfare benefits set by the welfare reform of 1996. Great progress has been made – bringing work and independence into the lives of many Americans. And yet great problems remain.

- There is a growing consensus in this country that hope and help for these problems can be found in charities and faith-based groups – which give communities their humanity.

- Congress should act to support faith-based and community groups. It should, among other measures, permit all Americans, including the large majority who do not itemize on their tax returns, to deduct charitable contributions.

- Momentum continues to build behind the President's initiative on Capitol Hill. The President is working to bring Republicans and Democrats together to make social service programs more effective. Floor action in the House is expected soon. The President's initiative will:

  - ✓ Stimulate an outpouring of private giving to nonprofits, faith-based programs, and community groups by expanding tax deductions and other initiatives:

- Granting a charitable tax deduction to 80 million non-itemizing American taxpayers
- Promoting corporate in-kind donations such as equipment, facilities and vehicles
- Permitting charitable contributions from IRAs without penalty
- Creating a Compassion Capital Fund to strengthen model programs that are achieving strong civic purposes

✓ Pioneer a new model of cooperation with local organizations to expand the involvement of faith and community groups in transforming lives:

- Helping the estimated 2+ million children of prisoners who suffer disproportionate rates of severe social problems by providing support for mentoring programs
- Improving rehabilitation for inmates nearing release
- Expanding eligibility for drug treatment funding to help close the treatment gap
- Widening after-school opportunities for low-income children
- Providing structured "second chance" homes for unwed teen mothers
- Strengthening responsible fatherhood and combating father absence

✓ Eliminate federal barriers to effective faith-based and community-serving programs through legislative, regulatory, and programmatic reforms:

- Expanding established Charitable Choice principles to enable private, charitable and religious organizations to compete, on a nondiscriminatory basis, for federal funds
- Creating the White House Office of Faith-Based & Community Initiatives
- Creating Centers for Faith-Based & Community Initiatives at the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, HUD, Justice and Education to spearhead efforts to eliminate barriers impeding the vital work of neighborhood charities
- Encouraging states to create their own faith-based and community initiatives programs with start-up funds.

Brett,

I am trying to work on getting approval for letters from the President and photographs of the President and First Lady for two separate publications.

1. The Texas Federation of Republican Women would like camera ready artwork due no later than August 31 for their upcoming convention program. In last year's book, the campaign produced and paid for an advertisement. This year, they are asking us for the artwork and they will publish for free. I'm looking for guidance on all fronts. I know that the WH photo office can provide camera ready artwork -- is it permissable for them to do this for a publication such as this and if not, who should do the work -- RNC?

2. The Texas Musical Drama (a non-profit Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation) has requested a letter and photo of the President for their 2001 Texas Souvenir Program. Again, I'm looking for guidance on the approval process here. This one is more time sensitive.

I appreciate any direction you can provide. Thanks for your help.

Kelley

President Bush's Commitment to Immigration Reform

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush visits Ellis Island, where he will participate in a naturalization ceremony for new American citizens.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To help correct this problem, the President today will propose a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. The President has also announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- The President will also announce his support for changes proposed in Congress that will promote family reunification. Family reunification will be a primary component of immigration policy in the Bush Administration.

President Bush & Immigration Policy:

- From 1892 to 1954, more than 12 million immigrants to America came to Ellis Island – mostly from Europe. Today, the face of immigration to America has changed. More immigrants come from Mexico than any other country, and immigrants are coming from more places than ever.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To correct this problem, the President has proposed a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. He has announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- President Bush has also proposed reforming the INS, which has suffered from systemic problems in recent years related to its competing missions and priorities of serving legal immigrants while enforcing immigration laws. Under his plan, the INS would be split into two agencies – one focused on service, the other focused on law enforcement – reporting to a policy leader in the Department of Justice. These changes will allow the INS to better fulfill its core missions.

