- Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

For more information, visit www.DefendAmerica.mil, the new website devoted solely to bringing you the latest news about the war against terrorism.

- Statement from October 9, 2001 Briefing by Secretary Rumsfeld*:

"We stand with the Afghan people who are suffering under the oppressive Taliban regime, and who do not want their nation to be a base from which foreign terrorists wage war on the rest of the world. We thus have a common interest in ridding Afghanistan of this terrorist presence – and those who invite, sustain and support it."

For more information, visit www.DefendAmerica.mil, the new website devoted solely to bringing you the latest news about the war against terrorism.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

OFFICE OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS
202-622-2920

PROGRESS REPORT ON COMBATING TERRORIST FINANCING

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

202-622-2920

PROGRESS REPORT ON COMBATING TERRORIST FINANCING

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

REV_00310966

H.R. 2792, AS AMENDED
DISABLED VETERANS SERVICE DOG AND HEALTH CARE IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2001

TITLE 1 - VETERANS HEALTH CARE IMPROVEMENT

1. Authorize service dogs to a veteran suffering from spinal cord injuries or dysfunction, other diseases causing physical immobility, hearing loss or other types of disabilities susceptible to improvement or enhanced functioning in activities of daily living through employment of a service dog. Require a veteran to be enrolled in VA care as a prerequisite to eligibility for service dog. Service dogs provided in accordance with existing priorities for all VA health care services.

2. Strengthen mandate for VA to maintain capacity in specialized medical programs for veterans by requiring each VISN to maintain a proportional share of national capacity in certain specialized health care programs for veterans (those with serious mental illness, including substance use disorders, and those who need opioid substitution programs; and dual diagnosis patients; spinal cord, brain injured and blinded veterans; those who need prosthetics and sensory aids). Extend capacity reporting requirement for 3 years.

3. Modify VA's system of determining nonservice-connected veterans' "ability to pay" for VA health care services by introducing (generally as an upper income bound compared to current income limits in Title 38) the "Low Income Housing Index" employed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to determine family income thresholds for HUD housing assistance eligibility. Maintain VA's current income threshold. This modification adjusts for all Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA), is updated periodically by HUD to reflect economic changes within the SMSAs. Phased in with no VISN experiencing greater than 5 percent change in funding allocation than would otherwise occur.

4. Require Secretary to assess all special telephone services made available to veterans, such as "help lines" and "hotlines." Assessment includes geographical coverage, availability, utilization, effectiveness, management, coordination, staffing, cost, and a survey of veterans to measure effectiveness of these telephone services and future needs. Report to Congress within 1 year of enactment.

5. Recodify basic health care authorities and authority for non-veteran care (CHAMPVA, humanitarian, etc.).

6. Extend expiring authorities for VA to collect co-payments from veterans and insurance proceeds from veterans' health insurance policies for deposit into Medical Care Collections Fund.

TITLE II - CHIROPRACTIC SERVICES

7. Establish chiropractic services program, beginning with 30 medical centers and implemented in a 5-year period. Authorize chiropractors appointment or contracts; create an advisory committee on chiropractic health care, established by the Secretary. Authorize chiropractors to function as VA primary care providers. Authorize director of chiropractic service appointed with the same authority as other service directors in VHA.

TITLE III - NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VA NURSING

8. Establish a National Commission on VA nursing, consisting of 12 members appointed by the Secretary. Review includes legislative and organizational policy changes to enhance recruitment and retention of nurses and assess future of the nursing profession in the VA. Report to Congress within 2 years of establishment.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00311032

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

- patriot.info.wpdIn case you haven't seen the explanation of the House bill distributed by House Judiciary

ATT CREATION TIME/DATE: 0 00:00:00.00
File attachment <P_6JS54004_WHO.TXT_1>

The bill on the floor today (H.R. 3108) represents a compromise between the Judiciary Committee passed bill, H.R. 2975 and S. 1510, which passed the Senate by a vote of 96-1 on Thursday night. This "compromise bill" resulted from negotiations brokered by House GOP leadership and Administration officials. This new legislation makes some changes to the bill passed by the Senate last night, although most core provisions are very similar or identical to H.R. 2975 as reported by the Judiciary Committee last week.

Essentially, the brokered deal consisted of taking the Senate bill and debating some major House provisions like sunset, sharing of grand jury information, exclusionary rule and a few immigration subjects. We fought to protect the interests of the Committee throughout the process and were able to preserve central provisions of the Judiciary-passed bill. Unfortunately, however, many well-crafted and intentioned provisions from H.R. 2975 as marked-up by the Judiciary Committee are not included in the new bill because of the mandate to start with the Senate bill, negotiate over a few major issues and then jettison House provisions that were not in the Senate bill. Obviously this was not an ideal process and the revised bill does not represent a perfect compromise. However, the work of the House Judiciary Committee over the past three weeks has greatly improved the original Justice Department proposal and the Senate bill incorporated many of the Committee's provisions, reflecting our diligent work.

Importantly, the new bill contains a sunset provision, albeit a 5 year sunset as opposed to the Judiciary Committee's 2 year sunset. Overall, we believe it is fair to say that the legislation responsibly addresses many of the shortcomings of current law and improves law enforcement's ability to protect against and prosecute terrorism and other crimes while preserving civil rights.

Below is a description of the some of the major provisions of the new bill along with a list of some of the items that are not contained in the new bill.

COMPROMISE BILL

- provides for increased penalties for federal terrorism offenses
- eliminates the statute of limitations, and provides for extended post-incarceration supervised release for persons convicted of such offenses.
- adds terrorism offenses as offenses for which the government can investigate and prosecute RICO offenses constituting a continuous course of criminal activity.

As with the Committee bill — It continues to provide for modernization of Pen registers/ Trap & Trace laws (records telephone numbers in and out and duration of call)

(does not obtain content of conversation)

Bill continues to clarifies (existing practice) to cover modern technology – e-mail and internet communication.

(Thus - records e-mail addresses - and webpage addresses)

Continues to include specific statutory language which PROHIBITS CAPTURING CONTENT)

Continues to provide for Nationwide service of Warrants for electronic evidence (content of e-mails) & Search Warrants for Terrorism

Current rules require that a search warrant be issued from the judicial district in which the property to be search is located.

The bill would change this to permit the prosecutor to go to the judge in the district overseeing the investigation to issue the warrant, and in the case of search warrants for terrorism offenses, in any district in which activities related to terrorism occurred. This will save valuable time.

Continues to provide for Roving Wiretap ("Multi-point")for FISA (Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act)

Currently (under FISA) government must identify and get a separate order for each telephone to be wiretapped. This provision allows the government to make a showing to a court that the target it changing telephones to thwart the tap – and allow the court to authorize taps of any phones which the target may use. This provision is consistent with current criminal law.

Continues the compromise language between current law and the administration's initial proposal for the showing needed for FISA investigations using wiretaps

Current FISA law requires that in order to obtain a FISA wiretap the Attorney General must certify that the gathering of foreign intelligence is the, or primary purpose of the investigation.

Administration draft wanted to change this to only require a certification that it was a purpose. Our bill compromises and requires that the AG must certify that it is a significant purpose.

Continues to authorize Sharing criminal information with Intelligence Community

Bill permits providing criminal information (including grand jury information) to intelligence community when it is "foreign intelligence information"

It expands the ability to obtain business records in FISA investigations

Continues change of FISA Penn Register / Trap&Trace AND National Security Letters for certain records to conform to existing criminal law standards

Our bill adopts the administration proposal – Makes pen registers and trap & trace provisions in FISA consistent with current provisions in criminal law. Government must certify to the court that information sought is relevant to foreign intelligence investigation. [deletes current burden of having to show that the telephone line is being used by an agent of a foreign power]

Same concept for issuance of national security letters for certain transactional records (phone billing records) for which any Assistant United States Attorney may obtain in criminal investigation just by issuing a subpoena. Bill adopts administration proposal and makes this consistent with current criminal investigative tools.

It continues the SUNSET provision (albeit now sunset at 5 years – instead of the 2 years in the Committee passed bill)..

IMMIGRATION

On the immigration provisions, we generally accepted the language contained in S. 1510 with a few modifications. This is not really so far from the original House version because the Senate based its immigration provisions on the initial House Judiciary Committee draft. The modifications are to the mandatory detention section. First, we add the House language codifying the Supreme Court's decision in Zavidas v. Davis. In that decision, the Court ruled that aliens ordered deported cannot be detained indefinitely without realistic prospect of another country accepting them except in instances where release would harm the national security or the safety of the community. Second, we provide, per the House agreement, that an alien detained after being certified as a terrorist can bring a habeas corpus action in any U.S. district court which has jurisdiction. However, all appeals of district court decisions would go to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Finally, we added subtitle B of title II of the original House bill, which grants humanitarian immigration relief to legal aliens who were harmed by the terrorist attacks on September 11 or who had family members die in the attacks.

One provision in the Senate bill which was not in the House bill is that the spouses and children of alien terrorists are inadmissible to the U.S.

A number of immigration provisions in the original House bill are not contained in any form in the Senate bill/new House bill:

- The original House bill made deportable an alien who is a representative of a terrorist organization so designated by the Secretary of State or of a political, social or other similar group who publicly endorses terrorism only if the endorsement undermines the effort of the U.S. to eliminate or reduce terrorism and is intended and likely to incite or produce imminent lawless action. Also deportable is an alien who has used his or her prominence to endorse terrorism or to persuade others to support terrorism only if this will undermine the efforts of the U.S. to reduce or eliminate terrorism and is intended and likely to incite or produce imminent lawless action.

- Current law provides a process whereby the Secretary of State can designate an organization as a foreign terrorist organization. HR 2975 provided that either the Secretary or the Attorney General may recommend an organization for designation, and the organization will be so designated if the other concurs. In instances where either official cannot gain the other's concurrence, the President shall decide on the requested designation.

- The Judiciary Committee bill clarified that even if the INS charges an alien for purposes of removal or deportation with a non terrorist-based offense, if the alien seeks asylum, the INS can seek to oppose its grant by providing evidence that the alien is a terrorist.

- HR 2975 amended the foreign student tracking system created by the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996. The bill advanced the date by which the system must be fully operational and provides that students who are nationals of countries that have repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism may be assessed a higher fee than other foreign students. In addition, the bill provided that the Attorney General shall provide to the Secretary of State and the Director of the FBI the information collected by the system.

This bill does not contain (among many other things):

1) the statutory exclusionary rule provision from the reported Judiciary Committee bill, nor the requirement for voluminous reports concerning the disclosure of the contents of electronic communications.

2) the precise Judiciary Committee language concerning the sharing of grand jury material; instead of requiring prior court approval before the disclosure, the new bill permits disclosure followed by post disclosure notification to the court of the agencies to which the information was provided. Distribution of the information is restricted to a defined group of federal agencies in the performance of their official duties.

3) the Bob Barr amendment directing the FBI to provide background checks and fingerprints for private companies

4) the Chris Cannon/Issa amendment which would allow victims of terrorism to satisfy judgements against foreign states by allowing assets frozen by the U.S. to be subject to attachment and execution; it would not allow for the use of U.S. finds to satisfy the judgement.

The bill does not contain these provisions from the Senate-passed bill:

1) the McDade language

2) the very large Sarbanes money laundering bill

Primary Differences Between House and Senate Bills
(October 15, 2001)

(1) Section 203 of the House bill requires post-sharing notification to the court for grand jury information.

(2) Section 216 of the House bill modifies the pen/trap provisions consistent with Congressman Armey's proposal.

(3) Section 223 of the House bill contains a version of Congressman Frank's proposals relating to civil liability and disciplinary action based on surveillance activities.

(4) Section 224 of the House bill sunsets most of title II.

(5) The House bill does not incorporate title III of the Senate Bill, which is entitled "International Money Laundering Abatement and Anti-terrorist Financing Act of 2001." It substitutes a brief title III entitled "Financial Infrastructure," containing a few provisions which mostly duplicate provisions appearing in title VIII.

(6) Title IV of the House bill (relating to immigration) has a subtitle C relating to victims of terrorism that has no counterpart in the Senate bill.

(7) Section 412 of the House bill requires reconsideration of the detention of terrorist aliens who are not removed every six months, and consolidates habeas review in the D.C. Circuit.

(8) Title V of the House bill omits the McDade fix (section 501 in the Senate Bill).

(9) Title VIII of the House bill omits the biological weapons section (section 802 in the Senate bill).

(10) The House bill adds a "miscellaneous" title X at the end, containing two sections that have no counterpart in the Senate bill. Section 1001 directs the Department to pay $250,000 in compensation to the estates of the U.S. citizen victims of the African embassy bombings (subject to appropriations) so long as they waive their right to sue in court. Section 1002 is a scaled-down version of the "Review of the Department of Justice" section of the House Judiciary Committee bill, requiring the designation of an official by the Inspector General to receive alleged civil rights and civil liberties abuses by Department personnel.

we (and many Senators) want to limit the definition of terrorism for purposes of the proposed new terrorism insurance program to foreign-sponsored terrorism (and thereby exclude McVeigh type cases); does the phrase "directed or committed by foreign interests or agents" work? how about "directed or committed by foreign governments, by foreign-government-sponsored organizations, or by individuals who are not United States citizens"? we need an answer by 10 a.m. Tuesday; thanks

Since we do not have a copy of the letter that D.H. Ginsburg sent to Leahy saying that he believes the D.C. Circuit needs 10 judges on active service, why don't we have Hatch as Ranking Member send Ginsburg a letter asking the same thing? Williams has gone senior, so the court is now down to eight active judges. Presumably, Ginsburg will either say the same thing or simply give Hatch a copy of his prior letter to Leahy.

The Supreme Court opened its new Term on Monday. The most stable Court in history -- the same Justices have been serving since the opening of the 1994 Term -- issued its end-of-summer orders and began its long march toward a rush of decisions concluding with its anticipated June 2002 adjournment. Two cases were argued, and a host of lawyers from around the country were admitted to practice in the nation's highest court. But the ostensibly routine proceedings were not the same. With no recent precedent from which to draw, Chief Justice Rehnquist opened the Court's new session with a stirring tribute to the nation's courage and greatness. The great tide of recent events had not simply passed the Justices by. To the contrary, the Chief made specific reference to Solicitor General Ted Olson and the loss of his wife, Barbara. The Court family had been directly touched.

Not on the docket, but looming large in the background, were legal issues of high moment stemming from the September 11 attacks. Proposed legislation aimed at re-arming law enforcement in the struggle against terrorism was under debate across the oak-dotted lawn on Capitol Hill. Justice O'Connor, the week before, made what was seen by the press as an indirect reference to the Court's role in that unfolding debate -- and that of the judiciary more generally -- in remarks at New York University's School of Law. She spoke strongly about the need, even in crisis, "to preserve the rule of law." Part of her message was universal: The need to persuade "a sometimes hostile world that our dream of a society that conforms to the rule of law is a dream we all should share." But her point was also directed to the homeland, as if aimed at the congressional debate on the anti-terrorist legislation. "We wish it were not necessary; we wish we could set the clock back. But to preserve liberty, we must preserve the rule of law."

The Court is, of course, ordinarily the last word on these and other issues of moment, as we saw in the epic (and unexpected) high-stakes litigation last autumn culminating in Bush v. Gore. Toqueville wisely observed early in our history that, in this country, great issues of policy almost invariably become questions of law. The Court's landmark decision in the Steel Seizure case during the Korean Conflict stands as a jolting reminder that, even in times of war, the Court will strike down actions by the President if they are incompatible with constitutional or statutory commands. And so the question arises, whether the proposals submitted by the Administration -- which formed the basis for bills separately passed by the House and Senate in recent days -- will pass muster under the scrutiny of a closely-divided Court that frequently resolves some of the thorniest legal issues by a razor-thin 5-4 margin.

My early-on prediction is that the proposals will fare very well indeed when and if called to run the Supreme Court gauntlet. Much of the Administration's package is mild and non-controversial and responds directly to the threat of terrorist activities in the United States and against United States citizens. The lion's share of the proposals therefore will not pose difficult or novel legal questions.

One reason is that a unifying theme of the proposals is simply to update and modernize aging provisions of law, ensuring that the law enforcement arsenal employed in anti-terrorism investigations is as modern and serviceable as that used in, say, drug investigations. A number of these laws were enacted in a quieter era of rotary telephones. Terrorists and their support rings are thoroughly modern, using the Internet, e-mail and multiple cellular phones. The proposed law would apply the same legal standards that govern wiretaps on telephones to e-mail and the like. The government should not have to fight a modern war -- one that threatens our people and our way of life -- with antique weapons. The idea here is technological neutrality. Law enforcement's ability to detect the most serious and unsettling of crimes should not depend on the technology used by the would-be assailants and their comrades. The point is that there is no change in the legal standards that govern when or under what circumstances federal law enforcement could seek such information. That means the Supreme Court will choose to remain on the sidelines -- no one is purporting to change the law, as happened when Congress purported to overrule the Miranda decision only to find the Rehnquist Court rallying to its defense.

Improvements are also sought to ease the administrative burdens -- and delays -- attendant to getting approvals from the Attorney General and a special court created by Congress to review applications for surveillance in the United States directed at the agents of foreign powers. So too, parochial limitations of search warrants and surveillance orders would be jettisoned. Federal prosecutors, FBI agents and others would not have to seek, pointlessly, re-authorization in multiple judicial districts (94 in all) across the country. These too present no thorny legal question likely to interest the Justices. No standards are being changed. Legal shifts that fall within the category of streamlining, within the context of settled and accepted legal and constitutional principles, likewise are doubtful candidates for Supreme Court review.

There are also stepped-up penalties, for example stronger punishments for certain vioent crimes that are terrorist crimes. These are classic policy questions that involve judgment calls by Congress and the President. No place for Supreme Court intervention there.

And then there are overdue provisions to break down the barriers between the intelligence agencies and the law enforcement agencies. These proposals will ensure that information important to both intelligence and criminal investigations can be easily shared so that vital information is available to all relevant federal agencies. This will help both to prevent terrorist acts before they happen and to severely punish terrorists and those who harbor and support terrorists. The idea again is simple: Terrorists should not be able to benefit from bureaucratic turf wars and agency tunnel vision. The President's new Office of Homeland Security, headed by Governor Tom Ridge, will add muscle to these provisions, helping to make sure that, as Governor Ridge put it, the only turf being protected is the country's turf.

Finally, the immigration reforms in the package are measured and appropriate. There is no authorization for indefinite detention of suspected terrorists, as has been widely assumed. Rather, the proposals are targeted, for example, authorizing detention of suspected terrorists who are otherwise subject to criminal or deportation proceedings and centralizing appellate judicial review of habeas corpus cases.

The Supreme Court, in short, has already laid done the relevant legal standards against which the Administration's proposals, once enacted, will be assessed. And it is plain that the Administration has kept a lawyerly eye on the Court's precedent in crafting the tools the President and the Attorney General want and need in facing the post-September 11 world.

As the Supreme Court opened its session this month, legislation aimed at better arming law enforcement in the struggle against terrorism was being debated on Capitol Hill. The question is whether the rules that will emerge from Congress will survive the scrutiny of a closely-divided court that frequently resolves some of the thorniest legal issues by a 5-4 margin. My early prediction is that they would fare very well indeed when and if called to run the Supreme Court gauntlet. Most of the Bush administration's proposals are mild and non-controversial, and will therefore will not spawn difficult or novel legal questions.

One reason is that a unifying theme of the proposals is to update and modernize aging provisions of law, ensuring that the law enforcement arsenal employed in anti-terrorism investigations is as modern and serviceable as that used in, say, drug investigations. A number of these laws were enacted in a quieter era of rotary telephones. Terrorists and their support rings are thoroughly modern, using the Internet, e-mail and multiple cellular phones. The proposed law would apply the same legal standards that govern wiretaps on telephones to e-mail and the like.

The idea is technological neutrality. Law enforcement's ability to detect the most serious and unsettling of crimes should not depend on the technology used by the would-be assailants and their comrades. There is no change in the legal standards that govern when or under what circumstances federal law enforcement could seek such information. That means the Supreme Court will choose to remain on the sidelines. No one is purporting to change the law, as happened when Congress purported to overrule the Miranda decision only to find the Rehnquist Court rallying to its defense.

Improvements are also sought to ease the administrative burdens-and delays-attendant to getting approvals from the attorney general and a special court created by Congress to review applications for surveillance in the U.S. directed at the agents of foreign powers. So too, parochial limitations of search warrants and surveillance orders would be jettisoned. Federal prosecutors, FBI agents and others would not have to seek, pointlessly, re-authorization in multiple judicial districts (93 in all) across the country. These too present no thorny legal question likely to interest the justices. No standards are being changed. And stepped-up penalties, for example stronger punishments for possession of biological weapons, are classic policy questions that involve judgment calls by Congress and the president. No place for Supreme Court intervention there.

The hottest issue under debate has been the proposal concerning detention, indefinitely, of aliens. That, some suggest, runs afoul of basic constitutional liberties, including recent decisions by the Supreme Court.

Despite the fervor, there is far less here than meets the eye. There is no authorization of indefinite detention of suspected terrorists, as has been widely assumed. Rather, the proposal is more targeted. It authorizes detention of suspected terrorists who are otherwise subject to criminal or deportation proceedings. That is the equivalent of denying release pending bail. Although unusual in a free society, there are various circumstances under existing law when indefinite detention is permitted. And the Supreme Court has so ruled. Individuals who are dangers to the community may be held without bond as the judicial or administrative process runs its course.

Part of the misunderstanding arises from the Supreme Court's controversial decisions last June in what appear to be very similar cases. But the appearance is deceptive, and the similarity ends on closer examination. In two consolidated cases, the court held by a 5-4 margin that the attorney general could not hold indefinitely individuals who were subject to deportation proceedings once a 90-day period (provided by Congress for bringing about the individual's exit to another country) had expired. The concern was a possible constitutional violation that might be created by indefinitely detaining an alien who had been ordered deported but who had nowhere to go (in both cases no country was willing to welcome the individual back home). Over separate dissenting opinions by Justice Scalia and Justice Kennedy, with Chief Justice Rehnquist and Justice Thomas in agreement, the Court created an implied term in the deportation statute in question to save the provision from the possible constitutional violation created by indefinite detention.

Not only were the cases decided by a narrow 5-4 margin, Justice Breyer, in writing for the majority, took pains, presciently as it turned out, to distinguish the situation before the court from one involving terrorism. Showing their concern for the prerogatives of the executive branch when confronted with a genuine danger, the five Justices were emphatic in limiting the scope of their judgment: "Neither do we consider terrorism or other special circumstances where special arguments might be made for forms of preventive detention and for heightened deference to the judgments of the political branches with respect to matters of national security."

The court, in short, has already done the relevant legal groundwork. It has laid down the legal standards to govern the debate. It would appear that the administration has carefully kept a lawyerly eye on the court's precedent in crafting the tools the president and the attorney general want and need in facing the post-September 11 world.

Subject: FOIA Status of OA

Brett: I am sending you the following materials in response to OLC's request:

A hard copy of the attached chart that I prepared some time ago on FOIA/Privacy Act in the EOP. If you want to print the chart, you need to do so on legal size paper. The first column names the EOP office or council; the second column cites any applicable FOIA/Privacy Act cases in which a court specifically addressed FOIA/PA applicability; the third column cites the authorizing legislation for each of the offices and councils of the EOP; the fourth and fifth columns identify whether the office or council has any politically appointed, Senate confirmed (PAS) positions and/or Title 5 employees; and the sixth column summarizes any independent statutory authority cited in the relevant case law or authorizing legislation. As you will see from the chart, all of the offices and councils that were found to be subject to the FOIA/PA have PAS's, were created by statute, and exercise substantial independent authority. Conversely, no office or council not headed by a PAS and not created by statute (as opposed to Reorganization Plan/Executive Order) has been found to be subject to the FOIA. NSC and CEA fall somewhere in the middle. Although both were created by statute, neither was found to exercise substantial independent authority. In my opinion, OA is more analogous to those EOP offices and councils that were found NOT subject to FOIA: OA has no PAS's, was not created by statute, and exercises no substantial independent authority. Note: My guess is that OA began to operate on the assumption that it was subject to FOIA because most of its employees are Title 5 employees, and because its function is to provide support to other EOP offices and councils in addition to WHO. As the FOIA case law relevant to the EOP evolved over the years, however, the courts did not place much, if any, emphasis on the existence or non-existence of Title 5 employees (CEA/NSC). More importantly, the courts began to focus less on "sole function" and more on whether an EOP entity exercises substantial authority independent of the President. OA's Mission Statement and Background, which was included as part of the EOP's Fiscal Year 2002 Congressional Budget Submission for the following accounts: Compensation of the President, White House Office, Special Assistance to the President, Official Residence of the Vice President, Office of Administration, Office of Policy Development, National Security Council, Council of Economic Advisers, and Unanticipated Needs. This should provide OLC with more detail regarding OA's mission, which has remained relatively unchanged but for the recent creation of an EOP Chief Financial Officer (CFO) within OA. See 31 U.S.C. 901. For purposes of section 902 of the CFO Act only, the President has designated the Director of OA as 'the head of the agency' with respect to the EOP.

Memorandum to Margaret McKenna from Patrick Apodaca dated June 28, 1978, subject: Applicability of the FOIA to White House Documents, finding that because OA performs functions for other offices within the EOP and there are no identifiable units within the OA which function solely to serve the President, it is reasonable to conclude that OA is an agency subject to the FOIA. This is the only document of which I am aware that concludes that OA is subject to the FOIA. As stated above, however, I think that subsequent case law supports a different conclusion.
Letter, including background material, to Dawn E. Johnsen, Deputy Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel, from Christopher Cerf, White House Counsel's Office, dated September 16, 1994, requesting OLC's informal advice on whether WHO records in the custody of OA are subject to FOIA. OA has no record of an OLC response.

As you will see from the materials, except for the Apodaca memorandum, most of the documents assume that OA is subject to the FOIA and focus instead on the applicability of FOIA to WHO documents in OA's custody. In any event, to the extent that OLC does not already have copies, the materials may be helpful.

Let me know if you need any additional information. After OLC has an opportunity to review the materials, it may be helpful to meet with them to discuss further. Kate

STATEMENT OF ROBERT M. SMITH
ASSISTANT COMMISSIONER
OFFICE OF HUMAN RESOURCES MANAGEMENT
BEFORE THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT REFORM
SUBCOMMITTEE ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE, DRUG POLICY AND HUMAN RESOURCES

Chairman Souder, members of the subcommittee, I am pleased to have the chance to appear before the subcommittee today.

This past fiscal year, the Customs Service recruited, examined, hired and trained over 550 Customs Inspectors and Canine Enforcement Officers, as well as 38 Pilots. Additionally, we hired and trained over 400 Special Agents, almost twice as many as we have hired in a one-year period in over a decade. In addition to hiring over 1,000 new employees into our frontline occupations, we have also built a substantial pipeline of candidates. Currently, we have over 500 candidates for our frontline occupations that have cleared all requirements and are ready to enter on duty. Additionally, there are over 1,000 applicants for these positions who are in some stage of our hiring process. Much of our hiring has been done through the competitive staffing process that imposes several hiring requirements. Other hiring has been accomplished through excepted appointments, which allows some, but not total flexibility.

Additionally, the Customs Service employs over 12,000 frontline Customs Officers serving and protecting the American public. Our officers are experienced officers, with an average length of service of nearly 12 years on the job. Many Customs employees serve in remote locations where there are limited, if any, medical facilities, roads, housing, schools, or stores. We need to be able to retain these employees and provide them with benefits that entice them to stay with the Customs Service.

From an HRM perspective, the Customs Service has a number of characteristics that present challenges to recruitment, hiring, and retention. We staff over 300 Ports of Entry, including border crossings, seaports and international airports. Many of these ports operate on a 24-hour per day, 7 day per week schedule. In 2000 Customs handled 489 million passengers, cleared 829,000 commercial and 142,000 private aircraft transporting 81 million passengers. We moved over 127 million vehicles and over 11 million trucks, handled over 2 million railcars and 6 million cargo containers. In 2000 we stopped nearly 40,000 weapons from crossing our borders, we stopped over 150,000 pounds of cocaine and 1.3 million pounds of marijuana, and collected over $20 billion in import duties, making Customs the second largest revenue collecting agency in the federal government after the IRS. Customs' frontline employees must be willing to work a variety of schedules under adverse and changing conditions, both physical and geographic. Frontline employees are required to carry weapons and frequently find themselves in dangerous situations. Our pilots find themselves on missions that take them away from home for extended periods of time, working with the Southern Command overseas. Many of our pilots fly state of the art aircraft, including P-3 interdiction aircraft.

Customs also has a prominent role to play in counter-terrorism. During the millennium alert, it was a Customs Inspector who apprehended a suspected terrorist during a routine border stop in Port Angeles, Washington. Now, after September 11, the Customs Service has been called upon to lend resources in many different areas. We are providing staff to serve as Sky Marshals; we have increased our presence through the temporary deployment of personnel to many border and airport locations. We are also in the planning stages for the Salt Lake City Olympics next year. In order for us to be able to respond to emergency situations we must operate under a set of regulations that provide flexibility to agencies.

The regulations promulgated by the Office of Personnel Management are based on the concept of the Federal government as a single employer. The premise is that what is good for one agency is good for all agencies. Additionally, change occurs only when a consensus is achieved among a majority of the Federal sector. Changes to regulations are commented on by agencies, by the public and by Federal unions. It is not difficult to understand why change comes slowly. The idea that the Federal sector is one employer is outdated. Agencies, like private corporations, are in competition with each other for human resources; both for new recruits and for experienced personnel. Denying this reality places agencies in a difficult position. We believe that regulations should be established in the broadest of terms and that each agency should be allowed to interpret and administer the regulation for the betterment of their employees.

Some of the changes that we believe would assist us in the retention and recruitment of candidates are:

- Provide for "remote duty" or "hardship" allowances for employees required to work in remote locations. Under this allowance, we would propose up to 30% over base pay, to be paid only while an employee is in a remote duty location. This would assist in retaining employees in these locations. Currently there are no regulations that cover this type of situation.
- Allow for alternate work schedules under LEAP. This is of particular concern for Customs Pilots. Our Pilots often work 14 hours per day for 9 consecutive days. It is not unusual for Pilots to record 100 – 130 hours of work during this time period. If we were able to provide the pilots with 5 consecutive days off, they would have an opportunity to "recharge." Unfortunately, the LEAP law is predicated on a 5-day workweek and precludes this type of schedule. We have staff available to work with the Congress or OPM to redraft the law and the regulations to provide for this flexibility. It is not only a matter of retaining employees. It is a matter of safety as well.
- Foreign Language Bonus Pay is a flexibility provided to law enforcement personnel. We have a number of employees living in foreign countries who are not classified as law enforcement, but who must speak the foreign language in order to perform their job. We are not able to compensate these employees. This inequity should be corrected so that we can retain employees in foreign posts.

- Provide agencies expanded authorities in high cost of living areas. These areas are mostly major metropolitan areas, such as Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York City. Other areas such as Puerto Rico and Key West also present special retention problems. While the Federal pay system provides for increased locality pay in many of these areas, this is not enough. New employees in these areas need assistance in locating affordable housing. Agencies need to be able to provide assistance in this endeavor.
- Allow for expanded use of recruitment and retention bonuses. We can offer a non-Federal applicant a recruitment bonus to go to a hard to fill location. We can not offer a recruitment bonus to an experienced Customs employee to go to that same location. Often times, a remote location is exactly where we need to place a "seasoned" employee, rather than a new recruit. Conversely, retention bonuses are permitted if a current employee is leaving the Federal service. If a current employee is leaving Customs for another agency, a bonus is not permitted. We believe that we should be able to try to retain our employees.
- Conversion authority for employees serving under excepted hiring authorities. The Customs Service has Special Agents who were hired under Schedule A and Schedule B hiring authorities. We have been working with OPM for over two years; unfortunately, we have been unable to obtain the conversion authority. Employees serving under these authorities are now being drafted into Sky Marshall positions and other duties in support of counter-terrorist activity. Since we will actively be recruiting for these positions in the coming year, we believe that legislation would be the most expedient method to obtain the conversion authority.

