Presidential Action – August 3

White House Office of Communications

Message

In his first six months, the President achieved success on each of his key priorities. The President is now looking ahead to his fall agenda of important priorities like reforming education, protecting Social Security and Medicare, helping the disadvantaged, protecting our men and women in uniform, and controlling irresponsible spending.

The First Six Months

The President's leadership is replacing a culture of gridlock and cynicism with a constructive spirit of bipartisan respect and results. In his first six months, the President:

- Is changing the tone in Washington;
- Made education reform our nation's top priority;
- Took immediate action to jump-start our economy by signing tax relief that sends money to consumers when they need it most;
- Won bipartisan legislative victories on key priorities like education reform, patient protections, tax relief, defense, energy, debt reduction and his agenda to help those most in need;
- Broke six years of gridlock on patient protection legislation;
- Restored honest budgeting to Washington; and
- Implemented a visionary foreign policy.

Looking Ahead to a Productive Fall

- Congress needs to finish the President's education reform package as soon as they return. The package holds schools accountable, increases flexibility, expands parental options and funds programs that work.

- The President will hold Congress accountable for living within the generous limits of the responsible budget they passed earlier this year. The President will oppose irresponsible spending, and will protect Medicare, Social Security, our armed forces, and the American taxpayer.

- The Senate should act soon after they return on the President's agenda to rally America's armies of compassion to help those most in need.

- The President will propose creative new policies to tackle some of society's toughest problems to help parents and lift up disadvantaged Americans.

Six Months of Accomplishment

☑	Education	House passed May 23 (384-45); Senate passed June 14 (91-8)
☑	Tax Relief	House passed May 26 (240-154); Senate passed May 26 (58-33); Signed June 7
☑	Community & Faith-Based Agenda	House passed July 19; bipartisan bill introduced in Senate
☑	Patient Protections	House passed August 2; forged bipartisan solution on August 1
☑	Energy	House passed August 1 (240-189); unveiled comprehensive national strategy
☑	Budget	House passed March 28; Senate passed April 6 (65-35); clean supplemental signed
☑	Defense	Congress passed President's quality of life increases for housing, pay and training; President signed on July 24; directed Secretary Rumsfeld to conduct comprehensive defense review.
☑	Prescription Drugs	Unveiled new drug discount card for seniors on July 12; sent Congress Immediate Helping Hand proposal on January 29
☑	Medicare	Unveiled principles for improving Medicare on July 12
☑	Social Security	Appointed bipartisan Commission to Strengthen Social Security on May 2
☑	Trade	Sent Congress international trade agenda on May 10
☑	Economy	Took immediate action to boost our lagging economy by enacting tax relief paying off more than $100 billion in government debt, and pursuing policies to open world markets to American goods and services
☑	New Freedom Initiative	Sent Congress plan to help Americans with disabilities on February 1
☑	Environment	Budget includes historic levels of funding for environmental conservation and protection; ordered Cabinet-level review of climate change and reported initial plans on June 11.
☑	Campaign Finance Reform	Sent Congress plan for reform on March 15
☑	Election Reform	Embraced Ford/Carter National Commission on Federal Election Reform with President Carter on July 31
☑	Racial Profiling	Directed Attorney General to review federal policies – report due this fall
☑	Foreign Policy	Forged important working relationships with Russian President Vladimir Putin and Mexican President Vicente Fox, fostered warm relations with Latin America, and used skillful diplomacy to solve EP-3 accident with China. Met personally with more than 60 world leaders, and visited Mexico, Canada, Spain, Belgium, Sweden, Poland, Slovenia, Kosovo, Italy and England.
☑	Nominations	Made more nominations to the Senate before the August recess than any previous administration; made 44 judicial nominations before the Senate's August recess.

The President accomplished all this – and more – despite having a razor-thin majority in the House and a Senate that is now controlled by the opposition party. By comparison, President Clinton in 1993 enjoyed large majorities (82 seats in the House and 14 seats in the Senate) yet still wasn't able to deliver on his key campaign priorities.

By the Numbers

The President's approval rating has been consistently in the upper 50s since Inauguration. An ABC News/Washington Post poll taken at the end of the first six months shows:

- The President's approval rating is 59%.
- Americans say the President is taking a stronger leadership role than congressional Democrats by 51-38.
- 68% say the President has strong personal character.
- 67% say the President is a strong commander-in-chief.
- 67% say the President has a vision for the future.
- On the issue of education, 63% approve of the President's performance.

The President's First Six Months

The President's leadership is replacing a culture of gridlock and cynicism with a constructive spirit of bipartisan respect and results. In his first six months, the President:

- Changed the tone in Washington;
- Made education our nation's top priority;
- Took immediate action to jump-start our economy by signing tax relief that sends money to consumers right now when they need it most;
- Won key legislative victories on several of his priorities; and
- Implemented a visionary foreign policy.

The President wants the next six months to be even better. The President will soon head home to the heartland to listen to the American people and to talk about the values that unite and sustain America. When the President and Congress return in September, the President wants to achieve bipartisan accomplishments on important priorities like education, helping the disadvantaged, and protecting Social Security and Medicare.

6-Month Review -- Replacing the Culture of Gridlock with Bipartisan Respect & Results

- ☑ Made education America's number one priority.
- ☑ Signed into law the largest tax cut in 20 years, sending refund checks to Americans to help give our economy a boost.
- ☑ Won bipartisan legislative victories on several key priorities, including education, patient protections, debt reduction, tax relief, defense, energy, and his agenda to rally America's armies of compassion to help those most in need.
- ☑ Restored responsible budgeting to Washington.
- ☑ Took immediate action to jumpstart our lagging economy by enacting immediate tax relief, paying down debt and pursuing policies to open world markets to American goods and services.
- ☑ Tackled tough issues like energy, racial profiling, and improving Social Security and Medicare.
- ☑ Helped seniors get needed relief from costly prescription drug bills by unveiling a new prescription drug discount card.
- ☑ Enacted immediate help for our men and women in uniform by sending them money to boost their pay, improve their housing and improve their training.
- ☑ Implemented a visionary foreign policy, gained the return of our crew after the accident with China, met personally with more than 60 world leaders, and visited 10 foreign countries to help strengthen our alliances and spread freedom throughout the world.

White House Office of Communications (202) 456-2777

The President has changed the tone in Washington and is leading with a steady and measured hand. He is focused on his compassionate conservative agenda and is looking ahead to the next six months of bipartisan accomplishments.

Presidential Action – August 3

White House Office of Communications

Message

In his first six months, the President achieved success on each of his key priorities. The President is now looking ahead to his fall agenda of important priorities like reforming education, protecting Social Security and Medicare, helping the disadvantaged, protecting our men and women in uniform, and controlling irresponsible spending.

The First Six Months

The President's leadership is replacing a culture of gridlock and cynicism with a constructive spirit of bipartisan respect and results. In his first six months, the President:

- Is changing the tone in Washington;
- Made education reform our nation's top priority;
- Took immediate action to jump-start our economy by signing tax relief that sends money to consumers when they need it most;
- Won bipartisan legislative victories on key priorities like education reform, patient protections, tax relief, defense, energy, debt reduction and his agenda to help those most in need;
- Broke six years of gridlock on patient protection legislation;
- Restored honest budgeting to Washington; and
- Implemented a visionary foreign policy.

Looking Ahead to a Productive Fall

- Congress needs to finish the President's education reform package as soon as they return. The package holds schools accountable, increases flexibility, expands parental options and funds programs that work.

- The President will hold Congress accountable for living within the generous limits of the responsible budget they passed earlier this year. The President will oppose irresponsible spending, and will protect Medicare, Social Security, our armed forces, and the American taxpayer.

- The Senate should act soon after they return on the President's agenda to rally America's armies of compassion to help those most in need.

- The President will propose creative new policies to tackle some of society's toughest problems to help parents and lift up disadvantaged Americans.

Six Months of Accomplishment

☑	Education	House passed May 23 (384-45); Senate passed June 14 (91-8)
☑	Tax Relief	House passed May 26 (240-154); Senate passed May 26 (58-33); Signed June 7
☑	Community & Faith-Based Agenda	House passed July 19; bipartisan bill introduced in Senate
☑	Patient Protections	House passed August 2; forged bipartisan solution on August 1
☑	Energy	House passed August 1 (240-189); unveiled comprehensive national strategy
☑	Budget	House passed March 28; Senate passed April 6 (65-35); clean supplemental signed
☑	Defense	Congress passed President's quality of life increases for housing, pay and training; President signed on July 24; directed Secretary Rumsfeld to conduct comprehensive defense review.
☑	Prescription Drugs	Unveiled new drug discount card for seniors on July 12; sent Congress Immediate Helping Hand proposal on January 29
☑	Medicare	Unveiled principles for improving Medicare on July 12
☑	Social Security	Appointed bipartisan Commission to Strengthen Social Security on May 2
☑	Trade	Sent Congress international trade agenda on May 10
☑	Economy	Took immediate action to boost our lagging economy by enacting tax relief paying off more than $100 billion in government debt, and pursuing policies to open world markets to American goods and services
☑	New Freedom Initiative	Sent Congress plan to help Americans with disabilities on February 1
☑	Environment	Budget includes historic levels of funding for environmental conservation and protection; ordered Cabinet-level review of climate change and reported initial plans on June 11.
☑	Campaign Finance Reform	Sent Congress plan for reform on March 15
☑	Election Reform	Embraced Ford/Carter National Commission on Federal Election Reform with President Carter on July 31
☑	Racial Profiling	Directed Attorney General to review federal policies – report due this fall
☑	Foreign Policy	Forged important working relationships with Russian President Vladimir Putin and Mexican President Vicente Fox, fostered warm relations with Latin America, and used skillful diplomacy to solve EP-3 accident with China. Met personally with more than 60 world leaders, and visited Mexico, Canada, Spain, Belgium, Sweden, Poland, Slovenia, Kosovo, Italy and England.
☑	Nominations	Made more nominations to the Senate before the August recess than any previous administration; made 44 judicial nominations before the Senate's August recess.

The President accomplished all this – and more – despite having a razor-thin majority in the House and a Senate that is now controlled by the opposition party. By comparison, President Clinton in 1993 enjoyed large majorities (82 seats in the House and 14 seats in the Senate) yet still wasn't able to deliver on his key campaign priorities.

By the Numbers

The President's approval rating has been consistently in the upper 50s since Inauguration. An ABC News/Washington Post poll taken at the end of the first six months shows:

- The President's approval rating is 59%.
- Americans say the President is taking a stronger leadership role than congressional Democrats by 51-38.
- 68% say the President has strong personal character.
- 67% say the President is a strong commander-in-chief.
- 67% say the President has a vision for the future.
- On the issue of education, 63% approve of the President's performance.

The President's First Six Months

The President's leadership is replacing a culture of gridlock and cynicism with a constructive spirit of bipartisan respect and results. In his first six months, the President:

- Changed the tone in Washington;
- Made education our nation's top priority;
- Took immediate action to jump-start our economy by signing tax relief that sends money to consumers right now when they need it most;
- Won key legislative victories on several of his priorities; and
- Implemented a visionary foreign policy.

The President wants the next six months to be even better. The President will soon head home to the heartland to listen to the American people and to talk about the values that unite and sustain America. When the President and Congress return in September, the President wants to achieve bipartisan accomplishments on important priorities like education, helping the disadvantaged, and protecting Social Security and Medicare.

6-Month Review -- Replacing the Culture of Gridlock with Bipartisan Respect & Results

- ☑ Made education America's number one priority.
- ☑ Signed into law the largest tax cut in 20 years, sending refund checks to Americans to help give our economy a boost.
- ☑ Won bipartisan legislative victories on several key priorities, including education, patient protections, debt reduction, tax relief, defense, energy, and his agenda to rally America's armies of compassion to help those most in need.
- ☑ Restored responsible budgeting to Washington.
- ☑ Took immediate action to jumpstart our lagging economy by enacting immediate tax relief, paying down debt and pursuing policies to open world markets to American goods and services.
- ☑ Tackled tough issues like energy, racial profiling, and improving Social Security and Medicare.
- ☑ Helped seniors get needed relief from costly prescription drug bills by unveiling a new prescription drug discount card.
- ☑ Enacted immediate help for our men and women in uniform by sending them money to boost their pay, improve their housing and improve their training.
- ☑ Implemented a visionary foreign policy, gained the return of our crew after the accident with China, met personally with more than 60 world leaders, and visited 10 foreign countries to help strengthen our alliances and spread freedom throughout the world.

White House Office of Communications (202) 456-2777

The President has changed the tone in Washington and is leading with a steady and measured hand. He is focused on his compassionate conservative agenda and is looking ahead to the next six months of bipartisan accomplishments.

Presidential Action – August 3

White House Office of Communications

Message

In his first six months, the President achieved success on each of his key priorities. The President is now looking ahead to his fall agenda of important priorities like reforming education, protecting Social Security and Medicare, helping the disadvantaged, protecting our men and women in uniform, and controlling irresponsible spending.

The First Six Months

The President's leadership is replacing a culture of gridlock and cynicism with a constructive spirit of bipartisan respect and results. In his first six months, the President:

- Is changing the tone in Washington;
- Made education reform our nation's top priority;
- Took immediate action to jump-start our economy by signing tax relief that sends money to consumers when they need it most;
- Won bipartisan legislative victories on key priorities like education reform, patient protections, tax relief, defense, energy, debt reduction and his agenda to help those most in need;
- Broke six years of gridlock on patient protection legislation;
- Restored honest budgeting to Washington; and
- Implemented a visionary foreign policy.

Looking Ahead to a Productive Fall

- Congress needs to finish the President's education reform package as soon as they return. The package holds schools accountable, increases flexibility, expands parental options and funds programs that work.

- The President will hold Congress accountable for living within the generous limits of the responsible budget they passed earlier this year. The President will oppose irresponsible spending, and will protect Medicare, Social Security, our armed forces, and the American taxpayer.

- The Senate should act soon after they return on the President's agenda to rally America's armies of compassion to help those most in need.

- The President will propose creative new policies to tackle some of society's toughest problems to help parents and lift up disadvantaged Americans.

Six Months of Accomplishment

☑	Education	House passed May 23 (384-45); Senate passed June 14 (91-8)
☑	Tax Relief	House passed May 26 (240-154); Senate passed May 26 (58-33); Signed June 7
☑	Community & Faith-Based Agenda	House passed July 19; bipartisan bill introduced in Senate
☑	Patient Protections	House passed August 2; forged bipartisan solution on August 1
☑	Energy	House passed August 1 (240-189); unveiled comprehensive national strategy
☑	Budget	House passed March 28; Senate passed April 6 (65-35); clean supplemental signed
☑	Defense	Congress passed President's quality of life increases for housing, pay and training; President signed on July 24; directed Secretary Rumsfeld to conduct comprehensive defense review.
☑	Prescription Drugs	Unveiled new drug discount card for seniors on July 12; sent Congress Immediate Helping Hand proposal on January 29
☑	Medicare	Unveiled principles for improving Medicare on July 12
☑	Social Security	Appointed bipartisan Commission to Strengthen Social Security on May 2
☑	Trade	Sent Congress international trade agenda on May 10
☑	Economy	Took immediate action to boost our lagging economy by enacting tax relief paying off more than $100 billion in government debt, and pursuing policies to open world markets to American goods and services
☑	New Freedom Initiative	Sent Congress plan to help Americans with disabilities on February 1
☑	Environment	Budget includes historic levels of funding for environmental conservation and protection; ordered Cabinet-level review of climate change and reported initial plans on June 11.
☑	Campaign Finance Reform	Sent Congress plan for reform on March 15
☑	Election Reform	Embraced Ford/Carter National Commission on Federal Election Reform with President Carter on July 31
☑	Racial Profiling	Directed Attorney General to review federal policies – report due this fall
☑	Foreign Policy	Forged important working relationships with Russian President Vladimir Putin and Mexican President Vicente Fox, fostered warm relations with Latin America, and used skillful diplomacy to solve EP-3 accident with China. Met personally with more than 60 world leaders, and visited Mexico, Canada, Spain, Belgium, Sweden, Poland, Slovenia, Kosovo, Italy and England.
☑	Nominations	Made more nominations to the Senate before the August recess than any previous administration; made 44 judicial nominations before the Senate's August recess.

The President accomplished all this – and more – despite having a razor-thin majority in the House and a Senate that is now controlled by the opposition party. By comparison, President Clinton in 1993 enjoyed large majorities (82 seats in the House and 14 seats in the Senate) yet still wasn't able to deliver on his key campaign priorities.

By the Numbers

The President's approval rating has been consistently in the upper 50s since Inauguration. An ABC News/Washington Post poll taken at the end of the first six months shows:

- The President's approval rating is 59%.
- Americans say the President is taking a stronger leadership role than congressional Democrats by 51-38.
- 68% say the President has strong personal character.
- 67% say the President is a strong commander-in-chief.
- 67% say the President has a vision for the future.
- On the issue of education, 63% approve of the President's performance.

The President's First Six Months

The President's leadership is replacing a culture of gridlock and cynicism with a constructive spirit of bipartisan respect and results. In his first six months, the President:

- Changed the tone in Washington;
- Made education our nation's top priority;
- Took immediate action to jump-start our economy by signing tax relief that sends money to consumers right now when they need it most;
- Won key legislative victories on several of his priorities; and
- Implemented a visionary foreign policy.

The President wants the next six months to be even better. The President will soon head home to the heartland to listen to the American people and to talk about the values that unite and sustain America. When the President and Congress return in September, the President wants to achieve bipartisan accomplishments on important priorities like education, helping the disadvantaged, and protecting Social Security and Medicare.

6-Month Review -- Replacing the Culture of Gridlock with Bipartisan Respect & Results

- ☑ Made education America's number one priority.
- ☑ Signed into law the largest tax cut in 20 years, sending refund checks to Americans to help give our economy a boost.
- ☑ Won bipartisan legislative victories on several key priorities, including education, patient protections, debt reduction, tax relief, defense, energy, and his agenda to rally America's armies of compassion to help those most in need.
- ☑ Restored responsible budgeting to Washington.
- ☑ Took immediate action to jumpstart our lagging economy by enacting immediate tax relief, paying down debt and pursuing policies to open world markets to American goods and services.
- ☑ Tackled tough issues like energy, racial profiling, and improving Social Security and Medicare.
- ☑ Helped seniors get needed relief from costly prescription drug bills by unveiling a new prescription drug discount card.
- ☑ Enacted immediate help for our men and women in uniform by sending them money to boost their pay, improve their housing and improve their training.
- ☑ Implemented a visionary foreign policy, gained the return of our crew after the accident with China, met personally with more than 60 world leaders, and visited 10 foreign countries to help strengthen our alliances and spread freedom throughout the world.

White House Office of Communications (202) 456-2777

The President has changed the tone in Washington and is leading with a steady and measured hand. He is focused on his compassionate conservative agenda and is looking ahead to the next six months of bipartisan accomplishments.

JOHN MCLAUGHLIN'S "ONE ON ONE" GUEST: KENNETH STARR
SUBJECT: SUPREME COURT SESSION TAPED: FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 2001 BROADCAST:
WEEKEND OF AUGUST 4-5, 2001 Copyright ¸2001 by Federal News Service, Inc.,

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Starr power! Watershed rulings; that's what the Supreme Court handed down last term. A ban on tobacco advertising within one-fifth of a mile of school grounds was ruled unconstitutional. The use of a golf cart in a PGA tournament by handicapped Casey Martin ruled permissible, as is bible study on public school grounds after hours. It's okay.

But the high court left many questions unanswered. The White House wants a ruling on whether Cleveland, Ohio's school voucher program is constitutional, and whether the death penalty for retarded convicts should be prohibited.

Question: Has public confidence in the Supreme Court after the Florida election decision lessened, grown or stayed the same? We'll put these matters to the man defending Ohio's school voucher program, Judge Kenneth Starr.

(Announcements.)

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Judge Starr, welcome.

MR. STARR: Thank you.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Before we get to the rulings of the United States Supreme Court during this past session, let me ask you about capital punishment, in view of the wide publicity it received in the instance of the Timothy McVeigh execution. What are your thoughts about capital punishment?

MR. STARR: It's clearly constitutional. The Constitution, by its text, contemplates it, including in the Bill of Rights.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What text is that?

MR. STARR: The Fifth Amendment in the Bill of Rights contemplates capital punishment. There are other provisions in the text of the Constitution that talk about capital offenses and the rights in capital offenses, which means the death penalty. So it really becomes much more of a policy issue, as well as is the penalty being administered in a way that is arbitrary or capricious and the like, because that could run afoul of some other provisions, other guarantees in the Constitution of basic due process and fairness.

But in terms of capital punishment itself, it is contemplated by the Constitution and therefore becomes a policy question, public policy question as to whether states or the Congress want capital punishment in the system of justice.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What about the possibility of making a mistake, executing the wrong person?

MR. STARR: It's one of the basic arguments against capital punishment, that it's inevitable that a mistake will be made. But there are frequently instances where there is no serious question of guilt, where the offense is heinous. And what the Supreme Court has said is that when the penalty matches the offense, a particularly aggravated offense, then if society wants it, there is no constitutional prohibition against a state or the Congress having it.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Do you favor the unlimited use of DNA in order to establish guilt or innocence?

MR. STARR: Well, I certainly favor the use of DNA. "Unlimited," I think there has to be some sort of showing as to the basis. It shouldn't be simply as a matter of absolute right no matter what the circumstances are. But I think it's an important check, yes. I think it's a useful tool.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Some say that there's no proof that capital punishment has any deterrent value. Should the issue of capital punishment be resolved on the basis of whether it deters other crimes?

MR. STARR: It's an element, but I think there may very well be just a sense of moral justice, the moral sense of the community as to what's appropriate. For example, terrible war crimes. I think there was a sense, at least at the time at the end of World War II, that the crimes were so heinous that any punishment less than capital punishment really just was not appropriate. It wasn't commensurate with the nature and gravity of the offense.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Are we now talking about retributed justice, retribution?

MR. STARR: Absolutely.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Do you think that's neglected in the whole consideration of capital punishment, retribution?

MR. STARR: I don't know if it's neglected. I think that's part of the reason that society has chosen to have it, that it seems fair and right to have the punishment that matches the offense; you know, the ancient admonition of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a truth.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Retribution is not vengeance; is that correct?

MR. STARR: That is correct. It is punishment. It is what an appropriate punishment is that society determines it for a very serious offense.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: As deemed by society? What about as deemed by the criminal? Would the criminal -- not have to concur, but is the expectation of the criminal that he will be -- that his life will be taken because of the heinousness, the abomination of the crime, and that he should -- he logically will not wish to die, but he also can logically see that it is fit that he die because of the crime that he has willingly, with full awareness, committed? Correct?

MR. STARR: Well, that is correct. And there may be a sense on the part of the criminal that he does not want to spend the rest of his life without the possibility of parole. He may view that as an inhumane punishment, to be deprived of liberty for however many years with no possibility, no possibility of parole.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: This is a tortured question, and the Catholic Church has done an about-face on it. Up until this current pope -- and I'm not sure it originated with him at the outset of his career as pope -- the Catholic Church had held theologically that capital punishment is okay, and it appealed, among other aspects, to the retributive justice involved.

The man who prosecuted the Manson family, what's his name?

MR. STARR: I forget who the prosecutor was, yeah.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Was it Bugliosi?

MR. STARR: Yeah, I think that's right, yeah.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Now, he gets into this aspect of it and there is both theory and case studies that appeal to and explain the nature of retribution, which is not vengeance, and is an element in the consideration. But you don't hear about it. You hear about vengeance, you hear about no deterrence, you hear about this is unfit. And the European Union now, to gain acceptance to the European Union, individual nations have to rid themselves of any capital punishment. That's how strong this movement has become.

So is it -- your view is that that is an unenlightened projection of politics, political judgment, public policy?

MR. STARR: Well, I think it's tough in any union, and that's why it seems to me sensible our union contemplates different states coming to different views. I'm not saying that it's an unenlightened view to say we will not have capital punishment. I view that as simply an exercise of a democratic process. What I think is objectionable is the inability of the people to make that judgment themselves as a matter of policy and to, frankly, determine well, let's see what life is like without capital punishment; perhaps we'll be better off. Minnesota, for example, did not have capital punishment for a long time.

But I was trained by Chief Justice Warren Burger years ago who said privately that if he were a legislator, he would vote against capital punishment.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Why did he say that?

MR. STARR: He had doubts as to its efficacy, and I think he had moral concerns about it.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Well, we're talking deterrence there.

MR. STARR: That's correct. But he --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: On the moral side, he attacked it from a moral point of view?

MR. STARR: I didn't say he attacked it, just he had doubts. So he did not think that he would vote in favor of it as a legislator.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What is the nature of the immorality of capital punishment, when you are preserving justice, particularly retributive justice?

MR. STARR: I think thoughtful people can say, "I do not want the state, leaving just wars aside, a purely self-defense mechanism, to be knowingly taking life. Life is too precious, it is too sacred to take." I think that's a perfectly reasonable moral view.

My point is the limited one, but I think it's an important one, that democracy, a representative democracy, those judgments should be made by the people. And the problem with these kinds of mechanisms that superimpose a view -- you talked about the European Union; that means a constituent country can't come to its own self-governance view, and I think that's really unfortunate. That's part of the genius of our plan.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Turkey right now, the nation of Turkey, is ridding itself of capital punishment, and this is deemed by the European -- members of the European Community as an enlightened procedure.

But there are a lot of angles to this question. And there is statistical data, not withstanding the common sociological, what I think is a myth, that it does not have deterrent value, I think that an analysis of statistical data, particularly in our own American history, does show that there is a receding of the heinous kind of crimes for which capital punishment is called for during the times when it has been in existence, when the court has -- the Supreme Court has approved it.

But let's move on.

There were a lot of serious rulings in the Supreme Court in this past session. There's first of all a ruling on tobacco, which is quite interesting, and the ruling was that Massachusetts law that places a ban on tobacco outdoor advertising within 1,000 feet of schools, playgrounds and other places that kids congregate, and limits to placement of cigarettes -- ads within convenience stores, that law is unconstitutional.

MR. STARR: Right.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What's the basis for the ruling of the court?

MR. STARR: The idea that Congress has already acted, that Congress has acted very comprehensively in the area of tobacco regulation and tobacco advertising and that there is simply no room for the states under those circumstances. If Congress hadn't acted --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Good ruling?

MR. STARR: I think it's a sound ruling. I do.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Religion in the classroom. A couple of good -- couple of rulings, prayer and Bible class after school. What was the nature of the Santa Fe prayer ruling?

MR. STARR: Well, the Santa Fe prayer ruling from a term ago was prayer at a football game, and that that could not, in fact, be carried out under the particular circumstances there, where there was involvement by the school officials. Here the after hours, which is what this Good News Bible Club case was all about this term, was to the effect that after school hours, completely voluntarily with the consent of the parents, elementary school kids could participate in this club, along with other clubs. They could go do some other club activity if they wanted to. But it should be treated -- the idea was one of equality; you should not discriminate, school system, against a religious club but say the chess club is okay; treat everybody alike.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: So they can, if they so wish, after school they can read stories from the Bible.

MR. STARR: Absolutely.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Does the court seem to discriminate very carefully between what you do during school hours and what you do after school?

MR. STARR: Yes, because of the -- and we're, of course, only talking about public schools --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Right.

MR. STARR: -- and the coercive effect that the court is very concerned about in terms of freedom of conscience.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: A good ruling?

MR. STARR: A very good ruling.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Now, in the Santa Fe instance, they were upholding or letting stand an Alabama ruling; is that correct?

MR. STARR: That's correct.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: And what did the Alabama ruling say?

MR. STARR: Well, the Alabama ruling, although it was a different set of facts, had to do with the moment of silence that was enforced by the state, and the court condemned the moment of silence in --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: At a football game?

MR. STARR: No, that wasn't a football game, that was an earlier case involving a statewide legislation involving a moment of silence. The football game was entirely the result of an independent school district in one locality in Texas. But again, the court's concern was that school officials were involved as opposed to being entirely voluntary on the part of the students.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Does this void the ruling in Santa Fe?

MR. STARR: No.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: It does not.

MR. STARR: It does not, simply because, again, the distinction between activity that the school officials themselves are involved with in promoting the prayer, on the one hand, and simply allowing the parents and the children after school hours to conduct themselves in the way that they want to.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: A disabled golfer, Casey Martin, using a golf cart in a PGA tournament.

MR. STARR: Right.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Court ruled what?

MR. STARR: The court ruled that there had to be an accommodation on the part of the PGA to allow Casey Martin to use --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Good ruling?

MR. STARR: Well, I think it's a tough ruling, frankly.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: How would you have ruled?

MR. STARR: I'd rather that it had come out the other way; that is to say, that the PGA had rules, there was a reason --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: It was a five to seven distinction -- ruling.

MR. STARR: Yeah, it was --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Scalia and Thomas voted against the ruling.

MR. STARR: Yeah, and --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: They ruled against the cart.

MR. STARR: That's right. They ruled against the cart. What they really ruled in favor of was the PGA should be able to determine its own set of rules, and it was applying those rules.

Now, should the PGA, as a matter of the PGA's own policy, have allowed it? I think there, you could really -- because there was a lot of testimony from the --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What about the public accommodations angle to this? There was a public accommodations basis for the majority ruling, as I understood it.

MR. STARR: That's correct.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: And Scalia repudiated that.