President Bush's Support for Family Reunification:

- President Bush believes that family reunification should be a fundamental goal of our nation's immigration policy. He has supported a temporary extension of Section 245(i), which allows eligible people to apply for legal residency in the United States without having to first return to their country of origin. Granting this extension will spare families from needless separation while a family member is awaiting their green card.

- President Bush supports efforts in Congress to protect children whose parent passes away while the INS is reviewing their immigration application. Currently, if a parent or "financial sponsor" passes away before an application is processed, the entire process – which can take up to 13 years – begins again. Under the proposal supported by the President, a relative could take up the role of "financial sponsor" for an applicant for permanent residence from a deceased sponsor without having an interruption in the naturalization process for the applicant.

- President Bush also announced his support for changes that protect minor children from bureaucratic problems caused by the INS backlog. The status of individuals seeking to obtain visas under the Immigration and Nationality Act is often dependent on the age of the applicant. Current law classifies an individual's age based on the time the application was processed. For a minor child, the President proposed that their entitlement to a visa should be measured by their age on the date of application, not on the date the INS has finally processed the visa. This change will allow children of U.S. citizens to more easily gain citizenship.

The President's Budget & Immigration Reform:

- President Bush's budget reflects his commitment to reforming our immigration system. It includes:

  - ✓ $100 million for FY02 as part of a five-year, $500 million program to improve processing of immigration applications to reach a six-month standard;
  - ✓ $75 million for FY02 to hire 570 new Border Patrol agents – part of a two-year, $150 million initiative to hire more than 1100 new agents;
  - ✓ $89 million to expand detention capacity and enable swift removal of illegal and criminal aliens, and implement detention standards to ensure that detainees, particularly with pending asylum cases, are treated fairly and respectfully.

No. what issue (i assume re stem cell?)
I noticed in my church bulletin last week that Barnes was going to talk at my church this past Sunday (when I was out of town) - makes me think he's on our side of this issue?

Yes. And we generally don't allow outside groups to reproduce photos from our website.

Brett,

A Public Relations firm in California wants to use a White House photo on their web site. Specifically, McGrath Power Public Relations has a client (Wyse) that attended the Technology Conservation event last Thursday (the President spoke). Apparently Wyse has a product that was featured at the event.

Now the PR firm wants to display the photo on their web site.

http://swoa-05.eop.gov/news/releases/2001/06/20010628-4.html

Thanks

Jimmy

President Bush's Commitment to Immigration Reform

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush visits Ellis Island, where he will participate in a naturalization ceremony for new American citizens.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To help correct this problem, the President today will propose a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. The President has also announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- The President will also announce his support for changes proposed in Congress that will promote family reunification. Family reunification will be a primary component of immigration policy in the Bush Administration.

President Bush & Immigration Policy:

- From 1892 to 1954, more than 12 million immigrants to America came to Ellis Island – mostly from Europe. Today, the face of immigration to America has changed. More immigrants come from Mexico than any other country, and immigrants are coming from more places than ever.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To correct this problem, the President has proposed a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. He has announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- President Bush has also proposed reforming the INS, which has suffered from systemic problems in recent years related to its competing missions and priorities of serving legal immigrants while enforcing immigration laws. Under his plan, the INS would be split into two agencies – one focused on service, the other focused on law enforcement – reporting to a policy leader in the Department of Justice. These changes will allow the INS to better fulfill its core missions.

President Bush's Support for Family Reunification:

- President Bush believes that family reunification should be a fundamental goal of our nation's immigration policy. He has supported a temporary extension of Section 245(i), which allows eligible people to apply for legal residency in the United States without having to first return to their country of origin. Granting this extension will spare families from needless separation while a family member is awaiting their green card.

- President Bush supports efforts in Congress to protect children whose parent passes away while the INS is reviewing their immigration application. Currently, if a parent or "financial sponsor" passes away before an application is processed, the entire process – which can take up to 13 years – begins again. Under the proposal supported by the President, a relative could take up the role of "financial sponsor" for an applicant for permanent residence from a deceased sponsor without having an interruption in the naturalization process for the applicant.