- Provide agencies flexibility in the examining and hiring process. Much federal hiring requires managers to select from among the top three candidates available. This is commonly called the "rule of three." The "rule of three" actually became part of the civil service rules in 1888. The rule was designed to ensure that managers had meaningful choices when selecting among candidates. We believe it is worthwhile to consider whether this system, established over 100 years ago is still relevant. We need to ask if Federal sector managers are getting the same meaningful choices that their private sector counterparts have. We must work on obtaining rules and regulations that provide agencies the ability to distinguish amongst a group of applicants without the time-consuming ratings, rankings, and justifications on passovers now involved in the process. In order for us to attract candidates, we must be able to move the process along quickly. For example, when the Customs Service wants to recruit to fill an entry level Customs Inspector position in Buffalo, we are required to solicit applications from all over the country. This is likely not the way the private sector would proceed to fill an entry-level position. There is no shortage of local applicants. It is time for agencies to be allowed to establish procedures that work for them. The processes that were set up long ago no longer fit our needs.

For the upcoming Fiscal Year, the Customs Service is anticipating the need to hire 2,500 new employees into our frontline occupations. As I mentioned at the outset, we already have 500 applicants ready to come on board and another 1,000 going through the process. We will need to screen between 15,000 to 20,000 applicants in order to hire this number. With your assistance in obtaining the right tools, we will certainly succeed. Thank you for the opportunity to address you today.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, as you know the Customs Service is under intense pressure from an ever-expanding workload. In addition to support for Customs' annual budget requests, the Congress established the collection of traveler and conveyance processing fees, otherwise known as COBRA fees to pay for enhanced inspection services. Currently, COBRA fees pay for approximately 1100 inspector positions, as well as overtime and premium pay for all inspectors. The fees are also used to cover pre-clearance inspection and other essential operating costs. Regrettable, the rapid growth in Customs resource needs has outpaced COBRA revenues. We look forward to working with the Congress to address this funding shortfall before the expiration of the COBRA statute to ensure that Customs maintains its current level of service.

I heard from ebay earlier today. They had some concerns and said (according to folks on the Hill) someone at Justice approved some changes. They did not think such changes needed to be made...

Please let me know what I can tell them. Thanks.

Proposed Changes to 18 USC 1030, Computer Fraud and Abuse Act (CFAA)

Current Law

Anyone who "suffers damage or loss" due to a violation of any provision of the CFAA may bring a civil lawsuit. If a party suing for a violation of 18 USC 1030 (a)(2)(C) (obtaining information from a protected computer without authorization or in excess of authorization) claims to have suffered " damage," the party must prove (1) "impairment to the integrity or availability of data, a program, a system or information," and (2) "loss aggregating at least $5000 in value during any one-year period to one or more individuals." There is no requirement to prove that these losses flowed from a "single act." If the party claims to have suffered "loss" rather than "damage," the burden is unclear, but neither of these elements of "damage" may apply.

Amendments as passed by House and Senate

S. 1510 nor H.R. 2975 (the anti-terrorism bills passed overwhelmingly by the Senate and House last week) contain identical provisions amending the CFAA. These amendments would modestly facilitate civil enforcement of the CFAA by making three changes. First, a statutory definition of "loss" would be provided for the first time ("any reasonable cost to any victim," followed by some specific examples). This would clarify what a plaintiff would have to prove if it bases its claim on an allegation that it has "suffered loss" as a result of a CFAA violation. Second, the amendment would change the definition of "damage" to eliminate (at least for purposes of claims under 1030(a)(2)(C)) the requirement to prove $5000 in losses. A plaintiff claiming to have "suffered damage" as a result of a CFAA violation would still have to prove "impairment to integrity or availability." Third, for those claims subject to the $5000 loss threshold, the amendment would clarify that the aggregated losses may result "from a related course of conduct affecting one or more other protected computers."

Proposed ITAA et al amendment

The proposed amendment to CFAA, never considered by either House, would drastically reduce the availability of civil relief under the CFAA, as contrasted to current law. Essentially the amendment would wipe out civil enforcement of any prohibition of the CFAA except those arising from "a single act that involves loss aggregating at least $5000 during any one year period." This new "single act" hurdle would have to be surmounted in order to bring any lawsuit under section 1030(a)(2)(C); but it would also be interposed against any other CFAA claim. These include claims arising from violations that involve tampering with medical information; inflicting physical injuries; threatening public health and safety; damaging a national defense or national security-related computer system; hacking into financial or credit card records without authorization; communicating a threat to cause damage to a protected computer for extortionate purposes; trafficking in stolen passwords; etc. All these crimes are civilly actionable under current law without the necessity of proving the infliction of $5000 in losses from a "single act"; none of them would be actionable under this amendment without such proof. The key term "single act" is not defined, and has no precedent in the CFAA, so it could be interpreted, for example, to bar civil enforcement against a hacker who tampers with or impermissibly accesses sensitive personal data on thousands of individuals, unless each individual claimant could prove $5000 in resulting losses.

Brett,

Here are the stats for judges confirmed under Reagan, Bush 41 and Clinton. If you want data on nominees who were not confirmed, that's going to take some time because we'll have to assemble it ourselves from the Congressional Record (and from news reports to determine the racial background). Let me know.

Here's the data on the confirmed judges.

Let me know if you want more.

Brett: Could you please fax me (at 305-8524) the OA mission statement and Apodaca to McKenna memo referred to in the attached email? I already have the materials sent to Dawn Johnsen in 1994. Thanks.

Subject: FOIA Status of OA

Brett: I am sending you the following materials in response to OLC's request:

(See attached file: EOPfoia.doc)

A hard copy of the attached chart that I prepared some time ago on FOIA/Privacy Act in the EOP. If you want to print the chart, you need to do so on legal size paper. The first column names the EOP office or council; the second column cites any applicable FOIA/Privacy Act cases in which a court specifically addressed FOIA/PA applicability; the third column cites the authorizing legislation for each of the offices and councils of the EOP; the fourth and fifth columns identify whether the office or council has any politically appointed, Senate confirmed (PAS) positions and/or Title 5 employees; and the sixth column summarizes any independent statutory authority cited in the relevant case law or authorizing legislation. As you will see from the chart, all of the offices and councils that were found to be subject to the FOIA/PA have PAS's, were created by statute, and exercise substantial independent authority. Conversely, no office or council not headed by a PAS and not created by statute (as opposed to Reorganization Plan/Executive Order) has been found to be subject to the FOIA. NSC and CEA fall somewhere in the middle. Although both were created by statute, neither was found to exercise substantial independent authority. In my opinion, OA is more analogous to those EOP offices and councils that were found NOT subject to FOIA: OA has no PAS's, was not created by statute, and exercises no substantial independent authority. Note: My guess is that OA began to operate on the assumption that it was subject to FOIA because most of its employees are Title 5 employees, and because its function is to provide support to other EOP offices and councils in addition to WHO. As the FOIA case law relevant to the EOP evolved over the years, however, the courts did not place much, if any, emphasis on the existence or non-existence of Title 5 employees (CEA/NSC). More importantly, the courts began to focus less on "sole function" and more on whether an EOP entity exercises substantial authority independent of the President.
OA's Mission Statement and Background, which was included as part of the EOP's Fiscal Year 2002 Congressional Budget Submission for the following accounts: Compensation of the President, White House Office, Special Assistance to the President, Official Residence of the Vice President, Office of Administration, Office of Policy Development, National Security Council, Council of Economic Advisers, and Unanticipated Needs. This should provide OLC with more detail regarding OA's mission, which has remained relatively unchanged but for the recent creation of an EOP Chief Financial Officer (CFO) within OA. See 31 U.S.C. 901. For purposes of section 902 of the CFO only, the President has designated the Director of OA as 'the head of the agency' with respect to the EOP.

Memorandum to Margaret McKenna from Patrick Apodaca dated June 28, 1978, subject: Applicability of the FOIA to White House Documents, finding that because OA performs functions for other offices within the EOP and there are no identifiable units within the OA which function solely to serve the President, it is reasonable to conclude that OA is an agency subject to
the FOIA. This is the only document of which I am aware that concludes that OA is subject to the FOIA. As stated above, however, I think that subsequent case law supports a different conclusion.
Letter, including background material, to Dawn E. Johnsen, Deputy Assistant
Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel, from Christopher Cerf, White House
Counsel's Office, dated September 16, 1994, requesting OLC's informal advice on whether WHO records in the custody of OA are subject to FOIA. OA has no record of an OLC response.

As you will see from the materials, except for the Apodaca memorandum, most of the documents assume that OA is subject to the FOIA and focus instead on
the applicability of FOIA to WHO documents in OA's custody. In any event, to
the extent that OLC does not already have copies, the materials may be helpful.

Let me know if you need any additional information. After OLC has an opportunity to review the materials, it may be helpful to meet with them to discuss further. Kate

John G. Roberts, Jr.

Facts About John Roberts:

- Nominated by President Bush for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit; previously nominated by the first President Bush for the same court

- Given a Well Qualified rating by a unanimous vote of the ABA screening committee

- Recognized as one of the best appellate lawyers and Supreme Court advocates in the country; has argued 33 cases in the Supreme Court

- Partner at Hogan & Hartson, Washington's largest law firm, and head of the firm's appellate group

- Former Principal Deputy Solicitor General of the United States during the first Bush Administration; also former Associate Counsel to the President and Special Assistant to the Attorney General

- As a lawyer, has represented parties and interests all along the political spectrum; for example, represented the State of Hawaii in the Supreme Court -- arguing against Ted Olson -- in defense of a race-conscious state program benefiting Native Hawaiians

- Has been waiting a long time for a hearing: Nominated by President George W. Bush on May 11, 2001; nominated by President George H.W. Bush in January 1992

- Has been nominated for a court that has four vacancies and is classified as a judicial emergency; in a July 2001 letter to the Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, the Chief Judge of the D.C. Circuit wrote that the court "certainly requires the services of [two more] active judges, and could arguably benefit from the services of [a third]"

Published Comments About John Roberts:

- "Also nominated by Bush's father, Roberts is a popular member of the bar who is considered a politically well-connected moderate. A specialist in making oral arguments before the Supreme Court, he is considered among the two or three most effective lawyers there." Ron Fournier, Associated Press, May 9, 2001

- "They are both exceptionally well-qualified appellate advocates." Washington Post, May 23, 2001 (quoting Seth Waxman, Solicitor General during the Clinton Administration, referring to Roberts and fellow D.C. Circuit nominee Miguel Estrada)

- "If you called into central casting for the perfect appellate judge, this is who they'd send." Washington Post, May 23, 2001 (quoting Charles Cooper, Roberts' former Justice Department colleague)

- "Richard Lazarus, the director of the Supreme Court institute at Georgetown University Law Center, supports Roberts' nomination and says that Roberts 'is not an ideological person at all.'" Broward Daily Business Review, June 5, 2001

- "John Roberts is possibly the foremost appellate lawyer of his generation." Broward Daily Business Review, June 5, 2001 (quoting Lawrence Robbins, a veteran of the Solicitor General's Office)

Bush Supports Disclosure Limits
By TED BRIDIS, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House will support proposals to withhold details about electronic attacks against the nation's most important computer networks, an administration expert in computer security confirmed Thursday.

The proposed changes, meant to encourage corporate victims of hackers to report crimes, would restrict government agencies' disclosures about attacks under the Freedom of Information Act. The proposal seeks to overcome traditional reluctance by industries, especially technology, to reveal potentially embarrassing details without fear of disclosure.

In a letter to the chairman of the National Security and Telecommunications Advisory Committee, President Bush (news - web sites) said he will ``support a narrowly crafted exception ... to protect information about corporations' and other organizations' vulnerabilities to information warfare and malicious hacking.''

Bush sent the letter three weeks ago to Daniel Burnham, chairman of Raytheon Co., who heads the advisory committee. The Associated Press obtained the letter Thursday.

John Tritak, director of the federal Critical Infrastructure Assurance Office, confirmed during a Thursday speech to technology executives the administration's support for such a ``narrowly crafted'' exemption to the information act. Tritak cautioned that any change must be ``fully protective of open government and privacy.''

Other officials, including Ron Dick, director of the FBI (news - web sites)'s National Infrastructure Protection Center, privately have expressed support for an FOIA exemption to encourage broader sharing of threat information between industries and the government.

``This is a much stronger, more-clear message from the administration,'' said Harris Miller, head of the Information Technology Association of America, a trade group that supports the new limits.

Support by President Bush marks a shift from the Clinton administration, which said existing restrictions on FOIA disclosures were adequate for protecting sensitive corporate information.

In a different move to limit information available under the U.S. information law, Attorney General John Ashcroft (news - web sites) ordered federal agencies this week to review more closely which documents they release. Ashcroft's new policy allows officials to withhold information on any ``sound legal basis.'' Under looser policies issued in 1993, agencies could hold back information to prevent ``foreseeable harm.'' Ashcroft cited the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks against New York and Washington as reasons for the change.

Currently, Sens. Robert Bennett, R-Utah, and Jon Kyl, R-Ariz., and Reps. Tom Davis, R-Va., and James Moran, D-Va., have introduced bills to limit government disclosures about hacking attacks.

``If you do not pass this bill, industry will not tell government'' about hacking incidents against important networks, Bennett said Thursday.

President Bush responded with support for the new FOIA exemption after a request from Raytheon's Burnham over the summer on behalf of the telecommunications advisory committee. Burnham wrote that ``barriers to sharing (information) must be removed'' and asked the president also to limit legal liabilities facing companies that make such disclosures.

Burnham's letter to Bush was originally obtained this week by the Washington-based Electronic Privacy Information Center, which contends that existing limits under the information law are adequate to protecting disclosures about hacking attacks.

EPIC lawyer David Sobel charged Thursday that technology companies want liability protections for hardware and software products that might be flawed in ways that could allow security breaches. ``Most of us have concluded that companies really want the ability to unload this information on the government, then wash their hands of it,'' Sobel said.

A White House official, who asked not to be identified, said Bush has not committed to supporting any liability limits.

Right Guy From the Wrong Pew
John Dean's new book, The Rehnquist Choice, provides one of the stranger glimpses into the mind of Richard Nixon.

The book is set in 1971, when Nixon was filling the Supreme Court slots vacated by two ailing justices, Hugo Black and John Harlan. Eventually William Rehnquist, now the Chief Justice, was selected for one.

Dean reports that Nixon was considering Caspar Weinberger for the court, but only after he was assured that Weinberger was Episcopalian. Nixon then ordered that Weinberger's name be floated, observing that maybe his name would help with the Jewish vote.

Later Nixon tried to think of ways a Rehnquist appointment could help with the Catholic vote, even though Rehnquist was Protestant.

Nixon said to Attorney General John Mitchell, "I suppose he's a damn Protestant?"

Mitchell: "I'm sure of that. He's just Waspish as Waspish can be."

"Yeah, well, that's too damn bad," Nixon replied. "Tell him to change his religion.

Replied Mitchell: "I'll get him baptized this afternoon."

Answered Nixon: "Well, baptized and castrated*no, they don't do that; I mean they circumci*no, that's the Jews. Well, anyway, however he is, get him changed."

TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE

Testimony of the Honorable Paul H. O'Neill
Secretary of the Treasury

Before the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs
United States Senate

Mr. Chairman, Senator Gramm, and Members of the Committee, I appreciate the opportunity to comment on terrorism risk insurance. These hearings are extremely important. We believe that there is a real and pressing need for Congress to act on this issue now. As I will discuss in more detail, market mechanisms to provide terrorism risk insurance coverage have broken down in the wake of September 11. Such coverage is now being routinely dropped from property and casualty policies as they come up for renewal, with most policies renewing at year end. If Congress fails to act, as of January 1, the vast majority of property owners in this country either will not be insured against terrorism or they will be paying steep premiums for dramatically curtailed coverage. This dynamic can in turn be expected to cause severe locations throughout our economy, particularly in the real estate, transportation, and energy sectors.

1. The Problem

The terrorist attacks of September 11 created widespread uncertainty about the risk and potential costs of future terrorist acts. Since September 11, we have endured this uncertainty every day as a country. It has permeated every sector of our economy.

A key part of the government's response to the events of September 11 is to ensure that our economic stability is not undermined by terrorist acts. Continued economic activity is dependent on well functioning financial markets -- where the lifeblood of capital is provided to business enterprises. Financial markets allocate capital based on the potential success of a business. In doing so, financial markets rely on the insurance sector to mitigate certain types of risk that are not directly related to the plans or operations of a business.

Insurance companies manage risk in economic activity and facilitate the efficient deployment of capital in our economy by estimating probabilities of possible adverse outcomes, and pooling risk across a large group. Since September 11 the uncertainty surrounding terrorism risk has disrupted the ability of insurance companies to estimate, price, and insure the risk.

We learned on September 11 that, while perhaps highly improbable, terrorists are capable of enormous destruction. Could such an event be repeated? As a country and a government, we are doing everything in our power to prevent a repetition of anything like the events of September 11. But how does an insurance company assess this uncertainty? How does an insurance company price for it? At the moment, there are no models, no meaningful experience, no reasonable upper bound on what an individual company's risk exposure may be.

Insurance companies do not "take" risks. They knowingly accept and mutualize risks. They are private, for-profit enterprises. If they do not believe they can make money by underwriting a particular risk, they will not cover it. Because insurance companies do not know the upper bound of terrorism risk exposure, they will protect themselves by charging enormous premiums, dramatically curtailing coverage, or – as we have already seen with terrorism risk exclusions – simply refusing to offer the coverage. Whatever avenue they choose, the result is the same: increased premiums and/or increased risk exposure for property owners that will be passed on to consumers in the form higher product prices, transportation costs, energy costs and reduced production.

The consequences of uncertainties surrounding terrorism risk are already evident in the airline sector. The Department of Transportation's initial projection is that, as a result of the September 11 attacks, airlines will pay nearly $1 billion in premium increases in the next year for dramatically reduced coverage, including a $50 million limit on third party liability coverage being provided by private insurers. Within the next few months, similar increases can be expected for other forms of economic activity deemed "high risk" – if coverage is available at all. Higher premiums will divert capital away from other forms of business investment, and likely cause increases in the costs of capital or reductions in the availability of capital.

The need for action is urgent. From our conversations with insurance company representatives, state insurance regulators, and others, it appears that the next two months are critical. The insurance industry relies on a complicated structure of risk sharing. Risk is shared among primary insurers, reinsurers, and retrocessionairs (i.e., providing reinsurance to the reinsurers). This structure has worked well in the past and greatly contributed to widely spreading losses associated with the events of September 11 across the insurance industry.

However, in light of the uncertainty created by September 11, reinsurers have told us that they will no longer cover acts of terrorism in their reinsurance contracts with primary insurers. And many property and casualty insurance contracts are up for renewal in the next two months. This will create the following choices for insurers: assume all of the risk of terrorism coverage and raise prices to cover all of the associated, unshared costs; reduce coverage levels; or cancel coverage. Any of these choices has the potential to significantly impact economic activity in the near-term either through higher insurance costs or higher financing costs.

2. Objectives

REV_00313306

In grappling with this problem, we have had three objectives.

First and foremost, we want to dampen the shock to the economy of dramatic cost increases for insurance or curtailed coverage.

Second, we seek to limit federal intrusion into private economic activity as much as possible while still achieving the first objective.

Third, we seek to rely on the existing state regulatory infrastructure as much as practicable.

Note that none of these objectives is directed at providing government assistance to the insurance industry. The industry is absorbing the financial losses it contracted for as a result of the September 11 attacks, and is fully capable of making good on those losses. The industry is also capable of continuing to provide insurance for non-terrorist hazards. The problem, as I have said, is one of uncertainty about future terrorist risk. At the moment, there is no basis upon which to price terrorism risk and no sense of the upper bound on the risk exposure.

3. Options

Over the past few weeks, a variety of proposals have emerged to deal with the problem I have outlined. Before turning to the approach we have developed, I will briefly discuss a few of the alternatives we considered and some of the shortcomings we identified with each.

A case could be made to treat terrorism risk insurance like war risk insurance. During World War II, the federal government provided property owners with insurance protection against loss from enemy attack. Similarly, the Israeli government provides insurance for terrorism risk. This approach would recognize the terrorist threat as one made against all Americans and would establish the broadest possible risk pool for insuring against this risk. At the same time, such an approach implies a permanent federal intrusion in the market so long as any terrorism risk remains.

A second approach, one suggested in various forms by insurance industry representatives, involves the creation of a reinsurance company to pool terrorism risk. This model follows an approach developed in the United Kingdom in response to IRA terrorist activities. This approach has some appeal, especially in providing a vehicle for pooling the industry's risk while providing an upper bound on industry losses through a government backstop. With more time, or in different circumstances, this approach may have been desirable.

In our judgement, however, it has several significant shortcomings. First, the approach ultimately leads to the federal government setting premium rates by establishing the rate charged to the pool for the government's backstop. If the basic problem is that the insurance industry -- whose business it is to measure and price risk -- cannot currently price terrorism risk without distorting markets, why would we think the government can do a better job?

Establishing a pool would also take time, and time is very limited since most policies expire at year-end. It is unclear how long it would take industry to capitalize the pool. In the interim, the government's exposure could be substantial, insofar as it would be liable for 100 percent of losses that exceeded the pool's capitalization. In addition, we question whether the government could move quickly enough on its end to establish the contracts, the pricing structure, and the regulatory structure needed to make the proposal work.

Finally, the pool approach creates a federal insurance regulatory apparatus with some presumption of permanence, and a potentially enormous pool of captive capital that we may never need to use. We believe that there will be less uncertainty about terrorism risk a few years from now and that uncertainty will be more manageable by the private sector than is the case today. Given that, why undertake the effort to create a monopoly reinsurer and give a new federal regulator the power to both set prices and regulate insurance companies and their activities?

A third option would be to simply set a large industry deductible and let the federal government cover all losses from acts of terrorism past that point. For instance, the federal government could require the insurance industry to cover all losses up to, say, $40 billion in a given year and the federal government would pay all losses above that amount.

This approach has two substantial drawbacks. First, it does not address the fundamental problem: the industry has no basis for knowing -- and hence pricing -- terrorism risk. A large deductible would require them to assess premiums large enough to cover a large potential loss. In the absence of better information, we might well expect companies to price insurance as if they fully expected losses up to the deductible amount. Second, this approach makes it difficult to control losses above the deductible as insurance companies would have no incentive to limit costs once their deductible has been paid.

4. A Shared Loss Compensation Program

After reviewing these and other options, and discussing these issues with congressional and industry leadership and the state insurance regulatory community, we developed an approach that we believe best accomplishes the three objectives I set forth. Let me say at the outset that this approach reflects the current evolution of our thinking on this issue. We want to work with Congress to achieve the best possible solution. Toward that end, it is important not to fall prey to the misperception that we are trying to craft an "insurance industry bailout." As I have said, the insurance industry can easily protect itself by eliminating coverage or charging very high premiums. What we are trying to do is craft a plan that will prevent the economic dislocations that will otherwise take place if private insurers follow the course they are now on. It is imperative that we find a solution that works in the marketplace. We must get it right, and we must get it right now.

When terrorists target symbols of our nation's economic, political and military power, they are attacking the nation as a whole, not the symbol. This argues for spreading the cost across all taxpayers. Yet there are also reasons to limit the federal role. If property owners do not face any liability from potential attacks, they may under-invest in security measures and backup facilities. In addition, the insurance industry has sufficient experience and capacity to price some portion of the risk associated with terrorism and has the infrastructure necessary to assess and process claims.

Under the approach we are suggesting, individuals, businesses, and other entities would continue to obtain property and casualty insurance from insurance providers as they did before September 11. The terms of the terrorism risk coverage would be unchanged and would be the same as that for other risks.

Any loss claims resulting from a future terrorist act would be submitted by the policyholder to the insurance company. The insurance company would process the claims, and then submit an invoice to the government for payment of its share.

The Treasury would establish a general process by which insurance companies submit claims. The Treasury would also institute a process for reviewing and auditing claims and for ensuring that the private/public loss sharing arrangement is apportioned among all insurance companies in a consistent manner. State insurance regulators would also play an important role in monitoring the claims process and ensuring the overall integrity of the insurance system.

Through the end of 2002, the government would absorb 80 percent of the first $20 billion of insured losses resulting from terrorism and 90 percent of insured losses above $20 billion. Thus, the private sector would pay 20 percent of the first $20 billion in losses and 10 percent of losses above that amount.

Under this approach the federal government is absorbing a portion of the first dollar of losses, which we believe is important to do in the first year of the program. The key problem faced by insurance companies right now is pricing for terrorism risk. While this type of loss sharing approach does not completely alleviate that problem, it does provide insurance companies with the ability to evaluate potential losses on a policy by policy basis, with clearly defined maximum exposures. For example, on a $100 million commercial policy the insurance company's maximum exposure would be $20 million. If industry losses were greater than $20 billion that exposure would be reduced even further.

More importantly, price increases to policyholders should be lower under this approach than under an approach that requires companies to absorb 100 percent of losses up to a large, aggregate industry loss deductible. Under this approach, if an insurance company's maximum exposure was defined at $20 million on a $100 million policy, the insurance company could then price that $20 million exposure on the probability of a complete loss event occurring.

Suppose instead that the insurance industry had to absorb $20 billion in losses before any government loss sharing began. Then, in our example, the insurance company's maximum loss exposure would be $100 million on that policy, not $20 million. Pricing to this maximum loss would create the economic dislocation we are trying to avoid.

The role of the federal government would recede over time, with the expectation that the private sector would further develop its capacity each year. As private sector capacity increases, the nature of the government's loss sharing agreement could also change. Given more time and experience, we believe that the insurance industry could reestablish robust risk-sharing arrangements such as reinsurance that would enable the private sector to insure losses from terrorism before the government loss sharing commenced.

Thus, in 2003, we would have the private sector be responsible for 100 percent of the first $10 billion of insured losses, 50 percent of the insured losses between $10 and $20 billion, and 10 percent of the insured losses above $20 billion. The government would be responsible for the remainder.

In 2004, the private sector would be responsible for 100 percent of the first $20 billion of insured losses, 50 percent of the insured losses between $20 and $40 billion, and 10 percent of the insured losses above $40 billion. The government would be responsible for the remainder.

To preserve flexibility in an extraordinary attack, combined private/public liability for losses under the program would be capped at $100 billion in any year. It would be left to Congress to determine payments above $100 billion.

The federal government's involvement would sunset after three years. It is our hope, indeed our expectation, that the market problem we face today will have been corrected by then so that the private sector will be able to effectively price and manage terrorism risk insurance going forward. Of course, should that prove not to be the case, Congress and the President can reevaluate the program in place and decide at that time on an extension of the program or establishment of some other approach.

This approach would also provide certain tort reforms, including consolidation of claims into a single forum and a prohibition on punitive damages. It is important to ensure that any liability arising from terrorist attacks results from culpable behavior rather than overzealous litigation. These reforms are important to mitigating losses arising from any future terrorist attack on our nation, and are an absolutely essential component of the program I have outlined.

Finally, this approach requires a clear definition of an "act of terrorism." We suggest that the Secretary of the Treasury be given authority, in consultation with other members of the Cabinet, to certify that a terrorist act had taken place for purposes of activating the shared loss compensation arrangement.

We believe that this approach dampens any adverse economic impact from a sudden increase in the cost from terrorism risk insurance over the next 12 months. The imposition of a deductible in the second year, and an increase in the deductible in the third year, permits the federal government to gradually withdraw from the market as the private sector adapts to measuring and pricing terrorism risk.

5. Conclusion

Mr. Chairman, for the reasons I have set forth, the Administration believes that the economy is facing a temporary, but critical, market problem in the provision of terrorism risk insurance. Keeping our economy moving must be our overriding concern. Leaving this problem unresolved threatens our economic stability. The approach I have outlined limits the government's direct involvement, retains all those elements of our private insurance system that continue to operate well, and provides a transition period to allow the private sector to establish market mechanisms to deal with this insidious new risk that confronts ours nation.

There are no perfect solutions to this problem. We have developed what we believe is a sound approach. As I explained earlier, we do not believe that creation of a reinsurance pool can be accomplished under the time constraints we face, but we would be glad to explore modifications to our approach with the Committee.

I would be pleased to answer any questions the Subcommittee may have.

Testimony of the Honorable Paul H. O'Neill
Secretary of the Treasury

Before the
United States Senate

Mr. Chairman, Senator Gramm, and Members of the Committee, I appreciate the opportunity to comment on terrorism risk insurance. These hearings are extremely important. We believe that there is a real and pressing need for Congress to act on this issue now. As I will discuss in more detail, market mechanisms to provide terrorism risk insurance coverage have broken down in the wake of September 11. Such coverage is now being routinely dropped from property and casualty policies as they come up for renewal, with most policies renewing at year end. If Congress fails to act, as of January 1, the vast majority of property owners in this country either will not be insured against terrorism or they will be paying steep premiums for dramatically curtailed coverage. This dynamic can in turn be expected to cause severe locations throughout our economy, particularly in the real estate, transportation, and energy sectors.

1. The Problem

The terrorist attacks of September 11 created widespread uncertainty about the risk and potential costs of future terrorist acts. Since September 11, we have endured this uncertainty every day as a country. It has permeated every sector of our economy.

A key part of the government's response to the events of September 11 is to ensure that our economic stability is not undermined by terrorist acts. Continued economic activity is dependent on well functioning financial markets -- where the lifeblood of capital is provided to business enterprises. Financial markets allocate capital based on the potential success of a business. In doing so, financial markets rely on the insurance sector to mitigate certain types of risk that are not directly related to the plans or operations of a business.

Insurance companies manage risk in economic activity and facilitate the efficient deployment of capital in our economy by estimating probabilities of possible adverse outcomes, and pooling risk across a large group. Since September 11 the uncertainty surrounding terrorism risk has disrupted the ability of insurance companies to estimate, price, and insure the risk.

We learned on September 11 that, while perhaps highly improbable, terrorists are capable of enormous destruction. Could such an event be repeated? As a country and a government, we are doing everything in our power to prevent a repetition of anything like the events of September 11. But how does an insurance company assess this uncertainty? How does an insurance company price for it? At the moment, there are no models, no meaningful experience, no reasonable upper bound on what an individual company's risk exposure may be.

Insurance companies do not "take" risks. They knowingly accept and mutualize risks. They are private, for-profit enterprises. If they do not believe they can make money by underwriting a particular risk, they will not cover it. Because insurance companies do not know the upper bound of terrorism risk exposure, they will protect themselves by charging enormous premiums, dramatically curtailing coverage, or – as we have already seen with terrorism risk exclusions – simply refusing to offer the coverage. Whatever avenue they choose, the result is the same: increased premiums and/or increased risk exposure for property owners that will be passed on to consumers in the form higher product prices, transportation costs, energy costs and reduced production.

The consequences of uncertainties surrounding terrorism risk are already evident in the airline sector. The Department of Transportation's initial projection is that, as a result of the September 11 attacks, airlines will pay nearly $1 billion in premium increases in the next year for dramatically reduced coverage, including a $50 million limit on third party liability coverage being provided by private insurers. Within the next few months, similar increases can be expected for other forms of economic activity deemed "high risk" – if coverage is available at all. Higher premiums will divert capital away from other forms of business investment, and likely cause increases in the costs of capital or reductions in the availability of capital.

The need for action is urgent. From our conversations with insurance company representatives, state insurance regulators, and others, it appears that the next two months are critical. The insurance industry relies on a complicated structure of risk sharing. Risk is shared among primary insurers, reinsurers, and retrocessionairs (i.e., providing reinsurance to the reinsurers). This structure has worked well in the past and greatly contributed to widely spreading losses associated with the events of September 11 across the insurance industry.

However, in light of the uncertainty created by September 11, reinsurers have told us that they will no longer cover acts of terrorism in their reinsurance contracts with primary insurers. And many property and casualty insurance contracts are up for renewal in the next two months. This will create the following choices for insurers: assume all of the risk of terrorism coverage and raise prices to cover all of the associated, unshared costs; reduce coverage levels; or cancel coverage. Any of these choices has the potential to significantly impact economic activity in the near-term either through higher insurance costs or higher financing costs.

