- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

The President's Initiative to Improve Reading Scores

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Presidential Action – Tuesday, September 11

White House Office of Communications

Message

There is a reading crisis among America's children and President Bush has a bipartisan education reform package to help improve reading scores – especially for disadvantaged children. School has started and Congress needs to finish the job on the President's education reform package.

The President supports increased funding for education – he gave the Department of Education an 11.5% increase and he tripled funding for reading programs. But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Increased funding must be coupled with real reforms that hold schools accountable, increase flexibility and expand parental options.

Alarming Statistics the President Will Discuss Today

Every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

- 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
- Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
- More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

Today's Presidential Action:

- Today the President will visit Emma Booker Elementary School in Sarasota, Florida, where he will point out that every year that we fail to address the reading needs of our students, almost 1.4 million children in fourth grade alone will miss their best opportunity to learn to read well -- that's a number of children:

  - 26 times greater than the population of Sarasota, Florida (53,000)
  - Four times greater than the population of Miami, Florida (362,000)
  - More than the population of the states of Maine or Idaho (each approximately 1.2 million).

According to the latest NAEP data, nationwide:

- An estimated 1,385,500 out of 3.7 million 4th graders (37%) cannot read at a basic level
- Of approximately 525,400 African-American 4th graders, an estimated 328,900 cannot read at a basic level
- Roughly 328,400 of the approximately 562,400 Hispanic 4th graders enrolled in school cannot read at a basic level (58%).
- Among white 4th graders, 667,000 out of approximately 2,434,600 (27%) cannot read at a basic level.

- Increased funding for education is a top priority of the President. He has proposed a $4.6 billion (11.5%) increase in funding for the Department of Education, including a tripling of funding for reading instruction as part of his Reading First initiative.

- But more funding without real reforms will not solve our nation's education challenges. Governments spent $231 billion in combined expenditures on public education at the local, state, and federal level during the 1983-1984 school year (inflation-adjusted figure), and the average nine year-old received a score of 211 on the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) reading exam. During the 1998-1999 school year, more than $388 billion was spent at the local, state, and federal level -- a 68% increase over 1983-1984 -- and the average NAEP reading score among nine year-olds was 212. In other words, despite substantial funding increases, reading scores remained flat.

- More resources must be coupled with real reforms that focus on results for our nation's schoolchildren. Students at schools like Emma Booker Elementary School stand to gain the most from passage of the President's education reform bill – and have the most to lose from unnecessary delay. Most children at Emma Booker come from lower-income, minority background. Nationwide, almost 70% of urban and inner city 4th graders cannot read at a basic level.

The Bush Administration -- Putting Reading First:

- President Bush believes that reading is the cornerstone of a good education, and he is committed to taking the latest research on effective reading programs and getting it into our nation's classrooms. The President has two key reading initiatives.

  - Reading First would provide $900 million a year to help states and local districts implement comprehensive reading instruction grounded in scientifically based reading research in kindergarten through third grade.
  - Early Reading First would provide $75 million to enhance pre-reading skills for children in model Head Start and other preschool programs.

For more information on the President's initiatives please visit www.whitehouse.gov

- Because reading is a critical skill, the President has also proposed that states administer reading assessments to all students in grades 3-8. The tests will enable parents and teachers to diagnose children that are at risk of falling behind in reading, and get them the help when it can be most helpful.

- Yesterday, in Jacksonville, the President announced two new initiatives from the Department of Education to assist parents, teachers, and school administrators in improving the quality of reading instruction in America:

  - Reading Leadership Academies: The Department of Education will sponsor Reading Leadership Academies in at least six regional locations across the country over the next year. The Reading Leadership Academies will be special conferences designed to equip state policymakers and key education leaders throughout the nation with the latest and best knowledge, based on high quality research findings, about effective teaching and learning in reading. The Academies will facilitate quicker and more effective implementation of the President's Reading First and Early Reading First initiatives – ensuring that needed reforms reach the classroom sooner.

  - "Put Reading First" Brochure for Parents: The Partnership for Reading -- a partnership between the U.S. Department of Education, the National Institute for Literacy, and the National Institute for Child Health and Human Development – has translated the findings of the National Reading Panel into an informative brochure to help parents better understand the process by which their children can learn to read. This publication will help parents to identify whether their child's reading program at school is based on solid reading principles – and gives them solid steps they can take to improve their child's ability to read.