- President Bush also announced his support for changes that protect minor children from bureaucratic problems caused by the INS backlog. The status of individuals seeking to obtain visas under the Immigration and Nationality Act is often dependent on the age of the applicant. Current law classifies an individual's age based on the time the application was processed. For a minor child, the President proposed that their entitlement to a visa should be measured by their age on the date of application, not on the date the INS has finally processed the visa. This change will allow children of U.S. citizens to more easily gain citizenship.

The President's Budget & Immigration Reform:

- President Bush's budget reflects his commitment to reforming our immigration system. It includes:

  - ✓ $100 million for FY02 as part of a five-year, $500 million program to improve processing of immigration applications to reach a six-month standard;
  - ✓ $75 million for FY02 to hire 570 new Border Patrol agents – part of a two-year, $150 million initiative to hire more than 1100 new agents;
  - ✓ $89 million to expand detention capacity and enable swift removal of illegal and criminal aliens, and implement detention standards to ensure that detainees, particularly with pending asylum cases, are treated fairly and respectfully.

President Bush's Commitment to Immigration Reform

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush visits Ellis Island, where he will participate in a naturalization ceremony for new American citizens.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To help correct this problem, the President today will propose a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. The President has also announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- The President will also announce his support for changes proposed in Congress that will promote family reunification. Family reunification will be a primary component of immigration policy in the Bush Administration.

President Bush & Immigration Policy:

- From 1892 to 1954, more than 12 million immigrants to America came to Ellis Island – mostly from Europe. Today, the face of immigration to America has changed. More immigrants come from Mexico than any other country, and immigrants are coming from more places than ever.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To correct this problem, the President has proposed a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. He has announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- President Bush has also proposed reforming the INS, which has suffered from systemic problems in recent years related to its competing missions and priorities of serving legal immigrants while enforcing immigration laws. Under his plan, the INS would be split into two agencies – one focused on service, the other focused on law enforcement – reporting to a policy leader in the Department of Justice. These changes will allow the INS to better fulfill its core missions.

President Bush's Support for Family Reunification:

- President Bush believes that family reunification should be a fundamental goal of our nation's immigration policy. He has supported a temporary extension of Section 245(i), which allows eligible people to apply for legal residency in the United States without having to first return to their country of origin. Granting this extension will spare families from needless separation while a family member is awaiting their green card.

- President Bush supports efforts in Congress to protect children whose parent passes away while the INS is reviewing their immigration application. Currently, if a parent or "financial sponsor" passes away before an application is processed, the entire process – which can take up to 13 years – begins again. Under the proposal supported by the President, a relative could take up the role of "financial sponsor" for an applicant for permanent residence from a deceased sponsor without having an interruption in the naturalization process for the applicant.

- President Bush also announced his support for changes that protect minor children from bureaucratic problems caused by the INS backlog. The status of individuals seeking to obtain visas under the Immigration and Nationality Act is often dependent on the age of the applicant. Current law classifies an individual's age based on the time the application was processed. For a minor child, the President proposed that their entitlement to a visa should be measured by their age on the date of application, not on the date the INS has finally processed the visa. This change will allow children of U.S. citizens to more easily gain citizenship.

The President's Budget & Immigration Reform:

- President Bush's budget reflects his commitment to reforming our immigration system. It includes:

  - ✓ $100 million for FY02 as part of a five-year, $500 million program to improve processing of immigration applications to reach a six-month standard;
  - ✓ $75 million for FY02 to hire 570 new Border Patrol agents – part of a two-year, $150 million initiative to hire more than 1100 new agents;
  - ✓ $89 million to expand detention capacity and enable swift removal of illegal and criminal aliens, and implement detention standards to ensure that detainees, particularly with pending asylum cases, are treated fairly and respectfully.

President Bush's Commitment to Immigration Reform

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush visits Ellis Island, where he will participate in a naturalization ceremony for new American citizens.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To help correct this problem, the President today will propose a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. The President has also announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- The President will also announce his support for changes proposed in Congress that will promote family reunification. Family reunification will be a primary component of immigration policy in the Bush Administration.