MR. STARR: That's correct.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: He said there's no -- the compassion that is being read into public accommodation is unwarranted. Correct?

MR. STARR: That was an interpretation of that specific term, and hefelt that the court had gone too far; it was too expansive in --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: The court ruled on mentally retarded executions; executions of mentally retarded. Did it rule, or did it --

MR. STARR: Well, that's coming up next term.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Coming up next term. They blocked the execution of a triple murderer in Alabama, pending a review.

MR. STARR: Right. Right. They --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Do you favor the blocking?

MR. STARR: I don't know enough about the facts. But the key thing is, for the first time in some years the court is going to take a look at whether it is -- the specific facts of that case aside -- whether it is constitutional to execute the mentally retarded. I think it's a tough question.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: We'll be right back with Judge Ken Starr.

(Announcements.)

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: In a still unheard-of hypothesis, what would Democratic critics in the U.S. Senate do if President George Bush were to nominate Kenneth W. Starr to the Supreme Court? We'll put that question to Judge Starr himself, but first here is his distinguished profile:

Born: Vernon, Texas. Fifty-four years of age. Wife: Alice. Three children. McLean Bible Church. Republican.

George Washington University, B.A. Brown University, M.A. Duke University, doctor of laws. Order of the Coif.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, law clerk to, two years.

Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, a private law practice, partner, four years.

U.S. Attorney General William French Smith, counselor to, three years.

U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, judge, six years.

U.S. Department of Justice, solicitor general of the United States, four years.

Kirkland & Ellis, partner, a private law practice, eight years and currently.

Independent counsel, Clinton Whitewater investigation, five years.

Hobbies: horseback riding, tennis, jogging.

(Kenneth) Winston Starr.

Over the course of your distinguished career, you have been solicitor general, and that is regarded by some as a natural springboard to the high court. Suppose President Bush nominated you to the high court. What would be the scenario?

MR. STARR: I think it would be a very lively confirmation hearing.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What would you mean by that? What -- where would your opponents go? Could you be Borked?

MR. STARR: I suppose anyone can. But I would tend to think that there would be a fair amount of interest in focusing on what my family and I call "the recent unpleasantness." It was so unpleasant for the country that people say, "Gee, but" --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Well, how does that --

MR. STARR: -- "we need to really look at that and look at the judgment that was exercised there."

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: How did that affect your -- the judgment exercised?

MR. STARR: Yeah.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: And that's how they get into your juridical status or standing?

MR. STARR: I -- yeah, I would tend to think so.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: And what would they conclude?

MR. STARR: I think it would be an ultimate political position, but in each instance along the way we, I believe, conducted the investigation honorably and ethically, in accordance with law, and under fairly difficult circumstances.

So -- but I would hope that it would actually be -- I mean, this is very hypothetical --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Well, let's say that they assume --

MR. STARR: -- (off mike) -- be on the law.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What was that again?

MR. STARR: I said I would hope that the issues would be on the law. But you've asked me to make a prediction.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Well, do you think that the country would accept that, the country would accept the Congress --

MR. STARR: I don't --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: -- your opponents in the Congress, your critics in the Congress taking the position that President Clinton is now taking in some of his exit interviews. I'll read you a little summary of that. He's written -- or he's given exit interviews for a variety of magazines, and he's made clear his view that he had done a service for the nation by fighting impeachment, that the Constitution never intended offenses such as his to be impeachable, and that he therefore strengthened our constitutional order by -- order in defeating you. What do you say to that argument?

MR. STARR: Well, first of all, it was not a question, in our judgment, of defeat. We simply lived up to our obligation under --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: You gained indictments and convictions in Whitewater, did you not?

MR. STARR: I'm sorry to say that we found evidence of criminal activity, and so we went forward.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: How many were convicted?

MR. STARR: Thirteen.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Thirteen. So that's quite a significant achievement, is it not?

MR. STARR: Well, I don't view it as an achievement. I view it we had to do what the evidence showed. I would have been very happy to have arrived in Little Rock and found no evidence of criminality, I would have been very happy, could have, you know, carried on with my life and world. But that was not what was destined to be.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Well, the president sees it a personal victory for himself. And you find that -- do you find that incredible?

MR. STARR: I'm not going to characterize or respond to any observations.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Were you surprised to see any names show up on his midnight pardons list?

MR. STARR: Well, I've not commented publicly, and I think I'm going to continue not commenting publicly.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Well, let me ask you this; did you see any evidence that the president pardoned many who were indicted and convicted as a result of independent counsel probes, including those probes and indictments of Donald Smaltz, and Clinton may have been using his presidential pardon to effectively undo the hard work done by independent counsel probes of his presidency?

MR. STARR: Well, except that there was not a consistent pattern there. For example, he did not pardon former governor Jim Guy Tucker of Arkansas; he did not pardon former associate attorney general and chief justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court Webster Hubbell. So some he did, and others he did not. So --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: He pardoned Susan McDougal.

MR. STARR: He did. He did.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: And do you --

MR. STARR: But the only other person -- excuse me for interrupting -- who was convicted in that trial was Governor Tucker, and he did not -- excuse me -- Mr. McDougal, but Mr. McDougal is deceased.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Did these pardons of the individuals who were pardoned, who were connected with your independent counsel investigation, and perhaps Independent Counsel Smaltz, were they evidence to you, or indications to you that the pardons were pay-offs for a coverup? Did Clinton reward those who withheld potentially damaging information from the investigation?

MR. STARR: I'm not going to characterize it.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: We'll be right back.

(Announcements.)

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: I'm still intrigued by what your Democratic opponents in the United States Senate would do with you as a nominee of George W. Bush. I think it's unlikely that he would send you, but this president is quite gutsy in taking his stands that he believes in.

MR. STARR: Well, I would hope that any confirmation hearing would really return -- and some of the confirmation hearings really have been very -- have been very elevated, to talk about what is it that we want in a judge or a justice. And, obviously, you're asking me this wonderfully hypothetical question, so thinking hypothetically, I would hope that the country would say, "Could we please focus on the real relevant issues and" --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Yeah, this is almost -- it's almost hilariously hypothetical to think of you being nominated. Nevertheless --

MR. STARR: (Chuckles.) Thanks for the compliment!

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: -- what position are the Democratic opponents going to do in that instance?

MR. STARR: Well that I don't know.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What they would do is reductively have to defend Clinton in order to attack you, because juridically and legally, your standing is good as solicitor general and elsewhere. Is that not true?

MR. STARR: Well, but when you go back and --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Now, they attacked Robert Bork because Robert Bork was too conservative for them. Would you be vulnerable on those grounds, the Bork grounds?

MR. STARR: Others will have to judge that. But on --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Not that he was vulnerable -- he was vulnerable to political attack. That's what I mean.

MR. STARR: Yeah. Bob -- Bob Bork, who is a very good friend of mine, and whom I have the highest regard for, was attacked not on his judicial opinions or his service as solicitor general, it was entirely, "In a Law Review article you did this. You expect us to --"

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Would you be vulnerable on those grounds? Could they dig out something and shake it hard enough to make something fall out against you?

MR. STARR: Others would have to say, John.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Thanks so much for being my guest.

MR. STARR: My pleasure.

END OF REGULAR SEGMENT

PBS SEGMENT

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: In a poll done in January of this year, after the Florida imbroglio and the ruling of the United States Supreme Court, a question was asked about the way people felt about the Supreme Court, and the broad conclusion is that there is -- two surveys indicate Americans overall show little change in their confidence in the U.S. Supreme Court following its controversial ruling in Bush v. Gore. Then it gets into some particulars, and it shows that Democrats dropped about 3 percent in their approval, Republicans picked up about -- well more here. I don't want to get into too much detail. It looks like 48 percent -- an increase in confidence from 48 percent to something slightly higher. I can't find the number.

But what do you think of that?

MR. STARR: I'm not surprised. The court has, I think, a tremendous amount of respect from the American people. And I think that their taking the Bush v. Gore opinion, handling it the way they did, very quickly, very promptly, and in a way that I think shows -- whether you agree or disagree with it, it's a principled decision and --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Do you think the public is saying it was a correct intrusion of the court -- a correct involvement of the court?

MR. STARR: Well, everything was a mess, an absolute mess in Florida, and it was going on and on. And the court stepped in at the request of one of the candidates, and the court unanimously stepped in in round one. I think that's frequently forgotten. They said unanimously that this matter should go back to the Florida Supreme Court and get it right.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Right. Right.

MR. STARR: And then -- then it was really a terrible situation thereafter when the Florida Supreme Court fragmented 4 to 3, and the court, the Supreme Court was then placed in a very difficult position. It handled a difficult position very well.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: On vouchers, you're taking a -- you're playing a role in the current vouchers issues review, correct? What are you doing, and what's going to happen?

MR. STARR: We're advising the Ohio attorney general, who is defending the Cleveland school choice program enacted --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Which is what?

MR. STARR: It's enacted by the Ohio legislature to provide a comprehensive set of opportunities for schoolchildren in the Cleveland school system, which has been a failing system, and to give them a set of opportunities that includes tutoring. And it also includes opportunities to go to a school by choice, whether religiously affiliated or entirely secular, that will provide the needs of that child.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: You're defending the plan?

MR. STARR: I am.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Before the Supreme Court?

MR. STARR: Yes. I mean, I am assisting the -- the Ohio attorney general is defending the plan. I'm assisting.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: How strong is the case that's going to be presented to the court, and what's the court going to rule?

MR. STARR: Well, we don't know whether the court's going to take the case. I think the case is very strong. It's very similar to the Wisconsin case. Former Governor, now Secretary of HHS Tommy --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What's the basic principle on which it's based?

MR. STARR: The basic principle is the idea that the Ohio legislature or a state legislature should be able to fashion a comprehensive education policy that provides parents the opportunities to do what's best for their children.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Does this back into separation of church and state?

MR. STARR: That's the issue. Does it violate the establishment clause for the Ohio legislature or any other legislature to include religious schools?

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: How do you skirt that? How do you skirt the objection? How do you handle the objection?

MR. STARR: The objection should be responded to this way: that the Ohio legislature or the Wisconsin legislature is simply trying to make all avenues of opportunity available to it and not artificially foreclose any school opportunity that --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: That seems to be more tangential than essential to the point of whether the state is indoctrinating a specific religion by supporting the child in a religious school.

MR. STARR: Wrong. It's not tangential at all. It is the state simply saying to parents, "You choose. We're not telling you how to choose, but we're also not going to artificially cabin your choice and say you cannot choose a very fine school that you think is right for your child."

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What freedom is the rooted in -- the freedom of the parents to choose the school that they think appropriate for their children?

MR. STARR: That, but it's also rooted --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: What freedom?

MR. STARR: It's also rooted in the equality principle that we talked about in that Good News case. Don't discriminate. Don't say that Catholic schools or Lutheran schools or Hindu schools can't be included in the providers of the service of education.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: So that it cannot then be said that the state is fostering any individual denomination?

MR. STARR: Correct. As long as you're treating all schools the same and then it's the parents who make the --

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Do you think that'll stand up under the rigorous analysis the Supreme Court will expose it to?

MR. STARR: It should, and I hope it will.

MR. MCLAUGHLIN: Good luck.

MR. STARR: Thank you.

Some Veterans Affairs (VA) officials came over today and met with Cabinet Affairs, DPC, and NSC to explain their views. I was called in to the meeting because I am the VA guy in our office. Nothing of substance happened other than the NSC guy (someone other than Bellinger) explaining to VA the basis for the US Government's position and why that position was not going to change. If anything further happens on this VA angle (which I doubt), I will refer to you two. Thanks.

DRAFT
Hawaii Guidelines

The law requires that the government be reimbursed for the costs associated with travel to political events -- except the government need not be reimbursed for (i) costs for the travel of those who are "required in the performance of his or her duties to accompany or assist the person engaging in the political activity" and (ii) costs of "special security arrangements for the person engaging in the political activity, including special transportation vehicles or methods." 5 C.F.R. 734.503.

Applying these general principles requires attention to "the facts and circumstances" of each trip. Id. For the mixed official/political trip by air to Hawaii that will occur as a separate leg of an otherwise all-official trip, the government must be reimbursed for the appropriate portion of the costs of airfare to and from Hawaii, accommodations in Hawaii, food in Hawaii, and other expenses in Hawaii for those officials who engage in political activity in Hawaii and for any other officers or employees who are not considered official travelers. The appropriate allocation will be determined by calculating "total activity time" in Hawaii, which is the sum of "official activity time" and "political activity time". The percentage of political activity time is then multiplied by the "total reimbursable cost" that the political entity would have reimbursed to the government were the entire Hawaii trip political. That "total reimbursable cost" includes the costs incurred by the relevant officials for accommodations, food, and incidental costs in Hawaii, as well as commercial airfare to and from Hawaii. However, any costs that are attributable to security arrangements (for example, extra hotel rooms or security cars) are considered official and are not part of the "total reimbursable cost."

The Office of Management and Administration and the RNC will coordinate with the local political or campaign committee to ensure appropriate allocation, payment, and reimbursement for the costs associated with such political activity. Any questions with respect to allocation can be directed to the Office of Counsel to the President.

The first six people to respond to this email by replying to me get to go. Here are the details.

Each division can send as many as six people to an event with Lance Armstrong today at 3:30 in Room 450 of OEOB. You would have to arrive at 3:00 pm - the event will last about 30 minutes so you won't be out until around 4:00.

Lance is doing another event in the East Room at 2:30 but this is not open to the staff - it is for kids only.

If you don't know who Lance is you don't get to go...

This looks good except that it should be clear that Political Affairs is responsible for getting an engagement letter in place prior to the trip, as well as communicating that all site costs are to be paid in kind. This engagement letter should include the requested deposit amount from the host and should indicate that the host needs to get that deposit to Jay Banning at the RNC. I believe you were in on that round of emails that circulated among Vickers, Ken and others with a draft letter and procedure attached, but please let me know if either of you need copies again. The procedures portion of that email needs updating (that's in my court), but I think the letter is in fairly good shape. David, you should be able to just add some trip specific info. and circulate.

If y'all have any questions, please let me know.

Thanks,
Merrill

DRAFT
Hawaii Guidelines

The law requires that the government be reimbursed for the costs associated with travel to political events -- except the government need not be reimbursed for (i) costs for the travel of those who are "required in the performance of his or her duties to accompany or assist the person engaging in the political activity" and (ii) costs of "special security arrangements for the person engaging in the political activity, including special transportation vehicles or methods." 5 C.F.R. 734.503.

Applying these general principles requires attention to "the facts and circumstances" of each trip. Id. For the mixed official/political trip by air to Hawaii that will occur as a separate leg of an otherwise all-official trip, the government must be reimbursed for the appropriate portion of the costs of airfare to and from Hawaii, accommodations in Hawaii, food in Hawaii, and other expenses in Hawaii for those officials who engage in political activity in Hawaii and for any other officers or employees who are not considered official travelers. The appropriate allocation will be determined by calculating "total activity time" in Hawaii, which is the sum of "official activity time" and "political activity time". The percentage of political activity time is then multiplied by the "total reimbursable cost" that the political entity would have reimbursed to the government were the entire Hawaii trip political. That "total reimbursable cost" includes the costs incurred by the relevant officials for accommodations, food, and incidental costs in Hawaii, as well as commercial airfare to and from Hawaii. However, any costs that are attributable to security arrangements (for example, extra hotel rooms or security cars) are considered official and are not part of the "total reimbursable cost."

The Office of Management and Administration and the RNC will coordinate with the local political or campaign committee to ensure appropriate allocation, payment, and reimbursement for the costs associated with such political activity. Any questions with respect to allocation can be directed to the Office of Counsel to the President.

Bush Blitz: a Deluge of Prosecutors

Law enforcement veterans dominate list of U.S. Attorneys

By Jonathan Groner
Legal Times

Nominee for D.C. U.S. Attorney Roscoe Howard
The group includes longtime GOP Justice and Hill aide Paul McNulty, as well as Harry "Sandy" Mattice Jr., a Chattanooga, Tenn., lawyer and former counsel to Sen. Fred Thompson's campaign finance probe. And there's also 28-year-old Strom Thurmond Jr., son of the aged senator and an assistant state prosecutor in South Carolina.

But thus far, the typical George W. Bush pick for U.S. attorney is a man with a strong law enforcement background in his home state, no Washington experience, and relatively few political connections. Only three of the nominees thus far are women.

With the announcements last week of 26 choices for U.S. attorney slots across the nation, the White House made its picks for more than one-quarter of the 94 top federal prosecutors. The vast majority of the 26 come from Southern or Western states that Bush carried last November.

As the first line of federal law enforcement, U.S. attorneys take a lead role in pursuing firearms violators, drug offenders, and perpetrators of health care fraud. They also help represent the U.S. government when it is sued in civil cases.

A look at the backgrounds of the 26 nominees shows that almost all have served either as federal or state prosecutors. Some have been state judges. That type of experience is exactly what the Bush administration was looking for, insiders say.

"They made it very clear that merit and experience will be the hallmarks," says Joseph diGenova, a former Republican U.S. attorney in the District of Columbia who has informally advised the Bush White House on U.S. attorney nominations. "Politics, other than simple party affiliation, was not a factor."

As was widely expected, University of Kansas law professor Roscoe Howard Jr., 49, a former prosecutor in the District and part of independent counsel probes of the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, was tapped for U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia. Principal Associate Deputy Attorney General Paul McNulty, 43, was picked for the Eastern District of Virginia, meaning that the full roster of federal prosecutors in the D.C. metropolitan area has been selected.

Two months ago, President Bush selected criminal defense lawyer Thomas DiBiagio, 41, to be the U.S. attorney for Maryland.

Some local lawyers have expressed skepticism about the Howard nomination, noting that the nominee has had little contact with the District since 1994, when he took the teaching job in Kansas. But Michael Madigan of Akin, Gump, Strauss, Hauer & Feld, who was one of several lawyers who advised the White House on U.S. attorney nominations, says these concerns are unfounded.

"I've set up meetings for Roscoe. He's met the chief judges, the presidents of the bar associations, and Sen. [Orrin] Hatch," says Madigan, who was widely reported to have been himself on the short list for top D.C. prosecutor. "He has impressed everyone, including me. He got a bad rap, with people saying he's from Kansas. Actually, he has a lot of experience in D.C. in the independent counsel investigations, for example."

With Congress in its August recess, confirmation hearings for the nominees won't begin at least until September. But Howard could be named acting U.S. attorney after Aug. 18, when the term of current acting U.S. Attorney Kenneth Wainstein ends, court sources say.

Out With the Old

All U.S. attorneys are political appointees who serve four-year terms. When control of the White House changes from one party to the other, there is always the tricky task of engineering the departure of all 94 federal prosecutors so that replacements can be named.

In 1993, two months into the Clinton administration, then Attorney General Janet Reno was widely criticized for demanding the immediate resignation of all the U.S. attorneys.

The current White House, says a Democratic lawyer who was involved in the early stages of the selection process, was more adept in handling the issue.

"This was handled in a sensitive manner," says Nicholas Gess, who was an associate deputy attorney general in the Clinton administration and remained at Justice briefly after the election. "Each outgoing U.S. attorney was contacted and was asked for a prospective date [of resignation]. They tried to accommodate reasonable requests rather than firing them all in one day."

Gess, a senior consultant at the Bingham Consulting Group in the District, has praise for other aspects of the Bush selection process for U.S. attorneys.

"It was very thorough. There was always an interview at Justice that included a representative of the White House counsel's office as well as a career Justice deputy. A lot of former Clinton administration people are very pleased with the way the process worked," Gess says.

The recommendations of U.S. senators of the president's party are always a key factor in the choice of U.S. attorneys. Gess says that although many such referrals came in, "more than one candidate was always interviewed."

Deputy Attorney General Larry Thompson personally interviewed every candidate as well, say two sources close to the process. Thompson did not return a call.

A typical Bush choice, Gess suggests, is Michael Sullivan, the nominee for U.S. attorney in Massachusetts, whom Gess terms "very well-respected."

Sullivan was appointed Plymouth County district attorney in 1995 by then-Gov. William Weld, a moderate Republican who is himself a former U.S. attorney. From 1991 to 1995, Sullivan was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Other than Howard, few of last week's nominees, if any, are expected to arouse any controversy. Most are from smaller states and districts.

The nominees for two high-profile districts-the Southern District of New York (which includes Manhattan) and the Northern District of Illinois (which includes Chicago) have not been announced yet.

For different reasons, these two will be closely watched.

Clinton holdover Mary Jo White, who has been looking into the last-minute Clinton pardons of Marc Rich and others, has been kept on, but late last week, the Associated Press reported that White will be replaced soon. Her successor will be carefully scrutinized for possible political bias in that probe.

In Chicago, Sen. Peter Fitzgerald, a Republican, has announced his recommendation of Manhattan-based Assistant U.S. Attorney Patrick Fitzgerald (no relation) as U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Illinois. It's unusual to bring in someone as U.S. attorney who has no ties to the district, and Patrick Fitzgerald, if he is in fact nominated, will draw opposition from Chicago bar circles.

Subject: Habitat Build

Thank you for signing up to volunteer with the Habitat for Humanity White House Staff Build on Wednesday, August 8th in Fairfax, Virginia. We will be working in teams of 10 with a Habitat construction crew leader on the house components of nine 3-bedroom townhouses. These townhouses will be sold with no-interest mortgages and a 1-% downpayment. Future Habitat homeowners must be willing to partner with Habitat to complete 300-500 hours of "sweat equity" in the building of their home and other Habitat homes.

The build will begin with an opening ceremony that will start promptly at 8:00 a.m. At the opening ceremony the homeowners, sponsors and Habitat volunteers will join us. Transportation will be provided from the White House. Buses will depart from West Executive Avenue at 7:30 a.m. and will return to the White House at approximately 1:00 p.m. Attached are directions to the site if you would prefer to drive to Fairfax. Please let me know if you are not planning on taking the bus.

Recommended dress is closed toed shoes or boots and long pants or shorts. Habitat will provide all tools as well as supply breakfast and boxed lunches. The site is very muddy so please keep that in mind. We will receive Habitat/White House Build shirts that will be distributed to your offices on Tuesday morning. Please wear your build shirts on Wednesday. Looking foward to seeing everyone for this worthwhile event.

If there are any other questions, please let me know.

DRAFT #4: 8/7/01

_____, 2001

The Honorable Henry A. Waxman
Ranking Minority Member
House of Representatives
Committee on Government Reform
2157 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515-6143

Dear Congressman Waxman:

I was disappointed with your letter of July 17, 2001, which appeared to escalate rather than moderate your demands and did so based upon a series of factual and legal inaccuracies. The following are just a few examples:

- You assert that "discussing federal policies with senior executives of companies in which [a public official] had substantial investments" is "exactly the type of conflict of interest that the ethics laws are designed to prevent." (p. 1) On the contrary, no conflict of interest law or regulation contains such a prohibition. The "exact[] type of financial conflict of interest that the ethics laws are designed to prevent" is the type they expressly proscribe: the personal and substantial participation by a government official in a particular matter that will have a direct and predictable effect upon his financial interests. 5 C.F.R. § 2635.402(a). Conversations in which a government official hears from a business executive about his company's perspective on aspects of federal policy are not in themselves prohibited. Only if the official were to participate personally and substantially in a particular matter that would have a direct and predictable effect on his financial interests would a prohibited conflict of interest exist. Your further suggestions that waivers are required when government officials (1) are given outside recommendations on personnel matters (p. 3); or (2) are given the names of persons within the environmentalist community with information or perspectives on global warming (p. 3); or (3) are merely copied on correspondence to others (p. 4) are wholly unsupported and erroneous. Were the law as you suggest, the ethics regulations would be transformed from an important safeguard of the substantive integrity of governmental decisionmaking into a needless and intrusive straitjacket that hinders beneficial communication between the government and the public.

- You assert that "[a]ccording to 5 C.F.R. § 2635.502(d), an employee must seek a waiver when the employee's conduct 'would raise a question in the mind of a reasonable person about his impartiality.'" (p. 6) This misstates the regulation. Subsection (d) of Section 502 says nothing about the circumstances under which an employee should seek a waiver (or, more precisely, an authorization). That subject is governed by a different subsection of the same regulation, subsection (a). Subsection (a) contains a separate and additional requirement – which you do not cite or quote – making clear that vague and subjective questions about an employee's impartiality are not alone sufficient to trigger application of this regulation. Rather, it is only "[w]here an employee knows that a particular matter involving specific parties is likely to have a direct and predictable effect on the financial interest of a member of his household, or knows that a person with whom he has a covered relationship is or represents a party to such matter, and where the employee determines that the circumstances would cause a reasonable person with knowledge of the relevant facts to question his impartiality in the matter" that the regulation applies. 5 C.F.R. § 2635.502(a) (emphasis added). Thus, your generalization that waiver is required "when the employee's conduct 'would raise a question in the mind of a reasonable person about his partiality'" (p. 6) does not account for certain specific and indispensable elements of the rule, i.e., that there be both a particular matter involving specific parties and a likelihood of direct and predictable effect on a financial interest.[1]

- You assert that "Mr. Rove's stature within the White House" in itself "trigger[s] the conflict of interest regulations." (p. 7) In my initial letter, I explained that that the National Energy Policy could not have had a "direct and predictable" impact on the value of Mr. Rove's Enron shares because, among other reasons, the Policy merely set forth a variety of proposals whose ultimate shaping and enactment into law depended on further consideration and action by other governmental actors and whose likely effect on Enron was therefore uncertain. You attempt to contradict that explanation by citing "Mr. Rove's stature within the White House" and asserting that Mr. Rove is an important and influential adviser. This is beside the point. That press accounts describe Mr. Rove as influential cannot transform a general policy discussion of the sort that occurred with respect to the National Energy Policy into personal and substantial involvement by Mr. Rove in a particular matter that would have a direct and predictable effect on his financial interests.

- You assert that "it is difficult to imagine a more clear-cut example of government policy affecting the value of a company's stock" than the impact of the announcement of the National Energy Policy on Enron stock. (p. 7) As I explained in my previous letter, the conflict of interest laws are not addressed to the potential impact of broad governmental policies upon individual companies. In any event, Enron stock had been declining steadily long before the announcement of the National Energy Policy and continued to decline in the subsequent weeks. Enron shares traded within a narrow range both before and after the announcement and showed no obvious reaction to it. The company did not even see fit to issue a press release based upon the announcement of the National Energy Policy. [Communications has some concern about the second and fourth sentences in this paragraph. They feel these sentences may strike the press as odd and may not be strictly relevant. They would prefer to delete both. I believe these sentences are relevant to the point we are making here – which is just that Waxman has made a rather gross misstatement – and that they are appropriate in this context. I do not feel strongly.]

[1] I note that this is only one example in a pattern of misrepresentation of legal materials in your letter. To cite another example, Section 502 does not state, as you claim, that the employee "must" seek an authorization; instead, it says only that the employee "should" seek an authorization before participating in a matter. 5 C.F.R. § 2635.502(a). Your letter also claims that "[t]he regulations specifically state that a 'health care bill limiting the amount that can be charged for prescription drugs is sufficiently focused on the interest of pharmaceutical companies that it would be a particular matter' for purposes of the regulations." (p. 6) (citing 5 C.F.R. § 2640.103(a)(1) (example 8)). In fact, the actual text of the regulation provides that "consideration and implementation, through regulations, of a section of a health care bill limiting the amount that can be charged for prescription drugs is sufficiently focused on the interest of pharmaceutical companies that it would be a particular matter." Id. (emphasis added). The omitted language is quite significant.

The approach reflected in your letter strongly suggests that my communications are unlikely to receive fair-minded and balanced consideration on their merits. It would therefore be unproductive to furnish you with detailed responses to all of the erroneous factual and legal assertions in your letter. Instead, I will limit my response to your two principal requests. [Communications feels this is too strong and provocative. They would prefer a more neutral formulation. Consider as an alternative a single-sentence paragraph that states as follows: "Rather than consume additional time with a point-by-point rebuttal of other similarly erroneous factual and legal assertions in your letter, I will limit the remainder of my response to your two principal requests."

First, I must deny your request for information responding to the numerous questions posed in Part I(D) of your letter. You have asked for details relating to any "meetings, discussions, and phone conversations" Mr. Rove may have had with an extremely large potential universe of individuals, including dates, participants, and specific views expressed at the meeting. Providing such information would be inconsistent with the longstanding executive branch policy of furnishing non-public information in an oversight context only in response to an authorized request of either House of Congress or of one of either House's authorized committees. Even in this situation, of course, various protections continue to apply to certain categories of information. Moreover, to the extent that your request would appear to call for a comprehensive audit of the hundreds of meetings and thousands of "discussions or phone conversations" that Mr. Rove undoubtedly participated in since the beginning of the Administration, preparing a response would be extraordinarily burdensome, if not impossible.

Second, I must decline to comment on your request that a referral be made to the Department of Justice pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 535(b). As a matter of policy, the executive branch generally will not disclose information relating to law enforcement matters, which would include the existence or non-existence of investigative referrals to the Department of Justice. Notwithstanding your letter's public disclosure of the heretofore confidential investigation of a named former White House staffer, I am sure you understand the importance of, and share the executive branch's commitment to, protecting the privacy and reputation of individuals who may become the subject of an official investigation but are later determined to have done nothing wrong.