2. Objectives

REV_00313324

In grappling with this problem, we have had three objectives.

First and foremost, we want to dampen the shock to the economy of dramatic cost increases for insurance or curtailed coverage.

Second, we seek to limit federal intrusion into private economic activity as much as possible while still achieving the first objective.

Third, we seek to rely on the existing state regulatory infrastructure as much as practicable.

Note that none of these objectives is directed at providing government assistance to the insurance industry. The industry is absorbing the financial losses it contracted for as a result of the September 11 attacks, and is fully capable of making good on those losses. The industry is also capable of continuing to provide insurance for non-terrorist hazards. The problem, as I have said, is one of uncertainty about future terrorist risk. At the moment, there is no basis upon which to price terrorism risk and no sense of the upper bound on the risk exposure.

3. Options

Over the past few weeks, a variety of proposals have emerged to deal with the problem I have outlined. Before turning to the approach we have developed, I will briefly discuss a few of the alternatives we considered and some of the shortcomings we identified with each.

A case could be made to treat terrorism risk insurance like war risk insurance. During World War II, the federal government provided property owners with insurance protection against loss from enemy attack. Similarly, the Israeli government provides insurance for terrorism risk. This approach would recognize the terrorist threat as one made against all Americans and would establish the broadest possible risk pool for insuring against this risk. At the same time, such an approach implies a permanent federal intrusion in the market so long as any terrorism risk remains.

A second approach, one suggested in various forms by insurance industry representatives, involves the creation of a reinsurance company to pool terrorism risk. This model follows an approach developed in the United Kingdom in response to IRA terrorist activities. This approach has some appeal, especially in providing a vehicle for pooling the industry's risk while providing an upper bound on industry losses through a government backstop. With more time, or in different circumstances, this approach may have been desirable.

In our judgement, however, it has several significant shortcomings. First, the approach ultimately leads to the federal government setting premium rates by establishing the rate charged to the pool for the government's backstop. If the basic problem is that the insurance industry -- whose business it is to measure and price risk -- cannot currently price terrorism risk without distorting markets, why would we think the government can do a better job?

Establishing a pool would also take time, and time is very limited since most policies expire at year-end. It is unclear how long it would take industry to capitalize the pool. In the interim, the government's exposure could be substantial, insofar as it would be liable for 100 percent of losses that exceeded the pool's capitalization. In addition, we question whether the government could move quickly enough on its end to establish the contracts, the pricing structure, and the regulatory structure needed to make the proposal work.

Finally, the pool approach creates a federal insurance regulatory apparatus with some presumption of permanence, and a potentially enormous pool of captive capital that we may never need to use. We believe that there will be less uncertainty about terrorism risk a few years from now and that uncertainty will be more manageable by the private sector than is the case today. Given that, why undertake the effort to create a monopoly reinsurer and give a new federal regulator the power to both set prices and regulate insurance companies and their activities?

A third option would be to simply set a large industry deductible and let the federal government cover all losses from acts of terrorism past that point. For instance, the federal government could require the insurance industry to cover all losses up to, say, $40 billion in a given year and the federal government would pay all losses above that amount.

This approach has two substantial drawbacks. First, it does not address the fundamental problem: the industry has no basis for knowing -- and hence pricing -- terrorism risk. A large deductible would require them to assess premiums large enough to cover a large potential loss. In the absence of better information, we might well expect companies to price insurance as if they fully expected losses up to the deductible amount. Second, this approach makes it difficult to control losses above the deductible as insurance companies would have no incentive to limit costs once their deductible has been paid.

4. A Shared Loss Compensation Program

After reviewing these and other options, and discussing these issues with congressional and industry leadership and the state insurance regulatory community, we developed an approach that we believe best accomplishes the three objectives I set forth. Let me say at the outset that this approach reflects the current evolution of our thinking on this issue. We want to work with Congress to achieve the best possible solution. Toward that end, it is important not to fall prey to the misperception that we are trying to craft an "insurance industry bailout." As I have said, the insurance industry can easily protect itself by eliminating coverage or charging very high premiums. What we are trying to do is craft a plan that will prevent the economic dislocations that will otherwise take place if private insurers follow the course they are now on. It is imperative that we find a solution that works in the marketplace. We must get it right, and we must get it right now.

When terrorists target symbols of our nation's economic, political and military power, they are attacking the nation as a whole, not the symbol. This argues for spreading the cost across all taxpayers. Yet there are also reasons to limit the federal role. If property owners do not face any liability from potential attacks, they may under-invest in security measures and backup facilities. In addition, the insurance industry has sufficient experience and capacity to price some portion of the risk associated with terrorism and has the infrastructure necessary to assess and process claims.

Under the approach we are suggesting, individuals, businesses, and other entities would continue to obtain property and casualty insurance from insurance providers as they did before September 11. The terms of the terrorism risk coverage would be unchanged and would be the same as that for other risks.

Any loss claims resulting from a future terrorist act would be submitted by the policyholder to the insurance company. The insurance company would process the claims, and then submit an invoice to the government for payment of its share.

The Treasury would establish a general process by which insurance companies submit claims. The Treasury would also institute a process for reviewing and auditing claims and for ensuring that the private/public loss sharing arrangement is apportioned among all insurance companies in a consistent manner. State insurance regulators would also play an important role in monitoring the claims process and ensuring the overall integrity of the insurance system.

Through the end of 2002, the government would absorb 80 percent of the first $20 billion of insured losses resulting from terrorism and 90 percent of insured losses above $20 billion. Thus, the private sector would pay 20 percent of the first $20 billion in losses and 10 percent of losses above that amount.

Under this approach the federal government is absorbing a portion of the first dollar of losses, which we believe is important to do in the first year of the program. The key problem faced by insurance companies right now is pricing for terrorism risk. While this type of loss sharing approach does not completely alleviate that problem, it does provide insurance companies with the ability to evaluate potential losses on a policy by policy basis, with clearly defined maximum exposures. For example, on a $100 million commercial policy the insurance company's maximum exposure would be $20 million. If industry losses were greater than $20 billion that exposure would be reduced even further.

More importantly, price increases to policyholders should be lower under this approach than under an approach that requires companies to absorb 100 percent of losses up to a large, aggregate industry loss deductible. Under this approach, if an insurance company's maximum exposure was defined at $20 million on a $100 million policy, the insurance company could then price that $20 million exposure on the probability of a complete loss event occurring.

Suppose instead that the insurance industry had to absorb $20 billion in losses before any government loss sharing began. Then, in our example, the insurance company's maximum loss exposure would be $100 million on that policy, not $20 million. Pricing to this maximum loss would create the economic dislocation we are trying to avoid.

The role of the federal government would recede over time, with the expectation that the private sector would further develop its capacity each year. As private sector capacity increases, the nature of the government's loss sharing agreement could also change. Given more time and experience, we believe that the insurance industry could reestablish robust risk-sharing arrangements such as reinsurance that would enable the private sector to insure losses from terrorism before the government loss sharing commenced.

Thus, in 2003, we would have the private sector be responsible for 100 percent of the first $10 billion of insured losses, 50 percent of the insured losses between $10 and $20 billion, and 10 percent of the insured losses above $20 billion. The government would be responsible for the remainder.

In 2004, the private sector would be responsible for 100 percent of the first $20 billion of insured losses, 50 percent of the insured losses between $20 and $40 billion, and 10 percent of the insured losses above $40 billion. The government would be responsible for the remainder.

To preserve flexibility in an extraordinary attack, combined private/public liability for losses under the program would be capped at $100 billion in any year. It would be left to Congress to determine payments above $100 billion.

The federal government's involvement would sunset after three years. It is our hope, indeed our expectation, that the market problem we face today will have been corrected by then so that the private sector will be able to effectively price and manage terrorism risk insurance going forward. Of course, should that prove not to be the case, Congress and the President can reevaluate the program in place and decide at that time on an extension of the program or establishment of some other approach.

This approach would also provide certain tort reforms, including consolidation of claims into a single forum and a prohibition on punitive damages. It is important to ensure that any liability arising from terrorist attacks results from culpable behavior rather than overzealous litigation. These reforms are important to mitigating losses arising from any future terrorist attack on our nation, and are an absolutely essential component of the program I have outlined.

Finally, this approach requires a clear definition of an "act of terrorism." We suggest that the Secretary of the Treasury be given authority, in consultation with other members of the Cabinet, to certify that a terrorist act had taken place for purposes of activating the shared loss compensation arrangement.

We believe that this approach dampens any adverse economic impact from a sudden increase in the cost from terrorism risk insurance over the next 12 months. The imposition of a deductible in the second year, and an increase in the deductible in the third year, permits the federal government to gradually withdraw from the market as the private sector adapts to measuring and pricing terrorism risk.

5. Conclusion

insurance. Keeping our economy moving must be our overriding concern. Leaving this problem unresolved threatens our economic stability. The approach I have outlined limits the government's direct involvement, retains all those elements of our private insurance system that continue to operate well, and provides a transition period to allow the private sector to establish market mechanisms to deal with this insidious new risk that confronts ours nation.

There are no perfect solutions to this problem. We have developed what we believe is a sound approach. As I explained earlier, we do not believe that creation of a reinsurance pool can be accomplished under the time constraints we face, but we would be glad to explore modifications to our approach with the Committee.

I would be pleased to answer any questions the Subcommittee may have.

Just to close the loop on our last conversation regarding our inability to impose user fees, our last appropriations act provided: "That none of the funds in this Act shall available for the Federal Aviation Administration to plan, finalize, or implement any regulation that would promulgate new aviation user fees not specifically authorized by law after the date of the enactment of this Act." I suppose this wouldn't necessarily rule out having DOT or POTUS impose some kind of user fee, but it would rule out having me work on it!

Brett, we at OIRA would appreciate your help on having the bolded language in the first sentence below in the House security bill, H.R. 3150, deleted. As is, the bill would exempt regulations issued under the bill from OMB review, both before and after issuance. This language is unnecessary because our Executive Order on regulatory review, E.O. 12866, already has an emergency rule exemption, and the language would set a bad precedent. Please call to discuss. 5-9175. Thank you.

The following language is found in Section 13 of the bill. This is the "fix" proposed by Ed Clarke:

If LA or LRD were to ask us for specific suggestions on the revision of the regulatory oversight paragraph other than SAP revisions) , would we simply suggest that they ask for removal of the first sentence in bold which refers to the Executive Order.

++(A) IN GENERAL. Notwithstanding any other provision of law or executive order (including an executive order requiring a cost-benefit analysis) (I)if the Under Secretary determines that a regulation or security directive must be issued immediately in order to protect transportation security, the Under Secretary shall issue the regulation or security directive without providing notice or an opportunity for comment . and without prior approval of the Secretary.

The proposed revised language is in blue. As mentioned, this revision takes account of the fact that OFPP's concerns are parallel OIRA's (and that OFPP, moreover, prefered your language regarding consistency). It also separates out the budgetary and personnel concerns, which don't concern consistency but whether certain basic standards are being met (as mentioned, OPM does not object to the new security agency having a separate personnel system or different procedures.)

DRAFT ) NOT FOR RELEASE

October
24, 2001
(House)

H.R. 3150 )Secure Transportation for America Act of 2001
(Rep. Young (R) Alaska)

The Administration supports House passage of H.R. 3150, which would implement comprehensive improvements in aviation security. H.R. 3150 contains many of the important security changes that the President has proposed, including the expanded deployment of Air Marshals on commercial flights, strengthening of cockpit security, law enforcement personnel at every screening location, and stringent Federal oversight of airline security screening. The bill would help ensure the safety of the Nation's airways by giving the Administration the ability to federalize security where it makes sense, while preserving its freedom to use high quality private screeners where it is safer and more effective.

The President has emphasized that he is eager to sign an aviation security bill into law. The Administration looks forward to continuing to work with Congress to ensure that these important security measures are enacted quickly, including any refinements that may be necessary to ensure that the Nation's aviation security needs are addressed in the most effective manner possible. The Administration is particularly concerned to assure that the resulting legislation conforms to sound personnel and budgetary principles, and that provisions regarding regulatory review and procurement are not inconsistent with those that apply to the Federal government as a whole.

Fact Sheet: Friendship Through Education

TODAY,S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of &Friendship Through Education8) a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries with Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US communities most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions of issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries, including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee camps. The Friendship through Education consortium will identify appropriate friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

? The consortium includes: iEARN-USA, People to People International, The UN's Cyberschoolbus, ePals Classroom Exchange, Global SchoolNet Foundation, Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D. Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the &President,s People to People program.8 This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided through better understanding. President Eisenhower,s granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups involved in the Friendship Through Education consortium.

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Thurgood Marshall Extended Elementary School (K-8), Washington, DC
? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Dawood Public School (Karachi, Pakistan)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle, Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students from one of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other,s countries and cultures.
? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new &Friendship Through Education8 website. Schools interested in participating in these projects can visit the website where registration can take place through the members of the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by members of the consortium. The web address is: http://www.FriendshipThroughEducation.org

TODAY
'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of "Friendship Through Education" ? a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries with Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US communities most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of
the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions of issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries, including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee camps. The Friendship through Education consortium will identify appropriate friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

? The consortium includes: iEARN-USA, People to People International, The UN's Cyberschoolbus, ePals Classroom Exchange, Global SchoolNet Foundation, Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D. Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the "President's People to People program." This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided through better understanding. President Eisenhower's granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups involved in the Friendship Through Education consortium.

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Thurgood Marshall Extended Elementary School (K-8), Washington, DC
? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Dawood Public School (Karachi, Pakistan)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle, Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other's countries and cultures.

? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new "Friendship Through Education" website. Schools interested in participating in these projects can visit the website where registration can take place through the members of the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by members of the consortium. The web address is:

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

H.R. 3150 – THE SECURE TRANSPORTATION FOR AMERICA ACT

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.

- H.R. 3150 puts control of aviation security with the agency that has the experience to get the job done – the Department of Transportation. DOT has a broad statutory mandate and nearly 35 years of operational experience. DOT also already has much of the necessary infrastructure in place to facilitate a smooth transition by providing transportation security inspections, enforcement and oversight while the new TSA gets up and running.

- H.R. 3150 gives the federal government a choice. It can choose to only hire federal workers or it can choose – on an airport-by-airport basis – to work with private contractors who demonstrate they can meet the tougher, and safer screening services mandated by the federal government. Under H.R. 3150:

  - ✓ The federal government will be responsible for baggage screening.
  - ✓ The federal government will oversee training of baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will conduct the background checks on baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will set rigorous standards and qualifications for baggage screeners.

- The President's plan to put the toughest possible baggage screeners at security check points is more effective than other plans because it is:

  - ✓ Quicker and more efficient. We need tough new baggage screeners on the job as quickly as possible. Allowing only federal workers to screen bags will require more than 20,000 new federal employees. Common sense dictates that creating a new workforce of more than 20,000 new federal workers will be a costly and lengthy process – precious time will be wasted that could be better spent screening bags. The 20,000 workers will also need to be assembled and trained from scratch, delaying the new security system for an undetermined period of time. It simply makes sense to allow some use of private companies that already have trained workers in place and to let the federal government concentrate on getting new security measures in place as quickly as possible.

  - ✓ Puts more resources at the screening gate – not in Washington bureaucracy. Not giving airports a choice in hiring will keep more money in Washington for administrative costs and other expenses – every dollar that stays in Washington for administrative costs is a dollar that is not protecting Americans at the baggage screening gate. Mandatory full federalization would immediately put more than 20,000 new employees on the federal payroll and require administration of the entire array of support services needed for such a large complement of federal workers. Using private workers with established administrative infrastructures will put more dollars at the gate.

  - ✓ Produces tougher, more qualified baggage screeners. If the government doesn't have a choice in hiring screeners, there will be no competition and less incentive to produce tougher, more qualified screeners. Expanding options for airports will put the toughest screeners possible at the screening check points.

  - ✓ Ensures flexibility to discipline or remove unqualified screeners. Permitting the use of contract employees will preserve the most flexibility and control for the federal security agency. The government needs the authority to replace unqualified individual screeners – or even an entire airport screening workforce that is not meeting the rigorous new security standards.

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

H.R. 3150 – THE SECURE TRANSPORTATION FOR AMERICA ACT

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.

- H.R. 3150 puts control of aviation security with the agency that has the experience to get the job done – the Department of Transportation. DOT has a broad statutory mandate and nearly 35 years of operational experience. DOT also already has much of the necessary infrastructure in place to facilitate a smooth transition by providing transportation security inspections, enforcement and oversight while the new TSA gets up and running.

- H.R. 3150 gives the federal government a choice. It can choose to only hire federal workers or it can choose – on an airport-by-airport basis – to work with private contractors who demonstrate they can meet the tougher, and safer screening services mandated by the federal government. Under H.R. 3150:

  - ✓ The federal government will be responsible for baggage screening.
  - ✓ The federal government will oversee training of baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will conduct the background checks on baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will set rigorous standards and qualifications for baggage screeners.

- The President's plan to put the toughest possible baggage screeners at security check points is more effective than other plans because it is:

  - ✓ Quicker and more efficient. We need tough new baggage screeners on the job as quickly as possible. Allowing only federal workers to screen bags will require more than 20,000 new federal employees. Common sense dictates that creating a new workforce of more than 20,000 new federal workers will be a costly and lengthy process – precious time will be wasted that could be better spent screening bags. The 20,000 workers will also need to be assembled and trained from scratch, delaying the new security system for an undetermined period of time. It simply makes sense to allow some use of private companies that already have trained workers in place and to let the federal government concentrate on getting new security measures in place as quickly as possible.

  - ✓ Puts more resources at the screening gate – not in Washington bureaucracy. Not giving airports a choice in hiring will keep more money in Washington for administrative costs and other expenses – every dollar that stays in Washington for administrative costs is a dollar that is not protecting Americans at the baggage screening gate. Mandatory full federalization would immediately put more than 20,000 new employees on the federal payroll and require administration of the entire array of support services needed for such a large complement of federal workers. Using private workers with established administrative infrastructures will put more dollars at the gate.

  - ✓ Produces tougher, more qualified baggage screeners. If the government doesn't have a choice in hiring screeners, there will be no competition and less incentive to produce tougher, more qualified screeners. Expanding options for airports will put the toughest screeners possible at the screening check points.

  - ✓ Ensures flexibility to discipline or remove unqualified screeners. Permitting the use of contract employees will preserve the most flexibility and control for the federal security agency. The government needs the authority to replace unqualified individual screeners – or even an entire airport screening workforce that is not meeting the rigorous new security standards.

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

H.R. 3150 – THE SECURE TRANSPORTATION FOR AMERICA ACT

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.

- H.R. 3150 puts control of aviation security with the agency that has the experience to get the job done – the Department of Transportation. DOT has a broad statutory mandate and nearly 35 years of operational experience. DOT also already has much of the necessary infrastructure in place to facilitate a smooth transition by providing transportation security inspections, enforcement and oversight while the new TSA gets up and running.

- H.R. 3150 gives the federal government a choice. It can choose to only hire federal workers or it can choose – on an airport-by-airport basis – to work with private contractors who demonstrate they can meet the tougher, and safer screening services mandated by the federal government. Under H.R. 3150:

  - ✓ The federal government will be responsible for baggage screening.
  - ✓ The federal government will oversee training of baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will conduct the background checks on baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will set rigorous standards and qualifications for baggage screeners.

- The President's plan to put the toughest possible baggage screeners at security check points is more effective than other plans because it is:

  - ✓ Quicker and more efficient. We need tough new baggage screeners on the job as quickly as possible. Allowing only federal workers to screen bags will require more than 20,000 new federal employees. Common sense dictates that creating a new workforce of more than 20,000 new federal workers will be a costly and lengthy process – precious time will be wasted that could be better spent screening bags. The 20,000 workers will also need to be assembled and trained from scratch, delaying the new security system for an undetermined period of time. It simply makes sense to allow some use of private companies that already have trained workers in place and to let the federal government concentrate on getting new security measures in place as quickly as possible.

  - ✓ Puts more resources at the screening gate – not in Washington bureaucracy. Not giving airports a choice in hiring will keep more money in Washington for administrative costs and other expenses – every dollar that stays in Washington for administrative costs is a dollar that is not protecting Americans at the baggage screening gate. Mandatory full federalization would immediately put more than 20,000 new employees on the federal payroll and require administration of the entire array of support services needed for such a large complement of federal workers. Using private workers with established administrative infrastructures will put more dollars at the gate.

  - ✓ Produces tougher, more qualified baggage screeners. If the government doesn't have a choice in hiring screeners, there will be no competition and less incentive to produce tougher, more qualified screeners. Expanding options for airports will put the toughest screeners possible at the screening check points.

  - ✓ Ensures flexibility to discipline or remove unqualified screeners. Permitting the use of contract employees will preserve the most flexibility and control for the federal security agency. The government needs the authority to replace unqualified individual screeners – or even an entire airport screening workforce that is not meeting the rigorous new security standards.

Tim: I thought we resolved this issue at least with regard to OA and the other Federal Records Act (FRA) components (OMB, CEQ, OSTP, ONDCP, and USTR). Because substantive e-mail sent via PIN to PIN cannot be records managed and is not secure, I recommend that the PIN to PIN feature be disabled for the FRA components. This is consistent with what we did with the e-mail feature in Netscape and Internet Explorer.

As an alternative, in the event that Phil determines that the PIN to PIN feature is critical for operating in an emergency environment when the basic Blackberry services are unavailable, then the PIN to PIN feature could be enabled only for a limited number of staff determined by Phil to be emergency personnel. Such personnel would have to be advised in writing that PIN to PIN messaging is not secure and shall only be used in emergency situations when the basic Blackberry services are unavailable. Further, emergency personnel would have to be further advised of their responsibility to document and incorporate any substantive information created/received via the PIN to PIN feature for OA's official files as soon as practicable under the circumstances.

Obviously, I prefer the first approach, disabling PIN to PIN for all of the FRA components, but I can live with the second if it is truly critical for operating in an emergency. Let me know if you have any additional questions. I'll defer to Brett on the Presidential components. Kate

Re: Request for White House assistance in ensuring fair, equal treatment by FAA in Phoenix area Stadium Review Process

The project to build a new multipurpose stadium in the vicinity of Phoenix Sky Harbor Airport has been one, which has evidenced from the start a bias of the Federal Aviation Administration against this project and in favor of the City of Phoenix and the Airport. FAA officials have told stadium supporters that they represented their "client, the airport." The City of Phoenix owns the airport. The Mayor of the City of Phoenix is a strong opponent of the new stadium. Most observers believe the Mayor opposes the project for several reasons, including the multipurpose nature of the stadium and its location in the City of Tempe will take business from the Phoenix convention center.

Tempe is the home of football in the Valley of the Sun. The NFL Arizona Cardinals, Arizona State University's Sun Devils and BCS Tostitos Fiesta Bowl stage their games in Tempe. The new stadium will be home of the Cardinals and Fiesta Bowl. The location of the stadium is important because it will sit on the only available parcel of land large enough to site it left in Tempe. This parcel is located in Tempe near the border of Phoenix approximately two and half miles from the airport.

The project supporters followed the regulatory requirements and gave notice to the Federal Aviation Administration in accordance with Part 77 of the Federal Aviation Regulations (14 CFR Part 77) that we intended to construct a stadium at a site near the airport. It became clear when Phoenix announced to the media certain FAA concerns in July 2001 prior to the FAA even informing the stadium supporters who filed the application that Phoenix had developed close relationships with the FAA regulators. Following that announcement, the stadium supporters hired a respected team of aviation experts, in addition to the Tempe aviation consultants, to analyze the technical aviation issues raised by Phoenix and FAA. The experts have filed a comprehensive response that addresses all FAA concerns. Phoenix refused to meet with our experts to discuss our responses. FAA has met very few times and has given conflicting information to Tempe stadium supporters and failed to follow through with numerous assurances they made.

Since July, Phoenix has presented technically flawed information to the FAA and the FAA appears to have used it. The FAA canceled a procedure in September just days after it was implemented that conflicted with the stadium site, and to their surprise other existing obstructions near the site. Phoenix supported FAA on implementing that procedure. Phoenix has also reproduced inaccurate information about the stadium, distributed it to the airlines and asked them to oppose the stadium location in Tempe based on the inaccurate information.

We have tried on every occasion to work with the FAA and the City of Phoenix to constructively work out every issue presented. We have even changed our plans, spending millions of dollars to relocate the Stadium on the parcel, in an effort to solve the FAA's concerns. The irony of the situation is that all sports stadiums in the Valley are located in close proximity to the airport. The proposed stadium is farther away from the airport than the MLB Arizona Diamondbacks' Bank One Ballpark (located within the City of Phoenix) and further away from runway centerline than ASU's Sun Devil Stadium. There is no information available about the process the Sun Devil Stadium went through thirty years ago. Bank One Ballpark on the other hand sailed through the FAA process less than five years ago because it was supported by Phoenix.

We are now at the point where we have overcome every technical issue save one. That is the issue of whether the single engine out performance requirement for Air Carriers would have an undue impact on the efficiency and use of the airport. If the FAA finds this to be the case they will find this project to be a hazard to air navigation and this project will die. Phoenix officials have openly remarked that this is their best way to kill the stadium in Tempe.

We have been able to secure the single engine out procedures of two Air Carriers. The procedures are nearly the same. Neither conflicts with the stadium nor has negative impact on efficiency or operations of the Air Carriers. Other Air Carriers and commercial pilots have told us that they could come up with several procedures that have the same outcome – no affect on safety or efficiency. Our team of independent consultants has come to the same conclusion. In other words, there are many solutions to allow the airport and stadium to coexist safely with no negative impacts on the airport or Air Carriers. We are aware that several Air Carriers have procedures that may conflict, but with a simple change to a procedure that is rarely if ever used, there is no issue. FAA has authority to work with air carriers on the development of these procedures but has not indicated that they would be willing to do so. They also have authority to kill the stadium project by declaring it a hazard because it would conflict with existing single engine out procedures. FAA can do this even though there are numerous alternative solutions that require little change and no adverse affect on safety or operations.

FAA assured us in a July 17 2001 letter that they stood "ready to work with you and your representatives to find a mutually acceptable means of mitigating the issues" concerning the Tempe stadium site. FAA 7400.2E, Procedures for Handling Airspace Matters, and 14 CFR-Part 77 requires FAA to work cooperatively with the "sponsor" of a project like the one at hand. We have stood ready to work cooperatively with FAA but do not feel that we are being dealt with fairly in light of the relationship Phoenix has with some regulators handling this case, comments of those regulators and the obvious: there are existing procedures that make this a non-issue but we are still being told that we may be issued a hazard determination because FAA may not cooperate in implementing the procedures that make it a non-issue.

While the determination of hazard for construction at airports such as Sky Harbor is assigned to the discretion of the FAA, that discretion should be exercised in an evenhanded way. Rather than finding reasons to block this project, FAA should, as stated in their procedure, be working to find a way that all of the parties can preserve the aeronautical use of the airport and at the same time allow this important project to proceeded. Our community voted and approved this project in November 2000. The jobs and economic stimulus of this $400 million project is what our local economy needs now, not further delays and political games.

We solicit your help in contacting the FAA to ensure that they approach the issues before them in this constructive manner and that they work cooperatively with the stadium project supporters, City of Tempe and the air carriers to reach a constructive solution that satisfies everyone's needs.

We ask that FAA assure that Phoenix politics play no part in their decision. On the only unresolved issue, we ask that the FAA develop a solution to the single engine out procedure that allows the stadium project to move forward.

Finally, it is important that when FAA issues its NO HAZARD DETERMINATION that it be a clean ruling not tainted with negative superfluous comments. Phoenix officials have remarked that their fall back position is that they are going ask their "friends at the FAA" to insert language into the NO HAZARD DETERMINATION that gives them the ability to go to court and seek a restraining order with the use of an Arizona airport statue that has not been invoked in the last fifty years.

INCREASING IMMIGRATION SAFEGUARDS AND IMPROVING VITAL INFORMATION SHARING

TODAY'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

- President Bush convened the first formal meeting of the full Homeland Security Council (HSC).

- The President took another step in the fight against terrorism by issuing a Presidential Directive to improve immigration policies and practices and make it more difficult for terrorists to enter or remain in the United States.

ABOUT THE PRESIDENT'S ACTION TO TIGHTEN IMMIGRATION POLICIES

- America is a nation of immigrants, and improving legal immigration remains a priority for the Bush Administration. But the Bush Administration is committed to ensuring that our immigration policies and practices do not allow terrorists to enter or remain in the United States.

- To increase immigration safeguards and improve vital information sharing between federal agencies, President Bush issued a new Homeland Security Presidential Directive to help combat terrorism through more effective immigration policies and practices.

- Among its key features, the Presidential Directive:

  - Creates a Foreign Terrorist Tracking Task Force: The Task Force will coordinate Federal programs designed to: (1) deny entry into the U.S. of aliens associated with, suspected of being engaged in or supporting terrorist activity; and (2) locate, detain, prosecute, or deport any such aliens already present in the U.S. The Task Force will be established by the Attorney General by November 1. Experts from the State Department, FBI, INS, Secret Service, Customs Service and the intelligence community will serve on the Task Force.
  - Orders a Thorough Review of Student Visa Policies: International students add greatly to the vitality and quality of our nation's colleges, universities and other institutions of learning. The Presidential Directive orders the Secretary of State and the Attorney General – working with the Secretary of Education, Secretary of Defense, Secretary of Energy and the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) -- to institute tighter controls and ensure that student visas are being issued appropriately. A goal of the program is to prohibit the education and training of foreign nationals who would use their training to harm the United States and its Allies.
  - Better Coordinates Immigration and Customs Policies with Canada and Mexico: Millions of people and billions of dollars of goods move legally between the United States, Canada and Mexico each year. The United States seeks to deny potential terrorists easy entry into the country from Canada or Mexico, while ensuring that legal travel and commerce continues with minimal border restrictions. The Directive orders the Secretaries of State and Treasury and the Attorney General to increase the sharing of customs and immigration information with Canada and Mexico, and work with our neighbors to develop a shared immigration and customs control database. These efforts will ensure the maximum possible compatibility of immigration, customs and visa policies.

- The Presidential Directive also:

  - Directs the Attorney General and Secretary of the Treasury to enhance the investigative and intelligence analysis capabilities of the INS and the Customs Service, and to increase INS and Customs special agent personnel assigned to Joint Terrorism Task Forces
  - Directs the Office of Science and Technology Policy to work with the Attorney General and the Director of Central Intelligence to make recommendations on advanced technology that could be used to aid immigration enforcement
  - Directs the Office of Management and Budget to work with the Attorney General, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Assistant to the President for Homeland Security to develop a budgetary plan to support this effort

- President Bush believes that better information sharing, improved technology and increased coordination can vastly improve the ability of our immigration system to prevent terrorists from entering or operating in the United States.

Spoke with Ed, I explained the liability end of our proposal is a key to our plan, but banking has jurisdiction over 80 percent of the bill and until we had agreement with them on the 80 percent, we didn't want to waste the Judiciary guys time on the 20 percent. He asked me to give him a call after the 11:15 am meeting, and if the Banking Committee is moving forward, then we will brief the Leahy / Hatch folks as early as tomorrow.

CONSOLIDATION

LANGUAGE

(a) SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION. Notwithstanding any other law, within 90 days of an act of terrorism as defined in section 803, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single federal district court to conduct pre-trial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from a single act of terrorism as defined in section 803, and shall transfer all such pending civil actions to that district court. The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings. The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all such actions. For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(b) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS. Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a federal district court other than the federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be transferred to the federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation.

(c) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS. Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a state court shall be removable to the federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation.

PURPOSE

- A single federal court and a uniform standard of liability are necessary to ensure that the legal system is not overwhelmed by multiple cases in multiple courts in multiple states -- with similar claims in multiple forums decided under widely varying standards for liability, causation, defenses, and damages.

- Consolidation of cases in a single court is a common procedure in mass tort cases and was a central feature of the legislation recently enacted by Congress for the tort cases arising out of the September 11 attacks.

ANALOGUE IN AIR TRANSPORTATION ACT

- Section 408(b) of the Air Transportation Act consolidates all cases arising out of the September 11 attacks in a single federal court.