President Bush & Immigration Policy:

- From 1892 to 1954, more than 12 million immigrants to America came to Ellis Island – mostly from Europe. Today, the face of immigration to America has changed. More immigrants come from Mexico than any other country, and immigrants are coming from more places than ever.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To correct this problem, the President has proposed a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. He has announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- President Bush has also proposed reforming the INS, which has suffered from systemic problems in recent years related to its competing missions and priorities of serving legal immigrants while enforcing immigration laws. Under his plan, the INS would be split into two agencies – one focused on service, the other focused on law enforcement – reporting to a policy leader in the Department of Justice. These changes will allow the INS to better fulfill its core missions.

President Bush's Support for Family Reunification:

- President Bush believes that family reunification should be a fundamental goal of our nation's immigration policy. He has supported a temporary extension of Section 245(i), which allows eligible people to apply for legal residency in the United States without having to first return to their country of origin. Granting this extension will spare families from needless separation while a family member is awaiting their green card.

- President Bush supports efforts in Congress to protect children whose parent passes away while the INS is reviewing their immigration application. Currently, if a parent or "financial sponsor" passes away before an application is processed, the entire process – which can take up to 13 years – begins again. Under the proposal supported by the President, a relative could take up the role of "financial sponsor" for an applicant for permanent residence from a deceased sponsor without having an interruption in the naturalization process for the applicant.

- President Bush also announced his support for changes that protect minor children from bureaucratic problems caused by the INS backlog. The status of individuals seeking to obtain visas under the Immigration and Nationality Act is often dependent on the age of the applicant. Current law classifies an individual's age based on the time the application was processed. For a minor child, the President proposed that their entitlement to a visa should be measured by their age on the date of application, not on the date the INS has finally processed the visa. This change will allow children of U.S. citizens to more easily gain citizenship.

The President's Budget & Immigration Reform:

- President Bush's budget reflects his commitment to reforming our immigration system. It includes:

  - ✓ $100 million for FY02 as part of a five-year, $500 million program to improve processing of immigration applications to reach a six-month standard;
  - ✓ $75 million for FY02 to hire 570 new Border Patrol agents – part of a two-year, $150 million initiative to hire more than 1100 new agents;
  - ✓ $89 million to expand detention capacity and enable swift removal of illegal and criminal aliens, and implement detention standards to ensure that detainees, particularly with pending asylum cases, are treated fairly and respectfully.

President Bush's Commitment to Immigration Reform

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush visits Ellis Island, where he will participate in a naturalization ceremony for new American citizens.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To help correct this problem, the President today will propose a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. The President has also announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- The President will also announce his support for changes proposed in Congress that will promote family reunification. Family reunification will be a primary component of immigration policy in the Bush Administration.

President Bush & Immigration Policy:

- From 1892 to 1954, more than 12 million immigrants to America came to Ellis Island – mostly from Europe. Today, the face of immigration to America has changed. More immigrants come from Mexico than any other country, and immigrants are coming from more places than ever.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To correct this problem, the President has proposed a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. He has announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- President Bush has also proposed reforming the INS, which has suffered from systemic problems in recent years related to its competing missions and priorities of serving legal immigrants while enforcing immigration laws. Under his plan, the INS would be split into two agencies – one focused on service, the other focused on law enforcement – reporting to a policy leader in the Department of Justice. These changes will allow the INS to better fulfill its core missions.

President Bush's Support for Family Reunification:

- President Bush believes that family reunification should be a fundamental goal of our nation's immigration policy. He has supported a temporary extension of Section 245(i), which allows eligible people to apply for legal residency in the United States without having to first return to their country of origin. Granting this extension will spare families from needless separation while a family member is awaiting their green card.