Without commenting on Mr. Rove's situation, I can, however, assure you that I will not hesitate in appropriate circumstances to make referrals to the Department of Justice. In that regard, please note that, even assuming that 28 U.S.C. § 535(b) applies to the White House,[2] your understanding of that statute would appear to require referrals to the Department of Justice of even frivolous complaints or irresponsible or poorly-informed accusations. This understanding is not supported by the text of Section 535(b), interpretations of that provision during the past 25 years, or by the sound considerations of public policy that underlie it. In any event, as I am sure

[2] This is, of course, far from clear. See In re Lindsey, 148 F.3d 1100, 1110 (D.C. Cir. 1998) ("The statute does not clearly apply to the Office of the President.").

you are aware, a referral is not necessary in order for the Department of Justice to initiate an investigation where it concludes such an investigation is warranted based upon public reports. [TO'D renews his suggestion to delete this sentence, even though it is far less prominent and more neutral than the paragraph in earlier drafts on this point.] [Brett continues to favor deletion of this entire paragraph.]

In any event, the Sandy Berger and Tony Lake cases you cite are not analogous to Mr. Rove's situation. Neither Mr. Berger nor Mr. Lake was charged with anything so amorphous (or innocuous) as performing "duties [that] affected federal energy policy" (p. 6).[3] In the Factual Stipulations filed with their Settlement Agreements, both Mr. Berger and Mr. Lake formally admitted that they had in fact personally and substantially participated in one or more particular matters that may have had a direct and predictable effect on the companies in which they held an interest. As I explained in my original letter, the general policy discussions and non-substantive interactions in which Mr. Rove engaged are not in the same category.[4] In addition, both Mr. Berger and Mr. Lake violated express instructions from the White House Counsel to sell their stockholdings. In Mr. Berger's case, he retained his shares for more than 15 months after the Counsel's Office had instructed him to divest. In Mr. Lake's case, he retained his shares for more than 20 months after receiving such an instruction. By contrast, Mr. Rove followed the advice he received from transition counsel and White House Counsel and sold his shares promptly on the first day after he received his certificates of divestiture.

In closing, it is important to note that no one has suggested that any of Mr. Rove's conduct actually undermined executive branch policymaking or personally enriched Mr. Rove. Indeed, Mr. Rove actually suffered considerable financial losses because of his inability to sell his stockholdings at the beginning of the Administration, as he had wished. In my judgment, the partisan pursuit of individual public servants such as Mr. Rove under these circumstances ill serves the public. Please join the President in working to change the tone in our nation's capital. [Brett comments that the last two sentences are "a little goofy."]

Sincerely,

Alberto R. Gonzales
Counsel to the President

cc: The Honorable Dan Burton

[3] Each was charged with having "knowingly participated personally and substantially as a government officer or employee in a particular matter in which he had a financial interest." Complaint, United States v. Berger, No. 97 CV02679 (filed D.D.C. 11/10/97); Complaint, United States v. Lake, No. 97 CV 00268 (filed D.D.C. 2/7/97).

[4] As for the mid-level Clinton staffer named in your letter, since that matter had not, to my knowledge, been made public before your letter and I have no knowledge of the facts, I cannot comment. From your description of that matter, however, it appears that the Department of Justice determined that there was no basis on which to proceed.

Home to the Heartland

Today's Presidential Action:

- President Bush will begin his "Home to the Heartland" initiative today in Waco, Texas. The President will help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- To honor Habitat's service, President Bush is helping to build a home as part of Habitat's "World Leaders Build." Leaders from more than 25 countries will be participating in Habitat-sponsored homebuilding events worldwide this week. Members of the President's White House staff, led by Secretary Card, will be participating in a Habitat build in Northern Virginia.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes in 79 nations worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of American households own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic households are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Single Family Affordable Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Home to the Heartland

Today's Presidential Action:

- President Bush will begin his "Home to the Heartland" initiative today in Waco, Texas. The President will help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- To honor Habitat's service, President Bush is helping to build a home as part of Habitat's "World Leaders Build." Leaders from more than 25 countries will be participating in Habitat-sponsored homebuilding events worldwide this week. Members of the President's White House staff, led by Secretary Card, will be participating in a Habitat build in Northern Virginia.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes in 79 nations worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of American households own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic households are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Single Family Affordable Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Home to the Heartland

Today's Presidential Action:

- President Bush will begin his "Home to the Heartland" initiative today in Waco, Texas. The President will help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- To honor Habitat's service, President Bush is helping to build a home as part of Habitat's "World Leaders Build." Leaders from more than 25 countries will be participating in Habitat-sponsored homebuilding events worldwide this week. Members of the President's White House staff, led by Secretary Card, will be participating in a Habitat build in Northern Virginia.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes in 79 nations worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of American households own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic households are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Single Family Affordable Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Home to the Heartland

Today's Presidential Action:

- President Bush will begin his "Home to the Heartland" initiative today in Waco, Texas. The President will help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- To honor Habitat's service, President Bush is helping to build a home as part of Habitat's "World Leaders Build." Leaders from more than 25 countries will be participating in Habitat-sponsored homebuilding events worldwide this week. Members of the President's White House staff, led by Secretary Card, will be participating in a Habitat build in Northern Virginia.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes in 79 nations worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of American households own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic households are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Single Family Affordable Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Home to the Heartland

Today's Presidential Action:

- President Bush will begin his "Home to the Heartland" initiative today in Waco, Texas. The President will help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- To honor Habitat's service, President Bush is helping to build a home as part of Habitat's "World Leaders Build." Leaders from more than 25 countries will be participating in Habitat-sponsored homebuilding events worldwide this week. Members of the President's White House staff, led by Secretary Card, will be participating in a Habitat build in Northern Virginia.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes in 79 nations worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of American households own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic households are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Single Family Affordable Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Home to the Heartland

Today's Presidential Action:

- President Bush will begin his "Home to the Heartland" initiative today in Waco, Texas. The President will help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- To honor Habitat's service, President Bush is helping to build a home as part of Habitat's "World Leaders Build." Leaders from more than 25 countries will be participating in Habitat-sponsored homebuilding events worldwide this week. Members of the President's White House staff, led by Secretary Card, will be participating in a Habitat build in Northern Virginia.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes in 79 nations worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of American households own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic households are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Single Family Affordable Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Home to the Heartland

Today's Presidential Action:

- President Bush will begin his "Home to the Heartland" initiative today in Waco, Texas. The President will help build a home with volunteers from Habitat for Humanity International, a nonprofit, faith-based ministry program dedicated to providing housing for low-income Americans.
- To honor Habitat's service, President Bush is helping to build a home as part of Habitat's "World Leaders Build." Leaders from more than 25 countries will be participating in Habitat-sponsored homebuilding events worldwide this week. Members of the President's White House staff, led by Secretary Card, will be participating in a Habitat build in Northern Virginia.

Background on the President's Visit:

- This year is the 25th Anniversary of the founding of Habitat for Humanity. Habitat and its affiliates have built and sold more than 100,000 homes in 79 nations worldwide to families with no-profit, zero-interest mortgages. Habitat families work an average of 500 "sweat equity" hours on their own home and other Habitat homes.
- The President wants to help more low-income Americans purchase their first home. Programs like Habitat for Humanity serve as shining examples of community and faith-based organizations that succeed because they focus on results. The President will propose a tripling of the funding available to groups like Habitat for Humanity in next year's budget.
- Although record numbers of Americans (more than 72 million) now own their own home, minority homeownership lags significantly behind the national average. Nearly 68 percent of American households own their own home, but less than half of African-American and Hispanic households are homeowners.
- Habitat for Humanity is a faith-based organization that has enjoyed a long and successful partnership with government. The organization, along with other self-help homeownership groups, gets some of its funding through a competitive grant administered through the Department of Housing and Urban Development – the Self-Help Homeownership Opportunity Program ("SHOP"). SHOP provides seed money to purchase land and build necessary infrastructure. This government assistance has been leveraged by Habitat and similar organizations into millions of additional dollars of private support for home construction in communities across the U.S.

The President's Budget – Promoting Homeownership for All Americans:

- The President's FY02 budget increases funding for HUD to $30.4 billion, an increase of $1.9 billion (6.8 percent) over the 2001 enacted level. These funds are targeted toward HUD's core mission --housing and community revitalization-- and strengthening HUD management.
- The President's budget also includes funding to help more Americans – particularly low-income Americans – afford the American dream of homeownership.
  - ✓ American Dream Downpayment Fund. The fund will provide $200 million within HUD's HOME Investment Partnership program to provide downpayment assistance and help more than 130,000 low-income families overcome their greatest obstacle to purchasing their first home.
  - ✓ Single Family Affordable Housing Tax Credit. To further promote homeownership opportunities, the President has proposed a $1.7 billion tax credit to support the rehabilitation or new construction of an estimated 100,000 homes for purchase by low-income households over a five-year period.
  - ✓ Hybrid Adjustable Rate Mortgages. For FY 2002, HUD will seek authority to allow the Federal Housing Administration to offer families a hybrid adjustable rate mortgage, reducing families' initial homeownership costs by combining a low fixed rate in the early years with a rate that later adjusts with the market.

Mr. John Ashcroft, Attorney General
United States Department of Justice
521 Twelfth Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20530-0006

Dear Mr. Attorney General:

The New York Times reports that your office has decided to appear in the Adarand case to be heard this next term in the Supreme Court. The report suggests that you will appear in support of the proposition that it is no violation of the Fifth Amendment for the United States to encourage and, indeed, to pay a bonus to contractors when they engage in specific, knowing acts of racial discrimination in subcontracting. I am genuinely startled to hear that this may be the position you mean to take and would urge you seriously to reconsider.

Under the act of Congress, as currently applied and defended, a contractor who will not engage in acts of racial discrimination is treated less well by the government than one who will. In brief, a contractor who will not knowingly participate in any arrangement pursuant to which he discards a bid because of the race of the bidder, in order to accept a different (even if higher) bid from another person distinguishable solely by race, is treated less well by the government than a contractor who will, and who does, practice racial discrimination against subcontractors by passing them by solely because of their race, enabling him thereby to award the contract to another to be racially favored.

That this act was (unsuccessfully) defended during the Clinton administration in the Supreme Court, while disappointing to many, was nonetheless no surprise. That administration candidly and consistently declared itself committed to the maintenance and use of racial classifications to employ in varieties of programs involving specific acts of racial discrimination (namely such acts as it felt comfortable to describe and to defend as "affirmative" forms of racial discrimination). The most ordinary kind of program of that sort is merely that which "disprefers" some persons by race when there are felt to be too many of them vis-a-vis those of other races, such that "plus" points should be assigned to some by race in order that, with the advantage of these racially-assigned plus points, they will be jumped ahead of others given no plus points of their own.

Though the Supreme Court itself has found no warrant for these racially discriminatory practices in any of its recent decisions, Mr. Clinton found it attractive to endorse them even so. But one had thought one of the vital distinctions between Mr. Bush and Mr. Gore was that Mr. Gore was committed to a continuing regime of racial discrimination of the kind Mr. Clinton consistently promoted (i.e., whenever it could be given color of approval with the label of "affirmative" action), but that Mr. Bush would present a very different face to this country. Many believed it would be a new face: a face that would assure all that none need ever fear that "their" race (whatever it might be) would ever be used against them, again, by the government of the United States. Is this not to be the case?

It was an assurance I believe that millions of people in this country have desired and many have waited a lifetime to hope to see fulfilled. It was, moreover, a hope that many of your own statements of position seemed strongly to echo as well. But now, what is to become of it? Now, are we left to see it unfulfilled, "set aside" as it were, even as various subcontractors are themselves racially set aside by the racial-discrimination bonus-paying act it is reported you mean to sustain before the Supreme Court of the United States? I trust this is not so.

It is said that your office may seek to defend the case on the basis that the government's formula for paying bonuses for deliberate acts of racial discrimination by contractors is meant merely to match unidentified acts of racial discrimination by other private contractors--thus, in some sense, it will serve merely to offset those wrongful acts. The reasoning appears to be that this arrangement merely puts things in fair balance, i.e., roughly as they would be with no discrimination. The thesis, however, is dismaying: thus that one wrong deserves a corresponding wrong. That if some contractors covertly discriminate against some subcontractors by race, it is merely affirmative action for the government to encourage other contractors to "even" the playing field by discriminating against an equivalent number of other subcontractors by race.

I very much hope the Supreme Court does not agree. Nor do I think it should. This is just one more unworthy rationale to sustain the indefensible. The government's position should be steadfastly to oppose racial discrimination in any form, not to perpetuate it, rather, to bring it to an utter end.

I began my professional career in the Civil Rights Division decades ago, in the Voting Rights Section. We–those of us who worked there–were committed to assure conditions of no racial discrimination in respect to voting. From that past into academic life, even to today, I have never given up the expectation that, eventually, no government in this country would be tolerated that seeks to classify, divide, allocate, and discriminate by race. I cannot tell you of my disappointment if your office begins in this, the very first year of the twenty-first century, by finding "reason" to continue to feature racial classifications, and policies of discrimination, in our laws.

I cannot say it is a betrayal of many citizens who gave their vote to Mr. Bush, on a different hope and different understanding, for I do not know whether that is true. I can say, however, that it is assuredly a profound disappointment: one which may cut from his office and from yours what I and many others frankly believed was a worthy commitment to a better principle. It appeared to be a commitment to a better vision pursuant to which no one in this country would any longer be made to worry, to consume themselves with anxiety, and to ask: "Will my race be used to judge me? Will it be used to affect me? Will it be used to hurt me in some way? Will I be made to stand in a different line, a separate racial queue?"

I and others hoped that this administration would be able to answer those questions, and to say the answer to each is "No," and so to put them all to rest. Indeed, I had hoped this administration would declare something of the following sort, even if not in these particular words: "There is never to be a time that the policies or practices of this administration will provide reason for any to fear, or for any to harbor these questions, or for any among us to suffer these worries. We would support no program, no policy, no act of government, pursuant to which any basis for such a fear, or practice, or anxiety could arise. It is, rather, our intention to eliminate all foundations for just such humiliating and debasing practices, so far as it is within our capacity altogether to do. It is the commitment we make to this country and to all its people. It is how we want to be judged." I wish there were someone in this administration who could declare utterances such as these.

I have written elsewhere what I believe can be called "Affirmative" actions in a proper sense. None embrace any of the discriminatory practices reflected in the government's current policies. A reprint copy is enclosed. In the meantime, I very much hope that the New York Times report was in error. If not, then I hope that your office might even now reconsider what principle it wants to carry into the Supreme Court, and how it wants to be seen to the people of the United States.

Sincerely,

William Van Alstyne

DRAFT

The Honorable Patty Murray
The Honorable Maria Cantwell
United States Senate

Dear Senator Murray and Senator Cantwell:

As you know, members of my staff recently met with members of your staff regarding a proposed commission for selection of district court judges in Washington, a process that has been employed for the past several years to assist the President in the selection of Washington district court judges. We understand that you have attempted to reach agreement with Congresswoman Jennifer Dunn (the President's designee for these purposes) about a proposed commission, but that you thus far have been unable to do so.

At this point, we thought we should reiterate some core principles on which we must insist with respect to any commission process in Washington. First, any commission must submit at least three names to the President for consideration (and the commission should be free to submit as many additional names as it sees fit). Second, the President must retain the right not to select any of the three individuals recommended by the commission, but rather to nominate an individual of his choosing. Third, absent extraordinary circumstances (for example, a nominee's previously unknown personal background issue), you must agree in advance to support the President's nominee if the President selects one of the names submitted by the commission. Fourth, the commission must not address court of appeals vacancies, but only district court vacancies.

Your staff made clear to us that you would prefer not to agree in advance to support the President's nominee even if the nominee was one of the names submitted by the commission. We understand your point of view, but we cannot accept it. The President necessarily cedes a certain degree of his constitutional authority to nominate judges when he both agrees to a commission process and nominates one of the individuals produced by a commission, rather than conducting his own independent search for a nominee. If the President is to do so, it is only fair that you agree, absent extraordinary circumstances relating to the nominee's personal background, to support the President's nominee if the nominee is one of the names submitted by the commission. That is particularly so because any candidate supported by a majority of the commission contemplated in this instance necessarily would have the support of at least one of your appointees (we understand that the commission being contemplated apparently would have four Senatorial appointees and four of Congresswoman Dunn's appointees).

We recognize that your negotiations with Congresswoman Dunn, based on her articulation of these principles, have not produced a result satisfactory to you. As observers of your negotiations with Congresswoman Dunn, we have come to believe that the continued disagreement may simply be a function of the inherent difficulty in overly formalizing a process to which the Constitution and tradition already speak in general terms that have stood the test of time. Under the Constitution, of course, the President ordinarily selects the nominee of his choice after consulting and receiving input from Senators, Members of the House of Representatives, other elected officials, and experienced members of the bar, among others. And under the Constitution, the Senate retains the power to confirm or reject the President's nominee. In addition, consistent with past and current practice, home-state Senators generally retain power through the blue-slip process to prevent a hearing for a district court nominee to whom they vigorously object.

Given that you have been unable to reach agreement with Congresswoman Dunn thus far, I believe we are near the point where we should terminate attempts to devise a precise structure that would satisfy all sides and instead should follow the ordinary processes ordained by the Constitution. We are confident that adherence to the traditional constitutional processes would produce excellent and widely respected Presidential nominees for the district courts in Washington.

We very much thank you and your staff for the time you have spent on this, and we look forward to your response.

Sincerely yours,

Alberto R. Gonzales
Counsel to the President

WHITE HOUSE FACTSHEET
EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH
August 9, 2001

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.... I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.... This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

- Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

- Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

- No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

- The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

- Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

- Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

- The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

- The creation of embryonic stem cells. To create embryonic stem cells for research, a "stem cell line" must be created from the inner cell mass of a week-old embryo. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells can grow and divide indefinitely. A stem cell line is a mass of cells descended from the original, sharing its genetic characteristics. Batches of cells can then be separated from the cell line and distributed to researchers.

- The origin of embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells are derived from excess embryos created in the course of infertility treatment. As a result of standard in vitro fertilization practices, many excess human embryos are created. Participants in IVF treatment must ultimately decide the disposition of these excess embryos, and many individuals have donated their excess embryos for research purposes.

- Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

- Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

- Stem Cell Q&A

  - Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

  - The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

  - Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

  - The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

  - The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

  - Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

  - Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

  - How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

  - The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

  - The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;

  - The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.

  - The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

  - The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

  - The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

- Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

- The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

- How are embryonic stem cells derived?

- To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

- Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

- Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

- Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

- There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

- What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

- While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

- How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

- The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

- Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

- Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

WHITE HOUSE FACTSHEET
EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH
August 9, 2001

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.... I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.... This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

- Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

- Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

- No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

- The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

- Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

- Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

- The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

- The creation of embryonic stem cells. To create embryonic stem cells for research, a "stem cell line" must be created from the inner cell mass of a week-old embryo. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells can grow and divide indefinitely. A stem cell line is a mass of cells descended from the original, sharing its genetic characteristics. Batches of cells can then be separated from the cell line and distributed to researchers.

- The origin of embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells are derived from excess embryos created in the course of infertility treatment. As a result of standard in vitro fertilization practices, many excess human embryos are created. Participants in IVF treatment must ultimately decide the disposition of these excess embryos, and many individuals have donated their excess embryos for research purposes.

- Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

- Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

- Stem Cell Q&A

  - Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

  - The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

  - Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

  - The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

  - The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

  - Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

  - Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

  - How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

  - The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

  - The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;

  - The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.

  - The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

  - The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

  - The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

- Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

- The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

- How are embryonic stem cells derived?

- To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

- Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

- Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

- Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

- There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

- What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

- While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

- How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

- The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

- Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

- Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.. . I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.. . This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

% Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

% Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

% No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos ; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

% The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

% Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

% Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

% The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

% Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

% Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

Questions and Answers

Stem Cell Q&A

1. Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

2. The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

3. Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

4. How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

- The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;
- The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.
- The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

5. The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

6. Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

9. How are embryonic stem cells derived?

10. Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

12. Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

13. What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

14. How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

    The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

15. Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

    Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.. . I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.. . This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

% Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

% Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

% No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos ; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

% The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

% Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

% Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

% The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

Questions and Answers

Stem Cell Q&A

1. Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

2. The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

3. Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

4. How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

- The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;
- The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.
- The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

5. The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

6. Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

9. How are embryonic stem cells derived?

10. Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

12. Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

13. What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

14. How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

    The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

15. Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

    Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.. . I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.. . This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

% Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

% Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

% No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos ; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

% The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

% Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

% Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

% The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

Questions and Answers

Stem Cell Q&A

1. Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

2. The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

3. Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

4. How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

- The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;
- The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.
- The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

5. The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

6. Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

9. How are embryonic stem cells derived?

10. Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

12. Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

13. What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

14. How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

    The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

15. Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

    Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.. . I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.. . This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

% Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

% Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

% No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos ; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

% The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

% Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

% Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

% The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

Questions and Answers

Stem Cell Q&A

1. Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

2. The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

3. Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

4. How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

- The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;
- The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.
- The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

5. The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

6. Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

9. How are embryonic stem cells derived?

10. Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

12. Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

13. What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

14. How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

    The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

15. Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

    Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.. . I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.. . This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

% Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

% Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

% No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos ; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

% The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

% Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

% Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

% The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

Questions and Answers

Stem Cell Q&A

1. Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

2. The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

3. Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

4. How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

- The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;
- The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.
- The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

5. The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

6. Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

9. How are embryonic stem cells derived?

10. Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

12. Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

13. What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

14. How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

    The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

15. Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

    Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.. . I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.. . This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

% Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

% Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

% No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos ; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

% The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

% Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

% Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

% The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

Questions and Answers

Stem Cell Q&A

1. Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

2. The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

3. Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

4. How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

- The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;
- The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.
- The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

5. The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

6. Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

9. How are embryonic stem cells derived?

To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

10. Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

12. Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

13. What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

14. How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

    The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

15. Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

    Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

WHITE HOUSE FACTSHEET
EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH
August 9, 2001

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.... I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.... This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

- Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

- Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

- No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

- The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

- Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

- Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

- The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

- The creation of embryonic stem cells. To create embryonic stem cells for research, a "stem cell line" must be created from the inner cell mass of a week-old embryo. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells can grow and divide indefinitely. A stem cell line is a mass of cells descended from the original, sharing its genetic characteristics. Batches of cells can then be separated from the cell line and distributed to researchers.

- The origin of embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells are derived from excess embryos created in the course of infertility treatment. As a result of standard in vitro fertilization practices, many excess human embryos are created. Participants in IVF treatment must ultimately decide the disposition of these excess embryos, and many individuals have donated their excess embryos for research purposes.

- Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

- Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

- Stem Cell Q&A

  - Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

  - The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

  - Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

  - The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

  - The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

  - Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

  - Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

  - How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

  - The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

  - The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;

  - The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.

  - The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

  - The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

  - The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

- Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

- The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

- How are embryonic stem cells derived?

- To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

- Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

- Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

- Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

- There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

- What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

- While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

- How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

- The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

- Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

- Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

WHITE HOUSE FACTSHEET
EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH
August 9, 2001

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.... I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.... This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

- Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

- Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

- No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

- The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

- Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

- Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

- The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

- The creation of embryonic stem cells. To create embryonic stem cells for research, a "stem cell line" must be created from the inner cell mass of a week-old embryo. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells can grow and divide indefinitely. A stem cell line is a mass of cells descended from the original, sharing its genetic characteristics. Batches of cells can then be separated from the cell line and distributed to researchers.

- The origin of embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells are derived from excess embryos created in the course of infertility treatment. As a result of standard in vitro fertilization practices, many excess human embryos are created. Participants in IVF treatment must ultimately decide the disposition of these excess embryos, and many individuals have donated their excess embryos for research purposes.

- Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

- Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

- Stem Cell Q&A

  - Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

  - The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

  - Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

  - The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

  - The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

  - Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

  - Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

  - How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

  - The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

  - The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;

  - The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.

  - The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

  - The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

  - The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

- Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

- The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

- How are embryonic stem cells derived?

- To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

- Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

- Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

- Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

- There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

- What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

- While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

- How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

- The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

- Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

- Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

WHITE HOUSE FACTSHEET
EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH
August 9, 2001

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.... I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.... This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

- Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

- Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

- No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

- The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

- Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

- Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

- The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

- The creation of embryonic stem cells. To create embryonic stem cells for research, a "stem cell line" must be created from the inner cell mass of a week-old embryo. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells can grow and divide indefinitely. A stem cell line is a mass of cells descended from the original, sharing its genetic characteristics. Batches of cells can then be separated from the cell line and distributed to researchers.

- The origin of embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells are derived from excess embryos created in the course of infertility treatment. As a result of standard in vitro fertilization practices, many excess human embryos are created. Participants in IVF treatment must ultimately decide the disposition of these excess embryos, and many individuals have donated their excess embryos for research purposes.

- Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

- Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

- Stem Cell Q&A

  - Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

  - The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

  - Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

  - The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

  - The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

  - Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

  - Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

  - How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

  - The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

  - The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;

  - The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.

  - The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

  - The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

  - The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

- Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

- The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

- How are embryonic stem cells derived?

- To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

- Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

- Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

- Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

- There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

- What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

- While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

- How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

- The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

- Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

- Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

WHITE HOUSE FACTSHEET
EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH
August 9, 2001

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.... I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.... This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

- Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

- Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

- No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

- The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

- Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

- Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

- The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

- The creation of embryonic stem cells. To create embryonic stem cells for research, a "stem cell line" must be created from the inner cell mass of a week-old embryo. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells can grow and divide indefinitely. A stem cell line is a mass of cells descended from the original, sharing its genetic characteristics. Batches of cells can then be separated from the cell line and distributed to researchers.

- The origin of embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells are derived from excess embryos created in the course of infertility treatment. As a result of standard in vitro fertilization practices, many excess human embryos are created. Participants in IVF treatment must ultimately decide the disposition of these excess embryos, and many individuals have donated their excess embryos for research purposes.

- Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

- Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

- Stem Cell Q&A

  - Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

  - The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

  - Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

  - The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

  - The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

  - Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

  - Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

  - How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

  - The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

  - The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;

  - The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.

  - The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

  - The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

  - The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

- Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

- The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

- How are embryonic stem cells derived?

- To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

- Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

- Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

- Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

- There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

- What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

- While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

- How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

- The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

- Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

- Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

WHITE HOUSE FACTSHEET
EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH
August 9, 2001

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.... I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.... This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

- Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

- Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

- No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

- The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

- Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

- Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

- The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

- The creation of embryonic stem cells. To create embryonic stem cells for research, a "stem cell line" must be created from the inner cell mass of a week-old embryo. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells can grow and divide indefinitely. A stem cell line is a mass of cells descended from the original, sharing its genetic characteristics. Batches of cells can then be separated from the cell line and distributed to researchers.

- The origin of embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells are derived from excess embryos created in the course of infertility treatment. As a result of standard in vitro fertilization practices, many excess human embryos are created. Participants in IVF treatment must ultimately decide the disposition of these excess embryos, and many individuals have donated their excess embryos for research purposes.

- Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

- Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

- Stem Cell Q&A

  - Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

  - The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

  - Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

  - The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

  - The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

  - Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

  - Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

  - How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

  - The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

  - The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;

  - The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.

  - The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

  - The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

  - The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

- Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

- The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

- How are embryonic stem cells derived?

- To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

- Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

- Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

- Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

- There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

- What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

- While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

- How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

- The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

- Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

- Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

WHITE HOUSE FACTSHEET
EMBRYONIC STEM CELL RESEARCH
August 9, 2001

"As a result of private research, more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already exist.... I have concluded that we should allow federal funds to be used for research on these existing stem cell lines – where the life and death decision has already been made.... This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research – without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos that have at least the potential for life."
-- George W. Bush

- Federal funding of research using existing embryonic stem cell lines is consistent with the President's belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. The President's decision reflects his fundamental commitment to preserving the value and sanctity of human life and his desire to promote vital medical research. The President's decision will permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines that have already been derived, but will not sanction or encourage the destruction of additional human embryos. The embryos from which the existing stem cell lines were created have already been destroyed and no longer have the possibility of further development as human beings. Federal funding of medical research on these existing stem cell lines will promote the sanctity of life – without undermining it – and will allow scientists to explore the potential of this research to benefit the lives of millions of people who suffer from life destroying diseases.

- Federal funds will only be used for research on existing stem cell lines that were derived: (1) with the informed consent of the donors; (2) from excess embryos created solely for reproductive purposes; and (3) without any financial inducements to the donors. In order to ensure that federal funds are used to support only stem cell research that is scientifically sound, legal, and ethical, the NIH will examine the derivation of all existing stem cell lines and create a registry of those lines that satisfy this criteria. More than 60 existing stem cell lines from genetically diverse populations around the world are expected to be available for federally-funded research.

- No federal funds will be used for: (1) the derivation or use of stem cell lines derived from newly destroyed embryos; (2) the creation of any human embryos for research purposes; or (3) the cloning of human embryos for any purpose. Today's decision relates only to the use of federal funds for research on existing stem cell lines derived in accordance with the criteria set forth above.

- The President will create a new President's Council on Bioethics, chaired by Dr. Leon Kass, an expert in biomedical ethics and a professor at the University of Chicago, to study the human and moral ramifications of developments in biomedical and behaviorial science and technology. The Council will study such issues as embryo and stem cell research, assisted reproduction, cloning, genetic screening, gene therapy, euthanasia, psychoactive drugs, and brain implants.

BACKGROUND

- Embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells, which come from the inner cell mass of a human embryo, have the potential to develop into all or nearly all of the tissues in the body. The scientific term for this characteristic is "pluripotentiality."

- Adult stem cells. Adult stem cells are unspecialized, can renew themselves, and can become specialized to yield all of the cell types of the tissue from which they originate. Although scientists believe that some adult stem cells from one tissue can develop into cells of another tissue, no adult stem cell has been shown in culture to be pluripotent.