- Section 809 (a)-(c) of the proposed bill would consolidate all cases arising out of a mass terrorism incident in a single federal court.

PUNITIVE DAMAGES

LANGUAGE

(e) PUNITIVE DAMAGES. Punitive damages, exemplary damages, and other damages not intended to compensate the plaintiff for actual losses shall not be available in any civil action subject to this title.

PURPOSE

- In mass tort cases, only a limited pool of resources will be available to plaintiffs who prove liability (whether because of bankruptcy or settlement).

- Because of the limited pool of resources, it would be grossly inequitable and unfair to allow one plaintiff or class of plaintiffs to receive an excessive award -- including a punitive component entirely unrelated to the plaintiff's injuries -- that could greatly limit or outright preclude recovery by other plaintiffs.

- Even for defendants who face no possibility of bankruptcy, the possibility of massive punitive or non-economic damages creates pressure to settle even unmeritorious cases.

ANALOGUE IN AIR TRANSPORTATION ACT

- Section 405(b)(5) of the Air Transportation Act precludes recovery of punitive damages in the victims' claims process, and Section 408(a) limits any recovery against air carriers to the limits of their liability policies.

- Section 809(e) of the proposed bill would preclude recovery of punitive damages, and would not cap damages against any defendant.

it seems to me the best way to attack the nyc problem is to help the city get private insurance, rather than becoming the indemnifier. would your program help accomplish that? could these issues get rolled into the insurance legislation, perhaps, rather than setting up a whole new scheme?

will be at Senate for 11:15 meeting; keep me posted obviously because the federal government is assuming a huge portion of the backstop for terrorism insurance under the proposals now being considered, and that may loosen up the private insurers to provide coverage to NYC here; perhaps not, however, because there likely will be a $10 billion collective deductible

Insurance. Just spoke to Adam Barsky. I think we should try to get with Peter and should engage the insurance group. My hunch is that this issue will arise on the terrorism insurance bill. The insurance issue is related to the management of the effort. The City is interested in transitioning management of the project from City to Federal control. We still need to resolve the insurance issue. Regardless of who manages the project, there will still be insurance issues.

Assistance. We are going to pull together a package of recommendations on the four items we've discussed for Mitch by COB today. This product won't be ready by early this afternoon. We need to figure out how we engage New York (City, State, congressional delegation).

Austin: We'll obviously have to stay on top of this. Should we tee up a meeting with Peter Fisher today, or should we just tuirn this over to the insurance group (is there one?) to work?

Also. given the call Josh got on Friday that I told you about, we really need to accelerate our thinking on the other immediate items on the table -- my sense is that we need decisions todayt in order to be well enough armed to head off bigger spending in the Congress. Do you think we can pull some recommnedations together in time for an afternoon meeting?

SPEECH TO THE WELSH ASSEMBLY

Thank you for your invitation to be here today – the first British Prime Minister to have addressed the National Assembly of Wales.

Devolution is about harnessing the power of community – the diverse community that is the United Kingdom, and the national communities that through devolution can take their futures in their own hands.

Wales has a long history of innovation. It has been a great industrial exporter – from the coal and steel that powered the first industrial revolution to satellite components and computer circuit boards today, when more people work in its electronics plants than coal mines.

You have always been exporters of ideas and of reforming politicians too. The pioneering socialist Robert Owen. David Lloyd George. Nye Bevan, the father of the NHS. And of course my predecessors as leader of the Labour Party - Neil Kinnock, Michael Foot, and Jim Callaghan, in whose former constituency the Assembly is located.

The National Assembly leads a newly confident Wales, giving a lead to the rest of the UK - and to Europe.

But now we have to make devolution really deliver for the people of Wales - delivering not just greater democracy but also better public services and stronger communities.

When I accepted this invitation months ago, I had in mind a very different speech than the one I give today. I understand some feel I should not address the present crisis in the Welsh Assembly. I am sorry if that is the case but if I were speaking today before any Parliament in the world, I should feel obliged to talk about the issue that rightly preoccupies people and I hope the people of Wales will consider it a mark of respect not of disrespect if I do so here. And we should never forget the contribution Wales and the Welsh people make to our Armed Forces.

I said a few days ago that now would be the testing time. People want results. They want them as fast as possible.

They realise the formidable challenges posed by any action in Afghanistan. They worry about civilian casualties. They are anxious about the refugee crisis as winter approaches. They wonder what comes after the conflict.

All these concerns deserve to be answered. No one who raises doubts is an appeaser or a faint heart. We are a democracy, strong enough to have doubts raised even at a time of war and wise enough to be able to respond to them.

But let us go back to why we are in this conflict. On 11 September, thousands of people were killed in cold blood in the worst terrorist attacks the world has ever seen. That is a fact. Those responsible were the Al Qaida network reared by Usama Bin Laden. That is a fact barely disputed by anymore. Incidentally, the intelligence evidence, significant when I first drew attention to it on 3 October, is now a flood, confirming guilt.

The Taliban regime in Afghanistan protect Al Qaida and help them. That is a fact. Indeed, according to the latest evidence we have, they are virtually a merged organisation. The Taliban regime are cruel, dictatorial and oppressive, causing 4½ million refugees to be on the move before 11 September. That, too is a fact.

Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida have said they consider it their duty to commit further terrorist acts. We gave the Taliban an ultimatum to deliver up Usama Bin Laden. They refused. These are also facts.

They lead to one inescapable conclusion: that if we do not act against Al Qaida and the Taliban, Al Qaida will have perpetrated this atrocity, the Taliban will have sheltered them, and we will have done nothing. We will have done nothing despite the fact, also inescapable, that they intend to commit more atrocities unless we yield to their demands which include the eradication of Israel, the killing of all Jews and the setting up of fundamentalist states in all parts of the Arab and Moslem world.

So: we have a group of people in Afghanistan who are the sworn enemies of everything the civilised world stands for, who have killed once on a vast scale and will kill again unless stopped. They can't be negotiated with. They refuse to yield to justice.

And they have one hope: that we are decadent, that we lack the moral fibre or will or courage to take them on; that we might begin but we won't finish; that we will start, then falter; that when the first setbacks occur, we will lose our nerve.

They are wrong. We won't falter.

We will not stop until our mission is complete. We will not flinch from doing what is necessary to complete it. We will not fail and we will do it all because we believe in our values of justice, tolerance and respect for all regardless of race, religion or creed just as passionately as they believe in fanatical hatred of Jews, Christians and any Moslems who don't share their perverse view of Islam.

They mistake our desire for a comfortable life, living in peace, benign towards different races and cultures, for decadence. It is not decadence. It is progress and we will fight to maintain it.

Now let me return to the questions that need answering.

Our objectives are clear: to close down the Al Qaida network, bring UBL and his associates to justice and because the Taliban regime have chosen to side with Al Qaida, to remove them.

The means we use will be: air power; ground operations as and when necessary in furtherance of our aims; support to the Northern Alliance and other anti-Taliban regime elements; and building up a strong political and diplomatic coalition against the present Taliban regime inside and outside Afghanistan.

We have destroyed the Taliban air force, put Taliban airfields and air defence systems out of action; destroyed all the main Al Qaida camps; profoundly damaged Taliban command and control facilities, and dramatically reduced their capacity to communicate with their forces in the field.

So this is a steady process of fragmenting, undermining and eventually destroying the Taliban regime as a serious threat capable of inflicting any more damage on their country and the outside world.

But two words of caution. This is not a conventional conflict. It is not a battle for territory per se or for the subjugation of Afghanistan. It is a battle to allow Afghans themselves to re-take control of their country and in doing so to close down the threat posed by the present rules. The political and diplomatic go hand in hand with the military. And we simply cannot and should not disclose the exact nature of the ground operations we intend to undertake. There is a limit to what we can sensibly discuss in public.

We do all we can to limit civilian casualties, unlike Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida who did all they could to cause as many civilian casualties as possible.

Tragically, there will be some but I do ask people to be deeply sceptical about Taliban claims.

Whilst the military action continues, two other things are happening. We are establishing a huge humanitarian effort - $700m already pledged. We are determined to feed and shelter as many refugees as we can. But we have to contend with armed groups harassing UN food convoys, stealing their equipment or even the food itself. We are in continuous discussion with the UN agencies and other on the ground to see how to improve the delivery of supplies and humanitarian assistance, and carry on doing all we can.

Secondly, under the leadership of Mr Brahimi, the Special UN Envoy, the UN is convening as wide a representative group of Afghan opinion as possible in order that when the present Taliban regime falls, a successor regime, broad-based, can take its place. All the main regional countries are being consulted.

The end we desire is this: Al Qaida shut down in Afghanistan ; the Taliban regime out; a new broad-based regime in; Afghan reconstruction underway.

Our military action is focussed on Afghanistan. But terrorism is a wider problem not limited to there. We will take action as a world community on its financing, weapons capability and movement of terrorists wherever we can, as with the recent EU measures. This second stage of action will, of course, be subject to close consultation and deliberation with the global alliance against terrorism.

The international coalition remains strong. I pay tribute to Arab and Moslem countries who have supported our action. I thank Saudi Arabia for its forthright condemnation and action. UBL may be Saudi in origin but he defames the good name of Saudi Arabia, which is a good and dependable friend to the civilised world.

Every part of this is difficult. Every part requires courage, conviction, hard work. In every part, there may be setbacks from time to time.
But in every part, we have justice and right on our side, and a strategy to deliver.

It is important we never forget why we are doing it. Important we never forget how we felt watching the planes fly into the twin towers. Never forget those answering machine messages. Never forget how we felt imagining how mothers told children they were about to die.

Never forget the guts of the fire fighters and police who died trying to save others. Never forget the menace of UBL in his propaganda video. Never forget that too long a list of countries who lost sons and daughters. Never forget that they were of all faiths and none; Christian, Jew and Moslem; many Moslems, for it is not us who are at war with Islam. It is Al Qaida and the Taliban who are at war with anyone, whatever their faith, who does not share their maniacal, fanatical view of the world.

He did not just hijack planes. He has hijacked a country from which he runs his terrorist, criminal activity. Now he would like to hijack a religion; and hijack the Palestinian cause too.

We are a principled nation, and this is a principled conflict.

September 11th is no less appalling today than it was on September 11th. Our determination is no less resolute than it was on the day military action began. We have a job to do; and it is being done and will be seen through to the end.

Now is a time for people of all races and all faiths in Britain to stand together.

That is exactly what Moslem leaders in Wales and across Britain have done with their forthright condemnation of the atrocities of 11 September, and I thank them for it.

I condemn utterly the attacks and abuse that some British Moslems have suffered since 11 September – some of them here in Wales.

And I say to the 50,000 Moslems living in Wales today: we will defend your right to live free from the fear of racism and religious hatred.

Partly as a result of 11 September we face now a more difficult economic time. But in any event, as a result of globalisation, we face constant challenges.

The Corus job losses were a heavy blow.

Sectors such as tourism - already struggling from foot and mouth - have been hit hard.

But the fundamentals of our economy both in Wales and in Britain are the strongest they have been in a generation.

Employment is rising, not falling. Unemployment here in Wales is at its lowest level for over 25 years. Interest rates are at their lowest for nearly 40 years.

We have seen 200 new high tech jobs at a £90 million BT Ignite development here in Cardiff; and almost 200 at Continental Teves and Desk Link in Blaenau Gwent – an area particularly hard hit by the Corus losses. New investment that this Assembly helped to secure.

I have also heard from business leaders that the Assembly has given Wales a real business voice. Of course, that was one reason behind creating an Assembly. Much of the pressure for regional government in England comes from their desire to emulate you.

Those who said that devolution would lead to the break up of Britain have been proved wrong.

Earlier we met together - leaders from the UK, from Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland to discuss issues of common interest. Diversity does not mean division – quite the reverse. People are perfectly capable of thinking of themselves as Welsh and British at the same time.

Devolution to Wales is just one part of a much wider programme of constitutional reform designed to move us away from a centralised Britain to a more democratic, decentralised, plural state.

The Scottish Parliament has meant a radical decline in the numbers of Scots wanting separation. In London, there is now an elected Assembly and Mayor. In Northern Ireland, thanks to the efforts of the leaders there, we have in a part of the UK riven by sectarian division, the chance of a new future.

In each area and here in Wales, there are difficulties and tensions between parties and within parties.

But the result is that instead of one centre of power focussed on Whitehall and Westminster, there are several with the opportunity for power to be exercised closer to the people it affects. And I believe the most remarkable thing is not the problem of devolution but the ease with which what amounts to a constitutional revolution, has bedded down.

But devolution fits within a broader framework, re-balancing power between citizen and Government and modernising Britain's constitution.

We have incorporated the European Convention on Human Rights into UK law. We have reformed the voting system both here and in the European Parliament.

And we have started reform of the House of Lords, removing the vast bulk of hereditary peers.

The Wakeham Commission reported in favour of the next stage of reform, with a balance of elected, nominated and independent members.

Later this month we will publish a White Paper setting out our proposals for it, based largely on the Wakeham report.

There will be an elected element, to ensure proper regional representation. There will be a statutory Appointments Commission. There will continue to be independent members. There will be rules to determine fair political balance.

We will consult on these proposals and then legislate so that we complete the work of Lords reform begun in 1997.

But constitutional reform and devolution can never be ends in themselves. They are means to an end: to improve the lives of the people we serve.

Two years on we must ask ourselves how devolved institutions have measured up to that task.

I believe there are real achievements of which the Assembly and Wales can be proud.

On education, Wales has seen the best primary school results ever. Class sizes are smaller too.

And on health, record investment is being matched with reform.

Meanwhile the National Assembly has confidently handled its baptism of fire– the fuel crisis, last year's flooding, Corus, and foot and mouth. That is a credit to the Assembly - and to your leadership and commitment as First Minister, Rhodri.

Nearly half of the Assembly and a majority of the Cabinet are women - a level that puts virtually every other parliament in the world to shame.

Pensioners and people with disabilities now enjoy concessionary bus travel – a policy made in Wales, now being extended to England.

But a huge task still remains.

There are major challenges above all in improving the delivery of public services – challenges that are just as great here in Wales as in the rest of Britain.

In our schools, where we need to raise standards still higher.

In our hospitals, where people are still waiting too long for treatment.

The priority now must be to harness the full potential of the current devolution settlement to improve the lives of the people of Wales.

Westminster must play its part in that process too. Devolution is about partnership - and partnership is a two-way street.

That is a principle on which both Rhodri and Paul have led the way – that we achieve more by working I partnership.

The last Spending Review alone provides an extra £1.8 billion of investment in Welsh public services.

Partnership means ensuring that Wales' voice is heard loud and clear in Westminster - and Wales could have no greater champion than Paul Murphy.

Partnership allows us then to act together on issues where Wales and Westminster need to.

- legislation for a new Children's Commissioner – the first post of its kind in Britain;

- the reforms to the Health Service in Wales that were voted on here in this very chamber.

- on Objective One, for example, where the funding is now in place to help deprived communities in West Wales and the Valleys.

- or on miners' compensation, where I know that the money has not been getting to those who are suffering quickly enough; but where we are doing all we can to speed up the payments and ensure that the money gets to those who need it most – the oldest and the sickest miners and widows. Every week now we pay out £1 million in Wales - over £100 million in total so far.

I believe devolution has left the UK stronger not weaker. We are able to do as the UK what we need to do together. And in respect of issues like public services, we can do things differently. Such a constitutional partnership is commonplace elsewhere in Europe and round the world. It allows the energy and diversity of different parts of our country to breathe and develop.

Devolution is in its infancy still. But already there is a healthy debate abut how it can develop, which is taking root also in the English regions.

There is a wider context. A development is taking place that is again obvious and replicated world-wide. Nations are coming closer together – the EU, NAFTA, ASEAN, Mercosur.

Increasingly challenges, interests and solutions are global like climate change, international finance or terrorism.

Yet coincidentally, at the very time nations collaborate on a bigger stage, so within countries, there is a greater desire to seize back control over local issues on a smaller stage. Politics is finding different levels appropriate to different types of issue.

Political systems that fail to make sense of these developments will either become out of touch with people or ineffectual.

Modern Britain is trying to avoid these pitfalls – a true partner now in the EU and globally, committed to devolution on the issues where devolution makes sense; yet proud to be Britain where we need to act as Britain.

Separation of the component parts of the UK is a cul-de-sac. It would just make each part weaker. There is merit in the simple argument that when it comes to the economy, defence, foreign policy, social security, bigger is stronger. We can then project that strength globally.

But within that unity, diversity can flourish. That is why devolution is important. In its infancy it may be, but it is here to stay. I was proud to make the case for the Welsh Assembly, proud that case was accepted and proud to be the first British Prime Minister to address you. I won't be the last.

EXCERPTS FROM PRIME MINISTER BLAIR'S SPEECH ON THE WAR AGAINST TERRORISM

Prime Minister Blair in a major speech today Wales set out the moral case for pursuing the war on terrorism, and recommitted the UK and the whole coalition to seeing this action through to the end. He said:

"The Taliban regime in Afghanistan protect Al Qaida and help them. That is a fact. According to the latest evidence we have, they are virtually a merged organisation. The Taliban regime are cruel, dictatorial and oppressive, causing 4½ million refugees to be on the move before 11 September.

"Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida have said they consider it their duty to commit further terrorist acts. We gave the Taliban an ultimatum to deliver up Usama Bin Laden. They refused.

"They lead to one inescapable conclusion: that if we do not act against Al Qaida and the Taliban, Al Qaida will have perpetrated this atrocity, the Taliban will have sheltered them, and we will have done nothing. We will have done nothing despite the fact, also inescapable, that they intend to commit more atrocities unless we yield to their demands which include the eradication of Israel, the killing of all Jews and the setting up of fundamentalist states in all parts of the Arab and Moslem world.

"It is important we never forget why we are doing it. Important we never forget how we felt watching the planes fly into the twin towers. Never forget those answering machine messages. Never forget how we felt imagining how mothers told children they were about to die.

"Never forget the guts of the fire fighters and police who died trying to save others. Never forget the menace of UBL in his propaganda video. Never forget that too long a list of countries who lost sons and daughters. Never forget that they were of all faiths and none; Christian, Jew and Moslem; many Moslems, for it is not us who are at war with Islam. It is Al Qaida and the Taliban who are at war with anyone, whatever their faith, who does not share their maniacal, fanatical view of the world.

"He did not just hijack planes. He has hijacked a country from which he runs his terrorist, criminal activity.

"Every part of this is difficult. Every part requires courage, conviction, hard work. In every part, there may be setbacks from time to time.
But in every part, we have justice and right on our side, and a strategy to deliver."

SPEECH TO THE WELSH ASSEMBLY

Thank you for your invitation to be here today – the first British Prime Minister to have addressed the National Assembly of Wales.

Devolution is about harnessing the power of community – the diverse community that is the United Kingdom, and the national communities that through devolution can take their futures in their own hands.

Wales has a long history of innovation. It has been a great industrial exporter – from the coal and steel that powered the first industrial revolution to satellite components and computer circuit boards today, when more people work in its electronics plants than coal mines.

You have always been exporters of ideas and of reforming politicians too. The pioneering socialist Robert Owen. David Lloyd George. Nye Bevan, the father of the NHS. And of course my predecessors as leader of the Labour Party - Neil Kinnock, Michael Foot, and Jim Callaghan, in whose former constituency the Assembly is located.

The National Assembly leads a newly confident Wales, giving a lead to the rest of the UK - and to Europe.

But now we have to make devolution really deliver for the people of Wales - delivering not just greater democracy but also better public services and stronger communities.

When I accepted this invitation months ago, I had in mind a very different speech than the one I give today. I understand some feel I should not address the present crisis in the Welsh Assembly. I am sorry if that is the case but if I were speaking today before any Parliament in the world, I should feel obliged to talk about the issue that rightly preoccupies people and I hope the people of Wales will consider it a mark of respect not of disrespect if I do so here. And we should never forget the contribution Wales and the Welsh people make to our Armed Forces.

I said a few days ago that now would be the testing time. People want results. They want them as fast as possible.

They realise the formidable challenges posed by any action in Afghanistan. They worry about civilian casualties. They are anxious about the refugee crisis as winter approaches. They wonder what comes after the conflict.

All these concerns deserve to be answered. No one who raises doubts is an appeaser or a faint heart. We are a democracy, strong enough to have doubts raised even at a time of war and wise enough to be able to respond to them.

But let us go back to why we are in this conflict. On 11 September, thousands of people were killed in cold blood in the worst terrorist attacks the world has ever seen. That is a fact. Those responsible were the Al Qaida network reared by Usama Bin Laden. That is a fact barely disputed by anymore. Incidentally, the intelligence evidence, significant when I first drew attention to it on 3 October, is now a flood, confirming guilt.

The Taliban regime in Afghanistan protect Al Qaida and help them. That is a fact. Indeed, according to the latest evidence we have, they are virtually a merged organisation. The Taliban regime are cruel, dictatorial and oppressive, causing 4½ million refugees to be on the move before 11 September. That, too is a fact.

Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida have said they consider it their duty to commit further terrorist acts. We gave the Taliban an ultimatum to deliver up Usama Bin Laden. They refused. These are also facts.

They lead to one inescapable conclusion: that if we do not act against Al Qaida and the Taliban, Al Qaida will have perpetrated this atrocity, the Taliban will have sheltered them, and we will have done nothing. We will have done nothing despite the fact, also inescapable, that they intend to commit more atrocities unless we yield to their demands which include the eradication of Israel, the killing of all Jews and the setting up of fundamentalist states in all parts of the Arab and Moslem world.

So: we have a group of people in Afghanistan who are the sworn enemies of everything the civilised world stands for, who have killed once on a vast scale and will kill again unless stopped. They can't be negotiated with. They refuse to yield to justice.

And they have one hope: that we are decadent, that we lack the moral fibre or will or courage to take them on; that we might begin but we won't finish; that we will start, then falter; that when the first setbacks occur, we will lose our nerve.

They are wrong. We won't falter.

We will not stop until our mission is complete. We will not flinch from doing what is necessary to complete it. We will not fail and we will do it all because we believe in our values of justice, tolerance and respect for all regardless of race, religion or creed just as passionately as they believe in fanatical hatred of Jews, Christians and any Moslems who don't share their perverse view of Islam.

They mistake our desire for a comfortable life, living in peace, benign towards different races and cultures, for decadence. It is not decadence. It is progress and we will fight to maintain it.

Now let me return to the questions that need answering.

Our objectives are clear: to close down the Al Qaida network, bring UBL and his associates to justice and because the Taliban regime have chosen to side with Al Qaida, to remove them.

The means we use will be: air power; ground operations as and when necessary in furtherance of our aims; support to the Northern Alliance and other anti-Taliban regime elements; and building up a strong political and diplomatic coalition against the present Taliban regime inside and outside Afghanistan.

We have destroyed the Taliban air force, put Taliban airfields and air defence systems out of action; destroyed all the main Al Qaida camps; profoundly damaged Taliban command and control facilities, and dramatically reduced their capacity to communicate with their forces in the field.

So this is a steady process of fragmenting, undermining and eventually destroying the Taliban regime as a serious threat capable of inflicting any more damage on their country and the outside world.

But two words of caution. This is not a conventional conflict. It is not a battle for territory per se or for the subjugation of Afghanistan. It is a battle to allow Afghans themselves to re-take control of their country and in doing so to close down the threat posed by the present rules. The political and diplomatic go hand in hand with the military. And we simply cannot and should not disclose the exact nature of the ground operations we intend to undertake. There is a limit to what we can sensibly discuss in public.

We do all we can to limit civilian casualties, unlike Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida who did all they could to cause as many civilian casualties as possible.

Tragically, there will be some but I do ask people to be deeply sceptical about Taliban claims.

Whilst the military action continues, two other things are happening. We are establishing a huge humanitarian effort - $700m already pledged. We are determined to feed and shelter as many refugees as we can. But we have to contend with armed groups harassing UN food convoys, stealing their equipment or even the food itself. We are in continuous discussion with the UN agencies and other on the ground to see how to improve the delivery of supplies and humanitarian assistance, and carry on doing all we can.

Secondly, under the leadership of Mr Brahimi, the Special UN Envoy, the UN is convening as wide a representative group of Afghan opinion as possible in order that when the present Taliban regime falls, a successor regime, broad-based, can take its place. All the main regional countries are being consulted.

The end we desire is this: Al Qaida shut down in Afghanistan ; the Taliban regime out; a new broad-based regime in; Afghan reconstruction underway.

Our military action is focussed on Afghanistan. But terrorism is a wider problem not limited to there. We will take action as a world community on its financing, weapons capability and movement of terrorists wherever we can, as with the recent EU measures. This second stage of action will, of course, be subject to close consultation and deliberation with the global alliance against terrorism.

The international coalition remains strong. I pay tribute to Arab and Moslem countries who have supported our action. I thank Saudi Arabia for its forthright condemnation and action. UBL may be Saudi in origin but he defames the good name of Saudi Arabia, which is a good and dependable friend to the civilised world.

Every part of this is difficult. Every part requires courage, conviction, hard work. In every part, there may be setbacks from time to time.
But in every part, we have justice and right on our side, and a strategy to deliver.

It is important we never forget why we are doing it. Important we never forget how we felt watching the planes fly into the twin towers. Never forget those answering machine messages. Never forget how we felt imagining how mothers told children they were about to die.

Never forget the guts of the fire fighters and police who died trying to save others. Never forget the menace of UBL in his propaganda video. Never forget that too long a list of countries who lost sons and daughters. Never forget that they were of all faiths and none; Christian, Jew and Moslem; many Moslems, for it is not us who are at war with Islam. It is Al Qaida and the Taliban who are at war with anyone, whatever their faith, who does not share their maniacal, fanatical view of the world.

He did not just hijack planes. He has hijacked a country from which he runs his terrorist, criminal activity. Now he would like to hijack a religion; and hijack the Palestinian cause too.

We are a principled nation, and this is a principled conflict.

September 11th is no less appalling today than it was on September 11th. Our determination is no less resolute than it was on the day military action began. We have a job to do; and it is being done and will be seen through to the end.

Now is a time for people of all races and all faiths in Britain to stand together.

That is exactly what Moslem leaders in Wales and across Britain have done with their forthright condemnation of the atrocities of 11 September, and I thank them for it.

I condemn utterly the attacks and abuse that some British Moslems have suffered since 11 September – some of them here in Wales.

And I say to the 50,000 Moslems living in Wales today: we will defend your right to live free from the fear of racism and religious hatred.

Partly as a result of 11 September we face now a more difficult economic time. But in any event, as a result of globalisation, we face constant challenges.

The Corus job losses were a heavy blow.

Sectors such as tourism - already struggling from foot and mouth - have been hit hard.

But the fundamentals of our economy both in Wales and in Britain are the strongest they have been in a generation.

Employment is rising, not falling. Unemployment here in Wales is at its lowest level for over 25 years. Interest rates are at their lowest for nearly 40 years.

We have seen 200 new high tech jobs at a £90 million BT Ignite development here in Cardiff; and almost 200 at Continental Teves and Desk Link in Blaenau Gwent – an area particularly hard hit by the Corus losses. New investment that this Assembly helped to secure.

I have also heard from business leaders that the Assembly has given Wales a real business voice. Of course, that was one reason behind creating an Assembly. Much of the pressure for regional government in England comes from their desire to emulate you.

Those who said that devolution would lead to the break up of Britain have been proved wrong.

Earlier we met together - leaders from the UK, from Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland to discuss issues of common interest. Diversity does not mean division – quite the reverse. People are perfectly capable of thinking of themselves as Welsh and British at the same time.

Devolution to Wales is just one part of a much wider programme of constitutional reform designed to move us away from a centralised Britain to a more democratic, decentralised, plural state.

The Scottish Parliament has meant a radical decline in the numbers of Scots wanting separation. In London, there is now an elected Assembly and Mayor. In Northern Ireland, thanks to the efforts of the leaders there, we have in a part of the UK riven by sectarian division, the chance of a new future.

In each area and here in Wales, there are difficulties and tensions between parties and within parties.

But the result is that instead of one centre of power focussed on Whitehall and Westminster, there are several with the opportunity for power to be exercised closer to the people it affects. And I believe the most remarkable thing is not the problem of devolution but the ease with which what amounts to a constitutional revolution, has bedded down.

But devolution fits within a broader framework, re-balancing power between citizen and Government and modernising Britain's constitution.

We have incorporated the European Convention on Human Rights into UK law. We have reformed the voting system both here and in the European Parliament.

And we have started reform of the House of Lords, removing the vast bulk of hereditary peers.

The Wakeham Commission reported in favour of the next stage of reform, with a balance of elected, nominated and independent members.

Later this month we will publish a White Paper setting out our proposals for it, based largely on the Wakeham report.

There will be an elected element, to ensure proper regional representation. There will be a statutory Appointments Commission. There will continue to be independent members. There will be rules to determine fair political balance.

We will consult on these proposals and then legislate so that we complete the work of Lords reform begun in 1997.

But constitutional reform and devolution can never be ends in themselves. They are means to an end: to improve the lives of the people we serve.

Two years on we must ask ourselves how devolved institutions have measured up to that task.

I believe there are real achievements of which the Assembly and Wales can be proud.

On education, Wales has seen the best primary school results ever. Class sizes are smaller too.

And on health, record investment is being matched with reform.

Meanwhile the National Assembly has confidently handled its baptism of fire– the fuel crisis, last year's flooding, Corus, and foot and mouth. That is a credit to the Assembly - and to your leadership and commitment as First Minister, Rhodri.

Nearly half of the Assembly and a majority of the Cabinet are women - a level that puts virtually every other parliament in the world to shame.

Pensioners and people with disabilities now enjoy concessionary bus travel – a policy made in Wales, now being extended to England.

But a huge task still remains.

There are major challenges above all in improving the delivery of public services – challenges that are just as great here in Wales as in the rest of Britain.

In our schools, where we need to raise standards still higher.

In our hospitals, where people are still waiting too long for treatment.

The priority now must be to harness the full potential of the current devolution settlement to improve the lives of the people of Wales.

Westminster must play its part in that process too. Devolution is about partnership - and partnership is a two-way street.

That is a principle on which both Rhodri and Paul have led the way – that we achieve more by working I partnership.

The last Spending Review alone provides an extra £1.8 billion of investment in Welsh public services.

Partnership means ensuring that Wales' voice is heard loud and clear in Westminster - and Wales could have no greater champion than Paul Murphy.

Partnership allows us then to act together on issues where Wales and Westminster need to.

- legislation for a new Children's Commissioner – the first post of its kind in Britain;

- the reforms to the Health Service in Wales that were voted on here in this very chamber.

- on Objective One, for example, where the funding is now in place to help deprived communities in West Wales and the Valleys.

- or on miners' compensation, where I know that the money has not been getting to those who are suffering quickly enough; but where we are doing all we can to speed up the payments and ensure that the money gets to those who need it most – the oldest and the sickest miners and widows. Every week now we pay out £1 million in Wales - over £100 million in total so far.

I believe devolution has left the UK stronger not weaker. We are able to do as the UK what we need to do together. And in respect of issues like public services, we can do things differently. Such a constitutional partnership is commonplace elsewhere in Europe and round the world. It allows the energy and diversity of different parts of our country to breathe and develop.

Devolution is in its infancy still. But already there is a healthy debate abut how it can develop, which is taking root also in the English regions.

There is a wider context. A development is taking place that is again obvious and replicated world-wide. Nations are coming closer together – the EU, NAFTA, ASEAN, Mercosur.

Increasingly challenges, interests and solutions are global like climate change, international finance or terrorism.

Yet coincidentally, at the very time nations collaborate on a bigger stage, so within countries, there is a greater desire to seize back control over local issues on a smaller stage. Politics is finding different levels appropriate to different types of issue.

Political systems that fail to make sense of these developments will either become out of touch with people or ineffectual.

Modern Britain is trying to avoid these pitfalls – a true partner now in the EU and globally, committed to devolution on the issues where devolution makes sense; yet proud to be Britain where we need to act as Britain.

Separation of the component parts of the UK is a cul-de-sac. It would just make each part weaker. There is merit in the simple argument that when it comes to the economy, defence, foreign policy, social security, bigger is stronger. We can then project that strength globally.