- President Bush supports efforts in Congress to protect children whose parent passes away while the INS is reviewing their immigration application. Currently, if a parent or "financial sponsor" passes away before an application is processed, the entire process – which can take up to 13 years – begins again. Under the proposal supported by the President, a relative could take up the role of "financial sponsor" for an applicant for permanent residence from a deceased sponsor without having an interruption in the naturalization process for the applicant.

- President Bush also announced his support for changes that protect minor children from bureaucratic problems caused by the INS backlog. The status of individuals seeking to obtain visas under the Immigration and Nationality Act is often dependent on the age of the applicant. Current law classifies an individual's age based on the time the application was processed. For a minor child, the President proposed that their entitlement to a visa should be measured by their age on the date of application, not on the date the INS has finally processed the visa. This change will allow children of U.S. citizens to more easily gain citizenship.

The President's Budget & Immigration Reform:

- President Bush's budget reflects his commitment to reforming our immigration system. It includes:

  - ✓ $100 million for FY02 as part of a five-year, $500 million program to improve processing of immigration applications to reach a six-month standard;
  - ✓ $75 million for FY02 to hire 570 new Border Patrol agents – part of a two-year, $150 million initiative to hire more than 1100 new agents;
  - ✓ $89 million to expand detention capacity and enable swift removal of illegal and criminal aliens, and implement detention standards to ensure that detainees, particularly with pending asylum cases, are treated fairly and respectfully.

President Bush's Commitment to Immigration Reform

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today President Bush visits Ellis Island, where he will participate in a naturalization ceremony for new American citizens.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To help correct this problem, the President today will propose a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. The President has also announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- The President will also announce his support for changes proposed in Congress that will promote family reunification. Family reunification will be a primary component of immigration policy in the Bush Administration.

President Bush & Immigration Policy:

- From 1892 to 1954, more than 12 million immigrants to America came to Ellis Island – mostly from Europe. Today, the face of immigration to America has changed. More immigrants come from Mexico than any other country, and immigrants are coming from more places than ever.

- President Bush is strongly committed to welcoming legal immigrants to the United States and ensuring that our national policies are responsive to legal immigrants and new citizens.

- President Bush is concerned about the backlog of immigration applications at the Immigration and Naturalization Service. It often takes three years to process a typical immigration application or petition. About 635,000 naturalization applications are currently pending. The average immigration application takes 37 months to process in parts of Illinois, 52 months in parts of California, and 69 months in parts of Texas.

- To correct this problem, the President has proposed a universal six-month standard for processing all immigration applications. He has announced a five-year, $500 million dollar effort to improve INS processing to reach the six-month goal.

- President Bush has also proposed reforming the INS, which has suffered from systemic problems in recent years related to its competing missions and priorities of serving legal immigrants while enforcing immigration laws. Under his plan, the INS would be split into two agencies – one focused on service, the other focused on law enforcement – reporting to a policy leader in the Department of Justice. These changes will allow the INS to better fulfill its core missions.

President Bush's Support for Family Reunification:

- President Bush believes that family reunification should be a fundamental goal of our nation's immigration policy. He has supported a temporary extension of Section 245(i), which allows eligible people to apply for legal residency in the United States without having to first return to their country of origin. Granting this extension will spare families from needless separation while a family member is awaiting their green card.

- President Bush supports efforts in Congress to protect children whose parent passes away while the INS is reviewing their immigration application. Currently, if a parent or "financial sponsor" passes away before an application is processed, the entire process – which can take up to 13 years – begins again. Under the proposal supported by the President, a relative could take up the role of "financial sponsor" for an applicant for permanent residence from a deceased sponsor without having an interruption in the naturalization process for the applicant.

- President Bush also announced his support for changes that protect minor children from bureaucratic problems caused by the INS backlog. The status of individuals seeking to obtain visas under the Immigration and Nationality Act is often dependent on the age of the applicant. Current law classifies an individual's age based on the time the application was processed. For a minor child, the President proposed that their entitlement to a visa should be measured by their age on the date of application, not on the date the INS has finally processed the visa. This change will allow children of U.S. citizens to more easily gain citizenship.