- The potential of embryonic stem cell research. Many scientists believe that embryonic stem cell research may eventually lead to therapies that could be used to treat diseases that afflict approximately 128 million Americans. Treatments may include replacing destroyed dopamine-secreting neurons in a Parkinson's patient's brain; transplanting insulin-producing pancreatic beta cells in diabetic patients; and infusing cardiac muscle cells in a heart damaged by myocardial infarction. Embryonic stem cells may also be used to understand basic biology and to evaluate the safety and efficacy of new medicines.

- The creation of embryonic stem cells. To create embryonic stem cells for research, a "stem cell line" must be created from the inner cell mass of a week-old embryo. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells can grow and divide indefinitely. A stem cell line is a mass of cells descended from the original, sharing its genetic characteristics. Batches of cells can then be separated from the cell line and distributed to researchers.

- The origin of embryonic stem cells. Embryonic stem cells are derived from excess embryos created in the course of infertility treatment. As a result of standard in vitro fertilization practices, many excess human embryos are created. Participants in IVF treatment must ultimately decide the disposition of these excess embryos, and many individuals have donated their excess embryos for research purposes.

- Existing stem cell lines. There are currently more than 60 existing different human embryonic stem cell lines that have been developed from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization with the consent of the donors and without financial inducement. These existing lines are used in approximately one dozen laboratories around the world (in the United States, Australia, India, Israel, and Sweden).

- Therapies from adult and embryonic stem cell research. To date, adult stem cell research, which is federally-funded, has resulted in the development of a variety of therapeutic treatments for diseases. Although embryonic stem cell research has not yet produced similar results, many scientists believe embryonic stem cell research holds promise over time because of the capacity of embryonic stem cells to develop into any tissue in the human body.

- Stem Cell Q&A

  - Isn't this a reversal of the position President Bush took in his campaign and in a letter as recently as May 18? Didn't he say unequivocally that he "oppose[s] Federal funding for stem-cell research that involves destroying living human embryos"?

  - The President has always believed that human life is sacred. He has never retreated from that position, either as governor of Texas, during his campaign for President, or as President. And he does not retreat from that position today with his decision to permit federal funding of research using the more than 60 existing stem cell lines, where the life and death decision has already been made. At the same time, he is unwilling to direct taxpayer funds for research on stem cell lines that have not yet been derived, because that might encourage the destruction of additional embryos.

  - Embryonic stem cell research raises profound medical and ethical questions, questions about which the President has thought deeply. After long reflection, he has come to the conclusion that supporting this research using existing stem cell lines, which has the potential to save millions and millions of lives, is consistent with his personal pro-life beliefs.

  - The President said that he would name a Presidential Council to study this issue. What will the Commission's mandate be?

  - The President's Council on Bioethics, which will be chaired by Dr. Leon Kass of the University of Chicago will monitor embryonic stem cell research and study the human and moral meaning of developments in biomedical and behavioral science and technology.

  - Does this mean that the federal government will start regulating fertility clinics?

  - Additional federal oversight of the embryo donation process may be necessary. Since the NIH will need to ensure that fertility clinics obtain consent from embryo donors and carry out embryo donors' decisions, some federal supervision of these facilities may be appropriate.

  - How soon will scientists receive money for research on embryonic stem cells?

  - The NIH will begin working immediately on the creation of a registry of existing stem cell lines that meet three essential criteria:

  - The embryos' donors' consent must be fully informed;

  - The stem cell lines must be derived from excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization, not for research purposes.

  - The embryo donation must have been made without any financial inducement.

  - The Dickey amendment says that federal funds cannot be spent on "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed [or] discarded." Does this law permit the funding of stem cell research?

  - The Dickey appropriations rider prohibits the use of federal funds for "research in which a human embryo or embryos are destroyed, discarded, or knowingly subjected to risk of injury or death greater than that allowed for research on fetuses in utero." The research that the President has agreed to fund (using existing stem cell lines where the life and death decisions have already been made) does not violate the Dickey amendment. No Federal funds will be used for the destruction of human embryos or the derivation of stem cells, and no Federal funds will be used for research on stem cell lines created from human embryos that are alive as of this date.

- Couldn't excess embryos created for in vitro fertilization be donated to a woman who would have them implanted, so that they may become babies?

- The disposition of excess embryos created in the course of in vitro treatment is a private decision for the participants in that treatment. The participants may choose to donate their excess embryos to another woman or couple, to have them destroyed, or to donate them to research.

- How are embryonic stem cells derived?

- To derive embryonic stem cells for research, a researcher removes the inner cell mass from a week-old embryo. The embryo at this stage is about 100 cells in size and is barely visible to the naked eye. The removal of the inner cell mass destroys the embryo. The stem cells are then cultured, or grown, under special conditions in the laboratory. If they are cultured properly, embryonic stem cells will grow and divide (perhaps) indefinitely. These potentially immortal cultures are known as "stem cell lines."

- Why can't the government simply fund adult stem cell research?

- Although stem cells can also be derived from adult tissues, many scientists believe that, unlike embryonic stem cells, adult stem cells are not pluripotent (meaning they do not have the ability to develop into all the different types of human tissue). Thus, most scientists believe that adult stem cells are not as promising an avenue for treating and preventing disease as embryonic stem cells.

- Won't this approach bless the destruction of human life by allowing us to profit from morally disturbing research?

- There are several important medical therapies, including the chicken pox vaccine, the rabies vaccine, and the Hepatitis A vaccine, that have been derived from fetal tissue, including in some instances aborted fetuses. Although many people have very strong moral objections to abortions, most people do not shun these important vaccines.

- What is the President's response to the disease sufferers who might have benefited from additional research?

- While there is certainly great hope for successful cures and therapies from embryonic stem cell research, the reality is that medical realities often do not live up to their expectations. Eight years ago, there was great enthusiasm over fetal tissue research, yet to date, the promise of such research has not fulfilled its expectations. . By funding research on more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines, the President believes, based on conversations with some of the nation's leading scientists, that we will be able to fully explore the promise and potential of embryonic stem cell research.

- How do we know there are 60? Where do they come from? Who owns patents?

- The NIH has been reviewing the state of stem cell science and they have reported that there are now more than 60 identifiable stem cell lines that have been created from excess embryos produced for in vitro fertilization and without any financial inducements to the donors. The NIH is looking into the patents and will obviously be engaged in negotiating material transfer agreements with the holders of the relevant patents.

- Won't these embryos be destroyed anyway?

- Although many of these embryos may well be destroyed, the fact that a life is going to end does not justify actively terminating it. We should not value life so casually that we use the seeds of the next generation simply as tools for the benefit of the current generation.

Praise For President Bush's Thoughtful, Principled Solution On Embryonic Stem Cell Research Funding

National Institutes Of Health, Acting Director Dr. Ruth Kirschstein: "We are pleased with the President's decision to allow the use of Federal funds for important basic research on human embryonic stem cells. The approach he has outlined is sound, and we understand the President's clear desire to move forward with care. Using the more than 60 existing cell lines from around the world, many more researchers will now be able to explore the potential of human embryonic stem cells, in addition to the extensive work already sponsored by NIH using human adult stem cells. We believe this combined research has high potential both for opening new doors in basic scientific understanding and for discovery of new treatments for some of our most devastating diseases." (National Institutes Of Health, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

American Cancer Society: "The Society believes that such research holds extraordinary potential in the fight against a variety of life-threatening diseases currently afflicting an estimated 140 million Americans. . . . The American Cancer Society commends the Administration for allowing this vital scientific research to proceed - even in a limited way." (American Cancer Society Website, www2.cancer.org, August 10, 2001)

Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation International, Peter Van Etten, President And Chief Operating Officer: "We applaud the president for supporting embryonic stem cell research and for recognizing the importance this research holds to cure millions of Americans suffering from life-threatening illnesses." The Washington Post, August 10, 2001; Katharine Q. Seelye, "Bush Approves Limited Stem Cell Test Funding," The New York Times, August 9, 2001)

Biotechnology Industry Organization, President Carl B. Feldbaum: "We appreciate the difficult decision President Bush faced regarding federal funding of stem cell research, and we are pleased that the President determined the need for this research to continue. This was a good, clear, balanced outcome. As the President pointed out, advances in stem cell research could impact the lives of millions of desperately ill Americans who suffer from conditions for which there are no treatments, including Alzheimer's and Parkinson's diseases, various cancers, diabetes and spinal cord injuries. The President's decision is a major step forward for patients and the biotechnology industry. Among all the conditions that President Bush placed on this research with which we wholeheartedly agree, we have one reservation, which we believe will be worked out in time. Placing a limit on the number of cell lines available for this research may place roadblocks to medical progress, some of which may take years to overcome. . . . Again, we are very pleased with President Bush's concern for both the need for this critical research to continue, and for the ethical questions involved to be continuously and thoughtfully considered." (Biotechnology Industry Organization, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

Timothy McCaffrey, Associate Professor of Biochemistry and Molecular Biology, George Washington University Medical Center: "Considering the difficult positions he had to weigh, it appears to be quite a fair decision. Obviously, as a scientist, you want as few restrictions on your work as possible. But this doesn't disable the field at all. Compared with being unable to use federal funds, period, for stem cell research, this is a big step forward." (Carl T. Hall, "Scientists Worry How Policy Affects Them," The San Francisco Chronicle, August 10, 2001)

LeRoy Walters, Bioethicist, Georgetown University: "I think there will be a momentum effect. The pace of discovery will be accelerated and there may be the side benefit that some discoveries may be more available to researchers nationwide." (Sheryl Gay Stolberg, "The President's Decision: A Question Of Research," The New York Times, August 10, 2001)

Robert Lanza, Vice President of Medical and Scientific Development, Advanced Cell Technology in Worcester, Massachusetts: ". . . An important milestone in medical history. Up until now there was this black cloud that lingered over one of the most promising areas of biomedical research this century. This decision is going to spur a medical revolution as important as antibiotics and vaccines." (Anne E. Kornblut, and Mary Leonard, "A Limited OK On Stem-Cell Funds Bush Cites 'Promise' And 'Peril,' Allows Existing-Embryo Research," The Boston Globe, August 10, 2001)

Jeffrey T. Kahn, Director, Center for Bioethics at the University of Minnesota: "Had he banned this, all the research would have gone on at the private level, away from any oversight. If people take the federal money, they have to follow the federal rules." (David M. Shribman, "A Limited OK On Stem-Cell Funds Cautious Step Taken Toward A New World," The Boston Globe, August 10, 2001)

Doug Melton, Stem Cell Researcher, Harvard University: "If there are 60 lines that are robust, grow well and have the properties of human embryonic cell lines, that's news to me and it is good news." (Sheryl Gay Stolberg, "The President's Decision: A Question Of Research," The New York Times, August 10, 2001)

Dr. John Mendelsohn, President, University of Texas M. D. Anderson Cancer Center: "It's hard to crystal-ball this. I believe President Bush made the important decision, which is to go forward." (Sheryl Gay Stolberg, "The President's Decision: A Question Of Research," The New York Times, August 10, 2001)

Dr. John McDonald, Neuroscientist, Washington University (St. Louis): "He said he intends to apply soon for funds for research on human embryonic stem cells. McDonald is trying to find a way to heal injured spinal cords with stem cells. He said that he is pleased that some research will go forward. 'I'm very optimistic, and I think it's a good first step,' McDonald said." (Tina Hesman, "Stem Cell Decision Brings Support And Criticism," St. Louis Post-Dispatch, August 10, 2001)

Massachusetts Catholic Conference: "The Announcement by President Bush rejecting the use of federal funds for research using stem cells obtained through the destruction of human embryos deserves the highest praise. The President demonstrated the utmost in courage by refusing to compel millions of taxpayers against their conscience to promote the killing of human life for utilitarian purposes.

"President Bush had an opportunity to stand up for the dignity and inviolability of innocent human life and came through on the critical issues of cloning adn embryo-destroying research. Now we as a country can focus on positive solutions to the problems of disease and illness that involve the use of adult stem cells and not the cannibalism of human life itself.

"While the President's decision to permit research funding on sixty cell lines established from the previous destruction of embryos is disturbing, this does not diminish the significance of the President's refusal to fund research involving the future destruction of embryos.

"The President's announcement was clear, understandable, and well-reasoned. The public debate over this issue has been ably advanced as a result of his efforts tonight."

The Massachusetts Catholic Conference is the public policy office of the Roman Catholic Church in the Commonwealth, representing the Archdiocese of Boston and the Dioceses of Springfield, Worcester, and Fall River.

Reverend Jerry Falwell: "Fully believing President Bush and his commitment to the sanctity of life, I anticipated a statement that would maintain his integrity in this matter, however, only Solomon could have improved on the what the President did and said. He clearly maintained his integrity regarding the protection of unborn life. He also manifested his concern for the health and welfare of all Americans by allowing science to proceed unfettered but within reasonable moral boundaries. This was George W. Bush's finest hour thus far." (Dr. Jerry Falwell, Statement, August 9, 2001)

Reverend Jerry Falwell: "I've never been prouder of George W. Bush than I am right now. ... When I heard his words carefully and sincerely and with anguish spoken, when he finished, I said, the guy has not violated one tenet of his convictions in the pro-life position. . . . When I saw George Bush tonight and listened to him, I thought for a moment I was watching and listening [to] Ronald Reagan, and I cheered and said, 'God bless you, George Bush. Stay with it'" (Fox's "The Edge," August 9, 2001)

Focus On The Family, Dr. James Dobson: "Pro-life leaders were surprised - and largely pleased - with the thrust of Bush's announcement. Dr. James Dobson, president of Focus on the Family, told CNN's Larry King that the decision is a defining moment for Bush's presidency. 'From our perspective he didn't call for federal funds to be expended to take human life to kill those little embryos. (Bob Ditmer, Pete Winn and Karla Dial, "President Approves Limited Stem Cell Funding," In Focus, August 9, 2001)

Focus On The Family, Dr. James Dobson: "…I give the president's decision generally a thumbs-up. There are still some aspects to it that we want to look at, but I think he found a good solution for this stage." (CNN's "Larry King Live," August 9, 2001)

Christian Medical Society, Executive Director David Stevens: "Like many who heard the president's decision last night, I came away both encouraged and very concerned. I was encouraged to see our president drawing from the wisdom from a wide range of society, from the scientific and religious communities, as well as from everyday people. I was also encouraged to hear him commit to funding the tremendous promise of adult stem cell research, an alternative that may enable us to solve the problems of diabetes, Parkinson's disease, and a host of other chronic diseases. I was also encouraged to hear the formation of an advisory board that will continue to examine the important ethical aspects, as well as scientific progress, of stem cell research." (Christian Medical Society, Press Conference, August 10, 2001)

Pat Robertson's American Center for Law and Justice, Chief Counsel Jay Sekulow: "The American Center for Law and Justice, an international public interest law firm and educational organization, said President Bush's decision to prohibit the use of federal funds to destroy human embryos to obtain stem cells for research is the 'correct' decision on this critical issue. 'We are extremely pleased that the President has refused to permit the use of federal funds to be used to destroy human embryos and therefore human life,' said Jay Sekulow, Chief Counsel of the ACLJ. 'It is clear the President has given this issue very serious thought and consideration. And while all Americans hope that medical and scientific research result in new discoveries that provide cures for numerous maladies, the President also made it clear that he considers human embryos to be human life - sacred life - that must be protected. The President said 'no' to the most troubling aspect of this issue - the use of federal funds to destroy human embryos - to destroy human life. The President has reached the correct decision concerning one of the most serious ethical and moral issues of our day.'" (American Center For Law And Justice, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

National Right To Life Applauds President's Decision On Embryo-Destructive Stem Cell Research: "In an address to the nation this evening, President Bush announced that he would not allow federal funding of stem cell research that involves the killing of any more human embryos. 'We are delighted that President Bush's decision prevents the federal government from becoming a party to any further killing of human embryos for medical experimentation,' stated Laura Echevarria, director of Media Relations for the National Right to Life Committee. 'While National Right to Life mourns the loss of life for those embryos from whom stem cell lines have already been derived, nothing the National Right to Life Committee or President Bush can do can restore the lives of those embryos who have already died,' stated Ms. Echevarria. President Bush's decision will have no negative impact on ethical research involving stem cells derived from sources such as adult fat, blood, and bone marrow, as well as placentas and umbilical cord blood. Adult stem cells have been shown to be dramatically more effective, and have already been used to help patients. 'More and more people with disabling and chronic conditions are being helped by adult stem cell research,' stated Ms. Echevarria. According to a June (June 1-5, 2001) International Communications Research poll, 67 percent of those polled prefer having their tax dollars used for stem cell research 'using adult stem cells and other alternatives . . .' Only 18 percent favored federal support of research that included experiments which 'require destroying human embryos.' Moreover, instead of destroying human embryos through medical research, they may be adopted by parents. Indeed the demand for their adoption exceeds the number of embryos who could be adopted. 'We strongly commend the President's strong opposition to all human cloning and to the special creation of human embryos for research,' said NRLC Legislative Director Douglas Johnson. Last month a Massachusetts firm, Advanced Cell Technology, announced that it will soon begin attempting to create cloned human embryos for the purpose of harvesting their stem cells or using them in other lethal research (a practice referred to by the bio-tech industry as 'therapeutic cloning'). On July 31, the House of Representatives voted to ban all human cloning, including the creation of cloned embryos, 265-162. The legislation is now awaiting action in the Senate. President Bush has endorsed the bill. 'The Senate must act immediately to prevent the start-up of cloned human embryo farms in the United States,' Johnson said." (National Right To Life Committee, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

EDITORIALS:

The Dallas Morning News: "Mr. Bush supports scientific research. He has called for almost a 14 percent increase in the budget of the National Institutes of Health, to bring its fiscal 2002 budget to $23 billion. And the institutes' support for research on adult stem cells has been significant. What the president's decision means is that federal efforts will be able to be focused on more areas of promising stem cell research, including embryonic cells as well as those harvested from umbilical cord blood, placental tissue, adult and even newly engineered cells. Federal supervision and bio-ethical safeguards will be part of this revolutionary new area of science. The president should be commended for taking a conscientious, careful approach to the issue." (Editorial, "Stem Cells," Dallas Morning News, August 10, 2001)

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "After months of deliberation, President George W. Bush made a landmark decision on embryonic stem cell research that reflected the conscience of a moral nation. Drawing the difficult distinction between ethics and religion, Mr. Bush announced that the government would fund promising research on stem cells derived from frozen human embryos earmarked for destruction in fertility clinics. It was an incomprehensibly far-reaching verdict for any one person to undertake, especially a pro-life, Republican president leery of offending Catholics -- a swing voting bloc that may hold the key to his re-election. . . . For so many who are ailing and holding out hope, it does not matter why Mr. Bush made his decision. But if the president wants to be more responsive to the needs and genuine suffering of everyday citizens, he has made an excellent start." (Editorial, "Stem Cell Research," St. Louis Post-Dispatch, August 10, 2001)

The Boston Herald: "With his announcement last night President Bush has laid the groundwork for enormous advances in medical research and given real meaning to his campaign pledge to govern as a 'compassionate conservative.' . . . In approving the use of federal funds for stem cell research and on setting reasonable limits for the use of embryos in that research, Bush has found that middle ground with which most Americans will feel comfortable and comforted. Comfortable because few people see anything terribly wrong in the scientific use of portions of embryos (created in clinics for in vitro fertilization) that would be destroyed anyway. And comforted because if it is in the power of modern medicine to help those with Parkinson's disease, diabetes, Alzheimer's or spinal cord injuries, then we have a responsibility to do so. . . . George W. Bush last night committed this nation to just such a policy. It's the right one." (Editorial, "Bush Course Best On Stem Cell Work," The Boston Herald, August 10, 2001)

The Chicago Tribune: "The Tribune has advocated funding for research on stem cells extracted from a limited number of embryos created for the purpose of in vitro fertilization, and destined to be discarded. The decision Bush announced Wednesday night would fund research on some 60 existing cell lines, though not on new lines from additional embryos. . . . Bush's decision, and his admonition that "we must proceed with great care," reflect a similar uneasiness. But while his limits may be too strict, the president has in fact moved in the correct direction. If federally funded research begins to yield promising results, the limits Bush articulated could change." (Editorial, "Stem Cells And Caution," The Chicago Tribune, August 10, 2001)

USA Today: "Bush, in a televised address, did not go as far as many scientists would like, or as far as eventually will be necessary for effective research and treatment. He limited research to just 60 lines of stem cells from embryos that have already been destroyed. But he nevertheless went far enough to fuel Wasson's hopes and those of millions of others. It also is a reasonable way, at least for now, to set limits on a fast-moving field in which scientists' abilities have outpaced the public's ethical consensus. . . . Regardless, his change of heart should not be seen as a sign of weakness or opportunism, but as a difficult balance between personal beliefs and the national interest. . . . Bush's stem cell decision is a thoughtful first step toward resolving the ethical conundrums posed by the rapid advance of science. But how far is far enough? New rules are just a start." (Editorial, "Bush's Tough Choice Moves Critical Research Forward," USA Today, August 10, 2001)

ELECTED OFFICIALS AND POLITICAL FIGURES:

Senator Olympia Snowe: "The President made a thoughtful and responsible decision that gives scientists the tools they need to begin the exploration of this exciting frontier of medical research, which brings hope to millions of Americans suffering the effects of disease and illness. His decision, bolstered by a Presidential commission that will monitor research and establish guidelines, begins the process of opening the door to further progress. I know the President wrestled and struggled with this decision, reaching his conclusion only after discussing and meeting with advocates on both sides of this issue. . . . I believe his decision is right for our nation, and reflects the views of the vast majority of Americans with family members who have suffered from these illnesses. The President's decision tonight gives America's best and brightest researchers federal support, complimented by the work of the National Institutes of Health and the National Science Foundation, to explore to potential of these amazing cells, and ensure maintenance of the highest scientific and ethical standards." (Senator Snowe, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

Senator Tom Harkin: "I'm glad that the President has decided to permit and encourage our medical scientists to do stem cell research. As the Chairman of the Senate subcommittee that funds all medical research, I want to work with the President and Members of Congress to move this research forward in a robust, but ethical manner. We must also consult with our top scientists to make sure we have an adequate number of stem cell lines to allow this research to reach its fullest potential. Stem cells hold so much promise for curing illnesses like diabetes, Alzheimer's, Parkinson's and spinal cord injuries that we cannot afford to wait any longer." (Senator Tom Harkin, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

Senator Bill Frist: "I believe the president has done the nation a great service by allowing promising embryonic stem-cell research to proceed while maintaining strong restrictions on the extent of the research and ensuring comprehensive oversight." ("Reactions To Bush Decision On Stem-Cell Research," Reuters, August 9, 2001)

Senator Orrin Hatch: "I believe that the President's announcement is a major step in the right direction. This was a victory for biomedical research and the promise it holds for all Americans. I think what he did was positive. President Bush's decision allows very promising research to go forward, research that will potentially help up to 100 million Americans. The decision showed real presidential leadership. It was a thoughtful, deliberative decision made after prayer and the most careful consultation with ethicists, families, scientists, doctors and religious leaders." (Senator Orrin Hatch, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

Senator Sam Brownback: "I think the President really took a thoughtful line. I am concerned about some of the lines that he breeched through. But he also put clear limitations on things. And as we're going into this brand-new field, as we're looking at these possibilities, and we all want to cure these terrible diseases, I think he really tried to make a straight and narrow path as much as he could." (CBS' "The Early Show," August 10, 2001)

Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison: "'I think he is going in the right direction, and I know he gave this issue the careful consideration and weight it deserves,' she said." (Bennett Roth, "Headaches Ahead For Bush," The Houston Chronicle, August 9, 2001)

Senator Jean Carnahan: "I support continuing federal funding of stem-cell research within the current ethical guidelines. I will need to review the specifics of the president's proposal to ensure that it allows the most promising avenues of research to continue, but his declaration of support for federal funding of stem-cell research is a positive development." (Steven Thomma, "Bush Supports Limited Embroynic Stem-Cell Research," Knight Ridder, August 10, 2001)

Representative Benjamin A. Gilman: "I am pleased that President Bush, after fully examining this issue, has decided to support federal funding for limited embryonic stem cell research. Scientists have stated that embryonic stem cells may provide the key to developing cures for a variety of diseases including Parkinson's, Alzheimer's, juvenile diabetes and spinal cord injuries. By allowing federally funded research we are providing scientists with all the tools they need to proceed with this important research and, hopefully, will be able to achieve a number of cures at an early date." (Congressman Gilman, Press Release, August 10, 2001)

Representative Mike Pence: "'I was pleased that President Bush tonight refused to fund research that would destroy human embryos,' Pence said. 'The President drew a moral line earlier this year when he promised to "oppose federal funding for stem cell research that involved destroying living human embryos." I commend him for keeping his promise with tonight's decision. At its core, President Bush's statement reveals a continued commitment to his belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. . . . For the President, tonight's decision was a pragmatic one. It satisfied supporters of stem cell research with limited funding, and it pleased opponents with a ban on further destruction of human embryos. I also truly believe President Bush searched his heart in arriving at this conclusion. In his statement this evening, the President revealed that he had wrestled with his conscience and with God over his decision.'" (Congressman Pence, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

The Republican Leadership Council: "'The fact that President Bush approached this important issue in such a deliberative manner ought to be commended,' stated Mark Miller, executive director of the RLC. 'The President considered all viewpoints and delivered a well thought out opinion based on his belief that this research will advance the greater good of society. . . . President Bush deserves credit for his thoughtful decision on an issue with tremendous implications for science and public health for years to come.'" (Republican Leadership Council, Press Release, August 10, 2001)

Praise For President Bush's Thoughtful, Principled Solution On Embryonic Stem Cell Research Funding

National Institutes Of Health, Acting Director Dr. Ruth Kirschstein: "We are pleased with the President's decision to allow the use of Federal funds for important basic research on human embryonic stem cells. The approach he has outlined is sound, and we understand the President's clear desire to move forward with care. Using the more than 60 existing cell lines from around the world, many more researchers will now be able to explore the potential of human embryonic stem cells, in addition to the extensive work already sponsored by NIH using human adult stem cells. We believe this combined research has high potential both for opening new doors in basic scientific understanding and for discovery of new treatments for some of our most devastating diseases." (National Institutes Of Health, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

American Cancer Society: "The Society believes that such research holds extraordinary potential in the fight against a variety of life-threatening diseases currently afflicting an estimated 140 million Americans. . . . The American Cancer Society commends the Administration for allowing this vital scientific research to proceed - even in a limited way." (American Cancer Society Website, www2.cancer.org, August 10, 2001)

Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation International, Peter Van Etten, President And Chief Operating Officer: "We applaud the president for supporting embryonic stem cell research and for recognizing the importance this research holds to cure millions of Americans suffering from life-threatening illnesses." The Washington Post, August 10, 2001; Katharine Q. Seelye, "Bush Approves Limited Stem Cell Test Funding," The New York Times, August 9, 2001)

Biotechnology Industry Organization, President Carl B. Feldbaum: "We appreciate the difficult decision President Bush faced regarding federal funding of stem cell research, and we are pleased that the President determined the need for this research to continue. This was a good, clear, balanced outcome. As the President pointed out, advances in stem cell research could impact the lives of millions of desperately ill Americans who suffer from conditions for which there are no treatments, including Alzheimer's and Parkinson's diseases, various cancers, diabetes and spinal cord injuries. The President's decision is a major step forward for patients and the biotechnology industry. Among all the conditions that President Bush placed on this research with which we wholeheartedly agree, we have one reservation, which we believe will be worked out in time. Placing a limit on the number of cell lines available for this research may place roadblocks to medical progress, some of which may take years to overcome. . . . Again, we are very pleased with President Bush's concern for both the need for this critical research to continue, and for the ethical questions involved to be continuously and thoughtfully considered." (Biotechnology Industry Organization, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

Timothy McCaffrey, Associate Professor of Biochemistry and Molecular Biology, George Washington University Medical Center: "Considering the difficult positions he had to weigh, it appears to be quite a fair decision. Obviously, as a scientist, you want as few restrictions on your work as possible. But this doesn't disable the field at all. Compared with being unable to use federal funds, period, for stem cell research, this is a big step forward." (Carl T. Hall, "Scientists Worry How Policy Affects Them," The San Francisco Chronicle, August 10, 2001)

LeRoy Walters, Bioethicist, Georgetown University: "I think there will be a momentum effect. The pace of discovery will be accelerated and there may be the side benefit that some discoveries may be more available to researchers nationwide." (Sheryl Gay Stolberg, "The President's Decision: A Question Of Research," The New York Times, August 10, 2001)

Robert Lanza, Vice President of Medical and Scientific Development, Advanced Cell Technology in Worcester, Massachusetts: ". . . An important milestone in medical history. Up until now there was this black cloud that lingered over one of the most promising areas of biomedical research this century. This decision is going to spur a medical revolution as important as antibiotics and vaccines." (Anne E. Kornblut, and Mary Leonard, "A Limited OK On Stem-Cell Funds Bush Cites 'Promise' And 'Peril,' Allows Existing-Embryo Research," The Boston Globe, August 10, 2001)

Jeffrey T. Kahn, Director, Center for Bioethics at the University of Minnesota: "Had he banned this, all the research would have gone on at the private level, away from any oversight. If people take the federal money, they have to follow the federal rules." (David M. Shribman, "A Limited OK On Stem-Cell Funds Cautious Step Taken Toward A New World," The Boston Globe, August 10, 2001)

Doug Melton, Stem Cell Researcher, Harvard University: "If there are 60 lines that are robust, grow well and have the properties of human embryonic cell lines, that's news to me and it is good news." (Sheryl Gay Stolberg, "The President's Decision: A Question Of Research," The New York Times, August 10, 2001)

Dr. John Mendelsohn, President, University of Texas M. D. Anderson Cancer Center: "It's hard to crystal-ball this. I believe President Bush made the important decision, which is to go forward." (Sheryl Gay Stolberg, "The President's Decision: A Question Of Research," The New York Times, August 10, 2001)

Dr. John McDonald, Neuroscientist, Washington University (St. Louis): "He said he intends to apply soon for funds for research on human embryonic stem cells. McDonald is trying to find a way to heal injured spinal cords with stem cells. He said that he is pleased that some research will go forward. 'I'm very optimistic, and I think it's a good first step,' McDonald said." (Tina Hesman, "Stem Cell Decision Brings Support And Criticism," St. Louis Post-Dispatch, August 10, 2001)

Massachusetts Catholic Conference: "The Announcement by President Bush rejecting the use of federal funds for research using stem cells obtained through the destruction of human embryos deserves the highest praise. The President demonstrated the utmost in courage by refusing to compel millions of taxpayers against their conscience to promote the killing of human life for utilitarian purposes.