- The House and Senate have passed education reform legislation that contains key elements of the President's reading initiative. But these reforms cannot be implemented – and this needed help cannot reach the classroom -- until Congress acts to complete its work on the education bill. The President will continue to urge Congress to complete its work on the education reform bill so America's schoolchildren and teachers can have the tools they need to succeed.

- If Congress acts soon on the education bill, these important reading initiatives can be in place for America's school children when the next school year begins.

Who has WH Counsel's address book on Lotus Notes? If you have it it will be located on the main LN screen (you will have to escape out of your mail log). There will be icons/folders that are labeled such as your personal address book, EOP address book, WAVES (if you have it). Please let me know if you have this folder as soon as possible. Thanks.

Looks like the possibility of retaliatory action, as opposed to preemptive measures, are being discussed at the international level.

You probably have this, but here is the whole provision:

SEC. 106. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not to exceed $10,000,000 of the funds made available in this Act may be used to establish and publicize a program under which publicly advertised, extraordinary rewards may be paid, which shall not be subject to spending limitations contained in sections 3059 and 3072 of title 18, United States Code: Provided, That any reward of $100,000 or more, up to a maximum of $2,000,000, may not be made without the personal approval of the President or the Attorney General and such approval may not be delegated.

Two points seem relevant to me. First, the appropriation is for $10M in funds overall, but I think the maximum reward is$2M.

FYI. This was based on our attorney assignment sheet.

Tim, there may come a point in time when either you or the Judge need to talk to Albert Hawkins in Cabinet Affairs to ensure that we are looped in to this coordination process, if this effort of mine does not accomplish that. (Indeed, Albert mentioned at the meeting that he might want to discuss this organizational matter with the Judge).

For each of the agency assignments on this list, please add a column for name and number of the WHCO attorney responsible for each agency, listed below, so that the lead contact persons know the identity of the relevant lawyer for their agency. (It might also be a good idea to add the WCHO to the list matching communications personnel to agencies as well, or even to have one master list, but that is of course up to you all.) That way, we can all work together and avoid duplicating efforts.

When you can, please recirculate the amended version of the list to us in WHCO, as well as everybody else that needs to have it, so that we all have a copy. Thanks!

she is right about identifying that issue, but my advice is don't answer and just say we are not talking about any legal options; outside experts can educate her on the law and legal options generally, so she does not need our help; moreover, even talking about this kind of issue can pose problems down the road

There is no statutory or regulatory requirement that federal agencies or the White House warn their employees of security threats or provide any particular level of security protection. There are provisions that apply warning duties to particular governmental entities, such as military laboratories, but they do not apply to the White House. There is also an OSHA regulation that states that the head of each agency "shall furnish to each employee employment and a place of employment which are free from recognized hazards that are causing or are likely to cause death or serious physical harm." This regulation, however, is aimed at more traditional safety hazards and has not been construed to require agencies to provide a workplace safe from terrorist attack.

OPM is still checking to see whether any collective bargaining agreements require the government to warn employees of national security threats or maintain security procedures that reduce the likelihood of injury or death from a terrorist attack. Apparently there were efforts to insert such provisions in CBAs after previous terrorist attacks. Obviously, WH employees are not unionized, but some other employees who work in the OEOB, such as the GSA maintenance workers, might well be organized. In any event, OPM thinks it very unlikely that unions were successful in negotiating any such requirements into their CBAs.

Finally, the Civil Division at DOJ (specifically Greg Katsas and his lawyers) concurs that there is minimal risk that the government would be held liable under the Federal Tort Claims Act for injuries resulting from a security lapse in the White House, even the WH was negligent. The question of whether and how to evacuate the WH very likely would fall within the discretionary function exception to the FTCA. Moreover, claims for injuries to any federal officer or employee arising out of federal employment would be covered by the exclusive remedies provided by the Federal Employees Compensation Act (FECA), which is like a workers-comp statute. FECA is administered by DOL, whose administrative decisions are not judicially reviewable.