But within that unity, diversity can flourish. That is why devolution is important. In its infancy it may be, but it is here to stay. I was proud to make the case for the Welsh Assembly, proud that case was accepted and proud to be the first British Prime Minister to address you. I won't be the last.

EXCERPTS FROM PRIME MINISTER BLAIR'S SPEECH ON THE WAR AGAINST TERRORISM

Prime Minister Blair in a major speech today Wales set out the moral case for pursuing the war on terrorism, and recommitted the UK and the whole coalition to seeing this action through to the end. He said:

"The Taliban regime in Afghanistan protect Al Qaida and help them. That is a fact. According to the latest evidence we have, they are virtually a merged organisation. The Taliban regime are cruel, dictatorial and oppressive, causing 4½ million refugees to be on the move before 11 September.

"Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida have said they consider it their duty to commit further terrorist acts. We gave the Taliban an ultimatum to deliver up Usama Bin Laden. They refused.

"They lead to one inescapable conclusion: that if we do not act against Al Qaida and the Taliban, Al Qaida will have perpetrated this atrocity, the Taliban will have sheltered them, and we will have done nothing. We will have done nothing despite the fact, also inescapable, that they intend to commit more atrocities unless we yield to their demands which include the eradication of Israel, the killing of all Jews and the setting up of fundamentalist states in all parts of the Arab and Moslem world.

"It is important we never forget why we are doing it. Important we never forget how we felt watching the planes fly into the twin towers. Never forget those answering machine messages. Never forget how we felt imagining how mothers told children they were about to die.

"Never forget the guts of the fire fighters and police who died trying to save others. Never forget the menace of UBL in his propaganda video. Never forget that too long a list of countries who lost sons and daughters. Never forget that they were of all faiths and none; Christian, Jew and Moslem; many Moslems, for it is not us who are at war with Islam. It is Al Qaida and the Taliban who are at war with anyone, whatever their faith, who does not share their maniacal, fanatical view of the world.

"He did not just hijack planes. He has hijacked a country from which he runs his terrorist, criminal activity.

"Every part of this is difficult. Every part requires courage, conviction, hard work. In every part, there may be setbacks from time to time.
But in every part, we have justice and right on our side, and a strategy to deliver."

"LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

TODAY'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

- The President will visit Thomas S. Wootton High School in Rockville, MD to launch a new "Lessons of Liberty" initiative. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is an opportunity for American students to learn more about our country and its values, as well as the people that have been called upon to defend its freedom.

- The President will start this initiative by declaring the week of November 11th - 17th as National Veterans Awareness Week. He will ask schools across America – public, private, and home schools – to invite a veteran to speak about their experience in serving our country; the significance of Veterans Day; and the importance of supporting the ideals of liberty, democracy, and freedom.

- The President will also ask schools to continue participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative by helping students to learn more about America's history and values; encouraging participation in community organizations and public service projects; and participating in the "Friendship Through Education" program.

BACKGROUND ON NATIONAL VETERANS AWARENESS WEEK

- November 11th has a special meaning on two fronts this year. November 11th is Veterans Day, and it also marks the two-month anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Thousands of our men and women in uniform are overseas helping to secure our freedom and bring to justice those responsible for attacking America on September 11th. They are acting with the same courage and sense of purpose as the veterans we honor on Veterans Day.

- One way to help the next generation of Americans to better understand the values, commitment and sacrifices of our men and women in uniform is to bring them into direct contact with those who have served our nation in the past. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is designed to give the next generation of Americans a unique opportunity to learn firsthand from our nation's veterans.

HOW SCHOOLS CAN PARTICIPATE IN "LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

- Schools will have access to a multitude of resources for participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative through the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Education. Schools, educators, parents, and students can visit the Department of Veterans Affairs Web site at www.va.gov/vetsday to find classroom materials and curricula, ideas for activities, and resources for getting in touch with a veteran in their community. This site will also be accessible through the Department of Education Web site at www.ed.gov.

- Leading veterans organizations -- including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Military Order of the World Wars -- are supporting the effort and can be reached through these websites. These sites will bring together the efforts of many veterans organizations.

- The " Lessons of Liberty" initiative can be continued throughout the year through a variety of activities, including:

  - For Elementary and Middle School Students:
    - Read books about American history and government
    - Learn about outstanding leaders in America, past and present
    - Visit a historic site, such as a battleground
    - "Adopt an older American" and become a friend with a veteran
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

  - For High School Students:
    - Register to vote
    - Pledge to mentor younger students on the "Lessons of Liberty"
    - Volunteer in community organizations
    - Organize student public service projects
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

- For Parents, Teachers and Administrators:
  - Prepare students for veteran visits through civics lessons
  - Lesson plan website links available at www.va.gov/vetsday
  - Encourage community service for students though veteran programs

SPEECH TO THE WELSH ASSEMBLY

Thank you for your invitation to be here today – the first British Prime Minister to have addressed the National Assembly of Wales.

Devolution is about harnessing the power of community – the diverse community that is the United Kingdom, and the national communities that through devolution can take their futures in their own hands.

Wales has a long history of innovation. It has been a great industrial exporter – from the coal and steel that powered the first industrial revolution to satellite components and computer circuit boards today, when more people work in its electronics plants than coal mines.

You have always been exporters of ideas and of reforming politicians too. The pioneering socialist Robert Owen. David Lloyd George. Nye Bevan, the father of the NHS. And of course my predecessors as leader of the Labour Party - Neil Kinnock, Michael Foot, and Jim Callaghan, in whose former constituency the Assembly is located.

The National Assembly leads a newly confident Wales, giving a lead to the rest of the UK - and to Europe.

But now we have to make devolution really deliver for the people of Wales - delivering not just greater democracy but also better public services and stronger communities.

When I accepted this invitation months ago, I had in mind a very different speech than the one I give today. I understand some feel I should not address the present crisis in the Welsh Assembly. I am sorry if that is the case but if I were speaking today before any Parliament in the world, I should feel obliged to talk about the issue that rightly preoccupies people and I hope the people of Wales will consider it a mark of respect not of disrespect if I do so here. And we should never forget the contribution Wales and the Welsh people make to our Armed Forces.

I said a few days ago that now would be the testing time. People want results. They want them as fast as possible.

They realise the formidable challenges posed by any action in Afghanistan. They worry about civilian casualties. They are anxious about the refugee crisis as winter approaches. They wonder what comes after the conflict.

All these concerns deserve to be answered. No one who raises doubts is an appeaser or a faint heart. We are a democracy, strong enough to have doubts raised even at a time of war and wise enough to be able to respond to them.

But let us go back to why we are in this conflict. On 11 September, thousands of people were killed in cold blood in the worst terrorist attacks the world has ever seen. That is a fact. Those responsible were the Al Qaida network reared by Usama Bin Laden. That is a fact barely disputed by anymore. Incidentally, the intelligence evidence, significant when I first drew attention to it on 3 October, is now a flood, confirming guilt.

The Taliban regime in Afghanistan protect Al Qaida and help them. That is a fact. Indeed, according to the latest evidence we have, they are virtually a merged organisation. The Taliban regime are cruel, dictatorial and oppressive, causing 4½ million refugees to be on the move before 11 September. That, too is a fact.

Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida have said they consider it their duty to commit further terrorist acts. We gave the Taliban an ultimatum to deliver up Usama Bin Laden. They refused. These are also facts.

They lead to one inescapable conclusion: that if we do not act against Al Qaida and the Taliban, Al Qaida will have perpetrated this atrocity, the Taliban will have sheltered them, and we will have done nothing. We will have done nothing despite the fact, also inescapable, that they intend to commit more atrocities unless we yield to their demands which include the eradication of Israel, the killing of all Jews and the setting up of fundamentalist states in all parts of the Arab and Moslem world.

So: we have a group of people in Afghanistan who are the sworn enemies of everything the civilised world stands for, who have killed once on a vast scale and will kill again unless stopped. They can't be negotiated with. They refuse to yield to justice.

And they have one hope: that we are decadent, that we lack the moral fibre or will or courage to take them on; that we might begin but we won't finish; that we will start, then falter; that when the first setbacks occur, we will lose our nerve.

They are wrong. We won't falter.

We will not stop until our mission is complete. We will not flinch from doing what is necessary to complete it. We will not fail and we will do it all because we believe in our values of justice, tolerance and respect for all regardless of race, religion or creed just as passionately as they believe in fanatical hatred of Jews, Christians and any Moslems who don't share their perverse view of Islam.

They mistake our desire for a comfortable life, living in peace, benign towards different races and cultures, for decadence. It is not decadence. It is progress and we will fight to maintain it.

Now let me return to the questions that need answering.

Our objectives are clear: to close down the Al Qaida network, bring UBL and his associates to justice and because the Taliban regime have chosen to side with Al Qaida, to remove them.

The means we use will be: air power; ground operations as and when necessary in furtherance of our aims; support to the Northern Alliance and other anti-Taliban regime elements; and building up a strong political and diplomatic coalition against the present Taliban regime inside and outside Afghanistan.

We have destroyed the Taliban air force, put Taliban airfields and air defence systems out of action; destroyed all the main Al Qaida camps; profoundly damaged Taliban command and control facilities, and dramatically reduced their capacity to communicate with their forces in the field.

So this is a steady process of fragmenting, undermining and eventually destroying the Taliban regime as a serious threat capable of inflicting any more damage on their country and the outside world.

But two words of caution. This is not a conventional conflict. It is not a battle for territory per se or for the subjugation of Afghanistan. It is a battle to allow Afghans themselves to re-take control of their country and in doing so to close down the threat posed by the present rules. The political and diplomatic go hand in hand with the military. And we simply cannot and should not disclose the exact nature of the ground operations we intend to undertake. There is a limit to what we can sensibly discuss in public.

We do all we can to limit civilian casualties, unlike Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida who did all they could to cause as many civilian casualties as possible.

Tragically, there will be some but I do ask people to be deeply sceptical about Taliban claims.

Whilst the military action continues, two other things are happening. We are establishing a huge humanitarian effort - $700m already pledged. We are determined to feed and shelter as many refugees as we can. But we have to contend with armed groups harassing UN food convoys, stealing their equipment or even the food itself. We are in continuous discussion with the UN agencies and other on the ground to see how to improve the delivery of supplies and humanitarian assistance, and carry on doing all we can.

Secondly, under the leadership of Mr Brahimi, the Special UN Envoy, the UN is convening as wide a representative group of Afghan opinion as possible in order that when the present Taliban regime falls, a successor regime, broad-based, can take its place. All the main regional countries are being consulted.

The end we desire is this: Al Qaida shut down in Afghanistan ; the Taliban regime out; a new broad-based regime in; Afghan reconstruction underway.

Our military action is focussed on Afghanistan. But terrorism is a wider problem not limited to there. We will take action as a world community on its financing, weapons capability and movement of terrorists wherever we can, as with the recent EU measures. This second stage of action will, of course, be subject to close consultation and deliberation with the global alliance against terrorism.

The international coalition remains strong. I pay tribute to Arab and Moslem countries who have supported our action. I thank Saudi Arabia for its forthright condemnation and action. UBL may be Saudi in origin but he defames the good name of Saudi Arabia, which is a good and dependable friend to the civilised world.

Every part of this is difficult. Every part requires courage, conviction, hard work. In every part, there may be setbacks from time to time.
But in every part, we have justice and right on our side, and a strategy to deliver.

It is important we never forget why we are doing it. Important we never forget how we felt watching the planes fly into the twin towers. Never forget those answering machine messages. Never forget how we felt imagining how mothers told children they were about to die.

Never forget the guts of the fire fighters and police who died trying to save others. Never forget the menace of UBL in his propaganda video. Never forget that too long a list of countries who lost sons and daughters. Never forget that they were of all faiths and none; Christian, Jew and Moslem; many Moslems, for it is not us who are at war with Islam. It is Al Qaida and the Taliban who are at war with anyone, whatever their faith, who does not share their maniacal, fanatical view of the world.

He did not just hijack planes. He has hijacked a country from which he runs his terrorist, criminal activity. Now he would like to hijack a religion; and hijack the Palestinian cause too.

We are a principled nation, and this is a principled conflict.

September 11th is no less appalling today than it was on September 11th. Our determination is no less resolute than it was on the day military action began. We have a job to do; and it is being done and will be seen through to the end.

Now is a time for people of all races and all faiths in Britain to stand together.

That is exactly what Moslem leaders in Wales and across Britain have done with their forthright condemnation of the atrocities of 11 September, and I thank them for it.

I condemn utterly the attacks and abuse that some British Moslems have suffered since 11 September – some of them here in Wales.

And I say to the 50,000 Moslems living in Wales today: we will defend your right to live free from the fear of racism and religious hatred.

Partly as a result of 11 September we face now a more difficult economic time. But in any event, as a result of globalisation, we face constant challenges.

The Corus job losses were a heavy blow.

Sectors such as tourism - already struggling from foot and mouth - have been hit hard.

But the fundamentals of our economy both in Wales and in Britain are the strongest they have been in a generation.

Employment is rising, not falling. Unemployment here in Wales is at its lowest level for over 25 years. Interest rates are at their lowest for nearly 40 years.

We have seen 200 new high tech jobs at a £90 million BT Ignite development here in Cardiff; and almost 200 at Continental Teves and Desk Link in Blaenau Gwent – an area particularly hard hit by the Corus losses. New investment that this Assembly helped to secure.

I have also heard from business leaders that the Assembly has given Wales a real business voice. Of course, that was one reason behind creating an Assembly. Much of the pressure for regional government in England comes from their desire to emulate you.

Those who said that devolution would lead to the break up of Britain have been proved wrong.

Earlier we met together - leaders from the UK, from Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland to discuss issues of common interest. Diversity does not mean division – quite the reverse. People are perfectly capable of thinking of themselves as Welsh and British at the same time.

Devolution to Wales is just one part of a much wider programme of constitutional reform designed to move us away from a centralised Britain to a more democratic, decentralised, plural state.

The Scottish Parliament has meant a radical decline in the numbers of Scots wanting separation. In London, there is now an elected Assembly and Mayor. In Northern Ireland, thanks to the efforts of the leaders there, we have in a part of the UK riven by sectarian division, the chance of a new future.

In each area and here in Wales, there are difficulties and tensions between parties and within parties.

But the result is that instead of one centre of power focussed on Whitehall and Westminster, there are several with the opportunity for power to be exercised closer to the people it affects. And I believe the most remarkable thing is not the problem of devolution but the ease with which what amounts to a constitutional revolution, has bedded down.

But devolution fits within a broader framework, re-balancing power between citizen and Government and modernising Britain's constitution.

We have incorporated the European Convention on Human Rights into UK law. We have reformed the voting system both here and in the European Parliament.

And we have started reform of the House of Lords, removing the vast bulk of hereditary peers.

The Wakeham Commission reported in favour of the next stage of reform, with a balance of elected, nominated and independent members.

Later this month we will publish a White Paper setting out our proposals for it, based largely on the Wakeham report.

There will be an elected element, to ensure proper regional representation. There will be a statutory Appointments Commission. There will continue to be independent members. There will be rules to determine fair political balance.

We will consult on these proposals and then legislate so that we complete the work of Lords reform begun in 1997.

But constitutional reform and devolution can never be ends in themselves. They are means to an end: to improve the lives of the people we serve.

Two years on we must ask ourselves how devolved institutions have measured up to that task.

I believe there are real achievements of which the Assembly and Wales can be proud.

On education, Wales has seen the best primary school results ever. Class sizes are smaller too.

And on health, record investment is being matched with reform.

Meanwhile the National Assembly has confidently handled its baptism of fire– the fuel crisis, last year's flooding, Corus, and foot and mouth. That is a credit to the Assembly - and to your leadership and commitment as First Minister, Rhodri.

Nearly half of the Assembly and a majority of the Cabinet are women - a level that puts virtually every other parliament in the world to shame.

Pensioners and people with disabilities now enjoy concessionary bus travel – a policy made in Wales, now being extended to England.

But a huge task still remains.

There are major challenges above all in improving the delivery of public services – challenges that are just as great here in Wales as in the rest of Britain.

In our schools, where we need to raise standards still higher.

In our hospitals, where people are still waiting too long for treatment.

The priority now must be to harness the full potential of the current devolution settlement to improve the lives of the people of Wales.

Westminster must play its part in that process too. Devolution is about partnership - and partnership is a two-way street.

That is a principle on which both Rhodri and Paul have led the way – that we achieve more by working I partnership.

The last Spending Review alone provides an extra £1.8 billion of investment in Welsh public services.

Partnership means ensuring that Wales' voice is heard loud and clear in Westminster - and Wales could have no greater champion than Paul Murphy.

Partnership allows us then to act together on issues where Wales and Westminster need to.

- legislation for a new Children's Commissioner – the first post of its kind in Britain;

- the reforms to the Health Service in Wales that were voted on here in this very chamber.

- on Objective One, for example, where the funding is now in place to help deprived communities in West Wales and the Valleys.

- or on miners' compensation, where I know that the money has not been getting to those who are suffering quickly enough; but where we are doing all we can to speed up the payments and ensure that the money gets to those who need it most – the oldest and the sickest miners and widows. Every week now we pay out £1 million in Wales - over £100 million in total so far.

I believe devolution has left the UK stronger not weaker. We are able to do as the UK what we need to do together. And in respect of issues like public services, we can do things differently. Such a constitutional partnership is commonplace elsewhere in Europe and round the world. It allows the energy and diversity of different parts of our country to breathe and develop.

Devolution is in its infancy still. But already there is a healthy debate abut how it can develop, which is taking root also in the English regions.

There is a wider context. A development is taking place that is again obvious and replicated world-wide. Nations are coming closer together – the EU, NAFTA, ASEAN, Mercosur.

Increasingly challenges, interests and solutions are global like climate change, international finance or terrorism.

Yet coincidentally, at the very time nations collaborate on a bigger stage, so within countries, there is a greater desire to seize back control over local issues on a smaller stage. Politics is finding different levels appropriate to different types of issue.

Political systems that fail to make sense of these developments will either become out of touch with people or ineffectual.

Modern Britain is trying to avoid these pitfalls – a true partner now in the EU and globally, committed to devolution on the issues where devolution makes sense; yet proud to be Britain where we need to act as Britain.

Separation of the component parts of the UK is a cul-de-sac. It would just make each part weaker. There is merit in the simple argument that when it comes to the economy, defence, foreign policy, social security, bigger is stronger. We can then project that strength globally.

But within that unity, diversity can flourish. That is why devolution is important. In its infancy it may be, but it is here to stay. I was proud to make the case for the Welsh Assembly, proud that case was accepted and proud to be the first British Prime Minister to address you. I won't be the last.

EXCERPTS FROM PRIME MINISTER BLAIR'S SPEECH ON THE WAR AGAINST TERRORISM

Prime Minister Blair in a major speech today Wales set out the moral case for pursuing the war on terrorism, and recommitted the UK and the whole coalition to seeing this action through to the end. He said:

"The Taliban regime in Afghanistan protect Al Qaida and help them. That is a fact. According to the latest evidence we have, they are virtually a merged organisation. The Taliban regime are cruel, dictatorial and oppressive, causing 4½ million refugees to be on the move before 11 September.

"Usama Bin Laden and Al Qaida have said they consider it their duty to commit further terrorist acts. We gave the Taliban an ultimatum to deliver up Usama Bin Laden. They refused.

"They lead to one inescapable conclusion: that if we do not act against Al Qaida and the Taliban, Al Qaida will have perpetrated this atrocity, the Taliban will have sheltered them, and we will have done nothing. We will have done nothing despite the fact, also inescapable, that they intend to commit more atrocities unless we yield to their demands which include the eradication of Israel, the killing of all Jews and the setting up of fundamentalist states in all parts of the Arab and Moslem world.

"It is important we never forget why we are doing it. Important we never forget how we felt watching the planes fly into the twin towers. Never forget those answering machine messages. Never forget how we felt imagining how mothers told children they were about to die.

"Never forget the guts of the fire fighters and police who died trying to save others. Never forget the menace of UBL in his propaganda video. Never forget that too long a list of countries who lost sons and daughters. Never forget that they were of all faiths and none; Christian, Jew and Moslem; many Moslems, for it is not us who are at war with Islam. It is Al Qaida and the Taliban who are at war with anyone, whatever their faith, who does not share their maniacal, fanatical view of the world.

"He did not just hijack planes. He has hijacked a country from which he runs his terrorist, criminal activity.

"Every part of this is difficult. Every part requires courage, conviction, hard work. In every part, there may be setbacks from time to time.
But in every part, we have justice and right on our side, and a strategy to deliver."

"LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

TODAY'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

- The President will visit Thomas S. Wootton High School in Rockville, MD to launch a new "Lessons of Liberty" initiative. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is an opportunity for American students to learn more about our country and its values, as well as the people that have been called upon to defend its freedom.

- The President will start this initiative by declaring the week of November 11th - 17th as National Veterans Awareness Week. He will ask schools across America – public, private, and home schools – to invite a veteran to speak about their experience in serving our country; the significance of Veterans Day; and the importance of supporting the ideals of liberty, democracy, and freedom.

- The President will also ask schools to continue participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative by helping students to learn more about America's history and values; encouraging participation in community organizations and public service projects; and participating in the "Friendship Through Education" program.

BACKGROUND ON NATIONAL VETERANS AWARENESS WEEK

- November 11th has a special meaning on two fronts this year. November 11th is Veterans Day, and it also marks the two-month anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Thousands of our men and women in uniform are overseas helping to secure our freedom and bring to justice those responsible for attacking America on September 11th. They are acting with the same courage and sense of purpose as the veterans we honor on Veterans Day.

- One way to help the next generation of Americans to better understand the values, commitment and sacrifices of our men and women in uniform is to bring them into direct contact with those who have served our nation in the past. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is designed to give the next generation of Americans a unique opportunity to learn firsthand from our nation's veterans.

HOW SCHOOLS CAN PARTICIPATE IN "LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

- Schools will have access to a multitude of resources for participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative through the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Education. Schools, educators, parents, and students can visit the Department of Veterans Affairs Web site at www.va.gov/vetsday to find classroom materials and curricula, ideas for activities, and resources for getting in touch with a veteran in their community. This site will also be accessible through the Department of Education Web site at www.ed.gov.

- Leading veterans organizations -- including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Military Order of the World Wars -- are supporting the effort and can be reached through these websites. These sites will bring together the efforts of many veterans organizations.

- The " Lessons of Liberty" initiative can be continued throughout the year through a variety of activities, including:

  - For Elementary and Middle School Students:
    - Read books about American history and government
    - Learn about outstanding leaders in America, past and present
    - Visit a historic site, such as a battleground
    - "Adopt an older American" and become a friend with a veteran
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

  - For High School Students:
    - Register to vote
    - Pledge to mentor younger students on the "Lessons of Liberty"
    - Volunteer in community organizations
    - Organize student public service projects
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

- For Parents, Teachers and Administrators:
  - Prepare students for veteran visits through civics lessons
  - Lesson plan website links available at www.va.gov/vetsday
  - Encourage community service for students though veteran programs

"LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

TODAY'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

- The President will visit Thomas S. Wootton High School in Rockville, MD to launch a new "Lessons of Liberty" initiative. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is an opportunity for American students to learn more about our country and its values, as well as the people that have been called upon to defend its freedom.

- The President will start this initiative by declaring the week of November 11th - 17th as National Veterans Awareness Week. He will ask schools across America – public, private, and home schools – to invite a veteran to speak about their experience in serving our country; the significance of Veterans Day; and the importance of supporting the ideals of liberty, democracy, and freedom.

- The President will also ask schools to continue participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative by helping students to learn more about America's history and values; encouraging participation in community organizations and public service projects; and participating in the "Friendship Through Education" program.

BACKGROUND ON NATIONAL VETERANS AWARENESS WEEK

- November 11th has a special meaning on two fronts this year. November 11th is Veterans Day, and it also marks the two-month anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Thousands of our men and women in uniform are overseas helping to secure our freedom and bring to justice those responsible for attacking America on September 11th. They are acting with the same courage and sense of purpose as the veterans we honor on Veterans Day.

- One way to help the next generation of Americans to better understand the values, commitment and sacrifices of our men and women in uniform is to bring them into direct contact with those who have served our nation in the past. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is designed to give the next generation of Americans a unique opportunity to learn firsthand from our nation's veterans.

HOW SCHOOLS CAN PARTICIPATE IN "LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

- Schools will have access to a multitude of resources for participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative through the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Education. Schools, educators, parents, and students can visit the Department of Veterans Affairs Web site at www.va.gov/vetsday to find classroom materials and curricula, ideas for activities, and resources for getting in touch with a veteran in their community. This site will also be accessible through the Department of Education Web site at www.ed.gov.

- Leading veterans organizations -- including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Military Order of the World Wars -- are supporting the effort and can be reached through these websites. These sites will bring together the efforts of many veterans organizations.

- The " Lessons of Liberty" initiative can be continued throughout the year through a variety of activities, including:

  - For Elementary and Middle School Students:
    - Read books about American history and government
    - Learn about outstanding leaders in America, past and present
    - Visit a historic site, such as a battleground
    - "Adopt an older American" and become a friend with a veteran
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

  - For High School Students:
    - Register to vote
    - Pledge to mentor younger students on the "Lessons of Liberty"
    - Volunteer in community organizations
    - Organize student public service projects
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

- For Parents, Teachers and Administrators:
  - Prepare students for veteran visits through civics lessons
  - Lesson plan website links available at www.va.gov/vetsday
  - Encourage community service for students though veteran programs

"LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

TODAY'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

- The President will visit Thomas S. Wootton High School in Rockville, MD to launch a new "Lessons of Liberty" initiative. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is an opportunity for American students to learn more about our country and its values, as well as the people that have been called upon to defend its freedom.

- The President will start this initiative by declaring the week of November 11th - 17th as National Veterans Awareness Week. He will ask schools across America – public, private, and home schools – to invite a veteran to speak about their experience in serving our country; the significance of Veterans Day; and the importance of supporting the ideals of liberty, democracy, and freedom.

- The President will also ask schools to continue participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative by helping students to learn more about America's history and values; encouraging participation in community organizations and public service projects; and participating in the "Friendship Through Education" program.

BACKGROUND ON NATIONAL VETERANS AWARENESS WEEK

- November 11th has a special meaning on two fronts this year. November 11th is Veterans Day, and it also marks the two-month anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Thousands of our men and women in uniform are overseas helping to secure our freedom and bring to justice those responsible for attacking America on September 11th. They are acting with the same courage and sense of purpose as the veterans we honor on Veterans Day.

- One way to help the next generation of Americans to better understand the values, commitment and sacrifices of our men and women in uniform is to bring them into direct contact with those who have served our nation in the past. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is designed to give the next generation of Americans a unique opportunity to learn firsthand from our nation's veterans.

HOW SCHOOLS CAN PARTICIPATE IN "LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

- Schools will have access to a multitude of resources for participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative through the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Education. Schools, educators, parents, and students can visit the Department of Veterans Affairs Web site at www.va.gov/vetsday to find classroom materials and curricula, ideas for activities, and resources for getting in touch with a veteran in their community. This site will also be accessible through the Department of Education Web site at www.ed.gov.

- Leading veterans organizations -- including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Military Order of the World Wars -- are supporting the effort and can be reached through these websites. These sites will bring together the efforts of many veterans organizations.

- The " Lessons of Liberty" initiative can be continued throughout the year through a variety of activities, including:

  - For Elementary and Middle School Students:
    - Read books about American history and government
    - Learn about outstanding leaders in America, past and present
    - Visit a historic site, such as a battleground
    - "Adopt an older American" and become a friend with a veteran
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

  - For High School Students:
    - Register to vote
    - Pledge to mentor younger students on the "Lessons of Liberty"
    - Volunteer in community organizations
    - Organize student public service projects
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

- For Parents, Teachers and Administrators:
  - Prepare students for veteran visits through civics lessons
  - Lesson plan website links available at www.va.gov/vetsday
  - Encourage community service for students though veteran programs

"LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

TODAY'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

- The President will visit Thomas S. Wootton High School in Rockville, MD to launch a new "Lessons of Liberty" initiative. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is an opportunity for American students to learn more about our country and its values, as well as the people that have been called upon to defend its freedom.

- The President will start this initiative by declaring the week of November 11th - 17th as National Veterans Awareness Week. He will ask schools across America – public, private, and home schools – to invite a veteran to speak about their experience in serving our country; the significance of Veterans Day; and the importance of supporting the ideals of liberty, democracy, and freedom.

- The President will also ask schools to continue participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative by helping students to learn more about America's history and values; encouraging participation in community organizations and public service projects; and participating in the "Friendship Through Education" program.

BACKGROUND ON NATIONAL VETERANS AWARENESS WEEK

- November 11th has a special meaning on two fronts this year. November 11th is Veterans Day, and it also marks the two-month anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Thousands of our men and women in uniform are overseas helping to secure our freedom and bring to justice those responsible for attacking America on September 11th. They are acting with the same courage and sense of purpose as the veterans we honor on Veterans Day.

- One way to help the next generation of Americans to better understand the values, commitment and sacrifices of our men and women in uniform is to bring them into direct contact with those who have served our nation in the past. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is designed to give the next generation of Americans a unique opportunity to learn firsthand from our nation's veterans.

HOW SCHOOLS CAN PARTICIPATE IN "LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

- Schools will have access to a multitude of resources for participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative through the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Education. Schools, educators, parents, and students can visit the Department of Veterans Affairs Web site at www.va.gov/vetsday to find classroom materials and curricula, ideas for activities, and resources for getting in touch with a veteran in their community. This site will also be accessible through the Department of Education Web site at www.ed.gov.

- Leading veterans organizations -- including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Military Order of the World Wars -- are supporting the effort and can be reached through these websites. These sites will bring together the efforts of many veterans organizations.

- The " Lessons of Liberty" initiative can be continued throughout the year through a variety of activities, including:

  - For Elementary and Middle School Students:
    - Read books about American history and government
    - Learn about outstanding leaders in America, past and present
    - Visit a historic site, such as a battleground
    - "Adopt an older American" and become a friend with a veteran
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

  - For High School Students:
    - Register to vote
    - Pledge to mentor younger students on the "Lessons of Liberty"
    - Volunteer in community organizations
    - Organize student public service projects
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

- For Parents, Teachers and Administrators:
  - Prepare students for veteran visits through civics lessons
  - Lesson plan website links available at www.va.gov/vetsday
  - Encourage community service for students though veteran programs

"LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

TODAY'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

- The President will visit Thomas S. Wootton High School in Rockville, MD to launch a new "Lessons of Liberty" initiative. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is an opportunity for American students to learn more about our country and its values, as well as the people that have been called upon to defend its freedom.

- The President will start this initiative by declaring the week of November 11th - 17th as National Veterans Awareness Week. He will ask schools across America – public, private, and home schools – to invite a veteran to speak about their experience in serving our country; the significance of Veterans Day; and the importance of supporting the ideals of liberty, democracy, and freedom.

- The President will also ask schools to continue participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative by helping students to learn more about America's history and values; encouraging participation in community organizations and public service projects; and participating in the "Friendship Through Education" program.

BACKGROUND ON NATIONAL VETERANS AWARENESS WEEK

- November 11th has a special meaning on two fronts this year. November 11th is Veterans Day, and it also marks the two-month anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Thousands of our men and women in uniform are overseas helping to secure our freedom and bring to justice those responsible for attacking America on September 11th. They are acting with the same courage and sense of purpose as the veterans we honor on Veterans Day.

- One way to help the next generation of Americans to better understand the values, commitment and sacrifices of our men and women in uniform is to bring them into direct contact with those who have served our nation in the past. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is designed to give the next generation of Americans a unique opportunity to learn firsthand from our nation's veterans.

HOW SCHOOLS CAN PARTICIPATE IN "LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

- Schools will have access to a multitude of resources for participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative through the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Education. Schools, educators, parents, and students can visit the Department of Veterans Affairs Web site at www.va.gov/vetsday to find classroom materials and curricula, ideas for activities, and resources for getting in touch with a veteran in their community. This site will also be accessible through the Department of Education Web site at www.ed.gov.