"President Bush had an opportunity to stand up for the dignity and inviolability of innocent human life and came through on the critical issues of cloning adn embryo-destroying research. Now we as a country can focus on positive solutions to the problems of disease and illness that involve the use of adult stem cells and not the cannibalism of human life itself.

"While the President's decision to permit research funding on sixty cell lines established from the previous destruction of embryos is disturbing, this does not diminish the significance of the President's refusal to fund research involving the future destruction of embryos.

"The President's announcement was clear, understandable, and well-reasoned. The public debate over this issue has been ably advanced as a result of his efforts tonight."

The Massachusetts Catholic Conference is the public policy office of the Roman Catholic Church in the Commonwealth, representing the Archdiocese of Boston and the Dioceses of Springfield, Worcester, and Fall River.

Reverend Jerry Falwell: "Fully believing President Bush and his commitment to the sanctity of life, I anticipated a statement that would maintain his integrity in this matter, however, only Solomon could have improved on the what the President did and said. He clearly maintained his integrity regarding the protection of unborn life. He also manifested his concern for the health and welfare of all Americans by allowing science to proceed unfettered but within reasonable moral boundaries. This was George W. Bush's finest hour thus far." (Dr. Jerry Falwell, Statement, August 9, 2001)

Reverend Jerry Falwell: "I've never been prouder of George W. Bush than I am right now. ... When I heard his words carefully and sincerely and with anguish spoken, when he finished, I said, the guy has not violated one tenet of his convictions in the pro-life position. . . . When I saw George Bush tonight and listened to him, I thought for a moment I was watching and listening [to] Ronald Reagan, and I cheered and said, 'God bless you, George Bush. Stay with it'" (Fox's "The Edge," August 9, 2001)

Focus On The Family, Dr. James Dobson: "Pro-life leaders were surprised - and largely pleased - with the thrust of Bush's announcement. Dr. James Dobson, president of Focus on the Family, told CNN's Larry King that the decision is a defining moment for Bush's presidency. 'From our perspective he didn't call for federal funds to be expended to take human life to kill those little embryos. (Bob Ditmer, Pete Winn and Karla Dial, "President Approves Limited Stem Cell Funding," In Focus, August 9, 2001)

Focus On The Family, Dr. James Dobson: "…I give the president's decision generally a thumbs-up. There are still some aspects to it that we want to look at, but I think he found a good solution for this stage." (CNN's "Larry King Live," August 9, 2001)

Christian Medical Society, Executive Director David Stevens: "Like many who heard the president's decision last night, I came away both encouraged and very concerned. I was encouraged to see our president drawing from the wisdom from a wide range of society, from the scientific and religious communities, as well as from everyday people. I was also encouraged to hear him commit to funding the tremendous promise of adult stem cell research, an alternative that may enable us to solve the problems of diabetes, Parkinson's disease, and a host of other chronic diseases. I was also encouraged to hear the formation of an advisory board that will continue to examine the important ethical aspects, as well as scientific progress, of stem cell research." (Christian Medical Society, Press Conference, August 10, 2001)

Pat Robertson's American Center for Law and Justice, Chief Counsel Jay Sekulow: "The American Center for Law and Justice, an international public interest law firm and educational organization, said President Bush's decision to prohibit the use of federal funds to destroy human embryos to obtain stem cells for research is the 'correct' decision on this critical issue. 'We are extremely pleased that the President has refused to permit the use of federal funds to be used to destroy human embryos and therefore human life,' said Jay Sekulow, Chief Counsel of the ACLJ. 'It is clear the President has given this issue very serious thought and consideration. And while all Americans hope that medical and scientific research result in new discoveries that provide cures for numerous maladies, the President also made it clear that he considers human embryos to be human life - sacred life - that must be protected. The President said 'no' to the most troubling aspect of this issue - the use of federal funds to destroy human embryos - to destroy human life. The President has reached the correct decision concerning one of the most serious ethical and moral issues of our day.'" (American Center For Law And Justice, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

National Right To Life Applauds President's Decision On Embryo-Destructive Stem Cell Research: "In an address to the nation this evening, President Bush announced that he would not allow federal funding of stem cell research that involves the killing of any more human embryos. 'We are delighted that President Bush's decision prevents the federal government from becoming a party to any further killing of human embryos for medical experimentation,' stated Laura Echevarria, director of Media Relations for the National Right to Life Committee. 'While National Right to Life mourns the loss of life for those embryos from whom stem cell lines have already been derived, nothing the National Right to Life Committee or President Bush can do can restore the lives of those embryos who have already died,' stated Ms. Echevarria. President Bush's decision will have no negative impact on ethical research involving stem cells derived from sources such as adult fat, blood, and bone marrow, as well as placentas and umbilical cord blood. Adult stem cells have been shown to be dramatically more effective, and have already been used to help patients. 'More and more people with disabling and chronic conditions are being helped by adult stem cell research,' stated Ms. Echevarria. According to a June (June 1-5, 2001) International Communications Research poll, 67 percent of those polled prefer having their tax dollars used for stem cell research 'using adult stem cells and other alternatives . . .' Only 18 percent favored federal support of research that included experiments which 'require destroying human embryos.' Moreover, instead of destroying human embryos through medical research, they may be adopted by parents. Indeed the demand for their adoption exceeds the number of embryos who could be adopted. 'We strongly commend the President's strong opposition to all human cloning and to the special creation of human embryos for research,' said NRLC Legislative Director Douglas Johnson. Last month a Massachusetts firm, Advanced Cell Technology, announced that it will soon begin attempting to create cloned human embryos for the purpose of harvesting their stem cells or using them in other lethal research (a practice referred to by the bio-tech industry as 'therapeutic cloning'). On July 31, the House of Representatives voted to ban all human cloning, including the creation of cloned embryos, 265-162. The legislation is now awaiting action in the Senate. President Bush has endorsed the bill. 'The Senate must act immediately to prevent the start-up of cloned human embryo farms in the United States,' Johnson said." (National Right To Life Committee, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

EDITORIALS:

The Dallas Morning News: "Mr. Bush supports scientific research. He has called for almost a 14 percent increase in the budget of the National Institutes of Health, to bring its fiscal 2002 budget to $23 billion. And the institutes' support for research on adult stem cells has been significant. What the president's decision means is that federal efforts will be able to be focused on more areas of promising stem cell research, including embryonic cells as well as those harvested from umbilical cord blood, placental tissue, adult and even newly engineered cells. Federal supervision and bio-ethical safeguards will be part of this revolutionary new area of science. The president should be commended for taking a conscientious, careful approach to the issue." (Editorial, "Stem Cells," Dallas Morning News, August 10, 2001)

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "After months of deliberation, President George W. Bush made a landmark decision on embryonic stem cell research that reflected the conscience of a moral nation. Drawing the difficult distinction between ethics and religion, Mr. Bush announced that the government would fund promising research on stem cells derived from frozen human embryos earmarked for destruction in fertility clinics. It was an incomprehensibly far-reaching verdict for any one person to undertake, especially a pro-life, Republican president leery of offending Catholics -- a swing voting bloc that may hold the key to his re-election. . . . For so many who are ailing and holding out hope, it does not matter why Mr. Bush made his decision. But if the president wants to be more responsive to the needs and genuine suffering of everyday citizens, he has made an excellent start." (Editorial, "Stem Cell Research," St. Louis Post-Dispatch, August 10, 2001)

The Boston Herald: "With his announcement last night President Bush has laid the groundwork for enormous advances in medical research and given real meaning to his campaign pledge to govern as a 'compassionate conservative.' . . . In approving the use of federal funds for stem cell research and on setting reasonable limits for the use of embryos in that research, Bush has found that middle ground with which most Americans will feel comfortable and comforted. Comfortable because few people see anything terribly wrong in the scientific use of portions of embryos (created in clinics for in vitro fertilization) that would be destroyed anyway. And comforted because if it is in the power of modern medicine to help those with Parkinson's disease, diabetes, Alzheimer's or spinal cord injuries, then we have a responsibility to do so. . . . George W. Bush last night committed this nation to just such a policy. It's the right one." (Editorial, "Bush Course Best On Stem Cell Work," The Boston Herald, August 10, 2001)

The Chicago Tribune: "The Tribune has advocated funding for research on stem cells extracted from a limited number of embryos created for the purpose of in vitro fertilization, and destined to be discarded. The decision Bush announced Wednesday night would fund research on some 60 existing cell lines, though not on new lines from additional embryos. . . . Bush's decision, and his admonition that "we must proceed with great care," reflect a similar uneasiness. But while his limits may be too strict, the president has in fact moved in the correct direction. If federally funded research begins to yield promising results, the limits Bush articulated could change." (Editorial, "Stem Cells And Caution," The Chicago Tribune, August 10, 2001)

USA Today: "Bush, in a televised address, did not go as far as many scientists would like, or as far as eventually will be necessary for effective research and treatment. He limited research to just 60 lines of stem cells from embryos that have already been destroyed. But he nevertheless went far enough to fuel Wasson's hopes and those of millions of others. It also is a reasonable way, at least for now, to set limits on a fast-moving field in which scientists' abilities have outpaced the public's ethical consensus. . . . Regardless, his change of heart should not be seen as a sign of weakness or opportunism, but as a difficult balance between personal beliefs and the national interest. . . . Bush's stem cell decision is a thoughtful first step toward resolving the ethical conundrums posed by the rapid advance of science. But how far is far enough? New rules are just a start." (Editorial, "Bush's Tough Choice Moves Critical Research Forward," USA Today, August 10, 2001)

ELECTED OFFICIALS AND POLITICAL FIGURES:

Senator Olympia Snowe: "The President made a thoughtful and responsible decision that gives scientists the tools they need to begin the exploration of this exciting frontier of medical research, which brings hope to millions of Americans suffering the effects of disease and illness. His decision, bolstered by a Presidential commission that will monitor research and establish guidelines, begins the process of opening the door to further progress. I know the President wrestled and struggled with this decision, reaching his conclusion only after discussing and meeting with advocates on both sides of this issue. . . . I believe his decision is right for our nation, and reflects the views of the vast majority of Americans with family members who have suffered from these illnesses. The President's decision tonight gives America's best and brightest researchers federal support, complimented by the work of the National Institutes of Health and the National Science Foundation, to explore to potential of these amazing cells, and ensure maintenance of the highest scientific and ethical standards." (Senator Snowe, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

Senator Tom Harkin: "I'm glad that the President has decided to permit and encourage our medical scientists to do stem cell research. As the Chairman of the Senate subcommittee that funds all medical research, I want to work with the President and Members of Congress to move this research forward in a robust, but ethical manner. We must also consult with our top scientists to make sure we have an adequate number of stem cell lines to allow this research to reach its fullest potential. Stem cells hold so much promise for curing illnesses like diabetes, Alzheimer's, Parkinson's and spinal cord injuries that we cannot afford to wait any longer." (Senator Tom Harkin, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

Senator Bill Frist: "I believe the president has done the nation a great service by allowing promising embryonic stem-cell research to proceed while maintaining strong restrictions on the extent of the research and ensuring comprehensive oversight." ("Reactions To Bush Decision On Stem-Cell Research," Reuters, August 9, 2001)

Senator Orrin Hatch: "I believe that the President's announcement is a major step in the right direction. This was a victory for biomedical research and the promise it holds for all Americans. I think what he did was positive. President Bush's decision allows very promising research to go forward, research that will potentially help up to 100 million Americans. The decision showed real presidential leadership. It was a thoughtful, deliberative decision made after prayer and the most careful consultation with ethicists, families, scientists, doctors and religious leaders." (Senator Orrin Hatch, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

Senator Sam Brownback: "I think the President really took a thoughtful line. I am concerned about some of the lines that he breeched through. But he also put clear limitations on things. And as we're going into this brand-new field, as we're looking at these possibilities, and we all want to cure these terrible diseases, I think he really tried to make a straight and narrow path as much as he could." (CBS' "The Early Show," August 10, 2001)

Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison: "'I think he is going in the right direction, and I know he gave this issue the careful consideration and weight it deserves,' she said." (Bennett Roth, "Headaches Ahead For Bush," The Houston Chronicle, August 9, 2001)

Senator Jean Carnahan: "I support continuing federal funding of stem-cell research within the current ethical guidelines. I will need to review the specifics of the president's proposal to ensure that it allows the most promising avenues of research to continue, but his declaration of support for federal funding of stem-cell research is a positive development." (Steven Thomma, "Bush Supports Limited Embroynic Stem-Cell Research," Knight Ridder, August 10, 2001)

Representative Benjamin A. Gilman: "I am pleased that President Bush, after fully examining this issue, has decided to support federal funding for limited embryonic stem cell research. Scientists have stated that embryonic stem cells may provide the key to developing cures for a variety of diseases including Parkinson's, Alzheimer's, juvenile diabetes and spinal cord injuries. By allowing federally funded research we are providing scientists with all the tools they need to proceed with this important research and, hopefully, will be able to achieve a number of cures at an early date." (Congressman Gilman, Press Release, August 10, 2001)

Representative Mike Pence: "'I was pleased that President Bush tonight refused to fund research that would destroy human embryos,' Pence said. 'The President drew a moral line earlier this year when he promised to "oppose federal funding for stem cell research that involved destroying living human embryos." I commend him for keeping his promise with tonight's decision. At its core, President Bush's statement reveals a continued commitment to his belief in the fundamental value and sanctity of human life. . . . For the President, tonight's decision was a pragmatic one. It satisfied supporters of stem cell research with limited funding, and it pleased opponents with a ban on further destruction of human embryos. I also truly believe President Bush searched his heart in arriving at this conclusion. In his statement this evening, the President revealed that he had wrestled with his conscience and with God over his decision.'" (Congressman Pence, Press Release, August 9, 2001)

The Republican Leadership Council: "'The fact that President Bush approached this important issue in such a deliberative manner ought to be commended,' stated Mark Miller, executive director of the RLC. 'The President considered all viewpoints and delivered a well thought out opinion based on his belief that this research will advance the greater good of society. . . . President Bush deserves credit for his thoughtful decision on an issue with tremendous implications for science and public health for years to come.'" (Republican Leadership Council, Press Release, August 10, 2001)

DRAFT

The Honorable Patty Murray
The Honorable Maria Cantwell

Dear Senator Murray and Senator Cantwell:

As you know, members of my staff recently met with members of your staff regarding a proposed commission for selection of district court judges in Washington, a process that has been employed for the past several years to assist the President in the selection of Washington district court judges. We understand that you have attempted to reach agreement with Congresswoman Jennifer Dunn (the President's designee for these purposes) about a proposed commission, but that you thus far have been unable to do so.

At this point, we thought we should reiterate some core principles on which we must insist with respect to any commission process in Washington. First, any commission must submit at least three names to the President for consideration (and the commission should be free to submit as many additional names as it sees fit). Second, the President must retain the right not to select any of the three individuals recommended by the commission, but rather to nominate an individual of his choosing. Third, absent extraordinary circumstances (for example, a nominee's previously unknown personal background issue), you must agree in advance to support the President's nominee if the President selects one of the names submitted by the commission. Fourth, the commission must not address court of appeals vacancies, but only district court vacancies.

Your staff made clear to us that you would prefer not to agree in advance to support the President's nominee even if the nominee were one of the names submitted by the commission. We understand your point of view, but we cannot accept it. The President necessarily cedes a certain degree of his constitutional authority to nominate judges when he both agrees to a commission process and nominates one of the individuals produced by a commission, rather than conducting his own independent search for a nominee. If the President is to do so, it is only fair that you agree, absent extraordinary circumstances relating to the nominee's personal background, to support the President's nominee if the nominee is one of the names submitted by the commission. That is particularly so because any candidate supported by a majority of the commission contemplated in this instance necessarily would have the support of at least one of your appointees (we understand that the commission being contemplated apparently would have four Senatorial appointees and four of Congresswoman Dunn's appointees).

We recognize that your negotiations with Congresswoman Dunn, based on her articulation of these principles, have not produced a result satisfactory to you. As observers of your negotiations with Congresswoman Dunn, we have come to believe that the continued disagreement may simply be a function of the inherent difficulty in overly formalizing a process to which the Constitution and tradition already speak in general terms that have stood the test of time. Under the Constitution, of course, the President ordinarily selects the nominee of his choice after consulting and receiving input from Senators, Members of the House of Representatives, other elected officials, and experienced members of the bar, among others. And under the Constitution, the Senate retains the power to confirm or reject the President's nominee. In addition, consistent with past and current practice, the two home-state Senators may retain some power through the blue-slip process to attempt to prevent a hearing for a district court nominee to whom they vigorously and legitimately object.

Given that you have been unable to reach agreement with Congresswoman Dunn thus far, I believe we may be near the point when we should terminate attempts to devise a precise structure that would satisfy all sides and when we instead should follow the ordinary processes ordained by the Constitution. We are confident that adherence to the traditional constitutional processes would produce excellent and widely respected Presidential nominees for the district courts in Washington.

We very much thank you and your staff for the time you have spent on this, and we look forward to your response.

Sincerely yours,

Alberto R. Gonzales
Counsel to the President

QUESTIONS PRESENTED

1. Whether the court of appeals misapplied the strict scrutiny standard in determining whether Congress had a compelling interest to enact legislation designed to remedy the effects of racial discrimination.

2. Whether the United States Department of Transportation's current Disadvantaged Business Enterprise program is narrowly tailored to serve a compelling governmental interest.

OPINIONS BELOW

The opinion of the court of appeals (Pet. App. 1-98) is reported at 228 F.3d 1147. The opinion of the district court (Pet. App. 128-201) is reported at 965 F. Supp. 1556.

JURISDICTION

The judgment of the court of appeals was entered on September 25, 2000. The petition for a writ of certiorari was filed on November 3, 2000. The Court granted certiorari on March 26, 2001, and on April 13, 2001, limited the grant to two reformulated questions presented. The jurisdiction of this Court is invoked under 28 U.S.C. 1254(1).

STATEMENT

Congress has found that many Americans, because "of their identification as members of certain groups that have suffered the effects of discriminatory practices or similar invidious circumstances over which they have no control," lack equal "opportunity for full participation in our free enterprise system," and thus are "socially and economically disadvantaged" on account of race or ethnicity. 15 U.S.C.

REV_00020192

631(f)(1). See also Act of Oct. 24, 1978, Pub. L. No. 95-507, § 201, 92 Stat. 1760. Congress therefore has attempted to ensure that past discrimination and present bias do not "cause federal funds to be distributed in a manner" which reflects and "reinforce[s] prior patterns of discrimination." City of Richmond v. J.A. Croson Co., 488 U.S. 469, 504 (1989). E.g., Fullilove v. Klutznick, 448 U.S. 448, 465 (1980) (plurality) (upholding legislation addressing the "effects of past inequalities stemming from racial prejudice" that continue to "adversely affect[] our present economic system" (quoting H.R. Rep. No. 468, 94th Cong., 1st Sess. 1-2 (1975))).

This case arises out of Congress's longstanding efforts to distribute federal highway construction and transit funds, and the opportunities created by those funds, in a manner that does not reflect or reinforce prior and existing patterns of discrimination in that industry. Specifically, this case concerns the constitutionality of Congress's recent reauthorization of programs designed to address discrimination in highway contracting, and the Department of Transportation's (DOT's) efforts to implement that statutory directive.

As petitioner concedes (Br. 15), there has been considerable confusion over precisely which statutory and regulatory provisions petitioner is challenging. The district court held that the Subcontractor Compensation Clause (SCC) that petitioner originally challenged was unconstitutional, Pet. App. 200; the court of appeals affirmed that conclusion, id. at 59-60; DOT has not sought further review; and that program has been discontinued. The regulatory provisions that this Court considered in Adarand Constructors, Inc. v. Peña, 515 U.S. 200 (1995) (Adarand I), moreover, have been replaced with new regulations designed to respond to that decision, 64 Fed. Reg. 5096, 5101-5103, 5129 (1999); 49 C.F.R. Pt. 26; see also 61 Fed. Reg. 26,042-26,063 (1996).

Consequently, what remains in controversy in this case is quite narrow; the case at most involves a facial challenge to Congress's reauthorization of the Disadvantaged Business Enterprise (DBE) program and the current version of the regulations that implement that statutory provision. Petitioner, moreover, purports to limit its challenge further, asserting (Br. 15-16, 27) that it is not challenging any of the conditions DOT places on aid to the States and localities through DOT's DBE program. Instead, petitioner now claims that it is challenging only the statutes and regulations relating to DOT's direct procurement of highway construction on federal lands, which represents a small fraction (less than one percent in 1999) of total federal highway construction and transit spending. DOT, however, does not use race-conscious factors (such as incentives or contract goals) in making direct federal procurement decisions in any jurisdiction in which petitioner operates. The court of appeals held that petitioner lacks standing to challenge the direct federal procurement provisions that petitioner now targets; and petitioner never sought review of that holding. Thus, it is not at all clear that there remains any cognizable controversy before the Court.

Nonetheless, the decision below, this Court's second question presented, and even petitioner at various points in its brief, focus on DOT's DBE regulations, which govern DOT's aid program for States and localities. Unlike the direct federal procurement provisions, DOT's DBE regulations for state and local aid permit the award of contracts based on race-conscious measures in jurisdictions in which petitioner operates and so provide a potential basis for prospective relief. A description of those DOT regulations, of the regulations governing direct federal procurement in all federal agencies, and of this case's complex procedural history is set forth below.

1. DOT's Current DBE Program. In response to this Court's decision in Adarand I, DOT in February of 1999 issued new regulations revamping its DBE program. Consistent with TEA-21 (§ 1101(b)(2)(B), 112 Stat. 113), DOT's DBE program employs the definitions of "social" and "economic" disadvantage contained in the Small Business Act (SBA), 15 U.S.C. 631 et seq. See also Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 208 (noting similar incorporation of those definitions by TEA-21's predecessors). Thus, for purposes of the DBE program, an individual is "[s]ocially disadvantaged" if he or she has been "subjected to racial or ethnic prejudice or cultural bias because of" his or her "identity as a member of a group without regard to * * * individual qualities." 15 U.S.C. 637(a)(5). An individual is "[e]conomically disadvantaged" if his or her "ability to compete in the free enterprise system has been impaired due to diminished capital and credit opportunities as compared to others in the same business area who are not socially disadvantaged." 15 U.S.C. 637(a)(6)(A). Those basic definitions are race-neutral. The determining factor is not the individual's race; it is having suffered discrimination on account of race, ethnicity or cultural bias—without regard to what that race, ethnicity or culture might be—and having sustained diminished capital and credit opportunities compared to those who have not been victims of such discrimination. The Secretary's regulations make it clear that the DBE program is aimed at everyone, regardless of race or ethnicity, who meets the statutory criteria for social and economic disadvantage based on individual experience. See 49 C.F.R. 26.61(b) & Pt. 26, App. E.

As required by Congress in TEA-21, § 1101(b)(2)(B), 112 Stat. 113, the Secretary's regulations also incorporate a race-based presumption from the SBA. See Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 204 (noting similar requirement in predecessor statute). In particular, TEA-21 adopts the SBA's presumption "that socially and economically disadvantaged individuals include Black Americans, Hispanic Americans, Native Americans, Asian Pacific Americans, and other minorities, or any other individual found to be disadvantaged by the [Small Business] Administration pursuant to section 8(a) of the" SBA, 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(3)(C). See 49 C.F.R. 26.67(a). Pursuant to the statute, see TEA-21 § 1101(b)(2)(B), 112 Stat. 113, the Secretary's regulations articulate a further presumption that women are disadvantaged in the highway construction and transit industry. See 49 C.F.R. 26.67(a). Those presumptions of social and economic disadvantage are rebuttable. See 49 C.F.R. 26.67(a) and (b).

Pursuant to his authority to "establish minimum uniform criteria for State governments to use in certifying whether a concern qualifies" as a DBE, see TEA-21, § 1101(b)(4), 112 Stat. 114; Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 208, the Secretary has issued regulations designed to channel benefits under the DBE program to firms owned by individuals who are, in fact, socially and economically disadvantaged. DOT thus requires, 49 C.F.R. 26.67(a)(1), that applicants for DBE certification who are statutorily presumed to be disadvantaged "submit a signed, notarized certification that" they are "in fact, socially and economically disadvantaged." By statute, applicants are not, in fact, socially and economically disadvantaged unless they have been "subjected to racial or ethnic prejudice or cultural bias because of their identity as a member of a group without regard to their individual qualities," 15 U.S.C. 637(a)(5), and their "ability to compete in the free enterprise system has been impaired due to diminished capital and credit opportunities as compared to others in the same business area who are not socially disadvantaged," 15 U.S.C. 637(a)(6)(A). The regulations admonish applicants that DOT "may refer to the Department of Justice, for prosecution under 18 U.S.C. 1001 or other applicable provisions of law, any person who makes a false or fraudulent statement in connection with participation of a DBE in any DOT-assisted program." 49 C.F.R. 26.107(e).

Applicants for DBE certification must also disclose their owners' personal net worth, with appropriate documentation. 49 C.F.R. 26.67(a)(2)(i). If the owner's covered assets exceed $750,000, the presumption of economic disadvantage is conclusively rebutted and the individual is ineligible for the DBE program, regardless of race, ethnicity or gender. 49 C.F.R. 26.67(b)(1). Anyone may challenge DBE certifications. 49 C.F.R. 26.87. If a state or local grant recipient has a reasonable basis to believe that the owner of a DBE in fact is not socially and economically disadvantaged, it may commence an investigation. 49 C.F.R. 26.67(b)(2).

To ensure that remedies for the effects of discrimination are tailored to local conditions, the Secretary's regulations require States and localities receiving federal aid to establish numerical measurements, based on local DBE availability and other evidence, to assess discrimination in their own jurisdictions. In particular, state and local recipients must estimate "the level of DBE participation [the recipient] would expect absent the effects of discrimination." 49 C.F.R. 26.45(b). Recipients are expressly prohibited from establishing a rigid figure based on past goals, a flat ten percent goal, or the racial composition of the local populace. Ibid. Instead, recipients must first consider "demonstrable evidence of the availability of ready, willing and able DBEs relative to all businesses ready, willing and able to participate on * * * DOT-assisted contracts." 49 C.F.R. 26.45(b) and (c). Recipients then must "examine all of the evidence available" in the jurisdiction to determine what adjustments should be made to ensure that the resulting standard realistically reflects the level of DBE participation that would be expected absent the effects of discrimination. 49 C.F.R. 26.45(d).

With respect to remedies, the Secretary's regulations provide that state and local aid recipients must seek to eliminate the effects of discrimination through race- and gender-neutral means to the maximum feasible extent. 49 C.F.R. 26.51(a). Recipients must consider arranging solicitations in ways that facilitate participation by all small businesses, including DBEs; providing race-neutral assistance in overcoming limitations such as the inability to obtain bonding or financing; offering technical assistance and services to small businesses; and engaging in outreach efforts. 49 C.F.R. 26.51(b). Race-conscious measures, such as DBE goals for individual contracts, may be used only if race-neutral means prove insufficient. 49 C.F.R. 26.51(d). Quotas are expressly prohibited, and the Secretary will not authorize the use of set-asides except in the most egregious instances of otherwise irremediable discrimination. 49 C.F.R. 26.43. Recipients must discontinue the use of race-conscious measures if, at any point, it appears that they can achieve adequate DBE participation through race-neutral means. 49 C.F.R. 26.51(f)(1).

Recipients of DOT financial assistance may apply to DOT for waivers from almost any DBE regulation if they can achieve or have achieved equal opportunity through other approaches, or if special circumstances make compliance impractical. 49 C.F.R. 26.15. Moreover, no penalty is imposed on contractors or recipients for failing to meet annual goals. 49 C.F.R. 26.47. When race- and gender-neutral measures are inadequate and a recipient establishes a DBE participation goal for particular contracts, contractors need only pursue that goal in good faith; they are not required to achieve it. 49 C.F.R. 26.53(a). If a "bidder/offeror does document adequate good faith efforts," a State or locality "must not deny award of the contract on the basis that the bidder/offeror failed to meet the goal." 49 C.F.R. 26.53(a)(2).