Per our meeting last night, I will coordinate the preparation of an issue briefing memo from the Judge to Andy Card. The issues to be covered, and those with primary responsibility for delivering the memo contents on those issues, are as follows:

1. Airline liability issues (Brett and Noel);

2. Insurance coverage issues (Courtney);

3. Antitrust exemption for airlines (Courtney);

4. Terrorist asset blocking and/or seizure (Brad).

Each subject should obviously be treated in as much depth as you believe it would be appropriate for the Judge to provide Andy; however, my own opinion is that we should try to have each section be no longer (and preferably shorter) than one single-spaced page of text. The sections should explain the issue, what we've found out, and what, if any, ideas we have about actions we can take. Essentially the memo sections should be like executive summaries of the longer briefing memos some of us are preparing for the Judge on these subjects.

If folks would e-mail me their sections by 4:30 p.m. tomorrow, I'll stitch them together and transmit the finished product to the Judge. Jason, we may need you to do some citechecking on the document in the late afternoon tomorrow. Thanks.

Insert on Airline Tort Liability

The airline industry has submitted proposed legislation that would limit the liability of airlines and airports from lawsuits arising out of the terrorist attack on the World Trade Center. In particular, the legislation would foreclose any federal or state lawsuit brought by or on behalf of any individuals other than the passengers or crews on the airplanes involved in the recent terrorist attack. The net effect of this would be to foreclose all lawsuits brought by or on behalf of the individuals who were on the ground at the time of the attack.

Under applicable law, the airlines and airports are potentially liable for any harm caused to those in the World Trade Center arising out of the airlines' and/or airports' negligence. Any lawsuit brought in connection with the World Trade Center attack would likely be brought under the laws of either New York or Massachusetts, because any security breach that might have occurred would have taken place in Massachusetts (where both flights originated), and the actual harm took place in New York. New York, like all but a small handful of states, applies the negligence standard to damages caused on the ground as a result of an airplane crash. See Faby v. Air France, 449 N.Y.S.2d 1018, 1021 (Civil Ct. 1982); Crist v. Civil Air Patrol, 278 N.Y.S.2d 430, 433-435 (Sup. Ct. 1967); Wood v. United Airlines, 223 N.Y.S.2d 692, 695-698, aff'd., 226 N.Y.S.2d 1022 (App. Div. 2d Dept. 1962). The same appears to be true of Massachusetts according to two federal district court decisions, see Brown v. United States, 230 F. Supp. 774, 776 (1964); Lund v. United States, 104 F. Supp. 756 (1952), though no Massachusetts state court has addressed the issue.

In practice, this means that liability can be established if two steps are met. First, a potential plaintiff would have to demonstrate that the airlines' and/or airports' negligence in maintaining airport security allowed the highjackers to board and highjack the airplanes. Second, the plaintiff would have to demonstrate that the harm to the individuals in the World Trade Center was a foreseeable consequence of that negligence – that it was foreseeable that, as a result of lax security, highjackers would take control of an airplane and intentionally crash it into a building. Whether such lawsuit would be successful would turn on the evidence of negligence that could be adduced in a given case.

There has been some concern expressed that under New Jersey law, airlines and airports would face much higher liability exposure. Were New Jersey law applicable to any lawsuits related to the World Trade Center, this concern would be well founded, for New Jersey is one of a handful of states that holds airlines "absolutely liable" for damages caused on the ground as a result of an airplane crash. See N.J. Stat. § 6:2-7. This is true, moreover, even if the airplane causing the damage was stolen from its owner – a circumstance analogous to damage resulting from a highjacking. See Torchia v. Fisher, 95 N.J. 43, 47 (Sup. Ct. 1983). However, it is very unlikely that New Jersey law would apply to any World Trade Center lawsuits, for, as discussed above, any wrongful conduct related to the World Trade Center took place in New York and/or Massachusetts, not New Jersey. (New Jersey law could, however, apply to lawsuits brought by individuals injured as a result of the attack on the Pentagon, for that flight originated in Newark).