- Leading veterans organizations -- including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Military Order of the World Wars -- are supporting the effort and can be reached through these websites. These sites will bring together the efforts of many veterans organizations.

- The " Lessons of Liberty" initiative can be continued throughout the year through a variety of activities, including:

  - For Elementary and Middle School Students:
    - Read books about American history and government
    - Learn about outstanding leaders in America, past and present
    - Visit a historic site, such as a battleground
    - "Adopt an older American" and become a friend with a veteran
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

  - For High School Students:
    - Register to vote
    - Pledge to mentor younger students on the "Lessons of Liberty"
    - Volunteer in community organizations
    - Organize student public service projects
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

- For Parents, Teachers and Administrators:
  - Prepare students for veteran visits through civics lessons
  - Lesson plan website links available at www.va.gov/vetsday
  - Encourage community service for students though veteran programs

"LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

TODAY'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

- The President will visit Thomas S. Wootton High School in Rockville, MD to launch a new "Lessons of Liberty" initiative. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is an opportunity for American students to learn more about our country and its values, as well as the people that have been called upon to defend its freedom.

- The President will start this initiative by declaring the week of November 11th - 17th as National Veterans Awareness Week. He will ask schools across America – public, private, and home schools – to invite a veteran to speak about their experience in serving our country; the significance of Veterans Day; and the importance of supporting the ideals of liberty, democracy, and freedom.

- The President will also ask schools to continue participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative by helping students to learn more about America's history and values; encouraging participation in community organizations and public service projects; and participating in the "Friendship Through Education" program.

BACKGROUND ON NATIONAL VETERANS AWARENESS WEEK

- November 11th has a special meaning on two fronts this year. November 11th is Veterans Day, and it also marks the two-month anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon. Thousands of our men and women in uniform are overseas helping to secure our freedom and bring to justice those responsible for attacking America on September 11th. They are acting with the same courage and sense of purpose as the veterans we honor on Veterans Day.

- One way to help the next generation of Americans to better understand the values, commitment and sacrifices of our men and women in uniform is to bring them into direct contact with those who have served our nation in the past. The "Lessons of Liberty" initiative is designed to give the next generation of Americans a unique opportunity to learn firsthand from our nation's veterans.

HOW SCHOOLS CAN PARTICIPATE IN "LESSONS OF LIBERTY"

- Schools will have access to a multitude of resources for participating in the "Lessons of Liberty" initiative through the Department of Veterans Affairs and the Department of Education. Schools, educators, parents, and students can visit the Department of Veterans Affairs Web site at www.va.gov/vetsday to find classroom materials and curricula, ideas for activities, and resources for getting in touch with a veteran in their community. This site will also be accessible through the Department of Education Web site at www.ed.gov.

- Leading veterans organizations -- including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Military Order of the World Wars -- are supporting the effort and can be reached through these websites. These sites will bring together the efforts of many veterans organizations.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

- The " Lessons of Liberty" initiative can be continued throughout the year through a variety of activities, including:

  - For Elementary and Middle School Students:
    - Read books about American history and government
    - Learn about outstanding leaders in America, past and present
    - Visit a historic site, such as a battleground
    - "Adopt an older American" and become a friend with a veteran
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

  - For High School Students:
    - Register to vote
    - Pledge to mentor younger students on the "Lessons of Liberty"
    - Volunteer in community organizations
    - Organize student public service projects
    - Participate in the "Friendship through Education" Initiative

- For Parents, Teachers and Administrators:
  - Prepare students for veteran visits through civics lessons
  - Lesson plan website links available at www.va.gov/vetsday
  - Encourage community service for students though veteran programs

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Office of the Attorney General

28 CFR Part 104

CIV 104P; AG Order No.

RIN: 1105-AA79

"September 11th Victim Compensation Fund of 2001"

AGENCY: Civil Division, Justice.

ACTION: Notice of Inquiry and Advance Notice of Rulemaking

SUMMARY:

Shortly after the September 11, 2001 terrorist attack, the President signed legislation authorizing compensation to any individual (or the personal representative of a deceased individual) who was physically injured or killed as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes on that day. This Notice of Inquiry and Advance Notice of Rulemaking seeks public comment on a range of matters critical to implementing a program that will carry out the intent of the legislation of providing compensation to victims.

DATES:

Comments in response to this notice are due by November __, 2001.

ADDRESSES:

Comments should be submitted by email to: victimcompensation.comments@usdoj.gov, or by telefax to 301-519-5956. Telefaxes should be limited to 15 pages. Comments may also be mailed to Kenneth L. Zwick, Director, Office of Management Programs, Civil Division, U.S. Department of Justice, Main Building, Room 3140, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20530. However, in view of the short time period for comments and the current delays in the delivery of mail, it is strongly recommended that comments be submitted by email or telefax. Comments received are public records. The name and address of the commenter should be included with all submissions. The text of comments, along with the name and address of the have? In addition, the Department welcomes comment on whether there are other specific duties and powers that should be delegated to hearing officers (e.g., to ask questions of the claimant or witnesses, to request submissions of such further information as the hearing officer may deem valuable in reaching a decision, and/or to prepare recommended decisions for the consideration of the Special Master).

The Department welcomes comment on whether claimants should have the right to appeal directly to the Special Master specific "rulings" or "working decisions" of a hearing officer on questions that arise in the course of his or her evaluation of the claim. The Department would welcome comment on whether it is authorized to enforce requests made by the hearing officer to third parties for evidence that is necessary to a proceeding – e.g., evidence that might bear on whether all aspects of the claim file on which the decision will be based are accurate and complete. The Department would welcome comment on whether such proceedings should be recorded, whether such proceedings must be held in a location convenient to the claimant and how to deal with scheduling conflicts, and whether the opportunity for a hearing can be waived by a claimant through inaction or unwarranted delay.

The Department would particularly welcome comments that reference the practices or experience of existing compensation programs with respect to the hearing of evidence.

Topic #4: Procedures to assist an individual in filing and pursuing claims under this title.

The statute does not provide guidance on what actions the Special Master is to take to assist claimants in filing and pursuing claims. However, the Department believes that it is important that claimants be able to proceed without counsel or experts if they elect to do so. Accordingly, the Department welcomes any and all suggestions as to how it can assist claimants, including suggestions for office locations, toll-free phone lines, outreach meetings, newsletters, information about the availability of pro-bono legal or other services that could assist claimants, etc.

In addition, the Department welcomes comments on whether the Special Master has the authority to limit the types and amounts of fees that can be charged by counsel, accountants, experts or others who are retained by claimants to assist them to file and pursue compensation claims, and whether such fees can and should be paid by the Special Master directly out of compensation awards. The Department welcomes information about practices in this regard with respect to other Federal compensation programs, and welcomes specific suggestions on any appropriate fee schedule or policy. The Department also will welcome comments on what limitations, if any, the rules should impose on non-attorney, non-claimant representatives' participation in filing claims and in subsequent proceedings.

The Department is also interested in comments as to whether it needs to take any actions to ensure that individuals who have the option of filing a compensation claim with this program are not improperly solicited or influenced by those with an interest in having them make such an election.

Topic #5: Claimant Eligibility.

Section 405(b) of the statute requires the Special Master to determine whether a claimant is an "eligible individual" under section 405(c). "Eligibility," in turn, is defined to include: (i) victims (other than the terrorists) aboard American Airlines flights 11 and 77 and United Airlines flights 93 and 175; or (ii) victims who were "present at" the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, or the site of the aircraft crash at Shanksville, Pennsylvania at the time or in the immediate aftermath of the crashes, and who suffered physical harm or death as a result of such an air crash. The Department seeks comment on whether a Departmental regulation or a statement of policy by the Special Master would be appropriate to clarify these criteria, and if so, what those criteria should be.

Public commentators have suggested differing interpretations of the statutory terms "present at," "physical harm," and "immediate aftermath." The Department invites comment on the appropriate scope of each of those terms. In particular, should "present at" refer only to persons who were inside the World Trade Center Towers or Pentagon at the time of impact, explosions, fire, and collapse and to those conducting rescue operations, or should the term be construed more broadly? Should the term "physical harm" be limited to serious injuries, as it is under some other no-fault compensation schemes (see, e.g., N.Y. Ins. Law § 5102), or should it be construed more broadly? Further, should "physical harm" be limited to currently identifiable injuries? Can and should the program address latent, but not yet evident, harm? What documentation or other evidence should be required by the Special Master as to the claimant's presence at the World Trade Center or physical harm resulting from the air crash? Moreover, what documentation or other evidence should the Special Master seek to verify the identity of those lost for whom claims are filed? Finally, what duration of time is intended by the statutory phrase "immediate aftermath"?

Section 405(c)(2)(C) provides that the "personal representative" of an eligible decedent is the appropriate person to file a claim on a decedent's behalf. The Department seeks comment on whether a Departmental regulation or a statement of policy by the Special Master would be appropriate to clarify questions concerning personal representatives, for example:

- Whether the Special Master should require that all those who consider themselves to be survivors of someone lost in the crashes be notified of a claim by a "personal representative";
- Whether the Special Master can, within the brief statutory period identified by the statute, determine who among contesting claimants is the appropriate "personal representative";
- Whether the Special Master should, in any matter involving a dispute as to the identity of the "personal representative," require prior adjudication and judgment by a state court of competent jurisdiction; and
- Whether the Special Master should make determinations of compensation for claimants even when the identity of the "personal representative" is in dispute, but escrow payment until such disputes can be resolved by a court of competent jurisdiction.

Topic #6: Nature and Amount of Compensation.

Section 405(b) of the statute indicates that the Special Master shall determine the amount of compensation based on "the harm to the claimant, the facts of the claim, and the individual circumstances of the claimant." Yet each of the perhaps thousands of determinations must be made in a very short time period. Moreover, such determinations should be founded on consistent and clear principles that treat each claimant fairly. The Department invites comments that identify the practical means to achieve these results all within the strict statutory time period. Among other topics, the Department would welcome comment on whether and how statistical methodologies should be developed and used as a starting point for decision, and whether publication of hypothetical or presumptive awards for classes of individuals would assist potential claimants in determining whether to file.

Economic Loss: As indicated above, the Special Master will not require that any claimant employ counsel or any experts on economic or other theories of losses. The Special Master will draw on available information from appropriate specialists in relevant fields to analyze economic losses. The Department invites comment regarding the necessary qualifications for such specialists, the data that should be utilized, the methodologies that should be employed in analyzing economic losses, the documentation that should be required for every claimant, and how state law should bear upon such determinations. In addition, the Department invites comments on how to address the economic losses of individuals whose lost future income streams would have been highly contingent, variable, or unpredictable.

Noneconomic Loss: Section 402(7) lists several types of noneconomic losses that should be considered. The Department invites comments regarding whether, and in what manner, the Special Master can or should draw meaningful distinctions between individuals who died in different locations and, similarly, whether the Special Master can or should draw meaningful distinctions between individuals who suffered similar injuries. The Department also invites comments on whether the Department should, as some have suggested, issue regulations determining the amount of noneconomic loss for classes of similarly situated individuals or whether, instead, the Special Master should determine all noneconomic loss on a detailed claim-by-claim basis. Further, what facts and circumstances should be considered in determining non-economic losses for each individual, and what standards should be employed?

Collateral Sources: Section 405(b)(6) provides that the Special Master shall reduce the amount of compensation by the amount of the collateral source compensation the claimant has received or is entitled to receive as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001. The Department invites comments on how to determine what constitutes a "collateral source" for purposes of this provision, and other related issues. For example, the Department appreciates the strong policy reasons for excluding charitable contributions from the definition of "collateral sources" and invites comment regarding whether the Act indeed permits the Department to exclude such contributions from the definition. Similarly, the Department invites comments on whether "in kind" and/or material contributions could or should be considered collateral sources. Finally, the Department invites comments on how to determine whether potential future collateral source payments are ones which individuals are "entitled to receive" for purposes of Section 405(b)(6).

Fraud Prevention Measures: The Department is committed to preventing and prosecuting any fraudulent attempts to collect from the Fund. The Department therefore invites comments regarding any measures that the Department should take to prevent and detect fraud.

Other topics for comment.

The Department wants to reiterate that your comments are welcome on any and all aspects of the administration of the fund.

Application of various laws and Executive Orders to this rulemaking.

There are a number of laws and Executive Orders whose provisions may have implications for this rulemaking process. Due to the preliminary nature of this notice, this notice does not address these requirements. Nonetheless, the Department welcomes comments that will help it address the applicability of any laws or Executive orders to future rulemaking under the Act.

commenter, will be available on the Victim Compensation Fund web site, www.usdoj.gov/victimcompensation. Comments will also be available for public inspection at a reading room in Washington, DC. Arrangements to visit the reading room must be made in advance by calling 888-714-3385 (TDD: 888-560-0844).

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Kenneth L. Zwick, Director, Office of Management Programs, Civil Division, U.S. Department of Justice, Main Building, Room 3140, 950 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20530, telephone 888-714-3385 (TDD 888-560-0844).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background.

The President signed the "September 11 Victim Compensation Fund of 2001" (the "Fund") into law on September 22, 2001, as Title IV of Public Law 107-42 ("Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act") (the "Act"). The purpose of this Fund is to provide compensation to eligible individuals who were physically injured as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001, and compensation through a "personal representative" for those who were lost in the crashes. Generally, eligibility extends to: a) individuals on the planes at the time of the crashes (other than the terrorists); and b) individuals present at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon or the site of the crash in Pennsylvania at the time of the crashes as well as those present in the immediate aftermath of the crashes.

The Attorney General, acting through a Special Master appointed by the Attorney General, is responsible for the administration of the Fund. By law, regulations addressing certain administrative matters should be issued within 90 days of enactment (i.e., by December 21, 2001). Section 407 of the Act provides that the Attorney General, in consultation with the Special Master, promulgate regulations on four matters by December 21, 2001:

(1) forms to be used in submitting claims;

(2) the information to be included in such forms;

(3) procedures for hearing and the presentation of evidence; and

(4) procedures to assist an individual in filing and pursuing claims under this title.

In addition, section 407 authorizes, but does not require, the Attorney General to issue additional rules to implement the program.

After determining whether an individual is an eligible claimant under the Act and applicable regulations, the Special Master is to determine the extent of harm to the claimant, and then determine the amount of compensation to be awarded based on "the harm to the claimant, the facts of the claim, and the individual circumstances of the claimant." The law also provides that the Special Master is to make a final determination on any claim within 120 days of its receipt and, if an award is made, to authorize payment within 20 days thereafter. The determinations of the Special Master are final and are not reviewable by any court.

The Fund is designed to provide a no-fault alternative to tort litigation for individuals who were physically injured or killed as a result of the aircraft highjackings and crashes on September 11, 2001. Individuals who may have suffered other kinds of losses as a result of those events (e.g., those without identifiable physical injuries but who lost employment) are not included in this special program. However, a claimant who files for compensation must at the time of filing waive any right to file a civil action (or to be a party to an action) in any Federal or State court for damages sustained as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001.

Claims with the Fund must be filed within two years after the initial regulations are promulgated. Payments from the Fund are made by the United States government, which in turn obtains the right of subrogation to each award.

General approach to regulations that must be promulgated by December 21, 2001.

a) The purpose of this notice.

As noted above, the Act requires that the Attorney General promulgate regulations in consultation with the Special Master. The Department is currently considering potential candidates for the Special Master position. In addition, the Department is in the process of seeking information from state and local agencies, as well as many other sources, that may be useful in crafting proposed regulations. In the meantime, however, the Department considers it very important that, to the extent feasible given the time frames involved, the public be fully involved in the development of any rules established under the program -- including, but not limited to, potential beneficiaries of the program, their employers, the legal community, and all those who have stepped up to help those impacted. For this reason, the Department has decided to issue this notice to obtain as much public comment as feasible before issuing those rules that it is required to promulgate by December 21, 2001. This notice describes the issues involved, identifies possible courses of action, and invites comment on a number of points.

b) The Department's plan to issue implementing regulations by December 21, 2001 as "interim final" rules.

Although the Attorney General, in consultation with the Special Master, is to issue certain implementing rules by December 21, 2001, the law does not specifically define how such rules must be issued. Your comments on those procedural plans would be most welcome.

The Department is considering promulgating the initial rules on December 21, 2001 as "interim final" rules. "Interim final" rules are "final" rules which can be relied upon (and challenged) under the law, but which also become the subject of a new round of immediate comment and review – essentially, asking the public for comment on whether the newly-adopted rules should be amended. The Department wishes to begin processing claims as soon as possible. This procedural methodology should permit to program to commence operations as soon as practicable. The Department welcomes comment in this regard.

c) How to comment in response to this notice.

There are a number of issues presented in the course of this discussion, and this notice only provides you 21 days to comment. However, the Department only has a limited time to evaluate the information received in response to this notice. Accordingly, the Department would appreciate comments that are transmitted as soon as possible and in a form that is as succinct as possible. As indicated at the beginning of this notice, we encourage you to use e-mail and telefax for this purpose, particularly given the current problems associated with the delivery of mail to government offices in the Washington, DC area.

While the Department endeavors to review every submission it receives in response to this notice, from handwritten letters to copies of scholarly legal articles and books, it reserves the right under the circumstances to set aside that information which it simply lacks the time to consider before the Department must make its determination, even if that information is received before the end of the comment period. The Department urges commenters to submit materials as early in the comment period as possible.

If the Department cannot fully consider all the comments it receives before it must act, the comments will be retained by the Department for subsequent consideration as appropriate. The Department intends to provide another opportunity for notice and comment after the initial rules are issued in December; any information submitted to the Department in response to this notice which cannot be reviewed before the December rules are issued will be considered during the subsequent review. Similarly, to the extent that any issues addressed in comments are not addressed in this initial regulatory action, those comments will be retained by the Special Master for appropriate consideration as the program is implemented.

d) Will there also be meetings and hearings to gather information before December 21, 2001?

The Department anticipates that it may have many requests for meetings from individuals and groups who wish to provide input on these rules, and is likely going to want to initiate such meetings on its own as well. The Department will endeavor to accommodate any such requests as best it can given its many important obligations, the available time, and any applicable legal requirements.

As a matter of general policy, the Department has declined to take a position prohibiting so-called "ex parte communications" in informal rulemaking proceedings. 28 CFR 50.17. Such a prohibition would inhibit the ability of the Department to obtain valuable information, and would be inconsistent with the nature of informal rulemaking under 5 U.S.C. 553 (as contrasted with so-called "formal" rulemaking under 5 U.S.C. 554, which is handled in a quasi-judicial manner). Consistent with the policy set forth in 28 CFR 50.17, the Department will endeavor to add notes on any relevant meetings or other communications to the record.

e) The effective date of the rules to be promulgated December 21, 2001.

The law generally provides that rules not go into effect for at least 30 days absent "good cause" to waive this requirement, and in some cases even more time is required to permit an opportunity for Congressional review.

The Department is seeking comment on an appropriate effective date for these rules, including whether "good cause" exists to waive the 30 day requirement. Although the Department would prefer not to waive the APA=s requirements for at least a 30 day delay in the effective date, it is prepared to assert that there is good cause for taking such an action should it be warranted in light of your comments. The Department welcomes comments on other alternatives. For example, a 30 day effective date delay might not significantly hinder implementation of the program, and would provide time for some initial counseling and other information dissemination prior to any claims being filed.

f) Issues relating to the rules to be promulgated by December 21, 2001.

The Department welcomes comment on whether the rules that must be issued by December 21, 2001 should cover matters beyond the four that are listed in the statute. One reason for making the set of regulations to be published in December as comprehensive as possible is the possibility that there are some potential claimants who have already filed or will soon be filing tort suits seeking damages arising out of the September 11 incidents. These potential claimants do not have the option of waiting to see the determination of the Special Master in response to a compensation claim as to their eligibility for compensation, or as to the amount of compensation that will be provided, before they must decide whether to withdraw their pending civil litigation. Rather, section 405(c)(3)(B)(ii) of the Compensation Act provides that, if an individual is already a party to a civil action when the regulations enumerated in section 407 are promulgated, the individual cannot submit a compensation claim under this federal program unless he or she withdraws from the legal action within 90 days from the date the rules are promulgated. Without having information about how the compensation program works, such individuals might not view the compensation program as a viable alternative to continuing their litigation, potentially reducing the effectiveness of the program in serving the community of victims.

The Department believes that the number of individuals who have already filed a civil claim, or who have irrevocably committed to doing so in the next few months, may well be very small. The Department would welcome information on this point. The Department would also welcome comment as to whether the statutory requirement that a claimant "withdraws" from such action by 90 days after the date the initial rules are promulgated was intended to preclude such a claimant from refiling or rejoining a civil action: a) should the claimant ultimately elect not to file a compensation claim under the Federal program; or b) if the claimant is determined by the Special Master not to be eligible to file a claim. Also in this regard, the Department would welcome comment on whether the interpretation given to the statute in a particular case would be binding upon a court considering a claim for damages, and whether it would be appropriate or inappropriate for the Department to issue an interpretive rule on this point.

In short, potential claimants have an interest in knowing as soon as possible how the program is likely to operate in their circumstances. Litigation to obtain damages, particularly in a mass tort context, can be a lengthy, uncertain and complex process, with substantial risk and expense. The purpose of this compensation program is to offer all potential claimants a more expeditious, predictable and less complex alternative to that process. The Department recognizes that unless and until it can provide some certainty about how the compensation award program will work, some claimants may be reluctant to commit themselves to the compensation fund as an alternative to tort awards.

Despite this incentive to promptly "flesh out" the details of the program, there are also countervailing concerns. For example, there a number of complex questions that need to be addressed by the Special Master in determining compensation awards for individuals who file claims, and many of those questions cannot be anticipated in advance. The Department would like to obtain as much input as practicable before determining its approach.

We now turn to a set of specific topics on which comment is solicited. The first four topics deal with regulations that must be issued by December 21, 2001; the others discuss key issues which could also be the subject of prompt regulatory action.

Topics #1 & 2: The forms to be used in submitting claims under this program and the information to be included on the claims form.

Section 405(a) of the statute establishes some specific requirements with respect to the claims form and the information to be included. The law requires the Special Master to develop a claim form to use in filing claims for compensation under this program. The Special Master is to ensure that the form can be filed electronically if it is determined to be practicable.

The form must include a statement of the factual basis for eligibility and for the amount of compensation sought. In addition, the form is to request information from the claimant as to: 1) the physical harm suffered by a victim, or information confirming the death of the victim, of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001; 2) any possible economic and non-economic losses that the claimant suffered as a result of the crashes; and 3) any collateral sources of compensation the claimant has received or is entitled to receive as a result of such crashes.

It would appear that these requirements, combined with the statutory time frame for the Special Master to reach a decision once a claim is filed, contemplate a very detailed form and filing, including submission by the claimant of prior tax returns, certifications and documents concerning the eligibility of a claimant as a personal representative of a deceased victim, and relevant medical records. Accordingly, the Department invites comment on whether the Special Master should determine that a claim has not been "filed" in those circumstances in which the Special Master determines that there is insufficient information submitted to permit a reasonably informed determination to be made. Comments are solicited on whether it is advisable to include in the rules a procedure where the time for making a determination could be extended by agreement and any suggestions as to whether such a procedure should, or should not, follow any preliminary action and of any limitations to such a procedure that should be adopted. Along similar lines, the Department invites comments on whether there are actions the Special Master should be required to take before he or she can accept a claim, or deem a claim "filed."

The Department welcomes comment on the design and content of the claims forms in light of the statutory requirements. Specific comments on making the forms and their instructions readable and readily available are welcome.

Topic #3: Procedures for hearing and the presentation of evidence.

Section 405(b)(4) provides that a claimant has the right after the filing of the claim to present evidence to the office of the Special Master. The statute specifically provides that the claimant has the right to present witness statements and documents, the right to be represented by an attorney, and such other due process rights as are determined to be appropriate by the Special Master.

The Department solicits comments on the procedures to be used in taking and evaluating such evidence. In formulating your comments, please keep in mind that the statute appears to provide only a very limited time for the Special Master to evaluate such evidence before making a decision: Section 405(b)(3) of the statute provides that the Special Master must make final decisions on claims within 120 days of the date of filing. Comments as to whether the statute permits the Special Master to temporarily halt the running of this clock, at the initiative of the claimant or otherwise, would be welcome. Also the Department invites comment on whether the Special Master should be permitted to dismiss a claim as not properly filed for lack of adequate supporting information and, if so, whether an individual should thereafter be permitted to refile the claim.

Among other matters, the Department welcome*s* comment on whether every claimant should be granted an oral hearing or whether paper hearings may be sufficient; and what types of oral hearing may practicable consistent with the statutory time frames. If oral hearings are provided, should the Special Master always use "hearing officers" to hear witnesses and review written evidence? What qualifications and training should those who should perform such tasks

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background.

The President signed the "September 11 Victim Compensation Fund of 2001" (the "Fund") into law on September 22, 2001, as Title IV of Public Law 107-42 ("Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act") (the "Act"). The purpose of this Fund is to provide compensation to eligible individuals who were physically injured as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001, and compensation through a "personal of oral hearing may practicable consistent with the statutory time frames. If oral hearings are provided, should the Special Master always use "hearing officers" to hear witnesses and review written evidence? What qualifications and training should those who should perform such tasks have? In addition, the Department welcomes comment on whether there are other specific duties and powers that should be delegated to hearing officers (e.g., to ask questions of the claimant or witnesses, to request submissions of such further information as the hearing officer may deem valuable in reaching a decision, and/or to prepare recommended decisions for the consideration of the Special Master).

The Department welcomes comment on whether claimants should have the right to appeal directly to the Special Master specific "rulings" or "working decisions" of a hearing officer on questions that arise in the course of his or her evaluation of the claim. The Department ~~would welcome~~ also seeks comment on whether it is authorized to enforce requests made by the hearing officer to third parties for evidence that is necessary to a proceeding – e.g., evidence that might bear on whether all aspects of the claim file on which the decision will be based are accurate and complete. The Department ~~would~~ also welcomes comment on whether such proceedings should be recorded, whether such proceedings must be held in a location convenient to the claimant and how to deal with scheduling conflicts, and whether the opportunity for a hearing can be waived by a claimant through inaction or unwarranted delay.

The Department ~~would~~ particularly welcomes comments that reference the practices or experience of existing compensation programs with respect to the hearing of evidence.

Topic #4: Procedures to assist an individual in filing and pursuing claims under this title.

The statute does not provide guidance on what actions the Special Master is to take to assist claimants in filing and pursuing claims. However, the Department believes that it is important that claimants be able to proceed without counsel or experts if they elect to do so. Accordingly, the Department welcomes any and all suggestions as to how it can assist claimants, including suggestions for office locations, toll-free phone lines, outreach meetings, newsletters, information about the availability of pro-bono legal or other services that could assist claimants, etc.

In addition, the Department welcomes comments on whether the Special Master has the authority to limit the types and amounts of fees that can be charged by counsel, accountants, experts or others who are retained by claimants to assist them ~~to file and pursue~~ in filing and pursuing compensation claims, and whether such fees can and should be paid by the Special Master directly out of compensation awards. The Department welcomes information about practices in this regard with respect to other Federal compensation programs, and welcomes specific suggestions on ~~any~~ the appropriate fee schedule or policy. The Department also ~~will~~ welcomes comments on what limitations, if any, the rules should impose on non-attorney, non-claimant representatives' participation in filing claims and in subsequent proceedings.

The Department is also interested in comments as to whether it needs to take any actions to ensure that individuals who have the option of filing a compensation claim with this program are not improperly solicited or influenced by those with an interest in having them make such an election.

Topic #5: Claimant Eligibility.

Section 405(b) of the statute requires the Special Master to determine whether a claimant is an "eligible individual" under section 405(c). "Eligibility," in turn, is defined to include: (i) victims (other than the terrorists) aboard American Airlines flights 11 and 77 and United Airlines flights 93 and 175; or (ii) victims who were "present at" the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, or the site of the aircraft crash at Shanksville, Pennsylvania at the time or in the immediate aftermath of the crashes, and who suffered physical harm or death as a result of such an air crash. The Department seeks comment on whether a Departmental regulation or a statement of policy by the Special Master would be appropriate to clarify these criteria, and if so, what those criteria should be.

Public commentators have suggested differing interpretations of the statutory terms "present at," "physical harm," and "immediate aftermath." The Department invites comment on the appropriate scope of each of those terms. In particular, should "present at" refer only to persons who were inside the World Trade Center Towers or Pentagon at the time of impact, explosions, fire, and collapse and to those conducting rescue operations, or should the term be construed more broadly? Should the term "physical harm" be limited to serious injuries, as it is under some other no-fault compensation schemes (see, e.g., N.Y. Ins. Law § 5102), or should it be construed more broadly? Further, should "physical harm" be limited to currently identifiable injuries? Can and should the program address latent, but not yet evident, harm? What documentation or other evidence should be required by the Special Master as to the claimant's presence at the World Trade Center or physical harm resulting from the air crash? Moreover, what documentation or other evidence should the Special Master seek to verify the identity of those lost for whom claims are filed? Finally, what duration of time is intended by the statutory phrase "immediate aftermath"?

Section 405(c)(2)(C) provides that the "personal representative" of an eligible decedent is the appropriate person to file a claim on a decedent's behalf. The Department seeks comment on whether a Departmental regulation or a statement of policy by the Special Master would be appropriate to clarify questions concerning personal representatives, for example:

Formatted: Bullets and Numbering

X ~~X~~ Whether the Special Master should require that all those who consider themselves to be survivors of someone lost in the crashes be notified of a claim by a "personal representative";

X Whether the Special Master should require that the "personal representative" identify all those who consider themselves to be survivors of someone lost in the crashes and obtain from each a signed statement waivering right to litigation prior to the acceptance of a claim;

X Whether the Special Master can, within the brief statutory period identified by the statute, determine who among ~~contesting~~ different claimants is the appropriate "personal representative";

X Whether the Special Master should, in any matter involving a dispute as to the identity of the "personal representative," require prior adjudication and judgment by a state court of competent jurisdiction; and

X Whether the Special Master should make determinations of compensation for claimants even when the identity of the "personal representative" is in dispute, but escrow payment until such disputes can be resolved by a court of competent jurisdiction.

_____Topic #6: Nature and Amount of Compensation.

Section 405(b) of the statute indicates that the Special Master shall determine the amount of compensation based on "the harm to the claimant, the facts of the claim, and the individual circumstances of the claimant." Yet each of the perhaps thousands of determinations must be made in a very short time period. Moreover, such determinations should be founded on consistent and clear principles that treat each claimant fairly. The Department invites comments that identify the practical means to achieve these results all within the strict statutory time period. Among other topics, the Department would welcome comment on whether and how statistical methodologies should be developed and used as a ~~starting~~ basis ~~point~~ for decision, and whether publication of hypothetical or presumptive awards for classes of individuals would assist potential claimants in determining whether to file.

Economic Loss: As indicated above, the Department is of the view that the Special Master ~~will~~ should not require that any claimant employ counsel or any experts on economic or other theories of losses. It may therefore be appropriate for the ~~The~~ Special Master ~~will~~ to draw on available information from appropriate specialists in relevant fields to analyze economic losses. The Department invites comment regarding the necessary qualifications for such specialists, the data that should be utilized, the methodologies that should be employed in analyzing economic losses, the documentation that should be required for every claimant, and how state law should bear upon such determinations. In addition, the Department invites comments on how to address the economic losses of individuals whose lost future income streams would have been highly contingent, variable, or unpredictable.

Noneconomic Loss: Section 402(7) lists several types of noneconomic losses that should be considered. The Department invites comments regarding whether, and in what manner, the Special Master can or should draw meaningful distinctions between individuals who died in different locations and, similarly, whether the Special Master can or should draw meaningful distinctions between individuals who suffered similar injuries. The Department also invites comments on whether the Department should~~, as some have suggested,~~ issue regulations determining the amount of noneconomic loss for classes of similarly situated individuals or whether, instead, the Special Master should determine all noneconomic loss on a detailed claim-by-claim basis. Further, what facts and circumstances should be considered in determining non-economic losses for each individual, and what standards should be employed?