2. Direct Federal Procurement. Although the above-described regulations are the only provisions that may arguably provide any basis for prospective relief, petitioner asserts that it is not challenging those provisions, and purports to challenge only the statutory and regulatory provisions that govern DOT's direct procurement of highway construction on federal lands. The procedures and standards for certifying DBEs in the state and local aid program (described pp. 3-5, supra), and those used for purposes of direct federal procurement share some critical features. See Pet. Br. 10; see note 1, infra. Nonetheless, DOT's direct procurement is generally governed by a different regulatory regime. In particular, while DOT's state and local aid program is governed by DOT's DBE regulations, issued by the Secretary of Transportation under TEA-21, direct federal procurement is governed by the SBA, including Section 8(d)(4)-(6), 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(4)-(6) and the regulations promulgated thereunder. See 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,043 & n.5; 64 Fed. Reg. at 5096; 49 C.F.R. 26.3. Those provisions are not specific to DOT; they apply government-wide.

The SBA broadly seeks to promote contracting opportunities for small businesses, including small disadvantaged businesses or "SDBs" (which are similar to DBEs),[1] HUBZone small businesses, veteran-owned businesses, service-disabled veteran-owned businesses, and women-owned businesses. Section 8(d)(1) of the SBA establishes a policy of ensuring that such businesses have opportunities to participate in the performance of federal contracts. 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(1). Section 8(d)(4) of the SBA requires businesses seeking federal contracts to adopt, and make a good faith effort to comply with, a subcontracting plan. 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(4); 48 C.F.R. 19.702. Under Section 8(d)(6), the subcontracting plan must describe the efforts the business will undertake to ensure "that small business concerns" including SDBs, women-owned businesses, HUBZone businesses, and veteran-owned businesses, "will have an equitable opportunity to compete for subcontracts." 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(6)(C). Although the subcontracting plan must establish "percentage goals" for the use of such businesses, 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(6)(A); 48 C.F.R. 19.704, no penalty may be imposed on any prime contractor that fails to meet those goals, so long as the prime contractor has made a "good faith effort," 48 C.F.R. 19.705-7. Finally, the SBA authorizes federal agencies to use financial or other incentives as the agency "may deem appropriate in order to encourage" subcontracting with such small businesses. See 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(4)(E).

Following this Court's decision in Adarand I, the Justice Department issued proposed guidelines to govern the use of

[1] The Small Business Administration's regulations governing SDB certification recognize a rebuttable presumption of disadvantage (13 C.F.R. 124.103(b)(1), 124.1008(e)(1)), require a statement of social disadvantage (13 C.F.R. 124.103, 124.1008(e)), impose a cap of $250,000 or $750,000 for determining economic disadvantage (13 C.F.R. 124.104(c)(2), 124.1008(e)(1)), and allow any person to challenge a certification decision (13 C.F.R. 124.103(b)(3), 124.1008(e)(1)(ii), 124.1017). Women-owned businesses are not presumed to be SDBs under the SBA, but they are presumed to be DBEs under TEA-21 and DOT's regulations. The Small Business Administration and DOT recently entered into a cooperative agreement regarding the use of certifications in the two programs. See 66 Fed. Reg. 23,208 (2001).

race-conscious remedies under the SBA, such as contract goals and financial incentives, to ensure compliance with constitutional requirements. See 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,042; 48 C.F.R. 19.201. Those guidelines in some respects parallel DOT's DBE program. The Department of Commerce now performs market-specific benchmark studies to estimate "the level of" SDB "contracting that one would reasonably expect to find in a market absent discrimination or its effects." 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,045. Compare pp. 6-7, supra (DOT requirement for federal aid recipients). The Department of Commerce begins by calculating the capacity of SDBs available and qualified to perform government contracts in the relevant region and industry, and then compares that to the capacity of non-SDB contractors, accounting for additional factors such as age and size. See 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,045-26,046. The Department of Commerce then may make adjustments based on relevant data, and regression analysis that "holds constant a variety of variables that might affect business formation so that the effect of race can be isolated." Id. at 26,046. Where the comparison between the benchmarks and actual SDB utilization do not indicate a disparity suggesting discrimination or its continuing effects, the guidelines prohibit federal agencies from using race-conscious mechanisms to promote SDB participation. See id. at 26,046-26,047; 48 C.F.R. 19.201(b).

If, on the other hand, the benchmark study reveals disparities suggesting that discrimination or its effects still influence the allocation of federal opportunities and funds, the guidelines "require[] that agencies at all times use race-neutral alternatives," such as technical assistance and outreach, "to the maximum extent possible." See 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,049. For example, agencies must consider eliminating surety costs from bids where bonding presents a barrier to entry, ensure that SDBs are not excluded from mailing lists, and eliminate practices that disproportionately disadvantage SDBs. Ibid. See also 48 C.F.R. 19.202-2. Contracting officers must also consider dividing contracts into reasonably small lots, adjusting delivery schedules, or altering contract structures to facilitate small business participation. 48 C.F.R. 19.202-1. Only "where those efforts are insufficient to overcome the effects of past and present discrimination can race-conscious efforts be invoked." 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,049. Even then, agencies may not "set contracts aside for bidding exclusively by" SDBs. Id. at 26,048. The system thus represents "a good faith effort to remedy the effect of discrimination," but without guaranteeing any particular level of SDB contracting. Ibid.

The Department of Commerce has completed one benchmark study. See 64 Fed. Reg. at 52,806; 63 Fed. Reg. 35,714 (1998). As a result of that study, the use of race-conscious criteria in direct federal procurement of highway construction is proscribed in a majority of regions. See 64 Fed. Reg. at 52,807 (for major industry group 16, race-conscious criteria proscribed except in the East and West South Central regions). Consequently, as petitioner concedes, DOT cannot use race-conscious remedies to encourage the use of DBEs in direct federal procurement contracts in areas "such as Colorado, Adarand's area of operations." Pet. Br. 14.

3. Procedural History. This case arose out of the Federal Highway Administration's (FHWA's) former use of SCCs, a now-rescinded device the FHWA used under the statutes that preceded TEA-21. The FHWA is the agency within DOT responsible for highway construction programs. SCCs provided bonus payments as a financial incentive to prime contractors for subcontracting with SDBs/DBEs on direct federal highway construction projects. See Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 209. The district court declared the SCC program, as previously administered, unconstitutional, Pet. App. 200; the court of appeals affirmed that conclusion, id. at 59-60; and DOT has not sought review of that ruling. As a result, the now-rescinded SCC, the only feature of DOT's former regulatory regime ever allegedly applied to petitioner's detriment, is no longer at issue in this case. This lawsuit, however, has outlived the program that provoked it.

a. In 1989, the FHWA's Central Federal Lands Highway Division awarded a prime contract to construct a highway on federal land in West Dolores, Colorado, to Mountain Gravel & Construction Company. Pet. App. 132. The contract contained an SCC, and Mountain Gravel selected Gonzales Construction, a DBE certified by the State of Colorado, to be a subcontractor on a portion of the job, id. at 132-133. On August 10, 1990, petitioner brought this action for declaratory and injunctive relief, claiming that Mountain Gravel had rejected its lower bid for the West Dolores subcontract because of the SCC. Adarand, 515 U.S. at 205. The complaint alleged that the SCC violated 42 U.S.C. 1983, 42 U.S.C. 2000d et seq. (Title VI), and the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments.

The district court initially upheld the SCC under intermediate scrutiny, Adarand Constructors, Inc. v. Skinner, 790 F. Supp. 240, 244-245 (D. Colo. 1992), and the Tenth Circuit affirmed, Adarand Constructors, Inc. v. Peña, 16 F.3d 1537, 1539 (10th Cir. 1994). This Court vacated the court of appeals' judgment, holding that strict scrutiny governs whether race-based classifications violate the equal protection component of the Fifth Amendment's Due Process Clause. Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 227. The Court remanded the case for a determination of "whether any of the ways in which the Government uses subcontractor compensation clauses can survive strict scrutiny." Id. at 238.

Following remand, petitioner filed a First Amended Complaint, seeking, inter alia, a declaration that "§ 105(f) of STAA, § 106(c) of STURAA, § 1003(b) of ISTEA, § 8(d) of the SBA (15 U.S.C. § 637(d)) and 15 U.S.C. § 644(g), the regulations promulgated thereunder, and the contract provisions promulgated pursuant to those statutes and regulations are unconstitutional as applied to highway construction in the State of Colorado." Pet. App. 141.[2] In June of 1997,

[2] The STAA, the STURAA, and ISTEA are the statutory predecessors to TEA-21. The STAA is the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, Pub. L. No. 97-424, § 105(f), 96 Stat. 2100; STURAA is the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987, Pub. L. No. 100-17, § 106(c)(2)(B), 101 Stat. 146; and ISTEA is the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act of 1991 (ISTEA), Pub. L. No. 102-

before the Secretary's revised regulations (described pp. 3-7, supra) took effect, the district court granted petitioner's motion for summary judgment. Pet. App. 128-201. The court found that the DBE program met the compelling interest requirement of the strict scrutiny test. The court was "unpersuaded by [petitioner's] argument that the vast body of evidence before Congress as it considered the challenged enactments, and the numerous studies compiled more recently," are insufficient to establish Congress's compelling interest. Id. at 177. Congress, the court held, had "a strong basis in evidence from which it could conclude there were significant discriminatory barriers facing minority businesses." Id. at 178.

The district court, however, concluded that the SCC program was not sufficiently narrowly tailored to meet that need. Pet. App. 181-200. The court thus declared unconstitutional Section 106(c) of STURAA and Section 1003(b) of ISTEA, which authorized the DBE program for federally aided state and local projects, as well as the SCC, which was used in direct federal procurement of highway construction on federal lands. Id. at 200-201. DOT moved for the court to clarify the scope of the order, arguing that the federal aid program for state and local projects was not at issue, but the court denied DOT's motion. R. 109 (June 23, 1997).

b. In 1998, while the case was pending on appeal before the Tenth Circuit, Congress reconsidered the DBE program and determined that remedial measures remained necessary to address the effects of discrimination and, accordingly, reauthorized those measures in TEA-21. Congress considered evidence of overt discrimination in the awarding of subcontracts; discrimination in the provision of business loans and bonding; and the adverse consequences of an "old-boy" network and bid-shopping practices that continued the exclusion of certain groups. 144 Cong. Rec. S1409, S1413, 240, § 1003(b), 105 Stat. 1919-1921. The definitions of social and economic disadvantage, including the racial presumptions, have remained essentially unchanged from the STAA to TEA-21.

S1422, S1429-1430 (Mar. 5, 1998). See 64 Fed. Reg. at 5100-5102 (summarizing). It also considered data showing that, where States terminated their own DBE programs, DBE participation in the state-funded portion of the highway program fell to nearly zero. See 144 Cong. Rec. at S1404, S1409-1410, S1420 (Mar. 5, 1998); id. at S1482 (Mar. 6, 1998).

Congress also considered DOT's proposed revisions to its DBE regulations. DOT had proposed those revisions to respond to this Court's decision in Adarand I, to address outstanding practical concerns, and to ensure that the program more narrowly benefits small firms owned by individuals who truly have suffered the effects of discrimination. 144 Cong. Rec. at S1409, S1423-1425, S1430-1431 (Mar. 5, 1998); id. at S1485-1486 (Mar. 6, 1998); id. at S5413-5414 (May 22, 1998). The House Report noted that DOT would continue its review of "the DBE program in light of recent court rulings" and noted that DOT had "proposed new regulations to ensure that the program withstands constitutional muster." H. R. Rep. No. 550, 105th Cong., 2d Sess. 410 (1998). During the debates, both houses of Congress considered and rejected two amendments that would have eliminated the DBE program. 144 Cong. Rec. at S1496 (Mar. 6, 1998), H2011 (Apr. 1, 1998). In February of 1999, DOT issued the anticipated regulations, described above, pp. 3-7, supra.

c. Shortly thereafter, in March of 1999, the court of appeals held the case moot because Colorado had certified petitioner as a DBE. Adarand Constructors, Inc. v. Slater, 169 F.3d 1292 (10th Cir. 1999). This Court reversed. Adarand v. Slater, 528 U.S. 216 (2000) (per curiam). After this Court remanded the case, the FHWA eliminated the SCC, the financial incentive program the Court had considered in Adarand I. See Pet. App. 97 ("Adarand does not dispute" that "the SCC, which spawned this litigation in 1989, is no longer in use.").

4. The Court of Appeals' Decision. After supplemental briefing in light of those developments, the court of appeals affirmed in part and reversed in part. Pet. App. 1-81.

a. The court of appeals first identified the statutory and regulatory provisions properly at issue in this case. The court of appeals concluded that petitioner had standing to challenge the SCC program, which had formed part of the contract petitioner had been denied, and to raise a facial challenge to "the race-based rebuttable presumption used in some certifications under the Subcontracting Compensation Clause" and incorporated from the SBA into TEA-21. Pet. App. 13. The court of appeals, however, concluded that petitioner lacks standing to challenge the presumption of disadvantage for women-owned enterprises. Id. at 13-14. The court further held that petitioner lacks standing to challenge any provision of the SBA other than the definitions that are incorporated into TEA-21. Thus, the court concluded that petitioner cannot make a "generalized challenge" to the SBA's policy regarding contracting opportunities for small disadvantaged businesses, or "paragraphs (4)-(6) of 15 U.S.C. 637(d)," i.e., Sections 8(d)(4)-(6) of the SBA, which address subcontracting plans. Pet. App. 14. See also id. at 86 n.35.

b. Turning to the constitutionality of the statutes and regulations properly at issue, the court of appeals agreed with the district court that the government had established a compelling interest in "eradicating the economic roots of racial discrimination in highway transportation programs funded by federal monies," Pet. App. 54, and in "remedying the effects of racial discrimination and opening up federal contracting opportunities to members of previously excluded minority groups," id. at 25. The court of appeals found "a strong basis in [the] evidence" before Congress for concluding "that racial discrimination and its continuing effects have distorted the market for public contracts." Id. at 24. For example, the court noted evidence before Congress showing that prime contractors refused "to employ minority subcontractors due to 'old boy' networks," id. at 34. See also id. at 41 (noting that the evidence "strongly supports the thesis that informal, racially exclusionary business networks dominate the subcontracting construction industry, shutting out competition from minority firms"). The evidence was "particularly striking in the area of the race-based denial of access to capital." Id. at 35. See also id. at 34-38 (reviewing evidence). Minority subcontractors also confronted "overt racial discrimination" in areas such as the provision of performance and payment bonds needed to compete for government contracts. Id. at 42-43. Further, the court explained, there was evidence of discrimination in pricing by suppliers, under which "nonminority subcontractors receive special prices and discounts from suppliers not available to minority subcontractors," a practice that makes minority subcontractors less competitive. Id. at 44.

The court of appeals also relied on local disparity studies conducted by numerous state and local governments. Pet. App. 44-48. While conceding the limitations on those sources, the court concluded that the consistent disparity between the use and availability of qualified DBE subcontractors "raises an inference that the various discriminatory factors" that Congress had identified had "created that disparity." Id. at 46. The significance of the studies, the court explained, was increased by specific evidence showing that discrimination reduced the opportunities of existing minority enterprises and prevented the formation of new ones. Id. at 48. Finally, the court noted that, when States discontinued their own DBE programs, DBE participation dropped dramatically or disappeared altogether. Id. at 49. "Although that evidence standing alone is not dispositive, it strongly supports the government's claim that there are significant barriers to minority competition in the public subcontracting market, raising the specter of racial discrimination." Ibid.

The court of appeals declined to accept petitioner's "vague urgings" that the studies were unreliable, Pet. App. 46-47 n.14, or petitioner's "highly general criticism" of methodology, id. at 51. Petitioner, the court explained, had failed to identify specific flaws in the studies or introduce evidence of its own in district court, despite opportunities to do so. Ibid. In sum, the court concluded, the evidence "demonstrates that both the race-based barriers to entry and the ongoing race-based impediments to success faced by minority sub-contracting enterprises * * * are caused either by continuing discrimination or the lingering effects of past discrimination on the relevant market." Id. at 52. "The Constitution does not obligate Congress to stand by idly and continue to pour money into an industry so shaped by the effects of discrimination that the profits to be derived from congressional appropriations accrue exclusively to the beneficiaries, however personally innocent, of the effects of racial prejudice." Ibid.

c. The court of appeals also concluded that the current DBE program is "narrowly tailored." The court first found that certain provisions of the prior DBE certification process failed the narrow-tailoring test. Pet. App. 72-74. Specifically, it held that the automatic use of financial bonuses to encourage use of DBEs, as originally contemplated by the SCC, could not pass constitutional muster. Id. at 79-80. But the court concluded that the new DOT regulations cured the constitutional deficiencies. Ibid. The court of appeals explained that petitioner had not challenged the district court's finding that Congress had tried without success to cure the effects of discrimination through race-neutral means. Id. at 57-58. Moreover, DOT's regulations require recipients to maximize the use of race-neutral means before resorting to race-conscious methods, 49 C.F.R. 26.51(a), a requirement that helps to ensure narrow tailoring. Pet. App. 59-60.

The court of appeals also stressed the program's durational limits. The DOT DBE program itself expires at the end of fiscal year 2003 together with TEA-21. Pet. App. 62-63. Congress's extensive debate regarding whether to renew the DBE program before passing TEA-21 underscored Congress's view that there was a continuing remedial need for the DBE program. Ibid.

The court of appeals held that the DBE program complied with the narrow tailoring considerations discussed in United States v. Paradise, 480 U.S. 149 (1987). First, the court found that 49 C.F.R. 26.15's express waiver provision, which allows recipients to seek exemption from DBE requirements "despite the already non-mandatory nature of DBE programs," afforded appropriate flexibility. Pet. App. 64. Second, each state and local recipient of federal funds must establish its own numerical goals based on local circumstances. Id. at 66. Third, the DBE program does not impose an undue burden on third parties. Id. at 69-71. For example, the new regulations "require recipients to ensure that DBEs are not 'so overconcentrated in a certain type of work as to unduly burden the opportunity of non-DBE firms to participate.'" Id. at 70 (quoting 49 C.F.R. 26.33(a)). Finally, the court of appeals rejected petitioner's argument that Congress must inquire into discrimination against each particular minority group in each State's construction industry, so as to ensure that the DBE program is not over- or underinclusive. Id. at 71-79.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

I. DOT's current DBE program is not unconstitutional on its face. DOT has discontinued the SCC program that caused petitioner's alleged injury, and petitioner alleges no specific injury from DOT's current regulations. Accordingly, petitioner can mount only an abstract facial challenge, and cannot prevail unless it can demonstrate that TEA-21's DBE provisions and the implementing regulations are incapable of constitutional application.

Petitioner has narrowed its challenge to DOT's direct federal procurement activities. However, DOT does not employ any race-conscious measures in making direct procurement decisions in any jurisdiction in which petitioner does business. Accordingly, petitioner lacks standing to challenge the only program it purports to challenge. Indeed, the court of appeals specifically held that petitioner lacks standing to challenge the statutory provisions petitioner now targets, and petitioner has never challenged that holding. It is hard to imagine a more abstract vehicle for this Court to address the serious constitutional issues raised by petitioner.

II. A. DOT's DBE program promotes the "compelling interest in assuring that public dollars, drawn from the tax contributions of all citizens, do not serve to finance the evil of private prejudice." City of Richmond v. J.A. Croson Co.,

488 U.S. 469, 492 (1989) (plurality opinion of O'Connor, J.). Petitioner concedes (Br. 22) that the use of race-conscious measures as "a last resort effort to 'remedy private discrimination'" constitutes a "possible justification" for race-conscious government action. Petitioner, therefore, concentrates its attack not on the sufficiency of the government's interest, but on the adequacy of the record before Congress. But Congress authorized the Secretary to adopt a DBE program against a backdrop of extensive evidence of public and private discrimination in highway contracting. Congress likewise authorized the DBE program only after race-neutral efforts to improve access to capital and ease bonding requirements had proven inadequate. Congress then reauthorized the DBE program on three separate occasions, each time after further investigation. Whatever the alleged methodological shortcomings of some of the studies before Congress, Congress had a sufficient evidentiary basis to enact legislation designed to ensure that federal funds do not reinforce observed patterns of discrimination. This is true even if Congress did not have evidence of discrimination in every jurisdiction across the Nation. Congress is not limited to remedying discrimination that exists uniformly throughout the United States, especially where the implementing regulations seek to limit race-conscious remedies to jurisdictions where the effects of discrimination remain a problem and race-neutral remedies have proved insufficient.

B. Congress, as part of its effort to address the lingering problem of discrimination in the distribution of contracting opportunities in federally aided highway projects, granted substantial discretion to the Secretary. DOT regulations defeat petitioner's claim that the program is unconstitutional on its face. First, notwithstanding the statute's racial presumption, the regulations seek to limit DBE status to firms owned by individuals who have suffered the effects of discrimination. Discrimination, not race, is the key to DBE status. For example, if a firm's owner exceeds regulatory net-worth limits, the firm cannot qualify as a DBE, no matter what the owner's race. Second, state and local recipients of federal aid must assess the local market to determine whether there is a need for race-conscious remedies to redress the effects of discrimination in their jurisdiction. Even where such a need is identified, aid recipients may use race-conscious remedies only as a last resort. Third, the regulations have built-in flexibility to allow aid recipients to address the specific problems confronted in a particular jurisdiction. For example, the regulations make most regulatory provisions waivable. Although petitioner suggests that certain aspects of those regulations will prove ineffectual and that others deviate from the statutory design, neither of those concerns is properly presented in this facial challenge.

Finally, petitioner argues that, even with those regulatory safeguards, the use of the statutory race-based presumption of disadvantage by itself renders the entire program unconstitutional. But this Court has never suggested that the government may not take race into account in attempting to identify the effects of racial discrimination. In jurisdictions where race-neutral remedies suffice, the statutory presumptions of disadvantage serve only to help identify underutilization of DBEs that may evidence discrimination or its effects. In other jurisdictions, the presumptions may result in providing contracting opportunities to businesses owned by individuals who have certified (in a notarized document and subject to the possibility of criminal prosecution) that they have suffered the effects of discrimination, but that is no basis for invalidating the statute and the Secretary's regulations on their face.

ARGUMENT

I. PETITIONER CANNOT PREVAIL ON ITS FACIAL CHALLENGE AND LACKS STANDING TO CHALLENGE THE STATUTORY AND REGULATORY PROVISIONS IT NOW PURPORTS TO CHALLENGE

In this case, petitioner seeks a declaration that the DBE program is unconstitutional "on its face," Pet. Br. 9, to the extent it borrows a racial presumption from Section 8(d)(3) of the SBA to identify socially and economically disadvantaged individuals. Because petitioner challenges the statute and regulations on their face, petitioner cannot prevail merely by asserting that they might be applied in an unconstitutional manner. Instead, petitioner may prevail only if it "[i]s apparent that" the statute and regulations "could never be applied in a valid manner." Members of the City Council of the City of Los Angeles v. Taxpayers for Vincent, 466 U.S. 789, 797-798 (1984) (emphasis added). A facial challenge is thus "the most difficult challenge to mount successfully, since the challenger must establish that no set of circumstances exists under which the [law] would be valid. The fact that the [law] might operate unconstitutionally under some conceivable set of circumstances is insufficient to render it wholly invalid." United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 745 (1987). Accordingly, the narrow issue before the Court is whether the statutory DBE presumption and DOT's DBE regulations are incapable of constitutional application.[3]

Petitioner purports to narrow further the issues before this Court by limiting its challenge to the statutory provisions that govern direct federal procurement. Petitioner has always focused on the statutory definitions of "socially and economically disadvantaged," which Congress incorporated into TEA-21 from Section 8(d)(3) of the SBA, as well as the certification standards and procedures employed to identify DBEs. Those standards and procedures apply both to DOT's aid program, which provides federal funds to state and local governments, and to DOT's direct spending for highway construction on federal land. See pp. __-__, supra; Pet. Br. 7, 9, 16.

Purporting to clarify the scope of its challenge, petitioner now declares that it is not challenging any aspect of DOT's state and local aid program. "[T]his case," petitioner declares, "involves only" DOT's direct federal contracts. Pet. Br. 15-16, 27. Petitioner thus does not ask this Court to re-

[3] No as-applied challenge is properly before this Court. The only feature of the Secretary's program ever applied to petitioner was the SCC that petitioner originally challenged. As noted earlier (pp. __-__, supra), that program, which was held unconstitutional as applied to petitioner, has been discontinued.

view the Secretary of Transportation's DBE program, which the court of appeals upheld, and which this Court identified in the second question presented. Rather, petitioner focuses on the government-wide "goal setting" and "goal achievement mechanisms" implemented under Section 8(d)(4) through 8(d)(6) of SBA, 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(4)-(6), and the Federal Acquisition Regulations (FAR), 48 C.F.R. Pt. 19. See Pet. Br. 13-14; see also pp. __-__, supra. In fact, petitioner now claims that it is injured, not by anything TEA-21 or the Secretary's DBE regulations require, but by the subcontracting plan requirement found in Section 8(d)(4)(B), 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(4), under which prime contractors must submit contract-specific plans that establish subcontracting goals for DBE participation. Pet. 13.

Petitioner, however, did not properly challenge Sections 8(d)(4) through 8(d)(6) of the SBA in the courts below, and those courts did not consider such a challenge. The court of appeals found "no indication from any of the parties in their briefs or elsewhere that the particular requirements of paragraphs (4)-(6) of § 8(d) are at issue in the instant lawsuit." Pet. App. 86 n.35. Nor were those provisions ever part of this case. The "scope of this case," petitioner declares, "includes all of the statutory definitional underpinnings, goal setting, and goal achievement mechanisms that *gave rise to the terms of the * * * contract*" petitioner was denied in 1989. Pet. Br. 15 (emphasis added). But Section 8(d)(4) through (6) of the SBA did not "g[i]ve rise to" any part of that contract. "None of the parties in this case contend that SBA § 8(d)(4), 15 U.S.C. 637(d)(4), pertains to the SCC." Pet. App. 63 n.24. Nor did any other provision of the SBA petitioner now purports to challenge appear in that 1989 contract. In fact, petitioner's contract specifically stated that it did not include the subcontractor plan requirement under Section 8(d)(4). See App., infra, __a, __a.[4]

[4] Petitioner's extensive discussion of subcontractor plans, Br. 13, and its speculation that they are "coercive," id. at 14, are thus beyond the scope of this case. Petitioner's claim that the provisions are applied in a coercive manner, moreover, cannot be raised in a facial challenge unsup-

Petitioner's failure to mount a proper challenge to Subsections 8(b)(4) through (6) below and the court of appeals' refusal to address those provisions bar their consideration here. E.g., National Collegiate Athletic Ass'n v. Smith, 525 U.S. 459, 470 (1999); Adickes v. S.H. Kress & Co., 398 U.S. 144, 147 n.2 (1970). The court of appeals, moreover, specifically held that petitioner lacks "standing to challenge paragraphs (4)-(6) of 15 U.S.C. § 637(d)," Pet. App. 14; id. at 86 n.35. See also Pet. Br. 6 n.2 ("The panel denied standing to challenge 15 U.S.C. §§ 637(a), 644(g), and 637(d)(4-6)."). In light of petitioner's failure to challenge that holding in its petition, its attempt to raise Sections 8(d)(4)-(6) of the SBA for the first time in its brief on the merits is unavailing. See Hagen v. Utah, 510 U.S. 399, 409 (1994).

Petitioner's belated attempt to "smuggl[e] additional questions" into this lawsuit, Kaisha v. U.S. Philips Corp., 510 U.S. 27, 32 n.6 (1993), is particularly problematic because petitioner has not shown any realistic possibility that it will be injured by an application of paragraphs 8(d)(4) through (6). Those paragraphs are implicated only by DOT's direct contracting, not DOT's state and local aid program. But the results of the Department of Commerce benchmark study preclude the use of race-conscious criteria—and therefore consideration of DBE utilization or any race-conscious aspects of paragraphs 8(d)(4)-(6) in making awards—in direct federal contracting decisions in every area in which petitioner does business, as petitioner concedes. Br. 14; pp. __-__, & n.4, supra. Petitioner thus cannot show any threatened injury from those provisions, much less one that might excuse its dual failures properly to raise those ported by a record that might show how, in fact, those provisions are applied. The claim is also without merit. DOT is not aware of any instance in which contracting decisions have been influenced by the degree of DBE utilization provided in a subcontracting plan in any relevant area where the Department of Commerce's benchmark study bars use of race-conscious criteria, and it is issuing guidance to ensure that such does not occur.

provisions below and to challenge the court of appeals' holding that it lacks standing to raise them.

Petitioner's submission also casts serious doubt on the extent to which there remains a real and substantial controversy of any sort. With respect to petitioner's past injury in direct federal procurement, the program that injured petitioner was declared unconstitutional as applied, was discontinued, and is not properly before this Court. See pp. __-__, supra. With respect to petitioner's claim for forward-looking relief, any alleged continuing injury in direct federal procurement is foreclosed by the termination of the SCC program and the results of the Department of Commerce's benchmark study. If petitioner's assertion that this "case deals exclusively with direct federal procurement," and "has nothing to do with financial assistance," Br. 27, is accepted, there is simply no basis for prospective relief.