This story is a roadmap for plaintiffs' suits. I would expect plaintiffs' lawyers to focus on the security of the cockpit doors, the failure to do sufficient background checks on passengers, and the failure to screen knives, among other theories. I think the cockpit doors' issue, like the variety of suits against car manufacturers re safety issues over the last 3 decades, could prove quite troublesome for the airlines in court and before juries.

White House reviewing rules governing CIA
September 16, 2001 Posted: 1:53 PM EDT (1753 GMT)
Error! Hyperlink reference not valid.WASHINGTON (CNN) -- Bush administration officials are reviewing all the rules governing CIA and other intelligence activities abroad, ranging from the ban on assassinations to rules mandating that informants be checked for their criminal and human rights records, U.S. Secretary of State Colin Powell told CNN on Sunday.
Powell said the executive order signed in 1976 by President Gerald Ford forbidding assassination "is under review." Critics charge lifting the order would reduce U.S. moral prestige around the world and make U.S. officials from the president down less safe.

Powell said in many respects it will be "an intelligence war ... and a law enforcement war" against the Al Qaeda organization headed by suspected terrorist Osama bin Laden.

U.S. President George W. Bush has named bin Laden as the "prime suspect' in Tuesday's hijacking attacks on New York and Washington that left thousands dead or missing.

Senior Republicans on Capitol Hill told CNN on Wednesday that the rules on checking informants' pasts before hiring them will likely be abolished by legislation, if the executive branch does not act soon.

In a related development Sunday, the chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee said he plans to introduce a bill creating an "Office of Counter-terrorism" at the White House with broad power to direct the federal government's efforts to fight terrorism.

"We need to have someone who has the ability to establish a national program, allocate resources, and be held accountable for our response against terrorism," said Senate Intelligence Chairman Sen. Bob Graham, D-Florida.

The new office would have powers to direct counter-terrorism efforts patterned after the powers the Office of Drug Control Policy has to direct anti-drug efforts, according Paul Anderson, the spokesman for the Senate Intelligence Committee.

The head of the drug office is often referred to as the "drug czar." Anderson said the new office would have "broad budget authority" to direct counter-terrorism efforts by various agencies, including the FBI and the CIA.

Graham said he intends to introduce the legislation as soon as Congress reconvenes on Thursday.

Stung by charges in some quarters of a massive intelligence failure, a U.S. intelligence official said "we didn't win this battle, but we will win the war".

The official said the public does not realize how many "hundreds, possibly thousands" of lives have been saved by counter-terrorism efforts in recent years. Former CIA operatives say changing the rules on assassinations or recruiting will not help against the key problem: how hard it is to penetrate terrorist cells.

However, intelligence officials say more money for additional case officers and with which to pay off informants and agents "could certainly help". House Intelligence Committee Chairman Rep. Porter Goss, R-Florida, told CNN he believes U.S. intelligence has been "underfunded and under-resourced" for a decade.

Sorry. I've asked Ed Whalen to call you to talk about it, but here they are as well.

see also Atmospheric Testing Litig., 820 F.2d at 992 (rejecting challenge based on United States v. Klein, 80 U.S. 128 (1871)). The lower courts also have upheld similar substitute remedy schemes. See, e.g., DiPippa v. United States, 687 F.2d 14, 19 (3d Cir. 1982) (Swine Flu Act); Carr v. United States, 422 F.2d 1007, 1010-12 (4th Cir. 1970 (Federal Drivers Act); see generally Atmospheric Testing Litig., 820 F.2d at 988 ("In a number of other acts, Congress substituted the FTCA remedy against the government for remedies available against private parties, and these acts have been uniformly upheld.").

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK
Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK
Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK
Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

HOSTED BY:

LARRY WORTZEL
Director, Asian Studies Center

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

CAN THE UNITED STATES BRING AN END TO THE CRISIS IN SUDAN?

Featuring

FRANCIS BOL BOK
Escaped Sudanese Slave; Associate, American Anti-Slavery Group

ROGER ROBINSON
Chairman, William J. Casey Institute, Center for Security Policy

NINA SHEA
Director, Center for Religious Freedom, Freedom House

HOSTED BY:

JIM PHILLIPS
Research Fellow, The Heritage Foundation

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

The Heritage Foundation

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO A LECTURE

ON

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK
Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK
Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK
Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK
Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK
Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK
Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK
Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK
Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?