Collateral Sources: Section 405(b)(6) provides that the Special Master shall reduce the amount of compensation by the amount of the collateral source compensation the claimant has received or is entitled to receive as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001. The Department invites comments on how to determine what constitutes a "collateral source" for purposes of this provision, and other related issues. For example, there may be ~~Department appreciates the strong~~ policy reasons for excluding charitable contributions from the definition of "collateral sources," and the Department invites comment regarding whether the Act indeed permits the Department to exclude such contributions from the definition. Similarly, the Department invites comments on whether "in kind" and/or material contributions could or should be considered collateral sources. Finally, the Department invites comments on how to determine whether potential future collateral source payments are ones which individuals are "entitled to receive" for purposes of Section 405(b)(6).

Fraud Prevention Measures: The Department is committed to preventing and prosecuting any fraudulent attempts to collect from the Fund. The Department therefore invites comments regarding any measures that the Department should take to prevent and detect fraud.

Other topics for comment.

The Department ~~wants to~~ reiterates that it welcomes ~~your~~ public comments ~~are welcome~~ on any and all aspects of the administration of the fund. Application of various laws and Executive Orders to this rulemaking.

There are a number of laws and Executive Orders whose provisions may have implications for this rulemaking process. Due to the preliminary nature of this notice, this notice does not address these requirements. Nonetheless, the Department welcomes comments that will help it address the applicability of any laws or Executive orders to future rulemaking under the Act.

representative" for those who ~~were lost~~ died in the crashes. Generally, eligibility extends to those who suffered physical harm or death as a result of the September 11 air crashes, which would include~~: a)~~ individuals on the planes at the time of the crashes (other than the terrorists); and ~~b)~~ individuals present at the World Trade Center, the Pentagon or the site of the crash in Pennsylvania at the time of the crashes as well as those present in the immediate aftermath of the crashes.

The Attorney General, acting through a Special Master appointed by the Attorney General, is responsible for the administration of the Fund. -By law, regulations addressing certain administrative matters ~~should~~ must? be issued within 90 days of enactment (i.e., by December 21, 2001). Section 407 of the Act provides that the Attorney General, in consultation with the Special Master, promulgate regulations on four matters by December 21, 2001:

(1) forms to be used in submitting claims;

(2) the information to be included in such forms;

(3) procedures for hearing and the presentation of evidence; and

(4) procedures to assist an individual in filing and pursuing claims under this title.

In addition, section 407 authorizes~~, but does not require,~~ the Attorney General to issue additional rules to implement the program.

After determining whether an individual is an eligible claimant under the Act and applicable regulations, the Special Master is to determine the extent of harm to the claimant, and then determine the amount of compensation to be awarded based on "the harm to the claimant, the facts of the claim, and the individual circumstances of the claimant." The law also provides that the Special Master is to make a final determination on any claim within 120 days of its receipt and, if an award is made, to authorize payment within 20 days thereafter. The determinations of the Special Master are final and are not reviewable by any court.

The Fund is designed to provide a no-fault alternative to tort litigation for individuals who were physically injured or killed as a result of the aircraft hi~~gh~~jackings and crashes on September 11, 2001. Individuals who may have suffered other kinds of losses as a result of those events (e.g., those without identifiable physical injuries but who lost employment) are not included in this special program. However, the statute provides that a claimant who files for compensation must at the time of filing waive any right to file a civil action (or to be a party to an action) in any Federal or State court for damages sustained as a result of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001.

Claims with the Fund must be filed within two years after the initial regulations are promulgated. Payments from the Fund are made by the United States government, which in turn obtains the right of subrogation to each award.

General approach to regulations that must be promulgated by December 21, 2001.

a) The purpose of this notice.

As noted above, the Act requires that the Attorney General promulgate regulations in consultation with the Special Master. The Department is currently considering potential candidates for the Special Master position. In addition, the Department is in the process of seeking information from state and local agencies, as well as many other sources, that may be useful in crafting proposed regulations. In the meantime, however, the Department ~~considers~~ believes that it is ~~it~~ very important ~~that~~, to the extent feasible ~~given~~ in the time frames involved, to involve the public ~~be~~ fully ~~involved~~ in the development of any rules established under the program -- including, but not limited to, potential beneficiaries of the program, their employers, the legal community, and all those who have stepped up to help those impacted. For this reason, the Department has decided to issue this notice to obtain as much public comment as feasible before issuing those rules that it is required to promulgate by December 21, 2001. This notice describes the issues involved, identifies possible courses of action, and invites comment on a number of points.

b) The Department's plan to issue implementing regulations by December 21, 2001 as "interim final" rules.

Although the Attorney General, in consultation with the Special Master, is to issue certain implementing rules by December 21, 2001, the law does not specifically define how such rules must be issued. ~~Your~~ The Department welcomes comments on ~~those~~ these procedural ~~plans would be most welcome~~issues.

The Department is considering promulgating the initial rules on December 21, 2001 as "interim final" rules. "Interim final" rules are "final" rules which can be relied upon (and challenged) under the law, but which also become the subject of a new round of immediate comment and review – essentially, asking the public for comment on whether the newly-adopted rules should be amended. The Department wishes to begin processing claims as soon as possible. This procedural methodology should permit ~~to~~ the program to commence operations as soon as practicable. ~~The Department welcomes comment in this regard.~~

c) How to comment in response to this notice.

There are a number of issues presented in the course of this discussion, and this notice ~~only~~ provides ~~you~~ only 21 days ~~to~~ for comment. However, the Department only has a limited time to evaluate the information received in response to this notice. Accordingly, the Department would appreciate comments that are transmitted as soon as possible and in a form that is as succinct as possible. As indicated at the beginning of this notice, we encourage ~~you~~ commenters to use e-mail and telefax for this purpose, particularly given the current problems associated with the delivery of mail to government offices in the Washington, D.C. area.

While the Department will endeavors to review every submission it receives in response to this notice, from handwritten letters to copies of scholarly legal articles and books, it reserves the right under the circumstances to set aside that information which it simply lacks the time to consider before the Department must make its determination, even if that information is received before the end of the comment period. The Department urges commenters to submit materials as early in the comment period as possible.

If the Department cannot fully consider all the comments it receives before it must act, the comments will be retained by the Department for subsequent consideration as appropriate. As discussed above, tThe Department intends contemplates to providinge another opportunity for notice and comment after the initial rules are issued in December; any information submitted to the Department in response to this notice which cannot be reviewed before the December rules are issued will be considered during the subsequent review. Similarly, to the extent that any issues addressed in comments are not addressed in this initial regulatory action, those comments will be retained by the Special Master for appropriate consideration as the program is implemented.

d) Will there also be meetings and hearings to gather information before December 21, 2001?

The Department anticipates that it may will have many requests for meetings from individuals and groups who wish to provide input on these rules, and it will is likely going to want wish to initiate such meetings on its own as well. The Department will endeavor to accommodate any such requests as best it can given its many important obligations, the available time, and any applicable legal requirements.

As a matter of general policy, the Department has declined to take a position prohibiting so-called "ex parte communications" in informal rulemaking proceedings. 28 CFR 50.17. Such a prohibition would inhibit the ability of the Department to obtain valuable information, and would be inconsistent with the nature of informal rulemaking under 5 U.S.C. 553 (as contrasted with so-called "formal" rulemaking under 5 U.S.C. 554, which is handled in a quasi-judicial manner). Consistent with the policy set forth in 28 CFR 50.17, the Department will endeavor to ~~add~~ make notes on any relevant meetings or other communications ~~to~~ part of the public record.

e) The effective date of the rules to be promulgated December 21, 2001.

The law generally provides that rules not go into effect for at least 30 days absent "good cause" to waive this requirement, 5 U.S.C. § 553(d), and in some cases even more time is required to permit an opportunity for Congressional review, CITE TO congressional review act.

The Department ~~is seeking~~ seeks comment on an appropriate effective date for these rules, including whether "good cause" exists under section 553(d) to waive the 30 day requirement. Although the Department would prefer not to waive the APA=s requirements for at least a 30 day delay in the effective date, it is prepared to assert that there is good cause for taking such an action should it be warranted in light of ~~your~~ public comment~~s~~. The Department welcomes comments on other alternatives. For example, a 30 day effective date delay might not significantly hinder implementation of the program~~,~~ and would provide time for some initial counseling and other information dissemination prior to any claims being filed.

f) Issues relating to the rules to be promulgated by December 21, 2001.

The Department welcomes comment on whether the rules that must be issued by December 21, 2001 should, pursuant to section 407(5), cover matters ~~beyond~~ other than those ~~the four~~ specifically identified in section 407(1)-(4) of ~~that are listed in~~ the statute. One reason for making the set of regulations to be published in December as comprehensive as possible is the possibility that there are some potential claimants who have already filed or will soon be filing tort suits seeking damages arising out of the September 11 incidents. These potential claimants ~~do~~ will not have the option of waiting ~~to see~~ for the determination of the Special Master in response to a compensation claim as to their eligibility for compensation, or as to the amount of compensation that will be provided, before they must decide whether to withdraw their pending civil litigation. Rather, section 405(c)(3)(B)(ii) of the Compensation Act provides that, if an individual is already a party to a civil action when the regulations enumerated in section 407 are promulgated, the individual cannot submit a compensation claim under this federal program unless he or she withdraws from the legal action within 90 days from the date the rules are promulgated. Without having information about how the compensation program works, such individuals might not view the compensation program as a viable alternative to continuing their litigation, potentially reducing the effectiveness of the program in serving the community of victims.

The Department believes that the number of individuals who have already filed a civil claim, or who have irrevocably committed to doing so in the next few months, may well be very small. The Department would welcome information on this point. The Department would also welcome comment as to whether the statutory requirement that a claimant "withdraws" from such action by 90 days after the date the initial rules are promulgated was intended to preclude such a claimant from refiling or rejoining a civil action: a) should the claimant ultimately elect not to file a compensation claim under the Federal program; or b) if the claimant is determined by the Special Master not to be eligible to file a claim. Also in this regard, the Department would welcome comment on whether the interpretation given to the statute in a particular case would be binding upon a court considering a claim for damages, and whether it would be appropriate or inappropriate for the Department to issue an interpretive rule on this point.

In short, potential claimants have an interest in knowing as soon as possible how the program is likely to operate in their circumstances. Litigation to obtain damages, particularly in a mass tort context, can be a lengthy, uncertain and complex process, with substantial risk and expense. The purpose of this compensation program is to offer all potential claimants a more expeditious, predictable and less complex alternative to that process. The Department ~~recognizes~~ believes that unless and until it can provide ~~some~~ certainty ~~about~~ as to how the compensation award program will work, some claimants ~~may~~ will be reluctant to commit themselves to the compensation fund as an alternative to tort awards.

Despite this incentive to promptly "flesh out" the details of the program, there are also countervailing concerns. For example, there a number of complex questions that need to be addressed by the Special Master in determining compensation awards for individuals who file claims, and many of those questions cannot be anticipated in advance. The Department would like to obtain as much input as practicable before determining its approach.

We now turn to a set of specific topics on which comment is solicited. The first four topics ~~deal with regulations that must be issued by December 21, 2001~~concern the Department's obligations under section 407(1)-(4) of the statute; the others discuss key issues which ~~could~~ may also be the subject of ~~prompt~~ regulatory action.

Topics #1 & 2: The forms to be used in submitting claims under this program and the information to be included on the claims form.

Section 405(a) of the statute establishes some specific requirements with respect to the claims form and the information to be included. The law requires the Special Master to develop a claim form to use in filing claims for compensation under this program. The Special Master is to ensure that the form can be filed electronically if ~~it is determined to be~~ practicable.

The form must include a statement of the factual basis for eligibility and for the amount of compensation sought. In addition, the form is to request information from the claimant as to: 1) the physical harm suffered by a victim, or information confirming the death of the victim, of the terrorist-related aircraft crashes of September 11, 2001; 2) any possible economic and non-economic losses that the claimant suffered as a result of the crashes; and 3) any collateral sources of compensation the claimant has received or is entitled to receive as a result of such crashes.

It would appear that these requirements, combined with the statutory time frame for the Special Master to reach a decision once a claim is filed, contemplate a very detailed form and filing, including submission by the claimant of prior tax returns, certifications and documents concerning the eligibility of a claimant as a personal representative of a deceased victim, and relevant medical records. Accordingly, the Department invites comment on whether the Special Master should determine that a claim has not been "filed" in those circumstances in which the Special Master determines that there is insufficient information submitted to permit a reasonably informed determination to be made. Comments are solicited on whether it is advisable to include in the rules a procedure ~~where the~~ for extending by agreement the time for making a determination ~~could be extended by agreement~~ and any suggestions as to whether such a procedure should, or should not, follow any preliminary action and of any limitations to such a procedure that should be adopted. Along similar lines, the Department invites comments on whether there are actions the Special Master should be required to take before he or she can accept a claim, or deem a claim "filed."

The Department welcomes comment on the design and content of the claims forms in light of the statutory requirements. Specific comments on making the forms and their instructions readable and readily available are welcome.

Topic #3: Procedures for hearing and the presentation of evidence.

Section 405(b)(4) provides that a claimant has the right after the filing of the claim to present evidence to the office of the Special Master. The statute specifically provides that the claimant has the right to present witness statements and documents, the right to be represented by an attorney, and such other due process rights as are determined to be appropriate by the Special Master.

The Department solicits comments on the procedures to be used in taking and evaluating such evidence. In formulating ~~your~~ comments, commenters should ~~please~~ keep in mind that the statute ~~appears to provide only a very limited time for~~ gives the Special Master a very limited time to evaluate such evidence before making a decision: Section 405(b)(3) of the statute provides that the Special Master must make final decisions on claims within 120 days of the date of filing. Comments as to whether the statute permits the Special Master to temporarily halt the running of this clock, at the initiative of the claimant or otherwise, ~~would be~~ are welcomed. ~~Also~~ In addition, the Department invites comment on whether the Special Master should be permitted to dismiss a claim as not properly filed for lack of adequate supporting information and, if so, whether an individual should thereafter be permitted to refile the claim.

Among other matters, the Department welcomes comment on whether every claimant should be granted an oral hearing or whether paper hearings may be sufficient ~~;~~ and what types my thought, having been in contact with OLC since my initial e-mail, is that the draft (which is some 30 page single-spaced pages) may not be what you want or need. Perhaps we all should talk about tactics/need, but I leave it to you all how to proceed.

Brett,

No, I don't know the status of the OLC Opinion Letter and it has been weeks since I spoke with Pat Philbin. Last week David Kuo was debating asking Philbin to hold the letter pending legislative developments and/or questions concerning implementation of charitable choice by SAMHSA. By copy of this email, maybe David Kuo can say if he still wants Philbin to submit Letter to WH. The concern is with having OLC "commit" to certain interpretive positions without hearing the arguments (both sides) re: SAMHSA.

Carl: Have you learned status from OLC? I yesterday traded voice mails with Pat Philbin (Deputy in OLC), and it might be good for you to speak with him directly to further coordinate the end product (substance and timing) in light of his schedule, which has been extraordinary since Sept. 11. Let me know your thoughts. My number is 456-7984. Thanks.

Administration with a goal of reaching agreement on a contract as soon as possible.

(b) WAR RISK INSURANCE.—It is the sense of Congress that the Secretary of Transportation should implement section 202 of the Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act (Public Law 107–42) so as to make war risk insurance available to vendors, agents, and subcontractors of general aviation aircraft.

(c) TRANSPORT OF ANIMALS.—It is the sense of Congress that an air carrier that transports mail under a contract with the United States Postal Service should transport any animal that the Postal Service allows to be shipped through the mail.

(d) SCREENING.—It is the sense of Congress that the Under Secretary of Transportation for Security should require, as soon as practicable, that all property carried in a passenger aircraft in air transportation or intrastate air transportation (including checked baggage) be screened by any currently available means, including X-ray machine, hand-held metal detector, explosive detection system equipment, or manual search.

TITLE II—VICTIMS COMPENSATION

SEC. 201. LIMITATION ON LIABILITY FOR DAMAGES ARISING OUT OF CRASHES OF SEPTEMBER 11, 2001.

(3) in subsection (b), by adding at the end the following new paragraphs:

"(4) DAMAGES.—If any party to any action brought under this subsection is determined to be liable—

"(A) no damages in the aggregate ordered by the court to be paid by such party shall exceed the amount of insurance, minus any payments made pursuant to a court approved settlement, which such party is determined to have obtained prior to September 11, 2001, and which is determined to cover such party's liability for any damages arising out of the hijacking and subsequent crashes of American Airlines flights 11 or 77, or United Airlines flights 93 or 175, on September 11, 2001;

"(B) such party shall not be liable for interest prior to the judgment or for punitive damages intended to punish or deter; and under this subsection shall be subject to the discretion of the court, but in no event shall any attorney charge, demand, receive, or collect for services rendered, fees in excess of 20 percent of the damages ordered by the court to be paid pursuant to this subsection, or in excess of 20 percent of any court approved settlement made of any claim cognizable under this subsection. Any attorney who charges, demands, receives, or collects for services rendered in connection with such claim any amount in excess of that allowed under this subsection, if recovery be had, shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.'';

''(2) knowingly participates in a conspiracy to hijack any aircraft or commit any terrorist act.''; and

(5) by adding at the end the following new subsections:

"(d) DISCLAIMER.—Nothing herein implies that any person is liable for damages arising out of the hijacking and subsequent crashes of American Airlines flights 11 or 77, or United Airlines flights 93 or 175, on September 11, 2001.

"(e) STATE DEFINED.—In this section, the term 'State' means any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Northern Mariana Islands, the United States Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, and any other territory of possession of the United States or any political subdivision of any of the foregoing.".

Kristen -- I want to apologize if I was too "passionate" in my arguments about the compromise Sen. Sarbanes presented at the meeting this a.m. I want you to know that I have tremendous respect for the job you are doing, and the able way you have been representing Josh and the POTUS on this issue. I don't know if Josh has decided yet as to whether this is a go, but regardless of his decision, we've gotten more than I ever dreamed possible on tort procedures, and I think that is entirely due to the fine work you and Brett have done as advocates for this piece of the legislation.

S. _____

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

_____ introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To promote the stabilization of the economy by encouraging financial institutions to continue to support economic development, including development in urban areas, through the provision of affordable insurance coverage against acts of terrorism, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(b) CONDITIONS FOR FEDERAL PAYMENTS.—No payment may be made by the Secretary under subsection (c), unless—

(1) a policyholder that suffers an insured loss, or a person acting on behalf of that policyholder, files a claim with a participating insurance company;

(2) at the time of offer, purchase, and renewal of each policy covering an insured loss, the participating insurance company provides clear and conspicuous disclosure in the policy to the policyholder of the premium charged for insured losses covered by the Program and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the participating insurance company processes the claim for the insured loss in accordance with its standard business practices, and any procedures that the Secretary may reasonably prescribe; and

(4) the participating insurance company submits to the Secretary, in accordance with such procedures as the Secretary may establish—

(A) a claim for payment of the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(B) written verification and certification—

(i) of the underlying claim; and

(ii) of all payments made to policyholders for insured losses; and

(C) certification of its compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(c) SHARED INSURANCE LOSS COVERAGE.—

(1) FEDERAL SHARE.—Subject to the limitations in paragraph (2), the Federal share of compensation under the Program, to be paid by the Secretary, shall be—

(A) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000;

(B) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2003 and ending on December 31, 2003, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000; and

(C) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6, for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2004 and ending on December 31, 2004, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $20,000,000,000.

(2) CAP ON ANNUAL LIABILITY.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), or any other provision of Federal or State law, if the aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 during any period referred to in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1) (or the period referred to in subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6)—

(A) the Secretary shall not make any payment under this Act for any portion of the amount of such losses that exceeds $100,000,000,000; and

(B) participating insurance companies shall not be liable for the payment of any portion of the amount that exceeds $100,000,000,000.

(3) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall notify the Congress if estimated or actual aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 in any period described in paragraph (1), and the Congress shall determine the procedures for and the source of any such excess payments.

(4) FINAL NETTING.—The Secretary shall have sole discretion to determine the time at which claims relating to any insured loss or act of terrorism shall become final.

(5) DETERMINATIONS FINAL.—Any determination of the Secretary under this subsection shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(d) FUNDING.—

(1) PAYMENT AUTHORITY.—This Act constitutes payment authority in advance of appropriation Acts and represents the obligation of the Federal Government to provide for the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary to pay the administrative expenses of the Program.

SEC. 5. GENERAL AUTHORITY AND ADMINISTRATION OF CLAIMS.

(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall have the powers and authorities necessary to carry out the Program, including authority—

(1) to investigate and audit all claims under the Program; and

(2) to prescribe regulations and procedures to implement the Program.

(b) INTERIM RULES AND PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall issue interim final rules or procedures specifying the manner in which—

(1) participating insurance companies may file, verify, and certify claims under the Program;

(2) the Secretary shall publish or otherwise publicly announce the applicable percentage of insured losses to be paid by participating insurance companies and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the Federal share of compensation for insured losses will be paid under the Program, including payments based on estimates of or actual aggregate insured losses;

(4) the Secretary may, at any time, seek repayment from or reimburse any participating insurance company, based on estimates of insured losses under the Program, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4;

(5) participating insurance companies that incur insured losses shall pay their pro rata share of insured losses in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, including payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses owed to any participating insurance company, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4.

(c) CONTRACTS FOR SERVICES.—The Secretary may employ persons or contract for services as may be necessary to implement the Program.

(d) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b)(5).

SEC. 6. TERMINATION OF PROGRAM; DISCRETIONARY EXTENSION.

(a) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2003, unless the Secretary—

(A) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, until December 31, 2004; and

(B) promptly notifies the Congress of such determination and the reasons therefore.

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(3) TERMINATION AFTER EXTENSION.—If the Program is extended under paragraph (1), this Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2004.

(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress—

(1) regarding—

(A) the availability of insurance coverage for acts of terrorism;

(B) the affordability of such coverage, including the effect of such coverage on premiums; and

(C) the capacity of the insurance industry to absorb future losses resulting from acts of terrorism, taking into account the profitability of the insurance industry; and

(2) that considers—

(A) the impact of the Program on each of the factors described in paragraph (1); and

(B) the probable impact on such factors and on the United States economy if the Program terminates on December 31, 2003.

(c) FINDING REQUIRED.—A determination under subsection (a) to extend the Program shall be based on a finding by the Secretary that—

(1) widespread market uncertainties continue to disrupt the ability of insurance companies to price insurance coverage for losses resulting from acts of terrorism, thereby resulting in the continuing unavailability of affordable insurance for consumers; and

(2) extending the Program for an additional year would likely encourage economic stabilization and facilitate a transition to a viable market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(d) CONTINUING AUTHORITY TO PAY OR ADJUST COMPENSATION.—Notwithstanding the date on which the Program terminates under subsection (a), the Secretary may take any actions necessary to ensure payment, reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses arising out of any act of terrorism occurring during the period during which the Program is in effect under this Act.

(e) STUDY AND REPORT ON SCOPE OF THE PROGRAM.—

(1) STUDY.—The Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, representatives of the insurance industry, and other experts in the insurance field, shall conduct a study of the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1).

SEC. 7 PRESERVATION OF STATE LAW.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction or regulatory authority of the insurance commissioner (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State over any participating insurance company or other person—

(1) except as specifically provided in this Act; and

(2) except that—

(B) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, rates for terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall not be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable, provided that nothing in this Act affects the ability of any State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

SEC. 8. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide

SECTION. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2001''.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) property and casualty insurance firms are important financial institutions, the products of which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient use of financial resources and enhance the ability of the economy to maintain stability, while responding to a variety of economic, political, environmental, and other risks with a minimum of disruption;

(2) the ability of businesses and individuals to obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to economic growth, urban development, and the construction and maintenance of public and private housing, as well as to the promotion of United States exports and foreign trade in an increasingly interconnected world;

(3) the ability of the insurance industry to cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by potential acts of terrorism in the United States can be a major factor in the recovery from terrorist at-affordable property and casualty coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism. All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism under this section shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the [State, or States determined to be required by the district court assigned under subsection (c), unless such law is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.]

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 90 days after the occurrence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single Federal district court to conduct pretrial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict

Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

[(d) APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS.—Any settlement between the parties of a civil action described in this section for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be subject to prior approval by the Secretary.]

(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—Punitive or exemplary damages shall not be available in any civil action subject to this section.

(f) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS.—Nothing in this section shall in any way limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, government or other entity that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism.

(g) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—This section shall apply only to actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from acts of terrorism

that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period under section 6.

tacks, while maintaining the stability of the economy;

(4) widespread financial market uncertainties have arisen following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the absence of information from which financial institutions can make statistically valid estimates of the probability and size of future terrorist events, and therefore the size, funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by such acts of terrorism;

(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and

(6) the United States Government should provide temporary financial assistance to insured parties, contributing to the stabilization of the United States economy in a time of national crisis, while the financial services industry develops the systems,

mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable financial services market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism in order to—

(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

107TH CONGRESS

S. _____

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

_____ introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To promote the stabilization of the economy by encouraging financial institutions to continue to support economic development, including development in urban areas, through the provision of affordable insurance coverage against acts of terrorism, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(b) CONDITIONS FOR FEDERAL PAYMENTS.—No payment may be made by the Secretary under subsection (c), unless—

(1) a policyholder that suffers an insured loss, or a person acting on behalf of that policyholder, files a claim with a participating insurance company;

(2) at the time of offer, purchase, and renewal of each policy covering an insured loss, the participating insurance company provides clear and conspicuous disclosure in the policy to the policyholder of the premium charged for insured losses covered by the Program and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the participating insurance company processes the claim for the insured loss in accordance with its standard business practices, and any procedures that the Secretary may reasonably prescribe; and

(4) the participating insurance company submits to the Secretary, in accordance with such procedures as the Secretary may establish—

(A) a claim for payment of the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(B) written verification and certification—

(i) of the underlying claim; and

(ii) of all payments made to policyholders for insured losses; and

(C) certification of its compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(c) SHARED INSURANCE LOSS COVERAGE.—

(1) FEDERAL SHARE.—Subject to the limitations in paragraph (2), the Federal share of compensation under the Program, to be paid by the Secretary, shall be—

(A) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000;

(B) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2003 and ending on December 31, 2003, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000; and

(C) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6, for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2004 and ending on December 31, 2004, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $20,000,000,000.

(2) CAP ON ANNUAL LIABILITY.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), or any other provision of Federal or State law, if the aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 during any period referred to in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1) (or the period referred to in subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6)—

(A) the Secretary shall not make any payment under this Act for any portion of the amount of such losses that exceeds $100,000,000,000; and

(B) participating insurance companies shall not be liable for the payment of any portion of the amount that exceeds $100,000,000,000.

(3) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall notify the Congress if estimated or actual aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 in any period described in paragraph (1), and the Congress shall determine the procedures for and the source of any such excess payments.

(4) FINAL NETTING.—The Secretary shall have sole discretion to determine the time at which claims relating to any insured loss or act of terrorism shall become final.

(5) DETERMINATIONS FINAL.—Any determination of the Secretary under this subsection shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(d) FUNDING.—

(1) PAYMENT AUTHORITY.—This Act constitutes payment authority in advance of appropriation Acts and represents the obligation of the Federal Government to provide for the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary to pay the administrative expenses of the Program.

SEC. 5. GENERAL AUTHORITY AND ADMINISTRATION OF CLAIMS.

(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall have the powers and authorities necessary to carry out the Program, including authority—

(1) to investigate and audit all claims under the Program; and

(2) to prescribe regulations and procedures to implement the Program.

(b) INTERIM RULES AND PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall issue interim final rules or procedures specifying the manner in which—

(1) participating insurance companies may file, verify, and certify claims under the Program;

(2) the Secretary shall publish or otherwise publicly announce the applicable percentage of insured losses to be paid by participating insurance companies and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the Federal share of compensation for insured losses will be paid under the Program, including payments based on estimates of or actual aggregate insured losses;

(4) the Secretary may, at any time, seek repayment from or reimburse any participating insurance company, based on estimates of insured losses under the Program, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4;

(5) participating insurance companies that incur insured losses shall pay their pro rata share of insured losses in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, including payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses owed to any participating insurance company, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4.

(c) CONTRACTS FOR SERVICES.—The Secretary may employ persons or contract for services as may be necessary to implement the Program.

(d) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b)(5).

SEC. 6. TERMINATION OF PROGRAM; DISCRETIONARY EXTENSION.

(a) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2003, unless the Secretary—

(A) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, until December 31, 2004; and

(B) promptly notifies the Congress of such determination and the reasons therefore.

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(3) TERMINATION AFTER EXTENSION.—If the Program is extended under paragraph (1), this Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2004.

(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress—

(1) regarding—

(A) the availability of insurance coverage for acts of terrorism;

(B) the affordability of such coverage, including the effect of such coverage on premiums; and

(C) the capacity of the insurance industry to absorb future losses resulting from acts of terrorism, taking into account the profitability of the insurance industry; and

(2) that considers—

(A) the impact of the Program on each of the factors described in paragraph (1); and

(B) the probable impact on such factors and on the United States economy if the Program terminates on December 31, 2003.

(c) FINDING REQUIRED.—A determination under subsection (a) to extend the Program shall be based on a finding by the Secretary that—

(1) widespread market uncertainties continue to disrupt the ability of insurance companies to price insurance coverage for losses resulting from acts of terrorism, thereby resulting in the continuing unavailability of affordable insurance for consumers; and

(2) extending the Program for an additional year would likely encourage economic stabilization and facilitate a transition to a viable market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(d) CONTINUING AUTHORITY TO PAY OR ADJUST COMPENSATION.—Notwithstanding the date on which the Program terminates under subsection (a), the Secretary may take any actions necessary to ensure payment, reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses arising out of any act of terrorism occurring during the period during which the Program is in effect under this Act.

(e) STUDY AND REPORT ON SCOPE OF THE PROGRAM.—

(1) STUDY.—The Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, representatives of the insurance industry, and other experts in the insurance field, shall conduct a study of the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1).

SEC. 7 PRESERVATION OF STATE LAW.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction or regulatory authority of the insurance commissioner (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State over any participating insurance company or other person—

(1) except as specifically provided in this Act; and

(2) except that—

(B) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, rates for terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall not be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable, provided that nothing in this Act affects the ability of any State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

SEC. 8. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide

SECTION. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2001''.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) property and casualty insurance firms are important financial institutions, the products of which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient use of financial resources and enhance the ability of the economy to maintain stability, while responding to a variety of economic, political, environmental, and other risks with a minimum of disruption;

(2) the ability of businesses and individuals to obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to economic growth, urban development, and the construction and maintenance of public and private housing, as well as to the promotion of United States exports and foreign trade in an increasingly interconnected world;

(3) the ability of the insurance industry to cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by potential acts of terrorism in the United States can be a major factor in the recovery from terrorist at-affordable property and casualty coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism. All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism under this section shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the [State, or States determined to be required by the district court assigned under subsection (c), unless such law is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.]

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 90 days after the occurrence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single Federal district court to conduct pretrial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict

Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

[(d) APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS.—Any settlement between the parties of a civil action described in this section for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be subject to prior approval by the Secretary.]

(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—Punitive or exemplary damages shall not be available in any civil action subject to this section.

(f) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS.—Nothing in this section shall in any way limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, government or other entity that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism.

(g) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—This section shall apply only to actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from acts of terrorism

that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period under section 6.

tacks, while maintaining the stability of the economy;

(4) widespread financial market uncertainties have arisen following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the absence of information from which financial institutions can make statistically valid estimates of the probability and size of future terrorist events, and therefore the size, funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by such acts of terrorism;

(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and

(6) the United States Government should provide temporary financial assistance to insured parties, contributing to the stabilization of the United States economy in a time of national crisis, while the financial services industry develops the systems,

mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable financial services market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism in order to—

(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

(2) allow for a transitional period for the private markets to stabilize, resume pricing of such insurance, and build capacity to absorb any future losses, while preserving State insurance regulation and consumer protections.