II. TEA-21 AND THE SECRETARY'S DBE REGULATIONS ARE NARROWLY TAILORED TO SERVE A COMPELLING GOVERNMENT INTEREST

Eliminating racial discrimination and its effects remains one of the Nation's great challenges. "The unhappy persistence of both the practice and the lingering effects of racial discrimination against minority groups in this country is an unfortunate reality, and government is not disqualified from acting in response to it." Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 237. Congress has found that many Americans, because "of their identification as members of certain groups that have suffered the effects of discriminatory practices or similar invidious circumstances over which they have no control," lack equal "opportunity for full participation in our free enterprise system," and thus are "socially and economically disadvantaged" on account of race or ethnicity. 15 U.S.C. 631(f)(1). Congress therefore has attempted to ensure that past discrimination and present bias do not "cause federal funds to be distributed in a manner" which reflects and

"reinforce[s] prior patterns of discrimination." Croson, 488 U.S. 504.

The Secretary's DBE program, which Congress reauthorized in TEA-21, is one such effort. To the extent that program relies on race-conscious criteria, it is subject to strict scrutiny. Racial classifications—even if employed to combat discrimination and its effects—are constitutional only if they serve a compelling government purpose and are narrowly tailored to achieve that end. Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 227. Although that standard is demanding, this Court has gone out of its way "to dispel the notion that strict scrutiny is 'strict in theory, but fatal in fact.'" Id. at 237. "When race-based action is necessary to further a compelling interest," the Court has stated, "such action is within constitutional constraints if it satisfies the 'narrow tailoring' test this Court has set out" in its cases. Ibid.[5] As explained below, petitioner has not shown that the Secretary's DBE program is incapable of meeting that exacting standard.

A. CONGRESS HAS A COMPELLING INTEREST IN ELIMINATING DISCRIMINATION AND ITS EFFECTS ON GOVERNMENT SPENDING AND PROCUREMENT

"It is beyond dispute that any public entity, state or federal, has a compelling interest in assuring that public dollars, drawn from the tax contributions of all citizens, do not serve to finance the evil of private prejudice." Croson, 488 U.S. at 492 (plurality opinion). Congress thus may take steps to avoid "becom[ing] a passive participant in a system of racial exclusion practiced by elements of the local construction industry." Ibid. And Congress may legitimately invoke its constitutional powers to ensure that such a system does not "cause federal funds to be distributed in a manner" which reflects and "reinforce[s] prior patterns of discrimination." Id. at 504. Petitioner, in fact, concedes that the use of race-conscious measures as "a last resort to 'remedy private discrimination'" is a "possible justification" for race-conscious government policies. Br. 22 (quoting Croson, 488 U.S. at 492 (plurality opinion)). Accordingly, rather than focus on the adequacy of Congress's interest, petitioner argues that Congress did not have a "strong basis in evidence" for finding a national problem of discrimination in highway contracting. See id. at 26. The district court and the court of appeals both properly rejected that argument.

[5] Petitioner's argument that racial classifications are per se unconstitutional, Br. 18-23, thus is inconsistent with this Court's precedents.

REV_00020215

1. Congress Had Ample Evidence Of Discrimination When It Enacted TEA-21

Treating the compelling interest inquiry as a question of fact, petitioner argues (Br. 23-28) that the court of appeals erred in relying on legislative and administrative materials that identify the effects of discrimination in the highway construction and transit industry. Such sources, petitioner asserts, are neither "sworn testimony given from personal knowledge" nor otherwise admissible. Id. at 23-26. That argument—which was not properly raised below—betrays a misunderstanding of the compelling interest inquiry, which is, after all, a legal inquiry. Federal courts do not measure the substantiality of Congress's interests by requiring Congress to prove its interest in a de novo trial. Instead, federal courts properly "examine first the evidence before Congress," and then review any "further evidence" necessary to resolve the matter. Turner Broad. Sys., Inc. v. FCC, 520 U.S. 180, 196 (1997). The court of appeals and district court followed that methodology and correctly concluded, as a matter of law, that Congress had a compelling interest in enacting TEA-21's contracting provisions and their predecessors. Moreover, even if one were to accept petitioner's effort to recharacterize that legal conclusion as a factual finding, petitioner's request that this Court reconsider the findings of the district court and court of appeals would have to overcome this Court's traditional "reluctan[ce] to disturb findings of fact in which two courts below have concurred." United States v. Doe, 465 U.S. 605, 614 (1984).[6]

The enormous body of evidence before Congress, accumulated over 30 years, establishes the compelling nature of Congress's interest in reauthorizing the DBE program. Throughout the 1970s, a Permanent Select Committee of the House of Representatives conducted extensive hearings on the effects of discrimination on the distribution of contracting opportunities in a variety of industries. See App., infra, __a-__a (listing hearings). Based on its investigation, the Committee concluded that past discrimination disproportionately hindered the participation of minority-owned businesses in federal procurement projects. See Summary of Activities, A Report of the House Comm. on Small Business, 94th Cong., 2d Sess. 182 (1977). Congress responded by enacting the Public Works Employment Act of 1977, 42 U.S.C. 6705(f)(2), which this Court upheld in Fullilove v. Klutznick, supra. "Congress had abundant evidence from which it could conclude that minority businesses have been denied effective participation in public contracting opportunities by procurement practices that perpetuated the effects of prior discrimination." 448 U.S. at 477-478 (plurality); accord id. at 458-467, 473; id. at 503, 505-506 (Powell, J., concurring); id. at 520 (Marshall, J., concurring). See also H.R. Rep. No. 468, supra, at 1-2, 11-12, 28-30, 32; U.S. Comm'n on Civil Rights, Minorities and Women as Government Contractors 20-22, 112, 126-127 (May 1975). Reg. 26,041, 26,050 (1996)—is incorrect. The court of appeals, after conducting its own searching review of the legislative record, concluded "that there is an even more substantial body of legislative history supporting the compelling interest in the present case than that cited by" the government's submission, Pet. App. 33 n.12, and cited materials not mentioned in Appendix A, e.g., id. at 36-37 (statements of Toni Hawkins, M. Harrison Boyd, and Anthony Robinson).

__a-__a, documented that minority-owned firms continue to suffer discrimination and its effects in a variety of ways.[7]

Congress likewise gathered extensive evidence of the incidence of discrimination in the specific context of highway contracting. After having collected such evidence for a decade, Congress in 1982 added a ten percent nationwide aspirational goal for DBE participation on federally funded highway construction and mass transit projects. See Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA), Pub. L. No. 97-424, § 105(f), 96 Stat. 2100. For two years, through at least eight hearings, Congress then investigated and evaluated the effect of those provisions before renewing them for four years in the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA), Pub. L. No. 100-17, § 106(c)(2)(B), 101 Stat. 146. See App., infra, at __-__ (listing hearings). The Senate Report accompanying STURAA explained Congress's decision:

> that this provision is necessary to remedy the discrimination faced by socially and economically disadvantaged persons attempting to compete in the highway and mass transit construction industry.

S. Rep. No. 4, 100th Cong., 1st Sess. 11 (1987). Following that renewal, Congress continued reviewing the program, holding hearings and gathering evidence. See App., infra, __a-__a (listing hearings). Each time, the evidence showed that discrimination, past and present, continued to deny socially and economically disadvantaged business owners opportunities to participate in and compete for work on federal and federally aided highway construction contracts. Pp. __-__, infra. As a result, Congress reauthorized the DBE program in ISTEA in 1991, 105 Stat. 1919-1921, and most recently in TEA-21.

The extensive record before Congress included specific evidence of the problems confronted by DBEs. With respect to access to necessary capital, minority applicants generally —and minority applicants in the construction industry in particular—were denied bank loans at a higher rate than non-minorities with identical collateral and credentials. Pet. App. 35-39. A study of the construction industry supported by the U.S. Bureau of the Census and National Science Foundation found that "blacks, controlling for borrower risk, are less likely to have their business loan applications approved than other business borrowers," and generally receive smaller loans when approved. Caren Grown & Timothy Bates, Commercial Bank Lending Practices and the Development of Black Owned Construction Companies, 14 J. Urb. Aff. 25, 26, 39 (1992) (Grown & Bates) (Gov't Lodging __-__) (discussed by Rep. Norton, 144 Cong. Rec. H3958 (May 22, 1998)).[8] A survey of 58 state and local studies of disparity in government contracting found that "African Americans with the same level of financial capital as whites receive about a third of the loan dollars when seeking business loans." Maria E. Enchautegui et al., Urban Institute, Do Minority-Owned Businesses Get a Fair Share of Government Contracts? 36 (Dec. 1997) (Urban Institute Report) (Gov't Lodging __) (citations omitted) (discussed by Rep. Norton, 144 Cong. Rec. at H3959 (May 22, 1998)). Congress, moreover, heard first-hand accounts of subtle and not-so-subtle discrimination in the provision of needed capital.[9]

Discrimination and entrenched patterns resulting from years of exclusion also prevent minority business owners from obtaining surety bonds, which generally are required by state and federal procurement rules. The "[i]nability to obtain bonding is one of the top three reasons that new minority small businesses have difficulty procuring U.S. Government contracts." Problems Facing Minority and Women-Owned Small Businesses: An Interim Report, H.R. Rep. No. 870, 103d Cong., 2d Sess. 14-15 (1994); see also Surety Bonds and Minority Contractors: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on Commerce, Consumer Protection and Competitiveness of the House Comm. on Energy and Commerce, 100th Cong., 2d Sess. 8-9 (1988). Again, Congress heard from individuals who had encountered difficulties created by discrimination and its effects on the availability of bonding.[10]

The evidence showed that some prime contractors engaged in discriminatory bid-shopping, allowing a preferred subcontractor to match any low bid submitted by a minority-owned contractor. See, e.g., How State and Local Govern-

[9] For example, one bank denied a minority-owned business a loan to bid on a public contract worth $3 million, but offered a loan for the same purpose to a non-minority-owned firm with an affiliate in bankruptcy. Congress also heard evidence that black, Hispanic, Asian, and Native-American-owned businesses were underutilized in government contracts. E.g., Urban Institute Report, supra, at 11, 13, 19-20 (Gov't Lodging __, __, __-__). For example, the Urban Institute Report found that minority-owned businesses received only 57 cents out of every state and local contracting dollar that they should have received based on the proportion of "ready, willing, and able" firms that were minority-owned. Id. at 1, 19-22, 61 (Gov't Lodging __, __-__, __). showing gross disparities in utilization.[12] See also Unconstitutional Set-Asides: ISTEA's Race-Based Set-Asides After Adarand: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution, Federalism, and Property Rights of the Senate Judiciary Comm., 105th Cong., 1st Sess. 55-56, 58-59, 64, 69, 74-76, 120 (1997).

Finally, the evidence showed that the termination of similar state and local DBE programs had almost always caused inordinate disparities to return. DBE participation in the state-funded portion of a Michigan highway program fell to zero nine months after that State's DBE program ended, while the federally funded portion (which continued to operate under DOT's DBE program) had a 12.7% participation rate. 144 Cong. Rec. at S1404 (Mar. 5, 1998). In Tampa, after the city discontinued its DBE plan in 1989, the number of contracts awarded to Latinos was suddenly cut in half, while the number of contracts awarded to African-Americans fell by 99%. Similarly dramatic drops in DBE participation resulted in Richmond Virginia, Hillsborough County, Florida, and Philadelphia. See U.S. Comm'n on Minority Business Development, Final Report 99 (1992) (discussed by Rep. Norton, 144 Cong. Rec. at H3958 (May 22, 1998)). See also id. at S1409-1410, S1420-1421, S1429-1430 (Mar. 5, 1998). Indeed, the recent GAO Report upon which petitioner places great reliance, Disadvantaged Business Enterprises (June 2001) (GAO Report), found that DBE contracting had "dramatically declined" when, in the two States

[12] Hispanic firms received .26% and women-owned firms received .18% of the state-funded highway construction contracts in Colorado, while over 99% of the state contracts went to white-owned firms, 144 Cong. it examined, local DBE programs were terminated. See GAO Report 38-41 (Gov't Lodging __).[13] As TEA-21's floor manager, Senator Baucus, explained to his colleagues, such "dramatic decreases in DBE participation in those areas in which DBE programs have been curtailed or suspended" show not merely "underutilization of women- and minority-owned business." 144 Cong. Rec. at S5414 (May 22, 1998), but that race-neutral alternatives sometimes cannot level the playing field.[14]

In view of that record, both houses of Congress in 1998 rejected amendments to TEA-21 that would have eliminated the DBE program. See 144 Cong. Rec. at S1496 (Mar. 6, 1998), H2011 (Apr. 1, 1998). Even opponents of the DBE program agreed that there was evidence of discrimination. As Representative Roukema, the sponsor of an unsuccessful amendment to repeal the DBE program, explained, the program's opponents "are not suggesting that there is no discrimination." Id. at H2000 (Apr. 1, 1998).

2. Petitioner's Objections To The Evidence Before Congress Are Unsubstantiated And Insubstantial

Responding to the vast body of evidence before Congress, petitioner argues that the court of appeals did not review the evidence under the proper standard. Petitioner argues that it failed to ensure that the statistical evidence before Congress was "derived from the proper sample pool," Br. 29; did not scrutinize the studies' methodologies, id. at 30; and did not ensure that they conclusively eliminated all nondiscriminatory explanations, id. at 30-31.

Petitioner misunderstands the judicial role in evaluating the existence of a compelling interest. Federal courts do not sit as peer review boards to conduct sua sponte review of congressional findings and methodologies for scientific accuracy. Petitioner failed to identify the specific evidence it believes unreliable, provide the reasons for that concern, or explain how the voluminous evidence remaining could conceivably be insufficient. Nor did petitioner, despite the opportunity to do so, introduce its own evidence to show that racial discrimination in the highway construction industry and its effects have ceased to exist. Pet. App. 47 n.14. Instead, petitioner offered only "decidedly vague urgings" of bias, id. at 46 n.14, an "unfocused attack" on disparity studies generally, id., at 47 n.14, and an assertion that the "various congressional reports and findings" were "conclusory," id. at 51. Such contentions are an insufficient basis on which to strike down an Act of Congress, much less one founded on 30 years of hearings, investigations, conclusions, and findings. "Given the deference 'due the duly enacted and carefully considered decision of a co-equal and representative branch of our Government,'" this Court does "not lightly second-guess such legislative judgments, particularly where the judgments are based in part on empirical observations." Board of Educ. of Westside Cmty. Sch. v. Mergens, 496 U.S. 226, 251 (1990) (plurality opinion of O'Connor, J.).

[13] Because petitioner reproduces only part of the GAO Report in its appendix and omits charts and the Report's methodology, we have included a complete copy in the lodging (at __-__).

[14] This Court often accords the views of a bill's floor managers particular weight in determining legislative intent. See generally United States v. Enmons, 410 U.S. 396, 405 n.14 (1973); Monell v. Department of Soc. Servs., 436 U.S. 658, 686-687 (1978).

In any event, petitioner's challenges to Congress's methods and conclusions are without merit. For example, petitioner asserts (Br. 29) that Congress was required to compare the availability of contractors who "not only have the necessary expertise" but "who also have met * * * bonding requirements and capitalization." Bonding and access to capital, however, are two key areas where Congress found that minority businesses suffer discrimination. See pp. 29-30, supra. Adjusting the data as petitioner suggests would thus treat minority businesses as unqualified precisely because they suffer discrimination. In attempting to determine whether discrimination exists, it is not error to omit a variable that itself is tainted by discrimination. See Coates v. Johnson & Johnson, 756 F.2d 524, 544 (7th Cir. 1985); Valen- tino v. United States Postal Serv., 674 F.2d 56, 71 n.26, 73 n.30 (D.C. Cir. 1982).[15]

Petitioner's contention (Br. 29) that the studies before Congress may not have compared the appropriate pools of "ready, willing and able" minority and non-minority contractors in the relevant markets is also unfounded. Study after study made the proper comparisons. See, e.g., Urban Institute Report, supra, at 65 (Gov't Lodging __); Louisiana Study 27 (Gov't Lodging ___). And petitioner is incorrect to assert (Pet. Br. 30-31) that the studies did not use tools such as regression analysis to reduce the possibility that the disparities were caused by factors other than discrimination; many did, as petitioner concedes. See Br. 31 (admitting that at least three studies held all the other factors equal). See also Grown & Bates, __ (Gov't Lodging __); Louisiana Study __ (Gov't Lodging).

In any event, discrimination need not be "prove[d] * * * with scientific certainty," or using "regression analysis" that "include[s] all measurable variables thought to have an effect." Bazemore v. Friday, 478 U.S. 385, 399-400 (1986) (Brennan, J., concurring). See also Texas Dep't of Cmty. Affairs v. Burdine, 450 U.S. 248, 254 (1981) (prima facie case "eliminates the most common nondiscriminatory reasons"). Consequently, a party impeaching a study's validity must do more than hypothesize about factors the study did not consider; instead, it must introduce "evidence to support the contention that the missing factor can explain the disparities." EEOC v. General Tel. Co. of the N.W., Inc., 885

[15] In addition, petitioner's reliance (Br. 34) on the GAO Report is misplaced. Although the report expressed concern about the difficulty of collecting relevant data regarding subcontractors, such data is available. See, e.g., Urban Institute Report at 15-16, 41 (Gov't Lodging __-__, __). The GAO Report omitted that information not because it was unavailable, but rather because the GAO's mail survey did not produce the information, and because recipients of the survey did not have the data in an electronic format that would have made its accumulation and manipulation sufficiently easy. See GAO Report 52-59 & App. II (Gov't Lodging __-__ , __).

Comm'n*, 828 F.2d 1260 (8th Cir. 1987), cert. denied, 485 U.S. 1021 (1988). Petitioner failed to do that here.

More broadly, it is unclear what all of petitioner's statistical criticism really proves. Strict scrutiny requires the government to point to a compelling interest with "a strong basis in evidence" and observable roots in the actual marketplace. It does not require statistical perfection, a standard that social science itself is incapable of achieving. None of petitioner's statistical objections casts genuine doubt about Congress's overall finding of continuing discrimination and its effects in the construction industry.

3. Congress May Condition Spending To Address Nationwide Problems Affecting Nationwide Appropriations

Finally, petitioner claims that Congress lacks constitutional authority to enact legislation like TEA-21 unless it finds discrimination in a majority of States. To the extent petitioner asserts that Congress cannot enact even narrowly tailored legislation—legislation that imposes a remedy only in those markets where there is discrimination to remedy—unless it finds discrimination in more than 25 States, the contention is utterly without merit. As a national sovereign, the federal government has a compelling interest in avoiding the improper (discrimination-based and discrimination-reinforcing) distribution of federal funds nationwide. Thus, while a state or local government has only "the authority to eradicate the effects of private discrimination within its own legislative jurisdiction," Congress has the power to ensure that federal spending does not reinforce discrimination in any location where federal dollars are spent. See Croson, 488 U.S. at 490-492 (plurality); Oregon v. Mitchell, 400 U.S. 112, 284 (1970) (Stewart, J., concurring in part).

Petitioner's reliance on United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000), is thus misplaced. Morrison was concerned with whether Congress's creation of a federal remedy for gender-based violence was within Congress's power under the Commerce Clause and Section 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment. This Court concluded that Congress could not create such a remedy under the Commerce Clause, because the remedy was for "noneconomic" violent crimes that have "always been the province of the States." Id. at 618-619. And the Court concluded that Congress could not rest the legislation on Section 5 of the Fourteenth Amendment because the Act was not directed at State actors. Id. at 626.

Unlike the legislation at issue in Morrison, TEA-21 falls squarely within the national government's enumerated powers, regardless of geographic scope. TEA-21 both authorizes the spending of federal funds for highway and mass transit projects and attaches conditions to that spending to achieve national goals. Congress has unquestioned authority under the Spending Clause, U.S. Const., Art. I, § 8, to "further broad policy objects by conditioning receipt of federal moneys upon compliance by the recipient with federal statutory and administrative directives." South Dakota v. Dole, 483 U.S. 203, 206 (1987). Petitioner cites no authority for the novel proposition that Congress cannot further its interest in remedying discrimination by imposing conditions on its spending unless it finds that the evil of discrimination exists in a majority of States.

Legislation mandating the use of race-conscious remedies nationwide, even in regions where discrimination does not persist, would raise more difficult questions. Such concerns are best addressed through a narrow-tailoring analysis, not the compelling interest inquiry. See Pet. App. 27 n.10. In any event, such complaints have little place in the context of TEA-21 as implemented by DOT. Together, the statutory and regulatory provisions are designed to limit race-conscious remedies to only those jurisdictions where discrimination or its effects are a problem, and race-neutral relief is insufficient. See pp. __-__, infra.

Indeed, for precisely that reason, petitioner is incorrect to assert (Pet. Br. 14, 18, 33-44) that the Department of Commerce's benchmark study demonstrates a lack of "congruence," i.e., a failure to "match * * * the geographic area in which * * * discrimination is found, and the area in which the race-based solution is applied." To be sure, that study found no disparities in direct federal procurement of prime contractors for highway construction on federal lands in many jurisdictions.[16] In the context of direct federal procurement, however, the DOT precludes the use of race-based criteria unless the Department of Commerce's benchmark study finds disparities in the relevant market. See p. __ & n.7, supra; 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,046-26,047; 48 C.F.R. 19.201(b). Similarly, in the context of DOT's aid program, recipients are not authorized to use race-conscious remedies unless (among other things) localized analyses show under-utilization of DBEs and the inadequacy of race-neutral relief suggesting the persistence of discrimination or its effects. See 49 C.F.R. 26.45, 26.51; pp. __-__, supra. Thus, far from [16] The Department of Commerce's benchmark study, moreover, examined only direct federal procurement—not procurement by states and localities using federal funds from the aid program—and it looked only for disparities in the government's hiring of prime contractors. When it comes to discrimination against subcontractors on federally aided projects in localized markets, the individual state studies and the Urban Institute study are a better source. See pp. __-__, supra. In addition, the Department of Commerce's study found overwhelming evidence that the effects of discrimination persist in the majority of the approximately 70 industries and markets that compose all areas of federal procurement. 63 Fed. Reg. 35,714-35,715 (1998). Petitioner's assertion (Br. 34 n.23) that the study "disclaims any attempt to find the requisite intentional discrimination" is incorrect; the entire purpose of the study is to find disparities in utilization that are not explained by factors other than race.

disproving geographic "congruence" as petitioner contends, the Department of Commerce's benchmark study and the similar local analyses required by DOT ensure it.

In any event, there is no requirement that Congress address only those problems that are both national in scope and of uniform incidence throughout the 50 States. Congress clearly has the power to address national problems like discrimination even if certain jurisdictions remain relatively free of such problems. Outside the spending context, for example, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, Pub. L. No. 89-110, 79 Stat. 437, as amended, 42 U.S.C. 1973, establishes nationwide rules to ensure that racial discrimination does not impair the right to vote. Because the incidence of such discrimination is not uniform, moreover, Congress has established special rules for those jurisdictions that (based on statutorily identified practices or patterns) are of particular concern. See Lopez v. Monterey County, 525 U.S. 266, 269-270 (1999); e.g., Katzenbach v. Morgan, 384 U.S. 644, 645 n.3, 652 (1966). Nothing prevents Congress from exercising its spending powers to the same effect. Here, Congress and DOT struck a balance that allows Congress to address the national problem of discrimination, while prohibiting the use of race-conscious remedies on federally aided projects in jurisdictions where their necessity is not manifest.

B. DOT'S DBE PROGRAM IS NARROWLY TAILORED

Even when race-conscious measures serve a compelling interest, such measures must be narrowly tailored to that end. Petitioner has failed to show that the DBE program is incapable of being administered in a way that meets that narrow-tailoring requirement. DOT's regulations seek to channel rermedial benefits to victims of discrimination and proscribe race-conscious measures unless race-neutral means of combating the effects of discrimination are insufficient. Aid recipients thus may use race-conscious remedies only as a last resort. 49 C.F.R. 26.51(a). The regulations further narrowly tailor the program by reserving remedies to those individuals who have confirmed, in a notarized document and subject to possible criminal prosecution, that they have been the victims of social and economic disadvantage; by limiting the geographic scope of remedies; and by limiting duration. The cumulative effect of those restrictions is to limit the use of race-conscious remedies to those situations where the effects of discrimination are stubborn, persistent, and incapable of eradication through race-neutral measures.

1. The DBE Program Seeks To Channel Remedial Benefits To Victims of Discrimination

DOT's regulations include a variety of features that channel relief to victims of discrimination. Before any remedial measure may be employed, the Secretary's regulations require federal-aid recipients to ascertain "the level of DBE participation [the recipient] would expect absent the effects of discrimination." 49 C.F.R. 26.45(b). This determination relies on the DBE certification process and is not a simple finding of racial under-representation. The state or local recipient of federal aid must look to the number of DBEs who are qualified in the relevant market, not the number of entities owned by members of particular races, and compare that to the total number of qualified businesses.

The DBE certification process, moreover, is designed to identify victims of discrimination, and not to classify individuals solely on the basis of race. Although minority-owned entities enjoy a statutory presumption that they qualify as DBEs, their owners must submit a notarized statement declaring that they are, in fact, socially and economically disadvantaged. 49 C.F.R. 2667(c)(1). They thus, in effect, must certify that they have been "subjected to racial or ethnic prejudice or cultural bias because of their identity as a member of a group without regard to their individual qualities," which is the standard for social disadvantage, 15 U.S.C. 637(a)(5), and that their "ability to compete in the free enterprise system has been impaired due to diminished capital and credit opportunities as compared to others in the same business area who are not socially disadvantaged," which is the standard for economic disadvantage, 15 U.S.C. 637(a)(6)(A). An applicant for DBE certification, moreover, must submit documentation of its owner's personal wealth; if the owner's covered net worth exceeds $750,000, any presumption of disadvantage is conclusively rebutted. See 49 C.F.R. 26.67(a)(2). DBEs also must, on an annual basis, submit a sworn affidavit attesting that there have been no material changes in circumstances affecting their eligibility. 49 C.F.R. 26.83(j). Likewise, aid recipients must include, as DBEs, businesses that are owned by non-minorities who have qualified for DBE status based on individual circumstances (i.e., proof that they have been victims of discrimination). Finally, even a facially valid certification is rebuttable, 49 C.F.R. 26.26(b), and third parties may challenge eligibility by showing that the owner is not actually socially or economically disadvantaged, 49 C.F.R. 26.87. See also S. Rep. No. 4, supra, at 28 (presumption is rebuttable).

Those provisions contradict petitioner's claim that the program necessarily extends benefits, based on race alone, to individuals who have not suffered discrimination. As the district court explained in Interstate Traffic Control v. Beverage, 101 F. Supp. 2d 445, 453 (S.D. W. Va. 2000), the rebuttable presumption of disadvantage would permit an individual who has not actually suffered discrimination and impaired business opportunities to be certified as a DBE only if (1) that individual falsely declares that he has suffered disadvantage and (2) the inaccurate declaration goes unchallenged. Petitioner nowhere alleges that such errors are necessarily commonplace, and the possibility of such false declarations does not make the program facially invalid.

As a result, the DBE certification process itself reflects an effort to identify the effects of discrimination and to channel the remedial benefits to victims of discrimination. Furthermore, once recipients calculate the levels of DBE participation, they must consider available evidence to adjust those figures to account for the effect of other factors that might limit DBE participation, so that their estimates reflect the level of DBE participation that would be expected in the absence of discrimination. 49 C.F.R. 26.45(d). Unless that analysis indicates the need for remedial action, and race-neutral mechanisms are inadequate, no race-conscious relief is authorized.

2. The DBE Program Permits Race-Conscious Measures Only Where Race-Neutral Corrections Are Insufficient

"In determining whether race-conscious remedies are appropriate," this Court evaluates "the efficacy of alternative remedies." United States v. Paradise, 480 U.S. 149, 171 (1987) (plurality opinion). Because of the dangers inherent in race-conscious government action, the Court examines whether there has been "consideration of the use of race-neutral means," Croson, 488 U.S. at 507, and the extent to which opportunities can be made available "without classifying individuals on the basis of race," id. at 510 (plurality). See Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 237-238; Croson, 488 U.S. at 519 (Kennedy, J., concurring) (racial classifications permissible only "as a last resort"). Seizing on those requirements, petitioner declares that Congress failed to consider "even the obvious race neutral options" before enacting TEA-21. Pet. Br. 45. That is not correct: Congress repeatedly attempted to use race-neutral means to eliminate the effects of discrimination, but found such means inadequate. See Pet. App. 57 ("Adarand does not challenge [the district court's] finding, that Congress over a period of decades attempted to correct [the effects of discrimination] by race-neutral means" and "only after it continued to find discriminatory effects did it first implement a race-conscious remedy."). For example, although petitioner asserts that Congress should have attempted to overcome discrimination in the provision of bonding by offering bonding assistance, Br. 43, Congress did just that in 1970 by establishing the Surety Bond Guarantee program, 15 U.S.C. 694a, 694b. Nonetheless, five years later, the General Accounting Office reported that the effect in "helping disadvantaged firms to become self-sufficient and competitive has been minimal." Congressional Research Service, Library of Congress, Minority Enterprise and Public Policy 53 (1977). The Secretary's DBE program, moreover, continues to require maximum use of race-neutral remedies, such as assistance in meeting bonding requirements, and race-conscious remedies may be invoked as a last resort.