The President's Budget & Immigration Reform:

- President Bush's budget reflects his commitment to reforming our immigration system. It includes:

  - ✓ $100 million for FY02 as part of a five-year, $500 million program to improve processing of immigration applications to reach a six-month standard;
  - ✓ $75 million for FY02 to hire 570 new Border Patrol agents – part of a two-year, $150 million initiative to hire more than 1100 new agents;
  - ✓ $89 million to expand detention capacity and enable swift removal of illegal and criminal aliens, and implement detention standards to ensure that detainees, particularly with pending asylum cases, are treated fairly and respectfully.

REVIEW & OUTLOOK

READERS RESPOND

Here's today's political diversity quiz: When is an Hispanic-American not really Hispanic?

Answer: When he's one of President Bush's potential nominees to the U.S. Supreme Court.

We're referring to 39-year-old Miguel Estrada, who immigrated from Honduras at age 17, taught himself English, graduated from Harvard Law, argued cases before the Supreme Court as a deputy in the U.S. Solicitor General's office and is now a private attorney. Mr. Bush has nominated him for a seat on the prestigious D.C. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Miguel Estrada

Judicial pinata

This sounds like an American success story to us. But to some Hispanic liberals, ideology is thicker than skin pigment. You see, Mr. Estrada is a judicial conservative, which means he's the wrong kind of diversity hire.

We came across this splendid logic in a letter that deserves more exposure. It's addressed to Pat Leahy, the new chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, from the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund, or PRLDEF. "As one of the leading legal organizations based in the Hispanic community, we are extremely concerned about Mr. Estrada's nomination," says the letter.

Why? Well, PRLDEF and its president, Juan Figueroa, don't yet know enough about Mr. Estrada to say. "Our investigation," says the letter, "is difficult and proceeding slowly because this nominee has not reduced his opinions to writing."

But give them time. Mr. Figueroa's letter says he has received "reports" about "the nominee's ultra-conservative views." And these reports, though lacking any specifics, suggest he is "totally insensitive to the interests, views and concerns of Hispanics and other minorities in our nation."

The letter continues, again without evidence, that "We have reason to believe that Mr. Estrada may not have the compassion, open mindedness, sensitivity, courtesy, patience and freedom from bias," yada, yada, yada. In short, PRLDEF wants Mr. Leahy to make Mr. Estrada his first judicial pinata.

We called Mr. Figueroa to make sure he was of sound mind when he wrote this, and apparently so. Mr. Estrada doesn't belong to any of the usual liberal Latino groups, Mr. Figueroa told us. Instead he belongs to the Federalist Society, a group of conservative-leaning lawyers that sponsors conferences. "I don't think Latinos have been generally known to be conservative," he said.

So there it is. The only real Latino is a liberal Latino. We wonder what other Hispanic Americans think of this, for example the 61% of them who are pro-life, according to a recent Zogby poll? Or the 80% of them who favor school choice? Maybe it's PRLDEF, with its liberal intolerance, that is out of the Hispanic mainstream.

Not that we know or care what Mr. Estrada believes on these matters. We do know that, although he supports the death penalty, he donated 450 hours to try and spare the life of a condemned murderer in Virginia. And we know that despite his conservatism he represented the National Organization for Women in a case seeking to use the RICO statute against anti-abortion protesters. He won, alas.

But these signs of legal independence don't matter to today's judicial left. They've reduced the law to a scramble for power. Diversity is a tool to be exploited when it's useful but discarded when it's not.

It'd be nice to think Mr. Leahy would rise above this debased politics and give Mr. Estrada an early hearing and vote. But don't hold your breath. Senate Democrats don't want to publicly oppose a Hispanic nominee, but they also don't want to confirm a conservative who's a plausible candidate for the Supreme Court once he's on the D.C. Circuit. We hope Mr. Bush makes the fair treatment of his nominees, Hispanic and otherwise, an issue.