107TH CONGRESS

S. _____

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

_____ introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To promote the stabilization of the economy by encouraging financial institutions to continue to support economic development, including development in urban areas, through the provision of affordable insurance coverage against acts of terrorism, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(b) CONDITIONS FOR FEDERAL PAYMENTS.—No payment may be made by the Secretary under subsection (c), unless—

(1) a policyholder that suffers an insured loss, or a person acting on behalf of that policyholder, files a claim with a participating insurance company;

(2) at the time of offer, purchase, and renewal of each policy covering an insured loss, the participating insurance company provides clear and conspicuous disclosure in the policy to the policyholder of the premium charged for insured losses covered by the Program and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the participating insurance company processes the claim for the insured loss in accordance with its standard business practices, and any procedures that the Secretary may reasonably prescribe; and

(4) the participating insurance company submits to the Secretary, in accordance with such procedures as the Secretary may establish—

(A) a claim for payment of the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(B) written verification and certification—

(i) of the underlying claim; and

(ii) of all payments made to policyholders for insured losses; and

(C) certification of its compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(c) SHARED INSURANCE LOSS COVERAGE.—

(1) FEDERAL SHARE.—Subject to the limitations in paragraph (2), the Federal share of compensation under the Program, to be paid by the Secretary, shall be—

(A) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000;

(B) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2003 and ending on December 31, 2003, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000; and

(C) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6, for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2004 and ending on December 31, 2004, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $20,000,000,000.

(2) CAP ON ANNUAL LIABILITY.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), or any other provision of Federal or State law, if the aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 during any period referred to in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1) (or the period referred to in subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6)—

(A) the Secretary shall not make any payment under this Act for any portion of the amount of such losses that exceeds $100,000,000,000; and

(B) participating insurance companies shall not be liable for the payment of any portion of the amount that exceeds $100,000,000,000.

(3) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall notify the Congress if estimated or actual aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 in any period described in paragraph (1), and the Congress shall determine the procedures for and the source of any such excess payments.

(4) FINAL NETTING.—The Secretary shall have sole discretion to determine the time at which claims relating to any insured loss or act of terrorism shall become final.

(5) DETERMINATIONS FINAL.—Any determination of the Secretary under this subsection shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(d) FUNDING.—

(1) PAYMENT AUTHORITY.—This Act constitutes payment authority in advance of appropriation Acts and represents the obligation of the Federal Government to provide for the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary to pay the administrative expenses of the Program.

SEC. 5. GENERAL AUTHORITY AND ADMINISTRATION OF CLAIMS.

(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall have the powers and authorities necessary to carry out the Program, including authority—

(1) to investigate and audit all claims under the Program; and

(2) to prescribe regulations and procedures to implement the Program.

(b) INTERIM RULES AND PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall issue interim final rules or procedures specifying the manner in which—

(1) participating insurance companies may file, verify, and certify claims under the Program;

(2) the Secretary shall publish or otherwise publicly announce the applicable percentage of insured losses to be paid by participating insurance companies and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the Federal share of compensation for insured losses will be paid under the Program, including payments based on estimates of or actual aggregate insured losses;

(4) the Secretary may, at any time, seek repayment from or reimburse any participating insurance company, based on estimates of insured losses under the Program, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4;

(5) participating insurance companies that incur insured losses shall pay their pro rata share of insured losses in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, including payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses owed to any participating insurance company, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4.

(c) CONTRACTS FOR SERVICES.—The Secretary may employ persons or contract for services as may be necessary to implement the Program.

(d) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b)(5).

SEC. 6. TERMINATION OF PROGRAM; DISCRETIONARY EXTENSION.

(a) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2003, unless the Secretary—

(A) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, until December 31, 2004; and

(B) promptly notifies the Congress of such determination and the reasons therefore.

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(3) TERMINATION AFTER EXTENSION.—If the Program is extended under paragraph (1), this Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2004.

(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress—

(1) regarding—

(A) the availability of insurance coverage for acts of terrorism;

(B) the affordability of such coverage, including the effect of such coverage on premiums; and

(C) the capacity of the insurance industry to absorb future losses resulting from acts of terrorism, taking into account the profitability of the insurance industry; and

(2) that considers—

(A) the impact of the Program on each of the factors described in paragraph (1); and

(B) the probable impact on such factors and on the United States economy if the Program terminates on December 31, 2003.

(c) FINDING REQUIRED.—A determination under subsection (a) to extend the Program shall be based on a finding by the Secretary that—

(1) widespread market uncertainties continue to disrupt the ability of insurance companies to price insurance coverage for losses resulting from acts of terrorism, thereby resulting in the continuing unavailability of affordable insurance for consumers; and

(2) extending the Program for an additional year would likely encourage economic stabilization and facilitate a transition to a viable market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(d) CONTINUING AUTHORITY TO PAY OR ADJUST COMPENSATION.—Notwithstanding the date on which the

Program terminates under subsection (a), the Secretary may take any actions necessary to ensure payment, reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses arising out of any act of terrorism occurring during the period during which the Program is in effect under this Act.

(e) STUDY AND REPORT ON SCOPE OF THE PROGRAM.—

(1) STUDY.—The Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, representatives of the insurance industry, and other experts in the insurance field, shall conduct a study of the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1).

SEC. 7 PRESERVATION OF STATE LAW.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction or regulatory authority of the insurance commissioner (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State over any participating insurance company or other person—

(1) except as specifically provided in this Act; and

(2) except that—

(B) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, rates for terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall not be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable, provided that nothing in this Act affects the ability of any State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

SEC. 8. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide

SECTION. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2001''.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) property and casualty insurance firms are important financial institutions, the products of which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient use of financial resources and enhance the ability of the economy to maintain stability, while responding to a variety of economic, political, environmental, and other risks with a minimum of disruption;

(2) the ability of businesses and individuals to obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to economic growth, urban development, and the construction and maintenance of public and private housing, as well as to the promotion of United States exports and foreign trade in an increasingly interconnected world;

(3) the ability of the insurance industry to cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by potential acts of terrorism in the United States can be a major factor in the recovery from terrorist at-affordable property and casualty coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism. All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism under this section shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the [State, or States determined to be required by the district court assigned under subsection (c), unless such law is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.]

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 90 days after the occurrence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single Federal district court to conduct pretrial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict

Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

[(d) APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS.—Any settlement between the parties of a civil action described in this section for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be subject to prior approval by the Secretary.]

(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—Punitive or exemplary damages shall not be available in any civil action subject to this section.

(f) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS.—Nothing in this section shall in any way limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, government or other entity that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism.

(g) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—This section shall apply only to actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from acts of terrorism

that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period under section 6.

tacks, while maintaining the stability of the economy;

(4) widespread financial market uncertainties have arisen following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the absence of information from which financial institutions can make statistically valid estimates of the probability and size of future terrorist events, and therefore the size, funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by such acts of terrorism;

(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and

(6) the United States Government should provide temporary financial assistance to insured parties, contributing to the stabilization of the United States economy in a time of national crisis, while the financial services industry develops the systems,

mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable financial services market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism in order to—

(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

(2) allow for a transitional period for the private markets to stabilize, resume pricing of such insurance, and build capacity to absorb any future losses, while preserving State insurance regulation and consumer protections.

(5) participating insurance companies that incur insured losses shall pay their pro rata share of insured losses in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, including payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses owed to any participating insurance company, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4.

(c) CONTRACTS FOR SERVICES.—The Secretary may employ persons or contract for services as may be necessary to implement the Program.

(d) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b)(5).

SEC. 6. TERMINATION OF PROGRAM; DISCRETIONARY EXTENSION.

(a) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2003, unless the Secretary—

(A) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, until December 31, 2004; and

(B) promptly notifies the Congress of such determination and the reasons therefore.

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(3) TERMINATION AFTER EXTENSION.—If the Program is extended under paragraph (1), this Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2004.

(1) regarding—

(A) the availability of insurance coverage for acts of terrorism;

(C) the capacity of the insurance industry to absorb future losses resulting from acts of terrorism, taking into account the profitability of the insurance industry; and

(2) that considers—

(A) the impact of the Program on each of the factors described in paragraph (1); and

(B) the probable impact on such factors and on the United States economy if the Program terminates on December 31, 2003.

(c) FINDING REQUIRED.—A determination under subsection (a) to extend the Program shall be based on a finding by the Secretary that—

(1) widespread market uncertainties continue to disrupt the ability of insurance companies to price insurance coverage for losses resulting from acts of terrorism, thereby resulting in the continuing unavailability of affordable insurance for consumers; and

(2) extending the Program for an additional year would likely encourage economic stabilization and facilitate a transition to a viable market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(d) CONTINUING AUTHORITY TO PAY OR ADJUST COMPENSATION.—Notwithstanding the date on which the Program terminates under subsection (a), the Secretary may take any actions necessary to ensure payment, reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses arising out of any act of terrorism occurring during the period during which the Program is in effect under this Act.

(e) STUDY AND REPORT ON SCOPE OF THE PROGRAM.—

(1) STUDY.—The Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, representatives of the insurance industry, and other experts in the insurance field, shall conduct a study of the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage.

(2) except that—

(B) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, rates for terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall not be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable, provided that nothing in this Act affects the ability of any State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

SEC. 8. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide

SECTION. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2001''.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) property and casualty insurance firms are important financial institutions, the products of which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient use of financial resources and enhance the ability of the economy to maintain stability, while responding to a variety of economic, political, environmental, and other risks with a minimum of disruption;

(2) the ability of businesses and individuals to obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to economic growth, urban development, and the construction and maintenance of public and private housing, as well as to the promotion of United States exports and foreign trade in an increasingly interconnected world;

(3) the ability of the insurance industry to cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by potential acts of terrorism in the United States can be a major factor in the recovery from terrorist at-affordable property and casualty coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism. All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism under this section shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the [State, or States determined to be required by the district court assigned under subsection (c), unless such law is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.]

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 90 days after the occurrence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single Federal district court to conduct pretrial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict

Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

[(d) APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS.—Any settlement between the parties of a civil action described in this section for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be subject to prior approval by the Secretary.]

(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—Punitive or exemplary damages shall not be available in any civil action subject to this section.

that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period under section 6.

tacks, while maintaining the stability of the economy;

(4) widespread financial market uncertainties have arisen following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the absence of information from which financial institutions can make statistically valid estimates of the probability and size of future terrorist events, and therefore the size, funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by such acts of terrorism;

(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and

(6) the United States Government should provide temporary financial assistance to insured parties, contributing to the stabilization of the United States economy in a time of national crisis, while the financial services industry develops the systems,

mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable financial services market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism in order to—

(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

(2) allow for a transitional period for the private markets to stabilize, resume pricing of such insurance, and build capacity to absorb any future losses, while preserving State insurance regulation and consumer protections.

(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and

(6) the United States Government should provide temporary financial assistance to insured parties, contributing to the stabilization of the United States economy in a time of national crisis, while the financial services industry develops the systems,

mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable financial services market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism in order to—

(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

107TH CONGRESS

S. _____

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

_____ introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To promote the stabilization of the economy by encouraging financial institutions to continue to support economic development, including development in urban areas, through the provision of affordable insurance coverage against acts of terrorism, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(b) CONDITIONS FOR FEDERAL PAYMENTS.—No payment may be made by the Secretary under subsection (c), unless—

(1) a policyholder that suffers an insured loss, or a person acting on behalf of that policyholder, files a claim with a participating insurance company;

(2) at the time of offer, purchase, and renewal of each policy covering an insured loss, the participating insurance company provides clear and conspicuous disclosure in the policy to the policyholder of the premium charged for insured losses covered by the Program and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the participating insurance company processes the claim for the insured loss in accordance with its standard business practices, and any procedures that the Secretary may reasonably prescribe; and

(4) the participating insurance company submits to the Secretary, in accordance with such procedures as the Secretary may establish—

(A) a claim for payment of the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(B) written verification and certification—

(i) of the underlying claim; and

(ii) of all payments made to policyholders for insured losses; and

(C) certification of its compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(c) SHARED INSURANCE LOSS COVERAGE.—

(1) FEDERAL SHARE.—Subject to the limitations in paragraph (2), the Federal share of compensation under the Program, to be paid by the Secretary, shall be—

(A) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000;

(B) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2003 and ending on December 31, 2003, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000; and

(C) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6, for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2004 and ending on December 31, 2004, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $20,000,000,000.

(2) CAP ON ANNUAL LIABILITY.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), or any other provision of Federal or State law, if the aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 during any period referred to in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1) (or the period referred to in subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6)—

(A) the Secretary shall not make any payment under this Act for any portion of the amount of such losses that exceeds $100,000,000,000; and

(B) participating insurance companies shall not be liable for the payment of any portion of the amount that exceeds $100,000,000,000.

(3) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall notify the Congress if estimated or actual aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 in any period described in paragraph (1), and the Congress shall determine the procedures for and the source of any such excess payments.

(4) FINAL NETTING.—The Secretary shall have sole discretion to determine the time at which claims relating to any insured loss or act of terrorism shall become final.

(5) DETERMINATIONS FINAL.—Any determination of the Secretary under this subsection shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(d) FUNDING.—

(1) PAYMENT AUTHORITY.—This Act constitutes payment authority in advance of appropriation Acts and represents the obligation of the Federal Government to provide for the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary to pay the administrative expenses of the Program.

SEC. 5. GENERAL AUTHORITY AND ADMINISTRATION OF CLAIMS.

(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall have the powers and authorities necessary to carry out the Program, including authority—

(1) to investigate and audit all claims under the Program; and

(2) to prescribe regulations and procedures to implement the Program.

(b) INTERIM RULES AND PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall issue interim final rules or procedures specifying the manner in which—

(1) participating insurance companies may file, verify, and certify claims under the Program;

(2) the Secretary shall publish or otherwise publicly announce the applicable percentage of insured losses to be paid by participating insurance companies and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the Federal share of compensation for insured losses will be paid under the Program, including payments based on estimates of or actual aggregate insured losses;

(4) the Secretary may, at any time, seek repayment from or reimburse any participating insurance company, based on estimates of insured losses under the Program, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4;

(5) participating insurance companies that incur insured losses shall pay their pro rata share of insured losses in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, including payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses owed to any participating insurance company, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4.

(c) CONTRACTS FOR SERVICES.—The Secretary may employ persons or contract for services as may be necessary to implement the Program.

(d) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b)(5).

SEC. 6. TERMINATION OF PROGRAM; DISCRETIONARY EXTENSION.

(a) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2003, unless the Secretary—

(A) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, until December 31, 2004; and

(B) promptly notifies the Congress of such determination and the reasons therefore.

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(3) TERMINATION AFTER EXTENSION.—If the Program is extended under paragraph (1), this Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2004.

(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress—

(1) regarding—

(A) the availability of insurance coverage for acts of terrorism;

(B) the affordability of such coverage, including the effect of such coverage on premiums; and

(C) the capacity of the insurance industry to absorb future losses resulting from acts of terrorism, taking into account the profitability of the insurance industry; and

(2) that considers—

(A) the impact of the Program on each of the factors described in paragraph (1); and

(B) the probable impact on such factors and on the United States economy if the Program terminates on December 31, 2003.

(c) FINDING REQUIRED.—A determination under subsection (a) to extend the Program shall be based on a finding by the Secretary that—

(1) widespread market uncertainties continue to disrupt the ability of insurance companies to price insurance coverage for losses resulting from acts of terrorism, thereby resulting in the continuing unavailability of affordable insurance for consumers; and

(2) extending the Program for an additional year would likely encourage economic stabilization and facilitate a transition to a viable market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(d) CONTINUING AUTHORITY TO PAY OR ADJUST COMPENSATION.—Notwithstanding the date on which the Program terminates under subsection (a), the Secretary may take any actions necessary to ensure payment, reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses arising out of any act of terrorism occurring during the period during which the Program is in effect under this Act.

(e) STUDY AND REPORT ON SCOPE OF THE PROGRAM.—

(1) STUDY.—The Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, representatives of the insurance industry, and other experts in the insurance field, shall conduct a study of the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1).

SEC. 7 PRESERVATION OF STATE LAW.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction or regulatory authority of the insurance commissioner (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State over any participating insurance company or other person—

(1) except as specifically provided in this Act; and

(2) except that—

(B) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, rates for terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall not be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable, provided that nothing in this Act affects the ability of any State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

SEC. 8. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide

SECTION. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2001''.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) property and casualty insurance firms are important financial institutions, the products of which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient use of financial resources and enhance the ability of the economy to maintain stability, while responding to a variety of economic, political, environmental, and other risks with a minimum of disruption;

(2) the ability of businesses and individuals to obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to economic growth, urban development, and the construction and maintenance of public and private housing, as well as to the promotion of United States exports and foreign trade in an increasingly interconnected world;

(3) the ability of the insurance industry to cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by potential acts of terrorism in the United States can be a major factor in the recovery from terrorist at-affordable property and casualty coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism. All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism under this section shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the [State, or States determined to be required by the district court assigned under subsection (c), unless such law is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.]

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 90 days after the occurrence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single Federal district court to conduct pretrial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict

Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

[(d) APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS.—Any settlement between the parties of a civil action described in this section for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be subject to prior approval by the Secretary.]

(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—Punitive or exemplary damages shall not be available in any civil action subject to this section.

(f) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS.—Nothing in this section shall in any way limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, government or other entity that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism.

(g) EFFECTIVE PERIOD.—This section shall apply only to actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from acts of terrorism

that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period under section 6.

tacks, while maintaining the stability of the economy;

(4) widespread financial market uncertainties have arisen following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the absence of information from which financial institutions can make statistically valid estimates of the probability and size of future terrorist events, and therefore the size, funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by such acts of terrorism;

(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and

(6) the United States Government should provide temporary financial assistance to insured parties, contributing to the stabilization of the United States economy in a time of national crisis, while the financial services industry develops the systems, mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable financial services market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism in order to—

(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

(2) allow for a transitional period for the private markets to stabilize, resume pricing of such insurance, and build capacity to absorb any future losses, while preserving State insurance regulation and consumer protections.

(5) DETERMINATIONS FINAL.—Any determination of the Secretary under this subsection shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(5) participating insurance companies that incur insured losses shall pay their pro rata share of insured losses in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, including payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses owed to any participating insurance company, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4.

(d) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b)(5).

SEC. 6. TERMINATION OF PROGRAM; DISCRETIONARY EXTENSION.

(a) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2003, unless the Secretary—

(A) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, until December 31, 2004; and

(B) promptly notifies the Congress of such determination and the reasons therefore.

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(2) that considers—

(A) the impact of the Program on each of the factors described in paragraph (1); and

(B) the probable impact on such factors and on the United States economy if the Program terminates on December 31, 2003.

(c) FINDING REQUIRED.—A determination under subsection (a) to extend the Program shall be based on a finding by the Secretary that—

(1) widespread market uncertainties continue to disrupt the ability of insurance companies to price insurance coverage for losses resulting from acts of terrorism, thereby resulting in the continuing unavailability of affordable insurance for consumers; and

(2) extending the Program for an additional year would likely encourage economic stabilization and facilitate a transition to a viable market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(d) CONTINUING AUTHORITY TO PAY OR ADJUST COMPENSATION.—Notwithstanding the date on which the Program terminates under subsection (a), the Secretary may take any actions necessary to ensure payment, reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses arising out of any act of terrorism occurring during the period during which the Program is in effect under this Act.

(e) STUDY AND REPORT ON SCOPE OF THE PROGRAM.—

(1) STUDY.—The Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, representatives of the insurance industry, and other experts in the insurance field, shall conduct a study of the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage.

(A) the definition of the term "act of terrorism" in section 3 shall be the exclusive definition for purposes of compensation for insured losses under this Act, and shall preempt any provision of State law that is inconsistent with that definition, to the extent that such provision of law would otherwise apply to any insurance policy relating to terrorism risk in the United States; and

(B) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, rates for terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall not be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable, provided that nothing in this Act affects the ability of any State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

SEC. 8. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide

SECTION. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2001''.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) property and casualty insurance firms are important financial institutions, the products of which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient use of financial resources and enhance the ability of the economy to maintain stability, while responding to a variety of economic, political, environmental, and other risks with a minimum of disruption;

(2) the ability of businesses and individuals to obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to economic growth, urban development, and the construction and maintenance of public and private housing, as well as to the promotion of United States exports and foreign trade in an increasingly interconnected world;

(3) the ability of the insurance industry to cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by potential acts of terrorism in the United States can be a major factor in the recovery from terrorist at-affordable property and casualty coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism. All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism under this section shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the [State, or States determined to be required by the district court assigned under subsection (c), unless such law is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.]

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 90 days after the occurrence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single Federal district court to conduct pretrial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict

Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

[(d) APPROVAL OF SETTLEMENTS.—Any settlement between the parties of a civil action described in this section for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism shall be subject to prior approval by the Secretary.]

(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—Punitive or exemplary damages shall not be available in any civil action subject to this section.

(f) CLAIMS AGAINST TERRORISTS.—Nothing in this section shall in any way limit the ability of any plaintiff to seek any form of recovery from any person, government or other entity that was a participant in, or aider and abettor of, any act of terrorism.

that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period under section 6.

tacks, while maintaining the stability of the economy;

(4) widespread financial market uncertainties have arisen following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the absence of information from which financial institutions can make statistically valid estimates of the probability and size of future terrorist events, and therefore the size, funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by such acts of terrorism;

(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and

(6) the United States Government should provide temporary financial assistance to insured parties, contributing to the stabilization of the United States economy in a time of national crisis, while the financial services industry develops the systems, mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable financial services market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism in order to—

(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

(2) allow for a transitional period for the private markets to stabilize, resume pricing of such insurance, and build capacity to absorb any future losses, while preserving State insurance regulation and consumer protections.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) widespread financial market uncertainties have arisen following the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, including the absence of information from which financial institutions can make statistically valid estimates of the probability and size of future terrorist events, and therefore the size, funding, and allocation of the risk of loss caused by such acts of terrorism;

(5) a decision by property and casualty insurers to deal with such uncertainties, either by terminating property and casualty coverage for losses arising from terrorist events, or by radically escalating premium coverage to compensate for risks of loss that are not readily predictable, could seriously hamper ongoing and planned construction, property acquisition, and other business projects, generate a dramatic increase in rents, and otherwise suppress economic activity; and

mechanisms, products, and programs necessary to create a viable financial services market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to establish a temporary Federal program that provides for a transparent system of shared public and private compensation for insured losses resulting from acts of terrorism in order to—

(1) protect consumers by addressing market disruptions and ensure the continued widespread availability and affordability of property and casualty insurance for terrorism risk; and

107TH CONGRESS

S. _____

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

_____ introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To promote the stabilization of the economy by encouraging financial institutions to continue to support economic development, including development in urban areas, through the provision of affordable insurance coverage against acts of terrorism, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(b) CONDITIONS FOR FEDERAL PAYMENTS.—No payment may be made by the Secretary under subsection (c), unless—

(1) a policyholder that suffers an insured loss, or a person acting on behalf of that policyholder, files a claim with a participating insurance company;

(2) at the time of offer, purchase, and renewal of each policy covering an insured loss, the participating insurance company provides clear and conspicuous disclosure in the policy to the policyholder of the premium charged for insured losses covered by the Program and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the participating insurance company processes the claim for the insured loss in accordance with its standard business practices, and any procedures that the Secretary may reasonably prescribe; and

(4) the participating insurance company submits to the Secretary, in accordance with such procedures as the Secretary may establish—

(A) a claim for payment of the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(B) written verification and certification—

(i) of the underlying claim; and

(ii) of all payments made to policyholders for insured losses; and

(C) certification of its compliance with the provisions of this subsection.

(c) SHARED INSURANCE LOSS COVERAGE.—

(1) FEDERAL SHARE.—Subject to the limitations in paragraph (2), the Federal share of compensation under the Program, to be paid by the Secretary, shall be—

(A) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000;

(B) for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2003 and ending on December 31, 2003, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $10,000,000,000; and

(C) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6, for insured losses resulting from an act of terrorism occurring during the period beginning on January 1, 2004 and ending on December 31, 2004, 90 percent of the aggregate amount of all such losses in excess of $20,000,000,000.

(2) CAP ON ANNUAL LIABILITY.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), or any other provision of Federal or State law, if the aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 during any period referred to in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1) (or the period referred to in subparagraph (C) of paragraph (1) if the Program is extended in accordance with section 6)—

(A) the Secretary shall not make any payment under this Act for any portion of the amount of such losses that exceeds $100,000,000,000; and

(B) participating insurance companies shall not be liable for the payment of any portion of the amount that exceeds $100,000,000,000.

(3) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary shall notify the Congress if estimated or actual aggregate insured losses exceed $100,000,000,000 in any period described in paragraph (1), and the Congress shall determine the procedures for and the source of any such excess payments.

(4) FINAL NETTING.—The Secretary shall have sole discretion to determine the time at which claims relating to any insured loss or act of terrorism shall become final.

(5) DETERMINATIONS FINAL.—Any determination of the Secretary under this subsection shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(d) FUNDING.—

(1) PAYMENT AUTHORITY.—This Act constitutes payment authority in advance of appropriation Acts and represents the obligation of the Federal Government to provide for the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary such sums as may be necessary to pay the administrative expenses of the Program.

SEC. 5. GENERAL AUTHORITY AND ADMINISTRATION OF CLAIMS.

(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall have the powers and authorities necessary to carry out the Program, including authority—

(1) to investigate and audit all claims under the Program; and

(2) to prescribe regulations and procedures to implement the Program.

(b) INTERIM RULES AND PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall issue interim final rules or procedures specifying the manner in which—

(1) participating insurance companies may file, verify, and certify claims under the Program;

(2) the Secretary shall publish or otherwise publicly announce the applicable percentage of insured losses to be paid by participating insurance companies and the Federal share of compensation for insured losses under the Program;

(3) the Federal share of compensation for insured losses will be paid under the Program, including payments based on estimates of or actual aggregate insured losses;

(4) the Secretary may, at any time, seek repayment from or reimburse any participating insurance company, based on estimates of insured losses under the Program, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4;

(5) participating insurance companies that incur insured losses shall pay their pro rata share of insured losses in accordance with the schedule and limitations contained in section 4; and

(6) the Secretary will determine any final netting of payments for actual insured losses under the Program, including payments owed to the Federal Government from any participating insurance company and any Federal share of compensation for insured losses owed to any participating insurance company, to effectuate the insured loss sharing schedule and limitations contained in section 4.

(c) CONTRACTS FOR SERVICES.—The Secretary may employ persons or contract for services as may be necessary to implement the Program.

(d) CIVIL PENALTIES.—The Secretary may assess civil money penalties for violations of this Act or any rule, regulation, or order issued by the Secretary under this Act relating to the submission of false or misleading information for purposes of the Program, or any failure to repay any amount required to be reimbursed under regulations or procedures described in section 5(b)(5).

SEC. 6. TERMINATION OF PROGRAM; DISCRETIONARY EXTENSION.

(a) TERMINATION OF PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—This Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2003, unless the Secretary—

(A) determines, after considering the report and finding required by this section, that the Program should be extended for one additional year, until December 31, 2004; and

(B) promptly notifies the Congress of such determination and the reasons therefore.

(2) DETERMINATION FINAL.—The determination of the Secretary under paragraph (1) shall be final, and shall not be subject to judicial review.

(3) TERMINATION AFTER EXTENSION.—If the Program is extended under paragraph (1), this Act is repealed, and the Program shall terminate, on December 31, 2004.

(b) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to Congress—

(1) regarding—

(A) the availability of insurance coverage for acts of terrorism;

(B) the affordability of such coverage, including the effect of such coverage on premiums; and

(C) the capacity of the insurance industry to absorb future losses resulting from acts of terrorism, taking into account the profitability of the insurance industry; and

(2) that considers—

(A) the impact of the Program on each of the factors described in paragraph (1); and

(B) the probable impact on such factors and on the United States economy if the Program terminates on December 31, 2003.

(c) FINDING REQUIRED.—A determination under subsection (a) to extend the Program shall be based on a finding by the Secretary that—

(1) widespread market uncertainties continue to disrupt the ability of insurance companies to price insurance coverage for losses resulting from acts of terrorism, thereby resulting in the continuing unavailability of affordable insurance for consumers; and

(2) extending the Program for an additional year would likely encourage economic stabilization and facilitate a transition to a viable market for private terrorism risk insurance.

(d) CONTINUING AUTHORITY TO PAY OR ADJUST COMPENSATION.—Notwithstanding the date on which the Program terminates under subsection (a), the Secretary may take any actions necessary to ensure payment, reimbursement, or adjustment of compensation for insured losses arising out of any act of terrorism occurring during the period during which the Program is in effect under this Act.

(e) STUDY AND REPORT ON SCOPE OF THE PROGRAM.—

(1) STUDY.—The Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, representatives of the insurance industry, and other experts in the insurance field, shall conduct a study of the potential effects of acts of terrorism on the availability of life insurance and other lines of insurance coverage.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the study conducted under paragraph (1).

SEC. 7 PRESERVATION OF STATE LAW.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the jurisdiction or regulatory authority of the insurance commissioner (or any agency or office performing like functions) of any State over any participating insurance company or other person—

(1) except as specifically provided in this Act; and

(2) except that—

(A) the definition of the term "act of terrorism" in section 3 shall be the exclusive definition for purposes of compensation for insured losses under this Act, and shall preempt any provision of State law that is inconsistent with that definition, to the extent that such provision of law would otherwise apply to any insurance policy relating to terrorism risk in the United States; and

(B) during the period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act and ending on December 31, 2002, rates for terrorism risk insurance covered by this Act and filed with any State shall not be subject to prior approval or a waiting period, under any law of a State that would otherwise be applicable, provided that nothing in this Act affects the ability of any State to invalidate a rate as excessive, inadequate, or unfairly discriminatory.

SEC. 8. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.

It is the sense of the Congress that the insurance industry should build capacity and aggregate risk to provide

SECTION. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2001''.

SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) property and casualty insurance firms are important financial institutions, the products of which allow mutualization of risk and the efficient use of financial resources and enhance the ability of the economy to maintain stability, while responding to a variety of economic, political, environmental, and other risks with a minimum of disruption;

(2) the ability of businesses and individuals to obtain property and casualty insurance at reasonable and predictable prices, in order to spread the risk of both routine and catastrophic loss, is critical to economic growth, urban development, and the construction and maintenance of public and private housing, as well as to the promotion of United States exports and foreign trade in an increasingly interconnected world;

(3) the ability of the insurance industry to cover the unprecedented financial risks presented by potential acts of terrorism in the United States can be a major factor in the recovery from terrorist at-affordable property and casualty coverage for terrorism risk.

SEC. 9. PROCEDURES FOR CIVIL ACTIONS.

(a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION.—There shall exist a Federal cause of action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, which shall be the exclusive cause of action and remedy for claims for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism. All State causes of action of any kind for property damage, personal injury, or death otherwise available arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism, are hereby preempted, except as provided in subsection (f).

(b) GOVERNING LAW.—The substantive law for decision in an action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism under this section shall be derived from the law, including applicable choice of law principles, of the [State, or States determined to be required by the district court assigned under subsection (c), unless such law is inconsistent with or otherwise preempted by Federal law.]

(c) FEDERAL JURISDICTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 90 days after the occurrence of an act of terrorism, the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall assign a single Federal district court to conduct pretrial and trial proceedings in all pending and future civil actions for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from that act of terrorism.

(2) SELECTION CRITERIA.—The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall select and assign the district court under paragraph (1) based on the convenience of the parties and the just and efficient conduct of the proceedings.

(3) JURISDICTION.—The district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions under paragraph (1). For purposes of personal jurisdiction, the district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation shall be deemed to sit in all judicial districts in the United States.

(4) TRANSFER OF CASES FILED IN OTHER FEDERAL COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a Federal district court other than the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict

Litigation under paragraph (1) shall be transferred to the Federal district court so assigned.

(5) REMOVAL OF CASES FILED IN STATE COURTS.—Any civil action for property damage, personal injury, or death arising out of or resulting from an act of terrorism that is filed in a State court shall be removable to the Federal district court assigned by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation under paragraph (1).

that occur during the effective period of the Program, including, if applicable, any extension period under section 6.