Only where there is a difference between anticipated DBE utilization and the levels of DBE use that would be expected absent discrimination under the above-described analysis are race-conscious corrections an option. 49 C.F.R. 26.45(b); pp. __-__, supra. See also 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,049 (in direct federal procurement, race may "be relied on only when annual analysis of actual experience in procurement indicates that minority contracting falls below levels that would be anticipated absent discrimination" (emphasis added)). Moreover, even where that analysis suggests that the effects of discrimination persist, race-conscious measures cannot be employed unless race-neutral means are inadequate. "You must meet the maximum feasible portion of your overall goal," the DOT's regulations provide, "by using race-neutral means of facilitating DBE participation." 49 C.F.R. 26.51(a). See also 64 Fed. Reg. 5112 (1999) ("recipients have to give priority to race-neutral means"). The Justice Department's guidelines, which govern direct federal procurement, similarly declare that federal "agencies at all times" must "use race-neutral alternatives to the maximum extent possible." 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,049. Only "where those efforts are insufficient to overcome the effects of past and present discrimination can race-conscious efforts be invoked." Ibid.

Consequently, petitioner's assertion that "[t]here is no evidence of" efforts to use race-neutral means like providing "financing for small firms," "relaxation of bonding requirements," or providing training "for disadvantaged entrepreneurs of all races," Pet. Br. 46, is simply an inaccurate characterization. Such efforts are explicitly required. Indeed, the regulations specifically mandate consideration of each of the race-neutral mechanisms that petitioner identifies, and require that those race-neutral benefits be made available to all small businesses, not just DBEs. Recipients must consider measures such as "assistance in overcoming limitations such as inability to obtain bonding or financing" by "simplifying the bonding process, reducing bonding requirements, eliminating the impact of surety costs from bids, and providing services to help DBEs, and other small businesses, obtain bonding and financing," 49 C.F.R. 26.51(b)(2) (emphasis added); and they must consider offering small businesses "technical assistance," 49 C.F.R. 26.51(b)(3), and logistical and business support, 49 C.F.R. 26.51(b)(9).

The Secretary's regulations also identify numerous race-neutral means that petitioner does not mention. E.g., 49 C.F.R. 26.51(b)(1) (arranging solicitations, bid presentation times, quantities and job sizes, specifications, and schedules to make it easier for small and new businesses to participate); 49 C.F.R. 26.51(b)(4) (ensuring dissemination of opportunities and guidelines to the relevant communities); 49 C.F.R. 26.29 (requiring prompt payment of all small businesses), and permit state and local recipients to develop their own. See also pp. 9-10, supra (describing similar requirements for direct federal procurement). In sum, DOT's regulations require recipients to consider the efficacy of the "array of race-neutral devices to increase the accessibility of contracting opportunities to small entrepreneurs of all races," Croson, 488 U.S. at 509 (plurality), and permit use of race-conscious mechanisms only as a last resort. In light of those limitations, petitioner cannot show that the regulations are incapable of constitutional application.

3. The DBE Program Is Narrowly Tailored Through Flexibility, Proportionality, And Durational Limits

"In determining whether an affirmative-action remedy is narrowly drawn to achieve its goal," this Court considers duration, the relationship between any goals and the relevant pool of qualified entities, and the program's flexibility. Paradise, 480 U.S. at 187-188 (Powell, J., concurring). With respect to duration, this Court has explained that race-conscious remedies should "not last longer than the discriminatory effects [they are] designed to eliminate." Adarand I, 515 U.S. at 238. The Secretary's regulations and the terms of Congress's authorization for the DBE program impose such limits. As noted, race-conscious remedies are permissible only as a last resort. Whenever race-conscious remedies are imposed as a last resort, recipients must eliminate or curtail them whenever it appears that race-neutral means will provide an adequate solution. 49 C.F.R. 26.51(f). The regulations thus require aid recipients constantly to reassess their programs to ensure that race-conscious remedies remain necessary.[17] Thus, as in direct federal procurement the structure "is inherently limited" in the use of race-conscious measures." 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,049. As "barriers to minority contracting are removed and the use of race-neutral means of ensuring opportunity succeeds," the program should "automatically reduce, and eventually should eliminate, the use of race in decisionmaking." Id. at 26,048. The provisions of TEA-21 authorizing the DBE program, moreover, expire in 2004, providing a built-in sunset unless Congress revisits the issue and finds sufficient grounds for renewing the program. In the interim, moreover, the program was the subject of study and review. 112 Stat. 107 (calling for GAO study).

The DBE program also provides narrow tailoring by requiring use of the "relevant statistical pool," Croson, 488 U.S. at 501, in establishing DBE participation objectives, and by mandating flexible implementation, Paradise, 480 U.S. at 187 (Powell, J., concurring). See also Ensley Branch, N.A.A.C.P. v. Seibels, 31 F.3d 1548, 1576 (11th Cir. 1994). DOT DBE regulations require each recipient to set annual goals reflecting local business conditions; to set those goals based on the actual number of certified DBEs ready, willing, and able to compete in the recipient's market; and to ensure that the goal reflects the level of participation that would be expected absent discrimination. 49 C.F.R. 26.45. State and [17] The eligibility of individual participants is also constantly reassessed. DBEs must annually submit an affidavit, swearing under penalty of perjury that there have been no changes in circumstances affecting their eligibility. 49 C.F.R. 26.83(j). As a result, the DBE size and personal net-worth limitations operate as durational limits on participation.

local recipients are explicitly directed that they cannot merely adopt the aspirational nationwide goal of ten percent participation mentioned in TEA-21, or pursue a goal based on the racial composition of the local populace. 49 C.F.R. 26.41(c); 64 Fed. Reg. at 5107. Contrast Croson, 488 U.S. at 502 (rigid 30 percent quota unrelated to "how many MBE's in the relevant market are qualified").

Flexibility is also a hallmark of the DBE program. No penalty is imposed for failure to meet annual goals. 49 C.F.R. 26.47. When a recipient establishes goals for DBE participation for a particular contract, contractors need only pursue that goal in good faith; they are not required to achieve it. 49 C.F.R. 26.53(a). If a "bidder/offeror does document adequate good faith efforts," the State or locality "must not deny award of the contract on the basis that the bidder/offeror failed to meet the goal." 49 C.F.R. 26.53(a)(2).

The regulations also strictly prohibit inflexible mechanisms like quotas. 49 C.F.R. 26.43. And the flexibility of the program is further enhanced through waiver provisions, under which a recipient may be relieved from complying with many if not most DBE regulations if it believes that equal opportunity can be achieved through other approaches, or if exceptional circumstances warrant a waiver. 49 C.F.R. 26.15. See Participation by Disadvantaged Business Enterprises in Department of Transportation Programs, 64 Fed. Reg. at 5096, 5102-5103.

4. Congress's Use of Racial And Ethnic Presumptions Is Not Fatally Over-Inclusive

Petitioner's primary claim, in the end, is not that the entire program is overbroad. It is that the racial and ethnic presumption employed by TEA-21 in identifying socially and economically disadvantaged individuals is fatally over-inclusive because not every member of the identified races and ethnic groups is, in fact, socially and economically disadvantaged. Pet. Br. 41-43. That argument does isolate the one race-conscious aspect of the program that operates uniformly, without regard to local circumstances. But the argument ignores the fact that the presumption—as well as

DBE certifications generally—are without any effect on third parties unless race-conscious remedies (like DBE contract goals) are employed. Because DOT regulations limit the use of race-conscious or DBE-specific remedies to those markets where they are necessary, the impact of the statute's race-based presumption on parties like petitioner is sharply limited and narrowly tailored.

It is true, of course, that the race-based presumption operates when state and local recipients of federal aid (and the Department of Commerce) conduct analyses or studies to determine the level of DBE participation that would be expected absent discrimination. But the government has a responsibility to identify and remedy racial discrimination. See, e.g., U.S. Const. Amend. XIV, § 5; U.S. Const. Amend. XV, § 2. The government could not discharge that duty without using race-conscious mechanisms for identifying whether racial discrimination exists. Even the gathering of race-conscious data involves a degree of race-conscious government action that would be unnecessary in a perfectly color-blind world. But Congress clearly envisioned that race-based presumptions would aid in the identification of discrimination and its effects. The use of those criteria for that purpose, without more, does not implicate constitutional concerns, and DOT's regulations are written to prevent the use of race-conscious remedies that might affect third parties unless and until the need for such remedies has been identified.

Petitioner's argument also overlooks that the Secretary's implementing regulations seek to channel the benefits of participation to entities owned by individuals who in fact have suffered social and economic disadvantage, i.e., to the victims of discrimination. Under DOT's regulations, the owners of firms seeking DBE designation must submit a notarized statement that they are socially and economically disadvantaged. 49 C.F.R. 26.67(a). Because any claim of disadvantage may be rebutted, moreover, the primary effect of the presumption is to allocate burdens of proof. Petitioner nowhere shows that shifting the burden of proof to the party opposing certification is inappropriate where the applicant for certification is a member of a group that, as a historical matter, has been found by Congress or the Small Business Administration to have suffered and to suffer actual discrimination.

Petitioner charges that the notarized statement requirement is "essentially meaningless," Pet. Br. 10 n.6, and that it is invalid because it eliminates the presumption of disadvantage, id. at 41-42. Those contentions are in considerable tension with each other, and both are without merit. As to the former, DOT's regulations make it clear that DOT "may refer to the Department of Justice, for prosecution under 18 U.S.C. 1001 or other applicable provisions of law, any person who makes a false or fraudulent statement in connection with participation of a DBE in any DOT-assisted program." 49 C.F.R. 26.107(e). Applicants apparently take that warning seriously: In DOT's experience, the notarized statement requirement and net-worth limits have, since being implemented, affected both the number and identity of applicants. See also 61 Fed. Reg. at 26,045 ("The existence of a meaningful threat of prosecution for falsely claiming SDB status * * * will do much to ensure that the program benefits those for whom it is designed."). The speculative possibility that, on occasion, an undeserving individual will benefit, moreover, is no basis for invalidating the program. See Local No. 93, Int'l Ass'n of Firefighters v. City of Cleveland, 478 U.S. 501, 516 (1986). Besides, because petitioner brings a facial challenge, any speculation about undetected fraud or errors in implementation are irrelevant; the program must be upheld unless it is incapable of constitutional implementation.

Petitioner's claim that the notarized statement requirement is inconsistent with the statutory presumption of disadvantage is also unpersuasive. First and foremost, the court of appeals never addressed the validity of the regulation, and petitioner would be the wrong party to challenge it. See U.S. Br. in Opp. 28. If DOT's regulations impermissibly deny contracting opportunities to wealthy minorities who have not suffered discrimination, then those wrongfully denied DBE status would be proper plaintiffs. Petitioner suffers no injury—indeed, could only benefit—from this alleged defect. Second, the presumption continues to operate as a presumption notwithstanding the notarized statement requirement. An applicant for DBE certification who is not a member of the specified groups must demonstrate social and economic disadvantage by a preponderance of the evidence. 49 C.F.R. 26.67. An applicant for DBE certification who is a member of the specified groups, in contrast, need not present detailed evidence to satisfy the certifying entity; he instead may rely on the presumption. That is the essence of a presumption.

The notarized statement, moreover, serves a different, non-evidentiary function: It prevents abuse and helps ensure that all applicants proceed in good faith. Nothing in the statutory presumption precludes the Secretary from imposing reasonable procedural requirements to deter bad-faith certification requests that, if challenged, would be rejected. And the statute certainly does not require the Secretary to implement the statute in a way that permits applicants to seek certification in bad faith. Nor does the filing of a notarized document prevent a challenge to a company's status as a DBE.

To be sure, DOT's regulations implement the statutory presumption in a manner that is designed to minimize the constitutional and policy concerns that would arise from an inflexible presumption that members of certain groups have suffered economic and social disadvantage. But for that reason, not only the traditional deference owed to the Secretary, Chevron U.S.A. Inc. v. Natural Res. Def. Council, Inc., 467 U.S. 837, 842 (1984), but also the canon favoring the construction that renders the statute constitutional, Jones v. United States, 526 U.S. 227, 239-240 (1999), support the Secretary's interpretation. Moreover, Congress was well aware of the Secretary's new regulations when it enacted TEA-21, see pp __-__, supra, and its "repeated references" to the new regulations and their "modes of enforcement * * * justif[y] * * * presuming" that Congress did not view those regulations as contrary to its intent. Cf. Cannon v. University of Chicago, 441 U.S. 677, 697 (1979).

Petitioner's perceived need to attack the Secretary's implementation of the statutory presumption underscores that petitioner cannot meet its burden of demonstrating that the statutory DBE program is incapable of constitutional application. By limiting DBE status to those who certify that they are victims of discrimination in a notarized document, the Secretary's regulations tailor the broad statutory provisions to the requirements of the Constitution. The regulations are designed to employ race-conscious remedies for the limited purpose of remedying discrimination and its effects. If they fail in that objective, an injured party can bring an as-applied challenge. But petitioner should not be allowed to bring a facial challenge to the DBE program claiming that it is not narrowly tailored and then attack the very regulations that provide the narrow tailoring that petitioner claims is lacking.

Perhaps the most troubling aspect of any remedial scheme is that "innocent persons may" sometimes "be called upon to bear some of the burden of the remedy." Wygant v. Jackson Bd. of Educ., 476 U.S. 267, 281 (1986) (plurality opinion). But the regulations at issue here are designed to minimize that burden so that it is not "'unacceptabl[y] substantial," Paradise, 480 U.S. at 182 (plurality). If the application of this program imposes undue hardships on a particular third party in a specific jurisdiction, that problem can be addressed in an as-applied challenge. But that possibility does not render the program unconstitutional on its face. The current program is aimed at redressing the effects of discrimination. 64 Fed. Reg. 5096 ("program is intended to remedy past and current discrimination against disadvantaged enterprises, ensure a 'level playing field' and foster equal opportunity in DOT-assisted contracts"). It is designed to ensure that aid recipients only employ race-conscious remedies as a last resort. Each recipient of TEA-21 funds sets and attains goals based on demonstrable evidence of the relative availability of ready, willing and able DBEs in the areas from which it obtains contractors. 49 C.F.R. 26.45. Remedies are limited to those who can attest, in a notarized document, that they are actual victims of discrimination and have suffered impaired opportunities as a result. And every effort is made to minimize the effect of necessary race-conscious remedies on innocent third parties. See, e.g., 49 C.F.R. 26.33; pp. __-__, supra. The program thus is designed to avoid bestowing undue benefits on DBEs, and to create as level a playing field as constitutionally possible.

CONCLUSION

The judgment of the court of appeals should be affirmed.

Respectfully submitted.

POOL REPORT 8-13-01

Arrived near ranch at 5:42 a.m. Left for Bosque Valley Golf Course in Bosque County at 6:41 a.m. Drove on a narrow, winding road to the golf course about 40 to 50 miles northwest of Waco and about 10 miles west of Clifton. Meridian is the closest town. As we drove to the course, a herd of baby deer ran across a dry field, one of several we passed. The motorcade slowly drove across a gravel road, kicking up dirt making it hard to see in the morning darkness. Stayed on gravel road for a few minutes and then got back on a paved road.
At about 7 a.m., it started sprinkling and, a few minutes later, there was light rain. The rain lasted for about five minutes. As the motorcade entered the small town of Clifton, some residents stood on a street corner near a Texas flag and watched the motorcade. Arrived at the golf course at about 7:30 a.m. (about a 50 minute drive from the ranch). Bush was wearing khaki pants and a purple stripped shirt. He greeted onlookers at the golf course and took pictures with some children. He then waved to the press and said &Good morning everybody.8 He golfed with Texas Sen. David Sibley, Dr. Ned Snyder and Dr. Kent Starr, both of Waco. During his first swing of the morning, he asked the press pool, &Anybody see a flaw in my swing?8 He seemed relaxed and joked with his spokesman, Gordon Johndroe.
He then got on a golf cart and drove to the next hole. The morning was overcast. As he made his way through the course, Bush, drenched in sweat, was asked for a response to the second suicide bombing in Israel. Bush left the golf course at about 10:30 a.m. Once again, driving through Clifton, many people stood on sidewalks and others watched from their cars as the motorcade drove through town. He returned home at about 11:30 a.m. to change before signing the farm bill.
At dry field on the ranch, country music blared from speakers and more than 40 Texas farmers and their families sat on stacks of hay lined up in rows. Hay was thrown about on a stage. Bush drove up in a white double cab pick up truck at about noon decked out in Wrangler blue jeans, a greet shirt, and brown boots. He also wore a gold belt buckle that had &Governor George W. Bush8 imprinted on it. Bush addressed the crowd from a podium surrounded by Susan Combs, the Texas Agriculture Commissioner; John Dudley, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association; Pierce Miller, board member Texas Mohair Produces and Mohair Council of America, member of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers; Joe Aguilar, onion and watermelon grower; and Reba &Jean8 Davis of Jeff and Jean Davis Farming. After his speech, he sat at a wooden desk and signed the bill. Country music began to play after he stepped off the stage. He took many photos with people in attendance, including a group photo with Crawford residents. He then answered questions from the press on various issues. He was asked about scratches on his arms. He said &You know I,m glad you noticed that8 He said the scratches were from working on a nature trail. He was asked if he missed Washington D.C. He said &I like Washington lot but I also like it here. I try to explain to the people following me around that this is my home (I,m the kind of person that really values home and I like my house (We really enjoy being here.8

POOL REPORT 8-13-01

Arrived near ranch at 5:42 a.m. Left for Bosque Valley Golf Course in Bosque County at 6:41 a.m. Drove on a narrow, winding road to the golf course about 40 to 50 miles northwest of Waco and about 10 miles west of Clifton. Meridian is the closest town. As we drove to the course, a herd of baby deer ran across a dry field, one of several we passed. The motorcade slowly drove across a gravel road, kicking up dirt making it hard to see in the morning darkness. Stayed on gravel road for a few minutes and then got back on a paved road.

At about 7 a.m., it started sprinkling and, a few minutes later, there was light rain. The rain lasted for about five minutes. As the motorcade entered the small town of Clifton, some residents stood on a street corner near a Texas flag and watched the motorcade. Arrived at the golf course at about 7:30 a.m. (about a 50 minute drive from the ranch). Bush was wearing khaki pants and a purple stripped shirt. He greeted onlookers at the golf course and took pictures with some children. He then waved to the press and said &Good morning everybody.8 He golfed with Texas Sen. David Sibley, Dr. Ned Snyder and Dr. Kent Starr, both of Waco. During his first swing of the morning, he asked the press pool, &Anybody see a flaw in my swing?8 He seemed relaxed and joked with his spokesman, Gordon Johndroe.

He then got on a golf cart and drove to the next hole. The morning was overcast. As he made his way through the course, Bush, drenched in sweat, was asked for a response to the second suicide bombing in Israel. Bush left the golf course at about 10:30 a.m. Once again, driving through Clifton, many people stood on sidewalks and others watched from their cars as the motorcade drove through town. He returned home at about 11:30 a.m. to change before signing the farm bill.

At dry field on the ranch, country music blared from speakers and more than 40 Texas farmers and their families sat on stacks of hay lined up in rows. Hay was thrown about on a stage. Bush drove up in a white double cab pick up truck at about noon decked out in Wrangler blue jeans, a greet shirt, and brown boots. He also wore a gold belt buckle that had &Governor George W. Bush8 imprinted on it. Bush addressed the crowd from a podium surrounded by Susan Combs, the Texas Agriculture Commissioner; John Dudley, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association; Pierce Miller, board member Texas Mohair Produces and Mohair Council of America, member of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers; Joe Aguilar, onion and watermelon grower; and Reba &Jean8 Davis of Jeff and Jean Davis Farming. After his speech, he sat at a wooden desk and signed the bill. Country music began to play after he stepped off the stage. He took many photos with people in attendance, including a group photo with Crawford residents. He then answered questions from the press on various issues. He was asked about scratches on his arms. He said &You know I,m glad you noticed that8 He said the scratches were from working on a nature trail. He was asked if he missed Washington D.C. He said &I like Washington lot but I also like it here. President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

President Kicks Off Back to School Season in New Mexico

Today's Presidential Action – August 15, 2001:

- President Bush continues his "Home to the Heartland" tour by attending the first day of school at Griegos Elementary School in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

- President Bush stressed the importance of parental involvement in education reform. The Department of Education released a new publication entitled "Back to School, Moving Forward" that explains education reform to parents and helps parents better understand their critical role in improving their children's schools.

Background on the President's Visit:

- Bipartisan education reform legislation based on the President's principles passed the House of Representatives on May 24 with a 384-45 vote, and passed the Senate June 14 on a 91-8 vote. A joint House-Senate conference committee is currently meeting to resolve differences between the two bills.

- The President is pleased with the bipartisan consensus behind the reforms in both the House and Senate versions of the bill. These bills reflect the core principles of the President's education reform agenda:

  - ✓ Accountability: Measuring progress in reading and math for every child in grades 3-8. Holding states accountable to ensure that schools are making adequate academic progress for all students. Giving failing schools needed help to improve, but establishing serious consequences for persistent failure.
  - ✓ Flexibility and Local Control: Ensuring that states and local schools have maximum flexibility and reducing the burdens of federal red tape and paperwork. Streamlining the number of duplicative federal education programs and focusing resources on results in critical areas of instruction.
  - ✓ Funding Programs That Work: Bridging the gap between educational research and the classroom to implement proven, scientifically-based approaches to teach children basic skills, including new initiatives such as Reading First and Early Childhood Reading Instruction.
  - ✓ Expanding Parental Options: Providing every parent, with detailed school-by-school Report Cards that measure how well schools are teaching and children are learning. Giving parents of children in persistently failing or unsafe public schools the right to transfer their children to a more effective public school or to redirect their child's share of federal funds for tutoring or after-school help.

- The House and Senate bills reflect these goals, but there is more to do to ensure that the final education reform bill lives up to the promise of the President's education reform principles. On August 1, in a speech to the National Urban League, the President urged members of the House-Senate conference committee to focus their efforts on reaching agreements on:
  - ✓ Measuring schools for progress improving student performance across racial and socio-economic groups
  - ✓ Ensuring that states have testing systems in place that can really measure progress from year to year and district to district
  - ✓ Providing an independent way to prove that state assessment and accountability systems are working

- The National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) math scores released on August 2 provide a good road map as Congress continues its work. The results showed:
  - ✓ While only a quarter of fourth- and eighth-graders are proficient in math nationally, students in Texas and North Carolina – states that are the model for the President's education reform agenda – led the nation in mathematics achievement and improvement.

- These successes in Texas and North Carolina show that a system with high standards, testing, and accountability helps all children succeed. They also underscore the importance of measuring the progress of every child and holding schools accountable for results.

Matt--

Attached is a proposed letter of intent drafted by Brett Kavanaugh for execution in connection with political events attended by the President. I believe the copy I am attaching is in final draft form, and has been reviewed by Ken, but feel free to alter as you see fit. Please have someone in your office prepare and circulate such a letter prior to each political trip, with a copy to my attention. This will help our office and the RNC keep track of all event related funds. If you have any questions, please call me at X6-3880.

Many thanks!
Merrill

On behalf of the President, I want to acknowledge and thank you for your kind invitation to _____. The President is pleased to accept. Your event has been entered on the President's schedule for (date)(time).

As you know, the air travel, ground transportation, food, lodging, and other incidental activities of the President and others who attend or assist with this event will generate certain costs that must be reimbursed by [host entity]. In particular, because this is a political event, costs that are unrelated to Presidential security, communications, and the ongoing duties of the Presidency generally must be borne by the appropriate political entity and not by the Government. In order to ensure proper payment of these costs, an advance payment of $15,000 is required as a deposit. Please send a check for that amount at least 48 hours before the event to:

Republican National Committee Attention: Jay Banning
310 First Street, SE
Washington, DC 20003
(202) 863-8560

The RNC will coordinate directly with the White House to ensure that all invoices related to the event are paid. Once the invoices have been paid, the RNC will coordinate with you and either reimburse any remaining funds or inform you of any additional amount that is owed.

Thank you again for your invitation to this event. The President looks forward to attending.

DRAFT

The Honorable Patty Murray
The Honorable Maria Cantwell
United States Senate

Dear Senator Murray and Senator Cantwell:

As you know, members of my staff recently met with members of your staff regarding a proposed commission for selection of district court judges in Washington. We understand that you have attempted to reach agreement with Congresswoman Jennifer Dunn (President Bush's designee for these purposes) about a proposed commission, but that you thus far have been unable to do so.

Historically, as you know, bipartisan commissions rarely have been employed in the judicial nomination process. Bipartisan commissions necessarily intrude on the President's power of nomination, which the Constitution expressly assigned to the President alone. To be sure, a bipartisan commission process has been employed for many years in Wisconsin and is being employed now in California. But those are isolated exceptions to the traditional practice by which the President selects the nominee of his choice after consulting and receiving input from Senators, Members of the House of Representatives, other elected officials, and experienced members of the bar, among others.

We acknowledge that a bipartisan commission assisted President Clinton in the selection of Washington district court judges. That prior practice, although not binding on President Bush, has led us to consider agreeing to a bipartisan commission process in Washington if it incorporated certain core principles. First, any commission must submit at least three names to the President for consideration (and the commission should be free to submit as many additional names as it sees fit). Second, the President must retain the right not to select any of the three individuals recommended by the commission, but rather to nominate an individual of his choosing. Third, absent extraordinary circumstances (for example, a nominee's previously unknown personal background issue), you must agree in advance to support the President's nominee if the President selects one of the names submitted by the commission. Fourth, the commission must not address court of appeals vacancies, but only district court vacancies.

Your staff made clear to us that you would prefer not to agree in advance to support the President's nominee even if the nominee were one of the names submitted by the commission. We understand your point of view, but we respectfully disagree. The President necessarily cedes a certain degree of his constitutional authority to nominate judges when he both agrees to a commission process and nominates one of the individuals produced by a commission, rather than conducting his own independent search for a nominee. If the President is to do so, in our opinion it is only fair that you agree, absent extraordinary circumstances relating to the nominee's personal background, to support the President's nominee if the nominee is one of the names submitted by the commission. That is particularly so because any candidate supported by a majority of the commission contemplated in this instance necessarily would have the support of at least one of your appointees (we understand that the commission being contemplated apparently would have four Senatorial appointees and four of Congresswoman Dunn's appointees).

We recognize that your negotiations with Congresswoman Dunn, based on her articulation of these principles, have not produced a result satisfactory to you. As observers of your negotiations with Congresswoman Dunn, we have come to believe that the continued disagreement may simply be a function of the inherent difficulty in overly formalizing a process to which the Constitution and tradition already speak in general terms that have stood the test of time. Under the Constitution, of course, the President ordinarily selects the nominee of his choice, and the Senate retains the power to reject the President's nominee when there are special and strong reasons for the refusal.

Given that you have been unable to reach agreement with Congresswoman Dunn thus far, I believe we may be near the point when we should terminate attempts to devise a precise structure that would satisfy all sides and instead should follow the ordinary processes ordained by the Constitution. We are confident that adherence to the traditional constitutional processes would produce excellent and widely respected judges for the district courts in Washington.

We very much thank you and your staff for the time you have spent on this, and we look forward to your response.

Sincerely yours,

Alberto R. Gonzales
Counsel to the President

President Protects Social Security and U.S. Economy

Tax and Spending Increases Would Threaten Both

➢ The Big Picture

- ✓ Our government fiscal condition is strong and sound.
- ✓ We have our second largest surplus in history, despite the economic slowdown that started last year.
- ✓ We are paying down historic levels of debt – about $2 trillion over 10 years.
- ✓ President Bush will continue to ensure that every penny collected for Social Security and Medicare will be spent on Social Security and Medicare.
- ✓ Economists see encouraging signs of economic recovery, crediting tax relief and interest rate cuts.

➢ Scare Tactics Won't Work

- ✓ Unfortunately, some Democrats are trying to scare the American people about the budget. They opposed tax relief, and now want to raise taxes so they can spend more. Last year alone, Congress overspent its own budget to the tune of $34.5 billion.

- ✓ Raising taxes is the wrong thing to do in this economic environment. The right things for a weak economy are tax relief and restrained spending. The President took the first and best step to help the economy with tax relief that leading economists say is already providing relief for the ailing economy.

- ✓ Congressional Democrats now say the tax cut harms Social Security. Yet in March – just five months ago -- the Senate Majority Leader proposed a tax cut that would have had an even bigger impact on 2002 revenues than the President's final package.

➢ Accounting for Accuracy

Looking Back

- ➢ This Administration is reporting Social Security surpluses accurately. Accounting methods that report revenues for the budget year in which they actually were collected is responsible. American companies are required to accurately report revenues to their shareholders, and the federal government should report accurate figures for taxpayers, too.

  - ✓ The accounting change is an accurate reflection of Social Security receipts in 1998, 1999, and 2000.

  - ✓ This change will properly credit $5.6 billion to the Social Security Trust Fund. The former accounting practice used up to this point short-changed the Social Security Trust Fund of deserved interest. The change the Administration is making will correct this in the future.

Looking Ahead

- ➢ The economic growth projections used by the Administration are conservative and in line with respected Wall Street economists.
  - ✓ For example, the Administration projects 3.2 percent economic growth in 2002 – and The Conference Board -- the group that won the Blue Chip Award last year for most accurate forecasting – mirrors that projection exactly with a 3.2 percent growth prediction. Another respected forecaster -- Merrill Lynch -- predicts 3.5 percent growth in 2002, and core Blue Chip panelist projections range from 2 to 3.7 percent growth.

➢ Future surpluses depend on future economic growth. The biggest threat to the economy, the surplus, paying down debt, and important programs like Social Security and Medicare is reckless spending.