THE NATIONAL SECURITY CRISIS

Featuring

THE HONORABLE BOB LIVINGSTON

Former Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee

HOSTED BY:

MIKE FRANC

Vice President, Government Relations, The Heritage Foundation

In early August, The Heritage Foundation asked Chairman Livingston to share his thoughts on the coming crisis in U.S. defense spending. In the light of last Tuesday's tragic events it has become clear that the real crisis is not just one of dollars, but of how those dollars are spent. If America's armed forces are going to both eradicate the terrorists who perpetrated last week's violent acts, and at the same time ensure the safety of the nation, there must be a comprehensive reconfiguration of the military's offensive and defensive capabilities. Please join us this Thursday as we examine the budgetary and strategic implications the devastation of September 11, 2001 will have on our country's military.

THE PRICE OF SECURITY:
THE BUSH ADMINISTRATION'S CASE FOR INCREASING DEFENSE SPENDING

FEATURING:

DOV ZAKHEIM

Under Secretary of Defense (Comptroller) and
Chief Financial Officer for the Department of Defense

HOSTED BY:

KIM HOLMES

Vice President and Director, Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis
Institute for International Studies

Ten years after the end of the Cold War, the U.S. military is in a condition that eerily resembles its condition in 1980. It suffers from underfunding and low morale, with years of fiscal neglect resulting in aging equipment and substandard living conditions for personnel. Hoping to reverse these dangerous trends, Congress approved a $14 billion increase in defense spending for FY 2002. The Pentagon and the Bush White House, however, assert that $14 billion can't even come close to meeting the overwhelming needs of the U.S. military. Just to stop the decline of the U.S. armed forces the Administration has requested an additional $18 billion in defense spending, bringing the total increase to $32 billion. In the wake of the shrinking budget surplus will Congress agree to the Administration's request? Please join us on September 24, as Undersecretary of Defense Dov Zakheim argues the Administration's case.

FEATURING:

HON. JEANE KIRKPATRICK

Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations

HOSTED BY:

DAN FISK

Deputy Director,
Kathryn and Shelby Cullom Davis Institute for International Studies,
The Heritage Foundation

President Bush delivers his first address at the United Nations on September 24, during the 56th session of the General Assembly. His remarks will establish the framework for the Administration's involvement in the UN at a time of turbulence in the US-UN relationship. To offer insights and perspectives on how the United States can effectively promote its interests in the UN system, we are pleased to present the Honorable Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations during the Reagan Administration, on September 24. Please join us for this timely discussion with Ambassador Kirkpatrick - the US Ambassador who took the "kick me" sign off the United States during another troubled time in the US-UN relationship.

On July 16 2001, the presidents of Russia and China signed the Treaty for Good Neighborliness, Friendship and Cooperation in Moscow. This treaty is the first such agreement between these two Eurasian powers since Mao Tse-tung signed a treaty with Joseph Stalin of the U.S.S.R. in 1950. Six days later, on July 22 2001 in Genoa, Italy, Russian President Vladimir Putin and U.S. President George Bush agreed that a U.S. missile defense could proceed, accompanied by large nuclear arms cuts by both nations. This announcement effectively meant the end of the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The signing of one treaty and the abrogation of the other should signal to the Western world that a major geopolitical shift may be taking place in the Eurasian balance of power, with serious implications for the United States and its alliances. Please join us on September 25th as we examine just what those implications may be.

Sudan's 18-year-old civil war has claimed the lives of more than 2 million people, displaced about 5 million people inside the country, and sent another half-million into exile. In recent years, Sudan's radical Islamic regime, dominated by Muslim Arabs from northern Sudan, has escalated the onslaught against an opposition coalition composed predominantly of black Christians and animists living in the south to genocidal proportions. It has resorted to systematic bombing of civilians, starvation, slavery, ethnic cleansing, religious persecution, and other human rights abuses to break the will of the opposition. Furthermore, the Sudanese dictatorship is on the State Department's list of state sponsors of terrorism and hosted Osama bin Laden, the prime suspect in the recent New York and Washington terrorist attacks, until 1996. What role can the United States play in stopping these atrocities and bringing a stable peace to Sudan?
